Index. The

WEEKLY PAPER,

DEVOTED TO

FREE RELIGION.

VOLUME V.

BOSTON, MASS:

INDEX ASSOCIATION, No. 1, TREMONT PLACE.

1874.

opprated by Google

128 Digitized by Google

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.	The Light which Lighteth Every Man Samuel Longfellow PAG	E PAG
BY A. W. S.	Things Hard to Bear, Mrs. D. H. Clark. 30	Thoughts by the Sea-Side, E. D. C. ages 1, 12, 71, 88, 97, 109, 121, 133, 145, 157, 169, 181, 193, 205, 217, 229,	The Light which Lighteth Every Man, Samuel Longfellow. 2 Things Hard to Bear, Mrs. D. H. Clark. 31 The Pilgrino f Life, Jennie Perrine. 31 The Faces on the Street, Stella. 22	Past     Past       Mathematical Strength of Control Stren
ugue 1, 13, 73, 83, 97, 109, 121, 133, 140, 141, 143, 140, 141, 151, 161, 171, 183, 265, 277, 289, 301, 313, 325, 337, 349, 361, 373.	The Faces on the Street, Stella       2         The Soul's Reply, Stella       3         Jamio's Fable, E. N. Hathersay,       3         "The Five Knaves," J. G. Soar,       3         Sixty-Seven, Asteriak       3         We Knaves," J. G. Soar,       3         Sixty-Seven, Asteriak       3         Wu Ameria, Amabalis Esto," A. W. Kelsey       3         Iding one Day in June, J. W. Chadwick       4         At Meeting, C. Appn.       4         The Holy Grail, Asteriak       4         Like Me, M. F. Buits.       4         A Study for the Critics, J. M. Thompson       4         The Situation, E. M.       4         Farowell, Céla Thaxter       4         Sorrow, L. Cela Thaxter       4         Sorrow, L	The Bible Society in the Capitol
GLIMPSES.	"The Five Knaves," J. G. Saze	55 Parker and Potter, C. A. Bartol
BY F. E. A.	"Ut Ameris, Amabalis Esto," A. W. Kelsey	7 Christianity and Self-Respect
aga 6, 18, 25, 30, 37, 42, 49, 54, 61, 66, 78, 90, 102, 114, 1 '6, 138, 150,	Iding one Day in June, J. W. Chadwick	11 Vacation Jottings, A. W. S. 13 Judging Character by Opinions
gen 6, 18, 25, 30, 37, 42, 49, 54, 64, 66, 15, 67, 62, 282, 294, 306, 318, 330, m. 13, 18, 188, 210, 122, 234, 246, 258, 270, 282, 294, 306, 318, 330,	The Holy Grall, Asterisk	Church Taxation in the District of Columbia.
	A Prisoner, Grace Morven	<ul> <li>77 Achurch Taxation in the District of Columbia.</li> <li>77 Conscience for Freedon; A Point to Carry.</li> <li>78 Freedon; A Point to Carry.</li> <li>79 Freedon; A Point to Carry.</li> <li>70 Freedon; A Point to Carry.</li> <li>71 Fetter from Scotland, Charles Yoyasy.</li> <li>71 Tyndal's Address.</li> <li>71 Free Piess.</li> <li>72 The Development of the National Science The Science The Science The Science Piess.</li> <li>73 The Dree Piess.</li> <li>74 The Development of The Nation," R. P. H.</li> <li>75 The Development of The Nation," R. P. H.</li> <li>76 Free Piess.</li> <li>77 Free Piess.</li> <li>77 Free Piess.</li> <li>78 Free Piess.</li> <li>79 Free Piess.</li> <li>79 Free Piess.</li> <li>71 Free Piess.</li> <li>71 Free Piess.</li> <li>72 Free Piess.</li> <li>73 Free Piess.</li> <li>74 Free Piess.</li> <li>75 Free Piess.</li> <li>75 Free Piess.</li> <li>76 Free Piess.</li> <li>77 Free Piess.</li> <li>77 Free Piess.</li> <li>78 Free Piess.</li> <li>79 Free Piess.</li> <li>70 Free Piess.</li> <li>70 Free Piess.</li> <li>71 Free Piess.</li> <li>71 Free Piess.</li> <li>72 Free Piess.</li> <li>73 Free Piess.</li> <li>74 Free Piess.</li> <li>75 Free Piess.</li> <li>75 Free Piess.</li> <li>76 Free Piess.</li> <li>77 Free Piess.</li> <li>78 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>78 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>79 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>70 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>70 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>71 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>72 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>73 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>74 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>75 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>75 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>75 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>75 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>76 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>77 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>77 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>78 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>78 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>78 Freedon Piess.</li> <li>78 Freedon Piess.</li></ul>
15, 577, 589, 601, 613, 618, 620, 640.	A Study for the Critics, J. M. Thompson	1 Private and Public, A. W. S.
F. R. A. NOTICES.	Farewell, Celia Thaxter	Letter from Scotland, Charles Voysey.
redal Notice, W. J. Potter, Sec'y	A vocation, Mrs. D. H. Clark	97 Typdall's Address. 99 Virtuous in Spots. A. W. S.
	Open Secret, S. H. M.	The Quaker Controversy, R. P. H.
	Sowing and Reaping, A. Proctor	15 The Desolate Children, T. W. H.
	Counting Cost, J. H. C.	<ul> <li>The Civil Rights Bill and "The Nation," R. P. H.</li> <li>English Letter, Charles Vousey.</li> </ul>
Hall Lectures - 1875.	The True Life, C. Godfrey 55	Ecclesiastical Encroachments
SATS AND OTHER LEADING ARTICLES.	A Vocation, Mr.s. D. H. Clark	The Art of Getting Truth from Others, A. W. S.
among P P dilat 2	EDITORIALS.	<ul> <li>The Civil Rights Bill and "The Nation," R. P. H.</li> <li>Baglish Letter, Charles Voyages.</li> <li>Beclesiastical Encroachments.</li> <li>Beclesiastical Encroachments.</li> <li>Tractical Measures for the Repression of Intemperance.</li> <li>The Cristian Link.</li> <li>Bergaking the Shell, F. E. A.</li> <li>Organization, T. W. H.</li> <li>The Cristian Link.</li> <li>On Behalf of the Indians.</li> <li>Tone Cristian Link.</li> </ul>
	Wanted: A Religious Freedom Amendment to the United	Eggs and Cradles, T. W. H.
balad Fiety, Wm. C. Gannett	Wanted: A Religious Freedom Amendment to the United States Constitution. Mr. Morse's Farker, E. D. C. London Letter, Charles Foysey. The Uniterian Orisis.	6 Organization, T.W. H.
	London Letter, Charles Voysey	London Letter, Charles Voysey.
	The Great "Index" Petition Presented in Congress	15 On Behalf of the indians to the Unitarian Vear-Book of Wm. J. Pot-	The Great "Index" Petition Presented in Congress	Tyndali's Correction.     The Sins of Christianity.     Religion In Art. E. D. C.     Prof. Tyndali's Address, A. W. S.     Tro. June 1999
a new O I Bastol	Science and-Science	Prof Tyndall's Address, A. W. S.
br's Name, C. A. Burton, Starton, Starton, Science and Starton, Science and Missiona, Max Mueller, 62	Manliness, O. B. F.	43 How they Persecute Now-a-Days
Tatha Han Felix R. Brunot, Civis	London Letter, Charles Voysey	The Two Spirits.
Bin and a Pollaton O. R. Frothingham	"Toleration" vs. the Equal Rights of Thought	<ul> <li>The Two Spirits.</li> <li>"Newspaper Ethics," R. P. H.</li> <li>The Orientalism in Congress, W. J. P.</li> </ul>
The stamp F W Neteman 98	Church and State, E. D. C.	<ol> <li>Ine Oriontatism to Congress, "J. J. P</li></ol>
a Estrown not the Unknowable, A. W. Stevens 110	"Stumbling on Truth in the Dark"	56 Prof. Tyndall's Address, A. W. S. 57 About Barling Barl.
remain's Theory of Conscience; Its Relations to Scientific Bibles, Francis E. Abbot	Wounds of Friends, W. J. P.	Mr. Kelsey's South Side View, R. P. H.
inter Stans in Self-Government, Louise S. Hotchkiss 134	London Letter, Charles Voytey A Great Church-Grab. "Toleration" vs. the Equal Rights of Thought. How Could We Help H? T. W. H. Church and State, E. D. C. "Stambling on Truth in the Dark". Max Mueller at Westminster Abbey, O. B. F. Wounds of Friends, W. J. P. Bishop Ferrette's Lectures "Freedom Irreligious".	A Confession, O. B. F. Selfhood not Selfishness, A. W. S.
dision and the Science of Religion, Wm. J. Po ter 146	Deformed Reformers, R. P. H.	A. J. Davis and the Hyde Park Library
wid Friedrich Strauss, M. D. Conteay 158	misnop Ferreite's Lectures         Freedom Irreligious         Prof. Charles R. Cross' Lectures on Sound, R. D. C.         London Letter, Charles Voyacy.         The World Orchestra.         Reny to Dr. Carl H. Horsch, Charles Voyacy.         Dean Stanley on Missions, O. B. F.         Theology and Literature, T. W. H.         Charplains and Law Makers.         V.H. Charles R. D. C.         The Voyage and Literature, T. W. H.         Charles R. D. C.         Tho Two Frinciples.         If Godly and Uugodly, T. W. H.         Ommeaning Phrases, O. B. F.         Ummeaning Phrases, O. B. F.         London Letter, Charles Voysey.         Poor Neiliel.	A Contraction of B P     A Contraction of B P     Setting to the setting of
The Land of the White Elephant," R. A Skues	Reply to Dr. Carl H. Horsch, Charles Voysey	90 London Letter, Charles Voysey
Ins Land of the White Elephant," [Concluded] R. A. Skues. 182 is Philosophy of the Labor Movement, Frederick A. Hinck-	Dean Stanley on Missions, O. B. F.	Who is the Criminal? A. W. S.
Philosophy of the Labor Movement, Predrick A. Dimen-	Chaplains and Law-Makers, W. H. S.	1 The Coming IF au Church, w. J. P. hat is Free Religion ? A. W. Stevens 206	tions, E. D. C.	* The Suppression of Biasphemy". Answering One's own Prayers, O. R. F
emploory Education	The Two Principles.	Miss Whitney's Statue of Samuel Adams, E. D. C
emarks on Tax-Exemption, Charles E. Pratt	Mohammed and the Islam; Bishop Ferrette's Lecture, E. D.	"Modern Marty rdom Again"
aster Sumner's Religion, John Weiss	Ummeaning Phrases, O, B, P.	<ol> <li>London Letter, Charles Voyeg,</li> <li>"Religion at the Bar of Eth cs".</li> <li>"Who is the Criminal ? A. W. S.</li> <li>The Coming Br ad Church, W. J. P.</li> <li>The Stome of Sisyphus.</li> <li>"The Stome of Sisyphus.</li> <li>"The Stoppression of Biaspherny".</li> <li>Answering One's own Frayers, O. B. F.</li> <li>Miss Writney's Status of Samuel Adams, E. D. C.</li> <li>London Letter, Charles Veyley.</li> <li>"Modern Marty roin Again".</li> <li>Letter from Prof. New man.</li> <li>Constitution, E. D. C.</li> </ol> use of the Increase of Crime, G. F. Talbot	The Fractical Test, W. J. P	<ol> <li>Constitution, E. J. C.</li> <li>Constitution, E. J. C.</li> <li>The Political Lesson, A. W. S.</li> <li>The "A merican Railway Literary Union".</li> <li>A Word about "Gage," O. B. F.</li> <li>London Letter, Charles Voyage.</li> </ol>
haders Parker, Edwin S. Elder 278	Poor Nellie !	A Word about "Gags," O. B. F.
erbent Spencer, F. W. Newman	"Philosophy in the West E D C
r. Curpenter at Sion College	Editorial Maranding Why should Women Vote? The Christian Name, T. W. H. London Letter, Charles Voya y "The Two Theirms"
the Views of Nature, W. C. Gannett	The Christian Name, T. W. H.	<ul> <li>New Engration Respiration Women and Chorner, E. D. C.</li> <li>"The Journal of Speculative Philosophy." E. D. C.</li> <li>The Heroism of Living A. W. 8</li> <li>The Relativity of Knowledge".</li> <li>The New Theatre, E. D. C.</li> <li>London Letter, Charles Loydeg.</li> </ul> adal Amusements, W. J. Potter 338	"The Two Theisms"	The New Theatre, E. D. C.
Var Levels, O. B. Frothingham	Christianity and Amusements, O. B. F 1 Letter from Prof. Newman	<ul> <li>Iondon Letter, Charles Voysey</li> <li>The Original Statistical Sta</li></ul>
he Editions of Moral and Æsthetic Life, J. W. Chadwick 362	London Letter, Course voga y "The Two Theisms" Christianity and Amusements, O. B. F. Letter from Prof. Newman	The Cristianizers in Council.     The Cristianizers in Council.     Principles and Property, W. J. P.     Are There Any Cristianiz A. W. S.     Inspirations and Anodynes.     London Lotter, Charles Voyney.
bed and Doctrine, W. J. Potter	An Open Letter, O. B. F	51 Inspirations and Anodynes.
apperance and Total Abstinence, F. E. Abbot	Liberal Mohammedanism, W. J. P	51 London Letter, Charles Voysey
withy a Factor in the Development of Man, James Boyd 410	The Hampton Institute, E. D. C. "Breadth". An Open Letter, O. B. F. Liberal Mohammedanism, W. J. P. London Letter, Charles Voyey. The Injustice of Unterh Exemption The Injustice of Charles Voyey. London Letter, Charles Voyey. London Letter, Charles Voyey. Letta "Pious Fraud"? Prison Reform.	62 MISCELLANEOUS.
hord Meeting-Houses, G. F. Talbot	Are We Catholics? O. B. F.	Correspondence between the Assistant Secretary of the
Midia, Extra Christian, or Anti-Christian? S. R. Calthrop. 434 Midia, Extra Christian, or Anti-Christian? F. E. Abbot 446	London Letter, Charles Voysey	<ul> <li>Correspondence between the Assistant Secretary of the American Unitarian Association and Rev. W. J. Petter</li> <li>Free Religious Society of Chicago</li></ul>
Antistan, Extra Christian, or Anti-Christian ? F. E. Abbol 446	Is it a "Pious Fraud" 7. Prison Reform Law and Love, 7. W. H The Woman Question among the Preedmen, E. D. C. An Orthodox Fuzzle, W. J. P Lecture Notice, E. D. C.	56 Free Keigious Society of Chicago Mr. Pot er's Supplementary Letter
##	The Woman Question among the Freedmen, E. D. C	afr. For def 8 Supplementary Letter.           A Sign of the Times.           The Two "Anti-Exemption Petitions".           "Louids Agassiz, Forceher".           Wineland Liberal League.
In Literary Genins of Bunyan, George J. Halwoake	An Orthodox Puzzle, W. J. P.	"Louis Agassiz, Teacher".
Die True Optimiam, W. J. Potter	Causes and Cures.	<ul> <li>Yineland Liberal Loague,</li> <li>Taxing Churches,</li> <li>Great Taxation and no Exemption.</li> </ul>
Davidg in Education, Win. D. Le Sueur	London Letter, Charles Voysey	Great Taxation and no Exemption
In Eresption in Massachusetts	Lecture Notice, S. D. C. Causes and Cures. Josiah Warren, A. W. S. London Letter. Charles Voysey. How Ex-Convicts are Treated. Immortality. O. B. F. As in Indio View, T. W. H.	Exemption from taxation.     The Conversion of Damas Fils.
fitting Ferce and its Supply, O. R. Freathingham 520 and at the Bar of Ethics, F. W. Newman	A Good Example, T. W. H.	23 Religious Personalities
Willing Aldress at the Convention of the F. R. A. at Provi- tions, R L, Oct. 23, 1874, O. B. Frothingham	A Good Example, T. W. II. 22 London Letter, Charles Voysey. 22 Popular Education in Engined. 23	AUSTOIN ROUSE CONTRACTOR CONTRACTOR CONTRACTOR CONTRACTOR CONTRACTOR
The lotte of Sectarianism, W. J. Potter	Superstition, O. B. F	Oalt Gray Nathanal Convention
Maincance of the Christian Name, Educia S Fiden 579	Popular Ecolection in Ecolection Superstitution, O. B., "Mene", Dr. Cullis and fils "Home", A. Religious Delusion, W. J. P. London Letter, Charles Voyaey The "Prohibitory" Principle,	<ol> <li>Cartor a Matoma Composition</li> <li>Home vs. the Boble.</li> <li>The Baptst Clergy on the Taxation of Church Property.</li> <li>"Church P-operty Taxation.</li> <li>Helpless Woman.</li> </ol>
Inin the Elections Wm I Poller 100	The "Prohibitory" Principle.	55 Church Property Taxation.
the Deale Sees of Infidels D H Clark	Gremation, U. D. F.	A National Convention
Beydeal Letter and Syllabus. 614 Carity and the Poor, O. B. Prothingham. 626	The Ordeal of Unitarianism.	The fillib ratity of Liberalism
626	The Catholic Church and Free Religion, O. B. F
POETRY.	Indextruction Control of New Yoysey     President Ellor on Church Taxation     2	- The faxation of Church Property Captain Maxse's Address Massachusetts Legislative Committee on Equal and Just
The Everyteen Lyree, Asteriak	The Christian Spirit, O. B. F. 2 Letter from D. A. Wasson, W. J. P. 22	Massachusetts Legislative Committee on Equal and Just
Day In Seven, Mrs. D. H. Clark. 17 The Kingdom Comes," Sarah B. Hynes. 29 Tenda an International Society of So	"Religion and Science"	The Helpless Class
	<sup>4</sup> R. Agion and Science <sup>5</sup> , Not Quite So, W. J. P. President Eliot's Position, T. W. H. An English View of Free Love, F. W. Newman London Letter, Charles Veysey.	<ul> <li>Massachusetts Legislative committee on Lopia and one Taxation.</li> <li>The Helpless Class.</li> <li>Bothers' Keepers.</li> <li>The Horror of Vivisection.</li> <li>Massachusets Legislative Committee on Just and Equal</li> </ul>
	London Letter, Charles Veysey	Massachusetts Legislative Committee on Just and Equal Taxation.
	The Future of Anothin F W Vacanan	"Constitutional Amendment," A. H. Norcross.
The Prese Prese Contract B. Hynes	The Depres of Dand-Letter Laws
Transmission and the second se	The Danger of Dead Letter Laws. Mr. Reecher's Creed, O. B. F. Divine Providence in Calamities, W. J. P	<ol> <li>Massa, busetts Legislative Committee on sust and Plan fac- ation.</li> <li>The Functal of Strauss.</li> <li>Higginson's Tribute to Snuner.</li> <li>The Business Woman's Mutual Benefit Association, Acce</li> </ol>
Lits the God. Jennie Perrine. 101	Divine Providence in Calamities, W. J. P	30 Higginson's Tribute to Summer.
ar trave God. James Perrine	Divine Providence in Calamittes, W. J. F. Paragraphs, W. J. P. Names, W. H. S. The Meaning of It, W. J. P. Letter from Keshub Chunder Sen.	31 Dullon
the meaniness in the state House, Asterisk 137 Merniven - Immaterial, J. Albee. 161 Merniven - Immaterial, J. Albee. 161 December of the state of	Letter from Keshub Chunder Sen.	A tase in Point.
Active Immeterial, J. Albeet 44 International International Internation	London Letter, Charles Foyley, Paragraphs, W. J. P	22 A tase in Foot Charles Sumier
Thought" M V Durch	Mystery in Religion, W. C. G.	43 The Correctors Corrected.
and and "Lower," S. H. M. 197	Paragraphs, W. C. G	The Correctors Corrected     The Correctors     The Evils of Infation     A Her-sy and Elaphemy Case.     Mr. Garris q <sup>1</sup> s Letter.
<ul> <li>January B., Wr. D. H. Cark</li> <li>Jone Chron, Kerry S. Burleigh.</li> <li>Tanak, Wr. D. H. Clark.</li> <li>Tanak, Wr. D. H. Clark.</li> <li>Tanak, M. Chark, C. Keelle.</li> <li>Tanak and Chark.</li> <li>Tanak and Charele and Chark.</li></ul>	Broad Churchism, W. J. P	Mr. Garris n's Letter. The Women's Crusade.
Triamph of Trath. H. Clark. 233	London Letter. Charles Voysey	55 The Women's Crustate. 56 A True Story 56 Governor Dix's Message.
Wine Barying Ground, W. C. Gannett 257 Know Days	The Old Giant Intolerance, W. C. G.	Governor Dix's Message The State Prison Abuses
Partie and a state of the state	The Great Freacher's Ordeal	19

129 136 141

152 160 160

THE INDEX.

PAGE

 Packs
 Packs

 Parker to Sumner.
 200

 Parker to Sumner.
 200

 Asonable Besthen.
 200

 Geueral Lamaia' Eulogy on Sumner in Congress.
 200

 Parker to Sumner.
 200

 Geueral Lamaia' Eulogy on Sumner in Congress.
 200

 Parker to Congress.
 200

 Computation League of the U.S. A. Cital.
 201

 The National League of the U.S. A. Cital.
 201

 The National League of the U.S. A. Cital.
 201

 The National League of the U.S. A. Cital.
 201

 The National League of the U.S. A. Cital.
 201

 The National League of the U.S. A. Cital.
 201

 Mary Unscilled Friend.
 201

 Taring Sudownenta.
 201

 Mary Unscilled Friend.
 201

 The Same and the Thing.
 201

 The Uselesances.
 201</td Cheney's Tribule to Sumper. 209 219 219 219 229 Parker to Sunner. Row They Love One Auother. A Sensible Heathen General Lamaia' Eulogy on Summer in Congress Prison Libraries. Catholic Cirrygmen and Fublic Institutions. Taxing Church Property Religion and Reform The Pope's New Position. The "Christian World" at MUP's Grave. Highes Preachers" Meeting. Mixed Schools at the South. Sunday Evenings for the Freeins. Mixed Schools at the South. Sunday Evenings for the Freeins. Mixed Schools at the South. The Water Schools at the South. Sunday Evenings for the Freeins. Mixed Schools Letter. The Boston Radical Club. Advertising vn. Death. Christian Boul Can you Vote for an Athelat? The Boston Radical Club. Advertising vn. Death. Christian Boul Can you Vote for an Athelat? The Boston Radical Club. Advertising vn. Death. Christian Boul Can you Vote for an Athelat? The School Radical Club. Advertising vn. Death. Christian Boul Can you Vote for an Athelat? The School of Sianphemy. Grave, Triadul on bis Defences. Modern Martyriom Against Woonan's Elights. The School Question. The Ati of Double Meaulogs. The Ati of Double Meaulogs. The Ati of Double Meaulogs. The School Question. The New Scriptures. Counties and H-brews. Coulif on a Convention. The New Scriptures. General Criminal Court. The School Question Bouth, W.P. Perkins. Modern Sceptician, Kee, Joseph A. Gees. A Religions Annendment. Theological Penalities. The School Question Bouth, W.P. Perkins. Modern Sceptician, Kee, Joseph A. Gees. A Religions Annendment. Theological Penalities. The School Question Bouth, W.P. Perkins. Modern Sceptician, Kee, Joseph A. Gees. A Religions Annendment. Theological Penalities. Theologic 548 556 556 556 556

 Out Stones
 63

 A Portrait Bust of the Late Charles Samues
 63

 OCM MUNICATIONS
 7

 The AntiShography of Joins Buart Mill, Mrs. J. R. Wolker, 1
 1

 Joins Status, Parker Fillowing, Immural Attertisamente, Immural Atterim COMMUNICATIONS.

478 477 477 477 477 477 477 483 485 485 485 485 485 485 500 22 825 525 561 573 573 573 573

 Orthodoxy and Children, P. A. P.
 63

 LITEBAEY NOTICES.

 By-and-By: An Historical Romances of the Future. By E4-ward Maitland, A. H.

 The Philosophy of Education. By Dr. Karl Rosenkrans, Miss A. C. Brackett, E. D. C.

 Records of a Quiet Life. By A. J. C. Baro, A. H.

 The Alloword and the New. By D. F. Stranse, J. A. H.

 The Allower of Lagolises. By Mohammed Al Gbazzal, H.

 'A. Momet.

 'Common Sense in Belgions, J. P. Clarke, A. H.

 'Some and the New. By D. C. Stranse, J. A. H.

 'Some and the New. By D. C. Stranse, J. A. H.

 'Some and the New. By D. P. Stranse, J. A. H.

 'Stranse, J. A. H.

 'Some and the Stranse, Stranse, J. A. H.

 'Some and the Stocker, A. H.

 'Some and Stranse Life, A. H.

 'Some and Stranse Life, A. H.

 'Stranse, Stranse, Stranse, Stranse, J. A. H.

 'Some and Stranse Life, A. H.

 'Some and Stranse Life, A. H.

 'Some and Education Beformers.

 'Some and the Stocker, M. D. Conway, W. C. G.

 'Some and the Stockers, M. D. Conway, M. C. M.

 'Some and the Stockers, M. D. C. T.

 'Some and the Stockers, M. D. C. T.

 'Some and the Stockers, M. C. C.

 'Some and the Stockers, M. C. C.

 LITERARY NOTICES.

505

578 578 578

585

501 507 8/17 8/17

.

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

VOLUME 5.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, JANUARY 1, 1874.

WHOLE NO. 210.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other scclesisationly roperty shall no longer be groupd from just taxation. 2. We demand that the employment of chaptains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and millitis, and in prisons, asylume, and all the the institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

3. We demand that all public appropriations for sec-tarian educational and charitable institutions shall cease.

4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostensi-bly as a text-book or avowedly as a book of religious wor-ship, shall be prohibited.

5. We demand that the appointment, by the President the United States or by the Governors of the various State of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease.

or au religious restivais and fasts shall wholly cease. 6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and in all other departments of the government shall be abol-ished, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-altics of perjury shall be established in its stead. 7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-pealed.

a. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty.
g. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or ad-vantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unflinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Where and the reveal of the State in matters of regulation institutions is imperilable, the advance of civil-zation impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-deal administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; IMEREFORME, WC, the undersigned, hereby associate our-selves together under the following.

ABTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

ART. 1.-The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-

That LEAGUE OF Asr. 2.—The object of the Liberal League shall be to se-curs practical compliance with the "Demands of Liberal-ism" throughout the country, and especially in —: Also, as soon as five hundred such Liberal Leagues shall have been formed in different places, to send two delegates to a National Convention of Liberal Leagues, to be hereaf-ter called, in order to co-operate with all the liberals of the country in securing the needed reforms. Asr. 3.—The means employed in working for these objects shall be regular local meetings, free discussions, lectures, addresses, conventions, the platform and the press in gen-eral, and all such other means as are peaceable, orderly, and right. Asr. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds

ABT. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members.

ART. 5.-.6.—Any person may become a member of the League scribing his or her name to these Articles of Agreement. Arr. 6.-The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Execu-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be those commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be az-officio delegates to the National Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together. Arr. 7.-These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourthe vote of the members present at any reg-ular meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

So far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of Tax INDEX. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that is will yet be accepted universally by the American people, as the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A It will get no accordent consistent with religious liberty. An the only platform consistent with religious liberty. An the only platform consistent with religious liberty out its principles wherever half a dozen carnest and resolute Liberals can be got together. Being convinced that the movement is not a compliance with these just "Demands" must surely, even if slowly, spread, I hope to make THE INDEX a means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and active co-operation of every man and every woman who be-lieves in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-port promptly the names of their Presidents and Secretaries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion as that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are right, let their organized voice he heard like the sound of many waters.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor Bostow, Sept. 1, 1873.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page. RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

FROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CON-STIFUTION.

ABTICLE 1.

ABTICLE 1. SECTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-tablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religiou, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or altridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dov-ernment for a redress of grievances. SECTION 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting an of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dovernment for a redress of grievances. No religious test shall ever be required as a condition of sulfrage, or as a qualification to any office or public trust, in any State; and no person shall ever in any State be deprived of any of religitor the reformance of any public or private duity, or ren-dered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or or quity, in consequence of any public or private duity, or ren-dered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law ord or the subject of religion. Becrono 3.—Congress shall have power to enforce the pro-risions of the second section of this Article by appropri-and the subject of religion.

NOTES AND COMMENTS. BY A. W. S.

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, of New York, will occupy the pulpit of the Twenty-eighth Congregational Society, at "The Parker Memorial," next Sunday morning, at halfpast ten o'clock.

CHARLES SUMNER says he took his "first holiday during a protracted public service" in attending the annual dinner of the New England Society, on the 22d of December last, in New York. He made a noble speech on that occasion.

THE MEETING of the Second Radical Club, on Monday evening, Dec. 22, was one of the most interesting and successful it has ever held. The "Abolition of the State" proved to be a theme most fruitful of ideas and of a happy and delightful conversation.

THE LAST publication day of THE INDEX was on Christmas, and this week it celebrates New Year's day by the same happy coincidence. May prosperity and peace attend it and all its readers through the year eighteen hundred and seventy-four!

CERTAIN GOOD FOLK are just now exercised over the question whether Prof. Agassiz had any religion, and if so, what sort of thing it was. It is a pity that it could not somehow he respectfully hinted to these people that they are meddling with what is none of their business.

THE International Review is a new periodical, its first number being published this month, which says that it is determined to admit to its pages "no assault upon the divine authority of the Scriptures." This carefulness of certain men to preserve what is "divine," would seem to argue a secret infidelity in their own hearts as to the real divinity of the "divine.

THE FAMOUS "week of prayer" of the American Evangelical Alliance begins next Sunday, and the programme of prayer-subjects, which has been prepared, is apparent-ly axtensive enough to keep the brethren busily praying through every day of the week. Well, each one to his chosen task. Let those pray who will; and those who will not, let them omit prayer. The world is helped by every earnest word, whether spoken to man or God.

THE BOSTON School Committee are just now exercised upon the subject of corporal punishment of pupils. They can't quite make up their minds to abolish the rule allowing it, and yet they do not seem fully satisfied to let the rule stand. The old stereotyped fear that human nature will go to the bad if we cease to compel it to go to the good, seems to prevail in this case, and make the Committee hesitate to sweep away the relic of barbarism which would pound instead of expound.

THE Christian Union refers to the criticism of John Weiss on the late Evangelical Alliance, that it "gave its time to the discussion of theological questions, with scarcely a moment to social evils," and retorts by asking why the Free Religious Association, whose convention immediately succeeded that of the Alliance, did the same thing? We consider this the retort civil, and we confess that the point seems to us to be well made. If it requires courage to strike a blow, it also requires candor to acknowledge when we are fairly hit.

IT GIVES us sincers pleasure to learn that the radical Unitarian Society in West Newton, in this State, have recalled the Rev. Francis Tiffany to be their minister. Mr. Tiffany, some three or four years since, left this soclety, on account of ill health, and went to Germany with his family. His health is fortunately restored, and he has returned to this country. We trust that he will decide to renew his relations with his former society, and give them and his many friends in this vicinity once more the benefit and pleasure of his able ministrations and acholarly and social companionship.

A MERCANTILE friend of ours tells us that a custo of his thus criticised, the other day, one of onr national mottoes: "You see they've got it on the five-cent pieces, "In God we trust." Now think of a great nation like ours putting a lie on its currency! If they had said, "The god we trust," they'd have hit it. It's the only God nine out of ten of 'em know." We suppose that the rough cusof ten of 'em know." We suppose that the rough cus-tomer may be right; but if a man or a nation trusts in, and is devoted to, the Best they know, what more ought we to expect? The trouble is, that so many men and nations are not faithful to their highest ideal, be that what It may.

THE SERMON of Rev. Dr. Peabody on the late Prof. Agassiz, delivered in Appleton Chapel, Cambridge, Dec. 21, 1878, is in the main an eloquent and just tribute to the character and services of the eminent deceased. Yet one sentence occurs in this discourse, which we are sure does great injustice to Mr. Agassis both as a man and a scientific scholar. "His repugnance to Darwinism," says Dr. Peabody, "grew in great part from his apprehensions of its atheistical tendency." If this were true, Prof. Agassiz was no true man of science. But we do not believe it was true. So far as we know, Prof. Agassis never urged any but purely scientific grounds against Darwinism; and to say now, when he is dead and cannot defend himself from the damaging aspersion, that he was opposed to it on theological grounds, is to impeach his truly scientific character, and to becloud his well-earned scientific renown.

THE RECENT settlement by this nation of the "Virginius" difficulty with Spain, without bloodshed and by friendly negotiation, is an event full of peaceful sugges-tions for the future. And, after all, it seems we should not have been justified in going to war with the Spanish republic, though we spent five millions in getting ready for such an issue; for the Attorney General has discov-ered that the "Virginius" had no right to be sailing under the American flag. But why should we have thought of war at all? It would not have brought back to us the lives of the men executed by the Spanish authorities in Cuba, while it probably would have been waged at the sacrifice of many more. A peaceful termination of an international difficulty is almost always possible, and a contest of arms should never be proposed except as the very last resort. The age of peace has come; let us believe in the fact, and vote war a relic of barbarism inconsistent with the civilization which we are determined now shall prevail!

THE CITY SOLICITOR of Boston, in a reply to an inquiry of the School Board whether women may legally be members of the School Committee, has replied that in his opinion "women cannot legally be elected to or per-form the duties of that offics." To support this judg-ment, the Solicitor cites the somewhat recent decision of the Supreme Court of this State, "that women cannot be appointed to or exercise the duties of Justices of the Peace," and mays that the reasons assigned in the one case are equally applicable in the other. If this opinion of the Solicitor prevails, the capable women just elected to be members of the Boston School Committee, by an almost unanimous vote, will not be allowed to enter upon their office. It is astonishing what an amount of legal stolidity sometimes consists with legal 'learning! Counsellors and jurists should interpret a law according to its most liberal spirit, not according to its most strin-gent letter. But what business, forsooth, has any mere statute law to stand in the way of human progress? "Law" may be a fetich as well as anything else; it always lags behind the spirit of the age, and has to be pricked up or passed by.

Digitized by GOOGIE

LIST OF LIBERAL LEAGUES

Sr. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries. Borros, MABS.-J. S. Bogers, President; J. P. Titcomb, A. Bogers, Societation (2019). BOBTON, MASS. J. S. Rogers, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Scortzaries. JEFFERSON, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giudings, Scortary, CAL.-A. J. Speucer, President; J. L. Hatch, Scortary, Construction, Science, Con Secretary. TOLEDO, IOWA .-- J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre-VINELAND, N. J. - John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Secretary. JUNCTIONVILLE, NEB.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Secretary. OLATHE, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Secretary. DETROIT, MICH .- W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, BERTGAVILLE, MICH. - A. G. Eastman, President; F. B. Knowles, Secretary.
 OBCEOLA, MO.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Secretary. ATR, Mz.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. BELLS, WIE.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman.

Church and State.

A LECTURE BEFORE THE MUSIC HALL SOCIETY, IN BOSTON, ост. 5, 1873.

BY FRANCIS E. ABBOT.

<text><section-header><text> and sconer or later, in one way or in another, the now political life. The most earnestly disclaim any wish to make so an another is the second statements or to stir up hostile passions for any reason whatever: I speak seriously, soberly, diplerately, as befits one who would benefit and not injure his fellow-men. But there seems to exist in the community at large a strange reluctance or inability to see the true bearing and significance of tendencies which are actively at work all about us, and continually reveal themselves in events not difficult to be understood by him who follows the clew of ideas. Here in the Western world, where aociety and government are based wholly on faith in human freedom, and where all our institutions are more and more as similating themselves to it, there exists the phenomen of a great and popular religion, with powerful and west and grave should not by-and-by force a public recognition of itself which might be indefinitely postponed in countries not purely republicant their character? "Katremes met," Where difficule y because America is so completely democratic in spirit and institutions, that a monarchical religion will ultimately find it impossible to make its own existence in America system which there are is without a struggles of daily contact. Christian doctrines, that a monarchical religion will ultimately find it impossible influences of daily contact. Christian doctrines, the there die out without a struggle, or the subtile influences of daily contact. Christian doctrines, it will be refailed the struggles of the subtile influences of the slow underning forces I have referred to, what student of histian doctrines. As it very well knows. When driven tory, at least, can doubt that the Church will make one more bid for life by turning upon the political system by which they are generated? But I must show more in detail what is the nature of the antag-onism I mention between the Church and the Boundie

Republic. What is the Christian Church?

allow more in mental where the Church and the Republic. What is the Christian Church? Waiving all the common distinctions between the Church visible and invisible, and so forth I should define it in a very common-sense way as the organized body, or bodies, of all those who profess to be followers of Christ. That is, I consider it solely in the light of an Ixwirnuriox, established for the practice, aupport, and propagation of the Christian religion. Although no longer existing in its pristine unity, but on the contrary being now divided into three great branches, Roman, Greek, and Protestant, of which the last is subdivided into a great number of sects more or less discordant among themselves, the Christian religion. Outsiders disregard their mutual jealousies and disputes; the Church as a whole must include all who are organized for the purpose of maintaining and spreading Christianity as where the word; it is also the rational meaning of it. What the various divisions and subdivisions of the Church have thought or are thinking, have done or are doing, constitutes Christian history, or the history considers only what organized bodies of christianity, its doctrines, or its definition; but history considers only what organized bodies of Christianity, its doctrines, or its definition; but history considers only what organized bodies of the Christian Church. Yiewed in this manner, as a great established institution, with a definite instorical beating and career, the Church has held definite relations to other institutions. So considered, it has its own fundamental or speak of "Church had bus there, the church has not organized bodies of the christian Church. Viewed in this manner, as a great established institutions, with a definite history in this sense is it proper to speak of "Church and State." In all other aspects, Christianity is a matter of personal experience or personal biography; which history entirely ignores except so far as it relates itself to the existence or activity of Christian institutions.</p

The Church, therefore, is to be regarded as an in-stitution holding definite relations to other institu-tions. So considered, it has its own fundamental or essential ideas, which it was founded to express and which have given to it its peculiar political, social, and religious character. What are they? If the sacred writings and traditions of the Church itself are the proper exponent of them, as I believe they are, it is by no means difficult to discover them. For this purpose there is no need to go into the per-plexing inquiries as to date, authorship, or authen-ticity of the Scriptures which are held sacred, or of the traditions which are accepted as authority, by the Church. It is enough that such Scriptures and tradi-tions have been accepted by it; for it has derived its ideas from these sources, and no others. Whether the ideas of the Church are true or not, is one ques-tion; whether they are its ideas, is a wholly different one. Hence I think it unnecessary to go outside of the Church's own account of the matter, to find out what ideas it really stands for. If history only con-firms the statements of the Church, and shows that the ideas it professes to accept are the ideas it has al-ways proclaimed and always made the basis of its collective action, then I hold, as I think others will hold, that the leading principles, ideas, or doctrines of Christianity are easily accertainable,—so far, at least, as the institutional interpretation of the Church is concerned. To the commonly accepted sources, therefore, I turn, in forming my conclusions as to the fundamental ideas which have been organized histor-ically in the Christian Church.

therefore, I turn, in forming my conclusions as to the fundamental ideas which have been organized historically in the Christian Church. The great fact, then, strikes us at first glance, manely, that all the narratives of the Christian Gospels coverege to one point, in showing that Jerus ta the true Christ of God. Ancient prophecies are quoted at every step to prove that the events of his life establish his claim to be accepted as the Christ,— the binnely sent and Divinely appointed. Winder God, Jesus is proclaimed, from beginning the deemer, the Master, the Lord, the King, of the entire world. He makes the claim himself; it is wither deemer, the Master, the Lord, the King, of the entire world. He makes the claim himself; it is wither deemer, the Master, the Christ is proclaimed, from beginning the deemer, the Master, the Christ is the vory soul of the point and explicit teaching of almost all the parabolic true. None the less is it the burden of the Acts, the Epister, the Apocalypse. The one confession demanded by John the's said—that is, believe that Jeans is the Mohammedian confession that Mohammedia God's propheto—was the Christian confession has distinctive as the Mohammedian confession that Mohammedia God's propheto—was the Christian fasting the protestant branch, and even every little sect that is looked upon as most deeply sunk in heresy, been invariably true. It eesems nothing less than fasting true, it is the event and King of manking, with Divinely beat and values of the event weat the christian the individuals and nations of the earth. Certainly, this faith an Jesus as Lord and King of manking, with birley been, and still is, the very breath of life to all parabolic the Christian Church. The moral precepts and teachings he gave have derived all their authority with the Church from the Divine appointment he received is the Church from the Divine appointment he received is the Church from the Divine and Ruler of the world. Outsiders approve or disapprove them according to their institution marked to the christian reverse the rest of the Church in the here exclude a support all its other articles, has been the iaw and dominant idea of the Church in avery Got every Got, the second person of the Triat. The voice of ord, the second person of the Triat. The the degras that Jesus was very God of very God, the second person of the Triat and compared the throne of the Roman empire, and conquered the Roman States. In the person of the Opens, it survives the fall of the Roman empire, and governed princes, kings, and emperors during the hong political supremany of the Church in the Middle Age. It was questioned by nobody. Luther and Calvin, and all the leaders of the Protestant Reformation, maintained it as stoutly as the most devoted all divisions and sublivisions of the Church. It alled itself with the State, controlling legislation and dictating national policies, in every counts of the New World as absolutely as it governed the 01d world; and it governed upon the impious prevensions of the popels to govern themselves. It brought of the 'powers' in the Vine' was born to the is and compeled libery's over it were to govern themselves. It brought of the popele to grave that compeled libery's over its prope to see one single foe in the royal State and the royal Church. Only in America has it for the Revolution, this essential dogma of Christianity was thrust into the background, and America was babitzed in the name of the popele, for the popele, for the people, was made the order of all divisions of the Christ. For the first time in human history, agreat nation was born to be its own to exist. The Great Republic is not extend made sover the did compared and the royal Church. Only in America has it to the Great Republic of the C berately to adapt the Republic to herself by usurping control of it. This, then, is the profound and irreconcilable an-tagonism between the Church and the Republic. The whole faith and life of the Church is based on the monarchical theory of absolute submission to a Lord and King. The whole faith and life of the Re-public is based on the democratic theory of freedom for the natural reason and conscience of man to gov-ern him unconstrained. These two theories are in-utter contradiction. They cannot always coëxist side by side as they do to-day. The Church and the Re-public foster two utterly unlike habits of feeling and thought. For a while men may fancy they accept both theories, and go on obeying a King in their re-ligion and obeying democratic freedom in their pol-tics. But the overwhelming tendency is to assimilate one to the other. The very existence of the Republic is a standing threat to the Church, fostering as it does the very ideas which are making non-Christians by the thousand; and the very existence of the Church is a standing threat to the Republic, fostering as it does the very deas which are sapping faith in man's power to be a law to himself. To obey my own reason and conscience is not to obey the will of Jesus the Christ. No sophistry can make it the same thing. But I must obey one or the other; and I re-main in spiritual discord with myself until I learn to govern all my action, political and religious, by a self-consistent law. The same conflict which thus prevails in my own private life until I become either a thorough Christian royalist or a thorough republi-can democrat, is at work in the public conscioueness. It is preparing the conditions of political strife. The

Denner Google

Republic is undermining the Church,—the Church is undermining the Republic,—each to the extent of its power. When the Church comes completely to un-derstand this, she will be put to a most tremendous test. Shall she give up her Christ or her country— her spiritual King or her political freedom? You may be more sanguine than 1; but I cannot but be-lieve that she will try to make over the Republic ac-cording to the ideas of Christianity,—that she will be then willing to attempt to cure her own inward dis-sension, and thus avert her great outward danger, by onsenting to the effort to acknowledge Jesus as her fin the mational Constitution, or by soure other plan equally ruinous to the Republic. Do nothing also fore the increasing peril that threatens her. In fact, the signs grow numerous that she begins to appreciate be dauger, and to perceive that the chief cause of American "infidelity" to-day is not the influence of for-sign thought, but the home influence of the unsectarian, and Christian United States Constitution. If she ever comes to see this fact in all its momentous signif-mer, she will shrink back in horror from the gover meas the well shrink back in horror from the gover meas the one of great danger, either to her or to anghe, yir republicanism must be abandoned. That any will be one of great danger, either to her or to anghe up her mind that, if republicanism tends to indexity," republicanism is to all and irrespondent. That must become speedily evident to every reflective for some shull be one of great danger, either to her or to anghe up her mind that, the republicanism tends to any christella United States to have the data do the or be the state to treat her church, in she we do the two in our own purposes and thought, but ask the question—"What should be the trip-alle between the Church and the Republic, I can-pelation of the two in our own purposes and thought? but ask the question—"What should be the trip-relation of the two in our own purposes and thought? but ask the question—"What shou

How ought the State to treat the Church, in view of this deadly hostility which abe is rapidly coming to cherish?" Count Cavour, the great Italian statesman, advo-cated a "free Church in a free State." If I am right, there can be no such thing as a free Church, for the Church is bound hand and foot to her Master and Lord. But so far as Count Cavour meant simply that the State should be utterly separate from the Church, and give her no comfort or aid, I agree with him. On the one hand, I believe that every wise and patriotic American must sconer or later come to perceive that the state store he can do to his country is to do what he can to lessen the influence of the Church, by edu-cating the people in higher principles and ideas; to help expose the intrinsic untruth and harmfulness of her doctrine, as a patriotic duty. On the other hand, he will assigt in abolishing the privileges which the Church enjoys to-day in violation of the spirit of our great Magna Charter. She has not the shadow of a right to receive exemption from the taxes which all good citizens are obliged to pay, or to receive any sec-tarian appropriation whatever, or to have chaplains appointed and maintained at the public expense, or to enjoy any other privilege as a Church. A settled policy should be begun by which the Church should be deprived of all her unfair advantages. The most rigid impartiality should be observed towards her, and every law giving her exceptional advantage should be interfered with in their public worship. Buthere the exceed from one cent of just taxation, or to shift of upon other should be stripped of all her peruisites and prerogatives: she should be forbidden to lay her hand on the public schools and insist that the Bible, a book sacred only in her own eyes, should be read as a Divine revelation by the children of believers and unbelievers alike; she should be taught that in Amer-lea not only is the State absolutely anyreme, but that the State is not to know even whether the Church erists or not. Here democratic f The State is not to know even whether the Church exists or not. Here democratic freedom reigns over all; here Christian royalty is an interloper and usurp-er; here the conscience and reason of the private soul should give law to life, while the claim of Jesus to be Lord and King of all souls stands in glaring contra-diction and open defiance of republican institutions. The State should hold the first place in the affections of every true American heart, and the Church is an enemy to the public peace when she puts forth her claim to govern the nations.

newly to the public peace when she puts for the ar-bar of the public peace when she puts for the ar-bar of the public peace when she puts for the ar-bar of the arry out and apply more faithfully the princi-form taration now enjoyed by the Christian Church ; the to carry out and apply more faithfully the princi-low taration now enjoyed by the Christian Church ; the to carry out and the public schools ; to forbid the ap-pointment of Christian features or fasts by the gov-erment; to substitute simple affirmation for the fastised in the public schools ; to forbid the sp-pointment of Christian features or fasts by the gov-erment; to substitute simple affirmation for the fast and in the increase of the "Christian Sabbath," and it the the government thoroughly security in shot, to make the government thoroughly security of hister, and get rid of the last vestiges of the substitute to support this Liberal Lesgue your sympathy and active aid, and to help every movement looking to the ame grand objects. Noth-the stite of the Church. In the name of republic and the full eclare the Christian Church a foc to the pirit and genius of the government index to ecognize a species to endorce and the strong and safe than the spite of the Church. In the name of republic pirit and genius of the government under the spite in the factor to che same grand objects. Noth-the strict and thorough carrying-out of the public in deas I declare the Chiristian Church a foc to the pirit and genius of the government under the second the strict and the objects of the spite of the factor to recognize we are inful to American principles, to democration and fact of the spite of the factor to factor the pirit and genius of the government under the spite of the pirit and genius of the government index to recognize we are inful to American principles, to democration piriciples, to the principles on which the freedom and piriciples, to the principles on which the freedom and piriciples to the merican principles to democration piriciples to the and conscious opposition to the Christian Church and its ideas. For the sake of our own posterity, I hope we shall have courage and unselfishness enough to carry the republic forward in the path of its sublime destiny, and see to it that here, at least, one nation shall be governed only by humanity, freedom, and truth. truth.

[For THE INDEX.]

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF JOHN STUART MILL.

THEL. The autobiography of such a man as John Stuart Mill must possess a rare interest to all who study the subject of intellectual development; furnishing, as it does, a key to the workings of a master-mind, and a man was led into the paths he trod so unfaiteringly. This system was liself as extraordinary as the results it produced. In his own words:— "I have thought that in an age in which education and its improvement are the subject of more, if not of profounder study, than at any former period of Eng-lish history, it may be useful that there should be some record of an education which was unusual and remarkable. . . It has also scemed to me, that in an age of transition of opinions, there may be somewhat both of interest, and of benefit, in noting the succes-sive phases of any mind which was always pressing forward, equally ready to learn and to unlearn, either from its own thoughts, or from those of others. But a motive which weighs more with me than either of these, is a desire to make acknowledgment of the debu which my intellectual and moral development owes to other persons." other persons.

Especially interesting to us, as readers of THE IN-EX, are the moral influences by which he was sur-bunded, and which lent their aid in moulding his DEX character character. His father was anxious to give him, according to his own conception, "the highest order of intellectual training," and, in order to preserve him from "the contaminating influence which boys exercise over boys, and the contagion of vulgar modes of thought and feeling," educated him at home, according to a method of his own. Passing over the intellectual portion of his education, let us look at his moral training.

method of his own. Passing over the intenectual portion of his education, let us look at his moral training. His father was what the world calls an atheist. Educated in the creed of Scotch Presbyterianism, at the expense of a fund established by Lady Jane Stuart for educating young men for the Scottish Church, and even licensed as a preacher, be (as the result of his own studies and reflection, and on moral rather than intellectual grounds) early rejected "not only the belief in Revelation, but also the foundations of what is commonly called Natural Religion, . . . the turning point of his mind on this subject being the treading of Butler's Analogy: that work . . proving to him that, whatever are the difficulties in believing that the Old and New Testaments proceed from or record the acts of a perfectly wise and good being, the same and still greater difficulties stand in the way of a belief that a being of such a character can have been the Maker of the Universe." He therefore not only rejected Christianity, but record the acts of a perfectly wise and good being, the same and still greater difficulties stand in the way of a belief that a being of such a character can have been the Maker of the Universe." He therefore not only rejected Christlanity, but found no halting place in deism. He looked upon religion, as the term is usually accepted, as "the great-est enemy of morality, first, by setting up fictitous excellencies,-belief in creeds, devotional feelings, and ceremonies, not connected with the good of hu-man-kind,--and causing these to be accepted as sub-stitutes for genuine virtues; but, above all, by radi-cally vitiating the standard of morals; making religion consist in doing the will of a being, on whom it lav-ishes indeed all the phrases of adulation, but whom in sober truth it depicts as eminently hateful, ... the most perfect conception of wickedness which the hu-man mind can devise. ... This ne plus ultra of wick-edness he considered to be embodied in what is com-monly presented to mankind in the creed of Chris-tianity. Think-he used to say-of a being who would make a hell-who would create the human race with the infailible foreknowledge, and therefore with the intention, that the great majority of them were to be consigned to horrible and everlasting torment. The time, I believe, is drawing near when this dread-ful conception of an object of worship will be no long-er identified with Christianity; and when all persons, with any sense of moral good and evil, will look upon it with the same indignation with which my father regarded it." It does indeed seem a most extraordinary condition of moral conceptions, when persons of intelligence can accept a theory involving such a manifest contra-diction of terms,-"holding an undoubted belief in an 'Omnipotent author of hell,' and yet identify that being with the best conception they are able to form of Perfect Goodness." The time to which he looked forward, is upin us already, and even the churches are accepting and teaching much of what in that day thought.

thought. He was, however, also taught that opinions so con-trary to those of the world could not prudently be avowed. This lesson was attended with unavoidable moral disadvantages, especially when he was placed in the alternative of avowal or hypocrisy—in which case he had the boldness to avow his disbellef, and to defend it.

case he had the boldness to avow his disbellef, and to defend it. "I think that few men of my father's intellect and public spirit, holding with such intensity of moral conviction as he did unpopular opinions on religion, or any other of the great subjects of thought, would now either practise, or inculcate, the withholding of them from the world... Such an avowal would put an end, at once and forever, to the vulgar prejudice that what is called very improperly unbelief is connected with any bad qualities either of mind or heart. The world would be astonished if it knew how great a proportion of its brightest ornaments—of those most distinguished even in popular estimation for wisdom and virtue—are complete sceptics in religion. ... Of unbelievers (so called) as well as of believers, there are many species, ... but the best among them how so who exclusively arrogate to themselves the tile. ... They have that which constitutes the principal worth of all religions whatever, an ideal conception of a Perfect Being, to which they habitually rafer, as the guile of their conscience; and this ideal objective Delity of those who this dissolute goodness in the author of a world so crowded with suffering, and so deformed by injustice as ours."

to-day :-

'I was greatly struck with the connected view they thought, unbounded freedom of individual action in all modes not hurtful to others; but also convictions as to what is right and wrong, useful or pernicious, ...so firmly grounded in reason and in the true ex-igencies of life, that they shall not, like all former and present creeds-religious, ethical, and political-require to be periodically thrown off, and replaced by others."

The periodically thrown off, and replaced by others."
Although it was said of him that "he died without fear of death, and without hope of heaven"—the following expressions, written several years after the death of his wife would seem to contain at least an presence near him: "Since then [the time of her death] I have sought for such alleviation as my atter admitted of, by the mode of life which most enables me to feel her still near me. . . . Her memory is to me a religion, and her approbation the standard by which, summing up as it does all worthiness, I endeavor to regulate my life."
Mowever this may be, his own words with regard to how did the approach of death cause the smaller standard by the splicable to himself: ". . . Nor did the approach of death cause the smaller start are that it should—In his convictions on the subject of religion. His principal satisfaction, after henght of what he had one to make the world better than he found it; and his chief regret, in not living longer, that he had one to make the world better than he found it; and his chief regret, in not living longer, that he had one to make the world better than he found it; and his chief regret, in not living longer, that he bad nore to make the world better than he found it; and his chief regret, in not living longer, that he mak one to make the world better than he found it; and his chief regret, in not living longer, that he had one to make the world better than he found it; and his chief regret, in not living longer, that he make the world better than he found it; and his chief regret, in not living longer, that he make the world better than he found it; and he shelf regret, in not living longer, that he make the world here. Make AR MAKENEN NEW ORLEANS, December, 1873.

Netwin Google

THE STATUK-LIKE horse-guards who do duty at the entrance to Green Park, London, are not allowed to speak, and it is the daily recreation of the rude boys thereabouts to collect around them and chaff them with irritating remarks. The fun lasts till a police-man swoops down upon the crowd.

COBRESPONDENCE BETWEEN THE AS-SISTANT SECRETARY OF THE AMERI-CAN UNITARIAN ASSOCIATION AND REV. J. POTTER.

BOSTON, Nov. 24, 1873. DEAR Mr. POTTER,—Mr. Frothingham's request to have his name hereafter omitted from the list of Unitarian ministers in our Year Book, and his state-ment that, had he realized it was there, he should have requested its omission before, leads me to ask some of the men now enrolled there (and among them yourself) whether they are there with their knowledge and consent.

Please let me hear from you on this point, at your earliest convenience. Yours truly, GEORGE W. Fox, Assistant Secretary.

Bearliest convenence. Gronos W. Fox, Assistant Screetary. New Beroporo, Nov. 27, 1873. DEAR MR. Fox, —I guess Mr. Frothingham is not a member of the American Unitarian Association, and so doesn't see the Year Book. Yes, ny name is there with my "knowledge," and, if silence gives con-sent, then with my "consent." But I never re-quested that it be placed there, and do not feel moved on the american Unitarian Association authorities must take whatever responsibility there is in the mat-which indirectly caused my name to be put in the list of Unitarian ministers, then I reply that they must be the judges whether I have done an act which in-directly usay be considered a request for its removal. Mr. Frothingham's letter did not satisfy me that we our names generally. I for one propose to "stick"— unitarian authorities want our names out of the Year Book, let them not shun the responsibility, but themselves apply the scissors. That at least is my present feeling about it, and the feeling which I preasons for a different judgment, I shall be most hap-py to hear them, and will certainly give them consid-eration. W. J. POITER. Boston, Nov. 28, 1873.

W. J. POTTER. BOSTON, NOV. 28, 1873. DEAR MR. POTTER.—In reply to yours of yesterday, allow me to say that, as I understand it, the Year Book lists of societies and of ministers are simply a directory, prepared by the Association for the accom-modation of the denomination: and that the Associa-tion does not undertake to decide the question as to what are or are not Unitariau societies or ministers, but merely puts luto print facts, in the making of which it assumes no responsibility and has no agency. When Mr. Frothingham was ordained as pastor of the "North Church" in Salem, it was of course un-derstood that he thereby entered the ministry of the Unitarian denomination, and when, afterwards, he became pastor of the "Third Unitarian Congregation-al Society," in New York, it was still understood, by himself no less than others, that he continued in the ministry of that body. Now, however, he declares bimself to be no longer a Unitarian Christian, and so, very properly, requests that his name be dropped from a list of Unitarian Christian Christian.

very property, requests that his name be dropped from a list of Unitarian Christian ministers. And so in regard to yourself; when you were or-dained over the "First Congregational Society" of New Bedford, it was considered, by yourself as well as all others, as an act by which you entered the min-istry of that seet of the Christian Church called Uni-tarian. If you still claim to be a minister of that de-nomination, there is no authority here, in this Asso-ciation, to deny the claim : and your name continues, from year to year, to be published to the world as that of one who calls himself a Unitarian Christian. My purpose in asking you the question I did was simply to learn whether, possibly, we might not be mistaken in assuming that you continued to be what you were—knowing you to be, to a certain extent, in sympathy with a man who had expressed himself ag-grieved at finding his name where he had no desire to have it.

have it. I certainly am very glad that, unlike Mr. Frothing-haro, you are still willing to call yourself by the same name you assumed on entering the Christian ministry, fourteen years ago. GEORGE W. Fox, Assistant Secretary.

<text><text><text><text>

public. Fourteen years ago, when I first entered the ministry, I could and did call myself a "Christian," ihough caring then little for the name. My general views have not much changed since then, but I then gave to the term "Christian" a broader meaning than I now think it will logically or historically bear. So I no longer claim or assume the name. Still, seeing what wide general meanings are given to the name, I do not feel bound, as some of my coadjutors do, consider me entitled to it. For a prior question must then be, "What do you mean by Christian?" I here to consider me entitled to it. For a prior question must might write much more in explanation of my views on this point, but forbear. The question which you have to consider in regard to the Year Book list, it seems to me, is this: Shall we drop those who do not call themselves "Christian," when they make no reguest in the premises? MILIAM J. POTTER. P.S.—Is there any objection to the subject of your Education general weblic?

Iters being made public? Bosron, Dec. 5, 1873. DEAR MR. POTTER,—There are "some definite principles" on which our Year Book list of ministers is made up, and one of them is to drop from it the names of all persons known to be no longer ministers of the Unitarian denomination, and to do this even "when they make no request in the premises." As you say "Christian I do not now call myself." there would seem to be no question as to the propriety of hereafter omitting your name. While there might be no desire to define Chris-tianity in the case of the term entitled to be called properly be stretched to cover. I see no objection to the subject of my letters being made public, and will furnish both yours and my own, or the substance of them, if you prefer, to the Register for publication. Tar in faithfully your. Mark I and Stretched to your former letter in regard to your position, I and Storetary. New BEDFORD, Dec. 10, 1873.

NEW BRDFORD, Dec. 10, 1873. DEAR MR. FOX.—By your last letter, I presume I am to understand that my name is to be omitted from the list of ministers in the Year Book. In this deci-sion I think you have acted consistently with one view of Unitarianism; the view, namely, which re-gards it as having certain doctrinal limits, and the view which in latter years, since the organization of the National Unitarian Conference fixing the limit at least on one side, appears to have been ecclesiastically strongest. But here is another view of Unitarianism, which seems to me older and more fundamental: the view that it does not so unch represent any denomi-The set of the subset of the set of Unitarianism, which seems to me older and more fundamental: the view that it does not so much represent any denominational doctrines as certain mental and spiritual tendencies; that, though it has always had a theology, or, more properly, theologies, historically its dominant animating impulse, and especially in the Channing era, has been the right of free inquiry, and the stress of its emphasis has been laid on the principle that character is to be regarded before dogma. Taking this view, which I confess I rather expected you would take, your decision might have been different. You could have said consistently, "Though some of those on the list of ministers give to the name 'Christian' such a definition as not to include themselves under it, yet we, not professing to define the term so much by doctrinal tests as by tests of character can rightly recognized as Unitarian." I do not say this now with any thought of changing your decision. And I would not say it before, hecause I did not wish to say anything that might a decording to the basis laid down by the National Conference, which must be regarded certainly as expressing the present opinion of the larger part of the under the matter. You have decided according to the basis laid down by the National Conference, which must be regarded certainly as expressing the present opinion of the larger part of the Unitarian.

decision. I have brought forward this other view of Unitarianism, which seems to me more consonant with what Unitarianism was in its origin, and which has still, I anism, which seems to me more consonant with what Unitarianism was in its origin, and which has still, I believe, a good deal of strength in the l'initarian body, simply to show how I, though not calling my-self a "Christian," might not have felt impelled by any conscientious scruple to withdraw my name from the Year Book, and how I may still consistently feel and hold some affiliation with Unitarian organizations and movements. When I have seen how my honored friends and coadjutors in the Free Religious Associa-tion, first Mr. Abbot, and now Mr. Frothingham, were receiving special praise from the religious jour-nals for formally withdrawing from the Unitarian body, their conduct in thus withdrawing being spoken of as particularly "honorable" and "noble," I have been led to ask myself whether I might not be acting a dishonorable and ignoble part by not "withdraw-ing." since in general religious views I stood on es-sentially the same platform with them. It has seemed clear, too, that not to withdraw was rather to run the risk of appearing to others to be in the unen-viable attitude of standing on a theological fence, a position which is repugnaut to every fibre of my na-ture. Still, though faithfully sounding all my mo-tives, and having the sincerst respect for the motives of my friends which led them to a formal disavowal of Unitarian fellowship, I can honestly say that I have not been able to find any call either in reason or conscience to follow their example. And the cause

<page-header><text><text><text>

(FOR THE INDEX.)

AN OPEN LETTER

TO GEO. W. FOX, ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE AMERICAN UNITARIAN ASSOCIATIÓN.

DEAR SIR:

Since the time of Theodore Parker, there has prob-

DEAR SIR:--Since the time of Theodore Parker, there has prob-ably been no act more indicative or significant than your erasure from the Year Book of the name of Wil-liam J. Potter. A very simple thing indeed to do, it by it you did not lay down a principle, establish a whole denomination. The facts occasioning your action were these: O. Forthingham, President of the Free Religious As-sociation, finding his name in the Year Book an an-noyance to his weaker brethren in the ministry, as-implying that they countenanced and shared his opin-ions, in strict accordance with his customary courte-sy, kindly withdrew it. But, in your interrogation to Mr. Potter whether or not be would like to do the same, he replied substantially as follows: "I do not see fit to erase my name, it must be upon your own responsibility." A position, it seems to me, quite as in the the greenises like Mr. Frothingham. If your see fit to erase my name, it must be upon your own responsibility." A position, it seems to me, quite as in the respined substantially as follows: "I do not see fit to erase my name, it must be upon your own responsibility." A position, it seems to me, quite as in the real consequences that lie in wait, or the keyneth seal of the American Unitarian Association of the Romish Ohurch; and, unless the fellowship of solus on earth be less limited than the communion do the Romish Ohurch; and unless the fellowship of solus on earth be less limited than the communion of the Romish Ohurch; and unless the fellowship of solus on earth be less limited than the communion of the sentist in heaven. But the real consequences that lie in wait, or the Register. In proclaiming Mr. Potter no longer a Uni-rainan Christian minister, announces that he will the remister inpending. I am unable to see, since the Register. In proclaiming Mr. Potter no longer a Uni-traina Christian minister, and while that the heaven in Church. Such a fermentation must indicate that in Unitarianism there has alre from their almanac is the utmost limit to their in-quisitorial powers. Now, while deprecating sadly the logic that should lead you to it, 1 am glad that you have taken this sub-ject in hand. There has hitherto been altogether too much musby concession among the Unitarians. They ought to taily closer up to their professions. Weed them out! Send an interrogatory circular to every doubtful case. Let us know who are on the Lord's side.

But what will you do with those who might deem But what will you do with those who might deem such a question an impertinence,—such as have left the labelling business and taken up that of their fa-thers, who, like Emerson, instead of blowing a trum-pet, would prefer to let their works and life label them? You are aware, I suppose, that in State Street, if a man should call himself a Christian, it, would immediately evoke suspleions, if it did not con-sign him to the Coventry of general contempt. There one's character and standing offer sufficient tests; and a profession, instead of promoting sincerity or reality, would finally come to stand in the place of the thing professed. But where an individual is of "universal-ly known and respected" as you say Mr. Potter is, what is the significance of his profession? Acknowl-edging his worth, because he does not do it, you ex-clude him. Does the husbandman throw away the best wheat because it has lost its tag, or gather up chaff because it has one on? Why, then, are the children of this world wiser than the children of light? One would suppose from the Register's com-pliments that it would first hang Mr. Potter, and then erect a monument under the gallows. Now what is a Christian? This you ought first to seetle very definitely. It ought to be so plain that a wayfaring man, though a fool, need not ert therein; if for nothing else, than because you make so much to hang upon it. Is "Christian" an expression of the heart or a definition of the head ? If the former, was not Mr. Frothingham far more a Christian after the generous act that so unchristianized him ? If the latter, is it a soleun fact that among your communion Mr. one's character and standing offer sufficient tests; and not Mr. Frothingham far more a Christian after the generous act that so unchristianized him? If the latter, is it a soleum fact that among your communion Mr. Potter's intellectual honesty is so criminal an offence as to be punishable with expulsion, and extend to such an extent as to determine the dividing line be-tween the sheep and the goats? If by "Christian" is meant a certain tone, temper, disposition, and quali-ity of life, ought not, then, Mr. Potter's confession to bring down upon him the publican's blessing rather than the Pharisee's rebuke? Certainly his denial cannot be classified with Peter's.—that of a lack of moral courage. Neither would the Register condemn him as falling away in grace, since then the corre-sponding corollary would hold true: if all who deny Christ are bad people, it must also follow that all who acknowledge him are saints—a shocking conclusion! But if by "Christian" is meant the acceptance of some dogma about Christ, his person or mission, then it is equally certain that Christ himself was no Christian. So there are good men who do not accept such dog-mas, as we also have plenty of bad men who do. Then is there, certainly, no inevitable interdepend-ence between such dogmas and high character. What, therefore, taken separately, reduces your Christianity into awkward dilemmas cannot be said to constitute a Christian when taken together. Then he should have enough dogma to give to character a peculiar flavor, and as much manilness as would not impede a proper dogmatic expression. But I understand it is the policy of your denomina-tion not to curtail too much its definition, but to alto constitute a Christian when taken together. Then be sould have enough dogma to give to character a peculiar flavor, and as much mailiness as would not impete a proper dogmatic expression. But I understand it is the policy of your denomina-tion not to curtail too much its definition, but to al-low the largest individual liberty. "A man," anys the Liberal Christian, "may be a panthelist or an atheist, and if he call himself a Christian, he may join the Unitarian Conference." Dith what if a Christian calls himself an atheist, what then? Why, he would, of course, be excluded. Where, then, lies the signifi-cace attached to this word, except it be in the mere are frached to this word, except it be in the mere are not how within which nothing is left to be sworn over? Then, at least, have we come to the hisbman's definition of nothing—''a footless stock-ing without legs." A compass it is which acts like your commational currency that can only up to the American Unitarian Association to find a propertions of a camel, then it looks like a wessel, gain if puts on the magnitude of a whale, and the a school of theology Huxley would call a 'biographi-cal Ao-Man's-Land.'' You speak in your Year Bood of theology Huxley would call a 'biographi-cal the sourd of a camel, then it looks like a wessel, gain if puts on the magnitude of a whale, and the a school of theology Huxley would call a 'biographi-cal ho-Man's-Land.'' You speak in your Year Bood of ways with Judaisn. How can history repeat its schoin of theology Huxley would call a 'biographi-gin us what Jesus did to that of his time? They would never, have cried aloud so often ''mer the transformation, the more christian. Your As-sociation? Are they not doing to the popular relig-ing the way with Judaisn. How can history repeat the societ on appreciate this, although it comes within the first was a monother than Unitarian heresy and that all this cryabout ''first'' was the first.'' was a thus the societ the stocet the your Christian to who shis logical accurary Reason. In your denominational treatment of a neu-dore Parker, you offered the noblest opportunity for an ostracized heretic to prove himself more Christian than his Christian accusers. From that sight the devoted Channing might have turned in his coffin to point the finger of rebuke! But when, still later, you let all the golden opportunity of vindicating religious liberty as broad as the race and to all the sons of God, you again presented to the world the humiliating spec-tacle of seeing the cream of your communion march off, waving in your faces the banners of that very freedom which had hitherto been your only bosst! At such a sight the angels well might weep; for, in that very hour, not only did there return the ghost of Theodore Parker, but it was the very form and voice of Christ, CHILDREN OF THE SCHEES AND PHARISEES, WHO MURDERED ME, FILL YE UP THE FULL MEASURE OF YOUR FATHERS!" And in this last act, are you really following him

Google

MURPERED ME, FILL YE UP THE FULL MEASURE OF YOUR VATHERS!" And in this last act, are you really following him or crucifying him anew? Interpreted by the suffer-ing at Antioch and the martyrdoms of Rome, are you more Christian? Or, following after the anise and cummin, resemble you most the Pharisees at Jeru-salem? Instead of a great and enlightened denomi-nation leading progress, are you not comparatively hindering it? Instead of uniting mankind in brother-leader in unprofitable disputes? Instead of making straight the pathway of the Lord and lifting the heavy burdens from the op-pressed, are you not making it more crooked, placing stumbling blocks in the way, and occupying your-selves in raking over the fires of a liftle Unitarian inquisition? Yours for clearness and charity. CHARLES THOMAS FOWLER. BOSTON, December 10, 1873.

FREE RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF CHICAGO. PREAMBLE AND CONSTITUTION.

PREAMBLE.

Holding these truths to be self-evident, that truth, justice, and fraternity are, and should be, ruling prin-ciples of true humanity; And recognizing the fact that the human reason is the only unpire of truth, and that truth is the sole basis of justice and fraternity, and that association upon a platform of free thought and equal rights is the best means for promoting true civilization; We therefore associate ourselves under the above

We therefore associate ourselves under the above name, and agree to abide by the following CONSTITUTION.

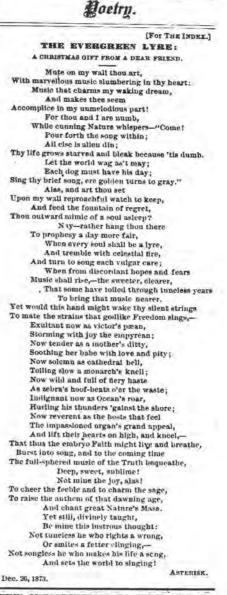

CONSTITUTION. ARTICLE 1. Name.—This society shall be called the Free Religious Society of Chicago. ART. 2. Objects.—Its objects are the elevation of humanity through the study of truth in moral phil-osophy and science, and the promotion of fraternity and true fellowship. ART. 3. Membership.—Membership in this society embraces all who sign the constitution. But only those who contribute not less than one dollar annu-ally to the support of the society shall be permitted to vote in its management. ART. 4. Opinious.—Members of this society are responsible to themselves only for any opinions they may severally hold upon religious or other questions, and membership in other societles, religious or secu-lar, shall not be a bar to membership in this. ART. 5. Officers.—The officers of this society shall consist of a president, one or more vice-presidents, as mucie.

music.

secretary, and standing committees of finance and music.
ART. 6. Elections. — The officers and standing committees shall be elected annually at the first regular meeting of the society in the month of December. Special elections to fill vacancies may occur, however, at any regular meeting.
ABR. 7. Amendments. — This constitution may be altered or amended at any regular meeting by a two-thirds vote of the members present, notice of such amendment having been given in writing at least one week before said vote is taken.
N. B. — The books of this society are open, and may be found at the Hall each Sunday, and all persons in sympathy with it are respectfully and sincerely invited to become members by signing the constitution personally, or by authorizing some member of its members and friends; all are therefore solicited to aid it with such contributions in cash, or subscriptions payable in weekly or monthly instalments, as their hearts may prompt them to give.

THE KING AND THE ANTS.—According to Jewish and Mohammedan tradition, King Solomon, who was bevond all other men, knew the language of animals, and could talk with the beasts of the field and the birds of the air. A Rabbinical story is told of him, which is on this wise: One day the king rode out to Jerusalem with a great retinue. An ant-hill lay directly in his path, and Solomon heard its little peo-ple talking. "Here comes the great king." one of them said. "His faiterers call him wise and just and merciful; but he is about to ride over and crush us, without heeding our sufferings." Solomon told the Queen of Sheba, who rode with him, what the ant said: and the queen made an-awer. "He is an insolent creature, O king! It is abe-ter fate than he deserves to be trodden under our feet!"

feet!" But Solomon said, "It is the part of wisdom to learn of the lowest and weakest." And he com-manded his train to turn aside and spare the aut-hill. Then all the courtiers marvelled greatly, and the Queen of Sheba bowed her head and made obeisance to Solomon, and said, "Now know I the secret of thy wisdom. Thou listenest as patiently to the reproach-es of the humble as to the flatteries of the great."— J. G. Whiltier.

NEW SUBSCRID	PTIONS TO INI	DEX 8	TOO	x.
Mrs. F. W. Christern,	New York City,	One si	hare,	$100
Richard B, Westbrook				100
R. C. Spencer,	Milwaukee, Wis,	Two		200
R. W. Howes,	Boston, Mass.	One		100
Chas. W. Story,	Boston, Mass.		64	100
E. W. Meddaugh,	Detroit, Mich.	Five		500
Jacob Hoffner,	Cummiusville, O.	One		100
John Weiss,	Boston, Mass.		fr	100
W. C. Russel,	Ithaca, N. Y.			100
A. W. Leggett,	Detroit, Mich.		. 11	100
B. F. Dyer,	Boston, Mass.		14	100
James Purinton,	Lynn, Mass.		64	100
F. A. Nichols,	Lowell, Mass.	-64	16	100
J. S. Palmer,	Portland, Me.	- 14		100
Robt. Ormiston,	Breeklyn, N.Y.		24	100
Mrs. A. L. Illehmond,	Lowell, Mass.	10	- A.	100
Mrs. Benj. Ireson,	Lynn, Mass,		24	100
J. E. Oliver,	Ithaca, N.V.			100

CASH RECEIPTS.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING DECEMBER 27.

T. M. Lamb, 810. All receipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and no other receipt sent nuless specially requested. Persons who do not see their remittances acknowledged within three weeks after sending, will please notify us. N. B.-Please remit by post-office money-order, by regis tered letter, or by draft on Hoston or New York. Chocks on interior hanks are liable to discount, and the term of subscription will be proportionally shortened in the credit.

Distantin GOOSLE

6

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION, AT NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Toledo Office: No. 35 MONBOR STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

FRANCIM ELLING WOOD ABBOT, ABRAM WALTER STRVENS, OCTAVIUS BROOKS FROMINOHAM, THORAS WENTWORTH DIGOINSON, WILLIAM J. POTTER, RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, WILLIAM H. SPENCER, MES. E. D. CHENEY, Rev. CHARLES WILLIAM H. SPENCER, MES. E. D. CHENEY, Rev. CHARLES VOVezy (England), POT. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN (England), Rev. MONOURE D. CONWAY (England), Editorial Contribu-tors.

BOSTON, JANUARY 1, 1874.

SUNDAY LECTURES .- The Editors of THE INDEX will lecture occasionally on Sundays, if desired, within a convenient distance of Boston.

CASH PHEMIUMS FOR 1874.

In order to increase the circulation of THE INDEX, and thereby make it a more powerful instrumentality in the reform to which it is devoted, the following Cash Premiums are now offered :-

1. The INDEX will pay to any one of its old subscribers $1,00 for every new subscription of $3,00 obtained by his or her means and forwarded to this office. If preferred, the $1.00 may be deducted before remitting. This offer holds good for new subscriptions alone, and not for renewals.

2. In addition to this, it offers One Hundred Dollars to the person who shall send the largest list of new subscribers, with the money, before the first day of February, 1874, and Fifty Dollars to the person sending the next largest list during the same time.

There are many warm friends of THE INDEX throughout the country who would be glad to help increase its circulation, if they could only afford to give their time to the work. The above offers will enable them to do so. Supposing that the largest list sent contains one hundred new names, the sender will be entitled to $100.00 as commission and another $100.00 as premium. Will not many of our lady subscribers, who are the most efficient of all canvassers, seize this opportunity to help THE INDEX without too great a sacrifice on their own part?

GLIMPSES.

A CORRESPONDENT writes us that, out of the 10,000 Jews in Philadelphia, "there is but one female in the Insane Department of the Almshouse, and but two in the county jail for minor offences."

IN ADRIAN, Michigan, is published a German weekly paper, heartily devoted to liberalism, which ought to be supported well by the Germans. It is called Der Reformator, and is edited by C. Lohmann. Subscription price, $2.00 a year.

ESPECIAL ATTENTION is invited to the list of lecturers and subjects in the Course of "Sunday Afternoon Lectures," to be given in Horticultural Hall this winter,-as usual, under the auspices of the Free Religious Association. This Course has become almost an established institution, and attracts the interest of all who wish to hear the last word of religious radicalism.

A FRIEND in Chicago writes under date of Dec. 22: "We had a splendid meeting last night in the Free Religious Society. Robert G. Ingersoll, a prominent lawyer (formerly State Attorney) of Peoria, Illinois, gave us a lecture on 'Individuality' which electrified the large and very intelligent audience by its flashes of wit and common sense, warming the heart at the same time by sentiments of true humanity, and by no means lacking in humorous criticism on the followers of Authority. As an orator, in elocution and ad-dress, he is admirable; and the humor sparkling in his eyes and gestures is perfectly charming."

THE Christian Register is just now filled with admiration of all ministers who are stirred up to define their positions, and who refuse to enjoy the advantages of an ambiguous attitude. It holds that all who consider themselves non-Christians should pack up their carpet-bags, and quit the society of those who avow themselves Christians. We postpone for the present all discussion of this point; but we must say frankly that the same rule applies to denominations that applies to individual ministers. We shall think more highly of the Christian Register when it ceases to profess entire spiritual freedom, and honestly confesses that "Unitarian Christianity" has its dogmatic limitation in the Christian name.

WITH THE FREE and hearty consent of the author.

the publication of "Paul Gower" is now discontinued In THE INDEX. It was expected that the whole of the novel would be published within the year 1873; but the necessary reduction of the paper's size last spring precluded the possibility of this, and nearly half of the story remains unpublished. Under these circumstances, it is undesirable, whether as regards the author, the public, or THE INDEX itself, to continue its publication in a manner so fragmentary as to do it great injustice. We hope that a publisher may be found to give it a fair chance in book form, and that Paul's theological experience, as recounted in the interesting thirty-seventh chapter just concluded, may secure for it a wide sale among liberal readers.

THE BOSTON Traveller of Dec. 22 has this editorial paragraph :-- paragraph:---"The Boston Liberal Lengue is just now attempt-ing to shape public sentiment in favor of a repeal of the laws under which churches and property owned by educational, scientific, literary, benevolent, and charitable associations are exempted from taxation. The animus of the Lengue is unquestionably opposi-tion to the churches, but it cannot well strike at them without hitting the other associations named. This uestion is now attracting much interest all over the country, and the most powerful opposition to repeal will not be that which comes from the churches. In-deed, it is not probable that the change proposed uotid greatly affect the larger portion of the Protes-tant thurches of this Commonwealth, as the amount to be taxed upon the churches would be asved to the taxed upon the churches.". The LENES of signatures to the "Anti-Exemption

THE LISTS of signatures to the "Auti-Exemption Petitions" are beginning to come in. Mr. George H. Foster, of Boston, has brought in a list of two hundred and fifty-one names, and the Banner of Light courteously sends us one of fifty-seven names, collected by Mr. F. J. Symes, of Cleveland, Ohio,-both lists belonging under the "Congressional Petition." Mr. R. H. Ranney, of Boston, has also handed in a list of forty signatures to the "Massachusetts Petition." It is hoped that similar lists will be collected and forwarded without delay; but let every name be enrolled that can be secured. The amount of the indirect tax imposed on individuals by church-exemption is trivial, it is true; but a great principle is at stake, and the spirit of the Boston "Tea-Spillers" of 1773 is a noble one to remember.

SOME INTERESTING correspondence between Mr. Potter and the Assistant Secretary of the American Unitarian Association, copied from the Christian Register, will be found on a previous page. It was originally suggested by the following paragraph in the Register of Nov. 8:

Register of Nov. 8:--"The Secretary of the American Unitarian Associ-ation has received a note from Rev. O. B. Frothing-ham, of New York, in which he says: 'I can under-stand why my society is counted among Unitarian societies, for it was incorporated under that title, and has never changed its name." But why my name should be retained in the Year Book of the Associa-tion, when I have so openly disavowed all connection with the Unitarians, I cannot understand. Had I been aware of its presence there, I should have done what it occurs to me to do now-requested its with-drawal. Not that I have the smallest objection to appearing in such excellent company, but because I appearing in such excellent company, but because I wish to sail under no false colors, and would save others from complicity with my opinions.'"

THE NEW CONSTITUTION of Pennsylvania, as shown in another column by Mr. Pillsbury, disqualifies for office those who do not "acknowledge the being of a God and a future state of rewards and punishments,"-an outrage none the less heinous because it is but the reënactment of the same provision in the old Constitution. But in the new Preamble the Christian Amendment party have gained an important victory, accomplishing at least part of their purpose to "put God into the Constitution." Says the Philadelphia Christian Statesman, the well-known organ of this party: "The language of this Preamble, We, the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, grateful to Almighty God for the blessings of civil and religious liberty, and humbly invoking his guidance, do ordain and establish this Constitution," contains the germ of the whole doctrine of national religion. And although the vote which struck out the clause, originally reported by the Committee, acknowledging the 'sovereignty' of God, showed a singular ignorance of the subject with which they were dealing, yet we regard the Preamble as a notable gain to the cause of political Christianity, and as destined to play an important part in the controver-sies of the future." Stealthily does the "cause of political Christianity" make its advances, and fortify point after point as it gains them. May the nation not be at last like Gulliver, waking to find itself fettered and enslaved by an infinite number of tiny cords thus craftily fastened upon its sleeping limbs!

WANTED

A RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT TO THE #### United States Constitution.

The First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which, in consequence of ratification by three-fourths of the States, became a part of the Constitution on December 15, 1791, is as follows: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

We submit to the public a proposition that this

ARTICLE I.

"SECTION 1.-Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

"SECTION 2 .- No State shall make any law respecting an establishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances. No religious test shall ever be required as a condition of suffrage, or as a qualification to any office or public trust, in any State; and no person shall ever in any State be deprived of any of his or her rights, privileges or capacities, or disqualified for the performance of any public or private duty, or rendered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or equity, in consequence of any opinions he or she may hold on the subject of religion.

"SECTION 3 .- Congress shall have power to enforce the provisions of the second section of this Article by appropriate legislation."

The necessity of this enlargement of the First. Amendment, in order to secure to the people the full and unrestricted enjoyment of religious liberty, is apparent for two reasons :-

1. The Tenth Amendment to the United States Constitution expressly provides that-"The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people;" and the Constitution itself, although providing by the third clause of Article VI. that-"No religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States,"-nevertheless contains no provision prohibiting the several States from establishing a State religion, or requiring a religious test for office, or disqualifying witnesses in the courts on account of their religious opinions, or otherwise restricting their religious liberty.

2. In consequence of this defect in the United States Constitution, some of the States are, as a matter of fact, actually guilty of grave infringements on the religious liberty of their citizens. The following State provisions establishing a religious test for office in point :---

The Constitution of Maryland declares-"That no religious test ought ever to be required as a qualification for any office of profit or trust in this State, other than a declaration of belief in the existence of God." [Decl. of Rights, 37.]

The Constitution of North Carolina declares that-"The following classes of persons shall be disqualilied for office: First, all persons who shall deny the being of Almighty God." [VII, 5.]

The Constitution of South Carolina declares that-"No person who denies the existence of the Supreme Being shall hold any office under this Constitution." [XIV. 6.]

The Constitution of Mississippi declares that-"No person who denies the existence of the Supreme Being shall hold any office in this State." [XII, 3.]

The Constitution of Tennessee declares that-"No person who denies the being of God, or a future state of rewards and punishments, shall hold any office in the civil department of this State." [IX, 2.] The Constitution of Pennsylvania declares—"That no person who acknowledges the being of God and a future state of rewards and punishments shall, on account of his religious sentiments be disqualified to #### hold any office or place of trust or profit under this Commonwealth." [1X, 4.] This clause has just been reënacted by the people of Pennsylvania in the new Constitution adopted on the sixteenth day of last October; and it is interpreted to mean the positive disqualification for office of all persons who do not profess the beliefs referred to. "The recognition of a God and of a future state of rewards and punishments," says Hough, in his standard work entitled American Constitutions [Vol. II, p. 220. Albany: 1872], "was still demanded of all holding office; but a belief in the Divine inspiration of the Old and New Testaments was not included." It should also be remembered that the new Constitution of this State contains a recognition of God in its Preamble which was not contained in the old Preamble, -a result di-rectly due to the efforts of the "God in the Constitution" party, and a virtual admission of their general principle that the State, as such, is bound to recognize God.

Google

Further, the Constitution of Maryland declares "Nor shall any person, otherwise competent, be deemed incompetent as a witness or juror on account of his religious belief; provided he believes in the existence of God, and that, under His dispensation, such person will be held morally accountable for his acts, and be rewarded or punished therefor, either in this world or the world to come." [Declaration of Rights, 36.] Tyler, in his American Ecclesiastical Law, after stating that "the Christian religion is the recognized religion of the country, and is a part of the common law of many of the States," goes on to refer to the prohibition by the United States Constitution of a religious test of office, and of an establishment of religion; but he adds: "Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of the Federal Constitution, in several of the States certain religious opinions are requisite to receiving the oath of a witness in courts." [page 22.] Even in Massachusetts, the State Constitution has been construed by the Legislature, in the General Statutes of 1800, to permit an enactment of this nature: "Every person not a bellever in any religion is required to testify truly, under the pains and penalties of perjury; and the evidence of such persons disbelieving in the existence of God may be received to affect his credibility." In other words, an appeal in the courts to the public prejudice against atheists, however irrelevant to the subject matter of their testimony, and however irreproachable may be their character, is legally approved by the State of Massachusetts.

These and other interferences with religious rights by the several State Constitutions, and the innumerable statutory provisions enacted in the same spirit, together with the more or less frequent acts of op pression growing out of them, would be prohibited as unconstitutional, if the Freedom Amendment should become part of the supreme law of the land. It is needed to carry out the essential purpose, the fundamental idea, on which the whole Constitution rests. If the United States are one nation,-if they are destined more and more to be inspired by the same "enthusiasm of humanity" which gave the nation birth,-if all parts of every nation must, as a condition of healthy national life, be governed by one homogeneous law, and vivified by one common spirit, -then the Freedom Amendment is in some shape absolutely essential to the future greatness and happiness of our country. Its ratification would be the death-warrant of all attempts to pervert the Constitution to the service of Roman Catholicism or any other form of Christlanity; for such an extension and strengthening of the purely secular principle of government would set the seal of hopelessness on every such attempt, even to the satisfaction of its most undaunted supporters. But the proposition of this new Amendment is not made at all in the spirit of a bellicose partisanship: on the contrary, it is made with the strongest conviction that consistency with democratic ideas is the absolute condition of a permanent republic; that this consistency must be found both in our national and State Constitutions; and that the only way to ensure it in our State Constitutions is to assimilate them to our national Constitution by virtue of some such provision as we now propose. In the opening paper of this issue we have uncompromisingly declared the profound antagonism existing between the two fundamental ideas of the Republic and the Church; and we now appeal to the country to take such a step as shall ensure the final victory to the idea of the Republic. Not hastily, not bitterly, not combatively, do we make this appeal; but rather with a deep desire that we of this generation shall be wise for our posterity, and bequeathe to it a supreme law freed from the last, lingering traces of a poisonous ecclesissticism.

MR. MORSE'S PARKER.

In a notice of Mr. Morse's bust of Mr. Parker. copied into THE INDEX and meant to be very complimentary to him, occurs this expression: "Mr. Morse has carefully avoided idealizing the head of Mr. Parker." I wish in the name of Art to protest against this misuse of the glorious word "ideal." If Mr. Morse had done what his critic suggests, his next best thing would be to throw his clay into the ash barrel, and go to some honest work for a living. On the contrary, he has most conscientiously sought, from all the records of Mr. Parker's face as well as from reminiscences of his life and character, to catch the true idea of the man, and to re-present it in the lineaments of his face; in short, to idealize the portrait by giving pot the accidental effect of the moment, but the permanent characteristics, the true idea, of the man. If he had not done so, what advantage would his work have over the photograph or the plaster cast of the head itself? This idealizing is an entirely different thing from smoothing away all character into mere prettiness, as is so often done. This Mr. Morse certainly has not done.

He has undertaken a task of great difficulty; and, if he has not accomplished perfection, he has given us a very earnest and thoughtful likeness of Mr. Parker, which in some views is very satisfactory, and will afford great pleasure to hundreds of his admirers who did not know his living face.

We hope the success of this bust, which is under life size, will encourage Mr. Morse to undertake a lifesize bust of his great subject, on which he can work with greater freedom, and use to advantage sil he has learned from the close study of the head on this smaller scale. E. D. C.

LONDON LETTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX:

Sir,-An event has occurred since my last letter which is, I believe, pregnant with vast results to the progress of Free Religious thought in this country.

The Dean of Westminster, well known, beloved, respected, and dreaded, according to the view taken of his policy, has been doing a bold stroke of innovation at which the hearts of all lovers of liberty rejoice, and all lovers of dogmatic bondage tremble.

He invited to lecture in the nave of Westminster Abbey-and on the "Day of Intercession for Missions" too-a layman; no less a heterodox celebrity than Professor Max Müller, of Oxford, the learned author of Lectures on the Science of Language and Lectures on the Science of Religion.

There was of course a large concourse assembled to hear him, and he was supported by the presence of the Dean and other clergy attached to the Abbey.

The subject of his lecture was "Missions," and in this lies all the sting which his words would have inflicted on the average Orthodox mind. On a day set apart for special prayer to God to prosper the work of conversion among the "Heathen," and in the first ecclesiastical building of the first city in Christendom, a layman reads a homily to the missionaries and those who send them, the spirit of which is the very opposite of that in which they were born and bred, the most foreign to all their religious predilections. I cannot do better than give you some extracts from the lecture itself.

The Professor began by contrasting the three great missionary religions of the world; namely, Buddhism, Mohammedanism, and Christianity, with the three great non-missionary religions, namely, Judaism, Brahmanism, and Zoroastrianism; pointing out that the missionary element was a sign of vitality. His first shot was this:--

"All these religions had a history, for religions are not unchangeable. Indeed, if they cease to grow and change, they cease to live."

"The reason why he commends missionary zeal, is thus expressed :---

"There are two kinds of missionary work; and religions which could boast of men who left home and friends, and spent lives of toil and danger among strangers, were also rich in those honest and intrepid inquirers, who, at the bidding of the same spirit of truth, were ready to leave behind them the cherished creed of their childhood, to separate from their friends, to stand alone among men who shrugged their shoulders and asked, "What is Truth?" and to bear in silence a martyrdom more galling often than death itself."

"Truth neither should nor could be concealed. What is there in this short life that should seal our lips? What shall we wait for, if we are not to speak here and now? There is missionary work to be done at home as well as abroad. There are thousands waiting to listen, if but one man will speak the truth and nothing but the truth."

"There may be times when silence is gold and speech silver; but there are times also when silence is death, and speech is life—the very life of Pentecost."

Rebuking the slavish fear of each other which besets the clergy especially, the Professor asks: "Are the laity afraid of the clergy, the clergy of the laity ? What clergyman will not respect honest doubt more than unquestioning faith? Surely, we know that the clear voice of honesty and humility draws more hearts than the harsh accents of dogmatic assurance or ecclesiastical exclusiveness," We only wish the Professor may be right in this flattering estimate.

The most remarkable feature in this wonderful lecture was the allusion made to the Theistic movement in India under Keshub Chunder Sen, with whom we English Theists have exhanged formal tokens of sympathy and good-will. In praising them in India, the Professor virtually praises us, and certainly Westminstor Abbey was not the pisce from which we expected so grand and generous an acknowledgment.

"We need not wonder," he says, "that the Brahmo Somaj has found little favor in the eyes of our missionaries, who feel towards Keshub Chunder Sen much as Athanasius might have felt towards Ulfilas, the Arlan Bishop of the Goths. Yet what would have become of Christianity in Europe but for these Arlan heretics?

"The movement of religious reform in India is, in my mind, the most momentous in this momentous century. Though our missionaries may repudiate it, history would be more just, and would recognize it as the work, if not of Christian missionaries, of those missionary Christians who have lived in India examples of a true Christian life. These native Indian Puritans are with us, and we with them, for all the highest purposes of life, even though they may not repeat our creeds, nor sign our articles."

In an eloquent appeal to forsake theological warfare for the higher objects of true religion, the Professor says: "If missionaries admit to their fold converts who can hardly understand the abstract conceptions of our creeds and formulas, is it necessary to exclude those who understand them but too well to submit the wings of their free spirit to such galling chains?

"When we try to think of the majesty of God, what are all these formulas but the stammering of children? The essentials of our religion are not in our belief, but in our love; in our love of God, and in our love of man founded on our love of God. This is the whole law and the prophets. This is the religion to be preached to the whole world. This is the gospel which will conquer all other religions, which will comfort the hearts of all men. There can never be too much love, though there may be too much faith, particularly when it leads to the requirement of exactly the same measure of faith in others."

Whether or not the Orthodox champions will be too stunned to reply to this tremendous attack, we are quite safe in predicting that it is only the beginning of a series of similar lectures, and have only to hope that every succeeding lecturer at Westminster Abbey may possess the combined gentleness and courage of Professor Max Müller.

Very truly yours,

CHABLES VOYSEY. CAMDEN HOUSE, Dulwich, S. E., Dec. 10, 1873.

Sont YEARS since, quite a famous law-school exfited in a quiet town in Central Massachusetts. The principal church in the village was one in which wealth, piety, and conservatism, and no lack of love existed. But somehow the latter was a hidden fire thing special to cause it to be developed externally. At the time specified, it was drawn out in this wise; Two of the law students on a certain Sabbath strayed into the church, where they were strangers, walked is whole length to the pulpit, and not a door of a single pew was opened or a single seat offered to them. With quiet dignity they turned and marched out again, went about a mile to the school, and then church again, couly seating themselves in the broad sisle. They had no trouble after that time in finding by a leading lawyer of the town, "that was the best ermon ever preached in that church." We rememsing church, and aithough there were plenty of vacantsit, not one was offered to the two young strangers, one of them, after beloing himself to a seat directly mider the pulpit, remained a few moments, and then of them, signing. "I've not attended church before of yoyears, and certainly an good for another two yars' absence."—Advance.

Distinute GOOgle

٠

Literary Hotices.

By-AND-By: An Historical Romance of the Future. By Edward Maitland, author of the Filgrim and the Shrine, Higher Law, etc. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. 1873.

By Edward Maitland, author of the Program one the Shrine, Higher Late, etc. New York: G. P. Putam's Soas. 1873. The aim of this work is to show the results of con-tinued progress, in their application to art, science, social life, religion, and government, and to depict the condition of the world when such advances have been made, that, in the words of the author, "individuals are able, without penalty or reproach, to fashion hole external limitation being that imposed by the haw of equal liberty to all," It opens with a party on a "acromotive," homeward bound from a sojourn at the North Pole. Travelling in the ari is as cor-mons of telegraph wires enables one from almost any point, on land or sea, to communicate with any other desired point. All the wonderful conditions of things described were brought about by "the glorions eman-eipation," the dawning of which appeared in the intercenth century—"the divine method of the un-verse having been revealed in evolution." The disord point. All the wonderful conditions of things described were brought about by "the glorions eman-eipation," On the cathedral built from the sale of thurches and clapels of the various sects into which the population had been divided is inscribed, "All stabadon, ye who enter there," Alfaris on a targe wai is had recourse to for adjusting difficulties with population had been divided is inscribed, "All stabadon, ye who enter there," Alfaris on a targe wai is had recourse to for adjusting difficulties with population had been divided is inscribed, "All stots thendon, ye who enter there," Alfaris on a there is limited to matters purely social. No longer and the "social evil" is done away with. Marriages mod the "social evil" is done away with. Marriages mod science, women are guided by their affection, and the "social evil" is done away with. Marriages mod the "social evil" is done away with. Marriages mod the "social evil" is done away with. Marriages mod the science is represented as beimp behind its di-tor the areas of polities. He t

THE PHILOSOPHY OF EDUCATION: or, Pedagogies as a System. By Dr. Karl Rosenkranz, Professor of Philosophy in the University of Königsberg, Translated from the German by Miss Anna C, Bundut Brackett.

Miss Brackett has done a valuable service in giving to us, in available form for general reading, one of those works on the science or philosophy of educa-tion which are so characteristic of the German cult-ure, and which are claimed to have done so much in scattering the bight matching of the science o securing a higher perfection for the German, than for any other schools any other schools. The general reader will perhaps be somewhat ap-palled by the dry and speculative tone of the book, very rarely relieved by any illustration from experi-ence of life. It is in the same vein of thought that belongs to the school of speculative philosophy which has developed so remarkably in St. Louis, and which is having so marked an influence on education there, through the influence of Mr. Wm. T. Harris, the Su-perintendent of Schools, and many of his fellow-laborers. But however abateant

But however abstract and metaphysical these doc-

But however abstract and metaphysical these doc-trines may appear, it is certainly worth while for practical educators to study them, finding as we do the best actual results in the schools under the direc-tion of these speculative philosophers. For instance, in St. Louis, not only is natural sel-ence taught in all the schools, one hour in a day being given to it, but the health and comfort of the chil-dren are better cared for than in any schools I have ever seen. The ventilation is remarkably good—in all the new schoolhouse—as good as can be obtained in a full room; and no schoolhouse is more than two stories high, thus preventing the passing of foul air from story to story, and the weary climbing of many stars.

from story to story, and the weary climbing of many stairs. This book treats briefly and concisely of education in its various relations to the family, the State, and society; and we will quote one or two of its most sug-gestive paragraphs on topics in which the readers of THE INDEX are specially interested:— "In so far as religion exists in the form of a church, those who are members of the same church among themselves. Instruction on the subject is proper, and it is even enjoined upon them as a law, as a duty. But further than their own society they may not extend their rule. The church may exert itself to make a religious spirit felt in the school, and presume, because it has for its subject the absolute in-terest of men, the interest which is superior to all others, to determine also the other objects of education or the method of treating them. The technical acquisitions of Reading, Writing, and Arithmetic, Drawing and Music, the Natural Sciences, Mathe-matics, Logic, Anthropology and Psychology, the practical Sciences of Finance, and the Municipal Reg-ulations, have no direct relation to religion. If we attempt to establish one, there inevitably appears in them a morbid state which destroys them. Not only so, but piety itself disappears, for these accomplish-ments and this knowledge are not included in its idea."

ments and this anowledge are not included in the idea." Again, among other good things, in the chapter on Religious Culture, the author says: "Education has to fit man for religion..., Not unfrequently, how-ever, we find that what is meant by religion is theolo-gy, or the church ceremonials, and these are only one-sided phases of the total religious process. The Anglican High Church presents in the colleges and universities of England a sad example of this error. What can be more deadening to the spirit, more for-eign to religion, than the morning and evening pray-ers as they are carried on at Oxford and Cambridge, with machine-like regularity." We commend this work to the careful perusal of all interested in the great subject of education. E. D. C.

E. D. C.

Communications.

N. B.—Correspondents must run the risk of typographical errors. The utmost care will be taken to avoid them; but hereafter no space will be spared to Krata. N. B.—Articles for this department should be SHORT, and written only on one side of the sheet. N. B.—Illeybby written articles stand a very poor chance of publication.

N. B. scripts. tion. -No responsibility will be assumed for unused manu-

GOD IN THE CONSTITUTIONS.

EDITOR OF THE INDEX :-

EDITOR OF THE INDEX:--Thanks for permitting my hasty word from and about Salem. Since Mr. Vickers has condescended to the Librarianship of the Cincinnati Public Library (an important position, for which he is adapted in ad-mirable degree). I am afraid my nearest neighbor is Mr. Charles Burleigh, of Bloomington, Ill., formerly of the Free Congregational Society in Florence, Mass. I had a pleasant letter from him yesterday, parts of which he might most appropriately have sent to THE INDEX. The Bloomington society is not widely known, but is exerting a most healthy influence in Central Illinois. But just now, my eye is, or has been, turned east-

Central Illinois. But just now, my eye is, or has been, turned east-ward into Pennsylvania. Has any one sent you a copy of its new Constitution, ratified on Tuesday last by, I am told, more than a hundred and fifty thousand majority? I think you will find sufficient in the Preamble, and in the fourth section of Article First, for an edi-torial column: and I shall be glad to see your views upon them. They read as follows:-

PREAMBLE.

We, the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, grateful to Almighty God for the blessings of eivil and re-ligious liberty, and humbly invoking His guidance, do or-dain and establish this Constitution.

ARTICLE I.

DECLARATION OF RIGHTS.

free exercise of the right of suffrage, In the Preamble are the finger prints of the leaders of the God in the Federal Constitution Society. It is thus those Jesuits are working, day and night, con-stant as gravitation, and always and everywhere, with wondrous success. A Convention is now in ses-sion in this State, to revise its Constitution; and no stone on earth, nor under the earth, will go unmoved to put into it preamble and provisos similar to those just ad-opted in Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania Constitution is also of most pro-nounced masculine gender; as witness its Article on Suffrage thus:--

ARTICLE VIII.

SUFFRAGE AND ELECTIONS.

SECTION 1. Every made citizen twenty-one years of age, possissing the following qualifications, shall be entitled to your at all electionss-First, Ma shall have been a citizen of the United States at least one month.

First. He shall have been a clitzen of the United States at least one month. Second. He shall have resided in the State one year (or if, having previously been a qualified elector or native born clitzen of the State, he shall have removed therefrom and returned, then six months) immediately preceding the elec-tion. Third. He shall have resided in the election district where he shall offer to vote at least two months immedi-ately preceding the election. Fourth. If twenty-two years of age or upwards, he shall have paid within two years a State or County tax, which shall have been assessed at least two months and paid at least one month before the election.

least one month before the election. Last Sunday, at the close of lecture, we set our Pe-titions in motion to Congress, and also to the Ohio State Constitutional Convention, on the Taxation of Church Property, and nearly the whole congregation signed them; and some, not generally with us, but attracted that day by notice that such taxation would be, in part, the theme of discourse. We have pro-cured the printing of some of those Petitions, and shall distribute them in towns and counties round about. But my story grows too long. PARKER FILLSDURT. SALEM, Ohio, Dec. 20, 1873.

IMMORAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

IMMORAL ADVERTISEMENTS. EDITOR JNDEX:--The thoughts that first suggested themselves to me, on noticing the advertisement of Woodhult and Clay-lin's Weekly in your columns, were just those ex-pressed in Mr. Kelsey's communication, which you print to-day. But whilst entertaining no more sympa-thy with Mrs. Woodhull's aim than Mr. Kelsey or yourself, a little reflection convinced me that you were not merely justified, but required, by the principles of free and fair play which you profess, to insert it. All reforms, of whatever kind, are not merely for the most part unpopular, but are unsually met with the imputation of immorality, or at least illegality. To speech at the recent centennial celebration in Fanenii Hall, as reported in the newspapers:--"Why do we celebrate it (the tea spilling in Boston harbor)? It was an illegal proceeding. It was break-ing the law. It was plainly a riot. It was an offence against order. Yes. But it was breaking the lower law, and obedience to the higher law." The same argument was used by those abolitionists wondage. And the same argument Mrs. Woodhull has a perfect right to use. For is it not the case that very well-assorted, loving, moral man and wife could safely trust themselves, and be trusted by the commu-nity, to live as lovingly and faithfully under the have we any right to suppose, or can any cause be have we any right to suppose, or can any cause be have we use right cound for the love legisla-tion than, as was prophesied (but falsely prophesied, safely trust themselves, and be trusted by the commu-tion than, as was prophesied (but falsely prophesied) to than, as was prophesied (but falsely prophesied) to than, as was prophesied (but falsely prophesied) whites in the South? Inve lived through several radical revolutions in saw would result in the murder and pillage of all the whites in the South? Inve lived through several radical revolutions in sways prophesied would result in the dissolution of the social fabric, but whi many. All this, while it does not incline me to pronounce free love expedient at present, prevents me, in igno-rance of Mrs. W.'s personal character, from stigma-tizing her reform as Mr. Kelsey does.

LETTER TO MR. VOYSEY.

<section-header><section-header><section-header><text><text><text><text>

- Google

funeral, when he prayed: "O God, though our friend doubted thy existence, yet he kept thy laws." Now, my more able fellow-laborers for the abolish-

Now, my more able fellow laborers for the abolish-ment of mind-slavery, let us criticise all those who assume knowledge and authority; but true faith is beyond criticism, however it may be manifested. Let us speak and write of our own; and if we can con-vince others that our faith attained by reason is bet-ter than theirs, they will accept it! You, Prof. New-man, Mr. Darwin, and others, do a noble work in old Britannis; your sharp dissecting knives will examine every fibre of that muscle which has contracted the iron hand of the English Church. That iron hand crosses even God's free ocean, and interferes with free American citizens when they travel in English vessels. Keep on in your great work of analysis; dis-solve in oblivion the bad, and keep the good! Yours sincerely, CARL H. HORSCH. DOVER, N. H., December 24, 1873.

A NECESSARY BUT DIFFICULT TASK.

A NECESSARY BUT DIFFICULT TASK. MY DEAN MR. ADBOT:— If ever a truth has been plainly stated and the mer-ressive of a reform proved, it was done in Mr. Voy-sey's letter in a late INDEX, treating of the abuse of mean what they express. A falsehood can never be made a truth, nor a bad cause good, by endeavoring y clothing it in well-sounding words or popular plantation of the abuse of the abuse of make it appear true or better than it really is, by y clothing it in well-sounding words or popular phing of its real character and value by giving it mane will ever smell as sweetly. Yet, though truth and a good cause can never be changed into their counter-parts by mere words, and though fanaticism, bigotry, and malice must ever strice in value to giving it may were words, and though fanaticism, bigotry, and malice must ever strice in value to giving it in speak of "Tree Religion," we use a word that does and the stracter, much injury might be, and often means by their own friends in using speak of "Tree Religion," we use a word that does and walke must ever strice in value to generative in the speak of "Tree Religion," we use a word that they were approximated by their own friends in using speak of "Tree Religion," we use a word that they em-bed upon (to say the very least) mistrustingly and anyon (to say the very least) mistrustingly and anyon (to say the very least) mistrustingly and the thin sprone marketes and others, society and the the sprese to the maps by which we strive to realized the thin sprone nore.co. The the thin present unhappy name (Free Re-figion? What its aim? And what its creed and dop mark? What its aim? And what its creed and dop mark? What its aim? And what its creed and dop mark? What its aim? And what its creed and dop mark? What its aim? And what its creed and dop mark? What its aim? And what its creed and how on mark? What its mark? And what its creed and dop mark? What its mark? And what its creed and hop-mark? What its mark? And what its creed you so injections these and similar questions, and quickly dispel all the mistrust and suspicions that now this most unhappy name calls up in the minds of those who are accustomed and able to do their own thinking.

thinking. Though perhaps "Free Religionists" are more dam-agingly guilty in this respect than infidels or spiritual-ists these, too, share to a considerable degree in this folly, and so, of course, they also have to suffer the equences consequences. Wherefore divide Liberals by such little shibbo-leths? Have they not opponents enough that they must oppose each other as "Free Religionists," "Infi-dels," "Spiritualista," and so forth, while in fact all true and advanced Liberals are at once all these to some extent? some extent?

to need a dranced therais are at once all these to some accent? Whatever their name may be, each will accept more of less of the other's views and aspirations, so long as a consideration of the Truth Seeker declared with genuine bernity, in lis first number: "We embrace as in one brotherhood Liberals, Free Religionists, Rationalists, Sprintalists, Universalists, Universalist, Universalist, Rationalists, Sprintalist, Universalist, Universalist, Lew Construction, and against making "common cause" with Sprintalists, we have been appreciated against this broad and liberal platform, and against making "common cause" with Sprintalism; most million accept what to me seems good, but also to reject what to me seems false in Sprintalism; most filling, however, am I to give Sprintualism the credit (at it is note small) that is due it as a fearless for a spectrum of superstition, whatever its own share of maticle entitled "A Serious Mistake," I showed the ere of this correspondent claiming equily for, and accept what to me seems for Sprintualist, and attrace of , all Liberals of Heat From the last number a platform of the second of the too sprint the second of the secon Whatever their name may be, each will accept more zeal for our common cause; our own ideas, but equal willingness to serve humanily; our own thoughts, but one aim, one cause. Let each class of Liberalism; let us avoid all petty jealousies and pernicious divisions; let us unanimously aim at the right, and, when sure we are right, unite our efforts to accomplish it. Let us not forget that it is not enough to be right; we must also be true; our words must be the true represen-tatives of our meaning, our ideas, our aims, and aspirations.

Aspirations. Yours for the right and the true, MOBRIS EINSTEIN. TITUSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 11, 1873.

[We sympathize most thoroughly with Mr. Einstein's desire to unite all free minds in the common cause of freedom, which still has vitally important practical work to do. But it is impossible to select any name whatever over which wranglers will not wrangle. So long as words must be used, they will inevitably be understood in different senses; and it is impossible to avoid this. If people would only try to understand each other, and not persistently disregard the definitions given to names by those who use them, the worst mischief would be obviated. The general cooperation desired must be achieved rather by intelligence and mutual charity than by the disuse of all names, which is impracticable. We have no attachment to any name; but we cannot help using some name, if we speak at all. "Free Religion" was first adopted to avoid narrowness; and if we should use only the name "Liberalism," that would soon fare as badly as the other. If all will but unite on principles, the different names will make no trouble .- Ep.]

A PLEA FOR "NEO-CHRISTIANITY."

QUINCY, Mass., Oct. 1, 1873

QUINCY, Mass., Oct. 1, 1873. MR. Annor: Deur Sir,--Will you excuse me for again being so bold as to request of you a hearing for ideas not in accordance with the objects of your paper? In pub-lishing a former article, you showed so much more liberality than our professedly religious papers that one is almost asliamed to consider you less Christian than they are. For one, 1 should never feel disposed to deny you the Christian name if you did not decline it yourself. By Christianity I understand moral truth: and whoever lives for it I bail as a Christian brother.

May I be so assuming as to say that it seems to me May I be so assuming as to say that it seems to me Christianity is one of the "exact sciences"? I highly Christianity is one of the "exact sciences"? I highly approve of your statement that religion must be re-duced to an exact science, and received no farther than the principles of science will justify. But where is our authority for limiting the term science to mate-rial things? Is Geology less apt to err than trae Theology? Do not its students widely differ? Is there any subject of knowledge on which all men are agreed? Even Mathematics has a variety of ex-pounders; and some scientific works, considered au-thoritative many years ago, are now abandoned. A liability to err is the one distinguishing feature of humanity about which there can be no dispute. The wisest of men knew more than others, simply because be knew he was ignorant, while others fancied them-liability to err is the one distinguishing feature of humanity about which there can be no dispute. The wiseat of men knew more than others, simply because he knew he was ignorant, while others fancied themselves wise. It is an error to suppose that religious people eachew science in their religious belief. One of the greatest religious writers of France based his optimous entirely upon scientific knowledge. He says, "True philosophy is distinguished from physical science only by the nature of the phenomena it observes. The peculiar phenomena of physical science are those of external Nature; the peculiar phenomena it observes. The peculiar phenomena of physical science are those of external Nature; the peculiar phenomena it observes mit bears within himself."

<text><text><text><text><text><text>

"On the wings of his love I was carried above."

John Wesley once doubted what afterwards became one of his cardinal doctrines. He examined separate-John Wesley once doubted what afterwards became one of his cardinal doctrines. He examined separate-ly six hundred persons, and each one invariably testi-fied to the same disputed point. Was there no sci-ence in this? But I am trespassing too much upon your limited space. If you have no room for this at present, keep it until you have some unnecupied cor-ner. I do sincerely desire that our free religious friends may not throw away the proclous ore of truth, because it is surrounded with such a mass of impure metal. I do not wonder at the rejection of Christian-ity by multitudes of pure-minded men; but if they would only believe with Theodore Parker that Chris-tianity was "absolute religion," dating as far back as the Garden of Eden, and not a mere system of barren beliefs and meaningless forms, they would be able to respect Jesus more than they are now able. I do not understand that Jesus propounded new truths to the race, but only sought to uncover to main the glorious metal of truth that had been for ages hidden from his sight beneath the foul accumulations of countless forms of error. forms of error.

Yours for true Christianity, C. STEARNS.

HOW TO MEASURE THEIR MISERY.

WORCESTER, Nov. 11, 1873.

MR. EDITORS

WURCESTER, Nov. 11, 1873. MR. EDITOR:--I have just been re-reading an article in the Inde-gendent, to aware myself that the writer (President Charles G. Finny, of Oberlin) did not write it in fun. The article is headed "What Does It Mean?" I will guess it was written seriously, at the risk of being langhed at by him for doing so. — His object is to spar up the dergy, who profess to believe in an endless hell, to greater faithfulness in preaching the same. To do this, he goes into a cal-gulation of the amount of suffering even the most or-dinary sinner will have to undergo, says there will come a time in the experience of the mildest sinner when he can_say, "I have suffered more than the whole univ". of creatures had suffered before I be-gan to be!" That is putting the case preity strongly, but he says God deplores the necessity of inflicting all this suffering. But, if one is going into that line, why not state the case still more strongly, and declare that the time will come in the experience of the sin-ment of capacity for suffering, which he can assume and we will grant; so the time must come in the ex-perience of stad "mild sinner," when he will suffer more in five minutes (the next writer can put less!) to be grant, so the time must come in the ex-perience of beings had suffered prior to be whole universe of beings had suffered prior to be enteresting speculations might be carried on to his existence.

to his existence. These interesting speculations might be carried on ad infinitum with little danger of bringing about the millennium prematurely; so far as bettering the mor-al character is concerned, they would, I should say, be about as useful as—well, say collecting post-age-stamps. T. B.

9

nummin Google

THE INDEX -- JAN. 1, 1874.

10 of the liberal advertising public is respectfully solicited for THE INDEX. The attempt will be honestly made to keep the advertising pages of THE INDEX in entire harmony its general character and principles, and thus to furnish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their most generous support. To this end, all improper or "blind" advertisements, all quack advertisements, and all advertisements believed to be fraudulent or unjust to any one, will be excluded from these columns. No cuts will be admitted.

THE PATRONAGE

THE INDEX must not be held responsible for any statement made by advertisers, who will in all cases accept the responsibility for their own statements.

ADVERTISING RATES.
For 1	10	12	Insertions,	10e	per	line
44 13 64 26			66	6	66	66
46 52		~	66	5	66	66

On half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

TO ADVERTISERS.

At the last meeting of the Directors of the Index Association, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted :-

"Resolved, That Asa K. Butts has violated the essential condition of his advertising contract with the Index Association, and thereby annulled his said contract, and lost all right to renew the same.

"Resolved, That this Board deem it inexpedient to renew said contract for advertising with said Butts, or to make any similar contract with him; and the editor is instructed to carry this resolution into immediate ef-

In obedience, therefore, to these resolu-tions of the Directors, is now given that Mr. Butts cannot execute any contracts he may have made with third parties for the insertion of advertisements in THE INDEX. But, in order to prevent all embarrassment or loss to such advertisers. they are requested to correspond without de-lay directly with THE INDEX Office, stating the terms formerly agreed on; and new ar-rangements can undoubtedly be made to the entire satisfaction of the advertisers.

NOTICE

CHEAP OFFER! A

FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACTS, from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed to any address on the prepayment of 75 CENTS.

The INDEX TRACT NO. 7, "Compulsory Education," is out of print, and therefore orders for it cannot be filled at present. But it is intended to reprint it before long, and all parties ordering a COMPLETE SET will be furnished with it without extra charge as n as reprinted.

Addres THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS

OF

LEADING INDEX WEITERS.

Including O. B. FROTHINGHAM.

T. W. HIGGINSON.

W. J. POTTER.

W. H. SPENCER.

F. W. NEWMAN.

CHAS. VOYSEY. A. W. STEVENS.

F. E. ABBOT.

Are now for sale at the office of THE INDEX, and will be mailed postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 25 cents each; complete Set of Eight Photographs, $1.50.

Address. THE INDEX.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass.

4. PNDEX TEACTS. PUBLICATIONS. 8 7 THE INDEX, A Weekly Journal DEVOTED TO FREE RELIGION. PUBLISHED BY THE INDEX ASSOCIATION, AT No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. EDITOR: FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR:

ABRAM WALTER STEVENS. EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS:

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I.

- W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.
- R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass

MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. F. W. NEWMAN, England.

CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX alms-

1

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

To foster a pobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the Individual :

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, entholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes.

In brief, to hasten the day when Free Religion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism thronghout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac-In audition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is special-ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the pur-pose of securing the more complete and con-sistent secularization of the political and educational institutions of the United States The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclestastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an unbroken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement of the it divert aid by balance to increment give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading pa-per or essay of a thoughtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX. Regular editorial contributions will con-

those to be furnished by the well-known em-iment writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high position. Mr. Voyagy has kindly com furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to radleal readers. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from valua-ble books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible. AGENTS

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the coun-try. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered letter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case. Address THE INDEX.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston,

No. 1.-Truths for the Times, by F. E. Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Principles." MR. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Species," says, in a letter to the editor not originally intended for publication, but subsequently authorized to be used : "I have now read 'TRUTHS FOR THE TIMES,' and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 2.-Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing character of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are worthy of the nineteenth century. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 3.-Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an overwhelming demonstration of the imperfections and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments, New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 4.-Christian Propagandism, by P. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5.-"God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the proposed Theological Amendment to the United States Constitution. Price 10 centa; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 6 .- "The Sabbath," by Parker Pillsbury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 7.-"Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8 .- The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that interests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous character of the attempt to interpolate the Evangelical Christlán Creed in the U. S. Constitution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

The Impeachment of Christianity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thousand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from five to one hundred copies.

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12.—Is Homanism Real Christian-11y1 Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 13.-On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Beligion : The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular derivation of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, consistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Price 10 cents; 12 coples $1.00. Address

THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston, Mass.

OF THE

FREE

RELIGIOUS

ASSOCIATION.

Report of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meeting in 1867, at which the Free Beligious Association was Organ-Ized.

(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not possess this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meeting, 1869. 50 cents.

Proceedings of Third Annual Meeting, 1870. 50 cents.

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meeting, 1872. 35 cents. (Four or more, 25 cents each.)

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meeting, 1873. 35 cents. (Four or more, 25 cents each.)

Sympathy of Heligions, by T. W. Higginson. 25 cents.

Heligions of China, by Wm. H. Channing. 25 cents.

Beason and Bevelation, by William J. Potter, 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jas. Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of ten, 60 cents; of one hundred, $3.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. Orders by mail may be addressed either Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass.

VALUABLE BOOKS!

FOR SALE AT THE #### OFFICE OF THE INDEX, NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt of orders accompanied with the CASH, together with the POSTAGE set opposite the price. Where no postage is mentioned, none will be charged.

BAIN (ALEXANDER). Montal Science:

Price. stage

- The Senses and the Intellect. Third edition. I vol., 8vo., 686 pages, cloth.... 5.00 BASTIAN (H. CHARLTON). The Begin ASTLAN (R. CHARLTON). The Begin-alngs of Life; being some account of the Nature, Modes of Origin, and Transfor-mation of Lower Organisms. By E. Charlton Bestian, M.D., Y. B. S. With neward of 109 Illustrations. 2 vols.,
- 5.00 48 12mo, cloth ....
- . 2.00 24
- in Relation to Sex. With many Illustra-tions, 2 vols., 12mo, cloth ......
- 2.00 24
- Emotional Expression of Man and the Lower Animals. Cloth..... 1.50 36
- The Variation of Animals and The variation of a dilutes and Plants under Douestication. Author-ized edition, with a Proface, by Prof. Ass Gray. 2 vols. Hustrated, cloth. HUXLEY's Man's Place in Nature. 1 vol., 12mo., cloth. 8.00 60
- 1.25 18
- On the Origin of Species. 1 vol., .. 1.00 16
- lîmo, eloth More Criticiams on Darwin, and Ad-ministrative Nihilism. 1 vol., lîmo, timp cloth .....

- fierible cloth..... LEWES' Physiology of Common Life. 3
- vols., 12mo, cloth . LUBBOCK (SIR JOHN). Origin of Civil-ization, and the Primitive Condition of Man. By Sir John Lubbock, Bart., M.P. I vol., 12mo, cloth. cloth vola 19 3.00
- Pre-historic Times, as Illustrated by Ancient Renains, and the Manners and Customs of Modern Savages, illustrated. I vol., 8vo, 640 pages, cloth.....
- ..... 5.0 VELL'S Principles of Geology; or, the Modern Changes of the Earth and its Inhabitmate, considered as illustrative of Geology. Illustrated with Maps, Plates, and Woodcuts. A new and entroly re-vised edition. 2 vols., roysi Svo, cloth... 5.00 72
- ----- Elements of Geology; or, the An-clent Changes of the Earth and its Inhabitanis, as illustrated by Geological Monuments. Sixth edition, greatly en-larged. Illustrated with 770 Woodcuts. I vol., svo, cloth.....
- MIVART (ST. GEO). On the Genesis of 1.76 94
- form the second enlarged and revised form the second enlarged and revised German edition, by Jane and Caroline Lassell. Edited, with Notes, by William Ruggins, LLD. With numerous Wood-ents, Colored Plates, and Portraits; also, Asgettom's and Kirchhoff's Maps. 1 vol., 570. 600 meas, cloth
- Svo., 455 pages, cloth...... SCIENCE PRIMERS: Introductory. By Prot. Huxley, F.R.S.

Bexible cloth.
 Physics. By Baifour Stewart. With illustrations. IBmo., flexible cloth....
 Physical Geography. By Archibald Gelkie, LL.D., F.B.S., flexible cloth....

(Others in prepa BLACK'S Atlas of the World. A General Atlas of the World: comprehending Seventy Maps, from the latest and most

Seventy Maps, from the intest sta-authentic sources, engraved on S and Colored. American Edition. A and greatly improved edition, with and Colored. American Edition. A new and greatly improved edition, with the recent Boundaries and Discovaries, Geo-graphical Descriptions, a coptous Index, plate of the Fiags of all Nations, and twenty American Maps, Follo, Half morocco, cloth sides, gilt edges. Edin-burgh, 181 burgh, 1873 ..... 22.50 63

"One of the most complete of modern publica-tions in this department."-London Times. "For minute accuracy and finish, the maps can

- curcely be surpassed by any on an -Nustrated London News. MILL (JOHN STUART).
- Dissertations and Discussions. 4 vola., 12mo., 425, 415, 190, and 408 pp., cloth, 2.25 2
- 12mo., 425, 415, 390, and 408 pp., cloth, per vol. The Examination of the Philosophy of Sir William Hamilton. 3 vols., 12mo., 330 and 360 pp., cloth, per vol... The Fosilive Philosophy of Auguste Comte. 1 vol., 12mo., 182 pp., cloth... Political Economy. Principles of Polit-ical Economy. New and revised edi-tion. Complete in 1 vol. Crown 8vo. Tinted paper. Uniform with Will's Au-
- .... 1.25 16
- Tinted paper. Uniform with Mill's Dis-seriations and Discussions.....

. 2.50 24 BUCKLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of Civilization in England and France, Spain and Scotland. By Henry Thomas Buckle. New edition of the entire work

6.00 72

- the Metaphysical and Logical Courses; with Notes from Original Materials, and with Notes from Original Materials, and an Appendix, containing the author's latest development of bis New Logical Theory, Edited by Rev. Henry Longue-ville Mansel, B.D., Professor of Moral and Metaphysical Philosophy, in Magda-len College, Oxford, and John Veitch, M.A., of Edinburgh. In two royal octa-vo vols., viz .--
- cloth.
- HUMBOLDT (ALEXANDER VON). Life of. Compiled in Commemoration of the Centenary of his Birth. By Herr Julius
- Critical and Historical Essays. 4

-50

- By Walter The English Constitution.
- This edition contains a new and interesting in-troduction, giving the author's impressions as to the visible and probable results of the changes wronght in the Euglish Constitution by the legi-lation which has taken place duce 1867, the year in which the first edition appeared. The intro-duction, filling 57 pages, is followed by the nine chapters of the original work, treating upon the Cabinet, the Monarchy, the Honse of Lords, the Monared Communic an Changes of Ministry 19 House of Commons, on Changes of Ministry, its Supposed Checks and Balances, the Prerequisite Supposed Checks and Datafiers the Peculiar Form which they have Assumed in England, its History and the effects of that History.
- and the energy of that History. BANCROFT'S History of the United States, from the Discovery of the Amer-ican continent. By George Bancroft, With Fortraits, Maps, &c. Tenth (and last) volume in preparation. Vols. VII., VIII., and IX. are also published as Vols. L. II., and III. of the American Revolu-tion, with title pages and binding to cor-
- tion, with title pages and binding to cor-respond. Vols. I. to LX. 8vo ...... 92.50 mg and as a standard authority.
- "Among the Historian who have attained a high and deserved reputation in the United States within the last few years, we are inclined to yield the first place to George Bancrott. His arperi-ence in politicsi and diplomatic life, no less than his rare and generous culture, and his singular union of the highest mental faculties, offable us to predict with confidence that his work will be reckoned among the genuing masterplaces of his-torical genus."- Westminster Review.

- CHAMBERS'S Encyclopedia. A Diction-ary of Universal Knowledge for the Peo-ple. Illustrated with Maps and numer-outs Wood Engravings. 10 vola., 8vo.,
- London BRITISH ESSAYIETS. With Prefaces, Historical and Biographical. By A. Chai-mers, F.S.A. Containing: The Tatler, 4 vols.; The Spectator, 8 vols.; The Guar-dian, 2 vols.; The Rambler, 2 vols.; The dian, 3 vola.; The Rambler, 3 vola.; The Adventurer, 3 vola.; The World, 3 vola.; The Connoisseur, 2 vola.; The Idlar, I vol.; The Mirror, 2 vola.; The Idlar, I vola.; The Observer, 3 vola.; The Look er-on, 3 vola.; Index, I vol. 28 vola. 16mo., postage 16 cents per vol.
- DON QUIXOTE. The History of Don Quixote de La Mancha. From the Span-lah of Corrantes. Hiustrated by Gua-tave Doré. 12mo., 427 pp., cloth........ 1.50 20
- tave Dore. 12mo. 42 pp. cloth. SCOTT'S WAVERLEY NOVELS. The Waverley Novels. By Sir Waiter Scott, Bart. Centenary Edition. Illustrated with Vignettes and Frontispicees. This attractive edition of the Waverley Novels was published in commemora-ion of the hundreth anniversary of Sir Waiter Scott's birthday. It claims to be then up commists adding a continue the the the only complete edition, containing the the only complete adition, containing the author's manuscript notes and correc-tions: the works have been carefully compared with Scott's inter-leaved copy, and from this source annotations of considerable interast have been ob-tained, which have not before been pub-liabled. Some minor notes of an explan-atory kind have been introduced, while a inecial Biogram has been added to such story kind have been introduced, while a special Glossary has been added to such of the Novels as require it, and each vol-ume contains a separate index. It is printed in very clear and legible type (especially cast for the purpose) upon white wove paper, of superior quality; is well bound in marcon cloth, extra, and handy in size. 25 vols. Crown Bro...., 31.25
- GEORGE ELIOT'S Novels. The Novels of George Eliot, With Illustrations. London. 6 vols. crown 8vo., bail calf .... 20.00
- EDGEWORTH'S Tales and Novels. Moral Tales and Novels. By Maria Edgeworth
- Tales and Novels. By marin Engeworth. In Ten Volumes. With Thirty-Eight Engravings on Steel. New English Edi-tion. 10 vols. Foolscap. 8vo. London,
- HOB. 10 YOR. FOOMCSP, evo. London, 15.00 ex #ARRAR'S. Ortical History of Free Thought, in reference to the Christian Religion. Eight Lectures, preached be-fore the University of Oxford, in the Tear 1863, on the Foundation of the late Rev. John Brampton, M. A., Canon of Salisbury. I thick yol., iEmo., cloth. 2.00 24 LEWIN (REV. RAPHAEL, D'C). What is Judaism? or, a Few Words to the Jews. 1 vol., 16mo., cloth.....
- 1:00 10 MERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of the Roman Empire. The Boyle Lec-tures for the Year 1964, delivered at the Chapel Royal, Whitehall. Author of "A History of the Romans under the Em-pire." Large 12mo., cloth.....
- ..... 1.50 24 - Conversion of the Northern Nations. 1.50 24 Studies New and Old, of Ethical and Social Subjocts. Crown Svo., 446 pp...... 3.00 20
- MARTINEAU (JAMES). Essays, Philosophical and Theological. .... 2.50 8
- Esnays, Philosophical and Theological. 2 vols. 424 and 430 pp. Per vol..... Endesvore after Christian Life. 12mo., cloth. (In press.). The New Addition of Faith: A Fles.for Free Christian Union. 18mo., paper...
- MAURICE (REV. F. D). The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind. 16mo.... 75 08 JOSEPHUS. The whole Works of Flavi-
- us Josephus, the Jewish Elsterian. Translated by Whiston. Deny 8vo. Steel Portrait and Vignette. Cloth, extra ..... 2.50 40
- Steol Portrais and reasons glit top. EVANS (E. P., Ph.D). First Historical Transformations of Christianity. From the French of Athanase Course the Younger. Fvol. 1.50 16
- German of Adolf Stahr. S vols. Crown 8vo. 183 and 442 pp.....
- 5.00 50 MANN (HORACE). The Life of Horace Mann. By his Wife
- - twenty illustrations. $1.50. Address

Thoughts Selected from the Writings of Horace Mann. 16mo., 240 pp., cloth .... 1.25 14

11

- GROTE'S LIFE. The Personal Life of George Grote. Compiled from Family Documents, Privato Momoranda, and Original Letters to and from various Friends. By Mrs. Grote, Second Edi-tion, With Portrait, Syo., cloth. Lon-don. 1873. tion, With Portrait. Svo., cound ..... 5.00 26
- BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americanlams. A Glossary of Words and Purases usually regarded as poculiar to the Uni-ted States. By John Russell Bartlett, Third Edition, greatly improved and en-Third Edition, greatly improved and en-larged. The author, since the publica-tion of the first edition, which appeared ten years ago, has added very many new words and phrases, and made estensive additions to the examples selected from well-known writers, new stymologics, and histories of the origin of words. Svo., cloth ..... 2.50 PF
- BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotation ing an Attempt to trace to their Source Passages and Phrases in Common Use. By John Bartist, Fifth Edition, rs-vised and greatly enlarged. 12mo., cloth 2.00 30
- "I regard it as one of the most valuable books of reference in our language."-S. Austin Alli-DALL (MRS. CAROLINE H).

- HAMILTON (GAIL).
- Child World. Part First. Illustrated by
- 20, 1872.
- "Nothing better has been offered in English to children, in years. Gall Hamilton can put more withy wisdom into an epigram than haif a dozen other women writers spare to a three-volume nov-el."-A. Y. Tribune.
- CHENEY (MRS. E. D).

ous. Now fir

Popular Scien

- Social Games. A new Series of Games for Parties, uniform with Patience. 124 Paule . 1.00 as
- pp...... Sally Williams, the Mountain Girl. 12mo. 1.50 16 Illustrated .....

- NASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Round the Cirkle. 12mo., illus-trated, 299 pp. Ekkoes from Kantucky. 12mo., illus-. 1.30 16 Irated, 324 pp RERR (ORPHEUS C). Versatilitics. Po-ems, Patriotic, Sentimental, and Humpr-ous. Now first collected. 16mo., 366 pp.,

GAS Consumer's Guide (The). A Popular Hand-book of Instruction on the Proper Management and Economical Use of Gas. With a Full Description of Gas-metres.

I Tremont Place, Boston.

THE INDEX. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

SPECTRUM ANALYSIS

EXPLAINED.

An explanation of this wonderful discov-

An explanation of tails wonderful discov-ery, and its uses to science, including the re-ceived Theory of Sound, Heat, Light, and Oolor; with chapters on the Sun, Stars, Nebulæ, Comets, and Meteoric Showers. Abridged from the works of Schellen, Ros-ce Hurding Lockney Young and others.

coe, Huggins, Lockyer, Young, and others, by the editor of Half-Hour Reorgations in 12mo., cloth, with two colored plates and

Digitarea

1.50 18

2.00 18

.75

		BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.	FREE DISCUSSION
"BEST IS THE CHEAPEST." CORTICELLI		Our organisation some time since decided to di- rect its efforts for the present towards securing	is hold at HOSPITALLER HALL, 563 Washing- ton Street, Boston, every Sunday, at 104 A.M., 254 and 74 P.M. All that relates to the Religious, Political, and Social interests of mankind consti- ute the subjects for discussion. TRB IRNEY
SPOOL SILK.		Repeal of the Laws	Hospitaler Hall. REE RELIGIOUS line, Longth, and Quality warranted.	READTHE	whereby church and other corporate property is	FREE RELIGIOUS
Sold by leading Jobbers and Retailers. NONOTUCK SILK CO.,		unjustly exempted from its share of the burden of taxation.	ASSOCIATION.
SOLE MANUFACTURERS.	BOSTON DAILY GLOBE.	As a means to this end, we have published for general circulation several thousand copies of a	Sunday Afternoon Lectures
BOSTON OFFICE-No. 2 Bedford Street.		TBACT
DR. BARTOL'S NEW BOOK. The Bleing Faith. BY REV. C. A.		on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 27.	ATTHE
BARTOL, D. D. CONTENTS: The Seeker, The Seer, The Secret, Power, Sincerity, Sex, Teaching, Forms, Values,	The Best	The edition was made as large as our funds would allow; but, so great has been the demand, it is already searly exhausted. Our next edition ought to be large enough to	LOWER HORTICULTURAL HALL
alidity, Personality, Prayer, Unity, Survi- al, Signs, Ideas. One volume, uniform with Bartol's Radical	Newspaper	place a copy in the hands of	Jan. 4O. B. FROTHINGHAM. "The Soul of Protestantism."
Problems. Price $2.00. Hadical Problems. Third Edition. Price $2.00.	13	EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE, and generously to supply the calls for them in	Jan. 11SANUEL LONGFELLOW. "The Unconscious Side of our Life."
"What a wonderful book is the 'Radical roblem,' says the Liberal (kristian ; "Spiri- ality, parity, gentleness, love, child-like implicity, biess and sanctify him," says the	Boston or New England,	other States. To do this, we need funds; for, sithough we have made arrangements for printing the Tract	Jan. 18T. W. HIGGINSON. "Philanthropy,-the Word, its Traditions and its Meaning."
ampinity, bits and show any law of those new who have religious genius as well as re- igious faith," says the Globe. Sold by all booksellers. Mailed, post-paid,		at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston League, with its various other expenses, to bear the ontire expense alone. Will not, then,	Jan. 25.—RABBI MAX LILIENTHAL. "Liberty and Popular Education."
ROBERTS BROTHERS,	INDEPENDENT,	All Friends of the Movement	Feb. 1.—PROF. C. C. EVERETT. "Mysticism."
BOSTON. THE REFORMATOR.	UNSECTARIAN, AND	come forward and help us with liberal donations? We frequently receive communications from	Feb. 8MES. A. H. LEONOWENS. "Buddhism in Siam."
A WEEKLY JOURNAL, for the dissemination of useful knowledge, and the enlighterment of the people	PROGRESSIVE.	parties wishing tracts to distribute, asking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we	Peb. 15.—F. E. ABBOT. "Darwin's Theory of Conscience. Feb. 22.—JOHN WEISS.
on political, religious, and so- cial subjects, with a view to reform.		shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will	"Beauty and Truth. March 1SAMUEL JORNSON.
Published in the German language ev- ery Saturday, at Adrian, Mich.	TRY IT ONE MONTH.	be gratefully received for the purpose of circu- lating them gratuitously throughout the country. To many of the subscribers of THE INDEX,	"The Transcendental Element in Though and Progress." March 8W. J. POTTER.
Principal office at Adrian, Mich., to which Il letters and communications must be ad- ressed.	TERMS: By Mail	and others whose names have been furnished us as probable friends of the movement, copies of the Tract, together with Petitions asking the re-	"Religion and the Science of Religion. Lectures at 3 P.M. Admission free.
C. LOHMANN & SON, Pub's. C. LOHMANN, EDITOR.	$5 for Six Months. $1 for One Month.	With the Hope	L A D I E S
The REFORMATOR circulates in all the prin- ipal cities and villages in the United States and Territories, and presents an excellent	-	that such friends will try to secure as many sig-	Eureka Machine Twist, 50 and 100 Yard Spools, nedium for advortising. Terms of Subscription —$2 per annum. Ad- ertisements inserted at liberal rates. Sub- cription and advertisements must be paid in	THE WEEKLY GLOBE	natures to the petition as possible in their locality. We respectfully ask those who are unable to at- tend to the matter themselves to place the peti- tions in the hands of these who will.	AND THE Eureka Button-Hole Twist
dvance. PHE WOMAN'S JOURNAL.	Contains 56 columns of Beading Mat-	Let us	10 Yard Spools, ARE THE BEST IN USE.
A Weekly Newspaper, published every Satur- by, in Boekon and Chicago, devoted to the inter- is of Woman, to her educational, industrial, real and political Equality, and especially to her	ter, and is the Chespest Weekly	ROLL UP THE LIST! Let our antied volces do heard! And let it be	JUST PUBLISHED
JULIA WARD BOWF	Paper in the world	done NOW ! We would say, also, that we feel deeply the	THE AMERICAN
LUCY STONE HENRY B. BLACKWELL T. W. HIGGINSON MARY A. LIVERMORE, Corresponding Editor. ERMS-$2.00 a year, in advance. Single copy, 5	AT .	Debas Ossasisations	SCHOOL MUSIC READER Book I. For Primary Schools I Price
CLUB RATES-3 copies, one year, $6.50; 10 cop- s, one year, $20.00.	ONLY $3.00 A YEAR.	Other Organizations	35 cents, or $3.60 per Desen. The first of an excellent series of Grade School Music Books, by L. O. Emerson ar W. S. Tilden.
ADVERTISING RATES.		equality and justice, by preasing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are those who are inclined to	Emerson's Singing School.
96	Address	Form a Liberal League,	Price 75 cents, or $7.50 per Dose Is a complete, chenp, and useful book f Singing Schools.
25	GLOBE PUBLISHING Co.,	we are ready to render such assistance as lies in our power.	Clarke's Dollar Inst'r for Reed Organ Clarke's Dollar Instructor for Pian Clarke's Dollar Instructor for Violi Var borinous and amatema. Bull of a
VANS, los Washington Street, Boston. ST. LOUIS OFFICEMrs. Sanny Holy, 1209 Tratrong Avenue, St. Louis, Mo. BOSTON OFFICEJ Tremont Place, rear of	00 WLi-	LIBERALS!	For beginners and amateurs. Full of me ful, instructive, and at the same time bri iant music. FATHER KEMP'S
NEW YORK OFFICE Mary F. Davis, Agent.		If all will unite and work, the results sought can be accomplished.	OLD FOLKS CONCERT TUNES
0. 24 East Fourth Street. PHILAREPHA OPPICSRooms of the Penn- ivania Society, 700 Arch Street. SAN FRANCISCO OPPICEAi H. Snow's Liber- and Reform Bock Story. No. 319 Kearny Street. Cont aide, between Pine and Bush, up one Hight stairs.	BOSTON.	Address .	Price 40 cts., or $3.60 per dox in book Sung everywhere with great applause fro old and young.
All communications for the WOMAN'S JOUR- AL, and all letters relating to its editorial man- sement, must be addressed to the Editors of the		BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE,	Sold everywhere. Sent, post-paid, for returned.
enreal, must be addressed to the Editors of the for NNA JOURNAL. Lers containing remittances, and relating to a business department of the paper, must be iddressed to Box 4237, Boston.		NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Per order of the Executive Consultant.	OLIVER DITSON & CO., BOSTON. CHARLES H. DITSON & CO., TII Broadway, New York.

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Single Copies Seven Cen

VOLUME 5.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, JANUARY 8, 1874.

WHOLE NO. 211.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other ecclesiastical reporty shall no longer be exempt from just taxation.

2. We demand that the employment of chapitains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in pricons, synimas, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued. 3. We demand that all public appropriations for sec-tarian educational and charitable institutions shall cease.

tarian educational and charitable institutions shall cosse. 4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether estensi-bly as a text-book or avowelly as a book of religious wor-ablp, shall be prohibited. 5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the second that the appointment.

ship, shall be prohibited. 5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease. 6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and in all other departments of the government shall be abol-ished, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-sities of perfury shall be established in its stoad.

7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-

peased. 5. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liborty.

equal rights, and impartial liberty. 9. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or ad-rantage shall be conceeded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administered on a prety secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unfinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, It is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperiled, the advance of civili-sation impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and

religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the pra-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the pence and prosperity of the entire land; THEREFORS, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-selves together under the following

ABTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

ART. 1.-The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-and right. Anr. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members. Arr. 5.—Any person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agreement. ART. 6.—The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Excou-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall those commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be zz-officio delegates to the Natural Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together. ART. 7.—These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-ular meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to very member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

by su

Bo far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of The knows. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that it will yet be accepted universally by the American people, It will yet be accepted universally by the American people, as the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A Liberal League ought to be formed to carry out its princi-ples wherever half a dozen earnest and resolute Liberals can be got together. Being convinced that the movement to accure compliance with these just "Demands" must surely, even if slowly, spread, I hope to make THE INDEX a means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and active co-operation of every man and every woman who be-lieves in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-port promptly the names of their Freeidents and Secre-iaries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion taries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion as that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are right, let their organized voice he heard like the sound of many waters.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor Bosrow, Sept. 1, 1873.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page. RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CON-STITUTION.

ABTICLE 1.

ABTIGE 1. SECTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-tablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or abridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Gov-erament for a redress of grievances. Sector 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting an stablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances. No religious a qualification to any office or public trust, in any States and no person shall ever in any State he deprived of any of the so her rights, privileges, or capacities, or disqualified or the performance of any publics private daty, or ren-dered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or requirity, in consequence of any publics private daty, or ren-dered in consequences of any publics per state has may hold on the subject of religion. — Sectors 3.—Congress shall have power to enforce the pro-missions of the second section of this Article by appropri-te legislation.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

8Y A. W. S.

WHICH IS NETTER, to be committed to "pure Christianity" (as the Register says the Unitarian denomina-tion is) or to "pure religion"? St. James speaks well of the last, but he says nothing about the first.

"ATHEISM is a bloody and ferocious system," says Rev. Robert Hall. The atheiat, if he chose, might fairly retort on Christianity with the same charge, so far as it is an instituted and historical system of religion.

THOSE OF THE INDEX subscribers who, in renewing their own subscriptions, are also sending new ones, are manifesting their interest in THE INDEX, and the cause it serves, in a most encouraging and efficient way.

"Do NOT FORGET, I entreat you," said Mr. Summer in his speech at the New England dinner, "that with the highest morality is the highest liberty." True; but we must have liberty before we can have morality.

CONGRESSMAN DAWES states that the pay of the President, including salary and perquisites, amounts to four hundred thousand dollars for a presidential term. This, certainly, is a pecuniary prize worth scrambling for by men who are ambitious in that way.

REV. DE. SEARS is distressed because the German theologian, Dr. Tholuck, "believes that all men and fallen apirits will finally be saved." If Dr. Sears objects to all men being saved, perhaps he might get himself exempted if he would petition in the right quarter.

AN INDEX subscriber, writing from Jacksonville, Illinois, says: "We have a Plato Club here, and John Stuart Mill has some of his most enthusiastic admirers in our Success to the Plato Club, and, as Rip Van town." Winkle would say, "may it live long and prosper"

THE Christian Statesman, of Dec. 27, contains an esay on "The Rights of God,"-which is a plea for the God-in-the-Constitution amendment. That is a poor God who cannot take care of his own "rights," but needs that man should be constantly legislating to secure them.

JAMES FREEMAN CLARKE, minister of the Church of the Disciples in this city, never showed his liberality more markedly than when he invited Charles Bradlaugh, the atheist, to visit and address his Sunday-school. Mr. Bradlaugh did it, too, and says he "thoroughly enjoyed" it.

CALIFORNIA, which at one time was considered the most lawless and uncivilized State in the Union, seems now to promise to lead the van in that popular reform whose destiny to sweep through our national politics, from one end of the country to the other, grows plainer every day.

MR. PRILBRICK, superintendent of the Boston public schools, who has lately made a tour of observation abroad, says that, as regards school buildings, libraries, apparatus, and so forth, America is considerably behind her European competitors. In this particular, he says, Sweden takes the lead, and Austria and Germany follow. WE HAD supposed that the Danbury News was only funny, but Charles Bradlaugh says it is also vicious. He complains that the Boston correspondent of that paper has maligned and abused him. He says: "If ever a prize be offered for lying, it will be useless for any othe to are try while the Danbury News' correspondent is a competitor." "Tzt. US something scarey," said a bright boy in a Sunday-school class, to bis teacher. We don't know of """ that the teacher might have anything more "scarey" that the teacher might have gratified this boy with, than the Calvinistic Christian's idea of God and the Devil. The story of these two fabulous beings has frightened the wits out of many s grownup man and woman, and we should think it might be sufficiently "stunning" to a vigorous boy.

A GOOD SUGGESTION is made in the New York Tribune, by an undergraduate of Princeton, that there should be a series of inter-collegiate contests in scholarship, essay writing, and oratory,-as there already is in boating and ball-playing. Excellent! Let the bookmen to the platform, as the boatmen to the water, and the balimen to the field! Let us have a generous rivalry, among college boys, of brains as well as of muscle, a prize competition of wits as well as of bat and oar!

IN THE Unitarian Church in Sherburne, Mass., the officiating clergyman, on a recent Communion Sunday, somewhat startled the congregation by declining to pass the wine. He was willing to commemorate the worthy by eating bread, but on conscientious grounds he was not willing to drink, or ask others to drink, intoxicating liquors, even "for Christ's sake." We understand that, by so doing, he fatally damaged his chances for a "call" to that Parish! The Unitarians have a great reverence for "pure Christianity," but some of them would seem to have little for pure conscientionaness

Miss JENNIE COLLINS, superintendent of the establish-ment known as "Boffin's Bower," in this city, would appear to be doing a thoroughly wise and excellent work for girls and young women, especially those belonging to the unemployed class. She has been able to furnish temporary employment and permanent situations to thousands who needed but were not able otherwise to obtain one or the other. Long life and success to "Boffin's Bower," and to Miss Collins! They are evidently doing a greater service in securing woman's right to labor, and to have a "career," than any more theoretical enterprise looking to the same end.

IN HIS BOOK on the English Gipsies and their Language, Mr. Leland says: "Be it for good or for evil, the real gipsy has, unlike all other men, unlike the lowest savage, positively no religion, no tie to a spiritual world, no fear of a future; nothing but a few trifling supersti-tions and legends which, in themselves, indicate no faith whatever in anything deeply sacred." We confeas we do whatever in anything deeply sacred." We confeas we do not yield an undoubling assent to this statement, posi-tive as it is. The few "trifling superstitions and leg-ends" of the glpsy may have a far deeper meaning than Mr. Leland is able to discover; and, if so, they may con-stitute the glpsy's "religion." At my rate, we do not be-lieve the glpsy even is wholly without his dreams, his visions, of something higher trues and outles these that visions, of something higher, truer, and nobler than what he realizes; and if he has these dreams and visions, then these are his "religion."

THE BOSTON Journal, of Dec. 27, discusses the question of "The Increase of Crime." It concludes that crime is increasing faster than the population, and says that Boston is getting a bad name in the criminal record of cities. The Journal suggests no remedy for all this, but calls upon the new city government to consider the matter and provide some means for meeting the exigency. The whole subject of the organization of society, and the nature, construction, and function of government, needs thorough and able discussion, and the best minds of our day ought to be employed in it. The question of more or less government, and whether the State should be protective or prescriptive, or both, is an exceedingly impor-Shall human nature be trusted or feared; tant one. shall we put our faith in liberty and education, or in restraint and compulsion ?- these are interrogations that meet the thoughtful mind at every step, and which we cannot but consider with more and more seriousne Let the free parliament of the noblest intellects and pureat hearts be summoned, and sit in constant session to deliberate upon the true civilization of man!

LIST OF LIBEBAL LEAGUES.

14

ST. LOUTS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries. Bosros, Mass.-J. S. Rogers, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries. JRFFERSON, Onito.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Secretary. JEVE Secretary. SAN JOSE, CAL .- A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, retary. Do, Iowa.-J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre TOL VINELAND, N. J .- John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Secretary. JUNCTIONVILLE, NER.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Secretary. OLATHE, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Bertetary, M.CH., W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, Secretary, MICH., -W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, Secretary, MICH., -A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. Knowles, Secretary, OBOEDLA, MO.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, SCEDLA, no.-Sceretary, ATH, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary, ATH, ME.-F. G. Barker, President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. EELIN, WIS.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman.

[For THE INDEX.]

"Radical" Piety.

BY WILLIAM C. GANNETT.

"I am not pious," I heard that a friend had said; and it made me wonder, What, then, is plety? "I do not like prayers and bymns in public church," said a second friend, and the same question thus came up from another side.

PIETY-THE COMMON FEELINGS EXPANDED AND EX-ALTED.

ALTED. What, then, is plety? It is simply religious feel-ing. And what are religious feelings? The common feelings, — fear, reverence, gratitude, trust, aspira-tion, peace, joy, love; but these feelings not closing now about a child, or a husband, or a wife, or saints, or the grand human nature, nor about the moun-tains, or the ocean, or the sky, or flowers, and the grand face of outward Nature, —but closing about the thought of Him who is the One in all these things. Perhaps Love beat sums them all up, and God best names that One. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God," said old Jewish books, and Jesus called that the first and great commandment. And my friend

<text><text><text><text>

FULL HUMAN STATURE MUST HAVE IT,

FULL HUMAN STATURE MUST HAVE IT. Still my two friends might say, perhaps, that al-foods it may thus exist in germ, and at moments frome to consciousness in them, yet—they cannot help the but—they have very little feeling towards things had ask them if they can see the Country which they had ask them if they can see the Country which they form all doers of it, does not sometimes make them thrill, they would own they can look at things, for the seesion that for the grandest, highest things, for Him who is the One Life and Love in all things, their feeling is but very faint. Perhaps half-sadly, perhaps half-mockingly, they would insist on it. And many would agree with them. "Piety" has a bad name, half-mockingly, they consort of sentimentality, it is as to all the ridiculous excesses and absurdities. Yeament, Rational religion is cool, well-regulated, self-controlled. Better ideas diminish feeling. We do not like the thing, we do not like the name. So say many with a no-shake of the head. I doubt all this. Expression of it varies, as expres-sion of all feeling varies with culture. Loudness diminishes. It goes from outward rites of worship to moral loyalty in living. But is this diminution or increase of the feeling? Better ideas lessen feeling! Can that be? Can ideas grow grander on our vision and the feeling of grandeur fade in our hearts? Can feeling fade at all as one gains fuller stature of man-hood or womanhood? Why, it is one of the three great forces of human nature. It seems to make con-nection between mind and will, between thought and action, everywhere in life. We do nothing im-portant without it. There is an inward correlation, as it were,—a transformation always going on, by which idea or belief turns to feeling, feeling turns to will. Emotion might be called reason-in-motion. It is the form in which the driving force everywhere applies itself, the heat in the form of the steam, as it were. And these three elements together enter into what we call reliation because they enter into all kinds applies itself, the heat in the form of the steam, as it were. And these three elements together enter into what we call religion because they enter into all kinds of living. Religion is simply the highest kind. How then can one escape religious feeling and be a whole human being? How can ideas be grand and action be earnest, with no deep, strong feeling lying between ? No, again No,—the larger we grow, the more you and I must have of what is meant by piety. We cannot lose it from our being if we would.

ITS TWO EXPRESSIONS ! I. DUTY.

Drop the metaphysics and think what splendors Drop the metaphysics and think what splendors of duty this piety, at which we shake our heads, has wrought upon the earth in coming to expression. It is the enthusiastic love or gratitude or trust which springs from some belief about God that sends men to do their best work, and bear their hardest cross, and pray their prayers of desperation out into victo-ries of action. Instead of some little belief, "piety" applies the driving power of the greatest belief possible to a man's will, and lot the feeble man is a giant, and the applies twoman an indomitable resister. and the The of a cloin. Instead of some fittle belief, piets applies the driving power of the greatest belief possible to a mar's will, and loi the feeble man is a giant, and he quelt woman an indomitable resister, and the little handful of a people goes forth to conquer na-tions. Religious enthusiasms the forces that move masses. "It is the will of God," was the cry history, and religious enthusiasms the forces that move masses. "It is the will of God," was the cry hurried Europe to the first Crusade. "Trust in God and keep your powder dry," was Cromwell's battle-order, and the trust accounts for more than the pow-der. We are no Calvinists, but it was by Calvinistic inspirations that men founded the Dutch Republic, the English Commonwealth, and Puritan New Eng-and. Great woes also have been wrought at the bid-ding of religion. It is trite blame to curse it--to and trite praise thus to credit it with having prompt-da and carried through most of the hard things that have been done by people or by persons. Of course is treate the standard of morality, it simply puts the common conscience of a man or an age into most en-religion shows men thus at their best, and of course also it shows them at their worst; for not at all does it create the standard of morality, it simply puts the common conscience of a man or an age into most en-religious than in any other cause. And men who are religious than in any other cause. And men who are religious than in any other cause. And men who are religious than in any other cause. And men who are religious than in any out of the spare ourselves this force the stirk the men and women to so much out by when some mighty religious belief floods their mo-ty ohn Brown. And can you and is pare ourselves this force the stirk the men and women to so much out of the religion to the more than women to so much out of the religion the more than to some under the some ment the put of the spare ourselves this force the stirk the ment and women to so much out of the religion the ment the spare ou

IL WORSHIP.

II. WORSHIP. Think again what marrels picty has wrought when preasing forth in its other and simpler way of mere worship. It has studded the earth with temples, and made the sun to rise everywhere to the sound of a rolling tide of prayer. It has set apart priests, and dressed altars, and led up sacrifices; it has bent the knees of the race from its young savage day till now, and opened its lips in songs. It has written psalms, and collected the dropped prayers and prophecies and poems together in the Bibles of the nations. It has invented the names Jehovah, Father, Shepherd, King, for God, and called Him Our Rock, Our and collected the dropped prayers and prophecies and poems together in the Bibles of the nations. It has invented the names Jehovah, Father, Shepherd, King, for God, and called Him Our Rock, Our Tower, Our Shield, Our Sun, Our Very Present Help. Worship probably gave birth to all forms of human art, our sculpture, our nusic, our architect-ure, our painting, our poems. The tendency of expression is ever from the out-ward to the inward, as was hinted; from the special to the perading; from the robe and gesture to the thought of the heart and the fineness of one's duty; and only through long ancestries of fantastic attitude and therefore with that second friend I spoke of—he who disliked hymns and prayers in public church,— the dislike may be a sign of the depth and strength of his religious feeling. The village infidel, the fam-ily sceptic, is sometimes the our most interested in prayers, and one wonders at the hymn-books which survive in some churches. And Jesus' own word war,—"Go to thy closet for thy prayer." But, on the other hand, if one lives habitually in Jesus' state of thought and feeling, I should think prayer, or at least words about the Father very like to spoken prayers, would be natural and seem natural at many times and places,—as they were with him; and that the presence of others or the regularity of the time indicken it. The children never think their father's iova is formal because he gives them a regular even-ing frolic, or because he sometimes kiess them in the street. That home is cold where something of this kind is not so common as to seem regular, more natural than anything else, not making or seeking, but taking all occasions without thought.

DARE TO EXPRESS IT.

DARE TO EXPRESS IT. There is a danger certainly in both directions,—a danger of parading feeling, but a danger, also, which radicals are apt to overlook, of repressing it. It may be more of an artificial ceremony to be silent than to speak. "The coming man" may not go to church. If you are the coming man, you can decide. Perhaps he will do things which we cannot do so casily, make music, write poems, in common conversation speak the prayer-mood from mind to mind; somehow surely he will find means to utter in forms of grace and beau-ty the deepening feelings of adoration, these feelings which more him most and ache for beautiful expres-sion. I do not doubt the coming men and women will be silent on many subjects where we are wont to chat. I do doubt if "God" be one of them. Meanwhile it is foily and unnoble to be indignant at old excesses of worship or at any scen around us now. These also come from human nature working in sincerity.

These also come from human nature working in sincerity. Better, by all means, better give up for ourselves the word or custom which seems untrue, which palls, which long fails to utter what is simply at our heart. But if we are conscious of religious feeling, let us not, in our revulsion from any of its poor expressions, dis-own it or try to quench it! If ever we remember sin-gle moments even, by death-beds perhaps, under night skies, before the miracles of spring, listening to music, and specially in the upiltings which great words and heroic deeds sometimes give, moments in the unutter-able shames of sin or the unutterable sweetness of love, when the feelings rose, descended—you know not which—dill you seemed to be conscious of unions with All-Mightiness and All-Goodness,—then, for the sake of those moments and what they have meant in our lives, let us not disown that which is called by the name plety!

and of these let us not discorn that which is called by the name piety! It has the bad name, I grant. We pronounce it piety! and wince under it, and hardly want to claim it, and rather dread to have its reputation put upon us. But for two reasons it bears so bad a name: be-cause it is so deep in human nature that of course it takes gross forms, for the savage has it and the ruf-fan to some extent; and because it is so good to have that men turn hypocrites to wear its likeness. We don't pretend to be things bad, but something good. Hypocrisy is the devil's homage to virtue. The no-blest thing will be most often travestied. George Washington and the Virgin Mary have had a great many more bables named after them than you or I will have. And therefore piety—because it is a blos-som-name for all growing men and women, because it is a word of coronation, because (not by Jewish law's authority or Jesus' affidavit but) by the very constitution of our nature, it is the first and last and great commandment to love God in order that we may grow into his likeness,—therefore than so often bean constitution of our nature, it is the first and last and grow into his likeness,—therefore it has so often been put on falsely and has used so many formal, outward ways to express and emphasize itself. It means, re-member, reverence and trust and love directed to the Highest. It means the clearest, strongest of enthusiasms. "Enthusiasm"—who does not want that? It is simply the word piety spelt long and sounding nobly. If the common etymology be true, it carries grandeur in its very syllables; it is said to come from two Greek words, within and God, and to mean the sense of being within God or having God in us. It is almost too large a claim to make, to claim that one feels "enthusiasm". "but one can, and if he can, he ought to make it. Not in the spirit of pride, but of confession, of allegtance, of an honesty so true that is almost too large a claim to make, to claim most to own. One cannot say a more humbling food,"—not a word that binds him so to hard pure-ness and exposes him to such danger of hard judg-mess and exposes him to such danger of hard judg-mess and exposes him to such danger of hard judg-due, and which you know you feel, not to own it would be the covardliness. So, although the words and town, and the planet, and somehow lays hold of clare that he has feeling that goes outside of home, universal and Eternal. And this is "enthus-tout it? Who can be when he is full-grown? THE ONE BELIEF THAT UNDERLIES ALL PIETY.

THE ONE BELIEF THAT UNDERLIES ALL PIETY.

Let me ask another question, now, one that will take us into the secret places of this most high en-thusiasm. Behind feeling of all kinds lies some idea, some belief, I said a while ago. What is the Great Belief that lies behind all religious feeling and seems to generate it? to generate it?

to generate it? Is it not always, in some form, a belief that there is direct connection between the Almightiness and the little me, that the strength of God joins on to our strength? When does man fear God? When he be-lieves that the close Neighbor threatens him. When does one yearn to "see" Him? When we hope for the peace and lifting of His sympathy. When do we love God? When we realize that God is actually loving us. "Yes, for n e, for me, He careth," is the cry that sends us into bravery and purity and all obe-dience. It is as if there were an actual laying hands in the hands of God! When that conviction takes possession of a man, no wonder he can do almost any-thing. We call him inspired—possessed—and fear him and love him and follow him and do his bidding. THE MANY FORMS OF THIS BELIEF.

THE MANY FORMS OF THIS BELIEF.

In some form, I say, it is this belief that generates the feeling. It seems to be always one belief in es-sence, but it takes many differing forms. Make sure

In the old Jewish faith it took a national shape. Out of all the tribes of earth Israel was Jehovah's elect people, preserved by his outstretched arm

nonized by Google

<text><text><text><text><text><text>

ton' can inspire enthusiasm and every one can claim a piety. Even what is called Radicalism! Then it must have the same great belief, its way of conceiving that fact of communication between God and men. It is doubted, you know, whether Radicalism is or can be plous. It seems to many a purely intellectual system and false at that. It feels cold, freezing to many. It certably does cast off many of the wrap-pings that afford warmth elsewhere. It interprets the universe somewhat newly. The very words God and Providence and Man mean something rather dif-ferent to it from what is meant by them in the usual faiths of Christendom. And most of those who hold these other faiths cannot conceive how one can be faiths of Christendom. And most of those who hold these other faiths cannot conceive how one can be warmed, inspired, uplifted, thrilled by our strange riews. This arises from a third common mistake about piety. One mistake is the thought that piety is a new kind of feeling; another, I think, is that revul-sion from all prayer and praiseful utterance of feel-ing. This is the third error, the idea that only one set of religious belie's can generate it, can generate deep warm religious feeling; and it is held by very many of the Orthodox and apparently by some Uni-tarians. They do not read. They do not know, They have not travelled. They do not see. These enthusiasms are common to all religions; no one, no two, no twenty, can claim to have peculiar possession. They are stronger in some than in others perhaps,— but of even this it is hard for an outsider to judge.

They are stronger in some than in others pertura possession. They are stronger in some than in others perhaps,— but of even this it is hard for an outsider to judge. What is first to one is water ice-cold to another. It is greatly a question of culture. The belief that is greatly a question of culture. The belief that is greatly again a question of culture. The belief that is greatly again a question of culture. The belief that is greatly again a question of culture. The belief that is greatly again a question of culture. The belief that is greatly again a question of culture. The belief that is greatly again a question of culture. The belief that is greatly again a question of culture. The belief that is greatly again a question of culture. The belief that not young's Night Thoughts and Thomson's Sea-onikes Browning best. One can only enjoy the sim-pler strains, and another thrills at the closing of com-pler harmonies. Just so with the great beliefs cher-shed by separate sects and religions. Each has some interpretation of the universe which asserts that which to Spinoza, the "God-intoxicated" "atheist." "atheist certor, bill superstition,—to you mine may be utter error, bill superstition,—to you mine may be utter error, bill superstition,—to you mine may be utter error, bill superstition,—to you mine may be off at that which is Life and Love, that which brings the sense of God to another man. But let us are bave the vision too. And let us not even be in-dignant at the denial. The Coming Faith is always of if at the sourd, when the old religious be-liefs are falling to pleces and giving way to new ones, it is perfectly true that plety, religious feeling, does waver and wane for a time; and perfectly natural that men and women should tremblingly cling to the generate and sustain strong feeling of any kind. But when the change in the ideas is accomplished, and then we ones etand clearly up, a positive system of be-liefs, another interpretation of the universe, which the manswered and watch as it brings ab ing and earnest loving in the corners of the world,— why then, men will see, as they have seen a hundred times before, that the danger was imaginary and that Radicalism adds one more to the list of faths that can claim an enthusiastic piety; and many will find them-selves rejoicing in the better view which, because truer to the grandness of facts, gives, and must give, more than the old warmth and inspiration to the heart.

ITS FORM IN BADICALISM: OUB TWO CRARACTER-ISTIC BELIEFS.

It's FORM IN RADICALISM: OUR TWO CHARACTER-ISTIC BELLEFS.
Every day has its Radicalism to which all this applies. We who bear the name at this day have not lost that sense of personal connection with the Infinite Goodness. Nay, we think that for ourselves, at least, it has deepened by to-day's change in thought. I should sum up the characteristic belief of Radicalism in two short sentences, which for us in turn carry the meaning of the universe in them:—

(1.) A belief in the ONE IN ALL AND ALL IN ONS,—that is in the actual immanence of God.
(2.) A belief in the EACH IN ALL AND ALL IN ONS,—that is, in the actual kinship of all things in the universe to each other.
"One in All and All in one." Literally, that the presence we call God is not represented, not imparted, but is in each and every thing, so that the great whole is a unity and nothing is or happens but has the Power, the Wisdom, and the Goodness in it. Nothing without the Power I so that there is nothing slight, no triffe anywhere. The Almighty hands are there. The commonplace! He who is shining in the planets will green our hillsides and blossom in the planets will green our hillsides and blossom in the planet suit. all things rises in us.

all things rises in us. Nothing without the Wisdom! All is order every-where. Kosmos, not chaos. The Omnipresent Force always acting by laws,—nothing eluding, nothing dropped. The Almighty Mind is on it! Chance,—a word that has no meaning. Accident,—impossible. And so a great trust rises up that all things are true and steadiast, that the universe is pledged to an abso-lute good faith.

aropea. The Almighty Mind is on it! Chance,—as word that has no meaning. Accident,—impossible. And so a great trust rises up that all things are true and stoaffast, that the universe is pledged to an abso-late good faith. Nothing without the Goodness! for we more than dimly recognize that all things are in a process of growth towards higher things, that this great organism with its myriad attunings means an ever deepening harmony, a perfecting of the whole. The Almighty Heart beats everywhere, and the Almighty Conscience watches. So the unswerving laws are known to be divine necessities of mercy, and are greeted as holy beneficence. Every pang, and sacrifice, and tragedy they involve are but the quickening help, and every moment brings the blessedness of fact. That trust rises higher—into love. And He who is Hands, and Mind, and Heart, and Conscience in All is the one we call our God! The other article of our creed is, "Each in All and All in Each," that is, that all Nature is actually in-ter-related, part with every other part, I to them and every one to me. This must be so, if that first faith be true. If there is that One in All whom we name God, then in rirtue of that unity all things must be partakers in each other. The Brotherhood of all things in the Universe is but a corollary to the Fa-therhood of God. This fact also we can but spell, and not attain unto the comprehension of its mystery. All pasts, all futures, centre in the present, and all the present is related unto us. It takes the whole sternity behind, it takes all realmes of space to account for us just as we are this day. Each one lives the re-sultant of an infinite number of infinitesimal push-ings. Take this thought and limit it to the limite of history only, and what a sense of brotherhood it rouses, as we remember how all past nations co-worked with each other, and moulded better genera-tions, and furnished them with arts, and cultures, and manners, and pushed these growing heir-looms down, to finally place us at or height of inches

In the passing month, this thought of "Each in All" inspires! Or take the thought in a way that may make it seem more real. Think of a spring day. Shall we count that day in blue skies, in soft south winds, in the resurrection of the grass blades on the hills, and the bursting of a myriad buds? All that,—but we, too, are a part of the May, are we not? A real, a living, aye—the most living and the noblest part. My waking is a part of the sunrise! My breakfast greeting is a part of the morning's freshness and glad-ness! My volce, my thought, my prayer,—is it not a part of the dear Sunday? Does God leave us out of his springtime in latitude forty-two degrees? Does he ever leave us out in working through his planet christened "Earth"? Nay,—grass blade, and singing bird, and humming insect, and the glad childrent, and the young man and malden, and old mothers, join with the blowing air, and the far blue, and the march-ing sun, to make up this that we call the 25th of May. It is all one family. We are a part of the beauty, and it behooves us to be as beautiful and as glad around us. THE PIETY THEY GENERATE.

What think you now,-has Radicalism no beliefs

3744. 15
That can generate enthusiasm! None that make a piety! What was piety, as I named it at the outset? That gamut of religious feeling that ranges from fear, through hushing movements of reverence, grattude, trust, supiration, peace, joy-up, or in, to love. And can a soul possessed by these two grand beliefs of the One in All and the Each in All, in whom they stand for glowing facts that glow more brightly every day.—can such a soul be other than an instrument ever thrilling with the music of those movements?—What were piety's expressions? Duty and Worship. Must such a one not have a singer's hok and way, and an earneet trie?—If need be,—a martyr's life?
What is there in religious expressions? How and Worship. Must such a one not have a singer's hok and way, and an earneet the "a-fit need be,—a martyr's life?
What is there in religious expressions? Duty and Worship. Must such a one with the music of those movements?—What were piety's expressions? Duty and Worship. Must such a one not have a singer's hok and way, and an earneet the "a-fit need be,—a martyr's life?
What is there in religious expressions? Duty and Worship. Must such a one of the shadow of death, we fear no evil, "-how can we? "Nothing consent help in time of trouble?" Indeed He is?
Though we walk through the valley of the shadow of death, we fear no evil, "-how can we? "Nothing can separate us from the love of God"! O Puul, we ments so abides in us that we think we understand your hour when—in the body or out of the body you hour bour when—while we add as you did from our board beard, "-were caught up into Paradiae and the off the words unspeakable. "Bleased are the pure tool but He."
The Orthodox speak of a "Christian conscloumers, "Not good—there is none, obtide in a redeeming Christ. I know not what this words unspeakable, in a share often, that i did not; what this added feeling was that you deard has ending the way to the what it was be fit that I did not; what this added feeling was that is i

"That cannot be explained in words, That line too deep for looks, That finds no way into the face, No written vent in books,"- each,-somehow, somewhere, somewhen,-is surely, and each,-somehow, somewhere, somewhen,-is sure to be provided for in the way best possible. And this recognition of a Helping Universe fuses into feeling towards Him who is the One-Within-It-All,-of whom we say "Him,"-our God, our Father." A mystery settil atillI still i O yes, indeed. Our plety never claims to rest on a complete solution of the universe; and yet, while in-complete, it gives this sense of companionship with its Hernity and its Sublimity! This is the piety of Radicalism,—if one likes to give or take that name. To what utter purity it sum-mons us as with the voice of all Beatitudes, and the de-mands of ever-freshening Gospels! For every fact in Nature becomes a Beatlude, and every day brings is new Gospel,—"Repent, repent,—and the heaven likes close at hand !" new Gospel,-'

JAMES FREEMAN CLARKE, of Boston, tells a good atory of what a Western farmer thought of Emerson's ability as a lecturer. The farmer was on the Lyceum Committee. Mr. Clarke asked him what lecturers they had heard before their Lyceum. He named several, and among others "a man by the name of Emerson." Mr. Clarke asked him how they liked him. "Well," said he, "we had him last winter, and, though he was pretty dull, he seemed to have a good many good ideas, and so we thought we ought to en-courage him, and we have invited him to come again this winter."-Presbyterian.

THE TEACHEE of the infant Sunday-school class noticed one little fellow who was not listening to what she said. She had been telling the story of David and Gollath; and wishing to see if he knew what she had been talking about, she suddenly asked, "Johnny, who killed Gollath?" With an inquiring look he replied, "Why, I didn't know he was dead."

Distinuting to CrOOS

(FOR THE INDEX.) INFALLIBLE GUIDES.

INPALLIBLE GUIDES. Entrops of THE INDEX: Dear Sir,—In addition to all the great departments of the Government, we have also here in Washington an abundant supply of churches, and of all shades of opinion, from those in which the pure Orthodox doc-trine is dispensed to those in which there is but the slightest tincture of the faith. The Mother of Church-es la very ably represented, and her most offensive ten-ets are freely and boldly uttered, and all the more freely that no public journal seems to have the incli-mation or the courage to question them. Recently Father Garesché, of the Society of Jesus, delivered two reported at length, and no journal of the city ex-pressed any doubt of the reasonableness of the doc-trine, nor, so far as I am informed, did any Protestant publit make it an occasion for a discussion of the sub-ject.

ject. As I am personally not so strong in the fundament-al tenets of Christian doctrine as to make my mem-bership in any church a desirable acquisition, and as I am, notwithstanding, both willing and eager to learn about the faith, I aelzed the first opportunity after reading the lectures to master the theme, and so called on another father of the Society of Jesus to propose some doubts that had disturbed my peace, and get his explanations. In truth, I was anxious to have my faith in regard to so important a concern built upon a rock.

propose some doubts that had disturbed my peace, and get his explanations. In truth, I was anxious to have my faith in regard to so important a concern built upon a rock. The father having received me very kindly, and ex-pressed his willingness to afford me such relief as he could, I opened the interview by proposing a difficul-ty which had much embarrassed me, namely, that in the matters most directly affecting human interests Providence had furnished no infallible guide. In medicine, secular law, politics, agriculture, and the arts, I remarked, there is no infallible rule, and no personal authority to announce one. The larger part of the human race die in infancy; and of those that attain to adult years, said I, the majority are prema-turely precipitated into the future world without an adequate probation. The laws of disease are not known, and the conditions of social and political years of health, and the rules of social and political justice. He comes to knowledge in these relations only by transgression. How advantageous would it not be to man, said I, if in the professions of me j-cine and law, and in the vocations that provide food, clothing, and shelter for the body, there were an in-fallible personal authority; for example, an infallible doctor for maladies, an infallible mechanic, and critic for all the arts! Ressoning, said I, from the analogy of Na-ture, as Providence suffers the race, in all these de-partments so profoundly affecting its welfare, to blunder into the knowledge of his laws, I should sup-pose the same rule would hold in all spheres of action and in all worlds, and especially in this and the next; that as man is essentially a free moral agent, he would always continue to be so; and that, if his be-ing be continued beyond this life, the opportunity to ert and grow wiser would run parallel with the dura-tion of his existence. "There, my dear son," said the father, "is precisely pont fundamental error. The manalogy of Nature does not run heyond this life. The prestown of the du any natural steps arrive at a knowledge of the seven sacraments and the duties relating to them ?" Well, said I, I do not see how any natural reason-ing, or at least natural training, would hit upon any of them, unless perhaps matrimony be an exception. "No son of Loyola, at all events," said the father, laughing, "is expected to have any natural knowledge of that sacrament. Our knowledge of the relations that should exist between the sexes is mostly abnor-mal."

<text><text><text><text>

that should exist between the series is mostly accer-mal." You need not dwell upon that point, I replied; I am familiar with the incidents of the cause célèbre, known in French judicial aunals as the affair "Girard-Cadière;" and, to return to the main question, I think I am to understand that religion is concerned chiefly with supernatural relations. Pray go on now, and deduce the necessity of an infallible bishop from that principle. I are panting with impatience to get at the core of the matter. "I can put the whole thing in a nutshell," said he. "Man in his primeval ancestor, as I have remarked, nunderwent a fall, by which the whole race became supernaturally liable to two penalties,—one, physical death; the other, post mortem misery. Providence decided to redeem him, and so, inaving provided the means of redemption, he constituted a corporate soci-decided to redeem him, and so, having providence means of redemption, he constituted a corporate soci-ety to be the custodian of the truths, rules, and appli-ances, by which this redemption could be dispensed during the continuance of the race. Now you per-ceive, do you not, that, unless there were some infal-lible arbiter to decide what these truths, rules, and appliances are, whole generations might be in doubt in regard to them, and thus fail of redemption?" Let me interrupt you one moment, said 1, to in-

in regard to them, and thus fail of redemption?" Let me interrupt you one moment, said I, to in-quire whether this divine society, by which you doub-less mean the Church, has during its entire history been able to exhibit one specimen in which the first penalty of the fall has been remitted? Or, in other words, if the fall carried with it two penalties, physi-cal death and post moriem misery, why is not the re-demption coëxtensive with the fall and its conse-quences? Why is the penalty of physical death not remitted?

quènces? Why is the penalty of physical death not remitted? "I must again suggest to you," said the father, "that, religion being concerned with supernatural things, the proceedings of the Church have aspects entirely incomprehensible to natural reason. If she therefore occupy herself chiefly with dispensing re-demption from post mortem misery, and if she display no power to dispense remission of physical death, though remitting sins every day, it is for some super-natural reason that the carnal mind cannot appreci-ate."

ate." You might have taken a shorter route to the same You might have taken a shorter route to the same conclusion, might you not? I asked. If she deal mainly with supernatural matters, and if logic has no validity in that realm, why not say bluntly at once that she is not amenable to reason at all, and is not bound to answer at that bar, except in so far as she regards it necessary to confound the faculty of reason itself? But I am delighted with your semblances of reasoning. You were talking of the infallible arbi-ter. Please go on. "If was about to remark," continued the father, "that the Church needs an infallible arbiter, that there may not for a moment fail to be in the world a sure source of knowledge of the means of redempthere may not for a moment fail to be in the world a sure source of knowledge of the means of redemp-tion from post mortem misery." But the Protestants, said I, think they have that knowledge stored up in the Book, every statement of doctrine and fact in which is held to be so true that it is not open to question; and every precept contained in it to be good and right for the time and place to which it is to apply. "The Book," answered the father, "is an infallible wide hut only in the original and not in itempla which it is to apply. "The Book," answered the father, "is an infallible guide, but only in the original, and not in transla-tions which are alone accessible to most of the laity. Having been written in remote ages, it needs in vari-ous portions an infallible interpreter to infuse an in-telligible sense into those passages that are obscure on account of their antiquity, or for other causes. For example, Moses teaches in Genesis that on the second day of creation God created a solid expanse over the earth called a firmament. This firmament, he also seems to teach, had windows to let down the rain, and in it the sun and stars are fastened to give light. Now, as long as the Protestant laity read this account, as they do most of the Book, in a very pro-saic and stupid way, things go on smoothly. But the moment a reader of that confession comes to see that the writer meant what he said, namely, that the sky is solid, he is fearfully perplexed; and having a nat-mal knowledge that the fact is not so, he rejects the account, and in all likelihood the authority of the Book with it. But the Catholic layman relies on two infallible supports, the letter of the Book and the liv-ing voice of the Church; and when he finds apparent contradictions in the Book, he is not disturbed, but falls back on his priest, who smootha away his diffi-culties by an elastic and unchous interpretering and contradictions in the Book, he is not disturbed, but falls back on his priest, who smooths away his diffi-culties by an elastic and unctuous interpretation such as might be expected to flow from his supernatural endowments."

as high oe expected to now from his supervaturate endowments." Your summary argument, said I, in proof of the necessity, and therefore probable reality, of one infal-lible bishop for the whole Church seems to make Fa-ther Garesché's lectures gleam with a double lustre. Would you please enlarge a little upon a point which he appears not to have discussed as fully as could be wished? How is it that the Head of the Church is capable of living a sinful and even grossly immoral life, and at the same time is able to promulgate infal-lible Christian doctrine? Father Garesché is reported to have asserted that it is even possible that the Head of the Church might die in mortal ein, but that his liability to sin does not impair his infallibility. Is this true? Can the Pope be an immoral man and yet be infallible? "The two attributes are not incompatible in the Popes," the father replied. "Alexander VI. was abominably wicked as a man, but as Pope he was not capable of error, because, when teaching the Church, a Pope acts officially and is guided by God." Suppose, I inquired, he should secretly become a heretic, and should perversely take advantage of his position to promulgate flagrant heresy, and to do it wiffully. Would he be infallible in such a case?

wilfully. Would he be infallible in such a case? The father hesitated a moment, and finally replied with a smile: "God might allow any personal im-morality in a Pope but that. The wilful promulga-tion of heretical doctrine is a form of wickedness that I imagine God could never permit in a Pope." But have you any guarantee against it? I asked. "I do not think of any but the goodness of God," replied the father.

- 1 do not smink or any but the goodness of God," replied the father. And I notice, said I, that the "goodness of God" frequently gives way at the point where the stress of human need is greatest. If God permits any taint of human wickedness in an infallible Pope, I oo not see why such extreme wickedness as the wilful promul-gation of hereay may, not once only, but often, be er-pected. There seems occasion to regret that the in-fallibility of the Church has been taken away from the corporate body, by the recent decision of the great council at Rome, and relegated entirely to the Pope But, I asked, where was that infallibility vested be-fore that decree was pronounced? The Popes have not become for the first time infallible since the sit-ting of the (Ecumenical Council? "The Popes have always been infallible," replied the father.

The Popes have always been infallible," replied not become for the first time infallible since the sitting of the Gzumenical Council?

"The Popes have always been infallible," replied the father.
But the Church did not know where the infallibility was lodged, said I, till the decree of the Council was pronounced.
"Just so," said he.
Which means, eaid I, that the Church has always been in possession of infallible truth, but had no infallible knowledge of any way to give it expression, whether by councils or by the tyse distis of the Popes only, till within the last five years.
"That is the real state of the case," said the father.
"And there have been times when the infallibility itself was in what I might call a state of supersession, which the Pope was infallible and opposed to the Council, and the Council infallible and opposed to the Council, and the Council infallible and opposed to the Council, and the Council infallible and opposed to the Council, and the Council infallible and opposed to the Council, and the Council infallible and opposed to the Council infallible, and yet wielding conflicting powers."
But I do understand it, I said; it is on the broad principle that the doctrines and functions of the Church. You may find i thard to understand how both could be infallible, and yet wielding conflicting powers."
But I do understand it, I said; it is on the broad principle that the doctrines and functions of the Church are not amenable to reason, and may even outrage it, and yet be perfectly valid in the sphere of religion. After all, father, I continued, the adherents of the good Catholic lappes for long years into coma, and the teachings of the Protestant's infallible Books are transfused through a fallible translation. Practically it amounts to nothing; we have neither less uor more blabops, than if no pretensions to the possession of infallible books and blabops, than if no pretensions. Christendom, divided into three great confressions—Catholic, Protestant, and Greek—tenet is a solace and a support to such as believe in it, and so far justifies itself.<sup>19</sup> If, I replied, to be palsied with an unreasoning dread in the presence of the mysteries of life, if to cherish the conviction that the supreme human peril is danger from God,—If this is religion, then the more infallible oracles we have, the better. But if the un-trammelled aspiration to the good, the true, and the beautiful is the essence of religion, then the free pur-suit of these objects, with all the risks involved in it, is better than any infallible guide, whether priest or book; for the horizon of my spiritual being, inspired by such a pursuit, is never fixed, but widens forever with the ascending progress of the soul. At this moment the bell of St. Aloysius rang for a religious service; and as to prolong the discussion would have been neither contreous to the father nor instructive to me, I bade him good day. D. L. WASHINGTON, D. C., December, 1873.

[For THE INDEX.]

LIGHTENING THE SHIP.

<text><text><text><text>

<text><text><text><text>

The women can be powerful agents of reform; let them begin by throwing overboard tobacco. It must all be fought out on the old ground of opposition to taxation without representation. Hundreds of mil-lloas of dollars go up in smoke. No benefit resulted; it was only an annoyance. Woman was the chief enf-ferer; here was the power to eradicate the might was only an annoyance. Woman was the chief enf-ferer; here was the power to eradicate the might was only an annoyance, and greater capacity and power for good would come thereby. Both had habits that harmed and were not helpful; and if they were one, they would see the necessity of reform. Every-where we are saluted with the pipe or cigar. Vital plety smokes. Clouds of smoke bar your way to the study of the clergyman, and the layman was his hum-be follower. It attested the truth of the old adage, "Like people, like priet," Moderation was no virtue; it only evinced the tact for becoming immoderate. It was idle to talk of retrenchment. No wonder times in protest adaption might avail; it had power to save. It such a the save words which had a vital mean-but on the desting the tart the day one to save. Though be the tact for becoming immoderate. It was idle to tak of retrenchment. No wonder times in the town overboard; tobacco, run, and opium should go together. "Look not upon the wine when it is red." ware words which had a vital mean-ing today. It is red, red with the heart's blood of women-of wives and mothers and children. Absti-nence was the only safe course; abstinence alone would lighten the saljuncts of reform, and their aid accepted. They have been ignored, they have

<text><text><text><text>

RECEIVED.

Hooks.

- THE STRUGGLE FOR NATIONAL EDUCATION. By John Mor-ley. London: Chapman & Hall, 183, Plecadilly. 1873. THE BIRLE: Whall'I Is. Book I. Genesis: Exodus: Levit-icus: Numbers: Deuteronomy: Their Authorship and Authenticity. By Charles Bradinugh. London: Austin & Co., 17, Johnson's Court, Floci street. 1870. NATURE'S LAWS IN HUMAN LIFE. An Exposition of Spirit-ualism. By the Author of "Vital Magnetic Cure." Sec-ond Edition. Boston: William White & Co. 1875.

Pamphicts and Periodicals.

- Pamphiots and Porlodicals.
  On Missions. A locture Delivered in Westminster Abbry on December 3, 1873. By F. Max Müller, M. A., Professor of Comparative Philology at Oxford. With an Introductory of the Four Coopela, 1997.
  The Caseman by Arthur Yenriy Stanley, D. D., Dean of Westminster. London: Longmann, Green & Co. 1873.
  The Caseman transmitter of the Four Coopela, and Morality of the Four Coopela, The Kistence of God.-Polemical Essays. Vids. 1 and Li-tory of the Pole of the Standard Standard Standard Standards.
  The Caseman transmitter and Morality of the Four Coopela, The Kistence of God.-Polemical Essays. Vids. 1 and Li-tory of the House. Bradlaugh, to which is added, A. Mos for Andes, Bradlaugh, to which is added, A. Mos for Ander Standards. Standards and Charles. Bradlaugh, to which is added, A. Mos for Ander Standards. Standards and Charles. Bradlaugh, to which is added, A. Mos for Ander Standards. Standards and Charles. Bradlaugh, to which is added, A. Mos for Ander Standards. Standards and Charles. Bradlaugh, to which is added, A. Mos for Ander Standards. Standards and Charles. Bradlaugh is the Bible.-Christianity is Relation to Free-mation of the Mouse of Brunswick.-When were our for the Bible. Hereway: the Utility and Morality.-The Impleader and the Bible. Published by Austin & Co., London: The Fonch of Danuis, -The Relations Faculty: its Relation to the other Faculty: its Relations and the Standards. Published by Austin & Co., London: A. F. Wang, Barles B. Standards. Standards and the Published by Austin & Co., London: A. F. Wang, Barles B. Standards, Published by Austin & Co., London: A. F. Wang, Barles B. Standards, Published by Austin & Co., London: A. F. Wang, Barles B. Standards, Published by Austin & Co., London: A. F. Wang, Barles B. Standards, Published by Austin & Co., London: A. F. Wang, Barles B. Standards, Published by Austin & Co., London: A. F. Mona, Barles B. Standards, Published by Austin & Co., London: A. F. Mona, Barles B. F. Tottinghonin, New York:

- Radicalism. YRAR-BOOK of the Unitarian Congregational Churches for 1874. Boston: Amorican Unitarian Association, 7 Tremont Place.
- 1874. Boston: Amorican Unitarian Association, Friedout Place.
  FIRAT REPORT of the Directors of the Newton Home for Orphans and Desitutie Girls. Boston: Hand, Avery & Co.
  THE ATLANTIC ALMANAC. 1874. Boston: J. R. Osgood & Co.
  TRE ATLANTIC MONTHLY, January, 1874. Boston: Roberts Brothers.
  Str. Nicitolas. An Hinstrated Magazine for Girls and Boys.
  New York: Hurl & Houghton.
  OLD AND NEW. January, 1874. Boston: Roberts Brothers.
  Str. Nicitolas. An Hinstrated Magazine for Girls and Boys.
  New York: Scribner & Co.
  THE HERLED OF HEALTH. January, 1874. New York: Wood & Holbrook.
  THE SANTARIAN, January, 1874. New York: A. S. Barnes & Co.

- WOOD'S HOUNEROLD MAGAZINE. January, 1874. New York; S. E. Shutes.

New Music,

- NEW SHERT MURIC Published by Oliver Ditson & Co., Bos-ton.—Gates of Paradise, by C. J. Hopkins.—Home Treas-ures: Far Away, by W. Smallwood.—It Matters Little where we Rosm, by J. Holloway.—Farewell, my Love, I Sail Afar, by M. J. Messer.—Embarrassment, by Frans Aut.—Hopeless, by Virginia Gabriel.—Looking Forward, by A. S. Sullivan.

Hoetry.

[FOR THE INDEX.] ONE DAY IN SEVEN.

BY MRS. DAVID H. CLARK.

- into all bloom that is born of the sunlight, Far from the hurrying stops on the street,-Far from the world-throbs that endlensy b Wan faces gather, wan comrades to greet, Into the bloom that is born of the sunlight. heat
- One day in seven, the click of the needles. Heave of the engines, and hum of the wheels, Great pulsing arteries, bobbins and reels,
- Pause in the hush that humanity feels, Pausing one day from the click of its needles.
- wn on the avenues, stately and solemn, Frown the gray arches where worshippers bend; Full the grave accents, "Ye shall not offend One of these little oues;" organ-tones blend 'Neath the gray arches stately and solome.
- Clusters of lilles gracefully swaying Shower the dust from their deep golden cells, Swinging their censers, their crystalline bells; But where is the tale their humility tells,
- White on the altars fragrantly swaying? Humility? Ab, not in bosoms that futter With triumphs of laces, and satins, and gems, Of diamond-stars trembling on higree stems, Of 'broldery and depth of phylactery-hems,-Ah! not in the bosoms that these things can flutter.
- Deep in the cool of the greenness and silence, Worn Labor rests, and is pesceful and glad, Stretches its limbs in its course raiment clad, Takes the good gifts that are sure to be had Deep in the cool of the greenness and silence
- July, 1873.

NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS TO INDEX STOCK.

Mrs. F. W. Christern, Richard B. Westbrook	New York City,	One al	Mare,	$100
R. C. Spencer,	Milwaukee, Wis.	Two		200
R. W. Howes,	Boston, Mass.	One		100
Chas. W. Story,	Boston, Mass.	11	44	100
E. W. Meddaugh,	Detroit, Mich,	Five	44	500
Jacob Hoffner,	Cumminsville, O.	One		100
John Weiss.	Boston, Mass.	44	-++	100
W. C. Russel,	Ithaca, N. Y.	44		100
A. W. Leggett,	Detroit, Mich.			100
B. F. Dyer,	Boston, Mass.		- 16	100
James Purinton.	Lvnn, Mase.	44		100
F. A. Nichols,	Lowell, Mass.			100
J. S. Palmer.	Portland, Me.	44	- 14	100
Robt, Ormiston,	Brooklyn, N.Y.	84		100
Mrs. A. L. Richmond,	Lowell, Mass.			100
Mrs. Benj. Ireson,	Lynn, Mess.		64	100
J. E. Oliver,	Ithaco, N.Y.		46	100
E. H. Aldrich,	Providence, R.I.		64	100
Geo. L. Clark,	Providence, R.I.	44	- 16	100
Mrs. E. B. Chase,	Valley Falls, R.I.	44		100
W. M. Jackson,	Providence, R.I.	Two		200

CASH RECEIPTS.

Digilized by GOORIC

The Index. PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

18

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION,

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

edo Office: No. 35 MONBOE STEERT. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

TRANCIS ELLING WOOD ADBOT, ARGAN WALTER STEVENS, ARGON WALTER STEVENS, ARGONA FROTRINGHAN, THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON, WILLIAM J. POTTER, RIGHAND P. HALLOWELL WILLIAM H. SPENCER, MISS. E. D. CHENEY, Rev. CHARLES WILLIAM H. SPENCER, MISS. E. D. CHENEY, Rev. CHARLES VOTENT (England), POL. FRANCIS W. NEWLAN (England), Rev. MONOUTER D. CONWAY (England), Editorial Contribu-tors.

BOSTON, JANUARY 8, 1874.

SUNDAY LECTURES .- The Editors of THE INDEX will lecture occasionally on Sundays, if desired, within a con-venient distance of Boston.

CASH PHEMIUMS FOR 1874.

In order to increase the circulation of THE INDEX. and thereby make it a more powerful instrumentality in the reform to which it is devoted, the following Cash Premiums are now offered :---

1. THE INDEX will pay to any one of its old sub scribers $1.00 for every new subscription of $3.00 obtained by his or her means and forwarded to this office. If preferred, the $1.00 may be deducted before remitting. This offer holds good for new subscriptions alone, and not for renewals.

2. In addition to this, it offers One Hundred Dollars to the person who shall send the largest list of new subscribers, with the money, before the first day of February, 1874, and Fifty Dollars to the person sending the next largest list during the same time.

There are many warm friends of THE INDEX. throughout the country who would be glad to help increase its circulation, if they could only afford to give their time to the work. The above offers will enable them to do so. Supposing that the largest list sent contains one hundred new names, the sender will be entitled to $100.00 as commission and another $100.00 as premium. Will not many of our lady subscribers, who are the most efficient of all canva seize this opportunity to help THE INDEX without too great a sacrifice on their own part?

GLIMPSES.

A CHORUS of admiration has followed the public exhibition of Mr. Morse's bust of Parker. A prophet is not always without honor in his own country; nor a sculptor either.

NEW YORK has three hundred and fifty churches, estimated as worth about $46,000,000. It is all untaxed, of course,-which means that other people pay taxes for the proprietors. How long will "other people" continue their remarkable generosity?

PROFESSOR MAX MUELLER has kindly forwarded to us a copy of his lecture on "Christian Missions," recently given in Westminster Abbey, and mentioned in Mr. Voysey's interesting "London letter" of last week as causing a profound sensation in England. It will be published in THE INDEX just as soon as room can be made for it.

Some BRIGHT GENIUS sends us a postal card without date or signature, saying-"Please send my paper hereafter to Indianapolis, Indiana." He is like the fond Irish mother who directed her letter-"To my son, in Gen. Washington's army." The only way to be sure of fulfilling this remarkable order (which is only a sample of many others) will be to mail the whole edition of THE INDEX to Indianapolis.

MR. FROTHINGHAM had a most flattering audience last Sunday at his opening lecture in Horticultural Hall. Before the lecturer arrived, the Hall was packed, the alsles being filled and great numbers being obliged to go away from the door for lack of room. Next week, by Mr. Frothingham's kindness, we shall have the pleasure of publishing the lecture (which is one of his ablest efforts) in THE INDEX; and we hope to be enabled to follow it with most, if not all, of the succeeding lectures.

THE "FIRST REPORT of the Directors of the New ton [Mass.] Home for Orphans and Destitute Girls" tells the simple story of a beautiful charity most wise-ly conducted. The "Home" is truly such, as is shown by the touching manner in which the little creatures it shelters welcomed a poor blind child among them. Here is Free Religion put into practice; and we are proud to note the names of some kind friends of THE INDEX among its Directors and benefactors. Prosperity attend it!

IT 18 FOUND NECESSARY, on account of the hard times, not to carry out at present, in every case, the rule discontinuing THE INDEX immediately on the expiration of the term of subscription. But it will still remain the principle to be aimed at and obeyed as far as practicable. Meanwhile we must appeal to the honor of our subscribers to notify us at once, if any of them wish to discontinue the paper. We hope however, that every one will not only renew his own subscription, but kindly send a new one at the same time.

IF THE CROWD that crammed themselves into Horticultural Hall last Sunday till it positively steamed with perspiration, or the multitudes that went away disappointed because they could not get in, would only make a small deposit regularly in the "Donation" box at the door, the Executive Committee of the Free Religious Association would be enabled to engage the great Hall on the floor above; which they would be more than glad to do. But in view of the fact that the box aforesaid contained only $5.85 at the end of Mr. Frothingham's most admirable lecture, the Committee feel that they cannot afford the large additional expense. Will a "word to the wise" (and the generous) be sufficient?

"HE LEAVES a wife and family." This is the curt statement at the end of the newspaper report of many a terrible casualty. What a world of pathos is condensed into those half-dozen words! The unrecorded agony in the humble home,-the heart-broken wife, the weeping children, the gaunt and ravenous "wolf at the door,"-these receive but a passing thought, as we hurry away to our business. Let not the angel of Pity fly so lightly from your hearts, you who have means to send her burdened with blessings into the obscure darkness and misery of the stricken household. The next time that hard epitome of tragedy meets your eye, let it be a divine message to hasten with sympathy and compassion, aye, with all the tenderness of a religion that is pure love for suffering humanity, to do the little or the much you can towards lifting off the millstone of sudden despair.

THE BANKING HOUSE of David Preston & Co., of Detroit, have issued a circular to their correspondents containing their "Statement of Dec. 15," from which we extract the following remarkable passage :-

"What is the outlook now? It's better.

"What is the outlook now? It's better. "September 27th, after the financial wave had rolled over us, and crushed us for the moment to the earth, trusting, not in National Banks, not in Savings Banks, not in our friends, who had done business with us and stood with us and by us, some of them for more than twenty years, but trusting in the Lord, we said: "There's light ahead-there's help in God. There's wealth in Jesus-there's power in prayer." We believed it then; we believe it now. "Bept. 5th, our demand liabilities wers.......$1,005,504.37 Sept. 5th, our demand liabilities wers............$1,005,504.37 God, Dec. 15th, our total flabilities are but....................... 190,766.01 "Since Octoher it we have issued $144.05.47 in

"Since October 1st, we have issued $144,665.47 in "Since October 1st, we have issued $144,605.47 in time certificates of deposit, payable in three and six months from date, bearing 7 per cent interest. These time certificates will be promptly paid as they mature. How have you paid this $6150,000? An-swer: We have paid it in faith, in greenbacks, in national currency, in Detroit City 7s, in Bay City 8s, and in first-class commercial paper, maturing most of it in thirty, sixty, and ninety days from its date." If these comlimer found "wealth in Jesus" and

If these gentlemen found "wealth in Jesus," and paid part of their liabilities with nothing better than "faith," we congratulate the Index Association on holding none of their paper.

THE PROPOSAL to tax church property at an equitable rate is meeting with favor from the most influential secular papers of this city. The Boston Daily Advertiser of Dec. 23 had the subjoined paragraph on the subject :-

Abortiser of Dec. 23 had the subjoined paragraph on the subject:— A petition is in circulation, enforced by a tract, en-titled An Appeal for Equal Taxation and No Ex-emption, asking for the repeal of the statutes ex-empting from taxation property held for religious and charitable purposes. Though the petition is aimed at all corporate societies now favored by the tax-gath-erer,—scientife, literary and educational, as well as charitable and religious,—the tract makes a special point on the exemption of "meeting-houses," which, if they were treated like other property, would afford impediate and sensible relief. The value of "meet-ing-house" property in Massachusetts is placed at about twenty-three millions, which, at the average rate of taxation this year, would have yielded up-wards of $330,000. Of this property, it is claimed and that a portion is held, like Tremont Temple for ex-ample, under church organizations, while rented and used for all sorts of profitable purposes requiring the protection of the laws. The entire value of this un-taxed property, which is exclusive of all State prop-erty, foots up $37.410, 340, the tax on which this year would have been $542,083. This large exemption, it is further claimed, makes it necessary to impose un-fair, and in some cases oppressive, assessments upon other property, which would not be borne if such an annual donation were made or attempted in any other form.

A NOTE FROM MR. FOX.

We cheerfully comply with the wish expressed by Mr. Fox below. The reason why the "introduction" was omlitted last week was simply that we were republishing the correspondence between Mr. Fox and Mr. Potter, not that between Mr. Fox and the editor of the Christian Register. If it had occurred to us that any injustice was done by this omission, the "introduction" would of course have been printed. TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX :-

Not caring to reply to the long letter addressed to me by Charles Thomas Fowler in your last week's paper, I will ask you to insert, as a sufficient explanation to your readers of my neglect to answer this letter, as well as my last from Mr. Potter, the following brief communication, sent by me to the Christian Register, with Mr. Potter's letter, and printed there as an introduction to it, and which I should have been glad to find, with the correspondence, in your col-G. W. F. umns.

"To the Editor of the Christian Register :-

"When I sent you, last week, the correspondence between Mr. Potter and myself, I, of course, supposed it had ended, and that, by writing at the close of his last letter that he forbore saying anything further as to the meaning of the word Christian, he meant that he would forbear altogether, satisfied that a discussion of this point was uncalled for in such a correspondence; but, quite unexpectedly, another letter afterwards came from him, which I now send to you, As Mr. Potter is very anxious to have it printed, I hope you will find room for it in your next paper, even though you may agree with me in thinking that it does not form an essential part of the correspondence,-my purpose, in asking him whether his name was in the Year Book list of Unitarian ministers with his 'knowledge and consent,' not being to discuss with him the interpretation of the term Christian, but simply to learn whether he considered himself as belonging on a list of Christian ministers. I will not ask you to add a word of reply from me, being wholly satisfied to leave my last letter as the proper close to my part of a correspondence, begun with no other desire than to have a list of Christian ministers, for the correctness of which I am responsible, contain the names of none, by their own avowal, not Christians.

"GEORGE W. FOX, Ass't Sec'y."

THE UNITABIAN CRISIS.

Last week we republished correspondence of no ordinary interest between Mr. Potter and the Assistant Secretary of the American Unitarian Association. This week we also republish the comments made on it by the Christian Register (Boston) and the Liberal Christian (New York), the two papers supported by the Unitarian denomination. We now wish to add something on the same subject, in criticism of these critics.

1. "The only question directly involved in this correspondence," says the Register, "was one of fact: Did Mr. Potter's name belong in a list of Unitarian Christian ministers?" On the contrary, there were two questions, and wholly distinct ones: Did Mr. Potter's name belong in that list? and, On whom rested the responsibility of putting and keeping it there? On both points a difference of opinion seems to exist between Mr. Fox and Mr. Potter.

Mr. Fox considers that no name belongs in that list except the names of "Christians;" to him it is a list of Christians as well as of Unitarians. Mr. Potter considers that the names of non-Christians might properly be included, on the ground that they are still Unitarians, as opposed to Trinitarians; to him it is a list of Unitarians, and not of Christians. Mr. Fox considers that all Unitarians are necessarily Christlans; Mr. Potter considers that Unitarians may be either Christians or non-Christians. The one takes the ecclesiastical, the other the non-ecclesiasti-cal view of Unitarianism. While, therefore, Mr. Fox regards it (and with reason) as quite improper that the name of any non-Christian should be included in a list of Christians, Mr. Potter regards it (with equally good reason) as quite unnecessary to exclude such a name from a list of Unitarians. To each the list means a different thing, according to the idea which each entertains of Unitarianism; and it must, we think, be conceded that each is right according to his own view of that list. Which of the two unlike practical judgments arrived at, as to the propriety of retaining Mr. Potter's name in the list, is correct, must depend on the answer to the question : Is Unitarianism merely one form of Christianity, or is it inclusive both of Christianity and non-Christianity?

A great deal may be said, with great force, on each side of this question. On the one hand, the Unitarian movement, which gave rise to the Unitarian name in this country as the name of a particular body of believers, was unquestionably a movement within the limits of Christianity. None of the early Unitarians claimed to be outside of Christianity; they all considered themselves Christians, and warmly defended themselves when the Orthodox tried to deprive them of the Christian name. On the other hand, some of the early Unitarians, like Dr. Channing, made the most absolute ciaims to epiritual freedom, vindicating the right of free thought without any qualification. This happened because it occurred to no one at that time to suspect that Christlanity is necessarily, by its very nature, a limitation of liberty. Hence early Unitarianism, professing to be Christian and yet absolutely free, contained an inherent contradiction which is now forcing itself upon attention in spite of all efforts to the contrary. The views of Unitarian-iam held respectively by Mr. Fox and Mr. Potter, consequently, have each its historical justification; and one is no more consistent with facts than the other.

Demoid in GOOgle

Yet none the less are we obliged to think that the Unitarian name, being the name of a sect which has at all times planted itself on Christianity, must be given up wholly to the Christian majority. The sect, as such, has never committed itself to a profession of unlimited liberty. All such professions have been made by individuals alone; and we hold the opinion that the Unitarian sect must, and has a right to, speak for itself in this matter. For this reason, we have regarded the name Unitarian, ever since the National Conference at Syracuse in 1866, as connoting the name Christian; and therefore, when we discovered in 1868 that we were not a Christian, we voluntarily and at once withdrew our name from the list of Unitarian ministers. We are obliged, with Mr. For, to think that the name of no non-Christian properly belongs in that list; while, at the same time, we think we do full justice to the cogent reasons of Mr. Potter for holding the contrary opinion. This conclusion is based on the general principle that every body of believers is bound by its collective utterances alone, and should neither bear the disadvantages, nor claim the benefits, of the utterances of individuals.

As to the other question ; On whom rests the responsibility of putting and keeping Mr. Potter's name in the list of Unitarian ministers? we think that Mr. Potter is wholly right. Mr. Fox labored hard to throw upon him the responsibility of erasing his own name from that list; and Mr. Potter very wisely refused to accept any such responsibility. The list is made up by the Unitarian Association for its own purposes; and the Association alone should decide whom to enroll in it. The result of Mr. Potter's action, in thus compelling the Association openly to disfellowship all non-Christians, and forbidding it any longer to continue the cowardly and uncandid course of shirking the responsibility that belongs to it, must be most salutary to the cause of religious progress. In this aspect, his action was wiser than our own; and we see now that if, instead of request ing in 1868 that our name should be withdrawn from the Association's list of ministers, we had simply notified the Secretary that we were no longer a Christian or a Unitarian, and then left it to him to act on that notification, better results might have followed in some respects. By relieving him of all responsibility in the premises, we failed to put the Associa-tion in a position in which it must boldly and frankly declare itself to be on one side or the other in the issue between Christianity and Freedom; and the cause of religious advance owes much to Mr. Potter for his superior discernment in this matter. Now it has been made clear, even to the dullest comprehension, that every non-Christian is acting a disingenuous part by retaining without due notice his connection with the Unitarian Association, which, by its Assistant Secretary, now officially declares that all its ministers profess themselves Christians. If Mr. Fox is by-and-by overruled by the Association, the old nebulous state of things may return ; but this is extremely unlikely. True it is, that the erasure of Mr. Potter's name from the authorized list of Unitarian ministers, by the American Unitarian Association, and for the sole reason that he does not call himself a Christian, is one of the most important acts ever done by that body; and its future consequences must be most important. At last Unitarianism has officially disfellowshipped all non-Christians; its antagonism to perfect freedom can no longer be questioned; and, however painful it may be, all non-Christians must now see clearly the duty that is laid upon them.

2. It remains to notice the comments of the Liberal Christian on the Fox-Potter correspondence. The writer of the brief article quoted elsewhere from this paper shows a strange lack of appreciation of Mr. Potter's action. He apparently blames Mr. Potter for not "requesting" that his name be erased. But with his expressed view of Unitarianism, it was not in the least incumbent upon Mr. Potter to do so. In his place, with our own view of Unitarianism, we should have felt called upon to notify the Secretary that we were neither a Christlan nor a Unitarian; Mr. Potter did notify the Assistant Secretary that he was not a Christian, although in one sense a Unitarian. Nothing could have been more manly, direct, or sincere. If the "denomination" felt aggrieved by the "false position" of reckoning non-Christians among its ministers, it was its own fault alone; it held the remedy in its own hands; it had no business to be aggrieved because it lacked itself the moral courage to follow out its own Christian principles. This is not the first time that Mr. Potter has declined to claim the Christian name; why did not the Assistant Secretary, who now so innocently appears to have just discovered the fact, drop Mr. Potter's name years ago? We repeat, the Association, and not Mr. Potter, is responsible for any "misrepresentation" resulting from its own lack of courage and consistency. Ever since the National Conference in 1866, it has been the duty of the Assistant Secretary, just as much as it is now, to find out for himself who are Christians and who non-Christians, and to drop all the latter at once from his list. To blame Mr. Potter for not performing the Assistant Secretary's duties is to reproduce the old fable of the wolf and the lamb.

The inferences drawn from this unintelligent view of the matter have led the Liberal Christian into reflections on the "entire absence of unity among the leaders [officers ?] of the Free Religious Association," and on Mr. Potter's "seeming want of independence." Both of these reflections are exceedingly un-just. The "unity" cherished by the Free Religious Association is one of spirit, purpose, and principle,not of relationship to other organizations. It is in direct keeping with this unity that each member of the Association shall determine for himself what relations he will hold with other associations; as is explicitly provided by our Constitution. Mr. Frothingham and Mr. Potter have settled their relations with Unitarianism in different ways; they had an equal right to do so; neither feels annoyed or compromised by the other's action; each is responsible to himself alone in the matter, as is every other member of the Association. Will the world never discover that men may unite without trampling on each other's Individuality? Instead of showing any "want of inde-pendence" or "individuality" by his action, Mr. Potter has shown himself signally endowed with these very qualities; and no one more rejoices in the fact than his comrades and associates. He has acted with the same purity of motive, with the same calmness and gentleness of spirit, which all who know him have learned to respect and love as the very essence of his "individuality;" and the Liberal Christian may rest assured that Mr. Potter and his fellow-workers have yet to discover the "absence of unity" which it deplores. Let all clearly understand that nothing but "independence" on his part, manifested in a very high degree, will explain his refusal to be made a pack-horse on which the Unitarian Association might lay the burden of its own special responsibilities. For one, we honor equally the courses taken by Mr. Frothingham and by Mr. Potter; we have not the slightest wish that either course should have been in any degree different from what it has been; and we see in each course the natural, unconstrained exercise of the individuality of the actor. These two gentlemen have, like others, most generously stood by us in the attempt to build up THE INDEX, and shared without a word whatever odium the attempt involved; but we never dreamed of interpreting this wholehearted coöperation in the cause of common principles as implying any indorsement of our own particular course or opinions on any subject. They have at all times, in the Free Religious A-sociation and in THE INDEX, been true to their own independent individualities; and the unity which really exists among the officers of the Association is far too deep to be disturbed by any faithful following of the inner consciousness of duty, be the outward course what it may. O that mankind might learn what a profound bond of union is to be found in fidelity to individual ideals that are universally respected! That day will come ; and it will come all the sooner because William J. Potter, than whom a sweeter or purer or braver spirit does not shine on earth, has been cast out of the Unitarian fellowship because he cannot prononnce the Unitarian shibboleth.

FROM MH. CONWAY.

We cannot, by any exercise of editorial virtue, resist the temptation of sharing this interesting little letter with our readers :-

51 NOTTING-HILL SQUARE, London, Dec. 18. MY DEAR ABBOT :-

I think we could sell a dozen more INDEXES If they vere seht, and you had best begin with the first number in January.

My Sacred Anthology is out. It is a volume of near five hundred pages, large octavo, and contains seven hundred and forty selections from the Scriptures and classic authors of the East. It has been liberally subscribed for, and is already paid for. A very handsome volume! . . . South Place Chapel has now been made into a Scientific Institute: During the week we have a scientific lecture by some eminent man, and the walls are covered with maps, or pictures of animals, fossils, &c. On Sunday night there is a scientific lecture of the same kind, with oratorio music and orchestra. On Sunday morning we try to deal with religion in the same method of science. On Sunday last John Fisk, of Cambridge, filled the pulpit, and gave a masterly lecture on Evolution, listened to and admired by a large audience, with many great men among them. On Sunday next he gives a second lecture. We are very flourishing at South Place, and have an average audience of four hundred,-the largest liberal (or Unitarian) society in England. Ever yours,

M. D. CONWAY.

Will not some enterprising publishing firm give us soon an American reprint of Mr. Conway's Sacred Anthology ? Every liberal minister and lecturer would find it invaluable; and thousands of eager readers could be found for it at once.

MR. POTTER'S SUPPLEMENTARY LET-TER.

[From the Christian Register, Dec. 20.]

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

<text><text><text><text><text>

A SIGN OF THE TIMES.

1

<section-header><section-header><text><text><text><text>

THEODORE PARKER'S CONSCIENCE. — Theodore Parker, in his autobiography, tells a beautiful story of his childhood. It reveals a tender conscience in the boy, and a wise training in the mother. When he was four years old, he was passing a pond-hole in a field, and turned to look at a rare flower in the water. He saw a spotted tortoise sunning himself in the shallow water. Very naturally he lifted a stick he was carrying, to strike the reptile. But all at once a voice within him said, loud and clear, "It is wrong." He was surprised, and the uplifted stick fell. He hurried home, and asked his mother what it was that told him it was wrong. Taking him in her arms, she said: "Some men call it conscience, but I prefer to call it the voice of God in the soul of man. If you listen and obey it, then it will speak clearer and clearer, and always guide you right; but if you turn a deaf ear or disobey, then it will fade out little by little, and leave you all in the dark and without a guide. Your life depends on hearing this little voice." "I am sure;" he says, "no event in my life made so deep and lasting an impression as that."

Communications.

N.B.—Correspondents must run the risk of typographical errors. The utmost cars will be taken to avoid them; but hereofter no space will be spared to Errata. N.B.—Articles for this department should be SHORT, and written only on one side of the sheet. N.B.—Hilleyldy written articles stand a very poor chance of publication. N.B.—So responsibility will be assumed/or unused manu-scripts.

MONEY.

DEAR FRIEND:-Allow me to suggest to you that "money" is not wealth, and is not property in the sense of wealth; and that, whilst the representative of wealth (i. e., money) can be furnished without labor, or very little, it can be loaned at a low rate; whilst the property it represents might and should draw a rent of several hundred per cent. more. Would not this view of money harmonize you and those you criticise? Truly. E. M. D.

Truly, PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12.

LIMITATION OF CHURCH PROPERTY.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Dec. 14, 1873.

MR. F. E. ADBOT: Dear Sir,--It seems to me that another article should be added to the "Demands of Liberalism," to wit, "That no religious organization should be al-lowed to hold any more real estate than the lands and the buildings on them, occupied by them as places of worshin."

the buildings on them, when yet a start of the second seco

tate property ther religious organizations product also head. Other religious organizations product imiting the real estate. The Constitution of Mexico contains an article finiting the real estate to be held by any religious or-ganization to the places in use for worship. The po-litical experience of the world is against religious societies holding real estate. Those churches that hold such real estate as above referred to should be compelled to dispose of it. Unless a stop can be put to the accumulation of real estate by re-ligious organizations. I do not see why this country will not at some future day be obliged to resort to confiscation, as other nations have been, to get rid of the power arising from their wealth. Yours, WILLIAM GREEN.

SUPERFLUOUS "IFS."

TIPPECANOE CITY, O., Dec. 25, 1873.

EDITOR INDEX: EDITOR INDEX:--I find that in advocating your side of the question of free-will you are constantly using such expressions as, "man could if he would," "he might if he would," "he might if he had only thought," &c. Now, if you please, leave out your if's, and tell us what he could have done without them. Remember that the if's you put in were not there when he acted. E. L. CRANE.

["Would" means "willed." To say that man could, If he would, is to say that man could, if he willed. Have we ever said that man could, if he did not will? Mr. Crane wants us to confess that man cannot act at all without willing to act. Very well: we confess But what of it? What has this confession to do it. with the question whether man, when he does will, wills freely or by necessity? We fear that our acute correspondent has discovered a logical mare's-nest. En.]

MORE ACTIVITY WANTED.

.

<text><text><text>

proper policy we can accomplish in one year more than in ten years with your passive policy. Let Bot-ton take the lead! And, above all things, remember that the attachment of the masses of the people to the existing Christian churches is mostly brought about by the assistance of these churches to their members in their struggle for life. LUDWIG. EVANSVILLE, Ind.

[1. The employment of lecturers or agents in the field is not easy to secure. It requires men and money, both of which are lacking. When liberals care enough for their ideas to work and give as the churches do, both will be forthcoming.

2. The objects of the Free Religious Association and the Liberal League are not identical. The one exists to disseminate and develop ideas, whether by conventions, lecture-courses, or publications; all these means it actively uses. The other exists to apply these same ideas; but it is still too young and feeble to have many results to show. Yet the present agitation of the church-taxation question, and the vigorous efforts now making all over the country to abolish church-exemption, are in no small measure due to the exertions of the Liberal Leagues. The two organizations naturally attract different classes of minds,-the one predominantly reflective, the other predominantly executive. Neither would thrive by attempting the other's work; but they ought to strengthen each other by hearty cooperation and sympathy. In the course of time this natural connection will be recognized, and then the influence of each organization will be greatly increased. Meanwhile let us patiently wait, and work for either or both as we find outward opportunity and inward impulse.-ED.]

"THE BISING FAITH."

EDITOR OF THE INDEX:--So much pleasure have I derived from reading Dr. Bartol's Rising Faith that I wish other readers of THE INDEX to share it with me. Free Religion daily gathers to its ranks many who have feit their old faith slipping away, and yet are a little uncertain where the next step will lead them. Like the clear bugle notes in the hest and smoke of battle, this call to rally will have a grateful sound to many. EDITOR OF THE INDEX :-

many many, Dr. Bartol's unwarering faith in an infinite, over-ruling Power will send a thrill of admiration even through his opponents; for his attitude reminds one of Fitz James when he hurls defiance at Sir Roderick :-

"His back against a rock he bore, And firmly placed his foot before; "Come one, come all! This rock shall fy From its firm base as soon as I."" ioned," etc. Our duty to bring forth the light that is in us is well expressed by Dr. Bartol: "Bring no bushel to hide your light! Utter all your wisdom, as Jesus did. Its superiority to common apprehension will, like an electric battery, guard itself from general touch or vulgar abusa." And here is a tonch of the old faith which is not collpaed by the new, and which I for one hope never will be: "As I throw my reins on my horse's neck in the dark and trust his instinct for the way, so I yield myself gently, without wish or bias, to the power that directs. Its range of advice is greater than we suspect."

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

directs. Its range of advice is greater and suspect." Surely, this kind of faith goeth not out with prayer of fasting! The light will come as we push on. The more we learn of the laws of universal Nature, the more can we place ourselves in harmony with the methods of the Infinite One. There is a power over us we feel, but earnot define. Let us not be too positive, but "recognize the infinity of the unknown," and perhaps the unknowable. Rejecting old definitions and pictures of Delity, is not the Rising Faith a purer and a brighter, albeit we cannot find words for our new conceptions? W. F. P.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 28, 1873.

THE "DRED SCOTT DECISION."

THE "DBED SCOTT DECISION." EDITOR OF THE INDEX: Dear Sir.—In the interesting communication from Professor Newman on "The Rights of Animals." there is a reference to the Dred Scott decision which is incorrect. The declaration to which he refers as "the celebrated verdict against Dred Scott" was not a "yerdict." which the Professor is doubtless aware is the finding of a jury, but was made by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, to which the case had been carried for review, in de-tive of the Supreme Court. Nor was the de-cision against Dred Scott, but in his favor. The Chief Justice took occasion to sketch the history of the African slave trade as prosecuted by so large a part of Christendom, including England, and, at length, America. In speaking of the ideas then entertained of the vicins of this excernile traffic, he said, and said traily, that they were regarded as having "no rights which the white man was bound to respect." At that time the anti-slavery press of this country was very violent and unscrupulous in its denuncia-sing, and this observation of the Chief Justice was eagerly seized upon and misrepresented as a dogma provide the source this injurious misrepresented as a dogma. Therefore Newman would like to see the official report of the case of Dred Scott, I think a barrister en show it to him. Perhaps he may think it worth is countryma who are laboring under the same mission form which will enlighten a multitude of mission form which will enlighten a multitude of the sourts who are laboring under the same mission form which will enlighten a multitude of the sourts of the Case I and Construct. Therefore the same laboring under the same mission form which will enlighten a multitude of the sourts of the case of the case of the case of the same the sourts of the case of the case of the case of the case of the sourts of the case of the case of the case of the sourts of the case o

UTICA, N. Y.

WHICH CUSTOM SHALL I OBSERVE?

MR. EDITOR :-

Thursday, the 25th day of the present month, will be religiously observed by many as the guess-day of the birth of Jesus of Nazareth: which reminds me of a memorandum I made at the time of the delivery of one Dr. Solger's lectures before the Lowell Institue in 1858

After referring to the various forms of ancient worship, he thus alluded to their later and most prominent defites:-

worship, he thus alluded to their later and most prominent deities:--"Under Aurelian a new deity rose to a first place in the Pantheon, and maintained itself true to the end-the Sun Invincible: that is, the sun which ever triumphs over night and winter. He combined the attributes of all the other chief divinities. The Sun's birthday was celebrated on the 25th of December, that being the shortest day. While he was wor-shipped by the emperors, the people preferred Per-sian Mithras, called also the Mediator. His birthday was, also, on the 25th of December, and towards the last of the empire, he was one of the most popular divinities. All over the empire his monuments have been found. The worship is remarkable for many of its rites and ideas being like those of Christianity. Not only was the divinity a mediator, but the idea of atonement prevailed, with rites of baptism, the last suppor, and the symbol of resurrection. He was called the Incomprehensible, the Omnipotent, and the Beginning of all Life and of all Salvation." If the old Fathers played with loaded dice, how is it with the followers of Peter to-day? N. C. N. Bosrox, December 22, 1873.

PALEY AND DARWIN.

"And this also I ask: If this expanse of heaven, which we see, was constructed by the gradual con-variance of atoms, how did it not collapse while it is a construction, if indeed the yawning top of the structure was not propped and bound by any stays? For as those who build circular domes, un-whole fails at once; so also the circle of the sky, which we see brought together in so graceful a form, it was not made at once. . . . by the power (and in-telligence) of a Creator, but by atoms gradually con-uring and constructing it, . . . how did it not fall down and crumble to pieces before it could be brought together and fastened?" — Clements' brother, Niceta, acadica: Recognitions of Clement, VIII., 18. This is a sample of the reasoning in support of half of the second century. The argument, as given by the Pseudo-Clement, is built on ignorance. The whole Allest in the second century and show the op-eration of reason, which reason I call the Word, and "And this also I ask: If this expanse of heaven, God"-vanish like fog before the sun at the touch of modern chemistry, physics, astronomy, &c. But if we go back about seventy years, instead of seventeen hundred, we still find the design argument founded on ignorance. The celebrated "watch argu-ment," in the Natural Theology of William Paley (which he borrowed in the main without acknowl-edgment from au older Dutch work), manifests the slightest possible acquaintance with the science of geology, which has since grown to such grand propor-tions.

tions. Mr. Paley  $[\nabla, 4]$  says it may be objected to his ar-gument that all the "organized bodies which we see are only so many out of the possible varieties and combinations of being which the lapse of infinite ages has brought into existence; that the present world is the relie of that variety; millions of other bodlly forms and other species having perished, being by the defect of their constitution incapable of pres-erration, or of continuance by separation."

ervation, or of continuance by generation." In his utter ignorance of the facts now grouped under geology, natural selection, &c., Mr. Paley says: "There is no foundation whatever for this consays: "There is no foundation whatever for this con-jecture... No such energy operates as that which is here supposed, and which should be constantly push-ing into existence new varieties of being.... Upon the supposition here stated, we should see unicorns and mermaids, sylphs and centaurs, the fancies of painters, and the fables of poets, realized by exam-ples." Why not see them on Mr. Paley's theory? Why not have angels, for instance, to fly through the air as well as eagles and bats? "(We might at least?)

We might, at least," he adds, "have nations of human beings without nails upon their fingers, with more or fewer fingers and toes than ten; some with one eye, others with one ear, with one nostril, or without the sense of smelling at all," &c., &c. Just as the Pseudo-Clement supposes the sky must have tumbled down in the building, so Mr. Paley thinks the animal world must have been a chaos of dissordant forms, had it not been for the mechanical skill of Deity. He does not stop to inquire whether any other causes tend to produce the adaptations we see in Nature; he has supposed a designer who con-trived everything, and he sets down this supposition as knowledge. He thinks [V., 7] the proofs of this "ought not to be shaken, ... by bringing forward to our view our own ignorance, or rather the general imperfection of our knowledge of Nature." With a wonderful self-complacency Mr. Paley adds: "True fortitude of the understanding consists in not suffer-ing what we know to be disturbed by what we do not know." know.'

How." How different this assurance from the modesty of Mr. Darwin, who, after piling up facts that Mr. Paley never dreamed of mountain high, cautions his read-ers again and again that, since our ignorance of the whole subject "its as profound," we ought not to be too positive in our conclusions!

whole subject "Is so profound," we ought not to be too positive in our conclusions! But there is another difference. Mr. Paley merchy rehashed an argument which is as old as ignorance,— stole it, moreover, from a work which had been pub-lished nearly a hundred years. But Mr. Darwin tolled patiently in the fresh fields of Nature a quar-ter of a century, and discovered—not a new speeles or genus of animals merely, but "a new idea, a new genus of thought," which groups all the species that live, or that have lived, in a system of classification at once natural and intelligible. The intellect of the present century was hungering and thirsting after the idea of "Variation and Natural Selection," and it is the imperishable glory of Mr. Darwin that he was needed, not only to account for the origin, tri-umph, and extinction of species of plants and ani-mals, but of nations, languages, religions, govern-ments, and systems of thought. According to Mr. Darwin's theory, they were all evolved out of pre-existing species, by the same forces and by the same insensible steps of transition as those we see operat-ing to-day. And if, as Mr. Darwin supposes, whole races were brought forward together, in the process of modification by Variation and Selection, the steps must have been so insensible that they would no more be visible to us than the growth of a forest tree is visible to an insect that lives but an hour. Is it possible to conceive of any other origin for any visible animal, except the well-known one of is visible to an insect that lives but an hour. Is it possible to conceive of any other origin for any visible animal, except the well-known one of physical generation? Can we realize in thought the origin of a being having organs by either "special creation" or "spontaneous generation"? Sour-krout never brings forth lizards. An "atom of matter" must be infinitely small, and it seems to me that the chain stretching from the smallest visible monad down to inorganic matter, must have as many mil-lions of links as that reaching from the mammals of our day to the lowest Silurian worm. It is a pity Mr. Darwin's theory is so imperfectly

It is a pity Mr. Darwin's theory is so imperfectly understood, even by many of Mr. Darwin's friends. J. W. Pike.

VINELAND, N. J., Dec. 12, 1873,

It is CHARGED that a confidence game has been played by certain clergymen and laymen of the Meth-odist Conference of Wisconsin upon their brethren. The accusation is that the stock of the Monitor Sil-ver Mining Company, formed at Milwankee three years since, with a capital of $1,000,000, to operate in California, has been recommended and sold to the Methodist clergy and laity throughout the State by three or four leading ministers, upon promises which they must have known were false. The Conference in session at Whitewater last month appointed a com-mittee of investigation to look into the matter, and we learn that one or two prominent ministers have been suspended on the strength of the committee's report.—Baraboo (Wia.) Republic.

THE TWO "ANTI-EXEMPTION PETITIONS,"

21

CONGRESSIONAL PETITION.

Copies of the subjoined petition will be sent from THE INDEX Office to any address, on receipt of a three cent postage stamp. All interested in the repeal of the Act of Congress designated will please circulate this petition for signatures; and all lists returned to THE INDEX will be acknowledged in its columns. ED.

We, the undersigned, citizens and residents of the United States, would hereby respectfully petition your honor-able bodies to repeat the first section of the Act approved June 17, 1870, entitled "An Act exempting from taxes cor-tain property in the District of Columbia," etc., and providing that "all churches and school-houses, and all buildings, grounds and property appurtenant thereto, and used in connection therewith, in the District of Columbia, shall be exempt from any and all taxes and assessments, nation-al, municipal or county." We ask this for the following

This part of said Act we understand to be at variance with the spirit, if not the letter, of the First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which provides that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion." Since the exemption from taxation of of religion." Since the exemption from intation of churches, parsonages, ecclesisatical houses and sectarian schools in the District of Columbia is precisely equivalent in effect to a direct appropriation by Congress for their support, we conceive this measure to violate what all the expounders of the Constitution declare to have been its explorators of the constant of the second second second manifest intent and design,--namely, to sever all religious organizations from any connection with or dependence upon the civil government, except for equal and impartial protection. This part of said Act, therefore, we consider to be UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

2. This part of said Act we conceive to be also contrary This part in sain Act we conceive to be also contrary to equity and justice, insamedn as its effect is to increase our relative proportion of the National taxes, to the end of relieving altogether from taxation certain churches and church properties in the District of Columbia. We con-sider it, therefore, to be UNJUST.
 All history shows that the effect of exempting churches from taxation is to accumulate property the hands of from taxation is to accumulate property in the hands of ecclesiastical bodies to a very dangerous extent, and at last to compel resort to confiscation as the only means of escap-ing the great svils thus generated. The examples of Engand, of Italy, and of Moxico, of Spain, Austria, and France, are sufficient warnings against adopting a policy which is hostile to American ideas and American institutions. That the non-taxation of church property is tending to the same results here as elsewhere is evident from the fact that, while the number of church-members in the United States was not doubled between 1860 and 1870, the value of church property during the same period was quadrupled, advanc-ing from $37,528,801 to $354,483,581. At the same rate, its value in 1890 will be over $1,418,000,000; and such rapid acvalue in liss will be over signs, Monor, and such rapid sciences cumulation of wealth in ecclesisatical hands is most peril-ous to civil and religious liberty. This part of said Act, therefore, we consider to be UNSAFE. For the reasons, consequently, that this part of said Act is unconstitutional, unjust, and unsafe, we respectfully ask that he is distinguisher second that it be forthwith repealed.

MASSACHUSETTS PETITION.

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Reprethe Commonwealth of Massachusetts in General Court Assembled :--

We, the undersigned, voters and tax-payers of the Com-monwealth of Massachusetts, respectfully represent-1. That under the laws of this Commonwealth persons can readily incorporate themselves into so-called Religions, Educational, Scientific, Literary, Renevolent, and Chari-table associations, and as such hold large amounts of property exempt from taxation.

2. That the exemption of such associations from taxation practically taxation of the rest of the community for their support; which is to increase unduly and unjustly the taxes of all other property-holders. 3. That this exemption from taxation has come to be so

3. That this exclusive to be that many such corporations are formed unnecessarily, for the purpose of holding prop-erty intared until such time as the corporation shall wish erty untaxed until such time as the corporation shall divide the same.

That this exemption in the case of religious societies, instead of promoting the interests of pure religion, or subserving any public end, athmulates the various sects to multiply such incorporations unnecessarily, solely for the purpose of competing more successfully with each other be increasing sectarian wealth and power.
That no State support to such corporations should be given either directly or indirectly; but that, if given at all, it should be given by direct appropriation, to the end that the people may know the amounts, and to what uses the public money is really put.
That the exemption complained of is frequently used L That this exemption in the case of religious societies,

6. That the exemption complained of is frequently used to cover have amounts of property which are not intended to be legally exempt,-thus increasing the taxes of the poor for the benefit of the rich.

7. And that therefore your petitioners pray that the third, eeventh, and pinth clauses of section five of chapter eleven of the General Statutes-being those parts of the Statutes which provide for the aforesaid objectionable exemption-together with all special acts of like purport, be repealed.

NOTE.-Ladles signing this petition will please write under the head of "Remarks" not a voter. If also a tax-payer, write luxed.

Lists of signatures to this petition should be returned as speedily as possible to the "Boston Liberal League, 1 Tremont Place, Boston."

THE INDEX-JAN. 15, 1874.

	000	la	lve	rl	is	en	ne	nt	3.		1
TI	IE		P	A	т	R	0	N	٨	G	E
of the fully s will b ing pa with it thus to	e he ges e	ted nes	for uly far alci	Tu ma INI	de la bex	in rai	eep ep ep id p	tire	ad hat hat	VOF THE	ipt tis- ny nd

1

8

34

13 thus to furnish to the public and principles and medlum which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their most generous support. To this end, all improper or "billed" advertisements, all quack adver-tisements, and all advertisements believed to be fraudulent or unjust to any one, will be excluded from these columns. No cuts will Tay I your most as it is held.

be admitted. The INDEX must not be held responsible for any statement made by advertisers, who will in all cases accept the responsibility for their own statements.

ADVERTISING BATES.

On half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for wilch cash is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cont. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

U S T 0 B THEODORE PARKER,

SIDNEY H. MORSE.

Mr. Sidney H. Morse's new bust of Theo-dere Parker clicits warm commendation from all whe are able to judge fairly of its merits. After long absence, so deeply felt by the booghiful minds and cenerous movements of the age, those familiar features have re-appeared, in a form that innet, perpetiuate their functions as household treasure and public inspiration. For it is safe to predict that the meaning of this counterpart of the inving man will keep pace with his growing fame, and hear successfully the tests of time. No presentment of him so genuine and real has before been given, and none more satis-ractory is likely to be given hereafter. It is American in the noblest sense, and the Am-erican people, fam confident, will hasten to appreciate and cherish it. This has invested this head, moulded on a scale of only three-quarters the life size, with such apparent massiveness and real power, here itality of the spirit here and the da-pression of resi character, as well as through the strative the dast of the averts and animates the whole. If placed at has non-crate height above the observer required by its scale of size, every aspace has a speed at healty, and those who look for the different Mr. Sidney H. Morse's new bust of Theo erate height above the observer required by its scale of size, every aspect has a special n-delity; and those who look for the different sides of Parker's genius will not tire of rec-ognizing the diversity. Prophetizendscholar, euthusiast and patient worker in details, builder of right and scourge of wrong, rea y helper, genial humorist, loyal and tender friend, reverent lover of ideal and actual truth and good,-all are suggested in this marvellous reproduction with surprising ful-ness and force.-Samuel Johason. The usual lemntation is to eice a chasic ness and force. - Summel Johnson. The usual temptation is to give a classic fone to a bust, though all the model Greeks are dead long ago, and their contour is not likely to be reproduced in Lexington. Mr. Farker was horn there, a genuine New Eng-and man. He never looked like Sophoeles, Aristotle or Homer. There was a curious eminiscence of the homely and insignificant nose of Socrates, and something too in the soutline of the head. Mr. Morse neither flat-ters nor extenuates. He has made the living Parker as he was in moments of repose. Old friends can easily re-locate the tenderness which transpired in the corners of the lips, or the moral protest which brought them out before the lide of his speech. - John Welss. Dgnity, revenue, sweetness, vigor, equibefore the tide of his speech—John Welsa. Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi-polse, breathe through the civy; the arlist has so filled his own heart with appreciation of that hobe life that he has been able cum-ningly to mould it into those delicate lines which the character had wrought on the liv-ing fibre. We are tempted to exclaim, as we stand beside it, as the old artist did to bis perfected work, "Speak, then!"—Hannah E. Stevenson. Ste

All the characteristics of my husband are in the bust,—his greatness, his goodness, his tenderness, his love. You cannot give life to clay or marble; but you can represent it, and this Mr, Morse hus done.—Lydia D. Parker to Hannah E. Stevenson.

Junnah E. Stevenson, The eyes, though but of clay, are gleaning with possible indignation, with possible tears the lips are set firm with the resolution of him who, like 'hani, could "fight a good fight" as well as "give a reason." -Samiel Longfel-ton RA W

The first time I have seen Theodore Park since he died,- Wm. Sparrell.

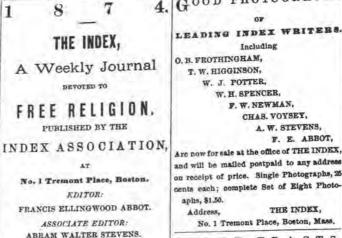

since he died. ---Wm. Sparray. The best representation of Mr. Parker ever executed in clay. --Boston Daily Globe. The face is strong and noble as it should be. The likeness is good. --Boston Daily Aluertiser. Nothing suppose for heavier along, or division

Nothing appears for beauty alone, or finish, or to show the vanity of the artist. All is forgotten in the man-the true, real, Yankee man, Theodore Parker, -L. S. II. in the Goldon Age.

Copies of this Bust, finely fluished in plas ter, $10 each. Boxing for transportation, $1 extra. Freight or expressinge paid by party sending order. Weight of box about fifty pounds. Orders may be sent to

1 miles

S. H. MORSE, Room 13, 25 Bromfield SL, Boston, Ma

INDEX TRACTS.

No. 1.-Truths for the Times, by F. E. Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmati d "Modern Principles." MR. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Spe cies," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-inally intended for publication, but subse-quently authorized to be used : "I have now BUTHS FOR THE TIMES,' and I admire nd m them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 2.-Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char-acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wor thy of the nineteenth century. New Edi-tion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 3.-Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over whelming demonstration of the imperfe an over tions and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 4.-Christian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts ting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5 .- "God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the United States Constitution. - Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 6.-"The Sabbath," by Parker Pillsbury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition Edition, Price 10 cents; 12 copie New

io. 7.-46 Compulsory Education,** by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8.-The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that in-terests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 9.—The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac-ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evan-gelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Consti-tution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

10. 10. - The Impeachment of Christianity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from five to one hundred copies. No. 10

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

60.12.—Is Romanism Heal Christian-ity? Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. No

10.13.—On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Heligion: The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of bellef in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address

THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE,

Roston, Mass.

4. GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS PUBLICATIONS FREE

RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION

Report of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meeting in 1867, at which the Free Religious Association was Organized.

(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not cossess this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meet-Ing. 1869. 50 cents.

Proceedings of Third Annual Meeting. 1870. 50 cents.

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meet-ing, 1872. 35 cents. (Four or more, 3 cents each.)

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meet-Ing, 1873. 35 cents. (Four or more, 3 cents each.)

Sympathy of Beligions, by T. W. Hig gl

Boligions of China, by Wm. H. Chasning. 35 cents.

Benson and Bevelation, by William J. Potter, 10 cents, Taxation of Church Property, by Jas. Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of tes, 60 cents : of one hundred, $3.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. Orders by mail may be addressed either Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Bosts the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass. a, or la

WM. J. POTTER, Sec. F. R. A.

HALF-HOUR RECREATIONS -18-

POPULAR SCIENCE.

EDITED BY DANA STE

The growing demand in this country for books on popular science encourages the editor and publishers to issue this series of papers, compiled from the works of the most popular scientific writera.

25 cts. per Part; $2.50 for twelve consecutive Parts.

No.1. STRANGE DISCOVERIES RESPECTING THE AUBORA AND BECENT SOLAR RESEABCHES. By Richard A. Proctor, F.R.A.S.

O. 2. THE CRANIAL APPINITIES OF MAN AND THE ARE. By Prof. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, author of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated.

No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a colored plate and several wood-cuts.

No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERIES, showing its Application in Microscopic Research, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav-enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and oth-

No. 5. NEBULE, METEORIC SHOWERS, AND COWETS

No. 6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN, AND EPIDEMIC DELUSIONS. By Dr. Carpet ter, author of The Microscope and its Reve lations, Human Physiology, etc.

No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARS. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of Michigan, author of Sketches of Creation.

No. 8. ON YEAST. By Prof. Hurley, F.R.S.

No. 9. THE CIECULATION OF THE WATERS OF THE FACE OF THE EARTH. By Prof. H. W. Dove.

No. 10. THE STONE AGE, PAST AND PRESENT. By Edward B. Tylor, author of Primitive Culture.

No. 11. THE RELATION BETWEEN MATTER AND FORCE. By Prof. John H. Tice, of St. Louis. For sale by

THE INDEX.

FDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS: O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I. W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. Mus. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. F. W. NEWMAN, England. CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX aims-

F

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the individual:

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes.

In brief, to hasten the day when Free Religion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac tical object to which THE INDEX is special-ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the purpose of securing the more complete and con-sistent secularization of the political and educational institutions of the United States The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an unbroken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading paper or essay of a thoughtful character each issue, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX.

Regular editorial contributions will con tinue to be furnished by the well-known emto give to THE INDEX its present high po-sition. Mr. Voysey has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to rad-ical readers. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from valuable books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted. in every city and town throughout the coun-try. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remittances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered letter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case. Address

THE INDEX.

No, 1 Tremont Place, Boston,

VALUABLE BOOKS!

FOR SALE AT THE ## OFFICE OF THE INDEX,

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as varded as promptly as possible on receipt of the POSTAGE set opposite the price. Where ostage is mentioned, none will be charged.

Price Postag. .B1.75 24

2.00 24

4.00 48

2.00 24

12m

More Criticisms on Darwin, and Ad-ministrative Nibilisfn. 1 vol., 12mo, limp cloth......

.50

-A Manual of the Anatomy of Ver-tebrated Animals, Illustrated, 1 vol., 2.50 36

LEWES' Physiology of Common Life. 2 vols., 12mo, cloth

1.76 24

and Woodcuts. A new and entirely re-vised edition. 2 vola., royal 800, eloch... — Elements of Geology; or, the An-cleat Changes of the Earth and its In-habitants, as illustrated by Geological Monuments. Sixth edition, greatly en-larged. Hustrated with 770 Woodcuts. 1 vol., #vo., etc. 100, and 100, and 100, and Species. By St. Goorgo Mivart, F.R.S. Hustrated, J2000, eloth... SOHELLEN (H). Specierium Analysis, in its Application fo Tarrestrial Sin-stances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies. Familiarly ex-plained by Dr. H. Schellen, Director der Baselte Lited, with notes, by William Huggins, LLD. With numerous Wood-cuts, Colorde Piates, and Portaits; also, Angetrom's and Kirchhoff's Maps. 1 vol., 80 EKCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory. By Prof. Hauley, F.S.S. (A great.).

(Is press.). 2. Chemistry. By Prof. Roscoe. 18mo., flexible cloth

.50 1. Physics. By Balfour Stewart. With illustrations. limo., fierible cioth ..... .30

i. Physical Geography. By Archibald Gaikie, LL.D., P.R.S., flexible cloth.... .50

Galaic, LL.D., P.H.S., farible cloth... (Odders in preparation.) BLACK'S Athas of the World. A General Athas of the World: comprehending Swenty Maps, from the latest and most suitentic sources, superved on Biesl, and Colored. Amorican Edition. A new ad greatly improved cellino., with the recent Boundaries and Discoveries, Geo-resphical Descriptions, a coplous Index, pusc, the Pings of all Nations, and moreco, cloth addes, ght edges. Edin. bargh, Hrill, Statest and Statest and National Statest and Statest and Statest Statest and Statest and Statest and Statest Statest and Statest and Statest Statest and Statest and Statest and Statest and Statest Statest and Statest and Statest and Statest and Statest Statest and Statest and Statest and Statest and Statest Statest and Statest and Statest and Statest and Statest and Statest Statest and Statest and Statest and Statest and Statest and Statest Statest and Statest and

22.50 93

The Positive Philosophy of Augusto Comme, 1 vol., izmo., 182 pp., cloth..... 1.25 16 Folitical Peonomy. Principles of Polit-ical Economy. New and revised edition. Complete in 1 vol. Crown 8vo. Tinted paper, Uniform with Mill's Du-sertations and Discussions.

2.25 18

1.50

31.25

London. 6 vols, crown 8vo, hair cair..., EDGEWORTH'S Tales and Novels. Moral Tales and Novels. By Maris Edgeworth. In Ten Volumes. With Thirty-Eight Engravings on Steel. New English Edi-tion. 16 vols. Foolacap. 8vo. London, 1549

1579 FARRAR'S Critical History of Free Thought, in reference to the Unistian Religiou. Eight Lectures, preached be-fore the University of Oxford, in the Year 1882, on the Foundation of the late Rev. John Hrampton, M. A., Canon of Sallsbury. I thick wol. Elmo. etch. 2.00 24

LEWIN (REV. RAPHAEL, D'C). What is Judaiam? or, a Few Words to the Jews. I vol. 16mo., cloth 1 00.1

I vol., 16mo., cloth. MERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of the Roman Empire. The Sovie Loc-tures for the Year 1864, delivered at the Chapel Royal, Wiltehall. Author of "A. History of the Romans under the Em-pire." Large 12mo., cloth. — Conversion of the Northern Nationa. Large 12mo., cloth. Large 12mo., cloth. 1.50 24 cloth. (In press.).

25

 The New Affinities of Faith: A Plos for Free Christian Union. 18mo., paper...
 MAURICE (REV.F.D). The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind. 18mo....
 JOREPHUS. The whole Works of Flavi-us Josephus, the Jewish Historian. Translated by Whiston. Demy Svo. Steel Portrait and Vignetts. Cloth, extra gitt top. .75 08

2.50 4 EVANS (E. P., Pb.D), First Historical Transformations of Christianity, From the French of Athanase Coquercithe Younger, Ivol. 16mo. 264 pp

1.50 18

MANN (HORACE).

The Life of Horace Mann. By his Wife. Crown Svo., cloth, 509 pp...... 3.00 32

5.00 36

2.50 30

any Bights to Laborate Hold Di Won-ARABIAN NIOHTS' EN TERTAIN-ARABIAN NIOHTS' EN TERTAIN-Dage Hustrationa, Asho With 6 211-page Hustrationa, Asho Tengland, With Hustrationa, 1673 Best edition, London, 1673

Social Games. A new Series of Games for Parties, uniform with Patience. 134 pp. 1.00.06 Sally Williams, the Mountain Girl. 12mo. 1.50 16

Illustrated ERROLD (DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr. Claude's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers. By Douglas Jerrold. Compiled by J. E. Babson. Jeimo., uniform with The Wishing-Cap Papers.

1.50 18

trated, 524 pp KERB (ORPHEUS C). Verestillites. Po-ems, fatriotic, Sendimental, and Humpr-ous. Now first collected. 18mo., 206 pp., 2.00 16

Address THE INDEX. 1 Tromont Place, Boston.

FREE RELIGIOUS

ASSOCIATION.

Sunday Afternoon Lectures AT THE LOWES HORTICULTURAL HALL.

Jan. 4 .- O. B. FROTHINGHAM

"The Soul of Protestantism." Jan. 11 .- SAMUEL LONGFELLOW.

"The Unconscious Side of our Life." Jan, 18.-T. W. HIGGINSON.

"Philanthropy,-the Word, its Traditions and Its Meaning."

Jan. 25 .- RABBI MAX LILIENTHAL. "Liberty and Popular Education."

Feb. 1.-PROF. C. C. EVERETT. "Mysticism."

Feb. 8 .- MRS. A. H. LEONOWENS. "Buddhism in Slam

Feb. 15.-F. E. ABBOT. "Darwin's Theory of Conscience."

Feb. 22.-JOHN WEISS. "Beauty and Truth." March 1 .- SAMUEL JOHNSON.

"The Transcendental Element in Thought and Progress."

March 8.-W. J. POTTER. "Religion and the Science of Religion."

Lectures at 3 P.M. Admission free.

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

23

Our organization some time since decided to direct its efforts for the present towards securing the

Repeal of the Laws

whereby church and other corporate property is unjustly exempted from its share of the burden of taxation

As a means to this end, we have published for general circulation several thousand copies of a

TBACT

on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 27. The edition was made as large as our funds would allow; but, so great has been the demand, it is already nearly exhausted. Our next edition ought to be large enough to and generously to supply the calls for them in other States.

EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE,

To do this, we need funds; for, although we have made arrangements for printing the Tract at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston

League, with its various other expenses, to bear

All Friends of the Movement

ome forward and help us with liberal donations ? We frequently receive communications from parties wishing tracts to distribute, asking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circulating them gratuitously throughout the country. To many of the subscribers of THE INDRY, and others whose names have been furnished us

as probable friends of the movement, copies of the Tract, together with Petitions asking the re-

that such friends will try to secure as many signatures to the petition as possible in their locality. We respectfully ask those who are unable to attend to the matter themselves to place the peti-

BOLL UP THE LIST:

Let our united voices be heard ! And let it be done NOW ! We would say, also, that we feel deeply the

Other Organizations

In this State, to cooperate with us in securing equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are

Form a'Liberal League,

we are ready to render such assistance as lies in

LIBERALS!

If all will unite and work, the results sought

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE,

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

melanen, Google

those who are inclined to tions in the hands of those who will.

Letus

To hear

our power.

Address

can be accompliahed.

Per order of the EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

peal of the Exemption Laws, have been sent.

With the Hope

place a copy in the hands of the entire expense alone. Will not, then,

36 L. HENDERSON & CO., FREE DISCUSSION G. "ONE OF THE MOST ABLE, is held at HOSPITALLER HALL, 565 Washing ton Sireet, Boston, every Sunday, at 10% AM 2% and 7% P.M. All that relates to the Religions Folitical, and Bocial Interests of mankind consu-tute the subjects for discussion. The INDEX and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday a Hospitalion Hall. ANKEBS. 123 LEROY, MINN. Money loaned on short time, or for a term of years, on unincumbered improved farms, at 12 per cent. per annum, interest net. In-terest payable annually. All expenses for abstract of title and recording mortgage paid by borrower. We collect and remit to any part of the United States free of charge. igh-minded and judic "The Unitarians never had so good a paper as THE CRESTAR RECIPTOR is now. Mr. Mumford has the true editorial faculty, and makes a capital reading paper,"-Springfield Republican. THE FRUIT RECORDER AND TH E Republican. "The Liberal Christian is right in speaking of Mr. Mumford's 'Brevities' in Tax Chaia-tax Registrate as 'among the brightest and keenest paragraphing to be found in any pa-per, secular or religions." Besides, they are seldom, if ever, discourteous."- Zion's Her-zion's Her-A D E R TRUTT INSTRUCTOR IS a WORDS, A. M. PURDY, Palmyrs, N.Y. COTTAGE GARDENER part of the United States free of charge. REFERENCES. — First National Bank, Mo-Gregor, Iowa; Gilchrist & Co., McGregor, Iowa; First National Bank, Austin, Minneso-ta; City National Bank, Chicago, Illinois; Allen, Stevens & Co., New York City. add. "The CHRISTIAN REGISTER-the Unitarian paper published in this city-shows every week that dulness is not a necessary accom-paniment of a people who build mainly on a literature. The vivacity and humor which make The Registrac welcome to the 'masses' would have been thought something quite unseemly in the days of Channing and Ware. Its columns are liberally flavored with the best kind of nature, which, always and every-where, is human nature." - Unitersalist. BOSTON DAILY GLOBE. I E S D A  $\mathbf{L}$ THE Eureka Machine Twist, CIRCULATE ! Circulate ! | Circu-Late THOSE PETITIONS. Don't feel atta-fied when your petition is a yard long, unleas you have asked every one to sign it. Get good, influ-ential names. 50 and 100 Yard Spools, AND THE The Best The above are a few of the comments be-GET EVEBYBODY. Button-Hole Twist, Don't neglect to show the petition to say one, because he is a stockholder in some church, or other exempted property as many such persons admit the justice of the demand; and those who will not should be made to take the responsibility stowed of late upon Eureka THE CHRISTIAN REGISTER, 10 Yard Spools, Newspaper whether rightfully or not every man should be his own judge, and in order that all may will not should be made to take the responsibility of refusing to sign it. Don't delay! We want the petitions returned early. ARE THE BEST IN USE. For Sale at all Trimming Stores. have an opportunity of forming an honest opinion, the publishers agree to send the Per order of EXEC. COMM. of the BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE. O N . 8 NT D E paper FREE FOR SIX WEEKS SOUL OF THINGS; I C ĸ S OR PSYCHOMETEIC RESEARCHES AND DISCOV ERIES. to all who will send their addresses to the ofto all who will send their addresses to the of-floce, No. 7 Tremont Place, Boston. This is no trap to got your name on the sub-scription books, and continue sending the paper whether you wish it or not, but a bona de offer made in good faith, with the hope that, after six weeks' reading, the persons receiving it will so appreciate its contents that they may become regular subscribers. Try it; it will cost you only three cents for a letter stamp or one cent for a postal card to orderese us, and we shall pre-pay postage on TRIES. The second and third volumes are now ready. They contain important discoveries in Astronomy, Geography, Geology, Arche-ology, History, Bottany, and Zollogy, which are presented in such a form as to be instruc-tive and interesting to all classes. First vol., 370 pp., sixth edition.....\$1.50 Second vol., 450 pp., 03 engravings... 2.00 Third vol., 370 pp., 112 sugravings... 2.00 Fork where he seconds to itself. Three FLORAL GUIDE Boston or New England, FOR 18 7 4. 200 Pages, 500 Engravings and Colored Plate. Third vol., 370 pp., 112 sugravings.... 2.00 Each volume is complete in itself. Three volumes, §5. Second and third volumes, \$3.50 post-paid. Send for circular. Agents want-ed. Address W. DENTON or ELIZABETH M.F. DENTON, Box 1490, Boston, Mass. They are probably as interesting books as ever were written, and as novel and true as they are interesting. Published Quarterly at 25 cents a year. First number for 1874 just issued. A German edition at same price. Address address us, and we shall pre-pay postage on JAMES VICK, Bochester, N. Y. UNSECTARIAN, AND the paper. The REGISTER is published at \$3 per year "REST IS THE CHEAPEST." by SACRED MUSIC BOOKS. THE CHRISTIAN REGISTER ASSOC'N, PROGRESSIVE NO. 7 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. CORTICELLI T. J. MUMFORD, Editor. THE STANDARD. GEO. H. ELLIS, Business Agent. A COLLECTION OF SACRED MUSIC FOE CHOIRS, CONVENTIONS, AND SINGING SCHOOLS. SPOOL SILK. PROF. MAX MUELLER. Sir Arthur Heijs, Prof. Tru-dall, Lord Lytion, Prof. Hux-ley, Fritz Bentier, Mrs. Oli-piant, Dr. W. B. Carpenies, Chatrian, Ivan Trugtonieff, Matthew Arnold, Miss Thuck-enzy, Miss Mutock, R. A. Proc-tor, Julia Kavanagh, Jean Ingelow, George MacDonuli, Frande, and Wildehme art a few uf the eminent anthony haldy represented in the pages of Size, Length, and Quality warranted. TRY IT ONE MONTH. Price \$1.50. \$13.50 per dozen By L. O. EMERSON of Boston, and H. R. PALM. EB of Chicago. Sold by leading Jobbers and Retailers. Prof. Emerson in the East and Prof. Palm-er in the West are quite unequalled as Lead-ers and Composers. THE STANDARD, the re-sult of the united labors of such men, cannot fall to be used universally in the whole coun-try. NONOTUCK SILK CO., \$5 for Six Months. SOLE MANUFACTURERS. \$1 for One Month. try. BOSTON OFFICE-No. 2 Bedford Street. Raumbach's Sacred Quartets. Baumbach's New Collection. Buck's Motetic Collection. Buck's Second Motetic Collection. Triaity Collection. Hodges and Tucker SPECTRUM ANALYSIS LITTELL'S LIVING AGE. THE WEEKLY GLOBE In 1874, THE LIVING AGE will furnish to its eaders the productions of the ablest au-EXPLAINED. Price of each book, in cloth, \$2.75; in boards, readers the productions of the ablest an-thors, above named and many others, as contained in the narivalled periodical lit-erature of Europe; embracing the best An explanation of this wonderful discov-The above five books are filled with musi-of rare excellence, suited to Quartet and other choirs. ery, and its uses to science, including the re ceived Theory of Bound, Heat, Light, and Contains 56 columns of Beading Mat-Fiction by the Leading Novelists, and the most valuable literary and scientific matter of the day, from the pens of the All books sent, post-paid, for retail price. Color; with chapters on the Sun, Stars, Nebulæ, Comets, and Meteoric Showers. Nebula, Comets, and Meteoric Showers. Abridged from the works of Schellen, Roster, and is the Chespest Weekly OLIVER DITSON & CO., FOREMOST ESSAYISTS, SCIENTISTS, CRITICS, DISCOVERERS, AND EDI-BOSTON. coe, Huggins, Lockyer, Young, and others, by the editor of Half-Hour Recreations in Paper in the world CHARLES H. DITSON & CO., TORS, 711 Broadway, New York. Popular Science representing every department of Knowl-edge and Progress. A weekly magazine of sixty-four pages, The LIVING AOR gives more than TO \$20 PER DAY easily made of the second \$5 TO \$20 PER DAY easily made 12mo., cloth, with two colored plates and twenty illustrations. \$1.50. AT Three and a Quarter Thousand Address THE INDEX. Three and a Quarter Thousand double-column octavo pages of reading-mat-fer years, it presents in an inexponsive form, considering its great amount of mat-ter, with freshness, owing to its weekly issue, and with a Satisfactory Completeness attempted by an other publication, the best Essays, Reviews, Criticisms, Scriedtift, Bio-graphical, Ristorical, and Political Informa-tion, from the entire body of foreign Period-ical Literature. It is, herefore, invaluable to every Ameri-arceader, as the only complete as well as fresh compliation of a generally inaccessible public bodispensable current literature, -invis-pensable because it embraces the productions of the 1 Tremont Place, Boston. THE REFORMATOR. ONLY \$2.00 A YEAR. A WEERLY JOURNAL. For the dissemination of useful knowledge, and the enlightenment of the people on political, religious, and cial subjects, with a Address view to reform. GLOBE PUBLISHING Co., Published in the German language Ablest Living Writers. "In view of all the competitors in the field, I should certainly choose The Living Ane." -Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. ery Saturday, at Adrian, Mich. Principal office at Adrian, Mich., to which all letters and communications must be ad-dressed. "A pute and perpetual reservoir and foun-tain of entertainment and instruction."-Hon. Robert C. Withrop. "The best periodical in America."-Rev. Dr. Cuyler. 92 Washington Street, C. LOHMANN & SON, Pub's. Cupter. Now is the time to subscribe, beginning with the New Folume and New Year. Published weekly at 38 a year, free of post-dge, on receipt of which sam for 1874 the jact six numbers of 1873 will be sent grafts to new subscribers; or, for 810, any one of the Am-erican \$4 Monthlies (or Harper's Weekly) on Bazar, or Appleton's Journal, weekly) will be sent with THE LYING AGE for a year; or, for \$9, Tite LYING AGE for a year; or, for Nicholas. Address C. LOHMANN, EDITOR. BOSTON The REFORMATOR circulates in all the principal cities and villages in the United States and Territories, and presents an excellent medium for advertising. Terms of Subscription-\$2 per annum. Advertisements inserted at liberal rates. Subscription and advertisements must be paid in advance.

LITTELL & GAY, Boston.

Denize In Google

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Single Copies Seven Cen

VOLUME 5.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, JANUARY 22, 1874.

WHOLE NO. 213.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other ecclesiastical property shall no longer be exempt from just taration. 2. We demand that the employment of chaphains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisons, systems, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

We demand that all public appropriations for sec-3, tarian addicational and charitable institutions must desse. 4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public achools, whether ostensi-bly as intri-book or arowedly as a book of religious wor-able, shall be prohibited.

ship, and by producted s. We demand that the appointment, by the President the United States or by the Governors of the various Stat of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease.

a We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and n all other departments of the government shall be abol-hed, and that simple and firmation under the pains and pen-lities of perjury shall be established in its stead.

T. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-

a. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty.
a. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or ad-vantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this ead shall be consistently, unfilmohingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, it is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperiled, the advance of civili-sation impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and religion; and Whereas, Cartain grave inconsistencies with the general spirt of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the prace and prosperity of the entire land; THEREFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-selves together under the following and right, Aux, 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-birds vote of the members. Aux, 5.—Any person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-ment.

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

ment. Anr. 6.-The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Excou-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be loss commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be az-officio delegates to the National Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together. ART.7.-These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths voice of the members present at any reg-ular meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at losat two weeks previous to such meeting.

So far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of THE INDEX. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that it will yet be accepted universally by the American people, as the only platform consistent with religions liberty. A Liberal Lesgue onght to be formed to carry out its princi-ples wherever half a dozen carnest and resolute Liberals can be got together. Being convinced that the movement to secure compliance with these just "Démands" mus surely, even if slowly, spread, I hope to make THE INDE must s means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and active co-operation of every man and every woman who be-lieves in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-port promptly the names of their Presidents and Secretaries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion as that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are right, let their organized voice be heard like the sound of many waters.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor. BOSTON, Sept. 1, 1873.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page. RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTS POB THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CON-STITUTION.

ARTICLE 1.

ARTOLE 1. SECTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-tablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or abridg-the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dow-emment for a redress of grievances. BROTHON 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting any of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dovernment for a redress of grievances. No religious and no person shall ever to required as condition of suffrage, or as and no person shall ever the range State be deprived of any of or the performance of any public or private duty, or ren-der discompetent to give evidence in any court of law or or quilt, is consequence of any onlink on the or she may hold on the subject of religion. BROTHON ----ONG real have power to enforce the pro-relistions of the second section of this Article by appropri-

GLIMPSES.

THE PROPOSED new Constitution of Kentucky provides for the education of "all the children of this Commonwealth above six years of age."

A PETITION for provisions in the new Constitution of Ohio which shall ensure religious instruction in the common schools in receiving signatures in that State.

THE RADICAL CLUB had a very interesting and instructive essay from Mr. Potter last Monday, at Mrs. Sargent's, on the Ecclesiastical and Scientific Views of Tradition.

THE BOSTON Daily News argues for exempting churches from taxation. There is Mrs. Partington; but where is her brogm? She seems to use her fingers in this case.

THE "Broad Gauge Church," of Salem, Ohio, will hold a celebration of the birthday of Thomas Palne on January 29, on which occasion Mr. B. F. Underwood will deliver an address.

DEAN STANLEY is threatened with a law-suit to test the legality of allowing Prof. Max Müller to speak in Westminster Abbey. Which will be hurt the most-Dean Stanley or the law?

THE HIGH CHURCH people of England are so audacious as to talk of disciplining the Queen for partak-ing of the "Lord's Supper" with the Presbyterians. Why don't they discipline Jesus for partaking of it with Judas?

THE METHODISTS ask for $144,150 for "church ex tension" in 1874,-which shows that an extended church depends on extensive money. The sum is not too much to give in a good cause; but opinions will differ as to the special goodness of this one.

SAMSON IS SAID to have made a tremendous sensa tion among his enemies by tying fire-brands to the tails of three hundred foxes, and turning them loose into the corn-fields of the Philistines. The American Unitarian Association has accomplished the same result among its own ministers with only one Fox.

"GIVEN THAT the Catholic Church is a human institution, and nothing can be more surely predicated than her downfall." So says the Catholic Union, trusting that the Church is a divine institution. But reason refuses to consider her other than human. What fate, then, is in store for Catholicism?

ACCORDING TO Professor Schem's latest statistics, there are in the whole world 200,200,000 Roman Catholics, 106,300,000 Protestants, and 81,900,000 Greek and Oriental Christians. Christianity thus numbers (in a very loose way) 388,400,000 adherents out of an estimated world-population of 1,376,400,-000

SIXTY MINISTERS in New York have salaries of $5,000 or upwards. Ten of them get $10,000 or upwards. But it is probably true that the best men in the ministry are the poorest paid. It is not unobtru-sive worth that commands the highest salaries, but generally the "smartest" tongues or the most fashionable manners.

THE BOSTON LIBREAL LEAGUE will hold a public meeting to-morrow evening, Friday, Jan. 23, at the Parker Fratarnity Hall, corner of Berkeley and Appleton Streets, at 7 1-2 o'clock. The hearty thanks of the League are due to the Parker Fraternity for their generosity in affording the use of their noble Hall gratuitously. Let there be a rousing meeting. No one should be absent who is interested in the movement.

THE GERMAN novelist Freytag, in the magazine Im Neuen Reich, says of the struggle between the Papacy and the Empire: "This is no longer a struggle among men which may end in compromises and mutual tolerance, but it is a hostile collision of the two greatest ideas at which humanity has worked for nearly two thousand years. On the one side, the modern national State; on the other, the medieval absolute domi-nation over the souls of Christendom." The struggle between the Papacy and the Empire, however, is only one phase of the greater struggle between Christianity and Humanity. The true antithesis of the Church is the Republic, not the Empire; for the Church and the Empire both rest on the idea of personal government. Germany cannot carry out her struggle to its logical conclusion without establishing a true democratic republic. May she not be so dazzled by the military glories of the Empire as to forget her destiny !

THE BOSTON Pilot (Catholic) recently quoted Prof. Agassiz as authority for asserting that a majority of the professional prostitutes of Boston owed their fall to their attendance at the public schools. The Cleveland (Ohio) Leader in reply published a letter from Prof. Agassiz to Rev. T. B. Forbush, of that city, in which the former explicitly denied the statement attributed to him. The Pilot retorts that the statement in question was contained in an address delivered by the Professor before the Massachusetts State Teachers' Association in Lowell Institute, Boston, on Oct. 19, 1871; and it cites an editorial article in the Boston Herald, of Oct. 20, which (apparently) refers to this address. The Pilot also publishes a letter from Mr. P. R. Bliss, a pupil of Prof. Agasaiz, who asserts that his instructor explicitly declared to him that, "in a majority of cases," the inmates of several houses of prostitution he had visited in his investigations "ascribed their fall to the licentions influences imbibed while pupils of the public schools." Now who is this Mr. P. R. Bliss, and what is his testimony worth as against Prof. Agassiz's own letter to Mr. Forbush? This letter, dated Cambridge, Oct. 18, 1873, says: "The item regarding the causes of the fall of the women of Boston, which you sent me some time ago, is a base invention and slander, which I should long ago have exposed, did I not shrink from a discussion with that class of people who indulge in such insinuations." If Agassiz's own word is good for anything, this outrageous imputation on our public schools ought to be universally branded as it deserves, though all the Catholics in Christendom swore to it. But if Mr. Bliss is to be trusted, it behooves the people of Massachusetts to institute an investigation of their schools so thorough as to ferret out the truth in a matter of such terrible moment. We have little doubt that the origin of the whole charge is Catholic hostility to free secular schools; but if not, it concerns every parent to know the truth. Was Prof. Agassiz's address ever published in full? If so, we shall be grateful for a copy of it. A graver ques tion cannot be conceived than one which involves the moral influence of our public schools,

LIST OF LIBEBAL LEAGUES

38

ST. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, Freeldent; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Scoretaries. BORTON, MASS.-J. S. Rogars, President; J. F. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Scoretaries. JEFFERDON, OBLO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Represented. Becretary. SAN JOEF, CAL-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Secretary. retary. Do, Iowa.-J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre-TOLE tary. VINELAND, N. J.-John Gage, President; Sus M. Clute, Secretary. JUNOTIONVILLE, NEE.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Secretary. OLATHS, KAN.-S. B. M. Wilson, President; H. A. Grimn, retary, MOR. -W. E. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, Setary. DETR BESEDAVILLE, MICH.-A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. BREEDWILLE, MUCH. L. K. Morrison, President; M. Roderick, Knowles, Secretary.
 Oscocota, Mo.-B. F. Thompson, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary.
 BATR, MR.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary, E. M.
 BRELLS, Win.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M.
 Bridgman. Osceo

(For THE INDEX.) What is Christianity, and What Is It to ## be a Christian?

A DISCOURSE BY W. J. POTTER, DELIVERED BEFORE HIS SOCIETY AT NEW BEDFORD, DEC. 28, 1873.

HIS SOCIETY AT NEW BEDFORD, DEC. 28, 1878. Could we have been in the region of Western Asia eighteen hundred and seventy-three years ago this Christmas season, we should have stood right among the most powerful of the religions which the world has known. Still, I do not suppose that the wisest of us would have been able to detect in any of the passing events and incidents of the time anything so estroordinary as to betoken the advent of a new re-ligion,—so hidden, noiseless, and subile are the forces in which the great movements of history al-ways begin. As little could we have detected in the landing of a small ehip-load of Puritans in the wil-derness of Massachusetts, two and a half centuries so the force that was to transform that wilderness to cities and farms and a civilized common wealth ; and as little, hundreds or thousands of years before has a so of the time that primeval forest into which the present of the the atmosphere around him the lapse of time that primeval forest into which the preset force set, both in the world of Nature and outbreaks and earthquake shocks of revolution; but these, when we look at the long courses of history whether of mankind or of the material creation, are yound neither to have much helped nor retarded the tores, knew we look at the long courses of history whether of mankind or of the material creation, are yound neither to have much helped nor retarded the tores. Revolution may seem to have accompliable tores. Revolution may seem to have accompliable to be observer finds that progress by ecolution is the loser observer finds that progress by ecolution is the outs man reliance.

response of the second second

Augustus had sent out from Rome, and on account of which Bethlehem village was then in unusual com-motion. Thus they would have talked, and have little thought that the soil they were treading was that moment full of the germinating seeds of a new religious movement vaster, considering the whole compass of its consequences, than the world had ever known.

that moment full of the germinating seeds of a new religions movement vaster, considering the whole compass of its consequences, than the world had ever known. And what were some of these elemental forces which were thus in process of germination, but so secretly and silently as to escape observation until student of Christianity of whatever creed will now, I believe, affirm that all these forces were contained in that little life which, wrapped in swaddling-clothes, lay there in the manger. Infant Christianity was not by any means wholly in the infant Jeaus. However important and necessary his life may have been to its growth and development, Christianity began to be-at least the elements whence it sprang began—before he was born. And had our travellers been gifted with a subtlety of insight that could have matched the subject of their talk ingread of King Herod's probable death and Augustus Casar's tar-decree. And yet in those very names, Herod and Casar, they unconsciously touched some of the elements that were working toward the formation of a new religion. For it was largely through the spread of the Roman Empire under the Casars, by which the partition-walls between nations, races, religions, and cultures were broken down, and people of different civilla-tions, of different stocks and worships and modes of thought and living, were brought together into a bitherito unsccutatomed acquaintance and intimacy, that the way was prepared for the broader religious ideas and larger fellowship which Christianity intro-duced and grafted upon the old Hebrew faith: nay, let me asy that it was by this new acquaintance of the hitherito separated nations and faithe that theee broader religious ideas and larger spiritual fellowship wrife core from Casar Augustus that all the world should be taxed.'' "All the world" (that was con-sidered of any account) had then come under the sway of one government. And this aimost universal unity of civil rule has a direct historical connection with the universality of the religious old exclusiveness and isolation. And as a matter of fact, the Jews had been losing, for several centuries before the Christian era, in spite of all their efforts to resist the process, very much of this isolation and exclusiveness. First, by their cap-tivity in Babylon they had come into contact with the then powerful faith of Persia, by which their own re-ligion became modified in some very important par-ticulars; of which there is clear evidence in the apoc-ryphal Old Testament and in the New Testament representation of the doctrines of the Pharisees, the largest and most popular of the Jewish sects at the iculars; of which there is clear evidence in the apoc-ryphal Old Testament and in the New Testament representation of the doctrines of the Pharisees, the largest and most popular of the Jewish sects at the time of the advent of Jesus. Notably, for instance, the important doctrine of immortality, to which there is little reference in the canonical Old Testament, is found clearly stated in the apocryphal Old Testa-ment, and, coupled with the doctrine of the bodily resurrection of the dead, was the common belief of the Pharisees before, during the captivity in Persia. From the same source appear to have come the doc-trines of a day of judgment, of a satanic power, and of demoniac possession, of angels as messengers between heaven and earth, and of an irrepressible conflict in the universe between two essentially hostile princi-ples, good and evil, light and darkness. Then, later, when the Roman Empire extended its sway in the East and Judea became a province of the Casars, Judaism was brought into a very different contact with the religion, philosophy, and culture of the the Western world,—that is, with the thought and faith of Greece, especially as these had found expression in the Noo-platonic philosophy of the city of Alex-andria, whither many of the Jews went when the boundaries of their old nation were invaded and broken down. From this source, in particular, came the doctrine of the Logos, or the Divine Word, which plays such an important part in the fourth Gospel, and was the root whence aprang the doctrine of the miraculous incarnation of Jesus, and afterwards that of the Trinity. This Logos doctrine, too, became a very important agency in splitualizing the Jewish Messianic idea, and hence helped largely to commend Christianity to the Western Gentile mind, to which that idea in its literal and original form was a great stumbling block.

that idea in its literal and original form was a great stumbling block. We see, then, that, first by the exile in Babylon, and then by the spread of the Roman Empire, in that little strip of country in Western Asia, eighteen hun-dred and seventy-three years ago, several distinct streams of social, civil, and religious life had come to confluence, and were interminging in numberless ways their constituent elements. Here were not only three great and influential faiths of the ancient world,

374. but two of the three great race-stocks, the Shemitic and the Aryan, contributed the results of their thought and experience to the common mass of im-presalons that went into the life of the day. These different elements of thought and faith, these one separate forces of spiritual influence, now brought to-gether, and having been more or less Intermingling for years and generations already, could not help but act and react upon each other, thus silently ahaping the separate forces of the chaotic mass into a new faith, and generating a new and more hospitable and more salubrious spiritual atmosphere. And King Herod himself, who, in spite of bis selfish intrigues and bar-barous cruelties, was yet an able and for the set a cultivated man, and who was a faithful vicery to Rome, was a direct helper to this result. While workship, he yet welcomed foreigners to Jerusalem, especially cherished anything that savored of Greek and Roman culture, and opened the sacred city freely to hagan forms of workip. And in the midst of all his comingling of faiths, ideas, sentiments, old the ditions and tottering institutions, there was that won-which pointed to a Messianic deliverer, - the speedy coming of asome person who was to be the lawfully and generating and restore the Hebrew theoracy in all the comingling of faiths, ideas, sentiments, old the distors and recognized king of the Jews, and was do a foreign power and restore the Hebrew theoracy in all the glory of its ancient sovereignty. Thus may we sketch the chief of the elements materials which, eighteen and three-quarters centuries provinces of Asia as silently taking their places in the formation of a new system of faith: and these are the distormation of a new system of faith: and these are the distormation of a mental and applicitual Influences on the sources of Asia as all she and applicitual influences on the sources of Asia and spinitual influences and the sources of Asia and spinitual influences on the sourmation of a mental and applicitual influences on the

came. Into this time, with its rare comminging of beliefs and traditions, of mental and spiritual influences pre-viously operating apart, Jeaus was born. Amid this rare combination of religious elements he was bred and grew up to manhood, sharing with his country-men the Messianic expectation. Well-born, though of peasant stock, learning little probably from books, more from observation of man and nature, and more still from the depths of his own consciousness and from that spirit of wisdom which voices itself through the human soul, he crew up a rare religious gening of peasant stock, learning little probably from book, more from the depths of his own conscioueness and from that spirit of wisdom which voices itself through the human soul, he grew up a rare religious genius and prophet—the man for the hour. Reformer and saint in one person, combining a masculine robut-ness of energy with womanly gehtleness, a sage intuitive perception of truth with a philanthropist-love of blessing his fellow-men, he became the fitting prophet of the time, and was to hundreds and thou-sands of souls the gratefully accepted fulfilment of their Messianic expectations. Not so much creating the era as its product, he was yet a true representaire of the era. The elements of the new faith were all there, we may say, brought together by natural causes. But his strong personality supplied the fu-ing, magnetic touch that was needed to set these ele-ments into the attitude of crystallization. Taking bis teachings and life together, his character combined in fine proportions the various constituents of the new faith that was springing into existence, so that he be came its natural representative and interpreter to be popular mind: while the Jewish Messianic commi-sion, which at last, after some apparent hesitation, he claimed to possess, though doubtless in a spiritul sense, gave him the necessary instrumentality for se-curing a firm hold for his teaching upon the popular heart. And this claim, made by him or for him, that he was the expected Messiah, became the organic ce-tre around which the new religion shaped itself. To confees bim to be the Messiah, the Christ, was the one outward test of discipleship; and, after his dealh, upon this confession by his followers that he was the Christ, the Church began to be organized, and from this confession the new-born religion, after a few years, was name Christianity, -menning, logically and chas assimilated itself to the culture and temper-ament of nations that at first resisted its onto diso for modern civilization, thereby undergoing very im-po

Note: A tring and Lord, as an exceptionally commu-sioned Revealer of spiritual truth to the world. Were I therefore to sum up an answer to the que-tion, What is Christianity ?—considering it, as an an-swer true to the philosophy of history ought to con-sider it, in its sources antecedent to its actual organ-ization as well as in its historic career since the primi-tive days of its birth, my answer would be, if I may be allowed to quote substantially from a statement I have previously made in print, that it is "fa fluent apiritual force, the momentum and resultant of may confluent religious and moral ideas, and of many gen-erations of thought and sentiment and action,—not confined to Hebrew history alone, nor beginning with Jesus, yet coming to specific organization and activity through the instrumentality of the Hebrew Messianic idea, and through the great religious genius and pow-er of the Hebrew prophet, Jesus of Nazareth, as the accepted representative of the Messianic office; not leaping, however, as a complete, organic system even from his brain and heart, but enlarging and es-sentially transforming the Messianic conception, its sentially transforming the Messianic conception, its

Biglion , GOOGLE

 THEM:

hat a special revelation of religious truth was made through Moses which has never been superseded; while Christianity claims that another revelation was made through Jesus abrogating in some respects, and only enlarging in others, the law of Moses. Looking, sean, at certain moral and spiritual truths, such as faith in divine Providence, belief in the spirituality of Deity, the perception of moral obligation and of moral obligation as superior to mere outward religious ob-servance, the hope and conviction of immortality, we find them allike in Judaism, Christianity, Brahmin-ism, Mohammedanism, and other religions : in these truth, though they may be differently expressed and emphasized, these religions are one. But in respect to the specific claims made for persons, prophets, sared books, forms of worship, they separate and oppose each other. Now there is a tendency among the liberal and pro-gressive minds of all faiths to define their religion by its universal rather than by its special beliefs,—to proclaim, in fact, its universal truth to be its distin-guishing characteristic, and to leave out of view the special doctrines that have given it a distinct career in history. This tendency, from a practical point of view, is exceedingly encouraging, as showing that lib-eral minds of all religions are coming into essential agreement on the great fundamental principles of faith and morals, and are actually forgetting the bar-firer that have been keeping their religions apart. But if one cares for accuracy in historical truth, the buildoophy and the facts of history. "Love to God and man" may be, for example, the most important element in Christianity; but it is simply untrue to say that it is its distinguishing element, since the sentiment, as well as the phrase itself, is expressly bor-rowed from Judaism, and the idea is found in other religions. Nor is it apy adequate account of the his-torical beginning of Christianity to say that Jesus preached and illustrated thits idea with special em-phasis, though h world. But the point here considered can be best illus-trated, perhaps, under the form of another question, What is it to be a Christian? Wendell Phillips, to give an example of one of the most liberal answers to bis question, thinks that the essence of Christianity is in one line of the New Testament: "Bear ye one * Essay on "Christianity and its Definitions" in The Rad-ical, for February, 1870,--in which, and in an Essay on "The Ratoral Genesia of Christianity," published in the Anoual Report of the Free Religious Association for 1871, the main likes of this discourse were stated and further elaborated.

INDEX -- JAN. 22, 1

thaily the same answer. There is a difference of words, but the words are defined as identical in mean-ing. Now, such definition, while it is to be welcomed as showing that dogmatism and bigotry and sectarian-ism are passing away, and that all the great faiths of the world are slowly converging to common grounds of fellowship, does not seem to me logical in theory nor just in practice: not logical in theory, because it leaves out of view just that which has given rise to the religious names to be defined, and makes the ac-tual distinction between them; and not just in prac-tice, because it assumes, or appears to do so, that a quality of character and life, which is the aim of all the great religions, and is really found to some extent in all, is the exclusive property of one, and may rightly be defined by the universal elements which each in-cludes, then why insist on the necessity of keeping so many different names? And if the names are insist-ed upon, then is there not some underlying special claim to authority made by those thus insisting, for their own religious name over that of others, though it be not confessed in their definition? Once I was disposed, like Mr. Phillips and many claim to authority made by those thus insisting, for their own religious name over that of others, though it be not confessed in their definition? Once I was disposed, like Mr. Phillips and many other liberal minds of Christendom, to say that to be a Christian was simply to love God and man, and to ex-hibit that love in character and life as Jesus did; that it was to stand in his attitude of filial trust and obedi-ence to divine power, and of fraternal helpfulness to-wards humanity. As to the narrower theological meanings that are commonly given to the word in the Evangelical sects of Christendom, these I never ac-cepted. I could not believe that to be a Christian if was necessary to have faith in the stoning blood of Jesus, or to adopt any other of the peculiar Orthodox doctrines concerning him, or to pass through any process of so-called "conversion." I did not see, as I do not to-day, that Jesus taught any of the theo-logical systems that have been popularly accepted in the Christian Church; but it appeared to me, as it still does, that though he taught some things which my reason cannot accept, the great emploxis of his teaching was against a theological and ecclesiastical type of religion, and for a religion that should be em-inently moral, spiritual, practical. Hence it seemed to me that to be a Christian, or a follower of Christ, was to strive after these gracious, spiritual virtues which he possessed,—to have his disinterested ear-nestness and devotion, his gentleness, his purity, his power to rebuke iniquity, his love and self-acrifice; it was to live like him, to bear witness to the truth, and to go about doing good to one's.follow men. And doubtless there are many calling themselves "Christian" to day to whom this definition suffices. But when I came to see that many Jews, and Buddhist, a true Mohammedan, and so forth, was to have these rycommissioned revealer of religious truth, and to set spart the religious which dates likel from his birth as having a different authority from that of the other selicitions of the world. "I have been born in the limits of Christendom and of Christian genealogy. All who are thus descended in born, no matter what their opinious or character, are counted in the census of the world as "Christians," But this is rather a civil than an ecclesisation or theological use of the world. In this sense one work of the world as "Christian," Much least is it a religious so the world, as "Christian," Much least is it a religious that they even with a blasphemous oath, and with a low, that they were "Christians," and no such "rite stoke" as Jews and Pagane! But such a claim to the world the diam of mere genealogy—probably no church would recognize as valid unless something low that all the people of Christendom, who have been born ab bed under any kind of spiritual influences, have imbibed something from Christianity, and have been born ab bed under any kind of spiritual influences, and bred under any kind of spiritual influences, and bred under any kind of spiritual influences, and the very substance of their being. And or give there comes anothing from Christianity, a spirit is fact of energing and growth of Christianity, they think they have a sufficient tile to the "Christian" name. This fact of spiritual influences and the inference as to the name; and in direct prival inductions the logic that draws the inference as to the name; and in direct prival connection with Christianity, and they have the spiritual connection with the start field with the start of the spiritual connection with christianity, and they have the been born whore the shall cont the they have a sufficient tile to the "Christian" name. This fact of spiritual inductions the inference as to the name; and in direct prival commender where the religion which bears his name, not withis that have a there of the spiritual connection with christianity, and thave of the early Church, "Peace on earth, good-will to men." But I like to remember, too, that this Christmas featival, which popularly is believed to celebrate only Christian truths and traditions, has elements which can be directly traced to other sources. The evergreens with which we deck our dwellings and the churches are a relic of a custom among the Druids of ancient Britain; the domestic Christmas tree hung with gifts seems to have its roots in the soil of ancient German traditions; and many of the merry features of the featival—probably the very date of it—have their ancestry in the Saturnalis of pagan Rome. So, sithough Jeans stands the central majestic figures in the celebration of the day, the celebration also shows how wide and deep run the roots of the religious be-liefs and institutions in which we have been bred, and furnishes a beautiful testimony to the unity of feligious development and the solidarity of religious faith. faith faith. And now these various religions of the world seem to have come to that point in their development, or are rapidly approaching it, when, in order to attain this ideal aim of unity and peace, they are destined to shed their mutually conflicting and antagonistic claims. These in the past have had their use, but are now fast being outgrown. The tendency of which I have spoken, to define the religions by their universal rather than by their special elements, is ev-idence that the several faiths are advancing towards

8744. 39

Digitized a GOOGLE

INDEX-JAN. 22, 1874. THE 40 this era of reconciliation. When such liberal minds as those from whom I have quoted shall come to see that under their different names they are including really, the same ideas and aiming at the same practi-cal good, they will not long suffer the names, which, are a reminder of differences no longer existing, to keep them spart. The names will drop off, as natu-rally as leaves are shed in autumn. Or if the name shall linger, as sometimes we may see leaves linger-ing upon a tree even into spring, it is sure to be pushed off when the new spring of faith shall really orme. The old elements of religion, which to many seem to be decaying, are as alive as they ever wave. They are leaving old creeds and institutions, but they are silently entering into new combinations for a pe-riod of fresh growth and productiveness. But mean-time, let those who are not yet ready to drop the application operative in the word "Christian" is so of other possible. Let them put into it all the good ideas, by which earnest-minded, true-hearted, and of othe possible. Let them put into it all the good ideas, by which earnest-minded, true-hearted, and of other religious names do the same thing. And ere long the broad and good meanings will burst the ves-ses is that have been holding them, and the sweet in-cense will be waited from church to church and from man to man, and by the freed common fragrance will be discovered that the faiths so differently named are no longer strangers and enemies, but frends and brothers.

HORTICULTURAL HALL LECTURES.

"THE UNCONSCIOUS SIDE OF OUR LIFE."

BY SAMUEL LONGFELLOW.

DY SAMUEL LONGFELLOW. mind. This is not the result of art but the visibility of art. We hear of the art which conceals art, but art becomes concealed by concealing itself, and thus be-coming latent. There is one thing which is as im-portant as to get training; that is, to forget ii. Rules have their uses, but they are the outgrowth of ex-perience, not its creator, as language came before grammar, reason before logic, or the star before as-tronomy. Before becoming useful a man's learning must become assimilated in knowledge. All organic action appears to us more free than intended action. The speech of an orator is not eloquent, and does not carry us with it until it has carried him with it. This it is which lifts mechanical work into artistic creation. Genius is but the happy organization which makes the recurrent and frequent. There are few men so well born but that they must pass through the stage of self-discipline. Virtue does not become that good-ness and holiness we love until the stage of discipline has passed and virtue becomes organic and spontane-ous. Perhaps this may be the truth in regart to the doctrime of the churches relating to regeneration; but light but that which passes through church windowa, no pure water except from church spouts; by their evangelical fires. Not merely is spontanelty the re-sult of self-discipline, but also the result of methods. We must trust ourselves. The realm of influences is set over against the realm of effort. We do not become sponde of much by trying to be good as by forgetting ourselves and our goodness; just as bodies grow, not so much by exprise as by the influences of light and air and electricity which they absorb. Who does not bring out unconsciously whit is best in us, of others what is worst, and of others who chill and repress aver of Characters are moulded by the character of the society and community in which they live; nor by the TINDER -JAN. 2%, 1 ommunities alone, but by the whole realm of spirite. There are secret and mysterious influences which and true. The first is that unconsciousness there are two which which our natures would not be healthful and true. The first is that unconsciousness there are two which we seek. And so we ought to allow the influence and unsought, because we otherwise lay ourselves per to all conditions of error and untruth. Another is of the conscious will we give ourselves up to im-pressing. No man has the right to give up self-control in the conscious will we give ourselves up to im-the the must always keep his sceptre within reach. We are not to give up our control even to the Shi reader the must always keep his sceptre within reach. We are not to give up our control even to the Shi reader on the give up our control even to the Shi reader whils. Selfshness, not seld, must be exiting the the door of the conscious will. We must be and at the door of the conscious will. We must be and at the door of the conscious will. We must be an at the door of the conscious will. We must be an at the door of the conscious will. We must be an at the door of the conscious will. We must be an even in his dim and perious way; period the side in the side in math els. We cannot the there in his retribution—while we work out our be to fue the in his dim and perious way; period the in help as in retribution to warn us back to the be in help as in retribution while we work out our the side in the in thelp and way hell of passion or disobedience but the in genius is now satisfied. We cannot penetrate be-

"LOUIS AGASSIZ, TEACHER."

<text>

"He was like the sun giving me life; Pouring into the caves of my young brain Knowledge from his bright fountains."

Boston Daily Globe.

VINELAND LIBERAL LEAGUE.

VINELAND, Jan. 6, 1874.

The Vineland League met as usual in Plum Street

The Vineland League met as usual in Plum Street Hall, the President in the chair. The minutes of last meeting were read and ap-proved. The Secretary read a communication from the Boston Liberal League, and a tract published by them entitled "An Appeal for Equal Taxation and no Exemption." It is a valuable document, plainly setting forth the dangerous tendencies towards a moneyed ecclesisticiam fostered by the present system of church exemption.

moneyed eccleatasticiam toatered by the present system of church exemption. Dr. Coonley reported a conversation held with one of the teachers in the Normal School at Trenton, re-garding the use of the Bible in the public schools, which, while it showed a clinging to old habits, plain-ly indicated a desire for more light upon many im-ly indicated a desire for more near upon many apportant topics. The committee in charge of the mass meeting re-ported progress, and proposed holding the adjourned meeting in Merchant's Hall on Tuesday evening next,

Jan 13. The Secretary then read the proposed Religious Freedom Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which was heartily endorsed by the League. Said amendment reads as follows:-

ARTICLE I.

Section 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or favoring any particu-lar form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of references. grievances. Section 2.—No State shall make any law respecting

Section 2.—No State shall make any law respecting an establishment of religion, or favoring any particu-lar form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances. No religious test shall ever be required as a condition of suffrage, or as a qualification to any office or public trust in any State; and no person shall ever in any State be deprived of any of his or her rights, privileges, or capacities, or be disqualified for the performance of any public or private duty or ren-dered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or equity, in consequence of any opinions he or law or equity, in consequence of any opinions he or she may hold on the subject of religion. Section 3.—Congress shall have power to enforce the provisions of the second section of this article by the provisions of the second appropriate legislation. Mr. Edwards proposed to amend our By-Laws so as to hold our meeting the first Tuesday in every month instead of the first and third as heretofore. Adjourned to meet on the first Tuesday in February next. SUE M. CLUTE, Sec'y.

TAXING CHURCHES.

TAXING CHURCHES. A petition is in circulation for the abolition by the Legislature of the exemption of churches from tax-tion. The valuation of meeting-houses in the State of Massachusetts, which are now excumpt from tax-tion, was $22,862,677 in 1870, and is probably now not much less than $25,000,000. If this property were taxed, by the average rate of taxation, it would produce a revenue of from $350,000 to $400,000 a year. Speaking in round numbers, we have a popu-lation of 1,500,000, and the meeting-houses will ac-commodate 900,000. But while the adult population, off from sick beds, might be pretty nearly accommo-dated with easts in the sanctuary, it is a manifest fact that a great many people, who pay taxes and are in their right minds before the law, exercise the sour-eign right of not choosing to be so accommodated. Nevertheless, they have to submit to an annual sub-sidy from the State to the churches of nearly $400, 000. Again, people who prefer to go to church are not all served alike by the State. The occupant of a pew in the modest Adventist chapel is mulcted for all the splendors of the Church of the Unity or of the Memorial, without redress. We admit tall that can be said in favor of the churches. We admit that mubble mease society, and

Memorial, without redress. We admit all that can be said in favor of the churches. We admit that public peace, society, and civilization depend on their maintenance. But we have discovered in America that the vitality of Chris-tlanity is best fostered by making its burdens purely voluntary, and we have adopted the fundamental principle of relieving the State entirely from the care and cost of religious affairs. We do not doubt that the churches are annually worth to the State, in a purely economical sense, vasily more than the taxes amount to, from which they are exempted. But it is nevertheless true that the burden of supporting them does not fall where it ought to, in the republican the-ory of government, and does not harmonize with our other practices. Every argument which can be brought to the support of the exemption of churches from taxation equally justifies the erection and main-tenance of all the meeting-houses at the public ex-pense, and the complete union of Church and State. Of course, as far as the money goes, the loss of the annual subsidy to a special interest in the Common-wealth will not be entirely made up to that special in-terest when the same subsidy is divided among the whole population. If it were otherwise, there would be no injustice to rectify. We do not diaguise the fact that pew-tenants will have to pay more in the church-tax than they will get back in the remission of taxation on their own property. And the more castly and splendid the clurch, the greater will be the disproportion. The repeal, therefore, favors the peo-ple at large as against the churches, and the poorer churches as against the richer. But the appeal to aste his duty to surrender the tax upon his pew and take his place with his fellow-men in bearing the just burdens of the Common wealth.—Springfield Republic can.

GREAT TAXATION AND NO EXEMPTION.

"The Liberal League of Boston" have taken to "tract distributing." Very many of the voters in Massachusetts besides ourselves have found recently in their post-office boxes a little tract with the above title, and some specious sophistry in support of it, which perhaps demands a passing notice. Some plausible reasons are given for aubjecting all church oconsiderations of great moment are entirely omlitted. I. That all this property is used for no pecuniary englit of the conners. They instance Themon Tem-ple, portions of which are used for secular purposes, giving pecunisry returns. Certainly, so far as it is secular, let it be taxed; but according to their own showing, such is now the fact, for when the attention of the assessors was called to this case, a portion of its rahe corresponding to its pecuniary uses was as-sessed. So it may and should be in all cases. But property which makes no claim or effort at pecuniary returns may certainly, with justice, be exempted from taxeton. taration.

taxation.
2. A much stronger claim to exemption is in the fact that this property is contributing, in other ways, a hundred fold more to the protection and welfare of the community than the regular taxation. For instance: the humane societies in New York, with chapels and other buildings, worth a million or two, have searched out and gathered from the slumes of the city 100,000 wretched, vagrant children, who were or would have become thieves, drunkards, and harlots, little them up, and sent them out to respectable homes in the country, saving the city from the cost of supporting that great army in their criminal institutions, and enduring all the sanoyance of their crimes. And yet this "League" would tax those chapels and yet this "League" would tax those chapels and yet this "League" would tax those chapels and on sent in about like taxing the physical for entering your house to save the life of your child. So all church and educational property is used to maintain the great fundamental principles of society. There is not a meeting-house or a schoolrom which is not used to give such lessons as "Be homes," "Be sober," "Work with your own hands," "Steal no more," "Love one another," "Bear one another's burdens," and so is saving to the community a hundred fold more than would be received by taxation. If the "League" wish for society free from the "Listands, or among the Mukwanagoes of Africa.-Boston Daily News, of Jan. 12. 2. A much stronger claim to exemption is in the

"PUNCH" ON THE POTENTATES.

PIUS TO WILLIAM. Your Majesty should be aware, For 'tis a terrible affair, That Bismarck and his atheist crew Are making quite a tool of you, And struggling hard, by force of tricks, To extirpate your Catholics. Sire, really you must mind your eye, Or down your throne comes, by-and-by. I speak the truth to great and small, Heretics, Catholics, and all; For all who've been baptized, you see, Belong, or more or less, to me. You'll come to grief, judicio meo, So, bless you much, dear William. PIUS TO WILLIAM. PIO.

VATICAN, August 7.

WILLIAM TO PIUS. WILLIAM TO PIUS. Your Holiness must have been drugged, Or, say the least of it, humbugged. No minister of mine can go A step ahead, if I say no. But, Holiness, your blessed priests, Jolining with Communistic beasts, Have. II thereo fire, and wildly fanned it; And dash my buttons if I stand it! How Christian clergymen can dare Such things, I neither know nor care; But since they choose to put me to it; I'm to keep order—and I'll do it. The best course you can take's to frown, And bid your priests to knuckle down. As for belonging to a Pope, I'm duy grateful for soft soap, But only know one Mediator Between myself and my Creator. But, notwithstanding credo, still I am, Your peaceful and devoted WILLIA WILLIAM TO PIUS.

WILLIAM.

BEBLIN, September 3.

DE. CARPENTER seems likely to become the next bogey of the theological world. The family of Carpenters is well known as belong-ing to the most conservative branch of the Unitarian denomination, in which two of them are preachers of the old-fashioned sort. He himself has long been supposed to hold the doctrines of that sect in their most moderate and innocent form, and it was, no doubt, on that account that the clergyman of Sion College recently invited him to read a paper before them.

them. I may premise that Sion College is an Anglican and religious institution, wherein the bishops and clergy of London periodically assemble, listen to a paper or lecture, and then discuss the same. There were, on lecture, and then discuss the same. There were, on this last occasion, about one hundred and fifty of the most eminent prelates and clergymen present, and also a sprinkling of scientific men-among them Tyn-dall, who is very often, like a certain personage in the Book of Job, present when the holy ones come together.

also a sprinkling of scientific men-among them Tyn-dall, who is very often, like a certain personage in the Book of Job, present when the holy ones come logether. Dr. Carpenter took for his theme the "Reign of Law," and his treatment of it gave rise to a sensa-tion-I may almost say a scene of nearly a fearful character I It has been hushed up here; no paper would dare to face the ecclesisatical scandal which would be caused by its publication. Dr. Carpenter cast utterly aside the Duke of Argyll's accommoda-tion of the Reign of Law to theological estigencies, and maintained that Nature represented a kingdom of orderly evolution, which had never been invaded by anything arbitrary, pretermatural, or supernatural; and his address ended by the emphatic declaration that all liturgies, litanics, collects and prayers that were ever uttered never had influenced-never could influence-the course of this universe, nor mankind, nor a single individual in the slightest degree. There was a terrible silence when the Doctor sat down. Presently there arose an eminent London clergyman, who said that If he believed the declara-tion just made, he would ascend his pulpit to an nonce that the church would be forever closed from that hour. Then he sat down and another painful silence occurred. All eyes were turned upon the tail, the belongs to the school of thinkers whose motto is, "Truth, whatever the consequence." Then one af-ter another the clergymen rose, and there was a burri-cane of stormy protests. The amount of them was, "The ansender the selement of the company had exhausted themselves, Prof. Tyndall arose, and with a slow and solemn voice eadi-"Tam speaking to men of education and men ef-learning; to men who have read history and observed its a speaking to men of education and men ef-learning; to an have any bellef in the efficacy of prayer to affect this universe in the slightest degree ?" This in Slon College! This to one hundred and fity clergymen who read prayers every day! Only out ascient diverse in the slight

BECEIVED.

Books.

THE SOUL OF THINGS; or, Psychometric Researches and Discoverias. By William Denton. Vol. 111. Boston: Published by Wm. Denton. 1874.

Pamphlets and Periodicals.

- Published by Wm. Denton. 1874.
  Pamphlets and Periodicals.
  The Philosophy or Ebroariox; or, "Pedagogics as a System." By Kail Rovenkrank, Professor of Philosophy in the University of Königsberg. Translated from the German by Anna C. Strackett. St. Louis, Mo.: Gray, Baker & Co. 1874.
  INDIAN PHILOSOPHY. Iniroductory Paper, by William Brockle, author of A Day in the Land of Soct, & C. Condon: Tribner & Co., 60 Paternotet Row. 1872.
  INDIAN PHILOSOPHY. Iniroductory Paper, by William Brockle, author of A Day in the Land of Soct, & C. Condon: Tribner & Co., 60 Paternotet Row. 1872.
  HALF-HOUR REGRATIONA IN NATURAL HISTORY. Part I. Insecto of the Garden; Their Habits, & Ce. By A. S. Packard, Jr. Bosten: Extes & Lauriat, 141 Washington Street, Net. Reverse Educations of the Garden; Their Habits, & Ce. By A. S. Packard, Jr. Bosten: Extes & Lauriat, 141 Washington Street, BALE, HOUR RECERPATIONS IN NOTULAR SURPORC, Dana Kiese, Editor. No. 9. The Stone Age, Past and Present, By E. Rijer, Theory of a Nervous Ether. By Dr. Richardson, F.R.S. Boston: Extes & Lauriat, 140 Washington Street, By E. Richard, Müller at Westminster. Abley on Mission, F.R.S. Boston: Extes & Lauriat, 140 Washington, Street, By B. Rudha. Part I. His Religious Teaching.
  Buddha. Part I. His Religious Teaching.
  The Goapel of Heil Wire.
  Wather Coupletions to the Petition now before the Massachuring opticition to the Petition now before the Massachuring opticities and O Od and New. 1974.
  Porkerr, By Josiah Philips Quince, Boston: Published, by the Foort Edgalakter, to permit the sale of the Old South Church, Ry Josiah Philips Quince, Boston: By Alfred E. Glios. Boston: Published by the Boston Edgal.
  Porkerr, By Kas Keward, Published by the Boston Edgal.
  Patanara Questrox Considered by Lawman Richardson. 1872.
  The Stanara Questrox Considered by Lawman. By Alfred E. Glios. Boston: Printed by Warron Richardson. 1874.
  Maratandues, B

New Music.

New Music. New Sastr Music published by Oliver Ditson & Co., Bos-ton.--Come Again, Bright Days of Yore, by Albert A. Hill --New Year's Galep, by Rud. Aranson--Compositions, by Albert Yungmann-El Freeco Walts, by E. Kate Simmons --Christmas Hells, by G. D. Wilson--Fairy Gondols, by F. Boscovitz--Songr and Ballade sung by Mrs. J. H. Long--the Skipper's Wife, by Louisa Gray--Angels, my Loved One Keep, by Geo. Coopor.--My White Rose, by Louisa Gray--Litle Maid of Arcadee, by Arth. T.S. Salliyan-Lov at Thy Feet, by Miss M. Lindsay--Nobody Home but Me, by Geo. Cooper--When Sparrowe Build, by Virginia Ga-briel.

Hoetry.

41

"LET US ALL BE UNHAPPY ON SUNDAY."

A LYRIC FOR SATURDAY NIGHT.

- Air:-"We bipede, made up of frail clay."
- We realots, made up of stiff clay, The sour-looking children of sorrow,
- While not over-joily to-day, Basolve to be wretched to-morrow. We can't for a certainty tell What mirth may molest us on Monday;
- But, at least, to begin the week well, Let us all be unhappy on Sunday.

That day, the calm season of rest

- Shall come to us freezing and frigid; A gloom all our thoughts shall invest, Such as Calvin would call over-rigid.
- With sermons from morning till night, We'll strive to be decent and dreary;
- To preachers a praise and delight, Who ne'er think that sermons can weary.
- All tradesmen cry up their own wares; In this they agree well together; The mason by stone and lime awears;

- The tanner is always for leather; The smith still for iron would go; The schoolmaster stands up for teaching; And the parson would have you to know
- There's nothing on earth like his preaching. The face of kind Nature is fair;
- But our system obscures its effulgence
- How sweet is a breath of fresh air! But our rules don't allow the indulgence. These gardens, their walks and green bowers,
- Might be free to the poor man for one day; But no, the glad plants and gay flowers Musin't bloom or smell sweetly on Sunday.
- What though a good precept we strain
- Till haterful and burtful we make it! What though, in thus pulling the rein, We may draw it so tight as to break it! Abroad we forbid folks to roum, For fear they get social or frisky;

But of course they can sit still at home, And get dismally drunk upon whiskey.

Then, though we can't certainly tell How mirth may molest us on Monday; At least, to begin the week well, Let us all be unhappy on Sunday.

Blackwood Magarine.

NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS TO INDEX STOCK.

	The second se
	Mrs. F. W. Christern, Richard B. Westbrook	New York City, Sonman, Pa	One s	hare,	$100
	R. C. Spencer,	Milwaukee, Wis.	Two	16	200
	R. W. Howes,	Boston, Mass.	One		100
	Chas. W. Story,	Boston, Mass.		24	100
	E. W. Meddaugh,	Detroit, Mich.	Five	44	800
	Jacob Hoffner,	Cumminsville, O.	One		100
	John Weiss,	Boston, Mass.	15	66	100
l	W. C. Russel,	Ithaca, N. Y.		. 66	100
	A. W. Leggett,	Detroit, Mich.	64		100
	B. F. Dver.	Boston, Mass.			100
	James Purinton,	Lynn, Mass.		44	100
ł	F. A. Nichols,	Lowell, Mass,		44	100
	J. S. Palmer,	Portland, Me.		44	100
	Robt, Ormiston,	Brooklyn, N.Y.		44	100
	Mrs. A. L. Richmond,	Lowell, Mass.			100
	Mrs. Benj. Ireson,	Lynn, Mass.			100
	J. E. Oliver,	Ithaca, N.Y.			100
1	E. H. Aldrich,	Providence, R.I.			108
1	Geo. L. Clark,	Providence, R.I.			100
1	Mrs. E. B. Chase,	Valley Falls, R.I.			100
l	W. M. Jackson,	Providence, R.I.	Two		208
1		and the second second

CASH RECEIPTS.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING JANUARY 17.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING JANGARY 17.
W. P. Allen, $3; Geo. Liebarknecht, $3; Chas. Collins, $3; S. M. H. Doolittle, $3; Geo. Hoadley, $2; Alfred Conking, $1.0; W. Beiner Brox, $3; F. S. Mannes, $1; Adolph Werner, $1.3; M. E. Rice, $3; F. C. Hansen, $3; Thos. M. Johnson, $1.0; L. L. Fierey, 76 cents; T. J. Welch, To cents; J. D. Atkins, $4; C. H. Greene, $3; Edw. Walls, $3; J. C. Burner, $13; M. E. Rice, $3; F. C. Hansen, $3; Thos. M. Johnson, $1.0; L. L. Fierey, 76 cents; T. J. Welch, To cents; J. D. Atkins, $4; C. H. Greene, $3; Edw. Walls, $3; J. Churchill, $3; W. Chace, $5; C. Robinson, $3; B. B. Newhall, $3; W. S. Starser, $3; J. W. Scammal, $4; J. C. Conaws, $2; Mars. S. Websrer, $3; M. S. Gons, $3; B. B. Newhall, $3; W. S. Ster, $3; J. W. Scammal, $4; J. C. Conaws, $2; Mars. S. Websrer, $3; Mile, A. Townsend, $2; Franklin Goodyear, $3; Mars. Send, Cummings, $3; Chas. H. Coffin, $3; Geo. L. Hrownell, $3; W. N. Sharpe, 75 cents; J. S. Crew, $3; Ther.M. Hoodyard, $3; Mars. Send, Cummings, $3; Alex. Fix, $3; J. T. Mueller, $4,50; J. S. Websrer, $4; J. W. Scammal, $4; J. G. Conaws, $3; Mars. Send, Cummings, $3; Alex. Fix, $3; J. T. Mueller, $4,50; J. S. F. Marsen, $3; J. W. Chartar, $4,50; J. S. Websrer, $3; Mars. Send, $3; S. P. Colma, $3; Mars. Send, $4; J. W. Ashara, $4; J. W. Ashara, $4; J. W. Paine, $3; Alex. Fix, $3; J. T. Mueller, $4,50; J. S. T. Mueller, $4,50; W. S. Starder, $5; S. P. Lulle, $3; Martar, $4,50; S. S. P. Lulle, $5; Martar, $4,50; S. J. Logan, 75 cents; J. H. Jones, $3; A. J. Castlerton, $3; S. J. J. Gogan, 75 cents; J. H. Jones, $3; A. G. Chatterton, $3; S. J. Goding, $3; J. A. Ward, $1,50; E. J. Wood, $3; J. D. Livsey, 76 cents; T. D. Glddinge, $3; J. J. M. Howed, $4; J. M. Babcock, $3; J. P. Melave, $4,50; J. J. C. Robinson, $15; J. W. Higginson, $20; A. W. Howee, $1; J. W. Sartar, $40; J. M. Howed, $1; J. M. Babcock, $3; J. P. Howed, $5; J. A. Sweeter, $4; Sarvey, $5; Senter, $4, Senter, $4; Sarvey, $5; Senter, $5; J. W. Higginson, $5; J. A. Sweeter, $4; Sarvey, $5; J. C

Lyman, $1; W. A. Rust, $3; Jas. T. Dickinson, $5. All receipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and no other receipt sent unless specially requested. Persons who do not see their remittances acknowledged within three weeks after sending, will please notify us. N. B.—Please examine the ADDRESS and DATE on your inspar mail-tag, and report at once any error in either. N. B.—When writing about a former remittance, always give the date of such remittance as exactly as possible. N. B.—Postage on THE INDEX is five cents per quarter, dating from receipt of the first number, payable in ad-vance at the place of delivery. N. B.—Orders for Tracts or single numbers of THE INDEX per which are not on hand will, if of small amount, be other erwise filled to the same amount without further notice.

42

AT NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Toledo Office: No. 35 Morkoz STREET, Julius T. Frey, Ageut and Clerk.

BOSTON, JANUARY 22, 1874.

SUNDAY LECTURES.-The Editors of THE INDEX will lecture occasionally on Sundays, if desired, within a convenient distance of Boston.

GLIMPSES.

MR. POTTER'S sermon in this week's INDEX will be read with great interest. Next week we shall publish a sermon by Dr. Bartol, prompted by the same occurrence.

HENRY C. BOWEN requests us to deny the report that the Independent has been sold. As we know nothing of the matter, we can simply give place to his own denial.

THE TOTAL NUMBER of names appended to the "Massachusetts Petition" for the abolition of churchexemption from taxation, and returned to this Office, was 1,134 on Saturday last. The number appended to the "Congressional Petition" for the same measure was 1,210.

REFERENCE to the great INDEX petition of 35,000 names presented by Mr. Summer in the Senate, the Savannah (Georgia) Advertiser says: "We take pride in the fact that the South rests undisturbed by such foily. The date of the Constitution recognizes 'our Lord,' and there is no need for this agitation. But people at the North so love excitement and notoriety that it is a Godsand for them."

SIGNATURES TO THE "Massachusetta Petition" have been received at this Office since last week as follows: from Mr. W. C. Rust, Manchester, Mass., 71 names; from Mr. William H. Fobes, Boston, 59; from Mr. H. Chapman, Dennis, 33; from Miss J. P. Titcomb, Boston, 12; from Mr. P. M. Wheeler, Boston, 14; from Mr. Guilford White, Easton, 16; from Mr. S. R. Koehler, Boston Highlands, 22; from Mr. Eben Snow, Cambridge, 104.

THE "CONGRESSIONAL PETITION" for equitable taxation of church property has received the following lists of signatures since our last issue: from Mrs. F. A. Jordan, Battle Creek, Mich., 118 names; from Mr. F. Eben Snow, Cambridge, Mass., 96; from Mr. William H. Fobes, Boston, 62; from Mr. H. Chapman, Dennis, Mass., 24; from Mr. S. R. Koehler, Boston Highlands, 22; from Mr. P. M. Wheeler, Boston, 14; from Mr. L. H. Beal, Lisbon Falls, Me., 86.

THE INCIDENTAL remark we made last week that the custom of Annual State Election Sermons had been discontinued for several years in Massachusetts, but resumed this year, seems to be a mistake, although we made it on the authority of the Boston Globe. It is now said that there has been no hiatus in the series of sermons, and that the only change consisted in holding the services last year at the State House instead of at a church. So much for trusting to "authority"!

FROM THE Minneapolis (Minnesota) Daily Tribune, of Jan. 13, we clip this paragraph: "Messrs. L. K. Washburn, R. E. Grimshaw, and John Vander Horck are a committee to take the initiative steps necessary to the formation of a political league, the purpose of which is to secure equitable taxation of all property excepting that held by the State or communitles for school purposes. In other words, the organization proposes to use every honorable effort to secure the taxation of all property now held by churches and religions societies and corporations of every character, banded together and working for a particular purpose. The main effort of the League for the present will be directed towards securing the taxation of church property, and all who are favorable to this object will be invited to cooperate with it."

SAYS THE Independent: "A student in one of the theological seminaries in this city, on hearing the name of Theodore Parker mentioned, inquired whether he was the Parker who spoke at the meeting of the Alliance the other day. The story will not be believed; but it is true." This incredible ignorance does not surprise us. It illustrates the general destitution of information respecting the real facts and ideas of radicalism which strikes every well-informed person as characteristic of Orthodoxy, even as represented by its ministers and its journals. Orthodox writers, so far as our observation goes, almost never comprehend what they so stoutly oppose; and the chief labor of radicals, in their discussions with them, is to correct the innumerable and wild misstatements they fall into. It would be refreshing now and then to discuss actual issues on their real merits.

IT SHOULD BE SAID, in reference to Mr. Voysey's "London Letter" of this week, that the word "Sabbath" properly means a sacred or holy day in an exceptional sense, the supposed sanctity of it being grounded on the Hebrew Decalogue; and that this is the sense given to it in the "Demands of Liberalism." No demand is there made for the abolition of any "day of rest" which may be instituted by the people What as a beneficial social custom or regulation. liberals must protest against is all legislation based on the notion that Sunday is holier than other days, or that its observance as a religious day is to be enforced in any degree by law. The question of maintaining a public rest-day is not raised in the "Demands of Liberalism." Personally, we agree with Mr. Voysey in thinking that such a rest-day is indispensable to mankind; though we are not quite settled in opinion how far it should be sustained by legal enactment. If a man does not want to rest, we certainly would not interfere with his liberty to work or to play.

THE BOSTON Daily News, in an article copied in another column, argues that church-property should not be taxed because it is of "no pecunlary benefit to The same reasoning would exempt he the owners," estates of amateur farmers, who usually enjoy the luxury of fancy agriculture at a heavy expense. But the plea is not satisfactory, while so many business and professional men join the church avowedly for the purpose of securing the profits of increased cus-tom among the "faithful." Another and "much reason urged by the News is the alleged stronger" fact that churches contribute indirectly to the general weal a "hundred-fold more" than their taxes would amount to. But on this jovial principle there would be no taxes. Does not every large factory contribute more to social prosperity by the numerous hands it employs, and the increased business they bring to a town, than the amount of its taxes? Where the iswa permit it, do not towns often tax themselves to give a bonus for the establishment of new mills and manufactories within their own limits? Does not the erection of fine buildings, and all improvements of real estate, raise the value of all contiguous property? Does not every addition to the capital of a city or town promote its prosperity? Let us all go untaxed on the score of our general value to the community! Such cheerful doctrine as the News inculcates would exempt everything and everybody. Very well: let us all be exempt, or all pay our equitable share towards defraying the expenses of the protection we enjoy.

OPPOSITION TO THE taxation of church property begins to take definite form and expression. We commend the following to the penitent reflections of the Independent, which some time back accused us of "Jesuitism" for praising a particular Baptist minister who advocated this reform, when, forsooth, the whole Christian community was burning with disinterested zeal to be taxed! Why have not all churches, then, been taxed from the beginning? Who exempted Were the "infidels" so willing to support them? Christianity at their own expense as to force the reluctant churches to accept the charity? Did they insist on being allowed the honor of stepping into the horses' harness, and dragging the blushing churches in a barouche? What nonsense! We assert that church-exemption obtains because the churches themselves exacted and still exact this tribute, according to their traditional policy of "apolling the Egyptians" in every possible way; and we challenge the Independent to show any other reason for it. But this is the paragraph we refer to, clipped from a Boston paper :-

"An amendment being proposed to the Constitution of New Jersey whereby all church property will become liable to taxation, the Baptists of the State have put in circulation a petition against it, on the several grounds: First, that church edifices are erected by voluntary contributions for religious purposes, and, yielding no income, a tax in the case would be a repressive taxation of benevolence; second, the exemption is not unjust because churches enhance the value of property in a community, increase the public revenues, and promote good morals; third, the nation being in a general sense a Christian one, it should not burden the offerings of Christian benevolence; fourth, the purity and perpetuity of our republican form of government depend upon the virtue and morals of the people, and 'to embarras the efforts of Christians to promote the cause of religion and of Christian education, by compelling them to pay taxes on the moneys contributed for those purposes, would be to strike a heavy blow at the only possible safeguard of free institutions.""

SCIENCE AND-SCIENCE.

How petty and narrow is the thought which most men have of science! It stands as a convenient term under which to huddle together a confused mass of observations and technicalities and unintelligible formule,-a disorderly heap of facts, theories, discoveries, calculations, classifications, generalizations,-a rudis indigestaque moles in whose chaotic waste it never cecurs to them to suspect lie the unmarshalled elements of a cosmos yet to be. To some of them science is a wild and terrible beast, threatening to burst out of the cage in which religion has imprisoned it, and to eat them all alive; to others it is the "big brother round the corner" who is suddenly to appear and thrash the bullying "priestcraft" they are unable to manage single-handed; to others still it seems to be a new Mother Goose, whose sole business it is to fourish her broomstick and "sweep the cobwebs from the In one way and another, men cherish the sky." most grotesque and ludicrous conceptions of what science and its functions are. All parties are ambitions to hitch her to the wagon of their own conceit. and so drive Pegasus to market. But Pegasus was not born to haul potatoes or give fools a ride.

To the few who are fitted by nature or education to comprehend the new era upon which the world is now entering, science is the wonderful mind of man aspiring to know the whole truth of things, and following the clew of its own inherent law in the universal interpretation of all that is. On the one hand, it cannot be impressed into the service of any interests, whether of individuals or parties; it cannot be degraded into cherishing any concern for consequences; it cannot be swerved from its one pure purpose of discovering what is real in a maze of semblances. On the other hand, it cannot be seduced into allegiance to any law but that of thought; it cannot be beguiled into submission to any authority but that of reason; it cannot be harnessed into the traces of any creed, prejudice, or preconception. In a word, science is simply pursuit of the truth in the spirit of truth; and her sphere includes overything of which it can be asked--"Is it true or false?"

One caution here. Do not confound science itself with the set of opinions held at any particular time by any particular set of scientific men. A century or two ago, Copernicus, Tycho Brahe, Kepler, Galileo, Newton, and others, represented science to the world; but their teachings were not science, except so far as they have been found to be absolutely true. Their errors were their own; their discoveries were mankind's for all time. So also to-day. The great scientific lights of this age represent science, undoubiedly; but the future will sift out their errors from their truths, retaining the latter only as science indeed. This plain distinction, so elementary when stated, is habitually overlooked; and it exposes the foolishness of much fashionable twaddle on the subject. To talk of "authority in science" and "authority in religion" in the same, or even in a similar, sense, nauseates every mind which can distinguish between "a hawk and a hand-saw."

It is true enough that the "tendency of science in the present day," if confounded with the tendency of many distinguished men of science whose star is now in the zenith, is in the direction of materialism. This is natural enough, nay, necessary, so long as the chief attention of science is given to the physical sciences; and it must be so given, until these are far more thoroughly matured than they are to-day. But what will be the "tendency of science" when sociology, psychology, ethics, and metaphysics (by which we mean simply the science of the abstract relations and conditions of all being) shall have proportionally developed, it is the sheerest presumption to dogmatize about. We believe its tendency will be, not in a materialistic, but in a monistic direction; and this belief is based on no intentional or emotional reasons, but rather on reasons which (rightly or wrongly) we have drawn from the very nature of science itself. The science which is to bring out luminously the unity of Nature cannot, in our opinion, be one-sided or partial in the treatment of facts which are too recondite, too far removed from the field of her attained discoveries, to be brought as yet fairly within reach of her methods. But science is not yet in her teens; her career is scarcely begun; and he who pronounces over-confidently on her future development evinces the profundity of his own ignorance. Enough for us that the old deductive method of starting from God to explain the universe, instead of reverently interrogating the universe to learn what it has to teach about God, is passing away with the scholastic theology it gave birth to; and while others are trembling at the approach of science, as if it were an audacious

Colorente de Cologia

Phaethon burning up the world with the rays of a knowledge too intense, we hall it as the Apollo whose chariot shall give light, warmth, and glory to the future of our race.

THEORY AND PRACTICE IN THE WOMAN MOVEMENT.

"A. W. S." closes a notice of Miss Jennie Collins and her "Boffin's Bower" with these words: "They are evidently doing a greater service in securing woman's right to labor, and to have a career, than any more theoretical enterprise looking to the same end."

This stricture on those who are laboring, in perfect harmony with all judicious practical movements, to diffuse ideas in regard to woman's employment, seems quite ont of place in a journal which lays such stress on the importance of disseminating intellectual trath as THE INDEX. "A. W. S." seems to have contempt for theory only when it relates to women.

All the false difficulties in adjusting woman's relation to labor (I say false because I acknowledge that there are also real ones) grow out of the prevalent idea that it is unbecoming a woman to support herself or work for money, and that she forfeits the title of "lady" in doing so. However much Miss Collins or any other person may do towards securing work for individuals, is it not a help to them to destroy this false theory, and must not all successful enterprises be built on true theories? E. D. C.

[I feel quite sure that Mr. Stevens intended no disparagement to the labors of those who are toiling to disseminate true theories on the "woman movement," but only wished to emphasize the importance of practical exertions to carry them out. He is not one to undervalue the thinker's work in any degree, and would greatly regret, I am confident, any misunderstanding of his real purpose in the sentence quoted, which, like all such brief "Notes," simply touched one aspect of the subject. In his absence, Mrs. Cheney and he will excuse me for speaking for him, I hope; for THE INDEX ought to have, and does have, equal sympathy for true theory and faithful work—F. E. A.]

MANLINESS.

The importance of the work which Free Religion aims to accomplish is perpetually suggested, and in aspects little thought of. The sectarian spirit, whether on a large scale or on a small, as belonging to the professors of a religion like the Christian, or to the members of an insignificant sect, creates a public opinion so strong as fairly to override individual character, and dictate terms to conscience. The average man is not supposed able to rise above it, is held excusable in meannesses that would be sharply rebuked if tried by rules of ordinary morality, and is commended for qualities that a self-respecting soul blushes to hear praised. As the politician contents himself with the virtue which satisfies the party, counting everything beyond it to be grandeur, even though decency would be too high a name for it, so the sectarian, denominationalist, disciple, churchman, reckons his narrow fidelity to be righteousness, and plames himself on his scrimp goodness, though to candid eyes it look as little like goodness as a tallow dip looks like a star. The subject suggests a long sermon; it is not our purpose to write even a short one. The thought comes up in connection with one or two mortifying instances of eulogy on conduct so exceedingly common-place as to merit not even the faintest commendation.

A religious paper of the West, rigorously orthodox, prints an insulting misstatement about an unorthodox preacher, prints it without asking whether it be true or no, without expressing misgiving in regard to its correctness, or a hope that it may be incorrect,-infers the trath of it from certain loose words in a paper notorious for the unscrupulous manner in which it deals with opinions and characters. The editor, no doubt, felt perfectly justified in inserting the paragraph; his sectarian conscience not only administered no rebuke for the slander, but, more likely, vigorously applauded the deed, as done in the cause of Christ. On being gently reminded of his fault, and courteously put in the way of seeing it in its true light, he pens half a dozen words of regret for the paragraph, disclaims all personal responsibility for it, taking to himself no blame, and puts into his retraction the smallest possible amount of feeling; which would seem to imply that he was not a person of sensitive honor. Yet so fixed is the sectarian standard of morality, so narrow the denominational conscience, so base the gdltorial ethics, bad enough in the secular press, but far wome in the "religious," that this grudging admission of error, this meagre acknowledgment of fallibility, this reluctant disavowal of a statement made, is characterized as a frank, manly, high-minded confession, altogether worthy of an honorable man; an instance of magnanimity too seldom practised, and warmly recommended to the editorial fraternity! Outside of the sect, no clear mind would hesitate to say that manliness required a good deal more, that manilness was scarcely interested at all in what was actually done. Unless Free Religion fails very far short of its humblest professions, it will set a standard of manilness, editorial and otherwise, that will reflect a scorching rebuke on conduct at first so disreputable, at last so half-hearted.

Another example: a gentleman is praised for his manliness in withdrawing openly from an association to which he feels that he does not belong; where he has no place, or duty; from which he derives nothing and to which he gives nothing; by which he, to his own thought, is made to stand in false relations before the community. Neither his staying nor his withdrawing can be supposed to concern vitally either himself or others. Where, then, was the manliness of his course? It was taken simply because, to him, it was sincere. But is sincerity, in a Christian community, so unusual a quality that the most humdrum exhibition of it is enough to make a man a hero? Manliness is assertion of manhood in face of inducements to betray it. Where were the inducements? Was it cowardice that moved his friend "W. J. P." to decline to relieve the same Association of his presence? Perhaps it required more courage to remain than to depart. Does one sacrifice so much in leaving a sect, or gain so much by staying in it? It seems to be thought so. When false relations are habitual, true ones are exceptional, and the exceptional is associated with the independent, the brave, the magnanimous. Such a state of things is mortifying; but it is not likely to cease, so long as humanity is identified with cliques. 0. B. F.

LONDON LETTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX:

Sir,-I hope it will not be misunderstood to imply a division in our camp, if I make a few independent remarks on the seventh clause of "The Demands of Liberalism."

"We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforcing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be repealed."

Now there are two words in this clause which need definition, "observance" and "Sabbath." By the term Sabbath, I understand a day of rest from ordinary labors—manufacture, commerce and toil incidental thereto. By the term "observance," I understand in this clause a regular and more or less strict abstinence from ordinary labor on the Sunday. This and no more. Abstinence from labor, but not abstinence from play and pleasure.

I write in ignorance of the Sabbath laws which are in force in America; for aught I know they may be as moderate and elastic as they are in London, or as severe and rigid as they are in Edinburgh. But this need not prevent my speaking in general terms of the principle which seems to me the one we should adopt in reference to legislation on the subject. Let me say at once that I am no "Sabbatarian," in the accepted sense of that term. I do not regard the institution of the "day of rest" as in any sense divine, or as more than a provision made by the good sense and kind-heartedness of man for the benefit of his race.

Short of annoying my neighbors by reckless disregard of their religious feelings, there is nothing which I do on the week-day which I would not do likewise on the Sunday. For example, I do not dig in my garden on Sunday, though I should enjoy doing so, because I think my neighbors would be distressed by it; but I read my newspaper, enjoy operatic music, and.play my game at cards with extra relish, because these things give me rest.

My children, from infancy, have had carte blanche to amuse themselves, and their best toys were always kept for Sunday; only the rule is in summer time, when they play in the garden, they must not be so loud and boisterous for fear of disturbing their neighbors' repose or devotions.

Then as to Sunday trading,—I fear I am a great heretic in that also. I am indignant at the raids made by the "unco guid" against poor costermongers and petty shop-keepers, whose only or chief means of livelihood is their Sunday trade in various small goods which are easy of traffic.

Years ago, I went on Sunday evening to a newspaper shop to buy a Bradshaw on a pressing emergency. I respectfully asked the good woman who served me why they kept the shop open on Sundays. She replied, "We hardly take a shilling all the week, but on Sundays we earn quite enough to live; and me and my husband havin' a family, we can't get on without it." She was much delighted when she heard from my clerical lips that I thought they were quite right, and that, even if the clergy were angry, God in heaven wouldn't blame them one bit.

I have thought it necessary to preface my remarks thus, that your readers may know what manner of man it is who ventures to defend the existence of Sabbath laws in the columns of THE INDER.

I do not treat it as a religious question at all; I only treat it as a social one.

My opinion is that some kind of Fourth Commandment is quite as necessary now as in the days' to which Jewish tradition assigns its origin. It was a clever saying of Punch that "a tyrant is only a slave turned inside out;" and if the story of Israel's servitude in Egypt be true, depend upon it, the freed Israelites were all too ready to become tyrants, and to pursue the passion for gain common to humanity.

But I much doubt whether Israel, in his worst days of hunger and thirst after "filthy lucre," could be worse than many Gentiles in England and in America. The love for money manifests itself by signs too indecent to be ignored, and there can be no doubt that the abolition of Sabbath laws would be immediately followed by the enforcement of perpetual labor. All persons in a position of dependence would be at the mercy of covetous employers, and in most cases they would lose the one day's rest which is now secured to them by law.

Rather than such a calamity should fail on the defenceless, I would forego my own personal liberty as regards the Sunday, and would deliberately prefer the odious restrictions of the Scotch Sabbath.

And this brings me to say that, instead of having fewer legal holidays, we sadly want more. Our days of rest, alas! are sadly too few,—our days of toil too many and cruelly too long. New diseases and derangements of stomach, nerve, and brain are springing up out of this turbid life of anxiety and excessive toil, and what posterity will say to us when they find how we have quickened their pace, I leave our guilty consciences to foretell.

We want more Sundays, and not fewer; we want also still greater interference with corporations on the part of our Governments, and not for them to wash their hands of the cause of the poor, and say, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

Leave railway boards to themselves, and the first thing they do is to rob their servants of twenty-six Sundays in the year—half their wonted rest! I would have laws by which such robbery would be made impossible. No contract should be permitted which did not provide at least one day in seven for the repose and recreation of the laborer.

I write in some bitterness, because week after week, month after month, I never know what it is to rest for a whole day. I get my sleep at night, and anatch half hours of comparative leisure and stillness through each day, as I can and when I can. But this is not like a real and regular holiday, which makes a new man of one and enables one to work without despair, because you know you are working up to a break, and the strain will soon cease.

If an act of Parliament would make it a misdemeanor for me to miss my weekly rest, to go on as I do the year round, I would bless the "paternal Government" that would thus restrict my liberty to commit lingering sulcide. I am very truly yours,

CHARLES VOYSEY.

CAMDEN HOUSE, Dulwich, S. E., Dec. 31, 1873. P. S.—I hope it is clearly understood that it is quite immaterial on what day of the week rest is to be insured, so long as each person gets at least one day in seven. For general purposes the appointment of the same day for the large majority is an obvious convenience.

A GREAT CHURCH-GRAB.

The Old South Church, of Boston, is supposed to be worth half a million of dollars, having a large amount of real estate very valuable for business purposes. When the great Boston fire occurred more than a year ago, the United States Government, through Postmaster Burt, declared that the Old South Church was "the only place they can go to" for a Post-office. The proprietors, who had been enjoying an income of $44,000 a year, petitioned the Massachusetts Legislature for leave to lease the church to the Government for $46,000 a year for two years. This request, despite loud protests from many quarters, was granted, and the old building is now occupied by the Post-office. The proprietors now petition the Legislature for leave to sell the church for what it will bring.

Oleitenthy

Now what is the real justice of this demand? Mr. J. P. Quincy, in Old and New, well exposes its true nature. A great many years ago, the land now occupied by the Old South Church was donated by Madame Norton for use as the site of a house of religious worship. For this reason alone the property has been exempted from all taxation; and by the general growth of the city it is now worth many times its original value. Even if it were just to exempt from all taxation the original value of the land, what right have the proprietors to claim, for their own purpos tax-exemption for the vast increase of this value? Mr. Quincy proposes that all the taxes from the beginning, principal and interest, on this increased value, should be paid over to the State, before the proprietors should be allowed to get off with the residue. Why not? The increase of value results from the business growth of the city at large, for which taxes have been paid by those who secured it, while the Old South Church has paid nothing on its own rapidly-growing property, but has made the rest of the community pay everything in its own stead. Even if this were justifiable so long as the property was used for the purposes for which it was originally donated, it is plainly unjustifiable, now that the persons who happen at present to be "proprietors" of the church propose to sell it for their own advantage. They ought not to be allowed to go off with the plunder of the community, but rather should be obliged to disgorge it for the public benefit. The churchgrab is no better in principle than the salary-grab. The latter has been rebuked and in a measure rectified by an indignant people; the former ought to have the same sentence pronounced upon it. Have the people sufficient intelligence and determination to insist on their own rights in the matter, or are they so inured to being fleeced by the Church that they are unable to apply a familiar principle to the new case? We hope that justice will not only be discerned by the few, but done by the many.

Titerary Holices.

THE OLD FAITH AND THE NEW: A Confession by David Friedrich Strauss. New York: Henry Holt & Co. 1873.

This latest work of the celebrated author of the Life of Jesus is calculated to excite, and has excited, great opposition in Europe. We have not, however, yet seen any proper review of it in this country, and do not now intend to attempt one; but merely to indi-cate one or two of the ideas contained in it, and the impression produced thereby. The first three chapters occupy the chief part of the book, and are written to answer his own ques-tions which head them respectively, namely: "Are we still Christians?" "Have we a religion ?" "What is our conception of the universe?" It is not intended, as was said above, to give a full criticism of his treatment and solution of these ques-sions; one after another, the beliefs in Christ, God, This latest work of the celebrated author of the Life

ł

tions; but it may be stated that he touches and dis-solves, one after another, the beliefs in Christ, God, and Immortality. In so doing, he frequently refers to and quotes Kaht, Schopenhauer (whose increase pessimism seems very distasteful to him), Hegel, and other German writers, and also Darwin, whose ideas he explains at some length. From all of these he draws evidence against spirituality or dualism, as he calls Christianity, and in favor of materialism, or a view of the universe or cosmos as self-existent. We are disposed to agree with much that he says about Christianity and its want of a reasonable foun-dation, or even of a raison d'bre, though it would seem that more credit might be accorded to the senti-ment of love, as taught by Jeaus and some of his fol-lowers, and its effect on the civilization of Christen-om.

W1 venture to ask, however, whether anything is om. We venture to ask, however, whether anything is gained by eliminating God and Immortality. It seems, perhaps, more logical to adhere closely to our cognizant only of phenomena and matter, to say that matter is the cause and end of everything, and call the universe the Great All. Is it not, however, just as easy to conceive of a self-existent God, manifesting inself in creation, as of self-existent of ever-existent matter andowed with properties which result in the universe? After all, is it not as much an affair of does not, so far as we can see, attempt to account for its existent matter; others do attempt to account for order dot, manifests thinself, or is known to us, through and "Matter" are almost synonymous, while Straues users. To the latter, therefore, the words "God" and "Matter" are almost synonymous, while Straues users to use only one of these where and now, and content to be virtuguing or the sake of virtue and ingut, he cannot explain his ideas to such an one, and that consolution must still be sought from the old, that consolation must still be sought from the old, existing systems of belief. It is natural that we should be reluctant to give up our belief in immortality, for to most of us, whether world appears altogether too confined, and our lives too short, for the proper consummation of our desires and deatiny, and also far too unequal, in its division of what are considered rewards and punishments, or prizes and blanks. May it not be possible, even granting our author's reasoning in regard to the improbability of a creative God, that our existence as conscious entities contin-ues indefinitely after what we call death here? He argues that we have no proof of the existence of a soul or spirit apart from the functions of the sind, which constitute the mind; that, if the brain is injured, the spiritual part of us suffers; and hence that what is called mind, soul, spirit, is a product of the strain, which constitute the mind; that, if the brain is injured, the spiritual part of us suffers; and hence that what is called mind, soul, spirit, is a product of of his side, there is no evidence that any thing continues. This may be so; but if the theory of the enservation of force is true (and it is the explanation of his side throughout the whole, and result-ing in the ultimate destruction of the part of it that we now see and know, and its reconstruction in some form, why may not the force represented by the in that or some analogous form or condition in the and improving, or, as Christians express it, perfecting itself, until in the great future the universe, the cos-mos, shall be chiefly or wholly represented by which, and improving, or wholly the approas it, perfecting itself, until in the great future the universe, the cos-mined in the Buddhist doctrine of Nirvana, which, or bis of the alter into condition? May not this, perhape, be a part of the idea con-tined in the Buddhist doctrine of Nirvana, which, or Delive, that is, annihilation; while Samuel John-on, in his Oriental Religions, endeavors to show on the contr

But we prefer to retain God also, looking upon the universe as his emanation and manifestation of him-self; and we should still conceive the individual spiriniverse as its emanation and manifestation of him-self: and we should still conceive the individual spir-its or souls as destined, after their appearance here in the highest earthly development of which matter is capable, to pass into what is called the other world,— that is, some other phase or portion of the cosmos,— and there continue the process of evolution, that is, God; and, God being infinite and we finite, that proc-ess of evolution and perfection must be indefinite or infinite in duration, making us immortal. The fourth and last chapter of the book, entitled, "How do we order our lives?" is largely occupied with the author's views of politics and political econ-omy; in which his aristocratic feelings and tenden-cies, although he proclaims himself a simple mid-die-class citizen, seem to bias his judgment, and make him appear unjust to the democratic aspira-tions of the so-called working classes, as his strong German nationality prejudices him against the French, and both tend rather to lower him from the philo-sophic heights which he so naturally occupies in the earlier chapters.

sophic heights which he so naturally occupies in the earlier chapters. In an appendix, we get his ideas upon poetry and music, in a loving and appreciative criticism or re-view of the chief works of Lessing, Goethe, and Schiller; and of Gluck, Haydn, Mozart, and Beetho-ven. The beautiful dramatic poem by Lessing, Na-than the Wise, he regards as holding much the same place in relation to the belief of himself (Strauss) and his followers that the Society of the same place in relation to the belief of himself (Strauss) and his followers that the Scriptures do to Christian, Buddhist, and Mohammedan believers: and, although he holds that the three poets, as well as the last three of the musicians named above, are very nearly on a par one with another, yet he seems to have a special fundness for Lessing in the one case, and Mozart in the other, as more abounding in beauty and loveli-ness. nes ness. The general ione of the book, excepting the appen-dix, we found rather oppressive, as it left the impres-sion that the author considers it a matter of consider-able indifference whether one holds any bellef or not; while we cannot but think that man requires a bellef in something, the drearlness of absolute scepticiam being so depressing as to unfit him for properly ex-erting himself toward the fulfilment of his duties and destiny. J. A. R. destiny. J. A. H.

WINLE THE States of the Union have been remiss in their systems of prison discipline, the warden of the Utah penitentiary has adopted methods of classi-fying and treating prisoners which are highly credi-table to his intelligence and humanity. He divides the convicts into three classes—first, old offenders; second, those who have committed crimes while in-toxicated or under the influence of sudden passion; third, youths who are not yet hardened. While the inst are regarded as almost hopeless, they are treated with all the kindness that is possible with a due con-sideration of their case. The second and third class-es are, however, the object of the warden's especial philanthropy. He is authorized to hirs the prisoners out to contractors, and extends this practice to the second class when they show signs of reform, while the young prisoners are placed, as far as possible, with persons who feel a genuine desire to do them good. The fruits of this system have been highly gratifying; only four per cent. of the prisoners have proved ut-terly unworthy of confidence, the remainder turning out well. Although nothing definite is known of the other forty-eight per cent, yet enough has been proved to render the method of the Utah warden worthy of attention by all interested in the important subject of prison discipline.—Boston Globe.

Communications.

N. B.—Correspondents must run the risk of typographical rrors. The utmost care will be taken to avoid them; bu everifter no space will be spared to Errata. N. B.—Articles for this departurent should be SHORT, and ritten only on one side of the sheet. N. B.—Rightby written articles stand a very poor chance of whiteation.

ion. No responsibility will be assumed for unused manu-

FAITH-KNOWLEDGE.

FRIEND ABBOT:

FRIEND ABBOT:--In your fine but too brief critical notice of Dr. Bar-tol's new and doubtless very significant book, The Rising Faith (I have not yet, I am sorry to say, reached the reading of It), you make one statement that I am quite unable to understand. You say: "I aver in all earnestness--the proof of the deepest in-sight in these days is the perception ('intuiton,' if you please) that the age of faith has gone, the age of knowledge come," &c. Do you mean to affirm (I cannot think you do) that wowledge does or can aupplant faith,--using the term faith in its broad sense? Without faith, trust, in some things we do not see and cannot experimen-tally know, I see not how we should ever attain knowledge at all. We must assume the trustworthi-ness of our faculties, must postulate that there post should we ever make the passage to objective reality? But, this aside, does it not remain true that there is always a Transcendent, a Higher and a More, overarch-ing and including as well as pervading and inplying all that we see; and that knowledge, by no possible stretch of its attainment, can go so far as to take this away? Within scen is unseen, within form substance, be-stretch of its attainances, and a strength of the strength of the attainance, be-neath manifestation life, beyond finite infinite. This, I take it, is the realm we lay hold of through faith alone,—a realm, while transcendent, yet very real. To its apprehension the sensuous organs have no adaptedness; we are here beyond the reach of their sounding. On it religion is grounded; in its just interpretation and practical application to ourselves lies all the domain of worship and the exaited thought and life.

Knowledge is indeed to be welcomed, for it has a Knowledge is indeed to be welcomed, for it has a very important function to perform in the growth and perfection of humanity; and religion may well bid it God-speed in its best endeavors. I have no fear that "adoration" shall die out in its light. Until knowl-edge shall have gone so far that there shall be no farther, and seen so deeply within that there shall be no inner, adoration will still have its realm which it will hold more arginant the world.

farther, and contion will still have its ream wave a no inner, adoration will still have its ream wave a will hold good against the world. If you deem otherwise,—deem (as your paragraph seems to indicate) that knowledge is to supersede faith,—will you please explain how the change is to be brought about, and tell us how faith is inevitably to vanish, to fade and die, in the light of the new day? Yours sincerely, CHAS. D. B. MILLS.

Yours sincerely, CHA SYBACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 12, 1874.

[The notice of Dr. Bartol's book was indeed "too brief,"-far too brief to do its great merit even partial justice; but it should be remembered that a notice is not a review. We greatly regretted, when we came to see it in print, that there seemed to be in it more of criticism than appreciation. Yet our thoughts continually recur to the question of method, which is vastly more important than any question of immediate results, because all future results depend upon it. Whether, in our search after truth, we are to work by the principle of intuitive faith or of scientific reason, is a question of such momentous and overshadowing consequence, that it rises paramount to all minor inquiries in this age. It quite crowded out of our mind the many grateful things we had to say in special acknowledgment of Dr. Bartol's fructifying and fruitful genius. They will come to any thoughtful person, however, who reads his book as it deserves to be read.

Perhaps the dialogue on the "Ground of Theism," in the last INDEX, may have answered by anticipation some of Mr. Mills' queries, but not all. Our confidence in the "trustworthiness of our faculties," which is properly enough called "faith" in them, is not an axiomatic postulate, but the result of our mental experience. We learn to think, as we learn to walk, by timid experiment, and frequent failure,-blunders, tumbles, and bruises. It is verification that gives us confidence or faith, when we have learned at last to command the motions of our own thought, and found that reason is our only guide to truth. At first all thought is tentative, accompanied with little or no confidence in its conclusions; but we learn by and by to trust it. Science or "knowledge" is the verified thought of mankind; and all rational faith is the direct product or outgrowth of this verification. That is, knowledge is the creator of all faith that is not superstition,-all faith in the trustworthiness of our own faculties, all faith in the truths they discover. Faith is the soul's repose in the presence of truth; it is neither eye nor hand, neither faculty of vision nor of apprehension nor of action, but the consciousness of success in the employment of all faculty. We are very far from holding that "knowledge is to supersede faith ;" but we do hold that the faith which is not grounded on it is illusory, evanescent, and par-The "age of faith" that is passing away is alyzing. the age of ecclesiastical or theological faith; and that is all we meant. Though the "age of knowledge" that is arriving will have its faith too, born of experience, science, reason, mankind are ceasing to have faith in any other Infinite than that which can be known.-ED.

COLORING GOODIC

SHALLOW CRITICISM.

The New York Independent says:--"A letter to The Tribune from Boston eulogizes the brillinat address of Mr. Frothingham, on Protestant-ism, at Horticultural Hall, Sunday before last, and coold and as glittering as an iceberg." Whether the description be accurate or not, it is evidently meant to be complimentary; and it moves us to ask whether a product of this character is the supreme result of the Religion of Humanity." What shallow criticism is this? Is, then, the Free Religions Association the only organization which is variety of temperaments among its members? Froth-ingham is cool, clear, systematic, and finds religion to be asymptotic. Higginson is constitutionally warm and sympathelic, and finds religion chiefly in the beart. Samuel Longfellow is poetic, thoughtful, gene, and finds religion chiefly in spiritual percep-tion. All these are cordially united and have very median each is a legitimate result of the "Religion chiefly on the source of the substant of the "Religion chiefly in the beart. Samuel Longfellow is poetic, thoughtful, gene, and finds religion chiefly in spiritual percep-tion. All these are cordially united and have been perception. All these score to the "Religion chiefly on the source of the substant of the "Religion chiefly on the source of the substant of the "Religion chiefly on the source of the substant."

THE DRED SCOTT DECISION AGAIN.

THE DRED SCOTT DECISION AGAIN. EDITOR OF THE INDEX:--If Mr. Alfred Conkling, who writes you respecting the Dred Scott decision, knows anything of the sub-ject he is discussing, his misstatements are inexcu-sable. If he does not, the only fault to be found with him is meddling beyond his depth. How the decision in that case was in Scott's "favor," as Mr. Coukling affirms, is hard to conceive, since Scott was held to be a slave, denied the right to sue at all and driven out of court. To say that Taney intended his infamous dictum (that negroes "had no rights which the white man was bound to respect") for the victims of the slave trade only, shows that Mr. Conkling never read the decision. The Chief-Justice applies it to the whole negror race in the United States, and holds that to be the light in which the Constitution of the United States regards them. The precise, and perhaps the only, point really de-cided in that case was that the Supreme Court of the States regards them. The precise, and perhaps the only, point really de-cleded in that case was that the Supreme Conrt of the United States would go to the Courts of a slave State to find out whether a main was a slave or not. Ta-ney, after the gravest perversions of history, volun-tered the atrocious dictum we have quoted above, and strains every nerve to throw the whole weight of the Court on the side of slavery. It was for this sub-servient ruling, for his gross misstatements of history, and for his manifest effort to make his Court the tool of the alave power, that the abolitionists denounced him. To-day the world indoress their judgment. Mr. Conkling seems to be one of the few Rip Van Winkies who refuse to wake up. P. FISE, Bosrow, Jan. 20.

THE CHRISTIAN AMENDMENT "DOWN EAST."

UNION, Me., Dec. 10, 1873.

Description of the solution of Constitution), and he returned to what say note:--"Never fear that any such changes in our Consti-tution as those here spoken of will ever be adopted. The Christian people of this country would be as much opposed to such changes as any others; and I am sorry that the writer of this tract does not know Christian people better than he seems to. They were Christian men, mostly, who formed our Constitution and government." You are at liberty to do as you see fit with this let-ar. Yours truly, CRAS. A. MILLER. ter.

A LIBERAL OFFER.

time:

Second, that this can only be effected upon the universal principles of freedom, justice, truth and broth-erhood, which underlie their separate statements of

Third, that these principles are openly violated in the succor and support the State extends to the Church :

Fourth, that the first, most necessary, natural, and logical step to be taken is, therefore, to protest against and resist the unjust allowance of these encronchand reast the unjust allowance of these encroach-ments: Fifth, that such agitation, even if it increases for a time the strength of the Church, as it did that of the Slave Power, must eventually lead to its total over-throw, and final dissolution: Therefore I gratuitously offer my services, by word and tract, to unite all Liberals in severing the roots by which a costly, burdensome, oppressive and mo-narchical Church has been able to thrive and flourish in the midst of a free and republican State. Wherever there are a dozen Liberals, with a room eighteen by twenty, let them plant the seeds of a new anti-slavery reform. Address all communications to Northbridge, Mass.; the first half of the year in New England, the latter half at the West. January 8, 1874.

January 8, 1874.

"WILL FREE RELIGION HAVE A FU-

Some one makes this inquiry, and answers, "We think not." Whether free religion has a future un-der its specific name or not is a matter of very little importance; but whether its underlying principles are enduring is quite another thing. You might as well inquire if water will continue to freeze at a tem-peruing the derived are as the specific or the second perature of thirty-two degrees, or fire always consume wood, as to question the future existence, the per-manency and universal acceptance of the ideas enter-tained by the liberals of to-day and promulgated by THE INDEX.

THE INDEX. Minds exist in every generation far in advance of the multitude, and the ultra views of these persecuted few become the popular thought of the age succeed-ing their crucifixion; and yet, while the religious world admits this fact in theory and practice, actually building tangible monuments to the memory of last century's martyred infidels, at the same time they are playing over again the rôle of their predecessors in beating most unmercifully with the broomstick of their theology any and all who are thrusting their heads out of the tortoise-shell of their own ecclesi-astical faith. astical faith. Were free religion a movement of a few crazy fa

Were free religion a movement of a few crazy fa-natics, anxious to originate a new sect wherewith to render themselves notorious on earth and canonize themselves in heaven,—were it a dogmatical platitude, about which priests and laymen could dispute for centuries, and then rise from their quarrels without results,—were it not in itself and for itself compre-hended in the one little word GRowru, it might, like other bantlings, die at once instead of living to wear its proper cognomen—"Free Religion." E. E. G.

E. E. G.

OHBISTIAN COMMUNISM.

OHRESTIAN COMMUNISM. The Independent of Jan. 1 contains an article, en-titled "A Soul Saved," which treats of Christ's per-fection-test in the case of the young man who had great possessions." "He came running and was eager. He knelt. He asked, "What shall tho?" He was practical. He had kept the Commandments, He had the courage of Innocence. Jesus saw no pride or hypocrisy in that bold Claim. On the con-trary, he was won by his frankness, his simplicity, his directness, his noble eoul, and his charming address. How could there be a stronger proof of his excel-lence and amiability?" Gail Hamilton thinks this "test" or command one which "we none of us recop-lence and amiability?" Gail Hamilton thinks this "test" or command one which "we none of us recop-ing a scontaining a universal principle in it." And a writer thinks it is not clear why Jesus laid such a positive against holding large property by individuals, as clearly in favor of a common property or com-fuence his disciples to commone property or com-fuence his disciples to commone property or com-fuence his disciples to commence business on that yoth who are not fairly think, from the case put, the write he was not fairly think, from the case put, the work of a needle." (which his impossible in who command eand teachings of Christ just as we prove the work of the sesterition) than for a "" mether. Which might favor os great super the to fink the ord of the great teacher, holding "fast to provide the set of the great teacher, holding "fast to provide the set of the great teacher, holding "fast to provide the set of the great teacher, holding "fast to provide the set of the great teacher, when we are tead "the law" and our coat taken, when we are tead the law" and our coat taken, when we are tead the law and give to the poor in order to "be peri-tead the law and give to the poor in order to "be peri-tead the law and give to the poor in order to "be peri-tead the law and give to the poor in order to "be peri-tead the law and give to the poor in

ESTE: 45
Strain and search of the second search of the search

Yours very truly, JOHN W. GRIFFIN.

DUNREITH, Ind.

MISSIONARY TEACHINGS.

[Translated for THE INDEX from the Gartenlaube for 1873, page 770.]

[Translated for THE INDEX from the Gartenlaube for 1873, page 770.] It must be interesting in no slight degrees to a ma-jority of the readers of the Gartenlaube to learn in what fashion the pious emissaries of the North Ger-man Missionary Society spread their Christian doc-trine upon the west coast of Africa, and how striking-ly it appears from the matters presented that even the small measure of sound common sense of the rude, uninstructed negro population flares up against the pitful religious iliteness of those "enlightened" pro-claimers of the so-called true salvation. Missionary Ilig says in his report concerning the Mays station, in the Monthly Journal of the North German Missionary Society (Pastor Victor, of Bre-men, editor), as follows:--"There was a sermon preached one Sunday upon II. Peter, ili., 7--12; and as a reason why the earth must be at some time consumed by fre, it was add among other things that it was spoiled and defiled by the slue of men, and that every portion of the earth's surface was apotted with blood, &c. In the evening I came to town, and greeted among others the well-known old lady Buleno. I said to her that she had not been that day at divine service, to listen to the word that certainly would have interested her very much. She presented the common excuse that on account of her work she had not been able to come, but testified a desire to have a statement then of the word she had failed to hear. As she was unvilling to understand and believe that the earth must be burned up because it was so badly spoiled, and that God would make another, &c., there stood a negro word she had failed to hear. As she was unwilling to understand and believe that the earth must be burned up because it was so badly spolled, and that god would inske another, &c., there stood a negro girl at her side, who repeated what had been said, and assured her it had been read and preached that very day from the word of God. "The lady now expressed her astonishment, in her simple way, and exclaimed that the burning up of her house and all her property would be something not good, and that we ought to pray to God that it might not take place. I said to her this would be quite use-less, because God could not allow sin to go unpun-ished, and that he would have it done in order that he might make a new earth for good men; but for that we pray, and give to the people the good word, that she and all her Mayaers may turn to Jesus, seek forgiveness of sins, and have a new heart and a new pairt created in them, and become new men, fit to inhabit that new beautiful earth. That with this end in view I relied also upon that same word of God, that great conflagration, and she would be lost, but that every man should come to repentance. She must do this; then she would have no occasion to be afraid of that great conflagration, and she would get a new house, and a much finer one, and splendid furniture, and peace and joy of heart, so that she would no longer bestow a thought on her present possessions. "Our conversation had brought about us a collec-tion of people who gave an account to their friends of what had been passing."

ì.

This BODY is not representative, is not charged with any special or general mission, possesses no delegated powers of any sort, is probably not pos-sessed of any information in regard to the present condition of religious work in various parts of the world not already made the common property of the churches through the enterprise of the religious and secular press; and we shall not therefore be disappoint-ed if they adjourn after a pleasant, brotherly time, leaving things in general just as they found them. Where nothing is to do, the probability becomes strong that it will be done.—Interior.

A GENTLEMAN who Isid claim to a wide literary knowledge as well as to being a great novel-reader, was asked if he had ever read "Ten Thousand a Year," and was obliged to confess that he had "never read that number in all his life."

Delimita GOOgle

GRO. H. ELLIS, Business Agent. Digitized by THE INDEX-MARCH 5, 1874.

3,50 9,50 1,25

2.00 2.00 2.00 1.50 1.50

5.00

1.50

2.00

2.00

5.0

.8

1.5

2.00

6.00

2,00 4,50 6.00

1.0

POPULAR BOOKS, SENT BY MAIL AT PUBLISHERS' PRICES!

ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.

NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.

ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any o OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, be forwarded as promptly as possible on rec of orders accompanied with the CASH.

Orders are respectfully solicited from all friends of THE INDEX.

Prez. ALCOTT (A. BEONSON). Tablets. 16mo. 1.50 With Fortrait, full gilt. Concord Days. 18mo Records of a School. A now edition. 15mo. 1.50 ALCOTT (LOUTSA M). Little Women; or, Mes. Jo. Beth, and Amy. With Ulustra-tious. Try ords. 18mo Hospital Sketches and Camp and Fireade Stories. With Ilustrations. 1.50 An Oid-Sushioued Girl. With Ilustrations. 18mo. 1800. An Old-Fashboued Girl. With illustrations. 1.89 Bittle With illustrations. 1.80 With Strapping (Scrapping) (Scra ismo A Critical History of the Doctrine of a Fu-ture Life, 8vo. The Sollindes of Nature and of Man; or, The Londiness of Human Life. Ismo... The Yrieudships of Woman. 16mo... 3.50

1.50 The Friendships of Woman. 16mo. ARAB(AN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS, limo, masilia, With 5 full-page Ulustra-dons. Ms pp. ARNOLD'S (MATTREW) Essays in Oriti-com Found. 16mo. Ms France. 16mo. Ligerature and Dogras. 18mo. AUERBACH (BERTHOLD). On the Heights. 18mo. 2.00

2.50

Vo. 2.50 BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations, 12mo, 3.00 BARTOL (Rev. C. A). Radical Problems. 2.00

8.00

BARTOL (EFV. C. A). Realest Problems. Barn. 20 The Rising Path. 20 BASTLAN (H, CHARLTON). The Begin-alags of Life, 2 vols., 17mo. 5.0 BLACK'S Alus of the World. Follo, hair morece, cioth sides, gilt edges. Edin-buggh, 1873. "One of the most complete of modern publics tions this department."-London Times. 22.50

Discontinue of the most manufactor in the derivation of the most manufactor of the derivation of the derivation of the derivation of the derivative of the d 2.25

CERVANTES' Don Quizote. Illustrated by Gustave Doré. 12mo., 427 pp

Gastave Dorf. 12mo. 437 pp. Gastave Dorf. 12mo. 437 pp. of Universal Knowiedgesdia. A Dictionary of Universal Knowiedgesdia. Matxatod with Maga and hummercopic Mid-karaviogs. 10 voic, 8vo. Loundon....... CMANNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D.). The Per-fect life. In Twolve Discourses. Edited from his manuscripts by his nephew. Wrm. Henry Claaming. 12mo CHANNING (WM. ELLERY). Thorpast: The Foet Naturalist, With Memorial Verse. 15mo

1.0 1.0 1.8

COBBE (FRANCES POWER). Studies New and Old. of Ethical and Social Sabjects. Crown evo., 46 pp.

Crown evo., 46 pp. 300LIDOZ.(3USAN). The New Year's Bar-gain: A Christmas Story for Children. With Instructions by Addle Ledyard. Square Ismo.

Innerrations by Addie Ledyard. Square form. What Katy Did: A Storr. With Illustra-tions by Addie Ledyard. Square 16mo... What Katy Did at School, Being more about "What Katy Did." With Illustra-lions. Square 16mo. ULARRE (JAMES FREEMAN). Ten Great Detroit of the School School School School School Batter (School School School

CORRELATION and Conservation of Forces A Series of Ergostican by Grove, Heim-beits, Mayor, Faraday, Liebig and Carpon-

Domentication. 2 vois., Hiustrated ....... 8.00 EDGEWORTH'S Tales and Novels. 10 vols. 15.00 ELIOT'S (GEORGE) Novels. Household Edition. 5 vois. 16mc., cloth, each ...... 1.00

LIOT'S (Ground Strain, Control Statistics, Statisti MERSON'S (R. W.) Esenys. First Series.

MERSON'S (R. W.) Essays. First Se Portrait. 1600 Essays. Second Series. 1600 Macellanics. 1600 Esglish Traits. 1600 Conduct of Life. 1600 Poems. With Portrait. 1600 May-day and Other Fleess. 1800 Essays. Blue and Gold. 2700 Poems. 2700 Poems.

441 pp. FARRAR'S Critical History of Pree Thought, in referance to the Christian Religion. 1 vol., 12mo PROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Religion of Hu-manify manity Beliefs of the Unbelievers ...... Child's Book of Religion ......

3.5

Brno., 148 pp., cloth.
 Paper.
 GOETHE'S Pauet. Translated into English Verse by Bayard Taylor. 2 vola. Imperial Bro. Per vol.
 Bro. Per vol.
 Bro. Per vol.
 Wilhelm Meister. Translated by Thomas Carlyle. Portrait of Goethe. 2 vola. 12no.
 Herman and Dorothes. Translated by El-jen Frothingham. Illustrated. This Sro.
 Chedys. V. R. Englemas of Life. 17no....
 Creed of Christandom.
 GRO'TE'S LIFE. Compiled from Family Doc-uments, Private Memoranda, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote. Second Edition. With Por-tratt. 890 FALE (EDWARD E.) Ten Times One in trait, 8vo HALE (EDWARD E.) Ten Times One is Ten. Iono. Christmas Eve and Christmas Day: Ten Christmas Stories. With Frontispiece by Darley. Ismo Ups and Downs: An Every-day Novel. 16mo.

1.5 1.5

HAMLETON (PHILIP G.) A Painter's Camp. HaMEETON (PHILIP G.) A Painter's Camp. Book I, In England. Book U. In Scotland. Book III. In Frauce. 16mo The Unknown River. With 37 Etchings by the author. 8vo. The Inchiectual Life. Six editions of this fascinating book have been rapidly called for. In cloth. Raif-calf Morocco Antique. Chapters on Animals. With 20 Etchings by Veyrassat and Bodmer. 8vo. (cloth, gift edges HAMILTON (GALL). Child World. Per

vegrassat and Boamer. svo., člošh, gili edges HAMILTON (GALL). Child World. Part Second. The latest juvenile by Gall Ham-liton. Popular edition Child World. Part Pirst. Ilustrated by Billings, Bush, and Merrill. Holiday Ed-ition, gjit edges. Popular edition. 1.80

titon, gilt edges. 1.49 Popular edition. 1.40 HAMILTON'S Lectures. 1.40 HAMILTON'S Lectures. Royal Svo., cloth 1.00 2. Logical Lectures. Royal Svo., cloth 1.00 2. Logical Lectures. Royal Svo., cloth 1.00 HAWTHORNE'S (NATEANIEL) Works. New Illustrated Library Edition. Nine vols. Imo. Per vol. 1.00 Twice-Told Talles. Mosses from an Old Manse. The Scarlet Letter, aud The Bilthedals Roomence. the Seven Gables, and The Babe Imago. The Marble Paun. The American Note-Books. The American Note-Books. The Arenican Geptimius Peluon. HIGGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Paper. 1900

2.00

119

1.80

1.50

1.80

1.00

1.56

9.00

2.00

1.75

.75

2.00

4.00

10.00

1.50

SCHELLEN (H). Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Budies. Tvol., 800, 435 pp.

kie, Li.D., F.K.S., fiezible cloth (Others in preparation.) (Others in preparation.) (OTT'S. Waverley Novels. Centenary Edition. Illustrated with Vignettes and fromtispleces. This attractive edition of the monation of the was puthed to com-or 50 Waverley the the start of the start to be the only complete edition, containing to be the only complete edition, containing the author's manuacript notes and correc-tions: the works have been curerfully con-pared with Scott's inter-leaved cory, and from this source suscitations of considers be interest have been obtained, which have uot before been published. 23 vols. Crown sto.

8vo..... SAINTE-BEUVE (C. A.) Portraits of Cele-brated Women. Translated by Harriet W.

brated Women. Translated by Harriet w. Preston. Ismo. Memoirs of Madaine Deshardes-Valmore. Will a Selection from her Poema, Trans-lated by Harriet W. Preston. Square lismo. Cloth, beyelled boards, glit top.

SEVIONE (MADAME DE.) Letters, Edit-ed, with a Memoir, by Mrs. Sarah J. Hale.

SIX OF ONE BY HALF A DOZEN OF THE UTIER, A Novelette. By Mrs. Barnet Miss Lucretta Hala, Sev. E. P. Haller, M. Frenklus, and K. W. Loring. Homes, F. B. SMILES'S (S.A.MUEL) Self-Help. With H-Instructions of Chanarter ind Conduct. For-trate of Maxman. Bano.

Trait of Flavman, Iono. STOWE (HARRIET BEECHER.) Pink and White Tyranny: A Society Novel. With Intertrations. Jamo. Uncel Tom's Cabin. 12mo. TAYLOR'S (BAYARD) Orleut. Poems.

The same, Portrait, Cabinet Edition.

Per vol. This addition includes all the matter in the lat-set English editions, with many additions, thus making it, which the unvelo, the cheapest and most complete Thackersy in the market.

mpleis Thackcray in the market. 1. Barry Lyndon, Rograrty Diamond, &c. 2. Paria, and Irish Sketch-Books, &c. 3. Suota, Sketches, Donla Duvai, &c. 4. Four Georges, Humorista, &c. 5. Catherine, Christians Books, and Unre-printed Pieces.

Catherine, Christiane Books, and Un prinker Pieces.
 THAXTER'S (Mus. CKLIA) Among the Isles of Shoals. Himmiruled by Barry Fenn. Red edges. Small Enno.
 THOREACU'S (H. D.) Walden; or. Life in Excarsions in Field and Forest. Portrait. Ismo.
 The Maine Wonde. Ismo.
 Cape Cod. Ismo.
 A vankee in Canada. Ismo.
 A Yankee in Canada. Ismo.
 A Wack on the Concord and Merziana Bivers. Ismo.
 TENNYSON'S (ALFRED) Forms. Himfra-ted Household Edition. Portrait. Wilhus-trations. Enno.

TREASURES from Milton's Prose Writings. 2.50

HIT The Household Edition. The same. Cabinet Edition. The same. Diamond Edition. Complete Works, Froes and Pootry. 4 vols. In box. 1870. Child Life. Instrated. Full gilt. 1870. American Religion. 1870.

lemo. Zasays and Reviews. 2 vols, 16mo. Character and Characteristic Men. 16mo. The Literature of the Age of Elizabeth, 16mo.

Washington and the Revolution. 16mo... #HITNEY'S (MRS. A. D. T.) A Summer In Lesite Goldthwalter A Life. Disstrated. Fund We Girls: A Honse Story. Disstrated. House Real Folke. Blust Investmented. Eron... The Other Girls. House of Yoscia. Square Ismo... Faustics. A volume of Yoscia. Square Ismo...

WOODS'S (G. B.) Essays and Sketches. 16mo 2.0

ADDRESS:

THE INDEX.

1 Tremont Piace, Boston.

Divided by Google

TROWHRIDGE'S (J. T.) Coupon Bonds, and other Stories. Hibistrated, 12mo.

vol., 12mo., eloh. 1NOELOW'8 (JEAN) Poema. Cabinet Edi-tion. of Elmon. Vol. Source bino. Red Line Edition. I vol. Square Broo. Red Line Edition. I vol. Square Broo. The Monitons of the Unseen, and Poema of Love and Unithood. 12 illustrations. 16mo. 2.25 1.50 3.75

1.30 Songs of Seven. Illustrated. svo ..... Cheap Edition, 20 and 50 cents.

Chemp Edillon. 39 and 30 conts. INGELOW'S (JEAN) From. Off the Skel-ligs A Novel. Islaw. Studies for Stories. Illustrated. Ismo... Stories to to a Child. First and Second Association and the Start. Story in the Start. Morea the Fairy: A Story. Illustrated. Joan Matty or, The Couded Intellect. From. JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and Table Tealage and the Start. 1.75 1.25

1.25 5.00

LEWES' Physiology of Common Life. 2 vols., 12mo

3.00

8,00

3.00

4.00 3.00

.50

.75

1.50

4.00

1.25

3.00

3.00

3.00

1.25

1.50 1.0

1.00

1.50

1.50

1.25 2.00

2,90

4.50

limo LURBOCK (STR JOHN). Origin of Civiliza-tioa, and the Primitive Condition of Man. l vol., 17mo. Pre-historic Times. 1 vol., 870., 640 pp. LYELL'S Principles of Geology. 2 vols., roy-al 870.

8.00

al 8vo. Elements of Geology. 1 vol., 8vo. LONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Poems. 12mo.... Portrat. Blue and Gold Edition. 2 vols.

LONGPELLOW S.H. W. A below Edition. 7 vols., ZING Portrat. Blue and Gold Edition. 7 vols., ZING The same, Portrat. Cabinet Edition. 7 The same, Diamond Edition. Prose Works. Portrat. Blue and Gold Edition. 2 vols. 32mo. The same, Portrat. Cabinet Edition. 7 vols. 16mo. Bousshold Poems. Illustrated. Small Sto. Paper. LOWELL'S (J. R.) Poems. Cabinet Edition. 2 vols. 18mo. The same. Diamond Edition.

4.00 4.00

LOWELL (MES. A. C.) Posice for Children.

LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. With Portrait. 1 vol., 12mp.

with Fortrait. 1 vol., 12no...... LEGGE'S Confuctive Life and Teachings... Confucius and Chinese Classics...... LYTTON'S (BULWER) Dramas and Poems Containing 'The Lady of Lynns,' "Riche Heur,' and "Storey," and Minor Foems With a Kine Fortrait. Zano.

With a Fine Portrait. Zamo...minor Poems. MILL (JOHN STUART). Dissertations and Discussions. 4 vols. The Examination of the Philosophy of Sir William Hisnibiot. 2 vols. The Foold'se Philesophy of Auguste Comis. Political Economy, New and revised edi-tion. 1.25

1.5

uon. MACDONALD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's Daughter: A Nove). With many original Illustrations. 16mo. MILLER (JOAQUIN.) Songs of the Sierras.

l6mo. Songe of the Sun Lands. 16mo. MIVART (ST. GEO). On the Genesis of Spacies. 12mo.

MONTAGU (MARY WORTLEY.) Lotters, Edited, with a Memoir, by Mrs. Sarah J. Hale. 12mo.....

Hale. 12mo. MOULTON (LOUISE CHANDLER.) Bed-Time Stories. With Illustrations by Addle Ladyard. Square iomo. MACAULAY'S History of England from the Accession of James the Second. 8 vols.,

1.60

14:00 7.00

MAURICE (REV. F. D). The Ground and Object of Hone for Mankind, Iono. .75

MANN (HORACE). The Life of Horace Manu. By his Wife, Crown Svo., cloth,

PARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The infinite and the Finite. 16mo. PEARD (FRANCES M.) The Rose-Garden: A Norolette. 16mo. Unawares: A Novelette. 16mo. PHELPS'S (ELIZABETH STUART) The Getos Aar. 16mo. The Troity Book. A Charming Juvenile. Illuartstod. 450. Mes. Women. and Ghosts. 16mo. Hedged In. 16mo. The Silent Partner. 16mo. What to Wear? 15mo.paper. The Silent Partner. 16mo. Mireito. By Frederic Mintril. Translated by Mina Fraston. Square 12mo. PRESTON (HARRIET W.) Love in the Ninsteenth Century: A Fragment. 16mo. Mireito. By Frederic Mintril. Translated by Mina Fraston. Square 12mo. The same. Diamond Edition. The same. Diamond Edition. The same. Diamond Edition. The same. Diamond Edition. The same. Bed-Line Edition. Portrait and 16 Illustrations. Full gill. 1 vol. Smail 400.

FREE DISCUSSION BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE. THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873. in held at HOSPITALLER HALL, 653 Washing-ton Street, Boston, every Sunday, at 10% A.M., 2% and 7% P.M. All that relates to the Religious, Folitical, and Social interests of mankind consti-tute the subjects for discussion. THE INDEX and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Hospitailer Hall. The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of $3, by express, at the purchaser's exprese. A complete file for the year can be furnished in no other form. Address THE INDEX, I Tremont Place, Buston. Our organization some time since decided to direct its efforts for the present towards securing A Repeal of the Laws 8 0 L E -7 "BEST IS THE CHEAPEST." C BAKING POWDER. whereby church and other corporate property is unjustly exempted from its share of the burden CORTICELLI (Warranted Best in Market.) of taxation. All goods sold can be returned at my ex-As a means to this end, we have published for pense, if not as represented. Goods deliv-ered free of freight, and ten days' trial be-SPOOL SILK. meral circulation several thousand copies of a Size, Longth, and Quality warranted re payment. ALEXANDER COLE. TBACT Sold by leading Jobbers and Retailers. BUFFALO, N.Y., P.O. Box 2549. NONOTUCK SILK CO., CHAPT on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. EB 6 Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 27. SOLE MANUFACTURERS. FROM The edition was made as large as our fund The Bible of the Ages. would allow: but, so great has been the domand BOSTON OFFICE-No. 2 Bedford Street. FOURTEEN CHAPTERS. it is already nearly exhausted. CANTATA Our next edition ought to be large enough to OF place a copy in the hands of Esther, the Beautiful Queen, EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE. DBAMATIZEDII

THE INDEX -- MARCH 19, 1874.

Dramatized by Frof. Segger, who has brought ont the Cantata in a large number of citles and towns, always to large, enthusi-astic and profitable audiences. In its new form, Estherp presents a spectacle of uncom-mon heauty, and even of splendor, with its brillient Eastern dresses, &c. Music simple but spirited. Dresses and decorations easily provinced. procured.

Price 50 cents, $4.50 per dozen.

144

RIVER OF LIFE. Best Sunday-school song

ENLARGED EDITION OF

Father Kemp's

Old Folks' Concert Tunes. Father Kemp's "Old Folks" have sung to nine hundred sudiences, and other organiza-tions to at least as many more. These tunes are sure to attract both old and young. The present edition is enlarged to 26 pages, and a number of favorite "old" anthema, patriotic pieces, &c., are added. Price 40 cents. $4 per dozen.

CHEERFUL VOICES. Best common school song book.

Sent, post-paid, on receipt of retail price. OLIVER DITSON & CO., BOSTON. CHARLES H. DITSON & CO.,

711 Broadway, New York. ONLY TEN SETS!

All the bound copies of the FIRST VOL-UME of THE INDEX (1870) which were on sale at the Office of the Association in Toledo were sold very soon after they were advertised. FIVE DOLLARS have since been paid for a single copy obtained by special advertisement. The Association have just come into possession of Ten Copies of this first volume, and now offer

TEN COMPLETE SETS

of THE INDEX, including the first, second, third, and fourth volumes (1870, 1871, 1872, 1873), at the low price of

Only Ten Dollars a Set.

Persons wishing to possess a complete file of THE INDEX, whether for its intrinsic or historical value, will do well to send their orders without delay. The First Volume will

NOT BE SOLD SEPARATELY.

The four volumes will be sent in one package, by express, at the cost of the purchaser. Address THE INDEX. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

FOURTEEN CHAPTEES. Selected from Hindu Vedas, Buddha, Con-fucius, Egyptian Divine Pymander, Zoroas-ter, Talmuds, Bible, Plato, Pythagoras, Mar-cus Aurelius, Epictetus, Al Koran, Luther, Scandinavian Eddas, Renan, Tallesin, Mil-ton, Penn, Adau Clarke, Mary Fletcher, F. W. Newman, Tyndail, Max Müller, Elias Hicks, Channing, Garrison, H. C. Wright, Lu-cretia Mott, Higginson, T. Starr King, Bush-uell, Parker, Davie, Zumma Hardinge, Emer-son, Denton, Tutile, Abbot, Frothingham, and others.

Gospels and Inspirations from B.

"Slowly the Bible of the race is writ, Each age, each kindred, adds a verse to it." Edited and Compiled by

GILES B. STEBBINS.

Four hundred pages; bound in cloth; price $1.50. · No Extra Charge for Postage. Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

THE REFORMATOR

A WEERLY JOURNAL,

For the dissemination of useful knowledge and the enlightenment of the people on political, religious, and so-cial subjects, with a view to reform.

Published is the German language ov ery Saturday, at Adrian, Mich.

Principal office at Adrian, Mich., to which all letters and communications must be ad-dressed.

C. LOHMANN & SON, Pub's. C. LOHMANN, EDITOR.

The REFORMATOR circulates in all the principal cities and villages in the United States and Territories, and presents an excellent modium for advertising.

Terms of Subscription-$2 per annum. Ad-vertisements inserted at liberal rates. Subscription and advertisements must be paid in advance. .

U 8 T 0 F в THEODORE PARKER, BT SIDNEY H. MORSE.

Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi-poise, breathe through the clay; the artist has so filled his own heart with appreciation of that noble life that he has been able cum-ningly to mould it into those delicate lines which the character had wrought on the liv-ing fibre. We are templed to exclaim, as we stand beside it, as the old artist did to his perfected work, "Speak then!"-Hannach S. Stevenson.

Stevenson. All the characteristics of my busband are in the bust,—his greatness, his goodness, his tenderness, his love. You cannot give like to clay or markle; but you can represent it, and this Mr. Morre has done.—Lydka D. Parker to Hannah E. Stevenson,

The eyes, though but of clay, are gleaning with possible indignation, with possible tears the lips are set firm with the resolution of him who, like Paul, could "fight a good fight" as well as "give a reason."—Samuel Longfel-low.

The first time I have seen Theodore Parker since he died .-- Wm. Sparrell.

since he died, - 19 m. oparrat. The best representation of Mr. Parker ever screuted in clay.-Boston Daily Globe. The face is strong and noble as it should be. The likeness is good.-Boston Daily Advertiser. The likeness is good.-Boston Daily Advertiser.

Nothing appears for beauty alone, or finish, or to show the vanity of the artist. All is forgotten in the man-the true, renl, Yanke man, Theodore Parker.-L. S. H. in the Golden Man,

Copies of this Bust, finely finished n pla ter, $10 each. Boxing for transportation, $1 extra. Freight or expressage paid by party sending order. Weight of box about fifty pounds. Orders may be sent to S. H. MORSE.

Room 13, 25 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.

and generously to supply the calls for them in oth Reates

To do this, we need funds; for, although we have made arrangements for printing the Traci at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston League, with its various other expenses, to bear the entire expense alone. Will not, then;

All Friends of the Movement

e forward and help us with liberal donations We frequently receive communications from parties wishing tracts to distribute, asking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 20 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circuating them gratuitously throughout the country To many of the subscribers of THE INDEX and others whose names have been furnished us as probable friends of the movement, copies of the Tract, together with Petitions asking the reneal of the Exemption Laws, have been sant.

With the Hope

that such friends will try to secure as many sig natures to the petition as possible in their locality We respectfully ask those who are unable to attend to the matter themselves to place the petitions in the hands of those who will. Let us

BOLL UP THE LIST!

Let our united voices be heard! And let it be done NOW! We would may, also that we feel deeply the

to bee

Other Organizations

in this State, to cooperate with as in securing equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are those who are inclined to

Form a Liberal League,

we are ready to render such assistance as lies in our power.

LIBERALSI

If all will units and work, the results sought can be accompliabed Address

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE,

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Per order of the ELECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drug, and Hand-grinding MILLS. Ten Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Hustrat-ed psimphiets free. Address d pamp J. SEDGEBEER, Painesville, Ohio. CHEAP OFFER! A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACTS, from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed to any address on the prepayment of 75 Charts. Address THE INDEX. No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass NEWSPAPER TO PUBLISHERS.

Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I should like to contract for composition sines, or for composition, press-work, and mailing, for one or more weekly papers. Best of references given, and subfactory work guaranteed. GEO. H. ELLIS. 7 Tremont Place, Bostos.

G. L. HENDERSON & CO., BANKERS.

LEROY, MINN.

Money invested on short time, or for a term of years, on unincumbered improved farms, at 12 per cent. interest per annun, payable semi-anually. Perfect title and ample security guaranteed. All expenses for abstract of title and recording morrgare paid by borrower. We collect and remit to any part of the United States free of charge.

REFERENCES. — First National Bark, Mc-Gregor, Lowa; First National Bark, Austin, Minn.; Milwaukee National Bank, Miwan-kee, Wis; City National Bank, Chicago, III.; Allen, Stevens & Co., Bankers, New York City; Morris Altman.

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES. paying 8 to 10 per cent. in Investments in Real Estate in Chicago and visibility,

if judiciously made, are the best and safest modes of employing capital. The old

Real Estate and Loan Agency OF

ERNST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPH STREET Chicago (Established 1853),

Guarantees perfect title and ample security in all its Real Estate Loans. Firstclass securities always on hand. In-terest and principal collected without charge. Real Estate Investments made on commission or on shares; taxes paid, &c. Orders of capitalists and real estate own-ers respectfully solicited.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is full length. It is full size. It is smooth and elastic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine use.

Many kinds of spool slik are a perfect fraud, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unfit for use. The ladies will always find the Eureka Silk exactly as represented. Every spool is warranted, and the manufacturer's ae indelibly branded on every spool. Call for it.

THE MAP OF BOSTON,

TO ACCOMPANY THE Boston Almanac and

Business Directory, 1874, is now ready, and all who have not already received it are requested to forward at once their address on the red slip facing the tills page of the Almanac to the Publishers, upon receipt of which the MAP will be sent free of

SAMPSON, DAVENPORT & CO., BOSTON DIRECTORY OFFICE,

541 1-8 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

(Near the Boston Theatre.) N.B.-A small part of the edition r mains unceld. Price $1 only for Boos at MAP. Sent, post-paid, on receipt of price. dition re-

New York State

Business Directory, PUBLISHED FEB. 1. [1874. No. 5.] PRICE 66.

Massachusetts Register and Business Directory. (Frice $3. No. 98.1 1874.

SAMPSON, DAVENPORT & CO., DIRECTORY OFFICE, 341 1-3 Washington St., near Bosten Theatre.

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

VOLUME 5.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, MARCH 26, 1874.

WHOLE NO. 222.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other ecclesiastical property shall no longer be exempt from just taxation. 1. We demand that the employment of chaptains in Con-prese, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

number money, shall be discontinued. I. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cannot be all religious services now sustained 4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by he government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostenni-by as a text-book or arowedly as a book of religious wor-ship, shall be prohibited.

ally, shall be prohibited. a. We domand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religions festivals and fasts shall wholly cease. a. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and n all other departments of the government shall be abol-ibled, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pean sites of perjury shall be established in its stead.

7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing he observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-pated.

and display the second secon

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, it is our profound conviction that he safety of republican institutions is imperilled, the advance of civili-sation impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and religion; and Whereas, Cortain grave inconsistencies with the general spit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; THEREPORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-seives together under the following

ABTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

ART. 1 .- The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-

Asr. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members.

ANT. 5.—Any person may become a member of the League y subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-heat. Art. 6.-The Officers of the League shall be a President, by Use President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Execu-ite Committee of three members; and their duties shall be does commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be ac-officie delegates to the Naturnal Denvention of Liberal Leagues when called together. Live C

ART. 7.—These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a litree-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-flar meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

So far as I am conserned, the above is the platform of Tun LEDER. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that The LEDEX. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that it will yet be accepted universally by the American people, as the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A Liberal League ought to be formed to carry out its princi-ples wherever half a dozen earnest and resolute Liberals can be got together. Being convinced that the movement to secure compliance with these just "Demands" must farely, even if slowly, spread, I hope to make THE INDEX a means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and active co-operation of every man and every woman who be-lieves in t. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-port prompty the names of their Presidents and Secre-taries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion as that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are "$Ak let their organized voice be heard like the sound of many waters. many waters.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor. BOSTOR, Sept. 1, 1873.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page. RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PROPOSED AS & SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CON-STITUTION.

ABTICLE I.

ARTICLE 1. Suction 1.—Congress shall make on law respecting an es-tablishment of religion, or tavoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to patithon the Gov-erament for a redress of grievances. BKOTON 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting an of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dovernment for a redress of grievances. No religious a qualification to any office or public trust, in any State; and no person shall sever in any State be deprived of any of religion; or prohibitory bill cor private duty, or ren-der the people reaceably to assemble or sub range, or as a qualification to any office or public trust, in any State; and no person shall sever in any Otalicor private duty, or ren-der the performance of any opinions he or she may hold on the subject of religion. BKOTON A.—Congress shall have power to enforce the pro-risions of the second section of this Article by appropri-ste legislation.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

BY A. W. S.

IN ERSIGNING the leadership of the Liberal Party in England, it is expected that Mr. Gladstone has in view the retirement from the House of Commons to the House of Lords. We should think he would much rather be a man than a "lord."

DURING THE past year, the highest salary received by any clergyman in this State was $8,000; the lowest was $162-this on the authority of the Bureau of Labor. We suppose it is by no means certain which of these two ministers preached the better sermons, or did the better work

THE Pall Mall Gazette says that the total number of Jewish "communities," in Prussia, is about eight hundred. Some of these are "reform" Jews, and some "or-thodox." During the last year, fifty-three new synagogues have been built in Prussia, and the number of Jewish schools in the country is four hundred and eightyfour:

JOHN RUSKIN pathetically says: "I am left uttorly stranded and shone in life and thought." This surely cannot be so! A man who has helped so many to rare visions of the beautiful in the world of Nature and of art, and quickened in so many the germs of mathetic culture, as has Mr. Ruskin, certainly cannot be forgotten, nor thought of but with the deepest sympathy and the sincerest admiration.

THE BOSTON Journal says: "While reading the rec-ords of crime, and glancing at the criminal statistics furnished by our own State, we sometimes doubt whether our Massachusetts system of looking after and caring for what may be termed the depraved classes is not radically wrong." We hope this sage writer in the Journal will pursue his doubt until he arrives at some wise and satisfactory solution of it.

JOAQUIN MILLER, in The Independent, relates the following anecdote, which, while he does not "youch for the truth of," he says "is very current at the clubs" :--

"It is said that when the Emperor of Brasil came to London as spont his first day in Westminster Abbey. The next day he visited the tomb of Coleridge, in the morning, and then in the evening met the Queen. 'And how has your majesty spent the day?' said the Queen. 'I have been visiting the grave of Coleridge, 'repied the Emperor. 'And who is Coleridge?' said the Queen.''

THE GIST of Robert Owen's social philosophy may be stated in the following conclusions to which he came: "That the world has reached a point of progress at which cooperative industry should replace competitive labor; and that society, discarding large cities and solitary homes, should resolve itself into associations, each of fif-teen hundred or two thousand persons, who should own land and houses in common, and labor for the benefit of the community."

"IT is with the modern stage," says the Brooklyn Eagle, "as with the modern pulpit-it seeks to live for and by popularity." Such wholesale statements, while they contain a good deal of truth, convey an impression which is largely unjust. They may state the rule well enough, but they allow nothing for its exceptions. Without doubt there are many actors, and many ministers, who are honestly striving to be true to their calling, and who are inspired with a high conception of its place among the important vocations of the world.

ndex.

REV. DR. TALMAGE of New York, in his sermon on Mr. Summer's sudden death, "improves the opportunity" to inculcate the "salvation" doctrine. This is the way in which he points the moral; this is the lively manner in which he seeks to precipitate his young men into mak-ing their "calling and election sure:"- ing their "calling and election sure?"— Be quick, the moments dart past; be quick, the hour of your dissolution hastens; be quick, the day of grace is closing; be quick, lest some slight paralysis strike your brain, as it did our venerable ex-President, or like the Senator who now lies in state waiting for interment. You feel a pain at the heart, and you have only time to cry, "Ohi oh!" and you are gons. God forbid that after so many emphatic warnings, you should lose your soul.

PROFESSOR HUXLEY delivered his inangural address as Rector of the University of Aberdeen, on February 27. His theme was, "Higher education, and the place which science should occupy in University culture." His ideal of a University, he said, was a place in which thought was free from all fetters, and in which all sources of knowledge, and all aids to learning, were free to all comers without distinction of creed or country, riches or poverty. "The act which commenced with the Protes-tant Reformation," says the professor, "is nearly played out, and a wider and deeper change than that effects three centuries ago is waiting to come on; nay, is visible behind the scenes to those who have good eyes." We can but think that Professor Huxley is a true prophet.

REV. MR. MURRAY, in speaking of his needed vaca-tion, says he finds it incumbent upon him to rest from all "religious labors." We suppose from this that Mr. Mur-ray does not think that his fast driving over the Brighton "religious." Well, if it is not religious, what road in makes him do it ?- for we presume that, in his long vacation, he does not propose to refrain altogether from exercising his horses; and if fast driving does not come under the head of religion, it must come under that of irreligion. And between April 1 and October 1 will Mr. Murray be an irreligious man, or will he somehow contrive to introduce a little religion into his vacation sports and pastimes? Poor religion! what a pity it can't have ev-ery day in the week instead of only one, and the whole of a man instead of only a part of him!

THE NEW YORK Tribune says: "It is the securacy with which so many of our half-educated, or self-educat-ed, men write and speak English which is surprising; and there is nothing like it, we suspect, anywhere else in the world." "Small mistakes are made, as they are by the best writers; but nobody notices them except profes stonal teachers, who, in their turn, make just as many." The ability to speak and write good plain English is, indeed, an excellent accomplishment, --one which no per-son, born to the English tongue, should neglect to acquire for the sake of any other. But every man has, to a greater or less extent, his own vernacular, in which he can express himself better than by copying any standard; and no amount of technical preciseness in any language will atone for the lack of unstudied naturalness and native vigor.

MARY CLEMMER AMES, in writing from Washington to the Brooklyn Argus, takes exception to the inferences drawn from the fact that, at the death-bed of Mr. Sumner, "there was lack of woman's nursing and lack of woman's tears." She says :-- woman's tears." She says:-It was not the privilege of any woman to minister to him in his hours of mortal anguish, nor to hold his hand as his mighty spirit started on its final passage; but not even the death of Lincoln evoked from so many women's eyee so many loving tears. ... His truth, his honor, his devotion to human freedom, appealed to their higher nature, and made him through life a hero to women. His Greek passion for beauty, his exquisite tastes, his wonderful culture, which had glasned in every field of human knowledge, at once appealed to, and sufficed the restuctic nature of, the highest order of women; while the marvellous aweetness of his smile, the gentleness of his courtes, his reverence for the highest ideal of wom-anhood, made him ever in their eyes, from first to last, "the stainless knight," the ideal man.

146

LIST OF LIBERAL LEAGUES.

ST. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. MoCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries. BORTON, MASS.-J. S. Rogers, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Baccan, Secretaries. JEFFRENON, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Secretary. San Jose, CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Secretary. retary. DO, LUWA.-J. Roedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre-TO VINELAND, N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Secretary. JUNGTIONVILLE, NEB.-J. W. Eastinan, President; B. L. Easley, Secretary. OLATHE, KAM.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, DETROP Secret BOIT, MICH.-W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, eretary. movilule, Mich. - A. G. Eastman, President; F. E. nowles, Secretary. Bola, Mo.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Bodarick, 0 Becretary. BATH, ME-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Scoretary. Bathi, Wis.-President, J. D. Walters; Scoretary, E. M. BERLIN, Win.-Freshent, J. D. Walters, Scottary, J. E. Bringinan, D.C.-George M. Wood, President; J. E. Grawford, Scoretary, AUSURY, OHIO.-John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treasurer. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. Naw Youk, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary. Br. Josefi, Mo.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Gaugatury Becretary. EAU CLAIME, WIS .- President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennely.

[For THE INDEX.]

Religion and the Science of Religion.

TENTH LECTURE IN THE COURSE OF SUNDAY AFTERNOON LEGTURES, DELIVERED UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE PREE RELIGIOUR ASSOCIATION IN HORTIGULT-URAL MALL, BOSTON, MARCH 8, 1874.

BY WILLIAM J. POTTER.

<text><section-header><section-header><text>

) I

INDERX -- MARCCE: 26, ence of ethnology. Languages and races grow-they are not made; the earth itself has grown; and so re-ligion is an organic growth, not a mechanical struct-ure. And as geology has not made a new earth, but revealed to us the structure of the old earth which the human race has always inhabited, and disclosed the long-continuing processes by which it was haped; as ethnology is revealing to us how the dif-ferent races and mations of mankind are related to each other, and how from certain common centres, or form one centre, they have spread over the earth and gradually devaloped the differences that exist to dis-tinguish them to-day; as the science of language was a silven natural formation under the discipline of expe-rised, advancing apparently with the progress of man out of barbarism to civilization; as the new sci-ence, biology, is unfolding and classifying the facts that indicate a silmar kinship in the various forms of organic life, and is tracing amidst all differences of progenic life, and is tracing amidst all differences of processes of differentiation the signs of a possible common lineage back to some one remote life-centre, —so scientific students of religion are beginning to which indicate relationship and sympathy where we have been wont to see only separation and antago-ingeneous the set only miscle could bridge are beginning to note, classify, and generalize the actual facts of religion, whatever they may prove. And this kind of work it is that is making the "sci-ence of religion," its office being not to create-left may history where there has been supposed to exist implaysable chasm which only miracic could bridge are beginning to note, classify, and generalize the actual facts of religion, but to trace the forces, how the inner eignificance of the facts, and to track-hene of religion," its office being not to create-left may advise to religion history and experience, to show the inner eignificance of the facts, and to track the back to their origin; and its probable the human mind, and be shown to have a basis in human nature itself, —a basis which science will neither construct nor overthrow, but bring to light and vindicate. In a word, the science of religion is simply the ap-plication of the sciencific method to the subject of re-ligion. Religion exists: that is exists as a fact, and has been one of the engrossing and dominant facts in human history, even the most rationalistic sceptic and disbeliever must admit; the science of religion is that classified knowledge of its facts which is gained by the method of observation, induction, deduction, and generalization. The science will doubtless mod-ify beliefs about religion, and transform some relig-lous conceptions; but it will not make religion itself, either in society or in individuals; at least, it can only act indirectly towards this end. The science may serve as a defence of religion against some an-tagonist; but for its sustenance religion must de-pend on the sources that have always fed it from the first appearance of man on the earth. The science reveals these sources, and says to materialistic doubt-ers or to anxious believers: "Behold them there, not fatally implicated in the beliefs which historical criti-cism is resolving into legend and fable, but organical-ly involved in the elemental and normal structure of human nature." The science must note and ex-plant ats some of the brightest examples of religion are not among the wise, the learned, the acientific, but among those whose sphere of knogledge may be very limited, and whose outward lot may be very nar-yow and hard, and who may not be able to give any philosophic account of that quality of faith and spirit which they daily exhibit in practice, but who, having simply the pure heart, and the single eye, and the low that is the fraitful seed of good actions, do some-how manifest that herole devution and fortitude and saintliness of virtue which the world calls religion. So far from having to wait for their religion, or for-the fundamental elemen come, in fact, to an end, for the substance-matter with which it has to deal would be taken away. Nevertheless, having made, as I trust, this distinc-tion between "religion" and the "science of relig-ion" clear, I hasten to say that the application of the scientific method to the subject of religion is to be of immense practical benefit. It is impossible that re-ligion should exist without some thought concerning te-without some kind of attempt, rude or enlight-ened, to give a mental interpretation of its nature. This attempt is apparent among savage tribes, in yout wakened, as well as among civilized and highly cultivated nations, where religion has bad a long his-tory. The barbarian worshipper of a fetish has some thought, some crude conception, about the signifi-cance of the fetish and of its relation to himself; that is, he has not only the religions sentiment, but he necessarily associates some belief with the sentiment; he has the beginning of a theology. And that the existence of religion should be accompanied by an effort of thought about religion, this attempt to give a mental interpretation of it, which necessarily arises when man becomes conscious of the religions sentiment, is the source of the religious opinions, or of the theologies, which have attended the development of religion historically. The mythologies of ancient nations sud of some barbarian races to-day are the theology of the people holding them; their attempt to give an intellectual explanation of religion, just as the Roman Catholic or the Calvinistic or the Uni-versalist theology is an attempt to give such an ex-planation on the part of those who have a different mental culture, and may consider a different class of facts. And since the thought of mankind is constantly changing, since it has evaluated its limits and increased in accuracy as, historically, mankind have progressed in knowledge and culture in other directions, so the beliefs concerning religion, the the-ological conceptions and systems, the ecclesiastical forms and institutions, which have depended upon this thought, have also been subject to change-to growth and enlargement and reform, --taking shape according to the mental temperament and culture of the people and age that produced them. Among a people of metaphysical tendencies of mental tempera-ment, or in an age characterized by metaphysical growth and chargement and reorn, --taking shape according to the mental temperament and culture of the people and age that produced them. Among a people of metaphysical tendencies of mental tempera-ment, or in an age chargetrized by metaphysical apeculation, theology will assume a metaphysical predominate, then religious thought will express it-sufferences in the second strength of the population and the ruling tendency of thought, the theology of a people will shape itself accordingly into a syllogistical system. The unariset of the ruling tendency of thought, the theology of a people will shape itself accordingly into a syllogistical system. The unariset of a second strength of the test of observation and fact, and alleged facts are to be submitted to the keenest critical analysis. But religious thought has not yet in general been harmo-nized with this characteristic of the mental temper of the age. The theologies and ecclesiastical institu-tions of Ohristendom, with all their sectarian variety, are almost wholly the product of past ages, and of an entirely different intellectual temperament from that which now prevails. Some slight modifications have latterly been admitted in them, yet fundamentally, in respect, for instance, to conceptions of the nature of Deity and of his communication with man, in respect to revelation, inspiration, and the origin and support of genuine religion, they belong to the thought of a past epoch. And it will be the office of the scientific method applied to religion to effect the needed har-mony between religious beliefs and modern thought; to infuse into men's thoughts about religion the new mental spirit of the time, and so to advance religious with the most enlight mod thought of the age in other directions of human activity. Thus will the science of human activity. Thus will the scientific method applied to religion, with all stand abreast which the most enlight development and growth the whole history of religion, with all its varying be-lift, has sprung by natural de ever be left behind as an outgrown faculty belonging near the childhood of the race, nor its productive-service to exhausted.

Google Google

the vital connection between thought and faith is lost, and conformity to traditional creeds and usages is ac-cepted as identical with religion, then is the cause of religion hurt and imperilled. If, therefore, the ap-plication of the scientific method to the subject of religion shall so separate the essential elements of re-ligions faith from present accompaniments of description religion hurt and imperilled. If, therefore, the ap-plication of the scientific method to the subject of religion shall so separate the essential elements of re-ligious faith from present accompaniments of doctrine and form as to show that, though the beliefs and forms may change and perish, religion may survive, and may develop other beliefs and institutions entire-ly in harmony with the rational thought of the pres-ent age-may, that this change must come and will come in order that religion may survive and keep its power,-then, while great advantage would accrue to the unchurched rationalists, by disclosing the fact that they would no longer have a contest with religion, that they would no longer have a contest with religion, that they would no longer have a contest with religion, that they would no longer have a contest with religion, that they would no longer have a contest with religion, that they would no longer have a contest with religion, that they would no longer have a contest with religion, that they would no longer have a contest with religion, and setting it free for a new creative period. It would be a great thing if the rationalistic mind of the age should come to see a deeper import in the fact of religion than it is now wont to see. But, because of the numbers, power, enthusiasm involved, it would be a great thing if there should come a real revival of religion in the churches through a suddenly awak-ened recognition of the import of modern thought. This awakening, probably, will not come suddenly, but it must come in time as the natural result of wed-ding rational thought to religion. Let the tie that now joins the spirit of living faith to the dead body of ancient dogma be severed, and the religious sentiment will again be positively active, alive with all generous implaces towards human welfare, stimulating to no-ble endeavor for human improvement by the manifold new methods which this era of acience has revealed, and producing, even to a finer symmetry in the am-plef mental and mor tory in the past. But how is it to be shown that the scientific method tory in the past. But how is it to be shown that the scientific method will legitimate religion to rational thought? I have been making statements for which perhaps proof may be required. Let us see, then, as briefly as we may, how the scientific method applied to religion operates; what results it has already achieved and is achieving, and what it foreshadows. It should be said at the outset of this inquiry, that the science of religion—the phrase, I belleve, was first used by Mar Müller—differs very materially from theology,—at least as theology has usually been con-csived and defined. Theology is the science, to use the common definition, "which treats of the exist-ence, mature, and attributes of God." It begins, therefore, where the science of religion shistory; it assumes that to a portion of mankind the Supreme Power has miraculously revealed himself, and that all ure theological knowledge is contained within the imits of that revelation. But the acience of religion begins with a thorough study of the facts in the re-ligious history of man,—of all the facts concerned in the development of religion, and not in one or two nations only, but in the widestrange of humanity, and through all grades of expression which the religious entiment has taken. It thus makes of special ac-count what is called comparative theology; and if one eligious elians to have a kind of knowledge of Deity through all grades of expressions which the religious sentiment has taken. If thus makes of special ac-count what is called comparative theology; and if one religion claims to have a kind of knowledge of Deity superior to and different from that possessed by any other religion, it is a claim that must be established, if at all, by this comparison of facts. The science of religion is thus inductive, empirical, not à priorf; it begins and, proceeds on the ground of solid facts; yet it is empirical (or experiential) in the sense of con-sidering all the facts of religious experience and his-bet, hope, spiritual enthusiasm. Nothing in the whole field of religious history escapes its observation, or is deemed too small for its notice. Even beliefs that have proved to be fallacious and practices now counted as superstitions, legends, mythologies, stories of miracle, faiths that may seem to this age of culture only as the fairy tales of childhood—all come into the field of this science. Every opinion in relig-ion that has been sincerely held, every crudest cere-mony of worship that has attracted some earnest de rotee, though he ware the rudest savage of the pri-meral forest, has to the scientific student of religion a value, for the soul of truth or genuineness of feeling that was once in it. And through all these facts and phenomena of religious history and experience, the cience of religion, by means of its scientific method of analysis, comparison, generalization, research into imer meanings, works its way to find the basis and phenomena of religious the syster in the observation of facts, it traces the mutual relations and significance of facts, and through the evidence of facts it estab-lishes principles.

facts, it traces the mutual relations and explanation of facts, and through the evidence of facts it establishes principles.
And from the application of this method to the study of religious phenomens, certain important points may be said to be already established, which we may venture to call the elementary principles of the science of religion.
The first of these points is the natural continuity of religious development. Not more unmistakably do the facts that are found in the strats of the earth, or in the strats of language, point to a natural continuity of the processes by which the earth has come to its present shape, than do the facts presented in the bistory of religion point to a natural continuity of that bistory. Even if one were to start with the presuposition that here and there the natural order of historical development had been broken by the inter

<text><text><text>

The provide the second seco

<text><text>

prize the ense of the binding obligation of virtue, and some all tolerably civilized nations, of whatever eligious faith, essential unity, or at least progressive covergence towards unity, in the fundamental principation of the more regions and bolis, springs from one and the state of the sector of the sector

Commenter Google

147

ions, and also to be a natural trait of humanity, humanity at least after it reaches a certain grad certain grade of intelligence.

Of bourse, in the lowest forms of religion this sense of the Infinite appears in very rule shape, and is associated with crudities of belief and practice which the exitivated mind pronounces most absurd. But there is no religion whatever, though it may be the most barbarous idolary, which does not have within it this feeling after the Infinitz,—this reaching out of the hands, as if were, to lay hold of some power dim-by fait to exist at the centre of things, and to hold human desitup in its control. Even the dumb, black drone of Feitchism somehow represents to the wor-hipper who crouches before it the relation between historic of azistence and the great, mysterious existence on the light at a some how represents to the wor-hipper who crouches before it the relation between biotedny has along the sun, the stars, the light, the bine done of haven, the adoring soul is still sceling, though a more intelligent act, to utter its sense of relation to his mightly implies whole that makes up the universe, and to the Power that in secret dwells within its and animated it. As intelligence increases, the Infinite is conceived to be more comprehensive, the normer axional iy set through all phases and varieties of religious faith, from the worship of idols up to the purset spiritual faith of Christended it historically, are accustant calculation between the finite soul and the infinite Life. Even those materialistic suit and the infinite Life. Even those materialistic suit and the infinite laws of which have sittended it historically, are accustomed to dony that there is any religion that is true, and that there is any Supreme Being (by which they unauly mean that there is no personal Deliy', confess to tile sense of a sower with-his Nature that to them is infinite and beyond compre-hension; or they say that Nature itself is the All that holds the mystery of Bradmains. Yet through the whole history of Buddhism, in the background of the faith, has fain the gostion of reverse probalo of the sought by many. The egrean va thou laid the foundation of the earth, and the heav-ens are the work of thy hands. They shall perish, but thou shalt endure: yea, all of them shall wax old as a garment; as a vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed; but thou art the same, and thy years shall have no end."

and thy snam be changed: our inou art the same, and thy years shall have no end." Religion and science then allke, the devout senti-ment and the logical understanding, theism and so-called atheism, all equally recognize the existence of a permanent power under changeful phenomena. All classes and grades of human beings confess their re-lation to this power, and give to it their expressed or silent homage. The veriest inanimate matter cannot escape this secret energy which possesses and shapes and works through all things. Dispelled in one form, and seemingly annihilated, it reappears in another. Microscope and telescope and spectroscope do not resolve its mystery, but only reveal its wondrous na-ture the more, and almost prove its omnipresence. And as to the human consciousness, it is not the im-aginative faculty merely, but the most empirical logic, that is compelled to exclaim before this marvellous operator, "Whither shall I go from thy spirit, or whither shall I flee from thy presence?" From this sense of relation to the infinite, man cannot escape. 4. Now if the science of religion establishes, by the evidence of religious phenomena, these three points,— the natural continuity of religious development, the unity in essence of the various forms of religion, and the human sense of relation to the Infinite as the germinal source of religion, then it is in position to establish a fourth point; viz., that the religious sen-timent is organically inherent in the human mind, and that religion therefore is a permanent and inde-structible product in the historical development of the human race. Let this point be established, and all disturbing apprehensions as to the fate of religion in the future may be dismissed. Whatever changes may be wrought in the phenomenal beliefs and in-stitutions of religious history, the root of religious faith will survive, and may be trusted to retain its vitality. But in order to establish this point, the nat-ure of the faith involved jn man's sense of his rela-tion to the Infinite must be examined. This sense may seem a very simple one, and by many persons its would be recarded as sufficiently indicating in itself uon to the infinite must be examined. In states may seem a very simple one, and by many persons it would be regarded as sufficiently indicating in itself its own natural permanence. But it is susceptible of analysis, and this analysis is perhaps necessary for positively substantisting the proposition that the germ of religion is indestructibly inherent in the or-panic structure of human nature. The quarter was genic structure of human nature. The question we are to ask, therefore, is, What is the nature of the faith involved in this sense of human relation to the Infinite?

Faith is a word of larger import than religion. By a generic use of the word, we may say that we have faith in our physical senses,—that is, we accept their reports of the outer world to consciousness, as trustreports of the outer-world to consciousness as trust-worthy. But this is not a very strict use of the word, and may tend to increase the popular theological con-fusion between faith and sight. It is certain, too, that impressions first received from the senses are often delusions; as when a child reaches after a re-mote object which his eye tells him is close at hand. Here the first sense-impression is not trustworthy, and it is only after many experiments that a sure re-liance on the reports of the vision is created. This use of the word, however, if proper discriminations be made, may help us to understand the essence of faith in its stricter sense. What the mind really does, when it first receives an impression through the senses from the outward world, is to accept the im-pression as representing a genuine reality. In respect to the conditions, form, relations to other objects, of that reality, it may be mistaken; and on these points pression as representing a generations to other objects, of that reality, it may be mistaken; and on these points correction may have to be made by experience and reason. But that disposition inherent in the mind to accept the report of the external senses as standing for some reality,—that native and necessary disposi-tion to trust the working of these faculties, which connect us with the external world, as no delusion and cheat, but as a real and genuine transaction,— this is the easence of faith; and further, when there has been some mistake in the first sense-impressions as to the conditions of this reality, that disposition, which is also necessarily inherent in the buman mind, to accept the testimony of experience and reason as this also is of the essence of faith. So that, concern-ing the relations of our consciousness to the material world, we might define faith as that native and neces-sary confidence which the human mind has that its world, we might define faith as that native and interes-sary confidence which the human mind has that its own faculties, whether of external sense or of com-parison of repeated observations (which is the mean-ing of experience), or of reasoning, are no impostors, but are genuins and trustworthy. Without this trust in its own natural faculties and functions, we pro-nounce a mind insane. In this sense of the world, faith is the condition of mental sanity. The sane mind necessarily accepts the veracity of its own fac-ulties, and therefore confides in the reality of the ex-ternal world which they report. This definition will at least serve to illustrate the meaning of faith when applied to its more special field,—that of the inner consciousness. Here, too, we may say that faith is that native and inherent confi-dence which the human mind has in the genuineness of its own natural faculties,—that feeling which it

ney say that faith is that native and inherent confi-dence which the human mind has in the genuineness of its own natural faculties, —that feeling which it cannot escape so long as it is sanely conscious, that it is not a victim of deception and illusion, but that cer-tain mental impressions of which it is consclous, cer-tain mutral tendencies and inpulses that seem to be native to consciousness itself, represent actual reali-ties; not that these mental impressions, if we mean by them ideas, are to be declared innate, but that they certainly appear in the consciousness as man de-velops and expands under the experience of life. The mind finds in itself, for instance, the sense of truth, the sense of right, the sense of goodness, the senses of duty, the sense of harmony, proportion, and heauty; and, let the theory of the origin of these inner senses be what it may, the mind cannot help but put trust in them, and accept them as representative of actual distinctions existing in the very nature of things. And this trust—this natural and unquestion-ing reliance of the mind upon the veracity of its own inward faculties, this necessary acceptance of the sin-cerity of its own natural operations,—this it is that is of the essence of faith. It is to be observed, too, that the mind, in this inner sense which it has of truth, right, goodness, heauty, makes a distinction between a perception of what is true or good or beautiful and what is actually so. This distinction may be learned by experience or by the exercise of thought, just as the child learns to correct the first aense-impressions of aubsequent impressions; but when the distinction is learned, then it is immediately applied, the mind instinctively giving its allegiance, not to the old per-ception which is discarded, but to the reality which it was assumed to represent, and hence to the newer and corrected perception as a more authentic repre-sentative of that reality. That is, faith is the human

<page-header><text><text>

now in the mind of man this formative principle,

upon each other. Now in the mind of man this formative principle, this guiding force, becomes self-conscious. Man is capable of reflection upon his own conduct; capable of apprehending and controlling to a degree his own condition and destiny. He sees that into which the inward principle, or law, of his being would fashion him, and is gifted with the power to act with this principle, or to resist and violate it. Yet even when violating, he is compelled to recognize that he owes allegiance to it,—compelled by the very constitution of his being to confess that he ought to follow this inward formative principle of which he is conscious, just as the crystal, or the tree, unconsciously obers and is shaped by the guiding force inherent in its or-ganism. Heeding this guiding principle, his charac-ter is shaped into a certain symmetry known as vir-tue, and his life is put into mutual relations of de-pendence, sympathy, and helpfulness with the lives of other human beings. And the dispositions and deeds into which this principle would organize his character he necessarily recognizes as right, their op-posites as wrong; and further, that this distinction he no delusion, but a genuine reality. Hence we have now, through this illustration, reached the meaning of faith in its moral significance. It is conscious ioyalty to an inward formative principle of character, which is conceived as having an inherent right to di-zent human action. Now take one step further, by an analysis of this definition of moral faith, and we have religious faith.

which is conceived as having an inherent right to di-ect human action. Now take one step further, by an analysis of this fit is already implied in the moral, but the implica-tion is not always evident, nor always conectously admitted. Yet in essence it is there. For what is this inward formative principle to which the human mind confesses its loyalty? this directive agency, which is self-conscious in man, and associated with a own volition as an element in his action, but which also appears as unconscious force, or law, in yower within every species of organism, but a shaping ower within every species of organism, but a shaping power within every species of organism, this acome? Have we not come back again to that agency within the nomena which natural science calls the Infinite? to that persistent, abiding power which survives un-changed and indestructible amidst the manifold ap-pearings and vanishings of the material forms that make up the visible universe? to that power which, even in the view of physical science, has neither be-utaminity Google

THEE

5

CHAR TO THE

あんないの

miverse. We now see why it is that our natures are com-pelled to confess their loyalty to truth and right and goodness; why it is that the way of virtue attracts, though it be the more difficult, and that of vice, pellet to confess their loyalty to truth and right and goodness; why it is that the way of virtue attracts, though followed, brings not peace but self-reproaches and pain; why it is that, though passion may incite to malice and evil-doing towards another, something in the soul whispers of love and forgiveness as higher and more admirable impulses. It is because this formative principle within our natures is identical with the central, animating energy and alm of the mairerse itself. That persistent Power becoming self-conscious in us, it thyorms us of its own attributes and purchess. We bend in loyalty and homage to truth, because this guiding force within us is itself part and parcel of the central reality of things, and bends us with its own gravity. We have to confess our allegiance to the law of right, to the domands of love, to the hard, herele choice of virtue rather than a life of self-indulgent ease, because this persistent en-ergy within the universe, which has become a forma-tive principle of character in us, is indeed "the Power that makes for righteousness,"—and it comes into us bringing the aim and drift of its own energies, and so pushes us by inward impulse to the fulfilment of its tasks. Though it may take centuries and ages of hard experience to develop the human race into this condition of conscious cooperation, yet in the lapse of time the race does learn that it must "do justly and lover mercy," and learns it because that guiding Power within us which gives an aim and goal for our conduct, and with which we are to "walk humbly" day by day, is the same Power that makes justice and/ove to be the goal towards which all things in the universe are moving. In our sense of the Infi-nite, therefore, not only is the sense of power in-volved, but the sense of a mental and moral self-con-sitence of religious faith. It seems clear, then, to sum up in conclusion the sense of this course of throught, that religious faith.

istency at the heart of the universe. And this is the istence of religious faith. It seems clear, then, to sum up in conclusion the results of this course of thought, that religious faith does not exist at the sufferance of opinion, or of theo-y, or by the authority of any one of the special relig-ions, but has its existence by virtue of the organic structure of the human mind, and must continue so long as the human mind remains what it is. While existence, religion does not wait for the decisions of cientific more than of ecclesiastic councils for leave to be. Religions beliefs and theories and institu-lions, which are the result of changing and advanc-ing human thought, may come and go. The special religions, having a historical beginning and career, as here a historical dissolution; but the faith which is their root is as indestructible as human nature it-elf. Faith is the ccaseless, persistent energy of re-ligions history. Bellefs, institutions, theological the ories, ecclesiastical forms of worship, are the varying phenomena which this epiritual energy assumes. Religing a practical and mental expression of this sealiment. As thought change; but the source in cable.

cale. And even the essential primary elements of all the Frat religious beliefs remain. Changing thought may change the form, but the substance stays. Be-ilef in an individual Deity, who is only one among the existences of the universe, may pass away, -just as belief in individual deitles has already vanished from enlightened minds; but belief in a Power that is one with the universe, the unity of its manifoldness, the aisus of Nature, the inspiration of consciousness,-

INDEX - MARCH 26,

EDUCATION AT THE SOUTH.—From the last consus it appears there were in 1870, in all the States of the Union, 4,438,206 persons ten years of age and upwards unable to read. This is a startling exhibit of lilitera-cy for a country boasting of free schools and universal education; but when we come to examine the figures more in detail, they are robbed of much of their sig-nificance. In the sixteen States of Alabama, Arkan-sas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia, comprising the former area of slave territory, the census-takers found 3,650,424 of these liliterate persons. There were consequently only 887, 782 to be found in all the remainder of the country. I must also be remembered that of the total popula-tion of 38,115,641 in all the States, these sixtees necessary to comment on these figures. A population of 24,708,027, blessed with all the advantages of free public schools, had only 887,782 illiterate persons, while a population of 13,347,614, 4th deprived of these ad-vantages, had 3,650,424 such persons. This compar-sion tells the whole story.—Exchange.

An AMUBING story of the Confessional is told by the rural Chroniqueur of the Temps. A priest rather fond of good fare had received a present of a snipe. M. le Curé superintended the cooking of the delicacy himself, and was just about to sit down to it when a call from a parlahioner compelled him to leave the room for a minute. When he came back the snipe had disappeared, and the cook testified to having seen the their was excommunicated like the jackdaw of Rheims, but at Easter, when all the village came to confers their sins since Christmas, Catherine the cook, came also. After running through the usual list of confess their sins since Christmas, Catherine the cook, came also. After runsing through the usual list of peccadilloes, she suddenly stopped. "Well; make haste," and the Curć; "what more?" "Does your reverence remember the stolen anipe?" "Does your reverence remember the stolen anipe?" aaked Cath-erine. "Rather," was the irritable reply, "the one that brigand de chat ran away with." "I was the cat," murmured the peritent. "You ate it?" was asked in a tone of intense bitterness. "Yee," "How?" "Cold." "What, malheureuse! You, a cordon bleu, eat a cold snipe when it was so easy to make it into a salnie? Catherine, I decidedly refuse absolution to you.",-London Graphie.

JOAQUIN MILLES has conquered the pride of Eng-lishmen by showing them even a greater pride than theirs; and his attractiveness in English society ls said to be in exact proportion to his contempt for it. And if Americans are at all like Britons, they, too, will become great admirer of Mr. Miller, for they seem to be greatly scorned by him. Recently, as he himself relates, being in Geneva, he found the town too full of his countrymen; and to relieve himself of their presence he drove to the nearest boat and went on board. Soon the clerk came by and asked him where he would be pleased to go. The poet replied : "Monsieur, take me to some little place where there are no Americans." The clerk looked at him for a moment, then hopelessly up and down the lake, and away across toward Mont Blanc, and at last shook his head. Suddenly a new idea seemed to strike him, and he lifted his eyes toward heaven 1--Chris-tian Union.

Hoetry.

TRUE BLESSEDNESS.

edness to know that then thereif art his True joy was never yet by one, nor yet by two, po

Nor to the many is it given, but only to the all; The joy that leaves one heart unble sed would be for min tog small.

For when my spirit once was blessed, to know anoth grieved

Would take away the joy from all that I myself received.

Nor would I seek to blunt that pain, forgetting others" W00:

From knowledge, not from want of thought, true bl ness must grow.

For blessedness I find this earth of ours is then no plac Where still the happiest man must meet his broth grieving face.

And only in one thought I find the joy I never miss, In faith to know all grief below will grow to final blie and he who holds this faith will strive with firm and me dent soul. And work out his own proper good in working for the God only sees this perfect good, the way to it is dim; God only, then, is truly blest, man only blest in him.

-Rickert's Wisdom of the Brahmins.

NEW SUBSCRID	PTIONS TO IN	DEX 8	Too	ж.
Mrs. F. W. Christern,	New York City,	Onesi	hare.	8105
Richard B. Westbrook	Bouman, Pa.	-		106
R. C. Spencer,	Milwaukes, Wis.	Two	- 44	209
B. W. Rowes,	Boston, Mass.	Que	- 64	100
Chas. W. Story.	Boston, Mass.			100
E. W. Meddaugh,	Detroit, Mich.	Five		800
Iscob Hoffner.	Cumminsville, O.	One	*	109
John Weiss,	Boston, Mass.	*4		100
W. C. Russel,	Ithnes, N. Y.	- 10		100
A. W. Leggett,	Detroit, Mich.			109
B. F. Dyer,	Boston, Mass.	44		100
James Purinton,	Lynn, Mass.			108
F. A. Nichols,	Lowell, Mass.			108
J. S. Palmer,	Portland, Me.			100
Robt. Ormiston,	Brooklyn, N.Y.			109
Mrs. A. L. Bichmond,	Lowell, Mass.		14	100
Mrs. Benj. Ireson,	Lynn, Mass.			100
J. E. Oliver,	Ithaca, N.Y.	44		100
E. H. Aldrich,	Providence, R.I.		*	100
Geo. L. Clark,	Providence, R.I.			100
W. M. Jackson,	Providence, B.1.	Two		308
Mrs. E. B. Chase,	Valley Falls, R.1.	- 14	14	100
L. F. Garvin,	Lonsdale, R.I.	One		100
James Damon,	Ipswich, Mass.		64	108
Joseph A. Barker,	Providence, R.I.			100

CASH BECEIPTS.

FOR THE WREE ENDING MABON 21.

RECEIVED.

Books.

SEX AND EDUCATION. A Reply to Dr. E. H. Clarke's "Sex in Education." Edited, with an introduction, by Mrs. Julia Ward Howe. Boston: Roberts Brothers. 1874. Pamphicts and Periodicals.

Pamphlets and Periodicals. SRNATORIAL CHARACTER. A Sermon in West Church, Bos-ton, Buiday, March 15, after the decease of Charles Sum-ner. Boston: A Williams & Co. 1874. BELIES AND FRACTICE. A Sermon by O. B. Frothingham, in Lyrie Hall, New York, Feb. 1.* New York: D. G. Fran-cis. 1874. WHY GO TO CHUBCR? A Sermon by O. B. Frothingham, Feb. 8. New York: D. G. Francis. 1874. SERMONS by Rev. Charles Yoysey, In 8t. George's Hall, Lon-don.-The Merits of Christianity Feb. 7.-Moral Weak-ness: Part I. Feb 14.-Moral Weakness: Part II. Feb 21.-Moral Weakness: Fart III. Feb. 28. DAVID FRIEDRAIDS FARAUSA. Commemorative Services at South Place Chapel, London, Feb. 23, 1874. Hy M. D. Com-way.

DAVID FRIEDRICH STRAUMS. COMMEMORALIVE SERVICES AS South Place Chapel, London, Feb. 22, 1874. Hy M. D. Com-way. REFORT of the Committee of South Place Chapel and In-stitute for the Tear 1873. What is MORT NEEDED TO-DAT IN MINNEAPOLIS. A Ber-mon by L. K. Washburn, Feb. 16, 1874. A SUMMER VACATOR. Four Sermons. By E. E. Hale. Boston: Roberts Brothers. CINCULAR OF ISFORMATION of the Northwestern University. BIOMPRENTH ANNUAL CATALOOUS of the Officers and Sta-dents of Evansion College for Ladles. THE ATLANTIO MONTHLY. April, 1874.

Songle

149

The Inder. ED EVERY THURSDAY THE INDEX ASSOCIATION.

150

AT NO. 1 TEEMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Toledo Ofice: No. 35 MONEOS STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

BOSTON, MARCH 26, 1874.

N.B.-Any person whose name is now on our mail-list will receive a second copy of THE IN-DEX, mailed to the same address, for a year, on pre-payment of One Dollar. This offer is made to accommodate those of our subscribers who wish to increase our circulation by sending extra copies as samples to their friends.

GLIMPSES.

THE "CONGRESSIONAL PETITION" foots up 4,254 names; the "Massachusetts Petition" foots up 8,553.

SIGNATURES TO THE "Congressional Petition" against non-taxation of church property have been received since last week as follows: From Joseph Barnes, Junius, New York, 46; from Edson Hannum, Southampton, Massachusetts, 17. Total for the week-63.

SIGNATURES TO THE "Massachusetts Petition" against non-taxation of church property have been received as follows since last week: From J. Mark Winslow, Wakefield, 145; from the Boston Investigator, 23; from E. Z. Stevens, Cambridgeport, 35; from Edson Hannum, Southampton, 16; from George W. Keyes, Newton, 14; from Gilbert Billings, Chicopee, 50. Total for the week-283.

THE TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR of "claquerors" for "claqueurs," at the close of Mr. Frothingham's article last week, is too gross to be tolerated without correction. We hope our French-reading subscribers will not overwhelm us with a flood of lexicons. That it escaped observation is mortifying enough; but Mr. Frothingham is not to be charged with attempting what is impossible to kings-"inventing a word."

THIS NOTICE arrived too late for insertion in last week's issue : "The Free Congregational Society of Florence will dedicate their new building, Cosmian Hall, Wednesday evening, March 25, and Thursday 26. Addresses will be given by Charles C. Burleigh, Frederick Douglass, F. E. Abbot, William J. Potter, A. B. Alcott, Mrs. N. T. Brigham, S. H. Morse, Giles Stebbins, Rowland Connor, A. T. Lilly, and probably, also, by O. B. Frothingham, Horace Seaver, Samuel Johnson, Mrs. E. D. Cheney, and others. Letters will be read from Theodore D. Weld, Parker Pillsbury, Lucy Stone, Celis Burleigh, T. W. Higginson, and others. The prospect is good for a pleasant and somewhat unique occasion."

A "PHILOSOPHICAL SOCIETY" has been formed in Chicago, the objects of which "shall be the mutual improvement of its members and the general diffusion of knowledge, by considering, in the interests of Truth, the following subjects: questions of Moral Philosophy, Social Science, Natural Science, Speculative Philosophy, the more important Events of Current History." Professor Joseph E. Haven is the President; and among the names of the Vice-Presidents are those of Rev. Robert Collyer, Hon. Julius Rosenthal, and Rabbi Bernhard Felsenthal. The Preamble is as follows: "Being profoundly impressed with the Unity of Truth, in its origin as well as its infinite value to man, and being equally imprewith the blinding effects upon the human mind of Ignorance, Prejudice, and Superstition, it has seemed desirable to us (believing the time for such a movement has arrived) to seek the organization of a society whose sole motto shall be 'What is Truth?' whose members, regardless of past associations, preconceived opinions or expressed convictions, shall in a spirit of simplicity and candor associate for the investigation of questions that are peculiar to our time, pertaining to human welfare." The conditions of membership are simply these: "Membership shall include all persons who feel an interest in the objects of the Society, and who shall comply with its Constitution and By-Laws." We desire to express our heartiest and most unqualified sympathy with the objects and apparent spirit of such an organization as this.

"BREADTH."

It has been said that THE INDEX does not represent the real breadth of free religion,-that it is not in the truest sense an organ of the free religious movement, but rather of individual convictions which constitute merely one phase of it,-that it lacks the comprehensiveness and catholicity of sympathy, and the freedom from a pronounced prevailing tone, which should characterize an organ of this movement in all its broad inclusiveness. If we correctly conceive the meaning of this criticism, illustrations of the defect referred to may be found in the positions that Christianity is necessarily hostile to liberty, and that intuitionalism is an imperfect form of free religion as compared with the scientific form of it. Such definite positions, it is thought, are merely individual, and not shared by many of those who are actively interested in the free religious movement; and the want of sympathy they seem to imply with the liberal wings of various Christian denominations, and with various classes of radicals, renders the paper a very inadequate exponent of the real tendencies and spirit of free religion.

These criticiems are entitled to most respectful conelderation.

In the first place, it may be questioned whether any organ of the free religious movement is possible in the sense desired. A paper might be supported for a while by the contributions of many minds, without having any convictions of its own, and therefore devoid of any prevailing bias, under the direction of a mere "managing editor;" but it is at least a question whether it would possess sufficient vitality or character to give it any strong hold upon its constituency. We suspect that it would exercise practically a very feeble influence on public opinion-too feeble to do efficient service of any sort. If, however, a man of powerful intellect, strong character, and concentrated purpose should be selected to edit the desired organ, in order to give it weight and influence with the community, then it would soon be found that his individuality would give it a prevailing bias in some direction or other, and defeat the wish of those who wanted an organ independent of any individual's limitations. The presence of any definite convictions, giving shape to the general editorial conduct of the paper, though without in any degree limiting the freedom of utterance possessed by all who contributed to its columns, would be found to produce the same result now regretted by some in the case of THE INDEX. The possibilities would seem to be narrowed down to a choice between two things; either to have a bloodless organ uttering the diverse opinions of all without emphasizing any, or to have a live one emphasizing its own, while giving free utterance to every other. The former would seem to be even less an organ of the free religious movement than the latter; for, however faithfully it might represent the diversity of this movement, it would totally fail to represent the unity of it. Whether the journal with convictions of its own should truly represent this unity, or not, would depend wholly on their intrinsic truth; and this must be the real question, after all. If the ideas that gave a specific direction and color to the course of such a journal should really contain the life of the free religious movement, -should really constitute the power, spirit, and tendency of it,-then the journal would represent this movement in the highest, truest, and broadest way, even if some of the countless shades of opinion among radicals did not get themselves stated in full in its columns.

A distinction must be drawn in this matter between the Free Religious Association, the free religious movement, and free religion itself.

It is now well understood, we suppose, that THE INDEX is not, and never has been, the official organ of the Free Religious Association as such. Yet the Prosident, Secretary, and other officers and members of it, have written and still write in THE INDEX with absolute freedom. They are all as safe from revision or supervision in their utterances as we are; and this they all know. So far, therefore, as these writers in their individual capacity represent the Free Religious Association, so far THE INDEX represents it.

The free religious movement, however, includes many persons who have never joined the Association. Many of them write for THE INDEX occasion. ally, and others do not. It is to be taken for granted that some of the latter may fail to find their own precise shades of belief represented in the paper. Who is to blame for this (if any body)? THE INDEX, or they? No one has ever had occasion to complain that an able, well-written article was refused insertion because of any difference of opinion between the writer and the editor. On the contrary, articles erpressing dissent from our own views have always been invited and welcomed. If THE INDEX, then, has failed to represent the views of some who have taken part in the free religious movement, it must be because they have chosen not to represent themselves, and not at all because the paper has not been always ready to represent them. We have always been desirous, nay, solicitous, to secure expression in these columns of the most diverse views; but we have not felt obliged on this account to withhold expression of our own, and no one who believes in real freedom can ever have desired that we should. If any one thinks that THE INDEX fails to represent fairly and fully his own individual views of free religion, he is alone responsible for the fact; these pages are always at his service, provided he can write with a reasonable degree of skill. The widest range of thought and belief has, in reality, always been a marked characteristic of this journal. So far, therefore, as the free religious movement is able or willing to represent itself, THE INDEX represents it.

But besides the Free Religious Association and the free religious movement, there is free religion itself. It is this to which THE INDEX has been devoted from the start; and this we believe it represents, fully and fairly, in all its breadth,-breadth of principle and breadth of sympathy. Absolute freedom of thought, unlimited by any reservation,-absolute catholicity of fellowship, unlimited by any barrier of creed, color, or sex,-absolute fulness of aspiration and effort after the ideal life, with all it includes and leads to, unlimited by any compromise or concession to lower aims: let him who can name broader principles than these. While THE INDEX has never been the organ of any association or party or individual, it has always been an organ of these ideas, with sinceresi sympathy for all who hold them, and in proportion to the universality with which they hold them. It has never had, or pretended to have, any sympathy at all for limitations of these ideas; the integrity of free religion itself forbids that. To sympathize with such limitations would be to betray want of sympathy for the unlimited ideas which are the essential life of free religion.

But, even while pointing out with unsparing directness the mischief of all limitations of these ideas, and explicitly disclaiming sympathy for every form of religious belief, organized or unorganized, which limits them, THE INDEX has been full of sympathy for all men and all women, in virtue of the very humanity which their religious beliefs so often crucify and deny. Sects, sectarians, and sectarianism, as such, it has faithfully opposed; but the humanity which sectarianism itself can never succeed in wholly suppressing or imprisoning, and which makes sectarians themselves members of our common race, it has always loved, honored, and defended. This point ought, surely, to be well understood. THE INDEX has had no sympathy with the sects, as such; but for all the men and women who compose the sects it has had, and will ever have, the warmest and truest sympathy, because sectarianism is not the men and women themselves, but merely the straight-jacket they wear. To strive to free them from this straight-jacket,-to seek to emancipate and enfranchise the slaves of creeds and ecclesiastical superstitions,-is to show the tenderest sympathy for the humanity thus cruelly outraged and wronged. It is a false and narrow sympathy which forbears to touch these chains because the chained are used to them and cherish them,-a false and narrow sympathy which thus paralyzes the arm of deliverance, and sheathes the sword of truth. The true breadth of free religion is not to be found in a superficial inclusiveness, which would fain embrace in one brotherhood those who are eternally parted so long as superstition and sectarianism survive. Spiritual fellowship has its laws and its conditions. It cannot be attained while the limitations of freedom which destroy it are suffered to steel the sectarian's heart against the natural impulses of humanity. The tenderness which moves not a few noble spirits to leave these limitations untouched, lest those who believe in them be grieved or wounded for a time, defeats its own object, and postpones indefinitely the foundation of the only possible "fellowship in the spirit." Such a fellowship must rest on the unlimited ideas of free religion; and that sympathy alone is truly broad which tells the plain truth plainly,which shows that Christianity and intuitionalism limit freedom of the mind, and prevent the formation of that universal brotherhood which must rest on freedom itself.

The genuine breadth of free religion, therefore, requires that there shall be no feebleness, or vacillation, Goog or suppression of the truth. Sympathy of the broadest kind is indeed demanded; but it must be faithful and brave, as well as tender. It must not flinch to show the impossibility of fellowship until freedom is accomplished. It must plant itself on universal ideas, and refuse for an instant to consent to their limitations. It must concede nothing to superstitious revfor names or to shrinking dread of the full dayerency light of science. It must thus show itself bold as well as sweet, strong as well as quick, high-minded as well as tender-hearted. The sympathy which withholds the uncompromising truth is false, and not true,-narrow, and not broad.

Dictized by

This is the breadth of principle and of sympathy which constitutes the soul of free religion; and this THE INDEX, however inadequately, represents. No matter whether associations and movements represent it in all its fulness or not, this is the broad, inclusive, universal truth that THE INDEX was founded to tell, to toil for, and to defend. The exceeding breadth of it seems narrowness to some only because it is imperfectly comprehended; the plainness of speech it requires seems harshness to some only because its spirit is very poorly appreciated. But from the verdict of to-day THE INDEX appeals to that of generations yet to come. The convictions it stands for are not those of any individual, but rather of the enlightened human mind; and what it most truly represents is not associations or movements, but the free religion out of which associations and movements are horn. THE INDEX points to that; and by it alone must it be judged at last.

AN OPEN LETTER.

DEAR INDEX :-

3

The daily papers have a habit of glorifying themselves, which you will never imitate, and which no self-respecting man would encourage. But a paper may suffer through the failure of the public to appreciate its character, and this ought not to be allowed Such is the case with THE INDEX: and if yon will permit me, I should like to say something to your readers about yourself. Complaints of THE IN-DEX show that the position of the paper is not understood. People ask why THE INDEX is not more various; why it is not more entertaining; why it has nothing for children; why it addresses so limited a class; why it contains so many heavy letters. To these we say that :--

1. THE INDEX is not a newspaper, and cannot do the work of a newspaper.

2. It is not a political paper, and must therefore lack the spirit, the snap, the popular attractiveness of a political paper. It does not meet people on the plane of an absorbing practical interest, and cannot therefore claim support as if it did.

8. It is not a family paper, which floats a tiny ark of ideas over an ocean of nursery stories. Ideas are its ocean, and the nursery stories that will float on it are not yet made. Children do not bathe in those Walers.

4. It is not a sectarian paper, the organ of a party or denomination, and sonsequently has no clerical gossip, no reports of conventions, no parish news, no missionary letters, no succulent statistics of denominational increase so inscious to the sectarian palate. Every sectarian paper has the patronage of its sect. Leaders of the sect raise money for it; ministers of the sect write for it, assist its editors, take the editor's chair on an emergency. THE INDEX has none of these advantages. The editor has no denominational padding, no clerical sympathy or aid. The scissor serve him little. He must fill his sheet with solid material, and depend on his ability to interest thinken. His pecuniary resources are drawn from a limited class, proverbially poor and usually overworked, who have, or desire to have, convictions. Having no money, he cannot buy the pens of eminent men who must sell, and cannot afford to give, their work ; having no ecclesiastical position, he cannot command them. A paper like THE INDEX asks nothing from the community at large. Its claim is solely on the friends of honest thought.

Has THE INDEX fairly a claim on these? Surely it has. Not by the sacrifices that have been made to sustain it, for, if sacrifices are misbestowed, they amount to nothing; but by the intellectual attitude it lakes, and its faithfulness to it; by its clearness, sincerity, and courage. I read THE INDEX from week to week with wonder at the amount of intellectual nutriment it contains. No religious weekly in the country, not the Independent, not the Christian Union, has so much strong, earnest, independent thinking on the deepest problems of mind. The essays and lectures that are printed there are alone sufficient to distinguish it from its contemporaries. The discussions of living themes are always conducted on the highest level, and are always suggestive. The published letters come from full minds and stout hearts. The habit of allowing different sides to be heard, the disclaimer of infallibility, commends it to the friends of candor; and its passionate loyalty to truth, irrespective of consequences, gives it preëminence over the best paper which is committed to a system. As I understand it, THE INDEX aspires to be an educator, and not, for any cause, an apologist.

That such a paper should lack a large popular support is not surprising, for reasons given above. Its constituency is, of necessity, very small. All the more is it incumbent on its members to make effort in its behalf. The reputation for meanness and carelessness that the radicals have is not wholly deserved, for they are few, and, as a rule, poor; their radicalism often needs filtering into clear conviction; it is halfminded and half-hearted; either they have not arrived at positive beliefs, or they have not felt their importance. But neither is the reputation wholly unde-served. They do not, probably, except in rare cases. served. They do not, probably, except in rare cases, give all they ought. They have not the spirit of consecration which is required in all new causes. They cavil too much and combine too little. They are better critics than coadjutors. It certainly would be no hard thing to sustain a weekly paper like THE INDEX in a style worthy of its ambition; with generouslypaid contributors, a carefully prepared book department, reviews of current opinions and movements in religion, correspondence from liberal thinkers abroad, THE INDEX ought to be as superior to the sectarian journals in literary wealth and finish as it is in intellectual tone. The era of quarterlies is ended. Monthlies are almost too bulky to move. The present is the epoch of the weekly. A radical weekly should be, in ability and range, the peer of the London Spectator. Will not the friends of perfectly free thought in religion take the matter to heart, lay it to their conscience, and show a faith in ideas at least as great as their neighbor's faith in opinions? If they will, they will make themselves respected, if nothing more; if they will not, they must not complain when their neighbors class them with sceptics or with recreants. Faithfully yours. 0, B, F.

LIBERAL MOHAMMEDANISM.

An excellent book, entitled A Critical Examination of the Life and Teachings of Mohammed, was published last year in London by Williams & Norgate. It is designed for popular reading, yet crowds into its three hundred and fifty invitingly-printed pages enough of facts and of acute historical analysis amply to justify its title. But the most remarkable thing about it is that it is written in clear and elegant English, by a native Mohammedan, born (probably) in India, of an ancient Mohammedan family of Perso-Arabic stock, and still adhering to Mohammedanism as the highest and best of all the special religions. His name is Syed Ameer All, and he is a barrister-at-law of the Inner Temple, London. Evidently he is an enlightened general scholar, and is well acquainted with all the numerous works on the religion of Mohammed that have appeared in Christendom. Living in England, too, for several years, he has had abundant opportunity, mingling, as he has, with refined and cultivated people, to observe for himself the modern teachings, institutions, and practice of Christianity. Yet he appears to have found nothing to convince him of the superiority of Christianity, and that he ought to exchange for it the Mohammedan faith in which he was bred.

Still, the author of this book is no bigoted devotee of his religion. He has a fair, open, and candid mind. He clearly means to be impartial. And if, after a critical comparison and practical observation of the workings of the two religions, he has not renounced Mohammedan-Ism for Christianity, it is evidently because he believes the former more rationally supported than the latter, rather than for the reason that he thinks the Mohammedan faith to be the final seat of infallible religious authority. For though a Mohammedan, he is a very liberal Mohammedan,-standing to Mohammedanism as the most advanced of the Progressive Jews and of the Liberal Christians stand to their respective faiths, Perhaps he has advanced even farther than most of these; for he says in the preface to his book: "The gradual enlightenment of the human mind is shown strikingly in the slient change which is taking place in Christendom towards a more liberal conception of the grand work achieved by the Arabian prophet in the seventh century. Maurice, Stanley, and Carlyle, in England; Emerson, Parker, Channing, and Draper, in America-each representing a varied school of thought, - have testified, as the result of earnest study, that Islam, instead of the evil names heaped upon it, merits the thanks of humanity. In this gradual enlightenment, in this communion of sympathy, lies the hope of those great minds who look forward to the final commingling of sects and creeds in one universal brotherhood." In this last sentence he seems to indicate - as also again at the close of his book - that he shares the hope of those who think that all special religions are in time to lose their exclusive authority and to pass away.

Yet Ameer Ali finds the bulk of Christian writers on the faith of Islam beginning their work with some preconceived Christian theory, or showing in the accomplishment of it some partisan bias, so that the result is anything but fair to his ancestral religion. And it is to correct this unfair judgment, this prejudiced opinion - which is the average opinion of Christendom concerning Mohammedanism - that the book is mainly directed. To this aim the author sets himself with skill and earnestness, and with the step of one who is clearly confident of the solidness of the ground beneath him. Sometimes, perhaps, in his zeal he claims overmuch for the faith he is thus defending against the assaults of Christian prejudice, and the advocate appears rather than the judge; yet the facts he brings forward, it must be confessed, generally present a strong array of proofs for his positions. And it is exceedingly instructive, as well as interesting, to see in how different a light the facts may be put, by one writing out of the very heart of the faith itself, from that in which they are accustomed to be regarded, by those who look at them from the standpoint of a rival faith. Even the same arguments which Christian writers are wont to use for proving the superiority of Christianity to all other religions reappear in this book, and apparently with quite as good success, to prove that Mohammedanism is entitled to this first rank among historical faiths.

Thus, for instance, those who have read Rev. J. F. Clarke's Ten Great Religions will remember his urgent advocacy of the view that Christianity is a pleroma,-that it sums up all the essential truths of all other religions, and is a well-rounded whole, full where other religions are defective,-therefore, the universal and absolute religion. Ameer Ali takes precisely the same view of Mohammedanism in relation to preceding religions. He argues that Christianity is deficient on some points where Islam is well developed; and he makes a pretty strong case for his position,-especially on the points of rational practicality in respect to moral precepts and the dignfty of human nature. "Islam," he says, "combines all the highest principles which have actuated humanity from the time it saw light on the earth." And again : "It is the distinctive characteristic of Islam that it combines within itself the grandest and the most prominent features in all ethnic and catholic religions, compatible with the reason and moral intuition of man."

So, too, Christian writers are wont to speak of the peculiar capacity of Christianity to adapt itself to all nations and all times : they claim that It is the most expansive and elastic of religions. Ameer Ali says the same of his faith,-points out its "catholicity," its "expansiveness," "the wonderful adaptability of its precepts for all ages and nations." Christian writers are in the habit of saying that Christianity gave the impulse to modern civilization,-that it is the life of science, literature, art, philanthropy. But this Mohammedan author sets against this claim the fact that, "during centuries of moral and intellectual desolation in Christian Europe, Islam led the van-guard of intellectual progress," and then makes the counter claim that, not only during these centuries did learning and the arts and sciences flourish under Moslam away, but it was Moslem influence in favor of free thought and rational inquiry that gave the impulse whence came the Protestant Reformation and all that it has done for civilization. "Islam," he says, "inaugurated the reign of intellectual liberty." And for this latter claim he has pretty good original ground in the teachings of its prophet, who, according to some traditional sayings, rather deified than decried reason. "The ink of the scholar," he was accustomed to say, "is more sacred than the blood of the martyr." And once he said : "It is related that God created reason, and it was the most beautiful thing in his creation ; and God said to it, 'I have not created anything better or more perfect or more beautiful than thou; blessings will come down on mankind on thy account, and they will be judged according to the use they make of thee.' "

But, while claiming so high a position for Islam among the world's faiths, Ameer All is evidently a bellever in the natural development of religious ideas; and his book is valuable, not only as presenting to English readers within Christendom an inside view of the Mohammedan faith, but also because it is a contribution to the general science of religious devel-W. J. P. opment.

000 0

LONDON LETTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX:

.Str,-By this time you and your readers will have been smply dosed with reports of the great London Mission of 1874, and must be quite convinced of its utter failure.

One is beginning to grow a little weary of the many smart things that have been said to heap ridicule on what was palpably an anachronism.

For my part, I am extremely glad that the experiment was made, because it elicited from unexpected and very influential quarters protests of such a nature as to disclose how far the writers had travelled from the old standpoint of orthodoxy. But surely the "Mi-sion" and its failure ought to leave behind it thoughts of a more worthy kind than those of mere exultation over a decaying superstition. Theodore Parker set us a good example in this respect; for whenever his attention was turned to the subject of religious revivals, he not only condemned the palpable mischief which they wrought, but pointed out wherein we needed a real revival, and roused enthusiasm in the parsuit of a higher virtue.

There can be no question that the average state of morality is below what it ought to be-I do not mean merely below the ideal perfection which most men are capable of conceiving, but below what we ought consistently to attain to, considering we have shaken off the many encumbrances of early religious education, and have had now some years of free thinking in which our nobler thoughts have had time to develop into nobler action.

It must be owned that we have shown more anxiety to detach ourselves from superstitious theories, and to renounce communion with religious sectaries, than to make ourselves obnoxiously distinguished in our day for renunciation of the mean and wicked ways of the world around us. In many matters, small and great, free thinkers do not make that moral protest which they of all men ought to make against the iniquity which abounds,

One of the most popular of the free-thought shibboleths is "The Enthusiasm of Humanity," by which term I suppose is understood a sense of duty to mankind rising into a fervor of affectionate regard, and a passion of devotion to the well-being of others.

If this is really a marked feature in the new era of religious liberty, what revolutions it ought to work in the homes and daily lives of those who boast of their freedom! No doubt, in some cases, free thought has brought with it newness of life and great advances in practical goodness; but this result cannot have been very extensive or deep, or else it would already have attracted the attention of the world at large.

One would like to ask such questions as these :

Are the families of free thinkers more united and happy than those of the orthodox ?

How do they treat their servants? As before? Or with a constant and tender consideration?

Are they less particular or more particular in observing the canons of domestic morality?

In their intercourse with others are they now strictly truthful and kind and conrieous?

In their business, do they or do they not continue to countenance and to share in the customary vices, frauds, tricks, and legalized dishonesty which all good men bewail?

Have we had any martyrs to honesty and veracity, as we have had and are still having to heresy and free thinking?

Is personal moral restraint made the rule of life, or is the aim of life to get as much as possible of mere enjoyment, regardless of its cost to others?

People who harangue very much about their "rights" ought surely to be most prominent as the examples of "duty." Surely it is easier to convert others to our opinions by example than by mere precept; and precept not accompanied by example is the worst obstruction that could be put in the way of conversion.

In England and in America we have abundance of national disgrace-I do not mean in our foreign relations, though these are not spotless, but in the cropping up, every now and then, of some gigantic swindle which betrays what is almost universally going on; then we are brought face to face with our shame. Hardly a building rises from the ground, or a railway is laid down, but what is more or less a monument or record of some vile plunder and deception over which capitalists and contractors have wrangled. Every where are jobbers and go-betweens making large incomes by nefarious means, and giving fictitious prices to property comparatively valueless.

But the list is endless. All I want to urge is this: let free thinkers put it solemnly before them whether or not they will make a manful stand against this wide-spread and all but inveterate dishonor. For dishonor it is, and no one can deserve the time-honored epithet of "gentleman" whose word and promise cannot be absolutely trusted in every transaction of life.

If we are to be no better than our neighbors, if all the subtle forms of selfishness are still to be maintained in spite of our advanced theories, we might just as well have remained in the stagnant but peaceful waters of orthodoxy, and have spared ourselves the pain and toil of our desperate escape.

If no other motive were left us; if not even the pride of consistency stirred us to reform our every-day morals, we should still, for very shame, be impelled, by the jealous and watchful criticism of our orthodox opponents, to avoid giving them occasion to sneer at our fruitless free-thinking, and to scoff at our selfrighteous airs.

The world was never yet benefited by more enlightened opinion, until that opinion found expression in deeds. And if we, coming every day more and more into observation as a body or class of men and women, cannot show some fruits of our faith in a purer and nobler type of living, we shall deserve, and most assuredly get, our share of that contempt which we have not scrupled to pour upon the palpably inane undertaking of the London Mission.

I am, sir, very truly yours,

CHARLES VOYSEY. CAMDEN HOUSE, Dulwich, S. E., March 2, 1874.

[I cannot help saying omen to these noble and needed words of Mr. Voyeey. If truer thought does not make truer manhood and womanhood,-if radicalism does not render us all more honest, honorable, and sincere,-the free religious movement is a miserable failure. Mr. Voysey has laid us all under obligation by his manly summons to put our principles into daily practice. In this he utters the central pur-pose of THE INDEX.-F. E. A.]

MASSACHUNETTS LEGISLATIVE COMMIT-TEE ON JUST AND RQUAL TAXATION.

SIXTH HEARING.

The Committee on Just and Equal Taxation gave

The Committee on Just and Equal Taxation gave a continued hearing Thursday morning. Mr. White, Secretary of the Board of Education, made a powerful appeal for the exemption from tax of educational and religious institutions. He ex-plained the charter of Williams College, which by that charter is a private charitable institution, for the purpose of distributing the alms and bounty of the founder. It is a private corporation for public uses. The funds of the college are sacredly held and devo-ted to the maintenance of this college for the advance-ment of knowledge and plety. The Trustees are in-vested with the power to hold and use these funds for these purposes, and any attempt to take away that these purposes, and any attempt to take away that power is a violation of that charter; and under the Dartmouth College case it cannot be done. Some people say that taxation does not take away the pow-er, or affect the charter. It does. The right to tax-ation implies the right to annihilate the property taxad ation implies the right to annumere are property taxed. Williams College, and property belonging to it, is put down on the tax list at a valuation of $480,000. It is too high; but at that valuation the tax, at the rate of a little under one cent and a half, would amount to over $4000 a year, which would be taken out of the income of the college. The professors receive $2000 annually. The tax, if paid, would necessitate the vacating of two of the professors' chairs, or else the college would have to run in debt, or else beg, as it does not pay its expenses now. Taxation, therefore, the conlege would have to run in debt, or ease beg, as it does not pay its expenses now. Taxation, therefore, would be destruction to that college. If the gradu-ates of the college living in other States are asked to contribute funds to the college, they will reply, If college property is taxed, that they prefer to invest their money where it will not be taxed. We cannot afford to make such a claim of taxation more nice than wise. Taxation, therefore, their money where it will not be taken. We sample afford to make such a claim of taxation more nice than wise. If the Legislature taxes the property of Williams College, which is composed of funds given by the State and private individuals, for specific purposes, for the advancement and interest of the college, it takes away property of the college just to the extent of the proportion of the interest it takes away. The interest of $7500 is applied annually to the assistance of indigent young men worthy of ald. For forty-three years has this amount been thus expended. Does the State wish to come in, and, by taxing this property, say that it is ashamed to aid indigent yaung men? Williams College has an immunity against tax-ation which carries with it the right of destruction. Let Williams College be taxed, and auficiently so to be destroyed, Williamstown will go out of existence. Education is the wealth of the State. It promotes thrift, elevates the lower classes, lessens crime, and increases the value of taxable property, and promotes the productive industry of the State. The lower grade of echools depends upon the high-er. On the prosperity and educational influence of colleges depend the common schools. They cannot exist without the higher institutions. Our fathers showed their view of this when the first institution they established was a college. In the foundation of many of the towns of this Commonwealth, they were essentied, within three or five years, among other they established was a college. In the foundation of many of the towns of this Commonwealth, they were required, within three or five years, among other things, to devote one piece of land to a settled minis-ter, and another for the support of the minister, a third for the schools; and they were also required to build a meeting house, and settle and support a learned and godly minister. Many towns use the funds from those lots to-day in support of the schools. These schools keep their corporation in existence. They receive aid from the State. They make arrange-ments with the town so that the committee vote the funds of the town for the purpose of carrying on schools in these buildings. It is so with the Deerfield Academy, and others. The educational funds of the towns are devoted to sustaining schools in the build-ing which the corporation thus founded own. Tar this property, and you change the relation of the cowra annihilation.

poration to the town, and this is the first step toward annihilation. If churches are taxed, the principle upon which our fathers acted will be violated. The taxation of churches is a refinement of modern invention. Churches are educational institutions. No boy can grow up to manhood, having listened to the well pre-pared and carefully written instruction given from the pulpits Sunday after Sunday, without having received an education which is of incalculable benefit to him. Our clergy are educating our people by their Sabbath ministrations. He closed by hoping that this Legislature will do as He closed by hoping that this Legislature will do as the New Jersey Legislature did, defeat the proposi-tion to tax such institutions.

the New Jersey Legislature did, defeat the proposi-tion to tax such institutions. Mr. Edward Dickinson, representing Amherst Col-lege, said that of the income of $75,000, which is a charity fund, five-sixths is expended annually for the assistance in education of young men who are unable to support themselves? Scholarships amounting from $70 to $100 annually are given to 130 students. The tuition of the students represents less than one-half the expense of educating them. There is college property amounting in value to $00,000. The sum represented by taxation of this property will support three professors, and if it is taxed the college would be deprived of them, which would greatly cripple it, in these days when the advancement of education de-mands an increase of professors and larger salaries, rather than a decrease of instructors. All the real es-tate of the college used for other purposes than strict-ity college purposes is now taxed. Mr. John P. Tarbell, of Boston, made a general plea against taxing religious and charitable institutions. If charitable institutions are taxed the poor suffer. The poor are taxed. The ability of these institutions to assist them is lessened. The rich do not directly suffer, but the public gain nothing by it. If these in-stitutions are deprived of their ability to help the poor, the sick, the needy, the suffering, the public institu-tions and funds will be called on to do it, so there is no gain. It is simply taking out of one pocket to put into the other. Churches should not be taxed, because they instruct no gain. It is into the other.

no gain. It is simply taking out of one pocket to put into the other. Churches should not be taxed, because they instruct in virtue and morality, and thus are a benefit to the community. It is sacrilege to tax churches. United States bonds are not taxed because the loan is a ben-efit to the country. Churches should not be taxed for the same reason. They are a confessed benefit to every community in which they are established. Free churches should not be taxed, although the churches that are leased for revenue should be taxed to the amount of that revenue. Mr. Alphene Hardy urged that just taxation is de-feated by the law which allows a man to own prop-erty in Boston, and by acquiring a residence out of the city to escape taxation on personal property. He gave an instance of a town where the tax ble proper-ty has increased from $12,710 in 1865 to $4,108,000 in 1870. The rate is but a fittle over 51-2 per cent. He spoke strongly sgainst the law of asttlement, showing ty has increased from $12,710 in 1865 to $4,106,000 in 1870. The rate is but a fittle over 5 1-2 per cent. He spoke strongly against the law of settlement, allowing a person to name his place of reaidence for the pur-pose of evading taxation. Taxes in Ecoton are high-er than in any other city, and not a sale in the burnt district has brought its full valuation, as shown by the assessors' books. Men are obliged to leave Bos-ton because every kind of personal property is taxed. More equal taxation is needed, and can be in some way secured.

More equal taxation is necess, and that we were the way secured. Judge Warren, in a general proposition, argued that all church property, in existence or contracted for, should be exempted from taxation, because churches are doing the work of the State. These should be exempted, whatever may be the course of the State baraafter exempted, whatever may be the course of the hereafter. He also claimed that literary and charitable institu-tions should, for the same reason, be exempted. He suggested that all future petitions for exemption be referred to a board of inquiry. Adjourned until Tuesday, when the subject of mort-gaged property will be considered. On Thursday, the case of the petitioners will be closed. — Journal, March 20.

LORD CHANCELLOR THURLOW was distinguished for many valuable qualities, not including piety. He had made his brother a hishop, and after the chancel-lor had died of the gout, a fellow-clergyman asked this dignitary what had been the spiritual condition of the deceased in the closing days of his life. The blabop replied that it was hoped it had been gracious, for in the midst of his paroxysms, the chancellor had been heard frequently to call upon the name of his Blessed Redeemer.

manning Google

Communications.

THE BASIS OF PROPERTY.

PRINCETON, Mass., March 11, 1874.

SACARAL STRACK

1.4.4

-214

同時なし

<text><text><text><text><text><text> tions, society will be as reluctant to assist in this theft as in the other.

The labor-reformers purify the air of such false notions, society will be as reluctant to assist in this baft as in the other.
Again you said:—
"A new and very important statement on the in-first question leaked out. Mr. Heywood concaded the base of the statement on the in-first question leaked out. Mr. Heywood concaded the base of the transaction, or what he pleases; the please is the the loan. Now this one-half per cent. Is what the world calls interest. Mr. Heywood may call the cost of the transaction, or what he pleases; the please is the the loan is returned, any increase of the enact amount borrowed is interest, and it is used to abolishing interest when the part of abolishing interest. The shall be contending."
If the cost of loan ing more is one-half of one per sent, dealers may justly charge that amount. But in your that interest is "a premium or sum of money given for the use or loan of another sum of money."
Fullted economists all coincide with Adam Smith in the point that "that derived from money by the part to what "that derived from money by the part the vark about one for the use or which it involves is one thing; interest and the cost which it involves is one thing; where hadvocate of neutrers, said: "The circulation of capital and the cost which it neoves is one play is the same rights about any capital is quite another." State Street for the use of the stark when the vary of capital and the cost which it neoves is not reto to a such which it neoves is not reto to a such which it neoves is one othing; there would hardly presume to say that the $2,627, with the secter and the device of the transaction of interest is one othing; there would hardly presume to say that the $2,627, without the stock and other wested interest, with the secter and the cost which it neoves is one othing; th

E. H. HEYWOOD.

[When there is a scarcity of a needed article in the market, buyers compete with each other for it; and he gets it who is willing to pay the most for it. When there is a glut of the article in the market, sellers compete with each other; and he succeeds in selling who is willing to sell the lowest. This is the LAW which determines prices, at least wholesale prices; and it cannot be got rid of until all competition is suppressed. If it is wrong for the seller to sell above cost-price in the first case, it is wrong for the buyer to buy below cost-price in the second case. But we never heard of any complaint made by labor reformers that articles were sold too cheap, even if the price taken was far below cost. In truth, we do not see how it is possible to regulate prices by any theory whatever, so long as everybody wants to get the best possible article for the least possible price. If the alternating competitions of buyers and sellers can be got rid of, cost can be made the price in all not merely the "limit of price," which seems cases, to be all that the "cost principle" contemplates. If these competitions cannot be got rid of, then our labor friends are attempting to annul a law of Nature, and will hardly succeed.-ED.]

AGAIN.

MY DEAR MR. ABBOT :-

AGAIN. MY DEAR MR. ABBOT:— I am surprised that yon should not see my point, for seeing should evade it. If you do not mean, by the first paragraph I quoted, that women should—un-the first paragraph I quoted, that women should—un-the first paragraph I quoted, that women should—un-the first paragraph I quoted, that women should -un-ledge you to show that the exemption would not lead to precisely the firauds and evasions at which I hint-edge you to show that the exemption would not lead to precisely the firauds and evasions at which I hint-edge you to show that the exemption would not lead to precisely the firauds and evasions at which I hint-edge you to show that the evaluation tax. Whether this is source to be dealt with, I suppose, by a new brood of any rate, it is more than a good many men think worth paying for the privilege, and many s voter is brought to the polls only by party managers who pay is poll-tax for him. Secondly, suppose it assumed that representation— f.e., voting—is the souly just ground of taxation. The the and informers, the second down and the start is not most of those I mention could not fairly claim exemption on that ground: for example, for-be naturalized. Doubtless reduction down at he start. This dad, to prevent cavit, that I am strongity and strongs by in favor of the right of those women to vote propriations for which, mosely, they are taxed. This property is taxed—especially on those local ap-propriations for which, mosely, they are taxed. This and not prevent cavit, that I am strongity and strongs to do with the general subject of female and the prevent cavit, that I am strongity and strongs to do with the general subject of female and the prevent ly put, about which a good deal and the prevent cavit. The not the agent deal strongs to most of the set on the start. The should be careful put the should be care

[To be "exempt from taxation" means to be excused from taxes justly due. Not to be taxed because the protection which alone justifies taxation is withheld, is a very different thing; and this distinction seems sufficiently obvious to be easily intelligi-ble. It would be absurd for Massachusetts to talk of "exempting" real estate in Paris or London, which, of course, she has no right to tax. She can only "exempt" property which is justly subject to taxation by her.

We never "assumed" that representation is the "only just ground of taxation." On the contrary, we have said that protection is its only just ground. If the non-voters mentioned, e.g., foreigners, do not get all the protection they are taxed for, they are unjustly taxed. If they find that non-representation implies non-protection, as the women do, they ought either to be represented or else not to be taxed. We do not pretend to justify any existing practices; we simply state a very clear principle.

Whether a reductio ad absurdum is an "unpleasant process to submit to," we cannot decide in the present instance. Perhaps our esteemed correspondent can enlighten us, when he "sees his way clear all through." As we do not "say, exempt in part," a reductio based on that proposition does not at all reach us,-ED.]

WHAT DO WE REALLY MEAN!

Who can complain now-a-days if called upon to ex-

Who can complain now-a-days if called upon to ex-plain his meaning? So many trains of thought may be suggested in a single sentence, and so many men-det acceptions and admissions may be made which do not appear in the utterance, that he would be more and unman who way never misunderstood. The believed that the editor of The INVEX de-nied the existence of anything analogous to what is a directive that the editor of the INVEX de-nied the existence of anything analogous to what is a directive that the editor of the INVEX de-nied the existence of anything analogous to what is a directive the subjective revelation of a supernatural object." Objection to "the intellectual analysis and interpretation of experiences by no means monopolized by intuitionulists." The "experiences" alluded to I assume to be the promptings of the inner man, an im-puters, but never supernatural. Imperfect or fallible in its operation, because the conditions for the high-ext development of our spiritual nature are seldom opplied with. All that comes to us in this way to be submitted to the test of "reason, the prime minis-ter of the spirit." Thomas Palme refers to "thoughts we produce ourselves by reflection and the ext of thinking, and those that bolt into the mind of their

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

and reeing in the chire lecture on "the God di Science." I suppose I have complained as much as any one in my private letters to TuE INDEX, that the spiritual was not properly recognized in its columns; and yet I confess I never could have gone from Orthodoxy to Free Religion, had I not discovered in many of the advocates of the latter (some of whom are taken to task for a supposed fack of feeling or faith) a recog-nition and grateful acknowledgment of the internal sight and prompting. After all, our faiths are our luxuries. Charles Lamb humorously remarks, that "the truth is too precious to be spoken every day," and evidently some people so regard their faith; yet I believe that the clear, ringing utterance of an exalted faith has an electrical effect which the world cannot afford to lose, and that too often are our best, our deepest convic-tions suppressed.

tions suppressed. The danger, however, is not that faith will leave us, but that other elements of positive religion will be neg neglected. The clergy warn us to escape from some future per-dition; but how singularly hard for the world to em-phasize the duties of the here and now, to unite in practical means for an escape from the present Hades of discord. The mitigation of human misery all about us, the attainment of that harmony which is heaven itself, the kingdom of heaven on earth! The eccle-siastical idea of "heavenly harps" must give place to more tuning here below. Were we in better tune, we might sing the "new song" now. W. F. P. New ORLEANS, La., March, 1874.

ANOTHER "LEAGUE."

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., March 10, 1874.

EAU CLAIME, Wis., March 10, 1672. The liberals in this city, to the number of thirty, met in Concert Hall on Sunday, March 1, 1874, and there organized a Liberal League, adopting Tax Im-DEX "Articles of Agreement" and a few necessary by-laws. The following officers were elected, the term of office being six months:-President--Rev. S. J. Dickson. Vice-President--Mrs. T. D. Giddings. Secretary--Will Kennedy. Treasurer--Mr. Gunn. Executive Committee--Mr. T. D. Giddings, Mrs. F. 5, Dickson, Mr. Jenke.

Executive Committee-Mr. T. D. GIGGINGS, M. F. Dickson, Mr. Jenks, The regular meetings of the League are to be held every second Sunday. The Secretary was instructed to report the organi-ration of the League to THE INDEX and Woodhuld and Claffin's Weekly. On account of the bad weather, fewer persons were present at the organization than were expected. We look for a rapid growth shortly. WILL KENNEDY, Secretary.

Donald by Google

THE BAPTIST denomination is to-day, numerically, seventeen times as strong in proportion to the popula-tion as it was one hundred years ago.

.....

154

THE INDEX-MARCH 26, 1874.

Advertisements.	G
THE PATRONAG of the liberal advertising public is reap fully solicited for first Norsz. The atte will be honestly made to keep the adve- ing pages of Tus INDEX In entire harm with its general character and principles, thus to fornish to the public an adverti medium which shall be not only profitabilits patrons, but also worthy of their r generous support. To this end, all impro or "bilind" advertisements, all impro or "bilind" advertisements belic to be fraudulent or unjust to any one, wi	ect- mpt ttls- iony and sing ic to nost oper ver- ived ll be be admitted. The inpex must not be held respon- for any statement made by advertisers, will in all cases accept the responsibility their own statements.	tor on i
ADVERTISING BATES.	08D

For 1 to	12	Ensertions,	100	Per	line.
66 QA 66	£1	66	ä	46	66
 52		66	5	66	66

On half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent. on the toth, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

CIRCULATE | Circulate ! | Circu-V late THOSE PETITIONS. Don't feel satis-fied when your petition is a yard long, unless you have asked every one to sign it. Got good, influ-ential paras

GET EVERYBODY.

Don't neglect to show the petition to any one, because he is a stockholder in some church, or other exempted property, as many such persons admit the justice of the demand; and those who will not should be under to take the responsibility of refunding to sign it. Don't delay! We want the petitions returned early.

Per order of EXEC. COMM. of the BOSTON LIBERAL LEADUS.

CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON,

has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX,

A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Rational Religion.

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public atterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and best matured thought of the age on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the social and political amelioration of society.

It is edited by FRANCISE. ABBOT, and dated by ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of Editorial Contributors :-

O. B. FROTHINGHAM. New York City THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.L.

WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverbill, Mass. BICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England. PROP. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, Londo

D. Eng. Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX. as the best popular exponent of Religious Liberallam. Every Christian minister, and every thinking church-member, should subscribe for it, as the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly exposition of the differences between Free Though and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the arguments and the movements which the Church willy have to meet in the future.

Almost every number contains a di leading article, which alone is worth the price of one year's subscription.

Prof. MAX MUELLEE, of Oxford, England, in a letter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1872, says: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Religion in the widest sense of the word should be felt in America-that such a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your country,-is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of so-called religious or theological periodicals is, as you know, very large." And later still: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest."

Sand $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for thre months on trial."

Address THE INDEX.

No. | Tremont Place, Bost

OOD PHOTOGRAPHS 1 07 ADING INDEX WRITERS. Including FROTHINGHAM, T. W. HIGGINSON, W. J. POTTER, W. H. SPENCER, F. W. NEWMAN, CHAS. VOYSEY, A. W. STEVENS, INDEX ASSOCIATION, F. E. ABBOT, now for sale at the office of THE INDEX, will be mailed postpaid to any address receipt of price. Single Photographs, 22 ts each; complete Set of Eight Photoba, $1.50. THE INDEX. Address, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass

NDEX TRACTS

T

No. 1.-Truths for the Times, by F. S. Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Principles." Ms. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Spe-cies," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-inally intended for publication, but subseilly authorized to be used : "I have now read 'Thorns FOS THE TIMES,' and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 2.—Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char-acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wor-thy of the nineteenth century. New Edi-tion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 3.-Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfections and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

Christian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costlines, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5 .- "God in the Constitution," by Bev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the Unit-ed States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 19 copies $1.00.

No. 6 .- "The Sabbath," by Parker Pillsbury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies 81.00.

No. 7.-"Compulsory Education," by F.E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 8 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8.-The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that in-terests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 9.-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac-ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evan-gelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Constitution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10.-The Impeachment of Christianity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from five to one hundred copies.

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12-Is Romanism Real Christian 10, 12.—12 Momentum Meal Christian 1691 Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies #1.00.

No. 13.-On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Heligion: The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, has do not have of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Frice 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address THE INDEX, 1 TERMONT PLACE,

Roston, Mass

THE INDEX, A Weekly Journal DEVOTED TO

7

FREE RELIGION. PUBLISHED BY THE

No. 1 Tramont Place, Beston.

8

EDITOR: FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT.

ARROCTATE EDITOR: ABRAM WALTER STEVENS

EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS: O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, B.I.

W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass

R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass.

MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

F, W. NEWMAN, England.

CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX AM

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a highe purpose, both in society and in the indi-vidual:

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, fro for alavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianist for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes

In brief, to hasten the day when Free Beligion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is specially devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the purpose of securing the more complete and con-sistent secularization of the political and ed-ucational institutions of the United States. The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an unbroken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURES

The publication of a valuable leading paper or essay of a thoughtful character, i In each issue, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX. Regular editorial contributions will continne to be furnished by the well-known em inent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high position. Mr. VOYNEY has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to radical readers. Other interesting correspondical resours. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from valua-ble books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as oircumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the country. The most liberal terms are offered.

TEBMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered letter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case. Address

THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

ASSOCIATION. Report of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meet-ing in 1867, at which the Free Religious Association was Organised. Containing addresses by O. B Froth-ingham, Henry Bianchard, Lucretia Mott Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver Johnson, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Hig-ginson, and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

4. PUBLICATIONS.

RELIGIOUS

FREE

OF THE

(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a (and plans, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not possess this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meet-ing, 1869. 50 cents. Contains essays by Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and Esstraint in Religion," and by David A. Was-son on "The Belation of Social Science to Religion," and speeches by O. B. Froihing-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Den-ton, E. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Barton, E. W. Emerson, anary ortw, C.A. Sar-tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowland Conhor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outlines of Judaism" by Babbi Wise.

coodings of Third Annual Meeting, 1870. 50 cents. Contains essays by O. B. Frothingham on the "Ides of the Free Religious Association," followed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Reof Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cachey on "Ac-ligion as a Social Force, especially in rela-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religions Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Age;" an essay by Samnel Johnson on the Age;" an essay by Samnel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions," fol-lowed by Babbi Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judaism," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedanism," T. W. Higginson on "Monammenanism," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Beligions of China," and Wm. J. Potier on "Heligion Old and New in India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos, Vickers, S. R. Calthrop, Public and abar Rabbi Wise, and others.

accedings of Fifth Annual Meet-Proceedings of Filth and the ing, 1872, Scents. (Four or more, Sc cents each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion as America, ' by C. D. B. mills on Acignet and the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Frothof the Human Mind," and by U. B. Froz-ingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cells Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C. A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and chica and others Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meet-ing, 1873. 35 cents. (Four or more, 35 cents esch.) Contains essays by Sanual Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and by John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom," with Midresses by Wm. C. Cannett. Robert Dais addresses by Win. C. Gannett, Robert Dale Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samnel Longfei-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Luoretia Mott.

Sympathy of Beligions, by T. W. Hig-ginson, 25 cents.

Beligions of Chins, by Wm. H. Channing. 35 cents.

Beason and Revelation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jas. Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of ten, 60 cents; of one hundred, $3.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1872 is quite limited. Orders by wall may be addressed either "Free Beligious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass.

WM. J. POTTEE, Sec. F. R. A.

	THE INDEX-	MARCH 26	1874	155
POPULAR BOOKS,	DESCARTES (RENE.) Discourse on the Method of Rightly conducting the Reason and Seeking Truth in the Sciences	LECKT (W. E. H.) History of th Influence of the Spirit of Rat	e Rise and	SDEWGED (BURNING)
SENT BY MAIL	DARWIN'S Origin of Species	1.25 Influence of the Spirit of Kac Europe. 2 vols. History of European Morals fr 5.00 tus to Uharlemagne. 2 vols.	om Augue-	Brancher (RERRIERT) Education, Intel- lectual, Moral, and Physical Pirst Frinciples Easays: Moral, Political, and Esthetic Biustrations of Universal Progress. A Re- lectuo of bis best Parser.
	DARWIN'S Origin of Species. The Descent of Man. 7 yols Journal of Researches. Emotional Expression of Man and the Low- er Animals.	1.00 LEWIN (BEV. RAPHAEL, D'C).	What is Ju-	Dimersitions of Universal Progress. A Re- lection of his best Papera. Bocial Statics; or, The Conditions Easen- tial to Human Happiness Expectiled, and the First of them Developed. The Principles of Psychology. 2 vols Thio Principles of Psychology. 2 vols Philosophy of Style.
AT	er Animals	4.00		the First of them Developed.
PUBLISHERS' PRICES!	DICKENS' Child's History of England			Philosophy of Style. Becent Discussions in Science, Philosophy, and Morals. Now and enlarged edition. Sociology
ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.	ELIOT'S (GEORGE) Novels. Honsehold Edi- tion. 5 vols., each Comprising Adam Bede,	1.00 tions of a Creed		Country of the second s
D HITBA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.	Romota. The Mill on the Flons. Felix Holt. Silas Maruer and Scenes of Classical Lite.	LUBBOCK (SIR JOHN). Origin a tion, and the Primitive Condition Pro-historic Times.		STRAUSS (D. F.) The Old Patth and the
여행이 다 친 듯 것 말 많이 없어?	The Same. Library Edition. I vols Middlemarch. 2 vols Wit and Wisdom of	1.50 LYELL'S Principles of Geology. Lisements of Geology. 1.25 ONGFELLOW'S (R. W.) Posms.	* 3.59
ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other STAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will	EMERSON'S (R. W.) Essays, First Series. Essays. Second Series. Miscellanics Esprésentative Men. English Traise	2.00 Prose Works. Portrait	4.00
forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt	Représentative Men	1.00 The Miglow Papers Research Man	4.00	THACKERAY'S(W.M.) Novem. Honnehold dars are respectfully solicited from	Conduct of Life Poens. With Portrait. May day and Other Pieces.		2.00	The Newcomes.
all friends of THE INDEX.	May days and Other Pieces May days and Other Pieces Zasaya. Blue and Gold Prose Works. 2 vols Society and Solitude	1.50 LOWELL (MRS. A. C.) Postes for 5.00	Children. ,75	Pendennia.
	Society and Solitude	LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goe LEGGE'S Confuctus' Life and Tas
Price. Price. 1.50	EVANS (E. P., Ph. D). First Historical Transformations of Christianity. From the French of Athanase Coquerel the Youngar	LEGGE'S Confuctus' Life and Tes Confuctus and Chinese Classics.		plete in 5 vols. With new Portrait. Per vol. This edition includes all the matter in the
Gascord Days	Younger The Life and Works of Gotthold Episraim Lessing. Translated from the German of Adolf Stahr. 2 vola.	1.50 MILL (JOHN STUART.) Discort Discussions. 4 vols., each The Examination of the Philoso William Hamilton	B.20	This edition includes all the matter is the est English editions, with many additions, making it, with the hovels, the chappent and a complete Thackeray in the market.
LOOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women. Two 3.00 English Sketches and Camp and Fireside	PABRAR'S Critical History of Free Thought, In reference to the Christian Baligion	Political Economy, Naw and	ste Comte. 1.50	1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Diamond, &c. 2. Paris, and Irish Sketch-Books, &c.
A Content intercence and charpened to the second second second Circle and Second Circle and Second S		1.00 tion. The Subjection of Women. Essay on Liberty.	2.50	4. Four Georges, Humorists, &c. 5. Catherine, Christmas Books, and U.
iy Boys, do	FEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Eliot's" translation.	2,00 Autobiography	1.50
ABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. 1.50	WROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Religion of Hu- manity Bellets of the Unbellevers	1.50 MACDONALD (GEORGE.) Th Daughter.	e Vicar's	THE Opinion and Decision of the Supreme
NUMENTS of Ramsey, Sage and King in	Child's Book of Beligion Life of Theodore Parker		te Sterras. 1.50	Court of Ohio in the above case
OUMENTS of Stallo, Hoadley and Math-	FULLER'S (MARGABET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 5 vols	8.00 MIVART (ST. GEO.) On the 6	lenesis of 1.75	Excurdons in Pield and Forest, Portrait.
we against the use of the Bible	GOETHE'S Faust. Translated into English	MOULTON (LOUISE CHANDLE	R.) Bed-	Cape Col. Letters A Yankee in Canada A Work on the Concord and Merrimac
ter Beens. 2.00 2.00 Benfure and Dogma	Elective Aminites Wilhelm Moister. Translated by Thomas Cartyle. Portrait of Gosthof. 2 vols Herman and Dorothes. Translated by El-	1.25 MERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Con	to notere	A Week on the Concord and Merrimae
MEBACH (BERTHOLD). On the Heights. 1.50	Horman and Dorothes. Translated by El-			TENNYSON'S (ALFRED) Poems
Bhine. 2.00 delwales	GREO'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Life Literary and Social Judgmenta Creed of Christendom	MARTINKAU (JAMES.) Pessys.) ical and Theological. 2 vols. Pe The New Affinities of Faith	r vol 2.50	Primitive Culture. I vols
00)#'S Zmanys 1.00	GROTE'S LIFE Compiled from Family Dec.	MAURICE (ERV. F. D.) The Gr Object of Hope for Mankind		VOYSEY (REV. CHARLES.) The Billing and the Stone. Vols. I. and V., each Vols II. VV. and VI., each The Voysey Appeal. Voysey's Defence at York.
egilOT on the English Constitution 2.26	uments, Private Memorands, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote, Second Edition, With Por-	the second s		The Voysey Appeal. Voysey's Defeace at Tork
IN (ALEXANDER). Mental Science: A compendium of Psychology and History of Micaophy	PERING STATES CONTRACTOR CONTRA TOR CONTRACTOR CONTRA TOR CONTRACTOR CONTRA C	Amount Descripts on Education fr	om 1829 to	WARNER'S (CHARLES D.) My Summer in a Gargen.
foral Science: A Compondium of Ethics. 1.75	HAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter's Camp. Book I. In England, Book II. In Scotland. Book III. In France. The Johnson Para	1848 Thoughts Selected from the W Horace Mann	ritings of 1.35	a Gargen. Baunterlage. Back-Log Studies.
STLET'S Dictionary of Americaniana, 2.50	The Intellectual Life	2.00 Eousseau, 2 vola	····· 6.00	WHITTIER'S (JOHN G.) Poema. 2 vols Child Life
	HAMILTON (GAIL), Child World. Part Sec-	MUELLER (MAX, M.A.) Lectur Science of Language. First Seri	es on the	WEISS (JOHN). American Religion Life of Theodors Parker. 2 vols WHIPPLE'S (E. P.) Literature and Life Character and Characteristic Mon The Literature of the Age of Elizabeth Smooss and fix foundations washington and the Revolution. WHITNEYS (Mar. A. D. T.) A Summer in Verbic food the weiter Life.
BTOL (BWV. G. A). Radical Problems 2.09 he Hising Faith	ond Child World, Fart First	1.00 The Same. Second Series 1.50 Chips from a German Worksho Essays on the Science of Relia	p. Vol. I.	WHIPPLE'S (E. P.) Literature and Life Easings and Reviews. Character and Characteristic Mon
STIAN (H. CHARLTON), The Begin-	BAMILTON'S Lectures. 1. Metaphysical Lectures	II. Easays on Mythology, T and Customa, Vol. III. Easay arature, Biography and A	raditions.	The Literature of the Age of Elizabeth
		Three vols. Frice per volume. Lectures on the Science of Relig	9.60 2.00	WHITNEY'S (Mas. A. D. T.) A Summer in
OOKS" (CHARLES T.) Translations. The	EAWTHORNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works. New Illustrated Library Edition. Nins vols. Per vol. Twice-Told Tales. Mosses from an Old Manse. The Scariet Lotter, and The Bilthodale Wormane.	the Cirkle Kkkoes from Kentacky	in' Bound 1.50	WHITNEY'S (Mas. A. D. T.) A Summer in Lesite Goldthwaite's Life. We Girls: A Home Story Real Folks The Other Girls Pansies. A volume of Postme
		NEWMAN (FRANCIS W.) A Hist		Pansies. A volume of Poems
CHNER'S Forme and Matter 2.59 IKLE (BENET THOMAS). History of	The House of the Seven Gables, and The Snow Image. The Marble Faun.	Hebrow Mouarchy Phases of Faith; or, Passages History of my Creed.	from the 2.00
RLE (HENET THOMAS). History of villations in England and France, Spain d Southand. New selflow of the entire ork, with a complete index. 1 vols 5.00	The English Note-Books. The American Note-Books. The French and Italian Note-Books. Our Old Home, and Septimius Felton.	NEWMAN FIGARCISW.) A mine Hobow Mousterby. Phases of Faith; or, Passages History of my Creed. The Soni, its Sorrows and its Asy Catholic Union: Excays to wards of the Puture, as the Organ Philasthrows.	a Church mation of	ADDEZ66:
KLE'S Emmys; with a Biography of the labor. Fine portrait	BildGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Papers Malbone, An Oldport Roumace Army Life in a Black Regiment	Philanthropy Theism, Dectrinal and Practical The Religious Weakness of Prote against Hero-Making in Beligion
LYLE'S Works. Chesp edition. Compris- the following: Miscoliancous Excesses, 7 a, Frack Rovolution, 3 vols.; Preder- the Great, 10 vols.; Crounwell's Lexitors, j, vols.; Satron Resartus, i vol.; John effag, i vol.; Life of Bohiller, i vol.; Pant fraest, i vol.; Heroes and Hero Wor- 9, i vol.; Harts and Hero Wor- 9, i vol.; Harts and Hero Wor- 9, i vol.; Harts and Hero Wor- 9, i vol.; Heroes and Hero 10, i vol.; Heroes and Hero 10, i vol.; Heroes and Hero 10, i vol.; John Hero 10, i vol.; John Heroes and Hero 10, i vol.; John Heroes and Hero 10, i vol.; John Heroes a	Army Life in a Black Regiment Atlantic Essays Oldport Days		to serio
., 5 vols.; Bartor Besartus, 1 vol.; John	BOWELLS'S (WILLIAM D.) Their Wed- ding Journey Suburban Sketches	Mons. 3 vols.	and Occa-	1 Trement Place, Boston.
p, i vol.; Leiter Day Pamphlets, i vol. y vol.; Leiter Day Pamphlets, i vol.	VONDIAN LANG	1.00 Oritical and Miscolancous Writin 1.00 Historic Americans, Franklin	Washing-	A CHEAP OFFEI
a, 1871-3. Per vol	Italian Journeys. A Chance Acquaintance HUMBOLDT (ALEXANDER VON). Life of.	1.50 ton, Adams, and Jefferson. W. troduction by Rev. O. B. Froth The Trial of Theodore Parker fo	ngham 1.50	A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRAC
SNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D). The Per-	Translated from the German. 2 vols., with three portraits		efence 1.50	from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed any address on the prepayment of 75 own to his manuscripts by his nephew, Wm.	BUNT'S (MRS. HELEN). Verses	.25 and MDCCCLV. A Christmas .50 PARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The		Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Trement Place, Boston, Mas
the second se	ORLEY'S Man's Place in Nature	TAROUND (ALLOUA HEROON) AND		CHAPTER
NEY (Mas. E. D). Patience. A Berles	A Manual of the Anstomy of Verlahrated	.50 Gates Alar	1.50 I.50	TRON
arties, salform with Patience. 1.00	Lay Bermons, Addresses, and Reviews	The Silont Partner	1.50	The Bible of the Ages.
	NGELOW'S (JEAN) Poems The Monitions of the Unseen	.25 What to Wear T.	1.00	FOURTEEN CHAPTERS. Selected from Hindu Vedas, Buddha, C
BE (FIANCES POWER), Stadion New 4 Old, of Sthical and Social Subjects. 3.00	NORLOW'S (JEAN) Prose. Of the Skal-	trait, Cabinet Edition	1.00	facins, Egyptian Divine Pymander, Zore ter, Talmuds, Bible, Plato, Pythagoras, M
WAY (MONCURE D.) The Earthward 3.75	ligs tindles for Stories Stories told to a Child. First and Second	<ul> <li>RECORDS, Arguments, and Decision Case of John D. Minor et al. ss. to of Education of the city of City of</li></ul>	ncinnati :	cus Aurellus, Epictetus, Al Koran, Lath Scandipavian Eddar, Benan, Tallesin, M
REE (JAMES FREEMAN). Ten Great ligiona	Bories A Sister's Bye-Hours Mopes the Fairy: A Story	25 Cincinnati	an City of 2.00	W. Newman, Tyndall, Max Miller, E Hicks, Channing, Garrison, H. C. Wright,
RKE (Dr. E. H.) Bex in Education 1.25		ROSSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A S	hadow of 2.50	Selected from Hindu Vedas, Buddhs, C fucius, Egyptian Divine Pymander, Zor- ter, Talmuds, Bible, Flato, Pythagoras, M ous Aurelius, Epictetas, Al Korsin, Luit Scandjavian Eddaw, Renan, Tallesin, J ton, Penn, Adam Clarke, Mary Fitcher W, Newman, Tyndail, Max Miller, E Hicks, Channing, Garrison, H. C. Wright, oretia Mott, Higginson, T. Starr King, Bu nell, Parker, Davis, Emma Hardlange, Em son, Denton, Tuttle, Abbot, Fruihingha and others.
BELATION and Conservation of Forces: Sories of Expositions by Grove, Helm- its, Mayer, Faraday, Liebig and Oarpen-	OHNBON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and their Relation to Universal Religion. India	the Physical Constitution of the	HOAVEDIT	Gespels and Inspirations from ma Centuries and Peoples.
umans, M.D. 1 vol 07 not ward L. 2.90	Josephus, the Jewish Historian 1		Dense final and	"Slowly the Bible of the race is writ. Each age, each kindred, adds a verse to it
L (MRS. CAROLINE B). The College, Market, and the Court; or, Woman's istion to Education, Employment, and isocation.	ERBOLD (DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr. Okade's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers. 1	50 2. Chemiatry. By Prof. Roscoe	F.E.S 50 With 11-	Each ago, each kindred, adds a verse to h Edited and Compiled by intion to Education, Employment, and Log shouthp	OWETT, The Dialogues of Plato, Trans- lated into English, with Analysis and Intro- ductions by B. Jovett, M.A., Master of Balliol College, Oxford, and Regius Pro- feesor of Greek. Four vols	4. Physics. By Barrour Stewart, Instrations 4. Physical Geography. By Archi Ms, LL.D., F.B.S., flaxible cloth.	bald Gel-	GILES B. STEBBINS.
" Ufe of Dr. Marie Zakrzewska, being	fessor of Greek. Four vola	90 SCOTT'S Waverley Novels. 25 vols		Four hundred pages; bound in cloth; pr $1.50. No Extra Charge for Postage. Address THE INDEX. So. 1 Tremont Place, Boston
mgats to Labort OI "Woman's R	ERR (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities, Poems, Patriotic, Sentimental and Humprous 2	00 BMILES'S (SAMUEL.) Self-Help	1.59	No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston

signate Google

156 7	THE INDEX-M	ARCH 26, 1874.
TOLUMES OF THE		D	NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drug, and Hand-grinding MILLS. Ten Sizes. Also Cotton-Beed Hullers. Diustrat-
BUNDEX. Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871,	Can excellent Photograph (Cabinet Size) of Bev. MUNCURE D. CONWAY, of London, can be had at the office of THE INDEX. Price	Our organization some time since decided to di-	ed pamphlets free, Address J. SEDGEBEER, Painesville, Ohio.
Bound volumes of THE INDEX (at the 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2	SO CODES.	our breams for the present towards securing	MAP AGENTS.
1872, and 1873, will be sent by expices the sec- purchaser's expenses on receipt of $2.06, $2- 50, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and of each other;	FREE DISCUSSION	he	LLOYD, who made all the Maps for Gen. Grant and the Union Army during the great
other articles they contain are of permanent	is beld at HOSPITALLER HALL, 608 Washing- ton Street, Boston, every Sunday, at 10% A.M., 2% and 7% P.M. All that relates to the Religious, 5% block and Social Interests of manifold consti-	Repeal of the Laws	civil war, and whose certificates he publishes, has just completed for 1874 two of the great
Tainshie present could be made	PORTICAL AUG OUT IN THE TYPET	whereby church and other corporate property is	has just completed for 1874 two of the great- est selling MAPS yet produced on cloth; an a day can be made by man or woman. County forbustion. Some stemp determined determined these volumes. THE INDEX.	tute the subjects for discussion. This table and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Hospitalier Hall.	anjustly exempted from its share of the burden	rights given. Send stamp for descriptive cir- culars and terms. LLOYD MAP COMPANY,
1 Tremont Place, Boston.		of taxation. As a means to this end, we have published for	Philadelphia, Penn.
"REST IS THE CHEAT DOL.	A NOTE INTO A LOT 1971	general circulation several thousand copies of a	TO NEWSPAPER
an and a fill	The bound volume of THE LADEA for her (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of $3, by express, at the purchaser's express. A complete file for the purchaser's express. A complete file for the purchaser's express.	TRACT	PUBLISHERS.
CORTICELLI	the purchaser's expense. A complete more than the year can be furnished in no other form. Address THE INDEX,	IRACI	Raving conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I
SPOOL SILK.	1 Tremont Place, Boston.	on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr.	should like to contract for composition alone
Size, Length, and Quality warranted.	1	Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 27. The edition was made as large as our funds	for one or more weekly papers.
Sold by leading Jobbers and Retailers.		would allow; but, so great has been the demand,	Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed. GEO. H. ELL18, 7 Tremont Place, Boston.
NONOTUCK SILK CO.,	THIS LIST will be furnished to order.	it is already nearly exhausted. Our next edition ought to be large enough to	G. L. HENDERSON & CO.,
SOLE MANUFACTURERS.	chase English, German, or French Dooks, or	place a copy in the hands of	BANKEBS.
BOSTON OFFICE-No. 2 Bedford Street.	of any American or Foreign Book, can have their orders promptly filled and their inqui- ries answered by addressing THE INDEX,	EVERY VOTES IN THE STATE,	LEROY, MINN.
FOR REED OBGANS!	THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	and generously to supply the calls for them in	Money invested on short time, or for a term of years, on unincumbered improved
Foundation	COLE'S	other States.	farms, as 12 per cent. interest per annum, payable semi-annually. Perfect title and
The Organ at Home!	U	To do this, we need funds; for, although we have made arrangements for printing the Tract	uy porrower. We concer and remit to thy min de techis collection of music for Reed	BAKING POWDER.,	at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston	part of the United States free of charge.
a Reed Instrument. Nothing that is not of	(Wasranted Best in Market.) All goods sold can be returned at my ex-	League, with its various other expenses, to bear the entire expense alone.	REFERENCES First National Bank, Mc- Gregor, Iowa; First National Bank, Austin, Minn.; Milwaukee National Bank, Milwan-
the very best duality may be than two hundred at- book, which has more than two hundred at- tractive pieces, compactly printed on large	pense, if not as represented. Goods deliv-	Will not, then,	kee, Wis.; City National Bank, Chicago, III.; Allen, Stevens & Co., Bankers, New York City; Morris Altman.
book, which has more than two hundred with tractive pieces, compactly printed on large pages. Nothing difficult. Everything nicely fitted to the popular taste.	ered free of freight, and ten days' trial be- fore payment.	All Friends of the Movement	The second
Price in boards, $3.50. Cloth, $5.00. Gils, $4.00.	ALEXANDER COLE. BUFFALO, N.Y., P.O. Box 2649.	All Friends of the movement	paying 8 to 19 per cent. interest, or
NEW METHOD FOR REED ORGANS.	THE REFORMATOR.	come forward and help us with liberal donations ?	Investments in Real Estate in Chicage and viciality,
Price, 83.50. By Wm. H. Clarke.		We frequently receive communications from
A therough Method, containing not only abundant directions and exercises, but a large quantity of the best Reed Organ Music,	A WEEELY JOURNAL, For the dissemination of useful knowledge,	parties wishing tracts to distribute, asking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the known exquisite taste and skill. Sells im-	and the enlightenment of the people on political, religious, and so-	cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per	[1] For entry on the NUMBER CONTRACT STREET, STREET, 1997.
Clarke's Dollar Instructor	cial aubjects, with a view to reform.	thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will
FOR REED ORGANS.		circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circu-	Guarantees perfect title and ample security
An excellent and attractive instruction book for those who need a short and easy	Published in the German language ov- ery Saturday, at Adrian, Mich.	ating them gratuitously throughout the country.	Firstclass securities always on hand. In-course. Sent post-paid, on receipt of retail price.	Principal office at Adrian, Mich., to which	To many of the subscribers of THE INDEX and others whose names have been furnished up
OLIVER DITSON & CO.,	all letters and communications must be ad- dressed.	as probable friends of the movement, copies of	Orders of capitalists and real estate own-
CHARLES H. DITSON & CO.,	C. LOHMANN & SON, Pub's.	the Tract, together with Petitions asking the re- peal of the Exemption Laws, have been sent,	REASONS FOR USING THE
711 Broadway, New York.	C. LOHMANN, EDITOR.
ONLY TEN SETS!	The REFORMATOR circulates in all the prin- cipal cities and villages in the United States	With the Hope	EUREKA SPOOL SILK.
•	and Territories, and presents an excellent medium for advertising.	that such friends will try to secure as many sig	It is fall length. It is full size. It is
All the bound copies of the FIRST VOL-	Terms of Subscription-$2 per annum. Ad-	natures to the petition as possible in their locality	adapted to hand or machine mas.
UME of THE INDEX (1870) which were on	vertisements inserted at liberal rates. Sub- scription and advertisements must be paid in	We respectfully ask those who are unable to at tend to the matter themselves to place the peti	and the second state of th sale at the Office of the Association in Toledo were sold very soon after they were adver-		tions in the hands of those who will.	frand, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented
tiged. FIVE DOLLARS have since been	Bosioi	Let us	to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unit paid for a single copy obtained by special		BOLL UP THE LIST!	for use. The ladies will always find the Eu- reka Silk exactly as represented. Every advertisement. The Association have just come into possession of Ten Copies of this			spool is warranted, and the manufacturer's name indelibly branded on every spool. Call first volume, and now offer		Let our united voices be heard! And let it b done NOW!	for it.
	Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi- poise, breathe through the clay; the artist has so filled his own heart with appreciation	We would say, also that we feel deeply th	e $$\overline{\phi}_5$ TO $20 PER DAY essily made, and girls all over the country to sell our face steel Engravings, Chromos, Crayon Drawings, Illuminations, Potographs, etc., etc. We now publish the finest assortment ever placed before the public, and our prices are marked down so low as to defy all competitor. No conserving the presult or presult of the presult of the presult.
TEN COMPLETE OFTO	I OT LDAL DODIE HITE LDAL DE DAA DEED ADIE CHD-		and girls all over the country to sell our fine Steel Engravings, Chromos, Crayon Draw-
TEN COMPLETE SETS	ningly to mould it into those delicate lines which the character had wrought on the liv- ing fibre. We are tompted to exclaim, as we	Other Organizations	We now publish the finest assortment ever perfected work, "Speak then!"-Hannah E.	[] : 2014] - 51 52 (11 CH) - 5	marked down so low as to defy all competi- tion. No one subscribes for a premium-giv-of THE INDEX, including the first, second,	Stevenson. All the characteristics of my husband are	in this State, to cooperate with us in securin equality and justice, by pressing the "Demand	Ing paper in order to get a picture, atter We third, and fourth volumes (1870, 1871, 1872,	in the bust,-his greatness, his goodness, his tenderness, his love. You cannot give life to clay or marble; but you can represent it, and	of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there an	their business for years, and they all report
1873), at the low price of	this Mr. Morse has doneLydia D. Parker to Hannah E. Stevenson.	rupac who are included to	that they can make much more money
	The eyes, though but of clay, are pleaming with possible indignation, with possible tears the lips are set firm with the resolution of him who, like Paul, could "light a good light" as well as "give a reason." - Samuel Longiel-	Form a Liberal League,	are so low that all can allord to purchast
Only Ten Dollars a Set.	the lips are set firm with the resolution of him who, like Paul, could "fight a good fight" as well as "ofree a reason "- Somuel Lowfol		well as agents who have had large experi-
	low. The first time I have seen Theodore Parker	and a second state of the	prices are appreciated an amont has to do is to Persons wishing to possess a complete file	since he died,-Wm. Sparroll.		look for work elsewhere until you have seen of THE INDEX, whether for its intrinsic or historical value, will do well to send their or	executed in clayBoston Daily Globe.	TIDEDATCI	money. We have not space to explain all ders without delay. The First Volume will	The likeness is good Boston Daily Advertiser Nothing appears for beauty alone, or finish		here, but send us your address and mal. Don't send full particulars, free, by mal. Don't delay if you want profitable work for your het leisure hours, or for your whole time. Now is the favorable time is ongare in this bus-or to show the vanity of the artist. All h forgotten in the man-the true, real, Yankee man, Theodore ParkerL. S. H. in the Golden	If all will unite and work, the results song	is the favorative time the finest and most
NOT BE SOLD SEPARATELY		Address	pleasing in this country, and are endorsed by pleasing in this country, and are endorsed by all the leading papers, including the New
WYANF DEC ABALBLI	Copies of this Bust, finely finished n plas-	BAARAN III III III	all the leading papers, including the New York Herald. Those who cannot give the business their entre attention can work up
The four volumes will be sent in one pack	ter, $10 each. Boxing for transportation, $1	BUSION LIBERAL LEAGUE.	aum without ever being away from home over age, by express, at the cost of the purchases			employment, without risking capital, send
Address THE INDEX,	S. H. MORSE,	Per order of the	the business are area to a contained to co.
1 Tremont Place, Boston.	Room 13, 25 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.	ERECUTIVE COMMITTEE.	Art Publishers, Portland, Me.

NOT BE SOLD SEPARATELY.

- 1

12.2 ٠

Three Dollars a Year.

VOLUME 5.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT. BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 1874.

WHOLE NO. 223.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM

1. We demand that courches and other ecclesiastical property shall no longer be exempt from just taxation. 2. We demand that the employment of chapitans in Con-grees, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by gobble money, shall be discontinued.

2. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-donal and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cease.

shall cease. 4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostensi-by as a text-book or avowedly as a book of religious wor-shp, shall be prohibited.

hip, shall be prohibited. 5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholy cease. 6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and nall other departments of the government shall be abol-abed, and that simple affirmatiou under the pains and pen-alities of perfury shall be established in its stead. 7. We demand that liaws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-realed.

ing

we demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty.
We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or advantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other special religion; that our entire political aystom shall be founded and administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unfinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, it is our profound conviction that he safety of republican institutions is imperilled, the sdysance of civili-saion impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and religion; and Wherea, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; THEREFORM, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-selves together under the following

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

ART. 1.-The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-

Asr. 3.—The means employed in working for these objects shall be regular local meetings, free discussions, lectures, addresses, conventions, the platform and the press in gen-eral, and all such other means as are peaceable, orderly, and right.

ABT. 4.-Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be preactibed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members.

Asr. 5.—Any person may become a member of the League subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-

Meal. Asr. 6.-The Officers of the League shall be a President, s Vice Tresident, a Scoretary, a Treasurer, and an Excou-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be those commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be accordice delegates to the Nathural Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together.

Correction of Liberal Lengues when using expendent Air. .- These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths voke of the members present at any reg-ular meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to svery member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

So far as I am concerned, the above is the platform The LEDEX. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that it will get be accepted universally by the American people, as the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A Liberal Lezgue ought to be formed to carry out its princi-ples wherever half a dozen earnest and resolute Liberals can be got together. Being convinced that the movement to secure compliance with these just "Demands" must surely, even if slowly, spread, I hope to make The Liberal ameans of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and active co-operation of every man and every woman who be-lieres in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-port promptly the names of their Presidents and Secre-taries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion as that list grows. If freedom, justico, and reason are "glob, let helr organized voice be heard like the sound of many waters. THE INDEX. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that many waters.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor. Borroz, Sept. 1, 1873.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT: PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE

FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CON-STITUTION.

ARTICLE 1.

ARTICLE 1. SECTION 1.—CONGRESS shall make no law respecting an es-tablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or probibiling the free exercise thereof; or abridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the food-ernment for a redress of grievances. Borton 2.—No State shall makes any law respecting an stablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form or religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the religion or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the pact of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances. No religious a qualification to any office or public trust, in any State; and no person shall ever in any State be deprived of any of the or her rights, privileges, or capacities, or disqualified to the people people or juncture of the or the may hold or the perior here of any public or private duty, or ren-dered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or or the subject of religion. Exercise 3.—Congress shall have power to enforce the pro-misons of the asseond section of this Article by appropri-te legislation.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

BT A. W. 8.

ONE WHOLESOME effect of the late general election in England, it is said, is that new Reformers' Clubs and Liberal Associations are springing up all over the country.

"THE FIRST duty of the people," says the New York Evening Post, "is to suppress the Democratic party." And it looks now as though the next duty of the people would be to suppress the Republican party also.

THE FOLLOWING is the finest stanza in Tennyson's long poem to the new Russian bride of Queen Victoria's son:

"For thrones and peoples are as walfs that swing, And float or fall, in endless ebb and flow; But who love best have best the grace to know That Love by right divine is deathless King."

THE CONFEDERATE General Jubal Early, of Virginia, says that his State does not get any benefit from sending senators and representatives to Congress, and he there-fore advises that they be kept at home, and their salaries be paid into the State treasury. This is the earliest sug-gestion of the kind which we have seen, but it is not a bad one. Perhaps some of the other States will by-andby make a similar one.

A REMARKABLE American poet says: "It seems to me there is something very fine and dignified in that kind of reform which begins at home and works at home, and acts from within and not from without." It centainly would be very well if every reformer should bear in mind that, if he succeeds thoroughly in reforming one personnamely, himself,-he is doing the best possible work for humanity. He creates a little leaven that will help to leaven the whole lump.

THE GREAT QUESTION to which Mr. Disrseli will devote his attention, as premier of England, it is said, will be that of Land Reform. As the greater part of the land in England is concentrated in comparatively very few hands, and as this process of concentration has increa of late years, it would seem that the new ministry could not do a better thing than contrive some plan whereby the land rights may be made more equal between the productive and the non-productive classes.

LORD RUSSELL once said to David Hume: "What do you consider the object of legislation?" The reply was: 'The greatest good to the greatest number." His lordship continued: "What do you consider the greatest number?" Mr. Hame promptly answered: "Number one, my lord," This was very good; for any govern-ment which seeks only the greatest good of the greatest number-neglecting the rights of the minority, even the minority of one-may be insufferably tyrannous.

"CHANGE IS IN the air," says Professor Huxley in his Aberdeen address. "It insists on reopening all questions, and asking all institutions, however venerable, by what right they exist, and whether they are or are not in barmony with the real or supposed wants of mankind." In this continued "reopening," we imagine, some present radicals will turn out future conservatives; for it is the constitutional limitation of some minds to think that no one need go any farther in reform than they them-selves are willing to advance.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

IN SPEAKING of the discouraging prospects which beset Mr. Garrison's opening crusade against slavery, and the wonder that, under the circumstances, he did not abandon the noble enterprise, Oliver Johnson says: "He would have done so, if he had not been the divinely appointed man for the hour." It is probably more rhetorical than real to speak of any particular man as "divinely appointed." Hence comes the permicious Messianic notion, the conceit of leadership, and so forth. All men are divinely appointed! And the moment of inspiration begins with every man when he first becomes conscious of his divine destiny to live, and to live truly, faithfully, and nobly!

NOT ONLY in Congress but out of it the discussion upon finance goes on. The people are quite as much interested in the subject, and perhaps quite as wise, as their legislators. Some are in favor of a specie basis, others of a labor basis, and still others of a land basis, for our national currency. We confess that we are not wise anough to say which is best; but we are glad to see the discustake place, and believe that only good can be the re-It of it. And we note with particular interest that idical Clubs are engaged in this important discussion. sult of it. Mr. E. M. Davis, of Philadelphia, sends to us an able pa-per on Money, read before the Radical Club of that city, of which he is President, by Charles Sears, Esq.; and Mr. Davis himself has written ably and learnedly on this whole aubject.

How much more apt people are to go begging to God than to go thanking to him! When they are in any sort of trouble they hasten to God with importanities for relief, but so long as they have no special need for his in-tervention they forget to be thankful for ordinary favors. The people in a certain section in North Carolina are just now frantic with fear lest Bald Mountain should become a destructive volcano, and so they prayed in steady succession for sixteen days and nights. But to what effect? God will not stop any order of Nature to please us. There are no accidents in his universe. Everything pro-ceeds by law. And when we come to realize that everything is well because God reigns, we shall cease to be beggars before him, but continually celebrate his wisdom and his goodness.

REV. C. W. BUCK, of Portland, Maine, in an able sesmon on Biblical Inspiration, in which he argues for the spiritual rather than the literal view of inspiration, says:-The Bible needs no defence; certainly not any defence by erroneous teaching. That defence has brought it al-ready under the coudermation of many. No, the Bible not only needs no defence, but proves incontestably its enduring vitality, by surviving so long the maltreatment to which it has been exposed at the hands of its defenders. Its real worth-like all real worth-is imperiahable. I have read words culled with careful selection from the books of other religions; and there are words in the Bible that, in my judgment, at least, far surpass their highest reach. I have searched the "Bible of the Agea," a col-lection of wise sayings by asges of every time, to find in it some words of religions confidence and hope, and found none that could compare with the sublime utter-ance of the Falmist, "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want," and so forth.

FROM THE Law to Literature is a step, we should say which any one loving books might take with gladnes as, indeed, from any active pursuit to one so beset with charms, and rich with pure delights. Hon. Nathaniel Holmes, formerly Royal Professor of Law in Harvard University, and Judge on the Supreme Bench of Missouri, in his later days permits himself release from weighty cares, and full opportunity to "breathe the still air of de-lightful studies." He is a constant and interested reader of THE INDEX, considering it, as he himself assures us, "one of the foremost papers of the age." Besides being a wise student of the best literature, ancient and modern, he finds time occasionally to write a valuable essay. The St. Louis Globe, of February 15, contains one from his SL LOUIS WHOSE, OI FEOTURY 10, CONTAINS ONE FROM THE pen on Providence and Fate, which he read to the Uni-versity Club of that city. We hope hereafter to find room in THE INDEX for some extracts from this learned treatise; and in the meantime we thank him for a copy of it.

Coogle

LIST OF LIBERAL LEAGUES.

158

 Borton, Mo.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries.
 Borron, Mass.-J. S. Rogers, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries.
 JENFERSON, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Secretary. JEFFERSON, OHIO.--W. H. Crowell, Prealdent; A. Giddinge, Becretary, BAN Jose, CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Becretary. TOLEDO, IOWA .- J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secretary. VINELAND, N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Cinte, Becretary. JUNOTIONVILLE, NEB.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Scoretary. OLATHE, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Savetary. etary. DIT, MICH.-W. E. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, DETE DEFINIT, MICH.-W. H. Hill, Freeddent; A. T. Garretson, Bearclary.
 BEREDS VILLE, MICH.-A. G. Eastman, President; F. E. Knowles, Scoretary.
 OSOBOLA, MO.-E. F. Thompson, President; M. Boderick, Becretary.
 BERTH, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Scoretary.
 BERLIN, WIS.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman, D.C.-George M. Wood, President; J. E. Crawford, Secretary.
 AUBALNGTON, D.C.-George M. Wood, President; J. E. Crawford, Scoretary.

urer. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. New Yosky, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary. Secretary. Secretary. Mo,-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Secretary.

Secretary. Ear Challes, Wis.--President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy.

David Friedrich Strauss.

COMMEMOBATIVE SERVICES AT SOUTH PLACE CHAPEL, FINS-BURY, LONDON, FEBRUARY 22, 1874. WITH A DISCOURS BY MONCURE D. CONWAY.

Ť.

I cannot plainly see the way, So dark the grave is; but I know If I do truly work my day Some good will brighten out of woe.

For the same hand that doth unbind The winter winds, sends sweetest abowers, And the poor rustic laughs to find His April meadows full of flowers.

I said I could not see the way, And yet what need is there to see, More than to do what good I may, And trust the great strength over me?

Why should I vainly seek to solve Free-will, necessity, the pall? I feel, I know, that God is love, And knowing this I know it all.

-Alice Carey.

IT. READINGS.

The Data Gase asked about the place of the series of the s

The Duke Gas asked about the altars of the gods of the land. Tsac-Wo replied: "The Hea sovereign used the pine-tree, the man of the Tin used the cypress, and the man of the Chow used the chestnut, -to cause the people to be in awe."

man of the Chow used the chestnut,—to cause the people to be in awe." Confucius, hearing this, said: "Things that are done, it is needless to speak about; things that have land their course, it is needless to remonstrate with; things that are past, it is needless to biame." Kee-Loo asked about serving the gods. The Master said: "While you are not able to serve men, how can you serve the gods?" Kee-Loo said: "I venture to ask about death." The Master said: "While you do not comprehend life, how can you comprehend death? "If a man in the morning hear of the right way, he may in the evening die without regret. "Yow, shall I teach you what knowledge is? When you know a thing, consider that you know it; and when you do not know a thing, understand that you do not know it. This is knowledge. "For a man to worship a deity not his own is mere flat-tery.

tory. "To give oneself earnestly to the duties due to men, and, while respecting the gods, to respect also their dis-tance, may be called Wisdom."-Confucius.

Mohammed said: instruct in knowledge! He who in-structs, fears God; he who speaks of knowledge, praises the Lord; who disputes about it, engages in holy war-lare; who seeks it, adores the Most High; who spreads it, dispenses alms to the ignorant; and who possesses it, attains the veneration and good will of all. Knowledge enables its possessor to distinguish what is forbidden from what is not; it lights the way to heaven; it is our friend in the desert, our society in solitude; our compan-ion when far away from our homes; it guides us to hap-pineas; it sustains us in misery; it raises us in the eati-mation of friends; it serves as an armor against our en-emies. With knowledge, the servant of God rises to the heights of excellence. The ink of the scholar is more as-cred than the blood of the martyr. God created Reason, and it was the most beautiful being in his creation; and God said to it: "I have not created anything better or more perfect or more beautiful than thou: blessings will come down on mankind on thy account, and they will be judged according to the use they make of thee."-Mo-hammed.

Ammed. If morality is the relation of man to the idea of his kind, which in part he endeavors to realize in himself, in part recognizes and seeks to promote in others, religion, on the other hand, is his relation to the idea of the uni-verse, the altimate source of all life and being. So far, it may be said that religion is above morality; as it springs from a still profounder source, reaches back into a still more primitive gr.und. Ever remember that thou art human, not merely a nat-man also, and, with all individual differences, the same as thou, having the same needs and claims as thyself: this is the sum and substance of morality. Ever remember that thou, and everything thou be-holdest within and around thee, all that befalls thee and others, is no disjointed fragment, no wild chaos of atoms or casualities; but that it all springs, according to eternal laws, from the one primal source of all life, all reason, all good: this is the essence of religion.—Strause's "The Old Faith and the New."

III.

Fall, fall, ye mighty temples to the ground! Not in your sculptured rise Is the real exercise Of human nature's brightest power found.

'Tis in the lofty hope, the daily toil, "Tis in the gitted line, In each far thought divine That brings down heaven to light our common soil.

'Tis in the great, the lovely, and the true, 'Tis in the generous thought Of all that man has wrought, Of all that yet'remains for man to do.

Fall, fall, ye ancient litanies and creeds; Not prayers or curses deep The power can longer keep, That once ye held by filing human need

The quickening worship of our God aurvives * In every noble grief, In every high belief, In each resolve and act that light our lives.

IV. MEDITATION. v.

v. The future hides in it Gladness and sorrow; We press still thorow, Nought that abides in it Daunting us,—Onward.

And solemn before us, Veiled the dark Portal; Goal of all mortal;— Stars silent rest o'er us, Graves under us silent.

While earnest thou gazest, Comes boding of terror, Comes phancasm and error; Perplexes the bravest With doubt and misglving.

But heard are the Voices, Heard are the Sages, The Worlds, and the Ages: "Choose well; your choice is Brief, and yet endless.

"Here eyes do regard you In Eternity's stillness; Here is all fulness, Ye brave, to reward yon. Work, and despair not?"

-Goethe, tr. Carlule.

DAVID FRIEDRICH STRAUSS.

<text>

lute idea which has represented itself in Nature, in lute idea which has represented itself in Nature, in order that by a progressive development through Nature it may gain consciousness in man, and return as mind to a deeper union with itself. It is really the ancient Hindu conception of a universal soul of Nature, a vast spiritual sea in which each animal in-atinct, each human intellect, is a wave. (f, in an-order similitude, every organic form, however great for of intelligence, on the way back to its source, backer and the search of a universal soul of Nature, a vast spiritual search of a central fire of intelligence, on the way back to its source, backer and the the accumulated knowledge gath-ered on its pilgrimage through many forms in exter-al Nature. Briefly, the Hegelian philosophy means a soul in Nature corresponding to the soul of Man. Of course I have siready stated it—it did not originate with Hegel. It may be traced from the Vedic Hymn to the cry of Kepler, when, looking up to the stars, he add, "Great God, I think thy thought after thee?" But with Hegel its gined an adaptation to the thought of Europe, and passed into the various forms of be-life and feeling. It inspired all the poetry of Words-worth. It is reflected in the materialism no less than in the idealism of our age, and may be felt in the philosophy of Huxley no less than in that of its beat exponent, Emereon. Mong the many German thinkers who sat at the feet on theyeit there was but one who comprehended its tremendous bearings upon the theology of Europe; and one through whom it was able to grow to logical fruitage; and that one was the great man whose life has just closed—David Friedrich Strauss. Strauss off the mere form of his forerunner's doctrine, just as the present many flate and the sourd on the sources, re-garded Strauss as a renegade; on the surface it would so appear. Hegel called himself a Christian, Strauss idealist, Strauss 'a materialist. But we must not be stom; but it is, for all that, blossom in another form.

victims of the letter. Fruit is different from blos-som; but it is, for all that, blossom in snother form. I need not dwell on the outward biography of Friedrich Strauss. The greatest men live in their in-tellectual works. The sixty-five years of this man were not marked by many sallent or picturesque inci-dents. As a student of theology at Tübingen, and as a professor, he travelled an old and beaten path, poverty, hard study, hard work. At the age of twen-ty-seven he publishes his great work, the Leben Jesu; is driven from his professorship; offered another at Zurich University, he is prevented by persecution from holding it; and fiually settles himself down to a life of plain living and high thinking. He is elected by his native town Ludwigsburg to the Würtenburg Legislature, but surprises them by his "conserva-tiam," as it was called, and answers their dissatifac-tion by resigning. He marries, and, alasi unhappily. Agnes Schebert was an actress, and she was also a lever authores; but when she was unarried to Strauss there was shown to be an incompatibility of disposition which led to a quiet separation without recriminations on either side. The lady once woite a parody on the writing of Hegel, which is amusing, but suggests that she could hardly have been fortu-nately united with a philosopher who had est at the feet of Hegel. She left with him a daughter and a son, who were devoted to their father through life, and for whom he wrote a tender and touching ac-count of their mother, that they might think of her with affection.

son, who were devoted to their father through life, and for whom he wrote a tender and touching ac-count of their mother, that they might think of her with affection. He lived a busy life, and wrote a large number of admirable works, the absence of most of which from English libraries is a reproach to our literature. His been written, and have brought before Germana noble figures which are for most English readers mere names,—Ulrich von Hutten, the brilliant radical of the Reformation; the discoverer of lost books of Livy, Quintilian, and other classic authors; the fel-low-fuglive of Erasmus before the wrath of the Pope; the lonely scholar who has made classic the lister of Lake Zurich where he died; the Biography of Hermann Reimarus, who one hundred years ago was the leading prophet of Natural Religion; * the Life of Friedrich Daniel Schubart, poet and publicist, who, beginning as an organist in Ludwigsburg, lost his place for writing a paredy on the Litany; who in later life was invited by the Duke of Wirtenhung to dinner, on his arrival selized and imprisoned in As-berg Castle for ten years, because of an epigram writ-ten by the poet,—who, for the rest, has left songs which the Germans still love to sing.† The work of Strauss on Voltaire consists of a series of lectures prati (daughter of Queen Victoria), who listened to have the work is written in a spirit of high ad-miration of the great French heretic. If, as I doubt not, the two biographices which he has left—Lessing and Beethoven—are of equal value to those I have mentlomed, Strauss will have left six works at least, apart from his contributions to theology, of a charac-ter which must write his name very high among the iterary workers of this century. When the life of Strauss is written, no doubt the dialis of it will be found of great interest; but noting rolating to his private and personal bistory will ever hes of impressive as the unfolding of his intellectual in the illow of under great interest; but noting rolating to his private and perso

* His chief works are The Wolfenbüllet Fragments, edited y Lessing: The Principles of Natural Religion, and The natincis of Animals.

The principal is one entitled Capied (Caps Song), sup-posed to be sung by soldlers, sold to the Dutch, on their way to the Cape of Gool Hope. Another celebrated posm-of his is, Die Furstengrüft (The Tomb of Princes.)

Google __

where his last hymn of joy ended in the gentle sigh

264040

where his last hymn of joy ended in the gentle sigh of death.
The this his mental biography, I can give here but an sign outline. I have already taken up the thread of his life at the point where he was learning the secret of his life at the point where he was learning the secret of th nomenal life there ever proceeds a higher spiritual life." When this lofty faith in humanity as the true Christ, which had unconsciously symbolized itself as the life of one man, shone out upon the mind of Strauss, all interest in the individual Jesus paled un-der it. Since his great work was published—near forty years ago—we have, by standing on the shoul-ders of such men as he, been able, no doubt, to see somewhat further. The rational study of the New Tetament has disclosed certain fragments of real his-tory, and by piecing these together we can shape out the figure of a great man,—great enough to show why it was that the human heart brought all its finest drams and marvels to entwine them around that single brow. But the grand generalization of this scientific thinker, who pieced the veil of fable and recognized beyond it he face of humanity transfig-med with divine light, is one which can hardly be paralleled by any niterance since the brave words of Paul: "We have ever known Christ according to the fash, and if we have ever known him." "The Lord is a Spirit!"

nesh; and if we have ever known Christ according to the fash, yet now we no longer know him." "The Lord is a Spirit!" "Ihe addition of the source of the the the terms of the source of the source

.

<text><text><text><text>

but is at the same time both order and law, reason and goodness, to which we surrender ourselves in loving trust." In one very important matter many of the admirers of Strauss have felt distress at his position and influ-ence. Politically, he has the reputation of being a reactionist and conservative. This reputation-ob-bained when he resigned his seat in the legislature because of disagreement with his radical constitu-ency—has been confirmed by his treatment of politi-cal subjects in his latest work. My own belief is that the views of Strauss on these matters are very seriously misunderstood by reason of the fact that they are altogether conceived from the Hegelian standpoint. Those who study Hegel know that his apparent conservatism was the crust outside a flery radicalism. The political philosophy of Hegel is con-tained in the following extract from his writings: "Moral liberation and political freedom must ad-vance together. The process must demand some vast space of time for its full realization; but it is the are destined to carry it into effect. The Reformation was an indispensable preparation for this great work. The history of the world is a record of the endeavors made to realize the idea of freedom and of a progress surely made, but not without many intervals of ap-parent failure and retrogression. Among all modern failures the French revolution of the eighteenth cen-ury is the most remarkable. It was an endeavor to realize a boundless external liberation without the in-dispensable condition of moral freedom. Abstract notions based merely on the understanding, and hav-ing no power to control wills of men, assumed the functions of morality and religion, and so led to the dissolution of society, and to the social and political difficulties under which we are now laboring. The progress of freedom can nerver be aided by a revolu-tion which has not been preceded by a religious ref-ormation."*

That a similar conviction was rooted in the mind of Strauss I became aware by personal intercourse with him. Some years ago, as I walked with him on the banks of the Neckar, he declared to me that the motives he had in publishing bis Life of Christ were hardly less political than religious. "I felt op-pressed," he sald, "at seeing nearly every nation in Europe chained down by alled despotiam of prince and priest. I studied long the nature of this oppres-sion, and came to the conclusion that the chain which fettered mankind was rather inward than out-"See Gostwick and Harrisou's Outlines of German Litera *See Gostwick and Harrison's Oullines of German Litera ture, p. 481.

<text>

V. Everlasting! changing never! Of one strength, no more, no less; Thine almightmess forever, Ever one thy holiness: Thee eternal, Thee all glorious we possess. v.

Shall things withered, fashions olden, Keep us from life's flowing spring? Waits for us the promise golden, Waits each new diviner thing. Onward! onward! Why this hopeless tarrying?

Nearer to thee would we venture, Of thy truth more largely take, Upon life diviner enter, Into day more glorious break; To the ages Fair bequests and costly make.

By the old aspirants glorious; By each soul heroical; By the strivers, half victorious;

By thy Jesus and thy Paul, Truth's own martyrs

By each saving word unspoken; By thy truth as yet half won; By each idoi still unbroken; By thy will yet poorly done: O Almighty! We are borne resistless on.

-Adapted from Gill.

THE PUNERAL OF STRAUSS.

HIGGINSON'S TRIBUTE TO SUMNER

<text><text>

reached the age of forty when God called him. He then spoke of his intellect, and said that it was his purpose to follow the custom of that justorm and tell the truth without unmeaning words of eulagy. In was remarkable on to much for the quality of use of Parker. Televisite content of the theoret of the second and the second the second and the second and the second the second the second and the second and the second and the second the second and the second the second and the second the second the second and the second the second the second the second the second t

Government out of the hands of the corrupt and self-ish and put it in the hands of honest men, how to use party without being bound by it. The nation swaits to see how Massachusetts will meet these issues. He alluded to the story of the old Saxon of whom it was reputed that had there been ten like him the Normans would have been driven from the shores of Britain. The battle of our day is with the Normans of corrup-tion. The leader of our ten has failen, and the nation is looking to Massachusetta to see who will replace him.—Boston Journal, March 16.

THE BUSINESS WOMAN'S MUTUAL BEN-EFIT ASSOCIATION.

We have been requested by "Alice Dutton" to give word of notice" to the following circular; but we find it so excellent that it seems proper to publish it in full in THE INDEX, with our heartiest approval of the organization and its object. Similar ones ought to be everywhere established ; and the attention of all friends of the cause of woman is called to one of the best plans yet devised to further it .- ED.]

TO THE WOMEN OF BOSTON.

TO THE WOMEN OF BOSTON. Ladies, --During the month of October, 1873, then appeared at different dates, in the daily papers of Ba-ton, a card addressed to you, signed by "Alice Dut-ton." This card informed you that it was proposed to organize in this city, as soon as possible thereafter, an association for the benefit of women who support themselves by their own industry. To this proposed organization your attention was called, and for it your sympathy and hearty coöperation asked. The pres-ent circular is issued to inform you that this society, under the name of "THE BUSINESS WOMAN'S MU-UVAL BENEFIT ASSOCIATION." was duly organized at 47 Warren Avenue, on Saturday evening, Jan. 17, 1874, and its management placed in the hands of the Board of Directors, whose names terminate this circu-lar.

Board of Infectors, wassessing to a second s

After careful and thorough examination of all avail-able statistics regarding percentage of sickness and death, the directors are satisfied that the rates of fees and benefits proposed by this association, and herein stated, are practicable. We are, therefore, ready to begin and sustain active work the moment we have a sufficient number of members to yield us the sum of four hundred dollars. This amount, it is beliered, there will be little difficulty in obtaining, if women will take pains to understand thoroughly the purpose and working-plan of this association. To the following regulations your attention is ear-nestly called :--Ist. There shall be two orders of membership-Ben-eficiary and Honorary.

eficiary and Honorary. 2d. The number of beneficiary members, under one board of management, shall not exceed two thousand. 3d. Each applicant for beneficiary membership shall be in good health, and between the ages of fi-teen and forty years. 4th. The fee for certificate of membership shall be two dollars. 5th. The annual dues shall be three dollars, pays-ble quarterly, half yearly, or yearly, in sidvance.

Rand

5th. The annual dues shall be three dollars, pays-ble quarterly, half yearly, or yearly, in advance. Beneficiary members are those for whom the socie-ty was formed, and who, having joined it, pay regu-larly their yearly dues, and are, consequently, entitled to all benefits arising therefrom. Honorary members are those ladies, who, wishing to help the cause, pay the fee of two dollars—or as much more as may seem best to them—for certificate of membership, but who do not pay yearly dues, and who derive, of course, no benefits from the association. Gentlemen, also, are cordially invited to become honorary members, upon the same terms. The rules in regard to age and health do not apply to honorary members. In return for the small expense, to beneficiary mem-members. In return for the small expense, to beneficiary mem-bers, of three dollars per year, or less than one cent for each working day, the following benefits are proposed: ist. To pay members who are sick, the sum of six dollars per week for every week of sickness, excepting always, the first week, and providing the illness does not exceed six consecutive weeks.

dollars per week for every week of sickness, excepting always, the first week, and providing the lilness does not exceed six consecutive weeks. 2d. To appropriate fifty dollars for burial expenses of each deceased member. 3d. To loan, without interest, to members in abso-lute need, duly shown, such small sums of money as the case may require. Thus it is proposed not only to prevef.t suffering from want in time of illness, but to render it impos-sible for any woman, hereafter, to assert, truthfully, that she was driven to destruction for the lack of a few dollars. Indeed, if this association be faithfully sustained, each woman who becomes a member of it, is placed beyond the reach of hopeless desperation. To prevent the possibility of an exhausted treasury by the demands of those suffering from some trifing physical disturbance-cases which do not at all need pecuniary ald,-it has been decided, in justice to all the members, that for the first week of illness no ben-efits shall be paid. Cases of illness arising from child-birth, also, can receive no bonefits. All other cases of sickness, property reported, that is, accompanied by a line from a respectable physician, giving name and date of illness, shall meet with prompt attention, and the weekly benefits shall be promptily paid. Especial care will be taken that annoying difficulties shall not intervene between the sick and the benefits to which

Google

Intervene between the sick and the benefits to which they are entitled. As far as the limited space of this circular will al-tow, the main features of "THE BUSINESS WOMAN'S HUTUAL BENEFIT ASSOCIATION" have been present-ed. The work which it proposes to do is before you, and this work it certainly can do if women will unite to sustain it. Similar societies established for men, and supported by men, exist all over America and Europe; hitherto, there has existed for worken not one.

The constant complaint among women is that noth-ing is done to help them, pecuniarily, as a body, in case of need. The constant response of men is, that women wil not unite as do men to help each other. With the fusics or injustice of this latter assertion the present circular has nothing to do. We only know women will not unite as do men to help each other, With the fusice or injustice of this latter assertion the present circular has nothing to do. We only know that by becoming members of, and thus supporting, this association, women will not only effectually dis-prove the charge, but they will by this simple method do more to defeat the evil effects of unjust wages to somen than all that has ever been written or spoken. Sensible, united practical work by women for women, is the crying need, not merely vehement words. Chief among the evils of unfair wages to women, is the inability to sat aside in time of health a sum in any measure adequate for support in case of illness. This is one of the great difficulties met and overcome by the plan of this association. There is no woman who earns her living who cannot hay aside size crats a week to meet the annual dues of this society; and nuely there are very few women who support them-elves by their own industry, who would not, in the event of sickness and consequent failing salary, find six dolars a week a most desirable income. To many combrable independence and painful dependence.

handreds it would mean all the difference between comfortable independence and painful dependence. To every woman, then, who earns her living, and to every woman who does not, we earnestly appeal, begging that she will aid in sustaining this associa-tion, either as a beneficiary or as an honorary mem-ber; for her own sake, if the benefits are of value to her, and for the sake of her sister women, if they are ref.

<text><text><text><text><text> working fund. Respectfully,

ALICE DUTTON.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS. President-Mrs. "Alice Dutton" Ballou, 771 Tre-

Mont Street. Vice-Presidents-Mrs. Sara E. Brown, M.D., 228 Shawmut Avenue; Miss Eliza M. Brown, 47 Warren

Arene. Secretary-Miss Susan Fowle, 208 Tremont Street. Treasurer-Miss. A. D. Ballou, 208 Tremont Street. Advisory Committee-Miss Fanny Tibbetts, Miss Hirton Williamson, Miss Walton, Miss Hattle Tib-ber. betts

Office of the B. W. M. B. A., 208 Tremont Street. Bosron, Feb. 27, 1874.

P.S.-Since writing the above the encouragement we have received has induced the Board of Manage-ment to take a small office at 208 Tremont Street, where please address all communications connected with the association, or call for further informa-tion. A. D.

A CASE IN POINT.

A CARE IN POINT. EDITOR NEW ORLEANS REFUTILICAN:— "For lease for a term of fifty years" is the an-moncement on a sign-board in front of a huge build-lay in the very heart of the business part of the "up-per diy," as the space within a radius of half a dozen block, having Magazine Market for its centre, is now called. The building referred to bears on a marble sib let into its lofty front, which towers grandly bors the busy bee-hive stores and shops surrounding it, the legend, "St. Elizabeth's Asylum;" but not-withstanding its magnificence, it presents but a sloomy and unfavorable contrast to its less preten-iony occupant, and she makes no sign of life. Here is presented a potent argument why property belonging to even charitable associations, or which is used for charitable purposes by others than the State, should not be exempted from taxation. A space large enough for the site of a score or two of stores and workshops, in the most valuable and convenient and fourishing locality in the district, is rendered ab-solutely valueless,—for all useful or practical purposes is really wiped out of existence. Vast sume must have been expended to erect the really imposing structures intended as a home for the orphans; but it is now, too late, discovered that the stock of orphans fails so far below the supply of asylums that all this capital has been needlessly withdrawn from the peo-ple whom it was assisting into prosperity; and it, too, has been ad ead waste. Had this property been taxable, how different would have been the result; and St. Elizabeth's Asylum is not the only institution of the sort in this city against which the same arguments lie. Had this property been taxable, a less costly site, where no obstruction to trade could have resulted, would most probably have been selected, and an edifice commensurate with the charitable necessities of the section been built-provided, which is very likely, the projectors had not realized that.here were asylums sufficient already in existence, and thus been induced to save and utilize their money. As it is, the community is greatly in-convenienced and much poorer, while not a single in-dividual is bettered in the slightest degre. It is not even probable that a lease can be effected, for the building is not adapted to any business or oc-cupation, or any combination of them, at all likely to be established there. If it could be sold and re-men who make its vicinity so prosperous, it would be a positive blessing; but this can hardly be expected from the conservative customs of the society which owns it.

a positive bissing; but this can hardly be expected from the conservative customs of the society which owns it. There seems to be no remedy for this state of af-fairs, except in legislation. If this property paid taxes, necessity would compel its utilization in some manner. Why not, then, pass a law taxing all prop-erty owned by church or charitable societies which may hereafter be acquired, and all which is now owned by such associations after the lapse of a given ime, asy in three or five years? The evil of exemp-tion from sharing the general burden grows continual-ly, and is too oppressive to be borne much longer. Every year sees some new combination spring into chartered life, authorized to acquire property thence-forward to remain untaxed, and while a levy is thus made upon the whole people for its maintenance, only its comparatively few members benefit by its ex-istence. Coasily churches are now being erected in various parts of the city, despite the notorious fact that each Sunday shows in nearly all of those now open for worship but a "beggarly account of empty benches."

Denches." I have no feeling in this matter other than the gen-eral weal, and therefore hope a bill will be introduced at an early day, in order that its provisions may be carefully scanned by the public as well as by the leg-ialators. I desire it simply as a measure of reform, and wish all interests to be heard on the subject. JUSTICE.

CHARLES SUMNER.

CHARLES SUMMER. The community is still shocked by the sudden death of one who will be enrolled in history as one of the noblest sons of man. Well may America feel order of counting Charles Summer as one of her own. He gave character, glory, and renown to the people from whom he spring, to the country which habors, however, belonged to humanity. His ideal was greater than that which can be circumscribed by on the rolls of the great emancipators and true mes-siahs of the human race. The greatness of Summer, ments, in his mental greas, in his moral loftiness, his spotess virtue, the untarnished purity of his charac-ter, which alone made it possible for him to occupy that towering position of the most eminent and tur-ments, though they were of great eminence; but in spotess virtue, the untarnished purity of his charac-ter, which alone made it possible for him to occupy to the davocate of freedom, which enabled him to thand unmoved in the midst of the contest and tur-dot advocate of freedom, which enabled him to thand unmoved with the fortitude of Divine justies and unmoved in the midst of the sopressed and items to be and in the occup of Divine justies on battle in the name of God for his oppressed and income and in the midst of the sopressed and items to be and the to be sopressed and the possible of the sopressed and items to be and the the order be a lengthy bi-strength, andowed with the fortitude of Divine justice to do battle in the name of God for his oppressed and enslaved sons. It is needless for us to present here a lengthy bi-ography of the late statesman, philanthropist, and scholar; the secular press has already spread before the civilized world an extensive biography of the be-loved Senator; we merely desire to pay our humble tribute to the great man, who, as one of God's proph-ets, has added another link to Divine revelation by his life, his works, his utterances, his courage, his ideility to the cause of justice and humanity. As he proved the friend of humanity without distinction of race or nationality, so did he prove the friend of re-ligious liberty. It was Charles Summer who pre-sented the petition against the unholy machinations of the purbled fanatics who desired to make the Constitution of the United States, the magna charta of the human race, the instrument of a seet. His ideal was man, in his entirety, in his individuality, the creature that came forth from the hands of God, crowned with the royalty of God-born intellect; nei-ther the Christian nor the Jew, the Protestant nor the Catholic, the American, the European nor the African, but the man. As such he will live forever in the annals of human progress, of human freedom. Summer, the man who electrified the people by his words, is dead; but his lessons, his teachings, his labors, his achievements will live to the end of days.—Jewish Times.

Hoetry.

[For THE INDEX.] MATERIALISM-IMMATERIAL

If it be true we end with date of death, From whence at birth we drew our borrowed breath, And Nature claims us in our cerements, Yet must we lead our little lives the same; For dateless virtue with us does not end, But increase hath, and added, nobler fame, But increase nath, and added, nobler rame, When with her life our own doth sweetly blend. As in our mortal soil no flower can rise Until two souls as perfect one are grown, And thus through love their love incmortalize, So must man's godlike part remain unknown, Unless with virtue, she that never dies, He yoke himself, and like a bride her crown.

J. ALS

CRADLE SONG.

All the world is slumbering now, None awake but only thon. 'Tis the wind is sighing drear; Lie thes still and sleep, my dear!

Close up these two eyes so bright, Close them up like buds at night; When the morning sun shall glow, Like the flowers they will blow.

I shall see those flowers fine, I shall kiss these eyes of thine, Tis the same to mother then. As if Spring were come again

W. W. Newell, in Herald of Health, for March.

NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS TO INDEX STOCK.

Mrs. F. W. Christern, Richard B. Westbrook	New York City,	One sl	ATO,
B. C. Spencer,	Milwaukee, Wis.			100
B. W. Howes,	Boston, Mass.	Two		509
Chas. W. Story,	Boston, Mass,	One		300
E. W. Meddaugh,				100
Jacob Hoffner,	Detroit, Mich.	Five	44	500
John Weiss.	Commineville, O.	One		100
	Boston, Mass.	- 14		109
W. C. Russel,	Ithaca, N. Y.			100
A. W. Leggett,	Detroit, Mich.		48	100
B. F. Dyer,	Boston, Mass.		- 64	100
James Purinton,	Lynn, Mass.		44	108
F. A. Nichols,	Lowell, Mass,		44
J. S. Palmer,	Portland, Me.		44	100
Robt. Ormiston,	Brooklyn, N.Y.		- 66	100
Mrs. A. L. Richmond,	Lowell, Mass,			100
Mrs. Benj. Ireson,	Lynn, Mass.		44	160
J. E. Oliver,	Ithaca, N.Y.			109
E. H. Aldrich,	Providence, R.I.			100
Geo. L. Clark,	Providence, R.1.			100
W. M. Jackson,	Providence, R.I.	Two		200
Mrs. E. B. Chase,	Valley Falls, B.I.	140
L. F. Garvin,	Lonsdale, R.I.		- G. I	108
	Lonsoase, R.I.	One		106
James Damon,	Ipswich, Mass.	44		200
Joseph A. Barker,	Providence, R.I.	44		108

CASH RECEIPTS.

NAME REVERPTS.
DETERMENT REVERPTS.
DETERMENT REVERPTS.
DETERMENT REVERPTS.
DETERMENT REVERPTS.
To Strain Still, E. JORES, M. SMITH, SI, M. K. B., Welch, Si, Thos, Strains, Si, J. E. JORES, M. Y. C. Mack, SJ, Mar, Swiellan, S. J. K. Strains, Si, J. Strains, Si, Strains, Strains, Si, J. Strains, Strains, Si, Strains, St

Henj, H. Benton, $1. All receipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and no other receipt sent nniess specially requested. Persons who do not see their remittances acknowledged within three weeks after sending, will please notify us. N. B.-Postage on THE INDEX is five cents per quarter, dasting from receipt of the first number, payable in ad-vance at the place of delivery.

RECEIVED.

Books.

BEODER. THEODORE PARKER. A Biography. By Octavius Brooks Frothingham. Boston: James R. Orgood & Co. 1874. [Price $3.00.] THE TRUTUS OF RELIGION AND THE BIBLE, as Seen by the Light of the Nineteenth Century. By J. Wilson, A.M., Author of "Phrash," "Krores of Grammar," "Conduct of Life," etc. New York: 1874.

- Autoror of "Phrasis," "Errors of Grammar," "Conduct of Life," etc. New York: 1874. Pamphlets and Periodicala. HALF-BOUR RECREATIONS IN POPULAR SCIENCE: Origin of Metalliferous Deposits, by Prof. J. Sterry Huat. The Phenomena of Sieer, by Dr. Richardson. Boston: Estes & Lauriat. [Price 25 cents.] HALF-BOUR BRCERATIONS IN NATURAL HISTORY: Insects of the Garden. By A. S. Packard, Jr. Boston: Estes & Lauriat. [Price 25 cents.] THE SUPPRESSION OF VICE. A Sermon by O. B. Frothing-ham, in Lyric Hall, Feb. 18. New York: D. G. Francis. 1874. BORTON UNIVERSITY TEAR BOOK. Edited heather the 1874. SOSTON UNIVERSITY YEAR BOOK. Edited by the Univer-sity Council, Vol. I. Boston: H. O. Houghton & Ce. 1874.

1874. OLD AND NEW, April, 1874. Boston , Roberts Brothers. THE SANITABLAN, April, 1874. New York : A. N. Bell, Editor

Google

161

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Tolede Office: No. 35 MONEON STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Blule. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Frogress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love.

Brotherly Love. N. B.—No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contributions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT, Associate Editor, Associate Editor, OGTAVIUS BROOKS FROTINGHAM, THORAS WENTWORTH UGGINSON, WILLIAM J. POTTER, RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, WILLIAM H. SPENCER, MES. E. D. CHENEY, Rev. CHARLES VILLIAM H. SPENCER, MES. E. D. CHENEY, Rev. CHARLES VOTSEY (England), Prof. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN (England), Rev. MONGURE D. CONWAY (England), Editorial Contributors.

BOSTON, APRIL 2, 1874.

BUNDAY LECTURES .- The Editors of THE INDEX will ecture occasionally on Sundays, if desired, within a convenient distance of Boston.

N.B.—Any person whose name is now on our mail-list will receive a second copy of THE IN-DEX, mailed to the same address, for a year, on pre-payment of One Dollar. This offer is made to accommodate those of our subscribers who wish to increase our circulation by sending extra copies as samples to their friends.

GLIMPSES.

PLEASE SEND in all "Petitions" as soon as possible. WILL THE Liberal Christian please accept our thanks for a very generous notice of our late lecture in Horticultural Hall?

TOTAL NUMBER of names thus far sent on the "Congressional Petition"-4,387; total number on the "Massachusetts Petition"-8,669.

BALD MOUNTAIN and the Congregational Council are twin marvels. "What is Congregationalism?" remains still the great conundrum of the minute.

SIGNATURES to the "Massachusetts Petition" have been received as follows since last week: From Benj. A. Andrews, Shelburne Falls, 43 names; from N. M. Hatch, Boston, 12; from E. A. Sawtelle, Grantville, 25; from N. A. Rogers, Abington, 36. Total for the week-116 names.

SIGNATURES to the "Congressional Petition" have been received as follows since last week: From R. H. Ranney, Boston, 53 names; from E. A. Sawtelle, Grantville, Mass., 27; from N. M. Hatch, Boston, 10; from Benj. A. Andrews, Shelburne Falls, Mass., 43. Total for the week—133 names.

WE FIND the following copied from the Congregationalist into the New York Evangelist: "Rev. Edward C. Towne, whom we once had occasion to pronounce a 'Flourens among the radicale,' has seen in part the error of his ways, and announces his return to 'loyalty to the Christ of God in Jesus.' Welcome." We do not know exactly what this means.

THE ONE MONUMENT, above all others, which the country owes to the memory of Charles Sumner, is the passage of his Civil Rights Bill. This seems to be the spontaneous wish of all true hearts to-day. It is in vain that men try to express in words the honor they feel for the conscience that Sumner was, and stood for; acts alone can express it. Let the first of them be the solemn completion of his great work.

THE CHURCH-TAXATION question is now vigorously agitated in New Orleans, as well as in many other places. The Daily Republican, of that city, has republished Mr. Parton's stirring paper on the subject, and had several able editorials in favor of taxing the churches. A good illustration of the uselessness and positive harmfulness of many of the existing exemptions will be found elsewhere, copied from that paper.

HERE IS a lesson well worth conning: "Senator Summer never kept a carriage during his long residence in Washington, but generally walked on fine days and patronized the horse-cars in unfavorable weather. He sometimes expressed a wish to be the possessor of horses and a carriage, but would add: 'I cannot afford it. I either must give up buying books and keep a carriage, or forego the carriage and keep myself posted in literature.'"

WHEN FARADAY was asked how he could possibly believe the theological notions of the narrow sect he belonged to, he replied: "I prostrate my reason in this matter; for if I applied the same process of reasoning which I use in matters of science, I should be an unbeliever." From the beginning Christianity has required the prostration of reason, as a condition of Christian belief; and Faraday told the simple truth, when he confessed that the application of scientific reasoning to his Christian creed would have made him a disbeliever in it. But he failed to see that he would only have thrown away the guesses of an ignorant age for the sake of real knowledge.

WE GBEATLY REGRET that there is any occasion to give the following notice, though we give it with great willingness: "The large music publishing house of Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston, suffered from fire on Tuesday evening last, the upper part of their main building being destroyed. Although many thousands of valuable books were ruined by fire or water, their remaining stock in other buildings, and in branch stores, is quite large enough for present demands, and a large corps of printers and binders will soon supply what has been lost. A very few days' interruption of active business is all they anticipate. They have temporarily removed to No. 225 Washington Street, opposite Franklin, where they may at present be addressed."

A FEW HOURS before General Rossel, the Communist, was shot by order of the government of President Thiers, he wrote the following words to his comrades, which ought to immortalize him as one of the greatest spirits that ever met death in defence of a loved and honored cause: "I charge you, if ever the party which I have supported should come in power, and should menace their adversaries with their vengeance, to make use of this letter, to tell them that at my last hour I urgently beg of those who have the honor of defending the cause of liberty not to avenge its victims. It would be unworthy of liberty and of us who are dead.

"Your devoted L. Rosser, "November 28, 2 1-2 A.M."

THERE IS a beautiful truth suggested by the phrase, "sympathy of religions," namely, the essential unity of religion under all itselfverse forms. There is, however, another truth, less lovely, but equally undeniable, which might be expressed by the phrase, "antipathy of religions." That is, as shown by history, special historical religions have always shown a tendency to persecute each other. Each of these truths ought to have justice done to it. Would it not be approximately correct to say that all historical religions sympathize with each other so far as their universal elements are concerned, while they antagonize each other so far as their special claims are concerned? It is these conflicting special claims that have made all the mischief, and no stable peace can be expected till they' are all alike abandoned or outgrown.

THE LAST MEETING of the Second Radical Club in this city was the best we have ever attended. Mr. Frank B. Sanborn read a paper of great suggestive-ness on "Imprisonment." A young man created intense interest by avowing himself to be a discharged convict, and telling his story in the manliest way. The account he gave of maltreatment by the Charlestown State Prison officials was supported by what appeared to be irresistible evidence of its truth. He desires and is making efforts to effect a reform in the treatment of prisoners. We were more than satisfied of the disinterestedness and purity of his motives, and hope that he will accomplish all he aims at. A book is soon to be published detailing the facts of his case; and our readers will then have the opportunity of knowing more about one of the most interesting young men we have ever met.

COSMIAN HALL, in Florence, Massachusetts, was dedicated on March 25 and 26. The celebration was one of the most interesting and successful ever held, as conceded by all who were present. A noble Hall, built by the radicals themselves for the service of radicalism; a free, intelligent, and united society, full of life and enthusiasm; an excellent and heartily sustained "speaker," Rowland Connor,-few places can boast of such advantages, as things go in this world. Although unable to be present till the closing session of Thursday evening was half through, we heard glowing accounts of the fine speeches, the fine audiences, and the fine spirit of the occasion. Perhaps some friend will send a little history of the proceedings; we now only mention the dedication of Cosmian Hall as one of the best free religious conventions ever held, and record our great satisfaction and pleasure at the cheerful prospects of the Free Congregational Society of Florence.

THE INJUSTICE OF CHURCH-EXEMPTION.

The seventh and last public hearing granted on the petition of the Liberal League by the Joint Special Committee of the Massachusetts Legislature on "Just and Equal Taxation" took place Thursday forenoon, March 26, in the Green Room at the State House, Both petitioners and remonstrants having been heard at length, an opportunity was then given to the former to reply to the objections brought by the latter against their petition; and the draft of a bill which would secure the desired reform was prepared and presented on behalf of the League by Mr. C. E. Pratt. It. is due to the chairman and members of the Committee to acknowledge publicly the great courtesy and fairness with which the hearings have been uniformly conducted, as shown to both sides alike. The Committee will consider the question of taxation of bank stock and mortgages before making their final report. Meanwhile we submit to our readers the following sketch of an hour's speech, written out as faithfully as possible from the brief notes we made use of at the time.

Mr. Chairman, and Gentlemen of the Committee :-

In replying on behalf of the Liberal League to the various arguments and objections urged by the remonstrants against the granting of our petition, I design to consider only the most important of them, and to avoid, so far as is possible, going over again ground already traversed. Permit me first to consider the case of charitable and educational institutions, and afterwards that of the churches; for the latter involves a question of conscience, which the former does not.

It has greatly surprised me that, of the numerous distinguished and eloquent gentlemen who have appeared before you to defend the exemption from taxation of the various charitable and educational institutions in which they are interested, no one has apparently taken the trouble to read the petition against which they unite to protest. Their great aim has been to prove that these institutions are all rendering valuable public services to the State, and will be either crippled or destroyed, if deprived of the State aid they now receive in being released from the burden of taxation. The petition for "just and equal taxation," however, does not propose that these institutions shall be deprived of State ald: it simply proposes to change the form of it,-to put direct appropriation in the place of tax-exemption. Consequently these able and influential gentlemen have occupied the valuable time of the Committee by urging arguments which are totally irrelevant and off the point. Their pathetic appeals in behalf of the "sick poor," and other deserving objects of public charity, might without impropriety have been deferred to some other occasion; their eloquence and ability should have been applied to a defence of the present form of State aid, as compared with the form of State aid now proposed. It is quite unnecessary for me, therefore, to devote any time to analysis of the elaborate statistics presented for consideration by the Committee. All that it is necessary to say on this head is to call the Committee's attention to the complete evasion by these gentlemen of the real point at issue. What your petitioners desire is simply this: that the system of tax-exemption be abolished, and that all applications for State aid be referred to a special Board (perhaps the Board of State Charities), before whom the applicants shall be required to establish a valid claim for the aid they seek. The advantages of this plan will, I conceive, be many and great, but I will now only specify two :--

1. It is probable that the numerous institutions which now enjoy exemption from taxation without deserving it, on a false plea of being purely charitable or educational in character, will either refrain from making application for direct appropriations or will fail to secure them. A great step will thus be taken in the direction of public economy.

2. It is equally probable that a great improvement will take place in the administration of really deserving institutions themselves. I will not specify instances; but you must all have heard of cases of a partial distribution of the benefits of these institutions, by which the poor and obscure fail to receive as good or as prompt attention as others who possess influential friends. If the Board appointed to take cognizance of all applications for State aid were to grant public hearings on the subject, failures to dispense impartially the beneficence of applicant institutions would be pretty sure to come to light; and knowledge of this fact would exercise a most salutary influence in the ordinary conduct of their affairs. The institutions would_themselves be toned up to a higher fidelity and efficiency; and the public would be great gainers in consequence.

Dimized in Google

With reference to the relative advantages of taxexemption and direct appropriation, as means of aiding purely charitable and educational institutions of a deserving character, scarcely anything has been said directly by the remonstrants against our petition. But a few incidental phrases were dropped which suggested to my mind the best that could probably be arged in defence of the existing practice.

1. Mr. Stevenson, who made a very eloquent plea on behalf of the Massachusetts General Hospital, after saying that the tax of $38,000 a year which the Hospital would be compelled to pay would oblige it either to curtail its usefulness or else go to the State for aid, added-"And we do not like to do that." Why not? Is it any more humiliating or any more undignified to urge the public usefulness of the Hospital as just ground for a direct appropriation, than it is to come here, and, on the same ground, to plead for its exemption from taxation? Is not the Hospital exactly as much a recipient of public assistance in one case as in the other? The $38,000 of taxes now escaped by the Hospital are just as truly paid by the State to-day as they would be if appropriated directly out of the State treasury. With all respect for Mr. Stevenson, I submit that nobody's "liking" or "disliking" ought to be allowed to stand in the way of a just and needed reform. His objection seems to be based on the notion that tax-exemption is no favor from the State; as if the payment of the Hospital's taxes by the whole community were not a virtual contribution to that amount towards defraying its expenses !

2. "But we shall not get so much, if obliged to go to a Board for direct appropriations." I forget whose plea ruggested this as a possible objection to the plan now proposed. But the answer seems to me very clear. If a charitable institution, after making a full statement of its needs before a proper Board of reforence, cannot secure a recommendation to the Legislature for so large a grant as it now receives by way of tax-exemption, then it is altogether likely that it now receives more than it ought. If it cannot get "so much" in that way, it gets too much now; and a reduction of the amount would be an act of bare justice to the public at large.

3. "But the exemption of charitable and educational institutions from taxation saves money to the State; for they do the State's work cheaper than the State itself can do it." This was the argument of several of the remonstrants. Very well : could any stronger argument be adduced before a Board of reference, as a reason for recommending appropriations equal to the full amount of the taxes from which they are now excused? If the plea is sound, and can be made to appear so, there need be no anxiety lest the State should not be inclined to adopt the most economical way of doing its own work. People will be quick enough to see their own interest in this matter; and nobody will object to direct appropriations to existing charitable institutions, if thereby the necessity of still larger outlay is obviated. The argument is an excellant one, not for perpetuating tax-exemption, but for adopting direct appropriation in its stead.

The fact is, that the people may be safely trusted to support, either privately or publicly, every honest and genuine charity that is needed. The Report of the State Treasurer for the year 1872 (the latest one as yet printed) shows an expenditure of $407,290.17 for "charitable" objects alone; and if the people refuse direct appropriations for other charities on the change of system proposed, then the wrongfulness of stealing the money from them, as now, by the blind process of tax-exemption, is self-evident. Either the people are now made to pay more than they would think right, if they knew the amount; or else they will cheerfully pay the same amount, when they do come to know it.

But the main question, whether as regards the amount of taxes involved or the principle at stake, concerns the churches. I wish to reply first to a few special arguments brought forward by the remonstrants to defend the practice of exempting the churches from taxation.

Judge Warren has urged upon your attention a specious argument which I ought not to pass over unnoticed. He declared that to tax the churches now would violate or impair an implied contract between them and the State; that the churches have been built under special inducements in the shape of a promised immunity from taxation, and that the State is now bound in good faith to fuifil its promise by perpetuating this immunity. If this were true, I about be the last one to advocate a breach of faith on the part of the State by breaking even an implied pledge of perpetual exemption. But it is not true. This exemption is now provided for by the General Statutes, not by the State Constitution; all the statutes are liable to repeal from year to year, as circumstances shall dictate; and all new enterprises are undertaken with this well understood risk of repeal. There is no implied promise on the part of the State to preserve the statutes as they are, unchanged and unchangeable; on the contrary, they are continually modified to meet the demands of progress. To hold that any such contract exists as Judge Warren alleges would be to tie the Legislature hand and foot, in every possible direction; not merely with reference to the churches, but also with reference to every other enterprise undertaken under a given state of things. Laws are made and unmade; charters are granted and revoked; legislative changes of all sorts are continually effected, as the public interests require. To tax the churches now would no more violate or impair a supposed contract with them than to raise the rate of taxation would violate or impair a supposed contract with other parties that had made investments under a lower rate. The ground taken is wholly untenable in equity and common sense; and, though I am no lawyer, I cannot imagine that the Legislature should consider itself incapacitated to reform the statutes, whenever it perceives that they are capable of improvement.

Judge Warren also argued that Article II. of the Constitution confers the right to tax the whole community, unbelievers included, in order to aid the churches, by exemption from taxation. It reads thus: "It is the right as well as the duty of all men In society, publicly, and at stated seasons, to worship the Supreme Being, the great Creator and Preserver of the universe." He maintained that this declaration of the "duty" of all persons gives the right to tax them for the support of public worship. Now twenty-three of the States, by express provision in their Constitutions, declare that no one shall be compelled to support or maintain public worship in any society of which he is not a member; and Massachusetts, though it has no such provision in its Constitution, has it in the sixtieth chapter of the General Statutes. Allow me to read a brief extract from Tyler's American Ecclesiastical Law, which, I am informed, is a standard work on the subject. Referring to the time of the Revolution, Tyler says :-

"The parish consisted of a definite tract of land, the metes and bounds of which were very exact; and the poil parish was made up of individuals. The meeting-house and minister, and the parsonage, were all provided for and sustained by a tax on each inhabitant according to his property; and the inhabitants were required to attend the preaching provided for them under penalties prescribed by law... All landholders, resident and non-resident, Christian and unchristian, were taxed, though they never saw the minister or entered the meeting-house; and all corporations holding lands within the parish were also taxed, upon the principle that, so far as the community were concerned, public religious and moral instruction was intended for the prevention of crimes, and not the salvation of souls." [page 177.]

Observe the principle here alleged as justifying the direct taxation of all for the support of public worship; namely, the good moral influence of the churches. Now this practice of direct taxation for religious worship was abolished by the people of Massachusetts, and the Constitution was amended accordingly, on November 11, 1833; and the principle on which it rested was consequently declared invalid and false. Hence Tyler declares that now "no citizen is liable to pay a tax for the support of public worship, or other parish charges, to a society other than that of which he is a member." [page 182.] Yet this very principle that citizens may be compelled to support the churches because of their good moral influence, which was so emphatically condemned by the State in 1883, and overthrown as a justification for direct tazation, is still pleaded by the remonstrants as a valid justification for indirect taxation in the form of church-exemption. This pretended principle is their only plausible excuse for such exemption; yet it has been already condemned as invalid and false by the people of the State. Judge Warren himself, when questioned, was obliged to confess that support of the churches is now purely voluntary; yet by this confession he contradicted fiatly his previous assertion that the State had the right to enforce it as a "duty." The simple truth is that, if the argument of "good moral influence" is any justification for indirect taxation in support of the churches, it is just as good an argument for direct taxation for the same object; and the remonstrants might as well demand a return to the exploded system of the past. But if this is absurd, then there is no logical escape from the necessity of abolishing church-exemption from taxation now.

Another argument in remonstrance against the petition, offered by Professor Lincoln, of Newton Theological Seminary, and Rev. Mr. Dickinson, of South Boston, was to the effect that churches, being unproductive property, were capital, and not revenue; and Adam Smith was quoted to show that political economy teaches to tax revenue aloue. In refutation of this position it will be sufficient simply to quote from John Stuart Mill, a more modern and higher authority:-

"To provide that taxation shall fall entirely on income, and not at all on capital, is beyond the power of any system of fiscal arrangement. There is no tax which is not partly paid from what would otherwise have been saved; no tax, the amount of which, if remitted, would be wholly employed in increased expenditure, and no part whatever laid by as an addition to capital. All taxes, therefore, are in some sense partly paid out of capital; and in a poor conntry it is impossible to impose any tax which will not impede the increase of the national wealth. But in a country where capital abounds, and the spirit of accumulation is strong, this effect of taxation is scarcely felt." [Political Economy, Book V., chapter II., § 7.]

But I will consume no more of your time with replies to arguments which doubtless appeared to you in their true light at the time. There are some considerations, however, which ought not to be left untouched in committing our case finally into your hands.

Rev. Mr. Dickinson, as may be remembered, inquired—"What is the real animus of this petition ?" He then proceeded to answer his own inquiry by declaring that the petition had its origin either in "arsarice," in a sordid and mercenary spirit which begrudged support to the cause of religion, or else in "mere, sheer, ribald, low-lived infidelity." I deny both of these charges.

"Avarice" had nothing to do with the origin of this petition; or any other mean or mercenary motive. We care nothing for the amount of the tax indirectly levied upon us by the exemption of the churches from their fair share of the common burden; it is the fact of the tax against which we protest-the assumed right to tax us for the support of religious societies in which we are not members, contrary to the whole tenor and spirit of the laws of the State. The dollar a year which every poll in Massachusetts, on the average, is compelled to pay towards the support of the churches, in consequence of their evasion of all taxation, is extorted from us in violation of well-recognized rights of conscience; and the whole movement is a protest against the violation of these rights. There is no question of conscience with reference to charitable and educational institutions; but there is a question of conscience with reference to the churches. This indirect tax of a dollar a year is a grievance, an act of oppression, a great wrong; we protest against it, and appeal to the Leg-Islature for redress. Our forefathers were aggrieved and went to war, protesting against the right to tax unjustly arrogated by Lord North and George the Third, although the amount of the tax was only a few pence on a pound of tea; and last December we all celebrated the stern resistance of the Tea-Spillers to this trivial tax, because they saw tyranny even in a trifle. The protest we make is the same in kind. The churches have no right to tax us, even to the amount of a cent, whether they do it directly or indirectly. The tax is a grievance and an injustice, an infringement of our right to be freed from enforced tributes to a religion which is not ours; and this, not "avarice," is the cause of our petition.

The cry of "infidelity" has been raised, not only by Mr. Dickinson, but also by Father Healey and Mr. P. A. Collins. I have no counter-cry to raise in return -no recriminations to make by way of retallation. It is enough to say that this is not, as alleged, an "in-fidel movement." It is a movement for simple justice, shared by many church-members as well as nonchurch-members,-in fact, by all who can discern the great wrong involved in church-exemption. A single petition from the city of Newburyport had 854 signatures, including the names of seven ministers; and many other ministers have joined in the protest. Many religious journals of high reputation, such as the Congregationalist, the Christian Era, the Independent, and others, have also joined in it. It is the manifestation of a widespread and rapidly growing public sentiment, not only in Massachusetts, but in all parts of the country. Our own petition originated with the Boston Liberal League, an organization formed about a year ago for the purpose of securing a more complete realization of the American idea of the separation of Church and State, and now numbering about one hundred and seventy members.

Digitatin Gooyle

This League has printed and scattered thousands of tracts through the State, and sent out blank petitions which have been returned with 8,553 signatures, already presented in the House of Representatives. The whole movement is an honest one for a positive Mea-me complete abolition of a practice that is a glaring violation of the rights of conscience.

I affirm most emphatically that this movement is not, as alleged, a "raid on religion," a "conflict be-tweam religion and irreligion," an "infidel move-I do not argue this point with you; for, if it ment." were an "infidel movement," you believe that even infidels have rights, and mean to protect them. For ene, I have my own religion, very dear to me; and it is none the less entitled to protection because it may not be yours. What it is, is my concern alone; I do not come here to thrust it upon you, but to ask that its rights be respected. I ask to be relieved from the injustice of being indirectly taxed for the support of a religion that is not mine. The direct tax of 1830 is the indirect tax of 1874-an enforced charity exacted by the churches from all alike, including the "unbe-Hevers." I protest against it, and rest my protest on maked, eternal justice.

Let me be perfectly open with you: the only thing I deprecate is a compromise. If you cannot recom-mend such a measure as shall establish the principle we contend for,-if you cannot bring in a bill which shall abolish all exemption of the churches from taxation,-then send us back to appeal once more to the country, and to rouse such a public opinion as shall secure the reform we seek. Do not exempt in part and tax in part, as has been proposed. I should welcome a fair and square defeat, but not a compromise. For the cause we plead must go on; if defeated to-day, we shall succeed to-morrow. But a compromise would leave the wrong unredressed. Whatever you do, I respectfully request you to meet fully and frankly the point of conscience; and I rest my case on justice alone.

Communications.

For THE INDEX.] THE NEEDLEWOMANI

A VESSOR OF PRAVER IN THE NUMPTEENTE CENTURY OF OURISTIAN CIVILIZATION.

"Testerday morning, the police of the — precinct discovered tise remains of a young woman in a testement house on — Birosi, immediately in the rear of — Church, who had evident-ty perished from privation and wait. Bome untakined needle-work by her side showed that she had tolled to the last. It is booght that she fail from her sast too much extramined to make herself heard, and died unwept and uncared for."-S. Paper.

T.

Go my table there lay all the news of the day, And I had been busily reading What the papers could say was now out of the way,

Or ten that was worth the heeding :

Till my heart sadly bled, as with sorrow I read Of death from starvation fearful:

In deep anguish and dread, that a woman had plead For succor, with cyclica tearful, And that, wanting but bread, she was now lying dead! Unheeded her moaning,

Her sobbing and groaning, N.w past all atoning;

Shrouded in gloom by a grim church wall, Serving her now for a funeral pall.

TT. Then my fancy took flight, and I witnessed the sight,-

Deep awe with my sorrow blending,-in she prayed through the night for the coming of light, Though day brought to toll no ending. For while bread was so dear, she restrained every tear,

And firmer each nerve exerted, With a horrible fear, as the evening grew near, of sinking, by strength deserted, Ento shadows more drear than were those drawing near. Though sinking and wasting, Her sewing and basting With speed she was hast'ning, Bre the deep shades of the night should fall, Rendered more dark by the drear church wall. III.

While each minute seemed wealth, she could pause not for breath,

Her brain though with fever reeling; Her brain though with fever reeling; More resportant than health, she was racing with Death, Where important than health, she was racing with Death, Where shadows grew deep, seeming fairly to leap Where dimly the day still lingers, Ba the paused not to weep, nor shut eyelids in sleep, For closer her trembling fingers To their labor must keep, their harvest to reap. Despairingly cowering, She saw demons glowering; While darker still loomed the grim church wall, Guenching all hope where its shadows fail.

IV.

with her heart filled with fear, she saw day disappear, But heave her the demons raying;

Then she prayed God might bear and the Savior draw near, For sorely she needed saving; But the neighboring bell, with a musical swell, Rang out with a bodeful ringing, Till the sound seemed to dwell in her cars as it fell, A horrible feeling bringing That no prayer could dispel, -it was striking her knell, And it brought from their hiding The shadows, sbiding Like devils deriding Her prayerful confiding,

Her prayerful confiding, Laughling in scorn at her anguished call, Echoing back from the bleak church wall.

v. Then she sprang from her chair with wild ories of despair,— Her limbs in their weakness reeling,— And fell prostrate io prayer, while still rang through the air The clang of the bell appealing, To invite from the street the faithful to meet, Their thanks to the Lord returning, And each offier to greet, as they rise from their seat, Not knowing the sad heart-burning Over work incomplete, within sound of their feet; No suppliant seeming No suppliant seeming No suppliant seeming To be diwly dreaming That agonized screaming, Such as, once heard, would their hearts appai, Ominous fell on the black church wall. VI. What if virtue remain free from blemish or stain, If prayers were such answers bringing, As were burning her brain with the mocking refrain

That,dwelt in this bodeful ringing? Why this burden of care? She was youthful and fair! Her soul, from the thought rebelling,

Was too noble to dare to sin's courses repair,

Was too noble to dare to sin's courses repair, That demons were darkly telling: If forsaken in prayer, she maat die in despair. Is prayer unavailing? Must wrong be prevailing, And virtue lie qualling In anguish and wailing ?--Wailings unbeeded because they fall On the cold stones of the black church wall!

From the vision I turned, but a lesson had learned, Of justice as well as pity:

VII.

or justice as well as pity: In my being it burned, till, no more unconcerned, I trod through the crowded city. As the zephyrs that blow may to hurricanes grow, And toes us all torn and bleeding,— As the streamlet so slow may in torrents yet flow, And mock at our mournful pleading,—

The justice we owe let us quickly bestow: Ere, past all concealing

Ere, past an concessing Or hushing or healing, A deadher feeling Light fiames, roaring skywards with frenzied call, That shall crumble to ashes the grim church wall,

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.

THE MORAL THEORY OF EXCHANGES. EDITOR INDEX

D. D. L.

5; and 1 hope I have something to say which will make another "manifesto" not altogether a trespass upon your good nature. To assert that the cost principle "rests on another principle back of itself." but if it be, as you well state it, the principle of "exchanging equivalents for equivalents," upon what does it rest save man's na-tive sense of justice? Is it just that more shall be given for less,—something for nothing? Is it just that another shall work for me while I sit idle, or that he shall yield to me the fruits of his labor, and receive in return something of less value? These questions seem to admit of ready response, and upon their answer—without going back to the right of holding property—the principle of exchanging equiv-alents for equivalents must stand or fall. Some confusion has evidently arisen from the sup-position that the advocates of this principle either deny that things have an intrinsic value, or that such a value can be made the subject of bargain and sale. But they are not so shallow as this would make them appear. They know the difference between a dia-mond and a brickbat, and never expect the time to yome when an exchange of the one for the other will be an exchange of equivalents. But their word "cost" covers all the difference between them. Mr. Warren's favorite expression is "sacrifice for sacri-fice." All that is sacrificed in the production of an article, together with all that is sacrifice made in parting with a diamond covers whatever worth it may have to the seller; and you will perceive a vast difference between charging for the value a thing has for yotrelf and what it has for another. In most instances a production is made expressly to sell, and parting with it involves no sacrifice. But even the labor-cost, which you insist is the whole cost, will measure values more accurately than you seem to suppose. The average labor-cost of finding dia-monds, compared with that of producing brickbats, is perhaps nearly as much greater as the price. Now the advocates of the cost

.

They mean that the practice of buying and selling for profit, which does not add to the real value of commodifies, but enhances their market value filty or one hundred per cent., is unjust and oppressive. They mean that the merchant ought to be paid for his services to the community, not what he can extort from the community, but what his services are worth in effecting exchanges. The present system amounts to just this: that the productions of the laboring classes are subjected to se large a toll by the "middle men" through whose hands they pass that, while the latter have an abun-dance, and may easily store up for the future, the laborer gets scarce enough for his daily needs, and finds it very difficult to accumulate anything for a "rainy day."

laborer gets scarce enough for his daily needs, and finds it very difficult to accumulate anything for a "rainy day." The farmer must have something beside his wheat, and is compelled to exchange it for other produc-tions. Of these productions he ought to recire back an amount the value of which, added to the ac-tual cost of the exchange, should balance the value of the wheat he has parted with. At present he gets nothing of the sort; for the agent acquires wealth, while he remains poor. You complain that the "cost principle" lacks a "criterion of the real cost of labor;" but this is the very last thing one could desire it to have. Its advo-cates are seeking no legislative enactment that shall fix the real cost of labor; nor do they expect the gen-eral adoption of any criterion whereby one may com-pel another to conform to his scale of prices. They only hope to show men that it is for the is used. They hope to convince men that the law of supply and demand means, Get all you can, and pice as little as may be; and that, in the scramble which results, the rights of the weaker classes are unavoidably trod-den under foot.

as may be; and that, in the scramble which results, the rights of the weaker classes are unavoidably trod-den under foot. Having taught men this, they rely upon their us-tive sense of justice for the adoption of a fairer sy-tem; and upon their good common sense to perceive that, under a right method of effecting exchanges, to cheapen the price of one commodity will be to cheap-en all; just as raising the price of one to-day raises all; and that, therefore, the only criterion needed for the cost of labor would be that each should strive to make it as small as possible. It has been hoped that THE INDEX might help to educate men in this direction; and a chosen few, in-deed, still cherish the expectation. I have taken lease pains to defend the position taken in my former letter than to put before you the real meaning of the "cost principle" as understood by its advocate; a meaning which you seem hitherto to have missed. But I still maintain, neverthelees, that the oost principle, as applied to exchanges, has so little to do with property-right that the discussion of the one is utterly foreign to the consideration of the other; and though in saying this I deal somewhat in assertioh, I still remain A QUENTIONEN.

[As our correspondent shows so eminently fair and truth-loving a spirit, and cares less to defend his former position than to commend his principles to candid consideration, we think it but right to forbear all criticism until we can snatch leisure to give them an Independent treatment, at greater length than is here possible. It is our hope by-and-by to state the theory of Mr. Warren as he himself presents it, and then to express such views as it naturally suggests to our own mind. As an attempt to ground all exchangetransactions on moral ideas rather than on private greed, no lover of his race can fail to be profoundly interested in it; and what we have seen and read of Its advocates has given us great sympathy with their fundamental purpose.-ED.]

PEACE OF MIND.

PASSAIC, N. J., March 17, 1874.

PASSAIC, N. J., March 17, 1874. Dear Sir,—It is natural for us to welcome cordially a friend whose views agree with ours, and therefore The INDEX just at hand gave us pleasure. I was particularly interested in the letter of "T. W. "about "The Christian Name," and agree with him that it "would not be honest to call myself Christian though it might save some trouble and some loss of popularity or profit." The INDEX was a come of my New York acquaint-ances like an earthquake, by reason of the abock its if any other family would welcome the paper at all. A friend tells me, if we lose the Christian Church, we shall become in time savages, and adds: "You are to this I reply that he overestimates my goodness, who menely calls himself auch, to cover ill deeds. Am I not right, that a true "liberal," by his very freedom from religious slavery, has a more enduring provide than the most earneet Christian for the source in the slaver endure the enders.

[Yes. To be emancipated from slavery of the mind is to be emancipated from fear. He whose liberalism is not mere disbelief of old superstitions, but positive obedience to eternal truths, wins a serenity of spirit which nothing on the earth, above it, or below it, can shake. However the surface of his life may be affected by untoward circumstances, its depths are safe from all distarbance. There is no peace of mind to be compared with that which grows ent of unreserved self-surrender to the true and the sight -- RD.]

Google

WHAT IS MEANT BY "AGRARIANISM."

 WHAT IS MEANT BY "AGRAENANISM."

 The word sgrarian is derived from the Latin ager, field. The sgrarian is were from the Latin ager, for the second second many hours and for as little pay as it pleases them to offer. Nothing but placing the land within their reach will liberate them from that control, which can only be done by limiting the quanity that any one can only be done by limiting the quanity that any one may acquire. Man will then be truly free—politically, religiously, and in the choice of employment. He will be thrown apon his own responsibility—to work and become affect, or to be idle and poor. Do the people desire right and justice to prevail? Then they should favor agarain laws. Do they wish to protect the right to property? Then they should ense to confound the right to the possession of property with the protect on produce property. All property is the right to produce the response to conform the produce property. to protect the right to property? Inen they should esses to confound the right to the possession of prop-sity with the right to produce property. All property is the product of muscle and mind, and no agoncy in producing. All should have an equal right to the op-portanity for producing, without being required to pay for that opportunity. The right to this opportu-nity secured to all, many will, from choice, become farmers who now follow other callings from necessity. These employments will thus be relieved from their suplus labor; over-production will cease, and every kind of business will assume its normal status. La-bor and its compensation will be more equally dis-tributed; true manhood, dignity, and freedom will fulfil humanity's aspirations, and man will become in fruth a sovereign. O man! be just for the sake of justico, and the satisfaction will be yours that human progress has resulted from your roward will be great and haing! ALANSON FREEMAN. PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 10, 1874.

A WOMAN'S ABGUMENT FOR WOMAN SUF-FRAGE.

ME EDITOR :-

PRACE. ME DITOR:= Tour correspondent "P.," in THE INDEX, March 5, is an article entitled "Irredeemable Ballots," asys: Women are not taxed; it is property that is taxed." Ve, in the next parsgraph, he twice declares that then are taxed, and also that foreigners are taxed. What does he mean, since he has before said that property is taxed, not women? That being conceded, is their property that is taxed. Did he forget him-sel, when he spoke of men being taxed, instead of the next other." I should think they had some anot you the area of the tax and suffrage have nothing at all to do with each other, for a man in this State should sold ow with each other, for a man in this State should be ach other. The property What the taxes and suffrage have nothing at all to anot you the ach other, for a man in this State should be ach other. The property with a some should be the spoke of men also vote, after having the tax of the read? The property is taxed the tax is and if the pairs using 0.5,00 many cost with each other, for a man in this state should be a some or women also vote, after having the the spoke of women also vote, after having the tax foreigners for many millions who the tax foreigners for many millions who all the pay for the tax foreigners for many millions who all the property is taxed without being who all the pay for the the ad; women have no rejok the pay for the the ad; women have no rejok the pay for the the ad; women have no rejok to the pay for the the ad; women have no rejok to the pay for the the ad; women have no rejok to the pay for the the ad; women have no rejok to the pay for the the ad; women have no rejok to the pay for the the ad; women have no rejok to the pay for the the ad; women have no rejok to the pay for the the ad; women have no rejok to the pay for the the ad; women have no rejok to the pay for the rejok acid, the yer yer dollar of to the pay and the rejok acid. The pay for the the ad; the acid have no rejok to the pay and the the pay s

INDEX-APERIL 2, property in the United States was owned by the wom-en, not one of them could vote; but every man who is a citizen and naturalized, by paying a poil tax of $3.00, could vote the money of these women away just as he pleased, and women would be compelled to atumit. Is that right, or would that be right? Yet the state what these three-dollar poil-tax payers are doing with every woman's money in the land! That is, the property of women on which they have while "she is never called upon to protect that prop-erty." Let me ask "P." if only men protect life, lib-erty, and property? Ask the women who labored dury in the state the state women who labored dury were not called upon by the necessities of the bour to protect and suffer too? Does he think that quelling is the force there is in the State." There are women, let me tail they is but a series of protections for the three. She furnishes the first, inspires the sec-ond, and protects the third, by preserving or earning all the force there is in the State." There are women, let me tell him, who would effect more with a broom-st the source of these three-dollar poil-tax-payers would with a musket. Yet he compares woman to presente and is redeemable, if necessary, in force." Ning to that force, and for State purposes would be the-try worthleas," he concludes, "election lies with the me." It is because woman has been rejected, and in the force relied upon in the sub of all colleged and anoth-me." It is because do not and and in the fue worthleas," he concludes, "election lies with the more induction works and the general ana rough the worthleas," he concludes, "election lies with the more force relied upon instate of our republic and with a musket. State purposes would add noth-me." It is because woman has been rejected, and wisdom, that we have our Crédit Mobiliers, our ourpt legislation, our wars, and the general ana rough the worthleas, the every heart of our republic and wisdom, that we have our Crédit Mob

THE BASIS OF MORALS.

E.E.G. THE BASIS OF MOMALS. THE BASIS OF MOMALS. The construction of the second state of the second sta

FREE DISCUSSION IN BOSTON.

DRAB HABDY :

Ms. EDITOR:--The article in your issue of Feb. 5, on "Free Sun-day Meetings in Boston," contains a number of very grave errors; and, as they do injustice both to the living and the dead. I must ask of you space for the following statements. I do this the more readily, as I was Secretary of what I suppose to have been the first organized movement in Boston for the mainte-nance of a parfeeling fram meeting such as been first organized movement in Boston for the mainte-nance of a perfectly free meeting, such as has been perpetuated under the name of the "Sunday Insti-tute." This term had some years before been used for designating similar meetings in Philadelphia; and it was natural enough for the friends of free discas-sion to adopt it here. Since the days of that perse-cuted man, Abner Kneeland, the "People's Meeting" had been held irregularly in Boston; but I am not aware that any free meeting, now in existence in the city of Boston can show a record beyond that of the Sunday Institute; and this did not "spring up from the ashes of a modern spiritual brotherhood," as is affirmed by "R. B." The Sunday Institute "sprang up" from a movement inaugurated by Dr. LaRoy Sunderland, twenty-two years ago, as I am here pre-pared to show:-ared to show :

QUINCY, Feb. 5, 1874.

DEAR HARDY:-The constitution of "the Original," out of which the Sunday Institute has grown, you will find in a paper I send you. That "declaration" I drew up my-self; and, as you will see, it had nothing to do with spiritualism any more than it had with modern Burk-

ism. The platform was free, and all questions brought regularly before the meeting could be freely discussed; and whenever the question of spiritualism came up, no one ever had more to say upon it, or mistated the facts more, than "R. B." Dr. C. K. Waters was Corresponding Secretary, but I do not know whether he is living or not. Yours truly, LAROY SUNDERLAND. Here is the constitution, above referred to, which was published in Dr. Sunderland's paper of Nov. 15, 1852:--

BOSTON CIRCLE OF ORIGINALS.

BUSTON CIRCLE OF UNIGINALS. This Circcz was formed in this city on the ovening of October 17, 1802, in a meeting of some one hundred men and women who were present on the occasion. The beddef by which its members are united, together, with their object, and the means by which they are pledged to its accomplishment, may be seen from their "Declars-tion" and "By-Laws," which read as follows ;--

DECLARATION.

CERED-Individual Sovereignty, the True Dectrine # Manhood. Dzatox - Progression, Development, Universal Har-

METHOD-MATHOD-Associations, Lectures, Discussions. The Up-restricted Investigation of whatever appertains to Theod-ogy, Philosophy, and Science, Past, Present, and Future. AUTHORITY-Superior Goodness, Justice, Wisdom, Rea-

AUTRORITE-Dupertor, Goundary, and San San. TERMS-This Circle is open to all persons who are al-tracted to its public meetings by their Love of ORIGINALITY or Thought, in respect to the Essence, Form, and Use of All Things. Any person may become a member by signing this Declaration.

The Sunday Meeting thus organized commenced in Hanover Street; it afterwards moved to Cochituate Hall, Phillips Place, and thence to Chapman Hall. After a few years, as it was held on Sunday, it took the name of Philadelphia Meeting; and was adver-tised as "The Sunday Institute." But originally k had nothing more to do with the Mystic Rap than "R. B." himself has now to do with it.

JOHN HARDY. No. 4 CONCORD SQUARE, Boston.

BENOVATION OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

BENOVATION OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION. EDITOR OF THE INDEX:--The exemption of ecclesiastical property from tar-mition is claimed on the ground that the churches are schools of public morals, open and free to all. Com-ceding for the purposes of my argument the validity of this deduction from the assumed premise, I vent-me to call for the proof of the assumption. Are all churches, ex et termint, schools of public morals? If so, why not endow them from the public theory, as we do our hospitals and seminaries? It is precisely because this assumption is a matter of dispute that the Constitution forbids such endowment, and ex-emption from taxation therefore indirectly violates the spirit, if not the letter, of the Constitution. Bat the arrogance of the claim of exemption from taxa-tion is slight, when compared with that of a church claiming to hold property from the State under a dis-puted title, and pleading the statute of limitations is bar of a recovery; thus inculcating by example the arrodited by the State, and pleading possession un-deed from an agent without authority, which deed is repudiated by the State, and pleading possession un-der such entry as its source of title. Is a church of this persuasion a school of public morality, entitled to exemption?- der such entry as its source of title. Is a church of this persuasion a school of public morality, entitled to exemption? That such is the morality practically taught by Trinity Church, in the city of New York, is evident from our public records, and is clearly demonstrated by the following opinions of the late Judge Conkling, Charles Tracy, &c. Old Trinity is now rated at $100,000,000, which really belongs to the school fund, and would now be devoted to a renovated public in-struction, if our legislators and judges were as inde-pendent and intelligent as the late Judge Conkling. As our regents are about to assume the supreme control of our system of education, perhaps we may indulge the hope and belief that they will not only renovate the method of instruction, but also provide the ways and means for elevating the standard of ed-ucation from theology to real science. This may be done in either of two ways. The morality taught by old Trinity may be renovated and elevated to the "King's Tavern" as Queen Anne did, and the re-gents of the university may then reinter and recor-ganize upon a moral basis adapted to the times and country in which we live. If the churches generally would coöperate with old Trinity in this change of base, the people might well afford to exempt them all from taxation, and even to endow them all. With one accord, all would shows uaer, and hall with joy the real advent of "peace ca earth and good-will among men." Respectfully, KUTGER B. MILLER.

"I DON'T BELIEVE much in the Bible," said a col-legian to an old Quaker. "Does thee believe im France?" "Yes, I do. I never saw it, but I have plenty of proof that there is such a country." "Then thee does not believe anything unless thee or thy re-liable friends have seen it?" "No, be sure I wom't." "Did thee ever see thy own brains?" "No." "Did thee ever know anybody that has seen thy brains?" "No." "Does thee believe thee has any brains?"

"TICKETS, SIR!" said a conductor at a railway ter-minus in the city to a gentleman who, having been a season-ticket holder for some time, belleved his face was so well known that there was no need for him to show his ticket. "My face is my ticket," replied the gentleman, a little annoyed. "Indeed " said the conductor, rolling back his wristband and displaying a most powerful fist. "Well, my orders are to punch all tickets passing on this platform."

165

8

Suverusements.	~
THE PATRONAGE	LB
of the liberal advertising public is respectfully solicited for TRE INDEX. The attempt will be honeatly made to keep the advertis- ing pages of TRE INDEX in entire harmony with its general character and principles, and thus to furnish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their most generous support. To this end, all improper or "inind" advertisements all quack adver- tisements, and all advertisements believed to be fraudulent or unjust to suny one, will be excluded from these columns. No cuts will be admitted.	0. B. T
THE INDEX must not be held responsible for any statement made by adverthers, who will in all cases accept the responsibility for their own statements.	Are and on r
The second	conte

Advertigemente

TISING RAT

	-	CRIIGING DA	1 1 10-23	•
For 1 to	12 25	Insertions,	10e	Per	line.
20	81

CIRCULATE | Circulate !! Circu-Late THOSE PETITIONS. Don't feel salis-fied when your petition is a yard long, unless you have saked every one to sign it. Get good, influ-ential manage

GET EVERYBODY.

Don't neglect to show the petition to any one, because he is a stockholder in some church, or other exempted property, as many such persons admit the justice of the domand; and those who will not should be made to take the responsibility of refusing to sign it. Don't dolay! We want the petitions returned early.

Per order of EXEC. COMM. of the BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON.

has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX.

A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Rational Religion.

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public utterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and best matured thought of the age on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the social and political amelioration of society.

It is edited by FRANCISE. ABBOT, assisted by ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of Editorial Contributors :-

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I. WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverhill, Mass. RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England. PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng.

Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX. as the best popular exponent of Religious Liberalism. Every Christian minister, and every thinking church-member, should subscribe for it, as the clearest, most caudid, and most scholarly exposition of the differences between Free Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the arguments and the movements which the Church will have to meet in the future.

Almost every number contains a discourse or leading article, which alone is worth the price of one year's subscription.

Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a letter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1873, says: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Religión in the widest se of the word should be folt in America-that such a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your country,-is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, Prance, or Germany; though the number of so-called religious or the ological periodicals is, as you know, very large." And later still: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest."

Send $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for three months on trial. Address

THE INDEX. No. 1 Tremont Place, Bosto

	0.
ADING	INDEX WRITERS.
	Including
FROTEIN	GHAM,
. W. HIGG	INSON,
W. J.	POTTER,
W.I	I. SPENCER,
3	. W. NEWMAN,
	CHAS. VOYSEY,
	A. W. STEVENS,
	F. E. ABBOT,
now for sale	at the office of THE INDEX,

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS 1

and will be mailed postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 3 cents each; complete Set of Eight Photo graphs, $1.50.

		Ad	dres	8,		THE INDEX,
1		3	No.	1 Tr	emont	Ph	ice,	Bost	ton,	Ma	88.
li	[	N	D	Е	X	т	R	A	С	T	S.

No. 1.-Truths for the Times, by F. E Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" nd "Modern Principles." Ms. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of cles," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-inally intended for publication, but subse-quently authorized to be used: "I have now read TBUTHS FOR THE TIMES, and I admin them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 coples $1.00.

No. 2.-Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing character of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are worthy of the nineteenth century. New Edi-. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 3.- Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfec-tions and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No.4 -Christian Propagandiam, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts sting Extracts. Price 10 cents; and Interesting 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5.-4*God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the United States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

bury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 7.-"Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 6 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8.-The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that in-terests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 9.-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous character of the attempt to interpolate the Evangelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Constitution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10.-The Impeachment of Christianity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of f five to one hundred copies.

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

o. 12.-Is Romanism Real Christianand F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 13.-On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

to. 14.- A Study of Heligion : The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Frice 10 cents; 12 copies $10. Address THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE,

Boston, Mass.

THE INDEX,	FF
A Weekly Journal	ľ
FREE RELIGION.
INDEX ASSOCIATION,	Be P L
No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. EDITOR:	in B
FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR: ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.	gi (T
EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS: O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.L.	pos
W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.	1

R. F. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaics Plain, Mass. F. W. NEWMAN, England.

CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX aims-

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a highe purpose, both in society and in the individual

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes.

In brief, to hasten the day when Free Religion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticiam throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is special ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the purpose of securing the more complete and con-sistent secularization of the political and ed-ucational institutions of the United States. The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesizatical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of theseveral States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an un-broken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FRATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading paper or essay of a thoughtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the nost marked features of THE INDEX.

Regular editorial contributions will con-tinue to be furnished by the well-known eminent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high po-sition. Mr. Yovany has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to rad. ical readers. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from valua-ble books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted n every city and town throughout the country. The most liberal terms are offered.

TEBMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dol lars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remittances of money must be at the sender's risk unless forwarded by cheque, registered letter, or post-office money order. The name with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case. Address

THE INDEX. No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

4. PUBLICATIONS. OF THE

REE

RELIGIOUS

ASSOCIATION.

ort of the Addresses and other port of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meet-ng in 1867, at which the Free Religious Association was Organ-zed. Containing addresses by 0. Broth-Resson Distance I for the Addresses of the acd. Containing addresses by O. B Froth-ngham, Henry Blanchard, Lucretia Mott Abbert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver John-on, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Hig-inson, and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

This pamphlet has not been on sale for a mber of years, and many persons who have of the Annual Reports succeeding do not sees this.) Price 50 cents.

ings of Second Annual Meeting, 1869. 50 cents. Contains essays by Julia Ward Hows on "Freedom and Restraint in Religion," and by David A. Wason on "The Relation of Social Science to Religion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Deaton, E. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Bar tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace won, normal others; with an appendix on "Outlines of Judaism" by Babbi Wise.

Proceedings of Third Annual Meet-ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains essays by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the by O. B. Frothingham on the "ides of the Free Religious Association," followed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Re-ligion as a Bocial Force, especially in rela-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Beligious Computation as effected by the Solid of Organization, as affected by the Spirit of Age;" an essay by Samuel John the Age;" an essay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions." fol-lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanet and Progressive Elements of Judaism," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedaulam," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Religions of China," and Wm. J. Potier on "Religion Old and New in India." also abstract of a Old and New in India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. R. Calthrop, Rabbi Wise, and others.

1

edings of Fifth Annual Meeting, 1872. 35 cents. (Four or more, S cents each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion as the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by'O. B. Frothor the Human Mind," and by O. B. Froin-ingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cella Burleigh, Lucratia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C.A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and others Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meet-ing, 1873. 35 cents. (Four or more, S cents each.) Contains essays by Samud Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and by John States on "Meeting and Belgion," and by John Weiss on "Freedom in Heligion," and by John Weiss on "Beligion in Freedom, with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Dale Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longfal-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lucretia Mott.

Sympathy of Religions, by T. W. Higginson. 25 cents.

Beligions of China, by Wm. H. Channing. 35 cents

Season and Revelation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jss. Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of tes, 60 cents; of one hundred, $3.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1871 is quite limited. Orders by mail may be addressed either "Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass.

WM. J. POTTER, Sec. F. R. A.

BULLE BOOKS	DESCARTES (RENE.) Discourse on the	LEWIN (BEV, RAPHAEL, D'C), What is Ju-	The Virginians.
POPULAR BOOKS,	and Seeking Truth in the Sciences 925	LEWIN (BEV. RAPHAEL, D'C), What is Ju- daism? or, a Few Words to the Jews 1.40	Esmond, and Lovel the Widower. Miscellaneous Writings, Household Edi-
SENT BY MAIL	DICKENS' Child's History of England 1.50	LONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Poems. Portrait. 9 vols Prose Works. Portrait	Esmond, and Lovel the Widower. Miscellaneous Writings. Household Edi- tion. Uniform with the Novola, Com- plets in Syols. With new Portrait. Per vol. 1.3
SENT DI A	ELIOT'S(GEORGE) Novels. Household Edi- tion. 5 vols., each	LOWPELT HILL DI Dooma 2 vola	This edition includes all the matter in the las-
AT	Adam Bede.	The Biglow Papers. First Series	set English editions, with many additions, thus making it, with the novels, the cheapest and most complete Thackersy in the market.
PUBLISHERS' PRICES!	Romols. The Mill on the Flore.	Among my Books	1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Diamond, &c. 2. Paris, and Irish Sketch-Books, &c.
FUBLIGHT	Feliz Holt. Silas Marner and Scenes of Clerical Life. The Same. Library Edition. 2 vois 1.60	LOWELL (MES. A. C.) Posles for Children, .75	<ol> <li>Bnobs, Sketches, Denis Duval, &amp;c.</li> <li>Four Georges, Humorists, &amp;c.</li> <li>Catherine, Christmas Books, and Unre-</li> </ol>
ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.	Middlemarch. 2 role	LUBBOCK (SIE JOHN). Origin of Civiliza- tion, and the Primitive Condition of Man 200	5. Catharine, Christmas Books, and Unra- printed Pieces.
OKUNSHA T HOLL	EMERSON'S (R. W.) Emmys. First Series., 2.00	Pre-historic Times	THAXTER'S (MES. CELIA) Among the Isles of Shoals
RO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.	Easays. Second Series	Elements of Geology 3.50	THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden; or, Life in
NO 1141111	English Traits 2.00	MACDONALD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's Daughter	Excursions in Field and Porest, Portrait, 10
LAY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other	Conduct of Life	MANN (HORACE). The Life of Horace Mann. By his Wife	Cane Cod will be BOOK that may be desired, will	May-day and Other Pieces		A Yaukee in Canada A Yaukee in Canada A Week on the Concord and Merricase
a possible on receipt	Prose Works. 1 vols	1849 Thoughts Selected from the Writings of Horace Mann	Rivers 100
el enters accompanied with the CASH.	BUTANC /P D Db TV Dient Historias		TYLOB (EDWARD B.) The Early Elsiory
orders are respectfully solicited from	EVANS (E. P., Ph. D). First Historical Transformations of Christianity. From the French of Athanase Coquerel the	MARTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosoph- ical and Theological. 2 vols. Per vol 2.50 The New Affinities of Faith	of Mankind. Primitive Culture. 2 vols
all friends of THE INDEX.		MAURICE (REV. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind	VOYSEY (REV. CHARLES.) The Sting and the Stone. Vols. I. and V., esch
all invalue or a line	Adolf Stahr. 7 vols 5.00		Yoysey's Defence at York
Price	FARBAR'S Critical Bistory of Free Thought, in reference to the Christian Beligion 2.00	MERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of the Roman Empire	WARNER'S (CHARLES D.) My Summer in
ALCOTT (A. BRONSON). Tablets	FEUERBAOH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation. 3.00	MILL (JOHN STHART) Dissertations and	a Garden 1.00 Saunterings 1.00 Back-Log Studies 2.00
	PROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Beligion of Hu-	Discussions. 4 vols., each will an and the second s	manity 1.50 Bellefe of the Unbellevers 20	The Positive Philosophy of Auguste Comte. 1.50	WEISS (JOHN). American Beligion 1.3 Life of Theodore Parker. 2 vols
Hospital Sketches and Camp and Freedow 1.50 Borles 1.50 An Old Pashboned Girl 1.50 Little Man 1.50	Child's Book of Boligion 1.00 Life of Theodore Parker	Political Economy. New and revised edi- tion 2.50 The Subjection of Women 1.25	WHIPPLE'S (E. P.) Literature and Life 1.00 Easays and Reviews
Litle Ban 1.50 Litle Ban 1.00 My Boys, 40	FULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works.	Easay on Liberty. 125 Representative Government. 1.50	Easays and Reviews. 2.8 Character and Characteristic Men. 1.8 The Literature of the Age of Elizabeth. 1.8 Buccess and its Conditions 1.9
My Boys, &c	and others. A new edition. 6 yols 9.00	Autobiography	Washington and the Revolution
ABABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. 1.50	OOETHE'S Faust. Translated into English Verne by Bayard Taylor. 2 vols. Per vol 5.00 Elective Affaities. Wilhelm Meister. Translated by Thomas Oardyle, Portratic Goothe. 2 vols	MILLER (JOAQUIN.) Songs of the Sierras. 1.50 Songs of the Sun Lands	WHITNEY'S (MRS. A. D. T.) A Summer in Laslie Goldthwaite's Life
ARNOLD'S (MATTHEW) Essays in Oriti-	Elective Affinities. Installated by Thomas	MIVART (ST. GEO.) On the Genesia of	We Olris A Home Story
New Poens. 2.00 Literstare and Dogma. 1.50	Oarlyle, Portrait of Goethe, 2 yola	Bpecies	Real Folks 140 The Other Girls 240 Pansies. A volume of Poems
AUERBACH (BEBTHOLD). On the Heights. 1.50 Yills Eden; The Country-House on the 2.00	TOTA & LOCATOR PROPERTY AND	Bousseau, 2 vola 5.00	WHITTIER'S (JOHN G.) Poema, 2 vola 4.00
		MOULTON (LOUISE CHANDLES.) Bed- Time Stories	Child Life
Edelweise. 1.00 German Talse		MUELLER (MAX, M.A.) Lectures on the
8400N'S Emmys 1.00	uments, Private Memoranda, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote, Second Edition. With Por-	MUELLER (MAX, M.A.) Lectures on the Science of Lauguage. First Series
BAGENOT on the English Constitution 3.25	Mrs. Grote, Second Edition. With Por- trait	Easays on the Science of Keligion. Vol.	ADD ES861
BAIN (ALEXANDEE). Mental Science: A Compendium of Psychology and History of $1.75	TA A STORAGE AND THE TO CALL Balantar's Carpon	Earays on the Science of Meligion, vol. 11. Earays on Mythology, Traditional and Cuatoma, Vol. 11. Earays on Lif- erature, Hiography and Andiquites. Three rols. Frice per volume
Philosophy A Compandium of Ribles	Book I. In England. Book II, In Scotland,	Three vols. Frice per volume	THE INDEX.
1 tol and the Intellect. Third edi-	The Unknown Biver	NASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Bound
Hon. 1 yol 5.00 BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americanisma. 2.00	Chapters on Animals 6.00	the Cirkle	and the second second second
BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations $.00	HAMILTON (GAIL). Child World. Part Sec-	summer a store a work W a A History of the	1 Tremont Place, Boston.
BARTOL (REV. C. A). Badical Problems 1.00	Child World. Part First	Hebrew Mouarchy T. A Hasty of the 4.50 Phases of Faith; or, Fassages from the History of my Cored. 2.00 The Soul its Surrows and its Aspirations. 2.00	HALF-HOUR RECREATIONS
The Rising Falth	BAMILTON'S Lectures. 1. Metaphysical Lectures	The Soul, its Serrows and its Aspirations. 2.09	Han not monutations
BASTIAN (H. CHARLTON). The Begin- sings of Life. 1 yols	2. Logical Loctures 3.00	Tab Soul, to Sorrows and the Aspectations
BIBLE is the Public Schools.	HAWTHORNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works. New Illustrated Library Edition. Nine vols.	Theiam, Dectrinal and Fractical	-13-
Becords, Arguments, and Decision in the ease of John D. Minor et al. w. the Board of Education of the city of Cincinnat:	For you maid make	The Religious Weakness of Protestantism25 Against Bero-Making in Religion	DODULAD COLENCE
a al in the Supreme Court of the City of Continuation	Mosees from an Old Manse. The Scarlet Letter, and The Blithedals	PARKER (THEODORE.) A Discourse of Matters Pertaining to Religion. 1.30	POPULAR SCIENCE.
a at in the supreme court of the city of 1.00 Arguments of Ramsey, Sage and King in favor of the use of the Hible	Romance. The House of the Seven Gables, and The Snow Image.	Matters Pertaining to activity of the second	EDITED BY DANA ISTER.
Arguments of Stallo, Hondley and Mathews against the use of the Bible	The Marble Faun. The English Note-Books,	additional Speeches, Addresses, and Occar sional Sermons. 2 vols	EDITED OF DELICE STARS
Court of Onio in the soove case	The American Note-Books. The Franch and Italian Note-Books.	Historic Americaus, Franklin, Washing-	The growing demand in this country for
BEOOKS' (CHARLES T.) Translations. The Layman's Broviary	Our Old Home, and Septimina Felton.	ton, Advis, and Scholard Strain and Scholard Strain Lie Trial of Theodore Parker for the Mis-	books on popular science encourages the ed- itor and publishers to issue this series of pi-
The World-Priest	BIGGLIDOR DYL. HI SHE SHE I AN	demeanor of a Speech in Fancuil Hall	pers, compiled from the works of the most
BUCHNER'S Force and Matter 2.50		The Trial of Incodore Carger to the mis- demensor of a Speech in Parcull Hall against Kionapping; with the Defence 1.50 The two Christmas CelebrationsA.D. I. and MDCUCLV, A Christianas Story 89	popular scientific writers.
SUCKLE (HENEY THOMAS). Blatory of	Oldport Days	PARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The Infinite	25 cts. per Part; $2.50 for twelve consecutive
SUCKLE (HENRY THOMAS). Elistory of Gyllastion in England and France, Spain and Souland. New edition of the entire work, with a complete index. 2 yola	ding Journey	PARSONS (THEOFHICES,) The mainter Lag and the Finite	Parts.
BUCKLE'S Emays: with a Biography of the	Venetian Life	Gates Ajar	NO.1. STRANGE DISCOVERIES RESPECTING THE Author. Fine portrait 1.40		The livery book the second second
ABLTLE'S Works. Changedition. Compris- ing the following: Miscellancous Essays. 7		Men, Women, and Ghosts 1.50	AUBORA AND EBOENT SOLAB REBLARCHES.
tek the Genet 10 role : (romwall's Letters.	HUMBOLDT (ALEXANDER VON), Life of. Translated from the German. 2 vols., with	Hedged In	By Bichard A. Proctor, F.B.A.D.
Ac i vola - Bartor Resartus 1 vol.: John	Translated from the German. 1 vols., with three portraits	Hedged in The Slient Partner	No. 2. THE CRANIAL AFFINITIES OF MAX AND THE APR. By Prof. Rudolph Virchow,
Ac., 5 vols.; Sartor Resartus, 1 vol.; John Burling, i vol.; Life of Schiller, 1 vol.; Past and Present 1 vol.; Life of Schiller, 1 vol.; Past	Translated from the German. 1 vols., with three portraits	Houged in Law The Blient Partner. 1.30 What to Wear?. PROTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por- trait. Cabinot Edition. 2.00	By Richard A. Froctor, F.S.A.D. No. 2. The CRANIAL APSINTIES OF MAN AND THE APE. By Frof. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology.
Ac., s'oil, 'Bartor Resartus, I vol.; John Swellag, i vol.; Life of Schiller, i vol.; Past ad Present, i vol.; Herose and Hero Wor- ship, i vol.; Latter Day Pamphieta, i vol. An volume sold separately. 31 vols. Lon-	Translated from the German. 1908., with three portraits	Hedged in Fartner. 1.30 The Blour Fartner. 1.30 What to Wear 7. 1.00 PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition. 2.40 BOBSETTI (CHERISTINA G.) A Shadow of Danke 2.50	By Richard A. Froctor, F.B.A.D. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APSINITIES OF MAN AND THE APE. By Prof. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, author of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated.
6ALLYLE'S Works, Oheap edition. Occupring- ing the following: Hisponiancous Readys, 7 role, Preach Revolution, 3 vola.; Freder- iak ine Grazi, 10 vola.; Uronaweille Letters, Barling, 1 vol.; Letter Day Paraphileta, 1 vol.; Past and Present, 1 vol.; Hercese and Herce Wor- ably, 1 vol.; Letter Day Paraphileta, 1 vol. Any volume sold separately. 31 vol. Lon- don, 131-4. Par vol	Translated from the German. 1908., with three portraits	Hedged in Fartner. 1.30 The Bloat Fartner. 1.30 What to Wear 7. 1.00 PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Port trait. Cabinet Edition. 2.40 BOBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Banto SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Anotheriton to Terrestrial Subsciences, and	By Richard A. Proctor, F.B.A.D. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APENTITIES OF MAN AND THE APE. By Prof. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology . Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and
GERVANTES' Don Quixote 1.50	Translated from the German. 1908., with three portraits	Hedged in Fartner. 1.30 The Bloat Fartner. 1.30 What to Wear 7. 1.00 PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Port trait. Cabinet Edition. 2.40 BOBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Banto SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Anotheriton to Terrestrial Subsciences, and	By Richard A. Proctor, F.B.A.D. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APDINITIES OF MAN AND THE APE. By Prof. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology . Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col-
UEEVANTES' Don Quizote	Translated from the German.         1908., with           three portraits.         16.36           HUNT'S (MEs. HELEN).         125           Bits of Travel.         125           MUXLEY'S Man's Place in Nature	Hedged in Fartner. 1.33 The Blour Fartner. 1.33 What to Wear 7. 1.60 PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition. 2.60 ROBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Dants 2.60 SOHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies. 4.60	By Bichard A. Froctor, F.B.A.D. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APSINITIES OF MAN AND THE APE. By Prof. Rudoibb Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS REPLAINED, and its User to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts.
UERVANTES' Don Quixote	Translated from the German.     19.56       three portraite.     10.56       HUNT'S (MEs. HELER).     125       Bits of Travel.     125       On the Origin of Species     125       More Origin of Species     125       More Origin of Species     126       More Origin of Species     200       Adminis     30       A adminis     200       Lay Surmons, Addrasses, and Reviews.     175       The Morelitons of the Unseed.     226       The Morelitons of the Unseed.     230	Medged in Fartner. 1.20 What to Wear 7. 1.00 PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Poir trait. Cabinet Edition. 2.00 ROBSETTI (CHRIBTINA G.) A Shadow of Danto SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terretrial Muberlances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies. 5.00 SOLENCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory, By Prof. Huxley, 7.E.S. 5.0 2. Chemistry, By Prof. Huxley, 7.E.S. 5.0 2. Chemistry, By Prof. Huxley, 7.E.S. 5.0	By Richard A. Froctor, F.B.A.D. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APSINITIES OF MAN AND THE APR. By Prof. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, author of Collular Pathology . Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts. No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERIES, about the Application in Microscopic Re-
UEEVANTES' Don Quizote	Translated from the German. 1908., with 19.50         three portraits.       19.50         HUNT'S (Mas. HELEN). Verses.       1.25         Bits of Travel.       1.26         HUXLEY'S Man's Place in Nature       1.26         More Origin of Species       1.00         More Origin of Species       1.00         More Origin of Species       1.00         Andrual of the Amatomy of Vertebraiced       2.00         Aminuls       1.00         Lay Surmous, Addresses, and Reviews.       1.75         The Monitions of Seven.       1.26         Bongs of Seven.       2.26         The Monitions of Seven.       2.85         The Monitions of Seven.       2.85         The Monitions of Seven.       2.30	Hedged III Farmer. 1.2 The Block Wear 7	By Richard A. Froctor, F.S.A.S. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APENTITES OF MAN AND THE APE. By Frof. Rudoiph Virchow, of Berlin, author of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its User to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts. No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERTES, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav-
GERVANTES' Don Quixots	Translated from the German. 1908., with three portraits.       10.56         HUND'S (Miss. HELEN).       125         Bits of Travel.       125         More Origin of Species       126         More Origin of Species       126         More Origin of Species       200         A Manual of Species       200         A Manual of Species       126         Lay Surmons, Addrasses, and Reviews.       135         The Morelitons of the Unseen.       230         Boogs of Seven.       236         Boogs of Seven.       239         Hoffler for Stories       129         Hoffler for Stories       129	Medged in Fartner. 1.20 The Blour Fartner. 1.20 What to Wear 7. 1.00 PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition. 2.40 BOBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Danks SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies. 5.5 SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies. 5.5 Chemistry. By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S. 55 Construct Post Stewart. With II- instrations. 5.5 Physics By Balfour Stewart. With II- instrations. 5.5 Market Balfour Stewart. 5.5 Market Balfour Stewart. 5.5 Stephen Stewart. 5.5 Stewart. 5.5 Stephen Stewart. 5.5 Stewart. 5.5	By Richard A. Froctor, F.B.A.D. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APSINTTES OF MAN AND THE APE. By Prof. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, author of Column Pathology. Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Blusistated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts. No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERIES, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- able Medias From the works of Schellen.
<ul> <li>BERVANTES' Don Quikote</li></ul>	Translated from the German. 1908., with three portraits.       10.56         HUND'S (Miss. HELEN).       125         Bits of Travel.       125         More Origin of Species       126         More Origin of Species       126         More Origin of Species       200         A Manual of Species       200         A Manual of Species       126         Lay Surmons, Addrasses, and Reviews.       135         The Morelitons of the Unseen.       230         Boogs of Seven.       236         Boogs of Seven.       239         Hoffler for Stories       129         Hoffler for Stories       129	Medged in Fartner. 1.20 What to Wear 7. 1.00 PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Poir trait. Cabinet Edition. 2.00 BOBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Danks SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies. 5. SOTENCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory, By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S., 56 2. Chemistry, By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S., 56 2. Chemistry, By Prof. Huxley, J.E.S., 56 3. Chemistry, By Prof. Huxley, J. 56 3. Chemistry, By Prof. Huxley, J. 56 3. Chemistry, By Prof. Boaco. 35 3. Chemistry, By Prof. Huxley, J. 56 3. Status and Status an	By Richard A. Proctor, σ. B.A.S. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APPINTURE OF MAN AND THE APE. BY Prof. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUE ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts. No. 4. SPECTRUE ANALYSIS DISCOVENTES, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Vonne, Roscoe, Lockyer, Hargins, and eth-
<ul> <li>UEEVANTES' Don Quixote</li></ul>	Translated from the German. 1908., with three portraits.       10.56         HUND'S (MES. HELEN).       125         Bits of Travel.       125         More Origin of Species       126         More Origin of Species       126         More Origin of Species       200         A Manual of Species       200         A Manual of Species       125         In GELOW'S (JEAN) Poems	Medged in     Face Block Factors     1.50       What to Wear 7.     1.00       PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. For- trait. Cabinet Edition.     2.80       BOBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Dante.     2.50       SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and Bodies.     2.50       SOCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and Bodies.     5.40       SOCHECE PRIMERS:     1. Introductory, By Frof. Hurley, F.E.S.     5.40       SOCHECE PRIMERS:     1. Matter States     5.40       Chemistry, By Frof. Hurley, F.E.S.     5.40       Physics: Jy Balfour Stewart. With Her Physics: Gameraphy. By Archibald Gei- kis, Lind., F.E.S. facible cloth     5.40       BCOTT'B Waverley Novels, 25 vols	By Richard A. Froctor, F.S.A.S. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APINFITIES OF MAN AND THE APE. By Frof. Rudoiph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts. No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVENTES, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and els-
<ul> <li>UERVANTES' Don Quixote</li></ul>	Translated from the German. 1908., with three portraits.       10.56         HUND'S (Mas. HELEN). Verses	Medged in     Face Block Factors     1.50       What to Wear 7.     1.00       PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. For- trait. Cabinet Edition.     2.80       BOBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Dante.     2.50       SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and Bodies.     2.50       SOCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and Bodies.     5.40       SOCHECE PRIMERS:     1. Introductory, By Frof. Hurley, F.E.S.     5.40       SOCHECE PRIMERS:     1. Matter States     5.40       Chemistry, By Frof. Hurley, F.E.S.     5.40       Physics: Jy Balfour Stewart. With Her Physics: Gameraphy. By Archibald Gei- kis, Lind., F.E.S. facible cloth     5.40       BCOTT'B Waverley Novels, 25 vols	By Richard A. Froctor, F.S.A.S. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APINFITIES OF MAN AND THE APE. By Frof. Rudoiph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts. No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVENTES, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and els-
UERVANTES' Don Quikote	Translated from the German. 1908. with three portraits.       10.56         HUNT'S (MEs. HELEN). Verses	Medged in     1.30       The Bloat Fartner.     1.30       What to Wear 7.     1.30       PROCTER'S (A DELAIDE A.) Poems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition.     2.40       BOBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Dante     2.50       SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.     5.40       SOTENCE PEIMERS:     1. Introductory. By Frof. Huxley, F.E.S	By Richard A. Froctor, S. S.A.S. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APSINTIES OF MAN AND THE APS. BY FOI. Rudoiph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts. No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERIES, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and eth- ets. No. 5. NERULS, METRORIC SHOWERS, AM- COMETS.
CERVANTES' Don Quixote	Translated from the German. 1908. with three portraits.       10.56         HUNT'S (MEs. HELEN). Verses	Medged in     1.30       The Bloat Fartner.     1.30       What to Wear 7.     1.30       PROCTER'S (A DELAIDE A.) Poems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition.     2.40       BOBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Dante     2.50       SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.     5.40       SOTENCE PEIMERS:     1. Introductory. By Frof. Huxley, F.E.S	By Richard A. Froctor, S. S.A.S. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APSINTIES OF MAN AND THE APS. BY FOI. Rudoiph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts. No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERIES, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and eth- ets. No. 5. NERULS, METRORIC SHOWERS, AM- COMETS.
UEEVANTES' Don Quixote	Translated from the German. 1908. With three portraits	Medged in     1.30       The Bloat Fartner.     1.30       What to Wear 7.     1.30       PROCTER'S (A DELAIDE A.) Poems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition.     2.40       BOBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Dante     2.50       SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.     5.40       SOTENCE PEIMERS:     1. Introductory. By Frof. Huxley, F.E.S	By Richard A. Froctor, S. S.A.S. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APSINTIES OF MAN AND THE APS. BY FOI. Rudoiph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts. No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERIES, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and eth- ets. No. 5. NERULS, METRORIO SHOWERS, AM- COMETS.
UEEVANTES' Don Quikote	Translated from the German. 1908. with three portraits.       10.56         HUNT'S (MES. HELEN). Verses	Medged in     1.30       The Bloat Fartner.     1.30       What to Wear 7.     1.30       PROCTER'S (A DELAIDE A.) Poems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition.     2.40       BOBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Dante     2.50       SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.     5.40       SOTENCE PEIMERS:     1. Introductory. By Frof. Huxley, F.E.S	By Richard A. Froctor, S. S.A.S. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APSINTIES OF MAN AND THE APS. BY FOI. Rudoiph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts. No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERIES, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and eth- ets. No. 5. NERULS, METRORIO SHOWERS, AM- COMETS.
UERVANTES' Don Quixote	Translated from the German. 1908. Will.         three portraits.         10.36         HUNT'S (MES. HELEN).         Verses.         L25         Bits of Travel.         More Ortigin of Species         Pattors Niticians on Darwin and Administration         The Monitor of Species         Pattors Niticians on Darwin and Administration         Darwin and Administration         Administration         Lay Surmons, Addresses, and Reviews.         The Monitons of the Unseen         Bongs of Soven         Bongs of Soven         Bongs of Soven         Borles for Stories         Studies for Stories         Borles for Stories         Stories Fairy, A Soven         JERBOLD (DOUGLAS), Firestal Second         JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and their Relation to Universal Religion.         JOSEPHUS.       The whole Works of Flavias Josephus, the Jewich Historian.         JOSEPHUS.       The whole Works of Flavias Josephus, the Jewich Historian.	Medged in     Face Block Partner     1.00       The Block Partner     1.00       PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. For- trait. Cabinet Edition.     2.00       ROBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Danto     2.50       SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Nubelsincos, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.     5.60       SOCENCE PRIMERS:     1. Introductory, By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.     5.40       Chemistry, By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.     5.40       BOTENCE PRIMERS:     1. Introductory, By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.     5.40       Chemistry, By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.     5.40       BOTENCE PRIMERS:     1. Mathematical Science With Halling       Instructions     5.41       BOTENCE PRIMERS:     1.00       Chemistry, By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.     5.40       Roctarions     5.40       BOTENCE RIMERS:     1.00       BULLES'S (SAMUEL) Self-Help.     1.20       BYENCER (HEBERT), Education, Intellight     2.50       Brint Frinciples     2.50       Brint Frinciples     2.51       Bocial Statics; or, The Conditions Example ital to Human Happiness Brinted and the First of the Huborg, 2 wols.     5.60       The Frinciples of Psychology, 2 wols.     5.60       The Frinciples of Psychology, 2 wols.     5.60	By Richard A. Froctor, F. B.A.S. No. 2. THE CRANIAL APSINTIES OF MAN AND THE APS. BY FOI. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Blustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts. No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERING, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and eth- ers. No. 5. NEBULE, METRORIC SHOWERS, AND COMMINS. No. 6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN, AND EFIDENTIC DELUSIONS. By Dr. Carpeo- ter, author of The Microscops stad for Seve- lations, Human Physiclogy, etc.
UERVANTES' Don Quikote	Translated from the German. 1908. Will.         three portraits.         10.36         HUNT'S (MES. HELEN).         Verses.         L25         Bits of Travel.         More Ortigin of Species         Pattors Niticians on Darwin and Administration         The Monitor of Species         Pattors Niticians on Darwin and Administration         Darwin and Administration         Administration         Lay Surmons, Addresses, and Reviews.         The Monitons of the Unseen         Bongs of Soven         Bongs of Soven         Bongs of Soven         Borles for Stories         Studies for Stories         Borles for Stories         Stories Fairy, A Soven         JERBOLD (DOUGLAS), Firestal Second         JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and their Relation to Universal Religion.         JOSEPHUS.       The whole Works of Flavias Josephus, the Jewich Historian.         JOSEPHUS.       The whole Works of Flavias Josephus, the Jewich Historian.	Medged in     Face Block Partner     1.00       The Block Partner     1.00       PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. For- trait. Cabinet Edition.     2.00       ROBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Danto     2.50       SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Nubelsincos, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.     5.60       SOCENCE PRIMERS:     1. Introductory, By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.     5.40       Chemistry, By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.     5.40       BOTENCE PRIMERS:     1. Introductory, By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.     5.40       Chemistry, By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.     5.40       BOTENCE PRIMERS:     1. Mathematical Science With Halling       Instructions     5.41       BOTENCE PRIMERS:     1.00       Chemistry, By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.     5.40       Roctarions     5.40       BOTENCE RIMERS:     1.00       BULLES'S (SAMUEL) Self-Help.     1.20       BYENCER (HEBERT), Education, Intellight     2.50       Brint Frinciples     2.50       Brint Frinciples     2.51       Bocial Statics; or, The Conditions Example ital to Human Happiness Brinted and the First of the Huborg, 2 wols.     5.60       The Frinciples of Psychology, 2 wols.     5.60       The Frinciples of Psychology, 2 wols.     5.60	<ul> <li>By Richard A. Process, F.S.A.S.</li> <li>No. 2. THE CRANIAL APINITIES OF MAN AND THE APR. By Frof. Rudoiph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated.</li> <li>No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts.</li> <li>No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVENTES, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and els- ers.</li> <li>No. 5. NEBULE, METRORIO SHOWERS, AM CONSTR.</li> <li>No. 6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN, AND EFIDEMIC DELUSIONS. By Dr. Carpen- ter, suthor of The Microscops and Ma Zens- lations, Juman Physiology, etc.</li> <li>No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARS. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of Neichner, Runch of Sketches of Creation.</li> </ul>
UEBVANTES' Don Quixote	Translated from the German. 1908. With 19.50         Huros portraite	Medged in       Face Bload Fartner       1.50         What to Wear 7.       1.00         PROCTER'S (A DELAIDE A.) Foems. For- trait. Cabinet Edition.       1.00         PROSETI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Danto       2.50         SOBELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and Bodies.       2.50         SOCENCE PRIMERS:       5.10         1. Introductory, By Frof. Hurley, F.E.S.       5.40         SOCENCE PRIMERS:       5.40         2. Obeniz', Dy Bafour Stewart. With H.       5.40         SOCENCE PRIMERS:       5.40         2. Obeniz', Dy Bafour Stewart. With H.       5.40         SOCENCE PRIMERS:       5.40         3. Obeniz', Dy Bafour Stewart. With H.       5.40         BOLES, Dy Bafour Stewart. With H.       5.40         B. Dyroic Boorts, Stratheld Colt.       5.40         BOLES, CANUEL, Self-Help.       5.40         BOLES (HERBERT), Education, Intellectual, Moral, and Physical.       5.40         Brist Frinciples of Noreal Progress. A Se- lection of them Developed.       5.40         Bolto of them Developed.       5.40         The Frinciples of Faychology. 2 vols.       5.40         The Frinciples of Faychology. 2 vols.       5.40         Brank Inclustes of Insology. 2 vols.       5.40	<ul> <li>By Richard A. Froctor, F. B.A.S.</li> <li>No. 2. THE CRANIAL APINTIES OF MAN AND THE APE. BY FOI. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, author of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated.</li> <li>No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts.</li> <li>No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and bowing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Hüggins, and els- ers.</li> <li>No. 5. NERULE, METRORIO SHOWERS, AM COMETS.</li> <li>No. 6. UNCORSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN, AND EFIDEMIC DELUSIONS. By Dr. Carpen- ter, author of The Microscops and its Bow- lations, Human Physiology, etc.</li> <li>No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARS. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of Michigan, mathor of Skeiches of Creation.</li> </ul>
UERVANTES' Don Quixote	Translated from the German. 1908. With 19.50         Huros portraito.         Ihros portraito.         Bito of Travel.         L25         Bito of Travel.         L26         HUXLEY'S Man's Place in Natures.         L25         On the Origin of Species         Data of Travel.         L26         HUXLEY'S Man's Place in Natures.         L27         On the Origin of Species         Annual of the Anatomy of Vertebraied         Aninuals.         Addition of the Chastomy of Vertebraied         Aninuals.         HOKLOW'S (JEAN) Process.         Prove Mattions of the Unseen.         House for Stories         Budles for Stories         Budles for Stories         States fod to a Child. First and Second         L28         Boster allow to Child. First and Second         L29         States for Stories         States fod to a Child. First and Second         L29         Boster allow to Child. The state and Second         L20         JOBNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and their Belation to Universal Religions, and their Belation to Universal Religions, and their Belation to Universal Religions.         JOWETT. The Dialognes	Medged in       Farbe Bloue Fartner.       1.00         What to Wear 7.       1.00         PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. For- trait. Cabinet Edition.       2.00         PROSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Dante.       2.50         SOEB/LEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and Bodies.       2.50         SOEB/CE PRIMERS:       1. Introductory, By Frof. Hurley, F.E.S.       5.40         SOCENCE PRIMERS:       5. Introductory, By Frof. Hurley, F.E.S.       5.40         SOCENCE PRIMERS:       1. Introductory, By Frof. Hurley, F.E.S.       5.40         SOCENCE PRIMERS:       5.1 Antroductory, By Frof. Hurley, F.E.S.       5.40         SOCENCE PRIMERS:       5.40       5.40         Chemistry, By Arch Boacoe.       5.40         Bodies.       5.40       5.40         Brotecal Geography. By Archibald Gei- bis, Li, D., F.E.S. Harible cloth.       5.40         BMILES'S (SAMUEL). Self-Help.       1.40         SPENCER (HEBERET). Education, Intel- lectual, Moral, and Physical.       2.41         Billubrations of Universal Togenes.       5.44         Bocial Educant The Conditions Essen- ua Moral.       2.50         The Frinciples of The Conditions Essen- ua Morals.       2.50         Philosophy of Style.       5.40         Recent Inscussions in S	<ul> <li>By Richard A. Froctor, F. B.A.S.</li> <li>No. 2. THE CRANNAL APENTITES OF MAN AND THE APE. BY FOI. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated.</li> <li>No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Blustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts.</li> <li>No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERTRS, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and eth- ers.</li> <li>No. 5. NEBULE, METRORIO SHOWERS, AME COMETS.</li> <li>No. 6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN, AND EFIDENTO DELUSIONS. By Dr. Carpeo- ler, author of The Microscops shull de Res- lations, Human Physiology, etc.</li> <li>No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARS. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of Michigar, suthor of Sketches of Creation.</li> <li>No. 8. ON YEAST. BY Prof. Huxley, F.R.S.</li> <li>No. 8. ON YEAST. BY Prof. Huxley, F.R.S. ON Stars Computation Science of Creation.</li> </ul>
<ul> <li>GENVANTES' Don Quixote</li></ul>	Translated from the German. 1908. With 19.50         Huros portraite	Medged in Fartner.       120         The Bloat Fartner.       120         What to Wast 7.       120         PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Foems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition.       240         BOBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Danks.       250         SOHELLEN (H.). Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.       544         SOENCE PERMERS:       544         I. Introductory. By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.       544         SOENCE PERMERS:       544         I. Introductory. By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.       544         SOENCE PERMERS:       544         Chemistry. By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.       544         Bodies.       544         Bodies.       544         SOENCE PERMERS:       544         I. Antroductory. By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.       544         Becort Research Norals. 20 vols.       544         Bodies.       545         Bod	<ul> <li>By Richard A. Froctor, F.S.A.S.</li> <li>No. 2. THE CRANNAL AFINTITIES OF MAIN AND THE APR. By Frof. Rudoiph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Colluiar Pathology. Fully illustrated.</li> <li>No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts.</li> <li>No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVENTES, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Boscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and eth- ers.</li> <li>No. 5. NEBULE, METRORIO BHOWERS, AM COMETE.</li> <li>No. 6. UNCORSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BEAMY, AND EFIDEMIC DELUSIONS. By Dr. Carpeo- ler, subor of The Microscops and its Zeen- lations, Human Physiology, etc.</li> <li>No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARE. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of Michigar, suthor of Shetches of Creation.</li> <li>No. 8. ON YEAST. By Prof. Huxley, F.R.S.</li> <li>No. 9. THE CIRCULATION OF THE WATERS OF THE FACE OF THE EARTH. By Prof. H.W. DOVC.</li> </ul>
UERVANTES' Don Quixote	Translated from the German. 1908. with 19.50         Huros portraite.       19.50         HUNT'S (MES. HELEN). Verses.       1.25         Bits of Travel.       1.25         More Ortigito of Species       1.25         More Ortigito of Species       1.00         A Manual of the Amatomy of Vertebrated       2.00         A Manual of the Amatomy of Vertebrated       1.00         Lay Sourmons, Addresses, and Reviews.       1.35         The Moositions of the Unseen.       1.20         Boogs of Seven.       2.30         INGELOW'S (JEAN) Proces. Off the Skeine       1.20         Budies for Stories       1.22         Budies for Stories       1.23         Budies for Stories       1.22         Mops athe Fair; A Story       1.22         Poor Matt; or, The Clouded Intellect.       40         JEERBOLD (DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr.       1.26         JONENN'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, 5.00       1.00         JONENN'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, 5.00	Medged in       Face Block Factors       1.50         What to Wear 7.       1.00         PROCTER'S (A DELAIDE A.) Foems. For- trait. Cabinet Edition.       1.00         PROSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Dants       2.50         SORELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.       5.40         SORENCE PRIMERS:       1. Introductory by Prof. Huxley, F.E.S	<ul> <li>By Richard A. Froctor, F.B.A.S.</li> <li>No. 2. THE CRANNAL AFINTITIES OF MAIN AND THE APR. BY FOIL, Rudoiph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated.</li> <li>No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts.</li> <li>No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVENIES, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and eth- ers.</li> <li>No. 5. NEBULE, METRORIO SHOWERS, AM COMETE.</li> <li>No. 6. UNCORSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN, AND EFIDEMIC DELIMIONS. By Dr. Carpeci- ter, subor of The Microscops and its Desc- lations, Human Physiology, etc.</li> <li>No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARES. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of Michigar, mathor of Sketches of Creation.</li> <li>No. 8. ON YEAST. By Prof. Huxley, F.R.S.</li> <li>No. 9. THE CREATION OF THE WATERS OF THE FACE OF THE EARTH. By Prof. H. W. DOVC.</li> <li>No. 10. THE STONE AGE, PAST AND PERSENT.</li> </ul>
UERVANTES' Don Quixote	Translated from the German. 1908. with 19.50         Huros portraite.       19.50         HUNT'S (MES. HELEN). Verses.       1.25         Bits of Travel.       1.25         More Ortigito of Species       1.25         More Ortigito of Species       1.00         A Manual of the Amatomy of Vertebrated       2.00         A Manual of the Amatomy of Vertebrated       1.00         Lay Sourmons, Addresses, and Reviews.       1.35         The Moositions of the Unseen.       1.20         Boogs of Seven.       2.30         INGELOW'S (JEAN) Proces. Off the Skeine       1.20         Budies for Stories       1.22         Budies for Stories       1.23         Budies for Stories       1.22         Mops athe Fair; A Story       1.22         Poor Matt; or, The Clouded Intellect.       40         JEERBOLD (DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr.       1.26         JONENN'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, 5.00       1.00         JONENN'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, 5.00	Hedged III Further.       120         The Block Wear 7.       120         What to Wear 7.       120         PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Foems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition.       2.80         ROBSETTI (CHEISTINA G.) A Shadow of Danito       2.80         SOHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.       2.80         SOHENCE PERIMERS:	<ul> <li>By Richard A. Froctor, F. B.A.S.</li> <li>No. 2. THE CRANTAL APSINTTER OF MAN AND THE APS. BY FOL. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, author of Collular Pathology. Fully libustrated.</li> <li>No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cats.</li> <li>No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and iso used to be a several wood-cate.</li> <li>No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and constitution and Movements of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Boscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and els- ers.</li> <li>No. 5. NERULS, METRORIO BHOWERS, AND COMETS.</li> <li>No. 6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN, AND EFIDEMIC DELUSIONS. By Dr. Carpeo- letions, Human Physiology, etc.</li> <li>No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARS. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of Michigan, suthor of Skeiches of Creation.</li> <li>No. 8. ON TEAST. By Prof. Huxley, F.R.S.</li> <li>No. 8. THE CREDIATION OF THE WATERS OF THE FACE OF THE EARTS. By Prof. H. W. DOVC.</li> <li>No. 1. THE STARS. By Prof. H.W. DOVC.</li> <li>No. 1. THE STARS. AGE, FAST AND FERSENCE.</li> <li>No. 1. THE STANE AGE, FAST AND FERSENCE.</li> </ul>
<ul> <li>BERVANTES' Don Quixote</li></ul>	Translated from the German. 1908. With 19.50         Huros portraite	Medged III Variane:       120         The Block Wear 7.       120         What to Wear 7.       120         PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Foems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition.       120         ROBERTI (CHERSTINA G.) A Shadow of Danto       2.80         SOBELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodia.       2.80         SOEENCE PRIMERS:	<ul> <li>By Richard A. Froctor, F. B.A.S.</li> <li>No. 2. THE CRANDAL APENTITES OF MAN AND THE APE. BY FOL. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, author of Collular Pathology. Fully libestrated.</li> <li>No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cats.</li> <li>No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and iso used to be a several wood-cate.</li> <li>No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and constitution and Movements of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Boscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and els- ers.</li> <li>No. 5. NERULS, METRORIO BHOWERS, AND COMETS.</li> <li>No. 6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN, AND EFIDEMIC DELUSIONS. By Dr. Carpeo- letions, Human Physiology, etc.</li> <li>No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARS. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of Michigan, suthor of Skeiches of Creation.</li> <li>No. 8. ON TEAST. By Prof. Huxley, F.R.S.</li> <li>No. 8. THE CROULATION OF THE WATERS OF THE FACE OF THE EARTS. By Prof. H. W. DOVC.</li> <li>No. 1. THE STARS. AND FERSENCE.</li> <li>No. 1. THE STARS AND FERSENCE.</li> </ul>
BERVANTES' Don Quixote.       1.55         BERVANTES' Don Quixote.       1.56         BERVANTES' Dan Quixote.       1.56         Berl Lin. In Tweive Discourses. Edited from Dis manuscripts by his nephew. Win.       1.66         Benry Channing.       1.66         Benry Channing.       1.66         CEANNING (WM. ELLERY).       Thorsan: The Foot Naturalist.       With Memorial Verse.         CEANNING (WM. ELLERY).       Thorsan: The Foot Naturalist.       1.07         CERSEY (Mas. E. D.).       Patience.       1.07         Social Games.       A Borles of Thirty (Ismes. for the Fireside.       1.07         Social Games.       A Borles of Cammes.       1.08         CAREE (JAMES FREEMAN).       Ten Great Religious       1.08         Commos Bense in Religion       2.04         CAREE (JAMES FREEMAN).       Ten Great Religious       1.08         OBER (FANCES POWEB).       Station Stations       1.07         OBER (FANCES POWEB).       Station Stations       1.07         SOBER (FANCES POWEB).       Station Stations       1.07         SOBER (MONCURE D.)       The Earch ward Rightange.       1.07         SOBER (FANCES POWEB).       Stotion Station Station Stations       1.07         SOBER (FANCES CADUINE H).       The Callegar	Translated from the German. 1908. With 19.50         Huros portraite	Medged III Variane:       120         The Block Wear 7.       120         What to Wear 7.       120         PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Foems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition.       120         ROBERTI (CHERSTINA G.) A Shadow of Danto       2.80         SOBELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodia.       2.80         SOEENCE PRIMERS:	<ul> <li>By Richard A. Froctor, F.B.A.S.</li> <li>No. 2. THE CRANNAL AFENTITES OF MAN AND THE APR. BY FOI. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated.</li> <li>No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts.</li> <li>No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERING, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and ela- ers.</li> <li>No. 5. NERULE, METRORIO SHOWERS, AME COMMIS.</li> <li>No. 6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN, AND EFIDEMIC DELUMIONS. By Dr. Carpecter, ter, subor of The Microscops and its Dees- lations, Human Physiology, etc.</li> <li>No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARE. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of Michigan, Buthor of Sketches of Creation.</li> <li>No. 8. ON YEAST. BY Prof. Huxley, F.R.S.</li> <li>No. 9. THE CREDULATION OF THE WATERS OF THE FACE OF THE EARTH. By Prof. H. W. DOVC.</li> <li>No. 10. THE STONE ACC, PAST AND FERENCE. By Edward B. Tylor, author of Primeties Culture.</li> <li>No. 10. THE RELATION BETWEEN MAXTER Device.</li> <li>No. 11. THE RELATION BETWEEN MAXTER No. 10. THE RELATION BETWEEN MAXTER</li> </ul>
UEWANTES' Don Quixote	Translated from the German. 1908. With 19.50         Huros portraite	Medged III Variane:       120         The Block Wear 7.       120         What to Wear 7.       120         PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Foems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition.       120         ROBERTI (CHERSTINA G.) A Shadow of Danto       2.80         SOBELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodia.       2.80         SOEENCE PRIMERS:	<ul> <li>By Richard A. Froctor, F.B.A.S.</li> <li>No. 2. THE CRANNAL AFENTITES OF MAN AND THE APR. BY FOI. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated.</li> <li>No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts.</li> <li>No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERING, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and ela- ers.</li> <li>No. 5. NERULE, METRORIO SHOWERS, AME COMMIS.</li> <li>No. 6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN, AND EFIDEMIC DELUMIONS. By Dr. Carpecter, ter, subor of The Microscops and its Dees- lations, Human Physiology, etc.</li> <li>No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARE. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of Michigan, Buthor of Sketches of Creation.</li> <li>No. 8. ON YEAST. BY Prof. Huxley, F.R.S.</li> <li>No. 9. THE CREDULATION OF THE WATERS OF THE FACE OF THE EARTH. By Prof. H. W. DOVC.</li> <li>No. 10. THE STONE ACC, PAST AND FERENCE. By Edward B. Tylor, author of Primeties Culture.</li> <li>No. 10. THE RELATION BETWEEN MAXTER Device.</li> <li>No. 11. THE RELATION BETWEEN MAXTER No. 10. THE RELATION BETWEEN MAXTER</li> </ul>
UEWANTES' Don Quixote.       1.56         ORANNYOG WYM. ELLERY, D.D., The For- faci Life. In Tweive Discourses. Edited from his manuscripts by his nephew. Win.       1.66         Barry Channing.       1.66         CHANNING (WM. ELLERY).       Thorsan: The Foot Naturalist.       1.66         CHANNING (WM. ELLERY).       Thorsan: The Foot Naturalist.       1.06         CHANNING (WM. ELLERY).       Thorsan: The Foot Naturalist.       1.06         CHANNING (WM. ELLERY).       Thorsan: The Foot Naturalist.       1.07         CHARSEY (MRS. E. D.).       Parison.       1.07         Social Games.       A constant of the Pirestide.       1.07         Social Games.       A constant of the Pirestide.       1.07         Social Games.       A constant of the Interview.       1.08         CAREE (JAMES FEREMAN).       Ten Great Religious       3.08         Connone-Sense in Religion.       3.09         CAREE (JAMES FORVER).       Stall Subjects.       3.08         OBERC/FLANCES FOWER.       Stall Subjects.       3.07         OBERC/FLANCES FOWER.       Stalleston o	Translated from the German. 1908., with three portraits	Medged III       Farbe Block Fartner.       150         What to Wear 7.       150         PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Foems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition.       240         PROSTIC (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Danto       250         SCHELLEN (H.). Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.       544         SOCHELLEN (H.). Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.       544         SOCENCE PERMERS:       54         1. Introductory. By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S.       55         2. Chemistry. By Prof. Roscoe.       56         2. Physical Geography. By Archibsid Gei- kle, LLD., F.E.S. Baribie cloth.       56         BMILES'S (SAM'UEL) Self-Help.       145         SPENCER (HERBERT). Education, Intei- lectual Moral, and Physical.       2.84         Bastys: Moral, Political, and Esthelic.       2.84         Bastys: Moral, Political, and Esthelic.       2.84         Bastys: Moral, Political, and Esthelic.       2.84         Bastys: Moral, Political, and Sethelic.       2.84         Bastys: Moral, Political, and Se	By Richard A. Froctor, J. S.A.S. No. 2. THE CARNIAL AFFIRTMEN OF MAN AND THE APE. BY FOI. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated. No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Blustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts. No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DIBCOVERING, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and els- ers. No. 5. NEBULE, METRORIO SHOWERS, AME COMETS. No. 6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN, AND EFIDEMIC DELUNION. BY Dr. Carpeco- ter, subtor of The Microscope and its Bees- lations, Human Physiology, etc. No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARS. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of Michigan, Buthor of Sketches of Creation. No. 8. ON FRAM. BY Prof. Huxley, F.R.S. No. 8. ON FIRE CARTH. By Prof. Huxley, F.R.S. No. 9. THE CIRCULATION OF THE WATERS OF THE FACE OF THE EASTA. BY Prof. Huxley, F.R.S. No. 10. THE BYONE AGE, FAST AND FERSENE. By Edward B. Tylor, author of Jvissidies Ouldwre. No. 11. THE BELATION BETWEEN MATTER AND FORCE. BY Prof. John H. Tice, of Sta- Louis. For safe by THE LINDEX,
<ul> <li>BERVANTES' Don Quixote</li></ul>	Translated from the German. 1908. With 19.56 HUNT'S (MES. HELEN). Verses. 1.25 Bit of Travel. 1.25 Bit of the travel. 1.25 Dependence of Species and Adminis- Travel. 1.25 To Monithons of the Anatomy of Vertebrated Animals. Addresses, and Reviews. 1.15 INGELOW'S (JEAN) Froms. 2.25 Bit Of Seven. 2.25 INGELOW'S (JEAN) Froms. 2.25 Bit Of Seven. 2.25 Bit	Medged in Variant       130         The Block Yartner       130         What to Wear 7.       130         PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition.       140         PROSTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition.       140         Denste       2.50         SOBELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Subsciences, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.       544         SOTENCE PEIMEERS:       1. Introductory. By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S	<ul> <li>By Richard A. Froctor, F.B.A.S.</li> <li>No. 2. THE CRANNAL AFENTITES OF MAN AND THE APR. BY FOI. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Collular Pathology. Fully illustrated.</li> <li>No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts.</li> <li>No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERING, showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and ela- ers.</li> <li>No. 5. NERULE, METRORIO SHOWERS, AME COMMIS.</li> <li>No. 6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN, AND EFIDEMIC DELUMIONS. By Dr. Carpecter, ter, subor of The Microscops and its Dees- lations, Human Physiology, etc.</li> <li>No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARE. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of Michigan, Buthor of Sketches of Creation.</li> <li>No. 8. ON YEAST. BY Prof. Huxley, F.R.S.</li> <li>No. 9. THE CREDULATION OF THE WATERS OF THE FACE OF THE EARTH. By Prof. H. W. DOVC.</li> <li>No. 10. THE STONE ACC, PAST AND FERENCE. By Edward B. Tylor, author of Primeties Culture.</li> <li>No. 10. THE RELATION BETWEEN MAXTER Device.</li> <li>No. 11. THE RELATION BETWEEN MAXTER No. 10. THE RELATION BETWEEN MAXTER</li> </ul>

THE INDEX-APRIL 2, 1874.

1-

167

THE INDEX	APRIL 2, 1874.
of an excellent Photograph (Cabinet Size) of tev. MONCURE D. CONWAY, of London, an behad at the office of THE INDEX. Price A centa	part its afforts for the present so wanted
FREE DISCUSSION	the

B

As a means to this end, we have published for eneral circulation several thousand copies of a

TBACT

on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr.

Abbot which appeared in THE INDEE of Nov. 27.

The edition was made as large as our funds would allow; but, so great has been the domand,

Our next edition ought to be large enough to

EVERY VOTER INTHE STATE,

and generously to supply the calls for them in other States.

To do this, we need funds; for, although we have made arrangements for printing the Trac at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston

League, with its various other expenses, to bear

All Friends of the Movement

forward and help us with liberal donations?

We frequently receive communications from parties wishing tracts to distribute, asking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circu-ating them gratuitously throughout the country.

To many of the subscribers of THE INDEX

and others whose names have been furnished us

as probable friends of the movement, copies of the Tract, together with Petitions asking the re-

With the Hope that such friends will try to secure as many sig natures to the petition as possible in their locality tand to the matter themselves to place the peti-done NOW!

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Per order of the

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

tions in the hands of those who will.

Let us

OBT DOWET.

We respectfully ask those who are unable to at-peal of the Exemption Laws, have been sant, id, or 20 cents per hundred, to all who will it is already nearly exhausted.

place a copy in the hands of the entire expense alone.

Will not, then,

ton Street, Boston, every Sunday, at 104 A.M., 2% and 7% P.M. All that relates to the Bellgions, Political, and Social lucierests of markind consti-tute the subjects for discussion. The RODAX and Lucer Tracts are for asle every Sunday at Hospitaller Hall. whereby church and other corporate property is unjustly exempted from its share of the burden of taxation.

THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873

The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of $3, by express, at the purchaser's express. A complete file for the year can be furnished in no other form. Address , 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

TO BOOK-BUYERS.

Please examine the revised list of POPU-LAR BOOKS on the opposite side of this page. Any OBTAINABLE BOOK NOT IN THIS LIST will be furnished to order. Readers of THE INDEX who desire to pur-clase English, German, or French Books, on who wish for information as to the price, &c., of any American or Freign Book, can have their ordiers promptly filled and their inqui-ries answered by addressing THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

E L 0 C

BAKING POWDER.

(Warranted Best in Market.)

All goods sold can be returned at my expense, if not as represented. Goods dellyered free of freight, and ten days' trial be fore payment. ALEXANDER COLE.

BUFFALO, N.Y., P.O. Box 2549.

An exceedingly interesting memorial of a very remarkable man-one of the striking figures in American history. Mr. Frothing-ham has given a large number of Parker's letters and journals not previously published; he has written in the light reflected upon Parker's words and efforts by the momentons events of the last fitzen years, which have brought out in bold relief the asgacity, wis-dom, and heroism of Theodore Parker's ca-reer; and he has written so candidly, and with so profound an apprediation of Parker's charactaristic qualities, that his book is of surpassing interest. The NEW YORK TRIBUNE closes a four and THE REFORMATOR.

A WEERLY JOURNAL,

For the dissemination of useful knowledge, and the enlightenment of the people on political, religious, and so-cial subjects, with a view to reform.

Published in the German language ery Saturday, at Adrian, Mich.

Principal office at Adrian, Mich., to which all letters and communications must be ad-dressed.

C. LOHMANN & SON, Pub's. C. LOHMANN, EDITOR

The REFORMATOR circulates in all the principal cities and villages in the United States and Territories, and presents an excellent medium for advertising.

Terms of Subscription-$2 per annum. Adments inserted at liberal rates. Su verti scription and advertisements must be paid in advance

T O F B U S THEODORE PARKER,

Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi-poise, breathe through the clay; the artist has so filled his own heart with appreciation of that noble life that he has been able cam-ningly to mould it into those delicate lines which the character had wrought on the liv-ing fibre. We are tempted to exclaim, as we stand beside it, as the old artist did to his perfected work, "Speak then!"-Hannah E. Skuvenson.

The gree, though but of clay, are gleaning with possible indignation, with possible tears the lips are set firm with the resolution of him who, like Paul, could "fight a good fight" as well as "give a reason."—Samuel Longfel-low.

The best representation of Mr. Parker ever executed in clay.-Boston Daily Globs.

S. H. MORSE.

TO NEWSPAPER

PUBLISHEBS.

Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I ahould like to contract for composition alone, or for composition, preas work, and mailing. for one or more weekly papera. Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed. GEO, H. RLIB, 7 Tremont Place, Boston.

L. HENDERSON & CO.,

G. BANKERS.

LEBOY, MINN.

Money invested on short time, or tor a term of years, on unincumbered improved farnos, at 12 per cent, interest manue, payable semi-atonally. Perfect tile and ample security guaranteed. All perfect tiles and abstract of tille and recording mortage paid by borrower. We collect and rentage paid part of the United States free of charge.

REFERENCES. -- First National Bank, Mo-Gregor, Iowa; First National Bank, Mo-Minn.; Milwaukee National Bank, Milwas-kee, Wia; City National Bank, Chicago, III; Allen, Stevens & Co., Bankers, New York City; Morris Altman.

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES. paying 8 to 10 per cent. Inte

Investments in Real Estate in Chicage and vicinity,

if judiciously made, are the best and safest modes of employing capital. The old

Real Estate and Loan Agency

OF ERNST PRUSSING, 143 HANDOLPE STREET Chicago (Established 1853),

Guarantees perfect title and ample security in all fts Real Estate Lonne. Firstclass securities always on hand. In-terest and principal collected without charge. Real Estate: Investments made on commission or on sharve; taxes paid, &c. Orders of capitalists and real estate own-ers respectfully solicited.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is full length. It is full size. It is emooth and elastic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine use.

Many kinds of spool silk are a perfect fraud, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unit for use. The ladies will always find the Eu-reks Silk exactly as represented. Every spool is warranted, and the manufacturer's name indelibly branded on every spool. Call for it.

ONLY TEN SETSI

All the bound copies of the FIRST VOL-TIME of THE INDEX (1870) which were on sale at the Office of the Association in Tolede were sold very soon after they were advertised. FIVE DOLLARS have since been paid for a single copy obtained by special advertisement. The Association have just come into possession of Ten Copies of this first volume, and now offer

TEN COMPLETE SETS

of THE INDEX, including the first, second, third, and fourth volumes (1870, 1871, 1872, 1873), at the low price of

Only Ten Dollars a Set.

Persons wishing to possess a complete file of THE INDEX, whether for its intrinsic or historical value, will do well to send their orders without delay. The First Volume will

NOT BE SOLD SEPARATELY.

The four volumes will be sent in one package, by express, at the cost of the purchaser. THE INDEX, Address 1 Tremont Place, Boston-

Tumate Google

BOLL UP THE LIST! BY SIDNEY H. MORSE. Lot our united voices be heard! And let it be We would say, also that we feel deeply the to been . Other Organizations in this State, to cooperate with us in securing All the characteristics of my husband ara in the bust,—his greatness, his goodness, his tenderness, his love. You cannot give life to clay or marble; but you can represent it, and this Mr. Morse has done.—Lydia D. Parker to Hannah E. Stevenson. equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are those who are inclined to Form a Liberal League, we are ready to render such assistance as lies in

The first time I have seen Theodore Parker since he died.-Wm. Sparrell.

Copies of this Bust, finely finished a pla ter, $10 each. Boxing for transportation, $1 extra. Freight or expressage paid by party sending order. Weight of box about fifty pounds. Orders may be sent to Room 15, 25 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.

The face is strong and noble as it should be. The likeness is good — Boston Dafly Advertiser.

Nothing appears for beauty alone, or finish, or to show the vanity of the artist. All is forgotten in the man-the true, real, Yankee man, Theodore Parker.-L. S. H. in the Golden

The New York TRIBUNG closes a four and a half column review of this block by saying: "It holds up a remarkable specimen of ro-bust manihess whose form and lineaments can be studied with equal advantage by friend and foe." Sent, postage prepaid, on receipt of price. THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston. HAPTER S FROM The Bible of the Ages.

168

A

Address

Address

C

$25 per day guaranteed using our WELL AUGER and Drills. Catalogue Ires. W. W. GILES, St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED, by a middle-aged Ger-

W man man, a situation to work in a store or office, for a small compensation. Best references and secarity stren. Please address P. K., INDEX Office, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drog, and Bandgrinding MILLS. Ten Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Hustrat-ed paimphiets free. Address J. SEDGEBEER, Paineaville, Ohio.

A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACTS, from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed to any address on the prepayment of 75 OENTS.

Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1573, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2.-50, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive read-ing twenty years bence as to doay. No more valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of these volumes. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

JUST PUBLISHED.

THEODORE PARKER:

Biography. By Octavius Brooks Froth-ingham. With Heliotype Portrait. I vol. 8yo. $3.00.

THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

CHEAP OFFER!

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass BOUND VOLUMES OF THE

THE INDEX,

A

CA1

F

THE BIDIE OF the Ages. POUBTEEN CHAPTEES. Belected from Hindu Yedas, Baddha, Con-fucios, Egyptian Divine Pymander, Zoroas-ter, Talmuds, Bible, Plato, Pythagoras, Mar-cus Aurelius, Epicteuts, Al Korau, Luther, Scandinavian Eddas, Renan, Talleein, Mi-ton, Penn, Adam Charke, May Fletcher, P. W. Newman, Tyndall, Max Müller, Elias Hicks, Channing, Garrison, H. C. Wright, Lu-citis Mott, Higginson, T. Starr King, Bush-nell, Parker, Davis, Emima Hardinge, Emer-son, Donton, Tuttle, Abbot, Frothingham, and others.

Gospels and Inspirations from many Centuries and Peoples. "Slowly the Bible of the race is writ, Each age, each kindred, adds a verse to it."

Edited and Compiled by GILES B. STEBBINS

Four hundred pages; bound in cloth; price $1.50. No Extra Charge for Fostage. THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston Address

FOR REED ORGANS!

The Organ at Home!

This admirable collection of music for Reed Organs should be at home wherever there is Reed Instrument. Nothing that is not of the very best quality has been allowed in the book, which has more than two hundred at-tractive pleces, compactly printed on large pages. Nothing difficult. Everything nicely fitted to the popular taste.

Price in boards, $2.50. Cloth, $3.00. Gilt, 84.00.

NEW METHOD FOR REED ORGANS. Price, $2.50, By Wm, H. Clarke,

A thorough Method, containing not only abundant directions and exercises, but a large quantity of the best Reed Organ Music, stranged and fitted with Mr. Clarke's well-known exquisite taste and skill. Sells im-mensely.

Clarke's Dollar Instructor FOR REED ORGANS.

An excellent and attractive instruction book for those who need a short and easy

Sent post-paid, on receipt of retail price. OLIVER DITSON & CO.,

BOSTON. CHARLES H. DITSON & CO.,

711 Broadway, New York.

LIBERALSI If all will unite and work, the results sought can be accomplished Address

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

WHOLE NO. 224.

VOLUME 5.

11

1

2924

S.S.F.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, APRIL 9, 1874. For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT: PROPOSED AS & SUBSTITUTE FOR THE

FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CON-STITUTION.

ARTICLE 1.

ARTICLE I. SECTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-tautishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceabily to assemble and to potition the Gov-ernment for a redress of grievances. BKOTON 2.—NO State shall make any haw respecting an of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceabily to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances. No religious a qualification to any office or public trust, in any States and no person shall ever in any State be deprived of any of religious code of any public or private daty, or ren-dered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or outer discompetent to give evidence in any court of law or out is on ber rights, privileges, or capacities, or disqualified or the performance of any public or private daty, or ren-dered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or out is a bar dights, privileges and no persor be or she may hold on the subject of religion. Sections J.—Congress shall have power to enforce the pro-risions of the second section of this Article by appropri-ties in the subject of religion.

NOTES AND COMMENTS. BY A. W. S.

"WE ARE sinning when we think we are," one says. A deep and instructive suggestion is that. The real sinner is known only to himself.

DR. LIVINGSTONE did not succeed in penetrating to the heart of Africa; but in Africa he left his own heart, which was taken from his body by his followers, and buried under a tree,

ME. BEECHEE says: "I think there is nothing in the life of a man which so rouses and stirs him as love." Yes, but a good deal depends upon what he loves; for

"Whatsoe'er thou lovest, that become thou must; God if thou lovest God, dust if thou lovest dust."

R. H. DANA, JR., in writing of politics, says: "The people are deeply stirred. They are harnessing them-selves for a moral crusade." We sincerely hope this is Never was there a greater need, in this country, true. of "a moral crusade" in politics than now.

POLITICS are in a hopeless state of corruption, and politicians are hopelessly corrupt. Both of the dominant parties ought to be crushed, and the people should resume the power which they have so long unwisely com-mitted to a professional class of "rulers."

WENDELL PHILLIPS says: "Aristocracy is like a frigate splendidly built, its spar tapered to the heavens, its mast and its shroud perfect; nothing but the storm that will make the ocean kiss the sky can sink it. Democracy is like a raft where every man's foot is wet, but he cannot sink."

THERE ARE about 8,400 school-teachers in Ma setts. The average monthly wages of the men is $85.09; of the women, $82.89. The men teachers are more than twice as well paid as the women; whether they do more than twice as good work may be considered perhaps doubtful.

STARE KING says: "The genius of Plato was naturally evolved from the capacities of the Pelasgic race." course; everything comes by natural evolution. And we may say, therefore, that the wonderful religious genius of Jesus was naturally evolved from the capacities of the Hebrew race.

"MR. SUMMER Was a solitary man," says a writer in the Christian Union. Solitary as to society he may have been; but he had the companionship of great thoughts, ideas, and principles, as conveyed to him by books, pictures, statuary, and a few wise friends. And, after all, what society is ao good as that which comes thronging to one out of the region of the inspired intellect and the aspiring soul?

ANNA DICKINSON, in her lecture on the "Social Evil," speaking of the mistaken way in which many women ap-proach and try to reform the arring sisterhood, says, in her vigorous way: "I tell you, my friends, you have got to put down your ladyhood, and in one sense your Christianity, and walk into the room simply a plain, straightforward, kindly-disposed woman, if you ever come to reach one such soul as that!"

"WE GOVERN our passions," remarks a moral philoso pher; "but in general we let the passions first have a triphore; "but in general we let the passions first have a tri-al." And why not? Every passion is a part of the man --matural, and God-ordained. Every passion, also, has its individual rights, which are limited only by every other passion, appetite, and desire of the whole man. Our nature is a democracy, not an aristocracy. A man as wise as St. Paul has said, speaking of the human body, that one member should not despise another, but that each should receive due honor.

IT HAS BEEN written by some one that "one half of mankind mar life, and the other half are marred by life." The real art worth knowing is the art of right living, so that we may neither mar nor be marred by the life that is ours. But, in fact, the "marring" which occurs both to life and to those who live it bears a very different ap-pearance when looked at from the standpoint of eternity from what it does when looked at from the standpoint of time. It is the long view that best explains the "evil" in the world, not the short view.

AT A BECENT regular Monday meeting of the New York Methodist ministers, Rev. J. M. Buckley created a sensation among the brethren by saying that the attempt to make out the Bible a total-abstinence book was atterly hopeless; since it nowhere prohibited a temperate indulgence in wine or other strong drink. Mr. Buckley, we believe, la right. It is altogether unsafe to attempt to base any specific "reform" on the Bible, inasmuch as texts and examples may be quoted from that venerable book to sustain almost any belief or practice which anybody is disposed to endorse.

MR. BERCHER says of the Council that was convened to try his church, that "it was called under extraordinary circumstances which would vitiate the decision of any court on earth. It was not 'packed' but 'picked.'" He thinks that, "on the whole, the history and result of the Council constitute a practical vindication of Plymouth Church as a Congregational church. The declared purose was to excommunicate that church. . . . The fact of failure is more significant than all the explanations of it that can be offered." Mr. Beecher would seem to be quite satisfied with the result of this attempted trial of his church.

A FRENCH AUTHOR, M. Guyard, has said: "I think that an idea, in order to bear fruit, must have a father and a mother. Hitherto, ideas have had fathers only." But have not ideas, hitherto, borne some fruit, notwith-standing their one-sided parentage? The two parts of the Frenchman's statement do not hang together; one or the other needs a little modification. We believe it is true, so far, that men have been the great originators, the great creators, of thought; that the great systems of philosophy, ethics, theology, science, have had their birth in the male and not the female mind. And it is very interesting to consider what and how much this suggests; whether it auggests a real and ineradicable generic difference between the intellects of men and women, or only a difference of social condition, which, when removed, will show woman to be as great a creator in the intellectual world as man.

WE HAVE the truest sympathy with and respect for those whose active benevolence leads them to engage in enterprises for feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, and visiting the sick and imprisoned; for such distressing exigencies lie in our immediate pathway, and must not be overlooked. And yet we cannot help wishing that more attention might be paid to the causes of poverty and crime, and some wise measures be invented for re-moving those causes. All our religion and our civilization thus far have failed to bring about a true society, a real commonwealth; but at present we have antagonistic classes, clashing interests, and unfair competitions: the rich are growing richer, the poor poorer, and the yawn-ing chasm between social castes is daily widening and deepening. Among all our other sciences, what perhaps we most need is a true social science, which shall discover and proclaim the laws and principles upon which a harmonious society must be based, and point out the way whereby the long delayed reconciliation between the individual and the community may be secured.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other ecclesinstical property shall no longer be exempt from just taxation. 2. We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisons, seylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

able money, shall be uncontinued. 3. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-ionsi and charitable institutions of a sectarian character

clons) and o

shall crass. 4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostensi-by as latt-book or arowedly as a book of religious wor-especially that the prohibited.

abp, shall be prohibited. 5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease. 8. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and mall other departments of the government shall be abol-ished, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-sities of perjury shall be established in its stead.

T, We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-pealed.

peaked. 1. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all la shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morali equal rights, and impartial liberty. laws ality, equal rights, and impartial liberty. 9. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the Onited States and of the several States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or ad-rantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ad and administered on a purely secular basis; and that shattere changes shall prove necessary to this ond shall be consistently, unflinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whence of a coval ORGANIZATION. Whence the second conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperilied, the advance of civili-salou impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-tringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; THEREFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-

ARTICLES OF AGREENENT.

ART. 1.-The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-BRAL LEAOUE OF ------ MALLEAOUE OF THIS ASSOCIATION Shall be THE LIB-MAR 2.—The object of the Liberal League shall be to se-cure practical compliance with the "Demands of Liberal-iam" throughout the country, and especially in —: Also, as soon as fire hundred such Liberal Leagues shall have been formed in different places, to send two delegates to a National Convention of Liberal Leagues, to be hereaf-er called, in order to co-operate with all the liberals of the country in securing the needed reforms. Ahr. A-The means employed in working for these objects shall be regular local meetings, free discussions, loctures, addresses, conventions, the platform and the press in gen-eral, and all such other means as are peaceable, orderly, and right.

Aut. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members. Aut. 6.—Auy person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-teel.

cient. AT. 6.—The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Execu-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be those commonly pertuining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be ex-officio delegates to the National Covention of Liberal Leagues when called together. ATT, 7.—These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a libree-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-air meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

Bo far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of YEE INDEX. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that it will yet be accepted universally by the American people, It will yet be accepted universally by the American people, as the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A blevel League ought to be formed to carry out its princi-ple wherever half a dozen earnest and resolute Liberals as be got together. Being convinced that the movement to secure compliance with these just "Demands" must wurdy, even if slowly, spread, I hope to make Tak Invest a means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and scive co-operation of every man and every woman who be levers in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-port promptly the names of their Presidents and Secre-taries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion as that its grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are right, ist their organized voice be heard like the sound of any waters. BARNON SELECTION FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT. Editor. BORTON, Sept. 1, 1873.

LIST OF LIBEBAL LEAGUES

170

 LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries.
 BOSTON, MASS.-J. S. Rugers, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretarics.
 JEFFERSON, OBIO.-W. M. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Secretary. Secretary. BAN JOSE, CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Secretary. TOLEDO, IOWA .- J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre VINELAND, N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, YINELAND, N. J. - John Gage, Heinbalt, Sato Li, Soto, Becretary.
 JUNCTIONVILLE, NEB. J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Socretary.
 OLATHE, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Secretary.
 DETROIT, MIGH.-W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, Secretary.
 BERGUSVILLE, MIGH.-A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. Knowles, Socretary.
 GROOLA, MO.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Socretary. Secretary. BATH, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. BEELIN, WIS.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman. Washinoron, D.C. - George M. Wood, President; J. E. Crawford, Secretary. AUBGURN, OHIO.-John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treas-ner. urer. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grothen. NEW YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary.

Secretary, M. .--P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Secretary. Secretary. EAD Chalus, W18.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy.

[For THE INDEX.]

"The Land of the White Elephant."

A LECTURE ON BURMAH,

DELIVERED BEFORE THE FREE RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF ST. LOUIS, MARON 15, 1874.

BY R. A. SKUES,

(Late of the Sixty-Ninth British Regiment).

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

hever been since. However, as soon as the effects of dissipation be-gan to disappear, and the weather toned down, with a spanking breeze we were soon sailing past the island of Madeira, which with one exception was the last sight of land we had until the voyage terminated. As we got down towards the equator, the winds be-gan to get very uncertain, and at last we found our-selves becalmed in the "Doldrums." The Doldrums are the ten degrees north and south of the equator, and are thus named by sailors. For nieteen days we lay like "a painted ship upon a painted ocean," without a breath of air. By day the sun poured down relentlessly on our ship, caus-log the pitch to bubble out of the seams of the decks, and making the interior of the ship like an oven. By night the air seemed close and uncomfort-able, and all the time the sails hung about the masta as if they had no business there. The last day of our suffering we found that there was a ship, not far from us, which was in the same

INDEX - APRIL 9,
Predicament. We were watching her, when all at once something appeared flashing in the water; and, as it approached us, it proved to be a boat from our neighbors. On boarding us, we found that it was a Nantucket whaler which had been away on a whalin y englisher. On some or eight years; and that they wanted some provisions, which our captain was enabled to supply them with. We gave them all the wayspaper and books we could spare, and they took its for a series of the satisfaction of finding that our friends received them.
Scarcely had our American friends left us, when a breeze sprung up, and we soon lost sight of each the, we ran down to forty degrees south latities, the could spare, and they took on the order of the sight of each of the sight or each the eighty-ninth degrees of longitude east of coent, the only land we saw was St. Paul's, a lonely cot thousands of miles from land.
They in the sky, we could see the frigate bird wisher oss, and the searmew. The soldiers caught we abatrosses and searce from land, and tore them to pieces. The schere was one which reminded me of humanity in general. Given which were fulfilled, none of us poor being, members of the Souther to pieces. I have no which reminded me of humanity in general. Given we had the same were the eligious Association.
The only last one.
The only last were add on board, the wife of one of the officers, was slawsy sick and confined to her cabo, and last long.
The only last we shad on board, the wife of one of the officers, was slaws sick and confined to her cabo, and us to be abatrosse. This would not a store and unconfortable look. This would not alst forever; and, when we sighted the coast of finding and we contend the site weak of a large majority of the officers, was always sick and confined to her cabo, and the sheence of ladies gave the elight on or alst forever; and, when we sighted the coast of finding all knew that we should agalt have the chance and unconfortable look. This wou last forever; and, when we sighted the coast of In-dia, all knew that we should again have the chance of seeing our own countrywomen. Madras, our point of disembarkation, on the east-east, and subject to tremendous gales, and luxur-ates in a surf which frets and tosses itself unceasingly against a shingly shore. It is not very long since that a fearful cyclone blew there, and a fine trestle-work pier of nearly a mile in length, completed in 1864, was torn up and beached, and numbers of ships were wrecked, and lives lost. When these storms take place, the surf lashes the shore in a state of fury; and on the day we arrived it was so bad that we dared not attempt to cross it. Sometimes for days there is no communication between the ships and the shore, except by means of the catamaran men, who are so expert that they pass through any surf. The catamaran is a small raft made of three logs lashed together; and the man who engineers this primitive craft is a gentleman in a most primitive dispatches with which he is intrusted. When the wind blows towards the shore, vessels have to soll their anchors and get to sea as fast as they can. The morning after our arrival the surf moderated, and it was considered safe for us to land. The ship was surrounded by a fleet of boats, each manned by about thirty Hindus, whose primitive attire was such as to impress-one at once for cibly with the idea that, whatever else they had to suffer, they had little to undergo in the way of tailors' bills. The surf boats, and awkward,—ewidently more useful than ornament-al. From side to side were wooden stretchers, on which the rowers sat, and paddled along with oars much resembling long wooden spoons. At one end there was flooring and ecaat for the passengers, and behind these sat the steersman. The male part of the companion ladder, while the laday was carefully lowered in a chair enveloped in a flag, and hoisted in by a rope from the yard-arm. Seated in the stern of the boar we find ourselves in charge of a demon-like set of beings, wh by a top work the yard and. A search in the stern of the boat we find ourselves in charge of a demon-like set of beings, who dip their cars to a monotonous and unmelodious chant of "la illa Allah!" or "O God, O God!" varied by demands for bucksheesh or a pres-ent, which means either a ducking or money. As we near the shore and get to the breakers, the steersman stops the boat till one long wave rolls by, and then, with an unearthly shout, he calls to his crew, and the boat is forced through the breakers and safely beached. At this time you can feel nothing but astonishment that you have passed so safely through the wild waste of water which is now behind you. The rowers jump out and hold a chair, in which you place yourself, and are carried high and dry as carefully as if you were a new-born child. Well, as far as India life is concerned, you are a child, though quite unlike that which you have left behind.

behind.

child, though quite unlike that which you have lead behind. After realizing that we are once more on terra firma, we find we are the centre of attraction to a forwa of beings who appear to us as if they had all been let loose from a lunatic asylum for our peculiar benefit. These we find out are servants, each of whom has a handful of "characters," which they ac-quire very often by purchase in the bazaar or market, where they are manufactured and sold. We, not knowing the country (or the ropes, as you would say here), each engaged one of these men, and they each remained in our employment about forty-eight hours. Some got drunk, others ran away, after having helped themselves to what they fancied. We found it the custom there never to take servants without a per-sonal recommendation, which a good man can always get from the merchants and bankers. I employed one recommended to me by the com-

1874. manding officer of the station to which I first went, and he staid and went all over the country with me as long as I was there. All yourservants steal there; they exact a percentage on each purchase they make for you, no matter how small, and they grade the amount according to your rank and pay. If you are invited out to dinner in India, your ser-vant goes with you, and considers it his duty to have a lively fight to get you the best cut and the best bit of everything he can. When not so employed, he never pays the slightest attention to any one else, but stands with arms folded behind your chair, and, no-matter what goes on, looks as sober as a judge. Madras, thirteen degrees north of the equator and fighty degrees east longitude, is one of the oldest set-tlements in India, and is the capital of the presidency or section of India of the same name. It is a place of great commercial importance, and has a large popula-tion of Europeans in the while town, while a very dense population inhabit the black town. The town reaches to the sea beach, along which there is a drive with an explanade and band-stand; and here the peo-ple of Madras, while aid black, merchant and prince, andores, shall coverything humanity deligits in after being let loose from the cares of the day. The ideas, when not on horseback, generally sit in their carriages, listen to the music, or talk with the genite-men, who roam aboutfrom carriage to carriage. The music lasts till darkness begins to threateri, then the carriages begin to the weat so to hereateri, then the carriage begin to move off, and all go home to dress and dine, some to meet again at a ball or party, one of which is constantly occurring.

of which is constantly occurring. Early rising is practised by every one in India, in order that each may get the benefit of the cool of the morning. It is customary to have riding parties, and a rendezvous is appointed the previous day. I can look back with the greatest pleasure to some of my morning rides, when men and women, in a state of general good feeling with each other and the world in general, cantered along in the cool of the tropical morning.

general, cantered along in the cool of the tropical morning. After our ride we generally stopped at some friend's house, where we partook of the chota haziri, or little breakfast, and the charm in this was in the uncer-tainty where we should do so. I always found that the best way, being a creature of circumstance, was to accommodate myself to them, and resignedly sit down under the first pair or pairs of pretty eyes, be they black, blue, or gray, under which fate brought me. About October the English steamers used to bring out young ladies who came to seek their fate in most every case in my limited experience they carried out their intentions. You can well imagine the junction of May and De-cember was frequent. The ladies under whose care the débutantes came out are said to have given the following advice: "Always try and catch a civilian, for they are always worth 2300 a year, dead or alive; next to them an army officer, of not less rank than a major; and have nothing to do with the officers of the Queen's regi-ments, for they have got no Fund—no pension, in fact, of any account." Every one separates after the little breakfast is over, and rides home to dress, and get ready for the real breakfast which precedes the business of the day. Between the hours of eleven and two, the ladies re-ceive callers at their houses, and no one is expected to call after, unleas specially invited to lunch, which is but another name for a very substantial midday meal, and is called "tiffeir." Croquet parties were frequent, and were largely patronized, particularly by ladies who had a pretty foot and ankle. I noticed they were always enthu-siasts in the game. While the Europeans gave balls, and danced them-selves (to the astonishment of the natives, who could dance. If he

About October the English scenars then to bring out young ladies who came to seek their fate in the matrimonial market in India. They all came out with a full determination to get married; and in al-most every case in my limited experience they carried out their intentions.

While the Europeans gave balls, and danced them-selves (to the astonishment of the natives, who could not understand why a person ahould dance, if he could get some one else to do it for him), the natives, on the other hand, used to give entertainments where the curopean sahib, or gentleman, would, if he hap-pened to be invited, be provided with as good cham-pagne, brandy, soda, etc., as he could get amongst his own people.

pagne, brandy, soda, etc., as he could get amongstate own people. With this introduction of Indian life, we must say farewell to it, and proceed on our journey to the "land of the white elephant." A white elephant is a freak of Nature. There are, I believe, three known to exist at the present time, one belonging to the King of Burmah, another to the King of Siam, and the third to the Llama of Thibet. Leaving India, we have to gross the Bay of Bengal.

of Burmah, another to the King of Siam, and the third to the Llama of Thibet. Leaving India, we have to cross the Bay of Bengal. On this voyage I experienced the grandest and most furious of the many storms at sea through which, in my varied wanderings, I have passed. The wind shricked through the rigging, and the sea was lashed to perfect fury. The captain told me that he con-sidered the storm to be travelling at the rate of at least one hundred miles an hour. These storms are so well known now amongst mariners that it is com-paratively easy to avoid the worst of them by steering away from the nucleus. In case of a steamer, of course, this is easy; a sail-ing vessel, however, has more trouble to get away. These storms have a circular motion of their own, as well as an onward motion; and the ring of wind is axtensive, varying from one hundred miles to greater distances in breadth. The centre is said to be caim as far as the wind is concerned, but with the same furious sea running. During the storm a man fell overboard, and noth-ing could be done for him. Nothing ever so forcibly reminded me of Victor Hugo's work, Les Misérables, as this scene. The chapter headed "A' Man Overboard" gives a most graphic description; so much so that, when I read it, this harrowing scene is vividly that, when I read it, this harrowing scene is vividly reproduced in my mind. The mouth of the Irrawaddy River is, when you see if first, not much dissimilar to that of the Mississippi. The Irrawaddy rises in the mountains in the north of China, and is the great highway through a consider-able portion of this country; for so luxuriant is the regetation, and so thinly populated the country, that roads, except near towns, are not kept open. At about thirty miles from the mouth is the city of Rangoon, a place of considerable commercial impor-tance, possessing an immense timber trade from the porthern provinces.

tance, possessing an infinite time take the take the northern provinces. Before the British took possession of Burmah in 1852, it was nothing, but a collection of bamboo huts, thatched with the leaf of the water-palm; and these were frequently burned down, new houses similarly constructed replacing them in time to share the same fate. Under the native Burman kings the Burman dared not display any wealth, if he had the slightest regard for his life; for his king had none. As soon, how-ever, as they found that the display of wealth did not render them liable to such consequences under the

107 min inc. to: we have a state of the second s and the Vicerov of India visited him as an independent sorerign, —a claim to which dignity he had never re-linquished. But now what was left of all this but a miserable existence in a miserable shed, —a prisoner without power? He died a few years ago. At Rangoon is one of the most celebrated shrines of the Buddhist religion, and a numerous body of priests inhabit the place. Here, too, is one of their most cele-brated pagodas, named shony, or golden. Conceive a vast cone, the base containing 640,000 square feet of concentric polygonal courses of brick-work, tapering away to a point to the height of 383 feet, and covered with gold leaf from base to summit, and you have this immense structure before you. Standing on an elevation of two hundred feet above the river, it is seen for miles, towering above the surrounding jungle, and for miles, towering above the surrounding jungle, and glistening in the sun. This is said to be the place where Gaudama landed glistening in the sun. This is said to be the place where Gaudama landed some three thousand years ago, when Nebuchadnez-zu was indulging himself in the prairies of Syria, and Daniel was in Babylon. This pagoda stands upon two terraces, one above the other, 800 feet long and 680 broad, each side fac-ing one of the four cardinal points. The area it stands on is almost an acre and a half, and there are at least twenty-four acres of gold leaf pasted outside the structure. The terraces are approached, on each of the four sides, by long staircases guarded by two enormous sphinx-like figures, which, on examining, we find are built of brick, and then covered and moulded with cement. The bottoms of beer-bottles were made use of for the eyes. The summit of the pagoda is surmounted by the sared tee, or umbrella, which consists of a series of concentric rings of iron, decreasing in diameter as they approach the top. Little bells with heart-shaped picces of iron attached to their tongues are hung round these circles; and the slightest breath which ruffies the air gives music to the bells, and shows the industry of the Burmese in the science of bell-mak-ing. The Burmese to the largest. Some of these are large enough to accommodate a moderate sized sess from the smallest to the largest. Some of these are large enough to accommodate a moderate sized dinner-party, and range from that to the size of a band ball dinner-pa hand-bell hand-bell. In this shrine there are deposited a number of relics of Buddha, one of which is a hair from his beard, and another is a water-dipper, etc.; therefore it is most sacred. Worshippers must think it so, for they come from the confines of Thibet and China to pay their devotions, and the amount of the offerings during a year must be enormous. In all the pagodas there is a large amount of treas-ne in gold, silver, and precious stones. This I know to be the case from personal observation, for I saw ure in gold, silver, and precious stones. This I know to be the case from personal observation, for I saw the remains of an old pagoda removed, in consequence of commanding one of our forts, and in it were found numerous gold, silver, and bronze images, together with precious stones of every description. I myself had a handful of small rubies which I collected from the rubbish, which individually were too small to be of any intrinsic value; but besides these were valua-ble gems which government took possession of. What this pagoda is to the Buddhist the Holy City of Benares is to the Hindu, Ceraba at Mecca to the faithful Mussulman, or the tomb of Christ to the Christian pilgrim. The form of the pagoda, in its chasteness of design and majesty of structure, seems a fit exponent of the majesty of the Deity. Its at-tractive form, tapering towards the sky, leads one to look there, and the effect is different from that pro-duced by the temples of India proper, on whose walls sculptures of the most intense obscenity are delicately traced by the artist in stone. The terrace of the pa-goda was a favorite spot for every one, and I cannot wonder at it. Round it were numbers of grotesque statues, which soon tired one; but the beautiful land-scape which was presented to our view from this height was one that to look at once was to wish to behold forever.

scape which was presented to our view from this beight was one that to look at once was to wish to behold forever. From the east round to the west was a range of mountains, which disappeared in the distance, and looked like the walls of an immense amphitheatre. The floor of this was an immense plain which looked like a piece of the most lovely green embroidery, with the rivers as silver thread crossing it. As I stood on the terrace of the pagoda, the golden light of the sun, sinking as it were sadly into the west, threw a mel-low light on the beautiful landscape before me, grad-nally becoming dimmer and dimmer, until it seemed like the melting away of a beautiful dream. The great pagoda lost its lustre, and its majestic form seemed to change into an immense dark tower point-ing towards heaven. Its black massiveness remained until its golden casing was awakened once more to a glorious brilliancy, reflected from the moon, which again lighted up the landscape. Indeed, it was one in which Nature pulled the ropes and gave motion to the machinery.

The Buddhist religion is one of the most liberal and tolerant in the world. Its general tenets are that it is the duty of man to do good to man, and to look with respect on all other religions which inculcate this.

The sights of Rangoon being well nigh exhausted, the next thing to be done was to get ready to go up country. Our travelling was to be almost altogether on the rivers, and our means of locomotion a cance The sights of Rangoon being well nigh exhausted, the next thing to be done was to get ready to go up country. Our travelling was to be almost altogether on the rivers, and our means of locomotion a cance about forty feet long, hewn out of a solid log of teak. One end of the boat was thatched, and in this honse we could sleep all night free from dew, while during the day we were within reach of the tide, there was no exertion in propelling the beat up the river, but after that bamboo poles came into requisition. When the tide had carried us up as far as it could, having begun to ebb, we came to anchor. During the night the tide flowed. I had dropped into a deep sleep, when the boats, of which I had about one hundred and fity with me, came all crushing and tearing gainst mine. It was pitch-dark; and, what with the yelling of the boatmen, and the crashing and tearing of the boats, it was some time before I could realize exactly what was going on around me. However, collecting my scattered thoughts, and realizing where I was. I found that my boat came safely through the ordeal; and eventually we disembarked at Pegu to march across a plain of about thirty miles in breadth, to get to the River Sitang, on which we were to con-tinue our journey. Here we found the remains of an old city, with a pagoda rivaling that of Rangoon in height, and evidently, from the masses of gold leaf sticking to it, at one time in riches. The Burmans are adepts in brick-making; and as engineers they are by no means to be despised. Their mode of repairing their pagodas is exceedingly ingenious, for they form a network of bamboo round the structure, and are thus enabled to reach any portion of it in perfect safe-ty. Bamboo is extensively used in their house-build-ing, and is very often the cause of fires. It gets dry and cracks, and the coating of silica acts as a flint and steel, emitting a spark which fires the inflammable thatch. Nothing puts out the fire until it dies out. I saw a bazaar or market of closely packed houses such as these in the elephant grass. We had fambeaus or torches, and there were altogether about two hundred men, with the necessary wagons for our baggage, and trans-port for sick and women; so that our large number prevented any likelihood of attack.

prevented any likelihood of attack. The elephant grass is perfectly unfit for food for any animal; in fact, it is a coarse reed, but, growing as it does to the height of eight feet, it forms an al-most impenetrable brake where snakes and wild ani-mals abound. It is not so impenetrable as a bamboo thicket; but next to that I hardly know anything more difficult to get through. In the months of March and April, when the dry weather sets in, the grass is often set on fire, and an ocean of flame sweeps across the face of the country.

We passed up a portion of the Sitang River where the grass was on fire on both sides; the heat was so

We passed up a portion of the Sitang River where the grass was on fire on both sides; the heat was so intense that it was only by keeping the thatch of our boats wet that we escaped being burned out. So fierce were the glare and heat at one time, that I scriously thought of ordering the boats back until the fire had died out. However, the boatmen did not seem to ob-ject, and I was getting so tired of the worry and anx-iety of having so many men and women under my charge that I gladly allowed them to proceed. I had about twenty soldiers' wives with me, and a more troublesome and disorderly crew I never had more troublesome the with what punishment I could inflict. Their great bone of contention with me was that they wanted a ration of spirits like the men. This I did not concede; but they managed to get enough drink to fill them, and keep them in a chronic state of drunkenness. On one occasion a great, strapping I rish woman attacked me, as I was walking on a sand-bank, our halting place that evening, and told me she intended to thrash me. She was fighting drunk, and I temporized with her until I got near the guard and handed her over to their care. All the punishment I could inflict was to fine these ladies six months of their government allowance of thirty dollars each. I fined every one of them, and this had the effect of keeping them quieter, much to my satisfaction, for the remainder of the journey; for, I assure you, sometimes I did not know what to do with them. In fact, the management of twenty wom-en was a task of such magnitude that I dare not at-tempt it. Of course I had to pretend to be very sterm with them; but at the end of the voyage a very penitent demonstration being made, and numerous tears sheel, I made no mention of my award to the commanding officer of my regiment, and the fines were not en-forced.

I made no mention of my award to the commanding officer of my regiment, and the fines were not enforced

I must now return to the denizens of the elephant grass.

The second secon

his head, and we wanted to account in this manner, much to his disgust, for the want of it. The doctor is a cousin of the Whitakers, the pork-men in this is a cousin of the Whitakers, the pork-men in this city. The same style of canoe was used by us in this river for about two hundred and fifty miles, and we moved by poling. Along the banks lay the alligator; and in the trees the monkeys were numerons, and sat eyeing us like so many Darwinian cousins. One mode of catching a monkey is this: a Bur-man takes a cocoanut shell, and makes a hole at one end sufficient for a monkey to put his hand in; he at-taches the other, by a rope passed through a small hole, to a tree or post. In this shell he places a quan-tity of rice, and the monkey, in attempting to get at it, elenches his fist and thus cannot get away. All along the banks of the river we find villages, into one of which some of my men went and stole some fowls. Presently an old woman came down weeping. She was like one of the old witches in Macbeth. Not knowing what had happened, I was at a loss as to her gestures; but my servant, who knew the language, told me what she complained of. I knew it was useless to make any investigation, and presented her with a small amount of money, which presented her with a small amount of money, which presented her with a small amount of money, which seemed to please her so much that she brought me down a beautiful cat. I was told by my Hindu ser-vant not to accept the cat, as I should be bewitched. However, I kept the cat, and he stayed with me until he was unfortunately killed. The species of cats in Burmah are most peculiar, particularly in their caudal development. Their tails present the most fantastic forms of knots that it is nossible to conceive.

We used to halt at sundown opposite a sand-bank, which soon became as lively as if a fair was being held on it. The men and women got their rations from the commissariat, and the various preparations

172

from the commissariat, and the various preparations for next day's journey had to be made. This done, and darkness beginning to come on, the scene on the sand-bank was somewhat picturesque. Our servants got our tables out of the boats, and spread them with our cloths and crockery, and lighted them with lamp candlesticks, preparatory to giving us Our servants got our tables out of the boats, and spread them with our cloths and crockery, and lighted them with lamp candlesticks, preparatory to giving us dinner. The acene on the bank is a lively one. Here are our tables, brilliant with light, and laden, if not with luxries, at any rate with good substantial fare, fianked by bottles of Bass's pale ale. Further along the bank the Burmese have lighted fires round which they are collected, gesticulating, laughing, and smok-ing; no doubt canvassing the svents of the day, and the peculiarities of the live cargo of their boats. Scattered here and there are the soldiers, their white uniforms showing plainly as they pass any of the lights or fires. We have taken our places at the table, and our dusky attendants, turbanned and clothed in white, are wandering about silent and mysterious, like so many spectres, but much more usefully em-ployed in attending to our creature comfort. Our dinner is soon discussed, and we then set to to some one whom we have left far away across the zea. The fires gradually die out, and we begin to nod,— then with a start wake up an find the bank deserted. We too retire to our boats where our tables, etc., are taken, and the sand-bank soon returns to its pristlne stillness. So we do night after night, until we srive at our destination. Just as day breaks, our boats again move off. The stand bank son the Sitang and the Irrawaddy

The sand-banks on the Sitang and the Irrawaddy are as changeable as those of the Mississippi. In the former rivers, during the dry season, the banks are uncovered, but on the advance of the wet season the flow of the water scoops them out, and where they once were is then the deepest part of the channel. So the rivers move year after year. TO BE CONOLUDED.

[For THE INDEX.] SPRECH OF MR. R. H. BANNEY

BEFORE THE MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATIVE COM-MITTEE ON "JUST AND EQUAL TAXATION," AT THE STATE HOUSE, MARCH 28, 1874.

The petitioners have come before you asking the repeal of the laws exempting religious, charitable, and educational institutions from taxation, believing that the people, the Legislature, and you, their com-mittee, desire that there shall be, as far as practica-repeal of the laws exempting religious, charitable, and educational institutions from taxation, believing that the people, the Legislature, and you, their com-mittee, desire that there shall be, as far as practica-be, just and equal taxation. The remonstrants to this petition have appeared before you, among other things urging that our prayer should not be granted on such grounds; that justice and equality are impossible; that 'equality is the dream of the socialist,' and can never be real-ized. They would have you believe that all legisla-tion on such grounds should be abandoned. I will not attempt to argue the point whether abso-due justice and equality are attainable or not; but even if they are not, that such ideas are to be aban-oned I uterly deny. If I understand the spirit of our government, it is to lay down broad principles founded on justice and equity; and it is the duty of its legislators to conform to such grounds should be abused their abso-due justice and equality as lies in their power. All that your petitioners ask, all that they desire, it first the more in accordance with justice and equality to do so, these laws be repealed j otherwise and; and that you will not consider the fact of the existence of inequalities in other matters to be a jus-tification for the refusal of equality in this. The of the remonstrants (the last but one, I think,) whereby a man can, by acquiring a residence out of why and in other ways, evade the payment of his prop-relam is unjust, and because we have no cause for outling the theore has not been removed, is the rinequalities are adjusted. The question of the protection of his prop-relam is unjust, and because we have no cause for outling because another has not been removed, is the tract that you will not one liquistice should be anyther your rejori in favor of repeal; and if at any inversion of these exemptions is before you. The question of these exemptions is before you. The question of these exemptions is before you. The whereby the avide founded? If an be obviated, we trust you will do your duty in that matter also. One of the principal points made by the remon-strants, especially by the gentleman from South Bos-ton, was that unproductive property is untarable; that only such property as gives peculiary returns in the shape of profits should be made to pay taxes; and that, as these institutions, especially churches, should be exempt from taxation. "If you tax the should be exempt from taxation. "If you tax the that as source of revenue to their owners, they should be exempt from taxation. "If you tax the form," exclaimed this gentleman, "which furnishes no profit, the taxes will eventually eat up the farm." Now if it were a recognized principle of taxation that taxes should be assessed on revenue only, there might be force to this plea as applied to churches; but as property is universally taxed as such, whether so didners of the weakness of the case of the re-monstrants that they are thus obliged to strike at the server basis of our entire system of taxation. Let us suppose two such unproductive farms as mere referred to, side by side. Then let us suppose that, for the reason of its unproductiveness, the Leg-intar exempts one of them from taxation. Is it not evident that, if unjust before, it is doubly so now, since the burden of one is placed on the other, which is as fully entitled to exemption as the first? But, supposing that a neighboring church is exempt, and that the two farms remain taxed, is not the in-justice as palpable? Yet this is what the remonstrants have asked, un-

Y of this is what the remonstrate have asked, the less they desire that our whole system of taxation of property as such should be abolished, and that as-seesments should be made only on revenue. So long as the present system is to remain, we protest against the exemption of any property merely because of its noncolucity anses.

as the present system is to remain, we protest against the exemption of any property merely because of its unproductiveness. We have repeatedly heard it urged at these hear-ings, as a reason for existing exemptions, that these charitable and other institutions "do the State's work," that, "were it not for them, the State would have the same work to do, and bear the entire ex-pense alone." Throughout this Commonwealth there are thousands of people who from age or infirmity and benevolence of individuals, would be thrown upon the public for support. If they were to be all thrown upon the State's work? I think not. Then why have the logitimate taxes of the man who supports his crippled brother increased, by exempting the institution which supports his neighbor's moth-er? Those who support their dependent relatives or friends provide for them in their own way: and if the result on the part of individuals is that they bear the entire expense alone, so it ought to be with corpora-tions which provide for the dependent members of their own sect in their own way. The charitable institutions which have been bronght to vour notice, in order to show the expenditure their own sect in their own way. The charitable institutions which have been brought to your notice, in order to show the expenditure which the State avoids by their existence, are mostly founded by the friends of the inmates, to secure to them Roman Catholic instruction or some other ad-vantage which the State does not give. No doubt, there are special cases where charitable and educa-tional institutions should receive State aid; but this should be done by direct appropriation, after a full hearing of the reasons for granting it. In no case, however, should sectarian institutions be aided; and individual claims should be considered as valid as those of corporations. It was one of the remon-strants, as you doubless remember, who admitted that educational and charitable institutions partially decoded to other purposes had no just claim to exemp-tion. tion.

I would now call your attention to the special con

I would now call your attention to the special con-sideration of church property. The relation which churches bear to the State is unlike that borne by these other institutions. We have schools, charities, etc., supported at the public expense; and, when this is done in a proper and equitable manner, it is conceded that some may re-ceive State aid which are not entirely under the con-trol of the State. If, however, it were a cardinal principle of our government that no State support should be given to charities and schools,—if it were nniversally believed to be both just and proper that there should be to that principle,—I think that you would not long hesitate to decide that exemption from utazation ought not to be granted to such institutions. It is in this manner that religious institutions dif-would not long hesitate to decide that exemption from taxation ought not to be granted to such institutions. It is in this manner that religious institutions dif-fer from all others. Our government stands commit-ted against-the union of Church and State. The United States Constitution expressly forbids it. Church support, which years ago was drawn from the people by direct taxation, was long since abol-ished, and the principle that religious institutions should be supported by voluntary contribution alone was almost universally accepted, in theory if not in practice, as one of the fundamental principles of the republic. The voluntary supporters of churches were as ready to admit the principle as those who paid nothing towards their support. And why? Because the founders of our government recognized the fact individual conscience 1 Religious institutions relate to matters of conscience 2 Religious institutions relate to matters of conscience almost entirely, and for this reason were made the exception. The man who pay freely and cheerfally for the support of those doc-tries which he considers erroneous and dangerous in their affects. So sared were the rights of the indi-vidual conscience held to be by the founders of our government, that it was taught that, even if all but a very small minority believed religious institutions to be of benefit to the whole community, this fact would not justify the compulsory support of thosel all?' has

"Religious toleration and equal rights to all" has been the standing invitation to foreigners to come to our shores. In response to this invitation, Catholic Ireland, which has been compelled to support the Church of England because the governing powers considered it "for the best good of all," has sent thousands of her sons; and we all agree, notwith-standing the fact that many of us do believe the Church of England to be of benefit to that country, that it is an outrage of the rights of the individual for Great Britain to compel her Catholic and other dis-senting subjects to support the Church. Although theoretically, however, we have aban-"Religious toleration and equal rights to all" has senting subjects to support the Church. Although theoretically, however, we have aban-doned public support of the Church, practically it is continued in this State to the amount of over half a million dollars annually by church exemption. All property is taxed for the protection the State gives it. The full amount of the tax is the State's property, whether it be collected or uncollected. The exemp-tion of any property is an appropriation of money due the State. The exemption of church support, as much as though the tax were collected, and paid over

<text><text><text><text><text><text>

If the public moral welfare be the object for this large expenditure, then of course the amount should be apportioned among the churches according to the amount of good each does. As it stands now, this is determined by the value of the building in which the moral instruction is given! To illustrate:-1. At the average rate of taxation last year in this State, $14.49 per $1,000 (in Boston it was much larger), the great $3,000,000 cathedral on Washington Street is to receive $43,470 for the good it does. 2. The State is to pay the Baptist society of Tre-mont Temple $8,604 for the good it does. 3. The Universalist church on Columbus Avenue, worth at least $200,000, improves public morals to the amount of $2,898. 4. An ordinary $5,000 church the State considers a the amount of $2,808.

4. An ordinary $5,000 church the State considers a public benefactor to the amount of $72.45 annually.
5. The little, unsteepled, unpainted, country church, worth perhaps $1,000, and holding as a rule more worshippers than the magnificent city structure, does moral service to the amount of $14.49 annually.
6. The society which is to prove to prove a public benefactor.

moral service to the amount of $14,40 annually. 6. The society which is too poor to own a building, and is obliged to hire a hall for the purpose, is con-sidered as worse than useless, and not only receives nothing for the good it does, but the hall which it uses is taxed in the shape of extra rent. Not only must it pay for its legitimate share of public expense, but also for the support of the wealthier societies which have buildings of their own, and which for that reason alone are considered by the law to have a greater moral influence.

that reason alone are considered by the law to have a greater moral influence. T. The grand spire of the Washington Street cathe-dral, which will entail one-third of the cost of the building, is by this law considered to be a "public conservator of morals" as serviceable to the State as two thousand churches worth $5,000 each, and receives public support accordingly. B. A society owns a lot and building, worth say $10,000, and is this year paid for its moral influence $144.00. After awhile a railroad company or some other party desires the lot, and at an enormous price the society sells it. Next year, with the proceeds of this so-called "unproductive property," an edifice in reased on Back Bay at a cost of $100,000; and the State considers its "sphere of moral influence" so in creased that it henceforth allows it an annuity of $1,440. $1,449.

Now how is all this money practically paid? The answer is patent to all. By the extra assessment of all other property in the State. The property of the man who belongs to the $5,000 society, or the hall so-ciety, or neither, pays as much towards it as the property of the man whose interests lie in the most gorgeous church in the land. And the sect which has the most church property acts the interest that has the most church property gets the 'argest share of it.

has the most church property gets the 'argest share of it. Now, Mr. Chairman, this may be a very satisfac-tory condition of things for those who wish you to discard justice and equality as impracticable, espe-cially if they belong to some of the more wealthy cor-porations to which I have referred. But I believe that good sense will tell you that the money ralue of a building is no criterion of the amount of moral in-fluence proceeding from it; and that a system estab-lishing such a criterion should be abolished. That there is great personal interest in having these exemptions continued, on the part of these more wealthy corporations, you can see as well as I: and, if the remonstrants had any valid reasons to give why these exemptions should be continued, I think they would have given them. For my part, Mr. Chair-man, I see ten times as good a reason for exempting the property of, or even paying the salary of, the clergyman who teaches good morals, as I do for exempting church buildings; and if the State really intends to reward from its treasury good moral influences, the good clergymen should have their slare, and the good laymen theirs.

It is unwise, to say the least, to appropriate public finals for the express purpose of supporting good moral influences; but I think you will agree with me that the present system of exemption is certainly not a just and equitable method of doing it. So far as it discriminates at all, it is in favor of the rich as against individuals,—and with no proper discrimination as to the smount of good done. Even were this not the case, it is a violation of the rights of conscience, in that it is supporting churches with public funds. In short, gence all property, whether profitable to its owners or not, is just and equal taxation."

KORBNER'S "NATUR-ETHIK."

BY PRESIDENT PORTER, OF TALE COLLEGE.

BUBERNERS TRAFT, OF TALE COLLEGE. BY PRESIDENT PORTER, OF TALE COLLEGE. As we open this elaborate work, our attention is structed to the fact that the preface is dated at New York, May, 1873. We next observe that the book was printed in Leipsic. The title-page had already informed us that it was published at Hamburg. This is but one of the many indications that the ends of the world are not far from one another, and that a free and rapid interchange of thought and opinion must attend the mingling of nationalities in this contry. Even our books begin to be written in America and printed in Europe. This is the bulkiest and the most elaborate treatise on ethics which was ever written in America. The side Natur-Ethik but partially indicates the stand-"Natur-Ethik" may mean ethical science as discov-wered by the light of Nature. It need not necessarily my has is often known as theological or Christian eth-ier-Le., ethics as enlarged and modified by revealed or thistin truth. In the present instance, howerv-s, it signifies ethics as independent of, and antago-nistic to, all religious belief whatever. It emphasizes to ever form of religious sentiment and religious moreover, are not only positively atheisic, but pas-sionately anti-religious. In every other particular it is ethical system seems to be exact and dispas-sionately anti-religious. In every other particular it is taken in a truly scientific spirit. The reading of the subto has been very comprehensive. His knowl-dis on the steen known are to be there are aligned the sceneption of human excelence is elevated. His idealing at man the provides for benever hyperiments are how only positively atheistic, but pas-sionately anti-religious. In every other particular it is the achings are not to limited to the external tions, but extend to the springs of action, purifying at elevating them almost after the requirements of the subto has been very comprehensive. His knowl-divershis mideal. And yet he conflues hinself div tined termination of human existence, and no re-sponsible will beneath the play of the conflicting im-pulses and desires that emerge in the human con-consess. A second state of the show, under vari-our points of contrast, that the athelstic naturalism system which is held by Stuart Mill and the writers for the Forlnightly Review. Both systems agree in being purely Nature systems. Both find no place for Ged, or responsible will, or holiness, or shn, or mor-al responsible the will or show the responsible in the lessons of experience, and the probabilities which makes up the universe. But with these im-portant differences culture is the watchword of both, having in the one a far wider and higher significance than in the other, yet finding no place in either for God, for moral responsibility, or the immortal life. Both would benefit and adorn society and provide for the indefinite improvement and perfectibility of man, by elevating and purifying the springs of action with-h and the external conditions of comfort and cul-ture. But beyond culture as thus limited by psycho-logical and social science neither would go; for there is no resources for either in the responsible soul. Thined to Christian conceptions and associations, it wide seem fupossible that a system of athelistic sec-alisiem could be anything else than repulsive from the respination, how elevating to the feelings, and we fut a ware how fascinating it can become to the imagination, how elevating to the fe *Natur-Ethik. Von Hermann Jos. Al. Koerner. 2 Bände-Ramburg: Otto Meissner; New York: B. Westermann & Co. 1873.

INDEX -- APRIL 9, Its uncompromising conservatism in respect to mar-riage, social order, the rights of property, the duty of labor, the obligations of temperance, purity, fregali-yr, and thrift, might well lead to some useful im-pressions in respect to the attractiveness and plausi-bility with which the anti-Christ of the New Testament. One feature alone betrays the malig-mant devil that lurks beneath these robes of grace, and that is the contemptuous and bitter scorn with which the origin and power of religious beliefs and that is the contemptuous and bitter scorn with which the origin and power of religious beliefs and induce as la erplained. The ethical system of the author may be more sat-stractorily understood by stating a few of his leading positions. The human species is the highest among all organized beings of Nature. This elevated posi-ion gives to man his human dignity, which depends and his operations of perceiving, feeling, thinking, and judging. The estimate of this rank and dignity belongs to the race and to each individual. Among all the manifestations that are appropriate to man, the moral are the most characteristic of man as a person, supposing, as they do, the joint and harmonious action of all his powers. Hence the highest degree of development which is possible to him is the moral. Hence we derive the fundamontal principle. Man-should strive to realize the highest well-being and per-sons. As he rises in his intellect from the concrete to the abstract, these impulses fix on the ideal well-being of others objects of apprehension, our well-will-ming for their welfare becomes sympathy with their feelings. Moral low is an intelligent impulse toward the bighest moral being and perfection of others. It well-doing are knowledge for direction--rightecourses of ubersolonies which is a regard to their personal. The commutation which is a regard to the regression of the substract, these complies maily doing well to the substract, these condition of the freedom.

Freedom, as the condition of moral activity and re-Freedom, as the condition of moral activity and re-sponsibility, is opposed to necessity. Necessity is the dependence universal to every existing thing, or the forces and laws of the universe without. Freedom is the capacity of each individual to mould and subject these forces and laws to the production and develop-ment of its separate life. The two terms are relative. There is no absolute necessity or freedom, in fact. What we call necessity is limited by the forces that lie undeveloped in the nature of the individual. What we call freedom is limited by the setternal conditions of its development. Freedom of will, or inner free-dom, is a pure fiction. No higher freedom is con-ceivable than to act and grow according to inner forces and laws. forces and laws.

forces and laws. Responsibility springs out of man's capacity for in-telligence in his acts and wishes and inner disposi-tions, as well as for external acts. Man can be im-pelled to ideal objects, and can estimate the good or evil tendency of depositions; and, therefore, he can accept or reject his own inner states, can cultivate what he approves and repress what he rejects. In other words, man is intelligent and social and self-conscious, capable of development and culture; and these endowments, and the impulses connected with them, determine his capacity for moral experiences and obligations. and obligations. The defects of this system are obvious enough to and obligations. The defects of this system are obvious enough to any one who has accepted a system which provides for personal responsibility in the endowment of in-dividual freedom of will, and so makes possible the alternative of sin and holiness in character and in act. The practical treatment of the various human re-lations, and the duiles which grow out of them, is open to little exception, except from the entire absence of those influences which come from a sense of individ-ual responsibility and the moral government of God. The concluding chapter (pp. 477-609) treats of the and of its present status. To the believer in religious and Christian ethics it is a fearful chapter. For through all its abarp criticism of the actual past and present and its elevated and hopeful idealism, there is such an uncritical and demoniacal hatred of every form of religion as to show most clearly that the au-thor has been seriously disturbed from the equipoise which the truly scientific thinker acknowledges that he ought uniformly to maintain. The author is far-enough from being a disciple of the new materialism. He is neither a pessimist nor a nihilist. He is an idealist, to whom culture, under the couldines of the natural constitution and natural laws, is the substi-tute for conscience, immortality, and God.—Inde-pendent. pendent

DR. DIO LEWIS, having succeeded in gathering about him quite a crowd of sanguine people, proposes to storm Worcester with his new temperance plan, and we may hear before long of the raids of praying and singing bands of women before and within the bar-rooms of the "heart of the Commonwealth." We respect the motive of the doctor and his co-laborers, but we cannot but think that the movement will only bring ridicule and failure to those who engage in it. The spectacle of a mob of women attacking the bar-rooms of a city, and singing and praying, in the hope of breaking up the liquor traffic, will but excite general merriment and rough sarcasm. Intemperance is too big an evil to be corrected by such a novel and pecul-iar exhibition as is proposed.—Boston Globe.

Doetry.

[For THE INDER.] A BECOMPENSE.

173

BY MRS. D. H. CLARK

Deeper my grief than I can eav! A thought is with me all the day, A thought that will not go away:

That, if my watchful care had been More tender, and had hedged him in The golden bars of Love between,

The Stranger, on his silent way, The Stranger in the garments gray, Had passed my darling by that day,-

Had spared the little life. And yet, If all to future moan and fret The current of his days had set,

Could I be thankful? Nav. not so: Better the tentlet green and low, Sweeter this truth that now I know.

I would not give so sweet a thing, The shadow of my baby's wing, For all the purples of a king.

I would not give the shining grace That lingered on his fair, wee face For all the gifts of pride or place,face,

The memory of his joyous weeks For all the bliss a lover seeks, For all the lore a scholar speaks.

So go your way: I am content Remembering him—without lament For the brief space that he was lent.

NORTHUMBERLAND, Pa., March 30.

NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS TO INDEX STOCK.

Mrs. F. W. Christern, Richard B. Westbrook,	New York City,	One al	hare,	$100 100
R. C. Spencer,	Milwaukee, Wis.	Two	64	300
R. W. Howes,	Boston, Mass.	One	40	100
Chas. W. Story,	Boston, Mass.	Uno H		100
E. W. Meddaugh,	Detroit, Mich.	Five	-	500
Jacob Hoffner,	Cumminsville, O.	One		100
John Weise,	Boston, Mass.	One	46
W. C. Russel,	Ithaca, N. Y.			100
A. W. Leggett,	Detroit, Mich.	16	66	100
B. F. Dyer,				100
James Purinton.	Boston, Mass.			100
James Furniton,	Lynn, Mass.		ũ.	100
F. A. Nichols,	Lowell, Mass.			100
J. S. Palmer,	Portland, Me.			100
Robt. Ormiston,	Brooklyn, N.Y.			100
Mrs. A. L. Richmond,	Lowell, Mass.			100
Mrs. Benj. Ireson,	Lynn, Mass.			100
J. E. Oliver,	Ithaca, N.Y.	. 64	11	100
E. H. Aldrich,	Providence, R.I.	15	44	100
Geo. L. Clark,	Providence, R.I.		60	100
W. M. Jackson,	Providence, R.I.	Two	26	200
Mrs. E. B. Chase,	Valley Falls, R.I.	44		100
L. F. Garvin,	Lonsdale, R.I.	One		100
James Damon,	Ipswich, Mass.	-		100
Joseph A. Barker,	Providence, R.I.			100

CASH BECEIPTS.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 4.

FOR THE WEEK EXDING APRIL 4. P. F. Green, 25 cents; E. L. Crane, $1; Wm. P. Morris, $3; C. R. Woodward, $6.56; M. E. Sawyer, $3; Mrs. Jno. A. Needles, $1; Jno. P. Jeweit, $1; Jno. Alexander, $2; W. O. Pick, $43; H. G. Sponeer, $3; G. F. Van Vetchen, $5; A. F. Balley, $3; P. Underwood, 75 cents; Wm. Barnsdull, $1; Chas. Mead, $3; James Westwator, $3; T. M. Cook, $1; J. E. Emerson, $5; Jno. Winslow, $6; Jerome Basa, $3; E. A. J. Lindaley, $3; D. F. DeLara, $1; F. A. Angell, $1; Susan A. Tyrrell, $3; Jno. F. Arnold, 75 cents; J. H. Rhodes, $1,70; L. Hosmer, $3: Jo; B. DeLara, $1; F. A. Angell, $1; Susan A. Tyrrell, $3; Jno. F. Arnold, 75 cents; J. H. Rhodes, $1,70; L. Hosmer, $3: Jo; Boyson & Sherman, $3; White & Bauer, $1.60; Harrleon Bilss, $3; ---, $1,60; S. M. Lei-ditch, 75 cents; F. K. Beitzhoover, 75 cents; Lloyd Map Co., $1; Chas. A. Gurley, $2,76; Jefferson Carey, $2; Cash, $50; A. A. Perry, $5; Devid Edwards, $2,20; Wm. Herrian, $1,60; A. Loos, 50 cents; L. T. Oshorn, 60 cents; W. H. Spencer, $5; G. H. Foster, $1,06; J. W. Winkley, 50 cents; Geo. Stearns, 25 cents; W. J. Potter, 55 cents; E. G. Thomas, 56 cents; S. P. Libby, $3; C. M. Severance, $3; E. F. Bod, 75 cente; Max Lemaire, $3; John Zismer, $1.60; E. Crosby, $10; Frank Ballon, 60 cents; Dyer D. Linn, $5 cents. N. B.-Please examine the ADDRESS and DATE on your

Center, Mail Lamante, e., Sohn Zamber, e., So, E., Crossy, Ste; Frank Ballon, So cents; Dyer D. Lam, 35 cents; N. B.--Please examine the ADDRESS and DATE on your INDEX mail-tag, and report at once any error in either. All receipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and no other receipt sent unless specially requested. Persons who do not see their remittances acknowledged within three weeks after semiling, will please notify us. N. B.--Postage on The INDEX is five cents per quarter, dating from receipt of the first number, ; ayable in ad-vance at the place of delivery. N. B.--Drders for Tracts or single numbers of THE IN-DEX which are not on Acand will, If of small amount, be oth-ervise filled to the same amount without further notice. N. B.--Please remit by post-office money-order, by regis-tered letter, or by infat on Boston or New York. Checks on interior banks are liable to discount, and the term of subscription will be proportionally shortened in the cred t,

BECRIVED. Books.

THE TRUET AND THE REMITTANCE. Two Love Stories in Metred Prove. By Mary Cowden Clarke. Boston; Rob-erts Brothers. 1874.

- metreu Frote. ny mary Cowden Charke. Boston: Rob-erts Brothers. 1874. Pamphlets and Periodicals. EDUCATION AND CHARACTER. An Address delivered before the Delta Upsilon Fraternity, at Amberst, Mass., May 25, 1873. By Prof. William C. Russel, of Cornell University. Amberst: 1874. VIA GATHOLIGA; or, Passages from the Autobiography of a Constry Parson. Part III. London: Thomas Scott, Eag. Arotrerst Sacmiroc. By Prof. F. W. Newman. Londong. Goo's Marstoche. By Prof. F. W. Newman. London: Granbrock, Edinburgh. London: Thomas Scott. The UNITABLAS LEVIEW. April. 1874. Boston: L. C. Bowles. The Frank MONTHER, April 1874. Philadelphis: 508 Walnut attret.

street. THE HEBALD OF HEALTH. April, 1874. New York: Wood & Holbrook, money Google

The Inder. PUBLISHED EVERT THURSDAY THE INDEX ASSOCIATION. AT

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Toledo Office: No. 35 MONBOE STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love.

Brotherly Love. N. B.—No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contri-butions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

BOSTON, APRIL 9, 1874.

SUNDAY LECTURES .- The Editors of THE INDEX will ecture occasionally on Sundays, if desired, within a con-venient distance of Boston.

GLIMPSES.

THE TOTAL NUMBER of signatures thus far received to the "Congressional Petition" is 4,590, - to the "Massachusetts Petition," 8,809.

THE FACT that Congress is in favor of inflation is one of the strongest arguments to be adduced to prove the necessity of "compulsory education." The ignorance of the people on this subject will involve everybody in common sufferings-a few speculators alone excepted. The poor will find this out when prices go up again.

SIGNATURES to the "Massachusetts Petition" have been sent in as follows since last week: From L. A. Kingsbury, Needham, 41; from James Humphreys, Dedham, 5; from THE INDEX office, 22; from C. B. Adams, 2; from S. C. Oliver, Salem, 7; from Edwin Brown, Boston, 25; from Thomas Dowling, Malden, 38. Total for the week-140.

SIGNATURES to the "Congressional Petition" have been received since last week as follows: From Joel S. Richards, Camden, Me., 103; from James Hum-phreys, Dedham, 5; from Marc Thrane, Kenosha, Wis., 16; from THE INDEX office, 27; from Edwin Brown, Boston, 24; from R. H. Moulton, Newton, Mass., 38. Total for the week-208.

NEW ASSOCIATIONS of a liberal character have recently been formed in Cairo and Morrison, Illinois, and in some other places. To avoid misunderstand-ing, it is well to state that the "List of Liberal Leagues" is intended to include only such associations as are specially organized to aid in securing compliance with the "Demands of Liberalism." But we are glad to see movements of any kind looking towards the furtherance of radical ideas.

A SPECIAL MEETING of the Second Radical Club was held April 4, to consider the subject of prison reform. Testimony from many parties, of a most convincing kind, was presented for consideration, showing that the State Prison at Charlestown needs a thorough overhauling, in order to secure the abolition of gross and cruel maitreatment of the prisoners. So far as we could learn, the evils of the present system are traceable to the possession of almost despotic and irresponsible power by the Warden, to a wretchedly ineffective system of Prison Inspection, and to the absence of any proper care for discharged convicts. It is greatly to be hoped that some definite reformatory measures may grow out of the present agitation of the subject.

A CORRESPONDENT in Portland, Maine, sends the following amusing item of news, which well illustrates one of the two tendencies embraced under the name Unitarianism: "'The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at the First Parish (Unitarian) Church on Good Friday evening, at 7 1-2 o'clock.' I think some of the Portland Unitarians opened their eyes a little when Dr. Hill made this announcement from the pulpit; and a goodly number were heard inquiring, as they passed out-'What the devil is the Holy Eucharist?"-some of them even supposing it to be an invitation to a game of eachre in the vestry, as it was on Friday evening. Something ought to be done to enlighten us here in matters of this kind. Who knows but we shall be invited to eat 'Easter eggs,' from the communion table next? One of our dally papers quietly remarks that 'the First Parish is being slowly tugged up the Hill into Orthodoxy."

THE PRAYING CRUSADE.

Superstition is never more hurtful than when it makes reform ridiculous. This is the thought impressed on our mind by the "women's temperance crusade" more deeply than any other, and it gives rise to two or three suggestions.

That intemperance is one of the greatest evils that afflict mankind, and that we so consider it, no reader of THE INDEX who at all appreciates its spirit needs to be assured. Whatever de-rationalizes man is a sworn foe to all rationalism; and the truest friend of reason is necessarily the best friend of genuine temperance. This is so evident that we do not intend to make any unnecessary protestations of devotion to the cause of humanity as against bestiality in the matter of eating and drinking. Let that be taken for granted.

Nevertheless we have had very little sympathy with the temperance revivalism that has been sweep ing over the West. It is only a new phase of the prohibitory movement-prohibition taking a religious instead of a statutory form. Much as we respect the motives of many prohibitionists, their principle seems to us to begin at the wrong end of human nature. Enforced temperance is a very untrustworthy and slippery virtue, liable to break down when least expected. The praying crusade is only a new form of the application of force, and is open to all the general objections against the suppressive system of dealing with vice plus certain other objections peculiar to itself. The great popularity enjoyed for a brief season by Dr. Dio Lewis's movement has come from its being supposed to be a new and efficient form of "moral suasion," whereas it is not moral suasion at all. If the women went to the saloon-keepers in private, and appealed directly to their hearts and consciences, that would be moral sussion; but to hold them up to public reprobation, to annoy, tease, or frighten them into submission, to browbeat them into the abandonment of their business as the only escape from a nuisance, is simply moral coercion. All this is a species of terrorism that cows, if successful, and enrages, if unsuccessful; and the reaction at last developed by such a system, leading to insult and even violence towards the women, is but the natural consequence of a wofully mistaken method. The temperance reform cannot stand under such mistakes very long, but will precipitate a reactionary movement of disastrous effect, unless wiser counsels prevail.

Not only is this fancied application of moral suasion in fact an appeal to the old, worn-out method of moral coercion, but the reliance on prayer as its means is a wretched and ridiculous pretence. What the women pray to is not God, but the saloon-keepers; what they expect to accomplish is a change in them, not in him. The women pray at them, not for or with them; the whole object of the prayer is to drive them, by intimidation or shame or remorse, out of one business into another; and while the apostrophe is verbally to God, it is in reality to the liquor-dealer himself. If the women really relied on the influence of the Holy Spirit upon the heart of the liquor-dealer, they would pray in secret, as Jesus commanded, and not expose themselves to contumely on the public streets, where the scribes and Pharisees alone might be expected to pray. It is plain that prayer is resorted to for the purpose of being heard by the saloonkeeper, not by God, who could hear equally well if the women were at home or in church; and a certain insincerity, or at least inconsistency, which crops out In this way, has been widely discerned, and has tended to destroy all genuine power in this union of ill-concealed prohibitionism with revivalistic fanaticism.

We regret, therefore, this alliance of superstition with honest solicitude to promote reform, which is sure to suffer by it. Reverence for prayer itself, when thus prostituted to unseemly uses, is equally sure to suffer. The ephemeral success of the crusade (for we have the feeblest possible faith in the permanence of its results) will by no means atone for the injury thus done. When not made the vehicle of spiritual mendicancy, but simply of the highest and purest upbreathings and outbreathings of the heart of man, prayer still holds a revered place in the thought of large-minded radicalism. As petition, whether for "temporal" or "spiritual blessings," it is outgrown with the most consistent radicals; It is retreating from public assemblages to the solitudes of the private heart; but it is still, in the noble phrase of Emerson, the "soliloquy of a jubilant and beholding soul," and becomes simply the conscious recognition and inward confession of man's highest relation to the All. Whatever tends to degrade it from this intrinsic dignity and purity, and to convert it into the stratagem of a campaign, strikes a powerful blow at the existence of a sentiment which cannot survive in the pres-ence of disgust. The "praying crusade" will be found by-and-by to have done more to disgust men with religion than to win them to temperance,-to have done more harm as an outburst of fanatical superstition than good as an effort to secure reform. This is our sober estimate of the real results of the "crusade," and it will pass simply for what it is worth.

ARE WE CATHOLICS!

The accompanying letter, which I am permitted to print on condition of omitting the proper names, was written recently to a personal friend and member of my society by a Roman Catholic priest of my neighborhood. The man to whom it is addressed was born. and reared a Catholic, and his interest in my views gave uneasiness to his friends of the old Church. To relieve this uncasiness, he wrote to the priest in question, a learned and sincere man, and in reply received the letter which he believes to be an honest expression of opinion. If it is, it furnishes a singular illustration of the proverb that "extremes meet." For, according to this expositor, the Church of Rome is an institution of Free Religion, and the free religious men are its honorable members. We shall be anxious to know how this news will be received by the doctors. If the letter is not sincere, but merely a priestly device to allay a mother's fears and disarm a son's opposition, it furnishes another illustration of priestly cunning, and another proof that "Jesuitism" is not dead. 0. B. F.

-, March, 1874.

DEAR MR. -

everybody must follow conscience, enlightened and in-telligently acting. Now whoever follows conscience is a member of the

Now whoever follows conscience is a memory of the set o for salvation.

for salvation. Of course each one is his own judge in this matter. And here we must admire the dignified freedom which our Church recognizes in the human soul. She does not presume to tell any man that his conscience is right or wrong. This is individual work. The words of an approved author may be cited here: "Those who without any fault are convinced that their's is the true religion, and serve God in justice, are to be reckoned amongst the members of the true Church."

To be concise, taking your letter to be a candid pro-fession of your inward conviction, I can only reply to your questions as follows, according to Catholic teaching:-ist. Conscience, properly understood, must be obeyed in all cases; and hence

2d. Whoever follows the dictates of this right con-science must be considered a member of the Catholic Church; and as such

He has a right to the common hope of salvation, which such membership holds out; and 4th. As long as he loves the supreme good, he can-not be lost.

not be lost. It is, of course, for each person to apply these prin-ciples to his individual case. If you have doubts about your proper understanding of these principles, it is your duty to seek light for their removal. If yous are convinced that you have this right view of partic-ular dogmas explicable by these principles, I see no-reason why you should be disturbed in the enjoyment of conscientious intellectual freedom, in which the Church protects you. Your mother's anxiety is very natural and proper, as every parent loves her child

Dimilizard by COOVIC

It is also your duty to love her by a proper apprecia-tion of her solicitude. If these few lines shall be of any service to anybody, they are at your disposal to use as you like. If there is something yet not satisfactorily explained, I shall find pleasure in endeavoring to supply the defect. Meanwhile, believe me yours very truly,

LONDON LETTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX:

Sir .- The old and the new countries are now so united that they exercise upon each other a very powerful influence. We catch each other's opinions, and are stirred often by a mutual enthuslasm-for good or for evil.

An instance of this may be seen in the creeping into our literature of an idea which originated in America, relating to the subject of marriage ties.

"Free love," as it is called, though at present very difficult to define, is stealing its way into our books and journals, but not yet with sufficient boldness and definiteness to excite alarm amongst our somewhat sluggish and conservative people. I do not know how widely this new moral heresy may be spreading in America, if indeed it be spreading at all. But I think it will not be unseasonable to make a lond and solemn protest against "free love," in the name of many free thinkers on both sides of the Atlantic.

First, we are all agreed that people who liate each other, and to whom it has become impossible to live together without danger of some tragedy, ought to separate forthwith; and that, if the separation be final, each person should be permitted to marry again, provided a congenial partner can be found.

We are not amongst the number of ecclesiastics and rigid church people who regard matrimony as an inzorable bond, which only death ought to sever, and which is to be endured, at the cost of everything which renders life bearable, to the end of one's life. The law amply provides for separation in such cases by the divorce courts and by mutual agreement. There does not seem any valid objection to permitting persons so separated to marry again, if they please.

But thus far and no farther can we go with the "free lovers." It is difficult to write with becoming patience about their sickly nonsense, and their retrograde views.

The world has been long enough discovering the errors of polygamy and polyandry. The former proved to be fatal to domestic peace and the right rearing and training of children; the latter proved to be contrary to the laws of Nature by being always punished by foul disease. Polygamy is not unnatural to man as a beast ; it is only inimical to his interests as a man. Polyandry, on the other hand, is a physical error branded by Nature's rod as an unpermissible folly.

There is left to us only the alternative of monogamy, which the higher branches of the human race ounce to be best for man as man. Are we, at the bidding of these dreamers, to unlearn all the experience so dearly bought, and to lapse into either of the customs already condemned? For that is what must be the result of this playing with the fire of sexual passion.

To conceal from themselves or from the world the real issue, the advocates of "free love" babble of "pure loves" between persons of opposite sex who are not brothers and sisters, pretending that the attach-ment is to be purely Platonic, etc. They cry out for this as if we had not enough and to spare of such love already-only we generally call it friendship. There are hundreds and thousands of us men and women who are warmly attached to each other in bonds of such friendly affection; some married, some unmarried, their condition in this respect making no possible difference to the degree of their attachment. Now, if this pure love, or friendship as I prefer to call it, is what they want, and only that, then I say they are wasting their foolish breath in demanding what they all have, and we all have, already abundantly. The heart of man long ago found out its varied pow ers of affection, and has exercised them for centuries and centuries to his joy and well-being. We have plenty of this "free love" already, and the agitation professedly designed to promote it is an insane waste of breath and energy. Do Mrs. Woodhull and Dr. Nichols think we are such dolts as not to see through this flimsy disguise? Are we made of cardboard and stuffed with rags, so that we have lost all instincts as sexual beings-not to know the real feelings which lurk behind this cry for "free love"?

The lady herself actually penetrates the holy of holies of the matrimonial temple in her unblushing demands as to the procreation of children; and really she must blame herself, if the world of men and women, with veins full of warm human blood, cannot guess what she is driving at.

It would indeed be going back from all moral conquest into the laxity of the savages to sanction the sort of love-making which these people would demand.

Persons of opposite sex, married or unmarried, would find nature too strong for them, if they went to wooing and cooing, fondling and caressing, as, it must be confessed, is very pleasant to the natural manand woman. We know what this sort of Platonic affection generally ends in, and how often really innocent persons have been pushed over the precipice before they were aware of their danger.

If Mrs. Woodhull demands that every woman shall have the right to choose for the father of her child the man whom she loves best, then, if her husband have wearled or affronted her, she has nothing to do but to become what the good old Bible taught us to call an adulteress ; a person in a state usually considered, by all good men and women, to be foul and degraded. In like manner the husband may leave the wife, who has comforted him all along till age has withered her charms, and betake himself for his own animal pleasure to any young woman he chooses to fancy !

Now this is a step-nay, a wide leap-backwards from the standard of morality already reached. It is hard enough for some of us to preserve our chastity and fidelity, as it is, without being encouraged, in-vited, and besought to lay down our virtue and embrace bestiality as a boon of enlightenment and freedom !

God forbid! Let the creatures who want to sell their nobler part to the gratification of sensual desire do so if they must; but how dare they come forward before a world too little chastened, and polson the air with their nasty theories! For very shame they ought to keep their evil deeds for the darkness of night and the silence of the sepulchre.

It is an outrage on that portion of humanity which has painfully learned the lessons of virtue, and still more painfully obeys them, for adulterers and adulteresses to be glorying in their shame, and making even a new religion of their unbridled lust,

Are we men or are we beasts? Are we to go on in the path of humanity lighted by the stern teachings of history and by the nobler sentiments that make us men, or are we to go backwards and downwards into the mire from which we have escaped, and, dethroning reason, conscience, and affection, to yield ourselves to the wild indulgence of the most imperious of our passions? Will they tell us that this is not what they want? Then I reply, "Out upon ye, we are not fools !"

I am, sir, very truly yours,

CHARLES VOTSEY. CAMDEN HOUSE, Dulwich, S. E., March 14, 1874.

IS IT A "PIOUS FRAUD"

The Ninth Annual Report of the Consumptives' Home, of Boston, bringing the records of that institution down to September 30, 1873, deserves a peculiar notice. Dr. Charles Cullis, its conductor, who publishes this Report, says explicitly: "There is no Fund, Endowment, or known Pecuniary Provision whatever existing for the support of the Home; no human friend of it who has ever made any promise, express or implied, to preserve it or relieve its neces sities; and no person in any way connected with Dr. Cullis who has the control of means sufficient to do more than render small contributions towards its maintenance." Again : "All has been done without any appeal to man for aid, but by simple reliance upon God's word,-in prayer day by day,-many times a day, asking God to fulfil his promises to us." Now Dr. Cullis states that in April last his health began to fail, and goes on to say: "Friends, hearing of my desire to go from home for rest, are sending sums of money for that purpose. It is proposed that I sail for Europe with my wife and daughter."

On May 13, he records receiving "upwards of two hundred dollars" towards his "travelling expenses." On May 15, he wrote: "Over one thousand dollars have been sent me up to this time, and our passages are engaged for the 20th. To-day I have received four thousand dollars, this being part of a legacy left by a lady of this city for the Home, the remainder of which I expect to receive before leaving. Thus is our wonder-working God relieving me from all care, and indicating His will. Only so very near the mo-ment of departure has this help [for the Home, or for Dr. Cullis ?| arrived. But my dear wife, in her careful solicitude for me, has had the strongest faith in this matter, and has made all preparation, though the way seemed dark. She had the assurance that God would give all that we needed," etc., etc. On May 19, he received $2,000 more of this legacy.

and wrote that $1,221.67 would be paid in a few days. After paying various obligations, a balance of $1,059 would remain. The next entry is on September 16, announcing his return from Europe.

Contributed in this way, Dr. Cullis reports a total of $29,153.87 for the year,-all sent by charitable people on behalf of the Home, in response to prayer and without "any appeal to man." Out of this sum, apparently, were paid the expenses of a three months trip to Europe for himself, wife, and daughter.

Now the public ought to know a little more about this wonderful and widely advertised "Work of Faith," so often quoted as an American parallel to George Müller's Orphan Asylum in Bristol, England, which also is declared (notwithstanding the most cunning system of advertising ever practised) to be supported solely by "answers to prayer." We have been informed, on what we consider the best authority, that a few years ago Dr. Cullis married a widow lady who had in her own right $100,000, and that she now receives an income of about $600 a month. Our informant added that he himself paid to Dr. Cullis, soon after his marriage, $12,500 in one cheque on his wife's account.

Read the foregoing unctuous story once more in the light of these statements, and ask yourself whether Dr. Cullis is better cutitled to receive lavish donations from credulous and superstitious dupes, or immediate attention from the police as a getter of money under false pretences.

Literary Hotices.

THE SACRED ANTHOLOGY. A Book of Ethnical Scriptures. Collected and Edited by Moncure D. Con-way. London: Trübner & Co. 1874.

way. London: Tribner & Co. 1874. Here is a book which has long been needed, and one which the "sympathy of religions" was sure to bring. With the exception of a few bits chiefly from the Scandinavian myths, it is an anthology of Asian Scriptures only, i.e., Parsee, Hindu, Buddhist, Chi-nese, Hebrew, and Christian, Arabian (Sabean, end Mohammedan), and the medizval Persian poets. About ninety authorities in all, -the best translations and treatises, -furnish the sources of selection. The passages elect number seven hundred and forty, and are arranged in twenty sections entitled respectively:

About ninety authorities in all, —the best translations and treatises, —furnish the sources of selection. The passages elect number seven hundred and forty, and are arranged in twenty sections entitled respectively: Laws, Religion, Theism, Worship, Wisdom, Super-stition, Knowledge, Ethics of the Intellect, Charity, Love and Friendship, Nature, Man, Character, Con-duct of Life, Humility, Greatness, Justice and Gor-ernment, Action, Sorrow and Death, Sanctions. To say it is the best book of the kind in English is little praise, its forerunners have been so very few. We gratefully welcome the opportunity made so con-venient for tracing the essential unity of moral ideals and of religious feeling in the great ethnic faiths. The ideal man of the different pictures is everywhere nearly the same man. Here are Hebrew, Christian, Buddhist, Chinese, Hindu, and Sabeau versions of the Golden Rule. Persian Mohammedan, Hindu, Buddhist, Chinese, Hindu, and Sabeau versions of the Golden Rule. Persian the nobleness of him who returns Good for Evil. Across the continent, and across six hundred years, Lao Tsze and Jesus eche each other's words about childlikeness and humility. Loyalty to right at all cost is as absolutely affirmed by Confucius, Valmiki, and the Persian poets, as by Paul; and the belief that "the world fights for the righteous man," that "one with God is a majority," resounds again and again from every side. Some fine Hindu passages coutrast the worth of the right deed and the inwardness of real religion with the emplases of its outward observance. The certainty of retribu-tion for evil, and the imperishable record of one's slightest good deed as well, are assured with equal emphasis by Persian, Helrew, Christian, and Moham-medan. It is a Chinese Buddhist who says, "Never will i seek, never receive, private, individual salvation, never enter into final peace alone." It is a Persiaa septic who says, "Far not; they cry that on the last day the dear God will give himself up to wrath. But from goodnessitelf only

The first section, "Laws," contains a ting plant of between the characteristic doctrines of the Sermon on the Mount and the sayings of Talmudic teachers. Is the second, and scattered elsewhere through the book, ooccur many large-minuded utlerances about catholicity in religion; and notably the most teilling are Koranic and Persian. It is not surprising, however, that unpressive in their recognition of the Unknown, Inevitable One, the God in Nature, in us, in all, -the Lore, the Justice, the Reason, the Near Refuge; for, when Theism rises to its highest vision, it necessarily borders on Pantheism. The Hindu, therefore, can give us much for this section, and the Hebrew some grand verses, the Christian and Mohammedan but little, the Chinese and Buddhist hardly anything—or only under a different name. Fine thoughts throng in the sec

signing to Google

176 THELE dently and trustingly self-striving for the Highest. Whittier writes :--

"We search the world for truth; we cull The good, the pure, the beautiful, From graven stone and written seroll, Prom all old flower-fields of the soul; And, weary seckers of the best, We come back laden from our quest, To find that; all the arges said Is in the Book our mothers read."

Not all ; there are emphases and thoughts in which Not all; there are emphases and thoughts in which our Bible falls below what we find elsewhere; but the testimony of a collection like this goes to show that Whittier's words are very largely true. Our Bible, i.e., the Hebrew and Christian sources, furnish thirty per cent. of Conway's extracts, and full forty per cent, of his pages. Next to them he borrows from the Per-sian poets and mystics, who give a quarter part of all the passages. Hindu Scriptures give nineteen per cent.; Arabian, Buddhist, and Chinese about six per cent. each. Yet, in spite of our gratitude for this Antholomy and tent. each. Yet, in spite of our gratitude for this Anthology and of our enjoyment over it, we confess to feeling disap-pointment. No books are so welcome in expectation as books of "Best Things" selected, and few so disap-pointing when received. You feel grateful, but not so freshened as you hoped to be. You are in a muse-am; these are specimens, and you discover that for for one must find his gens in situ, and light on his seen flowers where they grow,—even if this involves plotding over dreary tracts of reading. Keats could hardly have uttered that splendid tribute,—"Things real, — as suns, and stars, and passages of Shak-spenre." If he had only known Shakespeare from Dodd's Beautien. The Bible is not in the Concordance. It is not the fault of Dodd, or Cruden, or the gatherer of an-thologies,—only a fact comcerning herbarti as contrast-ed with the actual "Hower-fields of the soul." But, besides this, our Bible of Bibles, our book grand Yet, in spite of our gratitude for this Anthology and

But, besides this, our Bible of Bibles, our book grand and holy, cannot be gathered together at one or at two trials. Mr. Conway's volume comes with nobler pres-ence than its heralds, but it is itself only a herald of what we need and yet shall have. The arrangement is a very important element in such a book, and the arrangement of this is not so successful as it might be. The leading titles should be more distinctive, and under each section the sentences could be grouped with more telling effect and more convenience for purand under each section the sentences could be grouped with more telling effect and more convenience for pur-poses of reference and comparison. As it is, within a section, we are led confusedly backwards and for-wards from one topic to another, and one religion to another; and three or four of the sections are so mea-gre by themselves, or else so mixed up in their con-tents, that they might advantageously be broken to pieces and distributed under others. As to the mate-rial of the book, the preface tells us that the aim has been to separate the more universal and en-during treasures, contained in ancient Scriptures, from what seemed chiefly local or temporary, from the rust of superstition and the ore of ritual; and that the selections, beyond those from our Bible, are confined to the Scriptures least accessible to Eu-ropean readers. But the sifting might have been made still more thorough with good result. Not all here seems so impressive as to merit a place in the Coming Book. And readers—not deep students, but those who have merely read the common, well-known books on ethnic religions published during the last dozen years—will be disappointed at not finding more bast things as things have been already published. If so, the disappointment is still greater. At best, however, this is but an Asian anthology. Now some one must supplement it with a volume of the highest religious thought of Greece and Rome. Pythagoras, and the Eleatics, the three great dramat-ists. Socrates, Plato, Aristole, Zeno, and Epierus; and then Clerco and the Roman Stoics can certainly be no more spared from our book than Saadi and Omar Khaygam, or even than those elder writing and then Cleero and the Roman Stoles can certainly be no more spared from our book than Saadi and Omar Khaygam, or even than those elder writings whose unknown origin helps them to the title of "Scripture." Indeed, forstatements long and thought-ful in their nobleness, this would probably be the part of our book most often read. What more charming year's work for some little band of friends at leisure-they need not now be scholars, but they must have fine taste — than to gathe" together his second volume; agreeing, first, most carefully upon the plan of topics, then studying each a separate author, and choosing out his supreme utterances, to be submitted to monthly councils of the whole, and tested by the general delight and reverence before admission to the canon. We can best render thanks to Mr. Comway by quot-ing some of his fine passages. They can only be se-lected from the shorter ones. W. C. G.

[The passages referred to will be published in next week's paper.-ED.]

Communications.

THE FOSTER PROTEST.

MY DEAR MR. ABBOT:

question is one that comes close home. The house I live in is the legal property of my wife; ought I to do as Mr. Foster does—take the law into my own hands, and challenge anybody to incur the odium of turning and challenge mybody to incur the odlum of turning me out of doors? Besides, the law gives me "Imperfect protection." The house was entered by thieves last summer, and some valuable things were stolen. Till I read your argument, it had not occurred to me that this might justify resistance to the tax-gatherer. I have always supposed it a citizen's duty to bear his share of the general burdens for the general good. And the "right" of the government to impose them, I consid-er, depends wholly on the fidelity with which the government does its task-mot on the share of power which it puts individually in my hands. I have no quarrel with Mr. Foster. On the con-trary I have a high respect for his character, his past services, and what I presume to be his motives. But I think he makes a great and very mischlevous mistake. Of course I do not censure a man's willingness to suffer, in his own way, for what he thinks a just cause. But the rightness of the act I could not con-cede except on principles which would put any gov-ernment at all out of the question, by making every good man—that is, practically, deery man—the judge in his own case of how far the government does its duty by him, and how much he owes to its support. It was because I was sorry to see THE INDEX ap-auty oy nim, and how much he owes to its support. It was because I was sorry to see THE INDEX ap-parently falling into the current of mischlevous and flagrant nonsense on this subject that I wrote my first note. I am happy to find that the grand-sounding maxim, "Taxation without representation is tyran-ny," whittles down to the harmless proposal that wom-en should be less heavily taxed than men. Yours truly. I H A Yours truly,

J. H. A.

[1. If we are correctly informed, Mr. and Mrs. Foster had a joint ownership in their homestead. Mr. Foster could not pay the taxes on it without paying. them for his wife as well as himself. We consider that he did right not to insist on doing this against her will; for we presume that the protest came originally from her. In Mr. A.'s case, the house he lives in being his wife's, we do not see that he is called upon to do anything about the taxes, in one way or the other; it is for her to pay them or refuse to pay them, as she judges right.

2. It would greatly increase the efficiency of the police system to hold the State liable for individual losses by burglary. It is now liable for destruction of property by mobs; and we see no reason why it should not be equally liable for loss of property by burglars. If every policeman should be promptly discharged within whose beat a case of burglary occurred, the capital invested in the burglar-business would become a very poor investment,-especially if the State also had to make good the loss involved. Meanwhile it is perfectly clear that taxes are not justly. due, unless the protection they pay for is afforded; and we should defend Mr. A. as promptly as we have defended Mrs. Foster, if he saw fit to refuse payment of his taxes on this ground. We see no reason why the State should not be held as strictly to its duty as is the citizen to his,-a principle which Mr. A. does not seem to appreciate at all.

8. Whose fault is It, if injustice by the State leads to protest by the citizen, and consequent disturbance? Is it not the State's? The "mischievous mistake" is that of the party committing the injustice, not that of the party who is stung by it into protest. When moralists are wise enough to preach non-aggression instead of non-resistance, there will be no need of non-resistance at all. Nobody has proposed that every man shall be "judge in his own case" as to his obligations to the government, and vice versa ; an upright and wise judiciary should be the judge recognized by both parties. Such a judiciary would not forget that the State owes something to the citizen in return for the taxes it collects from him.

4. Which of the two opinions is the more "mischievous and flagrant nonsense"-the opinion that the State owes protection in return for taxation, and the opinion that it is "the citizen's duty to bear his share of the general burden for the general good," without asking any impertinent questions as to what return is made by the State for the taxes it exacts we leave to the clear heads of our readers to decide We do not shrink from the comparison.

5. Whether women ought to refuse paying their taxes, or rather a part of them, because they are not allowed to vote, nobody should presume to determine but the women themselves. This must depend on the keenness of their own sense of being wronged. That they are wronged, is evident; that they would be wise in protesting in this way, is doubtful. We must respect the courage and moral convictions of those who do, while we think there are better ways of protesting than this. Nevertheless, if all women should feel the wrong so deeply as to suffer their homes to be sold over their heads rather than submit. does any one doubt that the days of woman's disfranchisement would speedily come to an end? It is the certainty that only a few women would sacrifice so much for their rights, that makes us consider it wiser for the few to pay under protest than to protest without paying, and meanwhile to trust to the power of argument and moral appeal. If they choose voluntarily, however, to suffer, not for the sake of noto-riety, but for the sake of their sisters and the promotion of the common cause, we have only admiration and sympathy to express for their self-sacrifice. The INDEX must stand for the sanctity of individual rights, even against the State, and must treat with profound respect that uncompromising spirit, either in man or woman, which cannot brook to submit voluntarily to a wrong .- ED.]

THE TEMPERANCE BEVIVAL.

THE TERTPERANCE REVIAL. M. EDITOR:— In The INDEX for February 12, under the head of Glimpaes," Is a reference to the women's temper-ance overment in Hillsboro, Ohio, as "the new de-ite for killing intemperance." To those who obtain their information of this wom-or from the fair notices that are usually published in provide the newspapers, your "Glimpse" seems painfully un-just. With the first notice of the work of the "Gra-stand and suppressing intemperance; and that, so fright the influence one mind can exert over anoth-rebend the influence one mind can exert over here influence-mannes and another exerces in that seven bead of the interit than they do for the vices they are destroying, it that vice is the great national curse of intemperance. I had hoped that the success of this movement in Ohio and elsewhere in suppressing intemperance, which has been so generally fairly reported by the press, would have induced you to refer to this reform more fairly; but up to this date, THE INDEE does not point in that direction. C. S. S. GENEFINO. COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 2, 1874.

[When we jotted down the hasty paragraph above censured, we supposed that the Hillsboro manifestation was purely sporadic, an outburst of local revivalism. Since then it has assumed large proportions; although the feature which appeared especially ludicrous, the ringing of the church-bell to inform the women that a prayer had just been concluded in the men's prayer-meeting, does not seem to have been repeated. We are sorry that the satire almed at this preposterous violation of Jesus' command to pray in "the closet," and to "shut the door" at that, should be so totally misunderstood, as if aimed at the sincere desire to reform the great evil of intemperance-an evil so universally recognized that every decent person deplores it.-ED.]

Distretion GOODIC

176

THE MOTE AND THE BRAM. BY C. K. WHIPPLE.

LAWYER.-Full damages must be paid. FARMER.-Did I mention that it was your bull that gored LAWYER.-Oh! that alters the case.

 Printer — Did I menifon that it was your bull that gored more that a liters the case.
 It is asionishing in how many and what various instances the case is "altered" by proprietorship or partisanahip. We all laugh at the lawyer in the fable, but we all imitate his example when our interest, or those of our sect or party, are concerned.
 We had news on March 17 that an American missionary, sent out by a Boston Association to convert the Roman Catholics in a Mexican city, had just been mudred this outrage by a Roman Catholic priest, who advised the extermination of all protestant.
 When the Urauline school and convent, near Boston on August 11, 1834, probably all Roman Catholics attributed this outrage to the stranuous afforts which had been made for some months previously by Rev. Dr. Lyman Beecher, in the principal top Rev. Dr. Lyman Beecher, in the principal top and cities of the Atlantic coast of New England, to represent the Roman Catholic faith, and the schools where it was taught, as any and cities not unnaturally supposed a connection between the outbreak of popular rage against industry by teach the Boston that very Monday even and the repetition of that industry do the connections. operatio operations. In both the cases above mentioned, no doubt, the mob went further than those who had inflamed their prejudices and passions expected or desired. But rage, especially the rage engendered by theological ri-vairy, can no more be restrained within pre-arranged limits, than a barrel of gunpowder can be burned half-way down.

limits, than a barrel of gunpowder can be burned half-way down. Bloody persecution for differences of theological opinion has been often practised both by Catholics and Protestants, and as often disclaimed by each; yet, strange to say, each persists in claiming, as divinely inspired, representations of God himself as having, in former times, commanded men to kill their fellow-men without mercy or pits, aspressly on account of inspired, representations of God himself as having, in former times, commanded men to kill their fellow-men without mercy or pity, expressly on account of differences in religious belief. This year, so far, has been noted for the unusual number and the widespreading influence of "revivals of religion," the managers of which assume, and re-quire their converts to believe, that every portion of the Bible is "the Word of God." Not only is this inslated on as a general proposition, but special em-phasis is sometimes given to passages of Scripture which seem most antagonistic to that view of the re-taion of God to men, and of men to each other, which Jesus taught; though these exhorters claim to be followers and even ambassadors of Jesus. One of the eminent persons who systematically use this method is Rev. A. B. Earle, a professional revivalist of thirty years' atanding, still operating in that capacity (just now in Canandaigna, N. Y.), and still in great request and high repute. From his lips, while he was engineering a revival in Park Street Church, some years ago, I noted down the method of operation now to be described. Two of Mr. Earlo's favorite passages of the Bible, read, when the excitement he has raised has reached its appropriate stage, to prepare for the inculcation of "self-consecration" and of "faith." are narratives

The second secon

TINDEX -- APERIL 9, convert that Jehovah commands him, as an evidence of alth and obedience, to cut the throat of his only of faith and obedience, to cut the throat of his only overts in Park Street Church that Jehovah commanded them to take weapons, and go out and "consecrate hemselves" upon such Unitariams, and Universalists, and Spiritualists as they might meet in the streets of yould utterly have refused, in spite of the example of sinus belief and practice, read to them from the Old Testament as the positive command of the same phovah. The customs of Park Street do not go so far as that. Even when, on the afternoon of Satur (ay, March 6, 1858, in the course of a reviral engi-nered by Mr. Finney, about forty persons assembled of these devout imprecators thought of "com-ofter for these documents of the example of sinus belief and practice, read to them from the Old restament as the positive command of the same far as the positive room and of the same far as the positive room and of the same far as the positive room and of the same far as the theorem of the same target of the same of a street very to pray that God would "re-move" Theodore Parker out, of the way-or else "the forth rib. Times have changed very much ince the Old Testament period. But my point is that, if Mr. Earle or Mr. Finney had chosen to enjoh what he flight rib. Times have changed very much ince the Old Testament period. But my point is that, if Mr. Earle or Mr. Finney have chosen to enjoh would have had precisely the same reason for literal obadience as the Hebrews had for obeying the com-mand of Joshua. Are we to do a cruel and wicked thig because a man in whom we have confidence "ye," and did it; though some of them probably fait apadeince is that God commanded this sort of the doubted Joshua! The recettude of this transac-tion of Joshua. The recettude of this transac-tion of Joshua. The recettude of the stransac-tion fits the divine mission of Joshua. But should pather in God than in the unknown writer of "the post of Joshua"?

IN ANCIENT TIMES

IN ANCHENT TIMES I. Men erected great buildings in which they put immense blocks of stone; each one as large as some modern dwellings. (Bible Dictionary.) II. They had also great agricultural implements; some of their ploughs were so large as to require twenty-four oxen to draw them. (I. Kings, six., 19.) III. They had not only great buildings, and great stones, and great ploughs, but great men and strong men. One of their nould pick up and carry a modern stage-coach with its four horses, passengers, and bag-gage. (Joshua, xvi., 3.) IV. They had great eaters. One man ate so much at one meal that he needed no more food for six weeks. (I. Kings, six., 8.) V. They had great shooters. Some men could shoot with how and arrow, using only one hand. (I. Chronicles, xii., 2.) VI. They had great marksmen. In one town there wret three hundred men that could throw stones with the left hand, and not miss a hair's breadth. (Judges, xx., 10.)

(Judges, xx., 10.) VII. They had great trappers. One man could catch several hundred wild animals in a few days.

VII. They had great trappers. One man could catch several hundred wild animals in a few days. (Judges, zv., 5.)
VIII. They had great stone-throwers. A boy could throw a stone with a velocity greater than that of a rifle-ball. (I. Samuel, xvil., 49; see Omsted's Philosophy, vol. I, page 12, art. 15, ex. 2.)
IX. They had great endurance. Men could live without food or water several weeks in succession. (Deuteronomy, ix., 9, and I. Kings, xix., 8.)
X. They had great fowls. Some could creep, and some had four legs. (Leviticus, xi., 21.)
XI. They had great collections of animals. At one time thousands of them, from all parts of the world, assembled and remained together several months without food or water. (Genesis, vil.)
XII. They had great battles. In one battle one army lost only thirty man; whilst of the other army twenty-five thousand men were killed. (Judges, xx.)
XII. They had great flocks of birds. On one occasion, during a storm, they were beaten down in such rast numbers as to cover the ground to the depth of three feet, and over a surface equivalent to a strip of land skx miles wide and as long as the railroad from New York to Baltimore. (Numbers, xi., 31.)
XV. They had great wealtb. One man had money equal in value to $2,714,525,000, besides 4500 tons of silver. (I. Chronicles, xxii, 14.)
XVII. They were great marchers. At one time several thousand men went to work, and in thirty-six hours dried about sixty millions of mean range more three diverses of the several thousand men went to work, and in thirty-six hours dried about sixty millions of mean wore work and the work and find men went to work, and in thirty-six hours dried about sixty millions of mean mean went hours dried about sixty millions of busiels of meta. (Numbers, xi., 32.) XVII. They were great marchers. At one time a mixed multitude of two millions of men, women, and children, with about two millions of sheep and an im-mense number of cattle, marched twenty-eight miles in about four hours. (Exodus, xiv., 10-24; xiv., 30; xil., 41, 42-51.) Such a procession, in the present day, could not march through a toll-gate in less than a month

a month. XVIII. They had great mothers. Some women had one hundred and eighty children, which is squivalent to bearing children every year for thirty years in suc-cession, and averaging five children at a birth. (Num-bers, xv., 1; ill., 15-29. For the calculation see The Bible in a Balance, page 107, by Rev. J. G. Fish.) Once in a city of 600,000 inhabitants nearly every woman had a sucking child at the same time. (Jo-nah. iv. 2.)

Bible in a Balance, page 107, by Rev. J. G. Fish.)
Once in a city of 600,000 inhabitants nearly every woman had a sucking child at the same time. (Jonat., iv., 2.)
XIX. They had great orators. One man could address the womillions of people. (Exodus, xxxv., 4; Lections, vill., 34, 85.)
X. They were great stutterers. Forty-two thous and me were put to death because they could not concome a certain word. (Judges, xii, 6.)
X. They had great curiosities—beasts and reparted to the same time of the same time. (Jonation of the same time of the same of the same time of the same time of the same of the s

HEAVEN VIA PALESTINE.

<text><section-header>

GOV. PARKER'S MESSAGE to the legislature of New Jersey states the number of children of school age (5 to 18) at 280,444; of whom 170,443 were last year enrolled in the public schools. The number of teachers employed was 3,131, and the schools were open on an average of nine months and thirteen days.

inguased by Google

6	Įd	lveri	fis	em	en	ţż.	2	1
Тп	E	PA	т	R	0 1	A	GI	3 1
of the lil fully soli will be ing page with its jatro generous or "blind tisement to he fra excluded be admit	cited hones s of ' gener urnis which supp '' ad' s, and udule from	for Tr stly m: fue IN al char b to th h shall at also port. T vertise 1 all a	te li de t DEX acte e pu be n wo fo th men dven	In the second se	and, and any property of any any any any	he ad he ad he has he has he has rofits their il imp ack is ts be one.	temp vertis rmony es, and rtising ible to mos prope adver lieved will be	s yi gotr - He
THE IN for any s will in al shelr own	DEX I taten	s acce	ade pt th	by a	dvei	tiser	s, who	r a
	ADY	ERTI	SIN	) R/	TE	5.		g
For 1 t 4 13 4 4 26 4 4 52			-	·n=,	100 8 6 5	per 66 65 64	11ne.

On half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

CIRCULATE! Circulate !! Circufied when your petition is a yard long, unless you have asked every one to sign it. Get good, influential names.

GET EVERYBODY.

Don't neglect to show the petition to any one, because he is a stockholder in some church, or other oxenpited property, as many such persons admit the justlee of the demand; and those who will not should be made to take the responsibility of refloxing to sign it.

Per order of EXEC. COMM. of the BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

(ULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON, has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX,

A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Bational Religion.

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public attenance to the boldcat, most cultivated, and best matered thought of the age on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the social and pulitical amelioration of society.

It is edited by FRANCISE. ABBOT, assisted by ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of Editorial Contributors :-

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newporth R.I. WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverhill, Mass. RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England.

PROF. PRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng. Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX, as the best popular exponent of Religious Liberalism. Every Christian minister, and every thinking church-member, should subscribe for it, as the electrest, most candid, and most scholarly exposition of the differences between Free Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the arguments and the movements which the Church will Bare to meet in the future.

Almost every number contains a discourse or leading article, which alone is worth the price of one year's subscription.

Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a letter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1873, asys: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Religion in the wident sense of the word should be felt in America-that such a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your country.—Is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of se-called religious or theological periodical is, as you know, very large." And later still: "I read the numbers 'of your IN-DEX with increasing interest."

Send $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for three mobiles on trial

Address

THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston,

		_
	GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS	1
l	OF
	LEADING INDEX WEITERS. Including	4
	O. B. FROTHINGHAM,
	T. W. HIGGINSON,
	W. J. POTTER,
ľ	W. H. SPENCER,
	F. W. NEWMAN,
	CHAS. VOYSEY,
	A. W. STEVENS,
	F. E. ABBOT,	11
i.	Are now for sale at the office of THE INDEX, and will be mailed postpaid to any address	1 and will be malled postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 25 cents each; complete Set of Eight Photographs, $1.50.

Address,						THE INDEX,
	1	No.	1 Tr	emon	t Pla	ice,	Bost	ton,	Ma	88,
Ī	N	D	E	х	т	R	A	C	т	8.

No. 1.—Truths for the Times, by F. E. Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Principles." MR. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Specles," says, in a letter to the editor not orignally intended for publication, but subsoquently anthorized to be used: "I have now read 'TRUTHS FOR THE TIMES,' and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 16 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 2.-Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing character of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are worthy of the nineteenth century. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 3.— Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an overwhelming demonstration of the imperfections and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 4.—Christian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Fasts, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5.-""God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the proposed Theological Amendment to the United States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 6.- "The Sabbath," by Parker Fillsbury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 7.-44 Compulsory Education,<sup>99</sup> by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8,-The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that interests everybody. New Edition. Price 6 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

50.9.—The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous character of the attempt to interpolate the Evangelical Christian Greed in the U. S. Constitution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10.- The Impeachment of Christianity, by F. E. Abbet. Fourth Ten Thousand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute U, in packages of from five to one hundred copies.

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12-Is Romaniam Real Christianity? Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies

$1.00. No. 13.-On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Heligion: The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular derivation of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, consistent with alkolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuicy of Religion smong men. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address THE INDEX, I TREMONT FLACE, Roston, Mass.

THE INDEX,

8

7

4.

FREE

A Weekly Journal

FREE RELIGION. PUBLISHED BY THE

INDEX ASSOCIATION,

AT

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. EDITOR:

FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR:

ABRAM WALTER STEVENS. EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS: O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, B.I.

W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.

R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

F. W. NEWMAN, England. CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX alms-

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the individual:

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, bumanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes.

In brief, to hasten the day when Free Religion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclestasticism throughout the world, and when the weifare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the practical object to which THE INDEX is specially devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the purpose of securing the more complete and consistent secularization of the political and educational institutions of the United States. The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberale must make a united demand, and present an unbroken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct ald by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading paper or essay of a thoughtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX. Regular editorial contributions will con-

Regular editorial contributions will continue to be furnished by the well-known eminent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high position. Mr. VOYNEY has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to radical readers. Other interesting correspondence, communications, extracts from valuable books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the country. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Bollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remittances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered letter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case. Address THE INDEX.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

PUBLICATIONS.

OFTES

RELIGIOUS

ASSOCIATION.

Report of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meeting in 1867, at which the Free Heligious Association was Organ-Ized. Containing addresses by 0. B Froitingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucretia Mott Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver Johnson, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Higginson, and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

(This pamphiet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not possess this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meeting, 1869. 50 cents. Contains essays by Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and Restraint in Religion," and by David A. Wasson on "The Relation of Social Science to Religion," and speeches by O. B. Frothingham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wn. Denton, R. W. Zmerson, Mary Grew, (". A. Bartol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outlines of Judaism" by Rabbi Wise.

Proceedings of Third Annual Meeting, 1870. 60 cents. Contains essays by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the Free Religious Association," followed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Religion as a Social Force, especially in relation to Philantbropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religious Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Age," an essay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions." followed by Rabbl Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judaism," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedanism," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Beligions of China," and Wm. J. Potter on "Religions Old and New in India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Toss. Vickers, S. R. Cathrop. Rabbl Wise, and others.

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meeting, 1872. 35 cents. (Four or more, 25 cents each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion as the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Frothingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cells Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C. A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and others.

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meeting, 1873. 35 cents. (Four or more, 25 cents each.) Contains cessays by Samuel Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and by John Weiss on "Heilgion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Dale 'Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longfellow, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lacretia Mott.

Sympathy of Beligions, by T. W. Higginson. 25 cents.

Religions of China, by Wm. H. Channing. 26 cents.

Reason and Revelation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jaz-Parton, 10 cents, singly; package of ten, 00 cents; of one hundred, $3.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1672 is quite limited. Orders by mail may be addressed either "Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Roston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass.

WM. J. POTTER, Sec. F. R. A.

THE INDEX-APRIL 9, 1874.

179

 $T^{1}_{-}$

Google Google

				115
	POPULAR BOOKS,	DESCARTES (RENE.) Discourse on the Method of Rightly conducting the Beason	LEWIN (REV. BAPHAEL, D'C). What is Ju- dalam? or, a Few Words to the Jaws 1.00	The Virginians. Estronu, and Lovel the Widower.
	A SAND BY MAIL	DICKENS Child's History of England 1.50	LONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Poems Portrait	Miscellaneous Writings, Household Edi- uon, Uniform with the Novela, Com-
PUBLICATE CONTRACTOR     PUBLICATE CONTRACTOR       ACTACH CONTRACT TORE FUNCTION        ACTACH CONTRACT TORE FUN		1 SIOD. 5 VOIR., ench.	LOWELL'S (J. R.) Poems, 2 vols 400	This edition includes all the matter in the he-
<ul> <li>Andre F. A. (1994). And the strategy of the strat</li></ul>		Adam Bede. Romola.	The Biglow Papers. First Series 1.50 The Biglow Papers. Second Series 1.59 Amour my Books	complete Thackeray in the market.
<ul> <li>Andrew A. B. Ander M. B. A. S. A. S</li></ul>	PUBLISHERS' PRICES!	Felix Holt, Silas Marner and Scenes of Clerical Life	My Study Windows	<ol> <li>Paris, and Irish Sketch-Books, &amp;c.</li> <li>Suobs, Sketches, Deuls Doval &amp;c.</li> </ol>
<ul> <li>B. STATA DI ALLANDE TORA PORTA DI ALLANDE ALL'ALLANDE ALL'ALL'ALL'ALL'ALL'ALL'ALL'ALL'ALL'ALL</li></ul>	ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.	The Same, Library Edition, 2 vols, 5.50 Mitadlemarch, 2 vols	LUBBOCK (SIR JOHN), Origin of Civiliza- tion, and the Primitive Condition of Man. 2.00 Pre-historic Times	4. Four Georges, Humorists, &c. 5. Catherine, Christmas Books, and Unre- printed Pieces.
J. J. P. 2001. In J. Strategy and J. J. Strategy and J. Strat	NO EXTEA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.	Miscellaries	MACDONALD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's	THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden: or Life in
<ul> <li>Lange and any start of particle is a particle</li></ul>	WY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other	Conduct of Life	MANN (HORACE). The Life of Horace	Excursions in Field and Forest. Portrait. 2.00 The Maine Woods
<ul> <li>And Markel Strands</li> <li>And Markel Markel Strands</li> <li>And Markel Markel Strands</li> <li>And Markel Markel Strands</li> <li>And Markel M</li></ul>	ADTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will		Mann. By his Wife	Lotters 200 A Yaukee in Canada 200
<ul> <li>A. Start M. S. Market M. S. S. Market M. S. S.</li></ul>	be forwarded as promptly as possible ou receipt	Society and Solitude 2.00	Thoughts Selected from the Writings of	A Week on the Concord and Merrimac Rivers
<ul> <li>All And States of THE INFORM</li> <li>All And And And And And And And And And And</li></ul>		EVANS (E. P., Pb. D). First Historical Transformations of Christianity. From		TYLOR (EDWARD B.) The Early Hintery of Mankind. 3.06
<ul> <li>A BAR 35 PATE 199 (ALL ALL WARDER 199 (ALL WARDER 199</li></ul>		Younger. 1.00 The Life and Works of Gotthold Ephratm	The New Affluitles of Faith	VOYSEY (REV. CHARLES.) The Sling and
<ul> <li>Aler of Parket and Construction and Construc</li></ul>		Adolt Staar, 2 vols		the Stone. Vola I. and V., each
<ul> <li>Miller J. Marken and Marken and</li></ul>	Proce. LUOTT (A. BRONSON). Tableta		MERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of the Boman Empire. 1.50 Conversion of the Northern Nations 1.50	Voysey's Defence at York
<ul> <li>Martin Martin Martan Martin Martin Martin Martin Martin Martin Martin Martin Mar</li></ul>	Concord Days. 1.50 Records of # School. A new edition 1.50	FEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation. 3.00	MILL (JOHN STUART.) Dissertations and	a Gartien
Additional Gale       Inter of Financian Gale	ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women. Two	FROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Religion of Hu- manity 1.50	The Examination of the Philosophy of Sir William Hamilton, 2 vols., each	WEISS (JOHN.) American Religion 1.50
International Construction         International Construction <td< td=""><td>Stories and dial</td><td>Gand &amp; Book of Benglon 1.00</td><td>Political Economy, New and revised edi-</td><td></td></td<>	Stories and dial	Gand & Book of Benglon 1.00	Political Economy, New and revised edi-
Anita Stranger of	Liule Mon	FULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works.	The Subjection of Worsen	Escays and Reviews. 2.00 Character and Characteristic Men. 1.00 The Literature of the Age of Edizabeth 1.58
<ul> <li>ALANDER J. ALERTHONY. BRAY IN COLUMN AND ALL AND</li></ul>	Work; A Story of Experience		Aucobiography 125	Washington and the Revolution
<ul> <li>Alexan Processon Research States (Proc. OFFS) Visitions (Proc. OFFS) Visitions</li></ul>	ABNOLD'S (MATTHEW) Essays in Criti-	Vorse by Bayard Taylor. 2 vols. Per vol 5.00 Elective Affinities 1.25	Songs of the Sun Lands 1,50	WHITNEY'S (MRS. A. D. T.) A Summer in Leslie Goldhwaite's Life
<ul> <li>Jackson J. Free Const. J. Starker J. Free Const. J. Stark</li></ul>	New Pooma	Herman and Dorothes. Translated by El-	Species 1.75	Real Folics
<ul> <li>James J. J.</li></ul>	AUERBACH (BERTHOLD). On the Heights. 1.50	len Frothligham 1.00	Boussenu. 2 vola 5.00
<ul> <li>LACKY BARY, MARKEL AND REAL OWNERS AND AND AND AND AND AND AND AND AND AND</li></ul>	Rhine	Literary and Social Judgments	MOULTON (LOUISE CHANDLER.) Bed- Time Stories	Child Life
<ul> <li>Januar Protecting and Hubber 7 (1)</li> <li>Januar Martin V, Franzisson M, Ville M, Karaka M, Karak</li></ul>		nments, Private Memoranda, and Original	MUELLER (MAX, M.A.) Lectores on the Science of Language, First Series	-
<ul> <li>Marting Jack Processing and Multiper of Lange Processing Procesi</li></ul>		Mrs. Grote. Second Edition. With Por-	Chips from a German Workshop. Vol. I. Easays on the Science of Religion. Vol.	ADDRESS:
<ul> <li>Linkelser, Third at the Market of Lange of L</li></ul>			and Customs, Vol. III. Essays on Lit-
<ul> <li>The Table State of the State of</li></ul>	Moral Science: A Compendium of Ethics. 1.75	Thoughts about AFt	Three vols. Frice per volume	THE INDEX.
ARTICLEY Family Carbon of the sector of the	tion. 1 701	The Intellectual Life 2.00	NASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Hound the Cirkle
<ul> <li>James J. et al. Latron J. The Barbon J. Sector J. Sec</li></ul>	BABTLETT'S Familiar Quotations 3.00	HAMILTON (GAIL). Child World. Part Sec-	NEWMAN (FRANCIS W.) A History of the	1. Tremont Place, Boston,
<ul> <li>ang of Links Tens. And States and Associations of National States and State</li></ul>	BARTOL (BEV. C. A). Endical Problems 2.08 The Rising Faith	DA MITTINN'S Lasturas	Hebrew Monarchy. 4.00 Phases of Faith; or, Passages from the History of my Greed. 2.00	TTALE HOUR DEODEATIONS
ard Last of Line of your of Units of Your Your of Your Your of Your of Your Your of Your of Your		1. Metaphysical Lectures	of the Future, as the Organization of	HALF-HOUR RECREATIONS
Administration Control and Statistics Transmission Control and Statistics Transmissing Transmission Contro	BIBLE in the Public Schools. Records, Arguments, and Decision in the ense of John D. Minor et al. es. the Board	HAWTHORNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works. New Illustrated Library Edition. Nine vols. Per vol. 2.00	Philanthropy. 1.75 Thelam. Doctrinal and Practical. 4.25 The Religious Weakness of Frotestantism. 25	-13-
Approximate Number 10, marked and Kraig and		Mosses from an Old Manse. The Scarlet Letter, and The Büthedale	PARTER (THEODORE) A Discourse of	POPHIAR SCIENCE
<ul> <li>Address and P. J. State and P. J.</li></ul>	Arguments of Ramsey, Sage and King in favor of the use of the Bible	The House of the Seven Gables, and The	Matters Pertaining to Heligion	OT OTAL BOTENOL.
AUXING WE ALLESS TORMAND, THE STRUCT STATUS         The STRUCT STRUCT STRUCT STATUS         The STRUCT STRUC	The Opinion and Decision of the Supreme	The English Nota-Books.	Additional Speeches, Addresses, and Occa- sional Sermons, 2 vols	EDITED BY DANA ESTES.
ACCOUNTS Proce and Mattern       Targe Title in Slick Regimest       150         ACCOUNT HEAVENT TORALS, International Section Constructional Regiment Rest Rest Sciences, Status discovers,	SROOKS (CHARLES T.) Translations. The	The French and Italian Note-Books.	Historic Americans,-Franklin, Washing- ton, Adams, and Jefferson. With an In-	The growing demand in this country for
Cited (Desc) First Tribles (Desc)       Dispersion	The World-Priset	HIGGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Papers 1.50 Malbone. An Oldport Bomance 1.50	The Trial of Theodore Parker for the Mis- demeanor of a Speech in Fancuil Hall	itor and publishers to issue this series of pa-
Continuing E genand and Prance, Spenn were disk support       DVWELLSY (WILLAM D.) The Induity       The Induity       Description       Descri			Begainst Kidnapping; with the Defence 1.30 The two Unristmas CelebrationsA.D. I. and MDCCCLV. A Christmas Story
<ul> <li>BECKLY &amp; Description.</li> <li>BECKLY &amp; Description.</li> <li>CHALLER Y Write. Charge definition. Strong. Friedmann.</li> <li>CHALLER Y Write. Charge definition. Strong. Friedmann.</li> <li>CHARGE Y Write. Charge definition. Strong. Friedmann.</li> <li>CHARGE Y Write. Charge definition.</li> <li>CHARGE Y Write.</li> <li>CH</li></ul>	Civilization in England and France, Spain and Scutland. New edition of the entire	HOWELLS'S (WILLIAM D) Their Wed-	PARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The Infinite	25 cts. per Part; $2.50 for twelve consecutive
Aubs. Aubs. Also Series Journals.       Aubs. Also Series Journals.       No. 1. STRANGE Discovering and se	SUCKLE'S Essays; with a Blography of the	Venetian Life	PUTTIES'S (FLIZARETH STUART.) The
<ul> <li>Bajub Rilberig: Missillarous Sassyr, J. Vola, Vila, V</li></ul>	Auber. Fice portrait	A Chance Acquaintance 1.40	The Trotty Book	NO.1. STRANGE DISCOVERIES RESPECTING THE AURORA AND BECENT SOLAR RESEARCHES.
<ul> <li>CERVATES' Dan Quixote</li></ul>	ing the following: Miscollaneous Essays, 7 role.; French Revolution, 3 vols.; Freder-	Translated from the German. 2 vols., with three portraits	The Rilent Partner
<ul> <li>CERVATES' Dan Quixote</li></ul>	ac., 5 vols.; Sartor Resartus, 1 vol.; John Sterling, 1 vol.; Life of Schiller, 1 vol.; Past	HUNT'S (MRS. HELEN). Verses	PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por-	No. 2. THE CRANIAL APPINITIES OF MAR AND THE APE. By Prof. Rudolph Virchow,
<ul> <li>CERANTES' Dan Quixote</li></ul>	ship, I vol.; Latter Day Pamphiets, I vol. Any volume sold separately, 1 vols, Lon-		ROSSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of	of Berlin, author of Cellular Pathology.
CIANNO (WA. ELLERY, D.D.). The Per- periate of the analysis of constitution of the general point of the general po	The second	A Manual of the Anstomy of Variabrated	SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its	No. 8. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and
Tree Manuscripts by his noghiew, Win.       SCIENCE PRIMERS:       SCIENCE PR	CHANNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D). The Per-	Animals	the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies	its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col-
GUENCY MERS, E. D., Pattence, A. Bortes       The Lour & OLEAN Procession of the Section of The Sectin Section of The Section of The Secting of Th	from his manuscripts by his nephew, Wm. Baury Channing	INGELOW'S (JEAN) Poema	SCIENCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory. By Prof. Haxley, F.B.S50	No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERIES,
CHERTY (HER. E. D., Patiences, A. Bortas       Ing.       Ing. <td< td=""><td>CHANNING (WM. ELLERY). Thoreau: The Post Naturalist. With Memorial Verse, 2.00</td><td>Songs of Seven</td><td>2. Chemistry. By Prol. Roscos</td><td>showing its Application in Microscopic Re-</td></td<>	CHANNING (WM. ELLERY). Thoreau: The Post Naturalist. With Memorial Verse, 2.00	Songs of Seven	2. Chemistry. By Prol. Roscos	showing its Application in Microscopic Re-
Participand       Provide       Provide <td>CHEVET (Mps P D) Declamon &amp; Sector</td> <td>lige</td> <td></td> <td>Constitution and Movements of the Heav-</td>	CHEVET (Mps P D) Declamon & Sector	lige		Constitution and Movements of the Heav-
Barrad & ARIS F REXEMAN). Ton Great Common-Same in Beligion.       2.00         Common-Same in Beligion.       2.00         Control & Barrow Same in Beligion.       2.00         Control & Spirit of Barrow Same in Beligi	Social Games. A new Series of Games for Parties, uniform with Particues. 1.00 Sair Williams the Monstein City, 1100	Berlet	SCOTT'S Waverley Novels. 25 vols	Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and oth-
Chamber Sames in Heigigon         Conditions         Conditions         Constrained         Constraine	Standbarterstanterstanterstanterstanterstanterstanters 1.30		SPENCER (HERBERT.) Education, Intel-	the second
CLARKE (Dr. E. H.) Sex in Education	Seligions 2.00 Gamon-Sense in Beligion 2.00	JERROLD (DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr. Claude's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers. 1.59	lectual, Moral, and Physical. 128 First Principles 2.50 Fort Mark Political and Sathatic 2.50
<ul> <li>Indig of Expositions by Growe, Heim- bit, Ways, Tersais, Liebig and Carpen- bit, Ways, Ways, Tersais, Liebig and Carpen- bit, Ways, Ways, Ways, Ways, Strang, Carpen- bit, Ways, Carpen- bit, Carpen- bit,</li></ul>	CLARKE (Dr. E. H.) Sez in Education 1.25	and their Relation to Universal fieligion.	Illustrations of Universal Progress. A Se- lection of his best Papers. 2.50	No. 6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN
<ul> <li>Indig of Expositions by Growe, Heim- bit, Ways, Tersais, Liebig and Carpen- bit, Ways, Ways, Tersais, Liebig and Carpen- bit, Ways, Ways, Ways, Ways, Strang, Carpen- bit, Ways, Carpen- bit, Carpen- bit,</li></ul>	and Old, of Ethical and Social Subjects. 3,00		Social Statics; or, The Conducts Essen- tial to Human Happiness Specified, and the First of them Developed	ter, author of The Microscope and its Reve-
<ul> <li>Indig of Expositions by Growe, Heim- bit, Ways, Tersais, Liebig and Carpen- bit, Ways, Ways, Tersais, Liebig and Carpen- bit, Ways, Ways, Ways, Ways, Strang, Carpen- bit, Ways, Carpen- bit, Carpen- bit,</li></ul>	Pogrimage. 3.75		The Principles of Fiology. 2 vols	lations, Ihiman Physiology, etc.
DALL/WEB, CAROLINE H). The Colloge, Beladyon to Zuboation, Exc. Sec. No. 9.       FERR (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities. Poense, Patriotic, 8 of times into.       500       Solution - Politicus.       525         No. 9.       THE CIBOULATION OF THE WATERS Faisbon to Zuboation.       Solution.       500       Solution.       500         Haiorical Pictures.       2.00       ECCNY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and Induced and the Low.       Stowe (HARRIET BEECHER.) Pink and While Vyramy.       No. 9.       THE CIBOULATION OF THE WATERS THE FACE OF THE EARTH. By Prof. H.         Maiorical Pictures.       1.00       EUCOPS (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and Induced and the Low.       1.00       No. 9.       THE SACE OF THE EARTH. By Prof. H.         Mission to Zimpson donce and Ethics       2.00       No. 9.       THE SACE OF THE EARTH. By Prof. H.         Mission to Zimpson donce and Ethics       2.00       No. 9.       THE SACE OF THE EARTH. By Prof. H.         Mission to Zimpson donce and Ethics       2.00       No. 10.       THE SACE OF THE EARTH. By Prof. H.         Mission to Zimpson donce and Ethics       2.00       No. 10.       THE SACE OF THE EARTH. By Prof. H.         Mission to Zimpson donce and Ethics       2.00       No. 10.       THE SACE OF THE EARTH. By Prof. H.         Mission to Zimpson donce and Ethics       1.00       No. 10.       THE SACE OF THE EARTH. By Prof. H.         Mission to Zim	A wrise of Expositions by Grove, Helm-	lated into English, with Analysis and Intro- ductions by B. Jowett, M.A., Master of	Recent Discussions in Science, Philosophy, and Morals, New and enlarged edition., 2.00	Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of DALL/NE. ALL/INE H). The College, Belaford, All when Corrections       See String Control of String Contrel of String Contrel of String Control of String Control of Strin	Toumans, M.D. 1 vol.	Ballioi College, Oxford, and Regius Pro- fessor of Greek. Four vols	Sociology	No. 8. ON YEAST. By Prof. Huxley, F.R.S.
Haining Pictures Retouched; s Volume       Induced of the spirit of induced under the spirit of induce	BALL, MES. CAROLINE H). The College, the Market, and the Court; or. Woman's	RERR (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities, Poems, Patriouc, Sentimental and Humprous 2.00	ologico-Politicus	No. 9. THE CIBOULATION OF THE WATERS ON Allocial Pictures Retouched; a Volume       European Moreis from Augure       Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       No. 10. THE STONE AGE, PAST AND PRESE         Stratus (Life and Feedback       No. 10. THE STONE AGE, PAST AND PRESE         Stratus (Life and Feedback       No. 10. THE STONE AGE, PAST AND PRESE         Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       No. 10. THE STONE AGE, PAST AND PRESE         Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       No. 11. THE STONE AGE, PAST AND PRESE         Stratus (Life and Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       No. 11. THE STONE AGE, PAST AND PRESE         Stratus (Life and Stratus (Life and Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedback       No. 11. THE STONE AGE, PAST AND PRESE         Stratus (Life and Stratus (Life and Stratus (Life and Feedback       Stratus (Life and Feedb	Research to Education, Employment, and 2.69	LECKY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and	STOWE (HARRIET BEECHER.) Pink and White Tyranny. 1.50 Uncle Tom's Cabin. 2.00	Dove.
HWWN Yordgin of Bpeckes       2.00         Div Decentor Man, 2 vols       2.00         Superspiciology of Common Life, 2 vols, 1.00       TEXN YSON'S (& DFRED) Forms         The Decentor Man, 2 vols       4.00         To be seen the section of Man and the Low - The New comes       1.00         The New comes       1.00         The New comes       1.00         The New comes       1.00	of Miscellanics. In two parts. Part L.	History of European Morais from Augus- tus to Charlemague, 2 vols	alam ( man in my my min Ald Eatth and the	No. 10. THE STONE AGE, PAST AND PRESENT. By Edward B. Tylor, author of Primilies
Its With's Origin of Epocles	a Fractical Illustration of "Woman's	LEOGE'S Confucius' Life and Teachings 4.00 Confucius and Chinese Classics	Mon	Culture.
The Manake	The Days Origin of Species	LEWES' Physiology of Common Life. 2 vois. 1.00 Biographical History of Philosophy, from	TENNYSON'S (ALFRED) Poems 1.70	AND FORCE. By Prof. John H. Tice, of St.
The Variation of a Crewid		Problems of Life and Mind. The Founda-	Edition. Complete in 6 volumes. Per vol., 120 Vanity Fair.	and the second se
Augesteauon, 2 vols., Mustrated 5.00 LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life, 1.50 Pendennis.	Demostication of Animals and Plants ander	tions of a Creed		For sale by THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

THE INDEX
A FEW COPIES ONLY	BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.	$25 per day free.
Of an excellent Photograph (Cabinet Size) of Rev. MUNCURE D. CONWAY, of London, can be had at the office of THE INDEX. Frico 50 cents.	Our organization some time since decided to di- rect its efforts for the present towards accuring	NONPAREI Drug, and Hau Sizes. Also Cottor ed pamphiets free.
FREE DISCUSSION	the	J. SEDGE
is beld at HOSPYTAILER HALL, 553 Washing- ton Street, Bonton, every Sunday, at 105, A.M., 254 and 74, P.M. All that relates to the Religious, Political, and Social interests of mankind consti- tute the aubjects for discussion. The INVEX and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Unentializer Hall.	Repeal of the Laws	TO NE
tute the subjects for decusion. This is our and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Hospitaller Hall.	whereby church and other corporate property is unjustly exempted from its share of the burden	PUBL Having convenie
THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873.	of taxation. As a means to this end, we have published for	newspaper printin should like to cont or for composition
The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of $3, by express, at the purchaser's expense. A complete file for	general circulation several thousand copies of a T R A C T	for one or more we Beat of referenc work guaranteed.
the year can be furnished in no other form. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr.	G. L. HEI
TO BOOK-BUYERS.	Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 27. The edition was made as large as our funds	BAN
Please examine the revised list of POPU- LAR BOOKS on the opposite side of this pare. Any OBTAINARLE BOOK NOT IN THIS LIST will be furnished to order.	would allow; but, so great has been the demand, It is siready nearly exhausted.	LER Money invested term of years, on chase English, German, or French Books, or	Our next edition ought to be large enough to	farine, at 12 per o payable semi-ar.n ample security gus who wish for information as to the price, sic.,	place a copy in the hands of , EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE,	abstract of title ar by borrower. We part of the United their orders promptly filled and their inqui- ries answered by addressing THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.		REFERENCES
COLE'S	and generously to supply the calls for them in other States. To do this, we need funds; for, although we	kee, Wis.; City Na Allen, Stevens & City; Morris Altm
BAKING POWDER.	have made arrangements for printing the Tract at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston	REAL EST
(Warranted Best in Market.)	League, with its various other expenses, to bear	Investments in
All goods sold can be returned at my ex- pense, if not as represented. Goods deliv- ered free of freight, and ten days' trial be-	the entire expense slone. Will not, then,	if judiciously mad modes of empl
fore payment. ALEXANDER COLE.	All Friends of the Movement	Real Estate
BUFFALO, N.Y., P.O. BOX 2049.	come forward and help us with liberal donations ?	ERNST PRUSSIN
THE REFORMATOR. A WEEBLY JOURNAL,	We frequently receive communications from parties wishing tracts to distribute, saking how	Chicago Guarantees perfec
For the dissemination of useful knowledge, and the enlightenment of the people	much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we	in all its Real Esta Firstclass securi terest and princip
on political, religious, and so- cial subjects, with a view to reform.	shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will	Real Estate Invest or on shares; taxe Orders of capita ers respectfully so
Published in the German language ev- ery Saturday, at Adrian, Mich.	circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circu- ating them gratuitously throughout the country.	REASONS
Principal office at Adriau, Mich., to which	To many of the subscribers of THE INDEE and others whose names have been furnished us	EUREKA
all letters and communications must be ad- dressed.	as probable friends of the movement, copies of the Tract, together with Petitions asking the re-	It is full lengt
C. LOHMANN & SON, Pub's. C. LOHMANN, EDITOR.	peal of the Exemption Laws, have been sant,	smooth and adapted to ha
The REFORMATOR circulates in all the prin-	With the Hope	Many kinds of cipal cities and villages in the United States and Territories, and presents an excellent		fraud, being not a much finer size i to be, and of so pe
medium for advertising. Terms of Subscription-$2 per annum. Ad-	that such friends will try to secure as many sig natures to the petition as possible in their locality	for use. The ladi vertisements inserted at liberal rates. Sub- scription and advertisements must be paid in	We respectfully ask these who are unable to at- tend to the matter themselves to place the peti-	reka Silk exactly spool is warranted tions in the hands of those who will,

need of our power.

can be accompliated Address

Per order of the EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

done NOW!

We would say, also that we feel deeply the

Other Organizations

in this State, to cooperate with us in securing equality and justice, by preasing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are

Form a Liberal League.

we are ready to render such assistance as lies to

LIBERALSI

If all will unite and work, the results sought

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

those who are inclined to ingham. With Hellotype Fortrait. I vol. svo. $3.00. An exceedingly interesting memorial of a very remarkable man-one of the striking fgures in American listory. Mr. Frothing-am has given a large number of Parker's netters and journals not previously published; be has written in the light reflected upon Parker's words and efforts by the momentous svents of the last fitteen years, which have brought out in hold relief the asgacity, wis-dom, and herolsm of Theodore Parker's es-reer; and he has written so candidly, and with so profound an appreciation of Parker's characteristic qualities, that his book is of surpassing interest. The New Yong Thisurs closes a four and half column review of this hold by saying: "Data maininges whose form and lineaments can be studied with equal advantage by friend and foe." fore paymen BUFFALO, 1 ТНЕ Sent, postage prepaid, on receipt of price A 11 THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston. For the disse and the s HAPTERS on po

Published ory Ball

U T S Ó B M USIC BOOKS! THEODORE PARKER. Oliver Ditson & Co., during repairs of their buil t-ing injured by firs, will occupy store No. 25 Mash-i gion Street, where they have, as usual, for sale a wery large stock of the sets and most popular Music Books; among them :-BT SIDNEY H. MORSE.

Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi-poise, breathe through the clay; the artist has so filled his own heart with appreciation of that noile life that he has been able cup-ningly to model it into those delicate times which the character had wrought on the liy-ing fibre. We are tempted to exclaim, as we stand beside it, as the old artist did to his perfected work, "Speak then!"-Hannah E. Stevenson.

The oper, though but of clay, are gleaming with possible indignation, with possible tears the lips are set firm with the resolution of him who, like Paul, could "fight a good fight" as well as "give a reason."—Samuel Longfel-ion.

The first time I have seen Theodore Parker since he died .- Wm. Sparrell.

The best representation of Mr. Parker ever executed in clay.-Boston Daily Globe.

S. H. MORSE, Room 13, 25 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass. guaranteed using our UGER and Drills. Catalogue . W. GILES, St. Louis, Mo.

L Farm Feed, Bone, ad-grinding MILLS. Ten -Seed Hullers. Hustrat-Address BEER, Painesville, Ohio.

WSPAPER

ISHERS.

ences for doing the best of g at reasonable prices, I tract for composition alone, o, press.work, aud mailing, eekly papers. eekly papers. GEO. H. ELLIS, 7 Tremont Place, Boston.

NDERSON & CO.,

KERS.

IOY. MINN.

1 on short time, or for a unincumbered improved cent. Interest per annum, unily. Perfect title and aranteed. All expenses for nd recording mortgace paid collect and remit to any 4 States free of charge.

d States free of charge. First National Bank, Me-rst National Bank, Austin, a National Bank, Milwau-tional Bank, Chicago, III.; Co., Bankers, New York

ATE SECURITIES, 10 per cent. interes

Real Estate in Chicage d vicinity, ie, are the best and safest loying capital. The old and Loan Agency OF

G, 143 RANDOLPH STREET (Established 1853),

t title and ample security ate Loans. ities always on hand. In-al collected without charge, ments made on commission ments made on commission es paid, &c. dists and real estate own-blicited.

FOR USING THE

SPOOL SILK.

h. It is fall size. It is elastic, and is equally and or machine use.

spool silk are a perfect only shorter in length, but than they are represented oor a quality as to be unit es will always find the Eo-, as represented. Every , and the manufacturer's randed on every spool. Call for it.

ONLY TEN SETS!

All the bound copies of the FIRST VOL-UME of THE INDEX (1870) which were on sale at the Office of the Association in Toledo were sold very soon after they were advertised. FIVE DOLLARS have since been paid for a single copy obtained by special advertisement. The Association have just come into possession of Ten Copies of this first volume, and now offer

TEN COMPLETE SETS

of THE INDEX, including the first, second, third, and fourth volumes (1870, 1871, 1872, 1873), at the low price of

Only Ten Dollars a Set.

Persons wishing to possess a complete file of THE INDEX, whether for its intrinsic or historical value, will do well to send their orders without delay. The First Volume will

NOT BE SOLD SEPARATELY.

The four volumes will be sent in one package, by express, at the cost of the purchaser. THE INDEX, Address 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

Munical Treasure, Vocal and Instru-Wreath of Gema. Vocal. Shower of Pearls. The Best Vocal Ducts. Sitevenson. All the characteristics of my husband are in the bust,—bis greatness, his goodness, his renderness, his love. You cannot give life to clay or marble; but you can represent it, and this Mr. Morre has done.—Lydia D. Parker to Hannah E. Stevenson. Capital collections. Two bundred large pages, popular pieces, a great deal of music for a little money.

The face is strong and noble as it should be. The likeness is good.—Boston Daily Advertiser, r ne nikeness is good.—Hoston Daily Advertiser, Nothing appears for beauty alone, or finish, or to show the vanity of the artist. All is forgotten in the man—the true, real, Yankee man, Theodore Parker.—L. S. H. in the Golden Age.

Copies of this Bust, finely finished p plascopies of this Bust, nhely inished a plas-ter, $10 each. Boxing for transportation, $1 extra. Freight or expressage paid by party sending order. Weight of box about fifty pounds. Orders may be sent to advance.

The Bible of the Ages. FOURTEEN CHAPTERS. Selected from Hindu Vedas, Buddha, Con-fuctus, Egyptian Divine Pymander, Zoroas-ter, Talmuds, Bible, Plato, Pythagorae, Mar-ter, Talmuds, Bible, Plato, Pythagorae, Mar-ter, Januds, Bible, Plato, Pythagorae, Mar-tens, Penn, Adam Clarke, Mary Fletcher, F. W. Newman, Tyndail, Max Müller, Ellas Hicks, Channing, Garrison, H. C. Wright, Lu-eretis Mott, Higzinson, T. Starr King, Bush-sell, Parker, Davis, Einmas Hardinge, Emer-son, Denton, Tuttle, Abbot, Frothingham, and others. C. LOHM C. The REFOR cipal cities and and Territor spels and Inspirations from me Centuries and Peoples. "Slowly the Bible of the race is writ, Each age, each kindred, adds a verse to it."

Let us F BOLL UP THE LIST! Let our united voices be heard! And let it be

mannen, Google

Brygs of LIFE. Best Sabbath-school Song Book.

American Tune Book.

Price $1.50, or $13.50 per doz. Has one thou-sand Tunes and Anthems, not new, but se-bected as the favorites from all prominent Church Music Books published during the hast half century.

Father Kemp's Old Folks' Tunes. Enlarged. $4 per doz.

WINNER'S NEW SCHOOLS.

For Plans, Cabinet Organ, Melodeon. Guitar, Ban-For Plans, Crahinet Organ, Melodeon. Guitar, Ban-Flageoitt. These convenient books cost but 75 cents each, and are concise, simple methods, with barge quantities of pleasing airs for practice. Bent post-paid, on receipt of retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO..

CHARLES H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York,

scription and Four hundred pages; bound in cloth; price $1.50. No Extra Charye for Postage. Address THE INDEX. No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

BUND: VOLUMES OF THE Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.60, $2.-bo, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and there articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive real-ing wenty years bence as to-day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of bases volumes. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston. тов

180

Address

Address

C

WANTED, by a middle-aged Ger-

YT man man, a situation in work in a store or effice, for a small compensation. Best references and scourity given. Flease address P. K., INDEX Office, No. I Tremont Place, Boston.

A CHEAP OFFER!

A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACTS,

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Ma

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE

JUST PUBLISHED. THEODORE PARKER: Biography. By Octavius Brooks Froth-ingham. With Heliotype Portrait. I vol. 8vo. $3.00.

FROM

The Bible of the Ages.

Edited and Compiled by GILES B. STEBBINS.

THREE

CHOICE VOLUMES OF BOUND MUSIC.

Frice of each Book : Boards, $2.50; Cloth, $3; Gilt, $4.

THE INDEX.

THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed to any address on the prepayment of 75 CENTS.

BAK

(Was

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 1874.

Index.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

WHOLE NO. 225.

VOLUME 5.

われ

ORGANIZE! For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT : PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE

FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CON-STITUTION.

ARTICLEL

ABTICLE 1. BECTION 1.—CONFREME shall make no law respecting an es-sablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or abridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to potition the Gov-ernment for a redress of grievances. BECTION 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting an setablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to potition the Government for a redress of grievances. No religious a qualification to any office or public trast, in any Bitare; and no person shall ever in any State be deprived of any of the or her rights, privileges, or capacities, or disqualified for the performance of any public or private duty, or ren-dered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or requirity, in consequence of any public or she may hold on the subject of religion. BECTION 2.—CONGREMENT.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

BT A. W. S.

THE STOCKING of the Republican party seems to be un-ravelling. See New Hampshire and Connecticut.

THE Christian Union thinks that Rev. O. B. Frothingham is "at the very top and maturity of his brilliant faculties."

THE NEXT MEETING of the Second Radical Club will be held at the house of Rev. Dr. Bartol, 17 Chestnut Street, next Monday evening, April 20. Essay by Dr. Bartol.

LORD RECTOR BALPE WALDO EMERSON! What a title is that for the wise' but modest man of Concord to stagger under! And yet the Glasgow University wishes him to assame It.

A FAVORITE song with the Ohio temperance women is "Shall we gather at the river?" This is certainly sug-gestive of the element they desire to substitute for "strong drink."

WALT WRITMAN, says the New York Tribune, has been invited to deliver the Biennial-Commencement poem at Tuft's College, next June; and he has promised to do so, unless prevented by llincss.

INSPIRATION best comes to a man, not through conformity, but through non-conformity. In following others we lose ourselves; it is only when we come to ourselves that we come to God, and truth, and the deepest experiences

MRS. A. G. WOOLSON read a paper full of earnest and beautiful thought, on "Dress Reform," before the Second Radical Club, last Monday evening. Dr. Bartol, Mrs. Zina Fay Pierce, Mrs. Mary Safford Blake, Miss Hotchkiss, and others followed in an interesting discussion.

MRS. MARY LIVERMORE has had one vote for senator in the Massachusetts Legislature. We think that Mrs. Livermore would by no means appear to disadvantage in the United States Senate. In most of the matters which that body has to consider, she would be the peer (or the peeress) of any man in it.

WHEN SMARTING under pain and a sense of disappoin >ment, Theodore Parker said, resignedly: "I think 'cla-cumstances' are wiser than I; certainly stronger." The wisdom of "circumstances" (God) ought not to be more uncertain than their might ; for lf they are only strong, then tyranny is enthroned at the centre of the universe!

THE ICELANDERS are to celebrate, on the second day of August next, the thousandth anniversary of the settle-ment of their island; also their entrance upon a freer political life under the new Constitution and local Self Government just granted to them by the King of Denmark. May their hearts be as warm and peaceful as their climate is cold and tempestuous!

THE NEW Free Religious Society in Providence, R. I., is making excellent progress. They have had regular Sunday services since they began, on the 22d of February, with such men as Gannett, Abbot, Henry James, Sr., Longfellow, Higginson, and Weiss to speak to them; and now they have good singing as well as good speaking. One of their number writes: "We have good reason to thank the God in us for our prosperity so far."

IN THE April number of Lippincott's Magazine, Adolphus Trollope, speaking of the religious opinions of Walter Savage Landor, says: "I do not besitate to say that Landor was no believer in any of the creeds which are founded on the belief in a written revelation.... I remember to have seen many years ago-a long time be-fore I had ever known him-a long letter from him in which he maintained the superiority of the old classical psganism to any of the forms of faith which have super-seded it."

GEORGE RIPLEY (we anspect it is he), in the New York Tribune, speaks of Mr. Emerson as "the first philosopher who was at once the creature and exponent of the life of the New World-an American of the Americans-whose thoughts were based on books as those of other scholars, hose vision and utterances dealt solely with human but v ity. In the congress of nations, if Plato should be chosen to represent the Greek, Jean Paul the German, or Voltaire become the typical Frenchman, then Emerson would be the American per se, and unmistakably. Not, of course, in personal character, but as the embodiment of our higher drift of thought and its aim."

THE NEW YORK Tribune, speaking of R. W. Emerson, says: "In this swarming American life, made up of every race, creed, and habit under the sun, he sits spart and quist, and now and then gives us his message. It reaches the profoundest depths of each man's conscioneness; it touches every practical detail of his every-day life." This is sublimely true. And we believe that Mr. Emerson, though he has seldom gone on to platforms except to lecture, and never manipulated the machinery of conventions, is yet one of the greatest reformers this country ever has produced. He has sliently sown his grand ideas in faith as grand, and they have been the regeneration and inspiration of many.

THE IRISH claim that they are one hundred and fifty thousand strong in the present population of Boston; and the chairman of the Charitable Irish Society of this city, on St. Patrick's day, said that they are also "one-third of the population of the Old Bay State, and, if we can judge anything by statistics, New England would soon be unpeopled were it not for the virtue, fidelity, and purity of the Irish mothers." On this basis of facts, the same orator concludes that "the sceptre is to fall from the descendants of the May Flower to unlineal hands, and the Celtic supersede the Saxon element even on the Rock of Plymouth." It is to be remembered, however, that the Irish born and educated in this country are not the Irish of Ireland; they are both less Irish and less Catholic. And if our citizens but become imbued at last with the true American ides, what matters it of what stock they come? We must not forget that "our country is the world, and our countrymen are all mankind."

A MEGRO, in Georgia, bet ten dollars that George Washington commanded the Union troops at the battle of Bull Ran. After due investigation into the history of that little affair, it was decided that the misguided African had lost his more; but in paying it over he asdly yet sagely declared: "Well, dis yer hist'ry binness is all mired up anyway." He probably had in mind the some-what recent extinction of William Tell and Pocahontas. But now a still more modern confirmation of the "mixed" character of the "hist'ry bizness" has turned up. A Mr. Thomas Jones, of Illinois, has written a book on the History of the Man called Christ ; and in it he "proves conclusively" that the "crucifixion of Christ was a sham;" that "John the Baptist and Christ were one and the same person;" that this "Christ turned up again as Stephen," being no more killed as Stephen than as John or Jesns; that again he "assumed the name of Saul and then Paul," and that finally he "appeared and was known ander the name of Josephus, and writes, in his old age, a history of his times"! This uncertainty of history is enough to discourage anybody from trying to live or have any personal identity at all. Even if you do get fairly born and started in existence, the chances are ten to one that it will be 4'proved' afterwards that there never was any such man as you. Really, is there no limit to "destructive scepticism"?

Immenting Google

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other ecclesiastical property shall no longer be arcompt from just taxation. 3. We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-gress, in State Legulatures, in the navy and militis, and in prisons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

ablic money, shall be unscontinued. 3. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-ional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall of shall cease. 4. We domand that all religions services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostenai-by as a text-book or avovedly as a book of religious wor-able, shall be prohibited.

allp, shall be prohibited. A We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease. 6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and us all other departments of the government shall be abol-thed, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-sities of perjury shall be established in its stead. 7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-perior.

peaked. 5. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial illerty. 8. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical simulation of the same, no privilege or ad-vanage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other spe-dia religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed at ministered on a purely secondar basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unfinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, it is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperiled, the advance of civili-mion impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of neight, and

religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; Thearrows, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-sives together under the following

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT. AST. 1 .- The name of this Association shall be TRB LIB-

Asy.4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members.

Ast. 5.-Any person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-Ment. Arr. 4.-The Officers of the League shall be a President, s Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Excou-tive President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Excou-tion of the secretary shall be ac-officio delegates to the Nathmal Correstico of Liberal Leagues when called together. Arr. 7.-These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths rote of the members present at any reg-nar meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ment shall have been set. to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

So far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of Tar inpur. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that it will yet be accepted universally by the American people, as the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A Liberal League ought to be formed to carry out its princilaberal League ought to be formed to carry out its princi-ples wherever half a dozen earnest and resolute Liberals that be got together. Being convinced that the movement to score compliance with these just "Domands" must surely, even if slowly, spread, I hope to miske THE INDEX means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and active co-operation of every man and every woman who be-lieres in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-port promptly the names of their Presidents and Secre-teries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion at that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are is that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are right, let their organized voice be heard like the sound of many waters.

BOSTON, Sept. 1, 1875. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

LIST OF LISERAL LEAGUES.

ST. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Scoretaries. BOSTON, MASE.-J. S. Rogers, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Scoretaries. JEFFERON, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Contract Science, Contrac JEFFERSON, OHIO.-W. H. Growen, President; J. L. Hatoh, Beoretary, Cal.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatoh, Secretary, ToLEDO, IOWA.-J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre-TOLEDO, IOWA----: Roscy President; Sue M. Clute, Secretary, N. J. -- John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Jecretary, NEB.--J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Secretary: OLATRE, KAN.--S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Grimin, Secretary: District Science Sc Secretary. DETROIT, MICH .-- W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, Secretary. Sorotary, Borotary, Bargowick, Scoretary, OSOBOLA, MO.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Bearetary, Barg, Mc.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Bhodes, Secretary, Barg, Mc.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Bhodes, Secretary, Burg, Mr.-F. Construct, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman. Bridgman. WASHINGTON, D.C. - George M. Wood, President; J. E. Grawford, Secretary. AUSUBN, OHIO. - John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Trass-AUBURN, OHO. - SOUD FIGH, FIGHERI, G. H. BASSELL, Secretary, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.--Fresident, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen.
 New YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary.
 Secretary.
 Secretary.
 Secretary.
 Bar CLAIME, WIS.--President; S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy.

[For THE INDEX.]

"The Land of the White Elephant."

A LECTURE ON BURMAH.

DELIVERED BEFORE THE FREE BELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF ST. LOUIS, MABCH 15, 1874.

BY R. A. SKUES,

(Late of the Sixty-Ninth British Regiment).

[CONCLUDED FROM LAST WEEK.]

[CONCLUDED FROM LAST WEEK.] Tonghoo, our destination, is on the frontiler of the King of Burmah's territory, and a large-garrison was kept there. It had been a town of considerable im-protection of the religious houses and pagodas, and some Buddhist ceremony was constantly going on. In each of the religious houses and about the pagodas are large images of Gaudama, and the deli-pagodas are large images of Gaudama, and the deli-gieces of gold to him, and letting off crackers and aubs under his nose, if they are rich; or if poor, in them visiting the places of worship, I always found the Burmese civil; and, so far from objecting the visiting which took my fancy or caused me they did kneeling, handis together and pointed to the pagoda, langhed, and resumed their devo-tor Mowere, with the burmese would east any which has got firm hold of their jocularity, their relized to the pagoda, langhed, and resumed their devo-tion. However, will prevent them from less fus-tion bas got firm hold of their favorite gaudau. — The Budhist religion forbids the killing of may which had died a natural death. They used to favor they the bad died a natural death. They used to favor the trice with putrid fish. The mode of preparing the nature. — The memerik sept a large number of elephants to the pagota series a large number of elephants they built be further and the dig to up and east it as a.

this delicacy was to bury a certain amount of fish until it was parity rotten, and then dig it up and eat it as a onlinent. The government kept a large number of elephants for the public service; and on several occasions, on the death of these animals. I saw the Burmans taking away portions of the bodies. There was a great mor-tality amongst the horses of the batteries of artillery, and it was found necessary, in order to prevent the thread the second the batteries of artillery and it was found necessary, in order to prevent the thread the second the batteries of artillery, and it was found necessary, in order to prevent the burmans taking and eating the diseased carcasses, to throw them into the river. Even them I have known the Rurmans to fish them up. The poonghes, or priest, has nothing to do with the fevotions, nor does he look after the morals of the people. He is like a monk who has separated himself for on the world, and laid himself out for the more rigid observance of the laws of Buddha than a securiar life would admit. He is taken from the people, and aparticle would admit. He is taken from the people, and aparticle observance of the outer world, its enjoyments and pay implicit obseltence to the orders and rules of the society to which he has attached himself. At the threshold of the monastery, he has for the last time in this world (unleas he changes his mind) parted forth they are attragers to him, simply units in the freat human family, and nothing more to him. His has the are and bereft of all the long hair of which a Burman is so proud. He must no longer ware a guidy dress, but must content himself with monastic yeldow. The day on which he enters is made a sort of carrival before the long Lent which is to last dur-ing where midday, neither must he dance, or sing, or stand in elevated places. He must not touch gold or silver, must subsist on charity, and take what he gets without returning thanks. Confeesion was once practised, though now in disuse; but the virtues of humanity, self-denial and chastity, are strictly incul-cated. Celibacy is a size qua non. He must have nothing to do with the lady part of humanity in any shape or form; he is not allowed to touch even his mother, to save her life or get her out of a hole, but may hold a stick out to her, if certain she is in danger and no one else is there to assist her. There are nuns, also, with somewhat similar rules in the other way; but these old ladies need none, as they have arrived at a period when women cease to be dangerous. The priest undertakes the instruction of the male be dangerous. The priest undertakes the instruction of the male children; but the females are not regularly instructed. Every Burman can read and cipher in his own lan-guage. I was greatly struck by this peculiarity with regard both to Burmans and Hindus. They all have a system, not of compulsory, but of general, educa-tion. Already the noble language common to the two great Anglo-Saxon nations of the world is being adopted by all classes of Burmans. India has long spoken it; indeed, wherever the Anglo-Saxon has est his foot, there his language has taken root and flourished. The countries in which the English lan-guage is spoken contains 9,500,000 square miles, with 300,000 of inhabitants. These countries are five times as large as the empire of Darius, and four times as great as that of the Romans in the zenith of their power. In power, the English-speaking countries are a match for the world; while in the intelligence of their people, and the wealth and extent of their do-minion, they already greatly excel. The extensions of the United States alone are equal to all those of Russia; and Mexico, Chili, La Plata, must inevitably speak our language, for their red Indian race is no match for our colonists. An edict has been issued in Japan making English the language of that country. When praying, the Burman joins his hands, palm to palm, and holds them to his forehead with the in-tended offering between them. Little toy umbrelias and flowers are favorites, and The priest undertakes the instruction of the male

When praying, the Burman joins his hands, paim to paim, and holds them to his forehead with the in-tended offering between them. Little toy umbrellas and flowers are favorites, and saucers of oil, with a burning wick in the centre, are laid before their favorite pagodas. The Burman also leaves plates of rice, which feed all the crows and wild dogs in the vicinity. Custom, almost a religious one, prevails in placing water, in porous, cooling vessels, in some naturally or artificially sheltered spot for the use of the thirsty wayfarer, and is somewhat analogous to our present-ing fountains to clites for the purposes of mercy to man and beast. I think a great want in large clites is that of means for dogs to slake their thirst in the streets. Many a poor dog comes in from the coun-try, and is destroyed as mad, when the wretched ani-mal is suffering merely from exhaustion and thirst. There is a large tree called the traveller's, which produces water when the leaf is broken off; and there is a creeper which grows on the rocklest and driest mountain-side which will furnish a draught of deli-cious water for the wearied and parched wayfarer. I noticed in Burmah that extreme poverty was a shoulder. They allow their hair, which is as black as a raven's wing, to grow to a great length, often touching their ankles. Should they commit a crime and be sent to prison, it is all cut off. This is a ter-rible punishment, for it brands the man as a felon at once, or as a priest who has changed his mind and returned once more to civil life. He dare not appear in his own village in such a state; he is an outcast from society. His heir is sold by some prison official, who gets it as a perquisite, and probably helps to adorn the head of some Burman or other lady. The Burmese men are claborately tattooed, and while undergoing this operation, have to be dosed with oplum to deaden the pain. Should an overdose be given by mistake, the tattooing terminates raiher abruptly. The breast is generally tattooed red, and the remainder blue. shoulder. They allow their hair, which is as black

<text><text><text><text><text>

With optimit of the death of the pain. Should an overdose be given by mistake, the tattooing terminates rather abruptly. The breast is generally tattooed red, and the remainder blue. The Burmese ladies dress their long hair with flowers, and use false hair. This is in its natural state, and not in the shape of chignon, or pad. On great occasions they wear a vast amount of handsome and valuable jeweiry, and are as anxious to show themselves as the women of other parts of the East are to conceal themselves. They wear immense ear-rings, and the lobe of the ear has a large hole to hold the ornament. A Burmese lady dressed up is intri-sically a valuable bundle. I have never seen ladies smoke so much as the Burmese do, until the other day, when I was in the coccasionally dipping snuff. Burmese children smoke very early.

accomplishments of ladles consisted in chewing and occasionally dipping souff. Burmese children smole very early. I never saw a drunken Burman, nor any violent conduct at their games. They are a jovial set of people, and you would be astonished to witness the jollify with which they said good-by to an old priest at whose funeral ceremony I was present. A few days before this took pisce, I had entered a mona-tery where the priest was lying in state, in a cofin filled with honey, and covered with goldleaf. The honey, after doing the duty of preserving the old gen-tleman, was probably sent to Calcutta to be sold. No white man ever thinks of buying honey there. The body was taken to a large plain outside the city, where there was an altar erected; and there the cer-mony of cremation, or burning the corpse, took place. On the day appointed I went to the renderzous, and I cannot explain to you how astonished I felt, when I saw the crowd and its preparations for this solemn rite. The whole thing was a novely to me, but to the Burmans it seemed an immense joke. The whole country appeared to have turned out for a great piece of fun, for a general spree; and instead of its being the occasion of funeral rites for a priest of their re-ligion, you would have thought if was a carrival, a Derby day, a Fourth of July, or a scene in a dancing-garden, where every one was up and out for a lark. There were jugglers, tumblers, and bufforns, sill exciting enthusiasm in their way; and the crowd in and on your, a routh of July, or a scene in a dancing garden, where every one was up and out for a lark. There were jugglers, tumblers, and buffcons, all exciting enthusiasm in their way; and the crowd in general had given themselves up to the most bolste-ous mirth. Every one appeared to be doing the most ridiculous things possible. In the centre of the plain, on the altar decorated with paper atreamers, toy um-brellas, and goldleaf, lay the body of the priest. No one appeared to take the slightest notice of it, except some old women who brought flowers and rice as of ferings. All around the body were crackers and packages of gunpowder, and to this pile fire was set, and it was soon in a blaze. When the powder er-ploded and the fire-works went off, shouts of laugh-ter reëchoed over the plain. The scene was extraor-dinary, and, when you consider the occasion, it seemed ridiculous. Soon the altar was consumed, and wood was piled on till the body was reduced to antes.

The above is one of the institutions of the religion of

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

182

four great principles, which have been called the "wheel of the law." 1. He realized the fact of pain. 2. Examining the source of pain, he found it to be unregulated desire. 3. Destruction of pain by self-control. 4. The means of destroying it by the practice of ritue. The rock-cut writings of King Asoka, dating over two hundred years before the present era, are amongst the oldest Buddhist writings, and from these we learn the thoughts which seemed greatest to this Buddhist king-this Constantine of the new religion.

The shoughts which seemed greatest to this Buddhist king-this Constantine of the new religion. Buddha's experience was symbolized by the attacks of eri spirits on him in a lonely place. After that ordeal, his heart became firm and pure, full of meck-ness and compassion. He hesitated awhile to spread-iruths which few could understand, but he made a solemn yow that he would do so. He began, and his work was not only religious but social. He had to combat caste. In the lowest caste were those who exercised the callings of executioners and cauld they be reborn. Buddha associated himself with, and took the yellow robe of, these poor men. If he was wrong, the mistake would not simply attach to his life, but at his next transmigration, in conse-quence of his ignoring caste, he would become the meanest insect. A disciple of Buddha, asking a draught of water from a woman of the lowest caste. He he, like the woman of Samaria, protested. The dis-ciple asid, "I did not ask your caste; I asked for a draught of water." Buddha and his followers, while ot saying anything against caste, defied it in practice. He went to Benares, the sacred city of the Hindu, and preached to the poor in the fields. He showed farow to fallen women in their degradation. After-wards be returned to his palace, and found that his wife had followed his example. Other females of his family, and finally two hundred women, came to the monstery, and made him receive them as fellow-workers.

workers. This institution of Buddhism has lasted over two thousand years, and a Catholic bishop is said to have remarked that Buddhism equalized women with men. One thing is well known, and that is, that Buddhist women occupy a higher and more honorable position than any others in the East. The great characteristic of Buddha's preaching may be summarized in this one maxim: "If a man does me a wrong, and I respond with love, the fragrance redounds to me, the harm returns to him." During his whole life he went, shout doing good

During his whole life he went about doing good, and inculcating the theory of his four laws. He was an exponent of all the noblest principles of human action. He broke down caste, and raised women from a low estate. No form of religion has done so much for the Asiatics as Buddhism. Buddhis, bitthday is atill kent. There are white queting robe. Asoka tried to find the tomb of Buddha, and at last succeeded. The door opened at his touch, and he found the lamps, which had been lighted two hun-dred and eighteen years before, still lighted and full of oil. The flowers which decorated the tomb were as fresh and beautiful as when they had been placed there, and the perfume was more exquisite than those in the garden. Such is the tale believed by good Buddhists, but one which will not bear the scrutiny of this material age.

Baddha's birthday is still kept. There are white-robed guests, and gorgeous banquets, and each guest ges out and brings in a poor beggar woman, takes off her squalid clothing, and puts on her a white ban-queting robe.

age. I must not forget to mention that the ladies appear on elephants, decked out in their best. These young ladies are not very long in bringing a courtability to a mainmonial termination, and the form of marriage is simply that the bridegroom has to pay the lady a certain amount of dowry, which increases in propor-tion to the amount of beauty she possesses. In case the tastes of the married pair do not agree, they sep-arise, the lady keeping the money and the pair sever-ally, if they choose, contract similar matrimonial ar-rangements.

The population of Burmah is said to be yearly de-creasing, and this is said to be due to the uncertainty of the marriage relation, the consequence of which is to throw the maintenance of the children wholly on the mother. She, to excape this burden, has recourse to the crimes of foculcide and infanticide, or continues sucking a child for an unnaturally long period.

sucking a child for an unnaturally long period. Almost all the travelling is done on elephants, as it is impossible to get through the bush with anything else. In fact, the elephant is useful, and is used in every department of life. He will drag timber, stack it, and perform all the laborious work connected with it with a patience unequalled, and an endurance un-surpassed. He is, however, liable to weaknesses, and the I found out when I was going through the jungle on the back of the steadlest old log-puller I could get. A herd of wild elephants appeared, and off ruehed

A herd of wild elephants appeared, and off rushed my beast in an opposite direction, tearing every-thing off his back, and scattering our guns, etc., all drough the woods. We were all on the look-out for this, and made for his tail, by which we dropped to the ground one after the other as fast as we could. No one was hurt; a few things lost and broken were the sole result.

the sole result. Rich Burmans build houses for travellers, and where these do not exist the priset's house is open. I have often passed a night there. The Burmese are good curpenters and blacksmiths, but they are lazy, and it is a difficult matter to persuide them to work. To a sportsman or hunter, Burmah is a porfect Ely-sium. There is nothing that you cannot get in the way of game, large and small. There are tracts of country where there has been no human habitation for years, and here the wild animals have increased indefinitely.

A good many gangs of thieves used to hang about Burmah, but the British authorities "cleaned them out.

out." Tigers are numerous, and the sport is considered so extremely dangerous that hunting them is generally done in parties of two or more, and then on elephants. Even then accidents occur, notwithstanding all pre-cautions. Sometimes there are isolated cases where men go out alone, attack the tiger single-handed, and come out safely. One case in particular came under my notice.

cautions. Sometimes there are isolated cases where men go out alone, attack the tiger single-handed, and come out safely. One case in particular came under my notice. A young officer, a nephew of Sir Francis Head, who was at one time Governor-General of Canada, came out with me; and, during the voyage to India, I knew that he did not use fire-arms as the rest of us did, and had never even fired a gun. Six months af-ter we arrived in India, he went out, single-handed, and killed eight tigers. Cases ilke this are extremely rare; indeed, I hardly think that there is another par-allel case. There have been cases of old sportsmen tilling many a tiger single-handed; but in the end something happened and a tiger killed them. The elephant, when wild, is also a dangerous creat-wer, and particularly a "rogue elephant" who has been driven from a herd; for he will kill anything and everything he comes accoss without the slightest provocation. The white elephant belonging to the king of Burmah is said to be five hundred years ado. The elephant which carried Warren Hastings, Gov-eror-General of India, over one hundred years ago, and the several centuries old, is at present alive and will in Calcuta. He must have seen some changes in his checkered life. We have the wild hog, rhinoceros, hison, and all finds of deer, from one as big as a bufful down to one not much larger than an ordinary dog. Monkeys and quirrels abound; and birds of the most beautiful soatively known to attack without provocation. Mr. Mason, an American missionary at Tonghoo, men-tions in a work on the natural history of Burmah the following incident: "A Burman came across one of these repilles, and indeale. He rushed on at headlong geed until he attret to run, his time having dropped his red turban, upon which, the snake, fortunately for him, sank attret do run, his With abject terror he again started to run, his time having dropped his red turban, upon which, the snake, fortunately for him, sunke kills within half an hour." The mosquito is well known Case were othere a leak occurred in the treasury, and how it was stopped. An officer, a friend of mine, was in charge of one of the treasuries at Shoay Gheen, or "Golden City;" and it was his duty to count the money at stated times. This he did, but gave the key to his head clerk, who was a Burman. From some source he found out that all was not right, and he told his clerk that upon a certain day he should count the money. The money was there, and this time my friend thought, to make matters sure, he would keep the key himself. The result was as he had anticipated. His clerk was arrested for debt an hour afterwards. There are missions from the various Christian sects in Burmah; but none of them have converts except the Catholics. If the apostles are still fishers of men, their baits or hooks must be bad in India. Burmah is rich in gold and precious stones, and has abundance of silver, tin, iron, coal, and mineral oll. In fact, there is no mineral which Burmah does not possess.

In fact, there is no inder at which is builded does not possees. Rice is cultivated abundantly, and trodden out by buffaloes, which, according to Eastern custom, are unmuzzled. The farming implements used are of the rudest description. The rice fields are abundantly supplied with water, for during the raiby season the whole country is inundated. Pineapples are plenti-ful. When you take a pineapple, it is customary to save the green part and plant it. By doing this I had a fine crop of pineapples in my own garden. Other tropical fruits are here in abundance, while vegetables of all kinds are cultivated by the "Heathen Chinee," who is as industrious and hard-working in Burmah as in any other place. There are a great many of the Chinese settled there, engaged in trades and other occupations. Numbers of Hindus and Mahometans come across from India, and engage in different vocations vocations. The mail was brought to us with the most acrupu-lous regularity, in cances manned by from eight to ten rowers, who travelled night and day. A new project has been laid before the government to estab-lish a line of communication between India and Chi-na by means of the great water-ways of Burmah, in-stead of going round through the straits of Malacca. Besides the Irrawaddy there are three other great rivers, the Memam, the Salween, and the Meekong, which all rise in the south-west corner of China. Of these, the Irrawaddy alone is well known; a steamer can proceed up this magnificent river for a thousand miles, and even at that distance the Irrawaddy is a splendid stream, three miles wide at full flood. Of the other rivers so little is known that no cer tain opinion can be given regarding them; but it is reasonable to suppose, from their similarity of origin and size, that they also are capable of adding to the convenience of commercial intercourse. The Mes-kong or Cambooga River is said to be magnificent in volume and wonderful in length of flow. It divides Anam from Siam, and is said by the natives to be navi-gable for large craft twelve hundred miles from its del-ta. An immense traffic is carried up and down on the river in boats. Existing maps represent this stream as running right through south-western Chi-na, and, for aught I know to the contrary, they may be navigable for is known of its fitness for naviga-tion. The matives only answer for three hundred miles of it.

miles of it,

The merchandise which comes down it consists of

<text><text><text><text><text>

PRISON REFORM.

<section-header>

Diplicently Google

the wrongs declared to exist by the speakers previ-ously mentioned.-Boston Herald, April 5.

[The ladies above referred to did not corroborate every statement made by Mr. Burns, nor yet at all impugn his representation. So far as they had personal knowledge, they testified to his truthfulness and accuracy; but he said some things of which they had no personal knowledge at all. We add this note by request of one of the ladies.—ED.]

THE CORRECTORS CORRECTED.

THE CORRECTORS CORRECTED. "Free Discussion in Boston." Under this heading, marticle appears in the last lynex, signed by LaRoy Sunderland and John Hardy, to the effect that Mr. Sunday meeting ever held in Boston, which they say was in 1852. They make this statement in order to sunday meeting ever held in Boston, which they say the new set in the last in Boston, which they say are not mistaken) that the free meetings began previ-out to that year. "R. B." is right in this matter, and Messrs. Sunder-Fand and Hardy are wrong. They don't mean to misrepresent—they forget, or perhaps never knew; and as the point involved is important, it had better be attended to now, and sattled correctly. We remem-ber Mr. Sundarland's free meeting in 1852, but that be stonder the first of the kind in this city. Tweire was not the first of the kind in this city. Tweire was not sub cheirs, and the meeting were there of free debates, and the meeting were there inderland and Hardy at the Winchester Hall, Purchases shal was located, being a liberal-minded man, threed to one for free debates, and the meeting were there is the out memory is not at fault they were be preacher about that time in some sort of a christian church, or at least were not Liberals as at was preacher about that time in some sort of a christian church, or at least were bot Liberals as at the cause of free discussion, from that day to this, the cause of free discussion, from that day to this, the having enlisted in it for this life, if not for an the may be a question with the antiquarian (in the wrong and is on the to the suit and the day to the the stree defined liceursion, from that day to this, the the subset in a trank the antiquariant (in the cause of free discussion, from that day to this, the the on the sheet and when the antiquariant (in the subset fund as the when the antiquariant (in the subset fund as the when the antiquariant (in the subset fund as the present when the day to this, thaving enlisted in it for other.

other. It may be a question with the antiquarians (in coming time) as to where and when and who started the first free discussion in Boston? The correct an-swer, we think, is this: The meeting was begun in Winchester Hall, Purchase Street, in 1840, by infidels and such Liberal Christians as were friendly to free thought and free speech, and on this basis the novel and useful experiment has ever since been continued. The meetings are now held three times every Sunday at Hospitaller Hall, 563 Washington Street, and are well conducted, numerously attended, interesting, conducted, numerously attended, interesting, well well conducted, numerously accurate and instructive. Our neighbor of THE INDEX will oblige us, and other friends, if he will please copy the above into his columns.—Boston Investigator, April 8.

THE EVILS OF INFLATION.

Fellow-Citizens, —We have assembled this evening, in Fanceil Hall, in the presence of the memorials of those who have been our leaders in peace and in war, to take counsel together upon the observance of thé public faith. It is not for me to anticipate the result of your deliberations, but it does not require any prophet to declare that there will be no departure here from the principles which have hitherto guided Massachusetts and Boston upon this great subject. The first legal tender act was passed by Congress on the 25th of February, 1802, and authorized the issue of $150,000,000. Within one month of the passage of that act on issue of $150,000,000. Within one month of the passage of that act, on the 22d of March, 1862, the Legislature of Massachu-setts passed a law declaring that "the interest and principal of all scrip or bonds of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, which have been or may hereafter be issued, shall, when due, be paid in gold or allver coin;" and Massachusetts has redeemed and will con-tinue to radeam this place.

Conf." and massachusetts has redeemed and will con-tinue to redeem this pledge. On the 4th of April, 1882, the City Council of Bos-ton passed an order "that the treasurer be and he is hereby authorized to pay the bonds of the city, and hereby authorized to pay the bonds of the city, and the interest thereon now due, or that may hereafter become due, in specie or its equivalent;" and Bos-ton has redeemed and will continue to redeem this pladge pledge. Some new contracts, made payable in currency, have been so paid by the State and city. After the great fire, in November, 1872, it having been suggested that the Secretary of the Treasury might issue an additional amount of currency in view of our calamity, it was unanimously resolved, at might issue an additional amount of currency in view of our calamity, it was unanimously resolved, at a public meeting of citizens in the Masonic Temple, that we "earnestly remonstrate against any such issue, as unwise, unnecessary, and prejudicial to the whole country," and no such issue was made. Massachusetts and Boston have taken their posi-tion, and it will be held. On the 30th of June, 1864, Congress authorized a further issue of legal tender notes. The second sec-tion of the act contains this clause: "Nor aball the issued, ever exceed $400,000,000, as may be tempora-rily required for the redemption of temporary loan." The fifth section of the act authorizes the issue of $30,000,000 in fractional currency. The act of Congress of April 12, 1868, provides "that of United States notes not more than $10,000,-000 may be refired and cancelled within six months from the passage of this act, and thereafter not more than $4,000,000 in any one month." Under this act, $44,000,000 were "retired and cancelled" in effect; and from that time $356,000,000 has continued and is, to-day, the limit provided by law for the legal tender notes.

to-day, the limit provided by law for the legal tender notes. On the 18th of March, 1860, Congress declared by law "that in order to remove any doubt as to the pur-pose of the government to discharge all just obliga-tions to the public creditors, and to settle conflicting questions and interpretations of the laws, by virtue of which such obligations have been contracted, it is hereby provided and declared that the faith of the United States is solemnly pledged to the payment in coin or its equivalent of all the obligations of the United States not bearing interest, known as United States notes, and of all the interest bearing obliga-tions of the United States, except in cases where the law authorizing the issue of any such obligation has expressly provided that the sum may be paid in law-ful money or other currency than gold and silver. ... And the United States also solemnly pledges its faith, to make provision, at the earliest practicable period, for the redemption of the United States notes in colu."

period, for the redemption of the United States Hotes In colu." This was the first act of a general nature signed by President Grant, fourteen days after his inaugura-tion, and, in the words of the present Secretary of the Treasury, "was an emphatic expression of the sentiment of the people, uttered by a new Congress then recently elected." More than five years have elapsed since the public faith was thus solemnly pledged by an act of Con-gress, approved by President Grant. In order to form a correct judgment as to the performance of this pledge, we should in fairness consider the means at the disposal of the party who made it. The cen-sus of 1870, the year after the adoption of this law, gave, as the value of the real and personal estate of the country, more than $30,000,000,000, and the total issue of notes to be redeemed in coin was $350,000,-000, less than one and a quarter of one per cent. of issue of notes to be redeemed in coin was $350,000, 000, less than one and a quarter of one per cent. of the amount of property on which it was charged. What merchant in any part of the civilized world could hold up his head in any community with liabil-ities amounting to one and one-quarter of one per cent. of his property, which liabilities he had solemm-ly pledged his faith should be redeemed in coin at the carliest practicable period, if, after the lapse of five years, they remained unpaid? The public legisla-tion and the facts known to the whole country con-clusively show that Congress has lamentably failed to uphold the public faith. But this is not the only condemnation which lies at its door. It has recently been proposed, and a bill uphold the public faith. But this is not the only condemnation which lies at its door. It has recently been proposed, and a bill has passed the House of Representatives in Washing-ton, to increase the legal tender issues to $400,000,000. By what authority is this to be done? How is it to be justified? At the time of the passage of the legal tender acts, it was generally conceded that they would not be sustained on any other ground than as war measures to preserve the government. By the pro-posed legislation, Congress would assume the power to any actent. Upon a great question involving the public faith, no considerations of expediency should be allowed to intervene; but my convictions are clear and strong that there are no considerations of expediency, taken in a just and large view, which are in the slightest degree at variance with the plight of the public faith given in 1860.

given in 1860.

degree at variance with the plugit of the public latting given in 1880. It is claimed that the interest saved to the govern-ment by the circulation of its own notes is too valu-able to be surrendered. Five per cent interest on $356,000,000 is $17,800,000. The value of the annual products of agriculture, manufacturing, mining, and the fisherice is nearly $7,000,000,000, and the amount of wages annually paid in these branches of industry is nearly $12,000,000,000. If from the fluctuations of an irredeemable paper currency the loss to the coun-try is only one quarter of one per cent. It is greater than the gain derived from the interest saved to the country by the circulation; and every laboring man and woman in the land knows that the advance in prices of everything which they use has been many times in excess of such fluctuation, for the use of such a currency.

and woman there take the the use of a schemany prices of everything which they use has been many times in excess of such fluctuation, for the use of such a currency. If the industry of the country will lend its ear to its friends, and will give its own thoughts to a consideration of its interests. I have no fear that the present Congress will venture further in debasing the currency, and in violating the public faith; and if I am at fault in this opinion there can be no doubt that the Congress to be chosen in the coming antumn will answer with alacrity the appeal of the people. A sound currency is the great demand of the labor of the people upon the government. They whose earnings are in the currency, have the deepest interest in its fixed value. It is the great office of the government to place its stamp upon the coin which it issues, attesting its worth for commercial purposes, and it should never issue one dollar of paper money. Many who now hear me can recall the suspension in S40. The suspension in S57 lasted only there or four months. But so long as government paper is disonored and unpaid, there can be no return to specie payments in former is no power above the government to compel it to resume unless the people so resolve, and thus compel its action. If a proper system of banks de stabilished, with careful asfeguards for the protection of the public, and just taxation be imposed for privileges conferred, in the sumpside of the public, and just taxation be imposed for privileges conferred, and just taxation be imposed the government using its power to enforce the pro-visions of law, we should have a currency as free and as abundant as the activity and capital of the country require.

require. We appeal to the President to uphold the public faith. Vicksburg is not and will not be forgotten, and he who led our troops to victory can protect as from defeat; and we confidently rely upon him to exercise his constitutional veto to preserve us from the threatened calamity of an unlimited issue of irredeem threatened calamity of an unlimited issue of irredeem-able paper money. We appeal to the people of the country, who hold in their own hands in a large measure its future de-tiny. We appeal alike to the North and the South, to the East and the West, to keep inviolate the public faith. We will write upon our banners, never to be erased, "The public faith: it must and shall be pre-served."—Speech of Hon. Wm. Gray at the Boston Mass Meeting, April 4.

A HERRSY AND BLASPHERY CASE.

We occasionally talk and write enthusiastically about this "enlightened nineteenth century," and half imagine in our conceit that all bigotry and super-stition are gradually passing into the limbo of forgot-ten things. Here is a gentle reminder that religious intolerance has not wholly ceased in the world. Rev. John Page Hopps, the Unitarian minister at Glasgow, is the suthor of a little book entitled The Life of Jeana, Rewritten for Young Disciples. It is said to be devout in thought, reverent in spirit, and pure in language, though as a Unitarian the writer nat-urally denies the divinity of the second person of the Trinity. It is not written in a sneering or scofing spirit, but of course looks at the facts of Jeans' life from the Unitarian standpoint. from the Unitarian standpoint.

spirit, but of course looks at the facts of Jean' life from the Unitarian standpoint. Now a certain Mr. Harry Alfred Long regarded this book as heretical, dangerous, and positively blasphe-mous. He accordingly reprinted it, with a general criticism of its faults and aiarming tendencies, giving at the end of each chapter an attempted refutation of the doctrines advanced by Mr. Hopps. Naturally enough Mr. Hopps regraded this as an infringement of copyright, and the question has been up for legal decision. The astounding plea is made by Mr. Long that The Life of Jeans, Rewritten for Young Disciples was blasphemous, heretical, and promulgating docarines work could not be protected by copyright, and was the property of any critic who wished to expose its dan-gerous tendencies and-make a little money out of the piratical enterprise. The agitation of this question has created a good deal of excitement in England and Scotland, and its decision has rightfully been regarded as having an important bearing upon the future of theological con-troversy. The bariff-Substitute has at length come to the ersy. he Sheriff-Substitute has at length come to the The Sheriff-Substitute has at length come to the conclusion that "a reverent and sober statement of Unitarian doctrine" cannot be considered biasphe-mous. Though it is undoubtedly part of the com-mon law that the second person of the Trinity is divine, yet "the public are entitled to criticize and controvert, if they please, the statute law of the land, provided they do so in such a way as not to endanger the public safety, morality, or peace." As the book does not violate these conditions, it is entitled to the protection of the law

<text><text><text><text><text>

MR. GABRISON'S LETTER

61

17

τ

ERAD AT THE DEDICATION OF COSMIAN HALL, FLOR-ENCE, MABS., MAECH 25, 1874.

BOSTON, March 22, 1874.

READ AT ITERCE, MARSH, MARCH 25, 1874. BOSTON, March 22, 1874. TANA YOU for the invitation extended to me, in your letter, to attand the dedication of "Cosmian Hall," in Florence, the present week. Believing that the object of such dedication is, in spirit and purpose, directly in the interest of religious freedom and prog-rest, on a broad and catholic platform, it would give a great pleasure to be present on the occasion; but that pleasure to be present on the occasion; but that pleasure to be present on the occasion; but that pleasure to be present on the occasion; but that pleasure to be present on the occasion; but that pleasure to be present on the occasion; but that pleasure to be present on the occasion; but that pleasure to be present on the occasion; but that pleasure to be present on the occasion; but that pleasure to be present on the occasion; but that pleasure to be present on the occasion; but that pleasure to be present on the future life. The addition of the max is that of "heresy," be-rest able to emancipate myself from all denomina-tional trammels. As no body of men can be answer-able for me at the bar of Eternal Rectitude, none ball control my liberty to think, speak, and act, on any matter touching the present or the future life. The idleat of all cries to me is that of "heresy," be-traue all claim of human infallibility is profane ego-tim. Seeing that the heresy of one age is the recogning for most after and practice, there can be any frotestant herefics, because of differences of anothing is gained by substituting the authority of the ble for t met with proscription or menace, but with courtesy and reason. I am convinced that the readiest way to break the sorery power of bigotry is a general coöperation in measures of radical reform and practical righteous-ness, having in view the happiness and welfare of the people; neither lingering in the past, nor concerning ourselves greatly about the distant future, but acting in "the living present," looking at its needs, nobly discharging its responsibilities, and conscientiously performing all the duties it imposes. The various movements for the promotion of tem-perace, peace, moral reform, antislavery, impartial suffrage, popular education, acientific knowledge, etc., etc., have done much toward breaking down the old partition walls which for so long a period kept those who, but for them, "like kindred drops had mingled into one." In the presence of a great wrong to be redressed or an awful curse to be removed, all theological dogmatism becomes an impertinence, and every earnest worker in the field of reform will es-chew it. chew it.

There many pleasant and tender recollections of Florence in its early settlement, where were gathered together some of the best and freest spirits of the age. Yours for going forward, WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON.

THE WOMEN'S CRUSADE.

<text><section-header><text><text>

TIN DHIX -- APRILL 16, the inclemency of the weather, till his hard heart was melted, or, in other words, till his buiness was driv-en away. Everything connected with religion—and especially religion in a more or less martyr-like, self-devoted form—is so very generally regarded as good in theif that numbers of women would take part in such proceedings as those described, without the least notion that they were doing a cruel wrong to the per-sons against whom their efforts were directed. It seems to us that to take away a man's property, or to destroy his trade by spiritual mobbing and intimida-tion, is just as bad as to produce the same effect by picketing or rattening, or even by threats of personal violence. If women are to be allowed to assemble together in crowds, for the purpose of praying whis-keysellers out of their evil courses by besleging their shops, where are we to draw the line? Suppose they were to take it into their heads to modo a man for no toging to church, or for going to what they regarded as the wrong church, what would be the difference? A harmiess, inoffensive man, who had done nothing to hight on any Sanday morning, find a set of wom-pie, might on any Sanday morning, find a set of wom-pie, might on any Sanday morning, find a set of wom-pient in the became cowed into due observance of harding to dutles; and, if women ever took to euch practises, we should be likely before long to see them upported by like-minded men. The machinery of station sould be brought to bear on a large scale on overy class and every section of society, and hardy any act of our lives would be free from organized order that pressure of some form. The machinery of station are some form or other.''

A TRUE STORY.

A THUE STORY. A THUE STORY. Two or three weeks ago an accident did not occur near Scranton, Penn.; the newspapersmissed a senset hurled into eternity without time to breathe a prayer, added quietly home to their dinners, quite uncon-scious that death had had them by the throat. It might, after all, be worth our while to look into the should have been keen enough to unearth the guilty arry if it had occurred. The facts are briefly these: -In the largest anthracite coal mine in the State, the care of the engine by which the cars for passengers scout-frahman, an ordinary fellow enough. The carble necessarily of great weight and thickness, passes through the root of a slightly-built shed under which he stands. One morning, as the man stood smoking high you have been dealed and ssuredly not wrought of the carble, released from the strain, would fly be stands. One morning, as the man stood smoking half with crushing weight on the energy in house of the coside the carb. Deale weight and the weight on the stands. One morning, as the man stood smoking high point he coside of the carble, broke, and fell crashing into the dark shaft, to be shattered into a minute the cable, released from the strain, would fly beam and fad with crushing weight on the elever, minute the cable, released from the strain, would fly beam and board of the root. Death was absolutely certain if he did not escape from the shed. But if he of mon must fall one or two hundred feet. He had to no instant to face his death and theirs, and to for end, must fall one or two hundred feet. He had to no instant to face his death and theirs, and to do not sittly the sittly weather diagont one wheele weath of the shed; the man motioned to him with his head of the shed; the man who had saved they way and the side of the shaft. Surely God meant to not instant to face his death and theirs, and to do not sittly the side of the shaft. There is a whole of the shuld is was enough. The car grated with a forced upon us now wad th

THE Echo is responsible for the statement that a distinguished London preacher, in a recent sermon, said that "there was not the least doubt that the earth-ly Paradise of Adam and Eve was filled to repletion with flowers, shrubs, and trees, formed of diamonds of the purest water, the combined lustre of which far exceeded that of the sun in his noonday splendor. At the Fall, these were scattered throughout in the shape of diamond dibris. This dibris was universal in the soli of all countries, and furnished the explana-tion of the diamond dust referred to as found in the Highlands."—London Graphic.

IT IS NOT what people est, but what they digest, that makes them strong. It is not what they gain, but what they save, that makes them rich. It is not what they read, but what they remember, that makes them learned. It is not what they profess, but what they practise, that makes them righteous.

Hoetry.

[For THE INDEX.]

185

"GRIEPS OF THOUGHT."

BY MARION V. DUDLEY.

"Say, sweet-mouth, what is the shadow That darkens your portals red? And, wide-eyes, why has the wonder From out of your beauty fled?

"What frightened the merry dimple From the beart of a peach-bloom cheek, And scattered the brown bair's lustre, Like billows in carcless freak ?

"Come, barfish the sadness of pity, Shine out in your golden light! Let Earth have the care of her poor ones -Play Sorrow is happy to-night."

"Tis not,"—and she said it slowly, Her voice like the deep intone f waves when the storm-cloud lowers, Ere its first black bolt is thrown, oi <sup>4</sup> 'Tis not for the ceasless moaning Of sad ones that I am still, For ever a ceaseless answer They have from the great Good-will.

"My sadness to-night is not sadness, But only a longing to know; The haunting ghost of a query Refuses to let me go.

"And if, in its eager speaking, Irreverent seems my heart, Then know that my restless thinking Is too earnest for grace of art.

"I query wby God the Father, Who knew that the created scale Could charm from the Eden bower His daughter, so fair and frail,

"And ruin the sweet world's isughter, And hush its young choral song, And brand all the unborn ages With stains of another's wrong,-

"I wonder why He, possessing All power for love and right, Held not from untaught innocence The woe of a cruel blight.

"The world is so sad with sorrow,-So dim with the dusk of tears! How could an all-gracious Father Let sin curse the white-souled years?

"'Not question,' you say? 'Bellevs it'? Ab friend, I am wrung with grief: I pray, but no prayer relieveth The spell of my unbellef.

"Blood stains the great hands Eternal! "Twas blood that he made atons For sin that his hand permitted,-For crime in his knowledge done.

"A mystery? Yes, so baffing A mystery, and so deep, That demons with glee must guard it, While mortals in anguish weep.

"So long have I prayed for respite From pressure of thoughts like these,--So hard have I fought the formen Who mock at the golden keys,

"That open the pearly portals Of beaven to him whose faith Unwavering 'moves the mountains,' And 'takes the sting from death,'—

"So long, that I fain would linger To rest for a little while On slopes of the upland sunshine, In summer of Nature's smille.

"O sad is the weary progress Of war that is never done, And sad is the soldler's longing For victory never won!

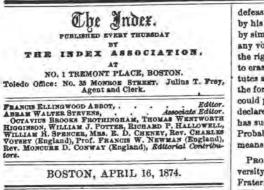

"I pine for the penceful plashing Of founts where the placid drink : The duliest of low-browed mortal", Who never was doomed to think,

"Has peace that surpasseth knowledge, Believing with faith devout; I am pricked with the goad of query, And die from the pain of doubt."

CASH RECEIPTS.

<text><section-header><text><text><text>

Google Google

N.B.—Any person whose name is now on our mail-list will receive a second copy of THE IN-DEX, mailed to the same address, for a year, on pre-payment of One Dollar. This offer is made to accommodate those of our subscribers who wish to increase our circulation by sending extra copies as samples to their friends.

GLIMPSES.

THE "CONGRESSIONAL PETITION" foots up 5,245 names; the "Massachusetts Petition" foots up 8,845. ALL THE "PETITIONS" not yet sent in should be forwarded as speedily as possible. It will soon be too late to make any use of them this year. THE FREEWILL BAPTIST paper, the Morning Star, argues in favor of exempting church property from taration. But its arguments are adapted only for home consumption.

SIGNATURES to the "Massachusetts Petition" have been received as follows since last week: From Charles Almy, New Bedford, 16; from Newton Littlefield, Haverhill, 9; from W. W. Curries, Haverhill, 11. Total for the week-36.

A SELECT COMMITTEE of the Rhode Island Legislature has the subject of church taxation under consideration. We are always greatly obliged by any information sent us respecting such movements,—particularly for newspaper extracts, with name of journal, date, etc., attached. It is not in all cases possible to print the extracts with which we are favored, but they are always thankfully received.

SIGNATURES to the "Congressional Petition" have been received as follows since last week: From Peter Young, Buffalo, N.Y., 149; from George M. Wood, Secretary of the Liberal League, Washington, D.C., (by direction of the League) 145; from the Boston Investigator, 143; from Samuel R. Honey, Newport, R.I., 24; from Lucius Everett, Dover, N.H., 5; from William Walker, Dover, N.H., 28; from Carl H. Horsch, Dover, N.H., 37; from David A. Patterson, Sutter Greek, Cal., 56; from J. Rogers, St. Johns, Mich., 68. Total for the week-656.

MR. A. WALLACE, writing in the Contemporary Review, denies the obligation of the State to carry out the wishes of owners of property after they are dead. This position has force in it. What reason in equity is there for regarding wills as inviolably sacred? A man can transfer his property, while living, to whom he pleases, but has no power to control it afterwards. Why should he be permitted, when dead, to tie up forever, perhaps to most foolish uses, capital that ought to be left free for employment by his survivors? Especially is the mischlevousness of this evident in the case of property bequeathed for purposes of propagandism. The State might justly refuse to be made the tool of such purposes under the disguise of perpetual trusts.

THE SCOTTISH papers recently announced that the Duke of Argyll, author of the Reign of Law, is about to convert five square miles, or over three thousand acres, of his estate in the South-west of Scotland into a deer forest. When swarms of poor people in Great Britain are annually driven to emigrate because they can eacrely find standing-room in the over-crowded island, such wantonness of luxury is a crime against man. If the despairing millions rise at last in rebellion against the selfishness of the great landed propristors, and confiscate their estates as Henry VIII. confiscated the estates of the Romish Church, the lords who thus goad them into violence will have themselves alone to thank. No wise man disturbs the crater of a siumbering volcano.

IN THE Golden Age of April 4, Mr. Tilton has a temperate article on the late Congregational Council. He quotes from a recent "manifesto" by Plymonth Church the declaration that "Every man has an indefeasible right to separate himself from the church by his own sole act." If a man joins an association by simply signing its articles of agreement, without any vote by the association itself, he ought to have the right to retire by formally requesting the secretary to erase his name. But if mere absenteeism constitutes a termination of his membership, without even the formality of a respectful notice, what association could possibly exist? If Plymouth Church means to declare that it does not require this formal notice, it has succeeded in making itself supremely ridiculous. Probably the "sole act" of the individual member means such a notice.

PROFESSOR WILLIAM C. RUSSEL, of Cornell University, delivered an address to the Delta Upsilon Fraternity at Amherat College some time since upon "Education and Character," which has now been put into pamphlet form. It lets the reader into a little of the secret of the great power exercised by Professor Russel over young minds, though the magnetism of presence and manner cannot be printed. He considers the influences of "indirect" education acting through the contacts of daily life, the press, the pulpit, politics, and business, and then the influence of our common schools, academies, and colleges,-all with reference to the formation of large and rounded character. The imperfection of all our existing educational institutions is brought to notice with a force of exposition not to be evaded. There is great need of moral as well as purely intellectual training, in order to secure such education as shall be "the development of brain-power and of earnest character;" and the State, the people as a whole, should furnish The whole address is alive with the very earnestness it would kindle, and must be read to be appreciated.

WHETHER ALL women who are earnestly striving to secure woman suffrage ought to imitate Miss Abby Smith, and others, in the refusal to pay their taxes until they get it, is not a question that any man can settle for them. But we would suggest that a parallel instance may be found in the case of those men who are conscientiously opposed to the exemption of churches from taxation, and whose taxes are increased in this State about a dollar a year, on the average, in consequence of this exemption. If a separate tax-bill were presented for this dollar, at least some men would refuse to pay it, and take the consequences, on the ground that such a tax was in direct violation of well-recognized rights of conscience. But as this is not the case, the dollar being lumped in with other taxes justly due, the only sensible course seems to be to pay the whole under protest, and meanwhile agitate for a repeal of the exemption laws. Women ought not to forget that they actually receive part of the protection they are taxed for, and that to refuse payment of all their taxes is to put themselves partly in the wrong. This fact is confusedly discerned by the community, and would go far to neutralize the moral effect of such a refusal. We merely offer this suggestion as a respectful contribution towards a right solution of the question.

"THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH," writes Theodore Tilton, "needs a Personal Liberty Law." This was wrung out of him by his hard experience of Congregationalism, as administered by the late Council. But he only sees half the truth yet, if he still believes that, with a personal liberty law, the Christian Church could survive. As well expect the "patriarchal institution" itself to survive the enactment of such a law! Christianity is the bondage of the intellect and conscience to certain sentiments which, beautiful and imperishable in themselves, become tyrants by usurpation of a supremacy that does not belong to them. Reverence, awe, aspiration, love, sorrow for wrong-doing, etc., enter as elements into every grand and noble nature. Yet let these and their kindred sentiments give the law to thought instead of taking the law from it, and you have superstition; and superstition never yet learned the meaning of the word freedom. The moment the mind is emancipated from all law save its own, the whole fabric of Christian doctrine melts into air, and the Church falls like a house of cards. It is not the Church that needs a personal liberty law, but humanity itself; and if Mr. Tilton learns the whole lesson of his conflict with the ecclesiastical spirit, he will see at last the irrefutable truth of THE INDEX position respecting Christianity. The Church cannot tolerate perfect liberty, either of thought or action; and in proportion as it tries to do so; it undermines its own foundations. Whoever wrestles with this truth will be cast by it; the "golden age" will tarry, till the world accepts it and ceases to battle against the nature of things.

PHISON REFORM.

That society has a right to protect itself from aggression on the part of lawless individuals, no one can reasonably or seriously deny; and this right of selfprotection includes the right to do whatever is really necessary to this end. On the unquestioned right of self-protection must rest all just control by the State over the life, liberty, or property of individuals. So far as such control is not absolutely required by the necessities of public peace and order, interferer with individuals by the State is tyrannical; and so far as the general object can be attained without interference with them, just so far have they the right to be uninterfered with. Individual rights are not all abolished or destroyed, even by crimes against society itself; on the contrary, society assumes new duties to individuals when it shuts them up in prison, and thus deprives them of the power to do what otherwise they would be justly expected to do for themselves. Good food and shelter and clothes, for instance, which in freedom every one is expected to provide for himself, must be provided for all prisoners by the State, whenever it exercises the right of depriving them of their freedom. The State has no right to starve or torture them, or in any way to subject them to unnecessary suffering; no more pain must be inflicted than is absolutely essential to protect society from positive injury.

Now an enlightened view of what self-protection. on the part of society requires does not stop with the mere imprisonment of criminals for a term of years; this of itself secures protection only during the continuance of the imprisonment. What will these criminals do, when released ? Will they become good citizens henceforth, or will they continue their depredations on society? There is no possibility of evading this question; it must be met. Hence it is not only the right of society to imprison offenders for a season, but also to take all possible precautions against the repetition of their offences after discharge from pris-This is the just basis of all reformatory prison discipline. The State has no more right to meddle with the morals of prisoners than with those of lawabiding citizens, except on this ground of preventing future crimes. It is the self-evident interest of the community to provide in all possible ways for the reabsorption of criminals into itself as peaceful and wellbehaved members. . The fact of crime already committed justifies a presumption that crime will be committed again; and this presumption alone gives the State a right to subject prisoners to reformatory discipline. It is easier and cheaper to prevent crime than first to suffer and then to punish it; and the problem "how to prevent crime" is one of the gravest and most important that now press upon public attention.

Is it not a striking illustration of the "solidarity of man," of the complete unity and identity of all human interests, that in this matter of criminal reformation the interests of the State and of the criminal are so manifestly identical? It is the interest of the criminal to become a good citizen; it is equally the interest of the State that he should become one. Thus the State's effort to secure a genuine moral reformation of all criminals, which must rest simply on its own right to protect itself, and cannot be grounded on any general philanthropic desire, actually contemplates the same object which the purest philanthropy of society and the real self-interest of the criminal alike propose. The prevention of crime in the first instance by wise and careful education of all children, which is of course the best of all policies, is not now under consideration ; crimes being once committed, the difficult task of accomplishing under all the disadvantages of prison surroundings what ought to have been done under easier conditions-namely, the training of unfortunate individuals to rational selfcontrol-must be undertaken, and this is what we are now considering. The criminal has been put in prison simply to protect society for a time from renewed assaults upon its security; and, once there, he is now subjected to reformatory discipline simply to protect society from such assaults after he is discharged. It is self-protection first and last and all the time; but if the State wisely conducts this process of reformatory discipline, it will simply do what it ought to have done before-educate the criminal by natural methods to a noble self-government. Neglect by the State of the duty of universal education is the chief cause of crime; now, in prisons, it is expensively and laboriously striving to remedy the gigantic evils that have grown out of its own neglect. But this simple and luminously clear philosophy of prison discipline is not yet comprehended by all; and the greatest obstacle to its consistent and successful application lies in the persistent survival of Christian superstition in prison.

Digitized by GOOGLE

186

officials, in the government, and in the community itself. When General S. E. Chamberlain, Warden of the Massachusetts State Prison, declares: "Our discipline is founded on divine laws, -a system of rewards and punishments" [Annual Report, October, 1873: page 8], and goes on to pour out a deluge of similar theological drivel, showing how ignorant he is of the fundamental principle that self-protection, not punishment, lies at the bottom of all justifiable prison discipline, he completely justifies the conclusion expressed by Mr. Frank B. Sanborn in the Springfield Republican, in a fine review of this very report: "General Chamberlain's intentions are good, but we fear he has mistaken his sphere in becoming a prisonwarden; as he certainly has over-estimated his own capacity to instruct the world in regard to prison discipline.'

A little volume of one hundred and forty-three pages, written by Miss Mary Carpenter (so widely known both in England and America in connection with this whole subject), and published in 1872 in London, gives a most instructive and absorbingly interesting account of the Irish Convict Prison system, as developed by Sir Walter Crofton. This system. though in some important respects adapted only to a small country like Great Britain, and not to a vast one like the United States, in which the division into separate political communities or States must prevent the possibility of establishing a "ticket-of-leave" sysan efficient "police supervision," etc., stands at the head of all existing prison systems in the enlightened principles and methods by which it undertakes the task of "transforming offenders into honest, selfsupporting men and women," and thereby "minimiz-ing crime in society." The practical success of this system has been simply wonderful, though the theoretical justification of it is not fully or satisfactorily set forth by Miss Carpenter. There are three grades of imprisonment in Ireland; the first being separate imprisonment in a "cellular prison" at Mountjoy, Dublin, for the first eight or nine months of the sentence,-the second being imprisonment in an "associated prison" at Spike Island or Philipstown,-and the third being imprisonment in an "intermediate prison" at Lusk Common, within fifteen miles of Dublin. The convict is transferred from one grade to another, according to the fitness he manifests, by a system of marks which enable him by industry and self-control to shorten greatly the term of his sentence. The higher he goes up in this scale, the larger liberty he wins, and the more confidence is placed in him; hope and bonorable ambition are stimulated, a hearty coöperation is secured between prisoners and officials, and every incentive is held out for an orderly and honest life. By developing selfrespect and self-control, and by providing beforehand for a fair start after discharge in some regular employment, the convict is made to see that his own best interests are carefully studied and promoted by the very State that has imprisoned him in self-defence; antagonism and revenge die out, the future comes bright to his anticipation, and reformation is in a very large per cent, of the cases actually secured through simple fidelity to the laws of human nature. This system was first tried about twenty years ago, and is still in most successful operation.

We wish that every person in the land might study this admirable little book, to the end that an intelligent public opinion, formed with due regard to the differences between Ireland and America, might necessitate the adoption of a better system of prison discipline than now prevails. Our own special interest in the subject has been very recently awakened by learning of abuses totally unsuspected by the public in the administration of at least one State Prison. Not wishing to be unjust to any one, we postpone further comments now; but we shall undoubtedly recur again to the subject, when more fully informed. If Free Religion means anything, it means the betterment of mankind; and the vast questions, how to prevent crime, and how to treat criminals, are among the most momentous to be answered. On these questions we have something to say; and nothing seems more directly in line with the general purpose of THE Index than to say it here.

LAW AND LOVE.

I have no doubt that, at some stage or other in our career, we shall be able to reconcile the elements that now seem hard to reconcile-law and love; scientific security on the one side, and faith in some personal guidance (using personal for want of a better word) on the other. It is plain that science is impossible, unless we assume the permanence of natural laws. On the other hand, there is so much more happiness in life, for almost all temperaments, in the belief in some personal relation to the Unseen-the abse of this seems to leave such a missing element in the noblest lives, as that of Stuart Mill-that most persons cling to it. For lives of sorrow and disappointment it seems almost essential.

"Ay, sooth we feel such strength in weal, thy power may he withstood,

But what are we in agony? Dumb, if we cry not God." I do not mean that this amotion is at all necessary to the moral heroism and self-devotion of a life. The contrary is evident. But for the full happiness and sweetness and loveliness of a life, through severe trial, it seems essential. Science gives truthfulness and patience and equable endurance, and those may sometimes be worth more, for practical purposes, than the heights of religious emotion, where these are matched by corresponding depths. But if they are not so counterbalanced, then the table-land attained by such emotion is higher, it seems to me, than anything which science, as such, can give. Such a type of sweet security as those lines of George Wither's describe :--

"I should not care how low my fortunes were, Might still my hopes be such as now they are Of help divine; nor fear how poor I be, If thoughts yet present still may bide in me,-For they have left assurance of such aid That I am of no danger now afraid.

I do not think we are called upon to surrender such motions as this, at the demand of science. For one, I do not propose to surrender them. Sometime they may be reconciled with science. "We are too young, by some years yet, to form a creed." Half knowledge may often show us more than greater knowledge; as night shows us myriad suns, and day but When I look up at the starry skies, and feel one. crushed with a sense of my own ignorance and remoteness from the knowledge of those wondrous worlds, it is not so very hard to waive some questions, and to leave them to be settled when we are wiser, Let us not fear anything that science can teach us. nor forget how little its utmost range can give, compared to the unknown.

One thing we can all observe. The wiser a parent is, the more thoroughly are love and law identified in his administration, till his providence so completely covers every fact of his child's life that his law never needs to be changed, yet adapts itself to all contingencies, so that the child finds literally no distinction between law and love. The parental care is absolutely unvarying, yet absolutely tender; the highest tenderness and highest wisdom coincide; there is no need of variableness, neither the shadow of turning. The parent knows what the child needs to ask for, and what he will ask for, better than the child himself knows. The guidance is not recognized by the child; he thinks himself free, and is free; but his freedom is exercised within the embrace of a larger wisdom, and his prayers are granted without violation of law, because the law foresaw and included them. This is the tendency of every wise parental government: to become, literally and actually, an earthly providence to the child. If now a human parent can attain to this, or at least tend toward it, cannot the Power that maintains the universe in existence do thus much, T. W. H. and mora?

THE WOMAN QUESTION AMONG THE FREEDWEN.

Some facts are stated in the book called Hampton and its Students which are interesting in their bearing on the woman suffrage question.

It says: "The proportion of girls to boys in the applicants for admission to the school is about two to three;" and, "as a general rule the young women are not so intensely alive as the young men are to the importance of au education."

Ask any young freedman what liberty means to him, and he will answer instantly, "Citizenship suffrage-the right to be an American citizen." Ask a young woman, and what could be the answer? Perhaps, not to be torn from her mother, not to be insulted by her master, not to be publicly whipped or sold. All negative values; but what great positive encouragement is open to her? It is well known that the negroes thoroughly believe in the old English law, and are fond of beating their wives; and many freedwomen refused to be legally married after their emancipation because they thus became legally enslaved to their husbands.

The writer goes on to say: "A higher stand-point than slavery has left her is necessary to see that freedom's rich gift to woman is better than the ballotbox, and imposes higher responsibility: the gift of home, the right to her husband, the right to her chli-dren, the right to labor for her loved ones in a secure ome, whose purity and happiness depend more than half upon herself. She does not dream that there is as much connection between arithmetic and housekeeping as there is between grammar and public speaking." No, she does not see it, because she has not the control even of her children or her home. She has the right to labor, as most slaves have; but she has not the control of the results of her labor, and she does not see that education is to bring her honor or profit. Women, no less than men, are social as well as domestic beings, and ask for a wider recognition and more extended usefulness than the narrow circle of home offers; and it is in vain to think that they will eagerly seek after knowledge, if they have no opportunities to make use of it.

E D. C.

AN ORTHODOX PUZZLE.

The following letter, mail-marked at Boston, March 12, was not meant, perhaps, for publication, but the writer (or writers) certainly cannot object if it be set to do a larger missionary work than with the one individual to whom it was addressed. The only way, too, in which I can give my new friend (or friends) the due consideration of an answer is through the press, since the letter does not name the present abode of "Paul and Cephas." One of my first im-pressions was that "Paul and Cephas" only furnished a disguise for some sarcastic radical; but on reflection I decide that it is a genuine and Orthodox epistie. Whether, however, the puzzle it presents will not perplex Orthodox believers more than rationalists, may be a question.

The second objection made is evidently the stronghold of "Paul and Cephas," and to that only will I call attention. The argument here presented has often occurred to my own mind,-though with a somewhat different application. I have long been accustomed to think that it is the old theological theory of a special revelation-the theory that Orthodox Ghristendom contends for-that is responsible for such modern religious demonstrations as Mormonism, Shakerism, Millerism, the Oneida Community. These all rest on the claim of a special divine communication made to certain Individuals, and to be accepted as authoritative, however much it may transcend or violate the dictates of reason and experience; and this is the same claim which Orthodoxy makes for the authority of the Bible. "Paul and Cephas" think these modern claims are "fanaticism;" but what is to decide between these claims and the claims which they make for the revelation in the Bible? Is there any other test except the general reason and experience of maukind, for distinguishing truth from error in the so-called "revelations" that are claimed to have been made? And to set forth this test, by the doctrine that "revelation takes place through the rational human consciousness," was the object of the discourse to which "Paul and Cephas" objected.

Alas! it is true, their "revelation assures many Mormons that polygamy is right," and there are men who do "claim concubinage as right" by revelation; but how will "Paul and Cephas" manage "from the Bible" to rout these claimants who bring up the example of Solomon and other worthies with their multitude of wives? The New Testament teaches, indeed, a better "standard of morals," but what tells us it is better? Surely, not any supports that are alleged for its miraculous authority,-for the old Testament, the Orthodox claim, also had these. It must be admitted that "many contradictory theories are begailing unsteady souls;" how many different and antagonistic interpretations, for instance, of the one infallible revelation in the Bible are put forth even by Orthodox Christians! How are we to know, among so many, which is the right interpretation of "the revelations of God"? Can "Paul and Cephas" tell W. J. P. ns?

Dear Sir, --- I have just read one of your discourses, entitled "Reason and Revelation," and I respectfully beg to present you with some objections to your con-clusion.

beg to present you with some opteriors of you then First, Christ was the fluisher of the Christian faith; you cannot, therefore, add to it. My second objection is this, and perhaps, as we un-derstand matters, the strongest one:-People may believe they have a revelation from God when they have none. All fanaticism is found-ed on such bellef, --Mormonism, Swedenborgianism, Millerism, and so forth. Therefore the Christian world needs a standard. So do all systems of belief; and they must be tried within defined limits. Sup-pose that men should claim concubinge as right, would it be so? Must not we have some standard of morais? And if man has a revelation to suit himself,

manning Google

may he not have as many wives as he can support? What is to prevent this? Revelation assures many Mormons that polygamy is right. Who is to decide the question?—the majority of people, or some man who has a revelation and reason to prove that he is who has a revelation and reason to prove that he is right? You see the danger of allowing every one to claim his own revelation; this was the case with William Miller, the deluded second advent man, and also with many dupes. They all claimed reason and revela-tion, especially the book of Daniel, for their support. Is there any way under heaven given to men where-by they can be saved, than the name and teachings of Jesus, the Christ, the only begotten son of God? On no other foundation than Jesus laid can any man build. Why, look at the Spiritualists; see how many conbild. Why, look at the Spiritualists; see how many con-tradictory theories are beguiling unsteady souls, and playing the very devil in the world. Satan assumes the livery of heaven, and decelves the very elect. Aside from the Bible, how are we to know the rev-elations of God ? Your friends, PAUL AND CETHAS.

LECTURE NOTICE.

Bishop Ferrette is to give a short course of three lectures at the New England Woman's Club Rooms, on Wednesday afternoons, beginning April 15.

We hope these lectures will be fully attended, They will be of a popular and entertaining character, and yet will impart much valuable information in regard to those interesting people who inhabit the ancient lands of the East.

The bishop has great power of lively narrative, and is sure to make his journey "from Bagdad to Damascus" full of interest to his hearers. He has much to say, too, about The Arabian Nights, of which we have in English only a garbled version. Bishop Ferrette's great learning and marvellous facility in the acquisition of languages enabled him to enter very fully into the thoughts and life of the people of the East, and his wide sympathies led him to look at their religion and customs without bigotry or prejudice.

We hope, too, our friends will avail themselves of his rare power as a teacher of languages; or rather, I might say, of language, for he goes deep down to the real meaning of all languages. We can speak from personal experience of him as a teacher in French. He bases the peculiarities of French pronunciation and idiom on law, and traces every deviation from the original type back to its source. He is equally interesting as a teacher in Greek, and would like to form classes in the language of the Koran.

E. D. C.

Literary Hotices.

THE SACRED ANTHOLOGY. A Book of Ethnical Script-Collected and Edited by Moncure D. Con-London: Trübner & Co. 1874. nres. way.

[The following passages, selected by W. C. G. from the Sacred Anthology, were crowded out of last eek's paper. They will be found to be of great inthe Sacred A week's paper. terest.-ED.]

(167.) Nánác lay on the ground, absorbed in devo-tion, with his feet towards Mecca. A Moslem priest, seeing him, cried, "Base infidel' how dar's thou turn thy feet towards the house of Allah?" Nánác an-swered, "And thou,-turn them, if thou can'st, tow-ards any spot where the awful house of God is not?"

(IPersian.) (151.) The East and the West are God's, therefore whichever way ye turn, there is the face of God.

whichever way ye turn, there is the face of God. (Koran.) (412.) The roads leading to God are more in num-ber than the breathings of created beings. (Persian.) (120.) Ride thou on for eternity through the heaven, mounted on thy ideal, thou shalt not stride beyond his threshold! Soar thou beyond all limit to the roof of the universe, thou shalt not stride beyond in threshold! Soar thou beyond all limit to the roof of the universe, thou shalt not stride beyond in the place of bodles like a drop in the ocean of souls; and I saw the place of souls like a drop in the ocean of souls; afrog in the ocean of the Divine Essence. (Persian.) (182.) Stand or walk or ride, lie down or rise from sleep, (162.) Stand or walk or ride, lie down or rise from sleep, Go with thy friend to a corner and whisper him se-crets to keep,— And Varuna, the Lord of the Worlds, knows all! He is there as the third! The firmaments two, of ocean and sky, are the loins of the Kine.

The firmaments two, of ocean and say, are she token in King. But the King, he sitteth on his throng in the dewdrop's tiny ring. Who files from Varuna beyond the stars straight to Varuna

And he knoweth and counteth, one by one, the twinklings of our eyes: (Hindu. See Max Müller's Chips, I., 41,-versified.)

(122.) Which is the great name of God? Tell me his least name, and I will return to thee his greatest.

his least name, and I will return to mee his greatest. (Perslan.) (411.) Clear have we made our signs for men of in-sight. God causeth the grain and the date-stone to put forth, he causeth the dawn to appear, he hath or-dained the stars. God is not ashamed to set forth the parable of a gnat as well as any nobler thing.

The believers will know it to be the truth from their

The believers will know it to be the truth from their Lord. (Koran.) (118.) God hath made all atoms in space mirrors, and fronteth each one with his perfect face. Would'at know where I found the Supreme? One step beyond myself. Behind the reil of self shines unseen the beauty of the Loved One. (Persian.) (102.) Thou art smaller than the smallest, and greater than the greatest. Seeming many, thou art one. O Universal Pervader! Where need of thee is, there art thou! (Hindu.)

there art thou! (Hindu.)
(106.) Within my heart God's golden feet
I place, that I with God may meet.
If he be mine, what can I need?
Then everywhere to God does lead.
Within, beyond man's highest name,
My God existent still the same;
In sacred books, in darkest night;
In the blue deeps of heavonly light;
Aut in bis faithful few on earth.
(Hindu versified.)

(Hindu versified.) (113.) Heaven and carth take refuge with these as a child with its mother. I celebrate the thought of the beneficent Father and the sovereign Mother, from whom all creatures have proceeded, an offspring shar-ing their inmortality. (Hindu.) (253.) The knowledge which men call certainty I deem the faintest dawn of thought. My heart is pearl, ocean, diver. I am myself hell, purgatory, and paradise. These verses bear witness to a free thinker who belongs to a thousand sects. (Persian.)

(360.) "O prophet," said one, "my mother is dead; what is the best aims I can give away for her soul?" Mahomet bethought him of the paning heats of the desert, and said, "Dig a well for her, and give water to the thirsty." The man dug a well and said,
"This is for my mother." (Mohammedan.)
(375.) Those destitute of love appropriate all they have to themselves; those who possess love consider even their bones to belong to others. (Bindu.)
(353.) Never will I seek nor receive private, individual salvation,—never enter into final peace alone; but forever and everywhere will I live and strive for the universal redemption of every creature throughout all worlds. Until all are delivered, never will I leave the world of sin, sorrow, and struggle, but will remain where I am. (Chinese Buddhist.)
(212.) Know this well, O King, that whatever cermonies prescribed in the Vedas bring needless pain or death contain no virtue and conduct to no beatige.

emonies prescribed in the Vedas bring needless pain or death contain no virtue and conduct to no beati-tude. A Veda void of mercy is a Holy Scripture only in name. O King, not even a god could possess virt-ue did he not also possess mercy. And he alone is the true worshipper of God-be he Brahmin or Pariah—who cherishes all beings with generosity and compassion. (Hindu.) (125.) The man who considers all beings as exist-ing even in the Supreme Spirit, and the Supreme Spirit as pervading all beings, henceforth views no creature with contempt. (Hindu.) (444.) He who reproaches the pariah is baser than he. Of what caste is He who speaks in the pariah! (Hindu.)

he. Of what casts is He who speaks and (Hindu.) (737.) Justice is so dear to the heart of Nature that, if in the last day one atom of injustice were found, the universe would shrivel like a snake-skin to cast it off forever. (Hindu.) (329.) Whoso would carelessly tread one worm that crawls on earth, that heartless one is darkly allenate from God; but he that, living, embraceth all things with his love, to dwell with him God bursts all bounds above, below. (Persian.)

(52.) Nánác says: "He alone is a true Hindu whose heart is just; and he alone a true Mussulman whose life is true." (Persian.)
(58.) A man does not become a Brahmana by his platted hair, by his family, or by both; in whom there is truth and righteousness, he is the true Brahmana. (Buddhist.) (Buddhist.)

(Buddhist.) (210.) He who has controlled his own spirit and de-sires gathers the fruit of a pilgrimage. The virtuous man's home is his desert of devotion. Thyself art the sacred river; its waters, truth; its banks, right con-duct; its waves, benevolence. Here wash thy lips, for the interior soul is not purified by holy water! If truth be placed in a balance with a thousand sacri-fices of horses, truth will outweigh a thousand sacri-fices. (Hindu.) (412.) The world is a man, and man is a world. (Persian.)

dices. (Hindu.)
(412.) The world is a man, and man is a world.
(Persian.)
(170.) May that soul of mine, which contains all Sacred Scriptures and texts, as spokes held in the axle of the chariot-wheel, and into which the essence of all created forms is interwoven, be united by devout meditation with the Spirit supremely blest and supremely intelligent! (Hindu.)
(554.) The principles of great men illuminate the universe. (Chinese.)
(355.) This great, rich earth, with all its generations of men, is vigilant that sorrow shall not come upon kind hearts. (Hindu.)
(528.) Do thou only not withdraw thy neck from the yoke of God, and nothing shall be able to withdraw its neck from thy yoke. (Persian.)
(734.) A Durwaish in his prayer said: "O God, show pity towards the wicked; for on the good thou hast already bestowed mercy by having created them virtuous." (Persian.)

(323.) When a man dies, mortals will ask, "What property has he left behind him?" but angels will inquire, "What good deeds hast thou sent before thee?" (Mohammedan.) (637.) In Paradise there met the soul of the departed one a beautiful maiden, whose form and face were charming to heart and soul. To her he said, "Who art thou, than whom none so fair was ever seen by me in the land of the living?" The malden replied, "O youth, I am thy actions."

"O youth, I am thy scions." (728.) In a region of bleak cold wandered a soul which had departed from the earth; and there stood which has departed round the earth; and there stood before him a hideous woman, profigate and de-formed. "Who art thou?" he cried. "Who art thou, than whom no demon could be more foul and horrible?" To him she answered, "I am thy own actions." (Parsee.)

normole." To him she answered, "I am thy own actions." (Parsee.)
(709.) Not in the sky, not in the midst of the sea, not if we enter into the clefts of the mountains, is there known a spot in the whole world where a man might be freed from an evil deed. (Buddhist.) (730.) I saw in hell one whose body a noxious creature gnawed, but his right foot was not gnawed. The angel said to me, "This is the soul of a lazy man, who when living never did any good work; but with that right foot which suffers not, a bundle of grass was cast before a ploughing ox." (Parsee.)
(720.) On the day when all shall give an account of their deeds, not a grain shall be taken of that which thou hast reaped, but a barvest shall be demanded of that which thou hast not sown. (Persian.)
(034.) Your savior is your deeds, and God himself. (Parsee.)

(034.) 1 (Parsee.)

(Paisee.) New RESEARCHES ON ANCIENT HISTORY: Embrac-ing an Examination of the History of the Jews un-til the Captivity of Babylon; and showing the Ori-gin of the Mosaic Legends concerning the Creation, the Fall of Man, Flood, and Confusion of Lan-guages. By C. F. Volney, Count and Peer of France, author of The Ruins; or, Meditations on the Resolutions of Empires, etc. Boston: published by J. P. Mendum, at the office of the Boston In-vestigator. 1874. No better idea can be given of this book, with its we conceive we have established the truth of the fol-lowing propositions — "First, that the book called Genesis is essentially distinct from the four others that follow it.

"First, that the book called Genesis is essentially distinct from the four others that follow it. "Secondly, that the analysis of its several parts proves it to be, not a national book of the Jews, but a Chaldean monument, revised and arranged by the high-picet. Hilkink, so as to produce a premeditated effect, political as well as religious. "Thirdly, that the pretended genealogy, mentioned in the tenth chapter, is in reality but a nomenclature of the nations, known to the Hebrews at that time, and that it forms a geographical system in the style, and according to the genius of, the Orientalists. "Fourthly, that the pretended antediluvian and post-diluvian chronology, so improbable, and even so absurd, is not, until the time of Moses, anything more than an allegorical fiction of ancient astrologers, whose enigmatical language, like that of the modern alchemists, first led into error the superstitious vul-gar, and afterwards, in process of time, the learned becert doctrine. "Fifthly, the true chronology did not and could not commence before the true history of the Jewish tibe; that is, the period when their legislator Moses united them into one national body. "Sixtily, that nevertheless, even at this period, no regular calculation can be discerned in the Hebrew books; that it is not until the pontificate of Ell, tweive centuries before our era, that one begins to find a continued chaln of dates and facts, meriting the name of Annals. "Seventhy, finally, that these Annals were drawn the name of Annals.

find a continued chain of dates and facts, meriting "Seventhy, finally, that these Annals were drawn up with such negligence, and transcribed with such negutation of the seventhy for the sevent

No such Worn.—The late Mr. Choate was one day taking up his papers at the conclusion of a long hearing before a referee, when the latter, referring to a particular branch of the case, said: "It seems to me, Mr. Choate, that there are some hlatt in the evi-dence upon this point." "Oh, no, Brother So-and-So," replied the advocate, "that is impossible: It can-not be so in the very nature of things, for hlatus is of the fourth declension."

THE DEVIL has been badly worsted by Rev. J. B. Sylvester of Chatham Centre, N. Y., who writes to the Christian Advocate as follows: "A few weeks ago, the devil got up a ball (or dance) on my charge. I announced that we would have seven prayer-meet-ings for each ball. The movement resulted in four-teen prayer-meetings, at which the church was greatly quickened."

THE INDEX-APRIL 16, 1874.

Communications.

THE NAME.

<section-header><section-header><section-header><text><text>

[Would our correspondent have advised the Free Religious Association to dub itself "The Men" at the iart? Or how can it now modify its name so as to merit his unqualified approval? We confess a little curiosity to learn the answer to these queries.—ED.]

PROPERTY RIGHTS.

EDITOR INDEX :

I am glad that the columns of your good paper are open to all wise reforms, and am, as you are already aware, especially interested in the discussion of prop-open to all wise reforms, and all, as you are arrows, aware, especially interested in the discussion of prop-etty rights. Wishing to "be true" to my principle, and "not finch from its logical consequences," I would ask, in reply to Mr. Abbot's arguments of January 26 and March 5 (that the only way to establish the husband-man's "right to the whole crop" is to abandon the cost principle, and vindicate it by conceding "the rightiliness of taking interest"), whether, admitting that the crop "is the product of Nature's energy," it follows that the husbandman, in accepting it, receives his "value increased by the energy of the users"? If, as Mr. Abbot argues, a claim to it as "the wages of Nature, given him for guiding and protecting her energy," is not valid, for the reason that he has "com-terred on Nature no benefit," and made her "no bet-ter ofi," and "rendered to her no equivalent what-ever," then, as the "invested capital" was no more beinficial to her than the labor, which Mr. Abbot ways was of no benefit, the logical consequence of Mr. Abbot's argument is the destruction of his own vin-dication.

As proof that the whole crop in excess of the seed is the wages of Nature, given for guidance and pro-tection afforded her energies, let the doubter invest seed without any labor, and learn whether or not Nature will "concede the rightfulness of taking inter-er"

Astere will "concede the rightfulness of taking inter-et." When Mr. Abbot says, "A quantity of corn equal to what he planted, plus a quantity of corn exactly spaal to the value of his time and labor, is all that the cost principle will allow to be justly his,"-does be not admit all that we claim for the farmer? His error consists in making a false comparison between the labor and the corn. The criterion of the real cost of labor may be dis-cased in the future. Meantime, will Mr. Abbot give is a criterion of the true rate of interest, or increase, that Nature and man should comply with? Since Mr. Abbot defends usry, and justifies the akung of "value increased by the energy of the surger," let him apply his principle to Nature, in her dealings with men, and inform us how and when his principle is observed; and how much interest, or increase. Nature may rightfully require at their acquiralent" for all her investments in mankind? Or that mankind do not get an "equivalent" for investments in Nature? Would Nature create mankind at a loss? Or do men receive either more or less from Nature than they give up to her?

We agree with Mr. Abbot that the cost principle "rests on another principle back of itself," but we do not accept his definition of it, namely: "The right of labor to its own products is the only valid property-right," in the sense in which Mr. Abbot uses it; for he makes no provision for exchange with Nature, where man's labor simply guides or protects.
Natural law limits all property to those qualities and conditions of things produced either by human energy or by that of animals or Nature, while guided or protected by it. To "be true" to this principle we hold that cost abould be the limit of price in order to protect the inviolable rights of property.
Remove all unjust restrictions from, and protect the inglish of, each individual, and the advantages of preserving property by a sclenific and just exchange will soon induce even selfishness, when enlightened, to sell at cost, or less.
Respectfully, Wm L. HENERLING.
BATH, Ill., April 2, 1874.

[How either "selfishness" or unselfishness can long afford to "sell at cost, or less," it passes our ability to comprehend. It is certainly as unjust to take less, as to charge more, than cost. But as we find the differ-ent advocates of the cost principle taking positions which are mutually contradictory, we shall refrain from further comment till we consider the statement of this principle by Mr. Warren, its promulgator.-ED.]

LICENSE TAX ON SECTARIAN PROPERTY. BY BISHOP FERRETTE.

The advocates of Church Property Taxation have done their task so admirably that I have nothing to add to their arguments. Assuming, then, as demonstrated by others, the proposition that CHURCH PROPERTY SHOULD CEASE

Assuming, then, as demonstrated by others, the proposition that CHUBCH PROPERTY SHOULD CEASE TO BE EXEMPT FROM TAXATION, it is my present ob-ject to introduce the further proposition that ALL SEC-TARIAN PROPERTY, BESIDE BEING TAXED AS OTHER PROPERTY, SHOULD PAY A SPECIAL LICENSE-TAX. By sectarian property I do not mean church prop-erty, as such, alone. Sectarian property includes not only the clurch property of sects, but also that of their schools, hospitals, and other institutions, the submitted to a sectarian condition. On the other hand, church property is not necessarily sectarian, for the Church, considered in its essence, is not sec-tarian but human. I can easily conceive a church simply catholic in the human sense, and baving noth-ing sectarian at all. The Unitarian Church might, perhaps, lay claim to be that church; and it is on the ground of its having that character that most of its members, so far as I am aware, adhere to it. Uni-tarians call themselves Christians; but Christianity, in their eyes, is not a sectarian butel. It is a special assertion of the great universal human truth, which did not originate in Jesus. Jesus professed it be-cause it was true. It is not, however, the position of the Unitarian did not originate in Jesus. Jesus professed it be-cause it was true. It is not, however, the position of the Unitarian Church that I am now discussing, but the necessity of imposing a License Tax on Sectarian Property. If the Unitarian Church is a sect, it should, according to my proposition, pay the license tax as any other sect, without any favor. By a license tax I mean not such license as is im-posed on merchants and some professional men for mere fiscal purposes; but such license as is imposed by the State on some special kinds of property, such as whiskey and distilleries, for the moral purpose of checking the development of social evils promoted by them.

as whiskey and distilleries, for the moral purpose of checking the development of social evils promoted by them. In admitting that such establishments, where they easily heavy license tax, I do not wish to be understood as taking side in the quarrel which now divides the State of Massachusets as to whether those industries should be allowed to exist at all. If they do not exist, they cannot be taxed. If they cannot be taxed. If they cannot be made to cease to exist, no one will deny that they should be kept in check by special taxation. Likewise I do not assert that deeds of trust for the application of property to sectarian purposes should be recognized as valid by the law. I think, on the contrary, that, while the deed itself might be held valid, the sectarian condition should be cancelled, because IT IS IMMOBAL TO MAKE THE PROFESSION of A SECTABIAN OPINION A CONDITION FOR THE RECEIVING OF MONEY. All religious conditions, such as of changing or not changing one's religion, are reputed immoral by the French law, and in all such cases the property passes to the beneficiary whether he performs the condition or not. The law of this country should certaioly be modified in this sense, and will no doubt be at no very distant period. But assuming the law to be what it is, and the temporter of property such the sect of as valid, the law should make an unfavorable conditions, just as it does in the case of distilleries and whiskey-shops where they are allowed to exist; on the ground that all these things tend to deteriorate public morals. Sectarian trust-deeds tend to prolong the life of creeds so abaurd that neither the people who profess them, can believe them. The hypocrisy thus maintained among certain classes of religious is adding them, can believe them. The hypocrisy thus maintained among certain classes of religious and gambling-houses lead to prostitution, theft, and murder. Clergymen of all denominations should welcome the passage of a law which would invalidate the sectarian condition in all deeds under which their emoluments, places of worship, or the ecclesiaatical property of their respective denominations are held. Such a law would be to them what Lincoln's Procla-nation of Emancipation was to the negroes: it would elevate them to a new sense of their dignity as mcn. But until that millennium, that year of the deliver-ance of the Lord, comes, there should be a tax on re-ligious slavery just as there is one on whiskey and on tobacco.

"PROPERTY" AND "POSSESSION,"

BOSTON, March 30, 1874.

MR EDITOR :-

ity. Under these circumstances I would like to ask Mr.

eywood— 1st. Has A the right to accept this bonus from B? 2d. If so, is not this selling what his labor did not create? 3d. If otherwise, then by what right does A hold and enjoy these natural advantages which are as much B's as his? In other words, what right has man to possess property, if he has not the right to dispose of it?

"SCIENTIFIC ETHICS."

MR. ABBOT:

MR. ABBOT:--I have just finished reading your lecture on "Scientific Ethics," published in THE INDEX of March 12, and can assure you that one of your readers did not "pass it over as even more dry than long." It impresses me with its comprehensive and grand ideas, disappointing me only in its brevity. Though the snalysis to which you subject moral science goes far beyond the "thus far" of my religious education, and rational conclusions as yours. Certainly no one can esteem moral science less, or find any justification for delinquency in duty, from reading such a respect-ful, sincere, and profound treatise of the subject as yours. Under the tyranny of a hereditary religious intolerance that attempts to fetter the spirit and mind of progress with the narrow conceptions of the past, such thoughts come to the earnest seekers of truth like the hope of deliverance to the long immured capitre. "The tyrar discusses in an uncoutivocal manner" like the hope of deliverance to the long immured captive. THE INDEX discusses in an unequivocal manner the very subjects that I have been interested in for several years, and is doubtless satisfying the require-ments of this thinking age more than any other paper that claims to be an index of religious thought. It appears to me that the enlightened world is dis-carding the superstition and bigotry of past ecclesias-ticiam, and beginning to comprehend true religion in its sublime, catholic, and ennobiling nature. This golden science, for which so many base coun-terfeits have been imposed on ignorant credulity, is now pointing asplring humanity to larger attainments and more perfect relations than the churches of the past have conceived of. Yours truly, H. CLAY NEVILLE. PLEASANT MOUNT, MO.

CERTAINLY a large proportion and the best of the pleasantries in the Drawer come from and are about the clergy. Here is one of the Rev. Mr. —, who had taken into his service, for general utility, a poor lad, and for whose spiritual welfare he was, of course, bound to look out. Desiring one morning to put in practice his benevolent intent, he called the boy to his study, and with visage of the gravest sort, said :-"Sam, do you know you are a sinner?" "Yes," falteringly replied Sam. "Do you know what will become of you, if you do not repent?" Receiving no coherent reply, he launched into re-

Receiving no coherent reply, he launched into re-pentance and redemption, encouraged by the evident impression made by his words, and feeling no small compunction the while that he had so long neglected a "subject of grace" so promising. At last a vacant and wandering look roused a sudden suspicion, to verify which he inquired:— "Sam, what is a sinner?" Imagine the situation when the "subject of grace" promptly responded:— "Sinner, sir? Yes, sir; sinners is strings in tur-keys' legs, sir." The sinews of the parson's face relaxed.—Harper's Weekly. Receiving no coherent reply, he launched into re-

Weekly. 3000 Diangenby

		A	lve	rf	is	en	ne	nt	8.
r	н	E	P	A	т	R	0	N	A,G	E

of the liberal advertising public is respect-fully solicited for THE HORX. The attempt will be honestly made to keep the advertis-ing pages of THE HORX in entire harmony with fits general character and principles, and thus to fornish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their most generous support. To this end, all improper or "blind" advertisements, all quark adver-tisements, and all advertisements believed to be fraudaleot or unjust to any one, will be excluded from these columns. No cuts will be admitted. THE HORX must not be held responsible excluded from these commune. As the second texcluded from these communes and the held responsible for any statement made by advertisers, who will in all cases accept the responsibility for their own statements.

ADVERTISING RATES.

For 1 to	12	Insertions,	10e	per	line,
66 1 8 66	25	66	A	- 44	- 66
46 26 66	51	64	6	66	66
46 52	~	66	5	- 64	46

On half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent, on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

CIRCULATE! Circulate!! Circu-net THOSE PETITIONS. Don't feel satis-fed when your petition is a yard long, unless you have asked every one to sign it. Get good, influ-ential names.

GET EVERYBODY.

Don't neglect to show the petition to any one, cause he is a stockholder in some church, or ther exempted property, as many such persons dmit the justice of the demand; and those who il not should be made to take the responsibility other examples of the branches of the the response will not should be made to take the response of refusing to sign it. Don't dolay ! We want the petitions returned

Per order of EXEC. COMM. of the BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON, has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE BUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX.

A Werkly Paper devoted to Free and Rational Religion.

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public atterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and best matured thought of the age on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the social and political amelioration of society.

It is edited by FRANCISE. ABBOT, assisted by ABBAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of Editorial Contributors:-

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I. WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverhill, Mass. RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Flain, Mass. REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England.

PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng. Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX. as the best popular exponent of Religious Liberalism. Every Christian minister, and every thinking church-member, should subscribe for it. as the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly exposition of the differences between Free Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the arguments and the movements which the Church will have to meet in the future.

Almost every number contains a discourse or leading article, which alone is worth the price of one year's subscription.

Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a letter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1875, says: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Religion in the widest sense of the word should be felt in America-that such a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your country,-is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of so-called religious or theological periodicals is, as you know. very large." And later still: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest."

Send $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for three months on trial.

Address THE INDEX.

No. I Tremont Place, Boston

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS ] OF LEADING INDEX WRITERS. Including O. B. FROTHINGHAM, T. W. HIGGINSON, W. J. POTTER, W. H. SPENCER, F. W. NEWMAN, CHAS. VOYSEY, A. W. STEVENS, F. E. ABBOT, Are now for sale at the office of THE INDEX. Are now for sails at the once of The InDian, and will be mailed postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 25 cents each: complete Set of Eight Photographs, $1.50. Address,					TB	E D	IDF	x,

	- 1	No.	Tr	emon	t Pla	ice,	Boat	ton,	Ma	83.
-	N	D	E	x	т	R	A	C	т	8

No. 1.-Truths for the Times, by F. E Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Principles." MR. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Species," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-mally intended for publication, but subse-quently authorized to be used: "I have now read 'Thurns FOR THE TREES,' and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 2 .- Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char-acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are worthy of the nineteenth century. New Edi-tion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 3.—Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfec-tions and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No.4.-Christian Propagandism, by F. No. 5. - Unristian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 19 contex 100. 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5.-""God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the Unit-ed States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 copics $1.00.

No. 5.- "The Sabbath," by Parker Pills bury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00

No. 7.-44 Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cepts.' No. 5 .- The Present Heaven, by O. B.

Frothingham, treats of a subject that intaresta everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10.-The Impeachment of Christi-anity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12.-Is Romaniam Real Christian-Ity? Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies

Prof. P. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

Boston, Mass.

THE INDEX,

8

A Weekly Journal DEVOTED TO

FREE RELIGION.

PUBLISHED BY THE

INDEX ASSOCIATION. AT

> No. I Tremont Place, Boston. EDITOR:

FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR: ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.

RDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS:

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.L. W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass

R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass Mus. E. D. CHENEY, Jamalca Plain, Mass

F. W. NEWMAN, England.

CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX sime

To increase general intelligence with resp to religion :

To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a high purpose, both in society and in the indi-vidual:

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal end for absorption in selfish schemes.

In brief, to hasten the day when Free Belign brief, to hasten the day when Free Heig-ion shall take the place of dogmatian and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is specially devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the parpose of securing the more complete and con-sistent secularization of the political and ed-ucational institutions of the United States. The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an un-broken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize THE INDEX will be hencevoria to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading paper or essay of a thoughtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX.

Regular editorial contributions will con-tinue to be furnished by the well-known eminent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high po-sition. Mr. VOYSEY has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to rad-ical readers. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from valuable books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to e as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the country. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by choque, registered let-ter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case Address . THE INDEX.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

4. PUBLICATIONS.

OF TES

FREE

RELIGIOUS

ASSOCIATION.

Report of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Mest-ing in 1867, at which the Free Religious Association was Organ-ized. Containing addresses by 0. B Froth-ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucretis Mott Robert Dale Owen. John Weiss Oliver Johns Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver John-son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Hig-ginson, and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not as this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meet-ing, 1869. 60 cents. Contains essays by Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and Re-straint in Religion," and by David A. Wasstraint in neugron," and by David A. Was-son on "The Belation of Social Science to Beligion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Denton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Bar-tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outlines of Judaism" by Rabbi Wise.

Proceedings of Third Annual Meet-ing, 1870. 60 cents. Contains essays by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the Free Religious Association," followed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Re-ligion as a Social Force, especially in rela-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religious Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Age;" an essay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions." fol-lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judaism," by lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judaism," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedanism," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Religions of China," and Wm. J. Potler on "Religion of the State of the State of the State of the State State of the State of the State of the State of the State State of the State of the State of the State of the State State of the State of the State of the State of the State State of the State of the State of the State of the State State of the State of China," and Wm. J. Potter on "Heligton Old and New in India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. R. Calthrop, Rabbi Wise, and others.

cedings of Fifth Annual Meet-Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meei-ing, 1872. 35 cents. (Four or more, 25 cents each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Müls on "Religion as the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Froth-neham. of "IThe Falleion of Humanity." or the Human Mind," and by O. B. Frob-ingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cella Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C.A. Bartol, Horace Beaver, Alexander Loos, nd others.

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meei-ing, 1873. 25 cents. (Four or more, 25 cents each.) Contains essays by Samuel Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and by John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Dals Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longfei-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lu-cretis Mott. low, J. S. Thomse cretia Mott.

Sympathy of Religions, by T. W. Higginson. 25 cents.

Religions of Chins, by Wm. H. Channing. 25 cents.

Beason and Revelation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jas. Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of ten, 00 cents; of one hundred, $5.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Beligious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1872 is quite limited. Orders by mail may be addressed either "Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass.

WM. J. POTTER, Sec. F. R. d.

No. 9.-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous character of the attempt to interpolate the Evan-gelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Consti-tution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

five to one hundred copies.

$1.00.

No. 13 .- On the Vision of Heaven

No. 14. - A Study of Religion : The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself the popular conceptions of Religion Itself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address

THE INDEX, 1 TREMOST PLACE,

POPULAR BOOKS,	DESCARTES (RENE.) Discourse on the Method of Rightly conducting the Reason and Seaking Truth in the Sciences	LEWIN (REV. RAPHAEL, D'C). What is Ju- dalsm? or, a Few Words to the Jews 1.00	The Virginians. Esmond, and Lovel the Widower.
SENT BY MAIL	DICKENS' Child's History of England 1.59 ELIOT'S (GEORGE) Novels. Household Edi-	LONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Poems, Portrait. 2 vois 4.00 Prose Works, Portrait 4.00	Esmond, and Lovel the Widower. Miscellaneous Writings. Household Edi- tiou. Uniform with the Novels. Com- plete in Svois. With new Portrait. Pervol. 1.25
AT .	tion. 5 vols., each		This edition includes all the matter in the lat- est English editions, with many additions, thus making it, with the novels, the chespest and most complete Thackersy in the market.
PUBLISHERS' PRICES!	Bomola, The Mill on the Floes, Feilt Holt. Slias Marner and Scenes of Clarical Life,	Among my Hooks	1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Diamond, &c.
ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.	The Same. Library Editor. 2 vola. 3.50 Middlemarch. 2 vola. 1.50 Wit and Wildom of	LUBBOCK (SIR JOHN), Origin of Civiliza- tion, and the Primitive Condition of Man. 2.00 Pre-historic Times	<ol> <li>Snobs, Sketches, Denje Duval, &amp;c.</li> <li>Four Georges, Humoritak, &amp;c.</li> <li>Catherine, Uhristmas Books, and Unre- printed Pieces.</li> <li>THAXTEE'S (MRA: CELIA) Among the</li> </ol>
NO ETTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.	Lessys. Socond Series	LYELL'S Principles of Geology. 2 vols 8.00 Elements of Geology	THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden, or Life in
ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other	Poems With Portrait	Daughter. 1.50 MANN (HORACE). The Life of Horace Mann. By his Wife. 3.00 Lecture and Annual Reports on Education. 2.00	the Woods 2.00 Excursions in Field and Forest. Portrait. 1.00 The Maine Woods 2.00 Cape Cod. 2.00
OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt	May-day and Other Pieces		Letters of orders accompanied with the CASE.	Prose Works. 2 vols	1946	Rivers
Orders are respectfully solicited from	EVANS (E. P., Pb. D). First Historical Transformations of Christianity. From the French of Athanase Coquerel the	MARTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosoph- ical and Theological. 2 vols. Por vol 2.50 The New Affinities of Faith	of Mankind. 2.50 Primitive Culture. 2 vols
all friends of THE INDEX.	Younger 1.50 The Life and Works of Gotthold Epiraim Lessing. Translated from the German of Adolf Stahr. 2 vols. 5.00	MAURICE (REV. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind	VOYSEY (REV. CHABLES.) The Sling and the Stone. Vola I. and V., each
Price	FARRAR'S Critical History of Free Thought, in reference to the Christian Beligion 2.00	MERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of the Boman Empire. 1.50 Conversion of the Northern Nations 1.50
ALCOTT (A. BEONSON). Tablets	FEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Resence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation. 3.00	MILL (JOHN STEART ) Dimentations and	WARNER'S (CHARLES D.) My Summer in a Garden. 1.00 Sannterings. 1.30 Back-Log Studies. 2.00
ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women. Two vols Hospital Sketches and Camp and Fireside 1.50	FROTHINGHAM (O B) Ballelon of Hu-	Discussions. 4 vols., each	WEISS (JOHN.) American Beligion 1.50
Storing Rashionad Girl	mahity 1.80 Bellefs of the Unbellevers 20 Child's Book of Religion 1.00 Life of Theodore Farker	William Hamilton, 2 volume, and a state of the policy of Auguste Comte. 1.50 Political Economy. New and revised edi- tion	Life of Theodore Parker. 2 vols
· Little Men	FULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 6 yols	tion 1.00 The Subjection of Women 1.25 Essay on Liberty 1.25 Representative Government 1.00	WHIPPLE'S (E. P.) Literature and Life
Ky Boys, 20. Rhawi-Siraps		Autobiography 2.20	A PRUMERON BUG COM TOLADOR
ARNOLD'S (MATTHEW) Essays in Criti-	GOETHE'S Faust, Translated into English Verse by Bayard Taylor, 2 vols. Per vol 5.00 Elective Affaildes, Instantiated by Thomas Carlyie, Portrait of Goethe, 2 vols	MILLER (JOAQUIN.) Songs of the Sierrae. 1.50 Songs of the Sun Lands	WEITNEY'S (MRs. A. D. T.) A Summer in Loslie Goldthwaltow Life
Literature and Dogma 1.50	Carlyle. Portrait of Goethe, 2 vols	Species	Real Folks
AUERBACH (BEETHOLD), On the Heights. 1.50 Yills Eden; The Country-House on the Rhine	OREG'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Life	Roussean, 2 vola	WHITTIER'S (JOHN G.) Poems. 2 vols 4.00 Child Life
German Tales 1.00	Greed of Christendom	Time Stories
BACON'S Essays 1.00 BACEHOT on the English Constitution 2.25	uments, Private Memoranda, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grots. Second Edition. With For-	MUELLER (MAX, M.A.) Lectures on the Science of Language, First Sories
BAIN (ALEXANDER). Mental Science: A	STAIL 5.00	Essays on the Science of Heligion, Vol. II. Essays on Mythology, Traditions,	ADDR#86:
Philosophy A Compandiant of Ethics.	HAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter's Camp. Book I. In England. Book II. In Scotiand. Book III. In France	erature, Blography and Antiquities. Three vols. Frice per volume	THE INDEX.
1 vol. 1.75 The Bouses and the Intellect, Third edi- tion, 1 vol. 5.00	Thoughts about Art. 2.00 The Unknown River. 6.00 The Intellectual Life	NASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Round	INC INDEX,
BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americanisms. 2.59 BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations	Chapters on Animals	the Cirkle	a management through the second augent (Der (1 A) Radical Problems 2.00	ond Child World. Part First	NEWMAN (FRANCIS W.) & History of the Hebrew Monarchy	1 Tremont Place, Botton.
The Rising Faith. 2.00 BASTIAN (H. CHARLTON). The Begin- nings of Life, 7 vols	HAMILTON'S Loctares, 1. Metaphysical Lectures	Hebrew Mark Franklis W.J. & massly of the 4.50 Phases of Faith; or, Passages Trom the History of my Creed	HALF-HOUR RECREATIONS
aver with ship Bachille Galacela	HAWTHORNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works.	of the Future, as the Organization of Philanthropy. 1.75 Their Doorfinal and Practical 1.75	-18-
Bibling in the Facada School . Becords, Argumonts, and Deciston in the case of John D. Minor et al. vs. the Board of Education of the city of Chindmati dat in the Supremo Court of the City of	A WTHORNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works, New Hinatrated Library Edition. Nine vols, Per vol. Twice-Told Tales, Mossee from an Old Manse, The Scarlet Letter, and The Blithedale Romance.	Philanthropy. 1.75 Theism, Doctrinal and Fractical
e at in the Supremo Court of the City of Chedmail		PARKER (THEODORE.) A Discourse of Matters Pertaining to Religion	POPULAR SCIENCE.
favor of the use of the Bible	The House of the Seven Gables, and The Snow Image. The Marble Faun.	mons, 3 vols	EDITED BY DANA ESTES.
against the use of the Bible	The English Note-Books, The American Note-Books, The French and Italian Note-Books.	atomic Sermons, 2 vola. 2.00 Critical and Miscellaneous Writings. Historic Americans, Franklin, Washing- ton, Adams, and Jefferson, With an In-	The growing demand in this country for
BROOKS' (CHARLES T.) Translations. The Layman's Breviary	Our Old Home, and Septimius Felton.	ton, Adams, and Jefferson. With an In- troduction by Rev. O. B. Frothingham, 1.59 The Trial of Theodore Parker for the Mis-	books on popular science encourages the ed-
The Tall Student	Malbone. An Oldport Romance 1.50 Army Life in a Black Regiment	demeanor of a Speech in Fancuil Hall against Kidnapping; with the Defence 1.50 The two Christmas CelebrationsA.D. I. and MDCCCLV. A Christmas Story	ttor and publishers to issue this series of pa- pers, compiled from the works of the most
	Atlantic Essays	and MDCCCLV. A Christmas Story60 PARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The Infinite	popular scientific writers. 25 cts. per Part; $2.50 for twelve consecutive
BUCKLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of Ordination in England and France, Spain and Soutiand. New edition of the entire work, with a complete indez. 2 vola	ding Journer	and the Finite 1.00 PHELPS'S (ELIZABETH STUART.) The	Parts.
BUCKLE'S Emmys; with a Biography of the Author. Fine portrait	Venetian Life	Gates Ajar	No.1. STRANGE DISCOVERIES RESPECTING THE AUBORA AND RECENT SOLAR RESEARCHES,
CARLYLE'S Works, Cheap edition. Compris- ing the following: Miscellaneous Essays, 7 when Forner Burglotting, 3 wolds. Freder-	BUMBOLDT (ALEXANDER VON). Life of. Translated from the German. 2 vols., with	The Slient Partner	By Richard A. Proctor, F.R.A.S. ick the Great, 10 vols.; Cromwell's Letters, &c., 5 vols.; Sartor Besartus, 1 vol.; John	three portraits	What to Wear 7 1.00 PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por-	No. 2. THE CRANIAL AFFINITIES OF MAN AND THE APE, By Prof. Rudolph Virchow, and Present, 1 vol.; Later Day Pamphiets, 1 vol.; Fast able, 1 vol.; Latter Day Pamphiets, 1 vol.	Bits of Travel 1.50 HUXLEY'S Man's Place in Nature	trait. Cabinet Edition 2.00 BOSSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of	of Berlin, author of Callular Pathology. Fully Unstrated.
OABLYLE'S Works. Chespedition. Compris- ing the following: Miscellanoous Zessys, 7 vols.; French Bevolution, 3 vols.; Freder- tek the Orses, 16 vols.; Gronywell's Lattors, &c., 5 vols.; Bartor Besartus, 1 vol.; John Sterling, 1 vol.; Life of Behlier, 1 vol.; Past and Present, 1 vol.; Heroes and Hero Wor- thin, 1 vol.; Lattor Day Panphiets, 1 vol. Asy vokume sold separately. 31 vols. Lon- dou. 161-B. Par vol	On the Origin of Species 1.00 More Criticizems on Darwin and Adminis- trative Ninlism	Dunits	No. 5. SPROTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and
CREATER. DOD GUITORS	A Manual of the Anatomy of Vertebrated Animals	Bodies	its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col- ored plate and several wood-cuts.
CHANNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D.). The Per- fect Life. In Twelve Discourses. Edited from his manuscripts by his nephew, Wm. Henry Chauning	INGELOW'S (JEAN) Poema	SCIENCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory. By Prof. Haxley, F.E.S	No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALVEIS DISCOVERIES,
CHANNING (WM. ELLEBY). Thoreau: The Poet Naturalist, With Memorial Verse, 2.08	Bongs of Seven		showing its Application in Microscopic Re- search, and to Discoveries of the Physical
CHENEY (MES. K. D), Patience. A Sories of Thirty Games for the Fireside	ligs 1.78 Studies for Stories 1.25	iustrations	Constitution and Movements of the Heav- enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen,
Parties, uniform with Patience. 1.00 Sally Williams, the Mountain Girl. Illus-	Borres Constant and State Provide State St	SCOTT'S Waverley Novels. 25 vols	Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and others.
CLARKE (JAMES PREEMAN) Tan Grant	Poor Matt; or, The Clouded Intellect60	SPENCER (HERBERT.) Education, Intel- lectual, Moral, and Physical
Religions	JEBROLD (DOUGLAS). Pireside Saints, Mr. Claude's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers. 1.00 IOUNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Beligions.	BPENCER (HERNERAL) 2005 lectual, Moral, and Physical	COMETS. No.6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN
CLARKE (Dr. E. H.) Sex in Education 1.25 COBBE (FRANCES POWER). Studies New and Old, of Ethical and Social Subjects. 1.00	JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and their Relation to Universal Religion. India	lection of his best Papers. 2.50 Social Statics; or, The Conditions Essen-	AND EPIDEMIC DELUSIONS. By Dr. Carpen-
CONWAY (MONCURE D.) The Earthward	JOSEPBUS. The whole Works of Fisring Josephus, the Jewish Historian	the First of them Developed	ter, author of The Microscope and its Reve- lations, Human Physiology, etc.
DOBERLATION and Concernation of Populat	JOWETT. The Dialogues of Plato. Trans-	illustrations of Universal Progress. A Se- lection of his best Papera. 2.30 Social Statics; or, The Conditiona Esseu- tial to Human Ruppiess Specified, and the Frast of them Developed. 2.30 The Friacipies of Selogy, 2 vols. 5.00 This Principies of Payabology, 2 vols. 5.00 Philosophy of solors in Science, Philosophy and Morais. Now and snlarged edition. 2.00 Actioners. 2.00	No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARS. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of
A Series of Expositions by Grove, Heim- boits, Mayer, Paraday, Liebig and Carpen- ter: with an Introduction by Edward L. Toumans, M.D. 1 vol	lated into English, with Analysis and Intro- ductions by B. Jowett, M.A., Master of Balliol College, Oxford, and Regize Pro- fessor of Greek. Four yols	and Morals. Now and enlarged edition. 2.00 Bociology	Michigan, author of Sketches of Creation. No. 8. ON YEAST. By Prof. Hurley, F.R.S.
DALL (MRS. CABOLINE H). The College	KERB (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities, Poems, Patriotic. Sentimental and Humorons 2.00	SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The- ologico-Politicus	NO. 9. THE CIRCULATION OF THE WATERS OF
DALL (MRS. CAROLINE H). The College, the Market, and the Court: or, Woman's Belation to Education, Employment, and Citizenship	LECKY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and	STOWE (HARRIET BEECHER.) Pink and	THE FACE OF THE EASTS. By Prof. H. W. Dore.
	Influence of the Spirit of Radonansis in 4.00 Enrope, 2 vols	White Tyranny. L50 Uncle Tom's Cabin	No. 10. THE STORE AGE, PART AND PRESENT.
Historical Pictures Estouched; a Volume of Miscellanies. In two parts. Part 1., "Budles, Pictures, and Fancies"	tus to Charlemagne, 2 vols	New Life of Jeaus. Authorized transla- Hon. 2 vois	By Edward B. Tylor, author of Primi/ive Culture.
Rights to Labor" 1.00	Confucius and Chinese Classics	LUD. 1 TOLS. LITER STATES	No. 11. THE RELATION BETWEEN MATTRE
DARWIN'S Origin of Species	LEWES' Physiology of Common Life. 2 vols. 3.00 Biographical History of Philosophy, from its Origin to Greece down to the Tresser 4.00 Day. 2 vols. Problems of Life and Mind. The Founda- 3.00	THACKERAT'S (W.M.) Novels. Honsehold Edition. Complete in 6 volumes. Per vol 1.36 Vanity Pair. The Newcomes.	Louis.
Amotional Expression of Man and the Low- at Animals The Variation of Animals and Plants under Demerication. 2 vols., illustrated	Problems of Life and Mind. The Founda- tions of a Creed		For sale by THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.
Domestication, 2 vois, illustrated 6.90	LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.50	Pendennis.

1.0

(Innivers) Google

W effice and p office	for a	ma. am	all c	om	Case	tion.	Be	str P. F	efer	enc NDB	es
A	C	H	E	A	Place	0	F	F	E	R	Г
A	No.	1 to	14	Incl	usive	e, will	цb	e 10	allac	ed	50

THE INDEX, Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE

Bond volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, Bond volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2.-50, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important ensays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive real-ing twenty years hence as to day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend these volumes.

THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston Address JUST PUBLISHED.

THEODORE PARKER:

Biography. By Octavius Brooks Froth-ingham. With Heliotype Portrait. I vol. 8vo. $3.00. ж.

ingham. With Heliotype Fortrait. I vol. syo. 3:00. An exceedingly interesting memorial of a very remarkable man—one of the striking figures in American history. Mr. Frothing-ham has given a large auniber of Parker's letters and journais not previously published; he has written in the light reflected upon Parkar's words and efforts by the momentous synchronic the lass fitteen, years, which have brought out in bold relief the sagacity, wis-dom, and herolsm of Theodore Parker's ca-reer; and he has written so candidly, and with so profound an appreciation of Parker's characteristic qualities, that his book is of surpassing interest. The NEW Yong TAIDUX closes a four and and column review of this book by saying: "It holds up a remarkable specimen of ro-bust manifiess whose form and lineaments can be studied with equal advantage by friend and foes."

Sent, postage prepaid, on receipt of price THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston. Address

APTERS H

C FROM The Bible of the Ages.

FOURTEEN CHAFTERA. Selected from Hindu Yedra, Baddha, Con-fucius, Egyptian Divice Pymander, Zoroas-ter, Talmuds, Bible, Plato, Pythagoras, Mar-cus Aurellus, Epictett Rean, Taliesin, Mil-ton, Penn, Adam Yada, Rean, Taliesin, Mil-ton, Penn, Adam Yada, Miller, Elias Hicks, Channaing, Garrison, H. C. Wright, Lu-cretia Mott, Higgiusan, T. Starr King, Bush-nell, Parker, Davis, Emmis Hardingr, Emer-son, Denton, Tuttle, Abbot, Frothingham, and others.

Gospels and Inspirations from many Centuries and Peoples.

"Slowly the Bible of the race is writ. Each age, each kindred, adds a verse to it." Edited and Compiled by GILES B. STEBBINS.

Four hundred pages; bound in cloth; price $1.50. No Extra Charge for Postage. Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston

M USIC BOOKS!

Oliver Dilson & Co., during repairs of their buil l-ing injured by fire, will occupy store No. 220 Wash-ingtim Street. Antre they have, as usual, for ade a very large slock of the best and most popular Music Books; among them:-

THREE

CHOICE VOLUMES OF BOUND MUSIC. Price of each Book: Boards, $2.50; Cloth, $3; GUL, $4. Musical Treasure, Vocal and Instrumental. Wreath of Gems. Vocal. Shower of Pearls, The Best Vocal Ducts.

Capital collections. Two hundred large pages, popular pieces, a great deal of music for a little money.

RIVER OF LIFE. Best Sabbath-school Song

American Tune Book.

Price $1.50, or $13.50 per doz. Has one thou-sand Tuues and Anthems, not new, but se-lected as the favorites from all prominent Church Music Books published during the last half century.

Father Kemp's 'Did Folks' Tunes. Enlarged.

WINNER'S NEW SCHOOLS.

For Plano, Cabinet Organ, Melodeon, Guitar, Ban-jo, Cornel, File, Accordeon, Clarionet, F.ule and Flageolet, enter books cost but 75 cents ache, and are concelse, simple methods, with Flageolet. These convenient books cost but 75 cents each, and are concise, simple methods, with large quantities of pleasing airs for practice, Bent post-paid, on receipt of retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., BOSTON.

CHARLES H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York.

A Of an excellent Photograph (Cabinet Size) of Rev. MUNCURE D. CONWAT, of London, can be had at the office of THE INDEX. Price So cents.

FREE DISCUSSION

In held at ROBPITALLER HALL, 663 Washing-ton Street, Boston, every Sunday, at 10% A.M., 25% and 35% P.M. All that relates to the Kellgious, Political, and Social interests of manifaid consti-tute the subjects for discussion. The INDEX and Index Tracta are for sale every Sunday at Hospitaliter Hall.

THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873.

The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of $3, by axpress, at the purchaser's expense. A complete file for the year can be furnished in no other form. Address 11 Tremont Place, Boston.

PHONOGRAPHY.

The Shortest of Short-hand. The only system in practical use for reporting may be most readily learned from the Amkin-icax MANUAL or PHONOGRAPHY, a hand-somely bound volume of 150 pages. It will be sent by mail to any address for 75 cents. Address the author, ELIAS LONGLEY, Re-porter, Times Office, Cincinnati, Obio.

CONTRACT SALVED! FLOBENCE 1 CONTRACT SALVED! The Jong-contented auth of the FLOIKENCE SEWING MACHINE CO. gainst the Singer, Wheeler & Wilson, and Grover & Baker Companies, involving over 250,000, is finally decided by the Supreme Court of the United States in favor of the FLORENCE, which alone that Broken the FLORENCE is the ONY machine that saves backward and forward, or to right and left, Simplest, (heapest, Best.' Sold for cash only. Special terms to Clube and Dealers. FLORENCE, Mass., April, 1874.

Piesse examine the revised list of POPU-LAE BOOKS on the opposite side of this page. Any OBTAINABLE BOOK NOT IN THIS LIST will be furnished to order. Readers of THE INDEX who desire to pur-chase English, German, or French Books, or who wish for information as to the price, &c., of any American or Foreign Book, can have their orders promptly filled and their ingui-ries answered by addressing THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Pisce, Boston.

E 0. L

8

BAKING POWDER.

C

(Warranted Best in Market.)

All goods sold can be returned at my expense, if not as represented. Goods deliv-ered free of freight, and ten days' trial before payment. ALEXANDER COLE.

BUFFALO, N.Y., P.O. Box 2849. SRECTRUM ANALYSIS

An explanation of this wonderful discov ery, and its uses to science, including the re ery, and its nees to science, including the re-ceived Theory of Sound, Heat, Light, and Color; with chapters on the Sun, Stars, Nebulm, Comets, and Meteoric Showers. Abridged from the works of Schellen, Ros-con Hunging, Lookery, Young, and other coe, Huggins, Lockyer, Young, and others, by the editor of Half-Hour Recreations in Popular Science.

12mo., cloth, with two colored plates and twenty illustrations. $1.50. Address THE INDEX.

1 Tremont Place, Boston. PROCTOR'S FAREWELL

Lectures on Astronomy.

- I. Earth's Past and Future. II. Life in Other Worlds. III. Other Suns than Ours. IV. The Infinities around Us.
  - AND BROWN-SEQUARD'S
- Lectures on the Nerves.
- I. The Nervous Force. II. Nervous Influence. III. Iudirect Nerve Force. IV. Nerve Derangement. V. Summer's Sufferings. VI. What Nerves May Do.

PUBLISHED IN FULL IN

THE TRIBUNE EXTRA, No. 15, NOW READY.

This Extra also contains Bayard Taylor's famous letter on "Schliemann Discoveries on the Site of Ancient Troy." And a lecture by Prof. C. F. Chandler on "The Germ Theory of Disease." Price (sheet adition, 10 cents per copy. Pamplet edition, 20 cents. Fifteen TBIBUNE Extras (sheet form) post-paid to any address in the United States for One Dollar, and circulars giving full details of the con-texts and price of all The TRIBUNE Extras free to any address. Address

THE TRIBUNE, New York.

FEW COPIES ONLY BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE. Our organization some time since decided to direct its efforts for the present towards securing the

Repeal of the Laws

whereby church and other corporate property is unjustly exempted from its share of the burden of taxation.

Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I should like to contract for composition slone, or for composition, press-work, and mailing, for one or more wockly papers. Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed. Tremont Place, Beston. As a means to this end, we have published for meral circulation several thousand copies of a

TBACT

on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 27. The edition was made as large as our funds ould allow; but, so great has been the demand it is slready nearly exhausted.

Our next edition ought to be large enough to place a copy in the hands of enerously to supply the calls for them in other States.

EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE.

To do this, we need funds; for, although we have made arrangements for printing the Tract at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston League, with its various other expenses, to bear the entire expense slone. Will not, then.

All Friends of the Movement

forward and help us with liberal donations We frequently receive communications from parties wishing tracts to distribute, asking how nuch they shall pay. To 'such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 20 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circuating them gratuitously throughout the country To many of the subscribers of THE INDEX and others whose names have been furnished us as probable friends of the movement, copies of the Tract, together with Petitions asking the repeal of the Exemption Laws, have been sant,

With the Hope

that such friends will try to secure as many sig natures to the petition as possible in their locality We respectfully ask those who are unable to atand to the matter themselves to place the petitions in the hands of those who will. Lat us

BOLL UP THE LIST!

Let our united voices be heard! And let it be done NOW!

We would say, also that we feel deeply the and of

Other Organizations

in this State, to cooperate with us in securing equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are those who are inclined to

Form a Liberal League,

we are ready to render such assistance as lies in our power.

LIBERALSI

if all will units and work, the results song can be accomplished Address

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Per order of the EXECUTIVE COMMITTER.

$25 per day guaranteed using our WELL AUGER and Drills. Catalogue free. W. W. Gilles, St. Louis. Mo.

NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drug, and Hand-grinding MILLS. Ten Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Illustrat-ed pamphlots free. Address J. SEDGEBEER, Painesville, Ohio.

TO NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS.

G. L. HENDERSON & CO.,

BANKERS.

LEROY, MINN.

Money invested on short time, or for a term of years, on unincumbered improved farmas, at 12 per cent, interest per annum, payable security guaranteed. All expenses for abstract of tille and recording morizage paid by borrower. We collect and remit to any part of the United States free of charge.

part of the United States free of charge. REFERENCES. - First National Bank, Mc. Gregor, Iows; First National Bank, Austin, Minn.; Milwankee National Bank, Milwan-kee, Wis.; City National Bank, Chicago, III.; Allen, Stevenn & Co., Bankern, New York City; Morris Altman.

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES, paying # to 10 per cent. interest, or

Investments in Real Estate in Chicage and vicinity,

if judiciously made, are the best and safest modes of employing capital. The old

Real Estate and Loan Agency

ÓT RENST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPH STREET.

Chicago (Established 1863).

Guarantees perfect title and ample security in all its Real Estate Loans. Firstclass securities always on hand. In-terest and principal collected without charge. Real Estate Investments made on commission or on shares; taxes paid, &c. Orders of capitalists and real estate own-ers respectfully solicited.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is full length. It is full size. It is smooth and elastic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine use.

Many kinds of spool silk are a perfect

frand, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unfit for use. The ladies will always find the Eureka Silk exactly as represented. Every spool is warranted, and the manufacturer's name indelibly branded on every spool. Call

ONLY TEN SETSI

All the bound copies of the FIEST VOL-UME of THE INDEX (1870) which were on sale at the Office of the Association in Toledo.

were sold very soon after they were advertised. FIVE DOLLARS have since been paid for a single copy obtained by special advertisement. The Association have just come into possession of Ten Copies of this

TEN COMPLETE SETS

of THE INDEX, including the first, second,

third, and fourth volumes (1870, 1871, 1872,

Only Ten Dollars a Set.

Persons wishing to possess a complete file

of THE INDEX, whether for its intrinsic or historical value, will do well to send their orders without delay. The First Volume will

NOT BE SOLD SEPARATELY.

The four volumes will be sent in one package, by express, at the cost of the purchaser.

manning Google

THE INDEX,

1-Tremont Place, Boston.

first volume, and now offer

1878), at the low price of

Address

for It.

Index. Ohe

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

WHOLE NO. 226.

VOLUME 5.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

We demand that churches and other ecclesiastical property shall no longer be excupt from just taxation.
 We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

5, We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall case.

shall cease. 4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the nee of the Bible in the public schools, whether estensi-bly as a text-book or swowedly as a book of religious wor-ship, shall be prohibited.

amp, main the promotion of the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease.

of all religious icentivals and tracks shall wholly cease, 6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and in all other departments of the government shall be abol-labed, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-atites of perjury fhall be established in its stead. 7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforo-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-realed.

B. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty.
8. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or advantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other special religion; that our entire political system shall be founded and administered on a purely seculiar basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unflinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, it is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperilled, the advance of civili-ration impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and

religion; and Whereas, Cortain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; THEREFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

Ast. I.-The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-

ART. 3.—The object of the Liberal League shall be to se-cure practical compliance with the "Domands of Liberal-ism" throughout the country, and sepecially in ....: Also, as soon as five hundred such Liberal Leagues shall have been formed in different places, to send two delegates to a National Convention of Liberal Leagues, to be hereaf-er called, in order to co-operate with all the liberals of the country in securing the needed reforms. Airt. 3.—The means employed in working for these objects shall be regular local meetings, free discussions, loctures, addresser, conventions, the platform and the press in gen-rel, and all such other means as are pseceable, orderly, and right. Art. 4.—Such measures shall be adouted for existing the secure

Asr. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members.

ART. 5.—Any person may become a mamber of the League

Art. 5.-The Officers of the League shall be a President, Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Execu-irs Committee of three members; and their duties shall be hose commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be acofficie delegates to the National Journation of Liberal Leagues when called togother. and Be Con-

Arr. 7.—These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths woke of the members present at any reg-alar meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

So far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of The LEWER. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that it will yet be accepted universally by the American people, it will yet be accepted universally by the American people, as the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A Liberal League ought to be formed to carry out its princi-ples wherever half a dozen earneest and resolute Liberals can be got together. Being convinced that the movement to secure compliance with these just "Demands" must surely, even if slowly, spread, I hope to make THE LYDEX a means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and active co-operation of every man and every woman who be-lieves in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-port prompily the names of their Presidents and Secre-taries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion as that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are "fow, let their organized voice be heard like the sound of many waters. many waters.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor. Bosros, Sept. 1, 1873.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page. RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, APRIL 23, 1874.

PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CON-STITUTION.

ARTICLE 1.

ARTICLE 1. SOTION 1.—COMPTEES Shall make no law respecting an es-sablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dow-erament for a redress of grievances. Sortion 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting an stabilishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or stabilishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; religing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the stabilishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereo; religing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the stabilishment for a redress of grievances. No religious and no person shall ever in any State be deprived of any of the or her rights, privileges, or capacities, or disqualified to the performance of any public or private duty, or ren-dered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or orquity, in consequence of any public or rate duty of ren-dered in competent to give evidence in any court of law or-orquity, in consequence of any public or private duty, or ren-dered in scholect of religion. Barron S.—Congress. Market of religion and the provention of the second second section of this Article by appropri-te indication.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

BT A. W. S.

ERNEST RENAN is working on the last pages of the manuscript of his Origin of Christianity.

IT IS NOT what others think, but what I think, that is of most importance to ms. Nor is it what others feel obliged to do, but what my conscience dictates, that is of greatest concern to me individually.

THE Jewish Times, in noticing the latest new volume of sermons by O. B. Frothingham, says: "The weapon which Mr. Frothingham uses in demolishing the structure of misconception, misbellef, irrationalism, and unnaturalism, is of the finest, sharpest material; his logic is polished and bright, and so fascinating as almost to make attack attractive.

THE Shaker and Shakeress, for May, contains this notice: "Shakers Wanted. One hundred thousand Shakers wanted soon as convenient. None need apply who cannot sha e, or learn to shake, themselves free from all prejudice, all wrong, all sin-all evil of every name and nature."

CORNELL UNIVERSITY has another "feather in its cap." A Lectureship of Hebrew History and Literature so been founded in it by an eminent Israelitish banker of New York; and Dr. Felix Adler, an accomplished scholar, has been selected as Lecturer. This is another happy advance against sectarianism.

IT 18 VEBY generous in Rev. Mr. Murray, of the Park Street Church, to offer to serve his society without any salary, until such time as they can afford to pay both him and an associate pastor. This shows that Mr. Murray is not a mercenary man, and should be set down not only in his favor but in that of miniaters as a class.

No man can live by himself wholiy; and yet we may live too much in society. A good degree of privacy is essential to the finest life. Too much society makes us mere imitators, apes; too much individualism makes us selfish and concelted. Between the centrifugal and the centripetal motion of our being we must preserve a nice and even balance.

"JUDGE NOT that ye be not judged." How difficult it is to obey this precept! Even he who was wise enough to utter it was not always consistent enough to be true to We ought ever to discriminate between opinions and it. persons, between even practices and persons; and while we condemn, if we must, what is expressed in word and deed, we should strive to do justice to motive, aim, and apirit.

"WHAT IS LIFS worth without action ?" said Mr. Sum ner, on one occasion. As truly may it be said, What is life worth without repose? He who is slways doing, always acting, always forth-putting, without due pausing, al-due resting, due self-containment, becomes inevitably a sensationalist, a fanatic, a dogmatist, a nuisance, and a bore. Fortunately, Mr. Summer was as grand in repose as in action, in rest as in motion.

"I NEVER regarded my function as negative, except in a small degree," said Theodore Parker. "I would pull up the weeds, and give them to the pigs; then plant the corn for men and pigs too." Yes, even pigs like corn as well as men, and will cat it, too, in preference to weeds when they can get it. Sower of truth! sow broadcast your seed, on "high" and "low," on "wiss" and "ignorant"! The "way-side" sometimes may yield you better return than the furrowed field.

IT APPEARS, from the minority report of the Liquor-Law Joint Committee of the Massachusetta Legislature, that Massachusetts has more liquor-shops open than any other New England State in proportion to her population, and that she pays the Federal government thirty per cent. more for taxes on liquor than all the other New England States together. And yet Massachusetts has a Prohibitory Liquor Law on her statute book; notwithstanding which, the Committee say, intemperance has fearfully increased in this State!

THE EDITOR of the Investigator thus states his position: "For our part, we accept truth-the pearl of great price-wherever we find it; whether in Jesus, Socrates, Confucius, Buddha, Zoroaster, Voltaire, Abner Knee-land, or Theodore Parker; and whatever any one of them teaches that seems to us wrong we reject, 'hit or miss.' Thus believing what we regard as true, and disbelieving only what appears to us to be error, we think our belief is good, and our unbelief good also." This is square, fair, and sensible.

M. D. CONWAY has been visiting M. Renan, and this is

M. D. Conway has been visiting M. Renan, and this is the picture he draws of the distinguished Frenchman:— He is a man of about fifty, thick set, but not tall, with a full face and a strong brow. His eys is at ones sweet and penetrating, and his voice both gentle and firm. He gives one the impression of a man who has a great deal of work in him, and one likely to give the orthodox far more trouble than he has vera yet done. With bis smooth-shaven face and black academic dress he conveys still the impression of the priese until he converses, when he is felt to be more than all a scholar. He divides his labors between his theological writings and the Asiatio Society, of which he is Socretary, and which, indeed, rests mainly on his shoulders.

A PORT, in a moment of deep vision, has written the following line:-

"And beauty breathes throughout the land."

But is it true? We believe it is. And yet how few of us have the fine poetic sight to see it! Patches and blots of ugliness meet our eye in many places; and of beauty, in such cases, we can see none. Still, these are but masks, now put on, now put off; behind them is beauty— "Beauty old but ever new!" It is the highest reach of the artistic-religious mind ever to perceive this universal breathing beauty through any and all disguises.

JOSIAH WARBEN died in Charlestown, Massachusetts, Tuesday, April 14. His death, at last, was somewhat sudden, as his condition previously had taken a more hopeful turn, and it even was thought that he might be restored to a comfortable state of health again. But such hope proved fallacious, and when he once more began to fall he sank rapidly to his death. His funeral took place, in this city, on Friday of last week; the services being conducted by Rev. W. R. Alger. It is ex-pected that some fitting biographical notice of Mr. Warren will be prepared by his friend Mr. Morse, and be published hereafter in THE INDEX. Meanwhile, there will be found in another place in this paper a report of some remarks made at the funeral of Mr. Warren, by one taking part in the services.

THE NEW YORK East Methodist Conference, in a recent session, voted overwhelmingly not to print hareafter in their Minutes the memoirs of ministers' wives. If they had voted against printing any memoirs of anybody, it would have been well enough; but to make a discrimi-nation between ministers and their wives, in this matter, seems to us unfair and unchivalrous. We have known, In the course of our life, a good many Methodist minis-ters and their wives, and we feel "under deep conviction" that our testimony ought to be given in on the woman's side in this question. We have observed that, besides often being "the making" of their husbands, the plety, humility, patience, devotion, and usefulness of the wives has been fully equal to that of their lords. If there are to be any memoirs printed, therefore, we should vote that the wives should have their share of the honors as well as the labors.

THE INDEX-APRIL 23, 1874.

LIST OF LIBERAL LEAGUES.

 LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries.
 BOSTON, MASS.-J. S. Rogers, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries.
 JEFFERSON, Ottio.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Secretaria Secretary. SAN JOEZ, CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Secretary. TOLEDO, IOWA,-J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secretary. VINELAND, N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Segretary. Becretary. JUNCTIONVILLE, NEB.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Secretary. OLATHE, KAN.-S. H. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Secretary, Mics.-W. R. Hill, President, M. B. Bernevy, L. Knowles, Secretary, Mics.-A. G. Eastman, President; T. R. Knowles, Secretary, Coonolas, Mo.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Coonolas, Mo.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Coonolas, Secretary, Constant, Secreta eretary. BOIT, MICH.-W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, Secretary. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. Bark, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. Regular, Wis.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman. Bridgman. Wassinorow, D.C.-George M. Wood, President; J. E. Orawford, Seoretary, AUBUN,OHIO.-John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treas-urer. urer. MIXINAPOLIS, MIXIM.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Abton Grethen. New Youk, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary. ST. JOSSFH, MO.-F. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Secretary.

Secretary. EAU CLAIME, WIB.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy.

[For THE INDEL.] The Philosophy of the Labor Movement.

AN ESSAY READ AT & MEETING IN THE BOOMS OF THE NEW RNOLAND WOMAN'S CLUB, APRIL 8, BY FREDERIC A. HINCKLEY.

TREDERIC A. HINCKLEY. The battle of Despotism versus Liberty is at least as old as the hills, and it would sometimes seem as sternal. From general political chaos to the divine right of kings was a great step; from the divine right of kings to the divine right of majorities was a greater step; from the divine right of majorities to the divine right of the individual will be the greatest step of all, and presupposes more than one revolution. "I feel that I cannot go wrong when I lean to the side of lib-orty," was the sublime utterance of the noblest soul Massachusetts ever sent to Washington. Spite of all seeming retrograde movements, mankind are ever gravitating toward justice. Taken at their best, they are seeking freedom in dead earnest. This is the meaning of the reforms, each one of which, so far as it is guided by thoughs, is a protest against some form of the "barbarism of sisvery," and a demand that liberty shall be not only national, but world-wide and universal. Of course all aristocracies, whether of color, intelligence, wealth, or sex, are antagonisit to this idea, and are being, or are to be, overturned. The labor revolution grows naturally out of a con-ultion of things which produces and maintains an aristocracy of wealth. "The State," said Emerson once, "must consider the so one of the duites of this hour. In every

"The State," said Emerson once, "must consider the poor man, and all voices must speak for him." That is one of the duties of this hour. In every period of history there is some great fact which stares us in the face, demanding attention and ultimately removal. With us, for thirty years, that fact was chat-tel slavery; to-day it is poverty. The struggle for the abolition of the second is a natural outgrowth of that which resulted in the abolition of the first. They are as like as father and child, the son possessing all the traits of the sire. Poverty is full of the elements of slavery, extreme wealth of slave-holding. Just as the abolition of poverty will carry with it the labor-owner. Justice required that the black man should own himself; il requires that labor shall own itself. Goldsmith wrote wiser than he knew when he said :--"Hi fares the land, to hastening ills a prey.

"Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey, Where wealth accumulates and men decay."

Perhaps he had some slight vision of the time when men should say to their sons, in the old lines of Ben Jonson :

"Get money; still get money, boy; No matter by what means."

No matter by wnst means." It is not hard to see the results of such teaching on every hand. From the man of business who, in the lust for the almighty dollar, gives up all home life, and bolts down his meals in restaurants, to the poor outcast who has no home to eat her meals in, the cor-rupling influence of a state of society in which (to borrow an expressive phrase) men are "choked with cotton dust and cankered with gold," is painfully ap-uarent. parent coton dust and cankered with gold," is painfully ap-parent. Perhaps your next-door neighbor is a millionnaire. His elegant mansion is filled with the finest furniture, pictures adorn its walls, and books in abundance lend their inexpressible charm. This man is a large oper-ator in stocks. He has been what is called a lucky fellow, and without working very hard has accumu-lated a fortune. From his windows be can look out upon a half dozen dilapidated buildings, in which samlight is unknown, on whose floors are no carpets, on whose walls and tables neither pictures nor books. Filthy, ignorant, half-starred human beings,—that is all they contain. The mansion of wealth and the hovels of poverty side by side,—these are the products of the highest civilization the ninetzenth century can boast. As the poor men and women who rent those miserable abodes pass and repass that stately man-sion, going forth from home at daybreak only to re-turn with the setting sun, think you their aspirations for a full development of all their faculties are large?

INDEX - APRIL 23,

labor." Do such views seem visionary to-day? And if so, why? Because to-day the desire for money over-rides everything else. Live intemperance, live pros-titution, live all manner of wickedness, so you help the powerful to coin dollars and power out of the miseries of the weak! "Master," said the fisherman, "I marvel how the fishes live in the sea?" ""When as mon do a land " was the reals." "the

"This mournful truth is everywhere confessed : Slow rises worth by poverty depressed."

Slow rises worth by poverty depressed." Nor must the intimate relation between poverty and extreme wealth be forgotten. The two live or die tögether. Not more certain is it that the large majority of laboring men receive too little than that the few who constitute in the main the employing class receive too much. The excess in the one case is the result of the deficit in the other. Hence ration-al labor reform means that the power of accumu-lated wealth shall be destroyed, and its natural conn-terpart, poverty, abolished; or in other words it calls for a more equitable distribution of wealth. There is something very forcible in the eloquent and touch-ing little speech which Dickens put into the month of Stephen Blackpool, who, his employer asid, always had a grievance.

"Look round toun," he said, "so rich as't is—and see the numbers o' people as has been broughten into "Look round toun," he said, "so tich as't is—and we the numbers o' people as has been broughten into hein heer, fur to weave, an to card, an to plece out a live live, an wheer we live, an in what numbers, and y what chances, an wi what sameness; and look how you considers of us, an writes of us, an how here to ony disant object—ceptin awius, Death, look how you considers of us, an writes of us, an how nearly the to ony disant object—ceptin awius, Death, look how you considers of us, an writes of us, an how nearly the to ony disant object—ceptin awius, Death, look how you considers of us, an writes of us, an how nearly the to ony disant object—ceptin awius, Death, look how you considers of us, an writes of us, an how nearly the to ony disant object—ceptin awius, Death, look how you considers of us, an writes of us, an how nearly the to ony disant object—ceptin awius, Death, show how you considers of us, an writes of us, an how here do't. Agreeing fur to make one side unnat'ral-y awins and forever right, and t'other side unnat'ral-y awins and forever wrong, will never do't. Most of they was figures in a soom, or machines, wi out low as ul kens, wi out memories and inclinations, we do us to weary an souls to hope,—this will never do't, suil foo work is onmade." . . Ma Stephen might have added, Only one thing whild to its, and that is justice. And justice means and controls Legislatures, and this poor woman who, when by brought under the reign of civilization, and enjoy the benefits of the golden rule. It means the curbing of unjust power, and the lifting up of the ig-norant and passionate. It means education, oppor-tunities, aspiration, fair play. In a word and pri-marily, it means a more equitable distribution of wealth.

marily, it means a more equitable distribution of wealth. Now how shall this distribution be accomplished? Men say, "Suppose you get wealth equally divided, it will all work back again to its present condition. The same causes which have made things as they are will make them so again." Ah, yee, but we propose to change the causes. True, if Stewart and Vander-bilt are to sit down once a month, or once a year, and distribute their dividends to the less favored, they will have to continue the operation regularly. But that would be the most artificial arrangement in the world, and is an idea promulgated not by the friends, but the opponents of labor reform. Labor cares noth-ing for A. T. Stewart; it cares everything for the sys-tem of which he is the fruit. It knows well that he gives of his possessions liberally,—that he establishes lodging-houses for working women, and slit hat; but it does not like the system which makes it possible for him thus to give, and necessary for the workingwom-an thus to receive, his charity. Be it clearly under-stood, therefore, we have nothing to do with the past, everything to do with the future accumulations of wealth. See the difference. If we operate on thas already garnered, we deal inevitably with men, and make mere surface work of it. It is like cropping of the twigs and branches; the roots and trunk are left, and tha tree still grows. If, on the contrary, we look wealth. See the difference. If we operate on that already garnered, we deal inevitably with men, and make mere surface work of it. It is like cropping of the twigs and branches; the roots and trunk are left, and tha tree still grows. If, on the contrary, we look to the future, we shall work not upon men but un-derlying causes and principles, and change them. Or perhaps, more correctly speaking, we shall remove the artificial impediments which man has set up to stop the peaceful operation of ustural iaws. The great thing is not to abolish Stewart, but so to alter the existing order that such as he shall be impossible in the future. Dig up the roots, and the twigs and branches will take care of themselves. When any one asks, therefore, "What does the labor movement mean?" the answer is plain. It means a more equi-table distribution of the proceeds of labor, the aboli-tion, through natural causes, of extreme wealt no the one hand and poverty on the other. And this brings us direct to the question, Under what sort of a system can the relations of capital and labor be based on equity? The answer is contained in one word, Co-orenantion. Not protective unions formed for the sar-ing of a per cent. Circumstances may justify and er-cuse the one, and prudence and economy lie at the bottom of the other; but both are superficial. The real coöperation is a combining of principles, a pro-tective union of the two vital forces. As Mr. Phillips has expressed it, Capital and labor are naturally like the two parts of a pair of sciasors. They shall be partners, every laborer being a capitalist and every capital a labore. Meremet future will have but one religion, as primi-tive humanity had but one, we are now living midway in the course of civilization, and have two, which are opposed to each other—the religion ser adapted to two conflicting sets of social requirements. The one set is aupreme at the beginning; the other set will be supreme at the end; and a compromise has to be maintained between them during the progress fr of numbers, by which a society is made strong enough to survive." Evidently, such a harmonious relation is not to be reached in a day, a month, or a year. It is to come naturally and in order. So that although we may talk of coöperation as an end to be sought, it is only as something in the future; it is not, in this broad and radical sense, possible to-day. Before we can consider what the condition of labor will be, when it gets its share of the world's wealth, we must con-sider its condition here sind now. Before we can an-swer the question, How shall wealth be more equally distributed? we must first answer the question, How is wealth distributed as equally as it is? This brings us face to face with the wage-system. For our present purposes, it is ufficiently accurate to say that the wealth of the world is distributed through four channels.—Profits, Charities, Theft, and Wages; and that by far the larger portion of it is distributed through wages. At all events, what the laborer gets comes through that channel. Now the wage-system is world-wide, and may be safely taken as the gauge of clvilization. That is, to use the language of the Be-port of the Bureau of Statistics of Labor, the day's pay of the Chinaman is an index of his idol worship, bis patriarchal government, and exclusive policy. The day's pay of the American indicates freedom and a republican or coöperative government. The wage system is the matural step from barbarism and sizery to coöperation. The passage through it must be a natural growth. The race did not jump from harba-rism to wages ; it cannot jump from wages to coöper-ation. It ever moves by the slow but sure process of rism to wages; it cannot jump from wages to cooper-ation. It ever moves by the slow but surs process of natural laws.

natural laws. First, then, having accepted the fact that so much of the wealth of the world as labor secures comes to it through the wage-channel, we proceed to answer the question. How shall the transition be made from wages to cooperation? by saying that it must be by causing the laborer to receive gradually more and more of wealth in the shape of wages. Or, more ex-

ちいいろと

112 54

13

122

 $\frac{2}{4}$

ż

かれ

章 15 X.

Non commentation of the second second

Hot. Amara watter says iscrete of weath, , 255).-"There being, then, no uniform and established standard of wages, they vary according to the ex-penses of subsistence in different countries, and the condition in which the laboring classes are willing to

<text>

ty, the first step in that development is a structure of the first step in that development is a structure of the step of the

"one-horse shay." Fut some new shoes on his feet-he begins to see the need of new tronsers to go with them; then a new vert, a new cost, and a clean face. Then he goes home, his wife and children need now clothes, too, he thinks. Then his house must be re-parted; there must be a carpet on the floor, a table in the room, and by-and-by, when months, perhaps years, of such reform have gone on, he will come home some night with the literald or Times. Then his task for reading will begin. He won't read Charles Summer's speeches at first; more likely the doings of the Police Court. But he will have begun the habit of reading. So we might follow him through a long life of such gradual imporement, Well, that is education, broad and substantial; the natural, logical way to abolish ignorance and its at-tendant evils, such as intemperance and prostitution. It is precisely the education which forms the grand base of this whole theory of increasing wages by rais-ing to higher level the babits of the people, creat-ing in them new wants, enabling them to secure new comforts. Am I not right, then, in claiming this as the educational phase of the labor movement, and in summoning to its support the men and women whose minds are broad enough to see, and whose heatrs are warm enough to feel, that this is the edu-cation which the world needs? Had I ten thousand tongues, each one glifted with the elonguence of O Connell, they should all say, "Improve the habits of the masses, that they may be dearer laborers and better consumers; that thun, by naturally increasing wages and production, a more equitable distribution of wealt may be attained."" This, then, is the touchstone to which all measures proposed on behalf of labor must be brought. Every mersod, which the habits of the masses can be im-proved, their wants increased, their style of living reased withing a corresponding increase in the prod-its of capital,—every such means is to be accepted. Of all the massures proposed, the two which most fully and clearly come unde the purest and noblest woman cannot protect her smallest right thereby. The tyranny that oppresses her is strengthened by her own disfranchisement, and makes her impotent to defend her own preroga-tives."

her is strengthened sy her own uninstation tender and makes her impotent to defend her own preroga-tives." The ballot, then, is an instrument in the hands of the working woman for securing a more equitable dis-tribution of wealth, through the wage-channel. It is the columblad of which Mr. Summer speaks, that shall make her a full-armed monitor. Again : take the measure of a reduction of the hours of labor. Not necessarily ten hours or eight hours (by-and-by it may be six or four), but a reduc-tion of the hours of labor. That means more leisure for the working classes,-room in which to grow,--time for the making of men. This demand raises man above all consideration of manufactures or commerce, and calls for the largest development of humanity. In other words, it says, Secure through wages that better distribution of wealth which shall lead to coöperation, by improving the habits of the people; by that broad education which means the fullest possible development of all the faculties. Now to claim that a man is open to such an educa-tion who has time only to work, eat, and aleep, who leaves home at daylight only to return at night utter-ity exhansted, is simply an absurdity. To quote from a recent writer, himself a mechanic, the present sys-tem of long hours means, so far as labor is concerned. "to get up in the morning at five o'clock, cook and eat a hasty breakfast, run perchance to catch the cara, go off into a corner to eat a coid dinner from a basket, and to reach home at seven in the evening, used up bodily and mentally. What opportunity is 1974. 1985 there here for recreation and culture? There is a great deal said about parental influence. The influ-ence of a father who goes to his work before his little children are up, and returns to his home to find them sound asleep, is certainly mild in its nature." Such is the testimony of a man speaking from prac-tical experience. Can we not all of us endorse what he says? Do we not know that to improve even an hour, from eight to nine in the evening, in reading and culture, we must come to it with unwearled limbs and a fresh, active brain? How can you ex-pect a man who labors at the forge or rends the abut-tie from sunrise to sunset to be in a condition outside his working hours for anything but sleep? Ah, but you say, Look at Elihn Burrit, at Theodore Parker, and a host of others who have sought knowledge over the midight oil, and escled mountains of obstacle al-most against fate itself. True; but you forget that brokes the speed of all horse by the Arabian charger, or to condemn the deer on Boston Common because how seem by nature to grasp the very sternities. It may be creditable to the exceptional man that by su-perham effort he achieves success, but it can be no discredit to the mass of mankind that under unfavor-able circumstances they fail to do likewise. We must take men are find them. Shall we say to the work-nogen, Go to work, keep contented, "sit up late o' nghei," and become Theodore Parkers? We might as well talk to stones; and why? Because there is an the taken the strain of thought brings us, bither we must axy that the meases are none work. are made.

of nights," and become Theodore Parkers? We might as well talk to stones; and why? Because there isn't the stuff there out of which Theodore Parkers are made.
See now where this train of thought brings us. Either we must say that the masses are poor, worthere isn't the we must say that the masses are poor, worthere isn't the out of be left as they now are in ignorance, or that our social arrangements must be so hanged to meet their wants as to give them time and opportunity for education and culture. We can either dig under them nor fly above them. We must either entirely ignore them or meet them where they are. To ignore them means—a servile class, and ultimately despotism. To meet them, take them by the hand, lift them up, teach them to lift thems of the only republican way, and therefore institutions, the only republican way, and therefore institutions, the only alternative. Now if we are to meet them, it must be at points where they most need thep; and instruction, we must not go ''Mountain, move!'' but, like sensible men, meeting the demand squarely and fairly, we must shorten the broad optimate, more with opportunities. Men talk them up, the sensible men, meeting the demand squarely and fairly, we must shorten the broad y lewed, it is. But time and opportunities must precede even that narrow thing which people and the ducation, which consists of a little arithmetic, a function, which consists of a little arithmetic, and broady viewed, it is. But time and opportunities more the objection that the struer idea of education, which means the full development of all out stores the forerunners of thest truer idea of education, which here are opportunities improved? We have seen for an experiment of such immore the south and provides so many school provides due to the second of such immores are they necers. Increase the forerunter of the teaching of such immores are they necers in the sole of such is the store is embrored? We have carried books and schools to the freedmen at the soft the crowed unable t to be omitted in this connection:--SENATE CHAMBER, 25 May, 1872. Gentlemen.--I cannot take part in your public meet-ings, but I declare my sympathy with workingmen. In their aspirations for greater equality of condition and increased opportunities I unite cordially. There-fore I insist that the experiment of an eight hour law in the national workshops shall be tried, so that, if successful, it may be extended. Here let me confers that I find this law especially valuable because it provises more time for education and general im-provement. If the experiment is successful in this respect, I shall be less curious on the question of pe-cuniary profit and loss, for to my mind the education of the human family is above dollars and dividends. Meanwhile accept my best wishes, and believe me, Faithfully yours, CHABLES SUMNER.

Such is the legacy the great statesman left a cause in which he was fast becoming interested, and of which, had his life been apared, he would sconer or later have been an earnest advocate. Now, to put the whole question in a nutshell, let us

I have a series of the second series of the second series of the second second series and the second series and the second second series and second second second second second second second second second second

3d. This distribution can never be accomplished by artificial means dealing with the accumulations of the past, but must be sought through the peaceful operation of natural laws, making with accumulations impossible in the future. 4th. All efforts to this end will ultimately result in cooperation, which is the only basis for a just relation between cagital and labor. 5th. The greater portion of the world's wealth is now distributed through the wage-system, and every increase of wages which comes from better habits of living will effect a still more equitable distribution, and ultimately result in cooperation. Those measures are to be selected, therefore, which peacefully and naturally tend to this result. 6th. Since the ballot in the hands of the working-woman means for her opportunities and the opening of a career, it will thus increase her wages; and to this end she, in common with all other woman, should be at once endowed with the elective franchies. 7th. A reduction of the hours of labor means time for improvement, and is the essential and natural way in the store of the bours of labor means time for improvement, and is the essential and natural way inclusion which means better habits of

7th. A reduction of the hours of labor means time for improvement, and is the essential and natural way into that education which means better habits of living. As a first step, its importance cannot be over-rated. It is the primary school of labor reform. Sth. The twin evil of poverty is ignorance, and education of the head, heart, and hands is a necessi-ty. Every advance made toward the abolition of the one is a blow at the other, as well as at intemperance, prostitution, and general crime. The labor move-ment, thus understood, takes its place as first among the educational forces of our time.

<text><text><text>

thought must develop and expound the underlying philosophy of the movement, substituting its own peaceful and more effective methods for those of con-tention and ill-will.

peaceful and more elective methods for index of our iention and ill-will. Many of these same objections apply to the method of politics even more popular now than the method of strikes. As at present constituted, politics are given over to fraud and corruption. It is a simple impos-sibility for a new question to get anything but the most auperficial discussion from parties and politi-cians. Now, every cause must have its era of thor-ough discussion; its philosophy must be studied and plainly set forth, before any salient points can be ar-rived at, upon which to found a political party. That the labor question, like every other so vital to na-tional welfare, must sconer or later be carfied to the ballotbox, is of course true. That is the democratic way of settling customs and laws; but after all a po-litical party simply records public opinion, and the ballotbox is the place where the record is made. If, as Whittler sings, as Whittier sings,

"The crowning fact, the kingliest act of freemen, Is the freeman's vote,"

bilobox is the place where the record is made. It, as Whittler sings, "The crowing fact, the kingliest act of freemen, Is the freemar's vote," as true is it that brains and hearts inspiring that vote are "the power behind the throne, greater than the throne itself." The party, and all that goes with it, must be subordinated to the idea. Only as it serves that is it fit to live. To change the figure, parties are mile-stones, not leaders. They mark, as one has said the Church marks, the place up to which humahily has travelled at a given time. Back of, and greater than, parties is the moral agitation of ideas which ahall mould them to its purposes and make intelligent political action possible. Agitation, therefore, is the great power in a republic, and it is that to which is the great power in a republic, and it is that to which is the great power in a republic, and it is that to which is the great power in a sepublic, and it is that to which is the great power in a sepublic, and it is that to which is the great power in a sepublic, and it is that to which is the great power in a sepublic, and it is that to which is the great power in a sepublic, and it is that to which is non-resistant, as one who with O'Connell would welcome no social ameiloration at the coat of a single an ono-resistant, as one who with O'Connell would welcome no social ameiloration at the coat of a single divertion of the democratic ides. There is no logical terminas bell or not, we are on the high road to a pure democ-racy. Our fathers, where than they knew, declared proof blood, I plead for that. As you value peese, a you value the future of the American experiment in the democratic ides. There is no logical terminas bell or no, we are on the high road to a pure democ-racy. Our fathers, where than they knew, whether we anation, one after another of the surprisions of which we have been guilty must be abolished. There can be an allocane from departing from the plain propo-sitons they so well laid down. If we are to live as a throne not,

"To bonor justice, and to love the right, Which friends to friends and State to State unite, Be ours. We honor equal sims and ends; But still the greater with the less contends, And evil times begin."

But still the greater with the less contends, and evil times begin." There is much talk now-a-days of public corruption. What is the real meaning of crédit mobiliers, and sal-ary grabs, and the general low tone of life in official circles? Do you think you can abolish dishonesty in Congress by reforming a few Representatives? Not at all. John Morrissey in the House of Represents-tives means a constituency of John Morrisseys in New York. Poverty and wealth, we have said, never join hands, save when they go together to vote iniquity at the polls. It is the lust of wealth on the one hand, and the ignorance of poverty on the other, which makes the demagogue's election sure. Whose would abolish demagogues, let him make education and an honest living possible to all. A reform of the civil service is one of the prominent party watchwords of the day. But the reform needed is the introduction of common honesty into all departments of the gov-ernment, from the White House down. This will hardly come so long as business is run on the prin-ciple of seeing how much each man can cheat his neither better nor worse than the average public sen-timent. A business and general industrial system rotten to the core finds its legitimate fruit in knaves and buffoons in public life, for whose misdeeds your cheeks and mine tingle with shame. With noisy de-monstrations they stump States and manipulate legislation, all in the name of the highest principle; while, blind to the wrongs of a large majority of the people,

"They bawl for freedom in their senseless mood, And still revolt when truth would set them free; License they mean, when they cry liberty."

And licensed they are to prey upon the public treas-ury, and corrupt the public morals by those evil in-fluences in social and industrial life of which they are fluences in social and industrial life of which they are the legitimate representatives. The labor morement does not cover the whole of God's truth; but it means the diffusion of general intelligence and honesty, by destroying the conditions which make legnorance a necessity and corruption a plant of easy growth. When this is done, the demagogue will find himself without a constituency, and the public service cease to be so largely at the mercy of thieves who break through and steal.

ugh and steal. "The discipline of slavery is unknown Amongst us,-bence the more do we require The discipline of virtue; order else Cannot subsist, nor confidence, nor pesce. Trust not to partial care a general good; Transfer not to furtiry a work Of urgent need. Our country must complete Her glorious destup. Begin even now, Now, when corruption is a prime purmit, Shew to the several nations for what end The powers of civil polity were given." is to such an educational work that th

It is to such an educational work that the labor inverse of the second second second second second second al in its aims and scope? Freedom is constructive, poverty destructive, of all those elements which make a nation truly great. That is what labor says. Its summons is already ringing in your ears. Sconer or later it will be heard. The sconer the better! For in answering its call the Republic of States shall become the democracy of the people, and, marching bravely forward and upward, lead the world to freedom.

For THE INDER!

THE INDIANS, AND HOW TO THEAT THEN.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 16, 1874.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 16, 1874. FRANCIS E. ABBOT: My dear Sir, — I hope you will not require any other apology for this communication than what is given in the subject of it. After many years of experience with the Indians, and study of their character, habits, and customs, I have become very much interested in their future welfare. I see very clearly that the present policy, and every other thus far suggested, means extermina-tion in the end. My feelings having become so ear-neuticate with Senator. Summer, glving my views, and urging the importance of Congressional action; but his decease ends all hope in that direction at present. In looking over the Congress of the United States, I do not perceive another member who is actuated by In looking over the Congress of the United States, I do not perceive another member who is actuated by so strong a love for humanity. I am now impreased with the fact that the government cannot be brought to act in the right direction, until the public is en-lightened on the subject through the press; and ss I feel incompetent for the task of doing justice through my own communications, I have determined to write you personally, hoping you would feel it within your province to speak in telling words through Tas INDEX.

<text>

mannin Google

<text><text><text><text>

The next of the work of exposing these evils to the subset of the sub

The best we can do is to publish Mr. Smith's earbest and eminently rational plea for the Indians. The method and policy he indicates seem to us to car-Their own recommendation with them. If THE INbex were what we have in sanguine moments dreamed it might become-a journal so widely circulated as to reach every free mind and noble heart in the land; or if the powers at Washington did not seem deaf to every suggestion not backed up by a bottomless purse and an army of lobbylsts,-then its "telling words" might be something better than the tinkling of a bell in a vacuum. So far as its voice can be heard, however, it will be heard in favor of treating the Indians as men, and not as wolves; in favor of justice as against rapacity and cruelty. Our information is too scanty with reference to the subject above treated to make our word of much weight; but we are very glad to give place to such a valuable statement as Mr. Smith has made, and to express a hope that it may reach those who have power to act on its wise and humane suggestions.-ED.

[For THE INDEX.] THE DEATH OF JOSIAH WARREN.

At the meeting of the Boston Council, No. 1, of the "Sovereigns of Industry," on Wednesday evening, April 15, the following resolutions in commemoration of the life and character of Josiah Warren were unanimously adopted, and ordered to be placed on the records of the society:--Whereas, This Council of the Sovereigns of Indus-try have heard with deep emotion of the death of that eminent thinker and experimenter in social re-form, Josish Warren, whose writings and example unfold principles of the most vital importance for so-curing a better civilication based on justice and co-operation, we deem it fitting that we place on record our profound appreciation of his worth as a man, and of his genius as an original and masterly student of the deepest problems of political economy. There-fore, the deepest problems of pointical economy. Anex-fore, Resolved, That we pay our heartlest tribute to the blameless and beautiful character, the pure and he-role life, of this devoted friend of the laboring classes, this self-sacrificing and unwearied thinker and toller for the rights and welfare of all men. Resolved, That such a character and such an exam-ple as that of Josiah Warren reflect glory on human nature, and confirm our noblest hopes by their proph-ecy of a time to come when the discords and wrongs of our present civilization shall end, and the life of soclety be perfected in equity, love, freedom, and happiness.

society be perfected in equity, love, freedom, and happiness. Resolved, That those who knew Mr. Warren most, and understood him best, have the comfort of feeling that he died in peaceful faith, in a ripe age, and that his fame is likely to grow illustrious, as years pass and bring to full fruit the seeds he planted.

GOVERNOR DIX'S MESSAGE.

ALBANY, Tuesday, April 7. Governor Dix sent the following message to the Legislature this morning :-

STATE OF NEW YORK, EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, April 7, 1874.

STATE OF NEW YORE, EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, April 7, 1874. } To the Legislature: I deem it due to the interest and honor of the State to call upon you, as its chosen representatives, to take into consideration the propositions before Con-gress in regard to the currency. Though yet imma-ture and requiring the concurrent action of both Houses to give them the validity of law, they have, nevertheless, received in each such partial sanction as to excite serious alarm as to the result. In my an-nual message, in January last, I expressed the ear-nest hope that the paper circulation issued by the government would be curtailed, and that early steps would be taken to resume specie payments. I dd not anticipate that so extraordinary a proposition as that of inflating the currency by adding to outstand-ing legal tender notes, or by authorizing a further issue of national bank paper, would be seriously made. In view of the purpose which has been indi-cated to enlarge the volume of paper of both descrip-tions, and to repudiate all attempts to recestabilish the standard of specie-a policy, as I sincerely believe, fraught with wide-spread ruin to the industry of the country, and with imminent danger to its credit—I invoke your interposition to contribute all in your power to prevent its adoption. Your opinion, repre-senting as you do more largely than the Legislature of any other State the financial and commercial interests of the Union, should carry with it great weight. The flagrant injustice of the proposed measure with of any other State the financial and commercial interests of the Union, should carry with it great weight. The flagrant injustice of the proposed measure will be the more apparent when you consider that, if adopted without repealing the legal tender act, the rency still further, but to compel its acceptance in payment of debts, thus openly violating the solemuly proclaimed pledge of the government, five years ago, to redeem its notes in specie at the earliest practicable period, impairing the obligation of contracts, and con-summating what the Constitution prohibits to the States as an act of moral and political turpitude. To degrade the currency, and at the same time to comple be the most tyrannical exercise and abuse of financial power of which a civilized government has ever been guilty in time of peace. It differs in no essential re-spect, either under its moral or its practical effects, from a degradation of the standard of specie by an adulteration of the national coin. Two years ago, the sense of rectifude would have youte at the suggestion of such an act of perfidy; you ta persistence in wrong and injustice rarely falls to reconcile further wrong to the thought first and to the purpose afterward. If, spurning away all the teachings of history, and trampling under foot all the maxime of political justice, we adopt a policy as fraudulent as it is demoralizing, our successors will look back on our conduct with humiliation and shame. The millions of depreciated and irredeemable paper, if issued as proposed, will, by a law of distri-bution which no human power can control, be poured into the dity of New York to upbold and stimulate stock gambling; to glat the channels of industry, em-barnas all honest transactions of business; to emiss reactions in the various departments of labor by which the working classes are thrown out of employ-ment, and to shake to its foundations the fabric of the public credit.

ment, and to shake to its foundations the fabric of the public credit. Against the introduction of such an instrument of dishonor and calumny we should enter our solemn protest, as we would against any other flood of con-tamination. I speak with a clear understanding of the force of my words. I believe and trust you will concur with me in the opinion that the emergency demands the plainest and most empirities (language. I therefore recommend such an expression on your part as may comport with the dignity of the Legisla-ture, and as you may deem due to the interests of your constituents. I am not without hope that a timely declaration of your views, to be presented to Congress through the Senators and Representatives from this State, may arrest the torrent of disgrace and disaster with which the consolation of reflecting, when the evil comes upon us, that no effort on your part has been spared to avert it. Joint A. Drx.

part has been spared to avert it. Joint A. Dirk. Resolutions were adopted by the Senate, endorsing Governor Dirk's mossage, and asserting that the judg-ment of the Legislatare of New York is, that it is the duty of the administration at Washington and of Con-gress to stay the pernicious and rainous policy of in-creasing the volume of irredeemable paper currency, and to take measures for speedy resumption of speede payments. Copies will be sent to members of Con-gress.—Boston Globe.

Hoetry.

[For THE INDEX.] "UPPER" AND "LOWER."

BY 8. H. M.

Ah mel and is it so-Ab mei and is it so-Thou above, and these below? Measure now this value well-Who's above no fool can tell. He is wise whose eye undimmed Not the world of things hath skimmed, But the central fire doth see, Flame of the eternity,

Set the world apart in rows: Preach the savageness of blows; Preach—and, while thy gospel-note Echoes to the bills remote, Duil the ears thy message heed: "High" and "low" sow armfd ased.

High and lowwell to know Of the deep Each soul doth keep. Whiris the globe in heavenly space, Evermore the sun doth chase, Pauseless 'mid his flooding light, Onward through the depths of night.

Listen now, thou proudest one!

- Perfect not thyself alone: To the universe is thy fate wed, By the whole is thy life fed.

Let the justice of the sky Hanish once thy "low" and "high," Soon thine eye'll delighted find

How equal stands all human kind.

CASH RECEIPTS.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 18.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 13.
J. S. Shaller, 33; G. R. Russell, 35; Augusta Clement, 35; Harrey Moore, 35; Irving Stone & Co., 35; D. H. Fizhugh, 53; Richard M. Lucas, 55.50; G. N. Smith, $1.00; S. Woodin, 54; J. F. Johnston, 54; Walter F. Johnson, 35; — Green, 53; Jaz. W. Bairourt, $1; Henry Phelps, 33; Evald Ham-mar, 60 cents; D. A. Ruberison, $4; James Damon, 83; Thos. A. Ladd, $3; Geo. McMurray, 32; C. R. Moore, $1.50; Joo. A. Todd, $230; R. C. Hyde, $1; Jon. Hauck, $3; Joe-Harnsdall, $1; B. Gerrish, Jr., $4: F. Wigzlesworth, $10; Maggie H. Stane, 80; W. H. Crowell, $1:70; Jao. Wetherbee, $16; Victor Bishon, $2; Geo. M. Foster, 75 cents; Geo. Hurrston, $1.50; D. F. Henderson, 75 cents; Geo. Lewis, 25 cents; Hiram W. Moore, 56 cents; Jao. S. Crum, $2; as. P. Hsilett, 70 cents; S. L. Hil, 80 cents; C. A. Smith, 10 cents; W. C. Gannett, 60 cents; O. R. Allerton, 20 cents; Geo. N. Chapman, 35 cents; Charles Aller, 53.
All roceipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and who do not see their remittances acknowledged within three weeks after sending, will please notify us.
M. B. --Plesse remit by post-office money-order, by regis-mend for a set off the sending will please notify us.

b) The weeks after senting, not fitted money-order, by registered letter, or by draft on Boston or New York. Checks subscription will be proportionally shortened in the credit. N. B.-Orders for Tracts or single numbers of THE In-DER which are not on Anard will, if of small amount, be otherwise filled to the same amount without further notice.

erwise filled to the same amount without furner house. N. B.-Postage on TimE innex: is five conts per quarter, dating from receipt of the first number, payable in ad-vance at the place of delivery. N. B.-When writing about a former remittance, always give the date of such remittance as exactly as possible. N. B.-Please examine the ADDRESS and DATE on your INDEX mail-tag, and report at once any error in either. Implies by Google

The Index. PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

198

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Toledo Office: No. 35 Moxeos Strater. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

BOSTON, APRIL 23, 1874.

N.B.-Any person whose name is now on our mail-list will receive a second copy of THE IN-DEX, mailed to the same address, for a year, on pre-payment of One Dollar. This offer is made to accommodate those of our subscribers who wish to increase our circulation by sending extra copies as samples to their friends.

GLIMPSES.

SUMNER and-Washburn! "Oh, what a fall was there, my countrymen !"

A LADY of our acquaintance jestingly remarked, with reference to "Dress Reform," that the reform most to be desired was-"new dresses, and more of tham !!!

THE FREE RELIGIOUS SOCIETY of St. Louis has the following officers: President, Dr. T. J. Dean; Vice-President, H. E. Sharpe; Secretary, H. C. O'Bleness.

THE NEW YORK ASSEMBLY has passed a compulsory education act, requiring that all children between the ages of eight and fifteen years shall be instructed, either at school or at home, during at least fourteen weeks each year, in the common English branches, This is a move in the right direction.

THE FUNERAL of Josiah Warren was held on April 17, at Bulfinch Street Chapel, Boston. Address were made by Mr. Stevens, Mr. Morse, and Mr. Alger. The aged reformer was buried at Mount Auburn with the honor and reverence due to him; but his ideas still live and throb in loyal hearts. Peace to his ashes!

THE "Compulsory Education Bill" in Louisiana passed the Senate by a vote of 18 to 10, but did not reach the House. We are glad to see that Mrs. J. R. Walker and Mr. Wm. F. Perkins, of New Orleans, occasional articles by whom have appeared in THE INDEX, have been active in calling public attention to this excellent measure, and urging its merits.

THE FIRST NUMBER of the Freethinker, edited by Dr. Friedrich Leiss in New York, has articles on "Who is a Freethinker ?" "The Religion of Humanity vs. the Religions of Superstition," "Causality," "Cremation vs. Interment," and "The Poetry of the Future." It is a vigorous and thoughtful monthly of sixteen octavo pages, and is only twenty-five cents a year. Address,"Freethinkers' Publishing Company," Box 2675, New York City.

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL, in his long poem on Agassiz in the Atlantic Monthly, calls this country "The Land of Broken Promise." It is mortifying that such a reproach should come from such a source. But is it undeserved? Ask yourself mentally how many of your fellow-citizens regard a promise as inviolably sacred. The ancient Persians were taught "to ride, to shoot, and to tell the truth;" but if modern Americans are satisfied with keeping a promise merely when it is convenient, the hatchet-andcherry-tree story is not enough to put them on a level with the Persians.

AN ADJOURNED meeting of persons interested in taking measures to care for the neglected classes at North End, especially the children, was held last Thursday evening at the rooms of the New England Woman's Club. The spirit of the meeting was earnest and hopeful, and great good may yet come of it, though it is too soon to say much about it. At that very same hour, as a satirical illustration of the necessity of such measures, our own home was broken into in our absence, and about a hundred and fifty dollars' worth of silver stolen-not much, to be sure, but about all we had, and valued chiefly for the givers' sake. It was rather a biting jest. But all the more do we desire the success of the experiment at North End, that other homes may be spared such visitations.

CAUSES AND CURES.

What is the matter with the world? Why is it not happy and pure-a veritable "kingdom of heaven"? What is the great cause of the miseries that afflict mankind?

"Sin," says the Church.

"Ignorance," says science.

"Poverty," says commerce.

"Intemperance, prostitution, war, the subjection of women, the oppression of labor," says reform.

Such answers as these might be multiplied; and there is truth in them all. But the whole truth is in none of them. Philosophy looks at the evils of human society as in a large degree inevitable, resulting from the fact that society is still in the making, under the great law of evolution. It sees that civilization is necessarily relative and imperfect, and consists in constant amelioration rather than in the actual attainment of a perfect or ideal state. It perceives that all amelioration depends on Increasing, by intelligent adaptation, the degree of harmony already existing between man and his environment. It comprehends that there is and can be no short cut to the abolition of all evils, no royal road to general blessedness, no infallible panacea for what is supposed to be disease or derangement, when in fact the trouble is not so much malady as immaturity. It discerns the unwisdom of excessive reliance on specifics under whatever name, be it that of regeneration, education, peace, equal distribution of wealth, total abstinence, woman suffrage, cost principle, labor reform, or any other. These may or may not tend to bring man into a higher conformity with his own nature and the nature of things; but philosophy must rate all special ameliorations as parts only of a universal process which cannot but be a long one at the best, and is only made longer by pushing any one of them as if it were sufficlent and sole. The habit of inveighing against the existing state of things as unmitigated barbarism, the ambition to "reconstruct" or "re-organize" society on some novel plan of suspicious simplicity, is especially misleading. Whoever bears in mind the exceeding patience the universe has manifested in attaining its present stage of evolution will not be disposed to wipe the slate clean, and start all over again.

We do not aspire to do more than make a few suggestions on this vast subject, chief of which is the wisdom of shaping all our reformatory efforts with reference to the great law of universal evolution, The time-honored recipe of Christianity, though somewhat in disfavor with the semi-modernized branches of the Church, is a "new heart," and a "new creation" of the world after the "pattern shown in the Mount." The Church starts with "sin" as the cause of all social evil, and assumes the necessity of making mankind all over again by a process of "re-generation" or "salvation." No matter what phraseology may disguise this remedy, it is substantially the same as prescribed by all but the most latitudinarian sects, which retain the faintest possible flavor of the original gospel in their preaching. Individual transgression of an arbitrary command first sank the world in sin; individual transgression perpetuates the curse; and individual redemption will remove it. Sin is the explanation of all man's miseries; sin is inherent in man's individual nature and choices. Hence the ecclesiastical theory of his reformation can take account of nothing but his individual relation to the Holy Spirit or its representative, the Church. The idea of a continuous evolution of humanity under natural law is utterly alien to Christianity; and the plan of reforming individuals by influencing them through changes in their social environment, or of seeking the general advancement of society itself by setting natural causes to work, is tantamount to a negation of Christian theology.

Nevertheless, the only reformatory method which promises really valuable results is precisely that. The influence of sin in producing the great evils of society has been, and still is, even among radical circles, greatly exaggerated. These evils result largely from unwholesome general conditions rather than depraved individual volitions; and the wisest of all efforts is to rectify these bad conditions. Take the case of those hot-beds of vice to be found in all our large cities, the overcrowded, unhealthy tenement houses which it is almost impossible to abolish, because they pay their grasping proprietors twenty, thirty, and even forty per cent. profit on the money invested in them. Whole families packed away in small, close, dark, fetid apartments, men, women and children all together, with no possibility of privacy or self-respect, gloomy and dirty lanes swarming with children of all sges, who are exposed unprotected to the contamination and contagion of the worst examples, -what can be expected of such poor victims of society's injustice and neglect but careers of perpetual crime? What use is it to send missionaries of the sin-andsalvation gospel to such as these? What hope of any real alleviation of the wretchedness here so rank, or any abatement of the iniquity here generated, until decent homes are provided, at reasonable rents, that shall render decency in the inmates at least possible? All the preaching in Christendom must be as water poured into a sleve, so long as these horrible outward conditions are left unchanged. The root of the evil is not sin, but dirt, squalor, bad air, want of room, violation of every condition that virtue requires. Especially is the situation of children, born thus to a sure heritage of degradation and misery, to be lamented and promptly relieved. We are all guilty, every one of us, if we take no interest in plans for rectifying these evils by rational methods; though their vast extent may well strike dismay to the most sanguine heart. The sin-theory of the Church breaks down utterly in dealing with them, as does also the method which that theory prescribes. Society ought, in sheer self-defence, to take vigorous early measures for treating such cases of moral and pestilence as it would treat them if small-pox were concerned. Why not have a Board of Safety from Crime, as well as a Board of Health? It is the insane sin-theory of the Church that prevents. When the teachings of philosophy and social science have taken the place of this obstructive superstition, society will be roused to as keen a sense of danger from such reeking haunts of moral corruption as it is now quick to feel when the cholera breaks out. Meanwhile we all suffer the consequences of our own neglect, and have little right to complain when we experience the fruits of it in person. That is the way that new light breaks in upon the world, and even thus the new light is cheaply bought.

JOSIAH WABREN.

The following is the substance of some remarks made at the funeral of Mr. Warren, Friday, April 17.

I feel it to be a privilege to be permitted to say a few words at the funeral of Josiah Warren. I cannot claim the right to do so by virtue of any well established friendship with the deceased, nor even of long acquaintance with him. Neither is the right of speech mine on this occasion because I ever specially have championed the peculiar views of Mr. Warren, or presumed to be an instructor of others in them. I feel that I inadequately have studied Mr. Warren's doctrines,-that I but imperfectly understand them; and it would therefore ill become me to presume to expound them, or to attempt to instruct other minds as to their nature and bearing. My acquaintance with him personally has been all too brief, although, in a few short interviews with the man, I have had some real communion with him.

By virtue, therefore, of no right such as I have named, am I here to speak to-day, but merely by privilege for which I am grateful; by the kind invitation of those who were his trusted friends, and whose privilege it has been to have known him long and well, to have ministered to him in his last sickness, to have listened to some of the wisest words that dropped from his lips, and whose privilege now it is to have the last care for his material remains.

I cannot help inquiring as to the significance of this assembly here to-day. It is composed in part of many who knew Mr. Warren scarcely more than by reputation. The weather itself is very inclement, and naturally might have been expected to keep most of us away. Why then are we here? Our presence is not a tribute to a great name, albeit Mr. Warren's was not unknown to a small but highly intelligent circle in this country, and had reached even across the Atlantic, and been spoken with respect and honor by one of England's most eminent men. Yet Mr. Warren was a modest man, and never sought to make himself famous as he easily might have done. Our presence then is not a tribute to his reputation; it is only a tribute to his character. We know him to have been a true man and a just. We feel him to have been noble, brave, and magnanimous. And so we are here to honor him for his manly qualities, and ourselves are honored by his life and his mute presence with us.

Was Mr. Warren a reformer?' Not in the ordinary sense of that word. He sought to improve society, but not by manipulating its framework; not by mending its machinery here, and by patching it there. He brought an idea, a principle, to its cure. Mr. Warren believed that we have no true society to-day; no true commonwealth, no true civilization. And so he did not seek to reform society, but to reorganize it; nay, rather, to disorganize it, and to build it anew on prin ciples more just, and by methods more equitable. He was not a revolutionist, or a mobocrat. The revolution he sought was one of ideas, and he would have worked it out peaceably. He would have planted new ideas, which should impart a new vitality, and which should create a new, a glorious, and harmonions society. Was Mr. Warren, then, an idealist? Yes, truly he was. But do you associate that word with a dream-Well, then, Mr. Warren was a dreamer. But er? how beautiful were his dreams! Yet he dreamed them, not in sleep nor in indelence, but when he was wide awake and hard at work. He dreamed so of a "true civilization" more fair than any ideal republic conceived of by any master mind of old.

Tolmanda Google

As early, he once told me, as when he was fourteen years old, he began to think of society as it was and of society as it ought to be. He looked about him, and he saw misery, crime, poverty, and hard, grasping selfishness. He saw the poor growing poorer, the rich growing richer, and the gulf daily widening between the social classes. He trembled for the future of his country and his race, if this process should go on. And he said to himself, "What is the matter?" The radical, revolutionary, momentous question had been asked; and even then the carnest, thoughtful, enthusiastic boy set himself the task of answering it.

All his life long, Mr. Warren steadily, heroically worked at the self-appointed task of trying to answer this question. And he believed that he had answered it. He believed that he had discovered the principle, which, if adopted and carried out in good faith, would reëstablish and rehabilitate society, and cleanse it clean of those foul leprosies that now are destroying its very life. Those who would know what his discoveries and his doctrines were must read and study his social theories as set forth in his published writings.

And because he was a man of ideas, and was true and faithful to them utterly, we are here to reverence and do honor to him now. Though he stood so stoutly for individualism, he exercised one of the individual's highest rights to sacrifice himself for his ideas. This is what commands our unhesitating homage. He tried to live his own ideal life, and he did it through poverty, neglect, and loneliness

Here now he lies in what we call death. How refreshing it is! His long day's work is done; darkness, the darkness of the grave, summons him from his labor, and we say to him, "Good night P' Ah, it is harder and more heroic to live than it is to die! Who of us has not come on the time when it would have been essier for us to die than to live; to go down into death's stillness and calm, than to turn and take up again life's hard work, face its stern duties, and bear its trials and disappointments? Yet life is noble, and its tasks both noble and necessary. And while we say to our brother, "Farewell, true man and true philanthropist !" we will turn again to our own life-work, and try to live as true and faithful to our ideas as he did to his. A noble life will make a noble death ! A. W. S.

LONDON LETTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX:

Sir,-Our social instincts are, fortunately for us, ever asserting themselves, and leading to organizations more or less powerful.

Hitherto, in England, and especially in London, free thinkers have been scattered about in little theological or scientific coleries, and even in comparative isolation; and in consequence of this separation, incidental at first, their influence has been retarded, though by no means wholly lost.

At a meeting of the London Students' Unionsociety, by the way, which certainly failed to make any impression on "students," and was composed chiefly of men and women in middle life-it was wisely proposed by the Rev. R. R. Suffield (whose name and Roman Catholic antecedents must be well known to your readers) to extend the operations of the society in the direction which it had manifestly taken.

This suggestion eventually took practical shape in the transformation of the old society into a new one, under the title of the "Liberal Social Union,"-the main object being to gather together all free thinkers of every school of thought and of every shade of liberality.. The meetings were to be of a social character, such as are commonly known under the foreign names of soirées, conversaziones, etc., at which papers should be read, followed by general discussion.

Members would thereby be brought in contact with each other, and at the same time there would be an instructive mode of passing the time-no one to be excluded from membership on account of any religlous, political, or speculative opinions.

At first starting we numbered about one hundred and fifty members, and our first soirée was attended by nearly four hundred visitors, many of whom will in all probability become enrolled.

A paper was read on "Openness and Reserve in the Expression of our Religious Opinions," a subject remarkably suitable to such an inauguration, and handled with great skill and vigor by the writer, Dr. Morell, one of Her Majesty's inspectors of schools. This paper is being brought out by Mr. Thomas Scott. The reading was followed by an animated discussion, most opportunely commenced by an orthodox clergyman of the Church of England, representing the Broad school, and therefore somewhat open to the charge of "reserve," which he tried his best to defend. Before such an audience, however, his attempt eignally failed.

Then came Mr. Conway, who put in a plea for openness" on all points of morality, as well as on religion. He was followed by a Miss Marshall, whom it was a treat to listen to, for her fluency and good sense.

Other speeches were made, among which the most popular was that of Mr. Suffield, who must have felt delighted at the success of his idea.

Mr. William Shaen occupied the chair, and I need not say that, wherever he presides, he is welcomed with acclamation.

I noticed two or three clergymen of the Church of England there, besides some who had laid down their orders and gone to the bar, etc. It was certainly as well mixed a gathering as we could have desired. Nearly all the sects were represented, and, most gratifying of all, a large party of Jews with their families, and Hindus, Parsees, and Japanese

One must not make prophecies till after their fulfilment; but the first soirce of the "Liberal Social Union" gave promise of being a very fruitful source of improvement and progress.

I must now tell you of the formation of another society lately instituted, which aims at a beneficial reform of the highest importance.

In January last, Sir Henry Thompson, M.D., invited a few friends to talk over the subject of cremation, on which he had been writing his now famous article in the Contemporary Review for January, 1874. There were eight of us altogether, among whom was the lamented Shirley Brooks, late editor of Punch. The other names I will not mention without permission. We then and there founded the "Cremation Society" on the following basis :-

"We disapprove the present custom of buryling the dead, and desire to substitute some mode which shall rapidly resolve the body into its component elements by a process which cannot offend the living, and shall render the remains absolutely innocuous. Until some better method is devised, we desire to adopt that usually known as cremation."

The next thing was to pursue investigation by experiment, which Sir Henry Thompson undertook to do, and the results of which he has given to the world through the Contemporary Review for March. Nothing could be more complete or satisfactory than these experiments, as regards the decency, inoffensiveness, and aconomy of the process.

Some further investigation will have to be made in reference to the law of the land. It is well known that there exist no statutes against the process, but the Act of Uniformity may possibly present some difficulty to clergymen who may wish to see cremation supersede burial, but must continue to use the burial service of the Prayer Book. For my own part, I do not apprehend any difficulty on this point, inas-much as the Church already permits of a deviation from the original formula in the service for burlal at

If the religious rites of burial are performed before cremation, the phrase might be, "Therefore we com-mit the body to the flames;" and if performed after cremation, the minister might say, "We commit the ashes to the tomb."

The society is now announced to the world, and all persons who desire to join it, or to promote its objects, are invited to send their names to the Secretary, Wm. Gassie, Esq., C. E., 1 Great-Winchester Street Buildings, London, E. C. I hope that this letter may be fruitful in bringing over hundreds of names from America.

What has surprised me most is the fact that so many orthodox Christians have warmly embraced the idea whenever I have put it before them.

It is with a pardonable pride that I regard my association with the first effort of the kind which has been made in this country. I am, sir, very truly yours,

CHARLES VOYBEY. CAMDEN HOUSE, Dulwich, S. E., March 81, 1874.

Titerarn Hotices.

SEX AND EDUCATION. A Reply to Dr. E. H. Clarke'a Sez in Education. Edited, with an In-troduction, by Mrs. Julia Ward Howe. Boston: Roberts Brothers. 1874.

SEX AND EDUCATION. A Reply to Dr. E. H. Clarke's Sex in Education. Edited, with an In-troduction, by Mrs. Julia Ward Howe. Boston: Roberts Brothers. 1874.
This little rolume is made up of criticisms upon Dr. Clarke's book, by a dozen or more writers, every one of whom is, in the main, opposed to the position he takes in regard to the co-education of young men and women. The tendency of each article is to under-mine the basis of what Dr. Mercy B. Jackson calls Dr. Clarke's "pet theory that women must not do mental or physical work during certain periods."
Mr. Higginson, quite at large, shows that Dr. Clarke did not consult statistics as he ought in form-ing inferences so broad, and that his generalizations are based upon an extremely limited number of facts, several of which are indeed disproved as misstate-ments. Even on the supposition that Dr. Clarke's objections to co-education are well founded, Mr. Hig-ginson does away with them entirely by suggesting auch a change in the general collegiate curriculum as would be "only a quiet carrying out of what is already the marked tendency of Harvard,—to substitute elective for required studies, voluntary attendance on exercises for required attendance, and examinations as teats of scholarship in place of daily marks." As to the additional expense of admitting women to Harvard, which Dr. Clarke puts at the sum of two millions, Mr. Higginson says (for what seem to be good reasons) that he "does not see why it should cost a cent." Mrs. Mann testifies to the success and good effect of co-ducation at Antioch College. She says: "The health of the girls was much better than that of the young men." Mrs. Badger, from personal acquaintance with the same institution for a period of ten years, says: "Out of she twenty-seven gradu-ates, between 1857 and 1863, all but three, whose post-graduated history has been unreported, are known to have done effective work for a longer or shorter term of years, in educational and other de-partments; and a large number o than in those alleged by Dr. Clarke. Certainly it would seem that Nature had not done her work well, If, in carrying out her processes, one-fourth or one-eighth of the time of woman must necessarily be in a great measure lost to her. The demands upon strength, both of brain and muscle, responded to by women as wives, mothers, and teachers, together with various other avocations in which they engage, as well as that of continuous study, seem to refute such an idea; and it has always been stated that women in the avage state suffer no disabilities of times or seasons, even childbirth offering no serious interrup-tion to labor or travel. By personal observation, as a practical teacher for many years, I have known young ladies go through a school teim, and even a school year, without losing a day or a recitation, and still retain their usual health. Absences and failures to meet appointments were at-tributable generally to want of interest in study, to a readiness to be drawn away by other attractions, to weakness of purpose and of principle, and to a bane-ful habit of dilatoriness and unpunctuality,—to one or all of these causes, far oftener than to inability of at-tendance on account of health. At the academy where I was educated, young men and women pur-sued studies in common, and recited together, and no one ever dreamed of questioning the ability of the where I was educated, young men and women pur-sued studies in common, and rectited together, and no one ever dreamed of questioning the ability of the girls to keep fully up with the young men, without the least injury to their health; indeed, it always seemed that the girls, with less effort, tended natural-ly to get ahead of the boys. The same was true in different institutions in which I have been a teacher, where co-education was practised. There are reasons in abundance for the deplorable and almost universal breaking-down of the health of women at the present day, entirely aside from those assigned by Dr. Clarke. The evil dates back to causes operaling before the birth of the young wom-en now upon the stage. The fathers and mothers, either from ill-adaptedness to each other, from want of moral and physical soundness, or from both com-bined, have not given them an honest start in life. They have little or no stamina to build upon. Then there is in the training of children a deplorable igno-rance of physiological functions and the laws of health, on the part of parents. Joined to this is the miserable ambition, on the part of many, of early bringing their children forward to make a show in the world, rather than of laying the foundation of solid knowledge and worth. Consequently, young ladles world, rather that of the hybrid the bolt of bolt of solution knowledge and world. Consequently, young ladles are eager to "finish their education," and to "come out" into society. They undertake to accomplish be-tween the ages of twelve and sixteen what ought to extend to the age of eighteen or twenty. Schools, both public and private, are largely modelled upon

200 THEE his high-pressure principle, to which is added the schools seem to constitute no exception to this chools seem to constitute no exception to the degree that there are one asystems were wrought up to a degree that there are one asystems were wrough the to a degree that there are not seen to the schools upon them that their nervous asystems were wrough the to a degree that there are not seen to the school of the schools they attend dancing-parties, theatres, and other places of amusement which break in upon the set all times, and devouring all manner of indi-petities substances, is ufficient care is not taken that they have pure air to breathe, either at home or in set all times, and devouring all manner of indi-petities substances, is their manner of dressing, witch involves tight lacing, paddings which produce matural heat in some parts of the body, together witch involves tight lacing, paddings which produce matural heat in some parts of the body, together witch involves the could the devouring the even di-witch in co-education. Girls should have imparted which involves the to avoid violating any of the law of them a more thorough fundic, also the excessive which already have work envelope of the principele of bysize that the degree sense of the moral obliga-tion in the set to avoid violating any of the law-on them as more thorough involved the fundicities to them as more thorough into a condition of perfect in many there to avoid violating any of the law-ong the event wither in the idea advanced by Miss Phelps, many ladies lose their health after leaving school in many fadies lose their health after leaving school in the pression arising from this sittle book, that man-many there along and avenue of agreeable and inter-sing exerction open to them. The mental a thought, has proved the best means for the recovery of health. The last critique in this book is a sarcastic article by Maria A. Elmore, in which she says: "Dr. Clarke talks as though women in everything but college life had perfect liberty to change at will their position from the erect to the reclining; as though a regular, sumtained, and uninterrupted course of work was something of which they had never had any experi-ence." And she asks derisively: "Has Dr. Clarke written a book on Sex in Manufacturing Establish-ments? on Sex in Clerkabips, Sex in Workshops, or Sex in Sewing?" She goes on to show that remis-sion from regular labor is as much required in these cases as in that in which co-education is involved. She draws i udicrous picture of the school teacher and the house-maid, who, in applying for a situation, should make the condition that, at stated intervals, "The book closes with teatimony in regard to Vassar

The book closes with testimony in regard to Vassar College. Antioch College, Michigan University, Lom-bard University, and Oberlin College, all tending to invalidate the truth of the theory on which Dr. Clarke bases his argument against the co-education of young men and women. A. H.

Communications.

AID TO DISCHARGED CONVICTS.

ADD TO DISCHARGED CONVICTS. Der Friend, –I am sure it was not of your own friend version of the Oth Instant, "the absence of proper care for discharged [State Prison] con-rison of the instant, "the absence of any proper care for discharged [State Prison] con-rison of the instant, the prison of with out under any though I would not settle either question af-friend of convicts at and after their dis-proper care in ald of convicts at and after their dis-proper care in ald of convicts at and after their dis-proper care in ald of convicts at any after their dis-proper c

BOSTON, April 11, 1874.

[Perhaps our language would have been less liable to misunderstanding, if we had said-"the absence of any sufficient care for discharged convicts." We intended no reflections upon the State Agent; but the necessity of far more efficient aid than can be rendered by a single individual who has exceedingly limited means at his command is very clear. Since receiving the above communication, we have in-quired of Mr. James Burns what aid he himself received on leaving the prison, and his statement will be found below. It is evident that more adequate provision needs to be made at the most critical period of the prisoner's life, when he will be drawn back by irresistible circumstances into the vortex of crime, unless judicious succor rescues him to a better fate. We only say that the utmost the State Agent can do is and will be insufficient without the cooperation of society itself, which now terribly neglects its own dutles to the prisoner; and that we are confident Mr. Whipple would not be understood to Intimate suspicion of Mr. Burns' statement .- ED.]

WHAT ARE DISCHARGED PRISONERS TO DO

DO ? EDTOR OF INDEX:-Please permit me through the columns of your val-uable paper to make a few statements that may be the means of calling direct attention to the condition of discharged prisoners, and procuring for them more necuniary assistance than is now furnished them. I was discharged from the Massachusetts State range of the years. I received an ill-fitting, fithy, ragged suit of clothes, $4.00 in money from the State Agent. The coat was darned in many places, very filthy, and the stench emitted from it was so for the boson, and a large patch on the back. I could not have worn it more than one week. On the steamer, going to New York, the third night after my paper stripped in the seat, the buttons fell off, my any-paper in the boson and a large patch on the back. I could not have worn it more than one week. On the steres of New York, the third night after my paper stripped in the seat, the buttons fell off, my any-paper stripped in the seat, the buttons fell off, my any-pants ripped in the seat, the buttons fell off, my any-patch of New York, Thanksgiving morning, in a condition calculated to attract the attention and ercition the coat and shirt I wore a few hours; the rest I me contain the more than one week for the seat my attention of those who passed me. The coat and shirt I wore a few hours; the rest I the ridicule and aversion of those who passed me. The coat and shirt I wore a few hours; the rest I wore three days. After my return to Boston, about five weeks after my release from prison, I received from the State Agent two changes of under-garments, a white shirt, two pairs of socks, and a box of paper collars, all of the poorest and cheapest quality. This was all I re-ceived for my five years of hard labor. I have mentioned these facts, because it is of the number discharged from our different prisoners. Mine is not an exceptional case; there are large numbers discharged from our different prisons an-nually in a condition similar to mine, and many in a much worse state. Nearly all the clothes given to re-brought to prison. A well-known Boston detective told me that he knows nearly every man discharged from the State Prison from the clothes which he has on.

on. Ex-Warden Haynes informed me that, when he Ex-Warden Haynes informed me that, when he was Warden, he gave each man a new suit of clothing, if he preferred it. He had constantly on hand dif-ferent qualities of cloth; and, about a month before a prisoner's discharge, he was allowed to select his own cloth and be measured for his suit. The statutes say that no man shall be discharged from prison without a "decent" suit of clothes. This statute is being constantly violated, as can be proven, if neceswithout a "decent" suit of clothes. This statute is being constantly violated, as can be proven, if neces-sary. Now I ask that the word "decent" be changed to new soit that each discharged prisoner shall receive a new suit. Not an expensive and fashionable suit, worth $40.00 or $50.00; but a plain, substantial suit, worth $45.00. I ask also that each man discharged shall receive one pecuniary aid than is now furnished him. How ong would my four dollars have lated me, if I had been friendless and homeless? I have learned that there is a society for alding discharged prisoners. I do not know that there is such a society in existence. I have received no personal aid from it. I never saw one of that society, and never was informed by any of the prison officers that there was such a society. No released prisoner has yet told me that he has received any assistance from its members. It is all a myth to me. If there is such a society, it would be well for some of the members to make themselves visible to those in absolute need of their sympathy and aid, that they may not be obliged to steal to earn a livelihood. If had been friendless, and obliged to apply for work in the condition I was in when discharged, not one in a hundred would have employed me. Admit-ting that clothes do not make the man, yet the gen-rality of persons reagatic judge the habits and char-soter of a man by his external appearance, and would a decart condition. But released prisoners require more than slight pe-ment, and to be put where good influences will sur-round them. They are now regarded with too much adjust reader of earners were aver to make a societ and the received personers require more than slight pe-ment, and to be put where good influences will sur-round them. They are now regarded with too much adjust reader of earners require more than slight pe-ment, and to be put where good influences well sur-round them. They are now regarded with too much adjust reader be apply for they are now regarded with too much apreat many peop

LOVE. formed of an instance of a man who was employed in a certain establishment in Boston for several months, conducting himself properly, and giving his employer the best satisfaction; but his employer suddenly dis-missed him, upon accidentally learning that he was a discharged prisoner. Another case: a man who had served five years in the State Prison obtained employment in a shoe man-ufactory in this State, and at first received $18.00 per week. His employer, after a few months, learned the circumstance of his life, and took advantage of his mowledge by reducing the man's wages to $12.00 per week. In a few weeks the other men employed there became aware of his former imprisonment, and re-fused to work unless the man was discharged. The poor fellow was thrown out of employment, though he had a wife to support. He could get no other em-ployment, and had to steal; he was arrested and sent of the House of Correction for nine months. Shortly after his release from there, he committed another thet, and was sent back there again. He is now thet, but where he is I know not. These are only two cases. I could mention others, fract effort should be made to assist and reclaim dis-charged prisoners, by giving them sympathy and en-corragement, and placing them where they will be unrounded with good influences. God belp the discharged convict. The prison will have him no long-the and society refuses him. What shall he do? Man doneder, I charge you to be true to your mobler impulses, and not neglect your duty to un-nobler impulses, and not neglect your duty to un-fortunate humanity. Do what you can to reclaim dishonor! I hope this will be the means of emilsting the sym-mathy of some in behalf of our unfortunate eminan.

your failen brother and state. dishonor! I hope this will be the means of enlisting the sym-pathy of some in behalf of our unfortunate criminals, and of inducing them to adopt some method to aid our discharged prisoners, and let them know that they are not entirely forsaken and forgotten. J. H. C. ("JAMES BUENS.")

[Mr. Burns was not aware, when he wrote the above, that the State Agent is also Agent for the "Massachusetts Society for Aiding Discharged Convicts," receiving part of his salary from it. Of course, what he did was done partly on its behalf .-- ED.]

THE CASE OF "JAMES BURNS."

<text><section-header><section-header><text><text><text><text><text>

manning GOORIC

self, hoping thus that Burns might get it, but heard nothing from it. Three months afterwards I called at the prison, saw Burns, and learned from him that he was confined in "Solitary" for three days for writ-ing the letter of manly complaint to the Warden. The Warden did not tell me that he punished him for it, but really made light of his failings, as I then thought; bat I now see he did not care to talk about the monitoment.

Ine the test of the second from the second of the second of the second o

The system of the set of the set

THE SNOHOMISH ATHEN.CUM.

SNOROMISH CITY, Snohomish Co., } Washington Territory.

Washington Territory. ) EDITOR INTEX: Dear Sir,-You will probably be surprised to re-ceiva a letter from a place so far away in the great Nothwest, and so little known and obscure as not to appear on any map yet published. Isolated as we are, the spirit of the age and true progress has found a home among our sparse population. We have organized a public library association, in-corporated under the name of Snohomish Athene-am, embracing literary exercises, lectures, recita-tions, etc. We have raised about $700.00, one-half paid in, and the balance coming in daily. Among the books in our library are Darwin's complete works, Agassiz, Lyell, Buckle, Hume, Herbert Spen-cer, and many others of a liberal type. Our people are very poor, but there is less superstition and caot in this community than I have ever met with elee-where. We have no religious exercises at all of a sectarian character. The coming summer we intend to organize a Free Religious Association, on the plan recommended by THE INDEX. We are very noor Indeed both as a society and as a to organize a Free Religious Association, on the plan recommended by THE INDEX. We are very poor indeed, both as a society and as a community. Any of the liberal-minded in your com-munity who have any tracts, pamphlets, or books they could donate to our society would be scattering seed in a soil all prepared to bringing forth fruits of advanced truth. We have a scientific department in connection with our Athensum, and have already quite a little collection of curiosities. We should be glad to exchange specimens from our museum with those of other parts of the world. Any one desiring geologicsi or botanical specimens from this part of the world, by writing to the "Corresponding Secre-tary of the Athenseum," and specifying the nature of specimens desired, will receive such by way of ex-change. Any word you can say for us to friends of science, progress, and free thought will be gratefully remembered. I have donated THE INDEX to the library, and it is extensively read and much sought for.

for. With many assurances of respect and esteem, I have the honor to subscribe myself, Yours to command, A. C. FOLSOM, Cor. Sec. Snohomish Athengum.

[The best way to show our interest and good-will seems to be to publish the above very interesting letter, and add the expression of a wish that its modest requests may be generously remembered by all who are able to help the Athenseum. It is one of the best signs of the times to see such institutions as this starting up spontaneously in the far West; and we would respectfully tender our congratulations and most cordial sympathles to its founders and friends. -ED.]

"SUFFICIENCY OF PRAYER."

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 27, 1874.

SUFFICIENCY OF PRAYER.

BY MARK TWAIN.

a low an-exclaimed :-"Chil'en,

"Chil'en, dah's sumfin a comin !" All crowded close together, and every heart beat ster. Uncle Dan'l pointed down the river with his faster.

faster. Uncle Dan'l pointed down the river with his bony fuger. A deep coughing sound troubled the stillness, way toward a wooded cape that jutted into the stream a mile distant. All in an instant a flerce eye of fire shot out from behind the cape and a nt a long bril-liant pathway quivering athwart the dusky water. The coughing grew louder and louder, the glaring eye grew larger and still larger, glared wilder and still wilder. A huge shape developed itself out of the gloom, and from its tall duplicate horus dense vol-umes of smoke, and spangled with sparks, poured out and went tumbling away into the further darkness. Nearer and nearer the thing came, till its long sides began to glow with spots of light which mirrored themselves in the river and attended the monster like a torch-light procession. "What is it! Oh, what is it, Uncle Dan'l?"

a torch-light procession.
"What is it? Oh, what is it, Uncle Dan'??"
What is it? Oh, what is it, Uncle Dan'??"
With a deep solemnity the answer came:—
"It's de Almighty? Git down on yo' knees!"
It was not necessary to say it twice. They were all kneeling in a moment. And then, while the may be related the threatening glare reached farther and wider, the nego's voice lifted up its supplications:—
"Oh Lord, we's ben mighty wicked, an' we knows threat threatening glare reached farther and wider, the nego's voice lifted up its supplications:—
"Oh Lord, we's ben mighty wicked, an' we knows that we'szerve to go to da bad place, but good Lord, dead place, but good Lord, dead place, but good Lord, and then, who you's a givine to, we don't know who you's a givine to, we don't know who you's a got a share to, we don't know who you's a got a share to, we don't know who you's a got a share to, we don't know who you's a got a share to, we don't know hor you's a got a share to we don't know hor you's a got a share to, we don't know hor you's a got a share to, we don't know hor you's a got a share to, we don't know hor you's a got a share to, we don't know hor you's a got a share to, we don't know hor you's got yo' eye on, but we knows by do way you's a comin', we had some po' sinner's grime to katch it. Bait good Lord, the share the we don't know nuffin', and you knows, yo' own sel, dat day an't 's pomable. An' done hord, good Lord, the sin't like yo' innery grow who how you's a list in the wo' innery grow who was poily. It an't is when day's so many ornery grow polas how the day's so many ornery grow a polas here in the so in the to wand, on the down that chills chill a sole is when day's so many ornery grow and the chill and the chille chille chille chille chille chill and a barb at the own magnet. The familing and child in the side of the don't have the day and the down't and the down that have a share to sto the down that the down that the chille chille chille chille ch

The once, and make it out it do one laggah's ready. Lord, de ole-" "The flaming and churning steamor was right abreast of the party, and not twenty stops away. The weld thunder of a mud-valve suddenly furst forth, drawn-ing the prayer, and as middenly furst forth, drawn-ing the prayer, and as middenly furst forth, drawn-ing the prayer, and as model, scoured into the woods with the rest of the pack at his bosts, and then, asharned of himself, he haltsti in the deep darkness and should, but rather feeldy: "Heah I is, Lord, heah I is.!" There was a moment of throbbing sus-pense, and then to the suprise and comfort of the party it was plain that the august presence had gone by, for its dreadful noises were receiling. Unde Dar'l beaded a cautious recommonsance in the direc-flort of the log. Sure enough, the Lord was just turn-ing a point a short distance up the river, and while they looked the lights winked out and the coughing diminished by degrees, and presently coused allo-pather. "Heads'! Well dors's some folks any des unit't no gather. "H wah! Well, dare's some folks say dey nin't no "ficiency in prah. Dis child would like to know wha'h we'd a ben now if it warn't fo' dat preh. Dat's it, dat's it."

"PROHIBITING" BIBLE-READING. FILLMORE, N.Y., March 7, 1874.

FILLMORE; N.Y., March 7, 1874. MR. ABBOT:--In talking with an Orthodox clergyman, I found that he objected to the fourth "Demand of Liberal-ism" that it is intolerant, in that it would forbid the use of the Bible in schools as a reading book by those who believe in it. He thought liberals ought to go no farther than to prohibit those being compelled to use it who do not believe in it. I see by THE INDEX (present volume, page 66) that a mass meeting of the clizens of Vineland, N. J., has adopted the following preamble: "Where-as, We believe that the enforced use of the Bible, ar any other book, in the public schools, as a religious free-dom, therefore, Resolved," etc. Please explain why liberals should ask any more than the citizens of Vineland asked. I do not believe you would be willing to enact an intolerant statute. O. W. T.

intolerant statute

Yours in the cause of liberalism, G. W. T.

[To prohibit Bible-reading in general would most certainly be intolerant. But to prohibit it in schools which all tax-payers must support is not intolerance. No person has a right to force his private religion into a public institution; and Bible-reading (as a religious exercise) in our public schools is a direct violation of equal rights. The "Demands of Liberal-lsm" are as intolerant as equity and justice, and as more so.-ED.]

BABBITS AND GHOSTS.

BABBITS AND GHOSTS. At a debating society somewhere in Missouri, the uestion for the night was, "Is there such a thing as experimental religion?" Twices arguments were brought forward on both sides, when one of the debaters on the affirmation and very deliberately said shat he knew there was such at hing as experimental religion, because he had felt there (laying his hand where his heart was supposed to be). Of course that was unanswerable. But after a time sufficient for the addience to breathe freely and as the had had no religious experience, but he believed in ghosts. He had always been taught to be woods of a dark night, and a rabbit jumped up, he knew it was a ghost, for he felt it here (laying his new it was a ghost, dor he felt it here (laying his new it was a ghost. Bet and a rabbit jumped up, he new it was a ghost, for he felt it here (laying his new it was a ghost. Bet felt it here (laying his new it was a ghost. Bet felt it here (laying his new it ha ludicrous seriousness on his heart). Br. Jossern, Mo.

JACK, who is at boarding-school in the country, writes home: "Please send me a good trap to catch a woodchuck, and a piece of carpet for me to say my prayers on."

-month Google

THE INDEX-APRIL 23, 1874.

8

THE INDEX,

DEVOTED TO

PUBLISHED BY THE

AT

EDITOR:

ASSOCIATE EDITOR:

ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.

EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS:

MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

To increase general intelligence with respect purpose, both in society and in the indi-vidual:

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for bigotry, love for bate, humanitarianis for absorption in selfish schemes.

for sectarianism, devotion to universal end

In brief, to hasten the day when Free Religion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and pose of securing the more complete and consistent secularization of the political and ed-

The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of coclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution

To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an un-broken front, and the chief practical aim of

THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize

SPECIAL FRATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading pa-per or essay of a thoughtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the Regular editorial contributions will con-tinue to be furnished by the well-known eminent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high po-sition. Mr. VOTEX has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to rad-ical readers. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from valuable books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS.

in every city and town throughout the country. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dol-

are a year, payable in sdyance; and at the ame rate for shorter periods. All remittances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered letter, or post-office money order. The name with address in full, must be accompanied

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted

most marked features of THE INDEX.

great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

United States

icational institutions of the shall be the aim of all private and for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity

To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a high

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I.

W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass

R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass.

F. W. NEWMAN, England, CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX sims-

public activities.

to religion:

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS 1 Advertisements. OF THE PATRONAGE of the liberal advertising public is respect-fully solicited for Ture INDEX. The attempt will be honestly made to keep the advertis-ing pages of Tus INDEX in entire harmony with its general character and principles, and thus to furnish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their most generous aupport. To this end, all improper or "bilnd" advertisements, all quack advet-tisements, and all advertisements helieved to be fraudulent or unjust to any one, will be excluded from these columns. No cuts will be admitted. THE INDEX must not he held O. B. FROTHINGHAM, T. W. HIGGINSON, be admitted. The ENDER must not be held reeponsible for any statement made by advertisers, who will in all cases accept the responsibility for their own statements. ADVERTISING RATES. graphs, $1.50. For 1 to 12 Insertions, 10e per line 16 13 (6 25 11 8 6 16 16 26 6 51 6 8 16 16 26 6 6 6 6 6 16 5 6 6 6 6 Address.

On half-column advertisements, a discount 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column dvertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is aid in advance, a further discount of 25 per entry the state as beyos calculated, will On all advance, a further discount of 25 per cent. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

CIRCULATE ! Circulate ! | Circu-Inte THOSE PETITIONS. Den't feel satis-fied when your petition is a yard long, unless you have asked every one to sign it. Get good, influ-ential names.

GET EVERYBODY.

Don't neglect to show the potition to any one, because he is a stockholder in some church, or other exempled property. As many such persons will not should be made to take the responsibility of refusing to sign it. Don't delay! We want the petitions returned early.

Per order of EXEC. CONM. of the BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON, has been organized with a capital stock fired at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX.

A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Rational Religion

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public atterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and best matured thought of the age on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the social and political amelioration of society.

It is edited by FRANCIS E. ABBOT, assisted by ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of Editorial Contributors :-

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, B.I. WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverbill, Mass. RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England, PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng

Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX as the best popular exponent of Religious Liberalism. Every Christian minister, and every thinking church-member, should subscribe for 15, as the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly exposition of the differences between Free Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the argo ments and the movements which the Church will have to meet in the future.

Almost every number contains a discourse or leading article, which alone is worth the price of one rear's subscription.

Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a letter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1872, says: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Religion in the widest sense of the word should be felt in America-that such a journal should have been started and se powerfully supported by the best minds of your country,-is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of so-called religious or the ological periodicals is, as you know, very large." And later still : "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest."

Send $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for three months on trial.

Address THE INDEX.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Bos

LEADING INDEX WRITERS. Including A Weekly Journal W. J. POTTER, W. H. SPENCER, FREE RELIGION. F. W. NEWMAN, CHAS. VOYSEY, A. W. STEVENS, F. E. ABBOT, INDEX ASSOCIATION, Are now for sale at the office of THE INDEX. and will be malled postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 20 No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, cents each; complete Set of Eight Photo FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT.

THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass

T	N	D	E	х	т	R	A	C	т	S
								1.12	1.11

No. 1.-Trutha for the Times, by F. E. Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Principles." Ms. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Specles," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-inally intended for publication, but subsequently authorized to be used : "I have now quently suffortized to be used: "I have now read "Taurns FOR THE TIMES, and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 2.-Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char-acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are worthy of the nineteenth century. New Edi-tion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 3.-Lecture on the Bible, by the Ber. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfections and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 4.-Christian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 12 coples $1.00.

In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is special-ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the pur-No. 5 .- "God in the Constitution," by Bev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the Unit-ed States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 6.-"The Sabbath," by Parker Pills bury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies New

No. 7.-44Computatory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8.--The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that in-terests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents: 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 9.-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evan-gelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Constitution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10 .- The Impenchment of Christi-anity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thouanna. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute U, in packages of from five to one hundred copies.

No 11 .- The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12.-Is Romanism Real Christianity? Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 13.-On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 coples 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Beligion: The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular derivation of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE,

Boston, Mass.

with the money in each case.

Address

PUBLICATIONS. OF THE

FREE

RELIGIOUS

ASSOCIATION.

Report of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meet-Ing in 1867, at which the Free Religious Association was Organ-Ized. Containing addresses by 0. B Froth-ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucretia Mott Robert Dale Owen, John Wolss, Oliver John-son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Higon, and Ralph Waldo Emerson

This namphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not as this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meeting, 1869. 50 cents. Contains essays by Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and Ro-straint in Religion," and by David A. Wason "The Relation of Social Science to Religion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Denton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Bar-tol, A. M. Powell, R. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outlines of Judaism" by Rabbi Wise.

Proceedings of Third Annual Meet-ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains essays by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the Free Religious Association," followed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature addresses by D. A. wasron on "he Faint of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Re-ligion as a Social-Force, especially in rela-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religions Organization, as affected by the Spirit of Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Age," an essay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions," foi-lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judaism," by and Progressive Elements to Junamedaniam," T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedaniam," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Religions of China," and Wm. J. Potier on "Religions Old and New in India," also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public discussion on "The Bible in the Public ools," by Thos. Vickers, S. R. Calthrop, Rabbi Wise, and others

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meetroccedings of Fills Annual meet-ing, 1872. IS cents. (Four or more, B cents each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion as the Environment of Religion as America," by C. D. B. mins on Assignment the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Frothingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cella Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C. A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and others.

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meet-ing, 1873. 35 cents. (Four or more, 35 cents each.) Contains essays by Samuel Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and by John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett. Robert Dale addresses by Wm. C. Ganett, Bobert Dale Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longfel-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Luratia Mott.

Sympathy of Beligions, by T. W. Hig-ginson. 26 cents.

Religions of Chins, by Wm. H. Channing. 25 cents.

Beason and Revelation, by William J. Potter, 10 cents,

Taxation of Church Property, by Jat. Parton. 10 cents, singly; package 60 cents; of one hundred, $5.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1872 is quite limited. Orders by mail may be addressed either "Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass.

WM. J. POTTER, Sec. F. R. A. manual Google

THE INDEX. No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston

TF

203

THE INDEX-	APRIL 23, 1874.
DESCARTES (RENE.) Discourse on the Method of Rightly conducting the Beason and Seeking Trath in the Sciences	LEWIN (REV. RAPHAEL, D'C). What is Ju- dalam 7 or, a Few Words to the Jews 1.00
ELIOT'S (GEORGE) Novels. Honsehold Edi-	LONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Posms. Portrait. 4.00 Prose Works. Portrait 4.00
Comprising - Adam Bedg.	LOWELL'S (J. R.) Poema, 2 vols
Romola. The Mill on the Floss. Felix Holt.	LOWELL'S (J.R.) Poems, 2 vols
Bilas Marnor and Sonnes of Clerical Life, The Same, Library Edition. 1 vols	LOWELL (MRS. A. C.) Fosies for Children75 LUBBOCK (SIR JOHN). Origin of Civiliaa- tion, and the Primitive Condition of Man., 2.00 Pre-historic Times
EMERSON S (E. W.) EMBAYS. FURT Borles., 2.00	LYELL'S Principles of Geology, 2 vols 8.00
Miscellanies 2.00	Elements of Geology
Poems. With Portrait 2.00 May-day and Other Pieces	MANN (HORACE). The Life of Horace Mann. By his Wife
Bepresentative Man	Thoughts Selected from the Writings of
EVANS (E. P., Ph. D). First Historical Transformations of Christianity. From the French of Athanase Coquerel the	Horace Mann. 1.25 MARTINEAU (JAMES.) Ensays, Philosoph- ical and Theological. 2 vols. Per vol. 2.30 The New Amulties of Faith
Younger. 1.50 The Life and Works of Gotthold Ephraim Leesing. Transisted from the German of Adolf Stahr. 2 vols. 5.00	MAURICE (EEV. F. D.) The Ground and th
Adolf Stahr. 2 vols	MERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of V
FEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation. 1,00	MILL (JOEN STUART.) Dissortations and * S.
FROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Beligion of Hu- manity	Discussions. 4 vols., each manity	The Subjection of Women 125 E
FULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 5 vols	Representative Government
GOETHE'S Faust. Translated into English Verse by Bayard Taylor. 2 vols. Per vol 5.06 Elective Affiildes. 1.28 Wilhelm Meister. Translated by Thomas Cartyle. Fortraitof Goethe. 3 vols. S.50 Herman and Durothes. Translated by El- lon Frobingham.	MILLER (JOAQUIN.) Songs of the Slerras. 1.50 Songs of the Sun Lands
Cariyle. Portrait of Goethe. 2 vols	Species
OREG'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Life	Rousseau, 2 vols
GROTES LIFE Compliad from Family Dog.	MUELLER (MAX, M.A.) Lectures on the Science of Language. First Berles
mments, Private Memoranda, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote. Second Edition, With Por- trait	Chips from a German Workshop. Vol. I. Essays on the Science of Religion. Vol. II. Essays on Mythology. Traditions.
HAMEBTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter's Camp. Book I. In England. Book II. In Scotland. Book III. In France.	and Customs, Vol. III. Essays on Lit- erature, Biography and Antiquities. Three vols. Frice per volume
The Unknown River. 5.00 The Intellectual Life. 2.00	Lectures on the Science of Religion 2.00 NASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Round the Cirkle
HAMILTON (GAIL). Child World. Part Sec-	Ekkoss from Kentucky
oud 1.00 Child World, Part First. 1.50 HAMILTON'S Lectures. 1.50 Manual Loctures 3.50 J. Logical Lectures 3.50	NEWMAN (PRANCIS W.) A History of the Hebrew Mousroby. Phases of Faith; or, Passages from the History of my bread. The soul, its sorrows and its Ampirations. 200 Cate in Mouri Easys to the applications of Philasehronov, as the Unganization of Philasehronov, as the Unganization of Philasehronov, as the Unganization of
2. Logical Lectures	Catholic Union: Essays towards a Church of the Future, as the Organization of Philanthropy
New Ulustrated Library Edition. Nine vols. Fer vol. Twice-Told Tales. Mosses from an Old Manse. The Scarlet Letter, and The Bithedale Romance.	or the cutter, as the organization of 1.73 Philashtropy
The Scarlet Letter, and The Bithedale Romance. The House of the Seven Gables, and The	PARKER (THEODORE.) A Discourse of Mattern Pertaining to Boligion
Snow Image. The Marbie Faun.	mons. 3 vols
The American Note-Books, The French and Italian Note-Books, Our Old Rome, and Septimius Felton.	Critical and Miscellaneous Writings
BIGGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Papers 1.50 Malbone. An Oldport Romance 1.50 Army Life in a Black Regiment	The Trisl of Theodore Parker for the Mis- demeanor of a Speech in Fancuit Hall its against Kidmapping; with the Defence 1.50 per The two Christmas CelebrationsA.D.1. and MDCUCLV. A Christmas Story
Oldport Days	The two Christmas ColebrationsA.D. I. and MDCCCLV. A Christmas Story
ding Joarney	BUT DE'S (FLIZABETH STUART.) The
Italian Journeys. 2.00 A Chance Acquaintance	Gates Ajar
Translated from the German. 2 vols., with three portraits	The Silent Partner. 1.50 What to Wear 7. 1.00 PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por-
HUNT'S (MES. HELEN). Verses	BOSSETTI (CHBISTINA G.) A Shadow of
HUXLEY'S Man's Place in Nature	Dante
Lay Sermons, Addresses, and Beviews 1.75	Bodies 5.00
INGELOW'S (JEAN) Poems	SCIENCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory. By Prof. Huxley, F.R.S
INGELOW'S (JEAN) Prose. Off the Skel- lign	instrations
Stories told to a Child. First and Second           Gerica	SCOTT'S Waverley Novala. 25 vola
Mopes the Fairy: A Story	SPENCER (HERBERT.) Education, Intel-
JERROLD (DOUGLAS), Firstide Saints, Mr. Claude's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers. 1.50 JOHNBON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Beligtons, and their Relation to Universal Religions, and Saint Relations.	lectual, MOFAI, and Physical, and Zetheric, 240 Pirst Pirtnelpics, without and Zetheric, 250 Zenayr, Morai, duriversal Progress, A So- lection of his best Papers, 250 Social Statles; or, The Conditions Essen- tial to Human Happiness Specified, and
and their Heistion to Universal Religion. 5.00 JOSEPHUS. The whole Works of Flavina Josephus, the Jewish Historian	the First of them Developed
JOWETT. The Dialognes of Plato. Trans-	The Principles of Biology, 2 vols
lated into English, with Analysis and Intro- ductions by B. Jowett, M.A., Master of Balliol College, Oxford, and Begius Pro- fessor of Greek. Four vols	and Morals. New and enlarged edition 2.00
fessor of Greek. Four vols	SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The- ologico-Politicus
LECKY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and Inducace of the Spirit of Bationalism in	STOWE (HARRIET BEECHER.) Pink and White Torrang
LECKY (W. E. H.) History of the Riss and Inducnose of the Spirit of Rationalism in Europe. 2 vole	STRAU8S (D. P.) The Old Faith and the New
LEGGE'S Confucius' Life and Teachings 4.00 Confucius and Chinese Classics	New Life of Jesus. Authorized transla- tion. 2 vols
LEWES Physiology of Common Life. 2 rols. 3.00 Biographical History of Philosophy, from its Origin in Greece down to the Frenat Day, 7 vol. Lies and Mind. The Founda- tion and a Creed. 3.00	THAT PRAVE W M Novels, Household
tions of a constant	Patton. Complete in 6 volumes. Per vol. 1.25 Vanity Fair. The Newcomes. Adventures of Philip. Pendemais.
LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.30	rendenzis.

The Virginians. Emonof, and Lovel the Widower. Associate Writings. Household Edi-ion. Uniform with the Novels. Com-lete in Svois. With use Novels. Com-lete in Svois. With use Novels. Com-ting it, with the novels, the chespest and most ing it, with the novels, the chespest and most ling it, with the novels, the chespest and most ling it, with the novels, the chespest and most ling it. With the novels, the chespest and most ling it. With the novels, the chespest and most ling it. With the novels, the chespest and most ling it. With the novels, the chespest and most ling it. With the novels, the chespest and most ling it. With the novels, the chespest and most ling it. With the novels, the chespest and most ling it. So the chespest line is the second of the second line is the line is the line is the second printed Pieces. XTER'S (MES. CELIA) Among the REAU'S (H. D.) Walden; or, Life in s Woods cursions in Field and Forest. Portrail... e Maine Woods..... pe Cod..... thers Yankee in Canada Week on the Concord and Merrimac Rivers RNER'S (CHARLES D.) My Summer to 냷 interioge ck-Log Btudies (SS (JOHN.) American Religion ...... Lo fe of Theodore Parker, 2 vola...... IPPLE'S (E. P.) Literature and Life .... Life says and Reviews intractor and Characteristic Men..... Life ne Literature of the Age of Elizabeth... Life recease and its Coulifions ...... Life ashington and the Revolution ..... Life ITTNEY'S (MRS. A. D. T.) A Summer is she doldthwalto's Life. o Giris: A Home Story oal Folks he Other Oiris malse. A volume of Poems...... ITTIER'S (JOHN G.) Poenus. 2 vols .... Los ADDRESS: HE INDEX. I Tremont Place, Boston. ALF-HOUR RECREATIONS -IN-OPULAR SCIENCE. EDITED BY DANA MITES. he growing demand in this country for oks on popular science oncourages the ed-r and publishers to issue this series of pa-re, compiled from the works of the most ular scientific writers, ts, per Part; $2.50 for twelve consecutive Parts. 1. STRANGE DISCOVERIES LESPECTING THE UROBA AND RECENT SOLAR RESEARCHER. y Richard A. Proctor, F.H.A.S. 2. THE CEANIAL AFFINITIES OF MAX ND THE AFE. By Prof. Rudolph Virchew, f Berlin, author of Collular Pathology. ully illustrated. 3. SPECTHUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, M ts Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col-ored plate and several wood-cuts. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERIES,

4. SPECTRON ANALYSIS DISCOVERING, howing its Application in Microscopic Ba-earch, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Hear-naly Bodies. From thes works of Schelles, Young, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and oth-Ň.,

5. NEBULE, METRORIC SHOWERS, AND OMETS.

6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN NO EPIDENIC DELUSIONS. By Dr. Carpener, suthos of The Microscope and the Beesations, Human Physiology, etc.

. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARL By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of dichigan, author of Sketches of Oreath

8. ON YRAST. By Prof. Huxley, F.H.S. 9. THE CINCULATION OF THE WATERS OF TE FACE OF THE KARTH. By Prot. H. W. Dove.

. 10. THE STONE AGE, PAST AND PERSENT. By Edward B. Tylor, author of Primities

11. THE RELATION BETWEEN MATTER SD FORCE. By Prof. John H. Tice, of St. ouia.

THE INDEX. for sale by I Tremont Place, Bosto

Google

OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt at orders accompanied with the CASH. Orders are respectfully solicited from all friends of THE INDEL. ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women, Two North a Story of Experience 1.50 1.50 1.60 1.00 1.00 1.75 ABABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. 1.30 BACON'S Rentys..... 1.00 BAGEHOT on the English Constitution ..... 3.25 BAUMING ON BALLEXANDER). Mental Science: A Compandium of Psychology and History of Fallosophy. A Compaudium of Ethics. 1 vol. The Science: A Compaudium of Ethics. 1 vol. BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations .......... 1.00 SAHTOL (REV. C. A). Radical Problems... 2.00 The Bising Faith 2.00 3.511.4.1.1. Ontarioty and a second secon BROOKS' (CHARLES T.) Translations. The Layman's Brevlary. 2.23 The World Prices. 5.23 The Tail Student. 75 BUCHNER'S Force and Matter..... 2.50 Author, Fine portrait. CARLYLE'S Works, Chaspedition, Compris-ing the following: Mincolansous Zeasys, T vols, Franch Rovolution, J volst, Freiser & A. vols, Eartor Rosentrus, I vol.; John Stering, I vol.; Lift of Schiller, I vol.; John Stering, I vol.; Lift of Schiller, I vol.; Past ad Present, I vol.; Horeos and Hero Wor-ship, I vol.; Latter Day Pamphieta, I vol. Any roisme sold separatoly. J vols. Lon-don, 161-8. Per vol. - 84 CERVANTES' Don Quixote ..... 1.50 CHANNING (WM. ELLERY). Thoreau: The Post Naturalist, With Memorial Verse, 2.00 CHENEY (MEASLE, D), Patience, A. Series of Thiry Games for the Firsteine. 1.00 Social Games, A new Scries of Games for Parties, uniform with Potience. 1.00 Sally Williams, the Mountain Girl, Illus-trated. 1.50 CLARKE (JAMES FREEMAN). Ted Great Raligions Compan. CLARKE (Dr. E. H.) Sex in Education ..... 1.25 COBBE (FRANCES POWER). Studies New and Old, of Ethical and Social Subjects. 2.09 and Oid, A.S. ALSO FOWERS, Studies New York, Stu

POPULAR BOOKS

SENT BY MAIL

AT PUBLISHERS' PRICES!

ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.

NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.

ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other

- Autimate Variation of Animals and Plants under Variation of Animals and Plants under Manstonion. 2 vols., illustrated ...... 6.00 LEWES

204	THE INDEX-1
A FEW COPIES ONLY		BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.	$25 per day guaranteed using our tree. Well AUGER and Drills. Catalogue W. W. Gilles, 8t. Louis, Me.
Of an excellent Photograph (Cabinet Size) of Rev. MONCURE D. CONWAY, of London, can be had at the office of THE INDEX. Price 60 cents. A CHEAP OFFER!	in held at HOBPTALLEE HALL, 669 Weahing- ton Street, Boston, overy Sunday, at 10% A.M., 3% and 7% P.M. All that relate to the Religious, Folitical, and Social interests of mankind consis- tuto the subjects for discussion. THE INDEX and Index Tracks are for sale every Sunday at Hospitalier Hall.	the	NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drog, and Hand-grinding WILLS. Te Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Hustra- ed pamphetes free. Address J. SEDGEBEER, Paineaville, Ohio.
A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACTS, from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed to any address on the prepayment of 75 CENTS. Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass BOUND VOLUMES OF THE INDEX.	THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873. The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume 6) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of $3, by express, at the purchaser's expense. A complete file for the year can be furnished in no other form. Address THE INDEX, I Tremont Place, Boston.	Repeal of the Laws whereby church and other corporate property is unjustly exempted from its share of the burden of tarsation. As a means to this end, we have published for general circulation several thousand copies of a	TO NEWSPAPEB PUBLISHEES. Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, should like to construct for monstition along
Sound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, r, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the robustor's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2 and $3.00 respectively. These volumes succeedingly valuable singly, irrespective sech other; for the important easys and there are an expense of the same and the areas, and will furnish as instructive read- tiventy years hence as to-day. No more tayling out of Orthodoxy than one of taggling out of Orthodoxy than one of see volumes. Address THE INDEX, 'UST PUBLISHED, 'UST PUBLISHED, Biography. By Octavius Brooks Froth- ngham. With Heilotype Portrait. I vol. vo. $3.00.	TO BOOK - BUY ENDEX. Modeler & Wilson, and Grover & Baker Companies, involving over $200,000, is finally decided by the Supreme Court of the United States in favor of the FLORENCE, which also has Biroken the Monopoly of High Prices. THE NEW FLORENCE is the ONLY machine that sews backward and forward, or to right and left. Simplest, Cheerest, Bed? Bold for cash only. Special terms to Clubs and Dealers. FLORENCE, Mass., April, 1874. TO BOOK - BUY ERS Please examine the revised list of FOPULAR BOOKS on the opposite side of this page. Any OBTAINABLE BOOK NOT IN THIS LIST will be furnished to order. Readers of THE INDEX who desire to purchase English, German, or French Books, or	T B A C T on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 27. The edition was made as large as our funds would allow; but, so great has been the demand, it is already nearly exhausted. Our next edition ought to be large enough to place a copy in the bands of EVEBY VOTER IN THE STATE, and generously to supply the calls for them in other States.	tor one or more working papers. Best of references given, and satisfactor GEO. H. ELLB, Thremont Place, Beston. G. L. HENDERSON & CO. BANKEERS. LEBOY, MINN. Money invested on short time, or for farme, at 19 per cent. Interest per samo payable security guaranteed. All cypense for tille an ample security guaranteed. All cypense for part of the United States free of charge. REVERSENCE. First National Bank, Aurit Minn.; Miwakkee National Bank, Aurit Minn.; Miwakkee National Bank, Aurit Minn.; Miwakkee National Bank, Miray kee, Wia.; City National Bank, Chicago, II figures in American bistory. Mr. Fromus- ham has given a large number of Parker's letters and journals not previously published; he has written in the light reflected upon Parker's words and efforts by the momentous events of the last fifteen years, which have brought out in bold relief the sugacity, wis- dom, and heroism of Theodore Parker's on even; and he has written so candidly, and	who wish for information as to the price, &c., of any American or Foreign Book, can have their orders promptly filled and their inqui- ries answered by addressing THE INDEX, i Tremont Place, Boston. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS	have made arrangements for printing the Tract at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston Losgue, with its various other expenses, to bear the output expense (not)	City; Morris Altman. REAL ESTATE SECURITIES paying 5 to 10 per cent. interest, or Investments in Real Estate in Chicag and vicinity, if judiciously made, are the best and safe modes of employing capital. The old with so profound an appreciation of Parker's characteristic qualities, that his book is of surpassing interest. The NEW YORK TRIBUNE closes a four and	EXPLAINED. An explanation of this wonderful discov-	All Friends of the Movement	Real Estate and Loan Agenc,

The NEW YORK TRIBUNE closes a four and a half column review of this block by saying : "It holds up a remarkable specimen of ro-bust manliness whose form and lineaments can be studied with equal advantage by friend and foe."

204

Sent, postage prepaid, on receipt of price THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston. Address

HAPTER S C VROI

The Bible of the Ages. FOURTEEN CHAPTERS.

FOUETEEN CHAPTERS. Selected from Hindu Vedas, Buddha, Con-fucius, Egyptian Divine Pymander, Zoross-ter, Talmuds, Bible, Plato, Pythagoras, Mar-eus Aurelius, Epicteus, Al Koran, Luther, Seandinavian Eddas, Benan, Taliesin, Mil-ton, Penn, Adam Clarke, Mary Fletcher, F. W. Newman, Tyndal, Max Müller, Elias Hicks, Channing, Garrison, H. C. Wright, Lu-cnetia Mott, Higginson, T. Starr King, Bush-nell, Parker, Davis, Emma Hardinge, Emer-son, Denton, Tuttie, Abbot, Frothingham, and others. Gespels and Inspirations from party

Gospels and Inspirations from many Centuries and Peoples.

Contrainer and Peoples. "Slowly the Bible of the race is writ, Each age, each kindred, adds a verse to it." Edited and Compiled by G I L ES B. STE B B I N S. Four hundred pages; bound in cloth; price $1.50. No Extra Charge for Postage. Man-THE INDEX. Address THE INDEX, No. I Tremont Place, Boston,

M USIC BOOKS!

Ollosr Ditson & Co., during repairs of their build-ng injured by free will occupy store No. 325 Milh-ngion Sfree, where they have, as usual, for sale a ery large stock of the best and most popular Music Sools; a mong them :--

THREE

CHOICE VOLUMES OF BOUND MUSIC. Price of each Book: Boards, $2.50; Cloth, $3; GBt, $4. Minsical Treasure. Vocal and Instrumental. Wreath of Gems, Vocsi. Shower of Pearls. The Best Vocal Duets

Capital collections. Two hundred large pages, popular places, a great deal of music for a little money.

RIVER OF LIFE. Best Sabbath-school Song Book.

American Tune Book.

Price $1.50, or $15.50 per doz. Has one thou-sand Tunes and Anthems, not new, but se-lected as the 'avorites from all prominent Church Music Books published during the last half centry y.

Father Kemp's 'ld Folks' Tunes. Enlarged.

WINNER'S NEW SCHOOLS.

For Nano, Cabinel Organ, Melodaon, Gutlar, Ban-jo. Cornet, F/e, Accordson, Clarionet, Fuile and Plagaola. These convenient hooks cost but 75 cents each, and are concise, simple methods, with large quantities of pleasing airs for practice. Sent post-paid, on receipt of retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO.,

CHARLES H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York.

ery, and its uses to science, including the re ceived Theory of Sound, Hest, Light, and Color; with chapters on the Sun, Stars, Nebulæ, Comets, and Meteoric Showers. Abridged from the works of Scheilen, Roscoe, Huggins, Lockyer, Young, and others, by the editor of Half-Hour Recreations in Popular Science.

12mo., cloth, with two colored plates and twenty Minstrations. $1.50. THE INDEX. Address

1 Tremont Place, Boston.

THE REFORMATOR.

A WEEBLY JOURNAL, For the dissemination of useful knowledge, and the enlightenment of the people on political, religious, and social subjects, with a view to reform blished in the German language e ery Saturday, at Adrian, Mich.

Principal office at Adrian, Mich., to which all letters and communications must be ad-dressed.

C. LOHMANN & SON, Pub's. C. LOHMANN, EDITOR.

The REFORMATOR circulates in all the principal cities and villages in the United States and Territories, and presents an excellent medium for advertising.

Terms of Subscription-$2 per annum. Advertisements inserted at liberal rates. Subscription and advertisements must be paid in advance

PROCTOR'S FAREWELL

- Lectures on Astronomy.

- I. Earth's Past and Future. II. Life in Other Worlds. III. Other Suns than Ours. IV. The Infinities around Us.
- AND BROWN-SEQUARD'S

Lectures on the Nerves.

- I. The Nervous Force. II. Nervous Influence. III. Indirect Nerve Force. IV. Nerve Derangement. V. Sumner's Sufferings. VI. What Nerves May Do.

PUBLISHED IN FULL IN THE TRIBUNE EXTRA, No. 15,

NOW READY.

This Extra size contains Bayard Taylor's famous letter on "Schliemann Discoveries on the Sile of Ancient Troy." And a lecture by Prof. C. F. Chaudler on "The Germ Theory of Discase." Price (sheet edition), 10 cents per copy. Pamphilet edition, 20 cents. Fifteen Tkibuyne Extras (wheef form) post-paid to any address in the United States for One Dollar, and circulars giving full details of the con-ents and price of all This TRIBUYZ Extras free to any address. Address

THE TRIBUNE, New York.

come forward and help us with liberal donations i We frequently receive communications from parties wishing tracts to distribute, asking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circuating them gratuitously throughout the country To many of the subscribers of THE INDER and others whose names have been furnished as as probable friends of the movement, copies of the Tract, together with Petitions asking the repeal of the Exemption Laws, have been sent,

With the Hope

that such friends will try to secure as many sig natures to the petition as possible in their locality We respectfully ask those who are unable to attend to the matter themselves to place the petitions in the hands of those who will. Let us

BOLL UP THE LIST!

Let our united voices be heard ! And let it be dona NOWI Wev would say, also that we feel deeply the to beer

Other Organizations

in this State, to cooperate with us in securing equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands of Liberalism," If, in any locality, there are se who are inclined to

Form a Liberal League,

we are ready to render such assistance as lies in OUP DOWER.

LIBERALSI

If all will unite and work, the results as can be accomplished Address

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Per order of the EXECUTIVE COMMITTER.

ONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drog, and Hand-grinding MILLS. Teles, es. Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Illustrat-pamphiets free. Address J. SEDGEBEER, Painesville, Ohio. O NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS. Aving conveniences for doing the best of wspaper printing at reasonable price, j ould like to contract for composition alone, for composition, press-work and mailing, r one or more weekly papers, set of references given, and satisfactory best of references given, and satisfactory ork gnaranteed. GEO. H. ELLIS, Tremont Place, Boston. L. HENDERSON & CO.

eal Estate and Loan Agency OF

ERNST PRUSSING, 143 BANDOLPH STREET! Chicago (Established 1853),

Guarantees perfect tills and ample security in all its Real Estate Loans. Firstclass securities always on hand, in-terest and principal collected without charge. Real Estate investments made on commission or on shares; taxes paid, &c. Orders of capitalists and real estate own-ers respectfully solicited.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is full longth. It is full size. It is

Many kinds of spool silk are a perfect frand, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unit for use. The ladies will always find the Eureka Silk exactly as represented. Every spool is warranted, and the manufacturer's name indelibly branded on every spool. Call

ONLY TEN SETSI

All the bound copies of the FIEST VOL-

UME of THE INDEX (1870) which were on sale at the Office of the Association in Toledo

were sold very soon after they were advertised. FIVE DOLLARS have since been paid for a single copy obtained by special advertisement. The Association have just come into possession of Ten Copies of this

TEN COMPLETE SETS

of THE INDEX, including the first, second,

third, and fourth volumes (1870, 1871, 1872,

Only Ten Dollars a Set.

Persons wishing to possess a complete file

of THE INDEX, whether for its intrinsic or historical value, will do well to send their orders without delay. The First Volume will

NOT BE SOLD SEPARATELY.

The four volumes will be sent in one package, by express, at the cost of the purchaser.

THE INDEX,

1 Tremont Place, Boston.

first volume, and now offer

1875), at the low price of

Address

for It.

he unft

amonth and elastic, and is equ adapted to hand or machine use

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT. BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, APRIL 30, 1874.

VOLUME 5.

> 3 15

> > ۶.  $\tilde{\zeta}_{i}$

> > > ¥

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

We demand that churches and other ecclesisatical property shall no longer be exempt from just taxation.
 We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-ress, in State Legislatures, in he navy and militia, and in risons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.
 We demond that all works.

a We demand that all public appropriations for educa-logal and charitable institutions of a sectarian character and coase.

We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that ide new of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostensi-bly as a tert-book or avowedly as a book of religious wor-thlp, shall be prohibited.
We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, all all other departments of the government shall be abol-side of the target and that the government shall be abol-sided, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pea-ulties of perjury shall be established in its stead.
We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-pealed.

pealed. 5. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws thal be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty. 8. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical similaistration of the same, no privilege or ad-vantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unflinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, It is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperilled, the advance of civili-mion impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and

religion; and Whereas, Cortain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threataning the perpetuity of religions liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; THERFORME, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-selves together under the following:

ABTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

-The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-

HILL LEADUR OF ——. ART. 2.-The object of the Liberal League shall be to se-care practical compliance with the "Demands of Liberal-ism" inbroghout the country, and especially in —: Also, as soon as five hundred such Liberal Leagues shall have been formed in different places, to send two delegates to a National Convention of Liberal Leagues, to be hereaf-tre called, is order to co-operate with all the liberals of the commity in securing the needed reforms. Art. 2.-The means employed in working for these objects

Arr. 3.-The means employed in working for these objects able to regular local meetings, free discussions, lectures, addresses, conventions, the platform and the press in gen-eral, and all such other means as are peaceable, orderly, and right.

Asr. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the Lague as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members.

Agr. 5,-Any person may become a member of the League

Man. Asr. 5.-The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Scoretary, a Treasurer, and an Execu-tive Committee of three members; and their divites shall be hose commonly pertaining to these offices. The President ad Scoretary shall be z-officie delegates to the National Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together.

Contention of Liberal Leagues when called together. Asr. 1.-These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-ular meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-muts shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

So far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of The input. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that if will yet be accepted universally by the American people, as the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A The solid platform consistent with religious newry. -Liberal League ought to be formed to carry out its princi-les wherever half a dozen carriest and resolute Liberals can be got together. Being convinced that the movement to score compliance with these just "Demands" must weight of the second se Sincard on formering 15; and I and the measurance and active co-operation of every man and every woman who be-lieves in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-port promptly the names of their Presidents and Secre-tarias. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion as that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are wight, let their organized voice be heard like the sound of many waters.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT. Editor. BOSTON, Sept. 1, 1873.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page. RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT: PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE

FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CON-STITUTION.

ARTICLE 1.

ABTICLE 1. BECTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-tabliabment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or a stridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Gov-mment for a redress of grievances. BECTON 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting an of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or or bridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the or freight of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the for engine and the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances. No religious and no perion shall ever in any State be deprived of any of the sories of any public or private duty, or ren-dor the performance of any public or private duty, or ren-dor the performance of any public or site the or she may hold or the subject of religion. BECTON 2.—ON State hall make power to enforce the pro-misons of the second section of this Article by appropri-tions of the second section of this Article by appropri-tions of the second section of the second section.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

BY A. W. S.

MR. SUMNER'S last book, Prophetic Voices Concerning America, is being published by Lee & Shepard.

M. GUIZOT, of France, is in his eighty-eighth year. He has recently finished his History of France, and is just commencing his Universal History.

THE Investigator has reached its forty-fourth volume and Mr. Seaver, its editor, the thirty-seventh year of his editorial life. Both have our heartiest congratulations and good wishes.

BAYARD TAYLOB speaks of Egypt (where he now is) as "a country, which, once seen, forever after attracts." We understand that Mr. Emerson did not find himself of the same opinion when he was there last; but was glad to get away from the land of the Sphinx.

WE ARE INFORMED, on the best authority, that Mr. Emerson, as one of the Overseers of Harvard College, did vote for Compulsory Prayers at that institution. The trnth must be told, whether we like it or not. Yet we can but think that this vote was inconsistent with the whole drift of his former life and teachings.

THERE ARE to be some private theatricals, for the t efit of the Free Religious Association, at the Hall of the Christian Union, No. 800 Washington Street, to-morrow (Friday) evening, at a quarter before eight o'clock. Tickets can be had at Ditson's, 255 Washington Street. We hope the entertainment will receive excellent patron age from the friends of the Free Religious Association.

AT A SPECIAL meeting of the Second Radical Club, at the house of Rev. Dr. Bartol, Monday evening, April 20, when Dr. Bartol read a wonderfully interesting and besutiful easay on Shakapeare, Mrs. Dall stated that there is in this city, at the present time, a portrait of Shakapeare, which was painted during his life. The picture, we believe, is the property of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society.

A VERY handsome picture of Charles Sumner has been published by J. H. Bufford's Sons, 490 Washington Street. It is a copy of a recent photograph by Black, and is a satisfactory likeness of the great senator as he ap-peared in the late period of his life. R. Thayer, 181-2 Boylston Street, is the general agent for its sale; but any reader of THE INDEX can, if he chooses, procure it by sending to this office, and it will be forwarded to him by mail. The price of the picture is seventy-five cents.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON has written a letter accepting the candidacy for the office of Lord Rector of the University of Glasgow, Scotland. It is addressed to the Committee formed to promote his election to that office. He says: "If you persist, you are at liberty to propose my name; and, if elected, I shall certainly endeavor to meet your wishes and those of the University, as to the time and the duties which the office shall require." We suppose that the principal duty of my Lord Rector is to deliver an inaugural address setting forth his views on Ednostion

Single Copies Seven Cents.

WHOLE NO. 227.

PUBLIC OPINION in favor of cremation instead of in humation of the dead appears to be making some progra both in this country and Europe. Early in this month, a meeting was held in New York for the purpose of organizing a Cremation Society. Several prominent gentlemen were present, and letters were read from O. B. Frothingham, C. A. Dana, and others. Some very good arguments were brought forward on this occasion to prove that burning the bodies of the dead is a better praevery way than that of ordinary burial. As the result of the mesting, a bill has been introduced in the New York legislature to incorporate the Cremation Society then provided for.

A WRITER in the Brooklyn Argus says: "The actor and the actress are among the hardest-worked people on this two-penny little footstool which men call the earthand very often they are the poorest paid in proportion to the work they do. Yet they are, as a rule, very jolly folk." We believe there is a most unjust prejudice on the part of society in regard to theatrical people generally. So far as our acquaintance with them goes, they have as many virtues and as few vices as the common run of men and women. Their vocation is as legitimate as any other; for it is just as necessary to amuse and en-tertain people as to feed, clothe, and instruct them. And it is even possible sometimes to get as good a lesson from the stage as from the pulpit.

A NEW monthly paper, called Equity, has made its appearance in Boston, for the first time, this month. It de-clares itself to be "a journal of Christian Labor Beform," its aim being "to point out the way to real Equity." Its editor-Rev. Jesse H. Jones, a man of ability and devotedness-writes a frank, manly, vigorous opening article for his paper, in which he thoronghly commits himself to all the interests involved in the Labor Reform movement, but distinctly states that he shall work under the Christian banner and by distinctively Christian methods. "We build," he says, "on man and God, by faith in the power of Jesus Christ." We certainly do not withhold from him our sincerest wish that he may succeed in do-ing all possible good in the peculiar way that he has chosen. His little eight-paged paper makes a most neat and presentable appearance, and we have no doubt will be well worth the dollar a year which he asks for it. The New England News Company have it for sale.

THE SECOND RADICAL CLUB had one of its most inbereating meetings last Monday evening. Having, on previous occasions, heard the story of an ex-convict, in-deed, of two ex-convicts, of their experience of Stateprison life, and their statements as to the discipline at present enforced in the Charlestown prison, —all which had awakened the deep sympathies and the keen interest of many of its members, -the Club, with that fairness which, we hope, is characteristic of all radicals, deter-mined to hear both sides of the case before judging; and therefore they invited General Chamberlain, the present Warden of the State Prison, to visit them, and give his version of the whole matter. An unusually large meet-ing welcomed the General, and gave him the most careful and respectful hearing. The impression which he made upon the members of the Club, we think, was generally a quite favorable one. While he himself does not claim to be infallible in his official capacity, and while it is evident to us that he has made some mistakes in his administrative theory and practice, at the same time we cannot resist the conviction that the present Warden is a man who means faithfully to do his duty in whatever position he occupies, and that his motives are excellent and honorable. The system of prison discipline which he is expected to enforce is more to be blamed than is he; and to reform or change that should be rather our purpose than to find fault with the Warden. It ought here to be said that the two ex-convicts, to whose statements General Chamberlain was in part replying, were present at the meeting, and in their replies bore themselves with great modesty and dignity; and we think that the result of the meeting is an undiminished confidence, on the part of a great majority of the members of the Club, in the substantial veracity and integrity of these two gentlemen, inasmuch as the statement of the Warden was in most particulars corroborative of their previous statements.

1 GOOGLE

LIST OF LIBERAL LEAGUES

206

BT. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries. Sorrow, Mass.-J. S. Rogers, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries. Juryrszow, Guio.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Becretary. Socretary. Socretary. Toplebo. 1084 - J. Bactor President; J. L. Hatch, Socretary. Secretary. J. Reedy, President; 5. S. Beckley, Secretary. VINELAND, N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Becretary. JUNCTIONVILLE, NEH.-J. W. Eastman, President; H. L. Easley, Secretary. OLATER, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, OLATRE, RAR-S. S. S. Wilson President, M. R. OLADS, Becrotary, Mick.-W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, Becrotary, Mick.-W. G. Kastman, President; F. E. Knowles, Secretary.
 Oscoult, Mo.-E. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Secretary, G. O. Scher Persident; C. Bhodes Secretary Secretary. BATH, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Bhodes, Secretary. BEBLIN, WIS.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. BERGIAN, WAN-THE BERGIAN, WANG, President; J. E. WAREINGTON, D.C.-George M. Wood, President; J. E. Chawford, Secretary. Auguan, Ohio.-John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treas-trar. urer. MINMEAPOLIS, MINN.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. Nuw YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, NU Secretary. Sr. Josspu, Mo.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Secretary. Becretary, EAC CLAIME, WIS.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy.

[For THE INDEX.] What is Free Religion?

AR ADDRESS DELIVERED BEFORE THE FREE RELIGIOUS BOOI-FTT OF PROVIDENCE, B. I., AT THEIR FIRST MEETING, FEBRUARY 22, 1874.

BY A. W. STEVENS.

<text><text><text><text> struggling career has been an endeavor to get a better statement and a better experience of freedom and re-ligion; and in proportion as he has realized his dreams of these he has advanced from the lowest andreams of these he has advanced from the lowest an-imalism into the stature and semblance of humanity. In his effort to apply these to his own state, the pos-sibility of society first dawned upon him; and no true society can exist until these are relieved of every trammel and alloy, and firmly established in the in-tellect and conscience, and thoroughly incorporated into the character, of every individual. These who originated the Free Religious move-ment therefore but conced a new charge or unread into the character, or every intervent Those who originated the Free Religious move-Those who originated the Free Religious move-ment, therefore, but opened a new chapter, or turned a new leaf, in the history of the race. They did not cut themselves off from the past, but placed them-selves in the line of its progress—looking forward, not backward. The very name which they chose—Free Religion—linked them with all that had gone before, with all the effort and the struggle which humanity had made to gain a fuller freedom and a purer religion.

had made to gain a religion. religion. I have to say, then, that all that Free Religion means, and exactly what it means, is FREE RELIGION. The very marrow of its significance is found in its ery name. In the fulness and the exigency of time very name. In the fulness and the exigency of time it has come to lay its emphasis on, first, freedom; second, religion. And the emphasis which it brings is greater and grander than any which has been laid on either of these two words before. To show that this is so, and that Free Religion has a mission in the order of the natural evolution of ideas, we must look at the national second sec at the past.

I. FREEDOM.

At the past. I FREEDOM. Freedom never yet has had full birth in Christianity is not its natural mother. By her very constitution at temperament, she was evidently never designed to bear such a deep-chested, broad-shouldered, high-browed, and clear-eyed offspring. She has been in pain of labor with him for eighteen centuries; but she has never fairly delivered him. And she cannot do so without dying; her throes of labor must end in throes of death. Her breasts never can feed the child Freedom with the milk which he needs to grow his expanding powers. She has tried it, and she has failed. She has brought up many fine and beautiful offspring, but not one of them has turned out to be freedom himself; only a race have they been which result and Namer the should give him real existence. Jess of Namer they well him yet. It never can have one with him, for all the words of truth he spoke residen which here devers which neuroita and beautiful offspring, but not one of them has turned out to be freedom himself; only a race have they been which set of Namer the words of truth he spoke result of Namer they well live in the memories and glow in the hearts of men forever. And Jesus was be was broader, deeper, grander, aweeker, more char-table and more liberal every way. He ought not to heid responsible for all the narowness and bigstry and indown hich he live in the memories and glow in the hearts of men forever. And Jesus was be was broader, deeper, grander, aweeker, more char-table and more liberal every way. He ought not to heid responsible for all the narowness and bigstry and indown heart was better than his beat. The product of its spirit and many of its deed. But here hearts of men which deeds to the have set always shown; for could he have reappeared in was broader, deeper, was better than his head. His invitions were nobler than his judgments; has established, even no wiser and no better than when he died, we beliere he would have severely rebuked it for much of its spirit and many of its deeds. But Jeaus' own heart was better than his head. His intuitions were nobler than his judgments; his moral sense was wiser than his intellect; his sympa-thies were broader than his belief. He had love enough in his soul to have made him a universalist; but he had narrowness enough in his understanding to make him a specialist. He was a sectarian, though his sectarianism was not of the heart, but rather of the head; it was not so much a personal as it was a national characteristic in him. As a lover of humanity, an inspirer of holiness, and a benefactor in his day and generation, Jesus is almost unapproach-able; but as a teacher, he often comes far short of be-ing wise. In this latter capacity, it cannot be denied that he did at least plant the seeds of the arrogance, dogmatism, and intolerance which have been ever consplcuous in the Christian Church. That principle of authority which the Church has always insisted upon, and which has always been the bitter foe of freedom, we may fairly lay at the door of Jesus; its germs can be clearly discovered in some of his teach-ings. "Christ is the authoritative, specially divines teacher," says the Church; and Christ bimself seems scarcely to make any more modest claim. As he grew older in life, and especially older in his public career, his self-consciousness seemed to grow upon him; he more and more swelled with the conviction of a particular, providential destiny. We find him neifforth too much as a necessary mediator and sav-ior, laying too great stress on falth and belief in him, and discipleship of him. "Come unto me," he says-"follow me"—"believe in me"—"abide in me"— "ask in my name"—"without me ye can do noth-ing"—"1 am the vie, ye are the branches"—"he that believeth in me shall never die"—"He Father loveth you because ye have loved me"—"I go to prepare a place for you." All this is sublime, but as it is in e which saying contains the very essence of dogmatism, narrowness, and bigotry, and furnishes the amplest excuse for all the cruel, persecuting zeal which his disciples in all ages have manifested for him.

excuse for all the cruel, persecuting zeal which his disciples in all ages have manifested for him. In my opinion, it is incontrovertible that the didac-tic Christianity of Christ is not favorable to personal freedom of thought and action. /His Christianity means authority, not of the individual mind and con-science, but of the Christ and his Church. Jesus was a noble protestant against the juiceless formalism of Judaism; but in turn he became--uninientionally, perhaps, but really—a dogmatist in the interest of Christianity. The New Testament does not conspic-uously cultivate manly self-reliance, vigorous inde-pendence, virile exercises in mental and spiritual free-dom; but rather a constant looking to and depend-ence upon Jesus, as the indispensable and all-suffi-cient mediator, teacher, and savior. Inasmuch as Christianity in its origin was not fa-vorable to freedom in religion,--inasmuch as its re-vered founder announced himself as the great Master whose words alone are saving truth and life,--it is to be expected that the Christian Church, if faithful to be uthor and finibaler" of its faith, should have followed out the logical line of his instructione, and laid claim to an authority in his name, which was a denial of the right of private judgment, and an ex-tinguisher of the growth of free thought. This is exactly what it did. The Christian Church, as soon as it got established, proved itself to be the unhesitat-ing and uncompromising foe of mental freedom. Christianity annexed the State to the Church, and used the tremendous power of both to subject the in-dividual, and absolutely to control his faith and his conduct. There really was no freedom in the Church for centuries; the rule of authority excluded personal independence. Every free tongue was bound, every free voice was hushed; the ecclesiasi-cal mandate was supreme. The "dark ages" indeed prevalled, because the sun of freedom was eclipsed by the opaque body of Christ's Church. Civilization haited, and seemed about to turn and leave the Chris-tian world; for liberty is the soul of civilization, and when liberty is suppressed progress is prevented. This was Catholic Christianity. Do you asy that that it was not 'ssentially different. The Christian claim of authority was not surrendered by Protestant claim of authority was not surrendered by Protestant-claim of it as energetically as did ever the Prope. Luther and the Pope agreed as to the author-ity itself, and the ultimate source of it. Christ was the absolute Master of both; he was the "very God himself pushed it as energetically as did ever the Pope. Luther and the Pope agreed as to the author-ity itaelf, and the ultimate source of it. Christ was the absolute Master of both; he was the "very God manifest in the flesh," to whom each equally bowed. Their only quarrel was as to who or what should rep-resent that authority. The Pope said he represented it. Luther said the Bible represented it. This was the pith of their contention. They quarrelled, not about a principle, but about an office. Now it is this assumption of an authority external to the individual, which makes Christianly the foe of freedom. No matter what that authority is, nor what is chosen to represent it; If the private judg-ment must yield to it, if the reason and the conclence of the individual must be subject to it, then mental liberty is denied, and free thought is put to death. Martin Luther never dreamed of denying this author-ity—the authority of Christ as represented by the liberty is denied, and free thought is put to desth. Martin Luther never dreamed of denying this anthor-ity--the authority of Christ as represented by the Bible. These are his words: "Unless I be convinced by Scripture and reason, I neither can not dare re-tract anything; for my conscience is a captive to God's Word, and it is neither safe nor right to go against conscience. There I take my stand. I can do no otherwise. So help me God. Amen." Brare words they were for him, under the circumstances; and we will honor him for them. But they were not brave enough. "My conscience is a captive to God's Word," he said. If the conscience is captive to any-thing, it is not free; and a free conscience is abso-lutely essential to make a free man--it is the indis-pensable condition of seeking and knowing the truth. The conscience of Protestantism is captive to the Bible; and therefore the Protestant conscience is not free. History abundantly proves this. It proves that the office of representing Christ's authority was only transferred, by the Lutheran Reformation, from the Pope to the Bible. The right of private judg-ment still continued to be denied; reason was still en-slaved, and conscience struggled to be free. All who, like Descarles, dared to exercise mental freedom, and think independently of the Church's dogmas, had to break with the still asserted authority of Christianity, and go out into the wide field of personal indepen-dence. They were hereites to the Church and were break with the still asserted authority of Christianity, and go out into the wide field of personal indepen-dence. They were heretics to the Church, and were compelled to suffer her severest displeasure. But shall I be told that another form of Christian-ity remains to be considered, and that this is favor-able to freedom? I know that the gradual progress from authority to liberty produced what is called "Liberal Christianity," and that this claims to be a real assertion of the right of private judgment, a guaranty of free thought and reason in religion. I wish I had found it to be so? If I had, I should have been saved the great pain of parting from the faith of my fathers, and wresting my individuality from that form of Christianity in which I was born and nur-ured. A loving and sensitive man does not wantonly break ties that bind him to tender memories and dear associations. None but a fool will offend his friends form of Christianity in which I was born and nurt-ured. A loving and sensitive man does not wantonly break ties that bind him to tender memories and dear associations. None but a fool will offend his friends without cause, and turn his back on the hopes had cherished, and forsake the work to which he had ded-icated himself in his enthusiastic youth. If some had found "Liberal Christianity" all that it pretende to be—the home of free thought and rational relig-ion—they certainly would be among its devoted min-isters to-day. But disappointment touched their hearts, when the free word of God that was glowing. That word, because it was free—because it was not the word of tradition, or custom, or formalism-found no hospitality among "Liberal Christians." but came back to the speakers tortured, distorted, and bevrayed, accompanied with looks of surprise and words of indignation. No; Liberal Christianity was a beautiful dream, but it is not a beautiful reality. At best, it is only Liberal Christianity is not Liberal Religion. The old Christianity is there, with the authoritative Christ, and the semi-authoritative Bible. It is only liberly within Christianity; and Christianity mere has meant liberty, and it never can mean liberty. The acknowledgment of Christ as Master—that is, Mas-ter in any absolute or specially divine sense—is a stab at freedom in its vital part. The great, ortho-dor leaders of "Liberal Christianity," for which they should be everlastingly revered; but not one of them has ever uttered anny word in favor of a liberty larger than Christianity, or inconsistent with the acknowl-edgment of Christ as an authoritative and specially divine teacher of religious truth. "Liberal Chris-tianity" is a sect. It has always been a sect; it has always acted as a sect. It has never encouraged free thought but within Christian limits. Behold how it itreated Theodore Parker; and he lived when "Liber-al Christianity" was comparatively young, and when it had as much enthusiasm for ilberality as ! _ver other, and their great destinies are in common. Free Religion, then, stands for freedom; such free-dom as man has never known but only dreamed of. A freedom which shall give scope to all his wonderful powers and faculties; which shall enable him to seek wisdom among things old and new, and to gather in from every quarter the precious thoughts, sentiments, and experiences of his race; which shall set him face towards Truth, with untrammelled mind to search for her and to declare her glorious secrets, as from time to time they shall be revealed to his patient band and brain.

Unine Google

1.2.1

<text><text><text><text>

II. BELIGION.

<text><text><text><text><text>

gy, an eschatology, an idolatry, and a morality; but I undertake to say, speaking historically and logical-ly, that it has never given and never can give us pure religion.

I undertake to say, speaking historically and logically, that it has never given and never can give us pure religion.
In this direction, also, Christianity has done as well as it could. Under the circumstances, I find no fault with it; I only point out its failing. But Christianity started wrong; and therefore it has proceeded wrong, and come out wrong. Jesus himself, essentially, was a purely religion mixed up with his notions of his own Messiahship, he might have been the man to have prophesied the beautiful and pure religion for all time. But, as it was, he gave himself, to his disciples rather than his religion; and they made the mistake of accepting the gift, and going out to preach "Christ and him crucified" instead of the simple truths of pure religion. The result is that, in the Christian world to-day, we have an idolatry of Christ rather than a pure worship of God; we have an observing of forms, a handling of ascraments, I allow, have some good meaning in them, and produce some good effect; and the better and more truly religious the man who administers or observes them, the deeper is their meaning, and the more beneficial their effect. But as fixed and instituted rites, invariably performed on the authority and in the name of Christ, rather than difference in a her mean the latent meaning to the patent symbol, and clipse truth by error, and substance by show. I speak from experience no less than from observation. I have been a devout observer of these Christian rites; and, honest as was my thought in observation. I have been a devout observer of these Christian rites; and, honest as was my hought in observation. I have been a devout observer of these Christian rites; and, honest as was my thought in observation. I have been a devout observer of these Christian rites; and, honest as was my hought in observation. I have been a devout observer of these Christian rites; and, honest as was my hought in observation. I have been a devout observer of the set of my deepeet feeling. And when at last, weighing me down, by proposing some changes in the ordinary observance of the "Lord's Supper,"—such as dispensing with the bread and wine, and some-times substituting the invariable mention of Jeaus with a reference to some other great departed soul,— my proposition was received by the most Christian of my congregation with horror; and they said: "Away with him! for he has given up Christ, and refused the Christian communion!" Without knowing it, they had made their Christ and his symbols an idol, and were as really worshipping a fetich as did any heathen who ever bowed the knee to "stock or stone." They were so blinded by their venerable idolatry, that they could not see that my suggestion was made in the interest of a purer worship and a deeper communion.

heathen who ever bowed the knee to "stock or stone." They were so bilinded by their venerable idolatry, that they could not see that my suggestion was made in the interest of a purer worship and a deeper communion. The transmetric terms of the protocol of the same idolatry of a man and his memorials. It is not religion, pure and simple, which is found there, but Crisitianity: and Christianity largely means super-stition and idol worship. It is a religion "for Christ's sake," not for man's; it is a religion "for Christ's sake," not for man's; it is a religion "for Christ's sake," not for man's; it is a religion which commemorates the Savior, not one that cele-brates the saved. I would do no injustice to any truly religious men and women who are devout Christians. I know there are many of them, and have been many of them. I speak of systems and in-situtions, not private persons. But in proportion as a man is truly religious men and women in the Church have not been those whom the Church has most dishonored and persecuted. No finer saints ever lived than Fénelon and Madame Guyor; and both were in disgrace with the Church was not Theo-ored; often they have been those whom it has most dishonored and persecuted. No finer saints ever lived than Fénelon and Madame Guyor; and both were fund his religiou, his natural tendency is to darsepect official persons, and to grow in love with the funce then ceases to be the "Church of Christ," and become sheel verte of Humanitz. It is to emphasize religion, therefore, that Free Religion mapeart. It comes to establish a free spirit and the wide, large fellowship of souls, ind personal leadership. It comes to establish a free spirit al fellowship, to prophesy and work for not be thought or said by anybody, that Free Religion means only freedom, and that it intends to dispense with elligion is not any one of these, nor all of them. Religion is not any one of these, nor all of them. Religion is not any one of these to all the powers of mana; it is the divertion the maturity;

207

<text><text><text><text>

JOSIAH WARREN'S LAST LETTER.

As our readers have been already informed, Mr. Josiah Warren, the author of True Civilization and other unpretentious little works on social reform, died in Charlestown, Massachusette, on the fourteenth of April, at the age of seventy-five years. Although he was confined to his chamber during most of the winter, his mind was as vigorous as ever; and he took great interest in the articles on his "cost principle" which have been published from time to time in TRE INDEX. On the eleventh of April, he wrote the first of the following papers; but, not being satisfied with it, he essayed without entire success to re-write it on the thirteenth, the very day before he died, even calling upon an attendant to steady his hand while writing. There is something exceedingly touching in this unquenchable enthusiasm for his idea manifested by the good old man, while the flame of life was flickering in its socket; and, notwithstanding the repetitions, it seems well to publish both drafts of his paper together, that his latest thought on the subject to which he had devoted his entire life may be preserved entire. Under these circumstances we refrain from making the comments that suggest themselves by way of rejoinder to his criticisms .- ED.]

[For THE INDEX.]

[For THE INDEX.] MR. A BBOT :—In THE INDEX of the 5th of March, Isee that, in treating of the "cost principle," you do not grasp the whole significance of it, but confine it to money, the compensation for labor, while we are account of its convenience to express scarifices of all kinds, whether physical or mental. Tou instance two men: one finds a brickbat, and the other picks up a diamond. You say that the cost principle requires that, the labor being the same, the origination of the convenience to the other's principle requires that, the labor being the same, the origination of the cost principle that the cost principle ustifies him in demanding compensation, not only to the sacrifice of time and ense in picking up the isewel, but for the sacrifice made in parting with it. Tou do great injustics to the subject, too, when you spent to think that, because one accepts a principle, he is bound to accept any absurd applica-tion that any one chooses to make of it, however it may be distorted. But the natural sovereignty of each person will take care of this. I had thought of saying something about interest on money; but, as I approach the subject, I find it gathering such a cloud of childish sophisms to un-ravel, I can only laugh at them, and say we shall ac-compliab nothing, unless we make money what it ought to be; and if we do this, there will be nothing to be done in borrowing and lending money. Noth-ing to say about interest. JOSIAH WARBEN. I am too sick to write plainly.

[For THE INDEL.] [For THE INDEX.] MR. ABBOT:--IN THE INDEX of the 5th of March, I see that, in treating of the "cost principle," you do not grasp the whole significance of it, but confine it within the limits of labor performed; while the word was selected and is continually explained to include the sacrifices of all kinds that we make in serving each other. For instance, the inventor spends his sleep; and, for a convenient phraseology, we say his machine has cost him time, money, and sleep. If this view of the word cost is borne in mind, the prin-ciple will not long be disputed, but will be acknowl-edged to be the basis of a new and successful civiliza-tion.

ciple with not long to unprace, and successful civilization.
You instance two men: one picks up a brickbat, and the other a jewel; and you say that the cost principle requires that, the labor being the same, the one should exchange his jewel for the other's brickbat, entirely ignoring the fact that the cost principle justifies him in demanding compensation not only for the sacrifice of time and ease in getting possession of the jewel, but also for the sacrifice he makes in parting with it.
I don't know that I ought to be surprised at this misconception of the cost principle, since I have several times seen it announced as referring only to labor performed by the hands.
I may buy a house that I have particularly desired, and be willing to pay more for it than its labor cost. If I do this chearfully, all is well; but when the owner stretches his demands beyond what he knows to be compensation for his labor and sacrifices, he has entered on cannibalism.
[Here the manuscript abruptly ends; the tired

[Here the manuscript abruptly ends; the tired hand, which at last found it impossible to execute the bidding of the tireless mind, rested from its toil forever,-ED.]

[For THE INDEX.] THE CHRISTIANIZING FANATICISM.

<text><section-header><text><text><text><text>

ple's. This country has, in less than a century, grown from the weakness of infancy into the strength and power of full manhood, under the influence and the splitt its founders breathed into our glorious Consti-tution—a document they designed to be the nation's Book of Life, its Holy Writ. Although it provides in itself the mode of amend-ment, and the Pittsburgh Conventionites may have that mode in full view, it appears to me that no man of truly American heart and instincts, casting his vision back into that august assembly of noble patriots who formed, framed, and breathed their un-bounded liberalism into the Constitution, chn doubt that they did, in their very hearts, intend to make such suitable acknowledgment of Almighty God as was essential to secure his divine protection, and give strength and cohesion to the government. Their careful avoidance of any such special religious senti-ment or belief, as the modern children of light are so anzious now to have incorporated into it, manifestly shows they foresaw that a republican form of govern-ment could only rest upon the consent of the people, and that religion could not be legislated upon with-out violation of the natural and inherent rights of the ment for their own generation, but for the lifetime of the republic. There were, perhaps, as many sects of religion represented, both in the convention which published the Declaration of Independence and in that which framed the Constitution, as there are sects now in the present age. The fathers-scholars, statesmen, Christian philosophers as they were-did anitably recognize the Almighty God sufficiently for the well-being of a nation, calling to all the people of the earth-"Come ye hither where ye shall enjoy free-dom of religion as ye understand it, not as theologians teach it." Is it possible, after nearly a century of the most un-paralleled growth, prosperity, and happiness any na-tion ever attained that the farther rowth. prosperi above of reaction as by interstant it, not as thereaptime teach it." Is it possible, after nearly a century of the most un-paralleled growth, prosperity, and happiness any na-tion ever attained, that the farther growth, prosperi-ty, and happiness of this must languish and die out, unless a fuller acknowledgment, such as the Pitts-burgh Conventionites desire, be forced into the na-tional Constitution ? Gloomy and discouraging in-deed would such possibility be. The very enunciation of the Christianity the Pitts-burgh Conventionites asek to incorporate into the Constitution, if adopted by the States, would neces-sarlly force a faith upon the whole people, be their individual convictions what they might: to wit, that Almighty God is the author of the nation's existence, Jesus Christ its chief ruler, the Bible the supreme rule of its conduct.

Almighty God is the author of the nation's existence, Jesus Christ its chief ruler, the Bible the supreme rule of its conduct. Though the majority of the people, as Christians, may believe it all, or a majority may not, they are too proud, if they will truly consider and value the prop-osition as a principle, to have it forced upon them. The President of the Pittsburgh Convention, Mr. Brunot, says in his address: "We have not proposed to change these [fourth Article and first Amendment United States Constitution]. We deem them essen-tial, in connection with the Amendment we ask, to the preservation of religious liberty." What sort of religious liberty would it be, if Athelists, Deists, He-brews, Free-thinkers—good upright citizens,—called upon to take office and an oath to support the Con-stitution, are compelled to affirm in taking the oath that God is the author of the nation's existence, Jesus Christ its chief ruler, and the Bible the su-preme rule of its conduct? Under THE INDEX's proposed enlargement of the first Amendment, Jew, Gentile, Greek, Atheist, Deist, Mohammedan, all may enjoy unrestricted liberty of conscience as now. Under that of the Pittsburgh Convention's proposed Amendment, no! Amendment, nol Amendment, nol The majority, under our form of government, rules; that is, in elections of officers, legislative body les, in political affairs generally. But the voice of the majority in matters of religion or religious dog-mas should ever be as the first Amendment designed they should be—silent and powerless. If the first Amendment of the United States Con-stitution must needs be amended, modified, or en-larged at all, it ought to be the hope, and prayer, and earnest effort of every enlightened citizen that THE INDEX's "Religious Freedom Amendment" will anc-cessfully antagonize and prevall over the Pittsburgh Conventionites' scheme. BROOKLYN, N.Y., March, 1874.

ON BEHALF OF THE UNIVERSAL FREE-THINKERS' ASSOCIATION.

MR. EDITOR:

MR. EDITOR:-The following preamble and resolutions were adopt-ed by a full vote of the delegates of the Universal Freethinkers' Association, here in convention assem-bled in March, 1874, and continuing its sessions dur-ing the entire month. In accordance with the vote above referred to, I transmit this to you for publica-tion. DAVID HOTLE, Chief Secretary U. F. A., No. 75 West Fifty-fourth Street, New York.

Chief Secretary U. F. A., No. 75 West Fifty-fourth Street, New York, Whereas, The First Universal Freethinkers' Con-gress, held at Naples, in 1840, acknowledged and ap-pointed this organization as its successor, and Whereas, We, in convention here assembled, do agree upon and decide to convene the "Second Uni-rersal Freethinkers' Congress" at Philadelphia, Pa., U. S. A., on the fourth day of July, 1876, at noon. Therefore be it Resolved, That this Convention issue a protocol to all Freethinkers throughout the world, directing them to form clubs at once, and that each separate group of clubs so formed by the different nationali-ties of the world elect a Secretary to correspond with the Chief Secretary of the U. F. A., David Hoyle, No. 75 West Fifty-fourth Street, New York city, U. S. A. It is furthermore Resolved, That this Convention do hereby recog-nize and endorse the following gentlemen as Secretas-ties of present existing branches, to wit :--D. M. Bennett, Secretary of the English branch of the U. F. A., 335 Broadway, New York. M. Stein, Secretary of the Germank of the U. F. A., 58 Goerck Street, New York. Marc Intrane, Secretary of the Geandinab branch of the U. F. A., Box 63, Chicago, II. And that all clubs of different nationalities that may be formed in the future address themselves to their own national Secretaries. Resolved, That extra exertions shall be made by the different foreign members of the parent Associa-tion to create and organize French, Spanish, Italian, and Russiau clubs and branches, as soon as possible, for which extra exertion a premium is offered by the parent Association. Resolved, That the following gentlemen, having held the positions of Vice-Presidents under our for-mer constitution, are endorsed and their actions ap-proved by this Convention, and that they may be re-quested to send on their reports to our Chief Secreta-ry, David Hoyle, as soon as this notice is received, and that the duties of said Vice-Presidents remain as heretofore. and that the duties of said Vice-Presidents remain as heretofore. Dr. Theodore Klein, Zürich, Switzerland. Alfred Weigal, London, England. Capt. Charles Armstrong, Box 8000, Chicago, fil. John Pollack, Pesth, Hungary. Prof. Otto Meyer, Tacna, Peru, S. A. Chr. Schwendiman, Hespelar, Ontario, C. W. Dr. Zoeler, Callowhill Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Prof. Shultz, Yorktown, Dewitt Co., Texas. Hugh B. Brown, 267 Broadway, New York. James Schroeder, Esq., Guttenberg, Clayton Co., Iowa.

G. Klauder, Box 309. Henderson, Ky. S. Janowitz, 137 West Baltimore Street, Baltimore, Md

J. Nusser, Box 170, Birmingham, Bucks Co., Pa. Resolved, That each club shall be represented at the next Congress by one or more delegates in person the next Congress by one or more delegates in person or by proxy. Resolved, That we extend the hand of followship to Liberals of all shades, and Freethinkers of every caste, and that we especially extend a cordial initi-tion to all Liberal Leagues, Free Religious Associ-tions, Liberal Spiritualists, and all anti-theological societies that work for the emancipation of the hu-man race, to become members of our organization, and communicate with us. It was Ordered, by the Convention assembled, that all Sec-retaries of the various nationalities now existing or that may be formed in the future, together with all Vice-Presidents, shall communicate at once with our Chief Sceretary, David Hoyle, and receive from him our amended Constitution and By-Laws, showing our object, alms, and means, which shall also be pub-lished in all our free-thought journals. It is further-more more Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent for publication to the following journals:-Boaton Inneatigator, INDEX, Truth Seeker, The Freethinker, Golden Age, Woodhull and Claffin's Weekly, Banner of Light, Religio-Philosophical Journal, the Word, Der Freidenker, Reformator, Pionier, and National Reformer, London, England. (By order of the Convention.) DAVID HOYLE, Chief Secretary U. F. A., 75 West Fifty-fourth Street, New York.

THE STATE PRISON ABUSES.

BY F. B. SANBORN.

ETY F. P. ADNORNA.The prime question is, every month, taking anddraining to be the exclusive topic of a few persons, indraining to be the exclusive topic of a few persons, inthe prime was a time, thirty years andprime topic of a few persons, inthe prime was a time, thirty years andprime topic of a few persons, inthe prime was a time, thirty years andprime was topic of a few persons, inthe prime was a time, thirty years andprime was a time, thirty years andprime topic of a few persons, inthe prime was a time, thirty years andprime topic of a few persons, inthe prime was topic of a few persons, thetopic prime of the server; and Charles topic of the new restortopic prime of source of the server was topic topic of the server was a time, the prime of the server topic of the server topictopic prime of prise of the server topic of the server topictopic prime of prise of the server topic of the server topic oftopic prime of prise of the server topic of the server topic oftopic prime of prise of the server topic of the server topic prime.The of prise prime of the server topic of the server topic prime of prise prime of which grave the topic prime topic prime.The of the start topic prime topic pri discipline, and who governs as capriciously as ne spells. Exactly what prospect there is of improvement at Charlestown is uncertain. Under the new organiza-tion of the board of inspectors there (Mr. Weston Lewis being chairman and Dr. Estes Howe taking the place of Mr. Hall), the warden no longer has a veto on the inspectors, and new regulations are promised, which will correct some of the neglects and abuses that have grown up. When the prison committee of the Legislature visited Charlestown, last week, some of the members went into the hospital, and found that neither the diet nor the cleanliness of the bede and clothing was what it should be; and one of them has stated that the clothing of some of the sick pris-oners is only washed once in three weeks. There has been much complaint, also, concerning the quality of the clothing given out to prisoners when discharged; and this is to be improved. The prison labor is, of course, much disorganized by the loss of the work-shops, and the earnings will, this year, fall off con-siderably from the estimate made last October. In the more important matters of discipline and refor-mation, it is doubtful if much can be done until a worden is appointed who comprehends, and is in sym-pathy with, the best sentiment and highest wisdom concerning the treatment of prisoners, and is willing to cooperate with these rather than to aneer at and obstruct them. Meantime the new prison is to be built at Concord, but for only seven hundred and fifty convicts instead of one thousand, and with some better facilities for classifying and employing them. The work proceeds slowly, and I believe the plans are not yet alopted by the building commissioners, bui probably ground will be broken on the new loca-tion in course of the spring. The finance committee, which has had the bill for a women's prison under consideration for sone weeks, could not agree in favor of it, and there is some doubt about its passage; but its friends are hopeful, and it will probably be caried. In 1555, the late Dr. Wayland, of Brown University, "Through tattered clothes small vices do appear, Bobes and furred gowns hide all. Plate sh with gold (Greenbacks will do as well if sin's stuffed with 'em), Ad the strong lance of justice hurtless breaks; Arm it in rags, a pygmy's straw doth pierce it."

Google

irrections will do as well it sin's stuffed with 'em), and the strong lance of justice hurtless breaks; Am it in rags, a pygony's straw doth piercei it.'' So John Augustus went to Charlestown for three pars, while Richardson, for signing the Sanborn con-incta, was made Secretary of the Treasury for three pars, while Richardson, for signing the Sanborn con-funct, and since he came out, last fall, has not only conducted himself well, but has become, like his fa-prove the condition of his fellow-prisoners, both at charlestown and after their discharge. He has writ-ten book about prison life (as I mentioned, some webs since), which is to be published in May or June, and he is making arrangements to start a week-whole subject of prison discipline. Several persons of ability and reputation have promised to write for hybore classification, and Mrs. St. John, the author of Breis and to do it, and will, no doubt, begin its publi-whore suber and each and will, no doubt, begin its publi-wise in a paper, but Mr. Augustus has made up in sionment of the insene in great hospitals without Breis and each where, will probabily be a contribu-tor but such a paper, but Mr. Augustus has made up is mind to do it, and will, no doubt, begin its publi-subility is a second a specimens of his writing, er-time was printed in Hoston, many years ago by the brothers Charles and John M. Spear; but that was who has had personal experiences of what prison is is. I have seen no specimens of his writing, er-st is efforts have done good, and it is hard to error the sa sincerely interested in prison re-more tha they do the ambject he is interested in more thas had personal experience of has the start of the personal experience of has neared on the far his efforts have done good, and it is hard to the far his efforts have done good, and it is hard to the public on this subject ho is interested in allo poshe ways. Many of his friends here aid him for the public on this aubject hould be enlightened in allow to the ways. Many of his friends

RES. CHENEY'S TRIBUTE TO SUMNER.

A request from the West for the preservation in print of Mrs. Cheney's remarks, at a recent meeting of the Radical Club, relative to Mr. Sumner, has led to the following note, which we have the pleasure of publishing. publishing :-

JAMAICA PLAIN, April 10, 1874. Dear Mrs. Sargent, -- I send enclosed sketch of the few words I said at your house. But I always think of Emerson's "Each in All" at such meetings, and "bring home the river and sky." Mr. Julian's ready "pmpahy gave more meaning to the words than they will have in the repetition. They came out of a full heart, surely; for I think I never felt "How blest the good man when he dies" so strongly as in the sense of faith in humanity and moral power which Summer left with us. Is there a spiritual correlation of forces, and did something of human power which he gave up become estergized in us? It does neem as if some-bing better must come for the country out of all this rich life than Butteriam and Financial Inflation. Yours very truly, EDNAID. CHENEY. BEMARKS.

BEMARKS.

There seems to be a want in human nature which the Church ought to supply. It ought to be the social expression of the highest feelings, the noblest moral sense. We feit this on the day of Charles Summer's funeral, when the throng of people left their business and their homes, all feeling that the day should be consecrated to other than ordinary uses. All in that hour seemed by the idealizing power of death to be lifted up to his height of moral being. One thought of the words of Jesus: "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." Should it not have been the office of the Church to deepen and fix the feeling of the hour, and so belp to make it a per-petual influence in men's lives? It seemed as if every church should have been open, and the memory of his life set to music or beautiful speech in them, so that the multitude, instead of simless wandering about the streets, should have known where to turn for the influence which would caim the grief of the hour, while it made more lasting the great lessons of a noble, beroic life, which was a perpetual service to God in Humanity.—Boston Sunday Gazette.

PARKER TO SUMNER.

[Such a letter as the one below could only have come from a great spirit, and only have been welcome to a spirit equally great. Weighing every word of it, the hopes it breathed were fulfilled in Sumner as if it were a prophecy. No one imagines the great Senator to have been faultless; but for moral majesty no such figure has elsewhere appeared in American politics. If Parker had stood by his grave, he would have said, though with a broken voice: "You have done better than I advised."-ED.]

BOSTON, Apr. 26, 1851.

than I advised."-ED.] DEAB SUMNER,--I have not been able to come and offer my con-gratulations on your election. I was almost at your office this morning, when I met some one who told me that you were not there; so you will accept my written congratulations instead of the spoken, and let me read you a bit of a sermon. Perhaps you had better lay this away till Sunday, for I am going to preach. You told me ones you were in mor-als and not in politics. Now I hope you will show that you are still in morals although in politics. I hope that you will be a Senator with a conscience. The capital error of all our politicians is this: with understanding and practical sagacity, with cunning and power to manage men, in a heroic degree; in mor-al good, first perfect, and first fair." they are behind the carpenters and blacksmiths. Look at Cass, Wood-bury, Webster, Clay, Calhoun-may, even at J. Q. Adams. The majority of the shoemakers in Norfolk County had a love of justice which bore a greater pro-portion to their whole being than Adams' to his. He never led in any moral movement. Now I look to you to be a leader in this matter; to represent justice, quae semper et ubique cadem est. If you do not do this, you will would y disappoint the portion to their whole being than Adams' to his. He never led in any moral movement. Now I look to you to be a leader in this matter; to for the people in this country. It is a strange sight to see men as much inferior in moral power as they are superior in intellectual power; as much inferior in willingness to sacrifice for their country as they are superior in station. I expect you to make mistakes, blunders; I hope they will be intelectual and not moral, that you may never miss the intelectual and not moral, that you may never miss the intelectual and not moral, that you may never miss the intelectual and not moral, that you may never miss the intelectual and not moral, that you should never find in more difficult to make a personal sacrifice for their country out take a high office in the State, you are bound state; to deny yourself for the sake of the State. I consider that Massachusetts has put you where you hour and look to eternitly for your justification. To use, my dear Summer, that I can the Kock of Ages, and look to eternitly for your justification.

HERE 18 A NICE name for a newspaper : The Journal of the Disciples of Satan. Such is the title of a new paper which has appeared at Palermo, Sicily, for the benefit of the youth of that city. The Young Men's Free Thinking Association, of that city, hailed its appearance in the following terms : "We salute the birth of a paper which bears the rame of the true god, the god of science, liberty, and progress, the god we worship—Satan." A government which permits the circulation of such a paper undoubtedly is "pre-paring its own coffin," as the French say. Such pe-riodicals as the above paved the way for the French revolution of '93. Italy should not forget the "ter-ror."—Catholic Review.

RICHARD A. PROCTOR, the astronomer, writes: "I know an English scientist, far too skilful for us to afford to have his energies wasted, who has been working for two years to obtain results which, I have learned since my arrival here, were demonstrated a quarter of a century ago in this country."

Hoetry.

[For THE LYDER.] LAND AND SEA.

BY MRS. DAVID R. CLARK.

- Afar the hills in softaned spiendor lie, Swathed in the kingly purple of the air; While, on the golden ladders of the sky, Ascending and descending angels bear
- Ascending and descending angels bear The chrism of Light-the anointing Life of all: And, garlanded in sweet Soptember grace, The plant earth, tranced in such loving thrall, Smiles like a dear babg to its mothor's face. Oh, changeful glory of the autumn day! Faint shadows creep, with slow, reluctant fee O'er all the violet-bills, that turn to gray; The freeh wind blows the pins hough's aplex !
- int feet, The fresh wind blows the pine bough's spicy sweet;
- And darkening tremors run along the wold, Beneath the glancing of the pale first star, That deepens from its amber into gold— As sunset dies beyond the harbor-bar,
- Harbor of hope! Where soon his sail must lie.
- Who comes to great me o'er wide leagues of sea From constellations of a Southern sky, Whom days and hours are bringing home to me:
- Home from the palm-fringed shores of fairy isles, Set, sapphire-like, in gold of sunlit wave,-
- Vore never-ending summer wreathes and smiles, And sireus murmur from their coral cave. Where n
- Sirens! But not to him whose faithful soul
- Enshrines one image, and that image mine. Blow, happy winds, and haste him to the goal Whose reaching shall be crowned with Love's red wine;
- When each shall hold the other dearer far
- Because of perils that have ceased to be, While sumet dies beyond the harbor-bar, And, dying, glorifies the tranquil sea.

NORTHUMBERLAND, PR.

NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS TO INDEX STOCK.

Mrs. F. W. Christern,	New York City, Oue share		IRTO,
Richard B. Westbrook	Sonman, Pa.	44		100
R. C. Spencer,	Milwaukee, Wis.	Two	44	200
R. W. Howes,	Boston, Mass.	One		100
Chas, W. Story,	Boston, Mass.	54		100
E. W. Meddaugh,	Detroit, Mich.	Five		500
Jacob Hoffner,	Cumminaville, O.	One	. 64	100
John Weiss,	Boston, Mass.			100
W. C. Russel,	Ithaca, N. Y.		44	100
A. W. Leggett,	Detroit, Mich.		94	100
B. F. Dyer,	Boston, Mass.	4	- 16	100
James Purinton,	Lynn, Mass.		- 16	100
F. A. Nichols,	Lowell, Mass.			100
J. S. Palmer,	Portland, Me.		- 44	100
Bobt. Ormiston,	Brooklyn, N.Y.	44		100
Mrs. A. L. Richmond,	Lowell, Mass,	44	16	100
Mrs. Benj. Ireson,	Lynn, Mass.		10	100
J. E. Oliver,	Ithaca, N.Y.	4		100
E. H. Aldrich,	Providence, R.1.	15	- 66	100
Geo. L. Clark,	Providence, R.I.	44	45	100
W. M. Jackson,	Providence, R.I.	Two		200
Mrs. E. B. Chase,	Valley Falls, R.I.		1.16	100
	Lonadale, R.I.	One	24	100
L. F. Garvin,	Ipawich, Mass.	une.	14	100
James Damon, Joseph A. Barker,	Providence, R.I.			100

CASH BECEIPTS.

CASH RECEIPTS. FOR THE WERE EXDING APRIL 28. J. E. Follett, $3; Richard Dusenbury, $3; N. J. Trenham, $1.50; G. P. Bradley, 65 cents; Aarou Berntrager, 75 cents; Brag, $6; Emma Herzog, $3; Matt. H. Ellis, $1; M. W. Stubbe, 75 cents; Mary Roger, $3; A. M. Lathrop, $3; Joseph Bristol, $1.30; C. M. Lawler, $5; Joseph Fost, $5; Maria H. Bray, $1; J. E. Oliver, $6; Mr. Juo. H. Sweet, 75 cents; Juo. R. Lewis, 55 cents; Photius Fisk, $20; Julha K. Rose, $5.50; O. Diszoh, $100; M. H. Brian, $20; Free Religious Association, $1; D. I. Bastion, 56 cents; G. H. Foster, $10°; A. K. Loring, $0 cents; J. P. Millow, 17 cents; R. H. Skues, 50 cents; Cash, $2.66; P. B. Sibley, 50 Linton, 80 cents; Jas. H. Cotler, 25 cents; Ellsha H. Bearse, $2; A. H. Trask, $5; C. Jillson, $10; J. Bavid Anderson, 80 cents.

RECEIVED.

Books.

Biooks. PHILOSOPHERS AND FOOLS. A Stody. By Julia Duhring. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co. 1874. RKLIGION AND THE STATE. Projection or Alliance? Tara-tion or Exemption? By Alrah Hovey, D.D., President of "Newton Theological Institution," Boston: Estes & Lauriat, 143 Washington Street. 1874. Pamphlets and Periodicals. A Waynorat. or CHARLES SUMMER. A Discourse by Sam-

- Laurisi, iss Washington Street. 1874.
  Pamphlets and Periodicals.
  A Mrkoufal or Charles Summer. A Discourse by Samuel Johnson. Boston: A. Williams & Co. 1874.
  Sainytinkes. A Sermon by O. B. Frothingham. New York: D. G. Francis. 1874.
  Tas Rasony of rink Son or MAN. A Sermon by O. B. Frothingham. New York: D. G. Francis. 1874.
  Tas Rasony or rink Son or MAN. A Sermon by O. B. Frothingham. New York: D. G. Francis. 1874.
  Strandsham. New York: D. G. Francis.
  Nakortality, at Mineapolis, Minn.
  Iskostality, at Mineapolis, Minn.
  Jouris Gray, Baker & Co.
  Antukat Report of the Moral Education Society of Washington & Co.
  Antukat Gray, Baker & Co.
- brook. THE SANITARIAN, May, 1874. New York: Office 234 Broad-way. WEY. NEW ENGLAND MEDICAL GAZETTE, February, 1874. Boston: Otis Clapp.

209

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Toledo Office: No. 35 MONEOS STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Bights, and Brotherly Love.

Brotherly Love. N. B.-No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contributions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

BOSTON, APRIL 30, 1874.

SUNDAY LECTURES .- The Editors of THE INDEX will soture occasionally on Sundays, if desired, within a conveniont distance of Boston.

N.B.—Any person whose name is new on our mail-list will receive a second copy of THE IN-DEX, mailed to the same address, for a year, on pre-payment of One Dollar. This offer is made to accommodate those of our subscribers who wish to increase our circulation by sending extra copies as samples to their friends.

GLIMPSES.

THE LONDON Academy says that Mr. Darwin is engaged on "a revised and extended edition of the Descent of Man."

REV. MR. TALMAGE avers that "Heaven never burns down." If John Milton was well informed, Lucifer once contrived to get up a pretty serious firealarm in lt.

PRESIDENT GRANT has deserved well of his countrymen by his veto of the inflation bill. To have saved the financial honor of the country will atone for many grave mistakes, less hurtful than that of Congress.

As ANNOUNCED in our advertising columns, there will be some private theatricals next week for the benefit of the Free Religious Association. "Act well your part"—is a good rule of life; and kind friends of the Association will show us all how to do it.

PROFESSOR MUELLER, in the Academy, has given a very valuable recapitulation of the discoveries of Dr. Schliemann on the site of ancient Troy. But he puts small faith in the Doctor's glowing imaginations about Priam and his worthles, whose whole story he ranks with other myths.

REV. DB. HODGE, of Princeton, the great bluelight of Presbyterianism, declares that "no man is a Darwinian who does not desire to be one." As between Darwinians and Hodgians, this desire may certainly be forgiven. But did you ever see a Doctor of Divinity who could discover any other root of heresy than an "evil heart of unbellef"?

IT is certainly a cheering sign of the times that about twenty of the most prominent clergy of Philadelphia should unite to invite Anna Dickinson to address the public of that city on the question of licensing the "social evil." Woman's plea for woman ought to be heard with profound respect; and no doubt Miss Dickinson can afford needed instruction to many a D.D. on this subject.

THE LIBERALS of Wisconsin are stirring vigorously in behalf of church taxation. The Milwaukee Sentinel of April 15 details an interview with Dr. Hübschmann, who states that the plan is to bring a test case before the Supreme Court of that State. A bill was reported in the Wisconsin Legislature, in 1872, providing for the abolition of all tax-exemption, and its supporters still hope to see it become a law.

NEARLY TWO-THIRDS of the real estate of Turkey, under the policy of tax-exemption, had come into possession of the mosques, when, a few months ago, the Sultan was compelled to initate Henry VIII. and confiscate it. France, Italy, and Mexico have all been driven to the same step. If the churches of the United States are wise, they will be willing to be taxed now rather than incur a worse fate hereafter.

FROM A BECENT volume by Mr. J. Norman Lockyer (editor of Nature), published by Macmillan with the title Contributions to Solar Physics, it appears that there are no compound vapors in the sun, although they seem to exist in the atmosphere of some of the stars; and that there are vaporized substances in it which are unknown on the earth. So rapid is the progress of solar physics that a very few years are enough to render books on the subject antiquated.

THE Independent of April 16 has a long editorial account of the wrangling of the missionary Boards over possession of the native Japanese churches of Yedo and Yokohama, and a translation of a very dignified protest by these churches against it, which the Independent calls "the most withering rebuke that we remember to have seen of this cursed spirit of sectarianism." But sectarianism is inseparable from Christianity, and will outlive all such protests. The only remedy for it is one which the Independent shrinks from applying.

HERE IS an appeal from the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage which could have proceeded from no one less thoroughly de-witted: "Young men of the Theological seminaries! Read less of Thomas Carlyle and Ralph Waldo Emerson, and more of Richard Cecil and Samuel Rutherford. We like new things brisk and breezy; but the story of Christ is as old as Calvary, and the Law is as old as Sinai, and the system of Theology is a sham which has not in it the two mountains." The "Ark of Salvation" is doubless a pretty stout craft; but if it can ride the sea of modern thought with a brace of mountains stowed away in its hold for ballast, it is a bigger ship than we suspected.

A BESPECTED CONTRIBUTOR to the "Communications" department of THE INDEX inquires why his article was not printed,—as many others have inquired before him. We simply plead our inability to put a quart into a pint-pot. Somebody's communications have to go without publication for want of room; and we print by preference those that we think most likely to be interesting or useful to our readers. Our judgment is certainly very fallible; those whose articles do not get printed probably think it a very wretched judgment, and scarcely worth having. But as it is the best we have, we are obliged to depend on it, regretting that narrowness of space crowds out so many good contributions.

IT is wonderful how tenacious of life is error. "Truth crushed to earth shall rise again:" yes, and error as well. The reason is that thought, whether true or false, tends to perpetuate itself,—to run from mind to mind, and soon to pass beyond the reach of any refutation. Pastor Knask, of Berlin, can preach still that the sun moves round the earth; and radicals can still echo the disproved derivation of "religion" from religare. It is a cheerful hope that the results of scholarship will by-and-by become a part of common knowledge; but so long as free thinkers—the Freethinker itself—can reiterate this ancient and exploded blunder of Lactantius, it is a hope that demands a sublime optimism to feed on.

THE BEVISED EDITION of the Unitarian creed is-"I believe in Christianity as I understand it." When, in strict accordance with this creed, the Liberal Christian said a few months ago that-"A man may be a Pantheist or an Atheist, and, if he call himself a Christian and is not immoral in life, he may join the Unitarian Conference and claim as good ecclesiastical standing as the most conservative believer," the editor of the Investigator very forcibly replied : "That is to say, if a Panthelst or an Atheist will acknowledge that he is what he is not (or, in other words, will play the hypocrite), he can be considered a Unitarian Christian. Blessed privilege and magnanimous offer! As old Mr. Weller said to his son Samivel when learning the alphabet, "It is going through a great deal to get at a little."

AN "EVANGELICAL MINISTERS' ASSOCIATION" has been lately formed in Boston. Its second Article (which is binding on all the members) is as follows: 'The doctrinal basis of this Association is the broad. historic, evangelical, catholic ground, which has been occupied by all vital Christians from the beginning; embracing the belief in the Divine Human Person and the atoning work of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and the personality and the regenerating and sanctifying offices of the Holy Spirit, as the only source of salvation, and the centre of all true Christian union and fellowship." This has been the doctrinal ground of "all vital Christians" from the beginning; yet we are thought to be very unfair by Unitarians for taking Christianity at its word-as if a small sect scarcely fifty years old had a right to put a totally new meaning on a word defined by the consensus of the whole church for at least fifteen centuries! The real unfairness will by-and-by be clearly discerned.

HOW EX-CONVICTS ARE TREATED.

As our readers know, a young man nineteen years old was discharged from the Massachusetta State Prison last November who had served a five years' sentence for "breaking and entering." The name under which he was committed (as usual, an assumed one) was James Burns. Instead of "keeping quiet" on being discharged, as most ex-convicts do, he has undertaken the perilous task of exposing what he believes to be abuses in the administration of the prison, for the sake of securing a reformation of them. He believes that, if he is ever incarcerated in that institution again, his lot will be rendered a very hard one by way of retallation for this exposure; he remembers the advice given in more pungent than elegant phrase by an ex-official of the prison-"Young man, keep out of prison, or your goose is cooked ! But he persists in making his statements publicly; and they have at least had the effect of arousing no little interest in this community. That he is sincere, there is very little room for doubt in our own mind; that his impressions and statements are all accurate, may be fairly doubted until a thorough investigation has been had, and both sides fully heard. But that he has been accused unjustly in at least one important instance by officials connected with the State Prison, is a demonstrated fact, as the following evidence shows.

On the twentieth of February last, two convicts named Worthing and Jones effected their escape from the prison. The report of this occurrence in the Boston Herald closed with this paragraph: "The officers of the prison have on three occasions lately observed James Burns, alfas Cotier-a former inmate, who is now lecturing on prison reform-about the prison, and on Thursday he was seen beckoning and heard shouting to some one inside the walls. They therefore express some suspicion that he was privy to the escape of these men." This paragraph at once called out a protest in the same paper and in the Globe from a philanthropic lady of Charlestown, at whose house Burns was hospitably entertained some seven weeks on his release from prison. She wrote: "The officers know he was not there. Every minute of his time for that day can be accounted for, from early in the morning till dark, or later. What earthly motive but to injure the young man can there be in these insinuations or assertions?" In reply to the card of this lady two letters were published in the Globe, dated February 25, and written by two officers of the prison. One of them, Mr. J. F. Moore, said: "Last Thursday (19th), about 11 o'clock in the forenoon, I saw a man on Canal Street, which [sic] I did then and do now believe to be the same Burns. He was shouting and motioning with his hands to the prisoners, several of whom saw him and believed it to be him. I walked out to the wall and ordered him away, and he left. This was the day before the escape of Worthing and Jones." To this circumstantial testimony, the lady above referred to (an article by whom with the initials M. S. W. was published in our last week's issue) replied in the Globe as follows: "On Thursday, the 19th-the day Officer Moore 'saw Burns shouting and motioning, and ordered him away'-Burns was before the Investigating Committee on Prisons, at the State House, from before 10 till past 1 o'clock, as the Hon. Mr. Nye, Chairman of the Committee, ex-Deputy Whitcomb, Inspector Lewis, and others, can testify." A more satisfactory alibi was never proved. So overwhelming was the proof of Mr. Burns' innocence of the charge made against him, that Mr. Daniel Russell, State Agentand Agent for the Massachusetts Society for Aiding Discharged Convicts, went to the Warden of the prison, General Chamberlain, and informed him that Burns could not possibly have been seen as alleged Yet the charge stands unretracted by Officer Moore, to-day, false and injurious as it is, and is well known to be !

Now this attempt to break down the reputation of Mr. Burns, and to destroy all the effect of his unwelcome revelations, by accusations which have been absolutely proved to be false, deserves to be denounced in the severest terms. Why has not Warden Chamberlain, without whose approval it is incredible that Officer Moore published his statement, put a card into the papers, exonerating Mr. Burns from this most injurious charge of endeavoring to help convicts escape from prison? If the Warden for reasons best, known to himself refuses to do it, why does not State Agent Russell, who is paid by the State to befriend discharged convicts, befriend Mr. Burns in the most efficient way by coming forward now on his behalf to repel a slander which he has confessed he knows to be such? Their silence, when so gross a wrong demands their loud and instant speech, has done more than anything else to convince our own mind that Mr. Burns' story is substantially true. If there was no evil to be covered up, no such transparent determination to crush him would exist. We have no interest in the matter whatever, except a strong desire to see justice done, wrongs righted, and reforms begun; we do not intend to foreclose the case in our own thought until there has been a faithful and impartial investigation of the whole subject; but that the Warden and State Agent, who should be the first to lend a helping hand to a discharged convict-boy unjustly accused, now suffer a stigma to rest upon him which a word from either would at once remove, is of itself a proof that "something is rotten in the State of Denmark." It has been said that "the loudest, most sweeping, and most persistent complaints are sure to come from the vicious and ill-disposed." On the contrary, the testimony is that the most vicious convicts, who are the most likely to get into prison again, are afraid to complain publicly even of real injustices they may be made to suffer; they dread the resentment of those who have power to make them feel it most severely on a return to con-Gnement. If Mr. Burns consulted his own interest. he would remove to a distant part of the country, and conceal the fact of his imprisonment; he would make a new record, and wish all to forget the old one. But now he braves the public opinion against discharged prisoners, and renders it very difficult to escape its consequences. Is it not unlikely that selfish motives should prompt to such a course? If he is a humbug and a sham, he cannot be exposed too soon ; but if, as we think, he has with uncommon pluck set himself to work under every concelvable disadvantage to rouse attention to real abuses in the State Prison, for the sake of those still confined there, let him not be burdened with such a load of false accuantion as its officers have put on his back and the State Agent declines to lift off. Justice, gentlemen, justice-that is all we ask; and that will come yet.

Thomas Google

210

P.S.-Since writing the above, a meeting of the Second Radical Club was held on April 27, at which Warden Chamberlain was present by special invitation, and made a long opening address in defence of his administration of the State Prison against the many criticisms it has received of late. He said explicitly that Officer Moore was mistaken in the testinony he gave, in the letter quoted above, as to seeing James Burns about the prison on February 19; and that he now acquits the latter of all complicity whatever with the escape of Worthing and Jones. To a direct question we put whether he was willing to make this axculpatory statement, over his own name, in the same newspaper that had contained Officer Moore's mistaken accusation, and thereby do justice to Mr. Burns, he responded, "Most certainly." We hope that this promise will be faithfully kept. Tardy as this act of bare justice will be, it will do something to prevent future harm to Mr. Burns from the now acknowledged slander.

FREE RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION.

The SEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING of the Free Religious Association is to be held in Boston on the 28th and 29th of May. The meeting will open with a session for business and addresses on Thursday evening, the 28th, at 7 3-4 o'clock, in Horticultural Hall (lower). At this session the following Amendments to the Constitution are to be acted upon :--

1. In the statement of the objects of the Association in the First Article, to change the phraseology so as to read thus: "Its objects being to promote the practical interests of pure religion, to increase fellowship in the spirit, and to encourage the scientific study of man's religious nature and history."

2. To change the number of Directors, now limited by the Second Article to "six," so that the number shall be "not less than six nor more than ten."

On Friday, the 29th, there will be sessions for essays and addresses, forencon and afternoon, in the upper Hortlcultural Hall, and a Social Festival in the evening at the new Parker Memorial Hall.

Interesting topics are to be discussed by able speakers,--of which further particulars will be given hereafter. WILLIAM J. POTTER, Secretary.

F. R. A. ANNUAL MEETING.

The notice required by its Constitution of the approaching Annual Meeting of the Free Religious Association, is inserted in this week's INDEX. It is too early yet to give all the particulars in respect to the subjects to be discussed and the speakers who will address the Convention. It may be said, however, that the arrangements promise a very interesting occasion. A number of able speakers who have not before spoken on the platform of the Association are expected to be present, and each session will have features of special interest. It is proposed to make even the business session one of solid worth and vitality, by devoting a portion of it to addresses on various practical phases of the free religious movement; while, as last year, the meetings are to culminate in a Social Fostival, which, in the hands of the same committee that made it so charming an occasion last May, cannot fail to be a most attractive success. That the Festival is to be in the new Hall, consecrated to the memory of Theodore Parker, will give it an additional attractiveness.

At the business session two amendments to the Constitution are to be presented for action. One of them simply gives power to enlarge the number of Directors. The other is a change in the phraseology of the statement of the objects of the Association as expressed in the Second Article, This change-or the substance of it-was proposed last year by the venerable Lucretia Mott. Her special purpose was to get rid of the word "theology" which now stands in the Article, and which to her mind has always suggested those dogmatic systems of faith that are generally taught in theological seminaries, and have been such a barrier to religious progress. Others have felt the same objection. Others again have said that "the scientific study of theology" is a tautological phrase, since "theology," properly defined, is itself a science, or is claimed to be. The proposed change will ob viate these objections, while it will express quite as well, or better, what those who framed the Constitution had in mind when they used the phrase "scientific study of theology." By connecting the word "scientific" with "theology," they meant to indicate, not that kind of study of theology which is ordinarily pursued in theological schools for the training of sectarian ministers, but that free investigation after religious truth which is carried on by free minds, and of which such researches as are made by Max Müller and Tylor are notable illustrations. They meant the application of the scientific method of study, instead of the dogmatic method, to man's religious nature and religious history; and since the proposed change more clearly expresses this idea, it is desirable that it should be adopted.

It will be seen that Friday's Convention, is to be held, not in Tremont Temple where it has usually met, but in Horticultural Hall, where the Association was first organized seven years ago. W. J. P.

IMMORTALITY.

The Easter season is passed, but a thought on it may not be amiss. The theme of the season was, as usual, immortality; and the familiar strain that the Gospel had brought life and immortality to light was sounded once more from Christian pulpits. Preachers told the people with all the ancient confidence that Christianity guaranteed immortality, and that with the decline of faith in Christianity the hope of man would die. Now if there be one thing well ascertained and thoroughly demonstrable, it is that Christlanity distinctly, professedly, purposely limits the hope of immortality. Its peculiarity consists in this. That immortality is the natural hope of man, and the destiny of all men, is not a doctrine of the Christian religion. The doctrine of the Christian religion is that a future life, in any intelligible sense, as understood by mankind at large, is for the Chris-tian believers, and for them alone. This was Paul's teaching, as his genuine epistles, and most especially the first Epistle to the Corinthians, show: "If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain." "If Christ be not raised, then they who have fallen asleep in Christ (Christians who have died) are perished." "Christ, the first fruits; have died) are perished." afterwards they that are Christ's, at his coming." "The last Adam was made a quickening spirit." Paul, as a Pharisee, believed already that men survived death, after a fashion, and continued to exist in a nebulous, but unsatisfactory, manner, to which the term "life" could not with the least propriety be applied. There was nothing in the anticipation, even by good men, to make death seem otherwise than terrible. It was a hopeless hope, which gave neither inspiration nor comfort. All sinners must die; and, as all men were sinners, all men must die, and pass into the dismal under-world of ghosts. The sinless mun could not die. Christ was the sinless man, and consequently died not, but rose from the sepulchre into the open air of a new existence. This sinlessness was the ground of his resurrection; his resurrecion guaranteed his sinlessness. With him begins a new series of experience in regard to the future life; for they who have faith in him, and, by living faith, join themselves to him, become sharers in his immortal privilege. But none others did. The rest, be they who and what they might,—philosophers, sages, valiant and good men,—must continue the long procession to that Sheel, which was scarcely an advance on annihilation.

And all the time that Paul was preaching this narrow, exclusive doctrine, the Jewish rabbins, as we know from the Talmud, were teaching a noble, spiritual philosophy,—the immortality of man as man; individual continuance after death, with full consciousness of personality; the equal hope and common deatination to bliss of all men, Jews and heathen allke; the existence of a rational principle which had the seed of immortality in It; the possibility for every soul of freeing itself from sensual bonds, and mounting to the holy seats. The old faith opened richer prospects than the new; Christianity closed doors instead of bursting them.

The doctrine of Paul is the doctrine of the New Testament throughout, as has been proved over and over again, as has been from the beginning claimed by the consistent members of the Christian communion. The Church, instead of widening the aperture from death to life has rather made it closer. Immortality for believers has been the teaching, "Thou hast opened the kingdom of heaven to all believers" is the language of the ancient creed as voiced in the Te Deum. The Bishop of Manchester is reported as having, in his late Easter sermon, pointedly corrected the impression that his religion taught or implied the natural immortality of mankind, or promised a future life to all men; affirming, on the contrary, that the resurrection was reserved for Christ's own, who "lived in him," and that for others only a hope was to be indulged. He was frank enough to give no encouragement to any but churchmen, herein showing himself a faithful reporter of the original tradition.

If this were the only way in which "Christianity" curtailed the privilege of immortality, we might be happy, for there was nothing absolutely appalling in the contemplation of Sheol, a negative state of being, in which, if there was no joy, there was no sorrow; they who were shut out from the Christian's exclusive privilege had nothing to look forward to more dreadful than extinction, or something akin to it. But "Christianity" has taken away that sud hope. For the shady Sheol it has substituted a flaming hell, and for the melancholy boon of annihilation an inevitable future of conscious pain. So even the New Testament does. In opening a world of light above the gloomy abodes, Paul opened new abysses of sorrow below it.

It is simply a mistake to ascribe to Christianity an enlargement of the belief in a future life. The faith in natural immortality came from other sources, and is due to other teaching. The Christian doctrine is the resurrection of the body through faith in Christ. They who hold a belief distinct from this derive but little support from the Church. The Talmud gives them more countenance than the Gospels. For the Talmud repudiates the notion of everlasting damnation for anybody, declaring that there is a space of "only two fingers' breadth between hell and heaven." It is in the Gospel that we read of the "great gulf" that is fixed, which cannot be passed over. It is as men have departed from the Christian tradition that they have had life and immortality brought to light. 0. B. F.

AN INSIDE VIEW.

A Western woman, of uncommon intellectual ability, and undisputed Orthodox position, writes as follows. r. w. m.

"So thoroughly was I inoculated with puritanism that I am afraid I never shall outgrow the effects of it. and take any other ism with safety and enjoyment. . . . My aim is to do right for the right's sake. There is no comfort in wrong-doing. If there were no Scripture teachings on this point, there is self-respect, al-most as authoritative. The drift of pulpits is not in the direction of this 'one thing needful.' It keeps before one the necessity of the new birth before one can enter the kingdom, forgetting that self-respect renders almost unnecessary that great change. I do not see that our most ardent Christians value themselves very highly, or hold humanity in esteem. Outside the Church philanthropy thrives best, and they who wear chains are helped most by those who be-lieve as you do. These facts trouble me. I would like to have 'believers' stand at least by the side of heretics if they will not lead in the matter."

Google

Titerary Hotices.

HAMPTON AND ITS STUDENTS. By two of its teach-ers, Mrs. M. F. Armstrong and Helen W. Ludlow. With fifty Cabin and Plantation, Songs, arranged by Thomas J. Lenner. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons

Sons. This handsome volume is a very welcome addition to the record of the great epoch through which we have so recently passed, covering the emancipation of the country and four millions of its people from slav-ery. In giving an account of one of the most impor-tant efforts to educate the freedmen, it throws much light upon the condition of the slaves before the war, upon the characteristics of the negro race, and upon the requisite conditions for their future improve-ment. ment.

ment. Gen. Armstrong has rightly seen that the develop-ment of the material resources of the State through skilled labor, and the intellectual education of the whole people, is the great hope of Virginia; and, in supplying the State with teachers of her primary schools, he is at the same time diffusing through them a great deal of useful, practical knowledge. This experiment is interesting and encouraging in ref-erences to the great question of industrial education, as well as for its bearings on the elevation of the negro.

This experiment is interesting and encouraging in ref-erence to the great question of industrial education, as well as for its bearings on the elevation of the negro. The only discouraging point we have noted is the expense of this education, which is put at $70 per annum [p. 48], exclusive of board and clothing. As this is more than three times the average cost per head in the best schools of the largest clites, it seems as if this system could not be very widely extended, unless its price can be reduced. And this is, after all, the great difficulty in industrial education, as in most of the improvements proposed in our school system. While a favored few may be benefitted, it is not yet found possible to secure results at such a pricess to put them within the means of all. All public expense is of course really borne by the produc-tive labor of the whole people, no matter in what way accumulated capital favors it. Now, calling the average value of labor two dollars and a half a day, it would take twenty-eight days of a man's labor to sup-port one child at school, and this is a pretty severe tax; even when, as in this case, the child pays a part of his board and clothing. — As a model and normal school, this one may be worth all it costs; but it does not prove that the great desiderutum has been discovered—how to educate the whole people at a reasonable price. — The teachers bear the same testimony that all ac-quainted with the freedmen have borne, to their eggerness for knowledge and their readiness to profit by instruction. They also speak of that beautiful quality of forgiveness, so strong in the negro race, which makes them averse to speak of the wrongs they have endured, and ready to pardon and assist their old masters, when opportunity bifers. One amusing exception is, however, given of an old mane who col-duit much pride of his experiencing religion. — "Then, as you have experienced religion, Mr. Jar-iy, "aid his visitor, "I suppose you have forgiven your of master, haven" yene of the growed withe in battle." Negroes are very like white folks, cer-tainly. Another service rendered by this book is the pres-ervation of fifty of the most popular cabin and plan-tation songs, such as the Hampton singers have sung throughout the country. These songs represent a phase of life and religion which is rapidly passing away. Pass it must, and unregretted; but, like ev-ery other phase of life, it has its philosophic and ar-tistic value, and helps us to understand human nat-ure and its divine relations better. There is a curious melodic charm in the words of these songs, though wholly destitute of intellectual value; as in—

"Oh swing low, sweet charlot, Swing low, sweet charlot, Swing low, sweet charlot; I don't want to leave me behind."

One of them, --called "Religion is a fortune,"--is a very genuine expression of their feeling, that to get religion is a matter of good luck, quite independent of the will of the receiver:--

"Oh religion is a fortune, I raly do believe," etc.

The Hampton singers are again about to visit us, and there will undoubtedly be a renewed interest in their songs from the study of this book. It is very desirable that such records as these should be preserved. "History never repeats itself;" cer-tainly the history of the last twelve years never can be repeated on this continent, and every memorial of it should be carefully preserved. E. D. C.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Madras .Ithenceum de-A CORRESPONDENT of the Madras Altheneum de-scribes a procession in Salem, Madras Presidency. He says: "I observed some devotees had their tongues pierced with iron rods; some had pins stuck all over their bodies, and garlands hanging from them; some had made inclusions in their sides, in which were inserted iron rods; some passed through these incisions large ropes, held on both sides by two persons; and some employed four men to carry a small car, the middle of whose axles passed through their sides." Such heathen have not advanced far in civilization. ctvilization.

Communications.

A PROTEST.

DEAR ABBOT:— I wish to protest against the character of the "Lon-don Letter" printed in THE INDEX of April 9. Had it appeared in any other than a professedly liberal publication, its appearance still would have been a surprise. For I must think that even our Orthodox friehds are getting above such wholesale attacks upon the motives of people from whom they differ. Mr. Voysey as a "free-thinker" ought not to be permitted not state his objections to "free love," and even de-scribe all the evils which in his judgment would flow from its practice, without impeaching the moral pur-pose of those who are known as its advocates ? "You tell us," he says, in effect, "that you do not mean evil? Out upon ye, we are not fools! Do you think we are such dolts as not to see through your flimsy disguise?" Now in my judgment any High Church evotee might find it as difficult "to write with be-coming patience" of Mr. Voysey and his "stekly non-sense" of "free religion," as Mr. Yoysey does of Mrs. Woodhull's "free love." Mr. Voysey fores of the through which avery conceivable immonsility will stalk in to drag the race down to the pit. Suppose they say to him: "This is not what you want? Don't take us for fools. We know better. You do." How would he like it? For them to talk thus is a slight offence, since they do not profess "freedom," "rea-son," "private judgment." Mr. Voysey goes against his own "faith," and ects me an orthodoxy of morals quite as arbitrary and dogmatic as any churchman defends in religion. Will he not mean his spirit, and # defends in religion. Will he not mend his spirit, and thereby improve his argument? S. H. MORSE.

THE ALTERNATIVES-FREE LOVE OR EN-FORCED LUST.

EDITOR OF THE INDEX:

Dogmatic assumption finds favor with the ignorant and bigoted. I do not believe either of these classes is largely represented among the patrons of THE INDEX, and therefore that the "London Letter" does not represent the views of any considerable number of them.

A clear statement of principles or a well-considered argument, for or against, on any question, merits at-tention; but an article so arrogant in temper and offensive in tone as the one in question deserves con-tempt only. Under ordinary circumstances I should take no notice of it; but as it has appeared in THE INDEX without comment, I feel that I ought to cor-take no notice of it; but as it has appeared in THE INDEX without comment, I feel that I ought to cor-rect the false impression such negative endorsement may convey. To the query, "Are we men or are we beasts?" I reply that women who believe in the right to self-ownership do not intend to remain subject "to the wild indulgence of the most imperious of our pas-aions." Woman has suffered toolong and too severe-ly from such indulgence, and she now asks to be emancipated. She demands the restoration to her-self of the supreme control of her sexual functions, so long delegated to man by marriage. She is de-termined to rise to the level of the female brute, as sovereign in the domain of sex, so that, if men have "yeins full of warm blood." they may not be able to assuage the fever through her debauchery. It is not strange that men cannot conceive "the set." as independent of them for support. They doubtless imagine that women always will look, as they always have looked, to them for maintenance. But this is a mistake. As fast as women wake up to the fact that to marry for a home or for support is not a whit better than prostitution,—indeed, that it is prostitution,—they will demand and receive employ-ment by which to take care of themeeves. In the blind idolarity that has been given to mar-riage, the most important thing of all has been neg-lected. In the strife to keep 'one and one" tied to gether, their offspring are forgotten. Now, in the name of common sense, which is the more vital ques-tion: that of legal marriage regardless of results, or that of having the proper kind of children? Chris-tianity has held to the former, until the world is al-most rulned, sexually and physically. It has endeav-ored to save souls by damning bodies. My doctrine is precisely the reverse of this—is to as we bodies, and the souls cannot be damned. But I see clearly, in the near future, that the question to be asked of mothers will be: "What is the status, physically, mentally, and morally, of your child ?" and not: "Wh

I am laboring for the birth of proper children. Such must be rightly conceived, and not subjected to the influence of legal lust during the period of gesta-tion. If no children were to be born for the next generation except those desired by mothers (and nn-der free love there could be no others), there would be a renovation of the world, physically and morally. As it is, four in five of those born are not wanted; and what is worse still is that mothers do everything they know how to do to kill them in their wombs. Is it to be wondered at that morter stalks through society, when so many children are born with the brand of Cain upon them? A mother cannot think of murdering her unborn child without affecting it for ill. III.

When woman is no longer forced into pregnancy,— when it shall be hers to determine when she shall be-come pregnant,—there will be no more murderers, no more drunkards, no more criminals of any kind born. Men should think of the ends to be gained before making a sweeping condemnation of the means, and should be careful of their charges against persons who are demanding freedom for woman sexually, as these means, rather than wantonly to brand them as advo-cating debauchery. To me, free love means no more children than such a methar desire, in advance of conception, to have.

Cating debauchery. To me, free love means no more children than such as mothers desire, in advance of conception, to have; no more prostitution; no more enforced or legal in-tercourse; it means purity, health, and virtue, volum-tarily on the part of woman, and through her neces-shily for man. And I know it means the same to all genuine free-lovers. Nor can all the vulgar abuse of all the rest of the world make it mean anything else. These, then, are "the retrograde views," the "in-sane waste of breath and energy." these are "not to know the real feelings that lurk behind the cry for free love,"---"not to be able to guess what she is diry-ing at," "going backward from all moral conquest to the laxity of savages,"---"to be pushed over the pred-pice before they are aware of the danger,"---"a wide leap backward,"----"to embrace bestiality,"----"to pol-son the air with nasty theories,"--for "adulteresses to glory in their shame." For woman, to achieve and maintain freedom is to be all these, is it? So says Charles Voysey; but so say not I. As against my sex. I hurl the base insult in the teeth of its utterer. There are but two alternatives between which the world can choose - free love and enforced lust. Which will we have?

world can choose - free love and enforced lust. Which will ye have?

VICTORIA C. WOODHULL,

[It is necessary to say that the publication of editorial contributions "without comment" by the ed-Itor is neither positive nor "negative endorsement" on his part. It is mutually understood that the editorial contributors of THE INDEX shall write exclusively on their own responsibility; we have reserved no right to reject in whole or in part what they may choose to send, so long as they remain editorial contributors at all. With regard to publishing occasional contributions from other writers, we exercise the usual editorial right of acceptance or rejection; but even in this case the absence of comment is no indication whatever of our own views. By the standing rule of this paper, each writer is responsible alone for what he writes, except so far as the mere opportunity of being heard is concerned. If we make a note, it is only because we wish to say something on the same matter. It is true that we know of no other paper conducted on such a plan; but we hope that repeated statement will at last make our own plan understood.

Having, therefore, no right of rejection in the case of editorial contributions, we feel no obligation to give up the remaining space in our columns to any controversies they may naturally provoke. But we judge it to be fair in this case to give Mrs. Woodhull s hearing, and then, so far as we are concerned, to let the subject reat for the present. Mr. Voysey has expressed his opinion of "free love," and Mrs. Woodhull has expressed hers; and we hope that both will now be satisfied. If, as may happen by-and-by, we should be desirous to express our own definite views on this topic, it will be in an independent and purely impersonal form, and not in a mere note suggested in this manner.-ED.]

FREE SPEECH ON SUNDAY.

It appears from a statement in the Investigator of

It appears from a statement in the Investigator of the 8th instant that a regular Sunday meeting for free discussion of theology, religion, and other mat-ters of interest was begun in Winchester Hall, Pur-chase Street, in 1840, "by infidels and such liberal Christians as were friendly to free thought and free spech." I know of no such meeting of earlier date and it looks as if the infidels must have the credit of the first movement in this very important direction. Their priority in taking this stand seems the more probable, as it accords with the sentiment of the moto inscribed over the desk where, at a still earlier date, Abner Kneeland used to preach on Sunday mornings, namely: "He who will not reason is a bigot; he who dares not reason is a coward; he who cannot reason is a fool." I write to inform you of the next movement for fromerned. This was a course of free Sunday morn ing lectures, to be followed by conversation or dis-cusion, at the pleasure of the men and women who attende them. These lectures were held in Amory Hall, up two flights of stairs, at the corner of West of worship, but who wished rather that which was it or you such a statistion and instruc-tion; exhorting one another, to provoke unto love at to good works; to which these people added the which were left unrebuked by the clergy and the object. I dow't remember whether any of the people who churches.

churches. I don't remember whether any of the people who called themselves "infidels" were movers in the en-terprise last mentioned. Most, certainly, if not all its originators, were people who thought the words Christian and Christianity susceptible of a better meaning than that given them by the clergy and the churches. They therefore procured the well-known abolitionist, Charles C. Burleigh, to open their enter-

manning Google

prise by giving three lectures, on three successive Sanday mornings, in the place above named, inviting the public by advertisement in the daily papers. These lectures, given quite early in the year 1844, were on the following subjects :-"Christianity, why called a Gospel?" "Christianity, in relation to the treatment of ene-

"Capital Punishment."

"Capital Panishment." "Capital Panishment." "Toget three lectures were well attended, were ex-ceedingly interesting, and were followed by free dis-cussion on matters suggested by the discourse. At the close of the third lecture, one of the bearers pro-posed to the sudience the inquiry whether it were not desirable to continue the arrangement, and have a lecture and discussion there weekly, by the best thinkers and speakers attainable, at least until the rwas so emphatic that the meetings were continued into the month of May. They would probably have been continued the following year, and thereafter, but then the ministry of Theodore Parker began, in which both free speech and free thought were as horoughly represented as any one could clear. C. K. W.

April 17, 1874.

A LETTER FROM MR. SARGENT.

A LEFTERE EDITOR OF THE INDEX: Dear Friend,—The following article was recently presented for publication to the Boston Evening Transcript, where it rightly belonged, being in an-swer to cortain strictures and personalities relative to the Parker crists, which appeared in that paper. But as the Transcript (with that timid policy of conserva-tism which seems to govern it) has peremptorily re-jected the article, I will ask the favor of a place for it in your freer columns, and am truly yours, JOHN T. SARGENT.

UNITABIANISM AND THEODORE PARKER IN THE CRI-SIS OF 1844.

<text>

that it has hurt the social relations and credit of Unitarianism as a liberal system, and reduced its de-nominational force; for although it may be and is true that "liberal principles," on the whole, are large-ly on the advance, in these days, it surely is not through the influence of Unitarianism as a system, but rather by the stimulus of influences cuiside of it or seceding from it, such as RADICAL CLUBS and FREE RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATIONS. JOHN T. SARGENT.

THE CATHOLIC PRIEST'S LETTER.

NEW YORK, April, 1874.

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

"Bator but the Catholic." (Constitution of the Catholic." (Catholic and Catholic." (Catholic and Catholic and Catholic and Catholic and State and that persons who have rengion are could be represent (Ibid.) "The God of Protestantism is one of the devils; a dirty devil." (Freeman's Journal.) And this is enough for the present. The writer of the letter alluded to concludes in the following words: "If there is something yet not satisfactorily explained, I shall find pleasure in endeavoring to supply the defect." Now what I should consider a favor conferred on your readers would be an explana-tion as to the way of reconciling the liberal views of the reverend writer with those of the Catholic Church-with the teachings of that same Church, as exhibited in the extracts and documents quoted. D. E. DE LARA.

"THE SOUL FIRST OF ALL."

MR. ABBOT:

to accept that also which has a large preponderance of evidence in its favor, at least until it is disproven. But now comes the author of The Bible of the Ages (Mr. G. B. Stebbins), who, in an article entitled "The Soul First of All," tells us "the truth within must take place of this idolatry of authority without." This "truth within" he defines to be "intuition," and calls it the "true method." Now if this be so, then am I again-"A thousand miles away from shore, Without a rudder, sail, or ear." Can it be that observation experiences and induc

New if this be so, then am I again-"A thousand miles away from shore, "Without a rudder, sail, or car." To an it be that observation, experience, and induc-tion are not to be depended upon; that reason and hnowledge are, and must be, subordinate to a higher law, a truer method? Are the indefatigable labors and careful deductions of Tyndall, Carpenter, Hux-ley, Dawin, and Agasiat to go for naught, if they do not happen to "verify" these "voices from the inner-temple"? Mr. Stebbins says: "All that is in the In-finite Spirit is in the spirit of man, less in degree and scope, but the same in kind," by which it would ap-pear that the sould of men are emanations from the-Delty. Again: "Before experience was, were these interior realities, these truths of the soul." So our experience to verify them. Truly, Mr. Stebbins is sufficiently orthodox to satisfy the most exacting! But, before I conclude to return to my wallowing in to ask tim a few questions: . If "soul is first of all," and existed in the Delty of they exist in indefinite numbers "first of all," or are they created as occasion requires? . 2. Wat is "soul?" . If ideas are "innate," how comes it that heredi-stance, Moses under the guiding power of inspiration such ducation make the mar? . If inspiration and intuition are the true sources future, how is it that they do not agree? For in-stance, Moses under the guiding power of inspiration sayding, let them ask their humbands at home." (1, 02) . Do these and many similar inspired declarations for stance, Moses under the guiding new would learn anything, let them ask their humbands at home." (1, 03) . Mathemask their humbands at home." . Mathemask ind eige to answer these inqui-site, I may have something further to offer on the aub-ies, I may have something to on myreil with the be-ble that "reason is the highest and best standard or anytonize with our inmate ideas of love, justice, etc. Manwhile I will comfort myreif with the be-ble that "reason is the highe

ANECDOTE OF PROFESSOR AGASSIS.

ANECEDOTE OF PHOPESSOB AGASSIE. "Since his death, Professor Agassiz has been much sind ardently lauded as a Christian scientific, and a champion of the faith against scientific scepticism," we are told by the editor of the Popular Science Monthly, in a recent number of that "indispensable" magazine (according to Heary Ward Beecher). In this connection, I am induced to relate a brief conversation which, although occurring many years go, made so deep an impression on me that I remem-ber every word of I. In company with a friend, now well known to fame, M. D. Conway (then a student of divinity at Cam-bridge), I attended a geological lecture of the eminent professor, and afterward spent a delightful hour with his office. The conversation turning upon the subject of the recent lecture, Mr. Conway inquired if expressed with the statements of the first chapter of Genesis. He replied that the Bible was not held up nor was an authority in science, but as a rule of faith and practice. "And do your regard it," inquired my "Oh," asid Agassiz, with an arch look at the divinity student. "as to questions of that sort, it is your bariness, not mine, to interpret. But," resuming a serious sit, and with that heaultful foreign accent of his, "if any man shall say that we have a better guide it," if any man shall say that we have a better guide it," in any book, I shall not contradiet him." W. H. F.

Google Google

 W. H. F.

 W. H. F.

 Now THEY LOVE ONE ANOTHER.—The Methodist on Close Communion.—The downfall of a dogma so re-pugnant to the spirit of Christiandiy and the age, so hostile to the principles of freedom on which the Bap-tist organization is built, was inevitable. It could be hostile to the principles of freedom on which the Bap-tist organization is built, was inevitable. It could be relied up at all only by prejudice and a temporary sec-tarian excitement. The intelligence and energy of the Baptist people, combined with the influence of other denominations in practical Christian work, may be relied upon to cause a speedy extinction of this most offensive dogma.

 The Baptist Examiner on the Methodist.—If there is one evangelical denomination that went beyond were other in exclusiveness; that will go farther than any other commutation was that one. It seems very be the will give him one fact for his personal medi-tion. We assert that Ur. Crooks has more fingers of toos than American Baptists, with nearly 12,000 ministers, have of pastors who hanker for the reign of mention. We assert that Dr. Crooks has more fingers of toos than American Baptists, with nearly 12,000 ministers, have of pastors who hanker for the reign of mention. We assert that Dr. Crooks has more fingers of the Edmund Burke: "Nothing has driven peo-mention infldelity than the mutual hatred of the drive and the mention."

Advertisements.

THE PATRONAGE

of the liberal advertising public is respect-fully solicited for THE INDEX. The attempt will be honestly made to keep the advertis-ing pages of THE INDEX in endire harmony with its general character and principles, and medium which ahall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their meet generous apport. To this end, all improper or "blind" attvertisements, all quack adver-tisements, and all advertisements believed to be fraudulent or unjust to any one, will be excluded from these columns. No cuts will be admitted. This INDEX must not be held responsible be admitted. Th:: INDEX must not be held responsible for any statement made by advertisors, who will in all cases accept the responsibility for their own statements.

(ADVERTISING RATES.

For 1 to	12	Insertions,	10e	per	line.
" 13 "	25		8	- 66	65
· 26 ·	51	66	6	15	45
46 52		54	5		66

On half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent, on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

CIRCULATE ! Circulate !! Circu-Viate THOSE PETITIONS. Don't feel asile-fied when your pedition is a yard long, unless you have asked every oue to sign it. Get good, influ-ential names.

GET EVERYBODY.

Don't neglect to show the petition to any one, because he is a stockholder in some church, or other exempted property, as many anch persons admit the justlee of the demand; and those who will not should be made to take the responsibility of refusing to sign it. Don't delay! We want the petitions returned arris.

Per order of EXEC. COMM. of the BOSTON LIDEBAL LEAGUE.

CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON, has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the ose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX.

A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Rational Religion.

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public utterauce to the boldest, most cultivated, and best matured thought of the age on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the social and political amelioration of society.

It is edited by FRANCISE. ABBOT, assisted by ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of Editorial Contributora:-

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I. WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverhill, Mass. RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England. PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng.

Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX. as the hest popular exponent of Religious Liberalism. Every Christian ministor, and every thinking church-member, should subscribe for it, so the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly exposition of the differences between Free Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the arguments and the movements which the Church will have to meet in the future.

Almost overy number contains a discourse or leading article, which alone is worth the price of one year's subscription.

Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a letter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1873, says: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Religion in the widest series of the word should be felt in America-that such a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your country,-is a good sign of Ute times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of so-called religious or theological periodicals is, as you know, very large." And later still: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest."

Bend $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for three months on trial.

Address

THE INDEX. No. I Tremont Place, Boston.

	OF
DING	INDEX	WB	ITERS.	È.
N	Including
FROTHIN				6.1
W. HIGG	INSON,
w. J.	POTTER,
W.I	L SPENCER	4
	. W. NEWM	LAN,
	CHAS. V	OYSE	Y,
	A.W.	STE	VENS,
	F	. Е.	ABBOT,	T
ceint of T	e at the office illed postpai price. Single implete Set	d to Pho	any address tographs, 25	-

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS 1

LEA

O. B.

Are n

and w on re cents

T.

Address,				THE INDEX,
	- 1	No.	Tr	emon	t Pla	LCO,	Bost	ton,	Ma	88.
ī	N	D	Е	x	Т	R	A	C	T	8.

K No. 1.—Truths for the Times, by F. E. Abbot, contains the "Fifty Afirmations" and "Modern Principles." ME. CHARLES DARWIN, anthor of "The Origin of Spe-tructure in the origin of Spe-sectine in cles," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-mally intended for publication, but subse-quently authorized to be used: "I have now read 'TRUTHS FOR THE TIMES, and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 2.—Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char-acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wor-thy of the nineteenth century. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 3.- Lecture on the Hible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfec-tions and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 4.-Christian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbet, is an exposure of the weakness, costiness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5.-"God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the United States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 6.-"The Sabbath," by Parker Pillsbury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

to. 7.-"Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

o. 8.-The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that interests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents

No.9.-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac-ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evangelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Constitution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10 .- The Impeachment of Christianity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from Ave to one hundred copies

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12.-Is Romaniam Heal Christian-ity) Two essays by Francis W. Newman ity Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

io. 13.-On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price No. 13.-5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Religion: The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Frice 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address

THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE,

Boston, Mass,

THE INDEX,

7

4.

FREE

A Weekly Journal

8

DEVOTED TO

FREE RELIGION. PUBLISHED BY THE

NDEX ASSOCIATION, AT

> No. I Tremout Place, Boston. EDITOR:

FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR: ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.

EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS:

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I.

W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

F. W. NEWMAN, England. CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX SIMS

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the individual:

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for alavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for bate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes ion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesissticism throughout the world, and when the weifare of humanity here and now shall be the sim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is special-ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the purpose of securing the more complete and con-sistent secularization of the political and ed-ucational institutions of the United States. ncational institutions of the United States. The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesisatical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an un-broken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be beneforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURES

The publication of a valuable leading pa-per or essay of a thoughtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX. Begular editorial contributions will continue to be furnished by the well-known em-inent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high position. Mr. Voyser has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to rad ical readers. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from valua-ble books and periodicals, and miscelianeous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the country. The most liberal terms are offered.

TEBMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, uploss forwarded by cheque, registered lotter, or post-office money order. The name with address in full, must be accompanie opanio with the money in each case. Address THE INDEX.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

RELIGIOUS

PUBLICATIONS.

OF THE

ASSOCIATION.

Beport of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meet-ing in 1887, at which the Free Beligious Association was Organ-ized. Containing addresses by 0. B Frut-ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucretia Mott Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver Joh-son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Hig-ginson, and Ralph Walde Emerson.

(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not as this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meet-ing, 1869. 50 cents. Contains easys by Julis Ward Howe on "Freedom and Re-straint in Religion," and by David A. Wasstraint in Mengion," and by Javid A. Wa-son on "The Relation of Social Science to Beligion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Win. Des-ton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, (*. A. Ba-tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Bowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outlines of Judaism" by Rabbi Wise.

Proceedings of Third Annual Meet-ing, 1870. 60 cents. Contains essays by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the Free Religious Association," followed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature of Beligion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Re-ligion as a Social Force, especially in rela-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religious Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Age;" an essay by Samnel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions," fol-lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judaiam," by Proceedings of Third Annual Meetlowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judaiam," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedanisa," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Religions of China," and Wm. J. Potier on "Religion Old and New in Indis;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. R. Caithrop, Rabbl Wise, and others.

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meet-ing, 1872. 35 cents. (Four or more, 25 cents each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion as the Expression of a Permanent Sentimet: of the Human Mind." and by O. B. Froibof the Human Mind," and by O. B. Frothof the Human Mind," and by O. D. Polar ingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cella Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C. A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and others.

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meet-ing, 1873. 35 cents. (Four or more, 35 cents each.) Contains essays by Samadi Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and by John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Dals. Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longfel-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and La-cretia Mott. cretia Mott.

Sympathy of Heligions, by T. W. Hig-ginson. 25 cents.

Beligions of China, by Wm. H. Channing. 25 cents.

Beason and Revelation, by William J. Potter, 10 cents.

Faxation of Church Property, by Jas. Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of ten, 60 cents; of one hundred, $3.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Beligious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1872 is quite limited. Orders by mail may be addressed sither "Free Beligious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass.

WM. J. POTTER, Sec. F. R. A.

THE INDEX-APRIL 30, 1874.

215 and the sector

POPULAR BOOKS,	DESCA Meth
SENT BY MAIL	ELIOT
PUBLISHERS' PRICES!	Comp Ads Rot The Fell
ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.	Sila The E Midd Wit a
NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.	EMER Essay Misco Repre
ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will	Repre Engli Cond Poem May-
OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be dealed, whi be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt af orders accompanied with the CASH.	Esany Poem Prose Boole
Orders are respectfully solicited from	EVANS Trans the l
all friends of THE INDEX.	Youn The I Lon Ado
ALCOTT (A. BEONSON). Tablets	FARR/ in ref
ALCOTT (LOUISA M), Little Women. Two	Chris
Yols. 3.00 Hospital Skotches and Camp and Fireedde 1.50 Stories 1.50	manit Belief Child Life o
Konjela Skotches and Camp and Firefile Skotes An Old-Pashioned Girl. 1.50 An Old-Pashioned Girl. 1.50 Mg Boys, 40 Mg Boys, 40	FULLE
Huts, a book? of any determined	and o
ANABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. 1.50 ARNOLD'S (MATTHEW) Essays in Criti-	GOETH Verse Elect
Kew Poems	Carl Herm
A UREBACH (BESTHOLD). On the Heights. 1.30 Will Eden; The Country-House on the Balawalla, inc. 1.90	GREG
Bhine 2.00 Edelweins 1.00 German Tales 1.00	Creed
BACON'S Essays 1.00	GROTH umen Letter
BAGEHOT on the English Constitution 2.25 BAIN (ALEXANDER). Mental Science: A Compendium of Psychology and History of	Mrs. trait
Maral Sciance: A Compendium of Ethics.	HAME Book Book Thou
I rol 1.75 The Sensor and the Intellect. Third edi- Bog. 1 vol	Thou The U
BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americaniams. 2.50	Chapt
BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations	ond
The Bising Faith	HAMII 1. Met 2. Log
BIBLE in the Public Schools. BECOME, Arguments, and Decision in the case of John D. Minor et el, es, the Board of Edecation of the city of Cincinnati; et al. in the Supreme Court of the City of Cincinnati	HAWT New 1 Per v of Education of the city of Cincinnati: r al in the Supreme Court of the City of Cincinnati	Twi Mos The
Arguments of Ramsey, Sage and King in favor of the use of the Bible	The
Cincinnati	The
Court of Ohio in the above case	The
The World-Priest 2.25 The Tall Student	HIGGI
SCCENER'S Force and Matter 2.50	Army Atlan Oldpo
SUCKLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of Ordination in England and France, Spain and Sculand. New edition of the entire work, with a complete index. 2 vols	HOWE ding
BUCKLE'S Essays; with a Biography of the Asthor. Fine portrait. 1.00	Subin Venet Italia
CARLYLE'S Works, Chesp edition. Compris- ing the following: Miscellaneous Essays, 7	A Che
CARLYLE'S Works, Chespedition. Compris- ing the following: Miscellancoux Easays, 7 rols. French Revolution, 3 vols.; Freder- Pk the Great, 10 vols.; Cromwell's Letters, dc. 3 vols.; Sartor Basartus, 1 vol.; John Sterlag, i vol.; Mife of Schiller, I vol.; Past and Freecut, 1 vol.; Mife of Schiller, I vol. and russeut, 1 vol.; Mife of Schiller, I vol. Aoy volume sold separately. St vols. Lon- don, 181-3. Per vol.	Trans three HUNT
Stering, i vol.; Life of Schiller, I vol.; Past and Present, i vol.; Reroes and Hero Wor- phin. I vol.; Latter Day Pamphints. i vol.	Bits o
Any volume sold separately. 31 vols. Lou- don, 1871-3. Per vol	On th
Can' ANTIES Don Quiross	trat A Mai Anli Lay S
CHANNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D). The Per- fect Life. In Tweive Discourses. Edited from his manuscripts by his nephow, Wm. Benry Channing	INGEL The h
CHANNING (WM. BLLEBY). Thoreau: The Post Naturalist, With Memorial Verse, 2.00	Bonga
CHENEY (Mus. E. D). Patience, A Sories of Thirty Games for the Fireside. Description of the Series of Games for Particular with Scifes of Games for 1.00 Sally Willams, the Mountain Girl. Hug- Inted.	Studies Storie
Parties, aniform with Patience. 1.00 Sally Williams, the Mountain Girl. Hius-	A Sia Mopu
CLAREE (JAMES FREEMAN). Ten Great	Poor
Common-Sense in Beligion	Claud
CLABKE (Dr. E H.) Sex in Education 1.25 COBBE (FRANCES POWER). Studies New and Old, of Ethical and Social Subjects, 2,00	JOHNS and th India
CONWAT (MONCURE D.) The Earthward	JOSEP Josep
Consectations OGRELATION and Conservation of Forces i A series of Expositions by Grove, Helm- bolt, Mayer, Faraday, Labbig and Carpan- ter, with an introduction by Edward L 2000 Toumasa, M.D. 1 vol.	JOWE: duction Ballic
	fessol KERR
DALI MES. CAROLINE H). The College, the Market, and the Court; or, Woman's Returns to Education, Employment, and Clinamalp. 2.50	Patrio LECK 1 Influe
Historical Pictures Retouched; s Volume of Missellanles. In two parts. Part I. "Studies, Pictures, and Fancies" The Life of Dr. Marie Zakrzewska, being s Practical Hustration of "Woman's Zights to Labor". 1.00	Europ Histo tus
e Practical Blustration of "Woman's zignts to Labor"	LEGOT
DARWIN 8 Origin of Bpecies. 1.00 The Descent of Man. 2 vols	LEWE: Biogr Its
Englight Thoreaston of Man and the Low- er Animals Thoreaston of Man and the Low- The Variation of Animals and the Low-	Probl tion
Domestication, 2 vols., illustrated 6.00	1.4.1.6.4.1

and the second s	the second state of the se
ESCARTES (RENE.) Discourse on the Method of Rightly conducting the Beason and Seeking Truth in the Sciences	LEWIN (REV. RAPHAEL, D'C). What is Ju- dalam? or, a Few Words to the Jews 1,00
CALEND Chud's History of England 1.50	LONGPELLOW'S (H. W.) Posms. Portrait. 2 volu Prose Works. Portrait. 4.00
LIOT'S (GEORGE) Novels. Household Edi- ion. 5 vol., each	LOWELL'S (J. E.) Poems. 2 vola
Fellz Holt. Sllas Marner and Scenes of Clericsi Life. The Same. Library Edition. 2 yols 3,60 Middlemarch. 2 yols	LOWELL (Mas. A. C.) Posies for Children
Wit and Wisdom of	Pre-historic Times
Representative Men	MACDONALD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's Daughter
Poetna. With Portrait. 2.00 May-day and Other Pleces 2.00 Essays. Blue and Gold. 1.50	MANN (HORACE). The Life of Horace Mann. By his Wife
Wils and Wisdom of     120       MERSON'S (R. W.) Emargs. First Series. 7.00       Remays. Bootnd Series.     5.00       Improvention of the series.     5.00       Derived on Telescontext (Series.)     5.00       Dendon Telescontext (Series.)     5.00       Poetna.     100       Poetna.     100       Poetna.     100       Dout and Gold.     1.00       Poetna.     2.00       Scalety and Solitude     5.00       Scalety and Solitude     5.00	Annual Reports on Education, from 1839 to 1848 Thoughts Selected from the Writings of Horace Mann. 1.25
Transformations of Christianity. From	MARTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosoph- ical and Theological. 1 vols. Fer vol
The Irenel of Athanase Coquerel the Younger	MAURICE (REV. P. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind
ARAR'S Critical History of Pree Thought, in reference to the Christian Beligion 2.00	MERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of the Boman Empire. 1.50 Conversion of the Northern Nations 1.50
SUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation. 3.00 SOTHINGHAM (O. B.) Beligion of Hu-	WILL (IOUN STILLET) Dissertations and manity 1.50 Beliefa of the Unbelievers	Discussions, 4 VAA, baserations and 2.28 The Examination of the Philosophy of Sir William Hauditon, 2 vols, esch. 2.28 The Positive Philosophy of Auguste Combe, 1.04 Political Economy. New and revised edi-
Life of Theodors Parker	tion
and others. A new edition. 5 vols 9.00 DETHE'S Faust. Translated into English Verse by Bayard Taylor. 2 vols. Per vol 5.00	Autobiography
DETHE'S Faust. Translated into Knglish Verse by Bayard Taylor. 2 vola. Per vol 5,00 Elective Affinities	MIVART (ST. GEO.) On the Generis of Species
	MORLEY (PROF. JOHN.) Voltaire
REG'S (W. R.) Enigrans of Life	MOULTON (LOUISE CHANDLER.) Bed- Time Stories
iments, Private Memoranda, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote, Second Edition, With Por-	MUELLER (MAX, M.A.) Lectures on the Belonce of Language. First Series
MERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter's Camp. Book I. In England. Book II. In Scotland.	II. Basays on Mythology, Traditions. and Customs. Vol. III. Essays on Lit- erature, Biography and Antiquities.
AMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter's Camp. Sook II. In England. Book II. In Scothard. 150 Thoughts about Art. 16 Unknown River. 6.00 The Intellectual Life. Dapters on Animala. 5.00	NASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Round
MILTON (GAIL). Child World. Part Sec- L00 Child World. Part First	Ekkees from Kentucky. 1.30 NEWMAN (FRANCIS W.) A History of the Hebrew Monarchy. 4.30
MILTON'S Lectures. Metaphysical Lectures. 1. Logical Loctures. 3.50	Phases of Faith; or, Passages from the Bistory of my Creed
WTHORNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works.	NEWMAN (FRANCIS W.) A History of the Hebrow Monarchy
Per vol	The Religious Weakness of Protestantism25 Against Hero-Making in Religion
The House of the Seven Gables, and The	Matters Pertaining to Religion
Snow Image. The Marble Paun. The English Note-Books. The American Note-Books. The Fronch and Italian Note-Books.	sional Sermona. 2 vols
Our Old Home, and Septimius Felton. (GGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Fapers 1.50 Malbone. An Oldport Ronusnce	troduction by Rev. O. B. Frothingham., 1.50 The Trial of Theodore Parker for the Mis- demeanor of a Speech in Fancuil Hall
GGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Papers 1.50 Salbone, An Oldport Romance	Againsh informating in the study of the stud
WELLS'S (WILLIAM D.) Their Wed- ing Journey	and the Finite
Venetiau Life	Gates Alst         1.50           The Troky Book         1.50           Men, Women, and Ghosts         1.50           Hedged In         1.50           The Rillent Partner.         1.50           What to Wear ?         1.60
UMBOLDT (ALEXANDER VON). Life of. Franslated from the German. 2 vols., with hree portraits	The Silent Partner. 1.50 What to Wear?
UNT'S (MES. HELEN). Verses	PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition
UTLEY'S Man's Place in Nature	Dants
Lay Sermons, Addresses, and Reviews 1.75	100108
GELOW'S (JEAN) Poems	SCIENCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory. By Prof. Huzley, F.R.S
igs for Stories	4. Physical Geography. By Archibald Gel- kie, LL.D., F.E.S., flexible cloth
Series. 1.25 A Sister's Bys-Hours 1.25 Mopea the Fairy: A Story. 1.25 Peor Matt: or. The Clouded Intellect	SCOTT'S Waverley Novels. 25 vola
BROLD (DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr. Daude's Broakfast Talk, and other Papers. 1.50	BPENCER (HERBERT.) Education, Intel- lectual, Moral, and Physical
HNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Beligions, and their Belation to Universal Beligion. India	linstrations of Universal Progress. A Be- lection of his best Papers. 2.30 Social Statics; or, The Conditions Essen-
SEPHUS. The whole Works of Flavius Josephus, the Jewish Historian	tial to Human Happiness Specified, and the First of them Developed
WETT. The Dialognes of Plato. Trans- ated into English, with Analysis and Intro- luctions by H. Jowett, M.A., Master, of	Philosophy of Style
ated into English, with Analysis and Intro- luctions by B. Jowett, M.A., Master of Balliol College, Orford, and Regius Pro- fessor of Greek. Four vols	SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The-
EBR (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities, Poems, Patriotic, Sentimental and Humprous 2.00 SORY (W. E. H.) History of the Else and	STOWE (HARRIET BEECHER.) Pink and
SCRY (W. E. H.) History of the Eise and Influences of the Spirit of Rationalism in Surope. 2 vols	Uncle Tom's Cabin
EGGE'S Confucius' Life and Teachings 4.00	New Life of Jesus. Authorized transla- tion. 2 yols
Verifies and the second	TENNYSON'S (ALFRED) Poems
Problems of Life and Mind. The Founds- tions of a Creed	Vanity Fair, The Newcomes, Adventures of Philip, Pendennis,
SWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.59	a childrande

AURICO MALM	TYLOR
ABTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosoph- ical and Theological. 2 vols. Per vol 2.50 The New Aminifies of Paith	of Mar Primit
AURICE (REV. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind	VOYSEY Mos Sic Vola II The V
ERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of	Voyney
Conversion of the Northern Nations 1.50	a Gard Saunte Back-I
LLL (JOHN STUANT.) Dissertations and Discussions. 4 vols., each	Back-I WEISS (
William Hamilton. 2 vols., esch. 2.25 The Positive Philosophy of Auguste Comte. 1.30 Political Economy. New and revised edi- tion. 2.50	WHIPPI
don	Easaye Charac The Li Succes Washin
ILLER (JOAQUIN.) Songs of the Sierras, 1.50 Songs of the Sun Lands	WHITN
IVART (ST. GEO.) On the Generis of Species	Leslie We Gin Beal F The Ot
ORLEY (PROF. JOHN.) Voltaire	Panale
Time Stories	Child J
UELLER (MAX, M.A.) Lectures on the Science of Language. First Sories
The Same. Second Sories	1.1
II. Easys on Mythology, Trislitions. and Customs. Vol. III. Easys on Lit- erature, Biography and Antiquities.	-
Three vola. Price per volume	ΤH
ASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Round the Cirkle
EWMAN (FRANCIS W.) A History of the Hebrew Monarchy. 4.50	1
EWMAN (FRANCIS W.) & History of the Hebrow Monarchy Hasses of Paliti, or, Passagee from the History of my Creed The Oil Course Says of the Ampirithem The Oil Course Says to wards a Church of the Future, as the Organization of Philanthroot	HAY
Catholic Union: Essays towards a Church of the Future, as the Organization of Philanthropy. 1.75
The Religious Weakness of Protestantism. 25	1.2.
Against intro-maning in leading of the second secon	POP Speeches, Addresses, and Occasional Ser- mons. 5 vols. 4.00 Additional Speeches, Addresses, and Occasional Sermons. 2 vols
ton, Adams, and Jefferson. With an In- troduction by Rev. O. B. Frothingham., 1.50	The g books o
demcanor of a Speech in Fancuil Hall against Kidnapping; with the Defence 1.50	ltor and pers, co
ARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The Infinite	popular
ARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The Infinite and the Finite	25 cts. 1
Gates Ajar	No.1. 8
Hedged In	Auso By Ri
ROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por- trait. Cabinet Edition 2.00	No. 2.
OSSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Dants	of B Fully
CHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Elevitation of the Heavenly	No. 8.
Bod168	ored
CHENCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory, By Frof. Harley, F.R.S 36 2. Chemistry, By Frof. Esseven	No. 4.
lustrations	Const
COTT'S Waverley Novels. 25 vols	enly ] Youn
MILES'S (SAM JEL.) Self-Help 1.50 PENCER (HERBERT.) Education, Intel-	ers.
PENCER (HERBERT.) Education, Intol- lectual, Moral, and Physical. 123 Pirst Price/pies. 2.60 Eussaya: Moral, Folitical, and Zethetic. 2.60 Hustrations of Universal Progress. A So- lection of his best Papers. Moral Progress. 3.60 Social Battlets: or, The Conditions Essent	No. 5. Come illustrations of Universal Progress. A Se- lection of his best Papers	No. 6.
lection of his best Papers. 2.30 Social Statics; or. The Conditions Essen- tial to Human Happiness Specified, and the First of them Developed. 2.30 The Principles of Biology. 2 vols. 6.00 Philosophy of Style. 4.40 Philosophy of Style. 4.40 Philosophy of Style. 4.40 Recent Dincussions in Science, Philosophy. 4.40 Recent Dincussions in Science, Philosophy. 2.00 Restant Morals. New and enlarged edition. 2.00	ter, a
The Principles of Psychology, 2 vols 5.00 Philosophy of Style	No. 7.
	Prof. Michi
PINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The- ologico-Politicus	No. 8. No. 9.
TOWE (HARRIET BEECHER.) Pink and White Tyrany	THE Dove
Uncle Tom's Cabin 2.00 TRAUSS (D. F.) The Old Faith and the	No. 10.
TRAUSS (D.F.) The Old Faith and the New Life of Jesus. Authorized transla- tion. 2 vols	By Ec Cultu
'ENNYSON'S (ALFRED) Poems 1.75	No. 11.
HACKERAT'S (W.M.) Novels, Household Edition. Complete in 6 volumes. Per vol., 1.25 Vanity Fair. The Newcomes. Adventures of Fhilip.	Louis
The Newcomos. Adventures of Philip, Pendennis.	Form

-	-	200			-	-		-
J	Lainor	rginian d. and 1 neous Uniform 5 vola.	ovel t	he Wi	dowe
t	ton.	Uniform	with	the .	Novel	o. U	001-	į
Th	iete in	13 vola.	withi	low Po	matte	Per	vol. 1	.26
est h	ing it,	tion incl h edition with th Thacket	a nove	th mi	the arket	dditio pest a	nd m	10.0 081
1	. Barr	y Lynd	on, Ho	ggart	Diar	buon.	đe.
ž	. Snol	s, and Da, Sket	ches, 1	benis	Duval	Ac.
5	Cath print	y Lynde e, and L bs, Sket r George erine, ed Piece	Christ	maa )	Books	, uns	Un	re-
Inl	ITE OF OF	R'S (M.	88. C	ELIA	) Am	OB;	the I	.50
THO	BEA Woo	U'S (H.	D.) 1	Valde	a: or	, Life	n in	00.1
Th	e Mal	ne Woo	eld an	d For	est. I	ortro	II 1	.00
Le	ttern.	d		••••••				2.00
Å	Week Rivers	U'S (H. ds ins in Fi ne Wood d. de in Car t on th	e Cou	cord	and 1	dorri	mac	.00
TYL	OR (	EDWAI dad e Cultur	ID 8.)	The	Early	/ His	1017	.50
VO	BEY	REV. C	HARI	ES.)	The	Sung	and ,
Vo	la III.	(REV. C e. Vola IV. and sey Ap Defend	Vi., e peal.	ach				.00
TR7 A 1	DMDD	10 10 17 1	10 1 510	1 1 1 1 1	M 10.	a beneficiaria di	m Tau
Sa Ba	unterl ck-Lo	nga	50					1.00
WEI	SS (J	OHN.) Theodor	Amer e Park	ean H	vola.	n	111	1.50
EA Ch Th 8u	aracto ccess	"S (E. P nd Revi r and C rature c and its	haract	eristi Age o	e Men f Elis	abeth		1.50 1.00 1.50 1.50 1.50
	AGUINS	tion who	rue n	CAO18	uon			.30
Le	alle G	oldthwa	ite's L	Me.	A 80	mme	r ua	1.50
Be	al Fol	Y'S (Ma oldthwa C A Hou los er Girla	ne Sto	TY				1.80
Pa	nales.	A volu	une of	Poen			1.1	2.00
WH	TTTE	R'R (JC	HN O	Pos	-	vola		.00
C.D	ana 19	fe						1.00
				RESA
			ADD	a read
T.	H	F	1	N	D	E	Y	1
		÷.,				0	. "	ľ
	x	Treme	nt I	1800	. Bo	stor	h.
H	40	F-HO	UR	RE	CRI	LAS	TOL	NS
	2.2		13		55	1
PI	O P	ULI	A R	S	CI	EN	C	E.
	2	EDITE	D 81	DANA	ESTR	а.
T	he er	wing	demm	nd in	this	COL	ntry	for
				10.77	0.1014	12.0	. (C. 4)	123

on popular science encourages the ed-t publishers to issue this series of pa-ompiled from the works of the most scientific writers.

er Part; $2.50 for twelve consecutive Parts.

TRANGE DISCOVERIES RESPECTING THE EA AND BECENT SOLAR RESEARCHES. chard A. Proctor, F.B.A.S.

THE CRANIAL AFFINITIES OF MAN THE AFE. By Prof. Rudolph Virchow, serlin, author of Collular Pathology. illustrated.

SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and see to Science Illustrated. With a col-plate and several wood-cuts.

SPECTRUM ANALTRIA DISCOVERIES, ing its Application in Microscopic Re-b, and to Discoveries of the Physical titution and Movements of the Heav-Bodies. From the works of Schellen, g, Roscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and oth-

NEBULE, METEORIC SHOWERS, AND TS.

UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN EPIDENIC DELORIOSS. By Dr. Carpen-uthor of The Microscope and its Reco-ns, Human Physiology, etc.

THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARS. By A. Winchell, of the University of Igan, author of Sketches of Creation.

OF YEAST. By Prof. Huxley, F.R.S. THE CORCULATION OF THE WATERS ON FACE OF THE EASTH. By Prof. H. W.

THE STONE AGE, PAST AND PRESENT. dward B. Tylor, author of Primilius re,

THE RELATION BETWEEN MATTER FORCE. By Prof. John H. Tice, of St.

> THE INDEX. ale by 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

> > (mirent) Google

216

A FEW COPIES ONLY Of an excellent Photograph (Cabinet Size) of Rev. MONCULEZ D. CONWAY, of London, enn behad at the office of THE INDEX. Price 60 cents. CHEAP OFFER! A

A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACTS, from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed t any address on the prepayment of 75 OENTS. THE INDEX, Address

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873.

The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of $, by express, at the purchaser's express. A complete file for the year can be furnished in o other form. We year can be furnished in outher form.

		1 Tremont Place, Bosto
P	R		I	v	A	т	E
^	TR	E	A	TRI	CI	LS

for the benefit of the Free Religious Associ-ation, at the Christian Union Hall, 300 Wash-Ington Street,

Friday Evening, May 1st, at 7.45. PLAYS. - "The Little Treasure" and "The Widow's Victim."

Tickets, $1; for sale, with programmes, at Ditson & Co.'s, 255 Washington Street.

CHARLES SUMNER.

A fine likeness of Massachusette' great Sen stor, the copy of a recent Photograph by Black, is for sale at THE INDEX office, and will be sent by mail to any address on receipt of the price-seventy-five cents. THE INDEX. Address

1 Tremont Place, Boston.

1 Tremont Place, Boston. SAVEDI FLORENCE: 20 SAVEDI FLORENCE: or bave Di The Jong-contented auti or the FLUKENCE SEWING MACHINE CO. gainat the Singer, Wheeler & Wilson, and Grover & Baker Companies, involving over 220,000, is finally decided by the Supreme Court of the United States in favor of the FLORENCE is the OSLY machine that sews backward and forward, or to right and left. Simplest, Cheapest, Rest' Sold for cash only. Special terms to Clubs and Dealers. FLORENCE, Mass., April, 1874.

JUST PUBLISHED.

THEODORE PARKER:

Biography. By Octavius Brooks Froth-ingham. With Heliotype Portrait. I vol. 8vo. $3.00. $3.00.

Ryo. 83.00. An exceedingly interesting memorial of a very remarkable man-one of the striking figures in American history. Mr. Frothing-ham has given a large number of Parker's etters and journals not previously published; he has written in the light reflected upon Parker's words and efforts by the momentous events of the last fifteen years, which have brought out in bold relief the agge(ity, win-dom, and heroism of Theodore Parker's on reor; and he has written so candidly, and with eo protound an appreciation of Parker's characteristic qualities, that his book is of surpassing interest.

The NEW YORK TRIBUNE closes a four and a baif column review of this book by saying: "It holds up a remarkable specimen of ro-bust manlines, whose form and lineaments can be studied with equal advantage by friend and foe."

Sent, postage prepaid, on receipt of price Addres THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston

SABBATH SCHOOL SONG

Triumphant Success of the New and Beautiful Sab bath-school Song Book, the

RIVER OF LIFE!!

BY H. S. PERKINS AND W. W. BENTLEY. This undoubtedly fine book has been but a short time before the public, and the public is already convinced of its surpassing merit. Witness the great sales-many thousands. Witness the decided words of praise from hundreds of Sabbath-school workers in all directions.

RIVER OF LIFE!

Superintendent in Charleston, S.C., says e pronounce it the best book we have ever We pr

BIVER OF LIFE!

A Clergyman in Philadelphia is "Greatly pleased with it."

BIVEE OF LIFE!

A Secretary of a Sabbath School Union, in Illinois, believes it "Surpasses any other I have examined." These are but a few out of a multitude of commendations.

commendations. No book of the kind issued for many years has given greater or more universal satisfac-tion.

Specimen Copies mailed, post-paid, for 30 eents. Price by the Hundred Copies, $30. Bold by all dealers.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., BOSTON.

CHARLES H. DITSON & CO., Til Broadway, New York.

is held at HOSPITALLEE HALL, 563 Washing-ton Street, Boston, every Sunday, at 105 A.M., 25 and 25 P.M. All that relates to the Religious, Political, and Social interests of mankind consti-tute the subjects for discussion. The INDEX and Index Tracts are for sale overy Sunday at Hospitaller Hall.

TO BOOK-BUYERS

Flease examine the revised list of POPU-LAR BOOKS on the opposite side of this page. Any OBTAINABLE BOOK NOT IN THIS LIST will be furnished to order. Readers of THE INDEX who desire to pur-chase English, German, or French Books, or who wish for information as to the price, &c., of any American or Foreign Book, can bave their orders promptly filled and their inqui-ries answered by addressing THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Flace, Boston.

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE

D INDEX. Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2.-50, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valueable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive read-ing twenty years hence as to-day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend thruggling out of Orthodory than one of these volumes. Address THE INDEX, I Tremont Place, Boston. THE INDEX, I Tremont Place, Boston.

SPECTRUM ANALYSIS

EXPLAINED.

An explanation of this wonderful discov ery, and its uses to science, including the re ceived Theory of Sound, Heat, Light, and Color; with chapters on the Sun, Stars, Nebulæ, Comets, and Meteoric Showers Abridged from the works of Schellen, Bos coe, Huggins, Lockyer, Young, and others, the editor of Half-Hour Recreations in Popular Science.

12mo., cloth, with two colored plates and twenty illustrations. $1.50. A . A . Sec. 10. MITE INTER

			I Tre	mont	Place,	Bosto	n.
C	H	A	Р	т	E	R	S
7			FRO	H.	17.

FOURTEEN CHAPTERS. Selected from Hindu Vedas, Buddha, Con-fuctus, Egyptian Divine Pymander, Zoroas-ler, Talmuds, Bible, Plato, Pythagoras, Mar-cus Aurelius, Epictetus, Al Koran, Luther, Scandinsvian Eddas, Benan, Tallesin, Mil-ton, Penn, Adam Clarke, Mary Fletcher, F. W. Newman, Tyndail, Max Müller, Elias Hicks, Channing, Garrison, H. C. Wright, Lu-cretia Mort, Higginson, T. Starr King, Bush-nell, Parker, Davis, Emma Hardinge, Emer-son, Denton, Tuttle, Abbot, Frothingham, and others.

Gospels and Inspirations from many Centuries and Peoples. "Slowly the Bible of the race is writ, Each age, each kindred, adds a verse to it."

Edited and Compiled by GILES B. STEBBINS

Four hundred pages; bound in cloth; price $1.50. No Extra Charge for Postage.

Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston U S T 0 F

B THEODORE PARKER, BY

SIDNEY H. MORSE.

Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi-poise, breathe through the clay; the artist has so filled his own heart with sppreciation of that noble life that he has been able con-ningly to mould it into those delicate liness which the character had wrought on the liv-ing fibre. We are tempted to exclaim, as we stand beside it, as the old artist did to his perfected work, "Speak then!"-Hannah K. Stevenson.

Stevenaon. All the characteristics of my husband are in the bust,—bis greatness, bis goodness, his tenderness, his love. You cannot give life to clay or marble; but you can represent it, and this Mr. Morre has done.—Lydde D. Parker to Hannah E. Stevenson. The eyes, though but of clay, are gleaming with possible indignation, with possible tears; the lips are set firm with the resolution of him who, like Paul, could "äght a good fight" low.

The first time I have seen Theodore Parker since he died.—Wm. Sparrell.

The best representation of Mr. Parker ever executed in clay.-Boston Daily Globe.

The face is strong and noble as it should be The likeness is good — Boston Daily Advertiser Nothing appears for beauty alone, or finish, or to show the vanity of the artist. All is forgotten in the man-the true, real, Yankee man, Theodore Parker.-L. S. H. in the Golden Age.

Copies of this Bust, finely finished n plas-ter, $10 each. Boxing for transportation, $1 extra. Freight or expressage paid by party sending order. Weight of box about fifty pounds. Orders may be sent to S. H. MORSE.

Room 13, 25 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.

FREE DISCUSSION BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE. Our organization some time since decided to direct its efforts for the present towards securing

Repeal of the Laws

whereby church and other corporate property is anjustly exempted from its share of the burden of taxation.

As a means to this end, we have published for eneral circulation several thousand copies of a n Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEE of Nov. 27. The edition was made as large as our funds could allow; but, so great has been the demand, it is already nearly exhausted.

TRACT

Our next edition ought to be large enough to lace a copy in the hands of

EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE.

and generously to supply the calls for them other States.

To do this, we need funds; for, although we have made arrangements for printing the Tract at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston League, with its various other expenses, to beau the entire expense alone. Will not, then.

All Friends of the Movement

come forward and help us with liberal donation We frequently receive communications from parties wishing tracts to distribute, asking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circuating them gratuitously throughout the country To many of the subscribers of THE LUDER and others whose names have been furnished u as probable friends of the movement, copies of the Tract, together with Petitions asking the repeal of the Exemption Laws, have been sent,

With the Hope

that such friends will try to secure as many sig natures to the petition as possible in their locality We respectfully ask those who are unable to attend to the matter themselves to place the petitions in the hands of those who will,

BOLL UP THE LIST!

Lot us

Let our united voices be heard ! And let it be done NOW!

We would say, also that we feel deeply the need of

Other Organizations

in this State, to cooperate with us in securing equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are those who are inclined to

Form a Liberal League,

we are ready to render such assistance as lies in our power.

LIBERALSI

If all will units and work, the results a can be accomplished Address

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Per order of the EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

NEWSPAPER TO PUBLISHERS. Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, 1 should like to contract for composition alone, or for composition, press-work, and mailing, for one or more weekly papers. Best of references given, and antisfactory work guaranteed. GEO. H. ELLIS, 7 Tremont Place, Boston.

J. SEDGEBEER, Palnesville, Ohio,

$25 per day guaranteed using our well AUGER and Drilla. Catalogue free. W. W. Gilles, St. Louis, Mo.

NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drug, and Band, grinding MILLS. Ten Sizes. Also Cotton-Beed Hullers. Blustrat-ed pamphlets free. Address

G. L. HENDERSON & CO.

BANKEBS.

LEROY. MINN.

Money invested on short time, or for a term of years, on unincumbered improved farms, at 12 per cent, interest per annum, payable security guaranteed. All expenses for ample security guaranteed. All expenses for abstract of title and recording mortgage paid by borrower. We collect and remit to any part of the United States free of charge.

REFRENCES. - First National Bank, Mc-Gregor, Iowa; Eirst National Bank, Mc-Gregor, Iowa; Eirst National Bank, Anstin Minn: Miwaukee National Bank, Miwaa-kee, Wia; City National Bank, Chicago, III; Allen, Stevens & Co., Bankers, New York City; Morris Altman.

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES, paying 8 to 10 per cent. interest, or Investments in Real Estate in Chicago and vicinity, if judiciously made, are the best and safesi modes of employing capital. The old

Real Estate and Loan Agency

OF

ERNST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPH BIRLEY

Chicago (Established 1853),

Guarantees perfect tills and ample security in all its Real Estate Loans. Firstchas securities always on hand. In-terest and principal collected without charge. Real Estate Investments made on commission or on shares; taxes paid, &c. Orders of capitalists and real cetate own-ers respectfully solicited.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is full length. It is full size. It is smooth and elastic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine mes.

Many kinds of spool slik are a perfect fraud, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be andi

for use. The ladies will always find the Eureka Silk exactly as represented. Every spool is warranted, and the manufacturer's name indelibly branded on every spool. Call

ONLY TEN SETS!

All the bound copies of the FIRST VOL-

UME of THE INDEX (1870) which were on sale at the Office of the Association in Toleda

were sold very soon after they were advertised. FIVE DOLLARS have since been paid for a single copy obtained by special advertisement. The Association have just come into possession of Ten Copies of this

TEN COMPLETE SETS

third, and fourth volumes (1870, 1871, 1871,

Only Ten Dollars a Set.

Persons wishing to possess a complete file

of THE INDEX, whether for its intrinsic or historical value, will do well to send their or-

NOT BE SOLD SEPARATELY.

The four volumes will be sent in one pack age, by express, at the cost of the purchaser.

mannen Google

THE INDEX,

1 Tramon: Place, Boston.

ders without delay. The First Volume will of THE INDEX, including the first, see

first volume, and now offer

1873), at the low price of

Address

for it.

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Single Copies Seven Cents

VOLUME 5.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, MAY 7, 1874.

WHOLE NO. 22.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

demand that churches and other ecclesiastical aball no longer be exempt from just taxation.

We demand that the employment of chaplains in Congress, in State Legislatures, in the new millita, and in prisons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.
 We demand that all public appropriations for educational success.
 We demand that all public new services now austained.

ahall cease. 4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostensi-bly as attribook or srowedly as a book of religious wor-ship, shall be prohibited.

ship, shall be prohibited. 5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Government by the President of the United States or by the Government of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease. 6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and mall other departments of the government shall be abol-iabed, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-alities of penjury shall be established in its stead. 7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-pealed.

We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty.
 We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the saveral States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or ad-vantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unflinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Wherea, it is out profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperiled, the advance of civil-sation impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-finged, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and

religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prospectity of the entire land; TEXEEFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-seives together under the following

ABTICLES OF AGREEMENT. -The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-

ABT. 1.-The name

And rgu. Asr. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members.

Ast, 5.- Any person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-Ment. Air. 6. -The Officers of the Lesgue shall be a President, Air. 6. -The Officers of the Lesgue shall be a President, Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Excen-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be those commonly pertaining to these offices. The President ad Secretary shall be ex-officio delegates to the National Convention of Liberal Lesgues when called together. Air.7.-These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-ule meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

So far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of THE INDEX. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that it will yet be accepted universally by the American people, a the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A Liberal League ought to be formed to carry out its princi-ples wherever half a dozen carnest and resolute Liberals ples wherever half a dozen earnest and resolute Liberals has be got together. Being convinced that the movement is secure compliance with these just "Demands" must wrely, even if slowly, spread, I hope to make THE INFER a means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and active co-operation of svery man and every woman who be-lieves int. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-port promptly the names of their Presidents and Secre-tarios. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion as that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are "fokl jet their organized voice be heard like the sound of many waters.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor. BOWION, Sept. 1, 1873.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page. RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT: PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE

FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CON-STITUTION.

ABTICLE I.

ARTICLE 1. SECTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-tablishment of religion, of favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to patithon the Gov-ernment for a redress of grievances. Brornov 3.—No State shall make any law respecting an of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or right of the people peaceably to assemble and to patithon the dovernment for a redress of grievances. No religious the dovernment for a redress of grievances. No religious and no person shall ever in any State be deprived of any of this or her rights, privileges, or capacities, or disqualified for the performance of any public or private duty, or ren-dered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or equity, in consequence of any opinions be or she may hold on the subject of religion. Brornov 3.—Congress shall have power to enforce the pro-risions of the second section of this Article by appropri-tions.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

BT A. W. 6.

A SERIES of interesting papers on Charles Sumner, written by M. D. Conway, has appeared in the London Examiner.

THE TITLE of one of Gerald Massey's lectures, which he has been delivering in this country, is: "Why does not God kill the Devil?" We supposed he had, long ago.

THERE ARE MANY definitions of what constitutes a Christian, but we think none could be more Orthodox than that which Rev. Dr. Hill (Unitarian), of Portland, Maine, gave to a friend of ours the other day. "No man is a Christian," said Dr. Hill, "who does not believe in the perfect authority of Christ."

MR. AUSTIN HOLYOAKE - brother of George Jacob Holyoake, and, like that distinguished gentleman, a prominent Fréchinker and Atheist-died in London, April 10, aged forty-seven years. He was a man of high and irreproachable character, and of good ability. He held to his athelatic belief to the end, but died with calmness and resignation.

THE FOLLOWING language was used by Mr. C. C. Burleigh, in the dedicatory services of Cosmian Hall, Florence, Mass.: "So we dedicate our house to the service of truth and right; to freedom of intellect and conscience; to the highest Ideal of God in the mind and soul of each." If every church should be so dedicated, we could not have too many of them.

SEVECA the Roman philosopher, contemporaneous with St. Paul, is one of the prophets of the discovery of America, whom Mr. Sumner quotes. Seneca's words, in his Medea, are thus translated by Whately: "There shall come a time, in later ages, when ocean shall relax his claims, and a vast continent appear, and a pliot shall find new worlds, and Thule shall be no more the earth's bounds."

A POST BAYS:-

We gather shells from youth to age, And then we leave them like a child."

We leave behind us what becomes foreign to us -what we outgrow. The constant and faithful soul does no more; it carries with it forever what remains of it, and neither time nor change can loose its hold of what it loves and owns.

FOR THE first time in the history of the country, s negro occupied the chair of the Speaker of the national House of Representatives, one day last week, when the House was in Committee of the Whole. The colored member, so distinguished, was the Hon. Mr. Rainey of South Carolina. Democrats and Republicans, Northern-ers and Southerners, alike expressed their hearty satisfaction at the manner of Mr. Rainey's bearing as temporary Speaker.

THE Morning Star (Baptist) says: "It will be only a question of time and use to decide how signally true it is that Christianity is not a failure, THE INDEX to the contrary notwithstanding." Certainly, "time and use" must decide whether Christiaulty is a failure or not. The The opinion of THE INDEX, in this case as in every other, is only good so far as it goes. It does not claim to be infallible. It but announces its judgment, and gives its reasons therefor. But it may be mistaken. Wa can afford to wait and see.

THE Jewish Times, which, by the way, is an interesting and able paper, utters itself in the following very sensible and liberal strain:--- senable and liberal strain:--Not as Jews, but as citizens of an enlightened age; as men who feel in accord with the aspirations of humanity at large; who stand above the narrow pent-up churches that hold forth one dogma or other as the shibboich of admission to God's presence,--mnst we bend onr ener-gies to help pull down the sectarian barriers. We must confine sect and creed to the church, the temple, the mosque; we must assist in delivering art, science, cuit-ure, from the chains of sectarianism; we must proclaim again and again that society deals only, and can deal only, with the moral man, not with the member of this or that church.

A Young MEN's Hebrew Association has been formed recently in New York. Its specific aims are the establishment of a reading room and library; lectures on historical, scientific, literary, and social topics; entertainments of a social, artistic, and musical nature; the establishment of free classes for general instruction; the organisation of a bureau for securing employment for deserving young men. It will be seen that this is not designed to be a sectarian Association, like the Young Men's Christian Association, but a human one. wish for it success and prosperity, and are glad to see our Hebrew friends coming to the front with such notable and praiseworthy enterprises as they have of late embarked upon.

"BROTHER" BEECHER was talking about the Trinity. a few evenings since, in his conference meeting; and, as his mind seemed to be cloudy on the subject (although he had declared his acceptance of the dogma), he was questioned somewhat by the brethren. Brother Halliday, his colleague, asked: "What do you suppose is meant by concague, asked: "what do you suppose is meant by Ohrist's declaration, that he was one with the Father?" Mr. Beecher---''I don't know." (Laughter.) Brother Halliday---''Don't know what you suppose?" Mr. Beecher---''I don't suppose at all... It is a great deal caaler to say you don't know, when you once get used to it, than to say you do, and try to explain what you can't explain." Mr. Beecher puts himself on the safe side or both sides of the fence (if that is possible), by saying that he believes, and then, in the same breath, saying that he doesn't know whereof he believes.

IN AN interesting article on Female Poets, the London Examiner cays: "We do not venture to assert that ex-amples of the genus have been very numerous, or that they have often ranked with the foremost men; but we do maintain that, among the true poets of the world, women have been and more frequently may be numbared." It mentions Miriam and Deborah as the earliest female poets; speaks of the "divinity of the genius" of Sappho; and ends with Mrs. Browning, of whom it says: "We doubt if any in our own day or age has touched a harp at once so sweet, so strong, so heart-rending and heart-devouring as hers." The Examiner thinks that "the genius of women has hitherto for the most part been confined to an unhealthy growth in the dark," and believes that "we must give it the full light of day, before we can lay down the limits of its capabilities."

THE BULOGISTIC ORATION on Charles Summer, pronounced by Carl Schurs in the Boston Music Hall, last week Wednesday, was most noble and fitting in every respect. Both the head and the heart of the orator dictated its every word. It was not undiscriminating and fulsome, but just, loving, and true. Massachusetts, we think, hung her head with sorrowful shame as she listened to the sloquent rebuke of Mr. Schurs for the censure she gave her great Senator for his conscientious and magnanimous action in regard to the national battle-flag inscriptions. That Sumner did not die before his State had recalled her hasty and disgraceful condemnation of him was allke his and her most happy fortune. Grand lessons of wisdom and virtue, we trust, will accrue to our people from the life of the illustrious dead, and from this vivid and masterly portrait of him sketched by the illustrious living.

Google Google

LIST OF LIBEBAL LEAGUES.

BT. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries. BOSTON, MASS.-J. S. Rogers, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries. JEFFERSON, OMIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Secretary. JEVFERSON, OHIO.--W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Secretary. SAN JOSE, CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Secretary. oLEDO, IOWA .- J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre-Tot Lary, VINELAND, N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Secretary Socretary. JUNGTONVILLZ, NEB.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Socretary. OLATRIE, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; El. A. Griffin, Socretary. DETROIT, MIGH.-W. R. HUD, President; A. T. Garretson, Secretary.
 BHERDAVILLE, MIGH.-A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. MINOWICS, Secretary.
 OBUEDLA, MO.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Secretary. BATH, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. BERLIN, WIS .- President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, B. M.

Bridgman, M.C. - George M. Wood, President; J. E. Crawford, Secretary. A usufan, Outo.-John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treas-urar. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen.

Anton Grethen. NEW YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary. ST. JOREPH, MO .- P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Secretary. EAU CLAIRS, Wis .- President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy.

Compulsory Education.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION OF THE NEW YORK CITY COUNCIL OF POLITICAL REFORM.

In a democratic republic like ours, where all polit-ical power resides in and springs from the people; where, to use the language of Abraham Lincoin, "the government is of the people, for the people, and by the people,"----no subject can be presented to the citizens for their consideration more important than the edu-cation of the youth.

UNIVERSAL EDUCATION ESSENTIAL TO FREE GOV-EENMENT.

ERNMENT. Intelligence in the rulers is essential to good gov-ernment; with us the rulers are the voters, hence the necessity of fitting them by education to rule. With intelligent voters, our form of government is the best yet derised; but with ignorant voters, it is one of the worst. An intelligent people seek freedom, and an ignorant one despotism, just as naturally and certain-ly as the needle points to the magnetic pole. The founders of our free institutions two hundred and fifty years ago saw this, and scarcely had they completed the log cabins for their families, when they began the log schoolhouse for the school and school-master. The schoolhouse has spread, developed, and im-proved from Maine to Calfornia equally with the dwell-ing-house. It is the nursery of American clitzens.

THREE CARDINAL PRINCIPLES OF AMERICAN LIB-ERTY.

ERTY. These three cardinal principles our forefathers nev-er lost sight of: namely, a free State, a free School, and a free Church. Self-preservation imposes upon our government the duty of educating the people suf-ficiently to qualify them to exercise intelligently the right of suffrage. Conscious of this, every free State established a system of free schools. So great and beneficent has been their influence upon the people, that the material prosperity, intel-lectual and moral development, respect for law and obellence to it, in each State, may be relatively meas-ured and calculated by the condition of the free pub-lic schools.

lic schools.

WHAT THE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT IS DOING FOR EDUCATION.

EDUCATION. The national government has already set aside for educational purposes one hundred and forty millions (140,000,000) of acres of public land; and the ques-tion of devoting to education the whole proceeds of the public lands still undisposed of is discussed. In the last Congress, the Committee on Education and Labor in the House of Representatives reported fa-vorably a bill for this purpose, and, after a careful de-bate and consideration, it passed that body and was sent to the Senate. It has established a Bureau of Education as a permanent part of the government, with a Commissioner of Education at its head. His annual report is one of the most interesting, instruc-tive, valuable, and important documents that issues from the government press. Every legislator and every school officer in the United States should study its contents and heed its facts.

MAGNITUDE OF THE SCHOOL INTEREST.

(1.)-In the Nation.

(1.)—In the Nation. We have in the United States over fourteen and a finilions (14,500,000) of children of the school age; we expend annually for schools over ninety-fire millions (885,000,000) of dollars, which is equal to one-trial and personal, of the whole country, as returned by the last census; and we employ two hundred and standing army, and those are our taw recruits. Their is our standing army, and those are our taw recruits. Their standing army, and the slate pencil; their muni-tibe schoolhouses; and the enemy they are sullisted to conquer, ignorance and bigotry. Through the sum-springs up in every village in our new States and Ter-ritories is the public schoolhouse. Like the light of heaven and the water of the earth, it is open and free alike to rich and poor.

(2.)-In the State of New York.

(2.)-In the State of New York. In the State of New York we have one million and half (1,500,000) school children, twenty-eight thou-and (28,000) school teachers, twelve thousand (12,000) school bouses, and one million (1,000,000) vol-umes of books in the school district libraries. The school property of the State is worth twenty-four mil-lions of dollars ($2,000,000) a year to add to it and improve it. The law in the State of New York re-quires us to raise annually one and one-quarter of a mill tax upon each dollar of valuation of taxable property, for the support of the free schools. This amounts to two and a half millions of dollars. But so fully is the value of the schools appreciated that the people voluntarily tax themselves annually four times this amount, making the whole sum spent upon schools in this State ten millions of dollars ($10,000,000 a year.

($10,000,000) a year. This is called the "Empire State." So long as we continue this liberal policy of education for the whole people it will remain such. The canal interest, the railroad interest, the manua the canal interest, the rairoad interest, the manu-facturing interest, important as they are to material progress, are yet small compared with the education of our million and a half of youth.

(3.)-In the City of New York.

(3.)—In the City of New York. The city of New York had, last year, over two hundred and thirty thousand (230,000) pupils in its schools. It employed three thousand (3,000) teachers and school officers, and expended upon public education three millions three hundred thousand dollars ($3,300,000). The citizen, however humble, has only to send his child to the public school, and government furnishes him there, free of cost, an educational palaee, warmed and lighted, the best text-books and apparatus, and the most skilful teachers. Stewart and Astor, with their hundred millions of property and no children in the public schools, like true-hearted American citizens, gladly pay the school taxes that educate the sons and daughters of thousands of poor laborers who have no property to be taxed. Alded by the free school, the greatest wealth and the highest honors and offices in this broad land are within the reach of the sons of the humblest workman.

workman.

THE PROPERTY SHOULD EDUCATE THE CHILDREN.

THE PROPERTY SHOULD EDUCATE THE CHILDREN. The American doctrine is, that "the property of the State shall educate the children of the State." This benefits equally the rich and the poor. It decreases crime, reduces taxes, improves labor, increases the value of property, and elevates the whole community. One of the first and decisive questions asked in seek-ing a permanent location for one's family is: What are the means provided for education? A village, town, or State, with good free schools, is the resort of families; without them it is the home of criminals. In this city, it costs more to support police and police courts to restrain and punish a few thousand criminals, nearly all of whom became such from want of education, than to educate our 230,000 children.

CRIME THE CONSEQUENCE OF IGNORANCE.

In France, from 1867 to 1869, one-half the inhabit-ants could neither read nor write; and this one-half furnished ninety-five per cent. of the persons arrested for crime, and eighty-seven per cent. of those con-victed. In other words, an ignorant person, on the average, committed seven times the number of crimes that one not ignorant did. In the six New England States of our own country, only seven per cent. of the inhabitants, above the ago of ten years, can neither read nor write; yet eighty per cent. of the crime in those States is committed by this small minority; in other words, a person there without education commits fifty-three times as many crimes as one with education. In New York and Pennsylvania an ignorant person commits on the average aeven times the number of crimes that one who can read and write commits, and in the whole United States the illiterate person com-mits ten times the number of crimes that the edu-cated one does. In France, from 1867 to 1869, one-half the inhabit-cated one does The above facts are derived from official statistics.

THE SCHOOL THE PREVENTIVE OF CRIME.

THE SCHOOL THE PREVENTIVE OF CRIME. We may have supposed that it is the churches rath-er than the school that prevent people from becom-ing criminals; but the facts indicated by statistics col-lected by government show the contrary. The kingdom of Bavaria examined this question in 1870. In Upper Bavaria there were 15 churches and 5 1-2 schoolhouses to each one thousand buildings, and 607 crimes to each one thousand buildings, and 607 crimes to each one thousand inhab-itants. In Upper Franconia the ratio was 5 churches, 7 schoolhouses, and 444 crimes. In Lower Bavaria the ratio was 10 churches and 4 1-2 schoolhouses and 870 crimes. In the Palatinate the ratio was 4 churches, 11 schoolhouses, and only 425 crimes, or less than one-half. In the Lower Palatinate the ratio was 11 churches, 6 schoolhouses, and 690 crimes, 10 schoolhouses, and only 384 crimes.

10 schoolhouses, and only 384 crimes. Tabulated for clearness of comparison, it is as follows:-

	Per 1,000	Per 100,000 Souls.
Concession in the	Churches.	School Houses.	Crimes.
Upper Bavaria Upper Franconia	15	51-2	667
Lower Bavaria	10	41-2	870
Lower Palatinate	11	6	425
Lower Franconia	5	10	384

In short, it seems that crime decreases almost in the same ratio that schools increase, while more or less churches seem in Bavaria to produce very little effect upon it.

effect upon it. Those unerring guides of the statesman-statistics —demonstrate that the most economical, effective, and powerful preventives of crime is the free common school. Universal education tends to universal morality.

THE SCHOOL THE PREVENTIVE OF PAUPENISM.

An examination of the statistics of England, Scot-

An examination of the statistics of England, Scot-land, Ireland, and of the different countries of Europe, indicate that, other things being equal, pauperism is in the inverse ratio of the education of the mass of the people; that is, as education Increases, pauperism decreases, and as education decreases, pauperism in-creases. The same rule holds good in our country. Taking the three States of Pennaylvania, Ohio, and Illinois for illustration, we find that of the illiterate persons one in tents a pauper; while of therest of the population only one in three hundred is a pauper. In other words, a given number of persons suffered to grow up in ignorance furnish on the average thirty times as many paupers as the same persons would if schools afford. Add to this that they furnish also ten times the number of criminals, and the right as well as the duty of government, as the protector of society, to enforce general education is clear, for it is the plain obligation of government to protect society against pauperism and crime.

EDUCATION, THEN, SHOULD BE COMPULSORY.

Government should prevent both crime and pan-pariam by extirpating the cause of each; to wit, igno-rance. An educated citizen is of more value to himself, to society, and to the country than an ignorant

An examination covering prominent points or cen-tres of labor in twenty States, made three years ago, developed the fact that even such education as our free common schools afford adds on the average fifty per cent, to the producing capacity of the citizen; while a higher training increases it two or three hun-dred per cent.

dred per cent. He can do more and better work, from the street scavenger up to the most skilled mechanic, with the same expenditure of time and force, from the mere same expenditure of time and torce, not the new fact of possessing knowledge. A well-educated commonwealth, however narrow its borders or poor its soil, soon becomes rich and powerful; while an ignorant one, even under the hap-piest circumstances of land and sky, falls a prey to piest circumstances of land and sky, falls a prey to anarchy, poverty, and despotism. Government is making ample provision for the secu-lar education of all. Has it not a right, then, to require all to be educated, either in the public schools at pub-lic expense, or in private schools at private expense? We think it has, and that secular education sufficient for the common affairs of every-day life, and to ena-ble the citizen to vote with intelligence, should be compulsory.

We think it has, and that sectuar coucation sumcent for the common affairs of every-day life, and to ena-ble the citizen to vote with intelligence, should be compulsory. Prussis and many other German States have tried it for years, with the happiest results. It is her sig-orous system of compulsory education that in sixty years has raised her from a bankrupt and conquered petty kingdom to the ruling empire of Europe, and made her the seat and home of intelligence, industry, and wealth. Boston has had such a law for twenty years, and in the last ten they have reduced truaney from school sixty per cent. New Hampshire, Con-necticnt, Rhode Island, and Michigan have now adopted it. England has given her school boards power to adopt it, and in London they have. The effect is to increase the attendance at school, and de-crease the number of juvenile delinquents. The time has arrived to try the experiment in the cities of our State at least, if not in the whole State. This will cause every child to enjoy the benefits of the public school, or of some private school. Wherever compulsory attendance has been tried long enough to determine its effect, the result has been so satisfactory that it has become a fixed and settled policy. Prussia, Saxony, and democratic Switzerland testify to its excellence. It is in harmo-ny with the true spirit of a democratic republic to re-quire every citizen to qualify himself for the right of suffrage, and for caring an independent living. The taxpayers who furnish the money to educate all the people have a right to require that all shall be educated, in order that orine and pauperlow, and the public burdens caused by the same, may be reduced to a minimum, and the ballot wielded only by intelli-gent voters. The ballot, in the hands of a corrupt and ignorant

gent voters

gent voters. The ballot, in the hands of a corrupt and ignorant populace, is the torch of the political incendiary; but with an intelligent people is the bulwark of liberty. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." It costs far less to prevent crime, pauperism, and civil commotions, by educating the whole people, than it does to punish criminals, support paupers, and maintain armies to repress an ignorant and vicious population. population.

he average daily attendance in this State upon the public schools during the school year is only about one-third of the whole school population; and upon all schools, public and private, it is only about one half haif. The class most in need of school training seldom attend school at all; to wit, those whose parents, through ignorance, poverty, avarice, or crime, give them little or no home education. This class can be reached only by the aid of a compulsory and search-ing statute. Every other remedy has been tried without curing the disease. By a judicious law firmly but kindly enforced, without curing the disease. By a judicious law, firmly but kindly enforced, compelling attendance during school hours upon some school, either public or private, the streets of our large cities could be cleared of the thousands of youthful vagrants from whose ranks now our army of criminals is almost entirely recruited. Such a law in a single generation would work a moral and intellect-nal reformation and regeneration of our criminal and pauper classes, and save millions of money in the departments of police, charities, and corrections, and largely increase the wealth, influence, and producing power of the State.

R.

の中をいる

220

34

largely increase the weard, independent and producing ower of the State. The wisdom of developing and perfecting our free schools is admitted by the great majority of the com-munity. A small minority oppose them on the ground that their religion is not specially and authoritatively taught therein.

OUB GOVERNMENT CANNOT AND SHOULD NOT TEACH RELIGION.

OUR GOVERNMENT CANNOT AND SHOULD NOT TEACH RELIGION. Our government cannot give religious education; because while protecting each citizen in the undis-turbed enjoyment of his own religion, as a sacred matter between him and his Maker, and thus tolerat-ing all religions, it has none of its own, and cannot favor any sect or denomination or class. The whole letter and spirit of the Constitution of the United States, as well as of the several States, prohibits the establishment either directly or indi-rectly of a State religion; or the showing any favor or giving any protection, privileges, or financial sup-port to one religious sect more than to another. Pro-tection to all equally, but support to none, is, on this point, the organic law of America. If the churches would not interfere with the gov-ender their strength to giving, in their own places and manner, religious education, they and the gov-end manner, religious education, they and the gov-end manner, religious education, but not teach-indifferent buildings, would act in entire harmony, and would in the end produce the best possible general result. By simply protecting religion, but not teach-neit, by simply protecting religion, but not teach-ing it, government is, as matter of fact, giving the stemates the stemates of the stemates and in the of their strength to strength to the religious entity.

BUT ONE SECT OPPOSED TO FREE SCHOOLS.

This American doctrine of free non-sectarian schools This American doctrine or free non-sectarian schools is substantially accepted and adopted by all religious sects save one. That one, however, is large, enthusi-satic, well drilled, and ably and powerfully led; and though its members are chiefly of foreign birth, yet, having become citizens, they are entitled to the same school and isolate and meinilance are aptimed are in this having become citizens, they are entitled to the same volce and rights and privileges as natives are in this matter. The leader of this sect, though a foreign ruler, has ordered the destruction of our free non-sectarian system of popular education, and the sub-stitution of his own system of church or parochial schools; that is, schools whose text-books and teach-ers are selected, appointed, and controlled by the Church, though the State may be permitted to pay all the bills. In the city of New York, through State and municipal legislation, the following amounts of money were obtained in the last five years from the public treasury for sectarian institutions, such as charches, church schools, and church charities; name-iy:-

1869	8767,815 of 861,326	which	this	one	sect	received	$651,191
1871	634.088			46			552,718
1872	419,849			44			252,110
1873	324,284	44					306,193
Tot. 5 yrs. 8	.017.362						20 AT2 EAG

If this is a better system than ours, we should adopt it, for we want the best; but if it is a worse, we should reject it.

THE PAROCHIAL SYSTEM PRODUCES MORE ILLITER-ATES, PAUPERS, AND CRIMINALS THAN OURS.

THE PAROCHIAL SYSTEM PRODUCES MORE ILLITER-ATES, PAUPERS, AND CRIMINALS THAN OURS.
It has been tried for centuries; and in some coun-tries, as Italy and Spain, under the most favorable anspices, for there this sect has had despotic power, both civil and religious, and so could carry its system out to its highest perfection.
What, then, are its fruits? We may say, its neces-sary and inevitable fruits? By its fruits it should be judged. They are as follows:-(1.) A highly educated few; but among the masses general ignorance, instead of general enlightenment.
(2.) A low grade of morality.
(3.) A large pauper and criminal class.
(4.) A tendency to despotism and to official selfish-ness and corruption.
(5.) A lack of national progress and development. These statements are made, first from a personal moviedge of the facts gained by investigation in those countries—haring visited them before they re-jected that system, for the purpose of studying this very question; and secondly, they are made from a careful analysis of official statistics.
The fruits of the two systems also exist side by side in our own country.

The fruits of the two systems also exist side by side an end analysis of official statistics. The fruits of the two systems also exist side by side in our own country. There are with us five and a half millions of for-sign-born inhabitants, the greater portion of whom same from countries, as Ireland and England for ex-apple, that have had the parochial or church system of schools; hence they may justly be taken intellectu-dity and morally as the fair average product of that method of education. Of these the lillterules above the age of ten are fourteen per cent. (.14) of the whole number; the papers are four and one-tenth per cent. (.041), and the criminals one and six-tenths per cent. (.041), and the difficult schools, there is a native population of fire public schools, there is a native population has been educated in this system of schools, and in like man-ter may be justly taken, intellectually and morally, as the fair average product of this method of education. Of these the lillterules above the age of ten are only three and one-half per cent. (.005) of the whole number; the parpers only one and seven-tenths per cent. (.007), and the criminals only three-fourths of one per cent. (.0075). The other words, from every ten thousand (10,000) inhabitants the parochial or church system of educa-tion turns out fourteen hundred (1400) illiterates, four hundred and ten (410) paupers, and one hundred and sixty (160) criminals; while the non-sectarian free public school system turns out only three hun-dred and fifty (350) illiterates, one hundred and sev-enty (170) paupers, and seventy-five (75) criminals. Or if we take Massachusetts by itself, which has the type or model of our free public school system, with its 1,104,032 native inhabitants, the number is still less; namely, seventy-one (71) illiterates, forty-nine (49) paupers, and eleven (11) criminals.

 Illiter- Pau- Crimatis, atra. pera. inalt, anta.

 Parochial school system

 Parochial school system in 21 States. 300

 Public school system in Mass...

 71

 49

 11

 49

 49

 40

 49

 41

 49

 41

 49

 49

 49

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41 42

 43

 44

 45

 46

 47

 48

 49

 49

 40

 40

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41

 41

Public school system in Mass. If 49 II 4 10,000 That is, we are asked by these friends who have come here and joined us, and whose zeal and energy, if rightly directed, will be of great service both to themselves and the country, to abolish our own well-tried system of education, and adopt the one to which they, in their former homes, became accustomed; though that one, on the average, produces four times as many liliterates, two and a half times as many paupers, and more than twice as many criminals as ours. Or if we take Massachusetts as a fair sample of our system, we are asked to adopt one that will give society twenty times as many illiterates, eight times as many paupers, and fourteen times as many criminals. criminals.

criminals. We cannot do this, and when they come to under-stand thoroughly the facts they will not wish us to do it; for the welfare of their children is just as dear to them as that of ours is to us, and they, equally with us, desire to diminish ignorance, pauperism, and crime, and to make the country of their adoption and the home of their descendants intelligent, prosperous, nowerful, and hapry.

the home of their descendants intelligent, prosperous, powerful, and happy. The whole future of our country and the very ex-istence of our free government is wrapped up in the common school. Promote and develop that, and ev-ery department of industry and intelligence will flourish like a tree well watered and nourished at its roots. Destroy the common school, and ignorance, poverty, despotism, and bigotry will soon pervade the whole land. Generalizations drawn like the above from the official statistics of twenty-five millions of people are Generalizations drawn like the above from the official statistics of twenty-five millions of people are unerring guides. They settle the question as to the comparative excellence of the two systems of educa-tion. They are intellectual, industrial, and moral beacons, that direct with certainty and safety the statesman and the philanthropist. They point out unmistakably to the legislator the duty of enacting a law requiring attendance upon schools, during the school age and the school terms, of all the children in the State, unless legally and for good and sufficient reasons temporarily excused.

The preservation of free government requires this. Protection of society against pauperism and crime de-mands it. The material development of our country calls for it. The success and happiness in life of the children of the poor, the ignorant, and the vicious can be secured only by such a statute. Your committee recommend the passage of the fol-

Resolved, That the Legislature should enact a law authorizing and empowering the school boards in each city, town, and incorporated village to require the attendance at some school, public or private, dur-ing the school terms and the school hours of each day, of all children between the ages of eight and fif-teen years, unless for good and sufficient reason tem-porarily excused. DEXTER A. HAWKINS, Chairman of Committee on Education of the New York City Council of Political Reform.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30, 1873.

[For THE INDEX.]

THE BIBLE IN THE SCHOOLS:

AN ARGUMENT FOR UNSECTARIAN EDUCATION BE-FORE THE OLATHE (KANSAS) LITERABY SOCIETY, JAN, 12, 1874.

BY J. E. SUTTON.

In taking the affirmative of this question, let me first state that, if it were intended that the Protestant Bible should be read in our schools as a history of the first state that, if it were intended that the Protestant Bible should be read in our schools as a history of the Jewish people, and of their peculiar views on religion, and as a history of a noble Jewish reformer who was so faithful to his own convictions of right and duty that, like another Socrates, he died for what he be-lieved to be the truth, then by all means let it be read; and side by side with it, let there be read the Koran, the Veda, and the Jewish Talmud. Let all these be studied as a part of history, showing the pe-culiar views on religion held by different races of mankind. It would be a wholesome exercise in the curiculum of historical studies, calculated to give broad and liberal views on true religion and morals, and would effectually shield our children from a nar-row, sectarian spirit. It would teach them a religion embracing all humanity, and in harmony with uni-versal progress. But if it is intended that the Protestant Bible alone shall be read, in all the schools, as the only infallible text-hook of divine revelation on religion and morals, uphilosophical, and unscientific. I would object, on the grounds that it would be unjust, uphilosophical, and unscientific. I would be unjust to the Catholics (outnumbering the Protestants two to one), who would want the Douay Bible for their children; to the Jew, who does not believe in the plenary inspiration of the Bible; and to all parents who would prefer teaching their children from a different book. It would be unphilosophical, because it assumes that belief is a matter of choice—that a child can choose to believe in the Mossic history, while at the same time he is taught the facts of geology and as-tronomy! The very rocks and stones upon which the Earth's history of herself has been written in indelible characters contradict the Biblical record. As the pupil is made acquainted with the science of the heavens, of the firmament above him, how can he choose to believe in the plenary inspiration of the book! His faith in it will be lost forever, unless, in-deed, like another Hugh Miller, he loses his reason in the futile attempt to reconcile such a revelation with science. science.

science. It would be unscientific, because all science teaches that our world, and all it contains—animate and in-animate—is governed by fixed, uniform laws, not by a supernatural power, above and outside of law, as the Protestant Bible teaches. All experience, as well as science, demonstrates this great fact. Never do we see a supernatural power intervening to prevent the uniformity of Nature's laws. The Chicago fire burned up the houses of the good and the just, quite as much as those of the wicked and sinful. The sacred churches were consumed, as well as the rum-shops and places of infamy.

churches were consumed, as well as the rum-shops and places of infamy. The Protestant Bible would teach children to ex-pect a supernatural intervention. In case of drought, they would pray for rain; in sickness they would sup-plicate for health; while science and common sense would teach them to obey the laws of health, and to expect rain in accordance with the usual natural con-ditions. As an evidence that men of culture and learning expect rain in accordance with the usual natural con-ditions. As an evidence that men of culture and learning everywhere believe that we are creatures of law, allow me to read a short extract from the Cincinnati Com-mercial of last week. It states that Dr. Carpenter "recently read a paper on 'The Reign of Law,' before a certain religious institution called Zion College, where the bishops and clergy of London are wont oc-casionally to meet to listen to a paper or lecture, which is followed by a discussion. Dr. Carpenter in his essay maintained 'that Nature represented a king-dom of orderly evolution, which had never been in-vaded by anything arbitrary, preternatural, or super-natural; and his address ended by the emphatic dec-laration that all liturgies, litanies, collects, and pray-er could influence—the course of this universe, nor mankind, nor a single individual, in the slightest degree.' This paper created the most intense excite-ment, which was further increased when Professor Tyndall arose and said in a slow and solemn voice: 'I am speaking to men of education and men of learn-ing; to men who have read history and observed the course of Nature; and I feel constrained to ask you, as gentlemen of culture, whether it is really possible that you can have any belief in the efficacy of prayer to affect this universe in the slightest degree.'' It would therefore be in the highest degree irration-al to teach our children a religious faith which would the by science and observation. If, then, the Protestant Bible is to be read as an infallible text-book of divine revealation, we should vote to exclude it from the schools; but if it is to be classed with other histories of religions, by all means let it be read side by side with the other side are in favor of taking away from any man, or his children , his beloved Bible. If he believes in the protestart Bible is to bine a the side are in favor of taking away from any man, or his children , his beloved Bible. If he believes in the protestart Bible is the As an evidence that men of culture and learning

We are surprised that gentlemen on the other side are in favor of taking away from any man, or his children, his beloved Bible. If he believes in the Protestant Bible, let him and his children enjoy it to their hearts' content; no matter whether he believes in the Presbyterian, Methodist, Campbellite, or Uni-tarian interpretation of it. If he believes in the Catholic, or Douay, Bible, let him enjoy it; if in the Jewish Talmud, or in the rationalist's Bible of sci-ence, let them and their children enjoy them, and go on their way rejoicing.

ence, let them and their children enjoy them, and go on their way rejoicing. But if you attempt to bind down all men to your own dogmatic Bible, you virtually take away their right to enjoy their own Sacred Scriptures; and soon they will burst asunder the bonds of such mental slavery. Judging from the rapid progress of science all over the civilized globe, occupying as it does no longer a defensive attitude, but attacking the very strongholds of superstition in London, we may con-fidently expect that in 1876 we shall see a more glori-ous spiritual independence gained than the political independence of 1778.

A SENSIBLE HEATHEN.—It seems that when writers or speakers want to use a particularly noble and charitable sentiment, they look for it among the works of heathen writers. Notwithstanding the in-numerable Christian sources from which they are at liberty to draw, it appears that the search for grand, rugged, unselfish charity, generally carries them back to the better rugged, unselfish charity, generally carries them back to the heathens. But it was of Mr. Disraeli in particular that Round-about was thinking. That gentleman is somewhat famous for saying eminently beautiful and large-minded things, and quite recently distinguished him-self by a quotation which attracted more than usual notice. Freely rendered, it runs thus :--"These things and all things, at all times, I say; My faith is come straight from the gods to men. Whose deems other form of doctrine true, He has his creed; let me adhere to mine."

It struck everybody as the consummation of perfect liberality—the gracious and divine deliverance of thought which makes men god-like; but, on inquiry, it was found to be an excerpt from the Ajax of Sophocles, and not from any of the great Anglican polemies, as many pious churchmen at first supposed. —New Orleans Times.

. Digitized by Google

GENERAL LAMAR'S EULOGY ON SUMNER IN CONGRESS.

<text>

ther marcteristics which have in all ages given to religion her marcteristics which have in all ages given to religion beroes. To a man thoroughly permeated and imbued with such a creed, and animated and constantly actuated by such a spirit of derotion, to behold a human being or a race of human beings restrained of what he deemed their natural rights to liberty, for no crime by him or them committed, was to feel all the belligerent institucts of his nature roused to combat. The fact was to him a wrong which no logic could justify. It mattered not to him how humble in the scale of ra-tional being the subject of this restraint might be, how dark his skin or how dense his ignorance. Be-hind all that iay for him the great principle that lib-erty is the birthright of all humanity, and that every individual of every race who has a soul to save is en-tited to the freedom which may enable him to work out his salvation. It mattered not to him that the slave might be contented with his lot; that his actual condition might to be immeasurably more desirable than that from which it had transplanted him; that it had given him physical comfort, mental elevation, and Christian truth, possessed by his race in no other con-dition; that his bonds had not been placed upon his hands by the living generation; that the mixed social system, of which he formed an element, had been re-garded by the fathers of the republic, and by the ablest statesmen who had risen up after them, as too complicated to be broken up without danger to socie-splicitly sanctioned by the very organic law of the re-public. Weighty as these considerations might be, formidable as were the difficulties in the way of the

HI IN LIFIX - INLAY 7, I practical enforcement of his great principle, he held none the less that it must sconer or later be enforced, though institutions and constitutions should have to give way alike before it. But here let me do this emi-nent man the justice which, amid the excitements of the struggle between the sections, now past, I may have been disposed to deny him. In this firery zeal and this earnest warfare against the wrong, as he viewed it, there entered no enduring personal animos-ity toward the men whose lot it was to be born to the system which he denounced. It has been the kind-ness of the sympathy which in these later years he has displayed toward the impoveribed and suffering people of the Southern States that has unveiled to me the generous and tender heart which beat beneath the bosom of the zealot, and has forced me to yleid him the tribute of my respect, I might even say of my admiration. Nor in the manifestation of this has there been anything which a proud and sensitive peo-ple, smarting under a sense of recent discomfiture and present suffering, might not frankly accept, or which would give them just cause to suspect its eincerity. For, though he ralsed his voice, as soon as he believed the momentous issues of this great military conflict were decided, in behalf of amnesty to the vanguished, and though he stood forward ready to welcome back as bothers and to reëstablish in their rights as citi-zens those whose valor had so nearly riven asunder the Union which he loved, yet he insisted that the most ample protection and the largest safeguards should be thrown around the liberties of the newly well that, of his conquered fellow-citizens of the South, by far the larger portion, even those who most hearti-ly acquiesced in and desired the abolition of slavery, seriously questioned the expediency of investing, in a single day and without any preliminary tutelage, so was a body of inexperienced and uninstructed men with the full powers and responsibilities of citizen-ahip and suffrage, practical enforcement of his great principle, he held none the less that it must sooner or later be enforced, taken to protect. Whether these measures prove him to be a practical attatesman or a theoretical enthusiast is a question on which any judgment which we, to-day, may pronounce must await the revision of pos-terity. I allude to them here only to show that the spirit of magnanimity which, during the last three years, breathes in his utterances, and manifests itself in all his acts affecting the South, was as evidently honeat as it was grateful to the feelings of those to whom It was displayed. It was certainly a gracious act toward the South, though, unhappily, it jarred upon the sensibilities of the people at the other ex-treme of the Union, to propose to erase from the ban-ners of the national army the mementoes of the bloody intermedine struggle, which might be regarded as assailing the pride or wounding the sensibilities of the Southern people. That proposal will never be forgotten by that people so long as the name of Charles Sumer lives in the memory of man. But, while it touched the heart of the South and ellcited her profound gratitude, her people would not have asked of the North such an act of self-renunciation. Conscious that they themselves were animated by her profound gratitude, her people would not have asked of the North such an act of self-renunciation. Conscious that they themselves were animated by devotion to constitutional liberty, and that the bright-est pages of history are replete with evidences of the depth and sincerity of that devotion, the Southern people can but cherish the recollections of the battles fought and the victories won in defence of their hap-less cause. And respecting, as all true and brave men must respect, the martial spirit with which the men of the North vindicated the integrity of the Union and their devotion to the principles of human freedom, they do not ask, they do not wish, the North to strike the mementoes of her heroism and victory from either records, or monuments, or battle-flags. They would rather that both section, not envious, but proud of each other, and regard them a common heri-tage of American valor, so that future generations, when they remember the deeds of heroism and devo-tion done on both sides, will speak not of Northern provess or Southern courage, but of the heroism, fortitude, and courage of Americans in a war of ideas -a war in which each section signalized its consecra-tion to the principles, as each understood them, of American liberty and of the Constitution received from their fathers. It was my misfortune, perhaps my fault, personal-by, never to have known this eminer balles.

American liberty and of the Constitution received from their fathers. It was my misfortune, perhaps my fault, personal-ly, never to have known this eminent philanthropist and statesman. The impulse was often strong upon me to go to him, and offer him my hanks for his kind and considerate course, of late years. toward the peo-ple with whom I am identified. If I did not yield to that impulse, it was because the thought occurred that other days were coming in which such a demon-stration might be more opportune and less liable to misconstruction. Suddenly, and without premoni-tion, a day has come, at last, to which, for such a purpose, there is no to-morrow. My regret is, there-fore, intensified by the thought that I failed to speak to him out of the fulness of my heart while there was yet time. How often is it that death thus brings unavailingly back to our remembrance opportunities unimproved, in which generous overtures, prompted by the heart, remain unoffered, frank avowals which rose to the lips remain unspoken, and the injustice and wrong of bitter resentiments remain unrepaired! Charles Sumner, in life, believed that all occasion for strife spins of the interfous dead whom we famile tody could speak from the grave to both parties in this de-plorable discord in tones that should reach each and every heart throughout this broad territory: "My countrymen, know one another, and you will love one another."—Boston Globe.

<page-header><text><text><text>

PRISON LIBBARIES.

In one of the recent periods of disturbance on the Gold Coast, a veteran English general insisted that only men who could read and write should be enlisted "These only men who could read and write should be enlisted for service in that unwholesome quarter. "Those fellows keep themselves occupied, and therefore cheerful, and therefore well, and in good morde," he said; "but the ignoramuses simply feed on their own grierances in the long seasons of inaction, get low and discontented, mutiny, desert, or sicken and die with vacancy of mind and homesickness. They can't stand the monotony of the life and the separa-tion from their friends." We have lately sonder of the snormous disprocewith vacancy of mind and homesickness. They can't stand the monotony of the life and the separation from their friends."

We have lately spoken of the enormous disproportion in the list of criminals between the intelligent and the separation from their friends."
We have lately spoken of the enormous disproportion in the list of criminals between the intelligent and the separation in the list of criminals between the intelligent and the litterate classes, reckoning simply the ability to read and write as the standard of cultivation. In New England ninety-three per cent, of the inhabit ants, above the seg of ten, can pass this test. From the remaining fraction come eighty per cent of the onviotions for crime. In New York and Pennsylvania the offenses of ignorance are, to those of englatement, as seven to one, and in the country at zer as zero.
Tor prisons, then, are occupied chiefly by tenants whose habit of moral stumbling follows on their forgues, but they have not ccased to be men. What should hinder the hard fate of the expatriated solitors from overtaking them? Wherein their conditions differ it is to the disadvantage of the prisoners. We night reasonably expect to find among them, here fore, a disposition "to feed on their own girevaces, to get low and discontented, to mutiny, desert," and it our prison system, affirms the State, has not more in view the safety of society than the reformation of the criminal. The very first step toward this mend, then, would seem to have been the established of a thorough method of elementary education down unrighteeous whom the State felt compelied to shut up for the well-being of the more unright reputies and a half, ever since good Governor Peter invery-five dollars, and was forced to commit to the improvised lock-up various and sundry persons for state, who are to be taught to begin life orrested in dwas been to the state, whose have been the efforts of the improvised lock-up various and sundry persons for state, and a half, ever since good Govern

"The consequence of this neglect is not far to seek. A frightful majority of the discharged prisoners, coming out of jail as unintelligent and as little fitted for pursuits of honest industry as they went in, re-turns thither again and again, each absence being a Bighter (Google

Price of missionary activity wherein their energy makes new converts to their gospel of depravity. That even jail-bids are capable of better uses experiments are input to the second of the second of die out in minde shut in to the lowest pleasures and interest of the coarse and diseased bodies that hold then? So grat is his fear of this nightly vigil with the sposts of his evil past and wretched present that may a poor prisoner pressec out all the grease from his cant rations of meat, and, with a poor wisp of rag, makes a feelet taper which keeps off the darkness for another short half-hour. Sing has changed this or abother short half-hour. Sing has changed this even and prisoner is allowed to read till nine o'clock even appet the stand of the darkness for another short half-hour. Sing has changed this or abother short half-hour. Sing has changed prisoner is allowed to read till nine o'clock even appet the only condition being that he shall be good care of his book or paper. The prison li-bary now contains at hundred volumes, and five or sit thousand old magazines and newspapers, which have been read thread-bare. The taking away of the lamp is the heaviest punishment which can be in-ficted. "In the evening," says Warden Hubbell, "many every prisoner will be found reading, and these who could not read when they came here are even or pencil. Before we had the lamps and books and papers, the prisoners were noisy and mischierous, continually forming plans for wrong-doing; now all seen to crave the quiet hours for reading and study." We have no sentimental sympathy with criminals. The man who refuses submission to the iron-handed estizatio of society ought to be shut out of society. Inprisonment is as just as it is necessary, and it should be made so hard and unattractive that no man, storing its stern privations, will be willing to return to double make shead and value to the merives and to society; to create within them an exalted force wring them towards goodness, which shall be strong-et and the low forces that sway them towards evil-to covince them that society stops them in their textless way for their own good, and stands ready to receit them again when they are ready to accept the folon's wakened in

CATROLIC CLERGYMEN AND PUBLIC IN-STITUTIONS.

In last year's City Council there was a good deal of discussion on the subject of religion in the public in-situations, which was brought about in this way: Early in the year, a large number of prominent Cath-olics of the city presented to the Board of Directors of Public Institutions a petition, the prayer of which was to the effect that all persons in city institutions who professed the Catholic faith be allowed the ser-vices of clergymen in whom they believe. No appro-clable action was taken on this petition, and the re-plies of the Board to questions asked by the City Council were regarded by the members of the latter as very evasive and unsatisfactory. The subject was reopened, this year, by the presentation to the Board of Directors, at its meeting, last evening, of the fol-lowing petition; lowing petition :-

Ioring petition:— To the Honorable the Board of Directors of Public In-situations of the City of Boston: We, the undersigned, respectfully ask that all in-mates of institutions owned or controlled by the City of Boston may be guaranteed freedom of conscience, and that all Roman Catholic inmates who desire it may enjoy the services of a Catholic clergyman. We offer your honorable Board the following reasons: In the various penal, reformatory, and charitable Institutions of the city, a majority of the inmates are Roman Catholics, while the only religious services provided, whether for their reformation or their comport, are non-Catholic, and attendance thereon is ob-city, accident, or other ill-fortune, the denial of the practice of their religion, the chief enjoyment and solace left them in this life, is a grievance to apparent to call for any argument. In the case of Catholics, on the other hand, subjected to loss of liberty and correctional discipline for offences against society and the laws, the need is evident of whatever religious influences is for them most powerful. They are con-victs, if young, almost invariably from ignorance of their religion; if mature, certainly from ignorance of their religion; if mature, certainly from ignorance of their religing, if mature, excluding and restraining influences best adapted to them, which hiltento they have not known, or have neglected. It is a well-nown fact that, under our present system of correction, criminals are not generally or in a great degree reformed, but usually are returned again and again by the courts for punishment. It is equally well known that for Catholics no other moral or religious appeals, of any nature whatsocerer, compare in force and effect with those of their own church. The sequence of the city is a coverner whole Commonwealth in his late address to the Legislature, says much regarding penitentiary reform which bouches her chief city. Governor Washburn asys crime increases in a ratio far more apid than population; it ha prisoners should be better classified and separated, and their treatment made or only punitive but reformatory and encouraging as well; and he adds: 'We need to impress upon the oriminal that, while society restrains and punishes him, it stands ready to welcome him to liberty when the proves thisself worth of trust. We need to impress upon the oriminat that, while society restrains and punishes him, it stands ready to welcome him to liberty when the solared provide that a

THE RELIGIOUS PAPERS are discussing the proper length of sermons. In the happy times, three hun-dred years ago, sermons were ten, twenty or thirty minutes long—never longer. Then the hour-glass came in to measure them, and the preacher preached the sand out. Many pulpits were furnished with from stands for the reception of the hour-glass. One such is still existing at Compton Bassett Church, Wilts, with a fleur de lis handle for turning the glass when the sand had run out. Another, at Hurst, in Berk-shire, has a fanciful wrought from frame, with foliage of oak and ivy, and an inscription, "As this glass run-neth, so man's life passeth." At Cliffe, in Kent, lis a stand for an hour-glass on a bracket affixed to the pulpit. The parish accounts of St. Catherine, Ald-gato, contain an old entry, "Paid for an hour-glass that hangeth by the pulpit where the preacher doth make a sermon, that he may know how the hour passeth away, one shilling;" and another relates to a bequest of an "hower glass, with a frame to stand in." One preacher had archausted his saud-glass, turned it, and gone three-fourths of another running; the congregation had nearly all retired, and the clerk, ired out, andibly asked his reverend superior to lock up the church, and put the key under the door when he was done, as he (the clerk) and the few remaining auditors were going away. Hugh Peters, after preaching an hour, turned his hour-glass and said, "I know you are good fellows, so let's have another glass." Daniel Burgell, an eloquent Non-comformist divine in the early part of the last century, let his hour-glass run out while vehemently preaching against the ain of drunkenness. He reversed it, and ex-claimed, "Brethren, I have somewhat more to say on the nature and consequences of drunkenness; so let's have another glass, and then..." which, is a regular tooper's phrase. A rector of Bilbury used to preach two hours, with two turns of the glass; after the giv-ing out of the text the 'squire of the blessing. The Golden Age thinks that a sermon should be as long as the Moral Law; any leas is too little, any more is too much...-Golden Age.

Hoetry.

DEDICATORY PORM. READ AT THE OPENING OF COSMIAN HALL, PLORENCE,

MARCH 25.

BY GEORGE S. BURLEIOH.

Before the primal dawn began To whiten on the shores of night,

Jebovab's living flat ran, "Let there be light!" and there was light. High souls have caught that word sublime

And hurled it on from age to age, Where sullen darkness, woe, and crime Still crouched with muttered hate and rage.

In vain the cloven deeps of gloon Rolled back to bury and destroy; Dark worlds leapt flashing into bloom And light was life and life was joy t

Bons of the all-creative Light, Disciples of the unfolding Good, Glad warriors of the Eternal Fight Whose victories are unstained with blood,

To Him who is the Light and Life

More served by gladness than by fear This bulwark in the joyous strife, This Temple of the Heart we rear!

Wisdom and Love, with married paims,

Shall walk this consecrated Hall, And armed Truth's exulting pealm Respond to Freedom's clarion call (

To sinless mirth, and solemn thought.

To every pulse of struggling good, To God through human clay unwrought-Our manhood and our womanhood-

To life, and death, and all betwee That comes to make us pure and great, With reverent soul and gladsome mien This Temple-Home we dedicate!

NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS TO INDEX STOCK.

Mrs. F. W. Christern, Richard B. Westbrook,	New York City,	One si	liare,	$100 100
R. C. Spencer.	Milwaukee, Wis.	Two		200
R. W. Howes,	Boston, Mass.	Оле	46	106
Chas. W. Story,	Boston, Mass,	14	44	100
E. W. Meddaugh,	Detroit, Mich.	Five	84	500
Jacob Hoffner,	Cumminsville, O.	One		100
John Weise,	Boston, Mass.			100
W. C. Russel,	Ithaca, N. Y.		44	100
A. W. Leggett,	Detroit, Mich.	24		100
B. F. Dyer,	Boston, Mass.			100
James Purinton,	Lynn, Mass.	64	44	100
F. A. Nichols,	Lowell, Mass.			100
J. S. Palmer,	Portland, Me.			100
Robt, Ornalaton,	Brooklyn, N.Y.			100
Mrs. A. L. Richmond,	Lowell, Mass.			100
Mrs. Benj. Ireson,	Lynn, Mass.			100
J. E. Oliver,	Ithaca, N.Y.	. 44		100
E. H. Aldrich,	Providence, R.I.			100
Geo. L. Clark,	Providence, R.1.	68		100
W. M. Jackson,	Providence, R.I.	Two		200
Mrs. E. B. Chase,	Valley Falls, R.I.	14		100
L. F. Garvin,	Lonsdale, R.I.	One		100
James Damon,	Ipswich, Mass.	in		100
Joseph A. Barker,	Providence, R.I.	- 46		100

CASH RECEIPTS.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 2.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 2. Henry Damon, $3; Morris Altman, $4; Henry D. Dix, $3; A. M. Stayman, $1; Wrn. L. Heherling, $1:50; Nath'l Liz-tie, $5; Jullus Kirschhaum, $1; Silas W. Cuburn, 50 cents; Otto Junkormann, $1.50; Geo. H. Sterens, $1; Wm. W. Wood Ri: D. W. McLane, $3; Benj, 8. Price, $3; N. Lentz, $4; C. A. Jewett, $3; John Roherzt, $3; Chauno, A. Smith, $1; J. P. Pickering, $3; Henj, Kolbins, $3; L. P. Demerritt, $3; A. B. Swaine, $2; John Roherzt, $3; Chauno, Y. Smith, $4; J. P. Pickering, $2; Henj, Kolbins, $3; L. P. Demerritt, $3; A. B. Swaine, $2; Vm. E. Sutton, $1; S. B. Fuller, $3; Francis Alger, $3]; D'natrick, $1; Jno. Vority, $3; J. C. Clark, $1.26; Martha White, $1.60; Nath Hammar, $3; D. K. Stedman, $11.20; Daniel F. Child, $30] Werner Boecklin, $1.70; Marla E. McKaye, 30 cents; D. J. Rogers, 16 cents; D. H. Allerton, 75 cents; G. Corbin, 60 cents; D. M. Biddle, 75 cents; G. E. Corbin, 60 cents; D. M. Stadma, $12.40; J. E. Encents, Cash, $21.9; Jno. Augustus; 50 cents; J. E. B. Linton, 40 cents; A. K. Loring, $1.24; G. H. Foster, 94 cents; Cash, $21.9; Jno. Augustus; 50 cents; U. J. Kingers, $21.9; Jno. Augustus; 50 cents; J. J. Encents, 12.8; Jano, Augustus; 50 cents; J. J. Rogers, 18 cents; A. K. Loring, $1.24; G. H. Foster, 94 cents; Cash, $21.9; Jno. Augustus; 50 cents; J. J. E. Rogers, 19 cents; Mash above, and po other receipt sent unless specially requested. Persons who do not see their remittances acknowledged within hres weeks after sending, will please notify us. N. E.—Orders for Tracts or single numbers of THE IF

N. B .- Orders for Tracts or single numbers of THE IN-DEX which are not on hand will, if of small amount, be oth-erwise filled to the same amount without further police.

Digizantin Google

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION,

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Teledo Office: No. 55 MONROE STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love.

Brotherly Love. N. B.—No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contributtons will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

FEANCIS ELLING WOOD ABBOT, . Eduor. ABBAM WALTER STEVENS, Associate Editor. OCTAVICS BROOKS FROTHINGHAM, THOMAS WENTWORTH EIGGINSON, WILLIAM J. POTER, RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, WILLIAM H. SPENCER, MES. E. D. CHENEY, BEY. CHARLES VOYSEY (England), Prof. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN (England), Rev. MONCURE D. CONWAY (England), Editorial Contributors.

BOSTON, MAY 7, 1874.

SUNDAY LECTURES.-The Editors of THE INDEX will ecture occasionally on Sundays, if desired, within a convenient distance of Boston.

N.B.—Any person whose name is now on our mail-list will receive a second copy of THE IN-DEX, mailed to the same address, for a year, on pre-payment of One Dollar. This offer is made to accommodate those of our subscribers who wish to increase our circulation by sending extra copies as samples to their friends.

GLIMPSES.

HAS MAN any worse enemy than his own ignorance?

THE "CONGRESSIONAL PETITION" foots up 5,481 names in all; the "Massachusetts Petition" foots up 8,949.

THE IMPOSSIBILITY of keeping up our private correspondence will not, we trust, be construed as wilful neglect or careless indifference. Piles of important letters must still go unanswered, by reason of their number alone, and no one can regret the fact so much as we do.

A PRIVATE RECEPTION in bonor of Mr. Summer's memory was given by Mrs. Sargent on April 30, at which a fine paper was read by Mr. Weiss, and appropriate remarks were made by Dr. Bartol, the poet Whittler, Senator Schurz, Mr. Potter, Mr. C. P. Cranch, and others.

A PUBLIC MEETING in favor of the Christian Amendment to the United States Constitution was held in the Thirty-ninth Street Presbyterian Church, New York, on the evening of April 14. That despised movement manifests a visality inexplicable to most people. The last has by no means been heard of it yet.

SIGNATURES to the "Massachusetts Petition" for church-taxation have been received as follows since our last acknowledgment: From E. F. Strickland, Chelses, 44; from Eunice M. Wallis, Boston, 10; from Mrs. E. F. Newhall, Boston, 19; from Francis Fletcher, Clinton, 16; from Rev. William R. Alger, Boston, 15. Total-104.

SIGNATURES to the "Congressional Petition" for church-taxation have been received as follows since our last acknowledgment: From George M. Wood, Secretary of the Washington, D.C., Liberal League, 56; from Allen Keen, Duplain, Mich., 50; from Eunice M. Wallia, Boston, 11; from Francis Fletcher, Clinton, Mass., 18; from Mrs. E. F. Newhall, Boston, 19; from H. W. Moore, Peabody, Mass., 30; from Marcus T. Janes, Providence, RI., 32; from John Monroe, Waterford, Me., 38. Total-236.

THE LIBERAL LEAGUE of Vineland, N. J., collected not long since about one hundred names to a petition for the exclusion of the Bible from the public schools in that place. It was presented by a committee of three to the Trustees of School District, No. 44, with remarks in support of it. At the same time, however, a counter-petition with nearly one thousand signatures was also presented; and the remonstrants carried the day. Such occurrences as these have an important lesson for those who believe that the power of Orthodoxy is all undermined by the growth of liberalism.

WE HOPE that no one of our readers will fail to read with close attention the opening paper of this issue on "Compulsory Education." It is full of instruction on a subject of the utmost practical consequence, and deserves to be scattered broadcast over the land. No country that adopts the principle of atrictly universal education; for the two must stand or fall together. The facts and figures here presented ought to be studied by every lover of free institutions, and especially by every lover of freedom in religion. Where universal ignorance prevails, superstition has its impregnable stronghold; where universal intelligence is diffused, superstition finds a sofi in which it cannot grow. Speed the day when it will be impossible to discover a single illiterate person throughout the length and breadth of our country!

GENERAL CHAMBERLAIN, Warden of the Massachusetts State Prison, has honorably fulfilled his promise, made to the Second Radical Club, to exonerate Mr. Burns from the injurious charge of assisting in the escape of two prisoners from that institution, as the following card shows:--

"AMENDE HONOBABLE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE GLOBE: Sir,--I am convinced that Assistant Watchman Moore of this prison was mistaken as to the time when he states that he believes that he saw one James Burns making signals and shouting to prisoners on the 19th of February last. Also, though at the time circumstances pointed strongly towards James Burns as being accessory to the escape of Worthing and Jones, I am now satisfied that he had no knowledge of their intentions.

edge of their Intentions. S. E. CHAMBEBLAIN, Warden. Massachusetts State Prison, Warden's Office, Charlestown, April 28, 1874.

A LITTLE TWO-PAGE sheet called the Freethinker has just appeared in Eau Claire, Wisconsin, to be "published semi-occasionally" and edited by "Will" Kennedy, Secretary of the Liberal League in that place. It makes no charge for subscription at all, and seems to be a "free Will" offering to the liberal cause. The "Demands of Liberalism" and the form of local organization are published in full, together with a modest little "Salutatory," an article by Mr. B. F. Underwood entitled "George Washington an 'Infidel,'" and various paragraphs by the editor, of which the following is one: "An educated clergyman of this city says he doubts the truth of the assertion that rocks grow. But then he believes the far more improbable story that they were created out of nothing! Ah, the wondrous power of faith !" We hope the little paper will live to do good service in the agitation for more thorough separation of Church and State.

THE GREAT eulogy on Charles Sumner by Carl Schurz was given in Music Hall, Boston, on April 29, to an audience of not less than thirty-five hundred people. It was worthy of the occasion and of the man; which being said, no more remains to be said. Especially interesting was the narrative of the last three years of the great Senator's life, embracing the period of his painful disagreement with his own party in the presidential campaign of 1872. It was a magnificent vindication of his motives and spirit, made all the more impressive by the fact that Mr. Schurz stood shoulder to shoulder with Mr. Sumner during the whole struggle. At the time, notwithstanding our great veneration for Charles Summer, we could not follow his lead, and under the circumstances should undoubtedly vote again as we then voted; but we rejoice to remember now that our confidence in him as a man never wavered for an instant, and that we shared to the full the indignation of his followers when Thomas Nast, the Preston S. Brooks of 1872, made his pencil the bludgeon of a foul and villainous assault upon the "whitest soul" that ever shone in the Senate of the United States. The explanation given by Mr. Schurz of the famous battle-flag resolution threw new light, at least to our own mind, upon the real object of that measure; and we confess that he changed our opinion concerning it. In THE IN-DEX of September 18, 1873, as also before, we expressed an earnest hope that Massachusetts would repeal her wretched censure resolution before it was too late; and this we did while still disapproving the course proposed by Mr. Sumner with reference to the flags. But now we acknowledge our own misjudgment of that course. Sumner was not only pure in his motive, but right in his proposal; and the national army flags ought indeed to bear no record of civil conflict to gall the proud spirit of the Southern soldiers who may yet be called to defend them with their blood. Let the State flags, torn and stained, still bear the names of the victories over which they floated, and be sacredly cherished ; but let the national flags be symbols of a people reunited in heart as well as in government.

"NATURAL" AND "CHHISTIAN" MOBAL

The Churchman (published, we believe, in New York City by the Episcopalians) was recently quoted as follows in one of the leading Boston dailles, with reference to the Eighth Demand of Liberalism:-

"Nothing will satisfy this but the enactment of universal license. For Christian morality must be taken out of natural morality. That is just what he 'Demand' number eight amounts to, and not only Christian morality but Jewish morality as well, since the two are inseparably combined. Heathen morality—in other words, immorality, that which has no affinity to or share in the Christian code—is the only basis of the new law. Now this has been once tried and partly carried out, and the French Revolution gave the experiment a fair chance. That was The INDEX platform put in practice. And there is something as absurd as it is plitable for a sheet which faunts such a profession in the public face to be caling for more liberty. Toleration goes to its utmost. Bermissible verge when it permits the existence of THE INDEX."

Who or what is it that presumes to "tolerate" THE INDEX? The State or the Church? If this insolent critic replies, "The State," we would tell it that the State no more "tolerates" THE INDEX than it does the Churchman, but recognizes the equal right of both papers to speak their own convictions without censorship or supervision. If it replies, "The Church," we tell it that the Church is powerless either to "toler-ate" or not to "tolerate" THE INDEX, over which (thanks to the so-called infidels who founded this government on the right of free thought and free speech) it has no more authority or control that it has over the internal affairs of Egypt or Siam. Doubtless, if the Churchman, or the Church Itself, had the least power to exercise jurisdiction over the public press, THE INDEX would have been torn to pieces long ago. But until it re-acquires such power, we remind the Churchman that the savage growl of the tiger behind the bars of his cage strikes no terror into the spectator's heart, and simply advertises the fact of his own deserved captivity. Let the Churchman gnaw its bone in peace, and thank its stars that the possibility of caging it has preserved it hitherto from the huntsman's bullet. It is a very respectable tiger in point of temper and claws; but the safety and equal freedom of all "permit its existence" only in the menagerle.

But what opacity of perception is betrayed in the above comments on Christian and natural morality! Morality is a science, or it is nothing. It is grounded on natural laws cognizable by human reason, or else it is the arbitrary enactment of a usurping institution. In a recent lecture on "Scientific Ethics," we have shown what we meant by "natural morality" in the Demands of Liberalism. Whether it is synonymous with "universal license," the intelligent may decide for themselves. The Churchman jumps to the conclusion that everything taught by Christian morality must be stricken out of natural morality; whereas we showed that the Golden Rule is an unscientific but substantially correct statement of what, scientifically stated, is the doctrine of primary rights and dutles. All that is true in Christian morals is recognized and re-asserted in scientific ethics; but, while the latter winnows out the wheat from the chaff of Christian morals and preserves it all, it also garners a vast harvest raised in fields which Christianity never tilled. It is immeasurably more than a mere eclectic, patching up a new system from fragments of old ones,-it is the philosophical reduction of isolated precepts, which is all that the historic religions have to give, to universal principles which not only set these precepts in wholly new lights, but are fruitful of new ones of great importance.

For instance, what basis in Christian morals is therefor the principle that society has no right to interfere with the liberty of any individual, except to preserve the maximum degree of liberty for all individuals? This principle lies at the foundation of all truly republican lustitutions; yet Christianity has never got beyond the Golden Rule, which simply prescribes (with the very uncertain test of subjective desire) the "Do relative rights of individuals to each other. unto others as ye would that others should do unto you"-that is, as you would like that others should do unto you. Has Christian morality any broader precept than that, imperfect as it is, and capable of great abuse as is the standard it sets up? Surely the grand conception of equal rights, independent of all likes or dislikes, is an immense advance upon it! And when this conception of equal rights as between individuals leads to the still larger conception of each individual's right to be free from all control by soclety, except so far as the equal rights of all other individuals require such control, does not the vast superiority of scientific ethics to Christian ethics become patent to all? We affirm unqualifiedly that the Christian gospel has no teachings whence the idea of republicanism, of universal liberty, of the indefeasible rights of all mankind, can be legitimately derived. These are fundamental ideas of modern morality; and it is neither more nor less than preposterous to refer their origin to a state of society in which they did not exist. The obscurest Abolitionist occupied bigher moral ground than the founder of the Christian religion, to whom slavery did not, so far as the records show, appear an evil at all. Sentimental or traditional or sectarian prejudice may ignore such thoughts as these for a long time to come; but they are certain to be valued at their true worth at last.

Planara to GOOGLE

222

4

2

It is not necessary to go beyond the conception of "positive morality" itself, declared in all ages by the Church to be the foundation of all its moral teaching, to see how immeasurably inferior its teaching is to the teaching of scientific ethics. "Positive morality" is the ethical law proclaimed by some mediator between God and man, directly authorized by God to do so on the ultimate eanction of the Divine Will alone. The Jews held Moses to be such an authoritative lawgiver; and the Christians have universally held Jeaus, the "Christ," to be another. Hence the moral precepts announced by Moses and Jesus have ed as the direct utterances of God, laying down DaAB ("positive" comes from ponere) the law to all mankind without appeal. Although individual theologians have seen clearly the danger of referring moral law, as such, to the Divine Will as its ultimate ground, yet the collective voice of the Church, as well as the private soul of the believer, has always taken the "revealed Will of God" as the supreme law of man; and, in Christian eyes, to appeal from this "revealed Will of God" to human reason has always appeared as the rankest implety. "Thy Will be done !" is the profoundest utterance of Christian faith; and the conception of "positive morality" rests on it exclusively.

But scientific ethics know nothing of "will," human or divine; they constitute a science, as independent as mathematics, and, like mathematics, conversant with necessary relations only. Will did not create moral obligation; will does not impose it. It exists by the necessity of things, so soon as intelligent beings come into mutual relations. Scientific ethics, therefore, rest on the necessary nature of things, and not on any will, revealed or unrevealed. This is not to teach atheism, directly or indirectly; but it does show how the atheist may be as highly and purely moral as the theist-which is a fact. The theist (if of the scientific order) holds that God is absolutely holy because his will is absolutely conformed to the nature of things, and not because his will creates it; that the conditions of being are absolute, depending on no will whatever; and that morality is the science which deals with the absolute conditions under which all moral beings as such, including God himself, exist. From such a conception as this, it is impossible to deduce any "positive morality" in the Christian sense of the words; and it is a conception wholly foreign to Christian thought, as expressed in the great creeds and formulas of the Church. But it is the only conception by which moral teachings can be made amenable to human reason,-the only conception, therefore, which rationalism can accept as the true groundwork of human society. And it is this fundamental conception which is the justification of the eighth Demand of Liberalism.

FREE RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION.

The SEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING of the Free Religious Association is to be held in Boston on the 28th and 29th of May. The meeting will open with a session for business and addresses on Thursday evening, the 28th, at 7 3-4 o'clock, in Horticultural Hall (lower). At this session the following Amendments to the Constitution are to be acted upon :--

1. In the statement of the objects of the Association in the First Article, to change the phraseology so as to read thus: "Its objects being to promote the practical interests of pure religion, to increase fellowship in the spirit, and to encourage the scientific study of man's religious nature and history."

2. To change the number of Directors, now limited by the Second Article to "six," so that the number shall be "not less than six nor more than ten."

On Friday, the 29th, there will be sessions for essays and addresses, forenoon and afternoon, in the upper Horticultural Hall, and a Social Festival in the evening at the new Parker Memorial Hall.

Interesting topics are to be discussed by able speakers,—of which further particulars will be given hereafter. WILLIAM J. POTTER, Secretary.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

We radicals are so liable to undervalue the practical work done by the organized Church, and so apt especially to set down the costly New York churches as mere places of fashionable display, that we need to ponder the lesson conveyed by such statements as the following, in regard to the actual work done by a single one of these organizations. Making all allowance for the fact, often mentioned in THE INDEX, that the Church naturally controls the money-bags of the eminent sinners, while the sinners make more money by being thus associated with the Church,-yet, after all, there is no denying the immense amount of work that can be got out of men by organizing the religious sentiment. The Church rarely leads in any new reform, but it is undoubtedly a magnificent engine for systematizing and enforcing the common charities. It is like a savings bank, which does not originate great business enterprises, but admirably combines and utilizes the common savings. The following is the record, the church in question being that of Rev. S. H. Tyng, Jr., and his methods and successes being in great part imitated from those of his father, Rev. Stephen Higginson Tyng, D.D., also of New York city, whose statistics of achievement are quite as remarkable. T. W. H.

"Rev. Stephen H. Tyng, Jr., occupied his new Church of the Holy Trinity, on Madison Avenue, last Sunday. Its cost has been something over $200, 000, and the edifice ranks with the finest in the city. During the ten years' rectorship of Mr. Tyng, his society has been notably prolific of good works, having contributed for parleh and benevolent purposes over $650,000. Even with the heavy expense of church building, $50,000 have been distributed in charities, the past year. The communicants of the church number 1,300, and the Sunday-school has on its roll the names of 1,503 children. The ways in which the church conducts its charities are numerous. It has a medical dispensary, employing a dozen physiclans, which has succored 6,000 sick people; it conducts a kindergarten, several "homes" of one kind or another, an orphanage, five mission chapels, six Sundayschools, and various industrial schools, besides running a reformatory farm near Sing-Sing. Altogether, the Church of the Holy Trinity is one of the most successful and thoroughly organized dispensers of benevolence of any in the country."—Springfield Republicam.

LONDON LETTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX :

Sir,--I have lately been preaching on the so-called "Resurrection of Jesus Christ," maintaining that, even if the reappearances of Jesus after his crucifixion be true, the proof of his actual death on the cross is yet wanting. In fact, the more circumstantial and authanticated the reappearances (as recorded in the gospels) the less ground there is for belief in the resurrection.

In the course of my argument, I could not help noticing the great wrong done to man by Jesus not showing himself to Pilate, and to Caiaphas, and to all the people, if he really rose from the dead. On the hypothesis of his mere recovery from a swoon or trance, it was the most natural thing to do to get away in secret, and disguised, and only to appear after nightfall, or in solitary places, and among his chosen friends. It was also prudent and right not to risk a second encounter with the authorities. But if he were God as well as man, and really rose from the dead, it was an act of cruelty not to enlighten the people who had ignorantly put him to death; an act of cruelty to withhold testimony on such a vital question, when it could have been so easily, so triumphantly, given.

This argument has excited the wrath of one of my correspondents, who leaves me in doubt whether he is an Atheist or a Swedenborgian; from his last letter, I almost conclude that he is the latter.

The questions put by him to me in refutation of my arguments have probably occurred already to many minds; and I thought I could kill two birds with one stone if I sent a reply to him through THE INDEX, sinongst the readers of which some might be interested in the confronteration.

ested in the controversy. His first question is: "If a Christ raised from the dead ought to have so paraded himself as to have set tled the minds of all men as to the fact of resurrection from the dead, then I ask you what ought the God you profess to do in the same matter?"

I understand this to imply that God is as much to blame as Christ was in withholding proof of a resurrection, if there be one to prove.

To this I reply, that, if the Christian theory be true, the Supreme God, being a party to the transaction, would be quite as much to blame as Christ. In fact, this is one of the strong arguments against Christianity; namely, that it involves conceptions of God's conduct and character which are immoral.

But the God in whom I believe did not come before the world with the pretensions of Christ (whether made by or for him does not affect the argument). God never appeared on earth revealing Himself to man, or enlightening man as to his duty or destiny. Never has He made any pretence or given any pledge of such revelation ; and though man is hungering and thirsting for truth about the unseen world, it does not involve any-the least-derogation from the goodness of God that he refuses to lift the vell which hides these mysteries from human sight. If He thinks it best for man that he should find out these truths for himself-by ever so long and tedious a process,-surely there is no immorality in refusing to work miracles to enlighten us. But Christ is supposed to have come into the world with the express object of revealing God and unfolding our destiny. The Christians boast that he "brought life and immortality to light." If that was so, his refusal to do his work thoroughly was immoral; and his leaving the world still in the dark was an act of injustice and cruelty.

We are far from affirming that God can prove to us His own existence or our immortality, in the present state of our faculties; any more than he could make us, as we are, to live in the sun. It is much more consistent with reason to suppose that we could not be made to understand the nature of God, or spirit, or the hoped-for future life. So we have no reproaches to hurl at our Maker for our ignorance and darkness, provided only that our aspirations be at length gratified.

My correspondent goes on to say: "Dare you go to God and ask why He suffers this bugbear Christianity to predominate in the world? Ask Ilim why He does not that which you plainly intimate the Christian Christ could and should have done nineteen hundred years back?..., You speak of 'poor souls struggling to find God.' Why (I repeat) does He suffer them so painfully to struggle?"

To all this I can only say it is in the highest degree consistent with true goodness and with Divine Love to allow pain and suffering of mind and body, if they are to result in benefits otherwise unattainable.

Many of us are already aware by experience that some pains and sufferings improve the character and ennoble the sufferers; and we are willing to give our God credit for good intentions and for knowing what He is about.

We should cease to be men, but should become quite different beings, if all the errors and falsehoods of the world were to be swept out of our faith, for us, instead of by our own earnest and honest toll and investigation.

We do not need any Christ to come here and pretend to tell us all about God and heaven and immortality, and then, just as we think we are going to have the problems solved, to have the curtain fall and the lights put out. This is mere trifling with most sacred things,—trifling absolutely immoral, and therefore not even to be believed of Jesus, our fellow-man, who, whatever he was, was no juggler, nor hypocrite, nor dissembler.

That he did not do what, under the falsely-conceived Christian theory, he might have been expected to do, as a kind and truthful being, proves that theory to be false. And as we refuse to believe that God would be a party to any such ignoble transaction, so we hold that He is by no means morally bound to interfere in any way with man's own development, with man's detection of his own errors, or with man's acquisition of higher truth.

I am, sir, very truly yours, CHARLES VOYSEY. CAMPEN HOUSE, Dulwich, April 15, 1874.

WE HAVE heard of the Christian Sabbath, and the Javieh Sabbath, and the Sabbath of the Seventh Day Baptists, and various other kinds of Sabbaths, and now we have seems to be a bran new one, brought to our attention by an evening co-temporary, called the American Sabbath. Precisely what are the features, characteristics, or requirements, of this new institution, we are not informed with any definiteness, but we infer it to be a device by which the opinions, consciences, habits, and customs, of all classes of people and all nationalities, are to be squared and reguated by those of one nationality. If American means anything in this connection, it must mean that. We trust the time is not far distant, when they will all be superseded by a Lord's Sabbath, which will include the whole week, and wherein it will be understood as another, and that it is just as necessary to do good, and be good, and do no wrong, on the whole seven days, as on only one of them.—Milwaukee Daily Neuse.

Distinged by Google

Communications.

N. B.—Correspondents must run the risk of typographical errors. The winnost care will be taken to avoid them; but bereafter no space will be spared to Errata. N. B.—Articles for this department should be SHORT, and written only on one side of the shoet.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH IN BRAZIL.

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

Yours truly, Sr. Louis, April 10, 1874.

"THE GROUND OF THEISM: A DIALOGUE."

<text><text><text><text><text><text>

sn awful cheam between the finite and the Infinite that no sweep of thought can cross. Everett hints that thought and will are the two poles of our being. Is not hought the pole that concerns itself with the finite, and will that which leaps into the Infinite? By acts of will I do not mean simply conscious acts; I think the will acts beneath the consciousness, and that many of our intuitive beliefs, so-called, are acts of will that take place beneath the consciousness. Perhaps this is the case with your belief in the infini-tude of time and apace. You unconsciously will it. Excuse my presumption. I am only trying after the truth. My thought is not clear and decisive. Much of what I say is guess-work. Is not that the way all round? Do Hamilton and Hegel do anything more than guess?

more than guess? I believe in faith only so far as it is warranted by science. Are we radically at swords' points? Ever yours, S. P. PUTNAM.

OMAHA, Neb.

We find it impossible to be "at swords' points" with any one who is so transparently seeking to discover truth. But to consider the metaphysical problems above propounded is impracticable in these pages, which are not the place for such a treatment of them as could alone prove satisfactory. So far as the objectivity of space and time are concerned, we can only refer to a long article on "The Philosophy of Space and Time" in the North American Review for July, 1864. Further, to prove that the image-forming faculty (imagination) is distinct from the faculty which apprehends relations as such (intellect or reason) would require a treatise on psychology, not a brief note. Hence we must be content to leave the subject as it now stands .- ED.]

PAITH NEVER THE PRODUCT OF THE WILL

WILL. Entron of THE INDEX:— The dialogue on "The Ground of Theism," in THE INDEX of January 15, called vividly to my mind a struggle of my own a few years ago. I had lost my faith in the God of Orthodoxy. In the Interval between the loss of my old faith and the incoming light of a new faith, during which time I read books on positivism, spiritualism, and material-ism, I discovered that I could not will myself to be-lleve anything. All attempts were useless. It was value to me, teaching me a very different method of procedure from any I had followed before. For when I learned that belief was not a matter of volition, but an affect of evidence, perception (internal and exter-nal), and knowledge, which no effort of the will could destroy, then did I appreciate as never before the that 'doubt is sin, and disbelief is damnation." Some of my good Orthodox friends declared that I was "in the briers of unbellef." It seemed to me that faith (or none) which should come to me nat-wrany of the singed to escape from a night of black darkness to feel no lashing of conscience, or misery arising from an ignorant fear lest it might be errong to be in honest doubt, --wrong, wicked, depraved, to stay in that doubt until some intelligent help came to my relief. My friends repeated the hymn com-mencing— "Bind unbellef is sure to err."

"Blind unbelief is sure to err;"

but they could see no danger in blind belief. Danger or no danger, however, I could not "go it blind;" my will-power being of no service to me in this emeror no danger, however, I could not "go it blind;" my will-power being of no service to me in this emer-gency. But in losing faith in the God of Jewish history,—a God of "flerce wrath and indignation,"—a God who was "angry with the wicked every day,"—who once saw that "everything he had made was very good," and soon after "repented him that he had made man on the earth,"—a God who had possibly "predestined me to eternal damnation for his own honor and glory,"—in losing my faith in this God, I had by no means ceased to believe in an infinite, all-pervading Power, giving life to all that lives. If I turned to the flowers in my garden, the ques-tion would come almost antibly, "Whence this infi-nite beauty and perfection, and the wonderful geomet-rical precision in the repetition of numbers in their formation?" No wonder that Plato said, "God geometrizes" I The question was not satisfactorily answered to me, when I was told that there was a law of order,—that Nature did all this. I could as soon doubt the beart-throbs of love for the little child in my arms as doubt an infinite source of love; as soon doubt the existence of the flowers before me as to assign their life to some law of Nature, and in the same breath deny an Infi-nite Power, and in the same breath deny an Infi-nite Power, and in the repression of a life to some law of Nature, and in the remease a law of satistic store of reason, I found no protest of the intellect storng enough to unsettle me. My ignorance may have been my blias, but there was no fear that further knowledge would destroy my faith. It was with the greatest pleasure that I read, in the "dialogue" referred to, the expression, "I believe in God because my intellect is satisfied of his exist-ence,—brcause science (which is simply the applica-tion of intellect to Nature) has built up, at least in my own mind, a new faith which follows thought, and does not go before it." While no two individuals ever had precisely the same faith, the above quotation converys to my mind perfectly the and while with every cycle of progress the expression of that faith may change, yet the idea will remain. What a refutation of that hard, hard saying, "He that increase the knowledge increase the sorrow"! Most cordially, then, do I accept that principle of Free Religion which affirms "the supremacy of sel-ence in matters of belief;" for, knowing that acience is not limited to the physical (or material), but com-prehends the spiritual as well, I can say with Job, "I know that my vindicator liveth," the vindicator of my faith; and science will yet demonstrate that the in-ternal promptings are the operations of a law of the Infinite, a ceaseless method of the divine economy for human elevation. Only a word more. A modern seer has defined for human elevation. Only a word more. A modern seer has defined "essential faith" as "the revelation and reconciliation of spirit to itself; an objective manifestation of what is subjective and natural to the spirit of man." Only that faith, then, which is natural to the spirit of man can lead him to "spiritual oneness with the Infinite One."

11

My faith, then, leads me inevitably to the belief that the following, a beautiful translation of a Rus-sian piece, of the seventeenth century, gives us a real inspiration :-

"Thou Spirit of my spirit, and my God! The light, Thy love, in their bright plenitude, Filled me with an immortal scul, to spring Over the abyss of death; and bade it wear The garments of cternal day, and wing Its heaven; flight beyond this little sphere, Even to its source—to Thee—its Author there!"

W. F. P.

NEW OBLEANS, LA.

WOMAN'S SERVICES AND BIGHTS.

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

Demoids Google

224

NATURE AND HUMANITY

a soldiers' hospital, for we had one in Augusta through the war,—Augusta being the post where most of the Maine regiments rendezvoused before be-ing called to the front. I know something of the de-mands and adjuncts of war, and that the rebellion never would have been crushed, if it had not been for the ready and efficient aid of women. Judging by the past, if war should ever disturb our country again I don't believe that women will be one whit behind men in patriothem and devotion. But war is an abnormal condition of a civilized nation. "Let us have peace." Let us unfurl the banner of peace, the banner of equal rights, the banner of prog-reas, and hail it to the mast of the highest enterprise and the truest endeavor.

peace, the bainler of evaluation is the bander of prog-reas, and nail it to the mask of the highest enterprise and the truest endeavor. "C. P." states that "suffrage is based on personal liability to the State." I grant it. But are there not diversities of gifts—of qualifications—of ability? In time of peace, physical force is not in excessive de-mand in a State. Not many of the inhabitants are sherifs; not many are wardens; not many are mar-shals; not many areve as policemen. When Mr. Sim-mons was nominated by the President to the office of Collector, what a no of unfitness went up from Bos-ton! If that same Mr. Simmons had been nominated for Chief-Justice of the United States, would not a wo have been thundered from Mains to California? So, in all the departments of the body politic, persons are, or ought to be, selected with a view to fitness; and if each sex has its appropriate development, the built will not unsex nor degrade woman in satisfying the reasonable demands of the State. A government peril.

In this hold based on reason and more in reverse in great peril. A few weeks since there was a revival preacher, Earle, in Angusta, who requested that the public schools be dismissed, that the scholars might come to his meetings and get converted. The schools were dismissed by order of one or more of the directors. I can tell "C. P." that there are interests at stake in this country which require something beside physical force. Government should exist for one end, and one alone; the good, the safety, and the rights of all. I should think that "C. P." might acknowledge some obligation to his mother, sister, and wife, if he has them; certainly he has had a mother whom he would honor, as well as himself, by declaring that woman ought to become the social, intellectual, and political equal of man.

has them; certainly he has had a mother whom he would honor, as well as himself, by declaring that woman ought to become the social, intellectual, and political equal of man. I say social equal, because you will not have to go outside of your own city, Boston, to see that the laws discriminate. In the annual report of 1873, the Chief of Police, Edward H. Savage, says of night-walkers: "The great injustice and moral wrong which char-acterize the administration of the law, in the case of this class of friendless, misguided, and unfortunate females, is repugnant to all the better feelings of hu-manity; and it is not well understood how an act committed by one sex, under temptations and in-ducements held out by the other, can be criminal on the part of the social quantifiable on the part of the sodneer. Why a law so unequal and so unjust should be suffered to disgrace our statute books is a question remaining unanswered." Suffrage is a trust, and it is the duty of woman to assume that trust. Ough the to have less concern than man in the laws that regulate social questions? I say intellectual equal, because, while the best in-stitutions of learning in the land are closed against woman, she cannot have that knowledge imparted to her which her faculties demand. She, like man, is an organic being, with powers of expansion and capac-ties of development. She ought to have a chance to develop her mind to the highest culture. The ballot is the guarantee of equal opportunity in a republic. Let woman have the ballot, and the bighest institu-tion of the land will be thrown open to ber, and she will not only he allowed, but invited and encouraged, to compete with men for the prizes for noble service in science, in art, in jurisprudence, in politics, in re-ligion, and achieve for herself a grand personal inde-pendence.

Pendence. I say political equal, because I see all around me and everywhere injustice done to woman because she is not included in the governing class. I see it in the action of a majority of the school committee of your city. Shame on the stolidity that would keep women from their place and work, when the people are call-ing loudly for more able and efficient service for the schools of Boston! The action of Boston!

schools of Boston! The politics of the State and the nation need moral reinforcement, and, as it is conceded that woman is more conscientious than man, she might become an important factor in the government, might become a strong ally in the right direction. She might carry into politics the great precept which the ancient sages carried into morals, Follow Nature. While helpings the government to rise to a higher plane of usefulness to humanity, she would be benefitting herseld in many ways, but chiefly in giving her the conscious-ness of her own worth, which government has done <sup>10</sup> much to suppress.

here of her own worth, which government has usue so much to suppress. My letter is a lready too long; but I cannot dismise the subject without saying a word directly to "J. H. A.," the third person in the Trinity. "Thirty years" seems a long time to wait for woman suffrage. But it is a consolation to me that in all the ages the predictions of false prophets have failed. Jonah was a notable instance. As we look back, through the lapse of time, it seems very foolish in Jonah to be so angry with the Lord, and declare that it was better for him. "to die than to live" because the Lord would not destroy the city of Nineveh to fulfil his (Jonah's) insane prediction. Who can hinder woman having the ballot? Who Issane prediction. Who can hinder woman having the ballot? Who can seize the wheel-spokes of destiny, and say to the spirit of the times, "Turn back, I command thee?" PATIENCE COMMONSENSE.

AUGUSTA, Maine, March 21, 1874.

There is a vast difference between the actions of Nature and human ideals of conduct. This differ-ence, vast as it is, is less than it was, and probably will diminish in the future, until a reconciliation is strained. attained.

will diminish in the future, until a reconciliation is stained. Humanity wants protection from the consequences of ignorance, charity for wrong-doing, and merey for weakness; and none of these things do we see in Nature around us. We see the strong conquering the weak, the cunning outstripping the simple, and the fittest, not the noblest, surviving. Now, the un-the fittest, and the former suffer, while the latter enjoy. We may as well face the fact that much evil exists, apparently without compensation; there may be compensation, and we may hope there is; but, if we do not see it, why not say just that? Many suppose that by discarding religion they are doing well; but religion in the main is founded on human nature and experience. There may be no God nor devil, heaven nor hell; but there are, in our present stage of evolution, what correspond to these things. The trouble is not so much with religion as with the facts it interprets. What is the devil but the evil we can see no balance for? What is the be-lief in a future state but the expression of dissatisfac-tion with the present modes of government, and the hope therefrom arising, that they shall be adjusted according to our notions in time? Now, as we must first recognize that we are in and of universal Nature, we must see that the attempt to

Now, as we must first recognize that we are in and of universal Nature, we must see that the attempt to judge it as if we were outside of it is absurd; and conclude that, if our ideals of human actions and our observations of the actions of Nature are not in manual the must be actions of Nature are not in conclude that, if our ideals of human actions and our observations of the actions of Nature are not in accord, it must be because of incomplete correspondence between man and his environment, which shall gradually disappear with evolution.

 It may be that our complaints originate in what Herbert Spencer might call a "human bias," human bits is interests against all else, and desires a special advantage which it does not get, and which it shall cease to desire as it grows wiser. Again: we of this generation profit in some respects by what cost our predecessors apparently unbalanced lill; and we pay for it by enduring the like in favor of future men, who may utilize us as examples, if they cannot as models.
 The gradual harmonization of ideals and facts is marked in our day by the decline of faith in altruism, and the increase of faith that, as the interests of the unit are what he best knows, the following of them is productive of best results to the whole.
 MONTREAL, Canada.

MONTREAL, Canada.

"THE NAME" AGAIN.

"THE NAME? AGAIN. I have read your inquiries at the end of my short article on "The Name," I proposed five queries which neither you nor any one else seems to care to answer. You propose two queries to me. I will try properly to answer both. Ist. "Would our correspondent have advised the Free Religious Association to dub itself 'The Men' at the start?" To this I answer: this is not a correct question. Your correspondent was not a coucher at the birth of, nor did he have the honor to stand in any way as sponsor for, the newborn infant. But I would not advise any society to "dub itself" by any name that could by any possibility have a sectarian signifi-cance. Is the Free Religious Association free from this? "The Illin?" is, so far as I can see, perfectly free in its significance from any sectarian bias what-ever. I would urgently advise all men to be Illini. Humanity in its highest elevation has no bigher goal to which to point. In its lowest depths, with the ever. I would urgently advise all men to be llimi. Humanity in its highest elevation has no higher goal to which to point. In its lowest depths, with the shackles of superstition, vice, and consequent degra-dation repressing it, yet still it raises its fetters to-ward God, and claims the indefeasible right of man-hood. You hear the vilest criminals claiming that they are men. You hear the veriest slaves of vice and passion claiming the same divine heritage. Man-hood is the goal to which the highest aspirations of the Christian, the Brahmin, the Buddhist, the Mas-hometan, the Pagan, all aspire. The Human is this planet's expression of the Divine. 2d. "How can it (the Free Religious Association) now modify its name so as to merit his unqualified approval?" I answer: this does not seem to me to be the best form of inquiry. It may not be a matter of any importance to the Free Religious Association whether I approve its name and objects or not. But as it is one of the foremost and most urgent advo-cates for the regard and support of the votaries of truth pure and simple, it is a matter of the last im-portance that it should come before them without the smeant the Free Religious? Dyou thus portance that it should come before them without the smell of sectarian fire on its garments. Do you thus present the Free Religious Association? Religion is one of the qualities of a fully developed man. Without it he cannot be a full, true man. Therefore it is an adjunct of, or, if you please, one of the elements in, true manhood. Shall we name the whole by a part? I walt for your answer. E. H. B.

[The name of the Free Religious Association was selected with a special intention to avoid sectarianlsm, and no name seems less easily pervertible to sectarian uses. The name "Illini" would soon have be come as sectarian as any other, in addition to being pedantic and unintelligible. We entirely sympathize with our correspondent's desire to escape the slightest taint of sectarianism; and our interest in the Free Religious Association is due to this very desire. Practically, every association must have some name; and its name must soon become identified with its purposes and spirit. Our correspondent does not seem to consider the impossibility of preventing any name whatever from being thus colored in the popular mind, and therefore becoming applicable to only a part of the race. Certainly it is a pitiable spirit of injustice that insists on discerning sectarianism in an association which was founded to abolish it and consecrated from the start to the broadest and most comprehensive humanity. We repeat, what name can our correspondent suggest that would not at once be as open to objection on this score as the name of the Free Religious Association ?- ED.]

"LAW AND LOVE."

may see the unscent and, uneducated, without meson. Now I am an old man, uneducated, without meson. What shall I do? The Church is a usurpation; "The Book" to me is but a book, and I find myself slone in the midst of uncertainty. In despair, I turn to my own soul. What is the anseen, the unknown force? Sweetly comes the answer, "Goodness-the Good. Goodness is power, goodness is wisdom, goodness is life, goodness is power, goodness is wisdom, goodness is life, goodness is power, goodness is wisdom, goodness is life, goodness is power, goodness is wisdom, goodness is life, goodness is power, goodness is wisdom, goodness is life, goodness is power, goodness is wisdom, and do good in my own way, and encourage all others to be good and do good in their own way. While I maintain my own free-dom, I will respect the freedom of all others. And this is what I mean by Free Religion. HENEY PALPHIAMAND. CANTON, Pa., April 22, 1874.

ONE of the lachrymose and surface-agitated relig-lous journals—the Evangelist, of New York,—as usual on such occasions, prints this wretched stuff pertinent to the death of Sonator Sumner:— "We must confess to a feeling of pain as we read the story of his last hours, not for anything that he said, but for what he did not say and apparently did not feel. For some hours before he ceased to breathe he knew that the end was near. His friends were around his bedside, and the dark shadow was coming over him. And yet, in that awful hour, when the around his bediside, and the dark shadow will coming over him. And yet, in that awful hour, when the earth was sinking away beneath his feet, and the cur-tain was about to rise on the great future, and usher him into a state of being compared with which all the interests of this world are so mean and small, he could tain was about to rise on the great future, and taster bim into a state of being compared with which all the interests of this world are so mean and small, he could think only of his literary fame, and regret that he had not lived to complete the edition of his works. It is a last confession of personal vanity and littleness that we wash we had been spared in the memory of the de-parted. Not so died Daniel Webster. When the last hour drew near, as he lay on his bed at Marshfield, futtering between life and death, and sometimes whispering 'I still live!' as if to assure himself that he had not crossed the dark river, his mind went back to his childhood and the prayers and hymns he had learned at his mother's knee, and he was heard mur-mying, 'Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff, they comfort me.' And so, once more a child again, and learning on an Al-mighty arm, he went down into the dark valley. Would that we had some such parting word from Summer! And yet we cannot doubt that, like his friend Agassiz, if he spoke not much of these things, he believed in an Almighty Creator and in the great the do day by day in all that was high in aspiration and noble in purpose,-compared disdvantageously with God day-by-day in all that was high in aspiration and noble in purpose,-compared disdvantageously with God day-by-day in all the daw a profession of that of which his whole life had been a consplexous litu-stration. Before editors of "religions" journals indite fapeloodle, they should inquire into the private char-acter of some of their herces. -Commonwealth.

Is THIS OLD? If not, it is neat. It is told of twe members of the New South Wales Legialature, by the Melbourne Herald: These wiseacres were arguing in the Parliament refreshment room, when the follow-ing colloquy ensued: First member: "You blow about edication! Wby, I don't believe as how you ever had two penn'orth of schoolin' in your life." Second member: "I knows more about it nor you do anyway. Why, I don't believe you can repeat the Lord's Prayer!" First member: "I'm game to bet a fiver I can, come now." Second member: "Done; either side, the second member remarked: "Now, then, begin." First member: "I believe in God, the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth, and in'"- Second member: "That'll do. You're won the money, but I'm blessed if I thought you knew it."-London Spectator.

Google

BAPHS 1

Advertisements.	GOOD PHOTOG
THE PATRONAGE of the liberal advertising public is respect- fully solicited for The INDEX. The attempt will be honestly made to keep the advertis- ing pages of Tat Stroks. The attempt will be represent the principles, and thus to furnish to have the principles, and thus to furnish to have a stroke the period generation which also worthy of their most generations, but also worthy of their most generation of the stroke advertising the hold "advertisements all quack adver- tisements, and all advertisements believed to be fraudulent or unjust to any one, will be excluded from these columns. No cuts will be admitted. The ENDER The Stroke mark not be held responsible will in all cases accept the responsibility for wheir own statements.	LEADING INDEX W. Including O, B, FEOTHINGHAM, T. W. HIGGINSON, W. J. POTTER, W. H. SPENCEE, F. W. NEWMAN, CHAS. VOYSI A. W. STI F. E Are now for sale at the office of 1 and will be mailed postpaid to on receipt of price. Single Ph cents each; complete Set of 1
ADVERTISING RATES. For 1 to 12 Insertions, 10c per line. (13 (125 (1 8 (1 1) (126 (5 1 (1 6 6 (1 (1) (152 (1 5 (1 6 (1))))))))))))))))))))))))))))))))	graphs, $1.50. Address, THE No. 1 Tremont Place, Bo

On half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

CIRCULATE | Circulate | | Circu-fed when your petition is a yard long, unless you have asked every one to sign it. Get good, influ-ential names.

GET EVERYBODY.

Don't neglect to show the polition to any one, ecause he is a stockholder in some church, or ther exempted property, as many such persons dmit the justice of the demand; and those who ill not should be made to take the responsibility rill not should be made to take the responsibility of refusing to sign it. Don't delay! We want the petitions returned arly.

Per order of EXEC. COMM. of the BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON, has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX.

A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Rational Religion.

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public utterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and best matured thought of the age on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the ancial and political amelloration of society.

It is edited by FRANCIS E. ABBOT, assisted by ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of Editorial Contributora :-

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, B.I.

WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverhill, Mass. RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England.

PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng. Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX. se the best popular exponent of Religious Liberalism. Every Christian minister, and every thinking church-member, should subscribe for it, as the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly exposition of the differences between Free Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the arguments and the movements which the Church will have to meet in the future.

Almost every number contains a discourse or leading article, which alone is worth the price of one year's subscription.

Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a letter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1873, says: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Beligion in the wides ense of the word should be felt in America-that such a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your unity,-is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of so-called religious or theological periodicals is, as you know, very large. And later still: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest."

Send $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for three months on trial.

Address THE INDEX.

No. I Tramont Place, Bost

BITEBS.

SEY, EVENS, ABBOT.

THE INDEX. o any addre hotographs, 22 Eight Photo-

	Address,					THE INDEX,
	13	No.	1	Tr	emont	Pli	ce,	Bost	lon,	Ma	85.
ī	N	D	ŝ	E	x	т	R	A	С	т	8.

No. 1.-Truths for the Times, by F. E. Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Principles." Mu. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Species," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-inally intended for publication, but subsequently authorized to be used : "I have not them from my inmost heart; and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 2.-Fear of the Living God, by O. R. Frothingham, exposes the debasing character of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are worthy of the nineteenth century. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 3.-Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an or whelming demonstration of the imper BD OVERtions and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 4.-Christian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts. ting Extracts. Price 10 cents 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5.-"God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the Unit-ed States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 6,-""The Sabbath," by Parker Pills bury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition Edition. Price 10 cents: 12 copies Naw $1.00.

No. 7.-"Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8 .- The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that interests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 9.-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous chars ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evan cellcal Christian Creed in the U. S. Constiation. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 60 cents.

No. 10 .- The Impeachment of Christianity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of fr Ave to one hundred copies.

No 11 .- The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12 .- Is Romanism Real Christian-Ity? Two easays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 13.-On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Beligion : The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself the popular conceptions of Keligion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, its the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE,

Boston, Mass.

THE INDEX,

8

7

A Weekly Journal DEVOTED TO

FREE RELIGION. PUBLISHED BY THE

INDEX ASSOCIATION, AT.

> No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. RDITOR:

FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR: ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.

EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS:

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I.

W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.

R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass.

MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. F. W. NEWMAN, England.

CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX sims-

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a high purpose, both in society and in the indi-vidual :

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, free for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal end for absorption in selfish schemes

In brief, to basten the day when Free Religion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the pra-tical object to which THE INDEX is specia ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the pur pose of securing the more complete and con sistent secularization of the political and educational institutions of the United Sta The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an un-broken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FRATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading pa per or essay of a thoughtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX.

Regular editorial contributions will con-tinue to be furnished by the well-known eminent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high po-sition. Mr. Voyagy has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTRE containing matters of general interest to rad-ical readers. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from valuable books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted In every city and town throughout the country. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered letter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case. Address

THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

4. PUBLICATIONS. OF THE

FREE

RELIGIOUS

ASSOCIATION.

Beport of the Addresses and other Seport of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meet-ing in 1887, at which the Pree Religious Association was Organ-ized. Containing addresses by 0. Brothingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucretia Mott Robert Dale Owen, John Welss, Oliver John-son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Higon, and Ralph Waldo Emera

(This namphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not ess this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meeting, 1869. So cents. Contains essays by Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and Be-Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and Re-straint in Religion," and by David A. Wason on "The Relation of Social Science to Religion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Denton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Bar-tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outlines of Judaism" by Rabbi Wise.

Proceedings of Third Annual Mest-ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains essays by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the by O. B. Frotningnam on the "new of the Free Religious Association," followed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Re-ligion as a Social Force, especially in rela-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religious Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Age;" an essay by Samuel John "The Natural Sympathy of Religions," fol-lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judaiam," by and Progressive Elements of Juniani, 57 T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedanism," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Beligions of Chins," and Wm. J. Potler on "Religion Old and New In India," also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Calibran Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. R. Calthrop, Rabbi Wise, and others Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meeting, 1872. 35 cents. (Four or more, S cents each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion M the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Frothingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cella Burleigh, Lucretta Mott, A. B. Alcott, C. A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and others.

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meet-ing, 1873. 25 cents. (Four or more, 26 cents each.) Contains essays by Sameel Johnson on "Freedom in Religiou," and by John Weiss on "Beligion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Daie Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longfel-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lu-cretia Mott. cretia Mott.

Sympathy of Religions, by T. W. Big-

Religions of Chins, by Wm. H. Channing. 25 cents

leason and Bevelation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jas. Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of ten, 60 cents; of one hundred, $5.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1872 is quite limited. Orders by mail may be addressed either "Free Beligious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass.

WM. J. POTTER, Sec. F. R. A.

Danson Google

POPULAR BOOKS. SENT BY MAIL AT PUBLISHERS' PRICES! ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED. NO EXTRA CHABGE FOR POSTAGE. ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any othe OSTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt of orders accompanied with the CASH. Orders are respectfully solicited from all friends of THE INDEX. ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women, Two Kospital Sketches and Camp and Fireside Storias Stories December and Camp and Stories An Old Peakloned Girl. Little Men. My Boys, Ac. Shawi-Straps Work: A Story of Experience ARABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. 1.50 2.00 BACON'S Essays ...... 1.00 FAIN (ALEXANDER), Mental Science: A Compendum of Psychology and History of Philosophy Moral Science: A Compendium of Ethics. The Letter Mrs. trait BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americanisms. 2.50 BASTIAN (H. CHARLTON), The Beginmagnor Life. 7 vols. BIBLE in the Fublic Schools. Records, Arguments, and Decision in the rese of John D. Minor et al. vs. the Board of Edscation of the oily of Clincinnati real, in the Supreme Coart of the City of Chelmatt. BROOKS'(CHARLES T.) Translations. The Layman's Brotlary. 2.23 The World-Priest. 2.23 The Tail Studenb. 73 SUCHNER'S Force and Matter...... $,50 BUCRLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of (ivilization in England and France, Spatu and Scotland, New odition of the entire work, with a complete index. Tyols...... BUCKLE'S Emays; with a Biography of the Author. Fine portrait. 1.00 Author. Fine portrait. CARLTLE'S Works. Chasp edition. Compris-ing the following: Minceluneous Zessays, rok., Franch Revolution, a vols.; Externs, éc., Vols.; Eattor Resartins, I vol.; John Sterling, I vol.; Life of Schiller, I vol.; Fast and Przest, I vol.; Heroes and Haro Wor-ship, i vol.; Latter Day Pampbilets, i vol. Any volume sold separatoly. I vols. Lon-don, Bil-2. Per vol. CERVANTES' Dos Outrota CHANNING (WM, ELLERY, D.D.). The Per-fect Life. in Tweive Discoursen. Edited from his manuscripts by his nephew, Wm. Henry Channing. 1.5 CHANNING (WM. ELLERY). Thoreas: TheFoet Naturalist, With Memorial Verse, 2.0 CLARES (JAMES FREEMAN). Ten Great Religions CLARKE (Dr. E. H.) Sex in Education ..... 1.25 CONWAY (MONCURE D.) The Earthward Pligtmane. 1.75 DALL MES. OABOLINE H). The College, the Market, and the Court; or, Woman's Relation to Education, Employment, and Utizanship. Bisoficial Pictures Estonehed; a Volume of Misolianics. In two parts. Part L. "Bindles, Pictures, and Pancies" "De Life of Dr. Marie Zakrzewska, being a Frecical Illustration of "Woman's Rights to Labor". 1.50

Ξ.

Journal of Researches. 2.40 Emotional Expression of Man and the Low-er Animals. 2.50 The Variation of Animals and Fiants under Domestication. 2 vols. (Dustrated ... 6.00 te Spanish Gypsy ...... now the Love to king. But RESON'S (R. W.) Emmys. First Series. Earsys. Second Series Representative Man English Traits. Conduct of Life Poems. With Portrait. May-day and Other Pieces Emsays. Blue and Gold. Proce Works. 2 vols. Society and Solitude EVANS (E. P., Ph. D). First Ristorical Transformations of Christianity. From the French of Athanase Coquerei the the Frence of Article States of Gotthold Ephraim The Life and Works of Gotthold Ephraim Lessing, Translated from the German of Adolf Stahr. 1 vols. 1.5 FABRAR'S Critical History of Free Thought, in reference to the Ubristian Religion...... FEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation. 3.0 FISKE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers., 2.05 FROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Beligion of Humanity Beliefs of the Unbelievers Child's Book of Religion Life of Theodore Parker..... 1.00 FULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 6 vols 9.00 Ald Others. A new sense it is the English Yearse by Rayard Taylor. 2 vols. Fer vol Elective Affilities. Witheim Meister. Translated by Thomas Carlyle. Portrait of Goethe. 2 vols. Horman and Dorothea. Translated by El-len Froihingham 1.0 GREG'S (W. B.) Enigmas of Life..... Literary and Social Judgments..... Creed of Christendom..... GROTE'S LIFF. Compiled from Family Doc-muons, Private Memorands, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote. Second Edition. With Por-trait BAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter's Camp. Book I. In England. Book II. In Sociana. Book II. In France. Thoughts about Art. The Orknown River. The Intellectual Life. Chapters of Asimals. HAMILTON (GAIL). Child World. Part S 1.00 Child World. Part First..... HAWTHORNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works, Now Illustrated Library Edition. Nine vols. Par vol... Twice-Told Tales, Mosses from an Old Manse. The Scarlet Letter, and The Blithedale Romance. The Scarlet Letter, and The Bithodale Romance. The House of the Seven Gables, and The Snow Image. The Marble Fann. The Marble Fann. The American Noto-Books. The American Noto-Books. The American Noto-Books. The American Soto-Books. Our Old Home, and Septimize Felton. IGGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Papera Malbone. An Oldport Romance. Army Life to a Black Regiment. Atlantic Esanya. Oldport Days 2.00 HOWELLS'S (WILLIAM D.) Their Wedding Journey Buburban Skotobes Venetian Life Italian Journeys. A Chance Acquaintance HIGO'S (V.) New Novel. " 'Ninety-Three"., 1.75 HUMBOLDT (ALEXANDER VON). Life of. Translated from the German. 2 vols., with three portraits...... HUME'S (DAVID) Essays and Life ...... 1,78 Bits of Traves. 1.25 On the Origin of Species 1.00 More Oriticisms on Darwin and Adminis-trative Nihilism 1.00 A Manual of the Anatomy of Vertebrated Animals 1.25 Lay Sermona, Addresses, and Raviews 1.75 INGELOW'S (JEAN) Poems..... The Monitions of the Unseen..... NGELOW'S (JEAN) Prose. Off the Skal-1.75 1.25 DEREOLD (DOUGLAS). Firedide Saints, Mr. Claude's Broakfast Talk, and other Papers. L50 JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and their Relation to Universal Religion. India JOWETT. The Dialognes of Plato. Translated into English, with Analysis and Intro-ductions by B. Jowett, M.A. Master of Ballol College, Oxford, and Regius Pro-fessors of Greek. Four vola. 12.00 KERR (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities, Poems, Patriotio, Sentimental and Rumprous..... 2.00 LECKY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and Idducate of the Spirit of Rationatian in 1.00

LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.50 LEWIN (REV. BAPHAEL, D'C), What is Ju-dalam 7 or, a Few Words to the Jews. 1.00 LONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Posms. Portrait. 2 vols Prose Works. Portrait LOWELLI'S (J. R.) Poems, 2 vols..... The Biglow Papers. First Series... The Biglow Papers. Second Series Among my Rooks... My Study Windows... LOWELL (Mus. A. C.) Posles for Children. LUBBOCK (SIR JOHN). Origin of Civiliza-tion, and the Primitive Condition of Man. Pre-historic Times. MANN (HORACE). The Life of Hornes Mann. By his Wife. Lectures and Annual Reports on Education. 300 Annual Reports on Education, from 1839 to 1848 Apports on Education, from 1839 to Theorem 1848 Thoughts Selected from the Writings of Horace Mann. 1.25 MARTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosoph-Ical and Theological, 2 vols. Fer vol...... The New Affinities of Faith MAURICE (BEV. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind MOULTON (LOUISE CHANDLES.) Bed-NASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Bound the Cirkle the ( from Kentucky..... Ekkoos from Kentucky NEWWAN (FRANCIS W) A Bistory of the Hobrew Monarcly, Phanse of Faith; or, Passages from the History of my Ureel. The Soul, its Borrows and its Aspirations. Casholle Union: Essays towards a Church of the Future, as the Organization of Philanthropy. Theism, Doctrinal and Practical. The Religious Weakness Bistore Statism. Against Hero-Making in Religions. 1.50 4.00 1.5 PARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The Infinite and the Finite 1.00 PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por-BOSSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of 2.50 SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies. 6.00 50 .50 SMILES'S (SAMTEL,) Self-Help...... 1.50 2.50 and 2.50 5.00 5.00

SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The-

ew... ew Life of Jeans, Authorised transla-tion, 2 vols..... TAINE'S (H. A.) History of English Litera-ture. 1 yols The Class-Room Taine, History of English Literature. Abridged and Edited by John Histo. 7.54 7.84 4.00 4.00 1.50 1.50 2.00 2.00 Pendennis. The Virginians. Examoné, and Lorvel the Widowsr. Examoné, and Lorvel the Household Edi-tion. Uniform with the Mone of the Household Edi-tion and the Household Editions, thus taking it, with the novels, the cheapest and most complete Thackersy in the market. .75 2.00 mploie Thackeray in the market. 1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Diamond, &c. 2. Paria, and Iriah Skotch-Books, &c. 4. South, Stotchen, Denis Duval, &c. 4. Four Georges, Humoriste, &c. 5. Gatherine, Unristmas Hooks, and Unre-printed Fleecs. TRAXTER'S (MRs. CELIA) Among the Inles of Shoals. 14 THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden; or, Life in Excursions in Field and Forest. Portrait. The Maine Woods. The Basic Products Letters Letters A Work on the Concord and Merrimac Rivers TYLOR (EDWARD B.) The Early History of Mankind. Primitive Culture. 1 vols. Primitive Culture. 1 vols. .75 1.00 1.50 2.25 TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov 2.25 Fragments of Science for Unscientific Peo-Fragments of Science for Unaccentue ree-leafts and Electricity Alpa. Hours of Exercise in the Alpa. Heat as a Mode of Motion. On Sound Eadhart Heat. Forms of Water. Lottare our at the Farawell Banquet to Prof. Tyndall. 2.08 1.25 2.08 2.08 2.08 2.50 1.58 VOYSEY (Buv. CHARLES.) The Sling and the Stone. Vols. I. and V., each. Vols III. IV. and VI., each. The Voysey Appeal. Voysey's Defence at York..... WARNER'S (CHARLES D.) My Summer in 1.5 1.00 Saunterings. Back-Log Studies ..... 2.50 WEISS (JOHN.) American Religion ...... 130 1.88 2.50 Washington and use Arevenus WHITNEY'S (MRs. A. D. T.) A Summer in Lasila Goldibwaits's Life. We Girls: A Home Story Real Folks The Other Girls Funcies. A volume of Poems...... 1.50 10 4.50 2.00 WHITTIER'S (JOHN G.) Poonis. 2 vola .... 4. ADDRESS:

INDEX. THE I Tramont Place, Boston FEW COPIES ONLY A Of an excellent Photograph (Cabinet Size) of Rev. MONCURE D. CONWAY, of London, can be had at the office of THE INDEX. Price 60 cents.

THE REFORMATOR.

A WEERLY JOURNAL,

For the dissemination of useful knowledge, and the enlightenment of the people on political, religious, and so-clai subjects, with a view to reform.

Published in the German language av ery Saturday, at Adrian, Mich.

Principal office at Adrian, Mich., to which all letters and communications must be ad-dressed.

C. LOHMANN & SON, Pub's. C. LOHMANN, EDITOR.

The REFORMATOR circulates in all the principal cities and villages in the United State and Territories, and presents an excellent medium for advertising.

Terms of Subscription-$2 per annum. Ad-vertisements inserted at liberal rates. Sub-scription and advertisements must be paid in advance.

menter Google

THE INDEX -- MAY 7, 1874.

tus to Charlemagne. 2 vols ..... 6.00

227

STRAUSS (D. F.) The Old Faith and the

TOWE (HARRIET BEECHER.) Pink and White Tyrang Uncle Tom's Cabin

$25 per day guaranteed using our WELL AUGER and Drills. Catalogue free. W. W. GILES, St. Louis, Mo. NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drug, and Hand-grinding MILLS. Ten Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Illustrat-ed pamphelist free. Address Bize ed p

J. SEDGEBEER, Painesville, Ohio. CHEAP OFFER! A

A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACTS, from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed to any address on the prepayment of 75 CENTS.

THE INDEX, Address No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass

THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873.

The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of $3, by express, at the purchaser's express. A complete file for the year can be furnished in no other form. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

CHARLES SUMNER. A fine likeness of Massachusetts' great Senator, the copy of a recent Photograph by Black, is for sale at THE INDEX office, and sent by mail to any address on receipt dn be of the price-seventy-five cents. Address THE INDEX,

2.7			1	Tre	mo	nt F	lace	, 80	ostor	1.	ľ
T	0	N	E	W	S	P	A	P	E	R

PUBLISHERS.

Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I should like to contract for composition alone, or for composition, press. work, and mailing, for one or more weekly papers. Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed. GEO. H. ELLIS, 7 Tremont Place, Boston.

Tremont Place, Boston. SAVEDI FLOBENCE: of the FLORENCE 3D The long-contasted auti of the FLORENCE 3D WING MACHINE CO. In the Singer, Wheeler & Wilson, and Grover & Baker Companies, involving over 520,000, is finally decided by the Supreme Court of the United States in favor of the FLORENCE, which alone has Broken the Monopoly of High Prices. THE NEW FLORENCE is the OSLY machine that sews backward and forward, or to right and left. backward and forward, or to right an Simplest, Chespest, Rest. Sold for cash Special terms to Clubs and Dealers. FLORENCE, Mass., April, 1874.

TUST PUBLISHED.

THEODORE PARKER:

Biography. By Octavius Brooks Froth-ingham. With Heliotype Portrait. I vol. 8vo. $3.00.

8vo. $3.00. An exceedingly interesting memorial of a very remarkable man-one of the striking figures in American history. Mr. Frothing-ham has given a large number of Parker's letters and journals not previously published; he has written in the light reflected upon Parker's words and efforts by the momentous events of the last fifteen years, which have brought out in bold relief the segacity, wis-dom, and heroism of Theodore Parker's ca-ther; a white he has written so candidly, and with so profound an appreciation of Parker's characteristic qualities, that his book is of surpassing interest.

surpassing interest. The NEW YORK TRIBURK closes a four and a half column review of this book by saying: "It holds up a remarkable specimen of ro-bust manliness whose form and lineaments can be studied with equal advantage by friend and foc."

Sent, postage prepaid, on receipt of price Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

SABBATH SCHOOL SONG Triumphant Success of the New and Beautiful Sal bath-school Sung Book, the

RIVER OF LIFE!!

BY H. S. PERKINS AND W. W. BENTLEY.

This undoubtedly fine book has been but a short time before the public, and the public is siready convinced of its surpassing merit. Witness the great sales—many thousands, Witness the decided words of praise from hundreds of Sabbath-school workers in all directions.

RIVEN OF LIFE!

A Superintendent in Charleston, S.C., says: "We pronounce it the best book we have ever used."

BIVER OF LIFE! A Clergyman in Philadelphia is "Greatly pleased with it."

RIVER OF LIFE!

A Secretary of a Sabbath School Union, in Illinois, believes it "Surpasses any other I have examined." These are but a few out of a multitude of commendations.

Times are one with the stand lasted for many years No book of the kind lasted for many years has given greater or more universal satisfac-tion. Spacimen Copies mailed, post-paid, for 30

Specimen Copies mailed, post-paid, for 30 cents. Price by the Hundred Copies, $30. Sold by all dealers.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., BOSTON.

CHARLES H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York.

is hold at HOSPITAILEB HALL, 564 Washing-ton Street, Boston, every Sunday, at 10% A.M., 23% and 75% P.M. All that relates to the Religious. Political, and Social interests of manifiad the Unit of the subjects for discussion. This TRDEX and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Hospitaller Hall.

TO BOOK-BUYERS

Flease examine the revised list of POPU-LAE BOOKS on the opposite side of this page. Any OBTAINABLE BOOK NOT IN THIS LIST will be furnished to order. Beaders of THE INDEX who desire to pur-chase English, German, or French Books, on who wish for information as to the price, &c., of any American or Foreign Book, can have their orders prompily filled and their inqui-ries answered by addressing. I'Tremont Place, Boston.

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE

B INDEX. Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2. 50, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important estays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive read-ing twenty years beace as to-day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend atruggling out of Orthodoxy than one of these volumes. Addrees THE INDEX THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston Address

Price 50 cents.

PRACTICAL DETAILS, showing the workings of the COST PRINCIPLE. Price 25 cents.

For	sale h	y
s.	H	9	М	0	R	s	E	5
	25 1	Brom	feld	8t.,	Bost	on .
C	H	A	P	т	E	R	1	S
			FRO
1	The	Bib	le o	f tb	e A	2'08

FOURTEEN CHAPTERS.

FOURTEES CHAFTEES. Selected from Hindu Vedas, Buddha, Con-fucius, Egyptian Divine Pymander, Zoroas-ter, Talmuds, Bible, Piato, Pythagoras, Mar-ens Aurelius, Epicteus, Ai Koran, Luther, Scaadinavian Eddae, Benan, Taliesin, Mi-ton, Penn, Adam Clarke, Mary Fletcher, F. W. Newman, Tyndail, Max Müller, Elias Hicks, Channing, Garrison, H. C. Wright, Lo-cietla Mott, Higginson, T. Starr King, Bush-nell, Parker, Davis, Emma Hardinge, Emer-son, Denton, Tutile, Abbot, Frothingham, and others.

Gospels and Inspirations from many Contaries and Peoples. "Slowly the Bible of the race is writ, Each age, each kindred, adds a verse to it."

Edited and Compiled by GILES B. STEBBINS.

Four hundred pages; bound in cloth; pr $1.50. No Extra Charge for Postoge. Address No. 1 Tremont Place, Bostor Four

U S т в THEODORE PARKER,

SIDNEY H. MORSE.

F

Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi-poise, breathe through the clay; the artist has so filled his own heart with appreciation of that noise life that he has been able com-ningly to mould it into those delicate lines which the character had wrought on the liv-ing fibre. We are tempted to exclaim, as we stand beside it, as the old artist did to his perfected work, "Speak then!"--Hannah E. Skuonson.

All the characteristics of my husband a in the bust,—his greatness, his goodness, i tenderness, his love. You cannot give life clay or marble; but you can represent it, a this Mr. Morse has done.—Lydia D. Farker Hannah E. Stevenson.

The eyes, though but of clay, are cleaning with possible indignation, with possible tears the lips are set firm with the resolution of him who, like Paul, could "fight a good fight" as well as "give a reason."—Samuel Longfel-low.

The first time I have seen Theodore Parker since he died .- Wm. Sparrell.

since he died, — Wm. Sparrell. The best representation of Mr. Parker over executed in clay. — Boston Daily Globe. The face is strong and noble as it should be. The likeness is good.— Boston Daily Advertiser. Nothing appears for beauty alone, or finish, or to show the vanity of the artist. All is forgotten in the man-the true, real, Yankee man, Theodore Parker.—L. S. H. in the Golden Age.

Copies of this Bust, finely finished n plaster, $10 each. Boxing for transportation, $1 extra. Freight or expressage paid by party sending order. Weight of box about fifty pounds. Orders may be sent to

S. H. MORSE, Room 13, 25 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.

FREE DISCUSSION BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE. Our organisation some time since decided to direct its efforts for the present towards securing

Repeal of the Laws

whereby church and other corporate property is anjustly exempted from its share of the burder of taxation.

As a means to this end, we have published for general circulation several thousand copies of a

TBACT

on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 27. The edition was made as large as our funds

ould allow ; but, so great has been the demand it is already nearly exhausted.

Our next edition ought to be large enough to place a copy in the hands of Guarantees perfect title and ample security in all its Real Estate Loans. Firstclass securities always on hand. In-tereat and principal collected without charge. Real Estate Investments made on commission or on abarce; taxes paid, &c. Orders of capitalists and real estate own-ers respectfully solicited.

EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE, d generously to supply the calls for them in other States.

To do this, we need fundag for, although we have made arrangements for printing the Tract at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston League, with its various other expenses, to beau the entire expense alone. Will not, then,

All Friends of the Movement

e forward and help us with liberal dona We frequently receive communications from parties wishing tracts to distribute, asking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $3.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circuating them gratuitously throughout the country.

To many of the subscribers of THE INDEX and others whose names have been furnished a as probable friends of the movement, copies of the Tract, together with Petitions asking the repeal of the Exemption Laws, have been sent,

With the Hope

that such friends will try to secure as many sig res to the petition as possible in their locality We respectfully ask those who are unable to at tend to the matter themselves to place the petitions in the hands of those who will. Let us

BOLL UP THE LIST!

Let our united voices be heard | And let it be done NOW1

We would say, also that we feel deeply the need of

Other Organizations

in this State, to cooperate with us in securing equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are those who are inclined to

Form a Liberal League,

we are ready to render such assistance as lies in our power.

LIBERALSI

If all will unite and work, the results sought can be accomplished Address

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Per order of the EXECUTIVE COMMITTER

G. L. HENDERSON & CO.,

BANKEBS.

LEROY, MINN.

Money invested on short time, or for a term of years, on unincumbered improved farms, at 12 per cent. interest per annum, payable semi-annualy. Perfect tile and ample security guaranteed. All expenses for abstract of tille and recording morras paid by borrower. We collect and remit to any part of the United States from charge.

part of the Oniced States free of charge. REFERENCES. - First National Bank, Mc-Gregor, Iowa; First National Bank, Anethe Minn.; MUwaukee National Bank, Chicago, III; Allen, Stevens & Co., Bankers, New York City; Morris Altman.

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES, paying 8 to 10 per cont. interest, or Investments in Real Estate in Chicag and vicinity, if judiciously made, are the best and safest modes of employing capital. The old Real Estate and Loan Agency OF

ERNST PRUSSING, 143 BANDOLPH BYRENT

Chicago (Established 1853),

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is full longth. It is full size. It is sumooth and elastic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine use.

Many kinds of spool silk are a perfect

fraud, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unfit for use. The ladies will always find the Eureka Silk exactly as represented. Every spool is warranted, and the manufacturer's for it.

ame indelibly branded on every spool. Call

HALF-HOUR RECREATIONS

-11-

POPULAR SCIENCE.

EDITED BY DANA DITES

The growing demand in this country for books on popular science encourages the ed-itor and publishers to issue this series of papers, compiled from the works of the most popular scientific writers.

25 cts. per Part; $2.50 for twelve consecutive Parts.

No.1. STRANGE DISCOVERIES RESPECTING THE AUBORA AND RECENT SOLAR RESEARCHM. By Richard A. Proctor, F.B.A.S.

No. 2. THE CHANLAL AFFINITIES OF MAN

AND THE APE. By Prof. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, suthor of Callular Pathology.

No. 3. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, and its Uses to Science Illustrated, With a col-

No. 4. SPECTRON ANALYSIS DISCOVALIN, showing its Application in Microscopic Re-search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav-enly Bodies. From the works of Scheller, Young, Boscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and oth-

No. 5. NEBULE, METEORIC SHOWERS, AND

No. 6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRAIN AND EFIDEMIC DELUSIONS. By Dr. Carpenter, author of The Microscope and the B

No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARS. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of

No. 8. ON YEAST. By Prof. Hurley, F.B.S. No. 9. THE CIBCULATION OF THE WATERS OF

THE FACE OF THE EASTH. By Prof. H. W.

No. 10. THE STONE AGE, PART AND PRESENT.

No. 11. THE RELATION BETWEEN MATT

By Edward B. Tylor, author of Primitive

AND FORCE. By Prof. John H. Tice, of St.

THE INDEX,

1 Tremont Place, Boston,

Michigan, author of Sketcher of Creation

lations, Human Physiology, etc.

ored plate and several wood-cuts. No. 4. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERIES, Fully illustrated.

ers.

COMETS.

Dove.

Culture.

Louis.

For sale by

nemate Google

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

VOLUME 5.

A AGENT

34

2

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, MAY 14, 1874.

Index.

WHOLE NO. 229.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other eoclosiastical groperty shall no longer be exempt from just itaration. 2. We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militis, and in prisons, spinuns, and all other institutions supported by cable money, shall be discontinued.

3. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-ional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character tional and shall cease abil cease. 4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Biblo in the public schools, whether outenai-by as text-book or srowedly as a book of religious wor-able, aball be prohibited. 5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease.

of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease. 6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and in all other departments of the government shall be abol-ished, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-altics of perjury shall be established in its stead. 7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-peated.

pealed. & We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all is we shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and inpartial liberty. a. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or ad-rantage shall be conceeded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unflinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, It is our profound conviction that the safety of equalizant institutions is imperiled; the advance of civili-sation impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-tringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general opirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the generative of religious liberty, the scalesheed of free public echools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; Descent and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; TEREFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-selves together under the following

AUTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

Art, 3.— The means employed in working for these objects shall be regular local meetings, free discussions, lectures, addresse, conventions, the platform and the press in gen-eral, and all such other means as are peaceable, orderly, and right.

ART. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising for for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws two-thirds vote of the members.

Agt. 5.—Any person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-Ment. Asr. 6.—The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Excou-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be those commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be accounted elegates to the National Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together. and Se Conve

Air. 7.—These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-als meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

So far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of The inper. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that it will yet be accepted universally by the American people, as the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A Liberal League ought to be formed to carry out its princi-ples wherever half a dozen earnest and resolute Liberals can be got together. Being convinced that the movement to secure compliance with these just "Demands" must Burdy, even if slowly, spread, I hope to make Tas INDEX & means of furthering it: and I ack the assistance and a means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and active co-operation of every man and every woman who be-lowes in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-port promptly the names of their Presidents and Secretaries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion as that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are wight, let their organized voice be heard like the sound of many waters.

TRANCIS E. ABBOT. Editor. BOSTON, Sept. 1, 1873.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page. BELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PROPOSED AS & SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CON-STITUTION

ABTICLE 1.

ABTICLE 1. SECTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-trailishment of religion, of favoring any particular form of pilligion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or abridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dov-ment for a redress of grievances. Bortrow 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting any of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the foreernment for a redress of grievances. No religious and no person shall ever the any Office or public trust, in any State; and no person shall ever in any Office or public or private daty, or ren-dor the performance of any public or private daty, or ren-dor the performance of any onfile or she may brate; and no person shall ever on the subject of religious. The subject of religion. — Bortrow 3.—Congress all have power to enforce the pro-misions of the second section of this Article by appropri-tions.

NOTES AND COMMENTS. BY A. W. 8.

THE BOSTON Liberal League will hold its next meeting at Parker Fraternity Hall, to-morrow (Friday) evening.

A RADICAL CLUB has been organized in Cambridge, in this State; with John McDuffle, President, and Harry W. Stevens, Secretary.

IT IS ANNOUNCED, evidently by authority, that Charles Bradiaugh will again visit this country, next fall, and will lecture as before.

THE FRENCH ecclesiastics wish to canonize Joan of Arc. If Joan "still lives," she has by this time got far beyond the range of their canons.

IT IS AT LAST explained why some people do not mind their own business. One says it is because they haven't any business; and another that it is because they haven't any mind. We are entirely estisfied.

A BILL has been ordered to a third reading in the Massachusetts House of Representatives for the establishment of a separate prison for women. Is this in accordance with the co-education-of-the-sexes theory

THE METHODIST CHURCH South has a membership of 680,000; that of the North a membership of 1,867,000. There is an effort now being made to reunite these two Churches in one, they having been separated on the ques-tion of slavery before the late war.

REV. BERIAH GREEN, an old-time anti-slavery reform er, died in Whitestown, N.Y., May 6. Mr. Green was an able man, and a somewhat noted preacher. He was one of the most aged men on the list of THE INDEX subscribers, being over eighty years old when he died.

Boston and other Northern cities have been very gan erous to Louisians, in her time of trial. We are heartily glad of it. These forth-stretched hands of sympathy will go far to "bridge the bloody chasm" of the war. The souls of Horace Greeley and Charles Summar "go marching on."

THOSE who have never been so fortunate as to hear Henry James' essay on Thomas Carlyle are to be commiserated. It is one of the most entertaining, racy, witty, and wise biographical sketches we ever listened to. The Second Radical Club had the pleasure of hearing it last Monday evening.

THE National Reformer of London, England, says: "The increase of infanticide in this country is really saddening. Scarcely a week passes but the papers report instances of this wretched crime." This condition of things has led to the preparation of a bill, by interested parties, to be presented to Parliament, entitled "The Law of Infanticide."

WE ARE not much in favor of legislation; but we have heard of one proposed law which we think we shall favor. A friend of ours suggests that it be enacted that every man over fifty years of age shall cease from labor. We shall not, for several years, come under the provision of that law; but when we do we shall certainly claim the benefit of its benign protection. MR. S. H. MORSE has just finished a small bust of Charles Summer, which, we think, must become very pop-ular. Many who were long and intimately acquainted with the great Senator have pronounced a most favorable opinion upon Mr. Morse's work; and its low price of three dollars will bring it within the reach of those of limited means, who yet desire so admirable a memento of Mr. Samper.

A FRIEND of ours thinks that the statement that "the Church should enjoy immunity from taxes, on the ground that it is the chief source of the good morals in the State," is like the good opinion which that foreigner entertained of himself, who, on arriving in this country, notified the people that he would consent to dwell in a first-class family where his board would be considered balanced by his good society i

A LETTER written from New Orleans to a friend of urs says: "We are sorely afflicted with too much water, OULTS BAYS! and complain loudly about it. It is a singular fact that we never make complaint here of inundation, except it is by water. Although we are up to our eyes in had whiskey, yet this never makes us unhappy!" There is much in being used to a thing. The New Orleans people are accustomed to providing for an abundance of whiskey, but the taking of so much water as has come upon them of late is contrary to all their habits.

WE FIND in the "Inquiring Friends" " column of the Christian Union the following very extraordinary question and sensible answer :-- tion and sensible answer:--Question.--I am endesvoring to be a Christian. I love a beautiful lady who appears to me a model of perfection, and when a temptation is presented to me to do wrong, or an opportunity to do good, if feel her influence seeming-ly before that of my Savior; am I an idolater? Answer.--If your love draw you toward evil instead of toward good, and you preferred to please the object of your love rather than Christ, you would be an idolater. But if you have a human love that life you toward what is good, praise God and be happy.

THE STORY of Rev. Dr. Kirk's "conversion" is published in The Congregationalist of May 7. When, in early manhood, he was "seeking religion," and experienceearly manhood, ne was "seeking rengton," and experience ing great difficulty in finding it, he applied to a certain Dr. Spring for connect. "He conversed and prayed with me," says Dr. Kirk, who was then a law-student. "I was conscious of utter insensibility. His parting advice was: 'Leave your law-office. Go to your room. Determine never to leave it except as a Christian or a corpse !"" This sounds very much like the desperate alternative which a highwayman offers to the traveller: "Your money or your life!" Dr. Kirk (who says he "accepted the advice" of Dr. Spring) presented this dilemma to his advice" of Dr. Spring) presented this dilemma to his Savior: Salvation or suicide! "Either save my soul," said the young law-student, "or behold me slay myself!" We marvel that the Savior was not brought to terms in this way; but he was not,-for, according to the narrative, Dr. Kirk left his room neither a Christian nor a se, and it was not until four. days afterward, and in another place, that he finally got converted!

DURING the illness of Mr. Austin Holyoaks, recently deceased in London, Mr. Bradlangh gave weekly informa-tion, through his paper, of Mr. Holyoake's condition, and various items of interest connected with his sickness. In the National Reformer of April 5, we find the following occurrence noted :--

Ing occurrence noted:--On Monday last an attempt was made by a stranger to obtain access to his bedaids. This stranger was a tail, dark, gentilemanly, fair-spoken man. He seaw Mrs. Holy-oake, and asked, as a special favor, to be allowed to see her busband. She replied that it was impossible, as he was too weak to see even friends or relatives. The stranger then said that his name was McGregor, and that he used to write in the Reasoner. Seeing the gentleman so anxious for the interview, Mr. Holyoake was commu-nicated with, and he observed that there must be some mistake, as he had no recollection of any fresthinker of that name writing in the Reasoner. Hereupon the gen-tleman changed his tone, and began to taik religion. He said he trusted that Mrs. Holyoake prayed for her hus-band, to which she retorted: "Indeed. I do not, but I work for him; and this is much more likely to alleriate his sufferings." No doubt this was an ingenious Chris-tian attempt to gain the bedied of an athesit; and, had it succeeded, a "powerful exhortation" would have been delivered for his conversion, even at the risk of the life of the patient.

LIST OF LIBERAL LEAGUES. Br. LODIS, MO,-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries.
BOSTON, MASS.-F. E. Abbot, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries.
JEFFERSON, OLIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Secretary.
BAN JOSE, CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Secretary. Becretary. TOLEDO, lowA.-J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre-Interno, Duka-S. Reservations, Resident; Sue M. Clute, Becretary. JUNCTIONVILLE, NEB.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Scoretary. OLATEE, KAM-S. B. & Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Scoretary. W. B. Wilson, President; A. T. Garrataon. Secretary. DETROIT, MICH.-W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, Secretary. DEFEOIT, MICH.-W. R. Hill, President; A. T. GAITSIGON, Secretary.
 BEREDAVILLE, MICH.-A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. Knowles, Becratary.
 ONCOLA, MO.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Becratary.
 B. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary.
 Bridgman.
 B.C. George M. Wood, President; J. E. Crawford, Secretary.
 Augustary.
 Augustary.
 A. T. Miss.-President; G. W. Barnes, Treasure. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.-Prosident, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen.
 Maw Youks, NY.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary.
 Br. JOSEPH, MO.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Becretary.

BT. JOSEFR, EQ.-F. V. Wise, Freehung, I. H. Ashnovy, Secretary, Wis.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy. BALBRO, IND.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. NEW ORLEAMS, LA.-President, E. Worster; Secretary, J. E. Wallace.

[For THE INDEX.] Remarks on Tax-Exemption

BRIORD THE MASSACROSETTS COMMITTEE ON JOST AND EQUAL TATATION, AT THE FIRAL HEARING IN THE STATE HOUSE, MARCH 26, 1874.

BY CHARLES E. PRATT, ESQ.

<page-header><section-header><text><text><text><text><text><text>

property. The Constitution, the spirit of our laws, and the principles of natural justice require that this assess-ment shall be made equally and proportionally upon all the estates lying within the Commonwealth. /The special report of the Tax Commissioner shows

AN ACT IN FURTHERANCE OF JUST AND EQUAL TAXATION.

*AN AOT IN FURTIERANCE OF JUST AND EQUAL TATATION. BE IT EXACTED by the Senate and House of Representa-tives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:--Section 1. The third, seventh, and 'ninth clauses of the fifth section of chapter eleven of the General Statutes are hereby repeated. Section 2. The tertly amended by adding at the end the reduction of the following words: viz," Provided, however, that the remerby or extact owned or held by such societies shall be exampt from taxation." Section 3. The fifth section of chapter thirty-two of the General Statutes is hereby amended by statking out all differ the word "case" in the second line. Section 4. The first section of chapter two hundred and six of the acts of the year sighteen hundred and sixty-five amended by striking out all after the word "section 5. The first section of chapter upon the first day of June next after its passage.

that, under cover of exceptional statutes now in force, there is an amount of property exempted from taxation-

$14.50 on $1000 being the average rate of taxes, there is an annual inequality of taration in the State of $6000,131.95. That means an indiscriminate ap-propriation of more than $608,000 to the various churches and charities.

of $000,101.00. The means means inductor induces of propriation of more than $666,000 to the various churches and charities. This appropriation is not made in the usual way— after cousideration, for a definite object, and one that is within the acknowledged and legitimate acope of our legislation, and apportioned in amount to the needs of the case,—is not an outlay correlative to the good to be secured, and therefore I say indiscrimi-toria. nate nate. The petitioners ask for a repeal of the statutes which permit this appropriation by exemption, and which also excuse so many abuses as are known to exist under them. To state their case is sufficient, until some reason-able ground is shown for not granting their prayer, because the statutes are exceptional and in their nat-ure only permissive, —a license, to be withdrawn when no justification is shown for its continuance. What have the remonstrate shown acquired repeal?

no justification is shown for its continuance. What have the remonstrants shown against repeal? First. Special cases of anticipated hardship are pointed out by representatives of different institu-tions, from whose statements I take some facts for the purpose of this bearing. The Benevolent Frater-nity of Churches, chartered in 1820, holds now four chapels, worth $150,000, and employs "six male and female missionarias." It holds property to day, be-sides the chapels, free from taxation, amounting to an income of $2,000. $13,000 is raised from nine Unitarian churches. If the chapels were taxed, the tax would be $1,920. "Boston could better afford them a subsidy," says Rev. Mr. Foote, because "they educate people out of intemperance and poverty, to law-abiding, tax-paying citizens." I was surprised to see Mr. Foote take that side of citizens." I was surprised to see Mr. Foote take that side of the question. Most of his denomination are on the other. Harvard University was chartered in 1640. Its property is not all exempt; says Mr. Crownin-shield, for, when all its buildings now in process of erection are completed, it will pay taxes on $1,200,000 of property 1 of property 1 It bought a piece of land on the Charles River (exempt), not to speculate with, but because it was thought possible that in the future a public park would be formed from this property, and facilities for the boating interests of the college furnished !

the boating interests of the college furnished! Then the Bussey Farm: $7,000 to $9,000 a year will be expended upon that, to make it a beautiful park which the public will be allowed to enjoy! "The city would gladly pay $1,000,000 for the estate to be used as a public park, but they are to have it merely for the taxes upon it!" says the eloquent ad-vocate, Mr. Crowninshield. The taxes on the property of the college would be about $4$,000 now. Certainly that institution is not impecuations enough to be a pauper; and moreover can wield influence enough to obtain appropriations, if it need.

if it need. Then comes an advocate for Williams College. That, too, has a charter, and property to the amount of $480,000, and would have to pay a tax of $4,000. Mr. White says that the interest of $7,500 is applied annually (that is, about $450) to the aid of indigent students; and saks, "Does the State wish to come in and say that it is ashamed to assist indigent young men?"

Many men in the State pay ten times that amount every year to educate their own children, and others; will Mr. White say that their property ought to be exempt?

exempt? Amherst College, too, is represented as a deserving charity, and does not want to lose its subsidy. So all these mendicants, these respectable dead-heads, will come trooping up here, and sek that their neighbors still pave their ways, and light their streets, and guard their treasures, and protect their rights for them, whilst they thrive on this invidious advantage --an advantage given without reference to merit or ac-compliahment, and without any opportunity left to the people to direct the expenditure of their money.

Perhaps the strongest of all claims urged were in favor of the Massachusetts General Hospital, with its $2,600,000 worth of property, which would be taxed about $38,000.

about $33,000. And the instance of this creature of charity, which so abundantly dispenses its healing and life-saving influences to the sick and the unfortunate, the poor and the friendless, this exceptional instance, suggests one answer to all: Let the State grant a direct ap-propriation to whatever applicant shall prove itself to be truly a public, general, free, open institution, and meritorious enough to deserve it.

meritorious enough to deserve it. Special and exceptional instances of hardship are not allowed to defeat general projects, or laws, for the public good. You put through a street or a rail-road, though it turn the widow and the aged from their homes; and the military draft takes the only son and the young husband and father. But he principle is particularly correct, when, as in this case, the spe-cial cases may be met in another way, without incon-venience or violation of principle. Second. The general grounds upon which the re-monstrants found their arguments, when they seem to have any foundation other than the wings of rhet-oric, are:— of the people, and they raise the value of adjacent

Well, we are accustomed to say and to think, those of us who are right-minded, at least, that institutions + which are not beneficial to the community ought not which are not beneficial to the community ought not to exist at all. Every worthy object or enterprise is a benefit to the community. Our boards of trade,—are they exempt because beneficial? Commercial colleges, Horticuli-ural Hall, of this city, Mechanics Hall, of Worcester, and other examples, might be cited, all through the Commonwealth, of buildings noble for their beneficent educational influence. There are the "Handel and Haydn Society," and the "Apollo Club," and the "Harvard Musical As-sociation," —all generous in their good influences, and sublime in the lofty sentiments and refined cult-ure which they inspire and propagate. Carl Zerrahn, and Theodore Thomas, and Eben Touries—tell me what clergyman of them all does more for the State than they? than they? Mr. Hallowell, in a terse and careful argument read and cites as instances:--The press. Private schools, of which the annual cost in this State is $423,186.50, and which, not teaching sectarian theology, are inculcating more good morals, good manners, and golden rules than the Sunday-schools. The lycenm, with sessions every day in the week, and overflowing rooms.

Now I say that you cannot exempt the churches, either any or all of them, because they support re-ligion; for our Constitution forbids the establishment where would exemption cases? As to the charitable institutions, the same query applies; many a private cilizen expende thousands in charities every year. How much shall be spend to have his estate exempt? If he supports an evening school, or teaches a Sunday-school, or opens a library, a park, or a garden, or makes a bequest to the public, shall other men pay his taxes? Exempt the hospitals and the missionary societies, and such, and up come the Free Masons, the Odd Fedlows, the Knights of Pythias, Patrons of Industry, the Yacht Club, the Somerset Club, the Printers' Association, the Swe-denborg Club, the good disciples of St. Patrick, the two Radical Clubs; and even the Index Association may be here (with hoofs and horns, frisking their tails, as one bonorable gentleman would seem to ex-pect), all asking exemption because they are chari-table.

Table. One further remark upon this point: The benefits of these institutions are limited in their direct be-stowment to a part of the public. They are not open, free, appropriated by all alike, as highways and pub-lic schools are.

And this leads to the claim of some remonstrants that-

2. Churches and charitable institutions are public, devoted to public uses. Not even in the sense that railroads are! for these

Not even in the sense that rainbas are; for mese are free to all who choose to pay the fares, and make no distinctions or requisitions; they are of incalculable public benefit, for they make both secular and chari-table and religious advancement possible. The charitable institutions are only for certain table and rengrous services are only for certain The charitable institutions are only for certain classes of the people. The churches prescribe various requirements of those who would fully enjoy their benefits; they will only seat one-half of the people, if filled to their ut-most. If the sittings were all free, like those of the Quakers, and of the Church of the Disciples in this city, there would be a better reason for calling them public institutions. The pews in most are costly, and the contributions required are large. They are exclusive and sectarian. The pulpits are not free, nor are they allowed to be filled by the choice of different classes. The people do not select the pastors. They are private enterprises, run by a few individuals in each for their own entertainment, profit, power, or aggrandizement. Like most other the pastors. They are private enterprises, run by a five individuals in each for their own entertainment, profit, power, or aggrandizement. Like most other private institutions, they have their revenues, and their officers and employés, who derive their livelhood therefrom. So far as they furnish employment and salarles for their officers and employés, they are on a footing with mercantile institutions, and the revenues of some of them are large. True, they are not very well paying for the amount of capital invested, because they are generally occupied scarcely more than one day in the week, and the capital put into them is more for ornament and luxury than for ntility. They are in a certain sense but a sort of religious club-houses; and they are luxurious and fashionable ones, which only the well-to-do can afford-and, mind you, the more luxurious and fashionable ones, which only the well-to-do can afford-and, mind you, the more luxurious and fashionable they are, the more of a subsidy they get under the present exemption laws. They are not, therefore, in a true sense public institutions, in distinction from private. But if they were, it would be unjust to exempt them, and tax the railroads, the ferries, the gas companies, and so on to the end of the list. It is said that churches, etc., are some of them mon-productive property, and others bave their property invested in securities paying small returns. The property is not usually well taken. That is unproductive property which finds no acrostion (rit, renders no reward for its possesion. More ying in coffers, unsalable and unusable materials, lands iying waste, and unoccupied build ings (nnless held for a rise in value in good locall-ties), are examples of non-productive property. But buildings put to constant good uses are pro-ductive; so are libraries, works of art, houses, horses,

.

230

But pointings put to back and provide of art, houses, hopses, and carriages. The good argument of our friends, that these insti-tutions are a benefit to the State, contains the con-cession that they are productive to those immediately interested in them and under their influences,—pro-ductive of enjoyment, refinement, present and future happiness, health, character, rise in value of adjacent property. Their value increases upon itself, until a little inrestment becomes, in the course of years, enor-mous wealth. And this property is frequently held by a small class, until at last it is divided between two or three survivors. Besides, church property gives men influence and importance in the community, and it has always been a good investment in a worldly sense to be a member of a church, and own a pew, and be a deacon. It is even a recommendation for collectors of customs! Longfellow makes the landlord of the "Three Mari-mers" tell the truth, and speak the importance of such investments, in the New England Tragedy :— "I am a law-abiding citizen;

é

"I am a law-abiding citizen ; I have a sect in the new meeting-house, A cow-right on the common, and, besides, Am corporal in the great artillery."

Am corporal in the great artillery." But is it, then, a good excuse for exemption, that property pays small returns? You do not make it so with individuals. You tax unbuilded Back Bay lands, and untilled acres in Berkshire. Unoccupied houses, club-rooms and buildings, yachts, horses, gardens, books, moorey on deposit, and all posses-sions of laxury or enjoyment are taxed to private individuals. It is, then, a new theory that such property ought not to be taxed because it does not yield an income in dollars. 4. It is said: The right to tax implies the right to annihilate the property taxed. Begin to tax and you begin to destroy.

annhilate the property taxed. Begin to tax and you begin to destroy. This argument is fallacious as it is frantic. The State has no right to annihilate any property. For purely public purposes it may exercise the right of emiment domain; and this it has always done. When it wanted to put a railroad through, it would pull down or remove a church or a cemetery as soon as any other property.

But our Declaration of Rights is a perpetual pro-tection against the taking of property for any but necessary public uses (and that only by paying for it), and against any annihilation or destruction. To point to that is sufficient answer to this argument

and against any analhilation or destruction. To point to that is sufficient answer to this argument. 6. "It is sacrilege to tax the churches," cry some. I have seen an answer in the Congregationality, so plain and ingenuous that I wish to produce it here, directed against this "ples that meeting-houses, be-chireted against this "ples that meeting-houses, be-directed against this "ples that meeting-houses, be-chireted against this "ples that meeting-houses, be-directed against this "ples that meeting-houses, be-chireted against this "ples that meeting-houses, be-directed against this "ples that meeting-houses, be-chireted against this "ples that meeting-houses, be-reverence of the remark, until it be explained—this is the argument of heathenism, and not of Christian-tin. The old Paggan law declared: Nullius autems int res sacrae, et religiosae et sanctae ; quod entine divisi juris est, id nullius in bonis est (Joustinian, the ii, Til, 1): "Things sacred, religious and holy, are the property of no one; for that which belongs to God cannot belong to man." And then it went on to define "things sacred," as being acdes sacrae, et dona-ri, guae rite ad ministerium Dei dedicata sunt: "Emples and offerings, properly consecrated to the service of God." It was thus the genus of Paganism to dissociate sacred things from common things, and it was the Pagan element in Romanism which segre-sted make men think that common life and special bolines must of necessity be disjoined. The spirit of genuine Christianity directly antagonizes all this, I was the saintilest saint must be part ezcellence the bet citizen; and so, instead of driving God out of the state by thrusting him up into a plase higher than holds mand his, and it and its, but the ideal State will not be sailsfied until the Lord come into it by a real though unannounced presence, as into his own in all its capitols, and courts, and offices, and works, with its benignant and regnant glory; and, so far weet being from taxation a few things because they

6. It is inexpedient to tax them because they would

6. It is inexpedient to tax them because survey it. not survive it. Are they really paupers, then? Do they depend upon a State support which is measured by the re-mittied tax? If a church is so poor and its communi-cants so penurious that it cannot pay its taxes, let it be given up. Or, rather, let the churches expend less upon fine architecture, and elegant decorations, and costly music, and vain holiday wastes; and let them live as they tell their members to, within the bounds of their income. The generous community will see to it that they bounds of their income. The generous community will see to it that they have enough to pay their taxes with; and it is the opinion of many, more plous than myself, that the churches will wake to greater life and activity for the slimulus of independence. They will utilize their property better. Let them have a year's notice (as the offered bill provides), and the money will be all ready a year from next October. This may also induce a more judicious manner of leaving bequests. 7. It is argued that to tax these institutions is to add to the burdens of the poor, because they will feel it most.

Now those who have money build the churches and found institutions; and they also support them who are able. To tax them is to tax those who own them; that is, the rich. Again, so much must be paid in taxes. The poor man pays his proportion, as well as the rich. Reduce the rate, and you tax the poor man less. If you tax all the property, that is, more property, the rate well be less, and the poor man's tax lighter. The poor man, scarcely able to own the equity of his small house, must pay taxes both on his cottage and on the costly church opposite, which he never visits. The wrong and hardship is in the present ex-emption. mption 8 Tre emption. B. Judge Warren says they are doing the work of the State, and therefore ought to be exempt. Pray what is the work of the State? Is it the work of the State to teach sectarian theology, to perpetu-ate ceremonies, to support a class of ministers, to raise buildings for the gratification, pride, and quar-rel of apecial neighborhoods, to minister to all the moral and physical wants of the people, to perpetu-ate exclusiveness of ideas and of association and of property, or even to send missionaries and get up re-vivais?

Virals? Our Declaration of Rights asserts that "govern-ment is instituted for the common good, for the pro-tection, safety, prosperity, and happiness of the peo-ple; and not for the profit, honor, or private interest of any one man, family, or class of men. (Art. VII.) 9. Because our fathers exempted them. They have been to fear here accurate ple; and not for the profit, honor, or private interest of any one man, family, or class of men. (Art. VII.)

9. Because our fathers exempted them. They have heretofore been exempt.
That is, simply, because a thing has been done, it must be done. For if you go further, and show that our fathers had good reasons, and those reasons attinue fathers had good reasons, and those reasons.
Our fathers had good reasons, and those reasons attinue fathers had good reasons, and those reasons.
Our fathers did many things which we cannot do. They compelled the support of churches, and then compelled the attendance of everybody. — Projestant ones, too, they must be. They wouldn't let a man hold office unless he held the prevailing Orthodox religious faith and membership. They exempted the property of ministers from taxation, as well as that of churches. They pressed Spritualists to death, and cut off the ears of Quakers, and hung them. All these ideas are rather old-fashloned now.
But it is aufficient to rely upon the moral axiom that, *If a thing is wrong, no cilciton of precedents can make it right.*10. Because this demand originates in the Index Association. (P. A. Collins.)
One remonstrant was so rash and ignorant and uncharitable as to exclusin that "there was not in the nation one true and faithful minister of the Church of God who is in favor of taxing church property."
The best paper I have seen upon the subject is one in favor of non-axemption, prepared by the Rev. Frederick B. Allen, and read at a Congregational ministers' meeting, last month. From Baptist to unitarian, from Free Keligionist to Roman Catholic, they are all coming to see the matter in a better light, and swelling the majority in favor of non-axemption, prepared by the Katohole. The best and addeat of the religious proses of the sthing soon coming, bol expressing their rasions and sentiments to hasten it. And I know of no betre works to quote than those of one who was bot

"It cannot be proved that the Christian religion needs the support of civil government, since it has existed and flourished when entirely deprived of this support. "And if it be said that every man derives benefit from religious services, inasmuch as these services improve the moral and intellectual character of his improve the moral and intellectual character of his neighbors, and hence, that every man ought to pay for their maintenance, the argument may be easily met as follows: It is granted that every man is bene-fitted by the regular administration of the ordinances of religion, but this is not the reason for which these ordinances are established. Men unite with their neighbors to procure religious instruction for their own benefit, and not for the benefit of others. If it happen, accidentally, that others are benefitted, it does not follow that they are obliged to pay for this benefit. If my neighbor erect a building for his own profit, on his own land, and thus improve my proper-ty, I am not obliged to unite in defraying the ex-penses of his building. I am entitled gratuitously to this accidental advantage. I think the same princi-ple applies to the case in question. "All that religious societies have a right to ask of "All that religious societies have a right to ask of the civil government is, the same privileges for tran-sacting their own affairs which societies of every other sort possess. This they have a right to de-mand, not because they are religious societies, but because the exercise of religion is an innocent mode of envening hannings."

because the exercise of religion is an indecent hister of pursuing happiness." Bat not upon these, Mr. Chairman, not upon these arguments and refutations do we rely for the vindica-tion of our cause. We take no negative. We stand upon an affirmation of principle which has been growing into recognition in our civil institutions and laws from baronial times. Continuent of various occupations and walks in life,

Gentlemen of various occupations and walks in life, of various possessions, and of various religious per-suasions, have been before you with their facts, and the best results of their observation and thought. I should be happy to bring their testimony again before you in a condensed and orderly summary, but the waning hour forbids, and I must be still more brief.

brief. From an examination of the General Statutes we were able to show not only how the law now stands, but what progress and what direction of progress has already been made in just and equal law-making. From such an examination, with reference to this subject, it is readily seen that the several exemptions may all be referred to some one of six general classes of property, to wit:— I. That of the United States. There are two sufficient reasons for not taxing this:

That of the United States.
 There are two sufficient reasons for not taxing this:
 namely, because the United States has by the Con-stitution exclusive legislation over its own lands, and because to tax such property would be to tax the means which the general government employs in the execution of its acknowledged powers.
 2. That which is taken and held for the public uses of the Commonwealth and all its inhabitants. To tax this would be but taking money from one till and putting it into another in the same treasury.
 3. That which is within the actual necessities of humble life.

That which is within the same treasury.
 That which is within the actual necessities of humble life.
 I think the quality of legislative mercy is not strained by such induigence.
 A. That which is actually occupied in and about the purposes of burial of the dead.
 The wealth lavished upon some of our cemeterles might, perhaps, well be taxed to the living who pils it there; but it would be an undesirable contingency of fame to have one's tombstones advertised for non-payment of taxes when one is himself beyond the jurisdiction. And yet I think that large incorporated cemeterles, speculative and profitable hoards of great wealth and luxury, ought to be taxed.
 That which is devoted to educational purposes, including literary, scientific and agricultural.
 That which is in the use of religious societies for worship, and for purposes technically called benevolent and charitable.

lent and charitable. It is to these last two classes that the preceding facts and calculations apply, and particularly to the latter class; and I have addressed myself especially to the latter class, because all the arguments perti-nent to the next preceding apply to it, and because there are other reasons peculiarly cogent and appli-cable to the discussion of these unequal and unjust so-styled religious exemption laws. The facts being as before stated, it is obvious that this large sum of $696,000, annually released to the churches and their charges, is to be considered both as an appropriation this exemption is indiscrimi-

As an appropriation this exemption is indiscrimi-nate and unwise. It gives the rich societies more than it gives the poor ones. It gives $250 to a struggling young missionary free church at the South End, and to an opulent society on the Back Bay $4,360. It heaps upon the cities where so many advantages are enjoyed, and passes gruggingly over the toiling and ill-provided country towns. Whether a church is needed or not, or used or not; whether is devoted to the best interests of the com-munity or not; whether it is for the perpetuation of such principles as the majority would approve or not; the State says, For every $1000 you have I will give you $14.50.

DOOT ODES

the State says, For every every every states of the state says, For every every every states of the states of the

The State has no right to appropriate the public money to private uses, either by constitutional law, common law, or the principles of natural justice and common law, or the principles of natural justice and equity. This leads to the root of the question; namely:— As a matter of taxation, it is unfair, unequal, un-just, unconstitutional, and against liberty of con-science and religious freedom. I had the honor of discussing the question before you in its bearings upon constitutional law. I cited passages from the Crassillide of the State and of the United States, and from acknowledged authorities in jurieprudence; and from the attention you were pleased to give at that time, I think the principal points and authorities must still be before you, in your notes if not in your memories. Through all, like a key-note with its various chords, run "uni-form," "proportional," "reasonable," "fair," "just and equable," "with equality upon all the estates," "without undue assessment or undue advantage to any class of persons or property." By its five necessary and universal limitations a lawful tax must be:—

any class of persons or property."
By its five necessary and universal limitations a lawful tax must be:1. By consent of the people.
2. For public purposes only.
3. Reasonable.
4. In its levy equal and proportional.
5. Not higher upon any one species of property than upon another of equal value.
And we have shown you that taxation in this State, moder the present exemption statutes, is in violation of four out of these five constitutional requisites.
No wonder, then, that we recur with keener sense of their fitness to the words of Chancellor Kent: "It is not sufficient that no tax can be imposed upon the citizens but by their representatives in the Legislature. The citizens are culled to require that the Legisla-ture itself shall cause all public taxation to be fair and equal in proportion to the value of property, so that no one class of individuals, and no one species of property, may be unequally or unduly assessed." (II. Kent Comm., 331.) But there is another, and to many a weightier, principle of ethics involved in this question; namely, freedom of conscience. I think this has been suffi-ciently elucidated and insisted upon, without much farther comment. The right to worship God as one's own concelence dictates carries with it, as a corollary, the right not to contribute to forms of worship incon-sistent with or in violation of one's own dictates of duty.

Google

the right not to contribute to forms of worship incon-sistent with or in violation of one's own dictates of duty. This principle it was which drew our forefathers to these shores, where they bedged themselves about in its maintenance with a bedge which became almost a prison wall, and which their sons have had to break down. The pillory, the gallows, and the stake have been the price of its assertion. But its fruits are the liberty we enjoy, and the prevailing demand for the somplete separation of Church and State. With generations of Quaker blood tingling in my weins, and with somewhat, I trust, of the spirit of the New Testament in my heart, I protest against being compelled to contribute to the support of any one of the religious creeds which I consider superstitious, corrupt, or perverted. I willingly contribute, in pro-portion to my means, to the support of two religious houses of worship in this city. But I am compelled to the whole poll-tax of the State is raised for the churches. A large part of this amount is levied upon persons whose consciences do not approve of the pur-poses to which it is applied. It was different when this practice began as a part of the parals regulations of the colony, when nearly all believed alike. But see how it is, and is likely to become; meeting-house and church, cathedral and joss-house, -we must pay induct to them all. But, gentlemen, my time expires, and I have done. I cannot linger to recount the other considerations that might be presented; how exemption of certain property has a tendency to make the managers of

But, gentlemen, my time expires, and I have done. I cannot linger to recount the other considerations that might be presented; how exemption of certain property has a tendency to make the managers of churches and other institutions acquire, and hold un-productive, more property than is necessary for them, thus increasing uselessly the burdens of the commu-nity; how the exemption of some property necessi-tates high rates of taxation on other property, and causes high reats and dear means of living for the laboring classes; how history and experience teach that this course of things ultimately leads to the ac-cumulation of the greater part of all property in the hands of the Church, and to general pauperism. The segregation and perpetual increase of church and other corporate property has already taken on, in our new country, the symptoms and threatening dan-gers which we have seen so alarmingly developed in older countries. Pauperism, bankruptcy, revolution, confiscation,— that is the natural succession of things.

Pauperism, bankruptcy, revolution, confiscation,— that is the natural succession of things. Do one thing to avert these dangers. Fulfil the prophecy of our constitutional freedom. Let there be a complete separation of Church and State, so long boasted of our country. Make our State leader in this same march of events. Give us just and equal taxation, and carry out the same wisdom and seenes of justice which seems to have sparkled for once upon the pages of our statute books (General Statutes, C. 30, Sect. 21), where, after certain provisions for collecting funds and taxes of religious societies, it is added: "And no citizen shall be liable (i. e., compelled) to pay a tax for the support of public worship, or other parish charges, to a soci-ety other than that of which he is a member."

(For THE INDEX.) THEFSM.

<text><text><text><text>

the Greek theist cannot conceive of God either ap-

Bergereit thesist cannot conceive of God either approving or disapproving our actions. The Höbrev theisal to do so. Greek theisan is hus a science, a theory of the intellect; Hebrew theism is allfe. The search of the intellect; Hebrew theism is allfe. The search of the intellect is the weak may be drawn as between those who pray and those who an a note that are specified to theim we believe in it is note that it is an either ercluster of the intellect is the search embrace also truth not contained in either."
— Thede it may be downed whether it would be possible to find a real Greek thesist or a real Höbrew the search and the search embrace also truth not on an other the find it. Even when found, Mr. Newman implies he would not be muck would hot findig. For "integer an of and bitter of responding offer jubiliant with design of the hot would not be muck would hot findig. For "integer an offer the search and the search offer jubiliant with design of the hot whether the search and respective in doubt the Hotow theist reveals in such passages in the site of and a sease." All the strong passions which a site is the strong passions which are from men now; and unless such crise are grow induct the Hotow theist reveals of the search would on the search would on the search would we then the search and y starts. The search of the search would we then the search would on the search would we have the search would on the search would we have a sincer (in the search would weak, "For would accors and research the notion of the search would weak, "Have would accors and research the search would weak would weak the search would weak the seare the search would weak the sear ly mysterious side of human nature—that side to which the consciousness of the Unknown Cause pre-sents itself, and which is thereby brought home to the individual soul—it has at least not erred on the side of presumption. It has not limited the Illimita-ble, nor has it clothed with personality nor ascribed human imperfections to That about which we can know nothing absolutely. It has vindicated the dignity of human nature, and has done what it could to save such nature from itself, when oppressed with the anwholesomeness arising from a too desponding view of its case. Hebrew theism, on the other hand, has bravely insisted upon the heart's claims to be recognized as in harmony with the Great Heart of all things; and, while serious fault must be found with to re neleavoring to bring down to human concert-bility That which is beyond all conception, it at least deserves our warmest thanks for its cancet yarding tor communion with the God of Truth and Goodness. May we not hope for a higher theism than either of these—an eclectic theism drawn from all the theisms of past ages? W. A. LEONARD.

S BELLEVUE, HAMPTON ROAD, Bristol, England.

FLORENCE.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE FREE CONGREGATIONAL SOCIETY, OF FLOE ENCE, FOR THE YEAR ENDING APRIL 6, 1874.

The Preze constructional society, of From-ENCE, FOR THE TEAR ENDING APRIL 6, 1874. When William Lloyd Garrison first realized the sin

Inferen years, is a believer in Christianity, in God, and in immortality, and is an eloquent defender of these beliefs.
As to the most noticeable work of the society during the past year, your committee would simply say. "Look around." Since our last annual meeting this beautiful temple has risen from its foundations. At a business meeting held September 23, 1873, it was decided, after careful deliberation, to call this new edifice "Cosmian Hall," a name not only pleasing to the ear, but strikingly significant of the spirit and purposes of this society. The Ladies' Industrial of December last. On the 28th of the same month, the first fair and festival held in the lower hall. The first fair and festival held in the building occurred on the last day of the year. Cosmian Hall was the first fair and festival held in the building occurred on the last day of the year. Cosmian Hall was the first fair and festival held in the building occurred on the last day of the year. Cosmian Hall was define to or the same month, and 26th of last month.
The aranging for the dedication services, the committee knew they had no precedent to guide them, and 26th of last month, and decinate on under affair. It should be a special jubilee for the society, and could be properly managed and used only by those in sympathy with to learn what this society was doing. Still, our invitations to speakers took a wide range, and, during the services, liberty was extended to any one in the speaker from athoge to do so. Eleven speakers from athoga, if he or she chose to do so. Eleven speakers from athoga, the sit was propitious, the attended to any one in the speaker from the platform; while six were represented by letters. The weather was propitious, the attended to any one in the speaker from the platform; while six were represented by letters.

Google

ance large, and the meetings deeply interesting. As was to be expected, some of the remarks were misunderstood and misrepresented. As, for instance: Frederick Douglass said that he regretted there was not a portrait of Jesus on the walls, and as the hall was Cosmian he would like to see some of the domes-tic animals portrayed. Some one, we learn, reported Mr. Douglass as saying he would rather see an ox patinet on the walls than the portrait of Jesus. So, when Mr. Morse, in order to show what crude notions of God the churches instilled into the minds of the young, related how, when a bog, he and some com-panions of his age proposed to test the existence of God, by calling upon him to send bears among them, it was reported in the papers that Mr. Morse had giv-en the result of this juvenile folly as a proof that there is no God. The positions of Mr. Lilly were also misunderstood in various quarters. He was re-ported by the Springfield Republican as saying be "believed in no God." whereas the truth is he did not mes that language, but affirmed the existence of a Power which he could not comprehend. And yet, if thes speakers had spoken what they were reported to have said, they had the right to do so on that plat-form, as they alone were responsible for what they watered. Even Paul, if living, might have expressed in our hall, as he did in his Epistie to the Romans, the wish that, under certain circumstances, he might to accursed, or damned. He would ouily speak for form, as they alone were responsible for what they uttered. Even Paul, if living, might have expressed in our hall, as he did in his Epistle to the Romans, the wish that, under certain circumstances, he might be accursed, or damned. He would only speak for himself, not for the society. As to how or to whom Cosmian Hall should be dedicated, the committee could not, of course, speak for all. Each member must, in a certain sense, dedi-cate it for himself. Mr. Connor probably came the nearest to that in which all the members could agree, when he dedicated it to the search after truth and the service of man. And, even if judged by the Bible, may not the society be said to have dedicated their hall to God, when they dedicated it to the service of man? For is not man, according to Scripture, 'the temple of God'? If he is the "offspring of God,'' ia he not the only temple in which God intelligently manifesta himself? Besides, at the day of judg-ment, according to the New Testament, a certain class, who will claim to have propheside and done many wonderful things in the name of the Lord, will recive the sentence, 'Depart, ye cursed,'' while oth-service of man, will be met with the welcome, "Come, ye blessed of my Father; inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto the resport; and these burdens in messure provide the privileges of a general home for the members of the society. These per villages will impose burdens for their support; and these burdens should be borne with the readiness that we pay the expenses of our own private homes. Our meetings the past year have been well attend-ed, and all the signs indicate growth. The society is under great obligations to the members of the choir, the leader, and the organist for contributing to our meetings the cheering and inspiring influences of good music. The Ladies' Industrial Union continues to be an efficient helper of the society, and it is a source of good music.

good music. The Ladies' Industrial Union continues to be an efficient helper of the society, and it is a source of gratification that they now have, for their regular gatherings and sociables, convenient and pleasant apartments in Cosmian Hall. The Sunday-school has been ably conducted, and maintains its numbers and usefulness. This society has taken a new and important star in maintains its numbers and usefulness. This society has taken a new and important step in the right direction by furnishing its hall with ample and beautiful arrangements for dramatic perform-ances. A good moral work can be done by clearing the stage of its abuses, and devoting it to the eleva-tion and happiness of man. The term for which Mr. Connor has been engaged to zerve the society, as resident speaker, will expire on the first day of August next. It is needless to say that he has from Sunday to Sunday brought to our platform the live, practical topics of the times, and given his ideas of them in a forcible and attractive style.

given his ideas of them in a forcible and attractive style. As Mr. Connor was engaged, and is to be paid, for the whole time, we have not been able to employ as many speakers from abroad as heretofore. We have, however, given a Sunday each to the following per-sons: Prof. Richards, E. C. Towne, Parker Pillsbury, C. D. B. Mills, Mrs. Elizabeth Powell Bond, Theo-dore D. Weid, D. W. Bond, and A. Bronson Alcott; and two Sundays to Charles C. Burleigh, who gave the first two discourses in Cosmian Hall, after the dedication; his first, entitled "The Unit of Universe," giving a masterly argument in proof of the existence of God; and the second, "Special Providences," af-firming the universality and unchanging order of the divine beneficence. Your committee cannot close this report without tendering, in behalf of the society, their thanks for all the sid which has been rendered towards the building of Cosmian Hall; especially for the unstantations, but munificent, liberality of that at triend of the society and humanity everywhere, Samuel L. Hill. SETH HUNT, Chairman. FLORENCE, April 6, 1874,

EXTRA-JUDICIAL VERDICT ON SPIRIT-UALISM.

HON. GEORGE WOODRUFF, MARSHALL, MICHIGAN,

HON. GEORGE WOODRUFF, MARSHALL, MICHIGAN, JUDGE IN STATE CIRCUIT COURT: Dear Six-Personally a stranger, I feel constrained by a sense of duty to address you, touching one of your official acts. As the actions and words of public meo, in their official capacity, are open to comment and criticism, there is no breach of custom or propri-ety in my course. I find in the correspondence of the Detroit Post, from Marshall, a report of the trial and sentence in your court, at that place, of a Mr. Belcher and Mrs. Miller, for adultery. Of the sentence itself I have nothing to say. These persons are strangers to me, and, in pronouncing them guilty of a crime against the purity and safety of society, you but dis-charged an official duty. But in your address to them on that solemn occasion, I find the following extraor-dinary and extra-judicial language:--"Something has appeared in the course of this trial, indicating that the insane orgies of Spiritualism have been mixed up with the cause and inducements of your crime; and it is not the first evidence afforded, during the recent session of this court, of the close connection between the demoniacal influence of the execrable tampering with that forbidden field of hu-man luquiry, which has broken up the peace of fami-lies in the presumptuons search for a knowledge which begins by denying the truth of what is revealed, and by seeking the truth at the mouth of the father of lies."

and by seeking the truth at the mouth of the father of lies." I suppose you were elected to serve the people as a judge of law and equity, but not as a catechist of creeds or religious opinions. Do you thus lecture Methodists, Catholics, Universalists, or whoever may not agree with your theology? Suppose Methodists had been the culprits, would you have talked of their "seeking truth at the mouth of the father of lies." In Methodist meetings, or engaging in "insame orgies," where "demoniacal (Methodist) influences" were "mixed up with the cause and inducements" of their crime? If you had, a storm of righteous indignation would have burst upon you, from persons filled with regret for a criminal weakness which they never en-couraged, and for which they were not responsible; and the cry would have been, "Let this judge keep to his official duties, and cease his lawless work of con-demning religious opinions, or leave the bench he is not fit to fill."

It may be that you can say that the teachings of so-called "social freedom" wrought this mischief with these misguided culprits. If so, why not make your warning against those teachings, and not attack the oplaions (religiously sacred to them) of a class of peo-ple, the great majority of whom have no unity with them? Spiritualism is a belief in the "real presence" of the departed. "Social freedom" is "of the earth earthy." If any professed Spiritualists use their views as a cloak for immoral theories and practices, they should meet the same fate which all good people, of whatever persussion, hold just for hypocrites and pretenders. pretenders.

pretenders. If you had sought information, you could have found hundreds of protests against this miscalled "social freedom," from public meetings and leading persons among the Splritualists, filling the pages of one of their journals which has wide circulation in this State as well as elsewhere; or you might have found these words of A. J. Davis, whose writings are widely read and held in high esteem among these people in this country, and are translated into foreign languages for European circulation:— "What are the sacraments of true religion? First,

"What are the sacraments of true religion? First, porsonal cleanliness and chastity; second, a heart full of warm, devotional love to man and Deity; third, a head full of strong sense, steady wisdom; fourth, reverence for the marriage relation," etc., etc.

fourth, reverence for the marriage relation," etc., etc. Why rest in such ignorance, and prostitute your judicial position by such reckless attacks? As a judge, it is not for you to decide whether Spiritualism be true or not, any more than baptism, or any form of faith or belief. You have no warrant or authority to pass judgment, either to approve or condemn; and when you usurp such authority, you endanger that liberty of conscience and that separation of Church and State which have wrought such benefit to the religious and spiritual life and thought of our country.

country. Are you aware who, and how many, your sweeping language condemns? I have known judges of our State courts who were Spiritualists—probably you have sat on the bench with such. I knew an emi-nent United States Senator, Jacob M. Howard, a man of great ability and high character, who tam-pered in "this forbidden field," and so became a Spiritualist.

pered in "this forbidgen held," and so became a Spiritualist. Joshua R. Giddings was a brave, noble, and deeply religious man; but he, too, "sought truth at the mouth of the father of lies," as you would say. His daughter told me of his last years, his months of weary pain, and his triumphant and peaceful pass-over - a Spiritualist to the last! This illustitous list might be enlarged by names excellent and eminent on both sides of the ocean. For instance, Elizabeth Bar-rett Browning, of England-her wealth of poetic gen-lus hardly equalled in our century, her learning pro-found, her culture the best, her womanly and mother-ly qualities the sweetest and highest, --entered this "forbidden field," and engaged in this "presump-tuons search for a knowledge" only to be gained, as you say, by most base and deceptive means; but she lived in the belief of Spiritualism, and when she passed in peaceful sweetness to a higher life, not only England but other lands mourned her loss. In con-trast with such wealth of manbood and womanhood, your extra-judicial verdict is poor indeed! There are millions of Spiritualists in our own and your extra-judicial verdict is poor indeed! There are millions of Spiritualists in our own and other lands, scores of thousands in our own State, equal in character and capacity to the average stand-ard, and with the common right of respect for their honest opinions. In your strange assertions touch-ing Spiritualism, you take the unwarranted license of sitting on a judicial bench, viewing and condemning the religious opinions of others from your own be-nighted stand-point, and in a bigoted spirit; and thus going outside of all honorable usage or precedent in fairly conducted and dignified tribunals of justice. So it seems to me, and so I say in all frankness, as the public good (and your own as well) seems to demand. I trust and hope that your sober second thought may lead you up to a better spirit and practice, and that your judicial career may never again be perverted to such uses, or sullied by such words as these I have quoted. Frankly and faithfully yours, GILES B. STEBBINS. DETROIT, Mich., March 23, 1874.

[For THE INDEL] MINOR CHORDS.

BY MES. D. H. CLARE.

- Soft, ma belle, I am not at fault
- Ny memory plays me true to-day; And a tweive-months' phantom bars the way. A madness lived o'er! Yet I fain would halt.
- see, in the frame of a darkened year
- The ploture that never can fret or fade
- face-my own! (Did it fright you, dear? Could you know who watched you the while you played?) A face
- A sleeper-your lord! A player-his wife!
- Gathering up from the soulful keys Sheaves of the goldenest melodies hat ever ripened to passionate life,

- A shudder of minors-flooding with grief The palpitant air of a drawing-room-Swept 'neath your bands ghost-white in the gloom Fugues of heart-break-an anguish brief-
- And all was ended. Your face was set
- Pale-sweet to the vow of Resolve new-born :
- And the haunting wraith of a wild regret Was laid-by the strength of your pure, proud score.
- You came and stood by the jasmined door
- One deathless moment your aliken train Brushed me so close, that in wordless pain I had well-nigh groaned! You turned once more,
- Unknowing-and gave to the traitorous air A name, low-breathed-shall I tell of whom? My own! It was caught, in the voiced gloom,
- By the Angel Renunciation there.

NOBTHUMBERLAND, PA.

NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS TO INDEX STOOK

1	and the second se
ĺ	Mrs. F. W. Christern, Richard B. Westbrook	New York City,	One al	hare,	$108
1	B. C. Spencer.	Milwaukee, Wis.	Two	-	208
1	R. W. Howes,	Boston, Mass.	One	14	108
	Chas. W. Story,	Boston, Mass.	4		108
	E. W. Meddaugh,	Detroit, Mich.	Five		509
1	Jacob Hoffner,	Cumminaville, O.	One	14	108
	John Weiss,	Boston, Mass,	040	a.	100
Į	W. C. Russel.	Ithaca, N. Y.	44	44	308
1	A. W. Leggett,	Detroit, Mich.	44	64	108
	B. F. Dyer,	Boston, Mass.		M	100
	James Purinton,	Lynn, Mass.			100
ļ	F. A. Nichols,	Lowell, Mass,	14		100
1	J. S. Palmer.	Portland, Me.			108
	Robt. Ormiston,	Brooklyn, N.Y.		64	100
	Mrs. A. L. Richmond,	Lowell, Mass,			100
	Mrs. Benj. Ireson,	Lynn, Mass.	-	44	100
1	J. E. Oliver,	Ithaca, N.Y.	44	.66	100
1	E. H. Aldrich.	Providence, R.I.		44	100
	Geo. L. Clark,	Providence, R.I.		44	100
1	W. M. Jackson,	Providence, R.I.	Two	64	208
	Mrs. E. B. Chase,	Valley Falls, R.I.		44	100
	L. F. Garvin,	Lonsdale, R.L.	One	66	100
	James Damon,	Ipswich, Mass,	"	26	109
	Joseph A. Barker,	Providence, R.1.			100
l		A Read

CASH BECRIPTS.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 9. J. H. Ward, $1.50; JOS. E. Peck, $2; W. C. Preston, $5; C. S. Painer, $5; James Philp, $1; G. E. Frotbingham, To cents; M. Landabury, $5; Geo. F. Upton, $1.50; Geo. N. Newhall, $4; E. H. Clark, $1; Jas. Alexander, $3; E. V. De Guiuon, $3; Lita B. Sayles, $3; Robt. T. Barrett, $3; David H. Scofield, $2; Cha. H. White, $4.50; Wm. Bates, 75 cents; E. O. Benle, $2; Geo. Allen, $1.20; J. F. Smith, 75 cents; Mary A. Ross, 20 conta; D. A. Cline, $4.50; Fannie Wertz, $3; W. P. Atkinson, $5; J. M. Snyder, 25 cents; Geo. M. Jane, $1.15; J. Kelly, 15 cents; Geo. Lewis, 25 cents; Carbin, 5; J. Kelly, 16 cents; Carbin, 26 cents; Carbin, 5; J. Kelly, 16 cents; Geo. Lewis, 26 cents; Carbin, 5; J. Kelly, 16 cents; Geo. Edit, 26 cents; Cash, 80 cents; J. T. Ives, $20; F. E. Abbot, $50; Louis Ericae, $10; G. H. Poster, $1.10; R. Fisher, $3; D. R. Lommon, $1; Mr. Joo. H. Sweet, $2; Conrad Wesselboft, $3; Mre. Owen Ollett, $1; Julius Brocks, $3; Joel McMillan, $1; E. R. Potter, $13. All receipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 9.

$1; doitus Brock, $3; Joel McMillan, $1; E. R. Potter, $13. All receipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and no other receipt sent unless epcially requested. Persona who do not see their remittances acknowledged within three weeks after sending, will piease notify us. N. B.—Piease remit by post-office money-order, by regis-tered letter, or by draft on Boston or New York. Checks on interior banks are ilable to discount, and the term of subscription will be proportionally shortened in the credit.

RECEIVED.

Pamphlets and Periodicals.

- Pamphleis and Periodicals.
  A BRIFF NARRATIVE OF THE HUTCHINGON FAMILY: Sixteen Sons and Daughters of the "Tribe of Jesse." By "Joah-ua." Roston: Lee & Shepard. 1874.
  HALF-HOUR RECREATIONS IN POPULAR SCIENCE. No. II. Coal as a Reservoir of Power. By Bobert Hunt, F. R. S.-Atoms. By Professor Clifford, M. A.-Boston: Estes & LAUFALOUR RECREATIONS IN NATURAL HISTORT. Division 1., Part III. Relations of Insects to Man. By A. B. Packard, Jr. Boston: Estes & Lauriat.
  RECENT PERLEATIONS OF THOMAS & Could Be A. B. A. B. Packard, Jr. Boston: Estes & Lauriat.
  RECENT PERLEATIONS of Thomas Ecott, Esq., No. 11, The Terrace, Farquhar Rond, Upper Norwood, London, B. E.-The Cardinal Dogmas of Calvinism Traced to their Ori-gin. By Matt. Macfie.-Recent Theological Addresses. A Lecture by John Macleod.-An Address on the Neces-sity of Free Inquiry and Plain Speaking, at the Inaugura-tion of the Liberal Social Union, Feb. 28, 1874.- "The Beign of Law" in Mind as in Matter, and its Bearing upon Christian Dogmas and Moral Responsibility. Part I. By Charlee Bray.
  THE HAND OF FAITH MESSENGER. Vol. II, Nos. 18 and 14. Edized by Rev. Goodwyn Barroby. Wakefold, Eng.: 1874. THE VENTABLAN REVIEW, May, 1874. Boston: L. C. Bowley.

Demois Google

Toledo Office: No. 35 Morray STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love.

Brotherly Love. N. B.-No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contri-butions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

BOSTON, MAY 14, 1874.

N.B.-Any person whose name is now on our mail-list will receive a second copy of THE IN-DEX, mailed to the same address, for a year, on pre-payment of One Dollar. This offer is made to accommodate those of our subscribers who wish to increase our circulation by sending extra copies as samples to their friends.

NOTICE.

The Third Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Index Association will be held in Toledo, Ohio, at No. 35 Monroe Street, on Saturday, June 6, 1874, at 2 o'clock, P. M., in accordance with the articles of incorporation.

GLIMPSES.

AT BALBEC, Indiana, another Liberal League has been formed under the name of the "West Grove Liberal League." President, Thomas Gray; Secretary, William Allen.

A NEW LIBERAL LEAGUE is reported by the Secretary as just organized in New Orleans "under the 'Demands' and 'Articles of Agreement' of THE IN-DEX." President, E. Worster; Secretary, J. E. Wallace.

WHAT DO you think of a bird with well-developed teeth? Professor Marsh has discovered one, and will introduce him to you with the sweet name of Odontornis. But this remarkable fowl has the misfortune to be a fossil.

REV. MR. DUDLEY, of Milwaukee, a very liberal Congregational minister, recently delivered a sermon on "Honesty" which seems very timely. Clergymen would command more respect from the outside world, if they chose such topics more frequently.

REV. A. B. BRADFORD, of Enon Valley, Pa., publishes in a local paper an interesting and lively résumé of the argument for believing that Lord Bacon wrote the so-called "Plays of Shakspeare." The case is well worked up, and deserves more consideration than it has yet received.

A MEETING of the Boston Liberal League will be held next Friday (to-morrow) evening, as elsewhere announced. The following list of officers was elected at the last meeting: President, F. E. Abbot; Vice-Presidents, Horace Seaver, Mrs. J. W. Smith; Recording Secretary, Miss J. P. Titcomb; Corresponding Secretary, G. A. Bacon; Treasurer, J. S. Rogers; Executive Committee, R. H. Ranney, H. B. Storer, H. S. Williams, M. T. Dole, Mrs. Etta Bullock, Miss S. I. Dudley, and the President and Secretaries ex officio. This League has about one hundred and seventy members.

IT IS SAID editorially in Nature for April 2 that Mrs. Mary Somerville's Mechanism of the Heavens "still ranks as the best exposition that we possess of Laplace's Mécanique Celeste." "No one," says the same writer, "could possibly have afforded a stronger refutation of the axiom, almost universally upheld half a century ago, that scientific acquirements of a high order are wholly incompatible with the proper exercise of the natural and ascribed functions of a woman's destiny." This is high praise from a disinterested quarter, and women may well be proud of their representative, even if she "was not an originator, but the readlest and aptest of students."

HERBERT SPENCER has fallen into a very strange blunder, which is exposed in Nature for April 2. He claimed that Sir Isaac Newton propounded the three laws of motion as axioms or à priori truths from which he deduced the whole Principia. On the contrary, this is what Sir Isaac wrote in a letter to Roger Cotes, referring to the word hypothesis: "In experimental philosophy, it is not to be taken in so large a sense as to include the first principles or axiomes which I call the laws of motion. These principles are deduced from phenomena and made general by induction, which is the highest evidence that a proposition can have in this philosophy." There can be no reply to this.

MODERN PHILOLOGISTS find whole histories in the languages of the past. Perhaps we should find similar revelations in the languages of distant people now existing. I have been amused with the following instances of expressive words. The poet-singers of Kabylle, in North Africa, have a special dialect or "argot" in which we find :--

A man, name of the leopard.

A woman, gazelle.

A child, little sparrow.

An Arab, one who understands nothing.

A Christian, a man with a hard heart.

Jews, those who are always enslaved. Money, that which softens the heart.

E. D. C.

IN AN ABTICLE by Professor Newman in the Fortnightly Review, allusion is made to a remark quoted by Mr. James Parton in his paper on "Taxation of Church Property." Mr. Parton said that Kev. Dr. Vinton, on being questioned as to the cause of the greatly increased attendance at Trinity Church, frankly replied, "The blessing of God upon good music." This reply is attributed by Professor Newman to "a Catholic priest," and made to account partly for the rapid spread of Catholicism. In point of fact, Dr. Vinton was a staunch Episcopalian, and would have been horrified at being taken for a Catholic. Moreover, the growth of the Catholic Church Is probably due to deeper causes than the influence of music. This is a powerful means of attracting a crowd of mere listeners; but it takes more than mere listeners to build up a church. Of course Professor Newman is perfectly well aware of this, and we refer to the subject only to correct a trifling error of fact.

REV. SAMUEL OSGOOD, D.D., formerly minister of a Unitarian society in New York City, and now preaching as an Episcopalian, thus comments in the New York Evening Post on the religious tendencies of Boston: "As to the drift of ethical and theological opinion in Boston and Cambridge, the signs this last year have been in favor of positive principle and practical charity rather than speculative opinion and dogmatic exclusiveness. The pulpit of Appleton Chapel, Harvard University, has been open to the clergy of the neighborhood without distinction of sect. Old King's Chapel has heard sermons of a catholic spirit from theologians of various schools, among them two Congregationalists and three Episcopalians; whilst the Church of the Disciples (James Freeman Clarke) has had representatives of all Christendom, and even of come-outerism, to state their ideas of the Church Universal. Yet with extreme radical notions the regular Bostonian mind never has had sympathy, and appears of late to be more decidedly emphasizing its dissent. Perhaps the result is due in some measure to the extreme ground taken by THE INDEX, the radical paper recently removed to Boston from the West, and under the editorial charge of Francis E. Abbot, a man of undaunted earnestness and ability, with a staff of well-known and accomplished assist ants. This journal assalls what goes by the name of Christianity with much vigor, and is the organ of Free Religion in its most pronounced sense." The statement that the "regular Bostonian mind" withholds its sympathy from THE INDEX is truly alarming. To be sure, we do not know exactly what our courteous critic's "regular mind" is anywhere: is it a cuphuism for Episcopacy? But perhaps no one ought to be astonished at deviations from it in this old hot-bed of heresles, Boston invented a nice phrase some years ago for what the vulgar call embezzlement, defalcation, and swindling; by a happy thought some "regular Bostonian mind" christened these things "financial irregularities." Will it not be the next invention in order to characterize vigorous thinking, bold speech, and common sense as "religious irregularities"? Whatever it may be, however, THE INDEX deplores the necessity of disturbing by erratic and extreme notions the even tenor of the "regular Bostonian mind," and with due contrition apologizes to the same for pricking its highly respectable gait into a dog-trot.

POPULAR EDUCATION IN ENGLAND.

The question of education-whether it shall be sectarian or secular, local or national, voluntary or compulsory-is the most important, if not the most exciting, question now agitating the public mind throughout the more civilized nations of the world. The report of Mr. Hawkins, republished in the last issue of THE INDEX, has condensed an immense amount of Information respecting the American aspect of this subject; and we should be very glad to republish also the recent valuable work of Mr. John Morley (the highly accomplished editor of the Fortnightly Review), entitled the Struggle for National Education, as imparting a still greater amount of fresh information respecting the English aspect of it. But although it would be impossible for us to republish a book of nearly two, hundred pages, we will uy to give some idea of its contents,-not systematically, but selecting a few points only which appear especially noteworthy.

The great victory of the Liberal party in England, in 1868, meant chiefly opposition to sectarianism in education. "The party," says Mr. Morley, "as the parliamentary votes of its representatives in the House of Commons attest, was hostile to the extension of the denominational system. Liberalism in 1868 meant this hostility more than any one other thing. The assumption by the nation of duties which had hitherto been left to the clergy came formost among the hopes of those who had been most ardent in the cause of parliamentary reform. . . . This was the centre of the party creed. The break-up which we shall see openly consummated in the course of the next few months [now no longer the burden of a prophetical prediction, but an accomplished fact[ was practically effected by the men who came intooffice to resist denominational ascendency, and then passed a measure which gives to the schools of the Church of England about 73 per cent, of the total sum provided by the State for the primary instruc-tion of children." [p. 16.] It was the administration of Mr. Gladstone which, after disestablishing the Church of England in Ireland, handed over to her at home a three-fourths monopoly of English primary instruction by means of the Educational Act of 1870. No wonder that such a measure, bitterly disappointing the expectations raised by the Irish Disestablishment Act and the Irish Land Act, brought about the great revulsion of feeling which so astonished the outside world lately in the overthrow of the Gladstone ministry. It is worth while to glance at the educational standards it sets up.

Mr. Morley quotes from the last blue-book this sentence : "Considering the large number of children who leave school for work at ten years of age, it is not satisfactory to find that, of the scholars above that age who were examined, as many as 46,916 were presented in Standard I., 74,654 in Standard II., and 81,602 in Standard III." What are these "Standards"? There are six of them, as follows :-

STANDARD I.

Reading : Short paragraph from book used in school, not confined to words of one syllable.

Writing : Copy in manuscript character a line of print, and write from dictation a few common words.

Arithmetic: Simple addition and subtraction of numbers, of not more than four figures, and the multiplication table to 6 times 12.

STANDARD II.

Reading : Short paragraph from elementary reading book.

Writing: Sentence from some book slowly read once, and then dictated in single words.

Arithmetic : Substraction, multiplication, and short. division.

STANDARD III.

Reading : Short paragraph from more advanced eading book.

Writing : Sentence slowly dictated once by a few words at a time, from the same book.

Arithmetic : Long division and compound rules (money).

STANDARD IV.

Reading : Few lines of poetry selected by inspector. Writing : Sentence slowly dictated once by a few words at a time, from a reading book. Arithmetic : Compound rules (common weights and measures).

STANDARD V.

Reading : Short ordinary paragraph in a newspaper or other modern narrative. Writing: Short paragraph in newspaper, or ten lines of verse slowly dictated once by a few words at a time. Arithmetic : Practice and bills of parcels.

STANDARD VI.

Reading : To read with fluency and expression. Writing : Short theme or letter, or easy paraphrases. Arithmetic: Proportion and fractions (vulgar and decimal).

Surely the steps are easy, and the summit not ex-travagantly high! Yet only 27.14 per cent. of the whole number of children in the schools are over ten years old, and 1.32 per cent. over fourteen years old; a large proportion of the children go out of school at ten, and learn no more; and of all the children over ten who were examined in the year ending August 31, 1872 (namely, 318,934), only 122,704 passed in all the subjects of even the three lower standards. The requirements of even Standard VI. are sufficiently moderate. Yet in this standard only 15,031 children ware presented, and of these 1,236 failed in reading, 3.755 falled in writing, and 6,212 falled in arithmetic. That is to say, out of the two million children on the school registers, only 8,819 passed without failure in the three subjects of the sixth standard-in other words, were able to read, write, and cypher with even tolerable proficiency! Compare this astounding ex-hibit with what Mr. Mundella told the House of Commons in 1870, that the English sixth standard is below the lowest Saxon, Prussian, or Swiss standard even for country schools : "Arithmetic was taught in the schools in Germany to an extent far beyond that which was deemed necessary here. In Saxony, the pupils before leaving school were not only called npon to read fluently, and write a good readable hand, but they were also required to write from memory in their own words a short story which had been previously read to them; and the children besides were instructed in geography, singing, and the history of the fatherland, as well as in religion. We had never yet passed 20,000 in a population of 20,000,000 to the sixth standard in one year; whereas Old Prussis, without her recent aggrandizement, passed nearly [Speech in the House of Com-390,000 every year." mons, March 18, 1870.]

There is a profound lesson in all these figures and facts, and we cannot better state it than in Mr. Morley's own words : "All this is the natural consequence of entrusting public money to persons whose chief interest in the matter is something quite apart from the purpose for which that money is entrusted to them. We are thinking of the nation, of giving a chance to the poor, of improving those intellectual resources on which, as a people of skilled trades, we depend for so much of our prosperity. The little knots of managers on whom we so irrationally devolve the duty are not thinking of this, but either of sect and its dogmas and shibbolaths, or else of nothing at all." The amount of education actually imparted to the vast majority of English school-children is so insignificant that it fades away very soon, and becomes a thing of the past under the laborious conditions of their subsequent life. The public money is practically wasted, and the common people, thanks to the narrow sectarianism of their religious teachers, are left in dense ignorance of everything they cannot learn in the hard school of poverty itself. So much for "religious education !" Denominational schools are built and sustained for the sake of the denominations, not for the sake of the scholars; and if ever the United States are insane enough to permit what the Catholics are so loudly and persistently clamoring for, a division of the school funds, we too shall have to make by-and-by the same melancholy showing. Our own schools to-day stand sufficiently in need of improvament; but they are complete universities compared to what we should have under the denominational system, which makes both teacher and scholar, in Mr. Morley's dry phrase, "perfect themselves in religious thoughtfulness at the cost of arithmetical, grammatical, and geographical thoughtfulness."

So completely is the teacher in England under the thumb of the clergyman, that a vicar of the English Church could dare to say boldly in a public letter of a teacher who had offended him: "I, not he, am vicar of Dudley; I, not he, am chairman of the managers; and I will not allow him to insult me openly without letting him know that our relative positions are those of master and servant"! [p. 30.] The thrusts which Mr. Morley's rapler makes at such a clergy as this are so keen and penetrating that one would pity them, if he failed to do justice to the noble enceptions. "A little shiver of intellectual liberalism," he says [p. 61], "in some of the more courageous of the Anglican clergy should not blind us to the intensely obscurantist character of the rank and file. It is of no avail to point to the tiny handful of clergymen who accept liberal and modern ideas, from Dr. Thirlwall downwards. Such men, like Mr. Jowett and other academic liberals of his stamp, as well as the head masters of some of the public schools, are only clergymen by accident. They do not belong to the clerical profession. If any one wants to under-stand the real composition of the great clerical army, he should read the proceedings of the two houses of Convocation. It is here that we perceive the clerical mind in its nakedness-here or . . . . in such protestations as that of so comparatively modern and enlightened a person as Mr. Kingsley, that life will be worth very little to him, if there is to be any tampering with that priceless monument of wisdom and charity, the Athanasian Creed." And he adds, with an insight far superior to that of most of our own radicals: "The old-fashioned moderation of doctrine is changed into enthusiasm and excess, and our age of science is also the age of deepening superstition and reviving sacerdotalism."

Such is the party to which Liberal England, with the power all in its own hands, was led by Mr. Gladstone to betray the custody of the people's education. Such, also, will be the party to which America will betray it sooner or later, unless she carries out the secular principle to its ultimatum, the exclusion of all religious worship and instruction from the public schools. "We are teaching the religion of some with money raised by the taxation of all ?' exclaims Mr. Morley. So are we in the United States, just so long as we hesitate to carry out to the full the Demands of Liberalism. The balance hitherto so nicely but so tremblingly preserved between sectarianism and secularism is approaching its end: one principle or the other must triumph completely at last. Which shall it be? Look at the picture here drawn of England's degradation, caused and perpetuated by sectarianism; and then-answer the question for yourself!

SUPERSTITION.

I have before me the Sixth Annual Report of the Evangelical Alliance for the United States of America. It contains an account of the means employed to secure the attendance of delegates to the Conference of last October, and to make sure of the success of that famous occasion. We are informed that during the year 1873 the preparations for the Conference sorbed most of the attention of the Executive Comab mittee and the Secretaries. Letters of instruction, with free tickets for the ocean passage, were sent to all the foreign delegates who had previously accepted the invitation to attend and prepare papers on a signed topics. The Committee of Arrangements, with several sub-committees, went vigorously to work providing for the hospitable reception and entertainment of delegates. The Finance Committee, under able chairmanship, continued, with the aid of pastors in New York and Brooklyn, to collect funds to meet expenses. Public meetings were held in several churches of New York and elsewhere, the secular and religious press .was enlisted, "and every other proper effort made to excite an interest in the community in the coming Conference." A confidential agency for Europe was employed to revive interest there, and hold the delegates to their purpose. Rev. Dr. John Hall, Hon. George H. Stuart, of Philadelphia, and the acting Honorary Secretary, Dr. Phillp Schaff, were appointed for this work, which consumed a summer of arduous labor in Great Britain and on the Continent. "No pains were spared to extend and to deepen in Europe the interest in the approaching Conference, and the delegates were assured that thousands of praying hands would be lifted to heaven during its sessions, by noble Christian men and women unable to be present in body, but present in spir-"The Finance Committee, with the cordial co-11 11 operation of many clergymen and churches, succeeded in obtaining what were deemed trustworthy subscriptions and promises for a little over the full amount it was proposed to raise ($20,000). But owing to the coming on of the 'panic' they were able to collect only $16,646." Nevertheless, "owing to the rigid economy of the Finance Committee, the gratuitous services of the Honorary Secretaries and others, the liberality of the transatlantic Steamship Companies, which spared us over five thousand dollars of the estimated cost of transportation," and the courage of the Messrs. Harper & Brothers, who undertook the publication of the proceedings at their own risk, there was a surplus in the treasury, after paying all expenses, of $9,379.44, which may be awelled to $10,000. The record, as even these few indications show, is a record of hard work, in many fields, by many men, and many churches, for many months; a record of generosity and perseverance, of shrewd calculation and patient persistency, crowned at last, as was natural they should be, with a satisfactory, not a triumphant, success.

Why, then, should the following sentence come at the conclusion of it?

"The Finance Committee have not submitted this sketch to show their foresight in estimating the expenses of the Great Conference, six months before its occurrence,—but, on the contrary, to suggest to all that He in whose service the Evangelical Alliance is laboring has overruled events in its favor, so as to give it success in the pecuniary means of usefulness as well as in other respects."

A poor compliment this to the Messrs. Harpers, and the transatiantic Steamship Companies, and the Honorary Secretaries, and the foreign branches of the Alliance who did their utmost to save cost to the general Committee! The Committee overestimate the expenses of the Conference, by several thousand dollars, and then call in a special Providence to account for the failure of the demands to reach their anticipations! Had they used no efforts and then moderately succeeded; or had they used moderate efforts and succeeded beyond their most audacious hopes; or had they labored hard and still been astonished at the prodigious result,-a modest ascription of praise, according to their creed, might have been overlooked, and set down to the account of sincere faith. But to have toiled terribly, to have exhausted every device, to have left unturned no stone that strength or skill could move, and then to have achieved a result which the observing world regarded as a partial failure. hardly justified the claim to supernatural interposition. Devout men speak reverently of God when some great good comes to them which they cannot account for. To speak of Him when the good is amply accounted for by human effort is to speak rather less than reverently; for it is to speak less than earnestly, or even sincerely. However we may define supersti-tion, however much we may include in it, one characteristic of it will be generally recognized in a disposition to call in God unnecessarily, either on slight pretext or on no pretext at all. O. B. F.

FREE BELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION.

The SEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING of the Free Religious Association is to be held in Boston on the 28th and 29th of May. The meeting will open with a session for business and addresses on Thursday evening, the 28th, at 7 3-4 o'clock, in Horticultural Hall (lower). At this session the following Amendmenta to the Constitution are to be acted upon :--

1. In the statement of the objects of the Association in the First Article, to change the phraseology so as to read thus: "Its objects being to promote the practical interests of pure religion, to increase fellowshlp in the spirit, and to encourage the scientific study of man's religious nature and history."

2. To change the number of Directors, now limited by the Second Article to "siz," so that the number shall be "not less than six nor more than ten."

On Friday, the 29th, there will be sessions for essays and addresses, forenoon and afternoon, in the upper Horticultural Hall, and a Social Festival in the evening at the new Parker Memorial Hall.

Interesting topics are to be discussed by able speakers,—of which further particulars will be given hereafter. WILLIAM J. POTTER, Secretary.

THE Christian Register suggests a new Free Religious Lexicon, something on this whee:— ATHEIST: a rather Free Religionist, whose religious belief does not include the existence of any Susociation who abstains totally from prayer and praise. GOD: "the noblest work of man." FHEE RELIGION: as great a success as "Protestantism is a failure." It has supplanted Episcopacy, besides annihilating the Methodists, permeating the Presbyterians, and submerging the Baptists. The popularity of The Religion of Humanity rivals that of Uncle Tom's Cabin, and American Religion outsells Little Women. CRUBCH: a building to be "dedicated to man rather than God." CHRISTIANITY: a religion which prevalled considerably in Europe and America before the organization of the Free Religious Association. UNITAMIANS: a small sect who are "not Protestants."

THE EVANGELICAL clergy of the Church of England do not seem to have heard, or, if they have heard, to appreciate the shrewdness and wit of Dr. John Ritchle's reply to one who disapproved of his going up and down the country and resorting to agitation. "Agitation?" said John; "what good in the world was ever done without agitation? We cannot make butter even without it?"

Communications.

N. B.—Correspondents must run the risk of typographical errors. The utmost care will be taken to avoid them; but bereafter no space will be spared to Errata. N. B.—Articles for this department should be SHORT, and written only on one side of the sheet. N. H.—Itegliky written articles stand a very poor chance of publication.

N. B.-No responsibility will be assumed for unused manu-ecripts.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE PRISON.

The "Mutual Improvement Association," which bolds its meetings at the chapel of the Christian Uni-ty, continued last Wednesday evening their discus-sion of the topics arising out of the disclosures of James Cotier and others, as to the management and

The occasion was not very widely announced, but was well enough attended to show the great interest fel by those who had heard the statements made at

Here by those who had here the statements in the previous meeting. Mr. Cotier was present, and stated a good many ad-ditional facts of interest, and answered with the ut-most candor all questions put to him by the audience, and of all persons desirous of probing the matter to the bottom.

and of all persona desirous of probing the matter to the bottom.
In the course of the evening an incident occurred which was important in its bearing upon the general credibility of James Cotler.
While questions were being asked about the "soll-tary cells" and the "lower arch." a young man in the andience arose and stated that he could give evidence in corroboration of what had been publicly stated with regard to the nature of the punishment in the latter place, having been himself confined there.
He gave a very nonchalant (and by no means self-erculpatory) account of himself, of the punishments be had endured, and of the reasons for them. But the inportant incident was this: James Cotler, who was unaware of the man's presence until he anounced himself, recognized him as one who could give evidence, if he would, of his (Cotler's) non-complicity in the crime of which the latter has always declared his innocence, and for which he has been deprived of his liberty for several years.
Cotlerrose from his seat, and, turning towards this new witness, naked distinctly whether he (Cotler) was or was not guilty of the crime for which he had been punished. The answer was a decleded no. This answer cannot fail to increase the just and humane sympathy for James Cotler, so generally feit by all who have had fair opportunity of judging his conduct and character.

who have had fair opportunity of judging his conduct and character. The discussion generally was interesting and well-sustained, and called forth many interesting facts and theories of penal systems. At a late hour resolutions were proposed calling for an inquiry by the proper anthorities, and for the appointment of a committee to submit the same to his Excellency the Governor. This, however, was voted down, not, it is believed, from any doubt of the general truth of the state-ments, but simply from an unwillingness on the part of many members of the association, who owe allegiof many members of the association, who ove allegi-ance also to the Christian Unity Society, to appear prominently in any agitation for reform, as the for-mal presentation of such resolutions would necessarimai presentation of such resolutions would necessarily involve. This seems like extreme sensitiveness, if not a want of moral backbone; but we have faith to be-lieve that men will be found whom no consideration will prevent from standing up for the right, the in-jured, and the oppressed, even if the objects of their sympathy are "convicted criminals." JUSTICE.

"SCIENTIFIC ETHICS."

LOCKPORT, N.Y., April 21, 1874.

LOCKTORT, N.Y., April 21, 1874. The ASTRENE IN The science of ethics I was found for the science of ethics I was found by the science of ethics I was found by the science of ethics I was found for the science of the sci upon the subject. Your lecture was so compact, —so much was comprehended in so few words, —no doubt it may have seemed to some "dry and tedlons;" but to me it was anything but that. If you will not think it imper-tinent, I would like to ask you one or two questions. I. Do you believe that in the discussion of morals is involved the necessity of recognizing the existence of a Supreme Being? If so, where do you place him, scientifically considered? 2. Can a person have deep religious feelings, and live a very devoted, religious life, and at the same time be very immoral? 3. You close your lecture with these words: truth, virtue, love. What is truth? What is the difference between truth and knowledge? I do not ask these questions in a captious spirit, by any means; but I ask for light and information, and it is possible that it will awaken much interest on this all-important and vital question. ISAAC ALLEN.

[1. In our opinion the science of ethics is as independent of theology as any other science. Whether theism or atheism is true, moral relations exist all the same among men. But the relation between morality and religion requires at least a whole lecture to discuss intelligibly.

2. Catholic countries furnish many illustrations of a complete divorce between morality and religious feeling; and what is often considered to be the hypocrisy of criminals is probably only an illustration of the same thing. The brigands of Italy and Spain pray devoutly to the Virgin, and then go forth to murder innocent travellers.

3. We published in the first volume of THE INDEX a special essay on the question, "What is Truth?" Roughly defined, truth is the totality of all real relations, and knowledge is the understanding of them. Truth and knowledge are the objective and subjective aspects of the same thing.

It is very gratifying to find that some of our readers were not bored with our lecture on ethics .- ED.]

THE NEED OF FREE BELIGIOUS OBGAN-IZATION.

The enemies of free thought have selzed with avid-ity on the opinion of Strauss, in his last work, that we make ourselves ridiculous when we attempt to sup-plant existing churches by free religious organiza-tions. Free speech through a free press is, he thinks, all we require at present. The time will come when "a fresh coördination of the ideal elements in the life of nations" will find legitimate expression in a new constructive organization to be developed out of the inevitable dissolution of the old religious societies. But the time is not yet ripe for this. At present, "mutual understanding without formal organiza-tion" ought to suffice. Now this must not be allowed to pass without pro-test, especially as free thinkers are only too prone to tion" ought to suffice. Now this must not be allowed to pass without pro-test, especially as free thinkers are only too prone to that free thinkers never seek to dissuade their wives or children from attending Christian places of wor-ship, or imbibling popular religions theories. Doubt-less their motives for this course are, in most in-stances, good, or, at least, specious. He who de-mands freedom for himself must yield it to others. Besides, some advanced thinkers recognize that it is only minds of a certain strength that are capable of receiving the free religions conception of the problem of the universe. As Strauss says, for the majority, churches, and the conception of the universe they present, are still a necessity. Others, again, in their profound conviction that truth will ultimately prevail, are content to stand by and watch it on its onward triumphal march, not deeming that they are at all called upon to help in clearing a path for it. Still others, from a delicacy of feeling that is no doubt mustle, act on the entreaty of the English Lau-reate: reate >

"O thou that, after toll and storm, May'st seem to have reached a purer air, Whose faith has centre everywhere, Nor cares to fix itself to form;

Leave then thy sister, when she prays, Her early heaven, her happy views Nor thou with shadowy hints confr A life that leads melodious days!"

Her early beaven, her happy views, Nor thou with shadowy hints confuse A life that leads melodious days!" But, however creditable or conscientious individ-uals may judge this policy to be, what is its result? We cannot take up any book, pamphlet, newspaper, or sermon that treats of the present thoughts of men, without being confronted with the assertion (now be-coming wearisome from its constant reiteration) that this is an age of deep-seated unrest, of profound dis-satisfaction with ancient formulas and time-honored creeds, etc., etc. All this is, no doubt, profoundly true; but is it new? On the contrary, when was it ever otherwise? Infidels (we would prefer to say Free Religioniats, but let "infidels" stand) may be more numerous in this than in any preceding age, al-though even this we are by no means sure of; but in-fidels there have been in every age. Nay, have there not been ages (in Christian history, of course, we mean) that were themselves infidel? How else shall we call the beginning of the elphteenth century in fidelity, whether of individuals or ages, passeth away "like the baseless fabric of a vision that leaves not a wrack behind." Free thinkers are sporadic. Here one and there another springeth up, somewhat, ap-parently, after the fashion of Melchizedek, "without tather, without mother, without descent." This per-sistency of infidelity, spite of all discouragements, is no dou't a most powerful argument in favor of its truth, or at least of its having a truth. But why is it inhat it thus exhibite itself sporadically, and not in the shape of a continuous development? Just because Free Religionists, until now, have never organized. And why do we not organize? It is to be feared that it is because we are selfish, and care not whether others share our views or not; because we are indo-hent, and will make no sacrifice or effort to syred of the Christian world over our "insidious" attempts to undermine" its faith. But perish all such mean serves. What consideration does the Christian show my feelings when he thrusts into my home, perhap nor, "Are you aware you are going to hell?" It was do "in Rome as the Romans do." Or it we to undermine the thrusts into my home, perhap nor, "Are you aware you are going to hell?" It was do "in Rome as the Romans do." Or it we hall not treat with discourtesy those who are pain fully molent to us, as is no doubt the better course is when hey shall take our places, unfeitered better to thidren with such teaching as shall leas to treat, which may be laudable and may not, -let was hen they shall take our places, unfeitered by the freely, in all its fulness, the truth, as it may be treated to them, concerning God, the universe, and freely in all its fulness, the truth, as it may be the persenders to suffice, but must be implement to the to the state struction. editored to the state of the past experience shows that to do this a the persenders to suffice, but must be implement to the presenders to suffice, but must be implement to the to the state the state of the universe. "POWNER WITH GOD." that it is because we are selfish, and care not whether

14.2

"POWER WITH GOD."

In the Independent of Jan. 1, 1874, appeared an ar-ticle under the above caption by Samuel T. Spear, D.D., always a thoughtful and interesting writer, in which, from the Orthodox stand-point, the "prayer-gauge" discussion is continued. As an explanation of the title of his article and an which, from the Orthodox stand-point, the "prayer, ange" discussion is continued. As an explanation of the title of his article and an illustration of its doctrine, our author refers to the account of Jacob wrestling with the angel. The par-ticular blessing for which, according to Dr. Spear, Jacob wrestled so pertinaciously was the divine pro-tection against the wrath of his brother Esau. Turn-ing to the narrative (a narrative, by the way, whose improbability is only exceeded by the marvellous fact that any one's faith should be strong enough to re-ceive it against the protest of reason), we read in the previous chapter: "And the Lord said unto Jacob, Return unto the land of thy fathers and thy kindred, and I will be will thee." As Jacob journeyed home-ward, he became very much afraid of Esau's revenge. Did he solace himself by trusting in the promise, or calling on the name of the Lord? Not he. Taking control the will thee." As Jacob journeyed home-ward, he became very much afraid of Esau's revenge. Did he solace himself by trusting in the promise, or calling on the name of the Lord? Not he. Taking control from his own heart, he sends his brother a costly present. That night, according to the story and our author's interpretation of it, Jacob was alone, when suddenly God appeared before him in the form of a man. Recognizing the Divine Eleng, Jacob seized his beavenly visitant, and began impor-turately demanding protection against his brother's until morning, and finally bullied the Almighty into granting his request. This story, thus interpreted, makes God assume three positions; now promising acob his protection, now struggling to treak that promise, and now yielding to coercion. That any estnestness of prayer should cause God thus to vali-late is a theory certainly not calculated to exalt one's conceptions of the Deity." Accepting the reach, by the space of three years and six months. And he prayed again, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth, by the space of three years and six months. And he pray

<text>

manning Google

236

THETE minut averager, punishing Pharaoh because of Abra-has his partiality for the Jews); a deceiver and an encourager of lies (1. Kings xrii., 21-23; 11. Thess, i. 12); an instigator of murder (Gen. xrii., 2). Thus the testimony of revelation is of no avail in order in the personality of God, since by proving too me it really proves nothing. Tonceding a personal God, we see nothing unphilo-ment it enally proves nothing. Tonceding a personal God, we see nothing unphilo-ment it enally proves nothing. Tonceding a personal God, we see nothing unphilo-ment it enally proves nothing. Tonceding a personal God, we see nothing unphilo-ment it enally proves nothing. Tonceding a personal God, we see nothing unphilo-ment it enally proves in the enalt of erents which, if broken, cannot be followed by the conse-quence. Suppose yourself seated in a dark room, have light or darkness; the former by striking the match, the latter by refraining from doing so. Here match, the latter by refraining from doing so. Here whilosophical to assume that prayer is such a necess-it the former quotes the latter value on sequent effects; is annely, the power of securing anything whethere is the former quotes the latter value on a way we be the former quotes the latter value on a way be the former quotes the latter stally does not power is annely, the power of securing anything whethere. The we want is proof that prayer has "power betwee, such proofs are will stand the test of scientific the dome. The muster form the doet and the doet of the apprendent. The induction of the modern durated facts. The induction of the modern durated facts. The induction of the modern durated facts. The induction of the modern durated facts.

THE INALIENABLE RIGHT OF BELIEF.

We nove required the ideas of others to contain to our own should be relaxed, and much greater latitude allowed for difference of opinion. Concerning the future destiny of the soul, a sub-ject which has engaged the profoundest thinkers of all ages, and one which the many and various relig-ions of the present are endeavoring to expound, we all have a common right to think and believe accord-ing to the evidence which our individual intellects and peculiar educations enable us to grasp. The idea that all persons can have the same conceptions of God and immortality, considering the difference in their natural capacities of mind, and the diversity of the inevitable circumstances of their lives, is unwor-thy the reason of this enlightened age. How unnat-ural and absurd to expect and demand that others should believe precisely as we do on subjects of which we conceives have no definite and permanent concep-tions! And who of the most zealous adherents of orthodoxy or heterodoxy, who examines the founda-tion of his belief, has the same unshaken faith for even a day?

tion of his belief, has the same unshaken faith for even a day? We all stand on the shores of this life and gaze eagerly into the dark, unexplored ocean of eternity; but from the faint glimmerings of light shed by the dim lamp of present knowledge on that mysterious realm of shadows, we perceive but indistinct and fit-ful images. One, whose faith is unbounded credulity in the teachings of his church and his cherished bible, thloks he sees clearly the celestial city of the redeemed and the terrible and hopeless doom of the wicked, and with encouragement and warning pro-claims bis discovery to his anxious fellows; another, who cannot discern beyond the light of reason, who has been taught to found his belief on tangible evi-dence, sees only a chaos of doubts and uncertainties when he looks into the future. It is very easy to dogmatize on man's eternal destidence, sees only a chaos of doubts and uncertainties when he looks into the future. It is very easy to dograatize on man's eternal desti-ry, as the Church has always done; the interdiction of free thought, on the highest and most momentous questions concerning mortals, can be passed by the dominant religionists who presume to have infallible proof of the truth of their doctrines; but to define a creed that will satisfy all minds, and quiet the spirit of doubt, seems to be a task before which man's in-tellect must confess its weakness. In all ages of the world, the ablest minds have held different theories concerning the nature of that "undiscovered country" to which a vague or a clear faith teaches all men that this transient life leads; and it is dishonoring to hu-manity to conclude that the highest models of moral and intellectual excellence which mankind has pro-duced have wilfully and obstinately sought darkness rather than light. If it were true that the human mind is so constituted that it naturally prefers error to truth, as some religions teach, why do scientists spead long lives of laborious study and research to ophy, when a faise theory would gratify this "de-phaved proneness to err" more than the effulgence of truth? Why do not mathematicians reject the an-clent axioms of this infallible science, and construct a system of absurdities in accordance with man's in-herent love of the false? How can this enmity to truth in the doctrine of man's future destiny be rec-onciled with the mind's constant and unyielding aversion to error in all of the questions pertaining to this life? Is not the position self-refuting? The cause of so much discrepancy in religious views is certainly the doubtful data from which all theories concerning man's relation to God and the nature of his future existence are drawn. Though the evidence on these sublime subjects is sufficient for faith at times to triumph over death, and though the soul feel "secure in its eternal existence," yet the mind must often become involved in labyrinths of immortality into the inscrutable mysteries of the post mortem world.

immortality into the inscrutable mysteries of the post mortam world. I would not weaken the faith of the humblest be-liever who meekly accepts the doctrine of a future existence which he supposes Revelation teaches. This faith, though received from tradition and con-taining much of the superstition of past ignorance, is nevertheless sacred; and unless it could be supplant-ed by one of a purer order I would not breathe on it one whisper of doubt; but in behalf of those to whom nature and education have not given the same credulity, who find a tyranny in creeds, and cannot conform to the usages of established religions, I would solicit toleration from all who respect the dig-nity of human thought. What their loose and ap-parently dangerous views have cost them, others can-not know. How they have struggled against the incu-bus of doubt, endeavoring to rest faith on an inde-structible foundation, and then dwell in calm expec-tation of surviving the decay of this mortal body and realizing the heart's grand ideals in an eternal exist-ence, the simple votary of traditional religion cannot comprehend. On a subject about which so little is definitely ence, the simple votary of traditional religion cannot comprehend. On a subject about which so little is definitely known, yet concerning which all are so vitally inter-ested, great leniency toward seeming errors should be shown. The Orthodox, whose numbers and influence give them an assumption of infallibility, should not forget that the Christian religion has had different interpretations in different ages; that the doctrine which was believed by the Church a few years ago to be "the everlasting truth" is not taught by the pulpit or religious press now; and that views received as es-sential tenets of revealed religion to-day may be soon rejected as unworthy the progressive development of human knowledge. There is no truth more indispu-tably established by the history of religious develop-ment than that religion always takes its tone and tendency from the character of the times in which it is taught, and the knowledge of other subjects with investigation of other sciences, our ideas of it must mecessarily be modified by all the knowledge we may have derived from other sources. Hence no one can-predict with any more certainty the religions views of the future than he can foretell the theories that will be entertained respecting geology, electricity, or any other natural science. In consideration of these reflections, should not the shackles of religious creeds be removed from the starting mind, and free thought encouraged? We

In consideration of these reflections, should not the shackles of religious creede be removed from the inquiring mind, and free thought encouraged? We need all the light that can possibly be reflected on the science of faith; and who knows that there are not rich treasures of immortal truths all around our grop-ing journey through the night of mortality which an unrestricted search might discover? Let the conduct of all persons be subject to the closest scrutiny, and any departure from moral recti-tude receive its just correction; but on subjects be-yond the testimony of reason and comprehensible facts, let the right of honest conviction to each indi-vidual be inalienable. H. CLAY NEVILLE. OZARE, MO.

OZARK, Mo.

INTOXICATION OF A NEW SORT.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 21, 1874.

DEAH SIR:

DEAN SIR:-In the Mercantile Library Reading Room here, there is a fine supply of English periodicals and pa-pers, and amongst others stands preeminent one stout old conservative "Church and State," supported and known as John Bull. That this paper is strictly Orthodox cannot be questioned, for it would no more think of publishing a marriage in Lent than of doing the vilcet journalistic deed which it would be possible to commit. to commit.

to commit. In the account of the services on Good Friday at rarious churches in London, I found that at All Saints, Margaret Street, a Good Friday Litany was said,—the church and people being in the most som-Saints, various churches in London, I found that at An Saints, Margaret Street, a Good Friday Litany was said, the church and people being in the most som-bre costume:-"Soul of Jesus, save me!" "Bood of Jesus, save me!" "Blood of Jesus, inebriate me!" "The effect of this, the account goes on to say, was the reverse of pleasant, especially in the case of the last lines, which grated painfully on the ear. Their Holy Communiton, as they call ft, originating as it does from a cannibal feast modified into bread and wine, which has been again miraculously turned into the "Body and Blood of Christ," must be re-turning to its pristine simplicity, and will probably now be a Holy Orgy of Inebriation. Of all the fantastic Litanies that any church can show, surely this one beats them all! The Christians talk about Christ bearing their sins for them, and now, not content with that, they want his blood to inebriate them! Surely nonsense such as this, if ever equalled, has hardly been surpassed by any superstition in any age. Yours truly, R. A. SKUES.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE OF THE U. S. A. CIBCULAR.

237

To THE FRIENDS OF JUSTICE AND REFORM:-Although the interests of mankind have been vasi-ly promoted by modern civilization, yet our systems are imperfect, and perilous evils are growing up in our midst, which corrupt our common life, and men-ace the permanence of our institutions. This con-dition of public affairs has not only awakened the apprehensions of political seers and philosophers, but the enlightened friends and conservators of national liberty and national hour, are averywhere oppressed liberty and national honor are everywhere oppressed

The entry and national honor are sverywhere oppressed with a sense of insecurity. Now, therefore, be it known that to resist and roll back the tide of popular iniquity; to ensure equality in the possession and exercise of political rights and privileges, regardless of the distinctions of religion, color, and sex; to give expression to enlightened ideas, and moral convictions in social and political life; to rebuke demagogues by leaving them to find posts of usefulness in private stations; to indicate the claims of capable and honest men and women by electing only such to places of honor and public trust; to guarantee to all the advantage of education; to lighten the burdens of the peor; to prevent crime by removing the causes of injustice and violence, and by the reconstruction of our present penal code, and by substituting peaceful arbitration for armed inva-sion or defence.

With a sacred regard for the principles thus briefly stated, and for the purpose of infusing them into the political life of the State, --THE NATIONAL LEAGUE OF THE UNITED STATES, composed of both men and women, has been organized, and is now prepared to establish LOCAL LEAGUES in all parts of this country. To secure your attention and cooperation, we issue this brief circular. Should the object of the NATIONAL LEAGUE commend itself to you sufficiently to cause you to desire to be identified with us for its speedy accomplishment, by addressing our secretary you can obtain details of our proposed methods.

S. B. BRITTAN, M.D., Pres'l Nat. League of the U.S., and Ch. Board of Pub-lication, 80 Broadway.

MARY A. NEWTON, Sec'y, 128 West Forty-third Street, New York City.

HENBY J. NEWTON, Treas., and Ch. Board of Finance.

Board of Directors :--

CHARLOTTE B. WILBOUR, and five others of New York. WILLIAM M. CONNELLY, Baltimore.

GEO. A. SHUFELDT, Chicago.

NEW YORK CITY, May, 1874.

(All liberal papers please copy.)

WE ARE NOT sincere. We profess all horror at wickedness, but we seem to mean wickedness in gen-eral, not anything we have really done in particular and in person. It is sin we deplore, not sins. Our words of self-abasement must not be pressed nor bigger back and the second misunderstood. In the old legend it was no less than a cardinal that

"Oh, I am the very chief of sinners," he murmured in the ear of the priest. "Too true, too true; God have mercy"—were the words that came back through the grating. "Surely I have been guilty of every kind of wrong,"

"Surely I have been guilty of every kind of wrong,"
"Surely I have been guilty of every kind of wrong,"
the continued.
"Alas, my son, it is a solemn fact; have mercy upon him, O Lord."
Thinking that great enormities admitted would force at least a deprecation, he went on:--"I have indulged in pride, malice, revenge, and ambition."
Then he sighed in mournful tones; and in tones as mournful the honest monk answered :-"Yes, alas! some of this I had heard of before; the Lord have mercy."
The exasperated cardinal could stand it no longer.
"Why, you fool," he burst out sharply, "do you imagine I mean all this to the letter?"
"Alas, alas! the good Lord have mercy!" said the pitful priest, "for it seems his Eminence is a hypocrite likewise!"--C. S. Robinson.

CITE INEWISE!"-C. S. Robinson. EVERY PRISONER should have the opportunity and be induced to earn something for himself, that may be put to his credit, and drawn when his term of ser-wice expires. If he has a family, he should be per-mitted and enabled to earn something for them, so as to keep alive his interest in actual social family life, and nurture benevolence. Moreover, he should be en-abled to shorten his term of service by fidelity to duty, industry, and good behavior. The motive will ele-vate his manhood, and stimulate to effort, and both will add to his strength of character, and prevent that terrible indifference or despair which so commonly fastens upon prisoners, and works their ruin. In every possible way prisoners should be inspired to hope, courage, and efforts to be men, and this can only be done by employments, motives, and oppor-tunities adapted to this result.-Baptist Union.

Nor IMPOSSIBLE.—The question was put some time since to a candidate for installation in _______, Conn., by an excellent brother, "Could not God have changed Pharaoh's heart?" The answer was shrewd but evasive. "I insist upon an unequivocal answer," cried the questioner; "Could not God have changed Pharaoh's heart?" After thinking a moment, the answer came: "If he had neglected everything else, and given his whole attention to it, I don't know but he might!"

238		MAY 14; 1874.
Advertisements.	GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS	· · · ·	PUBLICATIONS, OWTER
THE PATRONAGE	LEADING INDEX WEITERS. Including	THE INDEX,	FREE
of the liberal advertising public is respect- fully solicited for THE INDEX. The attempt will be honesuly made to keep the advertis- ing pages of THE INDEX in entire harmony of the index of the index	O. B. FROTHINGHAM, T. W. HIGGINSON, W. J. POTTER,	A Weekly Journal	RELIGIOUS with its general character and principles, and thus to furnish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their most generous support. To this end, all improper or "blind" advertisements, all quack adver- tisements, and all advertisements believed to be fraudhent or nutuat to any one, will be		FREE RELIGION.	ASSOCIATION.
excluded from these columns. No cuts will	F. E. ABBOT,	PUBLISHED BY THE INDEX ASSOCIATION,	Beport of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meet- ing in 1867, at which the Pres
THE INDEX must not be held responsible for any statement made by advertisers, who will in all cases accept the responsibility for their own statements. ADVERTISING RATES.	Are now for sale at the office of THE INDEX, and will be mailed postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 25 cents each; complete Set of Eight Photo- graphs, $1.50.	AT No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. EDITOR:	Eeligious Association was Organ- ized. Containing addresses by 0. Broth- ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucretia Mott Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver John son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Hig-
For 1 to 12 Insertions, 10c per line. 13 1 25 1 8 4 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	Address, THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass.	FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR:	ginson, and Ralph Waldo Emerson.
46 52 46 54 46 On half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent, will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is	INDEX TBACTS. No. 1Truths for the Times, by F. E.	ABRAM WALTER STEVENS. EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS:	(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not possess this.) Price 50 cents.
paid in advance, a further discount of 20 per cent. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor. CIRCULATE   Circulate     Circu- late THOSE PETITIONS. Don't fael satis- fied when pour petition is a yard long, unless you have taked every one to sign it. Gef good, influ- ential names. GET EVERYBODY.	Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Principles." Mn. OHARLES DARWIN, anthor of "The Origin of Bpe- cles," says, in a letter to the editor not orig- inally intended for publication, but subse- quently authorized to be used: "Thave now read "Inurus FOR THE THERS," and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.	O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I. W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. E. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. Mass. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. F. W. NEWMAN, England. CHARLES YOYSEY, England.	Proceedings of Second Annual Meet- ing, 1869. 50 cents. Contains emays by Julis Ward Howe on "Freedom and Re- straint in Religion," and by David A. Was- son on "The Relation of Social Science to Beligion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing- ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. De- ton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, ('. A. Ba- tol, A., M. Powell, R. B. Bickwell, Rowland
Don't neglect to show the petition to any one, hecause he is a stockholder in some church, or other exempted property as many such percons simit the justice of the demand; and those who will not should be made to take the responsibility of refusing to sign it. Don't delay! We want the petitions returned arily.	No. 2Fear of the Living God, by 0. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char- acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wor- thy of the nineteenth century. New Edi-	THE INDEX aims— To increase general intelligence with respect to religion: To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher	Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outlines of Judaism" by Rabbi Wise.
Per order of EXEC. CONN. of the BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.	tion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.	purpose, both in society and in the indi- vidual:	ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains essays
CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.	No. 3Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over- whelming demonstration of the imperfec- tions and errors of the Bible, both in the	To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism	Free Religious Association," followed op addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Re- ligion as a Social Force, especially in rela-
The Index Association, office, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON,	Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.90.	for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfash schemes.	tion to Philantbropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religious Organization, as affected by the Spirit of
has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and THE INDEX,	No. 4.—Christian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.	ion shall take the place of dogmatism and	Organization, as an ected of the opint of the Age;" an essay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions," fol- lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judism," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedanian", by Wm. H. Channing on "The Religions of
A Weekly Paper devoled to Free and Rational Religion.	No. 5God in the Constitution, by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro- posed Theological Amendment to the Unit-	ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE	China," and Wm. J. Potter on "Bangloo Old and New in India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public
It is the object of THE INDEX to give public attenance to the baldest, most cultivated, and rest matured thought of the age on all religious	copies $1.00. No. 6""The Sabbath," by Parker Pills-	pose of securing the more complete and con- sistent secularization of the political and ed-	Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. K. Calthrop Rabbi Wise, and others.
nuestions, and to apply it directly to the social and political amelioration of society. It is edited by FRANCIS E. ABBOT, manisted by	bury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.		rents each.) Contains essays by J. W
ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of Editorial Contributors:- O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R. I. WILLIAM J. FOTTER, New Bedford, Mass.	No. 74*Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents. No. 8The Present Heaven, by O. B.	wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into barmony with the National Constitution.	Americs," by C. D. B. Mills on "Angua- the Expression of a Permanent Sentimen of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Froh ingham on "The Religion of Humanity".
WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverbill, Mass. RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England.	No. 9.— The Present Heaven, by O. 5. Frothingham, treats of a subject that in- terests averybody. New Edition. Price & cents; 12 copies 50 cents. No. 9.— The Christian Amendment, by	THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Lot every one who believes in this movement of at id fract ad by helping to increase the	Bartel, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos and others.
PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng. Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX, is the best popular exponent of Religious Liber- ilism. Every Christian minister, and every think-	P. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac- ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evan- gelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Consti- tution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.	BPECIAL FEATURES. The publication of a valuable leading paper or essay of a thoughtful character, in	Ing, 1873. So cents. (rout of same cents each.) Contains essays by Samue Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and b
ing church-member, should subscribe for it, as the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly ex- position of the differences between Free Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best	No. 10.—The Impeachment of Christi- anity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou- sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from free to one hundred copies.	Regular editorial contributions will con-	addresses by Wm. C. Gameer, two Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longfel Iow, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lu cretia Mott.
means of becoming well informed of the argu- ments and the movements which the Church will save to meet in the future.		to give to THE INDEX its present high po- sition. Mr. VOYSET has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER	Sympathy of Religions, by T. W. Hig ginson. 25 cents.

Almost every number contains a discourse or leading article, which slone is worth the price of one year's subscription.

Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a letter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1873, says: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Religion in the widest sense of the word should be felt in America-that such a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your country,-is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of so-called religious or theological periodicals is, as you know, very large." And later still : "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest."

Send $3.60 for one year, or 75 cents for three months on trial.

Address THE INDEX,

No. I Tremont Place, Boston.

nodern science upon th e idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12 .- Is Romaniam Real Christianity? Two casays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 13 .- On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Religion: The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion izedi The popular conceptions of Religion Isself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of helief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address THE INDEX, I TREMONT PLACE,

Boston, Mass.

Address THE INDEX. No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

containing matters of general interest to rad-ical readers. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from valuable books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted

in every city and town throughout the coun-try. The most liberal terms are offered.

TEBMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered let-ter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case.

TION. nd other al Meetthe Free o. B Frothetia Mott liver John T. W. Hig-

Beligions of China, by Wm. H. Chinning. 25 cents.

son and Revelation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jas. Parton. 10 cents, singly; package 60 cents; of one hundred, $3.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1888 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1872 is quite limited. Orders by mail may be addressed either "Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass.

WM. J. POTTER, Sec. F. R. A.

Google

THE INDEX MAY	14,	1874
---------------	-----	------

2.00 2.00 2.00 2.00 2.00 2.00

POPULAR BOOKS. SENT BY MAIL

AT

PUBLISHERS' PRICES!

ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.

NO BITRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.

1

ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt of orders accompanied with the CASH.

Orders are respectfully solicited from all friends of THE INDEX.

LCOTT (A. BRONSON). Tableta	000
LCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women. Two Tols. Hospital Sketches and Camp and Fireside	144
LUOA         A. Deretter and Camp and Firestle           Happing         Bistelbes and Camp and Firestle           Happing         Bistelbes           An (Id-Frashloned Girl.         1.5           Litis Hen         1.5           My Born, #c.         1.0           Bhast-Bernpe         1.0           Work: A Story of Experience         1.7	0 F
Bhawl-Biraps 1.0 Work; A Story of Experience 1.7 RABIAN NIGHTS' ENTEBTAINMENTS. 1.5
RNOLD'S (MATTHEW) Essays in Origi- clam. 2.0
UERBACH (BERTHOLD). On the Heights. 1.5	P
German Tales 1.0	G
ACON'S Emars. 1.0
AGEHOT on the English Constitution 2.2 Physics and Politics	11
AIN (ALELANDER). Mental Science: A Compandum of Psychology and History of Philosophy. 1.77 Moral Science: A Compandium of Ethics. 1.70
The Senses and the Intellect. Third edi- tion. 1 vol
ARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americanisms. 2.M ARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations
ABTOL (REV. C. A). Radical Problems 2.00 The Elsing Faith	14
ASTIAN (B. CHARLTON). The Begin-	12
niags of Life. 2 vois	в
of Education of the city of Cincinnati: a.l. in the Supreme Court of the City of Cincinnati	H favor of the use of the Bible
Court of Ohio in the above case	1.1.2
BOOKS'(CHARLEST.) Translations, The Layman's Breviary
CCHNEB'S Force and Matter 2.50
UCKLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of Givilization in England and France, Spain ad Scotland. New solition of the entire work, with a complete index. 2 yois 6.00	н
UCELE'S Essays; with a Blography of the	1
ARLYLE'S Works, Cheap edition. Compris- ing the following: Miscolisacous Zeasys, 7 vis. Frach Exrolution, 2 vols.; Frocher- ict the Grast, 10 vols.; Cromwell's Letters, & et., vols.; Artor Bearting, 1 vol.; John Sterling, 1 vol.; Life of Schlifer, 1 vol.; Past and Fresst, 1 vol.; Heros and Hero Wor- ship, 1 vol.; Horos and Hero Wor- ship, 1 vol.; Latter Day Pamphites, 1 vol. Any volume solis separately. 31 vols. Lon- don, 151-3. Pet vol.	R
4c. 5 vols.; Sartor Resartus, I vol.; John Sterling, I vol.; Life of Schiller, I vol.; Past and Present, I vol.; Heroes and Hero Wor-
Any volume sold soparately. 31 vols. Lon- dou, 1871-3. Per vol.	в
LANALS DOD WILLOUG 1.00	H
HANNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D.), The Per- fect Life. In Twelve Discourses, Edited from his manuscripts by his nephew, Wm. Heary Channing	H
BANNING (WM. ELLERY). Thoreau; The Poet Naturalist, With Memorial Verse, 2.08	H
BENEY (MES. E. D). Patience: A Series of Thirty Games for the Fireside
LAEKE (JAMES FREEMAN). Ten Great Religiona	D
LODD (EDWARD). The Childhood of the World	IN St
OBBE (PRANCES POWER). Studies New
Plarimage	JI
Pligrimage. 3.18 ORHELATION and Conservation of Forces:	Je
ORBELATION and Conservation of Forces: A series of Expositions by Grove, Heim- bolis, Mayor, Maraday, Liebla and Carpen- ter: with an Instructuction by Edward L. Tounana, M.D. 1 vol. 200	J
the Market, and the Court; or, Woman's	JO
Citizenship
Hatorical Pictures Retouched; a Volume of Miscolianies. In two parts. Part I., "Stalles, Pictures, and Fanckes". 1.50 The Life of Dr. Maric Zakraswalcs, being a Fractical Historical Control of "Woman's highs to Labor".	K
a Practical Illustration of "Woman's los	1

A Dimension	a
ALWIN'S Origin of Species The Descent of Man, 3 yols	2.00

Journal of Researches. 2.00 Emotional Expression of Man and the Low-er Animals. 3.0 The Variation of Animals and Plants under Domestication. 2 vols. Illustrated ...... 5.00 DESCARTES (RENE.) Discourse on the Method of Rightly conducting the Reason and Seeking Truth in the Sciences...... DICKENS' Child's History of England ..... 1.60

How Liss Loved fie King...... EMERSON'S (R. W.) Easays. First Berles... Miscellarise Representative Men... English Traits... Conduct of Life... Any day and Other Fieces May day and Other Fieces Poster... Proce Works. a 10 cold... Proce Works. a 10 cold... Bociety and Solitade...

2.00 2.00 1.50 1.50 5.00 2.00 Decisity and Solitane. Transformations of Christianity. From the French of Athanase Cogneres the Younger. The Life and Works of Gotthold Ephraim Lesing. Translated from the German of Adolf Stater. 2 vol.

8.99 ARBAB'S Critical History of Pree Thought, in reference to the Christian Beligion ...... 2.00

EUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity, "George Ellot's" translation, 3.00

ISKE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers., 2.00 1.6

ULLER'S (MAROABET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 5 vols ....... 9.00

EEG'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Life...... Literary and Social Judgmenta ..... Creed of Christendom..... 2.00

BOTE'S LIFE. Complied from Family Doc-uments, Private Memorands, and Original Letters to and from Various Priends. By Mrs. Grots. Second Edition. With Por-

AMEBTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter's Camp. Book II. In England. Book II. In Scotland. Book III. In France. Thoughts about Art. The Unknown River. The Intellectnal Life. Chapters on Animals. 2.00 6.00 2.00 6.00

AMILTON (GAIL). Child World. Part Sec-

A MILTON'S Loctures. J. Metaphysical Lectures ...... 2. Logical Lectures ..... 3,50

2.0

3.00 OWELLS'S (WILLIAM D.) Their Wed-

2.09 ding Jourcey Suburban Sketches Venetian Life. Italian Journeys. A Chance Auguaintance TGO'S (V.) New Novel." 'Ninety-Three"., 1.75

UME'S (DAVID) Essays and Life ...... 1.75

GELOW'S (JEAN) Prose. Of the Skelliga sudies for Buorles Borles told to s Ohild. First and Seo Berles A Sister's Bys-Hourn Mopan the Fairy: A Story Foor Matry or. The Clouded Intellect. 1.75

1.25 ERBOLD (DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr. Claude's Broakfast Talk, and other Papers. 1.50

OHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions and their Relation to Universal Religion. India

OWETT. The Dialogues of Plato. Trans-ated into English, with Analysis and Intro-fuctions by B. Jowett, M.A., Master of Balliol College, Oxford, and Regius Pro-cessor of Greek. Four vols...... 12.00

ERR (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities, Poems, Patriotic, Sentimental and Humprous..... 2.00

SCKY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and Influence of the Spirit of Bationalism in 4.00 Europe, 2 vols. History of European Morals from Augustus to Charlemagne. 2 vols ...... 5.00

LEWES' Physiology of Common Life, 2 vols. 3.00 Biographical History of Philosophy, from its Origin in Greece down to the Present Day, 7 vols. Problems of Life and Mind. The Founds-tions of a Creed.

LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.3 LEWIN (REV. RAPHAEL, D'C), What is Ju-daism 2 or, a Few Words to the Jews...... 1,00

LOWELL'S (J. R.) Poems. 2 vols. The Bigtow Papern. First Series. The Bigtow Papern. Second Saries Among my Hooka. My Study Windows.

LOWELL (MRS. A. C.) Postes for Children. .75

MACDONALD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's

1.6

MANN (HORACE). The Life of Horace Mann. By bis Wife. 5.00 Lectures and Annual Reports on Education. 5.00 Annual Reports on Education, from 1839 to 1848 Thoughts Selected from the Writings of Horace Mann. 1.25

MAURICE (Rsv. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind

.76

MIVART (ST. GEO.) On the Genesis of Species. 1.75

MOULTON (LOUISE CHANDLES.) Bed-

2.50

ASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Round the Cirkle Ekkees from Kentucky 1.50

Excess from Ashuter, NEWMAN (FEANCIS W.) A History of the Hebrew Monarchy. The soul its Sorrow and its Appirations. Catholic Union: Exasys towards a Church of the Future, as the Organization of Thetmo, Dockfunal and Fractical. The Real (Jour Weakness of Protestantism. Against Hero-Making in Heligton. 2.00

1.14

4.06 3.00

1.50

.60

Had (no Finde States) HELPS'S (ELIZABETH STUART.) The Gates Ajar The Truity Book Mon, Womer, and Ghosts Hedged In. The Shont Partner. What to Weart.

6.00

Dante Dante SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Acalysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly SOIENCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory, By Prof. Huzley, F.E.S... Physical Science Strategies and Sciences Thermics. By Balfour Stewart, With li-latirations.

4. Physical Geography. By Archibald Gei-kie, LL.D., F.R.S., flexible cloth..... .80

SMILES'S (SAMUEL.) Self-Help ..... 1.50 SPENCER (HERBERT.) Education, Intel-lectual, Moral, and Physical......

 gPENGER (HERBERT.) Education, Intellectual, Moral, and Physical.
 1.25.

 First Frikoral, Follical, and Exthetic.
 2.30

 Districtions of Universal Progress.
 8.80

 Bocial Statics; or, The Conditions Exsential to Human Harpiness Specified, and 2.80

 The Principles of Psychology.
 2.90

 The Principles of Psychology.
 2.00

 Bector of Psices Psychology.
 5.00

 The Principles of Psychology.
 3.00

 Becent Discussions in Science, Philosophy, and Morals.
 5.00

 Bociology.
 2.00

SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The-

TOWE (HARRIET BEECHER.) Pink and White Tyranny. Uncle Tom's Cabin. 1.50

239

Uncle Tom's Cabin. STRAUSS (D. F.) The Old Faith and the New Life of Jeeus. Authorized transfa Iou. 2 vols. TAINE'S (R. A.) History of English Liters-ture. 2 vols.

John 2.5

TENNYSON'S (ALFRED) Poems ...... 1.78 TRACKERAY'S (W. M.) Novels, Honsebold Edition. Complete in S volumes. Per vol.. 124 Vanity Fair. The Newcomes. Adventures of Philip. Pendeenis.

The Virginians, Esmond, and Lorel the Widower. Miscellanscus Writings. Household Edi-tion. Uniform with the Novels. Com-plete in Svols. With new Portrait. Per vol. 1.35

pictoin 3 vois. With new Fortrait. Per voi. 1.25 This edition includes all the matter in the lat-set English editions, with many additions, thus making it, will the novies, the onespect sud most complete Thackersy in the market. 1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Diamond, &c. 2. Paris, and Iriab Sketch-Hocks, &c. 3. Nuobs, Sketches, Denis Duval, &c. 4. Your Georges, Humoritat, &c. 5. Oatherine, Unrietmas Books, and Unre-printed Pieces.

0	THAXTER'S (Mas. CELIA) Among the Isles of Shoals.	1.30
	THOREAU'S (E. D.) Welden; or, Life in the Woods Excursions in Field and Forest. Portrail. The Maine Woods Cape Cod. Letters A Yankee in Canada A Week on the Concord and Merrimac Rivers	2.08 2.08 2.08 2.09
	TYLOR (EDWARD B.) The Early History of Mankind Primitive Culture, 2 vols.	2.50
	TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov- crat. Fragments of Science for Unscientific Peo- ple	1.08
	Light and Electricity Hours of Exercise in the Alps Heat as a Modo of Motion On Sound Radiant Heat Forms of Water Lectures on Light Proceedings at the Farewell Banquet to Frof. Ty dalu.	1.25 2.00 2.00 2.00 5.00
	VOYSEY (BEV. CHARLES.) The Sling and the Shone. Yole, I, and V., each. Vole III. IV. and VI., each. The Yoyaey Appeal. Yoyaey's Defence at York	5.08 3.78 .56
k	WARNER'S (CHARLES D.) My Summer in a Garden, Saunterings, Back-Log Studies	1.00
1	WEISS (JOHN.) American Religion Life of Theodore Parker. 2 vols	1.50
	WHIPPLE'S (E. P.) Literature and Life Enasys and Reviews. Character and Characteristic Men The Literature of the Age of Elizabeth Success and its Conditions Washington and the Revolution	3.08
	WHITNEY'S (MES. A. D. T.) A Summer in Leslie Goldthwaite's Life We Girbs: A Home Story Real Folks	1.50 1.50 1.50

WHITTIER'S (JOHN G.) Poems. 2 vols .... 4.46

ADDEE88:

THE INDEX,

1 Tremont Place, Boston.

A FEW COPIES ONLY

Of an excellent Photograph (Cabinet Size) of Rev. MONCURE D. CONWAY, of London, an be had at the office of THE INDEX. Price

THE REFORMATOR.

A WEEKLY JOURNAL,

For the dissemination of useful knowledge, and the enlightenment of the people on political, religious, and social subjects, with a view to reform.

Published is the German language ev-ery Saturday, at Adrian, Mich.

Frincipal office at Adrian, Mich., to which all letters and communications must be ad-dressed.

C. LOHMANN & SON, Pub's.

C. LOHMANN, EDITOR.

The REFORMATOR circulates in all the principal cities and villages in the United States and Territories, and presents an excellent medium for advertising.

Terms of Subscription-$2 per annum. Ad-vertisements inserted at liberal rates. Sub-scription and advertisements must be paid in

Inquised by Google

50 cents.

advance.

.50

$25 per day guaranteed using our WELL AUGER and Drills. Catalogue res. W. W. GILES, St. Louis, Mo. NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drug, and Hand-grinding MILLS. Ton Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Illustrat-ed pamphiets free. Address

240

A A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACTS.

from No. 1 to 14 Inclusive, will be mailed to any address on the prepayment of 75 OKNTS. Address

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mar THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873.

The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume s) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of $3, by express, at the purchaser's express. A complete file for the year can be furnished in no other form. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Bostos.

CHARLES SUMNER.

A fine likeness of Massachusetta' great Senator, the copy of a recent Photograph by Black, is for sale at THE INDEX office, and will be sent by mall to any address on receipt of the price-seventy-five cents THE INDEX.

			- 1	Tre	mo	nt F	lace	, Be	stor	0.
T	0	N	E	W	S	P	A	P	E	R

PUBLISHERS.

Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I should like to contract for composition alone, of one or more weekly papers. Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed: Tremont Place, Boston.

Tremont Place, Boston. SAVED! FLORENCE: PLOSENCE: The long-contested suits of the FLORENCE SEWING MACHINE CO. sgainst the Singer, Wheeler & Wilson, and Gover & Baker Companies, involving over $250,000, is flually decided by the Supreme Court of the United States in favor of the PLORENCE, which slone has Broken the Monopoly of High Prices. THE NEW FLORENCE, which slone has Broken the Monopoly of High Prices. THE NEW FLORENCE, which slone has those in the sews hackward and forward, or to right and loft. Stmplest, Cherpest, Bast. Solid for cash only. Special terms to Clubs and Dealers. FLORENCE, Mass., April, 1874.

JUST PUBLISHED.

THEODORE PARKER:

A Biography. By Octavius Brooks Froth-ingham. With Heliotype Portrait. I vol. 8vo. $3.00. $3.00

ingham. With Heliotype Portrait. I vol. 8vo. $5.00. An exceedingly interesting memorial of a very romarkable man-one of the striking figures in American history. Mr. Frothing-ham has given a large number of Parker's letters and journals not previously published; be has written in the light reflected upon Parker's words and efforts by the momentous events of the last fifteen years, which have brought out in bold relief the segacity, wis-dom, and heroism of Theodore Parker's ca with so profound an appreciation of Parker's characteristic qualities, that his book is of surpassing interest. The New Yorks THENDE closes a four and a half column review of this book by saying: "It bolds up a remarkable specimen of ro-bast manifness whose form and lineaments can be studied, with equal advantage by friend and foe."

Sent, postage prepaid, on receipt of price Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

JUST PUBLISHED

MUSICAL GARLANDI

DUETS FOR VIOLIN AND PIANO. Price $2.50. New and attractive arrangements by SEP. WYNNER, of Galops, Waltzes, Mazurkas, Airs, Quadrilles, and Potpouries for Violin with Pi-ano accompaniment. Pages Sheet Music ano Size, MUNICAL FLOWERS! DUETS FOR FLUTE AND PIANO. Price $2.50.

Similar in design to the "Musical Garland," but for Flute with Plano accompaniment. 160 pages, Sheet Music Size, well filled.

FLUTE BOUQUET. Price $1.50.

A collection including a great variety of music for the Flute. VIOLIN AMUSEMENTS. $1.50.

Similar in design to the Bouquet. First-rate, easy Violin Music. Two books by Sep. Winner. They are not so large as "Musical Garland" and "Musical Flowera," containing, however, as much Flute or Violin Music, but no Piano accompani-ment.

THE RIVER OF LIFE

continues to attract general attention as one of the best SUNDAY-SCHOOL SONG BOOKS ever published. $30 per hundred.

The above books for sale everywhere OLIVER DITSON & CO.,

BOSTON. CHARLES E. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York. in held at HOSPITALLER HALL, SS Washing-ton Street, Boston, overy Sunday, at 10% A.M., X& and X% P.M. All that relates to be Religious, Folitical, and Social interests of manking consti-tute the subjects for discussion. This Inter-and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Hospitaller Hall.

TO BOOK-BUYERS

Please examine the revised list of POPU-LAR BOOKS on the opposite side of this page. Any OBTAINABLE BOOK NOT IN THIS LIST will be furnished to order. Readers of THE INDEX who desire to pur-chase English, German, or French Books, on who wish for information as to the price, So., of any American or Foreign Book, can have their orders promptly filled and their inqui-ries answered by addressing. THE INDEX. addressing THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE

Found volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the bourchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.00, $2-00, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable eingly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive read-ing twenty years hence as to-day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of these volumes. Address THE INDEX, THE INDEX,

				Treme	10.0 4.1	acc, n	OBLO
ł	W	A	R	R,	Е	N	3	8
	T	RUE	CI	VIL	IZA	TIC	DN.
r	1.00		Prie		nts.	10
I

PRACTICAL DETAILS, abowing the workings of the COST PRINCIPLE.

Price 25 cents.

For	sale b	7
s.	Н	4	M	0	R	S	Е	,
	95 1	Brom	field	8t.,	Bost	0B .
C	н	A	P	т	Е	R	1	S
÷.,			FRO	M

The Bible of the Ages.

The Bilde of the Ages. FOURTEEN CHAPTERS. Selected from Hindu Vedas, Buddha, Con-fucius, Egyptian Divine Pymander, Zoroas-ter, Taimuda, Bible, Flato, Pythagoras, Mar-cus Aurelius, Epictetus, Al Koran, Luther, Scandinavian Eddas, Renan, Tallesin, Mil-ton, Penn, Adam Clarke, Mary Fletcher, F. W. Newman, Tyndail, Max Müller, Elias Hicks, Channing, Garrison, H. C. Wright, Lu-cetis Mott, Higginson, T. Starr King, Bush-nell, Parker, Davis, Emma Hardinge, Emer-son, Denton, Tuttle, Abbot, Frothingham, and others.

Gespels and Inspirations from many Centuries and Peoples. "Slowly the Bible of the race is writ. Each age, each kindred, adds a verse to it."

Each age, each findted, suds & verse to it, Eddied and Comylided by GILES B. STEBBINS. Four hundred pages; bound in cloth; price $1.50. No Estra Charge for Postage. Address No. 1 Tremon File, Boston.

UST 0 B THEODORE PARKER,

SIDNEY H. MORSE.

Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi-poise, breathe through the clay; the artist has so filled his own heart with appreciation of that noble life that he has been able cun-ningly to mould it into those delicate lines which the character had wrought on the liv-ing fibre. We are tempted to exclaim, as we stand beside it, as the old artist did to his perfected work, "Speak then!"-Hannah E. Sizvenson. perfected Stevenson.

All the characteristics of my husband are in the bust,—his greatness, his goodness, his tenderness, his lova. You cannot give life to clay or marble; but you can represent it, and this Mr. Morre has done.—Lydia D. Parker to Hannah E. Stevenson.

The eyes, though but of clay, are gleaming with possible indignation, with possible tears the lips are set firm with the resolution of him who, like Paul, would "fights a good fight" as well as "give a reason."—Samuel Longfel-tere.

The first time I have seen Theodore Parker since he died.—Wm. Sparrell. The best representation of Mr. Parker ever executed in clay.—Boston Daily Globe. The face is strong and noble as it should be. The likeness is good.—Boston Daily Advertiser. Nothing a nucear for beauty along or the fact. The inteness is good.—Bostom Daily Advertiser. Nothing appears for beauty alone, or Daily or to show the vanity of the artist. All is forgotten in the man—the true. Teal, Yankee man, Theodore Parker.—L. J. H. in the Golden Age.

Copies of this B ist, finely finished n plaster, $10 each. Toxing for transportation, $1 extra. Freight or expressage paid by party sonding order. Weight of box about fifty pounds. /reders may be sent to S. H. MORSE, Ro.m 13, 25 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.

FREE DISCUSSION BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

Our organization some time since decided to di rect its efforts for the present towards socuring

Repeal of the Laws

whereby church and other corporate property is unjustly exempted from its share of the burden of taxation.

As a means to this end, we have published for meral circulation several thousand copies of a on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEE of Nov. 27. The edition was made as large as our funds ould allow; but, so great has been the demand. it is already nearly exhausted.

TRACT

Our next edition ought to be large snough to place a copy in the hands of

EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE.

and generously to supply the calls for the other States

To do this, we need funds; for, although w have made arrangements for printing the Track at vary low cost, it is impossible for the Boston League, with its various other expenses, to bear the entire expense alone. Will not, then,

All Friends of the Movement

come forward and help us with liberal donations We frequently receive communications from parties wishing tracts to distribute, asking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circusting them gratultously throughout the country

To many of the subscribers of THE INDEX and others whose names have been furnished us as probable friends of the movement, copies of the Tract, together with Petitions asking the repeal of the Examption Laws, have been sant,

With the Hope

that such friends will try to secure as many sig natures to the petition as possible in their locality We respectfully ask those who are unable to attend to the matter themselves to place the petitions in the hands of those who will.

Let us

F

BOLL UP THE LIST!

Let our united voices be heard! And let it be done NOW! We would say, also that we feel deeply the

To been

Other Organizations

in this State, to cooperate with us in securing equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are those who are inclined to Form a Liberal League.

we are ready to render such assistance as lies in our power.

LIBERALSI

If all will units and work, the results sought can be accomplished Address

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Per order of the EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

G. L. HENDERSON & CO.,

BANKEBS,

LEBOY, MINN.

Money invested on short time, or for a term of years, on unincumbered improved farms, at 12 per cent, interest per annum, payable security guaranteed. All expenses for abstract of tille and recording mortgacy paid by borrower. We collect and remit to any part of the United States free of charge. REFERENCES. -- First National Bank, Mo-Gregor, Iowa; First National Bank, Musan-Minn.; Miwaukee National Bank, Musan-kee, Wis; City National Bank, Chicago, IL; Allen, Stevens & Co., Bankers, New York City; Morris Altman.

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES. paying 8 to 10 per cent. in Investments in Real Estate in Chicage and vicinity, if judiciously made, are the best and safest modes of employing capital. The old

Real Estate and Loan Agency

07 ERNST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPS STREET Chicago (Established 1853).

Guarantees perfect title and ample security in all its Beal Estate Loans. Firstclass Securities always on hand. In-terest and principal collected without charge. Real Estate Investments made on commission or on shares; tares paid, &c. Orders of capitaliss and real estate own-ers respectfully solicited.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is fail longth. It is full size. It is smooth and classic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine use.

Many kinds of spool slik are a perfect

fraud, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented a much more share that have a represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unit for use. The ladies will always find the Eu-reks Silk exactly as represented. Every spool is warranted, and the manufacturer's name indeilidy branded on every spool. Call

ame indelibly branded on every spool. Call

HALF-HOUR RECREATIONS

-IN-

POPULAR SCIENCE.

KOITED BY DANA BETES.

The growing demand in this country for books on popular science encourages the ed-itor and publishers to issue this series of pa-

25 cts. per Part; $2.50 for twelve consecutive

Parts.

NO.1. STRANGE DISCOVERIES RESPECTING TEL AUBORA AND RECENT SOLAR RESEARCHIM. By Richard A. Proctor, F.B.A.S.

NO. 2. THE CRANIAL AFFINITIES OF MAR

AND THE APE. By Prof. Rudolph Virchow, of Berlin, author of Collular Pathology.

No. S. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, 4 its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col-ored plate and several wood-cuts,

No. 4. SPROTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERIES, showing its Application in Microscopic Research, and to Discoveries of the Physical enly Bodies. From the works of Schellen,

Young, Roscos, Lockyer, Huggins, and oth-

No. 5. NEBULE, METBORIC SHOWERS, AND

No. 6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BRADE

AND EPIDEMIC DELUSIONS. By Dr. Carpen ter, author of The Microscops and its Bow-lations, Human Physiology, etc.

No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARS. By Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of Michigan, author of Sketches of Creation.

No. 8. ON YEAST. By Prof. Hunley, F.E.S.

No. 9. THE CIRCULATION OF THE WATERS ON

NO. 10. THE STONE AGE, PAST AND PRESENT. By Edward B. Tylor, author of Primits

No. 11. THE RELATION BETWEEN MATTER

AND FORCE. By Prof. John H. Tice, of St.

THE INDEX.

1 Tremont Place, Boston

THE FACE OF THE EASTH. By Prof. H. W.

HALT.

Constitution and Movements of th

Fully illustrated.

ers.

COMETS.

Dove.

Culture.

Louis.

For sale by

Dinitizenti Google

pers, complied from the works of the m popular scientific writers.

for It.

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1874.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

VOLUME 5.

WHOLE NO. 230.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other ecclesiastical property shall no longer be arguing from just taration. 1. We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

1. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-cond and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cease. 4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by he government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostensi-bly as iter-book or svowedly as a book of religious wor-ship, shall be prohibited.

akip, shall be prohibited. 5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease. 6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and all other departments of the government shall be shol-labed, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-alities of perjury shall be setablished in its stead. 7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-pealed.

pealed.
& We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty.
& We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical bedministration of the same, no privilege or ad-rantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; hat our entire political system shall be found-ed and administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, undiachingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Floreds, It is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperilied, the advance of civili-saion impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and religion; and Whereag, Certain grave inconsistencies with the gener spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the pra-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; THEREFORME, We, the undersigned, hereby associate on seires together under the following

ARTICLES OF AOREEMENT

ART. 1 .- The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-

ART. 3.- The means employed retorms. ART. 5.- The means employed in working for these objects shall be regular local meetings, free discussions, lectures, addresses, conventions, the platform and the press in gen-eral, and all such other means as are pesceable, orderly, and right.

Ast. 4.-Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds rote of the members.

ART. 5.-Any person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agreement. Air. 6.—The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Secretary, a Troasurer, and an Excou-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be those commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be ex-officio delegates to the Nati-val Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together. Air.7.—These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-ular meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ment shall have been sont to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

So far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of The Inna. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that it will yet be accepted universally by the American people, as the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A The only platform consistent with rengion the princi-liberal league ought to be formed to carry out its princi-ples wherever half a dozen earnest and resolute Liberals can be got together. Being convinced that the movement can be got together. Being convinced that the movement to secure compliance with these just "Demands" must surely, even if slowly, spread, I hope to make THE INDEX a means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and active co-operation of every man and every woman who be-lieres in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-port promptly the names of their Presidents and Secre-uries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion as that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are right, let their organized voice be heard like the sound of uany waters. many waters.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor. Bowrow, Sept. 1, 1878.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page. RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CON-STITUTION.

ABTICLE 1.

ABTIGE 1. SECTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-tailishment of religion, of favoring any particular form of the people peaceably to assemble and to percent of the order the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dow-ment for a redress of grievances. Boornov 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting an of religion, or prohibiling the free sericles thereas; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the of religion, or prohibiling the free sericles thereas; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances. No religious asst shall ever be required as a condition of suffrage, or as and no person shall ever in any Office or public trust, in any State; and no person shall ever in any Office or a publicor private duty, or ren-der the people people of any public or private duty, or ren-der the consequence of any public or private duty, or ren-der the performance of any public or private duty, or ren-der the people people and have power to enforce the pro-tions of the second section of this Article by appropri-and the aubject of religion. Bornow S.—Congressed and the article by appropri-and the aubject of religion.

· NOTES AND COMMENTS.

BT A. W. 8.

THE PRICE of Mr. Morse's bust of Charles Summer is five dollars, -- not three dollars, as we stated last week.

HERE IS a new Orthodox definition of salvation. Thomas K. Beecher says: "Salvation means health ; so say our oldest and best translations of the New Testament."

DUTY ought not to be, as it is in many cases, a mill stone grinding individuality to powder. Duty should be beauty; and, when it is not, it is questionable if it be daty at all.

TREAS ARE ever so many people in the world, whom I should like to know; and some people I know, whom I wish I did not. This is a thought which sometimes oncurs to one who mingles much with society.

THE MOBAL Education Association will hold its an nual meeting in Wesleyan Hall, 86 Bromfield Street, Boston, Thursday, May 28, at 10 A. M. Mrs. Livermore, Mrs. Severance, Mrs. Woolson, Mr. Alcott, and others, are to make addresses

EVERY new point of contact which a man makes with the world, every new relation which he establishes with society, becomes both a source of pain and pleasure to him. Yet both pain and pleasure go to make up our needful experience; and, so long as we live, our horizon line must lift and travel before us, albeit not all which is included therein is to our immediate liking.

IN A POEM on Death, by John Fraser, the following beantiful lines occur:-

m occur:--"Then welcome, O fair Death, Of all sweet things the breath! Weary, alone, unbited, My apirit yearms for rest, And that immortal calm, The only balm. Let who may fear to die, That do not I."

Is death "the only balm"? No; peace of mind, which one may have this side the grave, is also a sweet balm. And this comes through the optimizm of faith.

THE Christian Union says: "The aim of a Christian life is to be like God." That is a better definition than we had expected from the Union ; we should have sup-posed it would say that the aim of a Christian life is to be like Christ. But is it not a still better, because a more inclusive, statement to say that The aim of a true life is to conform to its highest Ideal ?

A NEW POLITICAL movement has been started in Worcester, in this State, by a score or so of young men, "to gain a more thorough knowledge of the great questions of public policy which are to agitate our country during this and the next generation, and to introduce into politics a and the next generation, and to introduce hub pointies a new element, with the hops that it may tend to elevate and purify them." The "elevate-and-purify" purpose is a most laudable one; but we wish our young friends had a less desperate case to apply it to, than "the politics" of our country presents.

SIB GARNET WOLSELEY is a man who loves a big shindy, and who prefers the red-hued honors of war to the green laurels of peace. The queen wished to "raise him" to a peerage, because he so thoroughly "licked" the King of Ashantee; but Sir Garnet wouldn't let her, insamuch as he had "fixed his hopes and interests wholly in the military profession." It Sir Garnet continues to "fix his hopes" on the pleasant pastime of butchering people, his own turn may come one of these days, when instead of being the slayer, he will be the slain. He had much better conclude to die a natural death than persist in rushing on to a sanguinary end.

A CONVENTION of the New-England Labor-Reform League will be held in Codman Hall, 176 Tremont Street Boston, Sunday and Monday, May 24 and 25. There will be three seasions each day, commencing Sunday A. M. at 10:80 o'clock. Stephen Pearl Andrews, John Orvis, F. H. Heywood, and others, will speak. The League has less than "nine demands," but perhaps makes up in em-phasis on its few what it lacks otherwise. "Abolition of property in land, of rent, naury, profits, and all other property in land, of rent, naury, profits, and all other means whereby speculative thieves live on useful peo-ple,"-this is the explicit proposition with which the League comes before the public. We bid it welcome to warm and earnest work!

THE BOSTON Eight Hour League will hold its fifth Annual Convention, at Horticultural Hall, in this city, Tuesday, May 26,-with morning, afternoon, and even ing sessions. The morning session will commence at 10 o'clock. Geo. E. McNeill, Esq., will preside, and rebelock, Good, E. alchent, Ed., will prested, and re-marks will be made by Ira Staward, F. A. Hinckley, Rev. Jesse H. Jones, E. M. Chamberlin, Rev. W. R. Al-ger, and others. The Hutchinson family will sing appro-priate songs. The subjects which the League will con-sider are—The relation of less hours to less poverty; The more equitable distribution of wealth through the presence of production: The relation of Finance and Chrisprocess of production; The relation of Finance and Christianity to the Labor Question. We trust the League may have a good Convention.

OUR CHRISTIAN friends are in the habit of claiming for Christianity all the credit of our modern civilisation; but Rev. Dr. Kohler, Rabbi of the Sinal Congregation in Chicago, puts in a claim for Judalam, as follows :-

Chleago, puts in a claim for Judalam, as follows:--And what did the Jews accomplish for our modern civilization! They were the torch bearers of aclence dur-ing the night of the Middle Ages. By translating Arabic and Hebrew books into Latin for emperors and prelates, they nulocked invainable treasures for an ungrateful Christendom. At the feet of Jewish scholars, Germany's and italy's great men sat to receive instruction from their wise lips. When Reuchlin and Luther fought their vic-torions buttle against priestly arrogance and mental slav-ery, Hebrew scholarship was the handmalden that sharp-ened their sword of truth, and put the beavy armor of learning on them. The great Reformation is much in-debted to Jewish labor.

HERE is a specimen of eloquent Hibernian editorialism

HERE is a specimen of eloquent Hibernian solutionalism which we find in the Irish World :--Away where the flery Southern sun looks down upon the rushing streams and dense forests of Tasmanis--where the Himalays soar to heaven, and the waters of the Ganges roll-where the pyramids, defying time, still cast their shadows on the land of the PHARAOHS--by the northern Steppes, on the shores of the Euzins, or where arise the minarets in the crescent-crowned city of the Sultan--there, imprinted in the soil, carved on the rock of time, distinct and inaffaceable, are traced the footsteps of the Irishman.

And this is only a tittle of what follows. Through early a whole column the wheres and theres gleam and flash, until one's eyes in reading are bewildered, so that when he gets through he scarcely can see any where, or tell if anybody be there or not.

MR. G. H. LEWES, in his preface to the abbreviated MR. G. H. LEWES, in his preface to the abbreviated Life and Conversations of Dr. Samuel Johnson, by Mr. Main, speaks of those books which "every one is reading to-day, and no one will read to-morrow." There is much comfort in this remark to those whose time is so pressed comfort in this remark to those whose time is so pressed by affairs that they have little lelaure to read. To such it is very exasperating to be asked if they have read this or that last new book, —as if it were a great misfortune, or a literary sin, not to read each new book directly it ap-pears from the press. The gods are sometimes kind have the same most would and if one is averaged by when they seem most cruel; and if one is prevented by circumstances from reading many books, it is probably a wholesome restraint that he is subject to. Besides, as a rule, old books are the best,—like old wine. Whosever reads the masters in literature will find that quality more than makes up for lack of quantity.

LIST OF LISEBAL LEAGUES

 BT. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, Frenident; F. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries.
 BOSTON, MASS.-F. E. Abbot, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries.
 JEWFRENON, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Secretaria. Beeretary. BAN Josz, CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Secretary. Becretary. ToLEDO, IOWA.-J. Reedy, President; E. B. Beckley, Secre-tary. YINELAND, N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Secretary. Becretary. JUNCTIONVILLE, NEB.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Esaley, Scorelary. OLATRE, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Secretary. OLATHÉ, KAN.-S. E. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Becretary.
 DETROIT, MUGL.-W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, Becretary.
 BERDSVILLE, MIGH.-A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. Knowles, Secretary.
 OSCODLA, MO.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Betretary.
 DETROBA, MO.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Betretary.
 President, J. D. Walters; Secretary. E. M. Bridgman.
 M.G. -George M. Wood, President; J. E. Crawford, Secretary.
 Austrik, Series, Secretary. urer. MINMEAPOLIS, MINN.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. New YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary. ST. JOSEFH, MO.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Recretary.

Berretary, Wis.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy.
 BALBEO, IND.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen.
 Naw OnLEANS, LA.-President, E. Worster; Secretary, J. E. Wallace.

The Suppression of Vice.

A SERMON DELIVERED IN LYRIC HALL, NEW YORK, FEB. 15, 1874.

BY O. B. FROTHINGHAM.

DATA DE LA PROTHUMBAM. BY O. B. FROTHUMBAM. Thy subject is the Suppression of Vice, as a princh-for the suppression of vice. I am not in timistely ac-dual to the suppression of the trade in the moral publications, an object at once legitimately ac-moral publications, an object at once legitimately ac-moral publications and work of this particular so-timoral publications and work of this particular so-timoral publications and work of this particular so-with the organization and work of this particular so-timoral publications, and object at suce the present of the organization and work of this particular so-with the organization and work of this particular so-time gives me my text and theme. The name de plauded: the principle, that vice is an evil to be fordy plauded: the principle, that vice is an evil to be fordy plauded: the principle, that vice is an evil to be fordy plauded: the principle, that vice is an evil to be fordy plauded: the principle, that vice is an evil to be fordy plauded: the principle, that vice is an evil to be fordy plauded: the principle, the vice is an evil to be fordy plauded: the principle, that vice is an evil to be fordy plauded: the principle, the vice is an evil to be fordy plauded: the principle, the vice is an evil to be fordy plauded is attempt this is wise and discrete. If is on plauded is a the conscience of the community is plauded is the toward with the principle. The server wise and evice is and the toward is a the toward with the principle. The server wise with the possible is the point of the server wise with the possible is the possible. The plauded is the conscience of the community is plauded is the conscience of the community is plauded is the conscience of the community is plauded is the conscience of the server wise with the possible. The possible wise the dower wise with the promese of the community is plauded is the supplication, prayer, bringing the powers of this world and of the world to come to bear on the minds of the sinners; but the object is still suppression, and the ultimate instrument is force-force of intimida-tion, force of public sentiment, the threat of the here-after, and, behind that, the force of law. From first to last the end is computison; to break up a traffic, to bring a species of iniquity to a summary end. The policeman stands in the shadow. A similar spirit suggests similar projects to close fast all places of immoral resort. The policy of keeping such places under the watchful eye of the authorities, reducing their power of harm by severe restrictions, compelling them to submit to police reg-ulation, is denounced as a virtual approval and pat-ronage; and absolute suppression, in the name of public virtue, is insisted on as at once a moral duty and a social necessity. But there is no need of pror-ing that the principle of suppression is at present in favor with earnest reformers. It is more to the pur-pose to examine the essential character of the princi-ple itself. And first, let us ask, What notion of vice is implied in it? Is it not something them to not vice is implied and a social necessity. But there is no need of prof-ing that the principle of suppression is as present in favor with earnest reformers. It is more to the pur-pose to examine the essential character of the princi-ple itself. And first, let us ask, What notion of vice is implied in it? Is it not something like this: that vice is a habit, a custom, a wilful abuse of good things, a per-verse neglect or contempt of decent behavior, a de-liberate defiance of moral opinion, a course of con-duct, more or less persistent, which can at any fmo-ment be arrested and discontinued, a garment that as in be put off, a custom that can be dropped? A scientific lecturer apeaks of intemperance as an evil that is under our control. And reformers speak as if those who indulged in the vice did as because it gave them pleasure, and those who supplied the means of indulgence did so simply because it gave them profit; in a word, as if the vice had no deeper root than in-dolent thoughtlessness or a careless mood. But not such an idea of vice inadequate? No occasional; idle habit thoughtlessly contracted by consequences, which are, however, veiled by other consequences, which are, however, veiled by other consequences, which are, however, veiled by other consequences, pleasant and less remote. Much of what we call vice is not of this description. The larger portion of its not; certainly the most pernicious is not. The word from which our English term is derived conveys the idea of taint, corruption, ingrained tendency to evil. It suggests, not such a pernicious is not. The word from which our English the spot, dyed in the wool, which no chemistry will eradicate; which renders necessary a new gar-ment. The worst vices are of this character; the re-mains of inveterate habits, that have been practised for hundreds of years until they have acquired the nature, a kind of organic and constitutional fate, working in the blood, and passed along from father to work to increase the vices is a disapproves of. Niewed under this aspect, vi numer is sain of the law of inherited sensu-ality. Every vicious propensity in human nature owes its origin to similar causes; all inordinate indulgence of passion has this history. The instinctive violence, the matter-of-course brutality, the furious impulsive-ness and malignity, wholly unrestrained by personal or social considerations, the manias of all sorts, are the continuance of inveterate habits long after the occasions that called them into existence, and made them in a sense inevitable, have passed. This is the fact the Ohurch had in mind, and meant to state, in the doctrine of natural depravity. The

This is the fact the Church had in mind, and meant to state, in the doctrine of natural depravity. The Church affirmed a truth, though more absolutely than was just, when it declared that vice was an in-herited and transmitted taint which no effort of the moral will, no exercise of moral purpose or determi-nation, could eradicate, because it was deeper than all determinations of the will. There must be conver-sion to a new law; the establishment of a new inher-itance; institution of a new order of qualities; in a word, a new nature. A new progenitor, Christ, must take the place of the old progenitor, Adam; and a fresh current of influence, creating a fresh law of habit, must predestinate people to blessedness, as the primeval law predestinated them to death. To this end, the Church discountenanced all endeavors through secondary agencies of education, culture, moral teaching, the natural affection and consciences. It had no faith in social reform, none in public legislation, none in political management; for these agen-of the natural man, and of course had no virtue to redeem the natural man. Who can lift himself by ugging at his own waistband? The reliance of the Church was wholly on the rites and doctrines of re-ligion, the pricethood, the sacraments, private and home devotion, the training of character in an entita-by new school—the school of Christ. There was a deep philosophy in this intent and en-eases time more generously and trustingly pursued, which force purely affirmative, and with sufficient of elasticity to meet the changing needs of the human mind, the results might have been good. Unhappily nondification, was succeptible of no adaptation to ci-our stances, and it was, moreover, fatally compro-mised by a stead yand asgyr resort to the method of suppression. A sif impatient at the slowness of the converting process, weary of the task of planting vice of grace, the Church undertook, with vicent hand, the stead yand asgyr resort to the method of suppression. A sif impatient at the slowness of the converting process, weary of the task of planting vice of grace, the Church undertook, with vicent hand, the hydra by a beautiful law of evolution which should create a series of nobler growths, it un-dertook to cut off the poisonous heads one by one-it took boys and girls at the slowness, refused then the joy of the field seitses, kept them occupied was reliable of life, barred the gates to every terrestrial garden, morified their desires, kept them occupied the patture. To counterce it by an opposite disposition to belief was tedious and diffi-cult, and the method of repression was resorted to. The disposition to muleif which, in its ophilon, was the most fruitful source of vice. The disposition to underlef was regarded as the deadliest symptom of the statural, unconverted heart. To counteract it by an opposite disposition to belief was tedious and diffi-cult, and the method of repression was resorted to. The disposite disposition to belief was tedious and

"subjected others to the process of crushing out nature. The monstrous story cannot be told to modern sud-lances." If ared no better with the attempt to exterminate inbelief, which was also regarded as a vice of nature. The Inquisition was active, the axe was busy, the inbelief, which was also regarded as a vice of nature. The Inquisition was active, the axe was busy, the inbelief were put out of the way. The spirit of re-orm broke out a score of times before Luther, and on Brescia, Jerome, Huss, Savonarola, were con-demned and burned; the Albigeness were externi-nold of Brescia, Jerome, Huss, Savonarola, were con-demned and burned; the Albigeness were externi-ster the Vaudois were hunted down; the Lollards were scattered, and, to all seeming, obliterated. In tally, Spain, Flanders, Austria, Bohemla, the system on the Bregland the destroying power did its utmost on make unbelief dangerous to property, reputsion, and life itself. With what result? With no perma-nent result whatever, for mind was alive and refused otherwise silenced; thought could not be. The book ould be destroyed; intelligence never. Intelligence prisible agencies; it worked from unseen centres; it was in the ground, in the air; the heel that stamped its smouldering fire only raised a multitude of parks that flew out in every direction, each touching attain that ran into the very heart of society. The visible agencies is the work for munesen centres; it was in the ground, in the air; the heel that stamped is smouldering fire only raised a multitude of parks that flew out in every direction, each touching attain that can into the very heart of society. The visible agencies is the work here a passion which has been violence raised to finding a barren field for his seed violence of fertility were dried up, he found a rich, violation. The first spark he let fail set Germany in a blaze. More than all, the suppressed force of unbei if in the previous ages broke out with a fury that name Google

242

THE INDEX-MAY 21, 1874.

for a time carried all before it. The body of John wyelific, the English reformer, who had died peace-fully in old age, was exhumed and burned, and the ashes thrown into the river Avon. Then an old poet expressed the conviction of the people, as well as a truth of Providence, in the ringing lines :--

"The Avon to the Severn runs, The Severn to the sea; And Wycliffe's dust shall spread abroad Wide as her watern be."

If one thing is demonstrated, it is this: The at-

If one thing is demonstrated, it is this: The at-impt to suppress nature, under any form, so it be nature that is suppressed, is fullit. The old proverbs which asy, "Drive nature out at the door and she omes in a the window?" "you cannot expel nature with a fort," hold a truth that is for all time. Incl-enal halfs may be checked; mischlefs that owe their existence to circumstances may be eradicated by breaking abits which have become as second nature, cannot the than they can be braised. The abits which have become as second nature, exampt the that have not be eradicated by breaking abits which have become as second nature, cannot be thus dealt with. No Hercules' club will asis faster than they can be braised. The affort to suppress nature by volces, a reaction, that is eracity proportioned in strength to the effort, and fully bainces it. Healthy progress is measured, gravit is eracity proportioned in strength to the effort, and fully bainces it. Healthy progress is measured, from the organically, like a muscle or a nerve. Fry inch of gravital lugits a preceding hach of rowth; there is no attuch thing as jump or leap from proper than there is. The athletic rowers in the measure first condition; the strain being continued, the bad loses its elasticity, and breaks. There is no more power than there is. The athletic rowers in the regist, putting the full measures of their strength in their stroke, and finding themselves dropping be-hind, think, by a audden "spurt," to recover their log of the subsequent strokes. Every forced reviral of religion shows this in a manner that ought to ast-ify any ruling the full measures of their strokes, but the strengenace crusade, one of the whole-son the action who records that fast records at back-it is noted. "Spurt," to recover their log of the subsequent strokes. Every forced reviral of religion shows this in a manner that ought to ast-ify any ruling the full and emotional meni. In reland," But the same author who records that fast records at back-it is no pushed forward ent and confessed by all, the experiment of suppres-sion is to be tried only after much consideration and migring, and with extreme caulton. It would seem as if there could be no clearer case than that pre-sented by houses of avil resort. The existence of ench places is such an outrage on decency, such an affront to manhood and womanhood, such a source of disease and death and misery inestimable, to the community, that virtue feels justified in resorting to the sharpest, sternest, most summary means of abol-ising them entirely. But pause, says the thoughtful reformer. Consider whether you may not drive the evil you deplore more deeply in. If the vice that ercts and fils these places be, as there is good reason to think it is, one of those transmitted taints in the blood which strike into the texture of the aystem—if the babit be inveterate, the instinct exorbitant, the ap-petite greatly in excess of need,—then the remedy you propose will be worse than the disease. You may not applied on the strike and privileged places of society, in your own carefully-guarded cir-cie, possibly in your own carefully-guarded cir-cie, possibly in your own carefully-guarded cir-cie, possibly in your own bones. Can you be cer-tain that this horrid plague-sore that is open in modern society—it was more offensive in ancient—may not, after all, be an outlet of deliverance from pent-up moral and physical disorder, and that these wretched and abhorred women, whom it is loathing even to name, may not be the unconscious and unwill-ing saviors of society, and not merely society's shame and curse? Should this, or anything like it, be true, the policy of suppression, even in this case, would prove to be fatally disastrones to the gravest interesta. Do we take the ground, then, that vice is not to be kept under? made subordinate and submissive to virtue? reduced in power and dimensions to the low-est possible point? No, no, a thousand times. On the contrary, this is the thing we most cordially desire— none more so. But the system of repression we believe to be the most unlikely to secure it. Not suppression of the worse by direct attack, but conquest of the worst by the cultivation of the better, would seem to be the correct principle.

to be the most unlikely to secure it. Not suppression of the worse by direct attack, but conquest of the worst by the cultivation of the better, would seem to be the correct principle. We would restore discipline to its just place in the development of man and of society; in the training of the person, the order of domestic life, the conduct of social reforms. Discipline—the first meaning where-of is teaching; the last meaning, control. The meth-od of discipline is in svery case the method of ciniture; of training in positive qualities. The discipline of individual character consists in steady application of the mind to worthy subjects; in study of serions things; in education of the taste for intellectual pur-suits. The discipline of children consists in the en-gagement of their thoughts in matters outside of their own pleasure. There need be no severity in it, of any sort; no punishment or menace of punishment; no scolding or rebuke. All may be as weet as it is wise. The child may be gently drawn away from foolish and wasteful gratifications, to amusements, entertainment, recreations, studles, that are delight-ful as well as profitable, and may comes gradually but aurely into the possession of wholesome tastes, true affections, a balanced will, a clear moral sense, an awakened reason, without being made aware that any urging process was practined. In such cases vicious tendencies are simply anticipated, prevented, hedged off, as it were. Their objects are taken away; their outlet is turned aside. No appetite has been re-pressed, no passion has been condemned, no desire has been crucified, no instinct has been rudely cramped. The animal part of the nature has been distanced—that is all—by the intellectual part. and lends its force to intellectual pursuits. The free in the hold of the vessel propel it instead of destroying it. The propensities are all there; but something else is there, too, directing, controlling, employing them usefully. "The true beginning of this is the da-sire of discipline; and the and love is the keeping of wisdom's laws; and the giving heed to those laws is the assurance of incor-ruption." A great deal of needless commiseration has been thrown away on the late John Stuart Mill—the tale of whose much-disciplined boyhood has been read with such general interest. But, austere in method as his father was, patient, unremitting, and close as was the training, it does not appear that the principle of repression bad any part in it. No impulse was cut off, no tasts sacrificed, no cardinal desire crucified. The knife was applied to no part of the mental or moral nature. The discipline consisted in training the boy in love and enthusism for intellectual pur-suits, in the even, firm, compact building up of the reason. That the lad suffered from attempts to com-press, stunt, dwarf, or cripple his constitution, there is no evidence. All the julces of the nature were preserved. There was no excess of them. They would not, under any circumstances, have risen high and overflowed; but they communicated a gentle warmth to the nobly-educated reason that was felt by all who came within its reach. Such vicious ten-dency as was in the lad (and he, like all the reast of mankind, must have had his vicious tendency. Was either diverted or made to turn another machine. The name "Puritan" is associated in most minds with the system of suppression; but the association is, in large measure, a mistaken one. If the Puritan discipline involved repression; but the association is, in large measure, a this command. These means—the only means he had—were religious read-ing of the inspired Word, which nobody doubted; listening to sermons from men whom all revered iteaching the feet to walk in narrow ways which, all were sure, led to heaven; fillal duty and obelience; the ability practice of sobriety in all respects. This was not painful, as it seems to us it must have been; there was no such compulsion required as would be required now to make young people do the same thing. The beantiful, inspiring aspect of the disci

The maniful practice of sobriety if all respects. This was not painful, as it seems to us it must have been; there was no such compulsion required as would be required now to make young people do the same thing. The beautiful, inspiring aspect of the discipline was turned ontward; the paths of spiritual wisdom were, at least in the immonse majority of instances, paths of pleasantness and peace. And the result was not often, or in the main, a pinched, angular, peaked, dry-hearted, 'sour-visaged character—a sapless mind and a soul of vinegar; it was a manly, robust, determined, earnest creature, full of purpose, fearless, just, inficible, but also tender and true; with a force of passion at times terrible, at lines graclous as loving-kindness itself. Finer specimens of men and women than the best of them were, it would be difficult, anywhere in the range of human experience, to find. The best of them were as perfect samples of men and women as that age could produce. They were the sifted wheat of humanity. Now, in planning a successful warfare against vice in a compute the successful warfare against vice in a successful warfare against vice in a compute the successful warfare against vice in a successful warfare against vice in a compute the successful warfare against vice in the successful warfare against vice in a compute the successful w

Now, in planning a successful warfare against vice a community, considerations like these must be intertained. The tempting method of suppression, entertained.

974. 243

Leisure hours are hours of temptation. The vicious propensity is content with the idle moments. To put an end to its monopoly of them, other engagements in-door games. The continental people owe their temperance and continents in people owe their temperance and continence, not to temperament alone, but quite as much to their gardens, their open air concerts, their galleries and places of general resort. With these helps, a moderate stimulus goes a great way. The bour is agreeably occupied, the perflous reefs are tided over, and the result of leisure, instead of weakness, is strength. These continental customs should be encouraged, and not, as now, discouraged by the friends of orderly social development. Though not unobjectionable in some of their features, as methods of employing leisure time, best way are start of enjoying their leisure in comparative harmlessness; and, instead of discounters and persecuting them, should wish that other would take example from them. The welfared the result of the start of enjoying their leisure in comparative harmlessness; and, instead of discounters would take example from them. The welfared the result of the norther entities the welfared to the surger would take example from them. The feeling I do not asy religious, because that word suggenons, prayers, the fanatical and superstitious use of the most delicate instruments. By moral feeling I mean the feeling of personal responsibility to society. The feeling of other stimulate them in callous notes, for on the health, happiness, and importants, for on the faithful discharge of its duakes of takes. But till this is attempted all basis and index of takes. But till this is attempted all basis and index of takes, to create them perhaps in lifeless ones, is the suffer, of takes, the sufficient must be welcomed. Social reform must be commended by the fields in a suce and words, and has that carries the vessel over all basis and index of takes. But till this is attempted all baside will be precarious, for on the faithful discharge

[For THE INDEX.] THE "MYSPERY OF MATTER.".

Google Google

BY W. C. GANNETT.

As the new vision of Nature is dawning on our minds, a new faith is slowly kindling in men's hearts; but as yet there is little of the prophet's sureness, the poet's joy, in it. In reading the famous Essays and Reviews, years ago, one of the things which gave surprise, as coming from seers with eyes more widely opened than their neighbors, was the under-wall that rose heres and there about the future of religion. With all their boldness, one and another spoke for-loraly as men who foresaw eclipse. Picton is a dif-ferent man. In him the happy hymns of the new faith have begun to sing themselves. He grapples directly with the question, What becomes of religion under to-day's science? Does the universe that is changing aspect so fast before our eyes insure its per-manence? He virtually asks the two conundrums of Strauss' book, only reversing their order,—Have we avera yes to both; but the answer is,—We have a Christian pautheism. For intellectual men, he thinks, form it is sure, and never was form so true and grand. To two classes of THE INDEX readers, therefore, we beches is undermining all religion; and to these, if any such there be, who are sure if has done so already, and are glad.

*THE MYSTERY OF MATTER AND OTHER ESSATE. By J.

The selence is undermining all religion; and to those, if any such there be, who are sure it has done so already, and are glad.
His title helps to place the author for us,—""the mystery of matter," "then he is not a "materialist." But "the mystery of watter,"—then possibly he is not to be scared by a "mechanical equivalent of consciousness." Not hel and he holds Huxley to be "perhaps the most completely armed opponent that force amounting to demonstration, that by whatever path we set out, whether that of materialism or that of the same point."
Besides Huxley, other men, speaking like him from the same-point of science, have of late been suggesting the sease that either "matter" and "midd" are two separate entities, but one; and this, not in the same show, with a strade of the sease of the sease of properties, with which we are to deal, as in the isagnage of the Athanasian Creed, not confounding the persons nor dividing the substance." This thought, and the "Philosophy of Ignorance." He thinks that it is the ore properties of the other are side the "Mystery of Matter" and side this accomption of the popular mind towards this accomption in the dreaded materialism is through the materialism in the materialism is the one, examples and is the sense that a state and side channels of theological vested interests," and that the only examples of the sold event of the popular mind towards this accomption of the popular mind towards this accomption of the popular mind towards this accomption in the presence of this two faced eternal works and the only examples of the sold event and the sold the materialism is through the materialism in the presence of this tw

The roug the presence of this two-faced eternal anity that passes understanding. The argument, divested of all its eloquence, runs thus:Sensation involves two factors, the perceiving arbitration of the perceived object; and we have no right to involve two factors, the perceived object; and we have no right to involve two brought into conjunction. Self-existence is the primal recognition involves the wols wow of that be robe or appendix of the two brought into conjunction. Self-existence is the primal recognition involves in the consciousness of every experience; but what do we know of that beyond ourselves which causes the experience? Sensation itself tells us nothing about the nature of its cause. Neither does science; for the explanation of acience, ending in the mechanics of atoms, does not conceivably account for the known effect. Extend the train of molecular machinery from the maxy dance which acience sees in the sumset clouds, through ether, lenses, retina, optic nerve, into the brain-lobes—and it does so far extend,—still something happens utterly incommensurate with all this—the joy and the imaginings that rise in us as we two factors are inextricably united, granting that "be appendent of give a new meaning to "matter."
Examine "matter" then. These vibrating molecular machine y down and the imaginal different from what they seen. If impenetrability, exclusive occupation of space, is its easential quality. "matter" may be possible everywhere, and we may would render all changes or differences in density impossible, and so becomes absurd. The second would make it possible or store, with void spaces between the atoms. The first theory would render all changes or differences in density impossible, and so becomes absurd. The second would make it possible everywhere, and we may row of where no matter is jour thin, to fascinate when all the second would in the solvest in the interval second would in the solvest in the interval second would make it possible for "force" to exist in the inter confesses the fundamental mystery of the universal life. Consider this so-called "matter" again, in relation to the so-called "mind" or "spirit." Only four theories here are possible. Either (1) they are two independent substances,—in which case both must be eternal, for, if one creates the other, that really vio-lates the supposition; but "no one now would pre-tend to believe" in two eternal substances mutually exclusive,—or (2) "matter" is the sole real substance, and "mind" is its phenomenon,—the only theory which is absolute materialism. But besides the fact just shown that "matter," as such, disappears from conception under analysis, it disappears also in virtue of the relativity of all our knowledge. It is only known to us at all in forms of mental consciousness, yet it is this consciousness which we, inverting our ignorance, are to invite ourselves to call its phenom-enon! or (3) "mind" is the sole real substance, and it manifests itself in "matter." This it is impossible to maintain, while assigning a clear and usual mean-ing to the words. For "mind" itself is only known to us as a series of fuglity impressions and memories, string together by a consciousness of identity. This consciousness itself, moreover, is intermittent; but it resta—such is the irresistible suggestion—on a dimly recognized reality of substance below all conscious-ness, an abysmal whole of which each "1" is an in-finitesimal part. Here occurs a fine passage about the unfathomable mystery of "self," or (4) "matter" and "mind" are both phenomenal manifestations of one substance equally underlying both; and, as this is the only hypothesis which remains, Picton accepts it without direct discussion. The whole book is its indirect discussion; but we are tempted to remind ourselves right here that this theory is as little re-alizable in thought as number three, which was ban-ished because unrealizable, and that its superiority lies in the fact that it is singly, instead of doubly, in-comprehensible, if we may so speak. Accepting it, we profess ourselves "philosophers of ignorance," but not materialists and not positivist. For, though the positivist looks on with a smile, let mere negation of thought, after all. To know phe-nomena only is to know substance in part. Their ultimate, underlying substance, both "sprit" and "matter," so unknown as to its nature, is known, at least, to ezist. It is known to be an infinite unity,— the totality of Being in which all things are one. It is known to be alive,—for though we may not attri-bute to it the "personal" mode of existence, such as we know in ourselves, yet it can but be thought of as the universal life, because the eternal energy of the

is known to be alive,—for though we may not attri-bute to it the "personal" mode of existence, such as we know in ourselves, yet it can but be thought of as the universal life, because the eternal energy of the universe must be spontaneous, and spontaneous energy is the fundamental element in our notion of all degrees of life. Does such knowledge seem meagre? It, at least, greatly deepens our sense of awe. It gives us a tri-umphant confidence in the universe, because there is something eternal at the source of all. It gives dig-eternal being and order. It vagues, solemnizes the moral demand,—the sultority to which we how being sternal. It makes all things reverend, for they are seen as fragments hinting and gleaming with the eternal unity. Thus "the philosophy of imparted" to the set moral demaind, —the authority to which we bow being sternal. It makes all things reverend, for they are seen as fragments hinting and gleaming with the eternal unity. Thus "the philosophy of ignorance" leaves man conscious of relation to the Infinite, and although such consciousness does not by itself constitute re-ligion, it is essential to it. For what is religion? The next two essays, on "the Antithesis of Faith and Sight" and "the Essen-tial Nature of Religion," discuss this question. Taith and sight, instead of being the exclusive contraries they are thought to be, essentially involve each other, and all phenomens of consciousness are due in part to each. "Sight" is the name given to positive knowledge, i.e., to belief founded on evidence of the senses,—one's own or another's; or on abso-lutely necessary inference from such evidence; or on such axioms as mathematical truths whose contrary is untbinkable. And he acutely shows that much theologic talk as, e.g., about "Christian evidences," confounds the terms and refers to faith what is really due to sight. "Fräht" is the name given to certain instunctive beliefs that cannot be attested by sight. Picton does not care to call them "intuitions" or "in-nate ideas," or "blank mind-schedules," since special objection is made to all these terms; but he insists that they do result from "prelispositions or suscepti-bilities inherent in human nature," whose origin we can only account for by a "preëstablished harmony existing between the germinating soul and the world." The material universe is the complement of the intellect, he says, borrowing Tyndall's phrase. These predispositions are only called into exercise by sense-impressions; yet they must preëxist in us to ac-count for the bare possibility of those inpressions be-coming our perceptions and judgments. Our beliefs in the reality of the external world, in the uniformity of the course of Nature, in the persistence, under some form or other, of efficient causes, are examples of the "faiths" thus generated forth the oak. We cannot have "faith" without "sight," but neither can we have "sight" without "faith." "Religious" faith is merely the belief which comes from a special form of these Inherent predispositions; stronger than eoil, and must precail,"—a conviction which inevitably arises as soon as the distinction be-tween good and evil begins to be perceived. The ex-istence of Calvinists, ascelies, dyspeptics, devil-wor-shippers, does not show it to be evitable. There is "some preëstabilshed harmony between our moral nature and the grand order of the world about us. . . . The supreme moral order takes form in our con-science as love and "ighteousness." But this moral predisposition, more largely than those which origi-nate the other faits just cited, involves the element of will together with that of intellect. Religious faith is not the belief in "an eternal power which makes for righteousness," held as a theory only, but with practical life-assent. It is loyalty to the conviction. "The vital essence of (religious) faith lies in the energy of a voluntary devotion to the best ideal knowa." And this Pleton thinks is what is deeply intended in the New Testament use of the word. Now this faith joins with that sense of relation to ultimate substance and all-sufficient power which the philosophy of ignorance so fully brings to view; and, so joined, becomes religion. "Religion in its es-sential nature is an endeavor after a practical expres-sion of man's conecious relation to the heat includes every stage in man's development; and by "practical" is meant the inward energy of will as well as its outward loyalty in deed or worship.

B742.
Over and over he repeats that the reality of a divine impulse must be assumed throughout. Being investigation of the race is due.
"The efficient cause of all evolution, it must be recognized as originating and maintaining this human "endeavor," to which all progress of the race is due.
"That grand, measureless power, which is the ineritable, if nameless, complement of the conception of evolution, must be at the root of all religion, if its originating and maintaining this human "endeavor," to which all progress of the race is due.
"That grand, measureless power, which is the ineritable, if nameless, complement of the conception of evolution be a normal phase in the development of mankind." And therefore in a very real sense, though a very different one from that usual in the children and revelation, and must claim that religion is not natural as opposed to revealed, but natural as a revealed or inspired.
The makes good his definition, by showing how truly it describes religion in its whole historic development, from the lowest fetichism, through the Naturas "prophetic" faiths founded by Buddha, Mohammed, Moses, and Christ. But all the time it is that espence of religious. "Indumentals." the desuetude of reced, the broadening terms of church-fellowships, the acceptance of science against Old Testament ment for the abuffing hesitation with which they esonality as "essential," these, too, are but opinion.
The last easar, called "Christian, Pantheism," on the dogmas of incarnation and divine provide the soute ment with athetism, with every intellecular position save that of dogmatic "atoms of church-fellows in the other dogmas of incarnation and divine periodical position with which they into the dogmas of incarnation and divine periodical position as we that of dogmatic "atoms intermental position as we that of dogmatic "atoms

Religion is consistent even with athetem, with every intellectual position save that of dogmatic "atom-ism." The last essay, called "Christlan/Pantheism," de-scribes further the outcome whither religious thought and feeling are tending: "To disguise the pantheism would be to fail in honesty. To give up the Christian name would not only be dialoyality to profound con-victions, but it would be altogether inconsistent with any adequate description of the spiritual future which seems to be before us; for, notwithstanding the sub-version of all ontological theories natural to the Christian era, the spirit of Christianity is immortal." It is pantheism, because the deeper views of the universe are dissipating the common thelatic notions of creation, Providence, personality, and design, and replacing them with ideas of the One-in-All in process of transcendent evolution. But to-day's pantheism does not, like Spinoza's, pretend to solve the Great Fact. It simply accepts it, ignoring the barren puz-le of beginning and ending, and recognizing in the Eternal Unity the living substance of all that has been, is, or can be. Each thing beautiful opens to it far horizons of beauty and goodness; it sees in every phenomenon an inexplicable mystery, and it refers all this beauty and mystery to the presence in it of the Great Fact. On the contrary, it finds, both in the lowest and the highest forms of such experience, testimonies in its behalf; and Paul, John, Jesus, the Orthodox church-fathers, the spiritual Catholics like the author of Theologica Germanica, are summoned to bear the witness of their vary highest utterances to its ruth. And why is it Christian pantheism? Because panto its truth to its truth. And why is it Christian panthelsm? Because pan-thelsm does not prevent degrees of divineness in things, thoughts, lives,—and in Christ man's relig-ious consciousness reached unique expression. It became in him a supreme oneness with God,—quite compatible, however, with intellectual limitations. And it was this "mind of Christ" that begot, after his crucification, that passionate reverence for him in which Christianity got its impulse; this mind of Christ, and not the beliefs in resurrection, or Messi-anism. or second advent. or miracles, or atonement, anism. or second advent, or miracles, or atonement, though all these beliefs were associated with the reverence. His life—the manifestation of God-consciousness in his utter loyalty,—that, and no theological proposi-tions taught by him, started Christianity on its course. Yet in those propositions we find further reason for retaining the name "Christianity" the New Testament theology all may be dropped, and the infallibility of any Scripture must be dropped, but still the substan-tial meanings of the great Christian dogmas remain. Grace, inspiration, divine communion, Christian revelation, Christ's special divinity (as just defined), the fatherhood of God,—the essences of these and of other materials of the creeds are facts, and abide. The personal conception of the Infinite, though far below the truth, is the truest that is possible for us. And even the notion of the Trinity, "as an expedient of thought" to well present the Divine Being to our minds, "is so valuable still that its abandonment is very much to be deprecated." Finally, who can accept this faith ? Shall we quote in answer his closing words to hint the music of his manner?— "They are not many; but they are, in a very true mense. 'the powers of the world to come.' For that erence. His life--the manifestation of God-conscioneness in

"They are not many; but they are, in a very true sense, 'the powers of the world to come.' For that crowning race, which is our farthest vision in the files of coming generations, will not be men of sci-ence merely; still less will they be priests or puritans. They will love knowledge like the first; but they will have more true reverence than either of the latter. Meanwhile, the forerunners of that future race, not-withstanding all their determination to face the facts of their time, are often well-nigh appalled at the fun-damental character of that revolution in opinion through which they are passing. And some of them begin to feel that nothing can ultimately satisfy them which reserves, under any form, the necessity for be-lieving, as a matter of faith, in miraculous, spasmodic, manning Google -

Ê4 10

1

「日本の日日

山田町日日のう

21

THE INDEX -- MAY 21, 1874.

partial, or non-natural modes of revelation. For such 1

The second se

[For THE INDEX.] THE "STATE PERSONALITY" IDEA.

The last Christian Amendment convention met at Piteburgh, Feb. 4. The addresses of its members indicate more clearly than ever the true design of the movement. It is not merely a theoretical acknowl-edgment in the Constitution of a personal Deity, but it is an open attempt to establish the civil law of the land upon the Mosaic code. Besides this, it incorpo-rates the main ideas of the Orthodox system into the Constitution. Hon. Felix R. Brunot, in his opening address, states their intentions, of which the follow-ine extract is an expression :-ing extract is an expression :-

ing extract is an expression :--"We propose such an Amendment to the Constitu-tion of the United States (or its preamble) as will suitably acknowledge Almighty God as the author of the nation's existence and the ultimate source of its authority, Jesus Christ as its ruler, and the Bible as the supreme rule of its conduct; and thus indicate that this is a Christian nation, and place all Chris-tian laws, institutions, and usages on an undeniable legal basis in the fundamental law of the land." If this extression of a cread is not definite enough.

If this expression of a creed is not definite enough, take the following, from a sermon by Rev. Mr. Ken-nedy, published in the Christian Statesman of Feb. 13, 1873:--

15, 1873:— "In pressing these Amendments, we ask the nation to accept a pretty extensive creed. When properly understood, they would express our belief in the Trin-ity, in the covenant of grace, in the mediation and atonement and mediatorial offices of Christ, in the Holy Spirit as the author of Revelation, and in the inspiration, authority, and sufficiency of the Word of God. Besides, in asking the nation to adopt them, we are asking it to renounce all heathenism, Juda-ism, oppery, and infidelity. They are as distinctly Protestant as the National Covenant of Scotland." Great as the origina assainst liberty of asserting in

The State, then, is a "moral person," But a per-son is one who has relations to other persons. His existence is bound up with relations to other persons. The words justice, liberality, and the like, would be meaningless, if there were only one person. If the State is a moral person, it must be independent of all relations, and be only accountable to itself; or it must have a relation to a supernatural Person. That Person, it is said, is God, whose character is depicted in the Bible, which they assert is "the fountain of law and the supreme rule for the conduct of nations." The State at present does not acknowledge these things; therefore it must be a wicked person. This person is now required to change its mind. This change must be effected by legislation, or at most by a popular majority. But a majority implies a mass of individuals, a variety of ideas, a difference of will. It implies the question of individual liberty. How can the State as a person be reconciled with its com-ponent parts as individuals? Clearly, it can only be by utterly overriding and trampling down the options of a great part of the individuals of which a State is really composed.

ponent parts as individuals? Clearly, it can only be by utterfly overriding and trampling down the optimions of a great part of the individuals of which a State is really composed. If those who believe in the Christian Amendment get into power, they will be the State, the "moral person." If the State is a "moral person," its opin-ion of morality, expressed in law, will override the opinion of its component parts, just as in a man the strongest idea overpowers the weaker ones. That is just what the "State personality" idea would do; it would make the opinions and the liberty of large classes in our republic correspond to the overpowered ideas in the individual mind. If the State is a per-son, and believes it is subject to God and Jesus Christ, and also that the Bible is the only rule of its conduct, will it not incorporate the entire Mosaic code into tha civil law as the sole rule of its conduct? When an individual believes these things and is con-sistent, does he not compel himself to abide by them? If he has rebellious inclinations, he overcomes them. So will the religions liberty of the liberals be sup-pressed by the State as a "moral person." The State as a unity is the ouly free person; its oly a logical con-clusion that it will legislate upon itself obedience to that code; and the State being assumed to be morally a unit, the existence of private opinion, and the right of private opinion and action, is rendered practically null and void. They will not decline to use power, since they say that the "main or was made accountable to God by an ordinance as clearly revealed as that which rules in the family or rules in the Church." We know how absolute the Christian theory makes family authority. As Mr. Brunot says: "We will place all Christian laws and usages on an undeniably legal basis." legal basis."

legal basis." The idea of a republic is an aggregate of individu-als joined together to make laws for their mutual protection and welfare. The people make laws through their representatives; their government is an expression of the will of the people, and is not an entity, a person separate from the people, which can rightly assume to govern them by supernatural laws. But by the assumption that the State is a unit, it de-nies in one sense the personalities of its citizens. If the State is a "import lawson" and considers the nics in one sense the personalities of its citizens. If the State is a "moral person," and considers the denial of a personal God, the idea of the non-sacred-ness of the Sabbath, and profane swearing, to be im-moral, it will legislate against them. In fact, these laws stand at present on the statute books of many of the States, owing to a clause in the Constitution giv-ing certain powers to them. But they have been mostly a dead letter, owing to the republican idea that civil laws should only be made for the regulation of conduct between men. Some of the States have lately passed religious test laws for holding office. This is the first fruits of the Christian Amendment. The idea that the State is a "moral person" is de-lately passed religious test laws for holding office. This is the first fruits of the Christian Amendment. The idea that the State is a "moral person" is de-signed to establish, by a master-stroke, the right of the State to assert the divine origin of government, the divinity of Christ, the Bible as the inspired source of civil law. If it can be proved that the State is a unit in the sense which they mean, then it has the same right to assert its opinions that the private man has to believe and to regulate his conduct by Chris-tian theology. If we assume unity and deny differ-ence, then the rights of all liberals will be ignored. What does Mr. Kennedy mean, when he asks the na-tion to "renounce all heathenism, Judaism, popery, and infidelity"? If the State expresses its will in the civil law, the renouncing will be more than a mild request. If the State assumes these things, to be consistent it must act just as a private person would do. As an Orthodox person will scarcely ever read any evidence bearing against his belief, so the muz-zing of the press by the State as a person is a perfect-ly legitimate conclusion.

But this theory and the correlative propositions es-tablish more conclusively than ever that the present movement would be in effect a union of Church and novement would be in effect a union of Church and State. The State cannot be a political person, and at the same time a theological person governing its con-duct by the rules of the Church. The old dogma of the Romish Church that the State should be subser-vient to the Church, because the Church is a divine ordinance and alone teaches the decrees of God, is the very foundation of the new scheme. When the State assumes the truth of all the Orthodox opinions, and makes an assumed revelation the source of its authority, the political person is absorbed in the the-ological one; that is, Church and State become identi-fied. More politics might send a minister to Europe, or legislate on the tariff. But the mere terms of the proposition that governiment is not of man, but of God, shows that the Church, under the form of the State, would be the real governing power. In conclusion, we would say that we know no in-

It conclusion, we would say that we know no in-stance of more complete stuitification than this at-tempt to incorporate the Orthodox theology into that Constitution which guarantees religious freedom to all, and then deny that it would be in any degree a union of Church and State. J. E. PECK. DU QUOIN, Ill.

THE OUTLOOK IN THE WEST

<text><text><text><text>

CMARLES D. B. MILLS. SYRACUSE, N.Y., May 2, 1874.

We think the Free Religious Association is doing all that can be done with the means furnished it. In Scripture phrase, it is impossible to "make brick without straw." More could undoubtedly be accomplished with greater resources .- ED.]

CASH BECEIPTS.

CASH EECKIPTS. FOR THE WEER ENDING MAT 16. Asa C. Plerce, $3: Theron W. Bard, $1: Selfen Spencer, $1: A. Simon, $5: Berl, Smith, $3: J. H. Foster, $2: H. S. Thomas, $2: Ym. H. Coffin, $3: Luman Rice, $3: E. L. Sar-on, $2:65; Jaz. C. Towbridge, $4:60: Wilmot Wilson, $4; F. M. Vanghan, $4: Joneph Whitney, $6: F. Birl, $2: E. D. Jinks, $3: W. A. Perkins, $3: Daniel Muncey, $1:60: Neale Hucknam, $5: Thomas Suith, $3: R. S. McIntosh, $3: Wm. H. Dwight, $60 cents; Giles A. Adams, $3: W. E. Darwin, $4: Margie DeKey, $3: Geo. Ramsdell, $3: W. R. Darwin, $4: Margie DeKey, $3: J. H. Holins, $3: Kersch Schlees, $1:50: R. F. Murray, $3: J. H. Holins, $3: Fersch Geo. Ites, So centir, E. A. Sknes, 25 cents; T. Winwall, $1:60: A. K. Loring, $1:12: G. H. Foster, $2 cents; Cash $2:60: Oner, $0:cents: Chas. H. Coffn, $10: Orray A. Taff, $2:50: Elsie Nicholson, $3: Edward McGraw, $1: G. F. Torh, 60: cents; A. E. Macomber, $160; Frank J. Scott, $1:60: Centa; A. E. Macomber, $160; Frank J. Scott, $1:60: Centa; A. E. Macomber, $160; Frank J. Scott, $1:00.

The Index. PUBLISHED EVERT THURSDAT

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION.

AT NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Toledo Office: No. 35 MONBOE STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Hible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love.

Boiletos in Internet receiver, reserved a library Love. N. B.-No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contri-butions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

FRANCIS ELLING WOOD ABBOT, Editor, ABEAM WALTER STEVENS, Associate Editor, OCTAVIUS BROOKS FROTHINGHAM, THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON, WILLIAM J. POTTER, RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, WILLIAM H. SPENDER, MEB. E. D. CHEWEY, EAV. CHARLES YOYSEY (England), Prof. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN (England), Ext. MONGUEE D. CONWAY (England), Editorial Contribu-tors.

BOSTON, MAY 21, 1874.

SUNDAY LECTURES .- The Editors of THE INDEX will coture occasionally on Sundays, if desired, within a con-venient distance of Boston.

N.B.-Any person whose name is now on our mail-list will receive a second copy of THE IN-DEX, mailed to the same address, for a year, on pre-payment of One Dollar. This offer is made to accommodate those of our subscribers who wish to increase our circulation by sending extra copies as samples to their friends.

NOTICE.

The Third Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Index Association will be held in Toledo, Ohio, at No. 48 Summit Street, on Saturday, June 6, 1874, at 10 o'clock, A.M., in accordance with the articles of Incorporation.

GLIMPSES.

"YOU ARE ACCUSTOMED," said Prince Bismarck lately to the Ultramontane party (and his words apply more widely still), "to complain of oppression whenever not permitted to lord it over others." It is "persecution" to some people to be compelled to mind their own business.

AT THE MEETING of the Evangelical Alliance in New York last autumn, Rev. Josephus Angus, of Regent's Park, London, said: "With 50,000 preachers for ten years, and £150,000,000 sterling, the gospel might be carried to every man, woman, and child on the earth." Yes, but though a child can lead a horse to the water, all the world cannot make him drink. The gospel has greater difficulties to conquer than those of transportation.

WE ARE GLAD to insert the following notice: "The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Society for Alding Discharged Convicts will be held in the vestry of Park Street Church, Monday, May 25, at three o'clock P. M. Rev. Phillips Brooks, Rev. James B. Dunn, Rev. Willard F. Mallalien, John M. Clark, Esq., Sheriff of Suffolk County, and Rev. John F. Moors, of Weatfield, will address the meeting. The public are invited. DANIEL RUSSELL, General Agent."

"PETER'S PENCE" is the name given to the small voluntary contributions made by poor Catholics throughout the world toward the support of the Pope. "In ten years," says the Catholic Review, "the amount paid to the Papacy in Peter's Pence has reached the enormous sum of 271,175,000 francs. But since 1870 the increase has been much greater than previously, and the 271,175,000 in all probability now reach 400,000,000." The power of an organization which proves its hold on the hearts of its supporters by such a fact as this is not to be despised by any wise man.

"O Gon, why will my poor, short-lived, suffering, priest-ridden brother-man content himself with anything but facts ?" This is the question of one writing to us from the far West: to which the answer would appear to be that man so often confounds facts and delusions as not to know them apart. Nothing makes some people so unessy, and even irritable, as to pry into the grounds of any belief they may chance to hold. It verily seems as if they took it for a personal insult when you prick a bubble, explode a humbug, or root up a superstition. Yet for no service is a lover of realities more grateful; for the road to truth is macadamized with shattered falsehoods.

THE TERRIBLE flood of Mill River, in Western Massachusetts, caused by the bursting of an immense reservoir, is one of the most frightful catastrophes that ever happened in New England. Probably two hundred lives have been lost, and two or three millions of property destroyed. The incidents of the disaster are most heart-rending to contemplate. All that human sympathy and generosity can do to alleviate the miseries of the sufferers will be done; but what can sympathy or generosity do in the face of woes so appalling in extent and intensity? The causes of this terrific calamity should be thoroughly investigated, no matter who is convicted of criminal neglect and carelessness of life, that such a deluge may never again inflict untold losses upon peaceful and unsuspecting communities.

I HAVE RECEIVED from St. Louis the March number of The Western ; a review of education, science, literature, and art. The present number is quite as much occupied with the State as with the school, and this shows the broad and deep view which the circle of thoughtful men of St. Louis take of the subject of education. We are all accustomed to say that public education is the only safeguard of republican government; but I fear it is too often only a form of words, and that we do not recognize the constant influence which the school exerts in moulding the future State. The present financial troubles, which are the greatest present danger to the State, seem to arise from the neglect of the simplest principles of honesty and political economy, which ought to be as familiar to the mind of every citizen as his grammar and arithmetic. Mr. Harris prints in this number his admirable lecture on "Church and State" of which I have formerly spoken. If his elevated ideas could be more widely diffused, it would help to lift us out of the dead level of routine in education of which so much complaint le made. E. D. C.

THEODORE PARKER wrote thus of Thomas Paine in a letter to Miss C. Thayer: "I see some one has written a paper on Thomas Paine in the Atlantic Monthly, which excites the wrath of men who were not worthy to stoop down and untie the latchet of his shoes, nor to black his shoes, nor even to bring them home to him from the shoe-black. Yet Paine was no man for my fancying; in the latter part of his life he was filthy in his personal habits; there seems to me a tinge of lowness about him. But it must not be denied that he seems to have had less than the average amount of personal selfishness or vanity; his instincts were human and elevated, and his life devoted mainly to the great purposes of humanity. His political writings fell into my hands in my early boyhood, and I still think they were of immense service to the country.... I think he did more to promote piety and morality among men than a hundred minlaters of that age in America. He did it by showing that religion is not responsible for the absurd doctrines taught in its name. For this reason, honest but bigoted ministers opposed him. They had a right to, but they misrepresented his doctrines." It is needless to say that the stories of Mr. Palne's "personal habits" are of very questionable authority.

ABOUT A YEAR ago the London Times translated the leading article from a newspaper of Madrid which professes to be the organ of "the shirtless" or sansculottes (los descamisados). It is a sad commentary on the desperation engendered by the long years of misrule and tyrannical superstition of which Catholic Spaln has been the victim. This is the programme :-

Spain has been the victim. This is the programme:-"Anarchy is our only formula. Everything for everybody (lodopara todos), from power even to wom-an. From this beauteous disorder, or rather orderly disorder, true harmony will spring. The earth and its products being the property of all, robbery, usury, and avarice will cease. With the destruction of the family tie and the establishment of free love, public and private prostitution will conclude, and the ideal of the Greek legislator be realized, in which the young shall respect and love their elders, seeing in each old man a father, and in each woman a mother or a sister. Getting rid of the bugbear called God (Dios), and reducing his mission to affright the chil-dren, there will terminate those industries called re-ligions, which only serve to feed the mountebanks (farsaintes), as Dupuy calls them, the curas (priesta), whose mission is reduced to deceive and trick the foolish.

foolish. "This is our programme; but, before putting it into practice, it is necessary society should be purified. A blood-letting (sangria) is essential—short, but grand and extraordinary. The putrid branches of the social tree must be cut off that it may grow vigor-our and health. and healthy. These are our desires and aspirations; and, now

"These are our desires and aspirations; and, now that you know them, tremble, ye bourgeois, for your tyranny is coming to an end! Make way for the shirtless (descanisados)! Our black flag is unfurled, War to the family! War to property! War against God P'

DR. CULLIS AND HIS "HOME."

In THE INDEX of April 9 we made reference to Dr. Charles Cullis' Ninth Annual Report of the Consumptives' Home, and animadverted severely on certain statements which we quoted from it. If Dr. Cullis himself had not voluntarily brought his private affairs year after year before the public in his Reports, our animadversions would have been as uncalled-for as they are contrary to our practice of avoiding personalities; but what is published to the world is a fair subject of journalistic comment.

Two or three weeks after the appearance of our article, Mr. Benjamin F. Redfern, of the firm of Henry H. Tuttle & Co., Boston, called to see us at the office of THE INDEX, and very courteously complained of our strictures as unjust. We offered to print at once any reply he might bring or send; and, if we had been in error, an unequivocal confession of the fact should be made editorially also. After considerable delay, he brought us the article by Miss Dr. French which will be found among the "Communications" of this issue.

Mr. Redfern (who is very gentlemanly, and a warm personal friend of Dr. Cullis) states that the funds which defrayed the expenses of Dr. Cullis and family in their European trip were raised specially for that purpose; that no part of them was paid out of moneys contributed for the Home; and that he himself started and headed the subscription paper. As we had drawn a contrary inference from the Report itself (which is certainly expressed ambiguously on this point), and had said that out of the sum contributed for the Home, "apparently, were paid the expenses of a three months' trip to Europe for himself [Dr. Cullis], wife, and daughter," we now pronounce our inference wholly erroneous, and express our sincere regret that we did Dr. Cullis great injustice on this point, though unintentionally.

Further, we concede cheerfully (what we never denied or doubted) that the Consumptives' Home is doing a great deed of good in its own line, as a charitable institution. That its success and efficiency are due to "answers to prayer," is a different proposition ; and this we disbelieve.

With reference to the estate of Mrs. Cullis, our statements are called in question, both by Miss French and by Mr. Potter's correspondent,-the latter thinking that the story of Mrs. Cullis being a "wealthy woman" is "incorrect." The cheque of $12,500, which we said was paid by our informant to Dr. Cullis "on his wife's account" was paid by another party, not to Dr. Cullis personally, but to the legal representative of the estate. On this point we misunderstood our informant, but the error is wholly unimportant, as the payment was referred to simply in corroboration of the statement that Mrs. Cullis had a handsome property in her own right. But in order to learn the exact truth on this subject, we have personally consulted the public records in the Probate Office of Suffolk County, and now give the following facts on testimony which cannot be disputed :-

The will of Franklin B. Reade, the former husband of Mrs. Cullis, who died June 26, 1857, was admitted to probate Nov. 8, 1858. The executors' inventory valued the property at $92,940.27; the trustees' inventory valued it at $89,959.73. On August 2, 1873, the trustees' inventory valued it at $108,373.12. The estate consists of personal property alone. By the terms of the will, the widow was to have "the usufruct of the net produce of the whole" of this property, until the only daughter of the testator should be of age or married; but if she married before the daughter became of age or married, the income was to be divided equally between the two. The daughter will not be of age until Oct. 23, 1875, and still resides with her mother. The two together enjoy the whole income of over $100,000, making their home with Dr. Cullis. Furthermore, Dr. Cullis, according to the positive and repeated statement of his friend Mr. Redfern, has a private medical practice of $12,000 a year, contributing to the Consumptives' Home the surplus of this income above his own expenses. The joint income of the family, therefore, if the wife and daughter receive seven per cent. on their property, is over $19,000 a year.

Now compare with these facts such extracts as the following from the Report :-

"Oct. 15. This morning I needed money to pur-chase provisions; I had only one dollar and seven cents in the world. I knew my God would supply all my need, and had no fear. In less than an hour the mail brought from Springfield two dollars; anony-mously, three; a friend, five; and with what came in from my own practice, we had enough for the day's need." [p. 7.] "I gave up my Life Insurance, feeling it not of faith to trust my family to an amount of money which they might receive from a Life Insurance Company, in-stead of trusting them in the hands of not only a liv-ing God, but a loving Father." [p. 0.]

Why speak of trusting his family to the money from a Life Insurance Company, rather than to the $103,-$73.12 which they had in their own right?

"Jan. 27. This morning I had spent my last dol-lar." [p. 27.] "March 24. This morning not money enough to buy food for the day." [p. 34.] "April 9. Two dollars for Cancer Home; four for my own use," etc. [p. 34.]

What inference would any uninformed person necessarily draw from such repeated statements as we have quoted ? That Dr. Cullis and his family had together an income of $19,000 a year? Or that he was a poor man, dependent on the two, three, four, five, fifty, or five hundred dollars which the charitable might be moved to send ? Let the reader reply as he may, or must: the making of such statements as the above, unaccompanied with the facts also given above, and leading to a continual stream of donations which would probably be greatly diminished, if these facts were universally known, is exactly what we understand by "getting money under false pretences;" and only heroic charitableness can otherwise designate it.

But our tale is not ended. At the special request of Mr. Redfern, we called in his company to see Dr. Callis in person last Friday. He received us politely, and professed a desire to be interrogated. In the course of the conversation we called his attention to this passage in his Report: "All has been done without any appeal to man for aid, but by simple reliance upon God's word." [p. 4.] We then showed him a copy of THE INDEX of March 1, 1873, containing an article by Mr. Potter upon this very Consumptives' Home, and we pointed out in particular this passage :-

"It sends forth an annual Report which describes in detail its operations, and annually advertises its financial needs. It keeps itself before the public by numerous contribution-bores set in public places on which its wants are inscribed. Yet the claim is atill made that the institution receives its donations solely which its wants are inscribed. Yet the chaim is sum made that the institution receives its donations solely in answer to prayer. The last annual Report, after describing the philanthropic work, says: 'Our sole trust for the entire support of the work is not in man, but in the living God who has said, Ask, and ye shall receive. During the past year, the Lord has sent us in cash, §46,201.47. For the eight years that the work has been established, without any solicitation from men, but in answer to prayer, God has sent the amount of $188,230.25. Also, in answer to prayer, towards building a Cancer House, $961.07: making, in addition to gifts of a previous year, $1,611.' Here is a plain statement that the institution has been car-ried on for eight years, 'without any solicitation from man.' Yet not to speak of the tact' solicitation' which is made to svery benevolent person by the an-nual Report, and by newspaper notices describing the institution, its contribution-boxes make a very open 'solicitation.' I have copied the following inscription from one in the post-office in New Bedford :--"'The Consumptives' Home, Boston, has no fund for its support. "'Plane arise one cent.

for its support. e give one cent.

"'He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord.' (Prov. xix. 17.)

"I have seen similar boxes in banks and insurance offices; and the writer from whose article I have quoted says that these boxes are widely distributed, and bring in the course of the year a good deal of money."

We asked Dr. Cullis directly how he reconciled the statement that "all had been done without any appeal to man," with the direct appeal on the boxes described by Mr. Potter. He replied that he was not responsible for what his friends did; that he had repeatedly received money "from the boxes" in New Bedford, but did not know certainly who put them up; that he had only three boxes put up under his own direction, at the Home, the Tract Depository, and his own office (where one was conspicuously posted, and labelled "Voluntary Contributions"). We replied that it was no matter who made the appeals, if the appeals were made; that money did come in consequence of them; and that it was not true that "all had been done without any appeal to man." To this we could get no other response than that he (Dr. Cullis) was not responsible for what his friends did: not even an admission that the sweeping statement of the Report was verbally an over-statement. He would not admit that truth required even a modification of it, but refused to see the direct contradiction between the assertion that no appeal had been made to man and the fact that a direct appeal is made on these boxes every day. The reader may judge wheth-er our confidence in Dr. Cullis was increased by such a palpable evasion.

Not for the world would we wilfully do Dr. Cullis, or any man, an injustice; but it would be sheer hypocrisy to pretend that we are satisfied with such a measure of candor and sincerity as is here evinced. He confessed (unasked) that his chief object in starting the Home was to prove that God does answer the prayers of faith; and the sincerity of this belief may be at once conceded. But when he tries to prove his belief by such means as the above, we cannot say we do not see what we do see. If he had simply admitted that his language expressed more than he intended, we should have been satisfied; but, in homely phrase, he dodged a plain issue. Others may be satisfied with all this: for one, we have a higher idea of what constitutes straightforward truth and unalloyed sincerity. No matter how much good the Consumptives' Home may do (and this is much), the pretence that it is supported "without any appeal to man for aid" is a pious fraud ; and we cannot soften down that phrase to please anybody.

FREE RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION.

The SEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING of the Free Religious Association is to be held in Boston on the 28th and 29th of May. The meeting will open with a session for business and addresses on Thursday evening, the 28th, at 7 8-4 o'clock, in Horticultural Hall (lower). At this session the following Amendments to the Constitution are to be acted upon :

1. In the statement of the objects of the Association in the First Article, to change the phraseology so as to read thus: "Its objects being to promote the practical interests of pure religion, to increase fellowship in the spirit, and to encourage the scientific study of man's religious nature and history."

2. To change the number of Directors, now limited by the Second Article to "aix," so that the number shall be "not less than six nor more than ten."

At this session brief addresses are also expected, on various local and special phases of the FREE religious movement, from Mrs. E. D. Cheney, Rowland Connor, Rabbi Sonneschein, R. H. Ranney, and others.

On Friday, the 29th, there will be sessions at 10 A. M. and S.P. M., in the upper Horticultural Hall. The morning session will be opened by an address from the President, O. B. Frothingham, on "The Validity and Necessity of the Free Religious Plat-Speeches will follow from S. R. Calthr p. T. form." W. Higginson, and F. E. Abbot. The three latter speakers are to represent, respectively, the "Chris-tian," the "Extra-Christian," and the "Anti-Christian" attitude of believers in religious freedom. At the opening of the afternoon session, Rev. Dr. Bartol will read an essay on "The Religious Signs of the Times;" addresses expected from Rabbi S. H. Sonneschein, Bishop Ferrette, and C. G. Ames. In the evening, at the new Parker Memorial Hall, a Social Donation Festival is to be held. Brief addresses, music, conversation and refreshments will be provided for, and donations are hoped for from the friends of the Association.

WILLIAM J. POTTER, Secretary,

A RELIGIOUS DELUSION.

A friend has called my attention to an editorial article in THE INDEX of April 9, headed "Is It a Pious Fraud ?" and suggested by the Ninth Annual Report of the Consumptives' Home, of Boston. That institution, it is professed, is carried on, like the famous Orphan Asylum of George Müller in England, solely by relying on prayer for the requisite pecuniary con tributions. My friend thinks that the editor, in the article referred to, not only calls in question this mode of conducting the institution, but makes an unwarrantable attack on the character of Dr. Cullis, its conductor. She says that "a writer under the head of 'Correspondence' in the April number of the Homosopathic Materia Medica, gives the reader who may know little, if anything, of Dr. Cullis and his work, a very different impression of the work and its founder;" also that the story of his wife being a wealthy woman is "incorrect," and that in Boston, where Dr. Cullis was born and has always lived, among many who have known him from his boyhood she has "never heard a word which expressed or implied a doubt of his strict integrity."

I have no acquaintance with Dr. Cullis, except through the printed Reports of his institution; but I know that THE INDEX wants to do justice, and is ready, whenever it publicly arraigns character, to grant a hearing for the defence; and therefore I send this testimony in his favor from one in whom I have full confidence.

I must say, however, that the reading of Dr. Cullis's Report leaves with me the impression of a man entirely sincere and honest, but under a religious delusion, and also that the greater part of those who give their money to sustain the Home are under the same delusion; that there is, therefore, no getting of money "under false pretences," nor putting it to other uses than those for which it was given. The delusion is, both on the part of those who receive and those who give, that the money is obtained solely through prayer to God: though all who give might not perhaps make this claim.

From this point of view the Report is, indeed, a great religious curiosity. Its substance is summed up in this wise: "Our sole trust for the support of. the work is not in man, but in the living God, who has said,-'Ask, and ye shall receive.' During the past year the Lord has sent us in cash $27,568.96. For the nine years that the work has been established, without any solicitation from man, but in answer to prayer, God has sent the amount of $215,-790.21. Also [the past year], in answer to prayer, towards building a Cancer House, $1,467.08." The ides that the work is conducted "without any solicitation from man," "without any appeal to man for aid," is reiterated again and again through the Report. The simplicity with which this claim is put. forth and maintained, while the Report itself on every page is a "solicitation" and "appeal," is one of the psychological curlosities of the pamphlet. True, the benevolent are not addressed in the second person and asked in so many words, "Will you not aid us in the work ?" but the appeal is none the less direct, and with a large class of minds even more forcible, for being sent nominally "through the Lord." If Dr. Cullis had never sent out an Annual Report, nor taken any other means of advertising his charitable institution, then the effectiveness of his prayer-method might have been better tested. But if he had prayed wholly in secret, and never told any human being that he was praying, and never published in book or newspaper what he was praying for, can any rational being believe that he would have received the $215,000, and more, which have now been sent to him? The published letters enclosing remittances continually begin in this way: "I have been reading your last Report;" "Father read us your Report today ;" "Your last Report very much interested me." showing that it is the Reports, circulating far and wide, that give information about the institution, and appeal directly to individual hearts to supply its needs. And when such items as the following are recorded and sent out to the world, there is no occasion to add a direct request to give, to make them an "appeal" and "solicitation" to sympathetic and charitable souls :-

"February 18 .- Every bed for women filled at the Home.

"February 25.-Yeşterday we were obliged to refuse a poor woman and her child; every bed is filled. . I pray God to incline my heart whether to pray for the enlargement of the Home or not.

"February 27 .- Another poor woman refused for want of room.

"March 1 .- Two more patients turned away. Feeling confident that it is the Lord's will that we should enlarge, I am praying for the means to do so,'

Three days after this last date a "dear friend" called to give $5,000 towards building a new wing. The simple-minded doctor evidently interpreted this as a direct answer to his prayer through some supernatural process,-though in his simplicity he records that the "dear friend" told him that he had heard from some one at his home in Providence that the Institution was "fall to overflowing." Towards the end of the Report he says that the new wing had been erected so far as the $5,000 would allow; and adds, "It will take $3,000 more to finish the work, the dear Lord will send it in his own time. We shall then be enabled to accommodate about forty more patients." Is not that a pretty direct "appeal to man for aid"? Would it have been really much more direct, if the doctor had completed the thought which was apparently in his mind, "Will not some of our good friends supply the needed sum?" instead of bringing himself up suddenly with that dash, and putting the burden of sending the money upon the Lord? So with regard to the "Cancer House" which he wants to build. The doctor has been praying for means for it for two or three years; and for two or three years the Reports have been publishing this fact, and also the great need of such an institution. But because he does not use the pronoun of the second person he does not call this "solicitation from man.

I am sorry to say, however, that even the doctor's definition of "without appeal to man for aid" is not faithfully adhered to in all the machinery for collecting money for his work. As I said in THE INDEX a year ago, a part of the money comes through contribution-boxes, which are put in various public places in New England cities and towns, as at post-offices, banks, insurance offices, stores, etc. The boxes are inscribed with the name and object of the institution for which the contributions are needed, with the statement that it has no fund for its support, and with the request, "Please give one cent." Now, unless it shall be said that this "Please give one cent" is a petition to the Almighty, it is certainly an appeal to man,-though not a very large one. But it may be that Dr. Cullis is not aware of these labels, which possibly were prepared by some sub-agent. But it is clear that he ought to be informed of them, because they not only testify against the veracity of the profession that the institution is supported "withont any solicitation from man," but they vitiate his experiment as a test of the power of prayer.

Other points in this curious Report suggest comment,-as, for instance, since it records wonderful cures performed through prayer by Dr. Cullis, and since he teaches that faith only was necessary for these cures, one can hardly help asking why he could not have restored his own system to health by this process, last summer. Instead of being obliged to take the journey to Europe; but these remarks must suffice. And let me close by saying that the Report, if from a psychological point of view curious, is from a rational point of view cause for sadness. How vast the work to be done before reason and religion can be brought into harmony and coöperation ! W. J. P.

LONDON LETTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX:

Sir,-Colonel Higginson's beautiful and tender words about "Law and Love," in THE INDEX of the 16th April, set my mind moving in the current of the old controversy about fate and free-will; and I bethought me that I might say something on this subject which I have never yet, to the best of my recollection, met with elsewhere.

I take it for granted that everything follows law, In the strict scientific sense of the word; and that there is no such thing as "chance," or "accident," If those terms imply an event uncaused or independent of law. Pressing it to its furthest limits, I concede that even the final disposition of our wills is regulated in the same way, by inexorable, undeviating law. I am a necessitarian of the truest stamp, and this philosophy forms no small part of the foundation of my faith and hope.

But I am also a firm believer in a limited freedom of will. The term "limited," as applied to "freedom," may seem a contradiction in terms; but it is not really so.

Just as a weather-cock is bound immovably to the church spire, and yet is free to revolve on its axis to suit the action of the wind,-so I conceive that my own will, although confined within limits which it cannot pass, is yet free to move as it is played upon by circumstances, motives, and desires. To-day two alternatives of conduct may lie before me, and, however my final choice may be directed, I have to perform the act of choosing for myself, and I do so choose; to-morrow I may see fit to change my mind, and, regretting my former choice, may deliberately reverse it and take the other alternative. This conscious yet limited freedom is not to be denied, nor explained away, because it seems prima-facie contrary to the doctrine of necessity. I believe it to be not merely reconcilable with it, but part and parcel of it; for man would not be man if he had not this limited freedom; it is the result of his nature and conditions to have it. Limited freedom is a link in the chain of necessity. Man is what he is, owing to the whole antecedents of his being, and therefore his very freedom was inevitable and is absolutely necessary, both as a sequence of the past and as a prelude to the future.

I do not pretend to write on this subject philosophically, but merely to put down the simple convictions which I have gained by thinking over the problem for myself.

I now wish to say something on the manifest purpose of our being thus at once the creatures of neces sity, and yet sufficently free to become responsible.

1. The arrangement is indispensable to the forma tion of character. I utterly discard the idea of merit or demerit, as unworthy of man. "By the grace of God I am what I am"-is a good old phrase to express the entire absence of that self-righteousness which is unbecoming to any one who has thought at all on the problems of life. The doctrine of necessity is a grand leveller-the enemy of human pride. On the other hand, the less advanced of mankind are by this doctrine released from that senseless and cruel condemnation which labelled them "miserable sinners," "children of wrath," "sons of perdition," etc. But while I discard merit and demerit, I think the more of the necessity for character, personal self-improvement; and this, it seems to me, is only to be provided for under the double scheme of necessity and free-will. Certainly if I have no freedom, I can have no possible virtue-nor vice. Virtue I take to be the deliberate selection of the better, when two courses are open. Without a choice, any course would be alike unvirtuous. Machinery, useful or otherwise, would be all that man could ever develop into, unless he has a certain space in which the freedom of the will can have play,-unless alternatives of good and evil are present to his choice,

Thus the possibility of virtue is secured to us by our limited freedom, while the certainty of virtue is promised to us by the inexorable laws of man's being. On the one hand we see that we cannot escape becoming good; on the other we see that we can only become good from choice-by a "free-will offering of ourselves," as it were, to the author of the moral law.

We have a faculty which is, so to speak, an incarnation of this duality of necessity and freedom. It is love. Love is, in its purity and perfection, the most irrefragable of bonds, the most imperious and irresistible of impulses, one which "carries us away," as we so truthfully though unconsciously express it. Love is the incarnation of necessity, and supersedes by its impulsive force all deliberation, reasoning, calculation, and hurries us into some noble or beautiful action before we have time to think what we are doing or why we have done it. And yet, love is quite as much an incarnation of the principle of freedom. We never feel so free as when we are acting from love. Nay, freedom and the sense of freedom never rise so high in us as when we are impelled by love. We feel our liberty most when we are most its slaves.

And in this sublime fact of man's nature we behold the reconciliation of necessity and free-will; it is no longer a perplexing puzzle, a hopeless metaphysical contradiction, but an accomplished fact, a holy matrimony solemnized in heaven and upon earth. God has, as it were, decreed that man shall learn to do His blessed will; shall not only learn, but love, to do what is right; shall enter the paradise of Divine life itself in giving his whole heart to holy duty. But this cannot be unless man is free to choose between good and evil, and knows what he is doing. Experience must be his schoolmaster, and when the lessons of human life-here or hereafter-are learned, then God's decrees shall be fulfilled; and not only fulfilled, but attained in the very way and by the very means which He desired and decreed them to be attainedby those means, in fact, which alone could be available in the very necessity of the nature of things.

"Omnia vincit amor"-is not merely a poet's enlogy on the consummation of human felicity, but the hard prose of one of the most patent facts of the universe. And if God be love, and all His law is merged in love. then we cannot wonder that we are partakers of the Divine nature, and already feel and know by our own love not only what He is, but what is the law by which He rules.

Your readers will call me a mystic, I fear, for taking such a flight as this; but if the winds of Nature are against me, and my hold to earth too feeble, my kite will soon come down,

I am, sir, very truly yours,

CHARLES VOYSEY. CAMDEN HOUSE, Dulwich, S. E., May 1, 1874.

Communications.

DR. CULLIS DEPENDED.

EDITOR INDEX: Dear Sir, — THE INDEX of April 9, in an article headed "Is it a Pious Fraud?" appears to sanction a statement of untruth and calumny against the integ-rity and earnestness of Dr. Cullis upon the authority of an unnamed accuser, who has called into question not only the resources from whence the "Faith Funds" are procured, but intimates that Dr. Cullis makes certain appropriation of funds donated "in makes certain appropriation of funds donated "in answer to prayer" for his personal requirements, From the Ninth Annual Report of the Consumptives'

From the Ninth Annual Report of the Consumptives' Home is extracted, in a spirit unworthy of truth or justice, the following:--"On May 13th, he (Dr. Cullis) records receiving "upwards of two hundred dollars towards his travel-ling expenses." On May 15th, 'over one thousand dollars have been sent to me up to this time, and our passages are engaged for the 20th." At this juncture allow the writer (who is pre-pared to encounter any invidious and unauthorized attack upon one of the most blessed medical homes in the world) to substitute, in accordance with one of attack upon one of the most blessed medical homes in the world) to substitute, in accordance with one of the sims of THE INDEX, "knowledge for ignorance, and right for wrong"—to state that this amount was a gift to Dr. Cullis, individually, by some friends, and apart from the so-called "Faith Funds," which are sneered at by the author of the article as "donated by credulous persons." edulous persons." Dr. Cullis should be no more culpable as lacking credulou

"To-day I received four thousand dollars; this is part of a legacy left by a lady of this city for the Home, the remainder of which I expect to receive be-fore leaving. Thus our wonder-working God relieves me from all care, indicating His will. Only so very mear the moment of departure has this help arrived" -when the insinuative bracket holds a spleenic query "[for the Home, or for Dr. Cullis ?]" This is devoid of reason, for it can well be undar-stood by worldly-wise folk that the steward of such a large establishment would be compelled to make spe-cial arrangements for contingencies liable to follow large establishment would be compelled to make spe-cial arrangements for contingencies liable to follow absence from the scenes of action, when upwards of one hundred people depended upon "the answers to prayers," or to the personal supervision and fidelity of human power, for every need and provision incum-bent upon invalidism! Dr. Cullis, consistent to his avowed trust, feit "that the Lord made a practical man-flestation of His willingness" that Dr. Culli "should accept the opportunity to recuperate his health offered by his friends," when the legacy for the exclusive use of the Home was so providentially paid in just before leaving for Europe. In all cases, let the sum be large or small, strict ac-count is rendered of all money received; and I know from absolute personal investigation that the funds are devoted with marvellous fidelity to the uses desig-nated by the donators.

count is rendered of all money received; and I know from absolute personal investigation that the funds are devoted with marvellous fidelity to the usea desig-nated by the donators. The Consumptives' Home is a regular incorporated institution, under homeopathic medical jurispra-dence, with "Faith" as a watchword. You are per-fectly right to intimate that "the public ought to know a little more about this wonderful and widely adver-tised 'Work of Faith,'" for as a blessed home for consumptives whose cases are incurable, and who are excluded from all other public institutions except the almshouse, here may they enter, irrespective of age, acer, color, or denominational distinctions—as long as a vacancy remains,—and be cared for and comforted, succored oftimes from death, but always with pa-tience, love and tenderness, which fills the hearts of all associates of this household of faith. And all look only to God through prayers for all the bounty they receive. They praise the Lord, not Dr. Cullis. To conclude, without equivocation allow me to state, on verified testimony, that the payment of cer-tain sums, as stated by your informant, to Dr. Cullis. There never was even $1000 paid out of an income which, I am informed by the lady herself, is unificient to care for herself, and allowing a small surplus which she devotes to a chosen office of the Lord; and that in no way is Dr. Cullis the recipient, or has he ever been benefitted in a pecuniary way by his marriage to a lady whose income, by such a step, was cut down one-half, and who has no controllable real state, and never had the reputed wealth. Should she die, Dr. Cullis or any of the institution would not be benefit-ed by this alliance, as the world counts treasure. It is a cruel and malevolent attack from some un-announced quarter, which renders your informant better entitled to be scourged by the demunciation for false statements, than that Dr. Cullis "should merit attention from the police as the getter of money under false pretences."

false pretences.

Taise pretences." Prepared to substantiate the foregoing, I remain a vindicator of truth, always ready to endorse as good a moral as Dr. Cuills' "Faith Work" presents to the searching eyes of earnest investigation M. L. FRENCH.

BOSTON, Mass., May 15.

[Under ordinary circumstances we should have made some purely literary changes in the above article, but do not feel warranted in doing so in this case, lest we should inadvertently modify the writer's meaning. Our promise was to print whatever should be sent in correction of any errors we had made .- ED.]

FREDERIC A. HINCKLEY ON THE "LABOR MOVEMEN'T.

"As you value peace, as you value the future of the American experiment in democratic institutions, I urge you to study and investigate the demands of labor."

Indor." The above is an extract from Mr. Hinckley's article on the "Labor Movement" in THE INDEX of 23d April. What a pity that one wise enough to address these words to others, should not have, himself, fully done what he recommends others to do! In that event he would probably have discovered that most of his views and conclusions are in disagreement with the immutable isws of Nature, that so efficiently and so beneficially control labor and capital and their re-spective remuneration and occupation; and hence he would probably never have published ideas which are sure to mislead and injure labor, whose interests he no doubt has sincerely at heart.

sure to mislead and injure labor, whose interests ne no doubt has sincerely at heart. The fundamental point is that all men are endowed with innumerable wants and desires which increase, pari passu, with the means of satisfying them. But all men are, also, endowed with faculties that enable them to satisfy these wants and desires in a greater or lesser degree. These wants and desires of man im-pel him to make the efforts necessary to their satisfac-tion; the greater the intensity of the wants and de-sires, the greater the efforts made to satisfy them, and norducitive effort must in all cases precede the enjoyproductive effort must in all cases precede the enjoy-Now with these preliminary truths before us, it be-

Google

CTHEM Jump while and desired with certain occupations, long exist being that necessary to compensate greater skill, aptitude, intelligence, danger, or uncertainties required for, or connected with, certain occupations, or to induce labor and capital to transfer themselves from useless or little needed occupations to others momentarily more useful or more desired by the com-or to induce labor and capital to transfer themselves from useless or little needed occupations to others momentarily more useful or more desired by the com-munity. Finctuations in the price of labor and of the prod-wets of labor do not depend on individual will or de-rive but on supply and demand, and on cost of produc-tion. Were all occupations to yield, at all times, pre-risely the same remuneration—and were all things to be sold at cost, as some reformers propose, —how could labor and capital be induced to juit promptly occupa-tions when over-done or no longer useful to the com-multy, and transfer themselves to others more use-ful or more needed? Man's wants are not constant and unvarying—on the contrary, they undergo inces-sent changes; and, hence, under the natural system of the division of labor, every one must be induced to oo, at all times, not what he himself desires or prefers, more shirts produced than the community need, wom-ent what others most need or desire. When there are more shirts produced than the community need, wom-entity in or on inducement is as powerful to in-stron to another, as an increase or a dimination in the remomentaries of labor and capital, which are thereby ontantly induced to distribute themselves, at all times, among the various occupations necessary to humanity, in accordance with the relative, moment withing and constant changes of allor and is reistab-liabled, the remuneration obtainable at all occupations between supply and demand arise; when again varia-tion to another, as an increase or a dimination in the remuneration of labor and capital, which are thereby outline between supply and demand is reistab-liabled, the remuneration obtainable at all occupations and prode yet discovered by which property distrib-tions, at all times, labor and capital among the various occupations necessary to humanity. Governments, legislators, philanthropists, reformers, scientiss, which sitempts to regulate the occupations and re-muneration of labor and capital. Nothing function. Mr. Hinckley says: "Rational labor-reform means that the power of accumulated wealth shall be de-stroyed, and its natural counterpart, poverty, abol-lahed; or in other words it calls for a more equitable distribution of wealth."

distribution of wealth." Now the whole power of accumulated wealth con-sists in its usefulness to humanity; and this power cannot be diminiahed so long as wealth is not only useful but indispensable to man, and its production requires labor and skill, and its accumulation. and preservation need intelligence and self-abnégation. Nor would the distribution of wealth abolish poverty. Poverty is entirely due to non-production and to non-accumulation. There may be momentary individual enjoyment without accumulation, but no social prog-ress is possible without it. The whole past progress of humanity has been due to those who have had the self-control and self-abnegation to forego their equita-ble, inherent right of consuming the products of their labor and skill for their own immediate enjoyment, and saved and accumulated them for the future serv-

<text><text><text><text><text>

strate of the response of the majority should ever remember that, by attacking the rights of the minority, the state of the majority should never be allow the majority should never be allow the majority should never here be allowed by the state of the majority of the majority are best provided by the majority of the majority the majority to be a minority the state of the majority are best provided by the majority should never be allowed by the majority and the majority are best provided by the majority should never here by the majority should never member that, by attacking the rights of the majority the majority are best provided and oppressing and oppressing and oppressing and oppressing and the majority are best provided and actions, so long as he does not thereby interfere with the like liberty of others. The majority the majority the statek of their own rights when they become, as sooner or later they are sure to be, in the minority, they establish a precedent that author its the new of the majority are best provided by the protection of the rights of the minority. This fact completely refutes the ballot and legislation. As to the minority, neither with nor without the ballot can they control and oppress the majority. The fact community is the protection of each local community. It is a subor is a site work of the rights of the rights of the rights of the rights of the protection of the right of the reserve the people against the wrong actions of the criminal class which forms so trifling a minority in any of more local communities to control other communities the voluntary actions of each local community. The state of the action the better, carried to day to a greater acted the area of their action the better, carried to day to a greater action the and so the great military contents, may be and the area of their action the better. The fact action the area of their action the better, carries the hand and y community is and yet this is carried to day to a greater action the and and soperase the action the b

249

Napoleons-who have arrested the onward progress of humanity. It is the inherent right of every one to work as few or as many hours in the twenty-four as he or she chooses; no one has the right to dictate against their will the number of hours others shall work. But as

<text>

NEW YORK.

"WERE YOU EVER baptized ?" inquired an earnest minister of a green candidate. "No-no-o, sir! Never only once't, and then I fell in ?"

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON,

thas been organized with a capital stock fixed at

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the quarpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX,

Religion.

exterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and

"best matured thought of the age on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the social

It is edited by FRANCISE. ABBOT, assisted by

ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I.

WILLIAM II. SPENCER, Raverhill, Mass. "RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass.

MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England.

PROP. FRANCIS W, NEWMAN, London, Eng

Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX, as the best popular exponent of Religious Liber-aftam. Every Christian minister, and every thinking church-member, should subscribe for it, as the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly exposition of the differences between Free Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the argu-

have to meet in the future.

one year's subscription.

WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.

and political amelioration of society.

Editorial Contributors :-

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public

A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Ratio

THE INDEX-MAY 21, 1874.

200	and all the share a strate (
Advertisements.	GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS	L
THE PATRONAGE of the liberal advertising public is respectively solicited for thurs in bax. The attempt will be honesity made to keep the advertis- ing pages of The Invar in entire harmony with its general character and principles, and thus to furnish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to the patrons, but also worthy of their most generous support. To this end, all improper of "blind" advertisements, all quack adver- tisements, and all advertisements believed to be fraudulent or unjust to any one, will be excluded from these columns. No ente will be admitted. ADVENTISING RATES. MOVENTISING PATES. MOVENTISING PATES. MOVENTISING PATES. To all cases accept the responsibility for the own statements made by advertisers, who will be admitted. MOVENTISING PATES. To find the statement made by advertisers, who will be admitted. MOVENTISING PATES. MOVENTISING PATES. To all cases accept the responsibility for the own statements and iscounts of the columns divertisements, a discount of the column of the per cent, will be made; on full-column of the origin the first of the column of the period of the domand in all those who of the period of ELEC. COM. of the Bostrow Lineman Lined of the period of the doma	Including O. B. FROTHINGHAM, T. W. HIGGINSON, W. J. POTTER, W. H. SPENCEE, F. W. NEWMAN, CHAS. YOYSEY, A. W. STEVENS, F. E. ABBOT, Are now for sale at the office of THE INDEX, and will be maffed postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 25 cents each; complete Bat of Eight Photo- graphs, $1.50. Address, THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass. INDEXTR. A. CTS. No. 1. Treuths for the Times, by F. E. Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Frinciples", Mas. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Spe- cies," says, in a letter to the editor not orig- maily included for publication, but subse- quently authorized to be used: "Thave now read Taurus row the Times, and I sdmir them from my inmost heart; and I sdmir Mas. CHARLES No. 2Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char- acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wor- thy of the nineteenth century. New Edit.	) V.L.D. E Tot
CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.	No. 3Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-	0

No. 3.-Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-wheiming demonstration of the imperfec-tions and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 4.-Christian Propagandiam, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Fasts, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5,-"God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the United States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 6.-46 The Sabbath," by Parker Pillsbury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

7.-"Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8.-The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that interests everybody. New Edition, Price & cents; 12 copies 50 cents

No. 9.-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac-ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evan gelical Christian Creed in the U.S. Constitution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

andity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from five to one hundred copies.

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, sitempts to show the real infinence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12.-Is Homaniam Heal Christian A. Two essays by Francis W. Newman ad F.E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyz the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Beligion: The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular derivation of the word Religion is incorrect; that popular conceptions of Religion itself inadequate; and that a new conception the are indecluste; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, its the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Frice 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address THE INDEX,

8

7

A Weekly Journal DEVOTED TO

FREE RELIGION. PUBLISHED BY THE

NDEX ASSOCIATION. AT

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. EDITOR:

FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR: ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.

EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS:

B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I.

. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass

P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. BS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

W. NEWMAN, England.

HARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX aims-

o increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

o foster a nobler spirit and quicken a highe purpose, both in society and in the individual :

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes.

in brief, to haston the day when Free Religion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is special-ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the pur-pose of securing the more complete and con-sistent secularization of the political and educational institutions of the United States Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last wised out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an upbroken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading paper or essay of a thoughtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the ost marked features of THE INDEX

Regular editorial contributions will contime to be furnished by the well-known em-inent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high poalti on. Mr. VOYSEY has kindly consented furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to rad-ical readers. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from valuable books and periodicals, and miscellaneour articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the coun-try. The most liberal terms are offered.

THER. M.S.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered letter, or post-office money order. with address in full, must be a The name ompanied THE INDEX.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston,

4. PUBLICATIONS. OFTEE

FREE

RELIGIOUS

ASSOCIATION.

Report of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meet-ing in 1867, at which the Free Beligious Association was Organ-Meligions Association was Organ-ised. Containing addresses by 0. B Froth-ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucretia Mott Robert Date Owen, John Weiss, Oliver John-son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Hig-ginson, and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not possess this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meeting, 1869. 50 cents. Contains easays by Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and Re-straint in Religion," and by David A. Wasin on "The Relation of Social Science to Religion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Denton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Bar-tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outlines of Judaism" by Rabbi Wise.

Proceedings of Third Annual Meet-ing, 1870, 50 cents. Contains essaya by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the Free Religious Association," followed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nata of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Re-ligion as a Social Force, especially in rela-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religious Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Age;" an essay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions," fol-lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judaism," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedaniam, by Wm. H. Channing on "The Religions of China," and Wm. J. Potler on "Religion Old and New in India," also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. R. Calthrop, Rabbi Wise, and others.

dings of Fifth Annual Meet-Proceedings of Fifth Annual Accu-ing, 1872. 35 cents. (Four or more, 35 cents each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion as the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Froth-ingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cella Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C. A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and others Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meet-ing, 1873. Meents. (Four or more, 25 cents each.) Contains essays by Samuel Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and by John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Dale Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longfel-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lucretia Mott.

Sympathy of Heligions, by T. W. Higginson. 25 cents.

Religions of China, by Wm. H. Channing. 25 cents.

Reason and Revelation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jas. Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of ten, 60 cents; of one hundred, $5.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Bellgious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1872 is quite limited. Orders by mail may be addressed either "Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass.

WM. J. POTTER, Sac. F. R. A.

THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston, Mass

nents and the movements which the Church will Almost every number contains a discourse leading article, which alone is worth the price of

Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a letter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1873, says: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Religion in the widest sense of the word should be felt in America-that such a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your country,-is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of so-called religious or theological periodicals is, as you know, very large." And later still: "I read the numbers of your IN-WEX with increasing interest."

Send $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for three months on trial

Address THE INDEX.

No. | Tremont Place, Boston.

-The Impeachment of Christi-

No. 13. On the Vision of Heaven, by ummun Google

POPULAR BOOKS, BENT BY MAIL AT

PUBLISHERS' PRICES!

ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.

NO SITEA CHARGE FOE POSTAGE.

ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt companied with the CASH. of orders ac

Orders are respectfully solicited from all friends of THE INDEX.

ABABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. 1.50 ABNOLD'S (MATTHEW) Essays in Critielam. New Poens. Literature and Dogma..... AUERBACH (BEBTHOLD). On the Heights. Villa Edent The Country-House on the BACON'S Zackys..... 1.00 Compandium of Psychology and History of 1.78 allosophy. oral Science: A Compandium of Ethics. BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations ...... 3.60 BASTIAN (H. UHARLTON). The Begin-BUCHNER'S Force and Matter ..... SUCKLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of Civilization in England and France, Spain and Scotland. New edition of the entire work, with a complete index. 2 vols...... Author. Fine portrait. CARLYLE'S Works. Cheap edition. Compris-ing the following: Mincellaneous Easiyn, T vois.; Franch Revolution. J vois.; Bredor-let the Quest J works.; actions I voi.; John Saring, I voi.; Jake of Schlinr, I voi.; Foss and Present, I voi.; Horces and Hero Wor-ship, I voi.; Latter Day Fampbilets, I voi. Any volume sold separaisly. Si vois. Lon-don, HU-3. Par voi. CERVANTES' Don Quixote..... 1.50 CHANNING (WM. ELLERY). Thoreas: The Post Naturalist, With Memorial Verse. 2.06 Instruction of the standard with science as and other standard sta OLABER (JAMES FREEMAN). Ten Great Religions Compon-Second Million CLODD (EDWARD). The Childhood of the World .75 CONWAY (MONCURE D.) The Earthward CORRELATION and Conservation of Forces: CORRELATION and Conservation of Forces: A Series of Expositions by Grove, Heim-boits, Misyer, Faraday, Liebig and Carpen-ber: with an Introduction by Edward L. Tonnans, M.D. 1 vol. DALL (MES. CAROLINE H). The College, the Market, and the Court; or, Woman's Relation to Education, Employment, and Citizenship. Alteria Pictures Retonched; a Volume of Miceilanies. In two parts. Fart L. "Stadies. Pictures, and Fancies" The Life of Dr. Marie Zakrzowska, being a Fractical Hustration of "Woman's Eights to Labor". LN 1.00

Journal of Researches. 2.00 Emotional Expression of Man and the Low-MERSON'S (R. W.) Essays. Pirst Series. Essays. Second Series. Representative Men. English Traits. Conduct of Life. Poems. With Portrait. May-day and Other Pice Easays. Blue and Gold. Poems. Blue and Gold. Prose Works. I vols... Society and Solitude EVANS (E. P., Ph. D). First Historical Transformations of Christianity. From the French of Athanase Coquerel the Younger. The Life and Works of Gotthold Ephraim Lessing, Translated from the German of Adolf Stahr. 2 vols. FARBAB'S Critical History of Free Thought, in reference to the Christian Religion..... 2.00 FEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Eliot's" translation. 3.00 FISKE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers., 2.00 FROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Eeligion of Humanity Beliefs of the Unbelievers Child's Book of Religion Life of Theodore Parker ULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 6 vols ..... GOETHE'S Faust. Translated into English Verse by Bayard Taylor. 2 vols. Per vol 5.05 Elective Arfidites. Chryles, Fortrait of Gouthe. 2 vols. Chryles, Fortrait of Gouthe. 2 vols. Bardies, Status, Status GREG'S (W. E.) Enirmas of Life..... Literary and Social Judgments..... Creed of Christendom..... 2.00 2.00 3.33 GROTE'S LIFE. Compiled from Family Doo-umonia, Private Memoranda, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends. By Man, Grote. Second Edition. With Por-Lettern Mrs. Gr trait .... HAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter's Camp. Book I. In England. Book II. In Scotland. Book II. In France. Thoughts about Art. The Unknown Biver. The Intellectual Life Chapters on Animals. HAMILTON (GAIL). Child World. Part Bee Logical Lectures
 HAWTHORNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works.
 New Blustrated Library Edition. Nine vols.
 Fer vol. W HIGHT WEAK ALDERTY Edition. His tool few Illustrated Library Edition. His tool tool and the second second second Momens from an Old Manses. The Scariet Letter, and The Bithedale Bons Toags. The Marbie Fain. The Sagith Note-Books. The Sagith Note-Books. The Franch and Italian Note-Books. Our Old Home, and Septimius Feiton. HOWELLS'S (WILLIAM D.) Their Wed-ding Journey Suburban Ekstehne Venetian Life Ibalian Journeys A Chance Acqualitance 2.00 2.00 2.00 1.50 EUGO'S (V.) New Novel," "Ninety-Three"., 1.78 HUMBOLDT (ALEXANDER VON). Life of. Translated from the German. 2 vols., with three portraits. 10.00 HUME'S (DAVID) Essays and Life ........ 1.7 INOELOW'S (JEAN) Prose. Off the Skel-Note for Stories Units of Stories Series A flister's Bye-Hours Mopas the Priry: A Story Poor Matt; or, The Clouded Intellect. 1.75 JERROLD (DOUGLAS). Fireadde Saints, Mr. Claude's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers. 1.50 JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and their Balation to Universal Religion. India JOWETT. The Dialognes of Flato. Trans KERR (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities, Poems, Patriotic, Sentimental and Humprous...... 2.00

LECKY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and Influence of the Spirit of Rationalism in 4.00 SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The-

THE INDEX -- MAY 21, 1874. tus to Charlemague. 2 vols...... 6.00 Law 59 Physiology of Common Life. 2 vols. 2.60 Biographical History of Philosophy, from Its Urigin In Greece down to the Present Day. 2 vols. Problems of Life and Mind. The Founda-Hons of a Greed. 2.00 LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.50 LEWIN (REV. RAPHAEL, D'C), What is Ju-dalam 7 or, a Few Words to the Jews..... 1.00 LONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Poems. Portrait, 2 vols. Prose Works. Portrait 4.00 OWELL'S (J. R.) Poems. 2 vols..... The Biglow Papers. First Series.... The Biglow Papers. Second Series.... Among ray Hooks... My Study Windows... 4.00
1.50
1.80
2.00
2.00 LOWELL (MES. A. C.) Postes for Children, 75 LUBBOCK (SEE JOHN). Origin of Civiliza-tion, and the Primitive Condition of Man. 2.00 Pre-historic Times. 5.00 LYELL'S Principles of Geology, 2 vols. 5.00 Livenats of Geology. 2 vols. 5.00 MACDONALD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's 1.66 MANN (HORACE), The Life of Horses Mann, By his Wits, Lectures and Annual Reports on Education, 3:00 Annual Reports on Education, from 1839 to 1866 MAURICE (REV. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind .75 1.50 2.50 1.25 1.28 1.50 2.25 1.0 tion The Subjection of Women..... Easay on Liberty. Representative Government. Autobiography......... Memorial Volume. His Life and Works... MIVART (ST. GEO.) On the Genesis of 1.75 MOULTON (LOUISE CHANDLES.) Bed-2.50 2.00 NASBY (PETBOLEUM V). Swingin' Round the Cirkle 1.5 as from Kentucky Ekkees from Kentucky. REWMAN (FRANCIS W.) & Elistory of thu Hebrew Mouarchy. The soul, its Sorrow and its Aspirations. Catholic Usion: Essays towards a Church of the Puttro, as the Organization of Philandbroy. The Solipion Weakness of Proinstantism. Against Hero-Making in Belgion. 2.00 PARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The Infinite ROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por-ROSSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Bante CICENCE PRIMERS: I. Introductory. By Prof. Rustey, F.R.8... 2. Chemistry. By Prof. Roscos...... 3. Physics. By Balfour Stewart. With U-lustrations.......... 4. Physical Geography. By Archibald Gei-kie, LLD., F.M.S. Bezübie cioth....... -50 ..... SCOTT'S (THOMAS) The English Life of Jeaus, Second Edition ...... 2.00 SMILES'S (SAMUEL.) Self-Help...... 1.50

STOWE (HARRIET BEECHER.) Fink and White Tyranny...... Uncle Tom's Cabin..... 1.50 TRAUSS (D. P.) The Old Faith and the New Life of Jesus. Authorized transis-tion. 1 vols. THACKERAY'S (W. M.) Novels. Household Edition. Complete in 6 volumes. Per vol.. 1.35 Vanity Fair. The Newcomes. The Newcomes. Adventures of Philip. Pendennis. Fondennis.
The Virginians.
Exmond, and Lovel the Widower.
Miscellancous Writings. Household Edition.
Uniform with the Noreis.
Complete in Yols.
With new Portrait.
Personal State of the State of the Noreis.
This addition includes all the matter In the latent set English editions.
With many additions, thus making it, with the novels, the chaspest and mask backers pint the marker Distribution of the Noreis.
Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Diamond, &c.
Paris, and Irids Beleich-Books, &c.
Paris and Irids Beleich-Books, &c.
Paris and Irids Beleich-Books, &c.
Paris and Irids Beleich-Books, and Unreprinted Floces. THAXTER'S (MES. CELIA) Among the Isles of Shoals. 1.50 THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden; or, Life in the Woods (n. b.) Transat, or, Lass in 2.00 Executions in Floid and Forest. Portrait. 2.00 The Maine Woods and Forest. 2.00 Lotters 2.00 A Yankee in Causie 2.00 of Mankind nd. Culture, 3 vols...... TYNDALL (JOHN). Paraday as a Discov-1.00 ments of Science for Unscientific Peo-Frigments of Science for Unactentific Feo-tions and Electricity. Hours of Exercises in the Alpa. Heat as a Mode of Motion... On Sound Realiant Beat. Forms of Water. Lectures on Light. Per Tyndall. 2.00 1.25 2.00 2.00 2.00 5.00 1.30 1.00 .50 VOYSEY (REV. CHARLES.) The Sling and the Stone. Vols. I. and V., each. Vols III. IV. and VI., each. The Voysey Appeal. Voysey's Defence at York..... WARNER'S (CHARLES D.) My Summerin a Garden Saubtrings..... Back-Log Studies..... 1.50

ADDRESST INDEX, THE 1 Tremont Place, Boston. A FEW COPIES ONLY Of an excellent Photograph (Cabinet Size) of Bey, MONCURE D. CONWAY, of Lond

can be had at the office of THE INDEX. Price 50 cents.

THE REFORMATOR.

A WEEKLY JOURNAL,

For the dissemination of useful knowledge, and the enlightenment of the people on political, religious, and so cial subjects, with a view to reform.

Published in the German language ev-ery Saturday, at Adrian, Mich.

Principal office at Adrian, Mich., to which all letters and communications must be ad-dressed.

C. LOHMANN & SON, Pub's.

C. LOHMANN, EDITOR.

The REFORMATOR circulates in all the principal cities and villages in the United States and Territories, and presents an excellent nedium for advertising.

Terms of Subscription-$2 per annum. Ad-vertisements inserted at liberal rates. Subscription and advertisements must be paid in advance

252

$25 per day guaranteed using our well AUGER and Drills. Catalogue ree. W. W. GILES, St. Louis, Mo. free. W. W. BIESS, St. Louis, ad. NONPARELL Farm Feed, Bone, Drog, and Hand-grinding MILLS. Ten Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Illustrat-ed pamphlets free. Address J. SEDGEBEER, Painesville, Ohio.

CHEAP OFFER! A

A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACTS, from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed to any address on the prepayment of 75 canva. THE INDEX. Address

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass

No.1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass D20 SAVED! FLORENCE1 of the FLORENCE BEWING MACHINE CO. spaint the Singer, Wheeler & Wilson, and Grover & Baker Companies, involving over SEO(000, is finally decided by the Supreme Coart of the United States in favor of the FLORENCE, which alone has Broken the Monopoly of High Prices. THE NEW FLORENCE is the ONLY machine that sews backward and forward, or to right and left. Simplest, Chargest, Rost.' Sold for cash only. Special terms to Clubs and Dealers. FLORENCE, Mass., April, 1874.

The Bible of the Ages.

POURTERS CRAFTERS. Selected from Hindu Yedlas, Buddha, Con-fuclus, Egyptian Divine Pymander, Zoroaa-ter, Taimuda, Bible, Piato, Pythagoras, Mar-cus Auretius, Epicteus, Al Koran, Luther, Scandinavian Eddas, Ronan, Tallerin, Mil-ton, Penn, Adam Clarke, Mary Fletcher, F. W. Newman, Tyndall, Max Müller, Elias Hicks, Channing, Garrison, H. C. Wright, Lu-cietia Mott, Higginson, T. Starr King, Bush-nell, Parker, Davis, Emma Hardinge, Emer-son, Denton, Tuttle, Abbot, Frothingham, and others. FOURTEEN CHAPTERS.

Gospels and Inspirations from many Centuries and Peoples.

"Blowly the Bible of the race is writ. Each age, each kindred, adds a verse to it." Edited and Compiled by GILES B. STEBBINS.

Four hundred pages; bound in cloth; price $1.5c. No Extra Charge for Postage. Address No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

METROPOLITAN

SERMONS,

By prominent and popular preachers in New York and vicinity, among whom are: HENRY WARD BEECRER, Bey. Drs. WASHBURSE, FAIRCHILD,

CBO8BY,	SOUDDER,
STOBB5,	CUVLER,
Rev. Dr. WM. ADAMS(Fa	rewell Sermon in full)
CHAPIN,	CUMMINS,
SCHENCK,	MOARTHUB,
TAYLOB.	POTTER,
PATTON.	HARRIS,
Foss.	DIX,
Reve. O. B. FROTHINGH.	AM, J. W. CHADWICK,
Archbishop McCLOSKEY	, Rabbi VIDAVER, W.
R. ALGER, JAMES FRE	EMAN CLARKE, and others. exceeding forty	n all. are published in

THE TRIBUNE EXTRA, No. 17, NOW READY.

Price 10 cents; pamphlet form, 20 cents; 7 The Evangelical Alliance, Extra (32 The Evangelical Alliance, Extra (32 pages), 32 cents. MEEORER'S VALS LECTURES (Nos. 8 and 7), BEROFIEL'S YALS DERIVALS (INCL.) 20 cents. THE BROOKLYN CONGREGATIONAL COUNCIL (No. 18), 10 cents. Thefive Extras named above to any address in the United States for 50 cents. Circulars giving full details of the contents of each Tribune Extra mailed free to any ad-dress. Address THE TRIBUNE, New York.

JUST PUBLISHED

MUSICAL GABLANDI

DUETS FOR VIOLIN AND PIANO. Price $2.50. New and aitractive arrangements by SEP. WINNER, of Galops, Waltzes, Mazurkas, Afra, Quadrilles, and Potpourris for Violin with Pi-ano accompaniment. Pages Sheet Music Size.

MUSICAL FLOWERS!

DURTS FOR FLUTE AND PIANO. Price $2.50. Similar in design to the "Musical Garland," nt for Flute with Piano accompaniment. 20 pages, Sheet Music Size, well filled.

FLUTE BOUQUET. Price $1.50. A collection including a great variety of music for the Flute.

VIOLIN AMUSEMENTS. $1.50.

Similar in design to the Bouquet. First-rate, easy Violin Music. Two books by Sep. Winner. They are not so large as "Musical Garland" and "Musical Flowers," containing, however, asmuch Flute or Violin Music, but no Piano accompani-ment.

THE RIVER OF LIFE

continues to attract general attention as one of the best SUNDAY-SCHOOL SONG BOOKS ever gublished. $30 per hundred.

The above books for sale everywhere. OLIVER DITSON & CO., BOSTON.

CHABLES H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York.

FREE DISCUSSION In heid at HOSPITALLER HAIL, 562 Washington Street, Boston, every Sunday, at 10% A.M., Jú and 7% P.M. All bhas relates to the Religious, Foltiteal, and Social interests of maniful constitute the subjects for discussion. The More autophate and Index Tracta are for sale every Sunday at Hospitality Hall.

THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873.

The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of $3, by express, at the purchaser's express. A complete file for the year can be furnished in no other form. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

A fine likeness of Massachusetts' great Sen-ator, the copy of a recent Photograph by Black, is for sale at THE INDEX office, and will be sont by mail to any address on receipt of the price-filty cents. THE INDEX, Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

TO NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS.

Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I should like to contract for composition alone, or for composition, press-work, and malling, for one or more weekly papers. Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed. GEO. H. ELLIS, 7 Tremont Place, Boston.

TO BOOK-BUYERS.

Please examine the revised list of POPU-LAR BOOKS on the opposite side of this page. Any OBTAINABLE BOOK NOT IN THIS LIST will be furbished to order. Readers of THE INDEX who desire to pur-chase English, German, or French Books, or who wish for information as to the price, &c., of any American or Foreign Book, can have their orders promptly filled and their inqui-ries answered by addressing THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE

■ INDEX. Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2.-00, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnels as instructive read-ing twenty years hence as to-day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of these volumes.

Addre		1000	Tren	TH ont P	IE INI lace, H	DEX, Bostor	1.
W	A	R	R	E	N		8
TR	UE		VII		TI	ON.
	showl	log tb	e wor	kings	TAI of the
C (			100	ents.	PL	E.
S.,	H 5 B				R S		1,
B	U	8	T			0	F
TH	EO		BY.	PA	RKI	SR,

SIDNEY H. MORSE,

Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi-polec, breathe through the clay; the artist has so filled his own beart with appreciation of that noble life that he has been able cum-ningly to mould it into those delicate lines which the character had wronght on the liv-ing fibre. We are tempted to exclaim, as we stand beside it, as the old artist did to his perfected work, "Speak then!"-Hannah E. Stevenson.

Stevenson. All the characteristics of my husband are in the bust,—bis greatness, his goodness, his tenderness, his love. You cannot give life to clay or marble, but you can represent it, and this Mr. Morre has done.—Lydka D. Parker to Hannah E. Stevenson.

The eyes, though but of clay, are gleaning with possible indignation, with possible tears; the lipe are set firm with the resolution of him who, like Paul, could "fight a good fight" as well as "give a reason."—Samuel Longfe-Low.

The first time I have seen Theodore Parker since he died .- Wm. Sparrell.

The best representation of Mr. Parker ever executed in clay,-Boston Daily Globs.

The face is strong and noble as it should be The likeness is good -- Boston Daily Advertiser Nothing appears for beauty alone, or finish, or to show the vanity of the artist. All is forgotten in the man-the true, real, Yankee man, Theodore Parker.-L. S. H. in the Golden Age.

Copies of this Bust, finely finished n plas-ter, $10 each. Boxing for transportation, $1 extrn. Freight or expressage paid by party sending order. Weight of box about fifty pounds. Orders may be sent to S. H. MORSE,

Room 13, 25 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE. G. L. HENDERSON & CO.,

Our organization some time since decided to direct its efforts for the present towards securing the

Repeal of the Laws

whereby church and other corporate property is unjustly exempted from its share of the burden of taxation.

As a means to this end, we have published for general circulation several thousand copies of a

TBACT

on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 77. The edition was made as large as our funds could allow; but, so great has been the demand. it is already nearly exhausted.

Our next edition ought to be large enough to place a copy in the hands of

EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE.

and generously to supply the calls for them in other States. To do this, we need funds; for, althou have made arrangements for printing the Tract at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston League, with its various other expenses, to beau the entire expense alone. Will not, then.

All Friends of the Movement

come forward and help us with liberal donation We frequently receive communications from parties wishing tracts to distribute, saking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will gratefully received for the purpose of circuing them gratuitously throughout the country. To many of the subscribers of THE INDEX ad others whose names have been furnished us probable friends of the movement, copies of e Tract, together with Fetitions saking the real of the Exemption Laws, have been sent,

With the Hope

ast such friends will try to secure as many sigatures to the petition as possible in their locality We respectfully ask those who are unable to atand to the matter themselves to place the petions in the hands of those who will. Let us

ROLL UP THE LIST!

No. 2. THE CRANIAL APPINITIES OF MAN AND THE APE. By Prof. Rudolph Virchow, et our united voices be heard! And let it be done NOW!

We would say, also that we feel deeply the to bee

Other Organizations

in this State, to cooperate with us in securing equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are those who are inclined to

Form a Liberal League,

we are ready to render such satisfance as lies in our power.

LIBERALSI

If all will units and work, the results sought can be accomplished Address

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE. NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Per order of the EXHOUTIVE COMMITTEE.

BANKEBS, LEROY, MINN.

Money invested on short time, or for a term of years, on unincumbered improved farms, at 12 per cent. Interest per annum, payable semi-aznually. Perfect tile and ample security guaranteed. All expones for abstract of tille and recording mortgage paid by borrower. We collect and remit to any part of the United States free of charge.

part of the United States free of charge. REFERENCES. - First National Bank, Mc-Gregor, Iowa; First National Bank, Auxin Minn.; Milwaukee National Bank, Milwan-kee, Wis.; City National Bank, Chicago, III.; Allen, Stevens & Co., Bankers, New York City; Morris Altman.

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES. paying 8 to 10 per cent. interes

Investments in Real Estate in Chicage and vicinity,

if judiciously made, are the best and safest modes of employing capital. The old Real Estate and Lioan Agency

OF ERNST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPS STREET Chicago (Established 1853),

Guarantees perfect tile and ample security in all its Real Estate Loans. Firstchass securities sivays on hand. In-terest and principal collected without charge. Real Estate Investments made on commission or on shares; taxes paid, &c. Orders of capitalitis and real estate own-ers respectfully solicited.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is full longth. It is full size. It is smooth and elastic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine use.

Many kinds of spool silk are a perfect fraud, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unfit for use. The ladies will always find the Eureka Silk exactly as represented. Even Every name indelibly branded on every spool. Call for it.

HALF-HOUR RECREATIONS

-IN-POPULAR SCIENCE.

EDITED BY DANA MITES.

popular scientific writers.

Fully illustrated.

BTR.

CONFERS.

Dove.

Culture.

For sale by

25 cts. per Part; $2.50 for twelve cons

The growing demand in this country for books on popular science encourages the ed-itor and publishers to issue this series of pa-pers, compiled from the works of the most Parts.

No.1. STRANGE DISCOVERIES RESPROTING THE AUBORA AND RECENT SOLAR RESEARCHES. By Richard A. Proctor, F.R.A.S.

of Berlin, author of Cellular Pathology.

No. 5. SPECTRUM ANALYSIS EXPLAINED, ADD

No. 4. SPROTRUM ANALYSIS DISCOVERIES,

No. 5. NEBULE, METEORIC SHOWERS, AND

No. 6. UNCONSCIOUS ACTION OF THE BEALS

lations, Human Physiology, etc.

AND EPIDEMIC DELUSIONS. By Dr. Carpen-ter, author of The Microscope and its Bass-

No. 7. THE GEOLOGY OF THE STARS. BY Prof. A. Winchell, of the University of Michigan, author of Sketches of Creation.

No. S. ON YEAST. By Prof. Huxley, F.R.S.

No. 9. THE CIRCOLATION OF THE WATERS OF

THE FACE OF THE KARTH. By Prof. H. W.

No. 10. THE STONE AGE, PAST AND PRESENT. By Edward B. Tylor, author of Primities

No. 11. THE RELATION DETWEEN MATTER

AND FORCE. By Prof. John H. Tice, of St. Louis.

Google

THE INDEX,

1 Tremont Place, Boston.

showing its Application in Microscopic Re-search, and to Discoveries of the Physical Constitution and Movements of the Heav-enly Bodies. From the works of Sohellen, Young, Boscoe, Lockyer, Huggins, and oth-ored plate and several wood-onts.

its Uses to Science Illustrated. With a col-

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

VOLUME 5.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other ecclesiastical property shall no longer be exempt from just tarastion. 3. We demand that the employment of ohaplaine in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisons, systums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

sublic money, shall be discontinued. 8. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cease.

4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether estensibly as its include the public schools, whether estensibly as a start-book or avowedly as a book of religious wor-ably, shall be prohibited.
5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and thats shall wholly cease.
6. We domand that the indicial each in the case.

of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease. 8. We domand that the judicial oath in the courts and all other departments of the government shall be aboi-abed, and that simple affirmation under the pains and per-lities of perjury shall be established in its stead. 7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforce-ng the observance of Sunday as the Babbath shall be re-pealed.

a. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty.
b. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the United States and the several States, but also in the practical scientification of the same, no privilege or advantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other special religion; that our entire political system shall be founded and administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unflinchingly, and prompily made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, it is our profound conviction that it of a sepublican institutions is imperiled, the advance of civili-asion impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and religion; and Whereas, Cartain grave inconsistencies with the general apirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-deal administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land;

TREERFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

ART. 1.-The name of this Association shall be THE LIS-and right. Ant. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a tro-third vote of the members. Afr. 5.—Any person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-meat.

meat. Air. 6.-The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Excou-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be these commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be ex-officio delegates to the Nanunal Convention of Liberal Leagues when cauled together. Air. 7.-These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-ular meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

So far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of firs induct. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that it will yet be accepted universally by the American people, as the only platform consistent with religiona liberty. A liberal League ought to be formed to carry out its princi-ples wherever haif a dorson carner and resolute Liberals as be got together. Being convinced that the movement to score compliance with these just "Demands" must amend, even if alowly, spread, I hope to make Tus Intern and the second of every man and every womake and re-port promptly the names of their Presidents and Secre-taries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion as that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are why, let their organized voice be heard like the sound of many water. BORDON Emert turn FRANCIS & ABBOT, Editor.

Bowrow, Sept. 1, 1878.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, MAY 28, 1874. For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT: PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CON-

BTITUTION.

ATTICLY 1. SECTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-tablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiting the free exterise thereof; or airdig-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dow-ernment for a redress of grievances. BECTON 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting an of religion, or prohibiting the free exterises thereof; or arbitiging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dowernment for a redress of grievances. No religious audification to any office or public trust, in any States and no person shall ever in any State be deprived of any of the order formance of any public or private duty, or ren-dered incompetent to give evidence in any sourt of law or or equity, in consequence of any public or private duty, or ren-dered incompetent to give evidence in any sourt of law or on the subject of religion. BECTOR 3.—Oosperses shall have power to enforce the pro-rise of the second section of this Article by appropri-ations of the second section of this Article by appropri-

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

BT A. W. B.

HENEY JAMES says: "Genlus is God's spoiled child in the world." Every naturally dull person ought to be assuaged by this remark.

IN THE LIBRARY presented by Senator Summer to Harvard College is Bobert Burns' own manuscript of his poem entitled, "Scots who has wi' Wallace bled."

THE MASSACHUSETTS Registration Report shows the average age of cultivators of the soil to be 65:18 years,being 14:19 years more than the average of all occupations.

IT IS NOT the "melancholy days" that have come now, but the beautiful ones; when Nature is in her irresistible mood, and all true hearts are glad to yield to her sweet blandishments.

WOODHULL and Clafin's Weekly says: "In cases [in cerned, both sexes our courts] in which both sexes are con ought to be represented, not only in the jury-box, but on the bench." And does not the common sense of justice say Amen?

"PRINCESS" Nellie Grant had "fifty silk dresses" and a "trunk full of stockings" to get married with. Mary Clemmer Ames says this fact severely exercised the feminine mind at Washington.

THE EDITOR of the American Sportsman has recently purchased s dog, in England, at a cost of six hundred dollars. Such reckless expenditure proves that this editor is going to the dogs rapidly.

A PROMINENT American literary gentleman, who thoroughly knows Mr. Thomas Carlyle, admirably describes the famous Scotchman thus: "A roaring, riotous, most benighted, but not unbenignant brother."

MR. AGASSIZ once said of animals: "In some incom-prehensible way, God Almighty has created these things; and I cannot doubt of their immortality any more than I doubt of my own." The same reasoning that would make man immortal would surely seem to presume for animals the same chance.

"THE PROXISES OF happiness in life," says one, "are like those of our greenbacks-lies "fra end to end," false promises never to be redeemed." This seems to us rather a strong statement. One should reckon one's happiness by quality rather than quantity; for sometimes the experience which we have in one moment is worth more to us than that of many days.

LOOKS, glances of the eye, shiftings of thought-shadows on the face, are wonderful things; more wonderful than words are they. For better than words, and swifter, they telegraph the thoughts of the mind and the feelings of the heart. Words at the best are halting and awkward messengers, often spolling what they undertake to carry; but looks are subtile and facils, and land us straightway in one another's meaning.

THE NATIONAL House of Representatives, in voting recantly upon the admission of Mr. Cannon of Utah (the objection to him being that he was a Mormon, with four wives), decided that a man's moral character, or conduct, does not prevent him, Constitutionally, from being en-titled to a seat in Congress. We are surprised that this should have needed a formal vote, since the eligibility of immoral Congressmen has been practically decided for a long time.

MB. GLADSTONE is reported as telling his friends that he regrets having given so many years of his life to poli-tics. "How little," he remarks, "do politics affect the life, the moral life, of a nation! One single good book influences the people a vast deal more." The er-premier, we believe, is right. Faith in truth, and promulgation of ideas is market the rough mode, note to prost to rest to of ideas, is what the world needs; not a resort to partymaking and political contrivances. In the school house, not in the State house, is our national salvation. An inspirer more than a statesman is the desideratum of this country to-day!

THE SECOND RADICAL CLUB had its last regular meet-ing of the season, last Monday evening; and the occasion was a delightful and memorable one. The past season has been one of nnusual interest and profit to the Club, and all its members enter upon the present vacation with most pleasant memories of the season just closed. This last night was a Festival Night. Simple refreshments were furnished, which were followed by short speeches and poems from the members. Abbot, Gannett, Verity, and Miss Hotchkiss contributed poems which were most cordially received; while Morse, Park, Wetherbee, Prof. Gunning, Ranney, Kendall, Mrs. Dr. Safford-Blake, and Stephen Pearl Andrews made brief but acceptable speeches. Before closing, the Club voted to have a picnic some time during the summer.

MR. BEECHER's eleventh Yale Lecture was on Christion Manhood. In the course of it there occurs the following striking and vigorous sentence :-- lowing striking and vigorous sentence:--My conception of a perfect man is one who is strong; who is full of energy; full of appetites and passions, and, therefore, of that wonderful force which is wrought by them, or which transforms itself into auxiliary forces; full of life; full of thought-power; full of esthetic excel-lences; and full of that central element of love to which all othgr influences are subordinated, and which is itself subordinate to God. Now, give me a man like this. Where do you find lim?--the man of liberty; the man of infinite largeness; the man that goes freely whither he will, up and down, all the faculties playing in harmony with the concert-pitch of the universe, which is love? Show me that perfect man. I have never seen him. And we probably never shall see him until we have the "Ilberty" that is necessary as a condition to make him.

'liberty" that is necessary as a condition to make him.

MRS. ZINA FAY PIEBOS, a very able and thoughtful woman, thinks that temperance reformers should make a distinction between the milder and more flery liquors; that beer-drinking and billiard-playing are in themselves conducive to morality, and should be rescued from their present disrepute; that the true way to promote temper-ance is to establish good beer gardens, where young people may drink moderately of mild liquors, dance, play billiards, and have a good time generally; that tea-drinking is ruinous to women, and they would be much better off if they would drink it but once a day, and take a pint of mild beer every noon; that the total-abstinence pledge, except for people in whom drunkenness is a disease, is a "stigma upon the Communion, and a direct accusation against the wisdom and morality of our blessed Saviour himself." It is well to listen to the opinions of all sincere and capable persons, when we are called upon to decide any important matter.

OUR FRIEND, W. H. Spencer, who was recently called to take charge of a new Liberal Society in Sparta, Wis-consin, writes to us from that place, under date of May 6, as follows:-

6, as follows:--"We commenced our services last Sunday. Over two hundred and fifty present. We were refused by the churches a shelter under their wings, and so must preach the new goopel in a hall. I never saw such liber-ality of mind and purse anywhere in the East. There ian't a single traditional Unitarian among them,-for which I thank God, Tars INDEX, and common sense. I have had several invitations to join the Western Unitar-an Conference; but since Potter has been read out; espe-cially, do 1 feel nevarmore like permitting that name to be applied to me." Mr. Spencer is pretty certain to succeed with his socke-

Mr. Spencer is pretty certain to ancesed with his socie ty, for he is a man of ability, earnestness, and devotion. We trust that many other Liberal Societies like his may spring up in both East and West; and that they must do so, we think, is only a question of time.

muser Google

Single Copies Seven Cents.

WHOLE NO. 231.

ιā.

LIST OF LIBERAL LEAGUES.

 LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. Lu Grille, Secretaries.
 LOTON, MASS-F. E. Abbot, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries.
 EFFERSON, ONIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Secretary. ST. LOUIS, Becretary. BAN JOSE, CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch. retary. DO, IOWA.-J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre-Tor VINELAND, N. J. - John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Becretary. JUNCTIONVILLE, NEE.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Secretary. OLATHE, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, retary. DIT, MIOH.-W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, DETRO Secretary, MION. - A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. LEDSVILLE, MION. - A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. Anowles, Secretary, ONOLA, MO. - R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Beeretary. BATH, ME-F. G. Barker, President; C. Bhodes, Secretary. BEELIN, WIM.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman. WARDINGTON, D.C. - George M. Wood, President; J. E. Orawford, Scoretary. ADBURN, OBIO. - John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treasurer. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. NEW YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, retary. Oarry, Mo.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Wetary. Socretary. Socretary. Eac CLAIDE, WIS.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy. BALDO, ND.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. New Ontaines, La.-President, E. Worster; Secretary, J. Wallace, BAY CITY, MICH.-President, S. M. Green; Secretary, S. M. Johnson.

[FOR THE INDEL.]

Senator Sumner's Religion.

BY JOHN WEISS.

<text><text><text><text><text>

E INDEX -- MAAY 28, 1

of the religious state without running to abuse in the individual and to bigotry in popular opinion. They congest and soften some brans, set up hallucinations, drain the life into ecstasies. The tendency toward something that is superior to ourselves generally settles into a conviction that an idea of what was going to be just, right, pure, honor-able among men, existed before the men did. We cannot believe that mankind created by slow develop-ment an ideal that is far above the condition into which it has developed. We attribute this unstained standard, which disturbs, mortifies, stimulates us, to an immutable Something beyond ourselves, and al-ways in advance of our latest attainment; to some Power superior to society that selects heroes and mar-tyre from the average conditions of mankind to become the progenitors of better ones. Society is contented with the moral proficiency it has attained. What breeds, then, discontent? In what line of inherit-ance does the protester stand who hazards his own peace to disturb the content of others, and improve the grounds of that content? He stands in the line of that ideal power which breaks up the strata of the earth, prepares improved surfaces for better breeds of plants and animals, and introduces at length a creat-period has a twofold character; it is satisfied with its outdition, and yet it carries along the element of dis-astisfaction. The strange creatures of the primeval world never chafed at their prospects and circum-tatances; the effort which compelied a better creature to succeed them was not originated by themselves. Each growth settled down into sure and friendly re-signed to crawl instead of swimming, no reptile ever aspired to lift its over element to use and driendly re-signed to crawl instead of swimming, no reptile ever aspired to lift its vertebre into a perpendicular spine; creatures with rudely sketched and awkward wings never cherished an ambition for a broader pinion, to be jaduated scale of succession which is visible in Nat-ure, it is

They moved in the line of an idea, which took its own time, because it is something previous as well as contemporaneous. So every period of society, far from struggling to improve its condition, cannot conceive of improve-ment; it has the temper of a saurian, to stay where something has put it. When something inclines to put it elsewhere, it only contributes incrines to the movement, and is incapable of rising into any eno-tion save dread and wrath at being disturbed by the fanatical exigency of something that is beyond itself. And every successive advantage defends itself against an ideal power, denies assistance to it, and dies hard. Therefore every age of human society claims to be the latest possible result of a creative power. Look-ing backward, it alludes felicitonsly to the superiority of the present, and attributes it to admirable forefa-thers; it cannot look forward, for its own present is a wall built across the prospect. The ideal man who describes a horizon beyond the coping of this wall is a leveller of limits. His report is an indictment of the virtue which through much toil and blood has been attained. Let him be rapidly suppressed. "It is trite," says the anthor of Ecce Homo, "that an be morality their structural defect appears; and men-table.

<text><text><text><text>

manny Google

<text><text><text><text><text><text>

"So much the rather thou, Celestial Lipht, Subs laward, and the mind through all her powers Irrdiaxe; There plant eyes, all miss from thence Purge and disperse, that I may see and tell 'Of things invisible to mortal sight."

Irradiase, there plant syzes, all mills from thence by and disperse, that I may nee and tell of things invisible to mortal alght."
Incline to call blim the most religious statesman of this or any age, because his life was devoted to the void religion be more comprehensive and satisfactory? To his early years belonged an instinct that he must seek a career that would test his sense of at the entre of human well-being. So he put this title difficulty the calls which various when it is on the service of morals. They because of human well-being. So he put the unclose of lucature and law, to devote his competent nowledge of both to the service of morals. They because of lucature and law, to devote his competent mowledge of both to the service of morals. They because scalied to religion in his soul, because he always wore the ample presence of justice untramental brought to him, decilined they because scalied to religion in his soul, because he always wore the ample presence of justice untramental by expediency, humanity unbounded by the customs of nations. His doctrine was pure, like his life; very athletic, trained to wrestle with ideal minits to such encounters, his tight hug, unconsclous how formidable it had grown in those private exercises, crushed out of the politician every that except abuse, and reduced the resources of lost. The bound of the sources of the the full and perfect form of righteoueness beom. Lit his ordin every on the test, blaw, we adding the such and corry out or. The path his lips to the unconsclous northed was and his perfect form of righteouenes, bear, we adding the such and corry or to the encomplete, is the full and perfect form of righteouenes, bear, we adding the word, which be an ilying soul breathed to hum. He put his lips to the unconsclous northed abus, this bearder or the mer, and we can be a word, when he a tell down, we adding the word, when he as only a religious, beave, and religion the math of the math of the notion, he incert, liberate its man, and be a living soul

"He prayeth best who loveth best, All things, both great and small."

He sank deep into meditation, as a diver who leaves no part of himself behind; through his sense of abso

"The Reason of Church Government Urged Against Pre-

lute rectitude he went deep into inward communing, out of the deslight to reach silence, self-recovery, certainty of being in the right. But this movement toward the invisible was not converted from light which is claimed for yaw quanteel in the smooth ware. If he had tended to plety by nature, he would have been ascred from it by grace, when he saw how generate the set of the statemanably, and devoted all their tailed to light by nature, he would have been ascred from it by grace, when he saw how and the set admitted to its pew. The polliticians who found fasil with the methods of his statemanably, and devoted all their tailed to letting thing alone, was accessed all their tailed to letting thing alone, was accessed and their the test of the statemanably and exoted all their tailed to letting their shall be society, disciples of Christ, communicants of the Lord's Supper,—they plad the price, the precious body and blood of humanity for peace and union. It's not be easily of the second the science is a structure to be the defeaders of the is cristing state. They are the spokesmen of a society which abrinks from the cost of regeneration. Their instituctive work they do, with a profound dislike for the ideal into convert the grave of our taitesman into a refect of personal imputation. But this we have a right so ary with emphasis, that the popular religion proved inadequate to bear the strain of righteounness which the ideal erigency put upon it; and the is defers of American opinion were not illuminated by their pi-ty. We may borrow to the spirit of that parable of the Great Assize, when the fon of Man separates the gathered souls to the right hand and to the left. Those are repudited whole merer recognized their their, in a set regulated whole avertable is the rever sta-with Christ, and never build union the defer of the under the which as would union the defer of the under of his control whole is a section of the solution of his internal well of the rever sta-ributed any of his internal well of the rever sta

874. 255

<text><text><text>

manning Google

* Theodore Parker's Bistoric Americans.

others subsequent, to the inventions of schemes for saving souls, who have left illustrious records of the soul's native independence of such schemes. Their names are outposts pushed to history's front, hardy and venturesome, detached from the rank and file of many other souls of like obedience, whose humbler success survives in their reputation. For the virtue of a few famous men expresses the capacity of all who have been obscurely great and good. This it does, as much when Socrates, Pythagoras, Franklin, Lincoin, Summer are the names, as when we recall the heroes of doctrines, Paul, Fénelon, Oberlin, Martyn, Ed-wards.

<text>

THE ADVOCACY of the recognition of God in the Constitution is not always accompanied by a sense of his present existence, to judge from the remarks of a speaker in the Ohio Constitutional Convention in favor of this project. The Supreme Being appears to have been considered as a past agency, in the rather turgid declaration that, "The memory of God remains embalmed in the hearts of men, and shines clearer, and man's love for him looms brighter, amid the ruins of revolution than in the luxuriance of an unbounded prosperity."

SCENE IN CHEMISTRY.—Student attempting to re-cite, but wanders strangely from the subject. Pro-fessor interrupts and gives a long and lucid explana-tion. Student listens attentively, and at its close, throwing his head back in the direction of the phren-ological organ of self-esteem, modestly replies, "Yes, sir; yes, sir' you get my idea."

THE LAST WORDS OF AN ENGLISH SEC-ULARIST.

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

of which they talked so glibly. But it was years be-fore I thought my way to atheism. It cannot there-fore be said that I never experienced religious emo-tions. For twenty years past my mind has been entirely free from misgivings or apprehensions as to any fut-ure state of rewards and punishments. I do not be-lieve in the Christian Delty, nor in any form of so-called supernatural existence. I cannot believe in that which I cannot comprehend. I shall be accused of presumption in expressing disbelief in an idea which has commanded the faith of some of the best intellects for centuries past. This I cannot help. I must think for myself; and if each of those great men had been asked to define his God, it may assily be predicted that no two would have agreed. I may also be reminded that "the fool hath said in his heart there is no God." This would imply thought, and it is doubtful whether a fool ever thought upon the sub-ject at all; but his idea of a Delty, if it could be got at, would no doubt be as coherent as most other men's. Many fools have written and epoken as tough they had penetrated the secrets of the inscru-table, and many wise men have lost their reason in endeavoring to solve the insoluble; and the world re-mains just as Ignorant on the subject as it did at the earliest dawn of civilization. I do not believe in a heaven, or life of eternal bliss of human existence. Wherever there are living or-ganisms there are suffering and torture amongst them; therefore analogy would go to prove that if we lived again we should suffer again. To desire eternal bliss is no proof that we aball ever attain it; and it has long seemed to me absurd to believe in that which we wish for, however ardentiy. I regard all forms of Christianity as founded in selfishness. It is the ex-pectation held out of bliss through all eternity, in re-turn for the profession of faith in Christ and Him eradified, that induces the exerction of temples of wor-ship in all Christian lands. Remove this extravagant remiso, and you will h religion. An eternal hell seems to me too monstrous for the belief of any humane man or sensitive woman; and yet millions believe in it. Like heaven, it is enor-mously disproportionate to the requirements of the case; as man can never confer benefits deserving an eternal reward, so it is impossible for him to commit sins deserving eternal punishment. The idea must have had its origin in the diseased imagination of some fanatic; but it has been carefully cherished and improved upon by priests in subsequent ages, till it is now incorporated in the creed of all Christian church-es. Father Pinamont's Hell Open to Christians, and the Rev. Mr. Furness's Sight of Hell, show to what a fearful extent this diabolical idea can be used in waying and stultifying the minds of the young. As I have stated before, my mind being free from sty oubts on these bewildering matters of specula-periset mental repose; and now 1 find that the near speriset mental repose; and now 1 find that the near speriset mental repose; and now 1 find that the near speriset mental repose; and now 1 find that the near speriset mental repose; and now 1 find that the near speriset mental repose; and now 1 find that the near speriset mental repose; and now 1 find that the near speriset mental repose; and now 1 find that the near speriset mental repose; and now 1 find that the near speriset mental repose; both by night and day; but the has not produced the least symptom of change of opinion. No amount of bodily torture can alter a mental conviction. Those who, under pain, say they see the error of their previous belief had never thought out the problem for themselves. I cannot conclude without expressing the gratification I have received from my connection with the National Reformer. My work on it has indeed been a labor of love, and my association therein, with my esteemed friends Mr. Bradlaugh and Mr. Charles Watts, for the past eight years, has been of the most harmonious nature. My extreme regret now is, that I cannot do my full share in the work the "Trinity" has hitherto performed; but I must bend to inevita-ble fate, and content myself by knowing that an abler and better man may be found to take my place. However, of this I am sure, that my colleagues will never meet with a more faithful and ardent friend. To the true courage and patience of my dear and devoted wife I owe my present tranquillity. In my little son and daughter I have all a father's hope and confidence, and it softens the pain of parting when I contemplate leaving them with one who has all the-[Mr. Austin Holycoake commenced the dictation of this last paragraph a few hours before he died; but, being soon exhausted, had to break off, and was not able to resume it.—ED. National Reformer.]

COMPULSORY EDUCATION IN ILLINOIS.

There is a bill for compulsory education now under consideration in the fillinois Legislature, which, by the moderation of its provisions and the simplicity of its details, presents the entire question of enforced instruction. If red from most of the complications which embers are it in other places. It provides that every parent or guardian of a child between the ages of alle auf fourteer, who resides in a district where there is a school within two miles, shall send the child is aroundly profident in the ordinary branches of English education. It is made the duty of the school officers to prosecute for any violation of this duty, after proper noiles has been given, subjects the school officers to a penalty of the duty is a signed being from one to five district, the penalty assigned being from one to five district, the penalty assigned being from one to five district, the penalty assigned being from one to five district, the penalty assigned being from one to five district, the penalty assigned being from one to five district, the penalty assigned being from one to five district, the penalty assigned being from one to five district, the penalty assigned being from one to five distribution of the duty, after proper noiles has been given, subject the school officers to a penalty of the duty in the source of Representatives, and, although it met with considerable opposition, it finally passed. It has received its first reading in the Senate, but has not yet come up for final action. The opposition to this and to similar measures rest, of course, your help that which is now never astructions are indexed with a linear the every zeistence of society that the State cannot remain stranger to them. The public health is also of these interest to the very zeistence of society that the State cannot remain stranger to them. The public health is a set of such as a metter of self-preservation, an ever disting an using a substance which is in its set of the input health. It may be as a fit align or the set as a fit disting a

IF YOU INTEND to do a mean thing, wait till to-norrow. If you are to do a noble thing, do it now. morro mannan Google

í.

÷3

BRARS AND BABIES.

That best-cubs are born into the world as shapeless as they are heighess, and that they are licked into form by their dams, is a theory which used at one time, we suppose, to be regarded as an established year of the suppose to be regarded as an established year of the suppose. The second many supposes of the problem as a start this exceedingly sug-science in the pupils as a fact this exceedingly sug-science in incredulity of bis elder scholars, and, if the minucleate to his pupils as a fact this exceedingly and pinaelf a vigorous remonstrance, or something more, from the school managers. And yet, taking the country over, whetcher in denominational or in board reagement, to teach as a scual facts stories of past time, and views of Nature, which have even less to reagement, to teach as a scual facts stories of past time, and views of Nature, which have even less to reagement, to teach as a scual facts stories of past time, and views of Nature, which have even less to reagement, to teach as a cual facts stories of past time, and views of Nature, which maternal surface and them than this remarkle and estimated un-about young bears. For, indeed, as suggestive of edi-fis favor. Hables are certainly born into the world where it has young bears possibly can. And of the disagreeable incidents which maternal surface the disagreeable incidents which maternal surface involve, if they were duly impressed with the docility dipts to be gained by false statements of fact into shape. It would be change that such distration just as used that the old superstition might be men-inging to one which which was a plece of er-pied distion, however isuidable and desirable in itself, out here we before us a list of liberal friends of ela-tion is begated by false case of the internal surface the weber on a list of the science of casi-tate and infinit ender one liberal friends of ela-ion the because in such circumstances. Here weat detains, in that list of leasons to be give in the difference from the children anioning rout distre that there is any such thing as a "history" of Jonah, properly so-called, at all? How many think in their hearts that the Alinghty Father of mankind inspired two she-bears to fall upon a number of naughty chil-diverse the second of the second of the second of the second response of the second of the second of the second of the second provided in the second of the second of the second of the second response to the second of the se that would be made of the supernatural terrors ang-gested? Are liars who are struck dead, and little children for to pieces because of a prophet's curse, and a disobedient messenger awallowed by a whale, the best means we can think of for conveying moral instruction to lufant minds? True, foolish mothers tell their little ones that if they are not good a black man will take them. But it was not for the training of another generation of foolish mothers that school boards were established. True, where mothers in half-playful mood remind Master Tommy, who says he 'doesn't care,' of the lamentable end to which Don't-care came. But there is an agreeable inder-standing that the 'libn'' is, after all, only mythical, or, at worst, symbolical of painful consequences. But such narratives as those of Annalas, and Jonah, and Elisha, told to young children as sober and simple fact, can have no other than one of two effects. They either surround the child with supernatural terrors, or they beget an early habit of regarding solemn words as meaningless, and the most scared endorsements as urreal. The latter effect is much the more common, and therefore, perhaps, the more dangerous. But the crueity inflicted on the more sensitive and imagina-tive childwith a is none respects even more dias-tions. For it distorts and perverts the most promis-ing minds at a most critical period of growth. It is no light matter to abuse the confidence of a young child with stories only half believed by the teacher himself, but which must necessarily perturb and darken the pupil's idea of the laws which govern the world. And it is perhaps even worse in an infant school to tell a tale which ought to excite pity, indig-nation, and abhorence, yet so to tell it that these feelings are wholly perverted and misdirected. Suppose, farther, that is more insign end of them to death. We think it exceedingly probable that the testy old gentleman would be hung. And at any rate, if the school teacher found it necessary to point the moral of such an occurre

THE HUMANE SOCIETY of Chicago has by formal resolution made some rather odd suggestions to the people of its city and State. In the first place, it wants the Chicago Board of Education-which has just declared itself in favor of whipping in schools-to adopt such series of readers, other requirements being equal, as shall have the best lessons upon hu-mane subjects in each reader of the series. Clergy-men likewise are urged by the Society to sid the cause of gentieness and good-will by preaching one or more sermons each year upon the subject of cruelty to the brute creation. And the society end its long list of resolutions with the declaration that, in its opinion, if the teachers in all the schools, public and private, the authorities in Sunday-schools, and the clergy, would do what they might to inculcate princi-ples of humanity, the strange little demon of cruelty wouldn't long abide with mankind. We heartily ap-prove these hints; the teachers of men and of chil-dren aadly need to be reminded that true and genial living is the first and grandest thing they have to teach.-New York Tribure. THE HUMANE SOCIETY of Chicago has by formal

A MEETING FOR prayer, conducted in a strange and novel fashion, was held a few days since in the school-room of St. Peter's, Eaton Square. After a brief ad-dress, Mr. Wilkinson, the Vicar, requested those present to kneel in silence while he pleaded their cause at the Throne of Grace. This having been done, they were requested to listen for the answer, when pres-ently a voice arose from some mysterious part of the room, declaring, "I have heard thy prayer," &c. I The Rock remarks that, if this is to be regarded as a mild preparation for the mission week, we may look for some very exciting scenes indeed.—London Graphic.

Hoetry.

[For THE INDEX.]

H. CLAY NEVILLE.

257

THE TRIUMPH OF TRUTH.

O, Truth, thy triumph is tardy, , Truth, thy triumps to long; The reign of Error is long; The weak are oppressed by the migh And the arm of Injustice is strong.

The wall of suffering innocence

Disturbs the quiet of night, And Wrong, with traditional usage, By daylight insults the Right.

In vain do the friends of mere For helpless humanity plead; The strong and selfish still revel, Nor the crise of the perishing heed.

In vain do the hands of freemen The banner of Liberty raise, The grey-bearded tyrant, Custom,

His time-honored sceptre sways

Oh! when will the time be present That faith through the future descries, When Might shall cease to be cruel, Nor the rights of weakness despise?

Though slow is the good time coming Which hope has promised so long, When love shall supplant all hatred, And right shall prevail o'er wrong,

Yet still, through the mist of the future, The dawn of its morning we see, And the darkness and chaos around us From the light are beginning to fice.

OZARK, Mo., May 3, 1874.

NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS TO INDEX STOCK

	Last to a share the same
	Mrs. F. W. Christern, Richard B. Westbrook	New York City, Sonman, Pa.	One al	anre,
	R. C. Spencer,	Milwaukee, Wis.	Two		100
1	R. W. Howes,	Boston, Mass.			200
	Chas. W. Story,	Boston, Mass.	One		100
2	E. W. Meddaugh,				100
	Jacob Hoffner,	Detroit, Mich.	Five		800
0	John Waiss,	Cumminaville, O.	One	50	100
ł	W C Weiss	Boston, Mass.			100
ľ	W. C. Russel,	Ithaca, N. Y.	44		100
	A. W. Leggett,	Detroit, Mich.	. 44	-44	100
	B. F. Dyer,	Boston, Mass.			100
)	James Purinton,	Lynn, Mass.		- 66	189
2	F. A. Nichols,	Lowell, Mass.		. 16	100
4	J. S. Palmer,	Portland, Me.			100
1	Robt. Ormiston,	Brooklyn, N.Y.	44		100
ĥ	Mrs. A. L. Richmond,	Lowell, Mass.	68		100
1	Mrs. Benj. Ireson.	Lynn, Mass.	64		100
	J. E. Oliver,	Ithaca, N.Y.	44		100
1	E. H. Aldrich,	Providence, R.I.		24	100
	Geo. L. Clark,	Providence, R.1.			108
1	W. M. Jackson,	Providence, R.I.	Two	- 16
1	Mrs. E. B. Chase,	Valley Falls, R.I.	Two	. 16	909
1	L. F. Garvin,	Tondale DT	177		100
	James Damon,	Lonsdele, R.I.	One		106
1		Ipswich, Mass.		64	100
3	Joseph A. Barker,	Providence, B.I.		40	100
.1

CASH BECEIPTS.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 2

JOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 23. John Weiss, 43; D. S. Grandin, $1.60; W. H. Boughton, 83; E. B. Wolcott, 83; J. H. Hawley, 82; James F. Brown, 84; C. H. Denison, 70 cents; Alfred Warren, 90 cents; Mark T. Adams, 83; A. J. Davis & Co., $1.35; J. P. Hamilton, 93; New England News Co., $1.72; G. S. Hall, $62; American News Co., $18.50; Clemens Vonnegut, $5; G. W. Topping, $4.60; Heury Villard, $6; John Ploughman, $3; E. K. Hart, 55; Anns E. Thompson, $3; Patrick McDonald, $3; Jonas Decker, $2; P. H. Magnus, $5; Mary H. Orton, $5; J. M. Hawka, $3; Christopher A. Day, $10; Geo. Lewis, $20, A. M. Purdy, $6; F. L. Sherman, $1; T. A. Kinney, $3; Occar Roos, $2.60; N. S. Townsend, $10; Y. B. Martin, $20; Caha, Nash, $44; Chas, Storra, $100; A. L. Richmond, $50; Caha, $45; Gerrit Smith, $00; Pholus Pisk, $100; J. K. Boee, $25; Ohnas, Garley, $200; J. L. Cuiler, $100; J. M. Wilson, $10; G. H. Foster, $1.30; M. S. Kagge, $2 cents; James Noti, 'fo cents; Wm. C. Moore, 75 cents; Lewis G. James Stoti, 75 cents; Wm. C. Moore, 75 cents; Lewis G. James Noti, $40; Chas, $100; A. L. Cuiler, $100; J. K. James Noti, $200; J. K. Jorne, Store, S. S. McKens-Je, 16 cents; Wm. B. Taylor, $00 cents; E. B. McKens-Je, 16 cents; Wm. B. Taylor, So cents; E. M. Mikes-Je, 16 cents; Wm. B. Taylor, 50 cents; E. M. Wighes, $00; F. E. Abbot, $460; Cash, $2.60; M. Kres-Jet, 16 cents; Wm. B. Taylor, 50 cents; E. M. McKens-Jet, 500; F. E. Abbot, $460; Cash, $2.40; J. K. Loring, $4 cents.

All receipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and o other receipt sent unless specially requested. Persons ho do not see their remittances acknowledged within tree weeks after sending, will please notify us.

N. B.-Please remit by post-office money-order, by regis-tered letter, or by draft on Boston or New York. Checks on interior banks are liable to discount, and the term of subscription will be proportionally shortened in the credit.

BECRIVED.

Books

Books. TWENTY-SIXTH ANNUAL BEFORT of the Executive Com-mittee of the Prison Association of New York, and Ac-companying Documents, for the year 1870. Albany: 1871. Pamphlets and Periodicals. SIXTEENTS, TWENTY-FIRST, TWENTY-FIRST, WENTY-FIRST, TWENTY-FIRST, WENTY-SUPPLY EIGHTU AND TWENTY-NINTH ANNUAL REPORTS of the Prison Association of New York. ANNUAL REPORT of the State Prison Commissioner of the State of Wisconsin, for the year ending December 31, 1899.

State of Wisconsin, for the year ending December 31, 1890. The Law of HABIT. A Sermon by O. B. Frothlagham, in New York, April 19, 1874. New York: D. G. Francis. The Disrosal of OUE Dath. A Sermon by O. B. Frothlag-ham, in New York, May3, 1814. New York: D. G. Francis. The PRINCIPLES, Mistolov, AND HIFTOUV OF THE SOCIET OF PRINCIPLES, Mistolov, AND HIFTOUV OF THE SOCIET Disciples, in Boston, on First Day, Ind Mo. 5, 1874. By Augustine Jones, of Lynn, Mass. Lynn: G. C. Herbert, Seravons by the Bey- Charles Voyree, st St. George's Hall, London. April 5: "Easter-Day." April 18: "Immortali-ty." April 26: "The Elternal Silence." May 2: "What Theisan Teaches on God, and Evil, and Suffering." The ArLANTIO MONTHLY. June, 1874. New York: Wood & Holbrook.

The Inder. FUBLIARED EVERT THUMDAY BY

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION,

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Toledo Office: No. 25 MONTOS STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

BOSTON, MAY 28, 1874.

N.B.—Any person whose name is now on our mail-list will receive a second copy of THE IN-DEX, mailed to the same address, for a year, on pre-payment of One Dollar. This offer is made to accommodate those of our subscribers who wish to increase our circulation by sending extra copies as samples to their friends.

NOTICE.

The Third Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Index Association will be held in Toledo, Ohio, at No. 48 Summit Street, on Saturday, June 6, 1874, at 10 o'clock, A.M., in accordance with the articles of incorporation.

GLIMPSES.

THE NINETEENTH National Sängerfest is to be held at Cleveland, from June 22 to June 27.

AN ORTHODOX correspondent breathes this complaint into the editorial ear: "It dos not seam rite that all the talent in the lant should bee araid against the scripturs." We pity his sorrows, but do not see how to assuage them.

MISS ANNA C. BRACKETT and Miss Ida M. Elliot, at No. 9 West 39th Street, New York, will reopen their excellent school for girls on October 1. Personal application before June 16 and after September 16; application by letter at any time.

REV. JOHN WEISS is open to engagements to lecture, his health being now sufficiently restored to permit this; and his brilliant lecture in this number of THE INDEX shows what noble service he can render to the cause of high thinking and brave speaking.

THE CIVIL RIGHTS BILL has passed the United States Senate by a large majority, after a struggle of twenty hours. The House will probably make the bill a law at an early day. If the shade of the great Senator looks down still upon the scene of his long warfare with human slavery, what joy must it bring to him to witness the final triumph of the measure for which he pleaded so touchingly even in his dying hour!

AT BAY CITY, Mich., on Sunday, May 3, a new "Liberal Association" was organized, with the following list of officers: President, Hon. S. M. Green; Vice-President, J. M. Allen; Secretary, Miss S. M. Johnson; Treasurer, Mrs. George Blackman; and an Executive Committee of five members (names not reported). The Secretary writes under dats of May 18 as follows: "It was formed especially to put in practical execution the Demands of Liberalism, as set forth in THE INDEX."

THE Amherst Student thus chronicled the dedication of the new church at Amherst College: "Every recent graduate will regret to learn that the Faculty thought it necessary to stultify themselves, at the dedication of the new church, by forcing all the students to attend. We were informed how much better deportment was expected of us than in the chapel, and that all secular thoughts must be laid aside. On top of all that, we were driven into the edifice like a flock of sheep, under the direction of gym. captains and monitors."

THE LONDON Morning Journal says with reference to the disposal of surplus funds raised for sufferers by colliery accidents :--- colliery accidents:--"We have not much faith in the ultimate disposal of the large surplus of the present Oaks (accident) fund; for we cannot forget that, while the few managers of it quite recently purchased a cart-load of handsomely bound Bibles to present to the children and others who were connected with the Oaks, they at the same time refused to give anything towards purchasing bread for the widows and orphans of men killed by the Morley explosion." Ow MONDAY, May 18, in the House of Representatives, Hon. George F. Hoar, of Massachusetts, presented the "Congressional Petition" for the repeal of the Act of June 17, 1870, by which church property is exempted from taxation in the District of Columbia. The petition was ordered by the House to be printed, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia, and published in the Congressional Record; for a copy of which, containing the petition, we acknowledge our indebtedness to Mr. Hoar. Will the friends of the measure in Washington please watch the Committee, and inform the readers of THE INDEX what action, if any, is taken with reference to it?

A CONTRIBUTOR in another column makes inquiries touching our recently expressed views of the "praying crusade," and quotes its seemingly successful working in one of the small towns of Ohio. But the subjoined telegraphic despatch to the Boston Globe, dated Worcester, Mass., May 1, illustrates so pointedly the darker side of the "crusade" in arousing bitterness and even violence, that further comment seems scarcely needed. It is enough to say that, much as we regret the occurrence described, it yet follows almost inevitably from the character of the 'crusade" itself: "One of the most disgraceful scenes in the crusade movement took place, this evening, in Joseph Riedl's saloon, on Pearl Street. The women were there three hours and a half, headed by Mrs. McGregor, Chairwoman of the Saloon Committee, During the last hour and a half, the scenes were too disgraceful for publication, for the credit of the city. In spite of the request of Mr. Riedi to have the women treated civilly, the dense crowd were uproarious and unmannerly in the extreme, pushing, jostling, hal'ooing, and using all manner of profane, obscene, and otherwise improper language. Brisk sales of lager were going on most of the time around the counter. It required the utmost efforts of several men to keep the crowd from crushing the women. One curious specimen of a man, having been accidentally hit by one of the women in the jam, addressed the leader of the praying band in the most indecent and profane language. This was the sad finale of the affair, after which, with the aid of several gentlemen keeping the crowd back from them, the women slowly made their exit from the saloon through a dense throng filling the sidewalk."

LAST WINTER & course of lectures was given in the church of James Freeman Clarke by representatives of many different classes of religious believers. One of these was by Mr. Augustine Jones, of Lynn, Mass., on the "Principles, Methods, and History of the Society of Friends." It was a calm and winning presentation of the doctrine of the Inward Light of Christ, universal in all men, and saving all who are obedient to it. The breadth of the lecture is patent in such sentences as this: "A heathen may worship his idol, and, if obedient to his conviction, he is saved by the Inward Light." Of course, this Inward Light is taken to be supernatural, not natural, as is explicitly svowed. Mr. Jones sent this lecture to the Friend's Review, a weekly journal of Philadelphia, which refused it. The Christian Worker, published in Indiana, was denounced by one of its contributors, Thomas Kimball, Jr., for printing even an advertisement of an incendiary and unsound discourse which was delivered in a Unitarian meeting-house! The anthor has received scores of letters from England as well as this country in approval of or protest against his liberal construction of Quakerism ; and the staid Friends are getting profoundly stirred up about it. John G. Whittier partly endorses it; others even denounce the motives of the lecturer. In consequence of all this turmoil, a new paper, the Occasional Observer, is to appear in June under the editorial charge of John Foster Mitchell, in defence of Liberal Quakerism. The gentleman who furnishes us with this information says there is a new Methodistic tendency in Quakerism which is a manifest retrogression; and the controversy now turns on the issue between inward and outward Christ-worship. To the liberal wing, Christ is the Inward Light of God, saving all obedient followers of it both before and after the coming of Jesus; this is the burden, they think, of For's Journal, Barclay's Apology, Bates' Doctrines, Tuke's Principles, J. J. Gurney's Observations, Clarkson's Portraiture of Quakerism, and various other Quaker classics. So the process of disintegration goes on in the old sects, and will go on till every man is "a church of one member," as Mr. Alcott says. Then will come a new union of all souls in the spirit of perfect freedom; and men will forget to put the label of any teacher's name on the pure and impersonal Truth.

THE "PROHIBITORY" PRINCIPLE.

