The Mystery of the Civil War and Lincoln's Death

THIS IS the week in which we celebrate the birthday of the Great Emancipator. We look back on him, from these troublous times on which the nation has fallen, as the human epitome of a colossal spiritual issue: that human slavery—the owning of live human beings—is against the moral laws of Cosmos. We venerate him for his tact, his judgment, his diplomacy, his courage, his patience. But not one man in a thousand is aware that the same social antagonists which we are called upon to fight today, he had to battle also, and lost his life in doing so!

There are pages of history recounting the truer causes of the Civil War which are never permitted between the covers of school books.

Although The Silver Shirts are one year old this month, and much could be written reminiscently concerning the meteoric growth of this aggressive American organization, it is better to speak a word of tribute in this issue to the memory of the Great Emancipator in terms of real understanding of that which he confronted.

In the year 1876, Bismarck the Iron Chancellor, who should have known better than any other man alive in Europe what he was talking about, revealed to a German named Conrad Siem the "inside information" as to why the American Republic had been rent asunder, immersed in a bath of blood and debt, and nearly brought to chaos. This German published the revelation ("La Vieille France", N-216, March, 1921) but to the rank and file of the American people it might as well never have been uttered.

Bismarck said:

"The division of the United States into two federations of equal force, was decided upon long before the actual outbreak of the Civil War, by the High Financial Powers of Europe.

"These bankers (Jewish) were afraid that the United States, if they remained in one block and in one nation, would attain to economic and financial independence, which would upset their financial domination over the world.

"The voice of the Rothschilds predominated. They foresaw much booty if they could substitute two feeble democracies, indebted to the Jewish financiers, to the vigorous Republic, confident and self-providing.

"Therefore they started their emissaries out in order to exploit the question of slavery and thus to dig an abyss between the two parts of the Republic.

"Lincoln never suspected these underground machinations!"

"He was anti-slavist and he was elected as such. But his character prevented him from being the man of one party. When he had affairs in his hands, he perceived that these sinister financiers of Europe, the Rothschilds, wished to make him the executor of their designs. They made the rupture between the North and South imminent.

"But Lincoln read their plots and soon understood that the South was not the country's worst foe, but these Jewish financiers.

"He did not confide his apprehensions; he watched the gestures of The Hidden Hand. He did not wish to expose publicly the questions which would disconcert the masses.

"He decided to eliminate the international Jewish bankers by establishing a system of loans, allowing the States to borrow directly from the people, without intermediary.

"He did not study financial questions, but his robust good sense revealed to him that the source of any wealth resides in the work and economy of the nation. He opposed emissions through the international financiers.

"He obtained from Congress the right to borrow from the people by selling to it the bonds of the States. The local banks were only too glad to help such a system, and the government and the nation escaped the plots of the foreign financiers. They understood at once that the United States would escape their grip.

"The death of Lincoln was decided upon! Nothing was easier than to find a fanatic to strike.

"The death of Lincoln was a disaster for Christendom. There was no man in the United States big enough to wear his shoes. And Israel went anew to grab the riches of the world.

"I fear that Jewish banks with their craftiness and tortuous tricks will entirely control the exuberant riches of America, and use it to systematically corrupt modern civilization.

"The Jews will not hesitate to plunge the whole of Christendom into wars and chaos, in order that 'the earth should become the inheritance of Israel!'"

THUS Bismarck, who knew the game of the Jews, spoke in 1876. According to Bismarck, the awful Civil War in America was fomented by a Jewish Conspiracy, and Abraham Lincoln, the hero and national saint of the United States, was killed by the same Hidden Hand which killed six Romanov czars, ten kings, and scores of ministers only to bleed their nations.

David A. Wells says that the total cost of the Civil War was $8,165,000,000. If this sum had been used to compensate the Southerners for the liberation of their slaves, there would have been no war. But the sinister influences sponsored by the Rothschild millions wished the enslavement of the New World. To find agitators to promote the spiritual issues on both sides was not difficult, anymore than it is difficult to find dupes who will quite innocently make serious issues out of the Depression and the Jewish NRA of the current movement. Therefore the Union army had 385,245 killed and wounded and at least 100,000 were killed in the Confederate Army.

One of the chief plotters bringing about the Secession on obvious orders from Europe was one Judah P. Benjamin, who later became Secretary of State for the South. Is it not suggestive that we find a Jew in this significant position in a group of States working for the disruption of the Union?

Meanwhile the Invisible Government of the Jews in Europe was persuading Napoleon III that he would glorify his scepter by restoring Louisiana to France and by creating a new empire to be composed of Mexico and our Southern States welded into one. The Rothschilds persuaded public opinion of England and France that the propitious moment had arrived to recover the losses caused by the Crimean War.

All of this is history which never gets into the school books!

Lionel Rothschild's "straw men" revived the doctrine of Pan-Britainism—led by Pan-Judaism—and "persuaded" some of the statesmen most domesticated by Lionel that the North could be returned to its former state of a British Colony, or be annexed to Canada.

So in May, 1861, England and the other powers recognized the Confederates as belligerents.

MR. EDWIN Emerson, in his The 19th Century and After, page 287, declares: "Lincoln found his foreign relations unsatisfactory. England and France were in the main ill-disposed toward the North. Southern privateering received their assent. In October news came that a combined English, French, and Spanish fleet was preparing to move against Mexico for the purpose of collecting defaulted debts. The Russian Czar, however, declined Napoleon's invitation to join the league."

Why have not students of history made it their business to determine why there was all this sudden and mysterious animosity toward the North in countries abroad? Such animosities do not happen by chance, they are always manufactured.

Emerson knew nothing about the reputed activities of James Rothschild in Paris at the time, or Lionel Rothschild in London.

The envoys accredited and sent by the Confederates to England and France, having been seized by Captain Wilkes of the United States Navy, Lord Russell—personal friend of Lionel Rothschild—was the man who drafted a preemptory ultimatum, and Secretary of State Seward released them.

The situation was almost identical, in a way, with the case of the seizure of Trotsky and Lincoln Steffens by the British at Halifax while they were on their way with Jacob Schiff's American money to instigate Russian bolshevism. Pressure brought to bear on the countries from which they traveled swiftly secured their releases.

Anyhow, this policy of Lord Russell's drew England into a quasi-partnership with the South.

ENGLISH, French and Spanish warships landed their forces at Vera Cruz in 1862. Since June 5, 1863, the French General Bazaine had occupied the capital of Mexico. On May 28, 1864, Napoleon's nominee for the head of the new empire, Maximilian, landed in Mexico.

The Rothschilds, having huge plans as to the United States, made a preliminary loan to Maximilian of 201,500,000 francs through a subordinate London banker!

Meanwhile the Confederate army understood that its situation was desperate: "Hood saw his men breaking at all points."

The Confederate States were eleven in number. Texas and Louisiana were two of them. The Confederacy was governed by a written Constitution with limited powers. It was established in 1861 for the principal purpose of defending the asserted right of the 11 constituent States to secede from the Union of the 34 States, or from the 23 States of the North.

The power to bargain away two of their number was not among the powers granted to the Confederate States, either with or without the consent of the two. But the alternative was to lose all, or to save the other nine States by perhaps the temporary sacrifice of two of the original eleven. The hatred of the Southerners was so inflamed by the Invisible Government's agents that it was decided to appeal to Napoleon. He accepted the bargain, and the author of the plot—the Jew Disraeli—assured the support of England, over-excited by the Alabama incident, exaggerated by the Rothschild agents.

Numerous "historians" have written the history of the Civil War, but none have dared to reveal the truth, which seems to be practically ignored by the historians of the United States.

IN 1863 the Confederate States offered Louisiana and Texas to Napoleon III in exchange for his intervention with French troops against the North. The French troops were already occupying the capital of Mexico.

The danger was great indeed. It taxed even the genius of Lincoln, and the skill and patriotism of General Grant's heroes could not have withstood such a combination.

But the United States had its most faithful admirers in the Czars of Russia! For a long time they had contemplated the liberation of the serfs, but were checked by the then rampant Prussianism and by the landowners.

It was Czar Alexander's magnanimous act of emancipation of the Russian serfs by his imperial decree of February 9, 1861, which greatly influenced the similar movement here in the United States. Some 47,000,000 souls in Russia were freed. Jewish propagandists who have painted a consistently scurrilous picture of the czars and czardom for American gullibles, have never called attention to the fact that thousands of peasants were discontented and rebellious at such freedom and the troops often had to interfere. If anyone doubts this, read Rambaud's History of Russia.

The same objective, which by the Czar was obtained by a stroke of his pen, required in our Republic an ocean of blood and billions of treasure.

On the same February 19, 1861, the newly inaugurated Provisional President Jefferson Davis, named his cabinet. The Czar followed every step of the drama with the keenest attention and when the foregoing plan of the Jewish agents in Europe became known to him, he, through his ambassadors in Paris and London informed France and England that their interference against the North would be construed as a declaration of war against Russia!

Simultaneously the Czar dispatched his Atlantic fleet to New York harbor, and his Pacific squadron to San Francisco, with orders to fight every fleet or force which should attack the Northern States.

He put his ships at the disposal of Lincoln!

The Disraeli plot was frustrated. The Union was saved!

Is it any wonder that the furious Jews, balked in their dismembering of the United States by the Czars of Russia, made it their business to see that this international debt was ignored in American history books, the czars depicted as a barbaric and ruthless oligarchy over helpless peasants, and in time the empire of Peter the Great destroyed?

It is well—on the current anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth—to recall these subverted facts of history. It is still better to give thought to the depths to which we have permitted ourselves to fall, in permitting a federal administration to turn about and formally "recognize" the murderers of the Russian royal family—Abraham Lincoln's one-time friends in an hour of colossal need—and not only keep them in their places of international brigandage, but make no protest when our American President says to the Soviet Ambassador that "he is happy to receive the brigands' ambassador to Washington and will do all in his power to make the relations cordial between the two peoples."

What ignominy!

THE SOUTH was ready to sacrifice two States to secure the help of Napoleon's victorious army, already in Mexico, rather than face complete disaster alone. It was also assured by these same Jewish agents that the French yoke would not continue for long. Thus the Confederates had some idea of recovering the bait after it had served its purpose.

As the Polish revolt of 1863 embittered the Franco-Russian and Franco-Prussian relations, France's yoke was not feared as being of long duration by the southerners. They were ready to face any sacrifice to avenge themselves upon the supporters of Lincoln. Both sides entirely ignored that they were the dupes of an alien hidden hand and inflamed by agents like Judah P. Benjamin.

Looking back with perspective on history, and knowing what we do about the activities of Jews in world crises so potent with power to themselves, it is not difficult to understand why and how Judah P. Benjamin, a Jew, should strangely have been placed in the office of directing the Confederacy's foreign relations.

Mr. J. Callan O'Laughlin in his interesting book Imperial America, stated as former Assistant Secretary of State: "Russia was astonished when American public opinion supported the cause of Japan during the war between those empires in 1904-05. It was a rude awakening from the dream of American gratitude, based upon her action in making a naval demonstration at New York and San Francisco at the most critical period of the Civil War."

Unfortunately, most Russians who might feel a still greater sense of shock at the ingratitude of the American people in recognizing the Jewish bolsheviki, are in their graves!

Nations, like individuals, cannot avoid unpaid debts of karma, however. The United States must pay back the obligation incurred when the Russian Czar preserved for us the American Union.

Abraham Lincoln himself would be the first to have it so.

It is well to consider these matters as we pause in salute to his bygone greatness in this another commemorated natal day.

Silver Shirts Will Repudiate Jewish Russia's Recognition

THE FIRST birthday of America's growing Silver Legion has become a thing of memory.

On the evening of January 30, 1933, in a Colonial-styled structure at the corner of Charlotte Street and Sunset Parkway in the little southern city of Asheville, N. C., American history was made.

No one knew American history was being made. The usual evening lamps were burning in the building that is locally known as Galahad College. Asheville was going about its customary evening business. Great America was deep in the throes of a mysterious "depression".

But in the eastern wing of the building, in a room made up on two sides of glass windows, an office worker had laid down the current copy of the night's local paper on the desk of the Chief. In heavy black type across the eight columns of its front page were the screaming headlines—

ADOLF HITLER NAMED GERMAN CHANCELLOR

Pelley paused in his Liberation script work, saw the headlines, and picked up the newspaper with a strange constriction in his spirit.

Four years previously he had been "inspirationally" instructed: "When a certain young house-painter comes to the head of the German people, then do you take that as your time-symbol for bringing the work of the Christ Militia into the open!"

The "certain young house-painter" had come to the head of the German people!

Pelley pressed an office buzzer and called about him the handful of workers still remaining in the building.

"Tomorrow," he declared, "we launch the Silver Shirts!"

"The Silver Shirts?" echoed an associate. "Who are they?"

THAT, forsooth, was only one short year ago. Yet what a year! That same evening, after the office conference was ended, and all present had heard the Chief's plans for the Silver Legion, the first literature and manifestoes were drawn up for the multigraph machines and presses.

Liberation Weekly came into existence!

And what a work Liberation Weekly has accomplished!

Today, throughout the whole 48 American States there is scarcely a town or hamlet that has not heard of the Silver Shirts.

There is scarcely a major city in the nation that does not have its Post or its Home Groups of sterling Christian patriots who gather religiously for instruction in the ways of the alien adversary and how to combat them when the time arrives for action to confound and smash this Conspiracy of the Ages as it menaces America.

Challenging mongoloid Jewry to its gnashing, fang-like teeth, fearlessly facing the repressed wrath of a great political hierarchy that is recklessly pushing a program of satanic protocolism upon the Christian United States, raining without the slightest hostage to consequences upon the mightiest and blackest scoundrels who have ever appeared on the American scene, the Silver Legion project upon the country one year ago has swept the nation from coast to coast.

Everywhere behind closed doors—and behind many doors not so closed—angry Gentiles, coming painfully out of apathy, are discussing the depredations of megalomaniacal Jewry and what shall be done to protect our most cherished institutions from the inroads of Jewish Communism.

All up and down the West a great Christian militia is growing, developed mainly under ex-officers of the United States Army and Navy, who refuse to violate their oath of allegiance to uphold the Constitution because popularly elected officials in high places would evilly and deceitfully lead the way.

Silver Rangers allocated in squad cars, made up into sections, battalions, regiments, and corps divisions, are training—in the night if required—to perfect their strength and skill in suddenly stepping forth and smashing the alien adversary's power the instant that the last vestige of Republic government is thrown down and the nation referred for direction to a soviet politbureau.

Silver Legion Post meetings are being crowded week after week to hear Silver Shirt speakers who bring continual fresh messages of the wounding of Christian Americanism to the death.

Police forces of whole cities are supporting The Silver Shirts en masse.

Military men of the highest rankings, World War officers, experts in halting guerilla warfare, are now coming to Chief Pelley as he moves swiftly and quietly about the nation, pledging him their professional support as the only alternative in sight against the inroads of venality and un-Americanism in high circles in Washington.

After one short year of intense enlightenment of the American people, the entire United States is "going Silver Shirt"—like gasoline on fire!

THERE is scarcely a Jew in the United States who has not been apprised of the strength of the Silver Shirts and what they propose to do before the current year is out if this alien strong-arming of our institutions continues.

Jewish leaders may revile and discredit the Silver Shirts in the public prints, but they are too canny to discount the mounting might of The Silver Shirts in the depths of their hearts and intellects.

Wherever a Jew commits an unethical business offense, or wails too loudly of persecution in the face of recognized truth of statement, there is an unwitting Silver Shirt recruiting officer herding in new members to the Silver Legion.

As traitors in public office in Washington tear page after page from the Constitution, legions of grim-faced patriots are silently but deadly preparing to meet Red violence.

In the year which has passed, The Legion's work has been of the missionary type—and the "conquering" adversary has laughed or sneered.

In the year which now opens, The Legion's work is military—on the Home-Defense basis.

The Constitution gives responsible citizens the right to so defend their homes when their government thus fails them!

These men are still adhering to this badly defamed public instrument, and will continue to do so, till the battle is decided in only one way.

The Silver Shirts have a program!

It means to coop and smash the predatory power of the internationally-conniving Jew. But it goes still further.

The Silver Shirt program means to instigate safeguards about the American form of government that will forever protect it from any repetition of the past four years' fiasco and criminal assault on our culture.

Let the enemy say to its peril that this cannot be done.

We, the Silver Shirts, accept vigorously that challenge!

We are preparing to hurl the minions of satanic spoilation back into the gutters of Europe from which they have sprung and the issue is sharp, with no wailing nor quarter.

Thereafter we shall apply ourselves to creating a new and a more wholesome America in which our children shall be free, in fact as in name!

Our loins are geared for hie battle until 1945!

THE next succeeding issue of Liberation Weekly, beginning the second year of its publication, is to contain the Silver Shirt Manifesto of what we demand of those who will represent officialdom under the Silver Shirts.

Bearing in mind what has been printed in the foregoing article in this issue, one of the cardinal points of Silver Shirt diplomacy is to be the immediate repudiation of Jewish-Russian recognition!

We will not trade with the Jewish foreign murder-bund in any manner, shape, or form!

The instant the Silver Shirts become the deciding factor in this criminally gutted nation, Troyanovsky and his whole system of soviet spy-nests will be packed off to Asia where his tribe first originated.

Not a dollar will be lent or jeopardized out of the American taxpayer's money to advance the international schemes of anything Jewish!

Not only do we propose to eject from the Christian United States anything savoring in the slightest degree of Jewish Protocolism in social government, but we shall aid with all means in our power the restoration of the legitimate Russian monarchy, the liberation of the pure-bred Russian people from their present autocracy of Jewish slaughterers, and the rigorous punishment of all those venal individuals in anywise responsible for bringing it to pass.

With no axes to grind but the approximation of righteous dealing between peoples as between individuals, thus shall we discharge the debt in karma incurred back in 1865, when a wise Czar sitting on the throne of Peter the Great came to the aid of our sainted Lincoln and did more than any other one individual on earth to preserve our Union and assure our future greatness.

It is an excellent time, in a Lincoln's Birthday issue, to make this indubitable announcement.

THE OFFICIAL COMMUNISTS at Washington think they have the situation "in the bag" with its pucker-strings drawn tight. They thought they had the situation "in the bag" in American affairs back in 1861-1865, but God Almighty decided otherwise. They thought they had the situation "in the bag" in a warring world in 1914-1918, but God Almighty decided otherwise.

God Almighty does not always think the same as The Wise Men of Zion!

America, Germany, and a truly Russian Russia can dominate all the remaining nations of the world and bring them to the council tables of a Jew-less international diplomacy.

All the wailing done by the 30,000,000 Jews of the world in one mighty banshee shriek cannot swerve the American Silver Shirts from an indubitable conscience of that which they know!

They know what the Jews of the world have done since time immemorial; they know what the rabbinical writings purport to call a religion; they know specifically who has wrought this mighty catastrophe to American culture and Christian institutions.

They cannot be hoodwinked.

They refuse to be shaken.

Russia will yet cast off the Jewish yoke and put these mongoloid mischief-makers back in their ghettos.

The German Nazis may fly as many flags from American windows as they please, without the slightest fear on the part of a Silver Shirt administration that Adolf Hitler aspires to bring the government of Abraham Lincoln under the political jurisdiction of the Teutonic Reichstag.

The American Silver Shirts will join hands with certain growing forces beneath the surface of political thought in England that has for its essence a permanent escape from the Samuels, the Sassoons, the Mondes, the Rothschilds.

The American Silver Shirts will hurl into eternal oblivion the mischievous quack economics of the Jewish sponsored NRA and restore our government to the system of State representation in politics provided by the Fathers.

They will approach Japan with a knowledge born sympathetically of Nippon's real problems, but refusing to treat with the Schiffs and the Ginsbergs.

Knowing the true nature of the cancer eating at the hearts of nations, the American Silver Shirts will introduce a diplomacy that is the dealings of honest men respecting the integrity of one another's nations.

Judas is already doomed! No red flag shall ever fly above the residence once occupied by Lincoln! There are too many Silver Shirts this moment who have taken a vow to see that it does not!

Get the Name of Every Jew Who Intimidates a Gentile

OUT in San Francisco last week a group of Silver Shirts about to form a new and powerful Post of the Silver Legion arranged to rent quarters from a lady who by day conducted a school for dancing.

"I believe in your principles and want to help in this fight against the Communizing of America," she declared.

One week later she came to the local commander in distress. "I'm not unpatriotic and don't want to back down," she declared. "My property was free from debt and I thought myself able to supply you with premises for meeting without harassments. But I've just been waited upon by a local group of Hebrews. They have told me point-blank that they will absolutely ruin me and everyone who attempts to patronize me if I have anything to do with the Silver Shirts, much less supply them with a hall for meeting purposes! What am I to do? I don't want to be ruined."

"We cheerfully release you from your offer," she was told. "Merely get us the names of all those Hebrews who have thus intimidated you. It is all we desire."

"What will you do with them?"

"That," she was answered, "is something that is only known to the Silver Shirts!"

HEADQUARTERS wants for its archives, the name, address, and business, of every Jew who approaches a Gentile, for any reason whatsoever, and thus exerts duress on him or her in defiance of the prerogatives of native Americans laid down specifically in the American Constitution.

It wants carefully detailed accounts of every episode where insolent Hebrews have attempted to threaten, blackmail, or browbeat Gentiles, commercially, financially, or socially because, they may sympathize with the Silver Legion.

If the Silver Legion continues to grow as it has spread in the past three months, the day is shortly to arrive when the predominant element in this country will be Silver Shirts.

In that day, these lists, and detailed accounts of insults, arrogances, and intimidations will be brought forth in every locality wherein they have happened.

As the greater Hebrews, responsible for the Sovietizing of the Federal government, are apprehended, courts martial will be held. Men whose names now loom large as potentates and public officials on dizzy heights may count themselves lucky if they escape with mere life sentences to our federal penitentiaries—with ample guards of Silver Shirts to see that they never are permitted to apply for paroles.

As for the lesser Hebrews, the heralds, the couriers, the scribes, the auditors, and the mutes, these carefully preserved indictments will come from the files and be read against them to the utmost detail.

This is not a threat. It is strictly a forecast!

TRY to get the correct name of every Communist advocate who now mounts a soap-box and screeches about flying the Hammer and Sickle above the White House. Wherever a Communist agitator, among laborers, has a Jewish name see that it is carefully tabulated and sent to Headquarters with as many details as possible regarding the circumstance.

Watch for details of Hebrews changing their names to those of Gentiles. Make note of both old names and new.

Wherever a Jew makes the brag—as happened in Los Angeles recently—"You Gentiles better look out; we've got all the money and can starve you to death in a week!" get the names and addresses and under what circumstances the brag was uttered!

File as full a report as possible of every instance where Hebrew money-lenders have increased the distress and suffering of Gentiles by arbitrarily and ruthlessly foreclosing mortgages on homes and turning Gentiles into the streets.

Take cognizance and tabulate the details where Hebrews on muscling into public office have succeeded in having Gentiles discharged and sons of Judah put in their places.

Wherever a crime is committed by Jews, with a Gentile the victim, do not fail to see that it is reported, sending if possible the newspaper clippings.

Pay particular attention to white slave cases and the deliberate introduction or fostering of immorality among Gentile girls or adolescents.

THE SILVER SHIRTS are swarming to clean out a pest house. Be sure to watch for depredations committed by Hebrews,—or their Gentile dupes—of such a nature that Silver Shirts are made to appear to be the criminals.

If you see a man dressed in the Sacred Grey committing an act of any character that disgraces his uniform, seek to obtain his national number. If he cannot supply it, or it does not check with what his number should be in that locality, report at once to your nearest Silver Shirt Post or Squad of Silver Rangers.

Send in as complete accounts as you can of "tolerance" meetings held to protest against Silver Shirts wherein diatribes of a scurrilous or untrue nature are uttered specifically against the Chief's personal character or reputation.

Write these reports anonymously if you prefer, but make sure they can be proven and that they will stand up under rigid investigation. For make no mistake, they will be investigated.

These matters are important.

The Judan Mountains Labor and Bring Forth Mice

MICE are all over the place—Judan mice,—produced from the labor of Judan mountains.

The Judan mountains are particularly laboring just now to “get something” on this man Pelley, that they may bring him down to ruin on his past reputation.

When his past reputation fails to turn up anything to blast him in the eyes of his patriotic neighbors, the Judan mountains are not above laboring and bringing forth anything that will come out, no matter how lying, no matter how scurrilous.

Out in Los Angeles the past fortnight, it is reported that a certain order of B'nai B'rith went into session to see what could be done to smash the vigorous truth-telling propensities of Silver Legionnaires.

A man by the good Nordic name of Latham waved his arms all over the place or “made with his hands motions” as he scored off Pelley for crimes that should have blasted him but didn't.

Among the startling announcements that came forth was one to the effect that when Pelley was in Hollywood engaged in writing motion pictures, his “wild parties” were the disgrace of the whole West Coast.

Thanks for the compliment!

Pelley never gave a party on the West Coast in his life.

When this failed to blast Pelley's reputation, it is further reported that the speaker went on to declare that on one occasion Pelley was invited by friends of the speaker to come to their home and spend a week-end. He came and stayed six weeks, the speaker declared, and was maudlin drunken every moment of the time. The speaker's friends finally had to heave him out.

No dates nor names were produced to substantiate the frailest of these statements.

The audience was supposed to take them for granted.

UP IN San Francisco, when it became apparent that Pelley refused to be stampeded into premature action or permit persons of syndicalist tendencies to commit depredations against specific Jews, the still nastier story was surreptitiously circulated that Pelley was a man given to unnatural practices and moral perversions.

When the Silver Shirts began to get particularly strong in and around Jewish picturedom, some bright Hebrew thought up another cute trick.

A threatening anonymous letter was sent to a local Jewish judge, intimating certain dark penalties that were presently to accrue to him and enclosing clippings from the Silver Shirt literature.

The alacrity with which this judge made his complaint and broke the whole story in the newspapers smells badly of gveltefish, all the way through!

The speaker at B'nai B'rith wailed out scurrility after scurrility at Pelley, then shifted to a wail because there was nothing that seemed to prove effective in quashing the Silver Shirts.

“We send spies to their meetings,” the speaker is reported to have said, “and what happens? Jews they are spotted and ain't so welcome. So we send Gentiles. And instead of coming back with reports we want, they stay and become Silver Shirts themselves! Two out of three spies did it this past week!”

Or words to that effect. So what!

THE LOS ANGELES Jews have seemingly given up spitting on copies of Silver Rangers and Liberation Weeklies exposed for sale on the streets. It was not because they ran out of spit. Silver Shirt news dealers merely covered their piles of literature with cellophane and invited the Hebrews to spit away to their hearts' content.

Thus do the Earth's Aristocrats—according to Sam Untermyer—conduct themselves.

Meanwhile 5,000 Silver Rangers in one American city alone restlessly demand action-orders from the Chief! And Silver Shirt newsboys with cauliflower ears beg with tears in their eyes to be allowed to use their dukes copiously on the next Jewish spitter that comes down the sidewalk.

Down in San Diego a local Brainstorm-Truster smears the front of a Silver Ranger's steps and door-panels with bloodstains and makes a frenzied complaint to the police that a Silver Shirter broke into his house but was scared away after badly lacerating himself on doorglass.

Local Silver Shirts report that they scraped the dried gore off the paint and woodwork, took it to the City Chemist and were rewarded with the official report that it was actually human blood more than 48 hours old! The accused Ranger's body showed not the slightest laceration anywhere upon it, and he had a water-tight alibi that he was surrounded by a hundred Legionnaires at a Post meeting when the episode was charged as occurring.

But where did that Hebrew get human blood in such quantities more than 48 hours old?

Judah is “up against it”! A time of Great Accounting for all such silly tricks and measures is as plainly in view as “Teke, Teke, Mene Upharsin!”

Meantime Silver Shirts Posts are springing up like mushrooms from Connecticut to Oregon.

Yoi! Yoi! Yoi!

Exceeding Great Promise

MY DEARLY BELOVED: I speak to you in sober note, I say I have a mission for you, I bid you be wise beyond the understandings of those about you;

2 I say to you, Be great, do a great deed, perform a great labor, draw a mighty sword, guide a great plowshare, plow a vast furrow.

3 Make of the sons of men an abiding-place for the roles of your spirits, that they may abide therein and both know benefactions.

4 I speak to you in sober note, for behind I have watched your progress from afar, I have seen your light that it manifesteth hourly, that it draweth men to you, that they come and come.

5 Was it not ever thus? whenever were ye without your followers, those who did say, We perceive the Bright Column, we behold the Fair Phalanx, we join the High Company whose names are of Immortals.

6 They come and go, beloved, but mostly they come, they come to you in numbers, saying, These are they to lead us, to show us a pasture to our spiritual profit, to lead us beside cool waters, to take of a vine and make of it fruitage, to go and come mightily that our spirits know no surcease in that which doth ennoble.

7 These things say they, beloved, and saying them mankind cometh to keep a tryst unto itself, to use a bright vessel and quaff a rare vintage.

8 The hour draweth on for mighty works, beloved; the times come when men shall say: It behooveth us to be mighty unto ourselves, to cast forth the tempter, to do a goodly mission unto the pure in heart;

9 For only the pure in knowledge know of the scepter which ruleth Abaddon; only the bright cortege knoweth of the doubter who cometh and escheweth it, riding not with it lest its brightness despoil him.

10 I say I see your works, I behold your marvels which ye do among men, I gave you a goodly recompense, that ye return not to the host with bills unpaid in a goodly karma, that ye give witness whereof ye were bought with a great price to perform a great labor:

11 These things I see, and I say unto myself: So be it, so let the Light shine, so let the goodly go on to higher works, so let the travelers proceed with a heartiness toward the farther, nobler light that is set upon a hilltop, yea the light of goodly ministrations given from the heart that seeth all men, knoweth all men, doeth to all men that which doth raise them to a higher concept of themselves.

12 And now, my beloved, I address you as persons: I say, Be obscure in your thoughts and addresses, go and come craftily making no marches that leave sand-tracks behind them; walk with a sure stride but blanch not at torments afflicted by the thorns that protrude from the pathway;

13 Make no errors of judgment concerning those who step

QUOT of the vastness of Cosmos the Psychic Antennae tune in on a Voice. If the Word was made flesh and spake once to men, how much stranger may be its pronouncements when the handicaps of the flesh are perished? If we cannot believe this, to Whom or What shall we look for authority of commitments like the following forth to guide you; give no thought to penuries; seek each day's bread from the ovens of circumstance;

14 Open your hearts to a purer truth than that which hath manifested to the present; give a fairer promise unto yourselves of that which hath dawned in the brightest rays of morning;

15 Say with a persistent cry: It cometh to me that works are potent to be done, but what of that? is it not of record that the call cometh to service, and in that it cometh I will find myself ready and willing to be utilized?

16 Is that not enough for a full day's journey? a full day's mission? that many may be called, but scarcely one chosen, until he hath the crown of bright thorns upon his brow, bound there by circumstance seeking to thwart him in his life's endeavors?

17 Beloved, we have talked thus many times; each time have I said to you that it behooveth you to be more circumspect in utterance, to utter no falsehoods, to make no crosses on your neighbor's doorstones, marking those therein for slaughter before a transient enemy.

18 I would have you know this; in no uncertain blasphemies doth man defile his neighbor when he saith: It is meet that ye atone for that which is of moment.

19 I say it behooveth a man not to try his neighbor, nor to sentence him for any misconduct except it be injustice settled with a score which hath righteousness for motive.

20 I tell you it is blasphemy to add that man hath knowledge of all things potent, therefore let him do the wise and eschew the evil.

21 Man hath not all things known to him, he perisheth sadly in his own conceits when he decrieth his neighbor as having understanding yet pursuing it not.

22 Man hath a lechery within himself, a ringing falsehood to declaim, a mettle to try in the fire of experiencing, a cosmic law to violate, a massive penury to endure, a plot to consummate, a wasted form to heal, a boil to suckle, a perishment to inflict upon his neighbor's culture—all these things that betray the intellect and bedaub the doctrine with evil forebodings and wicked consummatings;

23 He hath a lechery to propose upon himself, a timely scar to heal, verily he hath a witchery to perform upon his Inner Conscience;

24 And yet he seeth it not until mayhap it is disclosed to him by those events which try the consummate parts of himself and lead the intellect into a brawling.

25 We are closer to one another than that in understanding, that we should allow such torments to be and make no gesturing to wave him from his folly's acts nor yet his soul's acclaimings.

26 These things are banal unless it dawn upon us that in the act of every soul's abasement cometh the light of understanding, rendering him an instrument of the Immortal Cosmos, working out a welcoming back to maturity of intellect from which he hath fallen but in the falling benefited himself.

26 We are not called to pursue great riches, to exact high emoluments, to tell the race: This way follow us and riches come upon you.

27 It is not our destiny to make mankind see a mountain of pleasure that is forfeit if his footsteps follow not the pathway.

28 We are called to an exceeding high mountain ourselves, to witness the cavalcade of humankind climbing a steep and coming toward us, in that we have proposed a studied benefaction and proceeded to deliver it as the oak is delivered out of the acorn.

29 Hear my words, follow in my footsteps, know the joy of accomplishment unto the eternal: thus will it be well with you in the days that are upon you, when men's throats cry loudly but there are none to hear but robbers who come upon them swiftly.

30 Let us hail together the Goodly Company and march upon a height: let us take a lowly lamp and light a far horizon.

31 It hath come to me that there are those who say: These the prophets manifest to us; these the saviors, give us their blessing: those who lie without the pale of righteous things perceive them not, neither know them at all, thus are we favored by the princely ones, the watchers of eternities, the composed in spirit, the gods of omnipotence, and ever cast upward: it is goodly to follow in their footsteps and partake of their increase, even of citation for labors done nobly.

32 How much greater is it to say, beloved: The poor in spirit have dwelt among us and removed the bushels from their tapers, we have seen a light burn fiercely, behold it goeth not out;

33 It is the Lamp of a True Benefaction which cometh to all men everywhere, but the lowly have lighted it in that they were lowly and defiled not the doctrine with a vomit of loud attestings of their valor, knowing not their own valor until it were manifested.

34 So speak I unto you, and one word in addition:

35 He who goeth out by a door of lecherous performance unto his brother and his brother's life, liveth not in ecstasy but liveth in torment; he raiseth no joyousness to those who have blundered, who know not the pathway, who perceive not the radiance.

36 Those with a great gift for preaching to the multitude oft do acclaim that man in his humbler state hath the greater glory attesting to him;

37 I say to you except we do marvel at the greatness of penury to cure the wicked heart, to overcome the doctrine of lecheries, to make a fair smoke of all transgressions and burn them upon the altars of atonement, we know not the law that upsetteth the conflict and bringeth a peace that enchanteth the spirit.

38 I speak to you, beloved, as one who hath a knowledge of etheric performance, of one who hath blundered in applying the mighty principle of love everlasting performing to surfeit.

39 Go not out of the door of false reckonings, of usurious performances, of dull perceptions and ignoble conducts, into the Garden of Majestic Spirit, but steal out quietly through the seams in the House of Spiritual strivings, leaving no man the wiser that escape hath come unto you.

40 Many there are who thirst for righteousness but know no vessel by which to quaff it.

41 Show it him, beloved, hand him the quaff-cup, give him the dipper, open the stopper-stone that surmounteth the well and hold his cup beneath it better than ye do.

42 It is all a part of wisdom triumphant that seeth a majesty in little reckonings, in tiny accountings, spirit unto spirit, matter unto matter.

43 Wherever a soul hath need of benefactions, see that ye give it, pursuing no whoredoms of false pretendings, making no surcease of wisdom's strivings, pouring out plentifully upon that tortured or tormented servant that which ennoblet him and cureth his afflictions: so is it written that promise cometh unto you, and a goodly bed whereon to sleep your slumbers.

44 Thus have I said, and in saying, I bless you.

45 Teach my sheep to go in the right path, the path of absolute justice, each man as it falleth to him to perceive whereof he would have it measured unto him, and all shall be well with you and the world whereof ye do a great service . . .

"The great mass of American citizens became indignant at the attempt of a foreign minister to separate them from the government and rulers of their choice, particularly from their chief magistrate, in whom they placed the highest confidence.

"Meetings of the citizens were held in different parts of the union, and resolutions passed, expressing an entire approbation of the proclamation and of the measures taken by the executive to preserve their country in peace."

A DOUGHTY people were those early patriots. They were neither to be intrigued by the machinations of money, nor the subtleties of politics—both the arms of a very definite and sinister power which has now, in a continuous sequence, overshadowed the entire world.

Where today, are the George Washingtons and Alexander Hamiltons who can see to the heart of this diablerie, and reassert the spirit of the American people, before it is too late!

Where those men of simple faith, who with General Washington will warn the people: "Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence, (I conjure you to believe me, fellow citizens,) since history and experience prove that foreign influence is one of the most baneful foes of our government. Furthermore, real patriots, who may resist the intrigues of the favorite, are liable to become suspected and odious; while its tools and dupes usurp the applause and confidence of the people, to surrender their interests."

Down the corridors of time we further hear his words: "Religion and morality are indispensable supports to political prosperity. Let it simply be asked, where is the security for property, for reputation, for life, if the sense of religious obligation desert the oaths which are the instruments of investigations in courts of justice? and let us with caution indulge the supposition that morality can be maintained without religion. Whatever may be conceded to the influence of refined education on minds of peculiar structure, reason and experience both forbid us to expect, that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle."

The spirit of these words, too, should be strangely familiar to the heart of every member of the Silver Legion, arising to re-assert the valiance and the independence which gave our nation its birth.

Do You, as a Sterling Patriot, Know the Truth About Our American History?

THAT SILVER SHIRTS are patriots of the highest rank is testified by their complete knowledge of American History, beyond the depleted and distorted information given in the popular textbooks.

It is appalling to compare books written not only during the Civil War, but during and after the Revolutionary War which include items of staggering import omitted from current histories. That there is a world conspiracy which has been building to power through the centuries is brilliantly testified by the fact that fully 90 per cent of the omissions or distortions of history trace to the Jew!

Fit these thousand and one pieces of broken mosaic together and you have The Unwritten History of the World, which Mr. Pelley has prepared in a gigantic sequence of over a million words, from the beginning of the planet through to the present. (For full details write to the Liberation Fellowship, Galahad College, Asheville, N. C.)

IN THIS issue of Liberation we have paused to give homage to the greatness of Abraham Lincoln, and while doing so it is appropriate that we should dip further into the international intrigue which forced itself upon his attention.

There is indeed much behind the plot in which the Confederacy almost gave the Louisiana and Texas territories back to France, if it had not been for the Emperor of Russia!

In previous issues of Liberation we have seen how Amschel Rothschild (Red-Shield) gained his fortune through the management of the 70 or 100 millions of the Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel, and how, as Treasurer of the Universal Jewish Alliance, he financed or hired 16,800 Hessian soldiers to fight the Americans in their defense of Independence.

We have already learned how the Jew, Haim Salomon, loaned the then fabulous sum of $600,000 as agent of Rothschild to the struggling Colonists, and that while the textbooks record that "Haim sacrificed almost his entire fortune," the American Jewish Historical Society reveals that he remained immense-ly wealthy.

Nor must we forget the traitorous episode in which the Jews of the Franks family bribed Benedict Arnold in order to prolong the bloodshed. Arnold was convicted as a traitor. Two of the Franks were arrested, but Salomon secured their release.

None but the initiated may know the titanic struggles of Alexander Hamilton to free America of this foreign octopus! How many can still hear his ringing cry, "The debts must be paid!" the while his genius brought the evidence to bear upon the danger of compound- ing interest.

He said: "There is no sentiment which deserves more serious attention of the legislature, than the danger to the government of the progressive accumulation of debt. A tendency to it is perhaps THE DISEASE of all governments; and it is not easy to conceive anything more likely than this, to lead to great and convulsive revolutions of empires."

Through the efforts of Alexander Hamilton the attempts of the Jews to control the birth of a nation, failed.

But having failed they did not rest in their attempts at subversion.

LET us picture the situation in which the United States found themselves at that period. They were a government new and untried, inexperienced in the diplomacy of Europe, powerfully opposed, burdened with debt, and harassed with an Indian war.

Meanwhile "the Hidden Hand", controlling Grand Orient Freemasonry, Illuminism and Jacobinism was in complete command and control of France. They had accomplished their "Reign of Terror" and destroyed the French Monarchy.

The American Revolution was the exact antithesis of their platform—the code of Illuminism, of Marxism, of Communism, to abolish (1) belief in God, (2) to abolish ordered, representative government, (3) to abolish inheritance and private property, (4) to abolish the family and substitute communal education for the children.

Of all nations Russia was most awake to the menace incarnate in the French Revolution. Catherine the Great early became acquainted with the powers behind such Jews as Robespierre (correct name Ruban), Danton, Marat (correct name Mosesohn), Voltaire, Weis- haupt, Cagliostro (correct name Balsamo), so much so that Russia made determined efforts to smash the French Conspiracy.

Treaties were established between Great Britain, Spain, Prussia and the Emperor of Germany. Timothy Pitkin in his history of the United States of America written and published in 1828 and therefore unbiased, said, concerning this opposition to the satanists who had gained control of France: "The orders of the Empress of Russia extended farther than those of Great Britain; and to enforce them she fitted out a fleet of twenty-five sail of the line, with a number of frigates, to cruise in the east and north seas, 'for the purpose of preventing the sending of any provisions or ammunition to France.'"

In explanation the Russian minister in the United States stated: "... it will be sufficient to allege, that the usurpers of the government of France, after having dipped their murderous hands in the blood of their king, have declared themselves the protectors and supporters of all those who should attempt like crimes against their sovereigns and governors in other states. (Witness the present international character of Communism). This they not only promised, but they have actually attacked most of their neighboring powers, with armed forces, and by this have placed themselves in a state of war against all the powers of Europe; no neutrality could therefore exist except where prudence prescribed a feigned peaceable disposition. But this motive is no longer in existence, since the combination of the formidable powers of Europe have made it their common cause against the enemies of the safety and happiness of nations."

It is easy to understand why Russia has always been hated and feared by the Jews. Russia was an impregnable fortress of aristocracy, supported by a divine and invincible faith in her destiny. The majestic inflexibility of her power thwarted and outraged attempts at subversive control. The Protocols confess, "the Russian autocracy was the one and only serious foe we had in the world, without counting the papacy."

WITH A BEAUTIFUL and almost child-like majesty of dignity and candor, Pitkin preserved the attitude of Washington to the European intrigue: "The President from his high station, was called upon to view these great events as they might affect his own country, whose destinies under God, were entrusted to his care. He foresaw that the storm which was gathering in Europe, must soon reach the United States, and he felt it his duty, as far as possible, here to prevent its desolating effects. In the mighty conflict which was to ensue, a conflict in which all the great European powers either were or must necessarily be engaged, he was satisfied the best interests of his country dictated a state of neutrality; and he was convinced that this course might be pursued without a violation either of national faith, or national honor."

As a consequence it was therefore necessary to receive the Minister of the French Republic.

No sooner, however, did the French Minister, Mr. Genet, set foot on American soil than he proceeded to make an active campaign of propaganda to involve the sympathies of the American people with France, and to support her in her European wars—and this in complete violation of the French compact of peace and neutrality to the Congress and the President. Witness Soviet tactics of today.

Liberation

Asheville, North Carolina

Supported by an effective propaganda and plenty of money, he inveigled a good portion of the Southern citizenry to fit up ships of war at the port of Charleston, and in the teeth of the President's indignation, saying, "It is evident, sir, that these armaments cannot be a matter of offense among the citizens of the United States; and that those who are on board of our vessels, have renounced the immediate protection of their country, on taking part with us."

Pitkin remarks of President Washington: "Wearied, at last, with the conduct of the French Minister, his insulting language, his outrage upon the laws, his assumption of the sovereignty of the country, and his threats of appealing from the government to the people; the President came to the resolution of soliciting his recall." Which was, of course, of no avail.

The French Minister, not content with arming vessels in our ports, and manning them with erstwhile American citizens, to cruise against nations at peace with our country, projected an hostile expedition from South Carolina and Georgia against the Floridas, then owned by Spain.

With the utmost secrecy, and by the cleverness of his propaganda, he proceeded to enlist a large number of men in what was a program of sedition against the infant government. He offered them not only pay, rations and clothing, but a share in the plunder and spoil of the Spanish Dominions. The South Carolina State Legislature became aware of what was going on. The Governor issued a proclamation and prosecutions were instigated against the ring-leaders.

Genet immediately changed his tactics and in a more bold and daring manner planned to seize the Spanish Dominions of Louisiana. George Rogers Clarke who had been a revolutionary officer agreed to command the expedition, and proceeded to raise troops. In these he styled himself, "major general in the armies of France and commander in Chief of the revolutionary legions on the Mississippi." The Governor of Kentucky was not as staunch a patriot as the chief executive of South Carolina. A large portion of the citizenry, under the influence of munificent fly-sheets, posters and newspapers, proceeded to arm themselves and to prepare for the seizing of Louisiana, for France.

It became necessary for the President to issue a proclamation, apprizing the people at the west of the unlawful nature of the project, and warning them of the consequences of engaging in it. General Wayne was directed to establish a strong military post at Fort Mastic, on the Ohio and to prevent by force, if necessary, all hostile movements down the river.

In the face of this, the territory was flooded with the propaganda that "the time is come when we ought to relinquish our claim to those blessings, proffered to us by nature, or endeavor to obtain them at every hazard. The principles of our confederation have been totally perverted by our Atlantic brethren.

"To you then, inhabitants of the west! is reserved the display of those virtues, once the pride and boast of America. Beyond the reach of European influence, the pampered vultures of commercial countries have not found access to your retreat. A noble and just occasion

Headquarters is taking this opportunity of gratefully acknowledging certain anonymous contributions which have recently come in from our mountain and western states.

Everyone will also be most happy to know that there was truly a tremendous response to the plan of widely distributing the January 20th issue of the magazine. Let us try it again, soon!

presents itself to assert your rights.

"Reflect that you may be the glorious instruments in the hands of Providence, for relieving from the galling chains of slavery, your brethren of Louisiana."

Strangely familiar—isn't it?

So effective was the French propaganda that in July, 1793, the National Gazette, printed at the seat of government and edited by one of the clerks in the Department of State, had the following paragraph: "The minister of France, I hope, will act with firmness and with spirit. The people are his friends, or the friends of France, and he will have nothing to apprehend; for as yet, the people are sovereign of the United States."

"It is not longer possible to doubt," said the General Advertiser, also published at Philadelphia, "that the intention of the executive of the United States is, to look upon the treaty of amity and commerce which exists between France and America, as a nullity; and that they are prepared to join the league of kings against France."

THAT early American historian, Mr. Timothy Pitkin, was unacquainted with the true nature of certain European secret societies, but that they were irrevocably opposed to the principles of American government, was extremely evident. He goes on to say:

"Societies, in imitation of the Jacobin clubs in Paris, were formed in different parts of the United States, (no doubt by the direction and advice of Mr. Genet,) styled democratic societies, ostensibly for the purpose of securing liberty, but really, with a view more effectually to oppose the measures of the administration, and to promote the views of the French minister. The acts and proceedings of these societies breathed a spirit of hostility against the President, and were calculated to destroy all regular government.

"No circumstances were left unattended to on the part of the French republic, or its minister, to engage the people in their favor. Their interest, their pride, their prejudices, their sense of gratitude for past services, and their natural sympathies towards a nation presumably struggling for liberty, were all addressed.

"Nevertheless, the conduct of the French Minister towards the chief magistrate, the unparalleled atrocities committed by the rival factions in France, and the beheading of the king and queen, who had been considered the greatest benefactors of America in the war of the Revolution, at length greatly weakened the cause of the French Republic, in the minds of the dispassionate and considerate portion of the American people."

Mr. Genet became so bold as to make open appeals to the American people, urging their support against the President of the United States. Mr. Jay and Mr. King framed this into a certificate and Mr. Genet's actions were referred to the attorney general of the United States for prosecution, since it was discovered impossible to have Mr. Genet recalled to France. This method of treatment further brought the whole matter to the attention of the intelligent citizenry. As Pitkin states,

The Silver Juggernaut! . . .

IT SHOULD be a matter of vast gratification and hardening of mettle to Silver Shirts throughout the remainder of the nation to know that one bright Silver Shirt accountant in California has computed that there are more Silver Shirts on active Ranger Squad duty in that State than there are regular city policemen in all the Golden State's cities put together!

This fact is not being lost on the police forces of these cities. Perhaps it accounts for the increasing number of police officials who are "coming out" for the Silver Legion unabashed, crying: "Thank God we've got one real civilian organization that is squarely behind us, undefected, in our fight against the Reds!"

As against these numbers, a silly secession movement attempted in California by malcontents who thereby hoped to force Chief Pelley's hand in ordering premature action against the public adversaries, resulted in exactly 17 people turning out for a three-day "convention", four of the 17 being avowed spies to report to the Chief what took place.

But the police are not the only public officials in the far west, who are throwing whole-souled support behind this wholesome, non-secret Christian Movement.

THE NUMBER of army officers whose patriotism cannot be prostituted to serve the projects of the Washington politbureau, who are preparing to refuse to follow the Capital Constitution-Scrappers, and who see in the Silver Legion the only alternative for their military talents, spells the first signs of real salvation for the menaced American people.

On a recent Pacific Coast visit, 80 per cent of the Chief's confreres turned out to be stalwart, upstanding, Christian military men of a rank too high to be intimidated by the Brainstorm-Trusters—men who are violating no fraction of their official oaths by requesting to serve in the Silver uniform and lead the Christ Cohorts the instant that a pink administration shows itself unable to control Jewish Reds.

Furthermore, the whole Ninth Corps Division of the Silver Rangers, comprising the States of Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, Idaho and Arizona, is now officially staffed with trained veteran officers—hand-picked Christian military statesmen—who have pledged their allegiance to Chief Pelley until the fight for a more wholesome America has been won.

These men stand for a United States cleaned of predatory aliens, a United States in which government and business are returned to the popular-voting citizenry, a United States in which the Constitution and its ukases are still of effect, no matter how high in officialdom Red sponsors are placed.

DESPITE Jewish innuendoes to the contrary, consider the episode brought to the Chief's attention in San Francisco: A certain high ex-army man, an official of three foreign wars, heard of the Silver Legion and its principles and wanted to know more. He sought out an old-time friend whom he knew to be versed in such matters nationally—active agent of the Department of Justice!

"What do you know of these Silver Shirts, Tom?" he asked. "Are they on the up-and-up or a lot of racketeers?"

"Say," the D-J man is reported to have said beneath his breath, "take my word for it, that's one organization in this country that you can bet your shirt on. Absolutely ace-high and going higher!"

"It's okay then, is it, for me to get in?"

"Get in to your neck! We looked them up and what we found convinced us that they'll probably be the salvation of the whole NRA mess!"

The Chief would express his thanks to this particular D-J Man for being such a candid and unbiased friend.

BECAUSE of the threats uttered against Asheville Headquarters where one short year bygone this meteoric movement started—of raids and rumors of raids by Federal agents working under the strong-arm orders of the Politbureau—let it be known that Asheville Headquarters has been completely emasculated of all records that would give aid and comfort to the enemy if requisitioned for any pernicious or mischievous purposes—such as the utterly partisan and imbecilic Nazi inquiry by the Jew Dickstein.

Silver Shirts are requested to stand by for personal visits of the Chief to their Corps Division localities, when Silver Shirt leaders will be apprised of exactly the same provisions, preparations, and anti-Red tactics which have resulted from the Chief's recent trip to California.

Will the friends who feel for the moment disappointed at not being able to interview the Chief personally during these visits, please be patient and await the more significant occasion when the pressure on his time is not so rigorous.

The Nine Corps Divisions must be fully staffed and helped to function with the military personnel, for the moving up of the soviet forces is proceeding at a terrifying pace. When the Nine Corps Divisions have been fully provided for, Asheville will be little more than a clearing house.

Real General Headquarters will be where the Chief happens to be visiting!

Keep up your mettle, Silver Shirts! The times are with us and the American tide is turning in our favor!
