THE EARTH: A CONSCIOUS, THINKING 'BEING'

The separation boundary of the earth-brain halves marked by a long-used, mythical border separating the eastern world from the western hemisphere shows the time-conscious, left brain region of Earth, the Yang technological, competitive half as reflected in the west. The Yin, intuitive, space-conscious, right half flourishes in the east. No question about it: we live in a Yang world, with Yin influences hop-scotching from the east to the west as the Orient becomes more materialistic and Yang. The eastern border begins eastward along the extreme eastern boundary of Europe, at the 30 degree longitudinal line vertically bisecting the vicinity of Cairo, Egypt, home of the Great Pyramid. The Pacific Ocean lies over the frontal earth-brain area. Therefore, the Great Pyramid marks a point high-up in the rear portion of Mother Earth's brain.

Now we discover our planet is enveloped by an energy field that translates into the same, electronically measurable brainwave frequency of meditating humans, at 8 cycles hertz. This is the planetary, mind-field corresponding to the intuitive and creative realms in the minds of every rational living, thinking human being on earth. Here we find correlations between the brainwave read-out in the right brain hemisphere of humans and the intelligence of nature surrounding and interpenetrating our planet.

Earth's [horizontal] 30 degree north latitude line passes through Cairo [Ki-Ro], Egypt, navel of the world and home of the Great Pyramid. This site lies precisely one-third the distance from the Equator to the North Pole. The Pyramid band encircling the globe [see the July-August 1977, #30 edition of Pyramid Guide] contains the known and suspected locations of our world's great and ancient Ziggurats and pyramids. Many are — or have been at one time — stationed along this 30 degree north latitude belt. Note that the Earth's 30 degree, longitudinal [vertical] track running from pole to pole bisects Cairo, Egypt, the line separating the eastern world from the west, marking this site with the Great Pyramid sitting at the approximate middle of this all-important intersection.

The article appearing in the #29, May-June issue of the Pyramid Guide, entitled 'The Earth, A Living, Breathing Being,' offered the premise that our planet is a seeing, hearing, feeling, entity, relating to physical surroundings and the cosmos, according to its own levels of awareness.

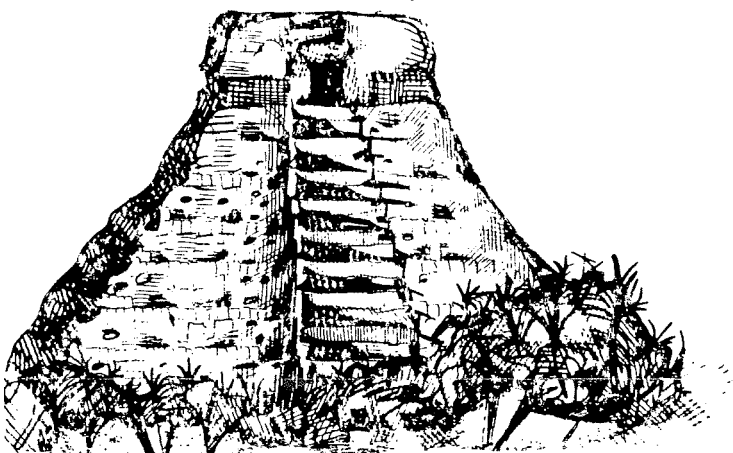

There's a similarity between Mother Earth's flowing underground waters moving in a vast and complex network of veins and arteries, corresponding to the venal, circulatory system of blood flowing in the human body, nature's creatures, plant life, and even in veins of gold. Do flowing springs and artesian wells make up the pores of her skin? Are geysers and hot springs Earth's sweat glands?

If our planet can experience sensations — and I'm sure feelings — involved in cognitions of time and space, it must have conscious thinking faculties. Physicist Bob Beck, during his lecture at the August, 1977 U.S. Psychotronics Association meeting in Upland, California, said that our planet is enveloped by a scientifically measurable brainwave. "This earthly field of consciousness was first detected by a Dr. Schumann in 1962," he said. A new and delicate electronic instrument was employed by the scientist to record and measure this intelligent energy aura encompassing our globe. Much to our astonishment Beck said the readout at 8 hertz (one hertz being a unit of frequency equal to one cycle per second) matched the brainwave cycle level of humans in meditation, or while doing creative work. This is the theta brainwave range and a source of inflowing, intuitive wisdom and superconsciousness, the supreme goal of bio-feedback and mind control buffs. "Eight cycles of hertz functions at a frequency permitting psionic activity (mind over matter) in altered states of awareness..." said Beck. "The carrier wave for telepathy and ESP phenomena may lie in this 8 hertz, low frequency band," he added.

Beck said these electromagnetic waves can easily pass through material barriers and miles of ocean water. The brainwaves or conscious levels — whatever they may be — show that an intelligent,

THE PYRAMID TEMPLE OF QUINTANA ROO

Gregory Mason of the Mason-Spinden expedition in 1927 wrote in his book "Silver Cities of the Yucatan:"

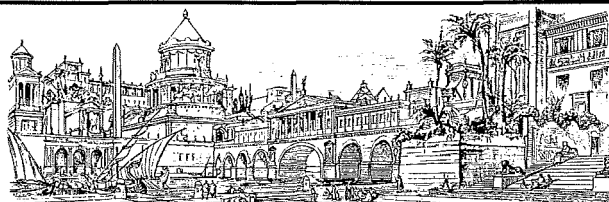

"I slide down the tree, falling the last ten feet in my haste. Running over a small ruin I catch up to the other two, and slashing at the brush abreast we reach the foot of a great stairway. The trees hide the top of the temple... This is no natural hill, but a whale of a castillo."

Mason and his fellow adventurers hacked their way up the loose fitting stone steps cutting away the wild henequen. "A doorway yawns above and to the left. Like some of the lofty temples of Tikal," Mason adds, "This one is built into the top of the great mound instead of being raised upon its summit," the explorer wrote. "A clump of cactus bars the way to this chamber... and out of breath we crawl up to the flat of the (pyramid) mound, a brush-covered plateau perhaps twenty-five feet square." Mason and Spinden named the pyramid site 'Okop' which contained the remains of seventeen other buildings on high land within a rectangular area of 800 x 1000 feet... "thus surrounded by the ancient city and overlooking the reedy lake," he added, "beneath the hill tipped by the great pyramid... for it is a great pyramid." "We found it to be 94 feet high with a base 150 feet wide and 170 feet long... taller than the highest pyramidal mounds of Uxmal, and Chichen Itza, although the roofs of temples atop those mounds are higher than the summit of this pyramid."

Okop is distinguished from the other Mexican pyramids because its temple lies within, rather than on top of the pyramid, ceremonial structure. "This single room," he went on, "is 19 feet by 7 feet." "The hollowing out of Okop's pyramidal chamber, the thick walls and heaviness of architecture suggests it was of early construction," Mason concluded. Okop lies about 100 air miles south southeast of Merida on the Mexican gulf coast.

To the southeast of the pyramid-temple, four remarkable buildings thus situated on the four high sides of the mound 140 feet square, all face a tower rising from low center. Approximately 130 feet west of the pyramid temple the remains of a massive stone building 110 feet by 130 feet by 45 feet high was found. "What appears," Mason continues, "to be the subterranean chambers of this structure, probably lower rooms, nearly buried by rooms caving in from above..."

Mason and Spinden calculated the Okop pyramid-temple complex flourished in 1066 A.D. about the time William the Conqueror entered England. According to Mason, "There's an interesting round stone altar at the foot of the stairs of the Okop castillo, a stone perhaps five feet in diameter and two and one-half feet thick." He compared it to a great sundial. The explorers labeled Okop the oldest of the seven cities located N 20 degrees west latitude by 89 degrees 30 seconds longitude. Mason and Spinden discovered Okop during their explorations through the Yucatan, Quintana Roo and Honduras a half century ago.

ALEXANDRIA, EGYPT, ANCIENT CENTER OF LEARNING...The Great Library records, long ago destroyed, likely contained evidence of an ATLANTIS-PYRAMID connection, to be explored in the next edition.

A most unusual, spontaneous sequence of events occurred during my summer '77 lecture-workshop in England. It began with a letter from John Griffin, of the Holistic Studies Institute in Santa Barbara, saying: "Dear Bill, please dows the Tor, Chalice Well and THE DOVE IN THE CENTER OF THE ZODIAC at Glastonbury."

Upon arrival there, I met Patricia Villiers-Stuart, author of 'The Vanishing Dragons' on page 2 of #31, Sept-Oct '77 issue of Pyramid Guide. I hadn't yet mentioned John Griffin's suggestion to explore the Zodiac Dove, so to my surprise, Mrs. Villiers suggested that I read an article in the April 1977 edition of East West Journal. She offered to loan her copy to me, saying that it contained a remarkable story by Andrew E. Rothovius, entitled: THE DRAGON TRADITION IN THE NEW WORLD. "You must read it," she exclaimed. "A very significant discovery has been made. Did you know Henry Adams, great grandfather and great, great grandfather of two American presidents, was a native son of Glastonbury? He was a member of a secret Dragon society," she went on. "Sir Walter Raleigh, also a member, was executed for his mystical beliefs."

Mrs. Villiers-Stuart felt a message was being revealed, linking the dragon symbology with the spear. We wondered if the 'spear' in Shakespeare's name could be coincidental. Patricia assured me she was pursuing a hot trail, and had already encountered the spear presumably used to kill a dragon in a little church at Low Ham during her tour of the Glastonbury Zodiac.

Mary Caine, a leading authority on the Glastonbury Giants, later offered to drive me to the beak of the Dove, somewhere near the zodiac's epicenter. Enroute, Mary mentioned the rumor that the historic home of Henry Adams, was still standing somewhere in the zodiac. "Do we have time to look for it?" she asked. "Yes," I replied, "By all means, let's find it if it exists." After making inquiries, we found our way to Barton St. David lying exactly in the heart of the Dove. There we discovered what may have been the 550 year-old farmhouse of Henry Adams. Martin Lowden, who lives there, said in his preliminary research of old records that he was sure this was indeed the Adams home.

THE BARTON ST. DAVID, THIRTEENTH CENTURY HOME OF HENRY ADAMS...is located in the hub of the 'Glastonbury Giants,' a huge zodiac of natural, earth surface configurations, Somerset, England. The Senior Adams, a member of a secret Dragon Society, fled to the new world with eight sons to avoid religious persecution in 1637. The move brought the Adams clan into a new and meaningful destiny as a prominent directing force in the formative years of an independent United States. [In the foreground, left to right: Mary Caine, Bill Cox, and Martin Lowden.] Lowden and his wife, British subjects, and two American children are presently occupants of the Adams homestead. The attic, unchanged since the time of original construction reveals a quality of workmanship, strong and attractive, and equal to most building and safety standards we know today. [Photo by Michael Burgess]

Later we followed the map to the beak of the Dove. The rectangular host in its bill comprised a few acres of grazing land devoid of dwelling structures. Nearby, we saw this marvelous old church situated at the far corner of the host. An inscription said the edifice was erected there in 1309. Then we walked inside where a large metal wall plaque bore this message:

"To the Glory of God...In honour of St. David and in memory of Henry Adams...Born in this parish about 1583...And a founder of New England"

THE LITTLE TWELFTH CENTURY CHURCH...site of the plaque mounted in honor of Henry, John and John Quincy Adams...situated in the corner of the host, held in the Dove's beak located in the center of Glastonbury's giant, astrological 'Temple of the Stars.' The continuing search for the Holy Grail turned up some interesting new information, tying in with the magnificent, spiritual guidance of Henry Adams and his descendants, our second United States president, John Adams, and his son, John Quincy Adams, our sixth president. Concerned members of the Adams lineage tried to keep the spark of Henry Adams' vision alive with the inspired work of a later Henry Adams before his transition in 1918, and finally with his brother Brooks Adams who passed on to his reformation in 1927. Now, fifty years later, a rekindling of the Adams' flaming passion for selfless service, love and peace among all men gains momentum. [Michael Burgess photo]

1638...Ancestor of two presidents of the United States of America, John Adams and John Quincy Adams...whose exalted services to their country evoke...a testimony of respect for their ancestral home...This memorial has been erected by Edward Dean Adams...A.D. 1926."

Ten days later at the Crowborough, Steel Cross Farm of authors, mystics, Peter and Vin Rendel, I met their gracious assistant, Marie Allen, who was unaware of the foregoing information. A few days later she began channeling intuitional messages and impressions in writing, information which she herself did not fully comprehend; "something about 'spear' or 'dart,' as in DARTmoor or DARTmouth..." she said, "the dart or spear being in the bullseye, right on target..." Marie's later impressions alluded to the Dragon, and then the Lion wearing a crown.

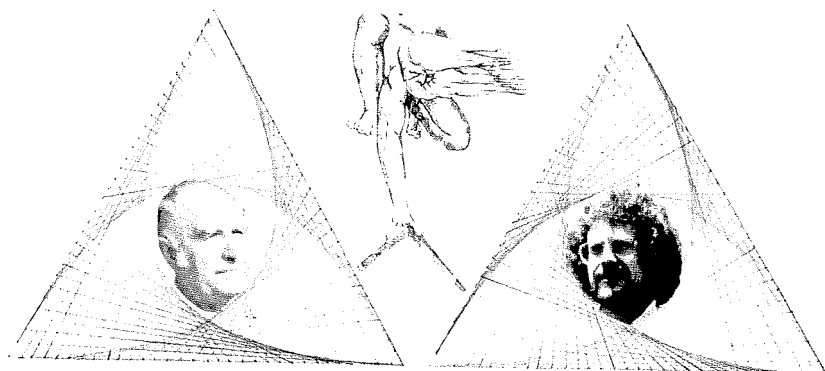

Later, while flying home, longtime friend Richard Huffer, also of Santa Barbara, handed to me a brief manuscript given to him by a lady author he met while in Europe. "You'll find this article very interesting," said Rick. "The woman is writing a book-length chronology about the historic Adams family." I found features of the manuscript similar to Andrew Rothovius' East West Journal article, but was delighted to receive more information on the continuing Adams saga and its unfoldments.

Subsequent talks with John Griffin, Michel d'Obrenovik (George Hunt Williamson) author of 'Secret Places of the Lion'... 'Other Flesh, Other Tongues,' etc.), world authority on the Holy Grail, and Donald Cyr, Publisher of Stonehenge Viewpoint, leading exponent in the U.S. on megalithic sites, ley lines and mounds in Great Britain, revealed the following:

1. John and Michel believe a connection exists between the Dove and the Holy Grail.
2. Michel, and Thelma Dunlap, who has an outstanding personal library on these matters, have recently come together in some meaningful research on the Grail and legends of the lions.
3. While in St. Louis, following my European trip, Michael Kelley, of Great Pyramid Cheops Research and Development Co. showed me a follow-up of the earlier article: The Dragon Tradition in the New World by Andrew Rothovius, appearing in the August edition of East West Journal. After reading this beautifully inspired mini-tome the pieces of the puzzle begin to lock into place. Could timely messages from 'the other side' be coming through?
4. A few weeks ago, a book entitled 'The Spear of Destiny' was placed in my hands. It contains various comments on the significance of the Spear, Grail, Dragon, and Dove.
5. Mary Caine and Mrs. Villiers-Stuart are proceeding with their research on St. David, Patron Saint of Wales. Was Barton St. David named after him, he who had a pet Dove, his own symbol of peace.
6. The spear of Longinus, an ancient talisman of good or evil (the lance that pierced the side of Jesus on the cross) was later claimed by forty-five emperors served as a symbol of their power in the one-thousand years following Charlemagne. The serpent power of this spear of profound destiny was at times wielded by powerful leaders to defeat the Dove's passive resistance.
7. The Phalanges of the spear somewhat resemble the wings of the Dove.
8. The Dove as a symbol is seen winging earthward from a heavenly abode holding a small, white wafer in its beak; finally depositing it on the 'Lapsit Exillius,' the stone of purity which gave the Phoenix its power of rebirth to arise out of its own ashes.

AN INTERESTING PHENOMENON... The cross-hatching below is made up entirely of straight lines resulting in a visual system of curves. It has been said: "There are no straight lines anywhere in the universe, we only see a continuous succession of horizons..." [Line projections, geometric sketches by Patrick Magann.]

IN THE EYE OF THE TRIANGLE... Dr. Derald Langham, Ph. D. (left), father of Genetic gardening and originator of the thirteen-dimensional, form-energy program: Genesa. A fascinating tape interview with Dr. Langham will appear in the next issue of Pyramid Guide. Steven Halpern, M.A. (right), Director of Spectrum Research Institute, pioneering in holistic acoustics is the featured composer and player on two popular record albums, 'Spectrum Suite: A Meditation-al Environment' and 'I' - 'A Cosmic Attunement' (Sri Records, Box 1584, Palo Alto, California 94302).

During the last decade, Steven wanted to find out why sounds affect people in certain ways. He studied the current, ongoing phenomenon of what he terms "Sonic pollution and Aural assault." But his primary thrust was directed toward the use of music as a therapeutic, healing modality. In his research, Steven learned that our bodies, as conglomerates of vibrating atoms and molecules, can be set in other modes of motion by incoming sound and stimuli. Dr. Andrews of Johns Hopkins University said: "If we had the right ears, we could hear the hum and song of the atoms..." Steve looked into the phenomena of the frequencies of musical tones, harmonics, mantras, and sympathetic vibrations. As a result, the young composer-arranger evolved a way of presenting music resembling the Indian 'Raga', with each tone not being the edge of some interval, but where each note represents a state of being; tones as living entities.

In response to the 'Spectrum Suite' and 'I' albums, buyers say this psycho-acoustical music calms them; "...Reminds me of a slow snowfall," said one listener. Halpern, with the aid of doctors, scientists, and willing test subjects made several bio-feedback (EEG brainwave) and Kirlian photographic response experiments.

The tests demonstrated the effectiveness of his music in calming stress and creating a harmonious environment. Then Halpern focused on a group to help determine not what the music did but what people THOUGHT it did to them. Where some people didn't feel any particular benefit, the bio-feedback equipment indicated noticeable calming effects upon them anyway. Steve experimented with everything from non-music on through rock, classical, jazz and the new music. His albums evoked a 95% favorable response in comparison to 25% with certain classical selections. "Sex, age, race, religion or musical preference apparently have no bearing on the immediate appreciation of sounds so produced," he writes. Steven is the author of 'Aural Ecology: A Handbook for Sound Health', and innovator of the 'Psycho-Acoustic Music Club,' which produces a directory of ANTI-FRANTIC ALTERNATIVES for your relaxed listening pleasure.

powerful link exists between earth-mind thoughtforms and the thoughtsphere of humans linking all actively intelligent or sentient life on the planet. He said humans are biological resonators. "A dowser's body is a transducer," he went on, "The Earth's brainwaves change with the solstices, by the light of a full moon, or in the absence of any moon at all." Beck suggested that the mind-aura fields of humans are intimately connected with our planet's conscious atmosphere. "This involves various kinds of emotional expression or mood changes in the world's populations," he added. "Electromagnetic bombardments from sunspots, lunar phases and other energy bodies in space contribute to this activity." According to the Physicist, it appears that incoming waves of myriad, cosmic energies impinge upon our mind-body auras.

Occult teachers have long known that the human mind functions in one's aura, organizing thought energy from this field in a two-way movement through the pores of one's skin, where the ultimate completion of the idea is then consummated in the (computer) brain. Unwanted ideas can be deprived of energy, merely by lack of, or removal of one's interest. In this way one can avoid mind-aura saturation from the uncountable and meaningless, but potent thoughtforms permeating all space. Thoughts as living things and our minds are closely tied to the earth-mind-sphere. This explains the ancient belief that the thoughts of humankind have been (are) responsible for what happens on earth: floods, earthquakes, the dissolution of all form. Mass thinking of a positive nature, on the other hand, can produce planetary beauty, tranquility and growth. According to Jesus and other Luminaries of the past, we have the power of dominion over all life and activity on earth, though this innate human power for good leaves much to be desired.

ADAMS (Continued)

9. The grail is again alchemically symbolized with the Dove flying towards the 'Invisible Disk,' held in the arms of a crescent moon while winging its way across the face of the sun. The pure heart (sun) arises to permeate the cold (moon) intellect thereby liberating man's soul from his limited, mental, materialistic concept of the cosmos.
10. In Pyramidology, the queens chamber's measurements in the Great Pyramid tie in with the current, unfolding destiny of England, with a queen on the throne. Through the ages, close connections persist between the Great Pyramid, the Grail, Stonehenge and the world's megalithic sites.
11. Light from the DRAGON star, Alpha Draconis, was visible down the descending passage in 2170 B.C., a date given as the possible moment of beginning construction for the Great Pyramid.
12. The Dragon originally symbolized either the higher or lower ego (evolving man doesn't slay the dragon, he sets out to tame it), to transmute the (not-self) lower ego into higher states of expression. The symbol of the serpent manifests in higher or lower mind, and the Dove symbolizes spirit. The message of high import from the Adams lineage in Rothovius' articles are all there. "...We need to closely attune to the rhythms of nature..." he writes. John Quincy Adams called for "Lighthouses in the skies...in the dragon vision..." Rothovius added, emphasizing the great need for a worldwide ethic, love and peace among all humankind. Henry Adams and the Dragon Society strove to attain it 350 years ago. John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their descendents hoped to perpetuate this goal. Is there still time to find and hold this Holy Grail of wisdom in our time?

The consciousness of Mother Earth and her populations appears to be inseparable, the thoughts and awareness of either vitally affecting the other. The world's great thinkers continue to say that an ethical, ecological relationship between earth and her populations must exist if orderly evolution is to proceed, and if far-reaching, planetary upheavals come they will have originated in the minds of humankind.

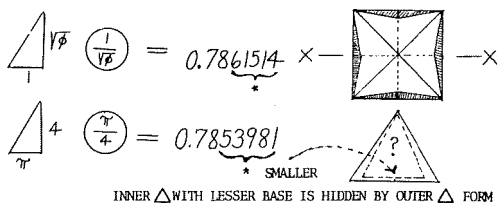

KOMAR OUT-THINKS PAIN... Walking barefooted up and down a staircase of upturned razor-sharp knife blades defies rational explanation, but Komar [Vernon Craig, of Wooster, Ohio] does it — time and again, and without apparent physical harm. Now at the 1977 Clearlight International Energy Conference to be held in Santa Barbara, California, December 2, 3 & 4, Komar will go one step beyond to demonstrate his astonishing, fire-walking abilities. The 3-day program will also include presentations and demonstrations of metal bending employing mind energy, man-plant communication, contact with UFO intelligences, dowsing and pyramid energy detection, the replicated Crystal Skull, and much, much more...Photo inset [left] Tony Seibert and Robert Mandalaris, conference coordinators; photo inset [right] Peter Rendel of England, author and eminent authority on Eastern Esotericism and the body's subtle energy fields. LETTER FROM TESLA (see Pyramid Guide #25 — page 5)

Did you know Marconi also detected signals from other worlds? Like Tesla he was quiet about this type of information.

THE TRUE PYRAMID MODEL

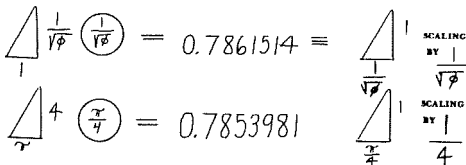

I wonder if anyone has yet built a true pyramid replica, because the Great Pyramid's base sides are indented — (scalloped inward).

Must we argue whether pyramid construction should be based on pi π or phi ϕ ? Should either viewpoint be right or wrong, that is to the exclusion of the other? Both formulas π and ϕ are in fact correct. This could easily be checked with a pocket calculator.

THE ANSWER TO LEVITATION

I received a few replies in response to my letter in Pyramid Guide #27 (p.4). Most seemed to feel that Method (ii) that is, "High-speed rotation," similar to the Searle and De Palma theory was best.

However, some readers don't know much about ELECTRICAL Engineering, so they tend to discount Method (iii) ("High-Frequency-Vibration"). Now as an electrical engineer I'm certain Method (iii) will prove superior.

I feel like Nicola Tesla, that high-frequency technology still holds many secrets. Therefore, Method (iii) should provide the answer to "Levitation;" for Yogin/Fakhirs tell us that is how they do it. (See photo in Pyramid Guide #6 (p.4) and sketch in #26 (p.3)). Indeed the secret may already have been discovered by German Prof. W. Peschka, whose high frequency experiments with electromagnetism may have been energizing the 'Ether'?

Using the Standard Rocket Performance criterion (ie. 'Specific Impulse') Dr. Peschka found H.F. propulsions was several orders of magnitude better than a rocket! Dr. Peschka's 3,000 hertz is right in the microwave-oven/mechial — diatemy range, and people have reportedly been burned by H.F. fields from landed UFO's!

See Dr. Peschka's 7 page report in the magazine "Raumfahrtforschung," Heft 2, 1974 (ie "Aerospace Research," Vol. 2, 1974) which is the Journal of "Deutsche Gesellschaft fur Luft und Raumfahrt," 8012 Otobrunn, Liebigweg 10, W. PYRAMID ON THE ROOF...of the Hippocrates Health Institute, Boston, Massachusetts. This 10 x 10 foot base model was built by Dick Lahde, who says that "...strange physical and psychological effects took place involving members of the organization...this lasted for three days...then there was a feeling of warmth and peaceful atmosphere prevailing throughout the building..." Lahde added that psychic Dave Hall saw a shimmering, bluish light originating at the floor level ascending through the roof.

PENDULUM-PYRAMID AND FOOD OBSERVATIONS

Either my steel or bloodstone pendulum suspended 2" to 4" above a 12" high steel wire pyramid rotates in a clockwise direction. When the weight is 18" to 24" above the pyramid it gyrates at a faster rate. These movements occur at the apex and the four base corners. The pendulum will turn counterclockwise in the middle of each side and 3 to 4" away from the particular side. When I lower the pendulum below the peak on the north side my pendulum is pushed outward.

In my experience, a 6" cardboard pyramid swings the pendulum counterclockwise. With a bloodstone pendulum suspended from a 10" long, gold plated chain, UNCOOKED beef or chicken, white sugar or candy in each case, causes the pendulum to move in a clockwise direction. COOKED beef, chicken, fish and all other foods I have tested however, cause the pendulum to swing in counterclockwise gyrations. The foods that cause this leftward spiral include fruits, vegetables, tea, coffee, peanut butter, water, bread, margarine, eggs and yogurt. I can't explain why the pendulum changes its behavior when held above the various foods. Water placed under an 8" high wooden pyramid caused counterclockwise, pendulum movements as follows:

Some literature written during the past three years gives typical dimensions for models of pyramids of various sizes. These are supposed to be replicas very close in miniaturized measurement to the Great Pyramid. A recent article in a popular magazine even stated that the dimensions given followed the formula of measurements incorporated in the Cheops (Great) Pyramid.

The dimensions given and generally accepted are derived from John Taylor's published conclusion that: "the perimeter of the pyramid divided by twice its height is very close to the value of ϕ ," as we know it today. This isn't close enough to validate statements that the pyramid incorporates the value of ϕ . As a matter of fact, functions in the golden series were used extensively in the design of the pyramid's internal and external features. Details in the golden ratio series became lost after the Great Pyramid was completed. Fragments of the series only have surfaced since. It appears that John Taylor was not familiar with this series so he developed his premise based on ϕ .

Peter Tompkins was right in his book: Secrets of the Great Pyramid when he explained that: if one-half the pyramid's basewidth is proportional to unity, the vertical height is proportional to 0 and the slant height is proportional to 0. Now 0 is the golden ratio and its numerical value can be found by use of a digital calculator having a square root key. For example: Key in 1.25. Find its square root. Add 0.5 and the result is the numerical value of 0. Find the square root of the result and this is the vertical height proportionality factor. The digital calculator with a square root key can be used to dimension models of the Great Pyramid to any size desired in any unit of standard measure.

First, decide how wide the base of the model is to be and find one-half the desired basewidth. Then find the value of 0 on the calculator ($0 = 1.25 + 0.5$).

The slant height of a face is the distance between the center of its base and its apex. Find the slant height of each face by multiplying the value of 0 by one-half the basewidth of the model.

Find the length of the edges of the faces (from a lower corner to the apex) by finding 0 as before, adding 2, finding the square root of the result and using this as a multiplier for one-half the basewidth. Stated mathematically, Edge length = $0 + 2 \times$ one-half basewidth.

Determine the vertical height of the completed model by finding 0 as before, noting the square root of 0 and using this as a multiplier for one-half the basewidth. Stated mathematically, as follows:

Vertical height = $0 \times$ one-half basewidth.

A pyramid constructed in accordance with these procedures will have several important relationships not possessed by a model constructed through use of ϕ . Some of these are:

- The area of a face is the square of the vertical height (as told to Herodotus about 400 B.C.)

- The area of the external surfaces divided by the area of the base is the numerical value of the golden ratio.

- The total area of the Great Pyramid's four faces plus the area of the base, divided by the area of the base is the numerical value of 02.

- The area of a face divided by the area of the meridian cross-section is the square root of the golden ratio.

- The area of a diagonal cross-section divided by the area of a meridian cross-section is the square root of two.

The difference between a pyramid designed by use of John Taylor's theory and a model designed by use of 0 is small when the accuracy achieved by the average builder is considered. If machine precision is desired, then the difference is important and of major importance in academic discussions.

The difference between the two design concepts can be evaluated by use of a digital calculator having function keys for square roots and ϕ . Find 0 and put it in memory. Find ϕ and key it into the register. Subtract the value of 0 in memory from ϕ . The result is the difference normalized to unity. Multiply the difference by 377.89329 feet per unit. The result is the difference in feet related to the size of the Great Pyramid. The difference is just over 5.5 inches out...being just over 480 feet, with the design-by- ϕ concept giving the greater height.

Few historians give the Great Pyramid's architect(s) credit for his (their) knowledge of geometry and mathematics. These secrets are now being revealed and confirmed to us by use of modern computers.

UNRAVELLING THE OCEAN BOTTOM, PYRAMID MYSTERIES (TWO LETTERS)

Dear Mr Cox:

August 23, 1977 Dear Mr. Cox:

In your latest issue of THE PYRAMID GUIDE (no. 30, Vol. V., No. 6 of July-August 1977) you printed verbatim a letter from Mr. Eugene T. Condon, Sr., President of Margen Internacional, S.A. and what appears to be a chart on graph paper of the profile of a pyramid found on the floor of the Atlantic Ocean. Mr. Condon states that news of this pyramid was first published by George Van Tassel in last July's issue of his periodical, "THE PROCEEDINGS".

Since I am the Capt. Don Henry who discovered this pyramid-like structure, it came as quite a surprise to learn that Mr. Van Tassel had published this information without my knowledge. Since I have heard of, and read many stories on this find the intent of this letter is my first and only attempt at clarifying erroneous statements regarding my discovery.

In April of 1976, while on a one day pleasure cruise as Captain of a small fishing yacht, I turned on my Ross Depth Sounder on the return trip from the Bahamas area. I was surprised to get a reading of what appeared to be a pyramid-like form. I told no one aboard the boat that day of my find.

Several weeks later, I told Eugene T. Condon of my discovery and at his request, mailed him a xerox copy of the depth sounding tape. I asked him to keep my discovery in confidence; however he sought to exploit this find by spreading the news of it all over the world.

The original sonar depth chart was in our possession until given to Charles Berlitz, author of the best seller, THE BERMUDA TRIANGLE and his most recent book, WITHOUT A TRACE. With the exception of my wife (Pat Henry) no one other than Charles Berlitz has been on any expeditions to this pyramid site. Therefore, Mr. Condon's remark that Charles Berlitz was taken to the site by Capt. Henry "with his permission" is rather ridiculous. As is also, his statement that Charles Berlitz is a "Johnny-Come-Lately" regarding this find. I do not have any agreement with Gene Condon, or anyone else for that matter at this time to explore this site further. I am not now, nor ever have been an associate of Eugene T. Condon, Sr. The only agreement I ever had with him was an offer to pilot his submarine which has since been terminated.

In closing this letter, Mr. Condon states that "I am sure you understand my reluctance to give the pyramid's location, inasmuch as I assume that you intend to publish this information". In view of the matter that I had asked Mr. Condon to keep this whole matter in confidence, it is a good thing that I did not reveal the location. Naturally, he would be reluctant to give its location - HE DOESN'T KNOW IT!!

Incidentally, the original sonar depth chart is reproduced in the photo section of Charles Berlitz' book WITHOUT A TRACE... I trust that this letter clears up any misconceptions regarding this structure. Sincerely, Capt. Don Henry, Box 137, Key Colony Beach, Fla. 33051

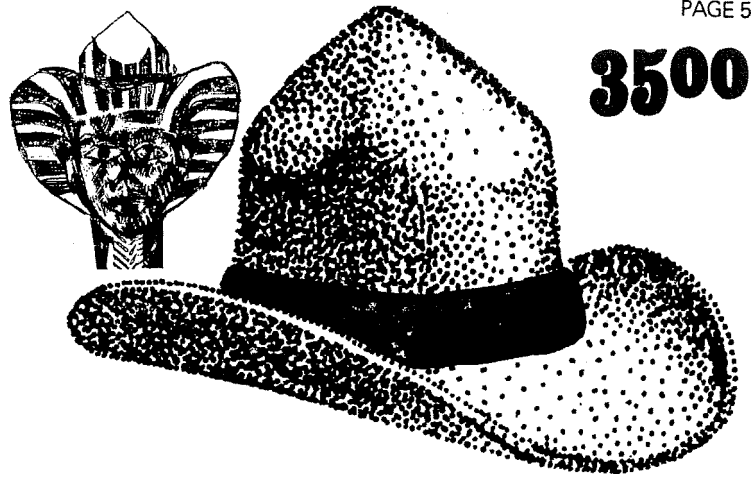

Second letter, September 9, 1977 Dear Mr. Cox:

...Thank you for issue #31, but I had already read it (on the sea-mounts). I first read issue #30 which came to me in a round-about way. The subscriber's name on it was Joan O'Connell (who oddly enough I had written to only days before even though I never heard of her before!) It seems Dr. Valentine got The Pyramid Guide from her and gave it to Charles Berlitz, who passed it along to me during his visit here in the Keys. In turn I sent it to someone who has a financial connection to Condon's submarine. (How about that for good mileage from one issue?) I was so impressed with the publication I immediately subscribed and that's how I came to read issue #31 before you sent it to Capt. Henry. Later I sent the #31 issue you sent us to Charles Berlitz...at least you can't say your publications don't get around!

...The press release Charles Berlitz gave a French news agency regarding the pyramid discovery story became distorted. At least this is what Charles told us about 3 or 4 months ago after a trip he made to Paris. As for Gene Condon, his only contact with the pyramid-like structure my husband discovered was... a xerox copy of the sonar depth, recorder tape showing the pyramid profile. That's as close as he ever got to the pyramid. We did have discussions regarding using his submarine to explore the pyramid site, but no contract was ever made. The next thing we knew he and another business contact of ours decided to explore the pyramid site without my husband, an interesting situation since neither one of them had the foggiest idea where the site was. ...We have no intention of using his submarine now, nor does he and his business associate have any part in future plans for exploration. ...It is really a shame... because it could have been a great business venture for all and a simpler way of doing the exploration...

I understand other people also claim they found possibly the same pyramid. Some, I am sure are friends of Condon. We never dreamed so many people would become involved.

There really hasn't been much publicity on the sub-sea, Atlantic pyramid, because we have done almost nothing to publicize it. Condon let the news out first which went far and wide. We didn't say anything for more than a year ourselves, but after Berlitz gave out the press release my husband appeared on a couple TV shows in Canada this year and finally mentioned it. He has made at least seven TV appearances in the past two years, all on the Bermuda Triangle and an experience he had there, which Charles Berlitz had included in his best seller "The Bermuda Triangle". On the last two shows, Capt. Henry did reveal the discovery of the pyramid. However all these shows played to Canadian audiences, except one "Beyond Reason" which was shown on some stations near the Canadian border. So actually there has been really no exposure in the U.S. on this subject. Unless we end up signing a contract for exclusive media coverage, we will be glad to keep you informed of any future developments. (We've had two offers.) ...Well, Mr. Cox, I hope that this letter has shed a little more light on the subject than before. Sincerely, Mrs. Pat Henry (for Capt. Don Henry)

Dear Mr. Cox,

I just got my pyramid about a week ago and I tried one experiment. I have a Bell and Howell cassette tape recorder that was not working properly. The current was okay and all the moving parts were operating. The drive mechanism for the cassette was functioning, etc. -except there was no sound. I put the recorder under my pyramid for one hour and it's now operating perfectly. John Gardzie, Chicago, Ill.

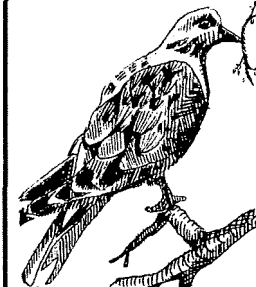

Dear Sir:

I just read Tom Valentine's book 'The Great Pyramid'. About the time the book was being written, before it was on the market my brother had a vision of the building of the Great Pyramid. He was carried back 8,000 years or more when the Great Pyramid was about half completed. He saw the manner in which it was constructed, the instruments used, the cutting of the stones in the quarry, the transportation of the stones from the quarry to the Great Pyramid, the placing of the stones in their position, the mortar used and how it was applied.

There were only six men placing the stones on the Great Pyramid, and only a total of one hundred workmen. The fantastic instruments used were far superior to ours and the people far superior in knowledge than any race known. They were surely from another planet. The Pyramids in Mexico and South America were workshops for the Great Pyramid. The builder's means of transportation were only minutes apart. The reason for, and selection of the site of the Great Pyramid was carefully planned.

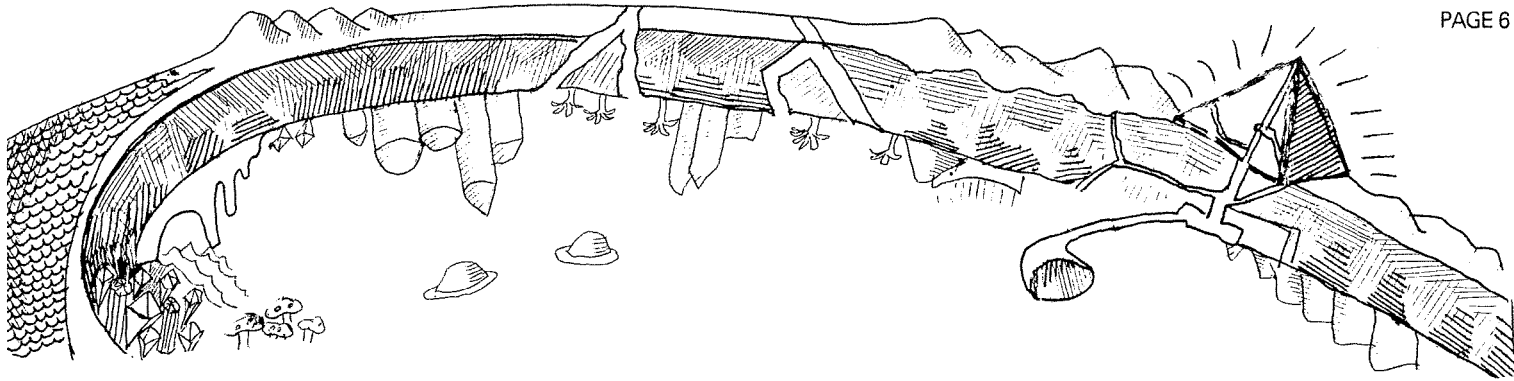

Sincerely yours, James R. Garcia, Tampa, Florida

HOLLOW EARTH CIVILIZATIONS...Do They Exist?

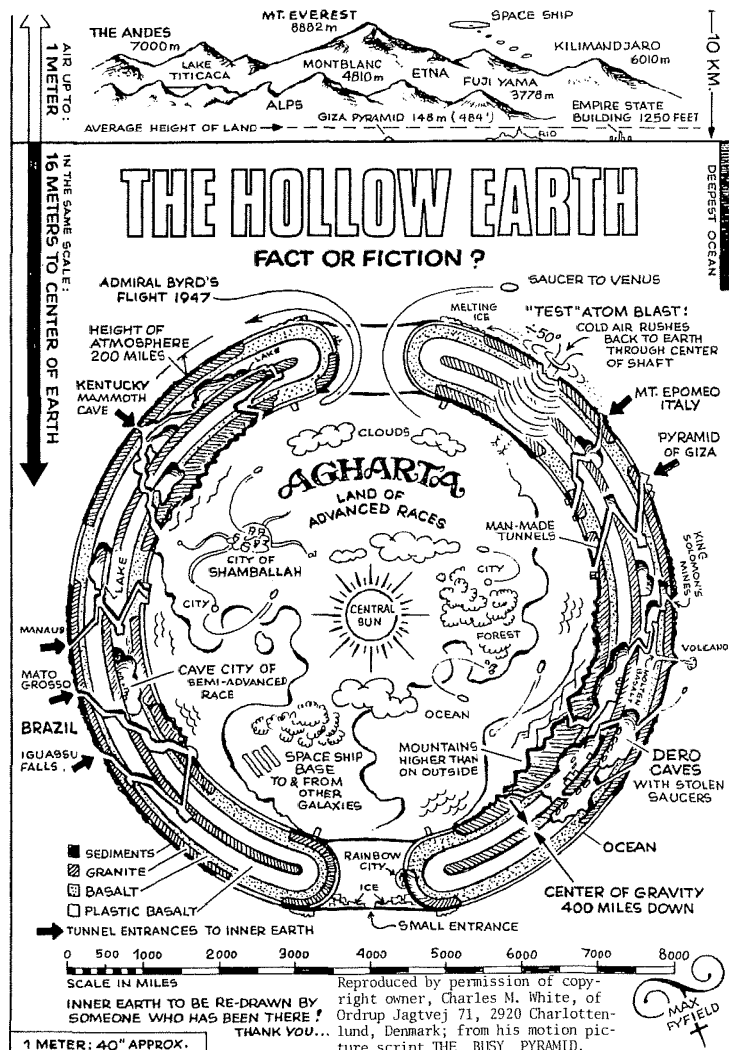

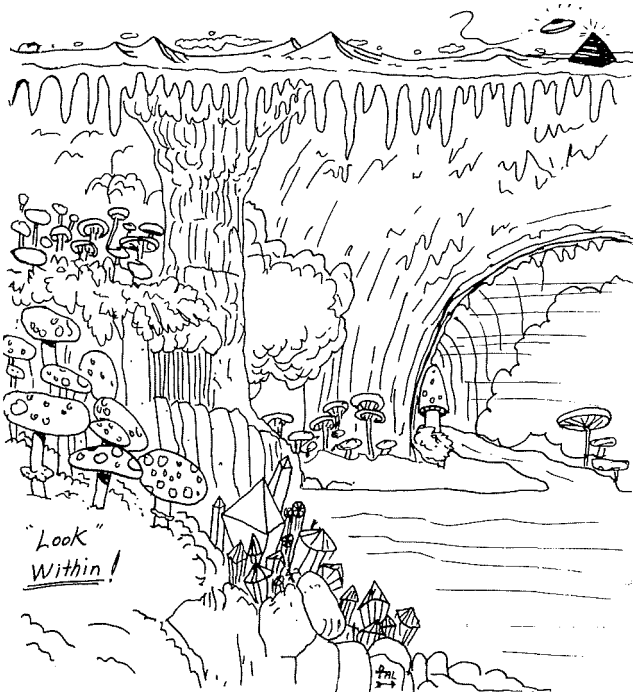

Ever since Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd reportedly flew into a shangri-la-like, inner-earth domain at the North Pole, a half-century ago, a growing library of hollow Earth information comes to the fore in research dealing with UFO activity, lost continents and races, anti-gravity phenomena and planetary survival.

The idea of environmentally hospitable, hollow cavities inside Mount Shasta, beneath Lhasa in Tibet, and numerous other sacred locations suggests that various populations of beings — some unknown to the other — carry on a happy existence underground with no intention of getting mixed up in world wars, pollution, epidemics and egocentric buck-chasing life styles. "Hollow Earth," say experts in this field of study, "presents a plausible explanation for UFO sightings and space-intelligence contact." The Worldwide Ancient Astronaut Society movement flourishes with discoveries of ancient stone and surface markings above and below ground, all attesting to the existence of prehistory civilizations. Our planet has been colonized by entities from other worlds back in ancient times beyond knowing, "and it's still going on," they add. Big Foot, the Yeti, hairy giants, the little people, humanoids and androids, spacemen and under-earthlings of innumerable descriptions are here as a part of galactic experiments, they say, "and it includes races of people from dying worlds who continue to relocate here out of dire necessity."

Several people have reported from time to time, of entering the Hollow Earth realms, experiencing personal contact with descendants from the lost continents of Atlantis, Mu, Lemuria and even Thule. "Many have ventured inward through well-concealed portals," say inner-Earth buffs, "but few ever return." It seems these cave-passageway travelers either:

1. have no desire to leave the Nirvana going on in the belly of Mother Earth, or...
2. so that the secret entrances are not disclosed, and for the safety of Hollow Earth civilizations against aggression from the surface peoples, no one but a selected few are ever allowed to return topside.

The mere mention of beings carrying on as groups and nations below ground immediately evoked laughter ten years ago. Now, some serious scientific study is going on to verify or deny the worldwide, ever-growing inner-earth claims by self-proclaimed witnesses, authors and students of ancient lore. "No one need make a decision one way or the other," say proponents, "just leave the door of possibility open. More proof is forthcoming," they say.

A GILBERT 'GIB' MILNE TAPE [excerpted] June 1977

"My garden under pyramids is more spectacular than ever. I use tin cans, metal discs, nails and steel stakes to hold the plants up and put metal shavings from machine shops in the soil. It's amazing what the grass and plants do with electroculture gardening. My HORIAO plant from Hawaii is wild with seventy blooms as pyramid energy flows up from beneath and through it. The african violets are doing great and the Spider plant has completely filled the bird cage. I've learned a lot more during the last year or two. Strange to say, the so-called experts just don't want to come around and see what's going on. But iris growers say they've never seen anything like it..."

Re: THE 'BERMUDA TRIANGLE'

"I saw several small buildings in Bermuda with a 6' x 6' square with a pyramid on top. Natives said they were BUTTERIES from the olden days when people stored food inside to preserve same. There may be thousands of these small pyramidal structures attached to the homes and other buildings. I felt some tingling vibes inside a buttery, but my wife felt nothing. I wonder if the little pyramids could be exerting an influence on the continual night and day wind problem. At least 3/4 of those among a few thousand people I've turned on to pyramids claim success in plant growing. Bill, I'm convinced the Japanese are using pyramids to keep their Bonsai plants so small. Plants under pyramids get so much energy they don't get leggy. I put a couple of pyramids in the fish tank — the fish went right to them. When a noise or disturbance occurs they run for the pyramids — perhaps the replicas provide an anti-noise shelter..."

The total effort of prayer and grace to slay the Dragon of the possessive self devouring Truth, Love and Beauty and dividing the inner Kingdom against itself.
This I share with all beings discovering the Dragon of Darkness and Hero transforming the Dragon to the Serpent of Wisdom

AMERICAN PATRIOTS AND LEADERS OF HIGH VISION...A strong link now emerges between the Adams lineage and the Dragon, Dove and Host, the Holy Grail; Glastonbury Zodiac, Stonehenge and the Great Pyramid. Located in the center of the zodiac, the dove's symbolism ties in with the aspirations of Henry Adams, Dragon Society member and forefather of two American presidents [see the 'Adams-Dragon Odyssey' on Page 2 of this edition].

THE DRAGON AND THE SERPENT...have throughout history been venerated as positive symbols of wisdom, or negatively understood as emblems of evil and destruction. The original meaning of these two, historically powerful representations somehow became reversed, like the 'Swastika,' adopted by tyrannical Nazi warlords, longrevered as a symbol of good luck by ancient Persians.

THE DOVE IN THE ZODIAC...with a host in its beak, appears in the middle of Glastonbury's 'Temple of the Stars,' an extraordinary gathering of astrological effigies, formed by natural vegetation, hills, pathways and watercourses.

THE DRAGON...has regularly been identified with the higher mysteries and good fortune in the Orient, and a means of conveying earth's secrets to the early Chinese, Greeks, and Romans. But in mythology, we find that St. George slew the Dragon, connoting the triumph of good over evil. Conversely, in Wales, the Red Dragon flies on the banner of sovereignty... The awakening Serpent of Divine Fire, seated in the root chakras of humans is a sign of accelerated, Divine evolution. Here the Serpent fire ascending upward to the crown chakra explodes with all the effulgence of a flowing fountain in dynamic equilibrium. This is often the instant of cosmic consciousness, believed by some as the culmination of one's learning and growth through a thousand rebirths. Its manifestation has been described as bringing incredible heights of ecstasy, followed by onrushing, new levels of wisdom and superconscious states in the mind of the initiate. The negative aspect of the Serpent fire can be experienced by one ill-prepared for the experience, where the Kundalini fire DESCENDS, resulting in great personal losses of vital, psychic and pranic energies.

EARTH BRAIN...Science has recently discovered that Earth has an electronically measurable brain-wave. The world brain — as with human beings — is evenly divided into two hemispheres. The intuitional, right half, human or planetary mind is involved with form and pattern recognition, space, movement and creative expression. The left brain hemisphere is associated with the five-sense, analytical, sequential reasoning process. The right, active wisdom, and left, intelligent logic, may be located on our planet. This global division begins at the North Pole, running a vertical line, 30° longitude to the South Pole; then completing its 150 degree longitudinal path of encirclement northward, bisecting the Pacific to the point of beginning. [Upper Right]

The ancients envisioned an inner world within the Cranium, the pre-and post-central Gyri aligned with Greece and Rome respectively.
[Lower Right] The known world, as the civilizations during the time of Daniel, believed it to resemble a human skull.
