

TERMS: $2,00 PER YEAR. PAYABLE STRICTLY IN ADVANCE.

DEVOTED TO RATIONAL SPIRITUALISM PRACTICAL REFORM. AND ## QUARTO SERIES.

BOSTON, NEW YORK AND CHICAGO, SATURDAY, OCT. 8, 1859.

VOL. I.---NO. 6.

Noctry.

[For the Spiritual Age.] TRIBUTE TO A WOMAN.

"What though spots are on the Sun? in fullness is his worth, in fullness be his praise."

> O, thou eestatic lover " Of sublimated things, Not all' God's angels hover Above on golden wings!-The true heart doth discover His chosen Queens and Kings.

To one whose life is solely Devoted to her friends Yet whose example, holy, Assimilates and blends The lofty and the lowly, My muse this verse commends.

How just and even-handed In every cause and case! Thy judgments, kind as candid, On others' works and ways, Ave to thy own remanded With premiums of praise!

How kind and comfort-caring Towards both friend and foe ! How, still a sweet smile wearing Thy features truly show (Without unwisely baring) The heart that lies below.

The vulgar in thy presence Scarce dare to start or stir; Thy courteous obmutescence To virtue they refer-Thy cheerful acquiescence To christian character.

In fellowship with folly Though thou art never seen, Thy temper, cheerful, jolly-Not hasty, but serene, 'Twist mirth and melancholy Preserves the golden mean.

How tender and forbearing Tow. r.ls the woe-begone, How oft thy fearless daring, Thy hopeful words, have drawn The sting of my despairing Or soothed a spirit worn !

Alas! this poor transcription

Above the breathless myriads, Arrayed in their long, white raiment; Sate!

Again in the westering hours We gathered in glens and grottos, By the very close-clasping canopy Fruit roofed and over-foided, By the firmament supernal flowerily over arbored; And, Wellado, we exulted !

So gravely and giddily we up grew Into jocund creatures of joyance, 'Yet to become great giants of truth and beauty," As our prophets chafed, <sup>4</sup> And be loftily uplifted hereafter To the light of Him whom the Eives screnely confide in The Father of Fairics, And the spirit of Living Flowers !"

Wellado, list thou ! Wellado, list thou ! Oft when a sonsitive tendril Of the overhanging forest Was shocked of the elf wind's passion, We inhaled an odorous mist of spray, And the parasitic foliage, And the pendulous cornucopice, Balmily, bamily, bamily, Rained, rained, rained ! And our fluttering lips were rosed with the charme showers; Until possessed of subtile, imperious emotions, Of sudden, quick-shifting caprices, And of startling cestatic fancies; Under the light of the rainbows arched Of an hundred quick and varying hues, All at once and all together We sprang and clapped our hands and ran, And kissed and kissed and kissed each other, Whilst the passionate buglers shouled and caught, And swung by the hanging horns-Ho! Ho!-And exultingly pressing their lips mid-air, right fairil wound away !-Away

MY BOY.

My little boy lies sleeping Stillness now Are the bare fect, so quick and restless lately, And the blue eyes beneath his thoughtful brow Are closed sedately.

One hand lies hid among the locks that float, In careless grace, upon the yielding pillows, The other on his breast rides like a boat On summer billows.

About the couch, where they his waking bide, being covered over with many and beautiful | laughed even louder than before; for she decorations and drawings, including gems of found only a long narrow network of islands, landscape by Darley, or portraits of individ- and a few poor people who had escaped the uals, or reminiscences of the Grecian my- sword of the conquerer, Attila, and who exthology, the note of the Bank of England changed salt and fish for the most necessary is little more than a promise to pay, duly articles of food and clothing. "Ha! ha! dated and numbered, with signature of ho! ho! a great city indeed !" and she flitted cashier, or one of his assistants, on right back to her mossy caverns and shaded dells. side, and he signature of an entering clerk L It was a long, long time before the heedon the left. less elf thought of the steady toil of her old

The chief peculiarity is a different ink acquaintances, or of the miserable exiles live employed on the mechanical numbering of ing in huts on the growing sandbanks. At each note, and a mathematical exacthess last, however, it occurred to her it might be and harmony on the whole engraving. There well to pay them another visit. What was are a few secret marks-five in all-consist- her amazement upon behelding the change. ing of dots placed with apparent careless- Sitting by the sea, as if born of its sparkling ness on various parts of the note, which waves, was a wilderness of churches and palbank clerks and other initiated persons can aces, of great marts trodden by the feet of immediately ascertain. Above all, the pa- crowding strangers, of massive walls, fine per, with its peculiar water-mark, is diffi- domes, and stately towers, while the rosy cult to be made. To imitate it would be as sunset touched the Lagune, crimsoned the felonious as to forge the hand-writings on countless sails, and glowed on the green isthe note itself. This paper is made by a lands outlying toward the ocean. The gorprocess known only to a few confidential per- geous banner of the city, with its winged lion, sens in the bank, and even were the mystery symbolled the sovereignty of rich eastern terlaid open, would require such a costly plant ritories, of Candia also, Cyprus and the Moof intricate machinery, that persons possess- rea, and smiling provinces on either shore of ed of the pecuniary means to establish it for the classic sea. Sixteen thousand men this purpose, would be so far above the usual | wrought in her arsenal; forty thousand manninducements to crime that they would scarce- ed her war ships. Her glass works furnishly be induced to run the risk. This paper ed the world with crystal fabrics; velvets, possesses such remarkable toughness that if and silks, and cloths of gold multiplied in a Bank of England note be twisted, with a her manufactories. Uncounted halls were weight of two hundred and twenty-four gilded, and tapestried, and filled with lovely pounds suspended to it, the twist will sus- landscapes and speaking portraits. Exquis. tain it without yielding or breaking. It ap- ite sculpture invited to study, painted winpears utterly improbable that counterfeiting dows let in tinted light upon floors, and walls, cannot be prevented here, as it is in London and roofs dazzling with mosaics of precious and Paris. Suppose that some bank should stones; and columns of porphpry, alabaster, try the experiment of issuing notes, the very | and serpentine upheld marble arches marvelPLAIN TALK.

In the September number of The Atlantic Monthly, is a sharp article entitled 'Massacre of the innocents," said to be from the pen of Rev. T. W. Higginson, upon the deplorable neglect of physical training in the education of girls. In the course of the article appears the following sensible and caustic allusion to the prize system competition in Sabbath Schools, of which we have spoken:

And the Sunday Schools co-operate with the week-day seminaries in the pious work of destruction. Dolorosus, are all your small wighbors hard at work in committing to memory Scripture texts for a wager-I have an impression, however, that they call it a prize-consisting of one Bible? In my circle of society, the excitement runs high. At any tea-drinking, you may hear the ladies discussing the comparative points and prospects of their various little Ellens and Harriets with shrill eagerness; while their husbands, on the other side of the room, are debating the merits of Ethan. Allen and Flora Temple, the famous trotting horses, who are soon expected to try their speed on our -"Agricultural Ground." Each horse and each girl appears to have enthusiastic backers, though the Sunday School excitement has the advantage of lasting longer. From inquiry, I find the state of the field to be about as follows: Fanny Hastings who won the prize last year, is not to be entered for it again; she damaged her memory by the precess, her teacher tells me, so that she can now sourcely fix the simplest lesson in her mind .--Carry Blake had got up to five thousand verses, but had such dreadful head aches that her mother compelled her to stop, some weeks ago; the texts have all vanished from her brain, but the head ache, unfortunately, still lingers. Nelly Sanborn has reached six thousand, although her anxious father long since tried to buy her off by offering her a new Bible twice as handsome as the prize one; but what did she care for that? She said she had handsome Bibles already, but she had no intention of being beaten by Ella Prentiss. Poor child, we see no chance for her; for Ella has it her own way; she has made up a score of seven thousand texts, and it is only three days to the fatal Sanday. Between ourselves, I think Nelly does her work more fairly; for Ella has a marvelous ingenuity in picking out easy verses, like Jack Horner's plums, valuing every sacred sentence, not by its subject, but by its shortness. Still she is bound to win. "How is her health this summer ?" I asked her mother the other day. "Well, her verses weigh upon her," said the good woman, solemnly. And here I pledge my word, Dolorosus, that to every one of these statements I might append, as Miss Edgeworth does to every particular tough story-"N. B. This is a fact." I will only add that our Sunday School Superintendent, who is a physician, told me he had as strong objections to the whole thing as I could have; but that it was no use talking; all the other schools did it, and ours must; emulation was the order of the day. "Besides," he added, with that sort of cheerful are not trying for the prize much, this year; and as for the girls, they would probably lose their health very soon, at any rate, and may as well devote it to a sacred cause." A Mrs. Prescott Lawrence, of Winhall, Vt., died a few days since of consumption, and as a number of the family had previously died of the same disease, the family went through the superstitious farce of burning the lungs, heart and liver of the deceased, to prevent any more from dying of the same disease.

From tables of my heart, Is yet a poor description Of what to me thou art : This incomplete ascription Fits not thy better part.

[For the Spiritual Age.] ELFLORA'S COURT.

C.***L.

BY FORCEYTHE WILLSON.

Wildly upwards aforetime: Through dreamy metempsychosis, Methought in a royal rapture that I was the royal, Elfin Elfiora Rosa Regina conceitedly crewned-Rosa Regina !

And I reigned In a far-off sphere of conceit and fancy, Whose perpetual/blossoming Blent, interblent, and ordered, To sensitive sympathy and thorough-bred uniformity, Composed a world which was a wonderful blossom !

Numberless we Who swam in its aromal hazes, Holding our state in the petal palaces while our Petit harpers Twanged the fantasia light, and The dancers flew along the floors of rose-leaf.

In the moonshine revel We warbled five, fairy trebles, And chirped sharp catches and glees, Whilst bards long-bearded Called from the wars of our history some wild achieve And poet-wise chanted the legend With pompous abandon.

When the evening starshook . Ofer the ebbing darkness; And the sun florescent, blown of yore into splendor By a loving Florist, Flashed on our bird-like vision; And the airs were loud with the hum of gigantic insects Rich-hued and essence-hoarding; And. jubilant gushes Of strange star-nested cories, A hoary, quaint-habited, trumpeter quelled The delirium of music; And with a blast bade Revelry be silent.

Quickly the court changed and a most august council, Upon a high dais of blossoms,

His whilom playthings lie in rare confusion; And underneath the shoes he thought to hide In safe seclusion.

He calaly sleeps. The winds moan at the door, And in the room the firelight's fitful gleaning Makes pleasant shadows on the crimson floor-I sit a dreaming.

I see afar the voiled, uncertain land; That in the future waits his manneod's coming, And strive to dissipate with love's strong hand, Its mists benumbing.

And is he of that race of laureled kings, The wearers of the purple of the Poet? Or like the heroes of whom the Poet sings? It is life will show it.

And if he he a soul from falschood free, Though he should wear no laurel, sing no story, To bear his part with honest men shall be Enough of glory.

PROGRESS OF BANK NOTE FORGERY,---We have without exception, the best bank note engraving in the world, and we have, also, more counterfeit bank notes than any other country with a paper currency. The ingenuity of our engravers is tasked and tasked to produce bank notes which the counterfeiter cannot imitate, and yet forgeries are exceedingly flush. For example, as we learn from Peterson's Counterfeit Detector of yesterday, as many as fifty-eight new counterfeits have been put into circulation within the last fortnight. This would appear almost incredible, but it is true. The Bank of England notes, which are now very rarely imitated, are distinguished, in their execution, by the utmost simplicity of design and work. Yet, with all this simplicity and plainness, a forgery of it is seldom made, and when made is readily detected. The protection lies in the simplicity. Instead of perfection of cunning art employed to pro- lous in their grace and beauty. Gates of duce the most beautiful simplicity of design brass inlaid with silver, pictured pavements, and execution .- [Philadelphia Press.

[From the Boston Journal.] THE THOUGHTLESS SPRITE.

A STORY LOR CHILDREN.

Once upon a time, a mountain spirit said hills, the Frulian mountains, the distant concoaxingly to the streams which go leaping tinent, and festive Venice, when suddenly down the outer spurs and peaks of the Alps the vast square of St. Mark with its catheinto the Adriatic, between the Piave and dral and palaces burst into light along its Adige, "Play with me. Play with me."-But they all answered, "No, we are too busy." and points, a miracle of flaming architecture busy, indeed ! I should like to know what you are doing but dancing, and singing, and thundering-frolicking, in fact, the whole way from this to the great gulf. Yes, what the prophecy of their end." indeed ?"

"We are laying the foundation for a city the reply.

by the tree-crested hill tops. "Ha! Ha!". depositing far out in the Adriatic the earth, foresee. Be not, however, for this, moping twigs, and pebbles, which they gathered in and sad. Be gay and hopeful with the bright their course.

"Ha ! Ha !" shouted the spirit once more ous birds; but be also industrious, patient, "In a hundred years, or so, I will come obedient, loving, and true; so shall life be to, again."

The hundred years passed by, and the your childhood and youth will sustain a nomerry trifler flew down to see what the ble superstructure raised by your maturer streams had done. "Ha! ha! ho! ho!" she years.

arcades, and cloisters, and galleries magical in their proportions, fairy like spires, and gossamer carving alike sought and satisfied the eye. The sun went down behind the Tyrol, draping in regal purple the Euanean myriad curves, and distances, and hoights, "Too busy," replied the little spirit. "Too in honor of a foreign king.

Awed by the scene, the mountain spirit kept silence for a while, and then softly whispered : "Who shall read in the beginning of things

Dear Children, you-like the far off streams-are, day by day, hour by hour, which will be the wonder of the world," was minute by minute, laying the foundation of hopelessness peculiar to his profession, "the boys Character; and your Future is the city "Ha! Ha!" shouted the spirit, and though which will be built thereon. Each of your she was so small, her voice sounded through thoughts however fleeting, each purpose howthe glens, and was caught up and repeated ever momentary, each word however trifling, each deed however apparently unimportant, It was a mocking laugh, but the streams has a voiceless and unseen influence which did not heed it. They went dilligently on, none can estimate, and whose result none can sunshine, the fragrant flowers, the melodiyou good if not great, and the light labor of

A tract of land, about 200 by 700 feet, in Baton Rouge parish, La., recently sank to the depth of 75 to 80 feet, swallowing up a barn, from which the people had barely time to, escape. The catastrophe was produced by the action of subterraneous springs.

SPIRITU A G E . тнЕ $\mathbf{A}$ L

Entered according to Act of Congress, in the year 1859, by W. H. OHAWEY, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court of Massachusetts.

2

MINNIE, THE MEDIUM SPIRITUALISM IN GERMANY.

BY W. H. CHANEY, EDITOR OF THE SPIRITUAL AGE, AUTHOR OF "THE MER TONS," "THE MISSION OF CUARTY," &c., &d.

PART I.

(Continued.)

At this period, the whole of Europe seemed ripe for revolution. The confidence of the people in their rulers was destroyed, and they in turn became suspicious of the people. Many of the German nobles believed that Francis II. was secretly leaguing with the enemies of our country, and already a counter league was organized for the purpose of thwarting him. Chief among them I found my brother-inlaw, baron von Wieser, and I gave the movement my hearty co-operation. But before any active measures were taken we were betrayed by Baron von Ault, father of the treacherous Frederick.

"You already know the fate of Baron von Wieser. A few of the conspirators escaped from the country, but a vast majority were arrested and condemned to perpetual imprisonment, from which nearly all have since been released by death.

"Being personally known to but few in Germany, I managed to reach this place in the disguise of a monk, and after visiting this cottage, which I found tenantless, in the course of my rambles through the forest which lies to the north-east, I discovered a cavern, so dry and beautiful. that I at once determined to turn hermit and make it my future abode.

"Upon ascertaining that the cottage was for sale, I wrote my sister, advising her to purchase it and remove thither with her children, which she accordingly did. She has informed you of the loss of her little remaining money through the villany of her banker-all my available means were deposited with hers, in her name, and hence the same blow of misfortune fell upon both.

"A few words more, and I shall be done. Your grand-mother and mother both died while I was in France, and I have recently learned that upon this cottage coming into the possession of your father, he deeded it to his younger brother, your uncle Ferdinand, who subsequently leased it to Francis Bridolf, uncle to the cold-blooded villain, Gerbert. It was therefore your uncle Ferdinand from whom the cottage has just been purchased."

which was about three months ago, as | ly starting-exhibiting movements which Minnie was walking in the garden, she was were wholly involuntary.

sudderly confronted by Gerbert, who very As soon as the doctor observed her, he familiarly extended his hand, as he wished stepped forward, and gently disengaging her a pleasant evening. Startled by his her from her mother, took one of her unexpected appearance, she uttered a hands in each of his, and looking calmly scream and fled towards the house. Ger- and earnestly into her eyes, he said kindbert followed, soon overtook her, and at ly, the moment he was laying his hand upon "Minnie, be quiet! There is nothing her shoulder, Conrad, attracted by the here that can harm you-compose yourscream of Minnie, rushed into the garden. self-do not yield to this idle fear."

riding whip in hand, and catching Gerbert by the throat, commenced laying it over his head and shoulders without stint or his fixed gaze, and in a few moments Minmercy.

"I was walking among the shrubbery upon the other side of the house, at the time, and knew nothing of what was going on in the garden, until Minnie, pale and breathless, came flying towards me. From her I learned something of the particulars, and at once hastened to the garden. Conrad was still holding Gerbert by the throat, beating him with the whip. Hurrying up to them, I caught Conrad's arm and earnestly besought him to stop. I never saw Conrad so excited as he was then; but he was ever prompt to obey my slightest wish, and as soon as he became aware that it was his mother who interposed, he released poor Gerbert from the severe whipping. "Gerbert then attempted to explain, but Conrad refused to hear a single word in extenuation of conduct that appeared so mean and-"

While madame von Wieser had been speaking, we had noticed a sort of rumbling sound, which, at first seemed at a distance, but had been gradually growing louder and nearer, until she was interrupt- | turies, been a wonder and mystery." ed by a noise upon the door, something bctween a knock and a slap, by a heavy body which appeared to have passed through ings and opening the mysterious pocketand fallen upon the floor inside. Hastily | book. springing to my feet, I was about to rush into the hall, when my steps were arrested by hearing the same sound repeated upon the inner door, by the falling of some weighty substance in the very room where we were.

Two lamps were burning brightly in the how came it there?" we all asked. room, and notwithstanding all heard the noise, which appeared the same to each, yet neither one of us could see any object. While we stood staring at each other, wondering at the strange occurrence, we heard three distinct knocks upon the floor, fol. lowed by a sound which resembled the keeper remembered having found it in the shuffling or sliding of a foot upon the carpet. Then the three knocks were repeat- | brought to the cottage, and supposing that ed, and again the sliding, the knocks ap- it belonged to Conrad, and that he had pearing to advance into the room, and to- lost it the evening before, while walking wards us, about a pace at each slide.

ed behind the first tier of books, and to saw them move. Stepping quickly for-

With some trepidation I raised the pocket-book. It fluttered and quivered in my hand like a struggling bird. My sensations at that moment were the most novel and thrilling of any that I had ever experienced. I not only felt the motion of the pocket-book, but a slight tremor ran up my arm, extending to all parts of my body, resembling very light and rapid shocks from a galvanic battery. I continued to hold it with a firm grasp, both mentally and physically resolved to stay its

In five minutes, it lay passive in my hand. I then raised my eyes to the little group which had gathered about me. The expressed both anxiety and curiosity .---

Madame von Wieser betrayed unmistaka-unconscious. Her whole frame was spas-olently agitated.

strange motion.

Kindly, but with a firmness which amounted almost to severity, he continued nie became perfectly calm and composed. I was deeply interested in watching this novel method of curing a fright, and begged the doctor to explain the philosophy of it.

"Some other time, my young friend," was his reply, "but now let us investigate the mystery of an inanimate body being moved without the contact of any visible agency."

"But first," rejoined his sister, "let us see what pocket-book that can be. I never saw it before."

"Shall I open it?" I enquired.

"By all means," replied the doctor.---'Perhaps it may enable us to discover the secret of its strange convulsions. I in cline to the opinion that whatever it may contain, we shall find no money-perhaps the agony of the pocket-book arose from this cause," he said with a smile. "Or perhaps if we discover the secret of its spasms, it may afford a key to the ingenious construction of Memnon's statue, which each morning gave forth such sweet music at sunrise, and which has, for cen-

While the doctor was making these observations, I had been undoing the fasten-

Two unscaled letters, folded and directed in the hand writing of Frederick Ault, were the first objects which met my gaze ! Upon closer examination, we found unmistakable evidence that the pocket-book had formerly belonged to Frederick. "But

"Call in the servants," said the doctor, "and we will question them as to their knowledge of it."

The servants were called, and upon being shown the pocket-book, and asked if they had ever seen it before, the old house garden, on the morning of the day I was there with Minnie, she had put it in the cluded that my best course would be to get rid of rence, it is proper that I should conclude the the fiery Baron first. But before I matured the scheme by which it could be accomplished, who should come to me on the same devil's errand but Gerbert himself. The poor fool had not the courage to challenge Conrad for the shameful whipping I wrote you about, until 'Old Gunpowder' was disposed of in some safe way, which errand he was anxious I should do for him.

"Finding that Gerbert had no suspicions of my intentions in reference to Minuie, I readly entered into all his plans. After several conferences, it was finally decided that I should quarrel with the Baron, provoke a challenge and then by a little management-well, no matter-I like my life too well to run too many risks.

"In furtherance of this scheme, I went up to 'Old Gunpowder's den' this morning, when it seems as though Satan himself was helping me, for there I found Conrad and the Baron engaged in high words, which finally ended in blows. I led Conrad out of the room, and never left him until he wrote a challenge for me to carry back. Before delivering it, I sought Gerbort, and making him acquainted with the affair, advised him to enter the Baron's room as soon as I came out, and volunteer his services as second "Everything has succeeded as well as could be wished. The challenge is accepted-Gerbert and myself are to be the seconds-the affair comes off to-morrow morning, and as we shall place them but five paces apart, both are sure to die. This done-I shall soon dispose of Gerbert, and then, except an old hermit whom I shall take measures to have punished for treason, every obstacle will be removed.

"Now see that my cage is put in order for the receiving of the bird, for in less than a week from the reception of this, I shall be there with cognized, his fears gradually subsided. It my little pet. I almost pity Minnie when I think became evident that no one but Frederick of the suffering I must bring upon her, but as she never saw me, she cannot possibly know any thing of the affair, except that I shall carry her off out of pure devotion. She little thinks what a whirl paratively safe. wind of passion her bright eyes and sweet face have inspired within me.

But I must say you adieu. Even this night I will once more examine the fortress which I am to storm, that everything be in readiness. Attend closely to the instructions I gave you in my last, and soon expect Your FRED. P. S. Tell your little bird not to beat the bars of her cage too hard, and she shall soon have a sweet companion. F. A."

The second letter, directed to his father, was of the same date, and read as follows:

"I have unkenneled the old hound at last. The hermit, who has lived in the vicinity of this col lege, for several years past, I have just discovered to be none other than Dr. Herder, brother-in-law to the late Baron von Wieser. The widow of the Baron, (and sister to the doctor,) lives near, and having frequently seen the old hermit, entering and leaving her cottage, sometimes in a hermit dress, sometimes in the garb of a French surgeon, (both of which characters he sustains so well that no one has before detected their identity,) I became curious to watch his movements. Night before last I had the good luck to overhear some conversation between him and his sister, as they were walking in the garden, which assured me beyond a doubt that he is the veritable Herder. Now if you will see that he is properly provided for by overnment, you may be able to gratify your own first part of this work, which is chifley historical, and enter upon the second part, which some may term supernatural; some, spiritual; some, a superstitious legend; but which I consider as purely philosophical. Shortly after the events recorded in the last chapter, a Professorship, in the University from whence I graduated, having been tendered mc, I concluded to accept.

I did this for two reasons; first, because I felt a repugnance at the thought of returning to my ancestral estate, and having no particular aim in life, I really felt grateful for any employment which would occupy my mind; secondly, both duty and inclination led me to remain near the mother and sister of Conrad, whom I had discovered to be my relatives. True, I was a Wydorf, and the last of the Barons; yet I was also a lineal descendent from the Herders; but instead of cherishing the animosity of my fathers, I was prouder of the little Herder blood in my veins, than I should have been as a pure Wydorf, with the whole of Germany at my feet.

The letters of Frederick occasioned the good doctor some anxiety, but when he remembered that Baron von Ault had been in the neighborhood for several days, arranging the affairs of his son-that he had met and conversed with him without being rehad penetrated the disguise, as the secret probably died with him, the doctor felt com-

In his character of "French surgeen," he had acquired a great celebrity, so much so that a Professorship was tendered him from the University, at the same time with myself. After some deliberation he decided to abandon the life and character of a hermit, accept the place of Professor of Anatomy and Physiology, and make the cottage his future abode. To me this was doubly gratifying; it not only afforded me an opportunity of passing much of my time in his society, which had become almost indispensable to my happiness, but there no longer existed any impropriety to my becoming a permanent resident at the cottage. My duties as Professor of Natural Philosophy and Chemistry would not require more than six hours in each day, and as even less of the doctor's time would be employed at the University, we should have ample leisure for study at home, conversation, and such amusements as might lighten the cares of madamo von Wieser, and her daughter.

The doctor proposed sending the mysterious pocket-book to Baron von Ault, and burning the two letters. To this last proposition, Minnie entered an earnest objection, and although she could give no reason therefor, she felt that the letters should be preserved. Time soon proved the value of her presentiment, for I was arrested at the instance of Baron von Ault on charge of murdoring his son. Had there been a suspicion that such a step would be taken, the doctor assured me that he should have procured the taking of Conrad's deposition, and although he thought of it, yet so improbable seemed the prospect of my arrest, he did not deem it of sufficient importance to justify the anxiety and distress it might occasion him. Had I been an obscure person, with neither wealth nor influence at my command. [ might have lain in jail for months, or even years, before being brought to trial. But situated as I was, I experienced but little difficulty in securing a speedy trial. The doctor was my principal witness, and although not strictly admissable to our German courts, he was allowed to testify to the statement of Conrad, made after an assurance that he could not survive. This, with Frederick's letter to Blixen, proved to be in his own hand-writing, so clearly exonerated me from all suspicion of murder, that the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty," without leaving their seats. About the time of this dreadful tragedy, it was a source of some excitement at the University, and throughout the surrounding neighborhood, but long before my arrest it had ceased to be a subject for conversation. The facts were generally understood, and I had become more an object of sympath

1.47

I was about to make some enquiries in reference to some points in this remarkable history, but was prevented by the return of madame von Wieser and her daughter. Conversation was resumed upgeneral topics; shortly afterwards madame von Wieser enquired of her brother if he had informed me of the trouble they had formerly experienced on account of Gerbert Bridolf. Upon his answering in the negative, she turned to me and said :

"In spite of the seclusion in which we have lived for ten years past, Gerbert Bridolf having probably learned something about us from his uncle, now a refugee from justice, made bold to visit often at the cottage, notwithstanding the cold reception he was sure to meet, and the care that was taken that he should not be invited to call again. At first his visits were only irksome ; then they became annoying; and finally, his attentions to Minnie almost amounted to persecution.

"For a time Conrad knew nothing of Gerbert's visits, which were always made during his absence. But the time at length arrived when we could bear it no longer. I informed' Conrad of the unhappiness it occasioned Minnie, and requested him to notify Gerbert that his visits were not desired at the cottage. Instead of doing this however, Conrad determined to conceal himself at the house for a few evenings, instead of remaining at the University as was usual, and await the appearance of Gerbert.

"On the evening of the second day,

In this manner it traversed the room, case behind some books, and had not returned, approached the book-case and thought of it since.

making a noise somewhat similar to that This explanation being satisfactory, the which a cat makes with her claws when servants were dismissed without being scratching upon wood, ascended the wall made aware that a still greater mystery to the books. Here it paused for a moremained unsolved. ment, and then the scratching was renew-

"And now," continued the doctor, as soon as the servants had retired, "let us see what our increased astonishment, we distinctly those letters contain."

"But those letters are not directed to any ward, I removed the books and ciscovered of us," suggested his sister, "and under the there a pocket book, which, without the circumstances, would it be proper for us to contact of any visible agent, was being vi- read them ?"

> "Under the circumstances," replied the doctor, "I think it would."

> He then took the letters from my hand and read them, as follows :----

> -Ост. 14th, 1814. "Give me joy, my dear Blixen, for I am upon the very eve of success. To-morrow witnesses the death of all my enemies. You will remember in my last I spoke of Conrad and the Baron-their long friendship, the fiery temper of the latter, and his skill in the use of the sword and pistol. It would profit me nothing to have Gerbert out of the way, as long as Conrad lived; and even Conrad's death would avail me nothing, as long as this wild Baron survived him.

"This Baron von Wydorf is a perfect devil. He hates every body in the college except Conrad. On more than one occasion this 'Old Gunpowder,' as we call the Baron, has called out and shot the studoctor appeared calm, but his countenance | dents for having spoken sneeringly of his particular friend. Thus you see, I should stand but little chance for my life, even if I killed Conrad, for 'Old Gunpowder' would never rest until he had ble symptoms of alarm, while Minnie stood either shot or run me through. clinging to her mother, apparently half

"After revolving the matter over, and wondering what plan to adopt in order to get safe possmodically agitated, trembling and sudden-<sup>1</sup> ession of my little angel, the pretty Minnie, I con-feelings, and at the same time do me a particular favor, the nature of which I will more fully explain hereafter. I shall expect you here within four days at the farthest. Your dutiful FRED."

The reading of the letters gave us an entirely new subject for conversation, and amid its discussion we for a time forgot the apparently supernatural means which had been employed to call our attention to the pocketbook.

Madame von Wieser informed me that Conrad received a note the evening before our fatal meeting, which he supposed be of little importance, and thrusting it into his pocket, had entirely forgotten it until after after he was brought home the next morning. At his request she then found it, and upon its perusal it was found to be anonymous, yet hinting very plainly at the baseness of our two seconds, and warning him not to allow either of them to come between him and myself, assuring Conrad that the writer was well informed upon the subject, and that nothing but prudential reasons, relating entirely to other matters, prevented him from signing his true name.

Here then was a full solution of the strange conduct of Frederick and Gerbert, and as the evening was well advanced, with friendly adieus we separated for the night.

CHAPTER X.

CONCLUSION OF. PART I.

As this narrative has now reached that period in my life when strange sounds, sights and visitations were of almost daily occur- I han blame.

ТНЕ IRITUAL S P AGE

conscience did not. Even if Conrad had escaped with his life, in my then state of mind, the recollection of having killed Gerbert and Frederick would have been a never failing source of regret. But Conradmy best-my only friend-whenever 1 suffered my mind to dwell apon the less of his young and noble life, I felt such a sickening sensation about my heart, that it seemed weighing me down to earth.

I am an old-man-I have outlived friends, title, riches and hope-outlived everything calculated to make life an enjoyment, and now I only await the summons from the angel of death, to rejoin the loved ones of life in their spirit home; yet even at this distant day, as I recall the dark era of my life. my old heart grows young again, and I feel the tears flowing through their (well worn channels upon my wrinkled face, Thank pleasure. So intense was the degree of curi-God for tears! The man or woman who cannot weep, is either greatly to be pitied, or more greatly to be feared.

END OF PART FIRST.

THE INVISIBLE ASSASSINS.

(Concluded.)

Although the kind of twilight, or rather "darkness visible," that prevailed in the sanc- in one of the dungeous of the Bastile, where tum they had just entered did not allow Wide- she was strictly watched, vainly ruminating on awake to distinguish the details of the place, some means of escaping the doom that inevistill he guessed from the soft carpet that dead- | tably awaited her, when one evening the govened the sound of his feet, and the thickness ernor entered her cell, followed by a military of the double curtains concealing the windows, and from various mirror accessories, that he in black, whom she at once recognized as a was in her ladyship's boudoir, a surmise that was confirmed on her inviting him to sit down | long familiarity with scenes of bloodshed had by her side on the downy cushions of a wellwadded sofa.

completely forgotten the part he was to play, come. She was, however, led off by the man that he seemed about to behave less like a po- in black, and after crossing the draw-bridge, lice agent than a gallant, gay Lothario, when was helped into the coach by her silent comthe shrill blast of a whistle from without start- panion, who took his seat beside her. The led the amorous pair from their billing and carriage then crossed through Paris, went cooing. The well known signal produced up- along the quays, reached the Champ Elysees, on our hero the effect of the magic shield on and left town in the direction of Chaillot, and Rinaldo, in Armida's tales, and he sprang to rolled along the road to Versailles. his feet as if impelled by an electric shock.

voice, "Whoever you may be, whether a spy or traitor-you shall not stir from hence."

awake had thought of detaining her.

not a moment to lose to save his life, he flew | stopped, at being handed out by a gentlemen to the window and opened the shutters when, to his despair, an iron grating precluded all and led her through a suit of sumptuous aparthope of escape by that issue. He rushes towards the tapestried curtain; but he soon | ted with gilt mouldings, which was immediate-

Yet if public opinion justified me, my own than alive, and took the culprits into custody. That same evening, Lecoq and his son waited on M. de la Reynie, to whom the former made a respectful bow, saying-"Please your excellency, I have the honor to present to you a man to whom you owe the two hundred louis."

"How so ?"

"Because to him is due the capture of the band of assassins who have decimated the youth of Paris," replied the proud father.

Somewhat later in the evening, M. de Reynie went to Versailles, where he was complimented by his majesty on this brilliant achievement. Nor did the lieutenant of police neglect this occasion of recommending Lecoq and his son to his majesty, who bestowed upon them solid marks of royal munificence.

Lady Guilford's associates were soon condemned and executed; but her ladyship being considered an ordinary criminal, had been placed in the Bastile to await his majesty's osity this adventuress, as the chief and mainspring of the assassin's, had awakened in the mind of Louis XIV and his court, that an inquest was set on foot, with a view to raise the veil that shrouded her former life. For nobody doubted but what the title of Lady Guilford was a mere assumption, and that the old crone's story was an artfully concocted romance.

Lady Guilford had vegetated but a few days escort, and attended by an individual dressed police officer. The wretched woman, whose not rendered her proof against the natural instinct of self-preservation, was now ready to By this time the imprudent youth had so faint at the conviction that her last hour had Whither was she going ? What could be "What is the matter ?" asked Lady Guilford, the meaning of such a journey in the middle no less uneasy than himself. Then, seeing of the night, in company with this silent comhim rush to the window, and endeavoring to panion in sable clothes? These were so many remove the curtains, she added, in a husky enigmas she vainly strove to solve. However, at the end of a couple of hours after leaving the Bastile, the adventuress, who expected she So saying, she had vanished before Wide- was being led to execution, or at best, to some prison where she would be shut up for life, Being now thoroughly convinced there was was pleasantly surprised, when the carriage usher, who showed her up a grand staircase, ments, till they reached a door richly ornamenfound that a sliding door, concealed in the ly thrown open to admit her. She now enter-mysteries of the accursed den of murderers.

ordinary way-above all, when the monster of wickedness happens to belong to the fair sex. hear that the description of Lady Guilford's heinous crimes and machinations awakened a to behold so strange and superlatively depraved creature. Foremost among these were the Chevalier de Lorraine and the Marquis D'Effiat; and the former being in high favor with to enter into their scheme. By dint of gold | morning. they procured a blank lettre de cachet, and bribed a police officer to carry the governor of the Basile, to whom they had written an order on the blank sheet, to deliver up Lady Guilford, "who was to be transferred to Pignerol," according to these mock directions. A friend of the Chevalier, the Marquis de la Fane, had lent his apartments at the palace of Versailles

Although certain of the indentity of the persons who accosted her, Lady Guilford affected not to recognize them, and brought the whole artillery of her wit and fascinations into the field in order to gain over such powerful allies to her cause. In less than an hour were so completely bewitched, that they resist- selves. ed most energetically monsieur's wish to send her back to the Bastile with an apology to the governor. The two gay gallants vowed that the lives of a few low-born fellows were not worth a single hair on the head of so delicious a creature, and that they would consent to nothing short of assisting Lady Guilford to reach the frontier.

Monsieur having already began to apprehend that this bold freak might displease his washing his hands of the whole concern by leaving the gentlemen to do as they pleased. The conversation was held in whispers, in the embrasure of a window, but not a word of it escaped her ladyship's quick ear.

No sooner had monsieur left the room, than a delicate supper was served up, during which our adventuress played her cards so cleverly as to give each of her admirers cause to fancy that he was the happy man, while she took care to fill their glasses so frequently, that towards the end of the repast they were intoxicated with wine no less than with the fascinations.

main cool. Towards midnight she took a can- his precipitancy, fearing that in less than an dle, and whispering a tender assignation into hour, the news of what had taken place would the ear of each cavalier, while she pointed to be known all over the neighborhood, where the door of a bed-room she had understood the bands of assassins had, no doubt, a numhad been prepared for her, she slipped into an | ber of spies, and that he had thus furnished adjoining sitting-room, on some slight pretext, them the means of escaping a second time,during which interval the two intoxicated Still, as Paris is a large place, there was a beaux had stumbled into the chamber, each chance that the news might not transpire in all wondering why the other persisted in intruding quarters of the town. Besides, nobody would himself, when her ladyship glided back, shut stir from the house, and the police agreed to the door upon them, locked them in, and havfurnish him with a detachment of archers, ing made a rope of the table-cloth and napkins which he posted in the lower room, where they in no time, she fastened it to the balcony, and awaited midnight in silence. let herself down into the garden. Once, free, At the moment agreed upon, there was heard she scaled the wall of the park, and with bleeda tampering of feet in the street, and then the ing hands and torn garments, hastened towards footsteps stopped beneath the shutters of the Paris. lower rooms of the house. Five raps were By the next day, Lady Guilford was safely now heard against the window. The new lodged in the house of one of the band of asscomers could not be introduced that way, on assins who had escaped the argus-eyes of the account of the iron bars that secured the winpolice, and resumed her adventurous career; dows, but the two robbers that had been smugonly she deemed it prudent to renounce the gled in hy means of the chest, were to have dangerous traffic of heads and bodies, and stick opened the door, after taking possession of the to simple robbery, only occasionally attended house. Sure enough the door was opened, by murder. but not very wide, so that the person who act-The one all-absorbing passion that now took | ed as porter was not seer to be a strange face. possession of Lady Guilford was to take re-The new comers were counted, and after the venge on Wide-awake. The young scapegrace fifth, who was a woman, had entered, the door had found favor in her eyes in the first instance, was shut with a loud crash. A whistle gave and she could not forgive herself for having the signal, when torches and lanterns speedily pitied him; she might have him killed at once lit up the hall, and, at the sight of thirty archwithout seeing him again, instead of coming ers, the bandits let fall their weapons. They down into the dungeon, secretly hoping he were at once seized and bound, while Widemight sue for mercy, when she ordered him to awake approached the woman, and lifting up the hood that concealed her features, beheld be slain. Young Lecoq, having become enriched by not Lady Guilford, but a countenance completehis father's influence and the king's generosity, |ly unknown to him. Wide-awake was excessively surprised. On led a very pleasant life in the intervals of his arduous vocation. Apparently exempt from the following morning, however, he received a the usual passions of his age, this young man's letter brought to him by a messenger, who only vulnerable point was the passion of all said it had been given to him by a veiled lady. others most generally to youth-namely, avar- The letter ran thus : "Tremble! for one of us shall perish; Yesice. One day a stranger came to his house, and after a somewhat mysterious preamble, terday I stood in front of your house, when inquired whether it would be agrecable to him | impatience of my two messengers baffled my to surprise some smugglers, who were bring- plans. The new chief of my band prefers a whose cries for help, deadened by the thick- ing Brussels lace and other prohibited goods ness of the walls, had never been heard from into France; in which case, he could furnish without,-which may explain the fact of the him the means of seizing on the contraband police having hitherto failed to penetrate the articles. Wide-awake eagerly accepted, and ageed to give a certain sum, in return for There is a strange perversity in the human which he would be designated to the smugheart, that leads many persons to take a deep- glers as a safe agent, at whose house they er interest in a criminal whose enormities might deposit their bales and chests of prohibshock and startle a whole nation, than in mere ited goods. Wide-awake was to retain the vulgar criminals who rob and murder in the lion's share for himself, and deliver in the rest to the revenue officers.

About a week after the bargain was conclu. The reader will therefore not be surprised to ded, a carrier brought a couple of enormous oaken chests, each having seven or eight holes drilled in their sides, which struck Wide-awake strong desire in some of his majesty's listeners as a strange circumstance, though he said nothing, and had them deposited in a large room on the ground floor. The carrier then observed he had left the keys by mistake at the inn at which he had slept the night before, the king's brother, soon persuaded monsieur | but promised to bring them back the next

No sooner was the man gone, than Wide. awake declined accompanying his father, who was going out with a friend, on the plea of indisposition; having taken the precaution, however, to retain as a companion a young man of his own age, of daring character, and on whom he could thoroughly rely. Having armed themselves with pistols, the two friends for the occasion, and it was into his drawing came back very softly, and lay in wait near the room that her ladyship had been ushered in- lower room, the door of which had been left oven.

The elder Lecoq having left the house, there followed an interval of complete silence; and Wide-awake's friend was beginning to think it was nonsense to watch any longer, when a slight noise was heard in the room where stood the two chests, and on further investigation it both M. de Lorraine and the Marquis D'Effiat turned out to proceed from the chests them-· .

"I say, Jean, are you there?" cried a scarcely audible voice.

"Yes- and we seem to be the masters of the house; so suppose we get out of these infernal boxes, and stretch our legs till the folks return home ?"

"Do you think they suspect anything ?" said the first speaker.

"Not a bit; young Locoq, Wide-awake as he may be, is eaten up with his love of self.royal brother, now took the opportunity of My lady was quite right there. So only let us wait till midnight, when we shall hear five taps out on the shutter, and then let her take her revenge by draining the last drop of the wretch's blood."

"Fire !" cried Wide-awake, letting off a couple of shots in the direction whence proceeded the voices, while his companion imitated his example. Then bringing out a lighted lamp they had concealed in a cupboard, and looking into the room, they perceived the two robbers lying each in a chest, one dead, and the other wounded in the thigh.

The sound of the pistol-shots alarmed the neighbors, and the night patrol soon made Meanwhile the syren had taken care to re- their appearance. Wide-awake now regretted unworthy rival to myself, and I chose to punish them both together. I did not warn them of the snare into which our vanguard had fallen, and I allowed them to start on the expedition, well knowing that they would fall a prey to your machinations and those of the police. I have succeeded. Let them pay the penalty of having braved me! You see I know how to take revenge on those who tempt my displeasure. Your turn will come next, you young braggadocio, who thought yourself secure from my blows, and have only drawn them down all the more certainly on your devoted head."

З

The letter has been preserved in the archives of the police, but Lady Guilford's threats were never carried into execution. After this last adventure, the police lost sight of her, and the true history of this modern Margaret of Burgundy has remained, forever, a sealed chapter in the annals of crime.

This and That.

A letter from an American missionary at Ooroomiah, Persia, says they are at present (June *1) suffering there a greater famine than has been known within the last century, but the growing crops promise some relief. In one case a Mussulman sold hischildren in the Bazaar to preserve them from starvation.

A little tool has been invented for threading a needle. It is made with two blades, which holds the needle with its eye opposite a little funnel-shaped opening, into which it is perfectly easy for a person of weak sight to pass the thread, and the thread inevitably passes through the eye.

A man and a boy who had started from Pottsville, Pa., for Pike's Peak, were recently found at one of the distant unoccupied stations on the plains, in a frightful condition. They had been subsisting on grasshoppers, young shoots of corn, and a buffalo head, several days, and were in the last stages of delirium and starvation.

On Saturday morning, about 1 o'clock, William H. Smith, Phillip Fitzsimmons and John Cole, all clerks in one drug store in New York, were passing down Broadway, when they were assailed by a party of "roughs." Smith was struck several heavy blows on the head by one James Wilson, when he drew a pistol and shot his assailant in the abdomen, inflicting, it is feared, a mortal wound.

The Aroostook Pioneer says that at the outlet of Alder Brook Lake, on Township 11, Range 3, was discovered the recent labors of a family of beavers. These animals are so rare in Maine that this discovery is a matter worthy of note.

thickness of the wall, had closed upon him the doir.

terror on finding himself thus caught in a snare. prison. A last and only hope remained. He seized his whistle and drew from it one long, shrill and piercing blast, that sounded like the agonized scream of some dying victim. Then came a sound of footsteps, and a clanking of swords; and he listened in breathless suspense. wondering whether it were deliverers or murderers. At this crisis, the light, which shone in through the open window, showed him a door, which seemed evidently to belong to a cupboard. Thinking he might conceal himself in it, if it were only to gain a few moments, he broke open the lock, with his dagger, and opened the door, when lo! he was scared by the ghastly sight of a number of heads in silver dishes, arranged along the shelves! Faint with horror, he felt his knees give way beneath him, and had not strength left to draw out his pistols, when a pannel in the wall opened, and four bandits entered, followed by the old crone and the treacherous Lady Guilford.

Poor Wide-awake was seized, manacled, and and on recovering from his momentary stupor, he found himself chained to the wall of an under-ground dyngeon, and Lady Guilford stood before him, no longer the ever-smiling syren of an enchanted garden, but stern as an avenging Nemis, and accompanied by an armed satelite, to whom she pointed out the prisoner, saying, "His doom is sealed !"

noise above had nearly drowned her words,- ed a splendid sitting-room, where burned a moment he had entered the treacherous bou- cheerful fire in a vast chimney, and which was furnished with a degree of luxury that preclu-The unfortunate young man was seized with ded the possibility of its belonging to a State

> Lady Guilford thought she must be dreaming. Scarcely had the gentleman usher bid her take a seat by the fireside, when in walked three personages, dressed very simply,-two of them were disguised as monks,-but evidently belonging to the court; indeed, at the first glance, she recognized in one of them the Chevalier de Louraine, in another the Marquis D'Effiat, and in the third, monsieur, the king's own brother. How and why she was introduced into the presence of a prince of the blood royal, must now be briefly explained.

The romantic adventures of young Wideawake had been related one evening by the king to a private circle at Madame de Montespan's, when some one inquired what could be the motives of the blood-thirsty heroine to allure so many young men to destruction? His majesty replied, that all that had hitherto been elicited from the strictest researches amounted to these few facts : that her ladyship (if such indeed she might be styled) was affiliated to a band of smugglers, who undertook to furnish dragged away; and in another moment the German scientific men with the heads requiground seemed to give way beneath his feet, site for the study of a mysterious science, that was just struggling into notice, beyond the Rhine. The bodies were disposed of to medical students for the purpose of dissection .----The unhappy victims to this hideous trafficto which the malefactors, of course, added the robbery of any valuable articles found on the bodies-were decoyed into this modern Tower of Nesle by the officious advances of the old But while she was speaking, a thundering | duenna, and the allurements of Lady Guilford. Once within the meshes of this dangerous syr-The doors had been shivered to splinters, the en, they were irretrievably lost; her blandishdow-bars wrenched off, Lecoq and his es- ments were the prelude to a secret and inglohad penetrated into the citidel, and they rious death, on which not even pity attended ed in and delivered the youth, more dead to soothe the dying agony of the victims,

The St. Paul Times says the crops of every sort in Minnesota this year are extraordinary in quantity and sound in quality. It says there will be a surplus of more than a million bushels of potatoes.

The Albany Journal states that by the recent decease of the Dean of Ripon, in England, the Hon. John Q. Wilson, of that city, becomes the last survivor of the party of cabin passengers who accompanied . Robert Fulton in his first steamboat journey from New York to Albany.

The plate of the first engraving of the Declaration of Independence has recently been discovered and restored, and the partics possessing it will shortly publish copies in the form in which it first appeared.

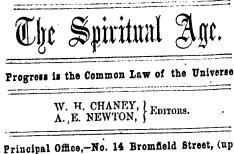

A penny was deposited in the corner stone of a church at Jackson, Mich., last week, that had been taken from the cornor stone of a temple in Rome, built during the reign of the first Cæsar.

NARROW, CUURCH .-- A correspondent informs us that he is about to establish a new religious sect, to be called the "You-and-I tarians," consisting of himself and next friend,-[Saturday Press.

Different sounds will travel with different velocity-a call to dinner will run over a ten acre lot in a minute and a half, while a summons to work will take from five to ten minutes.

Say nothing respecting yourself, either good bad or indifferent ; nothing good, for that is vanity; nothing bad, for that is affectation ; nothing indifferent, for that is silly.

THE AGE. SPIRIT U $\mathbf{L}$ A

 $\mathcal{P}$

4

stairs,) Boston, Mass. W. H. CHANEY, BUSINESS AGENT. New York Office. - At Ross & Tousey's, 121 Nassau Street. Chicago Office. - No. 81 Dearborn St., opposite the Post Office. MONALLY & Co., AGENTS.

SATURDAY, OCT. 8, 1859.

Our readers will please notice that the Agency of S. Albro, at Buffalo, N. Y., has been discontinued. Persons who may have contemplated subscribing, or renewing their subscriptions through him, are now requested to send directly to us in Bosn5 3t. ton.

THE BROAD CHURCH.

The noble utterance which the R ev.Dr. Bellows gave to the world so recently, in his "Suspense of Faith," has, as we predicted it would, stirred the religious elements to their greatest depths. That heroic, prophetic statement was the first heavy thunder-peal which issued from the threatening clouds which had begun to lower over the religious world, and from which only a gloomy stillness, occasionally broken by dismal moanings and mutterings, portended the fierceness and destructive power of the storm, when it should finally burst.

In the name of the Church of the Future, dimly, though really revealed to his spiritual vision, we thank Dr. Bellows for the noble work he has dared to inaugurate in obedience to his carnest convictions and aspirations. In the name of the doubting, toiling, struggling, half-despairing millions, ever repeating that agonizing cry-"What shall I do to be saved ?" we thank him for pointing out the true direction in which Divine Wisdom is about to manifest itself. We thank him for concentrating the protest of the "weary, unchurched humanity" of the age, and thundering it into the ears of those gigantic. cvergrown organizations which now "so bestride this narrow world," but from which the vital, energizing, Christian life has departed, never to return. We thank him even for propounding questions which he could not answer-for stating problems which he could not solve-for compreman spake." hending the necessity of a work he dared not, and could not if he dared, undertake. Neither is the measure of our gratitude at all stinted because the Doctor has gone cut of his way, for a second time, to strike a blow at Spiritualism. It is not at all surprising that a cause whose chief instruments, exponents and followers belonged originally, if indeed, they do not even now exclusively, outside of the very select, wealthy, patrician, intellectual and comparitively few who constitute modern Unitarianism, should be looked upon with considerable disfavor by a denomination of picked Christians, and withal very good members of Society. Of course, no"terms" could or would be made with a body whose expounders had not acquired their mental and religious pabulum in the classie shades of "Old Harvard," but ministered to the spiritual wants and needs of the "popular herd," as freely as to the scholar, the savan, or the millionaire. We are all creatures of education, and with all his evident learning, piety, sincerity, and real spiritual culture, the good Doctor's conservatism cannot help regarding these many teachers who are ever more and more crowding into the ranks of Spiritualism, as very irregular, unauthorized and uncanonical members of the Divine priesthood, to be given no countenance whatever in the Broad Church whereof the Doctor and his zealous and able colaborers have prophesied the establishment. We cannot find it in our heart to utter one unkind, severe word in this connection. So sure are we that Dr. Bellows | ity to the world at large. And if, indeed, | 1y philanthropic teachings he had received is sincere and earnest-so broad, catholic 🐂 be not the victim of a horrible delusicn from his Muster, and the inspiration of which claims. (Matt., XXIV 24.)

slight spice of bigotry and pride with ery, which must in the end unsettle our faith distant day, be regarded by him with deep irradiate and pervade our whole being. regret and mortification.

We are not of that number who do not feel themselves "so weak as to need the arms of a Church to hold them up, nor its head to feed them." We "prefer to hold on to nature's law," but also feel that we cannot "stand by our own strength." Oh ! we do so feel the need of the Church Universalthe real New Jerusalem, the way to whose very gates Christ hath led us-the Church of the Future whose pillars Divine Wisdom is even now preparing to plant deeply and firmly on earth, through this new Dispensation ! If there be a God in human history -if there be a God who has manifested Himself in the Past as well as in the Present-if we are to regard, as we should, the past history of the human race as the great plan of our Father for the education and development of His children-then are we again to see a reorganization and reconstitution of His visible Church on earth, into whose protecting arms we shall finally fall; and there with our weary head pillowed on the bosom of the Infinite, be reconciled forevermore to the Parent who yearns to clasp every repentant, returning prodigal in His all-embracing, all-shielding arms. Such a Church, and such alone, can solve once and forever, the mighty problems which are heaving and rocking and breaking up the foundations of Society and Church and State. In and through such a Church can only be wrought out the solution to the ever-recurring puzzle of the blending of absolute Divine Authority with the absolute Freedom of the Individual; of a harmonious union of Selfishness and Benevolence, ultimating in the establishment of Divine, Religious and Social order upon the earth. Such a Church must needs be possessed of a Visible, Infallible Head, a second Incarnation of the Christ-principle, through whom the Divine Wisdom shall manifest itself so clearly and unmistakably that every truth of our faith as unfolded in its various phenomenal phases)-must believe and accept and love Him as the early Apostles ac-

. A second s The second sec and spiritually elevated are most of his | --- if the last eight years of our life have views--that we can freely overlook the not been made the sport of a horrible mockwhich his recent utterances are tinged .--- in God's omnipotence and beneficonce, a few And we can do this all the more readily months more will bear us out in the faith we because we are so confident that these lit- cherisb, in the hopes we entertain, and the tle, unworthy ebullitions will, at no very peace and joy and burning enthusiasm which

Therefore, we clearly understand why Dr. Bellows cannot and would not attempt to lay the foundations of the "Broad Church." His spiritual intuition tells him convincingly that such a Church must come, and it tells him just as plainly that the work is not for him or his. Other and better instruments are entrusted with this work-instruments who have lived out by Divine direction the great problems of our Humanity in their own experience, and only thus can know the wants and needs of that Humanity.

THE TEST OF INSPIRATION.

SPIRITUALISM IN RELIGION-NO. XXIV.

But an important practical question yet remains to be considered. How shall we determine the value of inspired communications? How distinguish between the false and the true ?-between that which is Divine and authoritative, and that which is of finite, fallible or delusive crigin?

If the Philosophy of Inspiration has been correctly set forth in the preceding articles -and who will venture to question the main positions therein taken ?---then the following conclusions are inevitable:

1. Nothing is true or authoritative merely because it is written or spoken by a person who is sometimes inspired. All intelligent believers in Bible inspiration will probably agree with the learned Dr. Kitto in the following :

"The prophet was not always in a state of inspiration. or infallible in all his words and conduct. We may trace error in the merely human conduct and speech of most of the prophets. It was only when they received special intimations of the Divine will, and felt that they were authorized to speak in the name of the Lord, that they claimed to be; or were ever deemed to be, inspired."-Kuto on Prophecy.

2. Neither can any teaching be infallibly and plenarily true, merely because spoken or written under an inspiring influence .--true Spiritualist-no matter whether calling All modern observation and experience show himself by this technical name or not, (for | that the utterances of inspired persons are there are thousands who are with us and of | limited by their individual capacities and us who yet cannot recognize the beauty and | degree of culture; and are subject to modification from their own prejudices and mental and moral states. It requires an expanded mind to either conceive or express, cepted and loved Him "who spake as never | in its fullness, a great truth. Niagara cannot be forced through an inch hose-pipe; no more can the thoughts of an archangel or the conceptions of a Deity be fully uttered through even the most capacious human organism, much less through narrow and uncultivated minds. The best that can be expected is a meagre and more or less distorted expression. That the utterances of ancient prophets and inspired writers were subject to individual limitations and modifications, is evident from the personal peculiarities which mark their several productions .---Every cultivated reader sees, even through the disguise of our common translations, the differences of style between Paul and James, John and Luke, Isaiah and Moses. Some Bible-writers wrote in prose, some in poetry; some with lingual accuracy and rhetorical eloquence,-others fulling into grammatical blunders and unclassical provincialisms. No man in his senses can ascribe these details of expression to the immediate and designed dictation of the Infinite Mind,-they belong to the finite instrument. And if it were possible for Divine inspiration to communicate all truth through one mind as well as another, or through any one mind, according to the popular notion, why should more than forty difple," which of old thrilled the hearts of the ferent ones be employed? And why was not all necessary truth revealed to man at the on-When this can be safely and properly set of his career, instead of being parcelled done-when there can be no uncertainty in out in driblets through four thousand years The influence of prejudice or early iner upon His chosen instrument beyond dis- struction, on inspired minds, is illustrated in pute and denial, we have the assurance that the case of Peter. This inspired apostle, these columns shall herald the glorious real- notwithstanding the unsectarian and broad-the was himself a recipient, was not convinced that "God was no respecter of persons," and that Gentiles as well as Jews could be ancient or modern, is not to be determined saved, until eight or ten years after the ascension of Jesus,-and then only by a special vision and revelation. (See Acts. x.) the true test-the final standard of ap-Besides all this, persons who write or | peal? speak under inspirational influence, especially when in full possession of their own faculties -as is the case in the highest inspirational condition-are liable to interpolate, to some extent, their own thoughts into the message. Few, if any, are able to draw the line between what is of themselves, and what is from beyond themselves. They are, moreover, liable to be influenced by the action of minds around them in the bodysince it is found that a strongly positive its own thoughts to some extent into the mind of a receptive and susceptible person. 3. Nor can any communication be regarded as infallible, even though really and unmistakably inspired from the spirit-world : for the plain reason that inspiration may come from a great variety of sources-from any mind, wise or unwise, angelic or demoniac, that can obtain access to us and establish the conditions of rapport.

4. Neither is any inspired message infallible and authoritative, merely /because the prophet or medium speaks "in the name of the Lord," or claims to be inspired directly from Deity. False prophets and deceiving spirits, as well as fanatics and well-meaning enthusiasts, in all ages, have made this claim. In our own day, there are several who claim to be each, the sole mouth-piece of Jehovah on this planet. Usually this claim is attended by such exhibitions of egotism, ignorance, fanaticism and folly, if not downright insanity, that prophets of this class command little respect in our day. Let us then call attention to an ancient example, whose claims have been and still are very widely respected. Moses, some three | with them ! thousand years ago, gave the Hebrews a code of laws "in the name of the Lord"that is, claiming it to be of direct dictation from Jehovah himself. That code contains, among other statutes, doubtless for the most part wisely adapted to their | mouth convention, as follows : condition, the law of retaliation-"an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth"-"love adopt this Declaration] nor can it do any such your neighbor but have your enemy,"--and others equally objectionable. Jesus, fourteen hundred years later, speaks of these Mosaic statutes as the words of "them of old time," which he boldly repudiated, proclaiming in their stead the higher law of universal love and forgive ness as the will of THE FATHER. It would seem that either Moses was mistaken as to the source of his inspiration. or his "Jehovah" was not the same being with "the Father" taught by Jesus, or He had undergone an astonishing moral change during the intervening centuries. 5. Neither do miracles establish the truth or infallibility of accompanying words of inspiration. Miracles-from the Latin word miror, to wonder or admireare merely wonderful things. Any unusual demonstration of power or skill, especially from the unseen world, is a wonder, until we have become accustomed to it .-And any spiritual beings, good or bad, who know how and can obtain the right conditions, can perform miracles of spiritual power along with their communications; but such works can never make falsehood truth, nor wrong, right. The Egyptian Magi, in Moses' time, according to the record, performed as real, and with one exception as great miracles with the aid of their "enchantments," as did Moses with the aid of Jehovah. (These "enabantments" or incantations were probably the methods, according to the laws of magic. of creating suitable conditions for spirits in rapport with the Magi to operate.)-The miracles, in either case, proved nothing as to the truth of doctrines—nor can they ever. They only showed superiority of power or skill on the one part. So we find Jesus giving special warning against false prophets who should come in his name, and perform "great signs and wonders" (miracles) to substantiate their

It is clear, then, that the value, truth, or authority of any inspired production. by an any such extrinsic test. What, then. remains? Where shall we look for

Do any answer, "the Bible is that standard ?"-They forget that the Bible, if a work of Inspiration, must be first tested itself. Why receive that book blindly and on trust, any more than the Koran, the Shasters, the Zend Avesta, or the productions of modern Inspiration ? Surely, no rational mind can do this. Some means of going behind all books and all claims, is a demand of our rational natures, and one which Deity, if a reasonmind can by force of will sometimes project able Being, cannot have failed to supply. Having thus exhibited the negative side of the argument, we reserve the positive to another article. A. E. N.

> By some strange hocus pocus of the types, the heading of our last serial article became changed from "Inspiration" to "Spiritualism." Doubtless our readers observed the incongruity, and suspected the cause. A.E. N.

CONSISTENCY IS A JEWEL.

The rarity of this attribute is, we regret to perceive, illustrated among Spiritualists as among other people. There is a class of them who prefess a great aversion for "creeds" and "confessions of faith." Especially, if two or more Spiritualists see alike on any given topic, and are disposed to say so, these anti-creedists become greatly exercised with fears of "sectarianism," "authority," ", opery," etc., and cry out for "liberty," "no creeds," "no organizations," and so on. Yet no people seem more fond than these same individuals of setting forth their own creeds, or more auxious that all others should agree

For example, a writer whose wisdom scintillates almost weekly from the pages of one of our Spiritualistic contemporaries, inveighs earnestly against the Declaration of Sentiments adopted by the Ply-

"I affirm that Spiritualism did not do this, [ie., thing. It was the 'orthodoxy' of the Convention that made this Declaration, which savors so strongly of a religious creed, that it differs but little, if any, from other religious creeds. Spiritualism has no religious creed, nor can it ever have."

We need not stop to comment on the mental obliquity which sees little or no difference between the Plymouth Declaration and popular religious creeds; and which can assert that this Declaration was adopted by the "orthodoxy" of the Convention, when the writer knows (for he was present) that not a single dissentient voice was raised against the almost unanimous "AYE," on the final vote. Such assertions speak for themselves. But the curious part of the matter is that-this same writer is most pertinaciously-in Conferences, in Conventions, and almost weekly, in the papers,-setting forth his own creed, and urging it upon Spiritualists, even ad nauseam,-a creed, too, so intensely sectarian and peculiar to himself, that he finds scarce any body to agree with him ! In the article before us, a column and a half of fine type is occupied in stating and enforcing this singular creed. From it we cite the following extraordinary articles, italicizing a few words : "Spiritualism teaches * * * that knowledge does not come down, but comes up; it is the offspring of spirit-development; that knowledge is developed out of the germ of the soul, and is never received by the soul from without; that the soul holds within itself the germ of all knowledge it shall ever possess. The unfolding of this knowledge is ever under the immediate laws of nature, influenced by the unseen reality of spirit power" ** * "by the action of which, men in science and in ignorance, in wealth and in poverty, in sin and in holiness, in whatever place or condition, are moved on in the upward course of progression independent of any will or effort of their own."

For eight long years it has been our blessed privilege to watch the gradual and steady unfolding of the ideas which we firmly believe are soon to be embodied in the Church of the Future. That unfolding has been accompanied by no erratic, impulsive or premature developments. It has been hid away from the public knowledge, and even Spiritualism itself, as represented by the popular outworkings of the day, knows naught of its inception or its progress .--But the hour when it must take its true position and attitude for the restoration of the Divine in Humanity to its original and proper relations with the Material, the perversion of which relations result in the gigantic evils which are crushing man beneath their weight, is even now at hand.

In the inception and developments of this grand movement has been manifested such consummate wisdom-so harmoniously interwoven are its plans of material and spiritual development-so wonderfully have events been shaped, and so mysteriously do they continue to be shaped, that faith has entered every pore of our being, and we long to be able to announce the "glad tidings of great joy which shall be to all peoshepherds on the plains of Judea.

the matter-when the spirit of the Father of darkness and sin? shall have descended in its quickening pow-

"The excellencies of a virtuous life, when some ned, are only material; in real Spiritualism th are only the vapors of life."

"The clean outside and the virtuous life ar Spiritualism just the same as the habilimen

IRITUAL $A \in E$ . T HE S P

crime, pollution and degradation. * * * Distinctions among men, to Spiritualism, are phantoms. * * * The greatest wickednesses are but the damps of life, that soften and prepare the soul sooner for the influx of spirit truth.'

But enough of such a creed !- though we might cite much more equally repulsive. It is surely to be hoped that no Convention of Spiritualists will ever agree to anything like this as a Declaration of Sentiments. But there is no good reason why Spiritualists should not unitedly declare what they do believe, especially when they disclaim in so doing any desire to bind others, or to limit themselves even by such declaration.

It is deplorable that the Spiritualistic press will lend itself to the inculcation of this aptly styled "A. B. C. Philosophy," which so ignores moral distinctions, and shows an utter obfuscation of mental and spiritual perceptions. Lat us hope that those who now "speak as a Child, and understand as a Child, and think as a Child," will be speedily "progressed" toward manhood, and "put away Child-ish things."

OUR POSITION.

A. E. N.

In relation to the subject of "Political Action," which has been advocated in these columns, and which is eliciting considerable ngitation and discussion among our friends, as we foresaw and meant that it should, we have but very few words to say, in addition to the views already expressed; and even this addition would not have been called for, had it not have been our misfortune to be so widely and generally misunderstood.

One plain-spoken, manly_friend, whose letter shall have place next week, asks-"What do you expect from a Spiritual President? What reforms?"

Plainly, then, we do not expect to elect such a President, in 1860, nor, even, is such a result probable in 1864. Neither do we expect any positive and direct results from any votes cast for such a candidate, in either of those years. Neither do we expect at any future period in the history of this country, to see the inauguration of any powerful and successful party, founded on Spiritualism as a basis, until Spiritualism has so to speck, become crystalized-until its multitude of facts, its wonderful phenomena, its myriad of diverse and hostile theories, and its crude conceptions, have ultimated in a compact, harmonious, sublime, all-embracing movement, which shall demonstrate its full capacity to evolve the philosophy of the true relations existing between Man and his Maker-between the Human and the Divine. And not only that, but shall be able to command the means, material or otherwise, which shall enable such a philosophy to realize in the present, practical, every-day lifeof humanity, that true progression, that real development, of which every human soul is capable, and for which every soul possesses an inextinguishable, intense and unutterable longing. Then shall Commerce, whose myriad messengers are rushing hither and thither over the mighty waters, at the bidding of Selfishness, Avarice and unhallowed Ambition, pour her riches into the great treasury which shall scatter them abroad with divinely-directed hand for the up-lifting of Humanity; then shall Trade with its now corroding and soul-destroying influences be made to minister effectively and powerfully to the better and holier impulses of our natures; then shall Science, illuminated and directed from the all pervading light above, give up the choicest secrets of Wature into our hands, to relieve us from the gross thraldom which our material necessities impose upon us ; then shall each individual member of Society unselfishly labor for the good of the whole, and in such labor find his own exceeding great reward-his highest material and spiritual development -occupying that true relation towards his ing. fellow man and towards his Maker, for which the Divine Architect expressly created him; then shall Politics really and truly become various places that the AGE has not been rethe Science of Government, in which not alone "the greatest good of the greatest number" shall be sought, but the greatest od of all, of each and every one-where ression and corruption shall cease, and and purity be all in all.

Ą

4

ery reason to believe are speedily to be sbown to the world. And, joyously and hopefully holding to this belief, if we could persuade those of our Spiritualist friends who have advanced far enough into the interior realities of their new faith, to throw aside their old political relations, and voluntarily confide in the future it is opening to mankind-if, we say, we could persuade a hundred thousand or more of the millions who are believers in this doctrine, to come together voluntarily in the manner we have proposed, we can see that such a nucleus would greatly aid and assist the progress of the true political organization, the day of whose coming may be delayed, but cannot be prevented altogether.

We are, however, not so visionary, or absurdly impracticable as to attempt to enforce such a step on the part of Spiritualists. If they cannot see it as we do, why then we must discuss the matter thoroughly, and wait till our views harmonize more nearly, when we can alone act harmoniously and effectively. We trust, therefore, that all our good friends will hereafter absolve us of all desire or expectation of establishing a new political party with definite aims and purposes to carry out, while there are hardly two Spiritualists who think alike or would act alike upon the details of its policy. All we would desire, and let us say, frankly, that is more than we expect, now, would be to see a sort of an informal vote of the Spiritualists, showing where their strength is, and consequently the latent power of the cause. This is our position, our whole position and nothing but our position, so help us all good angels!

MEETING IN BOSTON IN BEHALF OF THE INDIAN.

An interest having been recently awakened in this city in behalf of the Indians, principally through the representation of Mr. John Beeson, for some years a resident them in Southern Oregon, after several publie meetings, and the publication of a report by a committee appointed at the Old South Street Chapel, it was resolved by a company of fifty gentlemen representing the different religious bolies of this city, to convene a general mass meeting of the citizens and to prepare measures for a National Convention to be held before Congress shall again assemble, when the subject of Indian wrongs can be fully considered and presented for the action of that body. The hope is that in that case, our representations will designate some place where the scattered tribes in our Western and North Western Territories are threat-

THE PICNIC AT ABINGTON.

We should have noticed this gathering of Spiritualists in our last number, but inadvertently omitted to do so. This "good time" was developed into being by Dr. Gardner, the Napoleon of Spiritual Pienics, and who never fails in any of his enterprises in this line.

Owing to the coolness of the atmosphere, the number assembled did not exceed two thousand, and no doubt there was fully that number present. Arrived at the Grove, the meeting was called to order by Dr. Gardner, and upon his motion D. Dana was chosen chairman. Short and pithy discourses were given through trance speakers throughout the day, but as we took no notes, we cannot even remember the names of the speakers, much less recapitulate the substance of their remarks.

Suffice it to say, all appeared in the highest state of enjoyment, each seeming to say by looks, if not by words, "It is good for me to be here."

These social gatherings, when there is a relaxation of the sterner dignities practised by solemn, deliberative bodies, are just what Spiritualists need in aid of their development. And now that a season is before us when the picnic must be abandoned, why cannot a substitute be found in social gatherings at the houses of each other, or at some large building suitable for convening a goodly numder?

LA PORTE, Ind., Sept. 22, 1859.

EDITORS SPIRITUAL AGE :- Dear sigs : I have disposed of the paintings of the late E. Rogers to the Hon. C. W. Cathcart of this coupty. He gives me $100. He will exhibit them in his Hall for a fee, and all he recieves thus, he agrees to hand over to the widows. I think he is very liberal. In the winter season his hall is crowded with visitors almost every night; so it will, I hope, be a constant revenue for him. Visitors from a distance can rely on a good exhibition at any time: he also has a medium for physical manifestations. On his part, Mr. Cathcart will not receive anything for himself directly, or indirectly; all is free. He keeps his Hall open, lighted, and warmed, free to all by night or by day.

B. M. NEWKIRK. P. S. Spiritual papers please copy a notice of the sale.

177 The Boston Spiritual Age proposes that he Spiritualists shall organize as a political ly : party, nominate Goy. Tallmadge or Judge Edmonds for the Presidency, and make their influence felt in 1860. Upon this the Springfield Republican remarks .- "But what if the spirits should take it into their heads to elect their candidates by ballot-hox stuffing? The most authentic accounts go to show that they could put the requisite number of ballots into the ballot boxes without the knowledge or the consent of the officers of election, and in a way to deny all scrutiny and detection. They may even change the names on the genuine ballots deposited, and so leave us no certainty at all of an honest vote, and that there are enough of them who would have no scruples of conscience as to such a trick, the history of spiritual peaformances for the last dozen years clearly establishes."-[Exchange.

[From the Buffalo Dally Republic, Sept. 16.] THE PHILANTHROPIC CONVEN-TION.

At 10 o'clock this morning, the time announced for the opening of the Philanthropic Convention at St. Janies' Hall, the audience was quite small, the majority being ladies.

The Convention was called to order at 20 minutes after 10 o'clock, by ANDREW JACKSON DAVIS.

He said, as Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, appointed at Utica, he called the Convention to order, and nominated NELSON W. CLARK, of Clarksville, Michigan, as President of the Convention. Mr. CLARE took the Chair.

Mr. GILES B. STEBBINS, of was nominated and elected as Secretary. Mrs. A. J. DAVIS nominated Mrs. BOND, of Leckport, as Assistant Secretary. Carried.

Mr. LYMAN CURTIS, of Utica, was nominated as Treasurer. Carried.

Report of the Business Committee called for.

Mr. C. O. POOLE nominated a Business Committee, and named

ANDREW JACKSON DAVIS,	New York.
Mrs. R. T. HALLOCK,	4.6
" AMY POST,	e f
WILLIAM DENTON,	Cleveland, O.
E. A. MAYNARD.	BUFFALO, N. Y.

E. A. MAYNARD, Moved that a committee of three be appointed to nominate a business committee, and that such committee be named by the Chair. Carried.

The Chair appointed as such committee, C. O. POOLE, STEPHEN S. FOSTER, Dr. HALLOCK.

The committee then retired to nominate a Business Committee.

On the stage at the time were A. J. DAVIS and Lady, HENRY C. WRIGHT, and oth. ers.

The Committee returned, and announced the names of Mrs. MARY L. DAVIS as Chairman, C. O. POOLE, PARKER PILSBU-RY, Mrs. R. T. HALLOCK, and WILLIAM DENTON as the Business Committee.

The names were submitted to the Convention, and accepted unanimously.

The President then read the call of the Convention,

Mrs. ANDREW JACKSON DAVIS, as Chairman of the Business Committee, reported as follows, speaking freely and deliberate-

REPORT OF THE BUSINESS COMMITTEE.

1. The Philanthropic Convention will hold three sessions per day, to wit : commencing at half pist 9 o'clock A. M., 2 o'clock, P. M., and 7 o'clock, evening.

may be such in fact, it is, in my judgment, of the utmost importance that all your speeches and remarks be tempered with mildness and charity towards those who still adhere to their early erroneous teachings.

 $\mathbf{5}$

In order to reform the world we must take mankind first as they are, and lead them along by the tender chords of love step by step, just as the child must first learn his A B C's before he can comprehend the more profound sciences of mathematics and astronomy.

If we attempt to enforce the practical working of our reformatory ideas to act upon society, faster than they are prepared to receive and be benefitted by them, there will be a reaction that will defeat for a time the operation of the noble and elevating principles which we cherish.

That there is vast room and much need of a great reform among the inhabitants of earth, both physically, morally, and theologically, no one will pretend to deny, and that there should be a great diversity of opinions in reference to the best and most speedy means to be used to accomplish that end is not strange, when we consider the great diversity there is in the organism of man, which is the cause of such diversity of minds.

But the benefit to be derived from your efforts will undoubtedly be crowned with the most favorable results, by avoiding all extremes, and temper your deliberations with wisdom and forbearance. With these few remarks allow the to offer a sentiment :

The First Anniversary of the Philanthopic Convention of American Reformers : convened in Baffalo, September 16th, 1859.

May its deliberations be so tempered with Truth, Love, and Wisdom, that all sects, and the universal World of Man will ever revert to its doings as a polar star to lead them onward and upward to a more harmonious and perfect brotherhood.

The Troy Harmonists, consisting of two gentlemen and two ladies, then came forward and sang "Now in smiles we meet again," in a very sweet and effective manner.

It was announced by the President that ANDREW JACKSON DAVIS would deliver the address.

[We have not room this week for the speech of Mr. Davis, which is reported in full by the Republic.]

[We clip the following from a new paper which has just sprung into existence, called the Saturday Reporter; and while we agree with it that Spiritualism is now rapidly upon the increase, notwithstanding the many obstacles which have been thrown in its way, we fail to discover any cause for "alarm."]

MESSRS. EDITORS :--- To what are we tending? What power has taken hold of the people ? Is there a mental epidemic abroad in the land? The rapid and fearful strides which spiritualism has made for the past few years in our midst-mora rapid than any ism that has taken hold of the public mind for years-has led me to ask these questions. Here in Boston-Puritanic, Bostonthe strides of this awful belief have been tr frightful. No less than three or four mer dings are holden in different parts of this cit-Sunday, and all well attended ; and whr /, overy singular and astonishing, as any one may see by attending them, they are support d by men of all classes—professional men, busi all by men or ing men, artisans and mechar aess.men, workwho should be well informe & and by more by more the subject, that the believers in Spirituali an already outnumber any single denomination of Christians in Boston. Indeed, it is even hi ated that they will apply next summer to the ' . Aty Fathers for a licence to hold meetings on the common - on Sundays. Could any thing be mo e proposterous ? Where is the City Father, the & would voie for such a thing? After allit' and has been written against this belief, and the a many exposures that have been made, it is truly alarming that it should grow and flourish to s ach an extent. What is to be done? Will not so me one who has the soul's salvation of his fello, w men at heart take hold of this subject, and try to stay its onward march ? Now; Messrs. Editors, as the ministers of the Gospel appear to be sleeping, while this belief is taking captive the unwary by hundreds, I hope ~ you will feel it a duty you owe to the public to lay before the readers of your spicy little sheet the dangers such a belief must have upon mane looking for, and which we have ev- strive.

ened with extermination, may be safely congregated, and saved from lawless aggressions.

It seems but the dictate of justice that something of this kind should be done. It would be a disgrace to so great a people as we are, having taken the continent from its former owners, to save them no little spot where they may enjoy life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness in common with ourselves.

Something has already been done for some of the tribes, but there are several large tribes and many remnants of tribes who are unprotected and at this time are exposed to the most cruel outrages of lawless men.

There ought to be a good fertile Territory which should be inviolibly sacred to them, and where benevolent christian families, instead of troops, be sustained in sufficient numbers to teach them our arts and sciences. This plan being deemed feasible and just, the following gentlemen were selected as a committee to call a mass meeting, and to make the necessary arrangements : Rev. J. B. Felt, L. L. D.; Messrs. Spear and Boardman, Presidents of the Young Men's Association, and Wendell Phillips, W. H. Pillow, H. K. Perkins, Jr, Secretary of the Meet

Many complaints have been made in cieved. All we can say is, the papers have all been mailed, though somewhat later in the week than we could wish. We see no reason why the AGE should not be sent through the Post Office department, as well as any other paper in the country. It is to be hoped that in future all will recieve their papers in due ese are the results whose inauguration | time, for which end, we shall most earnestly

IT It will be observed in our advertisements that Dr. Geo. Atkins has removed his office to No. 3 Winter street (rooms now occupied by J. V. Mansfield) where he continues to attend to the afflicted. And having' been engaged as a Clairvoyant and Healing Medium for eight years with good success he feels confident of further success in curing | tion and adoption. those who may consult him. He heals by laying on of hands and other remedies.

BOHEMIA under Austrian Despotism. Being an Autobiography by Anthony M. Dignowi-ty, M. D., of San Antonio, Texas. New York, published by the author. 1859. This is an interesting work, upon an interesting subject, by an author of genius and great power. We are indebted to S. T. MUN-SON, 143 Fulton stréet, New York, for a copy of the above, who has it on sale.

REPORT of an extraordinary Church Trial; be ing a detailed account of overwhelming testimony, given by sectarians against all leading reform and reformers; with the summa ry proceedings on the part of the prosecution, aided by several respectable citizens, after an irregular rendition of the verdict.-CONSERVATIVES vs. PROGRESSIVES. Boston published by Bela Marsh, 14 Broomfield street.

The foregoing title explains more fully than anything that we can say, the character of a very interesting pamphlet. See advertisement tion demands. in another column.

2. Each session to open with music, by the Troy Harmonists, to be followed by a speech, limited in time only by the discretion of the speaker, each initial speaker to be engaged by the Business Committee.

3. After the delivery of the opening speech each subsequent speaker will be regulated in time by twenty minutes rule. This will give every speaker an opportunity to be heard once, or more. 4. If the Convention wishes to extend any speaker's time beyond twenty minutes, it may be done through the Chairman.

5. In this Convention man's voice on all questions will be counted equal to woman's.

6. It is proposed to abolish the custom of drafting, and insisting upon the adoption of resolutions -instead whereof all the speakers are requested to crystalize the pith of their leading speech in the form of a resolution, and read it.

7. But all resolutions touching the necessary business of the Couvention, will be offered for no-

8. All sessions will be perfectly free to the publio, except the evening sessions, when the small fee of one dime will be taken at the door to cover the expenses of the Convention.

Adopted, unanimously.

The President then said ;-

FRIENDS OF PROGRESS :---- I respond to your call. s Chairman of this Philanthropic Convention of American Reformers. But yet not withoutdistrusting my capacity to preside over your deliberations with that ability and dignified bearing, that some other members of this body might do. But, nevertheless, with your forbearance and kind regards, I will accept the position with which you have honored me, and shall expect and, no doubt, receive your co-operation in preserving good order which is the first law of God.

With the many marked intelligences which I see depicted in the countenances of this audience, we have the best possible goarantee that your deliberations will be characterized with that unanimity and harmony which the importance of our posi-

We claim to be reformers, and in order that we

MRS. CORA V. L. HATCH, as will be seen by consulting the "Announcements" in another column, speaks at the Meionaon, on the evenings of October 11th and 13th, the subject to be chosen by the audience, if desired. Admision 15 cents.

DR. J. L. LOVELL, of Yarmouth, Clarvoyant, Trance-Speaking and Healing Medium, is an authorized agent for the SPIRITUAL Age, and is empowered to take subscriptions and recieve monoy in our behalf.

LEWIS B. MONROE, late associate editor of the SPIRITUAL AGE, will receive calls to lecture on Spiritualism and kindred topics, wherever his services may be desired. Address care of the SPIRITUAL AGE:

A L AGE TU тнЕ SPIRI

Correspondence.

-

6

EAST BRIDGEPORT, Conn., ] Sept. 19, 1859.

EDITORS AGE :--- Will you grant me a portion of your valuable paper, to announce, to my spiritual friends, in different parts of the country, my whereabouts and prospects? I was last spring attacked with a severe cough, the effect of a bad cold. For several weeks I kept laboring in the lecture field, hoping from week to week, by the use of simple remedies to find relief; but my cough continued obstinate, so I was obliged to stop lecturing, the first of June. Since that time I have retired to the holy precinct of home, sweet home! a name none know how to appreciate but those who have at some time been deprived of its eacred joys. But it is not merely a house that makes a home; Oh, no.-We have many fine dwellings in our land; but few of them are homes; where the central idea has been to prepare all things for the feast of love, instead of that of fashion, and outward show. Oh, that more would study a truer philosophy of life, and call their thoughts in from the cold and heartless pursuits of avarice and fashion, (those who have a competence) to the arranging for themselves pleasant and congenial homes, where children may receive the stamp of beauty and truth; for no child fails to make the most of the surroundings of childhood. They either drink in the joyous freshness of love and purity; or the dark, dull flow of avarice and hatred. But alas ! the relations of life are such, that but few avail themselves of such necessary pleasures. Those who have sufficient means, too often prefer to put it out in some speculation, or where they can gather dust to dust; though their souls starve, and freeze for want of the home conveniences it would give them, and in nine cases out of ten, before they are ready to gather it up for the benefit of those who ought to be "loved ones at home," they are materially returned to mother Earth, "dust to dust." And artful luwyers, and judges, dispose of their wealth, about to their taste. There is nothing left for them, then, but to look upon a wronged, and homeless family, and regret they did not prepare them a home when they could; and SECURE it to them. On the other hand, thousands, who would prepare for themselves thus, cannot, because of the heavy hand of monopoly, which the former lay upon them. But, let us labor patiently; all will be righted in time; and if we can but clairvoyantly catch glimpses of the spirit of right; our children may grasp the form and spirit too. The while we may enjoy the fruit of our labors in beholding them from our bright spiritual homes. But I will return to the object of my letter, (for I did not intend to preach a sermon:) We are at present making Bridgeport our home. I do not know how long we may remain, as I have some fears that the salt air does not agree with me. My cough, continues yet, but I am stronger, and my general health some better than last summer. I am much in hopes to control my cough soon. I do not expect to lecture any during the coming winter. Perhaps I need this respite, that I · may practice in every day life, what I have been so often used to advise others to do. I hope to do so, and pray for more strength daily; but, I find it is easier to preach than to practice. There are some trials in this world which naturally chasten our spirits ; while others chafe them.

taining their objects, and it would cost them the sick "without money and without no more to profess Spiritualism than it does | price," and those who are abundantly able, to profess Christianity, or a love of freedom | and desire to do a good aca, could do it no and hatred of slavery, and a disinterested more to their future happiness and interlove of country, or of anything else that est than by lending a helping hand to those will serve their purpose for the time being; who are possessed of these gifts, which so that a political organization of Spiritual- | every day are becoming more extensively ists would only be a stepping-stone for the known and appreciated. Christ undoubtuse of unprincipled, political aspirants, and edly found it very pleasant to have been tend to bring Spiritualism into disgrace. I conducted in the manner that we suppose know it is easy to say, we will give our votes him to have been, and mediums at this only for well known Spiritualists, and in the day perhaps would and do find it equally outset that would not be difficult; but, should the demonstration be of sufficient magnitude to indicate a chance of success in the future, we should soon be joined by an abundance of false prophets, seeking for the velopment, who were in the habit of sendloaves and fishes, who could not be distin- ing to towns to ascertain whether there guished from the true, and would outrun them in zeal for the purpose of becoming leaders.

far and so fast as men are sufficiently developed to comprehend it. The success hitherto has been wonderfully great, but the moment we begin to use-or try to exist-as a mortal power, a combination of men for reform in government or any other purpose, spirituality will leave it, and its mission be hindered and delayed. Whenever it is made a weapon of offence, no matter in how good a cause, it will excite fear, hatred, opposition, and-because the children of this generation are wiser than the children of light-defeat.

3. Because whether we act in combination or singly, the object aimed at, namely, governmental reform, can never be attained until we have a majority of votes to give, and when we have that majority the reform will follow as a matter of course, without rapport with the spirit of the past; which led any combination, for whenever Spiritualism has made such progress as to control the actions of a majority of men, no man can be elected to office who does not give evidence of its power over him in his daily life and periods till I beheld insects, fishes, monconversation. When that time arrives-for sters, birds and beasts produced ; and from arrive it will-men will be selected for office the amalgamation of all these was man evolvnot because they are technically known as Spiritualists, but because they stand out before their fellows in the broadest sense as men; and when such men are selected as our senators and representatives all the reforms we desire will follow with as much certainty as fair weather succeeds a storm. "The stream cannot rise higher than the fountain," -the mission of Spiritualism is to the fountain not to the stream.

Slowly, as we count time, but surely and quietly will the mission be performed | civiousness of the goat, the subtilty of the serif we do not seek to divert it from its course, and in our new-born wisdom attempt to use it for purposes to which it is not adapted. Its beautiful principles are finding their way into the great heart of humanity, and a revolution is silently going on, which will abolish the worship of ley of humility, and asked why this new scifear and establish the religion of love; abolish selfishness and all the crimes resulting from it, and bring forth man in the true dignity of his nature. It is our part, each to seek for himself-to impart of the light we find-to guide our own lives by that light, and, for the rest, wait patiently and trustingly for the consummation which is to come. B. F. C.

into such associations for the purpose of ob- done by going as Christ went and healing pleasant; still, I find they should receive a liberal support.

I have met in some towns in my travels mediums, possessed of gifts of a rare dewould be business or an opening for them, and, if a good field presented itself they 2. Because the mission of Spiritualism is would go. Why not go forth and gird to lead men out of darkness into light; out the armor on at once, and if they are coof earth into heaven; to reform, not here workers and ambitious in the cause for and there one, but all of the human race, so which they go, they will succeed. I have often received directions to go to places, not knowing my object in going, until 1 had arrived, still I would never fail to meet friends. I have traveled through many of the Northern and many of the Southern States and as far south-west as Texas, and wherever I am, I stand always ready to do good and advocate the truths of this glorious revelation.

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 19, 1859.

AUTHORITY, (continued.)

с. в.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23, 1859. EDS. SPIRITUAL AGE: I asked for consolation of the seer-who hade me to follow him into the interior state, and put myself into me backto the embryotic ages of cellular life where things obscene, and loathsome to my touch were presented to my newly awakened perceptive powers. But still following my guide, I passed down through an infinity of ed,

A feeble, roving, savage race, With caves their only hiding-place.

My visual powers were now increased and I looked into and through these new-made beings; for each one was an individual entity involved in his own sphere; and each one exhibiting in his own character all the traits of his component parts. Thus, in his subsequent history I saw the indolence of the sloth, the imbecility of the hare, the voraciousness of the wolf, the filthiness of the swine, the treachery of the cat, the meanness of the hound, the laspent, the stupidity of the ass, the greed of the comorant, the savageness of the bear, the ferocity of the tiger, the destructiveness of the hyena, the servility of the jackal, and the vanity of the peacock. I raised my eyes and saw that I had been plucking fruit from the tree of knowledge; and I sank abashed into the valence had been given to me. But now my guide kindly reversed my glass, (nature's optics) and I saw perspectively that the race also manifested the industry of the bee, the gentleness of the lamb, the frugality of the wren, the affection of the robin, the fidelity of the dog, the sagacity of the fox, the prudence of the ant, the constructiveness of the beaver, the constancy of the dove, the nobility of the lion, the genius of the eagle, the patience of the ox, and the heroism of the steed. "Here," said my guide, "you behold the elements of your nature, the normal man." And I looked over the earth and saw that my vision was fulfilled-that what has been, is now, and will be again. That the race of man revolves around upon the bosom of the earth through circling ages, till cycle on cycle shall have been fulfilled —that then shall the earth and humanity resolve themselves again into their primitive elements. "Wherefore then," asked I, "hath man been created ?" "Have patience," said my guide, "and reflect. Did you not discover a law of progress as you traced the developement of matter through the different epochs till all of its subtle elements culminated in the mind of man?" I assented. "Well," said he, "that law will continue its functions throughout eternity and carry with it all that pertains to man." "But I do not comprehend it," I replied; "my powers are limited to time and space ; and cannot fathom infinity, nor cope with eternity; I do not know it, and must not rely upon authority." "Then quiet thine external senses officies and salaries and power, are drawn Again, there is a vast deal of good to be and pass again into the interior state, and puthyself in rapport with the spirit of the future," was the demand of the seer. I obeyed-and my vision extended over the earth, and I saw disembodied spirits, clothed in habiliments according each to his own inherent condition .-Dark spirits with distorted countenances were around and in earth's deep caverns; those of more genial natures were promenading near its surface, and gathering a few withered flowers; others were scraping together bags of yellow dust; some were throwing up fortifications and marshalling squads of soldiers, composed of the spruce young recruit, the sad conscript. and the grim veteran first fallen in battle: the wounded and the maimed from the barracks, the wary scouts just reconnoitering their newly discovered encampment. Besides these there on their long and perilous journey half was a vast multitude who seemed to have no special calling but to yield themselves up as subservient instruments to the will or pleasure of the other classes. I began to remonstrate with my guide for psychologizing me me merely to behold the race in its normal state on the earth's material mold, when a new influence came over me and I began to ascend the air.

Respectfully, M. W. HAMMOND. (To be Continued.)

MR EDITOR :--- We have seen, with much regret, in the "SPIRITUAL AGE," the suggestion that it might be well for Spiritualists to nominate a candidate for the Presidency. We believe that the idea of making our religious principles a political affair, will appear disgusting to many who are somewhat favorably inclined towards spiritualism, and would have a tendency to discourage them from investigating it. We think it would be far better for us as Spiritualists, individually and collectively, to reform our moral characters, and thus increase ourmoral force and constrain our enemies to respect us for our moral excellencies, and induce them to directly causes the tooth to ache so grievinvestigate the subject so thoroughly as to become convinced of its truth and join us. rather than to intimidate them with a fear of our political power.

the Spiritualists of the United States will old fellow named Byles presented himself to make no effort to nominate a presidential candidate.

MANY SPIRITUALISTS.

Norway, Sept. 23., 1859.

MY DEAR AGE :--- You no doubt will be glad to hear how the work goes on in Maine, and particularly in this place. I | Tushmaker, but he clapped on his heaviest left the good city of Boston on Thursday forceps and pulled. It didn't come. Then Sept. 15th, and lectured on that night to a he tried the turnscrew, exerting his utmost small yet attentive audience. On the strength, but the tooth wouldn't stir. next night my audience was much increased. Sunday afternoon I had a goodly | Byles, and return in a week, and I will draw number and apparently gave good satis- that tooth cut for you, or will know the reafaction. I read many persons under the son why.'

Interesting Miscellany.

BRAVE GIRLS .- Two little children, ALICE and MARY WELSH, aged respectively nine and twelve years, arrived at Hannibal, Mo., a few days ago, having accomplished the whole long journey from Ireland, without any other protection than their helplessness and their own brave hearts. Their father had preceded them by a year or more, and having acquired a home here, wrote to the old country for his family. On the eve of their departure the mother fell sick and died, and the little girls, nothing disheartened, set out alone round the world.

A Tough Stony .- The following story is told by that renowned wag, John Phœnix of she California Pioneer. The reader will see that it records the verdict of a "Coroner's Inquest," and in other particulars bears a strong resemblance to some of the tough stories which have been circulated in this state and generally believed.

Dr. Tushmaker was never regularly bred as a physician or surgeon, but he possessed naturally a strong mechanical genius, and a fine appetite, and finding his teeth of great service in gratifying the latter propensity, he concluded that he could do more good in the world and create more real happiness therein by putting the teeth of the inhabitants in good order, than in any other way, so he became a dentist.

He was the man that first invented the method of placing small cog wheels in the back teeth. for the more perfect mastication of food, and he claimed to be the original discoverer of that method of filling cavities with a kind of putty-which becoming hard ously, that it has to be pulled, thereby giving the dentist two successive fees for the same job.

Tushmaker was one day seated in his offi-For the reasons above specified we hope | ce in the city of Boston, Mass., when a stout have a back tooth drawn.

> The dentist seated his patient in the chair of torture, and opening his mouth, discovered there an enormous tooth on the right-hand side, about as large, as he afterwards expressed it, 'as a small Polyglot Bible.' I shall have trouble with this tooth, thought

'Go away from here,' said Tushmaker to

Yours for progression in truth, CHARLOTTE M. TUTTLE.

MESSRS. EDITORS :- The idea of a political association of Spiritualists, for the double purpose of controlling government and commanding respect, has been put forth in your columns, and you invite your readers to give their opinions on the subject. This invitation is my apology for addressing you.

To my mind the arguments adduced in favor of this proposition decidedly lack might, for the following reasons:

1. Because political organization generates-in the present condition of humanity -corruption and fraud, as a matter of course. Ambitious men, who look not beyond the present, but find all their enjoyment in, and centre all their hopes upon,

"DO GOOD ONE TO ANOTHER."

EDITORS SPIRITUAL AGE :-- I have been reading your paper two years and am exceedingly delighted with it, and now as it comes in a new form and dress I cannot but like it more than ever. We have a number of newspapers in our family, yet there are none which meets with more close, fatherly attention than the AGE; it comes to our fireside a welcome messenger interspersed with good spiritual reading.

I am a Spiritualist and it ever has been my sincere desire to do good and to be a co-worker with God's children and His most noble spirits, and I feel it quite as much of a duty and pleasure for me to do to-day a good act as it would be, perhaps, for those pure ones who are permitted to come from their bright sealms above .---

đ

nervo-magnetic law of my spiritual nature and guides from the spirit-world.---One character is worth referring to-Capt. of the Brig Glen, South Pacific Ocean, giving him all the particulars, describing the ringleaders of the mutiny-and many other facts in his history. I next lectured in New Gloucester to full houses, for two nights ;- from there to this place ; here I and there is seemingly much interest in | ing. the subject and facts of Spiritualism, and I shall lecture twice more here. I have read several persons here with marked and my delineation was received with feet long. much approval and declared to be correct. I have found many facts, where spirits and shall commit them to paper for the benefit of your readers. You may look for a continuation of my reasons why I am Spiritualist, ere long.

You will please notice in your paper that I shall remain in Maine up to the 25th of Oct. next. After that at Worcester, Mass., on the 3d and 4th Sundays of October; I shall be in South Milford, Woonsocket, Upton, Pawtucket and Provvidence, during the week-day evenings, between the 16th and 30th, and such ether places as may wish me during that time. Friends wishing me to lecture in the towns around Worcester will please address me at Worcester, Mass., until further notice; prior to the 16th of Oct., at Bridgewater, Mass. E. V. WILSON.

11

Byles got up, clapped a handkerchief to his jaw, and put forth.

The dentist went to work, and in three Small-who was concerned in the mutiny days he invented an instrument which he was confident would pull anything. It was a combination of the lever, pulley, wheel and axle, inclined plane, wedge and screw. The castings were made, and the machine put up in the office, over an iron chair, rendered perfectly stationary by iron rods going down have lectured twice to crowded houses, into the foundations of the granite build-

In a week old Byles returned; he was clamped into the iron chair, the forceps connected with the machine attached firmly to success. They called Dr. D----, an old the tooth, and Tushmaker stationing himand much esteemed citizen, to the stand self in the rear, took hold of a lever four

He turned it slightly-old Byles gave a groan, and lifted his right leg. Another have communicated with their friends, turn, another groan, and higher went old Byles' right leg again.

> 'What do you raise your leg for ?' asked the doctor.

'I can't help it,' said the patient.

'Well,' said Tushmaker, 'the tooth is bound to come now.'

He turned the lever clear round, with a sudden jerk, and snapped old Byles' head clean and clear from the shoulders, leaving a space of four inches between the severed parts !

They had a post mortem examinationthe roots of the tooth were found extending down the right side, through the right leg, and turned up in two prongs directly under the sole of the right foot. 'No wonder,' said Tushmaker, 'that raised his leg.'

IRITUAL A G E. ТНЕ S P

the roots much decayed, and five surgeons swearing that mortification would have ensued in a few months, Tushmaker was cleared on a verdict of 'justifiable homicide.'

terwards; but one day an old lady, feeble Gazette, on the 17th of April, and has proand thinking it would come very easy, Tushmaker concluded, just by way of variety, to try the machine.

old lady's skeleton completely and entirely from her body, leaving her a mass of quivcring jelly in the chair !

Tushmaker took her home in a pillow case. She lived seven years after that, and they called her the 'India Rubber Woman.' She had suffered terribly with the rheumatism, but after this occurrence never had a pain in her bones. The dentist kept them in a glass case.

After this the machine was sold to the contractor of the Boston Custom House, and it was found that a child three years of age could by a single turn of the screw, raise a stone weighing twenty-five tons.

Smaller ones were made on the same principle, and sold to the keepers of hotels and restaurants. They were advantageously used for boning turkeys.

There is no moral at all to this story, and it is possible that the circumstances may have become slightly exaggerated, Of course, there can be no doubt of the truth of the main incidents,

SALT LAKE.

Mr. Greely in one of his letters to the Tribune, from Utah, gives the following concerning this remarkable body of water:

"That this lake should be salt is no anomoly. All large bodies of water into which streams discharge themselves, while they have severally no outlet, are, or should be, salt. If one such is fresh, that is an anomoly indeed. Lake Utah probably receives as much saline as Salt Lake, but she discharges it through the Jordan, and remains herself fresh; while Salt Lake, having no issue save by evaporation, is the saltest body of water on earth. The ocean is comparatively fresh; even the Mediteranean at Leghorn is not half so salt.

I am told that three barrels of this water yields a barrel of salt.; that seems rather strong, yet its saltness, no one who has not had it in his eyes, his mouth, his nostrils. can realize. You can no more sink in it than in a clay bank, but a very little of it in your lungs would suffice to strangle you. You make your way in from a hot, rocky beach, over a chaos of volcanic basalt that

The jury thought so too, but they found agrees with its Catholic brotner at Rome. Prof. Tischendorf communicated his marvellous discovery to the minister of the King of Saxony, in a letter from Cairo, dated March the 12th. It was published He was a little shy of that instrument af- as a "Scientific Supplement" to the Leipsic and flaceid, came in to have a tooth drawn, ducee quite a stir among the wise men of Deutschland. The Professor concludes thus, -"The existence of the Vatican manuscript was known three hundred years before He did so, and at the first turn, drew the | it was decided to publish it. I hope instead of three conturies, three years will suffice me to enrich the Christian literature with one of its most precious monuments."

A LIVING HEAD ON A DEAD BODY.

The Newbury Index gives the following curious but melancholy particulars of a respectable farmer in that neighborhood :

Mr. Archibald Campbell, a respectable farmer in the township of Camden, East, while engaged in finishing a new dwelling on his premises, the scaffold gave away, and he was precipitated head foremost, to the ground, and dislocated his neck, but very fortunately and mysteriously did not kill him. When his head was brought to its proper position, the vertebræ of the neck returned to their place with a dull but distinct snap. The whole body is paralyzed and dead from the neck downwards. He is not capable of moving a muscle or experiencing the slightest pain. Fortunately the nerves supplying the muscles used in respiration were not paralyzed, and he can breathe and live. Had the injury of the spinal cord been a little higher he would have died immediately. The senses of sight, hearing, smelling, &c., are unimpaired. Mr. Campbell has been for a number of years the victim of a series of misfortunes. But the last misfortune is more intolerable than any of its predecessors. There he lies a strange and remarkable specimen of a living head on a dead body, with a full consciousness of his unenviable position. When last heard from however, there were some indications of a return of sensation, and the power of motion, and it is just possible that he may partially recover.

The above fact seems to demonstrate that the human body is a mere instrument for the soul to work with; that the seat of the mind is in the head, from whence the remaining portion of the body derives all its consciousness; and, as the man preserved his entire faculties, it would seem logically to follow that they are separate from, and may exist without, the adjunct of blood, flesh and bones ;---in other words that the spirit is the man and not the 'natural body,' and the latter dissevered from its connection with the former, becomes and forever remains mere 'dust' of the earth, the 'spiritual body' alone remaining intact.

hard for women. Heavy lifting, hard ex- THEODORE PARKER'S EXPERIENCES AS tra steps which should be done by those more able. Boys, don't let your mother the Ministry; contained in a Letter from him to the Twentydo it all, especially if she is a feeble wo- Eighth Congregational Society of Boston. Price in paper man. Dull, prosy housework is irksome enough, at best. It is a long work, too, it being impossible to tell when it is quite done, and then on the morrow the whole MARSH, 14 Brownield street, Boston. is to gone over with again. There is more of it than one is apt to think .-- [ Morning Star.

WOMEN IN THE GARDEN .- Much in thes days is said about the sphere of woman. O the vexed question we have nothing to say .---The culture of the soil, the body and the soul bread TEMPERANCE HOUSE, Nos. 18 and 20 Lagrange are our themes. Rich soils, healthy bodies, pure, cultivated souls, those are what we are aiming at. And to this end we recommend that every country woman have a garden that she keep and dress with her own hands, or that she supervise and manage. The culture of strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, ooseberries, currants and garden produce is as delightful and profitable as anything which a woman can engage in. She may sprinkle her garden well with flowers. All the better for that. A snow-ball in this corner, a rose in that, a dahlia bed here, and a moss border there will not be out of place. Only let the substantial and useful constitute the chief part. A touch of the ornate, like a ribbon on a good bonnet, is not the least objectionable. In all the schools the girls study botany. In all families the women ought to practice botany. It is healthful, pleasing and useful. The principles of horticulture are the principles of botany put into practice. Farmer's study agriculture, why should not their wives and daughters study horticulture ? If any employment is feminine, it would seem that this is .---If any is healthy, this must be. If any is pleasurable, none can be more so than this. A rich bed of strawberries, a bush of blackberries or currants, a border of flowers produced by one's own hand, what can well afford a more rational satisfaction ? We say to all our country sisters, have a garden, if only a small one, and do your best with it. Plant it with what you think best, with a good variety, and Report of an Extraordinary Church Trial; being a Detailed Account of Overwhelming Testimony, give see what you can do with it. What woman cannot raise beets, tomatoes, melons, onions, lettuce, and furnish her own table with them? What woman cannot plant a raspbrrry bush, or current, or gooseberry, and tend it well?-Come, good women, study your health, your usefulness and happiness, and your children also.-[ Valley Farmer.

Advertisements.

MEDIUMS IN BOSTON.

J. V. MANSFIELD, Medium for answering sealed letters, will visit the principle cities South and West, during the fall and winter. Letters addressed to him at No. 3 Winter street, Boston, will receive his attention as here tofore.

TERMS -- Mr. M. charges a fee of $1 and four postage stamps for his efforts to obtain an answer. For $3 he will guarantee an answer, or return both letter and money in thirty days from its reception.

A MINISTER.

With some account of his Early Life, and Education for covers, 30 cts., in cooh, 50 cents. Just published and or side by Bela Marsh, 14 Bromfield st.

THE SPIRITUAL REGISTER FOR 1859. Price 10 cents, is just published and for sale by BELA

LIGHT BREAD.

WITHOUT YEAST OR POWDERS. mr How to make light delicious Bread with simple

Flour and Water only. Merely your address and one dime will ensure you by eturn of mail a little book on Healthful Cooking and How to Make Light Bread with Flour and Water only. Persons interested are invited to call and see this delicious place, Bosten,

JUST PUBLISHED.

A graphic and truthful Narration, "Digging for Capt. Kydd's Treasure!" By one of the diggers. Two MILLIONS OF DOLLARS are said to be buried within two miles of New York city. The Revelation of the spirit of Kydd thus far proved true. Sent by mail. Price 15 cts. Address J. B. CONKLIN, Test Medium, 54 Great Jones st., N. Y.

MEETINGS IN BOSTON.

MEETINGS AT NO 14 BROMFIELD ST .- A Spiritualist meeting is held every Sunday morning, at 10 1-2 o'clock, and afsernoon at 3. Conference in the evening at 8. A Conference Meeting is held every Monday evening at 7 3-4 o'clock.

THE BROTHERHOOD hold weekly meetings at 14 Bromfield street, on Thursday evenings at 8 o'clock. Persons sympathising with this movement, or desirous of obtaining information respecting it, are invited to attend.

THE REFORMER'S HOME,

For the accommodation of Spiritualists and Friends of Progress, at moderate charges, is centrally located at 109 Lake St., Cleveland, Ohio. Office of the Vanguard and 22 Gem.

TO LECTURERS.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he is authorized to sell the scenery of the spirit world, painted by the late E. Rodgers while in an entranced state. There are over thirty scenes, with a pair of dissolving view lanterns, said to be equal to any in the United States. A good lecturer would find this a rare opportunity to advance his own interests and the cause of Spiritualism. For further particulars I will send one of Mr. Rodgers' circulars to any gentlemen who may desire, as said circular gives a good idea of the nature of the scenes. Any information in regard to the manner of showing them and the terms of sale, will be given by B. M. NEWKIRK, Laporte, Ind.

ing a Betalled Account of Overwhelming Testimory, giv-en by Sectarians against all leading Reform and Reform-ers, with the Summary Proceedings on the part of the Prosecution, alided by several Respectable Citizens, after an Irregular Rendition of the Verdict.—Conservatives versus Progressives.—Photographically Reported and Prepared for Publication by Philo Hermes. Price 16 cents per copy, and sent to any part of the United States cents per copy, and sent to any part of the United States free of po-tage. Quantities at wholesale, with reasonable discount, sent to order. Address the Publisher, Bela Marsh, 11 Bromfield street, Boston.

All the Books and Pamphlets of Theodore Parker, the vorks of A J. Davis, and all other Reform Publications, or sale as above tf Sept. 24, 1859.

THE SICK ARE HEALED

WITHOUT MEDICINE. JAMES W. GREENWOOD, Healing and Developing Medium, Rooms No. 15 Tremont street, opposite the Museum. Office hours from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. Other hours he will visit the sick at their houses. Investigators will find a Test, Rapping, Writing and Trance Medium at the above rooms.

Medical Cards.

NEW GRAEFFENBERG WATER CURE. MESSES, EDITORS-I see in the BANNER & notice of the

A Book of Thrilling Interest for the Young! THE PREMATURE DECAY OF YOUTH !

Just published by DR. STONE, Physician to the Troy Lung and Hygienic Institute, a treatise on the Early Decay of American Youth ; the vice of self abuse, and its direfui consequences ; Seminal Weakness, Nervous and Spinal Debility, and other diseases of the Sexual Organs in both Male and Female.

The above work is one of the most thrilling interest to the oung of both Sexes ; detailing some of the most thrilling cases and incidents, in the practice of the Author, pointing out the great causes for such desline and decay of American Youth.

The Book is written in chaste language and should be read by every Parent and Guardian that has the least solicitude for the well-being of offspring and youth. It will be sent by mail in a sealed envelope to ony part of the country, free of charge, on receipt of two (3 cent) stamps for postage.

IT In view of the awful destruction of human life and health, by marasmus or premature exhaustion and decay of the nervous system, caused by sexual diseases, such as the vice of Self-abuse, Seminal weakness, Spermatorrhoa, Syphilis and virulent affections, Gleet, Impotence, Leucorrheer and Sterility, and organic diseases of the Kidneys, and in view of the deceptions which are practiced upon the unfortunate victims of such diseases by quacks and base pretenders, the Directors of the Troy Lung and Hygienic Institute have instructed their attending physician to treat this all-pervading class of modern maladies so productive of Pulmonnay Consumption. The Institution is provided with the aids of the most improved practice of France, Eugland, and the Oriental countries in order to insure the utmost and speedy success. The most scrupulous regard to confi dence and fidelity will be guaranteed every patient and ap plicant. The medicines used by the Institution are guaran teed free from Mercury, Minerals and Poisons of every na ture. The most approved medicines, of recent discovery, imported from India and Japan-and concentrated in the form of Extracts and Alkaloids, are alone used-our remedies will not expose, nor sicken nor debilitate under any circumstance. The Institution has the honor of treating as pa tients some of the most distinguiseed men in the United States. Patients can at all times be treated by letter and cured at home, on receiving a full statement of their symptoms, and medicines can be sent by mail or express to any part of the United States and the Canadas.

YOUNG MEN suffering from these d ireful ills, will re ceive for $5 a series of Health Rules and perfect Charts of cure, which will be to them a true Polar Star through life TO FEMALES -The Monthly Pills, prepared by the In stitution, are a never-failing remedy for Suppresions of every nature, will be sent by mail to any part of the country on the receipt of $1, with ample instructions for the use, under all circumstances.

Address Dn. ANDREW STONE, Physician to the Troy Lung and Hygienic Institute, and Physician for the discases of the Heart, Throat and Lungs, 96, Fifth st., Troy, New York. n5 ly

B. O. & G. C. WILSON,

WHOLESALE BOTANIC DRUGGISTS, Nos. 18 & 20 Central st., 7 doors from Kilby st., Boston, where may be found a large stock of BOTANIC MEDICINES, embracing every variety of Medicinal Roots, Herbs, Barks, Seeds, Leaves, Flowers, Gums, Resins, Oils, Solid and Fluid Extracts, Concentrated Preparations; together with a full assortment of ALL OTHER KINDS OF MEDICINES,

Apothecaries' Glass Ware, Syringes, Medical Books; Liquors of the best quality, for medicinal purposes; and a great variety of Miscellaneous Articles, including almost verything wanted by the Apothecary or Physician. Orders by mail or otherwise, promptly filled and forwarded to any part of the country. 18—у.

A. C. STILES, M. D., INDEPENDENT CLAIR-VOYANT, OFFICE, NO. 196 MAIN ST., BRIDGEPORT, CT.

A true diagnosis of the disease of the person is guaran teed, or no fee will be taken. Chronic diseases scientifically treated. Strict attention given to diseases of the Eye and Ear. Cancers removed, and cure warranted. The Electro Chemical Baths will be applied when necessary, for the removal of poisonous minerals from the system. Persons from a distance can be accommodated with good board at a reasonable rate, near the Doctor's office. Office hours from 8 o'clock, A. M. to 6 P. M. No patients received Sundays.

AN ASYLUM FOR THE AFFLICTED. HEALING by laying on of hands. CHARLES MAIN, is trying to the feet but at the depth of a yard or more you have a fine sandy bottom, and here the bathing is delightful.

The water is of a light, green color for ten or twenty rods; then "deeply, darkly, beautifuliy blue." No fish can live in it; no frog abides in it; few birds are ever seen dipping into it. The rugged monntains in and about it-just such scraped and scamed and gullied precipices as I have been describing ever since I reached Denver-have a little fir and cottonwood, or quaking asp. in their deeper ravines or behind their taller cliffs, but looked bare and desolate to the casual observer; and these cut the lake into sections, and hide most of it from view .-Probably less than a third of it is visible from any single point. But this suffices.

A MANUSCRIPT COPY OF THE NEW TESTAMENT DISCOVERED .--- The theologians of Germany are alive with a discussion of a remarkable discovery of a manuscript copy of the New Testament, by Prof. Tischendorf. The Professor was employed by the Governments of Russia and Saxony to make scientific explorations in the East. During his wanderings in Egypt, he found what is claimed to be an ancient manuscript of the New Testament, corresponding in almost every particular with the famous Vatican manuscript. The age of it is not determine though it is claimed to be Alexandrian, and of the days of Constantine and Euseriptions, initials, ink, everything be. There is much work about house too

THE WONDERFUL LEG .- Wedgwood had a cork leg, a wonderful imitation of the leg he had lost. It is told of him that on one occasion, when discussing the effects of boiling water on the nervous system, he laid a bait with one of his guests that he would hold his leg longer in boiling water than any man in the kingdom. Tubs were produced, watches were drawn out, stockings pulled off, and legs dipped in. Wedgwood quietly set his cork leg firmly into the smoking tubful. His guest followed his example. Wedgwood did not wince; his guest howled and wriggled, his leg grew redder. The potter looked on with a smile, amazing the company with his calm composure. At last the scalded leg was drawn out in agony, and Wedgwood remained master of the match. Five minutes, ten, a quarter of an hour, and still Mr. Wedgwood smiled and looked composed. "Feel it, pinch it, do what you will with it," quoth he; "It's the best leg I have, though only of cork."---[Titan

Boys, HELP YOUR MOTHERS.---We have seen from two to six great hearty boys sitting by the kitchen stove, toasting their feet, and cracking nuts or jokes, while their mother, a slender woman, has gone to the wood-pile for wood, to the well for bius of Ceserca, say of the fourth centu- water, or to the meathouse to cut a frozen The parchment, letters, punctuation, steak for dinner; this is not as it should STMr. Mausfield will act as Agent for the SPIRITUAL New Graeffenberg Water Cure, and I wish to add a rec-AGE.

MRS. E. B. DANFORTH, Examiner and Prescriber for the sick. Also healing and developing and trance medium. Address No. 19 Green st., Boston. n32.3m

Mrs. BEAN, Writing and Test Medium. Circles on Tuesday and Friday evenings, for development and manifestations. No. 30 Eliot street.

Miss WATERMAN, Trance, Test and Writing Medium has removed to No. 8 Oliver Place. Hours, 9 A. M. to 9 P. M. Terms 50 cents per sitting.

Mrs. R. H. BURT, Writing and Trance Medium, No. 2 Columbia street (from Bedord street). Hours from 10 to 1, 2—3m and from 2 to 7.

Mrs. LIZZIE KNIGHT, Writing Medium, 15 Montgomery place, up one flight of stairs, door No. 4. Hours 9 to 1 and 2 to 5: Terms 50 cents a seance.

Mrs. SMITH, No. 43 Eliot street, a successful Healing Medium; also, Writing, Developing and Test Medium and Spirit-Seer. Circles, Sunday, and Friday evenings.

Mrs. G. L. BEAN will give her attention to clairvoy ant medical examinations. Rooms 30 Ellot street. 21-tf.

Mrs. ELLEN E. RICHARDS, Clairvoyant and Healing Me dium, assisted by a trance Writing Medium, has taken rooms at 117 Hanover street, Boston. $1.00

TERMS-For examination of patient, 1-2 tf. " a communication,

Mrs. M. H. COLES, Trance Speaking Medium, may be addressed to the care of Bela Marsh, 14 Bromfield st., Boston

50 cts.

Mrs. PECALLIS CLARK, Healing Medlum and Clairvoyant Examiner. Under spirit direction, she has prepared a great variety of Medicines for the cure of disease, which have proved eminently successful. Office at 14 Bromfield street, 1-2 tf. up stairs.

NOTIOE .- Persons visiting Boston for a few days or longer and preferring a private house to a public hotel, can find good accommodations at No. 5 Hayward Place, the most central and desirable part of the city.

SUFFOLK DYE HOUSE,

CORNER OF COURT AND HOWARD STS. BOSTON,

POLYTECHNIC INSTITUTE. (For pupils of both sexes) 69 W. 19th st., N. Y., reopened Monday, September 5th. Two boarders can be accommodated in the family of the Principal, 8-2t.

ommendation of this pleasant, convenient, well adapted and well-supplied establishment to our friends who need rest, or physical renovating and recruiting.

The proprietor, Dr. R. Holland, is not only in full sympathy with the great spiritual movements of the time, and most advanced systems of treatment of diseases, but is himself a medium, with very strong healing powers. Although his establishment is one of the oldest. largest, and most convenient in the nation, yet since it has become known that the proprietor is a Spiritualist, the superstitious and prejudiced part of community avoid the place, and endcavor to prevent others from going there, as they would to circles and spiritual meet ings, lest they should become believers ; and on this account the establishment is not as full as usual this season, which makes it all the more convenient for those who sojourn there. It should be known to our friends that this establishment is, and will be, conducted by the proprietor in accordance with the highest and best principles of the spiritual philosophy; and spirit aid and advice will be sought and used in the treatment of diseases, when the patients wish it.

The large and convenient buildings are pleasantly located in a nook between the hills that surround Utica, N. Y., about five miles from the city, and surrounded with abundance of wild fruit, shade trees, and pure water ; and the pleasant company and spiritual sympathy make it an exceedingly attractive place-so much so that we almost wished we were a little sick, to furnish an excuse to stay a few week, and feed on berries, and WARREN CHASE. paddle in pure water, &c. Utica, N. Y., Aug. 17, 1859.

SINCE THE REMARKABLE TEST

at the sitting of a circle a short time since, where Dr. Charles Main was present and inquired of the spirit intelligence what medicine should be used in a certain case, and reply was given to use Dr. Cheever's "Life Root Mucil age!" Five cases have occurred where individuals have called and reported the prescription as being given by mediums.

This invaluable medicine has long been used as an infallible remedy for Consumption, Scrofula, Sait Rheum, Erysipelas, Cough, Disease of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Canker, Mercurial Disease, Piles and all gross acrid humors.

A letter enclosing one dollar will procure a bottle; or five dollars for six bottles. Will be sent to any part of the Union. All orders directed to Dr. J. Cheever, No. Tremont Temple, Boston, Mass. 18.

A. B. CHILD, M. D., DENTIST, A.T. DEANE. , NO. 15 TREMONT ST., BOSTON, MASS.

Healing Medium, has spened an Asylum for the Afflicted at No. 7 Davis street, Boston, where he is prepar ed to accommodate patients desiring treatment by the above process on moderate terms.

D Patients desiring board should give notice in advance, that suitable arrangements may be made before their arrival.

Those sending locks of hair to indicate their diseases, should enclose $1 for the examination, with a letter stamp to prepay their postage. Also, state leading symptoms, age and sex. Office hours from 9 to 12 A. M., and from 2 to 3 P. M.

DECAYED TEETH PRESERVED.

DR. AMMI BROWN, 24 1-2 Winter street (Ballou's Building), by a new article of Gold Filling, is prepared to restore teeth, however bad/y decayed or broken, to their original shape and strength, avoiding in most cases the necessity of removal.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, on Gold, Sliver, Vulcanite and Platina, with Athelode Gums, from $15 to $65. Teeth extracted by Electricity without extra charge. 8-tf

DR. JOHN SCOTT, MAGNETIC PHYSICIAN, NO. 36 BOND STREET, NEW YORK.

Dr. S. cures Piles and Cancers without the use of the knife. Kr All Rheumatic and Chronic Complaints treated with certainty. Hours from 9 A M. to 5 PM.. 47

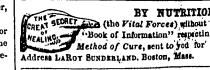

SPIRITUAL, CLAIRVOYANT, AND MESMER-IC PRESCRIPTIONS,

CAREFULLY prepared by OCTAVIUS KING, Botanic Apothecary, 654 Wast ington street, under Pine St. Church, Boston.

All of Mrs. Mettler's Medicines for sale as above.

MRS. METTLER'S MEDICINES.

Restorative Syrup-Price $1 per bottle. Dysentery Cordial-50 cents. Elizir- 50 cts. Neutralizing Mixture-50 cents. Pulmonaria-$1. Liniment-$1 Healing Ointment-25 cents per box. For sale by BELA MARSH, No. 14 Bromfield street, Boston. 14-4f

DR. J. ESTES, ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN AND HEALING MEDIUM. No. 7 Eliot Street, Boston.

BY NUTRITION CREAT SECRET AND (the Vital Forces) without Medicine ! WEALING; Book of Information" respecting the New MEALING; Method of Cure, sent to you for 1 dime. 812t.

SPIRITUA AGE. ТНЕ L

[From the Boston Journal ] DR. BELLOWS' EXPLANATION.

The N. Y. Herald has reports of two sermons delivered by Rev. Dr. Bellows, of All Souls Church, on the occasion of its re-opening last Sunday. Instead of taking up some devotional theme, most in accordance with his feelings, the preacher said to his hearers, he p:oposed to meet, directly and frankly, their expectations and desires, by attempting an explanation of whatever might have seemed extraordinary in his recent address at Cambridge. He had no apology for that discourse; it was a deliberate performance, the result of years of observations and study, and not now, therefore, a subject of repentance. He would consider his audience as representing four tribunals: first, the independent congregation and church over which he was set to minister ; second, the Unitarian denomination; third, the Protestant world; fourth, the nineteenth century and our own country. Under the first head, he remarked :

"It had been asserted, and perhaps feared, that he had a private purpose or secret design of changing the forms of worship, if not the creed of this congregation ; that, having changed his own faith, he was going to smuggle upon his congregation a new creed, and a Romish or Episcopal ritual. No one in their own ranks would for a moment imagine that such a change could be effected by a coup d'etat, in opposition to their wishes, and he would hold himself just as accountable for the unfair or oppressive exercise of any influence he might possess, as for a tangible scizure of power; and he added, 'I solemnly declare unto you that if to-day despotic powers were in my hands, or what would be more, a full, free and affectionate request from you to prepare a litany and creed for this congregation, I could not and would not do it.''

He added that already they had had a committee on a liturgy for three years, which had -accomplished nothing, because it was not united and because the want of a change was not generally felt. In his own opinion, important changes in statement of creed and form of worship were in store for the next generation, but just what it would be in respect to external ritual, he could not foretell. Certainly he was not disposed to organize or forestall it. He said Christendom would never revive the Romish mummeries of the past, nor make general use of the admirable service of the English churches. Still, a want was to be met, namely, the union of immortal truths with ever appropriate ritual and symbols. This was the glorious vision that had haunted his soul. This was the new Catholic or universal church which he predicted, but without the mad folly of offering to inaugurate it.

With regard to his denominational relations, he said it had been alleged by well-wishers, that he had wounded Unitarianism, that he had announced its decease, and spoken at its funeral. That would be strange work indeed for one who had borne its banner for twenty years. He was devoted to its principles, identified with its good name, and knew of no one less likely to prove a traitor to its cause. But he regarded Unitarianism as a part of a great movement of humanity, the leading off an advanced guard into larger fields of action. But said he was himself a Protestant of the Protestants, repudiating all faith in Apostolic succession and other Romish dogmas. I'he church was a tradition, as was society-an hereditary thing. It came down in the blood of sucessive believers. Of its usages and cus- Aue.] toms, he considered baptism and the Lord's Supper essential; and yet the neglect of even these should not exclude a sincere Christian heart from the church. Debate did not properly pertain to some things now. Some vices, like polygamy, spiritualism, socialism, &c., were entitled to no terms, as, if a man claimed the liberty of scuttling the ship he and his family sailed in, he would not stop to reason with him.

Addressing his audience as the representatives of the nineteenth century, he said this age was not the child of the devil, but the son of God. Our peril was in our continental breadth and newness, and yet the past must ere long resume its reign. He said vaccination and the Atlantic telegraph were the two grand and memorable symbolic events of this century, and added that while the former saved America from decimation by a loathsome and deforming disease, the Atlantic telegraph saves it from the moral and spiritual barren- 9th; in Geneva, Ohio, 16th; in Cleveland, Ohio 23d & ness of disconnection with that Europe that owns and is the past. He expanded this train of thought in a mystical sort of way.

PROCEEDINGS

Of the Harmonial Colony Association Meeting, held at Worcester, Sept. 21st, 1859.

Pursuant to a call for a Harmonial Colony Association meeting, to be held at Worcester, Sept. 21st, 1859, a few friends, members of the Association in Conference, met at the house of Albion Carpenter. After a desultory and general consideration of the subject, which following Resolves were passed :

Ist, Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed to make, alter, and amend the Constitution of the Harmonial Colony Association so as to make a grand Christian Harmo- dressed sufficiently in advance to make the necessary arnial and National Brotherhood, giving said Brotherhood the power to organize Branch-Brotherhoods in every Town, City, State, and throughout all the Nations of the Earth.

2. Resolved, That we proceed forthwith to the choice of such a Committee as are im-. mediately requisite. The following were elect- phia. ed :---Reuben Barron, Albion Carpenter, Ann M. Carpenter, D. C. Gates, Earl Joslyn.

3. Resolved. That when we adjourn, we ad-1859.

4. R solved, That the Directory be instructed to ascertain as rapidly as practicable who are desirous of becoming members of the Association.

5. Resolved, That the Directory do invite all friends of the movement from various parts of the Country to be present at our next meet-Constitution and becoming co-workers with cember at St. Louis, Mo., and the two last Sundays in 118.

unpropitious state of the weather, and mem- October; and New Orleans during December. Miss Harbers being necessarily absent, we do appoint direction appoint dir Oct. 26th, 1859, the day to choose Officers for ### Announcements.

[All persons announced as speakers, under this head are requested to use their influence in favor of procur, ing subscribers for, and extending the circulation of, the MEIONAON-TREMONT TEMPLE .- Mrs. Cora L. V. Hatch of N. Y., will lecture at the Melonaon Tuesday and Toursday Evenings, Oct. 11th & 13th, at 7 1-2 o'clock. Subject to be chosen by the audience if desired. Admission 15 ets. THE CHRISTIAN SPIRITUALISTS CONVENTION WILL meet Oct. 6th, 1850, at 9 A. M., in Opera Hall, No. 13, School st. B. DANFORTH. n6 1t.

E. V. WILSON, Medium and Lecturer, will lecture in Worcester Oct. 10th & 23d ; at South M Hord 17th ; at Upton 18th ; at Pawtucket 19th, 20th & 21st. Friends in these places will please sccure halls for me on those evenings, and much oblige. Address, Bridgewater, Muss.

DEXTER DANA, of E. Boston, will speak in Plymouth, Suncay, Oct. 23d.

MRS. J W. CURRIER will lecture in Bristol, Ct., Oct. 9th ; Chickopre, Mass., Oct. 16th & 2Jd ; Foxboro, Mass. Oct. 30th ; Marblehed, Nov. 6th.

A. B. WHITING will come East this Fall, and will lecture in Willimastic, Conn., Sunday October 9th; in Providence, R. I., 16th, 23d & 30th. He will attend calls to lecture week evenings. Address to either of the above places. JAMES H. SUEPARD Speaking and Seeing Medium will answer calls to Lecture wherever the Friends may desire .--Post Office Address, South Acworth, N. H.

F. L. WADSWORTH will speak in Syracuse, N. Y., October 30th; Milan, Ohio, Nov. 6th. He can be addressed at the above named places at the times designated.

MRS. A. M. MIDDLEBROOK (formerly Mrs. Henderson,) will lecture in Bridgeport, Conn., October 9th ; in Willimantic, 16th, 23d & 30th ; in Providence, Dec. 18th & 25th and Jan. 1st & 8th. Applications for week evenings will be attended to. She will visit St. Louis in March, and would request friends wishing to scoure her services on her route, to address her as speedily as possible at Box 422, Bridgeport, Conn. N. S. GREENLEAF is ready to answer calls to lecture on the Sabbath. Address Lowell, Mass.

H. F. GARDINER of Boston, will answer calls to lecture on Sundays and week day evenings.

WARREN CHASE will lecture the second Sunday in Oct., in Lebanon, N. H.; third, in Bethel, Vt.; fourth, in Montpelier, occupied most of the evening, whereupon the Vt.; fifth, in Mariboro', Mass.; Nov. 13th, in Newburyport; Nov. 20th, Marblehead; Nov. 27th, Plymouth; Dec. 4th and 11th, in Providence, R. I., and may be addressed as above. • N. FRANK WHITE will lecture in Plymouth, Mass., Oct 0th & 16th. Calls for week evenings in the vicinity of this place, or near the route between, will be attended to if adrangements.

> L. JUDD PARDEE is engaged to speak at Dayton, Ohi-, for three months from Sept. 1.

E. R. EATON will answer calls to lecture. Speaks in the normal state. Address, South Hauson, Mass. 2 6w*. 'Mrs. M. S. TOWNSEND will lecture in Oct. in Taunton, Mass. Nov. & Dec., Vicinity of Boston .- Jan., Philadel-

Dr. MAYHEW will speak till the end of October in Northern Minnesota. The friends in St. Anthony, Minneapolis, Osceo, Anoka, Monticello, St. Cloud, Northfield, Lakeville, Faribault, and Owatonna, with any others desiring a visit, journ to meet at Albion Curpenter's, Oct. 26th, will write to me, care of Poct. R. Post. St. Paul, their several wishes shall be attended.

Mrs. FANNIE BURBANK FELTON will lecture in Lowell, the five Sundays of October; and the four Sundays of November in Providence, R. I She will receive calls to lecture on week evenings in places in the vicinity of where she lectures Sundays. Address until October 1st. Willard Barnes Felton, Portland, Maine.

Miss A. W. SPRAGUE will speak at Binghamton, N. Y , the two first Sundays of Oct.; at Chicago, Ill., the two last. At Fond DuLanc, Wis., the two first Sundays in ing, Oct. 26th, for the purpose of signing the Nov.; the two last at Milwaukie, Wis.; the month of be-Jan. at Terre Haute, Ind.

6. Resolved, That in consequence of the MISS EMMA HARDINGS will lecture in St. Louis during

Bela Marsh's Adbertisemets.

ANTHROPOMORPHISM DISSECTED AND SPIHIUALISM VINDICATED, BY DIX-ON L. DAVIS, M. D. When man is taught that his spiritual is, as his physical nature, governed by fixed laws, then superstition will die, and a rational system of mental philosophy prevail instead. Price in paper covers, 35 cents; in cloth 50 cents. 18-tf.

A NEW SPIRITUAL BOOK!

TWELVE MESSAGES FROM THE SPIRIT JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, Through Joseph D. Stiles, Medium, to Josiah Brigham. 494 pages 8vo. Price $1.50. Just published and for sale by BELA MARSH, 14 Bromfield St. Boston 0-tf JUST PUBLISHED.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT BOOK BY A. J. DAVIS !

The subscriber has just issued a new work, written a few weeks since by Mr. Davis. In preparing Ms matter for the Philauthropic Convention at Utica, he wrote gut several suggestive ideas respecting the Cause and Curo of Evil, or how to "overcome evil with good," which was the great question before that memorable gathering of thinkers and philanthropists. This new production is entitled THE HISTORY AND PHILOSOPHY OF EVIL;

WITH SUGGESTIONS FOR MORE BNNOBLING INSTITUTIONS AND

PHILOSOPHICAL SYSTEMS OF EDUCATION. Single copies at retail, 30 cents; bound in cloth, 50 cents. On receipt of price, the book will be sent by mail, postage free. Quantities at wholesale, with reasonable discount, sent per order to all parts of the Union. Address the Publisher, BELA MARSH, No. 14 Bromfield street, Boston. 41… ti

THE GREAT HARMONIA, (BY A. J. DAVIS,) IN 4 VOLS.

Vol. I .- THE PHYSICIAN, price $1. Vol. 11.- THE TEACHER, price $1. Vol. III .- THE SEER, price $1 Vol. IV .- THE REFORMER, price $1. The publisher has recently issued the Fifth Edition of the above popular works of Mr. Davis, and is ready to supply all orders promptly, either at wholesale or retail. Address BELA MARSH, 14 Bromfield st., Boston. B. M. has also published new editions of the following excellent works of Mr. Davis, viz:---

The Philosophy of Special Providences-A Vision, Price 15 ets. The Harmonial Man; or, Thoughts for the Aye, 30 cts

Free Thoughts concerning Religion, 15 cts. The Penetralia; being Harmonial Answers to Important Questions, $1 00-The History and Philosphy of Evil, 30 cts. and 50 cts. A liberal discount will be made when taken in quantities.

18tf

FRÉE LOVE AND AFFINITY.

A Discourse delivered under spirit-influence, by Miss Lizzie Doten, at the Melodcon Boston, Sunday evening, March 20, 1859. Phonographically reported by James M. W. Yerrinton. Price 8 cents each, or $5 per hundred. This discourse contains much good advice, and was listened to with very general satisfaction. BELA MARSH, Publisher. 14 Bromfield street, Boston. 15-tf

MYSTIC HOURS,

Or, Spiritual Experiences of Dr G. A. REDMAN. Containing the more remarkable manifestations and communications that have been given through him, with names of witnesses, &c. Price $1.25. Just published, and for sale by BELA MARSH, 14 Bromfield st., who will mail it to order, to any part of the United States within 3000 miles, free of postage. Orders solicited. 25tf

WOODMAN'S REPLY TO DRI DWIGHT. A New Edition of this excellent work is just published. It has been carefully revised and stereotyped, in order to meet an increased demand, and is put at the low price of 20 cents per copy. A liberal discount at whole-

BELA MARSH, publisher, 14 Bromfield street, Boston. 31—tf

PUBLIC ORAL DISCUSSION. Spiritualism and the Opposition, at Hartford, between S B. Brittan, and Dr. D. D. Hanson. Price 38 cents. Mrs. Hatch's Discourses on Religion, Morals, Philosophy and etaphysics. Price $1.00

Deaths.

Passed into spirit life, an infant daughter of Oliver N. Junel, South Orleans, Mass. Sept. 11th, 1659. The bud put forth from the parent stalk, exhaled its immortal fragrance, and then the outward folds that en cased the germ, withered away and died.

Cash Received on Subscription.

All moneys received on subscription, will be acknowledged under this head. For any failure in this particular, the person having sent the money should write us, that it may be ascertained whether the fault is ours, or that of the P. O. Department. This is our only method of receipting for money on subscription, unless specially requested to the contrary. It is much more convenient for us, and will be aster for subscribers.

Money enclosed in the presence of a Post Master, may be sent at our risk; but the writer should specify the denomination of the money enclosed, and if paper, on what bank.

Correspondents should be particular to write their NAMES, POST OFFICE ADDRESS, COUNTY AND STATE, IN B plain legible hand, upon every letter sent us. Tr Any person wishing the direction of his paper changed, should be particular to specify, as above, the place where the paper HAS BEEN sent, as well as the place to which he desires it to be changed.

Subscribers.	P. O. Address. Am	t. ra.	Pd t	`
Calvin Porter,			Vol N	o.
C Guan		$ ,25 .25	1	17
Mrs Martin Norris, Dr S Gilbert, H O Stone, Sam'l Britain,	Broad Brook, Ct	2.00	2	17
H O Stone,	S Hardwick, Vt	2,00 ,25	2 1	18
Sam'l Britain,			i - j	13 13
S A Suttle, Mrs Ann Hall.		,25 ,25	1 1	13
Mrs Ann Hall, Miss T W Walton,				13 13
Chas Shipman, D W Aiken	6 C 6 C	,20	1 1	3
Chas Shipman, D W Aiken, E Kellog, Mrs L W Hutch'son		, 25 , 25 , 25 , 25 , 25 , 25 , 25		13 13
Mrs L W llutch'son L L Davis, Jabez Bownian,	Athens, Me	,25	ii	7
Jabez Bownian,	G ecubero'. Ind	,25	1 1	17
pare rrout,	••	.25		17
Miss C Bundy, Thomas Gray,	"	,95 95 9100	1 1	17
A Thorp,	" Syracuse, N Y Bridgeport, Ct Crawfordsville, Ind Nelson, N Y New Albany, Ind	~,	1 1	8
C S Middlebrook, M W Stine	Bridgeport, Ct	1.00	1;	30
Asa Graves,	Nelson, N Y	,25 1,00		17
flowell Wells,	New Albany, Ind	,25		17
Thomas Birch, B. Compton,		,25 ,25	1 1	3
B Compton, J L Gard,	• • • •		1 1	3
Geo W Jones, T Meurer, M D.	66 66	,20	1 1	3
Cook Day, Box 211. W W Tuttle,		,25 ,25 ,25	1 1	.3
W W Tuttle,	46 - 66	,25	î i	3
C L Gratrake, John Kemble,		,	1 1	.5
John M Wilson,	66		1 1	3  3
1111 Codwolador	66 66		1 1	3
R S Frisbie, W W Tuley, Esq,	"	,25 ,25	11	3  3
hobert Kein,		20	1	3
A Lockwood, Rowan Jack,	66 66	,25 ,25	1	3
R Elderkin,	44		1 1	3  3
Geo O Hart.	"	,25	1 1	3
W L Sanderson, Edward Dimick	Golahrook N U	,25 ,25 1,00 ,25		.3
J B Noyes,	Hyde Park, Vt	,25		3
Edward Dimick, J B Noyes, John Mellen, Mrs B A Sillower		,25	1	7
Mrs R A Silloway, Box 71, 2 conies.	Montpeller, Vt	,25 ,50 2,00
Abner Wheelock,	Worcester, Mass	2,00	2	4
Francis Rice, Peter Millor	Greigsville, N Y	,20	1 1	7
Mrs R A Silloway, Box 71, 2 copies, Abner Wheelock, Francis Rice, Peter Miller, J C Mason, A Merrick.	West Acton, Mass	2,00 ,25 ,25	ĩ	7
A Merrick,	Age Office,	,25	1 1	3
Avery Rogers, Nathaniel Phillips.	E Marshfield, Mass	25		8
Nathaniel Phillips, John Tilden,	"	,25	î	iż
Wales Rogers, Asa Waterman, Jason Ayers, Patar Countrayman	11 S Manubhull Masa	,25 ,25 ,25 ,25	1 1	7 17
Jason Ayers,	Poland, N Y	25	1 1	17
Peter Countreyman,	Herkimer, N Y Middleville, N Y Control Village Ct	,25	· ī į	17
Geo M Thomas, Mrs Mary B Amea	Middleville, N Y Central Village, Cf	,25 ,25
Dr C Barnes,	Central Village, Ct Troy, N Y Millord, N H	,20	$     \begin{array}{c}       1 \\       1 \\       1 \\       1 \\       1 \\       1 \\       2     \end{array} $	17 17
A Hutchinson,	Miltord, N H	1,50	2	4
B F Hutchinson, Abel C Wilder,	N Leominster, Mass	$^{1,50}_{,25}$	$\frac{2}{1}$	-1 17
E A Roberts,	N Uxbridge, Mass	.20	î i	6
L D Palmer,	Lincoin, Vt	,25 ,25	1 1	17
Chas N Shedd, Otis II Chellis,	So Hardwick, Vt Meriden, N H	,25		17 17
Sam'l C Moulton,	44 .	20	1 1	17
J F Rainsford, John Sargent,		,25 ,25		17 17
James Sargent,		,-0		•
James Saigent, Mrs Sam'l Sample, C H Latham,	Randolph, N Y	1,00		28
G H Latham, G H Stockham.	Lafavette, Ind	,25 1,00		20 24
G II Stockham, O L Woodruff,	Lafayette, Ind Hamilton, N Y	5 N.	, ,	17
Davia it Gates,	New Worcester, Mass No Sutton N H	£,20 ,25 1,50 1.50		17 52
R Poyter, Esa.	No Sutton, N H	1,00	î i	52
John T-Wills	Jackson, Mich.	,25 2,00	$\frac{1}{2}$	17
John W Allen, Wm Johnson.	Oneida, N Y Appleton, Wis	2.00	2	4
Mrs S B Couch,	Mills' Mills, N Y Cambridge, Mass	,25 2,00	$\tilde{2}$ 1	17
Eben Suow,	Cambridge, Mass	$2,00 \\ 2,00$	2 2	$\frac{2}{4}$
A Jordan, 🏾 🏟 S A Hastings, 🗖	Brunswick, Me S Framingham, Mass N Blackstone, Mass N Woburn, Mass Etchlurg, Chio	- 25		13
S A Hastings, • Nelson Smith,	N Blackstone, Mass	120	-	13
E Fuller, J C Beardsly	N Woburn, Mass Fitchburg, Ohio	1,00	$\frac{1}{1}$	31 17
M S Richards.	E. Cleveland, Ohio	,25 ,75 2,00	1 3	24
D B Thayer, Jacob Winger,	St Louis, Mo Font Hill, C <sup>A</sup> W Morrisiata, N Y Napoli, N Y Otto, N Y Stockholm N Y	2,60	2 1	1
Jacob Winger, Francis J Smith,	Morrisiana, N Y	,25 2,00	2	4
A Bushnell,	Napoli, NY	1,50	1 4	15
Mrs Jerusha Nye, Harvey Thatcher, Josiah D Wheeler, S A G Barrett	Otto, N Y Stockholm N V	1,50	3 3	-1 4
Josiah D Wheeler,	Acton, Mass	2,00 2,00	ŝ	5
SAG Barrett, C	N Scituate, Mass - )	1,001		30
Geo F King, Jag G Wante	Collins Center, N Y Aurora, N Y	$^{,25}_{2\ 00}$	1	$17 \\ 52$
Mrs C C Hubbard.	Smyrna, N Y	1,00	1 3	26
S A G Barrett, Geo F King, Jas G Weeks, Mrs C C Hubbard, Mrs Amelia Hicox 8am'l Butler, J A Hough,	Clinton, N Y	$^{-1,00}_{-2;00}$	2	5 31
Bam'i Butler, I A Hough.	Flint, Mich	$1,00 \\ 1.00$		$\frac{51}{12}$
Justice Taylor,	Weilfleet, Mass	,25	1	17
W Loring.	Natick, Mass	,25	1	17
	enate and House of L	epress	ntativ	5

its origin and its allied forces should not be forgotten. He continued :

"The services of liberal Christianity to Christendom are widely felt and acknowledged, but they must remember that they are tributary, not independent reformers, and bring whatever of precious truth they have found to the mint of the Ohurch. Universal, there to be accepted and stamped before it can freely enter into the circulation of Christendom. The time had arrived when Unitarianism has the option either to lapse into rationalism or turn more decidedly into the body of the Church of Christ, finding there its home, and communicating of the joy of a son supposed to have been lost, returning strong and happy to his father's house. He wished to be explicit and unmistakable in what he now affirmed, knowing well the use likely to be made of it. and that he would be made to say precisely what he did not say. Let it be understood, then, that in respect to what is either positive or negative in Unitarianism, he had no disclaimers to make, nothing to surrender, no views to change, no past opinions to disown, and that, so far as he knew, the Unitarian body had none."

He considered abuse of private judgment as the rock on which modern society had driven. "Under this cry of strict individuality, the French sans culotte, the modern Calvinist, the American abolitionist and the Southern fillibuster were all ranged together, seeking to put down public amusements with a text, to overturn law and order with a scruple of conscience, to dissolve the Union with a phrase from. Isaiah, or to read the Chief Justice of Massachusetts, or the President of Harvard College, into the pillory with a little chopped logic." This system of private judgment was little better than. blasphemy. Philosophy was of no avail to the world without a church as a reservoir of spiritual life.

With regard to the third point, Dr. Bellows the Harmonial Colony Association for the current year, and it is hoped that all of the members and friends of our movement will be present and take part in the meeting.

7. Resolved, That until otherwise ordered, it be considered the rule of this Association to notify its regular members by advertising the same in the Banner of Light, Spiritual Age, and Pra-tical Christian.

Given at Worcester, Mass., Sept. 21st, 1859. Per Order of the Directory, D. C. GATES, Recorder.

MEDIUMS IN MAINE.

Mrs. Leach. Brewer. Writing and Trance Medium. Mr. Bremhall, Belfast, powerful Healing Medium. Mr. A. B. Pierce, Belfast, Trance-Speaking Medium. Gibson Smith, Camden, Trance-Speaking, Healing and Lecturing Medium.

Mr. Galeb Thomas, Cauden, powerful Prescribing, Describing and Healing Medium, by the laying on of hands.

John P. Cotton, Scarsport, Rapping and Physical Medium.

Joseph N. Hodges, Monroe, Prescribing, Trance-Speaking and Lecturing Medium.

G. B. Hopkins, Oldtown, Trance Speaking Medium. Rosan M. Smith, Hampden, Trance-Speaking Medium Susan W. Jackson, Hampden, Rapping, Tipping and Heating Medium.

Russell Severance, Bradford, powerful Healing and Trance Medium.

Miss Empline Cunningham, Bradford, Trance-Speak ng and Prescribing Medium.

Mrs. Keen, Augusta, Writing and Trance Medium. J. L. Lovell, Varmouth, Clairvoyant, Healing, Tranco Speaking and Lecturing Medium.

Mrs. Haskell, Buckfield, Trance-Speaking and Lee uring Medium.

Miss A. C Cram, Stevens' Plains, Writing, Trance-Speaking and Lecturing Medium.

Benj. Colson, Monroe, Prescribing and Trance Medium.

THE REFORMER'S HOME,

For the accommodation of Spiritualists and Friends of Progress, at moderate, charges, is centrally located at 109 Gem. 22

1 m K

Miss R. T. AMEDEY, 32 Allen street, Boston, Trance Speaking Medium, will answer calls for speaking on the Sabbath and at any other time the friends may desire. Address her at 32 Allen street, Boston. Tr She will also attend funerals

LORING MOODY will lecture in Natic, Sunday, Oct. 9th; and on intermediate weekday evenings in neighboring towns or villeges. He will not as agent for the AGE and BANNER; and also answer calls to lecture .- Address, Malden, Mass.

H. L. BOWKER, Natick, Mass , will give lectures on Spiritunlism and its proofs, from intuition, for such compensation above expenses as generosity may prompt.

G. B. STEBBINS speaks on Sundays through the year at Ann Arbor, Mich.; and will answer calls to lecture in that vicinity in the week.

A. C. ROBINSON, trance-speaker, will receive calls to lecture. Address at Fall River, Mass.

Rev. JOHN PIERPONT will receive calls to speak on Spiritualism. Address, West Medford, Mass.

BENJAMIN DANFORTH will answer calls to preach on An cient and Modern Spiritualism synonymous with the Gospel of Christ as he understands it. Address at Boston.

GEORGE ATKINS, Clairvoyant Physician and Heating Medium, No. 3, Winter Street, Boston, at the rooms of J. V. Mansfield, Writing Medium. Examination when the patient is present, $1; by a lock of hair when absent, $3. Also, healing by laying on of hands. n6 3m

"Freely give and freely receive."

As the above has been strongly advocated by Spiritualists, as the only basis for mediumistic compensation, I have resolved to test its practicability. The readers of the AGE may send me, such compensation as they choose, and shall receive in seturn a corresponding amount of my time and effort in writing such psychometric and intuitive impressions as may be had, from their handwriting, relating to their looks, parentage, mental and physical condition, mediumship, conjugal influences, business, or whatever may come up. Office No. 7 Davis street, Boston, on Saturdays. Address

H. L. BOWKER, Natick, Mass.

MEETINGS IN BOSTON.

The Regular Spiritualists Meetings, under the management of Dr. H. F. Gardner, are held every Sunday in Ordway Hall, Washington street, entrance nearly op-Lake St., Cleveland, Ohio. Office of the Vanguard and posite Milk street. Miss LIZZIE DOTEN, trance-speaking medium, will occupy the desk next Sunday.

Mistake The dom; or Jesus and his Gospel before Paul and Christianity. Price $1.00. Just published, and for sale by BELA MARSH, No. 14 Bromfield street. 17-tf.

RICE'S SPIRIT MEDICINES.

Purifying Syrup, Price $1,00 per bottle. Nerve Soothing Elixir, Price 50 cents per bottle. Healing Ointment, Price 25 cents per box. Pulmonary Syrup, Price 50 cents per bottle.

These Medicines have all been tested and can be relied upon; they contain no poison. They are all prepared from spirit directions by WILLIAM E. RICE. For sale by BE-LA MARSH, 14 Bromfield street, Boston.

HENRY C. WRIGHT'S BOOKS.

Marriage and Parentage; or, the Reproductive Element in Man, as a means to his Elevation and Happiness. Price $1.

The Unwelcome Child; or, the Crime of an Undesigned and Undesired Maternity. Price in cloth, 45 cents; in paper covers, 30 cents.

A Kiss for a Blow; or, a Collection of Stories for Children, showing them how to prevent quarreling. Price 38 cents; illustrated edition, 62 cents.

The Errors of the Bible Demonstrated by the Truths of Nature; or, Man's only Infallible Rule of Faith and ting to the "taking the fish called Alewives," in their pus-Practice. Price in cloth, 38 cents; in paper covers, 25 cts. The above are for sale, at wholesale or retail, by BELA MARSH, No. 14 Bromfieldstreet, Boston. 41-tf

ESOTERIC ANTHROPOLOGY

By T L. Nichols, M. D. Price $1.00. A new supply of this valuable work is just received and for sale by Bela Marsh, No. 14. Bromfield St.

THEODORE PARKER'S RECENT PUBLI-CATIONS.

A Sermon for the New Year; What Religion may do for a Man; to which is added Mr. Parker's Farewell Letter to his Society. Price 6 cents.

Parker's Two Sermons on Revivals; and one on faise and True Theology Price 8 cents each. named.

Parker's Four Sermons preached in the yearly Meeting of Progressive Friends, at Longwood, Pa., May S0th and 31st. 1858. Price 17 cents; also his speech delivered at the New England Anti-Slavery Convention in Boston, May 26, 1858; on the Relation of Slavery to a Republican Form of Government; and also, his Fornth of July Sermon, on the in the Spiritual Age and the Abington Standard. effect of Slavery on the American People. Price 8 cents each Sermon of Immortal Life, Fifth Edition, 10 cents. For sale by Bels Marsh, publisher14 Bromfield Street.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in General Court assembled :

The undersigned, committees of the towns of Hanson and Hanover, hereto duly authorized by the votes of said towns, respectfully represent, that by the Special Laws of 1792, passed Feb. 22nd of that year, and amended in 1859, rela-"snge up Indian Head River (so called) &c.," that the time named in the 2d Section of said Act, for opening, and keeping open the sluice ways through or passage ways round the several dams across said stream is too early in the scason for said fish ; We therefore pray that said act may be so modified and amended as shall confer upon the committees of the said towns, or a major part of them; the power to control the time for opening and keeping open the said sluice or passage ways, the time not to exceed 40 days, for the passage of said fish up said stream ; And also, that no fish shail be taken for sale, until a sufficient supply, (in the judgement of said committees,) for the propogation of said fish, shall have gone into the pouds above, after which, said ways may be closed ; and that such other acts may be passed as may be deemed necessary for the purposes above

> EBENEZER B. K. GURNEY, Committee ELIJAH CUSHING. WILLIAM ROURNE. BRNJ. F. BURGES, Committee WILLIAM.WHITING. MARTIN T. BATES, Hanovr.

I hereby approve of the publication of the above patition OLIVER WARNER, Sec'y of the Committee.

Secretary's office, Boston, Sept. 20, 1859. Hanson, Sept. 10, 1859.