TERCOURSE.

THOUGHT IS THE BEGINNING OF WISDOM. , · · THE AGITATION OF

PUBLISHED BY CHARLES PARTRIDGE, NO. 3 COURTLAND STREET-TERMS, ONE DOLLAR AND FIFTY CENTS PER ANNUM; SINGLE COPIES, THREE CENTS.

Volume I.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1853.

Number 41.

Principles of Mature.

For the Spiritual Telegraph. NECESSITY OF OPENING THE SPIRIT

WORLD TO MAN: PROVED BY EVIDENCE DERIVED FROM THAT WORLD.

For the benefit of the Spiritual believers no man's own organization. defense is necessary, as their faith is so firm that no external opposition can disturb them; nevertheless, that they may be able to give a reason for the faith that is in them, I will suggest a few things that may serve as an answer to those who mistake the manifestations for a delusion or which is worse, for a wicked imposition.

When God made the earth he surrounded it insurmountable difficulty in the outset; for in worlds, and thirdly, from the wants of those turn of conscious intercourse with the Spirit- have the Lord to reign over them will in due with the Spirit-world, and intended that man, his crowning work, should hold intercourse through it, with angels and superior intelligences; but man sinned, lost his highest privilege, and was compelled to restrict himself to the companionship of the beings tangible by his external senses. It was, however, determined at the time when this misfortune befell him, that this great and holy prerogative of his unfallen condition should at some time be restored, and man now investigating this subject, in a spirit of imals which surrounded him he perceived an be again brought into harmony with his God, and with the heavenly host; but long centuries | the phenomena here spoken of are of daily oc- | not recognize for himself; and dependent though of silence were to pass before this consumma- currence. Therefore to yourself, and to other he was upon his God for everything, yet he felt ers of darkness, both visible and invisible. tion could be effected; and in that time no believers, this statement is not exaggerated; within himself a supreme will, which could alone voice was to be heard from the world beyond but to the skeptic something more than asser- be satisfied by knowledge that he was truly an the grave, excepting in those extreme cases, in tion is necessary. Having stated the premises, immortal being, and as such was the companion he was excited by the beauty of these creawhich it was necessary for his good that God I will endeavor to bring proof sufficient to sat- of the inhabitants of a higher sphere, to which tions to desire their control, and therefore comshould speak to him, for instruction or reproof. isfy any really honest seeker after this wonder- he could look as to a future home. When the menced the foolish and utterly futile warfare Thus the Spirit-world became as a sealed ful knowledge. book to the residents of the external world. Over its secrets a vail of impenetrable darkness ited in all the period of its existence on this adapted to the different characters of those him a place whereon to take vengeance for his was thrown; and no one who had once entered | earth, was the fault of ingratitude for the favors | worlds, and able by his organization to appreciits portals was permitted to reveal the myste- which were received from his beneficent Creator, ate, and go from one to the other, without lay- Creator. Can there be conceived a more deries of the dread journey. Man felt when his by which he worked out his own punishment, ing off his outward body, or of passing through testable act than that by which Satan trihour of departure from all that his senses could in bringing the curse of sin and death into a the gloomy gateway of the tomb. He was sur- umphed apparently over his Creator and Judge? perceive drew nigh that he was departing for- world intended by God to be a paradise of innoever from friends, relatives, and all that his soul cence and purity; for being made in the image and in intimate communion with them, meeting when he created man, and therefore made him held dear, committing himself to an unknown of his Creator, it behooved him to preserve that them face to face as an equal, and an heir with liable to be destroyed, and to be overcome by sea, on which he was to be carried, he knew not image in all its original brightness and purity. them of their glorious inheritance of immortalwhither, at the mercy of an unknown pilot, This he did not do; and therefore fell; and ity. Situated thus, his was, indeed, a being the universe around him that he might have from those superior intelligences who were at without the possibility of informing those he with him fell also the earth, and all the families perfectly to be desired; and thus was he to reloved of his situation, or his welfare, or whether of earth's creatures. The Spirit-world, parted main forever united to another state by unend- the least excuse for sinning against his law. he still existed, and was conscious of that ex- by a great gulf, revolved around him unseen. istence. When, therefore, the fact of the opening of the new. It is not so, but only a reestablishment But if he sinned he could not be deprived of so that he might be restrained by interests Spirit-world became known to the inhabitants of of the original plan of the Almighty Architect his immortal soul; indeed, for that would have greater than could be brought to bear against highway of communication between Earth and that world, a universal joy was manifested, be- of the whole universe. When the spirits made been as acknowledging on the part of his Maker him. cause it was apparent to all that the celestial their first manifestations in this era of the world, that he had made a being which he could not spheres were at length about to be reunited once determined enemies to anything like an existmore to the earthly one; and our kindred, so ence beyond this present sphere, endeavored to long in darkness respecting our situation, were throw ridicule upon the communications by deto receive ample proof of our continued exist- claring them childish, puerile, and totally unence and interest for them. But here the doubt regarding this fact of in- claimed to originate. Then, by derisive inita- of realizing it as a tangible fact, and to accom- hour God severed the visible chain which bound moval to a higher sphere, where, progression tercourse between us and you intruded itself tions with toe and knee joints, some strove to plish his high destiny, be obliged to pass through the spiritual to the natural; and man, left in still going on, he could be translated to a still necessarily, from the strangeness of that fact it- persuade themselves and others that the whole the dark valley of death. self; and proof was demanded that this com- was a miserable delusion and a mockery, which munication was not a delusion. Sensible and ought to be put down by an excercise of the the day that thou eatest thereof thou shall of his fall from innocence; and dependent upon earth to communicate with his descendants and audible vibrations, it was said, could not be civil power, and by stripping from those who surely die," referring to the only prohibitory himself for that bread which had been given loved children. Thus God designed; but by made by intangible substances, like spirits di- had been made media, (by God himself for command which was given, and it was imme- him by his Heavenly Father, went forth from a permission of His will, Satan was allowed to vested of their outward bodies; and therefore, transmission of his behests to them,) their char- diately fulfilled; for death at once took pos- Paradise, a wanderer, to live his allotted time, establish, if he could, for a season, his power that the few who received the communications acter for probity and honor among their fellow session of his body, and the work of corruption and to earn his support by the sweat of his over the new created world, and to tempt man as reliable, were, to a certainty, either deranged beings. But this determined hostility availed commenced; the principle of immortality in brow. or else most strangely deluded by designing im- nothing. The despised media became eagerly the external, being destroyed by the sin which posters. Proof upon proof has been given, by sought after by the inquisitive people, who de- had been committed. Thus was he cut off vis-almost always effect a displacemement; and this hour of trial and of doubt. doubtless persons who are powerful magnetizers, must fail to produce the physical manifestations. ills and sufferings. But the difficulty is greatly increased when we the psychological exhibitions of the day, whether of encouragement and hope. This unfolding is The Spiritual world was still around, and still ing thus situated he could not wish to live; and called biology, psychology, or magnetism, can designed to rid you of your shackles, to make supporting him by its unseen influences; and he feared to die. This fear has been perpetube brought to believe by any amount of external you free with the freedom of God's children, and never has it been cut off in reality, though for ated in his descendants; and until this return evidence that this is not another form of the to lift away from you the doubts and fears re- so long a time undiscovered by man externally. of intercourse has been the dreaded associate of Mind, therefore, powerful as it undoubtedly is, has laid off its outward body of flesh, with all its the intercourse has been opened.

First, from the nature of the case : Man was consider the astonishing displays of hidden created with an immortal soul, which could not power apparent in the ability to write, speak, be satisfied without the certainty that the world and act, in answer to the thoughts unexpressed to which he aspired should be within his comof the vast numbers of sincere inquirers who are prehension and within his sight. In all the anhonest seeking for the truth. You know that adaptedness to their situation which he could it is permitted, to encourage and sustain the work of creation was finished, man, the inhabi-You think that all this spiritual intercourse is he remained worthy of enjoying them innocently.

same will-manifestation, operating upon suscep- specting your existence after you have passed But when the punishment was commenced, all living beings with which the earth has tible subjects by means either of electricity, from this changing and fluctuating state. There- there was a promise attached to it, and that was teemed. But now God has decreed the downodic force, or some kindred power inherent in fore put away from your minds all dread of the this: That "the seed of the woman should fall of sin, with its accompanying punishment, world's opinion, and examine the proofs that I bruise the serpent's head." And when that was death, and in the eternal counsels of Jehovak Determined will directed upon any object can will give you, to convince and support you in done-then the evil should disappear from the the time is at hand; for the Spirit-world de-That the Spirit-world is now opened to in the creation. Thus was Adam comforted; its melodics rising on the startled ear of man; would be able to produce effects by a disturb- intercourse with the external sphere is a fact and thus have his descendants been sustained; the mountain of the Lord's house is established ance of impouderable substances, provided they susceptible of proof; first, from the nature of and in the coming of Christ, (who is God mani- upon the top of the mountain; a band of perwere able to bring that magnetic force to bear the case; secondly, from the design of fest,) the promise commenced being fulfilled; manent (that is, immortal) pilgrims have been in the proper direction. But here is then an God's providence in the creation of those but it is now near its consummation in the re- chosen and called to it; and all who wish to no manner can a spirit confined within a fleshy who are placed in them, and the need they have world. Thus the necessity of this intercourse time receive an invitation to go there and abide body exert its utmost strength in any direction. for proof of the spirit's future existence after it is proved by the wants of the creature for whom His coming-where sin and sinners will be de-

Second: The design of God's providence in the creation of those worlds. Having thus rapidly glanced at the first part of the subject, we come now to consider the second, which will take us further into the counsels of God than has ever yet been allowed to man. But as the time of probation of the external is nearly finished. souls of those who are struggling with the pow-When God made the earth and heaven, Satan be a name only but a perfect reality. But he was not in rebellion against his government; but was a progressive being, and therefore could not be limited by finite boundaries which were necessarily made to the outward or visible against him who was Head and Ruler over all world. He had aspirations higher than could tant of three worlds, united to them all by ties his wishes. Therefore the world became for be gratified by any sensuous enjoyment; but he was to be gratified, and therefore God, when he made him, gave him a living soul, immortal and discomfiture against man, the last work of his indestructible, which, reaching beyond this outward sphere, could be satisfied only with spiritual and celestial pleasures. But he was, while rounded by the inhabitants of all those worlds, But God knew that this event would occur, innocent, to be perfectly happy, so long as he continued a denizen of this earth; therefore, he was made to perceive the glories to which temptation; but at the same time so arranged his being tended, and to receive instruction every possible inducement to obedience, and once his teachers and intimate companions. In this God had the good of his creature alone ing ties, which were to be pleasant to him while | To this end he made him to hold intercourse in view. Thus he created the earth and with it linked the spiritual and celestial spheres, the directly with angelic beings, and with himself, ultimate goal of obedient man. He made a Heaven, by which angels descended and man was to ascend when his work in the outward Thus placed, he was the acknowledged head control, and had thus been compelled to destroy of all beings on the earth; but his very existit from his Universe. Therefore, he was to be ence was bound up in the commands of his held to those worlds to which by his situation, Creator; and well the tempter knew this; and mained in a state of innocence it was undergoas head of all the creatures of earth, he was with consummate craft he wrought upon his ling a process of refining, which, purging away worthy of the exalted place from which they united, but was to be deprived of the privilege self-love, and worked his ruin. In that dread the grosser elements, was preparing it for a redarkness respecting his fate, felt the punishment higher plane of existence, but with the power When this was to be, was stated thus : "In of his transgression, beginning at the moment of returning daily or hourly, if he wished, to earth, and man be restored to his former place scends to earth once more. Again are heard stroyed and earth once again bloom with Paradisical beauty. All the designs of God are perfect in their conception and in their fulfilment, though to mortals not always comprehended, as indeed they can not be, for the finite can not perfectly understand the infinite; therefore, they judge falsely who undertake to fathom the counsels of Omnipotence. When man was created he was the universal sovereign of this earth and of all its inhabitants; and being so he was endowed with the power of life everlasting, in order that this sovereignty might not moving heavy bodies without mortal assistance, termined to hear and judge for themselves ibly from his inheritance, but still connected and desolate to him and all that had before de- When he fell the earth became his prison and that spirits have power to work upon material whether these things were so. Thus the fact of therewith by an invisible tie, which shall never substances to move them, but still men attribute spirit communication became established by the be severed. It was an important portion of his only ashes and death. You can form no con- abiding conviction of any other life beyond the these facts not to the true cause, but with a testimony of not two or three witnesses, but by punishment, this sundering of these beautiful ception of the horror with which Adam and his present. perseverance most unaccountable (when the thousands. Still, with the world at large, the and glorious ties, which bound him to the eterbenefits to themselves are considered,) refer cry of humbug, delusion, imposture and witch- nal and visible realization of his destiny, and afforded exquisite delight to them while inno- ishment, there was coupled a promise of restosuch movements to the magnetic influences ema- craft, had its effect; and many who wished to cursed with a life of toil for a period very far cent; for in all they beheld the curse of their ration to his Maker's favor; but it was vague nating from themselves, or from some one near, believe, were afraid to examine for fear of being exceeding that of his descendants, he was ap- sin. The spirit departed from all vegetables; and unsatisfactory to him; and notwithstandlaughed at as simple persons, easily led away parently left alone, to struggle with the evil and thus the immortalizing principle in his food ing the translation of Enoch and Elijah, he had if not present at the time.

The worst fault that mankind has ever exhib-

Wherefore now no person who has adopted by designing cheats for the basest purposes. the theory of the will-power, as manifested in It is to such that I would address a few words he appeared to be thus alone, it was not so! which could afford continued life to them. Be- God spoke to Moses in fire, on Mt. Sinai, but he

in the light of the spirit-spheres, seemed dark only paradise, but the hope of immortality. lighted by its beauty, gave back to his gaze his grave; and till Christ appeared he had no was finished. This way did not require him to lay aside his external body; for while he reaway from his allegiance to his Creator. He Then the world which before was all smiling accomplished his design; and man lost, not companion looked on those beauties which had It is true that with the annunciation of his punwhich had overwhelmed him. But, although was withdrawn, and gave nourishment no longer but small hope of anything beyond the present.

said nothing which could intimate that there was any thing more than an external prosperity in store for the Israelites : and though he repeatedly afterward communicated with him by his prophets, it was not until the fulness of time this life and immortality beyond the grave were brought to light by the resurrection and ascension of the Redeemer. But even then no voice from the internal world spoke audibly to the outward; and it was not intended that there should be any at that time. Man was to be again tried; and if he proved faithful, then the eternal world was to be opened, and sin destroyed.

But again man fell short of his duty and sinned against God and his highest nature, for he soon relapsed into formality, and insincerity toward his Creator, giving to him lip-service, instead of the sacrifice of a broken and a contrite heart, so that the Spirit-world was again sealed for a season from his gaze; and he was obliged to be contented with the promise of life hereafter. Now, however, while skepticism and doubt of everything have convulsed the earth, God throws over the miserable mortals, struggling in darkness and in fear, the refulgent beams of his own light from out the invisible, to cheer and console his true but doubting people-not in all its splendor indeed, for that would destroy, but in faint flashes strong enough to attract, yet weak enough to cause cavilers to sneer and deride, until the time when sin shall forever end, and sinners shall be destroyed.

Thus have I redeemed my promise, and shown the design of the creation of the Universe as it is. Now, thirdly and lastly, from the wants of those in the external. In discussing this topic some of the wants of man have been stated, therefore there is not much which need be said here. Nevertheless there are a few things of importance to look at under this head; and first, man is not a being to be satisfied with anyreach this point, yet he needs the stimulant of that infinity to nerve him for the trials and duties by which he is surrounded. Secondly : He has the love of goodness implanted in his nature; and however much he may sin, that love is never quite extinguished; therefore the longing after something better and more durable than anything which he finds here below. Thirdly : From his constitution he is subject peculiarly to pain and sickness, which often makes his existence here a curse to him; hence the hope of something after he shall have laid off this body is absolutely necessary to sustain him. For these reasons the Spirit-world is now opening to him. Proof upon proof is being given that there is another and a better life in store for the obedient and truthful, beyond the grave. While this is so, the fact is no less true, that there is a place of punishment for the hardened diso bedient when they shall have passed away; for sin must be punished, and the time for doing it in this world is growing very short. Still sinners live on as in the time of Noah, refusing to notice the signs of the coming tempest until it is too late; and then, like the antedeluvians, they will be cut off and never return until all sin shall be purged away in endless fires in Hades. Be therefore faithful to your high privileges, and seek the Lord while he may be found lest you also perish. JAS. A. CLEVELAND.

Sun and Moon-A Fable.

Translated from the German of Herder. ву м. н.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1853.

BRITTAN AND RICHMOND'S DISCUSSION

QUISTION-Do those who have departed this life still continue to hold intercourse with the bo yet remain on earth:

NUMBER FIVE.

MYSTERIOUS MOVEMENTS OF PONDERABLE BODIES.

Among the modern mysteries nothing has excited greater surprise than the strange and startling phenomena of which I propose te treat in this connection. With all our pretended reliance on Spiritual realities, few among us were prepared to entertain the subject in a becoming present, so that they ran underneath him, in order to defend him from ence, varies the form of experiment and renders manner. True, all had read of the ancient marvels and many had professed to believe. The sacred legends of the Hebrews had been subjects of familiar contemplation from early childhood, and for eighteen centuries theologians had labored to propagate a religion for which they claimed the sanction of invisible Powers. From the world's high places they had pointed to the Orient as the scene of oracular communication and miracle, but, as the oriental mysteries faded in the distance of time, faith became cold, and formal, and powerless. The ability of spirits to manifest their presence, in any tangible manner, came to be treated as a false pretense, or a merc fancy engendered by disease. Such, in himself to severe mortifications, was often surrounded with a strong responded instantly, and in the peculiar manner brief, was the state of the public mind when, suddenly, PONDERABLE BODIES BEGAN TO MOVE in violation of known physical laws, and in obedience to the dicta of some hidden intelligence.

The phenomena soon became frequent, powerful, and exceedingly diversified. A mysterious presence appeared to hold, in subjection to its will, the great forces of Nature. What philosophers termed inertia no longer opposed a successful resistance to the motion of ponderable thing short of infinity; and, although he never can objects Gross matter seemed at once inspired with a disposition to downward to the center of the earth. The law was universal and undeviating in its operation. The few apparent exceptions recorded in the > Scriptures were at once ascribed to the special interposition of Omnipotence, while all similar facts, of more recent occurrence, were boldly denied. But at length a power, superior to the forces usually operative laws of Nature had been revised to suit the times, or that they might casions. To the mind of the spiritual philosopher all appeared orderly as before. The original laws of matter, indestructible as the elements they govern, were seen to be in full force, while their action, with respect to particular objects, was neutralized by the direct agency and superior power of an unseen intelligence. In all this the Divine order of the Universe is observed and the grand harmony is unbroken, for, from the beginning, the highest natures have been endowed with the most God-like capabilities. The facts in this department are numerous, but for obvious reasons I can only present a few examples. In the sixth chapter of the Second Book of Kings it is written that, 'The sons of the prophets were employed in cutting timber near the Jordan, and as one was felling a beam, the axhead fell into the water; and he cried, Alas, Master ! for it was borrowed. And the man of God said, Where fell it? And he showed him ure, and have the kindness to state whether the translation of Enoch the place. And he [Elisha] cut down a stick and cast it into the water, and the iron did swim.' It is not to be supposed that the relative weight of iron and water was changed to produce this phenomenon. The two substances remained precisely the same, in their constituent in his body? As you are inclined to fear that I may "dodge" the issue, elements and comparative density, and the laws of Nature were, strictly you will, I trust, be careful that your example shall not contribute to forth from her chamber-as a Hero rejoicing over his speaking, no more violated than they are when a spirit in the form raises a ponderable object from the ground. That spiritual agency was employed, to support the iron on the surface of the water, I conceive to be quite possible. If in your opinion the cause of this singular effect consisted in a rarefaction of the od-force of the ax, will you enlighten our theologians on this subject, and hereafter give Elisha, instead of the Baron, the credit of discovering od? In the fifth chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, we have an account of a remarkable demonstration of spiritual power in the development of a physical effect. The apostles were preaching the gospel of Spiritualism, "healing the sick," and delivering those who "were vexed with unclean spirits." There were, at that time, as there are now, among the media many who were troubled with disorderly manifestations, and the Apostles were accustomed to relieve such persons from the influence of the ignorant spirits who controled them. But the high priest and Sadducees being materialists did not believe in this spiritual jugglery. prison.' "But the angel of the Lord by night opened the prison-doors and brought them forth." spirit that rolled the rock away from the door, says that, those who entered distance of several feet from the table, having been moved so gently, sirable. the sepulcher "saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a and yet so instantaneously, as searcely to be conscious of the fact. It long white garment.-(Chapter xvi.)

philosophy to his case. Did Philip accomplish the feat by rarefying the ment, he was out of the room and in the second od, or, was he removed, as the account states, by a spirit?

Kerner, in his "Revelations concerning the inner life of Man," relates a number of facts illustrative of this phase of the manifestations. Several of these are so well adapted to my purpose that I must not omit to introduce them at this stage of the investigation :

" Andrew Mollers mentions a woman, who lived in 1620, who, being in a magnetic state, rosc suddenly from the bed into the air, in the presence of many persons, and hovered several yards above it, as if she would have flown out of the window. The assistants called upon God, and forced her down again. Privy Counsellor Horst speaks of a man nessed the phenomena described in the precedin the same condition, who, in the presence of many respectable witnesses, ascended into the air and hovered over the heads of the people test the presence of a foreign intelligent influinjury should he fall."

In the account of the strange phenomena observed at the tomb of the within the whole range of scientific research and Abbé Paris, in 1724, it is alleged that not less than twenty persons, whose united weight could not have been less than one tun, were permitted to stand on a plank which was resting on the body of a sick person; and that some mysterious power was exerted in the opposite by some intelligence wholly foreign to the comdirection, to such a degree that the parties who were subjected to this pany. Though the medium, through whom the severe experiment experienced no pain or injury from the pressure.

It is said that Peter of Alcantara, a religious enthusiast who subjected the apartment at the time, the invisible power light, and was raised in the air, and sustained without any visible support. St. Theresa also, seems to have been subject to similar experiences. It is related that on one occasion, and in presence of a great number of witnesses, she was raised by some invisible power and was carried bodily " over the grate of the door."*

Those who deem it wiser to doubt than to believe, have been accustomed to reject these and all similar facts as monkish fables, and even now they are regarded by many as the dreams of enthusiasts. Howovercome its former indolent habits. Apparently restless and impatient, ever, they do not appear, in the light of the present, as at all improbit suddenly broke over all restraints and exhibited a strange conformity able. Indeed, separation from the world and the severe discipline to the powers of life and thought. For thousands of years all forms of of a monastic life, was by no means unlikely to render the indimatter, the specific gravity of which is greater than air, had tended vidual eminently susceptible to spiritual influence. The lives of the saints and martyrs furnish many similar phenomena, and that they were often media, for various forms of spiritual manifestation, is demonstrated | ically deny the assumption, and call on you to by the undeniable facts of their experience.

Kerner, in narrating the strange phenomena of which the Secress of Prevorst (while under spiritual influence) was the medium, says, "When results were obtained by the action of minds in in matter, was disclosed in every direction, and those who denied the she was placed in a bath . . . . her limbs, breast, and the lower part the body on electricity, od-force, or any other agency of spirits in its wonderful revelations, were left to infer that the of her person . . . involuntarily emerged from the water. Her attendants used every effort to submerge her body, but she could not be produced, with occasional exceptions, at be suspended in the most capricious manner, and on the most trivial oc- be kept down; and had she at these times been thrown into a river, she pleasure. If the necessary parties and condiwould no more have sunk than a cork."

> Now if you resort to your old assumption that, this tendency of the give us the experiment. I am disposed to be body to rise above the water was caused by the rarefaction of the odforce, I desire you to answer the following interrogatories :

1. Is it not true that the agent referred to is so rarefied at all times as to | thousand persons, to accomplish the experiment. If be inconceivably lighter than water or air ? 2. Can any one, by an act of volition, render this agent more ethereal than it is by nature, any thereupon claim to be SPIRITUAL, I will yield more than he can vaporize his blood by an effort of the will? 3. Would the point and vindicate your system, if I can it not rather be necessary to rarefy the osseous and fibrous system, in comprehend its endless involutions. order to diminish the specific gravity of the whole? 4. Is there any evidence that such a sublimation, of the grosser elements of the body, ever occurs? 6. Will you elucidate the modus operandi whereby a ments of ponderable bodies, I will here suspend man in the flesh may make himself so light that he can go up at pleas- my observations.

occurred agreeably to your peculiar mode? 6. Were Christ and Peter story of the house, while the experiment was conducted in the back parlor below.

The undersigned are ready and willing, if required, to make oath to the entire correctness of the foregoing statement."

The original paper was signed by John D. Lord, Rufus Elmer, and nine others, citizens of Springfield, Mass.

The writer was personally present and witing statement. The peculiar mode, adapted to it more than ordinarily interesting. Nothing discovery was ever more clearly demonstrated than the fact that, the weight of the table was increased and diminished, in rapid alternation, results were supposed to be obtained, was not in described in the concluding part of the statement, to as many persons as thought proper to repeat the experiment, and the response, came as promptly when the requests were mentally entertained as when they were orally expressed.

There is but one carthly hypothesis to which you can possibly resort in a case of this nature, and that is one with which you are already familiar. If, as usual, you assume that the experimenter, or some other person, controled the result, by virtue of the alleged capacity of mortals to govern some imponderable element wherewith the table may be pervaded, I must emphatput y or philosophy to the test of a practical expe iment. It must be obvious that, if the potential agent, the same or similar results may tions are all within this sphere, arrange them and liberal in this matter. I will allow you three months' time, and the concentrated will of one you succeed, and the mysterious power does not

As I can not finish, within the allotted limits, what I have to say of the mysterious move-Yours truly,

S. B. BRITTAN.

From the council of the Eternal One, proceeded his creative voice : "Two lights shall shine in the firmament of Heaven, as Rulers of the Earth, and to adjust the seasons in their rolling flight."

He spake ; and it was done. Up rose the sun, the first light-as a bridegroom in the morning, going triumphant career, so he stood in the Heavens, clothed in God's own light. A crown of many colors floated around his head, and the Earth exulted to see itself become fragrant with plants and beautiful with flowers. The other light beheld him with envy, and immediately comprehended that she could not excel in splendor that Glorious One. And thus she murmured to herself: "Why should there be two Princes on one throne? Why must I be the second, and not the first?" And suddenly, as she was absorbed with her grief, her beautiful light vanished away in the air, and left her standing, a spectacle among the stars. Of a ghostly pallor, like one dead, stood Luna, there put to shame before all the host of Heaven; and she wept, saying : " Have mercy upon me, Father of Spirits, have mercy on me !"

Then God's angel stood up in the darkness, and uttered the decree of the Most Holy: "Unfortunate one! as thou hast envied the light of the Sun, so in future thou shalt shine only by his light; and when every one who liveth upon yonder Earth is quietly asleep, then shalt thou stand forth, half or entirely obscured, as thou now art. But child of Error ! weep not; the All-merciful One has seen thy folly, and has converted it into good. Go !" saith he, " and speak shall be a balsam to revive and invigorate whatever the sun,"

The Mean was comforted ; and behold there floated around her a new light, in which she shone out in splendor once more. At that time she entered upon that quiet course of her's, in which she still moves along, as Queen of Night, and as the Conductress of the stars. Bewailing her own faults, she sympathizes with every tear, and seeks for the miserable, only to revive and to comfort them.

HEALTH.

FROM A SPIRIT, THROUGH HARRIET PORTER.

There must be a cause for every disease and ill that afflicts mankind, which cause is, at least, permitted to operate by our Creator, if not actually designed as a punishment, for disobeying some law or laws. When man finds out the means for mitigating or removing any of these causes, and their painful effects, he should conclude those means must have been created, with all their healing properties and life-giving principles, by the same Divine Being; for though man may discover and apply laws and things, he can not create them. Is it not then absurd, as well as impious, to say doing these things is not pleasing to God, if we admit that he desires man to live and be healthy. If you duly develop the whole man, by a constant exercise of the intellectual, moral, and spiritual powers, keeping the animal feeling and passions under the con-

of the wonderful experience of Philip. The Cesarcan deacon was commanded by a spirit to go to Gaza, a city of great antiquity and important situated, was repeatedly moved a distance of from four to eight inches. who have already communicated their respectwithal, it being one of the frontier defenses against Egypt. Philip The undersigned further say that they were not conscious of exerting ive views, we may venture to suggest that, the within, to being one of the housed that, he met a subject of Ethiopia any power of will at the time, or during any part of the exhibition; on true position of Christ in the Universe, where whom he instructed in the prophetic writings and soon converted to the the contrary they are quite sure that the exercise of the will is always he should be more cordially entertained and spiritual religion of Jesus. Finding a convenient place at or near Gaza, an impediment to such manifestations.

Philip baptized the new convert, and the account states that, as they again until he appeared at Azotus, situated, according to theological with our request. Apprehending that the supposed difference might be writers, about thirty miles from the place where he disappeared !

into the upper air: by the exercise of his will "he rarefies the odforce of his body." Formerly, if I mistake not, birds were enabled to rise because the air would not give way with the same rapidity of motion that it was struck by their pinions. Thus the resistance of the atmosecret, and the power of the eagle was seen to depend on the strength when the improved mode of flying was adopted, but if you admit the implied fact that Philip was transported bodily from Gaza to Azotus, in trol and guidance of those higher faculties, you do well. the manner indicated, I should like to know whether you apply your - See life of St. Theresa.

sustained on the surface of the water in accordance with your theory ? POSITION OF CHRIST IN THE UNIVERSE. And did the doubts in Peter's mind have the effect to condense the od realize your apprehension.

We are now almost daily called to witness facts which seem to warrant the presumption that gravitation and inertia are but inferior and article, presented this view of the subject with involuntary natural forces, which in their action on particular objects, no little force and ability, at the same time we may be greatly transcended by the voluntary and higher agency of deem his reasoning, in some respects, to be funmind, so frequently and powerfully do ponderable objects move when damentally unsound. Dr. Corey writes intellino physical instrumentalities are employed, and the human senses can gently, but has occupied less space. In the detect no cause of motion.

The following statement, which was furnished for publication in the ing digest of the Scripture evidence, designed last volume of the SHEKINAH, may be appropriately introduced in this to illustrate the humanitarian idea; and here connection :

"This may certify that, on the 28th day of February, 1852, while | While we are disposed to permit, and to invite. the undersigned were assembled at the residence of Mr. Rufus Elmer, a free discussion of all questions of interest to Springfield, Mass., for the purpose of making critical experiments in the our readers-so far as this is compatible with so-called spiritual manifestations, the following, among other remarka- our circumseribed limits and general design-it and filled with indignation, 'they cast the apostles into the common ble demonstrations of power, occurred in a room thoroughly illuminated. does not precisely accord with the cardinal ob-The table, around which we were seated, was moved by an invisible and jects of the TELEGRAPH to dogmatize on quesunknown agency, with such irresistable force that no one in the circle (tions of this nature, it being rather our purpose

Remarkable manifestations of spiritual power, as illustrated in the could hold it. Two men-standing on opposite sides and grasping it at to illustrate the ultra-mundane relations of manmysterious movements of ponderable bodies, are said to have occurred the same time, and in such a manner as to have the greatest possible kind, by a presentation of the facts, and a disat the sepulcher of Jesus, and are thus described by Matthew (chapter advantage-could not, by the utmost exercise of their powers, restrain cussion of the laws, of Spiritual intercourse. xxviii): "And, behold, there was a great earthquake; for the angel its motion. In spite of their exertions the table was moved from one to While we have no disposition to be unyielding the splendor of a Queen, and her penitential tears of the Lord descended from heaven and came and rolled back the three feet. Mr. Elmer inquired if the Spirits could disengage or relax in the matter, we must frankly say that, in the stone from the door, and sat upon it. His countenance was like light- the hold of Mr. Henry Foulds; when suddenly-and in a manner absence of any new light, a further discussion of languishes and becomes exhausted by the heat of ning, and his raiment white as snow." Mark, in his description of the wholly unaccountable to us-Mr. Foulds was seated on the floor at a the old theological issues is not particularly de-> was proposed to further test this invisible power, and accordingly five mention-may be very briefly expressed. With-In the eighth chapter of the Acts of the Apostles we have an account men, whose united weight was eight hundred and fifty-five pounds stood out sanctioning any personal application of the

on a table (without castors) and the said table, while the men were so remark to any of our esteemed correspondents,

At the close of these experiments it was perceived, on lifting one end and practical life of those who profess to revercame up out of the water. Philip was spirited away and was not seen of the table, that its weight would increase or diminish, in accordance ence his name and example.

justly attributable to fancy, or to some unconscious variation in the

I observe that you undertake to explain how the eagle rises manner of applying the motive power, it was proposed to settle the question by weighing the end of the table. This was fairly tested to writes us that, ' many of the most fashionable the entire satisfaction of all present. The Spirits were then requested and worldly people in that city are becoming to apply the invisible power. The balance was now applied in precisely greatly interested in what are termed the electhe same manner as before, when the weight was found to have been trical experiments. Tables are made expressly sphere to the downward movement of the wings disclosed the whole suddenly increased from six to twelve pounds, varying as the mysterious for the purpose of twirling round to the infinite force was increased or diminished, so that it now required a force of delight and astonishment of the parties engaged. of the pectoral muscles, instead of the 'rarefied ed-force.' It matters not from twenty-five to thirty-one pounds to seperate the legs of the table This new amusement has superceded waltzing from the floor. Daniel D. Hume was the medium on this occasion, and and card-playing."

it is worthy of remark that during the performance of the last experi-

The subject here designated has already been discussed at some length, by several of our correspondents. Up to this time, the advocates of the absolute Divinity of Christ have enjoyed 'the larger liberty ' Dr. Orton, in his last present number we publish a brief but interest-we should prefer to rest the whole subject.

Our own idea-the only thought we care to devoutly respected, is in the prevailing temper

ELECTRICAL ECCENTRICITY.

A much esteemed friend in Providence, R. I.,

If the people are only half as sensible as they are fashionable, it may occur to them that, electricity was never known to act in this eccentric manner before, and that this fact affords the strongest presumptive evidence that it does not act so now, and hence that the tables must be actuated by some other power.

Why the Paper Stops.

We are now daily receiving letters of inquiry from persons who do not receive the TELE-GRAPH, nearly all of whom may be answered thus: YOUR SUBSCRIPTION MAS EXPIRED. All who subscribed for six or eight months, and have not renewed, do not receive the paper for the reason that we do not send it. We invariably discontinue the paper when the time expires for which payment is made. A little attention to this rule will save some trouble and postage. We solicit from our friends a continuance of their patronage, and trust that our efforts may merit this mark of their favor.

"The Secress of Prevorst."

We have just purchased, from the Messrs. Harper, the stereotype plates of this work, and have issued a new edition, which is now ready for delivery. Very few of our Spiritual friends, compared with the great number who peruse the TELEGRAPH, have ever read these "Revelations from the inner life of Man, by Kerner;" and yet it will be found one of the most entertaining books to the great body of Spiritualists. We can confidently assure our patrons that they will find the work of great interest. Price, thirty-eight cents; postage, six cents.

COMMON SENSE.

The following judicious and excellent remarks are from the editorial columns of the New Bedford Mercury. When the secular press generally exhibits the same intelligence and candorif indeed we may hope for such a consummation-we shall venture to publish the advent of the next arrival from Europe. the millennium .- [ED.

"No man of tolerable sense will reject a thing as untrue, merely because it is strange, or apparently without use. Per se a spiritual manifestation is not an absurdity, unless all the supernatural occurrences in the history of the world are absurdities. Nor is a professed mystery absurd simply because it seems to answer no good purpose, or because it makes use of agents apparently unsuited for the awful office to which they lay claim. It is not for us to determine what is the proper form or who the proper subject of these manifestations. There seems to the irreverent a vast amount of useless machinery in the performance of the most accredited and accepted of the supernatural marvels. Means seem to them unadapted to ends, and ends to means. The unbeliever might turn into ridicule many of the miracles performed in behalf of the Jews before Christ's time, and perhaps puzzle us to explain why such circuitious paths should have been adopted to attain by supernatural means a point to which Almighty power might have stridden world, would be a young carpenter of Judea, himself one of the despised race inhabiting that country. That he should live to the age of thirty almost unknown, and then in three years promulgate doctrines | heads of my pupils; and never did I raise my hands to rule the world; that he should seal these docurines in blessing, without a corresponding feeling at my with his blood and bequeath the infamous cross as the most glorious emblem of religion-who in these days except the disciples would have believed this possible?

that not a person in the meeting sympathized in the exercises, and nearly all manifested uneasiness to see the movement of their hands in almost all possible directions, and with great force. It was subsequently remarked, by one person, that they were psychologized. Not being a student in that school, we should like to know the operator. Evidently, the circle did not induce the strange motions; for it unanimously opposed the movements. The will of the circle was in another direction. Was it some outsider ? When that outsider is named, and proves his ability to do such things, we will believe ; but do not ask us to take the > unproved and unprovable affirmation of a guessing mind, to gratify the self-esteem of such profound non-VERITAS. sense.

ROCHESTER, Jan. 22, 1853.

NEW-YORK CONFERENCE.

FOR THE INVESTIGATION OF SPIRITUAL PHENOMENA [WEEKLY REPORT.]

FRIDAY EVENING, Jan. 21, 1853. Several strangers being present, Mr. Partridge remarked somewhat at length on the origin and object of these Conferences. The fact of their presence indicated a widening interest in the subject of Spiritualism, which he hailed as a happy prophecy of the future. The facts, if they were what we claim, are worthy the deepest attention of all thinking men. If the future of a life in the body is of interest, these facts disclose an eternity of life for all men-they reveal to us not the hope merely, which was all we had before, but the thing itself, and they are to be prized accordingly. The new revealments are to the living as much above all other discoveries and revelations of truth, as the highest realization of a fact is above the hope of it.

Many facts were stated by different persons, illustrative of the power of mind over the material obstacles which usually obstruct its perceptions of distant objects and conditions. Among others

Mr. Fishbough stated that, in the spring of 1848, French politics, he distinctly saw a street in Paris, and an attempted revolt from the provisional government, which took place on the 16th of April, in that year. He asserts that the sight was as perfect as if he had been there in person. His clear-seeing was on the morning of the 19th, three days after the revolt. The full particulars of which were confirmed by The following communication, omitted in the report of last week's proceedings, was given through the rappings on the 8th of January instant, E. P. Fowler, medium :

"The potency of the will corresponds to the strength of the love of orderly uses. Admitting that the foregoing proposition be true, how would one having the qualities ascribed to the fictitious personage known as Satan, (and by an hundred other names,) cope with a Being of infinite goodness ?"

Many facts were stated by Mr. Partridge and others, some of which are withheld by request, the narrators not feeling at liberty to give them publicity. Adjourned. R. T. HALLOCK, Sec'y.

The Crown of the Aged; Translated from the German of Herder. BY M. H.

Why should not man honor him whom the Creator honors? Upon the head of the wise and virtuous gray hairs are a crown of glory. Three men who had in an instant. So with persons. The last person, one become old and gray-headed, made a feast, and called might imagine, who should prove the Savior of the their children together to partake of it. The first who was a pastor and an instructor, spake thus : "I of the way; neither did I trample haughtily upon the heart-and I praise God for these things, now that I am old." never laid in wait for my neighbor, to harm him;

REPLY TO PROF. BRITTAN.

NUMBER TWO.

DEAR SIR: Before proceeding to the explanation of facts in your second letter, I must put you back on the point you have assumed, i. e., that spirits are back here. My second point against such a supposition is, that spirits being disembodied persons, and having a transcript of all the bodily organs, the lungs must come into consideration. All our knowledge of man, at least, shows that the atmosphere is essential to his existence-he must breathe-and the chemical changes produced in the blood is well known-that a constant renovation, or calorification, of the blood is indispensable to animal life. The whole phenomenon of life seems to be chemical-and all our food undergoes the action of chemical agents before it can be appropriated to the work of nourish-went. The question is often asked, What do spirits live on ! what do they eat? Analogy teaches me that they live on the atmosphere, found in their particalar locality, and it would be more abominable to suppose that spirits could breathe our atmosphere than to suppose that we could breathe in salt water. Mahomet makes his bad followers in the spiritstate swallow boiling water, filled with thistles and briars. Another system, makes lost spirits breathe the fumes of brimstone-and you at once say that such opinions violate all analogy, and all known laws of animal life; but it is not half so ridiculous as the opinion that spiritbeings, with imponderable bodies-with brain, nerves and lungs-could enter our atmosphere, and breathe a medium or matter vastly more dense than their own bodies. Get that idea clearly before your mind, and then try to "imagine" how supremely repugnant to common sense such an opinion must be.

In your opening 'preliminaries' you give great weight to the fact that all the responses assert, that this unscen agency is spirits. Insane people, in a multitude of instances, affirm that they are harassed by spirits. This fact constitutes one strong identity between them and the medium state-they often get it into their heads that they are God, or Christ, or the Holy Ghost. Suppose one half of community in the same mood, and ask them who they are-the response is always the while his mind was occupied to some extent with some-" I am God, or Christ "-how much would it prove as to who they were? Apply your reasoning to sects, and you would prove them all to be taught of God, and founded on the Bible.

> These mediums profess to be unconscious and involuntary as to the source of their acts, and in this case they reflect the existing impression, that spirits are the cause. One medium wrote out in my presence that it was electricity. She asked electricity to rap, and it responded. Many have received responses from dogs. Ahies Cowles, in Austinburgh, called up the ghost of a horse--- "old Pomp."--- and he tramped like a horse on the table. The sounds followed the impression. The spirit of dog scratched in the same way.

> I must invite attention to the law of en rapport between mind and nind, in the magnetic state. It is admitted on all hands that such a state exists; but I will give a few examples to illustrate it. We can not understand these sounds and sights without it, and as the sounds, sights, and writings, all follow the law of mental reflection-and the reflected image often corresponds to other minds than the medium or ghostseer-both must be noticed together. In mesmerism this law is apparent.

In Deluze, I find this fact : A subject, in Connecticut, in the mesmeric mood, was put in rapport with a gentleman to visit his parlor. She described an old harp in a particular place in the room, covered with green baize. She described things accurately, as the gentleman affirmed ; but on going home, he found that on the day previous to the visit of the subject, the harp had been removed to another room ! She saw the harp in the place it occupied in his mind, and not where it really was the night of her visit. She evidently took the description from his mind.

them and throw them in the fire, when all in the house could hear the Devil-mice squeal while in the embers. None saw those specter-mice but the children, but all in the house heard them squeal. His majesty is used to fire, and his complaint in such a place was entirely out of character.

Now to understand these facts rightly we must recollect that everybody, in that day, believed that Satan could assume the form of spiders, flies, mice, cats, dogs, puppies and old women, and indeed there is no shape that the "Old Harry " has not turned into. These children, with this impression in mind in their magnetic moods, saw mice, purely spectral, and this image before the mind's eye, dictated the rest of their acts. They would also, under this belief, " purr like cats, bark like dogs and cluck like hens." Different sounds are seen in the legend of the "Screeching Woman of Marblehead." The story runs, that a piratical vessel, in the seventeenth century, landed in Marblehead harbor. The men were all gone fishing. The pirates murdered the prisoners on shore, among which was an English lady. The females heard her scream: "O mercy, mercy ! Lord Jesus save me !" That voice is still heard almost every year in still star-light or moon-light nights. The sounds are described as "wild, mysterious, superhuman and chilling." The Marblehead Register, in 1830, states that persons were living, of unimpeachable character, who have heard these sounds. These sounds follow the mental impression, and can only be explained by mental reflection. In a cold, star-light night, when the air is manguetic and impresses the brain, the mind falling on these old impressions impels the idea of sound on the car, and that organ receiving most of its impressions from the outer world, hears this mental voice, exterior to the body. Dr. Johnson, on entering his college-room, distinctly heard his mother's voice-then absent twenty miles and in health. He was surprised when he found nothing came of it. During Philip's war, in 1675, Simsbury, Conn., was burned. Col. Robe's father was walking, Sunday morning, in the open air, and he distinctly heard a small-arm fired in the air. His family also heard it, and it was heard south, fifty miles. It alarmed all Connecticut. The Governor summoned a council of war at Hartford, and defense was resolved on. The inhabitants of Simsbury fled, men, women and children. Two days after, Philip's warriors burned the village. This fact, if we will study it, teaches volumes on the laws of mind.

In this case the law of rapport is plainly seen. All Connecticut was in fear of an attack from the Indians-this is the image in the mind. War, guns, and the Savage mind in Massachusetts was concentrated on the Colonists, and on Simsbury in particular, as the result showed. The image impressed was death, guns, and powder, and the reflection corresponded. The report of a gun was heard for miles around-the reflection followed the image. A fact involving the same law, is published in the TELEGRAPH, No. 27, by J. W. Olcott. He was teaching; his father was sick-thought to be dying-he passed into the cataleptic state -was thought to be dead. At this very time his son, some miles distant in his school-house, heard rumbling sounds in another room, and clods falling on a coffin; also at the side of the school-house. The father wished to see the son, and in this state impressed his mind with these images-or what closely corresponded to them. The father's mind, in rapport with his son's, impressed the image-he heard these mental sounds outside of the school-house. A case recently occurred in France, similar. The man supposed to be dead was carried to his grave, and loud knockings in the coffin stopped his burial. The phenomenon was repeated three times—the man was not buried.

Mr. Olcott reasons logically upon this class of sounds. I could swell these examples to a volume, but must turn my attention to your examples of spirit sounds. I am aware that I am plunging into the open, shoreless sea of religious superstition—but I shall not shrink from my convictions on this subject. The whole citadel of Ghost-seeing is, in my opinion, founded in ignorance of the laws of our mental organization. The outer world has its laws of reflection, the inner or mental world has also its laws of reflection, and each corresponding to the other. The world of matter reflects its perfect image, unless intervening matter prevents it. The world of mind reflects its own images unless mind-ele ments, thoughts, intervene to prevent it. The case of Hagar follows the rule I have laid down. Angels at tha day were regarded as ministering spirits. The idea was impersonated cruel-the ass smashed his foot, and finally rebuked him. Instead of the angel impressing the animal, the animal evidently impressed the prophet. That was a singular case of impression which used the organs The usual kindness of the beast was what impressed Balaam-the voice spoke in accordance with it. The images in Elijah's case are not brought out in the narrative, so as to admit of criticism. One would naturally suppose he knew enough to eat before a journey, without spiril-direction. Job was a profound philosopher, and in his conflict with three perverse friends, those reflections were started in his mind-the idea is impersonated, and reflects its image through the ear. Job was evidently in a dream. Kings often pressed a mind 200 miles distant and received an exact response, both have the same visions that Nebuchadnezzar did-and the fear became a prophet. King Saul's case is similar. Samuel spoke the images in the cordance with the impression. He was evidently debating with himself

Considering that a mere line divides the earth from with enter upon another existence; why should it be and for these things has God given me long life." deemed impossible or ridiculous that a day will come us manifest by words and works !

It was once said that if a man really believed that he saw a ghost, he would go mad. In these days hunyet believe themselves in direct communication with spirits, and have faith in physical evidences of that strange relation. They believe and are not afraid. If all their notions be false, there is still something gained. A blow is struck at the great enemy of man's repose-FEAR; that fear which has been generated dom. by superstition, and kept alive by tradition and edueation; that fear of the unearthly which ought long since to have been overcome; that awful haunting, harrowing, undefinable fear, which visits the bedsides of thousands during the night-watches. Man will never be happy, never be truly emancipated and free, until he lives in harmony with all that surrounds him in this life, and all that shall surround him in the world to come. There should be no such word as supernatural, no strange fear at anything we see, know or fancy. Especially should the fear of death be conquered, and our thought ascend to the Spirit-land as cheerfully as they dwell upon the topics of the day.

a little conversation on his own account with the spirits themselves, under circumstances admitting of no possible trickery, imposture, or hallucination."

-----Mesmerized Mediums.

This is to us a new class of mediums with which we have not as yet been favored. True, we have quite a variety, but we should be very happy to learn something in regard to their peculiar characteristics. Possibly, allusion may be made to some person, whereby the inquirers of this city might be profited. At present, we know of no medium who is susceptible to not all, mediums in this city are not subject to the will of operators, if they inform us correctly.

On one occasion, several weeks since, we attended circle in this city, at which some half-dozen persons o the will of the whole circle We are quite sure neither have I cursed him upon my bed; and, accordthe Spirit-land, that we cease to breathe and forth- ing to my ability, I have given gladly to the poor;

The third, a judge among the people, said : "I have when we shall feel not only that the eye of God is never taken a bribe, nor insisted obstinately upon with approval on our good deeds, and with sorrow have invariably sought, in the first place, to arrive at upon our sinful acts, making the interest they feel in a just judgment; for these reasons has God blessed my old age."

Then their sons and their nephews drew near to drets of men and women, although sceing no ghost, flowers. And their fathers blessed them, and said : "As is your youth, so shall be your old age. May your children be to you what ours are to us, and your old age shall be as a blooming crown of roses."

> Old age is a beautiful crown; but it is only found in the way of Temperance, Righteousness, and Wis-herself to her daughter by the following test, which was wholly unknown to the medium and to myself. The spirit wrote through her as follows:

Extract from a letter dated January 18, 1853 :

"Well do I remember the last time you and Susan were to see me. I died with pnoumonia and pleurisy. I departed in hope of a better world, which I have realized to my satisfaction. I remember how mournful you looked when you come and found me gone: We have said these alleged "manifestations" are and Susan took up my hands and pressed them to her not to be taken as false merely because they are lips. The spirit had left the clay, but I knew it all they should be rejoicing, when we are so happy.

AILCY KYLE." P. S .- The rappings have broken out in Williams porte, Tenn.; also in Marshall City, Miss., and several other places. While writing, this letter we had the rappings, and the table is rocked to and fro and nearly turned over. The work still goes on.

> S. D. PACE. Yours,

Down through all the subordinate gradations of being, the human mind is enabled to pursue the chain that connects it with the psychological influence; but we do know that most, if | realm of materiality; and here it has lived and labored for centuries, until the relations of the at least, followed his impressions. soul to superior existences-relations not less intimate than those which unite us to all terreswere moved contrary to their wish, and in opposition trial creations-have been vailed and forgotten. S. B. B.

The idea that mesmeric persons visit in spirit distant places, is all falnever minded, when I was going to teach, the length lacy. Take one set of facts. Such persons are often consulted about money lost or stolen. You bury or hide money, or property, and then consult them-they will in many cases tell where it is; but ask them of Kidd's money, and they always fail-or of stolen property, and they always fail, unless you have a suspicion that guides them. They

The second, who was a merchant, said : "I have consult the mind of the inquirer. Upham's lectures on Witchcraft relates that a little girl, reputed a witch, in the care of Dr. Cotton Mather, would, when he repeated Hebrew, instantly tell the meaning; when he in her mind. Balaam's case follows the same law-he knew he was repeated Latin, she instantly told the meaning; when he repeated Greek, she instantly told the meaning; when he spoke Indian, she professed not to know what it meant. The Doctor believing her fully unupon us, but that our departed friends are looking my own opinion; and in the most difficult cases, I der the Devil's control, inferred that his long-tailed majesty was a good of an ass to speak through. Anatomy lies in the way of your conclusion. Hebrew, Greek and Latin scholar, but did not understand Indian. The fact proves beyond cavil a power in the human mind of a singular char> acter. This child in Cotton Mather's possession, in her peculiar state, them, and kissed their hands, and crowned them with apparently translated the sounds. The mind of the child was so perfectly en rapport with Mather's, that she took the import of Hebrew and Greek from his mind by the sounds being pronounced on her ear.

> > Your own experiments in psychology, with many others, proves a connection between mind and mind at a great distance. I have im-in fact and time. In periods of great mental activity in the human mind reality. The mind seizes on the idea, and responds to itself. If kings this is often observed. When steam was under investigation in this in these days should have visions, they would see Kossuth, or I am no country, minds in Europe were on the same track. So of electricity, MR. PARTRIDGE: The spirit of my wife's and so at the present hour. Who does not see a simultaneous tendency mind of Saul. Saul of Tarsus' mind was constantly harrassed by the mother, who has been dead twenty years, identified in minds in the same direction? As this law of en rapport will find con- inoffensive character of Christ and his followers-the voice spoke in acstant elucidation as I proceed, I leave it.

Now for your sounds. This law of mental reflection acts alike through all the organs of sense-the tongue, nose, eye, ear, and hand, receive alike its inner impulse. Taste is reflected in the mesmeric state-the taste is governed by the sound that strikes the ear. Smell is often heard-apparently exteriorly.

affected in the same way. Frequent mention of the fact occurs in witch trials. The impression in the mind always was in those cases, that it between him and his wife (double consciousness)-and annoyed him by sounds at night. What were the sounds ? When confined in the castle of Wartburgh, he says they brought him hazel-nuts and put them in a box, and he used to crack and cat of them-and he continues in his "Table Talk ": "My gentleman, the devil, came in the night and got the nuts out of the box and cracked them against the bed-postsmaking a great noise and rumbling about my bed. When I began to slumber he kept a racket and rumbling of barrels on the stairs." Luther had a miserable opinion of the Devil, and would at once suspect him of

-Now why should I hate Christ? he is innocent-why should I persecute his followers? Paul's conscience, speaking to the Jew, in him said-"Why persecutest thou me ?" The voice, as in other cases, was

The image in the mind of Pythagoras was the reception he should meet with when he arrived at his destination-his follower with him would was the Devil, and being a large dealer in brimstone, he frequently left | naturally be en rapport-" all hail " would be the natural reflection of strange or apparently without use, but we would ad- How foolish it looks to view the scene immediately behind him at his departure a corresponding smell. Luther was greatly his mind. The case of Josephus is different Here a multitude of vise no one to give in to the new mystics unless he has after death-our friends weeping around us, while annoyed by the Devil; he was always before his imagination-slept voices speak. The one concentrated idea on the minds of priest and people was to flee----- begone "--- the Romans are upon you. Each priest seemed to reflect a voice. In ghost-seeing, a multitude of persons are seen, in many cases, instead of one.

> Swedenborg had surfeited himself-or he was reflecting on diet. His psychological temperament had all sorts of reflections apparently. Spirits from our moon, seen by him, were snull-thundered over his headand were provided with an air-bag in the boxels to supersede the necessity of an atmosphere, which did not exist, as he believed, on that planet. The spirits from other planets were singular. Some went on stealing hazel-nuts; but the propriety of keeping such a spiritual being their hands and feet, others had half of the face black; all, however, on such corporcal fodder may well be questioned. The sounds, in part, jagreed remarkably with Swedenborg in theology. Some came from be> yond our solar system, but none informed him of any planet lying be-The girl, in Cotton Mather's family, "often felt something go out of yond Herschell. It would have been a very pretty piece of confirmaher-which the doctor heard in sounds, like that of a mouse." The tion. I can not comment on all his mental ghost-seeing, as I can not Salem witches, especially children, often had these sounds. They first see the vast contents of his mind. His "Earths in the Universe" is saw the Devil in the shape of mice around the floor. They would seize filled with these relations-all the spirits talked with him. The case of

From Tennessee,

Grotius and the Greek work, and the house fall- assertion of "W.") they are said to meet in the pering, is referable to the mood of minds that trans- son of Salathiel and his son Zorobabel, and again in pressions of the house, or that of some minds in ther the lineages are pursued, the further will they rapport.

"John's dead," is referable to the law of en for it. I confess I can not. rapport. She took it from the minds who possessed the fact. The friends around the dying bed often impress absent friends.

The case of the poisoned man-by Mrs. Crowe-is easily explained : The prayer was excited by en rapport with the mind who received the medicine-his mind was impressed by the medicine itself. Medicines held in the hand in papers, cause vomiting, catharsis, &c. The prayer was a specimen of double consciousness. The man was impressed by the medicine. "it looked peculiar-he took one-half."

The sea Captain was impressed by his proximity to the shore-sound of the breakers while ral reflection to a sailor. He was almost asleep -my own ears hear sounds just as I approach unconsciousness in sleep-raps at the door so loud I often get up and go to the door-I am often aroused in the night-by a messengersounds often rouse me instantly to my feet.

The circumstances of Lavater's death, are not sufficiently full to admit of remark.

The boy who abused his mother, is paralleled by Bunyan's case-the voice spoke what had been repeated to him-his father's ghost had evidently been used as a scare-crow.

The minister who was "stopped" by a voice was impressed by surrounding influences-the abyss and the cottagers and his fears quickened his mental movements.

A similar case occurred in Davenport, N. Y. An old lady, who had money, on retiring to bed seemed to hear a voice say, "Don't blow out the candle." It disturbed her; she arose, went to a neighbor's; in the morning she found her house was broken open. In a few nights she was robbed and murdered. The murderer's confession showed him on the night of the and unphilosophical." Uertainly I do; and also voice to be prowling about the house waiting for the light to be extinguished. Her mind impressed by his-of danger near-the candle, &c. -safety was the suggestion and the inverted reflection as it were-saved her for that time.

These cases compare with the Indian case related above-these facts require study and thought.

Spirit seeing furnishes a far richer field for illustration of the law of mental reflection. Yours truly,

B. W. RICHMOND.

''JESUS CHRIST: HIS POSITION IN THE UNIVERSE." of my son can not be the son of your son, and the furdiverge. Here is some mistake. Let "W." account

If it be urged that Heli was the father of Mary in-part of Luke. If Luke was thus liable to error, can we positively know that John, Matthew, or Mark, were less so ? Can such evidence "impeach the persistence of a universal law "?

Again : Matthew says, "Now all this was done that the prophecy might be fulfilled "-Isaiah vii, 14. Please read the 7th and 8th chapters of Isaiah carefully. This had no more reference to Christ than to you or me. It was a sign given to King Ahaz concerning events then current: yet how often is it quoted as proof of the miraculous incarnation, Matthew made just this mistake ! What, then, shall we say of Matthew's infallibility ? Is not this passage the foundation of the notion that Messiah was to be born of a virgin? and was it not probably at the bottom of the opinion that he was born without a Luman father? I have no objection to believe this (as I once did) if true; but, as I now understand it, the evidence is certainly not sufficient. Beside, I can see no necessity for it. If the necessity existed on this planet -which is but as a grain of sand on the sea shoreand this is the source of the sounds. These | may we not, with equal propriety, suppose that the same necessity would demand that the Infinite Creator should personally visit all the countless millions of orbs that revolve in trackless space and atone for | Father. If I do them not, believe me not." The Jews the errors and imperfections of his own creation? (I speak reverently.)

"W." seems to suppose I doubt and limit the power of the Deity, by calling these things in question. Not at all. I doubt not the ability of the Infinite to do aught that is consistent with the attribute of Wisdom. I hold this truth, however, to be self-evident, that God governs the Universe by general and not by special laws; by law and not by caprice or impulse.

"W." does me injustice by saying I have tried to 'cast a slur" on the subject of the "incarnation." By no means. I mean to treat every man's feelings and opinions with kindness and respect, and claim the same for my own. In combating what we suppose to be erroneous doctrines, we must sometimes use those arguments which tend to show their absurdity. This, if done in the spirit of kindness, ought not to offend. "W." asks if I believe the story of man's creation from the dust of the earth, to be "unnatural the creation of the woman from a rib, and for the very reason that it is unphilosophical, and seems to me absurd.

These imperfect ideas of the Deity and his works were the highest conceptions which an ignorant and rudimental people could entertain, but must we always be chained to these imperfect and groveling channels of thought? Would "W." wish to undeify the Creator by actually having him mold a man of mud or dust, as the potter does his wares? If man must be thus made, so must the horse, the croccdile, the snake and the musketo! Which is more worthy of a God, to thus create by manual labor, or to call into being animal and vegetable organisms throughout the Universe by virtue of a law harmoniously adapted to that end? Which most exalts the character of Jehovah?

"In conclusion then, I will give you my idea of

If the account stopped here, we should be compelled in one . . . that they may be one even as we are one." to admit that Jesus was publicly charged with "malated Mather's Greek, embodying his own im- Joseph, which is a natural impossibility. The son king," or avowing "himself to be god," and that he acknowledged the charge to be true; in other words case; for Jesus proceeds to show them in what sense he claims to be God. He asks, "Is it not written in your law, ye are Gods? If he called them Gods unto stead of Joseph, I have only to say that, so palpable whom the word of God came, (and the Scripture can a blunder indicates anything but infallibility on the not be broken), say ye of him whom the Father hath sauctified, and sent into the world thou blasphemest, because I said I am the son of God ?"

I think that Jesus nowhere claims to be God so clearly as when he says, "I and my Father are one." This was the strongest and most explicit expression that the Jews, with all their shrewd questions, could get from him; and when he did say so, they felt justifield in charging him with blasphemy-justified in charging him with claiming to be God. If he did claim to be God the charge was true, and would not. and could not be denied or evaded. The question was narrowed down to a point, and required a decisive answer.

Did Jesus acknowledge the charge, as he did when charged before Caiaphas with claiming to be "the Christ, the son of God ?" No, he asks them, " Is it not written in your law that, those unto whom the word of God comes shall be called Gods? I do not break the scripture, that is, I use the word God, in a scriptural sense, just as David did in the eighty-second belongs alone to the one, only and true Gon, the Psalm. Why then do ye say that I blaspheme, I by CREATOR OF THE UNIVERSE.

whom the word of God comes, because I said that I am the son of God ? Does not your scripture say that such shall be called gods? I do the works of my seemed to be pacified by this explanation; for they did | FRIEND BRITTAN :

not throw the stones which they had taken up. They clearly understood him to say, "I do not claim to be the creator of the Universe, I only claim to be one through whom the word of God comes; and by your scriptures I am called a god ;" He continued, "believe that the Father is in me, and I in the Father." The Jews who, perhaps, were Sadducees and materialists, could not understand how God could be in him, or Jesus in God, thought that this was a reiteration of his supposed claim to be God; therefore they sought again to take him. (See John x.)

Thus we see that when Jesus was urged to the point, he disclaimed being God, except in a scriptural sense, that is, he claimed to be one unto whom the word of God came, one whose meat and drink it was to do the will of his Father, and our Father.

When charged before Caiaphas with claiming to be the Christ the son of God, he did not endeavor to explain it, or to qualify it, but answered frankly, "thou hast said "-thus acknowledging the charge, and claiming to be the "son of God." Let us now inquire what is the scriptural meaning of the phrase, "son of God." Jesus is called the son of God forty-three times, and the "son of man" eighty-four times, while Ezekiel is called by the same appellation ninety times; then the phrase son of man, which he (Jesus) is called twice as often as son of God, bestows no greater distinction upon him than it did upon Ezekiel, who was harm. called by the same phrase oftener than Jesus was.

Prof. Stewart says: (See his letters to Dr. Miller,) 'The son of anything, according to Oriental idiom, may be what is closely connected with, dependent on, like it, the consequence of it, worthy of it," &c. He cites a long list of examples, among them the following, "son of valor," "son of thunder," "son of peace," i. e., a peaceable man, "son of man," i. e., man as it Christ and his position in the Universe.'" I believe is usually applied, but perhaps in a sense somewhat Why convulsively clasps she that child to her breast? him to be Man, and in no sense God, and that no diverse in several respects, as applied to our Savior. As safely it lies, as a bird in its nest. number or combination of numbers of human beings, In the idiom of the New Testament, a latitude is given to the term "son" far greater than in occidental language, and which no one who is not conversant with the Hebrew, can scarcely estimate in an adequate manner. If what Prof. Stewart says of the Hebrew language is true, then Christ's claims to be the "son of God," necessarily meant no more than what we mean when we call a good man "a child of God," a "man of God," claimed to be God. To disprove this, "W." quotes ing, "Our Father, &c. If God is my Father, I am &c., or a warrior, "a man of blood." This view is sustained by the tenth chapter of St. John, where the Jews claim to be sons of God ; but Jesus told them ses and the prophets." Moses said, "a prophet shall that, "whosoever committeth sin, is the servant, or so was I; so was the forest once, contained in the the Lord your God raise up like unto me:" I believe son, of sin. Ye do the deeds of your father. Ye are acorn. So Levi paid tithes " while he was yet in the | no one ever claimed Moses to have been superhuman, | of your father, the Devil. The lusts of your father will ye do." Thus he called them sons of the Devil, 'higher law" than the preceding one. Like Moses, or Evil, because their deeds were evil; and himself he was a great mediator, or "medium" between the the son of God, or Good, because he did the will of his father also." "He that hath seen me, hath seen the Spirit-world and the natural. His mission was to Father in heaven. Thus he teaches that actions are the sons, or offspring of the inward spirit, which prompts or produces them.

Now, it is clear that if we can understand how Jesus is in his disciples, we shall comprehend how God was in Jesus. Jesus is in them who receive his spirit, and that he claimed to be God. This, however, is not the |do his will; so likewise was God in Jesus, in proportion as he understood and did the will of his Father. In the same proportion, also, is our Father in us; and in the same ratio are we sons of God.

> In conclusion then, I understand that the position which Jesus claimed for himself is, that he was a child of God, whose every thought and effort it was to demonstrate the love of his Father toward his brethren, mankind; and that they, by doing his will, which was God's will, would become godlike, and should be called preëminently the sons of God. If this be the true position of Jesus, then it is one which the intellect approves; and the moral sentiment admires and venerates.

In another article I may examine the position which the so-called evangelical churches claim for Jesus. Yours in the love of truth,

BERNARD FAUTH.

P. S .- A friend suggests that if spirits recognize our doings on earth, that Jesus probably frowns upon such efforts to rob him of the glory and homage, which willing thousands are paying him by worshiping him as God, even if this view of his position be true; but I think not, for no good man, or elevated spirit, could for a moment desire that homage and worship which

DEATH.

FARMINGTON, Ill., Jan. 10, 1853

Dear Sir: Inclosed you will please find an essay on "Death," written by my little daughter's hand, controlled by a spirit, whose name you will see annexed. She is a child but ten years of age, and she writes more or less almost every day. Her hand is moved without volition on her part; and in almost every communication she writes there are words used of which she has no knowledge whatever, as to their signification. There are many other remarkable things connected with her writing that I might mention, if time would permit. I send you this, not because there is anything in it very remarkable, but because it is, perhaps, a tolerably fair specimen of the writing done through hermostly in poetry. Within the last few weeks she has written some thirty essays on different subjects; and as to style most of them are superior to the one I send you. If you think this worth a place in your excellent paper you may publish it; and I will, if you please, send you more by and by; otherwise you may throw it aside, and do your friend and well-wisher no Yours respectfully,

J. P. MENDENHALL.

DEATH.

M. A. MENDENHALL, MEDIUM.

A sweet infant lies cradled within The arms of its mother. How pale his cheek, And his blue eyes are closed. All safe from sin

SPIRITUAL BOOKS.

THE SPIRIT MINSTREL.

THE SUBSCRIBER will issue a work with the L above title on the 15th of February next. Said work will comprise some one hundred tunes, with words in connection. It is intended to present in this work, the very best of the existing Music, with such original pieces as shall make it just the book for Spiritualists, in all their gatherings, whether in their Circ'es, or more public meetings. The choicest selection of Poetry has been made from the more spiritual poems of the past, and also from those which have been indited by Spirits themselves. These selections have been freed from all objectionable phraseology and sentiment.

Mr. J. B. Packard. the Editor of the Music, is well snown, both in the East and West, as an accomplished Teacher, Composer and Editor of Music. The Musi-cal Gems, edited by him, is one of the most popular works, for private and social worship, ever published. Rev. J. S. Loveland, who has been quite favorably known as a talented Minister of the M. E. Church, and is now a thorough-going and devoted Spiritualist, is the Editor of the Poetry.

With these guarantees, this work is offered to the friends of Spiritualism, as meeting the wants of the time; for the Publisher fully accords with the Editors in the opinion that the true idea of a Singing Book ncludes both Music and Poetry, and both printed on the same page, as in this work.

The price of the Minstrel will probably be, in cloth, 38 cents, and in paper, 25 cents.

BELA MARSH, Publisher, No. 25 Cornhill, Boston.

JC. The above work will also be for sale at this Office, No. 3 Courtland-st., and by Fowlers & Wells, No. 131 Nassau-st., New-York. 40-2

Second Edition.

THE NINETEENTH CENTURY, or THE NEW DISPENSATION; being an Examination of the Claims and Assertions of Emanuel Swedenborg, (with a brief review of the writings of Andrew Jackson Davis.) By a Layman. New-York, 1852. 12mo., pp. 425.

We cordially bear witness to the general ability and well-timedness of the work. . . It is, in its general scope, eminently popular. It directs its appeal to the plain sound sense of the masses

[Prof. Bush's Review and Rep.

It is ably written, often eloquent, and in a far more lucid style than is usually employed by writers of the Swedenborgian school. Many of its criticisms on the spirit of the age are pungent and strongly sustained; vein of masculine thought pervades its course of argument, and no one can read it in a contemplative mood without receiving important and fruitful sug-IN. Y. Tribune. gestions.

It compresses a great amount of information and speculation on such spiritual subjects as are now generally discussed in nearly all intelligent circles. For those who are not well read in reference to the nov-elties of the spiritual revelations of the day, it will prove a valuable manual, if not a counsellor and suide. [Sunday Courier.

It is a beautiful specimen of typography, very creditable to the American press, and forms a handsome volume. . . . In fact, this is a work both suited for and worthy of the present era of the Christian world. [London Intellectual Repository. For sale by

PARTRIDGE & BRITTAN, No. 3 Courtland-street, New-York.

MESSAGES

FROM THE SUPERIOR STATE; communicated by John Murray, through John M. Spear, in the summer of 1852. Containing important instruction to the Inhabitants of the Earth. Carefully prepared for publication, with a sketch of the Author's earthly life, and a brief description of the Spiritual Experience of the Medium. By S. C. Hewitt. "The letter killeth : but the spirit giveth life." Boston : Bela Marsh, 25 Cornhill, Boston. Price 50 cents. For sale by Bela Marsh, Boston ; Partridge & Brittan, No. 3 Courtland-st., and Fowlers and Wells, New York City, and D. M. Dewey, Rochester, N. Y.

MR. EDITOR: In the TELEGRAPH of January 1st, a correspondent over the signature of "W." accuses me of making misstatements and "false reasononly of "reason but revelation." I regret to ask space in your valuable pages for a brief reply; but | when he said "My Father is greater than I." this is a question considered of such fundamental importance I can not refrain from making the request that you will allow it to be fully and fairly discussed. The matter of course is with you.

I can not retract my assertion that, Jesus never various passages from the sayings of Christ, which, to the son of God. my mind, fall infinitely short of doing it.

1. "Before Abraham was, I am." So was "W."; antiquity through his ancestry.

2. "If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father." "I and my Father are one."

Your correspondent asks, "If Christ claims not to be God in these passages, what does he mean ?" I from the consequence of their sins,) by teaching them will also ask him what Christ meant-John xvii, 11-22-when he prayed to his Father that his disciples might be one as he and his Father were one? "That they may be one in us."

Did he mean that every disciple should be God? Surely no; friend "W." will not claim this! Are these passages not all figurative? "W." employs an agent on a certain mission; his authority is questioned; it is said, "show us 'W,' and it sufficeth." The agent answers, "I and 'W.' are one;" "he that hath seen me, hath seen 'W.'" Again: if Christ was God, why did he pray to God? I know it is said this was his humanity. In what did his humanity conpray? It must have been his spirit-which "W." says was God. I must have stronger proof than this. | a reason for its faith.

" My Father is greater than I," contains no figure, no ambiguity; and being a self-evident truth, can tion of this vexed question, I beg leave in this article | ren (Phillippians ii, 15) to be blameless, and harmnever be weakened in its positive import.

be found that Mary belonged to the tribe of Judah. Joseph did, for, being of the house and lineage of David, he had to go to Jerusalem to be taxed.

low only in the male line, and yet, (contrary to the ling a man, makest thyself God."-(John x, 33.)

ings," calculated to lead many from the truth, not however perfect or exalted, could approximate toward being "equal with God." Jesus admitted this,

I believe he was the "son of God." I claim to be a son of God, though not equal with Christ in endowments or perfection of character. He said to his disciples, "I go to my Father and your Father, to my God and your God." He taught them to pray, say-

I believe Christ was the Messiah spoken of by "Moloins of Abraham." Any person may claim the same or divine. Like Moses, Christ came to teach a teach the law of God, and the brotherhood of man. He came to "save his people from their sins," (not how to live without sin, by walking in his precepts and following his example. Happy would it have been for the world if men had been half as zealous in imitating Christ, as they have in fighting to make him a God. Let us not so learn Christ. D. Cory, M. D.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Jan. 8, 1853.

JESUS: HIS POSITION.

the above head with much interest, because I know and be thoroughly investigated; for the human mind gave them that believed on him power to become sons sist? Simply organized matter-his body; "the is beginning to appreciate its freedom. It can not of God. How? By laying aside their lusts, and bebecause it is said to be a holy mystery. It demands |"as many as are led by the spirit of God are sons of

"W." misapprchended my argument in reference self? On two special occasions, according to the pears clear to me, that Jesus claimed no more by the to the genealogy. I meant not to say that the apos- sacred historian, did Jesus' auditors demand a plain phrase, son of God, than a man "whose meat and tles wished to prove him the son of Joseph, but that avowal of " his position " They inquired, "Who drink it was to do the will of the Father of his spirit;" the genealogy does prove him so. I said if he is not makest thou, thyself?"-(John viii, 53) And then one whose organization qualified him to be a medium the son of Joseph, he can not be proved the son of they asked him various questions, with a view of ob- through whom the word of God came. This position David, by the genealogy. I am aware the apostles taining an explicit answer upon this important point. is further strengthened by the fact that Jesus says: did not claim him to be Joseph's son, but I do. Both True, he had told them that he had come to do the "The Father is greater than I, I come not to do my genealogies terminate in Joseph. Mary is not so | will of his Father-that he came from the Fathermuch as mentioned in either, except incidentally as that he could do nothing of himself-that his works other,) but the will of him that sent me." If a Forthe wife of Joseph. Where is the slightest proof to proved him to be of God; but these expressions were not satisfactory to them. They still pressed him with greater than I, I come not to do my own will, but the Luke, ii-iv, proves (in addition to the genealogy) that other questions all to the same point. They inquired will of him that sent mo;" or even if he was to say "I 'How long dost thou make us in doubt ? If thou be and my king are one," we should readily understand

Again : The two genealogies are very discrepant. ye, but ye believed me not, the works which I do in not apply these common sense interpretations to these Luke makes forty-two generations from David to Jo- my father's name they bear witness of me. . . . I expressions ? seph, while Matthew gives only twenty-seven-a dif- and my Father are one." And the Jews took up ference of fifteen generations! One commences with stones to stone him for blasphemy, giving him their him may be one, "even as thou, Father, art in me, Solomon, the other with his brother Nathan, and fol- | reason in these memorable words-" because thou, be- | and I in Thee, that they also may be one in us, I in

If these considerations are admitted, then it would appear that Jesus only claims to be one by whom the | He fainted and fell, ere the race was begun. word of God came, and a son of God because he did the will of God.

This seems to be the " position which Jesus claims for himself" This is rendered the more apparent by the fact that this phrase is often used in the plural, thus, "sons of God." Hoseah says, i, 10, "ye are the sons of the living God." Why were they the sons of God ? because they were his people ? was not I have read the articles which have appeared under | Jesus preëminently a child of God ? why then may | The man in the pride of his manhood is fallen, he not be consistently called the son of God, as God's that this question must soon receive much attention, other people? St. John says chap. i, 12, that Jesus body without the spirit is dead." Could the body much longer worship a paradoxical absurdity, simply coming spiritual-minded. Paulsays, (Romans viii, 14.) But his mind shall progress-even years without God." Was not Jesus led by the spirit of God? If With a view of adding my mite toward the elucida- | so, then he was a son of God. Paul exhorts his brethto inquire, What position does Jesus claim for him- less, the sons of God, &c. From these facts it ap-own will, (consequently he was only an agent for an-eign minister at Washington, was to say, "my King is the Christ, tell us plainly." Jesus answered ; "I told what he meant by the expression. Why then may we

Jesus prays (John xvii; 21-28,) that believers in them and Thou in me, that they may be made perfect He lies there-Oh ! why doth the fond mother weep

There has been to that hearth-stone, an unwelcome guest-

White robes were upon him, and flow'rs in his hand; Yet the mother looked on him, with fear in her breast, Though with smiles and soft pleadings before her he stands.

Why with tears looks she on him-why that deep sobbing breath ?

Why that anguish and wo? 'Tis the Angel of Death!

He has laid his soft hand on that dear cherished one And the child lieth still, in the Conqueror's arms-The cross* on his brow, and the baptismt done-His eyes closed in sleep, robed in terrible charms-(et oh ! mother heart-broken, what comfort is given, Thy beautiful one is God's angel in heaven !

A youth in his glory, lies stretched on his bier; The flower in its pride is stricken with blight, The fairest-the brightest-the loy'd one-the dear-His body is gone to the caverns of night, A dark cloud is spread o'er the path he would run,

The eagle-wing drooped ; for the spirit aspiring, Was too strong for the chords that had bound it to earth:

And the mind that gave glory to all its desiring, Floated on to the home of its heavenly birth. Why weep, as the carth in the earth ye imprison ? His soul is not here. Know ye not he is risen !

Ye lay down the lifeless, within the dark grave; One stronger than he, in h s mercy has callen, And the world in its legions is worthless to save! Ye hurry the proud form away to its slumber; number.

Lies the aged, with snow-covered head, in his coffin, With Time's marks set thickly all o'er his pale face; Do ye murmur to see him, his life-mantle doffing ?---Do ye grieve, when ye find him no more in his glace? What is Death to the aged-the weary-a foe ?-See that smile on his lips; and the answer ye know.

What is Death to the infant ?- A messenger sent From Heaven, in mercy, to call back the child. What is Death to the youth ?- A star that is lent To guide him safe home, ere his truth is beguiled ; And Death unto manhood ?- Grieve not when the stroke Falls down on the strong man, so worn with his yoke.

Of Death, but remember, oh ! children of men.

These are but the first links in Eternity's chain ! Live rightly-and calmly thou'lt yield up thy breath To thy friend - God-commissioned - the Deliverer, Death.

GOODHUE MARVIN. Cross kind of frown or contraction of the brow caused by pain + Baptism, death.

ADIN BALLOU'S BOOK.

BEING AN EXPOSITION OF VIEWS RESPECT-ing the principal Facts, Causes and Peculiarities in Spirit-manifestations, together with interesting phenomenal statements and communications. Price 50 cents.

ALSO-Mr. BINGHAM'S PAMPHLET, entitled "Familiar Spirits and Spiritual Manifestations :" being a series of articles by Dr. Enoch Pond, Professor in the Bangor Theological Seminary-together with a Reply, by Albert Bingham. Price 15 cents. For sale by Bela Marsh, Boston ; Partridge & Brittan, No. 3 Courtland-st., and Fowlers & Wells, New-York city, and D. M. Dewey, Rochester, N. Y. 29-3m ( 10MPRISING EIGHTY ODES, and Directions for U the Formation of Circles. The Odes embody the sentiments of the Harmonial Philosophy, and were given by Spirits for the use of meetings and circles, E. C. Henck, medium. For sale by G. D. HENCK,

SPIRIT VOICES,

No. 160 Arch-st. Philadelphia.

PSYCHO-MAGNETIC PHYSICIANS.

(830)

DR. J. R. METTLER AND LADY, have for some years applied Clairvoyance, and other kindred agents, to the treatment of the sick, and will continue to make Clairvoyant Examinations, and to give such diagnostic and therapeutic suggestions as are required in the successful practice of the healing art.

TERMS :- For Clairvoyant examinations including prescriptions, So, if the patient be present, and SIO when absent. When the person to be examined can not be present, by reason of extreme illness, distance or other circumstances, Mrs. M. will require a lock of the patient's hair.

Mrs. Mettler also gives psychometrical delineations of character by having a letter from the unknown person, which, without unfolding, is placed against her forehead-Terms for psychometrical readings, $2 each, always in advance. Address

DR. J. R. METTLER, No. 8 College-st., Hartford, Conn.

CLAIRVOYANT EXAMINATIONS

PPLIED to the Discovery and Cure of Disease, by A MRS. HAYES-that good and faithful Clairvoyant-the Ladies Medical friend. Mrs. Hayes was well known for many remarkable Cures, while with Drs. Brown & Hallock, when in Chambers-st. of this

MRS. HAYES can be consulted Daily, at her Office, No 116 Spring-st., between Mercer and Green-sts., near Broadway, New-York City. 40-68

MEDICAL.

CLAIRVOYANCE applied to the discovery and cure of disease, by MRS. BRIGGS, under the supervision of MRS. WM. ALLEN, at No 112 Christie st., near Grand, New-York. Terms-always in advance -One Dollar for each examination, when the patient is present; those at a distance, or unable for any cause to attend, can be examined by sending a lock of their hair-in which case the charge will be Three Dollars. Address MRS. WILLIAM ALLEN, No. 112 Christie st., New-York.

December 10, 1852. (88-63)

Printed by H. CLAY REYNOLDS, No. 208 Broadway.

Be not held in bondage your life-long, with fear This world is a prelude; the end is not here;