saw then puese on their celevial way;
she has been their celevial way;
Then said I with deep four and daukt oppressed;
Deat not so loud, my heart, lest thou betray
The place where thy beloved are at rest?"

And he, that wore the crown of aspholele, Descending, at my door, began to knock, And my sool sank within me, as in welle The waters tink before an earthquake's shock.

And intended to my bearenity guest,
And listened, for I thought I heard Gal's voice;
And knowing that whosae'r he sent was best,
Dated matther to inseest nor to rejoice.

Then with a seeis, that filled the heese with light,

"My cernad is not Death, but Life," he said:
And eye I assumered, possing out of sight
On his celestial enthancy he spod.

Twas at thy door, ob, friend! and not at mine. The angel with the assarzathine wreath Pussing descended, and with a voice divise, Whispered a word that had a sound like Death.

Then fell upon the house a sudden gloom, A shadors on those features fair and thin ; And softly, from that hushed and darkened a Two angels issued, where but one went in
