PRESIDENT WALKER is reported to be on his legs again in Nicaragua, having achieved several important victories.

The Reform Charter for this much abused city, will probably be a law before this paper goes to press.

The joint Legislative Committee of the State have reported a paper on the Dred Scott case, closing with Resolutions the first of which is as follows :

Resolved, That this State will not allow slavery within her borders, in any form, or under any pretence, or for any time, however short, let the consequences be what they may.

A bill for the relief of Broadway, by running a single track railway up the line of streets on one side of it, and down the other, has passed the lower branch of the Legislature.

England and France have invited the United States to take a hand with them in the adjustment of the affairs of China. This is declined. Our Government, however, has appointed a new minister to the Celestial Empire, and is about to dispatch an additional naval force to look after our interests in the Chinese seas.

Lord Palmerston is likely to be sustained at the new elections.

PERSONAL AND SPECIAL NOTICES.

Mrs. Hatch at the Tabernacle.

MRS. CORA L. V. HATCH, though but partially recovered from the effects of her recent illness, fulfilled her engagement to lecture at the Tabernacle on Friday evening of last week. In consequence of the storm, the audience was not very large, but seemed deeply interested in the proceedings of the occasion. After she came upon the stage, a Committee was appointed to propound questions to be answered by the Spirits through her mediumship. While the Committee were in session in an ante-room, Mr. S. B. Brittan entertained the audience with some felicitous remarks. In the course of some ten or fifteen minutes, the Committee re-entered and submitted the following questions :

1. What principles of natural law govern the gyroscope ?

2. What causes the seeds of plants to germinate ?

3. Did the various races now inhabiting the earth, all Spring from a common mun" dane parent?

4. Was Jesus of Nazareth of divine or human origin?

These questions having been read to the adience by Mr. Brittan, Mrs. Hatch immediately became entranced, and spoke to the third and fourth Notwithstanding his defeat in Parliament, it is now asserted that of them, in her usually forcible and mellifluent style, for about an hour. The Spirits offered the enfeebled physical condition of the medium as an apology for their neglect of the first two questions, as The Spanish fleet for the invasion of Mexico was to have set sail well as for any defects that might be perceived in their manner of treating those on which they spoke-which defects however, if they did ex-Our neighbors at Paterson, New Jersey, are rejoicing over a Pearl ist, were seemingly not very manifest to the great mass of the auditors, Fishery which has been discovered in their midst. The most curious and were entirely overlooked by Captain Rynders, one of the interrogatpart of the discovery is that the Pearls are found in the common fresh ing Committee, who was afterward heard to express himself highly gratified with the discourse. Mrs. Hatch speaks again in the Tabernacle on Thursday evening. April 16th, and at Dodworth's Hall on Sunday morning next, after which she will leave the city for a season.

Meetings Next Sunday.

REV. T. L. HAERIS will lecture, as usual, at Academy Hall, Broadway, opposite Bond-street, next Sunday, morning and evening.

United States Agricultural Society.

A GREAT national trial of machinery and implements of every description pertaining to agriculture, and household manufactures, at the Fifth annual fair, will be held in Louisville, Ky., during the Fall of 1857. The undersigned, a Committee of the United States Agricultural Society, appointed at the Fifth Annual Meeting held at the Smithsonian . Institute, in the city of Washington, on the 14th day of January, 1857, "to make all the necessary arrangements for a national trial in the field of agricultural implements and machinery," respectfully invite the inventors and manufacturers of all such articles, both in the United States and foreign countries, to participate in a public trial to be made at the Society's Annual Exhibition, to be held in Louisville, Kentucky, during the fall of 1857.

All articles from foreign countries intended for exhibition may be consigned to the "Agent of U. S. Agricultural Society, Louisville, Ky.," by whom they will be received and stored free of charge.

To enable the Society to make arrangements on a sufficiently liberal scale, it is absolutely necessary that the Committee should know what articles will be offered for competition ; and they therefore request that all inventors or manufacturers who may be disposed to unite in the proposed trial, will communicate their intentions to the Secretary at their earliest convenience. On Wednesday of last week a drove of seventy head of Western cattle was sold in this city at an average of $120 a-piece; equal to 12 cents a pound for the beef.

The financial department of this city ranks next in importance to the Treasury of the United States. Last year the receipts were about $21,000,000 ; and the disbursements but a half million less.

The real and personal estate of this city is estimated at $700,000,000, though the tax books make it something less.

The Portland Transcript.

THIS is one of the liveliest and most interesting papers which comes to us from the secular press. It announces the close of Volume 20, and contains a complete index of the contents of the last volume. This paper seems to have been very successful, and has regularly increased its circulation and usefulness. It commences the succeeding volume with still fairer prospects. It is so replete with science, literature, and the current news of the day, that we take pleasure in commending it to every family circle. Subscription price $1 50 per annum. C. P.

The Programme of Mrs. Hatch.

As there are many requests from different quarters for her services, I wish to inform our friends of the arrangements we have concluded upon for the remainder of the present season.

Mrs. Hatch will speak in Troy, April 26th, and May 3d ; after which we shall leave for Buffalo. We will make engagements for two or three lectures between Troy and Buffalo, if the friends should desire. They can address me at Troy after the 23d of April, or 309 Fourth Avenue, until then.

We shall leave Buffalo for Baltimore, Md., the first of June, where we shall remain during that month, after which we shall retire to the mountains for six weeks or two months, that Mrs. H. may have an opportunity to recuperate her physical health.

Respectfully,

B. F. HATCH, M. D.

Harper's Weekly.

This paper diversified its columns by a furious attack in its number It is reported, but discredited by some, that a settlement of twenty for April 4, on Spiritualism. In it we were pronounced worthy of infamilies, near the head waters of the Des Moines River, has been cut dictment along with disorderly houses, gambling-dens, etc., and the Mayor and District Attorney were called upon to subject Judge Ed-

We learn that the Judge has replied to the attack, and that his reply will appear in Harper's Weekly of this week or next. When it does, we shall give our readers the attack and the reply, that they may judge of the unfairness with which the subject may be treated, and the intolerance it may call forth.

Mrs. Hatch

WILL speak in the Tabernacle on Thursday evening of this week, at half-past seven o'clock. Admission to all parts of the house, 12 cents. She will also speak in Dodworth's Hall next Sunday morning at halfpast ten o'clock, after which she will leave the city to be absent for some six months.

IGNORANCE OF GEN. WASHINGTON .- " Although for the time in which he lived, a very distinguished man, the ignorance of Washington in some things is perfectly incredible. He never travelled on a steamboat, never saw a railroad, or locomotive engine ; was perfecty ignorant of the principle of the magnetic telegraph, never had a daguerreotype, Colt's pistol, Sharp's rifle, or used a friction match. He ate his meals with an iron fork, never used post-stamps on his letters, and knew nothing of the application of chloroform to alleviate suffering, or the use of gas for illumination. Such a man as this could hardly be elected President of the United States in these times, although it must be confessed, we occasionally have a candidate who proves not much better informed about matters in general."

METHODIST CONFERENCES .- The Methodists, through the Advocate and Journal, are discussing the propriety of preachers taking their wives to the Conferences. The editor says : "We are afraid to open the list for a race of controversy on the subject ; for we have no doubt, from what we have witnessed in other cases, it would go with a rush." [We have no doubt the editor's fears are well grounded; but we think there is no question of the propriety of advising the preachers' wives to go to these Conferences -ED. TEL.]

THE DEAD LETTER OFFICE .- It is stated that during the quarter ending the 31st of March, about 2,000 dead letters have been opened at. the Dead Letter Office, containing money amounting in the aggregate to over $11,000 ; and already seven-eighths have been restored to their owners. The estimates of the department of the whole number of dead letters received in former years, under the high postage system, was three millions and a half. Under the low postage prepaid system, it does not exceed three millions a year, although the number of letters mailed is far greater.

CHOIR SINGING .- The Methodists are beginning to regard the popular. choir singing an innovation, and are about turning it out of church, that all the people may join in this praise and service to God.

Spiritualists' Directory.

PUBLIC LECTURERS.

MISS EMMA FRANCES JAY is a Trance Speaking Medium and vocalist of extraordinary powers, whose public efforts are everywhere received with mingled emotions of surprise and delight. The Editor of the Baltimore Republican, who has no faith in Spiritualism, in a recent notice of Miss Jay's lectures in that city, says :- Miss Jay seems to have either been in the hands of a Spirit who was perfect master of elocution, or else she has had excellent instructions in the art. Her gesticulation was graceful, frequent, and perfectly expressive of the idea conveyed. The language used was the most chaste and pure style, and seldom, if ever, excelled in the desk.

S. B. BEITTAN will devote a portion of his time to giving Lectures on the facts and Philosophy of Spiritualism; the Laws of Vital Motion and Organic Development; the relations of Sensation and Thought to the Bodlly Functions; the Philosophy of Health and Disease; also, lectures on various Moral, Progressive, and Philosophico-Theological and Practical Subjects. Address Mr. Brittan, at this office.

REV. T. L. HARRIS, widely known in this country and Europe as an inspired thinker, poet and orator, is one of the most brilliant and powerful lecturers on the Spiritual Philosophy and cognate subjects. Mr. H. is now in this city, and may be addressed care of this office.

WILLIAM FISHBOUGH, one of the first writers and speakers who took a public stand in favor of Spiritualism, who has been a close observer of its facts and phenomena, and a diligent student of its philosophy, is prepared to lecture on such branches of that and kindred themes as may be deemed useful and edifying to his audiences. Address, care of Partridge and Brittan, at this Office.

MISS C. M. BEBEE, Medium, whose lectures lately delivered in New York, Troy, Philadelphia, Baltimore and elsewhere, have been so highly appreciated for the chasteness and elegance of their diction, and the refining and elevating character of their subject matter, may be addressed by those who desire her services as a lecturer, care of PARTRIDGE & BRITTAN, his office.

MR. & MRS. U. CLARE, the Spiritual Lecturers, will respond to calls together, or Mr. Clark alone, to officiate at marriages and funerals, or as lecturer and healing medium. Residence, Auburn, N. Y.

CHARLES PARTEIDGE, an early advocate and supporter of Spiritualism, and a diligent collector of the facts of the new unfolding, is prepared to give the results of his investigations to audiences which may requre his services. Address, this Office. Dr. J. R. OETON, who has several well-prepared lectures in illustration and defense of Spiritualism, will deliver them to such audiences as may apply for his services, Address, care of PAETEHDGE & BEITTAN, this office.

MISS A. W. SPEAGUE lectures under spiritual influence. Her abilities are spoken of in terms of high estimation by those who have been accustomed to hear her. Address Plymouth, Vt.

HENRY H. TATOR, a gentleman who has for some years devoted his time and mental energies almost exclusively to literary pursuits, has commenced lecturing in illustration and defense of the facts and principles of the Spiritual Philosophy and Life. Mr. T. is a man of culture, refined in his feelings, gifted with a poetic imagination, a remarkably fine voice, and whatever other natural endowments are most essential to personal success and public usefulness. Mr. Tator has our right hand of fellowship, and may be addressed at this office.

ON THE WORK OF COUNT DE GASPARIN, ENTITLED "SCIENCE VERSUS SPIRITUALISM ; OR, A TREATISE ON TURNING TABLES."

BY DR. HARE.

THE results of this investigator fully sustain those of the same low, mechanical kind narrated in my work-not only so far as respects the movements without contact, but likewise those one has been republished in my work, which I here subjoin in the language of the author :

"M. Agénor de Gasparin, one of our most sedate philosophers, writes what follows in La Gazette de France : 'I will not insist on this point. The phenomenon of rotation, if alone, would not appear to me entirely satisfactory. I am mistrustful, though not an academician; and I admit that it may be possible (at a pinch.) that a mechanical impulsion might be communicated ; but the rotation only serves to present other phenomena the explanation of which it is impossible to refer to any kind of muscular action.'

"' Each of us, in his turn, gave orders to the table, which it promptly obeyed ; and I should succeed with difficulty in explaining to you the strange character of these movements ; as, for instance, of blows struck with an exactness, with a solemnity, that fairly frightened us. "Strike three blows ; strike ten blows ; strike with your left foot ; with your right foot ; with your middle foot ; rise on two of your feet ; on only one foot ; remain up ; prevent those on the side raised from returning the table to the floor." After each command, the table obeyed. It produced movements that no complicity, involuntary or voluntary, could have induced ; for we afterward tried in vain to place it on one foot, and keep it there by the pressure of the hands, but it resisted incontestibly the efforts to press it down.

Hence the ing Tables" is selected for the prominent title of his work. This which are obedient to the dictation of the operator. Of these, investigation of Spiritualism was pursued by him with eyes and is the more objectionable because tables, as well as other bodies, and deaf to any evidence inconsistent with his religion.

Thus, if a medium girl sit near, quite motionless, without touching a table, a man standing thereupon may be jumped to a tune, though in the any of the phenomena. His choice of a title comports with the narrowness of his nessed by him, with those which could arise agreeably to the views. Agreeably to the observations of the Count, as stated by well ascertained laws of motion, or the characteristic attributes himself, tables tilt, move upward, side-ways and end-wise, ten of electricity, he makes no allowance for any other educational times where they turn once. Nevertheless, "Treatise on Turnears open to facts inexplicable by physical science, while blind have been in numberless instances subjected to a mysterious rapping which enables intellectual communications to be obtained, De Gasparin was consequently incapable of appreciating the clearly independent of the mind of any mortal. Not being cular action, these rappings afford a more unquestionable evioverlooked in the titular designation.

> But, as above stated, rapping is not confined to tables, nor are with tables has not the smallest bearing upon the rationale, which is, of course, just the same, whether, without any perceptible cause, a table be turned or be made the means of rapping.

After the first three months of my investigations, having contrived instruments upon the principle of those described and ployed them in my investigations, and scarcely ever resorted to table moving of any kind, as the means of intellectual communication with Spirits. I stated the subject for the consideration of the meeting at Albany, in these words: "On movements and sounds produced in ponderable bodies, which have not been traced to any physical cause." Evidently nothing caused the association of the manifestations with the tables but their superior accessibility and convenience in using. But while wide awake to the bigotry of the academicians, and not deep enough in science to appreciate the insuperability of their objections to his nominal rationale, merely a vox et preterea nihil, this apparently noble, worthy and pious gentleman concentrates his attention upon one phase of Spiritualism. He occupies himself solely in proving aud examining those phenomena which result from the agency of media and Spirits of the lower spheres; being quite regardless of alphabetic communication, which is the only mode in which the higher Spirits hold direct communion with mortals. From his religious faith, pre-resolved to decide against the agency of Spirits, the learned Count has not directed his attention to the use, nor to improvement of the means, of intellectual intercourse. To none of his Spirit relatives is the opportunity given of communicating with him freely; it is assumed that whatever he has not been enabled to witness must be impracticable. By him, as well as other distinguished investigators, the erroneous conclusion is formed, that because in many instances nothing can be learned which is not known to the medium, this must be the case universally. Accordingly it is inferred by him,

"' Each one of us gave orders with equal success. Children were obeyed as well as grown persons.

"' Still more ; it was agreed that the requests should not be audible, but merely mental, and whispered to a neighbor. Still the table obeyed! There was in no instance the least error.

"' Each person desired the table to rap the number of years of his age ; and it gave our ages as indicated only in our minds. endeavoring, in the most curions manner, to hurry when the number was large. I must own, to my shame, that I was rebuked by it, for having unintentionally diminished my age ; the table gave forty-three, instead of fortytwo, because my wife, with a better memory, had thought of the correct number.

"'Finally, having continued these experiments more than an hour, at which the neighbors and the servants of the farm were present, I felt that it was time to stop. I requested the table to rise ; to rise again, and turn over on my side, which it did.

"' Accept, gentlemen, the assurance of my best consideration, "A. DE GASPARIN."

Count Agenor De Gasparin is, as stated in the introduction to his late work on "Turning Tables," the author of a treatise " on the general interests of French Protestantism," in two volumes, octavo; and also of one entitled "Christianism and Paganism," being avowedly a zealous Protestant believer in the Gospel. Under these circumstances, this distinguished writer entered upon the investigation of the Spiritual Manifestations, with a pre-determination to believe nothing respecting the other world, or its inhabitants, which did not comport with his previous sectarianism. Thus, while quite free from that academical big- to the initials of his name.

through her own muscles, unless aided by a Spirit, whose presence may be manifested by tilting or rapping, and alphabetical illustrated by engravings in my work above mentioned, I emcommunication, of which the medium can not be the source, since it would require a knowledge which she does not possess.* The incapacity to judge of the bearing of true science upon the manifestations observed by the author, is no less apparent in the translator of the work under consideration, who has ventured to emblazon his ignorance by superadding to the title of the work in question, " Science versus Spiritualism."

Having thus dubbed the work with a name antagonistic to the title, "Spiritualism Scientifically Demonstrated," I call upon the translator to show where the science is to be found which he thus makes the antagonist of Spiritualism. Let it be pointed out in what part of the translation the science is displayed, which is to deprive my work of the efficacy which its title claims.

Though De Gasparin may be a learned man, I will undertake to show that it was his ignorance of science which prevented him from perceiving that while he was striving to expose the bigotry of the academicians, he was unconsciously employed by the in-comprised in this gratuitous hypothesis, that the phenomena are the result of the will of the mundane inquirer acting through a fluid upon the bodies affected. Moreover, if there was no other from the mind of the one, in preference to that which was erroneous, in the mind of the other ?

* Though my own powers as a medium, are too low to cause any movement in my Spiritscope without actual contact, the harder I bear upon it perpendicularly, the more rapidly it moves in a horizontal direction; and when with the aid of a Spirit-friend thus moving it (by way of exercise, in obedience to the advice of the Spirits, to improve my medial power), the withdrawal of the Spirit is instantly perceived by the arrestation of the motion. Any Spirit who may be present, and may wish to communicate, soon after I lay my hands on the base-board, causes the index to point to the initials of his name. That this is not the result of my will, is evident, since sometimes, instead of the Spirit whom I expect, another reports himself, by causing the index to point

De Gasparin seems never to have got rid of the notions that the manifestations require a circle of persons forming a chain. In point of fact, the most striking results, whether mechanical or physical, which I have obtained took place, when beside the medium and myself not more than from one to three persons through my own hands, when no other mortal was present.

I mentioned at Albany, before the association for the advancement of science, that on the 26th of February last, I entered the soon after I was seated, a dining-table began to move without or any agent between mortals and the bodies moved. any contact by either of the three mortals present, and that on it jumped me to a tune. other hard bodies, sounds like those which can otherwise only This statement occasioned a titter among some ignorant, self- be produced by rapping or tapping with some hard body? sufficient boobies who heard it. After my return to Philadelphia subsequently to my trip to Albany, Mr. Richard Yeadon, editor of the Daily Courier, Charleston, S. C., called on me and requested ocular evidence of movements without contact. Accordingly, I accompanied him to Maxwell's. There was no one present but the mother and daughter, as on the occasion of my lent opposite influence upon the mortal frame. former visit above mentioned. Seating ourselves at the table, table any number of times, and that it would be found that his rapping would be imitated exactly. This he found to be verified, whether the rapping was made regularly, or so as to beat of it. the time of any tune. Meanwhile, there was no contact with with difficulty, and varied the jerking with any tune that he sang. through the alphabet, according to the usual process.

The most plausible defence for this idea is its accordance with the explanation which the Spirits give as to their agency in table-The vaunted "science" which in the trial of Spiritualism be- moving. They assert that they move bodies by their volition, fore the tribunal of the scientific world, is to disprove the agency this being assisted by an emanation from the medium. But this of our departed immortal friends, in Spiritual-manifestations, is fact is utterly inexplicable by any science existing among mortals; since, admitting the mysterious competency of the emanation to become an instrument to the Spirit's will, it does not explain how a Spirit having no ponderable efficacy in respect to mundane Spiritual manifestation, must be the creature of the inquirer's bodies can thus influence them by any means whatever. There volition, and can have no characteristic which does not owe its appears an absolute necessity that vis inertiæ and gravitation existence to his volition. But it appears from the letter of De shall be nullified, if not counteracted. The law that reaction Gasparin above quoted, that the rapidity of the rapping being follows action, does not hold good in these manifestations. This very reasonably in proportion to the number to be indicated, was being the fact, is it not vastly more reasonable to suppose it due to so little the e 'e t of the will of the Count, that he deemed it the agency of Spirits than to that of mortals ? Nothing is more "curious" that it should be thus regulated. Had the rapping contrary to universal experience than the nullification of weight, been made by his knuckles through the direct effort of volition, or vis interiæ by the latter, while as respects the Spirits we have would any person have thought it curious that it proceeded had no evidence of similar incapacity ; and since the power of faster or slower? Would not the diversity of speed have been nullifying, as well as creating, the properties in question, must ascribed to the whim or the judgment of the rapper ? We are belong to God, it has not appeared unreasonable that his angels not told that the process was quicker or slower, as the Count have been endowed therewith to a proportionately minute extent. The all-important process of weighing is an illustration of the perfect equality of reaction with action. If instead of balancing any weight in one scale by an equivalent in the other, we fasten Again while the Count willed that forty-two raps should be one scale, while weightless, to the floor, do not the chains on strings suspending the scale undergo precisely the same tension wife's memory was better than his." Yet the Countess was not as if two equal weights be employed so as to produce the usual

If a rope be suspended from one end of a scale beam or baintellectual being to choose between the conflicting impressions lance, when a man has by means of it lifted himself from the of the husband and wife, wherefore was the true number chosen ground completely, will not his weight be determined by the number of pounds which will, when suspended from the other end of the beam, prove a counterpoise? Is it not clear also, that when by pulling at one end of the beam any person should raise any smaller weight, he must be partially drawn upward proportially to the force with which he pulls downward, of which the counterpoising weight becomes the measure.

Obviously, whether reaction between the man and the weight were present. The manifestation at Cape Island was obtained be accomplished by pulling or by pushing, the results would be similar. The substitution of any other intermediate competent means of reciprocal influence between the man and the counterpoising weight, would make no difference. Count De Gasparin's house of Mr. Maxwell, No. 2 Hibbert-street, Philadelphia, and rationale, therefore, does not explain the movements and rapfound only a girl and her mother within the front room ; that pings without contact, by suggesting the interposition of a fluid In the case of rappings, how could any fluid, while so subtle my seating myself on the table, my legs not touching the floor, as to be impalpable to our senses, produce upon tables, or any

This test was lately repeated in public in New York before the Mechanic's Philosophical Society. The results were such as I have described in various instances, as recorded in the SPIRITUAL TELEGRAPH for December 13, 1856. Of one of these I quote the subjoined :

Mr. Whitman then took a seat at the table, and wrote five names of persons who had departed this life, on as many slips of paper ; then five relationships on five other papers ; also the ages of the five persons on other five papers. On another slip of paper he wrote five towns and cities where the five persons died ; on five other papers the causes of their deaths. All these papers were rolled together so that no person could tell what was written on any one of them. Then the Spirit was asked to indicate by tipping the table, the five papers which corresponded to the same Spirit, that is, the name, age, relationship, place of death, and cause of death. Each paper was taken up separately, and five of them were accordingly indicated by the Spirit, which were laid aside, and on opening them afterward, they were found to correspond to one of the persons, except one paper, which was discovered afterwards to have been taken up accidently from other papers than those indicated by the Spirit. Then the whole of the papers were mixed and accumulated together again, and the Spirit was asked to ind cate the paper which belonged to the series, which it did, thus making the series complete.

Mr. Whitman then announced, to the audience, that he had never before seen the medium, and that his questions were all answered correctly.

In this process, the rappings can not be governed by the volition of the medium who is ignorant of the particulars; nor can the inquirer regulate them if he tries. It was publicly shown, at Sansom-street Hall, before a meeting, that the raps could not be counteracted by any person who tried to influence them.

These manifestations succeed at times much better than at others, according to the state of the medium, and other conditions. Were they the result of any jugglery, they would succeed uniformly.

In the translation of French, when neither the medium nor myself, nor any other mortal, saw the page, opened at random when the book was inverted, how could any mortal volition be concerned, especially as the medium did not understand French? But the message borne for me by my Spirit-sister, from Cape Island to Philadelphia, so as to put four people in motion, at the distance of nearly one hundred miles, within two and a half hours, is a fact which was entirely beyond the reach of the process which we owe to the genius of De Gasparin, cramped and stunted by religious faith.

Yet, that the phenomena are due to Spirits is denied, because they do not harmonize with Scripture. De Gasparin is one of those who can swallow scriptural camels, yet strain at spiritual gnats.

the manifestations adduced by him, although supported by a mere nominal explanation, "that there is a fluid," "a force," "an papers on which they are indited are produced in succession. agent," through which, without muscular contact, a man acts upon ponderable bodies without any consequent reaction against inquirers satisfactorilly, and among others to myself; and I am himself, with more force than he could with the combined influences of his will and his muscles.

Thus, as respects the powers of material beings or Spirits in the flesh, weighing, which is the most perfect process for determining the relative weight of ponderable masses, is the result of a law which conflicts with the inference that mortals can by any means move ponderable bodies without a corresponding equiva-

With respect to the reason displayed in the manifestations, rapping commenced. I requested Mr. Yeadon to rap on the that this does not depend on any mortal present, has been shown by the fact, that the reasoning displayed is such as could not be exercised by any mortal so situated as to have been the source

There is a manifestation which has been repeated successfully the table on the part of the medium, a girl about 17 years through various media, especially Redman, Mrs. Coan, and Conkold, or the mother. Mr. Yeadon was then requested to stand upon lin, in which the names, place of residence, and diseases prothe table. Accordingly he mounted into that position. Forth- ducing death, dates of birth and death of various individuals in with it began to jump him, so that he appeared to keep on his feet the Spirit-world, are secretly written upon as many scraps of paper containing the instructions thus made. The whole of the Lastly, various inquiries were made which were answered scraps are first rolled into indistinguishable pellets, and then accumulated into one heap. Then each being, in succession, In the manifestations thus described, no circle was formed, and separately taken from the heap, if any Spirit whose name has been written, as above stated, be present, the paper whereon the De Gasparin sneers at the academicians for their disbelief of name has been written, and all those containing any particulars respecting the Spirit, will be thus indicated by rapping, as the

This species of manifestation has been given to a great many sure that it was not by any effort of my reason, or will, that a successful issue was attained.

But, as Scripture rests upon human testimony, it can not set aside testimony of the same kind equally reliable; still less when the one is from living witnesses of unimpeachable character, and the other consists of the recorded hearsay testimony of persons who lived more than eighteen hundred years ago. Moreover, this ancient testimony has been handed down to us through a priesthood which, according to Bishop Hopkins, was for 700 years wicked in the extreme. (See my work, 1296 to 1307.)

While denying the efficacy of all-the testimony in favor of spiritual communication which does not accord with Scripture, De Gasparin satirizes the Academicians for disbelieving his facts, although when in obedience to the restricted view permitted by his creed, he admits that they can not be sanctioned by those savans without the violation of a law which has been verified, agreeably to sublunary experience and astronomical observations, from the age of Archimedes down to the present era.

* While at Cape Island last summer, being by means of the Spiritoscope in reiterated communion with his Spirit-sister, on the 3d of July, at one o'clock, she was requested by him to go to Philadelphia, and ask Mrs. Gourlay to send her husband to the Philadelphia Bank to ascertain on what day a certain note would become due. It was at half-past three o'clock when the answer was returned. When he reached Philadelphia, upon inquiring of Mrs. Gourlay whether she had received a communication from him, she replied, "Your Spirit-sister came and interrupted a communication from my mother to my brother and myself, and said that we must send to the bank and ascertain when your note would become due. Accordingly, my brother and my husband went to the bank." The clerk of the bank confirmed the statement as to inquiry having been made, and as to the time the note became due. Thus at Cape Island, about one hundred miles from Philadelphia, he had, in two hours and a half, put four people in motion in Philadelphia.

How, then, does the Metaphysician differ from the Mystic, investigation, rather than the Positive Laws of Nature. They differ in this, that the Metaphysician seeks to arrive at his Standhis Intellect, so that he uses the Instrument of the Scientist, and seeks to know. The Mystic directs his attention either to the Inner World of Consciousness (the Subjective Mystic), or to the Outer World of Nature (the Objective Mystic), and seeks to penetrate either, not by his External Intellect, but by Intuitive or Direct Knowledge. It is Concrete Substance which he would fain cognize. His Instrument is wholly different from that of the Metaphysician and the Scientist. These characters are, however, often blended. ### VALEDICTORY.

Five years have elapsed since this paper was projected-years marked by many important and startling events which will live in the world's memory and in history. But the occurrences of deepest import are seldom or never signalized by the general observation of mankind. The events most likely to arrest attention are such as are invested with the pomp and glare of external circumstance, and which enchain the popular mind rather by the noise of their coming than by their profound significance and permanent consequences. Hence, while the schemes and novements of political parties and hostile armies are objects of general attention, many people are seemingly all unconscious of the wider, deeper and more lasting revolutions in the realms of mind, and which silently but rapidly mold into new and higher forms the faiths and philosophies of the world.

Among the events of the last five years I can not but regard the complete inauguration of the Spiritual Idea and Reformation as of all others the most important. Within this period Spiritualism has taken form and commenced to exercise a powerful influence over the human mind. During these years the writer of this article has, from the very nature of his occupation, enjoyed almost uninterrupted intercourse with the friends of the Spiritual Movement in every part of the country. Through the medium of this paper we have often met in spirit, and while to me these periodical interviews have been fraught with no little pleasure, I trust they have not been wholly devoid of interest and profit to the reader.

But in this relation my work is accomplished. I have at least labored with an honest purpose, but with what degree of success others have an undoubted right to judge. Some of the best years of my life have been unreservedly devoted to the inculcation of the principles and precepts of the Spiritual Philosophy. Had the acquisition of wealth, or the possession of what the poet calls "the bubble reputation," been chief among the objects for which I have lived, I should be forced by the stern realities of 'the present hour, to regard this life as little less than a failure; for while the constant labor of eleven years has left me "neither purse nor scrip," and without a dwelling-place, or so beg to assure them, that I shall carry with me a grateful sense of the family home, she kindly restores to him the consciousof their kindness, and the pleasing hope that our intercourse ness that he has been travelling, and not the fields and fences. may be renewed hereafter. S. B. BRITTAN.

I deeply regret the combination of circumstances which has led to the amicable dissolution of the copartnership heretofore existing between Brother Brittan and myself; but since this event seems to be in consonance with the behest of the higher Power, I cheerfully submit, thankful for the preservation of fraternal sympathies, and with a heart overflowing with good wishes for the success of our Brother and co-laborer, in every sphere of future usefulness he may enter.

In assuming the unsought, but increased responsibilities this event has imposed upon me, I am thankful in being able to acknowledge indications that it has been guided by superior wisdom, and am grateful, also, for the friendly advice and assistance given and promised by many of the more prominent and influential co-laborars in the glorious cause of Spiritualism and Humanitary Reform. CHARLES PARTRIDGE.

CONVERSIONS TO CATHOLICISM.

THE New York Tribune, of April 7th, has the following : We learn from The Catholic Telegraph and Advocate of the 4th inst. that Dr. T. L. Nichols and Mary Gove Nichols, of Free-Love notoriety were baptized on last Sunday afternoon, in St. Xavier's Church, Syca more-street, Cincinnati, by the Rev. Father Oakley, Rector of the College, having been duly converted to the Catholic faith. With them were also baptized a daughter of Mrs. Nichols by a former husband, and a Miss Hopkins, of the Yellow Springs institustion.

From the following paragraph in The Telegraph, it appears that the Spirits were the instruments that effected these wonderful conversions "It is not a little remarkable that on either side of the Atlantic at the same time, the Spirits have advised their mediums, Mr. Hume, at Paris, and Dr. Nichols and family here, to seek salvation through the Church. If they are good Spirits, we can easily see the motive of this advice ; if bad ones, they are like those who went out of the possessed, as we read in the Gospel, confessing Jesus Christ."

Dr. Nichols, in the name of himself and wife, has written a retraction of his Free-Love and Infidel teachings, in a letter to Archbishop Purcell, which is printed. The pith of the document is in the following : "In the infinite mercy of Almighty God, we have been led, by what has seemed to us the direct and minaculous interposition of the Holy Spirit and by the blessed teachings of St. Ignatius Loyala and St. Francis Xavier, to the renunciation of infidelity, and to the humble acceptance of the faith and guidance of the Church. In deep humility and contrition, we submit ourselves to her divine order; we accept what she teaches, and we repudiate and condemn what she condemns. Whatever, in our writings and teachings, and in our lives, has been contrary to the doctrines, morality and discipline of the holy Catholic Church, we wish to retract and repudiate, and were it possible, to atone for."

In presenting this piece of intelligence to the readers of the SPIRITUAL TELEGRAPH, we are influenced by motives wholly impersonal. It is not because Dr. T. L. Nichols and his family hole, in company with a good ox-goad, and a cup of water by much as six feet of common earth to rest upon, I have been, often have thus exercised their individual rights, for with these no one nication. In vacating the editorial chair of the TELEGRAPH, I of both these blunders. Landing the boy at last, in the bosom Landing Dr. Nichols in the bosom of "Mother Church," she will soon remind him that he also has performed a long journey with wonderful rapidity, while the world of facts and principles around him has remained in statu quo.

What is the motive power by which the Doctor and his family have performed this journey ? and what is the capacity for transportation of the road upon which they have traveled ? By what assumes to be Dr. Nichol's own statement, the Locomotive in their case, was constructed of what "seemed to them the direct and miraculous interposition of the Holy Spirit, and of the blessed teachings of St. Ignatius Loyola, and St. Francis Xavier." But The Catholic Telegraph and Advocate is still more explicit. By that it would appear that "the Spirits have advised Dr. Nichols and family to seek salvation through the church." With this supposed fact as a basis, the character of "the Spirits" who gave the advice, is logically disposed of by a doubt. That is to say, their character is not cleared up at all. "If they are good Spirits," reasons the Catholic Telegraph, it is all very well. "If bad ones," they have only damned themselves the more by giving such sound advice. Now that the Catholic Telegraph should be thrown off the track by this doubt is natural enough, for " the Spirits" did not leave their cards. Had they done so, there would have remained neither doubt nor difficulty. "The blessed teachings of St. Ignatius" are blessed, simply because St. Ignatius taught, and for no other reason. But all who travel upon the great highway Dr. Nichols is said to have so happily illustrated, are propelled by a Saint far more potent than Loyola, and more worshipful than St. Francis Xavier. His name is St. Authority ! Whatever may be the name of a Locomotive attached to any train upon that track, the motive power is a unit, and its name is Authority.

And that road carries many passengers beside Dr. Nichols and his family. He has been preceded by millions, and will be followed by hundreds of thousands. The capacity of the road is unlimited. The conductor asks no questions. Catholic, Protestant, Infidel, Spiritualist-the only condition stipulated is get in, and instantly the steam is up and the train is off. As with every other great thoroughfare, it also has its inns and stations and depots, where travellers may tarry to refresh themselves. In the old days, and long before Authority was driven by steam, history informs us that the people were wont to tarry long, and enjoy themselves exceedingly at these places of refreshment cast up by the side of the highway of Authority-at one time amusing themselves by standing upon one leg on the top of a pillar, at another, shutting themselves up for a year or so in a dark way of solace to their carnal needs, and never coming out ex-

Spiritualism is, that the authority by which they are governed, does not seem to them to be such. If the Devil would but show his hoof, everybody would know him, and would be able to shun him. But he does not often so appear. So of Authority; that which is the most mischievous is that which is disguised. It is not unfrequently vailed from the sight of the investigator by appearing in the form of a "seventh sphere" confirmation of some favorite theory, in which case the mind, during its intoxication of delight, is taken captive before it has time to reflect on the utter absurdity of establishing a theory by an assertion-that is to say, proving one form of words by another form of words. In and of themselves, mere words or assertions prove nothing. It is only when they form a part of a system of demonstrable facts, or constitute a connecting link between them, that they rise to the dignity of demonstrative evidence, and the investigator who writes this simple truth upon his understanding, will be able to choose his own time in which to join any church or party, and should the time ever arrive in which he should feel it right to do so, he will have the satisfaction of knowing that his authority for what he does, is not in St. Francis Xavier nor in Pope Pius IX., nor yet in the ninth sphere, but within himself. ### "LYING SIGNS AND WONDERS."

We make the following extract from an article in the Advent Herald, by M. S. Avery :

Do not the signs of the times speak as with "trumpet tones," that soon He that shall come will come, and will not tarry? Heb. x: 37. Even him whose coming is after the working of Satan, with all power, and signs, and lying wonders. See 2 Thess. ii : 9. This working of Satan is nothing more nor less than " Spirit Manifestations." What are they but lying signs and wonders, wrought by the adversary of souls to deceive and lead them captive at his will?

We answer, they might be anything else rather than what the question supposes; at all events, they are not "lying signs and wonders." Spirit Manifestations claim to signify the prethis claim is fully demonstrated to the natural senses of every person of ordinary observation and comprehension who has investigated the subject. The existence of my kindred and friends, who have relinquished the mortal form, has been made vastly more certain to me than is the existence of M. S. Avery, who claims to have written the communication from which the above extract is taken. To me this communication from M. S. Avery, in point of ability and truthfulness, bears a very unfavorable comparison with those communications I have received from Spirits; and if I am obliged to apply the words "lying wonders" to either, I must in truth apply them to the former. Some of our modern Spiritualists entertain the theory that Death in itself does not change the habits and moral status of the indwelling man or Spirit; others deny this theory on the assumed ground that after the Spirit is freed from his earth form, he at once exhibits more wisdom and truthfulness in his conversations than he did here. This is admitted, but an atthat the Spirit is intromitted into conditions more favorable to truth. It is a debatable question, however, as to how far a man will carry his earthly hallucination and habits into the Spiritworld; but there can be no doubt that the moral reputation of the Spirit-world would immensely improve, if men here would though it had been opened and shut. yield their delusions, and lay aside their habits of lying. There is no "wonder" connected with Spirit manifestations, except to those unfortunate persons who are infidel to the truth Spirit-friends should make it manifest; but they might well occurred then to a few of the Jews, seems now occurring to the "wonder" and doubt, if they did not. #### REMARKABLE TESTS.

THE well known Boston medium, J. V. Mansfield, it appears, was originally of a character so "positive," that for a time no manifestations could be obtained in his presence. At length the names of his father and brother were obtained through a medium; and his father informed him, if he would sit for one hour a day, from fifty to fifty-four days, he would himself by developed as a writing-medium. At the same time, the Spirit of his brother said, if he would procure his "old violin," he would play on it.

Mr. Mansfield commenced his patient sittings, and the prophecy was fulfilled on the fifty-second day. He also obtained his brother's old violin from Vermont, and gave it a place on the top of his piano. A seeing medium, soon after, described his Spirit-brother bending over and thrumming the instrument. Mr. M. asked for sounds, and the violin responded. He then requested that the A string might be struck, and it was done; and next that the E string might be hard sprung, when it was pulled with such violence by the invisible hand, that it broke.

Not long since, among those assembled at Mr. Mansfield' room, were Capt. W., of the Navy, Lieut. McN., of the Army, and a distinguished physician, Dr. R.; when the name of "Emma Winslow" was given. This Spirit stated that she "died in England, March 10, 1657, aged 15 years, 8 months and 10 days." She said that her object was to furnish a "strong test" of the power and willingness of Spirits to communicate with mortals; and that she was a sister of Sarah Winslow, who died at Boston in 1667, aged 26 years, whose grave, marked by a common slate-stone, bearing the above record, might still be found in one of the old burial-places of the city.

On the following day, the search for this grave commenced It was continued for many hours, until most of the party gave out; and it was only by the perseve ing efforts of Lieut. ### THE INVESTIGATING CLASS.

The class met as usual at [the house of Charles Partridge, on Wednesday evening of last week, the question being :

"What influence and effect have the relations, habits and conditions, of a man's earth-life on the relations, conditions and happiness, of his life beyond ?"

On this question Mr. Stephen Pearl Andrews read the following

This is another among the most significant and important practical questions which can be asked of, and for the benefit of, mankind. Spiritualists are especially called on to answer it for the satisfaction of themselves and others, from the light of the higher truths which they possess on the subject. To know what are to be the effects of a life well or ill spent in this sphere, upon the development and destiny of the man in all coming time, is a species of knowledge the value of which can not be over estimated. I propose in the present article rather to state my convictions on the subject than to enter into the grounds upon which those convictions rest; let the reader receive my statements, therefore, for what they may seem to him to be worth, according as there may or may not be anything answering to the same faith in his own bosom.

The present life has been properly denominated in our spiritual literature, the Rudimental State. It is that in which life begins, and which bears the same relation to the subsequent life or lives in the spheres which the germ or root of a tree bears to the stem, limbs, twigs, foliage, blossoming and fruitage. Rudiment and rudimental have an etymological relationship to radix and root. Radical is an adjective from radix, and means that which relates to the root. This is, then, the radical world; the world in which are to be discovered and actualized all radical and fundamental truths. Fundamental is an adjective from the Latin fundamentum, meaning a basis or foundation. The root of a tree is correspondential with the foundation of a house or other edifice. Hence this world, or this life, is the fundamental world or life upon which is to rest for its basis the subsequent superstructure of experience, for the individual and the race, in all worlds, or all lives, hereafter.

This life is likewise to the whole future in the experience of the individual, what boyhood is to manhood; the period of elementary education; the time for laying in the bases of character; for giving the set or cast for the whole future drift of the development of the man. In this relation, therefore, as well as in the more common educational application of the poetical aphorism,

Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined.

If these preliminary ideas are true, let us see how much they of its altitude to the breadth of its foundation. When the main ing itself has taken form, prospectively, as well with reference to too late then to broaden the foundation, and consequently too late to prepare for attaining a higher altitude at completion. There is, therefore, profound philosophic truth in the ordinary religious exhortation to prepare for death, or, in other words, to prepare in this life for the life which is to follow after death. There is also truth, in a degree which none of us can afford to neglect or overlook, in that other religious dogma that, " as the tree falleth so it lieth," or, in other words, that the eternal destiny of the man is, in an important sense, fixed by his life here. The religionst may have failed to perceive the integral nature moral, the intellectual, and the material development of the individual. The spirit of his faith is true. It remains for us to clothe it in a right form. The tree which strikes its roots but a short way into the earth can not elevate its branches high into the air. The child that is permitted to pass in idleness the years that should be devoted to: the acquistion of primary knowledge, will have always to repent his misfortune. It is of a kind that can never be fully remedied near by, the door of which, though locked, gave forth a sound as in the future. If such is, then, truly the relation of this world to the Spirit-world, it is madness or idiocy, or, at the best, a most, The result of this interesting evening, was the conversion of deplorable ignorance, which asks, Of what use are Spirit-mani-Mr. Clarke, the father, to a belief in the reality of Spiritual- festations? or, Of what use is Spiritualism? #### A VISIBLE SPIRITUAL FORM.

MISS L. A. JEWETT, of Haverhill, Mass., writing to the New England Spiritualist, among other facts, relates one of the appearance of a deceased friend and schoolmate of hers, in visible form, in the presence of several persons. The interesting circumstance was as follows :

The writer was visiting at the house of her departed friend's father ; and in the evening, when the vacant chair, and she who had sat in it of the preparation which is required, affecting, as it does, the and made one of the charmed domestic circle, were the subjects of conversation, raps were heard on the table. The inquiry was made if Nella (the deceased one) was present, and the reply came that she was. The father, it appears, was no believer in Spiritualism and after some further questions, and a communication bearing evidence of the truthtempt to reconcile it with the first theory is made on the ground fulness of its origin, addressed to her parent, Nella was asked if she would not endeavor to make herself visible. The answer was in the affirmative, when the lights were extinguished, " and the Spirit-form of Nella Clarke," says the writer, "was seen by her father and three other persons, to pass over the table." It seemed to enter a closet matter till continents were formed, and the same refining process continuing to mould and remould particles of earth-we would surely have seen a purpose in this-a foreshadowing of a great and coming event.

Mr. Andrews, in reply to Dr. Gray's criticism on the use of

On the ocean shore, when mountain stream same tumbling down with the precious freight it had gathered on its journey to its ocean home, there was deposited the first soil-the virgin soil of the earth. Could we have stood there gazing at this phenomenon, we would have seen the evidence of an action below the surface in elevating little mounds of earth, from which the particles would fall and reveal a pale green substance, which would continue to elevate itself and increase in size and form, until the type of the vegetable kingdom, the Arthrophycus Harlani, was revealed. As this weed increased and spread itself on the ocean shore, we would witness in its train moving particles of matter, the living esse of vegetation, moulding, constructing itself into the ocean's first offspring ; the type of the animal kingdom, the Lingula prima.

Every organic form is an evidence of the living principle of matter. Motion was the first agent in collecting particles of earth and exposing them to the influence of moisture, light and heat ; this being the supply, it called for the demand ; and the esse of the life of the properties in action produced a form which was in harmony with the properties of the soil. The vegetable production in turn became the supply for a higher existence, and called for the animal kingdom ; and the life-sustaining properties of the vegetable concentrated its action, and the

This account of creation may appear fubulous, and put forth without sufficient evidence to sustain it ; but it is not so. Beside the many instances of recently formed islands of the sea, manifesting the progressive theory of the unfolding forms of life, we have the strongest evidence in all the ancient formations of the earth, to sustain it. For instance, the primitive soil was derived wholly from the disintegation of the most ancient rocks, and had but few properties in action, and the condition of the soil being at best a marsh, the production must necessarily have been a simple marsh weed. Consequently the animal must be as simple as the weed in order to draw its life-sustaining properties from the plant. All were in harmony, and as creation advanced, every addition of properties to the soil, produced a new condition with its own forms of life. This continued for ages and ages, gradually approaching and finally unfolding the present condition with all its attending forms. 1 5001

If we establish the principle that life is forced into action by the condition of matter, so that organic life is the effect ; then we attain exactly the point at which we are aiming. To prove that this is so, we appeal to geology, and trace her teaching throughout the vast range of creation in order that life may speak of its own mysterious power in giving form to the children of earth.

FROM A CORRESPONDENT. ORIGIN OF THE FIRST MAN.

MESSES. PARTRIDGE AND BRITTAN :

Gentlemen-I have carefully perused the offerings of the Investigation Class on the question, "What was the origin of the first man?" truth, and a great mission in its behalf; and they will, I fear, The writer of this question assumes that the human family all sprang from one parentage. The question would have been more prope-What was the origin of man? This is one of those questions which at first view would seem to be unanswerable, simply because man can have no knowledge of himself beyond himself; but fortunately life has left its foot-prints in its progressive march antecedent to man, which point through a long course of time directly at the origin of organic Spiritualists are themselves elevated above the tone of the senti- forms. The idea that man had his origin from the brute creation reflects upon the race, and certainly does not magnify his Creator. The miraculous theory is equally objectionable because it supposes an extremity in the works of wisdom.

> There evidently was a time when organic forms of life did not exist no greater difficulty in its introduction at the present period. on this globe, yet no one will deny that the properties of producing and sustaining vegetable and animal life may possibly have been in of forms seeking its ultimate, would not be able to continue the exthe granite before organic life had an existence.

Could we have been permitted to view the earth at the period when If we were to speak of man as a life-a substance-we would say that all of earth to be seen consisted of the tops of the mountains reaching above the deep as islands of the sea, and to witness for ages the everlashing wave laboring on the rock-bound coast, carrying the slow worn the offspring of a condition, a series of conditions-the ultimate of sediments to the caverns of the deep, separating particles for the pur- form, the ultimate of conditions. Dr. Curtis asked if Mr. Andrews thinks the condition of the pose of forming new combinations of properties, and the upheaval of TROY, March 31, 1857.

The idea that the living principle in plants and animals was imparted by the forms of life below them in the scale of creation, can not be sustained from geological facts, for the reason that there have been times when evidently all forms of life were extinct. Also in many parts of the earth, the formations are irregular. This is a very common occurrence, because the earth could not progress in creation uniformly in every part at the same time, for one part must furnish the material for another. Notwithstanding all these interruptions, the form and construction of life continued to advance uniformly through each period, wherever the formations are found.

As an evidence that all forms of life during each period did not species on different continents, in the same formation ; showing that the carth was advancing so uniformly in creation as to produce the same genera throughout ; yet local differences would produce different species. In some instances while one condition of life was disappearing from the earth, forms of a new character were as gradually taking their place, yet in these locations so favorable for the transition theory, not a single fossil has been found which would indicate the transmission of life from form to form. If it was a property of matter to approximate from form to form by every addition to its properties, that property would continue to the present day. On the other hand, life was introduced in the first instance without the agency of form. This is a strong point, and proves one of two facts, either that the introduction of organic life was by miraculous agency, or the effect of an action of certain properties of matter. If we adopt the latter, then the same properties must exist eternally.

Condition is the beginning and ending of every creation of form from first to last. Without conditions such as have revolutionized the earth from time to time, not a single form of organic life would ever have existed. Every creation of organic life has most wonderfully manifested adaptation to condition. Happiness has been subservient to life in every form ; this is a remarkable feature throughout the whole creation.

There was a difficulty presented to our minds as to the manner of production and protection of man in his infancy. If it is a fact that life was introduced in the first instance on earth through the lowest department of nature, and protected in its infancy, then there could be

THE ORIGIN OF MAN.

WE are glad to see that the proceedings of our Investigating Class continue to stir up thought, and challenge inquiry, on the part of friends abroad. We shall be happy to hear from Bro. W. again.

ME. EDITOR :

Perhaps you will allow me, without considering it an intrusion, to give expression to one or two thoughts which suggested themselves on reading the report of the Investigating Class of Wednesday evening, March 3.

With your permission, and due deference to the gentleman whose statements I have noticed, I will proceed.

Dr. Orton observed, "I confess I have little sympathy with the theory which finds the germ of humanity in the lower grades of matter, and traces it on, through the mineral and vegetable, to the animal kingdom, and thence, through tadpoles, cats, dogs and horses, to the monkey ; and ends by making the monkey blossom into a man. Human consciousness revolts at contemplating such a pedigree as this, which is no small evidence against it ; and the scheme is quite as illogical as it is unsightly." Again he says : "We can conceive it possible that mind should produce matter, but can not conceive it possible that unthinking matter should produce mind ; that from rocks, and drift, and sea-weed should spring the faculty of reason."

Now, the conception of the possibility of mind to produce matter involves two ideas, and but two, relative to the origin of matter. First-Either that mind, existing prior to matter, had the power, and indeed, did produce some thing out of nothing-a theory which the deeper thinkers set aside as unphilosophical and absurd ; or secondly, that the something is mind, changed as to its condition simply : in other words, that mind, by an act of the will, effected a change in the conditions of some of its own elements ; this change being productive of the something, to which mankind have applied the term "matter." Then, when considered with reference to elements or atoms which compose the one or the other, there is no such thing as matter outside of, and separate from, mind. This view fully sustains the idea that thought is the result of condition of substance ; the condition and thought holding the same relation of cause and effect elsewhere. Hence one of the distinguishing features between mind and matter ; the former being that condition of substance which does evolve thought ; the latter that condition which does not. Can the Doctor avoid giving his adherence to one or the other of the two ideas above stated, relating to the origin of matter ? In case, then, he should reject the former and take up with the latter, I would like to inquire whether the contemplation of the degenerary of mind into " cats, and dogs, and horses, and tadpoles, and the ce blossoming into the monkey," is not as revolting to human consciousness, and as illogical and unsightly, as the converse process which Dr. Orton so much dislikes? Is it not quite as inconceivable that that which thinks should degenerate into matter which does not think ; that the faculty of reason should degenerate into rocks, drift and sea-weed, as that a process the reverse of all this should take place? Even so, it would seem. But this degeneracy of mind is involved in the conception of Dr. Orton, that mind may produce matter. Again, Dr. Orton observes, "I know it is said that every ultimate atom is the germ of a man; but how came it to be a germ at all ?" Perhaps his own conception of the origin of matter should furnish an answer to his inquiry. If mind may produce matter out of nothing, may it not impregnate that matter with the properties and with the germs of whatever ultimate it sees proper? But if mind produces by himself for the preservation of the Bible as the word of God. matter by a change in the condition of some of its own elements or atoms, then will not the same philosophy which accounts for the germ in the atom of mind, account for it also in the atom of matter?

I have another fact to relate in reference to this illness ; and the relation it may bear to what is called Biblical miracles, I leave for others to decide :

After conversing with her for a few moments, I invited her to call with her hus- his death. Mother said she remembered him very well. band in the evening, as Mrs. H. would probably, as usual, be much worse. She was detained, and did not call that evening until about nine o'clock, when she found Mrs. H. perfectly delirious. Mrs. A. seated herself beside the bed and took Mrs. H.'s hand ; another lady sat at the opposite side of the bed, and Mr. A. stood at the foot. In this condition, Mrs. Hatch very soon became more calm, and described the apparitions of the Spirits, and then remained quiet, as if in sleep, for about ten minutes, when suddenly she rubbed her eyes, as if just awaking from a natural sleep, and said, "Why, good evening! When did you come? How well I feet !"

From that moment, her disease entirely left her; and she has had no cation, we make the following extracts: return of it since; and her recovery, or in other words, the rapidity with which she regained her strength, was more than a hundred fold more rapid than in any previous illness.

"And they shall lay their hands upon them, and they shall be healed." There are thousands at the present day who have witnessed of our daughters were mediums ; and we have pages of communications, practical demonstrations of the fulfillment of this philosophy ; but now, both in prose and poetry. as in the days of Jesus, the miracles are not within, but without, the For nearly a year we were scarcely a day without investigators. MY DEAR COEA,-Yield to the decision of your husband. Your physical condition at present is very precarious. If you lecture to-night, you will retard your future usefulness. This is the crisis in your lung disease; and we did not foresee that recovery if you remain quiet for a few days.

She grew worse very rapidly during the early part of Tuesday evening, and between eight and nine o'clock she went into convulsions, and remained unconscious during most of the night. In the morning, as we occupied rooms in the front part of the house, and the noise was very annoying, her Spirit-guide gave me the following instruction :

Cora must be removed from the noise entirely, else when the evening returns you will find her condition much worse. If perfect quiet is kept, she will soon recover. and her physical condition be much better than it was before. Do not feel alarmed at her condition ; although last night was painful, she will feel much better for having passed through the ordeal.

MESSRS. EDITORS :

SHED'S CORNERS, MADISON Co., N.Y., 1857. A short time since, Doctor Moran made his advent into this region, to convince the good people that Spiritualism is a humbug. He succeeded admirably in demonstrating the futility of all pretensions to explaining these phenomena on natural principles. His first lecture was ushered in with a fervent invocation Conscious that there is a striking analogy between the phenomena in relation to the woman of Eador calling up Samuel, and the modern phenomena called Spiritualism, he spent nearly the entire evening in proving that Samuel was not called up.

My sister, who but a short time since treated Spiritualism as a delusion, is now in the habit of receiving communications. I extract from her letters to me the following facts, which are at your disposal.

But to my story : Some few weeks ago I called in at Mrs. Arnold's to spend an evening with Eliza. Having heard that she had had some experience in stand bestowed, have impressions left upon the tablets of memory which time moving, I introduced the subject. She said she had seen stands and tables move repeatedly, but thought it nothing but electricity. I told doing so, much against her wishes; when her hand was controlled, and her plainly that I did not believe the stand or table moved; that it sumption) preyed upon his body, the more confirmed his mind became was the work of imagination merely. I said further, that if I should see in the beautiful realities of immortality ; and the gentle influences of a stand or table moved by the mere touch of any person, I should most Spirit companions bore him away in peace and joy to realms of parer certainly regard it as supernatural. Finally, it was proposed that we it would come so early. Abide by this decision, and we will insure for you a speedy should have a sitting. A plate was placed under each leg of the stand, and we two, with two sisters, sat around it. After remaining about fifteen minutes, laughing and talking at a great rate, what think you was my surprise to find the stand beginning to move, without any visible cause for it ! We told it to rap with one leg: it did so. We told it to tip in various ways, all of which it did. Still I could not be satisfied change. but that they moved it. To test this, I secretly told it to rap with a certain leg. Immediately the leg which I had designated set to replying. This I repeated a number of times, and the same result followed, until I was satisfied there was no possibility of collusion in this respect: I told it to repeat mother's age : it did so. I then told it, mentally, to

I have been disowned from the Hixite Quakers for believing in the Spirits.

I sometimes hear the remark, "Spiritualsim is dying away." Ask the sea shore if the waves of the ocean die ; ask the river to slumber on her bed ; ask the calm summer day if the storm car is hushed for ever ; ask the stars if they can fall from Heaven. They may answer as they will, but the waves of Spirit power will roll on for ever and ever.

MYSTERIOUS INTERVENTION.

[The following extract is going the rounds of the secular press as a most wonderful fact. If they would look into the ' Night side of Nature," from which it is taken, they would find many other facts equally startling. The book may be found in our catalogue. c. p.1

" Dr. Kerner relates that a canon of a Catholic cathedral, of somewhat dissipated habits, on coming home one evening, saw a light in his bedroom. When the maid opened the door, she started back in surprise, while he inquired why she had left a candle burning up stairs ; upon which she declared that he had come home just before and gone to his room, and she had been wondering at his unusual silence. On ascending to his chamber, he saw himself sitting in his arm chair. The figure rose, passed him, and went out at the room door. He was extremely alarmed, expecting his death was at hand. He, however, lived many years afterward, but the influence on his moral character was very beneficial."

"Not long since a professor, I think of theology, at a college at Berlin, addressed his class, saying that, instead of his usual lecture, he should relate to them a circumstance which, the preceding evening, had occurred to himself, believing the effects would be no less salutary.

"He told them that as he was going home late the preceding evening, he saw his own image, or his double, on the other side of the street. He looked away, and tried to avoid it, but finding it still accompanied him, he took a short cut home in hopes of getting rid of it, wherein he succeeded till he came opposite his own house, when he saw it at the door.

"It rang, the maid opened ; it entered, she handed it a candle ; and as the professor stood in amazement on the other side of the street, he saw the light passing the windows, as it wound its way up to his own chamber. He then crossed over and rang ; the servant was naturally dreadfully alarmed on seeing him, but without waiting to explain, he ascended the stairs. Just as he reached his own chamber he heard a loud crash, and on opening the door they found no one there, but the ceiling bad fallen in, and his life was thus saved. The servant corroborated this statement to the students, and a minister, now attached to one of the Scotch churches, was present when the professor told his tale. Without admitting the doctrine of protecting spirits, it is difficult to account for these latter circumstances."

"A very interesting case of an apparent friendly intervention, occurred to the celebrated Dr. A-T-, of Edinburgh. He was sitting up late one night, reading in his study, when he heard a footstep in the passage, and knowing the family were, or ought to be, all in bed, he rose and looked out to ascertain who it was, but seeing nobody, he sat down again. Presently the sound recurred, and he was sure there was somebody, though he could not see him. The foot, however, ascended the stairs, and he followed it until it led him to the nursery door, which was open, and he found the furniture was on fire ; and thus but for this kind office of his good angel, his children would have been burned in their beds."

[We wish our cotemporary would tell us something about that nal of Commerce. " goodness and faith" which they speak of as being essential, yet separate and distinct, from "knowledge." We had supposed that knowledge pertained to truth, and truth to goodness; and have generally found the popular piety which rests on near faith in the unknown very treacherous. c. P.]

PROFITS OF AUTHORSHIP IN ENGLAND .- The late Mr. Tegg, the publisher in Cheapside, London, gave the following list of remunerative payments to distinguished authors in his time, and he is believed to have taken considerable pains to verify the items : Fragments of History, by Charles Fox, sold by Lord Holland for $25,500. Fragments of History, by Sir James Macintosh, $2.500. Lingard's History of England, $23.450. Sir Walter Scott's Buonaparte was sold with the printed books, for $90,000 dollars; the net received on copyright, on the first two editions only, must have been $50,000. Life of Wilberforce, by his sons, $20,250. Life of Byron, by Moore, $20,000. Life of Sheridan, by Moore, $10,000. Life of Hannah More, $10,000. Life of Cowper, by Southey, $5,000. PETER NASSAU, a colored man of Woodstock, Vt., is in the one hundred and twenty-sixth year of his age. Hls eye-sight is good ; teeth sound. He converses sensibly, and walks without difficulty. John Hames, a revolutionary veteran living in Maury county, Ga., on the waters of Holly Creek, was born in Mecklenburg county, Va., and was a lad ten years old when Washington was in his cradle. He was thirty-two when Braddock met his defeat on the Monongahela. He and several of his neighbors set forth to join the headstrong and ill-fated commander, but, after several days' march, were turned back by the news of his overthrow. He migrated to South Carolina nearly a hundred years ago. He was in thirteen considerable conflicts during the War of Independence, and in skirmishes and rencountres with Indians, with Tories and with British, times beyond memory. He was with Gates at Camden, with Morgan at the Cowpens, with Green at Hillsboro and Eutaw, and with Marion in many a bold rush into a Tory camp or red-coat quarters.

TEMPERATURE OF THE EARTH .- Scientific investigations have been made concerning the temperature of the interior of the earth. The existence of hot-water springs, and the recurrence of volcanic eruptions, have always pointed at a certain fact. Now it is well established that the effect of the sun's rays does not penetrate more than fifty feet. After that the temperature which has been so far regularly diminishing, increases at the rate of about one degree Fahr., for every fifteen a depth of two miles ; lead must melt at a depth of six miles ; gold at a depth of twenty miles; cast-iron at a depth of about twenty-five miles ; and at a depth of less than fifty miles the very rocks must be in a state of fusion, or like flowing lava. A WONDERFUL COINCIDENCE .- Lavater died, and his friend Stilling, who always rejoiced when a soul was freed from earth, wrote a glorification of the departed Lavater. In this poem he represents the awaking of the good man in the heavenly kingdom, and tells of the joyful greeting he received from his friend Hiess, who had preceeded him many years ; and one of the first desires expressed by Lavater, was to visit the Virgin Mary and ask her concerning the life of our Lord upon the earth.

Some months after the publication of the poem, Stilling met an old friend of Lavater's, who shook him warmly by the hand and thanked him for the pleasure he had experienced in reading the "glorification," and said, "How well you brought in that incident concerning Hiess." "Incident !" said stilling, "it was an imagination." "Nay," said the friend, "forty years ago, when Lavater stood weeping beside the death-bed of Hiess, the latter said to him, 'Weep not for me, Lavater, for I will be the one to welcome you into the heavenly kingdom." Stilling had never heard of the incident.

Some years after, in turning over a volume of Lavater's writings, which he had never read, his eye rested on the following passage : "When I enter the heavenly kingdom, my first desire will be to seek out the Virgin Mary, and ask her all the particulars concerning the life of our Lord upon the earth." Stilling was overwhelmed with astonishment, and no one can read this statement without reflecting that many things which seem to be the mere creatures of our imagination. are simple truths written through us as mediums. Man's mind, in fact, is not creative; he receives thoughts through attendant Spirits, and the visions of his fancy are his spiritual surroundings ; they are his inner world, brought out to the perception of his thought. With this thought before us, how wonderful are books; they are truly spiritual 224,453, while the increase of the slaves had been 1,823, or only a fracrevelations. .

TRACES OF SIR JOHN FRANKLIN .--- The vague reports of last summer in respect to new traces of some of Sir John Franklin's party are made somewhat more distinct in a letter from Red River Settlement, Hudson's Bay Territory, published in the London Times. The writer says : "I have just returned from----, who was at Norway House last July, and saw the man who brought an express to Sir George Simpson from Mr. Anderson, in Mackenzie's River district, stating that Indians had brought over reports to one of the trading posts in that quarter that Indians had seen two or more encampments of whites on an Island on some point where Anderson and Stewart turned back in 1855, and that is backed, or lined with one of white pine, cut across the grain, and the one of the encampments particularly was quite fresh, supposed to have been abandoned a day or two before the Indians saw it, and from the traces it was thought there might have been about ten or twelve men. I could not hear of the exact locality further than that Anderson and Stewart were within a very short distance of the place where the traces were seen.

MISSOURI .- The Census of Missouri, which has just been taken, shows the state to have a total population of 912,206, of whom 819,583 are free whites, 2,652 free blacks, and 89,590 slaves. The increase of the white population in six years has been over thirty-eight per cent. or tion over two per cent. Two counties return no slaves; twenty counties report only 1,000 altogether.

DR. COX AND THE BAPTISTS .- The Baptist papers are roundly censuring Rev. Samuel H. Cox, D.D., of the New School Presbyterian Church, for an offensive reference to the Baptists in a recently published letter of his. The following are the exceptionable words :-"Thus says Rome, with its Papal organization of apostolical unitymuch more apostatical; thus 'the Churchman,' who knows not whose assumptions and organizations they are that lamentably cause divisions and offences, contrary to the doctrines which we have learned of the Holy Ghost, with the order to avoid them ; thus all our immersers. whose water-cure establishments make hydropathy and packing the only way to the communion-table." The Dector once said very hard things about the Methodists, and that very shortly after he had fraternized with them in the World's Convention ; but the old gentleman is not altogether accountable for what he may say.

A NEW STYLE OF BAROMETER .- The Mobile Register gives the following description of a barometer on the Mexican war steamer, Guerrero : On board the Mexican steamer is a barometer of the most eimple construction, but greatest accuracy. It consists only of a long strip of cedar, very thin, about two and a half feet in length, about an inch wide, cut with the grain, and set in a block or foot. This cedar strip two are tightly glued together. To bend these when dry is to snap them, but on the approach of bad weather the cedar curls over until the top at times touches the ground. This simple instrument is the invention of a Mexican guitar-maker, and such is its accuracy that it will indicate the coming of a " norther" full twenty-four hours before any other kind of barometer known on the coast. Had this been the production of Yankee ingenuity, it would have been patented long ago, and a fortune made by its inventor.-Exchange.

THE CHOIR TURNED OUT OF CHURCH -The Christian Advocate, Memphis, Tenn., says : We clipped from the Advocate and Journal last week, an article advocating the plan of having the hymns and music arranged, so that the selecting one would determine the other. We think it a good suggestion, and venture another, which can be carried into execution immediately. Let all the people take their hymn-books with them to Church, and abolish the plan of lining the hymns. Let those who lead sit in front of the pulpit near the center of the congregation. Then will our worship be more spiritual. The preacher will catch the inspiration, and be much better prepared to speak.

HOPE ON ! HOPE EVER !!?

Gon gave us hope to soothe our dying hours, and to palliate our heaviest miseries. Were it not for Hope, the existence of nine-tenths of mankind would be a burthen almost unbearable. To those who inspire hope in the suffering and desponding, even if it be based upon fallacy, we owe many thanks, for there is but one visitor more cheerful than hope that can make its appearance at the bedside of the dying. That visitor is Dr. James's Extract of Cannabis Indica. The old doctor has been retired from practice for many years, but the infallibility of his marvelous remedy for Consumption, Bronchitis, Nervous Debility, Cough, severe Cold, Asthma, ect., has compelled a demand which he he can only supply by sending instructions everywhere how to make and successfully use it, and also by selling the medicine ready made to all who do not desire to prepare it themselves. ments above mentioned, get the "Extract of Cannabis Indica." To our best knowledge and belief, based upon what we have heard, and thousands of testimonials, which we have seen, from all parts of the world, it is the only medicine extant that ever did speedily, safely, and permanently cure consumption and kindred diseases. It is an East India preparation, the efficency and method of making which the doctor discovered while searching for the means of preserving the life of his only child, a daughter, from death in consequence of tubercled lungs. Take this medicine, (it is genuine thing) and live! 246--tf

QUESTIONS FOR ELUCIDATION BY SPIRITS AND MORTALS,

The investigating class in the city of New York is composed, as far as possible, of intelligent men and women who are supposed to entertain the various popular theories involved in the questions to be solved. This class, until further notice, will assemble each succeeding Wednesday evening at the house of Charles Partridge, and in conducting the meetings the following order will be observed : At eight o'clock the question for the evening will be read, after which will be presented papers from our friends abroad, containing pertinent facts, modes of application to the question under consideration, and conclusions. Then the persons present will read their briefs of facts, arguments and conclusion, and enforce the same with such brief remarks as may render the elucidation of the subject more complete.

To give equal and the widest facilities to all persons-whether present or absent-to participate in the discussion, we purpose to consider the several questions in their order, giving to each at least one week's time, and probably more to some or all of them. The purpose being simply to elicite and present truth in as brief and yet as comprehensive a form as possible, the following has been adopted as the order to be observed which is believed to be best calculated to promote the objects had in view.

First. Each contributor is requested to present in writing the facts on which his or her conclusions are based.

Second. The mode of applying facts to the question.

Third. Conclusions.

Fourth. Remarks.

QUESTIONS.

15. Wherein consists the essential difference between material substances and things and spiritual substances and things?

16. Is man physically, mentally or morally free?

17. Is there any such thing as evil or sin; and if so, in what does it consist, and what was its origin, its use and destiny ?

18. Is the moral universe a means or an end in the creation; and is the moral government of God his final government?

19. Is the moral universe now just such as God originally foresaw, planned and designed ?

20. Is there any special Divine Providence in the sense which implies the direct interposition of Deity?

21. Has God made any special revelation of his will to man; and it so, in what does it consist?

THE MOVING WORLD. PRESIDENT WALKER is reported to be on his legs again in Nicaragua, having achieved several important victories. The Reform Charter for this much abused city, will probably be a law before this paper goes to press. The joint Legislative Committee of the State have reported a paper on the Dred Scott case, closing with Resolutions the first of which is as follows : Resolved, That this State will not allow slavery within her borders.

in any form, or under any pretence, or for any time, however short, let the consequences be what they may.

A bill for the relief of Broadway, by running a single track railway up the line of streets on one side of it, and down the other, has passed the lower branch of the Legislature.

England and France have invited the United States to take a hand with them in the adjustment of the affairs of China. This is declined. Our Government, however, has appointed a new minister to the Celestial Empire, and is about to dispatch an additional naval force to look after our interests in the Chinese seas.

Notwithstanding his defeat in Parliament, it is now asserted that Lord Palmerston is likely to be sustained at the new elections.

Diplomatic relations have ceased between Austria and Sardinia. The Spanish fleet for the invasion of Mexico was to have set sail from Spain on the 28th of May. Our neighbors at Paterson, New Jersey, are rejoicing over a Pearl Fishery which has been discovered in their midst. The most curious part of the discovery is that the Pearls are found in the common fresh water clam. Many of them are said to be of the first water ; and one of them, of the size of a marble, is valued, we are told, at over $700.

The free-soil party in Missouri are becoming powerful. Blair, an emancipationist, it will be recollected, was elected to Congress from the St. Louis district last fall ; and now, at the Charter election in that city, the free-soilers have again triumphed.

The jury, in the case of the Rev. Mr. Kalloch, on trial for adultery at Boston, did not agree, and were discharged.

The trial of Mrs, Canningham and Eckel for the murder of Dr. Burdell, has been put over to May.

On Wednesday of last week a drove of seventy head of Western cattle was sold in this city at an average of $120 a-piece ; equal to 12 cents a pound for the beef.

The financial department of this city ranks next in importance to the Treasury of the United States. Last year the receipts were about $21,000,000 ; and the disbursements but a half million less.

The real and personal estate of this city is estimated at $700,000,000, though the tax books make it something less.

The African Sorghum, known by the name of Imphey, is now declared to be superior to the Chinese sugar plant, about which there has been of late so much said.

It is reported, but discredited by some, that a settlement of twenty families, near the head waters of the Des Moines River, has been cut off by the Indians.

The South Carolina Court of Appeals has sustained the will of a late citizen of that State, who removed to Cincinnati with his colored children, and there died, having made a will in their favor.

PERSONAL AND SPECIAL NOTICES. Mrs. Hatch at the Tabernacle.

MRS. CORA L. V. HATCH, though but partially recovered from the effects of her recent illness, fulfilled her engagement to lecture at the Tabernacle on Friday evening of last week. In consequence of the storm, the audience was not very large, but seemed deeply interested in the proceedings of the occasion. After she came upon the stage, a Committee was appointed to propound questions to be answered by the Spirits through her mediumship. While the Committee were in session in an ante-room, Mr. S. B. Brittan entertained the audience with some felicitous remarks. In the course of some ten or fifteen minutes, the Committee re-entered and submitted the following questions :

1. What principles of natural law govern the gyroscope ?

What principles of industrial aw govern all gyroscope ?
 What causes the seeds of plants to government?
 Did the various races now inhabiting the earth, all Spring from a common mum dane parent? 4. Was Jesus of Nazareth of divine or human origin?

These questions having been read to the adience by Mr. Brittan, Mrs Hatch immediately became entranced, and spoke to the third and fourth of them, in her usually forcil is and melliflacat style, for about an hour. The Spirits offered the enfeebled physical condition of the medium as an apology for their neglect of the first two questions, as well as for any defects that might be perceived in their manner of treating those on which they spoke-which defects however, if they did exist, were seemingly not very manifest to the great mass of the auditors, and were entirely overlooked by Captain Rynders, one of the interrogating Committee, who was afterward heard to express himself highly gratified with the discourse.

Mrs. Hatch speaks again in the Tabernaele on Thursday evening, April 16th, and at Dodworth's Hall on Sunday morning next, after which she will leave the city for a season.

The Programme of Mrs. Hatch.

As there are many requests from different quarters for her services I wish to inform our friends of the arrangements we have concluded upon for the remainder of the present season.

Mrs. Hatch will speak in Troy, April 26th, and May 3d ; after which we shall leave for Buffalo. We will make engagements for two or three lectures between Troy and Buffalo, if the friends should desire They can address me at Troy after the 23d of April, or 309 Fourth Avenue, until then.

We shall leave Buffalo for Baltimore, Md., the first of June, where we shall remain during that month, after which we shall retire to the mountains for six weeks or two months, that Mrs. H. may have an opportunity to recuperate her physical bealth. Respectfully, B. F. HATCH, M. D.

United States Agricultural Society.

A GREAT national trial of machinery and implements of every description pertaining to agriculture, and household manufactures, at the Fifth annual fair, will be held in Louisville, Ky., during the Fall of 1857. The undersigned, a Committee of the United States Agricultural Society, appointed at the Fifth Annual Meeting held at the Smithsonian Institute, in the city of Washington, on the 14th day of January, 1857, "to make all the necessary arrangements for a national trial in the field of agricultural implements and machinery," respectfully invite the inventors and manufacturers of all such articles, both in the United States and foreign countries, to participate in a public trial to be made at the Society's Annual Exhibition, to be held in Louisville, Kentucky, during the fall of 1857.

All articles from foreign countries intended for exhibition may be consigned to the "Agent of U. S. Agricultural Society, Louisville, Ky.," by whom they will be received and stored free of charge.

To enable the Society to make arrangements on a sufficiently liberal scale, it is absolutely necessary that the Committee should know what articles will be offered for competition ; and they therefore request that all inventors or manufacturers who may be disposed to unite in the proposed trial, will communicate their intentions to the Secretary at their earliest convenience.

IGNORANCE OF GEN. WASHINGTON .- " Although for the time in which he lived, a very distinguished man, the ignorance of Washington in some things is perfectly incredible. He never travelled on a steamboat, never saw a railroad, or locomotive engine ; was perfectly ignorant of the principle of the magnetic telegraph, never had a daguerreotype, Colt's pistol, Sharp's rifle, or used a friction match. He atc his meals with an iron fork, never used post-stamps on his letters, and knew nothing of the application of chloroform to alleviate suffering, or the use of gas for illumination. Such a man as this could hardly be elected President of the United States in these times, although it must be confessed, we occasionally have a candidate who proves not much better informed about matters in general."

METHODIAT CONFERENCES .- The Methodists, through the Advocate and lournal, are discussing the propriety of preachers taking their wives to the Conferences. The editor says : "We are afraid to open the list for a race of controversy on the subject ; for we have no doubt, from what we have witnessed in other cases, it would go with a rush." [We have no doubt the editor's fears are well grounded; but we think there is no question of the propriety of advising the preachers' wives to go to these Conferences -ED. TEL.]

THE DEAD LETTER OFFICE .- It is stated that during the quarter ending the 31st of March, about 2,000 arad letters have been opened at the Dead Letter Office, containing money amounting in the aggregate to over $11,000 ; and already seven-eighths have been restored to their owners. The estimates of the department of the whole number of dead letters received in former years, under the high postage system, was three millions and a half. Under the low postage prepaid system, it does not exceed three millions a year, although the number of letters mailed is far greater.

CHOIR SINGING .- The Methodists are beginning to regard the pepalar choir singing an innovation, and are about turning it out of chards, that all the people may join in this praise and service to God.

ON THE WORK OF COUNT DE GASPANIN, ENTITLED "SCIENCE VERSUS SPIRITUALISM; OR, A TREATISE ON TURNING TABLES." BY DR. HARE far as respects the movements without contact, but likewise those the language of the author :

"M. Agénor de Gasparin, one of our most sedate philosophers, writes what follows in La Gazette de France : 'I will not insist on this The phenomenon of rotation, if alone, would not appear to me point. entirely satisfactory. I am mistrustful, though not an academician; and I admit that it may be possible (at a pinch.) that a mechanical impulsion might be communicated ; but the rotation only serves to present other phenomena the explanation of which it is impossible to refer to any kind of muscular action.'

"' Each of us, in his turn, gave orders to the table, which it promptly obeyed ; and I should succeed with difficulty in explaining to you the strange character of these movements ; as, for instance, of blows struck with an exactness, with a solemnity, that fairly frightened us. "Strike three blows; strike ten blows; strike with your left foot; with your right foot; with your middle foot; rise on two of your feet; on only one foot ; remain up ; prevent those on the side raised from returning the table to the floor." After each command, the table obeyed. It produced movements that no complicity, involuntary or voluntary, could have induced ; for we ofterward tried in vain to place it on one foot, and keep it there by the pressure of the hands, but it resisted incontestibly the efforts to press it down.

" Each one of us gave orders with equal success. Children were obeyed as well as grown persons.

"' Still more ; it was agreed that the requests should not be audible, but merely mental, and whispered to a neighbor. Still the table obey-There was in no instance the least error. ed!

" Each person desired the table to rap the number of years of his age ; and it gave our ages as indicated only in our minds. endeavoring, in the most curions manner, to hurry when the number was large. I must own, to my shame, that I was rebuked by it, for having unintentionally diminished my age ; the table gave forty-three, instead of forty-two, because my wife, with a better memory, had thought of the correct number.

"Finally, having continued these experiments more than an hour, at which the neighbors and the servants of the farm were present, I felt that it was time to stop. I requested the table to rise; to rise again, and turn over on my side, which it did.

nd turn over on my end, the assurance of my best consideration, "Accept, gentlemen, the assurance of my best consideration, "'Accept, gentlemen, the assurance of my best consideration,

Count Agenor De Gasparin is, as stated in the introduction to his late work on "Tarning Tables," the author of a treatise " on the general interests of French Protestantism," in two volumes, octavo; and also of one entitled "Christianism and Paganism," being avowedly a zealous Protestant believer in the Gospel. Under these circumstances, this distinguished writer entered upon the investigation of the Spiritual Manifestations, with a pre-determination to believe nothing respecting the other world, or its inhabitants, which did not comport with his previous sectarianism. Thus, while quite free from that academical big to the initials of his name, ments in question could not be accomplished. Thus, if a medi- overlooked in the titular designation. um girl sit near, quite motionless, without touching a table, a produce the same result by the aid of his will and muscular strength combined !

Nor can the medium effect this, her will operating directly through her own muscles, unless aided by a Spirit, whose presence may be manifested by tilting or rapping, and alphabetical communication, of which the medium can not be the source, since it would require a knowledge which she does not possess."

The incapacity to judge of the bearing of true science upon the manifestations observed by the author, is no less apparent in the translator of the work under consideration, who has ventured work in question, " Science versus Spiritualism."

Having thus dubbed the work with a name antagonistic to the title, "Spiritualism Scientifically Demonstrated," I call upon the translator to show where the science is to be found which he thus makes the antagonist of Spiritualism. Let it be pointed out in what part of the translation the science is displayed, which is to deprive my work of the efficacy which its title claims.

Though De Gasparin may be a learned man, I will undertake to show that it was his ignorance of science which prevented him from perceiving that while he was striving to expose the bigotry of the academicians, he was unconsciously employed by the in-

otry which is made by him the subject of satire, as well as the habitants of the Spirit world, to furnish evidence tending to reobject of refatation, he is himself the abject thrall of Scriptural lieve mankind of that Scriptural intolerance and bigotry of

His choice of a title comports with the narrowness of his views. Agreeably to the observations of the Count, as stated by The results of this investigator fully sustain those of the well ascertained laws of motion, or the characteristic attributes himself, tables tilt, move upward, side ways and end-wise, ten same low, mechanical kind narrated in my work-not only so of electricity, he makes no allowance for any other educational times where they turn once. Nevertheless, "Treatise on Turnimpressions than those inculcated in his own mind. Hence the ing Tables" is selected for the prominent title of his work. This which are obedient to the dictation of the operator. Of these, investigation of Spiritualism was pursued by him with eyes and is the more objectionable because tables, as well as other bodies, one has been republished in my work, which I here subjoin in ears open to facts inexplicable by physical science, while blind have been in numberless instances subjected to a mysterious rapping which enables intellectual communications to be obtained, De Gasparin was consequently incapable of appreciating the clearly independent of the mind of any mortal. Not being absurdity of ascribing the mechanical movements of ponderable liable to the inference that they may be due to involuntary musmasses to the volition of mortals, without the intervention of cular action, these rappings afford a more unquestionable evimuscular assistance, when even with that assistance, the move- dence of the agency of Spirits than table turning ; yet they are

But, as above stated, rapping is not confined to tables, nor are man standing thereupon may be jumped to a tune, though in the any of the phenomena. The association of the manifestations absence of the medium, a man of twice her strength could not with tables has not the smallest bearing upon the rationale. which is, of course, just the same, whether, without any perceptible cause, a table be turned or be made the means of rapping.

After the first three months of my investigations, having contrived instruments upon the principle of those described and illustrated by engravings in my work above mentioned, I employed them in my investigations, and scarcely ever resorted to table moving of any kind, as the means of intellectual communication with Spirits.

I stated the subject for the consideration of the meeting at Albany, in these words : " On movements and sounds produced to emblazon his ignorance by superadding to the title of the in ponderable bodies, which have not been traced to any physical cause." Evidently nothing caused the association of the manifestations with the tables but their superior accessibility and convenience in using.

But while wide awake to the bigotry of the academicians, and not deep enough in science to appreciate the insuperability of their objections to his nominal rationale, merely a vox et preterea. nihil, this apparently noble, worthy and pious gentleman concentrates his attention upon one phase of Spiritualism. He occupies himself solely in proving and examining those phenomena which result from the agency of media and Spirits of the lower spheres; being quite regardless of alphabetic communication, which is the only mode in which the higher Spirits hold direct communion with mortals.

From his religious faith, pre-resolved to decide against the agency of Spirits, the learned Count has not directed his attention to the use, nor to improvement of the means, of intellectual intercourse. To none of his Spirit relatives is the opportunity given of communicating with him freely; it is sesumed that whatever he has not been enabled to witness must be impracticable. By him, as well as other distinguished investigators, the erroneous conclusion is formed, that because in many instances nothing can be learned which is not known to the medium, this must be the case universally. Accordingly it is inferred by him, that in a page unseen by the media employed, nothing can be spelt through them. Yet according to my experience, French was translated through a medium who was ignorant of that language, when no other person was present beside the medium and myself, the page being unseen by either.

The vaunted "science" which in the trial of Spiritualism before the tribunal of the scientific world, is to disprove the agency of our departed immortal friends, in Spiritual-manifestations, is comprised in this gratuitous hypothesis, that the phenomena are the result of the will of the mundane inquirer acting through a fluid upon the bodies affected. It is assumed, of course, that any Spiritual manifestation, must be the creature of the inquirer's volition, and can have no characteristic which does not owe its existence to his volition. But it appears from the letter of De Gasparin above quoted, that the rapidity of the rapping being very reasonably in proportion to the number to be indicated, was so little the e e t of the will of the Count, that he deemed it "curious" that it should be thus regulated. Had the rapping been made by his knuckles through the direct effort of volition, would any person have thought it curious that it proceeded faster or slower? Would not the diversity of speed have been ascribed to the whim or the judgment of the rapper ? We are not told that the process was quicker or slower, as the Count have been endowed therewith to a proportionately minute extent, willed it to be quickened or retarded. It was ascertained, publicly, at Sansom-street Hall, that none of the inquirers could control the rapping.

Again while the Count willed that forty-two raps should be given to indicate his age, forty-three were given, "because his strings suspending the scale undergo precisely the same tension wife's memory was better than his." Yet the Countess was not the inquirer, and of course, according to the hypothesis, could indication of equiponderancy? not have controlled the issue. Moreover, if there was no other intellectual being to choose between the conflicting impressions of the husband and wife, wherefore was the true number chosen from the mind of the one, in preference to that which was erroneous, in the mind of the other ?

De Gasparin seems never to have got rid of the notions that the manifestations require a circle of persons forming a chain. In point of fact, the most striking results, whether mechanical or physical, which I have obtained took place, when beside the medium and myself not more than from one to three persons were present. The manifestation at Cape Island was obtained through my own hands, when no other mortal was present.

I mentioned at Albany, before the association for the advance ment of science, that on the 26th of February last, I entered the house of Mr. Maxwell, No. 2 Hibbert-street, Philadelphia, and found only a girl and her mother within the front room; that soon after I was seated, a dining-table began to move without any contact by either of the three mortals present, and that on my seating myself on the table, my legs not touching the floor, it jumped me to a tune.

This statement occasioned a titter among some ignorant, selfsufficient boobies who heard it. After my return to Philadelphia subsequently to my trip to Albany, Mr. Richard Yeadon, editor of the Daily Courier, Charleston, S. C., called on me and requested ocular evidence of movements without contact. Accordingly, I accompanied him to Maxwell's. There was no one present but the mother and daughter, as on the occasion of my former visit above mentioned. Seating ourselves at the table rapping commenced. I requested Mr. Yeadon to rap on the table any number of times, and that it would be found that his rapping would be imitated exactly. This he found to be verified, whether the rapping was made regularly, or so as to beat the time of any tune. Meanwhile, there was no contact with the table on the part of the medium, a girl about 17 years old, or the mother. Mr. Yeadon was then requested to stand upon the table. Accordingly he mounted into that position. Forthwith it began to jump him, so that he appeared to keep on his feet with difficulty, and varied the jerking with any tune that he sang

Lastly, various inquiries were made which were answered through the alphabet, according to the usual process. In the manifestations thus described, no circle was formed, and they were all performed with light sufficient to read by. De Gasparin sneers at the academicians for their disbelief of the manifestations adduced by him, although supported by a mere nominal explanation, "that there is a fluid," "a force," "an agent," through which, without muscular contact, a man acts upon ponderable bodies without any consequent reaction against himself, with more force than he could with the combined influences of his will and his muscles.

This is alleging that there is a fluid, or a something, that enables human volition to overcome gravitation, or vis inertia, without any reaction.

the explanation which the Spirits give as to their agency in tablemoving. They assert that they move bodies by their volition. this being assisted by an omanation from the medium. But this fact is utterly inexplicable by any science existing among mortals ; since, admitting the mysteri us competency of the emanation to become an instrument to the Spirit's will, it does not explain how a Spirit having no ponderable efficacy in respect to mundane bodies can thus influence them by any means whatever. There appears an absolute necessity that vis inertia and gravitation shall be nullified, if not counteracted. The law that reaction follows action, does not hold good in these manifestations. This being the fact, is it not vastly more reasonable to suppose it due to the agency of Spirits than to that of mortals ? Nothing is more contrary to universal experience than the nullification of weight, or vis interiæ by the latter, while as respects the Spirits we have had no evidence of similar incapacity ; and since the power of nullifying, as well as creating, the properties in question, must belong to God, it has not appeared unreasonable that his angels The all-important process of weighing is an illustration of the perfect equality of reaction with action. If instead of balancing any weight in one scale by an equivalent in the other, we fasten one scale, while weightless, to the floor, do not the chains or as if two equal weights be employed so as to produce the usual

If a rope be suspended from one end of a-scale beam or balance, when a man has by means of it lifted himself from the ground completely, will not his weight be determined by the number of pounds which will, when suspended from the other end of the beam, prove a counterpoise? Is it not clear also, that when by pulling at one end of the beam any person should raise any smaller weight, he must be partially drawn upward proportially to the force with which he pulls downward, of which the counterpoising weight becomes the measure.

Obviously, whether reaction between the man and the weight be accomplished by pulling or by pushing, the results would be similar. The substitution of any other intermediate competent means of reciprocal influence between the man and the counterpoising weight, would make no difference. Count De Gasparin's rationale, therefore, does not explain the movements and rappings without contact, by suggesting the interposition of a fluid or,"any agent between mortals and the bodies moved.

In the case of rappings, how could any fluid, while so subtle as to be impalpable to our senses, produce upon tables, or any other hard bodies, sounds like those which can otherwise only be produced by rapping or tapping with some hard body ?

Thus, as respects the powers of material beings or Spirits in the flesh, weighing, which is the most perfect process for determining the relative weight of ponderable masses, is the result of a law which conflicts with the inference that mortals can by any means move ponderable bodies without a corresponding equivalent opposite influence upon the mortal frame.

With respect to the reason displayed in the manifestations, that this does not depend on any mortal present, has been shown by the fact, that the reasoning displayed is such as could not be exercised by any mortal so situated as to have been the source of it.

There is a manifestation which has been repeated successfully through various media, especially Redman, Mrs. Coan, and Conklin, in which the names, place of residence, and diseases producing death, dates of birth and death of various individuals in the Spirit-world, are secretly written upon as many scraps of paper containing the instructions thus made. The whole of the scraps are first rolled into indistinguishable pellets, and then accumulated into one heap. Then each being, in succession, separately taken from the heap, if any Spirit whose name has been written, as above stated, be present, the paper whereon the name has been written, and all those containing any particulars respecting the Spirit, will be thus indicated by rapping, as the papers on which they are indited are produced in succession.

This species of manifestation has been given to a great many inquirers satisfactorilly, and among others to myself; and I am sure that it was not by any effort of my reason, or will, that a successful issue was attained.

This test was lately repeated in public in New York before the Mechanic's Philosophical Society. The results were such as I have described in various instances, as recorded in the SPIRITUAL The most plausible defence for this idea is its accordance with TELEGRAPH for December 13, 1856. Of one of these I quote the subjoined :

Mr. Whitman then took a seat at the table, and wrote five names of persons who had departed this life, on as many slips of paper; then five relationships on five other papers ; also the ages of the five persons on other five papers. On another slip of paper he wrote five towns and cities where the five persons died ; on five other papers the causes of their deaths. All these papers were rolled toget or so that no person could tell what was written on any one of them. Then the Spirit was asked to indicate by tipping the table, the five papers which corresponded to the same Spirit, that is, the name, age, relationsh p, place of death, and cause of death. Each paper was taken up separately, and five of them were accordingly indicated by the Spirit, which were laid aside, and on opening them afterward, they were found to correspond to one of the persons, except one paper, which was discovered afterwards to have been taken up accidently from other papers than those indicated by the Spirit. Then the whole of the papers were mixed and accumulated together again, and the Spirit was asked to ind cate the paper which belonged to the series, which it did, thus making the series complete.

Mr. Whitman then announced, to the audience, that he had never before seen the medium, and that his questions were all answered correctly.

In this process, the rappings can not be governed by the volition of the medium who is ignorant of the particulars ; nor can the inquirer regulate them if he tries. It was publicly shown, at Sansom-street Hall, before a meeting, that the raps could not be counteracted by any person who tried to influence them.

These manifestations succeed at times much better than at others, according to the state of the medium, and other conditions. Were they the result of any jugglery, they would succeed uniformly.

In the translation of French, when neither the medium nor myself, nor any other mortal, saw the page, opened at random when the book was inverted, how could any mortal volition be concerned, especially as the medium did not understand French ?

But the message borne for me by my Spirit-sister, from Cape Island to Philadelphia, so as to put four people in motion, at the distance of nearly one hundred miles, within two and a half hours, is a fact which was entirely beyond the reach of the process which we owe to the genius of De Gasparin, cramped and stunted by religious faith.

Yet, that the phenomena are due to Spirits is denied, because they do not harmonize with Scripture. De Gasparin is one of those who can swallow scriptural camels, yet strain at spiritual gnats,

But, as Scripture rests upon human testimony, it can not set aside testimony of the same kind equally reliable; still less when the one is from living witnesses of unimpeachable character, and the other consists of the recorded hearsay testimony of persons who lived more than eighteen hundred years ago. Moreover, this ancient testimony has been handed down to us through a priesthood which, according to Bishop Hopkins, was for 700 years wicked in the extreme. (See my work, 1296 to 1307.)

While denying the efficacy of all the testimony in favor of piritual communication which does not accord with Scripture, De Gasparin satirizes the Academicians for disbelieving his facts, although when in obedience to the restricted view permitted by his creed, he admits that they can not be sauctioned by those savans without the violation of a law which has been verified, agreeably to sublunary experience and astronomical observations. from the age of Archimedes down to the present era.

* While at Cape Island last summer, being by means of the Spiritoscope in reiterated communion with his Spirit-sister, on the 3d of July, at one o'clock, she was requested by him to go to Philadelphia, and ask Mrs. Gourlay to send her husband to the Philadelphia Bank to ascertain on what day a certain note would become due. It was at half-past three o'clock when the answer was returned. When he reached Philadelphia, upon inquiring of Mrs. Gourlay whether she had received a communication from him, she replied, "Your Spirit-sister came and interrupted a communication from my mother to my brother and myself, and said that we must send to the bank and ascertain when your note would become due. Accordingly, my brother and my haband went to the bank." The clerk of the bank confirmed the statement as to inquiry having been made, and as to the time the note became due. Thus at Cape Island, about one hundred miles from Philadelphia, he had, in two hours and a half, put four people in motion in Philadelphia.

PARTRIDGE AND BRITTAN'S SPIRITUAL TELEGRAPH.

It will not be expedient here to enter farther into the question losophy seeks to plant itself at once, by its own Intuition, at the and prevents unlimited Freedom and Expension outward to the check various steps in human knowledge, but has had to succumb before the growing strength of scientific investigation. Such will, I hope, be the result in the instance under consideration, though all educated in the same impregnable faith with the author, will naturally take his part.

But while differing both from the Academicians, and from Count Angenor De Gasparin, it seems to me that of the two, the former have a much more justifiable ground for their incredulity, since theirs would be deemed sufficient by all persons well educated in natural philosophy, whatever may be their religion; while the Count will have the support only of his own sect.

Even the Roman Church has admitted that the manifestations on which Spiritualists rely, demonstrate an intellectual agency independent of the mortals by whom they are observed. Consequently, as any other view would be as inconsistent with Catholicism as with Protestantism, they ascribe the manifestations in question to Satan and his imps. Accordingly, the convocation of Spirits by whom my father's account of the Spiritworld was confirmed, were so many imps, I presume Satan himself personifying Washington, who headed the group. It is a little surprising that Satan should, through my paternal instructor and his endorsers, ignore his own existence; such a being not being recognized by the Devils personating my spiritual informauts ! But if Satan can personate Washington, why may he not have personated Jehovah ? Wherefore may not the idea of the preference given to the seed of Abraham, and the pretended authority to deprive ten nations both of their lands and lives, have proceeded from Satan? Is it not more likely that it was Satan who accompanied David when he plundered and massacred three Pagan tribes, taking care not to leave a tongue to tell of his wickedness, so that he might deceive his friend, King Acish, into the idea that the resulting spoil was obtained from the Israelites ? Is it not more consistent with the Romish explanation that David was patronized and accompanied by Satan, personating Jehovah, than by the benevolent Creator of a hundred millions of solar systems ? #### UNIVERSOLOGY. NUMBER SEVEN. BY STEPHEN PEARL ANDREWS.

I before stated that there has been in the world no discovery of a Unitary Science, and even no conception of such a Science in the sense meant by me. This statement may seem too broad until the distinction between Philosophy and Science is more accurately pointed out than it has heretofore been. Certainly the conception of the possible Unity of Human Knowledge has existed in the world from Plato to Hegel, and has prompted the efforts of all the Philosophers to discover it, and to bring all the Sciences within its sweep. The defect in their apprehension has been the want of an adequate conception of the Nature of Science, and of the difference between the Philosophical and the Scientific Standpoint and Drift; in their belief, in a word, that Science is merely a continuation into details of a System of Primordial Pinciples, which taken, on the other hand, in their Generality and consequent Vagueness, constitute Philosophy. It has not been perceived that Science, instead of being a mere extension of Philosophy into Details, is, itself, an Independent System of Principles, beginning in an opposite view of the Universe from that which Philosophy assumes, and proceeding wholly in a counter-direction ; that it has its own General and Universal Principles, which, when systematized, constitute Universology (in the Special and restricted Sense of the term, that which excludes Philosophy), Universal Principles which are not the same as the Universal Principles of Philosophy, except in the way of a correspondence, which does not obliterate their essential difference. On the other hand, Comte and the Positivists are wholly wrong in excluding Philosophy from the scope of Subjects worthy of occupying the Human Intelligence. They are right merely in excluding it from the domain of Positive Science, and right in that only until Positive Science shall have culminated into a Universology, which shall first exhaust the application of its own Principles and then embrace Philosophy by reversing its method and returning by a different channel to its own fountain.

The difference between Philosophy and Science is this : Phi-whether the evidence of Christianity is to overrule that of our Origin of Things, the central Unity of the Universe, which it Infinite, is essentially law. Lines are that which limit or separeason and observation. Scriptural dogmas have been used to finds in God or the Human Consciousness, or in a World-Spirit, rate the atoms of which matter is composed, and without which and to proceed from this Unity outward to the multifariousness a Single Atom would fill Immensity or Unlimited Space. The of the Actual Universe; that is to say, in the order of Creation Greek Log os, whence we have the terms Logic and Logical, or Development; and hence in the Historical or Natural Order. and the terminations in o-log-y in the names of the Sciences, is The Drift is, therefore, Deductive, with all the faults of the Anti- the same word originally with the Latin Lex (Leg-is) meaning cipative or Hypothetical Method, except in so far as it shall be Law, and the same again as the English word Law. All are proven, in the end, that this Primary Intuition is itself a re- related to the verbs to Lay and to Lie, and to the noun Line liable factor of Human knowledge. The order pursued is from (the Normal Line among Lines being the Horizontal or Base the assumed Centre, outward to the Circumference of the Uni- Line, which Lays or Lies). This last Esymology is aided by the verse; or from ONE to Two. Centre is a single Point, and German, in which Lieg-en, to Lie, preserves the primitive g of corresponds with UNTRY; Circumference is a succession of the root Log, or dropping this and retaining the terminational n, Points, and corresponds to Plurality (of which Two is representative). Science, on the contrary, plants itself in the midst that which relates to Law, the Laws of Nature, generally, and of the Multifariousness of Things and Facts or Phenomena in hence to Lines, since Lines are the Laws or Limits which restrain the Actual Universe, observes and generalizes them until it discovers the Law of their Differences, which line is the base on which it erects its whole superstructure. Science begins, therefore, in the Circumference or outermost parts of the Universe, in the Plurality or Two, and proceeds inward and upward to the Centre, or ONE.

If we conceive of the Universe, as a Pyramid or Cone, Philosophy assumes to soar at once to the apex, and descends thence to the lowest and outermost portions of the structure. Science, on the contrary, modestly confesses itself positioned on the earth, unable to soar or rise otherwise than as it discovers steps to conduct it upward and inward toward the apex. The Positivist denies that any one has the power to soar or to ascend otherwise than by his steps. It might be more modest in him to assume that h e has not, and to await the proof that others have. Intuition, and the Internal Set of Senses, with all their accomplishments, are ignored by him; and, it must be confessed. that this short method of coming at knowledge has not heretoclearly understand itself until it is interpreted to itself scientifically.

They begin in the obscure region of the MS and the NOT Circumference-Radiating ; that of the latter Convergent-to Me of Pure Being and Phenomena, etc., etc., and attempt to the Single Point or Center-counter-radiating.

POINTS are representative of ATOMS, of which SUBSTANCE consists. The POINT corresponds, therefore, to SUBSTANDE. LINES outer Stand Point of vision and by the reverse Process-the represent LIMITATION, which constitutes FORM. The LINE COrresponds, therefore, to Form. The Point and Line are the lowest Elements of Geometry or Concrete Mathematics. The Center is the Inmost of a Circle; the Apex the Upmost of a Cone (or the Downmost of the Inverted Cone, or the Cone in its unnatural Posture.) Circumference is the Outmost of a Circle, and Base-Line the Downmost of a Cone. Upness corresponds, therefore, to Inness, and Downness to Outness. If a bine, classify and exhaust the several methods of all. Cone be viewed from above, the Apex is seen as the Center of a Circle, and if a Cone subside to a Level, that which was Apex becomes Actual Center.

The Point represents the Atom, the least real Element of Being, and corresponds to Substance, which, without Limitation, is Unitary and Infinite. The Line represents Limitation, and corresponds to Form in its largest sense, including all the Proportions and Dimensions of Matter; hence to the Finite or Limited, as distinguished from the Infinite or Unlimited.

instead, gives. Lin ie for Li(ege)n-ie. Logical means, therefore, and prevent the otherwise Infinite Expansion of substance.

Science is that which investigates the Laws of Nature, or begins in the Laws of Nature or Lines, and strives to go backward, from a knowledge of Form to those of Substance-the Logical Order. Philosophy is that which investigates Substance itself directly, or begins with it, and attempts to evolve or deduce from it the Laws which govern its development-the Natural Order. I shall now be understood when I affirm that while attempts have not been wanting to establish the Unity of all Human Knowledge, from the Philosophical stand-point, and by the Historical, or Natural-which we also now see is the Philosophical Order of Procedura-and while these Attempts have, in fact, constituted the whole of the world's philosophizing, no attempt has been made to establish the same Unity from the Scientific Stand-Point, and by the purely Logical, which is also the Positivist Method of Proceedure; and that no distinct conception has ever been had of any such effort. My undertaking to constitute a veritable Universology, which shall be a Positive Science fore proved itself very reliable, and will not, as I have said, very inclusive of all the Positive Sciences, and holding to them the relation of General to Particular, is wholly different from the undertakings of Plato, Schelling and Hagel, for example, to educe The Philosophic Drift is then from the Organizing Mind or a similar unity from Philosophy. I begin in the Outer World Inner Principle of Movement to the Outward Product; from of Obvious and Palpable things in their Multiplicity, and in the Cause to Effect, from Mind to World; the Scientific from Effects | Laws which regulate their Co-existences and Successions; in the to Causes, from World to Mind-the former the Natural or His- Numbers of Arithmetic, ONE, TWO, THREE, in the elements of torical Order, the latter the Logical. #### VALEDICTORY.

FIVE years have elapsed since this paper was projected-years marked by many important and startling events which will live in the world's memory and in history. But the occurrences of deepest import are seldom or never signalized by the general observation of mankind. The events most likely to arrest attention are such as are invested with the pomp and glare of external circumstance, and which enchain the popular mind rather by the noise of their coming than by their profound significance and permanent consequences. Hence, while the schemes and novements of political parties and hostile armies are objects of general attention, many people are seemingly all unconscious of the wider, deeper and more lasting revolutions in the realms of mind, and which silently but rapidly mold into new and higher forms the faiths and philosophies of the world.

Among the events of the last five years I can not but regard the complete inauguration of the Spiritual Idea and Reformation as of all others the most important. Within this period Spiritualism has taken form and commenced to exercise a powerful influence over the human mind. During these years the writer of this article has, from the very nature of his occupation, enjoyed almost uninterrupted intercourse with the friends of the Spiritual Movement in every part of the country. Through the medium of this paper we have often met in spirit, and while to me these periodical interviews have been fraught with no little pleasure, I trust they have not been wholly devoid of interest and profit to the reader.

But in this relation my work is accomplished. I have at least labored with an honest purpose, but with what degree of success others have an undoubted right to judge. Some of the best years of my life have been unreservedly devoted to the inculcation of the principles and precepts of the Spiritual Philosophy. Had the acquisition of wealth, or the possession of what the poet calls "the bubble reputation," been chief among the objects for which I have lived, I should be forced by the stern realities of the present hour, to regard this life as little less than a failure; for while the constant labor of eleven years has left me " neither purse nor scrip," and without a dwelling-place, or so much as six feet of common earth to rest upon, I have been, often and most emphatically, reminded that the world is prone to speak well of those who leave its hoary errors and gigantic wrongs to flourish undisturbed.

But this experience has not diminished my faith in God and Humanity. I am still hopeful that the great heart of the Race will one day be pervaded and warmed by all true human sympathies, and that its inspired mind will yet be transfigured by a sublime consciousness and realization of the Divine life on earth. Till then, it is fit that the living martyrs should wear their thorny crowns. When the adversaries of Truth are vanquished, and the clouds that darken our mortal pathway are dissipated, they will turn to floral wreaths and to bright symbols of living inspirations and divine joys. The fearful temptation in the wilderness of our being ; the life-long toil ; the soul's bitter ordeals, wherein the vital currents are dissipated in the agonizing and bloody sweat-all, all must end. To the brave and good they all terminate in victory-if never before-at least when life's battle is over. The true man can not fail or be subdued in his struggle with the powers of the world; for to such even death becomes the triumphal arch through which Angels lead the unshackled spirit to their divine repose.

I can not allow this occasion to pass without a brief acknowledgment of my indebtedness to many able correspondents who, for five years past, have contributed to lighten my own labors. My thanks are likewise due to many public journalists, for the nication. In vacating the editorial chair of the TELEGRAPH, I beg to assure them, that I shall carry with me a grateful sense of their kindness, and the pleasing hope that our intercourse may be renewed hereafter. S. B. BRITTAN.

I deeply regret the combination of circumstances which has led to the amicable dissolution of the copartnership heretofore existing between Brother Brittan and myself; but since this event seems to be in consonance with the behest of the higher Power, I cheerfully submit, thankful for the preservation of fraternal sympathies, and with a heart overflowing with good wishes for the success of our Brother and co-laborer, in every sphere of future usefulness he may enter.

In assuming the unsought, but increased responsibilities this event has imposed upon me, I am thankful in being able to acknowledge indications that it has been guided by superior wisdom, and am grateful, also, for the friendly advice and assistance given and promised by many of the more prominent and influential co-laborers in the glorious cause of Spiritualism and Humanitary Reform. CHARLES PARTRIDGE.

CONVERSIONS TO CATHOLICISM.

THE New York Tribune, of April 7th, has the following : We learn from The Catholic Telegraph and Advocate of the 4th inst. that Dr. T. L. Nichols and Mary Gove Nichels, of Free-Love notoriety, were baptized on last Sunday afternoon, in St. Xavier's Church, Syca more-street, Cincinnati, by the Rev. Father Oakley, Rector of the College, having been duly converted to the Catholic faith. With them were also baptized a daughter of Mrs. Nichols by a former husband, and a Miss Hopkins, of the Yellow Springs instituation.

From the following paragraph in The Telegraph, it appears that the Spirits were the instruments that effected these wonderful conversions : "It is not a little remarkable that on either side of the Atlantic at the same time, the Spirits have advised their mediums, Mr. Hume, at Paris, and Dr. Nichols and family here, to seek salvation through the Church. If they are good Spirits, we can easily see the motive of this advice ; if bad ones, they are like those who went out of the possessed, as we read in the Gospel, confessing Jesus Christ."

Dr. Nichols, in the name of himself and wife, has written a retraction of his Free-Love and Infidel teachings, in a letter to Archbishop Purcell, which is printed. The pith of the document is in the following "In the infinite mercy of Almighty God, we have been led, by what has seemed to us the direct and miraculous interposition of the Holy Spirit and by the blessed teachings of St. Ignatius Loyala and St. Francis Xavier, to the renunciation of infidelity, and to the humble acceptance of the faith and guidance of the Church. In deep humility and contrition, we submit ourselves to her divine order; we accept what she teaches, and we repudiate and condemn what she condemns Whatever, in our writings and teachings, and in our lives, has been contrary to the doctrines, morality and discipline of the holy Catholic Church, we wish to retract and repudiate, and were it possible, to atone for."

In presenting this piece of intelligence to the readers of the SPIRITUAL TELEGRAPH, we are influenced by motives wholly impersonal. It is not because Dr. T. L. Nichols and his family have thus exercised their individual rights, for with these no one can rightfully interfere. But it is because the occurrence serves to illustrate a principle. We do not purpose even to raise the question as to whether the Roman Catholic Church is the true church. For all the purposes of our present object, it may be freely conceded, that it is the only door which opens into the kingdom of heaven, and that the Pope holds the key. We desire to confine our present thought to the fact that there are many honest and intelligent people who do not at present think so; and yet the while are on the highroad to that inevitable conclusion, without being aware of it.

Without the slightest disrespect to Dr. Nichols, it may be presumed that within less than three years, no man would have " the infinite mercy of Almighty God, and by the blessed teach-of both these blunders. Landing the boy at last, in the bosom of the family home, she kindly restores to him the conscious-ness that he has been traveling, and not the fields and fences. Landing Dr. Nichols in the bosom of "Mother Church," she will soon remind him that he also has performed a long journey with wonderful rapidity, while the world of facts and principles around him has remained in statu quo.

What is the motive power by which the Doctor and his family have performed this journey? and what is the capacity for transportation of the road upon which they have traveled ? By what assumes to be Dr. Nichol's own statement, the Locomotive in their case, was constructed of what "seemed to them the direct and miraculous interposition of the Holy Spirit, and of the blessed teachings of St. Ignatius Loyola, and St. Francis Xavier." But The Catholic Telegraph and Advocate is still more explicit. By that it would appear that "the Spirits have advised Dr. Nichols and family to seek salvation through the church." With this supposed fact as a basis, the character of " the Spirits" who gave the advice, is logically disposed of by a doubt. That is to say, their character is not cleared up at all. "If they are good Spirits," reasons the Catholic Telegraph, it is all very well. " If bad ones," they have only damned themselves the more by giving such sound advice. Now that the Catholic Telegraph should be thrown off the track by this doubt is natural enough, for " the Spirits" did not leave their cards. Had they done so, there would have remained neither doubt nor difficulty. "The blessed teachings of St. Ignatius" are blessed, simply because St. Ignatius taught, and for no other reason. But all who travel upon the great highway Dr. Nichols is said to have so happily illustrated, are propelled by a Saint far more potent than Loyola, and more worshipful than St. Francis Xavier. His name is St. Authority ! Whatever may be the name of a Locomotive attached to any train upon that track, the motive power is a unit, and its name is Authority.

And that road carries many passengers beside Dr. Nichols and his family. He has been preceded by millions, and will be followed by hundreds of thousands. The capacity of the road is unlimited. The conductor asks no questions. Catholic, Protestant, Infidel, Spiritualist-the only condition stipulated is get in, and instantly the steam is up and the train is off. As with every other great thoroughfare, it also has its inns and stations and depots, where travellers may tarry to refresh themselves. In the old days, and long before Authority was driven by steam, history informs us that the people were wont to tarry long, and enjoy themselves exceedingly at these places of refreshment cast up by the side of the highway of Authority-at one time amusing themselves by standing upon one leg on the top of a pillar, at another, shutting themselves up for a year or so in a dark hole, in company with a good ox-goad, and a cup of water by way of solace to their carnal needs, and never coming out except to roast a heretic, or to apply the thumb-screws to a schismatic by way of recreation. And even in later times, so slow was the car of Authority in its motion, that it took the Presbyterians two hundred years, more or less, to get rid of their predilection for damning infants, and the Quakers about as long to relieve themselves of their hats when they sat at meat.

But in these days of steam, the train moves faster. Now, one may take the "Authority Express at 6 A.M., dine at the delightful village of Freelove, give your wife to her 'Spiritual companion,' and your children to the county, take any lady who, by reason of talking with her eyes shut, is proved by authority of Heaven to be your "Spiritual affinity," and push on to the next received a prediction of his present theological whereabout with station, when you may perchance, be gratified to learn from the more incredulous contempt than himself. If the Devil would but show his hoof, everybody would know him, and would be able to shun him. But he does not often so appear. So of Authority; that which is the most mischievous is that which is disguised. It is not unfrequently vailed from the sight of the investigator by appearing in the form of a "seventh sphere" confirmation of some favorite theory, in which case the mind, during its intoxication of delight, is taken captive before it has time to reflect on the utter absurdity of establishing a theory by an assertion-that is to say, proving one form of words by another form of words. In and of themselves, mere words or assertions prove nothing. It is only when they form a part of a system of demonstrable facts, or constitute a connecting link between them, that they rise to the dignity of demonstrative evidence, and the investigator who writes this simple truth upon his understanding, will be able to choose his own time in which to join any church or party, and should the time ever arrive in which he should feel it right to do so, he will have the satisfaction of knowing that his authority for what he does, is not in St. Francis Xavier nor in Pope Pius IX., nor yet in the ninth sphere, but within himself. #### "LYING SIGNS AND WONDERS."

We make the following extract from an article in the Advent Herald, by M. S. Avery :

Do not the signs of the times speak as with "trampet tones," that soon He that shall come will come, and will not tarry? Heb. x:37. Even him whose coming is after the working of Satan, with all power, and signs, and lying wonders. See 2 Thess. ii : 9. This working of Satan is nothing more nor less Ithan " Spirit Manifestations." What are they but lying signs and wonders, wrought by the adversary of souls to deceive and lead them captive at his will?

We answer, they might be anything else rather than what the question supposes ; at all events, they are not "lying signs and wonders." Spirit Manifestations claim to signify the presence of the spirits of persons who have lived on the earth, and this claim is fully demonstrated to the natural senses of every person of ordinary observation and comprehension who has investigated the subject. The existence of my kindred and friends, who have relinquished the mortal form, has been made vastly more certain to me than is the existence of M. S. Avery, who claims to have written the communication from which the above extract is taken. To me this communication from M. S. Avery, in point of ability and truthfulness, bears a very unfavorable comparison with those communications I have received from Spirits; and if I am obliged to apply the words "lying wonders" to either, I must in truth apply them to the former.

Some of our modern Spiritualists entertain the theory that Death in itself does not change the habits and moral status of the indwelling man or Spirit; others deny this theory on the assumed ground that after the Spirit is freed from his earth form, he at once exhibits more wisdom and truthfulness in his conversations than he did here. This is admitted, but an attempt to reconcile it with the first theory is made on the ground that the Spirit is intromitted into conditions more favorable to truth. It is a debatable question, however, as to how far a man will carry his earthly hallucination and habits into the Spiritworld; but there can be no doubt that the moral reputation of the Spirit-world would immensely improve, if men here would though it had been opened and shut. yield their delusions, and lay aside their habits of lying.

There is no "wonder" connected with Spirit manifestations, except to those unfortunate persons who are infidel to the truth of an existence beyond the grave. Those who really believe in "wonder" and doubt, if they did not. The "wonder" to me is, nations of the whole world.

Persons disposed to profit by facts, and have reasons for their

REMARKABLE TESTS.

THE well known Boston medium, J. V. Mansfield, it appears, was originally of a character so "positive," that for a time no manifestations could be obtained in his presence. At length the names of his father and brother were obtained through a medium ; and his father informed him, if he would sit for one hour a day, from fifty to fifty-four days, he would himself be developed as a writing-medium. At the same time, the Spirit of his brother said, if he would procure his "old violin," he would play on it.

Mr. Mansfield commenced his patient'sittings, and the prophecy was fulfilled on the fifty-second day. He also obtained his brother's old violin from Vermont, and gave it a place on the top of his piano. A seeing-medium, soon after, described his Spirit-brother bending over and thrumming the instrument. Mr. M. asked for sounds, and the violin responded. He then requested that the A string might be struck, and it was done; and next that the E string might be hard sprung, when it was pulled with such violence by the invisible hand, that it broke.

Not long since, among those assembled at Mr. Mansfield's room, were Capt. W., of the Navy, Lieut. MeN., of the Army, and a distinguished physician, Dr. R.; when the name of "Emma Winslow" was given. This Spirit stated that she "died in England, March 10, 1657, aged 15 years, 8 months and 10 days." She said that her object was to furnish a "strong test" of the power and willingness of Spirits to communicate with mortals; and that she was a sister of Sarah Winslow, who died

On the following day, the search for this grave commenced. It was continued for many hours, until most of the party gave out; and it was only by the perseve ing efforts of Lieut. McN. that the investigation was finally crowned with success. The stone was found imbedded in grass, moss and earth, the accumulations of almost two hundred years; and on removing the soil some eight inches below the surface, the almost illegible inscription was discovered. It bore date "1667," with the words, Sacred to ye memory of Sarah Winslow, who died in Boston, aged 26 years. The Banner of Light is our authority for these statements.

A VISIBLE SPIRITUAL FORM.

MISS L. A. JEWETT, of Haverhill, Mass., writing to the New England Spiritualist, among other facts, relates one of the appearance of a deceased friend and schoolmate of hers, in visible form, in the presence of several persons. The interesting circumstance was as follows :

The writer was visiting at the house of her departed friend's father ; and in the evening, when the vacant chair, and she who had sat in it and made one of the charmed domestic circle, were the subjects of conversation, raps were heard on the table. The inquiry was made if Nella (the deceased one) was present, and the reply came that she was. The father, it appears, was no believer in Spiritualism and after some further questions, and a communication hearing evidence of the truthfulness of its origin, addressed to her parent, Nella was asked if she would not endeavor to make herself visible. The answer was in the affirmative, when the lights were extinguished, " and the Spirit-form of Nella Clarke," says the writer, "was seen by her father and three other persons, to pass over the table." It seemed to enter a closet

THE INVESTIGATING CLASS.

The class met as usual at [the house of Charles Partridge, on Wedesday evening of last week, the question being :

"What influence and effect have the relations, habits and conditions, of a man's earth-life on the relations, conditions and happiness, of his life beyond ???

On this question Mr. Stephen Pearl Andrews read the following paper

This is another among the most significant and important practical questions which can be asked of, and for the benefit of, mankind. Spiritualists are especially called on to answer it for the satisfaction of themselves and others, from the light of the higher truths which they possess on the subject. To know what are to be the effects of a life well or ill spent in this sphere, upon the development and destiny of the man in all coming time, is a species of knowledge the value of which can not be over estimated. I propose in the present article rather to state my convictions on the subject than to enter into the grounds upon which those convictions rest; let the reader receive my statements, therefore, for what they may seem to him to be worth, according as there may or may not be anything answering to the same faith in his own bosom.

The present life has been properly denominated in our spiritual literature, the Rudimental State. It is that in which life begins, and which bears the same relation to the subsequent life or lives in the spheres which the germ or root of a tree bears to the stem, limbs, twigs, foliage, blossoming and fruitage. Rudiment and rudimental have an etymological relationship to radix and root. Radical is an adjective from radix, and means that which relates to the root. This is, then, the radical world; the world in which are to be discovered and actualized all radical and fundamental truths. Fundamental is an adjective from the Latin fundamentum, meaning a basis or foundation. The root of a tree is correspondential with the foundation of a house or other edifice. Hence this world, or this life, is the fundamental world or life upon which is to rest for its basis the subsequent superstructure of experience, for the individual and the race, in all worlds, or all lives, hereafter.

This life is likewise to the whole future in the experience of the individual, what boyhood is to manhood; the period of at Boston in 1667, aged 26 years, whose grave, marked by a common state-stone, bearing the above record, might still be the development of the man. In this relation, therefore, as well elementary education ; the time for laying in the bases of chaas in the more common educational application of the poetical aphorism,

Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined.

If these preliminary ideas are true, let us see how much they signify. No edifice can be built higher than a true adjustment of its altitude to the breadth of its foundation. When the main elevation of the building has once begun to progress, the building itself has taken form, prospectively, as well with reference to hight as breadth, the latter being governed by the former; it is too late then to broaden the foundation, and consequently too late to prepare for attaining a higher altitude at completion. There is, therefore, profound philosophic truth in the ordinary religious exhortation to prepare for death, or, in other words, to prepare in this life for the life which is to follow after death. There is also truth, in a degree which none of us can afford to neglect or overlook, in that other religious dogma that, "as the tree falleth so it lieth," or, in other words, that the eternal destiny of the man is, in an important sense, fixed by his life here. The religionst may have failed to perceive the integral nature of the preparation which is required, affecting, as it does, the moral, the intellectual, and the material development of the individual. The spirit of his faith is true. It remains for us to clothe it in a right form.

The tree which strikes its roots but a short way into the earth can not elevate its branches high into the air. The child that is permitted to pass in idleness the years that should be devoted to the acquistion of primary knowledge, will have always to repent his misfortune. It is of a kind that can never be fully remedied near by, the door of which, though locked, gave forth a sound as in the future. If such is, then, truly the relation of this world to the Spirit-world, it is madness or idiocy, or, at the best, a most The result of this interesting evening, was the conversion of deplorable ignorance, which asks, Of what use are Spirit-mani-Mr. Clarke, the father, to a belief in the reality of Spiritual- festations? or, Of what use is Spiritualism ? Spiritualists themmanifestations ; and his ranging himself openly on the side of selves have not, it seems to me, as yet, any adequate conception, its disciples. When Samuel was called there was no open vision for the most part, of the real value of the treasures of knowledge of an existence beyond the grate. These wonder" that our in Israel; but a day of spiritual clear-seeing succeeded. What which are being committed to their keeping, and of the treasures of knowledge a future existence it manifest; but they might well occurred then to a few of the Jews, seems now occurring to the mendous responsibilities to their keeping, and of the trea future existence for manifest; but they might well occurred then to a few of the Jews, seems now occurring to the mendous responsibilities to the race which the possession of such o. a deposit devolves on them. Spiritualism-the descent of angels

-the actual daily communication of the Heavens with us of Spirit-life is concluded by the conditions of the earth-life? If so, earth, as we profess to believe, and as some of us actually do believe, has been received, to a great extent, as the plaything of an idle hour, or, at most, as the means of gratifying a laudable spirit of scientific investigation. Neither of these modes of viewing the subject rises to the sublime hights of its true claims. It should demand of us a profound appreciation of its immense import and bearings on the individual destiny of every human being, an unbounded devotion first to the investigation of all its facts and principles for the sake of their divine uses, and then to their promulgation through the world, and finally to their incarnation or actualization in every sphere and department of the present life. In this sense, and not as a superstition, nor as a soulless mummery, as the religions of the past have, in a great measure, come to be, Spiritualism is destined to become, and should become, a veritable religion of integralism; that is to say, a religion that cares both for the bodies and souls of mankind; a religion involving a constant aspiration after consociation with the most elevated and the most elevating influences from all spheres, and an enthusiastic and unbounded devotion to the integral development of human society on earth into a state in which such influence will be attracted and can come into constant and efficacious relations with us.

In a word, the world has to become more highly spiritualized before the Spirit-world can come very near to us, or greatly influence our individual or social destiny, for good. It must not be, either, the sickly sentimentalism of spirituality, such as effects, often, minds loosely connected with feeble and dilapidated bodies, but a sound, healthy and liberalizing sentiment, which leaves out of its sympathies neither the material, the intellectual, the moral, nor the religious nature and wants of man. Bodily health and right material conditions are essential to fit the man or the woman for a harmonious development on earth ; and we have seen that the earthly development is the basis of the spiritual. Elevated intellectual pursuits, and high aims, are also equally essential. In the language of the Platonists, a man's soul is not in his body, but his body is in his soul; and they know not where the circumference of the latter may be. This statement is doubtless an intuition of the truth ; and I think the diameter of a man's soul is measured exactly by the greatest extension, upward, outward and around, of his intellectual conceptions and personal sympathies and aspirations. A merchant according to organization and development. When the Science whose whole scope of thoughts, from morning till night, and year's end to year's end, lies between Wall-street and the Fifth Avenue, and whose sympathies are confined to his family and a few friends, compares in his spiritual diameter with a Newton or a Howard, precisely as the respective ranges of their thoughts and feelings. These men enter the Spirit-world with these diameters respectively, as the measures of the foundations the possible elevation to be ever attained there is governed peremptorily by the breadth of the basis laid here. No people then, ever had a gospel of such tremendous import to proclaim non in the light of a misfortune. He is of the opinion that as the Spiritualists. And how are they meeting the responsibilities of their position ? Let them compare their zeal with that fit. The world probably owes some of the best thoughts Byron of the Mormons, who maintain their missionaries on every shore, and conquer deserts, and devote themselves, body and soul, to the propagandism of a religious whimsey of some kind; or with the Methodists, in the infancy of their cause; with the early Christians, or the followers of Mahomet ; with, in fine, any sect of men who ever lived, who believed they had a great truth, and a great mission in its behalf; and they will, I fear, The writer of this question assumes that the human family all sprang find no cause to congratulate themselves on the earnestness of their faith, or the extent of their devotion, or the just appreciation they have given to the immensity and grandeur of the revealments which it is the good fortune of this age to inherit. The higher results of Spiritualism can hardly be realized until Spiritualists are themselves elevated above the tone of the sentiment with which they have hitherto regarded it ; and this elevation of their thoughts and feelings can not perhaps be better promoted than by reflecting often on the influence and effects which the relations, habits and conditions of a man's earth-life must have on the relations, conditions and happiness of his life beyond.

Mr. Partridge thinks we can have no knowledge without being influenced by it, in our speech and action; and therefore the knowledge we have derived from the spiritual world must influence beneficially, in some degree, our life in this.

he thinks infants who die such, are aborted.

Mr. Andrews thinks that it would be measurably so, were it not that they form a sympathetic rapport with Spirits in the body, and by this means are enabled, in some degree, to repair the misfortune.

Dr. Gray thinks it incorrect to specify these differences by degrees of altitude. He thinks Mr. Andrews fully borne out in stating a difference of condition in the life of the Spirit as an inevitable consequence of the earth-condition ; but the difference is not clearly expressed by the terms high and low, or their equivalents.

Dr. Curtis thinks it an unhappy thought that premature death is attended by irreparable consequences, though it may be so, as the whole theory of Hell seems to rest on that idea.

Dr. Gray thinks, while Mr. Audrews and Dr. Curtis have easoned a priori, some attention should be paid to what we have learned on this subject through Spirit int reourse.

Dr. Wellington says his experience is confirmatory of the position of Mr. Andrews. He thinks a loss here can never be repaired to all eternity. He will not say the individual will be less happy, but different.

Judge Edmonds concludes from his experience, that early death is a misfortune, though he can not concede that it is irreparable, as there are many compensations which repair the loss. Man progresses in three directions-in love, purity and knowledge. The child may progress in love and purity far more rapidly there, than if he had lived a long life of selfishness on earth; but at the same time, may fall far below the standard of the earth-man, in the acquisition of mere knowledge. He thinks Mr. Andrews wrong in supposing the earth-foundation incapable of enlargement in the Spirit-life. He thinks the Spirit capable of vastly enlarging the basis of his progress. He thinks all children who pass from the earth undeveloped must come back and complete their experience vicariously ; that is to say, through the aid and sympathy of some person in the form.

Mr. Andrews, in reply to Dr. Gray's criticism on the use of the terms altitude and dimension, which occurred in the paper, said : I think it will be found that the whole society of the heavens, or spiritual spheres, constitutes a cone or pyramid, and that characters are placed at different degrees of elevation, exactly of Universal Analogy shall be fully understood, it will become possible to calculate proximately the position in this cone or hierarchy, by a knowledge of the length of the base-line established here.

Despite of all our democracy, we always speak of the upper, the middle, and the lower classes of society. The idea is instinctual, and characterizes all societies. The ideas, high and of their future characters through all time; and as I have said, low, broad and long, are as truly spiritual as they are material, in their application.

Dr. Gray was not willing to consider any natural phenomewhat is usually supposed to be such, is productive of great beneever uttered indirectly to his club foot; and society is doubtless indebted to scrofula for much of its refinement and elevation. H.

FROM A CORRESPONDENT. ORIGIN OF THE FIRST MAN. MESSRS. PARTRIDGE AND BRITTAN:

Gentlemen-I have carefully perused the offerings of the Investigation Class on the question, "What was the origin of the first man ?" The question would have been more propefrom one parentage. What was the origin of man? This is one of those questions which at first view would seem to be unanswerable, simply because man can have no knowledge of himself beyond himself; but fortunately life has left its foot-prints in its progressive march antecedent to man, which point through a long course of time directly at the origin of organic forms. The idea that man had his origin from the brate creation reflects upon the race, and certainly does not magnify his Creator. The miraculous theory is equally objectionable because it supposes an extremity in the works of wisdom.

There evidently was a time when organic forms of life did not exist on this globe, yet no one will deny that the properties of producing and sustaining vegetable and animal life may possibly have been in the granite before organic life had an existence.

Could we have been permitted to view the earth at the period when all of earth to be seen consisted of the tops of the mountains reaching above the deep as islands of the sea, and to witness for ages the ever lashing wave laboring on the rock-bound coast, carrying the slow worn sediments to the caverns of the deep, separating particles for the pur-Dr. Curtis asked if Mr. Andrews thinks the condition of the pose of forming new combinations of properties, and the upheaval of matter till continents were formed, and the same refining process continning to mould and remould particles of earth-we would surely have seen a purpose in this-a foreshadowing of a great and coming event. On the ocean shore, when mountain stream came tumbling down with the precious freight it had gathered on its journey to its ocean home, there was deposited the first soil-the virgin soil of the earth. Could we have stood there gazing at this phenomenon, we would have seen the evidence of an action below the surface in clevating little mounds of earth, from which the particles would fall and reveal a pale green substance, which would continue to elevate itself and increase in size and form, until the type of the vegetable hingdom, the Arthrophycus Harlani, was revealed. As this weed increased and spread itself on the occan shore, we would witness in its train moving particles of anter, the living esse of vegetation, moulding, constructing itself into the ocean's first offspring; the type of the animal kingdom, the Lingula prima.

Every organic form is an evidence of the living principle of uniter. Motion was the first agent in collecting particles of earth and exposing them to the influence of moisture, light and heat ; this being the supply. it called for the demand ; and the esse of the life of the properties in action produced a form which was in harmony with the properties of the soil. The vegetable production in turn became the supply for a higher existence, and called for the animal kingdom ; and the life-sus taining properties of the vegetable concentrated its action, and the animal was produced.

This account of creation may appear fubulous, and put forth without sufficient evidence to sustain it; but it is not so. Beside the many in-stances of recently formed islands of the sea, manifesting the progressive theory of the unfolding forms of life, we have the strongest evidence in all the ancient formations of the earth, to sustain it. For instance, the primitive soil was derived wholly from the disintegation of the most ancient rocks, and had but few properties in action, and the condition of the soil being at best a marsh, the production must necessarily have been a simple marsh weed. Consequently the animal must be as simple as the weed in order to draw its life-sustaining properties from the plant. All were in harmony, and as creation advanced, every addition of properties to the soil, produced a new condition with its own forms of life. This continued for ages and ages. gradually approaching and finally unfolding the present condition with all its attending forms.

If we establish the principle that life is forced into action by the condition of matter, so that organic life is the effect ; then we attain exactly the point at which we are aiming. To prove that this is so, we appeal to geology, and trace her teaching throughout the vast range of creation in order that life may speak of its own mysterious power in giving form to the children of earth.

The idea that the living principle in plants and animals was imparted by the forms of 1280 bel - 12be sustained from geological facts, for the reason that there have been times when evidently all forms of life were extinct. Also in many parts of the earth, the formations are irregular. This is a very common occurrence, because the earth could not progress in creation uniformly in every part at the same time, for one part must furnish the material for another. Notwithstanding all these interruptions, the form and construction of life continued to advance uniformly through each period, wherever the formations are found.

As an evidence that all forms of life during each period did not spring from one locality, it is a rare occurrence that fossils agree in species on different continents, in the same formation ; showing that the earth was advancing so uniformly in creation as to preduce the same genera throughout ; yet local differences would produce different species. In some instances while one condition of life was disap-pearing from the earth, forms of a new character were as gradually taking their place, yet in these locations so favorable for the transition theory, not a single fossil has been found which would indicate the transmission of life from form to form. If it was a property of matter to approximate from form to form by every addition to its properties, that property would continue to the present day. On the other hand, life was introduced in the first instance without the agency of form. This is a strong point, and proves one of two facts, either that the introduction of organic life was by miraculous agency, or the effect of an action of certain properties of matter. If we adopt the latter, then the same properties must exist eternally.

Condition is the beginning and ending of every creation of form from first to last. Without conditions such as have revolutionized the earth from time to time, not a single form of organic life would ever have existed. Every creation of organic life has most wonderfully manifested adaptation to condition. Happiness has been subservient to life in every form ; this is a remarkable feature throughout the whole creation.

There was a difficulty presented to our minds as to the manner of production and protection of man in his infancy. If it is a fact that life was introduced in the first instance on earth through the lowest department of nature, and protected in its infancy, then there could be no greater difficulty in its introduction at the present period.

It is not reasonable to suppose that life, after unfolding a multitude of forms seeking its ultimate, would not be able to continue the existence after its purpose was attained, without the assistance of a nurse. If we were to speak of man as a life-a substance-we would say that he always existed ; but if we would speak of him as an inhabitant of earth-of the commencement of his individuality-we pronounce him the offspring of a condition, a series of conditions-the ultimate of form, the ultimate of conditions. THE ORIGIN OF MAN. WE are glad to see that the proceedings of our Investigating Class continue to stir up thought, and challenge inquiry, on the part of friends abroad. We shall be happy to hear from Bro. W. again.

Mn. Entrops : Perhaps you will allow me, without considering it an intrusion, to give expression to one or two thoughts which suggested themselves on reading the report of the Investigating Class of Wednesday evening, March 3.

With your permission, and due deference to the gentleman whose statements I have noticed, I will proceed.

Dr. Orton observed, "I confess I have little sympathy with the theory which finds the germ of humanity in the lower grades of matter, and traces it on, through the mineral and vegetable, to the animal kingdom, and thence, through tadpoles, cats, dogs and horses, to the monkey ; and ends by making the monkey blossom into a man. Human consciousness revolts at contemplating such a pedigree as this, which is no small evidence against it ; and the scheme is quite as illogical as it is unsightly." Again he says : "We can conceive it possible that mind should produce matter, but can not conceive it possible that unthinking matter should produce mind ; that from rocks, and drift, and sea-weed should spring the faculty of reason."

Now, the conception of the possibility of mind to produce matter involves two ideas, and but two, relative to the origin of matter. First-Either that mind, existing prior to matter, had the power, and indeed, did produce something out of nothing-a theory which the deeper think ers set aside as unphilosophical and abourd ; or secondly, that the some thing is mind, changed as to its condition simply : in other words, that mind, by an act of the will, effected a change in the conditions of some of its own elements ; this change being productive of the something, to which mankind have applied the term "matter." Then, when considered with reference to elements or atoms which compose the one or the other, there is no such thing as matter outside of, and separate from, mind. This view fully sustains the idea that thought is the result of condition of substance ; the condition and thought, holding the same relation of cause and effect elsewhere. Hence one of the distinguishing features between mind and matter ; the former being that condition of substance which does evolve thought ; the latter that condition which does not. Can the Doctor avoid giving his adherence to one or the other of the two ideas above stated, relating to the origin of matter ? In case, then, he should reject the former and take up with the latter, I would like to inquire whether the contemplation of the degeneracy of mind into " cats, and dogs, and horses, and tadpoles, and the ce blosseming into the monkey," is not as revolting to human con-sciousness, and as illogical and unsightly, as the converse process which Dr. Orton so much dislikes? Is it not quite as inconceivable that that which thinks should degenerate into matter which does not think ; that the faculty of reason should degenerate into rocks, drift and sea-weed, as that a process the reverse of all this should take place? Even so, it would seem. But this degeneracy of mind is in-volved in the conception of Dr. Orton, that mind may produce matter.

Again, Dr. Orton observes, "I know it is said that every ultimate atom is the germ of a man; but how came it to be a germ at all ?" Perhaps his own conception of the origin of matter should furnish an answer to his inquiry. If mind may produce matter out of nothing, may it not impregnate that matter with the properties and with the germs of whatever ultimate it sees proper? But if mind produces matter by a change in the condition of some of its own elements or atoms, then will not the same philosophy which accounts for the germ in the atom of mind, account for it also in the atom of matter ?

Much more might I say; but fearful you may think it not best to give place to what has already been written, I will stop where I am.

Her EVENTS IN THE RECENT ILLNESS

OF MES. COBA L. V. HATCH. BELLEVING that there are many of Mrs. Hatch's personal friends who will be pleased to learn the particulars of her recent illness, and the use made of her medium-hip in giving such directions as the case might require, I pen a few of the most important events, both for the gratification of her friends and the consideration of the skeptical.

It will be remembered that she was taken down on Tuesday, and had in appointment at Stayvesant Institute that evening. The stimulating influence arising from the inflammatory state of her system, prevented her from realizing the extent of her disease, and she therefore insisted upon filling her engagement that evening. I objected to her doing so, much against her wishes ; when her hand was controlled, and the following communication was written :

the following communication was written: Mr DEAR CORA,-Yield to the decision of your husband. Your physical condi-tion at present is very precarious. If you lecture to-hight, you will retard your fu-ture usefulness. This is the crists in your lung disease; and we did not foresee that it would come see early. Abide by this decision, and we will insure for you a speedy recovery if you remain quiet for a few days. ning, and between eight and nine o'clock she went into convulsions, and remained unconscious during most of the night. In the morning as we occupied rooms in the front part of the house, and the noise was very annoying, her Spirit-guide gave me the following instruction :

Very annoying, her Spirit-guiue gave me the ionowing instruction : Cora must be removed from the noise entirely, else when the evening returns you will find her condition much worse. If perfect quiet is kept, she will soon recover, and her physical condition be much better than it was before. Do not feel alarmed at her condition : although last night was painful, she will feel much better for hav-lar, because the order. at her condition : although and ing passed through the ordeal.

In view of her painful condition, this was a most pleasing assurance. She was accordingly removed ; and Dr. Wilson kindly rendered me his valuable assistance. At the close of each day, the magnetic currents slight st noise, until delivium would set in.

One evening she was sitting up for a few minutes, and as I found she was getting worse, I laid her upon the bed and removed her wrapper, and turned sround to hang it upon a chair, and immediately turned to the bed to remove her stockings, when she informed me that Shanandoah, an Indian girl who frequently controls her, had already removed them. I must confess I was incredulous, notwithstanding she informed me that she saw Shanandonh take them off; but I found that they were off, and on making further search, I found them lying on the floor under the center of the bed. That domestic assistance was accomplished much sooner than either Mrs. H. or myself could have done it ; and I will assure the reader that it afforded me no little satisfaction to have the practical demonstration of this Spirit presence and social feelings. The test, if such I needed, was all that I could have asked. I have for my readers to judge how well any of the talented explanations, or exposés, of Spiritualism would account for this simple yet important transaction. I say simple, because it is but a small matter ; important, because another illustration of a great principle, and demonstration of the intimacy of the Heavens with the earth.

I have another fact to relate in reference to this illness; and the relation it may bear to what is called Biblical miracles, I leave for others to decide :

On Friday, the fourth day of Mrs. Hatch's illness, Mrs. A., who possesses powers as a healing medium, was influenced to call. After conversing with her for a few moments, I invited her to call with her hus-band in the evening, as Mrs. H. would probably, as usual, be much worse. She was detained, and did not call that evening until about nine o'clock, when she found Mrs. H. perfectly delirious. Mrs. A. seat-ed herself beside the bed and took Mrs. H.'s hand ; another lady eat at the opposite side of the bed, and Mr. A. stood at the foot. In this condition, Mrs. Hatch very soon became more calm, and described the apparitions of the Spirits, and then remained quiet, as if in sleep, for about ten minutes, when suddenly she rubbed her eyes, as if just awak-ing from a natural sleep, and said, "Why, good evening! When did you come? How well I feel !"

From that moment, her disease entirely left her ; and she has had no return of it since; and her recovery, or in other words, the rapidity with which she regained her strength, was more than a hundred fold more rapid than in any previous illness.

"And they shall lay their hands upon them, and they shall be healed." There are thousands at the present day who have witnessed practical demonstrations of the fulfilment of this philosophy ; but now, as in the days of Jesus, the miracles are not within, but without, the B. F. HATCH, M.D.

FACTS IN MADISON COUNTY. SHED'S CORNERS, MADIEON CO., N.Y., 1857.

MESSES. EDITORS :

A short time since, Doctor Moran made his advent into this region, to convince the good people that Spiritualism is a humbug. He succeeded admirably in demonstrating the futility of all pretensions to explaining these phenomena on natural principles. His first lecture was ushered in with a fervent invocation by himself for the preservation of the Bible as the word of God. Conscious that there is a striking analogy between the phenomena in relation to the woman of Endor calling up Samuel, and the modern phenomena called Spiritualism, he spent nearly the entire evening in proving that Samuel was not called up.

My sister, who but a short time since treated Spiritualism as a delusion, is now in the habit of receiving communications. I extract from her letters to me the following facts, which are at your disposal.

I must give you a little of my experience in the operation of standtipping, be it the work of Spirits, electricity, or whatever else it may. don't know what to call it, but I know what I have seen ; and though C. thinks I am preparing myself for the lunatic asylum, yet I have no fears of getting there this winter. But to my story : Some few weeks ago I called in at Mrs. Arnold's to opend an evening with Eliza. Having heard that she had had some experience in stand moving, I introduced the subject. She said she had seen stands and tables move repeatedly, but thought it nothing but electricity. I told her plainly that I did not believe the stand or table moved ; that it was the work of imagination merely. I said further, that if I should see a stand or table moved by the mere touch of any person, I should most certainly regard it as supernatural. Finally, it was proposed that we should have a sitting. A plate was placed under each leg of the stand, and we two, with two sisters, sat around it. After remaining about fifteen minutes, laughing and talking at a great rate, what think you was my surprise to find the stand beginning to move, without any visible cause for it ! We told it to rap with one leg : it did so. We told it to tip in various ways, all of which it did. Still I could not be satisfied but that they moved it. To test this, I secretly told it to rap with a out has they moved it. To test this, I secretly fold it to rap with a certain leg. Immediately the leg which I had designated set to replying. This I repeated a number of times, and the same result followed, until I was satisfied there was no possibility of collusion in this respect-I told it to repeat mother's age : it did so. I then told it, mentally, to rap the age of Caroline when she died. It rapped nineteen times, which was correct. I next told it to rap Anson's age (my questions were put mentally), and here it made a mistake, but immediately after would change, and the inflammation would leave the lungs and go to gave his age correctly. This seemed to me quite conclusive that the the brain, when the most intense agony would be the result of the stand was under the control of an intelligence belonging to neither of us. For if electricity was so under the control of my will as that I caused the raps, why this mistake? I knew Anson's age periodiy well, and was expecting, in my mind, that it would stop when it had given the correct number of raps.

January 25th, she writes me again, as follows :

One evening, while Miss B. was at my house on a visit, it was pro-posed to sit by the stand. It soon commenced doing whatever we fold it to do. When so directed, it would go with considerable speed towards any person in the room. But there being so much couldinsion, I could not ask as many questions as I wished. The next evening, after sitting two hours, it' moved a little; but this evening we were alone The next evening Miss B. was present, and we sat again. In ten minutes the side towards me commenced raising. I asked if a Spirit would communicate with us? It answered in the affirmative. I asked if it would tell what Spirit? Answer, "yes." It then spelled out "John;" but refused to give the other name. I asked, Are you a re-lative of ours? Answer, "No." To Miss Beaman? "Yes." How many years since you left this world? No reply. How many months? "Eleven," was the answer. How far did you live from this place ? "One hundred and thirty," was the response. Miss Beaman then stated that she had had an uncle living West, by the name of John Gage ; that she had never seen him, and that he died about a year ago. He told us many other things concerning his family, the truth of which will be ascertained hereafter. He said he was sixty-one at the time of his death. Mother said she remembered him very well.

I asked if he had seen father in the Spirit-world ? "Yes." Will you tell me his age when he died? "Fifty-nine," which was corr though I had to apply to mother to ascertain this. I asked if father would ever communicate with me? "Yes." In how many years? would ever communicate with mort " res. In the Month of the second secon

INVESTIGATIONS IN HARRISON CO., OHIO From a letter written partly on business, and partly for publication, we make the following extracts:

ESTEEMED FRIEND BRITTAN :

I take my pen to write a few lines respecting Spiritual things, etc. I investigated the rappings to find the humbug, but found that I was the one who was deceived. I formed a circle at home, found that two of our daughters were mediums ; and we have pages of communications, both in prose and poetry.

For nearly a year we were scarcely a day without investigators. I suppose more than a hundred believers have been made at our circle. The girls are writing mediums, but they do not take much interest in the subject now, though the good that has been done in our little circle will never die, for nothing good can die, and all things that can progress for ever will live for ever.

I have been disowned from the Hixite Quakers for believing in the Spirits.

I sometimes hear the remark, "Spiritualsim is dying away." Ask the sea shore if the waves of the occan die ; ask the river to slumber on her bed ; ask the caim summer day if the storm car is hashed for ever ; ask the stars if they can fall from Heaven. They may answer as they will, but the waves of Spirit power will roll on for ever and

Another motive in writing to you is to invite you or some other lecturer to give us a call when you are on a journey to the West. A visit would be welcome here JEMIMA M. WEBSTER. HARRISVILLE, HARRISON Co., OHIO.

BORN INTO THE SPIRIT WORLD. MISHAWAKA, IND., February 22, 1857.

MESSES. EDITORS :

In South Bend, near this place, on the 31st ultimo, a large circle of friends was called upon to witness the departure of one worthy in all respects the name of a MAN-BENJAMIN F. MCCARTNEY. It is a pleasant task to record the death of one who has trod the paths of this life in peace and good will toward men ;" one whose life has been esteemed. by the poor and needy ; for in no phase of his earthly existence was his heart callous to the wants of the poor. His soul was large enough to encompass all mankind, and those on whom his many kindnesses were bestowed, have impressions left upon the tablets of memory which time can never efface. The last few years of his life were devoted to an investigation of Spiritualism; and the longer the fatal disease (consumption) proyed upon his body, the more confirmed his mind became in the beautiful realities of immortality ; and the gentle infinences of Spirit companions have him away in peace and joy to realms of purer bliss.

He has since spoken of the passage across the threshold of eternity, and seems to have been conscious of the changes in all his periods of being " born anew."

Our friend's circle of acquaintances was large, and it is deemed a proper tribute to his memory to inform those at a distance of the change

Mr. McCartney was a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of South Bend, and his funeral ceremonies were performed by that order. There was no sermon preached at the time. His ago was between thirty and forty. Yours traly, w. A. PEPPER.

MYSTERIOUS INTERVENTION.

[The following extract is going the rounds of the secular press as a ture," from which it is taken, they would find many other facts equally startling. The book may be found in our catalogue. c. r.]

"Dr. Kerner relates that a canon of a Catholic cathedral, of some what dissipated habits, on coming home one evening, saw a light in his When the maid opened the door, she started back in surbedroom. prise, while he inquired why she had left a candle burning up stairs; cending to his chamber, he saw himself sitting in his arm chair. The figure rose, passed him, and went out at the room door. He was extremely alarmed, expecting his death was at hand. He, however, lived many years afterward, but the influence on his moral character was very beneficial." "Not long since a professor, I think of theology, at a college at Berlin, addressed his class, saying that, instead of his usual lecture, he should relate to them a circumstance which, the preceding evening, had occurred to himself, believing the effects would be no less sala tary.

"He told them that as he was going home late the preceding even-ing, he saw his own image, or his double, on the other side of the street. He looked away, and tried to avoid it, but finding it still accompanied him, he took a short cut home in hopes of getting rid of it, wherein he succeeded till he came opposite his own house, when he saw it at the door.

" It rang, the maid opened ; it entered, she handed it a candle ; and as the professor stood in amazement on the other side of the street, he saw the light passing the windows, as it wound its way up to his own chamber. He then crossed over and rang ; the servant was naturally dreadfully alarmed on seeing him, but without waiting to explain, he ascended the stairs. Just as he reached his own chamber he heard a loud crash, and on opening the door they found no one there, but the ceiling had fallen in, and his life was thus saved. The servant corroborated this statement to the students, and a minister, now attached to one of the Scotch churches, was present when the professor told his tale. Without admitting the doctrine of protecting spirits, it is difficult to account for these latter circumstances."

"A very interesting case of an apparent friendly intervention, occurred to the celebrated Dr. A-T-, of Edinburgh. He was sitting up late one night, reading in his study, when he heard a footstep in the passage, and knowing the family were, or ought to be, all in bed, he rose and looked out to ascertain who it was, but seeing nobody, he sat down again. Presently the sound recurred, and he was sure there was somebody, though he could not see him. The foot, however, ascended the stairs, and he followed it until it led him to the nursery door, which was open, and he found the furniture was on fire ; and thus but for this kind office of his good angel, his children would have been burned in their beds."

A WONDERFUL COINCIDENCE .- Lavater died, and his friend Stilling, who always rejoiced when a soul was freed from earth, wrote a glorification of the departed Lavater. In this poem he represents the awaking of the good man in the heavenly kingdom, and tells of the joyful greeting he received from his friend Hiess, who had preceeded him many years ; and one of the first desires expressed by Lavater, was to visit the Virgin Mary and ask her concerning the life of our Lord upon the earth.

Some months after the publication of the poem, Stilling met an old friend of Lavater's, who shook him warmly by the hand and thanked him for the pleasure he had experienced in reading the "glorification," and said, " How well you brought in that incident concerning Hiess." "Incident !" said stilling, "it was an imagination." "Nay," said the friend, "forty years ago, when Lavater stood weeping beside the death-bed of Hiess, the latter said to him, 'Weep not for me, Lavater, for I will be the one to welcome you into the heavenly kingdom." Stilling had never heard of the incident.

Some years after, in turning over a volume of Lavater's writings, which he had never read, his eye rested on the following passage : "When I enter the heavenly kingdom, my first desire will be to seek out the Virgin Mary, and ask her all the particulars concerning the life of our Lord upon the earth." Stilling was overwhelmed with astonishment, and no one can read this statement without reflecting that many things which seem to be the mere creatures of our imagination. are simple truths written through us as mediums. Man's mind, in fact, is not creative ; he receives thoughts through attendant Spirits, and the visions of his fancy are his spiritual surroundings ; they are his inner world, brought out to the perception of his thought. With this thought before us, how wonderful are books; they are truly spiritual revelations. .

A PARTY hunting in Angelina county, Texas, found two hundred bodies in a cave, entirely petrified, and dressed in a style neither European nor Indian. On the waist of one was found a buckle of gold, almost three inches in diameter, imbedded in the body. The features were not much sunken, the eyes partly closed, and even traces of the eyebrows could be seen .- Exchange.

[We learn that one body had its left under eye-lid slightly drawn down by the forefinger of its right hand, and another had its right thumb on its nose, with the digits extended! Strange affair.]

DEVOTION TO KNOWLEDGE. - Thirvey, a martyr to hard study, is said to have exhausted his physical forces. He was blind, partially paralyzed and a sufferer from acute nervous disease during the latter years of his life. These trials he bore with more than the noble calmness of philosophy. There breathes in the following lines the excusably tri-philosophy. There breathes in the following lines the excusably tri-ut had to remost wonderful fact. If they would look into the "Night side of Na-umphant spirit of glorious martyrdom : "If," he says, "I had to recommence my course, I would choose that which has brought me whither I am. Blind and suffering, without hope, and almost without writher 1 am. Blind and subering, without hope, that annote will not last, a horrible body, through whose decaying flesh the white bones be suspected : there is something in the world of better worth than gleamed, and from whose rotten limbs dropped loathesome gravematerial enjoyments, better worth than fortune, better worth than health itself; it is devotion to knowledge." This, after all, is a sad upon which she declared that he had come home just before and gone picture for an immortal being so situated, that knowledge and not to his room, and she had been wondering at his unusual silence. On as- goodness and faith, should be the only food of his soul. Alas I this is about the extent of a literary Frenchman's piety .- Advocate and Journal.

[We wish our cotemporary would tell us something about that "goodness and faith" which they speak of as being essential, yet sep-arate and distinct, from "knowledge." We had supposed that knowledge pertained to truth, and truth to goodness; and have generally found the popular piety which rests on near faith in the unknown very treacherous. c. r.]

PROFITS OF AUTHORSHIP IN ENGLAND .- The late Mr. Tegg, the publisher in Cheapside, London, gave the following list of remunerative payments to distinguished authors in his time, and he is believed to have taken considerable pains to verify the items : Fragments of His tory, by Charles Fox, sold by Lord Holland for $25,500. Fragments of History, by Sir James Macintosh, $2.500. Lingard's History of England, $23.450. Sir Walter Scott's Buonaparte was sold with the printed books, for $90,000 dollars ; the net received on copyright, on the first two editions only, must have been $50,000. Life of Wilberforce, by his sons, $20,250. Life of Byron, by Moore, $20,000. Life of Sheridan, by Moore, $10,000. Life of Hannah More, $10,000. Life of Cowper, by Southey, $5,000. Life and Times of George IV, by Lady C. Bury, $5,000. Byron's Works, $100,000. Lord of the Isles, half share, $7.552. Lalla Rookh, by More, $15,000. Rejected Addresses, by Smith, $5,000. Crabb's Works, re-publication of, by Mr. Moxon, $5,250. Bulwer's Rienzi, $8,000. Marryatt's Novels, $2,500 to $7,000. Trollope's Factory Boy, $8,000. Hannah More derived $150,000 per annum for her copyrights during the latter years of her life. Rundell's Do-mestic Cookery, $10,000. Nicholas Nickleby, $15,000. Eastace's Classical Toar, $10,500. Sir Robert Inglis obtained for the beautiful and interesting Memoir of Bishop Heber, by the sale of his Journal, $25,000

PETER NASSAU, a colored man of Woodstock, Vt., is in the one hundred and twenty-sixth year of his age. His eye-sight is good ; teeth sound. He converses sensibly, and walks without difficulty. John Hames, a revolutionary veteran living in Maury county, Ga., on the waters of Holly Creek, was born in Mecklenburg county, Va., and was a lad ten years old when Washington was in his cradle. He was thirty-two when Braddock met his defeat on the Monongahela. He and several of his neighbors set forth to join the headstrong and ill-fated commander, but, after several days' march, were turned back by the news of his overthrow. He migrated to South Carolina nearly a hundred years ago. He was in thirteen considerable conflicts during the War of Independence, and in skirmishes and rencountres with Indians, with Tories and with British, times beyond memory. He was with Gates at Camden, with Morgan at the Cowpens, with Green at Hillsboro and Eutaw, and with Marion in many a bold rush into a Tory camp or red-coat quarters.

TRACES OF SIR JOHN FRANKLIN .- The vague reports of last summer in respect to new traces of some of Sir John Franklin's party are made somewhat more distinct in a letter from Red River Settlement, Hudson's gether accountable for what he may say. Bay Territory, published in the London Times. The writer says : "I have just returned from-, who was at Norway House last July, and saw the man who brought an express to Sir George Simpson from Mr. Anderson, in Mackenzie's River district, stating that Indians had brought over reports to one of the trading posts in that quarter that Indians had seen two or more encampments of whites on an Island on some point where Anderson and Stewart turned back in 1855, and that one of the encampments particularly was quite fresh, supposed to have been abandoned a day or two before the Indians saw it, and from the traces it was thought there might have been about ten or twelve men. I could not hear of the exact locality further than that Anderson and Stewart were within a very short distance of the place where the traces were seen.

MISSOURI .- The Census of Missouri, which has just been taken, shows the state to have a total population of 912,206, of whom 819,583 are and a fortune made by its inventor .- Exchange. free whites, 2,652 free blacks, and 89,590 slaves. The increase of the white population in six years has been over thirty-eight per cent. or 224,453, while the increase of the slaves had been 1,823, or only a fraction over two per cent. Two counties return no slaves ; twenty counties report only 1,000 altogether.

NEW ARABIC VERSION OF THE BIBLE .- One of the most cheering aspects of the missionary work in this day, is the translation of the Bible into the vernacular tongue of every people under the whole heaven ; and among these late translations, that of Mr. Smith into the modern Arabic, is one of the most important. Some of the Arabian tribes are older than Abraham ; others his lineal descendants, and all have some traditional faith which links them in some sense to the Hebrew Scriptures .- Advocate and Journal.

HORRIBLE STORY .- The Toplan Advertiser, published in Iowa, contains a story apparently in imitation of Poe's "Case of M. Valdemar, which is evidently a pure fabrication. It is contained in a letter from one Dr. John Moreton, and relates the case of a patient of his who dishe scouted them. She died, talling him with her last breath that on his death-hed she should appear to him in the body. A few weeks after, he died, Dr. John Moreton being present ; and as he hay gasping his worms upon the floor, entered the room. This horrible form said : "Come, William, they wait for you !- I wait !" and fell to the floor, where it remained the next day ; and the body of the busband being conveyed away, the house was burned. This story is supported by two or three affidavits, taken before James Taylor, notary public for Grand Traverse county, Michigan. Those may believe it who choose .- Journal of Cummerce.

[We thank the Journal of Commerce for the privilege of believing the above if we choose, but we beg to decline. There seems to be too much need of affidavits to overcome its improbability. c. z.]

OUR LAKES -The five great lakes of North America have recently been surveyed, and it is found that they cover an area of 20,000 square miles. The total length of the five lakes is 1,534 miles. Lake Superior at its greatest length is 355 miles; its greatest breadth is 160 miles; mean depth, 968 feet; clevation above the sea, 626 feet; area, 32,000 square miles. Lake Michigan is 360 miles long ; its greatest breadth is 180 miles ; its mean depth is 900 feet ; elevation, 687 feet ; area, 20,000 square miles. Lake Huron in its greatest length, is 200 miles ; its greatest breadth is 160 miles ; mean depth, 300 feet ; elevation, 574 feet ; area, 20,000 square miles. Lake Erie is 250 miles long ; greatest breadth, eighty miles ; mean depth, 200 feet ; elevation, 555 feet; area, 6,000 square miles. Lake Ontario has a length of 180 miles ; and its mean breadth is sixty-five miles ; mean depth 500 feet ; elevation above the ocean, 262 feet ; area, 6,000 square miles .- National Intelligencer.

TEMPERATURE OF THE EARTH .- Scientific investigations have been made concerning the temperature of the interior of the earth. The existence of hot-water springs, and the recurrence of volcanic eruptions, have always pointed at a certain fact. Now it is well established that the effect of the sun's rays does not penetrate more than fifty feet. After that the temperature which has been so far regularly diminishing, increases at the rate of about one degree Fahr., for every fifteen yards of descent. Then water must be wholly converted into steam at a depth of two miles ; lead must melt at a depth of six miles ; gold at a depth of twenty miles; east-iron at a depth of about twenty-five miles; and at a depth of less than fifty miles the very rocks must be in a state of fusion, or like flowing lava. The solid crust of the earth by this calculation, is only one one hundred and sixtieth part of its diameter ; and bears about the same relation thereto, as the shell of an cgg bears to its bulk !

DR. Cox AND THE BAFTISTS .- The Baptist papers are roundly censuring Rev. Samuel H. Cox, D.D., of the New School Presbyterian Church, for an offensive reference to the Baptists in a recently published letter of his. The following are the exceptionable words :--Thus says Rome, with its Papal organization of apostolical unitymuch more apostatical; thus ' the Churchman,' who knows not whose assumptions and organizations they are that lamentably cause divisions and offences, contrary to the doctrines which we have learned of the Holy Ghost, with the order to avoid them ; thus all our immersers, whose water-cure establishments make hydropathy and packing the only way to the communion-table." The Doctor once said very hard things about the Methodists, and that very shortly after he had fraternized with them in the World's Convention ; but the old gentleman is not alto-

A New STYLE OF BAROMETER .- The Mobile Register gives the following description of a barometer on the Mexican war steamer, Guerrero : On hoard the Mexican steamer is a barometer of the most eimple construction, but greatest accuracy. It consists only of a long strip of cedar, very thin, about two and a half feet in length, about an inch wide, out with the grain, and set in a block or foot. This cedar strip is backed, or lined with one of white pine, out across the grain, and the two are tightly glued together. To bend these when dry is to snup them, but on the approach of bad weather the cedar curls over until the top at times touches the ground. This simple instrument is the invention of a Mexican guitar-maker, and such is its accuracy that it will indicate the coming of a " norther" full twenty-four hours before any other kind of barometer known on the coast. Had this been the production of Yankee ingenuity, it would have been patented long ago,

THE CHOIR TURNED OUT OF CHURCH .- The Christian Advocate, Memphis, Tenn., says : We clipped from the Advocate and Journal last week, an article advocating the plan of having the hymns and music arranged, so that the selecting one would determine the other. We think it a good suggestion, and venture another, which can be carried into execution immediately. Let all the people take their hymn-books with them to Church, and abolish the plan of lining the hymns. Let those who lead sit in front of the pulpit near the center of the congregation. Then will our worship be more spiritual. The preacher will catch the inspiration, and be much better prepared to speak.

The Costa Ricans have offered $10,000 for Walker's body, and $20,000 if he is taken alive. That's a great deal more than he is

HOPE ON ! HOPE EVER !!! Gop gave us hope to southe our dying hours, and to pullate our heaviest miseries. Were it not for Hope, the existence of nine-tenths of machine would be a burthen Were it not for Hope, the existence of nine-tenths of machine would be a burthen almost unbearable. To those who inspire hope in the suffering and desponding, even if it be based upon failacy, we owe many thenks, for there is but one visitor more sheerful than hope that can make its appearance at the bedde of the dying. That visitor is Dr. James's Extract of Cannabis Indica. The old doctor has been retired from practice for many years, but the infallibility of his marveloss remody for Con-sumption, Bronchits, Nervons Debility, Cough, severe Gold, Ashma, ect., has com-pelled a demand which he he can only supply by sending instructions everywhere how to make and auccessfully use it, and also by retling the medicus ready made to all who do not desire to prepare it themselves. The old Doctor's address is No. 19 Grand-street, Jersey City, N. J. Send him a shilling to cover his eponses, and he will return you the receipt by post. If you are afflicted with any of the torrible all-ments above mentioned, get the "Extract of Cannabis Indica." To our best knowledge and belief, based upon what we have heard, and thousands of testimontals, which we have seen, from all parts of the world, it is the only medicine extant that ever did speedily, safely, and permanentify cure consumption and kindred diseases. It is an have seen, from all parts of the world, it is the only medicine extant out over the speedily, safely, and permanently cure consumption and kindred diseases. # QUESTIONS FOR ELUCIDATION

BY SPIRITS AND MORTAL'S. THE investigating class in the city of New York is composed, as far as possible, of intelligent men and women who are supposed to entertain the various popular theories involved in the questions to be solved. This class, until further notice, will assemble each successding Wednesday evening at the house of Charles Partridge, and in conducting the meetings the following order will be observed: At eight o'clock the question for the evening will be read, after which will be presented papers from our friends abroad, containing pertinent facts, modes of application to the question under consideration, and conclusions. Then the persons present will read their briefs of facts, arguments and conclusion, and enforce the same with such brief remarks as may render the elucidation of the subject more complete.

To give equal and the widest facilities to all persons-whether present or absent-to participate in the discussion, we purpose to consider the several questions in their order, giving to each at least one week's time, and probably more to some or all of them. The purpose being simply to elicite and present truth in as brief and yet as comprehensive a form as possible, the following has been adopted as the order to be observed which is believed to be best calculated to promote the objects had in view.

First. Each contributor is requested to present in writing the facts on which his or her conclusions are based.
