Your Dividend from Life

By Wynn

It is a law of life that everything grows.

The purpose of life is progress and this purpose is always fulfilled. It may look otherwise at some times and in some cases, when viewed superficially, but there is always growth of some sort, great or small, between birth and death.

Every experience we have is the source of more knowledge—our awareness thereby grows by being added to.

The planetary rays are related to the laws of life, Jupiter's ray being the one identified with the law of growth. Jupiter is the expander, the preserver. The position of Jupiter, that is, its sign, its decan, its house occupied and house ruled, its aspects and its degree of the zodiac are the chief factors that enter into the quality of the ray from Jupiter as it is received by any individual. In his horoscope, i.e., the condition of the heavens at the time of his birth, the planetary rays and their relations to houses, signs and the other factors mentioned, are the "photograph" of a person's character, his or her innate equipment.

Thus, to understand the avenues by which you are entitled to cooperate with the laws of nature toward your most rapid and most comfortable and most happy, successful expansion, find out all you can about your Jupiter ray.

Some students of astrology consider they have thoroughly analyzed a planet's position and condition when they have considered its zodiacal sign, its mundane house and its aspects to the other planets.

To them, and to you, I would recommend serious investigation of the further and deeper analysis of house-signs (HS).

(At this point, according to the mail I receive, many readers throw up their hands, figuratively speaking, and turn to another part of the magazine. They were entirely willing to learn something about their rapid, comfortable, happy and successful expansion—provided it wouldn't require knowing more than they now know. This is the type of reader who makes his progress very slowly; he wishes he knew more astrology, more about his line of work, more about a great many things; but he doesn't make the effort necessary. He wants to be without becoming. My suggestion to him is to rouse himself out of that frame of bad mental habit and get a textbook on astrology, or at least have some competent astrologer set up his complete horoscope so he will know where the planets were at the time of his birth. He will be surprised how much will be added to his understanding of himself and those he meets.)

The house-sign of a planet is the relation of the sign occupied to the sign ruled. In the case of Jupiter, which rules Sagittarius, Sagittarius is its 1st HS, Capricorn its 2nd, Aquarius its 3rd, and so on around the circle. Glancing down the first two columns of numbers in the table on page 5, you will note that the HS number of Jupiter is 4 more than the number of the sign itself. Thus both Hitler and Hirohito have Jupiter in Capricorn (sign 10), which is Jupiter's HS 2.

In analyzing the sign position of Jupiter (or any planet) we must, of course, take into consideration the blending of the nature of the planet and the nature of the sign, but this is done in all standard texts and need not be repeated here. It is only in the Hindu astrology, however, that I have found such facts as the love of service and understanding of health problems that always accompany Jupiter in Taurus—these being only two of the typical 6th house necessities; or the creative, inventive attributes of Jupiter in Aries—Aries being Jupiter's 5th HS.

Bear in mind that there are the alternatives of positive and negative growth through Jupiter's position and condition in the horoscope. By positive growth is meant conscious development toward worthy goals. By negative growth is meant mistakes, errors and sins that teach the lesson of the way that should have been traveled. It is a mistake to consider that Jupiter is always the source of pleasure and profit in the sense of worldly measures; too many beginning students expect Jupiter to bring benefits to the undeserving—but that isn't the plan by which this life is directed.

Every Jupiter in Capricorn, for instance, combines the vibrations of the 10th and 2nd houses; that is, the problems and opportunities of public position (10) and money, power, skill (2). Whether the native born with Jupiter in Capricorn suffers through misuse of position and power, or consciously uses position and power for both inner and outer expansion, this placement of Jupiter brings an advancement in growth to his soul. The desires created by this Jupiter are its necessities. Note that no single planet is to be read as an entire horoscope, that the other factors in a nativity are also environmental to the soul and must be taken into consideration as qualifying agencies in a final synthesis; but in the matter of growth and expansion in the life Jupiter is the prime channel of expression.

Both Henry VIII and Wilhelm II were born with Jupiter in Gemini, the 7th HS of the patron of growth. Their lives illustrated dynamically the two most usual applications of the 7th house: marriage and war, both of which are involved with the problem of getting along with the other fellow.

One of the occult reasons why Jupiter is always the patron of opportunity is that it is one of the three planets (the others being Mars and the Sun) whose Zodiacal sign and HS are always in the trine relationship. The HS is always related to the same Element (Fire, Earth, Air or Water) as the sign occupied by Jupiter. Thus, when in Aries (see Chopin), Jupiter's HS is similar to Leo, the 5th sign; both Aries and Leo are Fire signs. The 2nd and 6th (see Roosevelt) are both related to the Earth element, as are the 10th and 2nd (see Hitler and Hirohito) and the 6th and 10th (see Emerson). As in all instances where the Earth element is found, the necessity is to make practical the fundamentals indicated.

Everyone born on the same date in the same year, as well as many more during approximately the twelve months when Jupiter is in the same sign, has Jupiter's ray coming to him or her in the same sign and HS. But those born on the same day will have Jupiter in twelve different houses, according to the moments and places of their entry into this sphere. We thus must consider the mundane application of Jupiter's fundamental significance in life indicated by its house.

A planet's house-house is its relationship to the house corresponding with its Zodiacal sign. Jupiter rules Sagittarius, the 9th sign. Therefore Jupiter is in its 1st HH (house-house) when in the 9th mundane house (house position in the horoscope). When Jupiter, in any Zodiacal sign, is in the 10th house of the horoscope, it is in its 2nd HH, and so on. House-house has nothing to do with sign position or HS; it is entirely derived from the birthplace and birth moment.

Combining the foregoing, we see that

Jupiter (or any planet) can be in any of the 12 houses while in each of the 12 signs; this makes 144 combinations of the factors listed in the first four columns of our present table. Because it is impossible to devote the space to even brief delineations of so many combinations, the student is urged to learn thoroughly the meanings of the houses, that he may synthesize any one such combination. For instance, in the case of George Washington, we see Jupiter in Libra (7-11) and the 6th house (6-10); this gave him the necessity of working out his growth in the fundamental fields of marriage, war, contracts, law, human relationships, friendship, mental organization (all related to Jupiter in Libra), through the application pattern of personal service, health, relations with army, navy, public well being, government, fame, honor, responsibility (all related to Jupiter in the 6th).

Of great assistance in understanding any problem of an occupied house is the house ruled by a planet therein, for it brings the two houses together in the character, and therefore in the destiny, of the native. In our table we list the horoscope houses ruled by Jupiter in each of the cases (see the column headed "rules").

The column headed "solar Equi house" gives the position of Jupiter in the Sun Equilibrium chart of the native. The last column shows which house Jupiter rules in the Sun Equilibrium.

We here see a pattern of the house influences (departments of life) that is made by the combination of a planet's celestial placement and the angle from which it is observed. Each planet has more than 21,000 possible different patterns under this form of analysis; each horoscope contains 10 planets, producing complete nativity patterns in the trillions, all of them different. Obviously, therefore, the approach is through principles, not through the details of diversity. In other words, unless we know the principles that are present in any one planetary or complete natal pattern, we cannot go ahead very fast or very far; we would have to wait until another identical case appeared, for instance, if we would verify the astrological findings in the life of Hitler—and that would be a wait of thousands of years. But when we recognize house values in the interpretation method here described, we can synthesize immediately, putting together the factors involved to explain the known character (and therefore the destiny) as well as to anticipate future problems and manifestations of the individual.

Without going more deeply into the specific weights and values of Hitler's pattern, we can instantly see that his Jupiter pattern, 10 2 3 7 3 9 8, is extremely significant. Taking merely the dominant negative key words as substitutes for those house numbers, we obtain 10-tyranny, 2-personal power, 3-distorted logic, 7-war, 3-distorted logic, 9-anti-religion, 8-death. That is the path he chose. He could have chosen the positive path, of which the dominant key words for the same pattern are: 10-good government, 2-enlightened economics, 3-accurate reasoning, 7-cooperation, 3-accurate reasoning, 9-philosophy, 8-occult understanding.

Let us list the positive and negative extremes of the house influences, between which it must be understood are to be found all possible gradations:

POSITIVE	NEGATIVE
1 Self-respect, Self-knowledge	Egotism
2 Enlightened economics	Personal gain Misused skill
3 Accurate reasoning	Distorted logic
4 High social objectives	Personal accumulations
5 Creativeness	Pursuit of pleasure
6 Service, Good health	Slavery, Sickness
7 Cooperation, Ideal marriage	War Exploitation
8 Occult understanding	Death Misused sex
9 Philosophy, Higher mind	Anti-religion Anti-philosophy
10 Good government, Honor	Tyranny, Disgrace
11 Friendship, Brotherly love	Ingratitude, Misanthropy
12 Emotional stability	Intrigue, Self-undoing

These keys and the gamut between them are applicable to any planet's pattern when taken into consideration with the nature of the planet itself. In the case of Jupiter the nature of the planet is that of growth, expansion, the additions to the natal equipment with which we enter this world.

Note well the duplications, for there will be especial importance in the department of life so indicated. President Roosevelt's Jupiter doubles on the 4th, Churchill's triples on the 11th, Chiang Kai Shek's on the 2nd and 10th, Hitler's on the 3rd, Mussolini's on the 8th and 12th, Hirohito's on the 1st, Wilhelm's on the 3rd, Chopin's on the 1st, Brigham Young's on the 4th, Washington's on the 8th and 10th, Goethe's triples on the 4th.

Also look for the combinations of house influences that are related to the same element (1-5-9, 2-6-10, 3-7-11 and 4-8-12), for they produce a harmony of impulse in the type of experience needed for most rapid development. Mussolini's heavy accent on the Water element, 4-8-8-12-12, is very revealing. So is Hirohito's 1-1-5-9 in connection with his supposed divinity in Japan, for the Fire element is our chief avenue of approach to things spiritual. Henry VIII had the practical Earth element dominant in his Jupiter pattern, with 2-6-10. Wilhelm could have done much better with his 3-3-7-11-11 in the Air element, but chose the wrong path. Chopin's Fire group, 1-1-5-9 is very explanatory of his quality of accomplishment and the dividend he obtained from life by giving the best. Emerson's Air element, 3-7-11, indicated his properly accepted necessity. Goethe used his emotional (Water) 4-4-4-8-12 much more constructively than has Mussolini.

If no complete representation of all three houses related to the element is found in a Jupiter pattern, note those in which two of the three are present. They will be found helpful in determining the value of the impulse felt. Hitler's 3-3-7 (Air) and 2-10 (Earth) uncover his proper and improper paths when referred

Rebirth of Nations

By Manly Palmer Hall

Part II

No doubt there are people who today are trying to work out in their own minds whether the work to be intelligent compensates for the alternative; it is by doing nothing you are exterminated, whereas thinking is just much too much, too unreasonable. All right. If they want to choose death before intelligence that is their privilege, without intelligence enough to realize that death is not going to do any good. Any one who thinks he can escape the implications of this evasion by dying is about as mistaken and unhappy later as the individual who thinks he can get out of any other responsibility that way.

So, while one type of karma is playing itself out in aggressor nations, it is forcing other nations to involve themselves in other patterns necessary for their own survival. It is our opportunity as a nation to achieve consciously that which Europe had failed to achieve—a conscious cooperation, a voluntary union of people who have the right to choose, and who choose to do that which is right. That would be one of the great decisions that make history. A nation whose people choose to do that which is right would be one of the greatest indications of the rising of the principle of permanent peace. The only principles that can endure over long periods are those that are founded in the greatest amount of basic integrity. There are rules in this game, and we can find them without any particular belief in metaphysics; they are very simple, obvious rules; any person with common sense can find them, if he is willing to look for them.

That brings us to the key of our problem of the rebirth of empire, the realization that the nations of the world, not only the great nations, but small ones, principalities, colonies and states, all the little divisions that exist in the political structure of mankind, all are levels of conscious evolution. In each of these levels a group of human beings united by some basic necessity of consciousness is experiencing its destiny. Rebirth brings the individuals into those national levels which are consistent with their own spiritual necessity. The ego which is strongly egocentric is born into a race that is strongly egocentric. The entity which has still a great deal of economics in its consciousness comes into an environment where economics is a dominant force. The individual who has for centuries developed artistic, esthetic impulses is born into a race and environment where these impulses have an opportunity for expression. Therefore, these levels which we call nations, races and states, are little autonomic groups in space of people of similar interest who are drawn together by their common impulses and create a little nucleus of energies here and there, each fulfilling its little collective destiny.

Now, what is the interesting point that comes out of that? Plato points out the great difficulty arising from the coordination of similars. That is a very abstract statement, but what it means concretely is, that it is often very difficult to live with yourself, if there is too much like you in your own environment. Instead of a hundred artists finding Nirvana in gathering together they find pandemonium; there is nothing that can become more argumentative than the members of clubs either Republican or Democratic. People of similar minds coming together produce too much of one quality; it becomes the collective expression of the too much of one quality that is in the individual himself. But, one individual having a little too much of one element in his composition, mixing and mingling with a large world, may never become really aware of this superabundance. His destiny, the natural impulse of karma—and it all works so naturally and subtly that its observation is intriguing—is through natural impulse to find others with similar impulses to his own, with the reaction that finally the environment becomes oppressive and impossible. Thus it is proved there is no perfection in these individuals who have only one dominating quality, that the universal plan demands balanced growth.

Races become karmic reflections of the entities that are born into them. Millions and millions of entities who did not believe in the competitive or combative system in life were incarnated in India. The result is that the natural temperament of the Oriental is peaceful, not particularly ambitious; cultural but static. Where all that stasis is in one place, as with India's three hundred millions, the result is practically stagnation; and the individual in India who has that quality in his temperament pays his karmic debt by having to live in a nation that is overwhelmingly like himself. The reward of a static consciousness is to exist in a static state, and the reward of a static state is to be left behind. Finally the Indian himself, today represented by such motions as Young India, is rising against stasis in his own nature. The young Hindu had first of all to overcome stasis in himself, only then could come the insistent demand for reform. The same thing happened in China. Ancient China was one of the most egocentric nations on earth. It was egocentric to the degree of almost a truly metaphysical egotism. There are metaphysical groups that can look things in the face and say they are not there, and that was what China did. China could look over the walls of China and see the mountains and valleys and say they did not exist, that the world ended at the gates of Cathay. So China has paid the price of supreme egotism; finally the entities of that type could no longer stand the qualities they themselves most completely exemplified, and out of too much that was like themselves they found they could not get along with themselves. Then the great changes began.

In the same way, in America, entities of a possessive type having entered into incarnation together, the result is that everybody desiring to possess, possession becomes unendurable to all. If one individual sharply possession-minded had been all alone, he could always have blamed the world; but set down in the midst of a million souls who are identical with himself in also wanting to possess something, he says, "If this is possession, I do not want it!" It is brought home to us in that way. We are cured of our own vices by seeing how unpleasant they are in other people.

So, Nature's delightful little program of efficient reformation goes on. The gods do not say: Now, mankind, you can't do this or you can't do that. They just sit silent, considering the Law in its import for man: Do anything you want to and do it as long as you want to, the only rule of the game is you have to get along with what you have done. And this is the most effective cure, for we are not going to be able to endure ourselves until we do much better than most of us are doing.

People of certain types and kinds return periodically in the development of empires approximately every five hundred to eight hundred years, in the Phoenix Cycle. It is not an exact cycle of, say, five hundred years and then everything comes back; the interval of the cycle, the rhythm of the cycle, depends upon the qualities that are returning cyclically. Thus a great philosophic era will not return as frequently as a military era; the cycle is longer. As human beings increase in evolution the interval between lives is greater, and as the philosopher is more highly evolved than the soldier, he does not return as frequently. The philosophic era will return every two thousand or three thousand years; a military era will return every four hundred or five hundred years.

One of the rewards for living badly is to come back sooner; and if you are living badly you will have to come back with the same old group that you were with before. If you are still utterly entangled in a situation, you have to be reborn every time that situation is reborn. So if, for example, an individual is unable to conquer an economic crisis in his own affairs, if he does not know how to handle his own economic consciousness, he goes out of incarnation and stays out until the same group of economic problems returns, and comes back with it. He comes back again in the middle of the problems he did not solve.

That removes forever one of the fondest hopes of the unphilosophic individual, namely, that things are going to be a lot better when he comes back. No matter how good the world is when he comes back, and the world may be a lot better, there will be a little corner saved for him that will be the way he left it. And no matter how much better the world is, he cannot enjoy it until he has reformed his own little corner.

The return cyclically of different types of human culture is a subject which I have never seen discussed in detail in any work relating to philosophy, although the rules and principles are given. We are truly living in a world of wheels within wheels. It is quite possible that at some remote time these cycles all began together; it will not be until an inconceivable period of time that they will again converge; and when once again together, it may be that will constitute the end of time. In hundreds of millions of years that make up the evolutionary progress of life which we call human, thousands of cycles are working at the same time. Each craft, art and trade, as levels of human consciousness, has its own recurrent cycle, and every subdivision of that cycle has its own little recurrent cycle.

Every trade re-occurs according to cyclic law, every profession and every art has its time cycle, the rhythm upon which it moves; and the entities who belong to these various professions or trades and divisions of life return upon these cycles. The military cycle for the race is about five hundred years, and any militaristic or despotic group will re-occur in about that length of time. The Axis young men who are being killed today, with all their uncompleted life and unfinished ambitions, will emerge again in the theatre of things in about five centuries. They will bring forward again the imperfections of their philosophy and the incompleteness of their experience. A percentage of them that has not learned its lesson so far will go through the same cycle of destruction again, because we are constantly repeating experience until that experience is no longer necessary. What happens to us does not pay our debts, it is only when we understand what happens to us and we use that understanding constructively that karma is complete. It is not what happens to us, it is what we do about it that represents growth. So the cycle returns periodically.

We have had many types of fanaticism, but fanaticism is a cycle of its own. Fanaticism is an intemperance of emotion, and is usually in some way directly related to the overestimation of a personal viewpoint. The fanatic is the individual who believes something intelligently but not well; or has convictions which the intellect accepts but which the consciousness has never digested. When to this is added an intense emotional impulse mankind is in for a lot of trouble.

Going from the 20th century back 500 years to the 15th century, we recognize that we land in the midst of another great fanatical cycle—another, because the entire theory expressed politically today by dictatorship is feudalism, and nothing else. In the 15th century the serf belonged to his liege. The petty noble of the 15th century had complete power of life and death over his serfs and slaves. His domination and control was complete; he could execute them at will, order them out to fight for him, take their crops; whatever the action against them, they had no redress. Not only this, but he was usually a tyrannical type filled with petty ambitions and desires, engaged constantly in poisoning his enemies and murdering his friends. Life then was a constant hazard of personal prejudices and opinions. The church was loaded with superstitions and politics, and the state with despots. The condition of feudal Europe then and the condition within Axis nations today are almost identical. The innumerable petty barons and lords that operated by intrigue five hundred years ago appear now as various officers and officials of parties. They are again up to the same old tricks they were five hundred years ago, they have the same basic impulses and ambitions. They once died because of these ambitions and impulses, poisoned by relatives and friends; and today they have returned again. The counterpart of the torture chamber of the Middle Ages is the modern torture chamber set up in Europe to stamp out so-called seditions of the people, with every torture and rack of the Inquisition repeated today. Is it impossible for us to realize that we are re-living the Dark Ages? We are. And why? Because of an incoming of entities that belonged to that cycle. And they have to pass through it. The petty despots of that day were in their previous lives poisoned, murdered, killed on the field of battle. This time it will be the same. The next time it will be the same.

Optimism reaches a pinnacle in the belief that man learns rapidly. He does not; he resists knowledge. The last thing any of us want to do is to know. We fight against knowledge systematically. Strange and mysterious, and almost unbelievable it is to the philosophic mind that an entity that has already been poisoned a dozen times for intrigue, should come back and intrigue some more; but it does. Within us there is a conviction that we cannot lose our lives, and we will take the greatest chances because of our convictions of immortality; but we can lose our opinions, so we had better hang on to them as long as we can, and perhaps the universal parent will justify us in our mistakes some time. The idea seems to be to enjoy our mistakes while we can.

Recurrences of people according to cycles brings back the unfinished business of the world through races. Religious fanatics dead for ten thousand years will be born again someday, and doctrines will be back under new names and new teachers, for it is the principle and not the name that is reborn. There will always be a philosophy; it will come back on a normal cycle; a group of cycles will converge in periods of great trouble and there will be a cycle of great philosophy. We know that in the 12th century we had a great cultural revival of knowledge; in the 18th century we had a tremendous re-statement of philosophical and cultural knowledge, and it follows that in the 24th century we will have another. That's not very soon; but as soon as anybody could expect considering how things are now.

It would be worse than useless for Plato to live in the world today. He could do very little. The fond belief that if a great mind came along every-

Prussia's Stars Over Germany

By Wynn

(If you know a skeptic who wants to find out if there is relationship between the planetary rays, the Zodiac, and the psychology of men and nations, the material here presented may be of value.)

Who have been the leaders of Prussia and Germany during the past 200 years?

By leaders we do not mean the great men—we mean those whom Prussia and Germany have followed. Germany has had great men whom Prussia and Germany did not follow. The philosophy of Fichte (early writings only) and of von Schelling were never extensively embraced by Prussia and Germany; their philosophy was idealistic.

The philosophers Prussia and Germany have admired and followed were Kant, Hegel, Schopenhauer and Nietzsche.

The political leaders of Prussia have been:

Frederick William, born February 16, 1620, called "the second founder of the Prussian state," also known as "The Great Elector." It was he who first built a large standing army and made organization of force almost his exclusive business. It was he who brought together the various groups of the old Prussia that were pulling in different directions.

Frederick William I, born August 15, 1688, succeeded the weak and wasteful Frederick III as King of Prussia; he had a passion for war, was cruel and tyrannical, coldly logical in his organizing of the Prussian state; his improvements were those of the army; the entire nation was obliged under him to serve the army, which he made superior to all armies then in existence.

Frederick II, called "The Great," born January 24, 1712, was the originator of what has since come down to the present day as The Prussian Code. It was he who first acquired for Prussia recognition as a great power. He pursued the policy of being the sole ruler, whose will was absolute. In 1740 he invaded Silesia for the avowed purpose of "acquiring reputation and increasing the power of the state;" also as his "desire for glory." He won a great territory, which he immediately fortified. In 1744 he invaded Bohemia, starting the Second Silesian War. By 1756 he had practically the entire continent of Europe in arms against him and the Seven Years Wars was begun. His "tenacity and military genius pulled him through." He was harsh and took malicious joy in making others uncomfortable. On one occasion when another had said, "But the general run of humanity is honest and kind," Frederick snorted, "Ach, you do not know this damned race!"

Frederick William II, born September 25, 1744, was weak morally; in his eleven years on the throne of Prussia he managed to fight with Holland, Turkey, France, Poland and nearly with Russia. He left his nation bankrupt.

Frederick William III, born August 3, 1770, joined in Napoleon's campaign against Russia and then, when he lost out on picking the winner, joined the Russians. It was the period of American and French revolution, and he promised his people a constitution to get them to join in the War of "Liberation" against Napoleon (which they did)—but he did not make good. He joined with Russia in attacking Poland: "putting down uprisings there."

Frederick William IV, born October 15, 1795, considered the efforts of the people to have a representative form of government as "allowing something to come between the people and their sacred bond of loyalty to the Emperor" and added, "I will never permit a parchment of paragraphs to interfere between Almighty God and this country!" In 1848, however, they revolted against the cruelties of his regime and obtained a national parliament with limited powers. When the German Parliament offered the crown of Germany to him, he refused it, saying, "I would take the crown from German princes; but from the gutter—never!" He put down a "democratic conspiracy" at Berlin in 1853. Formed alliance with Austria against Russia in 1854.

William I, born March 22, 1797, before ascending the throne was so hated for his reactionary views and acts that he was advised by the king (his brother) to leave the country for awhile. He believed intensely in the "god of battles." He elevated Bismarck to the office of Minister President, and together they overthrew the powers of the Constitution, seized control of Germany, and fought the Franco-Prussian War. Bismarck finally took over and ran things his way.

William II, born January 27, 1859, was the Kaiser whose army "was attacked" a long way from home, in Belgium, at the beginning of World War I. In EUROPE AND THE GERMAN QUESTION, by F. W. Foerster, published in Germany before the present war, translated and published in English in 1940, we find a long and excellent chapter, "The Question of War Guilt," in which he gives voluminous documentary evidence that no nation but Germany wanted war in 1914. Commenting on the Prussian system, he says on page 77: "Its enormous strength rests on a fundamental of human life, which popular pacifism completely underestimates. . . . That fact is the overwhelming power of enmity in human life, fed as it is by all the instincts of competition, rivalry, envy, distrust, ambition and restless activity. Prussia, which grew up in the earthquake zone of Europe . . . must inevitably produce, as the result of its fear . . . the social type which Herbert Spencer denominated the warrior type and which has found its clearest and most thorough expression in the writings of Treitschke and Bernhardi. . . . With unflinching and appalling logic it has made the whole of life serve a system of iron defense and unlimited aggrandizement. . . . The fatal weakness of the Prussian system (is) its desire to domineer over everyone else, which in the end must involve the entire world."

Parenthetically, the Emperor Julian, writing fifteen hundred years ago, noted the dispositions of various nations. When he described the Germans, he mentioned "their intractable disposition." (From Thomas Taylor's translation.)

Further, concerning Kaiser William: at the outbreak of World War I, which by no stretch of the imagination could anyone say he tried to prevent, he sent this charming and modest proclamation to his armies: "Remember that you are the chosen people! The spirit of the Lord has descended upon me, because I am Emperor of the Germans! I am the instrument of the Most High. I am His sword, His representative. Woe and death to all those who resist my will! Woe and death to those who do not believe in my mission! Woe and death to the cowards! May all the enemies of the German people perish! God demands their destruction, God, who through my mouth, commands you to execute His will."

And now Germany follows Adolf Hitler, born April 20, 1889, whose attitude might be summed up in his famous question: "When have the German people ever broken their word?" (Speech to the Reichstag, May 21, 1935.)

Prince Otto von Bismarck, born April 1, 1815, came to power on his doctrine which supported the divine rights of kings to do as they pleased. He said the Germans were "males among nations, resembling an irresistible torrent which throws down all in its passage."

Heinrich von Treitschke, born September 15, 1834, was "chief panegyrist of the House of Hohenzollern;" took first steps to inculcate his tenets into the very young of Germany (many of whom grew up to officer the first world war); started German anti-Jew feeling in 1878; indoctrinated Germany against everything British. In Is Germany Incurable? Dr. Richard M. Brickner says: "Von Treitschke is a veritable John the Baptist of the Pan-German attitude, calling his fellow-countrymen to repentance whenever they seemed hesitant to fulfill their historic mission and instructing them in the might-makes-right morality that is a necessary concomitant. His books on political theory have been a guiding beacon for his contemporaries and followers. All of them are permeated by his belief that it is 'the greatest moral duty of the state to cultivate its might.' To von Treitschke weakness is 'the most abject and the most despicable' of all political crimes—'the crime against the Holy Ghost of politics.' Since the state cannot recognize any power above itself, it is morally justifiable for it to sign all treaties with this mental reservation."

Von Moltke, born May 23, 1848, did all he could to bring about the first world war, as the correspondence between him and von Hoetzendorff, the Austrian Chief of Staff, has proven. When there was yet time to avert that war, von Moltke wired to the Austrian Chief of Staff: "Refuse the new proposal for mediation made by England. If Austria-Hungary is to survive, the European war must be carried through. Germany will unconditionally help." Von Moltke wanted war.

Von Bernhardt, born November 22, 1849, was the Prussian general who preached the gospel of force, "victory at any cost." It was he who wrote, in 1912, Germany and the Next War. "It is war alone," he said in Internationale Monatschrift, "that assigns to every people its true place and the field of action which corresponds with biological justice. God reveals Himself in victory by which He makes truth defeat appearance. It is God's law that condemns the vanquished and it is, therefore, His will that the conqueror should dictate such peace terms as shall display his inner strength by his external power and greatness."

Evidently what he meant was that God is with the victor only if the victor is Germany, judging by the howls that started immediately after Versailles.

Arthur Schopenhauer, born February 22, 1788, was the apostle of will against reason, of feeling against knowledge. He preached ruthless sacrifice of conscience to the will.

Immanuel Kant, born April 22, 1724, "erected the Prussian imperative of duty into the categorical imperative of his ethics, thereby more deeply Prussianizing the Germans than any Prussian military successes could have done. Hitler has completed this union of will and feeling between Prussia and the German mind and has made it the psychological foundation of that 'union of all Germans' of which Bismarck laid merely the first stone." (Quoted from F. W. Foerster.)

Hegel, born August 27, 1770, said "The people is that part of a nation that does not know what it wants." His was the "philosophy" that taught the supremacy of logic—in fact, he started with nothing and logicized everything from it. He conceived of the intellect as being All.

Nietzsche, born October 15, 1844, was the advocate of the German "superman." He frankly aimed to substitute his doctrine against all religious teachings. Says

PRUSSIA'S STARS OVER GERMANY

Foerster on page 435 of the book mentioned: "The entire tragedy of Germany is a spiritual tragedy . . . Hitler regards nationalism as merely the first and temporary form assumed by a revolution which springs from sources far deeper than patriotism and which is, in Nietzsche's sense, biological. That is to say, in it a new type of humanity finds expression. This type is that which Nietzsche termed the blond beast, the incarnate rejection of every spiritual and moral restraint. . . . Hitler told Rauschning in unvarnished terms that the entire education he was giving the rising generation was directed to the creation of such a type. . . . I want fearless, vigorous, commanding and cruel young men with the strength and beauty of young beasts of prey." Nietzsche flatly rejected Plato's teachings, stating that the philosophy of the One, the Beautiful and the Good were unnatural and should be stifled.

The thoughtful person pauses, reflects, weighs and considers what type of character could say such things, teach such doctrines, commit such acts as have come from these leaders of Prussia during the past 300 years. And he goes further: he wonders why a nation follows such leaders, and he comes to the conclusion that the nation which follows them must find in them the statement of its own unexpressed inclinations.

By way of contrast, consider the bitterest, most scathing denunciation an American can say concerning a political opponent: "He wants to be a dictator; he believes Might is Right!" If the people of America can be made to believe such a thing of any candidate for office, that alone defeats him. But in Prussianized Germany that same statement would be the highest compliment, it is the avowed policy of the leaders, the doctrine of its favored "philosophers."

The present crop of advisers in Prussian Germany include: Haushofer, born August 27, 1869; Goering, born January 12, 1893; von Ribbentrop, born April 30, 1893; and Himmler, born November 7, 1900.

We have mentioned twenty-one men, perhaps the twenty-one men, who have symbolized the Prussian type of thought, action and objective. It is doubtful that any others could be added that would alter the type; only three or four could be left out.

Also symbolic of this Prussian type have been four outstanding events:

The Franco Prussian War;
World War I;
The Nazi Party; and
World War II.

We have carefully organized and tabulated the astronomical data available on the births of the men here mentioned, together with the commencements of the four events, making twenty-five sets of planetary positions.

The men and their birth dates are historical, obtainable from many sources, such as encyclopedias, newspapers, histories and almanacs. The events are historical. The planetary positions are astronomical. All these are rigid facts.

We have gone further, astrologically, comparing three factors:

The histories of men and events;

The planetary positions at the births of the men and the beginnings of the events; and

The relationships of the first two factors with the Pyramid Locality charts of the mundane area in which these men and events have functioned—Prussia and Germany.

Not all of the planetary positions are obtainable for some of the older dates; in seven of these cases we have only the positions of the Sun, Pluto, Neptune and Uranus, the last three being the most slowly moving heavenly bodies. In all the others we have all positions of the planets—in six of them the exact moment, which furnishes the cusps of the horoscope houses. In all, we have used 216 planetary 1st and 10th house positions.

Key Cycle of the Month

The Invasion of Sicily

On July 10, 1943, at 3 a.m., American and British forces landed on the island of Sicily, established a beachhead and continued rapidly to drive back the Germans and Italians. At the time of this writing (July 24, 1943), all but the north-east corner of the island has been taken over and completion of the job is expected soon.

This action was set off by the square of Mars-Jupiter, Mars being the planet ruling the locality midheaven and Jupiter being the significator of the United Nations. In the Key Cycle of the time and place Mars ruled the 9th, showing the long distance (9th) from which the force (Mars) came. Mars also ruled the KC 4th, indicating the forceful end (4th) of the former government's (10th) rule, which was achieved within a few days, just as Mars entered the orb of the 10th cusp.

Mars will be (future at time of writing) conjunction the KC 10th of Messina, where the final stand is estimated to occur (same date for Mars at 10th of Catania) on August 3, 1943. It will be interesting to note how close to this date the conquest of Sicily will be accomplished.

Index of the war coming to this location is Uranus, ruler of the war 7th, in the KC 10th, a configuration which also obtains at all points from about 12° E to 35° E, at this time, which takes in the violence on the Russian front further north. At the invasion of Sicily, the Moon, ruling the secretive 12th, was in trine aspect to Uranus. And the Moon was going from conjunction of General Eisenhower's Mercury to conjunction of his Sun and Uranus. Mars is the ruler of the General's Equilibrium 7th. And the transiting Uranus was on his conjunction of Neptune-Pluto in Gemini 7° and 8°. Thus do the stimuli of the planets' rays combine at time and place and work through men.

Mussolini, too, was feeling those same planets' rays. Uranus was on his Moon-Saturn conjunction, and Mars was square his Sun. The KC midheaven of Sicily was approaching Sawdust Caesar's war 7th. Mars is his ruling planet.

In the Sicily Key Cycle, the Sun ruled the figure from the cusp of the 12th, indicating the surprise of the attack; defenses had been concentrated at the other end of the island in accord with the information the Allies fed the Nazi spies.

Illegitimacy Indexes

By Blanca Holmes

When the writer suggested an article on "Illegitimacy," Wynn at first was undecided. He said: "Remember there are no illegitimate children, only illegitimate acts," all of which is true, very true!

Still, there are many younger students who are interested in knowing how to detect birth outside of man-made law (marriage). The soul picked his own channel and time to come into this life, and the fact that birth is illegitimate gives him that type of life pattern.

In the writer's estimation, whether a person is "legitimate" or "illegitimate" is really of no great consequence: this little piece is written to prove a few points in astrology for students.

A student or astrologer who feels he can detect illegitimacy should at no time, under any circumstances whatsoever, make the fact known to the individual whose chart he is studying. For it is often a factor unknown to the person himself; furthermore, it is certainly not the affair of the astrologer—or of anyone else, for that matter.

If the individual should know the circumstances surrounding his birth and makes the fact known to the astrologer, experience, tact, philosophy, in fact everything the student of astrology has to offer, must be brought into play, so the individual will not worry about his condition and will instead feel satisfied with the position in which he finds himself placed.

To the writer, the acceptance of the doctrine of rebirth explains much along these lines.

Many very famous and talented people have had illegitimate birth. World-renowned artists, sculptors, musicians, even a few high in government.

Now, to rely alone on what the astrological books set down as rules for illegitimacy is not always wise. It brings to mind what Colton said:

"He who studies books alone, will know how things ought to be; and he who studies men will know how things are."

One "authority" on astrology in his book says the Moon in Scorpio alone indicates illegitimacy, which is wrong—in fact, dead wrong.

All books seem to agree it is a strong 12th house influence, and this very often seems true in the majority of cases of known illegitimacy.

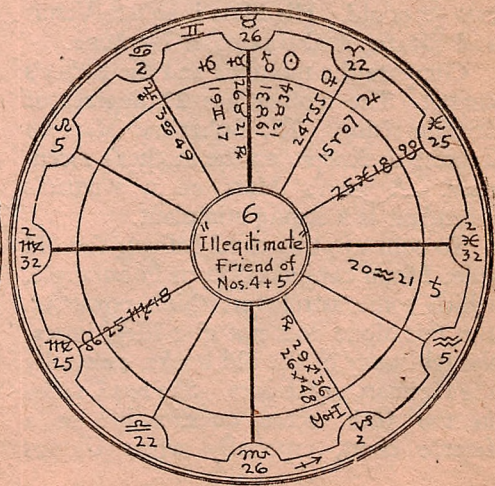

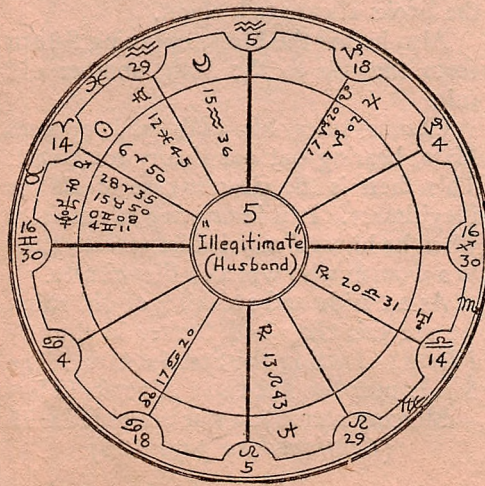

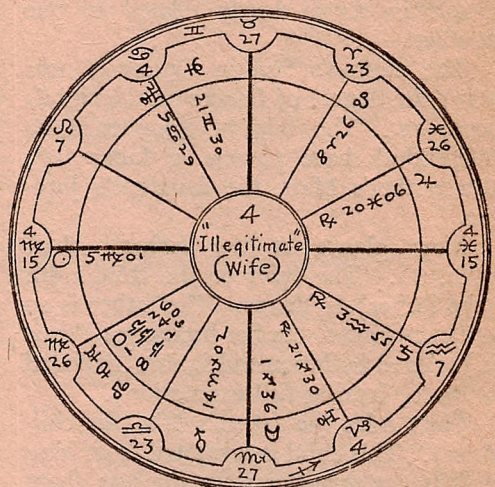

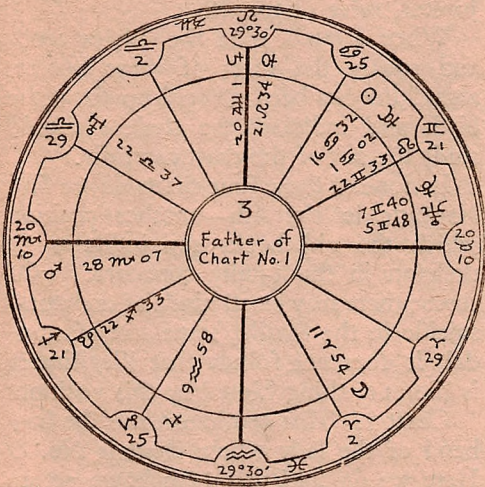

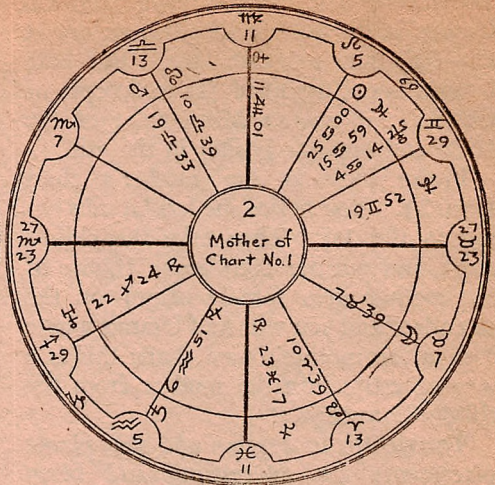

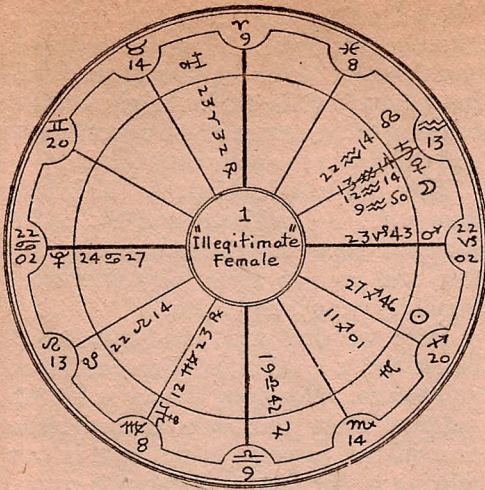

Here we have four charts of definite illegitimacy. Charts 2 and 3 are not illegitimacies in their own birth; they are the parents of Chart 1 (who was born outside of wedlock). Nos. 2 and 3 are given so the student may have added material for research.

Let us consider Chart 1.

This child has no 12th house set-up. Even the ruler of the 12th, Mercury, is not so badly aspected although it is in its detriment and square Neptune.

She does have what nine out of ten books give as an indication that the rest of the chart must be studied carefully for possible illegitimate birth, and that is: an adverse aspect between the Moon and Saturn, in this case the conjunction.

Uranus in her 10th points to unconvictionality on the mother's part. It does not follow that every woman who has Uranus in the 10th is illegitimate, not at all—let's not get that idea. But here Uranus is not dignified (as in Scorpio or Gemini); it squares Mars, ruler of the 10th; and opposes Jupiter in the 4th.

Please look at the mother's chart (No. 2). You notice she has Uranus rising in the 1st. Then take the child's chart, and put her 10th house (house of the mother in a female chart) on the ascendant and you will find Uranus where it is in the mother's own chart; this is a way of estimating the mother from the child's horoscope.

The tie-ups in degrees and also planet placements are interesting, and often found in those closely related to one another.

The mother's Sun in Cancer is near (3°) the degree of Cancer on the child's ascendant. They both have Jupiter in the 4th. Both have planets in Libra 19°; the mother's Mars, the daughter's Jupiter.

Now glance at the father's chart (No. 3). The ruler of the child's 4th (the father) is Venus. The father is an artist, a painter. In her horoscope Venus is besieged by Moon and Saturn (crowded between, lacking full expression).

Mars rules the father's 5th (his children). This child is separated from him; he has not seen her since she was about two years old. His Mars is square Venus and Saturn, it also opposes Neptune.

Compare the mother's and the father's charts! The mother has 27 degrees of Scorpio rising. The father has Mars 28 degrees in Scorpio on the mother's ascendant. A man's Mars on a woman's ascendant is a strong stimulant.

To sum up, this child follows the old rule: Moon conjunct Saturn in an angle, which some astrologers think powerful. But this alone does not give illegitimacy, though many of the old books, especially the German, say it does. She has Uranus in the 10th, often questionable in a female chart, especially when Uranus afflicts the ruler of the 10th (the mother). She also has ruler of her 4th besieged, and the ruler of the 1st (the Moon) conjunct Saturn. (The 1st house gives added coloring to the parent of the opposite sex, and influences the early environment.)

Now, let us take Chart 4. This lady knows she is illegitimate and has no inhibitions about it whatsoever—she is a free soul and, to some, very unconventional in manner and dress.

Here we find no 12th house set-up either and a good aspect between Moon and Saturn. However, Uranus in the 4th indicates there was some unusual situation in her parental home, in this case relating to her father. Uranus is square Jupiter, ruler of the 4th.

When Uranus is in the 4th or tenth and square the ruler of these houses, something has been covered up about the birth and indicates the student should study the rest of the chart carefully.

In none of these four charts do we find Neptune in the 4th—another position which the old books say indicates "a skeleton in the family cupboard." Of course there may be all kinds of skeletons, suicide in the family, some sort of scandal; it does not follow that illegitimacy is the only thing hinted by this position.

Chart 5. This gentleman was the husband of the lady whose chart is No. 4. Here we do find that 12th house set-up the books always talk about.

Also he has the Moon opposing Saturn from the 4th to the 10th, another old rule.

Uranus rules his 10th and opposes Mars, bearing out our theory somewhat. This chart is the clearest case of all for illegitimacy. It is interesting to note that when he himself married he was attracted to a woman who was also illegitimate.

As an aside and speaking of old rules, we see this chap had Jupiter in the 8th (death) afflicting the Sun (square). The Sun is near the fixed star Algenib (Mars—Mercury nature), a star associated with

Live With People and Like It

By Rita Doane Williams

Part II

Are you more content when you're alone than when with others? Do you feel a need to rebuild your picture of yourself every time you return to privacy? Have you had a sense of resentment because other people so constantly fail to reflect back to you what you expect them to notice about you?

Then probably your life just seems to force you to make contacts.

The purpose served by encounters with those outside our own skins is the great one of self-knowledge, "Man, Know Thyself." Man, or woman, living to a large extent alone, does not achieve this as does man or woman surrounded by other consciousnesses which serve the purpose of contrast.

But, oh, how we do resent the encroach of human attitudes that dwarf or accuse our own! This happens when we ourselves do not handle the mutual stimulation as well as does the other fellow.

One of the occasions when this is likely to happen is when you meet someone whose Mars stirs up your natal Sun by difficult aspect. Perhaps you've been the one in some previous meeting to own the Mars: in which case you'll remember that you really felt surprised at times when the owner of the Sun displayed such heated reactions to you. Now it's you who feels this instinctive heat, even more of it when the Mars owner seems calm than when the heat is mutual. You can stir up this other person by the way you react to the mutual stimulation, but if you didn't do the stirring this other person wouldn't get excited. It is through his or her Mars that he or she contacts you, and feels your

Sun, which doesn't stimulate. But your Sun feels the Mars as added tension or pressure, and if you aren't the burned child already you can get scorched any time now. You get the impression that this person wants to dictate to you and tell you what to do and when and how to do it: that's because you have come up against the will power and urge to action of this other. Even the way the other person speaks to you and moves to hand things to you, take them from you, help you or allow you to help, has in it this same germ of irritation for you. And quite possibly you don't know why. For if you begin to analyze orally for the benefit of some friend with whom you are talking it over, you may be surprised to find you can't really name anything dreadful that the Mars owner has done or said or been to you. It's just something, oh, you can't name it, but—. And mostly you can't even get any sympathy on it, either, for people whose Sun positions aren't the same as yours don't see anything in this Mars owner you insist is there. So, as you're a wise person and very intelligent, in the end you reason through your instincts and come first to cease offering resistance, and eventually to relying on the Mars owner for rousing the active side of your nature, and your courage. Which he or she will do, every time; and deeply, for it is your Sun itself which responds, the basis of yourself. And when you get this far, you remember that if your will and action and courage didn't need stimulation, you would have felt nothing whatever when you met this person; it was because you were inclining toward the negative that you resented the effect!

Whenever you're resentful, or feeling low or weak, your Venus takes a hand and steers you into the company of someone whose Jupiter is situated in a comforting aspect thereto. Ah, what nice people there really are in the world! You'd forgotten. How could anyone quarrel? You forget how to yourself at the moment. And humor aside, this person can really be your means of finding your way to the achieving of peace. More, together you and this Jupiter owner can be the means of bringing peace to others; for when you are together there is generated something mutual that neither has when apart. This something attracts others on its wave length, and sets up peace as an objective. If either of you has separately received such help from another in your previous living, this is your chance, and your obligation, to repay by helping others.

Perhaps you noticed at first, perhaps it is born in on you as the relationship grows, that your taste is affected. You begin by a slight criticism of your own aesthetic choices and the next thing you know you're acquiring a broader perspective on arts, crafts, decoration, furnishings, architecture, and clothing. Or on gardens, or human faces. Or anything else that comes up. You can't stay put in the matter of taste, or appreciation of the beautiful; you seem to have to grow. Then you notice that another kind of growth is taking place in your character: you're kinder than you were. Oh, maybe not when this person isn't around; but when you're together all the charity and tolerance and kindness you always knew you were capable of, the love of others, seems to kindle and want expression. Yes, of course, you could easily come to care for the individual who is responsible for all this glow about you, and even if your sex is the same liking will take place. For he or she does more for you than that: your social life expands, somehow you adjust your relations with young people, women, professional men and women, and those engaged in the arts and crafts, onto a happier basis. You learn that you can always count on an optimistic lift through this person. If your love life is in need of harmony, it can be had. In peace times, you would get recurring chances to travel for pleasure through him or her.

It's a happy thing to be a cheerful receiver, isn't it? It's an art, and through your Venus you learn to make it a gracious art.

So, as soon as you have the art well developed, you meet someone whose Neptune sympathizes with your Mars and you teach the art to them!

How you got into the position of being the strong right arm, the champion, the leaned-against, you aren't perfectly sure, but there you are, aren't you? And it isn't so unpleasant. It's a pretty nice sensation to build someone else up, stimulate courage and all that. Somehow it has the effect of making you yourself more independent, more courageous, stronger than you were a moment ago. You know you're willing to do the acting in behalf of the things you mutually hold as ideals—maybe you never were as aggressive before, but you can be now once you're sure the cause is high and fine. And this Neptune owner does have the power to keep you stretching above yourself. You like it. Presently you notice that you are having the effect of stimulating the owner of the Neptune to come right out in speech with cherished visions, to make them definite and frank; and that he or she seems to have more intuitions, more flashes or promptings, than before you met. This is pleasant; the least you can do is help with the needed action and will-power.

At first the relation between you was the attraction of opposites in a sense: the receptive and the positive. But as the law of nature began to work between you, one contributed of positiveness and the other of receptivity or sensitiveness until the balance between you was nearer being a balance. Gradually the Neptune owner took on directness and strength of convictions, gradually you turned your energy potential onto finer and more subtle objectives. There grew emotion between you, yes. If you were of opposite sex, the feeling could have been love; but if not there were moments when genuine emotion infused the contact between you anyway, an emotion compounded of sympathy, appreciation, a wordless conviction that mutual growth was taking place.

It helped you a great deal to have had this contact when presently you met the person whose Neptune antagonized your Mars. For through your bewilderment at being the apparent cause of offense or dislike, through your total surprise at finding yourself so comparatively inept, clumsy, rough, and wrong, you still remembered that formerly your strength was needed and valued, and that then the Neptune owner didn't withdraw, take all these little offenses, get so emotional over what you did or seemed to do or be. You admitted that for some unknown reason you did seem to need toning down; and that your motives and choices did seem comparatively less worthy. You seemed much too personal and maybe vain when in this company. And yet if you let this get you to the extent where you gave up your own direction and will in favor of following or patterning after this Neptune owner, you soon found your new direction very vague indeed and had to find your way back to yourself. If you got angry with this person, and you did presently, again you got that sensation of vagueness, this time as though what you were attacking or challenging was mist or cloud, or unsolid. You realized that meeting and being with this person invariably had the effect of making you exaggerate your frankness into bluntness, your courage into aggressiveness, your strength of will into dominance, and so on; but did you realize that your presence had a somewhat similar effect upon the owner of this Neptune so that he or she began to let emotions go to extremes, began to feel touchy for no good reason, began to feel that most unworthy of motives, contempt? It was so. If both of you had previously had an opposite contact, then it was easier presently to realize what you were missing and seek it. You realized you weren't getting from this person the incentive toward higher and finer ideals obtained from the other Neptune owner, that you weren't developing your real strength and vision as formerly; so you deliberately sought with all your earnest drive and sincerity the genuine inspirations and beauties this other had been withholding through repulse and that you had nearly missed forever. In return, this other gallantly and voluntarily regulated the instinctive emotional reaction until your good points had time to register. But you always felt younger than this person, whether you were in years or not.

That relative age experience was followed by another of mental order, when you met the owner of the Uranus which harmonized with your position of Mercury. Right away you could almost feel your eyes grow brighter. That flooded into your brain which charged it with mental youth, revived it, altered its pace. Indeed, you felt this alteration of pace for the better all along your nervous systems. More interest in life accompanied; you noticed that you picked up more information everywhere you went in this company; that you observed more and differently. To be sure, you also received involuntarily from this person much that he or she had learned or observed, most of which was either new or had never before interested you. Somehow when you were together both noticed that more leads, more news, more facts, were forthcoming. And both noticed that you tended to get around more through each other, in terms of physical movement and travel; and that this resulted in an in-

REVERSES SHIFT NAZI HIGHER-UPS

Much Going on in England Behind Scenes; Military-Political Problems

Situations are developing and have developed that call for careful handling and deciding in the supreme war and political councils of England. Important meetings will be needed, consulting with allies, to get best decisions concerning handling of confidential matters both at home and abroad. These could be related to the foreign underground. They could also have something to do with spies at home. Matters of strategy for the immediate future are definitely on the agenda, possibly for alteration in the light of recent developments. The tendency is to speed up the timetable.

Clashes in Argentina re High Policies

Calls for clarifications, specific announcements of policy, are to be expected in Argentina; but the leaders of high governmental and economic circles will not be too anxious to have their plans known. This is likely to produce popular dissatisfaction and possible demonstration, for feeling will be running high and considerable informal literature will be circulated among the masses. Attempts at forceful control may be resorted to in some places of that nation; if so, it will have the reverse effect of that desired—the people will eventually come out on top, for they want to line up with the democracies. Those at the helm have many facts to face and would do well to be honest.

U. S. Native Fascists on Defensive

Those Americans who are not too whole-heartedly striving for victory, some of whom are in influential places, are now very much on the spot and will have to defend their past actions or run for cover. President Roosevelt is in no mood to tolerate any sort of trifling. The Department of Justice will find much to do concerning the handling of war contracts, profiteering, inspection of materials and weapons for the armed forces. An unpleasant situation, but it is best that it be handled without kid gloves.

Realities of War Cause Much Serious Thinking Here

America in the mass is now entering a new phase, a phase of realization that sacrifice is more than a word. We are waking up to the fact that we are in a very grim business and that sacrifice is a personal experience we must accept if we are to continue a nation.

Anti-Gov't Movements On Increase

Inside Germany is operating at extremely high tension, the sort of tension that makes things snap. There are astrological influences that look very much like important shifts in the identity of the hands that guide German plans and policies this month and next. Opposition to the Nazis is becoming bolder, not only in the enslaved nations but in Germany itself. Hitler is probably the world's most frustrated man, a dangerous psychological state to be in. His vibrations this month are of the type that set off inner repressions and long deferred desires in some violent form. We may therefore expect him to seek more action in almost any direction possible, regardless of the amount of it he is being presented with anyway. His judgment, moreover, is worse than usual, his intuition having left completely.

This is all good for us, for our enemies are playing for keeps and nothing but this sort of realization will carry us through the coming difficult months before final victory is ours. This will develop our desire to get it over with and increase our collective effort.

India Under Extra Heavy War Stresses

Two major forces are now at work over and through India. The first is deep resentment, deeper than usual, over pressures from the government. The other is a distinct desire to get the war out of the way. This latter is shared by all who are present but not native, and we shall probably see strides made in the direction of Burma and Indo-China by the United Nations, a considerable portion of which may be French. There is an optimistic note concerning some of the local problems, and they may be brought much closer to solution during this and the next two months through the cooperation of local representatives and the British officials. Other officials of the United Nations may be instrumental in helping to establish satisfactory conditions, too. But absolute and final solution of the India problem is still in the future.

China Faces Difficult Winter, But U. N. Help Continues to Come

Inner political conditions in China during the coming six months call for the wisest and most efficient handling by all concerned, for there will be different schools of thought concerning military and economic policies, with some of the political mixed in. Two favorable considerations are helpful, however; the fact that Japan's main force will probably be very busy elsewhere; and the fact that the United Nations will render

Opportunity of Allies to Put Japan on Defensive for Long Time

Japan continues very vulnerable throughout October, especially around its vital centers, and our best efforts to deliver heavy blows will never have counted for more than they will right now. The Japanese mind is not going to be conquered quickly, and this month sees it in full possession of its belief that it can win this war. But now is our opportunity

This Winter Less Frigid Than Last

The fuel problem may be more difficult this coming winter than it was last year, but there will be some compensation in the fact that general average temperatures will be warmer than in the 1942-1943 winter. It is also probable that most places will have a mild Fall and that the coldest weather will be late in making its appearance, thus shortening the bitterest part of the season. If you don't notice these facts at the time, look it up in the official weather summaries after it is over. And don't take risks with your health.

to knock them off balance, to put them on the defensive and keep them that way just as long as possible. The vibrations of Hirohito show him as willing to pay plenty for victory and realization of his nation's true condition will not be apparent to him or to his staff immediately. This leaves no method but force and more force from the United Nations to impress Nippon eventually.

Russia and Turkey Seek Solutions

It is quite probable that Russia and Turkey will see eye to eye on many of their mutual relationships, feeling that to a large extent they are in the same boat together, at least for some time to come. This may mean that Turkey will furnish material and personal aid with the aim of shortening the war and thus gain both immediately and in the post-war settlements. The populace of Turkey is now overwhelmingly pro-Ally and would like nothing better than a clear-cut victory quickly. There are some higher up, however, who do not share this view—possibly for personal reasons—who are now doing all they can to obstruct aid to the Allies. But the balance tips toward our side.

The Future of France

By C. A. Muzzy

Some people are thinking of the liberation of France in terms of the inevitable celebration, the emotional jamboree that will certainly occur just as soon and just as certainly as the iron heel of Germany is lifted. They think of it as something like the familiar moronic love story that ends when somebody says, "I do!"

But the future of France is not to be one long honeymoon, beginning with the celebration of freedom, any more than our hero and heroine are guaranteed a life of undiluted joy merely because of the orange blossoms and flower girls.

Granted that France will again be in position to guide its own destiny, and perhaps sooner than some pessimists think, what lies ahead? What will be the problems? Reconstruction? Of course. But what problems that can be foreseen only by means of astrology?

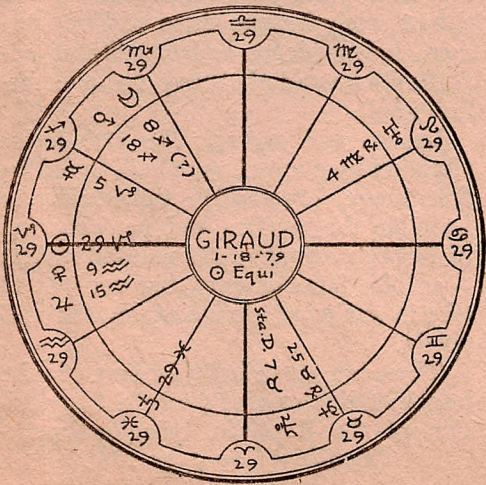

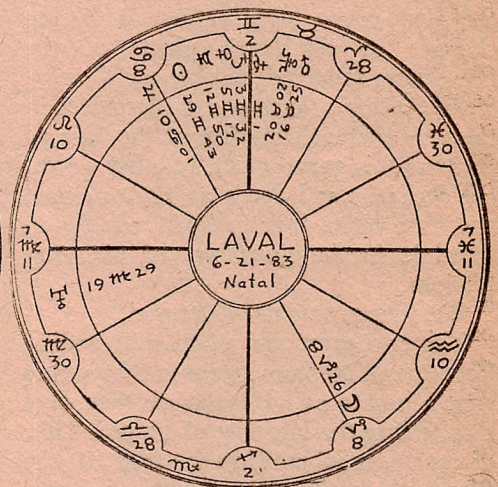

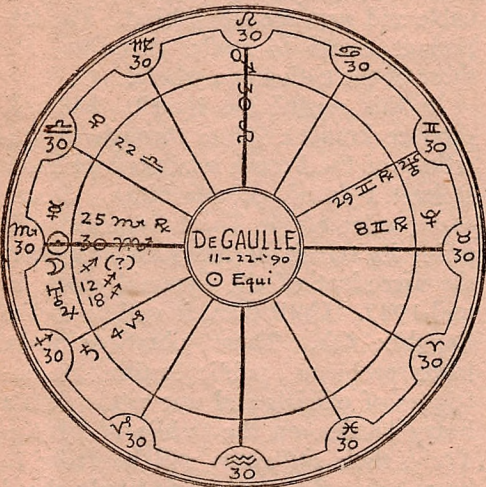

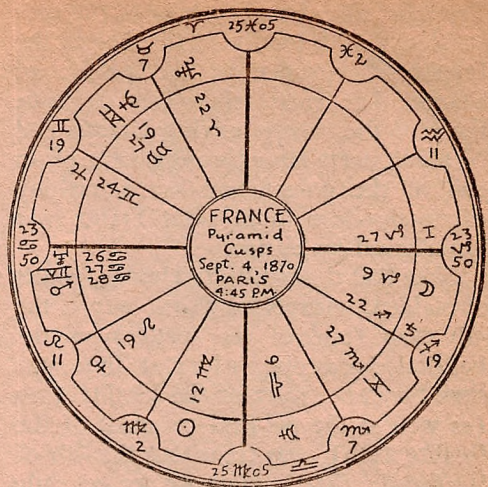

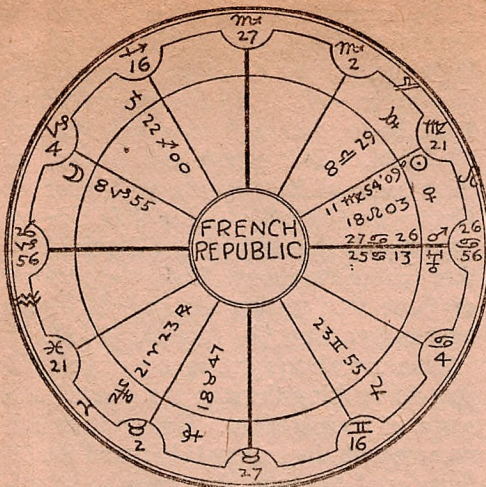

The first thing that strikes one when he looks at the horoscope of the French Republic is that the Moon is trine the Sun, as well as that the luminaries are the joint rulers of the house of war, relations with other nations and inner legal problems. The Sun is not only ruler of the war 7th, it is one of the occupants of this house, making it doubly significant. But the trine aspect in one of eventual harmony, promising the French nation many survivals that would otherwise not emerge from such a political horoscope as theirs. The Moon's occupancy of the secretive, intriguing and often scandalous 12th has kept France in constant turmoil ever since the organization of the present government on September 4, 1870, 4:45 p.m. Yet the support of the trine to the Sun has enabled this nation to struggle out of the numerous crises that it is so prone to get into.

Additional evidence of the French proclivity for crisis is loudly proclaimed by the conjunction of Mars-Uranus at the cusp of the war 7th. In addition to the highly explosive nature of these planets when joined together, in France's chart of government they rule the governmental 10th and the intercepted sign in the house of the people, Aquarius in the 1st. It is not that this chart has produced the French temperament thus so clearly described, but that the French temperament agreed so completely with the vibrations of the moment that they chose these vibrations as the horoscope of their political environment so long as they function as the Third Republic.

Born of war, this horoscope attracts the further problems of war through the peculiarly tempestuous French character shown in their history, as well as in this Mars-Uranus conjunction. This is a major problem of the French, one that must be solved within their own nature before they can proceed to the integration which every nation recognizes as its eventual objective. It is this conjunction that shows both the cause and the cure of difficult international relations; in a national horoscope as in that of an individual, the 7th house testimonies are ever the need and the signpost for understanding the other side as well as one's own.

In order fully to understand the implications of a political horoscope one must view it against the larger and more permanent background of the Pyramid Locality cusps of the nation's capital. The Mars-Uranus conjunction and the political 7th cusp of the Third Republic falls on the all-important ascendant of the place, adding to the testimony of France's need for working through all the changes on the theme of pleasant and unpleasant foreign relations.

Even a brief check-up of the planetary positions at the so-called fall of this nation on June 22, 1940, shows that this Pyramid-political chart is entitled to our study in estimating what lies ahead for France. At that time the violent Mars was conjunction the Pyramid ascendant and the Mars-Uranus conjunction of the Republic, Mars being co-ruler of the governmental 10th locally. This showed the threatened violence to the people of France, but more significant transits, those of the slowly moving Uranus and Neptune, were strongly suggestive of an end of the government—or something extremely close to it. But France was again saved by a trine.

Note that the transiting Uranus, planet of sudden, unexpected shifts, was at the 4th cusp (end of the matter) of the political horoscope, while at the same time Neptune, ruler of the locality 10th (as well as the political occupant of the locality 10th), was transiting the 4th of the locality chart! Here we see not only the two prime signifiers of lasting changes in significant places of the horoscopes involved, but we see them as significant by rulership and placement in the very charts themselves at the time of forming this government. In other words, the decisions and deeds of 1870 ripened and bore bitter fruit in 1940, exactly on schedule in the timetables of planetary motions.

But France was not destroyed.

The two great and ponderous bodies, Uranus and Neptune, were in that saving trine aspect to each other when they were thus testing the integrity of France. This, of course, is inherent in the fact that the French themselves, consciously or unconsciously, chose the inception of the Third Republic at a time when the 4th cusps of the political and the locality charts were in that trine. This is one of the most preserving of relationships, as has already been amply demonstrated by the organization of the Free French and the continuation of government in exile.

When a nativity or political horoscope contains an outstanding configuration, such as the Mars-Uranus conjunction in the French chart, any future recurrence of that configuration on an important position in the nativity or political horoscope brings out the promises of the original testimony. The September 9, 1943, conjunction of Mars-Uranus in Gemini 9° fell in the political 4th of the Republic, and on the natal Pluto of De-Gaulle, as well as on the governmental 10th, Pluto, Saturn, Venus and Mercury of Laval. The repeat conjunction of these same violent planets will occur on December 30, 1943, and will fall in approximately the same place (Gemini 6°), threatening the careers, if not the persons, of those men during the period till the next conjunction (in August, 1945).

Men are always the agents of celestial powers working through the major horoscope of their nations. Unless they harmonize with the national chart and the influences of the time, they cease to be valuable and soon are left behind. The important charts to study, therefore, are those of the nation as a whole.

In this regard the transits that will produce France's future through the reactions of the French temperament show at least a decade of difficulties. Saturn alone, ruler of the Third Republic, will finish its transit of the 12th and enter the ascendant of the Pyramid chart, in mid-1945. Until then, it will be in the Republic 6th. These vibrations make labor problems, public health, the intrigues of officials and war settlements a heavy burden on the public of France. Truly, their sufferings will be easier to bear during the years immediately ahead almost solely because there will be freedom, independence and equality of opportunity instead of slavery, but nonetheless severe.

Uranus will continue the 12th house vibration long after Saturn has entered the first house (Pyramid), threatening to scramble the motives and performances of France's economic and political leaders—an old, familiar story, but not easy to take in straitened circumstances that will obtain.

There is a ray of light, however, in the transit of Jupiter over the natal Sun position of the Republic, bringing oppor-thing would be all right, is wrong. The great mind would not get further than the little mind; the great mind only functions in a world of great minds; there is no greater waste in nature than to put an intellect where it is not understood. Understanding is not conferred by the presence of greatness, but by the beginning of greater understanding within. The idea that someone could come along and give us a political or educational system that would solve everything is one of the day-dreams of the uninformed. We have never been without a philosophy that would solve everything; we have never for a moment been without the knowledge of true education. We have never for a moment been without Truth. All we need to live by is with us, all the time. But it is going to take several million years to discover that; and the one thing that can make us discover that is to become aware of the necessity of it ourselves.

A nation goes out of incarnation when the entities that are in it pass out of their cycle of manifestation; but it does not necessarily follow that when a nation ceases the necessity for that experience in the world ceases. It merely means that the cycles of the entities requiring that experience has completed its incarnation and there will not be repetition until the time these entities have to return again. So the mere fact, for example, that war ends in one generation does not mean there will be no more wars. Conceivably we could stop war for the interval between the recurrence of a cycle; say, for five hundred years, and still have another war at the end of five hundred years. If, for example, entities with war-like temperament move on a five-hundred-year cycle, and if they all pass out of incarnation, it would be five hundred years before they would be back—presuming they were all working on one cycle, which is not so. Or if in evolution we could get rid of the lesser groups, and only the one major group remained, then we could have five hundred years before war would come again. But, wars do not come from conditions in this world; they come from conditions in the spiritual entity of the individual. Therefore, nothing can be done physically to stop war.

This might sound discouraging to the peace movements, but the peace movements have had so many disappointments that one more will not count. The inconceivable thing is that human beings should be optimistic enough to believe they would accomplish peace by getting together and voting for it. The idea is superb, but not practical. The only way that peace can come is to break down the possessive and economic qualities of the entities; and anyone who thinks to do that in a hurry will have another think coming.

If we have millions of years to work out the problem, it does not mean that those who have already accomplished its solution as individuals are going to be taken out and shot because someone else has not. Nothing could be more erroneous than that conclusion, for in karma although ten thousand shall fall on the right hand and ten thousand on the left hand, the just man shall not be moved—no one can suffer for a vice he does not participate in himself. No one can actually be destroyed or injured by the karma of others. The difficulty of the matter, although we do not admit it, is that we share in that karma because we are all combative. Before we were actually at war we had parallel systems of psychology, and therefore were under the effect of war. The man who on this side of the ocean said, "Why do we have to pay for a war in Europe?" should have known he was due to pay for something he probably would not like to admit he has, and that is, destructive tendencies in himself. The destructive tendency may not be showing at the moment and he may work out his private war solely in the form of a temper fit, but he has it just the same, and a bad disposition is destructive; and it is no less serious in Joe Doaks, the unknown man, than it is in Adolph Hitler.

A great many people who do not like Adolph Hitler's disposition have dispositions just as bad. They are not dictators; but a man does not have to be a dictator to be unpleasant. A normally honest, hard-working member of the community can have a disposition that would not stop at anything. Some, by peculiar privilege or because they are a little more like everybody else than some others, are elevated to high positions where their bad dispositions become a universal menace; but any bad disposition, no matter who has it, is a universal menace; the individual trying to dominate a traffic stream who runs his automobile into someone else's is in his way as much a menace as Marshal Goering. Most of us are a lot alike in details, and in the very details we least admire. A bad disposition, no matter who has it, is part of the common bad disposition of the world, and whenever the world gets into shot and shell upheaval, all those who have a certain temperament have to suffer in common, regardless of any personal blame coming to them, or complete blamelessness for the actual clashes that history will record as bringing on the interlude of blood and sweat and tears. Individual humans are basically to blame for things they do not suspect at all. No one is suffering for somebody else's mistake, but we love to think we are; it makes us feel more virtuous. Of chaos we would rather believe the universe dishonest in the administration of justice, than that we are inescapably responsible for our own actions.

This realization gives a very good groundwork upon which to build our philosophy of life, teaches us the reason for things as they are, and explains to us how it is that although everything may seem to be black at any one particular time, there is no blackness.

Into different racial eras and times the cycles of entities are constantly being evolved, to remain until a group of them has passed through its cycle, then to be submerged for centuries, only to pop up somewhere else. The great artistic cycle of Michelangelo and Leonardo da Vinci, and Raphael has not come back again; but it will pop up; it is about time for it to come. The great cycle of classical learning will be back again. Everything is the rebirth of qualities seeking the perfection of themselves, in a process that goes on age after age. Nations that have had a distinctive psychological viewpoint will be reborn—can it be doubted that the democracy of ancient Greece lives again in the democracy of America? Democracy, as we know it, could have had its origin in freedom-loving Greece, but it probably went back much farther than that. The distinction of freedom-loving Greece nevertheless rises again in the democracy of America, its very name derived from the demokratia of Greece, meaning the authority of the people to rule. Regardless of what happens to any democratic nation, democracy goes on.

And that is the kind of world intelligent people like to live in, the only kind suitable for the wise—a world in which justice is fairly administered, with privileges for none and equal opportunity for all. But we cannot have a beautiful world until we have beautiful people in it. What the world bestows is not that which gives happiness or beauty to life; it is what we give to the world.

It's An Astrologer's Life!

Pages from a Diary

1st: In our everlasting efforts to learn and attempt, my family and I have been brought up against a physical opposition that led us to books on anatomy and physical function, and from there back again to astrology. I refer to the problem of the negative hand, usually the left hand. In attempting arts or crafts where both hands are either mandatory or helpful, one is led to realize the disparity between the function of one's positive hand and of one's negative. (We are all right handed, and must train the negative left.) Wishing to know more about this anatomical fact, we got books on the subject; from which we learned that both man's body and man's brain are in a sense asymmetrical, and that this fact accounts for the circular motion followed by either man or beast when unable to see. (Experiments have proved that a blindfolded person cannot cross a bridge without touching the railing on one side or the other; that lost men always travel in circles; that wild animals circle around their residence area, returning to their starting point; and that if an automobile driver were to close his eyes and try to steer straight ahead, he would be off the road in approximately 20 seconds.) We learned that the two halves of a human face are unequal: that the right side of a face is usually harder—and for this reason painters and photographers try to portray women from the left. We learned that the brain is divided into two perfectly symmetrical halves, right and left; but that the right side of the brain is subordinate in function. That the left side of the brain in right-handed people directs and controls the speech, the reading, writing, calculating, remembering words, forming words, remembering numbers and ideas, and even that man thinks with the left side of his brain. The nerve tracts that connect the brain with the body cross at the level of the neck and so control opposite sides of the body.

We learned that medical science tentatively relates left-handedness (that is, having the right side of the brain positive) to special talent. That Michelangelo, Leonardo da Vinci, Holbein, Menzel, and many other geniuses were left-handed. And that medical science says, "We are ignorant of the cause of asymmetry." (See Man in Structure and Function, by Fritz Kahn, M.D., published by Knopf; an unusually readable and interesting book for the layman.)

Well, I believe that astrology could point out the cause. We astrologers already know that Mars rules the left side of the head, and that Mercury rules the right side. We know that Mars, because it rules the physical instincts and passions, is more positive and dominant an influence upon man at this stage of his evolution than is the planet of reason and thought, Mercury. For this reason the Mars side of the head is positive in man at this time, and also the Mars side of the body—the "good right arm."

Manly P. Hall, in his The Occult Anatomy of Man, says: "I have in my possession a very remarkable skull which originally rested on the shoulders of a homicide. . . . This individual had a grudge which he nursed very carefully.

... This person swore that when he met a certain man again he would cut his heart out and throw it in his face. A number of years passed; his hatred grew; and at last, meeting his enemy, he attacked him and fulfilled his threat. He was hanged for the crime; but the skull bearing witness to the brain reveals a very interesting fact. As the result of his hatred and the rulership of Mars which grew out of that hatred, the left rear side of the brain is fully twice the size of the right side. The individual allowed Mars to control his nature. . . ."

It has already been proposed by a certain group that children be trained from infancy to use their negative hand equally with their positive; and as philosopher-astrologers, we agree with this as principle. Personally, my family and I have had to undertake the task in behalf of our self-development plans (especially in the cause of music); but even without this incentive we would have undertaken it deliberately after learning that by this means we would be growing up to the planet Mercury. At the moment we are industriously teaching ourselves to write with our left hands, adding this to our artistic training of them.

5th: Translating the circular motion of the physical body noted on the 1st into higher terms, notice that "the murderer always returns to the scene of his crime," describing a psychological circular motion. As we approach old age, we instinctively return to our childhoods, don't we, describing the circular life motion? In the course of those lives, don't we many times realize that in some way we have come again upon a former experience, or returned to previous cause? And do not our errors return to us? This is the sacred circle of philosophy. The zodiac is one.

7th: By the way, I noticed the other day in a scientific book by a physical scientist, the statement that if the three points of the triangle are added, the result is 180. Mathematicians are familiar with this of course, but I am not strong in this subject, and didn't know it. Now that I do, I see in it a reason why the opposition aspect in astrology has fundamental harmony while the square has not. The 180° opposition is the sum of the trines.

9th: There's a thought about Saturn. Notice that every time we have a major aspect from this planet (trines excepted) we have something sheared away from us, don't we? But what kind of a something? If we think back over all these experiences, we will begin to realize that everything removed from us had a common denominator: i.e., it was unessential and non-enduring. All that would stand the test of time Saturn left us. It is that Saturn at all times is trying to bring about the state of consciousness at death—which it rules—and reduce our accumulations of excess baggage to just that which we can take with us. The enduring.

11th: When two people marry who are not astrologers and who know only that they are natives of "harmonious" signs, it bewilders them to find later that they just don't unify as effortlessly as they were told the trine signs would enable them to do. We know that the other planets in the two charts can be responsible for this, of course; but there is another reason. It is that the apparently trine, or harmonious, natal Suns were not trine at all by degree but only by sign: in fact, they were square. I had such a pair in for consultation lately. The woman's Sun was in 27° of Taurus, while the man's was in 2° of Virgo. They were utterly astonished when I tried to explain that union in harmonious signs wasn't guaranteed by the signs themselves: "but they had read it in a twenty-five cent horoscope," they told me. I explained that their Sun positions still had something of essential harmony because of the nature of the zodiacal signs, but that the angle, or aspect, was otherwise.

14th: Recently I made application for an instruction permit to learn to drive a car. The law of the city stipulates that the applicant for this shall take the same examination as that given the applicant for a license, with the exception of the driving test itself. For an instruction permit, you must take the eye test, and also pass the examination on traffic laws, etc. When I ran up against this my first reaction was, how unreasonable to demand that the person who wants to learn to drive should be expected to know how first! I recalled my youthful efforts to get experience in a certain job which could only be had if one had had experience! My first reaction having no effect upon the law, however, I had perforce to return home with a manual of driving and traffic laws to study, before returning again the next day to take the test. In the meantime I mulled over the experience. There was a simile for it in the back of my brain somewhere, wasn't there? Yes. It came to the front. Philosophically, one can only obtain peace from Venus if one has previously achieved peace in oneself; one can only obtain wisdom from Jupiter if one has earned wisdom. Or in different words, "To them that hath shall be given." It is the law of similars attracting. We see it every day in the fact that one only gets friends by being a friend; that one only gets a happy marriage by being a partner who gives happiness, and so on.

17th: Speaking of happiness, I wonder why more people don't realize consciously the most vital truth that happiness is a positive. Once this is realized, happiness is obtainable. Happiness can never be attracted by wishing, regretting, begging, hoping, or drifting in expectancy. Only a positive life draws happiness. And a positive life consists of a positive inner attitude, positive right outward action, and a wholly positive and right goal. The harmony of being in accord with nature's laws which is summed up in the axiom, "Nature sustains the planner," inevitably results in increasing happiness. Our present concepts of happiness are those of Venus, aren't they? (We haven't as a majority risen to Neptune yet.) And Venus as happiness must be balanced by Mars the positive as action, from across the zodiac.

20th: I have often wondered about and not yet found the answer to the meaning of double planetary rulerships of houses. The two houses ruled by Mars are quincunx each other; the two houses ruled by Venus are also quincunx; those of Saturn are semi-sextile. But when we come to the houses ruled by the two mental planets, Mercury and Jupiter, we find them to be square. Why? Nothing is accidental.

26th: All through this second world war we have been noticing in papers and magazines, books too, slight but significant references to an eternal truth familiar to occult philosophers. The truth that fighting doesn't end anything. Fighting as itself is under Mars, regardless of its causes and motives which may be under any planet. And the aggressive fight, or in another word, war, is the province of the Aries Mars. Aries is the first sign of the sacred circle. The 1st house corresponds to every type of beginning, from youth to causes initiated. This is why Mars, as Aries, starts wars or fights, but has no connection with their finish. That "fighting doesn't end anything" is not seen by the Aries Mars, because only the beginning is a concern. But the other Mars, the Scorpio Mars, knows that fighting doesn't end anything but life—that fights or wars end only in death. Or in revenge. For Scorpio as Mars rules revenges and retaliations, and for this reason one war just breeds another. And there is no end but death. Apparently. It will be only after the human race has risen to understand the higher meaning of the Scorpio Mars as the will toward redemption (the occult 8th, Scorpio) that the vicious circle of wars will finally cease in regeneration of the Mars impulse.

Solving Your Interpretation Problems

If puzzled in reading your own or a friend's chart, select the configuration most difficult to you and submit it to Mrs. Kelley. Please do not ask her to interpret an entire horoscope—be reasonable. By Agnes T. Kelley

"I've been greatly interested in psychology and philosophy; I am no longer content to just read and study, I want more from my observations. Astrology seems a combination of both. How and where can I learn to be a good astrologer? I am seventeen, born August 21, 1926, 4:30 a.m."

E. K.

Not so long from now, E. K., when you have learned to set up a chart, you will realize why I couldn't give you a detailed and definite answer based on your chart about your occupational range. It is because you didn't give me your place of birth: this establishes your angle to the heavens, or what astrologers call your ascendant. Without it, I am unable to read your 10th house, that of occupation.

But I can still tell you several things about your planetary positions. You have an unusually tight-knit chart. That means that your planetary grouping is not scattered, but is in the nature of a unit focused by all your planets being in aspect and tied also by dispositorship. Your four way satellitium in Leo is squared on one side by Mars, on the other by Saturn, these planets being opposed; and is itself opposed by Jupiter which is semi-sextile to the sextile of your Moon and Uranus. You won't follow me at this minute, I know; but as you study you will realize what I mean. Your chart shows strength, action, and intensity. Your character is not without its inner problems; but these very problems are sufficiently strong to drive you to struggle and accomplish. Your essential character—steadiness, depth—which is ruled by Saturn, being challenged (opposition) by your will power and action drive, ruled by Mars, sets up a conflict which will always keep you going, keep you doing something, striving—especially as these square your Sun (individuality) itself, and your Neptune (your ideals), your Mercury (thought, reason) and your Venus (feeling, love of beauty). Jupiter's opposition from the sign ruling astrology, Aquarius, disposed by a semi-sextile Uranus in the psychic sign Pisces, is a driving force of equal intensity. However, E., never let yourself go to any extreme; this is your greatest weakness. Strive all your life for moderation, reasonableness, balance, the middle of the scale. Your failures, if any, will come as the result of your excesses and extremes of intensity, optimism, or inability to let go.

From your time of birth it is possible that you could have Cancer rising. Of course this is not the case. Your birth time gives you a Moon, and this influences your life. Your chart is your have that Uranus of yours in the 9th house, a good position for any astrologer.

Before you enter the world of astrology, please be advised of its external weaknesses in this present decade. You may know that no laws govern its practice, and as a result there are many, many hopelessly incompetent people calling themselves astrologers. These work harm. Even though you are only a young man of seventeen, E., you must use all your powers of reason to decide for yourself whether the astrologers you may meet are of sufficient intellectual understanding and power to be listened to and learned from. Decide on the basis of psychology and philosophy, the two subjects that have attracted you at this early age and which show you have mental potential. Keep your own ideals high. You will, because you have Neptune (ideals) in close conjunction your natal Sun itself.

I do not know an astrologer in your present place of residence. Therefore I suggest instead that you acquire back issues of this magazine in which lesson material appeared, and which you will receive postpaid for a quarter each; or that you invest fifty cents in Mr. Wynn's "Your Future," now out of print but which teaches you how to set up a chart. In addition to this, you will need textbooks for interpretation. I suggest these, as you can acquire them: "Keywords," by Manly P. Hall, "From Pioneer to Poet," by Isabelle Pagan, "Astrology, Its Practical Application," translated by E. Parker. These will start you. Then if you wish to acquire the back issues of this magazine which contained the two series by Rita Doane Williams, you could do so one at a time if you wished. The series were, "The Horoscope Detective," which will help you identify the planetary influences on people before you know their birth data, and "How to Prove Your Horoscope," a great help in rectifying any tentative horoscope. If there is no occult book store in your community, you can send for books to the Harmony Book Shop, 112 West 49th Street, New York City. For your philosophy, E., I strongly suggest that you get in touch with Manly P. Hall, and acquire his inexpensive pamphlets and books little by little. His address is on his adv. in the back of this issue.

And best wishes to you in your studies.

"Please interpret partnership indications (business). My Moon conjunct Jupiter in Aries in 7th, proposed partner's Saturn conjunct these, etc. Was born December 31, 1916, 11:30 p.m., Chicago; partner January 28, 1910, 12:04 p.m., Cairo, Ill. How do you read these indications?"

M. La C.

They can be read two ways, and since I have no means of telling from your little note anything about the stage of evolution reached by either of you, your decision will be entirely your own. You understand that exactly the same stimulus from the planets has a totally different effect upon two people at widely separated stages of evolutionary development. Lower, this stimulus may be "fatal," in the sense that the native has developed no great amount of intellect, philosophy, self-control, maturity with which to make use of the vibrations instead of being ruled by them, and consequently reacts in a way that can be definitely predicted. Higher, no such prediction can be made, for the inner adjustment to planetary influence enables such a native to make use of what stimulates in wise and constructive ways.

Just where you two are in the scale being unknown, I can say that the combination of planetary stimuli from both charts can either work out as failure attended by many problems, or as a very valuable experience for both in developing justice, cooperation, tolerance, and mutual self-mastery.

Perhaps it will work out as some of both.

Your proposed partner's Saturn dominates the partnership. It conjuncts your Moon-Jupiter, as you say, presumably in your 7th (a few minutes earlier you would have had Virgo rising, not Libra, so we cannot be sure) and it squares your Sun, Mars, Mercury in Capricorn in your 4th. At birth your partner had this Saturn squaring her own Neptune and opposing her own Jupiter. All of this makes the alliance quite difficult. In addition her Mars squares your Mercury and Neptune, her Uranus falls on your Mars, and your Uranus falls on her natal Sun.

Now if we read these indications for immature development, we would look forward to some explosive and sudden experiences, some secretive experiences, and some experiences of loss or injustice. If we read them for a higher development, we expect that both partners will stimulate each other toward new experiences, new growth, new attitudes and ideas; and toward a deepening and maturing of character through the mutual problems and tests encountered in the course of partnership.

Where do you both fit in? This must be your decision. You are a heavily Saturnine woman anyway, and for this reason such an experience may be exactly what you need at this time of your life. Any Saturnine weaknesses in your nature will be uncovered and tested by alliance with this native. Can you meet this constructively and do you wish to do so? The reward would be inner strength not to be gained any other way. But if you could not handle it, the result would be an experience of delays, disappointments, loss.

Realize this while you think over your decision: nothing happens to us by accident. Your meeting with this woman and coming to the point of entering partnership with her has been part of the plan of nature for your development and hers. But you have free will liberty to decide that you will postpone such an experience till later if you wish. We can postpone, but we cannot dodge. You can either work through it now, at this your first opportunity, or you can put it off and later meet the same situation with a different personnel and different location.

As partners, you two would either never make a go of it from the start, or you would find it hard ever to separate—the alliance would last over a protracted time period.

to the key words of these elements, as well as of the houses. President Roosevelt's 1-9 (Fire) and 2-6 (Earth) show growth through deep perception and practical applications as his needs.

The human being, you, I, the other fellow, has the opportunity to choose within his patterns. Analysis of his patterns does not reveal which choice he will make, for the soul resides above the horoscope. But when the higher Self operates in this sphere it must do so through its patterns—which is what all of us are doing. The understanding of our patterns, therefore, is the understanding of our opportunity and our capacity. With this knowledge we can all accomplish more, quicker and better dividends from this life we are trying to live successfully.

Ask Wynn

In this department, Wynn will reply to as many as space will permit. His answers are his own opinions and reactions to your representations and should be taken in the light of what you think they are worth. No charge is made for this service, so please do not send money or anything else of value. To do so would make it impossible to reply to you. Send your birth date, place, year and if possible, hour, together with your sex. Give complete data of others inquired about. Ask only one specific, non-fatalistic question. It will be impossible to answer by mail. Your name will not be mentioned—every letter addressed to "Ask Wynn," Box 9758, Los Feliz Sta., Los Angeles, Calif., will be treated with absolute confidence whether you receive a reply or not.

How to Have

Dear Wynn: Have had 3 marriage failures in 10 years; and I tried so hard each time. My first husband, born January 9, 1907, was a highly intelligent man with lots of honesty and trust, but bossed me until I couldn't stand it and got a divorce. Then married a football captain, born July 15; all we had was a physical attraction, so I know why I didn't make a go of that one, was never really in love with him. Then a few years later married the sort of fellow I thought I could love the rest of my life, and did continue to love him, still love him; but he went off the deep end for a girl of 19. We were happy until he met this girl. I think he really loved the girl. So I consented to the divorce as I want him to be happy. His birthday is March 31, 1916. He is a big, handsome, good-looking man with typically Aries dash. But he can dish out some of the awfulest things for a girl to take, and I took it until I lost him. Now he wants to come back but I can't trust him any more. I don't think it would work out. I am going with a fourth man who says he has loved me for three years silently, he was born March 2, 1897. We are good pals, have much in common, but I don't know how marriage will turn out.

I can't seem to trust my luck in marriage. So I thought I'd write to ask you what did I have to attract a man yet I can't stay married for very long. The funny part of it is I like married life, but something always happens. I never have any children, it doesn't seem to worry me much; I'd be proud if I had a baby, but I don't grieve over it. Most of all I want security and love in my marriage. What is it keeps my life down? Why am I such a failure? I was born November 29, 1913, before midnight, Nashville, Tenn.

And all I ever really wanted from life was to be happy.

MRS. B. F.

(Reply): "Boss," said the next man in the breadline to the ladler out of the free soup, "all I ever wanted from life was to be rich."

"And to think," sighed the frivolous know-nothing to the great scholar, "that all I ever wanted from life was to be well educated."

Ad infinitum.

It's very simple. It's so simple that people everywhere trying "to understand" overlook it altogether in their search for a subtle, complex, intricate reason why they "failed."

To have something, be something.

That's all.

What you are brings you what you get.

If I didn't know you were more intelligent than that, I'd almost think you were saying that your modest, humble, demand of "just happiness" from life was surely little enough?

Happiness and wealth and knowledge take all the earning we can do, and usually more. They are the prizes of a life well and intelligently lived.

Of course, if all we were asking for was just the greatest prize, that's all—

If you're actually dissatisfied with yourself, Mrs. F., then you have a lot of work ahead of you in beginning to earn something. If all you feel is that you don't see why you shouldn't just get all the good things out of life, don't read the rest—someone among the audience may want to.

To begin with, you have not bothered much with an education. In reprinting your letter its form is necessarily changed. Your spelling is very bad, your grammar the same. If you care so little about being anything that you don't even bother to spell and write, how about reading? Do you know anything? Have you a perfectly empty head as far as information, culture, acquaintance with the intellectual progress of the race, is concerned? Is it possible that after your perfectly capable physical body has ceased to be an emphasis in marriage that you have nothing else to offer?

Ever think about it?

Having asked "just all the great prizes from life, that's all" without a qualm, are you also in the habit of asking that the man give you everything you can want without your making any effort whatsoever to have anything to offer him?

You are a Sagittarian woman, born in the sign having such weakness as its lower vibrations. To expect, to assume, to take for granted, even to demand. But your own part?

Having Venus in the sign of sex, Scorpio, sextile your disposing Jupiter on one side and trine your Mars and Neptune on the other, you may have accented that which costs you nothing and actually gives pleasure too, sex, to the point where you believe that it is all you need in life to get everything with.

Has it been?

All right then, turn over some new leaves.

You will have to work, hard, for your results from men: you have your natal Sun in opposition to Saturn, meaning that the Sun (your relations with the men in your life) is going to be continually disappointed and thwarted through Saturn until you begin to conform to Saturn's demands. And those are effort, patience, endurance, constancy, high aim, and above all work, work, work.

For every little thing you do to better yourself, to make yourself more of a person, to know more, think more, be more, grow, you will begin to notice results from life—or more literally from Saturn, for that planet is painfully just.

I suspect that at present your mind works very erratically, through lack of discipline and accustomed concentration, for when you reached for a piece of note paper to communicate with me, instead of starting at the left and continuing to the right margin, you began to write at the extreme upper left-hand corner, where you could get only one word in, and went on that way biasly across the page, your lines straggling, sprawling, drooping, unpurposed, unplanned, unfocused. The mind that so expressed itself must be the same.

The place to begin is where it is most needed. The time to begin is the present. Don't regret that you didn't begin sooner, it wastes time. Begin.

If you were to marry this fourth man tomorrow, just as you now are, your horoscope would continue to work and the eventual result would be the same.

If you want different results, start the work of getting them.

To have something more, be something more.

Your Saturn is retrograde; that means that your experiences with men will return, and return, and return, until.

All Our Yesterdays

Dear Wynn: Your answer to Mrs. O. S. in June interests me (I always read the ASK department). "All my life" . . . too, I have wanted to be a writer; more, I have been a writer. By Wynn, except for a few minor exceptions, I never get anything published. I use a card index filing system and for two years have sent out my mss., but they always come back, often with a note saying the material is good but just not suitable. Think this is because I can't keep off tabus for the magazine public. I have to write what seems true to me, otherwise I'm dry as a bone—no ideas, no flow of words. I have taken courses in fiction writing, get the highest grades. In school I had top grades in composition and literature.

I have to write. I can't help myself. A bee stings me in the form of an idea for a story or a poem and I have to scratch the place with a pen.

Here's what I want to know: does my horoscope show any chance of publication? Whatever your analysis may be I shall continue to write. It keeps me observant, alert, continually under the discipline of study and self-improvement and promises to pay in dividends of pleasure as long as I live.

I have studied astrology and can erect a horoscope. I was born January 12, 1904, Madison County, Indiana, 5 a.m. Is Aquarius intercepted in 2nd with Mercury, Saturn and Mars therein the reason I have not thus far reached publication?

My husband has Uranus in his 7th and

I have Neptune there; yet I do not know another married couple as harmonious as we are and as much in love after 16 years of marriage. We are both students of philosophy of long standing.

I know whatever recognition I may achieve as an author will be only what I have earned and if it never comes in this life I will have earned that, too. I am willing to accept this now and do not feel discouraged and frustrated as I did in my twenties. I know I have gained much in trying.

MRS. G. E. G.

(Reply): Had you ever thought of Mozart as frustrated? Can you picture an inhibited Michelangelo?

It's hard to, yet before the personalities we knew as "Mozart" and "Michelangelo" entered upon their lives as child prodigies, they had worked through other lives of preparation. Lives in no way distinguished except for the faithful effort put into them; the effort of laying the foundation for the coming life of mastery of one more art, or science.

Go a little farther in your imagination. Right now, in this world of today, are personalities struggling with one or other of the arts or sciences, leading lives in no way distinguished except for the faithful effort that is being put into them. You are one of them.

After a certain amount of study and application and effort and trying, we at last enter upon the life in which these particular efforts culminate. After that life is over, we begin again next time with a different art or science. When Mozart and Michelangelo return in their next incarnation, they will apply themselves to different branches of learning; enriched by the efforts each made in music and sculpture respectively in the form of being better able to learn. It is not the specific mastery that enriches us, but the development of our faculties gained through struggle for this mastery. We carry over from life to life our ability to learn, to think, to do, and we apply it in changing ways.

Every one of us must at last master all arts and all sciences. Until this task is accomplished, we do not approach perfection. We gain ultimate wisdom through mastering all forms of wisdom.

In the case of the personality we knew as Michelangelo, we are entitled to believe that he was further advanced in evolution than was the personality we knew as Mozart; for his ability to learn, carried over from life to life, was so much greater that it enabled him to be sculptor, poet, scientist, painter and architect, all in the one life.

It is for these reasons that we waste no time even if we begin a study at the age of ninety-six. Not one iota of genuine effort is ever wasted. All is woven into the fabric of our cosmic development. We never lose the results of right effort.

Because you began in early life to shape your efforts toward writing, we are entitled to assume that this is not the first life of direction of effort toward the mastery of the literary art. We know also it is not the culmination; for the fruit of effort when ripe is with us as we enter, and shows in what we call child prodigies. Your fruit is not yet ripe. But this life will ripen it still more. Your chart this time is successive and cadent, not angular.

How unwise, then, we would be to refuse to make effort merely because we could not see its fruiting immediately ahead! No intelligent mind believes that musicians or other professionals accomplished at three years of age just got that way accidentally. Yet our realization that their mastery was fully earned must not end there; it must motivate our own efforts to develop ourselves in like manner.

We are like faucets; some of us very thin pipes, some larger, some of great calibre. What comes through us is the source of all arts and sciences. By our efforts we open ourselves to this principle. And by our efforts we enlarge our pipe line to the great source. Mozart and Beethoven and Brahms were individual pipe lines to the one source of music. There is but one music, many musicians.

Try and keep trying; enlarge your line to the source, little by little. It matters not at all whether you publish or do not. If you can see this, you are wise and will be serene. What you are trying to do is to enlarge and develop yourself, not publish. The latter is minor, when the viewpoint is right.

It is quite possible that your apprenticeship to philosophy has removed you from the wave length of popular expression and thinking. If so, it is in no way a matter of regret, but of joy that you are developing. To be able to write such things as please the majority (publication in popular mediums) would not argue a great deal of development over lives; for as you know, it is always the minority that has seen further and undertaken voluntary dedication. The majority corresponds to youth. Nevertheless this must not cause you to grow into an attitude of condescension, an always unwise attitude; but rather into one of endeavor to pass along what you have learned and gained.

And congratulations on the marriage. I wish every small minded, direfully fatalistic "astrologer" might take it into consideration. The only fate implied in horoscopes is ignorance or stupidity. By growth we master our charts.

Think Yourself Free

Dear Wynn: I am writing this letter in deepest hope that you will answer it but I don't think you will because it is a problem which is serious to me but not at all interesting to your readers. I am in love with a young man two years younger than myself but he is much more mature than I am, so I think there we are evened up. He was born May 30, 1915. I was born August 31, 1913. How should I act toward people of his sign in order to have him like me better? He has shown a great deal of interest in me but I cannot honestly say he ever outwardly expressed any love for me. Most of my friends are married now. Is there anything in my astrology to tell you why I'm not? Am I destined to be an old maid? If you print this letter use the name "unhappy" for I am more than ashamed to have to write it.

UNHAPPY.

(Reply): Sometime last week you went into a shop for something and were waited upon by the woman who ran the shop. You came out with a distinct impression of that woman. Perhaps this year, or last year, you were either in a hospital yourself or visited a friend there: you got a definite impression of the nurse attending. Possibly a few moments ago you were reading an article in this magazine, signed by a woman writer whose work, again, gave you a definite reaction.

Did you wait until you found out whether these women were married before you judged them successes or failures?

By the way, was Clara Barton married when she founded the Red Cross? Oh, you don't know? Or care?

How about the woman whose name appeared on the screen last night at the movie as having written the script? Was she married or does it matter? Would you refuse to consult a woman astrologer until you knew whether or not she was married?

Now, young lady, you may have something to be really ashamed of, but it isn't that you aren't married. What are you?

Are you what your letter sounds like—a negative, drifting, planless woman renouncing more and more of her God-given intelligence each year as she becomes more and more negative and sour with misplaced self-pity?

Do you really think that mating and begetting, which any animal can do just as well, is an excuse for having lived? It certainly isn't a motive.

Think. What kind of vibrations are you sending out, vibrations that every man as well as every woman you meet gets and translates? Could it be these very vibrations, your wave length, that are coming back upon you?

There is a great mystery and great potency in what we term "wave lengths." You know what it means; you get it from everyone you meet and are able many times to estimate the person just by the subtle emanations you record with your own subtle parts. Then men could, perhaps have, got from you that all you want is marriage, any kind, with anyone, just so long as you can say you're married. Maybe men don't translate consciously, but they can get it. And you certainly don't want marriage with a man who married you just for that, do you? Yet if you marry in your present state of mind it looks as though you would find out, sooner or later, that that was just what had happened. Then you'd be writing in to Wynn to say you were so unhappy because you were married!

You want a high idealed, high souled, beautiful and expanding experience with a man whose outlines fill those of your masculine requirements. But you haven't started to earn this. It couldn't come in on your present wave length.

How do you go about changing that wave length?

It's a matter of transferring the center of consciousness. At present yours is rigidly held in abeyance, just waiting. In other words, you are doing nothing, not growing—perhaps slipping back. When you read a book, see a movie, listen to the radio, talk to others, you wince whenever emotion is mentioned. This center of consciousness is now so exaggeratedly, disproportionately sensitive that it practically dominates your mind. Other impressions received are more vague, and forgotten. You are missing everything

☾ Prediction

July 7, 1943.

Mr. Sidney K. Bennett,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Dear Wynn: I hope you will pardon the delay in responding to your letter of May 29th, which has been due entirely to the situation in Missouri, into which the Guild poured all its energy and to which I had to give the major part of my own available time. It is most gratifying to us to report that the attorney we engaged handled the whole situation with consummate skill and won a sharp victory for us (i.e., the Senate killed the obnoxious bill in committee). Now we are proceeding on the positive side, preparing for the reconvening of the legislature and working with outstanding Missouri astrologers to carry on the fight from this point forward.

Speaking to the degree the Legal Committee is authorized to do so by the Guild, I want to express our deep appreciation for your cooperation in the matter of conforming to astrological ethics in discouraging the use of the word "horoscope" for what is not the delineation of an actual individual chart. This helps in the general battle, and we are grateful to you.

In the matter of the use of the word "prediction" we are frankly disappointed. Again, to the extent that the Legal Committee is authorized to speak for the Guild, I want to express our unswerving and uncompromising attitude in the matter. The astrologers are a minority group, and in a democracy it is not their privilege to take an arbitrary stand when it comes to the use of the English language employed by everyone. We exist in a democracy and we are fighting for democratic rights. You speak of appeasement, when the issue is nothing of the sort. It is a matter of common sense, and the everyday meaning of words.

Thus do the night clubs, the nitwits here and there, the nondiscriminating who, by the use of this or other means (sometimes not astrological at all) insist upon making a superstition out of astrology. Or, using the word astrology to identify their pet superstition, the general idea of "prediction," when it comes to a form of psychology more commonly used by fortune tellers than by psychologists, they mean a fixed fore-knowledge of events. This is well reflected in four hundred years of common law and court decisions. Our most profound headache in our legal fight is the show-off weakness of humankind, when people gain importance for themselves by pretending to be able to tell, in advance, exactly what is going to happen, or try to give the impression of an ability to do so.

We face a very realistic situation. It is not what we mean in our use of words, but what the other fellow thinks we mean, and this "other fellow" is not the intelligent person with discrimination, nor the well-grounded occult student, but the broad public, i.e., the type of clientele represented by the night club regular. From my own personal point of view, your splashing of the word "prediction" across the front of your magazine is catering to that point of view because that is what stands out on the newsstands. "Look!" it says, "you don't have to go to a night club. Buy me, it's cheaper!" I certainly hope that is not what you have in mind. Your reference to the real meaning of the word prediction on page 2 of your June magazine is not only entirely correct, but is clever and very fine. However, it's on the inside, in small type that the discriminating person will read but not where it will straighten out the nondiscriminating one. It doesn't take the curse off the unfortunate exterior ballyhoo, which so easily appears downright cheap.

We have no intention of attempting to dictate to anyone. People with the dictatorial urge are a bigger headache than those whose megalomania is merely the show-off, like a few individuals you and I know who just love to rush into print and seem to pretend to know with God just what the future holds. We have to bear in mind what a bad press we have, and apparently will continue to have for some time to come. You yourself have suffered from this in the famous weather episode with the New York Times, and just recently, in the Saturday Evening Post when you were the one our smarty little feature writer found convenient to use as a horrible example of one who "predicts" and misses the boat. Remember, he didn't read "probability" in the sections of your material he chose to quote. Think it over.

Don't do anything against your own judgment, and above everything else remain true to yourself. We all must do that. But, think it over. Sincerely always,

Legal Committee
Astrologers' Guild of America
MARC EDMUND JONES,
Chairman,

(Comment): "It is not what we mean in our use of words," you state, "but what the other fellow thinks we mean."

Logic

If planetary positions mean anything in man's life, then those meanings can be predicted, for the planetary positions can be predicted.

Barring mental reservation, I cannot wholly agree with that statement, and I don't think that in all cases you would, either. Was it necessary that Emerson be limited by the meanings his readers would ascribe to his words, or is it up to the readers to find out what the language means? What does the Bible mean? Could a word be chosen for any specific meaning that would be read by all in the exact same sense? Where is the three-word phrase, to say nothing of an entire language, which has universally the identical meaning to all who hear or read it?

You correctly note the difference between the discriminating and the non-discriminating reader, between the nitwit and the occult student. What word would you use that would hold the same meaning to both? You grant that "prediction" means one thing to the nitwit and another to a discriminating student. What, then, is wrong about using the word "prediction" when we are not addressing our magazine to nitwits?

Suppose a nitwit accepts the word on our front cover in the bad sense you describe. Does he find the bad meaning in our text? He does not. Are we to be held responsible for what he thought he would find in our pages?

You seem to intimate that those who go to night clubs do so solely for the purpose of obtaining forecasts. You intimate that the word "prediction" on our cover promises the same thing at a great economic saving. Certainly, we do not call for a cover charge, nor do we insist on selling a meal, and we enforce no floor show, no jazz band, no torch songs, no tip-seeking waiters that must be suffered before our predictions become available.

THIRD HOUSE STUFF

However, my vast underground information system reports the contrary to me. My fact-finding representatives, who have just completed an exhaustive survey of night clubs, their habitués, motives for attending and the psychology of their appeal, inform me that there is no competition between night clubs and magazines. In their voluminous reports there is not one record of anyone ever deciding that he or she would stay away from a night club, purchase WYNN'S ASTROLOGY MAGAZINE and put the difference into war bonds. True, some have decided to stay away from night clubs, not buy any magazine, and put the money into war bonds. My reports show that only one person has ever given even a passing thought to substituting WYNN'S ASTROLOGY MAGAZINE for a dip into the atmosphere of a night club—and his name is Marc Edmund Jones.

Are you complaining that we are wrong in disappointing those who expect fatalistic forecasts?

You ask me to think it over. I have thought it over. Now, please permit me to ask you to think it over. And, in doing so, give some consideration to the following:

The fatal error that was made by the drama was that it permitted itself to be dictated to by the ignorant, just because there were more of them than there were of intelligent people. At first the drama was used to point lessons and morals. Then came commercial interests who saw that more shekels could be taken in at the box office if the lessons and morals were omitted and a bit of pandering to the weaknesses of the public be indulged in.

The audience was allowed to set the standards.

The bigger the audience desired, therefore, the lower were the standards set. Result: the lower the standards, the bigger the audience.

You say, "The astrologers are a minority group, and in a democracy it is not their privilege to take an arbitrary stand when it comes to the use of the English language employed by everyone."

Your statement is meaningless, because there is no "English language employed by everyone."

I am not advocating a private language for astrologers. I am advocating that astrology with its head held high in legitimate self-respect maintain that prediction is the life blood of its functions. If the highest, most respectable meaning of a word suits the uses of astrology, then astrology should never lower its standards by surrendering the use of that word, whether the less intelligent among us use the same word with a different connotation or not. The highest, most respectable meaning of predict is "to tell or declare beforehand; to foretell to make known in advance."

If this meaning is denied to humans, there is no use in ever knowing the slightest thing about cause-effect relationships. If no one were permitted to use his knowledge of the effects that follow cause, the future would be an absolute blank. If such cause-effect knowledge were denied us, the fact that result A² has always followed cause A¹ in the past would never entitle us to estimate that another A¹ would be followed by another A². Such change in our thinking (eliminating cause and effect knowledge) would so profoundly alter mankind that it would no longer be human, for the difference between humanity and the lower kingdoms of nature is that man can reason from cause to effect and from effects back to causes. Any use of the human functions on the level of cause-effect is of necessity a predictive use, even when employed in reverse (from effect back to cause). To say that this is the effect of that requires exactly the same reasoning faculties that are employed in saying that will be the effect of this.

The future is not an absolute blank.

Hitler's Astrology

The following editorial is from The News and Courier of Charleston, S. C.; it appeared late in June, 1943.

"A news dispatch from Stockholm said that the Nazi authorities, alarmed by the ill effects of fortune-telling on German morale, are bearing down on the seers. Another report said that a prophet had been sentenced to death.

"Since Adolf Hitler himself has been reputed to be a customer of astrologers, it is curious that the Nazis now should be concerned with predictions from occult sources. One explanation is that the star-gazers are reading unpleasant news in the heavens. If that is so, we're almost tempted to believe there is something in it, after all.

"Can Hitler be losing his faith in the stars because they give answers he doesn't like? The alternative to liquidating the star-gazers is a rearrangement of the stars, so that the future comes out better for the Nazis. The deflection of the planets from their orbits is about as likely as the Nazis' escape from the inexorable closing in of the United Nations.

"The stars in their courses fought against Sisera."

In the issue of July, 1942, on page 48 we said:

"Nothing could mean the same thing to Hitler and a philosopher. Therefore, what Hitler means by astrology can and should fail with him, while what the philosopher means by astrology will live forever, regardless of how many false definitions and meanings are ascribed to it by those who are less than philosophers. Napoleon believed in something he thought was astrology—until he decided he was bigger than it. Real astrology marched on; Napoleon didn't."

A great deal is known about the future, and any statement of what is known about the future is prediction.

We know, for instance, that there will be cold weather next winter. Every army commander in the world is taking that fact into consideration, asking his meteorologists for every scrap of added information concerning weather in the future that can possibly be gleaned. Sunspots are being studied in reference to past weather conditions, that more may be known about the future, that better weather predictions may be possible.

Astronomers believe they know enough about the laws concerning planetary motions to be able to predict within seconds of time and arc just when and where in the heavens celestial phenomena will take place. Eclipses, conjunctions, occultations, seasons. The ephemerides of the U. S. Government and of astrological publishing houses are predictions of where the planets will be at certain definite moments in the future.

Astrology is 100 percent founded on the doctrine that there is a causal influence related to planetary positions and aspects. If astrology can be demonstrated to be a cause-effect relationship in the past, and it most emphatically can be so demonstrated, and if the positions and aspects of the planets are predicted legitimately for future times and seasons, then prediction of astrological effects from those causes is entirely legitimate.

If astrology is to back down before its less intelligent critics and cease to make predictions on the basis of future planetary positions, it will then have forfeited its claim to be able to tell the cause-effect relationships between man and planetary positions at any time, past or present. And that is just exactly the wool that is being pulled over the eyes of astrologers who would appease those ignorant critics. Those critics know full well that if they can only obtain from astrology the confession that it cannot tell what a planetary influence will be in the future, they will have the concomitant admission that astrology cannot tell what a planetary influence ever was. In debate this is called "admitting the part that includes admitting the whole."

You say "the astrologers are a minority group and in a democracy it is not their privilege to take an arbitrary stand." Since when was any minority in a democracy required to sacrifice its rights? And when did the rights of astrologers become an "arbitrary stand"? Astrology includes cause-effect relationships or it does not. If it does not include such relationships it is nothing. If it does include such relationships, it is a statement of fact to say so, not an "arbitrary stand."

Just suppose the Guild and all its members go on record as relinquishing their right to use astrology for prediction. If they mustn't use the word, they mustn't perform the act. What will happen? How and in what manner will the services of the astrologer be valuable to a client? Mustn't say a client is equipped to follow music as a career. That would be predicting what might be the result of the cause of abilities indicated by the client's horoscope. Mustn't say the client will have problems to meet when the transit of Saturn comes. That would be predicting future conditions on the basis of past experience in millions of cases. No advice could be given; no analysis could be made.

But, of course, that wouldn't happen. What would happen would be that astrologers would go right on predicting effects from known astrological causes, but without calling it prediction. To do that is a form of dishonesty. It is use of mental reservation.

Everyone predicts, to the best of his ability, as much as he possibly can. You yourself are predicting when in your letter you say: "... bear in mind what a bad press we have, and apparently will continue to have for some time to come." You base your advice to me on your belief in that prediction. I agree with you. We have a very bad press. So have other groups who do not entirely deserve it. Is that a reason for submitting to injustice, for removing words from meanings or for removing meanings from words? I don't agree. Every right we abandon will make the press that much less respectful of astrologers, especially if we abandon our fundamentals.

This magazine has frequently and carefully differentiated between the false and the real astrology, between the charlatan and the sincere astrological student who is a definite asset to his community and his clients. No need to go into details about it here. You know it, or you can find out by reading any of a dozen back issues. We are not appealing to the mob and can prove it: the mob doesn't buy WYNN'S ASTROLOGY MAGAZINE—if it did, we'd have a paid circulation as big as that of the Saturday Evening Post. The use of the word that expresses the prime value of astrology on our cover hasn't yet sold as many copies of this magazine as the number of those who visit the night clubs of three city blocks in New York alone, despite the fact that we offer our predictions at the bargain price of twenty-five cents a month.

¶ Probability

A great deal of misleading matter has been put out concerning probability by the leaders of material science. For instance, in THE MYSTERIOUS UNIVERSE, Sir James Jeans makes the following absolutely unscientific statement:

"We can illustrate: . . . If we spin a half-penny, nothing within our knowledge may be able to decide whether it will come down heads or tails, yet if we throw up a million tons of half-pence, we know there will be 500,000 tons of heads and 500,000 tons of tails. The experiment may be repeated indefinitely and will always give the same result. We may be tempted to instance it as evidence of the uniformity of nature, and to infer the action of an underlying law of causation: in actual fact it is an instance only of

Destiny

"One of the symbolic aphorisms of Pythagoras enjoined the disciple to abstain from the eating of beans. In its literal sense there is seemingly no reason whatsoever for the admonition. Among the Greeks, however, beans were used in gambling and various games of chance, and the esoteric purpose of the admonition was to discourage man's reliance upon auspicious fortune; for he who consigns himself to the vagaries of chance in reality rests his fate upon his own integrity. . . . Man eternally struggles against the littleness that is himself, seeking to increase thereby the virtue of his own destiny. By such effort he frequently is able to maintain a higher footing than would otherwise be his natural right, for effort shall not be unrewarded. If, however, man ceases his struggle and, doing nothing, trusts to Providence for an auspicious throw, that which is his own will know his fate and his reward shall be according to the insufficiency of himself. He who trusts himself to himself is brave indeed! Luck is not what it seems, for it connives with Law to bring about the undoing of the foolish. . . .

"What, then, is Providence? It is like flowing into like, a quality reproducing its kind. Providence is not what we desire but what we actually are, and when we open the floodgates of fortune we shall simply be inundated by the torrents of similars—drowned in the substances of ourselves. By confronting destiny with effort, we aspire to reach the ideal state of the higher self; but by appealing to fortune we place ourselves in the keeping of an impersonal fate that, torturing us with our every defect, decrees us to abide by the measure of our smallest virtue. Thus, only in the truly great is the appeal to fortune to be relied upon. For the rest the law of labor is the only certain way. When it is written that man can succeed only when the gods are auspicious, it merely signifies that accomplishment depends upon the perfect mastery of self and the development of all parts so that the flow of destiny brings to the disciple a propitious end to enterprise. Good fortune is not good to the foolish nor is evil fortune evil to the wise. The foolish are incapable of benefiting from that which may in its own nature be good; conversely, the wise are incapable of being injured by evil, for understanding renders all things usable and thus the identical so-called evil serves the philosopher while it undoes the thoughtless."

—MANLY PALMER HALL.

(Lectures on Ancient Philosophy, pages 393-4)

the operation of the purely mathematical laws of chance." (Page 30.)

We would like to inquire as to just when and where Sir James, or anyone else, ever assembled a million tons of half-pennies and just how that tremendous weight of metal was thrown into the air, and who counted the heads and tails and who witnessed it officially as a scientific test, and where the record of it all is to be located.

We were personally very much interested in that statement—so interested that we designed and had built in a machine shop a machine that would repeatedly throw a penny or other coin into the air with nearly uniform impulse.

We wanted to find out if a uniform impulse would or would not produce the result implied by Sir James—50 percent heads and 50 percent tails.

The device we made isn't very wonderful. It is merely a see-saw mounted on a board. At one end, on a set spot, the coin is placed. From a fixed arm above, a steel ball is released down a runway that leads to a drop onto the see-saw's end opposite the coin. When the ball lands, the coin is propelled upward. The results obtained are NOT 50-50.

I would be willing to undertake to endow a university with the proceeds of this machine's earnings if Sir James would give me all the pennies it will throw heads beyond the 50 percent mark. By demonstration in thousands of throws I have obtained 95 percent heads!

This is accomplished by placing the coin always in the same way on the same spot, with the same side up, with the markings on the coin in the same direction.

THIRD HOUSE STUFF

This is no mathematical procedure. We are not saying, "There are two sides of a coin and therefore it can come to rest with either of them up—a one-to-one probability."

What we are saying is that the manner in which the coin starts and the manner and degree of impulse in the throw determine how many turns it will make in the air and whether it will come to rest with heads up or tails up.

Expand this idea a bit. Let us suppose that instead of a coin we were using a manhole cover with its two sides marked head and tail. If it weighs 75 pounds a force applied against one side must be slightly more than half its total weight to just turn it over—say 40 pounds of lift would do it. It would take a little more than 75 pounds of lift to throw it from the ground and make it turn over—say 80 pounds would do it. Thus, if 80 pounds is the correct or nearly correct amount of lift or throw that would do it, the result would be the opposite side up—starting with heads up, the turn-over would result in tails up. But this same throw that would just turn over the manhole cover once would never turn it over twice or three times, or any number of times more than once. One hundred and fifty-five pounds of throwing power would turn it over twice, let us say; not once, not three times—twice. The same with any amount of throwing power: whatever number of pounds throwing power would turn it over a given number of times on one throw would turn it over the same number of times on another throw.

There would be a point in the application of throwing power which would be just between a certain number of turns and one more turn. Then other factors would enter in to determine the result—factors like the irregularities of the landing surface, air pressure changes and so on. If the point were exact enough, it is remotely conceivable that the manhole cover would land standing in a perfect balance on its edge—even then it would fall to one side or the other eventually because of wind, a jarring vibration—radio waves might even affect it. But we are going far from the original point.

On a smaller scale, the throwing of a penny involves the same factors.

I think this demonstrates that it is not a matter of probabilities, but a matter of the factors that enter into the throwing of the coin. Sir James can figure all the probabilities he cares to, but my little machine will upset his figures drastically, because the machine controls most of the causes that determine the results.

When Sir James takes a penny from his pocket and tosses it into the air it is perfectly true that it will come to rest with either heads up or tails up. Those are the only two sides a penny has. And it is also perfectly true that he does not know which it will be. But note well that the reason he does not know is not that it could not be known—the reason is not that probabilities are equal. Without realizing what the causes are, he is using them all: the force of the throw, the way the penny was placed in his hand, the texture of the surface upon which it lands. And there are still more contributing causes. The way the penny was held was the result of the way it lay in his pocket; that was the result of the way he put it into his pocket; that was the result of the way he received it; that was the way it was given to him—and so on, all the way back to the mint in which the coin was made. Everything that ever happened to that coin is in the result of whether it comes to rest heads or tails.

It is not being argued that Sir James, or anyone else, should know all these causes when throwing a penny. But it is definitely being argued that he, of all men, should not call it "the law of averages." It is very doubtful that there is any such law.

When a man tosses a coin to determine an issue, he is not resorting to any so-called law of chance; he is laying the matter in the hands of cause-effect. When this one point is completely understood, it becomes an understanding of destiny.

Sir James says: "We may be tempted . . . to infer the action of an underlying law of causation: in actual fact it is an instance only of the operation of the purely mathematical laws of chance." It would almost seem that the learned scientist has so often failed to understand the law that he has adopted the attitude that if he cannot understand it no one can. Analyze that statement. What he is saying is that it would be wrong to infer the action of an underlying law of causation in the results of tossing a coin. He therefore drives himself to the absurdity "law of chance." He doesn't see that if it is law it couldn't be chance, and that if it is chance it couldn't be law.

That sort of thing is what is wrong with the theory of probabilities. Oversimplifying a bit, the theory of probabilities would have us believe that because there are two sides to a penny each side will come up one out of two times; that because there are six sides to a die each side will come up one out of six times; that because there are X possible related outcomes there will be equal distribution of those possible outcomes, without regard to the causes or combination of causes involved. Nonsense. My machine for tossing pennies, and every other machine in the world (for whatever purpose), proves that the theory of probabilities is nonsense.

It isn't a matter of probability, of mathematical calculation of the "chances," that determines whether your automobile will run; it is a matter of whether it is in good mechanical condition, has gas in it and whether you start it. It is cause-effect; law—not probability.

Marc Edmund Jones says in his letter to me that Zolotow in his Saturday Evening Post article "didn't read probability in the sections" he chose to quote. This is in line with other writings of Mr.

Jones. He has openly advocated that astrology pursue the modern scientific technique of "probabilities." He has written the amazing statement: "Astrologers, fundamentally, are not interested in laws of the universe or in abstract metaphysical theories of existence, at least when they have the wisdom to attend to their knitting" (American Astrology Magazine, May, 1943, page 35).

Mr. Jones has failed to understand astrology, if the meanings I attach to his words are correct. What I would have said would have omitted the word "not," for to me it seems the astrologer should be highly interested in the laws of the universe and in abstract metaphysical theories of existence. The human race has failed to civilize itself solely because it has ignored the laws of the universe and the abstract metaphysical theories of existence. The only way in which humanity can eliminate its bad ethics, its sickness, its crime, its wars, is to learn the laws of the universe and the abstract metaphysical theories of existence. And nothing can reveal these truths to man better or more quickly than can a sincere and deep study of astrology.

❑ Fate

Ever since man has been recording his thoughts he has adopted one of three procedures concerning that which he does not know.

He has called it Fate; or

He has ignored it; or

He has tried to develop his perceptions and methods of investigation for better understanding.

The theory of probabilities is a form of believing in fate, in the sense that fate is unknowable, precocious. The fate of the penny coming to rest heads or tails is supposed by this theory to be beyond the ability of man to forecast; all a human can do, this theory intimates, is to know what the possible results will be—not which one of them. It is extended in very complicated patterns to percentage probabilities. The possible results are not always found to be 1 in a certain number of possible results; they are often expressed as 2 to 3, 61 to 88, or as 37.691 percent for or against a certain possible outcome. All this is quite correct, as far as estimation of the possibilities is concerned—in the case of 2 to 3, for instance, it may be entirely accurate because in 2 of the 5 instances a certain set of causes is at work, while in the other 3 instances another set of almost identical causes is at work. But the belief in a determining and unknowable fate is present in the fact that the theory of probabilities is satisfied with either result if it appears in the ratio of 2 to 3. If experiment produces another ratio, that is accepted as the new probability for the same experiment, or the new ratio is ignored. For instance:

Mathematically, it is easy to see that if we are drawing single cards from the ordinary pack of 52 cards, our probability of drawing one of the 4 aces is 4 out of 52, or 1 out of 13, or 1 to 12 (different ways of saying the same thing). But it just doesn't happen that way. Two people will not draw the same number of aces in the same number of tries. There is a missing factor, supplied by the people, not by mathematical probabilities.

Further extending the theory of probabilities to the human being, mathematics would say that if two men are set to do a certain job, one will finish before the other. Entirely correct. But which one will finish first? Assuming that the two men are of equal ability at the task required, there are intangible factors involved: one of them is troubled seriously with an emotional problem in his private life at the time and cannot concentrate wholly on doing the work. His effectiveness is lowered and only by great effort can he finish at all. The other man is emotionally free to attack the task and give it all his attention. No theory of probabilities takes into consideration the emotional states of the human beings.

Why does one man have emotional problems when another man is not having them? The scientist who argues that fate does it is not disturbed in his theory of probability. Perhaps it is surprising or even doubted by some that scientists take this view, but listen to Sir James Jeans again: "In brief, old age appears to mean nothing to the individual radium atom; it does not die because it has lived its life, but rather because in some way fate knocks at the door" (from This Mysterious Universe, page 23). He is discussing the probabilities of the rate of disintegration of a given quantity of radium.

Astrology holds the key to the missing factors, at least in so far as humans are concerned, for it furnishes the time factors and the natures of stimuli that are at work on man's intangibles. It goes further: it furnishes a means for analysis of man's innate equipment, propensities, characteristics, aptitudes. Astrology shows at the moment of birth the differences between a Hitler and a Lincoln. The theory of probabilities would say that in the matter of dictatorship any two men would produce one in favor and one against the ideology, and that it is fate that determines which one. Astrology goes much further: it says that of any two men, both may be for dictatorship, both may be against it, one may be for it and the other against—and astrology reveals at birth which of these three probabilities is the fact, going on in the last one to indicate which of the two men is for and which is against.

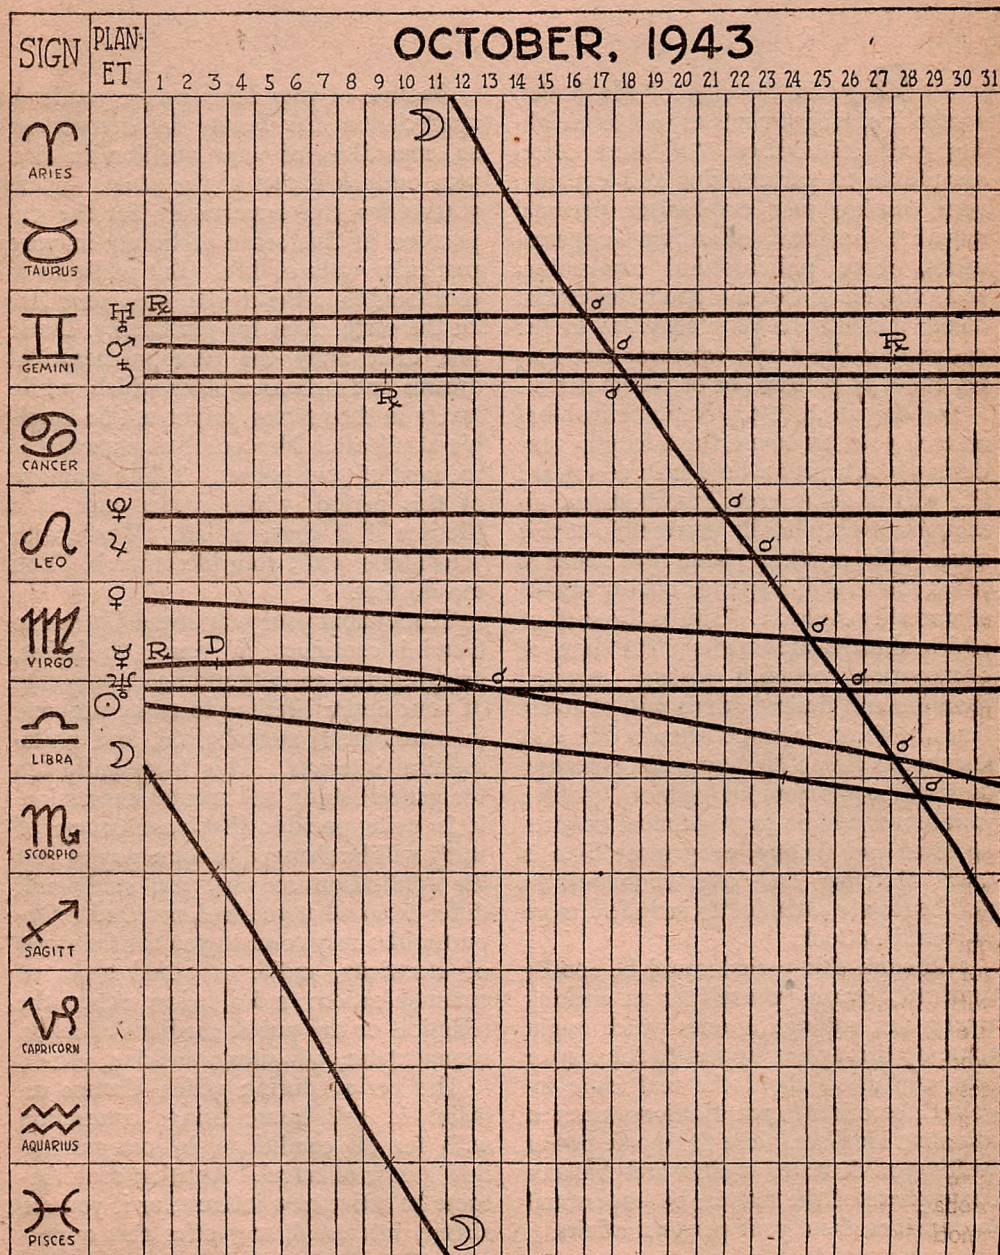

This is because astrology recognizes causes on the non-physical levels of human function.

It is argued that because astrologers don't know all there is to know, an attempt to predict exactly what the event will be is pretension and therefore culpable. In this I heartily agree. No astrologer should pretend to be able to tell what the fate of any event will be, not because there is no cause-effect relation-

The Year Ahead for Libra

If You Were Born September 23—October 23

Born in the sign of the Scales, symbolic of adjustments as well as weighing, with its zodiacal 7th house correspondence to partnerships and equality, your coming year emphasizes personal service to an ideal, educational opportunities, some philosophical awakening, and progress in career—don't forget that career includes all your activities in the nature of a life work, whatever that may be, either of personal or of public nature.

On August 2, 1943, Neptune in Libra entered your 1st house for a lengthy stay during which your whole attitude toward life will undergo great modifications, although possibly hardly perceptible at this time. This mystical planet will seem to cast a subtle veil, a strange quality almost of unreality over life. This is the stuff of which dreams are made. The line of demarcation between existent material concerns and desired ideals will at many times be faint. In some respects life will assume an air of mystery and of beauty, in a way a glamorous poetical quality: your senses will be aware of more nuances of color and feeling, even more than is usual for you; and your consciousness will be slowly extended to include a more universal outlook.

Although this period could be ideally romantic, guard yourself from making wrong ties, entangling ones which might come up through an appeal to chivalry or pity, confusion about the real issue involved, emotional complications, or even mistaken idealism. Use the innate power which you have to weigh and balance every phase of the matter; be impersonal in decisions about your personal affairs.

Because of your Libra nature you have appreciation for beauty in everything: so, regardless of your position in life, your outlook is that of the artist. These years offer you opportunity for the expression of this sense of beauty in your particular walk of life. But while or if your head is in the clouds, keep your feet on the earth. Aim for practicality. Don't just drift away the time in beautiful dreams and nebulous plans which, while lovely in themselves, might not be tangible at all after Neptune had passed into the next of your houses. Take advantage of this period, which comes once in a lifetime if it comes at all. Work with your ideals; make your ideals work. You can do that.

Throughout your year ahead Uranus in Gemini continues in your 9th house, bringing you an outstanding opportunity of your entire lifetime to make progress in astrological, metaphysical, and philosophical interests. This is splendid too for general study and mental expression. It is quite possible that your course of study will be changed in some way or that the application of what you study will differ from what you had expected. Opportunities may come to you for the study of electricity, radio, or allied types of communication: radio being either the technical or the public medium of actor, commentator, educator, musician, etc.

The period during which Uranus remains in this house brings connection with far off conditions, by communication, study, or travel. Aviation could become an active new interest; or if you are already interested, may offer new opportunities for you, possibly in an inventive capacity, design, or new developments. Your travel would not be devoted to career only, there may be unexpected pleasure trips too from which you would learn a great deal.

This inspirational period will in some way grant you greater freedom of thought and of self-expression: develop your original talents.

Until June 20, 1944, Saturn in Gemini transits your 9th house. Your interest in philosophy, your religion, or the law of your life, continues to become deeper and more serious. There may be delays or apparent setbacks in your far-reaching plans: don't be discouraged if so, for this gives additional preparation and time for experience, practice as well as theory. Responsibilities to home or to country may affect your education or your philosophy.

On June 22, 1944, Saturn in Cancer will enter your 10th house. This will induce positions of responsibility. You may be more ambitiously interested in property or in building up an estate. The serious study which has preceded this influence can now be applied to career activities. Experience will further your ambition; older people, established conditions, past or long-time contacts will be active in your career field. Achievement can be steady and sure. Seek only permanent, enduring objectives.

Until July 26, 1944, Jupiter in Leo goes through your 11th house, allowing you to benefit through friends or through strangers friendly to you. Widen your circle of acquaintances. Correspondence may be enjoyed with friends from whom you are apart. Benefit through the exchange of ideas with your friends and associates: seek friends in mental fields, influential friends.

On July 26, 1944, Jupiter in Virgo will enter your 12th house, benefitting and protecting you in your inner, deeper life; the benefit will become externally apparent later. Some work or avocation in seclusion or apart from the public will progress to your advantage. Understanding and sympathy will be found in this work of inner preparation.

Until March 29, 1944, Mars in Gemini continues through your 9th house, stimulating your higher mind to active and courageous expression. Take advantage of those months of outstanding mental drive in order to forge ahead educationally. Whether you are participating in formal educational courses or whether you are studying on your own, marked progress will be noted if you concentrate rather than diffuse your energy. At the same time you will have opportunity to apply the knowledge which you have already gained through recent experience and study. Tackle any educational problem which may have been difficult in the past: study with others.

Not only will you travel along mentally, you will incline to physical travel as well. In fact, unexpected travel or links with distant matters could cause some sudden change of plan December 1st to 30th, 1943, and January 11th to 17th, 1944. But use judgment and alertness to prevent accidents in travel—"stop, look, and listen."

Regardless of the fact that some benefit might accrue from legal matters, curb any rash tendency to rush into litigation during these months, especially from December 1st to 30th, 1943, and January 11th to 17th, 1944.

December 13th, 1943, to January 11th, 1944, gives you good power of self-expression in some actively cooperative way; apply your imagination to your efforts and see results. February 12th to March 7th, 1944, put into operation or publicize in some way ideas which are based upon experience; it may be up to you to fulfill some moral duty or obligation. February 29th to May 22nd, 1944, either personal friends or friendly circumstances will provide an opportunity for you to lay out an immediate plan for future expansion and achievement.

THE YEAR AHEAD FOR LIBRA

From March 29th to May 22nd, 1944, Mars in Cancer energizes your 10th house, making a busy career time, urging you to attempt objectives in your career field. This force, used constructively, can bring you to a higher rank in your present line. However, it can also be extremely hazardous in its effect on your reputation or standing, should you become emotionally unstable or delude yourself, or allow others to sway you. There could be attacks on your credit and honor unless you avert this by carefully weighing your decisions and avoiding impulsive action, especially from March 25th to April 2nd. It is up to you. May 10th to 19th helps you to achieve some ambition by the material support of others, possibly the public, with additional cooperation May 20th to 25th.

May 23rd to July 12th, 1944, Mars in Leo goes through your 11th house. Heartfelt enthusiasm can do wonders to bring your hopes and wishes into being; don't idly wish, do something about it. June 2nd to 7th may bring you unexpected contacts with friends from or at a distance. Don't overdo your generosity to your friends between June 14th to July 5th, when there is much expansiveness and generosity.

July 13th to August 29th, 1944, Mars in Virgo stirs up your 12th house. Progress can be made in clearing up inner disturbances or other secret conditions which have hindered or limited your sense of personal freedom. From July 11th to 17th, especially, the industry and competency with which you quietly work behind the scenes can build toward the outward manifestation of a long-time ambition. However, July 24th to 31st, is a week which demands judgment; don't allow yourself to be embroiled in matters, possibly legal, which could be upsetting to your composure. Consider all steps and don't be too hasty; your patience may be tried; but know that you can accomplish much that really matters, even if not externally fulfilled at the time. Although August 19th to September 1st shows a colorful trend and artistic emphasis, it warns against self-indulgence and extremes.

From August 30th to October 13th, 1944, Mars in Libra activates your 1st house, adding energy, forcefulness to your personality; and close contact with others, partner, mate, or public. September 5th to 11th, carefully weigh all matters of importance, especially career; you have a natural courtesy anyway, but be very tactful in dealing with older people or long-time associates. September 9th to 18th offers sudden or unusual opportunities, connections with distant affairs, possible travel; express originality.

From November 9th to December 9th, 1943, Venus in Libra transits your 1st house, promising pleasant personal incidents, adding to your happiness. You may be in close touch with romance, your own or that of some one near you. In any case, married or single, in love or fancy free, this can be a very pleasing month. Express more of your art and beauty-loving potentials.

Your year ahead is interesting, and probably eventful too, with opportunity to increase your happiness. Personal relationships will seem more vital to you and to those concerned. Not only your directly personal relationships but those of an impersonal or philosophic nature will be more idealistic and seem to be more intimate. Curiously enough, at times you may sense a close attachment to your associates and even to the world at large; and then, almost simultaneously, there will be a quality of detachment or of unreality, a strange blending of the existent with the coming ideal. This is good growth.

Too, this coming year for you will bring opportunity to find more personal peace; this in itself will add to your feeling of happiness. Generate in yourself an atmosphere of poise, wherever you happen to be at any time; it is within your power to do so.

It is not wise to go against a black day on this diagram. When day or part of day is marked with a diagonal line don't make changes concerning health unless there is a vital emergency. Do all possible to keep away from the black days under the sign ruling the affected part.

October, 1943, Opportunities

For those born Mar. 21-April 19

DEAR ARIES:

Your mind turns, either by choice or necessity, to the other folks in your life this month: their contribution to you, yours to them, the service they require of you, the service they give you. The contribution or cooperation seems to be attended by less friction than does the obligation, or service. For the first 12 days, and again from 26th on, you may feel that your independence and freedom are in question, and that your free will choices are clashing with what you owe, or what is demanded of you by others. Don't be too hasty, however, at these periods, for judgment won't be good. 1-12 avoid sudden, unexpected alienations with friends, women, younger people, inferiors and partners. From 26th personal challenges, argument, sharp words, result in enemies.

And still the month's vibrations counter this with an influence lasting from 8th to 28th which stimulates your mind considerably and brings you active contacts with others which can favorably affect your reputation, occupational progress, and ambitions generally. From 8th to 20th would be the time to contact superiors, influential persons, who might be attracted by your mind, ideas, plans, or interests from the past that might be shared. Those contacted 22-28 might be business people, inferiors, fellow residents, purely mental contacts.

Between 4th and 15th keep your mind open to inspiration, hunches, greater understanding, which may come personally or through another. This stretch is fine for understanding with mate.

If new projects or new contacts call for decisions this month, make them 1-2 and 13-17. Love life in October is most harmonious 4-7, 12-16, and from 25th.

For those born April 20-May 20

DEAR TAURUS:

It looks as though your feelings and emotions were due to be rather conflicting this month, up and down. And as though this was going to have a direct effect upon your finances.

From 1st to 12th your love-emotional life shows upset, restlessness, and possibly some disappointment or problem to work through: the past looks less attractive to you than the new, the future. In this state of mind and heart, you will feel inclined to adopt new financial policies, enter new financial deals that don't look promising or that are premature; while continuing money interests strike snags or seem burdensome. Don't take chances.

From 8th to 20th (overlapping former period by 4 days) there will be opportunity through persons in superior positions or with influence of a financial nature and in connection with your work; the last 6 days (14-20) older persons or those very familiar at a distance or en route can be means of opportunity. From 22nd to 28th persons in your working surroundings, those inferior, and also those you care for, have favorable bearing.

From 26th on (overlapping by two days previous period) your emotional-love life again strikes snags—or will it be sparks? Some disharmony with your opposite sex shows. In money matters you will incline to extravagance and long risks, so don't. This last stretch of your month is also risky in health—avoid accident and self-indulgences.

On the other hand, home affairs should run more harmoniously this October, especially if you put in your full share of service to the home and family members. 12-16 and from 25th are best stretches.

Decisions or moves in occupation or work can be best handled 1-2 and 13-17.

October, 1943, Opportunities

For those born May 21-June 20

DEAR GEMINI:

The month of October sees you highly stimulated personally, desiring more self-expression and recognition; yes, and better able to earn it too, for your original and creative talents are receiving subtle but strong stirring up. We create through our ability to feel, so it follows that your October will also see you desiring more emotional outlet, being extra sensitive in love life. There is a stretch between 4th and 15th which can result in heightening your happiness and productivity if you act, think, rightly.

From 8th to 20th take active personal steps to bring nearer fruition those old personal (or secret) yens of yours connected with intellectual or artistic expression, and with love life. Strengthen deepen bonds with older loved ones, especially men. From 22nd to 28th is another such opportunity, with the addition that home can also profit, old domestic matters be adjusted. Both periods require right action on your part—take initiative.

Two stretches this month may upset you personally or bring sudden necessity to make adjustments to avoid undesirable conditions. They will be the first 12 days and from 26th. First stretch shows sudden focusing of home conditions, secrets; relations with those cared for, and some new element introduced—don't act in any haste, nor seek conclusions. From 26th clashes with family, friends, inferiors, other sex will appear if you aren't calm, reasonable.

If new decisions about love life, creative life, home, personal interests, distance interests, are required 13-17, this would be a good time to consider wise changes and shifts.

October is favorable for study, training, especially 12-16 and from 25th.

For those born June 21-July 22

DEAR CANCER:

Those things and those people surrounding you nearly, stimulate certain inward necessities this month, which when you have worked through them, in turn are felt by these people and these factors in the form of a different motivation from you. October is an opportunity to find out more of what goes on under your surface and to decide certain things about it.

The most sensitive period this month, and one that you must handle wisely and sanely, is 4-15; it affects your deepest emotions and receptions, subtly stirs your higher mind, arousing possible emotional restlessness, and will be felt in home life, community standing, in what way dependent upon how you handle it. It could be an inspirational time of understanding; or one of whims, misunderstandings, pretenses, unnecessary hurts.

From 8th to 20th, and from 22nd to 28th, are your times to receive strong inner stimulation, to accept it and act to rid yourself of old complexes, old resentments, old fixation. Put your mind to the task of cleaning inner house. At these times those in your domestic environment and neighborhood circle will be helpful. Confide, if you wish.

The days from 1st to 12th betoken a possible secret emotional maladjustment: this could involve the well being of friendships, local contacts, domestic life and your relations with younger persons, your social contacts. From 26th, again your inward feelings threaten problems with those near.

Between 13th and 17th new insight can motivate changes in home, community interests, with near kin, that will work out well in future. New ideas should be considered. Money prospects look best 12-16.

October, 1943, Opportunities

For those born July 23-Aug. 22

DEAR LEO:

It's a matter of where-you're-going this month: both ambition in the sense of money and position, and aspiration in the sense of deeper and realer hopes for yourself, receive planetary stirrings.

Your first twelve days bring you varying, even conflicting, vibrations. In general money, movable possessions, reputation and occupation must be sensibly handled, for too quick decisions, too new things, trying to force past issues or resenting present restrictions will bring financial and other setbacks. If friends are involved, stay on the fence: neither be party to clashes, nor be swayed into hurried action. 4-7 cultivate women and younger persons who influence your money or ambitions selectively, for vibrations are mixed.

From 8th to 20th should be your most positive, progressive stretch. Do things in person; use your personality and executive organizing ability, especially 12-16. Enlist aid of friends, especially elders and those familiar. Cultivate followers and supporters. Seek to bring conclusions nearer in your long-range plans. Good stretch for actively adjusting home matters; and for harmonizing love life. You are personally energized and magnetic through here.

From 22nd, vibrations again become mixed; there is financial opportunity only if you can avoid impractical, extravagant, too enthusiastic or impetuous action. Don't jeopardize present occupational standing. If you can select the right friends, they will have good effect upon money, but wrong selections will bring financial mistakes. Avoid domestic clashes by maintaining perspective.

From 4th to 17th be alert to your own ideas, hunches, new attitudes.

For those born Aug. 23-Sept. 22

DEAR VIRGO:

Your external life is singled out for stimulation in October: your personal weight and outward influence, your ambitions, occupation, standing or reputation, and the result of all these in the form of earned assets, tangible or not. Since this stimulation is active and bears upon what has gone before, or led up to the present, this month is an opportunity to reorganize and bring yourself and your interests up to date—to sheer off the outworn. From 8th to 28th you will have this opportunity; use it to make your financial and occupational efforts more planned and purposed, to put to outward use more of what you can do, and are, to promote yourself as a person, and to seek active relations with persons who influence you, set you examples, have authority over you, or guide you. This is the time to work on "things you have always wanted to . . ."—in other words, to put in some action on old or lingering interests.

From 4th to 15th you will get some kind of inspiration, if you listen and record sensitively. It may come through contact with another person, directly or as a reaction. If you want to make changes in your work, efforts, personal or health matters (or if new decisions are made necessary by circumstances), the best dates are 1-2, but 13-17 preferable.

The first 12 days of your October may find you personally at odds, with some continuing or lingering obstacle or disappointment, connected with ambition, love life, the past, combining with a precipitate restlessness of emotion that breeds dissatisfaction. So delay and temporize until all is clear. From 26th again avoid clashes in occupation, hold on to money.

October, 1943, Opportunities

For those born Sept. 23-Oct. 23

DEAR LIBRA:

Your birthday month is going to help you adjust your vision to a longer range. It will be a month of growing from inward outward. You will find yourself constantly considering the "but after all" values. You will compare, weigh, consider, get an inch more perspective. Things inside you will stir around and then come out, expressed through your personality, your present decisions, your inclination to discuss, communicate.

The first 12 days show some inner confusion or hasty motivation; all is not harmonious in your attitude toward your life and yourself. Perhaps the past bothers you. Perhaps your emotional life. Cultivate a relaxed attitude.

From 8th to 20th, and from 22nd to 28th, is your opportune stretch. If what lingers from your past is no longer vital, this is the time to leave it behind, conclude it. Make your decisions and actions personal and definite. You will find your vision and perspective enlarging, and should act in accord with it. During these stretches the people you contact and are currently with will have a stimulating effect upon your initiative and courage; may have a good effect upon your finances too. Cultivate older persons too, and professionals. Improve domestic life, and self through study.

From 26th a conflicting influence is also present. Careful with other sex, with other folks; keep inner self serene.

There is a stretch between 4th and 15th that looks particularly good for your self-expression. Those who look up to you find you more able to inspire, teach, guide. You should find it easier to learn yourself, to take things in deeper.

From 13th to 17th wise changes, reforms, in your love life favored.

For those born Oct. 24-Nov. 22

DEAR SCORPIO:

A month when everything tends to draw inward and emphasize your more private concerns doesn't always appear to be the most significant of months, nevertheless such stimulation is the basis for future external events. You will later find your October to have been so.

There is much activity in your more secret processes: in your resolving upon lines of action, in your placing of values, in your decisions about the permanencies of your life, in your summing up of your past, and in your will to get beyond current restrictions by current effort. (These restrictions may be known only to you, but are none the less vital.) By the aid of your October vibrations, you can work through and move forward, toward your steadiest hopes for yourself. The entire stretch from 8th to 28th gives you this opportunity; your efforts should be toward finishing things, seeking to bring to conclusions, summing up and leaving behind. Try for deeper, realer values of your experiences, both present and as the past. Readjust. Do some self-examining. Work on your interests that are as yet private, or unripe; have necessary time for being by yourself. This is an excellent period for undertaking study.

Your first 12 October days seem to contain some feeling of discontent or problem: it goes deep or comes from depths, possibly from the past, and involves other folks, friends, equals, partner, relatives, neighbors. Don't make hasty changes.

From 12th to 17th is opportune for new inward attitudes, motives, and for working quietly to forward ambitions: if changes are needed, this is the time. Do domestic readjusting in here..

Emotions, love life, strongly stimulated 4-15.

October, 1943, Opportunities

For those born Nov. 23-Dec. 21

DEAR SAGITTARIUS:

Whatever you did in the past to earn good will from others, and whatever you are doing currently to attract this, will in your October be the source of aid and support for your hopes and aspirations.

Vibrations rouse your ambitions both occupational and avocational—may combine them. Wait until after the month gets under way for strongest efforts; for your first 12 days could manifest abrupt reversals or surprises from others, or delays, disappointments through them. Don't force in occupation in these days; or with influential women. Go slow with new contacts, and in financial affairs.

From 8th to 20th (overlapping above period), and from 22nd to 28th, you have best opportunity of the month to make progress through or with partners, allies, friends, through persons with influence or connected with the professions, and through persons en route or away. These are the times to push your wider and more long range plans, to make important contacts and agreements, to forward your private interests, and to profit through your past. You may conceive new hopes, or hopes again rising from the past. Persons you meet or are within these stretches stir you to physical and mental action, enthusiasm. Cultivate those who are older than yourself. Push your money interests with a view to gaining practical permanency.

Some inspirational or emotional experience, linked with your desires and ideals, should show up between 4th and 15th, and affect your home life. Friends seem to be connected. A different ambition or view of own efforts is shown.

Between 12th and 17th seek contacts with new people. From 26th be careful about clashes with others.

For those born Dec. 22-Jan. 19

DEAR CAPRICORN:

October finds you in a position to assume responsibility, leadership, direction, and to gather credit, better reputation, or some further opportunity. It is a month when your more secret desires for power or standing seem nearer the limelight.

What those desires are will either be re-directed or become better understood by you in the period between 4th and 15th, when you are due for some type of mental, emotional, or even higher inspiration. If then you feel dissatisfied with your own efforts, change them to conform more with this inspiration. What you decide and realize in these days could well have a far-reaching influence in your life.

From 13th to 17th looks like occupational opportunity, or opportunity connected with distance, professional persons, communication or transportation, new projects, or with your inferiors. You can better your working conditions and financial circumstances in this stretch.

From 8th to 20th and again from 22nd to 28th your past record of duty, responsibility, achievement, growth, brings reward in the form of more power or recognition. These are times to actively, but wisely, seek what you have deserved; to work in a practical, steady, but courageous way to promote yourself on the basis of what you are and what you deserve. Deal personally with superiors.

There are two stretches this month which foreshadow problems in love life, pleasures, and creative expression if not wisely handled: the first 12 days and again from the 26th. Both stretches caution against explosive feelings with those who look up to you; the second stretch indicates clashes with other sex and in home. Make no hasty decisions in first 12 days; new attractions not favored.

October, 1943, Opportunities

For those born Jan. 20-Feb. 18

DEAR AQUARIUS:

This month finds the wheels of your progress turning into a wider highway and more speed ahead. Your objectives of bigger calibre are clearer ahead and you move up nearer.

October strongly suggests that you concentrate upon making more of yourself than you are at this moment. Not in terms wholly of ambition or reputation in the eyes of the world, but in the sense of self-development and unfoldment. You admit there are more things you could do than you are now doing or able to do: these things then should be your month's goals. Study, reading, training, writing, practice—these are roads to your objectives. Between 4th and 15th your desire to express more of what you could be will be strong enough so that it can become motive—pay attention to what appear to be hunches, inspirations without apparent cause. Between 12th and 17th you will be personally energized in new directions; will be attracted to new subjects and to new people.

Love life is strongly stimulated this month; your emotional past will bring fruit in the form of what you have merited. Romance or marriage are equally stimulated, and will take on more harmony unless past denies.

From 8th to 20th and from 22nd to 28th are your month's strongest stretches for benefit and progress both as an individual and in your love life. These are the times for taking initiative in your own behalf, actively doing the things that will bring out more of your secret or latent possibilities and emotional nature.

From 1st to 12th there may be secret emotional restlessness that would cause upsets, terminations, if not guided. Careful with home, distance interests, women.

For those born Feb. 19-Mar. 20

DEAR PISCES:

You have good opportunity this month to sum up, terminate, and make transitions in your life; your month should be primarily devoted to sorting out your values and being wholly sure you have them right. Think over your experiences again: what was the real value to you of that occurrence, this happening, that feeling? In larger terms, what did they mean? Then when more light comes through this procedure, and you are sure of what has value and what no longer has, proceed to eliminate the latter. Your active stretches for accomplishing this will be from 8th to 20th and from 22nd to 28th. Bring yourself and your life up to date, so to speak. Have a mental, emotional and spiritual housecleaning, and be ready to move forward. Work on what is past 14-20 and 25-28, keep the enduring and let go of the worthless or outgrown. Work on new understandings of what should now take the place of that discarded between 12th and 17th.

In some very personal way, the days between 4th and 15th will mean something to you in the nature of a secret uplift, probably emotional. It may concern family members or mate, or just other folks you meet at this time. You will find that you get meanings, are better able to understand, without actual words; you will be increasingly sensitive.

Your close environment, which includes home, neighborhood, relations with family, neighbors, close kin, has two test times. From 1st to 12th steer around any quick or unexpected upsets, and do not make hasty changes. Care with older persons and equally with those who are very familiar to you. From 26th care with opposite sex, younger persons, women; hold on to money.

But be sure to rule out all opinionated discussion about beliefs, religion, politics. If you avoid such topics, you can group together various classes and include both men and women guests. Don't be too self-indulgent late this evening.

Advising All Signs for Today

For Aries: Make it a less active, a more think-it-over day. Maybe motives not recognized will come to light, your own and others. You are more receptive, easily impressed; can see ahead in plans, results, better. Eve: from 8:30 p.m. attractions to, from, others; but underlying temptations to disagree too. From 10:44 p.m. emotions high, romantic but extreme.

For Taurus: A day to look clearly at others—equals, mate, partners, those met casually—and straighten out attitudes toward, relations with, them. Mutual efforts best. Benefit through seeing other side of things. Romantic eve, pleasure yens, but realize and control personal note of dominance—if any. Perspective from 10:44 p.m. unclear—stay prudent. You can appeal personally.

For Gemini: Good day to get work done, stay with it even to the little things. Get finances straightened out too, accounts. Health maintained by being on top of any tendency to magnify minor necessities; watch nerves, move relaxedly. Give some time to needs of those below you; this eve from 8:30 entertain inferiors. Or seek pleasure, culture, inner development.

For Cancer: You see the emotional and pleasurable in day's incidents, incline to want self expression. Don't drift, but seek to make conscious more of your original possibilities. OK for handling children's affairs. Loved ones or romance attracts this eve; good too for local social activities or hospitality. From 10:44 p.m. no extravagance, physical indulgences.

For Leo: Could be restlessness or haste in poor occupational-financial moves today. Hold steady. Look over, consider, handle factors in estate. Home, family members, take foreground all day and eve. From 8:30 p.m. domestic, local harmony, but guard finances, ambitions from extremes.

OK to be out in public; appeal to younger folks and women. More appeal for equals, friends, your mate, this eve from 8:30 p.m.: meet others. But tone down any controversies, undue enthusiasms, or extravagance.

For Sagittarius: Best use of time is concentration on interests not yet public, things you hold private. In all day's experiences look for the deeper motive, the unrecognized fact or factor. Career and Business: In various ways the day is more favorable for regular Sunday activities than for much career activity. Throughout the entire time you must curb some tendency to be irritable. Regardless of formerly planned activity and "single track" concentration, distractions may arise; just relax. There'll be another day.

Health: All day avoid hip, leg, or arm operations; defer severe treatment to the respiratory tract. Soothe the nerves. Prevent accidents by avoiding risks and impatience. Don't affect your vitality tonight by being overly apprehensive about health or future affairs. Rest.

Love and Romance: Rule out irritability and sharp words to loved ones. Don't take things too personally. Strive for gentle consideration and thoughtfulness. During the late evening, it may be difficult to ward off a sense of barrier or frustration. Not the time for an important romantic date.

Hospitality: Postpone all important entertaining to another day. Unless you are unusually gracious and adept at smoothing over difficult situations, hospitality could be trying. If guests do drop in, revive your sense of humor, and direct the conversation along impersonal and large subjects.

Advising All Signs for Today

For Aries: Mental and emotional reactions too heated, hasty—apt to be clashes or tension with others all day, eve, unless personally in control. Use higher mind, higher concepts. Go slow with inferiors, other sex, mate, neighbors and relatives. Romance, affection, favored till 9:49 p.m. Guard health. Later than 10:56 p.m. disappointment.

For Taurus: In domestic life, with members of family, more harmony than with others cared for—romance not favored today or this eve. Attraction to inferiors brings tension. If finances come up, avoid both dissension and extravagance, especially from 3:55 p.m. Favorable for adjusting, forgiving, with others, and in home.

For Gemini: This looks like invitation to make self unpopular with others—if you want that! Otherwise, calm down, don't accept challenges nor issue them. Keep the pace in home life and with loved ones, children—see their views. Some inner factor is disturbing you. From 3:55 p.m. don't antagonize friends. Local superiors favor you.

For Cancer: Your mind, feelings, and health seem upset, at odds; but you can straighten things out with aid of those loved. Ask advice, confide. Romantic stimulation, but outlook is for disagreement unless poised, tolerant. Don't spend too much on this date. If up later than 10:56 p.m., don't develop grudges, inner frustrations.

For Leo: Use your personal appeal and tact all day and eve to offset any clashes with friends, those loved, kin, neighbors, home folks—a day otherwise of unpleasant situations. Don't be swayed into financial loss. You can be magnetic, popular, if in control. From 3:55 p.m. control feelings, speech. Other sex will need extra consideration, to act.

For Virgo: Let inner tolerance, calm, good will, come through to surface. Otherwise you will seem ruffled, unpopular, upset, to others, when you don't feel so. Let everyone else have spotlight, star spot; you wait, be sought. Careful in home and locally from 3:55 p.m.—avoid accident as well as clashes. Seek local patrons for your private interests, hobbies. Push nearby interests.

For Libra: Visiting, communicating, discussing, confiding, subject to heated disagreements if you don't foresee, relax. Your deeper emotions are ruffled, secret attractions not smooth. To get along harmoniously with others on this date—especially from 3:55 p.m.—let mind control feeling. Friends superior, well informed, in sympathy; be with them.

For Scorpio: Day's incidents disturb personally, unduly; yet to others your personality may be calm, poised. Make it real; some personal aspiration can thus come nearer. Careful with money all day, eve, especially with inferiors. Must handle friends with tact, consideration—same with other sex. You are quite susceptible on this date.

For Sagittarius: You don't really feel so, but circumstances, other folks, seem to force you into antagonistic, heated, situations. Use your philosophy. Resolve to compromise, let others dominate if they wish. You bring out inner convictions, live by them. Careful day, eve, with loved ones, mate, inferiors, friends, and in secret interests.

For Capricorn: Conflicting situations, conflict of feeling and mental reaction. Secret attitudes cause problems. All day, but from 3:55 p.m. especially watch health carefully. Home life subject to tension. Other sex, love life, stimulated but there can be disagreements or quarrels. Seek friends of high ideals who inspire you; unburden to them.

For Aquarius: You have better chance of getting along with superiors, patrons, equals in impersonal relationship, than with loved ones, friends, other sex nearer. Both in home and community, relax against tense situations and let them fade. Care if you are traveling. If up later than 10:56 p.m., don't magnify emotional doubts. Eve can be favorable with superiors, patrons.

For Pisces: Authority seems to be yours, but opposition too. Your allies, mate, partners, loved ones, family members, folks in community or afar, all involved in potential conflict with you—offset by philosophy, calm talking it over, mind over what you feel. You can guide, teach, inferiors, be appreciated. Seek followers.

violence and accidents to the head. He was killed February 19, 1932, in Latitude 33 N., Longitude 112 West, when driving his car (so the story goes), as told by man with Chart 6 who was with him at the time. The car skidded, overturned and he was killed instantly, his head being crushed—the auto fell on him. The other man escaped with a broken finger.

At birth, Saturn (falls) ruled the 8th (death). Saturn opposed the Moon which is ruler of the 3rd (short journeys). He was on a short trip the day he was killed and the transiting Moon in his 3rd opposed the transiting Saturn the moment he made the transition. Jupiter in the 8th, afflicted, could not help him.

Chart 5 never could reconcile himself to the facts relating to his birth.

Chart 6, is the gentleman who was a friend of both the lady (Chart 4) and her husband (Chart 5).

In fact after her husband's death, this gentleman almost married Chart 5's widow—almost, but did not.

His birth was also illegitimate; he knew all about it and referred to it as "dirty work at the cross-roads when I was born." Just how the fact reacted on him is hard to say as he is a very difficult person to gauge with the secretive Virgo on the ascendant. Personally, I think it left a certain mark on him.

Here in his chart (No. 6) we find Uranus in the 4th again. He has no 12th house set-up; no adverse Moon-Saturn aspect either.

Uranus is not so badly aspected; he has it in common with that whole group who were born when Neptune opposed Uranus, when Neptune was in Cancer.

Mars is besieged in the 9th.

He has the Moon and Uranus in the same sign and same house as the lady who attracted him so much (Chart 4).

In all these four charts the birth time has been checked by birth certificates and other records or through the mother.

crease of contacts with your fellow human beings. Through this person you gradually grew in stature with your neighbors and family as being able to provide answers, furnish information, point out routes and sources, know things not typical of you formerly. You actually found yourself becoming more original in the way you did things, planned them, selected them.

Next, your mentally renewed youth motivated certain changes which you made in your attitude toward your life as it then was and which presently turned out to be changes in that life itself; changes which gave you more optimism, hope, a more positive outlook on your future. Possibly the opportunity for these changes came still more directly through this person as openings for betterment which you gladly accepted.

There was, of course, a certain amount of effort called for by the contact but it was pleasant effort: effort to keep up with the standards set mentally by this person. There were times when, in order not to be left behind, you too had to take up new lines of study, or investigate new subjects. At first maybe you overcame some inertia to make the grade; but if you kept up this contact long enough—and you did if you could—the time came when you looked forward to the periodic calls upon you to exercise your mind. Because by that time you could look back upon the results of former acceptances, and knew them to be stimulating and interesting. The "elixir of youth" was really its growing pains, you found out.

ship, but because he doesn't know all the causes involved in any resultant.

This brings up an unfortunate difficulty because of a word. The word is "probability." If it were not for the mathematical-scientific definition, we might always assume that it means likelihood. The scientific definition: "The estimated ratio of the number of ways a particular form of event can occur to the number of ways it can occur in any form."

The extent to which an astrologer can legitimately predict, while short of fatalistic perfection, is nevertheless far beyond the scientific definition of probability, so I think it would be wise if astrologers would not use the term "probability" in connection with astrological forecasting of conditions to be met by individuals and nations. It is an unnecessary limitation.

The astrologer, according to his ability, can know many more contributing causes to any event than can the materialist. He is therefore entitled to state what those causes are, or will be, and draw his conclusions from them in the form of contingent predictions. A contingent prediction is one that takes into consideration human choice within the framework of the causes known. For instance, in my 1939 prediction (see "None So Blind" in the June, 1943, issue, page 18), I said: "Hitler has indication in his horoscope of stern retribution for his past. With ordinary resistance to his whims by other nations, he will have to go. If he remains in power, he will write some of the blackest pages in history, beginning in March (1939), if not slightly sooner." The contingency is "If he remains in power." He did remain in power, and the prediction became operative, as we all know to our great expense, discomfort and sorrow. Had this prediction been made as a mathematical probability, some sort of percentage would have been arrived at, like "The probability is 90-10 that Hitler will not be satisfied with appeasement." This would have given the isolationists and the appeasers a 10 percent excuse for hoping Hitler would not precipitate war. But astrology was the means for indicating the only treatment that would work. More than seven years ago, in 1935 (December issue, page 5), I gave the astrological reasons for my statement concerning Hitler at that time: "Through his mind flows the dominant attitude of power, power and more power. He can never be satiated. No matter how much he is able to gather under his rulership, he will demand more, more territory, more authority." This would have proved a very valuable prediction if it had been noted in high places and acted upon—there was then ample time.

The elements of Hitler's character, shown with such clearness that even a tyro in astrology could see them, are invisible to physical science because physical science has itself closed the door upon such knowledge. For this reason the world as it is today can thank physical science and its own foolishness in following materialism as the sum of human capacity to understand life's problems.

The Future of France

tunity for stabilizing banking and labor conditions in the summer of 1944. If the right steps are taken at that time, and adhered to thereafter, subsequent years will be physically easier to negotiate.

The problems of France, however, which will bring opportunity for lasting solutions of its deeper problems are to be those of governmental honesty, plain, religious integrity. This is, of course, the problem of the entire world, but it is outstanding in the horoscope and future vibrations of France, which can by its choices become a world leader in new standards of government, or be the contributing cause to future misunderstandings and international disputes that will lead to conditions too unpleasant to contemplate when the alternative of success is present, as it most surely will be if nations will learn to cooperate, instead of trying the usual diplomatic and political tricks.

positive because you are now so negative.

You must start now to make up for lost time in living and growing. You must know your life plan. This plan has nothing to do with marriage, can include marriage when it comes and continue, or continue without marriage. Marriage is a desirable experience as a general thing, but many, many lives have incarnated in this world without necessity for it this time. No one incarnated without a major necessity, however. What is yours? What should you be aiming at, struggling toward, perfecting in yourself? Unfortunately, you have Sun-Moon conjunction trine to Jupiter; I say unfortunately, because this aspect does nothing to cause struggle by creating a problem—the owner all too often is inclined to drift and expect. Your Venus being within one degree conjunction your Neptune in Cancer is more fortunate, for both planets are opposed by Uranus, and the great Quickener, Uranus, is forcing revelation of feeling (Venus and Neptune) through problems. By the way, this group ought to provide you with the emotional sensitivity to do some original and creative work along artistic lines.

Marriages may go and marriages may come, but you go on forever.

Marriage is a secondary; the individual's continuing cosmic growth is primary. (There was a long stretch in the race's evolution, you know, when there was no such thing as marriage—we were androgynous. This will return.)

If you want to be a happy, serene, positive, self-respecting and sought after woman, just concentrate on these two sentences until realization of their truth comes.

Then start being yourself.

At this moment you are not yourself; you have given up your strong, perfect inner unfoldment in favor of letting others think for you—you have meekly and thoughtlessly accepted the dictum of the always-wrong mass or majority to the effect that if a woman's sex is not active, dear dear and tch tch.

Is that an intelligent point of view—do you think it is?

If, in later life, you marry or marry more than once, won't you regret this deterioration era in your life that wasted so much of your time? Whether you're approaching marriage, in marriage, or between marriages, be yourself, young woman, be yourself. When you come back for your next life, society may have entirely altered its present stupid dictum on sex, and what will you have gained if you can't think your way through it this time to a more universal, far reaching, wise view of life's purposes?

OTHERS HAVE INCREASED THEIR RATES. We haven't—yet.

WHY?

WHY did THIS happen to me?
WHY did THAT happen to me?
WHY won't THIS happen to me?

WHICH ANSWERS do YOU seek of Life?

Are you bewildered, confused, confounded, pushed around? Does life seem to you something you must guard against? Do you feel insecure or helpless? Do you say to yourself almost every day, every week, "I don't see WHY!"

If you are living that way, you need help. You have tried to get help, not once but several times; not in one place only, but in many. There may have been moments when you were helped and you continued to ask your questions.

We all keep on questioning our lives—until we find astrology.

There is only one source of answer to all the queries you can put, and that source is your own horoscope. All other sources of help are general, not individual. Your own natal chart is individual.

Ask YOUR HOROSCOPE and be at Peace

Only ignorance (fear of the unknown) can defeat you. Ignorance of your own true self, ignorance of the shape of your life, past and to come, ignorance of YOUR pattern of life—these are all things that ignorance subtly fears and which wisdom knows and uses. Once you know more about yourself and your powers you will cease to be as vulnerable—you will possess an inward sense of sureness, of security that cannot be described—

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Get this completely individual analysis, including ALL planets at birth fully interpreted. ALL houses explained, ALL decans and ALL aspects. This is the most complete interpretation of the nativity at any price.

be a source of inspiration that carries you forward farther than you could otherwise have expected to go alone. Someone else can block you, thwart you, become the barrier to all you might have done.

And did you ever stop to think that you are inspiring some one and blocking some one else? You are. We all are. Being a decent, cooperating person of good will, you certainly don't like to think of yourself as an unpopular Great Big Ogre; you would like to know what to do to get out of other people's light.

Want to get past your own human blockades?

All right then, why not find out? That's exactly what Wynn's Comparison Service is for.

Astrology reveals why the same person can be a help and a blessing to one person and a sorrow and trouble to another person. It's a matter of the meeting of the two horoscopes, and how the planets from one influence the planets (sensitive vibration points in our natures) in the other. It's sure and unfailing. Whatever you feel and all your experience through another is in your horoscopes: mutual love, mutual resentment, one-sided love or one-sided dislike, superiority, inferiority—any and all human psychological possibilities are there.

You can look up everyone you ever knew and everyone you ever will know. You can use your Comparison Service right up to the last day of your life. You SHOULD use it every day you live.

Anyone born between 1870 and 1940 can be looked up in this Service. It is based, not on your Sun sign only, but on the individual positions of your nine planets. And on the individual positions of the planets in the chart of the person you are looking up, too. Use it for one person or a thousand; for anyone whose birth day and year you know.

There are certain people you can't very well avoid, to whom you are in duty bound—in-laws, for instance, relatives, children. But you can manage these everyday contacts better, if you know where the basic cause of friction lies. Look these persons up in your Service; then start out anew with better understanding.

Your Comparison Service is written in plain, definite terms. It leaves you nothing to do but refer to the correct pages. You do not need to know any astrology to make use of it.

Every young person about to face life should have this Service; why not ensure the progress and happiness of those near to you by giving it to them? You yourself should have had it long ago.
