MANLY P. HALL on GOOD and BAD Aspects

The Astrology of our FIXATIONS and COMPLEXES

The doctor, the minister and the astrologer have many disillusionments in common. All three come into close contact with the miseries of mankind, and all three discover that the human being is a very difficult creature to help in time of trouble. The physically sick man does not want the philosophy of medicine, the spiritually sick do not want the philosophy of religion, and very few of those consulting an astrologer have any particular interest in the philosophy of the stars.

The evils that men suffer from are all traceable to inward faults. Each man is the cause of the ills that befall him. But for one who honestly desires to correct these causes, there are a thousand whose only interest is to be relieved immediately of the results of their own misdeeds by some patent formula. Even those who suffer much are not always thoughtful. The doctor is supposed to cure with pills, the minister with prayers, and the astrologer with promises. Pills, prayers and promises are the panaceas of the morons.

When the astrologer, filled with high intentions and ancient lore, hangs out his shingle in this cold, cold world, he soon discovers that there is small demand for truth and honesty. Day after day in the practice of his profession he will become more disappointed and disillusioned as to his opportunities to be truly useful and constructive. This world is full of inquisitive people who love the thrill of having their fortunes told. They will flock to the astrologer, all bringing the same types of questions, and all heartily disappointed if the star-gazer cannot find in their nativities the promise of exceptional destiny. Ninety-nine per cent of the questions brought to the practicing astrologer can be listed under four headings:

1. How soon will I be wealthy and famous?
2. When will my big romance come, or when will I get out of my present marital difficulties?
3. When will I get a job? or a better one?
4. When will my health improve?

This type of question leaves the astrologer on the horns of a dilemma. The majority of his clients will not be rich or famous, their next romance will be just as unfortunate as the present one very likely, and they will not take any practical steps to insure good health. The astrologer must adjust himself to the more or less lackadaisical state of human nature or else become bitterly disillusioned. The redeeming feature is the occasional exception, and it is this exception that keeps alive the flame of high resolve.

Medical science, confronted with the problem of popular ignorance and indifference, went into the field of education with the result that an ever-increasing number of people are "health conscious." Health measures have caught the popular fancy and in time medicine will accomplish far better results through the active cooperation of the patient. The same procedure is necessary in the field of As-tology. The educational aspect of the subject should be emphasized. To millions of people Astrology is still just fortune-telling. The public must be taught that Astrology is the science of destiny building.

With the aid of a properly erected horoscope, properly interpreted, the layman is in possession of vital information concerning character, temperament, capacity and ability. Equipped with this knowledge life can be lived more scientifically and intelligently. Astrology should not be a science of telling what is going to happen, but rather why a certain condition is going to exist in the life of a certain person.

Man, coming into this world, takes hold of the bodily elements and gradually molds these into a likeness of inward principles. Many years must pass before the child, growing into maturity, will reveal the complexes in its subjective life. It is easy to look back upon mistakes, but Astrology is the only science known to man that can look forward toward mistakes. After a temperament is set and crystallized through years of addiction to innate irascibilities, it is difficult, if not impossible, to uproot these evils and begin again. The viewpoint is so warped and the temperament is so set that mistakes assume the appearance of virtues, perspective is lost and reform highly improbable. The proper time to reform the individual is in the beginning. The life should be directed into useful and appropriate channels of expression before it has had a chance to establish itself in false, non-productive attitudes.

The horoscope reveals temperament and the probabilities of dispositional peculiarities the very day and hour that the child is born. Long before the infant can speak the astrologer can determine the forces at work throughout the course of life. Health, temperament, capacities, inclinations, are all present and can be classified and conclusions deduced therefrom long before any of these peculiarities can be perceived in the child itself. To the individual this knowledge is of the utmost importance. In fact there is no science in all the world as vital to the human being as that which can reveal to him the inner workings of himself.

Some two and a half billion human creatures inhabit this earth. The majority of them survive for a time through a cycle of accidents. Few of this vast population have even an abstract conception of organizing life to a purpose. Each lives from day to day, ignorant of the reactions which extend from yesterday to today and from today to tomorrow. There is no organization, plan or purpose circumscribing human effort. The majority of humanity are sustained only by hope, a desperate clinging to a shadowy formless optimism. There is no real probability of achieving the things hoped for, or fulfilling the impulses of ambition. Yet having nothing better to cling to, man must cling to hope or else lose all semblance of integrity.

The evils which arise among nations, the afflictions which descend upon all classes, the miseries which all of humanity must endure in patience are all evidence primarily of inward ignorance—the lack of knowledge of self. All reforms must begin by reforming man himself, and man cannot be reformed until he is understood, until he understands himself, and until, finally, he understands other men.

Nor should the astrologer fail to include himself when examining into the peculiarities of human nature. Of all people the astrologer should most clearly exhibit the advantages of his philosophy. What most astrologers do not realize is that Astrology is not only a science but a philosophy of life. To understand the stars man must improve his own inner perceptions. Without the refining influence of a noble philosophical understanding the astrologer cannot accomplish a maximum of good.

Ptolemy, of Alexandria, the patron saint of Astrology, in his book The Tetrabiblos, reminds all students of the art that the prophetic spirit comes only from the gods. By this Ptolemy means that esoteric Astrology is a sacred science arising from inward mystical disciplines. To live better than other men is to know more than other men. That form of knowledge which comes from inward discipline is called intuition, the divine faculty. No astrologer can achieve to the highest in his science without intuition. This is the master key to the sacred science of the stars and comes only to those who merit it through dedication to human need and nobility of thought and conduct. Astrology as conduct is the key to Astrology as revelation. Man builds character, the gods bestow vision.

It is the duty of every astrologer to be a teacher, both by word and by example. Every time the astrologer reads a chart it is his opportunity to sow the seeds of a nobler and broader philosophy of life. Astrology is a sacred science perfected in the temples of ancient Egypt and India. Astrology fails in its most important work when it fails to educate. True, the seeds of astrological philosophy may fall on sterile ground, but it is the duty of the astrologer to sow these seeds just the same. He is a teacher before he is a prophet and he invites all men to live up to their stars as the first duty of the philosophic life.

It is an ancient axiom of the astrologic science that the effect of the heavenly bodies is modified and conditioned by the type and quality of the person whose chart is being read. For example, a tradesman, a day-laborer, a professional man, a cleric, a philosopher or a soldier might all be born with Jupiter square the Sun. All would feel this influence, but each would express it in a different way, according to his social condition, his mental viewpoint, or his spiritual understanding. We should say therefore that there are several levels of planetary influence. The various reactions set up by the sidereal chemistry differ markedly among different types of people.

In the last analysis there are no such things as good or bad aspects. These terms are entirely superficial. A "good" aspect is a point of adjustment or harmony between man and the universe, and a "bad" aspect is a point of inharmony or maladjustment.

The heavens do not send down destructive rays; although the reactions set up in man by forces which he does not understand and has not learned to intelligently direct are termed "malevolent" or "unfortunate."

The apparently destructive factors in planetary influence come not from the affecting stars but in reality arise in the chemistry of the affected part. Evils in the lives of people arise from their incapacity to live up to the positive aspect of planetary force. Evils in society have a similar origin and cataclysms which affect the earth arise from the conflict between the vibrations from the heavenly bodies and the lower negative vibrations in the earth itself. The earth's resistance to sidereal action results in the phenomena covered by the field of mundane Astrology and Astro-meteorology. Every aspect, good or bad so-called, is intrinsically neutral, but can be interpreted as a constructive force by one intelligent enough to direct its energy.

According to the Pythagorean system of philosophy, and Pythagoras was one of the first astrologers among the Greeks, there are two seeming evils in nature and one point of equilibrium which, for philosophical purposes, may be termed good. All extremes invite destruction and only balance or equilibrium insures survival. "Unbalanced forces perish in the void," wrote the cabalists of ancient time. Unbalance is the destroyer of normalcy and the perverter of function.

From an astrological standpoint unbalance represents lack of adjustment with the normal or neutral, reasonable or rational expression of the planetary forces. In every case right use is opposed by two forms of mis-use, both of which may be termed excesses. One form of excess may be termed indulgence, the other excess abstinence, with moderation always the reasonable principle between them—truth crucified between two thieves.

There are two ways of misusing the energy of each of the planets, or the qualities of each of the signs, or the conditions of each of the houses. Between these extremes of misuse is the point of normalcy upon which the security of life depends. The only way to overcome one's stars is to achieve constructive adjustment with the forces emanating from the heavens. There is no possible arrangement of the planets, signs and houses which is not capable of constructive results, and conversely there is no arrangement which cannot be abused and misused through ignorance and perversity.

Let us create a few aphorisms based upon this viewpoint:

1. Positive signs (Fire and Air signs) are more apt to extremes of over action; unbalance through excess. Negative signs (Earth and Water) are more apt to extremes of non-action: unbalance through inertia. For this reason positive signs act, and negative signs are acted upon.

2. Positive signs are Dharmic; that is, they are fate-building, or consequence-causing. Negative signs are Karmic; that is, they are reaping in the form of consequences, the results of action in previous lives. The positive signs are signs of sowing, the negative signs of reaping.

3. Where there is a balance of power between positive and negative signs in the nativity, we have sowing and reaping which work together. The native is suffering from old mistakes and creating new simultaneously. Whichever grouping predominates is the pointer to the general course or direction of life.

4. So-called "malefic" planets are Karmic and "benefic" planets represent new opportunities or neutral factors according to their position and aspects.

5. Nativities in which planetary forces are widely scattered or somewhat evenly distributed represent versatility and adaptability. Such placements are subject to two unfortunate extremes. The native may become a jack of all trades and proficient in none, which is the positive extreme, or it may result in a general impasse of purpose due to the wide scattering of forces. The individual subject to numerous conflicting impulses becomes bewildered and does nothing. The point of normalcy under such conditions is to build depth under broadness, so that each of the divergent factors becomes the basis of understanding, tolerance, human sympathy and gentle action. Scattered planets bestow the faculty of generous outlook, unarrowed by fixations. The problem of these people can be summed up with the thought—they must become broad without being shallow, deep without being narrow.

6. Heavy bunchings of planets in a few signs with great intensity of effect results usually in very one-sided personalities. A person who is one-sided is bound to be lop-sided. Heavy groupings of planets are most apt to produce what the world terms a genius and nearly all genius is unbalanced because it lacks perspective, and is rutted in thought and action. It is a generally recognized fact that genius is nearly always afflicted, persecuted and misunderstood. But such conditions have their origin in the life of the individual rather than in society. The genius afflicts himself because he is rooted in a complex of unbalanced factors.

The two extremes of unbalance under such conditions take the form of excess of enthusiasm, the driving power of heavy planetary unbalance; and the excess of discouragement or melancholia, arising from frustration. Both of these evils result in a definite anti-social attitude. The point of moderation is the direction of the penetrating power toward a balanced intensity of effort. Wherever fixation exists the native's first duty to himself is to broaden and become tolerant. Most of all he must cultivate relaxation so that the planetary positions bestow power without extreme of attitude or thought.

7. The astrologer-philosopher should always bear in mind that "good" aspects are usually more difficult than "bad" ones. The owner of a horoscope without "bad" aspects will never accomplish anything important in life, for it lacks the problem element. All so-called good aspects are negative and so-called evil ones are positive. Under the influence of bad aspects man attempts and attains through the impetus of struggle. Good aspects represent ends easily attained or results without great effort. The individual will almost certainly overlook the problems which are disguised under good aspects, but such issues as present themselves under evil aspects must be faced and worked out. Character built through struggle brings with it experience and understanding, the priceless ingredients of a truly successful life.

8. The astrologer generally finds that while most people want advice very few people will follow it, especially if it is contrary to habit, inclination and attitude.

Certain positions of planets are important as indicators of mental characteristics. The astrologer when he first examines the horoscope can usually discover from the chart the type of temperament he has to deal with in matters of giving advice.

The planet Mercury represents the mental viewpoint and afflictions to Mercury reveal clearly the biases of the mind and fixations of opinion. When Mercury is in square or opposition to one or more of the so-called malefics, i.e., Mars, Saturn, Uranus, or Neptune, the mental viewpoint is usually set in some peculiarity or complex. Mercury afflicted by Mars generally causes periodic streaks of mental belligerence. These people are hard to reason with in periods when transiting planets set off the Mars affliction. Such types frequently misrepresent themselves. The truth may be that the disposition is usually quite amicable and reasonable, but the mind jumps to combative attitudes often without warning, resulting in scenes and unusual outbreaks of stubbornness and contrariness.

Mercury square or opposition of Saturn indicates serious and sometimes negative qualities in the mental outlook. These aspects often produce a sullen moodiness and these glum spots which usually affect periodically are dangerous periods in all matters of choice and decision. The persons with bad aspects should at least try not to transact important business or make important decisions while these aspects are stimulated. One of the difficulties is that the average person does not realize when his own moods change, the mind with its natural tendency to defend its peculiarities frequently refuses to acknowledge the abnormalcy of its own attitude. Saturn afflictions depress, crystallize, fog and confuse. The astrologer perceiving them in the horoscope can often explain these facts to his client, in this way giving most valuable assistance along psychological lines.

Mercury square, opposition or conjunction Uranus often excites and disorganizes the continuity of mental processes. Uranus in medical Astrology is said to produce "fits and spasms" and it is perfectly possible for the mind as well as the body to suffer from such diseases. The changeability and inconsistency of the Uranian viewpoint and its addiction to fads and eccentricities often cause the most unhappy consequences. No type is more apt to misrepresent itself. Most persons strongly influenced by Uranus are kind hearted, well meaning, generous, co-operative people, but they are frequently focal centers of irritation in their home and community. Their jumpy, almost irresponsible way of thinking and their failure to be really tolerant breeds unhappy conditions for themselves and others. Uranus is unstable and fixed at the same time. The temperament combines generosity and a certain type of stinginess. They are generous with what they have and selfish in the way they think. They produce a type of reformer, who must reform in his own way. It may not be quite according to Einstein, but it can be demonstrated psychologically that an individual can become so broad that he becomes narrow.

Mercury square, opposition or conjunction Neptune is an exceedingly difficult aspect. Under this affliction the mind is influenced by the most obscure types of metaphysical and psychological complexes. If the person in whose chart one of these aspects is operating

Zodiacal Symbols

Herewith Dr. Kozminsky begins his new work on the symbology of the Zodiacal degrees; an enlarged and entirely revised version of his earlier work, Zodiacal Symbology. Next month the actual degrees themselves with their symbols and interpretations will be published in this magazine, the staff of which is proud to present to his American audience the work of this noted Englishman.

I

After many years of careful study in the endeavor to discover the special planetary influence attached to each degree of the Heavenly Zodiac, I am now presenting the result of my researches in this direction to the many sincere students who find in true astrology a safe and sure foundation upon which to build the temple of world enlightenment, which the fast coming true civilization will demand. From a diligent examination of thousands of natiivities I have reason to believe that the planets which will be found associated with the Zodiacal degrees in this work are correct and important in every particular.

I believe this is the first endeavor in this direction and I am sure that it will be found helpful in dealing with the many problems with which the student has to grapple. Especially will it be useful in determining, together with the associated symbol, the special degree of the Zodiac which rises at birth (where there is no measure of certainty in the known birth time) and as an aid to prenatal and other astrological considerations.

It is a question whether, when a fraction over a degree is rising, the next degree is not indicated. For example, Aries 1 degree 1 minute is Aries 2 degrees, etc. This is a matter of debate. Many eminent practitioners do not regard the change until at least 30 degrees past the exact degree. Others treat the degree as a blend of both, in the same way as intercepted signs.

It seems to me that much will depend on the general significance of the horoscope itself in the rectification of the rising degree. Apart from the old Kabalistical symbols associated with certain interpretations, many of which I have dealt with in my various books, the magical symbols in Comte de Glenstrae's "Book of Sacred Magic"; Eliphas Levi's "Symbols of Hermetic Philosophy"; Antonio Giuther's "Rosicrucian Symbols" (18th century); Francis Barrett's "Symbols of the Mansions of the Moon"; and the Rev. C. W. King, M.A. book on "Symbols on Antique and Gnostic Gems", I know of only the excellent translation of "La Volasfera" by Sepharial, the set by Johannes Angelus (16th century) published by Raphael, those by the venerable Charubel and the symbols of the decanates in the "Brihat Jataka".

The "Romance of Symbolism", by Sidney Heath, "Migration of Symbols" by Comte d'Alviella of Belgium, and works of a like nature, are only concerned with ecclesiastical symbology and have no intimate connection with the symbols of the Heavenly Zodiac. The Bible, in common with other great magical books, is replete with symbol and parable, and by symbol and parable all religions of the world are taught: for in the understanding of them is the true elixir of salvation.

The ancient method of imparting magical philosophical and ethical knowledge employed by the great masters was by emblem, parable and symbol, and the religious orders, from the earliest times, have not been slow to grasp the intensity of its import and to employ it to the utmost.

Having the evidence of the mighty past before me, and a full realization of the mystic majesty of symbolic lore, I feel that I am not wrong in saying that no form of religious worship ever endured without it. And no form of religious worship ever will. The mere written words are least when compared with the magical influence of a symbol before devotional eyes. Here we have Winged Bulls, Sphinxes, Pyramids, Dragons, Globes, Crosses, planetary symbols based on the evolution of the human soul, right down to those employed by the revered "Student of Astrology", (as he preferred to call himself) William Lilly, in his warning of the plague and fire of London, and to other famous students of past days.

Some ages have passed since the days of the week were named, and the symbols attached to them appear in some old books, though they are seldom quoted now. Thus for Sunday, the day of the Sun, Apollo's day, we have the symbol of the solar rays issuing from the auburn headed Sun god. For Monday, the day of the Moon, we have the symbol of a Bear. This name in ancient times was applied to a young virgin, in referring to her protective goddess Luna or Diana. For Tuesday, the day of Tew or Ty (Mars) we have the symbol of an arrow-head. For Wednesday, the day of Woden or Wotan (Mercury) we have the symbol of the Triskele. For Thursday, the day of Thor (Jupiter) we have the symbol of a hammer or Fylfot Cross. The Roman tree is known as Thor's aid because, so the story goes, it bent toward him, enabling him to hold it when, on his way to the land of the Frost Giants, he had to cross a river in flood. For Friday, the day of Freya, (Venus) we have the Cross Patée; and for Saturday, the day of Saturnus, we have the sickle.

In the Eleusinian mysteries, the symbol of an ear of corn reaped in silence was presented to the aspirant as a most sacred emblem of mystery. It is unnecessary now to delve deeper into the forests of symbology, lest amidst its many intricacies we may miss our way, for so very deep is it and so alluring to the traveller its fantastic paths. Later we may explore, but not now. It is better to raise our eyes to the stars in the heavens and draw from them some of that immensity of knowledge stored within them, as we may be well assured that if in this incarnation we gather a few grains of sand from the myriads of grains on that long, wide, and beautiful beach, we have done well and have prepared the way for our entrance into a realm before which all the fantastic legends of the Arabian Nights fade into the comparative insignificance of ill-remembered dreams.

Dr. Isidore Kozminsky is known internationally as one of the great thinkers of the modern world. He is the author of "Zodiacal Symbology," often quoted in the pages of this magazine, "Numbers, Their Meaning and Magic," "Magic and Science of Jewels and Stones," "The Influence of Precious Stones," and numerous treatises on anthropology, folk lore, archaeology, mineralogy, psychology and occult subjects. He was Library Secretary of The Royal Anthropological Society of Australasia, as well as co-editor of "Science of Man." His numerous academic degrees and fellowships indicate recognition of his high attainments in the fields of physical and metaphysical science.

II

Before proceeding it may be interesting to contemplate the planets, signs and zodiac as shown to us in symbols. We are thus considering the great alphabets of the most ancient science in the world which will be a potent factor in lifting the minds of men from the dense materialism of the Earth to the starlit mansions of Heaven. Thence he will receive and understand his true mission.

The book of the Heavens is the veritable law of God; the only book God ever showed to man, the only book He ever will show. This great book of guidance and redemption must be read and understood. It will give man back his lost Eden and turn his soul from destruction and wickedness to love and freedom.

The whole symbology of the planets is contained in the semi-circle, the circle, and the cross. The semi-circle represents spirit,§ the circle, soul,§ the cross, body, matter.

The new moon semi-circle is symbolic of the spirit new-born into the world of matter; the old moon of the spirit leaving the earth:

The Sun is the big soul (solar) circle with 7 mystic semi-circles raying from it and a dot in the center indicating the Unknown God:

The planet Mercury represents the Trinity and the 3-fold nature of man.

§ According to other authorities, the circle represents Spirit, the semi-circle, Soul.—Editor.

It is composed of a semi-circle, a circle, and a cross:

A true child of Mercury strives to understand all planes of existence.

The planet, Venus is composed of soul and body—a circle above a cross:

The planet Mars has matter above and soul below:

The planet Saturn has matter above and spirit below:

The two planets Mars and Saturn express the dominance and pain of matter through which man passes on his voyage of experience. "Take your cross and follow me."

Now comes the great Uranus, the planet of the approaching new age. Uranus has the two spirit symbols back to back separated by the cross of matter, on which is the soul expressed by a small circle:

Matter held in the grip of the spirit, the understanding of which is greater than that expressed by the single but elevated semi-circle of Mercury. Uranus is threefold and has affinity with Mercury.

The psychic Neptune concludes the planets; formed as Mercury is, with a surmounting semi-circle above a cross, below which as in the case of Uranus is a small circle:

Like Mercury and Uranus, Neptune contains the 3-fold powers spirit, matter, and soul.

Then follow the three symbols the Moon's North Node (Caput Draconis), Moon's South Node (Cauda Draconis) and the Part of Fortune (Pars Fortunae). The Moons' North Node is expressed by a semi-circle inverted, meaning blessings flowing onto the earth:

The Moon's South Node is reversely symbolized:

The familiar horseshoe was of old taken to represent the North Lunar Node, and in this connection was nailed to the masts of ships. By reversing the horseshoe, as is done so much today, the South Node is accepted as a symbol, and this is incorrect. The North Node is a symbol of vigor, energy, action and application which lead to accomplishment. The South Node is one of comparative weakness. There are several symbols misused in the same way today: during the black magic of the last world war the triangle was employed as a symbol—point downwards! An inverted trinity. Another misuse of symbols is the popularity of the 4 leaved shamrock. It is told that the shamrock was brought by St. Patrick into Ireland to teach the Irish the doctrine of the Trinity—the power of the trine in astro-philosophy. Pliny wrote that no snakes would go where shamrocks grew, and St. Patrick is said to have driven the reptiles from the Emerald Isle. A four-leaved shamrock would express what is indicated in Astrology by the square.

The Part of Fortune, an ancient Egyptian sign for property or possessions, is a circle surrounding a cross:

which indicates matter in the grip of the soul.

We will now pass on to the Zodiac. The first sign, Aries, the Ram, derives its symbol from the ram's horns and face:

The second sign, Taurus, the Bull, derives its symbol from the horns and face of the Bull:

The third sign, Gemini, the Twins, from two upright poles representing the Twins hand in hand:

The fourth sign, Cancer, the crab, from the crab:

The fifth sign, Leo, from the tail of the lion:

The sixth sign, Virgo, the Maid, from an old hand plough with the cord attached:

The seventh sign, Libra, the Scales, from a pair of Scales:

The eighth sign, Scorpio, from the tail of the creature:

The ninth sign, Sagittarius, from an arrow:

The tenth sign, Capricorn, from a goat's head with a rope attached:

The eleventh sign, Aquarius, from the Egyptian letter Mem. It symbolized the flowing water:

The twelfth sign, Pisces, represents Venus and Cupid, when to escape the giant Typhon in his wrath, they changed themselves into two fishes:

III

At an early age I discovered that I had a special faculty of seeing things that my playmates could not see. This often gave me the desire to isolate myself in order that I could see in solitude, and be joyed by delightful scenes which seemed to carry me far, far away from earth and material things. To be alone in old woods was to be in wonderland, and I would gladly go to bed "like a good boy" because in the darkness unearthly lights would shine, and amidst forest trees and ethereal flowers I would see the lovely faces of radiant beings that I knew were not of earth.

Once I told my mother. She was the daughter of an honored English family; she too had her visions. Relatives advised taking me to an eye specialist!, but my mother smiled and said, "He'll grow out of it."

I did not grow out of it.

Inwardly I felt my mother knew. She had sympathy of feeling, and did not desire to interfere with her son's spiritual wanderings.

As I grew older and roamed the world, the fairy lands faded away amidst the struggles of material life. Then they came again with renewed vigor: spiritual people came instead of the kaleidoscopic visions of childhood. What to me was the most remarkable was the visit of the Scottish poet Robert Nicoll.

This happened when I was a young man just out of my later student days. My books and papers, I remember, were spread over an old table and the work before me was illuminated by an old oil reflecting lamp, for I preferred this to the more piercing electric illuminators. A little past midnight I paused in my work and was surprised to see a handsome face before me in the far part of the study. Then I heard a voice, but the words were not spoken as I speak them:

"I am Robert Nicoll, Scotch poet."

I regret to write that at that time I did not know a poet by that name. But on referring to a biography I found that my visitor was famous in Scotland and known as the second Burns.

It is unnecessary here to detail the several visits and incidents which marked my acquaintance with this Scottish singer who passed from earth at the early age of 24. However, one night he stood at the writing table by my side. He was dressed as in Scotland. He placed his hand on the table and looking at me with those beautiful bright eyes he spoke. But I heard no voice; I only knew I heard.

"You would like my poems," he said. I told him I had vainly tried to procure them. He answered, "I know, and I am going to give them to you." "You can do this?" I asked. "I will tell you," he answered. "Tomorrow a man will come to you and ask you if you want any books. Tell him you want my Poems and Lyrics and he will bring to you the special book which belonged to my dear patrons in Edinburgh—the Johnstons." "How will I know that this book belonged to the Johnstons?" I enquired. "The book plate is inside the cover; on it is the family crest and motto." "What is the crest and what the motto?" "A winged spur and beneath this, again, the name James Johnston. I wish you to put your card beneath this and never to let the book leave you. It is a special edition as you will see and what you will give the man who will bring it to you is small."

He left me: his leaving was just like a snuffed-out wax light. I was aware of his atmosphere long after the vision, so very real, had passed.

Next morning between 9 and 10 an old dealer came and asked me if I wanted any books. "Yes, Mr. North," I answered. "I want Poems and Lyrics by Robert Nicoll." "Write it down, sir," he requested, producing a piece of paper. I did so. Half an hour later he brought me a beautifully bound volume. I opened the cover. There was the book plate, on it the winged spur with Aye Ready and "James Johnston" under it. I at once put my card beneath.

"How much, Mr. North?" I asked. "Seven shillings sixpence I paid for it; give me two shillings sixpence more if you are satisfied." I gave him the ten shillings with grateful thanks.

There are other episodes in connection with this story and this book, but I feel that the chapter has not closed yet.

Some few years after this, amidst more troubled times, I was urged in dreams and impressed in my waking state to undertake a book dealing with the symbols of the degrees of the signs of the Zodiac. I resisted for some time but at length the urge was so great that I had to submit, and one winter's night about the year 1911 I started to prepare the work.

I was musing, wondering how I should begin. I mused, perhaps, for well-nigh an hour when suddenly I saw

ARIES 1°

Next I saw the symbol of the planet Uranus.

"I am seeing the symbols. I am being shown the symbols," I said half aloud, and not a little excited. Then clearly and distinctly came the symbolic picture:

A ball of fire bursting across a rainbow

This I copied as I saw it and then was impressed to translate it before receiving another. I remember waiting in vain for the next. The hour was late and I felt so terribly tired, and no more came that cold night.

Often and often I sat waiting. At times three or four would come, never more. At other times one only would appear, and be brushed away to make room for another instead of the original.

And so I struggled on, cheered by my wonderful wife, by her alone, until after five years I wrote my last symbol:

PISCES 30° URANUS

In my next article I shall begin the interpretation of the symbols of the degrees of the Zodiac, commencing with the first degree of Aries.

WORLD WAR?

Viewing Developments in Europe

By Harold Francis Mann

Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia has given the prestige of the League of Nations a staggering blow.

This cannot be denied, but it does not necessarily mean the League is dead.

A calamity rightly handled can become an opportunity for some strong leader to arise and assume command. The Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin is apparently one fitted to step into the position that needs filling.

Recently, at a meeting of the League after the conquest of Ethiopia by Italy, when Sir Anthony Eden invited the representatives of Ethiopia to the council table, Aloisi, the Italian delegate, promptly objected and threatened to withdraw, causing the Council to postpone consideration of the Ethiopian question until June 16th. If Sir Anthony has even a modest knowledge of Astrology, he knows that on June 19th there will be an eclipse of the Sun which will affect whatever is done at that meeting (this is written in mid-May, 1936), as well as practically every important ruler in the world.

This eclipse falls in the 28th degree of Gemini and is of great import.

It is in the same decan with Eden's Sun and Neptune, Neptune ruling his Equilibrium 10th (occupation, reputation, position, political effectiveness). With Sun ruling 3rd in this same chart and disposer of his Mars, an unhappy time is foreshadowed for Eden. He will have to beware of secret intrigues and some personal danger to himself.

In Baldwin's Sun Equilibrium this eclipse falls square to his Moon-Mars conjunction in his 2nd house. With Moon ruling 12th and Mars the 4th, this would seem Baldwin's opening for an end to secret activities concerning the League. This same influence also threatens some friction between Baldwin and foreign minister Eden. Will they separate?

In the horoscope of the League (Sun Equi), this eclipse falls in the 6th, trine to Uranus in Aquarius in the 2nd, and trine by decan to Mars in the 10th—the nature of these planets promising a stormy session. In the radical horoscope of the League it falls in the 12th, square by decan to the Moon in the 3rd, indicating important secrets concerning members of the League could be brought to the light of publicity.

In Mussolini's horoscope this eclipse squares by decan his Uranus in Virgo in his 10th. In the chart of the Kingdom of Italy it is square Neptune in Pisces in the 10th. Both indications of a probable early withdrawal of Italy from the League. In the horoscope of the King of Italy this eclipse falls in his 11th, trine his radical Moon in Aquarius in the 8th. It is important to note the King's Moon is conjunct the Uranus of the League in the League's radical 9th and in its Sun Equilibrium 2nd. Thus this eclipse will probably involve Italy and the League still further in matters of finances (2nd) and foreign trade (9th). Added sanctions? Or worse?

In the horoscope of the French Republic, this eclipse falls close to Jupiter in the 5th, opposition Saturn in the 11th, and threatens some embarrassment to France through party split-ups (11th), changes in ministers (11th), in finances (5th and 11th), and with her colonies (5th) and treaty allies (11th).

In the radical horoscope of the Emperor of Japan this eclipse falls conjunct his Neptune in the 7th (war or peace angle), in decan square to his Moon in the 9th, stirring foreign relations and commerce critically.

Stalin's radical Mercury in Sagittarius receives this eclipse by sign opposition from the 8th to the 2nd, related to international finances and world trade. In his Sun Equilibrium this same configuration falls across his 6th and 12th, indicating possibility of new and secret treaties and perhaps the break-up of an old one.

This same eclipse falls on the cusp of Hitler's 9th, sextile to his Mercury at the 7th cusp, thus offering England opportunity to attract him back into the League (Hitler's Mercury being in Aries, England's sign as well as that of Germany)—or that this would lead to a treaty between Germany and England.

In President Roosevelt's horoscope this eclipse falls in the 10th on his radical Mars, trine to his Mercury in Aquarius, but square by sign to his rising Uranus in Virgo. In addition to trouble at home, this could foreshadow misunderstandings with Italy or Japan.

Surely this array of eclipse testimonies is not auspicious for World Peace!

The League was formed January 10, 1920. You will note Uranus in Aquarius in the 9th where one would almost say it had to be, trine by decan to Mars in Libra in the 4th: "a court to end war through better understandings."

Significant is the symbol of the degree occupied by the League's ruling planet, the Moon, according to Kozminsky: "The Virgin Astraea with bandaged eyes, being led away by the angels from the world flooded with blood, misery, injustice and crime. Denotes one of a refined and sweet nature who keenly feels the wickedness of this wrongly taught world, which would be God's own paradise were men fair and kind to one another. The native should not allow others to lead him into speculation or any form of gambling or chance. He is ideal in thought, and seer enough to see what might have been. It is a symbol of Sympathy."

Behind the Moon, which is not only the ruling planet of this organization's worldly affairs but also the representative of the people's interests in any public group, is the spiritual ray of the Sun which supplies the origin of light and life as translated and distributed by the Moon. Note the interpretation of Capricorn 20°, the League's solar degree (by Kozminsky) :

"A girl carrying a bowl of water into which are reflected the rays of the setting sun. All around is darkness. Denotes one whose spirituality shines amidst the intensity of the darkness of materialism, a seer whose destiny it is to raise the fallen to a realization of the divine excellence of man and to warn off the dark and opposing enemies. It is a symbol of Evolution."

The rising degree of Cancer 20° in the League's chart is also significant—it is associated with Liberty.

Baldwin, Eden and all others concerned can derive great lessons from these degree symbols, if they will.

With the Ascendant of its chart sextile the Moon, its ruler, in Virgo, and opposed by the Sun in Capricorn, the League is subject to alternate swings between the interests of the majority and those of strong personalities with selfish aims and purposes.

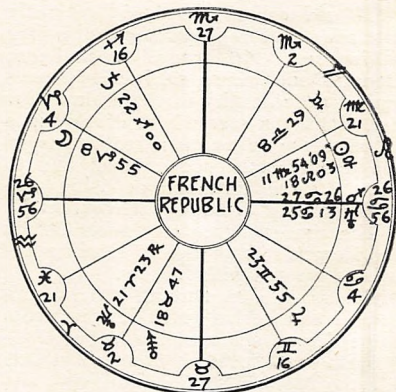

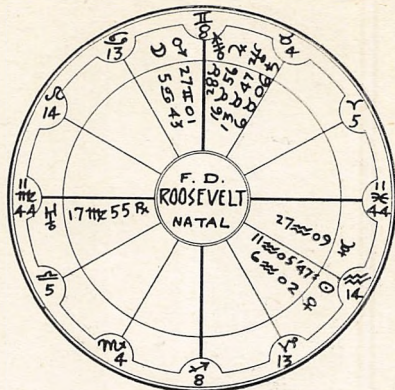

Neptune, the first planet to rise, is conjunct Jupiter in the radical 2nd, arguing that the League's objectives are farsighted and just. Neptune, ruler Midheaven (MC), is also trine Venus. The Neptunian MC shows beginnings in advanced thought and emotion which are extremely difficult for materialists (as indicated by Neptune's 2nd house position) to understand. But the trine of Venus shows strength being given to this organization by the world's forces of kindness and harmony, which, in the scheme of nature's laws, are as potent and as necessary as are those of war and discord.

The double significance of the Neptune-Jupiter conjunction sharing the radical 2nd and Equilibrium 7th has its negative side in nearly all that has been produced by the League's members and personnel so far. It shows the jockeying for individual personal and national power and position, for the lower side of the 2nd house is the seeking of worldly gain and that of the 7th is competitive struggle. The other side of these same houses, the higher and possible future side, would show in the pooling of resources and the sharing of each others' strengths, according to the high intent of the framers of the League.

Venus dispositive Mars (radical 4th and Equilibrium 10th) is the hope of the agencies for peace, for through this Venus in Sagittarius, trine Neptune-Jupiter, the bickerings and dissensions of Mars can be overcome. The Sagittarian influence of this Venus shows both the call for deep understanding and harmony of philosophy but also the internationalism of the ninth sign. The actual 9th house of the radical chart, with both Uranus and Aquarius therein, testifies further to the ideals of brotherly love that are present in the League's makeup and which can eventually be brought out.

But, through this Venus, the League Council must demonstrate the strength of Mars for the right (Venus trine Jupiter-Neptune), showing it means everything it says, treating all aggressors alike, not conveniently closing its eyes to the territorial grabs of one power and then setting sanctions in motion against another aggressor. When it is just and firm with all, then and then only will the League be truly functioning in expression of its great prerogatives as shown by its horoscope. That these desirable conditions can and probably will eventuate is shown by the ruler of the chart being at the 4th cusp (the end of the matter, conditions pertaining to completion of its functions) where the people's interests (Moon) are of utmost import. The Moon's sign, Virgo, indicates the rise of the working classes, with much excitement of this position by the transiting Neptune during the next five years. Neptune's transit is due to prove of great effect, because it will stimulate the matters already described as connected with it.

Stanley Baldwin's Sun in Leo gives him ambition, pride and love of power, but not necessarily the strength with which to enforce them. Saturn square by decan to Sun-Mercury conjunction tends to make him save what he can of the old, while Saturn's trine to Venus (ruling Equilibrium 10th) gives him diplomacy and tact. Saturn's trine by sign to Uranus assists in enabling him to perceive the benefits of wise changes, especially in connection with League affairs because of his Venus and Uranus being in Cancer, disposed by his Moon which is in conjunction with the Moon of the League in Virgo. Here is where his force comes in, for his Moon is conjunction Mars, particularly when dealing in League matters, for this configuration joins forces with the League vibrations—not only in this, but also in the conjunction of Mercury-Sun conjunction which falls on the Neptune-Jupiter conjunction of the League, these being very vital factors in the horoscopes of both the man and of the organization. They seem to form a natural partnership.

On May 14th, 1936, Baldwin stated he would seek to induce the United States to become a member of the League and that he would try to negotiate the return of Japan and Germany. Concerning the entry of the United States there is not room for discussion here, but I doubt that Baldwin's vibrations alone would suffice to swing the balance in that direction. Perhaps Eden could come closer to it.

Probably there are considerations which would induce the return of Germany. This nation was admitted to the League in 1926; in 1933, when transiting Saturn opposed the League's Neptune-Jupiter conjunction, she withdrew. But the 1933 Jupiter conjoined the League's Saturn and Moon, as well as trining its Sun, while the stationary Mars in Virgo rested heavily on its Saturn and Moon. That someone felt constrained to leave is not surprising, but at the same time it is plain the door was not closed against Germany's re-entry.

Germany can return more easily than can Japan, for the conditions surrounding Japan's exit and that of Germany were not the same, although there will be a time next year, in the Fall of 1937, which will be favorable for Japan's return, if all parties concerned will work for the best.

But the immediate present is of grave concern, under the eclipse already mentioned as stimulating the rulers of the world.

Who is responsible for the League's failing to achieve its true objectives? Its 2nd house vibrations have been misused, if not definitely abused. Either abilities or motives have been unworthy. It is easy to see astrologically where such could have been the case, for numerous nations and people with Leo strong have been involved in the League's affairs, with high powers of choice as to which applications of its tenets were to be made. Has anyone appropriated funds or other valuables to himself or to his nation? Has the bandage actually been tied about the eyes of Astraea? Has she yet been led into the "speculation and chance" of the symbol?

Students of Astrology are everywhere comparing the charts of the rulers of the world with the eclipse mentioned and the transits of the next few years, particularly in relation to the League horoscope, for here lies not only our hope of peace, but also the threat of war.

Helps To Better Understanding

Astrology is the science of man's relations with conditions which originate outside this Earth, including the natures and qualities of the rays from stars and from planets.

Erroneous opinion has had it that Astrology is an attempt to tell an individual's fortune—such is not the case. Astrology IS the study of how you can know the quality of the unseen in psychology and emotion and thereby more successfully regulate and direct your energies.

Through many past lives each of us has developed to our present state, some of us far along, some of us still near the beginning of progress. Whatever we are, whatever we have, is what we deserve—for Nature's laws are ever in balance. We may not know with our present external memory just what we did to merit all the details of our present condition, but there is that deep down in each of us which does know—it is our conscience, that which tells us it pays to be good.

We came into this world under conditions of planetary influence that revealed the character to which we had attained at the time of birth. This is shown astrologically by the horoscope of the first breath, and is known as the radix, or radical chart, of this Earth life. It is this horoscope upon which the forces of nature play during our stay here from birth to death, and it is the combination of characteristics (natal equipment as shown in this radical chart) plus the positions and angles

The Necessity: Venus

By Wynn

If we find a member of our family who doesn't rush madly after everything mechanical, who doesn't want to harness a million of his fellow human beings to his own selfish goal or hoarded millions, what do we do about it?

Do we hail him as someone of whom our branch of the tree can at last be proud?

Hardly.

We are much more likely to say, "Freddie probably never will amount to much. He's been fired from all the shops in town because he just won't get interested in lathes and micrometers and gimmiks; and when he tried to work as bookkeeper in Mr. Dobson's general store he made so many mistakes we had to settle privately to keep him out of jail. Freddie didn't feel very badly about it either, that is, not the way he should. He was sorry he didn't please us, but he was glad he didn't have to work there any more. He'd rather go out in the country and draw pictures of the trees and hills. And he's always planning ways to build houses which he says civilized folks could live in. He's good enough at figuring when he wants to be, but he just can't get interested in anything that's really practical."

Yet in Freddie we really have the potentials of what we need as a big part of our community, our national and our international governments.

For Freddie is not hypnotized by the almost universal grasping for power, more power and still more power. He is the apostle of Beauty. He would use the forces of the world for improvement of living conditions. He would organize the millions now under arms for murderous purposes for quite the opposite use: he would apply them to harmonizing, not destroying, the interests, needs, situations, hopes, comforts and development of the races of men.

Our particular little one-hoss town Freddie may see no further than fixing up the Town Hall with a coat of paint, but there are several slapped-about, discredited, laughed at Freddie's in every locality. They are of little value where the majority rules and they are not the majority. But they cannot be discouraged, for they are closer to reality than are their scoffers, and they know it. They will inherit the Earth.

Some of us may live to see the day when two kindly but husky men will call on an individual and take him away to a nice cozy, lightly tinted green room where he can be treated for his tendency to take an unearned profit because of the urgent need of his customers. This day will come when men become sufficiently weary of hurting each other and awake to the possibility of sharing nature's bounty.

Some of us may live to see the day when a great artist will be called in first, before the mechanical engineers, to design homes, office houses, avenues, boulevards and entire city plans that will build the morale of men and women. It will become unthinkable to pursue the too frequent order of the past and present: the artist, if called in at all, is handed a set of malproportioned plans of steel and concrete and told to do the best he can without in any way changing anything.

Each of us has in us the complete gamut of human strengths and weaknesses. We are individually and collectively the history of the race, from the dawn of Creation to Now, wrapped up in one pill and sugar coated with a very thin layer known as "habit." Habit is also known as the "civilization" of the place and period, shifting with the styles in hats and earrings. When the individual moves about the Earth he can remain in one locale only a short time before going native; the place and its people draw from him that which is like them and which was in him all the time. This is equally true of the white man on an equatorial Pacific island and of a freedom-loving plainsman in the city. Of course, the person is not instantly altered completely—a lifetime can accomplish only a proportional change—but the trend starts at once toward the character of environment.

For this reason, environment is of utmost importance.

For instance, our noise environment.

Harsh, blatant, rasping, raucous screams of horns, brakes, clattering metal on trucks, steam drills, whistles, bells, riveters, flat wheeled street cars, police, fire and ambulance sirens, gongs, radio song plugs, peddlars, blowouts and backfires. In this condition of having their hearing destroyed men and women shout at each other to be heard, even in the so-called privacy of their city apartment houses; voices become habitually raised till it requires but a hardly noticeable change of pitch to drift over into the tone of anger and opposition. We live at a constant tautness occasioned by careless, unnecessary slamming, banging, hollering, squawking, squeaking auditory violence. The ancient Chinese are said to have had a punishment for their most hardened criminals where they placed the offender inside a big brass drum and beat it constantly for the period of the sentence. But our present age of Western enlightenment has reserved to itself the privilege of building its own drum, crawling into it voluntarily and driving itself insane.

The rising call for hospital beds could be appreciably checked if we would silence or harmonize the noises with which we afflict ourselves.

And it is sufficiently serious to be noticed and attended to by the Federal Government. See statistics on increasing insanity.

There is also the environment of proportion.

A story is told of a distinguished artist who was being shown the buildings at Annapolis by his friend, the architect who had erected them. After a day of inspections, the architect proudly asked what his friend thought of them. "Only one thing wrong that I can see," the artist commented, "and that is: they are fireproof."

Symmetry is a direct influence on the lives of all of us. The ancient Greeks built into their temples the proportions of the distances between the planets, of the relationship between a bird's wingspread and beak-tip to tail-tip measurement. They discovered in man the reflection of these proportions in many ways, according to C. Aq. Libra, in Astrology, Its Technics and Ethics. This is the beautiful proportion of the Golden Cut, a relationship that occurs everywhere in nature. Kepler called it "The divine proportion." It is this: to so divide any line that its whole is to its larger part as its larger part is to its smaller part. This works out: the shorter part is to the longer part as 1 is to 1.618 approximately. Raphael, the great artist, employed this proportion in composing his most famous paintings, as did also daVinci. This same proportion is in the relationships between notes of the musical scale, on the frets of musical instruments and in the vibratory relationships of colors. It is everywhere as our key to Beauty.

Yet we find ourselves living in surroundings where "efficiency" has completely eliminated all attempts at reflecting a harmony of relations between the parts of buildings, plazas, bridges and arches. These are the ever impinging forms that fall upon our retinas and which are transferred to our indelible filing system of memory by the most sensitive sense function we possess. Does it matter whether we are called upon to view ugliness, malproportion, rude angularities, the general asymmetry of the part as well as of the group in every frame of each of the millions of our daily visual exposures? It most certainly does. Are we just the same in the midst of jagged, disarranged surroundings as we would be in rooms, buildings and vistas of balanced blending of line, mass and form? Of course not.

Our skyline is the portrait of our typical citizen.

The man and the city are the same: both have high and material piles representing great sweat and muscular effort scattered here and there, with slums of carelessness and disease, a few show places—but no order, no arrangement, every part trying to get along in spite of the other parts. No team work. No harmony of plan or layout.

The city's disease is crime.

It is directly caused by lack of Beauty.

The production, development and maintenance of Beauty should be a governmental function, because Beauty is an essential part of the Cosmic Scheme and government should reflect the great spectrum of Nature.

Beauty is the Venus Department of each of us.

This is a far greater and more important subdivision than most people realize. They would understand it better and use it more intelligently if it were taught early in life. Even a few highlights of the history and symbolism of Venus and its astrological application would immeasurably improve the race.

As occult students know, we are of the fifth root race that has occupied this Earth during its countless centuries of existence. It was not until the third root race, that of Venus, that the fact of generation began to exist. This is told allegorically in the making of Eve from the side of Adam (each of the three Adams being one of the first three root races). The first two root races were androgynous. It was thus that Venus came to preside over the mating nature, the urge to take a partner, to produce in kind—thus that Venus is patron of the family. All this is part of us, for we are the product of all that has gone before and this is history, the experience of our innumerable forefathers and foremothers, all of whom have transmitted to us on the blood stream of generation the structure of life's evolution from its original foundation in spirit's emanation from Itself.

Venus itself is not the power to reproduce—it is the urge to do so. It is the maker of forms into which life essences and material vibrations flow. Venus is size, weight, shape, mold, color, distance, dimension, width, length, height, thickness—hence comparison, value, judgment or relationship can be achieved only with the aid of this principle in Nature.

Adam alone in the early races knew no comparisons, no right and wrong. Another being appeared beside him and there was relationship in his own class. There was difference. There was attraction—called love. Venus is the patron of love, of attraction between beings, of willingness to cooperate, to help each other, to share both burdens and blessings.

Like every other principle of Nature, Venus is neutral, pure; but finds two poles in man, the positive and the negative. That Venus is neutral and not purely female is frequently found in ancient symbols of this principle having a full beard to indicate the idea of Eve was not that this newcomer in the Garden was a woman, but the principle of division of Man into man and womb-man. Venus is thus the principle of duality, companionship, pairing, mating, marriage, combining of otherwise incomplete parts, of matching, of harmonizing—not of but one half of humankind. The Venus principle is equally applicable to men and to women.

The symbol of Venus is the circle above the cross. The cross, as we are well aware, is the symbol of matter, of the unfolded cube (material). The circle is symbol of spirit. Venus is, however, more subtle a symbol than the mere circle over the cross would indicate, for it was taught in the ancient mystery schools that this cross slowly evolved down out of the circle, thus symbolizing the fall of mankind into the present world of illusion (Maya). For this reason, not because of the resemblance of its symbol to a hand mirror, Venus is called The Mirror of Reproduction. This has a still deeper meaning: only that which is spiritual can be reproduced—in other words, all forms are originally conceived in the spiritual Mind before external forms and the matter to fill them can be known.

This shows the thinking person how and why we are influenced by the forms of material about us. When we further consider that the principle of proportion under Venus continues into all levels of the seven manifestations, we see it as Beauty in measurement, vibration and rhythm, as used in art, color, music, esthetics, the dance, economics and even in finance. But only correct use can be beautiful.

Each external sensation agitates its inner counterpart in our natures. When we perceive Beauty in art, music, architecture, the human form, we instinctively pause, appreciate and experience a sense of strengthening. This is normal, correct. It is nourishment for our morale. Beauty is the food of honesty, of brotherly love, of peace. Without it, these qualities in man wither and die.

Our present government is being criticized for its interest in saving artists, musicians and actors by means of federal theatre enterprises in the denser districts. Perhaps the criticism should be that there is not more of this sort of thing—and better quality of presentation and selection of material, not that anyone is wasting time bringing beauty into the world in its present state. Possibly the millions of unemployed are those not needed at machines, in holes and at the galleys, but in the organization that is needed to produce and teach appreciation of Beauty throughout the world. We need more music, more art, more understanding of man's unfoldment to the harmonies of the spheres.

There is thus a definite, practical place in government for Venus.

It is the place of the pattern makers, the plan makers, the leaders who will organize esthetic growth among all classes.

Again it is a matter of education. When people know the possibilities of higher standards, they will get them under the law of supply following demand. The poor are indeed poor who have been denied knowledge of better things—the man does not live who would choose less than he knows as ideal. Everyone is laboring, struggling, pushing for what he or she considers ideal—the chaos and misdirected efforts we see are because of the chaos of ideals. The ideals of the poor have been kept poor. Knowledge has been willfully withheld in all nations throughout history.

But the time is now here for the flood gates of all knowledge to be loosed upon the world as a last effort to save it, for the ignorant among our leaders have in their hands the power of gods and know only of its misuse. Education is the only hope—and Education is coming to the fore faster and faster. The rising tendency of our undergrads to question will alter our formal systems of learning, if the institutions do not change themselves. The growing insistence of workers for the better things of life will bring a revolution politically—peaceful or terrible, but nevertheless a revolution. Our best plan as a government is to share willingly. This is bitter medicine for some.

Yet none of these changes will save the present race from self-destruction. Another form of war-making government, led by ignorant and jealous and ambitiously selfish fools, can be no better because of its name or method than what we have known already too long.

The harmonies of Venus must come, must be made real in our everyday lives—nothing else can count till this is a solid part of our system.

Cosmic Cause of Character

By William N. Deveraux

Dr. Harlow Shapley, in his book Flights From Chaos, classifies the material systems known to science. He begins at one end of man's knowledge at the fringe of the unknown and proceeds logically to the other end, where there is another fringe of the unknown.

In these classifications of material systems he begins with the smallest and proceeds to the largest, from the tiniest of corpuscles (those of light vibrations) up to the most massive of stellar galaxies.

In the course of these remarks I shall refer to some of these classifications, particularly corpuscles, atoms, molecules, molecular systems, organic and inorganic aggregates, satellitic systems, stars, planets, galactic clusters and galaxies.

In the opening lines of Flights From Chaos, Dr. Shapley says:

"It is fortunate that we are customarily unaware of our twisting, slipping, whirling, flying motion through space."

He then lists six of the Earth's most conspicuous "drifts and gyrations," the first four of which are:

1. Daily rotation.
2. Monthly revolution about the Earth-Moon center.
3. Annual revolution around the Sun.
4. Solar system's motion with respect to neighboring stars.

And as to the literal correctness, in its widest significance, of his statement that "in studying earthly things we need know nothing of our planet's cosmic behavior," I am not so confident.

This article has in fact to do principally with some "earthly things" which may become more understandable when interpreted in the light of reactions to these "drifts."

In Dr. Shapley's classifications, the study of mankind falls in the group of "Organic Colloidal and Crystalline Aggregates," which he dismisses with a paragraph, since "this subclass has been the subject of 99 percent of all books and articles written since books and writing were devised." Yet the application of his illuminating analysis to man's most important study, Mankind, offers a vista of paths of inviting contemplation as yet relatively untrod.

First steps along these paths have given rise to a thought in contradiction to his statement, which might be thus expressed:

How unfortunate it is that since we do not consciously recognize these drifts, it becomes so difficult to recognize that unconsciously we are affected by them and that subconsciously perhaps we are aware of them.

In the course of an unsuccessful effort to prove the reassuring degree of isolation from or insulation against these influences that Dr. Shapley indicates, I have discovered that in evolving through a condition of rabid skepticism to a state of avid inquiry I have followed the footsteps of many men of superior intellect and recognized scientific attainments. This has come in consequence of a cursory but open-minded checking of my own observations in comparison with the accumulated testimony and lore of fifty centuries of observation and statistics of human behavior in reference to cosmic stimuli.

The Theory of Cosmic Stimuli

As a tentative hypothesis, let us assume that a human being at the moment of birth, initiating independent mental functioning, as the first charge of oxygen galvanizes the brain into conscious activity, takes his bearings in the environment of this world wherein he is subjected to this complexity of balance between several systems of momentum and attraction. Thus he registers an impression of a state of equilibrium which to him is normal and which becomes his standard for measuring departures from and approximate recurrences of this (to him) normal state.

One might illustrate this by the concept of a kitten in a basket carried on the lap of a person in a wheelchair riding around the deck of a moving steamer. The kitten would be acutely conscious of the spasmodic motions of the person carrying the basket, but relatively less so of the more nearly periodic alterations of the speed and direction of the motions of the wheelchair, somewhat vaguely so of the speed and direction of the boat's travel, hardly at all of the influence of the tide, and wholly unconscious of the Earth's daily axial rotations and annual revolution.

One cannot say that a human being is devoid of a sense consciousness of motion and attraction: of motion in an automobile when it stops and starts; of attraction when he steps out of the automobile and goes down instead of up.

But of sustained motion when once it is established, or of gravity when he remains long in one altitude, he becomes quite unconscious.

Man's sense consciousness of motion is confined within a narrow band, consisting of a mean relativity between his own mass and that of objects which impart to him the energy of motion. This sense consciousness diminishes in inverse ratio to the increasing mass of such other body, as is seen in the fact that you feel an identical motion of a light automobile more than of a heavy one, or of a train, or a skyscraper, which often vibrates through an arc of a half inch without attracting the attention of anyone in it.

It is thus seen that man's sensory capacity is confined to an utilitarian octave in this regard, as is his optic nerve to the octave of so-called visible light rays. The limitation is not in the spectrum but in the eye, in the human sense faculty.

Even the sensory perception of the motion of other bodies is confined within relatively narrow bands of dimensions, distances and duration. One can see neither the motion of the minute hand of the watch nor that of the bullet from a rifle. Yet the clock hand motion is fast as compared to the growth of a fingernail, and the bullet is slow as compared to the speed of the Earth's motion around the Sun.

If the bullet were large enough and man could view it from a sufficient distance it would be fully visible and its rate of travel might even appear to be rather slow. Thus an airplane at a sufficiently high altitude appears to be a small speck floating at rest in the sky—even when its rate of travel is 200 miles per hour.

Man's sensory reaction to things which affect him is no measure of their potency.

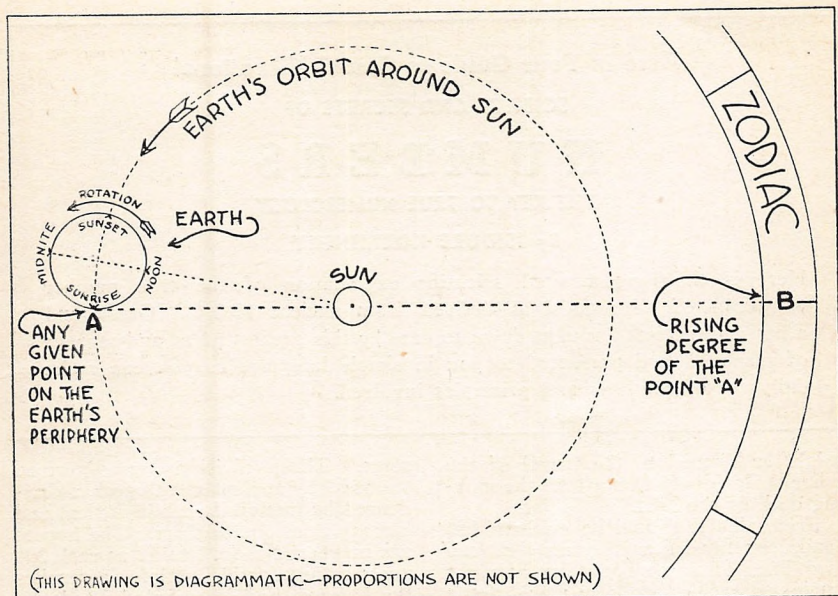

A man acquires a fatal radium burn without the slightest conscious reaction on the part of any of his five senses.

He is penetrated by an X-ray, which under some conditions can shrivel or neutralize his inner organic functions, without the remotest of reports being carried to his brain consciousness.

He grows in mass and stature, performing the cycle of metabolism without in any way being conscious of it. He has his nerves shattered by overtones he cannot hear. And he dies without warning from inhaling gas he cannot smell.

Our inability to perceive motions or changes in motion is no indication that we are not affected by them.

Basically, to each and any alteration of the character, direction or speed of motion of our vehicle, we must effect a re-establishment of equilibrium within our own system. We are customarily conscious of but few of these readjustments. For example, the mechanism of breathing is not mere habit but the result of a cycle of alternate stimuli: first phase, a cellular thirst for oxygen; second phase, a revulsion against the irritating gaseous products of combustion; and so on throughout life. Were it not so, in periods of great concentration you might forget to breathe and achieve death from smothering without knowing it.

The limited range of man's perceptions in a conscious way are not the true picture of the forces and laws which are constantly working on him and through him.

The Electro-Magnetic Phenomena of Motion

A consideration of the phenomena upon which the cosmicologist must base his inferences divides it into two main classifications:

- I Those phenomena which are inductive, or which are imparted to the individual by or through the Earth which man accompanies in its many motions.
- II Those phenomena coming from outside the Earth and which are communicated to him direct, such as radiations of energy from other points within the star and planet system of which this Earth is an integral unit.

The Earth's Axial Rotation

Let us analyze Dr. Shapley's first motion, that of the Earth's daily rotation in relation to its annual revolution.

Consider one of Dr. Shapley's "systems," a human being, on the outer shell of a rotating planet, making a speed (in the latitude of New York) of 750 miles an hour, the planet itself traveling at the rate of 75,000 miles per hour in an orbit around its center of attraction. At noon he is at the point nearest to the Sun, the center of attraction of his immediate orbit.

Hence, from noon to midnight he is traveling away from the center of attraction, while from midnight to noon he is traveling toward it. From the similarity of attraction and gravity, this might be compared with the difference between travel up or down grade, whether in an automobile, an elevator or on foot.

Also, from dawn to sunset his peripheral motion is subtracted from his orbital motion, while from sundown to dawn it is added thereto. This might be likened to the travel of the wheelchair forward or aft on the moving deck of the boat.

From this it should be evident that readjustments of equilibrium between two lines of force operating at right angles to each other take place at the four cardinal points: noon, midnight, dawn and sundown.

This is illustrated in diagram 1 where we see an arbitrary point (A) on the periphery so placed as to represent a sunrise point. Such point is identified by the degree of the Zodiac which is just coming into view over the horizon along with the Sun. This point is called the Ascendant. Thus, in this illustration, the Sun's position and the Ascendant are the same. Such is not, however, always the case.

Every point on the Earth's surface has its rising degree, a point in the celestial horizon which at this point on the Earth is just coming into visibility over the Eastern horizon at that particular moment. This rising degree constantly moves forward as the Earth rotates on its axis, advancing approximately 1° of celestial longitude measured along the Zodiac with each 4 minute interval of time.

Any such point on the Earth's surface, located by its rising degree at a given moment, will pass through a 30° arc of the Earth's periphery during each successive two-hour period thereafter. These divisions were termed "houses" by ancient astrologers, as evidenced by many biblical, historical and literary allusions to them. The houses are numbered from 1 to 12 as each 30° arc of the Earth's periphery reaches the horizon, and is bounded or identified by the Zodiacal degree then coming into view. Each house has been identified with a department of man's affairs.

The projection of these 30° arcs of terrestrial longitude do not always describe 30° arcs of celestial longitude, because of the declination of the Earth's axis and its varying effects in different latitudes and at different seasons.

The Sun is not always on the Ascendant and accordingly does not always operate through matters having to do with the first house. For example, at a location exactly opposite to the Sun (midnight) at the beginning of Summer when the Sun is closest to the Tropic of Cancer (June 22), the rising degree is Aries 0° . As the Sun will not reach the horizon for six hours, its location is at the cusp of the 4th house.

That these positions and motions are of vital importance to each and every one of us, I shall endeavor to bring out more and more forcefully in future remarks which will appear in these pages.

LIBRA HUSBANDS

by Dorothy Standish

If you do decide it is true love and go ahead with the ceremony, don't ever make the mistake of considering your new Libra husband one of the family. From then on, sister, you have a permanent guest.

And don't ever forget to make up when you go to bed, if you sleep in the same room with him.

It won't be enough to have the curl papers off at breakfast—you never should have put them on. Being beautiful, neat and attractive 24 hours out of 24 is only part of your job as Mrs. Libra—the other part is to find the hours required to get that way without your delicate and sensitive lord and master finding out how you do it.

For this sensitive bouquet of tender nerves, this polite and correct chooser of the perfect mode in everything from spats to truffles—this innate gentleman in appearance and word—must be surrounded by every evidence of harmony, charm, and cleanliness, while at the same time being unable to stand the evidence in your person or clothing that you have anything to do with keeping things that way.

He is perfectly willing that you do a lot of work. There have even been cases of Libra husbands acquiescing while their wives taught school or exercised a stenotype for six or eight years while they waited for just the kind of executive position they could accept. But if you have to scrub the front porch, you must do it in the middle of the night so your neighbors will never know you stooped to a menial task that might disgrace your husband.

No, don't ever expect him to willingly do anything around the house like helping you carry the furniture, sift the ashes, or wipe the dishes. He will put in from seven to ten times the labor wiggling out of it that he would have had to use getting the job done. His usual method is to praise you into doing it, whatever it is. "You do it so well!" is one of his stock phrases for inducing his wife, his brother, his pal, his father, his mother, his child, or anyone else who is around to do what he doesn't like. And if it's physical labor, that's the way he feels about it—he doesn't like it.

You remember the disgruntled parent who spent the first ten years hoping the baby would live and the next ten being afraid it would?

When you first meet Mr. Libra you feel ecstatically that it is almost too much to hope that he will remain as charming as this.

And then he does.

No, you won't be the only one who knows it either. He's the type you like the minute you see him, you and everybody else. Sure, he's good company. You instinctively trust him, the first time. You could even fall in love with him at first sight.

The trouble with this man is, he has to spend the rest of his life fencing with you to prevent you from tearing away that mask of charm and understanding he uses to prevent you and everybody else from getting too near and finding out his secrets. Don't judge these lads by the way they do it. They are instinctive masters of making it look good, reasonable, logical, and on the level. They can say "I'm sorry" more beautifully and oftener, and mean it less, than any male of any other sign of the entire Zodiac. "I am so sorry!" should be printed on a thousand cards for each of these men, so they could hand one out every five minutes—and save themselves the labor of saying it that often.

And yet there is no one more expert than Mr. Libra at the job of making you actually like working for him—or whatever it is he wants of you. He knows all the moves for repaying, with praise, sentiment, appreciation, and demonstration, your exhaustion in his behalf. His flattery is subtle because that's the way he likes it himself.

He considers himself sent to this planet for the main purpose of being its umpire. If you are his wife and someone makes the error of asking you for judgment when he is within earshot, refer your querent to Mr. Answers himself. That arbiter of all worldly frailties feels it his due because of his superior talents in revealing the great mysteries of which way is North. He dotes upon passing the verdict along to the pleaders before him. He sets up about himself an aura of peculiar infallibility, even if all you ask is the time. He will refer to his wrist watch, go through several mental calculations that are supposed to make his pronouncement more official and then award you the information that his observatory reports it is about 1:25.

Mr. Libra is a genius at not taking sides. He is the professional witness, the referee, the last vote in case of a tie.

It is this trait which gets him his reputation as fixer supreme of married life in general. He can go through another man's domestic whirlpool as its chief counsel for both sides—and come out as the other man's best friend and the second husband of his wife!

If you are already married, you are the natural selection of Mr. Libra for innocent recreation, for he thinks you are safe and sufficiently experienced to take care of yourself in the battle of wits he so loves to wage. There is nothing he likes better than showing you what a model husband should be like—if you are not his wife.

The undeniable fact that this man is an inveterate partner in somebody's team is only understood when we consider that his hypersensitivity often leads to his being the world's champion inferiority possessor.

Like no one else in the divine circle, Mr. Libra will take on the strangest type of business partners, sometimes the most obvious of flatterers, seemingly for no purpose other than that of paying their expenses and dividing his profits, if any, with them. It seems that with his natural talents as judge he could tell in advance they would be utterly worthless as helpers, have no ballast, security, or means, before he signed the papers. But no. He wants his name on the office door to be part of a string, or at least of a pair, even though it has to be "Goofy, Nobody, and Libra, Inc." The psychology of this is obvious: he must advertise to the world that somebody needs him.

For this reason he can be the sweetest of suckers on anybody's list. Bear this in mind, sister, if you are his better seven-eighths. Grab that money bag and hang on, no matter how sirupy his arguments get.

Your Libra husband would rather feel than think very hard about anything. He has a big assortment of diplomatic tricks which together with his well-chosen words are guaranteed to manoeuvre him through nearly any situation. If they don't work, the only thing left to do is to get drunk. That is part of his inferiority fixation, when he has one. And liquor does some mean things to these lads. They don't take a couple of snifters in their stride—when they go for one, they marry the barrel it comes out of.

Don't forget: the reason for their first drink is usually failure, celebrating a collapse of some kind. They want to forget. They do forget. And that isn't all. They get on the longest, slipperiest slide ever known (at least to them) and don't hesitate till they crash at the bottom. They seemingly cannot stand disillusionment. Or being caught with the jam on their fingers. Or being under the necessity to remove that mask of charm and divine understanding and do some real, straight, thinking. To recognize that life may be real and they in it is too much—pass the bottle.

If your Libra husband drinks, have a grip always packed and a roll of bills handy, in case he takes the high dive at home—if he is at all inclined that way. Keep Libra at least six feet from all alcohol. They have fancy kidneys that are hooked up in series with their brains.

The foregoing are based solely on the position of the Sun and are, of course, modified in each individual case by the positions of other factors in the horoscopes of those concerned. Likewise, the following brief sketches are merely the reactions of Sun positions and are not to be taken as final or complete descriptions.

If you are Miss Aries and think of marrying Mr. Libra, remember that you are both executive types and be sure your plans include things you both can boss—different things. This is a good combination only when both parties are keeping the ideals always before them—a strong brew that works well only when used for the best of purposes socially and emotionally. Intellectually powerful; cultivate the tender side.

If you are a Taurus Mrs. Libra you may tend to drift into the feeling that he ought to be taking orders from you. He wouldn't receive this sort of vibration very happily, even though you might never actually talk about it. He is sensitive enough to get it if you just think it. He might be too willing that you do more than your share of the work of the team; which you wouldn't like. Get all this understood, if you can.

The Gemini wife of Mr. Libra finds herself called upon for much in the way of high class effort and intelligence—she can do it, but it keeps her stepping. It is not the spot for a lazy dame. Nor for one who objects to being told what to do and how to do it. These two can develop much in common if they will pursue the same objective in a progressive manner; have something about which to be sentimental and active.

Mr. Libra and his Cancer wife can often do well if he permits her an active or at least an advisory place on his board of business strategy, for this is a better domestic sketch when it is a good business one. Both are executive; hence, there should be a departmentizing of the layout so too many toes won't become bruised. He should learn to respect her feelings while she should regard well his judgment.

A woman of Leo married to Mr. Libra sometimes finds it difficult to give him as much of the spotlight as he craves. This may be a good blend where there are two spotlights, each receiving plenty of applause for their respective merits—but why marry for a fight? Or for a competitive struggle to outshine the person who is theoretically the partner? If cooperation cannot be arranged for, turn to the next problem.

If his wife is a Virgo native, Mr. Libra is usually a pretty good boy most of the time, for she has a way of knowing all about everything, even before he would have done it. She can see it coming when he gets that far away look. And she can see to it that he brings his gaze right back to the home fireside. And he can do much to expand her viewpoint on life, if they are combining intelligences. Avoid money motives.

A pair of Libras are about four too many for the same shack, for they are both very advice giving and both dislike taking it. Perhaps there is something else in the two horoscopes that could make this blend worth while, but this set of Sun factors alone resembles too much the two positive poles of a pair of magnets—they do not attract. If this is still in the contemplative stage, try to remain good friends.

When Mr. Libra marries Miss Scorpio they get along pretty well as long as there is plenty of excitement like seeing Niagara Falls and hunting for the first apartment home. But when the dust settles and routine commences, both are apt to rub their eyes and wonder. The motives for committing this brand of matrimony must be far from sordid or related to reputation. Keep this as highly intellectual as possible.

Libra and Sagittarius both have powerful intuitions and can tell if they care to what will the harvest be. The blend is more one of friendship and palaraderie than of the eternal flame, but if you are sure you have more than the average couple, try it out. Both can be just as selfish as humans can get, which might be in the nature of mutual instruction, if you wanted to get there in the hardest possible way.

Mr. Libra may think he sees a long lost mother in the Capricorn girl friend, but she isn't looking for a little boy who will come crying to her knee when she says those set-in-concrete words. And just because this blend gets along well in an office is not necessarily proof that it could weather the storms of the boudoir. If you haven't yet snapped the time exposure on this one, try for better composition in the frame.

A sincere and strong set of objectives can make mighty good results between Mr. Libra and his Aquarian wife, but they must be constantly proceeding together toward the same ideal. If they drop into ordinary humdrum, the end is near. Mrs. Libra of this pair will try harder to keep it alive after the light flickers, but it is something that cannot be done alone. Avoid the superficial; no substitutes for the real thing.

Mr. Libra and Miss Pisces are very likely to mistake their feelings for love, but this is one of the commonest of mistakes as registered in the divorce factories. The relationship is that of master-servant. Sometimes Miss Pisces likes to be pushed around for awhile—which is probably the explanation of the mystery of why this pair gets as far as the altar in the first place. Don't do this just to prove me wrong.

of the transiting planets during life that determine our group and individual stimuli.

While it is simple to contemplate the externals of 12 signs of the Zodiac, 12 houses of the Earth and ten planetary forces (including Sun and Moon), there are no two combinations (horoscopes) alike. We are all made of the identically same materials, psychologically and astrologically speaking, but not in the same proportions and relationships.

Some of the terms of Astrology:

Aspects are relationships between planets, measured by distance between them, having characteristic influences on human feeling and thought.

Zodiacal signs are divisions of the Sun's apparent path around the heavens. A decan is a third of a sign.

Houses are divisions of the Earth's circle, related to the various departments of human life, such as work, parents, friends, mates, etc.

See also page 61.

In beginning the study of this science, do not expect to understand everything at once—it is a long journey to complete wisdom. But there are many pleasant and profitable steps to be taken along the path. None of us knows it all; you are in the midst of many fellow students with whom you will be wise to share your knowledge.

Remember that superior knowledge is superior strength—never to be used for the exploitation of another who is weaker or less wise.

Read all you can find on this subject, but do not swallow any of it without giving it a thorough mental chewing. Don't accept any statements that do not seem like sense to you. You will never become wise by memory—wisdom is growth, not stretching. If an item you read fits in with your present equipment, it is yours—otherwise, wait and see. Do not be a believer; be a tester and a knower.

Happy Days

An interesting experiment was made recently by Ted Malone, one of Columbia Broadcasting Company's most popular features. We all know him as the cheerful reader of poems who starts his program at "a quarter of" and who quietly says "—Hey there! You can stop that for a few minutes and come over here by the radio to listen to this." He has the most contented voice on the ether ripples and we know he means it when he signs off with "Thanks for your hospitality."

His experiment was to ask his audience to make notes on the calendar during the month of March, indicating their happiest and unhappiest days. At the end of the month, each listener was to decide which was the outstanding high and low spot of the entire period and send in the results. He received more than 28,000 replies, which he tabulated.

He then called up Wynn to check with the Astrological forecasts for the days of March and together they went over the figures.

Of course, with no reasons for the joy or sorrow given, the entire gamut of human emotions can be imagined as entering into the picture, and the Astrology of generalities is all that can be applied. This is quite well done through our feature "Advice For Everybody" for March.

More people reported Tuesday, March 31, as their happiest day of the month than did those who selected any other date, this day drawing 1,694 favorable reports. Quoting from page 52, our March issue, for this date: "Moon-Sun trine in evening aids romance, affections."

The second high for happy results, according to Mr. Malone's listeners, was Sunday, March 29th, for which date we published the following many weeks in advance: "Moon-Venus-Saturn trine makes evening strong for affections, romance and with elders."

The least happy day, according to these same reports, was the 18th, for which we wrote: "Hasty changes, especially in home, marriage, show in evening through Moon-Uranus square."

Of course, some were happy and some unhappy on the same days, for no two people receive the angles of planetary rays alike.

Here are the figures. Note that more people reported on the happy than on the unhappy days of their month.

Analyzing The Motion Picture Star By Gemini

The figures in the diagram accompanying represent the results of my analysis of the planetary distribution by Zodiacal signs in the Equilibrium horoscopes of 230 successful motion picture actors and actresses.

Included in this total of 230 are almost all the Hollywood stars and many featured and supporting players.

Without the moment of birth being known in each instance these figures are necessarily inconclusive in definitely establishing the exact horoscopes of cinematic talent; but they do show the general trends of the astrology involved.

The totals for all the planets in the signs were: Aries 138, Taurus 153, Gemini 186, Cancer 276, Leo 135, Virgo 164, Libra 156, Scorpio 170, Sagittarius 184, Capricorn 225, Aquarius 151, and Pisces 132. These totals do not include Pluto which was in Gemini in more than two hundred cases.

Cancer leads in these quantitative figures largely because of the fact that 122 of the 276 planets posited therein were all Neptune. It should be noticed that Neptune, ruler of the moving picture industry, is invariably strong in the charts of persons who achieve success therein. The industry itself was unknown before the discovery of the planet Neptune. Neptune in Cancer is in its fifth house sign (fifth being the location of entertainment talent.)

The only planets of which Cancer received less than the average apportionment (19.2 per sign) were Saturn and Uranus; Uranus of course, has not transited this sign since 1872, long before most film stars were born. This doesn't mean that all you need in order to become a movie star is a flock of planets in Cancer; however, some so placed may indicate attraction toward, and ability in the principal industry of Hollywood.

Capricorn, the opposite sign, came second, with Uranus primarily responsible for swelling the Goat's figure; Gemini and Sagittarius, also opposite signs, ran third and fourth respectively. Pisces also ran, or swam, surprisingly enough in last place.

By studying the individual totals the reasons for this distribution may be seen. Taking the planets in the order given in the chart we start with the Sun.

A comparison of these Sun-sign figures with those given by "Taurus" in his "Who's Who Analysis" shows the same sign, Leo, leading in both cases but otherwise little similarity between them. Leo is the Sun's first house-sign (individual and personal application) and also the natural fifth division of the Zodiac (acting, entertaining, etc.).

The Crab tied with the Bull for second. Cancer is the Sun's twelfth house-sign, and the twelfth has close identification with the movies (Neptune's own house), while Taurus is the tenth (occupational) from the dramatic fifth.

Analysis of the Sun degrees determined August thirteenth and September first (probably 21 Leo and 10 Virgo) as the favorite birthdays of famed filmites. These two days each scored four. The following days each rated three: January 3rd, April 19th, May 2nd and 16th, July 29th, and December 11th. None of these days, or degrees, scored very high in "Who's Who."

Leo also held more of the Moon positions than any other sign. Leo is the Moon's second house-sign showing financial ability. The moon itself is important in this analysis because it is the dispositor of those 276 planets in Cancer.

Virgo was the runner up, one point behind Leo and one ahead of Scorpio and Aquarius.

The peak of Mercury's distribution fell in Virgo with Sagittarius a close second. These are both Mutable signs and angular house-signs of Mercury.

In the totals for these first three planets Leo still leads, but from this point on the Lion fades and Virgo and Cancer fight for supremacy. Adding Venus, Cancer leaps ahead. Excluding Uranus and Neptune this combination of planet and sign made the highest single score—thirty-five, indicating Venus' importance, as the artistic planet, in judging vocational ability in the celluloid and sound industry. Note also its significant house-signs in Cancer, the tenth and third. Aquarius polled twenty-three Venus's for second place.

Mars brings Virgo to the fore again tied with Capricorn, another Earth sign, for the lead. It is also interesting to note the low points in the chart; Mars in Aquarius is the lowest so far. The distribution of Venus and Mars was most favorable to opposite signs, namely Cancer and Capricorn, corresponding to their rulership of opposite signs.

Totals for the first five planets which some consider the most important occupational influences are, in the order of the signs starting with Aries: 78: 93: 86: 120: 99: 120: 95: 97: 90: 95: 91: 86: these totals compared with those for all the planets show considerable differences in position. Virgo, which only ranked sixth before, has caught up with the Crab, while Capricorn has fallen from second to fifth position and Leo now achieves second. Virgo's good showing so far can be accounted for by considering it as the second (money) from the fifth (acting and entertaining).

Jupiter was so distributed that only three signs, Libra, Virgo, and Scorpio, had a higher-than-average score. If the planetary distribution by signs were charted graphically, the curve of the Jupiter positions would be very similar to that of the Sun, the chief difference being that the high and low points would be two signs further on.

Saturn reached its zenith in Aries. Its distribution had the effect of dividing the Zodiac in two parts, a high area from Sagittarius to Taurus inclusive and a low area from Gemini to Scorpio.

Uranus reached its peak in Capricorn; from this sign there was a sharp drop to Aquarius and a more gradual decline in the other direction.

Last but far from least is Neptune. As the ruler of the movies it is of primary importance in this analysis, so I recorded not only its sign position but also its exact degree, aspects to it, and the Equilibrium house ruled and occupied in each case.

Its distribution by signs accented cancer, its fifth house-sign, most heavily as was mentioned before; and Gemini also scored very strongly. Those born with Neptune in the other signs were of course mostly child prodigies and character players.

The leading decans were the first and second of Cancer, which totalled respectively 46 and 56. Degree analysis revealed by these decans were tops, and also showed the rather uneven distribution by degrees. For instance: while the sum of the 20th and 22nd degrees of Gemini was zero, the 21st scored five; the 13th degree of Cancer similarly scored five more than either of the adjoining degrees; there was also a drop of seven points from the 17th to the 18th degree of Cancer and another bigger drop from the 20th

Whether the fixed stars or other influences were in any part responsible for this non-uniform distribution, I leave to students of those influences to decide.

Of the many aspects to Neptune I counted only the strong ones (conjunction, square, trine, and opposition) made by the Sun, Moon, and rulers of the first, second, fourth, fifth, and tenth Equilibrium houses for obvious reasons. But there were also many others. The orbs used were five degrees for squares, nine for conjunctions and oppositions, and six for trines. And only forming aspects were counted. There is still much disagreement as to the exact orbs of aspects and larger orbs would undoubtedly have greatly increased if not doubled the number of aspects, but I would rather err on the smaller and therefore more accurate side. Even using these orbs there were 248 aspects to Neptune, an average of over one in each chart. The Sun formed 32 of these aspects, the Moon 38, the ruler of the first 32, ruler of second 35, ruler of fourth 37, ruler of fifth 41, and the ruler of the tenth 33.

All those Moon-Neptune aspects might be related to the fact that in most cases the Moon was Neptune's dispositor. Which suggests many Mercury-Neptune aspects as Mercury was also frequently Neptune's dispositor; this is further borne out by the observation that Mercury ruled the fifth house more often than any other planet.

The Equilibrium houses ruled were naturally dependent on the Sun positions, so the eighth was the most powerful.

"To Everything A Season"

SURGICAL OPERATIONS

By Robert E. Dean

"What is the trouble, Doctor?"

Dr. Kennedy stared thoughtfully at his patient. Mrs. Weir had come to him that afternoon, complaining of a dull ache in her right abdominal region. An examination had quickly revealed the trouble.

"You have chronic appendicitis, Mrs. Weir," he answered. "Removal is of course the surest and most effective method of dealing with it."

"You mean an operation?"

"Yes."

"Well, if I must—I must," she mused thoughtfully. "Is it necessary that it be done at once?"

"Yes—and no," replied the doctor. He hastened to explain: "Of course, from a physiological standpoint, the sooner it is removed the sooner the pain will stop and any danger be over. On the other hand, since you say the pains began just yesterday and are not increasing in either intensity or frequency, there seems to be no cause for immediate alarm. And there is a real and very important reason why the operation should be delayed for a few days if possible."

"You remember," the doctor continued, "that my secretary asked you for a bit more personal information than is usually asked of a patient, and—"

"Yes," Mrs. Weir interrupted, "I thought it especially unusual that I should be asked my birth date and the exact moment of my birth, as well."

"It is a bit unusual," agreed the doctor. "You see, physicians and surgeons, in keeping abreast of the trend of their profession, are coming more and more to realize and give due consideration to certain very important factors which influence both themselves and their patients."

He leaned back thoughtfully. "Does this quotation sound familiar to you? 'To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven.'"

"Why, yes, I have heard it often. I believe it is in the Bible."

"That is true," smiled Dr. Kennedy. "In fact, it is the first verse of the third chapter of Ecclesiastes. After study and personal observation over a period of years, I have found that it is applicable to any contemplated undertaking, including assuming the responsibility for a major operation. So—"

"But I don't quite understand," interrupted Mrs. Weir.

"I am getting to the point," explained the doctor. "Do you agree with me that the final outcome of any matter is dependent upon the conditions under which it is begun and continued?"

"Of course," she readily agreed.

"Well, upon the theory that human beings and earthly events are subject to certain very definite influences, which vary at various times, we have this rule—the final outcome of any matter is to a large extent dependent upon the planetary cycles under which it was begun."

"Operations are governed by the same general principles. The planet Mars and the Moon are the two most important factors which influence surgical operations. The subject is a bit involved, but surgeons who have given serious thought to the matter and kept records of their own particular cases are coming more and more to realize the importance of the basic astrological principle which Ptolemy established more than seventeen centuries ago. It is very simple: 'Pierce not with iron that part of the body which may be governed by the sign actually occupied by the Moon.'

"Now let's see," continued the doctor, picking up the card upon which the nurse had recorded the information given by Mrs. Weir, "you are suffering from an inflamed appendix. The abdomen and its organs are of course the parts of the body most directly affected by an appendectomy (the operation for the removal of the appendix). The zodiacal signs Virgo, Libra and Scorpio rule the organs found there. Therefore, with Ptolemy's rule in mind, the operation should not be performed while the Moon is in any of those signs.

"Experience has proven," he continued, "that, in general, the best time to perform this operation is when the Moon is passing down and below the vital signs—when it is in Sagittarius, Capricorn or Aquarius."

The doctor consulted an ephemeris. "It happens that the Moon has just entered Scorpio," he said, "hence this is not the time for this kind of an operation. Since there is no immediate necessity, I strongly recommend that it be delayed for a few days until the Moon has entered and reached at least the middle of the second decan, or about the fifteenth degree, of Sagittarius. Will that be convenient for your operation?"

"That will be perfectly all right, Doctor Kennedy," agreed Mrs. Weir as she prepared to leave. "And you have no idea how much I appreciate your consideration of these matters which are so important. I'm sure all your patients feel the same way."

"Thank you very much," replied the doctor.

Mrs. Weir (which is not her name) is a close relative of the author's. She repeated to me this conversation with Dr. Kennedy (which is not his name, either, but who is an acquaintance of long standing). I felt free to attempt to satisfy the genuine interest which had been aroused, so I simply asked Dr. Kennedy to tell me more of it.

As a surgeon, he was of course more interested in the subject from that angle. Greeting me cordially, the good doctor readily agreed to give me, as he expressed it, "an earful." He is a nationally known figure in his profession, and I listened respectfully.

"Some thirty years ago," began the doctor, "in fact very soon after I entered the practice of medicine and began to specialize in surgery, I noticed how often a seemingly simple operation developed post-operative complications, for no apparent reason, which seriously delayed recovery or even terminated most unhappily in the untimely death of the patient.

"In checking post-operative complications from effect back to cause, I was originally directed to the clue by a little paper-bound, dog-eared book, which I unfortunately misplaced soon afterward. Nevertheless, I had found the key to the highly important part which astrology plays. I began to realize the influences affecting all phases of surgical operations, both major and minor.

"I did not deliberately experiment, but I began to insist upon patients supplying me with their complete birth data, exact to the moment if possible. I kept a chart of the progress of the operation, no matter how minor, and of the recovery of the patient. As a result, I began to be able to explain the otherwise unexplainable.

"As you are not familiar with surgical procedure, I will explain briefly certain factors affecting the procedure in general and then particularly the choice of a time at which to perform it, if it is not of an emergency nature and is within the control of the patient or surgeon.

"The more apparent factors of surgical procedure are: the physical condition of the patient, his psychological reaction, the anaesthetic, antiseptic and aseptic procedure, the performing of the operation itself, the incidence of surgical shock, post-operative treatment, and possible pulmonary embolism.

"The physical condition of the patient can be determined. His physiological resistance and the continued undisturbed functioning of the essential organs, such as the heart, lungs and kidneys, can be forecast with reasonable accuracy by modern laboratory methods and scientific mechanical devices.

"His psychological reactions are much more of an uncertainty, being naturally tinged with fear and dread. This is an important point. You know of 'the will to live,' the determination to get well, which many times fights off the hand of death after medical science had failed? This is especially important in cases of operations for infective conditions, for the response of the physical defense mechanisms will be greatly dependent upon the general psychological attitude, for various reasons too often a factor of uncertainty.

"What is termed the 'incidence of surgical shock' is simply the physical reaction of the body as a whole, to the operation.

"All of these factors are links in a chain of events. It is a truism that a chain is only as strong as its weakest link. Too often the weakest link is at the very beginning—the selection of a proper astrological time for the operation, when circumstances permit choice.

"Please understand, before we go any further, that the rules for conducting surgical work by astrology which I am about to give you are of course taken largely from the existing text-books on astrology; these I am dependent upon until by constant observation I am able either to prove that they work or to disprove their truth and discard them. You realize that no engineer of today would conduct his business upon the assumption that all is known concerning his science. No doctor would think of being led blindly by anyone's arbitrary rules; he must, therefore, for his own sake as well as that of his patients, be ever endeavoring to know more through research, always exempting his patients from experiments, of course.

"According to these astrological texts, then, which I have not yet disproven in their entirety, Mars and the Moon, with their various aspects, are the most important planets affecting surgical operations and surgeons. Scorpio is the most important sign, and the sixth and the tenth are the most important Houses.

"See this birth chart? Notice the position of Mars? See its aspect to the Sun? Look at this one—Mars in what is called the sixth house. Notice its aspect. Here's another one: the Moon in the sixth house. Notice its position in regard to Mars? All right, these three charts illustrate three definite rules concerning the liability or susceptibility of the native to surgical operations. First, individuals with Mars strong at birth, as in the ascendant or midheaven, and aspecting the Sun or Moon, are very susceptible to operations. Second, Mars in the sixth house; and third, the Moon in the sixth house conjunction, square, or opposition Mars—all render the native very susceptible to operations.

"Look at these. See Mars? This man died on the operating table. At the moment of his death he had Mars in Taurus and afflicting the hyleg. Cancer of the throat. The text-book rule? Mars in Taurus or Scorpio and afflicting the hyleg. Here's another—died of a prostate operation—Mars oriental in Scorpio, square or opposition the Sun at birth. A similar rule, bringing about the same result—Mars occidental in either Taurus or Scorpio, square or opposition the Moon at birth. I also find that death from a surgical operation may result if the Moon is afflicted and passing through the sign ruling the part of the body to be operated upon.

"I have worked out some general rules which I always attempt to follow when an emergency operation is not demanded.

"Operations of any nature are more successful if performed when the Moon is waxing, or increasing in light, as bodily resistance and general strength is rising at that time. Be-

Mundane Prediction

By Val

The month is comparatively free from the type of planetary configuration which has impelled nervous tension and extreme apprehension during recent months. It is true that there would tend to be an increased measure of excitability and an inclination toward rashness in speech and action around the middle of the month when Mars and Mercury are conjoined. Then, of course, there is a political campaign. However, considering all the factors, it appears that mildness will mark the events during the greater part of July. From this general statement we may except July 4, 10, 14-17, and 24. On these days there is a greater probability of undesirable reactions to the aspects.

Except for a very few days, the political battle is likely to be far more tame than is generally anticipated. Despite a prediction a few months ago by Mr. Farley, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, that this year would witness one of the "dirtiest" political campaigns on record, it would seem that the record will be kept fairly clean in July. Such name-calling as there may be is apt to be done with a smile rather than a scowl. In other words, the influences prevailing during the month of July are not of the sort most likely to incite what some would call a rousing good fight. Excitability and tense emotions aroused on certain days (see dates given in first paragraph) will subside quickly.

With the nominating conventions in the background, one would expect the political parties to move swiftly in their campaigns designed to educate the voting public as to the manner in which it should cast its ballot in November. As far as the present Administration is concerned, this is true. Obstacles which may heretofore have threatened to destroy harmony within the party will be almost entirely overcome and to all appearances there will be an extraordinary increase in the popularity of the party, its candidates and its policies.

The Republican party, on the other hand, is strongly affected by saturnine influences, and in spite of noble efforts to get the political machine working, there is likely to be much difficulty in doing so. Although it can lay a firm foundation and make plans to be executed later in the campaign, the Republican party's activity in July may present a rather uninteresting spectacle in comparison with the swift movement of the party now in control in Washington.

Although the workers and farmers appear to be very well disposed toward the Administration and the Chief Executive, the latter should make the most of this situation in July, for affairs may not continue to progress so smoothly.

The influence of Saturn in the sixth house, ruling the fourth, even without strong negative aspects, may have a deleterious effect upon the general health situation, with probable emphasis upon faulty blood circulation, chronic "nerves", falls, sprained ankles and other foot complaints. There may be outbreaks arising from dissatisfaction of seamen, and new threats of striking in other lines of work. However, the opportunities for amicable understandings during July are abundant, so that difficulties should be more in the nature of a threat than an actuality. The unemployment problem remains, of course, an extremely vexing one. Saturn, posited in the sixth house, has a number of very harmonious aspects during the latter part of July. This should aid greatly in the devising of a workable plan for the gradual and substantial diminution of the unemployment burden.

On July 4, the Moon is eclipsed at the cusp of the fourth house, (west of Washington), having just passed the opposition of Mars. An especially boisterous Independence Day is indicated, with an over-abundant use of firearms or fireworks. The influences, though for the most part promising a pleasant, care-free holiday (Sun conjunction Venus), are not conducive to a "safe and sane 4th." Those who are immature either should not be permitted to handle fireworks or should be strictly cautioned as to their use. In traveling, also, an extra ounce of precaution is advisable. Otherwise casualties may increase.

The aviation industry can benefit greatly through the development of new apparatus and new methods. Air transport systems will be well repaid in patronage for improvements in their service. The stellar forces in July are quite favorable for this purpose. Air travel should increase considerably. There are, however, a few days when the influences are a little less harmonious, including July 12-13, 19, 26-27, and 31. It should be noted that during the final week of the month the Sun and Mercury in Leo are in negative aspect with Uranus. It is recommended that special attention be given to ignition systems. We shall have more to say of this in next month's article.

It would be well for the student to observe closely the events around July 19. On this date the Sun is in conjunction with Pluto. There is yet much to be learned concerning the dominion of Pluto in Astrology. It appears to have an intimate relation to certain of the more subtle cosmic vibrations. The effects of Pluto will be given special impetus in July by reason of the fact that the New Moon on the 18th occurs in conjunction with that planet in the tenth house of the lunation map. Moreover, during the first week of August, Mars reaches the conjunction of Pluto, at the same time giving excitation to the conjunction of the luminaries with Pluto. The period from the middle of July to the 10th of August is a particularly good one in which to watch for outstanding developments which may be attributed largely to the influences of Pluto.

With the ninth house brought into much prominence in the map for the July 4 lunation by the presence of the conjoined Sun and Venus as well as of Mars and Mercury, the first three being in the watery Cancer, it is clear that there will be an abundance of foreign travel during July, particularly pleasure voyages. Large tourist parties, especially of young people and of groups representing Mars and Mercury activities, will be numerous. On the whole, the month is a fine one for such voyages and for improvement in foreign commerce.

It is expected that the international Olympic Games will continue during July to attract the attention of sport fans. American participants in these games will be aided by very harmonious influences. Referring to the maps prepared for the lunations of July 4 and 18, we find that in both of them the fifth house, though not occupied by any planet, is ruled by Uranus, which has no major negative aspects. On the contrary, it has a number of positive aspects, among which should be mentioned the sextile of Mars, a significator of activity, force, sports and athletics. Furthermore, Uranus is sextile Mercury, often symbolized by the winged foot. It is the writer's judgment that in any exhibition of physical or athletic prowess during July, especially the first half of the month, the representatives of this country will have remarkable success. The Uranian implication is that record-breaking feats will be achieved.

MUNDANE PREDICTION

Incidentally, the positive rays of Mars and Mercury to the ruler of the fifth cusp are from the water sign Cancer. Outstanding success may arise from water sports. However, this is not exclusive, inasmuch as the sign on the fifth cusp is the airy Aquarius and the ruler of this sign is in the earthy Taurus.

There is an absorbing interest in observing from day to day the effects of planetary vibrations in the shaping of mundane affairs. One gains a perspective which enables one to appreciate the incidents of the day not as isolated episodes but as threads interwoven into the fabric of a larger scheme. When we suggest, as we did in the April article, that the conjunction of Mars and Uranus in Taurus would tend to incite conditions in India and Ireland that would bring them into world-wide prominence, stirring them up politically and socially, we merely apply astrological rules. When in April it actually occurs that India begins again to show signs of activity more or less threatening to the tranquillity of the British Empire and that Ireland is visited by a renewal of outbreaks, we perceive these incidents in their relation to the entire picture of events during the next few years. Near the end of July there may be additional prominence given in the Press to the political developments in India and in the land of the Irish.

In Germany, Herr Hitler will find the shoe pinching him slightly during the latter part of July and we may hear again of provocations and threats against honor. Nothing really critical, however. Some of the situations may even seem a bit ridiculous to the distant observer. We may cite for comparison a minor incident which, though given some prominence in Germany in April, indicates the peculiar (perhaps amusing) reactions to particular planetary vibrations. In Hitler's natal horoscope, the Sun, Mars and Venus are in the sign Taurus in the seventh house, revealing sources of difficulty with other nations. It will be remembered that during the entire month of April both Uranus and Mars were in Taurus and on the 7th were conjoined within orb of Hitler's natal Sun. On April 15, the transiting Mars being near conjunction with Hitler's natal Mars, Mercury came to the conjunction of his natal Sun in the first degree of Taurus. According to press dispatches of April 15, an official newspaper of the Nazi regime gave publicity to the fact that at least two pedigreed bulls were named Der Fuhrer, and bitterly denounced this naming of bulls for Hitler as "an unparalleled provocation." Taurus, of course, is the sign of the bull.

The foreign situation in general is one of comparative harmony during this month. For well over a year, there have been apprehensions that another European conflagration might break out, fear being expressed on many occasions that war was a certainty at almost any moment. But those who have maintained these apprehensions have not been attuned with the real consciousness of the nations. The power of the consciousness for peace will be evident during July. There may be threats, provocations and rumors, but there is no likelihood of any general warlike outbreak.

Surgical Operations

tween the new and the full moon is best, not after the moon is waning, as bodily resistance is also waning at that time.

"I do not perform an operation when the Moon is in the same sign it was in at birth, or when it is applying closely to the square or opposition of the Sun, Jupiter, Saturn, or Mars.

"I have found from observation and experience that the Moon applying to any aspect of Mars tends to danger of inflammation and post-operative complications.

"The Sun in the sign ruling the part upon which the operation is to be performed is also an unwise time; so is a Mars hour.

The Occult Story of the Earth

by L. A. Wilmot

(The title and much of the material of this article are taken from a Manuscript by James P. Gross, M. A., to which I have been given access.)

The fifth house always has been concerned with sports, amusements, children, chance-taking, and love, and the connection of these with Sagittarius, the original fifth house-sign, certainly is a more natural one than with Leo, which is on the fifth cusp of the Ptolemaic Zodiac. Sagittarius is represented in the Zodiac by the Centaur, a being half man and half horse, holding a bow and arrow. The most famous of the centaurs was Cheiron, who was celebrated for his skill in hunting, music, gymnastics, prophecy, and as a teacher. It is through the last named role that we trace the connection of Sagittarius and the fifth house with schools and their occupants. Thus all of the astrological ideas associated with the signs may be traced to mythology, which undoubtedly was the religion of the ancients.

The original sixth house-sign was Capricorn, ruled by Lucifer (Satan). The function of Lucifer, the "light-bringer," as a servant of the Most High, was that of priest, and part of the priestly office was that of healing, a matter related to the sixth house. Lucifer was banished from his sign in the heavens because of his unwillingness to continue his life of service to others. He was carried away by his selfish personal interests and ambition to rule—still the traditional weaknesses of Capricorn. Saturn, originally ruler of Taurus, took over Lucifer's sign upon the abdication of the latter, but it is to Lucifer and not to Saturn that the traditional sixth house ideas of service and healing are to be traced. The goat, Capricorn's symbol, is perhaps suggestive of the association of small animals with the sixth house.

It has long been a mystery to some astrological students why Libra, the one inanimate sign of the zodiac, should be associated with marriage. Libra's original rulers were Mercury and Athene, neither of whom in the least suggest anything connected with marriage. Even Venus, who gave up her own sign, Scorpio, when she took over Libra, certainly is out of her element in an air sign as, presiding over procreation, she naturally belongs with the watery triplicity. The seventh house association also is an enigma, for the seventh is known not only as the house of marriage, but of open enemies and litigation as well.

Even when we turn to the original Zodiac, which placed Aquarius on the cusp of the seventh, little light is thrown on the problem, for Mars, the war-god, was ruler of that sign. It is of course owing to this fact that war and opponents are tied up with the seventh house; but marriage—?

Leo, the original first sign, and Aquarius, the seventh, are both male; the rulers, Sun and Pluto, and Mars are male. Mars has been termed "the bridegroom," but where is the bride? The only assumption left is, that there is a natural affinity between the first and seventh houses because they complement each other.

It is hardly to be wondered at that marriage, as we now know it, even at its best is an uncertain proposition; not only as an astrological problem, but also in practical life. The Biblical statement, "Male and female created

He them," should be interpreted to mean that Man originally was created a bisexual being, that is, male and female in one. This, by the way, eliminates some of the apparent inconsistencies in Genesis.

There is nothing, so far as I can trace, in Astrology that would make physical union a seventh house affair. The original "marriage" was a fifth-eleventh union—that of Terra (Earth) and Uranus (Heaven), Terra being ruler of the original fifth house-sign, Sagittarius, while Uranus was ruler of the eleventh, Gemini. No union of the sexes was implied, that of Mars and Venus, which came later, being nothing more than a partnership.

My conclusion is, that "in the beginning" there was "no marrying or giving in marriage," nor could there be, as Man was created a bisexual being. Original Man and Adamic Man were of two separate races or creations, which explains the otherwise puzzling Biblical statement: "There were giants in the Earth in those days; and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them. . . ."

"In the beginning" the earth's position relative to the zodiac was quite different from its present position, in that Leo was the first sign, corresponding to Aries and the east. The original rulers of the signs also differed materially from the rulers now allotted to them, with the exception of the Sun and Moon, which always have had rule over Leo and Cancer respectively. The order of signs, however, never has changed, except for the transient periods when the sign which we now know as Libra temporarily became fused with Virgo and Scorpio to form one sign. Aquarius always has been opposite to Leo, Capricorn to Cancer, and so on.

It should also be understood that the "signs" of the zodiac are something more than mere abstractions, for they are composed of matter which is just as "real" as that of the earth on which we dwell, but of course matter of a very etheric and tenuous nature. The planetary rulers of the signs also are "real," for they are the angels, archangels, great spirits, or whatever you prefer to call them, that rule, govern, or control their respective zodiacal domains. The physical bodies of the planets are but the material counterparts of the lords, angels, spirits, which we call Neptune, Venus, Jupiter, etc.

I may truly say that I have a physical body, but not that I am one. The real "me" is something intangible; my physical body merely is the instrument through which I function. Bodies, countries, and signs of the zodiac all suffer under misrule. If I, as an ego, undertake to rule where I fail to understand my subjects, or where as a ruler I am miscast, the result is disastrous; and this analogy holds good in the heavens as upon the earth. On the other hand, a person, city, country, or sign of the zodiac will function well and prosper when under a wise and understanding ruler. Entirely without a ruler there is chaos, death, and disintegration.

When, in the distant past, Pluto, Neptune, Uranus, Dionysos, Terra, and Vulcan, the great planetary spirits, were cast out of the heavens for their part in Lucifer's (Satan's) rebellion, their domains or signs were taken over by the loyal angels or spirits, Jupiter, Saturn, Mars, Venus, and Hermes or Mercury. In some cases the change of rulership apparently worked out well, while in others the rulers appeared to be miscast. Of course in the end all things work together for good, but just as at the present time the terrible turmoil in which we live, with wars and rumors of wars, floods, death, and destitution about us, all seem so wrong and so useless, so it seemed when there was war in the heavens. We can know so little of the cosmic why and wherefore.

We of this earth are all basically Sagittarians, for the planetary angel Terra, original ruler and whose physical counterpart the earth is, "in the beginning" held sway from Sagittarius. We are all sons of God (The Most High—The Unknowable) to be

LOUIS PASTEUR

By Elsa Schaafer Erwin

In the horoscope of Louis Pasteur we have the anomaly of a man who was not a doctor doing more than any man of his generation to forward the science of medicine.

Unusual, outstanding, and interesting are the words that could be applied to the chart of this man, even if we did not know to whom it belonged.

There are charts of such strength that the quality of the native's performance in past lives is indisputable; this is one. Many lessons learned, many temptations overcome, brought the man we knew as Louis Pasteur to his recent incarnation.

"A great nation," said Disraeli, "is a nation which produces great men." France could not glorify Pasteur; he glorified France.

Read "The Life of Pasteur," by René Vallery-Radot. It gives evidence of a dutiful and affectionate son, a good husband and father, as well as an outstanding man of science. Few great men have been able to present such well-rounded lives to the attention of their historians.

"Notable Nativities" gives the rising sign of Pasteur's horoscope as Libra, the 26th degree. Carter's "A Concise Encyclopedia of Psychological Astrology" gives Cancer 25 degrees as an area related to science and states also that the areas which form the cross of the quadruplicity should also be considered, which includes Libra 26°. Carter also gives Cancer-Capricorn 4° as an area related to medical ability. In this chart we have the Sun, Venus (ascendant ruler), Neptune, and Uranus all configured together within 5-7° of Capricorn; Mercury is in the first degree of the same sign. Sufficient evidence of the medical, scientific, trend of the native's life.

The ascendant, indicating the temperament and way of expression, being Libra in this case denotes that Pasteur would have capacity to be co-operative, maintain harmony with others, and win their good will by means of pleasing manner and method of approach (Venus characteristics). His life proves that he lived up to the best, not the worst, side of Libra.

Libra, the natural seventh house, relates to our ability to sell ourselves and our talents to the other fellow (the chief example of this is of course marriage.) With this sign rising Pasteur had every chance to impress others favorably with his products and his personality.

Let us examine his chart for indications of physical strength. Libra rising does not always give perfect, robust health unless there are supporting aspects, and planetary positions: such as Mars rising or in opposition to the ascendant, or with the ruler of the ascendant. In this chart there is no such aid. But the Sun (basic strength on all planes) is in Capricorn, a sign which relates to endurance and old age. We look to the Sun's configurations and find that there is a conjunction with Mercury and with Venus (ruler of ascendant), which will help, and further that it is in conjunction also with Neptune and with Uranus. This group is trine to Saturn, disposer of his Sun in Capricorn, again accentuating endurance and old age. We would have judged from this at the child's birth that he would not be noticeably robust, but with sensible care would live to old age and through endurance become stronger as he grew older.

The satellitium in his third house indicates that his nervous system was likely to be sensitive. The Sun and

LOUIS PASTEUR

Venus, his life ruler, in conjunction with Uranus and Neptune, accents this sensitivity. From this it is easy to deduce that his nervous equipment would be under severe strain at some time of his life, and as his constitution does not look overly strong he might not be able entirely to offset or neutralize this strain. If prolonged, it would probably affect his whole nervous system as well as his lower limbs (Capricorn).

At the age of 46, we know that Louis Pasteur had a cerebral hemorrhage which paralyzed his whole left side. And yet in three days he was able to discuss his beloved science with clear and accurate mind. He was stricken on October 19th. On December 29th of the same year he walked alone for the first time, and in the following January resumed the silk worm tests on which he had been working at the time of his illness. Here we have testimony that his chart as given is accurate, for it shows this faculty for quick recovery and endurance.

Aries on his 6th cusp (health) indicates the possibility of sudden attacks. It also shows his possible weaknesses as high fever, illness affecting the head, and, because Aries is a movable sign, sudden recovery.

In his Equilibrium chart Gemini holds his sixth cusp, another evidence of the susceptibility of his nervous system, especially since his Moon is in this sign, and in the reflex sixth house, the 8th. The Moon (domestic circle) in this position and sign indicates the possibility of his physical upset if subjected to nervous strain in his environment—remember that he had an accented conception of duty (6 planets in Capricorn, 5 of them being trine Saturn, ruler of the sign). Conditions in home and his domestic circle were of great moment to Pasteur, being directly related to the state of his physical well-being.

What type of mental equipment had this man of genius?

We look to the Moon, ruler of the instincts and senses by which information is conveyed to the brain. It is in the 8th house in Gemini. This leads us to the conclusion that Pasteur brought with him to his incarnation imagination which had creative possibilities, a desire for education at an early age, adaptability, and curiosity as to the causes of life and death. (Moon relating to desire, 8th house relating to life and death or creation and recreation, Gemini relating to curiosity and adaptability.)

In his Equilibrium his Moon in Gemini is in the 6th house; this connects the above mentioned mental desires with his actual life's labors.

Mercury, having no positive qualities of its own and ruling thought in essence, takes on the qualities of the planets with which it is in aspect. In Pasteur's case, his Mercury acquires physical and moral strength from its conjunction with the Sun; will-power and originality of thought from its conjunction with Uranus; charm and free expression in speech and writing from the same aspect with Venus, and high ideals and inspiration, as well as comprehension of the psychic realm from its aspect to Neptune. These configurations in his chart of birth represent qualities and strengths Pasteur brought to his incarnation through perfecting them elsewhere.

The stability of Saturn is added to this satellitium of Pasteur's by means of a trine aspect (Saturn also disposes the group) and as if to complete the equipment needed for the work he performed, this remarkable configuration is placed in his third house (mind).

He would have large tests, having so strong an accent in Capricorn. And his biography gives us details of his ability to meet them and to carry through—he was never at a loss to produce facts, figures, demonstrations of the soundness and practicality (Saturn) of his thought.

His energy and capacity to get things done, indicated by his Mars in the sign Capricorn, shows physical endurance that was well directed toward a definite goal. He had ambition (Saturn) to forge ahead (Mars) till he reached the heights, in his case mental heights (Capricorn on 3rd cusp), and through service to the world at large (Mars ruling 6th house). Mars in Capricorn seems to be able to draw on its own inner strength for sustenance in time of need; this accounts for his ability to be the "lone wolf" that relied not upon either the criticism or the plaudits of the mob.

Mars in this chart is trine to Jupiter in the sign Taurus. His energies are thus orderly, logical, and actively directed toward practical results that would expand finances and at the same time conserve them. According to his biography his scientific discovery of the serum which saved his nation's cattle from the dreaded anthrax which was sweeping the country resulted in sufficient money for France to discharge her debt to Germany.

Mars (in Capricorn) trine Jupiter also indicates that his energy would be given, generously and without thought of financial return, to his government—Capricorn in the natural chart with Aries rising ruling government. His Mars further indicates his marriage partners (ruler of his 7th house). Its conjunction with Venus and its many helpful configurations would lead us to believe that he would select a partner who would protect, love and aid him in his desire to serve the world. His biography describes his wife's protective love all through their married life.

While his revolutionary ideas created fear in the minds of his medical colleagues who were of inferior mentality and unable to keep astride of his development, he was ultimately able to cope with this situation and win their respect and support by his ability to back up his new theories and ideas by concrete demonstration and proof of worth. However, their criticisms and ridicule caused the delays and obstructions (Saturn-Capricorn) which prevented recognition of his work until after middle age. (Capricorn relating to later life.)

There was very little of the petty in this man. No room in his nature for greed, or the competitive fever. He had no time to criticize others; he was too busy expressing himself in large ways. This expression was in the form of aid for his fellows such as his methods of sterilization, his cure for rabies, for anthrax (preventive rather than cure here); and his attack on the diseases of silk worms.

Probably he had no idea of becoming the great figure he did become. With his Capricorn qualities he merely made up his mind to do the job at hand and regretfully laid aside his favorite research to respond enthusiastically to work in another direction when there was urgent need of this. This was his method when he made each of his famous discoveries.

As a teacher, his biography states: "He was sure of himself; he was clear in explanations; his chain of thought, fitness of words, all was perfect. He made few experiments, but these were decisive."

His position of and aspects to Mercury, together with his third house strength, would indicate his ability in this direction.

With his life ruler, Venus, in conjunction with the Sun, ruling his 10th house (Leo on the cusp) and in conjunction with Neptune (ideals and inspiration); with Uranus (originality and publicity) trined by Saturn (natural ruler of the 10th) as well as Venus and his Sun located in the tenth sign of the Zodiac (Capricorn) it would seem that he had most of the qualifications for success in a wordly way. Keep in mind too that Capricorn denotes attainment that is earned; all achievement under this sign demands work and deserving.

We know that he won outstanding recognition in his country and in the world, and that his fame will go down into history, placing him among the great men of the ages by reason of his service to the world. Mars ruling his 6th house, in Capricorn the sign that held his Sun, and trine to Jupiter in the 8th (death and after); Uranus, ruler of his 4th (end of life) in conjunction with the ruler of his first, in Capricorn (10th house sign) and trine the 10th house planet, Saturn, supports the theory that fame will be lasting.

"Above all I try to follow the advice of the immortal Ptolemy—'Pierce not with iron that part of the body which may be governed by the sign actually occupied by the Moon'; and if at all possible I invariably wait until the Moon is below that sign.

"So much for the astrological time. Now for the choice of a surgeon. It has been said, and possibly correctly so, that the pure mechanics of surgery can be as rapidly and quickly learned as those of carpentry and plumbing. However, the profession has long passed the stage of being merely a handicraft. Accurate diagnosis and the ability correctly to estimate the risks incident to various types of operations in regard to individual factors are now highly important in the essential equipment of a surgeon.

"Surgical dexterity and outstanding successes are founded upon basic astrological qualifications as well as clinical experience, for the planet Mars rules surgeons as well as surgical operations.

"I am continually checking the charts of my colleagues, and sometimes find that the Sun, Moon or Mars well aspected in Scorpio, the Moon on the meridian, or coming to, and well aspected by Mars, and Neptune or Uranus in good aspect to Mars, are all aids to surgical ability. The same is true of Jupiter, the Healer, in Scorpio, and especially when in conjunction or good aspect to Mars.

"Mars strong at birth, Mars in the 6th or 10th houses and well aspected, Mars well aspected in Virgo, Scorpio or Pisces, Mars ruler of the horoscope, Mars and Mercury together lords of the employment, and Mars sextile or trine the Sun at birth are also indications of inherent native ability and fitness for the profession.

"Any favorable aspect of Mars to the Moon or Mercury may incline the native to the study of medicine and surgery, and should be accorded due consideration in the choice of the profession.

"So, if a few simple principles are followed by patient and surgeon, preferably both, it will result in quicker and more complete recovery for the patient and an exceedingly high percentage of successes on the part of the surgeon who is otherwise properly and basically qualified for the practice of this profession."

MARS in the SIGNS

By Cedric W. Lemont

Mars is the planet of energy, force, and desire, but this fiery planet's influence ordinarily is not directly concerned with accomplishment or attainment in themselves. It has to do with methods rather than aims. A person with Mars in Aries will work in an entirely different way from the person who has Mars in Taurus. But at the same time it should not be forgotten that it is the Mars energy which makes attainment possible.

Lacking energy or desire, a person rarely gets far. So when Mars is weakly placed in a horoscope it tends either to prevent material accomplishment or to turn the energies into destructive channels. When strongly placed, on the other hand, it permits of free expression. But in whatever sign or house Mars is posited, there is found a center of power and energy either for good or evil.

MARS IN ARIES—When in Aries Mars is strongly placed, giving energy to the desires, with little need for outer stimulus to bring them to action. The method of attack is likely to be direct, with technical facility, enthusiasm, vitality, and fondness for activity and adventure.

Touching employment, business, or profession, Mars in Aries naturally inclines toward work with fire, machinery, tools, chemicals, as a surgeon, engineer, in military life, or designing in some form. Mentally creative, but seeking on the physical plane.

With Mars in Aries, success or failure, happiness or unhappiness, health or sickness, will depend largely on the person's own actions. There is, however, more than average liability to accidents, fevers, inflammatory illnesses, and operations affecting the head or face, where there usually is found a mark or scar of some kind.

MARS IN TAURUS—If you had

Mars in Taurus at the time of your birth it will make you very fixed and set where your personal interests and desires are concerned, and you will willingly work hard and persistently to attain them.

You are normally a good earner and a free spender, but when, as sometimes happens, the money is slow in coming in, you are apt to become irritable and possibly a bit unreasonable. For this reason a salaried job often makes more appeal than an ownership proposition. In general, a good practical worker and quietly ambitious.

Mars in Taurus inclines toward marriage, but often causes trouble through the opposite sex. Frequently the matter of finances is involved. Physically, while Mars here gives a strong muscular neck, it predisposes somewhat toward throat trouble, accidents, or operations in that region.

MARS IN GEMINI—Gemini being an air sign ruled by Mercury, Mars here naturally tends to turn its energy into mental rather than physical channels. It makes one forceful in speech and writing and mentally combative, while the desires incline toward mental development and educational accomplishment.

Owing to the duality of the sign there may be considerable changeability, restlessness, and at times nervous irritability.

Mercurial affairs, such as speaking, writing, education, printing, travel, relatives, while of course tending to come to the fore, are apt to cause trouble.

Mars in Gemini gives more than average liability to accidents or injury to the hands, arms, lungs and shoulder region.

MARS IN CANCER—The fiery planet Mars is not at home in the watery sign Cancer. Its tendency when so placed is to cause emotional upsets and domestic disturbances. Indirectly these often are the result of acid stomach conditions. However, when well directed, this fund of emotional energy (heat plus water equals steam) often permits of decidedly worthwhile accomplishment, although the method employed is apt to be subtle and indirect.

MARS IN THE SIGNS

Mars in Cancer is rather sensuous in trend, and frequently gives an inclination toward some form of artistic expression. In other cases the interests and desires are concerned with medicine or surgery, liquids or the watery element, land, property, or public affairs.

More than average predisposition toward stomach disorders is indicated.

MARS IN LEO—Mars in Leo gives a splendid fund of energy, which normally tends to find free expression. In method direct, frank, and enthusiastic, there is, however, danger of arousing opposition and at times enmity in others.

There is a tendency toward extravagance and chance taking, with great emotional warmth and a quick temper. The inclination is to do everything in a large way; there never is anything petty about it. In fact the entire trend is to overdo—in emotions, passions, work, pleasure, authority, etc., and if this is blindly followed trouble naturally ensues. Sports, mechanics, music, or some form of art or entertainment usually prove attractive and profitable to those with Mars in Leo.

This position strengthens the muscular system but tends to cause accidents, operations, fires, fevers, and inflammatory complaints. The heart action is apt to be faster than normal.

MARS IN VIRGO—If you had Mars in Virgo at your birth your energies are likely to be turned to practical account, impersonally, with little emotional warmth. (Please keep in mind that we are here dealing with method of working and not with the emotions themselves.)

In a constructive way Mars in Virgo favors work of a scientific or statistical nature, or connected with manufacturing, chemicals, food stuffs, hygiene, healing, investments, insurance, and general trading.

Some nervous irritability is implied by this position, together with a liability to intestinal complaints, operations in the abdominal region, and at times friction with those working with or for you.

MARS IN LIBRA is indicative of controlled and directed energy, especially where applied to profession or business. But where marriage, partnership, and matters of a personal or legal nature are concerned this position of Mars does not tend to work out so well.

There is something of the judicial temperament, while the method or manner of action is apt to take on at least a degree of the suavity and charm of Libra. The trend of the desires is toward professional work rather than ordinary business or trading in most cases. Law, art, science, public life, religion, or philosophy may attract.

Love and marriage are apt to be impulsive and ardent, and there may be resultant unhappiness or a breaking of the marriage ties, though the latter of course does not necessarily follow.

Physically, this position of Mars tends to give a good carriage and grace of motion. Careless or improper living, too much emotional excitement, or worry over finances would be productive of kidney trouble.

MARS IN SCORPIO is in a critical position. It undoubtedly gives unusual power and energy, but too often this is badly directed, selfish, materialistic, or callous to the feelings of others, though perhaps unconsciously so. Therefore, if you have Mars so placed, it would be wise for you to keep this in mind and do everything possible to make yourself more considerate and thoughtful in dealing with others.

There is good practical executive ability, and a feeling of pride in accomplishment. This may be successfully applied in connection with things of a mechanical nature, chemicals, surgery, building, mining, detective work, official positions, or where death is contacted in some way. Money is apt to come through close associations with others or through marriage.

Mars in Scorpio adds to the muscular strength but denotes more than ordinary liability to trouble with the genito-urinary system, to accidents or operations, and to violence generally.

MARS IN SAGITTARIUS favors sudden spurts rather than sustained effort. The method of approach is direct, frank, and often daring, with a desire for freedom, independence, and adventure.

Usually there is a love of travel, sports, and activities of all kinds, both mental and physical, with great intensity of action. The inherent desire for freedom of thought, coupled with the tendency toward impulsive action, may bring about sudden and complete changes of viewpoint, particularly along religious and philosophical lines.

Argument and friendly controversy seem to be enjoyed by the Mars in Sagittarius people, who make good lawyers and pleaders. Sometimes military life, surveying, engineering, or the preaching of some militant doctrine or gospel prove attractive.

Physically, Mars in Sagittarius gives a high-strung nervous system, with a tendency to overdo when the interest is aroused. There is more than average liability to accidents, and to trouble in the region of the hips. Usually quick on the feet and speedy in movement.

MARS IN CAPRICORN gives a splendid fund of driving force and persistence, which usually is turned to practical account. Industrious, fearless and acquisitive, there is excellent executive ability and capacity for undertaking heavy responsibilities.

Those with Mars here usually get their own way and accomplish much if they turn their attention to business or to public life. There is a passion for work and what is conceived to be duty, but at the same time there is a willingness to take chances. Manufacturing, work with the soil or its products, agencies, and executive positions in connection with business or trade offer good opportunities.

The physical desires and passions are strong, and if not liberated or transmuted may cause considerable nervous irritability. But in general, Mars in Capricorn gives good muscular tone and vitality and favors the health, though there is more than average danger of accidents to the knees or legs, to skin trouble, and to varicoid diseases.

MARS IN AQUARIUS—The fixed air nature of the sign Aquarius serves as a mental rather than a physical vehicle for the display of the Mars energies. That is, Mars in Aquarius tends to produce mental rather than physical force, with a resultant inclination to function on the mental plane.

The natural trend is to look at things to be accomplished from an original angle, and to use unusual or unorthodox methods in producing results.

In a practical way the energies may be turned to good account in connection with humanitarian enterprises, social service, in government employ or with large corporations, in scientific or occult investigation, or in some form of artistic production.

Mars in Aquarius predisposes somewhat toward blood and lymphatic disorders and trouble with the ankles.

MARS IN PISCES—When Mars is in Pisces its energies are apt to be greatly hampered in expression owing to the duality and watery nature of the sign, which is so different from that of Mars itself. Therefore, with Mars so placed the best results usually come from working behind the scenes, keeping in the background, and letting service to others bring its own reward.

Effort is apt to be spasmodic, or the interests too diverse to win personal achievement or recognition, though success may come through helping others. The sympathies are easily aroused, and the urge to relieve distress is strong. Consequently the interests may lead to work in connection with hospitals or public institutions. Other lines favored are promotion schemes, handling liquids, chemical or oils, transportation, or legal or investigative work.

Physically, the feet and glands are apt to cause more or less trouble.

BUYING and SELLING

JULY, 1936

This information is for you, regardless of your birthday; it is based on the general state of mind as indicated by the planetary positions and conditions for each day and time mentioned. See pages 44 to 112 and use this guide with the advice for your sign. On this page, Eastern Standard time is used. Make the necessary correction for other time, if in use where you are: one hour earlier for Central, two for Mountain and three for Pacific. Add one hour if Daylight Saving Time is used. This information is not offered for speculative purposes.

July, 1936, again brings the advantage to the seller, although there are many opportunities present for buying under favorable conditions. The necessity is still present to judge values impartially whether you are buying or selling. Your belief in the worth of goods or services is apt to be influenced by overenthusiasm or extreme optimism, especially if you are endeavoring to effect a sale. It will pay in dollars and cents, to determine and set all values at a point where both sides to any contract will receive an equitable gain. Selling is most strongly favored until the 26th. Buying receives a strong impetus until the 14th, with the entire month active on both the buying and selling sides.

Wed., July 1—The morning is strongest for selling luxury items. Balance of day is active, with opportunities present for both sides to make substantial gains.

Thu., July 2—Today can best be devoted to ordering or picking up goods needed to replenish stocks. Make purchases of standard goods or services, whether for resale or use.

Fri., July 3—Calls for conservative plans in both buying and selling. Openings will be present for making worthwhile gains on whichever side of business you are engaged.

Sat., July 4—Until 4 P.M. the seller has a slight advantage. But it is a very active day and those handling quick turnover goods can make favorable purchases if they are alert.

Sun., July 5—This day furnishes a fine opportunity to make plans for an extended selling campaign. Get your ideas for disposing of both merchandise and service organized.

Mon., July 6—The strength is on the buying side and you should use it to replenish stocks and secure needed goods to carry out yesterday's planning.

Tue., July 7—Both buying and selling receive strong vibrations and real gains are possible on both sides. Be alert for opportunities but do not sit down and wait for them; be busy and make your own contacts.

Wed., July 8—Morning hours can best be devoted to purchases, if needed; later hours are strong for selling and constructive action will bring the desired results.

Thu., July 9—Action of the right type can bring beneficial results in both buying and selling. The strength is slightly on the buying side, but both can secure profits as the result of following well laid plans.

Fri., July 10—A neutral day in which the period trend, which favors buying should be followed for best results. Selling gains emphasis in the evening hours.

Sat., July 11—Early hours find buying accented and should be used to acquire needed items, either for use or resale. Balance of day requires forethought on both sides.

Sun., July 12—Consider carefully all plans that come up today, both for proposed sales and purchases. Ideas are likely to be unorthodox and call for serious thought as to their practicability and solidity.

Mon., July 13—First of two days with greatest strength for buying. An opportune time to acquire needed supplies, whether for use or resale. Items desired for long use or those which have been planned for purchase in the past are the best type to acquire under this influence.

Tue., July 14—Follow through on yesterday's ideas and make the most of opportunities.

Wed., July 15—Devote the morning hours until 11:34 A.M. to the sales angle, making your greatest efforts to dispose of luxury items. From then on buying receives strong urges and purchases of needed goods of standard type or from well established sources of supply are favored.

Thu., July 16—Somewhat neutral day but the general trend brings good opportunities for both buying and selling. The wide awake man or woman should be alert in business this month for definite progress and gain is possible.

Fri., July 17—Seek new contacts and endeavor to close any contracts or orders pending. Follow previously made plans by efficient execution.

Sat., July 18—Today is one when the appeal to the pleasanter things in life looks like your best procedure. Use your love of the beautiful to help whether buying or selling.

Sun., July 19—Serious thought should be given to planning future campaigns in both buying and selling. Check over your ideas today; they may be the source of future profit.

Mon., July 20—Put into action some of the plans made yesterday. This is the sort of a day when well made plans are essential.

Tue., July 21—The quick thinker and do-er can make forward strides if he is "on his toes" all day. Unexpected opportunities are likely to appear and call for immediate action; be ready.

Wed., July 22—Both buying and selling are under favorable influences, although buying receives somewhat the advantage. The day calls for plenty of action. You cannot afford to sleep late today; be "up and at 'em."

Thu., July 23—Another day calling for quick, positive action in both buying and selling. Be certain of the value, both in goods and credit.

Fri., July 24—Selling is the spotlight today. Do not permit a false sense of values to influence your decisions, keep poised.

Sat., July 25—The greatest strength is still on the selling end. The cautious buyer will note this and take advantage of the many openings present to replenish needed supplies at bargain prices.

Sun., July 26—Consider carefully any selling plans evolved before 11:36 AM, they are apt to be unreliable. Later hours are better for making plans concerning buying and selling campaigns.

Mon., July 27—Until 9:11 PM buying holds the strength, although the period trend is strong for either buying or selling.

Tue., July 28—Definitely beneficial results can be obtained by either seller or purchaser. Use mature plans for best results, especially if they have been made after due thought and consideration of the necessity for equalizing values for both buyer and seller.

Wed., July 29—The hours until 1:47 PM are very strong for both buying and selling and should bring active trading. Later hours are somewhat stronger for selling, especially to those who have ready cash.

Thu., July 30—Until 3:10 PM concentrate your efforts on sales of so-called luxury items, either goods or service.

Fri., July 31—The month closes with strong action needed in quick handling of unexpected openings in both buying and selling. Know your needs in advance and grasp opportunities where conditions are right.

HEALTH GUIDE FOR ALL

Operations and Treatment

July, 1936

If you are in need of health attention, whether for beginning a course of treatment, changing physicians, or having an operation, the best thing to do is to have the advice of an experienced and competent astrologer, as well as that of a good doctor.

The more important parts of the body under the domination of the 12 Zodiacal signs are:

ARIES: Head, face, brain, cranium and facial bones.

TAURUS: Neck, throat, gullet, larynx, cerebellum, neck bones, voice, vocal cords, mastoid process, Eustacian canal.

GEMINI: Shoulders, hands, arms, fingers, lungs, breath, blood, collarbones, bones of shoulders, arms and hands.

CANCER: Breast, chest, epigastric region, stomach, digestive organs and functions, breastbone and ribs.

LEO: Heart, upper part of the spine and the back generally.

VIRGO: Abdominal and umbilical region, bowels and intestines, assimilative functions, lower part of spine.

LIBRA: Lumbar region, skin, kidneys, and bones of lumbar region.

SCORPIO: Urinary and sex organs, anus, nose, generative power, bladder and pelvic bones.

SAGITTARIUS: Hips and thighs, arterial system, nerves.

CAPRICORN: Knees and hams, bones and joints and caps of knees.

AQUARIUS: Legs, ankles, shin bones, blood, circulation.

PISCES: Feet, toes, lymphatic system, bones of feet and toes.

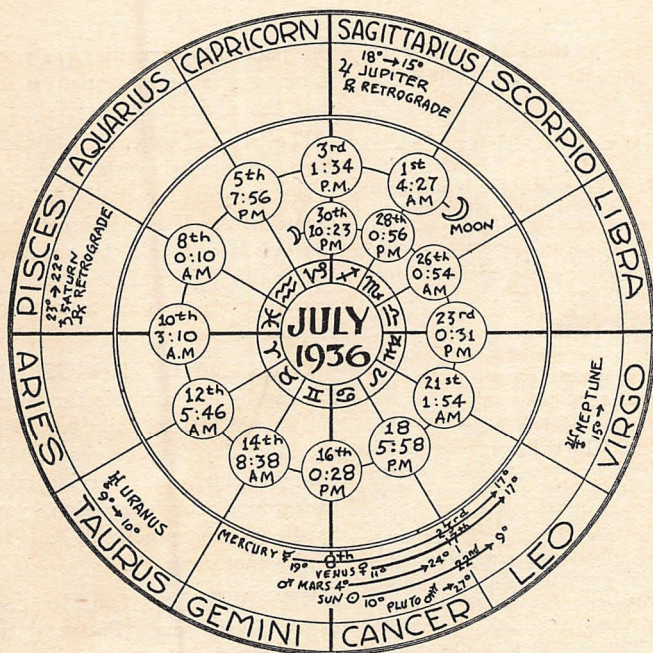

It is not wise to go against a black day on this diagram. The two kinds of gray shading mean the same thing: don't make changes concerning health unless there is a vital emergency. Do all possible to keep away from the black days under the sign ruling the affected part.

Reference to the chart above gives a quick view of the positions of all planets, Sun and Moon in the Zodiac, viewed geocentrically (from the point of view of our Earth). Arrows indicate apparent direction of travel. Numbers 1, 2, 3, etc., indicate dates of the month when planet enters a new sign. The small circles on the Moon's curve show the time of day, in Eastern Standard Time, when the Moon enters the sign on the date given. Add 1 hour for Daylight Saving Time.

Many are the uses of this Picture Ephemeris for the month. For instance if you want to figure closely, you will see that on dates when the Moon changes sign, the shadows on the Health Diagram on page 42 split the day into proportional parts. Also, watch the motion of planets in relation to your Sun sign.

How To Use Your Daily Horoscope

The Daily Aspects on the next four pages give all aspects and their duration. Study them well.

READ EACH DAY for everybody, on pages 62, 63 and 64. Then turn to the group of four pages for your Sun sign. First you will find general remarks for all in your sign for this entire month and possibly the future as well. Then follows the analysis for your decan (10-day area).

Dates mentioned as "5-17" mean "from 5th to 17th, inclusive."

ADVICE FOR EVERYBODY, on pages 62, 63 and 64, is given as a help to interpretation and timing of the Daily Aspects. It will repay you to give this subject some serious attention, noting well the influence that carry over through two or more days. Practice blending them. Remember that no two influences or aspects cancel each other, even though they be of apparently opposite meanings—experience has proven that both influences are present, thus accounting for some of the complicated vibrations we feel from time to time.

OPPORTUNITIES for your sign, according to the Zodiacal group in which you were born, are next to be considered. The facts and advice found under this heading are to be blended with the Advice for Everybody, for here you find your particular way of applying nature's vibrations according to the indications for your sign. If you find apparent confliotions between these two sets of advice, proceed very carefully, for there will be conflict in the application of your efforts unless you are careful. The advice under Opportunities for your sign is more of a personal nature for you than the advice for everybody.

The second page of Opportunities for your sign brings the influences still closer to you, for it divides the sign into decans. Use this information in connection with all the rest, remembering that this is the most nearly personal service possible to render in a magazine.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE is the day by day analysis for your sign, and should be read daily, together with the same day for everybody. Putting these together, and carrying mind the background for your sign, you can handle wisely practically all routine affairs that come up.

KEY WORDS: Consider "Superiors," "Social" and "Partners" as key words which indicate the following:

SUPERIORS means all who are above you in any walk of life, in business, social affairs and the government. If you are a woman it also indicates father, brother, husband or sweetheart.

SOCIAL refers to your emotions, love affairs, entertaining, relations with opposite sex and artistic interests.

PARTNERS should be understood to include husband or wife as well as business associates, and possibly those with whom you have legal dealings.

Daily Aspects

(For explanation, see pages 62 to 64 inclusive)

Here you will find two very valuable features: the duration of the effectiveness of all aspects is given; and—they are listed according to their time of STARTING, regardless of when they are over. This enables you to know instantly which aspects are in force at any moment of any day in this month. The time here given is all Eastern Standard; make correction to your locality—subtract 1 hour for Central, 2 for Mountain and 3 for Pacific Standard Time. Please note well that here the duration of aspect is given in Standard Time and that correction should be made; when you come to "Advice For Everybody" on the following pages, all times mentioned are True Local, wherever you are, and do not need this correction. Add one hour for Daylight Saving Time.

What the Planets and Aspects Mean

The foregoing aspects, such as conjunction, trine, sextile, square, etc., between the planets have various vibrations that are psychological and emotional stimuli urges, to which people react. By putting together what the planets mean in connection with the vibration-aspect (angle) between them, it is possible to know in advance what the opportunities and temptations will be, that we may plan and act accordingly—just as we do when we estimate what the weather will be.

The following are the matters and relationships of the planets:

The Sun—Superiors, men, employer, executives, officials; for a woman, relations with men in close relationships, including the emotional.

The Moon—general public, women, those younger; moving about; our external reactions to everyday affairs; home life; affections.

Mercury—matters of business, writing, judgment, short travels; buying, selling, bargaining; gossip; neighbors; giving and getting information.

Venus—social affairs, affections, women, those younger; pleasures; art, music, literature, beauty; extravagance, self-indulgence.

Mars—energy, haste, anger, construction or destruction (according to application); carelessness that leads to danger; fire; action.

Jupiter—expansion, growth and their financial expressions in money; professional people; false pride, gambling; bankers, creditors, debtors.

Saturn—older people; old plans, matters already started; our debts and their payment; karma; practicality; good advice; widows, widowers.

Uranus—changes, new matters, imagination (constructive or otherwise); inventors, original thinkers, astrologers; transportation; airplanes.

Neptune—the deep emotions of which we know so little; false hopes; tricky schemes; self-indulgence; can be the highest in human sympathy.

The following are the matters and relationships of the aspects:

Conjunction—personal affairs, self-development, taking inventory of yourself; improvement of technique; accomplishments through personality.

Parallel—takes same influence as other aspect, if any, at same time; otherwise, similar to conjunction, though not as powerful.

Opposition—relations with the other fellow; matrimonial affairs; law; contests; necessity for sharing with others; benefits by cooperation.

Trine—creative urges; love affairs; relations with children; opportunity to develop artistic or literary abilities; distant travel.

Square—occupation, superiors, reputation, fame; under this vibration we reveal our true worth to the community; savings; real estate.

Sextile—mental reactions; psychology; friendship; local travel; intellectual development; publicity; planning ahead, study.

Semi-sextile—finances, dealings with those in money occupations, such as bankers'; secrets; scandal if careless; inner development.

Quincunx—service; relations with employees and servants; matters of health; analysis; accounting; budgets; occult development.

Advice For Everybody

The Psychological Weather

(Time here used is NOT to be changed for locality—it is Your Local Time wherever you are. Add 1 hour if daylight saving time.)

(The following notes explain the natures of the most powerful aspects of the month, as listed on the preceding pages, together with their most effective hours, on the local clock wherever you are. Standard Time correction is used to determine duration of aspect, BUT local time shows the Sun overhead at noon everywhere (see note on page 57), thus placing it in the 10th house of the locality. It is the same with all the houses and planets. These explanations are in terms of planets in local astrological houses.)

SINCE LAST MONTH

Till July 26th—Jupiter-Neptune square holds the following temptations daily during the period of this influence: 8:00 to 10:15 am, personal inflation of the ego and tendency to exaggerate; 9:30 am to noon, dissatisfaction with superiors in a too emotional way; 4:00 to 7:00 pm, domestic or partnership misunderstandings because of too high strung feelings; 9:30 to 11:45 pm, tendency to make faulty plans.

DAILY

Wednesday, July 1, 1936

Mercury-Saturn square till 4th calls for care in occupation and domestic circle daily during aspect from 8:45 to 11:50 am, and from 4:15 to 6:45 pm.

Today's Moon-Jupiter conjunction is excellent for social matters and increasing friendships, 7:45 to 9:30 pm.

Thursday, July 2, 1936

(See yesterday.) Today's Moon-Mercury opposition urges careful financial judgment, noon to 3:15 pm. Moon-Saturn square warns of errors in personal, home and estate matters, especially 2:45 to 5:15 pm.

Friday, July 3, 1936

(See 1st.) Sun-Neptune sextile till 6th offers mental, social and emotional opportunities, if kept practical, daily during aspect noon to 2:30 pm, and 9:00 to 10:30 pm.

Avoid danger under Moon-Mars opposition 9:30 am to noon, 5:00 to 7:30 pm, and 10:30 to 11:52 pm, today. Note good ideas and make plans, 9:00 to 10:45 pm, under Moon-Uranus trine.

Saturday, July 4, 1936

(See 1st and 3rd.) Saturn-Neptune opposition till Oct. 4th (three months) counsels holding emotions in personal and domestic matters, 7:10 to 9:40; in business from 2:30 to 5:00 pm, during all of July.

Today's Moon-Venus opposition from 9:45 to 0:15 pm cautions against upsets in occupation or home. Keep financial plans practical during Moon-Neptune trine, 2:50 to 5:10 pm.

Sunday, July 5, 1936

(See 3rd.) Mars-Uranus sextile till 9th suggests keeping changes in occupation and re mutual funds constructive from 9:30 to 11:55 am daily.

Venus-Jupiter quincunx looks encouraging for health and service plans from 3:05 to 6:15 pm. Adjust budget problems 6:45 to 9:15 am.

Monday, July 6, 1936

(See 3rd and 5th.) Sun-Jupiter quincunx till 8th from 9:40 am to 0:10 pm daily favors improving relations with coworkers and superiors.

Sidestep errors with inferiors, in-laws or concerning health during Moon-Uranus square today from 7:20 to 9:50 am. Moon-Jupiter sextile is excellent for personal development and self-analysis, 8:15-10:00 pm.

Tuesday, July 7, 1936

(See 5th and 6th.) Venus-Saturn trine till 11th favors serious creative and artistic endeavors from 0:15 to 4:10 pm daily.

ARIES OPPORTUNITIES

*For All
Born in
This Sign:
March 21-
April 19*

How did you come out with last month's influences? The reason for asking is that you have still more of one of them this month—the square between Jupiter and Neptune, which continues till mid-way of the 26th. But that arms-wide-open-fists-unclenched-leading-with-the-chin attitude that may or may not have characterized June (how wise were you?) will fold up somewhat this month, into the on-guard position necessary for a meeting with your now old friends and sparring partners, Saturn-Neptune opposition. The Fourth of July will gloriously celebrate their return into your arena.

As you remember from your last encounter with these two planets in their current aspect, they affect most your deepest inward emotions and self-analysis, tending to bring comparative isolation or seclusion, especially in occupation; and they affect your health. The fact that Jupiter squares Neptune most of this month heightens the indications for health, and makes it necessary that you keep in training, with no time off for foolish indulgences. It works emotionally too—no time off for letting go, everything counts.

July is a somewhat stiffer month than was June. You will have more to do managing the fighter in your own corner, aside from keeping an eye on antagonists. If you spend the month fighting with yourself to keep yourself in order, it stands to reason that you will be an easier push-over for outside forces. At that, most of your efforts will be needed to lick yourself and let only the sensible and profitable motives go into action where other people are affected.

A good deal of the wide-open, over-generous, willing-to-believe, and temptation-to-over-estimate (yes, yourself too) lingers on from last month. As before, it can bring about happiness in creative and affectional interests if you put yourself in the position of manager. Being the managed, however, would get you into emotional jams this month. Would bring about situations, also, where you might have a hard time deciding there was anything wrong until you had promised, or mortgaged, or committed, more than there was.

If you can distinguish between the false and tricky and the genuine, you may be able to recognize real opportunities in July in connection with other locations than your own, or with educational institutions, and with means for communication or transportation.

ARIES OPPORTUNITIES

If You Were Born March 21-30: At least until the 18th of the month, give your ungrudging attention to your home and the people in it. In spite of the fact that there will be a good deal of force and positiveness hanging around, you can effect improvement of conditions if you try. Same in estate interests; but if you own property either be on the job doing personal protecting or have it covered by insurance, since this is one of the times through the year when accidents could happen. In financial assets, recognize waste or extravagance before it happens; have everything under control in domestic budgets.

From 18th romance heightens, and marriage relations grow promising. However, from the 21st on you will need to guard against the sudden or unexpected upset, possibly connected with money or friends. Don't take the leap into new things without time and thought. Same in law.

Best dates for improving occupation and relations with superiors, 9th to 14th. Poorest, 1st-4th, and from 28th.

Best for personal contacts: 5th-8th for new meetings; 8th-14th for business and educational; 13th-17th those involving health and emotions; and 20th-28th for contacting elders, occupational executives, and for pushing worthy secret deals.

If You Were Born March 31-April 9: There's apt to be some strain on your finances this month either for personal spending purposes or for costs connected with decoration or improvement of home, children's needs, entertainment or hospitality, affairs of brother or sister, or in connection with neighborhood interests. Make up budgets and have them to go by, so that inroads won't be made on your capital.

Since July is definitely a positive not to say aggressive month for you, at least till the 26th, be advised that you are likely to take most of it out on home conditions and people, and with any competitors in your work, and be prepared to hold yourself in for the good of all concerned. Get work around the home done; push for improvement in estate; be active in financial partnerships; but all with your eye strictly on the ball. Avoid accidents, to yourself or property. Avoid friction, personal or with conditions.

1st-4th look like the only distinctly poor dates for travel or communication with other locations. Best from 25th, especially for purposes of improving finances.

Romance good 2nd-4th, 7th-14th, 25th-27th; but not 21st-24th or from the 28th.

If You Were Born April 10-19: The month is strong for concentration on mental efforts: reading, study, research, tabulation, editing, etc. It aids you to come to definite decisions, and in some cases to terminate certain thoughts or conditions to your benefit, especially 5th-17th, and 20th-28th. 1st-8th, however, may be over-cautious or pessimistic, so be careful about occupational decisions.

1st-4th and 25th on careful of health.

From 25th take advantage of any openings that involve distance, travel, mail, publication, advertising, or law in connection with your finances. From 27th strong for building health.

Best dates for romance: 3rd-midway of 6th, 9th-16th. Best for matrimony: 2nd-4th, 7th-10th, and from 25th, but not 21st-24th. These latter periods also strong for attending to legal affairs.

Best for purposes of building reputation, occupational contacts, and dealing with superiors and executives: 1st-14th, and 16th-23rd.

5th-8th and 12th to noon of 13th good for deciding new money matters, and for planning ahead generally, and making changes. Not so good from 21st on: liability to act too hurriedly.

TAURUS OPPORTUNITIES

*For All
Born in
This Sign:
May 20*

Conscript the two outstanding sides of your good Taurus natures, friends of this sign, and use them both to balance your books in July.

That side of you which instinctively loves the harmonious and the proportionate should be entered in one column against that other side which judges by material values, and which this month may incline to be somewhat out of proportion.

For the square between Jupiter and Neptune continues this month till mid-way of the 26th, and in addition you have the resumption of that opposition between Saturn and Neptune. (By the way, you may like to know that this opposition ends finally on the 4th of October, and the squares of Jupiter to it by the end of September.)

In July, then, keep your eye on the profit and loss columns by way of reminding yourself to be very shy of those financial fliers which net you only excitement—for a while. Yes indeed, we are speaking of gambling, speculation, investing capital or savings in "sure things"; and also of another way of dissipating funds, via the pleasure route.

It seems that emotional capital is subject to the same influences and the same advice. The coins you spend here will be called promises, alliances, fleeting attractions, and friendships as well as romantic and affectional affairs are involved. Yet in this section of your accounting there will be an influence that will tend to hold you back, in the form of last minute caution or doubt, or possibly in the form of sudden rousing of that sense of yours which estimates values so correctly.

One of your best items on the profit side will be the current stimulation of your mind. The first four days and 25-27 only are exception to this; the rest of the month gives you opportunity to do some clear and constructive thinking and deciding. If you want to use it.

It will pay you actual profit to be somewhat careful, not only of your friends, but of your response to them and their ideas, this month. The tricky factors are likely to involve distance or transportation, means of communication or travel, and possibly your elders, and in-laws. It could be that your own emotional excitement would exaggerate actual opportunities into proportions that would mean defeat in the end. Here your well-known sense of proportion comes into play. Cultivate your ingrained love of art and beauty this month.

TAURUS OPPORTUNITIES

If You Were Born April 20-30: In money matters you will find the following dates propitious for these activities:

8th-14th, good for deciding upon changes and new matters, and for action, specifically in connection with partnerships, law, and occupational interests; push old estate matters 9th-14th. 16th-23rd, good for planning estate improvement, and for attracting aid from old friends, elders generally, and superiors: stick to old plans through here. From 22nd, women, inferiors, and personal contacts can help. (25th-27th is unreliable because of tendency to enter new things hurriedly.) From 28th to mid-afternoon of 20th good for collections, bettering joint finances, and using the social element.

From the 21st on tread carefully when changes loom: make them wisely or not at all in occupation and personal affairs.

There may be opportunities for you this month in local activities.

In home matters, the good periods will be 3rd-mid-way of 6th (entertain friends), 9th-14th (do building, decorating, cultivate older folks), and 16th-23rd (strong for social and affectional interests).

21st-24th is weak for personal contacts; 25th-29th is strong.

If You Were Born May 1-10: From 4th to 14th is strong for working out new ideas and original ways of improving your skill for financial rewards. Put all your creative instincts to work. Note the second paragraph of advice to those above, and use it for yourself this month.

Make a point of getting around in your community in July. Cultivate those whose positions are superior to your own—possibly by means of your home and hospitality. Cultivate those in the literary, publishing, advertising, and teaching professions, and those who work with tools. Be active for future profit.

The last week of the month is doubtful for deciding upon changes affecting your home, estate, or occupation; these decisions should either be made slowly and carefully, or postponed.

Dates best for romance: 2nd-6th, 12th-17th, and from 22nd. Use these periods also for straightening out general affectional problems, including those of children.

In marriage 5th-17th, and 20th-28th look strongest.

9th-14th is strong for study, investigation, detail work, and deals with elders and superiors; also for cultivating the serious type of friend.

If You Were Born May 11-20: In spite of a tendency to spend too easily, this is an active month in the money department and should incite you to go forth and better yourself in some way. One of the ways might be earning the good will of financial superiors, especially till 12th, another the improving through training and study of your personal skill.

For new matters and decisions about changes, best 5th-8th and 12th-noon of 13th. Poorest: from 21st on.

For decisions concerned with the past, with routine, and with folks known for some time, best 7th-14th, and 17th-28th. Poor 1st-4th.

For matters of romance, dealing with children and others in your affections, and for development of creative talents, best 2nd-6th, and from 12th. Some conflict 1st-4th.

From 25th to mid-way of 30th looks promising for efforts in connection with partnerships, joint money, and legal affairs.

In health best dates are 25th-first half of 29th; while the weakest are 21st-24th.

For improving home and attending to estate, best 9th-23rd; care from 28th.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

July, 1936

For TAURUS (If you were born April 20-May 20)

Advice for Every Day This Month

Wed., 1—Social, affectional, financial interests will require careful attention during the next twenty-five days—go slow when dealing with friends. Mon., 27—Mentally keen; good for study and research work. Promising for progress with partners, friends, neighbors and relatives. Consider confidential interests and those distantly located.

Tue., 28—Think twice before making changes re occupation, estate or with superiors, today and till Aug. 1. Next two days: look promising for improving finances, and with those loved. Today: community interests favored, improve with neighbors, close relatives.

Wed., 29—The morning and afternoon warn against yielding to negative emotions; personal, health and home interests look best.

Thu., 30—Steer clear of upsets with elders, friends, neighbors or concerning joint finances during the early morning hours.

Fri., 31—P.M. favors creative and artistic endeavors. Till mid-afternoon: advance personal and occupational interests, and those concerning travel or having a wide scope.

GEMINI OPPORTUNITIES

*For All
Born in
This Sign:
June 20*

How did you hold on to that balloon last month, and did you get anywhere with it? (New readers please see previous issue if you're curious).

Add to your store of facts the continuation of the Jupiter-Neptune square till the mid-point of the 26th of this month, and the beginning once more of that opposition between Saturn and Neptune, which will end finally on the 4th of October.

With this information you can use your famous mental dexterity to figure out about what you will encounter in July, basing it on what you know of the recent past. Yes, it brings the pressure once more into occupational, estate, home and partnership affairs. Yes, you will need to stick pins into your emotions to keep them from skyrocketing, (or ballooning.) Yes, you are likely to feel again the tug-of-war between emotional ideals and those of the materialistic world, with first one and then the other predominating; or first one and then the other being featured in your affairs through the influence of the persons you spend your everyday life with, whether in home or occupation. Yes, at the risk of being repetitious to old readers, I must say once again that the solution of any and every difficulty encountered just now will be found to be the assuming of responsibility by you personally, not neglecting the mental and moral sorts. With your well-known ability to collect and sort out facts, have you come to the conclusion yet that these stoppages when they occur in your affairs are for the purpose of giving you time—perhaps by force—to think things over and find out in what way you caused them?

Money is accented in your July pattern; it seems to affect most of the other departments of your life in some way. There are opportunities to profit if you can remember that you are still inclined to play everything too wide open.

May I give you a tip? It is meant to be and will be helpful if you will use it. When your affairs show signs of becoming chaotic, of opposing each the other so that you feel stalemated, when any decision at all seems to bring with it as much difficulty as solution—don't force things; relax. It will be the things you do when you feel tightest, or most emotional, that will need doing all over again later. You will find that the solution will come of itself if you keep to the right attitude of mind and don't get into knots.

GEMINI OPPORTUNITIES

If You Were Born May 21-31: Toward the end of the month you may get ideas of moving and changing things about and may have difficulty in holding yourself from putting them into action, because your mind is all set to do something new, think something new, or go some place new. Maybe it'll be secret. Think everything over well before acting, or you'll act unwisely.

It's an extravagant month. Some of the motive for spending may come from the friendship quarter, be connected with inferiors, or be for health purposes. The best dates for taking action to improve yourself in a money way look like 5th-17th and 20th-28th. 9th-14th do your best to deserve the good will of executives, financial superiors, and older men.

Cultivate women (especially older than yourself) who affect your occupation or reputation 7th-10th, and be active socially.

If you travel from the 21st on be extra careful of machinery, and do nothing in too much of a hurry. Mail, or other communication with distance, should be equally carefully planned.

Romantic and marital relations look best 2nd-4th, 7th-10th, and from the 22nd.

If You Were Born June 1-10: From first to last this month apply that justly-famous mind of yours to the task of getting somewhere in regard to finances. For the majority of the celestial forces center on your money matters this month, and should incite you to plan ways and means of improvement. Make all the personal contacts your brain tells you will advance you. Cultivate superiors; show them your capability mentally. Be alert for tips or aid from friends. Make the most of your social contacts, and of your home hospitality. 5th-17th and 20th-28th are good for pushing plans.

The first four days may be somewhat limited in some way, especially personally, and in home and occupation; hold everything and know that you are doing your best with the right motives.

Best to postpone or go very slowly about changes or new matters the last week, especially if they would affect money.

From 4th to 13th is good for mental communication with others, getting your points across, speaking or writing. Handle matters of estate at this time; make decisions now if possible.

11th to 25th avoid all the numerous forms of wasting money that are called extravagance.

If You Were Born June 11-20: Afraid this is going to be a somewhat volcanic month if you aren't accustomed to full control. Energy splatters all over the place. Emotions run high. Independence and positiveness ditto. In fact, you could come a cropper in physical form if you were being foolish.

Don't take unwise chances in occupation this month; same with your investments, and in regard to your home. This is not the month to be high-handed or cock-sure. Unless you can afford it.

There could be a lot of happiness in marriage in July, but here again you feel that Jupiter-Neptune square and it stirs you to go to extremes and magnify things. Can you keep level and be happy? Romance is best 2nd-4th, 7th-10th, and from 22nd.

From the 19th put your brain on matters of estate and income, but 25th-27th be cautious of new things. Getting extravagant from 26th.

9th-14th, and till 22nd to some extent, good for earning the good will of financial superiors through your own ingenuity.

7th-17th and again 25th to mid 29th, good for profit through social contacts or activities.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

July, 1936

For GEMINI (If you were born May 21-June 20)

Advice for Every Day This Month

Wed., 1—Visionary ideas may cause errors in estate, home, occupation or with partners, during the next twenty-five days—be careful. Till the 4th: watch personal expression and interests—use diplomacy when dealing with those older; joint finances need care.

Thu., 2—Judgment apt to be distorted—don't encourage misunderstandings with those close to you; not too promising for finances. Make extra efforts to keep things going smoothly in occupation.

Fri., 3—Be sure to use emotions constructively in connection with occupation, finances, home and neighborhood interests during the next three days. Evening today till mid-afternoon tomorrow: don't get careless with your expenditures; unreliable for social or affectional interests. Study and quiet surroundings look best this evening.

Sat., 4—Check over your ideas concerning estate, joint finances and occupation, they may be too visionary, but with proper handling may prove valuable later.

Sun., 5—Till the 9th: widen your circle of friends; improve with co-workers and inferiors. Give progressive methods consideration in connection with money and health. Good for study and research work. Afternoon today: cooperate with elders for mutual benefit.

Mon., 6—The morning hours look doubtful for confidential, financial or distant interests. Evening: promising for partnership activities.

Tue., 7—Next three days are favorable for conservative financial, social and occupational plans; adjust old confidential problems. Today: good for personal expression and development; improve home interests and those in which distance is a factor.

Wed., 8—Think twice before making important decisions re personal, financial, home or health matters during the next seven days; be considerate when dealing with inferiors. Today: detour impractical home or occupational plans. Go slow with partners in evening.

Thu., 9—Concentrate on financial and occupational problems—avoid extreme pessimism. Promote harmony with loved ones during the morning hours. Evening: warns against snap judgment.

Fri., 10—Curb impulsive speech or action when dealing with friends and coworkers. Be sensible regarding finances. Evening: improve with those close to you.

Sat., 11—During the morning and afternoon, secrets, finances, affections are apt to be unsettled—go slow. A.M.: urges caution when dealing with superiors, neighbors and close relatives.

Sun., 12—Today and tomorrow A.M. favor personal development and improvement. The accent is on matters of a confidential nature. Stick to conservative plans in connection with home and finances.

Mon., 13—Go slow with friends, inferiors and coworkers during the next four days; don't take chances where occupation or home are concerned.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE—GEMINI

Afternoon today: let your efforts count for more than your personality.

Tue., 14—Don't yield to extreme overoptimism when dealing with others during the evening and tomorrow morning. Watch finances and be careful regarding diet.

Wed., 15—Personal, occupational and home interests will require careful attention—keep away from extremes. Be tactful when dealing with elders.

Fri., 17—Judgment looks keen, aim to get your financial, occupational and home interests organized during the next two days. Seek the advice of those older or more experienced.

Sat., 18—Put the emphasis on local affairs; improve with neighbors. Attend to social activities and matters of a confidential nature.

Sun., 19—Unreliable for sudden decisions regarding distant interests during the morning hours—go slow if traveling; be wary of secrets. P.M. favors neighborhood and partnership interests.

Mon., 20—Next eight days look promising for getting financial, occupational and health interests on a sound foundation—feature procedure that has stood the test of time. Contact old friends.

Tue., 21—Pick your way carefully in connection with social, confidential neighborhood matters and those involving travel or distance during the next four days—stick to conservative plans. Today: keep your balance concerning home, occupation and partners.

Wed., 22—Quiet persistence may be necessary today—stick to your accustomed routine. Don't bring up past issues, particularly where finances are involved. A.M. favors friends and health plans.

Thu., 23—Advance personal, social and neighborhood interests during the morning hours. Be alert for opportunities to improve with superiors.

Fri., 24—Strengthen your position socially and with partners, loved ones during the afternoon. Evening warns against misunderstandings with friends. Keep your eyes on expenses.

Sat., 25—Cultivate your artistic and creative talents during the next four days. Promising for efforts to improve social, partnership interests. Till the 27th: avoid upset nerves and mind. Think twice before making changes re neighborhood, home or affairs at a distance. Watch secrets. Evening today: be tactful with opposite sex.

Sun., 26—Keep away from risks when traveling; stick to a sensible health routine. Social, affectional, confidential plans don't appear to be very reliable. Go slow with inferiors.

Mon., 27—Mature occupational, financial and health plans favored. Make progress with friends, coworkers and elders. NG for hasty changes.

Tue., 28—Till Aug. 1st: go slow with those in authority, particularly in connection with neighborhood activities. Confidential and distant affairs will respond best to conservative policies. Social and partnership interests offer opportunities for gaining ground today and during the next two days.

Wed., 29—Home and occupation will require decisions that are not influenced by tricky emotions. Till evening: strengthen your position socially and with loved ones.

Thu., 30—Early morning hours are not too encouraging for financial, partnership or occupational decisions. Avoid friction with those older.

Fri., 31—Give progressive financial plans consideration during the morning hours. P.M.: don't allow your daydreams to crowd out practical procedure concerning estate, home or occupation.

CANCER OPPORTUNITIES

*For All
Born in
This Sign:
June 21-
July 22*

For you Cancerians, with your propensity to be swayed by your emotions, this will be a more than usually positive month, even militantly emotional for some of you. And some of these feelings at least will be for or in behalf of the under-dog, e.g., those who may be at the moment weaker or inferior to yourself. The hitch in this, which in itself is one of the right paths to your ultimate development, is likely to be that you let yourself be led to the extent that you are imposed upon, or that you put in more energy and feeling than the occasion warrants. That Jupiter-Neptune square of last month continues through most of this, till mid-way of the 26th to be exact, and if you remember your stimulus in June you will handle this month better.

You remember my advising you some issues ago that in July the opposition of Saturn-Neptune would begin again? Well, it is now a pleasant duty to tell you that the period from the 4th of this month to the same date of October is the last of this influence. Therefore, make the most of it to be grateful (as all the rest of us must be too) for the weaknesses in your emotional and intellectual processes which the Saturn-Neptune tests will make you aware of; there's nothing like going to the extremes to make us conscious just what our boundaries are. Perhaps this last year or so you have discovered things you didn't think you could feel, or think. If so, you are that much richer in self-knowledge.

If you have not already done so, this month is a good time to take a vacation, seeking that ideal tonic for the Cancer body and soul—the water. Store up vitality now for the coming pull. There's another good reason for the vacation idea just now too, and that is that this month is highly stimulated for you in the departments of romance and affection. Make all the social contacts you can, at least for the first half of the month. Rein in any over-positiveness you feel, for the sake of reputation.

And be well in command of all possible expenses if you travel, for they could be higher than you had counted upon.

From the 21st be slightly more discriminative with strangers.

That receptive, emotional nature of yours is stimulated in creative ways this month and one of the best ways to use it will be to keep all your senses alert to impressions, to be receptive at least as much as you are able to give forth in artistic and creative ways.

CANCER OPPORTUNITIES

If You Were Born June 21-July 1: It would seem that July will offer you a chance to cash in on some of your social contacts, especially 25th to mid-29th. In fact, the last week of the month is strong for planning and acting in money matters, if you can avoid any tendency to jump into new things hurriedly, or make wrong decisions about changes and new friends or strangers.

8-14, a time in which you can talk with positiveness and eloquence, but a bad time to do so unless you can curb any tendency to be caustic or sharp-tongued, and to tell your own secrets.

No friendship is an asset that can be tossed over lightly, so avoid the fixations that may threaten from the 21st on. Be selective of new folks you meet; be sure your choice of friends is justified.

5th-17th, and 20th-28th is best for pushing ahead in occupational interests by personal effort and personal approaches. 20th-28th indicates profit through older people and partners, the former possibly having some connection with distance or teaching.

From 18th possible extravagance in adornment or decoration of home which touches your savings or capital. Be sensible.

Best dates for health building, from 25th.

If You Were Born July 2-11: Educational matters, the study of philosophy, of those pursuits which spare us from bigotry and narrow-mindedness, should come in for attention this month.

1-9 give outlet to your social instincts. Beware of secret plans, or plans for secrecy during the first four days, especially involving partners. 1-12, cement your relations with persons in financial authority. 11-25, activity, work, any expenditure of energy within reason, is better than the recklessness and temper that might result from laziness during this period, which is strongly romantic. 28-31, put these days aside to do your financial planning. Other dates good for finances will be 16th-23rd.

3rd-6th, you could react to these vibrations with a disinclination to work, unless you are a creative artist, in which event your imaginative fecundity will be marked. Seize it while it lasts. Otherwise take advantage of the lull to see what you can get out of it in understandings, and then see what you might do to add beauty to home surroundings, and the lives of any who share your home.

If You Were Born July 12-22: Stick to the safe and sound in money matters this month, all month; from the 28th be especially immune to the tendency to jump into changes or new things.

3rd-8th, write, plan, speak nothing the world can't be told.

Sudden, erratic, decisions of a personal nature are to be steered around in July, for friction's sake if no other. Too hurried changes, including changes of mind could work you harm through your profession. Do not fall into fixations that leave you deaf to reason.

Deal with the other sex all month, in a general way; it becomes a romantic way from the 26th on if you are eligible; if married, it will manifest in your relations through affections generally.

13th-23rd is good for personal contacts with those in positions superior to yours, whether governmental, social or business. Make the most of it in planned ways.

You are liable to be more self-conscious this month, conscious of your personal aims and ambitions and your personal standing with others. At the same time, you can be more magnetic to others, especially after the 10th; make friends.

Travel sensibly, especially 1st-4th.

local or distant affairs or regarding loved ones; go slow. The afternoon hours today favor progress with friends.

Tue., 14—Stick to a sensible health routine during the evening and A.M. tomorrow. Be wary of secrets; avoid promises that may be hard to comply with when dealing with inferiors.

Wed., 15—Confidential affairs are still on the unreliable list. Keep your mental processes free from negative influences. P.M. warns against upsets with partners or in-laws.

Thu., 16—Till the 3rd: place added emphasis on the personal angle when dealing with superiors, neighbors or close relatives. Be awake concerning financial and confidential matters. Evening today and till mid-afternoon tomorrow: curb headstrong tendencies regarding personal, occupational or social activities.

Fri., 17—Take advantage of the next two days—get your partnership, personal, neighborhood interests and those involving in-laws, distance, travel organized. P.M. today favors mental pursuits, study.

Sat., 18—Give your financial department consideration; deal wisely with friends, especially those of the feminine sex. Attend to matters pertaining to your home.

Sun., 19—Be sure you're right before making shifts financially or with friends during the morning hours. P.M.: strengthen your position with inferiors.

Mon., 20—The next eight days look promising for gaining ground with elders, partners, loved ones and in occupation—feature conservative policies; attend to things personally.

Tue., 21—Next four days are unsettled for home activities and finances in which others are involved. Be practical when dealing with friends and women. Concentrate on neighborhood affairs—keep emotions under control. Evening: detour self-indulgence that would be detrimental to health.

Wed., 22—During the next ten days analyze your financial department—consider ways that will enable you to increase your skill; attend to confidential and home interests; be friendly with neighbors. Today: sidestep errors with elders, partners, relatives and neighbors; go slow when traveling.

Thu., 23—The morning hours look best today—advance personal interests—improve with superiors. Be careful financially and with friends.

Fri., 24—Favorable for personal, home and health plans during the afternoon. Evening warns against argumentative tendencies, especially in social or affectional affairs.

Sat., 25—The next two days your judgment is not likely to be all that it should where finances, neighbors, secrets or friends are concerned—think twice. Till the 29th: improve with family, coworkers and inferiors. Domestic and health interests look promising. Today in evening: be tactful in social and affectional matters.

Sun., 26—Don't be too hasty with friends, loved ones. Financial questions will require calm decisions. Avoid errors with family during P.M.

Mon., 27—Good for personal interests and development—cultivate creative talents. Make headway in occupation and socially. Promote harmony with elders and partners. Travel, distant interests OK.

Tue., 28—Till August 1st: pick your way with superiors and financially. Next two days: gain ground with neighbors and coworkers. Adjust confidential matters; OK for health plans. P.M. today favors personal interests and expression.

Wed., 29—Keep your inner feelings calm—be careful when dealing with neighbors and relatives during the A.M. and afternoon. Home interests look best.

Thu., 30—Early A.M. warns against misunderstandings with elders, in-laws, inferiors and partners; take good care of health.

Fri., 31—Advance personal and partnership interests during the morning and till mid-afternoon—feature progressive plans. P.M. favors mental pursuits where inspiration is an asset.

LEO OPPORTUNITIES

*For All
Born in
This Sign:
July 23-
August 22*

There's an undercurrent of unseen activity during the first three-quarters of your July at least in the matter of both motives and actions. So with the resumed opposition of Saturn to Neptune, and that planet's square to Jupiter till mid-way of the 26th, don't let natural and instinctive urges for power and dominance tempt you into any backstage arrangements, especially in regard to finances. If you react rightly to the month's influences you will use the tendency to turn inward for purposes of examining the depth and strength of what you feel with an eye to self-development. It can be used also in the form of some quiet retirement for the purpose of figuring out ways and means in both the financial and home departments, and in connection with deepening bonds with friends.

You will be glad to know that the influence you have been tussling with in your financial affairs for some time, (Saturn-Neptune opposition) will be all over finally on the 4th of this October, although you may feel it in diminishing strength for a time thereafter. So continue to turn your full attention to the avoiding of foolish moves and speculation till that time; it will pay. Keep feet on solid ground.

No matter how you handle it, for your benefit or otherwise, you continue to operate under influences which tend to bring your romances, or your affectional relations with others, and your finances together. Knowing this, figure the cost of any move you make in dollars and cents—not always a tendency of your good Leo folks, but one that will serve your best interests at this time. Avoid the error of mixing up your ambitions in finances with your love life, or making one serve the purposes of the other. Similarly, don't let money stand in the way of true affection.

Occupation, and reputation, offer progress through new slants or new moves most of the month, but from the 21st not so—unless you can react only to the best of the stimuli you will be receiving, for this will tend to make you want to change, but too hurriedly or without sufficient investigation, or sufficient reason.

Your best avenues of profit, development and growth in July will be through social, sympathetic, and emotional contacts with others; the unselfish understanding you can give just now, the good will you can earn, will net aid and happiness now and later.

LEO OPPORTUNITIES

If You Were Born July 23-August 2: This is the sort of month that leads you to expose, whether suddenly and violently or just on impulse, those things and those feelings which had heretofore been comparatively hidden. The same influence will also tend to bring any unacknowledged antagonisms to the surface. Since your July influences thus tend to uncover, it is well to protect your reputation by avoiding all the many causes of scandal. Possibly the days between 25th and 27th will be most significant; make no hurried decisions involving your occupational standing in those days—take your time.

From the 18th on, stronger after the 25th, your month accents affections and romance, with your natural magnetism increasing; make personal contacts and push social affairs after that date, particularly those that might be of occupational aid.

Deal with superiors by personal contact from the 23rd, but be careful to avoid the sudden and unexpected upset from the 28th, especially in regard to new matters.

Best dates for financial activities 3rd-4th (deal with women or in their needs); 3rd to mid-way of 6th (deal with superiors); and 13th-17th (good for planning, analyzing).

If You Were Born August 3-12: The first two weeks of the month, with the possible exception of the first three days, are good for purposes of making friends by means of mutual intellectual interests, or in connection with earning capacity and income in some way. Cultivate those in the mental professions and business people. 8th-14th suggests contacts with those from or at a distance or connected with transportation or means of communication; the 15th indicates new persons, those advanced in thought, and connected with occupation.

The whole month is active behind the scenes. It may be that your associates do not communicate all their reactions to you; but it is more likely to be that you yourself feel temporarily the instinct to withhold, or to seek more seclusion than is usual or natural to you. Try to keep on being frank and free yourself.

Toward the end of the month, the last week especially, the secretive element enters your affectional and romantic matters, possibly to stir up your deeper emotions in happy ways.

13th-17th looks extravagant or just foolish, and yet there are opportunities here connected with money if you can see them.

If You Were Born August 13-22: What might seem to you eagerness, or interest, or even help, might be mistaken by your friends this month for an attitude of undue positiveness, even dictatorialism. Therefore tone down such over-energetic impulses as you may feel before you express them, always giving full consideration to the other fellow's point of view. Such an attitude will make you more in demand than usual this month.

Use your home for purposes of adding to your contacts and of making more solid those already in your picture. Home should also count toward the last of the month as your means of seclusion while you carry on work not yet ready to be made public.

The weakest dates of July for matters of income look like the first three days and 25th, 26th, 27th. Outside of these push money plans especially 8th-15th, 17th-23rd, and from 28th; being alert for the sort of errors outlined on the previous page from month to month.

The last week is strongest for romance and social matters, if you keep secrets constructive, and emotions within bounds.

20th-28th work on improving home itself and domestic budgets.

Sun., 19—Not too promising for new ventures during A.M.; go slow with partners. P.M.: good for personal interests and development—strengthen your position socially and with loved ones.

Mon., 20—Endeavor to get health, service, budget, home and confidential activities organized during the next eight days. Best for methods that have stood the test of time.

Tue., 21—Avoid personal blunders in occupation during the next four days—go slow with neighbors, close relatives and partners. Watch your step in connection with finances today. Evening: be sensible with loved ones. Not too promising socially.

Wed., 22—The next ten days are stimulated mentally—give personal, occupational and financial activities consideration. Today: guard against complications with elders, inferiors or concerning budget.

Thu., 23—Be alert for openings to improve with superiors, neighbors and close relatives during the morning hours. Doubtful for occupational or partnership changes.

Fri., 24—Social, affectional interests best in afternoon. Evening suggests care when traveling, or when dealing with relatives, neighbors. Secrets may prove unreliable.

Sat., 25—Till 29th: cultivate your artistic and creative talents. Promote more congenial relations with loved ones. Next two days: snap judgment apt to be risky in occupation, finances or with friends. Evening today: exercise diplomacy with other sex. Go slow with neighbors.

Sun., 26—Steer clear of revolutionary changes re estate, home or with partners. Guard against personal errors. Not too reliable financially or with neighbors.

Mon., 27—Feature conservative policies in connection with estate, home or joint financial activities. Good for study, research; take time off for self-analysis.

Tue., 28—Don't be too quick to make unnecessary changes in occupation or with superiors, partners, during the next four days. Till the 30th: mentally keen—map out a course of action regarding financial, social and affectional affairs.

Wed., 29—Till evening: guard against deceptive financial arrangements. Personal and social interests favored. Be friendly with neighbors.

Thu., 30—Don't encourage complications with loved ones, coworkers, inferiors or elders during the early A.M. Take care of health dept.

Fri., 31—Till mid-afternoon: feature the service angle in occupation; push progressive methods. Partnership activities look promising. During the afternoon and evening: your financial ideas are likely to be too inspirational—keep them practical.

VIRGO OPPORTUNITIES

*For All
Born in
This Sign:
Aug. 23-
Sept. 22*

Just as you once trotted out the familiar Santa Claus story for reappraisal, only to discover in it a symbolical intent that far transcended its literal meaning so familiar to you of yore, so must all of your accumulated impressions be periodically brought out for similar revision in the light of mature experience. This year, and the month of July, is meant for doing just this. The renewed opposition between Saturn and Neptune, beginning on the 4th of this month and lasting till the 4th of October when it ends finally (it will be felt in diminishing strength for a time thereafter) can turn the entire summer into a tangle of conflicting forces, but with a result which may well be the sweeping away of a lot of mental barriers that would be distinct limitations to your life as a Virgo native.

If you would get the most good out of the hypersensitiveness that pervades the month before you, declare a moratorium on action as well as words and go into communion with yourself; your life habit of critical analysis will save you the unpleasant consequences of the possibly faulty reasoning and unguided emotions that will be with you for a time yet. And remember, whether married or single, that this is neither an easy time for your partner nor those who love you, any more than it is for yourself, and try harder to accord to everyone full rights and full appreciation. If you are single, it is obviously not one of the easy times in which to start off in partnership; but if you are sure, sure you can weather these initial tests of emotion, and that your partner also is wise (and possibly older) go ahead and see if you're as good as you think.

For you, these periods of stress are not mere liabilities; they often contain the germs of really great ideas, which you can come at by living your influences rightly; if you do not, it is surely your own fault, for you were endowed with the ability to talk and reason yourself out of any temptation, under whatever circumstances it may be encountered.

This whole year can hardly pass without some form of gain to you in home matters and possibly in your estate also. The only thing that could stand in the way would be your handling of that Saturn-Neptune-Jupiter blend. If you are among the more highly evolved members of your good sign, you will look back on this time as bringing great opportunities and changes that had far-reaching effect.

VIRGO OPPORTUNITIES

If You Were Born August 23-September 2: This seems to be a good month for throwing your personality into your efforts to get somewhere and for mixing with people in general, out of which can come gain to you in several ways now and later on. There is one thing, though, to watch, and that is either your own or other people's tendency to keep a lot in the background, especially after the middle of the month. For your own part, even if your instincts do cause you to seek some kind of withdrawal, spiritual or physical, be sure you supply other people with all the facts they need to go on in regard to yourself and your activities—not to mention your feelings.

While 8th-14th might be somewhat sharp or friction-ish, and 25th-27th too prone to dash into things just because new, the most of July is strong for both talking and doing in personal ways.

1st-3rd is weakest for romance and affections, with 7th-14th, and 17th-28th strongest. 7th-10th is good for relations with older women for whom you care.

Best dates for dealing with occupational and governmental superiors look like 16th-23rd, although there is an element of secrecy.

If You Were Born September 3-12: This month is strong for planning ways and means of advancing yourself in occupation and in your reputation before the eyes of the world. The exceptions are the first three days and 25th-27th. 6th-14th should be used to put plans into action of the right sort, but watch for tendency to be too forceful. 12th is good for deciding upon new occupational matters, while 17th-19th is better for developing old interests and dealing with elders.

Your personally earned income can in some way be bettered, now or later, by your current friendships, particularly with women or in the form of social contacts. Be alert for openings and ideas.

All month, but especially after the 25th, concentrate upon improvement in your home and environment, upon hospitality in home, and upon ways to better your estate. Good for beautifying home itself.

5th-8th and 12th look good for matters of travel, or communication with distance by various means, but 21st-24th the reverse. Use first two dates for deciding upon changes and new moves also, and last dates for holding back in this regard.

4th-17th, and 20th-28th best for neighborhood and community interests.

If You Were Born September 13-22: It won't be the heat, but an influence you will be feeling through your occupation that will tempt you to feel antagonistic, resentful, or misused this month—if you do. Don't. There are better ways to use the energy; for instance in being more than usually active in working on plans for getting ahead and earning more money. The plans should include fitting yourself to be worth more.

Deal with superiors, especially elders, via the mutual sympathy route 8th-14th, and possibly also through the more conservative and formal type of entertainment.

There is a strong accent on your friendships in July, especially from the 10th. Both sexes; the mental and the business type of friend; and those in positions superior to your own, are indicated as the most positive avenues of progress and harmony 10th-17th, and 25th to mid-29th are strongest for cultivating women, and persons of either sex who influence (or could affect) your money matters.

Steer around sudden upsets in health via nervous reactions from the 21st of the month.

LIBRA OPPORTUNITIES

*For All
Born in
This Sign:
Sept. 23-
Oct. 23*

Did you ever meet the demon within yourself? Would you recognize him if I were to name him? Here goes, then: he is your will to fail.

Oh, yes, we all entertain him to some extent, but you good friends of the Libra clan are likely to make his acquaintance more intimately than the rest of us unless you deliberately disavow him early in the game. It's like the game of telephone poles: the driver who fastens his eyes on them in order to avoid them wins the game by hitting one first.

Along comes July with its reforming of the Saturn-Neptune opposition and its continuation of the Jupiter-Neptune square. The latter ends temporarily on the 26th about mid-day, but the former keeps on working within you till it ends finally on the 4th of October.

If you experience fears of the purely unknown, or spiritual stirrings that leave you upset because you cannot account for them or explain their meaning—including dreams, of course—don't just leave it at that, but keep on trying to sensitize yourself so that you will finally get that flash from your higher self that will give you the clue. Guidance in development can be forthcoming if you know how to receive it. Emotional turmoil is usually the first symptom.

You can see the connection between this and any desire for stimulants you may feel; don't indulge it, you don't need them now. Build up your body by guarding and freely irrigating your liver, by extra chewing, more exercise and more rest, but avoid over-doing of any kind and all the forms of exposure.

Nothing happens by accident—that we know. You'll be able to recognize the connection between your own admirable talent for diplomacy and the same trait you are so liable to meet in others at this time; like will attract like. It is your job to keep from reacting in an inwardly antagonistic way to these persons, and to keep them from becoming unavowed opponents of yours.

Your best opportunities continue to lie in the direction of developing the real capacity of your mind; of personal deals with your brothers and sisters if any; of opening up for yourself opportunities of a local or neighborhood character; and of profitable contacts with means of short distance communication or travel—publications, advertising, mail, common carriers such as buses trains, etc. Focus your attention just now on the opportunity close at hand—including that under your hair!

LIBRA OPPORTUNITIES

If You Were Born September 23-October 3: The whole month is more or less inflamed in relations with others, unless you can turn it into good, useful working energy instead. Since the force of this influence is to be felt through your occupation and your relations with those who can give you orders or favors, you can use it either to get ahead and create appreciation of your work where it will do you the most good, or you can allow it to become destructive and bring about unpleasant situations. Hold your tongue and pen especially 1st-14th, and not in occupation only but with others generally and partners specifically; this can be a good time for handling legal matters, however, if you can guide excess energy away from snap judgment, etc.

First 23 days good for recognizing business opportunities connected with distance or the means of reaching it.

In personally earned income you can make it a profitable month: from 5th to 8th consider new things; 13th-17th be alert for gain through inferiors or in confidential ways; and 20th-28th through elders, home folks, and old plans—build up estate in these ways also.

18th-29th is strong for making friends who will count and for contacting women.

If You Were Born October 4-13: The heaviest accent of your July falls on your working conditions and your work itself. For the first twelve days do all you can in personal ways to build yourself up with your superiors or the public, to earn good will and enhance your reputation. This time is strong for dealing with older persons who are connected with your work, and for thinking out ways to improve your personal services. From the eleventh, while you will have more impetus and desire for action, you may need to keep out of avoidable misunderstandings also.

After the 14th make decisions about, and plans for improving, any phase of your occupation that takes in publications, travel, teaching or study, or the element of distance in some way. 17th-19th concentrate on old interests of this kind; 16th-23rd deal with friends mutually involved; 25th-27th go slow with new plans and moves; and from 28th push ahead and do any expanding indicated.

Romance looks best 5th-8th and also on the 12th; while the period from the 21st on needs care to avoid the sudden upset and the sudden change of mind that proves too hasty.

From 25th push local interests.

If You Were Born October 14-23: Not only for your own satisfaction to allay mental and physical desire for movement and action, but also for financial purposes fasten your gaze on points beyond your usual horizon and go after it in the body if you can. Take in other and extra territory with your eyes, your decisions, and your actions. With the possible exceptions of 1st-3rd and 25th-27th it is a good time to consider travel, if you can keep finances organized.

10th-22nd be active in pushing your occupational interests, in cultivating the regard of superiors and women associates; deal personally; make friends.

If you are married, use 5th-8th and the 12th for deepening your bonds in new ways and for adjusting mutual finances; but tread wisely from the 21st on, nor be carried into hasty changes or upsets. Same dates will affect the unmarried among you in different ways, the first dates good for romance, the latter period one to avoid hasty and premature attractions and commitments.

7th-14th and 17th-28th best for solving health problems, and for improving home matters.

Make friends 3rd-6th (inferiors), 9th-14th (elders), 16th-23rd (superiors).

Wed., 15—Keep away from upset nerves and mental state. Avoid complications with inferiors, coworkers and in-laws.

Thu., 16—Place added emphasis on affairs involving friends, superiors, occupation, travel during the next seven days. Evening today and till early P.M. tomorrow: be constructive with partners and re finances.

Fri., 17—Today and during the next two days: feature the service angle in occupation. Straighten out old problems with coworkers, inferiors and in estate or home.

Sat., 18—Aim to strengthen your position with friends—be congenial with the people that you contact. Concentrate on personal activities and finances in which others are involved.

Sun., 19—Don't be too anxious for shifts and changes where friends, loved ones or mutual funds are concerned, during the morning hours. P.M. favors short trips, local interests—improve with neighbors and close relatives.

Mon., 20—Promising for progress through conservative plans during the next eight days, particularly in finances, occupation, home and with elders, partners.

Tue., 21—The next four days warn against upsets with women, friends and loved ones—guard against errors in joint funds. Today: stick to a sensible health routine. Unreliable for secrets and with inferiors. Evening; not too promising for affairs that require calm judgment.

Wed., 22—Till August 1st: put the spotlight on personal, confidential, distant, budget interests and those involving friends. Today: watch your step when dealing with elders, inferiors and family. Be wary of secrets.

Thu., 23—Good for personal expression during the morning hours—increase your popularity with superiors, friends and in-laws.

Fri., 24—Afternoon looks best for personal endeavors and community interests. Evening warns against headstrong inclinations when dealing with those close to you. Be sensible re expenditures.

Sat., 25—Good for personal expression and development during the next four days—make headway in community activities. Next two days will require conservative decisions with friends, loved ones and re secrets, budget. Evening today: don't let selfish inclinations cause upsets.

Sun., 26—Stick to conservative policies where finances are concerned. Be considerate when dealing with loved ones. P.M. warns against carelessness in personal matters—go slow with women, friends.

Mon., 27—Be alert for opportunities to improve financial, health and occupational interests. Accomplish things with partners.

Tue., 28—The next four days are not too reliable for occupational finances or those in which others are involved—be sensible with superiors, friends, loved ones. Till the 30th: good for mental pursuits—develop personally—improve your reputation with neighbors. P.M. today favors social and affectional interests.

Fri., 31—Till mid-afternoon: feature progressive plans in occupation and re estate. P.M. is better for inspirational pursuits than those that require practical decisions.

SCORPIO OPPORTUNITIES

*For All
Born in
This Sign:
Oct. 24-
Nov. 22*

Being adult members of the eighth sign of the Zodiac, you grant of course that no effect can be without proportionate cause, for your lives as natives of Scorpio have undoubtedly held one or more experiences tending to show you through external-material effects the spiritual causes behind; all of which contributes to the reason for your Scorpio incarnation—to distinguish between materialistic capital as represented by your opposition sign and spiritual capital as symbolized by your own.

It is through this perceiving of the spiritual cause that you can succeed in your purpose in this life and leave it with the kind of capital that goes along with you.

So, in July as all through this year, keep your mind open and alert for the real causes behind your experiences in love, marriage, and money matters. It is these departments of your life that are receiving the heaviest stimulus at present. This month brings into existence again that Saturn-Neptune opposition from the 4th, to continue until the same date in October; and it continues the square between Jupiter and Neptune till mid-way of the 26th.

You may recognize (or have already done so) in yourself the elements of defeatism where affections and romance are concerned, not so much as inherent in your character as the result of your current influences. It may come about through certain experiences you have had or are having with loved ones and with friends who become closer: these relations can stir in you the extremes of feeling all the way from the possessive and selfish to the highest and noblest expression of your ideals you are yet capable of, and it probably isn't easy to keep control of your feelings and keep your affairs organized. Besides which, you are having times just now when money will get mixed into your love-affection-friendship matters in ways that constitute problems. Keep at it, brothers and sisters: you have the stuff that can win and leave you with more spiritual capital than when you started to tackle your present set of influences.

Remember in marriage and home to be careful to provide the opportunities for your mate and home folks to grow equally with yourself when you form new ideas or come to new decisions; it would be the failure to do this that would be the cause of any disruption. Encourage your partners to share every move and thought, to come along with you.

SCORPIO OPPORTUNITIES

If You Were Born October 24-November 2: Relations with mates, business partners, and equals generally seem to get along harmoniously as far as the month's influences are concerned until along about the 21st; from then on, especially if you are among the married, deny yourself the pleasure of acting because you feel like it or taking the last word because you want it, or doing anything else too hurriedly or too drastically. This influence involves your occupation, your joint finances, and friendships.

Energy and to spare this month may carry you into movement beyond your usual physical boundaries. If you travel, be sure to make all the personal contacts you can. From 5th to 8th meet new folks and develop new alliances; 8th-14th seek the intellectual type, and men; 13th-17th cultivate those who try to live their high ideals; and 20th-28th seek those who attract you among older folks who are able to teach you something. This applies to some extent if you stay home.

Strongest dates for romance 3rd-6th and 13th-17th.

If You Were Born November 3-12: From first to last, this month stimulates you to take interest in events, people, and interests at a distance from your own location, whether you move about or not. It can be used to increase your knowledge of other countries, civilizations, peoples, through books and study, or to get such information first hand through travel. Forward your occupational interests through any indicated medium for spreading your influence or product over more territory—mail, advertising, radio, etc., etc.

Pleasure trips with partners can prove profitable and happy. So can social contacts made en route.

The first two weeks should be turned to account in improving the joint money outlook through planning and weighing facts and figures.

Best dates for pushing for occupational results and those involving superiors look like 3rd to mid 6th; 9th-14th; and 16th-23rd; but be more careful from the 28th on and act slowly and conservatively.

Best dates for romance 4-14th, and 17th-28th.

Best time of the month for financial efforts from the 25th on. Be alert to tips or help from others at this time.

If married, careful from the 21st.

If You Were Born November 13-22: The month as a whole looks harmonious in most directions if you didn't start it with too many handicaps carried over. At least the majority of your vibrations in July can help you to untangle your affairs rather than incite you to knot 'em up still further. The undercurrent is to smooth out rather than to ruffle up.

After the first two weeks you will be working in harmony with your vibrations if you turn your attention to the acquiring of further culture and knowledge. There are many ways in which it can and should be done: through reading, study, research, travel, contacts with other minds either by communication or in person, and general cultivation of your intellectual equipment in the ways that suggest themselves to you.

The first two weeks make you more receptive to sense impressions.

Definite moves and decisions in occupation and with superiors better made after the 13th than before, but slow down from 28th.

Socially improving from 10th; also cultivate women. Good for smoothing out marital tangles from then on, especially from 25th.

5th-8th plan ways to improve health and act on them.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

July, 1936

For SCORPIO (If you were born Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Advice for Every Day This Month

Fri., 10—You may have the tendency to get reckless in your health department and personal affairs. Be considerate when dealing with inferiors and in-laws. Evening favors financial plans.

Sat., 11—This is another day in which to adhere to a sensible health routine. Distant and travel activities are not too reliable. Avoid errors in occupation and with superiors during the morning. Till evening: watch confidential and partnership matters.

Sun., 12—All day and A.M. tomorrow: you can benefit through wise decisions with friends, partners and in-laws—attend to home and budget affairs. Aim to adjust emotional problems with loved ones during the evening. Artistic interests favored.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE—SCORPIO

Mon., 13—During the next four days: good for pursuits that require imagination but your ideas may be too impractical for everyday needs, especially in connection with personal, health, distant affairs. Afternoon to-day looks encouraging for progress with partners.

Tue., 14—Don't let your enthusiasm lead you into financial commitments that would be hard to fulfill, during the evening and tomorrow morning.

Wed., 15—Go slow with in-laws, loved ones and regarding joint finances. A.M.: warns against emotional upsets with friends. P.M. Be practical concerning neighborhood and social activities.

Thu., 16—Focus your attention on interests having a wide scope during the next seven days, especially where there is a connection with occupational or joint financial interests. Evening and till early P.M. tomorrow: personal and health plans accented.

Fri., 17—Stimulated mentally today and during the next two days—good for inventive pursuits. Strengthen your position socially. Gain ground in matters that involve travel, distance, distribution.

Sat., 18—Concentrate on your occupational department—be on your toes concerning confidential, partnership factors and those distantly located. Deal wisely with women.

Sun., 19—Go slow re changes in home or with partners in A.M. P.M. looks encouraging for travel, improving with in-laws and planning re occupation and finances.

Mon., 20—Personal efforts favored during the next eight days—improve relations with coworkers, relatives and loved ones. Consider ways and means through which you can build up your vitality.

Tue., 21—The next four days urge conservative policies in home, occupation and with partners—pick your way where secrets are involved. Unreliable financially and with friends, in-laws during evening hours.

Wed., 22—Till August 1st: turn the spotlight on occupational activities—take care of confidential, partnership and joint financial interests. Today: don't bring up past issues when dealing with neighbors, friends and loved ones.

Thu., 23—Take advantage of the morning hours to strengthen your position with friends and superiors. Adjust budget problems.

Fri., 24—Best to let your efforts count for more than personality in connection with finances, during the afternoon. Evening suggests care when traveling. Stick to a sensible health routine. Secrets are apt to be unreliable.

Sat., 25—Be sure that you are right before making shifts in home, occupation or with partners, during next two days. Watch for opportunities to put constructive financial plans into effect, during the next four days. Today: be tactful when dealing with those close to you.

Sun., 26—Guard against personal errors, go slow with family, partners and friends. Tread carefully concerning confidential matters.

Mon., 27—Good for personal expression and development—cultivate your talents. Increase your popularity with coworkers and neighbors. Health plans and those where travel or distance is a factor look favorable.

Tue., 28—The next four days warn against haste in connection with home, partnership or occupational decisions—second thought best. Till 30th: promote harmony with friends. Make headway financially.

Wed., 29—Till evening: avoid illusions concerning finances. Don't allow negative emotions to cause upsets with friends, loved ones or in-laws. Occupation and budget activities look good.

Thu., 30—Early A.M.: steer around difficulties with elders, loved ones, neighbors. Watch finances.

Fri., 31—Inspirational—use emotions constructively—improve with friends. Till mid-afternoon: New interests, neighborhood and partnership activities look encouraging.

IN JULY 1936

*For All

This Sign:
Nov. 23-
Dec. 21*

What you started last month under that Jupiter-Neptune square will continue this month, at least till the 26th, when the aspect culminates. Remember last month's advice and continue to keep as clear as you can of all extremes; over-estimation, blind belief, undue self-confidence, etc.

However, you will find this easier in July than in June, for from the 4th Saturn and Neptune swing into their opposition aspect again, to remain so till the 4th of October.

Are you finding it hard to either explain or handle the apparent inconsistencies in your affairs, particularly occupation, home, and estate? Does it seem to you at times that, just as you get things marshalled and in some order, your affairs turn coy and refuse to be managed? Are you veering first in the direction of roused faith, happiness, and confidence in man and things! and in the other direction of suspicion, self-pity, and pessimism? If you are, realize you are just one of many Sagittarians also trying to work through their present influences in the right way, and keep your real, inner ideals always before you as you keep on keeping on. Make a determined effort this month to adjust your occupation-home-estate affairs onto a just and harmonious basis, by giving up any aspirations that could interfere with your real development and achieving contentment by getting into harmony with nature's laws. Get at causes. This will carry you triumphantly through to the end of the Saturn-Neptune influence in October; otherwise the summer may be a somewhat conflicting time.

Through your present position of Uranus you are receiving ideas and experiences that will ultimately give you a few new concepts of the service ideal in relation to the work you do in the world. Some contacts with those who are weaker, in inferior positions, or who look up to you in any way, will turn the trick before the influence is over. Such mental about-faces will probably come suddenly and unexpectedly. At any rate, you should be deliberately trying to focus your always good mind on the problem of adding new features to your services, or of changing them altogether, if by so doing you can come nearer to your own particular expression of your talents.

There will be many personal opportunities lurking in the highways and byways of July if you are out and looking for them: sell, but don't over-price yourself and what you have to offer.

SAGITTARIUS OPPORTUNITIES

If You Were Born November 23-December 2: If you have need of celestial impetus to bring you to the point of terminating certain of your affairs or ways of thinking, July will supply it. This will be a good month for bringing to conclusions situations that have overstayed their time in occupation, love and affection, partnerships, law, and secret affairs. Make your decisions wisely, then act.

Health can be good and responsive to new ways of building it up through the month until the 21st, after which you should guard against the sudden upset, the nervous reaction (especially 25th-27th) and the accidental threats to bodily well-being, especially if travelling or handling machinery from the 28th on.

Also from the 25th make no decisions hurriedly about new occupational matters or in connection with local interests.

1st-7th and 20th-28th are strongest for romance and affection; the first ten days look extra receptive through the senses.

From the 18th keep an eye peeled for opportunities that could materialize in connection with publications, books, travel, or any distant interest; this will be strongest from the 25th on.

Best for personal contacts from the 25th also.

If You Were Born December 3-12: Heavy accent on the emotional experience sector this month for you folks. But that isn't all; it carries with it an overtone and an aftermath of spiritual experience and growth. Here's a genuine chance to add to your spiritual capital. Live your experiences fully. Garner all you can through the stimulation your senses and sense perceptions will be getting.

There will be more going on behind your scenes than externally. If you are single and involved in romance, there will be confidential factors enter the picture. In all affectional interests the same.

July constitutes a period that in some way brings trends of thought or trends of situations to an end, or a conclusion.

The first two weeks are good for coming to decisions in regard to moves you may be considering or changes you wish to make. Good for planning, discussing plans with others including partners; and also for attending to legal matters. Hold impetuous decisions to change or travel from the 28th.

Make friends from 25th, but careful of new selections 21st-24th.

If You Were Born December 13-21: You're apt to feel the inclination to ask or demand more than usual of other folks this month; it could produce friction and misunderstandings. So steer clear of criticism of others when avoidable, and be willing to do and give as much as you ask.

Secrets are likely to come out, possibly by means of your own tongue; think ahead.

Till 19th handle any legal and occupational problems carefully and with plenty of investigation, particularly if signing anything.

In romance and affections, 5th-8th indicates changes or new elements; 8th-14th is good for talking things out and coming to understandings; 13th-17th shows strong emotional feeling; and 20th-28th is strongest for old relations, and contacts with older folks.

In finances the first three days are doubtful, especially in judgment; but 7th-14th, 17th-19th, and 20th-28th are good—the latter, however, may bring some cost of expenditure beyond what had been anticipated. The same dates cover the finances of estate.

Save your important social activities if possible for 25th to mid-way of the 29th; business-social best 28th to mid 30th.

Wed., 15—Make extra efforts to keep financial, domestic and partnership interests in shipshape condition. Don't bring up old problems if you can avoid them.

Thu., 16—Be alert with superiors, in-laws and partners during the next seven days. Evening today and till early P.M. tomorrow: accented for social, affectional interests—avoid temperamental outbursts.

Fri., 17—Promising for conservative plans in occupation today and during the next two days—aim to straighten out old problems in finances. Strengthen your position with family, partners and elders.

Sat., 18—Matters pertaining to distance, travel are accented. Make progress with friends, partners, and coworkers.

Sun., 19—Personal interests and development favored—expand mentally. The morning hours are doubtful for health, or travel plans—go slow and easy.

Mon., 20—Lay the foundations for future progress in connection with home, finances and social matters during the next eight days. Take care of confidential interests. Improve with loved ones.

Tue., 21—The next four days warn against self-indulgence—take care of health. Avoid carelessness when traveling or handling electrical equipment. Be considerate with friends, coworkers and close relatives. Today: watch occupational and home activities.

Wed., 22—Till August 1st: concentrate on activities that involve distribution or distance. Deal wisely with in-laws, partners and friends. Today: avoid errors in occupation, finances or home.

Thu., 23—Be on the job where superiors, in-laws and friends are involved. The morning hours look best for making gains.

Fri., 24—Advance personal interests in afternoon; improve with friends. Hold back from hasty speech or action in social or affectional affairs during evening; unreliable for confidential or budget activities.

Sat., 25—The next two days suggest conservative policies in connection with travel, distribution, health, partnership and occupational activities. Till the 29th: personal endeavors look best. Evening today: unsettled for secrets; go slow with in-laws and other sex.

Sun., 26—Keep your imagination under control—avoid upset nerves or mental state; detour joint financial errors. Keep out of controversies.

Mon., 27—Favorable for confidential activities. Make headway with elders and financially. Established more congenial relations with loved ones. Adjust old problems concerning home.

Tue., 28—During the next four days it would be a good idea to check over your hunches carefully before acting on them. Till 30th: feature the personal angle with partners and in occupation.

Wed., 29—Don't allow tricky emotions to cause upsets in occupation or home during A.M. and afternoon. Promote harmony with partners and friends.

Thu., 30—Avoid impractical decisions re home, finances or personal matters during A.M.

Fri., 31—Progressive plans favored in neighborhood, financial and health activities till mid-afternoon. P.M.: urges care in home and occupation—control emotions.

No one but yourself realizes the extent of what is going on within you these days. Your 1936 influences bunch so strongly on the higher up and deeper down reaches of that person only you know that what you are going through could be likened to an invisible revolution. Being the sort of person you are, it is probably against your grain to ask leniency in your daily life contacts with others because of this internal heaving that needs so much of your attention. But watch yourself for silent self-pity!

July ushers in again the resumed opposition of your Sun dispositor Saturn to Neptune, and continues Jupiter's square to the latter planet. From the 4th of this month till that date in October, you will be going through the last of that opposition—both your last chance to learn the valuable lessons it brings and your last effort to do so.

That means that you will probably feel again the disquieting doubts of self and causes and motives that have been with you all this year at least. That your Capricornian dependence upon justified habits, old opinions, the value of the practical, will again be attacked at times by purely spiritual ideals which raise their heads just at the moment when you were feeling most sure; perhaps you try to continue in the rut by means of focusing your thoughts deliberately on externals—or perhaps you give in to these higher urgings and, unlike yourself, try some uncertain steps upon the new ground.

It's a grand opportunity for growth, brothers and sisters. Don't forget that you are also feeling the creative aspect of Uranus, and that Jupiter is busy expanding your self-limitations. You are right in a period that can mean more to you than any you have lived through before. These internal skirmishes and victories will tell sooner or later in the external world in added power.

Since Jupiter continues till mid 26th this month its square to the emotional Neptune, be wary of magnifying or exaggerating your surges of emotional fire, what you feel are inspirations—some may well be, but subject that fire to the ice of your practicality, and see if it melts.

And don't be disturbed that at present you don't seem able to communicate mentally all you feel you are learning and achieving—you can, if you will find those who are older and wiser.

CAPRICORN OPPORTUNITIES

If You Were Born December 22-31: This is one of your too positive and forceful months of the year when you have tendencies to alienate others because you have difficulty in toning down your reactions before they become action or speech. This must be done for best results this month in either home or partnerships; and in order to avoid antagonisms either private or legal.

For the first three weeks you will be more liable to criticize openly and often than in the last one; however, 25th-27th could bring sudden upsets through this or through friction involving inferiors, money, publications, or distant interests.

Careful of your reactions in affections and romance from the 21st of the month; this applies socially too. It can be a happy and harmonious time if new matters or changes of mind don't upset.

Best dates for occupational moves 3rd-4th, if it involves distance or publications, advertising; 7th-10th if local matters, old plans or older persons enter; and 25th to mid 29th for general expansion. 21st-24th, however, is weak in regard to changes, new things.

Slow down 8th-14th if only for health's sake; don't resent, or become physically careless.

If You Were Born January 1-9: Other people in general will mean more to you this month; yet you may have moments of resenting those who are stronger, or have authority, or just do not appeal to you. It is a month for regulating your reactions to others more nearly to your own ideals. Especially from the 11th tone yourself down so that no unpleasant situations develop.

It is conversely true that your biggest opportunities this month are also concerned with your attitude toward other people, and more important, theirs to you.

If you are married, give full credit. And consideration.

First twelve days require fifty-fifty attitude in occupation, with the boss and with any women concerned.

You may be required to compromise, or see the other fellow's side, in regard to interests involving distance, publications, etc., the first two weeks and 25th-27th; latter is weak in joint finances—careful of new things. Also of health, both here and 1st-3rd.

Mental states of mind look more harmonious this month with less worry and possibly less hard mental labor.

If You Were Born January 10-19: Until the 25th of this month you may be inclined to be over-energetic physically, to undertake more physical or mental labor than was good for you; and also to feel the same stimulus in your friendships and relations with those who look up to you, leading to possible misunderstandings if you criticize, command or demand unduly, especially 8th-14th. Watch tendency to become careless and invite accidents or sharp ailments.

From the 21st you will have to hold back in most things, to offset an inclination to change too suddenly, express yourself too sharply, or act on snap judgments.

Emotionally and socially it can be enriching from the 25th, with the accent on undercover reactions.

For personal contacts July is better than last month; hold back 1st-3rd, however. 7th-14th and 17th-28th is strong: do your communicating in person. Also get about in your community.

13th-17th is good for home activities, bringing things nearer your ideals; same in friendships. 5th-8th and the 12th are best for money efforts. 17th-19th is good for travel.

Aquarius Opportunities

IN JULY 1936

*For All
Born in
This Sign:
Jan. 20-
Feb. 18*

At least your entry into the pressure area of finances on the 4th of this month isn't indefinite—the Saturn-Nep-tune square you have been feeling in money matters ends finally on the 4th of October.

July continued the feeling of optimism re money and your ambitions, that is in some way connected with the aid you have been or are receiving from friends and from partners; but it continues also the need to discriminate before plunging purse first into any and every channel suggested by the advice of others. Look to the friends you can make for aid, but make them selectively.

The greatest need for keeping your head clear this month will be in the department of joint moneys, that involved in law, and profit you expect or wish through the possessions or the affairs of those deceased; also if your money is connected in some way with persons or affairs of the occult world. There is no concrete threat other than that of not being fooled by your own emotions or optimism, or by the poor judgment of others.

Sometimes, in your weaker moments—if you have any!—it may have seemed to you that in spite of all your good efforts, results just wouldn't measure up in dollars and cents in this year. That practical as your moves have seemed, there were always inconsistencies that bobbed up to hold things back. That you have had to do a great deal of hard work to keep going.

Now, for a moment, take the other point of view and see what happens. In those moments when you paused and questioned, confronted with circumstance that forced your thought, onto the subject of recompense in general, can you remember truly where your thoughts strayed? In other words, are you heading in your more materialistic efforts, toward what you really want? Are you doing the work your best development urges? Or are you just striving for money?

Did you ever think that the answers to those and similar questions are one of the biggest purposes of the influences you have been receiving and operating under in the year 1936?

What is power? And have you learned to distinguish between the real and false kind in your own attempts?

Because if you are really headed right, the moves you make in this year will gain you lasting and permanent financial rewards.

If You Were Born January 20-29: Heat is a basic necessity—granted. But in some of its forms you can get a lot too much of it this month. Take temper, for instance, and resentment, and introduce too much of it into relations with inferiors or employees, and the same with fellow workers: result, friction. Take recklessness, carelessness, speed, and introduce it into the health department: result, accidents, ailments of the hot and sharp variety.

Keep heat to the degree of necessary warmth and enthusiasm, and you will fare better; especially 8th-14th in the matter of speech and writing, and relations with loved ones.

5th-8th make decisions concerning new things and plan personal contacts that will advance you. Push occupational plans.

Best dates for acting in partnership matters and legal affairs: 3rd-6th, 9th-14th (old things best) and 16th-23rd.

With the exception of 1st-3rd and 25th-27th romance is stimulated practically all month. Those dates are weak.

21st-24th go slow in home and changes; care in travel, and socially.

If You Were Born January 30-February 8: For you, also, the suggestions given the group above in the first paragraph, will apply this month, but only in any strength after the 11th.

This is predominantly a month for getting things done, for acting, for putting plans to the concrete test of will they work? You should be personally busy and energetic.

With the exception of 21st-24th, this is a good time to plan and carry out travel. It is best after the 25th, but OK all month.

Home also is promisingly indicated; go ahead with your plans for working around the house getting things in better and more satisfactory shape: decorate, beautify, but do it personally.

In finances your best dates look like 7th-10th (make contacts with women, cater to their needs; and also be alert for distance and publication opportunities); 9th-14th (deal with superiors and push partnership plans); 17th-19th (promote joint finances and business generally—better for buying than selling), and 20th-28th (recognize local opportunities and those connected with inferiors).

The first two weeks give you opportunity to express your feelings better in affection and romance.

If You Were Born February 9-18: July is stimulated in the departments of affections and romance, and in your talents for originality and creativeness; this is in some way tied up with your occupational outlook this month. 8th-14th is especially active and expressive; watch your ideas for the one, or ones, that will pay out. 5th-8th shows possibility of making changes that will count, or putting new methods into effect.

Push your ambitions connected with estate, home and home environment, 28th joint finances can be bettered.

From the 21st don't commit yourself on all the new ideas or plans for changes that occur to you: 21st-24th connected with home, estate, or distance, 25th-27th with joint funds and affections, and from the 28th with partnerships, law, and superiors. Think it over first.

9th-14th can bring aid in finances from partners or elders, or those above you in authority.

From the 10th cultivate your inferiors or employees.

25th-27th watch nerves and sudden health upsets.

portunities to improve personal, budget and affectional affairs.

Wed., 8—Mentally active during the next seven days—give consideration to health, occupational, neighborhood, budget and affectional affairs. Today: roused emotionally—go slow in your financial and health departments. Evening: avoid errors with friends.

Thu., 9—Feature procedure in which you are experienced when dealing with superiors, elders, inferiors and concerning finances, or confidential interests. A.M. today: home and health plans look good. Evening: be tactful with neighbors, close relatives, loved ones.

Fri., 10—Detour misunderstandings in occupation and with coworkers, neighbors. Not too promising for health or travel interests. Evening: strengthen your position with friends.

Sat., 11—Till evening: steer clear of carelessness when traveling or concerning health. Exercise tact with neighbors, relatives and inferiors. A.M. urges care with partners, superiors.

Sun., 12—Advance personal interests—map out a course of action re building up your vitality. OK for home and social affairs. Improve with loved ones. Avoid errors through impractical financial plans in the evening.

Mon., 13—You may have the tendency to be overreceptive to visionary propositions where finances, occupation, health, social or affectional matters are concerned during the next four days. Home activities favored in afternoon.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE—AQUARIUS

Tue., 14—During the evening and A.M. tomorrow it would be advisable to lean toward the conservative when dealing with friends, loved ones and inferiors. Stick to sensible diet.

Wed., 15—Financial, social, affectional matters will require calm thought. Keep your emotions balanced in A.M. Pick your way with elders and regarding secrets in P.M.

Thu., 16—Focus your attention and efforts on health, partnership, budget and affectional problems during the next seven days. Today is good for action but be sure to steer your endeavors into constructive channels, especially in occupation or local matters.

Fri., 17—Work out financial, health and confidential plans during the next two days. Feature conservative plans with elders, loved ones and coworkers. Evening today and A.M. tomorrow: accent partnership activities—cooperate for mutual benefit.

Sat., 18—Be alert when dealing with others, particularly those close to you—concentrate on home interests and those where travel or distance is a factor.

Sun., 19—Don't be too hasty where home, partnership or personal interests are concerned during the A.M. P.M. favors planning for the future and increasing your popularity with friends.

Mon., 20—The next eight days are favorable for getting things organized in your financial and occupational departments—take care of the local, confidential and service angles.

Tue., 21—Don't allow your imagination to lead you into errors with women, family, partners or in-laws. Home interests need care. Evening today warns against emotional upsets with friends or re finances.

Wed., 22—Put the spotlight on partnership, affectional, budget and distant interests during the next ten days. Today: avoid complications in financial, confidential or health plans.

Thu., 23—Build with superiors, partners, during the morning hours; take care of health matters. Minor budget plans favored.

Fri., 24—Travel, educational, distant matters look encouraging in afternoon. Improve relations with friends. Evening suggests curbing reckless tendencies, particularly when traveling. Be considerate with neighbors and relatives. Avoid an upset mental or nervous state.

Sat., 25—Snap judgment doubtful in connection with home, partnership, affectional, social plans during the next two days. Till 29th: promising for activities that cover a wide territory. Cooperate with friends for mutual progress. Evening: guard against health errors.

Sun., 26—Not the best time to consider changes in occupation, estate, home. Avoid personal errors. Watch your step when dealing with those close to you.

Mon., 27—Make headway in financial, occupational and health matters. Seek the advice of elders or those that are more experienced than you are. Take care of the confidential factors.

Tue., 28—The next four days urge procedure that has stood the test of time in connection with personal, home or partnership affairs. Till the 30th: cultivate your inventive and creative talents. Promote more harmonious relations with friends and loved ones. Today: health, service plans OK. Be nice to inferiors.

Wed., 29—Best not to depend on hunches in finances or with friends during A.M. and afternoon. Gain ground with partners. OK socially.

Thu., 30—Quiet persistence may be necessary to keep affairs harmonious with friends, inferiors, elders during the morning hours. Exercise care in your financial and health departments.

Fri., 31—Take time off to do some self-analyzing. Work where your efforts count for more than personality looks best. P.M.: steer clear of impractical financial arrangements.

PISCES OPPORTUNITIES

*For All
Born In
This Sign:
Feb. 19-
March 20*

As noted a few months ago, the personal emotional pressure and the need for being personally responsible begins again on the 4th of this month, to continue until its final termination on the 4th of October—when the Saturn-Neptune opposition is over.

Until mid-way of the 26th of July Jupiter continues to square Neptune (from last month.)

Until the fall, therefore, you can expect more opportunities to find yourself through the spiritual and emotional range of your experiences; it is really a test time enabling you to determine for yourself personally the relative values of your material and spiritual aims, especially toward other people—your allies, partners, and circle of acquaintances and friends. Through these persons you will receive leads, suggestions, hints, that will start your brain going along different lines; you will be brought up against situations that will require you to make definite decisions affecting the ideals toward which you are striving.

Your trouble through July at least will be a tendency to exaggerate your emotional reactions, thus preventing yourself from seeing the real factors involved.

Don't forget, too, that whatever limitations of a personal nature you encounter (and have encountered this year) serve the same purpose: to call a halt in your progress forcing you to think things over, analyze backward to causes, find out what you really think.

June's opportunities in the matter of career continue this month until the end; but while the square lasts, be alert and discriminative as to the real and the false opportunity; your own desires and emotions may be the misleading factor.

Please realize that the chances for expansion and progress which are possible to you at present are real; but that as at all times what you make of them lies with you—you may not realize them to the full just now, but if you are working wisely you are laying the foundation on which they will be realized.

Don't get impatient in July and decide to change things about just because you think any other way would be better; the tendency will be more liable to attack you toward the last of the month than in the first half. You are on the wave length, mentally speaking, of shifts and new slants; make as few errors as possible in growing.

PISCES OPPORTUNITIES

If You Were Born February 19-29: It will pay you to be aware of all tendencies and situations in your relations with inferiors and fellow-workers in July; in fact, to be aware of all trends that concern yourself in the minds of those among your closer relatives and neighbors. For toward the last of the month, if things weren't to your liking, you would be liable to upset things suddenly, or to attract to yourself unexpected developments, that you might meet with drastic action.

Health outlook is good until the 21st, but after that will depend to some extent at least upon your mental states of mind and nerves. If travelling after that date, use caution, and avoid machinery.

Because the desire to be creative in some way is with you this month, you will probably experience some tendency to favor the speculative and get-rich-quick over the steady pull in finances. You will also tend to want to spend more on pleasure, entertainment, younger persons and your own aesthetic development. July is romantic; especially 5th-8th, 8th-14th, and 13th-17th.

With the exception of the first three days, go ahead with personal contacts: with women 3rd-4th and 7th-10th; with men 3rd to mid 6th and 9th-14th.

If You Were Born March 1-10: By far the preponderance of the celestial forces operative in July will be felt by you through your love-affection-romance nature. With the accent thus placed on the softer side of your life, give yourself the chance to express fully, by planning trips, entertainments, social activities, with those for whom you care. If you are single and receptive, put your best foot foremost. For married folks, July is excellent for conscious realization of the bonds between you—renew the honeymoon, the exception being 25th-27th.

Opportunities in your neighborhood and community of social nature or cultural should be developed. 7th-10th cultivate elders in this regard.

From the 11th regulate your money sensibly, avoiding extra expense connected with entertainment, unless able to afford it.

The last week of July holds warnings against making up your mind or acting too suddenly, particularly if secrets are involved. Don't change or start new things until sure they will be lasting and worthy. This won't be the time to come to snap judgments about your emotional relations with others.

If You Were Born March 11-20: It is well to know beforehand when our attacks of dissatisfaction or restlessness are apt to come on, because otherwise we might be tempted to dignify them into important mental revolutions. So this month do yourself the favor of discounting any symptoms of discontent with home, home folks, and others generally, and with your money matters; at least until you can prove after this month that they last.

Keep out of accident and friction in July. Handle hot or sharp things carefully around the home; and guard it or any property you own from causes of fire.

You may want to travel, even to the extent of commandeering your capital for the purpose; if so, think it all out beforehand. It will probably be better the first three weeks if you go.

1st-3rd take it easy with partners and in domestic surroundings. Use tact with elders. Avoid worry.

From the 10th on, the month gets romantic and emotional. 10th-17th and again from the 25th is strong for social and romantic interests.

From 25th to mid 30th is best for occupational efforts; plan ahead to this.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

July, 1936

For PISCES (If you were born Feb. 19-March 20)

Advice for Every Day This Month

Wed., 1—Personal, partnership and occupational interests should be kept free of negative emotional influences during the next twenty-five days. Till the 4th: don't permit lack of concentration to cause errors with friends, elders, family. Detour blunders re home or estate. Be sensible in social, affectional affairs in late evening.

Thu., 2—Snap judgment snaps easily—go slow if important decisions are required. Avoid upsets with loved ones, friends and elders.

Fri., 3—Stimulated emotionally—be constructive with partners, inferiors, superiors and loved ones during the next three days. Today: don't yield to argumentative or extravagant inclinations. Distant affairs, or those connected with travel look doubtful. Evening is good for study, research, community interests.

Sat., 4—Not too encouraging socially—go slow with superiors, friends and loved ones. Avoid carelessness where health is concerned. Local and joint financial interests need careful attention.

Sun., 5—Next four days: take advantage of opportunities with loved ones and relatives. Mentally keen—cultivate your creative talents along literary or artistic lines. Matters pertaining to travel, distribution are favored. This afternoon: contact old friends.

Mon., 6—Confidential activities appear to be unsettled during A.M. Evening: OK socially and for romance. Give occupational problems or plans consideration. Devote time to self-analysis.

Tue., 7—Advance personal and social interests during the next three days—conservative plans best. Good for mental endeavors that require concentration. Today: promising for gaining ground in confidential, home interests and with partners.

Wed., 8—Concentrate on domestic and partnership matters during the next seven days—keep headstrong tendencies under control. Today: don't allow your inner feelings to get off balance, particularly in personal or partnership activities. Evening: keep your opinion regarding personal or occupational ability from becoming overinflated.

Thu., 9—Feature the personal service angle during the next five days, especially when dealing with superiors. Aim to improve your reputation with friends, coworkers and elders. This morning favors home and budget plans. Avoid criticism in evening.

Fri., 10—Be careful where finances are concerned. Impulsiveness is apt to be a handicap when dealing with in-laws and loved ones. Study ways and means through which you can build up your reputation during the evening hours.

Sat., 11—The morning hours warn against errors with superiors, coworkers and in health department. Till evening: NG socially or for budget, local activities.

Sun., 12—Progressive plans favored in connection with neighborhood, home, partnership and social interests. Good for personal expression and development during evening hours.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE—PISCES

Mon., 13—Till Friday: be sure to avoid errors due to overconfidence, in connection with financial, affectional, partnership matters. This afternoon looks good for progress with neighbors, close relatives.

Tue., 14—Home, occupation will require a practical outlook during the evening and Wed. A.M.—don't permit your enthusiasm to lead you astray.

Wed., 15—Go easy with partners in A.M. Don't encourage complications with elders, friends or family during P.M. Keep your spirits up—detour pessimism or worry.

Thu., 16—Give added consideration to home, affectional, social, health and partnership activities during the next seven days. This evening and till early pm tomorrow—be constructive concerning financial, social and travel interests. Accented for romance.

Fri., 17—The next two days are favorable for progress socially and in matters pertaining to estate or home. Good for personal endeavors.

Sat., 18—Be alert with superiors and loved ones in A.M. All day: health, budget and neighborhood activities are in the spotlight—give them consideration.

Sun., 19—Aim to improve your social standing. Favorable for heart interests in P.M. The morning hours are unreliable for changes where confidential matters or neighbors, close relatives are involved.

Mon., 20—Good for personal development during the next eight days—cultivate your talents along artistic lines. Put conservative financial plans into operation. Attend to interests that are distantly located or involve travel.

Tue., 21—Health, neighborhood, confidential and budget activities will require careful concentration during the next four days—avoid sudden shifts. Emotionally strong today—be alert with partners, loved ones. Evening: warns against errors in judgment.

Wed., 22—The next ten days accent health, service matters and those that involve inferiors. Work out the details of home and partnership plans. Today: steer around upsets with partners, friends and elders.

Thu., 23—Morning hours favor health and budget plans. Make headway with superiors and loved ones. Adjust neighborhood problems.

Fri., 24—Consider financial interests in connection with occupation during afternoon. Evening: don't get reckless with your expense account. Not very promising socially—go slow with loved ones.

Sat., 25—Hold back hasty decisions in confidential, health, home or partnership matters during the next two days. Till the 29th: be alert for opportunities to improve in occupation. Evening today: go slow socially and re budget.

Sun., 26—Guard against upsets when traveling—be considerate when dealing with neighbors, relatives or loved ones. Not very reliable for secrets. Take good care of health.

Mon., 27—Personal and social interests favored—cultivate creative talents. Strengthen your position with friends, elders and loved ones. Attend to financial matters and those in which travel or distance is a factor.

Tue., 28—Next four days urge care when dealing with neighbors, superiors, inferiors. Strive to keep nerves and mind calm. Till 30th: OK for wise expansion in home, partnership and occupational activities.

Wed., 29—Roused emotions can cause errors in occupation and with partners during morning and afternoon—keep them controlled.

Thu., 30—The early morning hours are not too reliable for personal interests, particularly in occupation or with friends, loved ones.

Fri., 31—Till mid-afternoon: aim to straighten out confidential problems and those concerning neighbors and close relatives. OK with friends and loved ones. P.M. if you can manage emotions, personal and partnership activities look promising.

OPEN FORUM

American Astrological Association

After many years of planning and months of active effort, incorporation of American Astrological Association, Inc., has become a fact.

It is hoped and expected that this organization marks the beginning of added progress in astrological research and astrological recognition, for its membership combines men of attainment and responsibility in the fields of education, physical science, astronomy and astrology.

To Dr. Cyde Fisher, curator of astronomy at American Museum of Natural History, is due recognition for breaking down many of the imaginary barriers between the two most ancient and most honorable of sciences, astronomy and astrology, as well as for calling astrology to the favorable attention of many of his fellow scientists.

To John J. O'Neill, science editor of the N. Y. Herald Tribune and member of the National Association of Science Writers, American Association for the Advancement of Science and other widely known scientific organizations, should be given credit for assisting with personal introductions, suggestions, plans and methods for procedure to make this one of the most useful of knowledge gathering and disseminating organizations.

To Paul G. Clancy, editor and publisher of American Astrology Magazine, is due recognition for conceiving the outstanding features of this organization, as well as for advancing the funds necessary to defray numerous legal and transportation expenses.

To Carl Payne Tobey, well known astrological analyst and writer, should be given credit for tireless efforts in visiting many of the nation's leading colleges in a dozen different states, interviewing educators and enlisting their interest and aid.

These four men, together with the Editor of this Magazine, form the original directors.

New directors and new members will be added from time to time on the basis of previous service to scientific knowledge of the Cosmos and of Humanity, plus desire and ability to forward the purposes of the A. A. A.

It is, of course, a non-profit organization, incorporated for the benefit of no individual or group.

Legally, American Astrological Association, Inc., became an entity on May 20, 1936, at 11:19 a. m., E. S. T., in New York City.

The following is the Certificate of Incorporation of A. A. A.:

Certificate

We, the undersigned, for the purpose of forming a membership corporation pursuant to the Membership Corporations Law of the State of New York, hereby certify:

FIRST: The name of the proposed corporation shall be "AMERICAN ASTROLOGICAL ASSOCIATION, INC."

SECOND: The particular purposes for which the said corporation is to be formed are as follows:

(A) To determine the truth regarding various traditional claims of astrology through scientific research.

(B) To conduct such tests as the association may deem necessary to establish scientifically whatever connection may exist between planetary movement and terrestrial conditions, whether physical, psychological or emotional.

(C) To aid the proper authorities in various states in their efforts to expose fraudulent practices by unscrupulous persons making false claims in the name of astrology.

(D) To promote the adoption and application of higher and more ethical standards among persons practicing astrology and to reform abuses in the practice thereof.

(E) To advance the cultivation of the science of astrology and to stimulate public interest therein.

(F) To do all things proper, incidental and conducive to the accomplishment of the foregoing purposes, none of which are intended for pecuniary profit.

THIRD: The territory in which its operations are principally to be conducted is that embraced within the continental limits and boundaries of the United States of America.

FOURTH: The principal office of the said corporation is to be located in the City and County of New York.

FIFTH: The number of its directors shall be not less than five nor more than fifteen.

SIXTH: The names of the directors until the first annual meeting are:

Paul G. Clancy,
John J. O'Neill,
Sidney K. Bennett,
Clyde Fisher,
Carl Payne Tobey.

SEVENTH: All of the subscribers to this certificate are of full age; at least two-thirds of them are citizens of the United States, etc.

Then follow the signatures of the five directors mentioned, together with the acknowledgment of a Notary Public; the deposition of Anthony P. Uihlein, attorney for the subscribers; and final approval and signature of Ernest E. L. Hammer, Justice of the Supreme Court, First Judicial District, of New York.

A. M. Ziegler

Because numerous requests have come in for Wynn's endorsement of the "National Association of Professional Astrologers" (which announces a fifty dollar initiation fee and twenty-five dollars annual dues) together with references to the use of my name in connection with A. M. Ziegler's promotional methods concerning this outfit, and because I cannot endorse it or recommend it in any way, I wrote the following letter on May 14:

Dear Mr. Ziegler:—I have been reliably informed that you are using my name in the promotion of your plans, and I have a photostatic copy of a letter in which you do so use my name.

This is to advise you that you are doing this not only without my consent, which you already know, but also without my approval, which you should know.

This is also to request that you desist from using my name, whether my real name or my pen-name, from now on in connection with any of your enterprises, whether such use be in private or in public.

I want you distinctly to understand that you are not permitted in any way to use my name, even as one to whom you intend to appeal in the future. Leave me and my name out of your lists of present or future endorsers.

In addition to following these suggestions, it would seem no more than right that you apologize publicly for using my name without permission of any kind and that you publicly agree that no further attempts to use it will be made by you. Sincerely,

Sidney K. Bennett.

To which I received, not an apology from Mr. Ziegler, but the statement that a "misconstruction has been put upon the use of your name . . ."

It is perhaps too much to expect Mr. Ziegler to realize that I meant I have a photostat copy of a letter he wrote when I said I have a photostat copy of a letter he wrote. The fact remains that I have a photostat copy of a letter he wrote and in it are statements by him to the effect that "Sidney K. Bennett has been asked to serve on the National Advisory Council of the American Assn. of Professional Astrologers." If any misconstruction of that can be made, I don't know who could make it. Furthermore, no letter thus asking me to serve was ever received by me, nor was I asked by anyone in person, so this statement becomes doubly mysterious.

In addition to my name thus used, were those of Elbert Benjamine and Fred H. Skinner, of The Church of Light, Los Angeles, which becomes even more mysterious in the contemplation of the following:

THE CHURCH OF LIGHT

Dear Mr. Bennett:—

Neither Fred H. Skinner nor myself, nor any officer of The Church of Light, would consider becoming affiliated in any way with an organization headed or promoted by A. M. Ziegler.

For the protection of those who may be given the erroneous impression that we endorse the National Association of Professional Astrologers Mr. Ziegler is now attempting to launch, we shall be pleased to have you publish this statement in Wynn's Astrology Magazine.

THE CHURCH OF LIGHT,
Elbert Benjamine, President.

We are also in receipt of the following:

Wynn's Astrology Magazine:—
Would you, if possible, give the enclosed letter space in your next issue. Thanking you, etc.,

ASTROLOGERS' GUILD
OF AMERICA,

Harold Francis Mann, President.

Herewith the letter accompanying this note:

Mr. A. M. Ziegler:—Various members of the Astrologers' Guild of America have received from you invitations to serve on the Board of your proposed National Association.

These members feel that since they have been interested in the functions of the Guild for the past ten years, the best interest of Astrology will be served by their undivided attention to the work being carried on by our organization. At the suggestion of several of these members, the following resolution was adopted at our regular meeting, May 21, 1936:

RESOLVED: That the Astrologers' Guild of America has had as its ethical program practically the same tenets as outlined in your program.

RESOLVED FURTHER: That we will at any time cooperate with any Astrological group that is non-profit-making, scientific in its approach and democratic in its form of procedure.

FURTHER RESOLVED: That at this time it is our intention and desire to remain a separate astrological unit functioning as a clearing house for the benefit of all serious students of Astrology. Very truly yours,

ASTROLOGERS' GUILD

OF AMERICA,

J. V. S. Robertson,
Corresponding Sec.

Dorothy at Bat

Dorothy take another bow. Your "Leo Husbands" was a knockout! You may get some howls from the male Leos, but don't worry—the rest of the world who are not Leos will shout Amen! I bought several of these to give to friends.—A Student.

The article on Leo Husbands by Dorothy Standish sure sounds like a story written by one who had played with the fire and got burned. Some Leo subject sure has done her a dirty trick and left her sour on all Leos, but if she can't find any more pleasant things in Leo (or any sign) than she does, when there are so many pleasant and beautiful things, she is wasting her talent (?) on Astrology. Astrology isn't to make people down on the world or to hate themselves so badly they see only the dark side of life, and how anyone could see so much black where there is so much light is a mystery to me.

Her story is just as silly as for someone to say all the people of Oklahoma are outlaws because a notorious outlaw was once born in that state.

If it were possible to put all the bad aspects of every planet in one house and in the worst year one could find, I still don't see how any sign could have all of the mean, vicious and low-down characters as one described by Dorothy Standish. I sure would like to know what one could do to anyone that would make her so bitter against any one group of people. I am thankful I haven't such an outlook on life or Astrology.—A Leo Subject.

Dear Dorothy Standish:—This is the first fan letter I ever wrote, but you have it coming to you on your "Leo Husbands." It's perfect! Except that you missed one point: they are the biggest triflers with truth on Earth. They simply cannot tell the truth. I am not married to one, but I know some of them well enough to check all you wrote, and what a laugh I got out of it! I have read so much slush about the big-hearted, generous Leo, and I could never find any of it with a spyglass. I'm glad to find someone with backbone enough to hit the nail on the head and tell the truth. More power to you.—"Libra."

I have never read anything quite as keen as the various tribes of husbands placed before us by Dorothy Standish.—Mrs. J. C.

Dear Editor:—We have a group, all women, who are studying astrology. There is one question we would like to ask you. It is about Dorothy Standish. Is she married? Is she an old woman?

We have come to the point of wondering about her morals. It doesn't seem to us that any woman could know the diabolically true and revealing things she knows about men without having had intimate experiences with them. At first we thought, Oh, she has married, or been engaged to, an Aries man. We said the same about Taurus. But now that there have been so many, we wonder. There couldn't be THAT many marriages in her life.

We'd like to think well of her, if we can.—Mrs. L. D. A.

Here, Dorothy, you take it.

Friend Wynn:—Thanks for showing me these lovely letters. As for me, I am, of course, married—very happily, too. And I am growing younger daily. You know I agree with the Leo man, for you will recall the many times I have remarked that of course everyone sees through these articles, that they know I am describing mostly those things that should be overcome by the husbands of the various signs.

As to having had personal experiences with men of all signs, I regret that my morals are entirely intact up to the present. These "husband" articles of mine are purely analytical astrology, intentionally presented as horrible examples. We all know how we like to view the extremes of our own sign and say "This isn't I, even if it could be." Yet we recognize the weaknesses of the other signs at a glance. As for my own husband, he is ideal, the sort of man some women seem to think doesn't really exist. Anyway, it's all in fun. Thank the good readers for looking at my comments, please. Sincerely, Dorothy.

Ask Wynn

In this department, Wynn will reply to as many as space will permit. His answers are his own opinions and reactions to your representations and should be taken in the light of what you think they are worth. No charge is made for this service, so please do not send money or anything else of value. To do so would make it impossible to reply to you. Send your birth date, place, year and, if possible, hour, together with your sex. Give complete data of others inquired about. Ask only one specific, non-fatalistic question. It will be impossible to answer by mail. Your name will not be mentioned—every letter addressed to "Ask Wynn," 864 Carnegie Hall, New York City, will be treated with absolute confidence whether you receive a reply or not.

Fear of Death

The shadows are so dark, Wynn, and I can't see anything for the blackness. It seems the road is closed and I can't find the detour. And if you say I'm a Virgo martyr wasting time in self-pity, I'll scream. I have been told by a doctor that my spine might collapse at any minute and crush the spinal cord, and that remark, my dear sir, is not a ha-ha to me. The only glimmer in the whole nightmare is that a little more than fourteen years ago a surgeon decided I was practically dead at that moment, and seven years ago another doctor said I hadn't three months to live.

It's so hard to finish at twenty-four when one has a dream to make come true and a star to follow to the far places. It's not that I'm afraid of death—but, well, the wind is sweet and the rain comes down so beautifully. There are sunsets, dawns, music, whippoorwills at twilight and lilacs to bloom through a thousand Springs. There are figures to mold with my fingers from a gob of wet clay. I haven't known these things quite long enough and death is SO definite.

I know I don't stack up very big in the scheme of things—yet I am rebellious. I want to live, but I don't know how. It is quite possible that all this could be prevented; but I'll give you one guess as to what's preventing the prevention of them. Right—money. With all the wonders of modern science at their command, they deny me life because of the great god Dinero. Ah, sweet humanity!

I know I'm not the only one in this same predicament; I know it only too well. Yet does that make it any less important? —B. B.

Better look out, Miss B. You might get to worrying so hard about your spine falling apart that you'd get killed by a truck. Which is what actually happened to an interne of one of the big hospitals in New York. He forgot about everything except his own ailment and was too preoccupied while crossing a street.

But I know just how you feel.

When I was a boy of seven I was told by a doctor that I had a condition in my ear (the left drum had been removed) in which an infected bone had to be left near the extremely thin partition next to the brain. He explained that the constant infection of the bone might at any time spread to this partition and that if it ever went through to touch my brain I would just roll over dead without warning. This is something I have never been allowed to forget, for that ear is now and has always been infected, constantly festering and draining off; I have been taking care of it for nearly forty years.

Perhaps this hasn't been so bad. In many ways I can consider it a direct blessing, for it has made me aware of numerous facts of life, and death, to which I probably would not have given attention had I been average. When one knows that any of his minutes may be the last, he gets a lot more out of most of them than if he felt reasonably sure there were still several thousand days left in his cosmic bank account.

I would be lying if I were to say I haven't been afraid. Of course I have. But I have been able to substitute something better in its place that has been of great service. I hope it will help you, too. This is it: I have learned in large measure to substitute appreciation of life for fear of death. Think that over. Most folks fear death because they don't get their fill of life. And the best way to appreciate life is to understand it—something that can be done by means of Astrology better than by any other of which I know.

One of the first things we learn in Astrology is the lesson of unselfishness, that the only way to work out the horoscope is in giving, not getting. That is, if we see the inner meanings of things.

The length of time we linger doesn't mean anything—it's what we put into the record that tells how long we have lived. It's not how many Moons have waxed and waned, but how many other people are glad we were here. You have already done more at twenty-four than some of the grabbers I've seen infesting what might otherwise have been a nice place, Wall Street. And there are many of them paying big money to specialists in softening up petrified arteries. It's much preferable, according to my slant, to touch the flame of life to the pretty pinwheel and give off a blaze of glory for a moment and make someone happy, instead of playing everything safe in a dark spot on the shelf for ninety years.

Now we come to the big point about you.

You can spend whatever you have left of time on this planet soliciting help for those unfortunates of whom you speak. When you know you have found a deserving case, tell someone with money about it. Get it fixed if it can be done. Forget yourself. You can be an angel of mercy. Make up your mind that whenever you do shift over from this life to the next (and we are always alive somewhere, you know) that you will have made the interval between now and then count in terms of someone, many someones, else.

You say you do not count for much—that is right, unless other people hold you dear. The measure of achievement is not in self-estimation, but in the well-wishing of those who know you and your work.

Seven Years

I am just coming to the end of a period of seven years which were accurately described by an astrologer before that time. She predicted those seven years full of drastic events—it seemed so remarkable to me that she was able to foresee the conditions of my life. I am now recovering my lost health. When can I feel I have completely emerged and know that my life has resumed a more normal trend?

—R. V. P.

This is one of the things that should be stopped and I hereby ask all readers of this magazine who are perusing these lines to throw their heads back, laugh heartily, pick up their hats and leave the insulting presence of any fool who tries to condemn them to seven years, or any other period, of "drastic events." I recommend this treatment for the time being, till we get some laws on the books that will give these vermin more nearly what they deserve. Of course, they are charged Karmically with the seven years they spoil for their inexperienced and trusting client, but that doesn't help the client much.

My dear Miss or Mrs. V. P., you have been the victim of suggestion, not fate. You have believed the worst and have done all in your power, subconsciously, to justify those morbid predictions.

This reply is discomfiting, I know. You will react to it in one of two general ways. You may resent the necessity for realizing you have wasted a good portion of seven years, that you could have done much better—you may feel it more convenient to be lazy about it mentally and attempt to justify your past, rather than admit you have yourself made such predictions come true. If such is the case, you will, naturally, turn against me and this attempt to assist you.

On the other hand, you may begin to study life as it is and realize that this has been a valuable lesson that can help you go through any and all future conditions with a better philosophy and immeasurably superior results. You have accepted the reputation of carefully built publicity, intended to make the astrologer seem infallible. This is never the case. Astrologers are very fallible, in fact, usually so. The science is real, but we have pitifully few worthy practitioners of it. The public is far better off if they will doubt all astrologers who predict events (especially those with good ballyhoo) than if they drop their lower jaws, open their eyes wide and take it all in as gospel.

Nobody can know in advance what you will do with an opportunity when it comes your way; no one can know how you will handle a situation. It is therefore impossible scientifically to predict actual events. But suggestion is very powerful, especially when used in the form of predicting definite events. Remember the story of the mother who told her friend: "The fortune teller said my son would have a new suit of clothes, and within two days I went out and bought him one." The will to believe is strong with many; they subconsciously do all they can to make predictions come out as indicated, especially where there has been an effective air of know-all-reveal-all. The astrologer should give advice, not attempt to guess what will happen. Astrology is a service-science, not a gambling game. It is the study of living rightly under Nature's laws.

May thousands of readers learn to think straighter through this woman's experience, and may hundreds of astrologers take heed and act as the true guides they can and should be when entrusted with the confidence of a client.

Is Marriage Denied?

Do unfriendly aspects of Uranus and Mars to the Sun in a woman's horoscope necessarily imply obstacles to marriage throughout her life?
—Miss E. G.

We speak loosely when we refer to many things concerning astrological influences, and nowhere more than in the department of marriage. Strictly speaking, there is no aspect or anything else in the horoscope that prevents one from marrying. Anyone can marry someone, whether it would be advisable or not. What we mean is: Is there anything in the horoscope that makes marriage opportunities tend to be distasteful? The answer is Yes. These aspects of which you speak (although I am not quite enthusiastic over the idea of God's planets being unfriendly with each other) cause you to demand a great deal from one to whom you would give yourself as a wife. The Sun is the attractor of men in a woman's life, for it is the chief male vibration. You speak of being attracted to married men more than to those single. This is because instinctively you require experience and poise—which can rarely be attained other than through the problems involved. Sometimes these aspects are present in the horoscopes of women very happily married to men who have been divorced or widowed. But fate? No.

WHO'S WHO

The First Five Thousand Again, With "Musts" Eliminated

By TAURUS

The editor has requested me to present the first 5,000 birthdates in Who's Who with the "musts" eliminated. By the "musts" we mean those persons who are placed in this volume because of the military or other similar position they hold and not for particular personal achievement. We have therefore eliminated all those persons connected with the Army, Navy or government, plus members of the clergy. The results are published herewith; but first, here are some new highspots that will interest you.

Out of a total of 24,000 births of prominent people whose birth dates I have checked from various sources, Aquarius runs far out ahead after allowances are made for the fact that the Sun spends less time in Aquarius than several other signs. January 1st and February 22nd are still the most favored birthdates. The figures show twice as many prominent people born on January 1st as on March 20th, for example. While there are 5% more persons born in the United States with the Sun in Aquarius than with the Sun in Taurus, there are 20% more Aquarians reach a prominent position in life than Taureans. We Taureans are hoping that the present temporary transit of Uranus, ruler of Aquarius, through Taurus will do something about this—for us. It certainly did things for Hitler—or Hitler did things with it.

Judge Hylan, former Mayor of New York, who had the same birthdate (not year) as Hitler, died while Uranus was on his Taurean Sun. This was a loss to Astrology because during his later years Judge Hylan became interested in Astrology and stated to this writer that it greatly added to his wisdom in making better decisions from the bench. One Taurean who gained his prominence a long time ago and who must now undergo the transit of Uranus is William Randolph Hearst. What will he do with this powerful influence from afar? Anyway, let's hope he uses it for the good of mankind and not in the way Hitler seems to have done by moving to the Rhine.

Now then, for the "must" class. In the first 5,000 names of Who's Who Virgo ran slightly ahead of Leo and Aquarius for first place. Aquarius ran ahead of Pisces while the reverse was the case where the remainder of the 5,000 names were concerned. Cancer ran very low and at the bottom for the "must" class. Aries ran almost as low as Taurus. Out of the total 5,000, we had 791 in the "must" class.

Anyone wishing decan figures for the remainders can obtain them quickly by subtracting the above figures from those presented for the total 5,000 in the January issue of this magazine. We are eliminating them here to save space.

Sign	"Must"	Remainder	Total
Aries	62	351	413
Taurus	61	291	352
Gemini	67	352	419
Cancer	55	340	395
Leo	74	407	481
Virgo	76	372	448
Libra	64	365	429
Scorpio	64	341	405
Sagittarius	66	341	407
Capricorn	64	336	400
Aquarius	73	331	404
Pisces	65	382	447
Total	791	4209	5000

All three decans of Cancer ran low. The third decan of Taurus ran particularly high for that sign while the other two decans were at the bottom. The highest decan was the first of Virgo. The decan figures of the "musts" follow:

Sign	1st Decan	2nd Decan	3rd Decan
Aries	17	21	24
Taurus	17	17	27
Gemini	19	25	23
Cancer	19	18	18
Leo	23	27	24
Virgo	30	27	19
Libra	24	23	17
Scorpio	24	20	20
Sagittarius	25	19	22
Capricorn	17	28	19
Aquarius	24	21	28
Pisces	26	18	21

15,000 birthdates in Who's Who continues and we might mention that as we pass through the "M's" the two signs Leo and Aquarius are running phenomenally high, Aquarius running higher than it has through any other section of the book. There were 40 persons in the book having the name Lord or Leon. Out of the 40, 21 or over 50% had the Sun either in the sign Aquarius or Pisces. This left less than 50% for distribution over the other ten signs of the Zodiac. Taurus continues to run at the bottom, as usual.

In our "must" group, there were five persons born January 1st. There were eight persons born on February 22nd. There were only two people born on March 20th. These are the same particular birthdates mentioned earlier in this article.

is of a negative type, obsession or mediumship may be feared. The mind is apt to be curiously morbid, exceedingly impressionable and its processes obscured by strange fears and curious forebodings. In the more highly evolved types the aspect tends to unbalanced genius, uncontrolled psychic impressions or experiences, and frequently fantastic attitudes toward religion and morality. These types will be among the most difficult to assist for the reason that the difficulties are so deeply embedded in the subjective consciousness and manifest through extremely obscure and involved mental peculiarities.

9. The Moon is also an important psychological factor in the problems of the mental life. The Moon governs the imaginative faculty and it is frequently difficult to discover where mental processes leave off and imagination begins. In most people the faculties of thought and imagination are hopelessly confused and the product of one is often mistaken for the product of the other.

The Moon afflicted by the malefics results in a generally unsettled condition in the imaginative life. Mars afflicting the Moon usually results in unaccountable antipathies and irritations. People with such aspects are very apt to imagine other persons violently disliking them. The imagination becomes a field of lurking animosities and irritations. Saturn afflicting the Moon results in extreme morbidity and at times even in self-destruction mania. Under such aspects little things are greatly magnified, the general perspective is bad and melancholy is apt to depress and inhibit the fields of both thought and effort. Uranus afflicting the Moon often results in wild speculations and impractical solutions to vital problems. The imagination is filled with impractical formulas and the whole life is likely to be afflicted with the result of hasty and unsound decisions. These people jump at conclusions and suffer from spur of the moment convictions. Neptune afflicting the Moon frequently produces hallucinations, pseudo-illuminations and a variety of metaphysical phantasies. A life overshadowed by chimera is nearly always evident in a horoscope from the adverse aspects of Neptune. Delusions of the "divinity complex" type can also be traced to afflictions of Neptune to the Moon.

The Moon is particularly powerful in the horoscopes of women and afflictions to it are apt to work out most evidently and completely where the Moon is prominent in a woman's nativity.

10. Other planets add their testimony to the problem at hand. Taking for granted the easily demonstrated fact that man is always his own worst enemy and that no individual can suffer as much from the evils of others as from his own mistakes, each planet may contribute something to faulty viewpoint and bad judgment. I have observed that in charts where Saturn is conjunct the Sun lives are consistently unhappy and badly lived. The combust of Mercury and the Sun is also an unfortunate position. People born under this affliction usually have a violent form of stubbornness. They sacrifice much for little. They live to gratify ambitions and purposes which seldom bestow happiness and security. Malefics conjunct to the ascendant also mark the temperament rather deeply and warn of fixations. Malefics in the twelfth house near the ascendant or in the sixth house near the descendant usually indicate unfortunate prenatal conditions in the lives of parents or in home conditions previous to the native's birth.

With these facts at his disposal the astrologer is in a position to determine how much he can tell his client and in what way he should impart the information. Good advice badly given goes for naught. It is a great science to know a man well enough to know how to tell him the truth in a way that will be useful and practical to him. All people cannot have their horoscopes read in the same way if the reading is to be successful. A horoscope is a symbol of an individual and the client has a disposition and temperament that must be understood before a useful reading can be given. With the first look at the horoscope the astrologer should understand the type of mentality he is working with. This discovery is the foundation of a successful and useful delineation.

The fifth, tenth, and twelfth houses are equally strongly accented in the above. The first two have been noted before as significant and characteristic angles, and are more especially so when occupied by Neptune; while the twelfth is its own house strengthening its ray.

guided in our evolution by the guardian angel, Terra. But Terra was untrue to her trust, and with the other rebel angels was forced to relinquish her throne. Jupiter—the Christ spirit—the Savior—gave up his own throne in Aries and took over Terra's sign and planet and thus became the Lamb of God (Aries) and Savior of the World, or more properly, the Earth. The Jupiter-Christ spirit also "saved" the sign Pisces, and at the beginning of the Piscean Age (about 2000 years ago) incarnated in Jesus of Nazareth and again "saved" the world. With the approaching Aquarian Age and the Millennium, the Christ spirit again will become manifest, but it is believed not as an individual but as a universal outpouring.

When the Great Return is an accomplished fact, Jupiter will still rule from Sagittarius and remain the guardian angel of the Earth, but also will, at least in part, again assume control of his own original sign Aries. At the present time I think it is self-evident that Jupiter has not yet resumed his throne in Aries, for Germany and England, both of which are under this sign, hardly can be said to show any marked Jupiterian leanings, at least toward each other. Mars, whose original sign was Aquarius, a fixed air sign, is miscast in Aries, for from being originally a benefic constructive influence, in Aries half of his energy has turned destructive.

It should not be forgotten that Mars was the angel Michael, and that the word "angel" means literally a messenger. All of the planetary angels, rulers, spirits, whatever we may call them, as rulers of the signs of the zodiac, which are but sections of the heavens, act as God's messengers. Mythology, religion, and astrology have been terribly misunderstood and misrepresented by those to whom the occult and arcane truths were intrusted.

Where, in astrology, we are dealing with cosmic time and forces, a hundred years means comparatively little. So it is not easy to define an Age or to say just where one planetary influence leaves off and another begins. Who may say just when the Great Return started? But this we know: Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto, long outcasts, have again come within our ken. They have come back, and it is believed will assume their original thrones in the heavens. Vulcan still is unknown but may come back and again rule from Virgo in conjunction with Ceres; similarly with Dionysos and Pisces. Only Lucifer is without eventual hope, even though he may again attempt to regain his old sign, Capricorn, and rule for a season, according to the Scriptures.

Uranus was the first of the wanderers to return, being rediscovered in 1781. His original sign was Gemini, and the United States, a country long associated with that sign, came into being under his influence. Uranus had entered Gemini, however, before its physical discovery, and had reached the ninth degree in 1776. Eighty-four years later, in 1860, with Uranus again back at nine degrees of Gemini, came the Civil War. Uranus appears to be the great regenerator; he tears things down in order to build better. Who shall say what will happen to this country when Uranus again touches the ninth degree of Gemini in 1944? There undoubtedly will be a tremendous upheaval, but with Uranus back on his own throne, as appears probable, the eventual outcome must be beneficial and far reaching in its influence. It is but natural to suppose that the sections of the earth coming under Gemini will react most strongly to the transit of Uranus through that sign. In addition to the United States, Belgium, Wales, Flanders, N. E. Africa, and parts of Italy come under Gemini. The City of London is said to have about the 18th degree of Gemini on its ascendant.

In a very broad sense, and looking at Gemini as the original 11th house-sign, what may we expect with Uranus again back and master of his own house? Surely a new, sane, and comprehensive form of government, based on the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man. Boundaries broken down, and a United States of the World; a universal language and free intercourse between countries; passenger traffic largely by air. A more human and humane attitude toward all creation. Scientific achievements now undreamed of. As the U. S. A. seems to be the special child of Gemini, it is not improbable that this country is destined to be the leader in the direction of Universal Brotherhood. The Millennium is approaching, though we may have to go through hell before reaching it. Only when the Christ spirit has become the controlling one may we hope for heaven here on earth.

Neptune came back in 1846. Its last entry into its own original sign, Cancer, where it was co-ruler with the Moon, was in July, 1901. It will not again return to that sign until the year 2065. Neptune left Cancer and entered Leo on Sept. 23, 1914, just about coincident with the beginning of the World War. Its influence is much more subtle than that of Uranus, as it works on the psychic plane. Probably its most potent effect while passing through the "home and mother" sign, Cancer, was the increasing economic and social freedom of women, and the agitation for woman suffrage. The work was done in Cancer, though the effect did not show until Neptune was well into Leo, following the World War. Such a difference in time between cause and effect is a point which I think is often overlooked by the astrologer.

As to what the ultimate effect will be of Neptune's return as one of the rulers of Cancer is of course problematical. But while Neptune often has appeared to be perverse and has been accounted a "malefic," back on his own throne it is but logical to assume that the esthetic, artistic, and benevolent aspect of that planet will overshadow the apparently evil influence. No planet's influence is basically adverse; it is only a misuse of its normal functions by the individual or nation which makes it appear so. As ruler of Cancer we may expect Neptune's return to that sign to show its beneficent influence primarily on 4th and 12th house affairs—home and domestic life, what comes out of the earth and the land itself, hospitalization and care of the unfit and infirm.

THE OCCULT STORY OF THE EARTH

Pluto came back in 1930, in January, and we all recall what happened to the financial structure of our world affairs at that time. Pluto originally was co-ruler with the sun of the sign Leo, a sign always associated with gold, and it was not long before practically all the gold in the world was taken out of circulation, and the banking system got one of its greatest jolts in history. Pluto was at about the 18th degree of Cancer when discovered, and is still passing through that sign. It will enter its own original sign Leo in October, 1937, though it will later retrograde back into Cancer, and will not really move forward into Leo until 1939. An entire overthrow of our present banking system, exchange, credit, currency, etc., would not be surprising, unbelievable as it may sound, under this Plutonian influence, and when Jupiter and Saturn will join forces in the late spring of 1940 a tremendous upheaval may normally be expected. But again we must not overlook the fact that eventually "all things work together for good." France and Italy both come under Leo, and may naturally be linked with this far reaching transit.

With Saturn back on his original throne in Taurus, we may naturally look for progress and more satisfactory conditions in general in Ireland, Poland, Greece, and other countries and parts of the world under that sign. Indeed, I believe that we already have had sufficient evidence of this since the Great War. Saturn has never been entirely happy as ruler of Capricorn, even though his tenth house position was maintained when he took over that sign. The Jewish people, the natives of India, and others under the influence of the sign Capricorn, do not seem destined to move forward in the same way as those whose original rulers are coming back. For it must not be forgotten that Lucifer (Satan) was the original ruler of Capricorn, and that his come-back can only be of a temporary nature, and during the millennium.

As temporary ruler of Aquarius,

Saturn was even less successful than in Capricorn, for the latter was at least an earthy sign. But Aquarius, an air sign, placed Saturn entirely out of his own element. Now, with Mars, the original ruler of Aquarius coming back to his throne we may presume a renaissance in the Aquarian parts of the world, notably Russia. And such indeed has been the case within the last few years. It should not be forgotten that Mars originally was a benefic, a constructive energy, and working through his natural channels seems destined eventually to raise the U. S. S. R. to a position of tremendous power in the world. Aquarius was the original seventh sign of the zodiac, opposite to Leo, and thus in a way a balance to and complement of that sign. If its symbol—The Water Bearer—means anything, it is THE human sign of the entire zodiac, and symbolic of what mankind as a whole may become.

With Venus back as ruler of Scorpio I should judge that the secrets of life and reproduction would be brought more into the open and in a more wholesome way. The strides which birth control already has made are evidence in this direction. It seems probable that Venus will influence the world as a whole, rather than individual countries, in this respect.

The return of Mercury to Libra will tend to affect the thought of those peoples coming under the influence of that sign, notably Japan and China. The rapid development and modern attitude of Japan, which is a growth of the last half century, and the recent awakening of China undoubtedly have been due to Mercury's return to his home sign.

This Great Return is a subject so vast and far reaching, and its influence so gradual when considered in relation to the lifetime of the average individual, that it is impossible to more than hint at its eventual result.

I wish to acknowledge my indebtedness to the late James P. Gross, M.A., for the inspiration derived from his "The Occult Story of the Earth," to which I have previously referred.

Why can't you Write?

It's much simpler than you think!

SO many people with the "germ" of writing in them simply can't get started. They suffer from inertia. Or they set up imaginary barriers to taking the first step.

Many are convinced the field is confined to persons gifted with the genius for writing.

Few realize that the great bulk of commercial writing is done by so-called "unknowns." Not only do these thousands of men and women produce most of the fiction published, but countless articles on business affairs, social matters, domestic science, etc., as well.

Such material is in constant demand. Every week thousands of checks for $25, $50 and $100 go out to writers whose latent ability was perhaps no greater than yours.

The Practical Method

Newspaper work demonstrates that the way to learn to write is by writing! Newspaper copy-desk editors waste no time on theories or ancient classics. The story is the thing. Every copy "cub" goes through the course of practical criticism—a training that turns out more successful authors than any other experience.

Ad Man and Author at 22

"Took the N.I.A. course at eighteen. Today at twenty-two am assistant, Eastern Advertising Manager of The Billboard, and editor of Ad-vents, monthly newspaper of the Association of Advertising Men of New York. Have just sold a story to Famous Detective Cases for $185. So as an ad man and author permit me to say, 'If you want to write ad copy or fiction, try N.I.A.'"

That is why Newspaper Institute of America bases its writing instruction on the Copy-Desk Method. At home, on your own time, you work upon the very same kind of actual assignments given daily to metropolitan reporters. Thus you learn by doing, not by studying the individual styles of model authors.

Each week your work is analyzed constructively by practical newspaper men. Gradually they help to clarify your own distinctive style. Writing soon becomes easy, absorbing. Profitable, too, as you gain the "professional" touch that gets your material accepted by editors. Above all, you can see constant progress week by week as your faults are corrected and your writing ability grows.

Have You Natural Ability?

Our Writing Aptitude Test will reveal whether or not you have natural talent for writing. It will analyze your powers of observation, your imagination and dramatic instinct.
