FOREWORD.

THE cordial reception accorded the first edition of this little volume has led the translator to insert considerable additional matter and to amplify the notes, making the present edition practically a new work. The translation has been carefully revised, and the nomenclature slightly changed, without in any way altering the sense, to make it uniform with a new translation, from the same hand, of The Evangel according to Iðannês, now in the press.

That the books of the Old and New Testaments had an esoteric sense was agreed to by all the exegetists of the first three centuries. And not only Philo Judæus but even Augustine held that this inner meaning was the same as that of the Mystery-teachings handed down from time immemorial among the pagans. A large volume could be filled with citations from the patristic and so-called heretical writings to substantiate these statements; but a single quotation from Dr. Mosheim's Commentaries is quite conclusive. Speaking of Origen, who "pronounced a great part of the sacred books to be void of meaning if taken literally," he says: "He would have had no enemies if he had merely affirmed, what no one then called in question, that in addition to the sense which the words of Scripture convey, another sense latent in the things described is to be diligently sought for. This will be manifest, if we consider who were the men that inveighed so bitterly against Origen's allegories after he was dead: I refer to Eustatius, Epiphanius, Jerome, Augustine, and many others. All these were themselves Allegorists, if I may use that term; and would undoubtedly have condemned any man, as a great errorist, who should have dared to impugn the arcane sense of Scripture." Yet in the received English version, biassed by the dead-letter Theology of the translators, this arcane sense is so obscured, the psychology so misconstrued, and such a materialistic coloring given to it all, that no apology is needed for even the unpretentious little work here submitted.

PREFATORY NOTE.

THE following translation of a few passages from the New Testament writings is not a paraphrase but an attempt at a more literal rendering than the received version done from the Latin Vulgate and "diligently compared with the original Greek." Waiving the fact that the oldest Greek manuscripts of the New Testament can not be assigned to an earlier date than the third and fourth centuries, the originals having been lost, the diligence of the learned translators and revisers failed to compensate for their absolute ignorance of all psychic things, not to speak of things spiritual and magical. They have made woeful havoc of the mystical terms employed; all their work is vitiated, even to the extent of suppressio veri, by their pious desire to dissociate what they believed to be the unique literary productions of Deity from all pagan sources. As said with unconscious honesty by the lexicographer Parkhurst, when apologizing for the very unclassical Greek of the New Testament: "Let us suppose that a person whose native language was Greek, and who had read some of the best Greek authors, but was entirely ignorant of the eastern tongues, had met with some or all of the sacred books of the New Testament soon after their publication; the principal difficulty, I apprehend, which one thus qualified would have found in understanding their style, would have arisen not from the oriental idioms occurring therein, . . . but from the peculiar senses in which they apply single words; as for instance, pistis for faith, or believing in God; dikaïosunê for imputed righteousness; ktisis for creation, or production from nothing; and it will be necessary to observe, that in delivering this precious doctrine which was to the Greeks foolishness, it was absolutely impossible for the sacred writers to express themselves at all, concerning the most essential points, unless they had either coined new words, or used such old ones as they already found in a new sense. . . . The writers, therefore, of the New Testament, or rather (with reverence be it spoken!) the Holy Spirit whose penmen they were," etc. Thanking quaint old Parkhurst for the candor of his admissions and the delicacy of his humor in reducing the Deity, fresh from his successful feat of "production from nothing," to the necessity of using old words in a new sense in the very book where he advises against putting new wine into old bottles, we still prefer to ignore these "peculiar new senses" and return as nearly as possible to the old ones. Yet Parkhurst was wiser in his day than later lexicographers whose works, while more accurate in point of scholarship, are more often theological treatises than real lexicons, and persistently ignore the fact that the New Testament abounds in words and phrases taken from the ancient Mysteries, used in their pagan sense; and not with the wooden meanings invented for them by ignorant monks and ecclesiastics. For, purified from the theological atmosphere which now envelopes them, an aura of untold mustiness and of stuffiness unutterable, and with the technical meanings restored to the mystical terminology, pagan in origin, which is consistently employed in them, the books of the New Testament, and preëminently the four Evangelists, stand unrivalled in religious literature, only a few other scriptures being comparable to them for depth of occult meaning, breadth of moral teaching, height of spiritual exaltation, or plerôma of tenderness and compassion.

THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT.<sup>1</sup>

[Matthew IV. 23—VI. 27.]

AND Îêsous went about all Galilaia, teaching in their assemblies, and proclaiming the magical Message<sup>2</sup> of the Realm, and

<sup>1</sup> According to Luke, vi. 17, the sermon was delivered on a plain, after Îêsous had come down from the mountain (or hill). "Mountains" are the usual glyphs for force-centres in the aura of man, and the psychic and spiritual states of exaltation to which these correspond. (The more important technical terms are indicated by spacing in this work.)

<sup>2</sup> Gr. evangelion, of which "good tidings" is an inadequate rendering; it is a magical Message, precisely as the angeloi are magical Messengers—ethereal beings of every degree, from the high Gods down to mere magnetic breaths. The "Evangel of the Realm" (basileia) is the instruction concerning the "open eye" and its awakening through the action of the Breath (pneuma) or electric Fire—the "Fiery Power" and "World-Mother" of The Voice of the Silence. The Breath becomes the "Advocate with the Father" (paraklêtos, mistranslated "Comforter" in the authorized version). The Breath (pneuma, wind, air, spirit) is, mystically, the Ether of Space; in man, the vital principle, or healing every disease and weakness among the people. And the rumor of him went abroad into all Syria; and they brought to him all who were ill, being afflicted with various diseases and torments, and obsessed by evil spirits, and moon-stricken, and paralyzed, and he healed them. And large crowds followed him from Galilaia, and Dek-electric Fire. It is sevenfold, as given in Rev. v. 6-14: "And I saw in the midst of the Throne [chair of Initiation] and of the Four Beings, and in the midst of the Ancients, a Lamb [Neophyte] standing, as though it had been sacrificed [initiated], having seven horns [or, "wing-like appearances"—auric radiations] and seven eyes [the seven centres of the Breath], which are the Seven Breaths of The God sent forth into all the Earth [psychic world]. . . . And I heard a Voice of many Messengers [angeli], . . . thousands of thousands, saying with a mighty Voice, 'Worthy is the Lamb that was sacrificed, to receive the Force and wealth and knowledge and power and majesty and Radiance and good-will.' And every embodied thing which is in the sky and on the earth, and under the earth, and on the sea, and all [things] in them, heard I saying: 'To him who sits upon the Throne, and to the Lamb, the good-will and the majesty and the Radiance and the strength throughout the On-goings of the On-goings!' And the Four Beings apolis, and Hierousalêm, and Ioudaia, and the other side of the Iordanos. But when he saw the crowds, he went up into the mountain; and when he was seated his pupils came to him, and he opened his mouth and taught them, saying:

said 'Amên.''' (The On-goings are the Life-cycles; the Greek aîôn being from the same root as the Sanskrit i, "to go.") The above initiation scene from the Apocalypse may be paralleled with the one which concludes The Voice of the Silence: "In songs of praise both heaven and earth unite. And from the fourfold manifested Powers a chant of love ariseth. . . . From the deep, unfathomable vortex of that golden light in which the Victor bathes, all Nature's wordless voice in thousand tones ariseth."

<sup>1</sup> Gr. makarios, free from fate or death, emancipated, immortal. The word is descriptive of the state of the Gods, and connotes both bliss and deathlessness. The makarôn nêsoi, "Isles of the Immortals"—the Gods and deified dead—were golden islands floating in the blue ocean at the extreme West; and there the blest dwelt in "a tearless eternity." The pagans apotheosized their heroes, the R. C. Church canonizes its saints; and the first step towards canonization is the beatification, or public declaration that the individual is received into heaven (whether the western heaven of sunset skies or not, Jehovah alone knows) and should be revered as one of the Blest. The makarioi are the souls freed from the bondage of re-birth.

<sup>1</sup> Gr. ouranoi, skies, considered to be the abode of ethereal beings and Gods. Symbolically, the different states or strata of the earth's aura. In the singular, ouranos, visible space, the vault of the sky; the conception appears to be that of a hollow globe ensphering the earth and constituting a world for the Gods, who move upon its surface as men do upon earth. As a God, Ouranos is the husband of Gaia, Earth; the two symbolizing respectively the spiritual (sidereal) and psychic aspects of the earth's aura—the sphere of star-stuff surrounding it, the astral (starry) light. They who, by the evocation of the Breath, or Fiery Power, awaken the "single eye" attain to this sidereal world.

<sup>2</sup> When the soul, after ages of immersion in matter, out of world-weariness longs for its primal home, then the Breath becomes its Advocate (para-klētos) with its Father, or Real Self, who "has naught to do with the purgations of matter."

<sup>3</sup> Or, "dispassionate ones." Inner tranquility or quiet gives vision of the higher psychic regions, (gaia, Earth as a subtile element).

<sup>1</sup> Gr. dikaïosunê, the practice of rectitude; the perfect performance of duty which leads to illumination. To aspiration for guidance in life, the soul itself gives answer.

<sup>4</sup> By all ancient peoples the heart was regarded as the seat of the soul. Purity of soul brings the vision of the Master or real Self.

<sup>5</sup> The definite article is retained in translating, as theos, without the article, does not always mean the Supreme Deity in the New Testament.

<sup>6</sup> Those who attain to "that sacred peace which nothing can disturb, and in which the soul grows as does the holy flower upon the still lagoons."

Immortal [are] those who have been exiled<sup>1</sup> on account of right-conduct: because theirs is the Realm of the Skies.<sup>2</sup>

Immortal are you when they shall upbraid you, and exile you,<sup>3</sup> and say every useless word<sup>4</sup> concerning you falsely, on my account. Rejoice and become ecstatic;<sup>5</sup> because your recompense is great in the Skies; for in this way they exiled the Seers<sup>6</sup> who were before you. You are the salt of the

<sup>2</sup> Referring to the highest of the men-immortals, those souls who, though having reached emancipation from the bondage of re-birth, voluntarily incarnate as teachers. This properly ends the series of nine classes of Immortals, the last possessing, like the first, "the Realm of the Skies," or divine Seership.

<sup>3</sup> This paragraph is simply in antithesis to the last, as the self-exiles are usually slandered and exiled by the mob of profane mankind whom they are trying to aid.

<sup>6</sup> Gr. prophêtes, one who interpretes, or declares, the will of the Gods.

Earth.<sup>1</sup> But if the salt becomes tasteless, with what shall it be salted? It is good for nothing any more but to be thrown outside and be trampled on by men. You are the light of the world.<sup>2</sup> A town lying on the hills can not be concealed.<sup>3</sup> Neither do they burn a lamp and put it under the measure,<sup>4</sup> but in the lampstand, and it gives light for all who are in the house. In the same way let your light shine in front of men, that they may see your good [magical] works,<sup>5</sup> and add Radiance<sup>6</sup> to your Father who is in the Skies.

<sup>3</sup> A sacred city among the ancients was usually built upon a mountain or hill, natural or artificial, a crypt or underground chamber beneath the temple being used for the sacred rites.

<sup>5</sup> Gr. ergon, a work or operation; a word technically applied to the dramatic performance of the ritual, by the leitourgos or priest, or the display of phenomena by the *theourg*os, magician, or thaumaturgos, marvel-maker.

<sup>6</sup> Gr. doxa, opinion, praise, glory; fancy, dream, vision; splendor, brightness, brilliant luminosity—the aura or spiritual radiance.

Do not suppose that I am come to abolish the Law or the Seers. I am not come to abolish but to make full. Amên,<sup>1</sup> for I say to you, Till the Sky and the Earth pass away, not one letter i or one accent shall pass away from the Law, until all things come into being. Whosoever, therefore, shall relax one of these very little commands, and teach men so, shall receive a very little name in the Realm of the Skies; but whosoever shall make full, and so teach, that [man] shall receive a great name in the Realm of the Skies. For I say to you, Unless your right-conduct much excels that of the Recorders<sup>2</sup> and the Pharisaians, you surely shall not enter into the Realm of the Skies.

You have heard that it was said to the people of old :

<sup>1</sup> The Greek Amên is an exact equivalent for the Aum or Om, and has no such meaning as "verily" or "so be it." It is the mystic Name of the Christos, the word used in evoking the Breath. "These [things] saith the Amên, the Witness trustworthy and true, the First of the Foundation (ktisis) of The God" (Rev. iii. 14).

<sup>2</sup> Gr. grammateus, a scribe, secretary; one learned in the Law.

"And whosoever shall do murder shall be liable to the judgment."<sup>2</sup>

<sup>7</sup>Gr. gehenna, after Heb. ge hinnom, Valley of Hinnom, which was devoted to crematorial purposes. It is the opposite of Paradise, and symbolizes the animal passions in man.

therefore, you are bringing your votive-gift towards the place for offerings, and there remember that your brother has anything against you, leave there your votive-gift in front of the place for offerings, and withdraw; first be reconciled with your brother, and then come and bring your votive-gift.<sup>1</sup> Be of kindly disposition towards your opponent promptly until you are on the Path with him, lest perhaps the opponent deliver you up to the judge, and the judge deliver you up to the officer, and you be cast into prison.<sup>2</sup> Amên, I say to you, You shall not come out thence until you have paid the very last farthing.

You have heard that it was said:

<sup>1</sup> Freedom from all uncharitable and impure thoughts is imperative before beginning the mystic meditation, else will the Fire, instead of rising to Paradise (the occult brain centres), strike downward into the centres of animal passions—an actual “hell” a trifle worse than the fanciful one of the orthodox. Similarly, a group of students who are not in perfect harmony while studying will only arouse the impure and malignant forces of the animal soul.

<sup>2</sup> The prison is simply the physical body, which the offending soul will be compelled to inform.

"You should not commit adultery."<sup>1</sup>

But I say to you, Every one who looks at a woman to lust after her has already committed adultery with her in his heart. Now, if your right eye ensnare you,<sup>2</sup> pluck it out and cast it from you: for it is an advantage to you that one of your members perish, and not your whole body be cast into the Burning Valley. And if your right hand ensnare you, cut it off and cast it from you: for it is an advantage to you that one of your members perish, and not your whole body be cast into the Burning Valley.<sup>3</sup>

But it was said:

"Whosoever puts away his wife,

"Let him give her a divorce."<sup>4</sup>

But I say to you, Every one who puts away his wife, except for the cause of harlotry, makes her become an adulteress; and he who

marries her who is put away commits adultery.

Again, you have heard that it was said to the people of old:

“You should not foreswear yourself,<sup>1</sup>

“But should pay unto the Master your oaths.”<sup>2</sup>

But I say to you, Do not confirm by an oath at all; neither by the Sky, for it is the throne of The God;<sup>3</sup> nor by the Earth, for it is the footstool of his feet;<sup>4</sup> nor by Hierousalêm, for it is the city of the great Ruler;<sup>5</sup> <sup>6</sup> neither swear you by your head, for you can not make one hair white or black. But let your saying be Yes, yes; No, no; for that which is more than these is of the useless [person].<sup>7</sup>

<sup>7</sup> Or, “of no use.” Gr. ponêros, useless, depraved; a term applied to the profane and to those who

You have heard that it was said:

“An eye for an eye,

But I say to you, Resist not the useless [person]; but whosoever shall slap you on your right cheek, turn to him the other also; and him who would sue you at law and take your frock,<sup>2</sup> let him have your mantle also; and whosoever shall press you into service<sup>3</sup> for one mile, go with him two. To him who begs of you, give; and from him who would borrow of you, turn not away.

You have heard that it was said:

“You should love your neighbor,

“And hate your enemy.”<sup>4</sup>

But I say to you, Love your enemies, and speak well of those who call down curses upon you; do rightly by those who hate practise the magic arts, or sorcerers; as opposed to chrêstos, noble, worthy, bestowed upon the neophyte.

you; offer prayers for those who abusively threaten and pursue you; that you may become sons of your Father in the Skies, for he causes his sun to rise on the useless and the good, and sends rain upon the just and the unjust. For if you shall love those who love you, what recompense have you? Do not even the tax-collectors do that? And if you shall welcome your brothers only, what do you more [than others]? Do not even the masses<sup>1</sup> do the same? You, therefore, shall be Perfect,<sup>2</sup> even as your Father, who is in the Skies, is Perfect.

<sup>2</sup> That is, universal, accepting all men, rejecting none. The Perfect (teleioi) are the Initiates, those who have reached the Perfecting-period (telos) or unity with the Father. Thus Paulos says: "We talk wisdom among the Perfect, yet not a wisdom of this On-going, nor of the Archons [occult teachers] of this On-going, who are becoming of no account; but we talk divine Wisdom, in a Mystery, arcane" (I. Cor. ii. 6, 7). Or as said by the Christos in an invocation to the Father: "The Radiance which thou hast given to me, I have given to them, that they may be one, even as we are one, I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made Perfect in one" (John xvii. 23).

Take heed that you perform not your charities<sup>1</sup> before men, so as to be seen by them, else you have no recompense in presence of your Father who is in the Skies. When, therefore, you perform charities, do not sound the trumpet before you, as the interpreters<sup>2</sup> do in the assemblies and in the streets, that they may be glorified by men. Amên, I say to you, They fully have their recompense. But when you perform charities, let not your left hand know what your right hand is doing, that your charities may be in the occult; and your Father who sees in the occult shall repay you in the manifested.

And when you offer prayers, you shall not be as the interpreters; for they are very fond of standing in the assemblies and in the corners of the streets to pray, that they may be seen by men. Amên, I say to you, They fully have their recompense. But when you offer prayers, enter into your treasure-vault,<sup>1</sup> and when you have closed the door, pray to your Father who is in the occult, and your Father who is in the occult shall repay you in the manifested.

But when offering prayers do not jabber, like the foreigners; for they think that they will be understood because of their volubleness. Do not be likened to them: for your Father understands your need before you ask him. Thus, then, you should pray:

<sup>1</sup> Gr. tamieion, treasure-house, store-room, cellar, or subterranean vault for concealing valuables; here used symbolically for the auric sphere, or treasury of all the soul's experiences, into which the aspirant should withdraw and "close the door"—that is, insulate himself magnetically—before evoking the Breath, or Fiery Power.

<sup>2</sup> Gr. hagiazesthai, to be consecrated [to the Gods], made sacred; to be purified. The Name is the Amên, or word used in evoking the Breath. The whole prayer, in the Greek, is a magical chant.

<sup>4</sup> The self-creative power of the monogenês, the one "born from one [parent]," that is, born from himself as his own Father.

As in the Sky, so on the Earth.<sup>1</sup>

That Bread of the coming day<sup>2</sup> give us to-day; and free us from our obligations, as we also have freed those under obligation to us; and bring us not to the test,<sup>3</sup> but deliver us from uselessness.<sup>4</sup>

<sup>2</sup>Gr. epiousion, a coined word found nowhere except in this prayer; it clearly does not mean "daily," but evidently "which is coming" or "of the future." The Bread is the "Bread of Life," of which the Christos says: "I am that Living Bread that came down out of the Sky. If any one eats of this bread he shall live throughout the On-going" (John vi. 51).

<sup>3</sup>Gr. peirasmós, a proving, trial, experiment. When the Fire of the Paraklêtos is aroused it is liable to strike downward into the generative centres, if the man is not sufficiently purified, instead of going upward to the brain centres (the "Realm of the Skies"). This is the terrible test of his purity; and he who fails finds himself in the "Burning Valley of the Fire," and in danger of death or insanity. But if perfectly pure he is not brought to this test.

<sup>4</sup>All the conditions and incidents of earth-life, for each incarnate man, being regulated for him by his own soul or mystic "Father" as a training through

For thine is the Realm, the Force and the Radiance,<sup>1</sup> throughout the On-goings. Amên!

For if you forgive men their mistakes, your Father, he of the Sky, will also forgive you; but if you do not forgive men, neither will your Father forgive your mistakes.

But when you fast, do not become, like the interpreters, of sullen face: for they cloud over their faces, that they may be seen<sup>2</sup> by men to be fasting. Amên, I say to you, They fully have their recompense. But when you fast, annoint your head and wash your face, that you may not be seen by men to be fasting, but by your Father who is in the occult; and your Father who sees in the occult will repay you in the manifested.

Do not treasure up for yourselves treasures which he may rise from the uselessness of a mere "image" (eidôlon) to be a Master-builder in spatial life.

upon the Earth,<sup>1</sup> where moth<sup>2</sup> and rust<sup>3</sup> cloud over, and where thieves dig through and steal; but treasure up for yourselves treasures in a Sky where neither moth nor rust clouds over, and where thieves do not dig through and steal: for where your treasure is, there also will be your heart.<sup>4</sup> The lamp of the body is the Eye. If, therefore, your Eye be open,<sup>5</sup> your whole body will be luminous; but if your Eye be useless,<sup>6</sup> your whole body will be dark. If, therefore, the Light which is in you is darkness, how great is the darkness!

No one can serve two Masters: for either

<sup>1</sup> "Earth" is the psychic world, the bride of the "Sky," the sidereal or spiritual. Knowledge stored up in the psychic nature is impermanent, nor can it be guarded against the followers of the "left-hand path," who dig through and steal.

<sup>4</sup> The mystic "heart," whose throbbing opens that inner "eye" which is the "lamp of the body."

he will hate the one and love the other, or he will hold to the one and disregard the other. You can not be devoted to a God and to a Mamônas.<sup>1</sup> Because of this I say to you, Do not be concerned about your psychic body,<sup>2</sup> what you shall eat and what you shall drink; neither for your body, what you shall wear. Is not the psychic body more than the food, and the body than the garment? Look at the birds of the Sky, that they do not sow, nor do they reap, nor gather into granaries, yet your Father, he of the Sky, feeds them. Are not you of much more value than they? Now, what one among you by being concerned can add one single arm-length<sup>3</sup> to his height? And why then <sup>1</sup> The precise meaning of this word is unknown. It is supposed to signify "gain;" and some have supposed Mamônas to be a God worshipped in Syria, and equivalent to Ploutôn, as god of wealth and of the Under-world.

<sup>2</sup> Gr. psuchê, the semi-material body, or psuchikon sôma. When it is clouded by food-fumes, psychic vision is obscured—a matter of consequence to psychics, but not to those who see with the "open eye."

are you concerned about a garment? Meditate on the lilies of the field, how they grow: they do not weary themselves with toil, nor do they spin; yet I say to you, Even Solomôn in all his Radiance<sup>1</sup> was not arrayed like one of these.<sup>2</sup> Now, if The God so robes the plant of the field, which to-day lives and to-morrow is cast into the oven, [shall he] not much more [robe] you, O you of little intuition? Do not be concerned, therefore, saying, "What shall we eat?" or, "What shall we drink?" or, "With what shall we be arrayed?" For after all these things the outsiders<sup>3</sup> seek. For your Father, he of the Sky, knows that you need all these things. But seek first the Realm of The God, and his right-conduct; and all these things shall be added to you. Therefore do not be concerned about the morrow; for the morrow will be concerned about itself: sufficient for the day is its own vexation.

Judge not, that you may not be judged: for with what judgment you judge you shall be judged, and with what measure you measure it shall be measured back to you. And why do you look at that shaving<sup>1</sup> in your brother's eye, but do not perceive the beam which is in your own eye? Or how shall you say to your brother, "Let me pull the shaving out of your eye," and, look, there is the beam in your own eye? Interpreter, first pull the beam out of your own eye, and then you will see clearly to pull the shaving out of your brother's eye.

Give not the sanctuary to the dogs; neither throw your pearls in front of the pigs, lest perchance they trample on them with their feet, and turn again and rend you.<sup>2</sup>

Or if he ask for a fish, also, will give him a snake? If you, therefore, who are useless ones, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more shall your Father who is in the Skies give good things<sup>1</sup> to those who ask him? All things, therefore, that you wish men should do to you, even so do you also to them: for such is the Law and the Seers.<sup>2</sup>

By their fruits you shall recognize them. Do they gather a cluster of grapes from thorns, or figs from prickly plants? Even so every good tree produces useful fruits, but the rotten tree produces useless fruits. A good tree can not produce useless fruits, nor a rotten tree produce useful fruits. Every tree which does not produce useful fruit is cut down and thrown into [the] fire. Hence, surely, by their fruits you will recognize them.

Not every one who says to me, "Master, Master," shall enter into the Realm of the Skies; but he who does the Will of my Father who is in the Skies. And every one who hears these sayings of mine and does not do them, shall be likened to a stupid man who built his house upon the sand; and the rains descended, and the streams came, and the winds blew, and assailed that house; and it fell, and great was its fall.

THE COMING OF THE CHRISTOS.<sup>1</sup>

[I. Corinthians xv. 35-57.]

BUT some one will say, "How are the dead ones<sup>2</sup> raised up, and with what sort of body do they come?"

Thoughtless one, that which you sow is not made living unless it dies, and that which you sow, you do not sow the body which will come into being, but a naked grain, it may chance of wheat or of some other [kinds]; but The God gives it a body just as he has determined, and to each of the things sown its own proper body. All flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one [flesh] of men, another of animals, another of fishes, and another of birds. And [there are] bodies of Sky-substance and bodies of Earth-substance;<sup>1</sup> but [there is] a certain Radiance<sup>2</sup> of those of Sky-substance, and a different [Radiance] of those of Earth-substance; one Radiance of the Sun, and another Radiance of the Moon, and another Radiance of the Stars—for Star differs from Star in Radiance. Thus, also, is the Resuscitation of the dead ones. It is sown in a destroying, raised in indestructibility; sown in a disesteeming, raised in Radiance; sown in a weakening, raised in force; sown as a psychic body, raised as a Breath body.<sup>3</sup> There is a psychic body, and there is a Breath body; hence it is written, "The first man, Adam, came into being in a psychic form,"<sup>1</sup> the last Adam in a life-producing Breath. Yet the Breath [body] was not first, but the psychic; afterwards the Breath [body]. The first man

<sup>2</sup> The question is put literally, referring to those who are dead in the ordinary sense; but the answer is a play upon the word, applying it in a mystical sense to those who are prisoned in the physical body.

<sup>2</sup> Gr. doxa, shining, the aura. The “sun” and “moon” are the positive and negative aspects of the Paraklêtos; and the “stars” are the force-centres, each of which manifests a different color.

<sup>3</sup> Before man, the “dead one,” can regain his divine state, and be “born from above” in the self-shining spiritual body, he must destroy his passional nature and rise to the permanent part of his being; discarding material desires, he rises to the psychic life, in the aura or “radiance”; then through a

"weakening," a renunciation of psychic powers, he rises in the magical "force" (dunamis) of the Paraklêtos, or the Holy Breath acting as the mediator (mesitês) between individual man and the One Self. The man whose only conscious life is in his physical body is "dead"; his resuscitation begins in the psychic and is perfected in the spiritual, in the "Breath body" (or, pneumatic body, Gr. pneumatikos, from pneuma, breath). Compare John iii. 5-8: "If any one be not born of Water and of Breath he can not enter into the Realm of The God. That which has been born from the flesh is flesh, and that which has been born from the Breath is Breath. Do not wonder because I said to you, 'You have to be born from above.' The Breath breathes where it wills, and you hear its Voice, but you know not whence it comes nor where it goes. So is every one who has been born from the Breath." In New Testament nomenclature the bodies in the three manifested worlds are termed respectively "carnal" (sarkikos), "psychic" (psuchikos), and "pneumatic" (pneumatikos).

is of the Earth, of dust;<sup>1</sup> the second man, the Master, is from the Sky. As dust, so also are they who are of dust; and as that which is of Sky-substance, so are they who are of the Sky-substance; and even as we have worn the likeness of that which is of dust, we shall also wear the likeness of that which is of Sky-substance. Now, I say this, brothers, Flesh and blood can not inherit the Realm of a God, nor does the destructible inherit the indestructible. Behold, I tell you a Mystery:<sup>2</sup> though indeed we shall not all sleep, yet we all shall be transformed, in the Atom, in an out-flashing of an Eye, in the last trumpet-call.<sup>3</sup> For a trumpet shall sound, and the dead ones

<sup>3</sup> By rendering atomos "moment," and ripê "twinkling," the translators of the authorized version have added to the obscurity of the "mystery" told in this passage. For atomos, "uncut," "that which is indivisible," never means "moment"—as an "atom [of time]"; and though the lexicons give it this meaning for the New Testament only, the word does not appear in the New Testament anywhere save in the above passage, where it refers to the atomic (non-molecular) nature of the pneumatic body. Nor is ripê found in the New Testament elsewhere than in this passage, where a peculiar meaning has been attributed to it. The word signifies primarily the impetus or force with which anything is thrown or hurled. The whole passage relates to the mystery of the projection of the pneumatic body from the "open eye" at the "last trumpet-call," that is, the last of the seven spiritual sounds heard in the mystic trance. Thus in the Apocalypse, after the opening of the last of the "seven seals," "the seven Messengers who had the seven trumpets prepared themselves to sound"; and when the seventh Messenger sounded his trumpet there were "Voices in the Sky, saying: 'The Realm of our Master, and of his Anointed, has come into being; and he shall reign throughout the On-goings of the On-goings.'"

tal shall have been clothed with immortality, then shall come to pass that saying which is written, "Death is swallowed up in victory."<sup>1</sup> Where, O Death, is your goad? Where, O Under-world, is your victory? The goad of Death is error, and the force of error is the Law.<sup>2</sup>

Now, as he sat upon the Olive-tree Hill, the pupils came to him privately, saying:

"Tell us: when shall these [things] be? And what [shall be] the Sign of your presence,<sup>2</sup> and of the Assembly of the Perfect<sup>3</sup> of the On-going?"<sup>4</sup>

And Iêsous, answering, said to them:

<sup>1</sup> Gr. telos, completion, making perfect, initiation in sacred Mysteries; a term applied by classical writers to the Eleusinian Mysteries. Here it denotes the period for the initiation of those who, during the Life-cycle, have, through purification of the lower nature, risen above the physical and psychic worlds and attained conscious spiritual individuality.

For then shall be a great hemming-in, such as there has not been from the first of the world until now; no, nor ever shall be. And unless those days were shortened, all flesh would not be saved; but through the chosen ones those days shall be shortened. Then if any one shall say to you, 'Behold, here is the Anointed one,' or, 'there,' do not accept it as true. For false Anointed ones and false seers shall rise up, and shall give great Signs and prodigies,<sup>2</sup> so as to lead into wandering ways, if possible, even the

<sup>1</sup>Man (anthrôpos) is a technical term for the manifestation of the Logos during a particular Life-cycle. Thus Valentinus says: "When God uttered a revelation of himself, this was called a Man." Each of these "Men," or Life-cycles, lasts approximately 2,155 years, or the twelfth of a sidereal year, and each has its Spiritual Ruler or "Man sent forth from God." Thus, the measurements of the New Hierousalêm are given according to "a measure of a Man, that is, of a Messenger" (Rev. xxi. 17). The Æonology is concisely given in John i. 1-7: "In a First-principle was [existed] the Logos, and the Logos was in relation to The God, and the Logos was a God. This [God] it was who in a First-principle was in relation to The God. All things came into being through him, and apart from him not one single thing came into being. That which has come into being was Life in him, and the Life immediately after the hemming-in of those days, the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from the Sky and the Forces of the Skies shall be vibrated.<sup>1</sup> And then shall be manifested in the Sky the Sign of the Son of the Man; and then shall all the tribes of the Earth<sup>2</sup> lament, and they shall see the Son of the Man coming in the clouds of the Sky with great Force and Radiance; and he shall send his Messengers with the loud sound of a trumpet-call,<sup>3</sup> and was the Light of the Men. . . . There came into being a Man sent forth from a God; his name [was] Iôannês. This [forerunner] came for witness that he might bear witness about the Light."

<sup>1</sup> The eagles are the usual glyphic for the positive and negative forces (whether of man or of the Earth); and through their being brought into equilibrium the centres from which they emanate will be darkened, the forces then rising to the next higher world.

<sup>3</sup> The Earth is considered to be a living being, having a psychic and a spiritual nature; and it is to these higher planes that the above passage relates.

they shall gather together his chosen ones from the four Winds,<sup>1</sup> from the one end of the Skies to the other."

<sup>1</sup> Those souls of the four manifested hierarchies who have earned their emancipation and are entitled to become of the number of the Perfect. Here the discourse ends, so far as it relates to the cycle or racial period; that which follows is purely psychophysiological, applying to the mikrokosm, or man. Of the three parables, or allegories, that of the fig-tree relates to the generative centres, the fig being a symbol of generation, both from the shape of its leaves and from its peculiar way of bearing fruit; the five sensible and five stupid virgins with their "torches" or "lights" ("lamps" is a mistranslation) represent the psychic or heart-centres; and the three servants (or, properly, "slaves") with their talents (five, two, and one, the one being buried) stand for the three Fires and the seven brain-centres, the unprofitable slave, who is cast into "the outer darkness," representing the lunar Fire, as does the unrepentant thief in the allegory of the Crucifixion.

THE TRUE PATH OF POWER.

[I. Corinthians xii. 1-13, 31; xiii; xiv. 1-6, 15-19.]

Now, concerning the Breath-beings,<sup>1</sup> brothers, I do not wish you to be ignorant. You know that you were once of the outsiders, deceived by means of those voiceless Shells,<sup>2</sup> even as you were allured. For that reason I make known to you that no one speaking by Breath of a God calls Îêsous a temple-offering;<sup>3</sup> and no one can speak of Îêsous as Master save by the Purifying<sup>4</sup> Breath.

<sup>4</sup> Gr. hagios, pure, devoted to the Gods. The Breath is the agent in the telestic or purificatory rites, and the Fire of spiritual inspiration.

Now, there are diversities of magical powers, but the same Breath. And there are diversities of services, and the same Master. And there are diversities of energizings, but the same God, he who energizes all [things] in all. Now, to each one is given the shining-forth of the Breath for the general good. For to one is given through the Breath a saying<sup>1</sup> of [arcane] Knowledge,<sup>2</sup> and to another a saying of Secret Lore,<sup>3</sup> according to the same Breath, and to another intuition in the same Breath; and to another, magical powers of healing, in the same Breath; and to another, energizings of Forces; and to another, Seership;<sup>4</sup> and to another, discernings of Breath-beings;

and to another, various mystery-jargons;<sup>1</sup> and to another, the interpretation of mystery-jargons.<sup>2</sup> Now, one and the same Breath energizes all these, distributing to each one respectively even as he determines. For just as the body is one, and has many members, so also is the Anointed. For in one Breath we were all lustrated into one body, whether Ioudaians or Hellênes, whether slaves or freemen, and were all saturated in one Breath. . . . Desire ardently the better-magical powers—and yet I point out to you a more excellent Path.

Though I speak in the mystery-jargons of the Men and of the Messengers, but have not Love, I am become [but] sounding brass or a cymbal clanging. And though I have <sup>1</sup>Gr. glôssa, the tongue; word of mouth, language. Here used for magical formulas for arousing forces, and for oracular utterances spoken in the mantic frenzy or state of inspiration. The verb used for "speaking" (lalein, to babble, chatter, prattle) is a peculiar one, and is generally applied in the New Testament to speaking under inspiration, and to disclosing secrets.

Seership, and know the Mysteries all, and all the Secret Lore; and though I have all Wisdom,<sup>1</sup> so that I could remove mountains, but have not Love, I am nothing. And though I give away all my possessions, and allow my body to become parched up,<sup>2</sup> but have not Love, it profits me nothing.

Love is patient, is kind; Love does not envy, does not vaunt itself, is not inflated, does not appear fantastic, seeks not the things of self, is not irritated, does not impute evil; rejoices not in injustice, but takes glad share in The Truth;<sup>3</sup> shelters all things, has intuition into all things, hopes for all things, bears patiently with all things.

<sup>1</sup> Gr. pistis, confidence, trust; inner certainty; intuition, insight. It is the illuminating power of the Paraklêtos, ranging from mere psychic intuition to full spiritual illumination, in which sense Paulos here uses it. Technically, pistis is the power to penetrate into the inner planes of being, gnôsis is the interior knowledge, and sophia is the knowledge retained on returning to the outer plane of consciousness.

<sup>2</sup> Alluding to the mistaken monkish notion that spiritual knowledge can be gained by the mere renunciation of worldly affairs and the practice of asceticism.

Love perishes never—whether Seer-visions shall be done away with, or mystery-jargons be made an end of, or the Secret Lore be done away with. For our Secret Lore is from a fragment, and our Seership is from a fragment;<sup>1</sup> but when the Perfecting-period shall have come, that which is from a fragment shall be done away with. When I was a child<sup>2</sup> I talked as a child, thought as a child, reasoned as a child; but since I have become a man I have put away the [things] of a child. For now we see as by means of puzzling images in a mirror; but then, face towards face. Now I know only from a fragment; but then I shall have full consciousness even as I have had full consciousness. And now abide Wisdom, Hope, Love,<sup>3</sup> these

<sup>3</sup> Gr. pistis, faith (see note 1, p. 48); elpis, hope, hoping, the object hoped for; agapê, lovingness, affection, love. The word agapê is purely Biblical and ecclesiastical, and was evidently coined as a substitute for the pagan Erôs (love). In the older

Three; but the greatest of these [is] Love.

Be followers of Love, and strive after the things of the Breath; but more that you should speak as Seers. For he who speaks in a mystery-jargon speaks not to Men, but to The God: no one hears, but by a Breath he speaks Mysteries.<sup>1</sup> But he who speaks as a Seer speaks to Men for an upbuilding, and an evocation, and an exhortation. He who speaks in a mystery-jargon upbuilds himself, but he who speaks as a Seer upbuilds a Society. Now, I desire that you all should speak in mystery-jargons, but more that you should speak as Seers; for he who speaks as a Seer is greater than he who Greek mythology Eros was the highest of the Gods, and is the same as the Logos; thus, "Eros, the most ancient, generated all things" (Argonautics). Hêsiodos also assigns the first and highest place to Eros, "the most beautiful among immortal Gods" (Theogony, 120). Faith and Hope were also prominent in the old mythology: "Hope alone remains, a kind Goddess among mortals, the rest have abandoned us and gone to Olympos; gone is Faith, a mighty Goddess" (Theognis, 1131-1133).

And just now, brothers, if I come to you speaking in mystery-jargons, of what assistance would I be to you, unless I shall speak to you either in an Unveiling, or in a Secret Lore, or in a Vision-seeing, or in a Teaching.<sup>1</sup> . . . I shall invoke in the Breath, and I shall invoke also in the Soul;<sup>2</sup> I shall hymn in the Breath, and I shall hymn also in the Soul. Paulos here speaks of himself as an hierophant. The four degrees correspond to the three worlds and the Plêrôma.

<sup>2</sup> Gr. nous (noos), pure reason; the interior mind; the rational Soul or Inner Man. Unless a man speaks from direct knowledge of spiritual things, his words have no force and do not appeal to the inner nature of his hearers.

A LETTER OF IAKÔBOS.<sup>1</sup>

IAKÔBOS, a slave of God and Master Anointed Iêsous, sends good-will to the twelve tribes that are among those scattered abroad.

My brothers, esteem it nothing but a favor when you fall into various trials, being aware that the proving of your faith works out patient-waiting.<sup>2</sup> Now, let the patient-waiting have a perfect work, so that you may be perfect and all-round, lacking in nothing. Now, if any one of you is lacking in knowledge,<sup>3</sup> let him ask of The God who gives to all openly, and does not chide, and it shall be given him. But let him ask trustingly, not at all irresolute; for he who is irresolute is like the surge of the sea, storm-driven and tossed to and fro. Certainly let not that man think that he will get anything from the Master—a bi-psychic<sup>1</sup> man unsettled in all his ways.

<sup>1</sup> Commonly called The General Epistle of James, and supposed to have been written either by "James the Just" or by "James the Less."

But let the lowly<sup>2</sup> brother vaunt himself in his loftiness, and the rich in his lowliness; because as a flower of grass he shall pass away. For the sun rose with burning heat, and withered the grass, and its flower fell off, and the beauty of its appearance was ruined. So also will the rich [man] decay in his goings.

Immortal<sup>3</sup> [is] the man who remains firm

<sup>1</sup> Gr. dipsuchos. The psychic nature of man, being intermediate between the spiritual and the physical, partakes of both; until it is purified from the material element the unwavering concentration of mind required for spiritual insight is impossible, for through the conflict of spiritual aspirations and material desires a man is kept at variance with himself.

under trial; because, having become accepted, he will get the crown of the Life which the Master promised to those who love him. Let no one who is being tried say, "I am tried by The God"; for The God is untried in evil [things], and he tries no one; but each one is tried by his own Desire, being lured forth and enticed. Then Desire,<sup>1</sup> having conceived, brings forth Sin; and Sin,<sup>2</sup> being fully perfected, gives birth to Death. My beloved brothers, be not led into wandering ways. Every good bequest and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of the Lights, with whom there can be no alternation, or shadow of turning.<sup>1</sup> Having willed, he gave birth to us by a Mind<sup>2</sup> of Truth,<sup>3</sup> for us to be a kind of firstlings<sup>4</sup> of his embodied beings. And so, my beloved brothers, let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath; for man's wrath does not work out The God's right-conduct. Therefore, laying aside all filth and residue of vice,<sup>5</sup> with mildness accept graciously the in-

<sup>2</sup> Gr. hamartia, literally, "missing the mark"; failure; a bad action, a violation of divine law. In New Testament terminology it refers especially to the fall into generation; and generation, or "sin," brings the soul into the material world, which is mystically termed "Death," its dwellers, "the mortals," being regarded as "the dead" (hoi nekroi) who have to be revived spiritually.

<sup>2</sup>Gr. logos, the external expression of the interior thought, the formative power of the mind; a word or saying as expressing a thought.

<sup>3</sup>Gr. alêtheia, the Real, as opposed to the apparent or illusory; the changeless spiritual basis of life, which forever is; while manifested life is forever becoming.

<sup>4</sup>Gr. aparchê, the preliminary rite in sacrificing; the firstlings offered in a sacrifice. Here the meaning apparently is that the first Men (the Mind-born Sons, the "Builders") were the archetypes of all beings in the inferior worlds.

<sup>5</sup>The evil impulses that continue automatically, in the lower nature, even after the mind is fixed upon virtue, and every effort is toward right-conduct.

born Mind, which is able to save your psychic natures. But become doers of Mind,<sup>1</sup> and not hearers only, not deluding yourselves with false reasonings. For if any one is a hearer of Mind, and not a doer, this one is like a man observing the face of his birth in a mirror. For he observed himself, and went away, and immediately forgot of what sort he was. But he who peers into the perfect Law, that of freedom, and stands fast, becoming, not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of work, this [man] shall be immortal in his doing.

If any one seems to be religious, who does not bridle his tongue, but deceives his heart, this [man's] religion is foolish. Clean and undefiled religion, with The God and Father, is this: to look after orphans and widows in their distress, [and] to keep himself unspotted from the world.

My brothers, do you, in paying regard to outward appearances, keep the faith of our Master, Anointed Iêsous, [Master] of the Radiance? For if there enter into your assembly a man with gold rings on his fingers, in splendid clothes, and there enter in also a beggar<sup>1</sup> in dirty clothes, and you look up to the one wearing the splendid clothes, and say, "Sit thou here in a place of honor;" and to the beggar you say, "Stand thou, or sit near my footstool," do you not make distinctions among yourselves, and become judges with sorry notions? Consider, my beloved brothers; did not The God choose the beggars of the world, rich in faith and heirs of the Realm which he promised to those who love him? But you dishonored the beggar. Do not the rich domineer over you, and do not they drag you into courts of justice? Do they not defame the noble Name which has been nicknamed upon you?<sup>2</sup> If, however, you carry out perfectly a royal Law, according to the Writing,<sup>3</sup>

<sup>3</sup> Gr. graphê, anything drawn, painted or written; a letter; a passage from the sacred books.

"Love your neighbor as yourself," you do nobly. But if you pay regard to outward appearances, you commit sin, being convicted under the Law as offenders. For whosoever shall keep the whole Law, but shall make one false step, has become liable for all. For the one who said, "Do not commit adultery," said also, "Do not commit murder." Now, if you do not commit adultery, but do commit murder, you have become an offender against Law. So speak, and so act, as those about to be judged by a Law of freedom. For judgment [is] pitiless to him who has not shown compassion. Compassion vaunts itself over judgment.

What use [is it], my brothers, in case any one says he has faith, but does not have works—can his faith save him? Now, in case a brother or a sister should be thinly clad, and in want of daily food, and one of you should say to them, "Go your way in peace, be warmed and fed," but you do not give them the things necessary for the body, what use [is it]? Thus also faith, unless it has works, is in itself dead. But some one will say, "You have faith, and I have works; show me your faith separate from works, and I will show you my faith by works." You believe that The God is One; you do nobly—the Genii<sup>1</sup> believe [it] too, and shudder! Now, do you wish to know, O frivolous man, that faith separate from works is dead? Was not Abraham, our Father, vindicated by works, having brought his son Isaac to the place of sacrifice?<sup>2</sup> Do you see that faith participated in his works, and that faith was made perfect by works? And the Writing was fulfilled which says, "Now, Abraham believed The God, and it was passed to his account as right-conduct";<sup>3</sup> and he was nicknamed "God's friend."<sup>4</sup> Do you see that a man is vindicated by works, and <sup>1</sup> Gr. daimôn, god, goddess; tutelary spirit. Properly, the daimônes were the deified souls of the great heroes who are intermediate between ordinary men and the perfected men or Gods; but in later Greek the term is applied to the spirits of the dead generally, and in the New Testament it is used in a bad sense to designate ghosts, spooks and mischievous sprites.

not by faith alone? And in the same way was not also Rahab, the strumpet, vindicated by works, having entertained the messengers,<sup>1</sup> and sent them out by another road?<sup>2</sup> For as the body separate from [the] Breath is dead, so also faith separate from works is dead.

Let not many [of you] become Teachers, my brothers, knowing that we shall meet with a more severe judgment. For in many things we all trip up. If any one does not trip up in conversation, he is a perfect man, able to guide as with a bridle the whole body also. See, we put the horses' bridle-bits into their mouths in order that they may be brought to obey us, and we direct their whole body. See, also, the ships, though of so great size, and driven by violent winds, yet they are directed by a very small rudder wherever the impulse of the helmsman wills. Thus, also, the tongue is a small member, and it talks big! See, how great a mass of stuff<sup>1</sup> a little fire sets aflame; and the tongue [is] a fire: the tongue is ordinarily, among our members, the sum-total<sup>2</sup> of injustice, that which vitiates the whole body, and inflames the wheel of birth,<sup>3</sup> and is [itself] inflamed by the Burning Valley.<sup>4</sup> For every <sup>1</sup>Gr. hulê, forest, underbrush; firewood; unwrought material; the chaotic elements in space from which the material universe (kosmos) was formed. There is a play upon the meaning of the word, in the above passage (which is profoundly occult), referring to the power of sound to arouse the latent evil forces in the psychic nature.

<sup>1</sup> Gr. angelos, courier, messenger, envoy; guardian genius; elemental spirit. In the above passage the word is used in its primitive meaning, being applied to the two spies sent out by "Joshua the son of Nun"; but usually in the New Testament it has a technical sense. In the Apocalypse particular angeloi (angels) have charge of separate elements, as fire (xiv. 18), water (xvi. 5), the four winds of the four Quarters (vii. 1); and Iêsous is shown in the guise of an angel (xxii. 8-16). The word angelos is used by the New Testament writers in the good sense of the word daimôn, and they apply the latter only to the lower orders of spirits.

<sup>2</sup>Gr. kosmos, the (material) world, shaped out of the hulê by the formative power of the Logos; the all.

<sup>3</sup>Or, "generation"; descent into the material world. The soul is considered as being bound to the "wheel of birth" because of its repeated incarnations.

<sup>4</sup>Gr. gehenna (see note 7, p. 15). From the evil Fire of Hadês (the psychic world) come the vile creature, both of wild animals and birds, both of reptiles and of sea-animals, is subdued and has been subdued by the human creature; but of human beings not one is able to subdue the tongue; [it is] an irrepressible mischief, full of death-dealing poison. With it we bless The God and Father, and with it we call down curses on men, who have come into being according to a God's likeness: out of the same mouth go forth a blessing and a curse. My brothers, these things should not come about in this way. Does the spring cause to bubble over, from the same opening, sweet [water] and bitter? My brothers, can a fig-tree produce olives, or a vine figs? Neither [can] salt water produce sweet.

[Is there] any learned and able man among you? Let him show by noble conduct his works by tranquillity of knowledge. But if you have bitter rivalry and intriguing in your hearts, do not vaunt yourselves and speak falsely concerning the Truth? This knowledge<sup>1</sup> is not [the knowledge] which comes down from above, but [it is] earthy, psychic, mediumistic.<sup>2</sup> For where rivalry and intriguing are, there is anarchy and every mean act. But the knowledge from above is first pure, then peaceable, equitable, deferential, full of compassion and of good fruits, resolute, without hypocrisy. Now the fruit of right-conduct is sown by Peace for those making peace.

From what source [are] quarrels and wranglings among you? [Are they] not in consequence of your voluptuous cravings making war among your members? You desire, and do not have; you commit murder,<sup>3</sup> and are envious, and you cannot attain [your ends]; you wrangle and quarrel. You do not have, because of your not asking; you ask, and you do not get, because you ask wrongly, that you may squander [it] in your voluptuous cravings. Adulterers and adulteresses, do you not know that the friendship of the world is enmity to The God? Therefore, whoever wills to be a friend of the world renders himself an enemy of The God. Or do you fancy that it is in a literal sense<sup>1</sup> the Writing says, "Even to enviousness yearns the Breath which dwells in us."<sup>2</sup> But it gives a very great favor; therefore [the Writing] says, "The God opposes the arrogant, but gives favor to the lowly."<sup>3</sup> Therefore, obey The God. Oppose the Adversary, and he will flee from you. Come near to The God, and he will come near to you. Cleanse your hands, sinful [men], and purify your hearts, bi-psyhic [men]. Endure hard labor, and mourn and lament; let your laughter be changed into mourning, and your gladness into shame. Become lowly in front of the Master, and he will lift you up.

<sup>2</sup> This quotation, like a number of others in the New Testament, is not to be found in the Old Testament books. The theologians—failing to see that it is a poetical hyperbole, which Iakôbos quotes ironically—have argued much over its meaning. The revised version gives three distinct translations of it, each of which misses the point of the joke.

Brothers do not tattle<sup>1</sup> about one another. He who tattles about a brother, or judges his brother, tattles about the Law, and judges the Law. Now, if you judge the Law, you are not a doer of the Law, but a judge. One there is who is Lawgiver and Judge—he who is able to save and to destroy. But who are you who judge your fellow?

Come now! you who say, “To-day and to-morrow we will go into this or that city, and spend a year there, and carry on business, and gain profit”—you who have no certain knowledge about the morrow. For what is your life? Why, ’tis a vapor, for a little while appearing, and then disappearing. Instead, you should say,<sup>2</sup> “If the Master wills, we shall not only be alive but also we shall do this or that.” But now you are over-confident in your empty boasting. All such over-confidence is useless. Now, when one knows [what is] right, and does not do [it], to him it is sin.

Come now! you rich [men]; lament and wail loudly for your hardships which are at hand. Your riches<sup>1</sup> have rotted, and your garments have become moth-eaten. Your gold and your silver have grown rusty, and their rust shall be for a witness against you, and shall devour your bodies<sup>2</sup> like fire. You have hoarded treasures on the last days. See, the pay of the workmen who mowed your fields, which is withheld<sup>3</sup> by you, is crying out, and the supplicating cries of the reapers have come to the ears of the Master of Hosts. You have lived luxuriously on the earth, and have been sensual; you have nourished your hearts on a day of slaughter.<sup>1</sup> You have condemned, you have murdered the just [man];<sup>2</sup> he does not resist you.

Be far-purposed, then, brothers, until the presence<sup>3</sup> of the Master. See, the tiller of the soil waits for the precious fruit of the earth, being far-purposed over it until he gets the early and the late fruitage.<sup>4</sup> Do you be far-purposed also; render constant your hearts, because the presence of the Master is near. Brothers, do not utter complaints against one another, that you may not be judged. See, the Judge is standing before the doors! My brothers, take as an example of suffering<sup>5</sup> and far-purpose the

Seers who spoke in the Name of the Master. See, we immortalize the patient-waiting ones; you have heard of Job's patient-waiting, and you saw the Master's Perfecting-period,<sup>1</sup> because very deeply pitying is the Master, and merciful.

Now, above all things, my brothers, do not confirm by an oath, neither by the Sky, nor by the Earth, nor by any other oath; but let yours be the "Yes, yes," and the "No, no"; so that you may not fall under judgment.

Is any one among you suffering? Let him offer prayers. Is any one happy? Let him break into song. Is any one among you sick? Let him call to his aid the older [members] of the Society, and let them offer prayers over him, having oiled him with tree-oil<sup>2</sup> in the Name of the Master; and the entreaty of faith will save the worn-out

<sup>1</sup> Gr. telos, the consummating period, the end; initiation in the Mysteries. The story of Job is an allegory of the trials of a neophyte (Gr. neophutos, "newly planted") or candidate for initiation.

[man], and the Master will raise him up; and if he has committed sins, it will be forgiven him. Confess to one another your sins, and offer prayers over one another, so that you may be healed. The beseeching of a just [man] has much power when it energizes.<sup>1</sup> Hêlias<sup>2</sup> was a man having the same feelings as ourselves, and he, in a prayer, prayed for it not to rain; and it did not rain on the earth for three years and six months. And he prayed again, and the sky gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit.<sup>3</sup>

My brothers, if any one among you wanders from the Truth, and any one guides him back, let him know that he who guides back a sinner out of his wandering path will save a psychic-nature<sup>4</sup> from death and will cover a multitude of sins.

A LETTER OF IOUDAS.<sup>1</sup>

IOUDAS, a slave of Anointed Iêsous, and brother of Iakôbos,<sup>2</sup> to the probationers<sup>3</sup> beloved by [The] God [and] Father and kept by Anointed Iêsous. May compassion and peace and love be fulfilled to you.

Loved ones, making all haste to write to you concerning the common salvation, I <sup>1</sup> Supposed to have been written by Ioudas the brother of Iakôbos "the Just"; he was also called Thaddaios or Lebbaïos. Six or seven "Judases" are mentioned in the New Testament besides "Judas the accuser," who betrayed his Master. The latter, in the mystical Evangel according to Iôannês, represents the evil (sexual) aspect of the Fire; while the good Ioudas is the pupil whose questioning brings out the Master's teaching concerning the Paraklêtos.

<sup>3</sup> Literally, "called," "invited." The probationers, after being accepted, were termed "chosen" or "culled out"; and having been tested, they were recognized as trustworthy. Thus in the Apocalypse (xvii. 14) are mentioned the "called (klêtoi), and chosen (eklektoi), and trustworthy (pistoi)."

feel it an urgent duty<sup>1</sup> that I should write you calling on you to contend strenuously for the Faith which was once for all handed down to the Purified ones. For there have slipped in stealthily into this judgment<sup>2</sup> certain [men], the proscribed of old times,<sup>3</sup> sacrilegious, changing The God's favor into wantonness, and disowning the only Overlord<sup>4</sup> and our Master Anointed Iêsous. Now, I wish to remind you—[though] you know this<sup>5</sup> once for all—that the Master, having saved a people out of the land of Egypt, next<sup>6</sup> destroyed those who did not

<sup>2</sup> Gr. krima, that which requires discrimination, or calls for consideration; a decision, distinction; sentence, condemnation; accusation, charge. Here it refers to the separating of the unworthy probationers from the worthy ones.

<sup>3</sup> That is, those who had been expelled from the Society in past incarnations. The writer uses a legal term: the Roman practice was to post up in public a list of the names of persons sentenced, who were therefore called "the proscribed."

put faith in [him];<sup>1</sup> and the Messengers who did not keep their First-principle,<sup>2</sup> but abandoned their own dwelling, he has kept in perpetual fetters, under nether-world gloom,<sup>3</sup> till [the] judgment of a great day;<sup>4</sup> even as [the inhabitants of] Sodom and Gomorra,<sup>5</sup> and the cities near them, having, in the same way as these [men], become utterly lascivious and having gone away after strange flesh, are held out as an example, undergoing a penalty of On-going Fire. Still, similarly these [men], also, in their dreamings<sup>6</sup> contaminate the flesh, and disregard Masterships, and revile Radiances. But Michaël the Arch-messenger, when disputing with the Accuser he argued

<sup>3</sup> Gr. zophos, thick darkness; the night side of the world, the land of gloom, the nether-world. The souls that fell into generation are in the bondage of matter, being as it were, imprisoned psychically.

<sup>4</sup> At the close of each "great day," or cycle, those souls that have become pure are liberated.

about the body of Môsês, did not venture to assail him with a reviling-judgment, but said, "May the Master rebuke you."<sup>1</sup> Now, these [men] revile all things<sup>2</sup> that they do not understand, and all things that they do perceive psychically—as [do also] the irrational animals<sup>3</sup>—in these things they are corrupted. Alas for them! for they travelled the path of Kain,<sup>4</sup> and rushed headlong in the wandering way of Balaam after pay,<sup>5</sup> and were ruined in the rebellion of Korè.<sup>6</sup>

<sup>3</sup> The psychic faculties pertain to the animal-soul, and are possessed by the animals as well as by man. Psychic perception, unless devoted solely to spiritual purposes, degrades the inner nature and brings into play the base passions.

<sup>4</sup> That is, "the proscribed" had in a past incarnation violated the vow of celibacy—Kain being a type of the fall into physical generation.

These [men] are blemishes<sup>1</sup> in your love-feasts,<sup>2</sup> when feasting with you, fearlessly shepherding themselves;<sup>3</sup> rainless<sup>4</sup> clouds, borne along by winds; unfruitful autumnal trees, twice dead,<sup>5</sup> uprooted; wild waves of the sea, foaming out their own disgraces; wandering stars, for whom the nether-world gloom has been kept throughout the On-going. Now, to these [men] also Enoch, the seventh from Adam, spoke as a Seer, saying:

"Behold, [the] Master came with his countless Purified ones, to execute judg-

<sup>1</sup> Literally, "rocks," or "reefs"; but probably "stains" or "spots" was intended. Apparently the original read, "a stain" (spilos), which the copyist changed to the plural, and, mistaking the word for spilas (a rock), wrote spilades instead of spiloi.

<sup>2</sup> Before or after the rite of the "Master's supper" was celebrated that of the "feast of love," and on the breaking up of the assembly the "brothers and sisters" expressed their good-will by exchanging the "kiss of peace."

<sup>3</sup> Having rejected Iêsous, the "good Shepherd"; or possibly, "shepherding themselves [and not the flock]."

ment upon all, and to convict all the sacrilegious ones of their works of sacrilege which they sacrilegiously did, and of all the hard words which sacrilegious sinners have spoken about him."<sup>1</sup>

These [men] are murmurers, fault-finders, walking according to their own desires—and their mouth speaks turgid [phrases]—praising people for the sake of advantage.

But do you, loved ones, remember the words which were proclaimed by the delegates<sup>2</sup> of our Master Anointed Iêsous, that they said to you:

"In [the] last time there will be scoffers, walking according to their own sacrilegious desires."<sup>3</sup>

These [men] are the separatists, psychics, not having [the] Breath. But you, loved ones, rebuilding yourselves on your most consecrated Faith, offering prayers in [the] Purifying Breath, keep yourselves in the love of [The] God, expecting the compassion of our Master Anointed Iêsous throughout On-going Life. And treat some [of the scoffers] with contempt<sup>1</sup> when they argue with you; but others save with fear,<sup>2</sup> snatching them out of the Fire, hating even the garment<sup>3</sup> spotted by the flesh.

<sup>1</sup> The Book of Enoch, from which the above quotation is taken, was lost for many centuries, but a copy of it was discovered in Abyssinia; yet although it is thus endorsed by Ioudas, it has never been received as canonical.

Now, to him who is able to guard you from stumbling and by ecstasy<sup>4</sup> to place you blameless in front of his Radiance, to [the] only God, our Saviour through Anointed Iêsous, [be] Radiance and greatness, strength and liberty,<sup>5</sup> both now and throughout all the On-goings. Amên!

<sup>5</sup> Gr. exousia, permission (to do a thing), license; jurisdiction, authority.

THE SERVICE OF RIGHT-CONDUCT.<sup>1</sup>

[Luke x. 25-37.]

AND behold, a certain Lawyer<sup>2</sup> rose up, trying him, and saying:

"Teacher, what shall I do that I may inherit On-going Life?"

And he said to him:

"What is written in the Law? How do you read [it]?"

And he, answering, said:

"You should love The God, your Master, from your whole heart, and from your whole psychic-nature, and from your

<sup>1</sup> The Old Testament (palala diathêkê, "old compact"), or Mosaic Law, which imposed ritualistic observances relating to psychic forces that affect the material life, was called by Paulos "the service of Death" and "the service of over-distinction" (katakrisis); but the New Testament ("compact"), or code of Iêsous, which enforces practical ethics based upon the great spiritual law of Compassion, he calls "the service of right-conduct." (II. Cor. iii. 6-9.)

whole strength, and from your whole mind;<sup>1</sup> and [you should love] your neighbor as yourself.'"<sup>2</sup>

And he said to him:

"You have answered aright. Do this, and you shall have Life."

Now, wishing to justify himself, he said to Iêsous:

"And who is my 'neighbor'?"

Now, Iêsous, replying, said:

"A certain man was going down from Hierousalêm to Hiericho, and he fell among bandits,<sup>3</sup> who not only stripped him but also inflicted blows on [him], and went away, leaving [him] half-dead. Now, according to chance, a certain priest was going down by that path, and seeing him, he went along on the opposite side [of the path]. And in like manner also a Levite<sup>4</sup> coming to be near the place, went and saw [him], and

went along on the opposite side. Now, a certain Samareitan,<sup>1</sup> as he was traveling, went near him, and seeing him he was stirred to pity; and approaching, he bound up his wounds, pouring on oil and wine, and having put him on his own beast, brought him to an inn, and took care of him. And on the morrow, taking out two denarii<sup>2</sup> he gave [them] to the inn-keeper, and said, 'Take care of him, and whatever you may spend in addition, I—on my return—will pay you.' Which of these three, think you, became a 'neighbor' of the one who fell among the bandits?"

And he said:

"The one who showed compassion towards him."

And Iêsous said to him:

"Go your way, and do you show [it] in like manner."

<sup>2</sup> The Roman denarius was a silver coin of the value of fifteen to seventeen cents, according to coinage.

VOICE OF THE SILENCE. By H. P. BLAVATSKY. Cloth, 50 cents ; leather, 75 cents.

The "Voice of the Silence" is derived from the "Book of the Golden Precepts," one of the works put into the hands of mystic students in the East.

To the diligent searcher this book opens up a view of the future awaiting the soul, and shows the successive stages which the soul must pass through on its way to enlightenment and final perfection.

THE BHAGAVAD-GITA. By WILLIAM Q. JUDGE.

Pocket size, flexible leather, side stamps, gilt edges, 75 cts.

In the "Bhagavad-Gita" or "The Book of Devotion" is represented the conversation between the Personal Self and the Divine Consciousness in Man. In it is set forth the Path of Duty, the right performance of Action, and final Union with the Divine. The "Bhagavad-Gita" has been studied by the philosophers of all ages.

OCEAN OF THEOSOPHY. By WILLIAM Q. JUDGE. With portrait of the author. 154 pages, paper, 35 cents ; cloth, side stamp, gilt top, 50 cents.

Written in an easy and popular style, this book gives a clear and systematic exposition of Theosophy, unequalled by any other introductory work. In a small compass it conveys a surprising amount of curious and valuable information.

It is well suited for propaganda work.

CULTURE OF CONCENTRATION, OF OCCULT POWERS AND THEIR ACQUIREMENT. By WILLIAM
Q. JUDGE. 10 cents.

A valuable treatise.

LIGHT ON THE PATH. By M. C. Cloth, 50 cents ; flexible leather, gilt side stamp, round corners, red edges, 75 cents.

This beautiful classic contains the original notes of the author as well as the comments from "Lucifer," and the instructive essay on "Karma" that appeared in the original edition but which has been omitted from some of the later ones.

THE IDYLL OF THE WHITE LOTUS, by MABEL COLLINS. Cloth, $1.00.

A truly inspiring book, containing a story which has been told in all ages and among every people. It is the tragedy of the Soul. Attracted by Desire, it stoops to sin ; brought to itself by suffering, it turns for help to the redeeming Spirit within, and in the final sacrifice achieves its apotheosis and sheds a blessing on mankind.

LETTERS THAT HAVE HELPED ME. By JASPER NIEMAND. Light cloth, with side stamp, 50 cents.

"Every statement in them is a statement of law. They point to causes of which life is an effect ; that life arising from the Spirit in Nature, and which we must understand as it is manifested within us before we can advance on the Path." A book of great value to the disciple.

MAGIC, WHITE AND BLACK, by FRANZ
HARTMANN, M. D. Cloth, gilt top, gold side stamp, $2.00.

A very popular book on this profoundly interesting subject. The well-known writer has treated it in a remarkably clear style, which accounts for the numerous editions which have been brought out, all of which have been quickly disposed of.

PARACELSUS, by FRANZ HARTMANN, M. D. $2.00.

An extract and translation from his rare and extensive works and from some unpublished manuscripts. This great Occultist was one of the advanced thinkers of his age, whom Virchow admitted to be the father of modern medicine. A fine edition.

REINCARNATION, (unabridged edition.) By E. D. WALKER. 350 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

A lucid explanation of the subject, as well as the conscientious mention of Western objections, with numerous quotations from Western poems and prose writings upon the teaching.

Much interesting and valuable information is given regarding Reincarnation among the Ancients, in the Bible, in early and present day Christianity, etc. Everybody interested in Religion should possess this book.

REINCARNATION IN THE NEW TESTAMENT. By JAMES M. PRYSE, paper, 35 cents; cloth, 60 cents.

This work presents the doctrine of Reincarnation as it was taught by Jesus and his disciples. In the light of this book, many of the "dark sayings" throughout the New Testament become lucid and full of meaning; one cannot fully understand the wonderful significance of many of these passages without a knowledge of Reincarnation as applied thereto.

THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT and other EXTRACTS FROM THE NEW TESTAMENT. By JAMES M.

PRYSE. 86 pages, wide margins, illustrated cover, paper, 35 cents; cloth, 60 cents.

A verbatim translation from the Greek, with notes on the Mystical or Arcane Sense.

Contains "The Sermon on the Mount," "The Coming of the Christos," "The True Path of Power," "A Letter of Iakobas," "A Letter of Ioudas," "The Service of Right Conduct."

This book is of special interest to students of Christian Mysticism and the Occultism of the Bible.

BROTHERHOOD, NATURE'S LAW. By BURCHAM HARDING. Cloth, 40 cents.

This is one of the best books on elementary Theosophy; it is written in a clear, and comprehensive style, and just the book for the beginner. Every one can find in it the basis for right conduct, which is convincing to the mind. At the end of each chapter is a series of questions, the answers to which are to be found in that chapter.

244 Lenox Avenue, New York.

COMMENTARY ON ST. MATTHEW. By SRI PARANANDA. $2.00.

AN EASTERN EXPOSITION OF ST. JOHN.
By SRI PARANANDA. $2.00.

These are two most remarkable books, being an interpretation of two of the Christian Gospels by the light of the spiritual experience of those who are known in India as Jivan-muktas, showing that these Gospels, when rightly understood, are in perfect harmony with the teachings of the Vedanta philosophy of India.

The author is a Tamil of high attainments and sound culture in the learning of both the East and West; for many years the representative of his race in the Legislative Council of Ceylon and now the Solicitor General of the Crown in that island.

OCCULT SCIENCE IN INDIA AND AMONG THE ANCIENTS, WITH AN ACCOUNT OF THEIR MYSTIC INITIATIONS AND THE HISTORY OF SPIRITISM. By LOUIS
JACOLLIOT. Cloth, $2.50.

An unbiassed account of the result of researches, pursued for many years, into the subject of occult science and the practices of the initiated. Being neither an advocate of these beliefs, nor the opposite, the author sets forth things as he saw them with his own eyes and records faithfully such explanations as were received by him. A valuable addition to every library.

YOGA, or Transformation, by William J. FLAGG.
$3.00.

A faithful representation of the various religious dogmas concerning the soul and its destiny, and embracing the Akkadian, Hindu, Taoist, Egyptian, Hebrew, Christian, Greek, Mohammedan, Japanese and other systems of MAGIC.

This book is an evidence of the great research and study of the author, setting forth as it does the methods adopted by the different religious systems in the attainment of "Yoga" or Union with the Divine. Transformation from the animal-man to the God-man.

244 Lenox Avenue, New York.

THE MEMORY OF PAST BIRTHS, by CHARLES JOHNSTON, M. R. A. S. Paper, 25 cents, Cloth, 50 cents.

In this charming work is explained the theory of rebirth and the operations of the mind in the act of memory, according to Eastern doctrines, with rules for exercising the same so as to recollect what lies back of the present consciousness.

This book enjoys a wide circulation.

KARMA: WISDOM AND WORKS, by CHARLES JOHNSTON, M. R. A. S. Paper, 35 cents.

A lucid and comprehensive exposition of one of the fundamental teachings of Theosophy, based upon the author's translation from the original Sanskrit.

The writings of this author are well known for the brilliant and scholarly manner in which they are treated.

THE ALTAR IN THE WILDERNESS, by ETHELBERT JOHNSON. Cloth, 50 cents.

This is an attempt to interpret man's seven spiritual ages, or seven well defined spiritual experiences, which every soul is obliged to undergo in the course of its higher evolution. The book is remarkable for the beautiful and easy manner in which this most difficult subject is treated. It is a most valuable little book and will be an ornament to every theosophical library.

THE MIND AND THE BRAIN. By PROF. ELMER GATES, Smithsonian Institute. Paper, 25 cents; cloth, 50 cts.

Presents in an easy style his investigations in the art of Mind building, (psychurgy). He demonstrates the arts of systematic, originative conscious mentation, and systematic subconscious mentation, and systematic, originative, cooperative mentation, which three processes constitute the art of using the mind systematically in original thinking. . . . "Your mind is to you the most momentous and important fact in the universe; for without your mind, what would be the universe and its possibilities to you? If you can get more mind or a better regulated mind, you will fundamentally and directly promote all your undertakings."

NATURE'S ALLEGORIES. By MAUDE DUNKLEY.

Gilt top. Cloth, 75 cents.

A beautiful book, especially for young people, expressive of the idea of intelligence in plant life. It is filled with quaint conceits, beautiful conceptions, through which is breathed the spirit of love and peace.

THE PANORAMA OF SLEEP: Soul and

SYMBOL. By NINA PICTON. Illustrated Cloth, $1.00.

Sixteen symbolic dreams, experienced by the writer are recounted in beautiful language. The teaching is uplifting and inspiring and easily understood. Artistic illustrations add to the value of the book.
