DIANETICS: THE ORIGINAL THESIS
by L. Ron Hubbard

Written in 1948 this book was published first two years before the appearance of Dianetics, The Modern Science of Mental Health. It is an excellent beginning text for anyone starting in Scientology. It's value is that of any text that establishes the beginnings of something important to one. This gives you in a "nutshell" what it is all about from the viewpoint of the very early days.

At that time, LRH had already rehabilitated a large number of persons with the scientific and precise application of basic principles which he had discovered in his long studies of the human spirit coping with a too difficult world.

Dr. Hubbard had ranged far and wide into all early approaches to this problem and had sorted out just those that had some pertinence discarding those which were of no value in actual test as Man had invented and worked on this line.

In this work are found the exposition of these primary truths, and their application on cases, whose history is also included. The value of the ORIGINAL THESIS, in its clear and compelling formulation is beyond estimation.

This is an easy to grasp introduction to the mighty structure of present day Scientology. The "old timer" professional will enjoy tracing back Modern Technology and though may have bought and given away many copies, no doubt, we hope will again renew acquaintance with this recent printing.

THE ORIGINAL THESIS

The first axiom is:
SURVIVE:
This can be seen to be the lowest common denominator of the finite universe. It embraces all forms of energy. It further delineates the purpose of that energy so far as it is now viewable by us in the "knowable" field. The activity of the finite universe can easily be seen to obey this axiom as though it were a command. All works and energies can be considered to be motivated by it. The various kingdoms have this as their lowest common denominator, for animals, vegetables and minerals are all striving for survival. We do not know to what end we are surviving, and in our field of the "knowable" and in our choice of only the workable axioms, we do not know and have no immediate reason to ask why.
All forms of energy are then surviving to some unknown end, for some unknown purpose. We need only to know that they are surviving and that, as units or species, they must survive.
By derivation from the first workable axiom, we come into possession of the second. In obedience to the command "survive", life took on the form of a cell which , joining with other cells, formed a colony. The cell, by procreating, expanded the colony. The colony, by procreation, formed other colonies. Colonies of different types united and necessity, mutation and natural selection brought about specializing which increased the complexity of the colonies until they became an aggregation. The problems of the colonial aggregation were those of food, protection and procreation. In various ways a colonial aggregation of cells became a standardized unity and any advanced colonial aggregation came into possession by necessity, mutation and natural selection of a central control system.
The purpose of the colonial aggregation was to survive. To do this it had to have food, means of defense, protection and means of procreation. The control center which had developed had as its primary command, Survive! Its prime purpose was the food, defense, protection and means of procreation.
Thus can be stated the second workable axiom:
