ABOUT THE COVER The Greek philosopher and mathematician Pythagoras believed that the universe, including man's soul, was fundamentally mathematical in nature and could be expressed in formulas. He also taught that the soul was immortal and the cycle of rebirth would only cease with the living of a wholly exemplary life. Read another fascinating chapter in man's spiritual history starting on page 4.

Pythagoras

NUMERO

& the T

LOGY

ttern of the Cosmos

"The world is built on the power of numbers," is perhaps the most remembered thing the Greek philosopher Pythagoras said. And although this one concept was the key to his philosophy of existence, Pythagoras made many other discoveries which changed the course of thought on planet Earth.

For example, Pythagoras said that reality was ordered, that the universe was a living sphere, and at the center of the universe was Earth, itself a sphere, revolving, like the planets, from west to east.

He explained that more or less of the moon was visible to us depending on the degree to which that half of the moon facing the sun was turned toward the Earth. Eclipses of the moon, he said, were caused by the Earth, or some other body, moving between the moon and the sun. He also said that man was immortal, that man had lived many other lives on this planet, and would go on to live many more. And all this and much, much more, Pythagoras said in the 5th century B.C.

But who was this man Pythagoras? And how did he make these discoveries? Born on Samos, a Greek island in the Aegean Sea, in the mid-5th century B.C., Pythagoras was remembered as a studious youth who traveled for 30 years throughout Egypt, Arabia, Syria, Phoenicia, Chaldea, India and Gaul — learning from the wise men of those civilizations.

Settling finally when he was more than 50 years old in Crotona, a Greek city in southern Italy, Pythagoras set up a school and began to teach. And his imposing presence, his wide sphere of learning, and his willingness to accept women also into his school, soon brought him several hundred students.

THE PYTHAGOREANS

Members of this school bound themselves by a vow of loyalty, both to the Master and to themselves. They shared their possessions, they did not eat meat and drank for the most part only water. Forbidden to kill any animal that did not injure man, or to destroy a cultivated tree, they dressed simply, they behaved modestly. And at the close of day, Pythagoras and each of his students asked themselves what wrongs they had committed, what duties they had neglected, and what good they had done.

The four subjects Pythagoras taught were geometry, arithmetic, astronomy and music. Geometry, he said, raised the student to a new platform from which he might view more widely the secret structure of the world. From geometry the student passed to arithmetic, then to astronomy and finally music. And how did music figure into the pattern of the harmonious universe Pythagoras called the cosmos?

The story goes that one day, as Pythagoras passed a blacksmith's shop, his ear was attracted by the apparently regular musical intervals of the sounds that came from the anvil. Finding that the hammers were of different weights, he concluded that tones depended upon numerical ratios. From this he concluded that every musical interval could be mathematically calculated and expressed.

And from there Pythagoras moved into astronomy, pointing out that all bodies moving in space produce sounds, and the pitch of the sound depends upon the size and speed of the body. Thus each planet in its orbit about the Earth, argued Pythagoras, made a sound proportioned to size and speed, and the sound it made rose with its distance from the Earth. These notes constituted a harmony or what he termed the "music of the spheres," which, he argued, we never hear because we hear it all the time.

From there Pythagoras proceeded to philosophy, and in fact the very word philosophy is attributed to him, for he described his own pursuit of understanding as philosophia — the love of wisdom.

Having discovered numerically regular relations and sequences in music, and having then assumed these same relationships in planets, Pythagoras argued that the only basic and lasting aspects of anything were the numerical relationships of its parts. Perhaps even health was a proper mathematical relationship, or proportion, in the parts or elements of the body. Perhaps even the soul was a number, he suggested.

THE TRANSMIGRATION OF THE SOUL

The soul, he went on to say, was divided into three parts: feeling, intuition and reason. Feeling was centered in the heart, intuition and reason in the brain. Feeling and reason belonged to animals as well as men, but reason alone belonged to man and was immortal. After death, he said, the soul returned to Earth and entered a new body in a chain of what is called "transmigration" as the soul moved on at the end of each life to another body, a chain that only ended when the being lived a completely virtuous life.

Pythagoras told his followers stories of his past lives and how he had been a courtesan, a famous physician, and a soldier at the siege of Troy. He is said to have recognized at an ancient temple, the armor he had worn in a previous life. He once ran to the rescue of a beaten dog, saying that he distinguished in its cries the voice of a dead friend.

The purpose of life was to gain release from reincarnation through virtue, and virtue was achieved through the harmony of the sound within itself and with God. He believed that this harmony could be induced through music, and he used the vibrations of music to cure illness. More often, he said, harmony comes to the soul through wisdom, a quiet understanding of underlying truths, themselves founded in numerical relationships one to the other.

And so, the entire universe was composed of mathematical patterns, and all things could be expressed in numbers which corresponded to universal vibrations. Therefore, all things, including names, words, birth dates and birthplaces, were able to be reduced to numbers in order to determine personalities, destinies and fortunes of individuals.

His influence was lasting, for his followers went on for three centuries, scattered throughout Greece and giving birth to great scientists and statesmen. And looking back on all he said and caused, Pythagoras is seen as the founder of both science and philosophy as it is known in Europe today.

THE FATHER OF NUMEROLOGY

Because he reasoned that the entire universe could be expressed numerically, Pythagoras has been called the father of numerology — the study of the mystical relationship of numbers. He pointed out that the numbers 1 through 4 totaled together equal the sum of 10 and that all numbers could be reduced to single digits by addition — for example, 12 = 1 + 2 = 3. And down the ages since Pythagoras, the fascination with numbers, the attempt to make sense of the cosmos, has continued across many cultures and beliefs.

In later Greek times the number 888 came to represent the "Higher Mind." The Greek variation of "Jesus," "Iesous" also equaled 888. The number 666 represented the "Mortal Mind" but by the time of the New Testament 666 had come to mean the number of "the Beast."

In early Hebrew history the interpretation of numbers was considered highly important. Letters of the Hebrew alphabet were based on numbers, and this relationship was related to cosmic forces. Both the Greeks and Hebrews held the number 10 to be the perfect number. Pythagoras had considered that the number 10 included all arithmetic and was, like God, tireless.

In Hebrew, consonants were used as number signs. Providing them with vowels meant they could often be read as words, and that words could be read as numbers. This practice allowed special reading of the Hebrew Bible to find secret or hidden meanings in the text.

THE CHART OF CHARACTERISTICS OF NUMBERS

Today the practice of numerology often attempts to discover secret meanings of occurrences or to forecast the future, often used in conjunction with astrology and the interpretation of dreams. Numerologists use the Chart of Characteristics of Numbers, or variations of this chart, to interpret current circumstances, predict the future and determine which actions

CHART OF THE CHARACTERISTICS OF NUMBERS

1	unity, creation, independence
2	duality, emergence
3	power, generative force
4	solidity, dullness
5	sensuality, pleasure
6	perfection, harmony, balance
7	mysticism, psychic, magic
8	material, success, justice
9	spiritual, mental achievement

should be taken in certain situations.

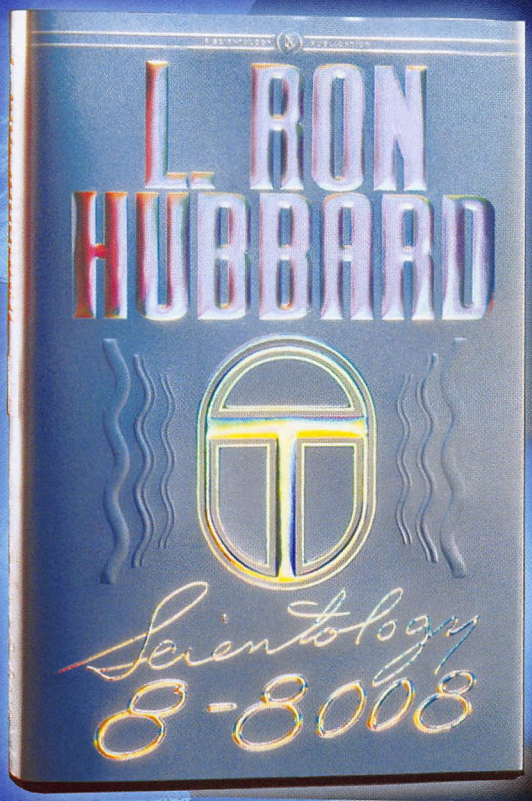

Often numbers are associated with "luck" or taboos, as for instance the number 13 which is considered unlucky in most Western societies. Numerology is also associated with magic, at which times it is associated with Pythagoras who first said that numbers influence the very essence of things and thus the number is the mediator between the divine and the earthly. The numbers 11, 22 and 33 were said to be master numbers and therefore of greater power. Those whose names correspond to these numbers are said to be highly developed spiritually.

Thus, what began as a great philosopher's answers to the mysteries of life, evolved into a complex system of superstition, magic and mathematics — all to explain what has come to pass, and why, and what the future holds.

Today, as LRH explained, "Somebody says, 'I feel nervous today.' It's an accepted fact. There's nothing causing this nervousness. Hence you get people going off into numerology. You know, like 'On the 17th of the month I feel nervous.' And it has something to do with the number 17, and 1 and 7 added together make 8. Eight is money, so therefore, it must be money. But that person is still trying to find a reason for his nervousness."

And so while various systems of numerology have been used throughout time in man's attempt to control his destiny, none have provided the right combinations, the answers that we find in L. Ron Hubbard's Axioms and all that he left for us to follow in Scientology. The only route is through the Solo Auditor Course and the Advanced levels of Scientology at your Advanced Organization.

About this route LRH said, "it couldn't have been done if Pythagoras hadn't been thinking and talking . . . we'd never have gotten there at all." But it is done, and all you have to do now is arrive at your AO and walk the path LRH left for you to achieve your destiny.

The OT® knowledge man has searched for down the ages is contained in this book

Throughout time, man has attempted to learn the structure of the universe and his own immortality.

Many of the answers are in the first book on Operating Thetan — Scientology 8–8008. Here LRH lays out, in sharp focus, the profound truths leading directly to the highest levels of beingness and ability. Delivered in rapid-fire succession, here are the laws of life, stripped from the very fabric of the universe.

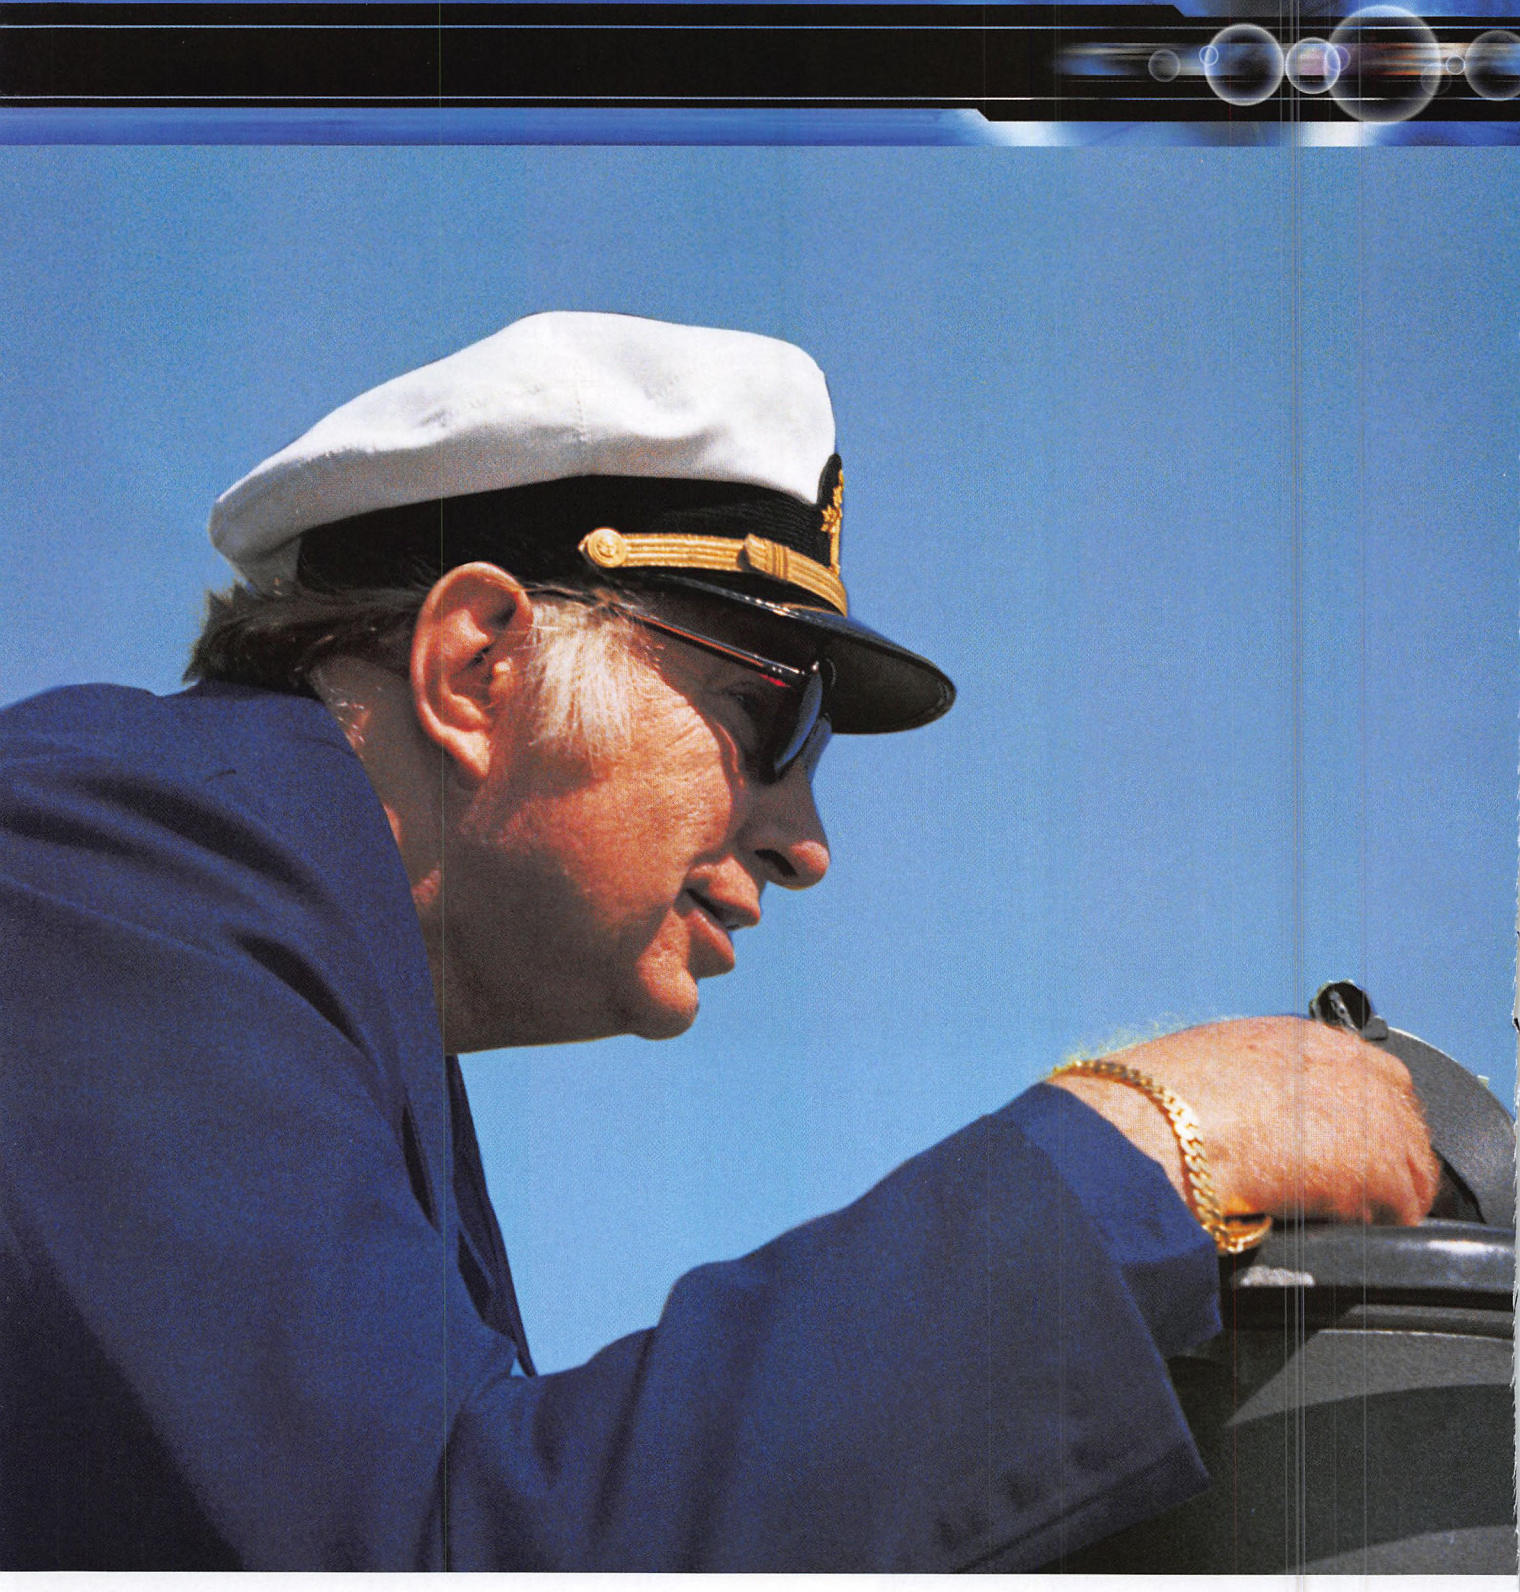

"Scientology 8–8008 is not just another number, but serves to fix into the mind of the individual, a route by which he can rehabilitate himself, his abilities, his ethics and his goals." LRH

The attainment of infinity by the reduction of the apparent infinity of the MEST universe to zero and the increase of the apparent zero of one's own universe to infinity.

BY L. RON HUBBARD

MOVING from Homo sapiens to OT

You will say, "Look, no intelligent civilization could witness such a thing as this going on." Don't kid yourselves. It's not an intelligent civilization. We're trying to make one out of it and you've got a long way to go.

Man has been playing this beautiful tune of "All is best in this best of all possible worlds," and with rape and murder and arson and a terrific thirst of havingness all up and down the alleys and byroads and trying to call those alleys "boulevards." He's just barely out of the trees.

Now, when it comes to the humanities, there have been no humanities. Don't make a confusion of that. There haven't been any. We are doing a pioneering job in that direction which is very far from done to any great distance. But we have won techniques which have a workability and if adhered to and if practiced well can do the job. Because you can make something more than Homo sapiens and in my opinion, it's about time.

Automaticity ties in a little bit into what I've just been saying because automaticity is the gradient scale of "It's all being done" or "It must be done for me." This state of mind — this is an aspect of experience — and this state of mind is something which is going to appall you in a preclear.

Automaticity is something which has only vaguely been added into human experience and yet it is right there to be added into human experience. The fellow who says, "I have to do it all myself," is at an aberrated point on this scale but he's not nearly as bad off as the people there who are below the point "It all has to be done for me."

Automaticity could be said to be the gradient scale of action stemming from oneself down to having everything done for oneself. The dead man is at the very bottom of the scale. The dead man can't even embalm himself. He has to have other people do that and bury him.

Now, you get upscale just a little bit, you look over automaticity and you will find it in the creation of illusion. People start creating illusions and instead of creating the illusion, they put it on an automatic circuit. And Homo sapiens is very good at rigging up these automatic circuits so that he won't have to pay attention or think about it. And that, by the way, is the entrance point into automaticity.

The person is perfectly powerful, sane, able, all-pervasive and capable of enormous goals up to the first moment that he says, "I'll rig it up so it's automatic." The first instant that he says that, he has said at the same time, "I am insufficiently powerful to concentrate on more than one point at once." You see, there is no slightest doubt about this fact: A man can think in twelve different spheres of action and dictate twelve separate and not even related actions simultaneously.

Man has gotten to a point of concentration — or the thetan who has come down here and the thetans out in the universe — are actually at a point of concentration which is appalling. They think they can only do one thing at a time. Some people have got this so bad they think they can only listen and look and so on.

Well, of course, a fellow couldn't run a universe of his own without introducing some factor of automaticity. He starts a planet going around and he says, "This planet hereinafter shall go around. Here it goes." Or he builds a wood and he said, "Now this wood is now inhabited by gophers and rabbits and people from Fairhope, Alabama so that the squirrels will have something to eat." And then he just walks off, more or less, and leaves it with a confidence that it will continue to run.

Well, that is entering into the first stages of automaticity and only becomes bad when he starts to play this game, and this game is one that spins in very quick: he comes back the next day and he starts pretending for his own interest and enthusiasm, "Isn't this a nice wood? I wonder who made it." He feels that he has to do this. The second that he starts splitting up and saying to himself, "I didn't do it," he's got a piece of woods for randomity. And all you have to do to produce randomity is to fail to take the responsibility for something. If you'll just refuse to take the responsibility for having done something or just deny having done something, you're going to get randomity. And the end of that curve is lots of randomity; the end of that track after a long time — it can get pretty low. It can get down to politicians and squirrels. That's pretty, pretty bad off.

Automaticity is a principle with which randomity is produced, but if automaticity comes up to such a point as to be uncontrollable, an individual finds himself extremely perplexed after a while because he's set up so many circuits he doesn't know who is he anymore. Well, he is the fellow that can make the automaticity increase and decrease in those images.

"Yes," you say, "well, I can do without a can opener. I can sort of bite them open with my teeth."

"What the hell are you doing with a tin can?"

You say, "Well, you have a tin can so you'll be able to eat."

You say, "What the dickens are you doing eating?"

And a fellow says, "Well, you got to keep the body going."

"What are you doing with a body, fellow?"

"Well, I couldn't get along without a body! I tried it the other day, this Theta Clearing and stuff, and I didn't have enough force in order to push things around or do anything. I just didn't."

You say, "What are you doing without force, fellow?" And he says, "Why, I don't know. That's right. I don't know."

How the dickens did he get into such a state that he can't produce a kilowatt? I mean, all you're asking the fellow is to produce one lousy, stinking, little kilowatt of energy and direct it. That's all you're asking of him. And can he do it? No.

You say, "Well, all right, how about pulling the electric light line down there and there's only 110 volts on it — and shorting it with a wire so it will crackle and go spit?"

"Oh, no." No, he doesn't want anything to do with that. Why doesn't he want something to do with it? Well, automaticity a long time ago said, "It's better to have something else produce force for me than me to produce the force because it's more fun that way." It's not more fun that way but it's a better operational control that way for somebody else.

Homo sapiens hardly has a chance. He's glued down to a gravity field which is very heavy and he can't get up to speed. The fastest-acting fellow you ever knew is operating at maybe a hundredth or even a thousandth of what would be considered a normal speed in space. It's real slow. I mean, Homo sapiens reminds you of the fellow — the diver walking in the bottom of the sea slow motion against the water. It's just almost agony to look at him. You wonder, "my God" — he's walking down the street — you see some guy, you know, one of these go-getters walking down the street and evidently his feet are going chop-chop-chop-chop-chop. No, they're not.

You say, "After he's picked that foot up, is he ever going to set it down again?" You know? You just watch this slow, agonizing — this fellow thinks he's walking, he thinks he's moving in some direction or other. And you watch him pick that foot up and you watch the foot go through and you hear the joints creak and so forth. And it gets over to the midpoint of the stride and then it goes down again, slowly, slowly. And about that time he shifts the weight of his body, and he gets the other foot starting to come up. You say, "Oh, Christ! How is anybody ever going to get there?" But it's like all the pavements are made out of glue.

Automaticity got to them. They're running slow and it is a speed level which is very dangerous. The fastest that Homo sapiens moves is a speed level below the point of high danger. You just can't move that slow and live. And Homo sapiens doesn't live. Three score and ten. That's like a snap of your fingers in the length of eternity. It's not even that. Let's see, I guess it would be an infinitesimally small instant or an infinitesimally small part of the length of time necessary to snap one's fingers. Yes.

Automaticity — how do you recognize it, what do you do about it, and how does it apply to processing?

Homo sapiens, your preclear, he's running slow. A lot of people say, "Well, all right, I'm out of the body. I stay out there stably. What do I do now?" Well, it's something like taking a quarter horse out there and you finally got this quarter horse so that he can lounge over to the other side of the stall, and say, "Now we have fully rehabilitated this quarter horse, let's go and find something else to do." Yeah, he can cross his legs and lounge over against the other side of the stall so you think he's fully fast enough and active enough to be a quarter horse.

When you get him up to the highest point that you possibly think that anybody could get up to in terms of speed, thought, ability, ability to move, reaction time and ability to create energy, realize that you are just about at that point looking at the lowest, safest level he could be at if nothing else ever happened to him to shake him up. You're scraping bottom then. Now let's get him up to speed from there. Just take the uttermost super limit that you can think of in terms of speed and action and consider that as below what is a safe margin, operating margin. And the way you'd handle this is to knock out all the automaticity.

Now, you have in that same strata the communication of knowledge. You start in at some low strata like Earth, or something like this, somebody might have a little more experience along in these various lines. You're trying to dig out of something, get back through.

An automaticity setup or a functional setup which heightens self-determinism is not only allowable but desirable because you can heighten it at a greater speed. But an automaticity which is entered in to depress self-determinism or demonstrate a disability becomes highly aberrative and will wind up with its dwindling spiral into something like the MEST universe.

It is true that Homo sapiens has an interdependency which must be served so long as he continues to be Homo sapiens and that he is just as capable of digging himself out as Homo sapiens as he can buy a breathing space from the terrific, onerous necessity levels which have been thrust upon him throughout time.

I mean by that, we wouldn't have a ghost of a chance of digging ourselves out right now unless Homo sapiens actually had slugged up from the mud far enough to a point where he had a little leisure time.

We happen to be going through, temporarily, momentarily, only for an instant, a period when man has made himself relatively free by the use of a machine — a period which just succeeds after a period when he was terribly enslaved by a machine.

The reason you've got Scientology is, to a large degree, because it's right here that there's a breathing period on Earth. Just a little breathing period.

It isn't the destruction of civilization by an atomic bomb that worries anybody. It's, "Let's shut down the communication lines of knowledge." Here for a brief moment we have had them free and open and something could happen.

What are the elements of an OT Universe?

What ties a thetan to MEST? And how do you deal with the past postulates which tie you to the MEST universe?

When you listen to the famous Philadelphia Doctorate Course Lectures you'll find the answers to these questions, and much, much more. For here is the highest expression of the innate beingness and power of the thetan — discovered by Ron in the months of October and November of 1952 while he researched the very potentials of OT, and delivered in December 1952 along with the textbook for the series, Scientology 8-8008.

Today those 76 lectures are available on compact disc. A Premier Series of LRH lectures, complete in 4 CD cases and 8 modules, the series also includes reproductions of the original 54 LRH hand-drawn lecture charts in a bound supplement. This is essential knowledge for an OT and about OT.

entering the universe

From Homo sapiens to the universe of Operating Thetan is a quantum leap which depends entirely upon a person's ability to Solo audit — nothing else. With Golden Age of Tech Solo Auditor training and all arbitraries removed, the route from Clear to OT is simpler than it has ever been.

of OT at AOLA, Ron's OT Org for the Americas

LRH pointed out a "DIRECT relationship between your diligent attendance at study and your eventual state as a stable OT!" He said, "Your auditing skill is your passport out." And to ensure you made it all the way he divided Solo training into two courses — Solo Part I, where you learn all of the Solo Auditor skills you need, and Solo Part II, where you learn the exact application of those skills.

Solo Part I can be done at your local Class V organization, or at AOLA, whichever is more convenient for you. Solo Part II is done only at an AO, and in the Americas the AO you will go to is AOLA. A one-week course full time, you will complete 26 specific Solo C/Ses in a precise sequence and on a perfect gradient. Each C/S is done under the guidance of the Solo C/S and the Solo Course Supervisor until you have it perfectly. Each one brings real case gain and you begin to understand what your journey through the Solo levels is going to be like. When you graduate and receive your Solo wings, you're utterly certain of the tech, guaranteed — ready to take off smoothly into the universe of OT. And with all arbitraries removed from the route to OT, you'll fly through your Solo levels.

Like Daniel Leriche from Sun Valley, who told Advance! "I had stalled at Clear. One of my biggest wins is that I arrived here at AOLA! My first three days on Solo Part I were anxious but the AO Supervisors helped me incredibly. I was made to feel totally welcome and I knew from the start that I was there to go OT because every staff member I met told me so — Tone 40. I had word clearing when I needed it, the Supervisors were always there ensuring I was moving well. But things kept kicking in. I'd go to the MAA because something was blowing up in my life. I'd see the MAA, say what I had to say. I'd get a good acknowledgement then, 'You know, you need to go OT. Go back to course.' And I did.

"You do the E-Meter drills three times through and after the first time through it started becoming very real that I was going to OT. I just kept coming to course every day no matter what. I wouldn't leave unless I was VGIs. I didn't have my OT levels paid for, but I didn't worry about it. I wasn't there yet," Daniel told Advance!.

"When I got to Solo Part II, I was totally confident. I was comfortable, I knew what I was doing and by the time I finished, Solo auditing was effortless. It was time to pay for my next service, and the next day I had the money — I've done all my OT levels like that. An LRH Classic Lectures subscriber, listening to LRH lectures helped Daniel stay on track, moving on, no matter what.

"And on these priceless levels I've had so many wins and changes. My approach to life has totally changed — I am LIVING across the dynamics and I am way more cause.

"LRH says a Clear is a baby OT. That is the perfect

"When I got to Solo Part II, I was totally confident. I knew what I was doing and by the time I finished, Solo auditing was effortless. Here's my advice — come to AOLA and just do what they say!" — Daniel Leriche analogy to understand why a Clear is at risk. As a baby you are capable, but you are effect. You need someone to take you places, you need someone to feed you, etc. It's the same thing with a Clear. You have power, but you need to move things out of the way so you can use it and learn how to use it.

"Here's my advice — come to AOLA, and just do what they say. If they say 'Go right.' You go right. Don't try and figure it out or think about it, just do it. They are going to tell you what LRH said to do, and he says after Clear you do Solo. So what's the question? What's the Q and A?

"If you're Clear, it's Solo and then straight to OT. You have considerations? Clear the word if you need to and change them. Sure, that's easy for me to say just before I'm ready to start New OT V, but I said the same thing after Solo Part I and I haven't stopped saying it. I had big stops and barriers. Running a business, not enough money, people literally telling me other things were more important. But after I started Solo Part I, I knew I was in the right place. And I just kept going and I'm so glad I did!"

"I'M A GREAT SOLO AUDITOR!"

AVA WRIGHTSMAN, currently Solo auditing on OT III, talked to Advance! about her wins on Solo training at AOLA and the rapid progress she has made up The Bridge because she really knew the Solo tech down cold. "When I attested to Clear, I remember thinking, 'How am I ever going to go OT . . . I can't study.' I thought I needed to get the Student Booster Rundown, then Super Power." Ava's husband stepped in at that point, reminding her that all arbitraries on the route to OT had been removed. "He said 'just do the Grade Chart.' So I did," Ava said.

"I dived into Solo Part I and I just kept going — every day. And sure enough, I made it through.

"You learn all of the basics of Solo auditing on Solo Part I and you drill so you know each part cold. And when you get onto Solo Part II you fine-tune your ability to Solo audit. Every skill you drilled on Solo I is refined. Each step of Solo Part II is vital, each one is a perfect gradient to the next. And you do each step until you have it 100% — you don't go on to the next C/S until you have completed the one you're on with total certainty. Solo Part II is the perfect bridge between Solo I and auditing on the Advanced Courses. When you graduate you literally are ready to fly.

"OT Eligibility was so fast and so smooth. Two days after I started OT Eligibility I was on OT I and I flew through it. At the end I thought, 'I'm a GREAT Solo Auditor!' And I had really moved into what I saw as the realm of OT.

"I handled a major situation in my life on OT I, something that had been affecting all my dynamics. It was getting more and more out of control. I addressed it in session and 48 hours later the person involved came to me and originated a handling which completely resolved the scene and I knew I had created that effect.

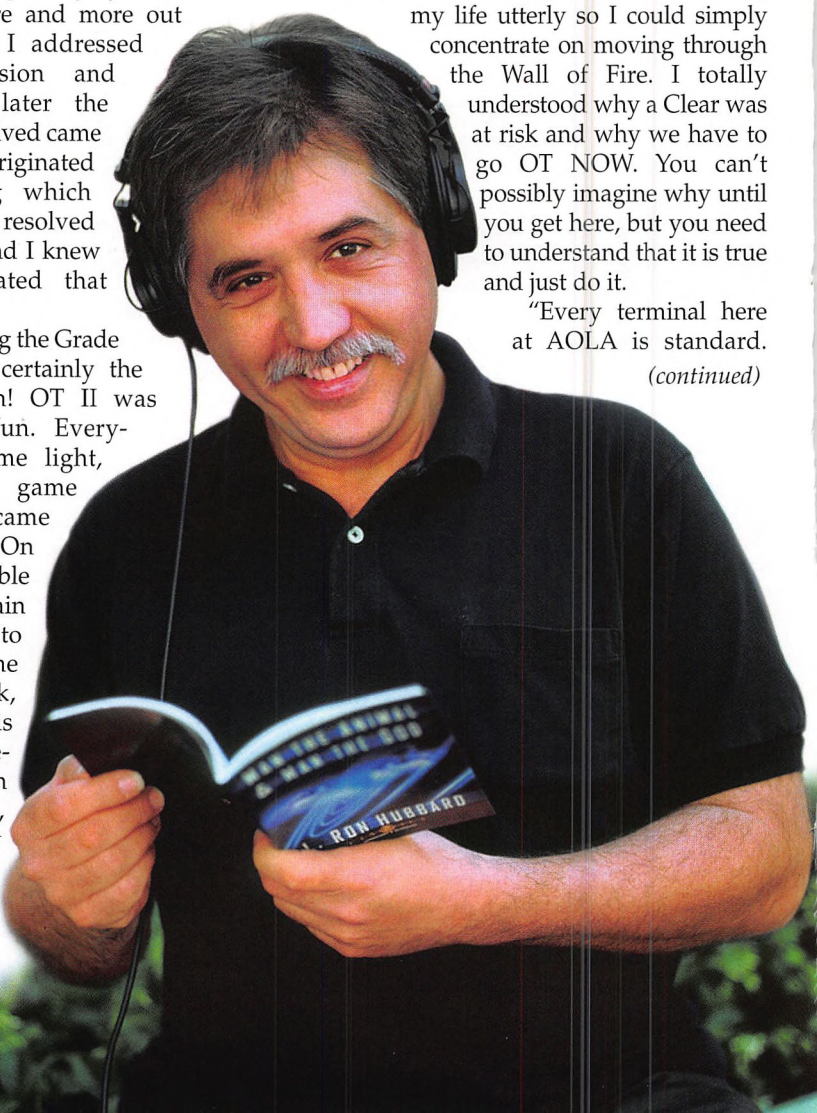

"Just doing the Grade Chart was certainly the right action! OT II was so much fun. Everything became light, became a game and I became unserious. On this incredible level you gain the ability to confront the whole track, and that is quite something. When you are done, life certainly looks very different and you have it in a new and much more real perspective.

"When I reached OT III, I was so happy to finally be there. I knew for a long time that this level would answer questions I had about myself and others. Why I would act this way or that way — it explained all that and much, much more. I gained an even greater appreciation of the Golden Age of Tech on this level. I USED all of what I learned on Solo I and II on this level and you want to be so certain of basics when you're at this point so that your attention is on what you are auditing. I was amazed at my skill, and very pleased. It was simple.

"Before OT III, I was very diligent about coming to AOLA every day, and working my life around that. But when I read the OT III materials, I streamlined my life utterly so I could simply concentrate on moving through the Wall of Fire. I totally understood why a Clear was at risk and why we have to go OT NOW. You can't possibly imagine why until you get here, but you need to understand that it is true and just do it.

"Every terminal here at AOLA is standard.

"Solo Part II is the perfect bridge between Solo I and auditing on the Advanced Courses. When you graduate, you are literally ready to fly. And everyone's intention here is so strong to get you to OT!" — Ava Wrightsman Everyone's intention is so strong to get you to OT. You receive the best possible service and the care is individual. You become part of a huge team, public and staff, who are here for one purpose — to go OT. It's such a great feeling to have so much power in one direction for a theta goal."

Ava's advice to Clears — "arrive to AOLA and then show up every day and move through the Grade Chart. Drop any connections that have counter or other intentionedness to going OT. Just cut the line. Listen to the AOLA crew, do what they say because they are telling you to do what LRH says. Just do these things and you will make it. There are no arbitraries and the wins literally are beyond your imaginings."

"IF I CAN DO IT, ANYONE CAN!"

Joni Superville attested to the state of Clear in 1989. A Golden Age of Tech Hubbard Professional Supervisor at the El Paso Mission, today Joni is on New OT V. Here's her story:

"After I went Clear I was C/Sed for Grades and I also decided to train. When the Arbitraries Cancelled issue came out I realized, 'THAT'S me!' I was told to come to AOLA, train as a Solo Auditor and go OT, and that's exactly what I did.

"I was on my Solo training and would spend weekends and any vacation time I had studying. Then something happened. I pulled in a pretty serious body situation and had to spend an entire year handling it. Once the body was recovered, I knew my only priority was to handle it spiritually and go OT. That was my personal wake-up call. You have to keep moving up The Bridge. There is still so much case to handle when you are Clear. Don't fool yourself. But huge wins and gains are ahead.

"Solo training at AOLA is amazing. Everything about it is so A to B. The Supervisors are very well trained. They get you through, and everyone in the course room is there for the same purpose. It's an incredible team. On Solo Part II, I had the most fun I've ever had. It was such an easy gradient. After all the Golden Age of Tech drills on Solo I, you are completely prepared. I went in session and thought, 'I was worried about THIS?' It's a lot easier than you think.

"Life started to go very smoothly on OT I. In fact I had my first OT phenomena on that level. It was a simple thing, but certainly the shape of things to come as I moved through the OT levels. I had a laptop I was using in my office and every time I would try to print from it, the computer would crash. I tried everything I knew and so did the rest of my staff. Finally the company said they would just send me a new one, but I didn't want a new one, I liked my laptop. After an OT I session, I came into my office and hit print. It printed. No problems. I kept printing and it has printed to this day.

"Exteriorization started happening on OT II. I was usually fixed in the body but in one session, I saw a theta bop. Then the next thing I knew, I could see the meter and it was very small. I realized I was out of the body at the top of the room. And the wins just kept coming. For instance, I'd had a back somatic for years. I couldn't stay in session continually for more than a couple of hours. In an OT III session the area really started to get very painful and then the somatic left and has never returned.

"On OT IV I woke up spiritually. It's like there was the film over my eyes that went away and I could see. I could think. It was a magnificent feeling. It was like night and day in terms of theta perception.

"OT V is a whole new realm. I leave a session and I have to check and see if my head is still there. My body feels brand-new. I have so much theta back. The wins are brilliant and they just keep happening.

"Listen to me now: Everyone has obstacles to going OT. There is no one person I've met that doesn't. But it doesn't matter. If I can do it, after a serious illness, two kids, a job, etc. — anyone can. Just keep the postulate there working toward it — no matter what. With arbitraries cancelled, there is really no excuse. Everything about AOLA is OT. It's a very swift current. Just get in comm with AOLA. They will help you work anything out and you will go OT."

All arbitraries have been removed on the route to OT. Move up NOW at AOLA. Call the AOLA Registrar at (323) 953-3300 or e-mail aola@earthlink.net

Since arbitraries removed, more OTs made than ever

If you're Clear and you live in the Americas, AOLA is your org. And as soon as you walk through the front door you'll know that everything at AOLA is focused on moving you and all Scientologists in the Americas to OT — rapidly.

This is where you'll perfect your Solo auditing skills and then move swiftly on up through the Wall of Fire to the brilliance of New OT V, Audited NOTs. And with arbitraries removed, more OTs are being made than ever in history.

That's why we say, "We will get you to OT — all you need to do is arrive."

OT WINS HIGHLIGHT WEEKLY GRADUATION

Attend just one of our weekly Graduations and you'll have more than a taste of what going OT really means to a being. Held every Friday night at 9:30 P.M., you, your friends and family are all welcome to attend. Conducted by AOLA's Captain, Stephanie Cary, you'll hear the latest OT news and the week's record number of Golden Age of Tech graduates from New OT I through New OT V.

Come early for a front seat and hear wins like those of ROB DEMOTTS when he graduated Solo Part II recently and received his Solo wings. Rob told the audience how the tech he learned on Solo II not only fully equipped him to move up the OT levels, but also how the benefits spread right across his dynamics, moving each one up the conditions substantially, coincident with commencing Solo training at AOLA.

JENNY GOOD

JENNY GOOD recently told the graduation audience about her miracle recovery from the effects of an accident which had caused extensive damage to her face years before and how in one NOTs session all final remnants of the accident blew. Jenny had wins right across the dynamics on New OT V to tell the audience, culminating in a major win on the third dynamic whereby she joined staff as the HAS at the Sherman Oaks Mission.

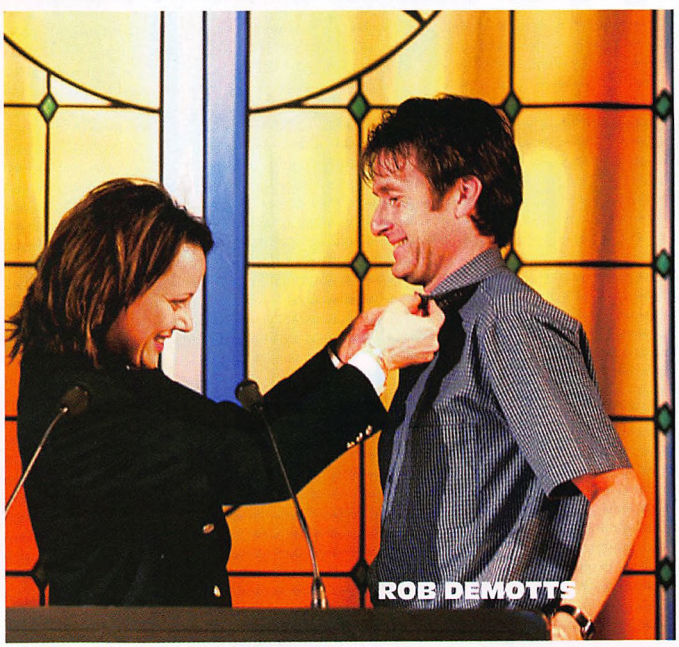

ADI KLEVITT

ADI KLEVITT told how on New OT V misconceptions of lifetime after lifetime had been totally handled on this level, and how that changed her life — every aspect of it — into a new, causative game.

And VANESSA POOL, who also completed New OT V, told of her wins from Solo all the way through NOTs and how with more and more people moving through this Second Wall of Fire we are absolutely going to handle the planet. Announcing that she too had joined staff at the Sherman Oaks Mission, Vanessa talked about the need for all Scientologists to take responsibility to change conditions on Earth.

You're also welcome at the many activities held in our Atrium each week including Graduation and Sunday Service, where you can repair the ravages of the week.

If you're Clear, you need to arrive and go OT. Contact AOLA at aola@earthlink.net now to arrange your next step.

ROB DEMOTTS

AOLA IS YOUR OT ORG

AOLA is your "island of friendliness, decency, and succor in the sea of a violent world." You're welcome at Graduation, Sunday Service, or any of the activities we hold throughout the week here at AOLA — all geared to help you move up to OT and to help you move others to OT also.

Read about some of our weekly events and activities, and the wins to be had from attending these, on page 23 of this magazine. For a full list of events and times, contact Deanna O'Neill at (323) 953-3300 or aola@earthlink.net

MOVE THROUGH THE WALL OF FIRE

DO OT III

Objections to learning the ultimate truth of this universe have been deeply implanted in people for the past 75 million years.

Until LRH mapped the way through the Wall of Fire, no one had been able to penetrate it. Beings had been trapped, searching for their spiritual freedom.

But today, in the Golden Age of Tech for OTs, you can audit yourself to states man has never even dreamed of before. All you have to do is follow LRH's closely taped path on the Advanced Courses of Scientology.

Once you are Clear, you stand on the very threshold of OT knowledge.

Yet, until you traverse the Wall of Fire and achieve OT III, you are at risk.

Do OT III!

OT SEMINARS — EVERY NIGHT OF THE WEEK

Because we're serious about moving you into the realm of OT, we deliver seminars to help you do just that — every night of the week.

There's literally something for everyone every single week at AOLA. From Sunday Service and Brunch, to LRH Lectures, to Admin Scale and Debug Tech Seminars, to Book Seminars, FSM Workshops, Finance Seminars, PDC Seminars — and many more. Each one of these services is free, and any one of them will help you move faster up The Bridge.

"HOW TO GET UNSTALLED AS A CLEAR" SEMINAR

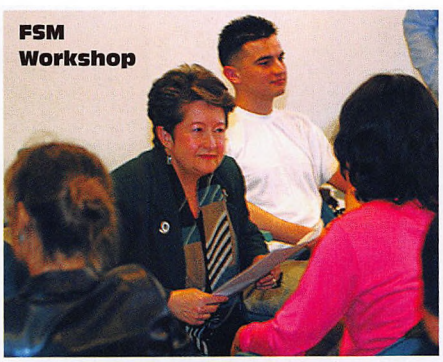

Captain AOLA's seminar to Clears not currently moving on The Bridge to OT has proven so popular that it's become a regular event at AOLA. Delivered every Tuesday at 7:30 P.M. in the Atrium, the seminar covers the exact LRH references on what a Clear's next steps are, why this is, and why a Clear must move up through OT III fast. Going over all the tools to get you moving, the Captain answers any questions you might have and at the end of the seminar she directs attendees to the specific AOLA staff members who'll take care of you. Over the last 6 weeks the number of attendees has risen sharply with each one of them making it onto their next Bridge step.

HELPING OTHERS MOVE INTO THE REALM OF OT

Field Staff Members are a vital part of AOLA's actions to bring the peoples of the Americas up through New OT V. That's why every Sunday night is FSM night at AOLA. Run by Power FSM, David Howson, our FSM Workshop is for totally new FSMs, those who have FSMed in the past but want to improve their skills, and skilled FSMs. Hundreds of Scientologists have attended this workshop and started effectively helping others make it to OT, and considering the current climate, all Scientologists are needed to contribute to this vital activity. Come in and learn how to FSM, how to improve your FSM skills, or share your skills with others.

THE PDC SEMINARS ARE BACK — BY POPULAR DEMAND!

In December 2002, AOLA conducted a series of special seminars to honor the 50th anniversary of the Philadelphia Doctorate Course Lectures. Covering the subjects of postulates, time and money as covered in these brilliant LRH lectures, these seminars were very popular. And now, these seminars are again being held regularly at AOLA. Check the insert in this magazine for the next one.

Tales from the other side of the OT levels

NO WAITING FOR A RESCUE!

I was driving to LA from Northern California during a mild snow storm. I was battling it pretty well, but at one point the vehicle I was driving, which was a van, just started sliding off the road. No matter how I turned the wheel, it just kept sliding. Once it stopped, I got out and could see that I wasn't going to be able to get out alone. I thought, "I need help." About one minute later a State Ranger truck pulled up. The Ranger saw my predicament and said, "You're going to need to get towed out of here. There are some trucks that drive up and down this road, but I doubt you'll find anyone soon. They are swamped because of the weather." I thought, "They'll come." In less than 5 minutes, a tow truck came by. My "ordeal" lasted all of 20 minutes. J.P.

NOT BY CHANCE!

I'd been out of town on business for a few weeks and ended up completing several days early, so I decided to surprise my husband and simply arrive home. I caught the last flight, arriving at our apartment building late at night — just as a storm was starting up. I punched in the combination for the security lock on the building, but the door didn't open. I tried it again — nothing. Checked in my purse. No, I had the right combination — it must have been changed while I was away. I didn't want to wake up my husband as it was now 2:30 A.M. and he was having auditing at the local org, but I was getting rather wet. I thought to myself, "I'm OT V, I need to simply know the new combination." For a moment I caught myself getting into the mechanics of the whole thing — like how many potential combinations there could be in a lock with 5 different buttons to punch? More than 3,000! I decided not to go that route, but to get back to simply knowing the combination. Getting into the game, I gave myself 10 shots at it before I had to call up to the apartment for help to get in. I got it on my 10th attempt! Safely inside and rather wet, I was rather pleased with my new ability! E.W.

KEEPING TRACK OF A CO-WORKER

I was at work one day and someone came in looking for a co-worker. He wasn't anywhere in the office, which was odd. I checked around and no one had seen him that day. I instantly got the impression that he'd gotten into a car accident, but not a bad one. I pervaded his space and sensed the fear and adrenaline rush that occurs when things like this happen. I mentioned to the person who was looking for him that perhaps something like this had happened. He disagreed as the person lived very, very close by and would have had little opportunity for an accident.

About 15 minutes later he walked in. He said he'd been in a minor accident and went to the local Urgent Care Unit to get some bandages put on. The other person looked at me in mild disbelief. L.R.

CAUSE OVER TIME

Being OT is being cause over time. I started OT I a few days ago and the OT phenomena began immediately. I was an hour early for course and decided to take a nap so I could be extra studentable. Normally I definitely require an alarm clock to wake me up. I decided to just make a postulate. I took my nap and woke up just in time, about 10 minutes before roll call. I decided I wanted to take a short walk to wake up. I did and when I got into the course room, I still had another 10 minutes! I checked my watch to make sure it wasn't fast, no, right in synch with the course room clock! D.S.

CREATING THE MEST UNIVERSE

I was talking to my mom one day and the subject of OT phenomena came up. We were talking about how an OT can create MEST. Just mock it up. I really liked that concept.

Later that day I went into the bedroom looking for the book I was reading. It was gone. I checked around. No, it wasn't in the room, not in the drawers, not under the bed, nowhere.

I decided to apply this

ACHIEVE SPIRITUAL FREEDOM

On a planet that's getting crazier by the minute, one can sometimes go effect.

That's why you have no more time to wait to get onto NED for OTs.

When NOTs Auditors were asked what this level handles, they uniformly said just one word: "ANYTHING."

So there's really only one choice if you want to survive this planet: Do your NED for OTs. And do it now.

LRH wrote that NED for OTs deals with "living lightning, the very stuff of life itself." This is miracle-producing auditing that will restore your ability to be cause in life.

This is the route to spiritual freedom. There is no other route.

And as we have 13 NOTs Auditors in our Advanced Org, come now and you'll get intensive auditing — as much as you can handle!

THE QUANTUM:
THE TOOL THAT OPENS UP THE OT UNIVERSE

Throughout the ages, wise men have sought to divine the truth, to fathom, somehow, signs and symbols that might mark a path to freedom.

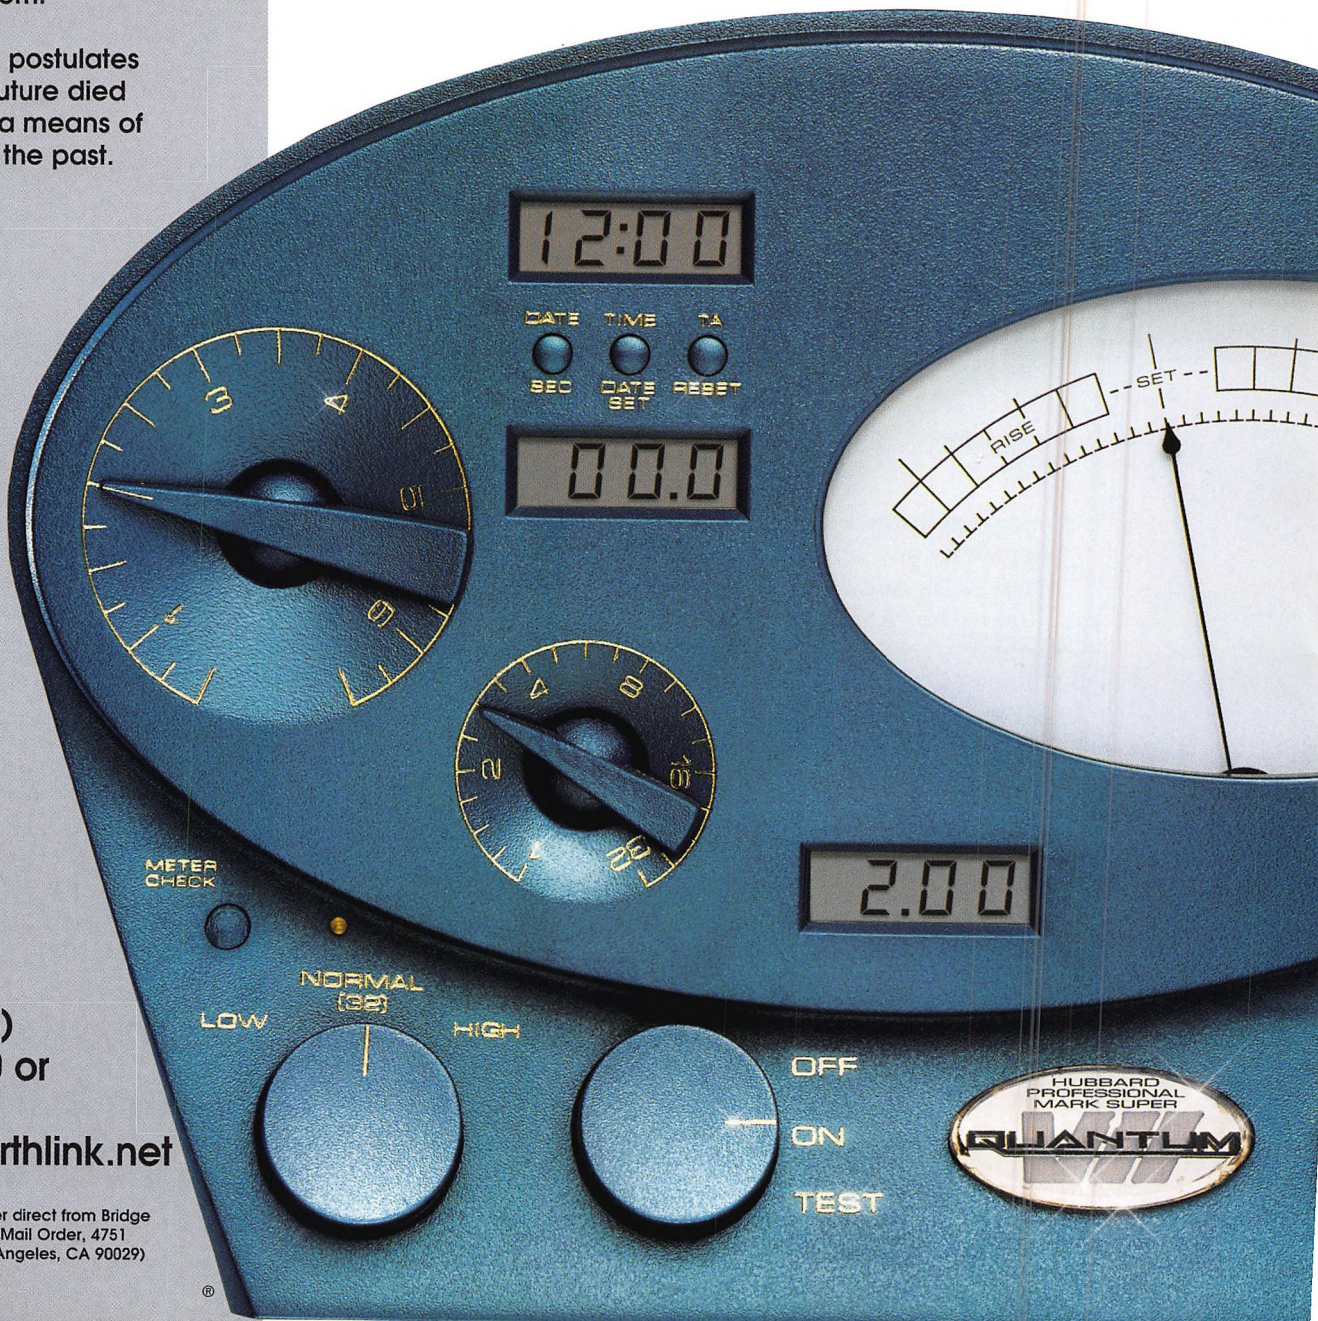

But their postulates for the future died without a means of as-ising the past.

And the precision tool they lacked was the MARK SUPER VII QUANTUM™ E-METER®. With it you can look down the whole track with accuracy and exactness and see reads so large, they're impossible to miss.
The Mark Super VII Quantum E-Meter means precision. It means accurate reads, exactness.

It means freedom — yours and everyone you audit.

This meter sees all the way down the track so you can unravel the traps and misconceptions that have held man down for eons.

When I went to bed, I made the Tone 40 postulate that when I woke up in the morning, I would reach under my bed and the book would be there. I woke up, reached under the bed and pulled out the book! A.W.

EFFORTLESS CONTROL

Since doing my OT levels at AOLA, I found some subtle and not so subtle changes in how I view things and act. While I could write about the many OT phenomena experiences, what is much more profound to me is how quickly I can now spot the source of something and effortlessly create solutions to problems and situations around me. There is no thinking involved.

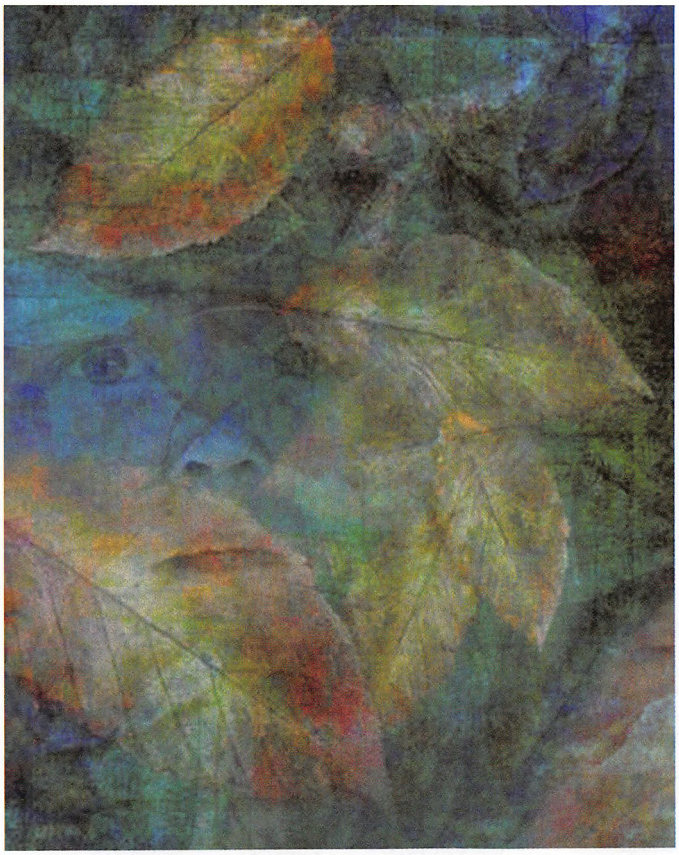

Problems instantly resolve, whether by inspection, postulate or perception of their actual source. Perhaps one of the most significant wins I had on the OT levels was in peeling away those things that dramatically limited my ability to really perceive and prevented me from seeing and confronting.

Sure it's always nice to expand one's present time to include some future and foresee and therefore prevent running into an accident or situation. It's always a pleasure to know who is on the phone even without caller ID. And, no question, it is far better to locate those lost keys by just knowing where they are and eliminate the frustration that comes with the "not know" game. These are terrific and very well received. But my most valued change is in the duplication of an is-ness. R.C.L.

DISCOVERING A WHOLE TRACK EDUCATION

I've been having a lot of wins on "knowing" things since being on my OT levels. There have been several times that my kids have asked me questions in regards to their school work — math, English, history, etc., and I have just known the answer. Mind you, I was no "brain" in school. In fact my son asked me something the other day about Russian history, and I answered. He was shocked, "Mom! How did you know that?" I said, "Knowingness, maybe even recall!"

And for months there had been some clothes, dry cleaning, in a coat closet at work. I'd asked around a few times whose they were. No one knew. A couple of days ago, someone walked in and was waiting in reception. I went to the closet, got the clothes, brought them to this woman and said, "You used to work here? These are yours." She said, "Oh, gosh! I've been looking for these. I thought I'd left them at the dry cleaner too long, how did you know they were mine?" I said, "Just did." M.E.

LOCATING A MISSING CHILD

My son has a daily routine on school days: leaves school, stops by the store on his way home and arrives home about 3:45 P.M. If something comes up, he always calls.

It was about 4:00 one Tuesday afternoon and my daughter brought to my attention that my son hadn't arrived home. I immediately knew something had happened. I tuned into his space a bit more. He had taken a different route home and had witnessed a traffic accident at a very busy intersection. He was there speaking to the police about what he saw. I told my daughter, "Something happened . . ." She said, "Mom, he is probably just reading magazines at the store." No way. Before my OT levels I would have had no perception or denied anything I picked up.

I decided to trust my perceptions because I knew I was right. I drove to the intersection, and there he was. There were paramedics, police cars — everything I had perceived was right there. My son was a little shaken, so I gave him a locational. It wasn't until after we finished that he realized I'd come and found him. He said, "Wait — how did you know I was here?" "Perception. OT perception." M.S.

POSTULATE TRIUMPHS OVER FORCE

Someone had gotten a chain jammed between 2 very solid pieces of steel on a forklift. There really wasn't any way to dislodge it with the tools we had to hand. It was an almost 1/2 inch chain jammed into a 1/4 inch space. My co-worker brought over a pry bar. It would maybe create a 1/16 inch space. Not enough. I picked up a stick and decided to create the time and space to remove the chain. I did and in a second, it was out. I told my co-worker, "Hey! I got it out!" He said, "Wow, we got lucky." I knew better. B.E.

THERE'S ONE GOOD REASON TO SEND REPORTS TO RTC:
YOUR FUTURE ETERNITY

Religious Technology Center keeps Scientology working. Our purpose is to safeguard the proper use of the trademarks, to protect the public and to make sure the powerful technology of Dianetics and Scientology remains in good hands and is properly used.

But you also have a hat to keep Scientology working. Wear that hat by reporting matters of concern to RTC.

When you see an off-policy, out-tech or out-ethics situation, per HCO Policy Letter 22 July 1982 KNOWLEDGE REPORTS you report the matter to the Ethics Section of the org concerned, with a copy to the person the report is about. But at the same time also send a copy of that report to RTC.

Your report can give RTC vital information needed to spot situations that may develop, or locate hidden suppression, infiltration, subversion or corruption within and external to Scientology churches, missions and other church organizations.

Protect The Bridge to total freedom for you and all mankind. Report to RTC on Matters of RTC Concern. The fastest, most secure way is to fill out the report form at www.rtc.org.

4 Read the LRH article in this issue of Advance! and simply decide to move up to OT now.

5 Attend OT Enlightenment Nights at AOLA or your nearest org. Call your local org or AOLA right now and find out when these events take place. Then get to the very next one because there you'll hear from OTs about what's ahead on your journey to OT.

6 Write or e-mail the Letter Registrar at AOLA. Tell her you want to go OT — she'll help you arrive.

7 Come in and see the Chairman of the Board Religious Technology Center's in-depth briefing, "From Clear to Eternity — For Real" and find out how simple it is to go OT, and how vital it is that you do. Start now, and keep moving. We will help you every step of the way to OT.
