AFA BULLETIN

The AFA BULLETIN is published each Lunar Month at Headquarters in Washington, D. C. , for the members of the AMERICAN FEDERATION OF ASTROLOGERS. It is not for public sale, but members may procure such back issues as are available for 25¢ per copy, plus postage. A sample copy will be sent to any inquiring student. It is suggested that 10¢ postage be enclosed.

All articles express the views of the author and do not necessarily reflect the official view of the FEDERATION. The FEDERATION in all cases assumes no responsibility for material which is presented. It urges students to test such material in their own experience. We will from time to time present controversial material that it may stimulate research. All articles, however, are the full responsibility of the author.

The AMERICAN FEDERATION OF ASTROLOGERS was organized and incorporated at Washington, D. C., May 4, 1938, at 11:38 a.m. E.S.T., for the purpose of promoting the science and art of Astrology through research and education; and to establish a high standard of professional ethics for legitimate astrologers.

Affiliation fee of groups or membership of individuals is $7.00 per year. There is also an enrollment fee of $5.00, which, with the first years membership fee, should accompany all applications for membership.

Members desiring a copy of Constitution and By-Laws may have same by writing AFA Headquarters for a copy.

THE EXECSEC SAYS

Last month we wrote that we did not have members in Alaska or Hawaii, our 49th and 50th States, and offered a YEAR BOOK to the members getting the first members in these States. I personally got a member from Hawaii during the month, but headquarters memberships don't count in this little contest, so let's see who will get the YEAR BOOKS for sending in the first memberships from Alaska and Hawaii.

We repeat that we will give a YEAR BOOK to any member that gets us two new members. If anybody needs application blanks, please let me know.

We will continue to fold the membership dues notices and put them loose in front of the Bulletins. I think the loose, folded sheet will be more readily noticed than a sheet stitched into the Bulletin. Also, it makes it easy for the member to take it out as a reminder and then put the sheet in the envelope with the check. Some members have written short notes on them.

I again ask that members send in their addresses changes in advance. When you do not and the Bulletins are returned we have to pay postage three times besides going thru the files to check addresses and pull address stencils, then write letters to get the new address. Yesterday four Bulletins were returned at one time. This necessitates 60¢ extra postage, besides the loss of time to get the cards and address stencils out of the files and write letters. So please drop us a note or postcard when you change your address, it will help us a great deal and also get the Bulletin to you more promptly and avoid the possibility of its loss. If you knew how many address changes we have every month you would know how much time it takes every month to keep the address list up to date. Thanks very much.

We are very sorry to report the loss of another friend and member of the AFA. Mrs. Leona Milstead completed the mission of her birth and passed on in Washington, D. C. on August 30, 1959. Mrs. Milstead had been a long-time student of astrology and a member of the AFA since 1953. She also was a member of and active in the Washington Astrological Assn. Mrs. Milstead showed her appreciation of our work by leaving her books and magazines to the AFA Library. We appreciate this very much. To her surviving family, we extend sincere sympathy on behalf of the officers, Directors and members of the AFA.

Two days ago we received two $14.00 checks in the same mail from members paying two years dues at once. This is the second time we have received two $14.00 checks at one time. Our sincere appreciation to these members who send in two years dues at once as it really saves us a lot of time on the membership list work. Also, our thanks to those members who send in self-addressed, stamped envelopes with requests for information, etc. This also saves us time. These little things may not seem important, but when you have a large membership they save a great deal of time - and we want our members to know we really appreciate these little courtesies that help so much.

Our visitor to headquarters this month was Highland R. Johns, from Feasterville, Pennsylvania. Mr. Johns took Vicky and me, Catharine and Ernest Grant to dinner. He is a regular visitor to headquarters, so we hope to see him again soon.

CANCER RESEARCH FROM THE ASTROLOGICAL STANDPOINT

By

WILMA S. MCCANTS, MAFA

(A lecture given at New Orleans 1958 AFA Convention)

Millions of dollars are being spent yearly and approximately two million volunteer workers are actively engaged at the present time in an effort to arouse the American people in the fight against Cancer, the number two killer-- and, within certain age limits, the number one killer.

The month of April was designated by President Eisenhower as "Cancer Control Month". During that period if you tuned in your radio or television you heard repeatedly the statements: "One out of every four persons now living will develop cancer" and "Every two minutes someone in the United States dies with cancer".

This is a far cry from the public's attitude in the 1930's when I began to compile this series of horoscopes of persons known to have cancer. At that time if a physician even mentioned the word "cancer" as a possibility it was accepted as a death sentence; and when one was known to have the disease there was a hushed silence regarding his illness, and when he died it was said that he passed after a "lingering illness".

Even as recently as 1943 when Elissa Landi, the motion picture star, died from cancer the newspapers printed the true cause of her death, while her husband was quoted as proudly saying he had been able to keep from her until the end the knowledge that she was afflicted with cancer.

As the years passed and the tragic news was broadcast from time to time of the death from cancer of some prominent figure we began to realize that cancer is no respecter of persons. We learned that it is not just the ignorant and uneducated, the under-privileged who are struck down in their prime--but that the victims come from all walks of life.

As we look back just a few years the list is appalling; an outstanding political leader, Sen. Robert A. Taft; well known writers, musicians and artists. Such names as Damon Runyan, Eddie Duchin, Gertrude Lawrence and Humphrey Bogart---and the whole world watched with sympathy the courageous fight of Babe Didrickson of the sports world. In every case the physicians stated that discovery of the disease came too late. Cancer is an insidious disease and often not recognized until too far advanced.

The American Cancer Society maintains a department in New York City devoted exclusively to compilation of statistics concerning all activities toward cancer research, treatment and cure. We find that today laboratories are maintained in key cities where hundreds of qualified scientists and physicians are devoting their lives to this work, endeavoring to discover just how cancer starts--how it can be halted, reversed or prevented. Meanwhile, other research is directed toward improving methods of diagnosis and treatment.

New drugs are being discovered and tried, -- frequently only to find that they do not work, or that they are not safe because of reactions that are dangerous.

The most recent data from the American Cancer Society states that, while new methods of treatment are given thoroughgoing trials, so far none have proven reliable for general use, and that the only known cures are still surgery, X-Rays and radium, and that those are successful only when the disease is in the early stages.

They have done excellent work toward educating the public as to need for early diagnosis and regular medical check-ups, but they are still unable to determine the causative factor. Medical men can tell us that one out of four people will develop cancer, but they cannot tell us which one.

Accordingly, it seems to me that this is where the Astrologer can join forces and, with the evidence secured from the chart of birth be able to predict with reasonable certainty those who have the planetary constants in the horoscope of birth that indicate possibility of cancer development.

If such condition be found in the chart, then the individual should be advised to consult a reputable physician for check-up, and that he should not disregard any of the cancer symptoms.

Since the opening of this convention I have been delighted to find that there are others here who have also been doing some cancer research. We have enough qualified members in this organization with the knowledge and ability to do this research, and with the wealth of material we now have, it seems to me we could start an astrological research group, and eventually be able to furnish this most vital need--the early diagnosis.

So, today I am offering the concensus of my own work and findings in the hope that this will stimulate others having the knowledge and ability to work along this line.

I am well aware of the responsibility assumed by the Astrologer when, seeing these constants in a chart, he endeavors to point out the possibility of the disease, while at the same time assuring the person that the stars impel, they do not compel, and that to be forewarned is to be forearmed.

I realize that we must combat a certain amount of fear in dealing with this type of horoscope analysis. I have had more than one person whose horoscope I was delineating say "Oh, if you see it in my chart, don't tell me--I would rather not know".

However, this picture is not as dark as it may seem, when we realize that some have had confidence in the judgment of the Astrologer, consulted a physician and been cured. I might mention that a very significant factor in connection with these just mentioned cases of cure is that each one has either Capricorn rising or a strong Saturn beneficently aspected. (The innate caution of the Saturn influence).

My compilation of these cancer charts actually began in 1929 when a dear friend who was the picture of health and vitality seemed to gradually fail in health; finally, physicians were consulted and examination disclosed a malignant growth--operation followed and then her death in three days. I studied her chart carefully for some clue which would have warned of this condition. Needless to say I did not find it. I did not know what to look for.

Less than a year later another friend, an older woman and an astrologer began having an early morning illness with loss of breakfast. For some time she ignored this, but finally was persuaded to consult a physician. She was found to have an advanced case of cancer of the stomach. Again I made a careful check of the horoscope seeking to find a similarity with the other. While the charts were entirely different I did find one similar aspect

From that time my determination was made to secure every available chart where cancer was known for the purpose of further study.

During the ensuing years a collection of several hundred charts was made. Many of these charts were of necessity solar charts, as complete birth data was unobtainable.

Gradually as the charts were analysed a planetary pattern was observed. Also, where the individual was known to me personally, a pattern of similar response to outer conditions was observed.

After analysis of many charts and the discovery of one certain major aspect therein, I feel the time has come to present that factor. Not as a final word, but as a starting point toward further astrological research, with the purpose of aiding in the early diagnosis of the disease, now regarded as of vital necessity to its cure.

Before I mention this aspect I would like to make two statements which I urge you to please remember as we proceed with this vital subject.

FIRST: I do not feel that I have solved the problem of cancer diagnosis--any more than one medical scientist can say that his discovery has solved it from the medical standpoint.

SECOND: Please do not feel that because a chart has the aspect I mention it will definitely indicate cancer, as there will always be other factors to consider, and great caution must be exercised, for psychological reasons.

The first step in the analysis of the chart was to determine if any Sun Sign was predominant. Results showed that division of the charts by Sun Sign was about equal. However, there was a slight predominance of the Cardinal Signs.

The Moon's influence in all tumors and growths is well known, but in these charts there was not any predominance of Sign position of the Moon.

As to the aspects of the planets, however, we have a different story, for I found in practically every chart a major aspect of the planets Mars and Neptune. ---This I believe to be the dominant factor. In at least 90% of the charts the aspect is a square, in a few the conjunction and in two of the charts the Mars/Neptune aspect is the trine, with Neptune in exact conjunction with the ascendant. In one chart the aspect is the conjunction of Mars/Neptune with Neptune in Aries and Mars in Pisces, the ascendant being Pisces.

With this discovery, the next step was to discover the reason. Why should the affliction of Mars and Neptune create conditions suitable for the growth of cancer cells? The story of my search for these reasons is too long to include in this lecture. It is sufficient to say that a study of the endocrine or ductless glands, with their planetary rulership gives us the key to the causes back of the development of cancer in the human body.

... While this Mars/Neptune aspect may not be the only planetary indication of cancer, it is by far the one most often found as cause. Of this aspect Alan Leo says: "This is a decidedly dangerous aspect, creating a host of turbulent desires and temporary enthusiasms that hurry one into actions that he will later repent; this aspect rarely or never passes without marking its presence by violence of some kind, both physical and emotional". He has reference to the progressed aspect, but this condition he describes is an inborn characteristic of the person born with this aspect in the horoscope.

As previously stated, this aspect alone may not produce cancer, but it is suspect.

Another important factor occurring in most of these example charts is the position of the nodes, the Dragon's head and tail. This will be found squaring the Ascendant or the Sun, or the tail conjunct the Sun, Moon, Ascendant or other vital point.

I know that some modern Astrologers are inclined to ignore these nodal points, merely saying, if anything, that the head is benefic and the tail the reverse. However, I feel sure that a little analysis will reveal their importance, especially when checking their natal aspects, their progressed aspects and progressions to them at any critical year in the life. They often point very clearly the destiny of the individual. Certainly they reveal some important experience connected with his inner development.

I believe that in the case of leukemia (cancer of the blood) that an afflicted Saturn is also an important factor, but I have not had a suffieient number of these charts to make a definite statement.

When these aspects are found in a horoscope the next step is to determine when they will externalize or exert the power of their influence. We will find that this operates exactly as any other progressed aspect in a chart--that is, when set off by progressions and/or heavy transits. As the progressions come into force peculiar and unexpected events begin to occur and upset the trend of the life. I have watched these developments in the lives of the three persons represented by my three example charts and also in the case of a number of others.

These often tragic events occur, one following another so rapidly, they might almost be termed a "chain reaction", -- and the emotional reactions of the native become almost unpredictable.

ARE MY JEWELS LOST, OR WERE THEY STOLEN?

By
ELSIE MARGARET KNAPP, MAFA

(AFA 1958 Contest Article)

This question was asked in Santa Barbara, California, December 7, 1957 at 5:21 P.M., T.L.T.

I carefully studied the chart herein and soon realized that the querient was too hasty in presuming that one of her servants had stolen some of her precious jewels. These included a diamond wrist watch, a two and one-half carat diamond ring and a valuable broach. They had sentimental value also, because of being gifts from her deceased husband.

Again I say that we must give thanks to some very great souls, "pioneers in human endeavor"; among them "Lilly and Raphael" because they are credited with furthering what is known as "Horary Art". This special branch of Astrology, providing the rules furnished apart from Natal Astrology, are properly put to use, can affirm a "Yes" or "No" concerning a given question.

"Horary" comes from the Latin word "Hour", and because time is more important than space, a chart must be erected for a given moment.

Note the Moon was first to rise, and that usually gives encouragement concerning the question asked. The last planet the Moon passed was Venus and if you count the number of degrees between Venus and the Moon, you will find that twenty-four degrees passed between them. Because the Moon was in a Mutable sign and angular, I asked my client if her awareness of the loss took place a little over three weeks before. Her answer was, "Yes". Venus being involved, which has rulership over women I felt she would receive cooperation through a woman in twenty-four days.

In a question of this kind, the second house ruler must be carefully observed. The sign of Cancer controls the cusp of this house and the Moon has rulership over this.

The Moon, because of being placed directly on the ascendant, indicated that the lost jewels would be found and being placed in an Air sign (Gemini) plainly indicated that they would be found in the top-most part of the room in which she abided. She then told me that most of her time was spent in her bedroom because of being an invalid and only leaving it when it was necessary to have therapy treatments. The trine aspect between the Moon and Jupiter, the most benefic planet, which is conjoined to Spica, the renowned Fixed Star, held wonderful promise. Although the planets in any chart ranging from fifteen degrees of Libra to fifteen degrees of Scorpio are considered via-combust, there is an exception if the planets are placed between twenty-two and twenty-seven degrees of those signs, which is the domain of "Spica".

In order to indicate what the end result would be, the fourth house cusp and the planet under its rulership, will reveal a dependable answer. Here we find that Mercury has full sway, and because Mercury also has rulership over the first house plainly indicated that the jewels were still in her house.

The Moon, ruler of the second house and also ruler of the lost jewels, has rulership over closets and cupboards; and Mercury is assigned to papers among other things. In all Horary charts the planet Mercury reveals what the question is associated with. This led me to believe that the jewels were hidden between papers. Then too, the Moon was about to leave the sign it was in; which further indicated that the articles may have fallen down between something.

Mercury being posited in the seventh house, even though not being placed in the seventh-house sign, indicated the Astrologer consulted would prove helpful. Note the "Part of Fortune" is also placed in the seventh. This indicated she would be aided by other people. The ruler of the chart, in the seventh also indicated that to an extent she would be placed in the Astrologer's hands.

The reason her assumption had to be doubted, that a theft was enacted, was because the ruler of the second house was not posited in the seventh. If that had been factual, a thief would have been responsible for the loss. When I described this, my client became greatly relieved.

She had just recently moved into her new home and engaged a new staff of household help, and all seemed to be efficient, and to doubt their integrity was not to her liking. She now tells me, that she would in the future be exceedingly careful not to express misjudgment before the whole truth of a matter was completely outlined for her. In short a moral lesson has been learned.

The marvelous aspect between the Moon and Jupiter, forming a Partile trine, indicated she would find the lost articles within hours after asking the question. The North Node was regressing towards Neptune, and said planet always reveals the truth. Neptune on the cusp of the sixth house, which has rulership over servants, indicated that the servants were not to be held in suspicion, and that some mystery was involved concerning the jewels. We also know that Neptune is a vague, nebulous and mystical planet. The parallel aspect between the Sun and Venus was also favorable.

At eight P.M. my client phoned saying she found the jewels among some papers which had fallen from the top shelf to one below, in her bedroom closet. They were hidden behind some boxes, which before that she had not moved in her search. She accounted for this because she was having the adjoining room renovated and in all probability when the workmen were doing some hammering the walls vibrated enough to cause the jewels to fall from that upper shelf.

Never doubt the authenticity of a Horary chart. If properly analyzed it can prove very helpful.

This chart analysis I am told has greatly benefited this querient and enabled her to keep her help and to keep her household running smoothly. She gives unending thanks for the interpretation given to her.

26. An earthy planet in the ascendant strong, he argues good in anything; that is, a planet ruling the earthy trigon.
27. A planet not in his own house is as a man knocking at another man's door, and his signification is to be slighted, as having no power in that place.
28. When planets are with the Sun, their powers and significations are made less.
29. When planets are in the last degree of a sign retrograde, their judgments are transmitted, their light lessened, and their strength and glory abated.
30. A planet seven degrees distant from the Sun, and in his own house retrograde, is as a man in his castle, in the power of his enemies, striving to abandon slavery.
31. A planet in the house of his enemy is as a man in such a condition, a prisoner in earnest.
32. A planet in his own house, free from affliction, declares the perfection of the question or thing interrogated.
33. The Moon separating from a planet, ever declares what is past, be it good or bad.
34. But the Moon applying to a planet always pronounceth what is to come, after the same manner.
35. When the Moon in any question separates from Saturn, she declares sorrow discord and trouble.
36. When she is found to separate from Jupiter, she intimates good fortune, mirth and pleasure.
37. When she shall separate from Mars, it signifies contention, strife, bloodshed, bonds, false witness, etc.
38. When the Moon separates from the Sun, she signifies cures, fears, sickness, and imprisonments.
39. If she separates from Venus, then lust, sport, laughter, dancing, singing, etc. is denoted.
40. When she separates from Mercury, her significations are to be interpreted according to his position, for Mercury is convertible.
41. The Moon applying to a planet shows things to come, according to the nature of her application with them; as if with a planet that is a fortune, then it signifies good; to an infortune, then the contrary.
42. The Moon fortunate in the morning, the querent's business prospers the better all day after; one born when she is so will be fortunate.

46. The Moon in conjunction with Mars is observed to be unfortunate for any purpose.
47. The Moon in conjunction with the Sun is only fit for private business. He that then shall fall sick, dies.
48. The Moon in conjunction with Venus shows a good day, chiefly in love matters.
49. When the Moon is in conjunction with Mercury it is good, but principally in contracts and writing. (Be skeptical of a retrograde Mercury).

URANUS THE LIFE CHANGER

By

CAROL WILSON, LMAFA

Also, observe that all three of the significators--Venus-Sun-Mercury-- are in square aspect (action requiring perseverance) to the Moon in the dogmatic Sign of Taurus and the reflective Saturn Decanate, symbolizing MASTERSHIP, in Chart I. In Chart II, the Moon is found to be in the Expressive Decanate of the dual, restless, Mental Sign of Gemini, with the symbol of INTUITION.

The degree of the Taurus Moon in the SPAN OF ENJOYMENT reads:

♉ 29° Two garrulous old cobblers work seated on an old bench. A symbol of discursive reason, the battle of "pros and cons" within the inner being. Analytical, recapitulative judgment. [7]

Whereas, the Moon in Gemini is found under the SPAN OF ZEAL.

♊ 1° Glass-bottomed boat drifts over under-sea wonders. Depth of realization in a consciousness constantly in touch with the sources of life. Sensitive to collective images. [8]

The Moon in Taurus is conservative, persevering, and calm. In good aspect, it is good for obtaining possessions and is favorable for gain through agriculture. It gives talent for singing and for building, but when afflicted, it is sensuous. Posited in House VIII denotes inheritances or legacies from the mother or her family; often a sudden death if afflicted by Uranus or Mars. This placement is very favorable for occult study and for occupations dealing with money or with children. This person would start earning her own way early in life. She would adore her mother and would suffer from shock (Uranus opposed) and loss at her mother's death.

The Moon in Gemini gives a love of study and intellectual work, a fondness for travelling, walking, and visiting. It helps a person to be handy and capable and a good speaker, but one who tries to do two things at a time. When afflicted, the person is unreliable. Posited in House IX, the Moon increases the love of travel and brings repeated changes during life. It tends to stress college degrees and stimulates an interest in philosophy, psychology, religious subjects, and foreign languages. It gives a shrewd and alert mind. Female in-laws would be important in the life; also, the customs of foreign races.

Because planets retain a sympathetic harmony with their own Signs, the square of Venus to the Moon in Chart I would be lessened in its effect because the Moon in its exaltation and Venus is the ruler of Taurus. The square of Mercury to the Moon in Chart II would be modified because Mercury is the ruler of Gemini. The TRINE ASPECT (expansion and creative, inspirational power) of the Moon to the Ascendant shows that the public, especially women, like these teachers personally, and that problems work out eventually in wisdom and understanding. The frustrations and sufferings caused by tensions, limitations, misunderstandings, and oppositions are of inner nature and do not show on the surface. Even close contacts seldom know about the nervous conditions, for their smiling faces hide the torment they are undergoing.

The Moon as the ruler of House X indicates many changes in the calling, positions that deal with many people where minds are fed and nourished and a love of the good is fostered.

From the foregoing aspects, both of these women have learned to "Judge not, lest ye be judged." If Uranus were not so strong in their lives, the conflicts between the intensely personal problems and the impersonal, freedom-seeking urges would not be so severe as to bring about the life changes. Uranus expresses through the struggle to be one's self, to liberate one's own individuality and creative ability, to shake off conventions of narrow minds and the conformity demanded by organizations, to be free to think, to speak, to act--INDEPENDENT! A 51 degree aspect, that of Fate, from the self-pushing Mars in House I to Uranus in House III shows that this FREEDOM, within limitations, was present in the Heavens at the birthtime of these teachers. A strong sense of loyalty, justice, consideration for others, and responsibility has caused them to sacrifice this God-given gift during most of their lives.

Uranus square Sun and Venus and opposed by the Moon pictures this element of self-sacrifice. The native in Chart I, for example, resigned from a fine position in a bank at one time because she couldn't bear to hurt a woman co-worker who had become so jealous of the native's progress that she was making herself and everyone she could miserable. And, the native in Chart II refused to give any social gathering in her home for over a year for fear she would cause embarrassment to a former close friend and co-worker who had become jealous and had refused to speak to the native during this period. These Venusian natures suffer in silence from the personal dominances and reactions of others. Too compassionate to ride rough shod over the feelings of loved ones, they sacrifice their own hopes and wishes and change their own life pattern.

Uranus in Sagittarius increases the love of freedom and independence. It causes the individual to be unorthodox, headstrong, ambitious, fond of curiosities, restless, inclined to astrology, aiming at great and noble undertakings, possessing original talents, fond of speculative thinking, clever in writing but difficult to understand by the majority, and precipitate in words and actions; also, delight in walking, and in ability in prophecy.

Placed in House III, Uranus gives an active, positive mind interested in science and occult studies, in the purchase of unusual books, and travel in foreign lands. It denotes many changes of residence, unsettledness of purpose, trouble with brothers and neighbors, losses through telegrams and incisive contracts. The degree reading of Uranus states:

THE SPAN OF RECEPTIVENESS:

♐ 4° Watched by happy parents, a child takes his first steps. Life's kindliness in creating safe opportunities for growth. Full appreciation of opportunity. Crisis in self-development. 9

Both of these women are fully appreciative of the opportunities in growth that life has granted them and for the Divine protection each feels has been shown her at all times. They have learned that they have to keep positive, that negative thoughts held in the mind or negative statements made against others will rebound as unhappiness and ill health. Their greatest weaknesses is that they are too sensitive to the vibratory influences of others; they sometimes accept the conditions of others as their own. To sum up the character delineations of these two women, however, one might say of them: "Greater love has no man than this, that he lay down his life for a friend.

In 1916, when the Sun by progression was approaching the 72 degree aspect to natal Uranus, in Chart I, and the transitting Uranus was in House V, this teacher was married (an elopement) to a man with five planets in Sagittarius. This began a series of changes of residence that included living in Akron, Ohio; Chicago, Illinois; Kansas City, Missouri; Denver, Colorado; Ft. Wayne, Indiana; and on a farm near Lake Michigan. Although lonely and dominated, the life was not unhappy. Studies became the refuge. Treated as an ornament and kept in the background, her desire for further learning and for expression caused her to return to school and then to enter the commercial world. At the age of 21, when the transitting Uranus in House VI opposed to the Sun and square to natal Uranus, employment interests took first place, and a divorce followed. At 28, in the year 1928, as the progressed Sun reached the Libran Ascendant, sextile to natal Uranus, and the transitting Uranus made a trine to natal Uranus from House VII, a second marriage occurred. This marriage still holds. This husband, too, is a Sagittarian. From 1938 until 1945, this person was creatively busy and happy in teaching and in writing on spiritual subjects for adults. She started a School of New Thought and held prayer meetings for boys overseas. The Sun was progressing over Mars at the time. When the Sun reached the semi-square to Uranus, this work, which was indirectly instigated by the war, suddenly ended. The transitting Uranus, then in Gemini in House IX, took over,and the native devoted all her time to completing a college degree, first in music, and second in education.

The Chart II teacher was married to an Aquarian under the progressed Sun 72 degree aspect to Uranus. This marriage was annulled by the mother-in-law. (Moon in House IX.) At 28, in 1928, she married an Aries but left him when the Sun progressed to Mars, in 1939, because he "gave too little and demanded too much." His Saturn was conjunct her Mars. A divorce took place in 1941 when Uranus transitted her Moon, and this lady, too, returned to college to complete her A.B. in languages. With the progressed Sun approaching the natal Jupiter, semi-sextile natal Uranus, was in trine from Leo to natal Uranus, she married a Sagittarius. This marriage so far has been very happy.

Now to trace Uranus' transits around the chart: the Sagittarian Third House tendency to have more than one iron in the fire would continue to operate. In these charts is shown that the parents lived with the grandparents; hence these women virtually had two sets of parents. When Uranus transitted the Nadir, however, the grandfathers died, removals to other cities took place, and an entirely new kind of life began. In House

IV, Uranus brought disturbances in the home and many changes of residence, of schools and of associates. (Period from 1905 to 1912).

In House V the romantic life was stressed. Marriages, separations, travel, geographical changes, and education by experience were the stress. (From 1912 to 1919).

In House VI, employment and health became the important matters. The native of Chart I was divorced in 1921. She began the serious study of metaphysics and astrology in 1923, and she won a scholarship in voice in 1924. She gave up an executive position and entered a school of music in 1927. The native of Chart II completed a degree in psychology in 1924. She began teaching in college in 1925. (1919-1926).

In House VII, with Aries governing this House, new starts occurred. The native of Chart I completed her degree in music in 1928, married for the second time, adopted a son a year later, began studying astrology with a professional astrologer, and took several long trips during these years, from 1926 to 1933. Both the mother and the grandmother died in this period. The native of Chart II adopted a boy in 1930 and moved to another city where, for a time, she lived happily as a wife and mother.

In House VIII, the Chart I native assumed the obligation (legacy) of her mother's family, and for seven years served as housekeeper and stepmother. At the same time, though, she attended night school, wrote poetry, finished a degree in school, and taught astrology and metaphysics to groups of women, besides taking trips from coast to coast. A broken friendship with a woman who had Sun in Scorpio and Leo rising brought much grief when transitting Uranus in Taurus opposed natal Jupiter in Scorpio. In 1939, she sang over the radio for several months. The Chart II native returned to the teaching field of expression, divorced her husband in 1939, and found happiness in her son and her independence. Both natives worked hard and made many sacrifices between these years of 1933 to 1940.

In House IX, (Gemini) approximately from 1940-1947, the native of Chart I was making weekly trips to Chicago to study metaphysics and astrology; she was publishing a magazine called SON-LIGHT, and she was in charge of an evening school for adults. In 1947 she completed her advanced degree in English literature. The Chart II native was teaching a night class in a university besides her regular school work and was working on her M.A. in foreign languages. By the time Uranus had completed its transits over the natal Moon placements, both women had broken away entirely from parental environment and were leading full and independent lives.

At the time Uranus crossed the M.C., in June of 1950, both of these teachers "crossed the pond" to study abroad; the Chart I native attended London University, England; and the Chart II the Sorbonne in Paris. The former travelled as a librarian on a ship chartered for students and professors. While abroad, she was chosen as a Good Will Missionary in Education and was taken on a tour throughout the British Isles. The second chart lady travelled as a passenger on the Queen Mary but served as a chaperone to help defray expenses. She completed her M.A. in French and, while in Paris, studied drawing.

In House X, (1947-1954) both taught in universities during 1947-48, the G. I. years. They then entered the public school system where they have remained. No seriously adverse aspects were formed by Uranus during this time.

In House XI, 1954-1961, changes are taking place. Most of the former associates and co-workers have retired; new officials and department heads have been installed; the curriculum has been changed; the demands on the teaching ability are greater; the standards are higher, and the qualifications of the students are lower. Young and inexperienced teachers of Bohemian attitudes are taking over the schools. New methods in teaching, based upon a better understanding of the mental equipment of the individual, are becoming compulsory. This almost necessitates returning to college for further learning. The Chart II native has already returned to college for the summer. She is taking specialized training at Chicago University. The native of Chart I had planned to attend Iowa University, but the health of the husband prevented her doing so. The influence of friends becomes increasingly important. What will be next? The suddenly acting, unpredictable Uranus will bring awareness in due time. (Tr. Uranus was Leo 4 trine Uranus in Sagittarius 4 when the trip to Egypt transpired.)

Both of these women have made changes in vocation three times. Both were successful in the business world. Both enjoyed a period of creative expression in art and music. And, both have been teachers of various subjects. Was not Uranus the instigator?

In the breaking up of relationships, in the changes of residence, in the opportunities to express in various ways, did not the urges of Uranus bring the action?

In the thirst for knowledge, in the constant quest for understanding, in the desire to be, to express one's true self, do not the impulses come from Uranus? Yes, I think they do.

NOTES ON ECLIPSES

By

The preceding prognostics upon the Solar Eclipses, and those of the Moon which here follow, are very ancient, and extremely valuable, and are the source of inspiration for some of the most notable of successful prophecies among the Zadkiels and Raphaels of almanack repute. I venture to say that in countries where the eclipses have been central, or those governed by the sign held by the Sun and Moon at their ecliptic conjunction, the effects here stated have been literally fulfilled in almost every case on record. Perhaps in some few cases an extension or even a revision of the observations of Proclus would be advisable; yet, at the same time the merits of the original must not be disparaged.

In the third decanate of ♓ , it threateneth robberies and promiscuous assaults and rapines, both by sea and land.

N. B. The effects of eclipses are felt most in those regions and places that are under the sign of eclipse; and in such places where they are visible; and according to Ptolemy (lib. 2, cap. 8), they operate most efficaciously in such places where they are vertical, or where the chief significator (Sun or Moon) shall pass by their zenith in the time of eclipse; as also upon those men whose nativities agree with the eclipse i.e., upon whose Ascendant, Sun, Moon, or other significator, the eclipse may fall; or when in opposition or square thereto. KEY TO ASTROLOGY

Members of the AFA at our Los Angeles Convention in 1950 requested that we republish some classics of Astrology that were difficult for students to obtain. In accordance with our principle of service to members, we published Simmonite's ARCANA OF ASTROLOGY, first. This began in the December 1950 issue of the AFA BULLETIN and ran for almost two years before it was completed. Next, we published James Wilson's DICTIONARY OF ASTROLOGY beginning with the March 1953 issue of the AFA BULLETIN and continuing through December 1955.

Beginning with the February 1956 issue of the AFA BULLETIN and continuing to the present (and on the following pages), we have been publishing the 1676 edition of Coley's KEY TO ASTROLOGY. We are following the spelling just as it is given in the original text, but shall omit certain tables he published which are now "out-of-date."

XVI. If two Directions happen to be in force together, and operate at one and the same time, the one being good the other exceeding bad; consider which of them is the strongest and to which the Revolution of the Year doth best agree, and Judge that Direction will operate most forcibly; which if it be the good Direction it will much mittigate (if not quite extinguish) the effects of the bad; or if the bad Direction, 'twill overpower the force of the good one, so that the shadow thereof will only appear and the effects will not be considerable.

(Here I intended to have Inserted the effects of Directions, but the Book being already swelled beyond my expectations, I must forbear and refer my Reader to the parusal of my Honoured Friend, Mr. Lilly's Introduction (which I presume most Artists have already by them) where they will find the general signification of Directions to the Bodies, and Aspects of the Planets very Copiously handled and more full than in any Author, either in English or Latine.)

Of Directions in Nativities and their Effects According to Morinus.

Since 'tis certain that the Term of Directions, i.e. places of the Significators, and Promittors are fixed in the Primum Mobile, as appeareth by the Planets, Transits by the same; and that the effect of a Direction is neither from the Significator or Promitor alone, but from both concurring, and that such concourse cannot be of Terms immovable; hence arrises no small difficulty to apprehend how the effects come to be produced and break forth into Act, after they have so long lain hid in power.

First, for the untying which Knot we say,

I. The several Cusps of the Houses, the Planets and their Aspects at the Moment of Birth are actually determined to some particular thing in respect of the Native, but potentially to divers other things; so Saturn in the first house is actually determined to the Natives temperament, health, manners, ingenuity, &c. But potentially to all accidents represented by the other Houses respectively as to cause Diseases by Direction of the Sun in the twelfth, &c. And Jupiter in the eleventh is actually determined concerning the Natives Friends, but potentially concerning the Natives Honours, which he is found to cause by Direction to the Midheaven, and so of the rest.

Secondly That the Influx of the Coelestial Figure a t the Moment of Birth is impressed on the sensible part of the Native, not confusedly, but distinctly; that is as the parts of Heaven, and the Planets are determined in the Figure, so is the Influential Character of that Figure in the Native, observing vertually the same scituation, order and distances of Significator and Promittor as are found in the Figure itself, erected for the Longitude, the Latitude of the place of Birth; so that the Coelestial Figure is not only the external Principal of Life to the Native, but likewise the efficient Cause of a like internal Principle in the Native; whence arises that manifest, yet admirable consent between Heaven and the Native, in doing, and suffering.

Thirdly, That every Significator in the Figure of Heaven, whether Planet, or Cusp, Ruling by its Vertue, as well essential, as accidental in the Native, by imprinting his Character, is some Principle of Life, Action, Marriage, or Passion; to which, by a potential Determination, the other parts of the Figure, whether Planets or Aspects, are referred; so that such things will happen concerning that Principle, as the said places are naturally, or accidentally determined unto, and in the same order of time as is the distance of those places from such Principles, so as the nearest will soon be brought out of Power into Act, i.e. will first produce its effect; As if there follow the Horoscope, first Mercury being Lord thereof, then the Quadrat of Mars Lord of the eighth House, then the Trine of Jupiter Lord of the ninth; From the first Direction the Native will be inclinable to Learning or some other Discipline, afterwards; by the second he will be lyable to dangerous Sickness, which if he escape the third Direction will render him much addicted to Religion and of a very devotional temper, &c.

Fourthly, That since the Coelestial Figure at Birth is a thing stable and permanent, wherein casually and implicitely is contained the whole Life of the Native, with his Accidents; and that such Accidents admit of succession and order there must be some cause in Heaven thereof, which can be no other than the succession and order of the Promittors potentially determined, in respect of the Anticedent Significators; for all determination potential tends of itself to an actual, i.e. the Planets and their Aspects are to be reduced from this potential Determination to Act, which is done by the first Revolution of the first Heaven that begins at the Moment of Birth; by which by such Natural Revolution every Promittor is brought to the Circle of Position, which each Significator possessed at that Moment of Birth, the same is actually determined to produce an effect at some time according to the Significators nature and scituation, whereby according to the several natural Directions of the Promitor to the several Antecedent Significators, there is a Vertue successively impressed on the Native as a suppliment of the Universal impression at Birth, and which doth explain its particular Fate; and efficatiously combines and orders the same, according to the series of time.

Fifthly, Now the effects of a Direction cannot be produced at the very Moment of the Nativity, because then the Promittor is not actually in the place of the Significator, but only potentially; and therefore its effects afterwards brought into Act by successive Motion, about so many Years from the Genesis, as the Promittor is distant degrees of the Aequator from the Circle of Position of the Significator; the reason whereof is thus, viz.

I. The determinative Vertue of the Houses to divers kinds of effects is known by Experience, now the Cusps of the Houses are Circles of Position; and that Circle of Position on which the Planet or other Significator falls at the Moment of Birth, receives from such a Planet, or Significator a peculiar Vertue in respect of the Native, concerning things belonging to that House, according to the Nature and state of such a Planet, and this Vertue is impressed in the Native at the Moment of Birth; and therefore when the Promittor by the first Revolution of the first Heaven is brought to the same Circle, it is determined for the producing an effect at some certain time, as aforesaid; and the Vertue of such determination being made by successive Motion, is likewise impressed on the Native; and there being both in Heaven and the Native such a Concourse and Union of the Promittors and Significators Vertues as they are successively in the same Circle of Position; it thence comes to pass that in the time marked out by the Ark of that Motion something happens to the Native of the nature of the Significator and Promittor in things essentially signified by that House, wherein such a Circle of Position is found, and from all which it is evident.

Sixthly, That though the Terms of Directions remain fixed, and unmovable in the Heavens, yet their effects may be produced on Earth, viz. in Man, because by the Radical Influx of the Coelestial Figure at the Moment of Birth, and the first Revolution of Heaven afterwards, there is made, and impressed on the Native a Concourse of these Terms, efficacious for the producing effects at a certain designed and limited time, viz. after so many annual Revolutions of the Sun. as the Ark of Direction contains of his Diurnal ones, or thereabouts. Thus it appears that the effects of a Direction is not produced solely by the impression made at the Moment of Birth, nor from Heaven alone, but from both conspiring; and that too not without the actual Concourse of annual (and monthly) Revolutions and Transits which are required; and again produces the Vertue of the Directions Imprinted at the Nativity into Act; and thence it comes to pass that the effects not always happen precizely at the time signified by the Ark of Direction, but are sometimes hastened, or retarded, and fall out before, or after it.

Seventhly, a Significator is nothing but a Coelestial substance, i.e. a part of Heaven, or a Planet signifying of itself, by reason of its Determination, concerning some kind of Accidents of a Native; whence it is also said to be the Significator of such a kind of Accident, so far as the same is to be effected by the Direction. Hence it appears there are so many Significators for Directions, as there are Planets and Houses; to which if we add the Part of Fortune, there will be twenty in all.

Eighthly, but note by Planets we mean not the Bodies of the Planets, but their fixed places in Prime Mobile, or those parts of the Primum Mobile, determined to the nature of the said Planets at Moment of Birth; note farther that each Planet may have as many significations as it hath ways to be determined concerning the Native, as being in one House, and Lord of another; it will signifie the different Accidents belonging to each of those Houses and therefore shall be Directed for them both; so also every kind of Accident hath several Significators, as Life by the Horoscope and its Lord, or a Planet in the first or its dispositor, &c.

Ninthly, a Promissor is a part of the Primum Mobile, determined concerning some certain kind of those Accidents happening to a Native or the second Term of a Direction, as it by itself presages something to come concerning anything represented by the Significator, or to the Native in respect of such a Subject; as Mars concerning Life represented by the Horoscope, portends danger to the Natives life (or to the Native in respect of his Life) by some Disease, Wound, or Death &c.

Of the Measure of Time in Directions.

I. Ptolomy's Measure is for every degree of the Aequator, to allow one year, and for every minute 6 days, 2 hours 6 minutes. And so 365 days 6 hours contain one whole degree, or 60 minutes, as appears by this following Table:

This Opinion of Ptolomy's, (as to the Measure of Time in Directions) continued without contradiction, until the last Age.

II. Then Antonius Maginum, a Learned Italian and Mathmatitian, began to question it (as Mr. Lilly relates) and affirms that the Measure of Time ought to be taken from the true and apparent Motion of the Sun, and not from his simple Motion; as you may read in Maginus his Primum Mobile, Fol. 51. So then he concludes that the difference between the Sun's Right Ascention at the Birth, and the same hour and minute the next day following, shall be the Measure of Time for a Year. By which Method a Table may be fitted to any particular Geniture, or you may see a general Table thereof, page 711, of Christian Astrology; this Measure hath been in great esteem with some able Artists of this Nation.

III. But a third Measure of Time (now generally approved as best) is that of Valentine Naibod, a singular Mathematician; which is grounded upon the Sun's mean Motion, to be the Measure of Time for a Year. And by that Rule one whole degree gives one year, 5 days, 8 hours and 59 minutes, 8 seconds gives one compleat Year; and so every minute gives 6 days and about 4 hours. A Table whereof you may see in the following pages.

IV. This last Measure by all Modern Authors approved as the best, and Maginis highly esteems of it, and looks upon it as the most certain Measure of Time hitherto made use of, and so do I. Now there is no considerable difference in any of those Measures of Time, and either of them may be used; for in some Nativities the one it may be will agree better than another, and therefore every Man may use the Measure which pleases him best.

Logar thereof is (3582) from whence subtract the Logist. Logar. of 59m. 8s. (the Sun's Mean Diurnal Motion), viz. (63) and the remaindor is (3519), the Logist. Log. of 26d. 41m. This 26d. is 26 years and 41 min. in Ptolomy's Table gives 249 dayes, 14h. 6m. & sic in aljis.

The use of this Table is plain and easie, thus, viz.

I. Let the Ark of Direction be supposed 29d. 30m. Seek 29 under the Title, Ark of Direction, and against it I find 25m. which is always to be added to the Ark of Direction given; and it makes the former Number 29d. 44m. the Aequated Arch. So then I conclude that at 29 years 11 months the Direction will hit. And the compass of a Month either before or after the Direction, you may notwithstanding conclude the Native is exactly Rectified; for indeed it is as near as an Artist will presume to go, though many times it may fall out nearer, but very rarely.
