By ROSE CAMPBELL STARR

The year is new.
The days go by on steadier, surer wings.
Pandora-like, we find that Life, that left such stings
Has yet for us new Hope, and wide the doorway flings.

Hope heals old hurts, and tells of better things:
Of warmer lands, and fresher, purer springs.
Youth is renewed again and each heart sings.
The year is new.

And that applies to this year, of 1934, more than to most other years. For this is a number 17—"the Star of the Magi"—which, according to ancient kabbalism, is symbolized by "A young girl with one foot upon the Sea and the other upon the Earth; she represents Truth and holds two cups from which flow Kindness and Charity, the balm that alleviates human suffering. The Sea represents the bitterness of the days of sorrow. Over the young girl shines an eight-pointed star, a double symbol of the Universe and of the divine Trinity; at its center is found a white pyramid united to another pyramid—a black one and upside down. This is the emblem of the great occult law which is worded as follows: 'That which is above is like that which is below.' Seven smaller stars represent the seven Planets of Ancient Astrology. Next to the woman there is a flower with three blossoms and above the upper one a butterfly opens its wings."

This means, according to the interpretation, that there is hope for every one of us—it is not "too late" for any! Every human passion of anger, fear, hate, desire, envy, revenge, avarice and any like emotion can be directed gradually but surely to higher channels, purified by the suffering it has itself engendered, and transformed by its white brother Kindness.

Today many are in a confused state—they are at doubt regarding the orthodox faith of their childhood yet stand hesitant before accepting the philosophy of the new veiled occult orders or individualistic doctrines. But there is one thing we can retain of the old order, and that is the Christ philosophy. And that may be summed up in one little word—kindness; a kind and charitable thought direct from our hearts, a friendly word to our fellowmen, regardless of how lowly their station or how great their transgressions. In this way we may bring out the best in others and in ourselves.

"Imaged, we see
All things divine;
Give, and they shall be
Yours and mine."

So, this year of 1934, let us plant in our hearts a small seed from the great tree of Kindness and see if, before the year is over, it has not germinated and returned to us in abundance.

Around the World

WORLD CONDITIONS

During

JANUARY, 1934

General Indications

One of the most important configurations of the entire year (1934) is formed during this month of January. We refer to the conjunction of Mars and Saturn January 17 at 2:00 p.m., E.S.T., 16/14 Aquarius.

A detailed analysis of general nature and tendencies of this aspect will be found on page 30 of this issue. It is not necessary that this analysis be repeated here. Our present concern is with the probable specific influence of this conjunction upon the various Nations of the Earth.

It should be of great interest to all Astrological Students to know that a MERCATOR MAP OF THE WORLD and the HEAVENS has recently been completed which definitely fixes the Zodiacal Longitude of each Locality on the surface of the earth. This is the map advertised on page 7 of this issue. In our opinion this Map, which is based upon a celestial orientation of the Great Pyramid, provides what is probably the most authentic WORLD HOROSCOPE obtainable and it fixes the true meridian of Washington, D. C. at the present time 17/18 Aquarius (The Ascendant for that locality being 11/01 Gemini). The conjunction of Mars and Saturn above referred to in 16/14 Aquarius is thus only slightly more than one degree removed from the Meridian of Washington, and very close to the seventh cusp (International Relations) Southern Europe. The path of this seventh house influence from the Equator to 60 N. may be traced by a diagonal line from about 7 degrees east to 22 W. crossing the Meridian of Greenwich at a point about 17 N. Latitude.

By the same method the FIRST HOUSE influence of this conjunction may be traced diagonally over the earth's surface from 172 W. at the Equator to 146 W. at 60 N. The line of influence at its northern extremity comes quite close to Skagway, Alaska, while at 21 N. it comes within close orb of the Hawaiian Islands. The FOURTH HOUSE influence of this conjunction may be fixed at approximately 90 E. / Calcutta, India (88 E.) is quite close to this Meridian. We might at this time mention that the transit of Pluto over the true Meridian of Delhi, India, during the past couple of years is very significant in view of political conflicts that have disturbed that country.

UNITED STATES

Referring to the locality charts of this nation, which, as above stated, gives 17/18 Aquarius as the true Meridian of Washington, D. C., we find that approximately 2 degrees of Capricorn coincides with the west coast. Mars entered Capricorn November 18th, which from this point of view means that Mars in its transit through the Terrestrial Zodiac contacted the west coast of America at that time and would, therefore, be in transit over this nation from the middle of November until approximately the end of January, overtaking and conjuncting Saturn on January 17th at a point precisely over the meridian of Washington, D. C. It is interesting to reflect on the sudden outbreak of mob violence on the West Coast late in November coinciding with the transit of Mars into this country at that time, and which subsequently spread gradually eastward as Mars continued its progress over the nation and towards the east coast. Furthermore, from this point of view we may also conclude that these tendencies are not likely to abate so long as this Mars transit over the United States continues. On the contrary this and an attendant crime wave is likely to increase in violence during the next few weeks and reach its maximum of intensity during the middle of January and in the Eastern States.

Those responsible for the safety of the President may be warned that special precautions will be required this month and especially during the week of January 15th.

Apart from this the Government of the United States, generally speaking, will be passing through a very critical period during this month and A governmental crisis is indicated. It appears that the President may find Congress very difficult to deal with and strangely enough this conflict does not appear to be entirely over the money question.

Briefly a month of much excitement with the people of the nation in quite a restless, rebellious and lawless mood. The weather during the second and third week of January is likely to be extremely cold and stormy in the eastern section of the country and there is a danger of heavy loss of life through public disasters of various kinds.

EUROPE

The British Parliament would seem to be in for quite a stormy session particularly over questions of Foreign Policy. The British Government may be confronted with the necessity of making a rather unpleasant decision involving the European situation and the party in power would appear to be in a very precarious position over this matter. The Department of Foreign Relations is likely to be much disturbed by the Mars-Saturn conjunction, which, indirectly constitutes a threat against this nation through a former European Ally. There may be an excellent opportunity for becoming involved in a European conflict, which, however, will probably be averted, though by a narrow margin.

France and Germany may reach an impassé at this time and the situation appears to be quite critical. France is likely to make quite a drastic move, both with regard to her foreign relations and also her Money Problem.

An important Governmental change in Germany is probable this month.

The solar conjunction with Mercury, January 20th, takes place very close to the meridian of Berlin and almost exactly on the meridian of Vienna. This conjunction with the lunation being so heavily afflicted is likely to result in a sharp exchange of messages between these nations. In fact, generally speaking, it appears that the European Dictators (and would-be Dictators) are likely to have a fine time dictating (to each other) this month. Briefly, this configuration may be accepted as a symbol of AN ULTIMATUM, the source of which will be close to the meridian of Berlin. We believe that great changes will take place among the governments of Europe this month, but, by reason of the fact that Mars is not directly involved with the Lunation and since the conjunction of Mars and Saturn while destructive in itself, is yet in good aspect to Jupiter and Uranus, we would hesitate to definitely forecast an autbreak of hostilities at this time. But, my friends, the situation is very dangerous—literally packed with T. N. T.—the least disturbance might touch it off. We must, however, not forget the importance of the major planets in determining the outcome of such a crisis, and we do not feel that the major aspects are such as to indicate a major conflict just yet. The opposition of Jupiter and Uranus is admittedly an aspect of conflict and of great significance, but, we also feel that the position of Saturn at this time is such as to hold this in check.

FAR EAST

The temporary meridian of Shanghai calculated by cyclic progression for January 15th, is 8 degrees Taurus. Which gives 13/39 Leo on the Ascendant and places the Mars-Saturn conjunction almost exactly on the cusp of the seventh house—the department of foreign relations. This could be accepted as a definite threat of foreign invasion during the month of January.

Astrology and Trade Depression

By WILLIAM J. TUCKER

One of the greatest fallacies into which the general public and astrologers alike fall is to regard Astrology as a philosophy of fatalism. Fatalism is a doctrine that is as fatal to Astrology as was the fortune-telling of the charlatans.

Throughout the ages Astrology has been corrupted by superstition, mysticism, and charlatanism; and the whole subject has been so overloaded with rubbish of that kind that it is high time a clearance were made in order that Astrology may at last take its rightful place as the key-science of the sciences.

To be in a position to predict the incidence of future events we must first be able to determine with great exactness what precise influence is exerted by each of the heavenly bodies on the earth and on the things in the earth.

Now can anyone doubt when he learns all about the cyclical motions of the planets comprising the solar system that they are there by design and not by chance? The earth itself is but a planet—a sort of flying carpet traveling through space at an incredible speed, simultaneously turning on its own axis at an equally amazing speed. And, by virtue of the law of inertia, it would continue for ever in a straight line at the same speed were it not for the attracitve power of the Sun—an attractive power that is so nicely balanced that it pulls the huge mass of the earth around itself in an orbital ellipse—the most perfect example of perpetual motiou conceivable.

But that attractive force is not the only way in which the Sun influences the earth. The Sun is, in fact, the source of all vitality that exists on the earth, and without the energy that it radiates to the earth, life on this planet would be impossible.

Through its light and heat, then, the Sun unquestionably influences the earth; and through its attractive force it holds the earth to itself at the angle and distance that is calculated to prove the most beneficial and the least harmful. Who would be bold enough to dispute these facts?

Now it will be proved in due course—at least by inference—that the Sun does not radiate the same quantity of energy continuously to the earth, but that the amount is variable and follows definite cyclical phases.

Life is just like that—an everlasting series of cycles. Take for instance the basic cycle of life which begins with the radiation of the Sun's energy to the earth. The planets of the earth, by virtue of the chlorophyll in their green leaves, succeed in making the light-energy of the Sun perform the work of breaking up the molecules of carbon-dioxide that exist in the air by means of the process which scientists call photo-synthesis. As a result the planets are able to assimilate the carbon which is in turn vital to animal life. Along comes the animal and feeds on the plants. In that way the animal gets the carbon that it needs for the growth and development of its own body. Then another function of the animal is to breathe, for every animal requires oxygen if it is to live. It breathes in air, extracts the oxygen, and respires—carbon dioxide. Just the very compound that is so vital to plant life.

Let us now turn our attention to another very important cycle, which, by the way, is one that is vitally affecting us at the present day. I refer to what Mr. John Mills in his day termed a "credit cycle."

Trade depressions occur with unfailing regularity, and are not—as some people seem to think—a product peculiar to the present day.

As long ago as 1878 Professor Jevons wrote: "There is at present (Feb. 1878) the great depression of trade which marks the completion of one cycle and the commencement of a new one." And he proceeded to analyze the trade cycle. He pointed out that a credit cycle lasts for 10 to 11 years and that it consists on the average of three years of depressed trade, followed by three years of healthy trade, followed by two years of excited trade. In the ninth year a bubble rapidly forms which, in the tenth year, is pricked and ends in collapse.

It remains to record that it was Professor

Jevons also who pointed to the connection between sunspots on the Sun and corresponding events on the earth, for he perceived that the periods of the recurrance of the maximum sunspots coincided with the good vintage years on the continent of Europe and the droughts in India—which likewise recur every ten or eleven years.

A sunspot is actually a cyclonic storm-centre of incandescent gases which sometimes extends to 50,000 miles in diameter, and it is precisely at the maximum-sunspots-period that the sun radiates the maximum of energy to the earth. This results in exceptionally fruitful harvests and a consequent increase of wealth. Following Professor Jevons' trade cycle analysis, there are few, and a time when there are many—a time of intense activity and a time of quiescence. And at the time of quiescence—during which spots may be totally absent from the Sun's disc for several weeks—there is usually a falling off in the Sun's heat with consequent poor harvests and commercial derangements.

The year of sunspot maximum can now be predicted as being a year when great magnetic storms and vivid auroras are to be expected, also cyclones.

The next maximum-sunspot year is 1938, the last being in 1927. But before the reader ventures on a prediction as to the year of prosperity, he should bear in mind that things are not always what they seem, and the study of the credit cycle is not as simple as at first sight appears.

The year in which sunspots are at their maximum—which, as stated previously, is a year of fruitful harvests—does not necessarily result in an immediate increase of wealth, for the harvests must first be sold. At first the normal demand is met at the existing relatively-high prices; and it is only when the demand has been satisfied that the market price will begin to show an appreciable drop. But this takes time and carries the effect over to the following year.

With the money in his possession from the profitable sale of his harvest, the farmer begins to spend lavishly, or, alternatively, to invest his surplus wealth. Thus the action of the world's farmers sets the wheels of industry moving with ever-increasing rapidity—until the crucial speed is reached at which the flywheels burst. Once this has happened the machinery instantly slows down to come eventually to a standstill.

But prosperity is due to a primary cause, whereas collapse is due to secondary causes.

Now Astrology can predict effects due to primary causes, but it cannot predict with any degree of accuracy the effects due to secondary causes. The deed of to-day does not necessarily produce its retribution forthwith. Both causes and effects have to be classified into groups and their cycles ascertained. A seed, for instance, when sown will presently grow, blossom forth, and produce its fruit at the end of a certain definite span of time and in the right season. But one seed will not grow and flower in the same period (or necessarily in the same season) as another seed of a totally different species. Each species follows the law of its own cycle.

Bearing these facts in mind, we will endeavor to trace out the trade-cycle in its relation to the sunspots-cycle.

1927 was the last maximum-sunspots year; and the year of maximum is invariably the first of the two years of excited trade for the reason already given. Therefore 1928 was the second year of excited trade.

This gives 1929 as the year of the bubble, and, as everyone knows, the great American slump came in the autumn of that year. This was followed by the year of collapse—1930. Then followed three years of depressed trade, namely, 1931, 1932, and 1933.

1934 is the minimum-sunspots year and the first of the three years of healthy trade. Each succeeding year—1935 and 1936—will be better than its predecessor for the reason that the sunspots will gradually increase in volume with each succeeding year.

The fall of 1937 will probably see the beginning of the period of excited trade, 1938 being the year of maximum sunspots.

Now we come to the question: what causes a collapse? Well, the fact is that when a farmer has experienced several successive seasons of abundance and ever-increasing harvests, and is meanwhile making many profitable investments, he is optimistic that the following year will be even better. But instead of that being the case, severe weather conditions set in — droughts in one place, blights in another, crops destroyed by pests and fungus in another—and the harvests fail.

In a panic, the farmer sells out his investments and sets about economizing. The resultant effects upon industry may well be imagined.

Meanwhile the same thing is happening to the merchants. They have had such a profitable time during the years of plenty that the peak of the bubble finds them holding inflated stocks which they have obtained on long-term credit—liabilities which inevitably fall due for settlement in the very year of collapse! The bubble is pricked, the values of the stocks slump heavily, and voila! the difference between the original cost and the market price resolves itself into a capital loss for the individual merchant.

Our merchant either becomes bankrupt or, by securing a composition with his creditors, manages to survive. But in either case the practical result is the same: the loss is someone's and the bulk of the staff has to go. In that manner the ranks of the unemployed become swollen and the country's purchasing power simultaneously lowered. And it must be remembered that the same phenomenon is being repeated in every country in the world. This, in turn, leads to intense nationalism.

It is easy to pursue the repercussions throughout the vast ramifications of industry; but sufficient has now been stated to disclose the initial causes of a collapse.

Fortunately there is an end to all things and a time when recovery begins; because despite all loose talk about national bankruptcy the fact remains that it is impossible for any large country—let alone the world—to become bankrupt. For this reason the natural resources of the soil still remain, together with the labor to exploit them. Further, man has needs which cry out for satisfaction. Hence, once the farmer has set his house in order the economic outlook begins to change.

Now that one of the principle cycles has been studied on its merits, it must be observed that the incidence of the sunspots-cycle—or any other cycle for that matter—can be, and frequently is, disturbed by the incidence of a cycle of a totally different nature. Wars, revolutions, political disturbances, etc., are the effects of certain cycles which, when they occur out of phase with the sunspots-cycle, are calculated to upset to a greater or lesser extent the plain sailing of the trade-cycle.

This is another fact which has to be borne in mind when essaying the prediction of world events.

THE MAP OF THE WORLD AND THE HEAVENS

On Mercators Projection

Where on Earth is Aries? Vega? Taurus? Antares? This map brings them down to earth and locates them as easily as any geographical point. The most surprising, informative, and fascinating sheet of paper ever printed is yours for a small coin.

Here in this one spread is a wealth of astronomical and astrological information never before available. Think of it! The geographical locations of zodiacal signs, constellations, chief stars, the true meridians of places, and the story of the World and Mankind at a glance, with necessary tables and examples of application.

If you are a student of the stars you will want it for its table of hour-angles that finds them every hour of the day, every day of the year. If a student of astrology you will find it invaluable in explaining why horoscopes so often work out contrarily. You will be amazed at how unfailingly it clears up difficult charts.

Hindu Astrology

FORECAST FOR JANUARY, 1934

Translated by PRITAM SINGH GILL, B.A.

Note:—The following forecast is a translation from Urda (Hindustani) of the monthly forecast according to the rules of Hindu Astrology as given in the Mashur-i-Alam Jantry (World Renowned Almanac) published annually at Lahore, India, by Girdhari Lal, Hindu astrologer.

FORECAST
April 1934—April 1935

1. The ruling planet for this year is Venus. Grain will be cheaper in the beginning of the year, dear in the latter part. Fruits will be in abundance. People will turn their attention more and more towards the appreciation of real music. Their thoughts will be diverted more towards luxuries than necessities. Men and women in general will cooperate with each other in public life. There will be plenty of rain for the crops. More girls will be born this year than boys.

2. Literary people will get more recognition. Attempts will be made to kidnap and murder women more than men.

3. The influence of Jupiter is especially favorable for the production and consumption of juicy fruits. People will enjoy more comforts this year than the year before.

4. Agriculture is ruled by the moon this year. There will be plenty of rainfall. Rice, milk and other dairy products will be plentiful.

5. Military affairs and wealth are ruled respectively by Jupiter and Sun. Trade between nations will improve. Speculation in cattle, hogs, etc., will prove beneficial.

6. Mercury rules sweets—sugar will go higher in prices.

7. Grain is governed by Saturn. Fires will destroy grain and other foodstuff warehouses. There will be many daring holdups and thefts. Sickness will be on the increase.

8. Moon rules metals. White metals such as silver, lead, zinc, etc., should go up in price.

9. A Lunar Eclipse (January and July, 1934) will have an adverse effect upon older people.

MIRROR OF THE SKY
For January, 1934

If there is thunderburst and lightning on January third, prices of grain will go down soon, but only temporarily. If on January 7 clouds appear in the sky there will be a good deal of rain (in colder regions, of course, rain will turn into snow). If there are thunders on the night of January 12th, then the months of July and August will be without much rain. If on January 17th the sun is hidden all day in the clouds, alfalfa, oats, barley and forage will be up in price. If it rains on January 26th, grains in general will be cheaper. If it is cloudy on January 29th then grains and other foodstuffs will show a tendency towards higher prices in April and May of this year.

2. General:

Silver, copper, nickel will go up in price; gold will maintain a steady price level; butter, sugar, rice, milk will go up, while spices in general will keep fluctuating, as also will cotton and its products. Maize, barley and Indian corn will have a tendency to go down in price while wood, coal and tobacco will go up. Unexpected cases of fever will crop up in different parts of the country. Relations between husbands and wives will become abnormal and even threatening. Higher attitudes will have an unusually cold weather. There is a great deal of danger indicated from earthquake, especially in the southwestern portion of the country.

Kabbalism of American History

PART III

Third Century and Decade 1853

By PAUL COUNSIL

The year of 1853 was the most epochal one in the brief history of the new-born race. It marked its coming of age. In convulsions of leashed power it greeted its Third Century and 21st Decade of life. In the age of nations this is just as significant as in the age of mortals. Physical maturity was reached, whereupon the right to survive had to be proven. Overflowing rapidly with freedom-loving souls from the four quarters of the earth, the country was seething with sectional hatreds. All its multiphase complexes, repressions and elemental urges; its desires and passions from inconceivably diverse soils; and the wild new freedom of its pathfinders and conquerors combined into a veritable blast-furnace of dynamic, intolerant, and inflammable personalities. It was a panorama of the most terrifying grandeur. The infant race of Aquarius was to receive its baptism in fire.

Ruling the "Nation's Business" (see 4th number of chart), Libra demands order and harmony, and unhesitantly goes to war to attain it. Its first "business," therefore, was that of whipping its discordant children into submission to the good of the whole and thus perfect the Union on which order and harmony depend. The numbers of its name resounded to the skies in a mighty diapason of confederated purpose. In the plasm of the cosmic egg, the United States of America was ordained to throw the protecting wings of Aquila over the whole new world from pole to pole. But as a polyglot of fledgling nations such a destiny would be defeated, and that was above the power of human pride and venality to bring about.

The Gadsden Purchase of 1853, that little strip of northwestern Mexico, completed the second century of organic formation. The Number 2 of Virgo finished its work of determining the continental boundaries of the Nation. For one hundred years the indomitable children of Aries had hewn and fought their way into every corner of it. Next they broke it down into political subdivisions designedly compatible with the temperaments of those who had settled them. And there the trouble began, for interstate friction forthwith developed. One compromise after another were but nostrums which cured nothing. Finally it became self-evident that States' Rights must forever be subordinate to the Union. With the utmost resolution and in the clearest words, Lincoln voiced the implacability of the Number 3 in his inaugural address:

"No state of its own mere motion can go out of the Union. . . . The Union is unbroken and, to the extent of my ability, I shall take care that the laws of the Union be faithfully executed in all states. The power confided in me will be used to hold, occupy and possess the property and places belonging to the Government."

In the tenseness of the moment it was virtually an ultimatum. The gage of battle thrown down by South Carolina April 12, 1861, rallied the Southern Confederacy, and the greatest internecine war in history began.

But memory is short when "action" is the keynote of the times. The energy-force-power of Libra turned from war to constructive pursuits. In this the work of its number 3 has been magnificent beyond description. An industrial and sociological development never before approximated has been accomplished like Jack's beanstalk—seemingly between suns. And what can we learn of it that will steer the future safely?

The Trinity of Man and of Nations are exactly analogous. The Soul is the assimilative center where inspiration and sensation are generated into action. Spirituality is its cosmic, inspirational, positive pole; organic form is its mundane, sensational, negative, opposite. The electrical generator illustrates the process. Impulses oscillating between these poles are transformed by the generative Idealism of the Soul into conduct, character, and destiny. Therefore, to learn the real character of a people, we must unlock history with the Two Keys of the Kabbala. The activities of its Trinity and the conditions, influences, and circumstances with which it has coped then become a clearly defined chain of cause and effect by which the repetition of unhappy pages of experience can be circumvented by the will and intelligence of Man.

The Soul of the United States of America is attuned to the Number 9, corresponding the sign Aquarius. Since as we have seen the Soul is the wellspring of conduct, Aquarius represents the ultimate Government of this Nation, hence our history must be read to this number to be of the highest value in its future administration. For this is the cosmic field of vibration wherein the spiritual and physical impulses of the people gestate the unwinding future. Figuratively it is the womb of the Nation wherein the sperm of Aries meets the germ of Scorpio of which oncoming generations are born.

Aquarius, symbolized as the Water Bearer of the Zodiac, represents archetypal Man—the human type promised in the Genesis of Creation. It is Man produced in God's image from the multiphase forms implanted in the Cosmic Egg by the Divine Imagination. There is nothing to tax the intellect in this. It is merely Natural Law at work in human life, in which every phase confirms our present blind subservience to the Cosmic Plan. Sometimes called the "Sign of the Son of Man," Aquarius is directly related to the life and works of the founder of the Christian religion. "And then shall appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven" (Matthew XXIV-30) would have no appeal to reason except as a prophecy of world conditions when the precession of the equinox carried the Solar Family into Aquarius, still over two hundred years hence. Aside from that, however, untold generations of humanity have known the cosmic function of Aquarius. It is the sign of fellowship, human equality and the universal brotherhood; of freedom and tolerance; of love balanced with wisdom; of social progress and radical principles of government. As the next quadrantal race since the Egyptian, the cosmic function of America is that of leading the world into the Promised Land of which the Sign of the Son of Man is the revelation. But the function of Aquarius, along with all cosmic forces, has its immature phases of manifestation in the evolution of mineral to God. Ancient ruins tell of both the cave-man and the spiritual giant. As a race we still have far to go.

We obtain the first glimpse of the elemental function of Aquarius in the words of the Son of Man, "I come not to bring peace, but the sword." Natural Law has no code but the economic. In the business of the Universe, Growth is the prime result and Freedom is the essence of it. Concerning nothing save this elemental function of Aquarius can this Nation be found warlike. Freedom from every form of oppression is the norm of its religious code, quite too often absurdly mistaking the oppressor for the oppressed or the victim for the offender in its solicitude. And this was the dynamical force behind the war-making 3 of Libra in propagating the frightful events of the decade as well as other eventualities of its 3rd century with which there are now twenty years more to deal. That the Nation's testing is complete is an illusion loaded with disaster. To fulfill its function, it must climb to levels of refinement that now are far above our comprehension. In the materialization of that, a consciousness of our destiny is the prime generator of force.

It must be apparent to all thinking people that the facts of history have taught us little. Certainly nothing akin to a Destiny Consciousness has so far emerged from the monstrous bulk of priceless experience which our history has accumulated. The political philosophy of the generation has no other foundation than "muddle along." So far from aspiring to the fourth dimension of thought, from which vision springs, our last President took refuge in disclaiming the power to see six months ahead, sneering at the crystal gazers, astrologers, and fortune-tellers who pretended they could. Whether they could or not takes nothing from the glory of having tried. In any event if a given set of coordinates are significant in relation to certain pages of history, certainly their cyclic repetition is reliable when history is found to coincide therewith. It is on this principle that the arcane significance of the Civil War decade may be brought into the service of the future, which, with like contributions from other pages of history, will finally reveal to us there is a future to be prepared for.

Then only can we say that we are on the road to becoming a great nation.

In the multitude of astrological factors shown in the accompanying chart, one stands out as the ultimate and fundamental cause of the war. It was the unionizing power of Libra making war for the freedom of the Nation's Aquarian soul. It was a due process of nature by which its maturity would be attained. Precious little altruism and humanitarianism entered into it, and all honor is due to Lincoln for making no pretense to them. In his inaugural address he further said: "I have no purpose, directly or indirectly, to interfere with the institution of slavery in the states where it exists." The subordination of states rights and the abolition of slavery were merely the tokens of progress in the emancipation of the Nation's soul from the anarchy within its body on the one hand and slave competition with free-born men on the other. And Lincoln was a number 9 man, in perfect rapport with cosmic will in our national development. The maintenance of the Nation's organic form was the cause to which he finally gave his life. Over and over he said with every possible variation that not a square foot of the country should separate itself from the whole.

Touching briefly on astrological and kabbalistical authority for this treatment of history of that period, the preservation of the Nation is sealed in the dominant position of Aquarius in the horoscopes and the kabbalistic cycle. The horary chart has progressed to the exact coincidence of its angles with the precessional angles of the World Chart of Washington for 1776. The middle degree of Aquarius on the meridian (Government), the eighth and Uranian degree of Gemini ascending (Commonwealth). By converse motion, the middle degree of Pisces (Social Justice) was on the meridian, trine Sun radix in Cancer; the sixth degree of Cancer rising and in exact conjunction with Jupiter radix; and the Sun, Venus, and Jupiter in Aries, the over-ruling genius of the Nation. The test of the Nation's power to survive was no more than a normal phase of growth. It had to come, though the outcome of the war could never have been anything else.

The interacting forces that timed the eventualities of the decade are to be found in the kabbalistic cycle.

Since there is no escape from the formula that life is but the realization of aspirations, Mars in the 7th position tells what the country will realize for the year, the decade, and the century. From war to intense economic activity, Mars is the ultimate power factor of aggressive and dauntless action. It will easily be seen that the constructive (Mars) aspirations of the people would be checked until the requirements of Libra (order, harmony, and cooperative effort) were met. Immediately upon the induction of the cycle, war clouds began to gather—the Missouri Compromise of 1854 being the warning signal of the hurricane that was to come. Sectionalism became rabid. The disintegration of the Nation began in the insidious process which the Missouri Compromise betokened and before which a feeble Government was helpless.

When the Governmental number came under Aquarius, with Aquarius on the meridian, and Gemini with Uranus on the ascendent, political focus changed in a convulsively radical way. The Democratic Party was eclipsed and the Government given over to the Republican ideas of political economy. The election of 1856 was the phenomenon of it. The numbers of John C. Fremont were in exact accord with those of the country. He was its idol; and as the candidate of the Republican Party, then but two years old, gave Buchanan the fight of his life to win. It was the last time the Democratic Party, strictly as such, won, save in the decade of 1883 under the Government of the 12 (the ruling number of that party). Even then the majestic figure of Cleveland suggests that it was a popular rather than a party victory, as also was the answer of the people in the election of 1932. The progressive element embraced the Republican cause; the reactionary, the Democratic, between which two nations speedily materialized.

In 1860 came Lincoln, a man of Aquarius, Saturn, and Venus. According to their numbers, the Republican Party, John C. Fremont, and Abraham Lincoln faithfully personified the idealiam "vox populi, vox Dei." The number 6 Venus, planetary ruler of Libra and organic perfection, dominated them. For January, 1934

An HOUR GUIDE for every day, by which it is possible to determine the BEST HOUR of any given Day for commencing or consummating any specific undertaking.

By acting at the RIGHT TIME, we reduce the chanes of error to a minimum. It must be understood that each influence becomes effective several hours in advance of the HOUR given, but decreases in power very rapidly after passing that hour. The extent of this interval varies widely for the various Planets involved. The Hours given may be accepted as a reliable guide if you will time your actions and decisions to be made as closely as possible to the Hour given. If it is not possible to act exactly at the Hour given then a time should be chosen which is EARLIER rather than LATER.

The Hours given below are EASTERN STANDARD TIME.
Residents of CENTRAL STATES should deduct 1 hour and 30 minutes from the time given.
Residents of WESTERN STATES should deduct 3 hours from time given.
Residents of EUROPE should add 5 hours to the time given.

THE LAWS OF MEDIUMSHIP

By C. C. ZAIN

Ed. Note—Many of our readers may already be familiar with the BROTHERHOOD OF LIGHT and the excellent courses in Astrology and other branches of OCCULT SCIENCE, published by them.

For the benefit of those who may not already be acquainted with this excellent School of Advanced Thought and for the instruction and assistance of all students we are, with the kind permission of the Publishers, re-printing the following Astrological text which we feel sure many readers of AMERICAN ASTROLOGY will find extremely interesting.

Those who desire further information relative to these manuscripts may obtain a complete catalogue of the Brotherhood of Light Courses and other publications by writing to P. O. Box 1525, Los Angeles, California.

The Soul that incarnates in human form has evolved up through innumerable lower forms of life, at each step gaining new experiences that enable it to be attracted to, and more or less successfully build about itself, a higher form. It now, along with other souls, exists on the astral plane. Whenever there is a ripened ovule in the female organism, one of the conditions is fulfilled for attracting a soul from the astral plane. The intense emotions of the sexual union raise the parents' vibrations to a state where they unconsciously are closely in touch with the astral plane. They actually attract entities from the astral plane to them at this time that correspond to the plane of their desires and emotions and the harmony or discord between them. They contact energies at this time that they do not at any other, which makes it exceedingly important that the motives be lofty and pure.

This astral plane, inhabited as it is by innumerable entities and forms of life, is not away off somewhere in space. It is all about us, and it requires but the proper conditions to be contacted at any time. Observation indicates, however, that astral substance does not communicate motion directly to physical substance. The difference in vibration between the two planes seems to be too great for such direct transmission. But the ether, whose vibrations seem to lie between those of physical substance and astral substance, performs the function of transmitting energy from the physical to the astral, and from the astral to the physical. This ether, so scientists believe, interpenetrates all physical substance and extends throughout all space.

Thus it is that a person on the astral plane may be able to impress the astral brain of a person still in the flesh with a message, but whether there will be any recognition of this message by the person in the flesh depends upon his ability to bring the knowledge of his astral experiences up into the region of objective consciousness. Such ability may be cultivated to a very fine degree of accuracy, but is only present without training in those persons called "sensitives." In this case the information within the astral brain is transmitted to the physical brain, through etheric vibrations, the process very greatly resembling memory. To be able to affect physical substance an astral entity must utilize etheric energy that is already associted with physical substance. Certain persons emanate etheric energy in large volumes, and in such a form that it can be used to transmit astral motions to atomic matter. Astral entities then use this etheric energy for the production of supernormal physical phenomena. And the person furnishing the excess of etheric energy is called a Medium.

It is this etheric energy that constitutes the vital principle of all physical life. When associated with minerals it is called Mineral events. And it is these trains of thought in the astral brain that the rays of the planets stimulate through imparting energy to the astral body.

The energy radiated by a given planet falls upon that portion of a person's astral body indicated by the degree and sign of the zodiac wherein the planet is located. Through that peculiar, sympathetic relation between the positions of the planets above and man's astral body—a relation easy to prove by observation—each planet's rays thus impart energy of a given quality to the astral body at a given point. In this manner the positions of the planets after birth act as points of stimulations, imparting additional energy to the astral body. Further, as the planets move forward in the zodiac, these points of stimulation, resulting from the rays of the planets, also move forward over the astral body. In this movement, from time to time, they reach stations where they form definite aspects among themselves, and also to the places of strong centers of energy—as revealed by their being occupied by planets in the birth-chart—in the astral body.

These aspects formed after birth, whether between the points of stimulation or between a point of stimulatoin and a strong center of energy already existing in the astral body, add energy to the astral body in a form that is distinctly harmonious or distinctly inharmonious. These harmonies or inharmonies within the astral body set up harmonious or inharmonious trains of thought in the astral brain, and attract external events that are correspondingly harmonious or inharmonious.

It would seem, however, that the astral body of a child is more plastic and receptive to astral vibrations during the early days and months of its life than when older. These energies received from day to day from the planets during the first few months of life certainly exert a far greater influence when released than energies received from the planets later. Further, the energies received from the planets from month to month during the first few years of life are found to exert a greater influence when released than the energies received from day to day in later life.

These energies received from the planets are not released immediately, but are stored up in the astral body and released by the revolution of the earth about the Sun. We need not be surprised at this cyclic release of energy, for we have hundreds of examples of the release of energy through cycles. When an egg is placed under a setting hen we may predict that the egg will hatch in a given number of days, or cycles. The incubation of the eggs of different birds and of different reptiles takes different cycles, but the eggs of the same species take the same number of days. We are not surprised when we plant corn to hear someone predict that in so many days it will be out of the ground, and in so many weeks it will tassel, and in so many months it will be in the milk, and that one hundred days from planting it will be mature. In these cases, and in a multitude of others that might be cited, the energy is released through cycles, gradually, not at once.

In the same way that we determine the cycles governing the different stages of development of the embryo in a duck-egg, and can thus make definite predictions from this knowledge, we also can determine the cycles governing the release of energy stored up after birth by the planets in the human astral body. That method is through observation.

Observation acquaints us with the fact that the most important energies released during one year of life are received from the planets during one day after birth. That is, those energies received during the first day are released during the first year of life, those received during the second day are released during the second year, those received during the third day are released during the third year, etc. Further, the energy received during the early part of any such day will be released in the early part of the year to which it corresponds, the time the energy was stored being in direct proportion to the time of its release. The ratio of this important rate of storing and releasing energy is that of One Apparent Solar Day after birth releasing energy proportionately during One Year of life. When the time that the planets release energy of a specific quality is determined by this proportion, the release is called a Major Direction.

Observation also instructs us that the next most important energies released during one year of life are received from the planets during One Astrological Month. That is, those Magnetism. As the vital element in vegetable life, binding together the cells and furnishing the motive power for the various vegetative functions, it is known as Vegetable Magnetism. In the animal kingdom it binds together the astral and the physical body, constitutes the vital energy and is known as Animal Magnetism. In man it performs a like function, and is known as Personal Magnetism. Its quality depends upon the organization of the physical life it vitalizes. It persists only so long as the astral counterpart and the physical are held together, forming the means by which energy is conveyed from the one to the other. At the death of the organism this etheric counterpart, or organization of ether, quickly dissipates as the physical particles disintegrate.

Now, nerve currents are etheric motions. And when the intense vibrations of sexual union create a vortex in the ether, this also creates a vortex in astral substance, and the field of force so created, if there is a ripened ovule in the female organism, attracts the soul of a child of corresponding vibration.

That is, the souls on the astral plane that have evolved through the various lower forms of life to a point where they are now ready for human incarnation, vary as greatly in quality as do the people of the world which they become. This variance is due to their having had a different polarity at differentiation, which, in the course of evolution, attracted them to widely different experiences and these divergent experiences organized different centers of energy in their astral bodies. From the cosmic standpoint such variety seems necessary, for if all had the same experiences, all would become fitted for the same task in cosmic construction, and it seems that cosmic needs are such as to require souls whose educations bring out a wide variety of talents. But however that may be, the astral bodies of different souls have been differently organized through experiences, and the vibrations of the parents at the time of union attract a soul whose astral body corresponds in vibratory rate to the vibrations set in motion by the parents.

If the general plane of the parents' thoughts are low, and particularly if they are on a low plane during union, the soul attracted will be of corresponding low moral bias. If their love vibrations are exalted, and the general level of their thoughts and aspirations high, a soul of high spiritual qualities will be attracted. The mental abilities of the soul attracted, as distinct from the moral, depend more upon the intensity of the union. And the physical strength and vitality depend more upon the harmony between the parents. The soul thus attracted is magnetically attached at the climax of the union to the physical ovule through the lines of energy set up in the ether.

The positive electric energies which are the foundation of the future child's vitality are furnished by the father. They are strong or weak as he is or is not virile and intense at the time of union. The receptive magnetic energies which are the foundation of the future child's constitution and general health are furnished by the mother. They are strong or weak as she is or is not virile and intense at the time of union. Upon the harmony between the parents, and the balance in intensity, depend the physical balance and in a measure the general success and happiness of the future child. That is, any discord or lack of balance between the parents in general, and especially at the time of union, will attract a soul in whose astral form are similar qualities. And these discordant centers of energy in its astral body will during life attract inharmony in environment and inharmonious events. Did parents but more fully understand the importance of complete harmony between them, certain souls now born into human form would be compelled to evolve higher upon the astral plane before incarnating, and there would be fewer children born with improper equipment for life.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Could you tell us what sort of weather to expect this coming summer, 1934?

ANSWER: We shall expect the temperature to be quite extreme during the summer of 1934. In fact, this year is very likely to set a record for severe and stormy weather during both winter and summer. It is probable that there may be some quite extraordinary electric storms during the late spring months.

The Lunation of April 13th takes place within 20 minutes (Zodiacal Longitude) of an exact conjunction with Mars in the 24th degree of Aries and both within 4 degrees of the transiting Uranus then in the 28th degree of Aries.

We find the Lunation of May 13th within the orb of Mars and in close conjunction with Mercury in the 23rd degree of Taurus, in fact the solar conjunction of Mercury only precedes the Lunation by 8 hours with Mars just 8 degrees away.

Finally, in July we find the Lunation of July 11th, conjunct Mercury, this time even closer than was that of May—the solar conjunction of Mercury only precedes the Lunation by 4 hours.

In this analysis two points stand out prominently: 1, The fact that Mars and Uranus are closely involved with a Lunation in the home sign of Aries, and 2, The unusual fact of two Lunations within close orb of a solar conjunction with Mercury, which planet undoubtedly has much to do with weather, since Mercury beyond question is indicative of atmospheric conditions. We are likely, therefore, to have "plenty of weather."

That Lunation of April 13th is revealed as a "hot spot" in more ways than one (not alone with respect to weather) but the storm centre seems to be focused on the May lunation, which might bring some very violent thunder storms during that month. The first week of July is likely to be marked by an extremely high temperature.

We should have some delightful weather during November, 1934, but what a long time to wait.

QUESTION: Have read in your December issue about physicians who use Astrology; could you please refer me to one?

ANSWER: You will be able to quite readily understand our position when we explain that it would be quite out of order for this magazine to recommend physicians; it is probable that the Medical Association would resent this very much.

The fact is we do have knowledge of physicians who use Astrology in the diagnosis of disease, naturally at the present time; however, such doctors are somewhat scattered. We would suggest that you communicate with Dr. H. J. Gordon, President of the National Astrological Association, Inc., P. O. Box 172, N. S. Pittsburgh, Penn. We feel that he would probably be in the best position to advise you on this matter.

QUESTION: Max Heindel in his book "Message of the Stars" says that the Equinox is now in about 9 degrees Pisces, Hiram Butler in his book "Solar Biology" says that by Heliocentric Astrology the Equinox by precession is 2 degrees in the sign Aquarius, as one degree amounts to 72 years it would be about 150 years since the Equinox entered Aquarius and in fact since that time about all inventions and improvements have been made. Can you explain to me by what rules he puts the Equinox in the sign Aquarius?

ANSWER: With regard to the Stellar position of the Vernal Equinox, there is a very wide difference of opinion and most of the conclusions you will find are speculative and purely assumptions. At the present time it seems to be generally agreed that the Zodiac coincided with the constellations at about 500 A.D., which would place the Vernal Equinox in approximately 9 degrees Pisces at this time, however, we do not necessarily consider this authentic. In our opinion, the present cycle probably commenced several hundred years prior to A.D. We have it on good authority that the signs and the constellations coincided in the time of Hipparchus, who lived 460-357 B.C. If we will place this period as roughly 500 B.C., then, at the rate of one degree in 72 years, in the intervening period of 2,420 years (up to 1920), the Vernal Equinox would move back to about the 28th degree of Aquarius, placing it 2 degrees in that sign; from that point of view, therefore, Dr. Butler is probably correct and it is also highly probable that this is the line of reasoning he followed in arriving at his deduction.

QUESTION: In a Horary Chart the East represents the plaintiff and the West the defendant and the tenth the court.

The jurors are paid by the county, but, ordered in by the court and subject to the orders of the court. What house would you say represents them?

Also the court reporter is appointed by the court, is paid by the state and is a state official, but, under the direction and subject to the orders of the court, what house would you say represents him?

ANSWER: It would be logical to accept the fourth house as indicative of the jury, inasmuch as they cooperate with the court and determine the end of the matter.

The court reporter would naturally, under the third house as the sixth house of the court and the twelfth house of the jury.

QUESTION: In your June issue, you speak of Saturn Transiting the "M. C." What do those initials stand for?

ANSWER: The letters "M. C." are an abbreviation of the words "Medium Coeli," which means the point of the Celestial Sphere exactly overhead, as viewed from any point on the surface of the earth, which is also referred to as the Zenith. In Astrological terminology, this is more frequently referred to as the "Midheaven," the letters "M. C." are merely used for purpose of convenience.

If we count ten departments (or houses) of the horoscope from the horizon, in an anti-clockwise direction, we would arrive at the Zenith. Therefore, if we place Taurus on the horizon we find Aquarius the tenth sign from Taurus (counting anti-clockwise) on the Zenith or Mid Heaven and with Saturn in transit through Aquarius this planet will, therefore, be in transit through the Mid Heaven (or the M. C.) of the sign Taurus.

QUESTION: My Hebrew birthday is Heshvan 27, 1885. What is my birth date according to an American calendar?

ANSWER: You were born on Thursday, November 5, 1885.

QUESTION: I was born in China on January 8th (Chinese date), 1914. Could you give me my birth date according to the American calendar?

ANSWER: You were born on February 2, 1914, by the American calendar. This American date will naturally be constant; that is, to say, by our reckoning your birth date is February 2nd of every year. It is only the Chinese date that changes from year to year, these variations being due to the fact that the Chinese calendar is a Lunar calendar. However, for purpose of Astrological calculations this may be ignored. Your birth date is February 2nd.

QUESTION: Could you tell me why from about June 21st to October 19th, 1933, you assigned a rulership or predominating influence to the ruler of the 9th house (solar) of all the signs? This point has mystified me completely, and unless this is a professional secret would very much appreciate an explanation. It certainly does seem to work and I am dying to know why.

ANSWER: We have no secrets. What we know is so small by comparison with what there is yet to learn and life is so short that we really have no time to be bothered with professional secrets—they only clutter up the place and retard progress.

The method by which we arrived at the conclusion you mention is really very simple. We merely apply Wynn's Key Cycle Method to the chart of the Vernal Equinox —ever hear of Wynn's Key Cycle? If you have not, you are missing something. We have found it very helpful in this respect and also very reliable in application to Natal Horoscopes. Full information regarding this Key Cycle Method may be obtained upon application to the Wynn Publishing Company, Carnegie Hall, New York City.

QUESTION: If planets are in good aspect at birth, then through life they are in bad aspect, do they have bad effects on the person or none at all, or do they only affect the person when they are in good aspect? Similarly, when in bad aspect at birth do they only affect the person when they are in bad aspect through life, or do the planets have good or bad effect on the person when the transiting planet aspects them in the birth chart?

ANSWER: Our experience has been that an aspect to the Natal planet merely brings out the natal aspects of that planet. For instance, a square aspect to a planet that is well aspected in the natal chart tends to stimulate that planet into action along the lines indicated by the natal aspects. The same is true when the transiting planet forms a harmonious aspect with the natal planet that is afflicted at birth. However, when we undertake to classify aspects as "good" or "bad" we are making a very rough classification. We cannot attempt to go into details on this point at this time, but the aspects are fully dealt with in our little booklet "Planets," details of which will be found on page 62 of the December issue of AMERICAN ASTROLOGY; the price of this booklet is 50c.

QUESTION: Please let me know which of your magazines discussed the Eclipse of August 31, 1932.

ANSWER: Our analysis of the Eclipse of August 31, 1932, appeared in the September, 1932, issue of POPULAR ASTROLOGY.

We might, at this time, explain that the editor of AMERICAN ASTROLOGY first published an astrological magazine in the spring months of 1931. The first issue (May, 1931) went on sale on May 20, 1931, at 8:00 P.M., true local time, Detroit, Michigan. It was known as the Astrological Bulletin. This first issue of one thousand copies increased in three months to five thousand copies with the August, 1931, issue. Then in February, 1932, the name of this magazine was changed and it was known thereafter as Popular Astrology and continued up to and including the September issue, 1932, but the editor has reason to remember the Eclipse of August 31, 1932, inasmuch as it took place exactly on his Jupiter; the September, 1932, issue was the last issue of Popular Astrology. Then intervened a lapse of several months and finally a propitious time arrived and the magazine was resurrected with the March, 1933, issue. It was first intended that the new magazine should be known by the old title—Popular Astrology—but right at the time of going to press we received information from a former reader advising us that a magazine called Popular Astrology and published in Cleveland, Ohio, was already on sale in his locality. Not having any time to investigate this report we immediately changed the name to AMERICAN ASTROLOGY and thus it is. It was later discovered that the magazine supposed to have been Popular Astrology was, in fact, not called by that name (several letters in the name had been changed) but, the two names were sufficiently similar and the cover design of our original magazine, Popular Astrology, had been copied so closely, that it was not difficult to understand why anyone should have made this mistake.

For the information of those who may still have any doubt about the matter we might add that the editor of AMERICAN ASTROLOGY does not have and will not have any connection, direct or indirectly, with any other Astrological magazine than AMERICAN ASTROLOGY.

Referring again to the September, 1932, issues of Popular Astrology which contained the analysis of the 1932 Eclipse, it is unfortunate that we do not have any copies of this magazine available for distribution. However, you might refer to pages six and seven of the March, 1933, issue of AMERICAN ASTROLOGY, where some reference was made to this Eclipse.

QUESTION: Will you kindly give me your opinion as to whether Leo or Virgo is my sign? I was born on August 23, 1887, between 7:30 and 8:00 A.M., Westfield, Vermont. I have always claimed Virgo, but, of course, being on the cusp I realize that both signs have an effect on my life, but I would like to know whether my sign is really Virgo or not.

ANSWER: Your sign is placed 2 or 3 minutes (Zodiacal longitude) past the cusp of Virgo. Yet insofar as your solar sign is concerned we would consider you still amenable to the influence affecting Leo. However, your hour of birth (accepting the hour 7:30 A.M.) definitely places Virgo on your ascendant. This, therefore, swings the balance of power definitely in favor of Virgo—at least insofar as the personality, temperament, etc., is concerned. When, as in this case, the ascendant is definitely known, I would suggest that you read the guide in the magazine which would apply to your ascending sign—that is to say Virgo.

QUESTION: I have read the letter of D. S. in the November issue and wish to say that I also find there are many of your terms I cannot understand. I would like to be able to read them more intelligently. What do you mean when you say the planet forms a "trine"; what is the cusp of a house; what is the meaning of forming a "sextile"?

ANSWER: The cusp of a house is merely the beginning of the house—the threshold, shall we say?—the line in the horoscope which marks the division between that house and the one next preceding. So far as the aspects are concerned (square, sextile, etc.) we would suggest that you get our booklet (Lesson in Astrology—"Planets") which fully explains these terms. Details regarding this booklet will be found on page 62 of the December issue of AMERICAN ASTROLOGY, and the price is 50c.

QUESTION: How can one compare the following sciences: Astrology, Numerology, Kabbala, Palmistry? Do they confirm each other?

ANSWER: According to the Brotherhood of Light who, it is understood, base their conclusions upon traditions dating back many centuries, there are two keys to the Temple of wisdom, the GOLD KEY and the SILVER KEY, which are known as Astrology and Kabbalism respectively.

So far as Numerology (most widely known as the Pythagorean system of Numbers) is concerned, this is, in a sense, a by-product of Kabbalism. Personally we are inclined to place considerable less credence on Numerology, popularly so called, and we believe that the true science of occult enumeration is the Kabbala.

Palmistry does not in any way conflict with the findings of Astrology. They will be found to confirm each other. The lines on the hand are produced by the psychic forces operative around and through the person. Observation can easily establish the fact that the lines, particularly on the right hand, do change in accordance with changes in the Astral conditions of the person, such changes being also recorded in the horoscope. These line changes are, as a rule, more noticeable on the right hand. It is possible, in a period of six months, to either remove a line from the hand or put a new one in, by changing the course of one's Destiny—such as by entering a new environment on taking up a new line of work for instance. The Horoscope is a chart of CAUSES rather than effects and reveals the laws governing any existent conditions, whereas Palmistry clearly shows conditions as they are at present, but it is our opinion that Palmistry does not permit the calculation of probable future conditions with the accuracy, depth and detail, or to the extent that is possible by the mathematical structure "Astrology." This of course is purely a matter of opinion, based however upon an intensive study of both sciences.

QUESTION: The keenest regret of my life is the fact that I am precluded from having my horoscope cast due to the uncertainty of the day and hour of my birth. I must be content with knowing only that I am Capricorn, born between the 8th and 13th of January.

Realizing the depth and extent of the science of Astrology, I am wondering if it is possible for the layman to obtain some sort of a general outline which might clarify the subject without going into it as a study.

ANSWER: It would seem that the best book for your purpose would be "Pioneer to Poet" by Isabelle Pagan. This is, without doubt, the most remarkable book on the twelve signs in existence and can be obtained from the Brotherhood of Light, P. O. Box 1525, Los Angeles, California. There are, of course, many other books which you would probably find useful. You will find many such in the catalogue of publications, which will be sent to you upon application to the Brotherhood of Light.

QUESTION: Is there any indication from my horoscope whether the aspect of Uranus transiting opposition my Natal Sun might possibly be benefic?

ANSWER: It is our opinion that the effect would probably be beneficial for the reason that at the same time that Uranus opposes your Natal Sun it will sextile your Neptune and stimulate the Natal trine from your Neptune to your Sun.

We have found that in the case of an opposition where there is a third planet sextile to one and trine to the other of the opposing planets the opposition is harmonized by this third planet. The opposition is an aspect that primarily calls for balance, compromise and cooperation which is often very difficult to attain and maintain. We might take a leaf from Jhondro's notebook and accept the rulership existing between the planets in a horoscope as analogous to an electric circuit. If we would visualize each of the two planets in opposition as generators of energy, both positive, communicated by a direct circuit across the chart and each sending a current of force to the other, these opposing currents would meet theoretically in the centre of the circuit and be in direct conflict. If we place a third planet trine to one pole and sextile to the other this third planet then is in harmonious relationship to both poles and appears to operate in the manner of drawing all the energy from each and permitting a harmonious composite expression through this third pole. Thus the third planet furnishes a point of balance and harmony for the opposing planets.

BOOKS

A Few Suggestions for Students

One of the easiest things to do is to write a book, and one of the hardest things to do is to read some of them. Almost anyone can sling words together, but unless the writer has first devoted thought to the subject and has something to say, the words mean nothing and represent a waste of valuable time on the part of both the writer and the reader. It calls for more than a good vocabulary and a knowledge of grammatical construction to produce a book. It calls for a comprehensive background of study, much thought, careful research and a vast amount of hard work. That is why there are so many libraries and so few books.

Aside from the fact that many books are useless, there are many that are worse in being positively harmful through the misinformation they give. Quoting our August issue, page 38—An idea expressed is a seed that grows. It may become a sturdy Oak in the Garden or Truth or a poisonous weed that chokes out all constructive growth wherever it may fall.

It is not our purpose to come forward as one qualified to pass final judgment upon the works of others. Insofar as a writer is sincere and original we respect his efforts even though we may not personally agree with his results. We do, however, endeavor to give you our own personal opinion and give it frankly, sincerely and to the best of our knowledge and belief, trusting however, that you will accept it in the spirit in which it is given and at its face value as the personal opinion of the editor.

In sifting through a multitude of Astrological texts we have come upon many volumes (some of them very well known and enjoying wide favor among students) which in our opinion were worse than useless, but we have also found a few that were a delight and have been our constant companions for many years.

Among these we unhesitatingly give first place to the works of CHARLES E. O. CARTER. We have found his ENCYCLOPEDIA OF PSYCHOLOGICAL ASTROLOGY to be a veritable gold mine of information and his text on the "ASTROLOGICAL ASPECTS" is remarkably accurate, complete and reliable —a thoroughly scientific treatise evidently based upon the most careful research. Either of these books may be obtained from the HARMONY BOOK SHOP, 108 WEST 49TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

"THE SCIENCE OF VOCATIONAL ASTROLOGY," by Maude Haughton Champion, is another volume which we consider indispensable to the Astrological student who wishes to keep well informeed regarding the latest developments in Astrological research. This book is evidently the fruit of long and painstaking study of the application of Astrology to vocational guidance and as a reference book is invaluable. It may be obtained from MACOY PUBLISHING & MASONIC SUPPLY COMPANY, 35 WEST 32ND STREET, NEW YORK CITY, DEPT. A. A., and the price of the book is $2.15.

"PLANETARY EFFECTS AND STOCK MARKET PRICES," by James Mars Langham, contains indications for 1933, 1934 and 1935, based upon an exhaustive study on the problem of the correlation of Astrology with Market Cycles. It is not the amount of information that is in this book that makes it so valuable, but rather the accuracy of such information as is given, a degree of accuracy that can only be obtained by a careful compilation of statistics over a considerable period of time. Astrology needs much more attention from persons who have the scientific instincts and devotion to facts that is evidenced in Mr. Langham's work. This book may be obtained from D. G. Nelson, 741 N. Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois. The price is $5.00.

For those interested in diet, and the application of Astrology to problems of health, we can highly recommend "ZODIAC ON THE SALTS OF SALVATION," by Dr. Carey and published by the CAREY-PERRY SCHOOL, HOLLYWOOD, CALIFORNIA. This book, in addition to being an excellent treatise on Astro Diagnosis, is also a most interesting instructive reference work on the history and development of the twelve signs of the Zodiac. There is a staggering mass of data collected in this volume which should be a delight to students who have an encyclopedia consciousness. Virgo natives, who can spend a pleasant evening reading the dictionary, will especially enjoy this volume. We consider it well worth while to anyone regardless of whether they are interested in diet or not.

There are many other very excellent works which we shall have occasion to mention from time to time, but for the present we shall merely call attention once more to what, in our opinion, is the best of all books dealing with the general analysis of the twelve Zodiacal signs: "PIONEER TO POET," by ISABELLE PAGAN, which as previously stated, may be obtained from the BROTHERHOOD OF LIGHT, BOX 1525, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA. The price of this book is approximately $2.50.

AQUARIUS—General Forecast

Due to lack of space we have been obliged to omit this forecast from the present issue.

Our Aquarius readers will find an analysis of the influence of the Major Transits with relation to their sign in the February issue of AMERICAN ASTROLOGY.

ATTENTION—READERS

Please—for your own protection—do not send loose coins or currency through the mail. This is a very careless practice and quite inadvisable no matter to whom you are sending the money and especially would we appreciate that you would not send money in this manner to this magazine. When remitting, regardless of the amount, use registered mail, check or money order. Our Business Department is very accurate in checking all money received and in filling the orders promptly, but we cannot accept the responsibility for money that has never been received at this office.

Alphabet of Astrology

PART III

Fourth Lesson of a Course of Twelve Lessons in Practical Astrology

As previously stated, Astrological Symbolism may be properly classified as a language, even as all languages are but systems of symbols and the study of Astrology must be therefore approached in much the same spirit that one would approach the study of any other language.

The earliest forms of writing were pictures—Pictograph—and by this method also did the Ancients pass on to us in the Zodiac an historic and prophetic symbol of earthly and cosmic events.

In the preceding lessons of this course we have devoted some time to the study of the planetary symbols, which have been referred to as the vowels of the Stellar language. In completing our study of the Astrological Alphabet, we must now consider the Zodiacal signs, which may be accepted as the consonants of this language.

Each Zodiacal Symbol is properly an ideagraph or ideogram (idea-gram) similar to a musical note and like music, Zodiacal symbology does constitute a universal language, which, by the law of correspondence, may be translated into the terms of any form of concrete existence, and may be used to reveal the basic truth underlying any system of philosophy or religion to say nothing of an elucidation of the Mystery of Life itself. Every system of philosophy or religion is merely an attempt to express a spiritual fact which is already expressed in the best possible form in the most perfect system of Symbology in existence—Astrology. In this Mystic Circle he who has an understanding heart as well as a thinking mind may indeed read a strange and wonderful story—the story of man's evolution past and future—a story of what, in the words of Max Heindel, is "a long and wondrous journey from the clod to the God, from protoplasm to conscious Unity with the Father."

"That far-off divine event
To which all creation moves."

We are not, at this time, particularly concerned with the mystical or religious significance of the Zodiac, but a consideration of the history and origin of these Zodiacal Symbols is a necessary prelude to a study of their application. By this method, we may arrive at a better understanding of just what we mean, when we speak of the Zodiac.

At the outset we must admit that Zodiacal symbology—the symbols of the various signs —their origin and history—remains one of the greatest mysteries of antiquity. Nothing has been unearthed by archæologists or revealed by scientific research which throws any definite light upon the problem of when or where the Zodiac and its symbols were designed. They antedate all the records of the oldest civilization and have remained unchanged through countless ages. The Hebrews knew it and reverenced it long before the Book of Law was discovered. The Egyptians, who are considered the founders of the oldest known civilization, admitted that their knowledge of Astrology was gained from a people older than themselves. We learn from Philostrastas, the Greek writer, that Astrology was known and practised in his country nearly twelve hundred years before the birth of Christ, while Diodorus Sirculas, the universal historian of Greece, informs us that Heracleo introduced the Science to that nation. According to Plutarch, the Greek poet, Hesiod nine hundred years B.C., was an expert Astrologer, and Thales, the Greek Astronomer, who lived five centuries before the birth of Christ, and Democritus, the Greek philosopher, and Hippocrates, the Greek physician, were all well versed in this science. Babylonian tablets record the introduction of the Zodiac to that nation by the Akkadians about 3,000 years B.C. These (Akkadians) were invaders who came down from the mountains north of Assyria and brought with them the rudiments of writing and civilization and their Zodiac was practically complete as we have it today. La Place and other eminent authorities of more recent centuries have agreed that the grouping of the constellations and the symbols of the Zodiac must have been the result of an elaborate plan and a profound knowledge of the stellar universe. Of one fact we are sure—the Zodiac must have originated in the very cradle of the race, for we find the same symbols among widely separated peoples.

In the legends and traditions of all people is preserved the story of a great cataclysm, which destroyed the parent race and brought to a close the preceding period of human existence on this earth. This catastrophe, according to closest possible estimates, must have occurred about 11,000 years B.C., and it must have been at some time during the millions of years preceding this that certain enlightened minds devised and evolved that marvelous system of symbolism, which today we know as Astrology.

During the years immediately following the deluge—the cataclysm which destroyed the parent race—all scientific knowledge, which has so far as we know been quite general up to that time, passed into the custody of the priesthood who were held responsible for its preservation. The priesthood, however, quite naturally saw, in the possession of this knowledge, a wonderful opportunity for advancing their own interests and increasing their power over the people. Scientific facts gradually became the inspired word of God, which could only be transmitted through His chosen messenger—the "priest"—who in turn transmitted it in a form that best suited his purpose. Thus, practically all sciences, up to recent years, were retarded in their development by reason of having become, during the earlier centuries of the present era, well-nigh hopelessly enmeshed in a web of superstition. Astrology fared no better, in fact it fared worse than did the others, because of its peculiar mystical or spiritual character, its devotional aspects and religious correlations. The natural wonder and mystery of the stars easily led to their being held in reverence and awe; hence they readily became objects of worship. Astrology, as a religion, appealed strongly to the highly developed mysticism of the people of that time and we find that the earliest form of religion was star worship and the most ancient symbol of God—a Star.

No doubt, they who originally devised the science of Astrology based their conclusions upon logical premises and the recognition of certain basic principles. The symbolism of Astrology was no doubt arrived at by a process of inductive reasoning—that is to say, Astrology must have been originally an INDUCTIVE SCIENCE. Subsequently from the premises arrived at were deduced certain conclusions which were handed down through successive generations as a body of facts. Astrology has ever since (up to recent years at least) remained a DEDUCTIVE SCIENCE. Those who followed were content to accept the original deductions without troubling to investigate or inquire deeply into the reasons therefore, or the basic principles underlying these conclusions.

So far as we know, Astrology, as a Science of Life, was originally based upon Celestial Mathematics—Universal Law—as observable in relation to the various heavenly bodies. Celestial Dynamics was seen as merely a manifestation of Spiritual Dynamics—forces, principles and laws—which were completely simultaneously operative throughout all nature and governing the evolution of all forms of organized life down to the minutest atom. The living, moving, ever-changing Universe then became the key to the Mysteries of Life—the Master Formula which yielded the answer to all of life's equations. In this Zodiacal Symbology was embodied both the science and religion of the parent race. Not only may the philosopher find embodied in these symbols certain spiritual truths relating to the Cosmic Plan of Creation and the Spiritual Destiny of Man, but the modern scientist may also find therein the master key to the secrets of nature.

Astrology furnishes conclusive proof that God does indeed geometrize; that those intangible—spiritual, mental and emotional—factors, which constitute a human personality are, in very truth, subject to mathematical law and scientific treatment. It permits Cosmic Law to be applied by each individual to a solution of the problems of his everyday life.

It is not our purpose at this point to confuse the student with a detailed explanation of the mechanism of the solar system. We do not consider it necessary or advisable for the beginner in Astrological study to inquire too deeply into the purely Astronomical basis of Astrology until he has first correlated Astrology with certain obvious and easily verified facts and phenomena which are a matter of common knowledge, but since Astronomy is, in fact, the basis of Astrology, some consideration of the Astronomical mechanism is unavoidable. In the last analysis Astrology is nothing more than Astronomy applied to the interpretation of living symbols (Forms of Life). The Universe becomes an expression of Universal Law. The Astronomical factors having thus been given a philosophical significance may then be used to properly classify all forms (creatures and events), which constitute a living evolving Creation and gives to each form its proper significance as a factor in the scheme of evolution.

As the earth travels around the sun throughout the various seasons of the year, spring, summer, autumn and winter, it appears, to an inhabitant of the earth, as though it were the sun that traveled around the earth. This movement of the sun is, of course, only an apparent motion, yet from the point of view of the relativist, it is, nevertheless, a real movement since the essential fact must be admitted that the position of the sun does change relative to the earth, and this is all that matters for our purpose. Anyone who might be inclined to question the scientific value of this relative motion as a basis for astrological calculation (and there are many who do) might advance in support of their contention the axiomatic statement "nothing can act but where it is," to which we might reply, granted—but where is it?—in this world where all is Relative, everything must be where it APPEARS to be. However, when we speak of the sun traveling around the earth, or the SUN'S PATH around the earth, it must be understood that we are referring to this relative motion.

The line of progress, or the path which the sun follows, in its journey around the earth, throughout the year, is for convenience named the ECLIPTIC. So called, and reasonably enough, because it is necessarily on this imaginary line, that all eclipses must take place. In order to make ourselves clear, at each point as we proceed with this study, we might here explain that an ECLIPSE is a phenomena that occurs when the moon moves to a point that is on a direct line through the earth and the sun. When the moon gets into this position and is between the earth and the sun, it temporarily shuts off the light of the sun from the earth; we then have an eclipse of the sun. On the other hand, when the moon approaches closely to a direct line through the earth and the sun and is on the opposite side of the earth from the sun, then the earth temporarily shuts off the light of the sun from the moon, we then have an eclipse of the moon. It may be readily understood that, regardless of what time of the year eclipses may take place, they must always occur when the moon is close to, if not exactly on, the sun's path, hence we call the sun's path the ECLIPTIC.

Now, it has also been found that the majority of the planets, including the moon, while traveling in their several orbits around the sun, never depart more than a few degrees above or below the path of the sun. Thus, if we widen the sun's path (ecliptic) into a belt of practically 16 degrees wide, we will have a fairly narrow path, or belt, around the celestial sphere or heavens, which will include the orbits or paths of most of the planets including the moon, with the sun's path or ecliptic as an imaginary line around the centre of this belt. The position of the planet above or below the sun's path (the centre line—ecliptic) is called the planet's Celestial Latitude, which is therefore the distance of a planet from the sun's path (ecliptic).

This Celestial belt, or path, or road, whatever you may choose to call it, which includes the paths or orbits of all the planets, is divided into twelve equal sections of 30 degrees each, the entire twelve completing a circle of 360 degrees. Each of these twelve sections has been given a certain symbology drawn for the most part from the animal kingdom, and for this reason the entire belt is called the ZODIAC, from a Greek word meaning "relating to animals" and each of the twelve sections with its corresponding symbol is called a sign of the Zodiac.

In our next lesson we shall study the Zodiacal signs in detail and also endeavor to retrace, at least in part, the line of reasoning that must have been followed in arriving at this symbolism.

Message of the Stars

WEEKLY INDICATIONS

Based Upon Mutual Planetary Aspects
During January, 1934

PLEASE NOTE—The date given for each aspect in the following analysis of the monthly configurations must be understood as only marking the time of maximum power, but, the aspect must not be considered as necessarily effective on, or only on, that day. The influence extends over a period of several days, prior to the date given and the aspect may be stimulated into action, by the Moon, prior to this date. For definite information as to the critical dates, of which there may be several it is necessary to REFER TO THE DAILY GUIDE.

The Month

Keynote—Conflict

It is but rarely that we find a month that is packed so full of dynamite as we find to be the case with this month of January, 1934.

The first half of the month is fairly good, but, as we approach the Lunation of January 15, we run into some very stormy weather. It would scarcely be possible to enumerate all possible forms of manifestation. In the natural course of events, almost anything could happen, just so long as it complies with the one essential requirement—that it be Destructive. We might add that this month marks the commencement of a dangerous and violent period, which is likely to endure with varying intensity for quite three months (past the middle of April).

In the following detailed analysis of the aspects involved we shall endeavor to set forth the basic nature and tendencies of the influences with a view to indicating a possible constructive application thereof. Individuals may, of course, through understanding and self-discipline, benefit by this information and avoid much of the evil by rigidly controlling these forces and directing them unto constructive channels. He whose THOUGHTS are directed by FAITH, whose EMOTIONS are measured by unselfish LOVE and whose ACTIONS are dictated solely by NECESSITY (rather than desire) will come to no harm.

In National and Public affairs those forces are practically beyond control. Race consciousness evolves only by a slow process of evolution and the Mass Mind is not yet self-conscious, and is extremely susceptible to these subconscious influences; we shall, therefore, expect some very destructive manifestation in public affairs and in the realm of Natural Forces. There will, no doubt, be public disasters of many kinds and degrees.

In the realm of natural forces this will, no doubt, produce severe climatic conditions, an extremely low temperature is indicated and probably the week of January 15 will break all records in this respect with violent storms, blizzards, etc. It seems that we may look forward to a very severe winter. Finally, in consideration of other aspects involved, this might very probably result in an earthquake—see the December issue of AMERICAN ASTROLOGY (page 4). A more detailed analysis of these matters will be found in other departments devoted to the localization of these influences.

December 31 to January 8
Keynote of the Week—Progress

It will be noted by reference to our December, 1933, issue, page 37, that the last half of December and particularly the last week is, from the point of view of mutual aspects, quite definitely harmonious and progressive. We shall expect this harmonious state of affairs to continue throughout the first ten days of January and at least up to January 8th.

Sun Trine Neptune—January 3—Keynote —Freedom

This is a symbol of Practical Mysticism. A very helpful influence to those engaged in artistic or literary work (such work as calls for a creative imagination). Favorable for philanthropic enterprises, humanitarian movements, charitable organizations and also for business promotion. It gives a vision of what is to be accomplished and the ability to actualize the vision. An excellent influence for statesmen and inclines especially to assist the lower classes to a higher plane of living—the social outcast (criminal), needy, oppressed, such as may be in ill-health or otherwise afflicted, are favored by this aspect, which is basically an aspect of Social Welfare and upliftment, adding new and powerful impetus to Social Reform movements of various kinds and degree. It is an aspect that melts and dissolves the barriers and chains of limitation and throws open the gateway to the freedom of a larger and wider field of activity.

Venus Trine Jupiter—January 4—Keynote —Popularity

This is a helpful influence upon business and financial affairs. It promotes freedom and liberality in exchange. Very favorable especially for entertainment and amusement enterprises and for social events. Excellent for those in public life inclining to wide popularity—the admiration and even adulation of the multitude. It may bring to the fore some popular Idol and He who makes a bid for public favor at this time may score a signal triumph. It augments charm of expression and of manner. It is most helpful to artists, actors, writers and public speakers.

January 8 to January 15 Keynote of the Week Sensational

Here is where the trouble starts although the first couple of days may be safe and satisfactory enough.

A trine of Mercury to Neptune (January 9) and a sextile of Venus to Uranus (January 12) tend to carry the harmonious influence of the preceding week over a couple of days longer, but we are now on the edge of the storm area and we are likely to run into trouble very soon and suddenly. It behooves every one to get important matters settled prior to January 8th if possible and following that date at least see that the brakes are in good working order, for there may be a necessity for stopping suddenly at almost any time now.

Mercury Trine Neptune—January 9— Keynote—Speculation

This is an aspect that fertilizes the imagination. It is pre-eminently creative (on the mental plane) and inspirational. An excellent influence for writers, artists, actors and statesmen. This is an aspect that inclines to successful schemes and subtle maneuvers by which a commanding position may be won by diplomatic means. There is considerable militarism (at least in thought) under cover in this aspect. It is a helpful influence for military commanders tending to bring such into prominence. It also inclines to successful (large scale) financial operations and schemes of various kinds. It promotes free discussion of monetary and financial problems and inclines strongly to speculation and speculative enterprises.

Venus Sextile Uranus—January 12— Keynote—Romance

Venus sextile Uranus is pre-eminently a romantic configuration, tending social success, sudden popularity, extreme happiness, pleasant surprises and generally favoring idealism in various forms.

A most helpful influence for those engaged in artistic or literary work, for the drama and for all such as depend for success upon the use of the social urges; briefly a symbol of romantic adventures of gaiety, music, bright lights, etc., but—"Hush! Hark! a deep sound strikes like the rising knell"—for those who know their Byron—enough said.

Sun Square Jupiter—January 13— Keynote—Extravagance

This is an aspect of imprudence, carelessness, indiscretion, irresponsibility, an adventurous spirit and a willingness (even eagerness) to accept foolish risks, leads to embarrassing situations and heavy losses, briefly the aspect of the gambler.

This also inclines to rebellion and inordinate ambition, great expectations which cannot be realized, dreams of success that do not materialize because they are extreme. There is a tendency to seek short cuts to success, to fall for "get-rich-quick" schemes and generally adopt wasteful methods which result in failure. A general tendency to attempt stunts, extravagant ventures. Impatience, extravagance, excess and self-indulgence are the besetting sins generated by this aspect.

Sun Square Uranus—January 14—
Keynote—Disruption

This is briefly an aspect of Catastrophe—an aspect that generates disasters and panics in various forms and for various reasons. Vanity, self will, perversity, morbid sensitiveness, obstinacy and intolerance leads to foolish, erratic and destructive action with consequent disaster. It generates high nervous tension that is liable to explode unexpectedly and at any moment on the slightest provocation. It creates sudden and violent enmity marked by extreme bitterness. There is impulsive and precipitate action under uncontrolled emotional stimuli. Dramatic personalities appear, dramatic and sensational events cause great excitement, tyranny, intolerance and extreme individualism are the basic ingredients which compound a most explosive mixture, briefly a symbol of Rebellion and in the extreme—Anarchy. There is no middle path or compromise possible under this influence, the pendulum of opinion swings violently to one extreme or the other with resultant violent clashes between opposing parties.

Mercury Square Jupiter—January 15th—
Keynote—Exaggeration

Mercury square Jupiter symbolizes High Winds, literally and figuratively speaking. Sensational news (rumors of War probably). An aspect of INFLATION. Traditions and traditional standards are abandoned. The Balloon of Hope ascends to a great height only to explode. Big stories break. The Headline Hunters have the time of their lives. But messages received at this time will need to be discounted considerably in the interests of Truth, for Mercury square Jupiter is an unreliable messenger (or witness). When not deliberately untruthful, he is at least muddled, forgetful of details and inaccurate, at best he is prone to exaggerate. Facts unadorned appear to him dull and uninteresting, so he draws upon a fertile imagination to supply the total requirements of what he calls "a good story."

This is an aspect that inclines to charges and counter charges of libel, slander, fraud, dishonesty, etc. There is a pronounced tendency to talk too much (out of turn) and to the wrong person. It behooves everyone to guard his speech and writings carefully at this time; discount all information received and exercise unusual caution and prudence in business and financial affairs. Sensational failures or disclosures involving banks or other financial institutions.

This aspect is safest and most helpful when applied in the realm of art, literature (imaginative), drama, music, religion, or philosophy and should permit notable achievements along these lines.

January 15 to January 22—
Keynote of the Week—Destruction

This is the storm center. Without doubt the most dangerous, destructive and utterly disastrous configuration of the planets that we have found in many months.

On January 15th Venus commences to retrograde for the first time in eighteen months (Venus was direct all through 1933). It appears that a Retrograde Planet symbolizes a power that is held temporarily in suspension—as though that planet ceased (objectively at least) for a time, to be a factor in the Astrological pattern. It is unfortunate that the Planet of Peace and good will should "pass out" at this time, when such an influence is needed more than ever. But while a planet retrograde does not operate opjectively, it does not seem to lose any of its power potentially, but merely becomes subjective—operates beneath the surface (behind the scenes)—and at the moment of change when it is stationary for an instant prior to commencing its movement backward (or forward), it, on that day, is more powerful than at any other time.

It is probable, therefore, that the forces that are working for peace and harmony in the midst of all this turmoil may make a determined effort to calm the turbulent waves of dissension and effect some sort of peaceful agreement at this time. It is improbable, however, that they will succeed immediately and for a time may be forced into the background, but Venus backs up into some very helpful aspects and the work of peace-making will go on—under cover—and we may expect some constructive results early in February—not later than February 8th—which should bring at least a temporary lull in the storm.

The first thing Venus does, after turning Retrograde, is to repeat the sextile to Uranus—that ROMANTIC aspect—we noted for January 12, now repeated on January 17, but, again, it looks like the Night before the Battle—"that distant sound" breaks in "once more"—for this is also the day that Mars conjuncts Saturn.

Again on January 21st Venus repeats her Jupiter trine of January 4th—some more popularity—a laurel crown for the victor probably and possibly mercy for the vanquished. While, as previously stated, Venus (Retrograde) cannot be a dominant factor at this time and will probably not interfere greatly with the Mars-Saturn campaign, yet we may hope that it may at least be "thumbs up" under this aspect.

Mercury Square Uranus—January 16th——Keynote—Dissension

Under this influence men become unreasonable, perverse, erratic, unreliable, brusque, outspoken and tactless. It is a symbol of unpopular movements, unsuccessful journeys, bitter enmity, verbal battles, slanderous and libelous attacks.

Sensational news items provide lurid headlines and for those who like excitement this aspect should leave little to be desired.

Incriminating and inflammatory messages and such as incite to rebellion or retaliation (war) are exchanged. It behooves every one to guard his speech and writings with unusual caution at this time. Beware of impulsive expressions and ill-considered journeys.

This is an aspect that is likely to bring to the fore ONE of strange convictions and radical tendencies who believes himself to be a "chosen" messenger or spokesman and who succeeds in stirring up great trouble and dissension.

Mars Conjunction Saturn—January 17th—Keynote—Destruction

We find this conjunction at a critical point—just two days following the Lunation of January 15th, which gives to all aspects proximate thereto added power.

This configuration is reminiscent of January 1932, when Mars last conjuncted Saturn, at that time in the 26th degree of Capricorn and NINE DAYS following the Lunation of January 7, 1932. During thirty days following that 1932 conjunction Japanese soldiers were quite busily engaged finding out just what Shanghai was made of and according to most authentic reports they made quite a thorough investigation.

The situation at that time looked quite serious, yet we can also see that the 1932 (Mars-Saturn) conjunction was really mild by comparison with this one of 1934. The interval separating it from the Lunation is but two days. The Lunation of January 15, 1934, is involved in a cardinal cross with Jupiter and Uranus and without any helpful influences from other departments, finally the Mars-Saturn conjunction of 1934 is in Aquarius and will not, therefore, be restrained by a conservative Capricorn as was that of 1932. However, this 1934 conjunction is not, in itself, afflicted, but is harmoniously configurated with Jupiter and Uranus, which may moderate the effects considerably.

Mars and Saturn in conjunction at best tend to combine the two worst qualities of both planets—HATE and FEAR, respectively; the most deadly combination one can imagine. In the Horoscope of a criminal this conjunction is the mark of a ruthless killer, and in the Horoscope of a nation it sends the people of that country into a frenzy of patriotic fervor. Fear of oppression and hate for the oppressor may start a nation clamoring wildly for war. Therefore, not only may this conjunction mark an unusually violent manifestation of the criminal and other destructive tendencies of humanity taking form as crimes marked by unusual brutality, heavy loss of life and property through the destructive forces of nature—a serious menace to Public Health and Welfare.

For information as to the most dangerous areas throughout the world the reader is referred to our department "Around the World" (page 3 of this issue), where the various nations are dealt with separately and in detail.

Sun Conjunction Mercury—January 20—Keynote—Dictatorship

At this point we wish to correct a statement made on page 32 of the December, 1932, issue of AMERICAN ASTROLOGY—referring to Sunday, December 21st—The Day of the Full Moon. It was therein stated that the NEW MOON marks the last indrawing (or inhalation) while the Full Moon marked the last EXHALATION (of the Breath of Life). It was further stated that the Full Moon was an aspect of BIRTH—there is an error involved in that statement which should be corrected as follows: The New Moon (a conjunction) marks the FIRST inhalation—Birth—the Full Moon (opposition) symbolizes the LAST exhalation—Death. This is a fact which has been established by statistics.

We consider Solar conjunctions of paramount importance as being aspects of BIRTH (or re-birth) of the nature of, and, concerning matters ruled by the planet involved in the conjunction.

The conjunctions of the Sun with Mercury (of which there are usually several each year) are symbolical of a powerful creative force at work on the Mental Plane and through the matters and affairs symbolized by Mercury. It is A VOICE OF POWER, it starts "New Movements," brings forth announcements, messages and Intellectual Creations of outstanding importance and generally speaking is an aspect of inception.

For further details regarding this particular aspect we would refer the reader to pages 10 and 11 of the September, 1933, issue of AMERICAN ASTROLOGY, wherein mention is also made of six of such conjunctions taking place during the past year. Not to go into great detail regarding these (which space will not permit), we might call attention to the fact that the Sun-Mercury conjunction of February 7, 1933, coincided with revolutionary changes involving the government of two European nations. The machinery of National Socialism was at that time set in motion in Germany to the end of placing Hitler in complete charge. He was voted Dictator for four years exactly on the date of the next Sun-Mercury conjunction—March 23rd. On July 30th, we find another of these Solar conjunctions with Mercury and, in U. S., the NRA Drive gets under way and finally U. S. Recognition of Russia is announced on November 17th, on the date of the Lunation coinciding with the Sun-Mercury conjunction of November 18th.

Looking into the future, we find this forthcoming conjunction of Mercury and the Sun five days following a lunation and on a cross with Jupiter and Uranus. If this means anything, it means AN ULTIMATUM and a breaking off of diplomatic relationships. This may be interpreted in an individual or national sense, in a word it means the Birth of Trouble—a Messenger who brings a most important but also a most undesirable message.

This particular conjunction, furthermore, acquires additional significance from the fact that it occurs in conjunction with "Altair," a star of the first magnitude in the first degree of Aquarius, which is said to be of the nature of Mars and Jupiter. A violent militaristic star of great power and ambition which generates conflicts and controversies on a large scale and is further claimed to be specifically significant with regard to Aviation. There is quite a beautiful legend connected with this constellation for the details of which we would refer the reader to "Fixed Stars and Constellations in Astrology" by Vivian E. Robson.

There is likely to be unusual activity in the air this month, not only atmospheric disturbances of unusual violence, but also in connection with Aviation. The combination may result in some great aerial disaster. It is to be hoped that this does not necessarily signify aerial warfare, bombing raids, etc. It might, very probably, however, mean just that.

January 22 to January 30 Keynote of the Week—Expansion

Much improvement (relatively at least) is noted for this week as Mars moves over into harmonious relationship with Uranus and Jupiter and meets Venus the Peace-maker by conjunction in the 22nd degree of Aquarius close to that gentle and merciful Star Sadalsund, a Star that means "Luckiest of the Lucky" and now located 22/27 Aquarius. This is distinctly an aspect of Romance, sympathy and emotional power as the energy of Mars blends with the charm of Venus at this point—a January Thaw probably—literally, we may expect much milder (warmer, less severe) weather during this period, frequent rains, and possibly floods which may attain to more or less serious proportions.

Venus Conjunction Mars—January 24th —Keynote—Sympathy

This is an aspect that renders people sensitive, sympathetic, emotionally responsive and probably quite sensuous, which might lead to emotional excesses. Generally speaking, however, it is an aspect of "good luck" and pleasure. The animal spirits are stimulated in a healthy and vigorous way, which usually gives a keen joy in living. The humor, pleasures and interests generated by this aspect may be somewhat lacking in delicacy and refinement, yet is not necessarily harmful.

Mars Trine Jupiter—January 26th— Keynote—Optimism

This is an aspect of "Celebration." It is indicative of great enthusiasm. The sort of aspect that sends a whole nation into a frenzy of excitement or jubilation over some unusually fortunate national event. A symbol of Recovery or Victory—an aspect of adventure. It leads to extraordinary activity in the realm of sports and speculation. It promises success to statesmen and military commanders. A Symbol of Political Freedom and a victory for the Liberal (more progressive) forces. It permits successful experiments, hazardous ventures are carried through successfully and notable advances and achievements may be realized in connection with transportation (long distance), science, religion or the drama.

Mars Sextile Uranus—January 27th— Keynote—Enthusiasm

This is an aspect that adds direction, decision, will-power and determination to other aspects in force and may be said to strengthen and greatly intensify the tendencies listed above as pertaining to Mars Trine Jupiter. This is a configuration which should provide Uranus and Jupiter with an opportunity to unite in constructive activity through Mars and produce some notable achievements of the nature of Mars, which, however, always exacts the penalty of a risk.

Mercury Conjunction Saturn—January 30th—Keynote—Depression

Here is a note of sadness, a symbol of depressing news—delay and disappointment concerning expected news which either does not arrive or is cast on a negative note. In the light of this aspect it would seem probable that the optimism incident to the preceding aspects of this period may have been a trifle premature. The prospect for the week following this aspect (following January 30) is relatively gloomy and unpromising.

This is an aspect that brings news of death or other misfortune. The death of some noted writer or woman connected with the stage may provide occasion for great public sorrow. This also presents great difficulties, delays, obstructions, etc., in the way of those who travel, or write, or engage in other forms of intellectual expression. An unfortunate influence under which to travel, sign papers, or contracts of any kind and conferences for the settlement of disputes are likely to be abortive. There is an inability to "get together" or "make connections" under this aspect. Saturn seems to freeze the Mercurial qualities and stop all movement; the "Messenger of the Gods" is shackled and the Lamp of Reason smokes abominably with the result that the Light of Intelligence shines very dimly and we must necessarily travel (in thought) with great caution. When Saturn jams on the brakes, we may know that we have arrived at a turn in the road and a great change is about to take place.

This is a helpful influence for scientists, philosophers and others devoted to the solution of profound problems. It favors a serious viewpoint on life and calls for the deepest concentration. Those who may be naturally inclined along these lines may benefit much from this aspect.

Market Forecast

For January, 1934

General Indications

In our September issue, published August 25, we stated that in our opinion the High Point of the year had not then been reached which implied that we expected the market to average above the July peak before the end of the year.

At the moment of going to press the December advance forecasted in our December issue is under way, and while at present it has scarcely more than attained to the bottom of the July break and there is still some distance to go, we still believe that it is quite probable that the market may yet make a new High for the year.

There are several reasons for advancing this opinion, Astrologically speaking. For one thing the position of the Sun and Mercury between December 4 and December 20 is indicative of a basically sound market with much latent power that can become dynamic under relatively slight stimulus. The fact that Saturn is harmoniously involved in this would tend to lend professional support, sustaining the market and holding ground that might be gained, in other words while fluctuations are inevitable at any time, under such configurations as these, gains should always exceed losses and for every step that might be taken backwards, we could expect to take at least two forward; the net result should therefore be a substantial advance.

The deadening influence of the Saturn-Venus conjunction of December 21, is likely to check the advances temporarily between December 18 and December 22, but, following December 22, Mercury moves over into harmonious relationship with Jupiter and Uranus, which should send prices soaring again for another record and this brings us to the end of the year and closes out 1933 on a distinctly optimistic note.

During the first week of January there is nothing that we can find that would justify a belief that the market might not maintain the price level of the last week of December; in fact, we shall expect if anything new advances between December 31 and January 8.

Following January 8 we pass the zone of safety. It is possible, in fact highly probable, that the market may continue to push upward to the 15, but after January 8 it is a false market, purely a gamble that could scarcely be even dignified with the name of speculation. Just another one of those last minute inflationary moves which often results when an excited public runs away with the bit only to plunge headlong over a precipice. Those who KNOW what it is all about will step out not later than January 13. The week of January 15 is likely to be disastrous to many people who in their enthusiasm are so prone to forget that what goes up must inevitably come down.

During the week commencing January 15 we shall expect the market to be depressed in a very decided fashion. The break may come on any one of two days, viz.: January 15 or January 17. In any case the wise investor will be out and off on the side lines not later than Saturday, January 13. He will then step in again January 19 and sell on February 24; after that—see the February issue of AMERICAN ASTROLOGY.

We might at this point mention the probability that the January break may be coincident with some very drastic changes in the International Economic Program. France in particular seems to be due for a Radical move at that time and it is quite probable that France might then, if not before, decide to abandon the Gold Standard.

Daily Indications

ED. NOTE:—It must be understood that these Daily cycles are merely relative and are governed as to magnitude and points (high and low) reached by the major trend of the period in which that day in question may be found. Watch the major trend and merely use these daily indications as markers.

Monday, January 1

Up and Down—up and then down—opens with good intentions. A day of violent reactions, but develops reactionary tendencies toward the close.

Tuesday, January 2

This looks like a battle between the Bulls and the Bears—the Bears Triumph. Short selling forces the market down under considerable pressure.

Wednesday, January 3

Those who sold short yesterday should have no difficulty delivering on today's prices. A pessimistic day.

Thursday, January 4

Here is where the market finds solid footing again and prepares for new advances. Trend of the day—upward.

Friday, January 5

This should be a busy day. Prices should advance to a marked extent. Volume large—closes strong.

Saturday, January 6

Advance continues, market shows much strength. Closes strong.

Monday, January 8

Profit taking cuts heavily into any gains there may be. Large turnover. Closes steady with moderate losses, natural tendency of the market is to advance but professional pressure is heavy.

Tuesday, January 9

Traders are in a Buying mood today. Strongly speculative, optimistic.

Wednesday, January 10

Opens strong. Closes weak.

Thursday, January 11

A dull market appears to be just about at the top for this rise and is hesitating on the edge of a break.

Friday, January 12

Probably quite active, but heavy profit taking may hold any tendency there may be to advance. Net result—price change may be slight.

Saturday, January 13

Sell.

Monday, January 15

This is the day when the foundations may suddenly slide away and bring the entire price structure crashing downward. Promises to be a quite exciting day. Important and somewhat sensational news from governmental sources will no doubt be a vital factor in this. The European Crisis is also likely to come to a head at this time with France in the center of the stage. The entire situation over there appears to be very much up in the air with France, Germany, Italy and Austria directly involved and this may have the effect of completely disorganizing the world Economic Program for a time.

Tuesday, January 16

The above situation is likely to continue throughout the week and this is just another one of THOSE days. Downward trend continues.

Wednesday, January 17

Some more sad news—looks as though the market is receiving a pretty thorough purging, although the general tone is much less pessimistic and there may be an attempt to recover which, however, lacks sufficient strength to carry through.

Thursday, January 18

Pessimistic. The market is in a cynical mood and goes fishing for an anchorage again, looks though it might go pretty deep, but it will also probably find the bottom today.

Friday, January 19

This date should mark the turning point and the commencement of a new advance—BUY.

Saturday, January 20

Not much change.

Quite active but doubtful, may be quite erractic.

Tuesday, January 23

The public may be mostly unresponsive or skeptical. Superficially the market may appear unimpressive or pessimistic, but there is indicated an under current of speculation. Pools are active and may float the market to the surface—if the effects are not noticeable today they certainly should be tomorrow.

Wednesday, January 24

Strong market advances should be considerable.

Thursday, January 25

More action, large turnover. Trend upward.

Friday, January 26

Very good. Prices should advance to a marked extent. Closes strong.

Saturday, January 27

Remains at just about the price levels of yesterday close. Not much change. Might be a good idea to temporarily unload today; the first two days of next week do not look very promising.

Monday, January 29

The top may roll off the price structure today as a result of some disturbing or depressing news or rumors which, however, lack confirmation.

Tuesday, January 30

Trying manfully to break through, but it seems to be quite difficult. We do not look for much change today, but trend is upward.

Wednesday, January 31

May open rather weak, but gains strength in the afternoon. Should close strong.

Analyzed from the Astrological Point of View.

ANACONDA COPPER

June 19, 1895

A long range view of this stock does not present a very promising picture. There is indication of serious difficulties for this company during August and September, 1934. September appears to be particularly dangerous.

As an immediate speculative proposition it seems to be quite attractive. It may attain to quite a high level during June and July, 1934, which would seem to be the best months for this stock in a period of twelve months at least. We would not consider it Astrologically safe after July 26. This stock may go far during the first half of January.

SPERRY CORPORATION

April 12, 1933

This new stock Astrologically appears to offer the best investment that we have seen for some time. This may be one stock that may hold its own during the January break—when nearly everything else may be on the toboggan. Why—we are not prepared to say—we can only read these configurations as we see them and the Horoscope of this Company presents a very promising picture.

A. T. T.

March 3, 1885

This stock appears to be at present riding on a tide of prosperity and should be much in demand during the next few months. Therefore, it may be expected to come in for liberal share of any advance there may be during the next six months at least.

Personal Forecasts

EXPLANATION

Commencing this issue, we are presenting to our readers, what we sincerely believe to be, a vastly improved and more practical Personal Forecast and Daily Guide for each of the twelve signs.

We have never hitherto been entirely satisfied with these Forecasts and Daily Indications in the form in which they were previously arranged. We realized that they were quite fragmentary and did not adequately cover all possible eventualities. We always endeavored to give as much information, as was possible in the maximum space, that could be allotted to this service in the magazine, but, the previous form made necessary much repetition, which from a purely practical point of view detracted greatly from the service value of the Guide.

This Personal Forecast and Daily Guide is the fruit of many weeks of careful study of the problem, which has finally resulted in the production of, what we believe to be, the most practical, complete and personal forecast, that it is possible to give in a magazine, adapted to the requirements of the general public.

We feel that a word of explanation is necessary, however, in order that our readers may derive from this Guide the maximum of service and benefit.

DAILY INDICATIONS

For each of the twelve signs the various affairs of life will be found classified under six main headings:

Personal Contacts
Finances
Travels
Professional Matters
Social Life
Health.

Each day is indicated as favorable, adverse, doubtful or indifferent for each of these departments. If, for instance, you contemplate an important journey during the month, or have some important business matter to attend to, you may see at a glance, just which days are favorable or adverse for these matters throughout the month.

PERSONAL FORECAST

Here also we have the affairs of life classified under six main headings as above and the month is divided into four quarters, which are determined by the phases of the Moon. Then a detailed analysis of the planetary configurations in effect during each quarter is given and in the department which is affected thereby. These analyses are based upon the consideration of the combined effect of all the planets and aspects involved and each is prepared individually each month. These configurations will, naturally, effect the different signs in different departments of life. The Mars-Saturn conjunction, of January 17th, for instance, will affect Aries in the Social Department, whereas, Taurus will find this influence most powerful in the department governing professional matters.

One should first refer to the Personal Forecast and select a quarter of the month that is favorable for the matter under consideration, then refer to the Daily Guide on the opposite page and select a day in that quarter that is also favorable for these matters. Thus, the Daily and Weekly Guide may be combined for maximum efficiency. Department, for which nothing is indicated during a given period or on a given day may be considered as of minor importance at that time.

GENERAL REMARKS

It is a safe rule never to accept any proposition of opportunity that is presented during a period or on a day that is unfavorable for the matters involved. Remember, you cannot wholly rely on your feelings or personal opinions about people or your personal affairs. If it were possible to completely rely on your emotions, opinions and natural tendencies no one would ever make a mistake, but we know that people blunder into all sorts of difficult situations and suffer loss in many ways through being deceived by their own personal point of view. Herein, astrology

ARIES

The Month of January for those born March 21 to April 19

Partnerships or Legal Affairs

FAVORABLE
December 31 to January 8
January 22 to January 30

Planetary Influence—Originality, resourcefulness, new and independent ventures. Departures from established custom or routine and innovations result in progress, expansion, material gain and much good fortune. Optimism, generosity and good faith is returned in kind.

Strangers and new contacts bring good fortune. A symbol of Romantic adventures, unexpected benefits, pleasant surprises and sudden advancement.

ADVERSE
January 8 to January 22

Planetary Influence—Pronounced tendencies to erratic unconventional behavior. Sudden unexpected reversals, loss and collapse of hopes through lack of prudence, excessive optimism, extravagance or dissipation, emotional instability and extreme independence. Beware of strangers, strange paths and new contacts, stick to the beaten path, attend to routine, control all tendency to over-step the reasonable limits of safety. Let reason and logic be your guide; make cooperation your watchword.

Professional or Domestic Affairs

FAVORABLE
December 31 to January 8

Planetary Influence—General success, increase of power, honor, vitality and creative ability. Good fortune through those in authority and in connection with ambitious ventures. A symbol of achievement. Happiness through the fulfillment of hopes and realization of ambitious dreams.

January 8 to January 15

Planetary Influence—Fortunate changes, success in connection with journeys or correspondence. This should bring good news. Favorable for intellectual activities, but, beware of a possible loss of prestige or position through excessive pride and ambition, or through overtaxing your powers. Not favorable for dealing with those in authority, or for the commencement of ambitious ventures.

ADVERSE
January 15 to January 22

Planetary Influence—Restless unsettled state of affairs may lead to unfortunate changes with possible loss of prestige or position. Curb the tendency to excessive pride and ambition. Beware of over-taxing your powers, avoid journeys and ambitious ventures. Unfavorable for dealing with those in authority. Guard your speech and writings carefully.

Social Life or Speculation

FAVORABLE
December 31 to January 15

Planetary Influence—Happiness and success through the use of the social urges. Social contacts, social affairs and sentimental matters give much pleasure. Use persuasion. The power of attraction should bring to you what or whom you may desire or such as may be necessary for your happiness and success. Benefits through women.

ADVERSE
January 15 to January 22

Planetary Influence—Destruction, delays and violent opposition may be met with. Duty or necessity create serious problems. The tendency to court needless risks through an uncompromising, excessively independent and unnecessarily aggressive attitude. A dangerous influence, symbol of defeat through lack of prudence, impulse, restlessness and impatience. Avoid conflicts and hazardous ventures, also be warned of probable misfortune through older men. Much of this evil may be avoided through proper use of the social urges, through adaptability and a readiness to compromise. Do not use force, use persuasion. "A soft answer turneth away wrath." Benefits through women.

FAVORABLE
January 22 to January 30

Planetary Influence—Fortunate changes or journeys, good news. Favorable for correspondence and new interests. Happiness through social affairs and emotional contacts. Courage, initiative and positive action will give good results. An aggressive attitude and approach to life results in success. A symbol of VICTORY. Favorable for hazardous ventures and the acceptance of risks. A general tendency to safety, security, achievement and success through accepting new responsibilities. Good fortune through older people of either sex and through intellectual contacts.

Health or Employment

FAVORABLE
December 31 to January 15

Planetary Influence—Speculative ventures are successful. Favorable for dealing with institutions, large corporations. Success based upon mutual confidence and trust without tangible basis. Strangers bring good fortune, happiness through fulfillment of hopes—the realization of dreams. A symbol of good luck—the Faith that moves mountains.

VIRGO

The Month of January for those born August 24 to September 23

Partnerships or Legal Affairs

FAVORABLE
December 31 to January 15

Planetary Influence—Speculative ventures are successful. Favorable for dealing with institutions, large corporations. Success based upon mutual confidence and trust without tangible basis. Strangers bring good fortune, happiness through fulfillment of hopes—the realization of dreams. A symbol of good luck—the Faith that moves mountains.

Finances, Buying or Selling

FAVORABLE
December 31 to January 8
January 22 to January 30

Planetary Influence—Originality, resourcefulness, new and independent ventures. Departures from established custom or routine and innovations result in progress, expansion, material gain and much good fortune. Optimism, generosity and good faith is returned in kind.

Strangers and new contacts bring good fortune. A symbol of Romantic adventures, unexpected benefits, pleasant surprises and sudden advancement.

ADVERSE
January 8 to January 22

Planetary Influence—Pronounced tendencies to erratic unconventional behavior. Sudden unexpected reversals, loss and collapse of hopes through lack of prudence, excessive optimism, extravagance or dissipation, emotional instability and extreme independence. Beware of strangers, strange paths and new contacts, stick to the beaten path, attend to routine, control all tendency to over-step the reasonable limits of safety. Let reason and logic be your guide; make cooperation your watchword.

Social Life or Speculation

FAVORABLE
December 31 to January 8

Planetary Influence—General success, increase of power, honor, vitality and creative ability. Good fortune through those in authority and in connection with ambitious ventures. A symbol of achievement. Happiness through the fulfillment of hopes and realization of ambitious dreams.

January 8 to January 15

Planetary Influence—Fortunate changes, success in connection with journeys or correspondence. This should bring good news. Favorable for intellectual activities, but, beware of a possible loss of prestige or position through excessive pride and ambition, or through overtaxing your powers. Not favorable for dealing with those in authority, or for the commencement of ambitious ventures.

Health or Employment

FAVORABLE
December 31 to January 15

Planetary Influence—Happiness and success through the use of the social urges. Social contacts, social affairs and sentimental matters give much pleasure. Use persuasion. The power of attraction should bring to you what or whom you may desire or such as may be necessary for your happiness and success. Benefits through women.

ADVERSE
January 15 to January 22

Planetary Influence—Destruction, delays and violent opposition may be met with. Duty or necessity create serious problems. The tendency to court needless risks through an uncompromising, excessively independent and unnecessarily aggressive attitude. A dangerous influence, symbol of defeat through lack of prudence, impulse, restlessness and impatience. Avoid conflicts and hazardous ventures, also be warned of probable misfortune through older men. Much of this evil may be avoided through proper use of the social urges, through adaptability and a readiness to compromise. Do not use force, use persuasion. "A soft answer turneth away wrath." Benefits through women.

FAVORABLE
January 22 to January 30

Planetary Influence—Fortunate changes or journeys, good news. Favorable for correspondence and new interests. Happiness through social affairs and emotional contacts. Courage, initiative and positive action will give good results. An aggressive attitude and approach to life results in success. A symbol of VICTORY. Favorable for hazardous ventures and the acceptance of risks. A general tendency to safety, security, achievement and success through accepting new responsibilities. Good fortune through older people of either sex and through intellectual contacts.

PISCES

The Month of January for those born February 19 to March 20

Partnerships or Legal Affairs

FAVORABLE
December 31 to January 15

Planetary Influence—Speculative ventures are successful. Favorable for dealing with institutions, large corporations. Success based upon mutual confidence and trust without tangible basis. Strangers bring good fortune, happiness through fulfillment of hopes—the realization of dreams. A symbol of good luck—the Faith that moves mountains.

Finances, Buying or Selling

FAVORABLE
December 31 to January 8
January 22 to January 30

Planetary Influence—Originality, resourcefulness, new and independent ventures. Departures from established custom or routine and innovations result in progress, expansion, material gain and much good fortune. Optimism, generosity and good faith is returned in kind.

Strangers and new contacts bring good fortune. A symbol of Romantic adventures, unexpected benefits, pleasant surprises and sudden advancement.

ADVERSE
January 8 to January 22

Planetary Influence—Pronounced tendencies to erratic unconventional behavior. Sudden unexpected reversals, loss and collapse of hopes through lack of prudence, excessive optimism, extravagance or dissipation, emotional instability and extreme independence. Beware of strangers, strange paths and new contacts, stick to the beaten path, attend to routine, control all tendency to over-step the reasonable limits of safety. Let reason and logic be your guide; make cooperation your watchword.

Social Life or Speculation

FAVORABLE
December 31 to January 8

Planetary Influence—General success, increase of power, honor, vitality and creative ability. Good fortune through those in authority and in connection with ambitious ventures. A symbol of achievement. Happiness through the fulfillment of hopes and realization of ambitious dreams.

January 8 to January 15

Planetary Influence—Fortunate changes, success in connection with journeys or correspondence. This should bring good news. Favorable for intellectual activities, but, beware of a possible loss of prestige or position through excessive pride and ambition, or through overtaxing your powers. Not favorable for dealing with those in authority, or for the commencement of ambitious ventures.

Health or Employment

FAVORABLE
December 31 to January 15

Planetary Influence—Happiness and success through the use of the social urges. Social contacts, social affairs and sentimental matters give much pleasure. Use persuasion. The power of attraction should bring to you what or whom you may desire or such as may be necessary for your happiness and success. Benefits through women.

ADVERSE
January 15 to January 22

Planetary Influence—Destruction, delays and violent opposition may be met with. Duty or necessity create serious problems. The tendency to court needless risks through an uncompromising, excessively independent and unnecessarily aggressive attitude. A dangerous influence, symbol of defeat through lack of prudence, impulse, restlessness and impatience. Avoid conflicts and hazardous ventures, also be warned of probable misfortune through older men. Much of this evil may be avoided through proper use of the social urges, through adaptability and a readiness to compromise. Do not use force, use persuasion. "A soft answer turneth away wrath." Benefits through women.

FAVORABLE
January 22 to January 30

Planetary Influence—Fortunate changes or journeys, good news. Favorable for correspondence and new interests. Happiness through social affairs and emotional contacts. Courage, initiative and positive action will give good results. An aggressive attitude and approach to life results in success. A symbol of VICTORY. Favorable for hazardous ventures and the acceptance of risks. A general tendency to safety, security, achievement and success through accepting new responsibilities. Good fortune through older people of either sex and through intellectual contacts.

of the Nation's evolutionary level, they lived and spoke the language of its Soul (Aquarius). The spawling, brawling adolescent giant clamored in the depths of his soul for these rewards of punishment, and its celestial parents responded with an overflowing cup which would be drunk to its dregs before the Cosmic Clock announced an era of peace and harmony.

The "Act of War" occurred December 20, 1860, in the formal secession of South Carolina. The numbers for the year tell the nature of the precipitating agencies: The industrial awakening (Uranus) would concede nothing to the agragarian element of the population, the abolition of slave competition had become a religious (Aquarian) obsession and a war-making instrument between free and slave states, and the Uranian spirit of sociological progress through change would forthwith destroy the social reactionary without a spiritual qualm.

But after all it was the very materially-minded Venus-ruled-Taurus in the 7th place that precipitated the act. The slavery question and that of states' rights were still matters of compromise with varying success. It was the tariff issue that finally fired the first gun at Fort Sumter on April 12th, 1861, as it will be the issue which will fire the next.
