B. SURYANARAIN RAO No: 986 January 1959

Rs. 3-75

STROLOGICAL

ed by B.V. RAMAN

Scanned by www.sriptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

1959 ANNUAL NUMBER

WORLD PREDICTIONS for 1959

Engineers' Cutting Tools

Milling Cutters, Reamers and Involute Gear Cutters—made according to B. S. S. or Metric or Customers' Specification.

High Duty Ferrous and Non-Ferrous Castings

For the Automobile and Machine Tool Industry—specialists in high tensile, dense, close-grain and pressure tight castings

Steel Furniture

For the Home and the Office

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

Sprayers and Dusters

For Plant Protection and Public Health

Light Engineering Products

And material handling equipment

DISTRIBUTORS OF AMCO BATTERIES

Addison & Co. (Private) Ltd.

158, MOUNT ROAD, MADRAS-2

Branch at: St. Mark's Road, Bangalore

The Astrological Magazine

Founded 1895 by Professor B. SURYANARAIN RAO

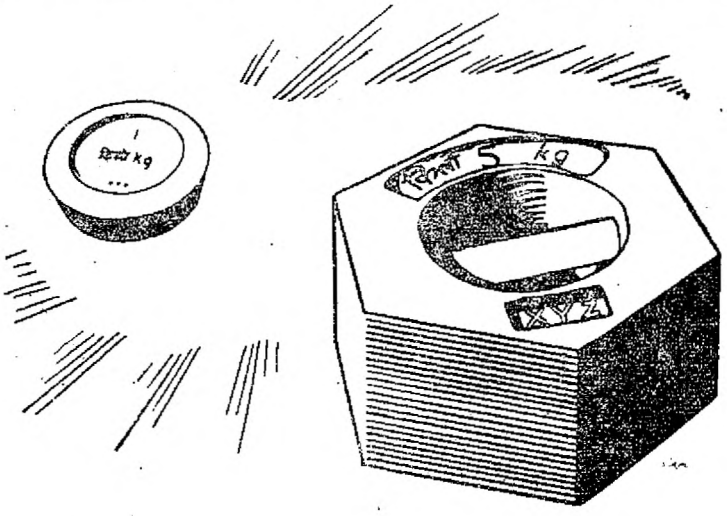
Edited by BANGALORE VENKATA RAMAN

Annual Subscription: India Rs. 12; Burma and Malaya Rs. 15; Foreign Sh. 24

PUBLISHED EVERY MONTH

By Raman Publications, "Sri Rajeswari", Seshadripuram, Bangalore 3, (India)

TELEPHONE No. 3296



New Series Vol. 23	JANUARY 1959	No. 1
Old Series Vol. 48	VILAMBI—PUSHYA 1880 S.S

CONTENTS

		Page
1.	World Predictions for 1959. By the Editor	5
2.	As It Strikes Me. By Bhrigu	8
3.	Astrological Affiliations of Religion and Theology. By Dr. R. Nagaraja Sarma, M.A, Ph.D., D.Litt.	9
4.	Foreknowledge and Hypotheses of "Time-Curvature". By Prof. C. T. K. Chari, M.A., Ph.D.	15
5.	Interpretation of a Planet's Influence. By Dr. P. S. Sastri, M.A., Ph.D., M.Litt.	17
6.	Foundation Map of Independent India. By C. M. Ghosh	25
7.	Gerentology and Ayurveda. By K. M. Talgeri, M.A.	31
8.	The Horoscope of Queen Elizabeth II. By Countess Zoe Wassilko-Sereckl	33
9.	Planets and Their Gems. By Ram Dularey Gupta, M.A.	37
10.	Troinski's Tertiary Directions. Translated by Dr. S. N. Dutt	41
11.	Scientific Attitude Towards Astrology. By Prof. Om Prakash Kahol, M.Sc., B.T.	43
12.	The Correct Birth Time. By V. Thiruvenkatacharya, M.A., L.T.	45
13.	Fundamental Particles. By Vasantarao Venkatrao, M.Sc.	49
14.	A New Method of Progression. By L. Narayana Rao, M.A.	53
15.	The Proof of Astrology. By Y. Mahalinga Sastri, M.A., B.L.	57
16.	Astrological Significance of Basic Instincts. By Dr. W. J. Tucker, D.Sc., Ph.D.	61
17.	Astrology and Theology. By Dr. C. Kunhan Raja, M.A., Ph.D.	65
18.	Precession and Indian Eras. By M. V. Ramakrishnan, M.A., L.T.	69
19.	Aryan Myths, Legends and Traditions in the Bible. By Robert Yager	71
20.	Astrological Appraisement of Behaviour-Patterns. By Srimathi M. A. Rukmini, B.A., B.L.	75
21.	Moon and Menstrual Disorders. By Dr. Jagannath Rao, M.B.B.S., M.A.A.S.	79
22.	Significance of Lunar New Year Chart in Mundane Astrology. By B. Surya Prakash	83
23.	Some Aspects of Nadi Horoscopes. By Cyrus D. F. Abayakoon	85
24.	Astrology and Infant Mortality. By Vidyabhaskara Prof. M. Ramakrishna Bhat, M.A.	89
25.	Horoscope of Netaji Bose. By Bishnupada Bhattacharya	91
26.	Significance of Fingers in Palmistry. By N. L. Desai, B.Com., LL.B.	97
27.	The Cult of the Atom. By V. Venkataramana Rao, B.A., B.L.	103
28.	Ambiguous Terms in Hindu Astrology. By Jyotish Kalanidhi Pt. Gopesh Kumar Ojha, M.A., LL.B.	105
29.	Weekdays in Sanskrit Literature. By U. Venkatakrishna Rao, M.A.	109
30.	Influence of Planetary Colours on Racing. By S. Khiogi	111
31.	The Riddle About a Well-known Verse of Varahamihira. By Prof. R. V. Vaidya, M.A., B.T.	115
32.	Some Observations on Kaka Bhujandar Nadi. By K. V. Venkataramanan	119
33.	Astrology and Its Practical Application. By I. Aghorapati, B.A, B.Ed.	123
34.	Astrology in Kerala. By P. Damodaran Nair, M.A., B.L.	125
35.	Electional Astrology. By K. V. Sivarama Iyer	127
36.	Around the World. By Douglas Hunt, M.A.	133
37.	Letters to Editor	137
38.	Book Reviews. By Dr. R. Nagaraja Sarma, M.A., Ph.D., D.Litt.	143
39.	Your Scientific Difficulties Solved. By Mihira	155
40.	Astronomical Notes for January 1959. By S. K. Kar, B.Sc.	159
41.	Hints for Agriculturists for January 1959. By Mihira	161
42.	Airways Guide for January 1959. By Mihira	163
43.	Ephemeris for January 1959	164
44.	Stars in Their Seasons. By M. V. Ramakrishnan, M.A., L.T.	165
45.	General Commercial Indications for 1959	166
46.	How Is 1959 for You? By Mihira	172
47.	Market Forecasts for 1959	179
48.	How Is This Month (January 1959) for You?	183
49.	Daily Guide for January 1959. By Mihira	197

Scanned with CamScanner Digitized by eGangotri to Preserve Dr. B V Ramans Work

First Phase

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

The first phase of the change-over to the Metric System of Weights and Measures began on October 1, 1958. The use of Metric weights has become legal in selected areas of the States.

The Metric System has been introduced also in Government departments and industries like cotton textile, iron and steel, engineering, heavy chemicals, paper, cement and jute.

The reform will be gradually extended till the whole country is covered.

METRIC SYSTEM

for simplicity and uniformity

KNOW THE METRIC EQUIVALENTS OF THE PRESENT WEIGHTS

Issued by the Government of India

METRIC WEIGHTS : Conversion Table

(Cut and Keep For Use)

CHHATAKS (1 chhatak = 5 tolas)	GRAMS (To nearest gram)
1	58
2	117
3	175
4	233
5	292
6	350
7	408
8	467
9	525
10	583
11	642
12	700
13	758
14	816
15	875

MAUNDS (1 maund = 40 seers)	KILOGRAMS (To nearest kilogram)
1	37
2	75
3	112
4	149
5	187
6	224
7	261
8	299
9	336
10	373
11	411
12	448
13	485
14	523
15	560
16	597
17	635
18	672
19	709
20	746

SEERS (1 seer = 80 tolas)	KILOGRAMS	GRAMS (To nearest 10 grams)
1	—	930
2	1	870
3	2	800
4	3	730
5	4	670
6	5	600
7	6	530
8	7	460
9	8	400
10	9	330
11	10	260
12	11	200
13	12	130
14	13	60
15	14	—
16	14	930
17	15	860
18	16	800
19	17	730
20	18	660
21	19	600
22	20	530
23	21	460
24	22	390
25	23	330
26	24	260
27	25	190
28	26	130
29	27	60
30	27	990
31	28	930
32	29	860
33	30	790
34	31	730
35	32	660
36	33	590
37	34	520
38	35	460
39	36	390

1 KILOGRAM = 1,000 GRAMS

DA 58/247

Scanned by www.sriguptaridiscology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

ANY PLANET THAT IS WEAK IN YOUR HOROSCOPE WILL CAUSE EVIL—
SUCH MALEFICS CAN BE WARDED OFF BY WEARING
ASTRAL GEMS AS RECOMMENDED BY
OUR RISHIS AND ANCIENTS

Planets Weak in your Horoscope	Likely Malefic Affect	Gems You Should Wear
Sun	BILIOUSNESS—RIGHT EYE COMPLAINT—GENERAL WEAKNESS	RUBY
Moon	PHYSICAL STRUCTURE—DIFFERENCE WITH MOTHER—LEFT EYE TROUBLE	PEARL
Mars	QUARRELS AMONG BROTHERS—TIMIDITY—TROUBLES OF FIGHTING NATURE	CORAL
Mercury	WEAK BRAIN—SLOW IN UNDERSTANDING—NERVOUS DEBILITY	EMERALD
Jupiter	IMPURE BLOOD—DISRESPECTFUL—OBSTINATE VIEWS	TOPAZ OR POKHRAJ
Sani	LOW MIND—WEAK BONES—RHEUMATIC COMPLAINT—LIAR—LOW CLASS ASSOCIATES	SAPPHIRE
Rahu	DISEASED BODY—PREJUDICED MIND	GOMEDAK
Kethu	WRONGLY CURSING THROUGH LIFE UNDER EVIL INFLUENCE OR MANTRIC POWER	CAT'S EYE
Sukra	CONJUGALLY UNHAPPY—HATER OF WOMEN—WEAKNESS OF ONE EYE	DIAMOND

We will help you to get a

QUALITY and GENUINE Astral Gem

SURAJMAL'S

JEWELLERS AND DEALERS IN QUALITY
GEMS SINCE 1895

313, ESPLANADE — MADRAS-1

Telephone. 2250 Telegrams: "MORALITY"

Scanned by www.sapnaastrology.com Love Dr. Patel's Work

WORLD PREDICTIONS FOR 1959

UNLIKE modern astronomy which is concerned only with the physical aspect of the universe, astrology deals with life and living things. In order to understand the truth of astrology which is basically a scientific art rather than a pure physical science, scientists must remain free from preconceived notions. The late John O'Neil, Science Editor of New York Herald Tribune, says: "A vitalistic cosmogony will recognise a complete and most intimate harmonic relationships in a single pattern between every entity from the fundamental particles through the atoms, through men, through the planetary system, through the galaxies, through the cosmos to the God-head himself. The hypotheses of astrology are consistent with such a vitalistic cosmogony. In this respect the astrological concept is much more modern than the astrological". He further adds that "scientists cannot look down on astrology, instead they must raise their eyes to take in the higher horizons that astrologers have preserved for them".

After reading in The Hindu, a report of our inaugural address to the All-Kerala Astrological Association, an Indian gentleman now resident in Americea, who claims to be an astronomer belonging to the favoured caste of "scientists who have discarded astrology", felt "outraged by the assumption that there is anything in common between astrology and astronomy". The Sanskrit term Jyotisha is all comprehensive and includes both astrology and astronomy and we reiterate that astrology does make use of astronomy as the physical basis of astrological procedure for the horoscope is nothing but a picture of the heavens with reference to the date, time and place of birth. Because astrology is not amenable to the favourite methods of investigation employed by the astronomers, it does not mean that astrology is a superstition. Astrology has shown that prediction is possible. It is for these astronomers to revise their antiquated, orthodox and superstitious views about astrology —a unique branch of knowledge which has the wonderful capacity of predicting the future of individuals and nations on the basis of planetary movements—astronomy. Belittling the glorious astrological—cultural—heritage of India is no sound argument against astrology.

Scanned by www.sriastrologyforum.com To Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

Modern astronomy only makes large assertions but has no demonstrable truth. We simply have to take on faith the "light years that proliferate in mighty noughts". Modern astronomy is a construction of materialistic western civilisation and about as useless as a feather-bed in the tropics. "Astronomers see dots, stripes, and streaks on the Moon and Mars. But they argue whether the Moon, supposedly nearest to us, is made of rock, dust or craters." It is no use bringing these speculators as a handle to beat the astrologer. Astrology is the earliest systematised attempt on the part of the great Maharshis to demonstrate that planets in their courses are correlated to affairs on this earth, and that chance and accident have no place in life. There is no use rationalising these things in the way the scientist desires. Let us humbly recognise that there are still imponderables behind both the jargon and the achievements of the present-day scientists. In an age that accepts cosmic radiations as fact the postulate that the solar system has influence upon the earth, invisible to the five senses but symbolised in the horoscope, need cause no disquiet to the materialistic mentality of the scientist or astronomer. The object of modern science including of course modern astronomy is exclusively the spatial and the inorganic while the object of astrology is the interpretation of human experience accepting the human being in the many-sided manifestation of his nature. So long as the scientist declaims against astrology marshalling endless legions of scientific irrelevances, we can afford to let him disclaim till he is black in the face, while we can go on expounding the self-determining character of astrology that establishes its own validity.

A unique feature of Hindu astrology, little known to Western astrological pandits and their Indian counterparts, is the importance given to the Sun and his movements, in the formation of the Planetary Cabinet. The commencement of the lunar year and the entry of the Sun into the sidereal Capricorn (Makara Sankranti) have been considered from times immemorial as the two important bases of mundane astrology. It is, of course, left to the discretion and experience of the individual astrologer concerned to select whichever he likes best or to combine and coordinate both. It is amusing to find that some English and American astrologers have been congratulating themselves as the discoverers of the "true method of mundane predictions" in the shape of the so-called capsolar chart. A capsolar chart is nothing but a horoscope cast for a time of the Sun's entry into Nirayana Makara. This method has been known to the Hindus for thousands of years that they have almost perfected it. The Sun whom the ancient Hindus considered as Suryanarayana —the Great Intelligence—and the prime cause of all creation, sustenance and destruction and not merely as a mass of blazing fire, was given a certain special symbolic distinction—Sankranti Purusha—as acquiring special characteristics as a result of his entry into Capricorn or Makara—marking thereby the commencement of Uttarayana or the winter solstice and influencing world affairs accordingly. Most almanacs in India carry even to this day, a description of Sankranti Purusha—Sun Personified—and accordingly portray the results likely to happen. It is indeed a pity that some of our own astrological scholars who are fully aware of these facts should still toe the line of those who think that it is the Western astrologers that have really made the grand discovery of the importance of Makara Sankranti. We are glad to note however that quite a number of Western astrologers have been coming forward, though late, in extending to Indian astrology, the recognition and originality that are its rightful dues.

The Hindus have always attached great importance to the positions of planets and the Planetary Government obtaining at the time of commencement of each lunar year. Sixty lunar years commencing from Prabhava and ending with Kshaya constitute a cycle. Prabhava denotes the birth of a new cyclic force. Vibhava indicates its expansion. Sukla denotes its vitality. Pramoduta connotes its further development. Prajotpatti signifies the various manifestations of this force. Angirasa suggests the different embodiments or forms this force takes. Similarly for all the sixty years, the names are given indicative of the work they are able to perform till Kshaya or destruction which means that the force generated in Prabhava has been destroyed thus marking the end of the cycle. The 33rd year of this cycle going under the name of Vikari commences on 8-4-1959, Wednesday, at about 8-59 a.m. (I.S.T.) Then there is the Planetary Cabinet, in the formation of which, the reference is always made to the movements of the Sun and of the Moon to a lesser extent. There is much food for reflection in the method governing the allocation of planetary portfolios every year. This takes into account the remarkable changes the solar ray undergoes as a result of the Sun's passage along the constellational belt.

We shall first sketch general results due to the Planetary Government. For the current year Vikari as the King happens to be Jupiter, there will be timely rains, people will become more religiously inclined, rule of righteousness will prevail and people in general will be happy and healthy. The Moon being Prime Minister denotes good yield of crops due to timely rains, prevalence of general happiness, availability of plenty of fodder and prosperity for milching cattle. Good rains, plentiful yield of paddy and wheat and a return to religion are shown by Jupiter being Lord of Vegetation. Want of timely rains, ordinary crops, rain-bearing clouds being destroyed by winds, general affliction to humanity will all be the consequences of Mercury becoming the Ruler of Grains. The Moon as Lord of Clouds will cause good rainfall, good yield of crops and plentiful availability of milk and milk products. Saturn as Ruler of Juices is not a good augury. There will be ordinary rains, poor supply of foodgrains and juicy articles, increase of bad characters and physical distress to people due to under-nourishment. Jupiter as Lord of Metals indicates brisk trade in gold, indigo, silk and yellow articles in general; but there will be a large number of naval mishaps. A tolerably balanced trade is shown due to the Moon being Lord of Commerce, but cotton will have an uncertain trend. The Moon also happens to be the Commander-in-chief. This favours good administration, good rains, well-trained and disciplined armies and much revenue for the Scanned by www.vedicastrologyonline.com to preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

Government As Krishna becomes the Lord of Cattle, agricultural conditions will improve and there will be plenty of milk and fodder.

It will be seen that a conflicting mass of results are indicated by the Planetary Cabinet. A discerning astrologer should sift the appropriate ones bearing in mind the influences due to the yearly chart, the transit movements of planets and the occurrence of other celestial phenomena such as eclipses, etc. This year's Planetary Government has a peculiarity. Of the nine portfolios, four are held by the Moon, three by Jupiter and one each by Saturn and Mercury. The most important planets of the solar system, viz., the Sun and Mars, representing royalty, aristocracy and the fighting classes and Venus signifying luxuries and women have no place at all. This has a great bearing upon the political conditions of the world. The preponderance of the Moon's influence as holding four functions and the absence of Mars foreshadow very interesting developments. The Moon is an unsteady planet. He is both Prime Minister and Commander-in-chief. Therefore, in several democratic countries, authority will come to be vested more and more in the hands of the army, not by violent coups d'etat or revolutions but by some sort of an understanding between the army and political leaders. The role of the politicians will become more and more insignificant and subordinated to the whims and fancies of military men. In other words, in many countries people will willingly accept authoritarian rule. Another peculiarity is Jupiter is head of the Government and has a dominating role to play. In countries where democratic Governments functioned before and in countries where democracy will cease to function in the course of this year, some sort of a benevolent authoritarianism will prevail. The jovian influences are also capable of infusing into the minds of statesmen a better sense of moral values. This means that in the settlement of disputes nations will employ violence to the absolute minimum necessary. Men's outlook will become more broadened and tolerant. Two more outstanding phenomena, viz., Saturn being confined to a minor portfolio and Venus not getting any place in the Cabinet merit our attention. The swing—political and economic—all over the world will be more towards the right. In India women will play a less important role in influencing the affairs of the country and they will find enough time to devote themselves to their more responsible and important functions of running homes and training children instead of competing with men in different walks of life. Promoters of feminism will find to their utter dismay that more and more of our educated ladies would prefer the obscurity of home and hearth and consequently the place of dignity and superiority vouchsafed for them by Indian tradition, to the false sense of equality, which some of our misguided leaders have thought fit to impose on them. Saturn's insignificant position would be a setback for the working class. Labour movements and trade union activities all over the world would suffer a setback though the spate of violence to be let loose by them will not be inconsiderable. These are general trends due to the disposition of the Planetary Cabinet and they are subject to variations due to influences occurring in the horoscopes of different countries.

In the astrological nomenclature, Jupiter stands for religion, justice, finance, philanthropy, nobility, peace and wisdom. His being the King signifies that new forms of religious conceptions will arise and hold sway so that hatred, immorality and cruelty will show some signs of weakening, though temporarily. Political power, as we have already observed, will pass into the hands of noble and generous minded persons who will endeavour to dispel dark forces and work for the good of the people. As a consequence, whilst on the one hand, the sharpness in the points of tension like Formosa, Korea, etc., will become somewhat blunted, and the threat of war will temporarily recede, preparations in secret will go on feverishly. The 'Peace' denoted by Jupiter this year is only a false peace and a passing phase and not a forerunner of the utopia of universal brotherhood fondly cherished by idealistic dreamers. It is just an international expediency to enable nations to perfect deadlier forms of warfare and destruction. This lunar year goes under the name of Vikari. Vikara means perverse and we will have therefore some sort of a perverse peace, because the two power blocks feel that they cannot afford to wage war. Vikara also means "agitation, excitement, contention and perturbation" and the year Vikari will fully bear out the meaning of Vikara.

Scanned by www.sriganeshastrology.com for Preserving Late V. Kamath's Work

At the beginning of the year, Saturn remains in Sagittarius—first quarter of Purvashada. He becomes retrograde on 16th April, gets back to Moola about 7th June, becomes direct on 5th September in the 3rd quarter of Moola and re-enters Purvashada by about 24th November. Again while just on the verge of entering Uttarashada, he becomes retrograde on 27th April 1960. Thus, while in Dhanus, Saturn transits Moola till 27th February 1959 and again from 7th June to 24th November 1959. Moola is the constellation of Kethu. It is dark in colour,

(Continued on page 21)

As it STRIKES ME

BY BHRIGU

Half-Baked Theories

It is one of the few paradoxes that some of the well-intentioned strike at the roots of a thought or culture which they claim to defend or resurrect; and it is painful to take the gauntlet with them when they happen to be our valued friends and contributors. In the interests of the basic principles of Hindu astrological thought, we are compelled to enter into a serious discussion with Mr. G. C. Nixon on the question of Bhava (house) and Rasi (sign).

Mr. Nixon argues that after Parasara and Jaimini there arose a confusion between the house and sign systems in Hindu astrology, and that Mantreswara attempted a synthesis under foreign influences. This bogey of a foreign influence is not new to Indologists. Every European writer claims that anything appearing in ancient India was an importation from Europe. This pious view has been acting like the head of Charles I in the minds of many European orientalists, even when this ghost was laid to rest by many an Indian scholar of eminence. Mr. Nixon may quote the Tajika system of divination. Without entering into this problem here, we can only say that like the numerals, this divinatory system was carried by the Arabs from India, and that it came back to us with a new nomenclature. Mr. Nixon may not accept such a view, since he doubts even the historicity of Sri Rama. Here we may remind him that till the end of the last century Europeans doubted the historical character of the story of the Iliad. But the great work done by Schlimann and Evans has proved that Agamemnan and others did live once upon a time. Still the European scholar cannot concede the posibility of a historical nature to the story of Ramayana for the simple reason that India is not in Western Europe and that Hindus are neither Greeks nor Christians. It would be safer if these scholars refrain from making unfounded generalisations on Hinduism or on the great characters of the Hindu Epics. It is dangerous to arrive at an unfounded generalisation in an age of scientific thinking.

A glance at the Brihat Parasara Hora Sara clearly shows that the main teaching of Jaimini is already contained in it. Thus Jaimini followed the natural Karaka system of the benefic and malefic planets. For instance Jaimini has a sutra—Dvitiyam bhava balam cara navamse (2.4.1). He does not speak of rasi, but of bhava. That he does distinguish between bhava and rasi is clear from the aphorism: Sarvatra savarna bhava rasayasca (1.1.33).

This is also true of Parasara. Speaking of the effects given by Rahu and Kethu, he writes: Yadyad bhava gatau vapi yad yad bhavesa samyutau. Parasara could easily have used the word rasi without spoiling the metre. But he uses bhava not because he confuses the two but because he distinguishes them better than some of the modern astrologers of India and of the West. It is therefore not after Parasara and Jaimini that the conception of Bhava as distinct from that of Rasi emerged in Hindu astrology.

The argument given by Mr. Nixon in assuming a confusion only shows that there is a lack of proper understanding of the rules. The cusps of the 9th and 10th houses may fall in Sagittarius; and then Jupiter would be the ruler of a trine and also of a square. He is a benefic and also a malefic in this case. He will give mixed results. There is no absurdity here. For Leo if Jupiter becomes the lord of the fifth and the eighth Bhavas, we do not treat him as a pure benefic. Only Mars can become a benefic for Leo, according to Parasara and all other Hindu authorities. If one and the same planet becomes a benefic and also a malefic by virtue of his ownership of two different Bhavas, it does not mean that Parasara's rules do not apply to the rulerships of Bhavas. Evidently Mr. Nixon wants a planet to own either two benefic Bhavas or two malefic Bhavas; and this is a wishful reading of a basic principle.

The various yogas generally take into account only the Bhavas and their rulers. At the very beginning of the Satayoga Manjari, the author states: Janmakalam sphutikrithya khetan bhavamsca sastratah... We have to correct the longitudes of the planets and of the Bhavas before applying the yogas. This principle comes from the earliest times. When a yoga is said to be formed by the conjunction of the lord of a kendra with that of a trikona, the yoga is to be computed from the cusp of the ascendant, not from the ascending sign. If we cannot get such yogas outside of India, it is not the fault of the system, nor is it

(Continued on page 121.)

Scanned by www.sreenivasanjyothishastrigal.com in Presence Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

Astrological Affiliations of Religion and Theology

BY DR. R. NAGA RAJA SARMA, M.A., PH.D., D.LITT.

CAREFUL and critical students of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE will readily recall with admiration and gratitude the enormous amount of intellectual output that has been made available to the public by Prof. B.V. Raman, in the pages of his journal which is unique and the only one of its kind, in the East. He has not only made with unerring precision and astonishing accuracy, in the course of Editorials, striking and uncanny predictions, regarding the destiny of certain foreign dignitaries and development of political events, but, has generously, permitted others, to express their independent judgment on astrological and allied matters. The Annual published by Prof. Raman every year is an invitation and a challenge.

It constitutes an invitation to thinkers and writers to record their thoughts and reflections in the pages of the magazine. It is a challenge to all unbelievers, and hostile critics of astrology, which they have to meet. For, the predictions regarding world-events, made and recorded in the annuals have elicited universal admiration for infallibility which must be galling to adverse critics of the noble and divine science of astrology.

In the course of my previous contributions to the annuals, I have placed before the readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, some of my views on different aspects of theoretical and practical branches or departments of astrology. Some of my views have been commended by your readers, while, yet, others have been sought to be denied and denounced. As I am essentially a student of the Vedanta, and as I am mainly and primarily a student of philosophy and all forms and patterns of higher thought, I am personally indifferent to and unaffected by both attacks and admiration. My object throughout has been only pursuit of pure and systematic research in astrology, and endeavour to vindicate its status and prestige.

A correspondent has complained that what I had stated, in the course of my contribution to the symposium on profession, is very vague and that astrology seems unable to give guidance in the choice of a profession. The attitude revealed by this correspondent is undoubtedly typical and absolutely erroneous to astrology.

Writers of standard classics on astrology, like Varahamihira, have plainly pointed out that just as a lamp reveals objects, the science of astrology reveals the good and evil effects of the Karma of individuals done in previous lives.

What the nature of the Karma is, with all details could be known only to the Almighty Lord, the ruler of the entire cosmos in strictest accordance with the law of Karma, individual and collective. All other forms and degrees of knowledge are bound to be imperfect, vague and expressed only in terms of probabilities and statistical chances and opportunities for occurrence. The correspondent and others who think with him should have to remain satisfied with the theory and practice of astrology existing and functioning under the conditions and limitations inherent in all human efforts and endeavours.

The law, principle, or the doctrine of Karma is universal and omni-operative in its range and jurisdiction. It determines life and all intellectual, emotional, and volitional reactions and adjustments of individuals, groups, and nations, to characteristic surroundings and environment.

Personal preferences, prejudices and predilections, likes and dislikes, political, social and philosophical affiliations and loyalties, are all regulated by the law of Karma. Some feel a fascination for dictatorship. Others are attracted towards democracy. Some like and advocate violence. Others admire and advocate non-violence. There are countless other pairs of opposites (Dvandvas, as they are commonly styled) which can be easily imagined.

Scanned by astrologicalgyaan.com Presented by Dr B V Raman's Family

Ignorant and arrogant mankind may imagine that the preferences and prejudices, selections and rejections of the mind are all born of Freewill, but, the Fact is that they are all Divine directions, or Destiny directions, which toss hither and thither, individuals and nations, in the vast and limitless ocean of Time, now peaceful and placid, now stormy and tempestuous, by the force of gales and tornadoes springing from violent disturbances of mental pressure.

In the course of the present contribution, I propose to point out how certain well-known religious and philosophical tendencies and loyalties have their own astrological affiliations and correlations, which would constitute sufficient logical or rational justification of different religious and theological approaches to the problem of God, which has been rightly engaging the attention of the serious and thinking section of mankind ful and measured mercy as it were, with rigour and reason, and above all with love and grace.

The Dhruvanadi describes some births as occurring in families devoted to worship of Vishnu. Other births are listed as having occurred in families paying homage to Siva. Whether there are any congenital religious tendencies or theological predispositions, concomitant psychological leanings which render persons susceptible to approaches to Siva or Vishnu should be deemed an open question to which a summary answer cannot be given. The psychology of religious belief is a complex and complicated study, but, the ancient Indian saints and sages had done (definitely under divine direction and intuitional inspiration as I understand the matter) most of the study and thinking for the benefit of posterity and embodied their conclusions in their classical treatises.

In some cases, devotion to this or that deity appears in the most intense and concentrated form, bordering on fanaticism. In others belief and devotion are neutrally toned and lukewarm. In still others, religious and spiritual leanings happen to be merely formal and mechanically conventional. It is easily understood that different degrees of intensity in religious belief and devotion are directly traceable to and dependent on the strength of the planet or planets concerned. In regard to astrological affiliation, political fanaticism stands on the same level or plane as the religious type.

It should be interesting to investigate which planet dominantly determines devotion to Democracy and which devotion to Dictatorship, Nazi-ism, Fascism and so forth. Even in European and American systems of astrology, this problem does not seem to have been investigated. Could Communism thrive in America? Likewise, could Democracy thrive in Russia? Though professional politicians may give their own answers to such questions, the truth of the matter does not lie in that direction.

A Nation gets a form or pattern of Government which it deserves in consonance with its Karma, which, again, is indicated in some suitable planetary map erected for the political birth of that Nation.

There is no need to pursue the problem further, here, but, more vital and dynamic is astrological determination of religious and theistic loyalty. The Dhruvanadi does not always take the readers into confidence. The statements made are often dogmatic. Occasionally, charts are mapped, and specific events and circumstances are traced to their respective planetary affiliations or correlations. Charts straightaway commence with Nadi statement that individuals concerned are devotees of Siva or Vishnu, as the case may be.

As far as my investigations are concerned, the Dhruvanadi does not give any categorical clear-cut account affiliating or correlating different gods of the Hindu theological set-up to or with respective planets. I am putting this observation here with considerable caution and mental reservations as I have not been able to complete my studies, and as it is difficult to get the needed material. As a staunch believer in the statements of ancient Indian saints and sages, I feel no difficulty in accepting what the classics contain, though, under such limitations or conditions, carrying conviction to the minds of modern critics should be deemed vastly frustrational and highly uphill task.

(4)

It is, however, in the Sutras of Jaimini that direct and pointed reference has been made to specific planets and religio-theological affiliations to them. Jaimini Sutras have always been the hardest of nuts to crack. Luckily, understanding of the exact and correct significance of the apothegms of Jaimini has been facilitated by Prof. B. V. Raman's authoritative work and by the rendering of the text by Prof. Kar, both of which have now been before the public for some years past.

From my personal experience (obviously, I can talk only for myself) and from discussions with professional practitioners of astrology, and with non-professional academic-minded research workers, I have found that no professional astrologer has been utilising the methodology of Jaimini, in actual day-to-day pursuit of the business. Here and there, there may be some whose number can be counted on one's fingers who may be calculating longevity according to Jaimini and even using the system for other determinations. Still, I have a strong feeling that better and more accurate results may be obtained if the principles of Jaimini are increasingly pressed into service by professional practitioners of astrology. The task is undoubtedly difficult. It is also impossible to say if execution of such a difficult task would bring in sufficient or adequate remuneration, in these modern days, when a person can find out his weekly fate, fortune, or destiny, from the columns of a 2-annas or 3-annas paper. Other sheets claim to give you your Daily Destiny.

In aphorisms 72—80 (Chapter 1, Quarter 2) astrological affiliations are described of different theological loyalties and reactions. The author of the sutras proclaims his religious and theological leanings in the opening apothegm itself.

Scanned by www.santoshiastrology.com To Preserve Late B. V. Raman's Work

The apothegm begins with Upadesa. It is split into U-pada and Isa. Commentator Neelakantha explains that the first U—denotes Lord Siva, according to traditional single letter dictionary or lexicon. (Ekakshara nighantu). Jaimini begins his great work with a devotional salutation to Lord Siva. Whether the astrologer Jaimini is the same as the Jaimini of the system of Poorva Meemamsa is still considered by some to be a debatable question, an unsolved problem of chronology and personal identity. But, the obvious and palpable difference discernible between the two sets of sutras would strongly suggest the two sages should be deemed to be different from one another.

Be that as it may, astrologer Jaimini seems to be a person with theological leanings of Saiva complexion. Jaimini speaks of Brahma planet, Rudra planet, and Maheswara planet, and has laid down the conditions determining this designation. Sometimes, the terms Rudra and Parameswara are treated as synonymous. And Parameswara is Maheswara. If so, and if Rudra and Maheswara be taken to be synonymous, no place is found for Vishnu. And then, two Rudras are mentioned. Evidently, there seems to be no reference to two Brahmas. But wait. More than one approach would seem to have been indicated for the determination of Brahma planet.

Prof. B. V. Raman has made these matters abundantly clear, but, as his exposition had been undertaken from a different perspective, he has not dealt with theological implications and affiliations. It must be common knowledge that Jaimini lays pre-eminent emphasis on what he has described as the Atmakaraka planet which constitutes a basic and fundamental point of departure for astrological determinations and evaluations. The navamsa held or occupied by this basic or foundational planet is equally important. Jaimini goes on to explain that if the navamsa concerned be occupied by Ravi and Kethu, the person concerned would be a devotee of Lord Siva. If the Moon is in the said navamsa, devotion would be directed to the consort of Siva—Gouri or Parvathi. Lakshmi, the consort of Vishnu, becomes the object of devotional worship if Sukra held the said navamsa. Kuja or Angaraka found existing in the said position stands affiliated to worship of Skanda or Subrahmanya. Budha and Sani located in the concerned navamsa, would determine devotion to Vishnu. If Guru be the occupier of the navamsa, the divine couple, Siva and Parvati in aspect of union as Sambasiva would be the object of religious and theological devotion. Rahu, in the said position indicates devotion to certain spirits, devils and others in the line and to Durga. (In Mantra literature, regarded same as Kali, Neela, Neela-Saraswathi and so on.) Kethu in the position mentioned determines devotion to Ganesa and Subrahmanya or Skanda.

(5)

A perusal of this highly interesting list of religio-theological affiliations is bound to evoke different reflections in different minds. Some would contend that generally speaking, a person hardly worries about religious and theological loyalties. When any party approaches an astrologer, he or she almost always puts him questions concerning wealth, profession, luck, easy money, marriage and other values of happy and pleasurable existence. No question is ever put to the effect whether a horoscopian would develop to be a devotee of Siva or Skanda and so forth.

Others may hold that there is bound to be legitimate curiosity regarding the religious and spiritual development of an individual and that astrologers are also consulted by parents and others regarding the religious tendencies of subjects. I am not pursuing this discussion at any length, because, it would take me beyond the present scope of the contribution. Even in the present scientifically sophisticated age, there are persons orthdox, or religious-minded, or superstitious, if you like, who are anxious to know something from astrologers about their relations with family deities, and deities of choice made after mature metaphysical deliberations.

Particularly, when a party is found to be suffering long from some indefinable and inscrutable illness, or when a person is repeatedly assailed by ill-luck in most of his undertakings, it is common practice of the average Hindu to consult the family astrologer for light and guidance. Well-informed astrologers are sure to shed light on the question. They would say that the subject is under the displeasure of this or that deity, brought about by the performance, knowingly or unknowingly, of some sinful or prohibited deeds in this or previous lives. The sufferings and diseases, etc., are the inheritance carefully preserved and safeguarded through the limitlesss expanse of Time and passed on to individuals in accordance with the law of Karma, by the Supreme Lord. If the deity or deities concerned can be worshipped and propitiated in the prescribed manner, the sufferings would most likely disappear. Some such is the general situation. In other cases, persons are in the regular habit of worshipping this or that deity or deities, for the purpose of obtaining success in life and worldly possessions.

Scanned by www.vedicastrology.ecwid.com. CC Preserved by Dr. B. Vedamurthy, Ph.D.

Such religio-theological leanings and predispositions can never be sought to be dismissed as merely accidental or fortuitous. They are the outcome of the output of the Karma of individuals concerned. In certain highly perverted, rancorous and cantankerous specimen of persons, one would find resort to particular deities made for the purpose of getting rid of enemies and involving them in serious physical and mental ailments. These are typical of the black art or black magic practised throughout the world by evil-minded persons. Practising of this black art and adoption of counter-measures, curative and rehabilitative, go together. These are said to be very common in Malabar and adjoining places.

(6)

It is difficult to arrive at the full and complete significance of the affiliations mentioned by Jaimini, but, attempts should be made to get to the heart of the matter. While two planets are affiliated both to devotion centred on Siva and Vishnu, the other gods and deities stand affiliated to only one. Sambasiva is mentioned separately, in aspect of union of Siva and His consort, but, no such unified aspect has been listed in respect of Vishnu. Of course, there is Sita-Rama aspect or the Radha-Krishna aspect, or the Lakshmi-Narayana and Lakshmi-Narasimha and others. But, Jaimini has not given any planetary affiliation to mark these. As it is, the nine planets are distributed in affiliation to Siva, Vishnu, Gouri, Lakshmi, Skanda, Ganesa and Durga. While the sons of Gouri have been assigned their places in the religio-theological scheme, sons of Lakshmi seem to have been ignored.

The reasons and grounds, conditions and circumstances that must have guided in his selective choice are not apparent from the list given. Also, while other affiliations are marked by single planets, Ravi-Kethu and Sani-Budha are listed in combination to mark off devotion to Siva and Vishnu evidently, as standing superior to others. Gouri and Durga are mentioned separately. But, some of the works on the occult—Mantra-sastra—have taken the two to be in fact one and the same. Skanda is mentioned twice, once in affiliation with Kuja, and again, for the second time, in affiliation with Kethu. The expectation may be natural to find similar conditions obtaining in regard to Rahu and Sani.

But, these two planets get different affiliations, Sani being correlated with Vishnu and Rahu with Durga.

Further, it is found that Sun the centre of the planetary system is affiliated to Siva, but, the weakest planet Sani, has been indicated in affiliation to Vishnu. Not merely this. In combination with Sun, Kethu is shown to mark devotion to Lord Siva. Kethu functions similarly to Kuja. Thus, two very virile and strong planets are affiliated to Siva.

Conditions, on the other hand, seem to have been completely reversed, while indicating devotion to Vishnu. The planets affiliated are Budha and Sani. In the usual classification, Budha is taken as devoid of virility or potency. Sani also is taken to stand for old women bereft of all charms aad attractions. It may appear strange that these two weak and powerless planets have been chosen to distinguish devotion to Lord Vishnu. Yet, there the affiliation stands. It should be well known that ordinarily 33 crores of gods and goddesses have been spoken of.

Western critics and even some Eastern pandits used to laugh at the gigantic strength of the gods. They used to observe, (perhaps in fun) that at the time when some enterprising person or agency or organization took something like a census of the gods and arrived at the total strength of 33 crores, nothing wonderful at all happened.

Just at that time, the population of India stood at 33 crores, (now of course the strength has so vastly increased that Nehru and others are sternly and seriously advocating adoption of birth-control methodology), and urged by the oriental spirit of over-statement or exaggeration, some one glorified out of courtesy and urbanity of manners and social relationship, the 33 crores of inhabitants, into as many gods. Evidently, on the basis of some such exaggerated imaginational poetic imagery or symbolism, thinkers like Bharati, have enthusiastically claimed that each citizen is the king of the country, and that all are, thus, kings, though God knows the said kingship vanishes into empty nothingness, the moment, the poor deluded citizen puts his marked voting paper into the ballot box.

Whatever the reason that might have impelled Jaimini to have arrived at the conclusions he has, religio-theological loyalty and allegiance has been confined to seven deities. In a way, it is also fairly clear which side Jaimini would take in the matter of the endless and interminable controversies ranging round the question of the supremacy of Siva or Vishnu. The opening benedictory apothegm, and the affiliation of the centre of the solar system, Sun, to Siva would immediately suggest the preferences of the author. It would be permissible to infer

(Continued on page 95)

Scanned by www.sparrchisshaiyogi.com Preserve Digitally Rapidly Work

*Foreknowledge and Hypotheses of "Time-Curvature"

BY PROF. C. T. K. CHARI, M.A., PH.D.
(Madras Christian College, Tambaram)

PRECOGNITION or foreknowledge is so baffling a problem that one casts about for some hypothesis, however far-fetched or incredible, in confronting it. P.D. Ouspensky's queer hypothesis of a "circular time" and "recurrent events" naturally presents itself to us. In his Tertium Organum, Ouspensky advances the hypothesis that our "time-sense" is an "imperfectly developed space-sense". "The 'time-sense' is itself, in substance, the limit or the surface of our 'space-sense'. Where the 'space-sense' ends, there the 'time-sense' begins". It is in his book A New Model of the Universe that Ouspensky advances the hypothesis which has inspired one of J.B. Priestley's "Time Plays". Ouspensky says that we ordinarily think of the duration of a human life as a straight line or rather as a segment of a line, the two limiting points representing birth and death. May it not be a curve? A man may die in 1912 and find himself back in 1877. Precognition would then be merely memory. The pilgrim in time "remembers" the places he is going to visit; he has been there before, like Dr. Gortler in Priestley's play.

Is there any support for Ouspensky's notion of "time-curvature" in modern mathematical astronomy? Cosmological speculation about time along relativistic lines is still in too unsettled a state. Einstein's early "cylindrical model" posited three spatial dimensions belonging to a curved hypersphere and a fourth co-ordinate which is explicit, isolated, free from all disturbance. De Sitter's model shared with Einstein's a curved space, but it introduced a curved "hyperbolic" time instead of Einstein's "rectilinear" time. In this strange universe, time, for each observer, appears to "stand still" at a "horizon"; the "slowing down", however, is apparent; everything goes on "normally" for an observer actually situated in the concerned region. Eventually it was recognized that the models of

C. T. K. CHARI

Einstein and De Sitter could be only the "limits" of an evolving universe. In postulating a universe in which the density of matter was not zero, Einstein introduced an arbitrary, universal constant, the "cosmological constant". Eddington, Lemaitre and others demonstrated that the "constant" entailed a "repulsion" and, therefore, an "expansion" of the universe, proportionate to the distance from the point taken as the origin. Friedmann proved that a model whose spatial metric was a function of time could allow "expansion" even without the cosmological constant. Friedmann studied models in which the cosmological constant was zero, positive or negative, confining his attention, however, to spaces with a positive curvature. Heckmann considered cases in which the space curvature was zero, positive or negative. The "expanding models" are of two types according to the curvature of space. In one set (Type I), the radius increases continually from zero at some epoch tending to infinity after an infinite lapse of time. In the other set (Type II), the radius had a definite non-zero value when the "expansion" began. With a negative cosmological constant and any space curvature, we get "oscillating" models. With a constant of zero, we get either "oscillating" or "expanding" (Type I) models. With a positive "cosmological constant", we get either "expanding" (Types I and II) or "oscillating" models according to the space curvature. The accompanying table sets forth the possibilities:

There remains a few unorthodox models in which "time" is curved. Kurt Godel showed in the Reviews of Modern Physics that Einstein's field equations of gravity can yield solutions with closed, "time-like" lines. In this weird model, we cannot assume that time increases always as we move in a "time-like" direction; it is possible to "travel" into the "past" and "influence" it. Godel has cautioned us that the physical relevance of his model is far from demonstrated. Since the radius of the smallest "time-like" lines in it is of the same

*I am grateful to Mrs. Eileen Garrett and the Parapsychology Foundation for their encouragement.

Scanned by www.vedicastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B V Raman's Work

Cosmological constant	Space curvature
	Negative	Zero	Positive
Negative ...	Oscillating	Oscillating	Oscillating
Zero ...	Expanding I	Expanding I	Oscillating
Positive ...	Expanding I	Expanding I	Expanding I Expanding II Oscillating

magnitude as the world-radius in Einstein's static model, it is far from clear whether Godel's hypothesis, even theoretically solves the problem of precognition in a terrestrial frame of reference. B. Abramenko, in the British Journal for the Philosophy of Science, has explored the possibility of an "elliptic time". But the effects of "time curvature", in this model, are "usually insignificant" and become noticeable only at "large distances and long intervals". Precognition does not seem to require these long distances to time-intervals. In the Journal of Parapsychology, recently, the Dutch astro-physicist J. M. J. Kooy has dwelt on the implications of a hypersphere on which both space and time are curved. I have commented on Kooy's hypothesis in the same Journal (J. Parapsychology, March 1958, Pp. 40–54). I am afraid that Kooy fails to make clear how the "curvature of time" solves the problem of foreknowledge. One wonders whether the whole hypothesis of "time-curvature" is not a complication unwarranted by cosmology. Milne's "Kinematic Relativity" recognizes two scales of time. On one, time ranges from minus infinity to plus infinity; on the other, it has a definite origin at a certain epoch. Motions of particles, on the second scale, are fundamentally irreversible; time has an "arrow" right from the start. The question of "time curvature" does not arise. In the "new cosmologies" of Bondi, Lyttelton, and Gold, matter is supposed to be continuously created to compensate for the "thinning out" produced by "expansion". Local decreases in entropy can occur. The overwhelming impression, again, is of a temporal universe. Pascaal Jordon offers us a Kaluza-Klein 5-dimensional model with a variable gravitational constant. Non-static solutions of the field equations provide for the birth of matter in the shape of giant super-novae.

Has quantum theory any bearing on hypotheses of "time-curvature"? Schroedinger argued, on general grounds, that space must be closed and finite in order that the wave equations describing the quantum-mechanical behaviour of matter may permit a discrete spectrum. This leaves the question of time unsettled. Martin Gutzwiller, in Helv. Phys. Acta (29, 1956), has investigated the Klein-Gordon, Maxwell and Dirac equations, as well as their quantization, in a 4-dimensional space-time continuum of constant curvature with space-like geodesics of finite length and time-like geodesics of infinite length. I do not see what support the hypothesis of "time-curvature" can find in current speculation or how precisely it solves the problem of foreknowledge.

READY FOR SALE

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com to Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

The Universe and the Heavens

By M. V. Ramakrishnan, M.A., L.T.

The book gives in simple non-technical language all that is known at the present day about the heavenly bodies giving the latest theories of an evolving and expanding Universe. Attempts have also been made to correlate ancient astrology with modern observations.

Though much of the matter in this book has already appeared years ago in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, the matter has been entirely rewritten to meet the needs of the layman, the University student, the astronomer and the astrologer.

An invaluable book that every lover of knowledge should possess.

Crown 1/8 size: Cloth Bound with attractive Jacket

Rs. 5.25 or Sh. 10/6 per copy. Postage Extra.

Less 12½% to Subscribers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari" : : BANGALORE–3

Interpretation of a Planet's Influence

BY DR. P. S. SASTRI, M.A., M.LITT., PH.D.

THE interpretation of a horoscope depends upon a proper interpretation of the nature of a planet and of the house in which it is situated in a given map. For a proper assessment one should calculate the six-fold strength of the planets and the strength of the various houses; and in undertaking to do that, one needs a handy method which can be found in the little volume Graha and Bhava Balas from the pen of the Editor of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. Apparently the planets and the houses may appear to be good or bad; but after calculating the actual strength of the houses and the planets, one will have a definite idea. Thus in the first chart[1] we find all planets excepting Sun and Mars appearing in a house in which they are not actually present. When the planets are presented in terms of the Bhavas, only Sun and Mars remain in their houses; and the rest have to be posited in the following houses. In order to interpret the nature of the results of the planets, one has to consider their Bhava positions after ascertaining their relative strength and weakness.

There is an unfortunate dispute amongst astrologers regarding the precise meaning of the term Bhava or cusp. Some take it to be the starting point, while others consider it to be the mid-point. Following the tradition and considering our experience, we are compelled to treat the degree on the cusp or Bhava as the middle point of the house. In this paper we are using for the sake of convenience, the terms Bhava, cusp and house as synonyms; and all the illustrations and interpretations are based on the Nirayana zodiac. Our preliminary principles are drawn mostly from Mantreswara with modifications.

A Bhava gives good results if it is occupied or aspected by a benefic, or by its own lord, or by the owner of a benefic house, provided it has no kind of association with a malefic. This general statement needs qualification. It does not apply to a benefic aspecting from the degree of his debilitation or from an inimical sign.

P. S. SASTRI

When the trines and angles of a cusp are caused by natural benefics or by the benefics of the chart concerned, without any malefic association, that house becomes strong and highly effective. In the second chart[2] we find two powerful malefics in the 7th and 10th houses; and they are more or less on the same degree as the ascendant. This individual poisoned many persons and was finally executed. All the angles are marred in this case. Moreover, Mars has a square aspect on Saturn.

If the lord of a Bhava happens to be in the 6th, 8th or 12th house from that Bhava, or if he is in a depression or an inimical sign, the results will not be benefic. This principle has to be modified considerably when such a planet is associated with or aspected by a benefic, or is exalted. The third chart[3] provides a good illustration. Here the lord of the ascendant is in the eighth, and the lord of the eleventh is in the eighth from that. It was mostly in Saturn's period and later that he worked and established one of our very best Universities.

A Bhava becomes useless when it, its lord, and its significator are not strong and when they are associated with malefics only. This is a simple and self-evident principle.

The lord of the 8th house from a Bhava, the lord of the 22nd from drekkana from that cusp, and those situated in the 6th, 7th and 8th houses from that Bhava are likely to give malefic results as far as that Bhava is concerned. But malefics in the 3rd, 6th and

[1] Ascdt.-Aries 0° 46′; Kethu-Aries 28° 30′; Jupiter (R)-Cancer 21° 58′; Saturn (R)-Leo 18° 7′; Mars-Libra 3° 26′; Venus-Scorpio 28° 31′; Mercury-Sagittarius 28° 39′; Sun-Capricorn 8° 11′; Moon-Capricorn 19° 53′; and Mercury-Sagittarius 24° 53′.

[2] Ascdt.-Pisces 15°; Venus-Pisces 9°; Jupiter-Taurus 25°; Moon-Gemini 21°; Mars-Virgo 13°; Saturn-Sagittarius 16°; and Mercury and Sun-Capricorn 29°.

[3] Born on 25-12-1861 with Moon's Dasa at birth for 45 months. Ascdt.-Aries 5°; Kethu-Gemini 14°; Virgo-Saturn 2°; Jupiter 6°; Moon 18°; Scorpio-Mars 2°; Sagittarius-M.C. 3°; Sun 13°; and Aquarius-Venus 1°.

Scanned by CamScanner from thisisastrology.com To Preserve Digital Heritage Work led in its sphere of activity. Moreover one should also note the things for which Mars is the significator.

The conjunction of Mars with the Sun reveals the native to be highly energetic in asserting himself; he becomes strong, forceful, bold and hardworking; and he has an initiative. He may do at times undesirable deeds. But the energy is generally revealed in intellectual spheres. The conjunction indicates some physical injury. A good example is provided by Lenin who had Sun and Mars conjunction within eight degrees. Another is afforded by Dr. Pattabhi's chart where in Scorpio, in the 5th house, we find the conjunction of the Sun with Mars and Mercury.

A favourable or benefic aspect between Sun and Mars only intensifies these tendencies. Quick decision, alertness and ability are indicated. Personal dignity and self-control, patient-stoical endurance and the struggle for the well-being of mankind are also suggested. There can be no better illustration than the sixth chart.[6] There is a perfect trine here between Mars and Sun, and the native struggled and shed his blood for maintaining the integrity and unity of his country. Another illustration is provided by the seventh chart.[7] This is the famous mathematical physicist who struggled for the peace and well-being of man, besides revolutionising the concepts in the various sciences. Here Mars is sextile Sun. Another such sextile is offered by Tilak's map.[8]

An unfavourable aspect between Mars and Sun brings about an overstrain, pugnacity and short temper. The person is easily excitable, and risks in his love of hazardous undertakings. He lacks an impartial judgment; and he is on the lookout even for an intellectual combat. The Duke of Windsor has Mars square Sun, while Mussolini's Sun is square to Mars. These illustrations show that even an unfavourable aspect between Sun and Mars is not actually a malefic one.

The conjunction between Mars and Moon makes one robust, courageous and overactive. The native takes many risks. This is a healthy position for the two bodies, and they confer kindness and benevolence and a good combative spirit. The ninth chart[9] shows Moon and Mars within four degrees only. This is the chart of one who ruled as a dictator, and who yet retained a genial sense of humanity for a long time.

The favourable aspects between Moon and Mars bring about excellent physical and emotional strength and the ability to work. The unfavourable aspect between these two makes one moody or quarrelsome and violate the peace in the home. There is a favourable square between the two in Gandhi's horoscope, while an unfavourable trine exists in the ex-Kaiser's nativity. The trine operates between the 6th and the 10th houses.

The unfavourable aspect at times brings about self-indulgence, obstinacy and unhappy marital relations.

The conjunction between Mars and Mercury makes the mind forceful and incisive. One becomes an expert in debate and in every physical activity. The controversial and disputative energies conferred by this conjunction make one virile and aggressive, sincere and bold. Cicero was said to have had this feature in his map. The tenth chart[10] shows Mars conjunction Mercury with opposition Saturn and trine Jupiter. Starting from an humble career, participating in a number of movements for independence, arguing with and convincing many he rose to the highest position in his country. The eleventh chart[11] shows the favourable square between Moon and Mars, and also Mars conjunction Mercury. The individual well illustrates the intellectual ability and earnestness with which he has been fighting for a good cause.

A favourable aspect between Mars and Mercury accentuates the qualities revealed by the conjunction. The native becomes powerful, courageous and enterprising. The mental faculties are invigorated; and he is alert and incisive. The native shines as a good author, and is fond of children. He has a fund of commonsense. In the seventh chart we find Mars sextile Mercury. Mussolini has a similar placing.

(Continued on page 182)

Scanned by www.vedicastrologyinstitute.com For Preservation & Research Work

[6] Born on 12-2-1809 with Sun's period for 63 months. Ascdt. 16°, Sun 4°, M.C. 21° in Aquarius; Jupiter 2° and Venus 18° in Pisces; Kethu 15° in Aries; Mars 6° in Libra; Saturn 13° in Scorpio; and Moon 5° in Capricorn.

[7] Born on 14-3-1879 with Mercury's period for 95 months. Ascdt. 22° in Gemini; Moon 24° in Scorpio; Mars 6° and Rahu 11° in Capricorn; Jupiter 7° in Aquarius; and Sun 3°, M.C. 12°, Saturn 14° and Venus 26° in Pisces.

[8] Born on 23-7-1856 with Mercury's period for 13 years 9 months. Ascdt. 21°, Sun 10°, Venus 11° in Cancer; Mars 5° in Virgo; Jupiter 19°, Moon 19°, Rahu 29° in Pisces; and Saturn 17° and M.C. 23° in Gemini.

[9] Born on 29-7-1883. Ascdt. 28° and Rahu 14° in Libra; Saturn 15°, Moon 16° and Mars 20° in Taurus; Jupiter 26° and Venus in Gemini; and Sun and Mercury 13° in Cancer.

[10] Born on 3-12-1884 with Mars period for 62 months. Ascdt 26°, Mars 8° and Mercury 6° in Sagittarius; Moon 27° in Taurus; Saturn 1° in Gemini; Jupiter 15° in Leo; Rahu 20° in Virgo; Venus 15° in Libra; and Sun 21° in Scorpio.

[11] Ascdt. 13° in Aquarius; Rahu 23° in Pisces; Moon 24° and Saturn 10° in Taurus; Sun 23° in Cancer; Venus 2°, Mercury 14° and Mars 21° in Leo; and Jupiter 13° in Scorpio.

WORLD PREDICTIONS FOR 1959

(Continued from page 7)

neutral in sex, cruel in nature, violent in temperament, down-faced, rules aerial regions and quadrupeds and signifies Kshatriyas or the ruling classes. Saturn transits the arc of 12° 7′ to 13° 20′ Sagittarius (passing through the Vishanadi part of Moola constellation) from about 7th June 1959 to 16th June, and again from 18th November to 24th November. Moola is the constellation of knowledge. Therefore it occurs to us that during the period of Saturn's transit of the Vishanadi part of Moola, the world will come to know of the perfection of another nuclear weapon of immense destructive powers jointly by America and other friendly powers. This development will act as a powerful deterrent to the Communist threats of war. From the middle of April 1959 to about 20th of July 1959, both the major planets Saturn and Jupiter will be retrograde, the former in Sagittarius and the latter in Scorpio. It is again during this period that the cold-war between Russia and America will reach its peak point. As Jupiter is the King, however, statesmen will wisely conduct themselves and the crisis will be staved off. Another noteworthy feature is: Jupiter who will be at the beginning (0° 18′) of Scorpio on 20th July 1959, enters Sagittarius by 16th January 1960 covering an arc of 30° within about 180 days—he usually takes about one year to traverse this distance—so that he is subject to athichara or accelerated motion. This athichara having reference to the 3rd from the ruling sign of India and the 10th from the ruling sign of Russia, denotes confused thinking on the part of Indian leaders and grave political developments in Russia, resulting in the change of important members of the Russian Government. According to classical works when a benefic gets athichara motion, there will be "famine, affliction to rulers and unfavourable happenings all over the world".

There are only two solar eclipses during this year—an annular one on 8th April, not visible in India, and a total one on 2nd October, visible only in the Western part of the country. The eclipse of 8th April falls in 25th degree of Pisces and that of 2nd October falls in 16th degree of Virgo, the ruling sign of India. The Virgo eclipse is harmful to India indicating sudden developments in our relations with Pakistan, earthquakes in north-west part of the country diplomatic upsets and a generally anxious period. The critical period in Indo-Pakistan relations is between June and October. In Russia, the implications of the latter eclipse will be more seriously felt as it has reference to the eighth from the ruling sign. There will be intense struggle for power resulting in the overthrow of one of Mr. Khruschev's confidents. Even Mr. Khruschev's position itself may become insecure. Since the eclipse is caused by Rahu, the planet ruling Moslems, the Islamic countries will be considerably affected. Nasser's life is threatened. Tension will mount in the Middle East and America and Russia will again be on the brink of war. But hostilities will not break out. The only notable conjunctions during this year are: Mars and Rahu on 12th September, Mars and Jupiter on 29th December, and Mars and Saturn on 31st January 1960. The last conjunction occurring in the 21st degree of Sagittarius—the 8th from the Lagna in Indian Independence chart threatens serious railway accidents, outbreaks of fire, explosions and mining disasters. It is also likely that by sheer accident a nuclear bomb may drop down from a reconnoitering plane in the area of N.-W. Europe causing destruction to life and property.

The dominance of Jupiter and the absence of Mars are no doubt indicative of a certain abatement of war mania, but Saturn's movements in Sagittarius and the jovian transit of Scorpio in a state of athichara emphasise increased military expenditures. In theory disarmament will be debated in conferences while in practice each nation will continue to arm herself to the teeth. The tendency during the year will be to destroy democracy and raise conservative forces under rightist authoritarianism. International complications will further multiply, and the United Nations will continue to perpetuate its own brand of international morality and it will hardly be able to influence the trend of world affairs for good. But despite disturbed conditions in different parts of the world, there will be no major war in 1959.

Scanned by www.vasishtaastrology.com to preserve Late V. Ramana Work

INDIA

The reigning cloud of this lunar year goes under the name of Thamo. Symbolically it is said to take its birth in the Western side of Meru. This implies increase of ill-health, general discontent amongst the masses, decrease of rainfall and multiplication of bad characters to the horrors of the innocent. Another peculiarity of the cloud being Thamo is that there will be many deaths by lightning and thunderstorms. Heavy rainfall will be centred on the seas and not on the land. As a consequence, the year will be noted for mishaps to a number of ships. The new year starts when Mars and Saturn are in mutual aspect—the former in the airy sign of Gemini. This disposition disturbs the atmosphere and weaken the discipline in the Congress party's ranks to the point of utter demoralisation. Leo navamsa rising in Calcutta points to a reshuffling of the Bengal Cabinet. Pisces navamsa rises in Trivandrum aspected by Mars from the 10th, threatening confusion in communist ranks and the imposition of the President's rule. Both in Bengal and Kerala, labour will be in uproar with strikes paralysing different industries and national services. Agrarian troubles contribute their share of misery also. At Bangalore, Aries navamsa rises, the 10th being subject to Papakarthari Yoga and the fourth being afflicted by Rahu and Mars. It looks as though the Mysore Ministry will be reconstituted with a possible change of leadership, by about the time of Mars–Rahu conjunction in September. It will be noted that this conjunction occurs in Mesha navamsa. The inner contradictions of the ruling party will be more acute. It will be dominated by unprincipled cliques and its functioning will become more and more motivated by the greed for power and position of selfish individuals. Mysore, once known as the model State of India, will have completely fallen in line with the other Congress-governed States—factionalism, communalism, nepotism, all raising their ugly heads. Rahu's transit of Kanya is a signal for the rise of Muslim communalism. Despite all these troubles which threaten India during the year 1959, the disposition of Jupiter in the 7th and the inherent strength of the Indian Independence chart clearly indicate that the crisis could be tided over if our leaders, knowing full well in advance, the trend of events to happen, act more realistically and less idealistically in the matter of governing the country. Summing up the planetary influences for India: We will become more realistic in our foreign policy. The Central Cabinet will be reconstituted. The Constitution will be amended. The economic and political swing would be more towards the right. Some sort of a national emergency will be declared. Relations with Pakistan will deteriorate to the point of war. The food situation will ease. Fiscal policy will be remodelled. Foreign aid will flow in at a satisfactory pace. The Mars-Rahu and Mars-Saturn conjunctions threaten death of at least two important personages. Kerala, Mysore, Bengal, Gujerat, Orissa, U.P. and Punjab will be centres of tension where politics will be in confusion. The communist movement will receive a setback. The masses however will be more happy and contented.

The 5th degree of Taurus rising in Karachi the meridian being aspected by Mars and the 10th and 8th being afflicted in the navamsa are precursors of yet another catastrophe for the politically torn Pakistan. While some sort of stability will no doubt be brought about, the Pathans and the other fiercely jealous tribes will give lot of trouble to the administration. The navamsas rising at Delhi and Karachi are dwirdwadasa. This tempts the military regime to use the army adventurously and India is of course the sworn-enemy. Our Government will be confronted with a very difficult situation by the thoughtless rulers of Pakistan. We should be very careful, especially about the time of Mars-Rahu conjunction in Virgo. While India's relations with America will further improve, America will be very critical of Pakistan's conduct towards India. While almost on the verge of a showdown with India, America will dramatically intervene pulling up Pakistan and thus preventing an otherwise ugly development. The military dictatorship will however get popular support as the economic conditions of the masses will considerably improve. About the time of the solar eclipse in Aries, an anti-Ayub Khan plot, conceived to do away with the Dictator, will be discovered and nipped in the bud. At Dacca, the 28th degree of Taurus (Virgo navamsa) rises while the meridian falls in Aquarius navamsa in association with the Sun and Moon aspected by Saturn. Two benefics are in navamsa Lagna but both the 9th and 10th houses are afflicted. East Bengal becomes disturbed and the minorities will suffer misery and turmoil. We are sorry to have to say that Pakistan does not astrologically mate with India and consequently, friendship between the two countries is not at all possible, whatever be the nature of the Government. With other Islamic powers, Pakistan's relations will improve but she will not come out of any of her commitments with the Western powers. By the end of the year, General Ayub Khan is likely to be thrown out of power. This prediction is offered with reservation as the birth particulars of the Khan are not known.

A state of virtual civil war may be witnessed in Ceylon by the time of Mars-Rahu conjunction, the Bandarnaike administration almost toppling down, unless Mr. Bandarnaike is wise enough to forestall such developments by firmness and tact. In Parliamentary debates there would be considerable show of violence. Aries navamsa rising at Colombo and Gemini rising at Delhi denote improvement in Indo-Ceylonese relations though the Tamils will be particularly discriminated against by the Government. There will be a scandal involving a well-known politician and the death of a prominent man is also shown. On the

(Continued on page 193)

Scanned by astrologicalresearchcenter.com in Presence Dr. B.V. Raman's Work Foundation Map of Independent India

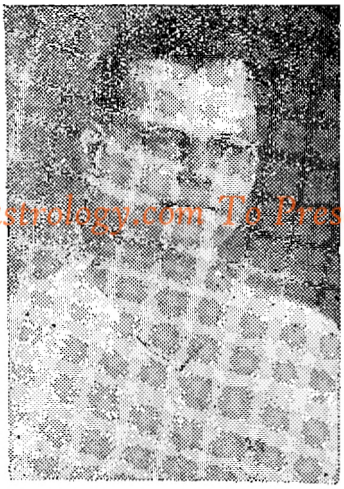
By C. M. GHOSH



PONDERING the political, economic and cultural trends in India during the last eleven years against the background of planets in the two charts which can claim to be the Foundation Maps of Independent India, viz. (1) that cast for the moment of the King's assent to the Indian Independence Bill, and (2) that

		Mars Rahu	Mercury Venus
	KING'S ASSENT 18-7-1947		Saturn Sun Moon
	Lagna Kethu	Jupiter	(L)

erected for the midnight of 14th/15th August 1947, I have come to the conclusion that it is the former that counts. Prima facie, one may be inclined to cast one's vote in favour of the latter in view of the ceremonial nature of the transactions that were associated with the swearing-in of the First Dominion Cabinet. But as every astrologer will admit, it is no use concentrating too much on the pomp and solemnity attending an event. A baby born in an obscure village may have his baptism or his first-feeding ceremony celebrated in a capital city with great eclat but this does not take from the importance of birth. That horoscope is reliable which indicates the native and there can be no other criteria of reliability. With the Royal assent to the Independence Bill the independence of India was a

		Lagna Rahu	Mars
	First Dominion Cabinet 14/15-8-1947		Venus Saturn Moon Sun Mercury
	Kethu	Jupiter

(L)—Ascendant at London.

C. M. GHOSH

fait accompli and the events that followed were merely empty ceremonies and dazzling pyrotechny. The Bill received the King's assent at 4-10 p.m.(I.S.T.) on 18-7-1947 and the chart cast for the moment is given below. The ascendant in New Delhi is 18 deg. 39 mins., Scorpio and the Moon occupied 5 deg. 40 mins., Cancer giving a balance of Dasa of Saturn 15 years, 8 months and 3 days. The other chart is also reproduced below for comparison.

At the time of the Royal asent, Scorpio rose in New Delhi and Virgo in London. Let us digress a bit and judge the chart with Virgo as the ascendant to get a picture of the situation from the British point of vantage. Virgo is the standing ascendant of India and it was therefore not for fun that this sign rose in London at a critical moment in Indo-British relations. The 3rd house stands for partition of property and in national astrology points to the partitioning of the country. Kethu, the cutter, occupies the 3rd house from Virgo indicating that this ancient country was to be cut up into Bharat and Pakistan. Mars, the significator of the British, and Rahu, the karaka (indicator) of the Moslems, occupy the 9th house—the house of fortune—indicating that the fate of Bharatvarsha of that moment depended on the pleasures of the British Government and the Moslem League. The significator of the Hindus, Mercury, is conjunct Venus in the 10th house, which suggests that the Hindus—in this case the Congress for all practical purposes—were too eager to

		1951—1—12	1956—9—24
		3—2— 0 Sat/Venus	1—1— 9 Sat/Mars
1947—7—18	King's Assent		1957—11—3
2—4—15	Sat/Mer.	1954—3—12	2—10—6 Sat/Rahu
1949—12—3		0—11—12 Sat/Sun	1960—9—9
1—1— 9	Sat/Kethu		2—6—12 Sat/Jup.
		1955—2—24
1951—1—12		1—7— 0 Sat/Moon	1963—3—21

Scanned by Gurudeptatishisastrology.com To Preserve Free E-Books

assume power and would agree to a bad bargain with a good grace.

Let us now consider the chart with Scorpio as the ascendant, this being the Foundation Map of Independent India as I see it. Kethu occupies the 1st house and points to the involved state of things in India since Independence. Kethu is a hybrid planet and eclecticism and mixed ideology have become the order of the day. A mixed economy; neutralism in foreign policy which has come to mean non-alignment with power blocs but all the same placating both the capitalist and the communist world for economic assistance and technical aid; a secular State even after the partitioning of the country on religious basis; reorganisation of States on linguistic basis and formation of bilingual Bombay. These may be ascribed to the presence of Kethu in Lagna.

The lord of the ascendant, Mars, indicates the people. The 7th house in national astrology stands for war and external affairs. The conjunction of Mars with Rahu in the 7th house points to our disputes with Pakistan over Kashmir and canal waters. This conjunction, though an unfortunate one, indicates that India's foreign policy hinges on her loves and quarrels with Britain and the Commonwealth countries and many of the Moslem countries which participated in the Bandung Conference. Neither the United States signified by Mercury, nor Soviet Russia, signified by Saturn, would appear to influence India's foreign policy except in so far as too much economic aid impinges on and reshapes it.

The first Five-Year Plan was launched in 1951 in Saturn/Venus. Venus, or rather Sukracharya, is the great planner of everything mundane and material. The 4th house stands for agriculture, land, mines, buildings and production and the 3rd house stands for rolling stock, transport and communications. The 3rd and 4th houses therefore comprehend the Five-Year Plans. The lord of these two houses, Saturn, is posited in the 9th house of long-term planning. The combination of Sun, Saturn and Moon in the 9th house indicates that the Five-Year Plans have been formulated with the sufferance of the rich, the poor and the middle classes. According to Uttarakalamrita, the 4th house stands for Rajya or State and as the fourth lord Saturn is connected with the tenth lord representing Government, the chart clearly indicates that the means of production are destined to be socially-owned. The socialistic pattern of society is fully revealed in this chart. It will be noted that during the time that gochara Saturn was heading for Scorpio and while it stayed in that sign, the Imperial Bank of India and Life Insurance business were nationalised and several State enterprises came into existence. As Saturn is the planet of reform its passage through the ascendant of the Foundation Chart brought about the reorganisation of the States on linguistic basis and the introduction of the decimal system of coinage.

The expenditure that the Government is incurring in order to accelerate the rate of industrial growth is beautifully revealed in this chart. The 2nd house stands for the national income and wealth, the Budget, the tax and non-tax revenues of the Government, Banks and financial institutions and stocks and shares. The lord of the 2nd house, Jupiter, is in the 12th house of expenditure. According to Hindu astrology, a benefic, particularly Jupiter, in the 12th house indicates spending lavishly on good deeds and social welfare. In national horoscope this position bespeaks the Welfare State. The position of the second lord Jupiter in the 12th or house of expenditure points to the revenue surplus and Central Bank credit or deficit financing that go to finance the enormous capital expenditure of the Government. It will be noted that Jupiter aspects the 4th house which indicates the Five-Year Plans.

The 8th house in national astrology stands for the exchequer and for loans and credits, both internal and foreign. The presence of the natural benefics Venus and Mercury in the 8th house immediately suggests that the Government have not been unfortunate in raising internal market loans and external loans and credits. Gemini rules the United States and its lord Mercury is also the lord of India's permanent ascendant Virgo. India can therefore confidently look forward not only to further institutional credits from the U.S.A. but also for huge Governmental loans sanctioned by the Congress. She can also hope for loans from Japan and other countries ruled by Venus. Upto now the loans and credits secured by India were mostly tied to specific projects but the U.S. Government loan which Mr. Morarji Desai is endeavouring to seek is intended to be an all-purpose loan required to meet the cost of imports of industrial raw materials and consumer goods even. * It would be better if this loan was secured before November 1958. Saturn would enter Sagittarius, the 2nd house of the national horoscope in November 1958 and aspect the 8th house making the pro*curement of the loan an uphill* task. India can, however, always back on U.S. loans for pushing ahead with the Five-Year Plans. As Mars is in the seventh house of trade and has no connection with the eighth house of loans, much direct Governmental loans from the United Kingdom or even Western Germany may not be forthcoming. India could only expect private business investments and deferred payments terms from these two sources.

Scanned by www.copyright.com and Presented by Dr P V Ramana Work

* This article was received on 30-7-1958—Ed., A.M.

According to Hindu astrology, the second house stands for Vikraya Vaniiva or sale transactions and the seventh house stands for Kraya Vanijya or purchases. While dealing with foreign countries, these two houses must necessarily stand for exports and imports respectively. Mars and Rahu occupy the house of imports. Mars stands for the produce of the earth (Bhuphalitham) meaning thereby cereals, and for minerals (Khanija). Mars also stands for machinery including electrical machinery, and military equipments. Rahu stands for iron and steel and manufacturers thereof. According to Uttarakalamrita, both Rahu and Mars stand for vehicles. Being deficit in foodgrains, India had been making considerable imports of wheat and rice for quite a long time. But as soon as the sub-period of Mars started from September 1956, the import of foodgrains jumped up and as Rahu is in association with Mars and should give the results of the latter to a great extent, heavy imports of foodgrains should continue well into 1960. In 1955-56, foodgrains imports were of the order of 0.4 million tons. The volume increased to 2.1 million tons in 1956-57 and 3.7 million tons in 1957-58. Imports of machinery, iron and steel manufactures, metals and transport equipment exceeded the estimated Second Plan average even during the first two years of the Plan. Whereas imports were valued at Rs. 751 crores in 1955-56, they were valued at Rs. 1,077 crores in 1956-57 and Rs. 1,174 crores in 1957-58. The import values may not show much signs of shrinkage until the sub-period of Jupiter is in progress. In a manner, however, the presence of two natural malefics in the house of imports has substantially blocked, during their sub-periods, the import of consumer goods. Only the imports of goods of which Rahu and Mars are karakas have gained momentum as already stated. It will be noted that whether in mundane astrology or in personal astrology, the planet who tenants a house affects it more visibly and strongly than the lord of the house.

The second house of Vikraya Vanijya indicates exports when the sales are made to foreign countries. The second lord, Jupiter, is in the twelfth house and therefore the general tendency of the export curve in Independent India would be to rise only gently under good planetary directions but to flatten out or even to slope downwards under bad aspects. The astrologer is not concerned with the fact that India's exports being traditional and development of new lines being not possible at the moment, her export trade cannot be developed to a desirable extent especially in view of the recent international recession and uncompetitive prices of India's export items. The astrologer is concerned with what has happened and what is likely to happen under the influence of the stars. Throughout the greater part of the first Five-Year Plan there had been a recurrent current account (trade balance plus invisibles plus donations) surplus in the balance of payments because at least upto 1954, the sub-period of Venus was in progress and Venus aspects the house of exports. Then came the sub-periods of the Sun and the Moon. These two planets though not aspecting the second house are yet not capable of damaging the second house which falls in Sagittarius. But the surplus on current account was sharply reversed during 1956-57 because afflicted Mars and Rahu are damaging to Sagittarius though not aspecting the sign. As the house of exports is aspected by Venus and Mercury, the main export items of India have been jute manufactures and cotton textiles. It is, of course, difficult to account for the heavy exports of tea unless this commodity comes under the influence of Venus which, I think, it does. The exports of manganese and mica which are Khanija are indicated by the eighth house aspect of Mars on the second house. But since the eighth house aspect is a very bad aspect, the future of these two export items may not be bright. The sub-period of Rahu started from November 1957 and will continue upto September 1960 and I wonder if the export trade will look up before that time. Over and above this, gochara Saturn is at the moment heading for Sagittarius, the second house of the Foundation Map. As a matter of fact, Saturn was in Sagittarius in February 1958 for a while and exports including re-exports touched a record low for nearly two years at Rs. 42 crores in that month. I conceive that during Saturn's stay in Sagittarius all export trade and all internal sales in commodities signified by Venus and Mercury would be in the doldrums. According to Phaladeepika, Venus stands for Tantubava or weaver which in modern times must embrace the textile mill industry whether jute, cotton or synthetic fibre.

Foreign exchange may be consi-

Scanned by eGangotri & Sarayu Trust. www.vedicastrologyforum.com Let Preserve & Re-Use Rare Work

increasing and outpacing the former. Some relief in unemployment may be expected after Saturn leaves Scorpio. The relief may be the result of diversion of funds to labour intensive projects. The number of strikes and industrial disputes is likely to register a fall with Saturn's passage into Sagittarius.

The 7th house in national astrology stands for marriage and divorce besides international affairs, wars and disputes. The appropriate malefic conjunction in the 7th house has resulted in the recognition of divorce and penalisation of bigamy in Independent India. The relative legislation may have a salutary effect on modern Hindu community and will be commended by every sane and educated person and I am only placing before the readers the astrological justification for the state of affairs. The 1st house indicates caste. The presence of Kethu in lagna and the vitiation of the lord of the ascendant by Rahu point to the progressive secularisation of national culture since Independence.

Language is judged from the 2nd house. As Jupiter happens to be the lord of the 2nd house, the Constitution has laid down that Hindi written in Devanagari script shall be the official language of the Indian Union. 'The 2nd lord Jupiter also happens to be the 5th lord.' The 5th house is related to Vedic knowledge and traditional law (Sruti and Smriti) and therefore the possibility of Sanskrit becoming the official language cannot be overlooked.

I admit that the only facet of the Indian science which cannot be astrologically justified is the rapid growth of the population during the last decade. But the chart cast for the midnight of 14th/15th August 1947 also does not throw any light on the demographic scene.

It may be argued by some astrologers that the presence of Mars and Rahu in the 7th house should have instilled into the Indian people a Fascist tendency and India would have been in a conquering mood. I imagine that the prowess of Mars can be considerably abridged by Rahu. But it cannot be denied that the Indian people have become highly cross-grained during the last ten years.

It will be noted that border troubles have intensified during the sub-period of Rahu who aspects the lagna. Amicable settlement of all disputes with Pakistan may be expected in the sub-period of Jupiter or even earlier when Jupiter enters Scorpio in the beginning of 1959.

The 4th house stands for the voice of the people and for the Opposition in Parliament. It appears that during Saturn's stay in Sagittarius, the Opposition will curl up and become quiescent. I myself wonder how such a thing can happen but the stars point that way.

In the export market for industrial raw materials and semi-manufacturers, India should beware of Brazil and West Indies coming under Virgo and of Queensland and Transvaal influenced by Scorpio. These countries are liable to become India's greatest competitors in the years to come.

The economic picture in India does not appear to be very rosy during the next two or three years. Prices may remain high and there may be accumulation of stocks in some sectors and reduction in output in others. It is possible to visualise a situation wherein prices remain high but the evils of an acute depression afflict the community.

Scanned by www.sarvajnajyotishasastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

Ready for Sale

Jyotish Aur Adhunik Vichara Dhara

(ज्योतिष और आधुनिक विचारधारा)

(IN HINDI)

By Bangalore Venkata Raman

Hindi Translation by Prof. Om Prakash Kahol, M.Sc., B.T.

This is a translation of ASTROLOGY AND MODERN THOUGHT into chaste Hindi by a Scientist and Scholar. Presents the Rationale of Astrology with Statistical Proofs.

The finest Book to be ever published in Hindi on the Scientific Aspect of Astrology.

Excellent get-up. Price Rs. 3

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari" :: BANGALORE-3

Gerentology and Ayurveda

BY K. M. TALGERI, M.A.

WHILE considerable progress has been reported in the field of gerentological research in the West in the deliberations of the recent international conference on gerentology at Basle, Switzerland, there has not emerged from it any sure scientific method of conquering old age. The problem still abounds in controversies. But the West today is beginning to take note of the marvellous researches of the famous Indian rejuvenation expert—Rajvaidya Ananda Swami. Some years back, this soft-spoken medical man hit the headlines of the world Press when 70-year-old Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, Mahatma Gandhi's close associate and Vice-Chancellor of Banaras University, underwent the famous Kaya Kalpa treatment and attained a second adolescence.

Friends who saw him after the treatment rubbed their eyes. They were puzzled, and rightly, for the erstwhile bent man had walked upright. His gait was springy. His face wore a youthful smile. The treatment, indeed, had wrought a miracle.

"There is nothing magical about this treatment," assured Rajvaidya Ananda Swami to the present writer in an interview at Delhi, "it is rational and in consonance with scientifically established laws of medicine. Only you are not aware of such laws."

This seemed a perfectly satisfying explanation to me, bred up as I am in the tradition of the allopathic system of medicine.

"Do you administer the same treatment to all persons?" I asked the expert. "No," he replied, "the treatment is suited to individual needs and is under my personal guidance, in order to avoid harmful complications during the internment." His patients include many Maharajas, Ministers and men from foreign lands.

An M.A. of Lahore University, Rajvaidya Ananda Swami speaks five languages, including Sanskrit and Persian, and has spent a considerable portion of his eventful life among the Yogis of the Himalayas. His selfless services in the cause of socio-cultural uplift of the masses is well-known.

He first established an Ayurvedic Research Centre at Delhi, and later on, at Kaya Kalpa Kanan in Ghaziabad in Uttar Pradesh, not far from India's capital city.

His researches have led him to several successful cures for many ills that human flesh is heir to tuberculosis, heart disease, asthma and so on. It was during his second visit to the Kulu Valley Mount Kailash, where he met his Guru that he evolved a series of simple kalpas (medical treatments).

"Why do you insist upon black goat's milk in your Aja Kalpa treatment?" I asked the doctor, a little puzzled. "I have discovered," he replied, "after much experimentation that the black goat in India is capable of eating practically everything, even the unclassified plants, and of producing milk that is full of nutriment." He added that this animal can thus be fed on the choicest herbs required for the rejuvenation treatment and the milk derived from the goat is again treated with other herbal and metallic concoctions.

The Aja Kalpa treatment was evolved after years of patient research by the Rajvaidya. The rejuvenation technique is simple enough for everyone to undertake. All that the patient has to do is to drink herb-treated goat's milk for 80 days.

"To the Western doctors our Ayurvedic methods may seem crude and fanciful, but the results prove otherwise," assured the Indian expert, and added, "indeed, the West has yet to realise fully the marvels of Ayurveda."

Research in Ayurveda has established the validity of the ancient theory of Tridhatu. The Tridhatu (three vital substances) are the inorganic components of the body fluids that regulate the metabolism in the system. The three organic constituents sustain normal tissue activity when in harmonious proportion and cause abnormal tissue activity when the balance is upset.

The object of Kaya Kalpa (from the Sanskrit word 'Kaya' meaning body and 'Kalpa' meaning transformation) is to restore the natural balance of the functions of these glands.

Rajvaidya Ananda Swami's researches in gerentology have been subjected to empirical tests and have re-established the truth of the ancient medical canons of Ayurveda. The immediate results of Kaya Kalpa treatment are often spectacular. The skin and the gait become elastic, grey hair turns dark, the eyesight and hearing improve and the muscles acquire athletic vigour. But the most remarkable change is the new buoyancy of mental life. Thus the whole system is regenerated.

Kaya Kalpa is not merely dieting, as many people suppose. It is really an art of combating old age. It covers the cure of a whole range of human ailments, irrespective of one's age or sex, country or clime.

Scanned by CamScanner to Preserve the V Ramesh Work

Until 1938, the idea of Kaya Kalpa was treated with ridicule. But after Pandit Malaviya and others successfully underwent the Kaya Kalpa treatment at the hands of Rajvaidya Ananda Swami, many doubters both in the West as well as in India woke up to the marvellous efficacy of Ayurveda.

There are two distinct methods of Kaya Kalpa, the Kuti Praveshik Kalpa and the Vatatapik Kalpa. The first is the sealed-cell treatment, the one that Sri Ananda Swami administered to Pt. Malaviya in 1938. It is an extremely elaborate, strenuous and expensive treatment. It needs great self-restraint and discipline to shut oneself up in a dark chamber, apparently defying all theories of modern science. Medicated black cow's milk is the only diet. Although a very difficult treatment, it is the surest method of attaining complete rejuvenation.

The Kuti treatment has also its varied aspects. In some treatments, the teeth and hair and nails fall off, only to be replaced by a new growth. In others, like the Soma Lata Kalpa, the patient becomes unconscious for days but emerges from the ordeal a new man.

Charaka enjoins that the rejuvenation treatment should be conducted under expert guidance of a very competent vaidya who should regard the patient as his own child.

The other form of treatment, namely, the Vatatapik (Vata—air and Atapa—sun) is much easier. In this form of Kalpa you can move about, do your normal duties, take the usual diet, but only avoid overstain and self-indulgence. This treatment may not be as spectacular as the Kuti method, but it tones up the entire human system.

Both treatments can be given either purely through herbs or through bhasmas (metallic preparations) and are administered to men and women alike. Generally these specifics act like catalytic agents. They accelerate the process of recuperation and cure a variety of ills. The Kuti treatment is given in winter, though in exceptional cases it may be arranged in cold places during the summer months. Kalpa season ordinarily starts in November and ends in March.

But the most essential of all the processes in any Kalpa treatment is the Pancha Karma, the preliminary purification. Ayurveda holds that it is the accumulation of toxins in the body that causes decay, old age and death. Vata, pitta and kapha are the three principles that sustain life. When any one of them is either sluggish or overactive, there is a disbalance which makes for illness. When Vata is too predominant, any food taken in turns into Vayu (wind) causing restlessness, dryness, high blood pressure, rheumatism, etc. With the predominance of Kapha (phlegm) much of the food is converted into phlegm and may cause asthma, bronchitis, tuberculosis, etc. Where Pitta is too strong, it may cause low blood pressure, acidity, bleeding piles, etc. These poisons must be eliminated and the balance in principles restored before one can expect to get back one's lost youth.

Ayurveda Shastra lays down that all rejuvenation treatments should begin with the Pancha Karma. Pancha Karma consists of five processes. They are Snehan, Swedan, Vaman, Virechan and Vasti.

Snehan is the lubricating process. Pure cow's ghee (in some cases, oil too) and boiling water are mixed together. This mixture is taken a few times a day for two to five days. In Swedan (meaning sweating), the person drinks a few cups of hot water and is given a brisk oil massage, inducing heavy perspiration. This is followed by a hot cup of cow's milk and a period of rest and then a bath in hot medicated water. Vaman literally means vomitting. Vomitting is induced under the strict supervision of the physician. Of all the five Karmas this is the most difficult, yet the most essential. Pitta (bile) and Kapha (phlegm) which are the root causes of old age are thrown out in abundance, making it possible for the Kalpa medicines to work thoroughly. Virechan (purging) comes next. This process of purging is gone through for the purpose of expelling mucous from the walls and membranes of the intestines. Purgatives have to be carefully chosen by the specialist. The last process of purification is Vasti. This is a yogic method of sucking in the medicine through the rectum. But very few can really do this. Enema is an easy substitute. Certain oils and herbal concoctions are used to cleanse the colon and the lower bowels.

Scanned by astrologer sahajnishastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

Throughout the Pancha Karma treatment, the patient should have as much rest as possible, use warm water for all purposes, drink milk or take khichri (rice and pulse cooked together with plenty of ghee). After the Pancha Karma, a day's rest should be taken and then the Kalpa treatment should begin. The Kalpa medicine is usually taken from 40 to 80 days (or even from 6 to 12 months) depending on the nature of the ailments the patient starts with.

The Aja Kalpa is the simplest form of Kalpa. It is second

(Continued on page 104)

*The Horoscope of Queen Elizabeth II

A Criticism and Rectification

BY COUNTESS ZOE WASSILKO-SERECKI

THE nativity of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II is much disputed. First of all the hour of birth on the 21st April 1926 in London was not known at all; then it was said the birth happened "during the morning hours". Later on in Lady Peacock's book about Elizabeth's childhood and youth it was mentioned "she came at three o'clock". After the death of George VI, her father, Elizabeth's birth-time was published with 2h. 40m. a.m. That year, however, summer-time was introduced in England 3 days earlier on the 18th April. If we take this into consideration then the birth took place already at 1h. 40m. a.m. (G.M.T.). The corresponding horoscope shows 21° Capricorn on the Ascendant and 26° Scorpio on the M.C. the latter being in conjunction with the heavily afflicted Saturn retrograde in 24° Scorpio giving a gloomy Saturnine touch to the horoscope, which would neither be in concord with the Queen's appearance and character nor her life upto now and which according to astrological tradition would point to a fatal destiny. If we do not bring the summer-time to bear upon the calculation the Ascendant will be 13° 40' Aquarius and the M.C. 10° Sagittarius. Here Saturn would be posited already deep in the IXth house without threatening the Queen's position like a sword of Damocles hanging over her head. In all remaining details which can be controlled thus for this horoscope is also in accordance with character and life of its noble proprietress.

How can we explain this discrepancy? The astrologer Walther Friedjung who is living in England does not see any difficulties in doing so, for it is quite possible that the personnel in the Queen's birth house had simply forgotten to advance the clocks. In England—as it is known—they say: patience and time bring all things about. Later on the birth-time probably will have been remembered numerically only by the family members and passed on without giving a thought to which time was correct. Or the birth-time was immediately transferred into world-time or another error has occurred. In any case Mr. Friedjung is already of my opinion due to the Queen's appearance only, that Queen Elizabeth's Ascendant is Aquarius and not Capricorn. This would be a blessing for the Queen as well as the whole world, for the horoscope of 1h. 40m. with Saturn culminating would undoubtedly crush its owner one day and shake the English throne, though English astrologers frantically endeavour to give the facts a new interpretation. They would have done better to publish such a horoscope of their Queen not at all, not even then if it were correct, which, however, it is not, thanks heaven! At 2h. 40m. there cannot be a question any more of such a disaster. So considerable can be the difference between two horoscopes if they are separated by only one hour!

Now we shall proceed to a critical investigation of both horoscopes. If Queen Elizabeth actually had the Ascendant in Capricorn and the Dragon's tail upon the Ascendant then she ought to have a bodily fault and a very disagreeable character. She would be egoistical, unemotional, tyrannical, earnest, gloomy, lonely, uncommunicative, ungracious, not charming, restrained and self-willed; on the other side, however, conscientious, thorough, reliable, industrious and orderly nearly up to pedantry. The square of the ruler of life, Saturn, to its lord Mars would be the infallible sign for cruelty and ruthless pursuit of ambitious aims exaggerated without measure (square Jupiter) and based on errors (square Neptune). This does not correspond with Queen Elizabeth's horoscope for obviously she possesses but a few of these attributes, the few good ones. We may add that she would never have had accession to the throne with Saturn on the M.C., let alone so young in years. For me this turned out to be the proof that this horoscope which—regrettable to mention—is already known very far cannot be Elizabeth's true nativity.

What now does the other horoscope reveal which I think is the true one and which I herewith submit to the readers for their own judgment. In the first line a highly complicated manyfold differentiated character caused by three zodiacal signs (Aquarius, Pisces, Aries) and quite a cluster of five planets (Mars, Jupiter, Venus, Uranus, Mercury) in the Ist house. These eight factors forming the essential fundamental parts of the character bestow an important personality upon the Queen, a personality composed of strong contrasts which still has great surprises in store for her surroundings. Elizabeth combines tradition and modern time (Jupiter in Aquarius) in her person; she is a dignified (Jupiter) queen, conscious of her aims (Mars), full of activity and strong will-power (Mars) towards kindness (Jupiter). She will always take pains to use her great energy for social aims (Aquarius). The position of Saturn and its squares to the Mars-Jupiter conjunction are in this horoscope more effective in moral respect (IXth house) and give to the Queen an almost Puritan severety of the principles, as a consequence of which and from too much zeal she demands too much from herself as well as others persisting uncompromisingly in her opinion, although she is sometimes in error because Neptune from the VIIth lets appear the reality in a deceitful light. Seen from the side of fate this configuration will bring her personally painful disappointments from partners and as a ruler war like conflicts. Both will secretly be prepared a long time in advance and treason will play a part in it (Neptune square Saturn).

Scanned by www.sreastrology.com for Evergreen Late S. V. Rangina Work

* Translation by Curt Knupfer from "Tradition and Progress of Classical Astrology" a publication of the Austrian Astrological Society.

That part of the Queen's character which is not on the surface, into which to penetrate it is possible only for those for whom she has a great affection, is formed by the whole sign Pisces in the Ist house in which are posited the ruler of life Uranus and Venus. So as Jupiter in Aquarius symbolizes sovereignty in a modern-mantle so Uranus in Pisces represents a progressive mind which is carried by the deepest faith (Uranus trine Saturn). Here again an apparent incompatible contradiction is harmonically solved! Venus in Pisces trine Pluto shows that Queen Elizabeth is able to love with complete devotion which is sufficiently proved by the time preceding her matrimony. In the other horoscope we should find Venus a short distance from the IInd cusp already where its personal influence hardly would be felt any more. Venus ruled by the afflicted Neptune however betrays that the poor noble woman will suffer a flood of secret grief which comes from her husband. This position of Venus renders her extremely sensitive and easily to be hurt, but also merciful, sympathetic, eager to help and gives her sympathy for other people's motions which is nearly mediumistic. Uranus conjunct Mercury proves the great intelligence and a fortunate combination of intuitive talents with practical brains. Mercury being in Aries already shows that her innermost character fortunately possesses sufficient optimistic initiative (Aries) so that Elizabeth guided by reasonable reflections (Mercury) over and over again will conquer the painful moods and try to encounter energetically the causes.

The Sun is posited in the middle of the IInd house at 0° 14' Taurus emphasizing advantageously the material plane. His sextiles to Mars and Jupiter in I increase powerfully the Queen's innate gift for ruling and her self-conscious quite natural appearing attitude; the trine to Neptune in VII gives the nimbus with which the public opinion in England surrounds Elizabeth, the radiating brilliancy. This will probably have been helpful to get the chosen husband in spite of all the obstacles (Sun is the ruler of the VIIth!). But the main reason for this and the proper astrological cause of the young Queen's extraordinary popularity however is doubtless Moon in Leo, still in VI, but only 1 degree off the VIIth cusp. Her marriage with the Duke of Edinburgh then was actually the first great "popular festival" with a general levy in mass at the beginning of her career. At that time her progressed meridian was before the trine of the Sun on 0° Capricorn and in the time of the after-effect of this powerful direction lies also the birth of the Crown Prince whose Moon it is interesting to state is exactly conjunct with his mother's Sun which is another proof for the correctness of the whole horoscope. Besides the progressed Mercury that time was posited on the radical Sun, the promittor of the mentioned direction, and we must not overlook here that the Sun is ruled by Venus, the planet of love. When later on the progressed Ascendant reached the significator for children and lord of V, Mercury, Princess Anne was born. At the time of her father's death, on the 6th February 1952, her progressed Sun was opposed by Saturn and her Ascendant simultaneously sesquiquadrate Saturn in Aries and about to reach the trine to Moon at the time of coronation. And this is according to my view the final confirmation that Queen Elizabeth II's horoscope computed without summer-time is the right one, for this ceremony was also called the "Wedding with England", a ceremony in which partook the whole English people enthusiastically and which was celebrated all over the world. There is no more striking configuration for this event than the Moon on the cusp of the VIIth house in the royal sign Leo under the reign of the ruling Sun. A still better confirmation brings the Coronation Horoscope itself which has filled me with truly reverential amazement regarding the precision of cosmic interrelations.

When the Queen "sharp after 10 o'clock" (all following statements of time are given in summer-time) left the Buckingham Palace her radix Sun (8 minutes past 10 o'clock) was culminating, her Venus of that day was culminating at 10 o'clock. And when at 12h. 32m. the Archbishop of Canterbury put the crown upon her head was Jupiter exactly on the M.C. During the homage the meridian advanced from Jupiter to the Sun which was posited in 11° Gemini, cusp of the IVth radix (royal origin) and then from the Sun (coronation for coming into power) to the trine of the Moon (goodwill of the people), the Moon reaching the Ascendant radix of the Queen at 3h. 20m., when everything was performed. Herewith the decisive word in the issue has been spoken, especially so if we consider that the direction for the coronation was Ascendant trine Moon. When Elizabeth at 1h. 45m. left Westminster Abbey as a crowned queen the Mars-Mercury conjunction was on the M.C. trining the Saturn-Neptune conjunction in Libra which so heavily overshadowed the whole year 1953, but also trining Elizabeth's Mars-Jupiter conjunction in Aquarius. On the 2nd June 1953 there was no opposition in the sky and only one square, that between Uranus and Saturn which could not be avoided due to its long duration. It was a day promising luck and blessings when in the moment of the young Elizabeth of England's coronation the 'royal trine' between Sun, Moon and Jupiter was elevated and consequently dominating in the sky. Has this day been selected by fate alone or was there perhaps an astrologer hidden backstage of this really grand staging? If so then a master in his profession. *

Scanned by www.sagittariusastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

If we now look forward into the Queen's future then we may set our mind at rest, there are no bad directions due within reach of the eyes which would be of incisive consequences, although the years *1954–55 are not free of smaller difficulties, such of private nature included. Jupiter's present transit through the Vth house, the cusp of which receives a trine by Jupiter, may perhaps point to a third child next year. If, in November 1955, Saturn for the first time comes back to its radix position all astrologers with open eyes and a sound reasoning can go and see for themselves whether this comeback takes place in the IXth house or near midheaven. Either heavy conflicts with abroad or a dangerous threat to and diminution of her power will arise then. **

Uranus' transit over the Moon 1957 to 1959 (both celestial bodies are in radix in a sharp sesquiquadrate) will probably create a sudden overturn in the Queen's popularity through a matrimonial crisis and her own incautiousness. She will have to experience then that part of the people, which is incalculable always and everywhere, will suddenly turn against her. Nevertheless the favourable aspectation of the meridian in the Jupiter sign Sagittarius provides a good omen for Elizabeth's sovereignty. Its strongest aspect besides trine Mercury is trine Moon: "borne by popularity" could be the translation of this aspect. There is only one thing to upset the Queen's balance temporarily, conflicts of feelings (M.C. square Venus). That she is not only sovereign but a loving wife as well who is so very sensibly reacting upon disappointments, that will be the cross of her else so blessed life, for unfortunately the bright Moon of her VIIth is followed by the malicious Neptune. It also can be assumed that the Queen from personal reasons will resign in favour of her son in about twenty years.

He who needs still more support for Queen Elizabeth's Aquarian Ascendant may get it from the fantastically good horoscope of her son the Crown Prince Charles. This is as we may style it the best proof for the example for his birth hour fortunately is exactly known. With Leo Ascendant and Pluto in the Ist house trine Mars he is—not by rank alone—born a sovereign. The culminating Full Moon in Taurus, Xth house, means that he will receive his future power from the hands of his high-born mother (Moon sextile Uranus, trine Jupiter, trine Saturn), besides this Moon is in conjunction with the Queen's Sun, and as his Moon is unafflicted except for the relatively harmless opposition from Mercury and is posited in the rising node it may further be deduced that his mother will neither meet with a sudden overturn nor any other grave disaster, which would be unavoidable with Ascendant Capricorn on account of Saturn culminating.

Scanned by www.sriparishisastheology.com I.e. Parasara Dr. B.V. Raman Work

* Later on I learnt that he is said to have been an American.

* This article was received in March 1954.—Ed., A.M.

 The long lasting difficulties on account of her sister Princess Margaret's marriage intentions, which have arisen in the meantime during Saturn's return (end 1955 and 1956) are clearly in favour of Saturn in IX because this house is the seventh from III. The full confirmation eventually is given through the conflict about the Suez Canal which happened later and abroad (Egypt), i.e., in the IXth house and not on English territory. Additionally we must remark that Prime Minister Eden was born in 1897 and therefore will experience the second return of Saturn on the same zodiacal place as the Queen the first one. Through both these actual events it appears to me as good as proved that in Queen Elizabeth's horoscope Saturn is near the cusp of IX and not on the M.C.

We have taken the liberty to send this magazine with an English translation of this article to the office of the Queen's Court Marshal asking to submit it to Her Majesty so that the high-born who appears to be interested in astrology, might also set eyes upon a favourable conception and interpretation of her nativity.

In fact, we may count upon a good health, a long life and a normal death.

Contrary to the inconceivably wrong partial interpretations, regarding the horoscope of the Crown Prince, which have appeared hitherto I do not shrink from prognosticating that Prince Charles will become one of the greatest kings in English history who—listen and wonder—will not only rule his country "pro forma" but as an absolute sovereign rule in the truest sense of the word. Pluto in Leo confers the necessary mental energy on him. Above all Charles has the nature of a fighter and soldier. Generous, fervent, impulsive and with thirst for action which in the beginning will come to bear in the field of sports, self-conscious, courageous and daring he will hardly be able to wait until he can assist his mother with the governmental work. Actually his burning ambition will soon be satisfied, for with 17 years already (his horoscope has to be rectified by advancing it with one degree), when his progressed meridian has reached his Moon and with that his mother's Sun he will first of all be called as co-regent and five years later with trine Saturn accede to the throne of his fathers which is embedded in foundations firm as rock (Moon trine Saturn in earth signs) for his whole long life and still longer, for he will have successful sons too (Mars and Jupiter in Sagittarius in V).

In 1961 the Queen's progressed Ascendant will reach the Sun * and at the same time the Moon of the Crown Prince. Round about this time already which will bring a climax of personal success for the Queen—if she were not married we might feel inclined to prognosticate a marriage!—and indicate the beginning of sovereignty for the Crown Prince, one will behold mother and son together in public at the head of the state surrounded by the jubilant masses of people, for also Prince Charles popularity has been laid into his cradle; the good and strong Moon, the symbol of his mother to whom he is attached so deeply and whom one day he will have to thank for everything.

After looking into the secret plans of human destination the astrologer may confidently add his statement to the wishes of the young Queen of England's subjects, when they jubilantly greeted her after the coronation with "God save the Queen!": God has protected the young Queen.

* In this popular article it is only possible for me to quote the most important directions from the great number. Intentionally I confine myself to those of the progressed side because in this case here there are only slight differences regarding the key for timing and the computation is generally known.

Scanned by www.SiderealAstrology.com To Preserve Dr. B.V.Raman's Work

STUDIES IN JAIMINI ASTROLOGY

By B. V. RAMAN

SECOND EDITION

This is the first attempt to present the complicated principles of Jaimini contained in all the four Adhyayas, is a simple, comprehensive and attractive manner, information being gathered from rare and difficult sources. Calculation and interpretation of Dasas suggested by Jaimini, which have hitherto remained obscure have, for the first time, been clearly expounded with suitable illustrations.

CONTENTS

Differences between Jaimini and Parasari; Distinctive Features of Jaimini; Importance of Karakamsa; Jaimini's Abstruseness, Significance and Determination of Karakas; Certain Exceptions; Different kinds of Lagnas; Pranapada and its Significance; Dwara and Bahya Rasis; Gulika; Finding Brahma, Rudra and Maheswara; Aspects and Argalas; Significance of Argalas; Source of Rasi Strength; Numerical Measure of Strength; Kinds of Dasas; Importance of Chara Dasa; Determination of the Order and Duration of Chara, Sthira, Brahma, Shula, Yogardha, Thrikona and Varnada Dasas; Longevity Determination; Increase and Decrease of Terms of life; Main and Sub-periods of Death; Horoscope Judgment, Physical and Mental Characteristics; Financial Prospects; Health and Disease; Education and Marriage; Combinations peculiar to Women; Karakamsa and Profession; Source and Nature of Death; Rajayogas according to Jaimini; Misfortunes and Miscellaneous Yogas; Timing Events by Chara Dasa; Nature of Results in Rasi Dasas; Maraka Periods for Parents, Self, Brothers, etc., according to Nirayana Shula Dasa; Summary.

Illustrated by two example Horoscopes. This is a book that no astrological student could afford to miss as this is the first time an attempt has ever been made to write a text-book exclusively based on Jaimini.

Crown 1/8 Size; Antique Paper; 196 Pages; Type Face—Clear and Bold; Cloth Bound

Price Rs. 6 per copy: Postage, etc., extra

Less 12½% to Subscribers of: The Astrological Magazine

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

Planets and Their Gems

BY RAM DULAREY GUPTA, M.A.

PRECIOUS stones are often prescribed for Graha-shanti, i.e., to appease adverse planets. What is the rationale of this prescription and how do gems act to affect the wearer, are problems worthy of serious consideration.

What strikes at the outest is that planets are said to have certain colours and gems of corresponding colours are usually prescribed to appease respective planets. Varahamihira, in Chapter II, verse 5 of his Brihat Jataka, describes the colours of the planets as below:

वर्णास्ताम्रसितातिरक्तहरितश्यापीत-
चित्रासिता ।
.....सूर्यादिनाथाः क्रमात् ॥

The colours of the Sun, the Moon, Mars, Mercury, Jupiter, Venus and Saturn are respectively dull red, white, deep red, green, yellow, variegated and dark. By actual observation with the naked eye we see that the colours of these planets respectively are deep red (the rising or setting Sun), soft white, dull red, greenish, yellow, brilliant white and blue. The following stones are, therefore, ascribed to the planets :—

Sl. No.	Name of Planet	Colour	Name of gem in Sanskrit	English Equivalent
1.	The Sun	Deep red	Manikya	Ruby
2.	The Moon	Soft white	Mukta	Pearl
3.	Mars	Dull red	Pravala	Coral
4.	Mercury	Greenish	Markata	Emerald
5.	Jupiter	Yellow	Pushyaraga	Topaz
6.	Venus	Brilliant white	Hiraka	Diamond
7.	Saturn	Blue	Neelamani	Sapphire

I am not at present taking into account Rahu and Kethu as they have no form or colour and do not actually exist in the heavens.

Now, colour, as we know it, is a perception of the human eye. All colour comes from the light of the Sun and is contained in it. And all light visible to the human eye consists of radiations vibrating on different wave-lengths. The spectrum has seven colours and each part of the spectrum has a different wave-length. Hugh Rice quoted in Astrology and Modern Thought says :

"Visible light includes wave-lengths of from about 7,700 Angstrom units (abbreviated "A") which is the limit at the red end to 3,600 A, the limit at the violet end. Beyond the red in the spectrum, the long waves are invisible to us but are appreciable as heat waves, and are called the infra-red. If the waves are shorter than 3,600 A, they are in the region of ultra-violet..... The Sun contains infra-red, visible and ultra-violet rays, but as to the short-wave side, there is a layer of ozone in the atmosphere, that cuts out all rays shorter than 2,700 A".[1]

1. Cf. B. V. Raman's Astrology and Modern Thought, page 32.

Planets do not possess their own light, but derive it from the Sun. They are, in fact, great reflectors which throw back a part of the light received by them from the Sun. It is just possible that the planets might transmute the light to some extent through their contact, and there might be some difference in the vibrations coming from them from those of the same colour coming from the Sun.

All light and colour thus reduce themselves to ethereal vibrations or radiations. In fact, these vibrations and radiations are the subtle form of energy from which all forms of life are created. Planets are in constant motion and their positions with reference to each other and with reference to the earth give rise to ever-changing patterns of energies which act and react upon each other. These patterns are the potent cause of creation and disintegration of life, affect human and animal behaviour and the earth itself.

Now, it is common knowledge that colours have a definite influence on the mind. The red arouses violent passions, of which the crudest exhibition can be seen in the bull when confronted with a red cloth. The white denotes purity and imparts serenity to the human mind. The green is extremely soothing to frayed nerves. The yellow is the colour of religion and invokes meditation. The blue is the colour of steadfastness and slows down all violence and tension. We also know from personal experience that garments of different colours produce different feelings in us, and that different colours are liked by different persons.

Scanned by www.sapfarishisevaorg.com © Reserved with S. V. Parmar Work

whole life. If the prescription is made on this basis, the gem would, to some extent, make up the deficiency caused by the weak planet in the mental and physical constitution of the person concerned. This gem will be worn throughout the whole life. For example, Mars in Gemini for a Cancer ascendant horoscope would require a coral to be worn throughout the whole life.

Gochara is the most prevalent consideration for which gems are recommended. Hindu Astrology recognises seven planets of which only Saturn and Jupiter are slow enough to justify the wearing of gems. Saturn stays in a sign for about 2½ years and Jupiter for about one year. Other planets are so fast-moving that their effects are ephemeral and of a passing interest. Saturn's gem (Neelamani) is usually prescribed during his transit through XII, I, II, IV and VIII Rasis from the Moon-sign. The transit through XII, I and II houses is termed as sadesati (7½ years). Of this period, too, the transit through Neecha and inimical Rasis is more malevolent. The general conception is that Saturn's transit during the last 2½ years of sadesati is the worst, but my experience is that the Rasi transitted would be the deciding factor. For example, the influence of the sadesati for persons possessing the Moon-sign Scorpio would be the worst during the middle 2½ years, and for those possessing Virgo as the Moon-sign the first 2½ years would be the worst. In such cases, a sapphire can be recommended to be worn for 2½ years or more as the case may be. Similarly, a gem to alleviate the sufferings caused by Jupiter is recommended when he is transitting I, III, IV, VI, VIII, X and XII Rasis from the Moon-sign. But I think topaz should particularly be recommended when Jupiter is passing through VI, VIII and XII Rasis from the Moon-sign.

The recommendation of a gem with reference to the Dasa and Bhukti is simple. When an adverse Dasa or Bhukti is operating, the gem governed by the planet concerned should be worn.

The recommendation of a suitable gem with reference to the owner of the Ascendant or the Moon-sign is also simple and needs no explanation.

Now, out of the four considerations given above, if one gem could be prescribed for two or more considerations, that would certainly be the best. Failing this, more than one gem may have to be worn. Or, gems may be changed from time to time, if worn for considerations of gochara and Dasa-Bhukti.

It is generally said that gems less than 3 rattis in weight should not be worn, as they are not sufficiently effective. This precept should be followed. The gem must be in contact with the skin. As far as the quality of a gem is concerned, jewellers of repute will have to be depended upon.

Scanned by www.sapnajyotishastrology.com To Preserve Late B.V. Raman's Work

THREE HUNDRED IMPORTANT COMBINATIONS

BY B. V. RAMAN

This is not a collection of combinations but a careful selection of just the most important ones which cannot be easily identified in a horoscope.

What makes one a dunce? Why is one unhappy, what makes one poor and the other rich? Why one has no bodily comfort—what makes one a King or an equal, a leader, a business magnate, an industrialist, a great politician, a pauper, a sickly man and a miserable wretch? What makes one attain success without much effect and what makes the other to meet with disappointment in life inspite of his very best efforts?

A study of this book will enable you to easily judge the worth of your own horoscope and adjudge its merits and demerits.

A book of this type containing a collection of rare combinations some of which are special yogas has never been published before.

The author has illustrated the principles with innumerable horoscopes from practical lives. Do not fail to read this book.

Excellent Paper, Cloth bound, Rs. 9/- or Sh. 18. Postage Extra.

Less 12½% to Subscribers of: THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE-3

Troinski's Tertiary Directions

TRANSLATED BY DR. S. N. DUTT

THE Secondary Direction is concerned with the secondary movement of the earth, viz., its revolution round the Sun.

Its rule is : 1 day = 1 year.

The setting up of a Secondary Direction Horoscope is quite easy. If one wants to predict the events of the 40th year of a native's life, then a horoscope of the native is set up for the 40th day after the date of birth, and a comparison is made with the birth (radical) horoscope. Thus, according to the Secondary Directions, 1 day=1 year. The national horoscope of a state would thus show a regular rhythm after 365 years, but no such rhythm has yet been shown to exist in the events relating to any state.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr. V. Raman's Work

In the case of the Tertiary Directions (TD), however, the Moon takes the place of the Sun :

One revolution of the Moon through the zodiac, or rather, one revolution of the Moon round the earth is equal to one day after birth.

The rule for TD runs thus :

"One tropical lunar month after birth is equal to one solar day after birth."

In other words, each time the Moon, in its journey through the zodiac reaches the exact sign, degree and minute of the Radical Chart, we count one day from the date of birth.

We differentiate between the following months :

(1) The tropical month is the time between 2 consecutive passages of the Moon over the equinox (0° Mesha) = 27*d.* 7*h.* 43*m.* 4.7*s.* (The tropical revolution time of the earth round the Sun = 365*d.* 5*h.* 48*m.* 46*s.*)

(2) The sidereal month is the time that elapses till the Moon reaches again the same fixed star. It is the average revolution time of the Moon round the earth and is = 27*d.* 7*h.* 43*m.* 11.7*s.*

(3) The synodial month is the the time between 2 New Moons = 29*d.* 12*h.* 44*m.* 3*s.*

(4) The anomalistic month is the time taken by the Moon to return from its nearest point to the earth back to the same point again = 27*d.* 13*h.* 18*m.* 38*s.*

(5) The drakonitic month is the time required for the return of the Moon to the same Node = 27*d.* 5*h.* 5*m.* 36*s.*

E. H. TROINSKI

(6) The solar month is 1/12th of a solar year = 30*d.* 10*h.* 19*m.* 4*s.*

(7) The calendar month = 28 to 31 days.

Here we are concerned only with the tropical month. It is equal to the time required by the Moon for one complete revolution round the earth, as well as one complete rotation on its own axis—for the time of its rotation is equal to the time of its revolution ; that is, one day = one lunar month. This must be clearly borne in mind in connection with the Tertiary Directions, and should not be confused with the well-known synodial lunations which give rise to the synodial month.

Note : Tropical month = 27*d.* 7*h.* 43*m.* 4.7*s.*

Synodial month = 27*d.* 12*h.* 44*m.* 3*s.*

Rotation = Movement of a body on its own axis.

Revolution = Movement of a body on its own orbit.

If we equate the rotation of the Moon with that of the earth, we must use the tropical month. It is also logical to use the tropical year and the tropical month with the tropical zodiac.

The tropical month, which is the basis of TD, has an average length of 27*d.* 7*h.* 43*m.* 4.7*s.* But as the periodical disturbances of the lunar movement also count, the length of the tropical month varies temporarily slightly to above and below the average length of 27*d.* 7*h.* 43*m.* 4·7*s.*

In order therefore to save time in setting up a Tertiary Direction Horoscope (TDH), it is not advisable to work with the "average length", but to use the "Table for the Tropical Month" given in page 100 of Das Weltshicksalsjahr, 1959. With the help of this Table we are in a position to determine the required date for the TDH within a minute. A lunar horoscope (TDH) for the moment (of birth) may thus be set up in which the Moon attains the same longitude as in the radical (birth) horoscope, and in which the positions of the Sun and other planets on that particular date for the TDH are set out. As in the case of the SDH, the TDH is also set up for the local time of the birth place, and for the birth place (latitude). For any date in between two tropical months, the exact Moon's position for that date should be inserted.

The number of (tropical) months elapsed since birth represents the number of calendar days which must be added to the date of birth to arrive at the date for TDH.

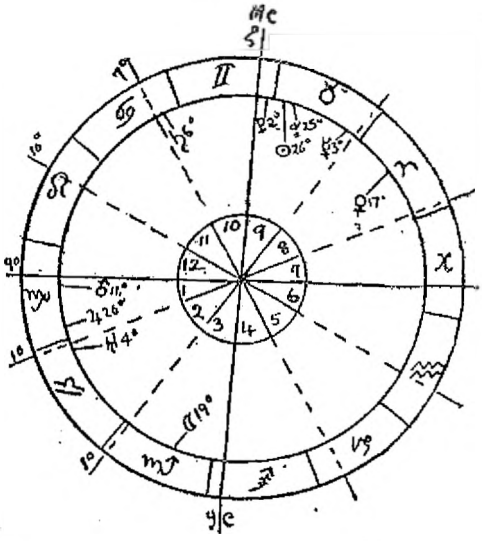
If an event, for which a TDH is to be set up, does not fall quite close to the date of birth, then with the help of an Ephemeris, the number of months elapsed between the date of birth and the event in question may easily be determined, and this number will represent the number of days to be added to the date of birth. In the absence of an Ephemeris, you may use the "Supplementary Table for Tropical months" given on page 101 of the book Das Weltshicksalsjahr, 1959.

In adding the number of days thus arrived at, to the date of birth for determining the date for the TDH to be set up, one must remember that the ordinary year has 365 days whereas the leap year has 366 days—(with the exception of the years 1700, 1800 and 1900). So in adding the number of days, one day should be deducted for each leap year. In adding the number of days thus determined to the date of birth, the use of the "Table for Tropical months" (p. 100) together with the Table for year-numbers (p. 102, Tafel der Jahreszahlen) ensures a speedy and correct determination of the date for the TDH.

The time for the TDH is the the same as that for the Radical Chart.

It should also be noted that in the cases of Primary and Secondary Directions, the Ascendant travels only 1° (on an average) for each year. When the native attains the age of 90 years, the Ascendant of the PDH moves through 3 signs of the zodiac, and the Secondary Ascendant through 2 to 4 signs at the most. On the other hand, in the case of Moon Directions (i.e., TD), the Ascendant moves through the whole of the zodiac once in 27 years; exactly so many years and months (27*y.* 4*m.*) as the lunar days and hours (27*d.* 8*h.*) are required for the Moon to go through the 12 zodiacal signs.

How to set up a Tertiary Direction Horoscope (TDH)



For the purpose of setting up a TDH, we require the following:—

1. An Ephemeris.
2. A Table of Houses for the birth place.
3. Table for Tropical months (compiled by Troinski).
4. Table for year-numbers (compiled by Troinski).
5. Usual birth data.

Example:

Let us set up the TDH of Hitler for the event of his death on 30th April 1945.

He was born on 20–4–1899 at 18*h.* 30*m.* Local Time (Braunau) Radical Moon=6°38′ Capricorn:

As per rule Tertiary Directions—

"One tropical month after birth=1 day after birth" or in other words, "each time the Moon attains the exact longitude in the Radical Chart, we add one day to the date of birth"—we have to find out how many times Hitler's Radical Moon passed its radical position (6° 38′ Capricorn) upto *April 1945. For this purpose we use the "Table for Tropical months."

By the end of April 1945, Hitler was 56 years old. From the Table for tropical months we find that during the past 56 years +Ca. 12 days, the Moon has completed 749 revolutions. We would like to know whether the Moon was actually at 6° 38′ Capricorn, 56 years and 12 days after the birth, i.e., on 2nd May 1945, and on consulting the Ephemeris we find that it is so. Now we equate these 749 lunar revolutions with 749 days, and count 749 days from the date of birth (i.e., from 20th April 1889).

In order to simplify the calculation of the date for the TDH, we use the Table for year-numbers. The number given for 20th April is 110. So we add 110 to 749 days. The result is

(Continued on page 130)

Scanned by www.sapnashisastrology.com To Preserve Rare Books Work

*1945
1889
56 years
56*y.* = 749 tropical months.
= 749 days
730 days (2 years)
19 days
749 days = 2 years + 19 days from 20–4–1889 = 9–5–1891
56 years = 749 (p. 100)
+110 (p. 102) = 20th	April
859
−730 (2 years) : 1889 +	2–18
129 (p. 102) = 9th	May

Hence the date for TDH = 9th May 1891 : 18*h.* 30*m.* L.T. (Braunau)

Scientific Attitude Towards Astrology

BY PROF. OM PRAKASHA KAHOL, M.Sc., B.T.
PRESIDENT, INDIAN ASTRONOMICAL ASSOCIATION

THE hostility between astronomers and astrologers has reached a pitch that conciliation between these two classes of savants appears to be well-nigh impossible now. Both have adopted such still-necked attitudes that even those, who plead for evolving some kind of a meeting ground between them, are hated by both and in such an atmosphere, the first casualty is the scientific spirit of enquiry. Some two years back, when we brought into existence the Indian Astronomical Association, we had the worst experience of the hostility between votaries of astronomy and astrology. There was a proposal to include astrology among the subjects of study, with which the Association should concern itself. It was to be just one among half-a-dozen other subjects like astro-physics, astro-nautics, astro-biology, etc. In India, where ancient sciences are inextricably mixed up with astrology, it was not possible to exclude it from the list of subjects under investigation, unless it was agreed to leave all Indian sciences out of consideration. And then it was never stipulated that astrology would only be supported blindly, and not repudiated, by the Association. The purpose of including astrology was to assess its worth objectively. But the proposal provoked such a storm of opposition, that quite a number of eminent scientists chose to keep out of the organisation, on this very ground.

The compliment was well returned by the astrologers. They were little interested in satellite projects of Russia and America and ridiculed mathematical astronomy as a useless science, if it was not to serve the ends of astrology. Some of them even suggested that it was better not to have any Astronomical Association at all, if it was not going to step beyond the telescopic observations of planets or measuring of stellar distances. Naturally such fanatics too had to be kept at bay. The experience, we gained in this controversy, was indeed, valuable.

Scientific Method

The corner-stone of scientific attitude of mind is preparedness to revise one's cherished beliefs and generalisations on the basis of fresh data. New facts can be gathered only if mind is left free to probe new fields, and not kept moving in stereotyped grooves. No field of research is, therefore, precluded from a scientist's probe. Why then make an exception in the case of astrology? Even if ninety-nine claims of astrology, out of a hundred, are found to be false, the truth of the hundredth will amply justify the expenditure on this research. We have set up so many National Laboratories; millions upon millions of rupees are being spent on them annually. Are all the facts discovered by them commercially useful? It should be remembered by every student of science that behind each single success of science, there lies a whole series of failures hidden from public gaze. Why should we then display indecent impatience in the case of verification of astrological facts?

It is often contended that scientific research can yield useful results only when the problem under examination is scientific in nature and astrology is not scientific. This argument is patent with those, whose eyes are focussed on one particular branch of science—Physics, Chemistry or Biology—only, and who have no conception of science as a whole. They are not familiar with new fields, which have, from time to time, come within the purview of science. Psychology, astro-biology and astro-nautics, which were formerly regarded as falling outside the scope of analytical treatment, have now attained the status of exact sciences. This was made possible by the fact that savants, possessing genuine scientific temperament, refused to exclude psychic phenomena—then a part of occultism—from the sphere of pure science. There will be no tear wasted over the fate of astrology, if all its boasts are found to be empty after a regular enquiry, but to demand, that even an enquiry should not be instituted, is to display a thoroughly unscientific bent of mind. Half-baked scientists are not less fanatical in their behaviour than the half-educated religious preceptors!

Classification of Astrological Facts

As it stands today, astrology embodies a mass of facts, some of which can be verified by the useful scientific technique and others not. The effect of waxing and waning of Moon on the sex-life of living beings, the correlation between the sunspots and incidence of influenza, the influence of solar radiations on agricultural produce and in consequence upon the prices of minerals and metals, are some of the examples of astrological facts, which lend themselves for a scientific verification. Predictions about the past and future lives exemplify the second category of facts, which cannot be verified by the methods of science, as they stand today. When we plead for the inclusion of astrology among the subjects meant for scientific research, we are only extending the application of science to the study of a new class of phenomena. We never mean that our approach should be biased, and that the claims of astrologers must, at all costs, be upheld, even when our findings lead us in the opposite direction. We need not pass a judgment on astrology as a whole, but on each of its individual assertions. Perhaps some of them may stand the test and the others may be proved to be myths. Our aim should be to isolate facts from fiction.

Scanned by gurudevbabajishrishi@gmail.com Preserved By BV Raman Work

The verifiable facts of astrology fall under two heads:

(a) Those, for which a rational explanation on the basis of present scientific knowledge is possible; and

(b) Those, for which an analytical explanation is not available, but a statistical survey establishes their veracity.

The facts of the first type must straightaway be included in the general mass of scientific knowledge. Besides the physical and physiological effects of solar and lunar radiations on terrestrial beings, the possibility of atmospheric and electromagnetic conditions on earth being influenced by other planets, in different positions, should be quantitatively studied and an explanation, if possible, of age-old beliefs should be supplied. Those 'myths', which are not supported by experimental evidence, should be clearly isolated, and set apart for further study.

Importance of Empirical Laws

Facts, which lack analytical explanation, but which are supported by statistical survey, form a very important class. In science, they are called 'empirical laws'—laws, which are found by experiment to be true, but for which no rational explanation has so far been given. The best example of such laws in astronomy is what they call Bode's Law. It relates to the distances of planets from the Sun. The members of the solar system, in order of their distances from the Sun, are Mercury, Venus, Earth, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn, leaving for the present the bodies discovered in comparatively recent times. Let us write a series of numbers zero, three, six, twelve, twenty-four, forty-eight and ninety-six. Add four to each term. Thus we get 4, 7, 10, 16, 28, 52 and 100. Bode's empirical law states that the distances of the planets are in the ratio of these numbers; that is, if the distance of Mercury from the Sun is taken as four units, that of Venus is seven, Earth ten units, Mars sixteen, Jupiter fifty-two and Saturn one hundred. The figure twenty-eight was without a member and led to the discovery of the asteroids; and by extending the law beyond one hundred, the sky-gazers predicted the existence of trans-Saturnian members of the solar system, which were later discovered. The appearance of Uranus, Neptune and Pluto, at the mathematically predicted time and place, forms the most thrilling chapter in the history of scientific discoveries. And the achievement is largely due to the intuitive generalisation of Bode, to which no analytical basis has been provided to this day!

Now spectroscopic research has revealed that a close parallelism exists between planetary orbits around the Sun and electronic orbits around atomic nuclei. But while Niels Bohr has given an exact mathematical explanation for the formation of electronic orbits, on the basis of the well-known quantum theory of Max Planck, there is unfortunately no explanation as to why the planets must revolve round the Sun in orbits given by Bode's Law only. We simply do not know why the mean distances of the planets must be in the order of the mathematical series 4, 7, 10, 16, 28, 52, 100, etc. And though we are as yet unable to account for it, we have not shown any reluctance to use our knowledge of Bode's Law to explore space and discover more planets. A patient cannot refuse to take a medicine, the efficacy of which has been established by usage, though its composition and chemical action on body are not yet precisely known.

Plea for a Statistical Survey

This digression is deemed necessary because some pseudo-scientists refuse to accept certain astrological assertions on the ground that a direct cause-and-effect relationship between the planetary combinations and the predicted event is not visible. The right scientific approach in such cases would be, first to establish a correlation between the predicted event and the astrological data leading to it, by statistical methods, and then to look for an explanation. An empirical rule, which is found to be true in practice cannot be discarded simply because no analytical explanation for it is forthcoming. The claims of astrology are many, and some of them can definitely be tested in the usual way. For instance, the coefficient of correlation between longevity and the relevant configuration of the celestial luminaries can be found from municipal records; hospital reports and proceedings of law courts can be used to find out if

(Continued on page 48)

Scanned by astrologyandastrology.com for Preservation Only Not For Personal Work

The Correct Birth Time

BY V. THIRUVENKATACHARYA, M.A., L.T.

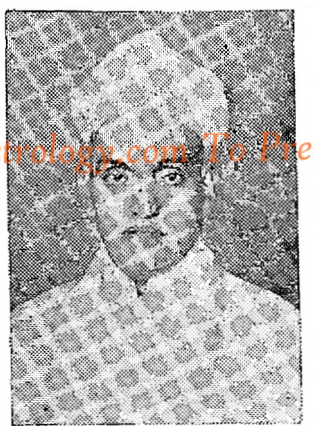
Introduction

ALL standard works on astrology stipulate that correct Lagna or Ascendant is absolutely necessary for correct prediction. Parasara states that without correction by Prana Pada method, it is useless to study any horoscope. Every standard work on astrology like Brihat Jataka or Sanketanidhi gives methods of rectification of birth Lagna. Sanketanidhi observes :

तन्वादि भावान् खचरांश्च कृत्वा स्पष्टान्
फलं कीर्तयितुम् क्षमः स्यात् ।.....

"It is only after calculating correctly the several Bhavas beginning with the Lagna and their Sandhis and the exact positions of the planets, that it will be possible to declare the effects arising therefrom."

Generally we do not mark the Bhavas but only indicate the Rasi in which Lagna lies. I have noted in some cases of Kuja Dosha, Kuja being situate in the third or sixth or eleventh Bhava of some charts; some charts with no apparent Kuja Dosha have been found to be with Kuja Dosha according to Bhava Chakra.



Need for Correct Lagna

Our books on astrology insist on the calculation of at least Shadvargas—Lagna, Hora, Drekkana, Navamsa, Dwadasamsa and Thrimsamsa. These require the degree positions of the Lagna and not simply the Rasi alone. Sometimes Shashtiamsa is thought of requiring the position of Lagna correct to half-a-degree.

लग्नेधीरश्चिन्तये देहभावं होरा
लग्नात्संपदार्थं सुखंच ।
द्रेष्काणाङ्गं द्वन्थु सौख्यं विचिन्त्यं
सप्तांशाङ्गात्संततेः स्याद्विचारः ॥
—Sanketanidhi 2–27

"All about one's body should be studied through Lagna; wealth, happiness from the Hora Lagna; happiness of relations through Drekkana Lagna and children from Saptamsa Lagna."

कलत्र सौख्यादि नवांशलग्नाद्वि-
लोक्यमर्कांशकतोत्रपित्रोः ।
त्रिंशांशकादिष्टफलं च वाच्यं सर्वं
विलग्नादपि चिन्तनीयं ॥
—Sanketanidhi 2–28

V. THIRUVENKATACHARYA

"Wife's happiness is to be studied from Navamsa Lagna, parents from Dwadasamsa Lagna and one's cherished desires from Thrimsamsa Lagna ....."

Sanketanidhi states that a man's temperament can be known from Thrimsamsa of the Sun. It is a matter of regret that in South India it has become a practice to note the Lagna Rasi and the Rasis occupied by the planets in the birth chart instead their positions in degrees and minutes. I hope that at least a standard journal like THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE will see to set right this defect in our practice.

What is the Correct Birth Time ?

Unlike the Western astrologers, our ancient scholars have discussed this problem thoroughly. For example when an individual selects an auspicious time for a journey, only the auspicious nature of the starting time is taken into consideration, and he does not bother about the different stages of his journey. Evidently well begun is half done. Similarly we have to consider the different stages of confinement to select the proper birth time. Our sages have stated that (a) discharge or srava; (b) presentation of the head of the baby or sirshodaya; and (c) delivery or bhupathanam are the three stages of confinement to be considered for casting a birth chart and that they are in decreasing order of importance; but this rule has never been followed. From a common-sense point of view delivery must be a simple and easy process for a woman just like the dropping down of a ripe fruit from its stem. At least in India, among the educated classes, delivery has become a troublesome process—a matter of life and death for the woman. Sometimes the pains continue for a long time and the different stages mentioned above do not come in quick succession as in healthy cases. Frequently, the woman is delivered of the child with the aid of instruments and choice of the proper time of birth becomes a complicated matter.

It is my personal opinion that srava or discharge must be considered as the beginning of the confinement and chart must be prepared for that moment. I am making this statement from a personal experience of a study of some charts.

Scanned by www.vedicnisastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

Predictions do not tally in many charts and progressions fail miserably, with the result that astrology is described as being undependable.

Let us take some examples to illustrate my arguments.

Case I.—This is the case of a baby born a few months ago. So there are no events to rectify her chart. Hers is a case of instrumental delivery, the pain having extended over two or three days, which were not at all astrologically auspicious. It is considered lucky that the birth was delayed as otherwise consequences would, I think, not have turned out to be happy. The birth took place on 26-2-1958 at 2-45 p.m. (L.M.T.), Madras, in a nursing home. S.T. at noon 22-22-26.

<table>
<tr><td>Sun 7–16
Budha 4–31</td><td>X 15</td><td>Kethu 4–19</td><td>Moon 1–46</td></tr>
<tr><td>Sukra 1–38</td><td colspan="2" rowspan="2">No. I</td><td>I 17–25</td></tr>
<tr><td>Kuja 17–4</td><td>H 8–30
Rg.</td></tr>
<tr><td>Sani 24–35</td><td>Guru 1-28 R
Nep. 4–38 R
Rahu 4–19</td><td></td><td>Pluto 2</td></tr>
</table>

(a) Varahamihira's rule for rectification when the Moon is increasing, that the Dwadasamsa of the Lagna must be the Rasi of the Moon is not satisfied unless we take the last dwadasamsa which will be absurd.

(b) The child is long-limbed and lean and Cancer cannot indicate these qualities.

These two points made me probe further into the matter. The Moon's position being semi-square to Lagna, I was worried about the longevity also as Kuja is exactly setting. I remembered the nurse casually mentioning that 'discharge' or srava occurred at 8 a.m. (I.S.T.), when the 10th house will be Makara 3° and Lagna Mesha 3° 57′. The Moon will be in 28° 19′ Vrishabha (Taurus).

Varahamihira's method of rectification gives us that Lagna is 2° 30′ plus 28°19′ ÷ 12′ = 4° 51′.

Physical qualities are easily explained by this Lagna. M.C. is fortified by the benefic aspects of the Sun, Budha, Guru, Neptune, Rahu and Kethu. Lagna is fortified by the benefic aspects of the Moon and Sukra. The trine of Uranus to Lagna explains the physical appearance of the baby more than anything else and this supplied me with the necessary clue. A single swallow does not make the summer, but we should count as many swallows as possible. Will it be possible for the Editor of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE to organise a research group for this purpose and publish the results in the columns of the Magazine?

In the case of normal deliveries, all the three stages of delivery will be in quick succession and these difficulties do not arise at all. Considering case I again, taking Mesha 4° 51′ as Lagna, it is clear that malefics in the 2nd and 8th houses cause Balarishta but the exalted lord of Lagna has saved the baby so far. The child was delivered with the help of an instrument when Kuja came to an angular position. Did Kuja save the child because he is the exalted lord of Lagna at the first stage of confinement? Probably so. The second stage or head presentation might have taken place when Kuja was angular at about 9 a.m. but this statement is only a guess.

Case II.—Let us take another interesting case of birth on 5–9–1896 at 48 gh. 13 vig. in a hospital with the help of forceps. L.M.T. of birth is 1–26 a.m. on 5–9–1896. The Sayana chart is given below :—

<table>
<tr><td></td><td>X 4–50</td><td></td><td>Kuja 11–12
Neptune 20–13</td></tr>
<tr><td rowspan="2">Rahu 23–24</td><td colspan="2" rowspan="2">No. II</td><td>I 11–46</td></tr>
<tr><td>Moon 5–44
Kethu 23–24
Guru 25–9</td></tr>
<tr><td></td><td>Hers. 21–4
Sani 14–27</td><td>Budha 8</td><td>Sun 12–43
Sukra 28–24</td></tr>
</table>

For forty-five years, the chart was considered to be correct and predictions were made. The general trend of influence was not inaccurately predicted by Dasa Bhukthi method, which helps one to predict fairly accurate results even when the Lagna is doubtful as the Bhukthis take into account the relative positions of the Bhukthi-lords and Dasa-lords.

But the physical appearance was quite the opposite to that indicated by the Lagna (Kataka) as worked out. Progressions never tallied. One or two Hindu methods of rectification miserably failed. Is it possible to predict highly educated sons with Sani and Uranus in the 5th house, whether we take Sayana or Nirayana chart? A scar on the cheek will naturally lead a person to the conclusion that probably Kuja must be in the Lagna and not in the 12th house.

Applying the rules of Varahamihira for rectification, since the birth occurred in the dark

Digitized by www.siddhanta.com In Present of Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

fortnight, the Moon at conception must be in Dhanus, the Dwadasamsa being that of Simha. The Moon at conception must be 20°-22½° of Dhanus and the Lagna must be Mithuna (20°-22½°) which is the ninth Dwadasamsa. The Moon's position at birth came to be 4° 57′ Simha and Lagna was 20° 45′ of Mithuna with its M.C. at 13° Meena. Time of birth had to be shifted to 12–1 midnight (L.M.T)

The following are the main events of life :—

9–7–1915—Marriage.
11–1–1922—Father's death.
April 1924—Recognition in educational field along with minor troubles.
Sept. 1937—Pilgrimage.
June 1946—Professional advancement.
April 1956— Do. do.
13–8–1957—Mother's death.

The modified chart will be as follows :—

X 13			Kuja 11–12 I 20–45 Neptune 20–13
	No. III		Moon 4–57 Kethu 23–24 Guru 25–9
	Hers. 21–4 Sani 14–27	Budha 8	Sun 12–43 Sukra 28–24

Scanned by www.sreejyothishastrology.com All Rights Reserved Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

Let us consider the progressions for each of these events.

(i) Marriage:—9-7-1915—age 19 years. Sukra progresses to 21° 29′ of Thula having made a trine to Lagna and Neptune in 1914 and approaching a trine to Kethu in close conjunction with Guru lord of the house of marriage. In May 1914, as a matter of fact, marriage negotiations were broken off at the last moment as Venus alone, was not strong enough to bring about the event, Venus being very weak in the radical chart. 21° 29′ of Thula is the balancing point between the trine to Lagna and a sextile to Kethu. (I have taken a degree as the orb for progression. Transits play their part in this).

(ii) Entry into Service :—June 1919—age 23. Sun sextile to the radical Moon. Sun is progressing in his house of debilitation indicating a low start not suitable to the position of the native.

(iii) Father's Death :–11-1-1922—age 25 years, 4 months. M.C. progressed to 8° 20′ of Mesha making 45° to Rahu and 135° to Uranus progressed. The death was sudden and unexpected.

(iv) Recognition in educational field along with minor troubles :–1924 April—age 27½ years. Budha progressed to the trine of Rahu and Kethu and M.C. progressed to 10° 30′ of Mesha making 135° aspect to Guru—trouble being of a legal nature.

(v) Professional advancement :–June 1925—age 28¾ years. M.C. progressed to 11° 45′ of Mesha forming a sextile of Kuja, who is the lord of 11th house. M.C. progressing in the house of Kuja and making a benefic aspect with him must be doubly powerful.

(vi) Pilgrimage :—September 1937—age 41 years. 1936 to 1939 were years of journeys, transfers and pilgrimage indicated by the malefic and benefic aspects of progressed Budha to Kuja, Kethu and Guru. Progressed Sun lent its weight. Angles are not involved. But I think it is sufficient as Budha—lord of the Lagna, and Sun—the lord of the 3rd house are involved. Kethu is a planet of religion and Moksha according to Hindu astrology. Under this planet's influence, a pilgrimage from Hardwar to Rameswaram was completed.

(vii) Professional advancement: June 1946.—The part of professional advancement is Lagna +Fortune—Sani=19° Dhanus. Professional advancement occurred at 49¾ years; taking one degree for a year, the progressed position of professional advancement comes to 8¾ of Kumbha making a trine to Budha, the lord of Lagna. But the year was full of troubles due to other influences.

(viii) Professional advancement :—April 1956—age 59½ yrs. M.C. progresses to the sextile of Sun, progression being reckoned at the rate of one degree per year.

(ix) Mother's death : 13-8-1957—age nearly 61 years. Lagna progresses to the square of Sani–the lord of the 8th house.

(x) About this time, M.C. progressed, is afflicted by Sani giving the reason for lowering of status.

Conclusion :—'One swallow does not make summer' but it indicates the possibility of a change in the weather. Astrology also requires certain changes to make it scientific and easy for ordinary persons to understand. Complicated and laborious methods are not to be adopted as we will be lost in their complexities ; but accuracy must never be sacrificed.

Primary directions and other modern innovations which we find mentioned in the pages of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE may be thought of by those who have the leisure and ability to deal with them. Ordinary students of astrology must have ordinary and simple methods of prognostication without sacrifice of efficiency. Even Sripathi is too complicated to be of any ready and practical use.

If correct birth time is noted, simple methods like the one indicated in the preceding paras ought to be sufficient to give readings. In Western astrology, the problem of birth time has never been tackled; but we have overlooked the problem inspite of the warning given by our sages. Newton's inverse law of squares did not work well with Budha and so some modification was suggested in the law of squares; as a matter of fact, 2 in ½ was replaced in 2.00012 to explain the discrepancy in the motion of Budha. But Einstein's Theory of Relativity solved the mystery about the motion of Budha. Similarly whenever there was something going wrong, modern astrologers advocated changes in the subject itself. I have given in these pages what I had in mind without reservation and it is for the scholars to analyse and decide.

Many methods are in use as regards the progression of M.C. and I have used the simple formula of one degree per year instead of the corresponding sidereal time of the secondary directions. My method is simple provided the birth time is correct.

For father's death, let us take the 9th cusp according to the Hindu system to represent the father. 9th cusp is 15° 35′ of Kumbha and father's death occurred at the age of 25 1/3 years and the cusp of the 9th house (Pitru Bhava) progresses or has a close approach to the square of Mars or Kuja.

By oblique ascension, the cusp of the 4th house (Mathru Bhava) goes to the square of Guru—highly significant from the Hindu viewpoint. According to us, funeral ceremonies for the parents are considered to be a type of Yagna and a necessary duty for a Hindu. When parents pass away at a ripe age, the occasion is considered more as a festival than as a mourning. Father's elder brother passed away in 37½ years of age; father's elder brother is indicated by the 11th house from the 9th house, i.e., the 7th house, the cusp of which is 20° 45′ of Dhanus which progresses to 28¼° of Makara making a close 135° aspect to Sun.

Lagna has been shifted back by 22°, which satisfies Varahamihira's rule for rectification and the events in the life. Is it justifiable? This is a problem that is posed for others to answer.

In this connection, the reason why astrological predictions do not come true on some occasions has to be tackled scientifically. It is for students of astrology to pass their judgment whether what has been written in these pages has been scientific and whether one can ignore with impunity the noted time of birth when the child is completely delivered from the mother or the earlier moment of first discharge indicating the beginning of delivery.

SCIENTIFIC ATTITUDE TOWARDS ASTROLOGY

(Continued from page 44)

natives possessing specific horoscopic pecularities did have the astrologically predicted history or not.

Need for a Common Forum

The scrutiny of astrology has been made particularly difficult by the unfortunate circumstance that there is no reliable method of separating the genuine astrologer from quacks. In physical sciences, the deciding factor is the experimental test or the analytically reached conclusion. Since a large number of astrological rules cannot be verified experimentally and involve a type of reasoning, the basis of which is not "from known to unknown" but "from unknown to unknown", it is impossible to decide, who is a genuine master of the science and who is a mere pretender. Not to talk of a layman, even those who claim to know astrology, often fail to agree among themselves, who among them are quacks and who real scholars. This creates confusion in the public mind and no methodical survey in this direction can be easily undertaken. Perhaps if seasoned science men join hands with astrologers of repute and long-standing fame, some useful results may emerge. A common forum, for the two classes of savants to meet, is absolutely essential.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve This Knowledge Work

Varshaphal

OR

THE HINDU PROGRESSED HOROSCOPE

Based on Tajaka (6TH EDITION)

By B. V. RAMAN

This book based on Tajaka covers fresh grounds in the field of prediction. It describes a unique method never before disclosed for deciphering annual life readings. Predictions made according to this work yield unique results. Whether you are a layman or initiated, you can draw up and interpret the annual reading in an easy and scientific manner. The system propounded in the pages of this work is rational and in actual practice yields most satisfactory results.

OPINION

"The author outlines a method of deciphering annual results from the Hindu horoscope. He claims that the principles of Tajaka astrology have been found to work accurately in actual practice, and controverts the orthodox belief that the system can be applied only to charts of individuals who have passed the age of thirty. There are many useful tables at the end and a summary."

—Indian Express.

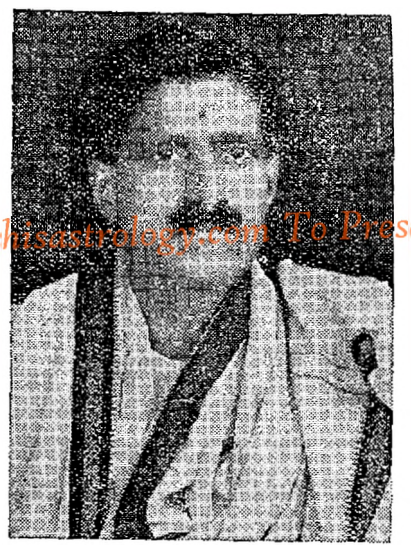
Antique paper. Cloth Bound

Rs. 3 or Sh. 6

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari". BANGALORE-3



Fundamental Particles

BY VASANTARAO VENKATRAO, M.Sc.

NATURE seems to be ever elusive. The more we try and succeed in unravelling the mysteries of nature the more baffling and multiplied they appear to be. And yet, man, like an undaunted crusader ever increases his pace in the quest for truth. It did not take him long to realise that the river of knowledge turns round many a time in its sonorous journey, but every turn surely takes him nearer the truth. As he intensified his investigations he developed a faith in the simplicity and symmetry of nature. The evolution of the ideas of the atom may be cited as an instance.

From the earliest times some men were engaging themselves in all ages and climes in observing nature in her pristine glory and building up systems of thought based on their observations. Intuitively they felt that the multiplicity and diversity were only apparent and that there exists an indiscernible unity. That thought led them to postulate a few primary or elementary substances which combined in various ways to produce the many substances we come across. The number ranged from four to seven. The Hindu concept put it at five, viz., prithivi, appu, thejas, vayu and akasa. The greatness of this concept lies in the fact that the entire universe can be explained in terms of the five primordial substances or the Pancha Bhutas. Prithivi, appu and vayu represent the three states of matter–the solid, liquid and gaseous. 'Thejas' is energy and 'Akasa' is space. Some systems included mercury and sulphur in the category of the elementary substances.

All substances are supposed to be made up of small indivisible particles called Paramanu–atoms as they are now called. The paramanu vada is dealt with at great length in philosophies propounded by the sages Kapila and Kanada, though it cannot be said that the dimensions of the atom as we conceive it today were imagined. Nevertheless the idea of an ultimate particle as forming the basis for the formation of the varieties of matter was there.

VASANTARAO VENKATRAO

From the beginning of the 17th century the idea of the atom was pursued with great avidity. The compressibility of the gases required to be explained in terms of small particles which were quite dispersed normally and which could be compressed by the application of pressure. Evidences from many sources forced the scientists to view matter as an aggregate of small and identical particles which were kept together by forces of attraction. The later chemists definitely stated the difference between an element and a compound and the difference between an atom and a molecule. There are few primordial substances which are called "elements". Each element is composed of atoms which are identical and which are indivisible. In the free state a few atoms may aggregate themselves into clusters; such a cluster is a molecule. The number of such elements was said to be 92. Now we know that it is raised to 102 to this day. Elements combine to form "compounds". Compounds are innumerable and all the variety of substances we come across in the world, and even beyond this world, are made up of various elements combined in various ways. For example, hydrogen and oxygen combine to form water; they combine also to form hydrogen peroxide. The smallest part of a compound that retains its own properties is called "molecule". A molecule can be broken, but then it splits up and exhibits quite different properties. A molecule of water when chemically split up gives rise to new substances oxygen and hydrogen. Thus, the idea of the atom as an indivisible particle was firmly held by the scientists till the last decade of the last century.

The 1890's was a period of feverish activity. By that time it was definitely established that the atom was not an indivisible particle, since, experiments on the discharge of electricity through gases showed beyond doubt that negatively charged electrical particles were rushing in the tubes from the cathode with great velocities and that whatever substance was used as the cathode the same particles

Sambhu Jyotishi Jyotishastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

READY FOR SALE

BRIHAT JATAKA

OF VARAHA MIHIRA

English Translation by Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao with original slokas in Bold Devanagari

(FOURTH EDITION)

This is a monumental work written by Varahamihira the versatile genius of the first century B.C. and deals with the entire Science of Astrology in a masterly way. Brihat Jataka, as the author rightly asserts, is intended as a boat for all those who at first get despirited at the sight of the vast ocean of astrological knowledge but who wish to cross the same.

The book contains the invaluable commentaries of Bhattotpala which have made clear many of the obscure passages. Prof. Rao has given copious notes in his own inimitable style which facilitates easy comprehension.

CONTENTS

Introduction, Explanation of Technicalities, Differences in Planets, Various forms of Birth, Conception and Peculiarities of this Phenomenon, Peculiarities of Birth, Balarishta or Early Death, Determination of Longevity, Periods and Sub-periods, Results of Planets, Means of Livelihood, Rajayogas, Nabhasa Combinations, Results of two Planets in Combination, Ascetic Combinations, Stellar Influences, Lunar Influences, Results of Planetary Aspects, Results of Planets in different Houses, Mixed Results, Misfortunes, Female Horoscopy, Combinations for Death, Lost Horoscopy, Drekkana Influences, etc.

In fact this is the one book that everyone should read for getting a thorough knowledge of the subject. Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao is hailed as Abhinava Varahamihira and his masterly notes and the lucidity with which he has explained the principles merit your attention.

About 650 Pages, Glazed Paper, Cloth Bound, Rs. 12 or Sh. 24
(Postage Extra)

Less 12½% to Subscribers of : THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

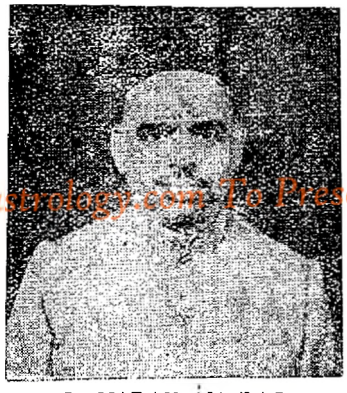
AS ONLY A LIMITED NUMBER OF COPIES ARE PRINTED, ORDER YOUR COPY AT ONCE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari" :: BANGALORE-3

A New Method of Progression

BY L. NARAYANA RAO, M.A.



PROGRESSION has a mathematical genesis. It is something like an inexhaustible fountain from which a series sprouts out. The series obeys certain laws of formation of the series. It is developed from a function called the generating function. With this much background let me switch on to the use of this for astrology.

Astrology is the unfathomed science of sciences, because its ways are still a mystery to the ordinary man. It is exact in itself—a thing about which there can be no doubt in the least. Because we are unable to predict the events or their timing accurately and faithfully neither the sastra nor its founders could be blamed for it.

The horoscope or the original radix chart is the generating function; an individual's life span with its various incidents vicissitudes, fortunes, misfortunes, fluctuations between two extremes can be compared to the terms of the series. While the birth chart or the radix is taken as fixed for all time, to time the events, as to when a particular event would come to pass, we have necessarily to progress the radix. The Hindus have the systems of Dasas—various methods are available and each is found to apply in particular instances, the most popular among them being the Vimshottari system of Parasara. There are other independent methods like gochara (with reference to the Moon's position at birth), Astakavarga, etc. Whatever method we may apply, the ultimate purpose is to time the coming events which are indicated in the radix.

In European astrology, there does not appear to be any Dasa system, but they have several directional systems and progressions; and it is claimed that those methods also give quite accurate results. Instances are not wanting wherein students of Indian astrology even have given up their traditional methods in preference to directional methods. It is a matter of individual choice and we shall leave it at that stage.

The purpose of the present article is to establish a method independent of Dasas for prognosticating of events in the life series from the generating function, viz., the radix horoscope. A few years ago, I had written an article on 'Varshaphal' in the columns of our esteemed ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE with the kind patronage of our learned Editor. I am going to illustrate the same principles once again, with certain extensions. Let my readers be not disappointed if I cannot, in this context, cater to their taste for the progression system of the occidentalists.

L. NARAYANA RAO

Let me at first recapitulate the substance of the last article and the principle embedded therein. Here the position of the Sun at birth is kept the same as a fixed position for all time but only progressing the Ascendant, Moon, Nodes and Planets. Every year when the Sun comes to the same exact sidereal longitude, one year is reckoned. This period will not be always equal to the length of the sidereal year of 365.2563744 days, due to the slow progressive motion of the Aphelion-Peribelion line. The exact time when the Sun exactly repeats itself will be the time of anniversary of birth and the Ascendant for this moment should be calculated for the place of birth, with due reference to the latitude and the local mean time. As for the planets, Moon and nodes, the then positions are not required for the purpose of this method. Instead the following annual rates are to be adopted:—

Scanned by www.sapnabisastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B. V. Ramans Work

Moon	...	.631596
Mars	...	.151886
Mercury	...	.260863
Jupiter	...	.144593
Venus	...	1.501269
Saturn	...	.203379
Rahu } Kethu }	...	.129039

(N.B.—The rates are in decimals of a sign).

For the determination of the Ascendant, in a rough and ready manner, we can adopt the constant value of 3.0765928 signs per year. A more accurate method will be to calculate by using the oblique ascension of signs for a duration of 15 gh. 22¾ vig.

I am herewith giving an example horoscope to illustrate the method:

Date of birth	...	9th June 1907
Time of birth	...	23 gh. 1 vig.
Latitude	...	10° N. 47′
Longitude	...	72° E. 15′

Planetary Positions

		°	′	″
Sun	...	54	51	7
Moon	...	37	16	55
Mars	...	266	14	49
Mercury	...	72	27	38
Jupiter	...	81	57	12
Venus	...	28	49	50
Saturn	...	334	8	49
Rahu	...	92	49	10
Kethu	...	272	49	10
Ascendant..		187	2	45

Problem:—Let us find out the effects of the progression for the year 1944–45, i.e., number of years past 37.

(A). Fixation of Ascendant at the moment of anniversary of birth:

(a) By rough and ready method:

Advance in 1 year is 3.0765928 signs
,, 37 years is 3.0765928×37
$= 5.8339336$

(In arriving at this figure, the number of revolutions of 12 signs has been eschewed.)

Add Ascendant of birth = 6.2349
∴ Progressed Ascendant = 0.0688
(which is Aries)

This is sufficiently accurate for low latitudes; but as we go higher up, this rough and ready method will not hold good. The detailed method will require to be worked out. For the sake of facility, I shall describe it as hereunder.

Length of sidereal year = 365.2563744 days.

Dividing by 7 to leave off the number of weeks, we have 1.2563744 odd days, which is equivalent to 1d. 15gh. 22.94784 vig. Multiplying by 37, we get 46-28-49.07008, once again dividing by 7, we are left with 4 d. 28 gh. 49.07 vig.; to this add 1 d. 23 gh. 1 vig. (where 1 represents Sunday—the day of birth, and 23 gh. 1 vig. represents the time of birth). We get therefore 5 d. 51 gh. 50 vig., i.e., a Thursday at or near 9-6-1944 and time 51 gh. 50 vig. By a reference to the calendar of the year 1944, we find that this corresponds to the early hours of the 9th June 1944.

At the time of birth for the position of the Sun 54° 51′, the portion of Taurus unspent is 0 gh. 52.48 vig. for the place of birth; the succeeding signs from Gemini to Pisces inclusive, give 50 gh. 20.4 vig. and altogether 51 gh. 12.88 vig. The portion traversed in Aries will be therefore 51 gh. 50 vig. minus 51 gh. 12.88 vig., which yields 37.12 vig. Duration of Aries is 274 vighatikas. Thus the position of Aries (in decimals) is .1355. This being a more accurate method, we shall adopt this as the progressed Lagna.

(b) Now let us obtain the progressed positions for 37 years past. For Sun there is no progression. His original radix position of 1.8284 signs will be the same. But this factor would not affect the predictions, as the position, ownership, etc., will vary every year for the Lagna changes correspondingly.

Courtesy Prabhu Kotarishwar astrology.com to preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn	Rahu	Kethu
At birth	1.2427	8.8749	2.4153	2.7318	.9610	11.1382	3.0940	9.0940
For 37 yrs. progression	23.3691	5.6198	9.6519	4.2350	55.5466	7.5250	−4.7844	−4.3096
	0.6118	2.4947	0.0672	6.9668	56.5076	6.6632	10.3096	4.3096
					−48
					8.5076

	Lagna Moon Mercury	Sun	Mars
Rahu	9-6-1944 to 1-9-1944
			Kethu
Venus		Jupiter Saturn

(c) We should also find out now if any of the planets change over to the next sign during the course of the year under consideration. This can be readily seen from the annual rates given. See Moon; he has to traverse .3882 of the sign, while the annual rate is .6316; he will therefore change after $\frac{.3882}{.6312} \times 365.25$ or 224.5 days. Similarly Jupiter changes after 83.9 days. Venus changes after 119.8 days and again 243.3 days later. The corresponding dates will be as follows:

Moon changes from Aries to Taurus on January 20, 1945; Jupiter changes from Libra to Scorpio on September 2, 1944; Venus changes from Sagittarius to Capricorn on October 7, 1944; Venus changes from Capricorn to Aquarius on June 8, 1945.

This gives the following charts for reading the effects of the configuration:

	Lagna Moon Mercury	Sun	Mars
Rahu	2-9-1944 to 6-10-1944
			Kethu
Venus	Jupiter	Saturn

	Lagna Moon Mercury	Sun	Mars
Rahu	7-10-1944 to 19-1-1945
Venus			Kethu
	Jupiter	Saturn

	Lagna Mercury	Sun Moon	Mars
Rahu	20-1-1945 to 7-6-1945
Venus			Kethu
	Jupiter	Saturn

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

(B) Readings of the Progressed Charts :

Chart I.—Lord of progressed Lagna is in the 3rd house in an inimical sign, with interchange of houses. Lord of 4th is with the lord of 3rd and 6th aspected by Saturn, lord of 10th and 11th. Although the aspect of Jupiter lord of 9th is there, yet the combination of the lords of 9th and 10th who are also lords of 12th and 11th respectively is not productive of any good. Opposition of Venus and Mars who are lords of 7th and 1st house in the progressed chart and who happen to be lords of 1st and 7th in the radix, should be specially noted. It is worthwhile noticing that the progressed Ascendant falls in the 7th from Ascendant radix. The period was very mediocre in official line and financially full of domestic quarrels estranged feelings, slight ill-health due to nervous breakdown.

Chart II.—Even the benefic aspect of Jupiter which was obtaining in the Chart I has been withdrawn; but there was mutual aspect of the lords of 5th and 9th. This developed into aversion for worldly things and a turn to spiritual and religious outlook. But as Jupiter is the lord of the 6th in the birth chart, it was not lasting or leading to further advancement.

Chart III.—Venus lord of Ascendant in radix in the tenth is the only good position. Jupiter was unfavourable being in the 8th. The Moon and Mercury in Lagna is not a good yoga due to lordship further deteriorated by Saturn's aspect. There was a long tour for a month or so, in utter disgust and frustration.

Chart IV.—The change of the Moon to Taurus with the Sun (combination of lords of 4th and 5th houses) aspected by Jupiter (lord of 9th). Sani in his exaltation and in interchange with Venus and further aspected by his friend Mercury. Venus lord of Ascendant (radix) in 10th from Ascendant progressed in 9th from the Moon, lord of that house Saturn occupying the 10th from Venus was indicative of a change of place in connection with professional activities, in a higher official circle. It did take place in March/April 1945, with a slight financial benefit.

In order that my readers may properly understand the working of the method, let me progress the horoscope for 1951-52, i.e., 44 years past. The progressed positions are as follows : Moon 5.0329, Mars 3.5579, Mercury 1.8933, Jupiter 9.0939, Venus 7.0168, Saturn 8.0839, Rahu 9.4163 and Kethu 3.4163. Progressed Ascendant falls at signs 9.4680. Mercury changes after 149.4 days to Gemini (i.e., on 1951, October 5th. Venus changes after 239.2 days, i.e., on February 3,1952 to Scorpio.

		Sun Mercury
	9-6-1951 to 4-10-1951		Mars Kethu
Lagna Jupiter Rahu
Saturn	Venus		Moon

		Sun	Mercury
	5-10-1951 to 2-2-1952		Mars Kethu
Lagna Jupiter Rahu
Saturn	Venus		Moon

		Sun	Mercury
	3-2-1952 to end of the progressed year		Mars Kethu
Lagna Jupiter Rahu
Venus Saturn			Moon

Chart I.—Important developments in professional sphere are indicated by lord of 9th in the 5th with Sun, aspected by lord of 10th and also by Jupiter.

Chart II.—See lord of 9th in the progressed chart occupying the original radix position and 10th from progressed Moon, who is the lord of 10th from birth Lagna. This also gave certain lasting benefits in the official career.

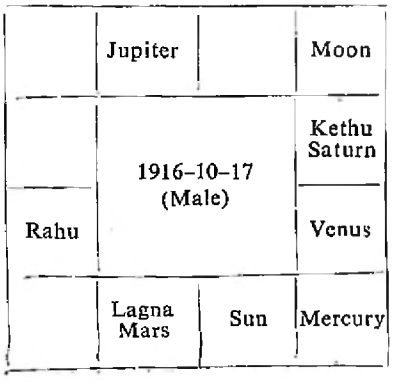
Chart III.—Venus has moved to the 12th but still the mutual aspect of Venus and Mercury continues. The 12th house position in Chart III and the mutual 6–8 positions between Venus and Mercury in Chart II indicated that there was no monetary benefit.

In all the three charts note the affliction of the 7th house by Mars and Kethu aspected by Rahu. Mars is the lord of the 8th from Moon the 7th lord which is an additional factor for the malignance of the combination of the incendiaries. The 7th house effects were very bad; there was dead enmity between the native and his wife. In fact it was a living death; perhaps but for the aspect of Jupiter something untoward would nave taken place. This position continued for a long time, in fact till the progressed Mars moved to Leo and Kethu moved to Gemini during the year 1954-55.

Other features like education of children, their success in examination, service matters were fairly satisfactory. Lord of 2nd in the 12th and significator of wealth debilitated with a Dwirdwadasa (2-12) position to the lord of the progressed Ascendant gave bare means of subsistence and even certain dues were delayed throughout for some reason or other.

Timing of Events

So far by way of illustration of the method. Now we propose to lay down the principle as to how to foretell coming events and time them. From the number of years to traverse one sign by progression, which are as follows:—Moon 1 7/12, Mars 6 7/12, Mercury 3 5/6, Jupiter 6 11/12, Venus 2/3, Saturn 4 11/12 and Rahu (also Kethu) 7 9/12, we can easily arrive at the progressed positions for any desired age. So also the Ascendant can be progressed at 3.076 signs per year.



The following progressed positions with reference to their own positions in the radix chart are good:—

Moon	1, 3, 6, 7, 10, 11
Mars	1, 2, 4, 7, 8, 10, 11
Mercury	1, 3, 5, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12
Jupiter	1, 2, 3, 4, 7, 8, 10, 11
Venus	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 8, 9, 10, 11
Saturn	3, 5, 6, 11
Rahu	1, 2, 4, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11
Kethu	3, 6, 10, 11

(N.B.—In the case of Sun, there being no progression, the following positions with reference to the Ascendant should be considered instead, viz., 2, 3, 5, 6, 9, 10 and 11).

With the help of this, it will possible to find out when a particular significator of a Bhava will occupy by progression a favourable position to fructify its results. Having got this, determine the progressed ascendant, which when falls in an house other than 6, 8 or 12 from the birth Lagna will be generally indicative of good. This together with the progressed position of planets should enable one to fix the events in time measure.

Example

To predict the date or probable time of marriage and employment:

(a) Marriage:—Sukra is the lord of 7th and also the Kalatrakaraka. 9, 10, 11 positions with reference to himself are auspicious. Of this, 10th aptly falls in the 7th house from Lagna. Therefore the period when Venus comes to Taurus by progression is the time. Period of Venus is only 8 years. Two rotations will make 16 years. The third rotation will be the most appropriate; the number of years would therefore be 2×8 plus $9/12 \times 8 = 22$; in other words 22-23 age will be the time. More accurate results will be got by taking the exact degree of the planet.

(b) Employment:–The Karmakaraka is Sani (more exact will be to assign all the four Sun, Sani, Mercury, Jupiter). The best houses for Sani are 3, 5, 6, 11 and to traverse one sign by progression Sani takes 4 11/12 years. The third house will relate to boyhood period; the 5th house will relate to 20-25 years. Sani will be in Ascendant radix and form an aspect on 10th house. For the 21st year (i.e., 20 years past) the Ascendant will be in Sagittarius and Saturn will be in the 12th. Taking one year more, Saturn will be in 10th from Ascendant; thus 22nd year will be the fitting period.

Periods of promotion or advancement will be when the lord of 10th in the radix occupies favourable houses from his own as also from the progressed Ascendant, unless it clashes with 6, 8 or 12 from the radix ascendant. In this case, Sun is the lord of 10th. Let us take 3 signs per year roughly as the rate for progression of Ascendant.

(Continued on page 128)

The Proof of Astrology

BY Y. MAHALINGA SASTRI, M.A., B.L.

"THE proof or the reproof?" asks the Cynic, "for, is there not greater reproof than proof of astrology?" Long ago, poet Nilakantha Dikshita put these words in the mouth of Satyacharya, in his drama called Nalacharita :—

प्रकृतिः सा किल नाम प्रमादजोयः
फलेषि संवादः ।
शतशोऽपि दृश्यमानः संवादः
काकतालीयः ॥

Satyacharya is one of the most respected ancient authorities on astrology. Varahamihira refers with deference to Satyacharya. Bhattotpala often quotes from Satyacharya. Unfortunately his work is lost to us. He stands like a colossus between the great Rishis, Parasara and Bhrigu, and the non-Rishi exponents of the science like Varahamihira. Many believe that if Satyacharya's lost works were recovered the credit of astrology might be considerably enhanced as a science. Satya is also believed to be the propounder of the Nadi system of prediction. The available Nadis deal with examples. What will not the devoted student of astrology give for the recovery of a work dealing with the principles of Nadi prediction?

Satyacharya belonged to the forgotten ages and poet Nilakantha introduced him with much aptness and with pardonable anachronism as the court astrologer of Nala, King of the Nishadha country. The life of Nala is narrated in the Mahabharata, Vana Parva. He belonged to the pre-Pandava age which is the same as pre-Vyasa age. Nilakantha Dikshita evidently thought Satyacharya so ancient as to be associated with such a hoary past. But the calumny against astrology put in his mouth sounds modern. Who does not enjoy a fling at astrology and at the same time who has not fallen a victim to its alluring charms? Astrology is beloved of the world, both petted and teased. Mr. K. S. Venkataramani who was a thoughtful contributor to modern astrology (being the author of the Highways of Astrology) was once approached by a gentleman with a dissembled lack of faith in astrology inconsistent with his urgent solicitude for his horoscope being scanned, and was harangued to abashment by the orator.

Y. MAHALINGA SASTRI

Scanned by www.sagarishisastrology.com For Preserving Dr B V Raman's Work

This ill-natured aspersion-mongering attitude towards astrology is inherent in humanity and is not inconsistent with its susceptibility to the allurements of the science. There is great wisdom in Bhavabhuti's saying:

यथा स्त्रीणां तथा वाचां साधुत्वे
दुर्जनो जनः ॥

The world glibly assails the reputation of women but at the same time is incapable of escaping from Eve's magic spell. Repulsion and attraction work like the ball throw and coexist. It is sadism to treat astrology so uncharitably, but is not sadism the reflex of mental enslavement? When Satyacharya is made to deplore his profession by the poet, the latter touches the chord of an universal and eternal human trait. Thus, the hoariest of astrologers complained against the ill-natured shortsightedness of the world in its apprehension of the merits and value of the science of astrology—"When somewhere the astrologer inadvertently blunders and gives a wrong prediction, that instance is eagerly snatched at for being broadcast as proving the rule that astrology is a hoax self-confessed; while hundreds of successful predictions under the very nose of the calumniator are disposed of by him contemptuously as merely accidental coincidences like the crow perching and the palm fruit dropping down."

Much truth is compressed in these words. Firstly, the great Acharya does not lay claim to absolute infallibility for the science. Next, he attributes the lapses not to any imperfections of the science but to the inadvertence of the professor of the science. And, last but not least, he lays stress on the large volume of success which the practice of astrology has shown in all ages, which in effect furnishes the key to the mystery of its survival through the ages in the face of all arrant, malicious disparagement. The words kila (किल) and nama (नाम) are exclamations indicative of painful surprise and derision to the tune of "look at the injustice and the absurdity".

Astrology belongs to the fraternity of sciences and has been treated as such in the books. Its literature is vast and varied. A complete mastery of it in all its ramifications is difficult of attainment. As it probes into the future of lives and as future lies in the womb of time, its practice brightens only with a spiritual ray lent to it. To release the illumination required, the practitioner must be one who has cultivated a spiritual frame of mind. He must be a man of character and piety. His reliance upon divine grace as the source of his strength must be sincere and entire. It is needless to say that such a person will be all humility and simplicity. A personality endowed with these marks of distinction is the sine quo non for the attunement of the trained intellect to spiritual levels whence proceed those instructions which guide aright the practitioner. The horoscope which furnishes the data upon which predictions have to be built is a maze pursuing which one coldly scientific and without the purer insight, gets hopelessly entangled in the meshes of his own erudition; a mystic script is presented to him for being deciphered and he racks his brains against it in vain and falters to pick up the way among the luminous bodies—and does that not look like a paradox?

To a pretender whose noise proceeds from the surface, who hops about with desperate courage and tumbles to his own shame and the amusement of others, the horoscope is an attractive plaything to dabble with. But to a sincere student, the study is most exacting and it is one to thousand that he feels his feet planted on firm ground.

Even in the case of the other sciences it cannot be claimed without some qualification that calculation never misses. The chances of error in astrology are greater for obvious reasons. Firstly, its projects comprehend a sphere above the material, the visible and the tangible. Secondly, this circumstance itself has given rise to multifarious methods of approach which make one stagger. The regions of astrology seem to lie beyond the limit to which human mind can strain itself. Hence very learned and tireless explorers were satisfied to accept results much shorter than the perfect goal. They conceded margins for the human frailties also. It is a wonder how even with such limitations astrology has thriven and given satisfaction to a large extent to unfailing streams of its clientele throughout the ages.

Varahamihira defines clearly the scope of the science of astrology and it contains a warning that there should be no mistakening of it. When the promise is circumscribed purposely, it is foolish to magnify expectations according to one's own fancy, on the one hand, and ridiculous, on the other hand, to turn away with disgust at the supposed failings, not to speak of the hostility of the inveterate reviler.

This colossal, pathetic ignorance which links astrology with the fatalistic notions are of foreign origin and not germane to the Indian outlook on life. Varahamihira's definition sets at rest this controversy also. Let me quote the verse which is the cornerstone of the thesis :

कर्मार्जितं पूर्वभवे सदादि यत्तस्य पक्तिं समभिव्यनक्ति ।
in the बृहज्जातक.
यदुपजितमन्य जन्मानि शुभाशुभं तस्य
कर्मणः पक्तिं ।
व्यजयति शास्त्रमेतत् तमसि द्रव्याणि
दीप इव ॥
in the लघुजातक.

Saravali explains :—

जातकमितिप्रसिद्धं यल्लोके तदिह
कीर्त्यते होरा ।
अथवा दैवविमर्शन पर्यायः
खल्वयं शब्दः ॥
अर्थार्जने सहायः पुरुषाणामापदर्णवे पोतः ।
यात्रा समये मन्त्री जातकमपहा
यनास्त्परः ॥

An astrologer is called Daivagna (दैवज्ञ) or Daivachintaka (दैवचिन्तक) in Sanskrit.

Daivam is some unknown thing which directs and controls human life. For one who is predominantly mundane in his outlook and limits his intellectual speculations to the known and the accountable through cold logic, it is only the chance-element which lies beyond his calculations and which plays a large part in accelerating or retarding the fruits of human endeavours and always waits round the corner to surprise him either agreeably or disagreeably.

It is God's beneficence or wrath to a non-Hindu believer. To a Hindu, whose religious beliefs are firmly rooted on the Karma theory Daivam represents the accumulated effects of his past good deeds or misdeeds, potential in reacting upon him like a boomerang, tracking him through his rebirths and dispensing its favours and frowns in the course of his life as and when it finds opportunities of making itself felt. Innumerable have been the past births of a Jiva (soul) and countless have been his actions which had produced the Adrishta or unseen potential forces which accumulated in vast storages. The propelling power for a single birth is generated by a group of the active principles of the storage which gathers the momentum for the nonce fortuitously or according to our inscrutable law. The Jiva takes birth with a definite credit and debit account which shall work itself out, until upon its exhaustion his earthly career ends.

Scanned with CamScanner Digitized by eGangotri Sarayu Trust. Preserve Digital Knowledge Work

The Jiva during his lifetime becomes responsible for more and more Karma of the good or the bad or the mixed sort and adds to the mighty storage of his past Karma. Again, the impulsion comes and he takes another birth. He cannot remain for a moment without action and action will have its inevitable rebound. Thus, the hoardings grow more and more while consumption works the negative process. This rotation is interminably repeated and is technically called Samsara and is compared to a wheel in the books of philosophy. The Jiva unable to extricate himself from the complex web with which he has surrounded himself, goes on his round helplessly, mostly believing that the fulfilment of his life is within his reach, but really being lured by the ever receding mirage. It is all an impenetrable nexus of darkness which is a compound of ignorance and illusion, in which he wallows sometimes conscious of his plight, but often times glutted with a false sense of security and comfortable existence. Poet Nilakantha Dikshita deplored the lot of the Jiva treading aimlessly and helplessly the endless path of Samsara, in this pathetic exclamation.

कुत आगतं नजाने कनुवागन्तव्यमिदमपि
न जाने ।
सञ्चरसि केदानं संसारपथे महातमसि ॥

"I do not know where I came from; neither do I know whither I am destined to go. This is all that I know at present. I am wandering in the labyrinths of Samsara groping in the unrelieved, all-embracing, interminable darkness (ignorance of the nature of my real being)".

The Jiva does not recollect who he was in his previous birth, neither can he ascertain where he will be or what he will be after death. He cannot explain why he was born in such and such place and such and such surroundings, in such and such family to such and such parents, inheriting certain definite traditions, culture and religion, all which he begins to claim as his own and cling to with tenacity when he grows up. He is unable to account for several happenings in his life, some happy and some unhappy, not always according to his expectations or having any alignment with the sort of effort he has been putting forth or aspirations he has been nourishing. In his own case and in the case of others, the problem of evil is insoluble. Striving for happiness he plunges into misery sometimes and sometimes happiness comes thronging to him to his agreeable surprise. He is puzzled to see the scheme of things unravel itself before him as if through a mysterious agency, having little or no connection with his planned endeavour. Sometimes, when he reflects, there seems to be some logical connection between certain tendencies inherent in him and certain results which he obtains, as cause and effect; but he is at a loss to know who planted these tendencies in his soul. These tendencies and certain circumstances which act as springboard to his life, make action inevitable and he works and toils reaping unpremeditated results good or bad. The momentum is supplied by the passions which are boisterous and like the winds of Ulysses are pent up in our invisible, intangible entity called the mind and having a tendency to break loose of their own accord at odd moments.

Astrology purports to be a science capable of throwing light to relieve the dense darkness through which the Jiva is eternally and desperately struggling, and promises to be his guide warning him of the dangers ahead and encouraging him to ply vigorously through fruitful courses indicated. Varahamihira's illustration is graphic

व्यञ्जयति शास्त्रमेतत् तमसि द्रव्याणि
दीप इव ।

This science illumines your pathway like a lamp taken with you to guide you in darkness and helps you to see which things lie on the road—it may be a treasure; it may be a cobra; it may be a pit; or it may be an eminence—a thorny bush or a flower bed. How to react and behave towards these revelations depends upon you. You are born with your Vasanas—you may furret for a root and neglect a gem; you may beat the cobra or invite its ire on you. You may adventure into the throny bush or seek the flower bed. Your tastes, your capacity for discernment and correct choice and a hundred other things determine your reaction to the vouchsafed illumination. But the action is yours—that is called Purushakara (पुरुषकार). What is already there on the pathway is due to Daiva (दैव).

With or without the illumination of astrology, the Jiva struggles on its path governed by the Vasanas acquired in previous births. These moral, spiritual and intellectual tastes, tendencies, abilities and equipment are also indicated in the language of the planets if only one has trained oneself to decipher it. The Western adherents of the science lay greater stress on this aspect of it and have displayed wonderful flair for investigations on that line.

Mr. K. S. Venkataramani who had a clear grasp of the subject both from the Western and the Eastern points of view, declares in his introduction to his Highways of Astrology as follows:—"Properly understood and applied, astrology is a great help to individual progress and collective welfare. It tries to interpret the temperament and tendencies, character and ability and the results arising therefrom in daily life in terms of the most probable lines of unfoldment of the latent possibilities".

Scanned by Dhruv Sanjeevi Astrology Portal To Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

Mr. Venkataramani further goes on to state that a correct knowledge of the future is a dynamic changing force—it acts magnetically on your mind and the springs of action and certainly alters the normal course of running which it would otherwise have had.

Saravali speaks in the same strain—"the horoscope is the means of Daivavimarsana (दैवविमर्शन) an investigation into the latent potentialities called Daivam, which can be helpful in the matter of one's acquisition of wealth, which can serve one as a ship to cross the ocean of calamities and which can give one the most intelligent and useful guidance for one's travels, like an expert adviser. A knowledge of the indications of the horoscope is thus a great and invaluable asset to the native who is thrust upon this earth and impelled by karmic forces to go through a drift of life under prescribed environment.

The scope for individual efforts to mitigate misery and enhance happiness is also inherently conceded in the division of Karma into three classes, namely Dridha, Adridha and Dridhadridha. Some karmic forces which have begun to operate on the life of the individual may be very difficult to surmount or circumvent. Others may be easily surmountable; and a third variety capable of being countered with persistent application of palliatives.

* The Saravali says:

दशाप्रभेदेन विचिन्तयेद्दृढं दृढेतरं
चाष्टकवर्ग गोचरैः ।
दृढादृढं योगवशेन चिन्तयेत् इतित्रिधा
जातक सूक्ष्मसंग्रहः ॥

The inclemencies of the Dasas are peremptory and hard to resist; what evil is indicated by Ashtakavarga and Gochara can be easily counteracted by means of Pariharas or palliatives. The yogas are more difficult to combat, but can be placated by extraordinary propitiatory processes. This dictum is an extenuation of the universal law.

अवश्यं अनुभोक्तव्यं कृतंकर्म शुभाशुभं ।
नाभुक्तं क्षीयदे कर्म कल्पकोटी शतैरपि ॥

The consequences of action good or bad can never be evaded. Action once done cannot be liquidated except by submission to its rebounds, even though eons may elapse.

A grasp of these liberal principles is necessary for a comprehension of the optimism of the Hindu attitude in the matter of the endless struggle of the human being exerting his Purushakara to avoid, neutralize or weaken Pratikula daiva. This basic notion that man is not a helpless victim to predestination but an architect of his own destiny to some extent at least, is further supported by such statements as the following :—

दशापहाराष्टकवर्गगोचरे ग्रहेषु नृणां
विषमस्थितेष्वपि ।
जपैश्च तथ्रीतिकरैः सुकर्मभिः करोति
शान्तिं व्रतदान वन्दनैः ॥

The Phaladeepika in this verse upholds the validity of expiatory and propitiatory rites and ceremonies for the mitigation or avoidance of the evil results of planets maliciously disposed as rulers of Dasa periods, or in the Ashtakavarga and the Gochara. It recommends for the welfare of the native Japakarma, Santhikarma, Vratanushtana, Dhana and Vandana (which includes pilgrimages, prayers and dedications). Men learned in the Pariharas will be able to prescribe courses which are appropriate to the relevant planets and other conditions holding out the menace. It is noteworthy that Kalidasa says that Kanva made a pilgrimage to Prabhasa Tirtha to propitiate the contrary Daiva for the sake of Sakuntala.

दैवमस्याः प्रतिकूलं शमयितुं प्रभाशा
तीर्थम् गतः ।

It is further stated in Phaladeepika that high ethical living and spirituality can be far more effective in overcoming the evil disposition of the planets than all the ceremonial measures of remedy.

अहिंसकस्य दान्तस्य धर्मार्जितधनस्यच ।
सर्वदा नियमस्थस्य सदा सानुग्रहाग्रहाः ॥

To one who observes Ahimsa, who has controlled his passions, who never swerves from the path of virtue and righteousness in acquiring wealth and who regulates his life by strict rules of self-discipline, the planets invariably soften and incline to beneficence. Astrology studied with a broader outlook and not as a means to satisfy immediate curiosities and cravings and to minister to limited gratifications of short-term ambitions and aspirations, reveals itself gradually as the handmaid of Dharma Sastra and Vedanta and upholds high ethics and spiritual regeneration as the ideals of life. In that larger perspective the ennobling magnificence of the science lends a ray to the illumination of the cosmic mystery and surrounds itself with an aroma of philosophical eminence.

(Continued on page 135)

*(This verse is quoted in the commentaries on Brihat Jataka as from Saravali, though it is not found in the N.S.P. edition).

Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Initiative to Preserve Dr B V Raman's Work

Astrological Significance of Basic Instincts

BY DR. W. J. TUCKER, D.Sc., PH.D.

Part I: From Combat to Curiosity

IN an article entitled The Basic Instincts of Mankind, I introduced to astrology for the first time certain basic principles which emerge from the correspondence of the twelve signs of the zodiac with the twelve basic instincts which are:

1. Combat (The Aggressive Instinct) ... ... Aries
2. Submission (The Surrender or Acquiescence Instinct) ... ... Taurus
3. Repulsion (The Instinct of Aversion) ... Gemini
4. Paternal-Maternal (The Paternal Instinct) ... Cancer
5. Acquisition (The Acquisitive Instinct) ... Leo
6. Curiosity (The Investigatory Instinct) ... Virgo
7. Food-seeking (The Instinct to Assuage Physical, Mental and Spiritual Hunger) ... Libra
8. Mating (The Sexual Instinct) ... ... Scorpio
9. Self-assertion (The Evaluatory Self-Expression Instinct) ... ... Sagittarius
10. Laughter (The 'Sense of Honour' Instinct) ... Capricorn
11. Construction (The Creative Instinct) ... Aquarius
12. Escape (The Flight Instinct) ... ... Pisces

The above instincts comprise the raison d'etre of an individual. They fashion the arc of his destiny, form the bricks of his character, give vital expression to his personality, contain the seeds of his triumphs as well as of his failures, and are the causes of all his follies.

One of the fruits of the researches of Sigmund Freud and of the highly-specialised labours of his followers (the vast modern army of psycho-analysts) is the fact that certain Oedipus conflicts* which occur in the unconscious mind and which psychiatrists believe to be the direct originating causes of some forms of psycho-neuroses and psychoses, are due to inhibitions of certain of the basic instincts producing what Freud termed "repressed tendencies". Thus, the psycho-analysts act on the theory that by unravelling these buried 'memory traces' and establishing the nature and cause of their formation, the mental therapy applied by the process of psycho-analysis itself, plus the revelation to the patient of the real nature of the incidents occurring in boyhood which originated the inhibitions and complexes, will have the effect of removing the inhibitions, thus giving the repressed instinct or instincts full opportunity to express themselves freely—with the result that the patient will be cured of his psychosis or psycho-neurosis.

This sort of psychological over-specialisation, however, leads to the establishment of an implicit belief in the minds of psycho-analysts that the freeing of the instincts from all kinds of inhibitions is the real aim to be sought after. Thus, unconsciously the psycho-analysts come to believe in free self-expression of the instincts as a very good thing. Indeed, once they formed that conviction, they lost no time in selling the idea of the education authorities—with the result that we now have foisted upon us the 'free self-expression' ideas which have given rise to the "blackboard jungles", to the craze for "youth clubs" organised on the Nazi model in the belief that that is what is needed to solve the problem of "adjustment to society" and so make individuals "good mixtures", but which is actually promoting and encouraging the formation of Teddy boys, gangs of violent hoodlums, hooligans and vandals. Also, in the belief that it is possible to correct and adjust the Libido by teaching sex in schools instead of leaving that responsibility where it rightfully belongs, namely to the parents of the children, psychologists are witnessing the chickens coming home to roost in the almost daily instances which are coming to light revealing that children leaving the sex-class have frequently made for the nearest fields and woods in order to make a further exploration of their own and to try out the object-lesson they have been given at school.

Obviously, some very ugly fruit is in process of ripening, and signs are not wanting that psychiatrists may eventually discover that there are worse evils to be attributed to the basic instincts fashioning mankind than appear in the psychoses and psycho-neuroses with which they are familiar.

Scanned by www.spiritualastrology.com The Astrological Psychology Network

* The Oedipus complex may be described as a conglomeration of phantasies and associated effects which leave 'memory traces' in the unconscious mind derivable from alleged impulses in babyhood to have intercourse with the parent of the opposite sex. Freudists believe that the complex includes phantasies associated with the desire to destroy the rival parent. Impulses to have intercourse with the parent of the opposite sex is called a positive Oedipus complex, whereas impulses to have intercourse with the parent of the same sex is termed the negative Oedipus complex.

On the day on which I am penning these lines appear two news-items which confirm this impression.

The first is a complaint by the authorities of the Victoria and Albert Museum (in London) made by letter to the headmasters and principals of more than 50 art schools in London and the provinces, protesting against the behaviour of the students of both sexes who have broken heads of plaster casts, have been utterly careless with paint and paint-brushes, have scattered litter and clothing on the parquet flooring, have placed their feet on newly-painted cases, have emptied dirty paint water into porcelain bowls, and who have been behaving in a generally sloppy manner in the galleries. In the words of the museum spokesman: "They do not seem to have any regard or respect for works of art. The new trend towards self-expression seems to be the cause". And the students complained of are our modern art students!

The second news-item reports that Mr. J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation has described the alarming increase in juvenile delinquency as "a national tragedy which threatens the future of America". There has been a fresh flare-up in gang warfare by youths in several large cities, particularly New York; and 42% of the country's crimes—according to Mr. Hoover—were last year committed by boys and girls under the age of 18, half of which were committed by youths under 15. All of which makes one wonder just how long it must be before Mr. Hoover and the education authorities wake up to the fact that it is in the craze for self-expression (?) that the cause of all this lies, and that a perfectly simple remedy is available, namely to send the charlatan psychologists packing and to re-institute discipline in the schools. For it is the quack psychologists who are making morons of the children.

The real point I wish to make is that certain kinds of inhibitions to the basic instincts are absolutely necessary if mankind is to continue to survive at all. In the past, the 'memory traces' producing the unconscious safeguarding inhibitions have been imparted by the religious teachings and by the censor action of the "super-ego" which laymen once used to term the conscience! It is solely due to the widespread lapsing of religious instruction (which alone can intensify the safeguarding action of the conscience by installing inhibitions in the unconscious mind), plus the introduction into the educational sphere of the socialist philosophy of 'free self-expression', that we are now-a-days being confronted with ever-growing masses of violent ruthless individuals flowing together by virtue of the unconscious gravity which psychologists choose to call "the Social or Gregarious Instinct" under the banners of communism and socialism.* For this combination of circumstances is producing men in whom the aggressive, repulsive and self-assertive instincts are rendered totally uninhibited in accordance with the design of the men at the top who are using such people as pawns.

In the Third Reich, Goebbels was the master-psychologist who taught Hitler that the readiest way to master the people was to destroy the Ten Commandments. Soviet Russia—ever eager to learn—speedily found out the efficacy of Goebbel's methods and incorporated the ideas in their own technique. And Communist China, not to be outdone, began to specialise in their "brain-washing" technique. All of which is psychology run mad. But, of course, any science can be misapplied, and it is open to the budding chemist to blow himself up in his laboratory if he wants to! He need only be careless in mixing nitric acid with glycerine to do the trick! But the moral of all this is that mankind cannot afford to be any more careless with psychology than with nitroglycerine or atomic energy, for the consequences of such carelessness will be deplorable.

In my previous article, I pointed out that the repulsion instinct lies at the root of the psychology of all individuals who make manifest an open aversion for the existing order of things in cultivating hatred of any form of institution symbolised by such key-words as "captitalism", "colonialism", "imperialism" and the like. And I would like to emphasise that what is emerging is, and must ever be, the product of the completely uninhibited expression of the repulsion instinct when its primary

Scanned by www.theastrologicalmagazine.com For Personal Use Only Reproduction Prohibited Work

*It should be unnecessary to mention that the above citation of communism and socialism is not being prompted by any form of political bias. The statement results from an objective study of the prime psychological forces which are inspiring the philosophy upon which the named creeds are based. For undeniably the compulsive instinct of adherents is the aggressive instinct and the repulsion instinct inspired by greed and envy of all persons of wealth and social distinction who thereby become targets for the individual collective and communal hatreds which are directed against them. Indeed, the intellectuals who are controlling the movements are using collectivism as a weapon; for they have unconsciously discovered psychological means for removing the unconscious censorship which inhibits the free expression of certain powerful instinctual compulsions from the minds of those they have ensnared. They call this process "indoctrination", and they re-employ the indoctrinated as instruments to indoctrinate others, shrewdly calculating to conquer and enslave all the peoples of the earth by such means.

safeguard (which laymen would term "toleration") is removed from its inhibiting task. It is the presence of this uninhibited instinct which solely accounts for the persistency of cells of communism the individuals of which, no matter whether they are working underground in our midst within the framework of trade unions, or openly in the jungle of Malaya or the swamps of Indo-China, abate not one scrap their fundamental aversion but who keep alive for ever the malice and hatred which are implicit in the instinct of repulsion.

In the matter of the combat instinct, the training of boxers is devised to remove as completely as possible any inhibitions restraining the full expression of the aggressive instinct. With the result that boxers develop the mentality of killers in the same way as commandos do who are trained to kill by means of every scientific method known to man. For boxers, as regards their mentality, are in no wise different from the old-time duellists who killed their opponent with the rapier or the sabre. There are rules to be observed in both games, but the object is the same, and the survivor is he who is least inhibited in his aggressive instinct!

Thus we have to ask ourselves the question: Can mankind afford to lose the inhibition built up in the unconscious mind by the fifth commandment: Thou shalt not kill? To remove that inhibition is psychology run mad.

Invariably we find the combat instinct, the repulsion instinct, and the self-assertion instinct, dominant in the horoscopes of all murderers. Dr. Buck Ruxton (born March 27, 1898) had the Sun, Mercury and Venus in Aries, directly stimulating the combat instinct. At the same time he had Saturn (jealousy) and Uranus (violence) in Sagittarius to colour the emotional urges of his self-expression instinct. And he had the Moon and Neptune in Gemini to sway the instinct of repulsion. Ruxton slew his wife for a motive of jealousy, and his maid-servant because she was a witness of his crime.

George Stoner (born November 19, 1916) had Jupiter in Aries governing the combat instinct—a planetary influence capable of facilitating the erection of a safeguarding inhibition had he but had an ounce of religious instruction. But he had Mars in Sagittarius—a planet which gave the emotional colouring of lust to the self-assertion instinct; and he had Saturn (jealousy) in Leo, the sign which controls the acquisitive instinct, the influence of which induced him to regard Rattenbury's wife as his own (Stoner's) special property! In a jealous fit, Stoner slew his employer Rattenbury because he could not bear the idea of allowing Rattenbury to depart on holiday with his wife!

The mass-murderer John Halliday Chrisite had the Sun and Mercury in Aries (combat instinct). But he had Venus and the Moon in Pisces (escape instinct). For that reason, Christie's killer instinct was to some extent inhibited. Although a strangler, he was yet unable to apply direct violence to dispose of his victims and had first to stupefy them with gas. Furthermore, his escape instinct obliged him to pre-determine the means for escaping detection by concealing the bodies, even if this meant giving evidence against a man on trial for his life for a murder in which Christie had undoubtedly participated as accomplice. Also Christie had Saturn and Uranus in Sagittarius, betraying the emotional colouring of his self-assertion instinct which was that of a Freudian psychopath.

At this point it is perhaps pertinent to inform readers unversed in psychology that the basic instincts and the inhibitions controlling them, are both unconscious. They belong to the unconscious mind and transit their effects in the form of powerful compulsion which cannot always be modified or controlled by the conscious mind. For the real controller is the unconscious censor whose job it is to interpose the right inhibitions. However, when all inhibitions are removed from a basic instinct (as sometimes happens in certain forms of insanity) anything can happen—such as when a maniac accuses a neighbour of turning on the radio for the purpose of destroying him by wireless waves, and then proceeds to smash the radio and attack the neighbour—moved by the powerful compulsion of the aggressive instinct. And it may be remarked that the compulsion can develop an incredibly powerful form is the instinct be at the same time reinforced by the emotion of hate. Under such circumstances it is of no use to argue that the maniac could have controlled his frenzy by means of his conscious mind, because any such idea is fallacious. The real brake is the unconscious censor; and if that censor has taken leave of absence when he is most needed, it is just too bad. However, it is precisely because the action of the charlatanical psychologists who have urged upon the education authorities the efficacy of their "free self-expression" ideas is having the pernicious effect of removing certain important inhibitions which it is the function of the unconscious censor to impose, thus paving the way for the unbridled release of powerful compulsions emanating from certain basic instincts, that it to be based on physical force—"Accept this religion or there is the sword which will remove the head from the neck or there are instruments of torture like fire and dungeon to compel an acceptance of religion." Religion failed to help humanity in man's life; it ceased to be a force for man's advancement. Religion even brought calamities to man. Instead of man surrendering to the Will of God, God became subject to the protection of man, and God's will was determined by man. Instead of religion controlling and regulating man's life, man began to control and regulate religion. That is why we find that religion collapsed before science. Such a religion is only Theology and not Theo-logy. But astrology ever remained astro-logy. The latter element in both the terms presupposes study, investigation, critical approach, clear understanding—all leading to conviction, as opposed to belief based on blind faith.

Scanned by www.sabiancentre.com for Research Purposes Only

When we understand the two terms in this way, then it will be found that Theology and Astrology are only the two phases of the same system of thought, of the same discipline. In India, theology developed as a rationalistic system of thought, and so was astrology. Both went side by side as sciences, as Vedas. The fundamental basis is the doctrine that the whole universe is an organism in which each part is related to every other part in a systematic way and that there is neither an accident nor a personal caprice in any event in the world. The investigation into the ultimate principle of this organic system of the Universe is religion, and the investigation into the relation and influence of any part to any other part is carried on in astrology. I do not know whether I can say that religion is the physiology while astrology is the anatomy of the world organism. I can assert without any fear of contradiction that both religion and astrology refer to the same subject-matter, only they have different aspects within their respective spheres.

In India, both religion and astrology developed as a result of the operation of a rationalistic intellect, as a result of the efforts of thinking minds, to find out order and system in the world where sometimes man is faced with what appear to be mere chances and of even freaks in nature. If there had been only chances in nature there would have developed no science; if, on the other hand, everything is found and experienced as orderly in the world, then too there is no scope for a science to grow. But man experiences some kind of systematic order in the events of the world to a great extent, while man is not able to find the same system in a large number of other cases. A rationalistic mind, a scientific genius, postulates a theory that what is found as order in nature must be the real feature in the world and what are experienced as accidents and as freaks must have appeared so as a result of the limitations of man's mind. There is another feeling inherent in all rationalistic minds that man's mind is capable of understanding everything that is real in the world, and that to speak of things beyond man's mental powers in an absolute way is a contradiction in terms. If there is an order and a system in the whole world, that is what is meant by saying that the world is an organic system. The investigation into this system as a whole culminated in a rationalistic system of religious thought in India and the investigation into the relation of parts of this system to the other parts, especially the relation of the parts nearest to man, to parts far removed, developed into the science of astrology.

If science does not recognise astrology as a science, the defect is with science and not with astrology. There is no astrology without a doctrine of the whole of the Universe being held together into an organic unity by some super-intelligence. But moden science does not even accept intelligence as anything of importance in the constitution and in the operations of the world. Life is an accident and intelligence is only an aspect of this accident, according to science. Science may proclaim itself as the saviour of humanity from the clutches of religion and church and priestly heirarchy. But modern science is only an aspect of the obsessions of old religions, so far as various theories of the science are concerned, and this insignificance of man is one such theory which is only a survival and continuation of religious beliefs. There is also the political background that helped the religious beliefs to be preserved and continued in modern sciences.

According to some religions, man is subordinate to God and man as such has no independent place in the world. Man is only on this earth that has been created by God, according to such a religion; beyond of the earth it is all the region of angels and other super-natural beings. In politics also, the Emperor alone counts and the life of the individual is subject to the whims of the Emperor, according to the conditions that obtained in the regions where modern sciences are growing. In such a political set-up, man and his affairs are confined to his home, and beyond of that, it is the sphere of the Emperor in which man has no hand. It is the accumulation of such religious beliefs and political practices that has resulted in many a theory in modern science relating to man and his life.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com | Preserve the R.V. Raman Work

I do not know whether the conditions, religious and political (both were held together side by side through mutual co-operation) that prevailed in the countries where modern sciences have their origin and early growth, prior to the advent of science, had at any earlier times prevailed on the Indian soil. There is no record on the authority of which such a question can be answered. All that we know from the earliest records found relating to India, is that there was no time either recorded or to be deduced from the records, when in India, man was subordinate to any external agency, either in heaven or on earth. Even in the earliest literary records in India, man's supremacy is recognised, and this is what can be deduced from such records regarding the conditions of much earlier period extending over a very long time. There are powers other than man in the world; there may be Gods. But Gods were as much under the law of the world as men, and man was not subordinate to any power other than such law of the world.

There is no difference in kind between man's intellectual powers and any super-intellect that may have planned and worked out the world design. There may be a difference in range. Man can design and execute; similarly, some super-intelligence might have had a plan for the world order and may also have worked out the design. If there is such a super-intelligenee, that is only a part of the Universe and not something outside of the Universe and dominating the Universe. That super-intelligence, if there is such a one, is self-disciplined from within itself, and all the separate intelligences exhibiting themselves as human intelligences, are only manifestations of that super-intelligence and its operations. When sciences developed in such a soil, sciences took shapes far different from the sciences of today that grew up and took shape in soils with different manures and different climatic conditions. In lands where the yields are limited, any exuberant growth may be suspected as abnormalities. That is the present view about astrology in the eyes of modern scientists. Religion and astrology in India exhibit features of the luxuriant growth of human intellect with rationalism and with a sense of freedom, and should not be mixed up with obsessions and superstitions that have grown up in other regions.

It is not a National Science that is being developed in the National Laboratories of India; they are working on some outworn beliefs in an alien science in the National Laboratories. The alien science is tinged with the religious beliefs and political practices of an earlier period in those alien regions. "I am right, my party is right; all others are wrong." This is an inherent element in political practices, and in science also we find the belief that what is called life is only on our earth and everything else in the universe form the objective reality. The only difference is in the relative importance; in politics the "I" and the "My Party" are important while in science life on this earth is of no moment. There is a National Science which is not allowed entry into our National Laboratories. And nothing better can be expected when the destinies of the nation are placed in the hands of persons who are Indian only by name and nativity, while they are foreign in training and ideals and in the make of the personality.

I am not a sentimentalist to worship things "National" as a Fetish. I have never countenanced the propagonda for the development of National Medicine, the Ayurvedam, as a separate disciple distinct from medical science. What I want is only this that there are to be recognised certain achievements by our ancients within the field of the medical science and that such aspects of the science must be correlated to the study of the science as an entirety. I do not want the Indian medical system to be developed distinct from general medical system. In general science also, there is a possible "National Aspect" brought about by the environment in which the scientific enterprises in the country were undertaken and were developed. Modern science developed in a certain environment alien to the Indian environment of rationalism and freedom, and to this extent the sciences developed in our National Laboratories are alien sciences.

A change over in our National Laboratories from the alien set-up to a national set-up is productive of various beneficial results to both sciences and humanity. Science now knows only certain behaviours, certain movements and changes, and does not know the whence and the why and the whither of those behaviours. Such factors come within the purview of only man's intellect directly in contact with the things, and not at all within the purview of apparatus, however perfect they be. If man and his life and his intellect are only accidents in the structure of the Universe, it is well known that accidents cannot grasp things that are absolute in their nature. Intellect aided by instruments can grasp only the surface of things and not the things themselves. If man's intellect is identical with the absolute in the form of a super-intellect that designed the world and that works out the design, or if at least man's intellect is a manifestation of that super-intellect, then and then alone man's intellect has a chance and a possibility of knowing the things as they are. And if some super-intellect is accepted behind the world-phenomena as a whole, then one cannot resist the advent of Astrology and Theology as among the most honoured of sciences. And I have already said that Astrology and Theology are only different sides of the same truth.

Scanned by www.vedicastrologer.org For Preservation Purpose Only

There is no system of thought in India that does not accept such a super-intellect behind the phenomena of the world as a whole. There may be differences in details, but on the absolute question they are all agreed. It is an investigation into the nature of man's experience that led to the postulaion of a super-intellect behind the phenomena of the world. Either we must say, as modern science asserts, that man's intellect is an accident and as such is not a basis for any deductions about things beyond the normal experience of man, or we must assert that just as in man's normal experience it is found that all movements have to be traced to human initiative, there must be some initiative in the form of some super-intellect that has started the world process.

With such a background let me try to explain how a National Laboratory can tackle the problem of atoms. It was Democritus who first propounded the very crude theory of atoms as the ultimate basis of the material world. His doctrine was discarded by Aristotle and other later Greek philosophers; but the theory was revived, and till very recently the atom was accepted in sciences as the smallest particle of matter. In our own day, the atom has been split up, and we have electrons and other forms as the smallest material particle. Now, one has to ask the question whether, at least theoretically, an electron cannot be split up into smaller parts. Scientists say that an electron has a size, spacial extension, and they speak of the size of an electron in terms of the size of ordinary material objects. An electron can be indivisible if an electron by its very nature is proved to be so. But what has a size cannot, by that nature, be indivisible; it must be otherwise. Size means an inside and an outside, a right and a left, a front and a back, and a top and a bottom. When there is, thus, a middle between extensions, there must be the theoretical possibility of a further division into at least eight parts. Or scientists must say that at the stage of an electron, matter has been split up into parts that have lost their spacial extension.

Or, the impossibility of further division must be due to the limitations of human ability to continue the process of division any further. But is human limitation the test for an objective nature? What was not possible, the division of an atom, became a possibility; why should not a further division be possible at some later stage? The limitation of man's ability to break up an atom was due to the fact that nothing by way of a tool was available that could penetrate through the infinitesimally small interval between an electron and and an electron within an atom. But a particular ray was found capable of doing this. Why should not man's intellect devise means for sending a new dagger even through the theoretically possible, parts of the electrons?

According to Indian rationalism, a further division of a material particle by man becomes impossible only when the parts cease to have spacial extension. That does not mean that such a part has no parts of its own of which it is a composite; it means simply that man's ability stops with the diappearance of spacial extension. When a material object is divided into parts, the division is into numerical fractions. But the spacial extension is reduced through a process of subtraction. When there is a reduction of anything into fractions, there is no stage when we arrive at a zero; when the reduction is through a process of subtraction, a stage of zero is inevitable. Thus, when the matter can have parts, its spacial extension can cease to exist. The parts of what has parts, must have parts of their own. Who can handle the parts of the minutest particle devoid of spacial extension to bring them together and form a new whole from those parts? Even a part at the stage when a further division deprives the parts of spacial extension is an effect of its own further parts. Who produced this smallest material particle with a spacial extension, out of its parts that do not have spacial extension themselves? It cannot be man. Who moved the parts to one another so that the effect is produced, who holds them together?

We can plant a tree or a creeper, we can water them, manure them, protect them from weather and do various things to produce some ultimate effects. But can we produce a leaf? How is the matter called a leaf produced and who produced it? It is not merely an absorption of the particles of matter scattered in the air by the plant or the tree. There is a conversion of what was not matter with spacial extension into gross matter with spacial extension and with life. It may be said that this is a natural phenomenon; in the

(Continued on page 70)

Scanned by eGangotri Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

Precession and Indian Eras

BY M. V. RAMAKRISHNAN, M.A., L.T.

THE zodiacal shift of the year beginning with the vernal equinox had been known to the ancient Hindus long, long before it was discovered by the Western astronomers. Keen observers of the heavens as our ancients were, they noted at the commencement of every season what particular asterism or nakshatra was rising before dawn, and located the Sun's position two nakshatras away. If the spring season commenced with the rising of the Krittikas before dawn, it meant that the equinox was in the Mrigasira nakshatra. As they made the observations over thousands of years they found that the vernal equinox was sometimes in Mrigasira, sometimes in Rohini, sometimes in Krittika, sometimes in Bharani and sometimes in Aswini. References there are in abundance in the Vedic literature to this backward march of the vernal equinox along the zodiac, though some of them are put in a legendary garb. The legend of the Mrigasira (or Orion) constellation points distinctly to this phenomenon. Our ancient scriptures give the Sun's position at the commencement of the spring and other seasons at different epochs. We have been told that the vernal equinox was in Punarvasu in about 6000 B.C.; it was in Mrigasira about 4300 B.C.; it was in Rohini about 3500 B.C.; in the Krittikas about 3100 B.C.; in Bharani about 1500 B.C.; and in Aswini in the fifth century A.D.

Not only are there references in our ancient scriptures to this phenomenon, but there are given sufficient data from which to determine the rate. The Siddhantas give such an accurate value as 54" per year as against 50" per year calculated according to modern mathematical methods. The system of Yugas and Mahayugas, Manwantras and Kalpas was based on the rate of precession of the equinoxes. The precessional rate as determined by Parasara is 46".5 and that by Aryabhata 46".2. The period of one revolution of the equinoctial points through the whole of 360° would be 27870 150/155 years according to Parasara and 28051 146/154 years according to Aryabhata. Both of these give the same whole number of 4,320,000 years, which our ancients called a Mahayuga. They also found this to be the period during which the Sun, the Moon and the planets and their nodes performed a whole number of revolutions. The Kaliyuga is a tenth of a Mahayuga: the Dwapara Yuga twice the Kali; the Tretha thrice and Krita four times the Kaliyuga. These four yugas constitute a Mahayuga. At each of the commencing yugas or epochs the Hindu astronomers considered the celestial bodies, the Sun, the Moon and the planets, to be in conjunction. The Siddhantas mention the number of revolutions of the Sun, the Moon and the planets in a Mahayuga (4,320,000 years) and in a Kalpa (4,320,000,000 years). Thus, these huge intervals of time have been based by the ancient Hindus on their newly acquired knowledge of the precessional rate of the equinoxes.

The Saptarishi Yuga, or the cycle of the Seven Rishis, has also for its basis this precessional rate. The equinoctial points, as calculated by our forefathers, complete one revolution of the ecliptic in roughly 27,000 years; and there are 27 nakshatras in the lunar zodiac, each covering 13° 20' of the ecliptic. The precessional rate thus comes to 1,000 years for one nakshatra. As the equinoctial points have this backward march at the rate of 1,000 years for one nakshatra, the solstitial points likewise have this backward march at the same rate. The solstitial colour meets the ecliptic and also the equator at different points at different times owing to this precession. The distance between Marichi, the tail star of the Saptarishis and the middle point of the first two stars Pulaha and Kratu of the same constellation measured along the celestial equator is roughly 36°, which is a tenth of the circumference of the ecliptic. The time taken by the solstices (as well as the equinoxes) to cover this distance is 2,700 years. This distance is divided into 27 equal parts, which are named after the 27 nakshatras. The time taken by the solstices to trace each of these parts is thus 100 years. In the Rig Veda this is referred to as the centennial motion of the Rishis. The Seven Rishis, which are the stars of Ursa Major were supposed to remain for one century in each of the 27 nakshatras. It has been stated in our Puranas that the Saptarishis were in Magha for 100 years at the time of Yudhistira. The meaning is that the solstitial colure passed through Magha nakshatra and remained so in Magha for 100 years. Thus, the cycle of the Seven Rishis and the various yugas have all for their basis the precession of the equinoxes and the rate of such precession, as calculated by our ancients.

Scanned by CamScanner. Astronomy seems to preserve the R.V. Samaya Work

ASTROLOGY AND THEOLOGY

(Continued from page 68)

course of material evolution there arose what is called bio-chemical matter, and under certain conditions of the radiation of ultra-violet rays from the Sun into the earth's surface, the bio-chemical matter acquired the new feature of life and became "cells". The condition disappeared as the ultra-violet rays cannot now reach the earth, being absorbed by the atmosphere filled with material particles. Many puzzling questions will arise if such a position is taken up. The only satisfactory answer for a true rationalist is that corresponding to man who can plant the tree and water it and manure it and protect it, there must be some power that can combine parts that had no spacial extension into matter with spacial extension, and also a power that can infuse life phenomenon into matter.

The existence of such a universal power behind phenomena that are beyond the capacities of man is a natural deduction from the facts observed within the field that can be controlled by man; it is only a rationalistic extension of knowledge within observation into regions beyond observation, through reason. Here, in this process of extending a law from experience to regions beyond experience, there is a difficulty. All agencies with intellect within our experience are embodied; is that universal agency also embodied; and if so, how was that body produced? The agent behind the production of that body of the universal agent cannot be an embodied agent. Here the rationalistic thought of India has parted ways and the two parties have their own explanation.

One answer is that within the sphere of the causal aggregate there are three kinds of facts, among which only certain facts, and not all, come really within the scope of the true causal aggregate; the others are intimately related to the facts of the true causal aggregate in their own nature and not in their nature as causes. Even among what come within the real causal aggregate there are facts that form only certain conditioning factors which are not causes but through which alone the causes can operate to produce the effect. A body is found associated associated with all agents who handle material effects that have a spacial extension; that does not mean that all agents must be embodied. There can be an agent that handles matter without spacial extension, who need not have a body to function as an agent. Thus the body is not an absolute necessity in all agents that produce an effect; a body is a necessity only in an agent who handles and produces material effects that have a spacial extension. This is one position.

Scanned by ajmani.sudhirshastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

Body is a conditioning factor associated with all agents and it is only an embodied intelligence that can function as an agent. So, agency in the matter of producing effects is to be restricted to embodied ones. It is not necessary that in so far as all effects are found produced by an agent as one among the causes, the whole world as a unit too must have an agent as a common factor. The changes in the world take place according to a universal law. There can be intelligences attached to all material objects. It is not necessary to postulate a universal agent; an infinite number of intelligences will serve the situation that we have to explain. We must draw a distinction between an eternal law and an agent that operates according to that law. If there is a universal agent, there are various difficulties; the law itself must be a creation and the question of a "why" steps in.

In both of the positions thus taken by the rationalists of India, there is no real creation and no real creator. Matter is not created; matter is always there. What takes place in the phenomenon of evolution in the world is that matter is put into various "forms", and such "forms" are also eternal. That is our experience so far as tangible effects are concerned. No agent creates the material nor the form; all agents put the matter into a form, both matter and form having been there. As between the two positions taken up relating to the question of an agent, the real difference is that one position draws a distinction between the infinite number of embodied agents and a single, unembodied, universal super-agent, while in the other position there is only one type of intelligent agents represented by man and there is nothing that is really different from and superior to man. The world according to both is dynamic; either it is a machine controlled by a single agent with a large number of sub-agents working in each part of the machine, or the world is a machine operated by a large number of agents according to a universal law; no agent of that nature knows that law as a whole and there is no super-man, there is no omniscient. In both the positions, each part is related to the others in the world as a whole. There is scope of theology only in the position where a universal agent in the form of a super-intelligence is accepted. In the other position, there is only a study and understanding of a law. But astrology is common to both the positions.

If the National Laboratories can start on a new process of investigation with the background of this kind of National

(Continued on page 149)

Aryan Myths, Legends and Traditions in the Bible

BY ROBERT YAGER

IT is usual for modern scholarship to laugh and deride the traditions to be found in all sacred books of religion and to dismiss them as mere legends and myths of little or no value. To the materialistic type of mind a literal interpretation is demanded, and if this cannot be given, or if it fails in the materialistic form which it then assumes to be rational of interpretation, it is taken to be proof that the stories are pure fiction of no value whatsoever and further evidence that religion is simply a superstitious practice handed down from the childhood of the race.

There are two sets of facts which, however, appear from a sympathetic and yet scholarly approach to these problems, which lead to quite a different interpretation of the phenomena and material under discussion. These seem to us to fall into the categories of either supernatural knowledge, or of ancient natural lore.

The first, naturally, belongs to all the higher religions, and while opponents of religion would seek to equate it with the gullible superstitions which might belong to an age of animism, in which every wind that stirs a leaf on a tree is a spirit, more often malefic than benefic, we cannot accept that point of view. Normally the super-natural falls into miracles, which, as such, we have no intention of dealing now as it raises too many problems to discuss at short length or else it concerns prophecies. Of these, there are prophecies concerning the future. Thus the whole range of the Old Testment, that is the pre-Christian half of the Bible, is concerned with prophecies which concern, in some way or another, the coming of Christ. While both Old and New Testament (the latter being the part written in the light of Christ's teachings) concern the general current of world events. Among these prophecies are those which concern the end of the age, and they have many parallels which can be drawn from other religious works, and also from prophetic writers like Nostradamus, Bishop Malachi and others. For instance in this class of foreseeing there is envisaged the great conflagration at the end of the age, which it is reasonable to equate with the end of the Pisces cycle in the precession of the equinoxes and so somewhere about 2,000 years after the advent of Christ. In specific terms some of the seers of the Old Testament in particular laid down that they foresaw a great conflict, when Rosh, Tubal and Magog, a great northern power, all riding on horses (presumably meaning mobile, and so mechanised) would come down upon Palestine, and be joined with Egypt against Israel. Israel would have as her allies Tarshish and the ships thereof, and the Isles. These terms are frequently found historically and there is no doubt that they refer to the maritime powers of Europe, of the Western Mediterranean and beyond through the Pillars of Hercules, Gibraltar, and so the Western Powers. The northern hosts are depicted as essentially evil, and with the superiority, and yet they are to be overthrown, for God is with Israel and her allies. How significant is such an alignment of powers with the present world situation it is not difficult to envisage. In addition, while the Bible looks back to world-wide destruction in the past by a flood of waters, the destruction which is to take place at this time is to be on an unprecedented scale, and with Fire. Nostradamus apparently alludes to the same events, and he considers that about 2000 A.D. terror will be let loose from the skies, and that will be the end of the age.

It is not our purpose to deal with these, and other prophecies, and to interpret them. They are mentioned, because they must be of interest to all readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE and also because they illustrate a part of that super-natural material of which sacred books are often composed. It is highly irrational, it is not capable of being tested by scientific or any other material means, as they concern future events, and can only be compared with facts once they have been fulfilled. Even so, when that has taken place, the fulfilments will be disputed by the materialist who will wish to find some reason for not believing that it is possible to forecast the future by means which differ from those, say of meteorology, which he can test and weigh. For that reason, while there is plenty of prophetic material pointing to the coming of Christ, and his birth in Bethlehem of a virgin, and so forth, it is challenged at all points. Furthermore, although Christ clearly forecast the fall of Jerusalem under Titus, this is challenged by the argument that Christ never existed at all (a statement being made very difficult to be upheld by the latest discoveries in Palestine) or that the statements were written after the events.

An acquaintance with psychic phenomena, with astrology, with the forecasts of Nostradamus and Bishop Malachi, to whom we have already alluded, will leave very little doubt in most unprejudiced persons' minds that there are certain highly gifted, and sensitive men, of devout learning, who have had the power to foresee the future.

Scanned by www.sapereaudeinstitute.org.uk. To Preserve P. D. Material. Work

However, what is not usually realised is that there is equally an ability to see the past. This is particularly true when we come to analyse the traditional material in the earlier part of Genesis, the first book of the Bible which deals with the beginnings of things on this earth, and man.

Therefore, not only is there the whole of the traditional lore of remote periods enshrined, often in a hidden manner, and much overlaid, and sometimes distorted by successive editings, in ancient scriptures of all the ancient and higher civilisations, but, at any rate, in *Genesis.

There is something more. There are statements made, which could not be put forward if there was not something more than the available knowledge at the time of their writing.

The scriptures of which we speak were written down in their present edited form perhaps by the 6th century B.C. But in previously oral tradition, if not in written forms they are immeasurably older. For instance, it can be shown that the ethnology which appears in the Tenth Chapter of Genesis reflects a period of around 2000 B.C. The principal character of this book, in its latter parts at any rate, is Abraham, and he dates from near the same time.

Thus it is clear that we are dealing with books which belong long before the age of scientific knowledge concerning the past. Consequently it was quite impossible for their writers to have either archaeological or geological data to guide them.

That being so, it is of interest to consider briefly certain rather important facts.

Primitive man, living in Eurasia, and mainly away from the seas, could well be pardoned for concluding that as he was a land creature himself the earth started first with the land. Then, at some later time the Creator of all he saw and knew, produced water and the seas. This would be the most natural of all assumptions, as man must reason from what he knows. But the writer opens the Book of Genesis, the first book of the Bible, with the grandly and penetrating perceptive words—

> In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.

Here then we have the picture of what the writer of Genesis saw. A shapeless mass of earth without life, and entirely water covered: formless and void, with the Spirit of the Creator alone moving over this mass and bringing life and order into it.

It is a sublimely true picture, which we know from Geology and Biology to have been the first state of the earth. But it is not one which could have been glimpsed or guessed at without inspiration before the 19th century.

Next we learn that—

> And God said, Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear; and it was so.

After the appearance of dry land there then come successive acts of creation.

Now natural man, looking around himself, with little deep knowledge of the past, and none of it scientific, would be inclined to reason that he was the highest and first of all creative acts, and then to meet his needs would God create, after him, the animals he needed, then the trees and the herbs for his use, and those of the beasts which fed and served him, and lastly the fish and the sea in which they should swim. From the standpoint of early man that would be the natural and logical order of creative events, and if all ancient books of scriptures started that way we should not be surprised since to early man such an order would be intensely logical. We ourselves know it is the reverse of the true order, and we know that from geology, and its work in the 19th century. But the writer of Genesis 4,000 years ago knew it was not true, and so he sets out the reverse order, and thus we learn that—

> And God said, Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit tree yielding fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth; and it was so.

Later we learn,

> And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creatures that have life, and fowl that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heave.

We then read,

> And God made the beast of the earth after his kind, and cattle after their kind, and everything that creepeth upon the earth after his kind: and God saw that it was good.
>
> And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.
>
> So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them.

We see in these verses a clear grasp of certain essential facts, which were that in spite of man's position, he was the last of the creative acts, that vegetable life

Scanned by Kalawai Spiritual Archaeology. Courtesy of B V Ramans Work

* I cannot speak for other books as I have not studied them adequately in this respect, came first, preceding fish, reptiles and birds, and then followed mammals, and last of all man.

Whatever anomalies there may be in Genesis, how could the reversal of the whole order of creation, as it must have seemed to man, filled as he always is with his natural self-centered approach to everything, have been recorded if there had not been some creative power, which we call God, to inspire certain prophets and scribes to record the order of creation 4,000 years before the geologists' hammers were to reveal the true order?

Another thing which becomes apparent from this logical, and when the time of its writing down is considered, highly scientific approach to the subject of creation. The whole spirit of this account is not semitic, despite the fact that the account in its original is recorded in a semitic language—Hebrew. If we have to search for the scientific spirit, such as it is in its embryonic state, at the beginning of reflective thinking, it is to be found among the Aryans more than any of the other Caucasoid stocks.

We have made this point as it leads directly on to the discovery of a series of motifs in the traditional accounts of Genesis which have their direct parallel in Aryan thought.

The Aryan conception of the earth was that it was like a saucer turned upside down, and surrounding it was the sea. Over it went streams or rivers of waters, arising from the seas surrounding the earth, which passed under it, to rise from the seas on the other side. The streams of waters which thus passed overhead—and from which, presumably the rain was believed to fall, was separated from the earth and its waters by something more solid than just air which held the whole in their proper places, and enabled the streams of waters to flow through the air. To us this may seem a very curious idea, but it was, after all a rational enough way for ancient man, seeking to explain natural phenomena with his limited knowledge of the earth and the universe. It is therefore of interest to find that this ancient Aryan idea appears also in this first chapter of Genesis for we read—

> And God made the firmament and divided the waters which were under the firmament from the waters which were above the firmament; and it was so.

The heavens we see are this firmament, below them is the earth and sea, and above the land of moistures and waters.

Furthermore, it is surely significant that the first Manu of the Aryans, as portrayed in the Hindu scriptures is Swayambhuva who is also Adima, which is the name for the first named man of the Bible, Adam.

Now there is a double account of creation in Genesis. That of the first chapter talks of Let Us make Man; and then in the second chapter we get what has usually been taken to be a repetition, perhaps because it is a parallel account which has been run into the first by some editing at some time before or about the 6th century B.C. This second talks solely of the creation of Adam and Eve, the garden of Eden, the fruit of the tree, the fall of man, and the introduction of original sin.

Whether this is careless editing or not, we believe that both accounts carry different stories or facets of the human creation as it was understood by rational and very level headed ancient thinkers—for it should be remembered that on the whole the Genesis account is sufficiently sensible that it could be accepted by scholars, philosophers and naturalists, in its literality, till a century ago.

The account of the creation in the first chapter is certainly concerned with that of all living things, including all types of men, and the second comes down to particularise in the history of one family or strain in that creation, and, in fact, the Bible account is not saying that all mankind are coming from one pair, as has been generally assumed. For it seems clear that the creative activity is envisaged as something much wider than that, and we have no doubt that these two stories of human creation are side by side in the 1st and 2nd Books of Genesis because their original compilers saw that the creative act went beyond that of one strain of men only. Now if we are justified in this deduction, it is interesting, since it is only in the last few years, since genetics has come to be understood, that it has been realised that creation by evolution has been the creation of stocks and not of individuals.

Therefore, as we read these accounts there is a general creation, and within that is a particular strain, in which the ancient writer is especially interested as it contains his own racial ancestry, and that is figured by the Adamic family, with its patriarch in Adam, and matriarch in Eve, who is born on the same flesh and blood as Adam.

In this Biblical account we get the tree of knowledge: the fruit, the eating of it being forbidden, the fall, following on the eating of the forbidden fruit, and the banishment from Eden. Now this is absolutely parallelled in Aryan mythology. For God (seen as Siva) dropped the blossom of the sacred fig tree, and the Adima is persuaded by his wife Satarupa to possess it, and is degraded in punishment for it. This is the same story as

Scanned by www.sptarishtanemi.org Courtesy Dr. Nagendra Jain & K. V. Kamans, Vashi

Eve's persuasion of Adam to eat the fruit, and their banishment for doing so. In addition, there comes in the tree, as a symbol, and the serpent, which are very typical Aryan motifs traceable from the Hindu scriptures to the mythology of the ancient Vikings.

It will be observed that the homeland of the Adamic stock is conceived of as a garden. It should be noted that when we come to discuss the flood in connection with the Iranian traditions, a garden becomes the place of refuge, and we suggest that since the ark or ship or boat is the principal refuge throughout the Aryan world it is probable that in the case of the Iranian there has been a transposition of ark and garden. The garden, however, should refer to the delightful land where the race first arose. It was a land of animals and of fruit trees and crops, and Adam and Eve were unclothed in it. Therefore, it was a land which had a mild to warm climate.

We know that primitive man can transmit knowledge over countless generations with considerable accuracy, by repetition and memorising the sacred stories of the race. There is little doubt that the true elements in these old stories must have been transmitted in much the same way, and therefore they are not to be dismissed as worthless. The moral principles drawn from the stories are no doubt of later origin, when the books were edited by theologians to draw out the purpose of God with Man. But the kernels of the stories are the traditions of a race. We believe that the essential points we have dealt with are extremely old, but are the result of such transmission, except where the acts of the creation themselves are concerned, which we have put into the same category as prophetical utterances and rely on more psychic means of transmission. Consequently, when we reach back into stories such as we find in the Avesta, the Vedas, and the Bible, we are dealing with history, transmitted orally as tales, in which the historical facts become over-laid my many layers of tale-making, moralisings and theological interpretations, and the remoter the events, the greater the coverings of this sort which exist, and the fewer facts which will be left for us to redeem from the narratives. Here in the Bible account it is clear we are dealing with facts of such a range of remoteness that they belong to periods right at the dawn of the Caucasoid races, perhaps even before the Aryans split off from the Semites, and Agglutinative speakers (such as the Finnu-Ogrians and Dravidians) of the general stock.

If the story we have been following belonged to the hot lands then there would be no significance in the nakedness. But, having shown the connection between the Hindu Aryan traditions and those of the Bible, it is clear that they could not have originated in the tropics. For, we must remember the strong Arctic tradition in the Vedas; where it is clear that the earliest Aryans lived somewhere to the north in Central Asia. Therefore, it will be seen that since the Genesis account must link up with those of the Vedas, Avesta, and the rest, a northern location is involved, and to have a warm climate there involves on inter-glacial period, perhaps the last, or a warm oscillation after the retreat of the Ice. We think that subsequent accounts in the narrative suggest the former. If that is so, then we are dealing with something very old, for the last Ice Age maximum went into retreat about 10,000 B.C. and it probably advanced as early as 20,000 B.C. (The writer does not accept the high antiquities which earlier archaeologists have tended to give to all these events.) If this is so we have here a narrative referring to events of about 20,0000 years ago, and naturally, even with the normally perfect oral tradition of highly intelligent primitive peoples such as the proto-Caucasoids, branch of whom were becoming or soon to become proto-Aryans, the facts that will remain must be few and remote.

In this situation the temptation of Adam by Eve, the eating of the fruit, occurred. Then we learn—

> And the eyes of them both were open, and they knew that they were naked; and they sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons.

Now it is a fact that no primitive men anywhere consider nakedness (where nakedness is climatically possible) indecent. Therefore, unless this is an actual interpolation, the clothing of themselves could not have been for that reason, but was climatic. To this point we will return shortly.

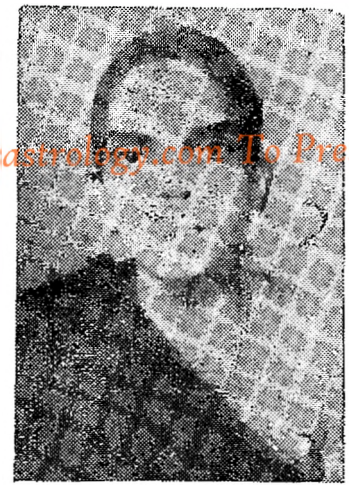
One of the consequences of eating the fruit of the tree of knowledge was that they had knowledge. Now knowledge, the supreme knowledge, in the most primitive state was the fact of generation, that is the function of the male.

From this then we may conclude that the bearers of the traditions of the race entertained the opinion that the knowledge of paternity in the production of life had already been acquired in the garden, as a result of partaking of the tree of knowledge, and an earlier, more simple, less sophisticated state of innocence had been left behind. That was the former Golden Age. Now the interest which arises from this is that all the Caucasoid stocks, whether Aryans, Semites, or the peoples of the Mediterranean Basin, all had a knowledge of the function

(Continued on page 152)

Astrological Appraisement of Behaviour-Patterns

BY SRIMATHI M. A. RUKMINI, B.A., B.L.



General Consideration

IN this article I propose to explain and evaluate certain typical behaviour-patterns, in the light of indications thrown by astrology, which, notwithstanding, onslaughts and assaults on it, seems to be growing strong with the advance of time.

The 20th century has been described by some as a century of psychology, though such a description can well be doubted or challenged. As the century is moving towards its end, marvellous and yet more marvellous discoveries are being made, and the century can as well be christened as the century of Sputniks, or summit-talks, or of anything equally handy or striking. Assuming for the sake of argument, the correctness or legitimacy of the description of the current century as century of psychology, this fascinating science has been understood as a science of behaviour.

Life is a sum-total or cumulation of different forms, types, and patterns of behaviour. Modern scientific psychology, does not officially admit the existence of a soul. Nor does it admit the existence of mind. Consciousness also seems to have been at a discount. Only behaviour is admitted. All activity ranging between assimilation of food, and highest forms of literary, religious, scientific, political and other varieties, is brought under the most comprehensive or all inclusive term behaviour.

Such a behaviour (of course, only human behaviour is taken into account in this discussion) is said to be the subject-matter of psychology. Such behaviour is individual, social, communal, national, international and so forth. Or, further simplifying, behaviour may be divided or classified into two types or patterns mainly. One is individual behaviour. The other is group behaviour. There are certain exceptional individuals that live totally cut off from all contacts and relations with others. Similarly, anthropologists have listed certain strange groups of persons which live in utter seclusion and isolation cut off from all traces of contemporary civilization.

SRIMATHI M. A. RUKMINI

For purposes of this discussion, I shall not be making any reference to these two extremes. The discussion will be restricted or limited to a study of normal rational human behaviour. There is another important factor to note. Behaviour develops amidst certain surroundings, animate and inanimate collectively as environment. If growth or development be contemplated through the different stages, commencing from birth and terminating in death, it would transpire that life is a series of adjustments to surroundings or environment. Taking an extreme view even birth should be deemed an adjustment. Death is another. It is so to speak, final adjustment, after which there is neither need, nor situation, nor adjustment. A general law has been formulated. Successful life means successful and efficient adjustment to environment. Failure in life means maladjustment, or inefficient adjustment.

(1)

In the light of these general considerations, let me explain what are typical behaviour-patterns. In the first place, behaviour, behaviourism, is determined by the energy and effort, physical and intellectual endowment of given individuals. These individuals are mostly obstinate and self-willed. They are independent. They act on their own initiative. They make or mar their own Destiny. Often times, on this or that occasion, these individuals may pretend to consult or take counsel from others, but, in reality, they will act only according to their own will and pleasure. They would ignore or disregard the opinion and advice of others. This is one type or pattern of behaviour. Secondly, others would be by nature incapable of taking independent decisions. Their conduct would be largely determined and regulated by the advice and guidance given by members of the family. Sometimes, the male members of the family may be playing a dominant role. At other times, the female members may prove to be domineering and exercising authority. This is one type or pattern of behaviour. Thirdly, yet others would have hardly anything to do with members of the family. They would exhibit striking and remarkable dependence on the advice and guidance given by their friends. Such persons would have no secrets from their friends. They would share with their friends even the most private official and social, and individual secrets. They would take a pride in proclaiming that they would rather bow to their friends than to their relations and family members. Fourthly, some others, again, would model their behaviour in the light of the opinion and good estimate of the society or community to which they belong. They will care only for social or communal opinion. They would not like to lose their caste, or prestige, in the scale of social evaluation. Fifthly, there are some who regulate and control their behaviour, in the office and even outside, according to the opinion of their official superiors.

Scanned by astrologicalmusicastrology.com To Preserve the Rich Heritage of Work

Such are often servile and obsequious individuals who are figuratively and spectacularly, described as ready to sell their souls for a mess of pottage. It is possible to imagine any number of degrees of servility and sycophanticism.

While the intermediate degrees may be imperceptible, the extremes are bound to be sufficiently compelling attention. I have attempted a rough classification of some of the typical patterns of behaviour. But, there is no finality about this. Others may attempt a different division or classification, according to the principle of division or classification attempted. Modern psychology as it stands, will give room for other variant patterns of behaviour.

(2)

A statement or obiter dictum is attributed to Buddha, to the effect that one should never seek to condemn or punish others, because, it is not given to mankind as imperfect, constitutionally, to understand all the details and intricacies of the mechanism of causation. To, us, practising advocates, this must seem strange, because, very often advocates are called upon to argue in favour of conviction or acquittal, on the basis of evidence tendered.

Though Buddha's exalted ideal should be absolutely difficult and even impossible to follow, in practical, concrete, daily life, it is bound to reveal a profoundly important truth. It is the inevitable and incorrigible human tendency or predilection that when a person is successful, he is jubilant and attributes all success to his own personal effort and endeavour. If, however, he were to fail, he is only too ready and willing to blame others for his failures. He would go about saying that the entire business had been spoiled by X, Y or Z, and that others are responsible for his failure and that the blame should be laid at their doors.

The statement attributed to Buddha contains a very pertinent and relevant attack on and protest against the human tendency to attribute failures to others, and claim for themselves all credit for success obtained. It becomes necessary to investigate whether astrological truths and theories can throw any light on the behaviour-patterns listed and on the readiness of human beings to blame others for their failures.

The ancient Maharshis and authors of ancient Indian works and treatises on astrology have very rightly based all their theories and conclusions on the unerring and universally applicable doctrine of Karma. Each should bear his or her own cross. Each would be sowing only in accordance with Karma and reaping the consequences, again, only, according to the law or principle of Karma. So, the tendency to self-adulation and self-glorification at sight of success and the equally pronounced and inveterate tendency to condemnation or denunciation of others, at sight of failure should both be effectively and sternly curbed and controlled, if balanced judgment and smooth action are to be secured for effective adjustment to environment, which, is successful behaviour.

(3)

It appears to me that in the matter of determination of the different behaviour-patterns of individuals and groups, both the movable zodiac and the different directional systems and aspectarian are not quite adequate or successful. I am not entering into or inviting any discussion, in this context, and I am merely stating my personal view.

Scanned by www.saptarishi-astrology.com All Rights Reserved by B. V. Raman's Work

The fixed Hindu zodiac, however, tells a different story altogether. The signs of the zodiac have their own rulers or lords. Each planet is also connected with specific objects and values of life and existence. Each planet is taken as being exclusively determinant of certain objects and values. (Karaka). Most, if not all, of your readers will be familiar with the schemes of rulership of the signs of the zodiac and determinantship connected with planets. (Adhipatya and Karakatva).

I am inclined to think that there is some inherent plan in the zodiacal rulership scheme, and the determinantship scheme of planets. The latter may be left alone now, as it requires a separate and independent treatment.

The starting point is very rightly furnished by the Lagna or the ascendant. The ascendant marks or represents the self, the individual, the active agent, who sows and reaps according to the imperishable and universal Law of Karma. The lot of the individual is, willy-nilly thrown in the midst of a family and, till the individual reaches a particular period or age, it is only the family environment that moulds the behaviour of individuals. So, after the ascendant, the 2nd house is connected with the family. (Used and understood in a very general and comprehensive significance or connotation.)

Coming down to specifications, brothers and sisters, would naturally rank nearest to individuals, and that is why, the 3rd house is connected with these blood-relations.

There are other relations besides. Some of them are reckoned to be near, and others are taken as distant relations. In Law, there are several degrees of nearness and distance in determination of relationship in respect of a given family-unit. So, the 4th house, is taken as connected with relations in general, be they near or distant, and these are all included under the term–Bandhu. Then comes the 5th house, marking issues or progeny considered to be highly important from the stand-point of religion. A male issue, there must be. If not, the debt due to dead ancestors, pitrus (manes) is never discharged or liquidated. A female issue is only of lesser importance. In recent times, the Hindu Law has been suitably amended or re-enacted giving equal prominence or importance to sons and daughters, whatever the demands of spiritual and religious exigencies, and constitutions. The behaviour of a given individual is vastly influenced either for good or for evil by sons and daughters.

The 6th house is taken to be connected with enemies, ill-disposed persons, and others, who, for some reason, or another, are bent on causing some harm or injury to a given individual. The opposition may range between simple verbal abuse and violent antagonism. Such opposition may lead to social boycotts, obloquy, and other forms of annoyance.

The 7th house is connected with partner in life, wife or husband. It must be universally obvious what a tremendous influence life-partners exercise on one another. The nature and range of the influence depend on the social construction and pattern of civilized groups to which the parties belong. While there are several instances of happy and harmonious life led by the partners in life, man and wife, there are others of striking disharmony, and maladjustment ending in divorce courts, and other forms of frustration. The records of criminal courts, in all modern civilized countries of the world contain thrilling stories of husbands, poisoning wives, and wives conspiring with paramours to do away with their husbands, and so forth.

All this would convince that this house accounts for and is responsible for behaviour-pattern. Behaviour is either fulfilled or frustrated. Even the world's luckiest and most famous individuals are subjected to some form or other of frustrational behaviour. Outward or external glamour connected with high political and other stations in life is often responsible for creation of many delusions. Such persons happen to be victims of characteristic frustrational behaviour.

The 8th house is associated with such forms of frustrational and destructive patterns of behaviour. The behaviour-pattern may either be self-frustrational, or other frustrational. The 9th house is connected with both family, society, and even the world–at–large. How given behaviour-patterns affect family, society, and other larger interests, would be judged by reference to the indications thrown out by the 9th house. Honour, luck, prestige, etc., radiate from the individual and cover family, society, etc. Similarly, those radiating from the latter also affect the former.

It is the 10th house that ranks as the most vital and significant. It marks mid-heaven. It is connected with pursuit of profession. All should be putting forth some form of activity to earn livelihood. The law condemns persons who may not have any ostensible means of livelihood. Behaviour-patterns grow, indeed, very complex and complicated, in respect of the house of profession. It is only in respect of the affairs of this house, that individuals are obliged to contact others, and other members of society, for the advancement of life-interests.

By means of a convenient convention, in regard to each horoscope, be the individual, a humble school-master in a village, or the world's greatest dictator like Hitler, the 9th and 10th houses are described as Bhagya and Rajya — prosperity and empire.

What would be the result if a village school-master's financial prosperity and empire are juxtaposed and critically evaluated side by side with those of Hitler and Stalin? Nevertheless, convention sticks on to age-long usage and refers to Bhagya and Rajya in each chart.

The 11th house is allied with gain, which means, the individual coming into contact with society and social-groups, dealings and transactions with whom are anticipated to bring on profits and gains. The gain may not be necessarily restricted only to finances and other material resources. The gains may be social, intellectual, religious, moral and so forth, which must seem attractive and pleasing to individuals.

Scanned by www.sapanishissarvology.com To preserve Late B. V. Raman's Work

The 12th house stands correlated with occult phenomena, hidden, or secret enemies, wastage, disappointments, and like values. In connection with the entities and units governed by this house, the individual has to come into relation with others, in a rather peculiar manner not found elsewhere. This house is also believed to be connected with the fate or destiny of individuals after death.

Just as there is the common saying that in times of apparent peace, one goes on making preparations for wars, mankind during the progress of life, is making knowingly or unknowingly only preparations for final death.

Some are irreligious, and atheistic. They defy death. They are not afraid of death. Others are religious, God-fearing, and they are afraid of death. They defy death in quite a different sense. They regard it as in a way fulfilment of the life lived and as a gate-way to another, may be, better or worse. It would be necessary carefully to distinguish from one another, physical or biological fear from the moral or spiritual fear. Occult values, tendencies, and forces are correlated with the 12th house.

From the fore-mentioned facts, it would be clear that practically all the behaviour-patterns have been covered by the 12 signs of the zodiac, which, take on the appellation of houses in respect of individual charts.

(4)

I shall suggest the following tentative arrangement for the distribution of the different behaviour-patterns over the zodiacal signs.

Commencing from the Lagna or the ascendant, the first four houses may be conveniently correlated with the individual and with near members of family, and the behaviour-patterns directed towards them.

The fifth seems to be a host in itself, in view of the importance of perpetuation of species or clan, particularly, for religious and spiritual purposes. A son may continue and improve on the legacy left by his father. Or, he may destroy it, and begin anew or afresh, or may even terminate all linkage with the parent and family traditions.

The 6th, 7th and 8th houses would account for the behaviour-patterns with others concerning, with others belonging to other families, and groups of society.

The seventh particularly, is as significant as the fifth. This will determine behaviour-pattern with a member chosen and selected from a different family, and incorporated into one's own, for secular and religious purposes.

The 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th are associated with members removed farther from the family circle, and to society at large, and the behaviour-patterns connected with them. In this connection, it should be noted that traditionally, the 9th house is connected with father.

As observed before, there are three basic or fundamental behaviour-patterns. One is confined to immediate family circle. The second extends in scope and covers others less intimate. The third relates to wide, and comprehensive social range, which in certain exceptional cases may be co-extensive with humanity itself.

The arrangement suggested by me is only a very rough and schematic one, and in the light of facts and data gathered in the course of research, the arrangement may be suitably altered or reconstructed.

(5)

I shall now refer to an interpretation of the significance of the houses and of the behaviour-patterns concerned, that lies embodied in a work which does not seem to me to have received sufficient attention.

I refer to the work written in short compass named Keraleeya Jatakasara which was published in Bombay about 50 years ago. As the very name suggests, it seems to be something like an electic work parts of which seem to have been taken from other treatises. Parts seem to be independent composition. I find there is a striking, definite, authoritativeness about the points mentioned in this work.

Of the twelve houses, it is observed in this work that as many as seven are to be judged unfavourable or inauspicious. (Bhava sapta dukkhadayee iti kathyate). According to this reckoning, 11th, 3rd, 8th, 6th, 2nd, 7th and 12th are taken to be unfavourable. Whoever he was, the author does not mince matters. He categorically states that any bhava which may be united with the rulers of these seven inauspicious ones, will be destroyed. (...Nasam prapnuyat dhruvam...) Of course, the meaning is that the good effects of the said bhava would be destroyed.

It is further observed that the four kendras, and the two konas are quite favourable. The auspicious houses, then, would be six. But, this would seem to be in contradiction with the categorical statement that seven are inauspicious. If seven are evil, the good ones would be five. But, the good ones are enumerated to be six (i.e., 4 quadrants and 2 trines). There will be no difficulty in removing the apparent contradiction and bringing

(Continued on page 153)

Moon and Menstrual Disorders

BY DR. JAGANNATH RAO, M.B.B.S., M.R.A.S.

MENSTRUATION is a normal physiological phenomenon of female sex. And normally a woman continues to menstruate upto the age of 45 when climacteric occurs. As such a woman undergoes lot of emotional disturbances at two times in her life, i.e., at puberty and at climacteric. The age of puberty greatly varies in different countries and races, but the climacteric occurs nearly at the same age everywhere. I propose to deal in this article with the various disturbances that occur with regard to menstruation.

It is an established fact of astrology that the Moon governs the uterus, ovaries and its ligaments, cervix-uterii, glands of Bartholi and external genitalia. And as we all know the Moon governs mind and emotions also, and as such any affliction to the Moon in the natal chart will give rise to various disturbances. It is the object of this article to bring all the findings to the notice of the readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE which is devoted to research in all branches of astrology.

Mars governs blood and breakage of tissues and uterine endometrium. As such a favourable position of Mars with reference to radical Moon is also necessary. Before I actually illustrate this subject with the living horoscopes, I would like to add a few words regarding menstruation itself so that the lay readers may know as to how menstruation occurs.

If the readers have read my article "Moon and Maternity", they will know that the menstrual cycle of a healthy woman closely follows the lunar cycle consisting of 28 days. When the ova which have been discharged from the ovaries fail to get fertilized by the male germ, the uterus which had by now prepared itself for the reception of fertilized ovum begins to shed the extra layers of endometrium. This soft bed of extra endometrial layer was necessary for the implantation of ovum. The breakage of the uterine endometrium causes blood-flow, and this phenomenon is called menstruation. This process lasts in a healthy woman for four or five days. And the uterus once again prepares itself for the future ovum. And thus goes on this cycle until a fully fertilized ovum is implanted in the uterus, when the conception occurs. Here we must understand how far the jurisdiction of Mars, Moon and Sun extends in this phenomenon. Mars is mainly responsible for the 'starting' of the flow by causing breakage of uterine tissue. But the actual flow and its duration is controlled by the Moon. The Sun comes in the picture when the fertilization occurs but he too can cause blood-flow if certain combinations are present. Here the point which I want to stress is that the Moon is an all-important factor in the normal blood menstrual flow. Any affliction as we will study now, will cause disturbances in the monthly flow, and consequently a woman's capability to conceive is reduced.

It is an unfailing observation that menstruation starts when Mars aspects powerfully the Janma Lagna or Chandra Lagna by his gochara movement. I have however found that mere aspect of Mars to the radical Moon is enough for the excitation of flow, while his aspect on the Janma Lagna may be necessary for the first menses. The fact that the planets cast the shadow of their effects even before they actually enter a sign can be easily verified from the monthly flow of a woman. The readers are aware that the Moon stays two and a quarter days in each Rasi. So, the flow starts just a few hours before the Moon actually receives the aspect of Mars and remains for a few hours after the Moon passes out of the aspect. Thus, you can see that the actual period of normal menses will be 24 to 48 hours more than the period of stay of the Moon in a Rasi. Thus, the flow continues for just three and a quarter days or four and a quarter days in a normal healthy subject. Should there be any affliction to the Moon in the natal chart this period will be disturbed in the concerned Dasa or Anthara Dasa. There is another point worth considering and that is, whenever the Moon is afflicted in the chart of a woman her emotional life will also be disturbed. That is because the Moon governs the emotions also. I have already discussed this point in detail in my article Moon and Maternity published in December 1957 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. Both maternal labour and menstrual flow are controlled by the Moon, as such you will see most of the women under labour pains or menstruating near the full Moon or new Moon, as at that time the emotional graph of a woman shows its highest curve. It is quite understandable as to why the uneducated women-folk remember their 'periods' as near this full Moon or that new Moon. No woman for that matter notes down the date of her last 'period'. She simply remembers it whether it was near a full Moon or new Moon!

Scanned by www.sabarishastrology.com In Presence Dr. B.V. Kamesh Work

I will now illustrate my findings with the charts of living persons. I have collected a number of charts from various gynaecological wards as well as from my own practice.

Case No. 1 (Birth Details):— Born on 31–8–1936 at 7-36 a.m. (I.S.T.). Lat. 10° 47′ N., Long. 79° 8′ E. Balance of Mars Dasa—6 years, 1 month and 15 days.

A Case No. 1 is one of the cases referred to me for astro-diagnosis. Mark the position of the Moon who is hemmed in between two top malefics. In this, the Moon is not directly afflicted but is placed between two malefics. This is a very important factor in astro-diagnosis. I have seen in all such cases the trouble lies with the tubes, thereby causing pain and great discomfort. The parents of this lady spent thousands of rupees for mere diagnosis, but were not satisfied. My diagnosis on the combinations present was clear. I labelled it as Salpingitis. Without going into details of the case history, I will point out a few salient points. This lady though married a number of years ago now is suffering constantly and has not conceived so far. Mark the Lagna. Incidentally the Moon has suffered in the 5th house. And it is quite natural that she has not yet conceived. The trouble started in the current Rahu Dasa which is one of the afflicting planets in the chart. There are many causes for menstrual troubles and the disease of tubes is one of them. Any one looking at this chart will be inclined to think that Rahu Dasa will be good. But in Medical astrology all such afflictions will have to be carefully weighed before venturing any prediction. In this case, Rahu Dasa has proved very disappointing, even though he is placed in a quadrant.

Case No. 2 (Birth Details):— Born on 26–1–1930 at 4-25 p.m. (I.S.T.). Lat. 17° 22′ N., Long. 78° 27′ E. Balance of Kethu Dasa—3 years and 6 months.

In regard to Case No. 2, the native of the chart is married since eight years. She had so far two abortions. Her monthly periods were never normal. She had alternate excessive periods since the last ten years. With the entry of Saturn's sub-period in Venus major period, she became very moody and even melancholic. (Note the combination for melancholy) and her monthly periods also suffered simultaneously. It is very interesting to note that whenever the Moon is afflicted by Saturn or Rahu in a woman's chart, besides becoming melancholic, she suffers in her monthly periods. The menstrual cycle will also become affected. Now since the entry of Sun's Dasa she is suffering from 'excessive flow'. It hardly stops for a few days and again starts flowing. Please note the affliction of the Moon in the 7th house coupled with the affliction of the lord of 5th house in the 8th house. In a woman's chart the position of the Sun in 8th is always indicative of excessive discharges, at some or other times depending upon the Dasas and Bhukthis. Very naturally here the native has been suffering from excessive periods which is termed 'menorrhagia' from the beginning of the Sun's Dasa. Coupled with this she has become very restless and suffers from mental depressions. (Note Rahu is also aspecting Moon). This was no doubt a complicated case for the doctors to diagnose. They are of the opinion that some malignant changes are occurring in the uterine wall and this was told to her relatives. The relatives of this case finally consulted me for astro-diagnosis. Saturn in the 7th house with afflicted Moon, no doubt indicates a tumor. But the age and other factors do not indicate malignant change. It was therefore diagnosed as simple tumor as a result of incomplete miscarriage, which has since been confirmed. She must however undergo an operation for which there is definite indication in the chart. The office-bearer for blood and breakage, Mars is closely associated with Moon in the 7th house, and for Mithuna Lagna he is definitely a malefic.

Courtesy: Dr. B.V. Raman Astrological Research Foundation To Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

Case No. 3 (Birth Details):— Born on 11–1–1918 at 2-30 p.m. (I.S.T.). Lat. 15° 10′ N., Long. 76° 56′ E. Balance of Kethu Dasa—3 years, 1 month and 24 days.

This is another case of 'menorrhagia'. In this case you will see that there are indications for malignant disease. Note the Moon's affliction in 8th house. Mercury also has suffered. Note Mars is aspecting the 8th house. This is the chart of an unfortunate childless widow. She had a number of abortions during her married life. Note the position of Saturn and Mars which is definitely bad for issues. Now since the entry of Rahu's Dasa, she has been suffering from excessive period and that she is showing mental aberration also. Note Mercury also has suffered. Due to the fact that Jupiter is aspecting the 7th house she was somehow spared from mental affliction and menstrual troubles until Rahu's Dasa. The lord of blood and breakage Mars is aspecting the 8th house which has evil conjunctions. The fact that she had many abortions is another indication for malignant disease of uterus. The case has been diagnosed as 'Cancer Uterus' and she has been advised total hysterotomy. This is rather unfortunate as she has already become a mental case. Here is an occasion for me to stress the point that for insanity Mercury must also suffer along with Moon's affliction. I am grateful to my readers for their various comments which are appearing in this magazine on my article Moon and Mental Melodies. And I once again endorse the view of Sri B. V. Raman with regard to mental affliction.

No. 1.—Rasi Chart:—Gemini-Kethu 7°; Cancer-Mars 20° 12′; Leo-Sun 14° 15′; Virgo-Venus 21° 10′; Mercury 10° 40′ and Lagna; Scorpio-Jupiter 22° 10′; Sagittarius-Rahu 7°; Capricorn-Moon 25° 0′; and Aquarius-Saturn 27° 6′.

No. 2.—Rasi Chart:–Aries-Rahu 15°; Taurus-Jupiter 13° 30; Gemini-Lagna 23° 7′; Libra-Kethu 15°; Sagittarius-Moon 6° 40′; Mars 28° 26′ and Saturn 13° 45′; Capricorn-Sun 12° 56′; Mercury 3° 2′; and Venus 10° 15′.

No. 3.—Rasi Chart:—Taurus, Lagna, Jupiter 9° 0; Cancer-Saturn 19° 48′; Virgo-Mars 6° 35′; Sagittarius-Mercury 8° 47′; Moon 7° 20′; Rahu 8° 3′; Sun 27° 48′; and Aquarius-Venus 2° 55′.

Case No. 4 (Birth Details) :— Born on 3-3-1929 at 2-30 p.m. (I.S.T.). Lat. 17° 22′ N., Long. 78° 27′ E. Balance of Mercury Dasa—15 years, 3 months and 18 days.

Case No. 4 is of dysmenorrhoea, which means painful menstruation. Here note the Moon's affliction by Kethu. Saturn is in the 2nd from Chandra Lagna. And in the navamsa the Moon is placed between Mars and Rahu and occupies the 6th house. Where there is a simple affliction like this ordinary menstrual troubles are manifested. Kethu's association with the Moon is not desirable for easy parturition also. As such the lady had two difficult labours when the child had to be extracted by forceps. She had abortions and miscarriages also.

Case No. 5 (Birth Details) :— Born on 25-7-1921 at 12-30 a.m. (I.S.T.). Lat. 19° 30′ N., Long. 80° 36′ E. Balance of Jupiter Dasa—2 years, 9 months and 18 days.

This native of Case No. 5 is suffering from oligomenorrhoea, meaning scanty menstruation. Please note here also the Moon is afflicted by Kethu. Mars the ruler of blood and breakage is neecha in Cancer. As such his strength to cause menstruation regularly is reduced. The combination of lord of 12th with the lord of the 11th is definitely bad for good health. Since Mercury is malefic for this Lagna her suffering has started from Mercury Dasa's entry in her life. Mercury owns 3rd and 6th house, and the shadowy planet Rahu is placed in 6th. And Mars lord of Lagna and planet responsible for regularity of menstruation is debilitated. When menses are scanty, it goes without saying that it will be painful also. Such persons suffer from back aches, leg aches and body aches in general. Apart from this, this lady suffers from frequent headaches, Lagna being Mesha.

I will now discuss 'amenorrhoea' which means cessation of normal menstruation. It is important to know the various causes of cessation. Apart from pregnancy, various disorders of hormonal glands and other systemic diseases like anaemia and tuberculosis, etc. also cause cessation of menses. The main organic diseases for amenorrhoea are said to be ovarian disfunction, adreno-cortical tumor, pituitary adenomata and Cushing's syndrome, etc. Apart from this, Dr. W. R. Winterton, the famous gynecologist of London, gives the causes of amenorrhoea as "change of residence, sudden shocks, worry and mental disorders will sometimes cause amenorrhoea, and desire or fear of pregnancy may also be responsible for amenorrhoea." I remember a case. A young lady of Warrangal district was told one evening all of a sudden that her husband was murdered while at work in his field. She was simply dumb-founded. She did not menstruate even though she was due. And she has never menstruated since then! In the same manner fear of pregnancy in an inexperienced and highly strung girl is quite possible and I will produce before you one such case. Brutal sex-act also will have adverse effect on menstruation. And in all such cases of 'phobia' I have found Rahu to be the afflicting planet. He creates unfounded fears and 'phobias'. Even the mere aspect of him can do this. Kethu's affliction to the Moon or Lagna makes a woman more aggressive rather than timid. But Rahu in the rising sign definitely makes a woman very timid. Such persons are very prone to deception. Excessive flow of menstrual blood increases the sexual appetite, whereas amenorrhoea completely destroys it, save when it is due to conception. In this connection we must study the 3rd house and its lord as it is the house of courage. Besides the Lagna also plays a great part in making the person courageous or a coward. It is seen that Mesha, Mithuna, Kanya, Dhanus and Meena Lagnas make a person

Scanned by Astrological Research Library. Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

No. 4.—Rasi Chart :—Aries-Jupiter 14°31′ and Venus 3° 45′; Taurus-Rahu 2° 14′; Gemini-Mars 4° 32′; Cancer Lagna; Scorpio-Moon 18° 0′ and Kethu 2° 14′; Sagittarius-Saturn 6° 32′; Capricorn-Mercury 22° 23′; and Aquarius-Sun 19° 34′.

No. 5.—Rasi Chart.—Aries-Lagna 21°; Taurus-Venus 24° 3′; Gemini-Mercury 19° 42′; Cancer-Sun 9° 15′ and Mars 1° 10′; Leo-Saturn 28° 31′ and Jupiter 24° 18′; Virgo-Rahu 28° 50′; Pisces-Kethu 28°50′ and Moon 1°.

timid in general. Such people worry much for small things in life and fear this or that thing. I will illustrate this fact from the following horoscope of a young married lady.

Case No. 6 (Birth Details):—Born on 1-7-1940 at 12-30 p.m. (I.S.T.). Lat. 17° 22′ N., Long. 78° 27′ E. Balance of Venus Dasa—1 year and 7 months.

The native of Case No. 6, a young lady, was menstruating normally until her marriage. But after the first night with her husband she was terror-stricken, became pale and began to lose weight. The parents and the husband were greatly worried over this. The girl would not tell them the reason of her apathy. They consulted a local hakeem, who told them that the girl was 'carrying'. And this made the girl all the more frantic, and she made up her mind to separate herself from the husband and she told her decision to her parents, who thought that she had become a mental case. So finally they came to me. I examined the girl thoroughly and asked the parents to supply the birth chart and particulars, which was readily furnished to me. The next day I went myself to the house of the patient and took her into confidence. She then revealed to me that one of her best girl-friends had died during 'parturition' on the very date of her nuptials. And the news greatly agitated her mind and she was afraid of the same fate. When I told her that she had not conceived, she seemed gladly relaxed. I then infused some strength in her by explaining things, and thus a complicated case of amenorrhoea was solved. From the next due date she began to have her 'period'. Please note the Lagna which is afflicted by Rahu who, as I have mentioned already, is reponsible for creating various 'phobias' and besides note the lord of the 3rd house who has suffered 'neecha' effect and his strength is greatly reduced on that account. Incidentally the lord of 3rd house is Mars who also governs blood and breakage as well as courage. And Moon the karaka for mind and menstruation is associated with Saturn. The girl is hypersensitive, fearful and nervous type. In short this is a very interesting and typical case of amenorrhoea due to fear of pregnancy.

There are various other menstrual disorders which cannot be dealt with in a short article like this. Prof. B. S. Rao is perfectly right when he remarks that the whole life of a woman depends upon the 'first menses'—, for the Muhurtha of menses also plays a great part in the emotional life of a woman. He has dealt with this subject in detail in his book Stri Jataka. No wonder that the Sanskrit texts contain a lot of literature on this subject.

As a rule whenever a female horoscope is presented for examination we should examine the position of the Moon, Mars, Rahu and Kethu, besides other relevant factors to Medical astrology. Leaving apart the normal sex-life, a woman's life depends mainly upon the position of Moon, who controls emotions, menstrual cycle, and maternity. You cannot think of a healthy woman without normal menstrual cycle and maternity. Any number of yogas present in the chart cannot sustain them against diseases. Medical astrology will therefore be of immense help to the astrologers to keep the clients 'prewarned' against possible diseases. Thanks to Sri B. V. Raman who has undertaken to translate in English the great Sanskrit classic Prasna Marga, which deals exhaustively with diseases.

Scanned by www.sanatanshastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Raman work

No. 6.—Rasi Chart:—Aries-Saturn 19°, Jupiter 16° 15′ and Moon 25° 35′; Gemini-Sun 14° 50 and Venus 9°; Cancer-Mars 9° 30′ and Mercury 8° 48′; Virgo-Saturn 19°, Lagna 19° and Rahu 24° 27′; and Pisces-Kethu 24° 27′.

GRAHA AND BHAVA BALAS (SIXTH EDITION)

A Unique Treatise for measuring the Strengths of Planets and Houses numerically

By B. V. RAMAN

An entirely new book on Mathematical Astrology. The first real effort to present the complicated methods of assigning planetary and house strengths in a popular and easy style. Suitable for even laymen, it is just what enquirers have long been seeking containing as it does everything necessary for a quick and accurate study of astrological mathematics so very essential for correct predictions. Experts and students will welcome this new publication.

Rs. 3–75 or Sh. 7/6 :: Postage Extra

Order your Copy at once. Less 12½% to Subscribers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

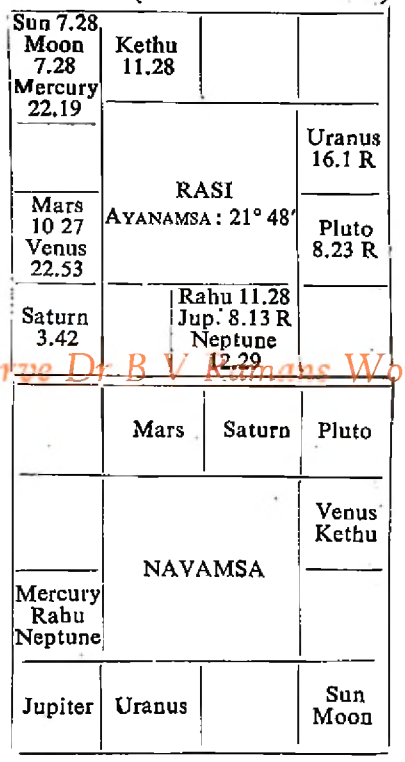
RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE-3

Significance of Lunar New Year Chart in Mundane Astrology

BY B. SURYA PRAKASH

FOR purposes of predicting important events in a native's life, his radix is generally consulted and predictions made accordingly on the basis of suitable directional systems. In India, we employ the never-failing Vimshottari and Kala Chakra Dasas, along with gochara or transits. In the West, secondary directions followed by the symbolic directions of one degree equal to one year are frequently employed. Of course, the test of time has shown to us that the symbolic direction of one degree equal to one year is a very reliable system. Again for purposes of delineating the yearly results we have our Varshaphal as compared with the solar return of the West. In both the systems we calculate the time of the Sun's entry into the same position (correct upto the second) which he held in the radix, and this we consider as the yearly chart for the year under consideration.

Now so much about the directional systems and methods of delineations as far as the radix of a native is concerned. But in making mundane predictions we do not have the radix of each and every country. Of course during these days when Governments are as unstable as sand dunes, we cannot even hope to get the correct hour (let alone the correct minute) of the formation of new Governments. Hence on account of these difficulties more often than not, the chart of solar entry into different cardinal signs is employed. But with the correct value of Ayanamsa (precession of equinoxes) itself being in dispute, we cannot rely on these solar entry charts, however strong the arguments may be in support of a particular value of Ayanamsa, for the simple reason whereas it is possible to make certain mundane events coincide with certain types of planetary patterns, of a solar entry chart, the same chart has very often failed us miserably owing to its inability to explain other incidents with the same planetary pattern.



Mundane events based on solar entry charts into hypsomatic cardinal signs are being demonstrated by one of the contributors in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. While we appreciate his arguments, we are sorry to say that his solar entry charts do not account for all the mundane events.

If one has seen the Editorials in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, one will not fail to appreciate the validity and usefulness of the New Year chart employed by the Hindus. This can be cast without any trouble with reference to Ayanamsa, and this chart clearly indicates all the important mundane events of the year under consideration. The proof of the validity of the same can be had through such outstanding predictions, as the American intervention in Iraqi crises, Bulganin's downfall, Khruschev's rise, the fall of the Pakistan Government, etc., which had been clearly anticipated in the Editorial columns of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

According to the Hindu system, the New Year is said to commence at the time of the New Moon prior to the entry of Sun into Nirayana Aries. A chart cast for this time will explain the important events that are going to occur during the year under consideration.

In this article, it is my desire to point out how this chart strikingly explains even the correct time (within a day or two) of an event, and how the same may be easily substituted for a capsolar chart or any other chart employed for making mundane predictions.

The following are the planetary positions at the commencement of the New Year (1958) which occurred at 3–21 p.m. (I.S.T.) on 20–3–1958 (G.M.T. is 9–51 a.m.)

A mere glance at this planetary set-up shows that Mars is by far the strongest planet as he is exalted, is in his own navamsa, is in association with Venus in Rasi and has the aspect of Jupiter in navamsa.

On account of this strong position of Mars, it is natural for us to expect in general much bloodshed, war-cries, explosions, rioting, etc., with which Mars has been associated. But his Rasi association with Venus (in a movable sign), and his having the aspect of Jupiter from his own sign (in navamsa) temper his evil influences considerably, thereby minimising the possibility of war on a large scale. It is also significant to note that the exaltation of Mars has reference to 10th from Aries ruling Britain, (as lord of 1 and 8), 8th from Gemini ruling U.S.A., 6th from Leo (ruling France), and 12th from Aquarius (ruling U.S.S.R.) These dispositions of Mars suggest that the British Cabinet would be more war-minded and aggressive in its outlook, and much troubles would be in store for the Government. (Since the commencement of the New Year the British Government has faced many racial troubles). The 8th house situation of Mars from the ruling sign of U.S.A. indicates that the death-rate would be on the increase and that there would be many sex-crimes (Mars-Venus association in 8th). This position also indicates a national mourning (in U.S.A.) It is also interesting to note that Mars rules 6th and 11th from the ruling sign of U.S.A., indicating that America will be advancing more and more state loans, but these loans will not be of much use as far as U.S.A. is concerned on account of the 8th house situation of Mars. This position also indicates that the international prestige of America will be more on the waning side.

Scanned by www.sahajishwaryogam.com Preserve Dr. B V Raman's Work

From the above discussion and the events I have given below, it would be evident that the occurrence of mundane events can be predicted with greater accuracy on the basis of New Year chart instead of capsolar chart.

Overthrow of Monarchy in Baghdad

The ascendant in New Year chart for Baghdad (erected for 12.28 p.m. L.M.T.on 20–3–1958) is 26° 28′ Gemini with 13° Pisces on M.C.

This chart shows some interesting features. The ascendant is considerably weakened by its lord's debility in the meridian. Mercury has not obtained Neechabhanga. In navamsa also he is considerably blemished by his association with Rahu and Neptune. Again the ruler of the meridian Jupiter, though in 5th from Lagna, is considerably blemished owing to his situation in the 8th from 10th, in an inimical sign with Rahu and Neptune. These afflictions to the ascendant, meridian and their lords clearly indicate that the ruling head of the country is in for some danger. It is also interesting to note that Neptune, the planet of illusion afflicts the meridian lord Jupiter along with Rahu, clearly indicating that neither the king nor the members of the ruling party ever suspected their being betrayed. Again the association of Sun, representing political power and the Moon representing common people, in the meridian in a better position than Mercury suggests the nature of the Government to be set up. Again Mars as lord of 6th representing enemies, opposition, wars, etc., in exaltation in 8th indicates that the ruling party had to face serious troubles (Mars in 8th) through military (Mars) resulting in a national mourning (Mars in 8th),

Now we shall progress the M.C. and the ascendant to the day on which the coup took place at the rate of 1 degree per day on 14—7—1958. The progressed M.C. is within 1 degree of the opposition of Mars in the New Year chart. The opposition of the natal Mars of the New Year chart to the progressed M.C. involves 2nd and 8th houses which indicates danger to the "aristocracies of the State".

Ahmedabad Police Firing

On 12th August 1958, "a blanket of 24 hours curfew since 9 tonight was clamped on a greater part of the city after day long clashes between pro-Maha Gujerat crowds and the police following the removal by the police early this morning of the Martyr's memorial raised by the Maha Gujerat Parishad on August 8th. The police opened fire three times in the afternoon, made lathi charges at 25 different places and burst over 100 tear gas squibs to disperse defiant crowds."

The New Year at Ahmedabad commenced on 20th March 1958 at 2-41 p.m. (L.M.T.) Scorpio 25° 8′ rising and Virgo 8° 51′ culminating. The co-ordinates of Ahmedabad are 72° 35′ East, 23° 2′ North.

The progressed ascendant of the New Year chart on the day of the incident came into exact conjunction with transitting retrograde Saturn in Scorpio.

Thus the ascendant progressed exactly (within 2 degrees) comes to a conjunction of retrograde Saturn (transitting), on the day of the police firing. Saturn represents common people and the sign Scorpio is credited with explosions, underground happenings, etc.

Banaras Boat Tragedy

On 13th August 1958, "13 pilgrims from Mysore were drowned when their ferry boat capsized after being caught in a swift current. Of these there were 9 women and children."

Looking into New Year chart of Banaras we find 0° 30′ of Leo rising with 28° 34′ of Aries on M.C. The ruler of the ascendant is placed in the 8th house in conjunction with the malefic Moon and Rasi association of Mercury ruling 12th house indicating losses. Added to this, the New

(Continued on page 158)

Scanned by www.sreenivasaastrology.com Proprietor: P.V.R. Narasimha Rao Work

Some Aspects of Nadi Horoscopes

BY CYRUS D. F. ABAYAKOON

YOU may call astrology a science or an art. You can label it as a fraud, a superstition or even a pernicious doctrine as astronomer-royals do. But whatever you might say you are bound to examine the power of vision and astronomical accuracy behind the Indian Rishi forecasts which go under titles like Sapta Rishi, Bhrigu Jataka and Agasthya. These prophecies, like many others of ancient Sanskrit origin, have been recopied by Grantha writers of about the 10th century A.D.[1]

Opinion is divided on the reliability, utility and accuracy of these old palm-leaf horoscopes. A reader of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE in Bombay City writes to me as follows:— "I bought Nadi readings (Kousica) from one pandit who is now in Ceylon. Even these readings have failed. Some years back I was interested in a girl whose Nadi reading mentioned that I would be her husband. Mine said that she would be my wife. But she has married someone else whose name was not mentioned in her leaf."

The Kousica leaves, he refers to, are recordings of horoscopical discussions between Visvamitra and Vasishta. The poor copies discovered in Madras have, in all probability, come from better and clearer readings. If the two Rishis were able to describe the girl whom the subject might marry at a given period they would have also stated why, due to some Karma, he will be prevented from making her his wife. When the copyist came to a gap in the leaves found in some ancient Hindu temple he was left in the dark as to the eventual turn of events discussed by the two sages in this particular case and the copyist wrote something from his own knowledge. I have found that in some bundles the age of the palm-leaves varies.[2]

CYRUS D. F. ABAYAKOON

For quite a long time I have subjected these mysterious olas (palm-leaves) to a fairly comprehensive examination. I remember a hoax perpetrated by some Madras quacks in 1938. Knowing that in Ceylon the Nadis are valued, a group of people got together and through spies learnt facts about the past of some prominent individuals. These were written down on ola-leaves and blackened over with soot. The Sinhala spy-cum-agent peeped through a key-hole to see who had come to consult the "leaves". On a subsequent date the seeker was invited to come after the search for the Edul Past events were correct and naturally the client thought that the future too would run to form!

The above does not prove that all Nadis are fake. Far from it. Those that came my way belonged, for the most part, to three distinct groups, viz.— Nandi Vakya, Bhrigu Jataka and Agasthya of the Sapta Rishi. In February 1939, I met a Ceylonese who had examined some Bhrigu bundles in Gwalior. He had stayed there for several years and had learnt the art of finding the Lagna from the face and head. On a latter visit to Gwalior he succeeded in getting more details regarding his life and those of his very close friends—details that were remarkably true and this searcher after ancient Hindu wisdom shuffled off his mortal coil in the year foretold.

An Englishman who has lived in Ceylon for well-nigh 40

Scanned by Jyoti Sansthan jyotishvidyasastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

[1] I can easily anticipate the argument of the champions of the Dravidian movement that a Sanskrit Nadi like the Dhruva may itself be a translation from some original in Tamil!! The counter-argument is also easy to imagine. These arguments and counter-arguments solve no problem. The irrefutable and unchallengeable fact is that these Tamil Nadis use such an enormously large number of terms in Sanskrit as would leave no doubt whatsoever that the Tamil Nadis must have been modelled on original works in Sanskrit. There is no escape from this solid and stubborn fact. Politics, political prejudices and predelictions and communal hatreds and rivalries could never alter Facts". Dr. R. Nagaraja Sarma, "Challenge of Nadi Literature", THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, January 1952, Pp. 23).

[2] Paul Brunton in his A Search in Secret India (Pp. 150–152) recalls how he met Sudhei Babu, a Brahmin astrologer of Banaras who showed him a yoga system composed of thousands of pages entitled Bhrama Chinta written by Bhrigu Maha Rishi thousands of years back. Brunton writes: "A 75 percent success in an initial test is startling enough to show that Hindu astrology calls for investigation but it also indicates that the later is no precise, infallible science... Yet Sudhei Babu's reading of my horoscope has stirred me to the perception that Hindu astrology is not superstitious nonsense, and that it may well warrant a deeper investigation."

years assures me that he has found amazing revelations in these olas. It was prophesied that he would leave for India during a certain period and meet a friend of his, in a previous birth, living in Malabar Hill, Bombay City. This forecast was strangely fulfilled when, on a visit to Bombay, he went up to Malabar Hill to breathe the cool evening air over the waves of the Arabian Sea. There he met an Indian business magnate who offered him a bungalow and a sizable pay-packet if he would only sign a five-year contract to assist him in an engineering project. The Englishman, due to his commitments in Ceylon, could not accept this generous offer (he regrets it today) and came back to Colombo. Subsequently he took another English friend to a Bhrigu reader in Colombo. In a bundle of musty olas was written that the person who gets the leaves read would have had a brother who committed suicide while living in Bombay. Perhaps this Englishman formed the same opinion about the olas as did Lord Curzon at Tanjore: "I came to India a sceptic, I leave convinced." [3]

[3] A reader of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, from Bunder Road, Karachi, Pakistan, wrote to me on 14th March 1951 as follows:—"I have had the pleasure of reading several articles written by you in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. In 1955 I was in your beautiful country. Being tremendously interested in astrology but sceptical about the Nadi branch I consulted a Nadi astrologer and obtained a complete reading of my life. What is baffling was the detailed account given of my family and my life, beginning from my great grandfather till the last years of my life. I have read some articles on the Nadis and it is generally believed that the past is most vividly and correctly given but what they say about the future is not always correct. It is almost 2½ years since I consulted the Nadi and whatever it said about the intervening period has come right. I am therefore most intrigued and would like to know more about the Nadi literature."

Some persons, in anxious haste to ascertain the dark, unknown morrow, accept as genuine any ola bundles which come under the Tamil name Edu. A very keen student of astrology and a contributor to THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE sent me what he described as an Edu found in Irinjalakude. It was in very old Malayalam-Tamil. On examination it contained nothing but a birth chart with birth-particulars (astronomical), the padding being a number of devotional songs written by a devout farmer to his patron deity. It had no predictions relating to his past, present or future. This same friend told me as follows:—"Perhaps you may have already heard of another source of documents which do not provide all details but correct and mysterious in certain respects giving a wide range of the past and future births. It is in half Sanskrit and it is in the custody of Sri .....in Pattanchery, T/C State." [4] (20–6–52.)

There are two distinct classes of Jatakas: the ones with birth-chart and horoscope details and the readings which give details when matched with a key which every person carries on his or her palm. Of the former type (horoscope system) — Agasthya class—there are 700 bundles in the possession of a Madura astrologer. Prof. B. V. Raman, Editor of this renowned journal, tells me that he has seen hundreds of Nadis in Sanskrit, Tamil and even Telugu and has formed his own opinion which he has so far not expressed to his numerous readers throughout the world. Of the palmistry system there are at least 42,000 bundles, all on the Sapta Rishi model, and in the picture provided I am seen examining a few of the bundles. These were made available to me by an Indian who had resided in Singapore for well-nigh 20 years. Although many have written about these ola-leaf prophecies made by ancient Hindu Rishis no one has thought it fit to provide photographic evidence.

The ola bundles illustrated in this article belong to Agasthya Rishi and the copies in Grantha have been made by one Machakendra over a thousand years back.

I shall now compare a father's leaf from the Nadi group called Nandi Vakya with that of his son's taken from the Agasthya Palmistry Section. The former is identified as Adukku visiri sakkara irattai yoga sankhu pulli irai likithamsa and the latter as Sarada marai sath-guttah mukkuni-amsam pulli navam—a mixture of Sanskrit, Sinhala, Tamil, Telugu and Pali. Philologists will, no doubt, find it extremely difficult to fix the age of the words.

Scanned by eGangotri Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Project Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

[4] Sri C. Krishna Menon of Trichur, S. Malabar, tells me that so far the Nadi he had taken has not kept to the pattern indicated. Mir Bashir in an article entitled "Measured my Shadow and told my Future" (Tit-Bits, No. 3564, February 1954, Pp. 25) states that his future was correctly indicated in a very old ola (one among hundreds) in the possession of a Bombay Pandit. The partition of India, the communal riots and his subsequent palmistry work abroad were all clearly shown. The horoscope was got by measuring the shadow—a very old system in Ceylon. (Reprinted in the Sunday Times of Ceylon of 23rd September 1956, Pp. 9 under the caption "The Book of Shadows"). A few years before World War II, I was lucky to meet four venerable looking Sikh astrologers at the Colombo Fort Railway Station having come overland with bundles and bundles of cadjan leaves wrapped up in mats. They were in Sanskrit and found, according to them, in a rock temple in North India. Most of them contained the lives of persons then living in Paris, France, and they intended to take ship. They claimed that the leaves were very ancient and came from Kashmir.

In the elder person's Nandi Vakya there are two sections: The first states that it was the goddess Parvati, consort of Siva, who gave the vision to the Rishi to picture the past, present and future of the seeker. It marvellously reveals the locality of birth, the number of brothers and sisters and other intimate details. A strikingly true statement is made :—"When you are between 48 and 50 years and when you are in Mercury's Rahu that will be the time when you will find this reading by me." What really amazed him was the prediction: "You will get employed under Government in a department where wheeled conveyances travel about and you will get this employment in your 21st year." True, he joined the Ceylon Government Railway.

A sceptic can say that as the above facts could have come within the knowledge of a shrewd purveyor of ola-leaf prophecies manufactured by him, after ascertaining past details, the Nadi readings about the past are of no value. Part II of this bundle disproves such a justifiable accusation. This section is called the 12th Gandam and was taken on the same day as the first section. As in the earlier bundle it begins with some details about the goddess Parvati and to a large extent is a repetition, with some additional details, of the past which not even a very close and intimate relative could have divined. It goes on to speak of Gandam (Grantha Dosha) for wife and after some predictions about her says :—"The illness for your wife is more pertaining to defective.....necessary for the conception of children. She can conceive a girl if the Shanthi (prescribed) is done." The propitiation was done but no girl was born. Looks confusing isn't it? Nevertheless the ola says: "When you are 55 years you will retire from Government Service. At this time you should have a boy and a girl living and doing well. The girl is provisional because your getting a daughter depends entirely on the merit of the Shanthi." This curious conditional prophecy about a girl was fulfilled when, in his 55th year (after retirement) he adopted a little girl to take the place of the expected daughter and strange to say she was born on Friday, January 23, 1948 at 8-02 p.m., not long after the Shanthi was done! This is no doubt a gift from Parvati through another mother.

Scanned by www.saptarishiastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

Sixteen years later the son of this retired official sought out an Agasthya Rishi leaf-reader who looked at the two palms for the code after applying some special oil. This led to the discovery of a set of ola-leaves, which, in certain parts, read as follows :—"His father's job will require much travelling. He will occupy a responsible post in a department of wheeled conveyances." Correct—Ceylon Government Railway. We see here that both Nandi and Agasthya corroborate in a manner too clear and precise to admit of any doubt whatsoever. The uncanny vision of Agasthya is heightened when he gives the father's surname too. The Nadi however did not mention the family name.

The Agasthya reading enumerates various matters which seem to be too trifling to have engaged the attention of a sage. Regarding the previous birth the record says:—"You were born into a Royal family in Kashmir. The place was hilly and almost surrounded by a lake. You usurped the kingdom from your brother by deposing him and you were cursed that hereafter you should be reborn alone, without brothers and sisters." This explains why the Shanthi performed by the father, as requested by Nandi, on the orders of Parvati, did not produce the sister. Evidently curses transcend time and mortal state. Agasthya says: "The birth of a further child depends on your mother doing a Shanthi and taking a vow." The left palm-imprint of this former Kashmir usurper is given below.

There is a very strange aspect in this particular Agasthya horoscope. The subject (a doctor) went to the leaf-reader to ascertain whether he would marry the girl he had in mind at that time. There was no support astrologically. Instead the leaves said: "You will get married to a person unconnected with your family. Her father is not in Government Service at the time the leaves are seen by you but is respected by the Government. He is very wealthy—a landed proprietor. This girl will have a few sisters and a brother—3 to 5 in the family. Your friendship is something that started when you were 24 years old and it will end in marriage." Regarding the girl, Agasthya states that she too was born in Kashmir in some distant

	Rahu		Mars Jupiter
	CHART NO. 1 RASI
			Mercury
Lagna 16.13 Moon Saturn		Venus Kethu	Sun

Horoscope of a Kashmis Prince who dethroned his brother, usurped the kingdom and is now a doctor in Lanka. 1930, September 30th, Tuesday at 12.12 noon. Purvashada, 3rd Venus: 8-7-24. [5] era and was his wife. For participating in the usurpation-plot (an old Hindu Macbeth story) she got cursed and was reborn in the Land of the Demons to the south of the Dravida country. "She will be good to the people through her husband who will be dealing with diseases and medicines. She will be reborn in a place near the East of the Irawaddy river (in Burma) into a Buddhist family a noble family doing religious work in that country. She will not wish to get married and will remain single and will have no rebirth thereafter." This prophecy about a marriage to a doctor is as good as falsified because a different person from a different profession is very likely to marry her in the very near future. By the time this article appears in print, barring an extraordinary accident, she will be the lawfully-wedded wife of another. The above details are from the girl's leaves and the misfire is an extraordinary circumstance.

The lines on this palm reveal the past, present and future of a former prince of Kashmir whose greed overpowered this sense of duty and loyalty. Truly the evil that men do lives after them.

	CHART NO. 2 RASI		Kethu
Venus Saturn Rahu			Lagna 25.56
Mars	Sun Mercury	Moon	Jupiter

Horoscope of a Kashmir Princess who joined her husband in a Hindu Macbeth plot, got cursed and was reborn in Lanka. After her death she will be reborn to a Burman Buddhist family living to the East of the Irawaddy river. 1933, December 14th, Thursday at 11.45 p.m. Visakha, 2nd Jupiter: 8-11-22. [6]

Another doctor-friend of mine looked into a Sapta Rishi bundle

(Continued on page 162)

[5] Regarding the subject's profession the Rishi says: "You will qualify well in medicine and you will be a good lecturer." True. He passed out as a doctor and then, in August 1957, became a lecturer—two years after the ola was discovered.

[6] There is a remarkable detail, viz.: "Her father would have been in the Government in the Rajya Sabha and then had to leave to do his own work." For the future it says: "He will have some connection with the Government and the general public. The eldest girl will have prosperity. She will have to go to foreign countries with her husband." Very accurate.

Scanned by www.sriparishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

Astrology and Infant Mortality

BY Vidyabhaskara PROF. M. RAMAKRISHNA BHAT, M.A.

ALTHOUGH man is mortal, yet it is his ambition to keep the God of death at bay as long as he could. Accordingly the prayers of the ancient Aryans were for the gift of a long life for hundred years and more. That is why Purush-ayusha, human span of life, was considered to consist of 100 years. In ancient times, we are told, people generally lived to a ripe old age of 120 years. The elephant which is an exemplar for human beings in respect of strength, nobility, majesty, vegetarianism, etc., also lives a life of 120 years. The Ramayana tells us that during the reign of Sri Rama people enjoyed good health and long life, and there was no fear of accidental or premature death. Similarly parents never had occasion to grieve for the death of their children. Statisticians of the present day reveal that in Asia from 100 to 300 infants in a thousand die before they reach the end of the year. They say that in Asia, Africa and Latin America, a large percentage of children are attacked and killed by malaria, malnutrition and tuberculosis. Though scientists may be able to trace the cause of the abnormal infant mortality in certain parts of the world in a scientific manner, in our humble opinion, what they call the "cause" is not the whole and sole cause for it. For we believe that man reaps the fruits of his deeds done in a previous life. As he sows, so he reaps—is the rationale of this earthly life, good, bad or indifferent. As the Dark Age, Kaliyuga, advances, man gets more and more attached to flesh and matter as well as to the enjoyment of pleasures accruing therefrom. Consequently he forgets the Spirit or God and naturally his Dharma. He forgets that his human birth is for fulfilling a mission, and not for enjoying sensual pleasures beyond certain limits and period of life. Animals of a lower order of creation obey instinctively certain rules of sexual conduct, whereas man with all his powers of discrimination and knowledge of science, religion and philosophy is still a slave to his passions. In consequence of this he perpetrates many a crime, spoils his Brahmacharya and accumulates a heap of sins to be harvested in his next life, wherein he gets a short span of life, sickness, blindness or epilepsy and the like. The Sastras lay down that to sleep when the Sun rises and sets is a great sin. In modern society, however, with its strong political colouring, people, both sophisticated and ordinary, have to attend tea-parties, garden-parties, etc., during Pradosha, time of dusk, which is specially sacred to Lord Parameswara who in the presence of all the Gods of Heaven is said to undertake His Cosmic Dance, the Tandava for His supreme pleasure and for maintaining the equilibrium of the universe. It is reported that the Pradosha period of an hour and a half should be utilised exclusively for the worship of that Lord, lest His hosts consisting of diseases like epilepsy and lunacy should afflict the offenders. Moderners with a scientific bent of mind would not believe in this, nay might scoff at this idea. But, it should not be forgotten that there is also a scientific basis for this prohibition of eating, mating, etc., at that time. For, the dusk is a transitional period when the condition of the atmosphere and the earth as well as of the invisible microbes and spirits that float in the air are not quite happy and so they attack those that lack resistance, both spiritual and physical. There are still others, who, as poet Bana describes, offend their masters or Gurus by their acts of omission and commission and get their curses though unexpressed. So do others who abuse Gods and holy men. There is a saying in Kannada to the effect that a man who has been well fed need not pronounce his blessings, nor one who has been wronged his curse. All these sins are visited upon the person in his subsequent birth in the shape of fell diseases, misery, short life, early death of children, etc.

M. RAMAKRISHNA BHAT

It is my objective in this article to show by means of examples culled from my records how and why the concerned subjects met with an early death. First of all we should know the yogas or planetary configurations leading to short life, nay infant mortality,

Scanned by www.sreevahisastrology.com To Preserve Late B.V. Raman's Work

The period of Balarishta lasts for 8 years and a child may die in this period being afflicted by Balagrahas or certain evil spirits. It is also the opinion of the ancients that until a child is twelve years old, its longevity cannot be predicted, as it may die in the first four-year period as a result of its mother's sins, in the second, of the father's sins and lastly of its own sins. Between this period and 20 years one may die in consequence of Yogarishta, and lastly upto the age of 32 years one may quit the world on account of Alpayus or short life. The following are some of the yogas leading to very early death :—

1. Birth in Dinamrityu, Dinaroga and Vishaghatis. *
2. Birth in the third pada of Pushya, Purvashada and Chitta.
3. Birth in a Rasi junction which is occupied or aspected by malefics.
4. Birth in a Gandanta star
5. Birth in any Sandhi (there are four such junctions—one of day and night, another of two lunar days, of two Rasis, and of stars) being conjoined with or aspected by malefics.
6. If the Moon at birth occupying a kendra or the 8th house has attained the fateful degree in the particular sign.
7. If malefics occupy only the 8th and the kendras; or only the 1st and the 8th; or the 1st and 7th.
8. When the Moon or the ascendant is hemmed in betwixt malefics.
9. When the weak Moon is posited in the 6th, 8th or 12th.
10. When the weak Moon along with malefics is in 1, 5, 7 or 9 (8 or 12) without benefic aspect.
11. If malefics occupy the 7th and 8th.
12. If no benefic occupies or aspects a kendra.
13. If the lord of the Lagna or of the sign occupied by the Moon is in an evil house, the child dies within so many years as the Rasi is removed from Aries. If the lord of the concerned decanate or navamsa be similarly placed, the end would come off in so many months or days as the case may be.
14. When the planets in the 5th and 8th houses are very powerful malefics.

The following are the yogas for Sadyomarana or immediate death according to Prithuyasas:—

1. If Sun and Moon occupy the 3rd house, which belongs to a malefic, in conjunction with malefics, the child will not live beyond 3 years.
2. If the Moon occupies a kendra along with the lord of the 8th, and if the 8th house has a planet in it, immediate death is the result.
3. If Mars and the Sun should together occupy the 7th house counted from the Moon, and Rahu the ascendant, the child will not live beyond 10 days.
4. If all the malefics are in kendras, or if all the kendras are surrounded by malefics, it will not live for more than 10 days.
5. If there is a malefic in the 7th house from the sign denoted by the rising decanate, and if the weak Moon is in the Lagna, immediate death will follow.
6. If all the planets being weak occupy Apoklima houses (3, 6, 9, 12), it will die in two months or at the most in six months.
7. If the lord of the Lagna is debilitated while occupying the 7th or 8th house, the child will be practically dead, even should it breathe.
8. If the Muhurtha of birth is a cruel one, if there is at first the rise of a Kethu and then fall of meteors, thunderbolts, etc., the child will die soon.
9. If the birth is during an eclipse, a misty circle around the Sun or the Moon, and when a malefic occupies or aspects the Lagna, it will live for three fortnights or three months.
10. If the lords of the Lagna and the Rasi of the Moon and those of their amsas are eclipsed, it will die in a few days.
11. If the lords of the Lagna and the Rasi are in the 6th, 8th or 12th and are combust, it dies in so many years as are indicated by the number of the sign concerned.
12. If the Lagna-lord or the waning Moon is in the 8th, and is conjoined with or aspected by Rahu, it will live for 7 years.
13. If Rahu along with malefics should aspect the weak Moon and if the lord of the Janma Rasi is eclipsed, death will occur in the 6th or 8th year.
14. If the Lagna-lord in conjunction with Rahu occupies the 7th, death will occur in 21 days, months or years.
15. If the 8th is occupied by malefics and the Lagna-lord along with malefics occupies a kendra without conjunction or aspect of benefics, death will occur in 7 years.
16. Add up the longitudes of the Sun and the Moon. If this sum indicates a kendra or the 9th house, and if the latter is occupied by a malefic, death will be caused by poison or drowning.

I am giving below some more yogas for infant mortality according to Sage Mrikandu :—

1. If Venus is weak and is in a house other than a kendra or kona, if the lord of the ascendant and Jupiter are afflicted by male-

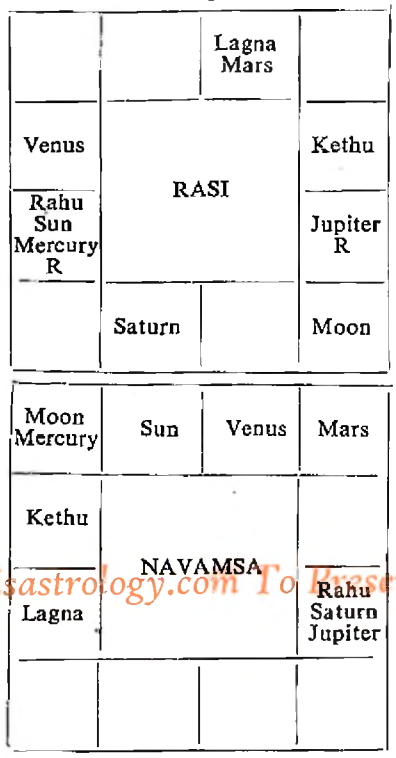
(Continued on page 93)

Scanned by www.vedicastrology.com To Preserve Old Astrology Work

* Dinamrityu:—The 1st pada of Dhanishta and Hasta; the 2nd of Visakha and Ardra; the 3rd of Uttarabhadra and Aslesha; and the 4th of Bharani and Moola. Dinaroga:—The 1st pada of Aslesha and Uttarabhadra; 2nd of Bharani and Moola; 3rd of U. Phalguna and Sravana; and the 4th of Swati and Mrigasiras.

*Horoscope of Netaji Bose

BY BISHNUPADA BHATTACHARYA



NETAJI'S father records his birth at Cuttack on 23-1-1897 as follows : " A son born—a few minutes after 12 (between 12 and 1 p.m.)." There is nothing more definite than that to go by.

Most astrologers have taken his birth time to be 12–15 p.m. According to some it is the Indian Standard Time (which had not been introduced then), while according to others it is the Madras Time. In either case, the Lagna is Mesha—the difference being in degrees only.

Only a few astrologers, however, from the trend of his life-events, are inclined to think the Lagna is Taurus, and I agree with them. With Mesha Lagna, lord of 10th, Saturn would be in the 8th, and the native's ideal of life would consequently have been quite different from what we know. Besides, with Mesha Lagna, the Moon, lord of 4th, would be in the 6th, and consequently Netaji, instead of dedicating his life to the service of his country would have been a man of low stature.

Again, with Mesha Lagna, according to Parasara, his span of life would have been short—not exceeding 40 years. And further, with Mesha Lagna his general trend of life and life-events would have been quite different.

There can be no doubt that he was born near about 12–15 p.m. I have therefore taken his birth time to be 12-20 p.m. (Madras Time), at Cuttack. (Long.–85° 54′ E., Lat.–20° 28′ N.). This gives the L.M.T. of birth as about 12–42–40 p.m.

Planetary Positions

Sun 281° 10′; Moon 157° 42′; Mars 49° 31′; Mercury 279° 24′ R; Jupiter 136° 30′ R; Venus 326° 19′; Saturn 216° 38′; Rahu 293° 32′; Kethu 113° 32′; and Lagna 30° 42′.

Balance of Sun's Dasa—1 year and 13 days.

Note: (a) Lagnadhipati Venus in the 10th, proceeding towards its exaltation; (b) Vyayapati (lord of 12th) Mars in Lagna; (c) Saturn, lord of 9th and 10th posited in the 7th and in opposition to Vyayapati Mars in the 1st.

1. According to the text-books Jatakabharana and Jatakamoda, birth in Taurus Lagna :—

(a) endows the native with higher qualities; (b) makes him rich, respectful to his superiors, amiable to all, calm and dignified; and (c) gives him fame and renown and power to subdue his enemies, and many other qualities of the head and heart.

2. Being born in Abhijit Muhurtha, he has been universally acclaimed as a great leader (Netaji) by the people.

3. Venus, the lord of Lagna, is in his own navamsa and in the birth chart is posited in the 10th (a friendly sign) and proceeding towards its exaltation and is in opposition to Jupiter. This gives the following results :—

(a) his deeds become famous; (b) he commands universal respect; (c) he is the most distinguished and powerful member in the family geneology (kula-sreshtha); (d) he is honoured and respected even by the kings; and (e) even in his exile, he enjoys various amenities.

4. Mars, lord of 7th, is posited in Lagna. This gives the following results :—

(a) makes him a votary of truth and a powerful worker; (b) gives him patience, organizing abilities, incomparable power and a kingly appearance; (c) endows him with military genius and powers of generalship; and (d) makes him a violent revolutionary and liable to frequent imprisonments.

5. Jupiter in the 4th has given him a liberality of mind, a sweet temperament and love for the people and made him a devoted servant of his motherland.

6. The Moon in the 5th gives him love for the people without any distinction of caste or creed and an intense love for his country.

7. Saturn, lord of 9th and 10th, being in the 7th, indicates his utmost sacrifices for the good of the country and the people.

8. Saturn (lord of 9th and 10th) is posited in the 7th (the sign of Mars) and is associated

* Translated from Bengali into English by Dr. S. N. Dutt (maternal uncle of Netaji).

Scanned by www.sapnisastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B.V.Raman's Work with Vyayapati Mars in the 1st (opposition). This gives rise to what is known as "Pravrajya Yoga" and indicates extensive travels and even a life in cognito.

9. Jupiter, lord of 8th, being retrograde in the 4th, indicates his leaving his home and his country. In the horoscope of Sri Ramachandra, Saturn, the lord of the 8th was exalted in the 4th. This gave rise to his 14 years of life in cognito. In the horoscope of Netaji, the lord of the 8th, being posited in the 4th, indicates a similar or analogous result.

10. The Sun, Mercury and Rahu in the 9th indicate a high political understanding, a lofty idealism, great fame and his intense popularity with the people. Venus in the 10th confirms the same results.

11. Raja Yogas—

(a) Sun and Mercury, lords of the 4th and 5th respectively, being posited in the 9th with Rahu have become powerful Rajayogakarakas. This has caused the native to be honoured and respected even by the kings. With Mesha Lagna, this yoga would not have been possible; (b) according to Parasara, birth soon after midday (or midnight) is also a powerful Rajayoga; (c) Venus being posited in the 2nd from the Sun. This is called a Vesi Rajayoga; (d) Jupiter being placed in the 12th from the Moon. This is called Anapa Rajayoga.

To find four such important Rajayogas in one birth chart is rather unusual except in the case of a personality like Netaji.

12. Saturn, lord of 9th and 10th, posited in the 7th, is in association with Vyayapati Mars in the 1st (opposition); and Sun and Mercury, lords of 4th and 5th, are posited in the sign of Saturn and aspected by him. This gives rise to what is known as the Nripa-Tapas Yoga. Mention has already been made of Pravrajya Yoga.

13. The lord of the 7th is in the 1st, and the matrimonial planet (Strikaraka) Venus is in the 10th. This indicates a beautiful wife; but the configuration of Mars in the 1st, Saturn in the 7th and Rahu in the 9th indicates a marriage into another nationality and not in conformity with the usual social customs.

Mercury, lord of 5th, is posited in the sign of Saturn and the Moon is posited in the 5th. This indicates that the native will have only one female issue.

14. According to rules laid down by Parasara, Netaji's span of life is a long one—at least 70 years. The lord of the 4th is in the 9th, and Jupiter is in the 4th, fully aspected by Lagnadhipati from the 10th; and above all, Jupiter, lord of 8th is retrograde and posited in the 4th, a 'fixed sign' (sthira-rasi). All these planetary configurations indicate that the native will die in his own house after his return to his motherland. If Taurus Lagna be correct, then he could not have died in a foreign country under such dubious circumstances — unknown, unsung and unwept.

Vimshottari Dasa Results

15. According to the Vimshottari method of Dasa calculation, from 18–10–1917 to 12–3–1921, Netaji had Rahu Dasa, Jupiter Bhukti. Jupiter being retrograde in the 4th, and Rahu being in the 9th, in association with the lords of 4th and 5th, he went to Europe for higher studies (I.C.S.) during this period.

16. From 12-3-1921 to 18-1-1923, he had Rahu Dasa, Saturn Bhukti. The lord of 9th and 10th being posited in the 7th indicates self-sacrifice and self-abrogation. He therefore resigned his I.C.S. during this period.

17. At the age of 36 years, 13 days, he entered into Jupiter Dasa, Jupiter Bhukti (6–2–1933 to 24–3–1935). Jupiter, lord of 8th, being retrograde in the sign of Sun indicates his father's death during this period.

18. (a) At the age of 40 years, 8 months, 13 days, Jupiter Dasa, Saturn Bhukti ended (24-3-1935 to 6–10–1937). Thereafter from 6–10–1937 to 12–1–1940, he passed through Jupiter Dasa, Mercury Bhukti. Mercury, lord of 5th, being posited in the 9th in conjunction with the lord of 4th—a Rajayoga is constituted—and as Rahu is also posited with these two Rajayogakaraka planets, Rahu also becomes Yogakaraka. Therefore, Mercury, Sun and Rahu, all being in the 9th, it is only natural to expect that during the sub-period of any of the above three planets, the native would enjoy immense power, prestige and honour, and this has actually happened; for during Jupiter Dasa, Mercury Bhukti, Netaji occupied the Presidential chair at the Haripura and the Tripuri Congress, was given a royal reception and was highly honoured throughout the country. (b) But in spite of the Yogakaraka of Rahu, his association with Mercury in the sign of Saturn detracts to a certain extent the power and influence of Mercury. Besides that, Jupiter, lord of 8th, is in an inharmonious (6th/8th) relationship with its sub-lord Mercury, and Jupiter being an enemy of Mercury, the latter's power for good is curtailed further. Furthermore, Mercury is in the navamsa of Jupiter, or in other words, in the navamsa of an enemy and the lord of 11th. It is therefore no wonder that for these reasons Netaji was forced to resign his Presidentship of the Tripuri Congress towards the latter part of the sub-period of Mercury under Jupiter.

It may be mentioned here i n

Scanned by www.copyrightinfo.com Digitized for Preservation By Project Work passing that later on in life, during the sub-period of Sun also under Jupiter (18–8–1943 to 6–5–1944), Netaji was again honoured as a king and enjoyed immense power in S.-E. Asia.

19. Jupiter Dasa, Kethu Bhukti followed from 12–1–1940 to 18–12–1940. This period indicates his imprisonment.

20. Thereafter Jupiter Dasa, Venus Bhukti lasted from 18–12–1940 to 18–8–1943. (From 43 years, 10 months, 25 days to 46 years, 6 months, 25 days). Jupiter and Venus are in opposition to each other and therefore closely associated, while retrograde Jupiter, lord of 8th, is posited in the 4th. Hence Jupiter Dasa, Venus Bhukti indicates his departure from his home and country. Perhaps during the latter part of the same Bhukti, he also left Germany for South-East Asia.

21. (a) Thereafter from 18–8–1943 to 6–5–1944, he had Jupiter Dasa, Sun's Bhukti and his activities in S.-E. Asia as the head of the Azad Hind Government (Rajayoga) and the Supreme Commander of the I.N.A. are well known, proving the Rajayogakaraka of the Sun in his birth chart. (Compare with results of Mercury Bhukti under Jupiter). (b) But Sun, lord of 4th, is posited in conjunction with Rahu in the 9th, an inimical sign, while retrograde Jupiter, lord of 8th, occupies the 4th. For this reason, during the currency of Jupiter Dasa, Sun's Bhukti, Netaji lost his mother.

22. (a) Thereafter from 6–5–1944 to 6–10–1945, he had Jupiter Dasa, Moon's Bhukti. During the sub-period of the lord of the 3rd, he led his forces to the borders of India through Burma. (b) But then again, this sub-period of Moon also indicates his disappearance from the field of action, because retrograde Jupiter, lord of 8th, posited in the 12th from the Moon and in the 4th from Lagna, stands in an inharmonious dwirdwadasa (2nd/12th) relationship with the Moon.

23. Thereafter from 6-10-1945 to 12–9–1946, he had Jupiter's Dasa, Mars Bhukti. This period also indicates his disappearance and life in cognito, because Dasa lord retrograde Jupiter, lord of 8th, is posited in Griha-bhava, and the sub-lord Vyayapati Mars is posited in Lagna and in direct opposition to Saturn.

24. According to the science of astrology, Netaji is alive even to this day (10–10–1958). His present age is 61 years, 8 months, 17 days. At present he is having Saturn Dasa, Venus Bhukti and this will last upto 27–1–1959. (Age 62 years, 4 days). Thereafter from 27-1-1959 to 9-1-1960, he will be having Saturn Dasa, Sun's Bhukti. (Age from 62 yrs., 4 days to 62 years, 11 months, 16 days). This sub-period of the Sun and Saturn indicates his return to his home and motherland.

Reason : It is clear that retrograde Jupiter, lord of 8th, being posited in the 4th (Griha-bhava) was the cause of Netaji's leaving the country and had prevented his return during its main Dasa. But with the advent of Saturn Dasa, Sun's Bhukti, conditions will have changed.

(a) Dasa-lord Saturn, as owning 9th, if posited in the 7th, causes the native to return to his home and his friends; and as lord of the 10th, it is related to his father's home and his father's near relations. (b) The lord of the 4th, if posited in the 9th, also indicates the native's return to his home. (c) The sub-lord (or sub-dasapati) Sun, being lord of the 4th (Griha-bhava) would also indicate the native's enjoyment of his home environments during its Bhukti under favourable circumstances. (d) The sub-dasa-lord Sun being posited in the sign of Saturn (lord of 9th) and aspected by him also indicates the native's return to his home during Saturn Dasa, Sun's Bhukti.

The above astrological rules about the home-coming of a native would apply to any chart, and as all the above-mentioned planetary positions, configurations and conditions are to be found in the chart and Dasa–Bhukti of Netaji, we may reasonably expect that he will return during his Saturn Dasa, Sun's Bhukti, i.e., between 27–1–1959 to 9–1–1960.

I shall not be surprised even if Netaji makes his appearance when Mars passes over its exact degree in his radical chart on 9th/10th March 1959.

May God bless him and preserve him for the benefit of mankind. I am well aware that doctors differ. If other astrologers differ from my own findings, I shall appreciate very much their learned criticism.

Scanned by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Project. Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

---

ASTROLOGY AND INFANT MORTALITY

(Continued from page 90)

fic aspect, if Saturn is in the amsa of the Lagna, and if he has the aspect of Kethu, the child will die within a year.

2. If no benefic is posited in a kendra, if Saturn being posited in an amsa of Venus is aspected by Kethu and Venus, it will be within two years.

3. If Saturn is in an amsa belonging to Mercury and receives the aspect of Mercury and the Sun, it will be within three years.

4. If Saturn occupying an amsa of Jupiter receives the aspect of the Moon and Jupiter, death will occur in four years.

5. If Saturn occupying the amsa of the Sun is aspected by the Sun and Venus, death will take place in five years.

6. If Saturn is in the amsa of the Moon receiving her aspect, and if the lord of the Lagna is in the 12th house, the maximum lease of life is six years.

7. If Saturn being in the amsa of Pisces receives the aspect of Venus, it will be in 8 years.

8. If the amsa of Saturn is Capricorn and if he is aspected by Mercury, it will die in 10 years.

9. If the amsa is Sagittarius, and if Saturn is aspected by the weak Moon, it will be in 11 years.

10. If the amsa is Aries and the aspecting planet the Sun, death will occur in 12 years.

Now let us consider some examples:

In Case No. 1[1], the Sun is in the 11th bhava, Jupiter in the 2nd. The ascendant is the 10th degree of Cancer. Herschel occupies the 6th degree of Lagna. The very first thing we have to consider in this case is the utter weakness of the Moon, owner of the ascendant, as the birth took place on Amavasya or New Moon day. The malefic Mars aspects the Moon very powerfully. All the malefics are in kendras and kona. Note also that Jupiter is not in kendra, as he has gone to the 2nd bhava. There is strong Panchamarishta as two malefics are in the 5th house. There is a malefic in the 7th house from the sign indicated by the rising decanate, and the Moon too is weak though not in the Lagna. Look at the first yoga given above according to Sage Mrikandu. Those conditions are satisfied to the extent of about 60%. See Yoga No. 3. Saturn is in the amsa of Mercury and receives the aspect of both Mercury and the Sun. Hence it should have died within 3 years. Remember also that not a single benefic is in a kendra. A superficial glance at the chart would make one wax eloquent on the excellent yogas like Kèsari, Ruchaka, Hamsa, etc. But what is the use of all that when the Balarishta is so powerful? What is the earthly benefit of the bright Sun to a blind man?

In Case No. 2[2], the birth was at 6-18 p.m. which was Sandhyakala. See how the Lagna is afflicted by the presence of Rahu; by Saturn in the 11th and the Sun, Mercury, Kethu in the 7th; and Venus in the 7th is not helpful either. Malefics are in the 1st, 7th and 8th (also in the 11th). Both the Lagna and its lord are powerfully aspected by Saturn. The Lagna-lord, though in exaltation, is in a Dusthana along with Mars and Mandi and in Vipattara. The 5th from the Moon is also tenanted by malefics. Lord of Lagna-decanate, i.e., Mars, is debilitated and in a Dushtana. Death took place in Rahu's Dasa, Budha's Bhukti and Kethu's Antara therein. Mercury and Kethu who are in the maraka place from Lagna and Rahu are within one degree from each other. The presence of Rahu in the Lagna which is aspected by Saturn who presides over burial grounds suggests that the child must have died of some bad disease caused by an evil spirit haunting the cremation ground. Note also the navamsa of Rahu, the serpent, denizen of Patala. It is Moola-1 presided over by demon. The child died of epilepsy. The day of birth was a Saturday and of death also was the same. This factor is very significant inasmuch as the disease afflicting the child was one belonging to the nature of Saturn. At the time of death too Saturn and Rahu were together in Scorpio, the 12th house from the ascendant at birth. Mars at death was in Sagittarius. The Lagna of death is understood to be Aquarius which was the Moon's position at birth. On the day of death the Moon had gone to the 8th house from Janma-lagna, whose lord again is aspected by Saturn at the exit too. The ascendant at death is the 3rd from the initial one. That is as good as the 8th.

The native of Case No. 3[3] lived for about six months. Birth was on Amavasya though at the time of birth it was just over. Balance of Sani Dasa was 17 yrs., 4 months and 13 days.

Thula Lagna with Saturn in it (though retrograde) is supposed to give Rajayoga. Two benefics are aspecting the Lagna. With all these the God of death would not spare the child. Why? The Lagna-lord has gone to the maraka place along with its lord.

The malefic Saturn in the Lagna is aspected by another malefic, Mars, who is also very strong. Thus the lord of Lagna is considerably afflicted. The presence of Jupiter there does not mend matters appreciably, as the distance between the two (Venus and Jupiter) is about 18 degrees. The Moon, owner of the 10th house, is combust and in association with other malefics. The 4th and 10th kendras too are occupied by malefics, and the latter kendra is aspected by two powerful malefics, Saturn and www.vedicastrologyarshisastrology.com to Preserve the V. Raman Work

Figures in brackets denote Navamsa positions.

[1] Female born on 10-5-1956 and died on 3-1-1957, lived for about 8 months. Lagna (6) and Jupiter (12)—Cancer; Saturn (6) and Rahu (8)—Scorpio; Mars (4)-Capricorn; Sun (8) and Moon (7)—Aries; Mercury (2) and Kethu (2)—Taurus; and Venus (9)—Gemini.

[2] Male born on 9-7-1955 and died on 25-2-1956, lived for about 8 months. Lagna (5) and Rahu (1)—Sagittarius; Moon (10)—Aquarius; Sun (1), Mercury (7), Venus (9) and Kethu (7)—Gemini; Mars (5) and Jupiter (7)—Cancer; and Saturn (1)—Libra.

[3] Male born on 15-3-1953 and died in September. Lagna (2) and *Saturn (7)—Libra; Rahu (3)—Capri*corn; Moon (5), Mercury (6) and Sun (4)—Pisces; Mars (2), Venus (3) and Jupiter (8)—Aries; and Kethu (9)—Cancer.

Mars. When Karmasthana, its lord and the Lagna and its lord are rendered powerless, how can the Atman stay in the body? Again, the weak Moon in conjunction wish malefics is in a Dusthana, viz., 6th. The 5th house from the Moon is occupied by a malefic and afflicted by malefic aspects thereby causing very strong Arishta. The Lagna-lord afflicted by malefic conjunction is in the 7th house. Saturn being in the amsa of Venus is aspected by him. This is a part of one of the conditions mentioned by Mrikandu for early death. If you take Chandra Lagna, there is the powerful malefic in the 8th house. And it was in the dasa of this planet that both birth and death took place. The child could not survive even the Bhukti of Sani. Now look at the star occupied by Sani. It is Chitta-3 which happens to be the Vadhatara—7th from the natal one. The lord of Chandra Lagna is conjoined with the lord of the 8th (who is aspected by Saturn—which is an Alpayuryoga) and another malefic

According to Sage Garga, the presence of the Moon in the 11th for the night birth should ward off a crore of faults, but in Case of No. 4 [4] you see death overtaking the child in about a month. Why? Strong malefics are in the 5th, 7th and 8th houses. Lagna is aspected by Saturn. No kendra is occupied by a malefic. The lord of the Lagna too is aspected by Mars. The lord of Lagna-navamsa, Mercury, is in a Dusthana along with the lord of the 8th. There are strong malefics in 5th and 8th. There is strong Panchamarishta. Death took place in the Bhukti of Jupiter in the Dasa of the Sun who is posited in the Vadhatara, being lord of the 8th house from the Moon and one of the strong malefics causing the Arishta. The lord of Bhukti too is the owner of the Lagna. On the day of death the Sun had just entered Virgo, the 7th house from the natal ascendant afflicted by Saturn. In this case too Lagna of death coincides with the position of natal Moon, who has gone to the 7th house, viz. Cancer, from her original position. The star in the latter day was again Aslesha, a Vadhatara.

[4] Female born at 9-30 p.m. on 4-8-1952, died at 3 p.m. on 16-9-1952. Balance of Sun's Dasa was 3 years, 4 months and 6 days. Lagna (6)—Pisces; Jupiter (8)-Aries; Sun (9) and Kethu (12)—Aries; Mercury (1) and Venus (1)—Leo; Saturn (3)—Virgo; and Mars (2)—Libra.

ASTROLOGICAL AFFILIATIONS OF RELIGION AND THEOLOGY

(Continued from page 14)

that Jaimini viewed as Supreme Lord Siva. In the long and progressive evolution of theological controversies and discussions, only Siva and Vishnu have been candidates competing with one another for supremacy.

(7)

Let me leave Jaimini here, for the present, and place before the readers the views contained in another astrological treatise published by the Curator of the Government Oriental Manuscripts Library, in the Oriental Series of that Government.

The work is Daivajnyaabharana. Astrological affiliations of religion and theology are explained in the 13th section of the work in connection with analysis of the 5th house. The analysis is found on Pp. 125—126. The author observes in one place that religio-theological inclinations would be found by reference to the planet occurring in association or conjunction with the ruler of 5th house. Subsequently, another standpoint is furnished. It is stated that the planet actually situated in the 5th house would determine the God or deity to which allegiance or homage would be paid. The text deserves to be carefully examined, and what I have attempted, here is only the result of popular and superficial perusal.

Sun in the 5th is associated with worship of the Sun-god, and Lord Siva. Here, the Sun is the indicating planet, and the deity worshipped should be taken to be different. Moon in the said place is responsible for worshipping and controlling evil spirits like Yakshinee. Guru, placed that way, would indicate devotion to Vishnu, as well as to Skanda, who will be worshipped by a subject who would also be undertaking a religious or ceremonial fast. Sukra would determine worship of Chamundeswari. The text seems to be somewhat in correct. The editor has suggested an amendment. But, it is possible to keep the text as it is, if a slightly different interpretation is adopted. If Sukra be the lord of the 5th house, and occupy the 7th a person would become a devotee of Chamundeswari. Sani in the said place, 5th would suggest the subject being devoted to worship of devils, evil spirits and so forth. Rahu or Kethu would suggest the person being engaged in worship of these gods, for the purpose of harming or injuring others by means of Black Magic.

Then, the author passes on to statement of the position on the basis of rulership of the concerned house. If, Budha be the ruler of the 5th, (this house is named by the author as Vikrama) a person becomes a philosopher endowed with knowledge of Brahma, the Absolute. If Guru be the ruler, the person concerned will be devoted to Lord Vishnu to whom religio-theological allegiance would be paid. If Sukra be the ruler, the subject would be a devotee of the sons of Girija or Parvathi,

Scanned by CamScanner

(i.e., Vinayaka and Skanda). If Sani be the ruler, religio-theological preferences would be centering on Lord Vishnu. Readers will be able easily to note that the account given by the author of Daivajnyaabharana, agrees, in some respects with the one given by Jaimini, and in others differs from it. There is, however, one supremely important difference, which deserves very careful notice and study.

While, Jaimini has grounded his account on the navamsa of atmakaraka, the author of Daivajnyaabharana has shifted on the emphasis to the 5th house.

There is discernible a further difference. The author of the Aabharana has indicated conclusions both from the nature of the planets actually standing in the fifth and from the planets in turn enjoying the rulership of the said fifth. But, Jaimini has not given any conclusions, connecting the planets with the rulership of the cardinal navamsa emphasized by him. The deities however, seem to be the same in both accounts, with some special emphasis on Siva and Vishnu.

Readers will now understand easily, that religious and theological leanings, preferences and loyalties are by no means to be regarded as merely accidental, or as dependent merely on chance, one's whims and caprices, and other irrelevant and adventitious circumstances.

(8)

I leave the atheists alone. This discussion has been written only for the attention of theists and believers. Believers have considerable difficulty in making the correct choice. Some of these have deep attachment to family traditions. They usually focus devotion on the deity worshipped by clan and family. (Kuladaiva or Kutumbadaiva). But, there are many others who are not in a position to fall back on the family moorings. These are confronted by a miscellaneous mass of religious and theological literature and by the sanctimonious utterances of professional politicians turned philosophers, and professional philosophers transformed into politicians overnight, as it were. These go about proclaiming that there is only one God, and that God is differently described in different religious systems, either as Krishna, Rama, or as Karim, Rahim, Jesus and so forth. Such a sort of cosmopolitanism is dangerous, and is bound to degenerate into the most rabid forms of atheism and irreligion.

If religion were merely a matter of some rites and rituals, some ceremonial observances, etc., one may be indifferent to these. But, religion is live and dynamic. The final goal of religion is realization of the Supreme Power. Realization can be secured only by consistent and courageous practice of the discipline laid down by yoga system, for the purpose of attainment of psycho-sometic purification, and for the purpose of transforming the body of aspirant into a receiving-set registering intimations of immortality.

If, devotional attention is to be concentrated on the Supreme, the aspirant should know all about the nature and characteristics of the Supreme to the extent to which such knowledge is vouchsafed for mankind. Who is the Supreme Power that is to be worshipped, according to the complex, complicated, and elaborate methodology of yoga? Is the Power Siva or Vishnu?

It would be frustration, mere waste of time and energy if an aspirant went on shifting his religious allegiance from deity to deity, like a decimal dot, in a spirit of so-called experimental investigation. An aspirant should arrive at a correct decision. If he wavers or fails, the consequences would be disastrous. Devotional approach should be directed to that Supreme Power which alone would be able and competent to liberate an aspirant from the apparently timeless penitentiary of transmigration (birth-death-series).

Would Allah do it? Would Christ do it? Would Siva do it? Would Vishnu do it? These questions will have to be boldly faced, and each aspirant has to arrive at his own solution and answer. There is absolutely no point in the argument that all are different names of only one God. There are gods and gods. Only that supreme God is to be worshipped who will liberate an aspirant from birth-death-series, and confer on him the eternal and unalloyed bliss of Moksha, or liberation from time-taints and time-bondages. A namby-pamby cosmopolitanism in religion and theology is a negation of all religion and theology. So, the conclusion follows, that for purposes of yogic meditation, it is absolutely indispensable that an aspirant should first settle and determine for himself the nature and attributes of the Supreme Power that is to be worshipped.

(9)

Leaving the metaphysical question an open one, it becomes necessary to investigate whether the stalwart authors of classics on Advaita system, had stressed oneness of Siva and Vishnu. It will be admitted without doubt or controversy that Vachaspati Misra is the most illustrious and spectacular personality in the history of philosopy. He has written classical treatises on all the six Darsanas, but, he was a follower of Advaita, as his magnum opus Bhaamati commentary of Sankara's Bhasya on Vedanta sutras would amply demonstrate.

(Continued on page 169)

Scanned by www.siddhanta.com Transferred to P.R. Bhat Work

Significance of Fingers in Palmistry

BY N. L. DESAI, B.COM., LL.B.

THE two hands of man may be taken to symbolise his dual power, on the one hand of acquiring the higher spiritual values of life and on the other of dominating lower physical matter and acquiring mastery over it. Yet like all the forces manifesting in the physical world the hand of man which is capable of blessing may become a curse according to the desire and will of the human being.

As pointed out by Alexis Carrel the hand is able to kill and to bless, to steal and to give, to sow grains on the surface of the fields and to throw grenades in the trenches; but what is this hand without those five small levers, each composed of three articulate segments which are mounted upon the metacarpus and the bones of the wrist—those fingers which are the instruments of the sense of touch, without which the other senses would be comparatively useless and because of which the hand carries out one of the highest functions of man namely cognition? The importance of the study of the fingers in palmistry, therefore, cannot be overemphasised.

Broadly speaking, the fingers represent the mind, and the palm the material world hence in the study of the science of the hand the fingers take the priority as their formations easily determine the predominating mental characteristics of man.

All the four fingers merit joint as well as separate consideration. The first or the forefinger is the finger of Jupiter, also called the index finger; the second is the finger of Saturn or the Medius or the middle finger; the third is the finger of Appolo or the Sun and is also known as the Annular or the ring finger and the fourth is the little finger known as the Minius or the finger of Mercury.

The fingers are of uneven length though in many cases the first and the third fingers are more or less found even. As between the first and the second finger normally the first finger is about one centimeter shorter than the middle finger. The normal little finger terminates at the third joint of the ring finger meaning the place at which the top or the nail phalanx begins. The normal adult's fingers would therefore, measure up as follows:—

Length of the first finger		7.5 cms.
,,	second ,,	8.5 ,,
,,	third ,,	7.5 ,,
,,	fourth ,,	6.3 ,,

According to certain scientists and medical men, particularly Dr. Carl Gustav Carus, who lived during the 19th century and who was a personal physician to the King of Saxony, the normal length of the hand with the wrist should be equal to the height of the head counting from the occipital protuberance to the summit of the head. The length of the middle finger with the knuckles should be equal to half the length of the face and without the knuckles it would come to about one centimeter less than the length of the palm. The standard lengths of the hand given by Dr. Carus are as follows:—

N. L. DESAI

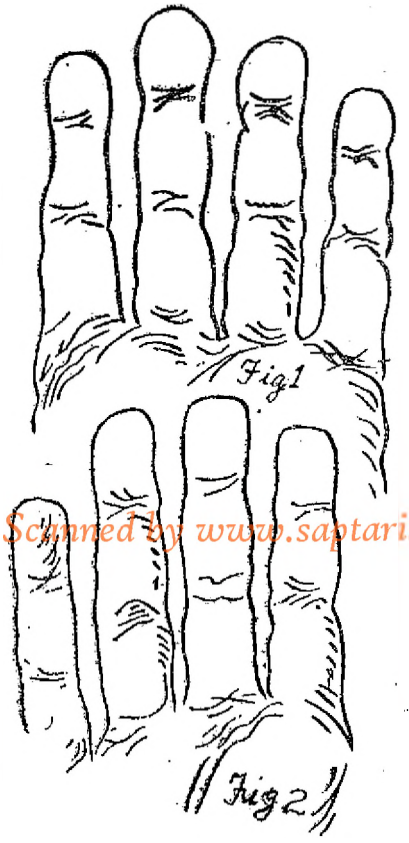
Age.	Length of the Hand (without the Wrist).
New Born child ...	6 cm.
10 years ...	10 cm.
15 years ...	16 cm.
25 years ...	18 cm.

The length of the fingers is important because it is related to the degree of intellectual development. Fingers longer than normal may indicate too abstract an intellect, which may sap the vitality and mar the instinct. The tendency of the person in such a case would be towards introversion. When the first and the third fingers are of equal length and the little finger is considerably longer with abnormal digital formation it would be indicative of feeble and emotional nature. This point is dealt with elsewhere in this article.



The fingers should not only be proportionate in length but also in their general size and formations. They must be smooth, straight and symmetrical. They must not be crooked. The crooked fingers can only tentamount to lack of correct approach and proper perspective towards life and living. They tend to make a person cautious and evasive and at times full of fear and eccentricities. If the first finger is crooked, it would indicate a person who will have to toil and moil with uneasiness, sorrows and disappointments. At times a feeling of remorse, a spirit of atheism and humility or dullness might overtake him. If the middle or second finger is crooked it makes a person melancholy with morbid and apprehensive attitude of the mind. The mind in such cases may tend to be filthy, superstitious, secretive and the person may be subjected to a feeling of envy, jealousy, greed and a spirit of fanaticism and superstitiousness might pervade his being. When the ring finger is crooked it would reveal the subject to be of a boastful disposition with a love of exaggerating things and an aptitude for gambling and a mind avaricious and corrupt. The person would be vain, extravagant and to an extent stupid. When the little finger is crooked, it gives a swindling and a cunning nature.

Persons with smooth fingers on the contrary are emotional and are far more susceptible to passions as opposed to temper. Their inspiration for work is sometimes derived from wrong sources, which create trouble for them placing them in a precarious position, yet generally they are successful in business and life, though an element of danger or at least uncertainty would be looming large.

The types of fingers in palmistry are distinguished and grouped on the basis of the tips of the fingers, which evidently make them important for study. The finger tips are classed as spatulate (Fig.1) that is broad and flat-looking, square (Fig. 2), conic (Fig. 3) or rounded or pointed (Fig. 4) This, however, is an artificial classification and few hands have all the fingers of the same type. Generally differences are noticed in the second and the ring finger. The index and the little finger is mostly conical.

Scanned by www.vedicshisastrology.com To Preserve the Vedic Knowledge

The spatulate tips (Fig. 1) which are the broadest bestow the person with originality, who is more disposed towards the practical side of life, with a power to instil confidence in others and inspire them to accomplish with success and confidence the work on hand. The person would be sincere in attachments as his affections are not likely to be misplaced. Being active, original, and enterprising he is not likely to follow the accepted and established ways of accomplishing things, going about his own way caring little or nothing for conventional methods. The first finger when spatulate gives restless disposition, variable nature and moody temperament with inconstancy of purpose and of aim in life. Materialism in ethical matters, inclination to superstition, struggle for power and authority and for a position in society are some further attributes. The attributes of the spatulate second finger are a great bodily and mental activity and a power of endurance. The ring finger when spatulate endows with a love of speculation and gambling but in a limited sense, as it is tampered by practical realisation of ideals. Dramatic abilities, love of colour, painting, etc., are some further attributes. When the little finger is spatulate it indicates ability to manage all the business affairs, but there may often be a desire to change the line of business.

The square fingers are easy to recognise (Fig. 2). They bespeak of reason, judgment and order, system, arrangement and regularity. The person with the square finger tips acts as per rules and regulations in all matters, loves punctuality, and strictly observes all social customs. He can be a good accountant, secretary, librarian, mathematician and a scientist. In the field of sports, he would excel in those games in which precision and accuracy is essentiat. He loves to dress and is methodical in habits.

When only the first finger is square at the tip it indicates love of truth, of obedience to the law of the land and of steadiness in the pursuit of aims and objects. The square tip of the second finger goes to show earnestness, prudence, power of taking responsibility, trustworthiness and a sound judgment. The square tip of the third finger shows a realism in the field of art and literature, and the person is endowed with a strong sense of rhythm and form. The square tip of the little finger represents scientific reasoning, perception and order in thought, with an inclination towards the study of scientific subjects. It indicates pedagogic gift, trade or business abilities and a talent for organisation.

The conic finger tips (Fig. 3) chiefly govern the mind, ideal, art and intuition. They stand for fine taste, kindness and impulsiveness. Endowed with an aesthetic sense, with a love of weird and mysterious, the subjects often like flattery. In every case the degree or the extent to which these qualities make themselves felt is directly dependent on the extent of the cone formed by the finger or fingers. If the cone is less pronounced, the person will partake certain qualities of the square or the spatulate type, but if the fingers are perfectly conical, the person would consider the precision, punctuality and regularity of the square type as not only a restraint but an undesirable nuisance. The persons with conical tips of the fingers do possess in a certain measure talent, quickness of mind, perception in thought and a natural power of intuition, often either coming in conflict with reason or in certain cases overcoming it. Being by nature receptive, responsive and emotional, they are apt to be inconstant in their affections.

When only the first finger is conic, it shows genuine religious feelings, an ideal comprehension in social matters, a study of philosophy and almost a sense of adoration of the things beautiful. If the second finger is conical, which, however, is seldom found, it indicates a mind that is frivolous; there is lack of earnestness and sense of responsibility. The person would be lazy also lacking in strength of character. When the third finger is conic it indicates fine power of intuition and an artistic sense of touch and feeling but the person lacks in executive abilities. A feeling of discontentment pervades the being. The fourth finger, when conic is also able to bestow intuitive faculties. It is so because both the third and the fourth fingers are connected with the passive part of the hand and are related to the area of the subconscious and imagination. They are also more connected with the sexual functions. The person with a conical little finger is witty and humourous, tactful and diplomatic but with an inclination to lie, and at times with a mind to use the information gained in confidence and good faith, to his own advantage.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com All rights reserve Dr. B.V. Ramans Work

The conic tips are a bit difficult to distinguish in the beginning from the pointed ones but a little more practice renders the task easier. Generally the long fingers are found to be having pointed finger tips. When all the fingers are so pointed (Fig. 4), they indicate a most unpractical nature, dominated more by inspiration and idealism, the person almost living as it were in a dreamland. Life will be full of fancies, follies and foibles. When the first finger is pointed, it gives an exaggerated sense of idealism which has no practical basis or justification. When the second finger is pointed there is a sort of superstitious approach towards religion and fear rather than love of God. When the third finger is pointed, it is likely to create discontentment and frustration due to very high expectations from life and living. In the field of politics and in society, the views of a person with a pointed third finger are least acceptable. The pointed little finger is likely to make the person mischievous and he may go to any length to cause humour or to be witty but not with much success. The person may be eloquent if the finger is long, but he may turn out to be a bore if other signs are not favourable. Generally the pointed fingers are found in feeble minded persons and imbeciles, but they are seldom found in normal hands. The little finger when pointed might indicate abnormality of the ductless glands of the body, and is noticed in the hands of hypothyroid persons and those who are subject to infantilism.

In connection with the first finger, Prof. Wood Jones in the Principles of Anatomy as seen in the Hand, has observed that "in man alone is the index finger held aloof from its fellows", which fact is sufficient to indicate its importance among the fingers of the hand, as it is associated with the highest powers of the human mind. It represents in man the ideal creative spirit as opposed to the ideal self represented by the thumb. When the first finger is well developed, it gives a man power and capacity for helping other people. Crooked first finger mars such a desirable attribute and when stumpy, it also gives selfishness. When a joint of the finger is knotty and bulging (Fig. 5 A & B). it endows a person with ambition to gain knowledge, a deeply penetrating and probing mind and a scientific attitude. The person would be cautious and thoughtful with an enquiring disposition. When the first finger is stunted the person would not like to shoulder any sort of great responsibilities, and would be lacking in sense of honour and just pride.

The first finger in short is identified with sociability, ambition and religiousness. When it is bent below the others so that it stands back and not in level with the other fingers when the hand is extended and coupled with that if it is absolutely crooked, there will be neither honour, honesty, nor reverence in character. The person may not have the power to keep himself on the upright path. He may fall a prey to infamy, a victim of physical sexuality and take up to dishonest means.

When the lowest or the basal phalanx of the first finger immediately next to the palm is the longest it shows pride and love of domination. The person would be self-assertive to a fault, which may make him unpopular, as he may not care for the feelings of others. His vanity, pride and desire to impress all people at all times might prove the deathknell of the very things which he aims to achieve thereby. However, it has its good points and when strongest amongst the three phalanges it indicates the leader in the material world; as a politician or a soldier or as a man of trade, business, industry or commerce.

The second phalanx of the first finger stands for the world of thought and idealism and when long it indicates ambition for worldly progress and prosperity. The person would be a seeker after material security, well-being and a social elevation in life. The top or the nail phalanx is identified with the inspiration and prophetic faculties. If it is the longest it gives a deep religious sentiment. The person will be a keen seeker after truth, attaching great importance to justice, integrity and piety.

The middle or second finger though longest has fewer characteristics attached to it. When it is strong and outstanding it suggests seriousness and religious tendency. When otherwise formed it would suggest a superstitious nature or morbidity. When it is crooked the person though cautious will not be prudent and wise, and in worst of the cases may become a sneak. It betrays melancholy disposition, sadness and selfishness. When crooked second finger is found on a very stiff hand, it indicates a mutinous nature, harbouring hatred towards all human beings but particularly for the persons of the opposite sex. If the second crooked finger is longer because of the nail phalanx being longer than the other two phalanges, the person sooner or later gets tired of his life and living and may likely become insane provided there are such other indications on the palm. Summing up, it can be stated that a good proportionate and well formed Saturn or second finger is a necessity as it indicates sobriety, wisdom, resolution, economy, patience and perseverance.

The third finger stands for all that is brilliant, successful and charming in human nature. When strong and well formed proportionately it indicates a power of perception and a love of truth and beauty in form, colour or idea. But when the third finger is crooked, it shows great lack of sense of proportion and savoir faire. If such a crooked finger is long, the person will have love of speculation and of hazard and no liking for a work well done, because he lacks the desire for perfection. If the crooked third finger is short it may lead to vanity, stupidity and extravagance. The person would be lax in his views and rude in his behaviour. He may be prone to gambling, avarice, greed and laziness.

Scanned by www.sahasrashisastrology.com To Preserve Our Rich Cultural Work

The basal phalanx of the ring finger, meaning the one nearest the palm, if very thick shows a love of luxury in life and of sensuous beauty in art. The second phalanx if well formed indicates love of intellectual beauty in science or art. The nail phalanx indicates a love of ideal or of abstract beauty, coupled with a power of expressing it in music, painting or in poetry, provided the little finger is a bit longer and well formed.

When the little or the fourth finger is high and well set, it is suggestive of organising and executive abilities which may be profitably directed towards commercial channels. It is indicative of influence, activity, brilliance, and sufficient knowledge of human nature. When, however, the little finger is crooked, the person is prone to breed hatred and contempt even against the members of his own family and his kith and kin, and will not have a good word to say about any one, rather he may scheme to injure others, thereby lowering himself in the esteem of others and leading a blasphemous life. When the crooked little finger is long, it is a sign of chicanery, ruse, of recklessness in management. It indicates a person who greatly likes to meddle with other people's affairs. If the crooked fourth finger is short the person only becomes mischievous with no sense of good workmanship.

When the basal phalanx of the fourth finger is well set, it indicates good organising and executive abilities. If the second phalanx is longer than the other two phalanges, it indicates aptitude and final success in the realm of science. The well developed nail phalanx indicates inventive abilities. Needless to state that a longer finger is associated with eloquence and self-control, a power of expression in writing, painting and music. The finger stands for an inborn capacity for tact but when it is too short, it would be the other way round, and the person should do well in developing power of expression, overcoming shyness, coyishness, and learn to acquire a measure of self-control.

Two adjoining fingers at times appear as if they are glued or joined together. When that is the case, one can be sure that the person is mean and self-centred. When it is so between the second and the third finger, it betrays inability to rise above the circumstances and to go beyond one's station in life. The person would lack courage and a spirit of enterprise Knotty fingers (Fig. 5 A & B) present an analytical, reflective and thoughtful mind. They show methodical and well-planned work. Being critically disposed, the person is apt to be of a doubting nature. There is a constant apprehension of making a wrong decision.

Sometimes one or the other finger is seen inclined towards the other finger. Such an inclination or a sword-like curvature of the finger indicates a defensive mechanism of the mind. Such an inclination was termed "axation" by Pierre Abraham. Monsieur Henri Mangin interpretes such inclination as follows :

When one or the other finger is inclined towards the ring or the third finger it goes to show artistic tastes and aptitudes. When the inclination is towards the middle or the second finger, it is a sign of unconscious submission to exterior circumstances. Mixed inclination towards the ring or the third and the fourth finger would go to show a person who works laboriously and conscientiously. Inclination of the first three fingers towards the little or the fourth finger suggests intelligence and cleverness, but might also render a man cunning. If the second, third and the fourth fingers lean towards the first finger, it may suggest ambition and a practical sense of proportion and reasoning and a well-conditioned outlook towards life.

Certain small markings, lines and signs on each finger may be noted for what they are worth. A single line on the first finger shows nobility of character and great honours. A star on the first phalanx of the first finger indicates some favourable happening in the near future, it is not a lasting sign; if the said star either on the first or the second phalanx if surrounded by a circle, it is indicative of profligacy. A cross on the upper joint on the first finger is said to give literary success. Many transverse lines on the second and the third phalanges are supposed to show envious disposition. Upward branches rising from the line of life and going right up over the basal phalanx of the first finger is suggestive of riches. Much lined up second finger gives impulsiveness. Many vertical lines on the second finger, supported by certain criss-cross lines on the mount of Saturn are suggestive of succession of fatal happenings. A triangle on the second finger is sign of talent for occult sciences. A star formation on the second finger, especially on the first phalanx foreshows unfavourable fatality or casuality and even danger of assassination provided other lines and signs on the palm confirm the same.

A line from the root of the basal phalanx of the third finger to the joint of the first or the nail phalanx is a good sign as it indicates great fame, but if there be several lines cutting such a good line or lines, they go to indicate reverses due to women. A cross on any of the phalanges and especially on the nail phalanx is a desirable sign to have, particularly in case of women, as it shows chastity. One or two straight lines from the basal to the second phalanx of the third finger accompanied by a wide quadrangle on the palm give nobility of character, and in certain cases also talent, but a semi-circle on the basal phalanx is a sign of unhappiness. One clear line traversing the entire length of the fourth or the little finger gives veracity, and two clear vertical lines are capable of giving rectitude. Such vertical lines may confer success in scientific pursuits. Confused or criss-cross lines on the phalanges of the little finger are undesirable as they are a sure sign of untruthful disposition and deceitful nature. A cross is considered good as when placed on the nail phalanx, it indicates a celebate nature which is hard to find these days; however, star formation is unfortunate and if accompanied by supporting signs on the palm, it indicates a dishonourable death.

From a medical point of view the fingers are correlated to the organic system. Valuable information with regard to the study of fingers in relation to diseases is made available in the book entitled Clinical Methods by Sir Hutchison and Hunter. It would, therefore, not be out of place to make full use of such information for this article. In nerve disease the fingers might appear red or pallid and almost dead looking. In ulnar paralysis the fingers might get deformed due to over extension of the first phalanx with excessive flexion of the other phalanges forming a claw like appearance.

In achromagaly, the knuckles of the fingers are generally spatulate with square tips which get enlarged and the skin is thickened. Regarding the clubbing of the fingers the learned doctors observe "the tissues at the base of the nail are thickened, whilst the nail itself loses its longitudinal ridges and becomes convex from above down as well as from side to side. In extreme cases the terminal segment of the finger is bulbous like the end of a drumstick. The condition may be seen in pulmonary tuberculosis, bronchietasis, empyema, subphrenic abscess, infective endocarditis and in certain forms of congenital heart disease". It is also observed that the claw-hand occurs in some cases of progressive muscular atrophy. In some cases of osteoarthritis, there would be bony outgrowths called Heberdon's nodes on the fingers.

Strictly from the palmist's point of view, the thorax is associated with the index finger; the digestive system, the bony system and the organs of hearing are associated with the second finger, the arterial system, the cardiac renal system and the organs of sight are linked with the third finger and the gall bladder, the thyroid and gonadic functioning is correlated with the fourth finger, which if abnormally short or malformed would indicate insufficient thyroid and gonadic functioning and in case of women, ovarian functional deficiency.

Before bringing this article to an end, what Indian Palmistry has to say about the fingers may be noted. In Sanskrit the fingers are known by various names of which only a few may be mentioned here:

अङ्गुल्यः करशाखाः स्युरङ्गुल्यः करपल्लवा ।
त्रिपुराः करजाम्बाश्च मायाः
कर्मायुधामताः ॥

"Angulyaha, Karashakhaha, Syurangulyaha, Karpallva, Tripura, Karjamba, Maya and Kamadugdha, etc."

The names of the first or the index finger are as follows:

प्रदेशिनी तर्जनीस्याच्छात्रुड यागवेषिणी ।

"Pradesini, Jargini, Shatruda, Adhya and Gaveshini, etc." The second finger is known by the following names:

ज्येष्ठा तु मध्यमा मध्या लक्ष्मीः
सौभावभत्यपि ।

"Jeshtha, Madhyama, Madhya, Laxmi, Saubhagyavati, etc." The names of the third finger are as follows:

अनामिका च सावित्री गौरी
भगवति शिवा ।

"Anamika, Savitri, Gauri, Bhagawati and Shiva, etc." The little finger goes under the following names:

कनिष्ठान्त्या लघुस्तारा च काञ्चनी ।

"Kanishtha, Antya, Laghu, Tara, Kanchni, etc." Well-proportioned, straight fingers of regular form, soft long and rounded, with long phalanges are considered fortunate as would be evident from the following stanza and if formed otherwise would indicate poverty:

दीर्घनिर्मांसपर्वाणः सूक्ष्मादीर्घाः
सुकोमलाः ।
सुधनाः सरलवृत्ताः स्त्रीक्षरंगुल्यः श्रिये ॥

The leaning or fingers with inclination and outward protuberances renders a person prone to danger from weapons and flat fingers compels a person to take up service. The sloka is as follows:

यच्छन्ति विरलाःशुष्काः स्थूलावक्रा-
दरिद्रताम् ।
शस्त्रघातो नहिर्निम्ना श्रेष्टत्वं
चिपिटाश्चताः ॥

Wide space between the fingers, when they are held together are considered unfavourable for accumulation of wealth. The following observation from Jain Samudrika may be noted.

शिलष्टान्याङ्गुलिमध्याति द्रव्यसंचयहेतवे ।
तानि चेच्छिद्रयुक्तानि त्यागशीलयुतोनरः ॥

If there be space between the first and the second finger, when they are held together, it indicates lack of wealth during the first part of life, when that is the case between the second and the third finger, it refers to the middle part of life and when it is so between the third and the fourth finger, the reference is to the last part of life. The relevant sloka is as follows:

तर्जनीमध्यमारंध्रे मध्यमानामिकान्तरे ।
अनामिकाकनिष्टान्तः छिद्रे सति
यथाक्रमम् ।
जन्मतः प्रथमेशे वा द्वितीये च तृतीयके ।
भोजनावसरे दुःखं केयाहुः श्रीमतामपि ॥

The same point is stressed the other way round in Jain Samudrika which is as follows:

नालतर्णमि जाणसुतङ्गुणि आमङ्गिमत्तर
धर्णम्मि ।
अछिद्रे सुपणेसुपव्वेसु सथा सुशीशे
पावश्पच्छासुशं कणिद्वियाणामियंतरधणम्मि।
अछिदेसु धणेसुय पव्वेसु सयासुशीशेशं ॥

As to the length of the fingers it is stated that if the little finger extends above the base of the top or the nail phalanx of the third finger, it increases or adds to the wealth of a person and he is likely to have more maternal relatives such as uncles and aunts. The sloka as is follows:

अनामिकान्त्यरेखायाः कनिष्ठा
स्याद्यदाधिका ।
धनवृद्धिस्तदा पुंसां मातृपक्षोबहुस्तथा ॥

Similarly if the first finger is longer than the third or the ring finger the paternal relative such as uncles and aunts would be more and is an happy augury.

मध्यमाप्रान्तरेखाया अधिका यदि तर्जनी ।
प्रचुरस्तु पितुः पक्षः श्रियश्च
विपदोन्यथा ॥

To have more than five fingers is deemed unfortunate and indicative of short life. If the second finger is doubly formed they unfavourably affect wife's longevity. If the third finger is doubly formed, the person fully exploits the knowledge acquired by him for his material and other worldly gains and possessions.

मध्यमायां तु दीर्घायां भार्या-
शनिर्विनिर्दिशेत् ।
अनामिकायां दीर्घायां विद्याभोगी
भवेन्नरः ॥

It may be, therefore, concluded that the study of the fingers in general is as important, vital and significant as the study of the lines on the palm. Among the fingers again each finger merits special consideration. It may be recapitulated and summed up in the words of M. Mangin that the index finger shows mental expression and determination of social personality, the second finger is the indicator of the secret mentality of introspective thought and the inner personality, the third finger typifies the expansions of idealism and the inner aspirations and inspirations and the fourth finger shows the degree of mental receptivity and modalities attached to it. Let it be therefore said at the end that "as the fingers so is the man".

ALWAYS—Please write your SUBSCRIBER NUMBER printed on the wrapper of your Magazine just above your name and address. This ensures quick attention.

MANAGER,
The Astrological Magazine

Scanned by CamScanner Digitized by eGangotri To Preserve Dr. K. V. Kamans Work

INDISPENSABLE BOOKS

ASTROLOGY

Pre-Natal Astrology.—By F. C. Dutt. Deals with birth rectification. Rs. 3.50 or sh. 7.

Highlights of Indian Astrology.—By M. K. Wali, Bar-at-Law. Deals critically with almost all aspects of astrology, detailing also valuable material on timing events, hitherto unpublished. Rs. 3.50 or Sh.7.

Tables of Diurnal Planetary Motion.—Enables the ready determination of the proportional of motion of any celestial body in longitude or right ascension for every minute of the day. Rs. 12.

Longitudes and Latitudes throughout the World. (Except the United States).—By Eugene Dernay. With Local Mean Time Variations from Standard Time and G.M.T. This remarkable work includes more than 5000 cities and towns in every part of the world. Most essential for all students of astrology. Rs. 12.

Indian Ephemeris for 1958.—By N. C. Lahiri, M.A. Indispensable to all. Rs. 2.50 or Sh. 5.

Experiments with Horoscopes, Vols. I, II and III.—By Hora Ratna R. G. Sapre. An analytical study of horoscopes based on scientific principles according to Western and Eastern Systems. Rs. 5 or Sh. 10 each.

Indian Astrology and Diseases.—By Parimal Purkayastha. Rs. 5.50 or Sh. 11.

Indian Astrology, Sex, Marriage and Children.—By Parimal Purkayastha. Rs. 6 or Sh. 12.

Condensed Ephemeris, Parts I, II and III.—By N. C. Lahiri. (Part I: 1875 to 1900, Part II : 1900 to 1941 and Part III : 1941 to 1951), in all Rs. 12 or Sh. 24.

Rhythm of Life.—By F. C. Dutt. Rs. 4.50 or Sh. 9.

How to Compare Horoscopes.—By S. Rajagopala Iyer. Rs. 3.87 or Sh. 8.

Directions in New Era Astrology.—By S. Rajagopala Iyer. Rs. 12.87 or Sh. 26.

Table of Saptavargas.—By R. N. Ramasubban. Rs. 1.12 or Sh. 2/6.

Bharathiya Ephemeris.—From 1960 to 1970.—By Pandit Ganga Prasad. Rs. 10.50 or Sh. 21.

Nadi Jyotisha, Parts I, II and III.—By R. Gopalakrishna Rao. Rs. 8 or Sh. 16.

Jataka Satyacharya.—By C. G. Rajan. Rs. 6 Sh. 12.

Raja Jyothirganitham.—By C. G. Rajan. Rs. 9 or Sh. 18.

Astrological Tables of Lagna and other Houses (in Bhavas).—Rs. 2 or Sh. 4.

Tables of Ascendants.—By N. C. Lahiri, M.A. Rs. 4.50 or Sh. 9.

Bhrigu Samhita Paddhati.—By Bhagawandas Mital, Rs. 12 or Sh. 24.

Predictive Astrology.—By Dr. Jagannatha Rao, M.B.B.S. Rs. 2.50 or Sh. 5.

ASTRONOMY

Tables of the Sun.—By N. C. Lahiri. The book serves the purpose of computors of Indian almanacs. Rs. 7 or Sh. 14.

Concise General Astronomy.—By O. R. Walkey and Dr. H. Subramanya Iyer. Highly recommended for general study. Rs. 6 or Sh. 12.

Universe and the Heavens.—By M.V. Ramakrishnan, M.A., L.T. Gives in simple non-technical language all that is known at the present day about the heavenly bodies. Ancient astronomy has been correlated with modern observations. Rs. 5.25 or Sh. 10-6.

PALMISTRY

Astro Palmistry.—By F. C. Dutt. Rs. 7.50 or Sh. 15.

NUMEROLOGY

A Treatise on Predictive Numerology.—By B. J. Rao, Rs. 4.50 or Sh. 9.

Scanned by www.copyrightsastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

MARKET FORECASTING

Planetary Influences on Markets.—By Legan Mars. Rs. 7.50 or Sh. 15.

Market Forecasting.—By F. C. Dutt. Rs. 10.50 or Sh. 21.

Perpetual Market Forecast and Business Astrology.—By Pandit Ganga Prasad. Rs. 10.50 or Sh. 21.

You, Business and Speculation.—By Bh. Satyanarayana Rao. Rs. 21 or Sh. 42.

Self-Instruction in Commercial Astrology and Numerology.—By T. G. Butaney. Rs. 15 or Sh. 30.

How to Forecast Prices and Winners in Races.—By T. G. Butaney. Rs. 15 or Sh. 30.

RACING ASTROLOGY

Arc of Fortune.—By Erick Leski. Rs. 10 or Sh. 20.

X-Raying Winners.—By Dr. Bh. Satyanarayana Rao. Rs. 15 or Sh. 30.

Less 6¼% to subscribers of: THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

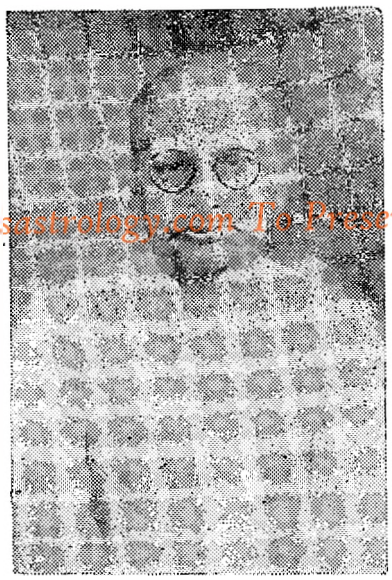
RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

The Cult of the Atom

BY V. VENKATARAMANA RAO, B.A., B.L.

"THE world of atoms constructed by Democritus merely as a speculative philosophical hypothesis has been shown by modern physics to be a reality. In the last few decades the human senses broadened, refined and sharpened by suitable methods of investigation and more elaborate apparatus, have been able to pursue this bold philosophical idea into realms hitherto undreamt of."—(The World of Atoms: Arthur Hass).



Dalton discovered that there are just as many species of atoms as there are elements; that the atoms of a given element always have a quite definite mass; and that the chemical compounds are formed by atoms of different kinds uniting in the simplest numerical proportions as small groups—the so-called molecules. Dufay discovered the dualism of electricity—the existence of two opposite electrical states, the positive and negative.

Every substance is built up of atoms, all of one kind or a linked arrangement of several kinds. Every atom has the same structure. There is a nucleus at its centre. The heavy particles (the proton and the neutron) in the atom are concentrated in this. The light electrons are in the outer boundary. The electrons are in constant movement around the nucleus just as the planets circle around the Sun. But their orbits are less precise than those of the planets.

The atom of hydrogen has only one proton for its nucleus; and to balance its electric charge one electron circles around it. The atom of helium has a nucleus of two protons and two neutrons bound together. Their electric charge is balanced by two electrons circling around the nucleus.

The structure of the atom is held together by mighty invisible forces. Atomic energy is nuclear energy which is released when the atom is subjected to heavy bombardment. The loss of mass exactly balances the energy released. The constituent thus separated is known as the positive electron or positron. It has the same positive charge as the proton and its mass almost equal to that of a negative electron. They seem to be created by the intense bombardment and have only "a transitory existence outside the atom.' Sir James Jeans says that "whatever primary qualities matter may possess, permanence in time, uncreatability and indestructability, must no longer figure in the list Matter seems to have lost the permanence which both physicists and philosophers used to attribute to it."

The splitting of the atom is a marvellous achievement. The greatest consideration is "the ultimate value to man that may come of unlimited power from the reservoirs of atomic energy." We have seen the diabolic use of the atom bomb in World War II against two great cities of Japan, Nagasaki and Hiroshima. Sir Herbert Barker wrote some years ago that "modern civilization is suffering from a spirit lag. And hence every potential blessing from science becomes a potential curse". But the harnessed atom could redeem the world from want and transform our earth into a world without poverty".

V. VENKATARAMANA RAO

The machines have failed to give peace and contentment to the toiling masses It created a mass of unemployed men and women resorting to strikes off and on paralysing the industries and other essential services. There is no equitable distribution of wealth. The defect is not economic; it is ethical. The need of today is a speeding up of our spiritual lives. The salvation of the earth consists in the just and proper use of the atomic energy.

The scientific knowledge about the atom has been utilized for various purposes. The photo electric cells, and the cathode ray gave us the modern sound movies and the television pictures. The alchemist's dream is also partly realized. Mercury can be transformed into gold through an expensive process. The radar is used in air navigation. The Geiger counter has become the eye of research, which picks up and traces the movement of radio-active atoms moment by moment. The atomic power has been used for the submarine—Nautilus—which completed successfully a submerged passage beneath the North Pole.

The scientists are using the atomic energy for the exploration of the outer space. The Soviet Union launched its Sputnik 1 into orbit 560 miles up on Oct. 4, 1957. Then a second sputnik reached a height of 1,062 miles. On January 31, 1958, a third satellite was launched by the United States. The American satellite—the Explorer—reached 1,587 miles above the earth. This explorer and the second Russian satellite are now circling the earth at a speed of 18,000 miles an hour gathering information aboul the upper atmosphere and transmitting it to earth by radio. The sputniks thus supply valuable information to IGY scientists throughout the world. Space technology affords fresh opportunities for scientific observation and experiment. It will add to our knowledge and understanding of the earth, the solar system and the universe.

The Astronomical Council of the Soviet Academy of Science intends to equip the sputnik in future with devices of light reflecting or emitting light during the nights. It will be like a little moon shining in the nightly skies. So one might well sing:—

Twinkle, twinkle, little sputnik,
Singing unto human glory;
Deride not our moon or mimic
Lest thine short life mar thy story.

Arthur H. Snell, director of the physics division of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, writing in the American Scientist (January 1957) observes that "unsuspected new particles are being found and new properties of old ones, with a rapidity that has pushed experimentation far ahead of theory; and physicists are faced with a complicated state of affairs that invokes a sense of frustration. Their experience and instincts tell them that there must be some organisation underlying the empirical situation. The Dirac theory of electrons introduced the concept of anti-particles. The pair theory of particles is now confirmed by experiment and generalisation. Mr. Snell states that "it is now legitimate to speculate about atoms with negative nuclei and positive electrons; the contra-terrane matter of science fiction has come into its own and astro-physicists are on the look out for such matter in the cosmos.

Scanned by www.vedicastrology.com. To Preserve Vedic Wisdom Work

To understand the world of matter (prakriti) and the spirit (or Purusha) has been the time-honoured struggle of the philosopher. Sri Sankara, Sri Madhwachar and Sri Ramanuja interpreted this dualism in their own way. The dawn of nuclear age throws fresh light on this much perplexing question. In Indian philosophy religion is looked upon as affording the hope that Brahman—the Ultimate Reality—is realizable by all Kaka Bhujandar deals with this question in his treatise—Atom—The Briktha Rahita Taraka Raja Yoga which he expounds in his nadi offers a new key to the understanding of this question. His opinion is in agreement with the Visishtadvaitam theory as propounded by Sri Ramanuja. The relevant verses are given in the Appendix. Kakayar says that introspection reveals the secret of creation. An eternal physical life is necessary to attain real Mukti. This fact will be realized by many. The advaitam cannot prevail any longer. The yoga pathi reveals this truth in the Sarangam; that he and the other (soul) are one, the two in one. The perception of Jyoti is evidence of the Vishistadvaitam.

Bhujandar further states that the splitting of the atom very minutely leads to the Paramanu stage, where it cannot be subjected into further splitting. It is the innermost core of the atom where its essence or prime quality can be realized. It is the Spirit Absolute or Purusha, embedded in the matter.

We have seen that the scientist armed with the most powerful atom-smashing machines attempts to solve the mystery of the universe. "He proceeds from the circumference to the centre and as veil after veil disappears he discovers that the apparently stationary is eternally mobile." The solid world dissolves bit by bit under his very eyes, and then vanishes—first into ether, then nto electricity, then into energy or force. As the last veil goes, he perceives that the force is Absolute, and that Absolute Force is the one great cause of all. And as the last cloud dissolves he finds himself in the unclouded presence of the Divine Glory."

Alice A. Bailey in her book entitled "The Consciousness of the Atom" gives an esoteric significance to the atom. She names four kinds of atoms: The atom of the chemist and the physicist, the human atom, the planetary atom, and the solar atom. The concept of an atom according to her is 'a life working intelligently through the medium of a form.' "Man is equally a life or centre of energy, manifesting through his bodies. So a planet is also a medium of expression of a still greater centre of energy. And further under the law of analogy, it may perhaps be proven at some distant time that there is a God or central life back of material nature, and an entity who functions consciously through the solar system."

Robert Browning echoes the same idea in his "Paracelsus":—

"Thus He (God) dwells in all
To man—the consummation of this scheme
Of being, the completion of this sphere
Of life, whose attributes had here and there
Been scattered o'er the visible world before,
Asking to be combined, dim fragments meant
To be united in some wondrous whole,
Imperfect qualities throughout creation,
Suggesting some one creature yet to make,
Some point where all those scattered rays should meet,
Convergent in the faculties of man."

Thus we see that the splitting of the atom by the scientist or the inward discernment of it by the philosopher both lead to one fundamental Truth. All matter is electrical energy—the Brahma Jyoti pervading the whole world of matter. The duality (Matter and Spirit or Prakriti and Purusha) is perceived only in the natural state of existence. But in the final analysis the dualism resolves and coalesces into the One Absolute, while yet the soul consciously maintains its individuality. This is the Vishistadvaitic view of Sri Ramanuja. The atom is the borderland of science and philosophy. Both teach that there are tremendous forces concealed in nature and man. To tap them carefully and use them profitably leads to the harmonious and natural life of human beings and brings them in tune with the Infinite Consciousness, the Divine Light. Bhujandar also says that by the control of atom alone harmony could be established in the world. (Anu Vade Vasya Maakhi Seelam Saiyya).

(Continued on page 116)

GERENTOLOGY AND AYURVEDA

(Continued from page 32)

to Kuti Kalpa in rejuvenating the system. Special medicines (herbal, etc.), prescribed according to the case-history of the patient are first administered to the goat. From the very first day the patient starts taking the goat's milk. The total quantity of milk yielded by the goat during the day must be taken by the patient. He can take his normal diet, though, ordinarily, milk, rice, nuts and fruits constitute the best food (except in cases of rheumatism, diabetis and paralysis). Food should be nutritious. The patient should move about, attend to his normal duties, but should not overstrain himself. The treatment has been used successfully in the cure of a variety of ills.

There are also other Kalpas, like the Bodhi Kalpa (for increasing mental vigour and memory power), the Hari Kalpa (for cure of deafness, etc.), the Ananda Kalpa (for premature grey hair), the Vishnu Kalpa (a cure—all from rare herbs and so on). Constant research is being conducted at the Kaya Kalpa Kanan, Ghaziabad, in Uttar Pradesh, for evolving more and more efficacious specifics.

Register Your Subscription

To ensure prompt supply of The Astrological Magazine every month become a regular subscriber today.

RATE OF SUBSCRIPTION
For One Year Rs. 12

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS
"Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

Courtesy: www.MaharishiAstrology.com To Preserve Late B V Raman's Work

Ambiguous Terms in Hindu Astrology

BY JYOTISH KALANIDHI PT. GOPESH KUMAR OJHA, M.A., LL.B.

STUDENTS of Law are well aware that two different and independent schools of Hindu Law have developed on account of the two different interpretations of the word पितरौ 'Pitarau' (parents) occurring in the Yagnavalkya smriti* in the context of laying down the order of succession to the property of the deceased. While one commentator Vijnaneshwar of Banaras, interpreted the word 'parent' as meaning the 'mother and the father' and put mother first on the etymological ground माता च पिता च पितरौ (mother and father), and on grounds of consanguinity, the other commentator of Bengal interpreted the word 'parent' as 'father and mother' and put father first because he had the preferential right of performing obsequies and offering oblation to the Manes. The former school known as 'Mitakshara Law' is prevalent in Bihar, U.P., Rajasthan, Punjab, Madhya Pradesh, etc. while the other Dayabhag school of Hindu Law holds sway in Bengal.

I will not go into the complexities of legal subtelties, which the above two schools have given rise to, and how inheritances have been decided according to the one school or the other, because that is not the principal point for discussion in this article. Nor shall I refer to the various schools of (i) Advaita, (ii) Dwaitadvaita and (iii) Visishtadvaita † which have been built on the same foundation, but with diversity of edifices on the same texts, but differing in the interpretation thereof.

Variety of interpretations, where it has only academic, religious or philosophical significance does not interfere in the achievement of mathematical results, but differences in the interpretation of astrological texts have an important and direct bearing upon the predictive side and I am going to present in the following lines—how different schools of Hindu Astrology have sprung up, on account of ambiguity of Sanskrit terminology.

* "पत्नी दुहितरश्चैव पितरौ भ्रातरस्तथा"

†(i) Oneness of conception in the matter of human soul and God, (ii) Dual conception resolving it into oneness, (iii) Human soul as devotee of God.

Manda

To begin with, I shall take the word 'Manda' occurring in 2-1-5 in Jaimini Sutras. The word means (i) Lagna (Ascendant) as well as (ii) Sani (Saturn). Jaimini has laid down earlier that the Rasis/Bhavas would be referred to in the text according to the कटपयादि nomenclature, but the 'Grahas' (planets) would be referred to directly by name. According to "Katapayadi" nomenclature 'Manda' means '1', so the school of astrologers who interpret it as meaning 'Ascendant' are quite justified in interpreting 'Manda' as 'Lagna' (rising sign). But according to the other school, Manda means the 'slow' one, and since out of the nine planets in Hindu Astrology, Saturn is the slowest planet, there is no doubt that 'Manda' means 'Sani'.

The southern Indian school of Hindu astrologers favours the meaning of 'Manda' as 'Lagna' (Ascendant). In this connection reference may be made to (i) Jaimini Sutras by Sri B. Suryanarain Rao (1949 Edn.), page 126. (ii) Studies in Jaimini Astrology by Prof. B. V. Raman, page 103 (1950 Edn.) (iii) Span of Life by Sri G. Ramamurthi (page 80). The above list of authors is only illustrative and not exhaustive. They have no doubt walked into the steps of older masters and rely upon tradition and a number of old Sanskrit commentaries. Nilakantha and many other eminent scholars have written elaborate commentaries on Jaimini Sutras in past centuries. Nilakantha the celebrated Indian astrologer also interpreted 'Manda' as Ascendant. But Krishnanand Saraswati Swami another gigantic scholar of astrological erudition has interpreted 'Manda' as 'Sani'. Even the Sage Parasara, who probably represents a school older to Jaimini's says :

"लग्नेशादष्टमेषाच्चैको, योगः
कथितो द्विज ।
होरालग्नाभ्यां द्वितीयं, योगमेवं
विचिन्तयेत् ॥
तृतीयं शनिचन्द्राभ्यां, चिन्तनीयं
द्विजोत्तम ।
लग्ने चन्द्रः सप्तमे वा, चिन्तये
लग्नचन्द्रतः ॥"

Here Sani (Saturn) has been accepted as the factor. Only when the Moon be posited in 1st or 7th house the determining factors may be Ascendant and Moon instead of Saturn and Moon. (See Jaimini Padyamrit—Sanskrit commentary on Jaimini, page 64). The following commentaries also interpret Manda as Sani and not as lagna; (i) Jyotirvivekratnakar by L.P. Pathak (page 276). (ii) Jaimini Sutram by late Pandit Ramyatna Ojha, Head of the Oriental Astrological Department, Banaras Hindu University (pages 93-94). (iii) Jaimini Sutras by Sitaram Jyotishacharya (page 59). Scholars can well imagine how much difference it will make in arriving at mathematical results, when two equally current interpretations are in vogue.

Hora

Another ambiguous word which has given rise to two interpretations—having a serious bearing on the calculation of Hora Lagna (which is also made use of in determination of longevity) is the word 'Hora'.

(i) It means one 'hour' and many scholars are of the view that the words 'hora' and 'hour' have common origin.

(ii) The other well known meaning of Hora is half of a sign and the extended meaning is half of the sign rising (Ascendant).

Prof. B.V. Raman says: "Divide the time of birth in ghatis (from sunrise) by 2.5. The quotient plus one counted from the Sun or Lagna according as the Janma Lagna is odd or even represents the Hora Lagna. The remainder reduced to degrees, gives the exact longitude of Hora Lagna".

In the Jaiminian calculation of "Hora Lagna" not only Prof. Raman but other eminent scholars like Mahamahopadhyaya Pt. Durga Prasad Dwivedi have also taken 'Hora' as equal to one hour (i.e. 2.5 ghatis) but there is another school which interprets 'Hora' as half of the sign. In this context I need not refer to other works because the other interpretation has also been given by Sri B.V. Raman himself in his footnote in Studies in Jaimini Astrology on page 31 wherein says thus: "……Hence mathematically the exact position of Hora Lagna would be 43° 9′ plus 174° which is equal to 217° 9′—Scorpio 7° 9′. Actually, however, as we are asked to count from the sign of Lagna (i.e., from the 1st degree of the Lagna Rasi) we get 30 plus 173/204°, i.e., Thula 24°."

Scanned by www.sattarishi.org in Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

I would not dilate upon this point further but would state that there is another school which insists that the number of 'Horas' should always be added to the longitude of the Sun and not to Lagna whether the sign rising is odd or even. (See commentary on Laghu Parasari by G. P. Dwivedi, Head of the Astrological Department, Sanskrit College, Jaipur.) This difference in the matter of calculation of lord of Hora would also arise in the "Shadbala" (six kinds of strength) calculation. Please refer to Pt. Subrahmanya Sastri's commentary on Sripati Paddhati (Pp. 43) where following Muhoorta Martanda he deducts the longitude of the Sun from the longitude of the Lagna, to arrive at Hora and concludes that the 'Hora' is presided over by the Moon. But in the example given by him if we arrive on the basis of 2½ ghatikas (i.e. one hora=one hour), the 'Hora' at 30 ghatikas on Friday would be quite different.

Pandit Subrahmanya Sastri himself writes on page 42 of his Sripati Paddhati: "The word 'Hora' means an hour, i.e., 1/24th part of a day as well as 'half of a Rasi.' Some take it in the former sense and others in the latter....."

In the example horoscope worked out by Mr. Sastri, he has taken one interpretation relying upon the authority of Muhoorta Martanda which represents one school while the other school is relied upon by Prof. B.V. Raman and a host of others (see Graha and Bhava Balas, pages 47-48 by B.V. Raman).

In fact the two schools have sprung up due to ambiguity of Sanskrit terminology. Students of Astrology would appreciate that as 'Hora' lord is assigned one Rupa of strength two different interpretations of the word "Hora" can heavily tilt the scale, one way or the other.

Gulika and Mandi

Almost all the Sanskrit astrologers have not made any distinction between Gulika and Mandi. Even in such an old standard work as Prashnamarga, Gulika and Mandi have been taken to be the same. It is only Uttarakalamrita which says that Gulika and Mandi are the two sons of Saturn (see Khanda—Part I, verses 7 and 8) and that according to Sage Mandavya they cause damage to the house they are posited in. Commenting upon the distinction between Mandi and Gulika Sri Subrahmanya Sastri says: "The distinction between Mandi and Gulika should be carefully noted. Their exact positions on any week day are not the same. Take for instance a Saturday. Supposing that the length of the day to be 30 ghatikas we have Mandi's position to correspond with the Lagna at 2 ghatikas after sunrise while Gulika's position will correspond to the Lagna at 33⅓ ghatikas after sunrise."

With due deference to Sri Sastri, I do not agree with his version. But I would not like to dilate on the reasons for my disagreement. I would only add that not only 'Gulika' and 'Mandi' have been taken to be two different 'Upagrahas' (sensitive points) but even in the matter of calculation of the exact position of Mandi—there are two views: One view says thus :—

"Here we have to learn what is meant by Gulika Kala and the time governed by him..... Take Sunday and suppose the duration of the day is 30 ghatis, then each part gets 3¾ ghatis. This first 3¾ ghatis are governed by Surya (Sun), the second 3¾ ghatis by Chandra (Moon). The seventh 3¾ ghatis are ruled by Sani (Saturn). The eighth 3¾ ghatis have no lord and Gulika who is next to Sani (Saturn) becomes the lord. These 3¾ ghaties are called Gulika Kala (pages 53, 54 Jaimini Sutra by Sri B. Suryanarain Rao.)

But according to Vriddha Karika, the oldest Sanskrit interpretation of Jaimini—

रविवारादि शन्यन्तं गुलिकादि
निरूप्यते ।
दिवसं अष्टधा भक्त्वा वारेशात्
गणयेत् क्रमात्
अष्टमांशो निरीशः स्यात् शन्यंशः
गुलिकः स्मृतः ॥

This means that Saturn's part of a day is Gulika. Even Sri B. Suryanarain Rao himself says: "When there are differences of opinion on such matters among the old writers, we have to look to the opinion of the best among them....." I may add that in matters like these, it is very difficult to say what is the best—the majority view however is that Sani's position is Gulika. I know that majority and minority have no significance in the matter of astrological interpretation, because one wiseman may well excel hundred fools. The difficulty however arises when there are all the 100 wisemen—50 holding one view and 50 the other.

Counting clockwise or Anti-clockwise

Before concluding with different schools of Jaminian terminology (which is open to more than one interpretation) I would like to cite one more instance. In Adhyaya 1, Pada 1 in Sutras 26, 27 and 28 Jaimini reads as hereunder:

प्राचीवृत्तिर्विषमेषु १.१.१६ परावृत्योत्तरेषु १.१.२७ न क्वचित् १.१.२८

We have to remember that these sutras (aphorisms) occur in the very opening pada and the opening chapter is generally devoted to definitions and general rules.

Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao has translated the above thus:

"In all odd signs the counting must be in the right direction. 1–1–25. In even signs the counting must be in the reverse order. 1–1–26. In some places or signs this does not apply. 1–1–27 (pages 26–27). It has been further exemplified that the last aphorism—in some places or signs this does not apply—refers to the 4 signs Leo and Aquarius (among odd) and Taurus and Scorpio (among even.)"

I only want to invite attention of the readers to the fact that these two methods of counting clockwise and anti-clockwise are:

(i) Applied by some only in the matter of calculation of Chara Dasa (one kind of major periods).

(ii) While others extend this mode of counting to the entire Jaiminian system. For example in Adhyaya 2, Pada 1, Sutras 19, 20 and 21

"पितृलाभेश रोगेशग्रणिनि कंटकादिस्थे स्वतश्चैवं त्रिधा...."

mean that we have to take the lord of the 8th as counted from the 1st and 7th houses and see which is stronger and where he is posited (in judgment of longevity). Now normally the eighth from 1st house is 8th and eighth from the 7th house is 2nd, but in case of an even sign (being the ascendant) excepting Taurus and Scorpio, if we count in reverse order eighth from 1st house (via 12th, 11th, 10th and so on) will be the 6th house of the nativity and 8th from the seventh (via 6th, 5th, 4th and so on, houses of the nativity) would be the 12th house in the birth chart.

Thus the lords of 6th and 12th would be quite different from the lords of 1st and 8th in any nativity and the entire data for calculating the longevity would be bifurcated according as we count clockwise or anti-clockwise, in the application of aphorism in subsequent Adhyayas. Nor can we say that rules of Adhyaya 1 will be limited to Adhyaya 1 only. The general principal clauses have to be applied here as well as in subsequent chapters. In fact they have to be applied everywhere for aphorisms pertaining to strength of Rasi (sign) given in the opening chapter we apply in judgment of longevity in subsequent chapters. For people who are more interested in the above difference in interpretation, I would refer to pages 102–103 of the translation of Jaimini by late Pt. Ramyatna Ojha. I would have liked to give more instances from Jaimini—even from Adhyayas 3 and 4—English translation by Sri S. K. Kar. For the benefit of those who would be satisfied with the bare text of Adhyayas 3 and 4, I would refer to the Jaimini Sutras published by Lakshmi Venkateshwar Press, Bombay. This book was published in 1900 A.D. and contains all the four padas (including 3 and 4 which have now been translated by Mr. Kar). Space however does not permit me to offer more examples from Jaimini and I shall now switch on to Parasara.

Scanned by www.saptarishiastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B.V. Ramans Work

Bhavas and Rasis

It has been one of the most controversial points whether in the absence of clear instructions (a) one should count Bhava (house) to Bhava, or (b) Rasi (sign) to Rasi. In view of the fact that in places near the equator, the two become almost identical, a number of Sanskrit works has left the matter to dual interpretation. I had in the course of an article (published in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE) showed that equal division of houses was more favoured by early authors on Hindu Astrology. I am quoting herewith a Sanskrit authority to show that even in the matter of determination of temporal friendship and enmity—which is supposed to be a calculation of a very elementary character—there are two schools. One school takes only those planets as friends which are in 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 10th, 11th and 12th Bhavas while the other would take those as friends who are in the 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 10th, 11th, 12th Rasis as counted from the sign—the planet (whose friends and enemies we are to determine) is posited in.

The author of Shambhu Hora-Prakasa says :—

"मैत्रीचक्रं भावतः केश्चिदुक्तं
नैतच्छ्लो पत्या दिकानां मतं हि ।
लग्ने नैसर्गाद्यथा स्थान संस्थैः खेटैः
मैत्री योगपूर्वं विचिन्त्यम् ॥"

Mr. V S. Subrahmanya Sastri who in the context of determining temporal friends and enemies says : "This latter kind of friendship between the several planets can be determined by finding out their relative positions, i.e., by ascertaining according to some which of the 12 bhavas they occupy in the Bhava Chakra(Lagna-Bhava Kundali). Others say that the relative position of one planet with respect to another must be determined by first casting the Bhava-Kundali of the latter planet (by considering the latter planet as the Lagna).....and then finding which particular bhava in this Bhava-Chakra the former planet is occupying."

So even in the determination of temporal friendship and enmity by Bhavas (houses) we have 2 views: One school says: "Consider the Bhavas (houses) as calculated for the ascendant (houses of theNativity)".Another says: "No, consider the planet—whose friends and enemies you are determining as the "cusp" and make a fresh house-chart for each planet." It is a queer admixture indeed that in the determination of (a) Naisargika (natural) friendship we should take the Rasis (signs) as the basis and in (b) temporal we should take * Bhavas (houses of the Nativity), or Bhavas (houses by taking the individual planet as the cusp) and then combine (a) and (b) to arrive at resultant friendship, neutrality or enmity !!!

We have to remember that the resultant friendship, etc. is the basis of calculation of the mathematical Shadbala (six kinds of strength including the positional strength which in its turn depends upon the Saptavarga Bala.)

The mathematical results arrived at by the three different schools of Hindu Astrology would naturally differ.

Bhavas and Rasis in Gochara and Ashtakavarga

The entire transit system in Hindu Astrology is based on planetary movements as counted from sign to sign. I could quote extensively from Vidhya Madhava and Muhurtha Chintamani including the most valuable Sanskrit commentary Piyusha-Dhara to show that in the chapter devoted to gochara (transits) the computation is on the basis of the sign occupied by the Natal Moon. When Hindu astrologers have wanted to be more precise or have cared to apply more specific rules, they have taken the nakshatra or 4/9th of a sign, as a sector and there is a vast literature existing on birth nakshatra in which the Moon was posited at birth and they count not only birth nakshatra—Janma, but 'Karma and Adhana' and other nakshatras also and have even gone into laying down the Sarvato-Bhadra Chakra which is an almost independent branch of astrological science. But in the matter of gochara calculations, bhavas have been given little importance. There is however a school of scholars who say that gochara should be considered according to the Bhava (house) and not Rasi.

In their recent book Ashtakavarga Sri C. L. Patel and Sri Iyer have devoted their entire energy to preparing the case of Bhavas vs. Rasis. I have grave doubts how far the case can stand, but even in the consideration of Ashtakavarga, the determination of bhava can be split into two schools as shown above (in the context of determination of temporal friendship). For example in the Sun's Ashtakavarga, if we have to plot a bindu (favourable point) in 4th from the Sun whether it should be in 4th.

(i) Rasi (sign) as counted from the Rasi occupied by the Sun ;

(ii) Bhava (house) as counted from the Bhava (house) in which the Sun is posited in the nativity ; or (iii) "Bhava" as counted from the Bhava(house)chart prepared by taking the Sun as the cusp.

Due to the ambiguity of the Sanskrit terminology each of the interpretators can find support for his view.

Another Interpretation in Ashtakavarga

Another bone of contention in the matter of interpretation has been the text :—

त्रिकोणेषु तु यन्यूनं तत्तुल्यं त्रिषु शोधयेत् ।

Scholars of astrology well-versed in Ashtakavarga system are aware, that after computation of Ashtakavarga, there is Trikona-sodhan. The 12 signs are divided into the following four groups :—

(i) Aries, Leo, Sagittarius ;

(ii) Taurus, Virgo, Capricorn ;

(iii) Gemini, Libra, Aquarius ;

(iv) Cancer, Scorpio, Pisces ;

and the above Sanskrit text has been interpreted in the following two manners :

(A) In the Trikona (three signs of one group as stated above) see which contains minimum number, and reduce that number from the other two or

(B) In the Trikona (each of the

* See B.V. Raman's Graha and Bhava Balas.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com © Reserved Work three signs of one group as stated above) note the number which is the least, and reduce the number in the others—making them equal in all the three signs.

Example:

Suppose the position is as follows:—

Aries	3 benefic dots.
Leo	5	do
Sagittarius	7	do

Now according to school 'A' 3 is the least number and must be deducted from each of the three signs and the position after reduction would be as follows:—

Aries 0; Leo 2; Sagittarius 4; while according to school 'B' because 3 is the least number, the number in the other two must also be made equivalent to 3. So the position after reduction will be as follows:—

Aries 3; Leo 3; Sagittarius 3. One view is held by Balabhadra who is also the author of Hayan Ratna. This Balabhadra was the court astrologer of Shah Shuja (brother of Aurangzeb) in the 17th century. My purpose is not to show merits or demerits of any school, but only point out the existence of different schools of Hindu Astrology due to different interpretations—the beauty being that every school depends upon lexicon and rules of grammar of Sanskrit. In fact it is the ambiguity or richness of interpretation which is responsible for the flexibility of the language and diversity of interpretations.

'Varsha' (Year)

Another bone of contention in the calculation of Mahadasas and Antardasas has been the word वर्ष (Varsha), which in plain and simple language means a 'year'. Though there are several kinds of year—the tropical, the sidereal, the anomalistic, etc, the tie is between the solar year and the lunar year. While the majority of astrologers take the solar year for purposes of Dasa calculations and Mantreshwara's clear dictum has been often quoted in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, yet there is another school, which stoutly sticks to the lunar year as the standard measure for calculating Dasas. Among the occidental scholars, who have adopted Hindu Astrology, the chief exponent of the lunar measure is Mr. Nixon. He obviously derives support for his school from a host of practicising Hindu astrologers (who are no less well-versed in Sanskrit texts, than the Pandits of the other school)—who propound the theory that since calculation of Mahadasas is based on Nakshatra (constellation) system and position of the Moon in the zodiac, it is the lunar year, which is the basis of the Dasa. It is a different matter that the system of Adhikamasa (intercalary month) has been introduced, to import constancy between the relationship of the solar and the lunar standards, but the Mahadasa being a product of and incidental to the Moon-constellation union, must be governed by the cycle of the Moon. The monthly periods of the females are often cited as a direct influence of the lunar cycle.

Planet vs. Dispositor

I would now pass on to another point which I have no doubt would surprise a large number of readers. As far as I am aware, two Jataka Paddhatis are considered as top ones—one of Keshava and the other of Shripati. Here I shall deal with a sloka from Keshava's Jataka Paddhati. It reads as follows:

नीचो तोभभगणाच्युत: षऽधिक-
श्रेष्टद्वदौचं बलम्
स्वर्क्षेऽर्द्धं समभेऽष्टमाखिचरणा मूल
लिकोणे बलम्
मित्रर्क्षेंऽशै रवीष्टभे त्रय इमांशा
वैरिभेष्टयंशको
दन्तांशोऽध्यरिभे गृहादिपवशात् खेटस्य
सप्तैक्यजम् ॥

—(Sloka 5)

In this text I would invite attention to the wording गृहादिपवशात् occurring in the 4th line—depending upon the position of the lord of house, etc.... (in which a planet is posited). If we change one letter in the above phrase and make it "गृहाधिपवशात्", it would mean "according to the lord of the house". I would invite attention to the commentary on the above sloka which reads as follows:—

"....गृहादित् पन्ति ये ते गृहादिपा:
ग्रहादि सप्तवर्ग स्वामिनो ये सन्ति
तद्वशात्
स्वर्क्षेऽर्द्धमित्यादीनि खेटस्य सप्तवर्ग
बलानि ग्राह्याणि...."

It is not clear, who the Sanskrit commentator is, but the commentary explains that we have to take the dispositor's strength. This view, however strange, does not stand isolated. Sanskrit knowing astrologers are well aware of Nilambar, the author of Gola Prakash. He is taken as a standard author on astronomy. This Nilambar's elder brother Jivanatha was author of many works on astrology (viz. Bhava Prakasa, Bhava Kutuhala, Vanamala, Prashna Bhushan, Janma Patrika Vidhanam and a host of others. His father Shambhunath was also an astrologer of great repute. This Jivanath in his work Janma Patrika Vidhanam written in Saka 1776 (about 104 years back) says in the text of Saptavarga Bala as follows:—

सप्तवर्गोद्भवं वीर्यं गृहाधिपवशादनुधैः ।
तदैक्यं खचरस्यत्र निरुक्तं मिहिरादिभिः ॥
"....अयमर्थः । ग्रहो यास्मिन् गृहेऽस्ति
तद्गृहस्वामिनः स्वर्क्षोद्युक्तबलं ग्राह्यं ।
एवं होरादिस्वामिनामपि । अथोदाहरणम् ।
रवैः गृहाधीशो गुरुः स च
समभेऽतोष्टमांश बलम् गृहे ०.७.३०
रविस्वहोरायां तेन रवि रेव होरेश:
समगृहेऽतोऽष्टमांशएव ०.७.३०.

(—Page 61)

These couplets are followed by Sanskrit commentary in prose. The Sanskrit commentary translated into English would read as under:

"...When a planet is in the house of another, look to the lord of that house, if he be in his own house, etc. the coresponding strength is to be taken. And so, look to the lords of 'Horas', etc. also. Here is the example. The Sun being in Dhanus (Sagittarius) the lord whereof is Jupiter—that is in the house of neutral, therefore the strength allotted will be 1/8th. The Sun is in his own Hora, therefore the Sun himself is the lord of the Hora. He is however in the sign of a neutral so the strength allotted would be 1/8th...". In the example horoscope which has been given by the author Jupiter and the Sun are in 5th and 9th from each other, and have become temporal enemies and as the Sun is the natural friend of Jupiter, the Sun has become a neutral. The readers would see

(Continued on page 110)

Digitized by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan. To Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

Weekdays in Samskrit Literature

BY U. VENKATAKRISHNA RAO, M.A.

DR. KEITH, the historian of Samskrit literature, categorically cites the view of Dio Cassius, the Roman Historian (150–235 A.D.) under Marcus Aurelius, that the calendrical use of the planets was regular in his time and in 321, the Emperor Constantine gave the seven days' week its definite sanction by appointing Sunday as a day of rest (Pp. 531 History of Samskrit Literature, Oxford 1928). The harnessing of the planets' names to the days of the week must be prior to Dio Cassius, but Keith mentions, that the earliest use of such a week name in an inscription in India is A.D. 484, Eran inscription (as also referred to by Sri R.C. Hazra of Dacca University in his "Puranic records and customs", Pp.83). Though thus mentioned for the first time in 484, it is strange that it is rare till about 800 A.D. after which only such definite references to weekdays are common in our inscriptions. These are quite common now in our daily sankalpas.

The Germans called Sunday Sonntag, the former half of the word being the precursor of the English Sun. The Anglo-Saxons called this 'Sunnan Daeg' through which the modern English word Sunday is derived. The Moon is responsible for the name of the second day, and the word is traced back to 'Monan daeg' in Anglo-Saxon, where the genitive singular of Moon was 'mona'. The third day was called in Anglo-Saxon 'Tiwes daeg' as it was dedicated to the God of War 'tiw', a deity made to correspond to the Roman Mars. Germans called this 'Dienstag'. Tiw was cognate with Greek Zeus, Dios and Latin Jupiter or Jovis. The fourth day was dedicated by Teutons to Woden or Odin, the chief Teutonic deity; the Anglo-Saxons called it 'Wodenes daeg'. Thursday was originally sacred to Thor, the old Teutonic God of thunder. The Anglo-Saxons called it 'Thunres daeg', thunres being the genitive of thunor or thunder. Icelanders called it Thorsdag (Thor's day) and the Germans Donnerstag. Friday is to be traced back to 'Frige daeg' or the day dedicated to the goddess, wife of Odin. She was referred to in Latin as Frigge. Saturday was sacred to Saturn according to the Romans, when according to their scriptures God took rest after his strenuous work of creation for six days, it was the Jewish Sabbhath. The Anglo-Saxons called it 'Saeter daeg' or Saetern dag, day of Saturn. Saturn was the ancient Roman God of agriculture, his annual festival being called Saturnalia. The Greeks and the Egyptians divided their month of thirty days into three parts of ten days each only.

But Prof. V. S. Krishnaswami of Kodaikanal, in an article in the Sunday Standard recently suggested an Egyptian origin for this harnessing of the weekdays with the respective planets presided over by the Sun. According to him, the seven planets are to be regarded as the presiding deities for the 24 hours of the day. The geometric distance to each planet from the Sun settles their order, Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Sun, Venus, Mercury and Sun. So if the Sun is to be the presiding deity of the first hour of Sunday, $7 \times 3 = 21$, the deity for the 22nd hour will be again the Sun, 23rd will be presided over by Venus, 24th by Mercury, 25th or the first hour of the next day comes to be presided over by the Moon and so will be called Monday. In this way, the names of the other days can be decided by the name of the first hour-god. Thus these weekday names spread from Alexandria to the other places through the traders. Though the Greeks were dividing their 30 days into 3 weeks of 10 days each, they found the seven-day week more convenient and they first accepted this about the time of the birth of Christ; soon the Romans also, who had till then adopted an eight-day week, with the 8th day Mundane—set apart by them to make their purchases in the central cities, in the time of Constantine the Great (274–327 A.D.) fell in line. In the eastern countries, again, Arabia took the lead in popularising this 7-day week and all the countries they visited, viz., Persia, India, China and Japan and the rest followed suit. In China, before switching on to the 7-day week, they seem to have divided the year of 360 days into six parts further divided into 3×20 day-groups.

How the number seven came to be conveniently fixed for the number of the weekdays deserves to be investigated. The stars are counted as 27 now, but their first recounting in the Yajur Veda and later in the Atharva Veda gives us 28 and not 27 nakshatras. They became 27 probably in Varahamihira's time, and he seems to have been responsible for making them begin with Aswini (and not with Krittika as they were till his time). These stars are poetically conceived to be the wives of the Moon, in whose houses, the husband stays during the night. This 28 is easily divisible by 7 and that seems to have been the reason why wages were also calculated in terms of so many weeks. In the villages, again, the women calculate the monthly periods counting 28 days for the month. The Egyptian priests divided their lunar month into 28 days, further sub-divided into four parts. Anyway, this seven-day week is not heard of in our Vedic literature; even in the Amarakosa, when even minute divisions of time, as well as Yugas, Brahma's day (sahasrayuga of men), year, etc. are mentioned, the week in the sense of seven days seems to be significantly absent. Perhaps the earliest reference to the seven-day week in our literature is on the occasion of the seven days' incessant rain showered by Indra when the Govardhana Mountain had to be lifted by the Lord to protect His devotees in the Bhagavata Purana. It was this very Purana again that started the practice of public recitals of this Purana within seven days exactly after Suka had expounded the same to King Parikshit in as many days.

Among the Western astronomers, Herodotus (484–424 B.C.) asserted that every month and day had special presiding deities and each man's future could be predicted with the help of the date and hour of his birth and native star. The Babylonian astronomers had studied the nature of the 12 monthly transits of the Sun starting with the Aries. Varahamihira provides us with their Samskrit names in his astronomical books and Amarasimha has also referred to them. The custom of casting one's horoscope from the date and hour of one's birth and more particularly seeing whether the horoscopes of the proposed bride and bridegroom agree or not, seems to have been a Babylonian custom introduced long after the Epic period into India. As a matter of fact, we do not hear of such 'tallying of horoscopes' in either of our Epics (or even in Vatsyayana or Manu) though the five planets being in the ascendant at Rama's birth already in the early Rama epic. Kautilya in the 3rd century B.C. even goes to the extent of ridiculing our dependence on the stars or the position of the various planets or the Sun in the sky. (But Vatsyayana declares 'The stars, Sun, Moon, planets and different zodiacal signs are sentient indicators of good and evil). Even the word Hora in the title Horasastra is borrowed from the western word meaning hour, though ingeniously attempts are made to posit an indigenous origin from the word 'ahoratra' (with the loss of the initial and the final syllables). But Valmiki even as early as the 10th century B.C. had known the various 'thithis' or days of the fortnight as pratipat when study was forbidden and was aware of the conjunctions of various planets influencing man's birth.....Vaakpatau Indunaa Saha at the birth of Rama. This indication of future prosperity (or impending misery)..... Suuchtta Bhaagyasampadam in Kalidasa's words—was definitely studied in India alone and not borrowed from foreigners in Babylonia. Dr. B. B. Datta in a learned article in the Ramakrishna Centenary Volume establishes this fact. According to him the 'mandagati', 'purogati' and 'vakragati' of these planets and their banal or beneficial results on us were already studied by our ancestors even in the time of Varahamihira. Kalidasa refers to such banal results on Kama just when he started to Iswara's hermitage in the 3rd canto of his Kumarasambhava, the "purahsukrnm" presaging his death soon after. In one word, the very fact that this science was called nakshatra vidya shows that our ancestors were keen observers of the movements of the various planets and stars in the starry heavens. If they might not have had scientific instruments like the modern telescope, they had perfected an instrument called 'tureeya'. They had organised observatories or 'vedhashaalaas' at different places and the one in Ujjain was very famous. Lanka was situated on the equator and we read that there was a famous observatory there also. Aurangzeb's contemporary, Jai Singh maintained such a well-equipped observatory also.

Varahamihira is however not unmindful of foreign borrowing in his science. He honours them as Rishis; but Alberuni's testimony itself, we dare say, will be enough to show the high level of astronomical acumen acquired by our ancestors. Notwithstanding all this, Western scholars who argue that much of our astronomical knowledge is borrowed, are not wanting. Dr. Keith is obsessed by this idea and the one word 'jaamitra' used by Kalidasa in the first sloka of the seventh canto of the Kumarasambhava is connected by him with the Greek word 'diametron'. He does not at all pause to explain the full implications of this borrowing, but rushes to this dogmatic assertion. The verse itself in question refers to the marriage of Parvathi being celebrated on a day having 'jaamitra shuddhi'. The verse is

अथोषधीनामधिपस्य वृद्धौ तिथौ च
जामित्रगुणान्वितायाम् ।
समेतबन्धुर्हिमवान् सुतायाः विवाह-
दीक्षाविधिमन्वतिष्ठत् ॥

Kalidasa actually refers to many such other muhurtas or auspicious times as for example the 'Brahmamuhurta' in which Aja was born and 'Maitramuhurta' for Parvathi's marriage decoration, but the way these moments are referred to shows that it is characteristically an Indian approach. Parvathi's marriage was celebrated in the bright half of the month when the Moon exhibits a tendency to grow bigger; this according to him, symbolises the fact that the conjugal love of the couple would also increase likewise. The 'thithi' or the day indicated jaamitra which also signifies that the husband married on that day would naturally become the 'mitra' or friend of the 'jaayaa' or the wife. When such an indigenous explanation is easily possible, it is not at all clear why the learned author should read any Greek influence. As a matter of fact, the Greek word for diameter in mathematics might be diametron, but there is no mathematical idea associated with the context as is obvious to everybody. Our ancestors were keen observers of the sky and could ascertain the exact period of the night by glancing at the sky. This is quite clear from the way in which the disciple of Kanva, in the beginning of the IV act in Sakuntala, was asked to go out and ascertain the time. His report is couched in the famous sloka:

यान्येकतोऽस्तशिखरं पतिरोषधीनाम् ।
आविष्कृतोऽरुणपुरःसर एकतोऽर्कः ॥

"The Lord of potent medicinal herbs, the Moon goes on one side (of the sky to the setting mountain; the Sun pushing to public gaze (his legless charioteer) Aruna, comes up on the other side". The significance of this sloka deserves to be grasped: The Moon, who possesses medicinal herbs like the 'mritasanjeevini' capable of reviving even the dead, has himself to become a prey to death, while the Sun with a legless and inefficient charioteer, can easily come up. Evidently the insinuation seems to be, the auspiciousness or otherwise of the stars or the planets at the time of birth indicates the future rise or decay of the person concerned 'loke niyamyata iva astamadashaantareshu' in the poet's immortal words.

AMBIGUOUS TERMS IN HINDU ASTROLOGY

(Continued from page 108)

how very divergent this view is from the other view, with which we are all too familiar.

There are many diversities of interpretations in Hindu Astrology. I do not condemn them but commend them because differences indicate intellectual strength and virility and much exercising of thought. I conclude this article with the hope, that in future, I shall have occasion to cite more instances of diversity of interpretations of Sanskrit texts and thus provide food for thought to the thousands of readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAZAZINE, who refer to it for fresh light in every issue.

AYURVEDA

or The Hindu System of Medicine

4th EDITION

BY B. V. RAMAN

With an Introduction by

W. B. CROW, D.SC., PH.D.

In this book an attempt is made to explain the broad outlines of Ayurveda to the general public and give them an idea of the grandeur and importance of this ancient Medical system. Every true Indian must study this lucid exposition.

OPINION

"The book is nicely written and the get-up is decent".

Prof. J. C. GHOSE, M.A., F.C.S.

Re. 1 or Sh. 2

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS
"Sri Rajeswari", Bangalore-3

CC-0. Mumukshu Bhawan Varanasi Collection. Digitized by eGangotri Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

Influence of Planetary Colours on Racing

BY S. KHIOGI

WHEN I wrote to the Editor of this Magazine expressing my desire to publish this article in his paper, his manager replied to me that personally the Editor is not so much interested in Commercial or Racing Astrology. I think, the reply was just an appropriate one for a subject like this. A person cannot, but be sceptical in his views on such articles, as uptil now the myth of all sure systems published on Horse Racing have proved to be fallacious when put to actual practice and testing. Surely, I shall not blow my own trumpet except in the interest of this great science of astrology. Beginning with an "Error and Trial" method my unfailing observation and experience in the pursuit of colour research for the last 22 years have turned and forced my unwilling belief into the conviction that all the signs and the planets of the zodiac have their own true colours, independent of the various colours conceived and attributed to them by different authors in this subject of planetary colour system.

The object of publishing this article is not so much to give out the full secrets of one's life work to get rich-quick to those students of astrology, who follow various colour systems as given in printed books, but still groping in the dark to find out winners. On the contrary, my purpose is two-fold. First, that the lessons thus obtained from colour research should not pass away with me. Second, if they are published then many of learned readers with their vast knowledge in astrology can better utilise them in other branches of this science for the benefit of mankind. For instance, experiments are going on to heal patients by the art of applying different shades of coloured lights on them. If the right colour of the right planet, which causes ailment according to Medical Astrology, can be ascertained, then the method of application of coloured lights is bound to improve.

Lastly, I humbly submit that I am neither a scientist nor an expert in Dyer's Art. Still, I have made an attempt to arrange this subject of planetary colours in a scientific manner and in harmony with astrological laws and principles.

For the sake of convenience, I have divided my subject-matter into two parts. My present article is mainly concerned in dealing with the colours of planets and signs in relation to their influence on mundane objects and events. The second part will deal entirely with spotting out race winners with the help of these planetary colours, which will correspond with the owner's racing colours.

In order to determine a winner by planetary colour system, the first thing we require, is casting of a horoscope of a specified race time, wherein the colour of the then dominating planet in relation to the sign, will correspond to the winning colour of the owner of the horse—which is represented in the blouse worn by the jockey.

Many of my readers will be inquisitive to know in the very beginning from the title of the article what causal connection planets have on a owner's racing colour. Do planets have their corresponding colours and are we influenced by them? We learn from the science of astrology that planets exert an influence on our daily events of life through their rays. Tracing a line through their rays, which carry colour, it can be possible for us to find a connection between their corresponding colours in the winners. The respective colour of a planet finds its identical correspondence in the colour of the winning horse, when the planet itself figures prominently in the heavenly chart of the set time of a race.

Even, if we admit that the predominant planet lends its colour to the colour of the winning horse, still the question remains, that when horses carry equalising weights, why the horse while running should come in front leaving others behind? It is said that interplanetary action implies the transmission of energy, which we recognise as force, light, attraction, etc. It is this energy of the then prevailing planet, which we presume gives extra speed to the winning horse.

Perhaps, a brief history of all about planetary colours tracing from the ancient writer Sibley down to the modern ones like Sepharial and others will not be out of place to mention here. This will not only enable my readers to have a comprehensive view of the subject, but by a comparative study of the theory, that the colours of the planets in relation to the colours of the signs are the main causes of bringing in race winners will be quite manifest to them.

When we go through the records of the perplexing question of colour distribution to the planets by different authors, we find our power of understanding and thinking in a state of confusion as to the selection of right colour for the right planet. This confusion has been aptly described by Mr. R. L. Sutaria in his Astrology of the Race Course, page 72 in the following lines:—

"Colours have been assigned to planets empirically, but still in a half haphazard manner and after you have gone through all that is said about them by authors from Ptolemy down to Sepharial, you will find yourself in a labyrinth: There is no systematic arrangement and no two authors agree, as regards the colours ruled by the planets. Compare, for instance, Raphael and Sepharial:—

Raphael (Horary Astrology, p. 53)
Colours signified by the Planets:

Uranus—Checks and mixed colours.
Saturn—Black.
Jupiter—Green, spotted or ash coloured
Mars—Red, scarlet.
Sun—Saffron or yellow, sandy.
Venus—White and bluish.
Mercury—Grey or dove coloured.
Moon—White, cream or pale green.

Sepharial (A Manual of Astrology, p. 12)
Planetary Colours:

Neptune—Mauve or Lavender.
Uranus—Streaked and mixed colours.
Saturn—Black, dark brown and indigo.
Jupiter—Purple, violet, mixture of red and indigo.
Mars—Scarlet, red and carmine.
Sun—Yellow-brown, orange, gold and the deeper shades or yellow.
Venus—Lemon yellow and pale blue: "Art Tints" in general.
Mercury — Slate colour, spotted mixtures.
Moon—White, opal, green and iridescent silvery hues.

Aries takes you no further. According to him, Mercury rules red and french grey, colours as apart as the poles."

Please compare the conflicting colour accounts and also look into the discrepancy in the respective colours of Jupiter, Venus, Mercury and Moon, as stated above by the authors. This is nothing but confusion worse confounded. But Mr. Sutaria himself is not free from the same deficiency of which he has tried to point out about other authors, however, genuine their defects may be. In Pp. 10 of the same book, we notice the following lines "with a little imagination and judgment, you are in a position to interpret the colours of the planetary configurations. For instance, a conjunction of Mars and Saturn will indicate a dark shade of red, e.g. maroon, cherry, claret, etc., but if there are separate benefic aspects from the two planets, you should look for a combination of the two colours, e.g. 'crimson, black maltise cross', 'cherry and black hoops', 'black, cerise belt and sleeves", etc.

Scanned by Gurbir Singh Bhalla, Chandigarh. Preserved by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Work

But with all deference due to the great author, I assert from my previous experience that the principle he has tried to establish here is not only misleading but erroneously conceived. During the early days of my faithful following of the methods given in "Silvery Key", "Golden Key", "Astrology of the Race Course" and other works for finding sure winners, I not only came to grief, but found that these methods were far from truth and the principles they wanted to establish were wrong. Truly speaking, if anybody is really in possession of any sure method of finding winners, he will certainly not take recourse to publishing books leaving aside the golden path of amassing fortune in the quickest time on the race course.

So, the instance of the conjunction of Mars and Saturn, cited above, may have any other meaning in astrology, but has nothing to indicate a dark shade of red, when the planets themselves are thus conjoined together. The proof indicates otherwise for a dark shade. Take for example the colour claret of Mr. Sutaria's instance. If we venture to say that Mars whose colour is red, when aspects on the sign Taurus whose colour is light blue, brings the complimentary colour claret, then it can easily be tested with the help of a student's Water Colour Box. Though a crude method of test for the coloured lights of planets, still it will give an idea on mixed colours.

Let us examine also, what effect the relation of Mars and Saturn has between them by way of aspect. The result is that when Mars aspects on the sign Capricorn whose colour is black and whose owner is Saturn, the requisite colour of such relation is chocolate. So, it is not the conjunction of Mars and Saturn is responsible for the colour claret. It is the relation between Mars and Venns, which effects this colour.

Take the second example of Mr. Sutaria from that same page on these planets of Mars and Saturn, i.e., "If there are separate benefic aspects from the two planets, you should look for a combination of the two colours, e.g. "crimson, black maltise cross", "cherry and black hoops", "black, cerise belt and sleeves", etc.

I ask my readers to pause for a while and give a little thought over the matter. We take for granted that Mars and Saturn are equally predominant in the chart of a given race and three horses are running, each one carrying exactly one of these respective shades of red of Mars along with Saturn's black. What would be the result? Will the three horses 'Dead hit' for the first place, because, they have received the same amount of energy and influence from these two planets? Certainly not! Mars is not at all the maker of the colours crimson, cherry and cerise as mentioned above. For example, if I mention again that it is the Sun whose colour is orange aspecting on the sign Scorpio, whose colour is deep red creates the colour cerise and Saturn aspecting on Capricorn, both indicating black, then the horse running under the owner's racing colour of "Black, cerise belt and sleeves" of Mr. Sutaria's description will come as winner out of these three horses. The truth of this colour variation originating from the relation of Sun and Mars (ruler of Scorpio) can also be tested with the same colour box and verified on actual race ground; we do it more so because one can be convinced that what we are trying to establish as true is true for all times.

Here I mention one of the main principles relating to planetary colours for finding winners. "The original colour of a planet and that of a sign undergo a change in mutual aspect, when both of them are not composed of the same primary colour". In other words a planet gives the requisite mixed colour when it is in aspect with a sign colour but themselves are of different basic colours. When the planet and the sign are composed of the same basic colour, then they will repeat the same colour. As in the case of Mercury and Gemini, both of their colours are yellow. Here they will repeat yellow when in mutual aspect.

This fear is the brief comparative history about planets.

Before we enter into our own scheme of planetary colours let us examine the colours of the signs of the zodiac as narrated by other authors in the same comparative light for a better understanding of the subject.

Mr. Pegasus in his 'Racing', Pp. 67 observes that "one of the first difficulties is to decide the correct standard of colours. Most of the writers have devoted chief attention to the colour of the planets whereas our own experience shows that it is more concerned with the colours ruled by the sign. The spectroscope of the colour scheme is really ruled by the earth's circle of 12 signs of the zodiac. The ancient writer Sibley who records from very old sources hands down a classification of the colours of the signs of the zodiac as follows :—

Rules—the colours of :—

Aries—White mixed with red.
Taurus—Red mixed with citron.
Gemini—All mixed red and white colours.
Cancer—Green and Russet.
Leo—Red and green.
Virgo—Black speckled with blue.
Libra—Black, dark crimson or Tawney.
Scorpio—Prefers a brown colour.
Sagittarius—Yellow, green colour tending to red.
Capricorn—Black or dark brown.
Aquarius—Sky colour or blue.
Pisces—Pure white colour, silver.

But the author admits here that "Sibley's colour list lacks several such as gold, orange, purple, etc. and puts down the "Esoteric" classification of colours by the theosophists given in the same page.

We compare this with Sepharial's in his "Kabala of Numbers". (Pp. 76).

"Esoteric"

	Mentioned by Pegasus	Sepharial
Aries	Red	Red
Taurus	Indigo	Pale blue
Gemini	Yellow	Yellow
Cancer	Violet	Green
Leo	Orange	Orange
Libra	Indigo	Pale yellow
Scorpio	Red	Black
Sagittarius	Blue	Purple
Capricorn	Green	White
Aquarius	Green	Blue
Pisces	Blue	Grey

Digitized by Www.Siddhanta.eu Courtesy of Dr. V.B.Bhojani's Work

There is hardly any semblance between the two, as if fancy has been given a free hand to play its own role. Moreover, we notice Pegasus' assignment of the colours of the spectrum exclusively to the signs only which we note in these words. "The Spectroscope of the colour scheme is really ruled by earth's circle or 12 signs of the zodiac". It is poles asunder from the angle of vision of the set of authors, who always assign the prismatic colours to the planets only.

If this be the state of affairs, one may ask, then how to arrive at the true solution for colours? In response to this query, we prefer to submit for consideration of our own scheme of actual colours of the planets and the signs of the zodiac, in order to solve this vexed problem of planetary colours. They are as follows :—

The respective colours of the Signs

Aries	Red	Libra	Light blue
Taurus	Pale blue	Scorpio	Deep red
Gemini	Yellow	Sagittarius	Blue
Cancer	White	Capricorn	Black
Leo	Orange	Aquarius	Deep blue
Virgo	Light pink	Pisces	White

In order to prove that the colour scheme presented here is genuine, I propose again our previous method of test, to examine the colours mentioned below in favour of our arguments for the proof. We have proved in our previous examples that the original colour of a planet and that of a sign will undergo a change in mutual aspect, when both of them are not composed of the same primary colour. To express it in clear terms, the identical mixed colour will recur each and every time without fail, when the identical planet and the sign with their proper colours, will be related in mutual aspect. But, if the colours of the planet and the sign are not composed of one fixed colour only but variegated, then the mixed colour will also be a variegated one and will fail to produce that very mixed colour which is the natural outcome of these two particular basic colours. Take for example the mixed colour gold. It is produced when Mercury whose colour is yellow aspects on Virgo, whose colour is light pink. But if we say Mercury's colour is also grey and that of Virgo's dark-green, then this colour gold, will never be produced by the mixture of grey with dark green which on the other hand will only produce a colour hotch-potch. These colours of grey and dark-green, along with others have been ascribed respectively by Raphel and Sepharial to these planets and have been quoted in our article for reference. Therefore, proceeding from the colour gold to the colours yellow and pink—the makers of gold, we inversely prove our proposition that the colours proposed in our colour scheme are proper and genuine and will never fail to produce that mixed colour, whenever they are asked to act upon in similar manner.

My readers are now requested to make some observations on our colour scheme. Perhaps, it has not escaped their notice that this allocation of colours to the planets is not according to the principles of division of the colours of the spectrum. To account for this discrepancy, we like to mention that these seven colours of the spectrum come from the rays of the Sun reflected on a prism. But planets are independent bodies and have colours of their own choice. They should not be supposed to be standard bearers of the colours of the Sun. All previous thinkers on planetary colours allotted these seven colours to the seven planets. Probably, on the notion that as there are seven planets and because of the discovery of the seven colours from the Sun, the greatest luminary round whom all other planets revolve in the solar system so legitimately these colours should go to them. Hence, they allotted these colours to the seven planets; but each author allotted them according to his own way of thinking, i.e., some distributed green to Venus, some to Saturn and others to Moon. I do not know what meaning this allocation of the Vibgyor colours of the 'Rainbow' conveys to the planets themselves. They may have some significance and influence on other mundane events; but so far spotting out of winners by these prismatic colours are concerned, I have not the least hesitation to say that this is the common mistake and greatest blunder made by all other authors, who tried to solve their problems for finding winners by ascribing these prismatic colours to the seven planets.

The next point to note is that the planets Uranus and Neptune have not been allotted any colour whatsoever in this colour scheme.

The Western astrologers have ascribed a good many attributes to the nature of these planets and have sanctioned certain functions to be performed by them according to their positions in the 12 houses of the zodiac. Similarly, they have distributed certain colours to these planets in their scheme of planetary colour distribution.

If anybody finds them absent now from the colour scheme as proposed here, then the obvious conclusion would be that the scheme itself is incomplete and hence incapable of picking up winners.

To the best of my experience and knowledge, I shall try to prove here that these two planets might have their say on other earthly objects and events, but have nothing to do with colours so far as horse racing is concerned.

As it might arrest our attention in connection to our present burden of proof, we quote from the preface of Sepharial's The New Manual of Astrology. Here Sepharial gives his views on astrology in relation to these two planets and puts it this way : "In an experimental subject like astrology, there is always something fresh to be said and much that needs to be told anew in the light of a more catholic experience than that enjoyed by astrological authors of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. The discovery of the planet Uranus on the 13th of March 1781, and of Neptune on the 20th of September 1846, has enlarged the field of our researches and put us in touch with causative influences hitherto unrecognized by astrologers." If this be the position of astrology, then we must admit that minus these two planets, it loses all its value as a science. Even, if we admit that there is always the scope to interpret the subject-matter of astrology in the light of a more 'catholic experience', but that does not mean that we should always go on experimenting on it and shall never attain that sound judgment of prediction, without the help of Uranus and Neptune. Pluto is already within our sight, sooner or later he also will be given a portfolio like these two planets. Again, who knows that other heavenly bodies hitherto unknown to us will not enter the arena to 'enlarge the field of research in this experimental subject of astrology'.

To the ancient Hindu astrologers, the planets Uranus (Prajapati), Neptune (Varun) and Pluto (Rudra) were not unknown bodies to deal with.

But the Hindus never raised these planets to the status of those seven planets namely, the Sun, the Moon, Mars, Mercury, Jupiter, Venus and Saturn, who guide the destiny of mundane objects both animate and inanimate. The reason for such differential treatment may be that they observed that these three planets were so very distant from our earth, that their rays, so to speak had no effect on earthly events.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastro.com Presented by Pt. Rajesh Kumar, New York

Perhaps, nobody will cast the blame upon the Hindu astrologers, that for the omission of these planets from Hindu horoscope, their prediction about the nativity of a person or event was incomplete or erroneous. Even today, there are astrologers in India, who by their oriental system of casting of a horoscope and method of judgment can predict day-to-day events, with all the accuracy and details it demands.

With these impressions and informations, as we turn to our burden of proof again, we notice that previous authors found correspondence in the colours of these two planets to that of the owner's racing colours. So they assigned violet, lavender, lilac and heliotrope to Neptune and grey, black and white, all checks, stripes, hoops and all mixed colours with their eccentricities like bird's eye, shamrocks to Uranus. But enlarging the field of our colour research to the furthest end, we find nowhere these two planets having 'causative influence' on a owner's racing colours. To be precise, all these colours and their mixtures described as checks, hoops, etc., are exclusively formed by the proportionate distribution of the respective colours of these seven planets only and come directly under their colour rulership.

I reveal another secret about the formation of these colour mixtures with their varieties formed by the seven planets. The secret which can be treated as a principle lies in the fact that whenever more than one planet is prominent in a race chart, the respective colours of these planets are as broadly represented in the winning colours of the owner in the shape of hoops, stripes, etc., as to the strength of the planets in the chart. In other words, the colours of the planets are as broad based in the colour of the winner as to the force of the aspects, they exert on the signs.

Let us examine the truth of the above statement in the light of some examples. Take the case of Jupiter and Mercury, whose respective colours are blue and yellow. Both are equally prominent in the chart and both are aspecting only on Gemini whose colour is also yellow. The result would be that the former's blue aspecting on yellow (Gemini) will produce the mixed colour of dark green and the latter's yellow on Gemini's yellow will repeat the same basic colour. We find the winner in the shape of "yellow with dark green hoops". Take another example of Mercury and Saturn, both aspecting but on separate signs and are prominent in the chart. Mercury aspecting on Virgo whose colour is light pink produces gold and Saturn on Capricorn repeats black. The winner is found in "Gold with Black Checks". In the last example we find Jupiter alone aspecting on both the signs of Leo and Sagittarius whose respective colours are orange and blue. The winner is there carrying the owner's colour of "Blue with Lilac Bird's eye".

We do not produce actual race charts here in support of our cases, just for the sake of uselessly enlarging the pages of this article. It is needless to mention here that those adherents of astrology who follow various colour systems in racing, must have observed in the charts of many races that stripes, shamrocks and such other varied colour combinations are manifest in the winner, when Uranus is not at all prominent in the race chart; or violet, lilac, etc., coming as winning colours without the least influence of Neptune. The cause does not lie far to seek. The fact is, that truly these colours and their combinations come under the rulership and jurisdiction of the seven original planets only. In the case of our last example, it is not Neptune's Lilac or Uranus' Bird's eye which are responsible for the colours in the winner, as has been assumed and assigned to these two planets by all other authors. Here blue is more broadly represented in the colour of the winner because of the more powerful aspect of Jupiter on Sagittarius than on Leo of the same planet for lilac.

I hope, that from the facts and figures adduced in support of our arguments, my readers have been convinced that the planets Uranus and Neptune have no place in the affairs of racing. They have consequently no right or claim to the colours, which are the exclusive property of the seven planets only so far as the colours in this game is concerned.

To say that it is not within the scope of our subject-matter, still it is not unreasonable for one to be desirous to know that when one part of the proposition has been proved to be true that Uranus and Neptune have no effect or action on colours, then what about their sphere of influence on a person's horoscope or on other mundane events? It is a debatable point and I leave it to my learned readers for the answer.

The last thing to observe in our colour scheme is that various colours have not been allotted to a single planet unlike all previous authors.

For instance, some of them say that the colour of the Moon is white or silver white, while others ascribe opal, green, yellow, etc. But a planet has not only one colour either primary or mixed. It cannot be black, white and brown at the same time. Either it must be black or white or brown or other than these, but not all of them at a time. If we assume that a planet has variegated colours, composed of different hues, then when it comes in contact with the colour of a sign, it produces a hotchpotch of colour, as has been shown in our example for the formation of the mixed colour gold in this article. A single planet with variegated colours will never be able to bring a winner, when it aspects on a sign. If we argue for argument's sake that brown is a hotchpotch of colour and when we find a winner with brown colour, then it is not the action or influence of a single planet representing this colour. Brown is formed by Jupiter, Mars and Mercury when all of them simultaneously aspect on a sign whose colour is either red or yellow or blue. We have also shown that colour combinations are the actions of different planets. So a planet cannot be black and white at the same time. Our previous examples in support of our colour scheme also prove that a planet has not got more than one colour. I hope, these observations made by my readers will enable them to look to the merits of our colour scheme and also to its marked advantages over other colour methods to follow.

The modern art of dyeing has extended this science of colour to an endless variety of colours. Therefore, for the benefit of the followers of colour system, I shall give here a list of colours, but shall confine myself to those colours only which have been found to be formed by the planets in relation to the signs and have also been found corresponding

(Continued on page 116)

Scanned by www.saptarishi.org@Saptarishi Astrological Research Work

Register Your Subscription

To ensure prompt supply of The Astrological Magazine every month become a regular subscriber today.

RATE OF SUBSCRIPTION

For One Year Rs. 12

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"SRI RAJESWARI"

BANGALORE-3

The Riddle about a Well-known Verse of Varahamihira

BY PROF. R. V. VAIDYA, M.A., B.T.

Introduction

FULL twelve years have elapsed since I published in Marathi Magazines, articles on the "Date of Bharat Battle". I have published on the subject, articles in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE also. Although the date published by me, viz., 2786 B.C. is correct, still, all these 10 to 12 years it had been my impression based on references then available, that scholars have committed an error in translating the following verse in Varahamihira's Brihat Samhita incorrectly :—

आसन्मघासु मुनयः शासति पृथिवीं
युधिष्ठिरे नृपतौ ।
षड्द्विकपञ्चद्वियुतः शककालस्तस्य राज्ञश्च ॥

The above means : "When King Yudhisthira was ruling the earth, the Saptarshis (Great Bear) were occupying the constellation of Magha. The year in terms of Yudhisthira Saka could be obtained by adding 2526 to the current year."

No rational thinker could be brought round to believe that one cluster of stars would be leaving its place and would be moving in the regions of other stars turn by turn. This is as good as saying that mountain Vindhyas were once occupying the territory of Bengal. I will now attempt to place before learned readers the correct meaning of this verse and to show how the wrong interpretation of the original verse of old sage Garga has misled some scholars throughout the last 1500 years while calculating the date of Yudhisthira, and thence that of Bharat Battle.

I

The Text and Context

The above verse is numbered 'three' in the chapter on the movements of Saptarshis in Brihat Samhita. In verse No. 2, Mihira declares that he was describing this "in accordance to the views of old sage Garga".[1] Varaha has been good enough to include in the text the original verses of the old sage in support of his own, with the remark "so says old Garga".[2] He gives the following verse just before the commentary on verse No. 3 along with other verses at the end. Fortunately for us, the commentator has not given any interpretation of his own of these verses[3] :—

कलिद्वापरसंधौतु स्थितांस्ते पितृदैवतं ।
मुनयो धर्मनिरताः प्रजानां पालनेरताः ॥

These verses show that old sage Garga has used the following qualifying words to the word Munayo.

धर्मनिरताः—meaning "devoted to religion".

प्रजानां पालने रताः — "devoted to the welfare of people".

स्ववर्ग परिपोषकाः—"Given in charge of looking after the interests of their respective communities".

Prof. R. V. VAIDYA

क्रतोरेनं विनिर्दिष्टाः—May mean "given some appointment or office in the sacrifice".

How can we speak of stars as being devoted to religion and to the welfare of people? These epithets can apply to human beings alone and never to inanimate objects. Varaha has clearly committed a blunder in rendering munayo as seven stars. A further consideration is, therefore, necessary to arrive at the correct meaning of the old Garga's verse.

II

A careful scrutiny of the above said five verses, given in the footnote, can at once lead a rational thinker to find that,—

(a) Varaha has interpreted the word munayo as seven stars because of the word Pitri Daivatam appearing in the original verse and which has been interpreted by him as the star Magha, since this star is believed to be controlled by the deity Pitri.

(b) The phrase षट्द्विकपञ्चद्वि can also admit of more than one meaning. I consulted the Sanskrit Dictionaries and also Pandits of local Sanskrit College. Most of them told me that the word द्विक means 'a pair' and not the number 'two'. One of them has also suggested that द्विक may mean "a square". According to these three different meanings the phrase can be rendered as 2526, 2566 and 2536.

(c) This year number has to be added to the current Saka year. It is not known what Saka era was meant by Varaha.

(Continued on page 117)

[1] कथयिष्ये वृद्धगर्गमतात्

[2] अथाचवृद्धगर्गः

[3] तथाचवृद्धगर्गः

उल्कया केतुनावापि.....
स्वं स्वं वर्गं तदाहन्युः मुनयः सर्व एवते ।
.....स्ववर्गपरिपोषकाः ॥
देवदानवगन्धर्वाः सिद्धपन्नगराक्षसाः ।
नागाविद्याधराः सर्वे मरीचेः
परिकीर्तीताः ॥
यवनाः पारदाश्चैव काम्बोजा
दरदाः शकाः ।
वसिष्ठस्य विनिर्दिष्टास्तापसा वनमाश्रिताः ॥
धीमन्तो ब्राह्मणा येच ज्ञानविज्ञानपारगाः ।
रूपलावण्यसंयुक्ता मुनेरङ्गिरसः स्मृताः ॥
कान्तारजास्तथांभोजा अत्रेर्ये
सरिदाश्रिताः ।
पिशाचा दानवा दैत्या भुजङ्गा
राक्षसस्तथा ॥
पुलस्त्यस्य विनिर्दिष्टाः पुष्पं मूलं
फलं चयत् ।
तत्सव पुलहस्योक्तं यज्ञा यज्ञभृताश्रये ॥
*क्रतोरेनं विनिर्दिष्टा वेदज्ञा
ब्राह्मणास्तथा ॥'

*क्रतु means a sacrifice. It is also the meaning of a मानसपुत्र of God Brahma. (See M.B.).

Scanned by Jyotish Vaidya Maharishi Astrology.com For Preserving Ancient Knowledge Work

INFLUENCE OF PLANETARY COLOURS ON RACING

(Continued from page 114)

with owner's racing colours at Calcutta Race Course. They are as follows :—

When the Planets aspect on the Signs the Colours are:

Planet aspecting	Aries	Taurus	Gemini	Cancer	Leo	Virgo
Sun ...	Scarlet	Grey	Gold	Rose and prim-rose	Orange	...
Moon ...	...	...	...	White	...	...
Mars ...	Red	Claret	...	Pink	...	...
Mercury ...	...	Light green	Yellow	Canary	...	Gold
Jupiter ...	Violet	...	Dark green	...	Lilac	...
Venus ...	Claret	Pale blue	Light green	...	Grey	...
Saturn ...	Light shade of Chocolate	...	...	...	...	...

Planet aspecting	Libra	Scorpio	Sagittarius	Capricorn	Aquarius	Pisces
Sun ...	Grey	Cerise	Lavender	...	Lilac	...
Moon ...	...	...	...	...	...	White
Mars ...	Claret	Deep red	Violet	Chocolate	Purple	...
Mercury ...	Light green	...	Green	...	Dark green	Canary
Jupiter ...	...	Purple	Blue	...	Dark blue	...
Venus ...	Pale blue	Claret	...	...	...	...
Saturn ...	...	Chocolate	...	Black	...	...

I have already explained about the formation of the colour brown in my previous example. Here, I mention about the making of the colour peacock blue. It is formed when the two planets Jupiter and Mercury simultaneously aspect either on the sign Taurus or Libra or Sagittarius. The colour is perfect on Taurus and Libra, but the winner open comes, when they aspect on Sagittarius. The reason for this will be explained in my next article. Now, I may be allowed to advise with confidence to my readers that these colours can be accepted as self evident truths in the selection of winning colours. Because, they are based on verifications and observations for decades in this field of research on planetary colours. Though the list is incomplete in the sense that the colour productions of all the signs of the zodiac have not been tabled here, it can be solved and completed with a little bit of practice and imagination. Take the instance of Sun from our list and let us try to fill up the blanks on Virgo, Capricorn and Pisces. We find the colours like this: Sun on Virgo—A higher shade of gold; on Capricorn—A hotch-potch shade of black, but still black is prominent; on Pisces—A shade of prim-rose and rose—the remaining six planets can similarly be tried. But one should not be too zealous to put them hurriedly into practice, unless and until he is sure by repeated observations and verifications that the colours can safely be used in the selection of winning colours. Then only they can put two and two together to make four.

Before I conclude this article, I issue a note of caution. To achieve cent per cent success in the selection of winners one must be conversant with the inner meaning of the strength of a planet, so as to be prominent in a race chart. It is unlike our ordinary mode of ascertaining that a planet gains in strength when just on the cusps of the four major angles, namely, the Ascendant, the Descendant, the Meridian and the Nadir; or otherwise, prominently placed in the houses of the zodiac; such as in the 5th house.

Similarly, aspects whether benefic or evil, applying or separating, have a different denotation and connotation like the strength of a planet.

Scanned by CamScanner to Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

THE CULT OF THE ATOM

(Continued from page 104)

கேளுமே ஆடெமென்றால் ஒன்றை வைத்து
கிரிக்கிரிப் பிரித்திடவோ பர மாணுக்கும்
சூளுமுறை இனிப்பிரிக்க முடியா தென்று
சொல்லுவதாம் மேல்கவரந்த நாத மன்றோ
சூளுமுறைதான் பார்க்க அதனுட் சாரம்
அரியவே ஆட்டெமென்றால் அந்த சொல்லும்
மீளுமுறை யுட்புகுந்து தெளிவதாக மேவியதாய் எட்டலையோ நங்கு யோகி
ஆதி மூலம் என்ற பொருள் அணு தானென்ன
அழியாப் பதமதனில் தேகம் சார்க்க
சோதிவரும் கன்னிலையே புதுமை யாக
சொல்லுவேன் இந்த வழியாரும் நம்ப
மேதினியில் தவமென்றால் இது தானம்மா
மெய்யாகும் பகவனுரை கவியி னாலே
ஓதினேன் மற்றவையால் சூசும் மட்டும்
உணரலாம் சித்தி ஓர் கலைகளாடும்
நிலையாதோ நீ யறிய சிலதா னெட்டி
நிகழ்த்தக் கூர்கவே அத்த தென்றும்
நிலையாதோத் துவைதத்தால் உண்டுச்செய்து
சேரந்ததிலே யத்தனென்றால் தெளிந்ததாகி
கலையாதோ என்றுணரும் மதி மானுக்கு
கலையாது அந்நிலையில் ஒன்றுமாகி
தலையாதோ என்றறிய அத்தனின் கூர்
தாளுகி நிற்பதுவே மதிகான் கேளு
கவனிக்கத் துவைதக்கூரு அத்த தாலால்
கமலகவர் வாசமே தானுமாகி
எவனிக்கத் துவைதமே தெரியும் வாரு

(Continued on page 118)

THE RIDDLE ABOUT A WELL-KNOWN VERSE OF VARAHAMIHIRA

(Continued from page 115)

I will, therefore, attempt to discuss these points one by one and will request readers to their views as to how far I have succeeded in making an impartial and rational approach to the problem.

III

What is the "Garga Sambita"?

A Samhita work generally deals with the following subjects :—(a) Practical Astronomy, including motions of planets, their heliacal rise and set, eclipses, etc; (b) Their effects on human life; (c) The geographical divisions of the earth and distribution of regions in classes (Varga)[4] according to the three groups of 27 nakshatras who are supposed to exercise a control over their destinies. There is absolutely no doubt that such Samhita works were actually compiled by the first grade sages like old Garga, Parasara, Devala and others in the time of Mahabharata and these were preserved in their original or modified form even upto the time of Varaha, who has quoted them at length throughout his bulky work the Brihat Samhita.

I attempted to procure a copy of the Garga Samhita in which I expected to find all the above five verses. I could get a Garga Samhita in the Library of the local premier institution of Sanskrit lore at Indore, viz., the Sanskrit Mahavidyalaya, and I was surprised to find that unlike a standard Samhita work, it was simply a work describing the life of Lord Sri Krishna. I reluctantly read the whole of it and I am glad to say that I did get in it some clues for the correct interpretation of the verse in question.

The said Garga Samhita as it stands today, starts explaining the purpose of writing the work. It says that a certain King Pratibahu,[5] son of King Vajra of Mathura, performed a number of sacrifices, with a desire to get a son, but he could get none. He was, thereupon, recommended to read the story of Lord Sri Krishna as described by Sage Garga, primarily intended for the fulfilment of one's desires.

As we proceed further, we come to Chapters 49 and 50, from Part VII[6] and Chapter 7, Part X in which it has described how Sage Narada explained to King Ugrasena that it was very difficult to perform a horse sacrifice, that this was performed only by King Yudhisthira before, and that it could be done if sage Garga is again requested to accept the high office of Priest-in-chief, as was done by him in a similar occasion (viz., Rajasuya sacrifice) before.

From these verses, one can easily infer that,—

(1) A sacrifice was performed by King Ugrasena after such a sacrifice had already been performed by King Yudhisthira at the end of Dwapara Yuga.

(2) Ugrasena lived in the period between the Kali and Dwapara Ages, and that his second sacrifice was performed when King Yudhisthira was ruling.

(3) Garga was the most competent sage to occupy the office of acting as Priest-in-chief in such a grand sacrifice, and his name appears to be closely associated with sacrifices, right from the time of King Ugrasena down to that of King Pratibahu of Mathura.

The last verses of the last chapter (viz., 20 and 21), describe (of course in future tense) how the following six kings were to be the "fixers of Saka eras"[7] (शकबन्धिनः) of whom Yudhisthira was the only king already born and others were yet to live (see verse No. 22).

From these verses one can easily conclude that there may have been two or three sages named 'Garga'. The oldest one may have been the contemporary of Lord Sri Krishna, Ugrasena, Bhishma, Yudhisthira and others. The second[8] Garga (II) may have lived before King Vikrama and others were born and the third Garga (the writer of the present Garga Samhita) may have lived after these kings had promulgated their respective eras.

IV

The Vriddha Garga's Five Verses Quoted by Varaha

When these verses are read together, they clearly appear to be a part of the description of some sacrifice performed by some king, during the reign of King Yudhisthira. They show that Munis[9] (and not Rishis) were given the office of looking after the welfare of different communities living in different regions and some of the Munis were given the special duty of inspecting the work of well-read Brahmins engaged in the sacrifice. The names of Munis occurring in these verses are seven, viz., Mareechi, Vasistha, Atri, Angirasa, Pulastya, Pulah and Kratu. The seven sages, commonly known as Saptarshis and whose names are given

---

[4] नक्षत्रकूर्माध्यायः ॥
तथाचगर्गः
कृत्तिकाद्यैश्चिनक्षत्रैर्वेर्गैर्नवभिः क्षितिः ।
कल्पिता मध्यदेशादौ प्रागादिक्रमयोगतः ॥

[5] वज्रस्यापि सुतो राजा प्रतिबाहुनृपोह्यभूत्
संतानार्थे विधानेन बहूनि यज्ञोश्चकारह
तथातेनकृता यज्ञाः दक्षिणाभिः प्रयत्नतः ॥

—Part X, Verses 11 to 15 and 56.

[6] राजसूयः क्रतुवरः पुरामद्रचनात् त्वया ॥
कृतः श्रीकृष्ण कृपया द्वारकायां सुखेनच ॥
तथा युधिष्टिरेणापि कृता कृष्णाज्ञया ततः ॥
द्वापरांते भारतेच हयमेधः क्रतूत्तमः ॥
कुरुगर्गम् समाहूय यज्ञारंभं नृपोत्तम ॥

—Part VII, Examples 49 and 50.

अथोग्रसेनो नृपतिः सर्वधर्मभृतां वरः
श्रीकृष्णेन सहायेन क्रतुराजं चकारह ॥
भक्त्या परमयाहूता ऋषयो
मुनयो द्विजाः ।
आजग्मुः द्वारकोसर्वे पुत्रशिष्यैः
समावृताः ॥
गर्गाचार्यं गुरुंकृत्वा यदराजो ह्यदीक्षत ॥

—Chapter 61, Verses 20 to 22

[7] युधिष्टिरो विक्रमश्च तथावै शालिवाहनः
विजयाभिनंदनश्चैव तथा नागार्जुनो नृपः ॥
तथाकतिकश्च भगवान् एतेवै शकबंधिनः
करिष्यन्ति कलौ भूपा धर्मसंस्थापने तथा ।
अभूत् युधिष्टिरो राजा भविष्यन्ति
नृपाश्चते ।

[8] The astronomer Garga, often referred to by Varaha as Vriddha Garga, appears to have lived in an age in which the heliacal rise of Agasthya (star Canopus) was associated with Sun's entry into the constellation of Hasta.

cf. दृश्यते स किल हस्तगतेऽर्के ।

[9] The Garga Samhita itself differentiates between the words Rishis Munis, Dwijas, etc., as can be seen from the line ऋषयोमुनयो द्विजाः occurring in verse 4, Chap. 49, Part VII. The Mahabharata quotes six of these names as those of Brahma's मानसपुत्रा's. (See Adiparva, Chap. 61).

Scanned by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Project. Digitized by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Project. CC-0. In Public Domain. Panini Kanya Maha Vidyalaya Collection.

to the seven stars of the constellation of Great Bear, are :—

Kashyapa, Atri, Bharadwaja, Vishwamitra, Gautama, Jamadagni and Vasistha. According to Mahabharata (Chap. 165; Anusasan), these sages were professional performers of sacrifices and acted as Priests-in-chief. Readers can now agree with me in the fact that the word Munayo as used by old sage Garga should not be translated as Saptarshis or even as Rishis, but as Munis in human form.

V

The word "Pitri Daivatam"

Scholars are tempted to translate, like Varaha, this word as the star Magha. Readers of Mahabharata will not fail to notice the important fact that whenever a reference to a particular star, a particular tithi or to a particular nakshatra, has to be made, it is to be made in terms of the controlling deity, this being invariably accompanied by the term, Muhurtha, tithi or nakshatra, e.g., मुहूर्तेऽभिजिताख्ये (i.e., on the 8th Muhurtha named Abhijit); प्राजापत्येहिनक्षत्रे (on the nakshatra whose deity was Prajapati); शक्रदेवतां अमावास्यां (on that Amavasya day, of which the deity was Indra). It is also to be noted that the word is used in the accusative case and not in locative for showing a place or a position like the words गच्छे, धाव, etc., showing motion, this word is intransitive, it cannot have any object (कर्म) and cannot have a word in the accusative to show a position, as is done with गत्यर्थ verbs. The स्थिति or occupation is spoken about Munayo who are devoted to religion (धर्मनिरताः) and devoted to the welfare of people. Munayo, here, clearly stands for human beings. How can human beings be spoken of as "occupying a position in the star Magha?"

In my opinion, Pitridaivatam does not stand for any star, but for some "grand, old, venerable or respected father." In the absence of any context it is very difficult to tell as to whom it refers. It may be referring to grand old Bhishma [10] or to old Ugrasena, or to some respectable person who was the father of some king to whom the reporter is shown as describing some sacrifice. A father used to be referred to Pitri Deva[11] in the Vedic and Mahabharata times. A search for these verses has to be made in all the works known as Garga Samhita.

The Brihat Samhita abounds in quotations from Garga and by old Garga also. These show what a great genius and astronomer, the old sage Garga was. He appears to have remained a keen observer of astronomical and natural phenomena, and hence,

(Continued on page 122)

[10] cf. the references showing that Bhishma was the father of Dhritarashtra:

अतीव शुशुभे राजन् पितातेऽपूर्णचन्द्रवत्
एवं भूतस्तवपितारौरः विशकलीकृतः
हतमेवाहि पश्यामि गांगेये पितरं रणे
अद्याहंनिहतं श्रुत्वा पितरं.....

[11] cf. मातृदेवोभव. पितृदेवोभव.

THE CULT OF THE ATOM

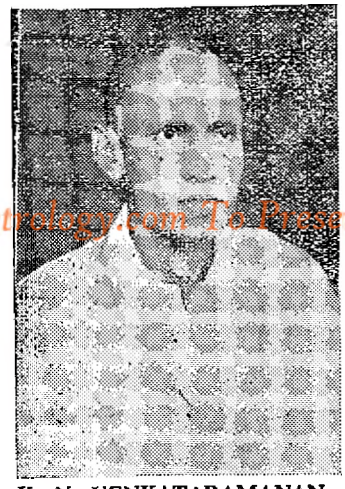
(Continued from page 116)

எல்லார்க்கும் காட்டியதே தொடக்
கும் சீரை
தவனிக்கே சொல்லுவதும் பூர்த்தி
யக் கூர்
தானரிய தரையதே நிரையு
மென்று
அவனிக்கோர் சாகஷியாம் இப்பு
ராடில்
ஆட்டியதே மாட்டிவைக்கும் தரு
மம்பாரு
ருதியாம் இருப்பதனில் அத்த
ருகூ
உண்டாக்கிக் கொடுக்கவோ யங்கு
ாதம்
கருதியாம் சோதிக்கத் தெளியு
மென்று
கமலசம்புரித்திட்டார் அந்தச்சருகூ
சுருதியாம் தெளியவே பலதிடத்
தில்
குகூமந்தான் ஆட்டியதேத் தவை
தக்கூரு
இறுதியாய் அத்ததனில் பார்க்கப்
பார்க்க
இகத்தினில் அத்துவைதம் நிலையா
தம்மா
தானுகி நிற்பதுவே மதினுல்
கொண்டும்
தருமமுறை யறிவதுவேத் தவைத
மொட்டி
ஆனுகி காற்பதுவே விதினுல்
தோண்டும்
அருமறையே தான் திரிக்க அத்த
தானுல்
காளாகிப் பார்ப்பதுவே கதினுல்
மீண்டும்
கல்குமுறை அத்துவைதம் அவர
வர்க்கு
வேனுக்கிக் கோர்ப்பதுவே பதினுல்
பூண்டும்
விளங்குமுறை எத்ததுகாண் கவனி
யென்றேன்
பேசியதே மூலமாம் கவனிப்போது
பிரண்டதனே யூகிக்க மருத்து
வங்கள்
வாசியதே செய்யுதற்கும் அமைத்த
தய்யா
வய்யகத்தில் மருவுமுறைக் குண்ட
லித்தான்
மாசியதே போக்குதற்கும் சுத்த
மத்தில்
மாட்டுதற்கோ காட்டிவரும் அம்சக்
கூரு
லீசியதேத் தவைதந்தான் ஏகப்ச்
செய்து
விடுவதனில் உள்ளதுவே கவனிப்
பய்யா
கேளுமே அத்துவைதம் மூன்பதாக
கிளருவதே அனுதிகாண் அதி
விருந்து
ஆளுமே என்றதுந்தான்த் தவைத
மாகி
அவனிதனில் அச்சுகும் அத்துக்
கொண்டால்
வாளுமே என்றதுரை அத்துவை
தங்கள்
மூழுத்தியதே விசிஷ்டாக் குறிப்பு
கொண்டு
குளுமே யறிந்த முறைத்துவைத
மொட்டி
கோதி காணைக்காகியதே ஆதி
யுண்டாம்
அணுவான முறையுமே அலேக்கு
மென்று
ஆருக்கும் சதமே கால் சொல்லி
வந்தோம்
மணுவான முறையுமே பிரட்டுக்
காலம்
மண்டலத்தி லகஷயமே மதியும்
பூட்டி
தணுவான முறையுமே சீர்திருத்தி
தண்டுத்துரை காட்டவோ சக்தி
யொன்றுய்
கணுமுறை யொட்டியே யத்தன்
கேட்க
கருதியதோர் விதமதே யருமை
காட்டும்

Scanned Digitized by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan. To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

Some Observations on Kaka Bhujandar Nadi

BY K. V. VENKATARAMANAN



ALTHOUGH the name of Kaka Bhujandar Nadi may ring familiar to the readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, yet its real importance cannot be appreciated in full unless one is gifted with keen intellect and intuitive faculty to sift truth from the archaic language, esoteric and allegoric style, not to say, poetic exaggerations abounding in that hoary work which is, indeed, a vast ocean containing within its depths rich treasures of knowledge not only on Astrology and Astronomy, but also on Religion and Science. It gives a clear and correct perspective to understand and appreciate our ancient Puranas and Ithihasas which, grotesque though they may appear to the lay public, are in fact invaluable spiritual truths and describe historic events and personalities that repeat themselves in cycles of Time.

It is really amazing to note in the ancient Nadies written several thousands of years ago references to the appearance of the Russian artificial Moon in the year 5059 of Kali Yuga (i.e., 1957 A.D.); the appearance of a comet followed by a sudden outbreak of a peculiar fever called "Flu" that swept all over the world; the World War II; the rise and fall of the white Man's Rule in the world; Darwin's theory and other scientific advances like cinema, telephone, telegraph, the discovery of new planets, etc.; the birth and glory of Prophets like Jesus Christ and Mohammed.

As an instance in point, I may mention an interesting fact, namely, that I have now come across some astrological verses in Tamil stated to have been inscribed on stone in Tanjore temple. They give the date, month, week-day, thithi and the star on which the Kali Yuga commenced and the major dynasties that will rule therefrom. Beginning from King Parikshit, they refer among other things to Vikramaditya, Salivahana, Appaji Royar, Muslims, Queen Victoria and the end of the British rule, yielding place to two Governments under the names of Needhan and Vizhian. After 12 years hence the verses foreshadow epoch-making changes, followed by a long and beneficient reign called Ramakalai based on Vedic faith.

The changes adumbrated in the verses may happen in view of the Golaka Yoga that will occur in February 1962 arising out of the rare combination of 8 planets in Makara Rasi. According to Sastras, Golaka Yoga will work out in full only if the combination takes place in one and the same degree. But the Golaka Yoga of 1962 is not such a complete and powerful one.

The Nadi contains horoscopes of Buddha, Sankara, Jesus Christ, Prophet Mohammed, Ramakrishna Parama Hamsa, etc. But it is difficult to identify whether they belong to the present, past or future cycle, as the available Nadi Granthas are said to be fragments belonging to different cycles bearing the same name, all compiled and pieced together by latter-day astrologers. In this connection, the following extract from the preface to the Saptarishi Nadi, Volume III published by the Madras Government will make the point clear. Referring to the horoscopes in the volume, it says:

K. V. VENKATARAMANAN

"It is difficult to say whether the horoscopes in it refer to the current cycle or to the coming cycle when the planetary positions may come to the same place some ten thousands of years later. I have to say this, as I found in the Kausika Nadi (dialogue between Vasistha and Viswamitra) the 7th Bhava for a girl. In it not only the current planetary positions were given but also the names of her parents and also the girl's pet name As I found the results given there were wrong, I requested the astrologer to search further. I was surprised at what I found on the 16th December 1949 and I have given these verses in the Tamil preface. Again, not only the correct planetary positions were given but also the names as before and even referred to my having seen the previous reading. Further, it is said that the previous reading did not belong to the girl born in Kali 5032 (i.e., A.D. 1931 Prajotpatti) but to a girl going to be born tens of thousands of years later in the next cycle. This indicates that a person (unless one attains salvation) will take birth with the same name and environment when the planets again come to the same position. Perhaps, this cycle may be a Yuga. Learned men say that in every Tretha Yuga the incarnation of Sri Rama will take place, and all the incidents as detailed in Ramayana will repeat with perhaps some minor changes." This accounts for the different Ramayanas like Valmiki, Adhyatma, Ananda, Gayathri, Tulsidas, etc., as each deals with life of Rama as led in the particular cycle concerned.

Scanned by Gurukrupa Jyotish Sastrology.com To Preserve Dr.K.P.Rao and Vis

Kaka Bhujandar has expounded the theory of the origin of species long before Darwin. The Nadi observes in one of its verses that the worm after a large number of births evolves into monkey and next into man after 9 crores of births.

Bhujandar in another verse provides the key to understand aright the Ramayana which describes not only the incarnation of Rama that takes place in every Tretha Yuga, but also illustrates allegorically spiritual truths. Bhujandar says elsewhere that the worm after crores of birth takes the form of a monkey and in the next becomes a man who after devotion to God and Yogic practice attains spiritual salvation. This is the story of Ramayana. Rama represents Atma otherwise called I, the Greater Ego. This is also evident from the word Atma Rama by which some Hindus name their children.

The same truth is also expounded by Adi Sankaracharya in his work called Atmabodham wherein he has identified Rama with Atma and Sita with Shanthi or calmness, the Rakshasas with Rag and Dwesha (passion and hatred).

Sri Vedanta Desikar, the great Vaishnavite saint of Tamil Nad in his Sankalpa Suryodhyam identified Sita with the soul, Hanuman with Guru and Ravana with the mind as the head of ten senses. All these clearly stress the truth that Ramayana has both esoteric and exoteric meanings.

Similarly, the ten Avathars of Vishnu called Dasavathar not only describe the ten major incarnations of God that take place in every cycle or Kalpa but also illustrate the ten important stages of a yogi from the time of conception in his mother's womb to the attainment of Moksha after death through the normal course by observing the scriptural injunctions. This normal course of salvation is called Krama Mukthi as distinguished by Jeevan Mukthi which denotes the kind of salvation here and now while living in this physical body.

Ancient sages who were astrologers anticipated the birth of Christ. As soon as he was born, three wise men called Magis came to the birth place guided by an unusual star and offered worship to the divine child. Who were the Magis who came from the East? The Bible is silent on this point. But Hindu scholars opine that they were astrologer-saints of whom Raja Martanda describes as "Martando, Mandato, Garga, Parasarastha Bhrigu, Santano-Achirat Gaulu Sakadvipa tato Munih." They were also called Magas whom Bhavishya, Sambu and Vishnu Puranas extol as the best Brahmins. But they were not Iranian priests as confounded by some scholars. They are said to have lived in Sakadvipa, a region lying somewhere in the Arabian Sea near the West Coast of India which went under water along with a big continent called Lemuria during a minor Pralaya or Deluge.

South India was then called Jambudvipa considered by scholars as the oldest part of the earth from which civilization spread to the other parts of the world at one time.

Referring to the holy hill of Arunachala in Tamil Nad, Paul Brunton observed thus: "Both tradition and geological evidence point to the fact that the hill existed long before the Himalayas sprang up. That is the verdict of an American geologist who went further and made it contemporaneous with the formation of the very crust of the earth itself. It is indeed a remnant of the sunken-continent of Lemuria".

There is an ancient astrological saying that "when there is sunrise in Lanka, it is midnoon at Yamakotipuri, sunset at Siddhapuri and midnight at Rome". This shows that our ancients had a perfect knowledge of world geography and took four cardinal points in the world for their astronomical calculations. Perhaps, this may be the basis for the time-honoured practice of the western countries to begin the date from midnight. Yamakotipuri and Siddhapuri might have gone under water. It is evident from the above fact that Indians knew of Rome even before recorded history. It was known to our ancients as the abode of a sage called Roma Rishi who is credited with the authorship of a work on Astro-Palmistry in Tamil. Sanskrit scholars assert that there is reference to Roma in Rig Veda.

America was known to ancient Indians long before Columbus. Kamakoti Sankaracharya in one of his lectures said that California was a corruption of the world Kapilaranyam the abode of sage Kapila which is allegorically described by our Puranas as being located in Pathala Loka in the sense that it was on the opposite side of our country on the other side of the globe. Sir C. P. Ramaswamy Iyer, after his return from his American tour delivered a lecture on "Indian Influence in America" wherein he said that temples in Mexico were modelled on the South Indian temples and one of the royal dynasties of Peru were called Aiyars!

Vestiges of Indian influences are found all over the world. The ancient town of Viipuri in Finland is said to be a corruption of the Tamil word Viyapuri meaning God Murugan whose cult is said to have prevailed in the West at one time. Pyramids in Egypt are said to be the headquarters of immortal Dattatreya who in his invisible form daily goes round the world visiting Banaras at noon for worship.

In one of the previous issues of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, I quoted the statement of a North Indian scholar according to whom there was reference in Bhavishya Purana of Adi Sankara having visited Macca with Ganges water and performed Tulasi Puja, knowing beforehand that it would be the birth place of Prophet Mohammed, the last of the divine incarnations. Perhaps, this account may deal with the life of Sankara of a different Kalpa. All these clearly show on that ancient Indians were large-hearted and cosmopolitan in their outlook.

Kaka Bhujandar knew the precession of equinoxes and new planets which the modern scientists are yet to know. If the Parasari system of astrology attaches much value only to the 9 planets, it is because all other planets are children of the major nine known as Navagrahas. The Western system of Astrology is after all an offshoot of the Tajaka system of the Hindus and the Western system of primary and secondary, solar and lunar directions have their roots in the Hindu system which enumerates as many as 42 directions, although the Vimshottari system is considered to be the best in Kali Yuga.

Nadis give directions on the basis of one year, 3 years, etc. The one year direction of the Nadi is the Primary Direction of the West. The Secondary Direction of the West is based on the Hindu conception of human year and Deva year (i.e., one year is a day to the Devas). Hindus have several other Dasas like Varshika Dasa, Masa Dasa (monthly direction), Dine Dasa (daily directions), etc.

According to Nadis, Vimshottari Dasa is based on a scientific basis commencing from the star Krittika, which is said to contain the root of the creative seed called Moola Prakrithi. Alcyone, the brightest in the group of stars is also nearby. It is the centre round which our visible Sun revolves taking a period of 25 crores of years for a complete revolution. Our visible Sun is said to be a reflection of the great Sun into which is seated God, the Para Brahman shining like crores of Suns. Innumerable solar systems are revolving in the sky all round God seated in Mount Meru. The Pleiades and other Krittika group are the sources through which divine power known as Para Sakthi involve and evolve. Krittika star is a group of 6 who are said to be the maidens who nursed God. Subramanya is called the embodiment of Sakthi or Power. Since Krittika is the root of Sakthi, Subramanya, son of Para Sakthi is said to be nursed by the maidens of Krittika. Subramanya by his association with Krittika was able to undertake the creation of the world by imprisoning Brahma. Hence prayer to God Subramanya on Krittika day is considered highly efficacious. Great many are the souls who from humble beginnings are rocketted to fame and fortune by the observance of Krittika Vritham. Another star in the group, Alcyone called Anusuya, the wife of Atri, is known for her high chastity. It is also a potent source of radiating divine power. Her tremendous power is mythologically described as having changed the three gods—Brahma, Vishnu and Siva into children. Another star in the group, called Arundhati, the wife of Vasistha, is an ideal wife. That is why sastras enjoin the bride to see the star Arundhati at the time of marriage so as to acquire the blessings of married life. Eye is the most powerful organ for involving and evolving divine power. By seeing the star with a true and prayerful spirit, the star Arundhathi can radiate her beneficent influence to her gazer. That is why the great saintly poetess Avvai of Tamil Nad said that it is bad to see bad people, and good to see noble people. We know the malefic influence of Drishti Dosha, the power of an evil eye. Even so are the sight of great saints which removes all sins and confer blessings. Similarly, we pray for Lakshmi Kataksham (the glance of the Goddess) for our good. This accounts for the Vimshottari Dasa commencing from the star of Krittika beyond which God, the great Sun exists. Such are the inexhaustible mines of astrological information contained in Kaka Bhujandar Nadi which is one of the earliest Nadi works comprehending all knowledge of Time and Space.

CC-0. Mumukshu Bhawan Varanasi Collection. Digitized by eGangotri Work

But how many know the life of the wonderful author of Kaka Bhujandar Nadi. Here are interesting details culled from different sources. Kaka Bhujandar was a great sage who attained immortality even while he was living in his physical body by devotion to Rama. He gives his autobiography tracing his life through several births. In a certain Kali Yuga, Bhujandar was born in Ayodhya, the capital of Sri Rama, in a class of slaves. He became a devotee of God Siva. But puffed up with the pride of wealth, he hated other Gods especially Vishnu. A great famine having broken in Ayodhya, he went to Ujjain where he earned much wealth and practised devotion to Siva, hating Vishnu. At last he approached a Guru who was a saintly Brahmin and prayed to him to teach all the modes of worshipping Siva. The Guru taught all he wanted. The broad-minded Guru worshipped all Gods with equal reverence. But Bhujandar did not like his Guru praising Vishnu. But the Guru tried his level best by advice to rectify his aversion to Hari which would spell ruin to him. But the haughty disciple did not heed. One day while he was sitting in a temple, his Guru passed by when he did not stand up and respect the preceptor duly. Though the Guru never noticed, Siva who would not tolerate any insult to his devotees, at once cursed the slave to suffer by taking myriad births in brute creation.

But the Guru in his compassion to his disciple prayed to Siva to forgive the sinner. The God gratified the wish of his devotee by amending the curse that even though he took thousand births, the pain and suffering of births and deaths would not affect him. By virtue of having taken birth in Ayodhya, he would cherish for ever devotion to Rama and remember all his previous births. Further he would have the power of going anywhere and everywhere without let or hindrance.

Thus turned into a snake, he moved to the Vindhya Mountain and lived there taking thousand births without any pain or suffering caused to ordinary mortals and passed through the brute creation by the grace of Siva and his Guru. At last, he was born in a Brahmin family. When he grew into a boy, his father gave him lessons pertaining to his caste. But his mind was so absorbed with the Lotus Feet of Sri Rama, that he cared for nothing in the world. After the death of his parents, he repaired to the forest moving like a wind anywhere and everywhere hearing Hari's glory. Seeing the sage Lomasa sitting under the shade of a tree, he fell at his feet and begged of him to teach him how to worship the incarnate God Rama. The sage, after giving a brief discourse, began to expound the highest state of God, namely Nirguna Brahman. But Bhujandar not being so advanced as his Master could not appreciate the sermon. Thereupon, he asked his master again and again to teach him Saguna Brahman, namely, the personal God Rama. As he went on worrying him at every turn, even the meek and mild sage flew into a rage and said, "You wretch! You suspect everything like a crow. Be turned into a crow."

The disciple was at once changed into a crow. But he was not affected by the change, for his heart was attached to the feet of Rama. Now his Guru's anger was changed into ocean of mercy. Much wonderstruck at his pupil's steadfast devotion to Rama, embraced him and taught all the secret mantras for worshipping Rama. Now the divine crow's heart became full with beatitude. The Guru blessed him saying that by the blessings of Rama he will attain everything at will. Just then God Brahma Himself said, "Oh, wisest sage, all your noble words will come to pass".

Then the divine crow returned to his abode in the forest and spent all his time uttering the glory of Rama. All the birds in the forest came there and drank the nectar of devotion to Rama and attained high state. In this way, he passed away 27 cycles or Chathur Yugas. Although he could leave his body at will, he did not give up for long ages the body of the crow for which he had a special fascination, for in that body he had the highest good fortune of getting vision of Sri Rama. Whenever Vishnu incarnated as Rama in every Tretha Yuga, he went to Ayodhya and enjoyed the youthful play of Rama.

By the grace of Rama he attained the highest knowledge. God Brahma himself taught Bhujandar all the secrets of astrology.

He was known as Kaka Bhujandar, because he attained the state of Jeevanmukthi in body of the crow which is called "Kakai" in Tamil. He was also called Kaka Bushandi. He wrote a monumental work in astrology called Kaka Bhujandar Nadi.

As years rolled by, some aberrations had crept in due to the long lapse of time. So he reincarnated himself in South India in a Brahmin family and corrected his Nadi and entrusted it to the custody of the then ruler of the country for his use for 3000 years later. Even though he reincarnated as a Brahmin, he took the name of the crow by calling himself Kakaiyar meaning in Tamil "Crow Brahmin". Such was his peculiar fascination for the body of the crow in which he attained the highest state of Godhood by devotion to Sri Rama.

The story also occurs with slight modifications in Tulsi Das Ramayana which was the version taught by Sage Yagnavalkya to Rishi Bharadwaja at the latter's request at the holy Prayag in the month of Magha.

Such is the sublime greatness and wonderful glory of Kaka Bhujandar Nadi. May Sri Rama bless the learned Editor of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE with long life, health, wealth and happiness to serve the divine cause of astrology.

Scanned at the Sri Kapaleeshwar Trust. All rights reserved by V. Raman Work

GRAVITATIONAL FORCE

Einstein's Theory Challenged

Dr. L. I. Schiff, a scientist of Stanford University, has challenged Einstein's Theory of Gravitation in a report he submitted to the National Academy of Sciences. He suggested that gravitational force may come from the constant interchange of the minute weightless particles called neutrons.

The Gravitational Theory advanced by Einstein does not involve any interchange of matter between different objects, but attributes gravity largely to geometrical properties of space, in which smaller moving bodies are pulled towards larger ones.

Dr. Schiff said that his theory was supported by some experimental evidence, but it was too early to say whether it would hold up.

THE RIDDLE ABOUT A WELL-KNOWN VERSE OF VARAHAMIHIRA

(Continued from page 118)

a rational thinker will not be prepared to believe that the sage would have assigned an unnatural motion to fixed stars.

VI

The Myth about the word 'Saka'

People generally interpret the word 'Saka' as the Salivahan era. Varaha, in preparing the formula for finding the year in question in terms of the Yudhisthira Saka had some definite era in his mind. It is not known what era was in use in the time of Garga III. History shows that there was nowhere in the world any system of counting years in terms of eras before the year 747 B.C. The following five eras were known upto the 2nd century A.D. :

Nabu Nazir's era, starting from			747 B.C.
Selucidan	,,	,,	312 ,,
Parthian	,,	,,	248 ,,
Vikram	,,	,,	57 ,,
Salivahan	,,	,,	78 A.D.

Jatakabharan, a notable work, is supposed to have been compiled in the 5th century A.D. This work adopts Saka 445 as the epochal year for finding Ayanamsa. I will now show that according to the author of this work himself, the word 'Saka' stood for a year belonging to the Vikram's era. The following verses could be stated in support of my arguments.

येनास्मिन् वसुधातले शकगणान् सर्वान्
दिशः संगरे ॥
हत्वा पंचनवप्रमान् कलियुगे शाकः
प्रवृत्तिः कृता ।
श्रीमत् विक्रमभूभुजा.....

—Verse 13, last Chapter

त्रिकेन्दुभिर्विक्रमभूपतेर्मिते शाकेन्वितीह-क्षयमासकोभवेत् ॥

—Verse 53, Chapter 9

These verses clearly show that,—
(1) King Vikrama started an era after defeating the armies of Sakas.
(2) The suppressed month is obtained by..... (according to the author) in terms of Vikram era.

The Romaka Siddhanta adopts Saka 427 as the epochal year. All scholars regard this as the year belonging to the Salivahana era ; but they are unable to explain why the 1st lunar day of the Chaitra in that Saka year does not prove to be a Monday [12] or Tuesday.

One day, I just tried to find out the weekday on the 1st lunar day of Chaitra in Vikram Samvat 427, and I was surprised to see that it was a Monday. These lead me to suspect that, perhaps, before the age of Varaha, the astronomers used to adopt the Vikram era as the standard Saka era.

Saka = era started by	Dwika=two plus 2526	Dwika=pair 2566	Dwika=square 2536
Nabu Nazir in 747 B.C.	3273 B.C.	3313 B.C.	3283 B.C.
Selucidan 312 ,,	2838 ,,	2878 ,,	2848
Parthian 248 ,,	2774 ,,	2814 ,,	2784 *
Vikram 57 ,,	2583 ,,	2623 ,,	2593
Salivahan 78 A.D.	2448 ,,	2488 ,,	2458

Taking into consideration all possible years denoted by the word 'Saka' and by षट्द्विकपञ्चद्वि, we get the following figures as the possible years of King Yudhisthira's accession to throne which took place twice in his lifetime, the first one being about 20 years before the Bharat Battle.

CONCLUSION

My conclusions, therefore, are as follows :—

(1) The word Munayo has been used by old sage Garga to denote living human beings (sages) and not the seven stars as understood by Varaha.

(2) Varaha has committed an error in interpreting the word 'Pitridaivatam' as the star Magha, and also in assuming an unnatural motion for stars among the constellations.

(3) The word 'Saka Kalah' refers to some era current in the time of Garga. It may be any one of the three eras which were in vogue before Vikram's era, since Garga states in his Samhita that only one king out of six promulgators of eras had lived and that others are yet to be born.

(4) I am afraid, the expression षट्द्विकपञ्चद्वि may prove to be a variation and so also other words. A search for correct words has to be made. It is my conjecture that मधासु may prove to be मखेषु हन्युः may be निन्युः and स्थिताः may be स्थित. It is very necessary to find out the oldest possible Garga Samhita for this.

(5) The word 'Saka' did not necessarily stand for the Salivahan era. It is a Sanskrit synonym for the word 'era'.

[12] सप्ताश्विवेदसख्यं शककालमपास्य
चैत्र शुक्लादौ
अर्धास्तमिते भानौ यवनपुरे सोम
(or भौम) दिवासद्ये ॥

—Romaka Sid.

* The popularly believed year, viz., 3101 B.C. is far different from any of the above figures and should not be accepted.

The year 2786 B.C. found by me on purely astronomical data resembles at least one of the figures.

Books You Should Read

MARKET FORECASTING

How to Forecast Prices and Winners in Races.— By T. G. Butaney. Expounds jealously guarded secrets. Rs. 15 or Sh. 30.

Planetary Influences on Markets.— By Lagon Mars. Deals with application of Astrological rules to markets. Rs 7–50 or Sh. 15.

Perpetual Market Forecast.—By Pt. Ganga Prasad. A book of great importance to all speculators, merchants and students of Astrology. Rs. 10–50.

Complete Course of Self-Instruction in Commercial Astrology and Numerology.—By T. G. Butaney. Rs. 15 or Sh. 30.

Less 6¼% to Subscribers of :

THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari",

BANGALORE-3

Scanned by www.vishvabharat.org.in For Preserve D By Ramans Work

Astrology and Its Practical Application

BY I. AGHORAPATI, B.A., B.ED.

THE four primordial elements of nature—fire, earth, air and water together form the Bhachakra known as the zodiac. Such four-fold division assigns three signs under each element. Mesha, Simha and Dhanus form fiery triplicity; Makara and its trines earthy triplicity; Thula and its trines airy triplicity; and the rest watery triplicity. In our daily Sandyavandanam we utter the names of these elements and offer oblations Prithivyapastejo Vayurakasat. Om Namobhagavatae Vasudevaya. Well-integrated personalities have their planets well distributed among the signs. Greek philosophers constructed a thesis that the entire man consisted of the interweaving of the four categories into one of which can be placed every human activity. Thus the moral concept of man comes under fire, the physical activity under earth, the intellectual pursuit under air, and the aesthetic under water. Houses which comprise several aspects of an individual in his present birth form into four groups. The first, fifth and the ninth representing body, soul and spirit form the Trinity of Life; second, sixth and tenth representing possessions, comforts such as food, clothing, health and servants and the honour and public standing form the Trinity of Wealth; the third, seventh and eleventh corresponding to ties of consanguinity, ties of conjugality and ties of friendship together form the Trinity of Association. The remaining three, fourth, eighth and twelfth—the terminal houses-form the Trinity of Psychism.

Man acts by his unique plasticity of intelligence and animal by instinct. Intelligence is ruled by the 3rd house and the airy triplicity. The intelligence gathered by the third is sifted and weighed in the sign of balance (Thula) and transmuted into knowledge or Vignana in the eleventh (Kumbha). Among the several derivatives of the third bhava, I shall take up a few. According to Mr. Carter "education comes under this". Indians refer to 'Kundalmulu' (jewels for the ears) the right one ruled by the third and left one by the eleventh. Our Pandits, Kavulu (poets) and Mahamahopadhyayas in olden days were presented and decorated with these Kundalmulu by their patrons and kings as a tribute to their erudition, scholarship and advitiya pratibha. In the present day context they represent degrees B.A., M.Sc., Ph.D., etc. Courage is another concept of this house. It means prowess and mastery in several languages and subjects of study—in short competitive examinations. In olden days and even now, we have Astavadhanas, Satavadhanas and Vak-Vivadas. Did not we hear of Srinatha breaking the 'Kanchu Dhakka' of Goudi Dindimabhat in Krishna Raya Asthana in a poetical contest? Think of the famous duel between our great Adi Sankara and Mandana Misra and the final victory scored by Sri Sankara in the exposition of several sastras. A third house having well situated planets and well aspected bestows good education and academic qualifications. Of the seven graduate teachers of a school five have strong planets in the third; Moon in two cases well aspected; Jupiter in the other three well aspected. In my brother-in-law's horoscope he has Mercury and Jupiter in the third and they receive the square aspect of Saturn. He had breaks in education and is now studying B.Sc. and Saturn's transit over the two is about to occur in a few months! His sister has Jupiter and Venus together aspecting her third house from the ninth. Both are squared by Saturn from the twelfth. When she sat for B.A. examination in March 1957 and July 1957, Saturn was transitting this Jupiter-Venus combination. She was having Venus (ruling her 3rd and 8th bhavas) antar in Moon. No wonder she failed twice much to the surprise of her lecturers. On the day of the announcement of results (May 15) the Moon was transitting Jupiter and Venus along with Saturn. In March last when there was no more that evil transit she passed in Venus antar itself. One of the two famous 'Tirupathi Venkata Kavulu' whose unrivalled Kavitapratibha permeats the whole of Andhra Desa has Mithuna (3rd) as Lagna with Venus and Jupiter rising. This is sufficient evidence. The true significance of the fourth is Atmavidya (science of the soul). Purana Sravanam (hearing Puranas) is ruled by the third house. In the present day its place is usurped by the newspaper and it has become the part and parcel of the daily routine. As this house rules all communications such as railways, telegraphs and telephones, accidents might be judged. I had a little funny accident when Mars in transit passed exactly over my radical Moon posited in the third house.

The pivot of this Trinity of Association is the seventh house. In a national chart, it rules the foreign policy and the pacts entered into. All contracts including marriage, whether legal or otherwise come under this. Present international policies and pacts done with the best of intentions (?) lead to war. War has come to stay with man. Man in his art of living with his neighbours (3rd house) displays two opposite policies. On the one hand, he acts by the instinct of love, sympathy and solidarity and on the other his heritage of aggressiveness, greed and brutality come to the fore resulting in conflicts. In between these two he is pulled hither and tither. He plays Dr. Jekyll at one time and Mr. Hyde at other times. Philosophers trace the causes of war to man himself (his very nature), economists to inequalities and biologists to the inadequate growth of man's social behaviour. Let us examine each one. Radhakrishnan, the moral philosopher says, "Wars do not occur as acts of God, they are made by man and the training they receive". The truth of it is partial for B. V. Raman says, "Nations have become entangled in a degenerating cycle of wars that breed more wars and these degenerating cycles of war as a discerning student of astrology knows are rhythmic, i.e., astrological in character". There are certain planetary patterns under whose influence he resorts to war. The possibility of a great conflict arising out of the coming eight-planet combination in Makara is hinted at by our Editor (in 1962). The claims of astrology or its advocates have the support of the scientists. The sun-spot cycles are nine maximum periods in a century. Political conditions, maximum tensions, revolutions, insurrections follow this cycle. There is a close relation between historical events and astronomical cycles. Chin Dynasty as well as Sur Dynasty lasted about 800 years each. Once in 19.859 years, Saturn conjuncts Jupiter and forty such conjunctions make up 800 years. Saturn conjuncts Uranus in 45 years and opposes once in 22.68 years which is the basic period of solar radiation. 1692 Saturn opposition Herschel—Britain's Glorious Revolution plus 45 years=1736 (nearly) Saturn opposition Herschel is the year of war of Polish succession and carrying on the addition of 45 we come to 1962 the year when Saturn again opposes Uranus. This tallies with the Editor's above warning. (See "Planets and the Third World War" in August 1957 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE). The cycles of Saturn-Rahu conjunction in Scorpio in 1956 and Jupiter-Rahu conjunction in Thula in 1957 have started influencing the world. A survey of international events show considerable slump in moral standards and human conduct. A sort of depravity and intransigence seems to have gripped some of the nations. Britain is ruled by Mesha and these conjunctions fell in 8th and 7th (Randhrasthana and foreign policy). She started the disastrous war on Egypt and the whole world including herself denounced it. Her intransigence in her policy towards Cyprus mirrors the effects of Jupiter-Rahu conjunction. The various pacts—the N.A.T.O., S.E.A.T.O., Baghdad—are all the products of these vicious conjunctions. It is no wonder that each is failing miserably in its aims and objectives. The muhurthas for entering into such pacts befit the kind of collective destinies of those nations woven under the aegis of major degenerating conjunctions and eclipses.

Let us examine 'The Iraq-Jordan Federal Union (14th February 1958) and take up the horoscope of King Faisal of Iraq.

Sun	...	Mesha	17	12
Moon	...	Mesha	9	54
Mars	...	Kanya	13	40
Mercury	...	Mesha	23	8
Jupiter	...	Thula	25	26
Venus	...	Vrishabha	25	09
Saturn	...	Kumbha	14	17
Uranus	...	Mesha	8	03
Neptune	...	Simha	17	58
Pluto	...	Mithuna	29	57

No less than four planets Sun, Moon, Mercury and Uranus form a powerful destructive conjunction. It is aspected by Mars from Virgo and Saturn from Kumbha. Such an affliction of the lights by major malefics can nowhere be found. It must have been, as a result of the collective destiny of Iraq and its people that Faisal having such a horoscope portraying short life and fatal end should become the ruler. These birth promises were excited into action by the lunar eclipse of November 7, 1957 which took place in the 23rd degree of Mesha in exact conjunction with the natal Mercury. In the nativity Mercury is opposed by Jupiter. "Exaggerative, over-optimistic, apt to make mistakes and to be careless about mistakes." Did he not commit the fatal mistake of entering into the pact sponsored by Britain and America? Five months later in April 1958, a solar eclipse took place in the 8th degree of Aries over his natal sinister combination of Uranus, Sun and Moon. At the same time Rahu and Neptune were afflicting them by opposition. He could well have seen the celestial warning on the wall and refrained from entering into a pact so hastily in February. But the evil portends—astrological—in his horoscope were too heavy to bear.

Let us see how the time of signing the pact had opened the way for internal plot and insurrection resulting in his final assassination. Lagna is Kumbha, the natural eleventh rasi (acquaintances, friends and social relationships). Pluto, the planet of riots, plots and insurrection opposes it from the seventh house. The result could not but be insurrection. Did not our Rishis of yore lay it down as a rule that no planet, be he benefic or malefic, should occupy the 7th house in a marriage Muhurtha. Marriage is also a kind of pact. Its lord Saturn occupies a Ganda Sandhi. in an angle (I). Death of the pact was imminent. The Moon is besieged by Saturn and Mars. It is a stroke of Balarista. The crest jewel of the horoscope of the pact is the Uranus-Mercury opposition falling across Cancer and Capricorn, 6th and 12th houses. The sixth rules secret enemies and Uranus there shows what type of enemies they were—rebellious and frenzied. Mercury rules the fifth (Mantrasthana) and 8th (Ayusthana). What a mantra did the British (Mercury in Makara ruling the 10th from Aries ruling Britain) make this poor Faisal's chart keeping the dynamite (Uranus) opposing this Mercury! God's ways are mysterious.

The next question to be answered is what fruits do the partners reap from such a pact of their own doing. Super-impose the horoscope of one partner say Faisal on the horoscope of the pact. The Lagna of the pact is the 11th house from Faisal's satelletium in Mesha. So far 'Labha' is good. But it is labha pregnant with plots (Pluto opposes Lagna). The most dangerous and fatal Uranus-Mercury axis in the pact is at right angles to the Sun, Moon, Uranus conjunction in Faisal's map. The line through the centre of gravity of the opposition passes through the conjunction. Secret enemies of the pact. (Herschel in 6th). His own army men, assassinated him. Would it be wrong if we assume poor Faisal's Lagna somewhere between Aries 8th to 17th degree which stands in square aspect to Uranus (Cancer 14° 45') in the horoscope of the pact? Would any kind reader use the 'Prenatal Epoch' theory and fix the Lagna with the help of certain important events of his life? A good field of research is thus open to our brotherhood of astrologers. What an atom-bomb did poor Hussain let lose upon himself from the arsenal of his own Karma in entering into this pact! 'Yavaruchesina Karma Varanubhavinipako Yeri Kainanutappadanna' meaning that the doer of the act is himself the enjoyer of its fruits. If 'one impulse from the vernal wood may teach you more than all the ages can', one such astrological case from the astrologer's diary may teach the politicians more than what all their political theories teach mankind.

One ignorant of astrology may rise up and ask, 'Why did not Hussain die?' He was the other partner. His fate or his Karma is different. His horoscope is different from that of his partner. One can try the super-imposition method elaborated above. Sauce to a gander is poison to the goose.

Take India, the horoscope of the national Congress, the horoscopes of the two great leaders Gandhi and Nehru. India is ruled by Kanya. The sign ruling its foreign policy is Meena known for its selflessness, renunciation and altruism. This is exactly the Lagna of the Congress horoscope. Congress has really wedded itself to the principles mentioned above. A powerful Rajayoga combination of Moon, Jupiter and Mars occurring in Kanya is in the 7th house of the horoscope (its main policy). What else could that beautiful combination denote other than the policy of establishing 'Rama Rajya' in Kanya Rasi ruling India!

The opposition between Saturn in the 4th and Sun in the 10th from Lagna denotes poverty, squalor and misery in the home and a powerful adversary Sun (6th lord) in 10th representing the British. This opposition can be better understood when we recount the long travail and suffering and sacrifices that its leaders have undergone. It shows that the way was long and beset with failure and frustration. But for the 'Purvapunya' of this Bharatakanda (India), we could not have got leaders of the type of Gandhi and Nehru. Look at Gandhi's horoscope, his natal Sun is conjunct Moon in the Congress horoscope. The Congress mind and Gandhi's soul are one and the same. His Sun is in 12th house or of renunciation and emancipation and so he could bring about the political emancipation of the Indians. The

(Continued on page 128)

Scanned by www.saptarishiastrology.com | Preserving Our Heritage Work

Astrology in Kerala

BY P. DAMODARAN NAIR, M.A., B.L.

ASTROLOGY had its flourishing foothold on Kerala from time immemorial. It has occupied a place of great importance in the day-to-day affairs of the people of Kerala and is considered essential for consultation on several occasions in the life of man. For every ceremony connected with birth, death and marriage, reference to astrology has become indispensable. For sowing seeds, harvesting crops, constructing buildings or shifting to new quarters, the advice of an astrologer is invariably sought for. The great temples and the festivals in them, fastings during Shashti, Ekadasi, Pradosham and the like, all have their close association with astrology. Hindus have abiding faith in it while persons of other religious faiths such as Mohammedans and Christians are also very much interested in and influenced by it. As soon as a child is born, its father approaches a qualified astrologer, gets the birth chart duly drawn by him and the future of the child got predicted. Not only the fortunes and misfortunes of the child but also those of its parents and close relatives are also got predicted. Similarly marriages are fixed only if the horoscopes of the bride and bridegroom are in sympathy with each other. These practices still continue in Kerala amongst the public in general.

There is no clear evidence as to the period during which astrology commenced to influence public mind in Kerala. However it is evident that it came into contact with public life fairly long before the advent of the Malayalam era. In M.E. 44 (A.D. 869) Ravi Varma Kulasekhara, the then ruler of Quilon established an observatory in his capital city of Mahodayapuram for conducting experiments, researches and observations in astrology. There was also a council of astrologers under him, where debates and discussions were held on matters concerning astrology. In those days there was no dearth for experts amongst astrologers who could calculate with precision the degrees of the various planets, prepare daily almanacs and also foretell events correctly without recourse to elaborate instruments. The astrologer had then a status of his own and no wonder, he was held in high esteem.

Kerala is unique in having given birth to a number of eminent astrologers, possessed with exceptional talents. Foremost among them were Thalakulathu Bhattathiri, Mazhamangalathu Sankaran Namboodiri, Pulimukathu Potti of Cherianad and Machatt Narayanan Elayat. It was Thalakulathu Bhattathiri who established the famous Pazhoor Padippura in Travancore. He is also the author of Dasadhyayi, the well-known commentary on Varahamihira's Hora. Pazhoor Padippura is about 700 years old and has become a household name in Kerala. It is said that the residents of Pazhoor Padippura are the descendants of Bhattathiri and have hereditary and specialised knowledge in astrology. Mazhamangalathu Sankaran Namboodiri was a great scholar. He had acquired special skill in dealing with Horary Astrology. There was once a child-feeding ceremony (Annaprasana) in the Illom of Edamana Pandarathil at Chengannur. When some friends invited Mazhamangalathu for the ceremony, he refused to go with them saying that there would be no such function and that the guests would all return disappointed. His friends did not pay heed to his words and went to the Illom. When the Muhurtham (auspicious moment) approached, the child who was being taken out for the function after the ceremonial bath slipped down and perished on the stone-flogged central pavement all on a sudden to the great surprise and grief of all. Pulimukathu Potti had once an occasion to meet the Raja of Chempakasseri. The Raja had only contempt for astrologers and their lore. He would deridingly ask every astrologer who visited him to work out a prasna for him without actually sharing with him what he had in his mind. Not knowing how to proceed and thus puzzled, the astrologer would aim the prasna, at the Raja's health and longevity and begin to sing songs of praise about him. The Raja in turn would immediately dismiss him off with abuses and rebukes. This practice continued for a long time. As usual, the Potti was also asked to work out a prasna (horary). Knowing fully well the ways and intention of the Raja, the Potti began to set his prasna on the future of a plantain standing close-by. He predicted that the tender leaves of the plantain were badly affected by a beetle, that only two leaves had been damaged, that if manured, watered and properly taken care of, the plantain would, in due course, produce a bunch having 94 fruits and that the Raja would be able to eat 3 fruits from it. The Raja acted accordingly and waited. The plantain produced a bunch with 94 fruits as predicted by Potti. But when it became ripe, the Raja could eat only 3 fruits, all the remaining ones having been eaten away by a pole-cat. The Potti was then called in and was suitably rewarded. Thereafter, it is said, the Raja gave up his prejudice against astrologers, and used to consult them whenever necessary. Vidwan Machatt Narayanan Elayath who flourished in the latter half of the 10th century was a reputed Vidwan in astrology. The then ruler of Cochin, Shaktan Thampuran had been wonderstruck several times at the correct predictions made by Elayath. There was no one in that locality in those days who could excel Elayath in working out prasnas correctly. In 964 M.E. when Tippu Sultan was camping at the north with a view to invade Travancore, he sent for Elayath to predict his future. Tippu was playing with a parrot at the time of Elayath's arrival. He wanted to test Elayath in his proficiency in predicting events before taking him into confidence. He therefore asked him to predict on the life of the parrot. Elayath said that the bird would live for some more days. Immediately the Sultan drew out his sword from the scabbard with the intention of killing the bird. But the tip of the sword struck his thumb and in the resultant commotion, he let the bird go. It was after testing the capacity of Elayath in this manner, that Tippu told him of his intention to invade Travancore. To the utter disappointment of the Sultan, the Elayath predicted failure for him. The Sultan lost his temper in no time and made Elayath his captive but later on since the prediction was found correct he was released and profusely rewarded.

According to the saying Jyotissastram vadatyatra Kalam Valdika Karmanam, Astrology was employed mainly in Kerala as in other parts of India in ancient days to determine the time for performing the several rites ordained in the scriptures. It was therefore the Ganitha branch of astrology (mathematical portion) that attracted the Pandits in ancient Kerala. So many outstanding works on Ganitha were produced in those days, that it has been recorded by eminent tourists from abroad, that it was indeed Kerala that had made rapid strides in the path of progress of the science of astrology in India. Known as Muhurtapadavi, there are four books, dealing with Muhurtha Vibhhaga all written by Kerala authors. In the commentary to one of them called Varadipika, prepared by one Parameswaran Namboodiri in ME 990, several original books on Muhurtha are mentioned in the following order: Panchasiddhanta shatsutra, muhurtaratna, muhurtadipaka, vidiratna sarasamucchaya, sarvasidhi panchasika kalaprakasika, charadipika, charasangraha, madhaviya, muhurtapadavyadishu muhurtasastreshu. The Bhashyam (commentary) of Kelalloor Chomathiri on the famous ganitha work, Aryabhatiyam is well known. It was a popular saying in those days that Chomathiri was to Aryabhata what Patanjali was to Panini. Karanapadhathi is yet another famous work of Chomathiri During 600 ME. one Vadasseri Parameswaran Namboodiri discovered Drigganitham because the ganitham then being followed was found to be not in tune with the times. It is said that this great scholar took nearly 55 years to work it out. As a result it became widely known that there was no system in the whole world as scientific as the Kalaganana of Kerala. Even today the Drigganitham of Vadasseri is most respected and mostly relied upon in preparing almanacs. In fact this system has also gone out of date now. Sri Pulliyoor Purushottaman Namboodiripad and some other scholars have evolved new systems, but the fact remains that reforms which could claim universal acceptance are yet to be made. The Calendar Reform Committee appointed by the Government of India has published a voluminous report but unfortunately it does not represent the views of all the leading men in the line.

The reputation which Kerala had in ancient days as regards the development of the science of astrology is now fast fading. Learned Pandits in astrology are very rare nowadays, and very few people are bent upon studying the subject. It has to be remembered that most of the ancient works in astrology are in the Sanskrit language and the neglect shown to the study of Sanskrit is one of the reasons why learned Pandits in astrology are seldom available. However, though the predictions made by quacks do not prove correct, the public are interested in the subject and are satisfied with whatever little truth they receive from such predictions. It has also become a general feature that the newspapers publish weekly nakshatra phalam, since the general public are found interested in it. Even those who profess no faith in astrology or rather who deprecate it publicly, are used to select auspicious moments or at least avoid Rahukalam for all important undertakings. It may be said that one of the main reasons why astrology cannot be ignored by the people of Kerala is that it has formed part and parcel of their culture. As far as the Kerala literature is concerned, it is permeated with the spirit of astrology. Words and idioms of astrological origin for e.g. Kemadrumam, Grahappizha, Ezharassani, Gulikan, Sukradasa are found used in ancient malayalam works, since almost all poets of Kerala—Tunchath Ezhuthachan, Punam Namboodiri and the like, were well-versed in the subject. A knowledge of astrology has therefore become necessary for every Malayali in his own interests even if he did not want to take to it as a profession, because he could understand malayalam literature to its full extent only if he had a grasp of astrology also. Some of the well-known poets of Kerala have profusely contributed to the development of the subject. The name of Melpathur Narayana Bhattathiri, the great poet and author of Narayaniyam is in the forefront amongst them. Chamatkara Chintamani and Ganita Narayaniyam are the two main astrological works of Bhattathiri. Since many of the ancient works in astrology are not intelligible to the malayalam-knowing public, some Pandits of Kerala took to themselves the task of providing facile and felicitous versions of such works in Malayalam. Thus during the 7th and 8th centuries (M.E.), many such works especially those containing renderings from passages in Hora, were published. There are also numerous Malayalam books both in prose and poetry which prescribe the method of preparing jathakams (horoscopes) in lucid and simple manner. TheMalayalam commentaries of the late Kaikkulangara Rama Varier, the noted annotator and scholar of Malayalam language, for Brihat Samhita, Prasna Marga, etc., are very well known and useful for amateurs in astrology. No one in Kerala can forget the name of the late Punnasseri Neelakanta Sarma (1033–1110) who was an expert in Grahaganitam and Golaganitam alike. He had also published commentaries of several astrological works in Sanskrit. His work Jyotish Sastra Subhodhini is an original one and needs little introduction to the students of astrology. In 1060 M.E. he began editing an almanac and it was known as Pattambi Panchangam. Another name which comes to our memory in this connection is that of Professor A. R Raja Raja Varma (1038–1093) the celebrated luminary in the firmament of Malayalam language and literature. He had not contributed much to the development of astrology but had been evincing keen interest in the subject throughout his life. His two papers on Karana Parishkarana and Panchanga Sudhipadhati, read at the Jyotisha Maha Sammelan at Sringeri in 1085 M.E. stand testimony to his deep erudition in and the vast researches he had made in the subject of astrology.

To be out shortly

Prasna Marga (English Translation)

With original slokas in Devanagari, notes and illustrations. A great and unique classic on Prasna (Horary) as well as Jataka (Horoscopy)

IN TWO PARTS

I Part....1 to 16 Chapters, Price about Rs. 12.75/-

II Part....17 to 32 Chapters ,, Rs. 12.75/-

First Part will be ready in April 1959

ORDERS REGISTERED FOR BOTH PARTS AND NOT FOR THE I PART ONLY

Raman Publications

"Sri Rajeswari" :: BANGALORE-3.

Electional Astrology

BY K. V. SIVARAMA IYER

THE Hindus of Vedic times divided knowledge under eighteen heads:

अंगानिवेदाश्चत्वारो मीमांसा न्यायविस्तरः।
पुराणं धर्मशास्त्रं च विद्या ह्येताश्चतुर्दश ॥

The four Vedas and their six component parts, Mimamsa a system of philosophy, Logical philosophy, Epics and Jurisprudence are the fourteen branches of knowledge. Four more were added to these fourteen items and the eighteen branches of knowledge resulted.

आयुर्वेदो धनुर्वेदो गन्धर्वो वेद एव च।
अर्थवेदश्चतुर्थश्च विद्या ह्यष्टादशस्मृताः ॥

The science of Medicine, the science of Archery, Music and Economics were the four additions.

The six parts of Vedas are :—(1) Siksha—the science by which the art of correctly pronouncing and chanting of the Vedas is enjoined; (2) Vyakarana—deals in grammar, syntax, phraseology and prosody; (3) Nirukta—rendering paraphrases of the basic ideas mentioned in the Vedas; (4) Jyotisha (astrology)–advises the appropriate and auspicious periods for Vedic rites; (5) Kalpa—exposition of the order and methods of Vedic performances; and (6) Chhandas—dealing in the rhythm of Vedic mantras.

Mimamsa helps the study of Vedas in all their aspects by correct interpretation of the rituals and of ambiguous points in regard to Vedic texts. Nyaya Sastra establishes the truth of the Vedas by judicious and lucid arguments and illustrations. Puranas (epics) are in fact deemed to be the fifth Veda and they are eighteen in number. Ayurveda helps to preserve the health of the physical body. Dhanurveda (the art of archery) assists kings in the protection of their subjects from enemies. Gandharva Veda teaches music, an unavoidable necessity for the recital of Sama Veda. Artha Veda is the scientific knowledge for the accumulation and preservation of wealth and connected subjects. Dharma Sastra is an elaborate treatise on the theoretical Vedic points with appropriate definitions bearing on the duties of the various castes of people subject to time, place and eligibility.

From the foregoing it will be seen that the fourteen branches of knowledge are of immense help for an intellectual and intensive study of the Vedas.

Like the eyes which are of supreme importance to the physical body, the science of astrology which is rightly termed the eyes of Vedapurusha, has an exalted position among the Vedic science.

The science of astrology is broken down into three main divisions and six sub-divisions.

स्कन्ध त्रयात्मकं ज्योतिश्शास्त्रमेतत्
षडङ्गवत् ।
गणितं संहिता होरा चेति स्कन्धत्रयं
मतम् ॥

K. V. SIVARAMA IYER

The calculative or mathematical part, Samhita and Hora are the three main divisions. The six sub-divisions are Jataka (horoscopy), Gola (planetary), Nimitha (omens, etc.), Prasna (horary astrology), Muhurtha (electional astrology) and Ganita (mathematical astrology).

जातक गोल निमित्त प्रश्नमुहूर्त्ताख्य
गणितनामानि-

Ganita Skanda consists of the mathematical and planetary parts. Hora Skanda treats of predictive, horary and electional astrology while Samhita Skanda speaks of omens and other allied subjects. It should however be noted that Hora Skanda also deals with subjects like omens, etc, to some extent.

The mathematical portion, Ganitha Skanda forms the authoritative basis of the science while the other two divisions—Samhita and Hora are purely predictive. The Ganitha Skanda itself has been divided into ten sub-divisions. To obtain a comprehensive understanding of the Ganitha Skanda an intensive study of the five Siddhantas is unavoidable. Brahma, Saura, Vasistha, Raumasa and Pulisa are the titles of the five siddhantas.

The topic of Muhurtha or Electional Astrology which has become the veritable offspring of a deluge of contradictory opinions and dogmas has been selected from this all embracing and mighty science of astrology.

Muhurtha may be defined as the most auspicious moment that enables one to observe and perform successfully the various Vedic rituals without the risk of being obstructed by any unforeseen hurdles or impediments and thereby confers on the doer the full beneficial effects of the rituals.

मुहुर्म्मुहुस्स्मारयते कर्तारं श्रौतकर्मणां ।
तस्मान्मुहूर्त इत्याहुर्म्मुननयस्तत्त्वदर्शिनः ॥

Any one can realise from actual experience that things properly done in good and opportune periods bear desirable results while the haphazard way of doing things at times suited to convenience and creature comforts unmistakably bring in its train quite adverse, unpalatable and more often than not unexpected results. Muhurthas enable one to carry out things unhindered and unembarrassed. Even today Hindus consult astrologers for auspicious times for setting out on a journey, for constructing a new house, for embarking on a new adventure, for marriages and similar other important things. The science like any other modern science should not be decried if bad results are brought about due to the inefficiency of those who are consulted for selection of auspicious Muhurthas. Due regard should also be given to the fact that in these days of Kali Yuga it is next to an impossibility to get an auspicious Muhurtha devoid of any blemish whatever. Nevertheless the astrologer who fixes up Muhurthas for his consultants should always bear in mind the Sastraic saying:

ज्योतिषं व्यवहारं च प्रायश्चित्तं
चिकित्सितम् ।
विनाशस्त्रेणयो ब्रूयात् तमाहुर्ब्रह्म
घातकम् ॥

(Continued on page 134)

Scanned with CamScanner Sivarahisastrology.com To Preserve Ancient Vedic Work

A NEW METHOD OF PROGRESSION

(Continued from page 56)

	Age	Ascdt.	Sun Position	Result
* To be got determined accurately	22	Dhanus	Libra	11 Good
	23	Kumbha or Meena	* ,,	9 Good / 8 Bad
	24	Mesha or Vrishabha	* ,,	7 Bad / 6 Good
	25	Simha	,,	3 Good
	26	Scorpio	,,	12 Bad

Like this, the scheme can be extended.

Extension to prognostication for any desired day.

In the course of one sidereal year, the earth makes one more revolution, with the result that the zodiac of signs in one day makes a revolution of 1.00273783 circles or 1.00273783 × 12 or 12.03285396 signs.

Example.—Ascendant at birth 6.2349 signs.

Date of birth 9th June 1907. Required the effects of progression for 1956, March 21.

1. No. of years past 48.
2. No. of days past to the previous date of reference and the moment of birth—285.
3. Progressed Ascendant will be therefore :

$$= 6.2349 + 3.0765928 \times 48 + 1.00273783 \times 12 \times 285$$
$$= 6.2349 + 3.6765 + 9.3633$$
$$= 7.2747 \text{ signs.}$$

The progressed planetary positions for 1955–56 will be (for 48 years past) as follows :—

Moon	7.5587
Mars	4.1649
Mercury ...	2.9370
Jupiter	9.6718
Venus	1.0219
Saturn	8.8982
Rahu	8.9010
Kethu	2.9010

The chart for that anniversary day would be as hereunder :—

(N.B.—The positions in the chart are for the day of anniversary of birth; but by the date of reference, i.e., 1956 March 21, the planets Moon, Sani, Sukra and Budha have changed over to Dhanus, Makara, Karka and Karka respectively).

		Sun Venus	Kethu Mercury
Jupiter			Mars
Sani Rahu	Lagna Moon

The following features may be noticed :

(1) Lord of Lagna is in 10th aspecting Lagna.

(2) Lords of 9th and 10th in 1 and 7 respectively aspecting each other with Venus (in his own house) who is the lord of birth Lagna.

(3) Jupiter lord of 2nd and 5th in the 3rd aspecting the 9th as also lord of 10th.

(4) Moon and Jupiter though apparently in their houses of debilitation have crossed their debilitation degrees.

The result was that the native became a Gazetted Officer on that day, although much of monetary benefit did not obtain due to Sani and Rahu in second house.

Lastly, this system can be extended to mundane charts as well to predict long-range effects as the prosperity or adversity of a country takes a long time to shape itself. It is my intention to take up the question as a separate article.

In conclusion, may I request my learned readers to apply the above principles in their own cases or to those of their friends and find out for themselves the measure of success that can be claimed by this novel method of progression.

ASTROLOGY AND ITS PRACTICAL APPLICATION

(Continued from page 124)

Congress horoscope as well as Gandhi's horoscope are free from aggressive tendencies. The fact that he differed from its policies and the strange fact that he was not even an anna member are clearly indicated by the Shadastaka (6 and 8) disposition of the two Lagnas. If you superimpose Nehru's horoscope onGandhi's great radical harmony obtains between the two. Nehru's Lagna as well as Moon come to the M.C. of Gandhi (profession and creed). So Nehru was a true successor. The Pancha Mahapurusa Yoga caused by Venus in this horoscope falls in the ascendant of Gandhi and vice versa. How closely are they knit together. Of course, Mars in Jawahar's horoscope is conjunct (separated by 7°) Gandhi's natal Sun. Where deep harmony exists such points of discord act as a foil to the gem of unity. Gandhi's political philosophy is tinctured with extreme spirituality while that of Nehru's (Mars 10th lord in 3rd) is one based on ceaseless activity and dynamism. My line of argument would be still more clear and lucid if we compare Gandhi's horoscope with that of Godse, his assassin. Godse's Saturn, 8th and 9th lord, opposes Gandhi's ascendant. A malefic in one should not come to the angle of the other. If so the latter will suffer. Gandhi's Saturn (ruling Mantrasakti) afflicts by opposition Godse's Mercury, the ruler of his ascendant. He did not like his policy of pacifism towards Pakistan. The consummation of disharmony lies with Mars. Mars for Mithuna Lagna is a great malefic and to add to it he resides in Godse's Lagna and occupies Aridra ruled by Rahu. Mars therefote is criminogenic in nature. Just as Faisal's lights stood in square aspect to Uranus in the horoscope of the ill-fated chart, Gandhi's natal Sun (Kanya 18° 22′) is in full square aspect to Godse's Mars (Gemini 19° 16′). The martian fired the bullets and made an end of the Mahatma.

Man is a social creature who acts by his intelligence. He always lives in a society. Even nations cannot live independent of others. Disturbance to peace in any corner of the world causes disturbance everywhere. All nations are struggling hard to live together as one big well-integrated association. They must all bear in mind the several astrological implications before entering into pacts, organisations or associations.

Scanned by Gurudev Sattarishi Siddhanam To Preserve Ancient Knowledge Work

ASTROLOGICAL SIGNIFICANCE OF BASIC INSTINCTS

(Continued from page 64)

its object is to take all necessary steps to achieve the protection, care, upbringing and training of the progeny. The emotional colouring which is superimposed upon this instinct is what the layman calls "love". But because the average person normally fuses (as well as confuses) three dynamic emotions in this his conception of love, namely, sexual desire, sensuality, and real love (which consists of a genuine care for the welfare and well-being of the person beloved) the reasons why a completely inhibited parental instinct can become extremely deleterious should be perfectly obvious.

One of the fundamental needs of a child is love—real love, as above defined. But there are many mothers whose idea of love is to gratify their own personal vanity. Such mothers will pamper their children, fondly believing they are lavishing love upon them, when all the time their primary idea is to dress their children nicely in order to show off to the neighbours; to give their children the most expensive toys in order to satisfy their own vanity and to gratify at the same time a patronising whim. And if the net result is also calculated to impress the neighbours, so much the better, for the mother is then able to enjoy the reflected glory of the child.

Few such mothers realise that the children themselves can see through these tactics. This is because what the children need is real love, not adulation; and real love is just what they are not getting.

But mothers and fathers need not imagine they are bestowing real love when they proceed to pamper, indulge, and fondle their children. What they are doing when they do this is to gratify their own sensuosity; and their action is capable of doing mischief to their offspring. For this is a form of purely sensual love which is aimed more at producing self-gratification for themselves than at promoting the welfare of the child. Mothers who fall in love with their sons (or fathers with their daughters) in this sensual way easily produce unconsciously in their offspring an Oedipus complex. Later on, the parent may have to pay a heavy price for this, since in most cases the child ultimately breaks loose from the sensual enchainment, very often with bitterness and hate against the parent. In which case the biblical lament: "How sharper than a serpent's tooth..." reflects the paradox. Whence is seen the need for the interposition of selective love-inhibitions in connection with this instinct.

Another necessary inhibition to the parental instinct is the one which is devised to safeguard against possessiveness. For the possessive parent can be one of nature's worst abominations. This is because the craving for self-importance becomes unnaturally grafted on to the main feeling of tenderness. It therefore develops into a morbid craving to mould the children's lives into the pattern of the parent's own proclivities, to hold on to the children and enslave them by becoming so essential to them that the children cannot do without the parent. This form of training, however, is not equipping the children to face life and its problems. Indeed, it is turning them into misfits and into potential problem parents of the future.

Again, a child needs protection; but at the same time it needs to be safeguarded against overprotectiveness. Life is an adventure and an eternal risk; and those parents who carry their protection to excess will end up by finding their children peculiarly vulnerable when the time comes for them to take wing and leave the downy nest at the heart of the impregnable fort which the parents had built for them.

There is an awful lot which could be written about this instinct and the astrological insignia going with it. But lack of space forbids and we must pass on to consideration of the next instinct.

The Acquisition Instinct is governed by Leo. It is an instinct which induces us to hang on limpet-like to objects, property, people, causes, or things, with the full sense of possession. The acquisitive instinct, in fact, frequently builds up the possessive mother who regards her children as vital parts of herself and as necessary supports for her ego. Also it is the compulsion of the acquisitive instinct which builds the multi-millionaire and the man with an obsession to make a fortune. It is the acquisitive instinct which gives rise to the collecting craze and which turns some individuals into hoarders and misers. It is an instinct which can make kleptomaniacs of some people and thieves out of others. For the instinct is indiscriminative per se and can readily attach itself to objects which are not the property of the individual concerned. This is clearly seen in the way in which work people are apt to identify themselves with tools, machines, animals, etc., which have been provided by the employers. Such employees ultimately come to regard the items as their own special property, and they react accordingly should another worker attempt to make use of the items in their stead.

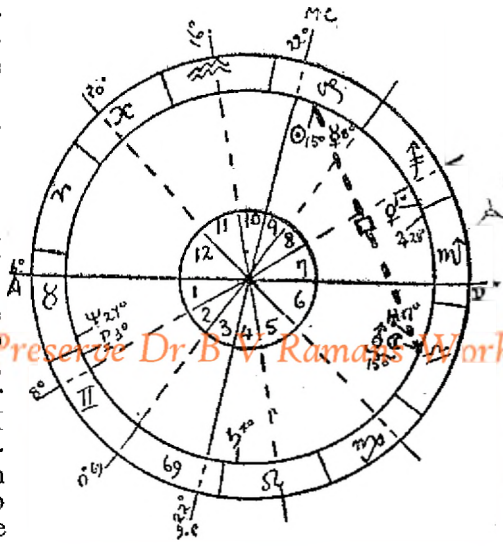
Scanned through http://vedicastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

Obviously, certain inhibitions preventing the extreme force of this instinct from being felt consciously, require to be built up by the unconscious censor as moderators. For the purpose of the safeguarding inhibitions is to damp down a proportion of the compulsive urges and thus prevent the situation from getting entirely out of hand—as it does get out of hand when, in the case of the Acquisition Instinct, a person is transformed into a kleptomaniac or a thief.

The Curiosity Instinct is identifiable with the sign of Virgo. Now a healthy curiosity can be extremely beneficial—which is why we need to be careful over selecting the types of inhibitions which the unconscious censor should apply to the repression of this instinct. For the instinct forms the basis of the investigatory spirit, bestows a thirst for knowledge. It promotes the pioneering spirit as well as stimulating inventive genius (a genius which is developed when our curiosity as to how things work is gratified leaving us free to apply our acquired knowledge in liaison with our imaginative faculty). It is the Curiosity Instinct which gives us the urge to know what life is all about, to sound and attempt to discover all the secrets and mysteries of nature, to take grandfather's clock to pieces in order to find out what makes it tick! The compulsion of the instinct becomes manifest in the questions posed by childern. But a child is caused to construct the wrong type of inhibition to the instinct should we choke him off by declaring that "children should be seen and and not heard" as our reaction to an embarrassing question to which we cannot find a ready answer. In fact, we cannot be too careful over dealing with questions posed by children, no matter how tiresome the children may sometimes be. For it is all too easy to dam up the instinct at its source—with deplorable later results.

However, readers should be forewarned and should not construe the above statement as constituting a recommendation to develop a completely uninhibited curiosity instinct. Remember, it was curiosity that killed the cat! Totally uninhibited, the compulsion of this instinct will drive us to poke our noses into quarters where they are not wanted, will make Peeping Toms of us, will turn us into Paul Prys and Mrs. Grundies, will turn us into informers, spies, and objectionable prowlers.

Newspaper reporters are perhaps as uninhibited in regard to the curiosity instinct as it is possible for people to be without running smack into trouble. But even journalism for the yellow press must have its ethics—a fact which argues that even the key-hole journalist has to prepare some inhibitions to his instinct if he wishes to steer clear of trouble. However, I have provided these little vignettes of the curiosity instinct in extreme forms in order to demonstrate clearly that we cannot afford to remove all inhibitions from any of our basic instincts. For if we do, their compulsive powers will ultimately become uncontrollable—to our cost and our sorrow. In my view, the inhibitions are vastly more important than psychologists have yet realised. Up till now, the thoughts of psychologists seem to have centred exclusively upon the problem of removing inhibitions in order to release the repressed tendencies; and they have been led in that direction through an over-specialisation in the theories of Sigmund Freud—with the result that they have come to believe that sex-motives explain everything! That is why I am now proceeding to show them how wrong they are. For I am demonstrating that they have not only the Oedipus Complex, Narcissism, the Id and the Libido to contend with; but much more importantly the twelve basic instincts.



(To be continued).

Scanned by www.sabarishastrulu.com To Preserve Dr B V Raman's Work

TROINSKI'S TERTIARY DIRECTIONS

(Continued from page 42)

859 days. From this we subtract 730 (2×365=2 years), leaving us a remainder of 129, which according to the Table for year-numbers comes to

Aspects:

1. Neptune conjunction Moon, conjunction Pluto, conjunction Mars, conjunction Aldebaran in 8th house.
2. Neptune, Moon, Pluto, Mars, square Saturn in 10th house.
3. Neptune, Moon, Pluto, Mars, square Jupiter in 4th house.
4. (R) Mars in 8th house square (R) Saturn in 10th house.
5. *(T) Mars in 8th house square (T) Saturn in 10th house.
6. (T) Mars in 8th house square (R) Saturn in 10th house.
7. (T) Saturn semi-square with (T) Herschel.
8. (T) Mars quintile with (T) Herschel.
9. Mars and Pluto in 8th house =Lord of the ascendant (Scorpio 9°) in TDH.

*T=Tertiary. R=Retrograde.

9th May.* So the date for the TDH is 9th May 1891.

In the TDH of Hitler dated 9th May 1891, we find the following:—

1. Neptune, Pluto, Moon, Mars and Aldebaran are in close conjunction in one house and on the cusp of the 9th house—or within its orb—and in square to Saturn in the 10th house.

2. Mars near cusp of the 8th house and in square to Saturn in 10th house in the Radical Horoscope is repeated again (Mars square Saturn) in the TDH.

3. Mars and Pluto (of the group of planets on the cusp of 8th house) are the lords of the ascendant (Scorpio 9°) in TDH.

4. Jupiter also throws a square aspect to the conjunction group on the cusp of 8th house.

5. Also Saturn semi-square Herschel; Mars quintile Herschel; Saturn semi-square Herschel; Mars sesquiquadrate Herschel. This TDH of Hitler for 1945, on the completion of his 56th year, speaks for itself and hardly requires any further clarification.

Examining the aspects separately (without taking on overall view of the TDH), we find the following:—

1. The group of planets (Neptune, Pluto, Moon, Mars and Aldebaran) on the cusp of 8th house is very near to the birth position of Pluto (4° to 5° Gemini) which in the Radical chart also occupies the 8th house. The effect of this Radical Pluto, we must therefore add to that of the group conjunction on the cusp of the 8th house.

2. Further, one day before (i.e., on 8th May 1891 and therefore in TDH for March 1945) there was a tertiary New Moon Sun conjunction Moon in Taurus 17°. This is the position of Venus-Mars conjunction on the cusp of the 8th house in the Radical chart, which are also severely afflicted by Radical Saturn (square) in the 10th house. And the 8th house in a Radical chart is the house of death and the 10th house represents the native's honour, trade and profession,

3. Finally, it may be pointed out that at the time of Russia's counter offensive in January 1945, Hitler's tertiary Mars in 8th house and lord of the ascendant in the TDH was in exact square to his tertiary Saturn, and tertiary Sun being square to (R) Saturn at the same time.

*The time to be taken for the TDH is the actual time of birth 18*h*. 30*m*. (Local Time) Braunau.

TABLE FOR TROPICAL MONTHS: (PAGE 100)

(Or the Number of Zodiacal Revolutions of the Moon)

The following table for Tropical Month will be important for casting TD Horoscopes:—

Years elapsed	Tropical months elapsed	Years elapsed	Tropical months elapsed
1*y* plus ca 18*d* ...	14	51*y* plus ca 6*d* ...	682
2*y* ,, ca 8*d* ...	27	52*y* ,, ca 24*d* ...	696
3*y* ,, ca 25*d* ...	41	53*y* ,, ca 14*d* ...	709
4*y* ,, ca 15*d* ...	54	54*y* ,, ca 4*d* ...	722
5*y* ,, ca 5*d* ...	67	55*y* ,, ca 21*d* ...	736
6*y* ,, ca 22*d* ...	81	56*y* ,, ca 12*d* ...	749
7*y* ,, ca 11*d* ...	94	57*y* ,, ca 1*d* ...	762
8*y* ,, ca 1*d* ...	107	58*y* ,, ca 19*d* ...	776
9*y* ,, ca 19*d* ...	121	59*y* ,, ca 8*d* ...	789
10*y* ,, ca 9*d* ...	134	60*y* ,, ca 25*d* ...	803
11*y* ,, ca 26*d* ...	148	61*y* ,, ca 15*d* ...	816
12*y* ,, ca 16*d* ...	161	62*y* ,, ca 6*d* ...	829
13*y* ,, ca 6*d* ...	174	63*y* ,, ca 22*d* ...	843
14*y* ,, ca 24*d* ...	188	64*y* ,, ca 13*d* ...	856
15*y* ,, ca 13*d* ...	201	65*y* ,, ca 3*d* ...	869
16*y* ,, ca 3*d* ...	214	66*y* ,, ca 21*d* ...	883
17*y* ,, ca 20*d* ...	228	67*y* ,, ca 10*d* ...	896
18*y* ,, ca 11*d* ...	241	68*y* ,, ca 0*d* ...	909
19*y* ,, ca 0*d* ...	254	69*d* ,, ca 17*d* ...	923
20*y* ,, ca 18*d* ...	268	70*y* ,, ca 7*d* ...	936
21*y* ,, ca 8*d* ...	281	71*y* ,, ca 24*d* ...	950
22*y* ,, ca 26*d* ...	295	72*y* ,, ca 14*d* ...	963
23*y* ,, ca 14*d* ...	308	73*y* ,, ca 4*d* ...	976
24*y* ,, ca 4*d* ...	321	74*y* ,, ca 22*d* ...	990
25*y* ,, ca 22*d* ...	335	75*y* ,, ca 11*d* ...	1003
26*y* ,, ca 12*d* ...	348	76*y* ,, ca 1*d* ...	1016
27*y* ,, ca 1*d* ...	361	77*y* ,, ca 18*d* ...	1030
28*y* ,, ca 19*d* ...	375	78*y* ,, ca 8*d* ...	1043
29*y* ,, ca 9*d* ...	388	79*y* ,, ca 25*d* ...	1057
30*y* ,, ca 0*d* ...	401	80*y* ,, ca 15*d* ...	1070
31*y* ,, ca 16*d* ...	415	81*y* ,, ca 6*d* ...	1083
32*y* ,, ca 6*d* ...	428	82*y* ,, ca 23*d* ...	1097
33*y* ,, ca 23*d* ...	442	83*y* ,, ca 12*d* ...	1110
34*y* ,, ca 13*d* ...	455	84*y* ,, ca 2*d* ...	1123
35*y* ,, ca 3*d* ...	468	85*y* ,, ca 20*d* ...	1137
36*y* ,, ca 20*d* ...	482	86*y* ,, ca 10*d* ...	1150
37*y* ,, ca 11*d* ...	495	87*y* ,, ca 26*d* ...	1164
38*y* ,, ca 1*d* ...	508	88*y* ,, ca 16*d* ...	1177
39*y* ,, ca 18*d* ...	522	89*y* ,, ca 7*d* ...	1190
40*y* ,, ca 8*d* ...	535	90*y* ,, ca 25*d* ...	1294
41*y* ,, ca 25*d* ...	549	91*y* ,, ca 14*d* ...	1217
42*y* ,, ca 15*d* ...	562	92*y* ,, ca 4*d* ...	1230
43*y* ,, ca 4*d* ...	575	93*y* ,, ca 22*d* ...	1244
44*y* ,, ca 21*d* ...	589	94*y* ,, ca 12*d* ...	1257
45*y* ,, ca 12*d* ...	602	95*y* ,, ca 0*d* ...	1270
46*y* ,, ca 2*d* ...	615	96*y* ,, ca 18*d* ...	1284
47*y* ,, ca 19*d* ...	629	97*y* ,, ca 8*d* ...	1297
48*y* ,, ca 9*d* ...	642	98*y* ,, ca 26*d* ...	1311
49*y* ,, ca 26*d* ...	656	99*y* ,, ca 15*d* ...	1324
50*y* ,, ca 16*d* ...	669	100*y* ,, ca 5*d* ...	1337

1 year=365 days; 2 years=730 days; 3 years=1095 days.

Scanned at www.sahajishirdi.com To preserve Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

Table for Year-Numbers

(Page : 102)

Jan.	Feb.	Mar.	Apl.	May	June	July	Aug.	Sept.	Oct.	Nov.	Dec.
1 = 1	1 = 32	1 = 60	1 = 91	1 = 121	1 = 152	1 182	1 = 213	1 = 244	1 = 274	1 = 305	1 = 335
2 2	2 33	2 61	2 92	2 122	2 153	2 183	2 214	2 245	2 275	2 306	2 336
3 3	3 34	4 63	3 93	3 123	3 154	3 184	3 215	3 246	3 276	3 307	3 337
4 4	5 36	6 65	5 95	4 124	4 155	4 185	4 216	4 247	4 277	4 308	4 338
5 5	7 38	8 67	8 98	6 126	6 157	6 187	6 218	6 249	6 279	6 310	6 340
7 7	8 39	10 69	10 100	8 128	8 159	8 189	9 220	8 251	8 281	8 312	8 342
9 9	10 41	12 71	11 101	9 129	10 161	10 191	10 222	10 253	10 283	10 314	10 344
11 11	12 43	15 74	13 103	12 132	12 163	12 193	12 224	12 255	12 285	12 316	12 346
13 13	14 45	18 77	15 105	14 134	14 165	14 195	14 226	14 257	14 287	14 318	14 348
15 15	16 47	21 80	17 107	16 136	16 167	16 197	16 228	16 259	16 289	16 320	16 350
17 17	18 49	22 81	19 109	18 138	18 169	18 199	18 230	18 261	18 291	18 322	18 352
19 19	20 51	23 82	21 111	20 140	20 171	20 201	20 232	20 263	20 293	20 324	20 354
21 21	21 52	24 83	23 113	22 142	22 173	22 203	22 234	22 265	22 295	22 326	22 356
22 22	22 53	25 84	24 114	24 144	24 175	24 205	24 236	24 267	24 297	24 328	24 358
24 24	23 54	26 85	25 115	26 146	25 176	26 207	26 238	25 268	26 299	25 329	26 360
26 26	24 55	27 86	26 116	27 147	26 177	27 208	27 239	26 269	27 300	26 330	27 361
28 28	25 56	28 87	27 117	28 148	27 178	28 209	28 240	27 270	28 301	27 331	28 362
29 29	26 57	29 88	28 118	29 149	28 179	29 210	29 241	28 271	29 302	28 332	29 363
30 30	27 58	30 89	29 119	30 150	29 180	30 211	30 242	29 272	30 303	29 333	30 364
31 31	28 59	31 90	30 120	31 151	30 181	31 212	31 243	30 273	31 304	30 334	31 365

Scanned by www.sapnrishiastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

Note :—Deduct one day for each leap year (excluding 1700, 1800 and 1900) falling between the date of Radical Horoscope and the calculated date of TDH.

(To be continued)

Astrology and Modern Thought

BY B. V. RAMAN

(FOURTH EDITION)

The rationale and claims of Astrology have been examined from the viewpoint of Modern Scientific Thought. The arguments put forth by some of the scientists to decry Astrology have been ably refuted and supported by unimpeachable evidence.

The book will convince any so-called sceptic who is accustomed the slogan 'I do not believe in Astrology'. To an intellectual it contains full of weighty material for reflection.

It is a book that every one should read.

PRICE Rs. 2.25 PER COPY. POSTAGE EXTRA

Less 12½% to Subscribers of:
THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE-3

AROUND the WORLD

BY DOUGLAS HUNT, M.A.

THE science of astrology can hardly ever have been done so proud in a single periodical as in the special astrological number of La Tour Saint-Jacques. Nearly three quarters of this superb bimonthly has been devoted to the subject.

It begins with four articles on contemporary astrology. The first of these, by Maurice Colinon, chastises severely the ignorant commercial 'astrologer', who is out only for the cash, and grinds out his prognostications with robot-like efficiency, pestering his customer with progressively cheaper 'special offers'. One of the last of these roneotyped letters informs the prospective client that his map has so intrigued the writer of the letter that he is prepared to offer an interpretation for a quarter of his 'regular' price. This appeal to human vanity is especially cunning, and almost deserves to succeed.

Some fifty pages are then devoted to the history of astrology—with especial reference to Copernicus and Kepler.

Copernicus studied at the University of Cracow, the oldest, I believe, in Europe, under Johann von Glogau and Albert de Brudzewo, both of whom published astrological works and predictions. He lived in Italy for seventeen years, and while at Bologna was the pupil and lodger of the town's official astrologer, Domenico Maria di Novarro. At Padua he studied medicine under the doctor and astrologer Fracastorio, who had postulated 79 concentric 'spheres'.

It was, of course, Copernicus who revived the ancient knowledge of the heliocentric system. It was, however, Rhaeticus, a Lutheran astrologer and Professor at the University of Nuremberg, who persuaded Duke Albert of Prussia that the system was in every way compatible with the theories of astrology. He then obtained from the Elector of Saxony the permission to print the magnum opus of Copernicus. The astronomer was at first reluctant—did he foresee the fate of Galileo at the hands of an 'infallible' Church?—but finally consented. In 1542 the work was begun, and the following year the first copy was laid on the death bed of the author.

This work, which was supposed to have given the death-blow to astrology, was, as we see, born under the influence of astrological teachings, printed thanks to the zeal of astrologers, and finally dedicated by Copernicus to Pope Paul III, the patron of astrologers.

It was Kepler who was largely responsible for securing a wider acceptance of the heliocentric system. Serge Hutin contributes a scholarly article on Le Fondement 'Platonicien' de l'Astronomie Keplerienne, which includes extracts from the astronomer's Somnium and Harmonices Mundi.

Johann Kepler (1571—1630) belonged still in the tradition which saw nothing extraordinary in combining the functions of metaphysician and scientist. He was, says M. Hutin, a Platonist. He speaks of pre-existent ideas in the mind of God which have been implanted in the human soul. These 'ideas', which the soul perceives by means of 'instinct' are what Kepler himself calls archetypes, and come very close to the archetypes to be found in the psychology of Jung.

M. Hutin quotes freely from Naturerklarung und Psyche, by Jung and Pauli—recently published in English by Kegan Paul under the title of The Interpretation of Nature and Psyche. Commenting on Kepler's views on astrology as expressed in Tertius Interveniens and Harmonices Mundi, that the individual soul contains in itself the idea of the zodiac, but that it is the planets, not the fixed stars, which by means of their light are the vehicles of astrological influence, Pauli remarks that in this respect Kepler is opposed to the traditional astrology. Astrological effects are not caused by the heavenly bodies but rather by the individual souls, with their specific reactions to certain proportions.

"In Kepler's theories", writes Pauli, "astrology has been completely integrated into a scientifico-causal system of thought. In putting the emphasis on the role of the rays of light he has incorporated astrology into physics, and indeed into optics." (My own translation from M. Hutin's French).

It would be interesting to examine Pauli's chapter on the disputes between Kepler and the Rosicrucian, Robert Fludd, but there is still much more in this fascinating volume which I can hardly even touch on.

An article on astrology in art is followed by a section on statistics in astrology. There is a note on C. G. Jung and astrology, and one on the attitude of the Roman Church to the science. As far as I could gather from a typically tortuous exegesis, that Church approves of all those aspects of astrology which do not meet with its disapproval, while strongly condemning those which do not meet with its approval.

The astrological section of this publication concludes with a summing up by the editor, M. Robert Amadou. "Mystic, philosopher, poet," he writes, "the ideal astrologer is all of these...Practical astrology cannot be unconcerned with any human activity." At the same time he condemns the 'mathematici', those mechanistic astrologers who would exclude from their calculations all human factors, even free will.

The remaining 80 pages or so are devoted to reviews of books and periodicals, and to some enlightening articles on the scientific study of E.S.P. For those who would like to procure this veritable encyclopedia of astrology the address is 53, rue Saint-Jacques, Paris 5me.

Writing at the end of October, I have before me Lyndoe's November Preview (written in early July) from Prediction. I quote at length and without any comment, except to restate my conviction that even in the hands of one of the masters of the craft, such as Lyndoe, mundane astrology is still far from reliable.

Lyndoe writes: "We are now at one of the major junctures in world affairs. You can be quite sure that the Mars-Taurus association will give the gravest turn in those Middle-East concerns which chiefly affect Britain... My impression is that by this period the ultimate challenge, so far as the British interests are concerned, will have been given...And that means, of course, military measures afoot.

"Parliament...passes into a phase which could be extremely critical... There is the beginning of a major change, and it could bring down not merely the administration but a large part of the very institution itself... Let there be no doubt about it, November is one of the great watersheds in our political history, and there are events in the making that must alter everybody's way of life.

"If no other chart ever spoke of warlike measures this one surely must be taken to do so? The least that can be said of it is that if actual war has not had its beginning by this reading—a fact denied by events now proceeding, to be blunt—the consequences of this chart certainly imply such a course ...We have passed the point of no return.

"To those in high position the next seven or eight weeks provide some of the most terrifying experiences. I will not, for reasons obvious enough, specify. But I will say that there is removal by death of important people, that the course of state affairs will be interrupted now and again in coming months by events of the gravest nature, and that these things run side-by-side with constitutional issues of the most important kind.

"The whole world (as innumerable charts testify) is going into the melting pot again. There can be no doubt that this is one of the great troughs in history, and that a devastating series of changes will occur. Their impact will shake us, but it will shake other countries (not overlooking U.S.A. and U.S.S.R.) still more."

ELECTIONAL ASTROLOGY

(Continued from page 127)

(He is considered the greatest sinner who without a sound and sufficient knowledge poses as a learned man and gives advice on matters astrological, medicinal and judicial.)

One should not also jump to the conclusion that anything begun at an auspicious moment is bound to come to a happy consummation. One cannot escape the fact that even actions begun in suitable Muhurthas should necessarily be implemented by adequate efforts and expeditionary measures required of such actions. Desirable results lie in the harmonious combination of the Muhurtha for starting on the ventures in question and thereafter contributing to them the human efforts required for them. We might not be far from the truth in coming to the generalisation that things well begun at the proper auspicious time often end well even in the absence of proper efforts. The converse of this is also often true. Things started on inauspicious times, despite strenuous efforts of persons concerned often if not always bring in bad results. Any action begun at an inauspicious moment will bring in its store insurmountable difficulties on the way, making progress impossible. On the other hand an action started on an auspicious moment surmounts and overcomes all difficulties and is brought to a very speedy consummation.

There is a story, the authenticity of which is for anyone to conjecture, that Sri Rama's life in the forest, his separation from Sita and the series of calamities that followed were all due to the defective Muhurtha when he espoused Janaka's daughter. Many will remember that though Sahadeva himself gave Duryodhana the most suitable Muhurtha to commence the battle for the complete annihilation of Pandavas the bold but unlucky warrior was not able to begin the war at the exact time so stipulated.

The innumerable accidents which beset the various stages of a man's life, failures which turn life sour and miserable, divorces and absence of offsprings, domestic quarrels and illness and untimely deaths—all these can be reduced to the utmost minimum by wisely making use of this part of astrology for selecting appropriate moments for commencing various actions. From sexual copulation to the performance of the death rites of man—for all actions—auspicious and suitable Muhurthas are to be found and wisely made use of. For starting construction of new buildings, for commencing life in newly made houses, for ploughing fields and sowing seeds, planting different kinds of plants and trees, for collection and storage of crops, and even for making watch-sheds in fields; for starting on travels, journeys and trips, by air, water or land; for wearing new clothes and ornaments, for cleansing teeth and for taking oil baths; for purchase of lands, gold, silver and cattle; for making visits to kings, officials and priests; for appointing servants and cooks; for commencing medical treatments; for clearing debts; and for conducting death ceremonies and anniversaries, this all important science is to be consulted. The faithlessness of the modern educated towards this science is mainly responsible for the general unhappiness and restlessness writ large in the life of man today.

Ancient Kerala had produced many a learned astrologer well versed in Muhurtha Sastra to whom are attributed the inimitable works of Madhaveeya, Krishneeya and Muhurtha Lanchana. The following notes are prepared on a comparative study of Panchasika, Sarvasiddhi, Kalaprakasika and Sarasamuchhaya in addition to the three works mentioned above.

An astrologer who is sincerely desirous of attaining proficiency in this branch of the science should lead a clean and controlled life. Ahimsa in its broadest sense should be his leading light. Having mastered the science he should have attained Mantra Siddhi before he begins practice of the art. Mere calculation of dates and arrangement of details cannot give accurate results though they may be mathematically correct and theoretically right. The results thus produced will be like a body without a soul. Such results should flow through the mind and lips of an astrologer who has attained the requisite spiritual and moral standards. Hereditary astrologers are respected and their opinions are valued, for the art of divination is in their blood.

Even at the risk of being scorned and ridiculed it may be stated that bumper harvests and a pleasanter and easier life would have been possible if only the men in authority took a little notice of this science and directed their course of actions at the most suitable moments. As has already been said simple dependence on the science alone cannot lead one to the elysium of best results. Beginnings at auspicious periods should be necessarily followed by enthusiastic efforts for the attainment of success.

The Almighty Power often referred to as Kalapurusha, ever existent, without beginning, end or repetition, is Time. Time causes everything in this world, nay, in the whole Universe. Life, growth and decay are controlled by time. One infinitesimal point of time is different from the other, thus accounting for endless variations and diversities. No two living beings are identical in this world as the time of their inception and manifestation could not be the same. The conjoint effect of the various rays of the ever revolving, effulgent and radiating heavenly bodies on any one thing in this globe of ours cannot be the same at any single moment. The countless cast of features, colour, shape, demeanour, behaviour and character, health and ill-health, luck and ill-luck, wisdom and idiocy, wealth and poverty, work, status, the span of life and death are all determined by the moment when the spermatozoon joins with the ovum in the womb during or after the sexual intercourse. That is why it has been laid down by the ancient seers that auspicious Muhurthas are to be selected for sexual unions. The increasing number of criminals and decrepits, invalids affected by incurable and chronic diseases from birth, the blind, the deaf and the dumb, the insane and the imbecile, and the dull, the idiotic and the perverted seen in our society today are living proofs to show the indiscriminate and thoughtless actions of their parents. (To be continued.)

Digitized by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Collection. CC-0. Panini Kanya Maha Vidyalaya Collection. Work

THE PROOF OF ASTROLOGY

(Continued from page 60)

By self-discipline, austerities, love of all life, sacrifice, compassion and benevolence, adherence to strict moral principles and cultivation of the Atmagunas, it is indicated that the Jiva can by degrees extricate himself from the strangle hold of Karmabandha — the autocratic sway of the planetary influences —and strike out boldly an independent path for himself towards the goal of spiritual realisation. The science of Hindu astrology is based upon these fundamental axioms of Hindu philosophy and is in perfect harmony with the Hindu outlook on life.

When dealing with Ayurdaya the texts lay down that the results guaranteed are subject to the native leading a proper moral life according to the sastras and honouring the regulations of the sastras in regard to food-taking. And further, the longevity indicated by the planets can be prolonged by Yoga and Mantra-sadhana and is liable to be cut short by loose and irresponsible living. Jataka Parijata declares :

येधर्म कर्मनिरता: द्विजदेव भक्ता: ये
पथ्य भोजन रता: विजितेन्द्रियाश्च ।
तेषामिदं कथितब्धमायु: ॥
ये पाप लुब्धांश्च देवब्राह्मणनिन्दता: ।
सर्वाशिनश्च ये तेषामकालमरणं नृणां ॥
स्वधर्मचार हीनानां पापकर्मोपजीविनां ।
शास्त्रेष्वनियतानां च मूढनामपमृत्यव: ॥

The Saravali concurs—

पथ्याशिनां शीलवतां नराणां सद्वृत्तभाजां
विजितेन्द्रियाणां ।
एवं विधानामिदमायुरग्र्य चिन्त्यं सदा
वृद्धमुनि प्रणीतम् ॥

There is also the well-known dictum of Dharma Sastra—

अन्युत्कटै: पुण्यपापैरिहैव फलमश्नुते ।

By conspicuous deeds of Punya or Papa, the results are reaped in this life itself.

Longevity is divided into seven classes of which the last, which surpasses the human span is said to be possible through Yoga or Mantra Siddhi.

बालारिष्टं योगसञ्जातमल्पं तेषां
भंगान्मध्यं दीर्घमायु: ।
दिव्यं योगाभ्यास मन्त्र क्रियाद्यैरायु:
सप्तैतानि संकीर्तित नि ॥

The Vriddha Parasari and other works prescribe the Vidhis for Dosha Parihara. In the Asirvada Vakya which we hear repeated on every religious occasion the same surmountability of the Graha doshas is presumed in utterances like :

ये ये ग्रहा: शुभेतरस्थानेषु स्थिता: तेषां
तेषां ग्रहाणां आनुकूल्य सिद्धयर्थम् ।
ये ये ग्रहा: शुभस्थानेषु स्थिता: तेषां
तेषां ग्रहाणामत्यन्तातिशयित शुभफल-
प्रदातृत्वसिद्धयर्थं..... etc.

The Niti Sastra has the following verses proclaiming the dual emphasis :

यस्याश्च येनेच यथाच यदाच यश्च यावच
यत्रच शुभाशुभमात्मकर्म ।
तस्याश्च तेनच तथाच तदाच तश्च तावच्च
तत्रच विधातृवशायुपैति ।
रोग शोक परीताम बन्धन व्यसनानिच ।
अत्मापराध वृक्षाणां फलान्येनानि
देहिनाम् ॥
आयु:कर्मच वित्तंच निधानिधनमेवच ।
पञ्चैतान्यपि सृज्यंते गर्भस्थस्यैव देहिन: ॥
उद्योगिनं पुरुषसिंहमुपैति लक्ष्मी दैवेन
देयमिति कापुरुषावदन्ति ।
दैवं निहत्य कुरु पौरुषमात्मबुद्धया
यत्नेकृते यदिन सिद्धयाति कोलदोष: ।
नदैवमिति संचिंत्य त्यजेदुद्योगमात्मन: ।
अनुद्योगेन तैलानि तिलेभ्योनाप्तुमर्हति ॥
यथाधेकेन चक्रेण नरतस्य गतिर्भवेत् ।
एवं पुरुष कारेण विनादैवं नसिद्धति ॥
पूर्वजन्मकृतंकर्म तद्दैवमितिकथ्यते ।
तस्मात्पुरुषकारेण यत्नंकुर्यादतन्द्रित: ॥

At the beginning of this article, we referred to the pramada of the astrologer as having brought upon the science a kind of disrepute, though it has record enough to show in its favour. It was also pointed out that the pramada was not only pardonable but for the most part unavoidable, because of the inscrutable nature of the transcendant subject and the vast variety of the literature upon it not unoften mutually conflicting or exclusive, and of the limitations of the human mind entering into the investigation. Great preparation and immense one-minded application are demanded of one who professes to be an astrologer and would do what is humanly possible for his client. The scrutiny of a single horoscope is such a mighty work for even an alround, well-equipped astrologer that not only he will be obliged to be employed with it for hours and days at a time but will have to revert to the labours from age to age of the native. In such a state of affairs an astrologer will have to confine his services to a few patrons only and cannot exercise his talents in a slipshod manner to all and sundry, if he should take to his profession conscientiously. That is why Saravali declared that the science was intended for kings. (राजोप योगि शास्त्रं यस्मात्).

But if we look to the real state of affairs we find to our sorrow and disappointment, that astrology is the exploiting ground for amateurish dabblers and professional pretenders. Sri Nilakantha Dikshita indulged in gibes at the expense of astrological quacks of his day :

अपिसागरपर्यंता विचेतव्य वसुंधरा ।
देशोत्थरंतिमात्राडपि नास्तिदैवद्वर्जित: ॥
वारान् केचित् केजित् दक्षाणि जानते ।
त्रितयं ये विजीनंति ते वाचस्पतय:
स्वयम् ।

Scanned by eGangotri Jyotisasri blog view - To Preserve Pt. N. Iyer's Work

सर्वं कोटीद्वयोपेतं सर्वं कालद्वयावधि ।
सर्वं व्यामिश्रमिवच वक्तव्यं दैव चिंतकैः ॥
निर्धनानां धनप्राप्तिं धनिनाधिकं धनम् ।
ब्रुवाणाः सर्वदाग्राह्याः लोके ज्योतिषिका जनाः ॥

The poet's words are only too true in regard to the prevalence of predictive astrology in modern times. To predict or speculate on destiny is such a sweet pastime that not only professionals but everyone capable of a little vanity and happening to know the ABC of the science picked up from books or hearsay shrinks not from staking a throw.

It is not customary in our part of the country to cast the horoscope scientifically marking the degrees and enriching the data which shall form the basis of the reading sought for, with all necessary details. And there are Vakya, Siddhanta and Drigganita methods which give conflicting calculations of tithis, nakshatras and planetary positions. Custom and tradition and almost a sacrosanct religious faith pin certain people to certain systems and no thought is wasted upon the question which system is scientifically accurate. The client takes the deplorably meagre and error-ridden chart to the astrologer who without in the least seeming hampered by the lack of the essential calculations and without passing for a moment to check up the soundness of the material supplied, proceeds with audacious gusto to make his pronouncements in most emphatic terms, now growing eloquent on the magnificence in store for the native and now spurting out alarming prescience of impending calamities for him. When he speaks of kendras he is wrong; when he refers to aspects and conjunctions he is wrong; when he draws conclusions from lordships and occupations of houses he is wrong. For him the twelve Rasis are twelve distinct mansions partitioned by impenetrable walls, however invisible, and it is all the same for him if birth is in the first or the 15th degree of a Rasi and a planet is in the 15th or 30th degree of another Rasi or vice versa. Even as he does not care to make accurate calculations of the planetary positions in relation to the exact degree of the rising sign, he never thinks also of making a correct study of the interplanetary relationships.

But some of these astrologers are Upasakas and men of religious merit and their trust upon their intuition dependent upon the grace of the Ishtadevata does not invariably betray them; and they go on well indeed with a swing towards an abundant practice. The students of the detected by means of scintillation counters.

(To be continued)

FUNDAMENTAL PARTICLES

(Continued from page 51)

The life of positronium atom is very small as judged by our standards of time. From the moment the atom is formed it survives for no more than a tenth of a millionth of a second. The ortho variety lives for less than just two ten millionths of a second while the para variety is still more transient: it lives for a tenth of a billionth of a second. Inspite of their flickering and fleeting lifetimes they dance for a pretty long time and revolve at least a million times before they give up their material existence.

An observation of the spectrum of positronium confirmed the validity of the proposed model of its atom. The absence of a nucleus makes the diameter of the positronium atom double that of the atom of hydrogen. The wavelength of the corresponding line of the atomic positronium should be double that of the hydrogen line; and so it was actually found to be.

Starting with two fundamental particles, electron and proton, we have reached a number about 20; we are not sure we have reached the end. In the scientific quest we find that new tools and new methods unravel new and untrodden lands and the time for crying halt seems to be ever receding. But the human intellect is never tired of exploration and it never satisfied with the progress made. It is out to know the ultimate truth; it may be a few years hence or some centuries hence. In the meantime it cannot rest.

Scanned by www.sapnaastrology.com to Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

[The Editor does not hold himself responsible for the views of his readers. Constructive criticism is always welcome. Vituperation and innuendo will not be permitted. While the Editor encourages healthy controversy on subjects relevant to THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, he must remind readers that claims on the available space in this column are heavy. The Editor, therefore, requests readers to be as brief as possible in all letters submitted for the correspondence columns.—Ed., A.M.]

Drawbacks of Western Astrology

Sir,—I give the greatest importance to Rahu and Kethu and have given the positions of the Nodes in my third book "1001 World-Political Horoscopes", pages 160—238. But it is true that my publisher (Baumgartner in Warpke-Billerbeck/Hann) has often cancelled the positions of Rahu and Kethu. This is incorrect. Rahu and Kethu are very important in our science (not merely in connexion with the eclipses), and I calculate and consider Rahu and Kethu constantly. I am convinced all leading astrologers in the West in general and Germany in particular consider the positions of Rahu and Kethu in their researches. There exist no "drawbacks" in Western astrology with regard to Rahu and Kethu.

Berlin. E. H. TROINSKI.

All-Kerala Astrological Association

Sir,—It is highly scholarly and scientifically thought-out and carefully worded address which you have delivered before the Trichur Conference. Lovers of astrology should feel grateful to you.

But, I doubt, if the Universities will lend ear to your suggestion to institute courses in astrology.

Madras. Dr. R. NAGARAJA SARMA, M.A., PH.D., D.LITT.

Sir,—I am in due receipt of the November 1958 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE and I was indeed very much impressed by your address delivered at the All-Kerala Astrological Association, when I went through the magazine. It is simply superb. You have dealt with the subject in a most scientific manner at every step. It is quite welcome. All will definitely accept anything if it is scientifically proved. Due to the dearth of such a scientific and methodical exposition of facts, the noble science of astrology had begun to wane gradually in its glory from its grand position or status. Such an attitude is highly welcome and essential nowadays towards the science of astrology, nay, to all the Indian sciences, to restore their lost dignified position. Mr. K.K. Kurup has not erred in selecting you to do the inauguration.

My grandfather, late Sri Rayasam Subbier of the Tiruvavaduthurai Adheenam Mutt, used to tell me often very high of your illustrious grandfather late Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao who was one of his best friends and who took great pains and efforts to restore the science of astrology to its lost status which are too well-known to your readers, to be mentioned here.

How true is the dictum or saying of our seers of yore that the grandson will portray the qualities of the grandfather! How true is the same in your case?

I warmly congratulate you on this and wish you, as also Mr. K.K. Kurup and the Association, every success.

With my best respects,

Tiruvidaimarudur. R. PICHUMANI.

Casualty Tracks in National Astrology

Sir,—With regard to the criticisms of Mr. Fagan re. my letter to you in the September 1958 issue, may I be permitted to reply to him as follows? Most of his remarks require a large amount of space for full discussion, as they touch the very foundations of astrology, but in the sequel I shall try to be as brief as possible.

It is true that the word "Capsolar" was coined by Mr. Allen to indicate the Sun's ingress into the constellation Capricorn, and I have merely used the word to indicate precisely the same event; which I do not think is an offence unless the word was copyright. Mr. Fagan had never previously seen a Capsolar chart in print. May I ask him to read Mr. Nixon's article in the February issue, wherein he states: "In previous articles I have already presented to Indian readers the ingress maps for Makara and Mesha". That is one instance. Perhaps Mr. Fagan is not acquainted with our local almanacs; but if he was, he would have known that almost every such almanac draws charts for the Sun's entry into every sidereal zodiacal sign, and draws predictions therefrom, and have been doing so for the past half a century at least. Again Prof. Raman in his book Hindu Predictive Astrology (my edition dated 1947) states: "Mark the horoscope for the time of entry of the Sun into Aries, Cancer, Libra and Capricorn." These, of course, refer to the sidereal zodiac. Lastly, I may inform Mr. Fagan that so great was the importance attached to the Capricorn and Aries ingresses (known as Sankrantis) that some decades ago these two days were general public holidays in this part of Western India. With Mr. Fagan's statement that "without the true value of the Ayanamsa no Capsolar chart would be considered of any value", I certainly agree, but nevertheless the practice of setting these ingress charts has been widely used in India and with some measure of success. Mr. Allen gives little importance to the Aries entry, still both the Aries and Capricorn charts were deemed to be important by the ancients. Perhaps if Mr. Allen were to re-examine his records, and redraw the Aries charts deleting the correction to the Ayanamsa due to the aberration of light which is a maximum at the Aries and Libra entries, and zero at the time of the other two entries, he might get better results.

It is true as Mr. Fagan states that 15½′ will not bring the planet exactly from the meridian to the descendant, etc., for high latitudes, and I knew this when I wrote about it. But my object was not to write scientifically but to point out to lay readers that other values of the Ayanamsa are quite possible even with the conditions laid down by Mr. Allen. Indeed, Mr. Fagan himself confesses that 30½′ will do the trick so far as the meridian and I.C. are concerned; and further agrees that the "true" value of the Ayanamsa can be obtained with great accuracy once an approximate value of it has been fixed. This has exactly been my contention, indeed he has used almost my own words. But whereas I am pushing this to its logical conclusion and import, Mr. Fagan seems to shy like a frightened horse from its implications. It is exactly the "approximate" value (which once was scientifically exact) which I am questioning.

Mr. Fagan is very indignant re. my remarks about bringing a malefic to an angle. Nowhere have I stated that

Mr. Allen lays any such claim. But if Mr. Fagan carefully re-reads my original letter he will find that in the second para of that where I have made this statement I have wholly addressed myself to refute the criticisms made by Mr. Nixon. Now if he reads Mr. Nixon's article, he will find that he states "It is difficult to decide..... whether he is in favour of the Cap-solar chart or not and the methods employed... Mr. Cyril Fagan's insistence on the importance of the planets in the foreground... Mr. Kharegat has the temerity to make predictions by using this very method of the angularity of the malefics which he also condemns". Evidently Mr. Nixon was under the impression that bringing the malefics to angles was the invention of Messrs. Fagan and Allen, at least that is how I understood it and still do so. Read in this context my remarks are perfectly fair and reasonable, as I merely pointed out to him that this was an ancient method employed and even quoting references. I believe that even Ptolemy employed this method. Mr. Fagan's indignation is therefore unreasonable.

With regard to the navamsa, Mr. Fagan himself states that minute differences in the value of the Ayanamsa give correspondingly large differences in the values of the navamsas; and it was precisely for that very reason that I had originally suggested the use of the navamsa diagrams for the determination of the true value of the Ayanamsa. That such a determination can only be approximate is evident for the fact that the extent of the division is 3° 20'. Therefore on an average the value should be capable of being fixed to at least half this extent. However, that is now only of academic interest since Mr. Allen's method is much more sensitive.

Mr. Fagan agrees that as regards his own approximate value no rigorous proof exists, "except the evidence established by Garth Allen". I do not believe that the latter evidence was of any great value, unless Mr. Allen by further researches can prove that no other value of the Ayanamsa will give as good results as those now obtained by him on the basis of Mr. Fagan's approximate value. May I also draw his attention to the fact that 6′ is 0.1° and not 0.01°. Perhaps this and the other figure of 0.03° is a printing error, if not then 0.1° is more than three times the probable error.

Mr. Fagan has given an example of a moron and a scholar born on the same day and at approximately the same time. Unfortunately, he does not give details of the times at which they were born so that we can make detailed comparisons of the two charts for ourselves. May be facts are as stated by Mr. Fagan, but it might be noticed that he himself gives no answer to his own problem, but merely makes the general statement that "all that befalls the native is not shown in the horoscope of birth". I would slightly amend this statement to read "all that befalls the native may not be apparent from his horoscope". With this amended statement all astrologers will agree. For, as yet, astrology is hardly a science but is still largely an art. It is our defective knowledge and there is probably no inherent impossibility that stands in the way of our reading everything that befalls the native from his chart. However that may be, all this is hardly relevant to the question that was originally raised namely that directions only time the event and may perhaps show in detail the nature of the event, but such events must be shown in the original chart. Charts very like each other in times, etc., are fairly common in astrological literature, and will become an increasing problem as the rate of population increases in future. I would however like to draw the attention of Mr. Fagan to two remarkable cases. One is the case of the twins given in Quarterly Journal of Astrology of Mr. Carter. These twins had identical accidents and of an identical nature, though one was in Australia and the other in England, and not only once but on three separate occasions was this identity of times and nature of accidents maintained (incidentally, what happens to locality charts of solunars, when one is in England and the other in Australia?). The other case is that given by Alan Leo where a labourer (I am quoting from memory so that the exact status escapes me) was born at the same time and locality as King Edward VII. In this case also events (that is directions) ran parallel in the two cases. Evidently both horoscopes showed social rises, illnesses, etc., and the directions indicated the times which were identical. If Mr. Fagan still does not believe, may I ask him what made one man a moron and the other a scholar in his own case? Surely he does not seriously imply that it was the directions, that is, the solunars of the one turned him into a moron and those of the other into a scholar? For unless he implies this the case and the whole discussion is haridly relevant. In any case the subject is too vast to deal with here and I would suggest to you, Sir, that you invite the opinions of astrological scholars on this, and publish them in your magazine.

Mr. Fagan refers me to Mr. Allen's "Open Letter" as to why no bomb was dropped on Vladivostock at the same time as it was on Hiroshima. I have replied to this in another letter to which I refer Mr. Fagan but to recapitulate, Mr. Allen's arguments boil down to these two statements: (a) Any one who puts such questions is either silly, unscientific and unintelligent or all three I suppose. (b) Why some things happen at one place and not at another is that the conditions are favourable at the former place but not at the latter. Evidently, Mr. Fagan considers this as an adequate and complete reply. I must be very silly, etc., for I am still unconvinced especially as I think that the reason (c) savours of the fallacy of "begging the question". If he refers to Mr. Nixon's article he will find a much more intelligent and reasoned answer, with a frank confession (which is the true scientific attitude) of inability to explain certain circumstances.

I was very interested to learn that Mr. Fagan had made a study of the horoscopes of many (how many?) of the victims of the "Titanic" disaster; and that Mr. Fagan had found no common planetary pattern and hence his previous generalisation. May I ask Mr. Fagan with all due respect that if he has not found any common ground, are we to take it as final that no such ground can ever be found? or that no such grounds actually exist? Time and again in the history of science we have found that whereas correlation of apparently unconnected facts has escaped the notice of even highly educated persons, and secrets of nature which have stubbornly resisted some have been laid bare by others, and generalisations of the kind made by Mr. Fagan are both inappropriate and inopportune. Further, if Mr. Fagan maintains that the horoscopes of all passengers were subservient to those of the captain, how comes it that out of a total complement of 2224 persons carried, only 1517 perished? (See Ency. Brit. 12th Edition, Pp. 732). Why did only about 70% die, and not the whole lot, i.e., 100%? What was there in the horoscopes of the other 30% that they were spared? Unless Mr. Fagan can answer these questions satisfactorily, his generalisation is worthless.

Mr. Fagan wonders if I am familiar with "modern" statistical methodology. On the other hand, I am wondering whether Mr. Fagan knows anything about it. Merely in passing I may mention that I was a statistician to a large public utility for over 30 years and am acquainted with all its branches, and its tests of significance, both parametric and non-parametric. Mr. Fagan's remark about this being "the only science that can prove or disprove...all teachings" betrays his ignorance of what statistics can or cannot do. No amount of statistics can "prove" or "disprove" anything, it can only point out the probabilities with statements (the so-called null hypothesis) which can be made or rejected. Also there is no necessity for a sample to consist of "hundreds or even thousands of cases". The statistical techniques developed by Sir Ronald Fisher are quite adequate to deal with very small samples for certain purposes. If a "fully qualified" statistician demands that only one angle at a time be considered I suggest that Mr. Fagan do not employ him, he does not know his job. Of course, it would be preferable to consider only one item at a time but it is not necessary, else how would he be able to predict, say wheat yields, which depend on the simultaneous variation of several factors which are under only partial control, or like the weather not controllable at all? I therefore repeat that modern statistical theory with its many tools like multiple and partial correlations, analysis of variance, etc., can and does tackle jobs that consist of many factors which vary simultaneously, and hence Mr. Fagan's apprehensions are unfounded.

When I had first learnt of Mr. Fagan's solunars in an article in this magazine in 1953, I was very enthusiastic. But actual experimentation in quite a large number of cases has convinced me that his method is not adequate because it is unduly simplified and therefore of very little value for prediction purposes. Ordinary or orthodox methods of prediction gave far better results, but of course they were then no longer solunars, they were Varshaphal charts which had been for centuries in use in India!

Bombay. K. M. KHAREGAT.

Transit Results

Sir,—In Hindu Astrology transit results are usually judged with reference to Chandra Rasi, i.e., the sign occupied by the Moon at birth. During the past few years, I, too, have followed this practice. It has, however, been my experience that in a number of cases the results have not been correct.

In April last an incident occurred, which has set me to think. I had been invited to a friend's house for dinner in the evening of April 18. I did not feel quite well after returning home. In the morning I developed acute indigestion, flatulence and constipation and sore throat and hoarseness. Later, I found that my friend also developed the same sickness on the same date, though other persons who partook the dinner had no such trouble. Our dates of recovery also coincided.

My horoscope and that of my friend are given below :—

(a) Horoscope of self :—Sun—4°; Moon—173°; Mars—109°; Mercury—7°; Jupiter—353°; Venus—49°; Saturn—79°; Rahu—281°; and Lagna—101°.

(b) Horoscope of friend :—Sun—5°; Moon—329°; Mars—355°; Mercury—22°; Jupiter—22°; Venus—6°; Saturn—93°; Rahu—262°; and Lagna—273°.

It will be observed that the position of the Moon in the two horoscopes is different, while that of the Sun is practically the same. It, therefore, occurred to me that the position of the natal Sun might be important and that the practice of Western astrologers of taking the sign of the radical Sun for judging transit results might deserve consideration.

On April 18, 1957, the planets were situated as below :—Sun—6°; Moon—230°; Mars—58°; Mercury—25°; Jupiter—151°; Venus—7°; Saturn—232°; and Rahu—209°.

This combination cannot be said to produce the ill-effects on health described above on the persons possessing Virgo and Aquarius Rasis as myself and my friend do. However, if we judge the results for Aries (the sign occupied by the Sun in our horoscopes), they are accurate. Mars occupies the second sign from Aries and Saturn and Moon the eighth; moreover, they are in opposition. Hence, the troubles pertaining to the throat and abdomen occurred to both of us and those, too, simultaneously.

Saturn for the owners of Virgo Rasi has moved into the third from October 1955. Saturn in the third is good. Naturally, I expected good results for myself. But during this period, the results have been contrary to my expectations. Viewed from Aries, Saturn is in the eighth, which is notoriously bad. Evil results are, therefore, justified.

The Rasi is the focus through which transit results operate with reference to an individual. In view of the observations made above, I am inclined to believe that Chandra Rasi is not necessarily the Rasi for this purpose. We have to select the strongest Rasi out of those occupied by the Lagna, the Moon and the Sun, and then judge transit results with reference to the same. In this connection, it may be stated that the strength of the sign is to be judged from the strength of the owner of the sign, the planets posited in it and also from the numerical strength of the planets posited in that sign.

I have tested this method on a number of horoscopes and have found it correct. Discrepancies which could not be explained through the usual Chandra Rasi method can easily be explained through this method. It would also be clear that the determination of the Rasi of a horoscope is a necessary prerequisite for a correct prognostication of results.

Lucknow. R. D. GUPTA, M.A.

Psychic Mediums

Sir,—Mr. K. Viswanathan's article on page 813 in October 1958 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE under the caption "Locating the Hidden Treasures" has induced us to send you this article for publication.

We are obliged to Mr. Viswanathan for thinking on the subject, and writing on it, and our effort is to give our readers an idea of the Ceylon Science of depositing and recovering treasures. There are hundreds and hundreds of said treasures buried or hidden specially, deposited in "Dagobas" (i.e., Pagodas), prohibited from excavation or removal, while there are many more in almost all parts of the country, which can be taken, but the Archaeological Deparment has now completely prohibited from interfering with any treasure. But the science is there, kept as one of the greatest national secrets. But in many instances thieves had entered into treasures, in jungles and had stealthily removed gold, precious stones and jewellery, including images of silver and gold, worth lakhs and lakhs of rupees. Sometimes, the thieves are caught and charged criminally, and it is a common sight to see such cases in our village courts being proved, and accused sent to jail.

The most important thing in locating a treasure is to get hold of a good, and reliable psychic medium. Once such a person is available, the rest is plain sailing. On one occasion, we were entrusted with the excavation and removal of a treasure, which was well known; it is in a place called "Pannala" about 40 miles from Colombo. The property on which the treasure was located, is a flat rock and a very large circle was to be found carved on it, showing the extent and exact location of the treasure. About a thousand years ago, one of Ceylon's greatest King's—(poet to boot)—had kingdom in this area, and the treasure is supposed to contain his regalia, and all his wealth, perhaps gold, worth millions of rupees. It was owned by one Mrs. Effie Dias Bandaranaike, the consort of Sir John Kotalawala, who at this time was Ceylon's Preimer.

Scanned & Digitized by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Project

As luck could have it, in Mrs. Bandaranaike we found a medium of great psychic powers, and we at once utilised her services. It so happened, Mrs. Bandaranaike told us, that every two or three months, an old man clad in white, with a flowing beard, used to appear to her in her dreams, and say to her: "Daughter, we are guarding your treasure, yonder; and have been doing this so long! why not take it?, can we do this for ever?" This phenomenon used to appear regularly, and on many occasions her servants attempted to blast the rock, and burst into the treasure, but with fatal consequences. Our services were called in at this time, because of fatal results, suffered by novices.

We explained that all valuables in the bowels of earth are guarded and protected by Gnomes or Bhairavas; unless you get directions and permission from them, it would be highly dangerous, and even fatal to approach to excavate a treasure, even when it is fully known where it is found. The Gnomes or Bhairavas can be easily called in, as we did in this case, through our host, Mrs. Bandaranaike, from whom full details of the incident can be got. We contacted the Gnomes in charge of this treasure, through her medium, by getting her to invoke the Gnomes by reciting Bhairava invocations–324 times she seated round a circle of scraped cocoanuts, with plenty of other offerings. This is the usual way of invoking these spirits, according to the Ceylon Science of location and removal of treasures.

The chief Gnome or Bhairava actually appeared to her in a dream on this night in response to her call—and according to Mrs. Bandaranaike, the Gnome said to her: "Daughter", I am the Bhairiva that came to you on so many occasions. You are now in the correct path, leading to the treasure which is your property. My Daughter, three moons from today, you collect 14 people—7 men and 7 women, of whom you should be the leader. You all must be clad in white. With white lamps in your hands, form yourselves into a procession and come into the place of the treasure, singing our sastras (hymns). Form yourselves into a circle, upon the treasure on the treasure rock—"Then let your Guru start the pujas, and then, reciting mantram and the (scientific) spiritual rites, all well-known to your Guru, we shall then open the treasure, and it is for you and your friends accompanying you to remove the treasure deposited by your great King thousands of years ago and left us in charge."

Mrs. Bandaranaike gave us this story in the following morning and the same spread far and wide—as being a unique event in the history of our land! The Ceylon and foreign press men flocked in to her as it afforded wonderful "copy" for them. But the moment Sir John Kotalawala the Premier, at the time, came to know what was going to take place, he firmly put his foot down and stopped all further proceedings as, apparently he feared it would have brought into prominence her or his exploits with his late "consort" with whom his associations during the period of marriage, did not bear much scrutiny; —that was how the great attempt to explore a wonderful treasure in Ceylon, ended.

This account is useful as every word of it can be verified by reference to Mrs. Bandaranaike. It also proves that there was nothing like this Ceylon Science found in any other country for locating and securing treasures. In the event of any party wishing to locate and secure treasures, hidden or concealed in India or in any other part of the world, we can easily invoke Bhairavas in charge of it, and always exploit the same successfully from Ceylon. We can even undertake to train any person, especially ladies willing to act as medium, if they join our circle, when they can go through a special course of training, upon which each of them can set up herself as medium fully conversant with Ceylon Psychic Science, in relation to locating treasures, etc. Training is free under the Director, which will last for a few months, the only expenditure involved being for one's food and lodgings in Ceylon, which will be arranged by a member of the circle, or the Director himself—on application.

Supreme Court Notary, Colombo. DAVID DE SILVA.

Saradeepa Sakti Yoga

Sir,—Varahamihira in his Brihat Jataka (Chapter 11) describes Raja yogas from slokas 2 to 18 brought about by the position and strength of the seven planets in the 12 signs of the zodiac. In the next Chapter 12, the author deals with what are called Nabhasa yogas. These are again divided into Akruti, Samkhya, Asraya and Dala yogas.

Yavanacharya mentions 1800 Nabhasa yogas. These yogas have been condensed into 32 yogas by Varahamihira in his Brihat Jataka.

The 13th Chapter of the Brihat Jataka deals with Chandra yogas or lunar combinations. These have been dealt with by me in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE for March 1954.

There is no mention in any of these chapters of a yoga called Saradeepa Sakti Yoga. This yoga is mentioned by Kaka Bhujandar in one of the readings of the horoscopes dealt with by him.

I give below the horoscope of the native in Nirayana system wherein this yoga is described:—

Rasi:—Ascendant – Virgo; Saturn–Scorpio; Moon – Capricorn; Kethu–Aquarius; Jupiter – Pisces; Venus and Mars – Gemini; Sun and Mercury–Cancer; and Rahu – Leo.

Navamsa:—Ascendant – Leo; Moon and Saturn – Virgo; Mars – Libra; Kethu – Scorpio; Sun and Jupiter–Capricorn; Rahu and Venus – Taurus; and Mercury – Cancer.

The Saradeepa Sakti Yoga is peculiar to the persons born in Kanya or Virgo. This yoga affects the native in Saturn's period in his own or Swabhukthi. It is brought about by the lordship of the 5th and 6th houses of Saturn and by the occupation of the 3rd house, Scorpio (from the ascendant). Saturn has also the aspect of Jupiter from Pisces. Bhujandar says the effect of the yoga drives the native into indigence. The domestic peace of the native is disturbed and there will be acute mental agitation. Lastly, the native will be forced to live outside his place of

(Continued on page 149)

Books You Should Read

MARKET FORECASTING

How to Forecast Prices and Winners in Races.— By T. G. Butaney. Expounds jealously guarded secrets. Rs. 15 or Sh. 30.

Planetary Influences on Markets.– By Lagon Mars. Deals with application of Astrological rules to markets. Rs 7–50 or Sh. 15.

Perpetual Market Forecast.—By Pt. Ganga Prasad. A book of great importance to all speculators, merchants and students of Astrology. Rs. 10–50.

Complete Course of Self-Instruction in Commercial Astrology and Numerology.—By T. G. Butaney. Rs. 15 or Sh. 30.

Less 6¼% to Subscribers of:
THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS
"Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

Leprosy

Sir,—I have read with much interest the article written by Dr. Jagannath Rao under the caption Combinations for Leprosy in the August 1958 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. One of my friends is having similar combinations as described by the learned author, and is now under treatment here. The author claims that white leprosy is different from ordinary leprosy, but has not mentioned any combinations for that disease. I hope he will publish soon an article devoted completely to this subject as many men and women suffer from this disease and are condemned for marriage, etc. in the society.

I have also read the book Predictive Astrology written by the same author and find it very interesting. He has made the principles of astrology easy to understand and his treatment of the Bhavaphala and Gocharaphala is really exhaustive. We are glad that he being a doctor has taken so much interest in this occult subject. And one should admit that but for your magazine, most of the educated men would have never exerted themselves in this line. May God give you strength to serve the nation for a long time. Will you kindly publish this letter in your valuable magazine and oblige?

Hyderabad. K. RAMANATHAN.

Saturn and Makara Lagna

Sir,—With reference to Mr. Sastri's letter on the above subject on page 999 of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, November 1958, Mr. Sastri will please furnish the full horoscope with Rasi and Amsa diagrams, balance of dasa, time, date and place of birth, to enable a full assessment of Saturn's Mahadasa results. It is rather surprising that Saturn in Makara Lagna should give bad results. All standard works on astrology proclaim that Saturn in Makara Lagna is good.

Trichy. N. SUNDARESA IYER.

A Tragedy

Sir,—Mr. R. Ramaswami has given in September 1958 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE the horoscope of an unfortunate bride who married in May 1957 and was widowed within the all too brief period of 5 months, inspite of the fact that her husband also had a corresponding Kuja Dosha and has requested the readers of your esteemed journal to throw light on the astrological causes for such an early widowhood.

In the first place, I think, it should be clearly understood that the mere fact that each of the partners to the union has a Kuja Dosha does not necessarily remove the yoga for "widowhood" if it be present in the horoscope of a girl for the simple reason that it is not the Kuja Dosha alone that is responsible for "widowhood" in a female nativity for the "widowhood" may be due to the weakness of the lord of the 7th house or the weakness of the Karaka or significator of that house (i.e., Jupiter in the case of female nativity).

In the second place, it would be observed from the horoscopes of the couple that while Mars is occupying the 7th house (one of the houses stipulated in the definition of the term Kuja Dosha) in the case of the bride's horoscope, it is in the second place (house) in the case of the boy and thus does not constitute the dosha in that horoscope.

लग्ने व्यये च पाताले जामित्रे चाष्टमेकुजः।
वरः पत्नी विनाशायकन्या पतिविनाशिनी॥

From the above sloka it is clear that the 1st, 4th, 7th, 8th and 12th are the only houses stated to be relevant, to the Kuja Dosha.

In any case, the main point I am concerned with in this letter is the accuracy of the horoscope (of the bride) which I doubt very much. We have not been told about the latitude of the place of birth of the bride hence it is not possible to verify whether with Gh. 35-57, the Lagna Cancer is possible but this much is certain that near about and below latitude 13° the Gh. 35-57 will definitely give for date 30-11-1935 Mithuna and not Cancer as Lagna. Thus if the birth is near that latitude 13° (and I guess it is so from the fact that the correspondent is a South Indian gentleman) the Lagna will be Mithuna—alas, a most unfortunate Lagna, sometimes, for a lady to possess for the very simple reason that if Guru (Jupiter) happens to be weak, its weakness will mean the weakness not merely of the Karaka of husband but also of the lord of the 7th house. And if by unfortunate bhava the 7th house for such a lagna also is under malefic influence, then God help such a lady for then all the three factors standing for the husband, viz., the 7th house, the lord of that house and Jupiter the Karaka for that house would be suffering and thus indicate an early demise of the husband or widowhood for the wife as in the present case with Mithuna Lagna.

With Cancer as the lagna of the lady, no doubt, there are malefic influences on the 7th house and its Karaka, viz., Jupiter; but Sani—the lord of the 7th house being in the sign Kumbha its Moolatrikona and in the 8th house will be very strong and will prevent any astrologer from predicting "widowhood". But the story with Mithuna Lagna will alas be different for her; in addition, the lord of the 7th house too would be in almost total eclipse and under the strong malefic aspect of Saturn.

As regards the longevity of the husband, from his own horoscope it will be noted that Venus lord of Lagna is in Lagna but is not having the influence of any planet. The peculiar position created by the absence of any influence on the Lagna and its lord definitely weakens the Lagna and consequently the longevity more particularly when the kendras are devoid of benefics and the house of longevity (8th) is suffering by the aspect of as many as 3 malefics. Sani the Ayushkaraka is weak in an inimical sign with two malefics. Alpayu or short life is thus astrologically justifiable.

Kanpur. J. N. BHASIN.

Sir,—Reference the letter of Mr. R. Ramaswami published on page 845 of your magazine for September 1958, permit me to make a few observations on the horoscopes.

The star or asterism is not given to calculate the Dasa. In the bride's horoscope, Saturn in 8th gives long life. Mars Dosha is powerful being in the 7th with Lagnadhipathi. Again in her horoscope on both sides of Moon are malefics. In the bridegroom's horoscope planets are only on one side of Moon, lessening its strength thereby. For Thula Lagna, Guru, Kuja and Sun are malefics. Guru and Sun are marakas. Leaving Moola, if we take Poorvashada to be the star for him, he must have died in Kuja or Rahu Dasa. If Uttarashada be taken as star he must have died in Rahu Dasa. Lord of 8th is in kendra. Guru is in 6th (own house) with aspect of Sani. Rahu is in 8th ((exalted). Mars dosha was not balanced.

In the girl's horoscope Kuja dosha is strong. Mars is exalted. In the groom's horoscope, Mars in own house in the 2nd is not strong enough to oppose the dosha of the girl. The horoscopes were not properly matched. There might also have been dasa sandhi. The groom's horoscope is not strong inherently while the girl's is. Further details of the girl may be useful for study.

In another *horoscope of a female in my possession, Mars in 7th is more powerful. She became a widow after about 12 years of married life in the prime of youth. She has 3 children. In the girl's horoscope given by Mr. Ramaswami, Mars is exalted. Doshasamya has to be carefully calculated.

*Lagna—Virgo; Rahu, Venus and Jupiter—Aquarius; Sun, Mars and Mercury—Pisces; Saturn—Taurus; Kethu—Leo.

Bombay. K. VISWANATHAN, B.Sc.

Putra Viheena Yoga

Sir,—With reference to the letter on "Putra Viheena Yogas" published in the July 1958 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, a mere glance at the chart in question is sufficient to indicate that the native has got a dosha, namely, Sarpasapa, to his lot, due to the presence of Rahu in the sign of Mars identical with the 5th house (vide Yoga No. 212, Three Hundred Important Combinations, Part II, by B. V. Raman). Not only that but the elements governing the house of issues, being heavily afflicted, is another significant feature worthy of note. Mark the 5th house being occupied by neecha Saturn and Rahu. The 5th lord Mars also happens to be the lord of the 12th house (Durittham). As such, he occupies the Durithasthana—his own sign—and subjected to Papakarthari Yoga (also Subha Karthari Yoga). Putrakaraka Jupiter, no doubt, aspects the house of children, but is combined with Kethu and afflicted further by the cruel aspects of Saturn and Rahu. Besides being Putrakaraka, Jupiter is the lord of Lagna and 4th house (Sukham). It will be very significant to note that Jupiter as such occupies a dwirdwadasa (2nd and 12th) position with respect to the lord of issues.

When viewed from the Moon, the 5th house Thula is occupied by its own Karaka. It is held to be quite inauspicious for a Karaka to occupy a house for which he stands as a Karaka. Again, the 5th house is afflicted by the occupation of Kethu, and by Saturn and Rahu as well. Likewise the 5th lord Mars from Lagna, the 5th lord Venus from the Moon also happens to own the 12th house (Durittham) and is combined with his bitter enemy, the Sun, in the 7th house. It may be noted that Putrarudha falling in Gemini is occupied by the 8th lord Moon and subjected to evil aspects of dire malefics like Saturn and Mars, and by the afflicted Jupiter as well. The 5th house (Kumbha) from Jupiter is aspected by Kuja while its lord Saturn is debilitated and combined with Rahu.

Since the 2nd house indicates family development and the 7th house the source thereof, the importance of these two houses cannot be lightly brushed aside. Though the 2nd house is aspected by its own lord, but it is an aspect of a neecha and afflicted lord of that house. From the Moon, the 2nd house is squared by Saturn, while its lord, the Moon is subjected to the malefic aspects of Saturn and Kuja. Jupiter is also the Karaka for the 2nd house, but he is afflicted as stated above. Though the 7th house is aspected by its lord as well as Karaka, it will be seen that it is occupied by the 8th lord, and further afflicted by the malefic aspects of Saturn and Mars. Moreover, the 7th lord and the Kalatrakaraka are combined with the Sun.

Now, if we take the 5th house as the native's past life, the Sun happens to be the lord of issues. As such, he is combined with his bitter enemy Venus as well as Mercury, who happen to be the lords of the 7th houses in past life and present life respectively. Likewise the dwirdwadasa positions between the lord of issues and the lord of Lagna in the birth chart, the same positions of planets in the native's previous life also draw our attention. What is still more a significant feature in the chart is that Jupiter, who happens to be the lord of the 12th house (Durittham) in previous life of the native, is now acting as Putrakaraka as well as the Karaka for the 2nd house in the native's present life and as such aspects the Putrasantana. Saturn, the lord of karma or actions in past life, is debilitated in the house of issues, and in direct opposition to Jupiter, the lord of 9th house (religion) and 12th (evil deeds) in previous life of the native.

Phaladeepika, one of the standard authorities on the subject of astrology, states (Adh. XII, Sl. 6) that the following yogas lead to family extinction, viz., the 12th, the 8th, the 5th and the 1st houses being occupied by malefics: Venus and Mercury in the 7th, Jupiter in the 5th and malefics in the 4th houses, etc. It is true that the above two yogas do not apply in toto to the nativity in question. However, it will be very significant to note that there are malefics in the 5th, the 12th and the 1st houses with reference to the former yoga, while if judged from the Moon, Venus and Mercury are in the 7th and Jupiter in the 5th in so far as the latter yoga is concerned.

Under the circumstances, it appears that the poor native will not be able to derive happiness of children. He should perform proper shanthis to ward off the doshas.

Nadiad. M. D. TRIVEDI.

Scanned and Archived at www.parisheelastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Raman's Work

ASTROLOGY FOR BEGINNERS

By B. V. RAMAN

TENTH EDITION

Are you prepared to demand the hidden facts of Astrological Science? Read this book and learn Astrology withouf effort. This is unquestionably the best for beginners. This is the first real effort to teach you Astrology in a simple manner free from all technicalities.

Why should you believe in Astrology; Basis of Astrology Fundamentals explained; Casting the Horoscope; Hints on Judgment; Longevity and Death; Predicting Personal Appearance, Character, Health and Disease; Educational and Financial Prospects; Means of Livelihood, Parents, Brothers, Enemies and Debts; Marriage and Children; Timing Events; Answering Questions; Predicting Transit Results, etc., etc.

"This little book is designed to give free from technic ities, at clear and concise exposition of the essential facts of Indian Astro logy, and achieves its object in an admirable fashion. The presens work does not, of course, exhaust what is known on the subject, but it is accurate and reliable as far as it goes, and is bound to prove oa considerable assistance to those who contemplate an initial study of Astrology". —Times of Ceylon.

Price Rs. 2.25 or Sh. 4/6. Postage extra.

Raman Publications

"Sri Rajeswari" : : BANGALORE–3.

BY DR. R. NAGARAJA SARMA, M.A., Ph.D., D.LITT.

1. OCCULT PHENOMENA IN THE LIGHT OF THEOLOGY—By Abbot Wiesinger, O.C.R.—(Burns and Oates, London. Pp. 294. Price 25 s. net.)

Occult Phenomena constitute a permanent and persistent problem which remains even today challenging and disquieting, notwithstanding the advancement effected in the different sciences commencing from the Copernican Revolution and culminating with the launching of Sputniks. The author's purpose has been quite a correct and legitimate one. He has been anxious to find and give solid and substantial support to the Occult derived from theological conclusions.

Two such conclusions have been given as foundational and fundamental. The first is that if man fell, even after the fall, he must have latent in him divine qualities, features and endowments which he must have had in full prior to the fall. The second is that when the soul or spirit, is freed from the limitations of bodily encasement, it is able to achieve certain extraordinary things which seems to be occult, supernatural and so forth.

Part I of the volume running to seven chapters, traces from the dawn of creation the relation between Body and Soul, and examines and interprets the phenomenon of fall. In the course of Part II, running to six chapters, the author's Theory is expounded in detail and Occult Phenomena are sought to be explained, on the basis of that theory.

Natural sleep, Pathological sleep, and Artificial sleep, and their conditions have been examined as illustrative and exemplificatory of the state in which the soul is able to get and enjoy freedom from bodily bondage. Such freedom will explain all occult phenomena ranging between ghosts, devils, haunting, black-magic, witchcraft, etc. and other forms of higher mysticism.

Attention may be drawn to the author's treatment of Diabolical Possession (Pp. 243–255) and in this country, one should be familiar with many instances of diabolical possessions and professional exorcists. Not merely this. Evil-minded persons practise black-magic and let loose evil spirits on their enemies who often suffer from mysterious neuro-muscular troubles. In Malabar and other places, there are professional exorcists who drive these evil spirits by means of tantric rituals and incantations.

It is obviously not possible to accept or endorse all the author says about yoga, astrology and other occult phenomena of India. The volume contains an important glossary of technical terms, but, there is an inaccuracy. Horoscope is not prediction. Students of religion and theology, the odd and occult will find the volume highly instructive and stimulating.

2. MAHATMA GANDHI–THE LAST PHASE –Vol. 11–By Pyarelal—(Navajivan Publishing House, Ahmedabad. Pp. 887. Price Rs. 20 or Sh. 30 or Dollars 5.)

If one were to judge from the opinions of distinguished persons recorded in favour of this volume written by Pyarelal, Gandhi's secretary and close associate, it must be admitted that the work has been universally welcomed. It stands divided into five parts entitled respectively, Parting of the Ways, the Battle of Partition, Left alone, the Titan at Work, and the Journey's End, Appendices A and B, Notes, Glossary, and an exhaustive alphabetical Index make the work take its proper place amongst carefully edited and attractively printed publications.

A person not having his mind poisoned by political considerations and predilections, going through these pages, will have compulsorily to conjure up before him dreadfully disturbing pictures and visions of the partition or dichotomization of this great country into two, and all that followed in its wake, and he will address himself many questions to which, he would never get satisfactory or convincing answers—such as—has the division of India been a blessing or a curse? Are the people happy? Has Hindu-Muslim concord been restored, and so forth.

I direct attention of readers to the happenings of 30th January 1948 which are recorded with thrilling details and precise particulars, on Pp. 765 and sequel. In the concluding chapter entitled "Epilogue", the author has discussed two important questions: What message has Gandhiji for the present day world?

Going through the pages of this mind-stirring volume, it is impossible not to entertain certain reflections. In the days of Queen Victoria, the whole of India lying between the Himalayas and Cape Comorin was under a single Ruler. India became independent. The unity of the Victorian period has disappeared, peradventure, never to return. In this volume, reference has been made to Sir C. P. Ramaswamy Iyer, who was then Dewan of Travancore who soon after cessation of paramountcy of the ruling British power, proclaimed the independence of Travancore. The Nizam, it is observed followed suit. (Pp. 340). He who runs may read how rapidly conditions have changed, and today, the Pakistan brought into existence in the days of the Mahatma, has emerged into a new existence.

Gandhi had throughout his career advocated two articles of faith—one was non-violence, the other was happiness and prosperity for the poor millions of the country. It is generally not to be hoped for that the message of non-violence, whether proclaimed by Gandhi or by the Pope and others would be found acceptable to foreign powers like France, Britain, Russia and America. If the western powers did not care to follow the ideal of showing the other cheek when one is slapped, preached by the apostle of non-violence Jesus, it is not reasonable to expect that they will now feel fascinated by the doctrine of Gandhi.

In India itself, the recent labour disturbances, use of tear gases, lathi-charges and occasional opening of fire, here and there, would demonstrate that it is surely not non-violence of the Gandhian pattern that is the guiding factor of administrative policy of Independent India. Though a great deal of din and noise prevails about village-reconstruction schemes, plans and programs, a visit to any of these villages must convince that simple, poor villagers are by no means living in miniature models of earthly paradise brought into existence by followers of Gandhi (avowedly or confessedly) who are ruling Independent India.

How would Gandhi meet the atom bomb with non-violence?—was a question which an American correspondent addressed him just a few hours before his assassination. Gandhi answered that he would come out into the open without a trace of ill-will against pilot, and so on. It is obvious that such attitudes and reactions cannot be universalized. For, in the day-to-day administration, followers of Gandhi who are present rulers have not maintained the policy of their Master.

Be that as it may. In all departments of life, food-stuffs, essential commodities, posts, railways, court-fees, house-building materials, and so forth, there has occurred an enormous rise in prices, which has adversely affected the poor villagers, whose welfare was the main concern of Gandhi.

Gandhi's confesstion of philosophical faith is recorded on Pp. 792. It is observed that Gandhi believed in Advaita. He said that he could not be happy when the humblest are not. Whether today, the humblest are being made happy, or whether the followers of Gandhi are flying round the globe as ambassadors, etc., staying and making merry in fashionable hotels, etc., it is for the tax-payers to decide.

Winning or gaining of freedom from foreign rule is one thing, but, utilization of the said freedom for the good of the masses is totally a different one. This truth is strikingly illustrated in post-Gandhian period.

When all is said and done, this authoritative account by Pyarelal will be welcomed by all students of Indian history and politics.

3. FOOTPRINTS OF GAUTAMA THE BUDDHA—The story of his Life and Teaching.—By Miss Marie Beuzeville Byles—(Rider & Co., London. Pp. 227. Price 16 s. net).

In the course of a very complimentary and commendatory "Foreword" contributed by Sir Lalita Rajapakse, Q.C., Ceylon's Minister of Justice from 1947 to 1953, it is pointed out that Miss Byles, born in England had made Australia her home, and pursued her career as solicitor of the Supreme Court of New South Wales. Here is a brilliant volume in which the teachings and doctrines of Buddha are portayed as seen through the eyes of a pious and devoted Christian Lady. She has sketched the life and teachings of the Master as narrated by Yasa, the sixth disciple of the Master. He had not met the Master before obtainment of Enlightenment.

Yasa tells the story of the ministerial life of the Master and gives an account of the teachings of the Master imparted in concrete settings to men and women endeavouring to solve some of the persistent problems of life and existence, sin and suffering. Miss Byles has taken care to point out that she is a disciple of Buddha and what she has written would be acceptable to orthodox Buddhists.

As an active member of the legal profession, she had scrutinized and carefully sifted the facts and data collected and indicated her conclusions. Miss Byles has very rightly explained that Buddhistic terminology is not to be confused or identified with Buddhistic Doctrine. Buddha tacitly accepted the Cosmology prevalent in his time. That Cosmology may not be acceptable to modern scientific minds. That would not matter at all. The Buddhistic doctrine of Four Noble Truths and the Eightfold Noble Paths would constitute the common heritage or property of the entire mankind without reference to geographical and other differences. Mankind may soon be sojourning to the Moon, Mars and Venus, but, it is certainly none any nearer solution of the problem of evil and suffering.

Life is inseparably intertwined with suffering. The Buddha showed the way to obtain freedom from suffering. Whosoever feels that life is dominated by suffering, and desires freedom from it, can walk the Path of Buddha, be he Christian or Moslem, or Parsi, and so forth. Miss Byles is strongly convinced that moral and philosophical problems stand exactly where they stood at dawn of creation. Modern Sciences have not solved these problems. Where the sciences have failed, Buddhistic doctrine may succeed. Miss Byles says it is the way that matters most—the way which leads to termination of suffering, here and hereafter.

As the Bhagavad Gita so aptly has it, one in a million, perhaps, would feel any attraction for the way. Students of higher thought would feel grateful to Miss Byles for her inspiring research-work on Buddhism.

4. THE JEWEL IN THE LOTUS—Recollections of an Indian Political —By B. J. Gould—(Chatto and Windus, London. Pp. 252. Price 25 s. net).

The title of the book is a bit misleading. It purports to be a rendering into English of the well-known sacred incantation—Om Mani-Padme-Hum familiar in Buddhistic and other Tantric circles. It is quite understandable that the title has been chosen as a tribute to Tibet and its characteristic civilization. B. J. Gould was a member of the old Indian Civil Service of the British Government, and his vastly diverse experiences, have been narrated in this volume, under the comprehensive and perfectly intelligible sub-title "Recollections of an Indian Political". The author entered the Indian Civil Service in 1907. The present narration commences with the celebrated and colourful Delhi Durbar of 1911, and ends with the Installation of the fourteenth Dalai Lama in 1940. North-West Frontier Province, Baluchistan, Afghanistan, Persia, North-East Frontier and Tibet were the scene of his activities in the narration of which the author has taken more than auto-biographical interest.

Sir Ernest Barker has contributed an appreciative "Foreword" in which the versatility of the author is rightly commended. The author concludes his "recollections" by making a reference to the future of the political evolution of Tibet and the Dalai Lamas. The author records that in 1950, the Communist Government of China invaded Tibet. The Dalai Lama fled to the Chumbi Valley, and subsequently, he returned to Lhasa.

The thirteenth Dalai Lama had drawn up something like a political testament, before his demise, it said. The Government of India is near to us and it has a large army. Likewise, the Government of China, has also a large army. Tibet should maintain firm friendship with these two. Both are powerful. The author concludes the volume striking a note of uncertainty about the future of the political development of Tibet and of the Dalai Lamas.

The old Indian Civil Service was not generally looked upon with favour as the members were alleged to keep themselves aloof from the Indian masses. Hilton Brown is an exception and his sympathies with India and her political evolution are well-known. His contributions appear in some of the daily newspapers of India. B. J. Gould, likwise, appears to have been supremely sympathetic to aspirations of India and Tibet.

The volume is a striking illustration of the fact that official routine is transformed into thrilling experiences by non-official cultural ties and interests. Students of Indian history and politics would readily welcome this volume of absorbing personal and anecdotal interest.

5. HEAD FIRST FOR HEALTH—By Calvin Cottam—(House Warven, Hollywood-27, California. Pp. 122. Price 3 Dollars).

Described as based on 30 years of discoveries and developments by Dr. Nephi Cottam, the present volume contains an exposition of a new technique of cure of many strange and mysterious maladies which would not yield to ordinary medical treatment as given by physicians.

Digitized by www.sapanbooks.com Archives and Rare Work

The new cure technique is known as Craniopathy. These mysterious diseases or maladies are due to high and abnormal pressure exercised on the brain which then becomes too tight. There are sutures like seams where the bones join together to form the head. If the cells are made to expand and have more ease, the pressure on the brain would be reduced. Tightness will disappear, and with tightness, the mysterious maladies likewise will disappear.

By means of executing the necessary movements, in the shape of massage, etc., at back and front of head, the tightness can be removed. Several important cases which have been cured by the new technique have been listed in the volume. The book has been fashioned in the form of a dialogue or discussion between two persons. One is ZUM, who sticks to old and conservative methods in life. The other is ZY, who delights in new and has an exploratory bent of mind.

The volume contains a number of illustrations of the brain and the skull and the important centres. Patients suffering from strange and mysterious maladies just want cure. They do not mind if the cure is effected or brought about by means of an old method or by means of a new technique. The title of the volume is highly significant. For perfect health, it is the head that requires attention first. The Hindu mind will find a ready and sympathetic response to the new technique of cure.

The head is described as Uttamanga, i.e., the most important part of the body or nervous system. The Ayurvedic systems has in use many oils, application of which to the head is believed to cure many troubles. The yoga system has rightly emphasized the posture (Aasana) known as the Sirsha-Aasana practising of which is sure to cure many physical and mental abnormalies and ailments.

The volume contains an account of many cures effected by the application of the new technique. Such discoveries are beyond controversies. If the new technique is practically used and success obtained, it stands universally justified and vindicated. But, here, as everywhere else, all that glitters is not gold. Genuine experts should be carefully discriminated from quacks.

6. YOGA FOR PERFECT HEALTH—By Alain—(Thorsons Publishers Ltd., 91, St. Martin's Lane, London. Pp. 156. Price 12 sh. 6d. net).

It is a truism that perfect health is wanted by everybody. Health is wealth. There must be a sound mind in a sound body. Mens sana in corpore sano. It is, however, very difficult, if not altogether impossible to prescribe a medical or psychological, or any other recipie that would guarantee perfect health throughout life. From time immemorial elixirs have been promised and distributed, but, to no purpose. Voronoff's monkey-glad-grafting and other operations have been of no avail.

In India, the system of psycho-physical discipline, known as yoga, has been in existence for thousands of years together, and it is hopeful and encouraging to note that foreigners are taking in the yogic exercises. The author, during convalescence was annoyed to note the slow progress. So, he took to the practising of yoga, and his convalescence was accelerated.

The author's practical knowledge of postures and breathing exercises is embodied in the volume. On the title page is printed a dictum of Swami Sivananda to the effect that "Hatha yoga insures beauty, health, strength, and long life".

There are 16 photographic representations of the well-known postures advocated by yogic methodology. The author is to be gratefully complimented for his courage and conviction in the efficacy of yoga system, and in having given expression to these. Still, even the most sympathetic foreigner has some difficulties in correctly understanding the significance of Sanskrit terms.

Thus, in the classification of yoga, there has occurred a confusion between two fundamentals. The division of yoga should be into Hatha yoga, Laya yoga, Mantra yoga and Raja-yoga. Or, the division should be into Jnyana yoga, Bhakti yoga and Karma yoga. Confusion between the two is unwarranted.

Rama is not the incarnation of Siva. The view of Valmiki as embodied in the text is that He is incarnation of Vishnu. Kumbhaka is translated into inhalation. (Pp. 155). This is incorrect. It is suspension of breathing. Pooraka is inhalation. There are some other minor inaccuracies which, I trust, will be eliminated from a subsequent edition.

The author has very rightly pointed out prolongation of life cannot be had for mere asking. Important and highly taxing conditions have to be fulfilled. Whether death is or is not conquered by yoga, there is no doubt that good health can be maintained. That has been his personal experience. A valuable service has been rendered by the author in vindication of yoga methodology.

7. THE FLUTE OF KRISHNA—By P. A. Krishnaswamy, M.A.—(S. P. League Ltd., Calcutta. Pp. 103. Price Rs. 3.)

Lord Sri Krishna who, while in incarnation on earth, in flesh and blood, hypnotized and enchanted the girls and damsels of Vrindavan, through the instrumentality of divine musical notes flowing from His Flute, has for his inseparable companions the musical instrument and a Divine rod by means of which He kept the cattle tended by Him under control.

What is the origin of the Flute? What is the origin of the Rod? Mr. P. A. Krishnaswamy describes the origin of both. His description has been fashioned or patterned as a Drama. Here is the argument. A young man of a lower class leaves home and gets the highest wisdom and education from certain sages. This young man is named Vidyaratna. He attracts the notice of the father of Murali, a lovely girl. They are married. Differences in social status are ignored.

The marriage is not a mere physical union. They develop to be mystic personalities. They are both God-intoxicated, in a sense. They strive for God-realization. God can be realized only through service to His Creatures, and accordingly, Vidyaratna and Murali dedicate themselves to service of the poor and the depressed, the dejected and downtrodden. Murali contracts a fever and dies. Vidyaratna too dies of the same malady. Over the grave of Murali, hollow bamboo grows. Over that of Vidyaratna, hard bamboo stands.

Out of one of the hollow bamboos growing over Murali's grave, Krishna made His Flute. Out of a hard bamboo towering over Vidyaratna's grave, the Lord made a rod, or stick which is His vade mecum.

The above plot has been expanded and developed by Mr. Krishnaswamy into a fascinating Drama of Five Acts. Dialogues, characterization, development, denouement, blend of social, religious moral and didactic sentiments, stand superbly harmonized by the author into a play.

Swami Sivananda, Dr. Pattabhisitaramayya, and Dewan Bahadur K. S. Ramaswamy Sastry have written appreciative Forewords. Valuable notes have been added. The great doctrine of the Gita is that the Lord uses men and women as His chosen instruments for the onward march and progress of cosmic scheme. So, have Murali and Vidyaratna been chosen as His instruments. This is typical Divine Grace without which salvation cannot be obtained. I hope Mr. Krishnaswamy's dramatic genius will find expression in many more such interesting plays as the Flute of Krishna, which is perfectly stage-worthy instructive and appealing to intellect and imagination.

Scanned & Digitized by eGangotri Archive by Sri Pothira Web

8. SRI KALIDASA KERALI—English Translation by Pandit Viswanadham—(Kasimkote-Visakha Dt., Andhra Pradesh. Pp. 12. Price Re. 1.)

The author of the translation into English of the original text in Sanskrit which is attributed to the authorship of Kalidasa, points out, in his "Preface" that the Sanskrit text is being published for the first time. It would seem that Kalidasa in his verses has first addressed a lady describing her charms in glowing terms, and then, described the effects of the different bhavas. The author has omitted the portion relating to glorification of the attractions of the lady. So, out of the 65 stanzas, computed as the maximum, only 45 are given. The text is printed in Telugu characters and each stanza has been rendered into English.

The title of the work suggests that the Kerala country must have been familiar with it, and, this is understandable, as Sankara was born in Kerala and visited the land of his birth after he had become world-famous, and some have attributed, the work to Sankara himself.

But, I do not see the exact relation between Kalidasa and Kerala. Whoever composed the work, be it Kalidasa or Sankara, it is a small and handy publication that would be useful to astrologers—students and practitioners. There are several typographical errors, which must be removed in the next edition. Pandit Viswanadham has brought out a new and useful work on predictive astrology.

9. BHASA—By A. S. P. Ayyar, M.A., I.C.S.—(V. Ramaswamy Sastrulu and Sons, 292, Netaji Subhas Chandra Bose Road, Madras-1. Pp. 592. Price Rs. 5 or 7 sh. 6 d.)

The present volume appearing in the series known as "Indian Men of Letters", deals with Bhasa, a pre-Kalidasa dramatist of great distinction and literary output. It is a revised and enlarged edition.

Rediscovery of Bhasa is the subject-matter of Part I. Part II contains an account of the 13 plays of Bhasa. The greatness of the dramatist is brought out in Part III. Part IV stands devoted to an exposition of the characteristic features of the personality of Bhasa, and of his ideas and ideals.

Readers will remember the amusing discussion pursued in Britain regarding the authorship of the plays attributed to Shakespeare, and the belief is not yet completely dead that Shakespeare did not write the plays, but, somebody else did. In Indian literary criticism, the issue is not as bad as that. It is not sought to be denied that even the great Kalidasa himself has made reference to his predecessor Bhasa. But, there is no doubt that Kalidasa merely damned Bhasa with faint praise. In a single act of sweeping condemnation, Kalidasa easily dismissed all the old dramatists and their plays. Kalidasa has sarcastically commented that old things are not always the best, just because, they are old.

Kalidasa's reference to Bhasa contains the subtle and subterranean insinuation against old Bhasa, and an invitation to the public to patronise his own plays categorized as new. The characteristics of Bhasa's dramatic art, conditions of stage and acting in those days, contemporary social, literary, and political factors, and connected issues are all fairly elaborately treated by Mr. Ayyar, so that readers may form in their minds, a correct picture of the world of Bhasa.

Mr. Ayyar has doubtless drawn certain lines of comparison and contrast, between Bhasa and Kalidasa, but, the comparative study, is as such inadequate, as it is confined just to theology and concept of kingship. The contrast and comparison should have been worked out and developed on the lines of canons relating to dramaturgy.

It is unfortunate that errors have crept in, in the "contents", and in main body of the work. Thus, in "contents", Pratima-nataka is numbered as X, but, in the main body of the book its number is IX. Pagination alse is erroneous.

It is permissible to hope that Free Bharat's Playwrights may be able to produce works like those of Bhasa and Kalidasa.

10. ASTROLOGY AND YOU—By Carroll Righter—(W. H. Allen, London. Pp. 173. Price 12 sh. 6 d.)

The author is described on the title page as "The World's greatest Astrologician". After detailing the historical background of astrology, in Part I, the author has explained the significance of the twelve signs in Part II. Part III stands devoted to an account of planets. The importance of 12 houses is emphasized in the fourth. The fifth deals with vocations. The sixth refers to the Aquarian age.

The stars are said to impel, but, not compel. The dictionary meaning of the term impel is to move forward. Compel means to drive, to force. If the stars are admitted to impel just, that must be as good or as bad as compelling.

The features associated with signs and planets do not seem to be universal. For instance, it is observed that many Geminis are actors and actresses. There are, on the other hand, several Geminis who have nothing to do with acting.

So, neither in Oriental, nor even in Occidental astrology has it been possible to arrive at Universally Valid Laws. The existing laws are highly probable empirical generalizations. The chapter on vocations tells the same tale. One simply cannot have a general law that all Geminis are actors, but, we have a Universal Law that all material bodies gravitate. That is the difference between astrology and other sciences.

After two thousand years of Piscean age, the Aquarian age commenced in 1904. This is an age of tremendous scientific advancement (Sputniks, etc.) The world will be watching with keen interest and expectancy what the age has in store for mankind..... Never mind whether it is impelled or compelled. I feel impelled to admit that the author has written quite an attractive volume on Astrology and You.

MENTOR AND SIGNET BOOKS

11. THE CREATION OF THE UNIVERSE—By George Gamow—(Mentor).—Pp. 144. Price 50c.

12. MODERN MUSIC—By J. T. Howard and James Lyons—(Mentor).—Pp. 160. Price 50c.

13. THE FBI IN ACTION—By Ken Jones—(Signet).—Pp. 161. Price 35c.

14. THE HUMAN BODY—By Elbert Tokay—(Signet).—Pp. 248. Price 50c.

15. NEW WORLD WRITING—No.12—(Mentor).—Pp. 288. Price 50c.

16. ROGET'S COLLEGE THESAURUS—Ed.-National Lexicographic Board—(Signet).—Pp. 416. Price 50c.

17. EIGHT GREAT COMEDIES—Ed.-S. Barnet, M. Berman and W. Burto—(Mentor).—Pp. 472. Price 50c.

(All published by the New American Library, New York-22, N.Y.)

Whether one takes the theistic, Biblical view of the Creation of the Universe, or the strictly scientific one (methodologically atheistic—like the Cartesian Doubt) there is no doubt humble students will feel a sense of deep mystery when they contemplate the Creation of the Universe with galaxies, stars, planets, oceans, mountains, and so on, and in this volume, the author gives an arresting and thrilling account of Creation of the Universe in the light of facts revealed and verified by sciences and scientific observation. Whosoever made the atoms, the time taken was less than a hour. To make the stars and planets, it took a few hundred million years, but, to make mankind, it has been a duration of 3-billion years. (Pp. 136). Such a time-interval must seem absolutely staggering to those who are contemplating a trip to Moon and Mars.

Modern Music is described as a popular guide to greater musical enjoyment. The authors have explained the differences between polytonality and atonality, and explained also easy and simple ways of enjoying modern music. If music of any given age is to be enjoyed, one must know the differences in style adopted from one age in another, and also differences in technique employed. This perception of differences in style and the technique will apply to Oriental Music as well. In Indian Music, one would see that from the pure classical music to the present music democratized by the Radio, there is indeed a far, far cry. It is most likely that such a state of affairs prevails in Occidental Music as well.

With advancement in civilization, crime also advances. If new laws are passed to prevent or punish crime, the professional criminal exercises his creative imagination and endeavours to circumvent the law. The Federal Bureau of Investigation of America has successfully hunted down notorious public enemies, and in FBI in Action the author has narrated 22 thrilling crime stories constructed on the basis of data found in the actual files of the FBI. Justice must overtake the criminal through the due process of the Laws, and when the law has been violated, or broken, the malefactors, should be brought to justice. If not, the Majesty of Law will never be vindicated. These principles will be universally welcomed. I would like to draw particular attention to the case "My Wife is Missing", in which one kills his wife and reports to the Police she is missing. Eventually, the FBI brings the criminal to book. I hope the volume will be read by the Police staff of every modern civilized country. The stories appear remarkably similar to the adventures of Sherlock Holmes. On page 68, one would find a high compliment and sincere tribute paid to the FBI.

In this revised and expanded edition of The Hindu Body, Dr. Tokay describes in detail the structure and functioning of the Human Body. Even amongst the educated, many do not know the anatomical and physiological facts concerning their own nervous systems, and this volume which contains 44 illustrations and 24 pages of Anatomical Atlas, will enable laymen and even experts to understand something about the nature of the Human Body. What are hormones and how do they act? How is food digested? How do exercises affect body? These and connected questions are answered by the author in a fairly simple and easily understandable manner. It is hoped that knowledge of the different functions of the body will enable people to lead happy and healthy lives.

Vol. No. 12 of the New World Writing contains something of the best of what is to be found in the different literatures of the world, in reference to fiction, literary criticism, drama and poetry from the works of authors well-known and recognised as such. "Homecoming" by Balachandra Rajan will be of interest to Indians. It constitutes the first chapter of the author's first novel which is to be published by Simon and Schuster. W. Brockway's comments and reflections on the nobel literary prize are cruelly candid and devastatingly straightforward. It seems that someone jokingly remarked that Alfred Nobel "was the richest vagabond of Europe". (Pp. 274). How Tagore was chosen for the award is related on page 287.

This college Thesaurus in Dictionary Form is described as "newly written, newly edited, and newly published", and it is intended for use in home, in school, in college, and in office. Synonyms and antonyms are given arranged in alphabetical order and new words and phrases, and certain new synonyms have also been added, it is observed. Some important foreign pharses are given together with renderings into English. The volume includes colloquial and even slang terms. Of course, English is scheduled to disappear from the shores of India, by a specified period, but, so long as it lasts and continues in the hospitable land of Bharat, the great and universal language should be correctly understood and properly used, and that end is served by the present volume.

Eight Great Comedies of the world staged from the earliest times down to the present day have been assembled in this volume. Part I contains the texts of these comedies and Part II contains critical essays which are descriptive and evaluative. The comedies are—Clouds (Aristophanes), Mandragola (Niccolo Machievalli), Twelfth Night (Shakespeare), The Miser (Moliere), The Beggar's Opera (John Gay), The Importance of being Earnest (Oscar Wilde), Uncle Vanya (Anton Chekhov), Arms and the Man (Shaw). Laughter is indispensable for happy and healthy life. I am sure study of these world's great comedies would enable persons to indulge in innocent laughter for some time and get the best out of life. Both in respect of quality and quantity, the output of the New American Library is remarkable and highly commendable.

SANSKRIT

18. SRIMAN NARAYANEEYAM OF NARAYANA BHATTA—with commentary in Sanskrit by K. Krishna Wariyar, copies from K. V. Achyuta Wariyar—(M. R. Vaidyasala, Cranganore, Kerala State. Pp. 790. Price Rs. 10-8.)

Just as the Ramayana and Mahabharata have kindled the creative inspiration of many a poetic artist or genius into production of new literary works, Bhagavatha also has been responsible for emergizing of creative imagination. The Narayaneeyam of Narayana Bhattapada is too well-known to need any special introduction. It is universally admired and read with religious zeal and devotion, particularly in Malabar, or, the modern Kerala State.

There is an illuminating "Introduction" (Avatarika) in Sanskrit written by Pandita Raja K. Achyutappoduval, in the course of which, details are mentioned about the author and the circumstances that led to the composition of this great and celebrated work. Darsanakalanidhi Ramavarma Pareekshit, ruler of Cochin, has recorded a commendatory testimonial in favour of the work and the commentary.

The entire work has been counted to run to 1036 stanzas. The stanzas stand arranged into decades or decalogues, each containing ten. There is a century of such decade-units. The whole of the Bhagavatha has been retold in the form of verses by the talented author. Tradition has it that the Guru of the author was suffering from a severe malady. As prescribed in ancient texts, this malady was given or transferred to the devoted disciple. The disciple, then, prayed to the Lord at Guruvayoor and freed himself from the said malady. His penance consisted in composing daily ten stanzas and offering them as prayer to the Lord.

It is noteworthy that the commentary follows the orthodox traditional lines and throws a flood of illumination on the hidden and obscure meanings, implications and veiled suggestions contained in the original text. Quoting the authority of the great Adi-Sankara himself, the author expounds the theological doctrine of the absolute supremacy of Lord Vishnu, who is identified with Brahman of the Vedanta-sutras.

The present publication is bound to enrich the contemporary stock of devotional literature in Sanskrit, and it will be particularly welcomed in Kerala associated with the author and the Deity glorified.

19. Srimad Valmiki Ramayana—(Text only Devanagari)—Published by Mr. Ramaratnam—(The Madras Law Journal Press, Mylapore, Madras-4. Pp. 1096. Price Rs. 12.)

In the course of a Note by the publisher, Mr. Ramaratnam, M.A., B.L., it is explained that after a lapse of about 25 years, this second edition of the text of the Valmiki Ramayana has now been printed, the first edition having gone out of print, roundabout five years ago. Mahamahopadhyaya Pandit Chinnaswamy Sastry and Pandit Subrahmanya Sastry (Vedanta-visarada, etc.) have carefully prepared the edition for print.

The volume contains the orthodox account of commencing and completing the devotional reading of the Epic (Parayana) as practised by followers of Sankara, Ramanuja and Madhva. The contents of each chapter (Sarga) have been indicated for all the chapters of all the Kandas. Then, the text of the work is given in attractive Devanagari types, and variae lectionae have been given in footnotes on each page.

The "Foreword" to the first edition contributed by Prof. S. Kuppuswamy Sastry has been reproduced, and it has a permanent interest, as having proceeded from a first-rate veteran savant in whom the best elements of Oriental and Occidental culture had harmoniously existed in striking personality blend.

It should not be out of place to mention that perhaps, the best South Indian editions of Ramayana one in Text only and the other with the commentary of Govindaraja and extracts from several other commentaries, were given to the public by Pandit T. R. Krishnacharya, proprietor, of the Madhva Vilasa Book Depot, in Kumbakonam decades ago. Since then, several editions, have appeared, of which the M.L.J. Press edition is easily the best.

The assessment of the spiritual and philosophical significance of the personality of Sri Rama, arrived at by Prof. Kuppuswamy Sastry, is highly scholarly illuminating and unexceptionable. In certain compelling and pressing emergencies, the Almighty Lord has to take incarnation on Earth as Man, and restore equilibrium or balance between virtue and vice. While moving and behaving as Man, such an incarnation reveals glimpses of Divine as well.

Prof. Kuppuswamy Sastry has rightly emphasized the fact that the great Epic of Ramayana would last as long as mountains and rivers last on this planet. Critics may come and critics may go like the German detractor, but, Ramayana goes on for ever as the world's most fascinating and greatest epic.

I have great pleasure in commending the M.L.J. Press edition of Ramayana to the attention and patronage of the public.

20. Sriman Narayana Vyasa Charitam—By Pandit Gopikrishna Sastry, Professor of Sanskrit, Madhav College, Ujjain.—(Pp. 23. Price not marked).

Pandit Narayana Vyasa was a distinguished and illustrious personality of Ujjain well-known for his wide and deep scholarship in Indian astronomy, astrology, and other branches of Sanskrit learning. He was born in Vikrama Samvat 1917 and passed away in 1992. His horoscope is given in the booklet under notice.

Pandit Gopikrishna Sastry, Vyakaranacharya, Kavyatirtha, etc., has written a brief biographical account of the late Pandit Vyasa, in Sanskrit verse and prose. A work written in a mixture of prose and verse is technically classified as a Champu. (Gadya-padyatmaka).

Pandit Gopinath has composed a miniature Champu, and he has easy and efficient control over the mechanism of Sanskrit composition. Mars in the 10th and assemblage of planets in the 4th, readily lend support to the subject-matter of the biography having been a powerful controversialist and a scholar of substantial equipments and achievements.

It is noted that Pandit Vyasa had been held in great esteem by late Lokamanya Tilak and others who had taken active part in the movement for reformation of Panchang. Sanskrit works are becoming rarer in these days, and the author has to be complimented on production of an interesting biography in a classical language.

TAMIL

21. South Indian Temple Inscriptions,—(Tennindiya Koyil Sasamangal—Vol. III, Part II, Government Oriental Manuscript Library, Madras-5. Pp. xxviii+ 251 + 386 + 1295 + 1610 + cxii. Price Rs. 5.)

The Second Part of the Third Vol. of Temple Inscriptions found in South Indian Temple edited by Mr. T. N. Subrahmanyam with critical introduction and notes is a scholarly and authoritative research work thoroughly documented, and produced with great care and critical judgment.

In the course of the "Preface", it is pointed out that the present volume contains 35 inscriptions traced anew, and the entire collection totals to 1299–which constitutes a fairly formidable number. There is a historical survey which covers the period commencing from that of Rajaraja–I, and ending with that of Kulottunga–III, and Ballala–II.

Then, appears historical survey in Tamil, after which, are given Texts of the inscriptions. There are four Appendices. Then occurs an exhaustive study of Tamil Palaeography. Epigraphical glossary, an Index in English and another is Tamil, make the publication fall in line with modern research publications.

The volume throws considerable light on the Saiva-Vaishnava controversies then prevailing, and in those days such debates, disputes, and differences were not in any manner sought to be solved by advocating a simple religio-theological equation between Siva and Vishnu as if these were mathematical entities. It is necessary to draw the attention of your readers to the scholarly note on the date of Ramanuja. (Pp. 147—160).

The king who persecuted Ramanuja has been identified to have been Kulottunga–III, though there are still some lingering doubts, as ancient Indian History and Archaeology have for their subject-matter only doubts, conjectures, and surmises, soap-bubbles and speculations. It is the Chola period, an image of Lord Govindaraja can be so unceremoniously thrown into the sea, in modern times, one may seek to find some justification or extenuation of the acts of some modern iconoclasts who go about advocating the breaking of the images of gods like Lord Vinayaka.

The inscriptions, here studied, suggest a striking contrast between the way in which ancient rulers were administering temples and temple funds, and the way in which modern congress government is dealing with them. It remains to be seen to what extent, and in what respects, publication of these inscriptions will throw new light on South Indian history or lead to reconstruction of it.

Meanwhile, Curator Mr. T. Chandrasekharan and Mr. T. N. Subrahmanyam should be regarded to have done valuable service is the cause of ancient Indian history and chronology.

FRENCH

22. BALANCE—By Andre Barbault—("Le Zodiaque" aux Editions du Seuil, Imprimarie, Georges Lang, Paris. Pp. 128. Price Fr. 250).

The present work on Balance or Libra, maintains the usual level of excellence as revealed by other volumes in the series previously noticed in these columns, relating to the other zodiacal signs. The period concerned lies between 23rd September and 22nd October. The astrological preliminaries associated with the signs and planets found in the predecessor volumes are also reproduced in this, which greatly facilitates ready reference. The nature and symbolism connected with Balance, the personality types and characteristics, the peculiarities and idiosyncracies of persons born under this zodiacal sign are described in an attractive manner with illuminating details and striking illustrations.

The significance of the relation between the other signs and Balance are described, and the main characteristics of the sign are sociability, harmony, sexual contacts and alliances. The most important section of the volume is the third, in which an account is given of different personalities born under this sign.

It may be assumed as a fairly general proposition that if Venus, the lord of Balance is favourably situated and aspected, it may be taken for granted that the persons considered will be lucky in life, with plenty of world's goods surrounding them throughout life. If, on the contrary, Venus be unfavourably situated, or aspected, or otherwise unfavourably disposed, the subject is sure to be confronted by ill-luck, frustration, particularly in matters of sex-relationship, lack of financial resources, and comforts of life.

The influences of Balance on men and women would seem to be different, and these are described on Pp. 60–63. Amongst the personalities mentioned dominated by Balance, are Henri IV, Louis XIII, Katherine Mansfield, Nietzsche, Virgile and others.

But, your readers will be particularly interested in the account of Gandhi found on Pp. 87. Gandhi has been a world-renowned and universally respected personality, and all his successes and failures (there were some few in his life) may be traced to the indications conveyed by Balance. I refer readers to Prof. B. V. Raman's study of the chart of Gandhi in Notable Horoscopes.

It is to be carefully noted that an unfavourable lord of Balance will indicate colossal moral depravity from which even some of the world's greatest are not exempt. The author has written an attractive and authoritative work for which the astrological world should feel deeply grateful.

PERIODICALS

23. DIVYA JYOTHI—Sanskrit Monthly—Vol. 2, No. 12, Sept. 1958—(Ananda Lodge, Jakhoo, Simla. Annual subscription (Inland) Price Rs. 6. Single copy 62 nP. (Foreign) Sh. 15.)

Journals and periodicals are very rare in Sanskrit, and it should be a great pleasure to record that the Sanskrit Monthly journal edited by and founded by Acharya Divakara Datta Sarma entitled Divya Jyothi, has completed two years of existence, and will be entering on the third year with the next number.

In the course of a well-thought-out and closely-reasoned, and finely-worded article, the learned and talented Editor, while, surveying retrospectively the work accomplished in two previous years, has pointed out in what lines, future programs should be planned, projected and executed.

The Editor, rightly, regrets, the number of journals can be counted on one's fingers, and absence of encouragement, absence of or lack of contributors, and inability of existing journals in Sanskrit to pay their correspondents and contributors are responsible for the present unhappy and unpromising condition of journalism in Sanskrit. If schools, colleges, Universities and other learned bodies, would make it compulsory to subscribe for copies and encourage existing journals, in Sanskrit language (divine and living, dynamic and delightful—not dead as some say) conditions may improve, is the hope expressed by the Editor, which, I daresay will find a sympathetic echo in the heart of every lover of Sanskrit.

The volume opens with some verses on the illusoriness of the Universe, (jagatah mithyattvam) by Pandit Radhakrishna Tiwary. Acharya Gajanana has contributed an interesting biographical study of the well-known scholar late Mahamahopadhyaya Raghupati Sastry. The prayer to the Almighty Lord composed by M. Pandeya Sastry, and the striking description of the rainy season by Somanath Sarma reveal poetry of birth. The relevant *Tamil verse is also given.

(Continued on page 151)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

(Continued from page 140)

I request your earnest readers if they have come across this yoga in their pursuit of the study of astrological books, to give more details of the yoga through the pages of your esteemed magazine.

Madras. V. VENKATARAMANA RAO, B.A., B.L.

ASTROLOGY AND THEOLOGY

(Continued from page 70)

Science, there are various other possibilities. I have already said that an object can be split up only with a thinner object. An axe can cut a wood, but for cutting a diamond we must have thinner, finer instruments. Material objects can be split up in various ways; but an atom can be split up only through a "cutter" that can penetrate through the parts of an atom. If the parts of an atom, like electrons, are material particles with spacial extension, then they by their very nature, must be capable of being cut into parts.

Scanned by Gangotri Digital Library Project in memory of Dr. K.V. Ramana's Work

---

* காரிதிசை வந்திடவே ஆரஞ்சோ ஞய்
கடுவாகும் வீரியத்தில் அமர்ந்து
நிற்க
மாரிடலாம் பொன்னவனும் நோக்
கத்தாலே
மரவாது சரதீப சக்தி யோகம்
கூரிநேன் தருது புக்தி வருமை
மிக்க
கூடுவதால் மனவருத்தம் வெருப்பா
மில்வம்
கோரிடலாம் அடுத்தடுத்து தர்க்கத்
தாலே
நிகழுமே பிரதேசம் செல்லலாகும்.

What is it that is finer than the parts of an electron which can penetrate through such parts and split up the electrons? Scientists say that there is no such cutter that they are able to think of. Can ancient Indian thought reveal such a "cutter"?

One may ask what purpose will be served by attempting an answer to such idle questions, since science is able to get on without the aid of a universal agent or of a universal law worked out by an infinite number of intelligences. Science deals with the material world, and such questions have no place in science. I have no difficulty about a suitable reply to such an objection ready at hand. Suppose Einstein could project his thoughts backwards through time and contact Newton and had suggested to the latter certain new methods of approach regarding the nature of time, space and matter; perhaps Newton would have advised Einstein to proceed along his own line of approach with a three dimensional space extending in straight lines, and make further progression in science instead of wasting his intellectual powers and his time over such idle positions. And if Einstein had surrendered, what would have been the position of scienee today? Similarly, if Democritus could have reappeared in the world and asked Rutherford not to think of splitting up the atom, but to work out scientific problems within the range of his own theories about atoms, and if Rutherford had accepted the advise of the Greek philosopher, what would have been the position of science today? Life and intelligence and certain hidden powers in man are not to be *ignored as unworthy of being introduced into the realm of science.

What is experienced as "sound" is, according to ancient Indian thought, a certain manifestation of a phenomenon in a finer medium that is subtler than anything thought of in the material world. Those waves are finer than the gama rays and may penetrate through forms of matter finer than the electrons of which electrons are the composits. Then there are gradations in this system of waves also, as there are gradations in the known waves of radiations. If scientists are hoping to get together the electrons and construct an atom, there are the further possibilities of man being able to collect together the finer parts of such electrons and construct electrons. An investigation into what is manifested as the phenomenon of sound may have very valuable consequences in science.

Scientists have accepted certain mysteries about the sound-waves and their relation to biology. Then there is the phenomenon known as the mind. Scientists are completely ignoring this very important subject-matter. Mind has lost its reality at present in the eyes of the scientists and has been reduced to a "behaviour". Let it be only a behaviour and let there be no substance called the mind. But the question stares us in the face what this "behaviour" is. Is it anything different from what behaves or is it that itself? A behaviour is the thing that behaves in a particular state or it is the effect of something outside on the thing which behaves in such a way. Either there is the personality in a particular state or a behaviour which is called the mind, or there is a thing called the mind which produces a particular behaviour in the personality. Scientists must investigate into the nature of this "mind", and in this investigation, the background of ancient Indian thought will be of great help.

Mind may be taken as a sort of wave, which wave is much finer than the sound-wave, and as such it is capable of splitting up the atom or electron or even the parts of electron much more easily than the latter. Mind, being an aspect of the intellect itself, is capable of functioning by itself, whereas the sound-wave can function only through the agency of the intellect. Mind by itself, or through the instrumentality of the sound-waves, can not only split up the smallest particle of matter known in science, it can also collect such finer parts and compose an electron and such small particles of matter. It can also infuse life into matter and convert matter into living or organic matter. Mind has this capacity; but the capacity has to be developed and made operative.

Intellect at this stage acquires certain new potentialities. Certain powers of combining parts of matter without a spacial extension into composite matter with spacial extension, or certain powers like infusing life into matter, were assigned to a super-intellect, according to some systems of thought in India; in other systems, such an intellect was not accepted, and they accepted only a universal law, of which only parts came within the sphere of the knowing process of the infinite intellects. When the individual and limited intellect develops certain powers through the operation of the sound-waves or through the operation of the mind itself, at that stage, the intellect acquires powers that were restricted to the super-intellect; in the view of there being no such super-intellect, the individual intellect widens its powers of understanding within the limits of the universal law, and sometimes can even expand the sphere to such an extent that for practical purposes they may be accepted as omniscient. In the normal state, the individual intellects can grasp only the behaviour consequent on the operation of the law, and not the nature of the law itself; but at that trained stage, the individual intellects acquire the power of realising the true nature of the law itself, though limited in scope.

Scanned by www.sribasishasharma.blogspot.com For Research Dr. B V Raman's Work

Whether such statements regarding these advanced intellects in ancient Indian literature relate only to the postulations of theoretical possibilities in science or were actual records of real achievements among humanity, does not make much of a difference to us in the present context; even such a postulation is worth acceptance for investigation. Have modern scientists even dreamt of such immense possibilities for man? Whence other than from ancient Indian thoughts can science receive an inspiration for making an open effort to lift the position of man to such heights of knowledge and power?

There are various other problems that rise up for consideration when the sphere of science is expanded to such extents. Is there a beginning for the world process? If so, what is it and how is that point to be determined? Can there be a point on a scale without a prior to it? Is there a goal and a termination for the world process? If there is a termination, there must certainly have been a beginning. If there is not such a terminus there is no goal, and without a goal there is no progression; progression is an orderly movement towards a fixed end along a pre-determined method. If there is a beginning what was there prior to it, and if there is an end what will there be after it? Is the movement from absolute uniformity to absolute differentiation, or is it the opposite way? Why should there be such a change and what is it that determined the preference for one over the other? If there is no such preference, why should there be such a migration? Again, is the change from a static state to a state of movement or is it a change from movement towards a static state? Is the universe by nature static or dynamic and is the change meant for attaining its real nature again? Why was the world upset from its real nature, simply to be restored to that real nature?

Ancient Indian thought is not silent over such facts nor are the thinkers indifferent such problems. They did not also consider such questions idle or impertinent. Literature bearing on the problems is full of suggestions regarding the solution for such questions, though we may not have any finished commodity with labels on the packets and directions for use. I cannot discuss any of such questions in this context. But I know the answer.

The first thing that scientists must do is to accept a science called astrology. They must have vision and courage in their procedure, and it is only then that science will be really scientific. If the universe is accepted as an organism, then astrology cannot be denied its legitimate claim of being recognised as a science and as a very important science; astrology deals with the relation of the parts of this organism to the other parts. That there are astrologers who are quacks and who cannot be admitted into the fold of scientists, is no justification for condemning the science. Are there not bad politicians and bad administrators, and yet do we denounce governments as such? Are there not bad lawyers, bad physicians, bad policemen and bad businessmen? And yet do we boycott law courts, do we keep away from hospitals, do we flaut law and order, and refuse to recognise business? Why should astrology be an exception to such a universally accepted policy?

I know that I cannot convince politicians who are dried up and hardened, who are incapable of emotional urges, who cannot entertain grand intellectual ideals; there may be scientists who are under the thumb of such politicians. But I am sure that there are broad-minded scientists with vision and courage who will look at things with a scientific balance, unmoved by prejudices and false notions of prestige. Man stands to gain through the recognition of science as a study and understanding of the world as an organism with life in preference to continuing to think of science as what relates only to the material world outside, ignoring man and life as an accident. If such a shift is effected astrology comes in as a great science and man's range and depth of understanding will be increased.

Nothing that I have suggested above comes into conflict with the fundamentals of a scientist's position. The change results only in an extension and an expansion of the field of science and does not compel a migration from science to another field. When astrology steps in, science become truly scientific.

Scanned by Jyotish Santosh astrolog.com For Preserving Dr B V Raman's Work

---

BOOK REVIEWS

(Continued from page 149)

high order. Critical study of Ramayana by Sri Srinivasaraghavacharya contains an illuminating study of the character and personality of Sita. Harinanda Sastry has some stanzas on the functions and operation of Fate and Karma, but, it is unfortunate that in one or two places, the composition reveals a definite metrical breakdown. Mr. Srinivasaraghavacharya's humorous story, Acharya Mahesa Datta's article on "Education in Free Bharat", and the section containing contributions in Hindi, make the journal rich in literary fare.

It is announced for the benefit of the public that the inaugural issue of the third year will be a special number. In earnestly commending this journal to the attention of the public, I urge that all lovers of Sanskrit will patronize it as best as they could.

24. WORLD STATE—Vol. 1—No. 1—(Editor S. Viswesvaraiah, "Savitri Nilaya", 55, Nehrunagar, Bangalore-3. Price Re. 1 per copy)

This monthly journal in English is described as "dedicated to world-peace and international co-operation" which certainly is an eminently desirable goal, ideal, or objective.

In the course of the editorial it is observed, "This tiny spark from Bangalore will become a mighty flame, and will blaze a new trail in human history". The world-state like Plato's Republic may be a consummation devoutly to be wished and particularly prayed for. In these days, no doubt, countries are exchanging countless goodwill and cultural missions, and some mediocres make merry staying in fashionable hotels in the capital cities of Europe and America, return to India with plenty of goodwill after having spent huge sums of the public tax-payers' money.

Many such delegations and deputations, missions, and missionaries have recently visited Europe, America and Russia, which country deserves special mention. And yet, an ordinary average, Indian finds it difficult to obtain boarding and lodging in the hotels of the West.

Under these undeniable conditions of existence, world-state, world-family, world-government, world-societies and world-companionship should all be regarded as music of the distant drum, if one is to adopt a realistic view of things.

Under the section, "Profile", there occurs fascinating account of the life works and achievements of Sir S. Viswesvaraiah, the grand-old-young-man and architect of modern industrial, Mysore. The section entitled "History" contains an interesting contribution. "In quest of Buddha" which is claimed to throw some new light on the visit to India of the famous Chinese pilgrim—Hiuen Tsiang. An account is given of "Industrial Development in Siberia", in the section entitled "The Neighbours". The contribution has been, it is said, supplied by the Soviet Embassy. The relation between Economic Progress and Individual Freedom is discussed and expounded in the section entitled "The Economy". The writer observes that the Nationalisation of Life Insurance has not brought good to the people at large.

"Literary Treasures", "The Ninth Dubrovnik Summer Festival", "Why Intellectuals go to the country-side", "Asian Philosophy", "Towards A New World", "Art is Life", are some of the contributions appearing in different sections.

In extending a hearty welcome and in wishing it a long life of useful service to the public, it should be observed that the world-state is bound to be just a dream, a vision of some few, seeing that today, there is not even a common currency system for the whole world.

ARYAN MYTHS, LEGENDS AND TRADITIONS IN THE BIBLE

(Continued from page 74)

of paternity, in contrast to say many of the remoter Negroids, who believed even in our own day that the male had a little or no part to play in reproduction. This suggests that all the cultures which came from the one primitive and early Caucasoid stock had acquired that knowledge before their dispersal. This is consistent with the story of Genesis.

That the climate was growing colder is made clear by the fact that while at first Adam and Eve took to some form of platted vegetation (that is some primitive forerunner of weaving), this was insufficient for we read that the Lord God made them coats of skins and clothed them.

Here then, in an account written down in Palestine in the 6th century B.C., by scribes who had no conception of ice conditions of Central Asia, there were recorded sufficient references to increasing cold for us to see, even in their account, the onset of the last maximum of the ice age. In the Vedas we have a much more detailed, and perfect account of these conditions, which even give us the number of months of darkness, the intensity of the cold, and the fact that the burial of the dead could not take place in the winter months because of the frozen ground, and much more besides. The Hindu Aryans, with their account already crystallised in its present form earlier than this Biblical aspect of the same event, and themselves nearer to the source of the original events, and with the Himalayas and the tablelands of inner Asia always at hand to remind them of what ice conditions are like, carry a more detailed account of the same onset of the cold.

Now it is not without interest to note that Cain (after killing Abel) when driven out of the presence of the Adamic peoples, was afraid to fall among other men, lest they would kill him; and later we get the story of the intermarriage of the Sons of God and the Daughters of Men. All this indicated, that so far as the narrators were concerned, that while they considered themselves the apex of creation, they recognised the fact that there were other, and lower, racial strains. This attitude is, incidentally, very typical of the Caucasoids, and finds its expression frequently among the Aryans.

Before the advancing cold there is no doubt that the Caucasoids had retreated south westwards, and of them, the Aryan branch was probably lying most close to the cold front, but, nevertheless, in a region where agriculture and pastoralism was possible.

When the maximum of the ice age collapsed, it seems to have done so suddenly, and it was accompanied by vast flooding. The Baltic flowed far into Eurasia, the Caspian was enlarged, so the Aral, and low-lying areas were flooded.

Similar floods would occur on other fronts of the ice sheet, in eastern Asia, and in America. Therefore, the tales of floods will be found among all the principal racial stocks of about reconciliation.

(Continued on page 154)

ASTROLOGICAL APPRAISEMENT OF BEHAVIOUR-PATTERNS

(Continued from page 78)

That the four kendras are favourable is a general statement. Of these, the 7th is to be transferred to the category of inauspicious. In the light of the inclusion of the 7th in the list of evil houses, the general statement about the four quadrants should be correspondingly modified, and this would leave 5 houses as favourable and 7 as unfavourable.

The author, then, proceeds to make another striking statement. One may not be under the impression that all the kendras are equally important. It is said that the 4th and the 10th are vitally important. They are taken to be instrumental in bestowing benefits. (Yogakaraka). The other two, 1st and the 7th, are described to be comparatively passive recipients of the beneficent effects. (Phala-bhaginau...)

But then, the author is not quite consistent or uniform. While, he has subjected the kendras to comparative judgment, he has not done the same in regard to the konas. He has taken the two konas to be co-ordinate in importance.

It is not understandable why such a discriminatory procedure has been followed in regard to the konas. If the analogy be extended it may be permissible to assume that of the two konas, the 9th may be taken to be more powerful than the 5th.

In addition, the author has laid down that a kona should be considered to be ruled or dominated by Lakshmi, and the kendras are likewise, presided over by Mahavishnu. Combination between the rulers of the two is to be understood as a very powerful configuration which would elevate the subject far above the average and the ordinary in possession and enjoyment of all the good things of life such as wealth, prestige, official status, honour and so forth.

Another grouping or assemblage of planets is mentioned. Should there be, in a given chart, combination of rulers of the konas, and the kendras, it is judged to be a very exalted yoga. Some other planetary groupings are also mentioned, which, can be easily had from the text.

(6)

With the help of the conditions and considerations laid down, in the previous section, let me set forth the interpretations given by the author. The author seems to lay great emphasis on the negative, cancelling or destructive power or potency of the unfavourable houses indicated.

If one or more of the rulers of the inauspicious houses were to enter the assemblage or grouping of favourable planets, the good effects are considerably neutralized or cancelled.

Conjunction is considered to be more effective than aspecting or aspectarian. If the favourable combinations are aspected by the rulers of the unfavourable houses, the good effects stand neutralized or adulterated, or even negatived, in proportion to the strength of the planets. In the light of these general rules or laws of interpretation, the behaviour-patterns are to be judged and appraised.

For instance, let a beginning be made with the Lagna or the Ascendant. It signifies or stands for individual behaviour-pattern par excellence. If the ruler of the Lagna be actually stationed in one of the unfavourable houses listed, it is certain there would be something abnormal, or unpleasant about the behaviour of the subject. It is common knowledge that personal or individual behaviour can be very violent and aggressive, or it can be very mild and persuasive.

If the ruler of the ascendant be in the 8th, the behaviour-pattern will be aggressive, frustrational, cruel and dominated by a certain amount of callousness and doggedness.

In respect of all the approaches two leading or main ones would be more powerful than the others. In the present instance, the ruler of the ascendant may be in the 8th house. Or, the ruler of the 8th may be in the Lagna or the ascendant. Intensive study is yet to be pursued, and sufficiently convincing or compelling statistics are yet to be collected.

It seems to me that of the two, the ruler of the ascendant being in the 8th house may be milder in effect or consequences, than the ruler of the 8th, being stationed in the Lagna. Because, if the ruler of the 8th house were to take possession of the Lagna like some evil spirit, the behaviour of that individual is bound to be more difficult to manage than in the other case. This interpretation is to be attempted in regard to all the houses one by one. If the ruler be, on the ascendant, in the 2nd, 3rd, and so on, in the unfavourable houses, the consequences of behaviour-patterns will be unfavourable. If, on the other hand, the ruler of the ascendant is stationed in one of the favourable houses, the results or consequences will be beneficial and favourable.

I am not quite sure. But, something like a general law or principle seems to emerge from an observation of facts. If the ruler of the ascendant should be stationed in one of the houses with which some relation, or friend, or official, or some other person, has been correlated, the behaviour-pattern of the latter would be controlled by the former. If, however, the rulers of the different houses correlated with persons, be occupying the ascendant, then, the former would be controlling the latter.

Scanned by www.sahridayashastrology.com for Preserving the Ancients Work

I am stating this formulation only as a very tentative and provisional generalization, just a possible hypothesis, awaiting confirmation, or rejection, as the case may be, in accordance with positive or negative evidence that may be made available in the shape of facts collected by means of horoscopic studies.

Whether one dominates the family, or is dominated by the family, whether one victimizes brothers, sisters, and others, or is victimized by them, whether one is able to defeat the machinations of his enemies, or is himself defeated by them, whether one is able to control his wife and keep her behaviour decent and disciplined, or, he himself is compelled by circumstances to be henpecked and cuckold, whether the frustrational forces in the environment will get the upper hand, or, whether the subject would be able to control them and secure adjustment to the environment, in the shape of advantageous activity, whether, again, official life or behaviour would be smooth and harmonious, or rough and disturbed, whether one would be pulled up the official ladder, or pulled and dragged down, and finally, whether life behaviour is or is not a pleasant journey throughout, where one would have life and career ruined by secret enemies, or whether one would thwart and annihilate them, would depend on one's own Karma, as indicated by the ruling planets connected with typical behaviour-patterns, being in favourable or unfavourable houses listed as such.

(7)

While, in the case of Varahamihira, and some other distinguished classical writers, it is noticed that these writers, make reference to other schools, systems, and opinions and judgments of some predecessors and even foreigners, the author of the northern hemisphere, but only those of the Caucasoids will carry the tale as it relates to the flooding from the Baltic, and the Black Sea and the Caspian Sea, into western inner Asia, except so far as these stories have spread culturally, at a later date, to other stocks.

(Continued on page 160)

ARYAN MYTHS, LEGENDS AND TRADITIONS IN THE BIBLE

(Continued from page 152)

Now in all the Aryan peoples, who were the furthest north of the Caucasoids, and most in the area of the floods arising from the rapidly melting ice, and the flooding from the seas of lands depressed still from the former weight of the ice which they carried, and which had not yet reached equilibrium, we get the story of this flood, and the escape by boat, except in the case of the Iranians, where the garden of Eden motif appears to have become confused with it, and retained in its stead, as the place of refuge.

In the Vedas, the Brahmanas, the Mahabharata and the Puranas, we get the story. King Satyavrata who had been installed as the seventh Manu, also named Vaivaswata, was warned by God of the coming of the flood, and he made an ark, into which he went with seven companions, taking seeds and pairs of animals, and after the flood the ark came to rest on a mountain, and the King came out and sacrificed.

The Genesis story is parallel. For with Noah, and his three sons and their wives and his own wife, went into the ark the animals. The recurrence of the same number of people involved will be noted. If there is any doubt as to the Aryan nature of the Genesis account it is surely itself set at rest by the fact that Noah's name is basic Aryan, related to the Latin Navis, Sanskrit Nau, meaning ship.

Space will not allow any further exposition of this subject. We hope however that we have established two facts—first, that coming down in the sacred books of the higher civilisations, especially those of the peoples whom we have discussed, there are evidences of the folk-memory of very real and great events, which witness to the essential verity of the accounts which are being conveyed, although their media being by way of folk-tale, otherwise the story could not have been transmitted at all over such great spaces of time, they have been subjected to the needs of moral and theological teachings, in past times, and so their plainer historical meanings have been lost sight of; secondly, that in and above this there are accounts, such as those with which we started, which cannot be explained as evidence of folk-memory, since they are of events before the memory of man could operate, and therefore of events which could only be learnt supernaturally or psychically. These last facts establish the essentially sacred and divine nature of the narratives, although we must interpret them in the light of both the historic facts which the folk-memory has sought to convey, and the moral and theological principles which later scribes have sought to weave into the accounts.

At a later period it might be possible to carry the account further and demonstrate the meaning of the Tower of Babel story, and show some very striking Aryan characters in the whole Abramic and Covenant story of this first book of the Bible.

Scanned by Gurukul Vishwavidyalaya Museum Dr. B. V. Raman Archive

Your SCIENTIFIC DIFFICULTIES Solved

BY MIHIRA

[In the letters THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE receives from the readers, many interesting questions are put pertaining to astrological and scientific problems. Here are a few recent queries together with answers. If some similar doubts are puzzling you, why not write us about them? This service is free to all readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. Address communications to—MIHIRA, c/o THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE].

Q. 1. (a) What is the effect of Mars and Kethu in Leo in the asterism of Venus, Lagna being Cancer? (b) What are the effects of chain formation for Cancer Ascendant,—1st lord in 10th; 10th lord in 8th; 8th lord in 2nd; 2nd lord in 6th; and 6th lord in 2nd.

J.P.A., Chandusi.

Ans. (a) Both Mars and Kethu are malefics occupying 2nd house in a friendly sign for Mars but not for Kethu. They are however in the asterism of a benefic. For Mars and Kethu in Sukra's asterism the effects are given as follows:—"A sort of vain glory which is unreal, is exhibited. The native further sustains losses through women and ill-health and enmity are also caused; but if they are favourable to the native, the results will not be very harmful." In this case, Mars is yogakaraka. Hence the effects will not be very harmful. (b) Of the above so-called chain formation, only the last which goes by the name exchange is recognised in the texts, namely exchange between 2nd and 6th lords. This is a Dainya yoga for which the results will be ups and downs in the life.

Q. 2. What is Kalasarpa yoga and what are its effects?

N.K.B., Navrangapur.

Ans. This is formed when all the seven planets are so distibuted as to be within the 180° between Rahu and Kethu. The planets are thereby considered to be rendered powerless. This is not generally taken into consideration in natal astrology but only in Mundane Astrology.

Q. 3. What combinations cause thread worms and how can it be remedied astrologically?

R.M.M., Bellary.

Ans. When waning Moon is aspected by Mars in strength and Saturn is in 8th, trouble due to worms may be present. No authority deals with thread worms as such. Kethu figuring in connection with illness, is also liable to cause worms.

Q. 4. (a) For Taurus Lagna, cusp of 4th house falls in Cancer and that of 5th in Leo. 4th house is occupied by Moon and 10th by Sun and Mercury who is retrograde. Is there any Rajayoga? (b) What are the effects if Gemini and Sagittarius are occupied respectively by Kethu and Rahu identical with 3rd and 9th bhava? (c) In a Taurus Lagna horoscope, Mars is ruler of 7th. If Saturn is ruler of 10th and 11th, what are the effects if they combine in 11th? (d) Lagna Aries, Mars in Cancer has attained seven benefic vargas and has 88% residential strength. What results to expect in Mars Dasa? (e) Jupiter in Scorpio aspects full Moon in Cancer in kendra. Is it Rajayoga?

H.C.P., Balrampur.

Ans. (a) There is Rajayoga as lord of 4th and 5th aspect each other. (b) Kethu in 3rd house makes the native adventurous, strong, artistic, wealthy and popular, but Rahu in 9th is not considered favourable. The effects of both will be coloured by the planets which rule their signs and the planets that aspect them. (c) As even malefics in eleventh produce only good effects, this combination is beneficial though full effects cannot be realised because after all it is a combination as between malefics. (d) Though some disability attaches because of debilitation of Mars, the dasa will prove prosperous and beneficial in many ways especially in respect of 1st and 8th house matters, being the houses ruled by Mars. (e) For Rajayoga in addition to rulership of kendra and kona, there should be mutual aspect which is not present in this case.

Q. 5. Can a yogakaraka planet exercise maraka powers because of his association with a maraka planet, e.g., Saturn for Libra and Taurus Lagnas by association with Mars?

Sub. No. 6956.

Ans. Yes. But this in itself cannot be a sufficient answer, as there are quite a number of other factors that have to be taken into account before deciding whether a particular dasa and bhukthi can cause maraka and will have to be judged from the entire horoscope.

Q. 6. (a) What is Vakya method of astrology in general and what is its speciality? Is there any difference in the Ayanamsa followed in this Vakya system? (b) Is the rule mentioned in Brihat Jataka that if a malefic planet is posited in a trikona and is aspected by another malefic, there will be loss of a limb found to operate in practice? (c) What to predict when two contraditory directions occur in respect of two planets under primary arc method, e.g., Venus in 3rd degree of Cancer and Mars in 3rd degree of Leo? For 30th year of the native, progressed Venus will be conjunct Mars radix while progressed Mars will be sextile to Venus radix.

B.S., Madras.

Ans. (a) Vakya method is a system of calculation, not astrology. Vakya ayanamsa or very nearly, that is, what is adopted by THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. (b) You misquote the rule. Aspect by one malefic will not be sufficient but by more than one. We have had no occasion to come across such cases. (c) Primary arc is measured along the equator. You give only the positions along the zodiac or ecliptic which is different. Both directions will not occur at the same time because of difference in latitude and declination. The directions you give are what are called converse directions. Of course, these are also included. The other directions will have also to be computed and then only judgment can be made. One direction though contrary or opposite to another direction, both do not cancel each other out. Each will operate in its own way and this has to be merely adjudged in the context of other directional influences that may be present along with these or close to these.

Q. 7. (a) What is the relative importance of Rasi chart and Bhava chart? Lagna is 27th degree of Capricorn. Rahu in 7° of Pisces, Jupiter in 3° of Gemini and Mercury in 3° of Taurus. According to Rasi, Rahu is in 4th house, Mercury in 5th and Jupiter in 6th while in the Bhava Chakra it will be Rahu in 3rd, Mercury in 4th and Jupiter in 5th. How to reconcile the two? (b) In answer to question 18 in May 1957 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, it is explained that Saturn retrograde has more strength and in the short-lived and now defunct Indian Astrological Journal August 1957 issue, page 46, it was stated that planets in retrogression lose strength. Which is correct? (c) For Capricorn Lagna, Jupiter is a malefic as lord of 3rd and 12th houses, but if he is in 6th house, it is a beneficial yoga. Does Jupiter become a benefic thereby?

N.M., Nagpur.

Ans. (a) Difficulties arise because you consider them as different charts. But they are to be considered as a single chart. In the example given, the proper way to view is Rahu in 3rd house in sign Pisces, Mercury in 4th house in sign Taurus, Jupiter in 5th house in sign Gemini. The Rasi chart is to be looked to for sign position and the Bhava chart to be looked to for house position only. (b) There are different views about the phenomenon of retrogression. In the absence of the reference quoted, it cannot be ascertained in which context the statement is made in the said journal. (c) In the above case, Jupiter a natural benefic becomes malefically inclined by rulership of 12th and 3rd houses. Lord of 12th in 6th gives rise to Vimala yoga which is favourable. Lord of 3rd in 6th gives rise to Mriti yoga which is bad. When both good and bad yogas are present, the effects of both have to be considered. So one good yoga does not convert Jupiter back into a benefic.

Q. 8. (a) In Jatakabharana, it is stated that one having Jupiter in Capricorn even if he may have Rajayogas, becomes a pauper. Moreover he states that Kemadruma yoga abolishes even 100 Rajayogas. How far do you agree with these propositions? (b) In the book by 'Jupiter', 4th house is mentioned as house for education and learning whereas in the above mentioned book he gives the 5th house for the same. Which is correct?

J.J.B., Nadiad.

Ans. (a) No value can be attached to such sweeping statements. It should be noted that even this authority confines the effects to Jupiter's Parama Neecha—that is only when Jupiter occupies the deep debilitation degree and not otherwise. Other more reliable authorities and which are followed by a large number of astrologers, affirm that Jupiter in Capricorn though debilitated is strong there, (e.g., Verse 65 of Chapter II of Jataka Parijata). "Jupiter is powerful in Meena (Pisces), Vrischika (Scorpio), Dhanus (Sagittarius) and Kataka (Cancer), in his own varga and week day, at midday, in his passage to the north of the equator, in the middle of a sign, in Kumbha (Aquarius) as also his depression sign. He gives much wealth when in the rising sign, in the 4th as well as in the 10th house from Lagna." It has also to be averred that too much is being made about the effects of Kemadruma yoga of which there are several definitions. The exceptions are so many that it is rare to find a case of Kemadruma that is not antidoted. When there are planets in angles from Lagna or Moon or a planet is with Moon, there is no Kemadruma. (b) 2nd house, 4th house and 5th house, all relate to learning. 2nd emphasizes the aspect of speech, 4th that of academical learning and 5th true knowledge or wisdom.

Q. 9. In the article on "Methodical Approach to Astrology" by Sri K. Sitarama Rao in May 1948 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, page 353, it is stated that Jupiter lord of 3rd and 12th houses gives beneficial results (Uttara Kalamrita), while in other standard works on astrology, Jupiter for Makara Lagna is shown as a malefic because of rulership of 3rd and 12th houses. Kindly explain in what way Jupiter can give beneficial results. Also Venus in 6th house is said to produce good (Uttara Kalamrita), while it is said in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE in this section that Venus as Karaka for wife is certainly bad in 6th house a dusthana. Kindly indicate in which way Venus will produce good. In Bhavartha Ratnakara by B. V. Raman, page 18, stanza 15 (1944 Edition) it is stated that Venus for Leo Lagna becomes malefic in 10th house. Venus in 3rd is good while in tenth he is bad as he owns a kendra besides being located there. Kindly explain. N.M.C.

Ans. It is obvious that these are considered as exceptions to the general rule by the author of the article and he has quoted the authorities for this position. Every rule has got an exception and Jupiter is an exception to the rule that lord of 3rd and 12th becomes a malefic, while the statement in the other books mention only general rules. When an equally good authority mentions an exception, we have to accept the exceptions also. Venus in 6th is an exception to the general rule that planets in 6th are generally evil. But as Kalatrakaraka in 6th is a special case and is to be considered as evil for purposes of 7th house, as this is also 12th from 7th. (c) This is also a case of exception to the general rule mentioned in Bhavartha Ratnakara and treated as such.

Q. 10. (a) In August 1957 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, page 690, it is stated that the lord of 12th house Saturn is posited in the second decanate of Cancer which is known as a Scorpio drekkana. The second decanate is ruled by Mars. Please explain how to arrive at a decanate of a drekkana. (b) Ref: August 1957, Pp. 705. In answer to question 1 (c), "the Sun conjunction with Rahu in his transits gives the same results, viz., danger from poison, eye trouble, loss of money, etc." You simply state Sun in conjunction with Rahu and do not state whether at birth or transit. Hence this query.

A.W., Colombo.

Ans. (a) Your query is a mere jumble of words. First of all you misquote the contents of the answer. The words found in the answer are "which is known as Sarpa Drekkana" and not Scorpio Drekkana. That is perhaps why you put the meaningless question—how to arrive at the decanate of a drekkana. For both decanate and drekkana mean the same thing. The middle decanate of Cancer is Scorpio and this is known as Sarpa Drekkana. (Vide verse 11, Chapter XXVII of Brihat Jataka). (b) Evidently the question refers to the horoscopical position and not to transits. The answer too is to be taken to refer to it. Therefore there is no need to specifically say it refers to the horoscopical position.

Q. 11. (a) How to know from Prasna Lagna whether the querent will win the case in the present court, or by 2nd appeal or 3rd appeal? (b) Whether the case may be transferred to another court, and if so, what direction? R.P.A., Bisauli.

Ans. (a) A query can be judged only with reference to a single question, i.e., a query relating to the success of a litigation in the present court. The prospects of success in one or more appellate courts cannot be judged from this map alone. They will have to be judged from fresh queries put when these appeals are pending. As regards the prospects of success in the present court, lord of 1st house and Sun represent the querent. Lord of 7th represents the opposite side. Lord of 10th, the lawyer. Lord of 4th and Moon show the result. If lord of 1st house and the Sun are stronger than the lord of 7th, then success is likely. Observe whether the lord of 1st or 7th is best aspected for success. The opposite side is likely to succeed if lord of 1st is heavily afflicted by aspect or position. Lord of 1st in 7th house or lord of 7th in 7th or aspecting Sun or Moon is also in favour of the opposite side. Lord of 4th afflicting the lord of 1st or 2nd or lord of 1st or 2nd afflicting lord of 4th, indicates success for opposite side. (b) Normally cases are not transferred by the court suo motu. Some party or other should apply for transfer. Then only the matter can be decided by a query. Then the lord of 1st house and the Sun represent the person who puts the query and so on. The matter has to be judged as to success or failure of the transfer petition in the same way as described for a suit.

Q. 12. (a) It has been explained in these pages that it is the position of a planet by bhava alone that counts for results. Then how is it in all articles and in examples given in B. V. Raman's works that Rasi and Bhava are assumed to be the same and not differentiated. (b) Suppose as per Rasi chart, there are several beneficial yogas which are not there when the bhavas are considered. Can the yoga be said to exist for the horoscope and will the native derive the benefits of such yogas? (c) Please explain whether higher shadbala means only greater strength or whether it is to be taken as modifying the malefic nature of the planets only. (d) A planet's nature is modified by the houses he rules and a ruler of a bhava is the ruler of the sign in which the cusp of a bhava falls. Suppose, no cusp of any bhava falls in a sign, e.g., Leo. How is the nature of the ruler Sun to be judged in such a case? (e) How is the strength of a bhava, e.g., Lagna to be determined to judge which is strongest—Lagna, Moon or Sun?

M.M.C., Nagpur.

Ans. (a) It is because the examples treated of relate generally to the lower latitudes where there is usually no difference between Rasi and Bhava. Whenever the difference is significant they are also pointed out. (b) The yogas should be taken to be non-existent, unless they also arise as per bhavas in other ways. Take the case of Neechabhanga Rajayoga and the Moon as the debilitated planet. If Mars ruler of Scorpio occupies an angle from Lagna, then there is Neechabhanga. Suppose Mars is in Aries and Libra is the Lagna. By bhava, Mars may be in 6th, 7th or 8th. But there will be Neechabhanga only if Mars is in 7th bhava, But from Aries, Mars aspects Scorpio by his eighth bhava. This causes Neechabhanga according to verse 28, Chapter VII of Phaladeepika. (c) Shadbala strength means strength for good, e.g., if a malefic Mars has high shadbala, it does not mean that he gets greater power to do evil as a malefic. (d) In such cases, the planet's nature is not modified at all. A malefic remains a malefic and a benefic, a benefic, though he may be also considered as ruler of the bhava that crosses his sign secondarily, e.g., if 5th bhava begins 28° Cancer and 6th bhava begins in 2nd degree of Virgo, the Sun may be considered as part ruler of 5th bhava. Hence may be considered as beneficially inclined. (e) The strength of a bhava is composed of three factors—(1) Bhavadhipathi Bala, (2) Bhava Drig Bala, (3) Bhava Drishti Bala. For details, vide Graha and Bhava Balas by B. V. Raman.

Q. 13. (a) When is the Moon benefic and when malefic? (b) Ref. Pp. 465, May 1955 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. "Majority of planets if located in the second half of the zodiac indicates rise during the second half of one's life". Is the reverse true? How to count the first half—from Moon or Lagna? (c) Does Mars signify all diseases? (d) What are the main subjects dealt with in Nadi astrology? How to interpret Nadi astrology? (e) Which planet is most beautiful in appearance? (f) What is the numerological significance of the birth date 23-4-1920? (g) Is it bad to put on new clothes on Monday?

J.M., Seraikela.

Ans. (a) The general rule is that waxing Moon is benefic and waning Moon a malefic. But there is some slight variance as to when the Moon waxes and when it wanes. Some say from 8th day of dark half to 8th day of bright half, the Moon is waning and some say from 5th day of dark half to 10th day of bright half. There are other views also, but as a working rule, it may be adopted that when the Moon is actually increasing, it is benefic and malefic when it is actually decreasing, i.e., from New Moon to Full Moon, with a margin of a few days either way. (b) If you count six signs from Moon or Lagna in the order of the signs, it is the first half and the remaining six as the second half. (c) Emphatically not. (d) All subjects found in natal astrology are found but the emphasis is on the asterisms occupied by planets rather than their sign positions. For interpretation, you should refer to the books on the subject. (e) Venus. (f) 2 + 3 + 4 + 1 + 9 + 2 + 0 = 21 = 3, a number ruled by Jupiter. (g) Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday are good for wearing new clothes (vide B. V. Raman's Electional Astrology, Chapter X).

Q. 14. (a) What will be the effect when Moon and Jupiter are together in Lagna? (b) What are the effects when Saturn, Kethu and Mars occupy second, third and eighth from Lagna respectively? (c) How to ascertain success in love affairs when Venus and Rahu occupy ninth from Lagna? (d) Is the presence of the Sun and Mercury in 10th from Lagna favourable and if so, how? (e) How to ascertain that a native will have education in foreign countries? (f) Do you believe in fadic numbers? Please name any Indian authority or this branch of science.

H.K.M, Gauhati.

Ans. (a) Verse 34 of Chapter 31 of Saravali says: "The native will be either a king or equal to a king, with a well-formed and thick chest, will have a number of issues and relatives and friends and good wife and also good constitution". (b) This is not yoga, rather it is not possible to say if any yoga arises or not in the absence of information as to the Lagna, e.g., if the Lagna were to be Libra, it can be said that lord of 5th and 7th aspect each other and there is Rajayoga and so on. Therefore, the effects of Saturn in 2nd, Kethu in 3rd and Mars in 8th have to be studied from books and combined together. (c) Love affairs are to be judged from 5th house and Venus the Karaka. Venus and Rahu in 9th do not bear upon this matter and so no conclusion can be gathered therefrom. (d) This is said to be capable of conferring Rajayoga, i.e., enjoyment of luxuries appurtenant to royalty, if the 10th house happens to be neither Libra nor Pisces. (e) 4th house relates to education and 7th foreign countries. If a planet connecting the two bhavas or if the lords of the two bhavas are connected and are powerfully placed in auspicious houses, education in foreign lands can be predicted. Suppose for Virgo Lagna, Jupiter ruler of 7th and 4th houses occupies Cancer in conjunction with Vidyakaraka Mercury, and is neither aspected by malefics, nor has any other source of weakness such as combustion, debilitation in Vargas, etc., and if Jupiter's Dasa comes opportune, then the native may be said to have chances for foreign education. (f) We do. But we are not aware of any "Indian Authority" on the subject.

Register Your Subscription

To ensure prompt supply of The Astrological Magazine every month become a regular subscriber today.

RATE OF SUBSCRIPTION

For One Year Rs. 12

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"SRI RAJESWARI"

BANGALORE-3

Significance of Lunar New Year Chart in Mundane Astrology
(Continued from page 84)

Moon falls in the 8th house of the chart. Pluto another malefic is posited in Lagna in exact quincunx with its ruler the Sun in the 8th house of the chart. It is also remarkable that Sun has acquired the maraka lordship of the 2nd house and his place in the 8th in a watery sign with malefics clearly points to watery disasters and the resulting deaths therefrom. Progressing the New Year chart, we find on the day of the accident (13–8–1958) the progressed ascendant 7° 28′ Sagittarius in exact square to the New Moon of the yearly chart. It is also interesting to note that the progressed ascendant is squaring the New Moon in the 8th house (denoting death and danger) of the yearly chart.

The Lebanon Crisis

At the commencement of the New Year at Beirut 23° 34′ of Gemini rises with 8° of Pisces on M.C. thus exactly showing the pattern of the chart of Baghdad. The M.C. is conjunct New Moon square Saturn with its lord in the 8th from 10th in an inimical sign conjoined with Rahu and Neptune, thus clearly indicating a change in the Government. On 23-5-1958 when progressed ascendant conjoined transitting Saturn at 29° Scorpio, President Chamoun left the office thus making way to a new successor.

Typhoon in Japan

On the same day Japan witnessed severe loss of lives when a typhoon swept over Tokyo claiming about 500 lives. The chart erected for the commencement of the New Year for Japan reveals 20° 44′ Ascendant and 21° 42′ Gemini on the meridian. This chart also shows some interesting features. Virgo, a sensitive sign rising is closely opposed by Mercury its lord who is very weak. A.J. Pearce in his Text-book of Astrology says that Mercury is a planet capable of causing immense changes in weather. He quotes from Ptolemy thus: "In consequence of the dryness of its (Mercury's) nature arising from its proximity to the Sun, and the rapidity of its motion it generates in the atmosphere turbulent, sharp, and variable winds and at times thunders, meteors, and lightnings, accompanied by sudden chasms in the earth and earthquakes". Here in the present chart the exact setting of Mercury (who is weakened very much by being debilitated) has been responsible for the sudden typhoon over Tokyo. We may expect severe earthquakes also. The typhoon swept when ascendant exactly conjoined Kethu in the 8th or house of death on Sept. 25th.

Fall of Pakistan Government

On 8th October 1958, President Mirza abrogated the Pakistan constitution and dismissed the Pakistan Ministry. A chart erected for the commencement of the New Year shows the meridian degree in exact conjunction with Kethu and closely opposed by Rahu, Neptune and Jupiter. Also there is a square from Uranus. The ascendant degree is in exact conjunction with Uranus, the planet of upsets, and squared by Neptune and Rahu. Thus, both the meridian and rising degrees are heavily afflicted, and this clearly indicates the fate of the Pakistan Cabinet. It is also interesting to note that the same signs fall both for the M.C. and the ascendant in the chart of the New Year for Delhi. But the meridian degree is separated from Kethu by about 12° whereas the ascendant is removed by about 10° from Uranus and by about 16° from the opposition aspect of Mars. Hence, the difference in the stability of the Governments though the rising and culminating signs are the same.

On the day of the military take-over of the Pakistan Government, the progressed ascendant was in exact opposition to Uranus separated by about 2 degrees. By one degree progression, the progressed ascendant exactly conjoined exalted Mars. What more clear indications do you need?

Other Events

On Saturday, 18th October 1958, 43 Japanese fishermen were drowned when the 39 ton Myoju Maru sank in the sea off Hachinohe, 200 miles N.E. of Tokyo. Progressing the New Year chart of Japan to the day of the mishap we find the ascendant 9° 2′ of Taurus applying to the conjunction of transitting Mars and Pluto.

On Monday, 20th October 1958, a gigantic explosion blew off the midship house of the tanker Stanvac Japan about 525 miles N.W. of Bombay in the Arabian Sea resulting in the cruel death of 21 persons including 6 seamen. Since the incident occurred on 20th October at about 2–30 p.m. We have to progress the New Year chart for the previous day, i.e. to 19th October 1958. Progressing the New Year chart of Bombay to 19th October 1958, we find the Ascendant to be 10° 5′ of Aquarius separating from the opposition of Pluto and exactly squaring the transitting retrograde Mars in 10° 6′ Scorpio. (The New Year in Bombay commenced at 2–42 p.m. L.M.T. on 20–3–1958).

Thus from these events one can see the validity and usefulness of the Nirayana New Year chart when compared to capsolar or any other chart. The readers may disagree with me on certain points relating to the judgment of the New Year chart, but they cannot escape the sight of the correct pointers shown by the New Year chart with regard to the Mundane happenings at different parts of the globe.

Sampurnanand Sanskrit University Varanasi Digitized by eGangotri Work

Astronomical Notes

By S. K. KAR, B.Sc.

 Sayana Positions of Planets on 1st January 1959, true for 5-30 a.m. (Indian Standard Time).

Graha (Planet)			Dhruva (R.A.)	Kranti (Declin.)	Sphuta (Long.)	Kshepa (Lat.)
			° ′	° ′	° ′	° ′
Ravi	☉	...	280 41	23 S 5	9 ♑ 49	...
Chandra	☽	...	171 0	1 N 23	21 ♍ 10	2 S 18
Kuja	♂	...	44 25	18 N 50	17 ♉ 26	1 N 52
Budha	☿	...	256 41	21 S 14	17 ♐ 36	1 N 38
Guru	♃	...	231 50	17 S 51	23 ♏ 58	0 N 56
Sukra	♀	...	294 0	22 S 48	22 ♑ 2	1 S 11
Sani	♄	...	269 25	22 S 29	29 ♐ 28	0 N 57
Uranus	♅	...	138 20	16 N 49	15 ♌ 40	0 N 42
Neptune	♆	...	214 49	12 S 4	6 ♏ 34	1 N 44

Scanned by www.saptarishiastrology.com To Preserve Rishi Parampara Work

THE SUN

The Sun commences to move from 18th degree of Nirayan Sagittarius, and, after entering Capricorn on the 12th, terminates the journey on the 19th degree. He goes to his Perigee on the 2nd and his southern declination decreases from 23° 5′ to 17° 39′ during the month.

THE MOON

The Moon starts on his journey from the 30th degree of Leo, and after completely making a round of the heavens, he proceeds upto the 9th degree of Libra. He crosses the celestial equator on the 1st, 14th and 28th. He goes to his Perigee on the 5th and also on the 31st. He comes to his Apogee on the 17th. He attains maximum declination of about 18° 44′ South on the 7th, and of about 18° 40′ North on the 21st. He reaches his ascending node on 3rd and the descending node on the 16th. He forms with the Sun the following aspects during the month :—

Last Quarter	on	2nd	at about 4 p.m.
New Moon	on	9th	,, 11 a.m.
First Quarter	on	17th	,, 2 a.m.
Full Moon	on	25th	,, 1 a.m.
Vyatipata	on	7th	,, 2 a.m.
Vaidhriti	on	20th	,, 2 a.m.

MARS AND MERCURY

Mars begins to progress from 26th degree of Aries. He enters Taurus on the 19th and then stops on the 4th degree of the same sign.

Mercury commences his journey from the 26th degree of Scorpio. He enters Sagittarius on the 4th and Capricorn on the 25th, and then stops there on the 9th degree. He sets heliacally on the 21st. He crosses ecliptic towards the South on the 12th and reaches his Aphelion on the 23rd.

JUPITER AND VENUS

Jupiter moves on from the 3rd degree of Scorpio till he reaches the 7th degree of the same sign at the end of the month.

Venus starts his journey from the 1st degree of Capricorn, enters Aquarius on the 24th, and then proceeds upto the 8th degree of the same sign. He comes to his Aphelion on the 2nd.

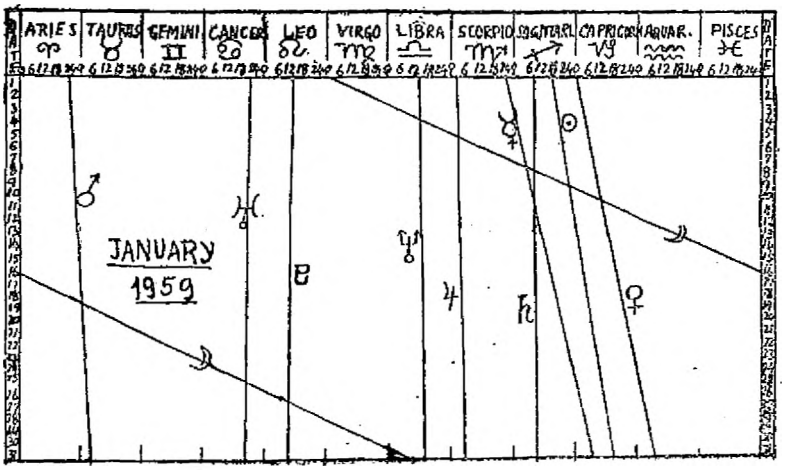
SATURN AND RAHU

Saturn progresses from 8th degree to 11th degree of Sagittarius during the month. He rises heliacally in the East on the 3rd.

Rahu moves back from 27th degree of Virgo to 24th degree.

OTHER PLANETS

Uranus is retrograde and moves in the backward direction from 24th degree of Cancer to the 23rd degree.



Neptune moves on slowly from 14° 45′ of Libra to 15° 7′ of the same sign.

Pluto is retrograde and moves back from 12° 14′ to 11° 41′ of Leo.

LUNAR CONJUNCTIONS

The Moon will form conjunctions with planets in the following order :—

Neptune	on 4th	,,	at about 11 a.m.
Jupiter	on 5th	,,	6 p.m.
Mercury	on 7th	,,	9 p.m.
Saturn	on 8th	,,	5 a.m.
Sun	on 9th	,,	11 a.m.
Venus	on 10th	,,	2 p.m.
Mars	on 19th	,,	7 a.m.
Uranus	on 25th	,,	8 p.m.
Pluto	on 27th	,,	4 a.m.
Rahu	on 30th	,,	4 a.m.
Neptune	on 31st	,,	5 p.m.

* The R.A. is always given on Sayana basis, while in the description of planetary movements, the longitudes are given on Nirayana basis, the current Ayanamsa being 21° 49′ 34.6″.

Pournima (Full Moon) and Amavasya (New Moon) Tithis

Commencing moments for the meridian of New Delhi. (28° 39′ N., 77° 13′ E.)

I. Pournima tithi commences at 1|32 a.m. (I.S.T.) on 24th Jan. 1959

Cusps of Houses:—Ascendant 202° 14′; 2nd 233° 35′; 3rd 264° 57′; 10th 116° 4′; 11th 144° 56′; and 12th 173° 34′.

Nirayana Positions of Planets

The Sun 281° 15′; the Moon 89° 16′; Mars 31° 17′; Mercury 267° 26′; Jupiter 215° 56′; Venus 298° 50′; Saturn 250° 13′; Uranus 112° 56′; Neptune 195° 5′; Pluto 131° 52′; and Rahu 174° 1′.

II. Amavasya tithi commences at 1|11 p.m. (I.S.T.) on 8th Jan. 1959.

Cusps of Houses:—Ascendant 18° 30′; 2nd 44° 14′; 3rd 69° 58′; 10th 275° 43′; 11th 309° 59′; and 12th 344° 15′.

Nirayana Positions of Planets

The Sun 265° 27′; the Moon 253° 26′; Mars 26° 56′; Mercury 244° 56′; Jupiter 213° 27; Venus 279° 24′; the Keraleeya Jatakasara, does neither hesitate, nor waver, in the facts and theories embodied in the work, and throughout the work, there is an unmistakable ring of authoritativeness and even some sort of finality.

(Continued on page 162)

ASTROLOGICAL APPRAISEMENT OF BEHAVIOUR-PATTERNS

(Continued from page 154)

That is perhaps, the main reason, why the work made a direct appeal to my mind and I thought, I might place some of the concepts contained therein, before your readers, in the hope that more active and better-informed, amongst your talented readers may throw further light on the subject.

It is no exaggeration to say that all behaviour-patterns are severely conditioned and hemmed in this way and that, beween a number of forces, physical, social, economic, political, and so forth. Where a given behaviour-pattern is arrested in its adjustmental forward march or movement, by environmental forces and circumstances, the subject finds himself in difficulties. Of course, he or she, has the freedom to act, to subdue or conquer the adverse environmental forces, and direct behaviour to happy and successful termination. All this sounds attractive enough in theory and on paper. In practical life however, it is certainly not given to all to obtain a victory over the environmental forces, which, often prove to be formidable and overwhelming.

Environmental obstructions and obstacles very often bring about something like a shipwreck of personality. It is a profound truth that shipwreck of personality is more disastrous than the ordinary physical shipwreck brought about by violent storm or tempest.

It is very natural and pertinent to investigate if astrological appraisement may show the way.

As far as I am able to see, I can make bold to assert that astrological appraisement would show the way out of more than one difficulty confronting subjects in directing behaviour-patterns to adjustmental harmony, after liquidation of obstructing environmental forces.

Public life in any country is like a stream. Only the lightest, feather-weight champions merrily float on the surface of economic and political current. Consider for a moment the swift and electric developments that have taken place in Iraq. Death, violence, frustrated behaviour, on one side, and on the other, jubilation, victory, change of government and so forth, must make all decent-minded persons think furiously. Are the behaviour-patterns of modern man and modern mankind directed in or along health, moral and spiritual channels? Is any endeavour, anywhere being really and genuinely made, for the establishment of Kingdom of God on Earth? These are disturbing and disquieting questions, provided you commence thinking at all. Astrology furnishes an answer. Each must bear his or her own cross. Each must work out his or her own Karma.

How and in what directions the different behaviour-patterns of individuals, groups, and Nations would be driven by Karma can be ascertained fairly correctly from a study of astrology. Today, they are endlesssly talking of summit-talks, international conferences and so forth. So long as the two irresistible urges—meum and tuum (mine and thine) drive mankind in different directions, it must be difficult to find a lasting or permanent solution to the so-called world-problems.

Years ago, the Gita listed Three Gateways to Hell. They are desire, anger, and covetousness. (Kama, Krodha, Lobha—Gita 16-21). International behaviour-patterns are dominated by these. They are governed by the seven unfavourable houses pointed out by Keraleeya Jatakasara.

Unless and until behaviour-patterns are directed along the moral and spiritual channels indicated by the five favourable houses, neither individual nor group peace and happiness would be enjoyed. I hope, in due time, mankind may realize the mischief of misdirection of their behaviour-patterns.

I desire, to submit, in conclusion, that what I have stated, here, is purely provisional and tentative. I am perfectly willing to learn and get corrected by those better-informed and more devoted to research. One thing is certain. The zodiac is a grand and imposing epitome of all behaviour-patterns, individual, communal, national, international and the like.

Scanned by www.astrojyotish.com Astro-essence B V Raman's Work

FOR JANUARY 1959

BY MIHIRA

"ASTROLOGY is taken from the records of astral phenomena and reduced to a science for observing the effects of planetary influence, commencing with the history of man; these observations being compiled and recorded by some of the brightest intellects known, both ancient and modern. To test its reliability, its truths, and the advantages, requires only earnest unprejudiced investigation. By it the inequalities of humanity are explained and much light is shed upon the path leading to improvement of conditions for all living things."

—Llewellyn George.

Scanned by www.saptarishiastrology.com a property of B V Ramans Work

WEATHER

High winds and rains about 25th, otherwise mostly dry.

COMMODITIES

Gold.—From the very beginning, rise can be expected but there may be some reaction after 9th or 10th.

Silver.—Uncertain trends. Better to sell on every rise as reaction may soon follow.

Other Articles.—Trends uncertain. Rise and fall alternate throughout in respect of most articles.

DAILY GUIDE.

1. Yogam not good for the beginning of any agricultural activity; observe routine or as a holiday.

2. L.D. not suitable for the beginning of any activities; stick to routine such as digging, weeding, fencing, levelling, raking, etc.

3. Yogam not good; L.D. too not propitious; therefore observe holiday or stick to routine.

4. An alround good day; manuring, planting and ploughing can be begun and conducted; for best effects, use chemical manures.

5. An ordinary good date; specially suitable for planting, harvesting, purchase of grain, defraying paddy, purchase of cattle, etc., during day only.

6. Day part good (i.e., until nightfall) generally; manuring and ploughing can best be done; for best effect, use farmyard manure or organic manures.

7. Yogini towards sky after 3 p.m.; yogam bad after 4-40 p.m.; therefore all activities and new beginnings till 3 p.m. only; but asterism suitable only for purchase of cattle and sinking wells.

8. Yogini towards sky or earth whole day and night; avoid ploughing, planting, manuring, but grain and cattle can be purchased or sold.

9. Yogini towards earth till 11-40 a.m.; even thereafter L.D. not so good; asterism not auspicious also; good only for purchase of cattle.

10. An ordinarily good day after 10-40 a.m. for planting, manuring, harvesting and also storing grain.

11. Yogini bad after 2-50 p.m.; till then a good day for ploughing and planting, also purchase of grain.

12. An ordinary day.

13. Marana Yogam throughout day and night; avoid all new beginnings and auspicious activities.

14, 15 & 16. These are generally considered as unsuitable for any new beginnings called charcoal days.

17. L.D. not good for any activity; stick to routine only.

18. Yogini towards sky or earth throughout day and night; avoid planting, ploughing, even manuring; asterism also evil for all purposes.

19. Marana Yogam day and night; avoid all new beginnings.

20. A good day for ploughing and manuring; also generally good for all purposes; for best effect, cattle manure intensively.

21. A very good day for manuring—both for cattle manure as well as artificial manures; for best effects, mix both.

22. Marana Yogam throughout day and night; avoid all new beginnings and confine to routine matters only.

23. L.D. not favourable for new beginnings or activities; keep to routine matters only.

24. A good day for beginning harvest and storage of paddy.

25. L.D. not good for new beginnings; other work can be pushed through.

26. Asterism not good till 12-30 p.m.; Yogini inauspicious thereafter; keep to routine work only.

27. Good generally till 11 a.m.; best for manuring and ploughing; for best effect, use chemical manures.

28. Yogini towards sky or earth day and night; avoid ploughing, planting and manuring also.

29. Yogam bad till 9-45 p.m.; all activities to be avoided till then; Yogini towards earth till 7-20 p.m.; avoid planting and ploughing as also manuring for whole day.

30. A generally good day for all matters, specially for manuring and harvesting operations, also for dealings in cattle.

31. Marana Yogam whole day and practically the whole of night also; avoid all new beginnings.

ALWAYS—Please write your SUBSCRIBER NUMBER printed on the wrapper of your Magazine just above your name and address. This ensures quick attention.

MANAGER,
The Astrological Magazine

ASTRONOMICAL NOTES

(Continued from page 160)

Saturn 248° 35′; Uranus 113° 35′; Neptune 194° 52′; Pluto 132° 9′; and Rahu 175° 52′.

PLANETARY ASPECTS

THE SUN

Parallel	Mercury	on the	6th
Parallel	Saturn	,,	7th
Square	Rahu	,,	8th
Trine	Mars	,,	10th
Sextile	Jupiter	,,	17th
Parallel	Jupiter	,,	26th
Square	Neptune	,,	27th

MERCURY

Sextile	Rahu	on the	1st
Parallel	Venus	,,	4th
Parallel	Saturn	,,	6th
Conjunction	Saturn	,,	11th
Trine	Pluto	,,	13th
Sextile	Neptune	,,	15th
Square	Rahu	,,	21st
Trine	Mars	,,	27th
Parallel	Saturn	,,	28th
Sextile	Jupiter	,,	29th

VENUS

Parallel	Saturn	on the	2nd
Sextile	Jupiter	,,	2nd
Square	Neptune	,,	12th
Parallel	Jupiter	,,	17th
Opposition	Uranus	,,	19th
Trine	Rahu	,,	20th
Square	Mars	,,	26th
Square	Jupiter	,,	30th

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com ; Preserve Dr. B V Raman's Work

SOME ASPECTS OF NADI HOROSCOPES

(Continued from page 88)

Tamil 4-line verses contained the past, present and the future. Eight years have passed and so far one cannot complain. It gave the exact place of birth, in Colombo, near the sea. It said that the grandfather was a post-master—"receiving news from four quarters and redistributing them." The sudden death of the father occurred as foretold. The results of two Medical examinations were correctly indicated. And for last year (1957) the prophecy was: "At the age of 25 you will be transferred to a place surrounded by rocks." This place is well-known to me and there are no gigantic rocks today but the name in Sinhala is Galewela—Rockfield. This name suggests that in the dim past there were large boulders strewn all over and round the village which is now a town.

Much more could be said about the Nadis but the learned Editor must be already pressed for space although he has very kindly invited me to contribute an article for his usual bumper Annual. Before concluding I wish to give a few opinions of esteemed readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE on some aspects of these valuable sources of astrological knowledge :—

"Sri of.....(India) has a few hundreds of bundles of ola leaves and hundreds of people come to him for consultations and unfortunately, I think, all are duped. I have consulted him many times and nearly a dozen of my friends have consulted him and we have paid him in hundreds. I think I have paid him more than 200 rupees but of course on good causes like Shanthies, Vratas and feeding of Brahmins which is not a waste but what I have paid him on consultations is a mere waste of money."

"Certain authors of importance have told me that certain Nadis are called Mantra Nadis which give you all the details of your past and do not give anything of the future. But I am not an astrologer nor have I any idea to suggest particularly to a person like you."

"If you come to this place (Bangalore) I will be only too happy to take you to Kolar and here you can see for yourself a whole lot. Recently he has found out a bundle on which it is written Anusakti Vidhanam—manufacture of atomic energy. He told me that he intends to send it to Sri Nehru so that it can be of some use to our country."

"Sri M. K. Ganapathy Iyer whose articles you might have read in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE informs me that there are certain Nadi granthas in Coimbatore and Hyderabad though a costly affair can be very conveniently relied upon. If you can contact him I think he may be able to give you exhaustive ideas about nadis because, in my opinion, he appears to have made a complete study of these Nadi granthas."

The mention of atomic energy in para 3 above reveals the powerful vision of the sage who peeped into the yet far distant life on this planet. We read recently in the Press that a British scientist has almost succeeded in creating test-tube babies. This too was anticipated by Rishi Agasthya and one of the men who will do it will be the son of a Tamil father and a Sinhala mother. The couple got married recently after a love-episode in Nepal in the dim and distant past. The would-be father's leaf says: "Your eldest son will discover something new that will change the sexes. Children will be made to be born by him without the union of male and female. He will be famous and will return to the island of Lanka when you are 57 and will marry your sister's daughter."

The astro-palmistry part of the Agasthya prophecies is indeed a remarkable feature of ancient Hindu astrology. The leaves show that the persons now concerned with worldly matters were important personages in a past existence and that they are working out their salvation or damnation in this existence. If the past is correct there is no reason why, in quite a large number of cases, the future has been a total blank. There is a possible explanation. Certain ola bundles contain disjointed horoscope readings and a thorough mix-up after the copies were made from the original Sanskrit works.

FOR JANUARY 1959

By MIHIRA

"THESE precepts (regarding elections) may be considered ridiculous and unnecessary by persons who are unacquainted with astrology, but there can be no harm in observing them. We should prefer observing them, when possible, to running the risk of failure by beginning an important transaction at an unfortunate moment. Apart from astrology, it is difficult to understand why some businesses fail notwithstanding that capital, energy, and industry have been brought into them; or why one ship whose keel was laid at one hour proves fortunate investment, while another, whose keel was laid at another hour, proves a most unlucky one. Some transactions seem doomed to failure from their inception and even the enemies of astrology speak of such as "ill-starred" affairs although unaware of the meaning of this expression."

—A. J. Pearce.

"The nature of the forces operating at any given moment depends upon the nature and disposition of the several planets at the moment concerned. Instances of loss of life, loss of money and distress and disappointments to the traveller because the journey was undertaken when the planetary vibrations were inharmonious can be cited ad infinitum".

—B. V. Raman.

Yatra Panchakam.—Add lunar date, day, asterism and Lagna for the time and date of proposed journey and multiply by 15 and divide by 9. If there is a remainder of 5, it is called Roga Panchakam. If multiplied by 12 and divided by 9, there is a remainder of 5, it is called Agni Panchakam. If multiplied by 10 and divided by 9, there is a remainder of 5, it is called Chora Panchakam. If multiplied by 4 and divided by 9, and there is a remainder of 5, it is called Mrityu Panchakam and the consequences respectively are disease and sickness, fire or heat, theft, death. These dates should be avoided for travel.

—Kalavidhanam.

DAILY GUIDE

1. Marana Yogam till 4–15 a.m. (night); journeys safe thereafter; till then avoid journeys at least towards south.

3. Marana Yogam till 10–45 p.m.; journeys only thereafter; till then avoid journeys at least towards east.

6. Marana Yogam after 6–5 p.m.; avoid journeys thereafter at least towards north.

7. Yogini towards sky after 3 p.m.; Marana Yogam after 4–40 p.m.; start on journeys before 3 p.m.; avoid journeys towards north.

8. Yogini towards earth or sky day and night; avoid air journeys at least towords south.

9. Yogini towards earth till 11–40 a.m.; air journeys safe thereafter; avoid journeys towards west.

11. Marana Yogam after 2–50 p.m.; avoid journeys thereafter especially towards west.

13. Marana Yogam whole day and night; avoid journeys at least towards north.

17. Yogini towards sky after 5–20 p.m.; avoid air journeys thereafter at least towards east.

18. Yogini towards sky or earth day and night; avoid air journeys at least towards west.

19. Marana Yogam throughout day and night till 6–20 a.m.; avoid air journeys; asterism too evil; Yogini towards earth till 9–45 p.m.; all the more reason to avoid journeys by air; towards east specially evil.

22. Marana Yogam day and night; avoid journeys especially towards south.

26. Marana Yogam after 12–30 p.m.; avoid journeys thereafter especially towards east.

27. Yogini towards sky after 11 p.m.; avoid air journeys thereafter at least towards north.

28. Yogini towards sky or earth whole day and night; avoid air journeys at least towards north.

29. Yogini towards earth till 7–20 p.m.; Marana Yogam till 9–45 a.m.; avoid journeys by air especially towards south.

31. Marana Yogam till 5–5 a.m. (night); avoid journeys especially towards east.

Varshaphal

OR

THE HINDU PROGRESSED HOROSCOPE

Based on Tajaka (6TH EDITION)

By B. V. RAMAN

This book based on Tajaka covers fresh grounds in the field of prediction. It describes a unique method never before disclosed for deciphering annual life readings. Predictions made according to this work yield unique results. Whether you are a layman or initiated, you can draw up and interpret the annual reading in an easy and scientific manner. The system propounded in the pages of this work is rational and in actual practice yields most satisfactory results.

OPINION

"The author outlines a method of deciphering annual results from the Hindu horoscope. He claims that the principles of Tajaka astrology have been found to work accurately in actual practice, and controverts the orthodox belief that the system can be applied only to charts of individuals who have passed the age of thirty. There are many useful tables at the end and a summary."

—Indian Express.

Rs. 3 or Sh. 6

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari"

BANGALORE-3

FOR JANUARY 1959

All positions are true for 5-30 a.m. (I.S.T.)

Jan.	Day of the Week	Sun ☉ Ravi			Moon ☽ Chandra			Mars ♂ Kuja		Mer. ☿ Budha		Jup. ♃ Guru		Venus ♀ Sukra		Saturn ♄ Sani		Rahu ☊ Rahu
		°	′	″	°	′	″	°	′	°	′	°	′	°	′	°	′	°	′
1	Thursday	257	59	32	149	21	11	25	37	235	47	212	9	270	13	247	39	176	14
2	Friday	259	0	41	163	10	32	25	46	236	56	212	20	271	28	247	46	176	11
3	Saturday	260	1	51	177	9	48	25	55	238	7	212	31	272	44	247	53	176	8
4	Sunday	261	3	0	191	18	56	26	5	239	21	212	42	273	59	248	0	176	5
5	Monday	262	4	10	205	36	56	26	16	240	36	213	53	275	14	248	7	176	1
6	Tuesday	263	5	21	220	1	29	26	27	241	52	213	3	276	29	248	14	175	58
7	Wednesday	264	6	31	234	28	29	26	39	243	11	213	14	277	45	248	21	175	55
8	Thursday	265	7	41	248	52	27	26	52	244	30	213	24	279	0	248	28	175	52
9	Friday	266	8	52	263	7	4	27	5	245	51	213	35	280	15	248	34	175	48
10	Saturday	267	10	2	277	6	17	27	18	247	13	213	45	281	31	248	41	175	45
11	Sunday	268	11	11	290	45	19	27	32	248	36	213	55	282	46	248	48	175	42
12	Monday	269	12	21	304	1	26	27	47	249	59	214	5	284	1	248	55	175	39
13	Tuesday	270	13	22	316	54	8	28	2	251	24	214	15	285	16	249	2	175	36
14	Wednesday	271	14	38	329	25	5	28	18	252	50	214	25	286	31	249	9	175	33
15	Thursday	272	15	45	341	37	41	28	34	254	16	214	35	287	47	249	15	175	29
16	Friday	273	16	52	353	36	32	28	51	255	43	214	44	289	2	249	22	175	24
17	Saturday	274	17	58	5	26	57	29	8	257	10	214	54	290	17	249	29	175	23
18	Sunday	275	19	4	17	14	35	29	26	258	39	215	3	291	32	249	35	175	20
19	Monday	276	20	8	29	4	56	29	44	260	8	215	13	292	47	249	42	175	16
20	Tuesday	277	21	12	41	3	11	30	2	261	37	215	22	294	2	249	48	175	13
21	Wednesday	278	22	15	53	13	42	30	22	263	8	215	31	295	17	249	55	175	10
22	Thursday	279	23	17	65	39	50	30	41	264	38	215	40	296	33	250	1	175	6
23	Friday	280	24	18	78	23	38	31	1	266	10	215	49	297	40	250	8	175	3
24	Saturday	281	25	19	91	25	36	31	21	267	42	215	58	299	3	250	14	174	0
25	Sunday	282	26	18	104	44	44	31	42	269	15	216	6	300	18	250	21	174	57
26	Monday	283	27	17	118	18	48	32	2	270	48	216	15	301	33	250	27	174	54
27	Tuesday	284	28	15	132	4	43	32	24	272	22	216	23	302	48	250	33	174	51
28	Wednesday	285	29	12	145	59	9	32	45	273	56	216	32	304	3	250	40	174	48
29	Thursday	286	30	9	159	59	8	33	7	275	32	216	40	305	18	250	46	174	45
30	Friday	287	31	5	174	2	22	33	30	277	8	216	48	306	32	250	52	174	42
31	Saturday	288	32	0	188	7	19	33	52	278	44	216	56	307	47	250	58	174	39

AYANAMSA 21° 49′ 34.6″

Scanned by www.vedicastrologer.com Preserved By B. Ramakrishna Work

A FEW SHOP-SOILED COPIES OF THE FOLLOWING BOOKS ARE AVAILABLE

	Rs.	nP.		Rs.	nP.
Astrology and Modern Thought	1	00	The Universe and the Heavens	3	00
Your Next Five Years—1953 to 1957	0	75	Ayurveda	0	75
Muhurtha or Electional Astrology	5	50	Annual Numbers of 1954 & 1956	2	50
Manual of Hindu Astrology	3	00

No. V.P.P. Post Free. Send M.O. or I.P.O.

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS : : "Sri Rajeswari" : : BANGALORE-3

STARS IN THEIR Seasons

By M. V. RAMAKRISHNAN, M.A., L.T.

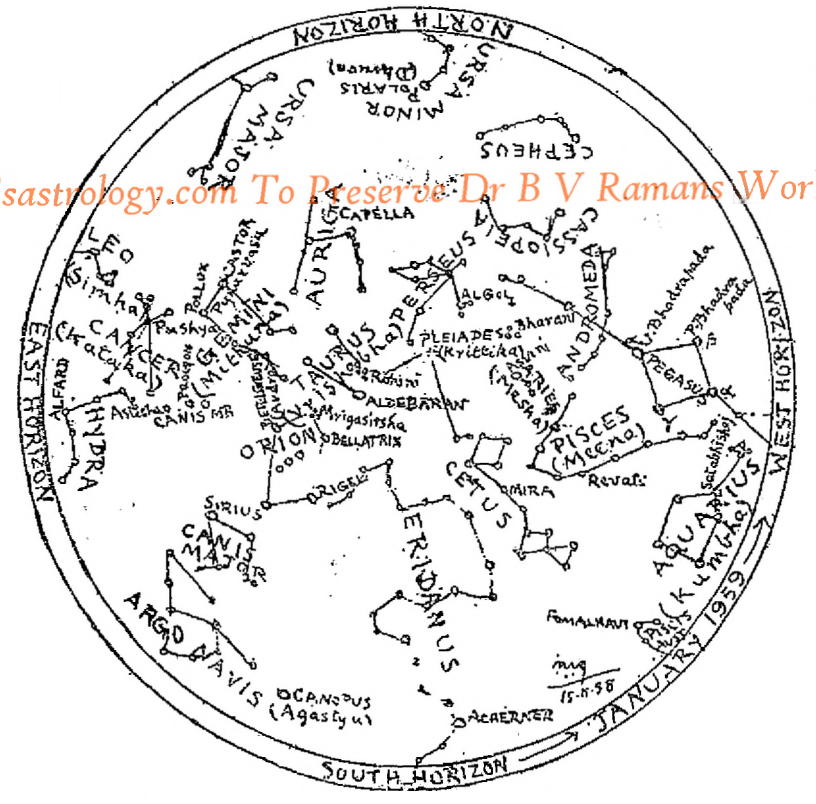
Night Sky in January 1959

Zodiacal Constellations

THE zodiacal constellations that are visible this month at about 9-30 in the night, are from west to east Aquarius (Kumbha), Pisces (Meena), Aries (Mesha), Taurus (Vrishabha), Gemini (Mithuna) and Cancer (Kataka). Aquarius is setting, and you can see the lunar asterism Satabhisha a little above the western horizon. Aries and Pisces have crossed the meridian. The three stars of Aries are seen as a beautiful pendant high in the north-western sky. The lunar asterism Aswini can be identified in this group. The three stars forming the asterism Bharani are seen a little below Aswini. The asterism Revati in the Pisces group is the third star from the junction star in the lower arm of the V, which is the shape of the constellation Pisces. Taurus is seen high overhead with its principal star Aldebaran and its famous clusters Hyades and Pleiades shining prominently. Gemini is seen high in the north-eastern sky, and you can recognise its twin stars Castor and Pollux, which form the asterism Punarvasu.

Non-Zodiacal Constellations

Among the non-zodiacal constellations, Ursa Minor is seen balancing on its head, with Alpha Minoris the pole-star directly towards the north. Cassiopeia and Cepheus have crossed the meridian. Pegasus and Andromeda also have crossed the meridian and are seen in the west-north-western sky. You can identify in these constellations the lunar asterisms the Bhadrapadas. Orion is approaching the meridian ; and starting from the star Rigel at the foot of Orion runs the celestial river Eridanus southward and ending at the bright star Acherner. Canis Major with its principal star Sirius, the brightest of the stars in the sky, is seen high up in the south-east ; while Canis Minor with its principal star Procyon is seen above the eastern horizon. In the south-eastern sky you can also see Argo Navis in full sail, with its principal star Canopus at its tail-end.



Lunar Asterisms

The lunar asterisms that can be identified in the visible hemisphere are Satabhisha in Aquarius, the Bhadrapadas in Pegasus and Andromeda, Revati in Pisces, Aswini and Bharani in Aries, Krittika and Rohini in Taurus, Mrigasira and Ardra in Orion, Punarvasu in Gemini, Pushya in Cancer and Aslesha in Hydra.

The Milky Way

The Milky Way is seen to extend from south-east to north-west, passing through or between the constellations Argo Navis, Canis Major, Canis Minor, Orion, Taurus, Perseus, Auriga and Cassiopeia.

Scanned by www.vedicastrologyhisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

[The chart should be held in such a way that the horizon marked at the bottom in the chart corresponds to the horizon the observer is facing. Then the constellations he sees before him from the horizon to the zenith will be found in the chart from the bottom to the centre. The constellations to his right and left will be found in the corresponding positions of the chart].

General Commercial Indications for 1959

[This study is not intended as a tip for investors to follow. The writers have arrived at certain conclusions regarding Cotton, Commodities, etc., mainly based on planetary influences. Those who act on this information will be doing so at their own risk.—Ed., A.M.]

By D. R. MUNSIF, B.Sc. (Econ.) (London), B.A. (Hons.) (Bombay),
5/1, Russel Street, Royal Court, Calcutta-16.

IN the 1958 annual number of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, a few general forecasts were given on the basis of solar returns, planetary cycles, and other astronomical phenomena like occultations, etc.

While giving the particulars of planetary cycles, it was forecast that January and February were to be bullish. In May a reaction—Rahu's conjunction with Jupiter—was given to lift the prices in July. All these general forecasts have proved correct. At the time of writing this in August 1958, events of September and onwards are in the limbo of time but by the time the Annual is published in December 1958, readers will have no regrets in having followed the suggestions given in the previous annual.

Along with the stock-market rise, we predicted an economic crisis, unemployment and business failures. Further on the basis of Jupiter's and Neptune's cycles, total failure of the much discussed Disarmament Conference was predicted and the cycles between Uranus and Neptune were considered to be an augury for the spread of communism. The ferment in the Arab World and conditions in Indonesia have amply borne this out. As a further proof, events in Egypt, Tunisia, Algeria and Ghana in Africa give a red signal in the same direction.

The results obtained by the application of principles underlying the planetary cycles, are so remarkable that the whole technique of predicting from aspects between planets can be said to be a new instrument in the art of mundane astrology. But in fact we cannot say that it is a question of our pure and simple invention because Ptolemy in his "Meditations" has remarked in one very significant sentence: "One must observe with care everyone of the 119 conjunctions of planets because it is from them that one acquires the knowledge of mysterious forces which produce in the world generation and corruption". On the other hand, Ptolemy was not the only person to remark on the importance of cycles. In Mundane Astrology of Morin de Villefranche, we find in equal measure the precise indications on the subject which carry the discussion still further because Morin talks about the evolution of cycles and their relation to subsequent aspects which develop as the planets proceed on their onward march. But the ancients had no knowledge of the transcendant planets Uranus, Neptune and Pluto to which we pay now so much importance.

What exactly do we understand by planetary cycles? The mundane events are determined by the co-ordination of several tendencies which cause, evolve and pass on to a maximum of amplitude and then begin to decrease in importance and thus the order of humanity on this earth follows the cosmic order; thus the technique of planetary cycles has an impact upon the times and brings about events which we discern by interpreting the planetary phenomenon.

To illustrate this theory of planetary cycles that a conjunction between two planets gives birth to some precise tendencies at the moment, it will be sufficient to refer to the New Moon cycle. Thus the chart drawn for the exact time of the conjunction of the two luminaries is valid for the 28 days at the end of which another conjunction takes place. The tendencies which are not very prominent at the time bear fruits during the course of the month. They attain the maximum at the time of the Full Moon, i.e., when the Sun and the Moon oppose each other after which they diminish in importance. To arrive at the purely astrological considerations, we should note the successive transformation of tendencies expressed by the different aspects which follow.

During the year there are particularly two sets of cycles that play an important part throughout the year. Of the two, one is preponderantly obtruding itself on the political plane and that is the cycle of Pluto and Neptune. Both of them remain in sextile aspect throughout the year. But during the first half, the sextile aspect is not so important because the aspect is not exact. For the aspect of such trans-saturnine planets to play a part on this plane, the orbs should be narrower than we allow for the planets round our solar system. The cycle plays an important part soon after July. Neptune is the planet of communism as well as that of the Arab world. We must remember that this aspect takes place after the square aspect between Uranus and Neptune which was termed as the winter of capitalism in the 1958 Annual. This square is now stimulated and Pluto adds its significance to the communist philosophy of the world. Pluto is deemed to be a planet of integration but with a malefic colour. I would therefore add that the communist countries will unite still closer and the powerful among them will be able to impose their will completely upon their lesser neighbours.

Neptune engenders and spreads chaos in the economic world but with Pluto's configuration added to it, the economic structure will begin its reintegration around completely new lines. The pattern of the existing international trade will be transformed, more and more synthetic materials will come on the market, plastics will replace the existing hard materials. Neptune is connected with mineral oil and Pluto's configuration shows that more and more compounds based on oil chemistry will be developed. Finally, Pluto's integrating forces will bring new discoveries in the field of atomic science and harness those forces which build up the atom and not split the atom.

For good or for evil, the Arab world is going to intrude more and more on the international political sphere. Whenever Neptune was stimulated during 1958, incidents in the Arab world played an important part in attracting the attention of the world to itself. All this is discussed at length because the reintegration of economic structure will destroy existing trades and even some industries and bring new ones into existence. Cotton industry will be hard hit while jute is likely to flourish. Chemicals will soar up, oil will be very much in demand with mineral and vegetable; the latter because Pluto is in Virgo. The science of food production will be entirely reorganised. A few revolutionary discoveries will take place in this field. On the whole, there will be a sustained upward surge of values on the stock-exchange from August 1959 onwards, with a few reactions and the bears during the period will be annihilated; but despair is the watchword for cotton industry. Small companies will merger into large units with the result that monopolistic instituitions will play and determine the economic policies all over the world.

Courtesy of the Astrological Association Collection, Lesser Library, New York

The year 1959 begins with a sesqui-quadrate between Saturn and Uranus which again reforms in July and August. The three months of January, July and August will engender false hopes in the breasts of bears. There may be a decline here and there but this is the right time to pick up a few good scrips. In November, Jupiter stimulates both Neptune and Pluto, forming semi-sextile with Neptune and square with Pluto. The aspects between Jupiter and Neptune are usually inflationary. Such a semi-sextile occurred in 1908, when the labour party was formed in England and large scale measures of social legislation were introduced in England and Australia. Once again in 1918, at the end of the Great War, the world was deluged with paper-money. In 1933, under the force of this aspect, the failure of disarmament occurred and Germany under Hitler and Italy under Mussolini followed such economic policies as to conquer unemployment at home and introduced championistic propaganda in the political life of Europe. In 1933, it was the New Deal of Roosevelt in America while in 1944, the world was in the grip of the second World War. This year, since it stimulates both Neptune and Pluto, its effects are likely to be more inflationary. I warn therefore the bears both on the stock and commodity markets. There will also emerge a scarcity of foodgrains and raw materials and specially oilseeds.

While forming a semi-sextile with Neptune, Jupiter forms a square with Pluto. Here comes a real danger of war. It occurred in 1934 and 1940. The former was marked by the withdrawal of Germany from the League of Nations while during the latter year, there was a rupture of the Soviet-German Pact. All this led to a heavy armament programme which brought about a rise in the prices of the new products of the world. Similar conditions will emerge in 1959 specially in August and September of the year.

In March, Uranus is sextile with Rahu—this lifts up the prices of Electric Company shares and of companies manufacturing electric equipment, radios, television, etc. This also will raise the price of raw jute and jute shares. In August and September, the semi-sextile between Rahu and Neptune adds fuel to the fire of inflationary forces and brings war nearer to this world of ours.

In March, April and May 1959, Saturn remains in close sextile to Neptune. Within living memory, such aspects had occurred in 1922-23 and in 1946-47. During the former period, stabilisation of the communist revolution emerged, the organisation of the Soviet States was brought about and the constitution of 1923 was declared. The Russian Soviet State once again entered into the international community. In 1946-47, the restoration of Soviet economic life after the ravages of the war was brought about, and the Soviet expansion took place. At this time on April 8, 1959 occurs an eclipse with Saturn in the 10th house, Sun in the 1st house and Mars in the 8th house for the map drawn for Berlin. It brings the war once again to the doors of Central Europe. It is a time of the cold war at its highest level. One cannot say whether war will actually break out or not, but it certainly brings the efforts of communist expansion to the fore. As an indirect consequence of this cycle, prices of raw commodities will leap up.

In short, this year means not only the exit of bears but their annihilation except in cotton industry and small economic organisations. The Arab world will try to emerge as a great power under the inspiration of the communists but will remain a distinct entity to try its strength somewhere at the end of the century to establish successfully an empire of its own.

Buy shares of oil companies, electric companies, chemical companies, jute companies and metal companies and of those manufacturing food products. All the foodgrains and raw materials will rise to new heights along with leather. Remain on the side of bulls but there will be very heavy reactions of short duration for which watch the comments in the monthly issues of this magazine.

One more significant fact to note that very early in January, Saturn enters Capricorn—the tenth sign having a sway over big business and organisation. It is well aspected with Pluto and later on it advances with Neptune. It will enable therefore men of business to consolidate the gains and strengthen the foundation on which a big edifice can be built. But its association with both Neptune and Pluto indicate that once again the death-knell of the ballot box is being sounded and all over the world dictatorial trends will emerge and gain strength. Since our country is supposed to be ruled by Capricorn, we shall not escape the propaganda for dictatorship of one kind or the other.

BY A. P. SATHE
Dr. Deshmukh Building,
Dr. Deshmukh Lane, Bombay-4

Before discussing the planetary positions, it will not be out of place to discuss the general economic conditions as they appear in 1958. A student of economics will come forward with statistical figures and prove that money is now easily available and Banks are having surplus funds since last two months (these notes are being typed in August 1958) but as a common man what I find is that the economic condition of masses stand at a very low ebb. It is hardly possible for an individual whatever his income may be to meet two ends or to maintain his standard of living. What we are living today is an artificial life. Just to explain what I mean, I cite an example here from commercial field only. You might be reading reports that cloth consumption has gone down. Stocks are mounting and the Textile Mills are facing the danger of closure. How in the rising index of population with the number of mills standing as they are cloth consumption is ever coming down is a problem beyond my imagination unless there is what is called strict buyer's resistance. That position is yet to come. If, however, the hue and cry about accumulation of stocks is true, would not have cloth prices come down to some extent? Nay, they are rising. It only means that traders, stockists and millowners irrespective of the fact that stocks are rising, are in a position to hold the stocks and maintain higher price levels, being afraid of the slump in prices. This is true not only of the textile trade but other trades and individuals also are experiencing the same situation. Every one is trying to keep the balance and maintain his standard but no one knows when this bubble will burst. I call this status as false and artificial. In this so-called socialistic pattern of society labour and agriculturists representing 90% of the population are still facing the danger of ever increasing cost of living. In relation to these factors that are now prevailing, it will be worth while judging the major planetary transits in the year 1959.

Saturn.—During the whole year of 1959 Saturn transits Sagittarius, the nakshatras transitted being Moola and Purvashada. While for the major period Saturn transits Moola, only for a short period (from 24th March to 10th May) the transit is in reference to Purvashada. In my last Annual Report I had discussed in detail the effect of Saturn's transit of Dhanus, but at the same time had expressed doubts as to how far the effects could be visible, since then Saturn had not finally left Scorpio. During the year under review full effects of this transit would be witnessed. This transit is taken to be bearish and indicative of depression. Depression does not necessarily mean slump in prices, but unsatisfactory working and living conditions for the masses. Anyway astrological indications and the reading of Saturn's transit in Dhanus are to be that there would be slump in prices and steadily within the next 2½ years prices would come down to comparable levels. There is no need for an astrologer to state that prices of foodgrains would still be on the higher side because of the fact that the population is going steadily up, while crop production has come down with all the plans in force. Other commodities or items which are not of first necessity will show abnormal fall. Dhanus falls in the 12th house from the rising sign of the country. 12th house transit of this planet cannot be said to help economic development. Square aspect between Rahu and Saturn indicates that many unexpected factors will crop up and stop the progress. Political atmosphere will not be free from conflicts and labour problems will add fuel to the fire. 12th house in a National chart represents coal and gold storages, fishing, fishery, prisons, hospitals and asylums. All these will be hard hit during the transit of Saturn through Dhanus. Mine labour will create serious troubles. The recent proposals about gold bond issue are just an indication as to how Saturn's transit in Dhanus is likely to produce results. Some such measure greatly affecting trade pattern in all these sections cannot be overruled, during the period of Saturn's transit. While comparing the nakshatra transits, Purvashada is comparatively helpful for general economic conditions and this transit of short duration will prove highly bullish; though at the very time many individuals will experience strife in domestic sphere. This planet has a role of Rasesh (रसेश) during the Saka year 1881. This factor also indicates scarcity of metals in general. It may be stated here that stringency in supplies of metals like steel, tin, gold, copper will be felt and prices of all these along with rubber will be very bullish during the whole year. Saturn as lord of masses—labour and agriculturists—will not be happy and labour tussels will prove a great hindrance in the economic progress of the country during the year under review.

Jupiter.—This planet represents food and clothing in a national chart. As a general benefic, on the transit of this planet one has to look to the general conditions about foodgrain supplies. Jupiter passes through Thula and Scorpio, nakshatras transitted being Visakha, Anuradha and Jyeshta. Transit from Thula is taken to be fairly good for crop availability. Distribution of available crops, or foodstuffs will be properly maintained thereby keeping the price under strict vigilance and control. While general transit from Scorpio is thus helpful, the transit from nakshatra Anuradha in the latter two navamsas is taken to be bullish. During the year under review, Jupiter retrogrades on 19th March and remains so till 20th July. In the months of June and July the transit is from Thula, which is favourable for crops. Along with this the fact that during Saka year 1881 Jupiter is the 'King' and is also Agradhanyesh (अग्रधान्येश) indicates that monsoon crops will be quite good; though the crops available in the latter half will be damaged. From the point of view of production of foodgrains, Jupiter is helpful. For crops usually produced in the latter part of the year, this transit will help in bringing down the price level of essential goods.

Rahu.—This point of revolution is most important when one has to judge the progress of economic development. The transit of Rahu during the whole year contains Chitta (upto 28th January 1959), Hasta (till 28th October 1959) and Uttaraphalguna (till 28th October 1959). Till Hasta transit is taken to favour rise in values of all exportable goods as also progress in industrial sphere specially engineering undertakings and big factories.

Two divergent forces seem to be acting here: Rahu's transit in Virgo helping the economic development as also foreign trade, while Saturn's transit and aspect on the 9th denotes quite contrary results. It may be stated therefore that bouts of rise and fall in values of stocks and shares and exportable commodities would be indicated in the whole year; and it is necessary that traders remain within their limits if they wish to avoid from their being trapped in these wide fluctuations.

Mars.—Among the minor planets, this needs utmost consideration since as lord of the 4th house—house of produces—on the strength of this planet depends the extent of rise or fall of commodity values. By nature a fiery element, twisting of price structure depends mainly on Mars.

Commodities.—It is not possible to discuss in this article the various solar ingress charts, but after taking the transit of Mars, and the four quarterly Sankranti charts (Makara, Mesha, Cancer and Thula), I give below periods indicating good rise:—

1. Makara Sankranti to Mesha Sankranti:

   24th January to 18th February.
   17th March to 31st March.

2. Mesha to Cancer Ingress:

   10th April to 13th May, most erratic and wide both fluctuations. Note this period.—
   11th May to 30th May rise.
   9th June to 22nd June rise.
   9th July to 16th July rise.

3. Cancer to Thula Ingress:

   3rd September to 27th September.

4. Thula to Makara Sankranti:

   17th October to 3rd Dec. 1959.

Cotton and Allied Products.—Saturn's transit of Moola and Purvashada cannot be classified to be unfavourable totally for this particular commodity. While Saturn transits Moola, Punarvasu (one of the major cotton nakshatras) remains under Vedha and this fact should help to keep the prices of this commodity on an average on higher side. This factor will however be very bullish for U.S.A. Cotton since there is every likelihood that cotton crop in U.S.A. will fail to a great extent. Sagittarius transit of Saturn is a factor for general depression. How the price of this commodity will be maintained is a factor for consideration. The high level should be fixed after understanding the technical considerations by the traders. Jupiter's transit is not helping rise. Monsoons will be favourable and during the monsoon period will the cotton prices really suffer a good set back. Otherwise prices will on an average be on the higher side because of intermittent martian transits coupled with Saturn's transit to help the sentiments. I may state here that the months of February, March, May, October, November and December will be highly bullish. The movements in other months will be narrow and bearish.

Oilseeds.—Irrespective of the fact that exports are likely to go up during Rahu's transit in Virgo and that our Government is bent upon helping the export drive, Sagittarius transit of Saturn is expected to hit this section *more; along with the fact that Govern*ment will have to restrict prices of foodgrain varieties since the domestic market will otherwise badly be affected. Distribution will also be properly arranged for by the Government. I therefore anticipate that this section will remain subdued during the whole year; or if necessary Government will take up this section under their control to keep the parity in price through the State Trading Corporation. April, June, July, August and September are specially bearish.

Metals and Bullions.—Saturn's transits are likely to change the trade pattern in precious metals. I expect that perhaps forward trade in this section will come to an end. Prices of other metals, rubber, tin, etc., will on an average be enjoying boom conditions.

Foodgrains.—Jupiter's transit is most favourable to keep the prices of this section under control. Monsoon crops being quite good, paddy and rice prices will be under check, but wheat prices will be badly affected and they will be witnessing a rising trend in the latter part of the year. Proper distribution however will be maintained by the Government. Looking to the general economic conditions, and the dwindling resources of petty stockists and traders, foodgrain prices will be well under control during the whole year. Only in the latter part of the year that prices will

(Continued on page 178)

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com ©Preserved by Vedic Research Network

ASTROLOGICAL AFFILIATIONS OF RELIGION AND THEOLOGY

(Continued from page 96)

Critically expounding the relation between Language and Reality and the Meaning of Meaning (i.e., words and their import) Vachaspati Misra, has written a remarkable classic known as Tattvabindu. In the opening benedictory stanza of the work, Vachaspati has offered salutations both to Siva and Vishnu. This has not been an arbitrary practice. Adequate and convincing reasons have been assigned by the commentator. There is a well-known dictum that if one wanted to be favoured with knowledge, he should offer worship to Siva. As the author was commencing a highly original work, he wanted perennial supply of intellectual inspiration for which he rightly prayed to Lord Siva. Works and treatises should last for ages together, and if these are short-lived their purpose would be defeated. So, as the author desired protection and perservation of his work for the benefit of several generations, he offered prayers to the Supreme Lord Vishnu.

There is no need further to elaborate the matter. In the light of the express, categorical and unequivocal indications thrown out by Vachaspati, it must be admitted that the two deities are different from one another. They are not identical with one another. That is why I have proceeded along a comparatively new line of approach and examined the question in the light of evidence furnished by astrology.

From the texts examined in the preceding paragraphs, it must be clear that planetary correlations and affiliations contain irrefutable and incontrovertible evidence to support the thesis of absolute difference between Siva and Vishnu. The Sutras of Jaimini have indicated planetary affiliations for proficiency in different sastras like Tarka, Vedanta, etc. The author has not given any planetary mappings to indicate devotion to the Dvaitic or Advaitic school. Possibly, here and there, indications may be lying hidden or submerged, but, they are not pronounced, as far as I can judge.

(10)

I should now place before your readers one or two practical suggestions for the reading of charts, with a view to ascertaining whether the individuals concerned will be devotees of Siva or Vishnu. As already observed by me, there are not many who follow the system of Jaimini in professional practice of astrology. Assuming there are a few, they would work out the details in reference to the Atmakaraka planet. Others, who may not be following the Jaiminian methodology may try to read the charts according to scheme of Varahamihira correlating planets and specific deities. Others may turn to the affiliations and correlation laid down by the author of Daivajnyaabharana if they are not satisfied with the methods of Jaimini and Varahamihira. The author of the Aabharana has unmistakably indicated a specific point of departure in reference to the 5th house.

I shall proceed a step further. Taking as it were a leaf out of the book Aabharana, I venture to suggest that students of research may substitute the fifth with another. The most natural and appropriate would be the Lagna or ascendant itself which will function and do duty for the Atmakaraka of Jaimini.

Thus, the nature of the lord of Lagna, the ruler of the navamsa of lagna, their positions and the aspects they receive would enable one to indicate the religious and theological preferences for this or that deity. Not merely the Lagna. The 3rd house also is determinant of the mind and mental functions. Whether the mind of a person is centred on god-head, or, is twisted and tortured by irreligion and godlessness would depend on consideration of the 3rd house. In addition, the 9th house also will have to be considered. It is usually connected with Dharma, and the theological categorization of the deity concerned would be guided by the light thrown from this house.

One may not complain that there are two many approaches. That cannot be helped. The Lagna, the Atmakaraka, their navamsas, 3rd 5th, and the 9th house will have to be studied, if the deity of one's choice is to be determined correctly. In some cases, the said approaches may not be sufficient at all. They may be luke-warm and non-committal in responses. If so, the nature of the constellations occupied by the planets concerned, and their planetary rulers will have to be examined.

The constellation system has come to stay in predictive astrology and it has got to be pressed into service. When all is said and done, it is still a mystery, in what manner and by means of what calculations, the author of the Dhruvanadi specifies point-blank that birth in particular amsas indicates loyalty to Siva and birth in some others means devotion to Vishnu. Only patient and systematic future research alone may throw some real illumination on the problem and its solution.

Safety does not seem to lie in dogged adherence to any one of the approaches mentioned. A judicious combination and averaging of the results seem the best able to yield correct indications.

(11)

I shall now briefly, attempt an answer to a question posed by me in a previous section. I asked—why has Jaimini correlated devotion to Siva with Sun the centre of the planetary system, and devotion to Vishnu with the weakest of the planets—Saturn? I reject the position that one deity should not be regarded superior and inferior and so on. (In the present contribution, the issues cannot be fully argued). In fact, in Hindu religio-theological history, some have taken Lord Siva to be supremest. Others have assigned absolute supremacy to Lord Vishnu—who is the Supreme Power indicated in the Vedanta Sutras as creator, preserver, destroyer, etc., of the entire universe of matter and spirit.

The central issue has been fully fought out. That was in the sixteenth century. Appayya Dikshita argued in support of supremacy of Siva. Vijayindra-tirtha maintained absolute supremacy of Vishnu. Their works and treatises are before the public. They may be studied, and your readers are at liberty to arrive at their own conclusions. My personal conviction and conclusion would be in favour of the absolute supremacy of Vishnu. I also, believe, that Varahamihira was an upholder of the supremacy of Vishnu—Lord Suryanarayana.

Students of Hindu theological literature would be aware of the view that Lord Siva is easily satisfied and would quickly confer favours on devotees. Lord Siva is described as Kshipraprasada (quickly-favouring).

Naturally, Jaimini correlated devotion to Siva with Sun whose light has been held to have the greatest velocity. On the contrary, it is very hard and difficult to please Lord Vishnu who has to be worshipped for long periods, in severest of austerities, and most rigorous of penances. Consequently, the slowest-moving planet would seem to have been correlated by Jaimini with devotion to Vishnu.

Other lines of reflection may suggest themselves to your readers, and I have put on record just the interpretation which seemed to be to be most logical and rationally sustainable. It may not be correct to seek to dismiss the question as minor one or argue that Jaimini himself had not intended any special meaningfulness to the correlations. On the contrary, Jaimini having been an orthodox sage should be deemed to have rendered his correlations deliberate and meaningful.

There is another view which deserves mention. Some would admit the existence of a fourth power over and above the trinity —Brahma, Siva and Vishnu. This fourth, (Tureeya) is not mentioned by astrologers, and there are no planetary indications for devotion to the Tureeya. In the history of human speculative system-building, two important lines of thought have been prevalent.

According to one school (Advaita) Man and God are understood to be one in essence and existence. Others believe (non-Advaitic systems) that Man and God are absolutely and radically different from one another. As noticed previously, Jaimini has mentioned correlations for proficiency in Tarka (logic), Meemamsa (Vedic exegetics), and other sastras. But, no special or specific correlation has been indicated for devotion to the doctrine of oneness (Advaita) or of difference between God and Man (Dvaita, etc.).

I am unable to arrive at any sort even of surmise or conjecture. Perhaps, Jaimini might have thought that the correlations mentioned for Vedanta would also function as indicators of different sub-divisions of Vedanta. If so, identification of the said correlations is yet to be attempted.

Jaimini has also, included in his reckoning, 5th house from the Atmakaraka and it is my personal view, (not yet statistically verified by means of an examination of different charts) that if the 5th house or ascendant be occupied by a malefic and a benefic both weakened, preference will be for the school of Oneness. If these planets be situated singly, preference may be for the school of Difference. The planets may be in actual occupation of the houses, or may even be strongly aspecting them. I hasten to submit that what I have here stated is purely tentative, and nothing more substantial than a mere surmise or conjecture.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com Preserve Dr.B.V.Raman's Work

I look forward to your better-informed readers shedding brighter light on the problem, if they are interested in it. Similarly, correlations for downright atheism and godlessness are not clear. There are no specific indications. There should be sufficient indications, somewhere, because, the problem is highly significant.

Whether the godlessness and atheistic attitudinizations of a person are merely academic or take shape in blasphemic course of actions like burning of the pictures of gods and breaking down of images of gods in iconoclastic madness and frenzy would depend on the Karma of the individuals concerned, for which they are bound to suffer in this as well as in another world. Planetary affiliations for such godlessness are not clear. Mere research and investigation are necessary before hidden truths are brought into light.

(12)

In bringing this discussion to a close, it would be necessary to lay emphasis on the following facts and considerations.

Schizophrenic split spiritual loyalities are unknown in this country known for saints and sages, their intellectual and moral integrity, being beyond question, or challenge even by the worst of enemies. Such split loyalties are glaring and staring one in the face in contemporary Indian politics.

As late Jinnah observed with biting sarcasm, some of the Indians who were sycophantically kneeling down before Europeans, one fine morning became suddenly transformed and metamorphosed into staunchest of patriots who as a result got highest and most lucrative of jobs. One may not coquette with one god now and another at a later time, in the spirit of time-serving politicians and job-hunters.

Siva and Vishnu are different from one another. Because, not merely philosophical and theological, but astrological testimony also is against their identity. Of the two deities, Vishnu is believed to be the supremest, though some would assign superiority to Siva. Astrological literature examined contains a number of planetary correlations or affiliations to mark off devotion to this or that deity of the Hindu pantheon.

Even today, there is a well-known practice in Malabar, that if you approach a Guru for initiation into Magic and Mantra the Guru, will never straightway agree to initiate strangers. The Guru will carefully examine the horoscope of the applicant concerned and try to assure himself about the sincerity and bona fides of the applicant. Then, he would examine the constellation of the applicant and decide which god or deity will be most suitable. Only, after all this preliminary examination and psychological testing will the Guru undertake to initiate the applicant.

I have known some gurus abruptly declining to initiate an applicant, simply because, his horoscope revealed to the mind of the guru athestic and irreligious inclinations and tendencies. No amount of entreaties and importunities were of any avail.

Thus, it is the Karma of individuals which would indicate devotion to a particular or specific god or goddess. In the theological system of Madhva several gods are admitted. Vishnu is the highest and greatest. To gain this or that worldly object such as wealth, office, women and forth, or to obtain success over others, and annoy enemies by resort to black magic, one may worship inferior deities. Such worship of inferior deities stands self-condemned.

It is terribly difficult to come into this world in human form. Human life should be turned to the highest advantage. The highest goal is liberation from birth-death-series. (Moksha). Lord Narayana is to be worshipped for obtaining the reward of final liberation.

Our preferences and predilections, secular partialities and religious leanings, theological prejudices, and even the secrets lying buried in the inner-most recesses of our hearts are all the outcome of Karma and find reflection in the horoscopes. That is the grand truth worth meditating and remembering. One can hoodwink the most vigilant police system, but, you cannot hoodwink Karma.

Theism and atheism, religion and irreligion, godwardness and godlessness have characteristic planetary affiliations some of which have been studied in the course of this contribution. A great deal of research remains yet to be accomplished, and, as a preliminary to such intensive investigations, astrological literature, particularly, in the shape of Nadis, in Tamil and Sanskrit, should be edited and published on up-to-date lines. Such publication will itself act as a vigorous and stinging stimulus to pursuit of research.

There is a dictum in Tamil to the effect that the king would immediately kill, i.e., punish, but, God would punish in His own slow, leisurely, manner. (Arasan-anru–kollum — Daivam-ninru–kollum).

So, one should be careful not to provoke the wrath of gods and incur their displeasure. Gods should be devoutly worshipped according to our inclinations and tendencies. Astrological correlations and affiliations would show the right path and indicate the correct way.

Scanned by Jayam.com/jayamjothishastrology.com in presence Dr. B. V. Raman's wife

How Is 1959 for You?

BY MIHIRA

MAJOR TRANSITS:—Throughout the year under review, Saturn remains in Sagittarius and Jupiter in Scorpio. At the opening of the year, Mars is in Aries and enters Taurus on 19th, moves into Gemini on March 26th, Cancer on May 17th, Leo on July 6th, Virgo on August 24th, Libra on October 9th, Scorpio on November 22nd, where he remains for the rest of the year. He is never retrograde during the whole year. Saturn becomes retrograde on April 16th and assumes forward motion on September 5th. Jupiter becomes retrograde on March 19th, comes to the very edge of Scorpio but assumes direct motion on July 20th. Rahu and Kethu continue their retrograde motion in Virgo and Pisces respectively. Regarding the other planets, they move too quickly to be noticed here in the annual survey. Their role is generally secondary but will be considered whenever they become important. Still, though they may augment or check some of the effects mentioned here, the general effects described here cannot but be prominent in the year's annual results. The predictions given here should be interpreted in the light of current directions operating in the horoscope.

1. Mesha (Aries):—Mars in 1st to 8th; Rahu in 6th; Jupiter in 8th; Saturn in 9th; and Kethu in 12th.

General.—Though ninth is not a favourable sign for Saturn, it is certainly less evil than eighth where he remained for the past two years and a half. But the change of Jupiter from the seventh to eighth is a change for the worse. The only relief from his evil can be experienced from about the beginning of October when his influence will come under check which will remain so practically till the end of the year. Saturn however would be under Vedha throughout the year and so need not be considered as a major evil influence for the entire year because of Jupiter in 8th. The best periods in the year will naturally be those during which Mars lends his weight on the favourable side by transitting auspicious signs which will be from about the end of March to the middle of May and again from about the fourth week of August to the end of the first week of October. It cannot be however gainsaid that the general levels of this year will be only below last year's and some general though slight worsening is to be expected as a matter of course but relief is very near as Jupiter will enter 9th on January 14th of 1960, and with it prosperous days will begin. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Krittigai are likely to fare best, and those born under Aswini and Bharani come only next.

Health and Domestic.—Generally the transit influences even those that are in evil places throughout are not such as to affect the health directly and one can look forward to an almost trouble-free year in this respect. But health may suffer off and on indirectly as the result of long and wearisome journeys and fatigue and debility may be experienced that way. There is a liability to accidents during journeys that may also be had in mind. Some sorrows and unhappiness may arise as the result of death of a near relative or friend. Otherwise, the major part of the year will be passed peacefully and harmoniously at home and in social circles.

Finance and Speculation.—Though prospects as to finance are liable to vary considerably from month to month, it can be said generally that the position will not be quite satisfactory and great care should be exercised during the inauspicious months to avert losses that may otherwise happen. Nor much can be expected during the months when Mars is favourable as he would be under vedha then. This is not the year for financial ventures and enterprises, though not all months will be equally unfavourable and it may be possible to select propitious occasion for such, for which monthly forecasts should be looked to. But at no time, it can be said that conditions are good for speculation.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—In matters concerning landlords and landholders, the year may not prove so unpropitious as in other spheres. It is not improbable that some investments made this year would prove to be profitable later on. It is even probable that some acquisitions will be thrust upon you in which case you should examine carefully and then only decide upon the course you are to take. Yield and rentals would prove to be fairly satisfactory almost throughout the year and your attempts to improve the yield also bid fair to be attended with success. The position with regard to the services is not at all unsatisfactory in general, though at times impediments and setbacks will have to be faced. Some attempts will be made by those against you to put you in a false position, attacking your honour, or efficiency or both. You will be successful in coming out unscathed but a lot of unpleasantness may arise. At no time during the year, profession or business will be brilliant though critical periods may have to be passed through. As in the case of the services, there will be only temporary and not great damage or setbacks need be feared.

Women only.—This year is not good for the fair sex as such. This is only so far as a general statement can be made. Since Venus and Mercury cannot be taken into account here, the monthly forecasts will have necessarily to be looked to for proper guidance but success in social enterprises or other activities pertaining to the fair sex cannot be expected as a rule. There is scope for some born under this sign to get married and settled in life under very good auspices.

2. Vrishabha (Taurus).—Rahu in 5th; Jupiter in 7th; Saturn in 8th; Kethu in 11th; and Mars from 12th to 7th.

General.—At first sight, Saturn in eighth appears to be the most powerful evil influence operating for this year. But really, nothing much need be feared from this transit as Saturn is throughout under check because of Jupiter in seventh. Jupiter a natural benefic is nearly at his very best in the seventh sign of Scorpio which is also a sign that is friendly to him and himself does not suffer check, except during brief intervals during the year. Kethu in eleventh is also a good and favourable influence. Thus on the whole the prospects are bright for the year. The best months will be October and November when both Venus and Mars will also transit favourable signs. Jupiter in seventh means auspicious celebrations in the house like marriage, birth of issue, acquisition of wealth, researches into sastras (sciences) wealth, good company, luxuries, conveyances, etc. Mars will not transit the eleventh sign during the year but Kethu in eleventh would give the results of Mars, such as good health, success in undertakings, acquisition of real property, happiness and pleasure. Of the three stars belonging to this sign, those born under Krittigai will fare than the other two for the greater part of the year; next come those born under Mrigasira and those born under Rohini come last.

Health and Domestic.—The greatest adverse influence against health is Saturn but as he is under check, there will be only minimum disturbance and the greater part of the year will be spent in good health and spirits. Perhaps the worst month will be July and August when Mars transits 4th sign but even then he will be under check, so that the prospects for a healthy year appear bright. At any rate, it will be much better than last year. With Jupiter in seventh home and domestic circle will be happy and harmonious, with auspicious functions and celebrations. The disturbance of domestic peace will be minimum as in other matters.

Finance and Speculation.—With the perpetual aspect of Saturn on the second, financial matters may not shape out so well as may be otherwise expected and schemes and enterprises may not yield results proportionate to endeavour. Though the results may be below best, this year need not at all be considered as adverse to financial interests. Still variation of the conditions may vary greatly from month to month so that any general statement regarding finance may not be quite accurate. There is no reason to expect that speculation will fare any better during the year and if at all may be confined to special selected months only.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.–Landlords and landholders ought to fare better than last year in most respects. In their case also variation from month to month will be considerable and some months will prove very good and others may have to be considered as failures. Still so far as yield and rentals are concerned, they will prove satisfactory and mostly above average. You may launch into some activities for the promotion of yield and this you may do unexpectedly, i.e., circumstances will so shape that you may begin them without any previous thought, still, the results will be good. October and November are the best months for the services this year when they are likely to get some promotion, preferments or other beneficial changes. During October especially Sun, Mars, Mercury and Venus will be in favourable signs in addition to Jupiter. The first three months of the year may prove somewhat trying even but March will prove quite good. Normal conditions are likely to prevail during the other months. This is a year in which profession and business will do well and remain on above average levels almost throughout.

Women only.—This is a bright year for the fair sex in general during which their hearts' desires in the matter of social and philanthropic activities will be accomplished to the full and their parties, social gatherings will be a brilliant success. Romance will enter the lives of the young and unattached and cupid will be busy tying knots. Not that care and caution can be thrown to the winds but cold judgment in the light of the advice of seniors and well-wishers will be necessary before committing oneself irrevocably.

3. Mithuna (Gemini).—Rahu in 4th; Jupiter in 6th; Saturn in 7th; Kethu in 10th; and Mars from 11th to 6th.

General.—Jupiter, Saturn and Rahu are in undoubtedly evil signs for the year. But Kethu in 10th is to be considered as good. One modifying feature however is that Jupiter in 6th though evil acts as a check on the greater evil influence of Saturn in 7th throughout the year. Mars is good for a longer period for this sign than for most other signs. Still as a general rule not much good happenings can be expected for the year with the major planets permanently located in evil signs. Fruitless enterprises, losses, heavy expenditure, quarrels and disputes with friends and relatives, domestic discord, anxieties and apprehensions, troublesome and unwelcome changes, ill-health, tedious journeys, deaths among relatives and family members or close friends are the probable events. The opening of the year and the closing of the year will be fairly good and the other months are likely to vary in the proportion of good and bad elements because of the transits of the minor planets. Of the three stars of this sign, those born under Mrigasira and Punarvasu will have a greatly reduced proportion of evil than those born under Ardra; in fact it may be just the reverse in their case.

Health and Domestic.—The pattern of health will vary almost from month to month so that it is difficult to formulate any general statement with regard to that it would cover the entire year. But it can be said there will be at no time any serious illness such as will make you take to bed for any considerable length of time. But in respect of home and domestic matters, there will be unpleasantness to some extent almost throughout, disputes with relatives and misunderstandings. These will be greater during the months of April to June. Tedious journeys, unwelcome changes and removals, etc., will have to be undergone.

Finance and Speculation.—The finances will undoubtedly suffer much less than may be expected. The opening and closing months of the year may even prove propitious. But it would be advisable not to risk too much in any single venture however promising and rosy the chances may appear. Favourable chances for sound investment may be taken advantage of as and when they arise. But to try to secure profits through speculation is to chase the will of the wisp. In the case of those whose sole business is speculation, it would probably be advantageous to be a stag throughout the year, completing each boul before proceeding to the next. Some new items of expenditure are liable to crop up during the year.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Matters pertaining to landlords and landholders will fare rather badly during the year. Losses in rentals, poor yield, damage to crops through pests, etc., are all likely to affect adversely and timely precautions taken against preventible damage will do much to avert loss. The month of September may be said to be specially evil and great care should be taken to avert disputes and quarrels, litigation and adopt peaceful methods as far as possible in the management of your affairs. Services are not likely to suffer much generally. Of course some months may prove exceptions. Here also the month may be September, as almost all planets excepting Venus will be transitting evil signs during this month. But much can be done by your own efforts to avert the evil as the preceding months of July and August will be highly favourable and by utilising the good influences and being extra careful throughout nothing need be feared. As regards profession and business, the whole year is generally favourable and bad months are the expections in their case.

Women only.—The year is not generally favourable to interests of the fair sex as such and April–May have to be mentioned as specially unfavourable. Of course, more details will be available in the reading for the month of April. Therefore their outside social activities shall be reduced to the very minimum and they should be contented with a more or less humdrum existence in which case the adverse transits will have very little play. Even within the domestic circle, care should be taken to avoid unnecessary fruition.

4. Kataka (Cancer).—Rahu in 3rd; Jupiter in 5th; Saturn in 6th; Kethu in 9th; and Mars from 10th to 5th.

General.—The two major planets Jupiter and Saturn are favourable for the entire year but Saturn is under check throughout. Therefore not much can be expected from that planet. Still unchecked Jupiter in 5th is a powerful and favourable influence and can be relied upon to make the entire year above average and much better than the previous year. Rahu too is highly favourable and is unchecked. Auspicious functions and celebrations in the house, general increased prosperity, acquisition of luxuries and their enjoyment, success in enterprises, favours from rich and influential personages, good health and happiness, gain of wealth, defeat of rivals and enemies, etc., are the sort of good things to be expected for the year generally. As during February–March and September, Mars too will be transitting favourable signs, these will be the best months of the year. Of the three stars of the sign, Punarvasu, Pushya and Aslesha, the year will prove best for those born under the last asterism, next come those born under Punarvasu. Those born under Pushya will not be able to reap much benefit for the benefic influences though this may hold good for the entire year.

Health and Domestic.—Health will improve during the year and even prevailing existing ailments will greatly ameliorate or be even cured. Of course there may be temporary disturbances in months when the other planets transit evil signs, but, as a whole, the year will prove more healthy than otherwise. Conditions in the domestic sphere will also improve and there will be harmony in domestic and social surroundings. Your social standing will also be bettered and satisfaction alround.

Finance and Speculation.—The transit influences may not be reflected in financial matters with equal emphasis as in the other spheres of activity and some months may even prove difficult. As a general rule, however, above average levels will be maintained and it can be averred with some degree of certainty that new sources of income or wealth will be tapped. Though in the beginning, the returns may not be much, in course of time, there will be steady increase. Except during select months, even speculation would appear to be favoured especially for those to whom at birth Jupiter was exalted. But usual care and caution should be observed and the time for any major operations carefully selected.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—The favourable transits in force cannot but improve the conditions for the landlords and landholders born under this sign but it has also to be said that not all their problems will be satisfactorily solved during the year and much confusion, uncertainty and difficult conditions may persist in some form or other about which the position will considerably vary from month to month and any important actions, enterprises or investments should be timed with due attention paid to the monthly forecasts in this respect. This should prove to be an ideal year for the services generally. As in most other matters, the months of February, March and September will prove to be the best for them also. With some efforts and diligence, you should be able to score a point or two over your rivals or co-workers in your field. This ought to prove an above average year for the profession and business also.

Women only.—A pleasant year is in prospect for the fair sex and many remarkable achievements are in store for the socially ambitious and enterprising of them. An ideal year for parties, excursions at homes, visits and fulfilment of their hearts' desires in all respects. Courtships and love affairs for the unattached will find their fulfilment in matrimony and family life. Romantic experiences are very probable as the year progresses, more so towards the close of the year.

5. Simha (Leo):—Rahu in 2nd; Jupiter in 4th; Saturn in 5th; Kethu in 8th; and Mars from 9th to 4th.

General.—The major planets do not promise much good for the year, as none of them are to be found in favourable signs for the entire year. April, May and September will be the months during which Mars at least will be in auspicious signs and these months will be the best in the month and conditions may prove tolerable, even satisfactory. In the predominance of evil elements, there is one mitigating feature, however and that is that Jupiter and Saturn though both of them in unfavourable signs act as check upon each other and thus cancels their evil mutually. But for this, the whole year may be rendered miserable. Mental confusion, anxieties and apprehensions, domestic upheavals and upsets, heavy expenditure, even losses, ill-health of family members, false implications, unsavoury associations, humiliation, accidents while travelling, are all the possible consequences of unchecked Jupiter and Saturn. Of the three asterisms covered by the sign, those born under Uttaraphalguna will fare best as the adverse transits will affect them least and the other two, namely those born under Makha and Poorvaphalguna will fare next best only.

Health and Domestic.—The transits, however bad, are not of a nature to seriously jeopardise the health of yourself at any rate though the same condition cannot be expected in the case of your family members. The health of some one of your children or wife may require considered and careful treatment during the year. Discord and disruption may be threatened in the domestic sphere but the influences are not too severe and no serious consequences need be feared.

Finance and Speculation.—Financial stress will be in evidence throughout the year. Of course, there will be considerable variation in the degree of stress from month to month. New expenditure items will create problems for which no ready solution will be at hand. There is a liability to incur heavy losses through deceit and confidence tricks which should be borne in mind. There will be a compelling tendency to resort to speculation to get over the financial hurdles but disappointment is sure and inescapable.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—The major part of the year is unfavourable for landlords and landholders and it will be only at about the close of the year that there will be some unexpected developments that are likely to promise better conditions for the future at least but nothing may be accomplished within the year itself. But the year is not evil for all matters pertaining to real property. Good and profitable investments can be made and such opportunities as may arise in this respect may be utilised to one's advantage. The yield may be good and even above average in most respects. Of course some months may be good and some bad. The services will be heavily affected. One should be thankful if status quo is being maintained. Strict and rigid attention to duty and to routine only will be necessary and the mind should be watchful against untoward developments. Otherwise, charges, false implications may occur with such unwelcome happenings like disgrace or depromotion, especially when the current directions also happen to be bad. The business and profession may not suffer much and will escape the full effects of the evil transits. Some months may even be good.

Women only.—'What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander' would apply in this case also. This year generally promises little by way of good for the fair sex and they will do well to be prepared to spend a quiet year without outside or social activities. Of course not all the months will be equally unfavourable and the good months will be noticed in the monthly forecasts which will be almost indispensable for this year.

Digitized by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan. Preserved by Parampara Kendra Work

6. Kanya (Virgo).—Rahu in 1st; Jupiter in 3rd; Saturn in 4th; Kethu in 7th; and Mars from 8th to 3rd.

General.—The principal planets whose influence count for most in transits in Hindu astrology namely Jupiter and Saturn are in unfavourable signs throughout the year. Mars another important planet is also evil for the greater part of the year. April to June and December are the only months in which he will transit good signs. These months will prove to be the best months of the year. There is some comfort from the fact however that Saturn will be under check for the entire year and his evil influence will not therefore manifest and in the months of October and November, Jupiter too will be under check. Failure in enterprises, deaths among friends and relatives, unwelcome changes, wearisome and useless journeys, loss of position or status, unhappiness, etc., are the principal evil effects to be caused by the malefic transits. Of course there may be some months in which the good transits may outnumber the adverse ones as in April but still because of the major planets, much headway cannot be made in any matter. Of the three asterisms covered by this sign, those born under Uttaraphalguna and Chitta will fare much better than those born under Hasta.

Health and Domestic.—Good health may not be maintained throughout the year but there is no reason to apprehend any serious illness because the transits though bad are not such as to cause disease. The troubles will be mostly minor and prompt treatment would set them right soon. But the mind will be anxious and ill at ease generally. There may be deaths among friends and relations contributing thereto. The domestic affairs too are liable to go wrong and unless handled with patience and tolerance may develop into untoward consequences. The transits however lack power to cause serious developments like separation, divorce, etc., but only unpleasantness.

Finance and Speculation.—Beyond a general observation that finances will be in bad shape for the year in question, no more specific statements can be made as conditions will vary greatly from month to month. Of course, big financial ventures or enterprises should not be taken on hand during the year except during select months when conditions are said to be exceptionally favourable in the monthly forecasts. The financial level will be less at the end of the year than at the beginning. At no time there is support for speculative activities.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Landlords and landholders are in for a year of sufferings and tribulations and the months of April, May and September may be specially bad. Yield and rentals will be poor and decline further during the year. A lot of anxieties and apprehensions will have to be gone through especially by those born under the asterism of Hasta with Lagna also Virgo. So this is not a favourable year for investments, enterprises, mining interests and any activity connected directly or indirectly with the earth or its produce. The services should be thankful if status quo is being maintained. They will do well to build up efficiency, acquire the qualifications for future preferments and put in a year of solid industry and not attempt and expect any favourable changes or elevation as that will be best way to side-track the evil influences and utilise them to one's advantage. Undoubtedly this is a bad year for the profession and business also. This year, as in the case of the services should be utilised for stabilisation rather than expansion.

Women only.—This year is not so bad generally for the fair sex as may be expected from the foregoing sketch of the year's results. However it would be useless to build up big expectations either. Normal activities, social, philanthropic, etc., may be conducted and surely matrimony awaits for many of those born under this Rasi, entailing residence in environments far away from the birth place, to reach which place even voyage may be necessary.

7. Thula (Libra).—Jupiter in 2nd; Saturn in 3rd; Kethu in 6th; Mars from 7th to 2nd; and Rahu in 12th.

General.—Jupiter and Saturn the two major planets whose influence outweighs the effects of all other transits because of their importance in transits are throughout in favourable signs but on this account great hopes cannot be built upon in any sphere of activity as it so happens that both these planets are affected by vedha, Rahu being in twelfth all the time. Roughly from about the middle of May to the end of August, Mars would be in favourable signs and so this period should prove to be the best part of the year generally. From the middle of July to end of August, Sun, Venus and Mercury would be additionally favourable. Generally, happiness, influx of wealth, success over rivals, auspicious celebrations, new status, increased prosperity, luxuries and enjoyments, etc., should figure among the year's happenings. But actually the prospects are somewhat limited because both Jupiter and Saturn are under check. Of the three asterisms of this sign, those born under Chitta and Visakha will reap better results and suffer less than those born under Swati.

Health and Domestic.—Fairly good health will be enjoyed for the current year throughout with but occasional lapses during the months when evil transits predominate. No other general statement can be made with regard to this matter. This year is very good for domestic and social activities and harmony will prevail, new friends among men of power and influence and welcome visits from relatives, friends, etc., will enliven the home. Auspicious events and celebrations are also very probable and the year will not end without some such event.

Finance and Speculation.—A distinct high level mark in respect of finance will be reached this year as neither the previous year nor the succeeding one have the same benefic influences so far as transit is concerned. The benefits are likely to be exceptional for those born with Jupiter exalted in their horoscopes. The above observations do not hold for any time during the whole year and during months when other transit influences are adverse, even losses may occur. But speculation has not got much support.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Landholders and landlords have no cause for jubilance. This year though the major influences are good, even exceptional, April and October may prove to be the worst months for them when even major disturbances may cause damage to yield, rentals, etc. Even capital depreciation and waste will have to be apprehended. But at the same time it has to be stated that the situation will never be out of bound and anyway no serious damage will actually supervene though much is threatened. This is a fairly good year for the services and new status and positions, promotion, beneficial changes, etc, are all due. To some, unexpected preferments are in the offing, may be abroad, especially if current directions also favour. There is however a probability of your incurring the displeasure of those above you during select months (vide monthly) which should be sedulously avoided. In the case of the profession and business also high levels will be touched and maintained over considerable periods of time.

Scanned by CamScanner www.vedicastrologyfree.com To Preserve the Knowledge

Women only.—This will be a normal year for the fair sex and their affairs will moderately prosper. That is so far as a general statement can be made covering the entire year, but the year will not pass without some remarkable happenings, romantic experiences, social hits, philanthropic contribution, etc. Even those confined usually to home and domestic surroundings only will have some outings, excursions and some new experiences and interests ; but generally there will be no marked deviation for normality.

8. Vrischika (Scorpio).—Jupiter in 1st ; Saturn in 2nd ; Kethu in 5th ; Mars from 6th to 1st ; and Rahu in 11th.

General.—Neither Jupiter nor Saturn transit favourable signs at any time during the year but Rahu is throughout good as he is in the 11th. Mars will be favourable during the months July to September (both inclusive). Therefore these months should prove to be better months than others. But during August-September, Sun too being good, these months should prove to be the best for the year. Loss of wealth, heavy expenditure, obstacles and dealings in all matters, troubles through friends and relatives, also through rivals and enemies, tedious and wearisome journeys, ill-health, domestic worries, financial stress, loss of comforts, loss of position, deaths among friends and relatives are the kind of unwelcome happenings listed for the unfavourable transits of the year. Still there will be some relief because of the presence of Rahu in 11th for which gain of property, happiness, increase of wealth, name and fame, honour and position are all due. Of the three asterisms of the sign those born under Jyeshta will fare best and suffer least and the case of those born under Anuradha will be worst while those born under Visakha will fare much better than Anuradha.

Health and Domestic.—General debility and ill-health off and on will be present during the year ; but no serious illness is threatened at any time and with moderate care, ill-health may be warded off actually. There is a chance of tedious journeys adding to your general weakness and journeys should be avoided as far as possible. The domestic affairs for the year too will be such as to cause gloom, anxieties and sorrows. There may occur a death or two among your relatives and there may be much anxiety over the health of one of your children.

Finance and Speculation.—There is not much prospect of your finances registering any improvement during the year generally though some select months may chance to be favourable. On the other hand, losses may arise, mostly by deception or victimisation by unscrupulous persons who may try to exploit you. Though wealth may increase during some months, they are liable to be lost later, so that the condition at the end of the year will be worse than in the beginning. The contributing causes for this may be increased heavy expenditure or unsound speculation.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—This cannot be said to be a good year for landlords and landholders generally and April to June may be stated to be specially evil and injurious to their interests. This year is not also propitious for investments in real property or reformatory changes. But it will pay to consolidate your position against future onslaughts, such as by getting rid of properties whose yield may not be satisfactory or such as are difficult to manage because of distance or other causes. Though the year as a whole is not good for those in the services, there will be some exceptional months when the available favourable transits can be utilised to promote your interests such as August-September. Some of the unemployed are likely to get good positions during such months. It would be advantageous to have your qualifications perfected during this year by completing tests, etc. So that preferments may become possible during next year which will be certainly more favourable. The movements and progress of business and profession will be erratic throughout the year with no scope for any large returns or income and also not much of deterioration or losses either.

Women only.—This will be a normal year for the fair sex in all respects, the good as well as bad influences leave them and their affairs alone and almost untouched during the entire period. Of course, there may be some differences from month to month but differences will be negligible and insignificant. There is some scope for acquisition and enjoyment of a few luxuries which are dear to the feminine heart and mind.

9. Dhanus (Sagittarius).—Saturn in 1st ; Kethu in 4th ; Mars in 5th to 12th ; Rahu in 10th ; and Jupiter in 12th.

General.—Though Saturn transits Janma and is unchecked for the greater part of the year, Jupiter in twelfth has got good and bad points as well and cannot be regarded as wholly good or evil. The best months will be January middle to the end of March and again October and November. But this is only a general observation. This is the central period of Sadesathi and therefore this year cannot but prove trying in many respects and for which there is no counteracting influence to combat or moderate. Distant and tiresome journeys and all inconveniences attendant thereupon, troubles caused by rivals and enemies, separation from relatives, losses, failures, impediments and obstructions in all matters, ill-health, etc. are the sort of undesirable results to be apprehended for the year. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Uttarashada will fare best and the other two come only next.

Health and Domestic.—With Saturn in Janma, health cannot but suffer. Jupiter in 12th also is liable to cause ill-health as well as accidents. As it is the nature of Jupiter to cause illnesses through excesses in eating, etc., it is the nature of Saturn to cause troubles through privation. Therefore the golden mean in diet and general habits will be the best way to preserve health this year. Of course, you should guard against accidents during journeys especially by refraining from risky or rash actions, e.g., getting abroad and getting down from moving vehicles. All sorts of troubles and difficulties will arise in domestic and social circles which you should try to combat by calm and level-headed judgment and actions.

Finance and Speculation.—Heavy expenditure, extravagant actions, etc., will cause a state of continued financial stress. Though lord of 2nd is in 1st, lord of 1st is in 12th. Therefore there is no chance of accumulation of wealth, not that there will be no earnings but they will go into a bottomless purse. Some months may not prove at all bad and these should be utilised wisely to cover up your deficits. The year as a whole is bad for speculation and it is even difficult to visualise some months that can be at all favourable.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—There are some features that will prevent the adverse transits from having their full impact upon the affairs connected with landlords and landholders, though conditions will be bad enough for nearly the entire year. No investments made during the month will flourish, nor any undertakings or enterprises designed to improve your lot in any manner or enhance the yield. This year should be quietly devoted to routine matters and for lying low. The services may be said to be somewhat favourable and may not prove so bad as one may be led to apprehend from the state of the transits. During some months, special care will be necessary to avert things that may take a wrong trend and for this guidance should be sought in the monthly forecasts. Business and profession will be dull generally throughout the year with occasional spurts of activity in the months that are favourable otherwise.

CC-0. Dr. S. Balasubramanian Collection. Digitized by eGangotri Sri Vedaraksha Work

Women only.—This year in general will be characterised by mental and emotional conflicts so far as the fair sex is concerned and they will find it difficult to come to a decision in matters affecting their interests as such. From the unattached and young to the seasoned matron, this will be so according to the matters concerning each and it will be advisable to postpone decision in important matters which will bear postponement from a matrimonial commitment to the conduct of an entertainment, party, etc.

10. Makara (Capricorn). — Kethu in 3rd; Mars from 4th to 11th; Rahu in 9th; Jupiter in 11th; and Saturn in 12th.

General.—Two planets are in favourable signs for the entire year, Kethu and Jupiter. This year will be practically the first year of Sadesathi but will not mark any untoward events because of that as Saturn is under check throughout and therefore ineffective for mischief. Otherwise, he may even render the excellent position of Jupiter from doing any good or neutralise its good effects. As it is Jupiter will have unrestricted scope to improve the lot of the native alround, being himself unchecked for the greater part of the year. Good health, acquisition and enjoyment of articles of luxury, auspicious events and celebrations, new position, promotion, gains, investments, domestic happiness, philanthropic actions, happiness, success in undertakings, etc., are the principal good things that may result from the favourable transits. April and May as well as the last quarter will be specially good because Mars too will be transitting favourable signs then. Of the stars of this sign, those born under Uttarashada and Dhanishta will fare generally much better than those born under Sravana.

Health and Domestic.—Good health will be rather the rule than the exception this year, though the onset of Sadesathi is usually attended with disturbances in health. Still during some months when Mars and other planets are unfavourable, some ill-health may supervene but these will neither be severe nor long-lasting. Domestically this month will be one of harmony, and happiness with pleasant functions in your home and also those of your near relatives. Many domestic problems will find their happy solution.

Finance and Speculation.—Conflicting influences are present in the matter of finance but on the whole the general trend will be more favourable than otherwise. Some losses during unfavourable months appear inevitable though and it will be wise to refrain from financial enterprises in these months, such as June, July, October, etc. During July-August especially Jupiter's good influence will be under check. The year is not encouraging for speculative activities, except during some favourable months which will be indicated in the monthly readings.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Both good and bad are in store for landlords and landholders. Confusion is indicated with regard to matters that vitally affect their interests and they will not be able to visualise what course is good for them and adopt the same. Yield and rentals too may suffer somewhat and dealings with tenants, agents, co-owners, etc., may become difficult causing some unpleasantness. But in all this, matters will never go to excess. At the same time, it is probable that you may be able to make some good investments too. The services will generally do well and more so during some months. During the closing part of the year, it may be advantageous to tackle some matters boldly and press for your claim, being recognised as otherwise you may not get what is due to you by oversight or negligence of those placed above you. But you should be careful not to act rashly. This year is an ordinarily good one for the profession and the business and above average levels will be touched during select months.

Women only.—Good and happy relations wiih those around you and with the opposite sex can be envisaged for women in general this year. The unexpected element will take a hand in some matter or other but the results will not be unpleasant or derogatory to your interests. Many of those born under this Rasi, more especially those born under Uttarashada or Dhanishta will find themselves happily united in wedlock before the year is out.

11. Kumbha (Aquarius).—Kethu in 2nd; Mars from 3rd to 10th; Rahu in 8th; Jupiter in 10th; and Saturn in 11th.

General.—Of the two major planets Jupiter and Saturn, the former is unfavourable and the latter very good for the whole year. So the results will vary almost from month to month according to the transits of other planets emphasize the one element or other, e.g., during June-July almost all planets will be in unfavourable signs but in December almost all the planets except of course Jupiter will be in good and auspicious signs. But, on the whole, the year will be tolerable. There will be no great disappointments nor successes. There will be some gain of properties, happiness, auspicious, celebrations, increase of wealth, good name and popularity, satisfactory solution of some of your outstanding problems be it in any sphere, are probable. On the other hand, unwelcome changes, troubles in respect of your holdings, quarrels, displeasure, health troubles and some losses, etc., are to be expected at some time or other. Of the three asterisms of the sign, those born under Dhanishta and Purvabhadra will fare better than those born under Satabhisha.

Health and Domestic.—The year will be generally free from disorders and disturbances in health and even such minor ailments as may appear now and then will quickly yield to treatment. But the mind will not be free of anxieties and apprehensions on some account or other, major causes being children and their health and affairs. Otherwise the year will prove to be more or less normal in matters pertaining to the domestic and social circles.

Finance and Speculation.—Though many and sundry problems will arise owing to increased expenditure and even some inevitable losses, the year assessed financially as a whole will be tolerable. There will be no acute stresses or financial facilities. There is no support in the transit influences to support big financial enterprises or ventures but there is positive discouragement for speculative activities.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Though the landlords and landholders are liable to be hit hard this year at the same time there is also a protecting influence which will see that matters are not carried too far. It is even probable that fresh acquisitions and additions will be made during the year. There will be also good and bad months. There may not be at any time complaints regarding yield as this is likely to be plentiful. But troubles may arise in asserting your legitimate rights and having your grievances in general remedied. The services will have to be on the lookout to see that their position or status does not suffer deterioration through their own careless or negligent conduct. Unless they are scrupulously careful in all that they do, the location of scandal or inefficiency or what not may touch them to their detriment and they may incur the displeasure of their superiors. If they are negligent or careless, their claims may be bye-passed. It is a critical year for them, though they are protected by a favourable influence throughout. The profession and business will do well generally but in their case too there will be good and bad months.

Scanned at the Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Project. Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

Women only.—For matters pertaining to the fair sex as such, the year cannot be said to be propitious in general. No doubt some months like June are not at all bad but the period during which conditions will be trying is much greater. For those in the services, what is said for servicemen previously will of course apply. Greater care will be required in the case of the unattached and those who have to manage their household even in day-to-day matters as well as in dealings with the opposite sex.

12. Meena (Pisces).—Kethu in 1st; Mars from 2nd to 9th; Rahu in 7th; Jupiter in 9th; and Saturn in 10th.

General.—Jupiter in ninth for the entire year is a fortunate circumstance. Saturn in tenth is not an altogether evil influence in itself as a malefic in an Upachaya place is strong generally and capable of producing good effects. But this position of Saturn acts as a check on the good influence of Jupiter and so cripples his power for good. Therefore though the general nature can be said to be only of a mixed character, the transits of the minor planets as also that of Mars and Sun will be responsible for making any month good or bad or indifferent, e.g., during August-September Sun, Mercury and Venus as also Jupiter will be transitting good signs including Saturn and during the latter part of June almost all the planets will be in unfavourable signs. During the favourable month, general success, gains, prosperity, auspicious events and celebrations, domestic harmony and happiness, increased returns in all activities like agriculture, general prosperity, etc., will obtain. Of the three stars of this sign, those born under Poorvabhadra and Revati will fare much better than those born under Uttarabhadrapada.

Health and Domestic. — There is nothing to apprehend in the matter of health generally this year except such occasional and minor disturbances as may be caused by the transits of Sun and Mars during select months; as a whole, a healthy year. Home and domestic surroundings, etc., will also benefit from the rays of Jupiter and auspicious events and celebrations may take place. Many outstanding domestic problems will be solved satisfactorily in the course of the year.

Finance and Speculation.—It is difficult to make a general statement that would cover the whole of the calendar year because of the widely shifting fortunes probable during the year. But it can be said that the best part of the year will be from the middle of January to the end of March as also the months of July and August. The rest of the year will not be of an encouraging nature for financial ventures and enterprises, but the greater part will be normal. During the favourable months, speculation too may prove profitable but of course great care will be necessary.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—The real property interests will, as a rule, suffer during the year as the year cannot be said to be conducive to the landlords and landholders. It is very probable that their rights will be invaded, and their profits cut into in more ways than one. There may also occur diminution and loss of yield through various causes. But there is no way to militate against fresh acquisitions or additions to your holdings which may take place in the normal course. The services will neither gain much nor suffer much this year. There may be some changes in the nature of the work turned out of them, e.g., from one department to another. Though this involves no change of status, this change will render future preferments easier and in some cases also possible. The unemployed born under this Rasi will have chances for getting into something or other which may ultimately prove their permanent job. The profession and business while subject to ups and downs as in any normal year will never touch below average levels and will generally do well.

Women only.—There will be no adverse interference by the transits upon the affairs that normally pertain to the fair sex so far as they have not got to depend on others for their fruition or fulfilment, in which case only disappointments are probable. But where they themselves can do things with the resources at their disposal normally, such activities will be crowned with success. They will not find the opposite sex especially as 'dependable' as usual and guide their actions accordingly.

Scanned with CamScanner

GENERAL COMMERCIAL INDICATIONS FOR 1959

(Continued from page 169)

start really soaring up and if this science is going to prove a good guide, Government should see that strict possible measures are taken at a proper stage to avoid abnormal rise in prices of foodgrains by the ending part of the year 1959 and beginning of 1960.

Stocks and Shares.—Two divergent forces appear to be working here. They are Saturn and Rahu square aspects. While one denotes troubles in labour sphere and general economic development, the other denotes good export demand and economic development of industries—specially steel plants, engineering undertakings, etc. It is said that this section denotes the real status of the country. I do not agree with this, since the masses are hardly interested in this section. For the real progress of the country, it is necessary that with the development of agriculture, the agriculturists and labour are trained to invest their savings in the industrial field. It will only then that this section will represent really the economic conditions of the country. This step is yet to come. Till then this section represents only a selected few. Labour troubles are bound to hamper the progress of the plan projects and hit industries; on the other side export spheres will be open to the industries. There will be virtually a fight between bulls and bears during the whole year.

Periods of rise:—

5th January to 28th January 1959.
14th February to 23rd March 1959.
12th June to 29th July 1959.
3rd October to 28th October 1959.
19th November till 31st Dec. 1959.

It is hoped that the general idea given above will be of help to traders and readers as also to students of the science.

Register Your Subscription

To ensure prompt supply of The Astrological Magazine every month become a regular subscriber today.

RATE OF SUBSCRIPTION

For One Year Rs. 12

Subscriptions for periods less than one year are not accepted.

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

FOR JANUARY 1959

[This study is not intended as a tip for investors to follow. The writers have arrived at certain conclusions regarding Cotton, Commodities, etc., etc., mainly based on planetary influences. Those who act on this information will be doing so at their own risk.—Ed., A.M.].

BY D. R. MUNSIF, B.Sc. (Econ.), (London), B.A. (Hons.) (Bombay),
5/1, Russel Street, Royal Court, Calcutta–16.

Economic Section

WE are at present the witnesses of a fairly determined policy of the Government to keep the note issue under control, and together with the restraint on the printing press are enforced certain measures of direct and indirect credit control so that the cost of living does not keep up; but we find that inspite of strong efforts of the Government, the prices jump up. Many people think that inflation is merely a consequence of an increase in the note circulation which in fact is not so.

There are other hidden elements in the economic life of a society which lead to the rise in prices. When you have a scarcity of a certain commodity or a group of commodities, the price of that or those takes an upward leap. Such a scarcity is today created by the Government's import policy. No doubt it is meant to conserve foreign exchange but the indirect result is the rise in prices. This shows the contradictions in our economy.

Marx was not a very good historian but he was indeed a brilliant analyst of historical facts. He said that every society carried within itself the seeds of its own destruction. Thus his famous dictum was "What is will be what is not". Our capitalist economy, whenever it is regulated and controlled as it is today, is thus impregnated with the seeds of destruction.

Let us carry this analysis a little further in the monetary field. The readers must have gathered from the press reports that all the bankers have combined together not to bid for the community's savings or should I say the society's savings by not allowing a higher rate on deposits, savings or fixed deposits. It is to the eternal scheme of our Government which prides on improving the lot of common people' that such a decision is supported under the aegis of the Reserve Bank of India. Thus, our middle classes are deprived of the fruits of their good habits of thrift and economy.

Today, our middle classes are crushed between the upper stone of the exploiting capitalist class, and the nether stone of the working class. The upper classes in one way or another, by legal or illegal means, maintain their supremacy. They run the press and create an impression as if they have become the victims of an oppressive policy. But in fact, they have today the most unlimited opportunities of creating an empire. They have been exploiting not merely the society but even the Government. When a new investment is made in any field of industry, they get in the initial year a deduction in income-tax from the profits upto the first 25% of the value of machinery. If this is not a golden harvest, one would like to know where these can be found.

What have these capitalist classes done—manipulating accounts, controlling prices, indulging in smuggling and exchanging frauds and organising pressure groups to mislead public opinion. They, in the initial period of India's independence, sacrificed the Princes who had at least a certain tradition behind them; next they sacrificed the landed oligarchy to postpone the day of curtailment in their power and panopy, and now they are relentlessly adopting the steps that the monopolists do; and the combination of bankers is a step in that direction.

What is required is therefore an organisation of middle classes to set down certain standards, and to channel the savings of the country into various fields of production in the same way as the various Nidhis in the South have done in the field of housing and estate-development. Further, the Government has an excellent chance today to encourage the formation of co-operative societies, and for the middle classes to insist on such encouragement to prevent the exploitation of their class.

Our middle classes can easily form a few societies for the specific purpose of financing trade and industry, and their record in this direction will be a very admirable one because they would know by reputation the local men, and the credit-worthiness of different individuals. Moreover, they will be all secured loans, with the reservation of certain margins. Thus in no case there will be a destruction of savings as is the result today owing to the actions of dishonest bankers.

But this restriction on the interest rate suits our Government of the day because it requires cheaper loans. These cheap loans are lavishly and recklessly spent so that the cost of living goes on rising without a significant pause. Further what the public does not know, is that the Government loans become a base for further credit, for any purchaser of a loan can approach a bank and borrow 90% of the amount of the market price. Our Reserve Bank under the guidance and direction of the Finance Department, imposes many controls on the banks restraining credit facilities on certain commodities, but there are no restraints with regard to the amounts or regard to margins for the banks to make advances against the security of Government loans. If our middle classes were to unite together and demand such a restriction and were successful in obtaining it, the cost of living will fall by at least 20 points within a very short time of a few weeks.

At this stage, it is pertinent to think if the Government has any intention of repaying these loans in real money, that is silver or gold. If that be so, are there any attempts today for the amortisation of the public debt. The one element of inflation in our economy is the suspicion and fear in the public mind of a continual increase in the amount of our public debt, with the inevitable consequence of depreciation of our rupee in terms of commodities. This element of uncertainty is reflected in the rates of the shares of many of the public companies on stock exchanges standing as high as capitalised at the rate of a mere 4½% only. Nowhere in the world, where capital is plentier per head than in India, is there such a condition obtainable today. And even in the United States, the Government is getting seriously concerned with the high level of stock-exchange values with the result that the Government is attempting to restrain the increase in the amount of public debt; and behind this stock-exchange inflation is the fear of a depreciating dollar as an insurance against which, people run to buy stocks. Since last one year, our stock-exchanges have been betraying the same trend under conditions similar to those in the United States but of a great intensity.

The basic safeguard in a capitalist society is competition but in every field of industrial sector, the competitive element is eradicated and a monopolist element is being introduced. On the grounds of useless duplication, a system of license is being introduced to start even a new industry. If an individual or a group of individuals can command the lobby, he comes to be in a position to exploit the whole society. Our Government has prohibited the imports of condensed milk and today our native manufacturers are charging nearly twice as much for the same quantity of condensed milk. Such examples can be multiplied in the field of provisions, drugs and even in industrial fields. On every front our middle classes are mulcted. History has established it as a fact, that whenever middle classes are destroyed, it has sowed the seeds of the destruction of that society.

Scanned by www.sapthagiri.com Free Astrology Software Works

Astrological Section

Before starting this astrological section, let me request the readers to refer to September and October 1958 issues of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. The stock-exchange forecasts have proved true to the letter. The readers, I hope, after the good rise in speculative values, should be in a good frame of mind for the Diwali. Similarly for jute, cotton and oilseeds, the traders must have had the good luck to cash in profits. The readers must have experienced the Hessians standing higher than Rs. 43—indeed a new high as was forecast together with the jute shares at rates higher than any that were during the last two years.

I wish the readers a happy Diwali and a prosperous New Year; for this is written on the eve of Diwali but the issue will be in the hands of readers just before the setting in of 1959 which may well prove to be the year of Destiny for the world.

It has been usual for me to discuss the Full Moon and New Moon maps to discern the stock-exchange trends but this time before I discuss them, I wish to point to the dynamic map for the time of Sun's entry into Capricorn. Many astrologers consider this map to be more vital than the solar ingress map into Aries. For Bengal, Moon and Mars are on the cusp of the 1st house in square to Uranus and opposed to Jupiter. Both Sun and Saturn are in the 8th house with Venus posited in the same sector Thus both the lights are afflicted and very badly configurated. It will do very well for our Government to be watchful on our eastern frontier. Further Mars becomes direct just before the Sun enters Capricorn and thus marks the time to be important and momentous. The direct march of Mars breeds the military mentality of war. This position particularly afflicts the genitured of Texmaco, Indian Aluminium Co., and Indian Cable Co., which are quoted and dealt on the Calcutta stock-exchange.

In a similarly more dangerous manner is the map for the same time drawn for the middle-east sector particularly the Syrian-Israeli border, with Uranus in the 7th house, Mars and Moon within four degrees of the cusp of the 4th house and Saturn and Sun in the 12th house. In one of the past issues, I have already pointed out that a danger of hostilities in the middle-east is not conducive to the rise of stock markets. In normal times, it is far easier to discover the trends of values from the cycles which have been discussed elsewhere in this issue but today the astrologer has to draw not one or two or even half-a-dozen but literally more than a dozen maps every month to find if the political trends as betrayed by the planets for the neighouring countries are dangerous. In December, I warned the readers that the political trends are very dangerous for the middle-east and the direct march of Mars in the earthly sign of Taurus in which it is debilitated will fan the flames of hatred. Its affliction to the Moon and Saturn's inaffliction to the Sun encourage the same trend. I have not discussed the Full Moon map of 26th December because it falls just three days after the Capricorn ingress map, to which is given a greater importance.

I now discuss the New Moon map of January 9th for N.-East India. Mars is again in the 2nd house with Jupiter opposed to it from the 8th. The lights are situated in the 10th sector with Uranus and Pluto in the 5th. Saturn is in the 9th house sesqui-quadrate to Uranus. Once again, you will hear of a crisis in India's foreign trade.

The sesqui-quadrate is considered to be a very powerful discordant aspect but in this case owing to the degree positions involved, I think that it is going to be a constructive phase. It grinds the market for a natural rebound. I therefore advise the readers to accumulate their purchases during the New Moon to Full Moon period. The people with such courage will reap the harvest from January 24th onwards.

The map for the Full Moon of January 24th is a good deal better. With both Mars and Jupiter in angles, the bullish fervour will be very much in evidence. Pluto in the 10th house generally well aspected and particularly with Saturn in the 2nd house marks out a strident progress in the values, though the sesqui-quadrate of Uranus with Saturn will give a few bearish jerks particularly in textile and plantation industries. But the big engineering industries will thrive. I am marking with red ink for the next two or three months the shares of the Indian Cable Co. to rise.

The readers should note that the above-mentioned remarks about bullishness are good after the second week of January and for the cautious and less venturesome after the third week of January.

Commodities.—The important astrological phenomena for the purpose are the vedhas between Budha and Kethu, and Budha and Rahu from the 5th to 15th, between Mars and Venus from 13th to 20th, and between Sun and Venus from 24th to end of the month and also between Sun and Mars.

Next Rahu ends the sojourn into Chitra during the month to return to its eighteen years later and enters Hasta. Jupiter also leaves Visakha on 16th January and enters Anuradha. As soon as the latter occurs, for a period of at least a fortnight, rice, grams, and some pulses of lower kinds will fall. Further from the 8th of January, Sani will pass through Gemini navamsa and Kethu also will be doing likewise during latter part of the month.

Cotton.—The values will begin to fall during the second week. The fall should end on the 14th thereafter the fluctuations will be two-sided movements. From the beginning of the fourth week, a positive bullish trend will make its appearance. But this is a jobbers' market and not for the stay-at-home speculators because the movements are narrow ones.

Jute.—In this commodity, the bearish jerk will be visibly felt from the very beginning of the month upto the end of the second week. Thereafter Saturn will pull up the prices—this will be particularly so from the 24th of the month.

Gold and Silver.—In these commodities, the bear pressure will be felt the most from the 5th of the month. This will be so particularly for silver following upon the bad reports about the weather, resulting in the spoiling of crops. But later Saturn's sojourn into Gemini navamsa will generate bullish fervour and two-sided movements will emerge. The grip of bulls will be tight round the necks of bears from the end of the third week.

Oilseeds.—There are very small bearish fluctuations during the first week of January. Later on the prices will rise to some small extent but the passage of Mars through Krittika will positively lift the prices up. The latter fortnight will be a marked one for the rise in these commodities including coconuts.

Kariana Goods.—Spices and dry fruits will without exception pick up from the 10th onwards.

So also will be the case with metals like copper, iron and brass.

BY A. P. SATHE
Dr. Deshmukh Building,
Dr. Deshmukh Lane, Bombay-4

I give below the Amavasya chart of 9th January 1959 and Solar Ingress (Makara Sankranti) chart of 14th January :

Kethu	Mars
Lagna	9–1–1959
Venus
Sun Moon Mercury Saturn	Jupiter		Rahu

Kethu	Mars
Moon	14–1–1959
Venus Sun
Saturn Mercury	Jupiter		Rahu

Amavasya Chart.—This chart appears to be very bullish and it may be stated here that for stocks and shares, for general foreign trade the month from 9th January to 7th February 1959 specially upto 3rd February 1959 will show good progress; and consequently prices of stocks and shares will witness good boom conditions.

Solar Ingress Chart.—Upto 14th January 1959 indications available in the previous Sankranti chart need consideration. While in this article discussions on this chart could not be given, I may only state that for the first 15 days of this month, the period coming under Dhanu Sankranti will not prove to be bearish, but rather dull conditions shall prevail; and with Sun's entry into Uttarashada on 10th January, commodity prices also will start rapid rising trend. The indications obtainable in the Makara Sankranti chart also favour bullishness in the initial stages upto 3rd February, and during this whole month, it will be worthwhile following teji in every mandi reaction in commodities as well.

Instead of discussing the various planetary transits, I give below my opinion on the various principal forward markets :—

Cotton and Allied Products.—Punarvasu remains under vedha from Saturn. Martian transit from Aries —specially from Nakshatra Krittika from 14th January favours rising spree. Mercury also in the latter part transits Uttarashada, which favours rise in values of cotton. Venus transit except the period 10th to 20th is also indicative of bullish conditions. While the nakshatra transit of Venus between 10th to 20th is unfavourable for rise in values of cotton, Vedhas by Mars from 14th will not allow Venusian transit to have a say and prices of this commodity during the whole month will rise substantially. Anuradha transit of Jupiter will give one jerk in the market between 16th and 19th, but this should be taken advantage of to buy. 1st teji, 2nd to 6th bearish, 7th to 10th steady, 11th to 13th bearish, 14th and 15th teji, 16th to 20th bothways, 21st till end teji.

Oilseeds.—Dhanu Moola transit of Saturn does not favour rise in values. But other transits of Rahu, and Mars and Mercury favour bullish conditions. Temporary boomlet will be witnessed, specially with Jupiter's entry in Anuradha in this section. Teji be followed in the second fortnight. 1st teji, 2nd to 8th mandi, 9th to 11th teji, 12th to 16th mandi, 17th till 27th teji, 28th to 31st steady.

Metal and Bullions.—Solar transit from Uttarashada from 10th, Jupiter's transit from Visakha upto 16th, Martian movement from Krittika are all teji factors in this section. Moola transit of Saturn also favours rise in values of metals like tin, copper, lead and zinc. Follow teji in this section. 1st and 2nd teji, 3rd to 6th mandi, 7th to 11th teji, 12th to 14th steady, 15th to 18th mandi, 19th to 31st teji.

Foodgrains.—Jupiter's entry into Anuradha favours drop in values of foodgrains, and one drop could be expected between 16th and 21st. Distribution will be properly arranged. Government will remain alert and will not allow rise in prices of essentialities.

Sugar and Gud.—Prices of these will witness rise. While sugar will not be so much in demad, gud prices will abnormally rise specially in the latter half of the month. Follow teji in every mandi reaction.

Stocks and Shares.—This section will still enjoy bullish conditions and prices will rise substantially. 1st teji, 2nd to 5th mandi, 6th to 9th bothways, 10th rise, 11th to 14th steady, 15th to 28th good rise.

In general follow teji during the whole month under review in almost all sections of the forward and ready markets.

Scanned by Gujarat Vishwakosh Trust. Courtesy: Dr. B V Raman's Work

---

A. C. PERCY
Botawala Building, 3rd Floor,
257, Thakurdwar Road, Bombay-2

The major planet Jupiter after his sojourn of more than a year in Libra enters Scorpio on 28th December 1958.

During January 1959, several parallel and square aspects take place, which would turn the markets erratically and would likely baffle the operators to the utmost and the fluctuations would be wide and heavy. We therefore advise you to take care of yourself and please see that you are not trapped in the market. Those who would exceed their limits, are likely to come to serious troubles and might lose heavily.

Square aspects between Sun-Rahu and Sun-Kethu on 9–1–1959; Venus-Neptune on 12–1–1959; Mercury-Rahu on 22–1–1959; Mars-Venus on 26-1-1959; Sun-Neptune on 27-1-1959; and Jupiter-Venus will affect all markets heavily and will lower down the tendency of share market and in some scrips of higher values will suffer most.

Parallel aspects take place between Venus-Saturn on 2nd; Mercury-Venus on 4th; Mercury-Saturn and also Sun-Mercury on 6th; Mars-Venus on 13th; Jupiter-Venus on 17th; Sun-Mars on 20th; Venus-Herschel on 21st; Sun-Jupiter on 26th; and Mercury-Saturn on 28th.

Shadashtaka aspects occurring between Mars-Mercury on 1st; Mars-Rahu on 4th; Sun-Herschel on 6th; Mercury-Herschel on 21st will prove a further set-back to the market.

Trine aspects take place between Sun-Mars on the 10th; Venus-Rahu on the 21st and Mars-Mercury on the 27th and will serve as supporters to the market. Further, there will be conjunction between Mercury and Saturn on 11th.

The force of evil aspects is stronger than the benefic aspects and hence, during the 2nd half, there will be heavy pressure of selling.

Tata Ordinary.—Probably the market may show improvement for about 8-10 days but thereafter, gradually the market will experience a sharp fall, and hence, please try to get out of teji business from about 10th or so. During December, in the lower rates, you may try to pick up and in the rising trend in the beginning of this month, you must book your profit without fail.

Indian Iron will follow the line of Tata Ordinary but there will be much resistance in this scrip at lower rates and hence, you should not go short at lower rates.

Century and Bombay Dying.—During December 1958, yon can buy these scrips, and dispose of the same doubly in January as stated above. Century can be bought up from Rs. 430.33 about keeping space to buy at more lower rate. Similarly, you can pick up Bombay Burma if the prices are lower.

Cotton.—On 11th October, the prices touched highest to Rs. 638 from the lowest price of Rs. 617 touched in the beginning and from 13-10-58, the prices began falling sharply and came down to Rs. 593.50 officially on 1-11-58 and unofficially to Rs. 591 from which level, the prices have improved and are hovering at Rs. 602 and some further improvement is possible but a seller at about Rs. 625 roughly will be benefitted, of course keeping some space to sell further at a rise.

Seeds.—Castorseeds rule weak presently. On 30-9-58, the prices touched to Rs. 144 and improved to Rs. 151 and groundnuts to Rs. 158 and improved to Rs. 167.50 and again the prices have fallen to Rs. 141 and Rs. 161. There is very little demand in export for castor oil and so far, the export quota for groundnuts oil is not announced by the Govt., and hence, Singdana also rule somewhat weak but maintaining the level of price at Rs. 159/160. We think, it would be advisable to buy castorseeds if the prices come down to about Rs. 133/34 and at the same time, groundnuts at that time.

Gold and Silver.—The prices have fluctuated exactly as advised by us. In the first place, silver touched to Rs. 189-14-0 and gold to Rs. 110 in October and came down to Rs. 187-8-0 and Rs. 109 respectively and again the prices improved for silver to Rs. 190-12-0 and for gold to Rs. 111-8-0 and again the prices came down to Rs. 187-10-0 and 110-4-0 and you have to follow Teji line in such a set-back as has been experienced above, little less or more from the highest prices that may touch. Remain a buyer.

Scorpio-Jupiter will help the bullion prices to improve well, and you are advised to operate within your limit.

Commodities Market.—It would be advisable to buy important items in chemicals, dyes and colours, spices, camphor powder and menthal, etc.

Rayon Yarns after an initial fall will stabilise from December, and hence, please be a buyer at lower rates.

Scanned with CamScanner www.vedicastrology.com To Preserve Old Magazine Work

INTERPRETATION OF A PLANET'S INFLUENCE

(Continued from page 20)

When a square is formed from trines or angular houses and when these two planets acquire benefic vargas, even the square appears to be a very favourable aspect.

The unfavourable aspect between Mars and Mercury is capable of bringing about a nervous or mental breakdown, or at least a carping and satirical intellect. In pronouncing an aspect to be unfavourable, one should carefully consider the sign and house-positions and the ownerships of these planets. Czar Nicholas II has the 10th house Mercury squaring Mars, Moon and Rahu in the Ascendant Leo. In Goering's chart we find the 2nd house Mercury squaring Mars of the 5th house; and the effect is greatly reduced here by Mars conjunction Jupiter with opposition Saturn.

A good deal of uneasy speculation hovers round the aspects between Mars and Venus. Curiously enough, the earth is situated in between these two planets; and the association of these two appears to present an ardently passionate temperament. By itself a conjunction or an aspect between these two does not indicate anything immoral. At best it reveals a taste for the fine arts. The conjunction can result in a bereavement, say a separation from or the death of a child. The individual becomes sensitive, easily irritable, sensuous and coarse; and the energy of Mars tends to be softened. Gandhi has this conjunction in the ascendant. A woman who had a similar placing is separated from her husband for no fault of hers since 1954. We do not know what happened to Bulganin, but he had this position in the 7th, while Hitler had it in the 8th.

A favourable aspect between Mars and Venus brings forth warmth and enthusiasm into one's behaviour towards all. If the two are well placed, a very happy family life is indicated. An unfavourable aspect makes one more sensitive and miserable; there is an absence of adjustability resulting in quarrels and absence of peace in the home. One becomes whimsical, and at times cynical. Disraeli's Mars has a square aspect on Venus in Scorpio, while Milton's Venus is sextile to Mars. In Stalin's chart, there is an exact opposition. All these have tended to be unfavourable.

A conjunction of Mars and Jupiter greatly increases the dormant energy of the person. There is a desire for enjoyment, and yet one is highly active, courageous and argumentative.

(Continued on page 184)

JANUARY 1959

By MIHIRA

[The following forecasts based on Janma Rasi are general and as such those having favourable aspects according to present Dasa and Bhukthi, will have favourable results from the indications made below; while those having adverse aspects according to current directions will experience these predictions to a less proportion. The predictions given below are based not upon conjecture, but upon a clear interpretation of the movements or transits of planets. If you do not know your Janma Rasi write to Mihira, C/o THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.—Ed., A.M.].

MAJOR TRANSITS:—Sun transits Sagittarius till 12th, then enters Capricorn. Mercury remains in Scorpio only till 4th, then enters and transits Sagittarius till 25th on which date he enters Capricorn. Venus enters Aquarius from Capricorn on 24th. Mars changes for his long stay in Aries to Taurus on 19th. Jupiter and Saturn continue in Scorpio and Sagittarius respectively. Rahu and Kethu retrograde in Virgo and Pisces.

1. Mesha (Aries):—Mars in 1st and 2nd; Rahu in 6th; Jupiter in 8th; Mercury in 8th, 9th and 10th; Sun in 9th and 10th; Saturn in 9th; Venus in 10th and 11th; and Kethu in 12th.

General.—There is no transit influence that is good for the entire month and even the few good transits are good only for fractional parts of the month. Sun is good for the second half and luckily unchecked so long. Mercury and Venus the only other planets who are favourable at all are good for the last week only and of these, Mercury is under check. So it can be easily seen how inadequate the month is in the matter of transits for beneficial effects. Mercury, Venus and Saturn are the only planets who are under check so long as they are evil. Mars and Jupiter are both evil and free of vedha throughout. The second half can be expected to be somewhat better than the first. Mental depression and despondency, enmities and quarrels, even humiliation, domestic troubles, obstacles in all matters, ill-health, domestic troubles, false changes, troublesome journeys, dishonour, general unhappiness are among the undesirable happenings probable for the month. During the second half however, some successes, accomplishment of your desires, gains, cessation of disputes and quarrels, help from friends, some luxuries and enjoyments are likely. Among the three asterisms of this sign; those born under Krittika will fare best and suffer least while the unfavourable elements are likely to dominate in the case of those born under the other two asterisms, Aswini and Bharani.

Health and Domestic.—Liability to ailments of blood, bile and heat is increased during this month in the first half. Later wind troubles may manifest. People subject habitually to bilious disorders should be careful in their diet and general habits throughout the month. There is also a liability to accidents which should not be forgotten. No peace can be expected in the domestic sphere at least in the first half but as the concerned planets Sun and Saturn are under check, normal conditions will be restored soon and harmony will prevail during the second half.

Finance and Speculation.—No transit influence is favourable for the first half. Heavy expenditure, losses, misunderstandings and quarrels arising through money are very probable and great care and forbearance will be necessary on your part to prevent the evils from proceeding too far. All this for the first half only. Though these troubles may subsist during second half also, they will be greatly reduced and some gains will accrue to offset the enormously increased expenditure. Extravagance as also speculation in any form or shape should be avoided

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Though the transits are highly discouraging generally, landlords and landholders may not suffer much even during the first half. Yield and rentals should prove satisfactory. It is also probable that the question pertaining to investment in real property will arise and to decide whether to go in for them or not may prove a difficult matter. But in this matter, no definite guidance can be given from the transit influences alone as they are equivocal. Better such matters, if considerable, be postponed to better times. Both good and bad will be experienced for the services. The first half is very discouraging for their interests and anything may happen, humiliation, loss of status, unfounded charges, displeasure of superiors, etc., but these are not inevitable and with previous care and caution can be avoided as the planets responsible therefor are under check. The profession and business will experience struggles during first half and fare better during the second.

Women only.—The first half has been mentioned as being evil generally. It will be worse in matters that pertain to the fair sex as such. They should not travel alone and in unfrequented places and be careful in handling utensils, cooking ranges and kitchen gadgets generally. Giving of parties or engaging in social entertainments, etc., should be avoided as far as possible. All this for the first half especially. Some freedom is allowable during second though still great care will be needed.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com Trusted Astrology Resources Worldwide

Fortunate Dates:—Children's affairs and prospects—6 and 10; Speculation and investments—6, 14 and 28; Long journeys—6, 14, 24 and 28; Real property—9 and 28; Educational and academical—9 and 24; Partnership and opposite sex—10 and 21; Professional and business—6, 14 and 28; Political and Government affairs—14; Interviews and tests—6 and 24; Insurance and estate of deceased—9 and 10; Personal and domestic—9, 10 and 28.

Critical Dates:—Children's affairs and prospects—4 and 31; Speculation and investment—4, 11, 18 and 31; Long journeys—4; Real property—18 and 31; Educational and academical—11, 22 and 31; Partnership and opposite sex—11 and 26; Professional and business—4, 11 and 22; Interviews and tests—11 and 31; Personal and domestic—26; Surety—18.

Chandrashtama about the noon of 5th till night of 7th.

2. Vrishabha (Taurus).—Rahu in 5th; Jupiter in 7th; Mercury in 7th, 8th and 9th; Sun in 8th and 9th; Saturn in 8th; Venus in 9th and 10th; Kethu in 11th; and Mars in 12th and 1st.

General.—Jupiter is favourable and unchecked for the entire month and is a powerful influence for good. But he is the only planet to be in a good sign throughout. Mercury is good for the greater part of the month and also unchecked. Venus too is favourable till 25th but is under check also till then. Sun, Mars and Saturn are evil for the whole month, a formidable array indeed if unchecked; but fortunately Sun and Saturn are under vedha and Mars also for the greater part of the month. This indeed should provide considerable relief as the mischief of unchecked Saturn in 8th is incalculable and has become even

(Continued on next page)

INTERPRETATION OF A PLANET'S INFLUENCE

(Continued from page 182)

Ambitious and powerful one will be; and still he will be outspoken. There is such a conjunction in Goering's chart, though unfortunately it appears in the 6th house. But in Shelley's chart, there is an exact conjunction in a good house. The finest example is provided by the twelfth chart [12]. In the 2nd house owned by Mars, this conjunction takes place. Starting with humble beginnings the person rose to a supreme position of power and honour in academic circles and in the political sphere. He is one of the foremost philosophers of this century.

A favourable aspect between Mars and Jupiter accentuates the characteristics of the conjunction with an addition of gaiety. The individual appears to be the child of fortune in that many opportunities arise for him to reveal his energy and enthusiasm. In other words, Mars provides the energy for the realisation of the characteristics revealed by Jupiter. One is apt to function with the zeal of a reformer. The tenth chart presents a favourable trine. The third chart shows the sextile.

The thirteenth chart [13] reveals that opposition between Mars and Jupiter is not favourable; and here it involves the 2nd and the 8th houses, though both are exalted. A similar unfavourable opposition appears in Gandhiji's nativity. Such unfavourable aspects tend to extremist positions; and the overstrain to which such individuals are put is fraught with grave results. The opposition brings forth an emotionalistic approach to religious problems.

The conjunction of Mars with Saturn does not appear to be quite good. The planet of energy cannot easily adjust with the planet of limitation. The ordering of force and initiative and the super-induction of caution and patience do not enable Mars to function properly. Sometimes, if there is no alleviating influence, the conjunction does result in physical suffering, worry, agony, loss and disappointment. The 9th chart presents this unique conjunction in the 8th house; and it is unrelieved. He was tortured and shot dead like a dog, even though he was a powerful dictator till then.

The favourable aspect between Mars and Saturn presents the same features as the conjunction; but here there are tolerable chances for a harmonious adjustment. Usually those who take up pioneering work and struggle arduously, are found to have these favourable aspects. They do not care for personal comfort One example is provided by Churchill's chart where Mars is in trine; and this is spoilt slightly because of the 12th house where Mars is situated. The trine in Lenin's chart is redeemed a little inspite of the sixth Mars because this sixth happens to be Aries. The third and the seventh charts present a very good sextile.

The unfavourable aspect indicates a hard struggle, physical overstrain, and sternness. It is often revealed in the form of self-discipline and austerity. This is particularly true of opposition. It appears in the tenth chart, and in Guru Nanak's nativity. The unfavourable aspect tends to produce short periods of irritability, sudden enthusiasm, and restless energy. A fire accident cannot be ruled out. It is after a long struggle that the individual achieves success.

The association of Mars with Rahu does not always tend to be bad. In a majority of the cases this conjunction appears to be highly favourable for altruistic endeavours and for great intellectual output. The person becomes an embodiment of a perpetually dynamic energy; and the results of this energy in the hands of others tend to lead to dangerous consequences. The seventh chart is a case in point. The sixth presents the conjunction in the 9th house.

After having analysed the nature of the planet in the light of these considerations, we have to determine the time-factor. Here two ways are open to us. One method is to rely on the Dasa system. In this we have to consider the results that Mars gives; and if an individual is not going to have the period of Mars, then we have to find the planets in whose sub-periods the effects of Mars will be felt. This method can be worked with success in close co-operation with the method of progressing every cusp and every planet by about fifty-nine minutes per year. This aspect of the problem will be considered at a later date.

[12] Born on 5-9-1888 with Kethu's period for one year. Ascdt. in Libra; Mars 4° and Jupiter 8° in Scorpio; Kethu 6° in Capricorn; Saturn 23° in Cancer; Moon 12° and Sun 22° in Leo; Mercury 2° and Venus 5° in Virgo.

[13] Born on 29-2-1896 with Venus period for 27 months. Ascdt. 10° in Gemini; Jupiter 8° in Cancer; Kethu 1° and Moon 25° in Leo; Saturn 27° in Libra; Mars 5°, Venus 15° and Mercury 22° in Capricorn; and Sun 18° in Aquarius.

Scanned by www.sapbooks.com Astrology Books Resource Dr. B.V. Raman's Work proverbial. Jupiter in 7th is a dependable factor in the month's results, especially as he is unchecked. Though effects can be only mixed, conditions would prove generally tolerable. Of the three stars of this sign, those born under Krittigai and Mrigasira will reap well the benefits of the transits and suffer much less from the malefics. The worst sufferers will be among those born under Rohini.

Health and Domestic.—No serious ill-health need be feared because of the transitting influences. But all the same it is better to watch the blood pressure every week throughout the month and take steps to counteract even slight rises that may be noticed. As regards domestic matters, Jupiter and Saturn pull contrarywise and as Jupiter is the more powerful one for this month, nothing but petty bickerings and minor troubles may be present and even these will disappear during the second half.

Finance and Speculation.—Though usual gains will accure from normal and accustomed channels, the month is unsatisfatory generally in respect of finance. Heavy expenditure, losses, extravagance, etc., will swallow up all your available resources and the income will be totally inadequate to your needs. It may also be easily gathered that the month will not favour financial enterprises, new ventures, etc. The first half is especially bad. Speculation at any time during the month will result in loss.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Neither the good nor the bad transits favour or depress the prospects for the landholders and landlords during the month. Conditions will be normal and so far as routine matters go, there will be no disturbance. But it is a different matter if routine is departed from and new innovations or enterprises are contemplated or even investments in real property. Considerable scrutiny and forethought should be exercised before any action of some magnitude is undertaken. The first half is bad for the services and the second half good. There will be room for much apprehensions regarding what may happen as regards your position, status or at least doubts as to whether you will be getting what is due to you but these will be removed during the second half. You may not be in the good books of your superiors during the first half. In this a welcome chance may be expected during the second. There is nothing special that has to be noticed in connection with the profession or business which will continue on average levels. In this too second half may prove better.

Women only.—This is a generally good month for the fair sex, especially the latter half. During the first half some care should be necessary in the matter of fixing marital engagements and avoid haste and precipitancy and better postponed to the second half. Otherwise the month is good for parties, journeys, romance and love affairs and dealings with opposite sex in general, also literary and artistic activities, mystical or musical hits and experiences.

Fortunate Dates :—Children's affairs and prospects—6; Speculation and investment—6, 9, 28 and 29; Long journeys—9, 14, 17, 28 and 29; Real property—6, 14, 21, 24, 27 and 28; Educational and academical—6, 14, 17, 21, 24, 27, 28 and 29; Partnership and opposite sex—9, 10 and 28; Professional and business—10, 21, 24, 27 and 28; Political and Government affairs—17; Interviews and tests—6, 17, 21, 24, 17, 28 and 29; Personal and domestic—10, 21, 24 and 27.

Critical Dates :—Courtship and love affairs—19 and 26; Speculation and investment—4, 12, 18 and 31; Long journeys—4, 22 and 26; Real property—26; Educational and academical—4, 26 and 31; Partnership and opposite sex—11, 12, 18, 19 and 26; Professional and business—11 and 22; Interviews and tests—4, 22, 26 and 31; Insurance and estate of deceased—12, 18 and 19; Personal and domestic—11; and Surety—31.

Chandrashtama from night of 7th to sunset of 9th.

3. Mithuna (Gemini).—Rahu in 4th; Jupiter in 6th; Mercury in 6th, 7th and 8th; Sun in 7th and 8th; Saturn in 7th; Venus in 8th and 9th; Kethu in 10th; and Mars in 11th and 12th.

General.—Venus is the only planet in a favourable sign for the entire month. Mars is good before change of sign that is till 19th. Mercury is good only at the beginning and closing week. This exhausts the auspicious transits for the month. Sun, Jupiter and Saturn are throughout evil but it is satisfactory to note that Sun and Saturn are also under vedha throughout. Among the malefic transits only Jupiter for whole month and Mars after change of sign are free of check. Therefore in a month of unfavourable transits, tolerable conditions prevail and results nondescript either for good or bad. Gain of money, land, house property, domestic happiness, sartorial luxuries, increased fame and prosperity, auspicious events and celebrations, success in undertakings, etc., are all due for the good transits. Health troubles, tedious and wearisome journeys, mental depression, varied anxieties, bad associations and extravagance in expenditure, etc., are due for the evil transits of the month. Of the asterisms of the sign, those born under Mrigasira and Punarvasu will generally fare much better than those born under Ardra.

Health and Domestic.—Domestic troubles, urinary difficulties to those who are prone to such ailments. rectal troubles such as haemorrhage, dysentery, etc., fever for chronic sufferers only, are the probable forms of suffering in health. So considerable attention should be paid to general routine and habits and food and drink. Blood pressure should be watched during the second half especially. Quarrels with friends and relations, wife and children may make domestic and social contacts unpleasant and the mind will be oppressed with anxiety, depression and apprehension.

Finance and Speculation.— There may not be much room for complaint in respect of finance so far as routine matters are concerned. Increased influx will be offset by extra expenditure and during the second half it is even probable that there will be pressure for money which cannot be met with the available resources. Still somehow matters will be squared up without room for much anxiety. Speculative activities are not favoured at any time.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Matters which concern landlords and landholders will be at their worst during this month. Their affairs are liable to go wrong at every step. Yield and rentals will fall below expectations due to various causes. Difficulties, quarrels, etc., are likely to arise in your relationship with tenants, agents, co-owners, etc., and even litigation threatened. But it is not wise to resort to this during this month in which almost all planets are in evil signs. The first half of the month however is not adverse to adding to your holdings if favourable opportunities present themselves. The month cannot be said to be positively bad for the services. There may arise some misunderstandings or some friction with co-workers or even superiors. But on the whole tolerable conditions will prevail. With industry and judicious management, it is even possible to lay the foundation for the future. Generally, the month is good for the business and the profession and they will flourish on above average levels throughout.

Women only.—This month is not altogether favourable for the fair sex in the sense that their hopes and desires may not be realised as per their expectations and fall short of the month. 'Cooling off' of the other party may perhaps express the condition best. But there will be no impediment to all normal activities. Care with regard to persons who want to befriend them will be necessary, as it is likely that some undesirable elements may seek to do so about the middle of the second week or so.

Scanned by www.siddhanta.com Property of Indic Resources Network

Fortunate Dates:—Children's affairs and prospects—10, 17 and 21; Speculation and investment—6, 9, 10, 14, 21, 24, 28 and 29; Long journeys—6, 9, 14 and 29; Real property—6 and 28; Educational and academical—6, 24 and 28; Partnership and opposite sex—14, 17, 24 and 29; Professional and business—9, 10, 14, 17 and 28; Political and Government affairs—14; Interviews and tests—6, 24 and 29; Insurance and estate of deceased—17; Personal and domestic—6 and 24.

Critical Dates:—Courtship and love affairs—18 and 26; Speculation and investment—4, 11, 12, 18, 19, 22 and 26; Long journeys—4, 11, 18 and 31; Educational and academical—131; Partnership and opposite sex—12, 18 and 26; Professional and business—4, 11, 12, 19 and 26; Political and Government affairs—19; Interviews and tests—11, 19, 26 and 31; Insurance and estate of deceased—4 and 22; Personal and domestic—31; Surety—4, 11, 18, 19, 22 and 31.

Chandrashtama from sunset of 9th till about the midnight of 11th.

4. Kataka (Cancer):—Rahu in 3rd; Jupiter in 5th; Mercury in 5th, 6th and 7th; Sun in 6th and 7th; Saturn in 6th; Venus in 7th and 8th; Kethu in 9th; and Mars in 10th and 11th.

General.—Mars, Jupiter and Saturn are three major planets whose influence counts for most in transits are all favourable for the entire month. Saturn is under check throughout, Mars after change of sign, i.e., after 19th, but Jupiter is entirely free and this is highly satisfactory. Mercury is favourable for the greater part of the month but is also under check. Sun is good for the first half and unchecked. Venus is good after change of sign that is for the last week but comes under check at the same time. The favourable transits are clearly in the majority as there is no transit that is evil for the entire month. Still the general effects will be only of a mixed nature as some of the good influences are under vedha. Good health, success over rivals and enemies, happiness, various gains, acquisition and enjoyment of articles of luxury, auspicious events and celebrations, popularity, association with influential and wealthy people, and increased prosperity generally are the good things to be expected. Evils through women, bad associations and quarrels, temptations, obstacles, tedious journeys, etc., may result from the unfavourable transits. Of the three stars, those born under Punarvasu and Aslesha will fare better than those born under Pushya.

Health and Domestic.—Good health for the month will be the general rule. Minor troubles may occur during the second half, such as those relating to stomach, rectum and anus, or an attack of fever. But people who are not constitutionally prone to above, need have no apprehension at all and even those who are predisposed, can get away by taking ordinary precautions. Conditions at home and in social circles will be happy and harmonious and calculated to increase your name, fame and popularity.

Finance and Speculation.—Unchecked Jupiter in 5th is good for money and speculation and success in financial enterprises and practically there is no other influence to obstruct or spoil this. Therefore you can go ahead with your plans, financial enterprises provided you are not over-confident or reckless, in which case no influence can protect you at any time. In speculation, of course, you should take care not to overstep your limits or wade beyond your depth.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—The first half of the month cannot be said to be favourable for landlords and landholders. Yield and rentals may be affected adversely. Quarrels may develop and litigation threatened. In all such cases, you should be beware of taking short cuts to solutions as they will always prove disadvantageous in the long run. In hard cases it may become necessary to even part with a portion of your holdings. The second half is certainly more favourable and if the first half is successfully weathered, you may be sure no further cause for anxiety will arise afresh. The whole month especially the first half is very good for the services. Advancement of your basical position or standing, popularity with co-workers and superiors and other favourable changes are due. The profession and business will do well above average levels and the month also favours new enterprises and ventures, expansion of existing facilities, acquiring new clientele, etc.

Women only.—This month is marked out for success in all activities that are dear to the heart of the fair sex generally and they can go ahead with the sure knowledge that whatever they attempt this month will come out successful and bring them credit, popularity and pleasure. Their estimation will rise in the eyes of others. Some of the fair sex who are married are likely to become mothers and some of the unattached may become engaged and get married.

Fortunate Dates:—Children's affairs and prospects—6, 9, 10, 17 and 27; Speculation and investment—6, 9, 10, 14, 17, 21, 27 and 29; Long journeys—6, 14, 21, 27, 28 and 29; Partnership and opposite sex—17 and 21; Professional and business—6, 9, 10, 14, 17, 27, 28 and 29; Political and Government affairs—9, 10, 14 and 29; Interviews and tests—27; Insurance and estate of deceased—6 and 17; Personal and domestic—9, 10, 14, 21 and 28; Courtship and love affairs—21.

Critical Dates:—Courtship and love affairs—11 and 18; Children's affairs and prospects—11 and 19; Speculation and investment—4, 11, 26 and 31; Long journeys—11, 12 and 31; Real property—12 and 26; Educational and academical—4, 12 and 31; Partnership and opposite sex—11, 18 and 22; Professional and business—11, 19 and 26; Political and Government affairs—19 and 26; Interviews and tests—4, 12 and 31; Insurance and estate of deceased—4, 11, 18 and 22; Personal and domestic—19 and 22; and Surety—4.

Chandrashtama from about midnight of 11th to sunset of 14th.

5. Simha (Leo).—Rahu in 2nd; Jupiter in 4th; Mercury in 4th, 5th and 6th; Sun in 5th and 6th; Saturn in 5th; Venus in 6th and 7th; Kethu in 8th; and Mars in 9th and 10th.

General.—No planet is in a favourable sign for the entire month. Sun is good for the second half only and Mars only after change of sign on 19th. Mercury is good only at the beginning of the month and for the closing week. This exhausts the auspicious transits for the month. Venus, Jupiter and Saturn are evil throughout. Of these, Jupiter and Saturn are also under check throughout, thus their evil is neutralised to a great extent. Venus who is not powerful in transit is under check only for the last week. Sun and Mars are under check so long as they are evil. Thus though evil transits predominate, the mischief they are actually capable of doing is very limited for this month, because of vedha and the second half will be much better than the first as at least three planets transit favourable signs. General success, peace of mind, good health, gains, good associations and friends, popularity are the sort of things to be expected. Of the three stars of sign, those born under Makha and Uttaraphalguna will fare better than those born under Purvaphalguna and those born under Uttaraphalguna will do better than those born under Makha.

Support us: www.sapariwar.org/How-To-Preserve-Digital-Papers-Work

Health and Domestic.—The first half may witness health troubles for yourself and your children and the sufferings will be more mental than physical, such as will be the case if the children are taken ill. The second half can be expected to be free of such troubles and anxieties. General debility and weakness arising from troublesome and protracted journeys will be also a feature of the month. Liability to accidents should not be overlooked. While there may be some bickerings and misunderstandings within the domestic sphere, these are likely to be set right during the second.

Finance and Speculation.—The month as a whole is generally unfavourable for finance and there is a liability to losses through your own actions as well as through theft and undesirable friends during the first half or about the middle of the month. The second half will be somewhat better and with some caution, tact and industry on your part, it will be possible to net some gains. But no part of the month can be said to favour speculative activities on the stock exchange or the race course.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Landlords and landholders will suffer this month as much from their own actions as from outside sources over which they have no control. They may be led into ill-advised investments by unscrupulous persons who seek their own gains. Litigation regarding your incorporeal rights will end unfavourably. Even in your routine matters, there may arise setbacks because of your own impulsiveness or uncontrolled enthusiasm. Avoid new enterprises, innovations and experiments. The beginning of the month is unpropitious for the services but as the month advances more and more favourable influences are released until conditions are quite good at the close. In the first half, you may incur the displeasure from Government or from those placed above you and therefore it is important that you should so conduct yourself so as not to give room for such things. The same observations so far as may be apply also to the business and profession and the month will end much better than at the beginning.

Women only.—There is nothing in the influences of the month that is derogatory to the normal activities in which the female sex are generally engaged as such. But the more ambitious and socially advanced among them will do well to restrict their extra activities for the second half and even then, the month is not good for outdoor activities, excursions, picnics, etc. The month, as a whole, is not conducive for courtships, love affairs, etc.

Fortunate Dates:—Children's affairs and prospects—14 and 24; Speculation and investment—6, 9, 14, 21, 24, 27 and 28; Long journeys—9, 10 and 17; Real property—9, 10, 27 and 28; Educational and academical—9, 10 and 27; Partnership and opposite sex—6 and 17; Professional and business—17, 21 and 27; Political and Government affairs—29; Interviews and tests—9 and 27; Insurance and estate of deceased—14, 17 and 24; Personal and domestic—6, 10, 14 and 29; Courtship and love affairs—21 and 29.

Critical Dates:—Courtship and love affairs—19 and 31; Children's affairs and prospects—19 and 31; Speculation and investment—4, 19 and 31; Long journeys—11, 12, 18 and 26; Real property—11 and 26; Educational and academical—26; Parnership and opposite sex—11, 18, and 31; Professional and business—11, 12, 18, 19, 22 and 26; Interviews and tests—11 and 26; Insurance and estate of deceased—4 and 11; Personal and domestic—4; and Surety—31.

Chandrashtama from sunrise of 14th till sunset of 16th.

6. Kanya (Virgo):—Rahu in 1st; Jupiter in 3rd; Mercury in 3rd, 4th and 5th; Sun in 4th and 5th; Saturn in 4th: Venus in 5th and 6th; Kethu in 7th; and Mars in 8th and 9th.

General.—This month is peculiar for the phenomenal lack of good transits. No planet is in a good sign for the entire month and the only planets who are favourable for part of the time are Mercury and Venus and Mercury good or bad is throughout under check. Sun, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn are all evil for the entire month. But Sun and Saturn are under vedha throughout and Mars for the first half. Thus Jupiter is the only evil transit influence free of check. So in a month replete with evil transits, this check should bring some relief and comfort, though the few good transits can do very little by themselves. Disputes and quarrels, litigation, failures, wearisome journeys, loss of friends by death or otherwise, unwelcome changes, purposeless undertakings, illness, worries and anxieties, all kinds of miseries and unhappiness will be heaped upon the native but it s certain that the position will never become intolerable. Of the three stars of this sign, those born under Uttaraphalguna and Chitta will suffer much less than those born under Hasta.

Health and Domestic.—Both body and mind will be troubled this month. General debility will be present. You may be attacked with fever. There may occur loss of blood through haemorrhage which may arise through disease or through accidents and wounds. The health of some of your children may need careful attention and may be the cause of continual worry, expense and anxieties. Neither will home conditions be happy and harmonious.

Finance and Speculation.—Very little benefit can accrue in the sphere of finance. Stress for money will be felt throughout as sufficient money cannot be found for the heavy demands upon your purse for this and that. Losses too are indicated through more sources than one. On the whole, a month of financial stagnation and despair. The only relief that is probable is help from willing friends whose help in some cases may be even unexpected. Speculation is taboo.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Landlords and landholders also will suffer a lot this month. Nothing will turn out to their satisfaction. Yield and rentals may be reduced and may become difficult of realisation. Tenants will give trouble and resort to litigation against you and through your position may be just, it may be difficult to prove it. The second half of the month will be even worse than the first. Therefore, knowing that times are bad, you should act accordingly, keep to routine, avoid quarrels and litigation and try to settle matters as far as possible through mediator and compromise. There is nothing favourable for the services either. Displeasure of Government, your superiors or men of influence, troubles through rivals and enemies, etc., are all probable. Your position or status may be threatened and dishonour and disgrace may not be far off. But actually nothing need be feared if you lie low, keep to routine and do your work conscientiously and efficiently. Business and profession too are liable to be affected adversely and touch bottom with only occasional bursts of activity.

Women only.—The lot of the fair sex can be expected to be in no way better generally, though the influences will touch them less rigorously. In their case also, much of the evil can be averted if they keep to their own spheres of work and routine matters and do not attempt anything extra.

Still some pleasure through friendly visits, philanthropic actions, praise, etc., will come to them and afford some measure of satisfaction and relief from dull routine for the greater part of the month. The closing week is the worst for them.

Fortunate Dates:—Children's affairs and prospects—17; Speculation and investment—6, 9, 10, 17 and 21; Long journeys—9, 10, 21 and 27; Real property—14, 24 and 29; Educational and academical—10, 14, 17 and 29; Partnership and opposite sex—14 and 24; Professional and business—6, 17, 21, 27 and 29; Political and Government affairs—9 and 21; Interviews and tests—10, 14 and 17; Insurance and estate of deceased—9 and 10; Personal and domestic—6, 27 and 29.

Critical Dates:—Courtship and love affairs—12; Children's affairs and prospects—4 and 22; Speculation and investment—4, 11, 12, 18 and 22; Long journeys—12 and 26; Real property—19; Educational and academical—19 and 22; Partnership and opposite sex—4, 12 and 19; Professional and business—11, 18, 22 and 31; Interviews and tests—19 and 22; Insurance and estate of deceased—22 and 31; Personal and domestic—4; and Surety—12 and 22.

Chandrashtama from sunset of 16th to morning of 19th.

7. Thula (Libra).—Jupiter in 2nd; Mercury in 2nd, 3rd and 4th; Sun in 3rd and 4th; Saturn in 3rd; Venus in 4th and 5th; Kethu in 6th; Mars in 7th and 8th; and Rahu in 12th.

General.—Venus, Jupiter and Saturn are all favourable for the entire month. Sun is good for the first and Mercury at the beginning and close of the month. The only planet that is evil for the entire month is Mars and he is under check for the first three weeks. But as Jupiter and Saturn are also under check for the entire month, the good that may be expected from them may not materialise and the month may be notable for neither good nor bad results,—on the whole a nondescript month with mixed results in which the first half may be slightly better than the second. Some measure of success in your undertakings, increase in the sphere of your influence, auspicious events and celebrations, pleasure trips and excursions, help from friends, happiness and prosperity, friendship with good people, etc., will be met with to some extent at least during the first half. Some troubles may arise also through friends and relatives. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Chitta and Visakha will fare better generally than those born under Swati.

Health and Domestic.—The month will be healthy ordinarily. But chronic sufferers from eye troubles, and stomach disorders cannot afford to be careless on that account and least disturbance should receive both hygienic and medical care. This applies also even to slight scratches or wounds you may suffer. But for slight bickerings and inevitable husband and wife quarrels and differences, the month will be generally happy and harmonious both at home and in social circles.

Finance and Speculation.—The entire month is good for finance and the first half will be better than the second. During the latter half, some pressure for money is likely to be felt because of heavy expenditure. As it is likely that a part of it is avoidable and caused only through extravagance, your own caution and restraint may avert such a position. It is probable that such an item of expenditure may crop up at about the middle of the month. Though speculation is not ruled out, chances for losses through rashness or overstepping prudent limits are so great that it will be better to avoid it altogether.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Some mesure of freedom from worries and cessation of difficult conditions may be experienced by landlords and landholders though this despite may be short-lived. So far as this month is concerned, there may not be much room to complain in the matter of yield and rentals which may even reach above average levels. Some reformatory changes that may have been in contemplation for some time without facilities for being carried out, may also find their fulfilment during this month. The services also will do generally well this month. Acquisition of new status or position, or other beneficial changes may accrue through the recognition of your merits in proper quarters and which may have been delayed or overdue for some time. So far as you are concerned, you should be careful to acquire all the necessary qualifications, etc., during the month as otherwise the influences may pass you by and such an opportunity may not recur again in the near future. This is an excellent month for the profession and business to go ahead with their projects and enterprises.

Women only.—The fair sex should find this month's influences fairly satisfactory for getting on with their activities, outings, excursions, parties and so forth, in pursuance of achievement of their pet ambitions. Courtships and love affairs will progress satisfactorily, though not without some vicissitudes and breaks, that may be caused through your own lack of adaptability or too great impressionablility leading to tension in relationships. Of course it should be possible to avoid these altogether by careful behaviour and attitude.

Fortunate Dates:—Children's affairs and prospects—6, 17 and 21; Speculation and investment—6, 9, 10, 14, 27 and 28; Long journeys—6, 10, 14, 24, 27, 28 and 29; Real property—14 and 17; Educational and academical—10 and 14; Partnership and opposite sex—9, 10, 14 and 27; Professional and business—6, 9, 10, 14, 24, 28 and 29; Insurance and estate of deceased—17 and 21; Personal and domestic—17; Courtship and love affairs—21.

Critical Dates:—4, 11 and 18; Speculation and investment—11, 19, 22 and 31; Long journeys—4, 11, 19 and 31; Real property—11 and 29; Educational and academical—4; Partnership and opposite sex—12, 19 and 26; Professional and business—4, 11, 19 and 31; Political and Government affairs—4; Interviews and tests—4; Insurance and estate of the deceased—18 and 26; Personal and domestic—11 and 18.

Chandrashtama from morning of 19th to sunset of 21st.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com Courtesy Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

8. Vrischika (Scorpio).—Jupiter in 1st; Mercury in 1st, 2nd and 3rd; Sun in 2nd and 3rd; Saturn in 2nd; Venus in 3rd and 4th; Kethu in 5th; Mars in 6th and 7th; and Rahu in 11th.

General.—No planet except Venus is good for the entire month and Venus is under check for the greater part of the month. Mars is favourable before change of sign and Sun after change. This exhausts the list of favourable influences for the month, Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn being unfavourable throughout. Of these, Mercury is under check for the entire month, Saturn for the greater part and Jupiter not at all. This should give an idea that this month would prove somewhat difficult in general and nothing that is positively favourable can take shape so long as such transits are in force. Worries and anxieties, quarrels with friends and relatives, troubles from rivals and enemies as also relatives, losses, disgrace, unjust imputations, tedious journeys, delays and obstructions in all enterprises and undertakings, etc., are the sort of unwelcome happenings attributed to the transits of this month. Of the three asterisms of this sign, those born under Visakha and Jyeshta will suffer far less than those born under Anuradha.

Health and Domestic.—Ill-health is not a necessary consequence of the evil transits of the month but because of the predominance of evil transits it is all the same better to be careful about one's digestion by being sparing in diet and avoiding heavy foods. Chronic sufferers may suffer from some eye troubles. Quarrels within the domestic circle, misunderstandings with relatives and troubles through them, loss of domestic comforts, etc., are all within the scope of the evil transits of the month.

Finance and Speculation.—Inspite of the fact that some influence or other is propitious for financial gains throughout the month, it cannot be said that the month will be an easy one in this respect. Financial worries, losses through fraud or deceit or following evil advice of interested persons, increased expenditure, etc., are all likely to result. This is not a month for new financial enterprises or ventures and speculation should be given a wide berth.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Troubles from landlords and landholders are almost certain. They will arise in connection with management, servants, tenants, etc., than otherwise. But yield and rentals may be alright and may not fall below expectations. The beginning of the month will be pretty bad in all respects including realisation of rentals, arrears, etc., but as the month advances, conditions are likely to improve but again the close of the month may prove to be actually trying. The services have nothing advantageous to look forward to during the month. In their case too, the beginning and close of the month will be the worst parts of the month. You may suffer loss of prestige through the crafty intrigues of your rivals and enemies and setbacks to your career and progress may arise through such causes. Even the unexpected and unforeseen element may take a hand to affect your discomfiture. The same observations apply wtih regard to the profession and business also.

Women only.—Women are likely to be the worst sufferers this month. They should not go out alone, without proper escort to unfrequented places, lest they suffer assault. They should not of their own accord contemplate or seek any changes. Attachments may be broken and sudden estrangements arise. Even with the soberest of them, tension may arise and leave undesirable consequences unless they are very careful and circumspect in their actions.

Fortunate Dates:—Children's affairs and prospects—10, 14 and 24; Speculation and investment—6, 17, 24 and 27; Long journeys—9, 17 and 28; Real property—17; Educational and academical—17; Partnership and opposite sex—10 and 21; Professional and business—6, 9, 14, 17, 21, 24, 27 and 28; Political and Government affairs—9 and 14; Interviews and tests—17; Insurance and estate of deceased—6, 27 and 28; Personal and domestic—9, 27 and 28; Courtship and love affairs—21.

Critical Dates:—Children's affairs —4 and 19; Speculation and investment—4, 11, 12, 18, 19 and 31; Long journeys—4, 22 and 26; Real property—4 and 11; Educational and academical—11 and 22; Partnership and opposite sex—12, 18, and 26; Profession and business—4, 19, 26 and 31; Interviews and tests—11 and 22; Insurance and estate of the deceased —4 and 31; Personal and domestic— 19; Surety—12, 18, 19 and 31; and Courtship and love affairs—12, 18 and 26.

Chandrashtama from sunset of 21st to midnight of 23rd.

9. Dhanus (Sagittarius):—Sun in 1st and 2nd; Saturn in 1st; Venus in 2nd and 3rd; Kethu in 4th; Mars in 5th and 6th; Rahu in 10th; Jupiter in 12th; and Mercury in 12th, 1st and 2nd.

General.—Venus is the only planet in a favourable sign for the entire month and he too comes under check after change of sign. Mars becomes good after change of sign on 19th and is free of check. All the other transits for the month are unfavourable though Jupiter in 12th cannot be classed as wholly evil. Sun, Mercury and Saturn are all in evil signs only. Of these, Sun is under check throughout Mercury for the greater part of the month and Saturn not at all. Therefore it can only be expected that the month will generally prove a trying one. Long and tedious journeys, troubles through rivals and enemies, ill-health, obstructions, delays, and failures in enterprises, anxieties, disgrace and dishonour, are the unwelcome results that may be caused by the evil transits. As against all this, there is no good transit to balance. Perhaps the second half may prove less troublesome, because Mars is in a good sign. Of the three asterisms of the sign, there may not be much difference this month, as all will be more or less equally affected.

Health and Domestic.—Ill-health will manifest during the month according to constitutional predisposition of each. Blood pressure should be watched and least departure from normal should be promptly attended to. In the matter of diet, care is absolutely essential. Children's health also is liable to be affected and may be the cause for additional worries. Quarrels and misunderstandings are likely to mar peace and harmony within the domestic circle ranging from petty bickerings to serious matters.

Finance and Speculation.—In matters of finance, there will be appreciable difference between the first and second halves of the month, the former being totally unfavourable while the latter will be tolerable with some increase in income, extra gains, and success in enterprises. There is scope for some articles of luxury being acquired and enjoyed also. Even losses are probable during the first half through following the advice of evil and interested persons. But speculation is not favoured at any time within the month.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Yield and rentals may be satisfactory though this is no guarantee that all matters pertaining to landlords and landholders will prove favourable and gainful. In the case of a few even loss of property may take place and some may have to face litigation though they may try to avoid it ever so much. The second half is suitable for advantageously terminating such litigation and this opportunity may be availed of instead of trying to probing it. The services may do well during the month inspite of the transits, at least during the second half, but there is no scope for actual betterment in any respect. However they need not fear setbacks though a lot of difficulties may arise through scandals, unjust blame, and possibly false charges against you engineered by your enemies. The

Scanned by astrologicalresearch.com & Digitized by eGangotri

BHRIGUSAMHITA PADDHATI IN ENGLISH

Know Thy Fate and Thy whole Future Life as well as of others from the book which shows all like a mirror. Knowledge of Astrology is not necessary. Read all horoscopes easily with it. Even a wrong horoscope could be corrected. It is a dictionary and gives answer for all horoscopes.

Price Rs. 12: Foreign advance £ 1/9
(Postage Free)
Hindi Edn. Rs. 9 only.

Apply to BHAGWANDAS MITTAL
Naya Bazaar, Mathura, U.P.

normal, routine work should be adhered to at any cost. There is not much to help or hinder the normal working of the profession and business which may be average throughout.

Women only.—The fair sex are not much favoured this much as regards matters and interests in which they are peculiarly interested by reason of their sex and they are likely to meet with depression, disappointments. Quarrels with your associates and those that are near and dear to you, may arise. You may be easily imposed upon by undesirable persons who may seek to befriend you for ulterior purposes and cause you loss. It is better you do not go out with persons not thoroughly familiar to you.

Fortunate Dates:—Children's affairs and prospects—9, 10, 27, 28 and 29; Speculation and investment—9 and 21; Long journeys—6, 10, 14, 17, 24, 28 and 29; Real property—17, 28 and 29; Educational and academical—14 and 24; Partnership and opposite sex—6, 27, 28 and 29; Profession and business affairs—6, 10, 17, 21 and 27; Political and Government affairs—17 and 21; Interviews and tests—14, 21 and 24; Insurance and estate of deceased—9, 14 and 24; Personal and domestic—14, 21 and 24.

Critical Dates:—Children's affairs—11, 19 and 26; Speculation and investment—11, 12, 19, 22 and 26; Long journeys—11, 19, 22 and 31; Real property—4; Educational and academical—4 and 11; Partnership and opposite sex—4, 12 and 31; Profession and business—18, 19, 26 and 31; Political and Government affairs—26; Interviews and tests—4 and 11; Insurance and estate of the deceased—12, 18, 22 and 31; Surety—22; Courtship and love affairs—12

Chandrashtama from morning of 24th to forenoon of 26th.

10. Makara (Capricorn).—Venus in 1st and 2nd; Kethu in 3rd; Mars in 4th and 5th; Rahu in 9th; Jupiter in 11th; Mercury in 11th, 12th and 1st; Sun in 12th and 1st; and Saturn in 12th.

General.—Venus and Jupiter are good for the entire month and both are free of vedha throughout. This in itself is very favonrable. Though all the other planets are in evil signs, almost all of them suffer check. Sun, Mercury, Mars and Saturn, all of them are unfavourable and Mars is the only planet that escapes check and that only after change of sign. Though necessarily only mixed results can be expected for the month, there is every justification to expect that the good side will predominate. Happiness, gains, increased power and influence, auspicious events and celebrations, good news, honour, respect and general prosperity, enjoyment of articles of luxury, etc., are the good effects of the favourable transits. Because of the evil transits, especially during second half, there may be troubles through enemies, losses, disappointments and anxieties as also quarrels and misunderstandings generally. Of the three stars of this sign, the best results will be realised by those born under Uttarashada and the least benefitted will be those born under Sravana and those born with Dhanishta as their birth star will come between both.

Health and Domestic.—Beyond some usual minor ailments arising from cold, cough, etc., the month will be passed healthily on the whole in your case. But the same may not be the case with your children whose health may need some urgent attention during the second half. But there will be no reason for anxiety as they will yield quickly to prompt treatment because of the helpul influences also. Home and domestic surroundings will be happy and harmonious and you will also become popular in social circles.

Finance and Speculation.—The month's influences are best for finance. Gains will come in from more sourcers than one and financial ventures will meet with success and the returns will be adequate to the amount of time and labour involved. There will be opportunities for achieving success especially through writings, transport, or through well-thought out contracts. But this is not a month for making easy money as considerable labour, mental and pysical, will be involved in such products. There is scope for success in speculation also.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Without having any of their major problems solved, landlords and landholders may find this month on the whole favourable for their interests, yield and rentals may even be above normal and prove satisfactory. There is scope sor acquisition of fresh items to your holdings and also other profitable investments made. Some definite solution may be sought for many of the outstanding problems but it cannot be expected that they will be completely satisfactory. Though the month as a whole is favourable for the services, it is probable that they may commit mistakes through oversight, haste or sluggishness or other causes which may cause serious consequences. Hence it is very important that whatever work you do, even routine, should be done with the utmost care and caution, especially the whole of the second week. Increased turnover and greater work will render conditions quite satisfactory for the business and profession and gains will reach above normal levels.

Women only.—The fair sex will have cause to rejoice this month. Conditions are favourable for their getting good dress, perfumes, and other articles of luxury that are dear to the feminine heart. Some are likely to enter into the joys and thrills of matrimony and in the case of some, it will be the joy of succeeding the examinations, tests, etc., which will enable them to secure jobs and some will get employed too.

Fortunate Dates:—Children's affairs and prospects—10, 14. 17 and 21; Speculation and investment—9, 17 and 24; Long journeys—6, 17, 21, 24 and 27; Real property—9 and 27; Educational and academical—9 and 28; Partnership and opposite sex—6, 10, 14 and 24; Profession and business—6, 10, 14, 17, 21, 27, 28 and 29; Political and Government affairs—29; Interviews and tests—9 and 28; Insurance and estate of deceased—6; Courtship and love affairs—10, 24 and 21.

Critical Dates:—Speculation and investment—11, 19 and 22; Long journeys—4, 11, 12, 19 and 31; Educational and academical—11; Partnership and opposite sex—4, 12, 22, 26 and 31; Profession and business—11, 12, 19 and 31; Insurance and estate of the deceased—4; Personal and domestic—22; Surety 11 and 22; Courtship and love affairs—12 and 19.

Chandrashtama from morning of 26th to noon of 28th.

11. Kumbha (Aquarius).—Kethu in 2nd; Mars in 3rd and 4th; Rahu in 8th: Jupiter in 10th; Mercury in 10th, 11th and 12th; Sun in 11th and 12th; Saturn in 11th; and Venus in 12th and 1st.

General.—Venus and Saturn are favourable for the entire month. Mercury is good except for the last week, Mars for the first seventeen days and Sun for the first half. Of these, Mercury alone is under check for the entire month. Mars is under vedha only so long as he is good and Venus for the last week only. Thus the only planet in an unfavourable sign for the entire month is Jupiter. He is free of vedha. Though vedha affects the good planets also, they are more numerous and more powerful. It is significant that favourable Sun and Saturn are unchecked throughout. Therefore the general results for the month will be good and the year opens bright under favourable transit influences. Success and prosperity in enterprises, happiness, new position and honours, gains of various kinds, good health, success over rivals and enemies, gain of good and influential friends, luxuries, educational and academical triumphs, etc., are the favourable results for the month, especially for the first half which will be generally better than the second. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Dhanishta and Purvabhadra will reap much better benefits than those born under Satabhisha.

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri Preserving the Past, Valuing Work

Health and Domestic.—The month will be healthy as a rule. During the last week or ten days some digestive troubles are indicated which can be averted by care in diet and general habits, especially hot and pungent things should be avoided. A few luxuries may be acquired and enjoyed and the domestic circle will be happy and harmonious. Children will be a source of pleasure. Auspicious events and celebrations also are probable.

Finance and Speculation.—Financial affairs will take on a bright appearance with Sun and Saturn in eleventh during the first half and unchecked. But great care in financial projects and enterprises will be necessary especially during second half with Jupiter in tenth. There will be increased expenditure no doubt but that will be because of a festive mood and purchase of luxuries, or in auspicious matters and celebrations. Even so, such items should not be allowed to reach beyond limits.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Landlords and landholders also are likely to have a good time this month with satisfactory yield and rentals. They can inaugurate improvements, new methods designed to increase yield with a long view. They can also make long-term arrangements for cultivation, tenancy and so forth. This month is also good for investments but proper security of title deeds and through enquiry will be necessary to avoid any lacuna in title or in the property itself. The services too are favoured this month. New position or status or promotion, etc., will be due. There is also the likelihood of those employed temporarily to secure permanent footing. The unemployed too have got chances of being employed at least on a temporary footing. The profession and business will flourish on above average levels and reap good income and profits this month. As in all other matters, the first half will give better results for their industry than the second.

Women only.-This is a good month for the fair sex. There will be plenty of opportunities for them to realise their long-cherished ambitions, gaining honour, distinction and increase their range of experience on various levels. They will be able to secure for their interests the help of benevolent persons in influential positions. Matrimony probably awaits some of the unattached born under this sign and not a few will experience throes of child-birth probably for the first time.

Fortunate Dates:—Children's affairs and prospects—6, 27 and 28; Speculation and investment—14, 17 and 24; Long journeys—9, 10, 21 and 29; Real property—9, 10 and 21; Educational and academical—17 and 21; Partnership and opposite sex—6 and 17; Profession and business—9, 10, 14, 21 and 27; Political and Government affairs—14; Interviews and tests—14, 17 and 21; Insurance and estate of the deceased—6, 17 and 29.

Critical Dates:—Children's affairs —11 and 31; Speculation and investment—4, 12 and 22; Long journeys—4, 18, 19 and 26; Real property—18 and 26; Educational and academical —4, 12 and 26; Profession and business—4, 11, 18, 19, 26 and 31; Political and Government affairs—4 and 18; Interviews and tests—4, 11, 12, 22 and 26; Insurance and estate of the deceased—11 and 31; Personal and domestic—11, 18 and 22; Surety —4 and 12.

Chandrashtama from beginning of the month to 3rd noon and again from noon of 28th to sunset of 30th.

12. Meena (Pisces)—Kethu in 1st; Mars in 2nd and 3rd; Rahu in 7th; Jupiter in 9th; Mercury in 9th, 10th and 11th; Sun in 10th and 11th; Saturn in 10th; and Venus in 11th and 12th.

General.—There are many good transit influences for the month but not all of them can function fully because of obstruction by vedha. Venus, Sun and Jupiter are favourable for the entire month. Of these Jupiter alone comes under check for the entire month, Sun and Venus being free throughout. Mars becomes favourable after change of sign on 19th but at the same time comes under check. Mercury also favourable for nearly the whole month is under vedha so long as he is good. Saturn in 10th is not a wholly evil influence but is under check for the greater part of the month. As it is, the general results will be quite good but not brilliant as it would be if it were not for vedha. Prosperity and success in general undertakings, gain of friends, articles of luxury, cheerfulness, pleasures, increased returns, triumph over rivals and enemies, auspicious events and celebrations and accomplishment of one's desires are the good things to be expected for the month especially for the latter part. Of the three stars of the sign, persons born with Purvabhadra and Revati will fare much better than those born with Uttarabhadra as their birth star.

Health and Domestic.—Bilious and windy complaints are the only form of health trouble that may occur during the month but they will be neither severe nor prolonged being most confined to the first half. The rest of the month will prove good for health. Happiness and harmony will prevail at home and social circles with gain of friends. Your popularity will be enhanced. It is also quite probable that you will be able to buy some articles of luxury for your pleasure and enjoyment.

Finance and Speculation.—The finances for the month will be satisfactory with increased gains from more sources than one and success in financial enterprises. But at the same time, great care will be needed in scheme and enterprises that are not routine and are of sizable proportions because of Saturn in 10th. The special kind of care that will be required this month is that because there is some gain should not be recklessly followed up as the results will be to wipe out even the previous savings. Such experiences are not infrequent in gambling, races and speculation.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—It is rather unfortunate that with such predominant good transits, landlords and landholders will not be able to reap the full measure of benefit from them. On the other hand, their sufferings and disabilities are likely to continue, though in this some relief and betterment may be in evidence this month. Profits and rentals may not suffer diminution and routine matters too will not be affected adversely. The month is very good for the services in fact one of the best in the whole year if not the best. New position, and honours, position of authority, triumph over rivals and enemies, increased efficiency attracting attention in proper quarters and recognition of your merits, friendship of influential persons interested in your uplift and welfare, new employment, beneficial changes are the probable results. Profession and business will expand and bring in increased gains of returns though not without considerable work and struggle.

Women only.—This is also one of the best months in the year for the fair sex who may find it well suited for all their pet activities, parties, social enterprises, etc., etc. Those engaged in literary and educational fields can achieve notable success in their respective spheres by being able to import new inspirational and intuitive perception even in routine matters and daily work. The aesthetic sensibilities will be generally quickened.

Scanned by CamScanner Digitized by eGangotri Preserved by Ramana Maharshi

Fortunate Dates :-Children's affairs and prospects-9, 10 14 and 24 ; Speculation and investment--9, 24, 27 and 28; Long journeys-9, 10, 14, 17, 21, 27 and 28 ; Real property—6, 27 and 28 ; Educational and academical—6 ; Partnership and opposite sex—6, 27, and 28; Professional and business affairs—6, 10, 14, 17, 21, 24 and 29; Political and Government affairs—10 and 14; Interviews and tests—6; Insurance and estate of deceased—10, 14, 17 and 21 ; Personal and domestic —24 and 29.

Critical Dates:—Children's affairs —19, 22, 26 and 31; Speculation and investment—11, 12, 18 22 and 26; Long journeys—12, 18 and 26; Real property—11 and 31; Educational and academical—4; Partnership and opposite sex—11 and 31; Profession and business—4, 19 and 26; Interviews and tests—4; Insurance and estate of the deceased—12, 18 and 26; Personal and domestic—4 and 26; Surety—12, 18 and 19.

Chandrashtama from noon of 3rd till noon of 5th and again from sunset of 30th till end of the month.

AS IT STRIKES ME

(Continued from page 8)

the fault of Parasara. Be it remembered that Parasara wrote out his system in India and for Indians, and that it was extended later to others. It is unscholarly to say that since a yoga based on Bhavas given by Parasara cannot take place outside India, it should be a yoga based on rasi system. Who are we to amend a text to suit our preconceived conclusions? There is the text; accept it, if you like; but you have no business to twist it and condemn it. The present writer has the chart of one born in India with Jupiter as the lord of the 9th and 10th cusps; and though Jupiter is exalted, his dasa has not been wholly a benefic one. This is strictly in keeping with Parasara's rules. One need not go to Iceland or to Tasmania to distort Parasara.

Mr. Nixon has taken Bhavartha Ratnakara also to be on the side of the rasi system. Readers may kindly look to the first chapter only dealing with Mesha Lagna. There the sixth verse reads : "If Mars is in conjunction with the sixth and eighth lords, death occurs in the course of his Dasa and Bhukti by disease pertaining to the head". For Mesha Lagna, if we accept Mr. Nixon's contention, Mars is the lord of the ascendant and of the eighth. But the author is speaking of a yoga where Mars will not be the lord of the eighth. He wants Mars to join the lords of the sixth and the eighth. In other words the eighth lord for Mesha can be Venus or Jupiter. This will be only when we admit with the author of Bhavartha Ratnakara that it is applicable to the bhavas, not to the rasis. This instance is enough to show how a preconceived notion can lead even Mr. Nixon to misread a simple text. Mr. Nixon quotes the fourth verse of the first chapter, but forgets that the author does not say anything about Jupiter and Saturn, but only about the lords of the 9th and 10th houses. It is in the translation that Prof. Raman, for the sake of clarity, mentioned the planets. Even the author at times mentions cases like Jupiter becoming the lord of the third and sixth. This does not mean that he follows the rasi system. Even when the bhavas are taken up, for Thula Lagna Jupiter can become the lord of those two houses. This is the natural way of interpreting the texts.

From the standpoint of Hindu astrology, therefore, there was never any confusion between Rasi and Bhava. From the time of Parasara, it is admitted that it is a basic error not to apply the methods of sign rulership to bhavas. Thus for Aries, one can have Mars as the lord of the first two houses.

It is also an error to say that Hindu astrology does not calculate the aspects in mundo. Sripathi's text and earlier still Parasara have given us methods to calculate the bhavabala or strength of the bhavas. Here one source of strength comes from drishti or aspect. These aspects, if they fall, between 30 degrees and 300 degrees, do contribute some strength to the bhavas and also to the planets. Here bhavas alone are taken into consideration.

The rasi system and the bhava system have always been kept distinct. Because of the precession of the equinoxes, the Hindu authorities have given the rules regarding ownership and the like on the basis of the signs. Such rules are intended to be applied to bhavas when we come to predictive astrology. The secret of Hindu astrology lay not in its rules, but in the interpretation of the rules. This interpretation was largely handed down orally. This has led to a confusion in the understanding of the earlier authorities on the subject.

Scanned by www.sanjayrishis.blogspot.com For Preserve the B. V. Raman's Work

---

LIST OF FESTIVALS

HINDU

9. Lohri (special for Jammu and Kashmir.)
13. Bhogi.
14. Pongal.
15. Go Pooja.
25. Thai Poosam.

MOHAMMEDAN

3. Abu Baker Chittiji.
16. Nairuddin Chishkadiri.

CHRISTIAN

1. New Year's Day.
6. Epiphamy Day.
25. Septuagesima.

WORLD PREDICTIONS FOR 1959

(Continued from page 24)

whole the year is not good for Ceylon. Natural calamities, strikes and violent demonstrations will give lot of headache to the Government. As Kanya navamsa with Jupiter and Mercury rises in Rangoon, the Military Government of Burma will be able to run the administration smoothly. There are no indications of elections being held according to schedule. We propose to deal with Burma in greater detail in the next issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. Party and personal rivalry will continue to bedevil the efforts of the King of Nepal to evolve some sort of a representative Government. There will be considerable infiltration of communists into the ranks of the armed forces and lawlessness will prevail in several parts of the country. With India cordial relations will continue. Nepal occupies a strategic position and what happens there will be a matter of great concern to us. The King must be beware of the United Democratic Party.

UNITED STATES

Mars in the ruling sign of America aspected by Saturn foreshadows a particularly anxious year for America. There will be no weakening of her efforts to "contain communism" either in Europe or Asia. America will reconcile herself to the risk involved in aiding Chiang-kai-Sheik. Scorpio rises in Washington with Jupiter within 4°. This is evidence of the paramount part U.S.A. would play in world affairs. Jupiter in Lagna and Venus aspecting Lagna restrain any policy involving the use of force by America. All the malefic aspects involving Mars, Saturn and Rahu are focussed on the 11th. This disposition favours America in her foreign relations and policy, but in the domestic sphere, she will have many troubles of her own—political wrangles, increase of crime, transportation bottlenecks, racial riots and strikes in automobile and mining industries. The 2nd and 7th are both afflicted by Saturn and Mars. Therefore America will become more than ever convinced, that co-existence is not possible. Consequently, the NATO and other alliances will be further intensified. In fact, the NATO will acquire a very different emphasis and orientation. As the King of the Planetary Cabinet is Jupiter and as two benefics focus their influences on the Lagna rising at Washington, it is clear that cold war will be continued avoiding at the same time a purely negative condemnation of the communist block. Though the 5th house is afflicted, it is also aspected by Jupiter, lord of the 5th. Therefore, America will have before her mind clear-cut policies to be followed towards different countries. Lord of the 2nd (from the sign rising at Delhi) Mercury in the 5th aspected by Jupiter favours India receiving appreciable financial aid, while martian aspect on Virgo indicates the signing of an Indo-American Pact whereby India will receive aid in the shape of military equipment, etc.,—a response to emergency but without any political strings attached. The Ascendants rising at Delhi and Washington being samasapthaka favour cordial relations between India and America. A delicate sense of restraint comes in the way of America openly disapproving Pakistan's war-cry towards India, but as we have already mentioned earlier, it is America that will be mainly responsible in preventing an Indo-Pakistan clash. The 8th house affliction also indicates the passing away of an elderly statesman, now in the American Government. The President will be able to keep himself out of the tumble of partisan politics. Throughout 1959 America will continue to exercise tremendous influence on world affairs and practical necessity demands that most of the Western democracies would depend on U.S.A. for comfort and security.

SOVIET RUSSIA

In Moscow, the 20th degree of Aries rises, while the meridian falls within 7 degrees from the position of Saturn. Rahu is in the 6th house. Both the 6th and 10th are aspected by Mars, the 10th in addition having Saturn located there. The relieving features are Navamsa Lagna being occupied by Jupiter and Venus. The planetary dispositions affecting Moscow in the New Year chart signify not only an intensification of the cold war but a resort to dangerous pressure tactics. Khruschev will deliberately provoke the Western powers and his intervention in the Middle East affairs by liberal supply of arms and extension of economic aid will once again poise power blocks on the brink of war. But Jupiter's situation in Navamsa Lagna, will make the Soviet leader think twice before embarking on a self-destructive adventure with the result there will be no world war. Within the Kremlin intense struggle for power will go on amongst top Soviet leaders but Khruschev will hold the trump-card. As Saturn is in the 11th from the ruling sign of Russia, there will be no sudden developments in the beginning of the year, but as Mars comes nearer to Rahu, unlooked for occurrences from within will come to the fore. Russia will be guided by her 'concern for the peace of the world'. Despite the intense phase of the cold war by about September 1959, Navamsa Lagna well disposed denotes that by the end of the year the relations between Russia and U.S.A. will have undergone a seeming transformation exercising a potent influence on world peace. Mars aspects the 10th from Navamsa Lagna, denoting an aggressive spirit, violent happenings in satellite countries and political purges at home. Much activity in foreign affairs and diplomatic gains and success are also denoted. The October solar eclipse, the preceding conjunction of Mars and Rahu and the succeeding conjunction of Mars and Saturn are all pointers to the development of an unusual situation in the Kremlin and a change of the political structure of the U.S.S.R. to come off in the next few years. Russia makes quite a few threatening gestures, but she will come under the throes of some sort of another internal revolution among her leaders. The Ascendants rising at Delhi and Moscow are Dwirdwadasa (2nd and 12th). Therefore relations between Russia and India will not be cordial. But nevertheless a commercial treaty between these two countries cannot be ruled out. Mars is dominantly situated, casting his aspect on the 10th house. This is ominous. Death of an important Soviet statesman is also indicated. As Soviet efforts will be aimed at political infiltration into India—mark the situation of Rahu in the 6th in the ruling sign of India—our leaders must be beware of Russia.

CHINA AND JAPAN

The end of Gemini rises at Peking. Though Mars is in the same sign he falls in the 12th house. This means the country will suffer from some sort of internal civil strife or revolt of a serious nature which will be ruthlessly suppressed. Though the 7th lord happens to be Jupiter, the 7th house is aspected by Mars. Militarily China becomes fully prepared but she will not precipitate any serious crisis though, on the issue of Formosa, an atmosphere of tension will be kept up. There is no indication that the communists would really invade Formosa. American policy towards China remains almost unchanged and status quo will continue. Lord of the 10th Jupiter aspects the 10th. This denotes some kind of national rejoicing. Mr. Mao Tse Tung will have a hazardous time and his health is threatened. Chiang-kai-Sheik will be quite active behind the scenes. The October eclipse will have adverse effects on China threatening counter-revolutions and upheavals in Manchuria and Tibet. Relations with Soviet Russia will become less cordial. It is the transit of Virgo by Mars that will again cause the Far East crisis when China will carry out a very skilful manoeuvre confronting the Americans with a grave situation. China and Russia will come closer in economic matters. With India also, China's relations will not be as friendly as hitherto. About June-July, the Central Government will be reconstituted and some ministers dismissed for rightist leanings.

Scanned by www.jyotishreserve.com Reserve Bank Kolkata Mark

Japan will have a comparatively peaceful year but there will be considerable political turmoil in regard to matters affecting U.S.–Japan relations. The 17th degree of Cancer is on the Ascendant and the meridian point falls in the 3rd quarter of Aswini ruled by Kethu. Cancer being a watery sign and Aries a fiery sign, the country is in for huge losses of life and property, due to bad storms, volcanic eruptions and tidal actions especially about the end of September when both Mercury and Venus simultaneously transit the first quarter of Chitta constellation. Since the third house is afflicted, relations with China will be strained. While Japanese–American relation will also have to pass through a critical stage, Japan will continue her active association with Western democracies. The 7th house and the 7th lord being aspected by Mars denotes that the U.S.–Japan mutual security Treaty would be so recast as to allow Japan to rearm herself paving the way for her once again becoming a great military power. Japan will extend sizable economic aid to us and even in international matters, Japan comes nearer to India to the discomfiture of the communist block. The third house being afflicted causes discontent among employees and brings serious accidents. It also indicates some legislative measures affecting the Press. As the Emperor's Lagna is afflicted, he must be beware of his health. The fall of Mr. Kishi's Government is also foreshadowed.

EUROPE

The pattern of events to happen in Western Europe is rather confusing. The 22nd degree of Aquarius rising on the Ascendant at London with lord of Lagna in the 11th and Jupiter posited near about the meridian denote a fairly good year for Great Britain. In the next General Elections which will take place soon after the April solar eclipse, the two principal parties—Conservatives and Labour—will be involved in a bitter contest. Though the chances will be even, the Conservatives are likely to win with a thin majority. It is on the international level that the elections will be fought. The London meridian point and the American rising degree are very near each other. Therefore on important world issues, America and England must see eye to eye with each other. Britain will however have no influencing power in Washington. Mr. Macmillan's horoscope has bright facets though at the end of the year he will come under certain adverse aspects threatening his health. The Labour Party will have troubles to maintain its leadership. Mars in the 5th aspected by Saturn in the 11th favours further industrial expansion. But export orders will fall. Because of the disposition of Rahu in the 8th, an unpleasant scandal affecting a notable figure in the public life of Great Britain is threatened. Jupiter in the 10th is a clear indication that Britain's role in world affairs would be considerable. As the conjunction of Mars and Rahu in September takes place in the 8th from the rising sign at London, there will be outbreaks of violence and the possibility of a national sorrow. The 7th lord Sun is in the 2nd aspected by Jupiter. Britain will therefore gain some lost allies, prestige and friends. Due to the affliction of the third lord, general hindrances to shipping occasioned by storms cause setbacks in commerce. With India relations will be friendly and Britain will play a significant part in getting us financial aid. While a certain section of the Press in Britain will indulge in Nehru-baiting Britain will help India in her efforts to make democracy a success. There is no indication of Britain coming out of any military alliances she has with America. The 29th degree of Kumbha rising at Paris with lord of Lagna well placed and Jupiter within about 10° from meridian assures a stable administration for France and the political turmoil which continued to be the rule rather than the exception ever since the Fourth Republic was founded will be consequent by its absence. As Saturn aspects Lagna and as Jupiter occupies a favourable disposition, De Gaulle's rule while authoritarian will be largely benevolent and France would make rapid strides both economically and industrially. The 7th lord being aspected by Jupiter also favours France's voice being more effectively heard in international affairs. She will extend sizable economic aid to her colonies. Though Algeria will continue to give trouble till about the time of Rahu-Mars conjunction, there is every chance of this issue being solved before the end of the year. Considerable industrial unrest is foreshadowed in the latter part of the year, but the administration will be firm in dealing with the situation. Many African colonies though independent will prefer to continue under French tutelage.

It is interesting to note that in the coming year Italy leans towards right in Government and left in the aspirations of her people. The Pope must be careful about his health as Jupiter occupies a maraka place in Navamsa Lagna. There will be volcanic eruptions about the time of Mars-Saturn conjunction while a movement to revive Fascism will come to the open about the time of Mars-Rahu conjunction. The 18th degree of Aquarius rises in Berlin while the 1st degree of Sagittarius culminates on the meridian. Mars will be within about seven degrees from the 7th house. This is a pointer to the fact that the problem of Berlin would add great tension to the already critical situation. No understanding would be reached on Berlin and the matter will drag on. Germany on the whole will not have a peaceful year to pass through. East Germany will be the scene of serious political disturbances especially after the April solar eclipse. Scorpio navamsa rises at Bonn indicating outbreaks of violence arising from strikes. Militarily West Germany will be a power to reckon with. Marshal Tito's health is threatened. With Russia status quo will be maintained. Yugoslavia's relations with the West will remain quite cordial. Events in Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and other east European countries will be marked by internal political restlessness and a strong revivalist movement. While Poland will be more peaceful, Hungary will have to pass through the throes of another revolt by about October. Russia's grip on these countries will be firm but paradoxically, especially in Poland, there will be some sort of a pronounced return to capitalism and private enterprise.

MIDDLE EAST

Rahu's transit of Virgo aspected by Saturn from Sagittarius, does not favour stable political conditions in most of the Middle East countries. At Cairo the 22nd degree of Pisces rises, within 3° from the lunation while Saturn is very near the meridian. Saturn will transit the exact meridian point once about the middle of April 1959 and again by about the middle of December. These two periods will be ominous for Egypt, Iran and Iraq indicating unexpected developments, assassinations, movements of armies, sudden changes of ruling heads and even mob hysteria. Stability in the Arab world will be conspicuous by its absence. Mutual suspicions among Arab States and distrust of each other will again break up the Arab world into two camps—the one pro-Western and the other leaning towards Russia. Paradoxically, all these Arab nations, except perhaps Iran, will be united in regard to one issue, viz., obliteration of Israel. Turkey will loyally continue to follow the West, while in Iran there will be a coup d'etat directed against the King. The young King of Jordon should be particularly careful about his person. Western attempts to prop up his rule will not be successful. Prospects for Israel are comparatively cheerful. She will receive impressive military aid. Israel will also get exposed to an attack by the U.R.A. on the question of the Gaza strip but the intervention of the U.N. will localise the fighting. The Middle-East problem will continue as a problem, mainly because there will be deliberate attempts on the part of Russia to exploit the situation against Western powers. Round about the lunar eclipse time Ankara will be rocked by serious seismic disturbances. President Nasser is in for some trouble by about December due to treachery brought about by his own lieutenants.

OTHER COUNTRIES

Indonesia will continue to be torn by strife, civil war and economic bottlenecks. Dr. Soekarno will be coming under exceptionally adverse influences affecting his prestige and health. So far as Thailand is concerned, there will be a coup when the Sun transits Leo but the present military administration will be strongly entrenched. Thailand will try to keep up a semblance of neutrality. In other parts of East Asia such as Indo-China, Malaya, etc., no significant developments which call for notice, are anticipated except that in Malaya the menace of communist agitation will become very active.

That Canada will be amazingly prosperous is revealed by the movements of Jupiter. An important trade agreement will be negotiated with India. Martian disposition denotes further racial riots in S. Africa and Government's belligerance with any outside interferences in her policies. Seismic disturbances and tidal waves will cause havoc to Australian shipping. The country will have a generally prosperous year. Political strife will be evident in several countries of the South American republics, notably Brazil and Ecquador. Military rule is likely to be established in Argentine. Most of the South American countries will exhibit an unfriendly attitude towards U.S.A. In Mexico, the President will have serious illness. In all these trouble spots, the indicated evil results can happen by about the times of the October solar eclipse and the Mars-Rahu and Mars-Saturn conjunctions.

Summing up, we find that true to the name of Vikari, perverse political conditions will prevail in several countries, but there is no danger of a global war due to the predominance of Jupiterian influences. From an astrological point of view, significant factors which will pattern the world events are the absence of the Sun and Mars from, and the dominance of Jupiter and Moon in the Planetary Cabinet, the principal rain-producing cloud going under the name of Thamo, the lapse of 15 lunar days and increase of 9 lunar days, Jupiter's athichara and his movements being confined to two signs, the solar eclipse on the New Moon day of Bhadrapada being invisible in India, and the transit of Rahu in Kanya and his being continuously aspected by Saturn. The high-lights of the year would be, an intensification of the cold war between Russia and America, dramatic developments in the Kremlin leading to further purges, significant changes in the Central Government of India, deterioration of Indo-Pakistan relations to the point of war—but not actual war—local fighting in the Middle East, conservative victory in England and the prevalence of an uneasy and deceptive peace in the world. Preoccupied as she will be with her innumerable problems at home and in satellite countries, Russia is unlikely to take any drastic action that will threaten a world war. Arab unity will be a chimera. Some sort of a new balance of power would be established in the Far East bringing together Formosa, S. Korea and Japan under a mutual defence pact which in its turn would be linked to the NATO. No genuine attempts will be made to solve any of the complicated world problems. The U.N. will of course live in a state of suspended animation. But nevertheless, Jupiter enables at least some of the world's statesmen to look at things in an unprejudiced manner.

It is not possible, nor is it desirable, to astrologically anticipate all the one thousand and odd things that happen in this wide world. It requires a stupendous amount of labour and the services of an army of learned astrologers if predictions touching every part of the world were to be made. We have therefore confined ourselves to discovering important happenings of topical interest which have a bearing on the future of nations, so that responsible men at the helms of affairs may take suitable precautions to at least minimise the intensity of the evil. We can easily dismiss the suggestions of some of our eminent but prejudiced leaders that by "looking at the stars", no problems could be solved. Nor can any problems be solved either by platform orations or by condemnation of this hoary science. Astrology reveals, at least in a general manner, if not in intimate detail, the pattern of things to happen in the life of an individual or a nation, and gives warnings in advance of the impending troubles. With the power of prediction should go the power of avoiding or at least minimising dangers, individual or national. We cannot stop a motor car that is about to run us down, but we can step aside. We cannot avert a Mars-Saturn combination or the earthquake it denotes, but we can be prepared to meet the situation. The man who professes to prefer ignorance to knowledge of what the future is likely to hold in store for him may lead a merry life but the odds are against its being a long one. The stars do not take any interest in us. We just sit within the four corners of a room and introspectively discover in what manner our past karma—national or individual—expresses itself as a future event, and how this is indicated by the stars. The Sun does not care where his light and heat go. But we want sunlight for our own health and existence. Similarly we are interested in the stars, in their movements and in their associations, not for the sake of stars but for our own sake. Some of the so-called educated but uninformed minds accuse astrology of promoting the theory of fatalism. And they also contend that predictions, especially of an unfortunate nature, have a demoralising effect upon the mind, resulting in disastrous psychological reactions or complexes. Both these objections are untenable. "The ablest men of all races and times have consulted their stars, nor were their minds adversely affected thereby. The reason may be unseated by an unbalanced addiction to almost any pursuit, but where the intellect is inherently sound, astrology will rather increase than diminish its efficiency. An astrologer well grounded in his science will, if he possesses the capacity therefor, be the most reasonable and rational of men, enriched rather than impoverished by his devotion to the heavenly lore."

The best tonic for the evils indicated by the planetary positions for 1959 is to put absolute faith in God to lead loyal, simple and moral lives and to make noble efforts for sinking personal differences and to adopt suitable measures for the regeneration of man. OM TAT SAT.

Valuable Additions to Your Library

MODERATELY PRICED & ATTRACTIVELY PRODUCED

	Price Rs. nP	Postage Rs. nP.
Mahatma Gandhi—An Album with over 500 photographs ...	35.00	...
The Way of the Buddha—An Album with over 400 photographs ...	30.00	...
India—A Souvenir Volume with 62 photographs many in colour ...	25.00	...
Kangra Valley Painting with 40 colour plates ...	18.00	1.10
The Collected Works of Mahatma Gandhi, Vol. I—Deluxe edition ...	8.50	0.95
Standard edition ...	5.50	0.95
Popular edition ...	3.00	0.50
Speeches of President Rajendra Prasad— 1st Series (1950—1952) 2nd Series (1952—1956) ...	4.50 each	0.85 each
Occasional Speeches and Writings by Dr. S. Radhakrishnan— First and Second Series Deluxe edition ...	6.00	1.00
Popular edition ...	3.75 each	0.75 each
Jawaharlal Nehru's Speeches— (1949—53) Popular edition ...	5.50	1.20
(1953—57) Deluxe edition ...	9.50	1.95
Popular edition ...	6.50	1.20
Russian-Hindi Dictionary—Equivalents of 40,000 Russian words in Hindi by W. R. Rishi ...	35.00	...
Facts About India ...	2.00	0.55
Eighteen Fifty-seven by Dr. S. N. Sen ...	5.50	1.00
Gandhi in Champaran by D. G. Tendulkar ...	1.50	0.25
1857—A Pictorial Presentation ...	4.00	0.50
Women of India (with more than 100 photographs) Deluxe edition ...	8.50	1.00
Popular edition ...	6.50	0.75
Literatures in Modern Indian Languages ...	2.50	0.50
Community Development in India by V. T. Krishnamachari ...	1.00	0.40

(Registration charges extra)

Books worth Rs. 25.00 or above are sent post free.

The Publications Division

Post Box 2011, Old Secretariat

DELHI-8

Sri Chakra Pooja

AT

SRI RAMANASRAMAM

TIRUVANNAMALAI

SIX POOJAS A MONTH

WITH SIX PRIESTS

ACCORDING TO

Saparya Paddathi

Why not lay your problems at the Feet of

Sri Thripurasundari,

the Divine Mother?

Hundreds of devotees take advantage of this

Why don't you participate?

Remit Rs. 10/-

with Name, Gothra and Nakshatra to the Manager-President.

(No pooja can be performed except on the specified days: Fridays, Full Moon and first day of Tamil Month.)

Scanned by www.sarvarishisastrology.com To Preserve the R V Ramana Work

ASTROLOGY

Taught by Correspondence. Remunerative opportunities for students.

Write to: Viswa Jyotirveed Samgha, 21/1A, Haralal Mitra Street, CALCUTTA-3

A TREATISE ON

PREDICTIVE NUMEROLOGY

By Prof. B. J. Rao. B.Sc.

Be the centre of attraction in any society with this book.

You can forecast most accurately, Profession, Education, Love, Marriage, Business, Speculation, Examination, Health, Wealth, Prosperity and every aspect of life with the aid of this book.

Price Rs. 4.50 or Sh. 10

Occult Publishing House

Visakapatnam-2

Also can be had from:

Weston Agencies

P.B. No. 960, Colombo-13

CEYLON

Samuel Weiser INC.

117, Fourth Avenue, New York-3, N.Y.

Daily Guide

FOR JANUARY 1959

BY MIHIRA

1. Thurs.—L.D. 7 till 4–15 a.m. (night), then L.D. 8. Uttaraphalguna till 1–50 a.m. (night), then Hasta. A.M.: Favourable for children's affairs and prospects, dealings with relatives, love affairs, courtships, auscious matters, dealings with opposite sex in general, good for journeys, study and research. P.M.: Not good, generally bad for dealings with servants, superiors, interviews, etc., likelihood of losses, also bad for journeys.

2. Fri.–L.D. 8 till 2–5 a.m. (night), then L.D. 9. Hasta till 0–20 a.m. (night), then Chitta. A.M.: Generally unfavourable, liability to false accusations, losses through theft, troubles through inferiors, care in dealings with strangers and superiors necessary; bad for changes, removals. P.M.: Continues evil, bad for travel, changes, losses, beware of rivals and enemies as they will be active; avoid bad company.

3. Sat.—L.D. 9 till 11–50 p.m. then L.D. 10. Chitta till 10–45 p.m. then Swati. A.M.: Slightly bad for financial matters and enterprises, social activities, new attachments, dealings with opposite sex, etc., but only till forenoon (9 a.m.). P.M.: Unfavourable, avoid waste of money on pleasure, luxuries and women, hasty commitments or engagements, avoid bad company.

4. Sun.—L.D. 10 till 9–30 p.m. then L.D. 11. Swati till 9–10 p.m. then Visakha. A.M.: Unfortunate for journeys and voyages, liability to losses through fraud or unsound speculation, a critical period generally. P.M.: Continues unfavourable; likelihood of disappointments, liability to be victimised by fraud and deception; avoid shady or equivocal actions.

5. Mon.—L.D. 11 till 7–15 p.m. then L.D. 12. Visakha till 7 35 p.m. then Anuradha. A.M.: Very unfavourable, liability to accidents, avoid crowds, fast moving vehicles, arguments with undesirable persons, guard against theft during journeys, avoid opposite sex. P.M.: Good for all purposes, business activities, academical tests, interviews, journeys, litigation, contacting new friends, dealings with opposite sex.

6. Tues.—L.D. 12 till 5–5 p.m. then L.D. 13. Anuradha till 6–5 p.m. then Jyeshta. A.M.: A generally unfavourable period, but specially bad only for dealings with public en masse or social activities; situations may arise in which you may be compelled to come to a decision by extraneous pressure to your detriment; try to avoid such situations. P.M. Good for business activities, but likelihood of losses by theft during journeys.

7. Wed.—L.D. 13 till 3 p.m. then L.D. 14. Jyeshta till 4-40 p.m. then Moola. A.M.: Not good for servicemen generally; guard against loss of reputation, censure, etc., by being careful even in routine matters, avoid travel, financial ventures. P.M.: Mildly favourable for journeys, business activities, commercial interests, but there is a liability to accidents unless careful.

8. Thurs.—L.D. 14 till 1-5 p.m. then L D. 15 (Amavasai). Moola till 3-30 p.m. then Poorvashada. A.M.: Not very favourable generally, likelihood of emotional disappointments, avoid contact with the opposite sex, avoid work in which you have to depend on the goodwill or mercy of others, as it is not likely to be forthcoming. P.M.: Favourable for making changes and making new contacts, etc.

9. Fri.—L.D. 15 (Amavasai) till 11-40 a m. then L.D. 1. Poorvashada till 2-50 p.m. then Uttarashada. A.M.: Not good; danger of setbacks in any matter; you should not be abrupt in your dealings with others as this is liable to be misconstrued, avoid scenes of violence, crowds, etc.; do not violate hygienic habits, be moderate in what you eat and drink. P.M.: An uncertain period; care in whatever you do is essential; avoid all important actions.

10. Sat.—L.D. 1 of bright half of lunar Pushya month till 10-45 a.m. then L.D. 2. Uttarashada till 2-35 p.m. then Sravana. A.M.: Favourable for physical activities, sports and athletics, short journeys, putting into execution original ideas, dealings with relatives, interviews, etc. P.M.: Generally favourable for all purposes except for matters connected with oppotite sex, courtship or love affairs, dealings with the public.

11. Sun.—L.D. 2 till 10-20 a.m. then L.D. 3. Sravana till 2-50 p.m. then Dhanishta. A.M.: Generally unfavourable, likelihood of disappointments, quarrels with friends and relatives, and losses through them; bad for changes, removals, domestic matters; women may develop hysterical troubles. P.M: Continues evil, liability to accidents, losses through violence, theft, scandal, disgrace, etc.

12. Mon.—L.D. 3 till 10-20 a.m. then L.D. 4. Dhanishta till 3-30 p.m. then Satabhisha. A.M.: Uncertain period; avoid extravagance, avoid dealings with superiors, interviews, etc; avoid litigation. P.M. Unfavourable in general; avoid important actions and enterprises, dealings with public, opposite sex, bad for courtship and love affairs, likelihood of emotional disappointments.

13. Tues.—L.D. 4 till 10–50 a.m. then L.D. 5. Satabhisha till 4–40 p.m. then Poorvabhadra. A.M.: An ordinarily good period, journeys, activities in art, music, psychical matters, excursions, etc. P.M.: Good for all matters connected with study, research, journeys, literary and journalistic activities, matters connected with transport, communications, dealings with servants, superiors, etc.

14. Wed.—L.D. 5 till 11–55 a.m. then L.D. 6. Poorvabhadrapada till 6–20 p.m. then Uttarabhadrapada. A.M.: Good for dealings with superiors, interviews, new enterprises, financial ventures, new friendships, journeys, changes of residence, love affairs, etc. P.M.: Continues favourable for initiating new schemes, dynamic leadership, mystic and occult activities.

15. Thurs.—L.D. 6 till 1–20 p.m. then L.D. 7. Uttarabhadrapada till 8–25 p.m. then Revati. A.M.: Not favourable for changes or journeys but good for business matters, literary activities, planning, social activities, love affairs, but women have to be careful. P.M.: Good for journeys, new friendships, literary and artistic activities, excursions, especially on water or sea, holidaying, etc.

16. Fri.—L.D. 7 till 3–15 p.m. then L.D. 8. Revati till 10–45 p.m. then Aswini. A.M. Unstable conditions prevail; bad for money matters, speculation, dealings with political or Governmental bodies, journeys or travel, changes, liability to accidents should be kept in mind; women beware of liaisons. P.M.: Favourable for gains through industry or investments, help from friends, favourable attachments.

Scanned by CamScanner

17. Sat.—L.D. 8 till 5-20 p.m. then L.D. 9. Aswini till 1-20 a.m. (night), then Bharani. A.M.; Liability to contentions and quarrels; bad for dealings with employers and superiors in office; beware of false friends and losses through women; avoid dealings with public en masse. P.M.: Generally favourable, financial ventures, social activities, dealings with women, investments in real property, etc.

18. Sun.—L.D. 9 till 7-25 p.m. then L.D. 10. Bharani till 3-55 a.m. (night), then Krittigai. A.M.: Good for business, literary activities, litigation and dealings with lawyers, journeys, help through influential women, but all the same great care will be needed as both L.D. and star are not favourable. P.M.: Likelihood of losses and extravagance through women, avoid opposite sex.

19. Mon.—L.D. 10 till 9-45 p.m. then L.D. 11. Krittigai till 6-20 a.m. (night), then Rohini. A.M.: Bad period, liability to accidents and bodily hurt for men or animals, troubles through rivals and enemies, likelihood of losses; avoid quarrels. P.M.: Bad for changes and removals, financial matters and enterprises, love affairs, liability to be involved in scandals and broken attachments.

20. Tues.—L.D. 11 till 11-25 p.m. then L.D. 12. Rohini whole day and night. A.M.: Bad for making changes in any matter, dealings with public in general, postpone important decisions and do not commit yourself to doing actions you cannot possibly justify; avoid opposite sex. P.M.: An unsettled period but bold and energetic action may secure good results.

21. Wed.—L.D. 12 till 0-45 a.m. (night), then L.D. 13. Rohini till 8-30 a.m. then Mrigasira. A.M.: Good for financial enterprises, exploiting original ideas, developing aesthetic susceptibilities, dealings with opposite sex, forming of new friendships. P.M.: Continues good for all of above matters, and also dealings with relatives, arranging domestic affairs, children's affairs, etc.

22. Thurs.—L.D. 13 till 1-45 a.m. (night), then L.D. 14. Mrigasira till 10-15 a.m. then Ardra. A.M.: Generally favourable for all purposes but it is better to postpone decisions in important matters; auspicious matters may be avoided altogether. P.M.: Not favourable, bad for dealings with superiors, officials, journeys, domestic matters, financial ventures, etc., likelihood of losses by theft.

23. Fri.—L.D. 14 till 2-10 a.m. (night), then L.D. 14 (Poornima). Ardra till 11-35 a.m. then Punarvasu. A.M.: Danger of loss in financial enterprises, avoid litigation, dealings with professional people, contracts; avoid actions that are liable to be misconstrued though done in good faith. P.M.: Avoid acting on impulse or a sense of inner conviction, postpone important decisions.

24. Sat.—L.D. 15 (Poornima) till 2-5 a.m. (night), then L.D. 1. Punarvasu till 12-20 p.m. then Pushya. A.M.: Generally good period for business activities, dealings with superiors, interviews, journeys, contentious matters, litigation, etc. P.M.: Continues less favourable for all of above matters; avoid new ventures, enterprises, risky jobs and undertakings.

25. Sun.—L.D. 1 till 1-30 a.m. (night), then L.D. 2. Pushya till 12-40 p.m. then Aslesha. A.M.: Critical period; bad for journeys and voyages, liability to losses through fraud or unsound speculation, avoid opposite sex and compromising situations. P.M.: Likelihood of accidents, disgrace or losses through opposite sex, bad for changes, financial ventures, dealings with Governmental or Corporate bodies.

26. Mon.—L.D. 2 till 12-30 p.m. then L.D. 3. Aslesha till 12-30 p.m. then Makha. A.M.: Likelihood of troubles and losses through women, avoid extravagance, auspicious matters, litigation, opposite sex, extravagance, decisions in important matters. P.M.: Continues evil for all matters connected with opposite sex, danger of scandal and disgrace; bad for financial matters, social activities.

27. Tues.—L.D. 3 till 11-5 p.m. then L.D. 4. Makha till 11-55 a.m. then Poorvaphalguna. A.M.: Good for business activities and expansion, energetic enterprises, journeys, canvassing, physical and mental activities, advancement in profession, dealings with relatives, exploiting original ideas. P.M.: Bad for financial enterprises, liabilities to losses arising out of fraud, unsound speculation and so on.

28. Wed.—L.D. 4 till 9-5 p.m. then L.D. 5. Poorvaphalguna till 11-0 a.m. then Uttaraphalguna. A.M.: A bad period generally, liability to accidents through fire, electricity, explosions, etc.; beware of contacting new friendships, as there is real danger through disastrous attachments; avoid opposite sex. P.M.: Bad for dealings with relatives, friends, superiors, etc.; avoid doubtful actions liable to misinterpretation.

29. Thurs.—L.D. 5 till 7-20 p.m. then L.D. 6. Uttaraphalguna till 9-45 a.m. then Hasta. A.M.: Bad time, beware of money losses, troubles through inferiors or servants, bad for dealings with superiors, officials, interviews, domestic matters, journeys, dealings in real property. P.M.: Favourable for all matters in general; good for journeys, dealings with women and favours from them, assumption of new position, business and professional activities.

30. Fri.—L.D. 6 till 5-5 p.m. then L.D. 7. Hasta till 8-20 a.m. then Chitta. A.M.: Bad for money lending, standing surety, travel, dealings with professional people, superiors, interviews, litigation, new attachments, domestic matters, etc.; avoid waste and extravagance. P.M.: Continues unfavourable but to a lesser extent.

31. Sat.—L.D. 7 till 2-45 p.m. then L.D. 8. Chitta till 6-40 a.m. then Swati till 5-5 a.m. (night), then Visakha. A.M.: Not good for literary matters, correspondence, interviews, services in general, journeys, dealings with children, dealings with opposite sex, courtships or love affairs. P.M.: Critical period during which you may be unable to decide correctly in any matter that comes before you; avoid decisions in important matters and postpone.

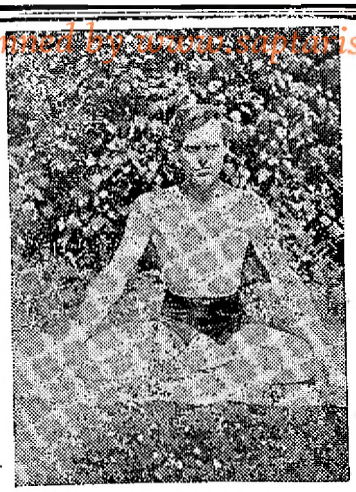
Scanned by Digital Astrology Trust. We Preserve Dr B.V. Ramans Work

Consult
Late Famous Astrologer
PROF. B. SURYANARAIN RAO'S
SECOND SON
B. LAKSHMINARAIN RAU, B.A.
Retd. Govt. High School Headmaster,
17, East Anjaneya Temple Street,
Basavangudi, Bangalore-4.
For your mental and bodily worries and proper remedial measures
Minimum charge for a detailed horoscope
Rs. 100 and upwards.
Enclose stamped covers for reply.

By Parimal Purkayastha
INDIAN ASTROLOGY AND DISEASES
Price Rs. 5.50
INDIAN ASTROLOGY, SEX, MARRIAGE AND CHILDREN
Price Rs. 6
Available from:
P. PURKAYASTHA
12-A, NETAJI SUBHAS ROAD
CALCUTTA-3
OR
RAMAN PUBLICATIONS
"SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE-3

FOR YOUR REQUIREMENTS OF:

1. ARC WELDING ELECTRODES
2. WELDING ACCESSORIES
3. WELDING TRANSFORMERS AND RECTIFIERS
4. GAS WELDING AND CUTTING EQUIPMENT
5. GAS WELDING RODS AND FLUXES
6. WOLF HAND DRILLS
7. AMZEL STEAM GENERATORS
8. ASHOK CONCRETE VIBRATORS
9. PAPER AND BOARDS
10. NEPA NEWSPRINT BLEACHED AND UNBLEACHED
11. PRINTING MACHINERY AND PRINTING SUNDRIES
12. PRINTING INKS AND VARNISHES
13. OCEAN WATERPROOF KRAFT
14. DRINKING STRAWS
15. BUX MAGNETIC DRILL PRESSES
16. PLATE AND SHEET METAL WORKING MACHINERY
17. MACHINE TOOLS AND WOOD WORKING MACHINERY
18. SWORD BRAND ABRASIVES, ETC.



PLEASE CONTACT:

M/s. J. B. Advani & Co. (Mysore) Private Ltd.,

Post Box No. 548, Silver Jubilee Park Road, Phone 2948

BANGALORE-2

Scanned by www.sapatrishiastrology.com ©All Rights Reserved By Pt. V.K. Kamath, Mumbai

YOGIRAJ G. C. NIXON

...Has been a Professional Astrologer for 30 years and has built up a wide, international clientele ranging from prominent professional people to men and women in all employments and occupations.

...From his London Office he conducts a world-wide astrological organisation.

...Author of Famous Courses on Yoga and Hindu Astrology.

...Has lectured all over Britain, the Riviera and America.

...His title Yogiraj was conferred on him by Swami Sivananda.

G. C. NIXON

World famous Astrologer invites his World-wide Clientele to

JOIN THE ZODIAC CLUB

For an Annual Subscription of only 5 Rupees, the following advantages are conferred on all members :—

- ☐ FREE Personal Forecast for the year with dates of important future events.
- ☐ FREE introductions to other members with similar horoscopes as themselves. This is proving a most fascinating venture and pen-friendships are being established with members all over the world, who are interested in Astrology.
- ☐ FREE occasional guidance on world trends. This is invaluable for those engaged in public affairs and businessmen.
- ☐ FREE occasional advice when to test your luck in speculation on the stock exchange, racing competitions.
- ☐ FREE introductions with a view to marriage. This is based on astrological affinities and horoscopes are compared for those intending to marry.

Send time, date and place of birth by Air Letter to Yogiraj G.C. Nixon, The Zodiac Club 31, Church Street, Kensington London, W.8. (Air Letter to London costs 50 nP.) and remittance of Rs. 5 by M.O. or I.P.O. to RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, Bangalore-3.

Most Authentic & Practical Guide Books on Yoga, Vedanta, Mind-Control & Psychology:

By Swami Narayanananda
RISHIKESH, (HIMALAYAS).

(F.Cgs. EXTRA)	Rs.
Secrets of Mind-Control ...	6
Revelation ...	4
The Kundalini Shakti ...	4
The Mysteries of Man, Mind & Mind-Functions	12
Practical Guide to Samadhi ...	4
Mind, Its Source & Culture...	4
Way to Peace, P. & Long Life	2.50
Ideal Life	3.50
Gist of Religions	2
आदर्श जीवन एवं मोक्ष	2.50
शान्ति, शक्ति व दीर्घायु का पथ प्रदर्शक	2.50

Order From:
M/S. N. K. PRASAD & COMPANY,
P.O., RISHIKESH (U.P.), INDIA

A Treasure House for Books, Magazines and Stamps

New Giant List Against 75 nP. in Stamps. Informative Booklet of 96 country's stamps, rates, etc., against 50 nP. in stamps.

Filmindia Reader's Corner,
446, Rastapeth,
POONA-2 (INDIA)

YOU MUST HAVE PROBLEMS

Marriage, Love, Job, Promotion, Examination, Litigation, Speculation, Hidden-Enemies, Evil-Spell, Black-Magic, Bad-Luck, or any other domestic worry.

PROF. ASHOKA

Famous Hindu Spiritualist Internationally Famed. Master of Ancient Invisible Mysteries can help you to solve them and to Guide You to the Path of Success, Happiness and Prosperity thro: Divine Super-natural Powers.

Ask for Free Booklet "Spiritual Guide" Today.

YOUR REAL SELF-REVEALED SENT FREE.

To popularise his name, he will send you a detailed Astral-Interpretation, well typed in 5 pages consisting your Self-Revealed Health, Occupation, Type of Body, Hobby, Marriage, Lucky Stone, Colour, Number Day and several other useful informations, which will reveal your talents. Enclose Postal Order of Re. 1/- or Sh. 1 (must be crossed—No stamps or coins) for Stationery, Typing and Forwarding charges. You will be amazed to go through his Readings sent by ordinary mail or enclose nP. 75 more if required by Regd. Post.

REAL LUCKY BIRTH-STONES AVAILABLE

REMARKABLE SUCCESS achieved through the Divine Influence of Enchanted Astra-Birth Stones in solving one's puzzling problems in the walk of life. These Tiny-enchanted Birth Stones can change your bad luck into success, happiness and prosperity. Gift from God. Try your luck at a low cost and wear your ENCHANTED.

This ancient way of Luck bringing, it is heard, has changed beggars into kings. Ask for our detailed booklet against postage or straight way go in for your LUCKY ENCHANTED BIRTH STONE as per your Month of Birth given above.
PRICE IN ADVANCE—No V.P.P.

Birth-Month	Birth-Stone	Price Rs.
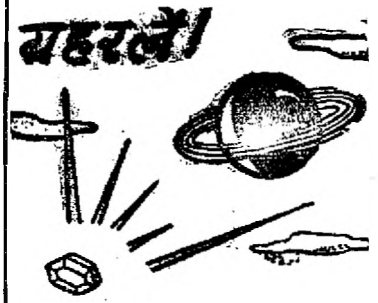
JANUARY	GARNET	... 15
FEBRUARY	AMETHYST	... 20
MARCH	BLOOD STONE	... 20
APRIL	MOON STONE	... 30
MAY	EMERALD	... 15
JUNE	AGATE	... 15
JULY	RUBY	... 40
AUGUST	SARDONYX	... 30
SEPTEMBER	SAPPHIRE	... 50
OCTOBER	OPAL	... 15
NOVEMBER	TOPAZ	... 20
DECEMBER	TURQUOISE	... 30

Extra Charges for Silver Ring Rs. 5 and 9 kt. Gold Rs. 50.



NAVRATNA RINGS

SILVER	9 kt. GOLD
Rs. 60	Rs. 110

HINDU-ASTRO-OCCULT-SERVICE

P. O. Box 12 (A.M.) KOREGAON PARK, POONA (INDIA)

ASTRAL GEMSTONES

"Astral Gemstones are the real gemstones; but all the real gemstones are not necessarily the Astral Gemstones".

There are different kinds of gemstones, and each kind has within it different qualities, which qualities differ amongst each other—due to the minerological characteristics of the spots of the earth, in which they are originally located.

It is, therefore, necessary to select not only the kind but also the relative quality within the kind, in view of the planetary conditions of the native.

You may apply for the prescriptions of the correct Astral Gemstones, sending birth chart, giving therewith date, time and place of birth and full name (sex) and address of the native.

KALEY & SONS
DEALERS IN ASTRAL GEMSTONES
Wardha (Bombay State)

ANNUAL
MARKET FORECASTS OF 1959

This year '1959' is undoubtedly a year of heavy and astounding fluctuations in Cotton, Shares, Oil-seeds, Bullion, etc. markets. Hence be quick and obtain the special guidance and detailed and up-to-date marvellous forecasts with major and minor special lines buying and selling dates and timely information and forecasts throughout the year 1959 by Prof. P. C. Mehta, M.R.A.S., ex-Municipal Commissioner and the leading and World-renowned Commercial Astrologer of this century, whose marvellous market forecasts have been contributed and published in this esteemed Astrological Magazine for the last 15 years.

Charges are Rs. 50 only, but Rs. 15 with annual forecasts and Rs. 35 after entire satisfaction.

Be quick and avail this golden opportunity.

Manager, Jain Astrological Bureau, Beawar (Raj)

Scanned by CamScanner Digitized by eGangotri The Research Ramans Work

Most Important Publications !

By PANDIT GANGA PRASAD, JYOTISHACHARYA

(The World-renowned Commercial Astrologer of this century)

1. SIXTEEN YEARS' ASTRONOMICAL BHARATIYA EPHEMERIS--1955 to 1970 A.D. Price Rs. 19.00. Part I: 1955 to 1960 Rs. 8.50; PART II: 1961 to 1970 Rs. 10.50 (or Sh. 21).

SPECIAL FEATURES:—Explanation of symbols; Table of aspects with the 'short-hand' symbols and for each aspect; List of Eclipses--1955 to 1970; Table of correction for Local and Sidereal Time; Table of Houses—Bombay, Poona, Calcutta, Indore, Madras and Bangalore; Ephemeris 1955 to 1970 A.D., containing Daily positions of the places of Sun, Moon, Mars, Mercury, Jupiter, Venus, Saturn, Herschel, Neptune and Monthly (1st day of month) position of Rahu and Pluto; Tables of Local Mean Time of sunrise for Latitude 60° North to 50° South; Tables of Local Mean Time of sunset for Latitude 60° North to 50° South; Tables of declination of planets; Tables of Logarithms for finding planets' places according to the Sayana system (in English).

2. 64 YEARS' EPHEMERIS—1890 to 1953 (Hindi)--Rs. 7. SPECIAL FEATURES:—Weekly position of the planets, Daily Moon, Monthly position of Rahu, Herschel, Neptune and Pluto, Calculations of Birth place, Standard Time and Local Time, Preparation of Horoscope, Panchang Calculation, Vimshottari Dasa, etc.

3. ADHUNIK TEJ MANDI KA VIDHAN or details of 2772 aspects in degrees (in Hindi) (Pp. 296). Price Rs. 8.

4. VYAPAR CHINTAMANI—(A marvellous book on Teji and Mandi both)--In Hindi. Pp. 400. Price Rs. 10.50. In this book we have given after a vast study of planets conclusions of about 3000 yogas of Teji and Mandi for Long period, Monthly, Weekly, Daily Market Forecasting. Rupees and Annas in prices. This is the golden opportunity for unexpected gains. The businessmen are therefore advised to obtain from us special chances. Forerunners are Forewarners.

5. WORLD TIME CLOCK—Containing Latitudes and Longitudes of about 4500 important Cities of the World. SPECIAL FEATURES:—(English). Price Rs. 10.50. Tables of Sidereal Time 1800 to 2300 A.D., I.S.T., Tables of Ascendants—Latitudes 0° to 60° North and 0° to 50° South. Tables of sunrise L.M.T.—Latitudes 0° to 60° North and 0° to 50° South. Tables of places, Longitudes, Latitudes, Local Time by correction to I.S.T., etc.

6. PERPETUAL MARKET FORECAST AND BUSINESS ASTROLOGY—Price Rs. 10.50. SOME OUTSTANDING FEATURES:—(1) This secret and private book consists of the most hidden principles of Market Forecasting. It is the outcome of author's 30 years' practical study, observations and consultations of many important books of Western and Eastern Astrology. The renowned and learned author has prepared this book after his complete research and life-long experience. This work may be accepted as one of the best research on this subject. Even a layman can understand this book. The book is useful for ever and is not confined to any particular year. (2) Preliminary ideas for Market Forecast. (3) Aspects—Their effects on market prices in details, formulating 110 infallible and important astrological rules for Market Forecasting. (4) Theory of Forecasting rise and fall in market prices. (5) Eclipses—Their effects on market prices in details. (6) Practical application of all the 110 astrological rules in forecasting prices with practical illustrations. (7) Outstanding astrological yogas and aspects helping success in business. (8) Monthly Market Forecast of prices of Gold, Silver and Cotton from 1955 to 1960 A.D.

7. COMMERCIAL EVER READY NUMEROLOGY—(Best application of Numbers to Forecasting Market Prices, Winners in Lotteries and Horse-Racing, etc.)—Price Rs. 25. SPECIAL FEATURES:—(i) Even a layman, not conversant with knowledge of Astrology, will understand this book easily as the book deals primarily in Numbers 1 to 9 and their compound numbers; (ii) Besides aforesaid numbers, the book deals with Friends Number, application of numbers to: Lotteries, Horse-Racing, American Cotton Futures, Dhruwanks, Forecasting Market prices of commodities and shares; (iii) All rules have been supplimented by tables and illustrated by concrete examples with prove that the rules are infallible. The price is not high in comparison of its usefulness and the returns received.

8. COMMERCIAL WEEKLY MARKET FORECAST AND SPECULATORS' GUIDE for 1959 to 1963 A.D.—Price Rs. 25. SPECIAL FEATURES:—(i) Commercial Weekly Market Forecast of Fluctuations in prices of Gold, Silver, Cotton, Jute B.T., Groundnut, Groundnut oil, Castorseeds, Linseeds, Turmeric, Mortar, Gwar, Gur, Sugar, Shares—Tata (ordinary), Indian Iron, Drawing, Security, etc.; (ii) Gali of Rice and Decline, etc.

Apply to: Shree Mahalakshmi Publications

P.O. MORAR (MADHYA PRADESH), GWALIOR

LAHIRI'S
INDIAN EPHEMERIS
OF PLANETS' POSITIONS
According to the Nirayana System
For 1959 A.D.

Containing daily longitudes of planets (upto Pluto), an exhaustive aspectarian, tithi, nakshatra, etc., declinations, latitudes, meridian passages of planets and many other things necessary for astrological predictions. Price Rs. 2.50

2. Tables of Ascendants
For all latitudes Rs. 4.50

3. Condensed Ephemeris
From 1875 to 1951 in three separate parts:
Total Rs. 12.00

4. Tables of the Sun Rs. 7.00

Astro-Research Bureau
55-A, Raja Dinendra St.
CALCUTTA-6

Ready for Sale! Order at once!
Books of General and Philosophical Interest

Rigveda (Vols. I to IV) (H. G. Wilson)	Rs. nP. 21.00
Upanishad Bhashya (Vol. II, Parts I & II). Sri Sankaracharya	7.00
Mahabharata (Vols. I & II) (C.V. Srinivasa Rao) Vol. I	6.50
Vol. II	7.50
Upadesh (Sadguru Omkar)	3.75
Outlines of Islamic Culture (A.M.A. Shoustery)	15.00
Life of Sri Vyasaraja (Poet Somanatha)	4.00
Srikara Bhashya (Vols. I & II). (Edited by C. Hayavadana Rao)	15.00
Gopala Krishna Gokhale (Rt.-Hon. V. S. Srinivasa Sastry)	1.00

For copies apply to:—
The Bangalore Press
P.B. No. 507,
Mysore Road, BANGALORE CITY.

V. Thailam & V. Godari
For Rheumatism, Paralysis, Hernia and similar other troubles. By using this oil operation may not be necessary. Price Rs. 15.
N. KANNAN,
No. 32, Kasi Chetty Street, Madras.

Consult Famous Astrologer
V.P. KANHERE
129, Shukurwar Peth, Poona City-2
Scientific Life Reading: Rs. 10
One Question: Rs. 2
Horoscope or Birth Time, Place, Date necessary.

10 years' future reading by Dasas and Bhukthis Rs. 5. Whole Life Reading Rs. 10. Send copy of Horoscope, birth-date and time with remittance. No V.P.P.
S. B. WAZKAR
51, Khattargully Lane, Bombay No. 4

An Outstanding Discovery
"YOGINDRA NADI" (Under Publication in English). Based on rare & original "Nadi Principles". Annual predictions can be given with never failing accuracy with confidence by simple calculations and principles expounded in this book. Descriptive pamphlet on request. Price Rs. 12.50 per copy. Reserve your copy in advance for Rs. 10 only by sending a post-card.
YOGESWARI
BHARAT RADIO TECHNOLOGICAL INSTITUTE,
Liberty Buildings, Hyderabad-Dn.

KNOW YOUR FUTURE
Scientific Life Reading Fees Rs. 10 only. Detailed Life Reading Fees Rs. 25 only. Answer to 3 queries Rs. 5.25. Please send copy of horoscope, birth-date and time with remittance. No V.P.P.
Gayatry's Astrological Services
P.O. Ratlam, (M.P.) INDIA.

ALWAYS ADVERTISE
IN
The Astrological Magazine

Ready for Sale

JAIMINI SUTRAS

ADHYAYAS III AND IV

(English Translation)

With original sutras both in Devanagari and transliteration

By SUSIL KUMAR KAR, B.Sc.

AT LONG LAST THE LOST CHAPTERS OF JAIMINI HAVE BEEN RENDERED INTO ENGLISH WITH ELABORATE NOTES AND ILLUSTRATIONS. NO VERSION OF JAIMINI HITHERTO PUBLISHED CARRIES THE III AND IV CHAPTERS. THIS IS THE FIRST TIME THAT THESE TWO CHAPTERS HAVE SEEN THE DAY OF LIGHT

A Unique Opportunity for Students of Astrology to Possess this Magnificent Book

300 Pages Crown 1/8 Size Cloth Bound
Price Rs. 6 or Sh. 12. Postage extra.

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS
"SRI RAJESWARI" :: BANGALORE-3

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B V Ramans Work

Edited, Printed and Published by B. V. Raman at RAMAN PUBLICATIONS' PRESS, "SRI RAJESWARI", Bangalore-3

THE FIRM

with

DISTINGUISHED IDENTITY!

Keshavlal & Co.

71, Sri Narasimharaja Road
P. O. Box No. 56
BANGALORE-2

TELEPHONE: 3027 Telegrams: "ALUBRASSCO"

Suppliers to the trade of :

"CROWN" & "SUN" Brand Aluminiumwares
"CROWN" Brand Anodisedwares
"SUN" Brand Stainless Steel & Brasswares
"FLAG" Brand I.C.C. Brass Sheets
AND
COPPER SHEETS
of all Specifications and Sizes
AND
ALUMINIUM Hard and Soft Sheets, Circles, Beadings, Strips, Wires, Rods, Rivets, Ingots, Scraps, Etc.

Enquiries Solicited

●

GOVERNMENT AUTHORISED DISTRIBUTORS

Scanned by www.tajvedicastrology.com To Preserve Dr B.V.Ramans Work

Mathematical Accuracy is the Basis of Correct Predictions

GET YOUR HOROSCOPE SCIENTIFICALLY AND CORRECTLY WORKED OUT BY COMPETENT HANDS UNDER THE PERSONAL SUPERVISION OF THE EDITOR.

1. Correct Casting of a Horoscope giving the positions of planets in degrees, Rasi and Navamsa diagrams with balance of dasa at birth. Rs. 10 or Sh. 20.

2. No. 1 plus Bhava Sphutas. Rs. 12 or Sh. 24.

3. Nos. 1 and 2 with Shadvargas and Ashtakavarga. Rs. 21 or Sh. 42.

4. Nos. 1, 2, 3 plus Determination of Planetary and House Strengths (Shadbalas) including Kashta and Ishta Balas. Rs. 50 or Sh. 100.

If you consult others, you can test the correctness of their calculations.

If you are a student of astrology, these works will be simply invaluable.

All these castings will be registered at the office to be made use of in due course for research purposes

SEND DATE, PLACE AND TIME OF BIRTH TO

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

Registered as a Newspaper in Ceylon (No. 39-500) Regd. No. M. 4201

We Supply ALUMINIUM in All Forms

ALUMINIUM RAW METALS: Circles, Sheets for Bus Bodies and Industrial uses, Wires, Strips, Rivets, Ingots, Tubings, Mouldings, Paint, Powder for Fireworks, Corrugated Sheets for Roofing, Prefabricated Houses, Ornamental Extrusions, etc., &c.

WE MANUFACTURE:

ALUMINIUM ARTICLES FOR INDUSTRIAL USES: Rubber Coagulating Pans and Tanks, Bottles and Distillation Tanks for Sandalwood Oil Industry, Radio Horns and Chassis, Fan Blades and Canopies, Tea Basins, Embrocation Containers, Ferrules for Shaving Brushes, Transformer Covers, Camphor Tablets Containers, Clock Dials, Hands and Bezels, Carding Cans, Separators and Barrels for Textile Industry, Electrical Shades, Louvres and Fittings of various types and designs, Aluminium Roof Water Tanks, Special Castings, Furnishing Components and Louvres for Railways, Castings for Automobile and other Industries, Building Materials such as Windows, Frames, Tower Bolts, Hinges, Door Handles, Knobs, Pegs, Kitchen Sinks, etc., Equipment useful for Hospitals, Aluminium Tablewares, Typewriter Covers, Solar Cooker, etc., etc., Aluminium Cooking Utensils in hundreds of shapes, designs and sizes useful for household purposes, Canteens, Hotels, Clubs, etc., etc., and Aluminium Anodised Articles in various attractive colours and multi-colours suitable for presentation on any occasion.

JEEWANLAL (1929) LIMITED

THE LARGEST ALUMINIUM UTENSILS MANUFACTURERS

127, MINT STREET : : MADRAS-1

Managing Director:
RAI BAHADUR HIMCHAND K. SHAH

PURE ALUMINIUM * THE CROWN *
MARK OF PRESTIGE

Offices & Factories:
CALCUTTA, BOMBAY, MADRAS, DELHI, RAJAHMUNDRY, ADEN.

Scanned by www.sapanshastrology.com For Preservation By B V Ramans Work

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS' PRESS

Founded in 1895 by
B. SURYANARAIN RAO

Vol. 9862 FEBRUARY 1939

Re. 1

ASTROLOGICAL

Edited by B.V. RAMAN

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Books For Future Work

FUTURE OF BURMA

Sayana Versus Nirayana in Astrology
Is Death Painless?
Determination of Profession
Sidelights on Palmistry
Arabic System of Directions
The Web of Destiny
Rashis, Planets And Other Popular Features

THE FIRM

with

DISTINGUISHED IDENTITY!

Keshavlal & Co.

71, Sri Narasimharaja Road
P. O. Box No. 56
BANGALORE-2

TELEPHONE: 3027 Telegrams: "ALUBRASSCO"

Suppliers to the trade of :

"CROWN" & "SUN" Brand Aluminiumwares
"CROWN" Brand Anodisedwares
"SUN" Brand Stainless Steel & Brasswares
"FLAG" Brand I.C.C. Brass Sheets
AND
COPPER SHEETS
of all Specifications and Sizes
AND
ALUMINIUM Hard and Soft Sheets, Circles, Beadings, Strips, Wires, Rods, Rivets, Ingots, Scraps, Etc.

Enquiries Solicited

●

GOVERNMENT AUTHORISED DISTRIBUTORS

Scanned by www.saptarishiastrology.com To Preserve The B V Raman Work

Mathematical Accuracy is the Basis of Correct Predictions

GET YOUR HOROSCOPE SCIENTIFICALLY AND CORRECTLY WORKED OUT BY COMPETENT HANDS UNDER THE PERSONAL SUPERVISION OF THE EDITOR.

1. Correct Casting of a Horoscope giving the positions of planets in degrees, Rasi and Navamsa diagrams with balance of dasa at birth. Rs. 10 or Sh. 20.

2. No. 1 plus Bhava Sphutas. Rs. 12 or Sh. 24.

3. Nos. 1 and 2 with Shadvargas and Ashtakavarga. Rs. 21 or Sh. 42.

4. Nos. 1, 2, 3 plus Determination of Planetary and House Strengths (Shadbalas) including Kashta and Ishta Balas. Rs. 50 or Sh. 100.

If you consult others, you can test the correctness of their calculations.

If you are a student of astrology, these works will be simply invaluable.

All these castings will be registered at the office to be made use of in due course for research purposes

SEND DATE, PLACE AND TIME OF BIRTH TO

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

The Astrological Magazine

Founded in 1895

By Prof. B. SURYANARAIN RAO

Edited by B. V. RAMAN

Vol. 48] FEBRUARY 1959 [No. 2

DETAILED CONTENTS

		PAGE
1.	Future of Burma	207
2.	As It Strikes Me By Bhrigu	211
3.	Sayana Versus Nirayana in Astrology By Prof. Jyotish Chandra Ghatak, M.A., F.R.H.S. ...	213
4.	Astrology and Determination of Profession: A Symposium By Dr. C. Kunhan Raja, M.A., Ph.D. ...	217
5.	Troinski's Tertiary Directions—II Translated by Dr. S. N. Dutt ...	222
6.	Is Death Painless? By K. Talgeri, M.A.	223
7.	Side Lights on Palmistry By Nawratan Mal Rakhecha, B.A., LL.B.	226
8.	Arabic Directional System in Astrology By Amar Nath Swarup	227
9.	The Kaleidoscope By Yogiraj George Cecil Nixon ...	229
10.	The Web of Destiny By Miss Zenobia, B.A. (Hons) ...	231
11.	Lessons in Astrology—XI By Vidyabhaskara, Prof. M. Ramakrishna Bhat, M.A.	233
12.	Horoscope of Dr. A. Nageswara Rao By Ganaptram Trivedi, D.Com. ...	225
13.	Around the World By Douglas Hunt, M.A.	237
14.	Effects of Pachaka Planets By Prof. Amar Nath Mukherjea ...	239
15.	Letters to the Editor	241
16.	Book Reviews By Dr. R. Nagaraja Sarma, M.A., Ph.D., D.Litt.	245
17.	Your Scientific Difficulties Solved By Mihira	247
21.	Hints for Agriculturists (February 1959) By Mihira	251
22.	Airways Guide for February 1959 By Mihira	252
23.	Market Forecasts for February 1959 ...	253
24.	How is This Month for You? (Feb. 1959) By Mihira	259
18.	Astronomical Notes for February 1959 By S. K. Kar, B.Sc.	269
20.	Ephemeris for February 1959 ...	271
25.	Daily Guide for February 1959 By Mihira	272

IMPORTANT BOOKS

By Prof. B. SURYANARAIN RAO

Female Horoscopy.—This book describes and exemplifies the full method of working the horoscopes of women. 4th Edition. Rs. 4.50 or Sh. 9.

Jaimini Sutras.—English Translation. A most scientific system of astrology which entirely departs from the conventional methods. This is a book the type of which has never been published before. 3rd Edition. Cloth bound. Rs. 6 or Sh. 12.

Brihat Jataka of Varahamihira.—English Translation with original slokas in Devanagari, elaborate notes, etc. 4th Edition. Rs. 12 or Sh. 24.

By B. V. RAMAN

Astrology for Beginners.—The best book for beginners. 10th Edition. Rs. 2.25 or Sh. 4/6.

A Manual of Hindu Astrology.—Gives a clear and concise account of the essential principles of Hindu Astrology. 5th Edition. Rs. 4.50 or Sh. 9.

Astrology and Modern Thought.—The rationale of astrology has been ably expounded and the truth of the subject statistically proved. 3rd Edition. Rs. 2.25 or Sh. 4/6.

Hindu Predictive Astrology.—Contains a clear exposition of all branches of astrology in a graduated form casting the Horoscope, finding Dasas, Predicting all events correctly, Medical Astrology, National Astrology, Horary, Transits, etc. Full Cloth bound. 440 pages. 5th Edition. Rs. 9 or Sh. 18.

Graha and Bhava Balas.—A Guide to Predictive Astrology. Cloth bound. Rs. 3.75 or Sh. 7/6.

How to Judge a Horoscope.—The most complete and extensive work. Illustrated by 110 actual charts. Cloth bound. 2 Pts. Now ready. Rs. 10.50 or Sh. 21.

Varshaphal or the Hindu Progressed Horoscope.—Gives an easy method for deciphering yearly results scientifically. Full Cloth bound. 6th Edition. Rs. 3 or Sh. 6.

Ayurveda or the Hindu System of Medicine.—Gives an idea of the grandeur and importance of Ayurveda. 4th Edition. Re. 1 or Sh. 2.

Notable Horoscopes.—A book of outstanding importance on Practical Astrology. Pp. 430. Rs. 7.50 or Sh. 15. Deluxe Edn. : Rs. 10.25 or Sh. 20/6.

Three Hundred Important Combinations in 2 Parts.—Gives a masterly exposition of Yogas. Rs. 9 or Sh. 18.

Electional Astrology or Muhurtha.—A book of practical importance enabling you to make use of astrology in day-to-day affairs 200 Pp. Antique Paper. Cloth bound. 2nd Edition. Rs. 7.50 or Sh. 15.

Studies in Jaimini Astrology.—Presents the complicated principles contained in the four chapters, calculation and interpretation of Dasas suggested by Jaimini in a simple, comprehensive and attractive manner with suitable illustrations (in reprint). Rs. 6 or Sh. 12.

Ask for a free descriptive Catalogue

Less 12½% to Subscribers :

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

Scanned by www.sriramsastrology.com & Powered by Sri Ramans Work

YOU and the METRIC SYSTEM

Whether you are a buyer or a seller, you will find that the Metric System of Weights and Measures makes calculations easier.

A single system of weights and measures for the entire country will not only help trade but also promote national integration.

Use of Metric Weights has become legal in selected areas of the States and industries from October 1, 1958. The reform will be gradually extended to other areas.

Commercial weights are of the following denominations
Cast Iron Weights			Brass/Bronze Weights
Kilogram		Gram	Bullion only		Commodities and Bullion
			Kilogram		Kilogram	Gram
50	5	500	20	5	1	500	50	5
20	2	200	10	2		200	20	2
10	1	100				100	10	1

1 KILOGRAM=1,000 GRAMS=86 TOLAS

METRIC SYSTEM

for simplicity and uniformity

ISSUED BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

DA 58/380

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

Glowing Threads in the Web of Life

Sensitivity to colour shines like a glowing thread in the web of Indian life.

Handloom weavers show a profound knowledge of the use of colour derived from traditional associations with seasons and moods and feelings. In blending colour and design they create the artistic fabrics that you find so right for wear on different occasions and seasons.

Handloom FABRICS

India's Pride

ALL INDIA HANDLOOM BOARD

Shahibagh House, Wittet Road, Bombay

DA-58/343

Scanned by www.sapthrishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

ANY PLANET THAT IS WEAK IN YOUR HOROSCOPE WILL CAUSE EVIL—
SUCH MALEFICS CAN BE WARDED OFF BY WEARING
ASTRAL GEMS AS RECOMMENDED BY
OUR RISHIS AND ANCIENTS

Planets Weak in your Horoscope	Likely Malefic Affect	Gems You Should Wear
Sun	BILIOUSNESS—RIGHT EYE COMPLAINT—GENERAL WEAKNESS	RUBY
Moon	PHYSICAL STRUCTURE—DIFFERENCE WITH MOTHER—LEFT EYE TROUBLE	PEARL
Mars	QUARRELS AMONG BROTHERS—TIMIDITY—TROUBLES OF FIGHTING NATURE	CORAL
Mercury	WEAK BRAIN—SLOW IN UNDERSTANDING—NERVOUS DEBILITY	EMERALD
Jupiter	IMPURE BLOOD—DISRESPECTFUL—OBSTINATE VIEWS	TOPAZ OR POKHRAJ
Sani	LOW MIND—WEAK BONES—RHEUMATIC COMPLAINT—LIAR—LOW CLASS ASSOCIATES	SAPPHIRE
Rahu	DISEASED BODY—PREJUDICED MIND	GOMEDAK
Kethu	WRONGLY CURSING THROUGH LIFE UNDER EVIL INFLUENCE OR MANTRIC POWER	CAT'S EYE
Sukra	CONJUGALLY UNHAPPY—HATER OF WOMEN—WEAKNESS OF ONE EYE	DIAMOND

We will help you to get a

QUALITY and GENUINE Astral Gem

SURAJMAL'S

JEWELLERS AND DEALERS IN QUALITY
GEMS SINCE 1895

313, ESPLANADE — MADRAS-1

Telephone: 2250 Telegrams: "MORALITY"

Scanned by www.sapthrishisastrology.com ©Reserve Dr B V Ramans Work

The Astrological Magazine

Founded 1895 by Professor B. SURYANARAIN RAO

Edited by BANGALORE VENKATA RAMAN

Annual Subscription : India Rs. 12 ; Burma and Malaya Rs. 15 ; Foreign Sh. 24

PUBLISHED EVERY MONTH

By Raman Publications, " Sri Rajeswari ", Seshadripuram, Bangalore 3, (India)

TELEPHONE No. 3296

New Series Vol. 23 | FEBRUARY 1959 | No. 2
Old Series Vol. 48 | VILAMBI—PUSHYA 1880 S.S

FUTURE OF BURMA

DEMOCRACY, according to Lincoln, is the "governance of the people, by the people, for the people". But in several Asian countries, it has degenerated into what Oscar Wilde termed "the bludgeoning of the people by the people for the people" with the result democracy has been replaced by military rule. How strong the roots of democracy are in this part of the world becomes evident when we look at the suddenness with which developments have taken place in Pakistan and Burma. Whether or not democracy of the western type could ever be attuned to the peculiar temper of Asia or whether some sort of "guided democracy" consistent with Asian cultural and historical background and capable of successfully facing the staggering problems of economic, social and religious unrest is necessary, it is for political pundits to debate and decide. Students of astrology cum history can however perceive that political freedom and the attainment of millenium cannot and need not go hand in hand. At the close of the second world war—and be it noted that this great event coincided with Saturn–Rahu conjunction in Gemini —most countries of S.E. Asia realised their ambitions of national freedom. The ascending position of Saturn was largely responsible for the "resurgence of the people of the Far East". Be it in India, Indo–China or Indonesia, we can see planets at work in human affairs, effecting rapid transformations of political outlook. The precession of the equinox in certain zodiacal degrees seems to be linked, as our fairly vast researches have just now been revealing, with that ceaseless and periodical movement in human thought and feelings which constitutes the mark of civilisation as it sweeps through eras and continents. The political slavery, cultural stagnation and the economic backwardness of this vast tract constituting India, Indo–China and Indonesia seem to be intimately connected with the movement of the Equinox in the Navamsa of Kanya. It will be seen that most of the Colonial Powers consolidated their conquests in the East, beginning from the 19th century. Assuming the current ayanamsa to be 21° 49′ and reckoning the rate of precession as roughly 50″ a year, we find that the equinox entered the Kanya Navamsa in 1816 and is receding backwards so that it will enter Simha about 2050 A.D. This tian position in Taurus suggests that whilst aware of the new dangers to which the country will be exposed by further disintegration of the ruling party U Nu solicited the help of the army, the course adopted by U Nu will be beset with greater dangers especially that Mars occupying an agninakshatra aspects Lagna from the 6th house ruling enemies, debts and diseases. It will be seen that Mars is also ruler of the 12th signifying 'occult' or hidden matters and the twelfth here is Scorpio. It looks as though the full story behind the coup is kept behind and is yet to be revealed. The objective set before the care-taker Government of General Ne Win is to create a climate for holding a free and fair general elections within six months. In Chart No. 2, Saturn is in conjunction with Lagna and aspected by Mars. The combined influences of Mars and Saturn in Lagna not only indicate grave unrest and tension but outbreak of violence on a large scale and attempts on the lives of important personages including the Prime Minister and the country faces grave disorder. But as the lord of Lagna is in the 11th with the lord of the 11th and the 9th, the latter neechabhanga—the army administration will be able to suppress the insurrection. The shashtashtaka disposition of Saturn and Mars denotes wide-spread restlessness even in the army but General Ne Win will be able to control the situation. Rahu is at the fag end of Kanya in the 11th Bhava in the constellation of Mars and in bhava-association with Sun. Studies in national astrology have revealed that Saturn–Rahu, Mars–Rahu, Mars–Saturn and Sun–Rahu influences largely govern Communists and communist activities. The dispositions of the malefics in Chart No. 2 reveal that Communists will attempt to infiltrate army ranks directed towards the over-throw of General Win's regime. The military Government will refuse to negotiate with the Communists or give them any quarter. This policy will, in the long run, help to solve the political problems confronting the Government and clear the muddled situation. Saturn's movements during the next one year are interesting to watch. As we write these lines, he is transitting the longitude of Lagna in Chart No. 2. He will enter Purvashadha by about the end of February 1959, retrogrades on 19th March, again transitting the radical position of the Ascendant in May 1959. Throughout this period, the Lagna will be subject to the aspect of transitting Mars.

Scanned by www.sapthrishiastrology.com To preserve Dr B V Raman's Work

Added to these, in the Republic horoscope, the directional influences continue to be adverse and the political planet Sun is not only afflicted by Saturn's association but by martian aspect. These influences do not favour holding of the general elections during April 1959 and if held, the country will witness outbreak of widespread violence and lawlesssnes that the military Government will be obliged to postpone the elections. The atmosphere conducive to the holding of "free and fair" elections would be conspicuous by its absence.

Coming again to Chart No. 2, we find that the sub-period of Mars in Venus Dasa remains for about 8 months. Both Venus and Mars are in shashtashtaka. We have already seen how Mars is in a position to cause grave unrest in the country. But as Venus the major lord is in his own house in association with Jupiter lord of Lagna General Ne Win will be able to overhaul the entire administration of the country freeing it from the undesirable influences of politicians. The anti-communist drive will be continued with some considerable success while Karen

(Continued on page 270)

Scanned by astrologicalastrology.com Digitized by Dr. V. Ramans Work

BY BHRIGU

Science, Philosophy and Astrology

PROF. M. S. THACKER, Director, Scientific Research and Cultural Affairs, Government of India, is one of the few enlightened individuals that we have in our country. In his Convocation address to the Annamalai University, Prof. Thacker rightly observed that "Education is a continuing process, and it is incomplete unless it awakens the qualities of charity, love and tolerance — virtues which are deeply rooted in man". These are the cardinal virtues advocated and propagated in India from the Vedic times; and they form the basis of the regular Hindu view of life. These virtues we are apt to loose in our total craze for science and industry today.

Science has indoctrinated man with a faith in his energy and resources, while ancient Indian religious and philosophic endeavours were directed towards setting up the ultimate goal and the pathways of realisation. As Prof. Thacker observed, "we need both faith and ideals for progress". Otherwise we are apt to be lopsided. The exclusive or over-emphasis on science has tended to make some sceptical of anything not amenable to, or not tried by, scientific technique. Not only is theology suspect to them, but astrology too. Even para-psychic research does not find favour with such. But as Prof. Thacker pointed out, science offers only one version of the rational method. It deals with one set of experiences. But there are varied sets of experiences, and all these have something to say about the world. Even science is based on many pre-suppositions which have implications. These implications belong to the domain of epistemology and metaphysics. That is, science tends to pass into philosophy which comes under humanities. Science originally began as a study of mere natural phenomena. The human observer has been rigorously excluded. But recent advances in quantum theory have emphasized the need to include this living human observer. Moreover, starting with specific laws applicable to certain groups of facts, Science has come to think of a universal law. Prof. Thacker is justly eloquent at this point, and his expression cannot be bettered: "It is to the quest of this universal law and to the understanding of springs of action in man that the sages of this ancient land addressed themselves centuries ago. Their findings, the means for comprehending the reality and the meaning and the goal of life, preached from the lofty heights of the Himalayas have become part of our cultural heritage".

This universal law governs the entire universe which includes human and other organic forms of life besides the physical objects. There are sciences dealing exclusively with the physical objects. They arrive at subforms of this Universal Law. Some other subforms of the same are arrived at by the sciences that deal with the mind like psychology and psychic research. There are other sciences that deal with man and also with society. It is in the attempt to arrive at other subforms of the same Law that the ancient seers and sages of this holy land of ours pursued astrology. They viewed it as a science that links the study of the physical universe known as astronomy to the study of human and organic life. Astrology was treated as a science that brings man and the solar system into an organic relationship. What astrology demands to day is the privilege of being allowed a systematic scientific study and examination. When great scientists like Prof. Thacker are justly proud of our cultural heritage, we are justified in hoping that in the not too distant future scientific methodology and technique will be openly applied to a study and investigation of astrology.

Scanned by aurosishi.org.in Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

Indian sages have given the central place to the culture of the mind, to the knowledge and apprehension of truth. They took up astrology as a mental discipline capable of giving us this knowledge about the past, present and future of man, of communities, and of nations. This is a part of our intellectual heritage which, as Prof. Thacker observed, "treasures those sustaining meanings and values which have inspired our society for centuries past and which should also inspire our education". This heritage is always throwing its gauntlet before man. It aims at stimulating man's intellectual curiosity and habit of enquiry. If we refuse to recognise the value and validity of astrology, then we will be failing in our own cultural heritage. It is a happy augury to find that men like Prof. Thacker arguing from vantage point of Indian Culture. We seek to extend his argument to cover astrology with the hope that our academic institutions will, in a truly national spirit, take up a scientific study of that aspect of our cultural heritage known as astrology.

Dark and White Gods

Of late we are treated to a variety of shows by the Ministers in our country. These Ministers apparently swear by the Constitution and loudly proclaim the secular character of the State. And yet we have a Ministry not only for Scientific Affairs but for Cultural Affairs. It looks as though there can be a culture which can rigorously exclude religion. Now to falsify our presumptions and to enable us to know the real meaning of their secularism, the Union Minister for Cultural and Scientific Affairs has come with a talk in the Aligarh Muslim University. We may recall that this seat of learning was the source of strength for the old Muslim League in pre-Independence era. In this hotbed of the erstwhile famous communalism, we have our Culture-Minister talking of communalism and religion.

This Minister is reported to have said there: "The acceptance of the dark and probably aboriginal God Krishna into the Hindu Pantheon on terms of equality with the white God Rudra or Siva is one of the supreme acts of human genius". This innocent-looking sentence appears to be a compliment to the Hindus. But a moment's reflction will convince us that it is anything but a compliment. To begin with it shows that the Minister for Indian Culure is not aware of the true character of the Hindu Pantheon.

The Hindu Gods have the greatest antiquity at least as far as the written literature goes. The names given to the deities led many to believe that Hindus believe in many Gods. Even from the times of Rig Veda (I.164) we are told that there is only one God, and that people call Him by many names. This is the earliest statement on tolerance that we have. Whatever God is supposed to have originated in a sect, the Hindus do not condemn that God like members of other religions; for the Hindu rightly believes that there are many roads to salvation.

Over the names of the Gods in later times many stories arose. Some of the these have gone to an etymological interpretation of the names. Thus Krishna was supposed to be black. But it does not mean that Krishna was a black God. As it is observed in one of the texts, Kali appears to be black only because she has such a dazzling brightness that blinds our vision to her form. Similarly Krishna's black colour means that it is so bright that one cannot see it properly. Rudra on the other hand is red, if we have to apply etymology. Hindu religion presents the deity in a set of contradictories. Lord Siva, who controls the Universe, is represented as moving in the crematorium and with no cloth. Vishnu is made to recline on a huge mystic snake. These features have been attributed from the earliest times and they have their own significance.

Our Culture-Minister unfortunately seems to be ignorant of Indian traditions and culture. Moreover, while the scientists have been busy exploding the the race myth, this Minister for Scientific Affairs appears to be introducing the unscientific theory of race even into the Hindu Pantheon. Thereby we seek to pull the leg of the Hindu by telling him that his gods are aboriginals. If the earlier periods are less civilized than ours, then the God of any earlier religion will be an aboriginal or primitive God.

The Minister observed: "If we analyse the basic concepts of the Indian Constitution we shall find that except the principle of the unity of God, all the other three Islamic values have been incorporated in it". This is a grand statement indeed! Let our Prime Minister tell us whether our Constitution is secular or Islamic. Evidently the Kultur-Minister is best fitted to pronounce a judgment on this question. And in so many words he gave his verdict in favour of the Islamic character of the Constitution. We do not know much of the Constitutional Law. Let our Law Minister and the jurists take paints to enlighten the country on the true character of the Constitution. We do not know whether the Union Minister finds our Constitution defective because of the absence of the mention about the unity of God.

Some may feel that this Kultur Minister is paying a tribute to the Hindu genius. But in any tribute to the Hindu mind, the Lord who spoke the Gita will not be described as dark and aboriginal.

But the most unfortunate aspect of the show is that these remarks have been made in a University, in an address to the new graduates. One wonders whether our Universities provide the platform for arising one's religious prejudices. Is Aligarh again becoming a centre of the communalism to bury which we had to agree to the vivisection of this sacred land of ours? Judging from various reports, it appears that particularly since the departure of Dr. Zakir Hussain, Aligarh University has been loosing its secular character. In one breath these politicians talk of the autonomy of the Universities, and in the same breath they exploit this very autonomy to sneer at Hindu religious Ideas and Beliefs. The Prime Minister should make clear to us the Culture for which this venerable gentleman is chosen to be the Minister.

Scanned by Jhuria Sangrahalaya Digitized by eGangotri Preserved for Posterity Dr. S. V. Ramana Murthy

Sayana Versus Nirayana in Astrology

BY PROF. JYOTISH CHANDRA GHATAK, M.A., F.R.H.S.

MUCH paper and ink have been spent by many writers on this vexed question of "The Precession of the Equinoxes" and its practical application to astrological themes, thus entailing the important question whether the signs of the Zodiac (named after constellations) are to be considered dynamically or statically. As the equinoctial points (the points where equator intersects the ecliptic,—i.e., the Sun's apparent path) are not absolutely fixed but are, owing to their westerly motion, coming to the meridian sooner each day and are thus "preceeding" those points which they would have occupied without this motion, there is an actual retrogression or backward movement of about 50"2 or so every year. This preceeding movement, is according to some, due to the action of the Sun and the Moon and other planets upon the protuberant matter about the earth's equator, and according to others, due to the Sun's own motion through space, and according to still others, due to the combined action of both. The unequal gravitational pull of the Sun and the Moon on the earth's equatorial protuberance has been mathematically ascertained and the equinoctial points have been found out to take about 25,800 years to make a complete circuit in the heavens. As the Sun's distance is so great compared with the diameter of the earth, the differential effect of the Sun's action is small, but as the Moon is so near, the differential effect is so considerable that her precessional action has been found to be about three times that of the Sun. The change in the position of equator which follows from the rolling motion is necessarily connected with a change in the Earth's axis. The effect of this precessional movement is thus to shorten the time between successive equinoxes and to alter the signs of the Zodiac, relative to those of the ecliptic. The first sign of the Zodiac, at present, therefore, is no longer in Aries, but is in the 8th degree of the constellation Pisces.

Now, the question arises whether in our astrological speculations and judgments we are to accept the dynamic (or the moving) Zodiac or still accept the static or the fixed one. In order to arrive at a safe and scientific decision, we have to purge our minds of all orthodoxy, bias, prejudice and preconceived notions and have to follow strictly an experimental or inductive, that is to say, a rationalisatic principle. Thus, I shall try to put down here, as briefly as possible, the results of my investigation in this important line. The subject matter is really so vast both in intent and extent and the results I have accurately recorded are so voluminous that the highly limited compass of one or two articles of a magazine may not admit of even half justice being done to it. At the very outset, I wish to caution my readers that no sweeping generalisation is possible to be made in the subject of so outstanding an interest. In Horary questions, I have very often found the Nirayana method to be wonderfully accurate and telltale. Thus for example, in queries about things or persons missing I have almost invariably found the description and location of the missing things or persons, judged according to the static or Nirayana method, accurately endorsed by facts. Thus many a time missing things have been found out in kitchens and in or near fire-places where the 4th house or the lord of the 4th house or both were in fiery signs according to the Nirayana calculation, but were earthy signs according to Sayana. It should be also said here that no aspect of Mars was upon the 4th house or on the lord of the 4th. Thus dirty water of drains or pools revealed missing things, which astrologically answered the Nirayana "Scorpio" rightly. Sometime ago, a friend of mine who had lost his motor car driving license, put to me a query as to its location. I found the lord of the 4th located in the 29th degree of Scorpio (according to the Nirayana system but occupying the 22nd degree of Sagittarius according to the Sayana). I told him that it might be found in or near some drain or some such dirty-water channel or reservoir probrobably near a kitchen. To my joy, the license was recovered from exactly such a place. It should be noted that according to the Nirayana system, the 29th degree of Scorpio was also the 12th sign Pisces (according to the Navamsa Kundali) which also is a watery sign. But according to the Sayana system not only the sign was Sagittarius but the Navamsa too was 'Libra' —an airy sign.The lord of the 2nd house was also posited in Scorpio at that time (but according to the Sayana, it was in Sagittarius). I won't multiply instances which I have got in abounding number all noted and marked from this differential standpoint. Similarly, on other occasions, the location of missing things denoted by Nirayana Libra (airy sign) was found out on high places on the shelf or the like.

Scanned by www.sarvajanikastrology.com For Preservation DVD Owners Work

In horoscopes of individuals of various grades, ranks and occupations, Nirayana has been found to tally more than Sayana with actual facts. In diseases of individuals, the right, or left side has invariably been found to accord with the 'even' and 'odd' signs in male horoscopes, and 'odd' and 'even' signs in female horoscopes, according to the Nirayana, but according to the Sayana method, it did not tally with facts. In cases of pneumonia of the right lung in males and of the left lung in females, the 'even' signs (according to Nirayana) have been found to be afflicted by malefics, especially Saturn (the great solidifying planet). It is not possible to cite those individual cases with their planetary configurations in the limited scope of a paper. Again, Saturn in fixed signs (according to the Nirayana) caused diseases which often led to death (especially when the benefic rays from benign planets were totally wanting) while the same Saturn in flexible signs (according to Nirayana) often led to cure.

In horoscopes of barren women and sterile gentlemen, the sterile signs (according to Nirayana) have almost always been found to 'rise', (i.e., falling out as ascendants) and such signs have also been found to configure as the 5th houses. It is especially clear in people with Aries and Leo in Ascendant and Sagittarius as the 5th house (according to Nirayana); all these signs happening to be very 'barren' ones. I have strung together a very large number of such illustrative horoscopes in my Record Horoscope Volumes.

In cases of ocular or auditory afflictions also, it has been found out that the nature of the signs ('movable', 'fixed' or 'common') plays a very important role, and here also the Nirayana signs imprint their characteristic stamps more indelibly than the Sayana ones. The Nirayana flexible signs have often led to cures or speedy improvements, but the Nirayana fixed did so very seldom and when it did, it did very slowly and unsatisfactorily. Again, in cases of nymphomania and satyriasis, the influence of Scorpio (the Genitalia of Kalapurusha) has been found to be very dominantly prominent. But according to the Sayana method, there is no Scorpio connexion there. Take for example, case No. 289 in Alan Leo's 1001 Notable Nativities—a case of awful nymphomania. Here, according to the Nirayana calculation, the Ascendant is Scorpio. Besides, the lord of Scorpio (nature's 8th house) has full dristi (not aspect) upon his own house, which is nature's 8th. There is, in my records, an awful case of satyriasis where the ascendant Capricornus (Nirayana) has full dristi of Mars, the lord of Scorpio.

Scanned by www.copyrightsastrology.com In Reserve for B V Raman's Work

Again, cases of haemorrhoids and constipation have very often been found associated with Saturn's conjunction with the sign Scorpio or an opposition aspect from the sign Taurus (according to Nirayana) but in the Sayana method, such Saturns are more often posited in Gemini and Sagittarius. Wherever any disease of the system has been traced to a defective elimination of the refuse or poison of the body, the Scorpio sign (which is Nature's great elimination or excretory sign) has always been found afflicted (according to Nirayana).

Again when we come to an astrological consideration of insanity or any marked loss of equilibrium of the mind, the mentally unbalanced condition has often been traced to their birth with common signs on the angles or with many malefics and the Moon in the common signs. The real nature of all common signs is 'flexibility' or 'oscillation' i.e., want of rigid stamina which generally obtains in Fixed signs. If we consult a very large number of horoscopes we would be amazed to see the striking fact that in all cases of loss of mental balance and the like, the planets (especially malefic) and the Moon have been powerful in common signs (according to the Nirayana rasis). Thus the case No. 229 of '1001 N.N.' with whom I was personally acquainted, had more than one serious attack of insanity, and although he was quite rational otherwise and even wise and highly cultured, he was helpless to combat the malign effect of the stars. You will find in this nativity five planets including the Moon (the instinctual mind) mostly malefic, placed in the common sign Virgo (according to the Nirayana method). Take another case (No. 23 of The Message of the Stars...Max Heindel) a case of "insanity". Here also not only the Moon (the most important planet for judging lunacy) is in the common sign Pisces (according to the Nirayana method —she is in Aries according to Sayana) but also four others viz. Mars, Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn, are all in common signs (according to Nirayana). But according to the Sayana system, two planets only, viz., Sun and Mercury, are in the common signs. Besides, it is noteworthy that Jupiter (the planet of 'wisdom' and 'steady discernment' and 'discretion') is in full opposition to Saturn, both being placed in the common (flexible) signs, viz, Gemini and Sagittarius.

Let us take another case,—the case of Guy de Maupassant the renowned French author, who was, towards the end of his life, seized with insanity and died in a asylum. Here also the 'Luna' is in a common sign (the 15th degree of Gemini according to Nirayana but in mutable sign according to Sayana) and what is very striking is that here also both Saturn and Jupiter are in common signs opposite each other, and are even in opposition according to our Indian 'Rasi-dristi' principle. Take up the case of another illustrious person the poet William Cowper who had so many violent attacks of lunacy and at last died of it also. He had six planets in the common sign (I) viz., Jupiter, Saturn, Mars, Dragon's Head, Dragon's Tail and the planet most important in this connection, viz., Luna. Here also Jupiter and Saturn are not only in opposed signs but also in opposition aspect with each other. The Moon is also in Virgo (a flexible sign) opposed to Saturn, the great afflictor, who is in Pisces. Although the exact time of the poet's birth is not yet definitely known, still the position of the Moon being in Virgo is pretty nigh certain.

In blindness (amaurosis or glaucoma) it has almost always been found that certain nebulous parts of the Zodiac are specially susceptible to emit such malign rays as to bring on this malady. Such parts are (1) the "Pleiades" in Taurus 29° (7° of Bull Nirayana) (2) "Ascelli" in Leo 6° (Cancer 14° Nirayana) (3) "Antares" in Sagittarius 8° (Scorpio 16°, Niryana-answering to the beginning and the middle of our Jyestha). Blindness or impaired sight happens when the Sun and the Moon are situated in any of these three parts and are afflicted or the malefics being situated in any of these parts afflict the luminaries.

In case No. 629 of '1001 N.N.', Saturn is in 29° Taurus, but not afflicting the luminaries (according to the Sayana method) but according to Nirayana calculation both Sun and Saturn would be in the same sign (Samyoga sambanda) and there would be affliction by conjunction according to the Indian system. In horoscope No. 32 of Message of the Stars the Moon is 19° 12' (Sagittarius) Sun 4° 48' (Sagittarius) Mars 14° 14' (Sagittarius), so that, of the two luminaries, the Sun is at a distance of about 10° from Mars whereas the Moon is very near to Mars (a difference of only 5°). So that the affliction of the Moon is more injurious than that of the Sun. Now the Moon is not in touch with Sagittarius 8° even by orb (6° on each side) but according to the Nirayana calculation, the Moon and Mars are both in the Antares (Jyestha the vulnerable nebulous portion).

In the horoscope of poet Milton who became totally blind about 20 years before his death, the Moon is in 29° Taurus, and afflicted by Uranus who is 6° in Gemini. According to the Sayana system both Jupiter and the Moon are in the same sign Taurus (which although there is a difference of about 23°, would certainly mellow down the malign influence to a great extent), but according to the Nirayana, Jupiter is in Aries, while the Moon is in Taurus, and there is no chance of a mitigation of the rigour of the blinding influence. Again according to the Sayana method Uranus although conjoined to the Moon, is in a different sign, but according to the Nirayana, both are in the same sign Taurus, so that the conjunction—connection (according to Indian estimate) is clear.

In diseases like 'Obesity' or 'Elephantiasis of the scrotum' the Nirayana method gives the right clue. As scrotum is ruled by the 8th house, any watery planet in the 8th house conjoined by Rahu or Kethu, (specially the latter) would make the malady possible. The situation becomes clearer if the 8th house is a watery sign. I have abundant horoscopes of persons having 'hydrocele' or 'Elephantiasis of the scrotum' at my disposal, where this 8th house has been a watery sign according to the Nirayana method (but it becomes fiery sign according to the Sayana method).

'Obesity' or excess of fat in the body is a defect of assimilation as also a constitutional defect especially due to a lack of proper oxygenation (fresh air exercise, oxygenation being symbolised by Sun) and also due to a faulty liver and pancreas, (which organs are ruled by Jupiter). Now Jupiter and Venus cause an abnormal accumulation of fat in the body by faulty assimilation and the like, especially when they are in their own signs or in exalted houses or in watery signs (so that they can draw in an exuberance of 'fat' which is nothing but "hydro-carbon"), but are afflicted by malefics. I cannot but cite here the case of Daniel Lambart, one of the fattest men the world has ever seen, who was born at Leicester and succeeded his father as the keeper of the town gaol in 1791 and weighed 32 stones when he was only 23 years of age and subsequently 52¾ stones sometimes before his death in 1809. In this horoscope, not only Sun (the great oxygenator) is in a watery sign (Pisces) but Venus also is in a watery sign and is in his exalted house Pisces, while even Mars (the great haemogenetic planet) is in Capricorn — an earthy-watery sign, his own exalted house and even Saturn (the great solidifying, drying and emaciation-making planet) is in Cancer (a watery sign). Jupiter (the great disposer of fat) is as expected in his own joy-house (Sagittarius) in full square aspect to Sun (the great oxygenator). Thus, there is an abnormal accumulation of fat in this gentleman due to failure of brisk and poper exegenation and consequent constitutional stagnation and also due to a mal-assimilation forced upon the system by a defective action of the Adrenal glands (which are ruled by Jupiter and are the great controllers of fat in the system).

Scanned by scan.astrologyhall.com To Preserve Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

Similar is the case of the great fat boy recorded as No. 65 of '1001 N.N.'. Here also Jupiter is in his own house (not his own sign but the 6th house of the Kalapurusha which governs Liver and Pancreas) and is highly afflicted by both Uranus and Mars. Both the Sun and the Moon and also even Mercury are in the earth-watery sign of Capricornus and Venus (the lesser of the great fat-creaters, Jupiter being foremost) is in sign-conjunction with Kethu in Aquarius (which though an airy sign is considered to be watery also: the very word 'Aqua' shows its watery character and the corresponding Sanskrit word 'Kumbha' which means 'Pitcher' i.e., a pot which carries and is meant for carrying water). All this, be it noted, is in consonance with the Nirayana calculation only.

Thus the Nirayana Moon afflicted in his own house Cancer, has been found associated with Cancer of the stomach, the Nirayana Moon, afflicted in Libra has given rise to Bright's disease, the Nirayana Moon afflicted in Scorpio has caused hydrocele and genito-urinary disturbances. The Nirayana Saturn in Libra has caused (when badly posited) urenal stones, suppression of urine etc. The Nirayana Saturn in Leo has caused Arterio-sclerosis. The Nirayana Jupiter being afflicted in Cancer has given rise to dilatation of the stomach. The Nirayana Jupiter afflicted in Virgo has caused enlarged liver and the like. The Nirayana Mars in Capricorn when badly aspected and afflicted has given rise to small pox, chicken-pox, etc. The Nirayana Mars in Aquarius badly aspected and badly placed (that is either in the 6th, 8th or 12th houses) has brought on fracture of the leg. The Nirayana Venus afflicted in Virgo has given rise to inefficient peristaltic action, afflicted in Scorpio, has caused venereal diseases, uterine prolapses, uterine tumours and the like. The Nirayana Sun afflicted in Leo (although his own house) has caused palpitation of the heart and backaches, in Sagittarios, sciatica, and being afflicted in Pisces has caused perspiration of the feet and kindred phenomena. All such things have been found verified over and again and with steady persistence from Nirayana calculation alone.

Reprinted from September 1940 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

(To be continued)

Scanned by www.sahasrashivatrikeyam.com for Preservation of Rare Work

Astrology and Modern Thought

BY B. V. RAMAN

(FOURTH EDITION)

The rationale and claims of Astrology have been examined from the viewpoint of Modern Scientific Thought. The arguments put forth by some of the scientists to decry Astrology have been ably refuted and supported by unimpeachable evidence.

The book will convince any so-called sceptic who is accustomed the slogan 'I do not believe in Astrology'. To an intellectual it contains full of weighty material for reflection.

It is a book that every one should read.

PRICE Rs. 2.25 PER COPY. POSTAGE EXTRA

Less 12½% to Subscribers of: THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE–3

Astrology & Determination of Profession: A Symposium

[It is not our intention to try to prove that every event in life is predetermined by the positions of planets at the time of birth. Instead it is to suggest in what manner astrological forces influence or indicate life and how these indications can be utilised for the good of the individual concerned. One of the most important uses of astrology is the direction of education and selection of a profession. How often do we not come across misfits? Can any branch of modern science pretend to say that it can show the vocation for which one is best fitted? The psychological tests now employed to judge the aptitudes of persons are not only unscientific but unreliable. In initiating this symposium, we wish to give an opportunity to our esteemed readers to record their observations on the most important subject of determination of one's means of livelihood, in the light of astrology and to show the extent to which astrology can be used for the solution of the problem of vocational guidance. An astrologer can discover on the very day when a child is born, whether its aptitude, when grown up, would be for physics or philosophy. This symposium on vocational determination, on the basis of the horoscope, it is hoped will be of great practical value as it deals with the solution of one of the most baffling problems facing the modern man. Readers are therefore requested not to miss the issues in which this series will appear. The first eight papers by Drs. R. Nagaraja Sarma, P. S. Sastri, Srimathi M. A. Rukmini, M/s. L. Narayana Rao, V. Venkataramana Rao, S. P. Sambasiva Iyer, Prof. M. Ramakrishna Bhat and K. Kurian have appeared in May 1958 to December 1958 issues of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.—Ed., A.M.]

PAPER No. 9: BY DR. C KUNHAN RAJA M.A., PH.D.

WHEN the Editor of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE initiated a symposium on "Why I believe in Astrology" in 1957, he was kind enough to invite me to make my contribution; in that article I had suggested that in the matter of making choices for various professions and avocations, it would be well if the employers would call for a certificate from an astrologer, besides the customary certificates about physical fitness and character. At that time I little dreamt that I will be invited to contribute on that very subject by the Editor after initiating a fresh symposium on this supremely important problem in the life and growth of humanity, a problem which is completely ignored, and even despised, by those in power and authority regarding the welfare and progress of humanity.

A certificate of physical fitness has a value only if the person who issues the certificate is trained in the line sufficiently to enable him to judge the physical fitness of the candidate, and if he also has integrity; similarly it is only a character certificate issued by a person who has character himself that has a value. In the same way a certificate from an astrologer has a value only if the person issuing the certificate is trained in the science of astrology and if he has integrity. There are institutions maintained for training of persons to issue proper certificates of physical fitness. What is called general education is supposed to train the citizens in developing a character. But there is no institution maintained by the State or under the control and guidance of the State for training in astrology, and the science is preserved entirely through the enthusiasm of individual citizens, through private enterprise.

No one will be bold enough to assert that the modern set-up of the various sovereign States and the organisations of life in such States are placed on a sound basis, that humanity is happy under the existing conditions, that man has under his control the entire machinery to set right any disorder in the State organisations and that man is putting into operation such effective machinery. There is something wrong somewhere. The mistake is not in the intellectual ability of man in the present age nor is it in the poverty of material in the world for securing and maintaining standards of life that would keep man happy. Neither is there any lack of a will in man to be happy nor is man unaware of or indifferent to happiness in life. Yet humanity is not enjoying life; there is suffering and man wants to eradicate that suffering from the life of man. Why? My definite answer is that man does not know himself in the present age. Science dominates man's life at present, and science, starting from the Greek days, is too external in its study and operation, that man's activites are projected too much to the outside, to give the problem of the nature of man himself any importance in the investigations of the scientists of the modern days. Scientists are too much engrossed in the problem of the outside world to pay any attention to the problem who they themselves are. Unless the problem of the scientists itself is investigated, there is no real problem in the science which is within the scientists. Modern science may study the problem of the relation of the electrons, the smallest particles of matter now known, and the problem of the relation of the giant stars, the largest accumulation of matter, to the entire scheme of the outside world. They think of the origin and the evolution of the material world and the end of the material world. But no scientists have investigated their own problem, what they are themselves, whence, why, how and whither they are. To the scientists, man is only an accidental phenomenon in material evolution. The result is that in the modern age, science is making enormous progress while man is only deteriorating, moving by the opposite path.

Scanned & digitized by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Initiative to preserve Dr. K.N. Kunhan Raja

Science asserts that everything in the world has a place and a stage in the world and its evolution, that what is called evolution is an orderly movement along a definite line; there is a law in the world and its activities and the world are not a chaos. Is there not such a law operating in the life of man also? Has not every individual man a definite location and a definite stage in the scheme of the world and its progression? If there is such a law, has not man got the ability and the means to find out that law? A law means that every individual item in an assemblage has a definite relation to the other items and to the whole. If what is called the "Law of Nature" operates in the case of the meterial phenomena of the world, can it be that there is no such law operating in the case of the phenomena in the world known as man? Can it be that such a law does not allow itself to be known and to be brought within the known laws of the world?

Personally I cannot concede that there can be a law without a man; it is contradiction in terms to say that there was the Law of Nature operating in evolution prior to the appearance of life and its later evolute called man. A law is a law only as it is known to be a law. A law can be known only by man. The present man is not the entirety of man, and the present man is only an evolute of a stage of man. We cannot speak of a time when man was not and also of a time when man will cease to be. Similarly, man is not confined to this small part of the universe known as the surface of the earth. Man is every where. There is a difference between man and man as is found here on earth and elsewhere; but man is man all the same. And is there no difference between man and man even on the Earth? If man on the Earth is a unitary genus, it is not in the sense that there is no difference. Thus man here is different from man elsewhere, and yet they are all comprehended within the genus of man.

Man is not a stage in the process of evolution; man is encompassing the entire range of evolution both in point of time and in point of space. By knowing the nature of evolution in the material world, man is not known; but if a man is known then the nature of the evolution is known. And man can be known only by a science that has a wider scope than what are known as sciences now, and that science is astrology. Astrology accepts man as matter embodying life, and such an embodiment of matter by life is found everywhere in the world. On the Earth, we must consider the problem of man as what comprehends the entire humanity and not as what comes within the interest of this or that nation. It is a lack of this wider grasp of man's problems that creates all the sufferings of man grouped into various nations, at present. Even if we can establish a world-government with all the accessories of a government on a world-basis, man's problems cannot be solved; man's affairs on this earth are interlocked with the affairs of man in the whole world.

Do scientists draw a demarcating line between the phenomena of the world in which we live, namely, the Earth and the atmosphere, and the possible phenomena in other regions in the universe? Perhaps in the earlier stages, scientists were suspicious of religion with a God and a Messiah, a Church and its Priests that may return if man's affairs were associated with phenomena outside the earth; but now the position has changed. Scientists are more interested in the phenomena away from the Earth and its immediate vicinities than in the phenomena on the Earth. Branches of science like Geophysics, investigations into the outer space, Cosmic rays, natural movements of the Earth and of the Solar system and of the Stellar system, movement of the visible world into space away from the Earth (what is known as the expanding universe) and such problems arrest the attention of the scientists. The phenomena visible to us cannot be explained without the knowledge of phenomena outside our vision, and new phenomena within the space under our immediate control may come to our knowledge through such study of the phenomena of the outer space.

When science is progressing at such a rapid speed, can the problem of man remain stagnant at the position when religion was replaced by science? Has not the time come for science to look into man and to design telescopes that can unravel secrets within man, that are now not known to science? And can the secrets of the outer space be revealed without some improvement in the means by which the secrets of Nature are to be solved? What is the relation of man and his life on one side and of the outside world? If certain changes in the outside world of matter in the course of evolution brought in a new phenomenon called life, can this life in return be without its effect or the nature of evolution? Cannot man's life introduce changes in the external nature of matter? And if such mutual inter-action is not an impossibility, then why should not there be evolved a theory that matter in its evolution exhibited a new phenomenon called life as a result of the fact that evolution in matter itself started as a result of the influence of life on this matter? If matter did not contain at least the essence of life, if not actual life function, at the outset of evolution, how can that matter evolve life? The real position for the scientists should be that as between matter and life, there is a mutual inter-action; the influence is not merely along one line and in one direction. And if this position is accepted, then it naturally follows that the laws that govern evolution in matter should be applicable to evolution and phenomena of life also. They are two aspects of the same ultimate system.

Scanned by www.sriganeshastrology.com For Free Use Only Not For Any Work

Such an approach leads us to a new position. Just as evolution in the matter has a universal application, just as material phenomena cannot be divided into phenomena on the Earth and phenomena outside, just as they all form a single unit in the same way, evolution in man also has a universal aspect. Life cannot be confined to the earth alone. Life is universal. Just as matter behaves differently on the Earth and in the outer space, life also may behave differently on the earth and in the distant regions; but life there is everywhere in the universe just as there is matter in some form or other everywhere in the universe. Every individual is like an electron, or even like a smaller particle of matter, in relation to the whole universe. Every individual is connected to the universal life as a single unit, just as every particle of matter is related to the entire universe as a unit with a law governing their inter-relations.

Every individual has a place, a time and a function in the whole scheme of the universe. The place and the time and the function of each individual is determined in relation to the entire universe and never as isolated facts in a chaos. So far as the world is concerned, there is movement and change experienced because the things in the world are not allowed to remain in their real position; there is something in the universe that upsets this balance, and what is called evolution is a series of movements and changes in matter so upset from its equilibrium. When the the entire material content of the universe is able to find its own appropriate position and stage and function, then this experience of movement and change will stop; at least they will cease to be noticed. Here I have to pose a doctrine that there is no difference between perfectly harmonious movement and perfectly static position in matter; it is the disturbance that is noticed as movement and change.

In the same way, when every individual as a life phenomenon, is able to find its true place and its true stage and its true function in the scheme of the universe and to remain in that position, then life function as a struggle comes to an end, and there will be only perfect happiness. What is called suffering is the experience of the disturbance in this position of the individuals in the scheme of the world. If man is able to evolve a "perfect machine", man's problems of fuel and wear and tear and repairs and renewals will disappear. It is the same case with the life phenomenon. If man can evolve a perfect social order, then man has no further problems: there will be perfect happiness in life for man.

Since there is nothing called a "perfect machine" in the world, and since as a consequence there is no need to make-up for weight, resistene and so on that are associated with the machines devised in the world, there has arisen the science of mechanics. As a matter of fact it is the phenomenon of resistance in the world-mechanism that has led to the discovery of various mechanical laws of nature like the law of planetary motion; it is also such resistance that showed the way to the break up of the atom. Thus the imperfection in the world machinery contains within itself the means for making up the defects; in the same way it is the displacement of the individuals in the world that has resulted in the evolution of social organisations and political institutions. Classification of men according to their different capacities and aptitudes and tastes has been necessitated by the same imperfection in the allocation of man in the scheme of the world. This dislocation contains within itself the clues for finding out the right position for all the individuals.

Matter may get collected in some regions of the universe, assuming certain densities; but there is no space that is an absolute vacuum. An embodied being is just like an embodied matter, that is, matter that has developed a certain density and that has got collected in space. Life is not confined to such embodied beings in a certain region within the universe; life also allows no vacuum in the universe. No individual, that is, no life with a physical body collected around it, can function by itself without being influenced by the entire life-unit in the universe and also without influencing that life-unit; it is the same thing that is found in matter.

Science has not solved the mysteries of the material world, and yet science has made popular what have been mysteries even among the scientists prior to our days, and there are many mysteries solved by science that were not even dreamt of by earlier scientists. If science is projected on to the problems of man and his life, it does not mean that over-night, all mysteries of life will get solved and that man will become omniscient so far as man's life and the problems of man's life are concerned. From the example of science, all that we can say is that many things that are now hidden from man's vision in his own life will be brought to the surface through scientific investigation. On the example of science we can make an unreserved assertion that there is a case for extending the field of scientific investigation from matter to man. The science that covers this extended field is what is known as astrology.

Scanned by www.sapatrishiastrology.com Presented by B.V.Raman's Work

Man wants to be happy; man is not happy. Man tries to be happy; man fails in his efforts. For happiness there are various factors that must be brought together. There must be the material which man can enjoy. Science, aiding industries, provides the material. We cannot complain that science has failed to produce the material which man can use and which man can enjoy. If there is any room for complaint it is only this that there is over-production from the point of view of economics and commerce, and there is rivalry and consequent war or threat of war, and danger to man. Man must have a body with which alone and in which alone, enjoyment is possible. There is the medical science which promises the establishment of the situation in which man can be happy. But there is failure of the science in making man happy. The failure is not in the science; it is in the environment in which the science has to function. If science aiding industry can produce the material and if the medical science can keep the body of man in a condition in which man can be happy, how is it that the two sets of sciences have failed in their purposes? The reply is that science has not enabled man to know himself, and science cannot also enable man to know himself; that is not within the sphere of the sciences that are developed in modern times. Man is a single genus; but does man know it, does man recognise it?

Animals belong to various genuses, and there is enmity between genus and genus, as between tiger and cattle or wolf and sheep. Birds also have enmity on a genus basis. Yet within the genus, there is more of friendship than among men. It may be that the larger fish eat the smaller ones, cocks and bulls fight with one another and dogs also fight among themselves. But these are exceptions.

Generally there is the sense of belonging to the same genus among the individuals, so far as birds and animals are concerned and each individual recognises other individuals of the genus and they all flock together. Man has developed a new faculty, and unless this new faculty is invesgated into, properly understood and regulated, there is danger for the progress of man. So far as animals and birds are concerned, they progress only as a genus and the individual has no power to go ahead of other individuals of the genus. The genus remains a genus in a static condition. It is only man that has been able to initiate progress in the individual from within, besides the operation of the law of nature, and man has been able to effect similar changes in the pace and in the mode of progression among animals and birds; we hear of cross-breeds and pedigrees among animals like dogs and horses, a feature in the life of animals impossible from within the animals.

Unless this newly acquired faculty in man is properly understood and regulated, there is the danger of each individual coming into conflict with the others in the efforts of the individual to make progression along an independent line; and that is the genius of man. Efforts had to be made to see that such progression goes on an orderly basis. A regulation on an orderly basis is possible only if there is a law in the progression of this differentiation of the individuals coming within the human genus. How is it that each individual man has a charcteristic of his own, some power of independent initiative from within himself. Below the stage of man there is only differentiation in genuses, and it is in man that there is this individualisation, a differentiation of the individuals. If the genuses are related to one another on an orderly basis, according to some natural law, the same principle must hold good in the case of the process of the differentiation of the individual within the human genus. A differentiation is not a break-up of the law into chaos. A differentiation produces the occasion for the holding together of the differents; what can be called a holding together is nothing but a discovery of a law governing the mutual relation of the differentiated individuals.

The differences between man and man was accepted as an integral part of an orderly progression in the world. There would have been no differentiation unless there was also some purpose in such a differentiation. The purpose that the differentiated individuals may contribute to the totality of the progression, and each individual can contribute some element that constitutes this evolution which no other individual can contribute. The contribution of an individual is determined by the ability of the individual, and also by the appropriate place and the appropriate time. Thus, the appropriate individual must be placed in the appropriate place and must function in the appropriate time. This appropriateness can be determined only by the relation of the individual to the whole of the universe-mechanism, extending in time and space, and there can be such a relation only if all individuals form into a unity every part acting and reacting on one another. For determining the time and the place, there must be some fixed positions (fixed relatively) with reference to which the measurements of time and space can be conducted. The heavenly bodies provide such measuring standards. The movements observed in the heavenly bodies are related to the events in the world known as the varying capacities and aptitudes of the individuls.

Scanned by www.vedicastrologyinstitute.com To Preserve the Rare & Unique Work

I do not know whether the science of Astrology had its origin in India or whether it came into the country from outside. But it was in India that the science developed in a way unknown in any other country. Investigations were carried on, laws were formulated and life was regulated according to such laws. Just as we have now the astronomical charts and meteorological reports which guide our various activities in conforming to the scientific laws of the outside, material phenomena in the universe, in those days when the science of Astrology was developed, the Astrologers became guides of the nation. The right work was entrusted to the right man, and the right man functioned in the right place and at the right time through the guidance of the Astrologers. Whenever a child was born, the general tendencies of the child were determined through the calculations of Astrology, and the child was given the right training suitable for the development of the tendencies.

Persons placed in high places of authority in the life of the nation, blinded in the gloom produced by the intoxication of political power, refusing to enter the regions illuminated by the wisdom of the ancients, may revile at astrology as a fraud, may condemn the astrologers as an undesirable lot; they may refuse to look at the stars, and they derive inspiration from foreign experts and foreign aid. But has this latter policy brought the country to its proper goal? Children are sent to the schools and the majority of them fail in the tests. People are put in responsible pisitions and they become corrupt. People go on important missions and they disappoint the nation. There is unemployment and the reason is that young people are not trained in avocations for which they are determined to be fit; they become unemployables; the unemployables cannot be employed and there results this unhappy feature of unemployment.

One may say that no nation in the modern world looks to astrology for guidance in managing their affairs, and yet nations are successful. Why should India deviate from this universal path of the modern nations? A few counter-questions arise as replies to such a contention. Is it the mission of India only to follow the path trodden by the other nations? Are the other nations successful in the management of their affairs? Are we not at the brink of an abyss? Are we not being stared at by the fearful monster of War? My affirmative reply is that the other nations have only modern science confined to the material phenomenon of the world to look for guidence; they do not have the rich legacy of India's wisdom, of which the mastery of the science of astrology is one of the most shining gems. It is the mission of India to bring this rich commodity into the world market and make man happy by uniting it to the progress of modern science.

Astrology is not superstition. It is the remedy for eradicating the malady of superstition. Man generally surrenders to some supernatural powers and to the whims of an All-mighty Ruler of the world. It is astrology that taught man that man is his own master, that man has shaped his present affairs and can shape his future. When a nation has been succesful in various walks of life, when a nation has developed accurate sciences and different arts, when a nation has been able to withstand foreign invasions and conversions of the people into foreign religions by the invaders, through millenniums, when a nation has been able to light the torch and to hold up that torch for the guidance of nations, when a nation has been able to invite peoples from other countries to partake of their wisdom, how can anyone say that a science, fostered and honoured by such a nation, the science of astrology, is a fraud and a superstition? The continuity of life in the form of a re-incarnation, the development of man and his progression from within in the form of Karma doctrine, the self-reliance of man in his own powers and man's refusal to surrender to the caprices and to the domination of an imagined power from outside in the form of an All-powerful Ruler of the world, the unity of life-phenomena and the material phenomena in the world as taught in astrology, the unity of life as something that is all-pervading in the world both spatially and

(Continued on page 260)

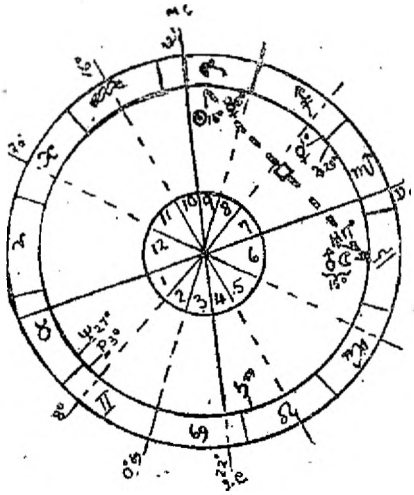
Scanned by Gurudeva with Astrology and Tolkeerrn Free V Ramans Work

Troinski's Tertiary Directions—II *

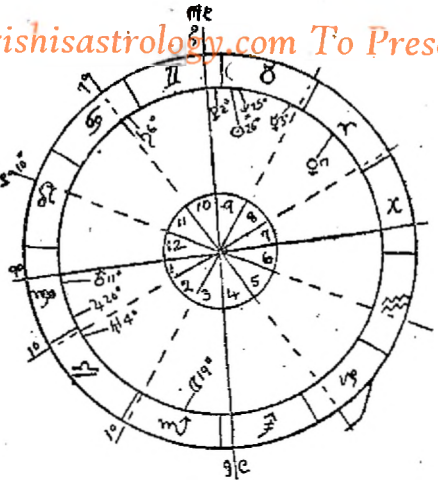
TRANSLATED BY DR. S. N. DUTT

AS a further proof of the correctness of the Tertiary Directions, when we examine the TDHs of King Alfonso III of Spain and of Herr Thaelmann, President of the German Communist Party, we find that the same evil TD constellation in these two men born on different dates gives identical evil results.



King Alfonso was born on 17–5–1886 at 12*h*. 30*m*. Madrid Local Time.

The Spanish General Elections —(as the result of which the King was forced to abdicate)— were held in the beginning of April 1931. From the birth horoscope of Alfonso we find the Moon occupies 19° Scorpio. In 1931, the King was 45 years old—(1931-1886=45 years). The "Table for Tropical Months" shows:



45 years + ca 12 days = 602 (tropical) months elapsed. Now 45 years and 12 days from the date of birth (17–5–1886) takes us to 30–5–1931, and on consulting the Ephemeris we find that the Moon had actually reached its radical position again (viz., 19° Scorpio) on this date after completing 602 revolutions.

Now, let us find the corresponding date for TDH which would be valid for 30–5–1931 (that is for one tropical month from 30–5–1931).

45 years + ca 12 days
=602 lunar revolutions =602
17th May (birth date) is the 137th day of the year =137
(see table)
(days) 739

TDH of Alfonso: Dated 6-1-1888 which corresponds to the holding of the Spanish General Elections on 1–4–1931—as the result of which the King abdicated (14–4–1931).

1. Birth horoscope of King Alfonso III. Born: 17–5–1886, 13*h*. 30*m*. (Madrid LT).

739 days=2 years and 9 days, which counted from 0–1–1886 gives us the date 9–1–1888 for the TDH corresponding to 30–5–1931 (the day Moon again reached its radical position of 19° Scorpio).

Hence the result of an event —such as the Spanish General Election)—occurring in the beginning of April 1931, would be indicated by the TDH set up for 6–1–1888 at 12*h*. 30*m*. (Madrid Time=birth time of Alfonso), as it would be valid for the period between 9–3–1931 and 4-4-1931 (=one tropical month).

An examination, of the BH (17–5–86) and the TDH (6–1–88) of Alfonso reveal the following features:

(1) On this day (6-1-1888), the Sun in 15° Capricorn was in exact square to the triple conjunction of Moon (15° Libra) Mars (15° Libra) and Uranus (17° Libra).

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

Herr Thaelmann

Herr Thaelmann, President of the German Communist Party, was born on 16–4–1886 at 18 h. 0 m. (Hamburg Local Time). The Communist Party was outlawed by Hitler, and he was arrested and imprisoned in June 1933.

In 1933, Thaelmann was 47 years old. According to the "Table for Tropical Months":

47 years + ca 19 days = 629 tropical months elapsed. We find from the Ephemeris that on 6th May 1933, the Moon actually occupies its radical position (1° Libra). 629 tropical months represent 629 days, and to this we add the "year-number" of the date of birth (16th April) from the "Table for Year-Numbers", which is 106. Hence

(Continued on page 262)

Now 602 TDH of 9–1–88 corresponds to 30–5–31 (Moon again at 19° Scorpio)
601 TDH of 8–1–88 ,, 2–5–31 (,, ,,)
600 TDH of 7–1–88 ,, 5–4–31 (,, ,,)
509 TDH of 6–1–88 ,, 9–3–31 (,, ,,)

* The first part of the article has appeared in January 1959 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

Is Death Painless?

BY K. M. TALGERI, M.A.

IF you knew what actually death is, you would welcome it with open arms when it did at last come.

The generality of mankind has an erroneous conception of death. The final end is viewed with a certain amount of dread. Worse still, it is imagined to be painful. But certain medical investigations into the conditions of the dying man have revealed that death is a painless experience.

Dr. Jerome Anderson of San Francisco, United States of America, had made a strange pact with an intelligent young man that the latter would disclose to the doctor "the sensation of dying" at the moment of death, that is, his natural death, should he predecease the doctor. And when death came, the man's last words were: "I feel as though I was about to faint", and soon he passed away.

Dr. Riblet Brisbane Rout of Chicago, United States of America, says: "On these occasions (moments of death) I saw projected astral bodies of patients being operated upon. The astral counterpart seemed to be quite easily driven out by the anaesthetic and sometimes travelled a long way".

Dr. Duncan MacDougall carried out a number of experiments "to test the possibility of the sudden and unaccountable loss of weight at the moment of death, apart from such factors as that of breath." His findings revealed the remarkable phenomenon of an inexplicable loss of weight of about two ounces at the instant of death. In 200 cases of people weighed at the moment of death at Massachussetts General Hospital, there was also noted a slight loss of weight at the time of death. The astral body has thus been observed to possess weight, colour and form.

A questionnaire sent to a number of physicians asking them to note any special phenomena connected with dying obtained affirmative replies in a large number of cases saying that they observed a blue vapoury form which seemed to leave the body by way of the head. In some rare cases, the physicians reported that "the whole room lighted up as the astral body left the physical."

"The moment immediately preceding death from disease is that of utter insensibility to all pain or of a delightful passivity from the universal relaxation of everything which pertains to the physical condition."

Then again, Dr. D. E. Wood reports that an article in the famous medical journal, Lancet, a publication for members of the British Medical Society, stated in 1901 that an experiment in weight was carried out by a group of interested medical men on a patient (with his permission) before and after death. The patient was placed on a wide padded board which was suspended by a sling from each end to a spring weighing apparatus attached to a rafter of the ceiling above. The results were a mystery to all, for at the moment of death, the body lost a total of six ounces to the gram. The man's breathing was fairly audible before death, a stethoscope had been taped to the patient's chest, and was connected to an apparatus that amplified the heart beat which could be heard all over the room. "The questions unanswered are many," says Dr. Wood, "and the main question is, does this prove that the soul weighed six ounces in this man? Are all souls the same weight? Was this the weight of a soul or what?"

Dr. Wood continues: "Then we have another odd fact. A patient may have had terrible pain for long weeks such as terminal cases, and the patient feels as well or even better than he was in his entire life. His relatives and friends are astonished, but overjoyed, to see the remarkable change appear. The patient is now sure he is going to get well, and he even makes plans for the future. Every one is happy except the doctor. He may not say anything, but he knows what is coming. It may be only an hour or so, or even a whole day. But the doctor has seen this happen, so he waits for the blow to fall. It comes without warning. One moment the patient is talking and laughing and the next moment he is dead. The doctors are dark regarding this mystery. Something in the body (or the mind) orders a short reprieve. It must be a powerful order, wherever it comes from, for all at once, as if on order, the nervous system reverses itself. Instead of carrying pain signals to the brain for action, it now sends up glowing messages of good health and well-being. The whole body relaxes in this warm glow of hypocrisy. The glands pour out hormones and adrenalin with other secretions to help support this immense lie. If the research people could isolate this substance, it would be a God-send to man."

Take the mystery of the American Indians that has baffled the medical profession

Scanned by CamScanner http://thisisspiritualism.blogspot.com/ All Rights Reserved. Do not Remove This Work to this day. When the American Indian gets too old to be useful and cannot help himself he sets a date to die. And he never fails to die according to schedule. When the appointed hour arrives, the American Indian takes his favourite blanket and strolls off to some quiet corner of the Reservation. Selecting a tree, he wraps his blanket around him, seats himself, and proceeds to die. At sun-down, his family brings him in for burial. An autopsy will show nothing at all organically wrong. No poison, no trace of heart trouble. All that can be said is that he is dead exactly as promised. He just willed himself to die, even as jivan muktas are supposed to do (Ichha Marana). "The entire make-up of man including the brain and its mysteries are being studied by more and more scientists," says Dr. Wood, "than the average person is aware of. Their eventual findings will amaze the world".

There have been many authentic cases in India and elsewhere in which persons who had been pronounced dead had returned to life to tell the world of their bizarre experiences. The strange case of Shri V.S.M. of South India has been recently brought to light. It happened to him in 1922. He was serving with the Military Department in Iraq, then under partial occupation by the British and the Indian Army. He fell dangerously ill in the Military Hospital at Henaidi, near Baghdad. When his condition became hopeless, the colonel advised morphia injunction. But the doctor in charge did not carry out the instructions as the patient appeared to be in a sort of coma and death seemed inevitable in a few minutes.

Strangely, the dying man was conscious but was unable to speak or move a muscle. Everyone departed thinking he died a natural death. He lay there like a corpse. "After some time I felt something creeping from my right toe. It went slowly up to the temple and then I felt a ticking sound. Soon I saw my body become a mass of blue smoke—head, body, limbs and all,—then gradually rise upwards in a horizontal plane and finally disappear near the ceiling." Then his mind became totally blank. But the next morning he woke up to find himself at the mortuary. Soon he discovered that he was the cause of much fright and panic among the orderlies and nurses. A doctor was sent for and he was examined. He had miraculously come back to life! And to this day no doctor has been able to offer any explanation for this incredible but painless experience of what may have been death.

Sri V. D. Rishi, India's pioneer spiritualist, whom Sir Arthur Conan Doyle of Sherlock Holmes fame described as "the apostle of spiritualism", says: "The statements made by spirits at seances have thrown much light on the phenomenon of death. The state of death is painless. It is like an individual going to sleep. A man who "passes over" is just the same person five minutes after death as he was before and all his characteristics, along with his thoughts, emotions and memories remain unchanged. A spirit once said 'We feel the change just as a serpent might feel perhaps when it has left its slough. The discarnate individual can see his friends and relatives in the flesh and he is greatly pained to see them mourning for him. He tries to prove his existance in various ways to earthly beings, keeping his astral form on their shoulders and he tries to console them. But within a short time he realises the futility of his attempts, as the touch of his astral arms cannot be perceived by those on the spot where he died' ".

Another spiritualist, "Emil", makes the following observation: "Normal death is preceded by unconsciousness, during which state all the incidents of earth life pass before the dying man just as the pictures of the cinema film flash by in a few seconds. Simultaneously, the etheric body starts emerging from the region of the head in the form of a cloud of vapour. This condenses and gradually forms into a replica, beginning with the head, of the dying man. When the body is completely formed, a process which usually takes from one to two hours, it stands erect over the prostrate physical body, yet connected by a cord about two feet long, similar to the umbilical cord at the time of earthly birth. The dying mortal's last gasp indicates the snapping of the cord and the completion of the 'death' process. This is the chicken hatched from the egg. The sprit (the real man) hitherto enveloped in two shells (the physical and etheric bodies) starts functioning in only one, the etheric body."

The utterances of several persons of renown, whose words can be relied upon, have revealed the fact that the instant of death is really painless. The last words spoken by Schiller, the celebrated German poet, on the death bed were: "Many things are growing plain and clear to my understanding!" Solomon of yore spoke of death thus: "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not.....or even the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl.....then shall the dust return unto God who gave it."

Digitized by www.siddhanta.com Preserving Ancient Hindu Knowledge Work

A point of view expressed by J. B. Priestley in his famous play, Johnson Over Jordan, is worth mentioning here. Introducing the play, he writes: "It happened that I came upon Dr. Even-Wentz's study of the Tibetan Book of the Dead in which I learned of the Bardo, the intermediate state in what follows soon after death—a prolonged dream-like state in what might be called the fourth dimension of space, filled with hallucinatory visions directly resultant from the mental content of the percepient. According to this account of the matter the dead man does not know that he no longer possesses a body of flesh and blood, and he mistakes charecteristic thought-forms for genuinely objective entities, such as we do, I take it, in our dreams. There seems to me nothing unlikely in this, and possibly our dream-life which has a quality very different from that of working life, gives us a foretaste of what is to come."

Benjamin Franklin is reported to have told a relation of his, on the death of his brother, John: "A man is not completely born until he is dead. Why then should we grieve that a new child is born among the immortals? We are spirits!"

One of the strangest psychological experiences came to the famed Sri Ramana Maharishi (he died about six years ago at the age of 70) when he was but a lad of sixteen. One day he became aware of an inexplicable fear of death. He felt he was going to die for no apparent reason. He was all alone in his room and he thought he would as well go through the experience of death peacefully.

He lay himself supine on the floor, stretching his limbs, and promptly went through the actions of a dying man. At last, rigor mortis actually set in. And Ramana was technically dead! He described this novel experience reminiscently, in later life: "'Well then,' I said to myself, 'this body is dead: It will be carried stiff to the cremation ground and then reduced to ashes. But with the death of the body, am I dead? Is the body I? This body is now silent and stiff. But I continue to feel the full force of myself apart from its condition."

After this physiological death, Ramana entered into a deep conscious trance wherein he became "merged into the very source of my being. And it was sheer ecstasy, bliss, liberation!" In that new dimension of consciousness, hitherto unknown to him, Ramana realised that the body was a thing apart and that the real ego remained untouched by death. For such souls as Ramana, there is no fear of death nor grief over the dead.

A veteran nurse once wrote in The American Magazine: "It has always seemed to me a major tragedy that so many people go through life haunted by the fear of death—only to find when it comes that it is as natural as life itself. For very few are afraid to die when they get to the very end. In all my experience only one seemed to feel any terror—a woman who had done her sister a wrong which it was too late to set right. Something strange and beautiful happens to man and woman when they come to the end of the road. All fear, all horror, disappears. I have often watched a look of happy wonder dawn in their eyes when they realised this was true. It is all part of the goodness of nature and, I believe, of the illimitable goodness of God."

Chaungtse once went to Ch'u and saw an empty skull with a sharp contour. He struck it with a horse whip and asked, "How did you come to this? Did you lead an extravagant life and abuse your constitution? Were you a condemned criminal and killed by the executioner? Did you do something wrong which shamed your parents and your wife and children? Or did you die of hunger and starvation? Or did you live to an old age and die a natural death?" After saying this, he took the skull and used it as a pillow and lay down to sleep. At midnight the skull appeared to him in a dream and said: "You talked like a sophist. What you mentioned are the troubles of mortal life. When one dies, one does not have such troubles. Do you want to hear about life after death?" "Yes," replied Chuangtse. "In death," said the skull, "there are no kings and no subjects and no change of seasons. Tranquil and at our ease, our years are those of heaven and earth. Such happiness exceeds even that of a king." The skull knitted its brows and deepened its eyes and said, "How can I exchange the happiness of a king for the troubles of the mortal world?" (From Chuangtse, Perfect Enjoyment).

No wonder the Zenda Avesta declares in an epigram: The day we fear as our last is but the birthday of Eternity! What we fear as a rock proves to be a harbour!

Scanned by www.sarvajanikastrology.com To Preserve Dusty Pages for Web

Register Your Subscription

To ensure prompt supply of The Astrological Magazine every month become a regular subscriber today.

RATE OF SUBSCRIPTION

For One Year Rs. 12

Subscriptions for periods less than one year are not accepted.

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

Side Lights on Palmistry

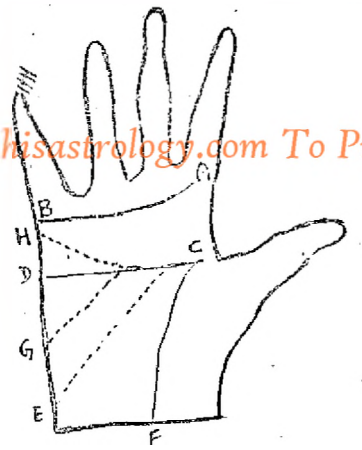
By NAWRATAN MAL RAKHECHA, B.A., LL.B.

The Head Line

C to H—Head line ending upward.
C to D—Straight head line.
C to G—Slightly sloping.
C to E—Head line fully slanting.
C to F—Age line (life line).
B to A—Heart line.

Cut—When broken in pieces between point C to any ending point.

MOSTLY the manner of thinking and intelligence depend upon the trend and formation of the line of head. Peculiar types of sensitiveness and sensations, etc., are the gifts of peculiar kinds of head lines in each case. The head line, in other words, plays a great significance in the life of a man. Even rich and well settled men will be found stolen in their own thoughts of fear and anxiety, due to different kinds of head lines. To pay more attention we take a categorical view of this line.



Weak and badly formed line of head contradicts the promise of success and intelligence. Absence of this line shows fatal wound or death or disease or lunacy. When head line is cut by small branches it causes worries and slight hurt.

When ending upward at point H, it denotes a violent nature, danger of murder for personal greed or gain, an intensely determined, self-willed disposition.

When going straight C to D it indicates success in business and all practical matters, clear and correct views and thoughts, peaceful mind, and exact thinking. He will think best of the things but people may not accept his thoughts due to other defects of other lines which may be present with straight head line. Unusual brain power and tendency to hoard money are also shown.

When ending slightly sloping (C to G) it predicts imagination, invention, romance, ideality, artistic qualities and slightly disturbed mind.

When ending fully slantingly (C to E) it confers excess of imagination, extreme sensitiveness, mental depression, gloomy tendency towards suicide, fear and overwhelming of thoughts, some times hopeful and some times unhopeful, fully perturbed mind, loss of temper on trifles and inability to pick-up proper subject of his own life.

When the head line is short or cut or broken it fortells disturbed mind, headache, slight hurt on face or head or temporary lunacy, recklessness, unfavourable and unhealthy dreams and no fertility of mind. He fails to make the people understand his view-points or thoughts. He himself gets confused. Nonfulfilment of wishes and ideas is also shown.

When line of head is separated from the line of age or life at point C it forecasts self-confidence, frank speaking, care-free nature, arrogance, quick loss of temper over trifles, commanding nature, impulsiveness, quickness but inclined to rashness and fool-hardiness when the distance is very wide.

When closely joined with life line at point C it shows lack of confidence, great cautiousness, and extreme sensitiveness and disturbed health in childhood, gradual rise in life.

When the three lines—heart, head and life—are joined at point C it tells danger of accidents and violent death. Such people are not able to avoid dangers; on the other hand they invite danger and loose their heads and do the wrong thing. Suicidal nature and nervousness are their peculiarities.

When an unfavourable head-line is accompanied with a weak heart-line, it shows great cowardice, puzzled mind, etc.

Females will mostly have dim, thin and short head-lines which denote unsoundness of mind and a conservative nature and unnecessary fears of ups and downs.

Scanned by maharishiastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

To be out Shortly

Prasna Marga

(English Translation)

With original slokas in Devanagari, notes and illustrations. A great and unique classic on Prasna (Horary) as well as Jataka (Horoscopy)

IN TWO PARTS

I Part—1 to 16 Chapters, Price about Rs. 12.75

II Part—17 to 32 Chapters Price about Rs. 12.75

First Part will be ready by April 1959

Orders Registered for both Parts and not for the I part only

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari"

BANGALORE-3

Arabic Directional System in Astrology

BY AMAR NATH SWARUP

IT is an undisputed fact that Astronomy and Astrology orginated in India and from this country the knowledge spread to various parts of the world—where this divine knowledge created curiosity and deep interest. Scholars and savants made further researches in these countries though they confined their knowledge to themselves. Asians especially Indians with some exceptions had some sort of superiority complex and concealed their knowledge of astrology and guarded it jealously. At the most some scholar would convey the gift of his experience to his eldest son just before death in the shape of Guru Mantras. Some scholars buried the books in grave yards and some burnt them on funeral pyre, so that after their death knowledge could not be conveyed to others. This was the mentality of some of our learned men. Similarly in the spritual realm also knowledge was imparted to disciples after hard tests and service of years. Kashmir was no exception to this tradition.

After the 12th century when the Muslims gained strength in India their interest in Vedanta and Astrology was aroused and Sufism was evolved as a bye—product. In Kashmir, Mohammedans (Shias) exhibited great interest in Astrology and exchanged their knowledge with Kashmiri Brahmin astrologers. As a result when a baby is born amongst Mohamedans the birth chart is read either by a Muslim astrologer in Persian language or by a Kashmiri Brahmin in Sanskrit. The Brahmans learned some Persian astrological formulae also and Muslims in turn were affected by observing Nakshatras (auspicious hours) on every religious or social function. It might not be out of place to mention here that Arabians attached much importance to astronomy and Idh is always declared with the appearance of the Moon.

Arabians claim that the deciphering of Varshaphala or annual horoscope was invented by them. This is why the Arabic words are still used in Varshaphala. The additional planet or intersection-point called Muntha is an Arabic word called 'objective' or main point. Similarly in Iqbal yoga, Iqbal is a Persian word meaning rise or prosperity. Adbar yoga is another combination in annual horoscope and Adbar implies degradation. The Muslim astrologers claim that one Yowunacharya a scholar from India had been to the court of Harunal Rashid, the famous emperor, wherefrom he learnt this and on return to India spread this system.

In Kashmir, Muslim astrologers and a handful of Hindu astrologers use Persian system of Dasa calling it as Dhor Dasa. Dhor in Persian language means revolution. The Dasa period is as follows.—

1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Moon 4 years	Mercury 10 years	Venus 8 years	Sun 19 years	Mars 11 years	Jupiter 12 years	Satun 56 years

In this system of Dasa, Rahu and Ketu have no place i.e. only the seven planets are taken. Each individual, whether male or female, is born with a revolution of the Moon. No Bhuktha Bhoga (or deduction) due to the passing of Nakshatra is taken into consideration. The revolution of other planets is also taken in seriatem as mentioned above.

Now a question arises as to why revolution or Dasa of Moon (Dhori Qamar) has been kept from the birth. The Arabians answer that the Moon is associated with liquids and a child is brought up on milk upto 4th year and as Moon represents mother, the child has close attachment with the mother. If the Moon is well placed in the birth chart the Moon will give material and liquid food comforts during its revolution. Besides, Balarishta mostly depends on the position of the Moon. Similarly the period of Mercury (Dhori Atard) from 5th to 14th year is an age of literacy, talk and expression, copying of elders, moving and frisking, fickleminded views and development of intellegence, and curiosity and all these are associated with Mercury.

From the 15th to 22nd year, a human being starts appreciation of beauty, sex glands devolop, the thoughts of sex arise and tendencies towards luxuries and comforts and society are exhibited. These are the signs and symbols of Venus (Zuhra).

From the 23rd to 41st year the period of Sun (Dhori Shamas) lasts. This is the age when a human being is full of ambition, power and broad-mindedness develops, the person enters into practical field of life and activity with dash and drive, which are the characteristics of the Sun. This is the Core or main period of earning, fame and eminence, since Sun is considered to be the king of planets.

Revolution of Mars (Dhori Marikh) lasts between 42nd and Scanned by www.sanskritisastrology.com for Preservation Only. Permanently

52nd of years of life. The person is over-burdened with responsibility of home, wants to construct a house, to purchase pieces of land or garden, marry his grown up children, problems arise in home for dividing ancestral property, the position is cleared to brothers, the soul is instilled with fire and energy and the human passions excited. These characteristics belong to Mars.

The period of revolution of Jupiter lasts from 53rd to 64th year. During this period sobriety and serenity are gained, spiritual tendency is developed and wordly or material ambitions given up, advice to grown-up children given and their prosperity and comforts enjoyed and his advice sought by the youngsters and neighbours. Thus Jupiter or Mushtari plays his role.

Saturn's period of revolution (Dhori Zuhal) lasts from 65th year onwards till the time of death. This is the period of gloom, coughs, winds, weakness in body, callousness or indifference with home and world, fickle-mindedness and impatience—the signs of average Saturn. The total span of life according to Arabian system is taken to be 120 years.

The result of the revolution of a planet in his period is just like that in Hindu astrology depending on many factors in the birth chart, such as the sign, whether exalted, or debilitated whether in friend's navamsa, etc. For example if Mars is not well placed, the idea of construction of building will not materialise. Similarly we have to take sub-periods into consideration. For sub-periods, each Dhor (Dasha) period is divided into seven equal parts and the first sub-period (Tahat or Zeri Dhor) is started from the same planet who is the Dasa Lord. For example the D ॐ a period of the Sun—19 years, if divided by 7 gives the sub-period of each planet as 2 years, 8 months and 17 days. Just as we take pratiantra or sub-period in a Maha Dasa of Vimshottari Dasa for subtle or important events to dive deep for our predictions, similarly we take sub-periods of the planets by dividing again the sub-period by 7. Thus we have to divide 2 years 8 months and 17 days by 7, which comes nearly equal to 4 months and 19 days. According to this Arabic system more importance is given to ascendant (Tale) and its lord, than to the Moon and the lord of the sign in which it is posited. Then the positions of the great benefic Jupiter (sai'd Akbar) the moderate benefic Venus (sai'd Asgar) are considered. The exchange of house of two benefic planets or two planets (Qubul Darmakan) in well placed houses is considered very lucky and helpful in their revolution (Dasa) and sub-revolution (Bhukti) conferring peace, plenty and prosperity. 28th year and 29th years of life which refer to the period and sub-period of Sun-Jupiter, 43rd and 44th years —which is revolution and sub-period of Mars and Jupiter—are considered to be turning points of life whether for good or for bad according to the positions of these concerned planets. It is not understood why the revolution of Saturn is equal to 56 years. In such a long period the sub-period of any planet becomes equal to eight years.

The Persian Astrologers divide the life-span into four periods: (1) Childhood (Dar tiphalagi); (2) Youth (Dar jawani); (3) Middle age (Dar piri); and (4) Oldage (Dar khamoshi). According to Arabians the period of inactivity and of no importance to the society refers to the age of 64 and beyond, since man of this age, is supposed to be devoid of physical and mental energy, though there have been many exceptions to this rule. These exceptions go under the name of Zaicha.

Thus this article is written for furthur researches to be made by the scholars into this system which was the pet system of Bahadur Shah the last of the Moghal emperors, * the victim of civil war of India in 1857, who is more famous in Urdu literary world, as poet Zafar.

* The Moghal emperors had immense faith in astrology except the puritan narrow-minded and the fanatical Aurangazeb. Akbar observed all astrological formalities on social, religious and war-functions. On his birthday he used to keep Rohita fish and curd on his right hand and would proceed to Durbar or court. Jehangir was the first emperor in the world who issued coins bearing zodiacal signs. Thus he patronised astrology. The names of zodiacal signs in Persian language are in the serial order of Hamal, Sore, Gozer, Sartan, Asad, Sumbla, Mirzan, Aqarab, Qos, Gadi, Walu and Hote.

Copyright © Astrologers Astrology.com. In Memory of Late Ramans Work

AYURVEDA
or The Hindu System of Medicine
4th EDITION
BY B. V. RAMAN
With an Introduction by
W. B. CROW, D.Sc., PH.D.

In this book an attempt is made to explain the broad outlines of Ayurveda to the general public and give them an idea of the grandeur and importance of this ancient Medical system. Every true Indian must study this lucid exposition.

OPINION

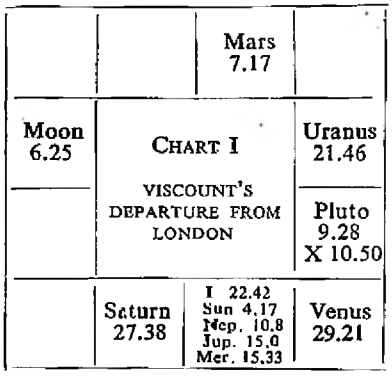
" The book is nicely written and the get-up is decent".

Prof. J. C. GHOSE, M.A., F.C.S.

Re. 1 or Sh. 2

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS
" Sri Rajeswari ", Bangalore-3

The Kaleidoscope



BY YOGIRAJ GEORGE CECIL NIXON

[Under this heading Mr. G. C. Nixon will astrologically comment on important happenings in the world such as political upheavals, natural calamities and train disasters, etc., with special reference to events in india. Mr. Nixon has been a keen student of Hindu Astrology and Yoga for a number of Years. It is hoped that this feature will be welcomed by our esteemed readers. Publication of Mr. Nixon's views does not necessarily mean that the Editor endorses them.—Ed., A.M.]

The Viscount Air Disaster

ALTHOUGH there are frequent air-disasters reported from time to time in the world's press, I have chosen this example for my comments this month, as it possesses rather unusual features, and also because we have for the first time, the birthdate of one of the victims. I propose to examine this case thoroughly in an endeavour to establish some of the basic rules of the astro-dynamics of air-travel.

The Viscount aircraft left London on the 22nd October 1958 at 8-25 a.m., on a flight to Rome, Naples and Malta. After an uneventful journey to Rome, it met with a collision in mid-air with an Italian fighter-plane, near the town of Nettuno, 41.29 North, 12.40 East, about 12-15 p.m., G.M.T., with a loss of 31 lives. Only the Italian pilot of the fighter-plane survived, he having been catapulted to safety after the collision. On board the airliner were numerous celebreties, and two society newly-weds. One Jane Buckingham, a beautiful 22 year old model, who considering that she had been jilted by her boy-friend, Prince Shiv of Palitana, in a fit of anger boarded the plane at the last moment with two press reporters from the Daily Sketch and a photographer, to fly to the father of Prince Shiv in Naples, no doubt in an attempt to create a 'scene'. But before she could accomplish this, the hand of Fate intervened in a most dramatic way and destroyed her and her companions in mid air! She died a day before her 22nd birthday, her date of birth being 23rd October, 1936.

First let us examine the chart for the time the aircraft left London. (See Chart No. 1). In this there are two features which immediately strike the eye. (1) The Moon is angular on the cusp of the 4th house in 6.25 Aquarius in opposition to Pluto on the meridian, square to a stationary Mars in the 7th. (2) The ascending degree 22.42 Libra was the position of the recent eclipse of the Moon of the 7th November, 1957 last. As I have proved in repeated examples of transport disasters, this factor of the eclipse degree, and its opposition point, is always in evidence on the angles, and can be relied upon to produce a mishap. It seems that the eclipse degrees of both the Sun and the Moon are effective for some eighteen months afterwards and may even extend to twenty-four months. From this we can conclude that it is never safe to commence a journey, nor for that matter, any important project, when the recent eclipse degrees are on the angles of the figure. Of course, many flights and journies commenced near those times, all over the world, safely reach their destinations, but if at such a time, one's personal horoscope is also threatening danger, I think that there is no doubt that caution "would be the better part of valour".

Now refer to the chart of the actual crash itself, which occurred at about 12-15 p.m. G.M.T. or 1-06 p.m. L.M.T., near Nettuno, Italy. See Chart II. Here again we are forcibly struck by the fact that the recent lunar eclipse degree of the 13th May 1957, viz. 28° Libra, is now exactly on the meridian, which further bears out my contention, that when these degrees are on the angles, it is an ominously dangerous moment. But this fatal 28° Libra is highly significant in many other ways, the further we delve into the hidden causes of this disaster.

Erect the 1958 Capsolar chart for Nettuno, which occurred at 8-39 p.m. L.M.T., on the 14th January 1958. The S.T. was 4-13 which gives an M.C. of 11 Taurus and Ascendant 14-45 Leo. When we progress this chart by the Quotidian method, we do not get anything significant, but if we use the measure for progressing the Solar Returns, as an experiment, we have some very remarkable indications. As the accident occurred about the 280th day after the Ingress, by the P.S.S.R. method we get an M.C. of 29 Aries and Ascendant 5-04 Leo. Thus the M.C. was separating from the opposition of the Moon in 28 Libra, and the Ascendant was applying to the conjunction of Pluto, a truly remarkable state of affairs. Apart from the Moon forming a Mundane square to Pluto, and being stimulated by the transitting Mars, it is the predominance of 28 Libra which rivets the attention.

Scanned by www.vidyabharati.net.in Digitized by eGangotri Dr B V Ramans Work

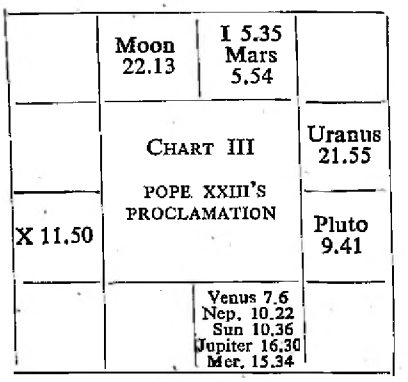
If there is any connection between the progressed cusps of the Capsolar chart and the times of events such as these, then it looks as if we can predict the exact time of day of a disaster from these charts.

It has always been a matter for astrological speculation, if the horoscopes of those who perish in some great disaster, tie up with the mundane chart, and what are the mechanics involved. The planetary positions of Jane Buckingham, one of the victims, are shown here at Greenwich Mean Noon:—

Sun	6.02	Libra
Moon	5.35	Capricorn
Mars	22.46	Leo
Mercury	20.06	Virgo
Jupiter	28.00	Scorpio
Venus	6.30	Scorpio
Saturn	22.32	Aquarius
Uranus	14.02	Aries
Neptune	24.11	Leo
Pluto	4.55	Cancer



Attention is drawn to the extermely malefic configuration of Mars conjunction Neptune opposition Saturn in Leo/Aquarius in square to Jupiter in 28° Scorpio. At the time of the disaster, Saturn was exactly transitting this Jupiter, having separated from the square to Neptune, showing humiliation, disappointed hopes and frustrated ambitions. But what is more significant is how the position of Venus was receiving the current square of Pluto and opposition of transitting Mars, denoting to her mind at least, a jilted love, though Prince Shiv said they were only friends. She had hopes of marrying him, when the news of his reported engagement to Eva Bartok, shocked her into deseperate action. It will be recalled that this Mars square Pluto was the operating configuration in the chart of the flight disaster, and the degree positions were angular in the radical Capsolar chart.

But the 'piecede resistance' to my mind, is that the position of Miss Buckingham's Progressed Sun was exactly in 28° Libra, the eclipse degree, so prominent on the angles of the progressed Capsolar chart for the disaster.

The Election of Pope John XXIII

Another event which occurred in the month of October, directing the world's attention to the locality of Rome, was the death of Pope Pius XII, on the 9th October, 1958 at the age of 82. He was born on the 2nd March 1876. The burial took place with great pomp and ceremony in the Vatican, near, it is said, to the suspected tomb of St. Peter, himself.

The Cardinals of the Church then met in secret conclave, and after many false alarms, elected a new Pope on the 28th October at about 5-10 p.m. mid-European S.T. The new Pope took the name of John XXIII, and made his first public appearance on the balcony at St. Peters Square at 6-19 p.m. mid-European S.T., amid the full glare of search-lights to the cheering people below. Chart III is given for that historic moment.

Here it will be noted that Mars was exactly rising in 5-54 Taurus, the Ascendant being 5-35 Taurus. The Moon had just risen in 22.13 Aries in opposition to the splendid conjunction of Sun, Jupiter, Venus, Mercury and Neptune in Libra which constituted a Chandradhi Yoga. At 5-10 p.m. when the ballot of the Cardinals took place, this most auspicious five-planet conjunction was exactly setting.

The cusp of the Ascendant for the first appearance and Proclamation, i.e., 5-35 Taurus is also very significant when we come to link it in with the Progressed Capsolar chart for Rome, using the new idea of the P.S.S.R. measure instead of the Quotidian. The Progressed Capsolar chart gives an M.C, of 5° Taurus and an Ascendant of 2°.25 Virgo, with Pluto exactly rising. Here again we get the progressed angle confirming one of the angles of the actual time of the event. If this is a true astrological law, we could have announced beforehand that the new Pope would make his first public appearance at 6-19 p.m., that day.

The rising position of Pluto splendidly illustrates the astrological influence of this planet, for it has to do with first appearances, debuts, the winner,

(Continued on page 260)

Scanned by www.santarinastrology.com in Presence Dr B V Ramans Work

The Web of Destiny

BY MISS ZENOBIA, B.A. (HONS.)

(1)

"One ship sails East and another
sails West,
With the self-same winds that blow;
'Tis the set of the sail
And not the gale
That determines the way they go".
"Like the winds of the sea are ways of fate,
As the voyage along through Life;
'Tis the act of the Soul
That determines the goal,
And not the calm or the strife."

—Ella W. Wilcox.

IT has been said that "Character is Destiny". What does this really mean? It means that our soul must be awakened, before the real value of the Delphic Oracle "Man Know Thyself" can be understood and appreciated. This appreciation will come to us when we try and understand how we have in our past lives woven the "Web of Destiny" by our own thinking, speaking and creative actions, and thus today in our present life, we are actually weaving the new Web of Future Destiny, that is to say, our future Horoscope.

The sins, which are committed, are only the results of our ignorance or non-knowledge and, therefore, to know or become "enlightened" is to become wise and by attaining wisdom we can ascertain the Universal Truth and will thus be able to master our "fate". It, therefore, comes to our clear understanding that Fate, whether good or evil, is made up originally by our own thoughts and actions in the past lives, and this Fate has its roots in our very character. Therefore, our Horoscope is nothing but an indicator, in different departments of our life, of the Divine and the most unchangeable Law in action, and the study of the planetary positions of one's horoscope easily helps us to discover most salient features of the "Web of our Destiny".

Fate Versus Freewill

One should definitely remove the most erroneous and ignorant idea that every human being is merely bound hand and foot by his Fate, i.e., he or she is merely a doll in the lap of mother nature and is bound to carry out strictly the injunctions of nature. If it was so, then why people suffer for no apparent reason in this life? This is not the correct conception of the Cosmic Laws. A knowledge of working of the Cosmic Laws will be real to the "enlightened" that stars only incline, they never compel and it is the attitude of the soul that decides the results. Mother nature has endowed every person with freewill also, which he has to use during this life most discreetly, keeping in mind the knowledge of the Cosmic Laws, on which all success or positive effect is based and that is the Law of Conjunction. Conjunction means to be joined together or falling in line together. Planetary conjunction requires the joining together or coming together of men's rightful purpose with the disposition of certain planetary influences at a certain time and at a certain place. There are many factors to be observed to fulfil the cosmic laws of conjunction which can be called the Law of Success, just to put it in our popular language. We well remember King Solomon's wisdom in stating that "To every thing there is a season and a time to every purpose under the heaven". It must be clearly understood that man is a spirit or to speak more correctly a soul with a body. This 'spirit' is immortal, permanent and undying; but his soul, which is also immortal, is imprisoned, so to say, in the "matter" or "body" which is of flesh and bone; through which it manifests on the lower planes. Matter is changing, impermanent, limited and circumscribed and hence "matter" is fated, while the "spirit" is free. Wise people, who believe in the effects of stars, have correctly thought over the problem of fate and free-will and have discovered certain symbols through which they express their ideas, which symbols serve as stepping stones to the higher and more metaphysic thoughts of involution and evolution. Really speaking 'fate' is distinctly divided into 3 main divisions and, therefore, it requires a special chapter to describe the effects of the same in detail. This clearly proves the theory of reincarnation.

Lord Zoroaster has clearly taught us of the great Law of Unfoldment of spirit into matter and he has also taught us the wonderful Law of Unfoldment of the Spirit from the Matter. The holy Spitma Zarathushtra is ever ready with one thought of doing the Will of Ahuramazda, the one sublime thought of showing the Path of Ashoi i.e. prestine purity which is the only way of Unfoldment to the Blessed Souls, throughout all the Planes, viz., (1) Spiritual Plane, (2) Planetary Plane, (3) Plane of the Spirit World and (4) our Earth. Lord Zoroaster has also taught us the three grand laws of achieving Unfoldment of Ravan i.e. Soul:

1. The Law of Ashoi, the seal of purity, in all its perfection—physical, mental, moral and spiritual.

2. The Law of Khoreh, viz., the Aura or subtle emanation from our bodies.

Scanned by gurus sant nishkam Digitized by Preservation Foundation Usa

3. The Law of Keshash (Karma) viz., obligations and the adjustments with everything in life. This is an invisible force of Karma in this Universe i.e, the Web of Destiny i.e. Re-incarnation. Truly, "in Him we live and move and have our being. He is our fate, our destiny, our only hope and guide". For in essence, we are but the Divine Fragments of His Life.

Origin of Sin

Now take an instance. When a Soul is absolutely first newly born in the Universe above this earth, no evil can be attached to him. Then he develops love of self and love of the wordly life. No one knows what evil is, unless he knows what the "Love of Self and Love of the World" is. Thereafter, falsity emanates from this evil. It is not known what Hell is, unless it is knowu what Evil is. Evils and falsities are of many kinds and species. It will thus be clear that evil is from man, because he selfishly turns the "Good" which is really from the Lord Almighty, to himself. Therefore, evil is nothing but disjunction and not conjunction, and it may be easily known to us what evil is, if we calmly study and understand what the Love of Self and Love of the worldly Life, is. Evils are those things which try to conceal the Lord Almighty's Divine Wishes. Therefore, as the new soul travels on his journey, he slowly develops, in majority of cases, Love of Self and Love of the World and this is the Origin of Evil and Origin of our first sin, for which we have to suffer punishment.

A man generally belives that he only thinks and acts from himself and why he should suffer? However, thereby he expresses nothing but Love of Self and Love of the Worldly Life, and thus he appropriates Evil to himself, and thus man naturally becomes guilty. If he believes otherwise, that is to say, in Him (God) he (Man) acts and lives, and everything belongs to the Lord, and nothing to him (Man), evil cannot be appropriated to him. Evil, therefore, has with it its penalty, and good its reward, in the other life also; and this is the Law of Retaliation. Good is conjoined with its own reward and evil is conjoined with its own penalty. If you are by the Grace of God rich give ample to the poor and in charity to alleviate the suffering of the poor. God is Love and Love is nothing but charity. Therefore, God will amply reward you, if you think and act, as if your riches do not belong to you but they belong to the Lord. Thus you will be doubly blessed, as you are carrying out the divine wishes of the Lord.

There can be nothing of evil from the Divine. It is a fallacy to say that evil is from Divine. Evil cannot emanate from God at all. But it emanates from the evil itself. When the evil does evil to itself, it appears, as if it were from the God Divine, but this is a fallacy. A man with a jaundiced eye sees everything yellow. Similarly the Lord Divine appears to man according to the quality of the man; i.e. to the evil man Lord will appear as terrible darkness and to the good man, He will appear as shining Light. Punishment is meted out to evil man according to the Law of Equilibrium; therefore, there is no injustice in the Divine Code. It is also a fallacy to say that God is angry and, therefore, He has meted out severe punishment. Anger and evil are not from God; but are from men themselves, yet we human beings attribute same to God. We suffer from the perversion of life we lead. Therefore, to talk that God is angry and does evil is a fallacy. Man is endowed with Freewill by divine nature, and when he misuses same, and does evil, he suffers punishment according to Law of Retaliation and Law of Equilibrium, then he blames his stars for same though he himself is the real culprit. Stars are not created merely to revolve round the Sun, which is in the centre, but that the human race and heaven might exist therefrom.

To what star you belong?

There are seven planes each of which is presided over by a Lord or Ruler, namely, Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn, within the circuit of our Universe; and to one or other of these (7) Lords or Rulers, we all human beings belong. A study of this ancient Science teaches us that each Ruler emanates a certain ray or colour, so that each Divine Spark that we know on earth as "Man" commences his journey with one of these seven Prim-ordial Rays as a guiding star and influence and these influences remain his or her special bent or line of least resistance. During the whole of our pilgrimage through Matter, through-out ages of evolution connected with many spheres, we rise successively and simultaneously through the mineral, vegetable and animal kingdoms and the human world, into a perfect human being and onward and upward again into the Divine.

For the above reason the Hermetic Philosophers have rightly stated that the stars incline but they never compel. To know one's future, it is essential to know his or her characteristics as these Philosophers have rightly made us to understand that "Character is Destiny" and nothing else.

(Continued on page 244)

Scanned by GoogleSupariksaSociety.com To Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

Horoscope of Dr. A. Nageswara Rao

BY R. GANPATRAM TRIVEDI, D. COM.

BORN on 27th October 1901 at 9 A.M. (Aswin Shukla Purnima of Plava Samvatsara) in the fourth Padam of Aswini (Shukra Dasa balance 18–9–27) Dr. Nageswara Rao lost in his childhood his father who was a pious orthodox Brahmin and a great devotee of Lord Siva. He was given in adoption to the widow of a near relative and was sent to Madras for medical education. By the time he passed his L.M.P. examination the country was in the thick of its first non-violent struggle started by Gandhiji in 1921 and this young doctor jumped into the national movement and courted jail for the first time, where he met Dr. V.V.R. Dixitulu another warrior with a creditable record of public service and sacrifice. He became his fast friend and thereafter his life-long partner and co-worker in profession and public service. He joined Dr. Dixitulu who was running a dispensary at Rajahmundry in 1926 and this alliance between these two friends remains unbroken till now i.e. for over thirty years which must speak for their agreeable nature and steadfast association.

Sri Nageswara Rao was born in Mithuna Lagna, with lord of Lagna in the 6th house along with powerful Mars and Venus. This combination of these three planets in the 6th has played a very significant role in moulding the life events of our hero. Mercury gives him a balanced frame of body—a bit shortish—and a very hard working nature. When he is at work he is all grave and serious with it. Rest is ever unknown to him. Besides tight hours of work at the dispensary not only during day time but during nights also (because he is occupying a portion of the dispensary premises for his residence) he has to fulfil a number of public engagements not to mention the number of visitors on all sorts of public errands, to whom he will be attending side by side with his professional work. I think it must be the effect of the Sun in his debilitation that must be responsible for his humble and unasuming nature. He will never make any show of pomp or position and even at public functions he will quietly come and take his seat in an humble corner unnoticed, though someone, will invariably lift him up to the forefront to a fitting place.

He was sent to jail again in 1930 struggle and for a third time in the 'Quit India' movement of 1942. Thus he had to undergo incarceration in the Dasas of the Sun, the Moon and Mars.

The period of Rahu which started in 1943 has proved to be very important and eventful. After he came out of jail he had a life of hurricane activities. He fulfilled important roles in the Congress organisation and after sometime the municipal elections came.

He contested the elections from a labouring class constituency. He was by this time enjoying boundless popularity. He fought against a communist candidate and won the election, so to say, beating the communist lion in his own den. He was held by the people as an upright man of undoubted character and above suspicion like Caesar's wife. He was therefore tipped for the post of Municipal Chairman and won the election and became the Chairman in 1952. This event is very noteworthy because he was given the reception of a hero which has no parellel in the civic life of Rajahmundry. He was presented with a golden replica at the hands of his political Guru, Sri T. Prakasam. This happened probably in Budha's sub-period.

And then came the historic devastating Godavary floods of 1953 when three-fourths of Rajahmundry town was under water. During this period of distress he rendered wonderful services which will ever remain unforgotten.

Politically Dr. Nageswara Rao belonged to the steadfast orthodox class of Gandhite Congressmen for over quarter of a century but separated from the Congress along with Sri Prakasam when the latter formed the Praja Party which was a block in the United Democratic Front in the then composite state Assembly.

Scanned by vedicastrology.com To Preserve

We all know well what happened during the subsequent years. Andhra State was formed with Sri Prakasam as the first premier. After the fall of Prakasam ministry in 1955 there were fresh elections and as a result of an alliance between the Congress, Praja Party and K.L. Party Dr. Nageswara Rao was asked to contest the seat from Rajahmundry. It will be of interest to recall here that during 1951 elections the seat from Rajahmundry had gone to a Communist. But when the Communists knew that Dr. Nageswara Rao was contesting the election they were disheartened and were almost hands down and it is needless to say that Sri Nageswara Rao won the elections by a thumping majority. Sri Gopala Reddy became the chief minister and in pursuance of the "gentleman's agreement" made before the election between the Congress and Praja party, he invited Dr. Nageswara Rao to join his ministry and entrusted to him the portfolio of local administration for which our doctor was perhaps the best qualified man with his experience as the Chairman of Rajahmundry Municipality. As minister he worked very hard and gave a new orientation to this subject and made many reforms which have left a landmark in Local Administration in Andhra.

All this happened in the subperiod of Venus in Rahu Dasa. It is strange the same Venus who lifted him up to the ministerial gadi became also responsible for his exit from the high post, which he held for nearly nineteen months. During this period some of his political opponents tried to precipitate some trouble to arouse public opinion against him in Rajahmundry but could not succeed as there was nothing that anybody could find out against this man of unquestioned integrity. His high sense of service will be marked out from only one incident. When Sri Gopala Reddy asked him to join his ministry Dr. Nageswara Rao made an understanding with his Chief that he should be allowed to give free medical service to the poor for about an hour daily. Accordingly he used to go with a compounder to some neighbouring villages daily to give medical service. The words he uttered then are still ringing in our ears. "The ministership may come and ministership may go but I must continue to render medical service to my people". In the second half of Venus it was, that Sri Gopala Reddy made way for Sri Sanjeeva Reddy when Visalandhra was formed in November 1956 and suffice it to say the latter did not include the doctor in his new ministry for reasons yet unknown.

Dr. Nageswara Rao returned back to Rajahmundry in November 1956 and began his practice in company with his old colleague Dr. Dixitulu as before. His opponents began to wither away even as the cluster of clouds is smashed by the emergence of the Sun on the horizon. I think it must be attributed solely to his powerful Mars in the 6th house.

I am sometimes wondering at his tenacity and promptitude for public service even to the extent of adamancy and risk, and I am trying to find out which planet or planets could be responsible for that. For instance when the raging floods were enveloping the streets of Rajahmundry and when everyone was running away with his life, the doctor was busy rescuing others while his own family members were being saved by others as the waters had entered his house and dispensary. Once while he was the minister, he was advised to postpone his tour programme as one of his children was suffering from small-pox, but this our Doctor would not do. I think it must be the effect of strong Jupiter in the seventh aspecting the lagna fully. While Jupiter bestows satwick qualities of renunciation etc., Saturn who also aspects lagna makes him enduring and hard working.

Financially he has never cared for money though he might have felt the need of money many a time; but money or wealth has never attracted him. He spends what he earns and earns what he spends. He is a true Sarvodaya worker in every sense. His Dhanadhipathi (2nd lord) is in the 11th and so he gets what he needs without any difficulty. In fact, he could have amassed wealth if he had only a mind to do so, but knowing him as I do so very well, I can say that he has a sort of aversion, if I may say so, for earning beyond necessity and for hoarding.

Scanned by www.sanjayrathi.com in Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

His fourth lord Mercury is in the sixth with Venus Lord of twelfth. This speaks for the fact that he sold away even the little landed property he had inherited. While even several ministers have accepted gifts of lands as political sufferers this man does not believe in accepting a reward for his partriotic sacrifices. He lives in a very simple house and once one big man was heard to say "Dr. Nageswara Rao lives in such a house!". His Holiness Sri Sankaracharya of Kamakoti Peetam described him as a man with the lustre of character around him.

His 7th house is again interesting to study. There is a very powerful Jupiter which gives him a fair and obedient wife. But again the effect of Saturn there has also to be noted. She is also very shy and does not like to come in the forefront. In one

(Continued on page 240)

AROUND the WORLD

BY DOUGLAS HUNT, M.A.

NO one could look at the world today and not feel some trepitude as to its future. One does not have to be an astrologer to realize that the next few years are likely to be crucial. Nevertheless it would be foolish to pass our lives in a state of panic. In some ways the indications are that the future could be an extremely bright one. Few of the horrors foretold by astrologers since 1945 have eventuated, and one need not let the shadow of 1962 unduly disturb one's rest.

Far be it from me to suggest that the mundane astrologer is inefficient or incapable. The fault lies not in themselves but in the inadequacy of their data. Who can say for certain what is the real birth map of any nation? No method has yet been evolved by which consistently accurate prognostications can be made in mundane astrology—no experienced astrologer would expect to do this. Yet one would like to suggest in all modesty that when the future looks extremely black to them they should refrain from scaring the living daylights out of us. Only about half a dozen men in the world can really do much to avert disaster: the rest of us can do little but watch and pray, and endeavour to practice true harmlessness. As this includes from refraining from criticism I will now shut up!

Since, however, my job is reportage I would like to repeat without comment the 'glance at the future' in November's Destin written by that first-class astrologer W. H. Hirsic.

M. Hirsic, who has promised us a more detailed preview in the December number, gives us what one might call a preview of this coming preview.

In making my calculations, he writes, I have had my attention drawn to a planetary aspect of extreme importance: the Jupiter-Saturn conjunction in Capricorn in February 1961, the effects of which will make themselves felt at the beginning of autumn 1960. This aspect is especially significant as taking place in the cardinal, Saturnian sign of Capricorn, which is considered to have a very great influence in the political realm.

The writer goes on to say that the conjunction will indicate, especially in the Western world, a complete reorganisation of the political world, resultant on the financial disequilibrium of the autumn of 1958. He then goes on to draw attention to what he considers will be the highlights of the remaining forty years of the century, which he believes will see a complete transformation of the world as we know it today. In particular there will have to be a new assessment of the relations between capital and labour.

Like most other astrologers M. Hirsic attaches great significance to 1962, and suggests that it may see the decline of the Soviet system in Russia.

From 1964 to 1968 the world will be under the influence of the Pluto-Uranus conjunction, which, he suggests, can bring neither peace nor harmony. (Do we, asks your coloumnist, know enough about these comparative strangers to be able really to assess the nature of their influence?) It should nevertheless bring considerably increased knowledge of the origins and nature of the earth, of radioactivity, and of the interior of the earth. The influence of this conjunction will be felt for 115 to 120 years.

The years 1968 to 1980 should, writes M. Hirsic, bring a very satisfactory development of the discoveries made since 1964, and give rise to a certain optimism. The following twelve years, however, will repeat the disturbed pattern typical of so much of this distracted century. It is suggested that by this time the world will have learnt the folly of mutual destruction.

This short resume of a highly professional article by an expert cannot possibly do it justice, but it would be interesting to see how far the knowledgeable readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE would agree with M. Hirsic's findings. To the non-astrologer they have a rather terrifying air of probability, though many of us will have few personal worries as to what will be happening after 1980. Your columnist expects at that date to be engaged in agricultural work—pushing up daisies!

Readers conversant with Portugese will be interested in Claima-Astral, published at Rua 7 de Abril, 277, Sao Paulo, Brazil. It deals not only with astrology, but with many other subjects of interest to the occultist and mystic.

Have the sputniks given us another bit of evidence in favour of astrology? M. Volguine claims in Less Cahiers Astrologiques that they have. Their orbits, he says, have shown a lunar attraction far stronger than had been foreseen. They are evidently subject to a cycle of 28 days, and whether Russian or American, are governed by the Moon.

Scanned by unknown to Preserve Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

At the Baudelocque clinic in Paris Dr. Minkowski has demonstrated that the first moments after birth condition the whole life, thus unwittingly confirming what the astrologer has always asserted.

Why do historians usually ignore astrology? In the case of many famous figures the exact time of birth has been recorded, and it is possible to cast—and check—a correct horoscope. How many have done this?

In La Revue De Paris of March 1958 Philippe Erlanger does something to remedy this defect. He writes:

"When a prince was born his horoscope used to be drawn up. Henri IV was depressed by the prophecies concerning the circumstances of his death. He knew that he would meet his end in a carriage after his first 'magnificence' (the crowning of the queen) in his fifty seventh year and on the 14th of May. He mocked at the astrologer Thomassin, who predicted this last detail—However his scepticism was not complete. Sully depicts him as entering the carriage 'timidly' and dreading the date of the 'magnificence'. Furthermore he left the body of Henri III at Compiegne instead of taking it to Saint-Denis, because, according to another mage, he himself would be buried ten days after his predecessor. This did in fact take place".

Since the beginning of time, and especially during the Christian era, fanatics have made ready for the end of the world, often stating the exact date on which this phenomenon would occur. They are seldom put out of countenance when the Last Day passes uneventfully—though sometimes they have disposed of all their worldly goods.

The latest prophet of imminent cataclysm, says Fate, is Nathan H. Knorr, who recently told more than a quarter of a million Jehovah's Witnesses at New York that "the world's end is near". The end will come in the Battle of Armageddon, when good will triumph over evil. Can you guess who will be the only one's to survive? You are quite right: Jehovah's Witnesses.

This curious movement was founded in 1878 by a draper in Pittsburgh called Russell, who conferred on himself the title of 'Pastor'. He did extremely well out of the sale of 'miracle wheat' to credulous farmers, was involved in many lawsuits, and was divorced by his wife, the Court holding that he was of a temperament to 'render the life of any sensitive Chtistian woman a burden and make her life intolerable.'

Russell was succeeded on his death by one Rutherford, who in his turn abrogated to himself the title of 'Judge', though he was no more than a small-time lawyer, who had frequently appeared in court in defence of Russell. During the first World War, 'Judge' Rutherford spent nine cosy months in the Federal Prison at Atlanta.

The 'witnesses' today are mostly sincere and earnest people—some would call them fanatics—who believe that every word in the Bible is literally true but that of course you must accept unquestioningly the interpretation of the self-styled 'Judge' or the unconsecrated 'Pastor'. They are pacifists, and many of them have valiantly suffered for their principles. Their standard of character is often high—higher, indeed, than that of their two founders. They believe that 'millions now living will never die'. Rutherford believed that he was one of those millions. He wasn't. Another tenet is that only 144,000 humans since the beginning of time will survive Armageddon. There seems some slight discrepancy here.

In New Zealand the 'Witnesses' have been declared a subversive organisation and all their activities prohibited.

Varshaphal

OR

THE HINDU PROGRESSED HOROSCOPE

Based on Tajaka (6TH EDITION)

By B. V. RAMAN

This book based on Tajaka covers fresh grounds in the field of prediction. It describes a unique method never before disclosed for deciphering annual life readings. Predictions made according to this work yield unique results. Whether you are a layman or initiated, you can draw up and interpret the annual reading in an easy and scientific manner. The system propounded in the pages of this work is rational and in actual practice yields most satisfactory results.

OPINION

"The author outlines a method of deciphering annual results from the Hindu horoscope. He claims that the principles of Tajaka astrology have been found to work accurately in actual practice, and controverts the orthodox belief that the system can be applied only to charts of individuals who have passed the age of thirty. There are many useful tables at the end and a summary."

—Indian Express.

Rs. 3 or Sh. 6

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari"

BANGALORE-3

Scanned by www.vaparivaasi.com for Free Distribution Work

Effects of Pachaka Planets

BY PROF. AMAR NATH MUKHERJEA

THE famous treatise Sarvartha Chintamani deals with what are known as Pachak, Bodhak, Karak and Vedhak planets according to their relative positions in the horoscope. When planets become Pachakas or Bodhakas, or Karakas or Vedhakas, they develop certain good or bad characteristics and give such results in the Dasas and Bhuktis. The information contained in a few slokas of the book referred to, is not very elaborate and curiously enough, in the exposition of results in Dasas and Bhuktis in the last part of the book, this particular characteristic is not taken into consideration or even hinted at. I have not come across this Pachak, Vedhak definitions of planets in the ordinary astrological literature available in this side. The translator of Brihat Parasari Hora in Bengali, Sri B. K. Lahiri, assured me in a letter that some edition of Brihat Parasari Hora (Uttara Khanda possibly) contains a brief reference to this particular definition of planets. For ready reference, I am giving that relationship in a tabular form and my intention is that readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE may throw some light on the matter. I have got a particular illustration which I will give later on.

Planets	Pachak	Bodhak	Karak	Vedhak	Special Features
Surya	6th Sani	7th Mangal	9th Guru	11th Sukra	Pachak planets are enemies of Ravi and Chandra—rest friends.
Chandra	5th Sukra	9th Kuja	11th Sani	3rd Ravi	Bodhak planet is enemy of Budha—rest friends.
Kuja	2nd Ravi	6th Chandra	11th Sani	12th Budha	Vedhak planet is enemy of Kuja—rest friends.
Budha	2nd Chandra	4th Guru	5th Sukra	5th Kuja	Pachak and Vedhak become enemies to Guru and Ravi, but become friends of Bodhak and Karak.
Guru	6th Sani	8th Kuja	7th Chandra	12th Ravi
Sukra	2nd Budha	6th Ravi	12th Guru	4th Sani
Sani	3rd Sukra	11th Chandra	6th Guru	7th Kuja

Explanation.—Sani in 6th, Mangal in 7th, Guru in the 9th, and Sukra in the 11th from Ravi, become respectively Pachak, Bodhak, Karak and Vedak to the Sun. Similarly the other planets from Mars, etc., should be viwed. Rahu and Kethu have not been considered at all in this relationship and I cannot give any reason therefor.

Special Features :—

Karak and Vedhak become enemies of Sukra—rest are friends. Karak Graha is enemy of Sani but rest are friends.

1. If 'Pachak' planet is friendly then the native will enjoy good food, milk, dress, power, wealth, land and happiness.

If Pachak planet is 'enemy' the opposite results will be experienced.

2. If 'Bodhak' planet is 'friendly", the planet will confer gain, respect, power, high education, fame, and religious disposition.

If the Bodhak is enemy, the opposite result will follow.

3. If 'Karak' planet is friendly, there will be danger of theft, fire, fear from low caste people, and loss.

If the Karak is enemy, then, fame, property, power—will follow.

4. If 'Vedhak' is friendly, danger from fire, thief, king, foreign travel and loss are indicated.

If 'Vedhak' is enemy, then opposite results, viz., happiness, respect and fame will follow.

This is in short, what is available from the Sarvartha Chinthamani. In one particular case, I have seen very good results have followed as given in this treatise. Here is the horoscope-Male born at Calcutta, on 4th November 1936, at 7–10 a.m. Calcutta time. R.A. of M.C. 10-2-26. Sayan Ascendant is 24° 50′ Scorpio and 28° 30′ Leo is M.C. By using Lahiri's Ayanamsa (22° 58′ 35″), the Nirayana positions are :—Ascendant 1° 52′ 25″ Scorpio; M.C. 5° 37′ 25″ Leo; Sun 18° 28′ Libra; Mercury 9° 40′ Libra; Venus 21° 32′ Scorpio; Jupiter 1° 4′ and Rahu 3° 42′ Sagittarius; Saturn Vakra 22° 58′ Aquarius; Moon 23° 57′ 42″ Gemini; Mars 0° 21′ Virgo; Uranus Vakri 14° 27′ Aries; Neptune 15° 23′ Leo and Pluto 2° 7′ Cancer.

At the moment the sub-period of Sun in the Dasa of Saturn is passing.

Sukra is 10th from Sani and Sani is 4th from Sukra. The latter position makes Sani Vedhak and as Vedhak is enemy of Venus, the results will be good. During the period, the native topped the list of successful candidates in three University examinations leading to B.Sc. (Agriculture) degree. In the final examination, he secured first position in 1st class and won "Gold Medals" and other prizes, of the University and Agriculture College, Bihar. He is passing through Sani—Surya. Surya is "Pachak" to Mars (being 2nd from Mangal) and as Pachak he becomes a friend of Sani hence good results may be expected, such as good food, gain, etc., in a limited way as Surya is not powerful. The next antardasa is that of Chandra and Chandra is 7th from Guru, hence Chandra is "Karak" planet and as Saturn is enemy of 'Karak', Sani–Chandra will bring in good results pertaining to the lordship of the 9th house and Chandra is in 9th bhava as well. He may have greater opportunities of furthering his qualification and may go abroad.

I submit my observations for further critical studies in respect of this Pachak Vedhak relationships of planets and as the horoscope submitted is a correct one, (the birth time was noted very correctly and the time after proper verification with chronometers was recorded), further studies may be based on these birth-data. The difficulty of this particular line of relationship is that many horoscopes do not have any Pachak, Vedhak and Bodhak or Karak relationship at all, and in those cases, I do not know how this relationship may be applied and these horoscopes be read in this particular light. From the example horoscope, it is clear that the results given in Sarvatha Chintaman cannot be brushed aside lightly and

I do not know if the results can be easily foreseen by any other method. Rahu sextile Sani, Sukra conjunction Ascendant, M.C. sextile Moon (separating) are some of the major aspects in the Western system but I doubt very much if anybody could depend upon Sani-Sukra as it is done usually to indicate the results obtained during the Antardasa.

The Editor's learned observation on this particular matter will be very eagerly awaited.

HOROSCOPE OF Dr. A. NAGASWARA RAO

(Continued from page 236)

word she is an ideal orthodox and pious type of Hindu housewife. Her husband's ministership or exit thereform did not make much difference for her. It would do well to record here one incident. In January last Nageswararao's portrait was to be unveiled in Hindi Mahavidyalaya of which he is the president. A message was sent to his family members through his servants requesting them to attend the function. The Doctor's wife sent a reply which was as amusing as as it was instructive. She said, "we are seeing the Doctor in the house daily in flesh and blood, and where is therefore the necessity for us to go all the way to Vidyalaya to see his photo".

But more than the birth-chart, his amsa chart seems to be extraordinarily powerful. Saturn, Mars and Venus are all exalted and very well-placed. The Sun in debilitation in Rasi chart is also improved in Amsa. All the planets like pearls in a necklace are scattered over the chart without any conjunctions. It is said "Tribhih Raja Tribhih Mantri" (त्रिभिः राजा त्रिभिः मन्त्रि) If such three exalted planets cannot make the native a minister, then who else can do it?

Dr. Nageswara Rao is now running the sub-period of Sun in Rahu till 6–2–1959 when Moon will commence. Both these periods are not quite good. Thereafter comes Mars subperiod which will be decidedly better than the above two. Mars sub-period and along with that Rahu Dasa ends on 24–8–1961 and with that comes to end a Dasa period which has proved to be very eventful. The Mahadasa of Jupiter begins from 24-8-1961 and thus will be definitely very good in every respect and althrough. It is to be noted that it will be by this time exactly that fresh elections will take place. And in my humble opinion Dr. Nageswara Rao will not only be elected a member in the State Assembly or the Parliament but will be holding an important position of a minister either in the State or at the Centre. As I said before three exalted planets make a man king or a minister and since he has been a minister once, he may be appointed a Governor also. And after all who will become such ministers or governors—if not such luminaries as Dr. Nageswara Rao. My above opinion is shared by a Jaimini Astrologer of repute with whom I had recently discussed the Doctor's horoscope. According to his system a Rajayoga period of seven years begins from 1962.

The one alternative that suggests to me is that since Jupiter is the planet of knowledge and renunciation, the Doctor who is already the President of the Jivakarunyasangha,—famous for its humanitarian services, might get engrossed in such pursuits or might play an important role in Sarvodaya work with which he is even now connected.

As regards longevity, he will no doubt pull through the whole period of Jupiter.

Scanned by Shri Sattar Sahib Seshadri Sahib. Let Preserve Dr. B V Raman's Work

GRAHA AND BHAVA BALAS (SIXTH EDITION)

A Unique Treatise for measuring the Strengths of Planets and Houses numerically

By B. V. RAMAN

An entirely new book on Mathematical Astrology. The first real effort to present the complicated methods of assigning planetary and house strengths in a popular and easy style. Suitable for even laymen, it is just what enquirers have long been seeking containing as it does everything necessary for a quick and accurate study of astrological mathematics so very essential for correct predictions. Experts and students will welcome this new publication.

Rs. 3–75 or Sh. 7/6 :: Postage Extra

Order your Copy at once. Less 12½% to Subscribers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE-3

[The Editor does not hold himself responsible for the views of his readers. Constructive criticism is always welcome. Vituperation and innuendo will not be permitted. While the Editor encourages healthy controversy on subjects relevant to THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, he must remind readers that claims on the available space in this column are heavy. The Editor, therefore, requests readers to be as brief as possible in all letters submitted for the correspondence columns.—Ed., A.M.]

Appreciation

Sir,—I am extremely pleased to see what good stuff you get in your journal and how interesting it is, and I wish you and your colleagues every success in the future.

Leicester, England — Dr. W. B. CROW.

Research in Astrology

Sir,—I have gone through your illuminating address at the All-Kerala Astrological Association at Trichur and the comments of The Hindu, Madras, reproduced in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE of November 1958. The organizers of the Conference have done a great service to Hindu Society in particular and India in general by arranging such a gathering and requesting an astrologer of great eminence like yourself to inaugurate it. May God crown the efforts of eminent men in Kerala with success. We in India need not follow the European University system. They were bold enough to have a chair, many many years ago, in Oxford for Sanskrit. We should not feel hesitant to restore the teaching of astrology in our schools and colleges, as was done in ancient India.

Jammu Cantt. — LAKSHMAN SINGH CHARAK.

Political Forecasts

Sir,—I have been keenly and closely studying THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE specially so the 'Political Forecasts' of the learned Editor who has specialised in Mundane Astrology as no one else Majority of his forecasts are surprisingly true verbatim for any layman; and for a person who is well up in astrology or knows atleast some of it his deductions, discussions and conclusions are very inspiring and instructive and contain much food for thought and digestion with benefit. There is originality, intution, insight and a deep and laborious study shown by the masterly way in which he discusses this difficult subject and explains as to why and how he arrives at a definite conclusion. Just as a Physician in dealing with a case takes into consideration extrinsic factors, e.g., environments, special circumstances, time, place, climate, season, previous history, habits, family and social position, mental condition and present circumstances of a patient besides depending on his scientific and book knowledge in dealing with a case, the learned Editor considers and discusses so many extrinsic factors together with the astrological aspects, e.g., position of planets, etc. In other words he has been dealing with this subject exactly as other scientific subjects are dealt with.

It is a matter of pity that some people belittle astrology without trying to know and understand what it is. If such persons only try to learn the A B C of it and then carefully follow how the able Editor openly discusses and arrives at his conclusions and compare the percentages of his such forecasts turning out to be true they can be convinced that is as much a scientific subject as any other and worthy of receiving greater attention and patronage than it is getting. There is nothing occult or mysterious about it. No doubt as with every scientific subject man's knowledge is not perfect and he has always much to learn generation after generation and yet remain imperfect.

In every scientific subject no matter how able and expert one is, he sometimes does not see the most ordinary and obvious things and goes astray. Similar is the case with astrology. It is sometimes said that an astrologer is wiser after the thing has actually happened. So is the case with every scientific subject, e.g., it is often that a physician is able to diagnose a disease only after a post-mortem. The fault is not of the science but of man's limitations and imperfections.

It is not my object here to deal with my views as to why and on what basis I am convinced about the scientific basis of astrology as it would mean a lenghthy article but I only want critics and disbelievers to act as I suggest and I am sure if they do so with the object of finding the truth and not with a view to find faults they would not only agree with me but will learn something and would also admire the mastery and grasp of the learned Editor.

Medical Officer. Ayodhya (U.P.) — Dr. VIDYA DAT RAM M.B., B.S., P.M.S.I.

Sir,—May I request you to accept my greetings for the Happy New Year. Our ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE has completed one more year of valuable service for the cause of this science. The credit must of course go to you as you are the principal cause for its creditable success. Every reader of this Magazine owes much to you for your unique service in maintaining its high standards and in resisting the attacks made by several great people on astrology. The tragedy is most of the so-called great personalities do not know even a line about Astrology and yet they criticise it off and on.

I think it is not out of place if I mention some of the predictions given by our Editor in the 1958 Annual Number of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE and show to the world once again how accurate and precise the science of Astrology is? The first and foremost prediction which came true was on 1st January 1958. Dealing with the Mars-Saturn conjunction you wrote that "the conjunction in the 1st week of January 1958 in the martian sign of Scorpio threatens a serious railway accident". I hope the readers have already noted down that a serious railway accident occurred near Delhi (Ambala) in the early hours of 1st January 1958 taking a toll of nearly 150 lives. Dealing with India's prospects for the year 1958 you said "the year ahead for India will not be quite rosy. The problem of Goa, Kashmir and Indians in Ceylon will remain unsolved. Politics in Kerala will take an unfavourable turn.....etc." All these predictions have come correct to the word.

Dealing with world affairs you predicted that the world would pass through a tough and critical period during Saturn's retrogression (i.e., April to September 1958). The readers will note with interest the developments in several countries: for example, the overthrow of Kingship in Iraq and troubles in Lebanon, Jordan, Iran and Pakistan. Another important and astonishing prediction of our Editor is about Pakistan. You said "the Government of the day

Scanned by CamScanner Digitized by eGangotri to Preserve Forgotten Knowledge

(Noon's cabinet) will so lack stability and real roots in the country that it may collapse any day.....The planetary position portends instability and sudden upsurge of political passions, change of Government, assassinations and a chaotic state affairs". As predicted the Noon cabinet was most unstable. It crashed and collapsed completely, the constitution was abrogated, the President was removed and finally military rule came into power. Your forecast regarding Far East and Middle East is also cent per cent correct. In one word 1958 was a year of excitement, as you said.

I conclude this letter with the hope that the so-called great people, who make undignified, offensive and sometimes hideous attacks on this ancient science, would realise at least now that Astrology is not a farce as politics and try to appriciate the truth of this science. May God bless you with a happy and prosperous future.

Chilakalampadu, V.S. MURTHY

Sir,—Though I am very much distressed to know the latest developments in Pakistan recently in President Iskandar Mirza being pushed out of office, besides the already abrogated constitution, I am glad to note that your prediction in 1958 Annual Number (Pp. 230) of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, that "the Government of the day will so lack stability and real roots in the country that it may collapse any day" has been borne out so correctly. Please accept my hearty congratulations. It is hoped that some of the Indian leaders will be more realistic towards astrology in future.

Best wishes to you, Sir, and to THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

Kanpur. S. SUNDARAM.

Sir,–The year 1958 has come almost to an end and the predictions for this year made by you have come wonderfully correct. I intended to congratulate you earlier but somehow or other I could not and meanwhile many more "fulfilments" have come to light.

The predictions on various matters, internal as well as international, have come true contrary to our expectations. The happenings were so unexpected that one was left gaping. Railway accident in India (p. 9 THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE); exceptionally stringent economical conditions in India (page 10 A. M.); significant changes in the Indian Cabinet; eclipse leading to adverse effects on the health of President Eisenhower (page 479 A. M. April 1958); Sheikh Abdulla's activities leading to outbreak of violence and even assasinations (page 10 A. M. 1958); a reshuffle in British Cabinet (page 232 A. M. 1958) are some of the successful predictions. Crowning all these is one regarding the Pope (page 232) and that pertaining to coup d'etat in Thailand (page 232). Regarding Pakistan your observations on page 230 of the A. M. 1958 are significant. As you have said, "The Government of the day will so lack stability and real roots in the country that it may collapse any day.....All these portend instability, financial, ...sudden upsurge of political passions.....and a chaotic state of affairs"; and again in April 1958 issue (on page 479) you observed: "As the eclipse falls in the Janma Lagna of Pakistan, Mr. Noon's Government is bound to fall". One could not have imagined these happenings—particularly that of "sudden upsurge of political passions" when these words were penned by you.

I need not go on multiplying the instances which are sufficient to show the validity of this science besides opening the eyes of those who discard astrology as mere superstition.

May I suggest, in the end, that it is high time that a sister magazine to THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE in Hindi is started by you for the benefit of those who do not know English in northern India. Many magazines in Hindi have been started recently but they have failed miserably because of lack of quality and standard of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. Hope this suggestion will be favourably considered. Thanking you,

Jammu. ASHWINI KUMAR SHARMA.

"Setting Things Straight"

Sir,—With reference to the "Open Letter" to myself appearing in December 1958 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE I shall be thankful if you will publish the following reply.

Mr. Allen states: "Being primarily a statistician I was rather disappointed that you tended to represent my work as random case argumentation" I am sorry if Mr. Allen was hurt and felt slighted. But, if he refers to his articles in the American Astrology, he will find that in some two or three instances (I am quoting from memory as I have not the original journals by me) as for instane in earthquake or flood studies, he had shown about seven to twelve cases and worked out the probabilities, etc., on these number of cases. I had checked those figures at the time of reading those articles and had found them correct for that number of cases. The obvious inference was that Mr. Allen's case rested on that number of cases. If he had published all his findings say in the form of a frequency diagram together with the usual statistical parameters like means, S.D., S.E., β etc., and originally not drawn inferences from a few cases alone, no misunderstandings could have arisen.

He considers that his value of the Ayanamsa gives statistically significant results in Dasas and Bhukties of the Vimshottri Dasas, and no other values give as satisfactory results. In the absence of data, I am unable to comment on this statement, except in general terms. What would Mr. Allen consider a "satisfactory result?" In case of death, for instance, would he say that only the Bhukties of the malefics should operate; and would he consider the Bhukti of say Jupiter as unsatisfactory? I do not know but I presume that is how he would reason, preoccupied as both he and Mr. Fagan are with the intrinsic natures of the planets alone. This would be wrong in Indian astrology as it lays down certain rules as to when an apparent benefic acts as a malefic in a given horoscope and vice versa. I have found these rules very trustworthy and if Mr. Allen has not taken account of this factor, his results may not have much value.

I fully agree with Mr. Allen when he states that mundane aspects are of more value than the zodiacal ones, and it was for that very reason that my charts were drawn for mundane positions. I think that not the least of the manifold services rendered by Mr. Fagan to modern astrology is his revival of the mundane aspects. As they are troublesome to calculate, I have prepared a graph by which the mundoscope can be prepared without any calculation. I hope to publish it at some future time.

Now I come to my main argument which in the words of Mr. Allen is "talk or protestations about the places along the same world-girdling planetary lines not suffering identical events". Mr. Allen's arguments may be summarised: (1) any one who talks of questions like that is either silly, unscientific, or unintelligent, or I presume all three together, (2) he has stated his reasons several times in the past, but as I have not these reasons by me, I cannot comment on them, (3) that events along the track, occur when the conditions for them are favourable, but not otherwise. In putting forward my point of view, any "scientific" or statistical dissertation would be of very little value to the lay person, so I would like him to pay rather close attention to the following. Mr. Allen has given several examples in his letter, most of which are coincidences of the ingress Mars or Saturn with the Ingress or quotidian angles. But as the ingress chart is its own quotidian, we can generalise the examples by the statement that ingress malefics generally contact the quotidian angles at the time of disasters. In order to fix our ideas, let us take the case of Mars alone and in order to simplify further, we can concentrate our attention on the tracks made by Mars only on the M.C. and I.C. (this does not in any manner detract from the generality of the argument). Now let the reader visualize our earth as a perfectly round ball suspended in space. The casualty tracks of Mars M and I will make a complete circle round this ball passing through the north and south poles. But as those tracks have orbs (say 2°) the circle will expand into a band 4° broad, or about 343 miles wide at the equator.* So we have a more or less narrow band encircling the ball and passing through the poles. This band forms as soon as the Sun enters the sidereal sign of Capricorn (or any other sign). But the band does not stay where it forms; immediately it forms it begins a slow westward movement over the surface of the globe (a little less than a degree per day) about the poles which alone remain fixed. It continues on its slow westward crawl until the next year's ingress, when it suddenly collapses to be immediately replaced by a new one which in its turn begins its westward march. If this picture is clear in the mind of the reader, he will at once see that the band like a cloud shadow covers every place of the globe twice every year (really four times if Mars A & D are taken account of) from the North pole to the South, from China to Peru, as the saying goes. Because of its orbs, its shadow as it were, remains on any given place for a period of four or five days each time from the time it first contacts the place. In its tour during the year, the incendiary fingers of Mars pass over thousands of miles of rail tracks, tens of thousands of tons of ammunition and explosives stored in the open or in underground cellars, over active and passive volcanoes. They point to hundreds of oil wells, thousands of gasoline tanks, hundreds of thousands of inflammable wooden houses, millions of acres of forest lands, and—all right, Mr. Allen—over a myriad bottles of orange juice. But these fell fingers only point, they do not clutch everything (else the whole world would be destroyed in a year). They only clutch at a railway train here and there, an isolated ammunition dump, a few gasoline tanks, a few thousand feet of celluloid tape, a few wooden houses and forests. Now, I who am silly and unintelligent, humbly ask Mr. Allen, what is the cause of this selective clutching? His reply is that conditions were favourable then. If this is not begging the question, what is? I am precisely asking when and what conditions are favourable, he sweetly replies when they are favourable! Even the lay reader will now appreciate that for predictive purposes the probabilities obtained by Mr. Allen are to use his own picturesque phrase "pure tommyrot". For how many accidents, fire, etc., occur every year? I have no statistics, but shall we hazard a guess, and say 50 a day or say 20,000 every year? These are the favourable cases and the unfavourable ones? They run into millions. Now one way to define probabilities is to consider the ratio of favourable cases to the total number of cases of all kinds. The fraction in this case is so minute that it is worthless for prediction purposes. What has happened is that the probabilities for our purposes are compound events, which in the end is the product of the probabilities of the simple events of which it is composed. Mr. Allen has taken one component of this compound event, and neglected to take account of the compound events as a whole, quite a common failing with statisticians. I have no wish to discredit Mr. Allen's idea, it is certainly a remarkable and splendid achievement judged by any standards we care to name. But I do maintain that unless Mr. Allen or another can satisfactorily answer the fundamental objection raised, his achievement will only be of use in "hindsights"—a popular pastime no boubt—and will be of very little use for prediction purposes for which I suppose it was primarily designed.

Scanned by Gurudeva Institute of Vedic Sciences. Preserving Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

Bombay. K. M. KHAREGAT.

*In order to anticipate the objections of meticulous Mr. Fagan, let me state that I am aware that this cannot be a "band". Mathematically, there are two great circles intersecting at the poles with an included spherical angle of 4°. That is to say, instead of a complete band there are two lines which are diametrically opposite to each other, with their apices touching. However as I was not writing for the mathematician but for the layman for whom a band would be easier to visualise, I have made use of the "band", the argument here is no way substantially affected by this.

Lines of Marriage

Sir,—Regarding "Anonymous" of New Delhi's letter to you (in Vol. 47, No. 10, pages 922 and 924) regarding a marital quandrangle, I would like to suggest that palmistry would answer the question of whether they will straighten this matter out, better than astrology. I believe that in India there are many people who can read one's character and life from one's hands. A good text-book on the subject (although it may now be out of print) is Cheiro's Language of the Hand.

I also wish to comment that in palmistry, "marriage lines" do not necessarily mean a religious or civil marriage ceremony. I have seen Roman Catholic priests, nuns, with marriage lines on their hands. A marriage line does indicate hower, close partnership with one of the opposite sex. If the line is forked, it means separation; if it bends down towards the thumb, one's mate will die first; if up toward the fingers, that one will outlive one's mate: if it separates, then joins (forming what is called an "island") it indicates separation and then re-marriage. Marriage lines are at the base of the little finger, above the heart line, and are read according to time of life from the heart line to the base of the little finger. Marriage is also shown in the heart, sometimes the fate and life lines.

At least, so say those who are better qualified to read palms than I. It is interesting to note that these lines are in our palms from birth and change little during our life-times. This may be of interest to those who believe in Karma and reincarnation.

Williamsport, U.S.A. EDWARD W. WOODS.

Mars and Widowhood

Sir,—In July 1958 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE an article under the above caption was published and Sri Shambhunath Banerjee in his article says, "Wisdom and experience show however that no aspect of any other planet can resist Martian evil".

Undoubtedly Mars has very destructive influence on the marriage life due to his adverse position in the nativity. But it is a very clear fact that Mars in the 2nd, 4th, 7th, 8th and 12th houses is not always bad. It must be noted that Mars may be the lord of the 7th house and his position in the 7th house is not inauspicious according to astrological theories.

For example say Thula is Lagna, Aries becomes the 7th house. Hence

Mars is in the 7th house and happening to be his own sign Aries. Now assume what will be the influence of Mars on the marriage life of a partner. Mars in the 7th house is not very evil for marriage, because his inauspicious and destructive influence are immensely neutralized, for he is in his own sign. But Mars is a malefic planet. In marriage life, the native will be confronted with quarrels and separation. But death of partner is not indicated by the position of Mars in the 7th house, because authoritative astrological books accept that a planet posited in his own sign is auspicious and promotes benefic results of the house.

Now we shall discuss another position of Mars in the horoscope of a native born in Thula Lagna. Mars is in Makara and aspects the 7th house. Now, what will be the results? The result is that the native will be married to a woman born in a higher society. She will have martian characteristics. She will show proud behaviour. But they will enjoy a very happy conjugal life with some slight troubles.

Therefore, position of Mars is to be considered in the light of his disposition and the sign occupied. Many articles concerning destructive influence of Mars on married life have appeared in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. Therefore a detailed discussion is unnecessary. But for critical research a quotation is adapted herein from Brihajotisara.

"Lagna chathurthach bayasthana noga
Rahu sanirbhapi yodi sthita sayat
Tada kujo naibo koroti doshong bibahakala probadanti Garga."

The above means: "Garga says that if Rahu and Saturn occupy Lagna 4th, 7th, 12th and 8th houses then Kuja dosha will be ineffective at the marriage time".

Chandernagore P.O. SRIMATI BIJOLI DAS.

Seventh House

Sir,—With reference to Sri V. K. Balakrishnan's letter under the above caption published in December 1958 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE I wish to point out that the following astrological causes had led to the loss of his two wives:—

(1) Lord of 2nd and 7th Mars being posited in 6th in Rasi and combined with Kethu in Simha Navamsa.

(2) Kalatrakaraka Venus being posited in between two malefics, viz., Sun and Saturn.

(3) Lord of the house occupied by the Kalatrakaraka Venus, viz., Mars being posited in 6th house.

(4) Malefics occupying 2nd, 4th and 8th house from Kalatrakaraka Venus, viz., Sun in 2nd house, Kethu in 4th house and Gulika 8th house.

(5) Lord of the Amsa occupied by Mars 7th lord, Sun has the aspect of Gulika which is another combination for many wives.

Jatakaganithasagara details the above combination for many wives.

Bhopal. K. S. GOPALAN.

An Elusive Horoscope

Sir,—The birth-data of a boy supplied by Sri N. Sundaresaiyer of Trichinopoly, (October issue, page 922) and the one examined by Sri Lankendra of Colombo (August issue, page 768), comparatively studied indicate that the Madras boy has the better chart due to the Moon-Mercury combination (9-1 houses) despite the fact that the distance apart of the trine is 7°. Although Mercury-Saturn are considered good for Libra, Saturn is looptha and Agnikara, the latter circumstances arising out of a Sunday birth. If Mercury had not formed a combination with Moon yoga power would have been absent.

In respect of Rahu in Sagittarius though the sign is not helpful, the house is good in respect of longevity. Being a Sunday birth it gives the Rajyakruthyat-Sampadaka power and therefore of Raja Yoga character, being wicked only for elder brother or sister, if the subject is not the first-born. Rahu in Kanya from 24th September 1958 should be better as Rahu-Guru in Thula rasi-lagna depresses the luck and virility of the subject as well as that of his father. Without Rahu, Sun-Jupiter checks malice till 28th December 1958.

Mars-Jupiter aspect is a major defect as it accentuates the Law: Kujo nihanthi jeevadhyakh and in Jupiter's Mars a shipping accident or explosion is possible. But Jupiter being between Moon and Mercury, life is protected and the subject will come out of hospital with compensation added. Mars is peeditha and indicates injury and surgical operation.

The Karma-Jeeva goes to Venus and Mercury. As the latter has gained strength he is likely to learn well and become an Accountant in a Shipping firm. Provided he steers clear of women and is lucky in the choice of a life-partner Jupiter will give comforts. He will become a good writer, artist and poet and a reciter of religious verses in honour of the gods.

Colombo-4. CYRUS D. F. ABAYAKOON.

THE WEB OF DESTINY

(Continued from page 232)

What is War?

If every nation on this earth grasps the true meaning of Esoteric Astrology, it will easily understand the Divine meaning of War. War is really described as a combat against temptations of human life. It should be a fight against all the hells on this earth to overcome them. The hells (evils) on this earth desire to destroy heaven (good things of nature) not by means of a hostile invasion, as on earth, but by destruction of truth and God and these are esoterically called "combats and wars". Nature wants us to carry out this kind of war and combat against falsity and revive truth, but instead we human beings wage war and kill each other, and thus survive by perpetuating Satanic deeds and when visitations of nature, (which are only the reactions of evil thoughts and selfish actions of ourselves) like pestilence, fires, earthquakes, floods, famine, etc., descend on us, we say God is angry on us and a toll of innocent lives is unnecessarily taken by Him. What a perversity of Truth!

Our ancient Rishis and Munis have also written books on Esoteric Astrology, but they being in Sanskrit and others in Tamil or Telugu languages we cannot derive much benefit from them. Recently however through the most laborious efforts of the late Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao, many important Sanskrit astrological books have been translated into English. With his able and most lucid commentaries one can clearly grasp the rich lore contained in ancient books. Prof. B. V. Raman is following in the footsteps of his grandfather and is rendering unique service to propagate this ancient science of astrology in the right perspective.

Digitized by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Project. Preserved by Dr. V. Ramans Work

BY DR. R. NAGARAJA SARMA, M.A., Ph.D., D.LITT.

1. TALES FROM KALIDASA—By Suna K. Surveyor—(Jaico Publishing House. 125, Mahatma Gandhi Road, Bombay-1. Pp. 240. Price Rs. 2 net).

The authoress of the book has been introduced by the publishers, as a talented lady of varied literary and artistic interests, who had done confidential work for the I.A.F. and R.A.F. during the War. The authoress has written Tales from Kalidasa, the immortal poet and dramatist of India whose art is appreciated and admired throughout the world.

The tales here narrated are those of Sakuntala, Vikrama and Urvasi, Raghuvamsa, (the royal clan of the Raghus) and Meghadoota or cloud messenger. The personalities dealt with by Kalidasa include virtuous and vicious, divine and devilish, human and divine, masculine and feminine.

As in Greek Mythology, in these Indian tales, sometimes, men and gods become involved in love affairs with one another, for the nonce, man forgetting his humanity and god, divinity. Those acquainted with the original Sanskrit texts of Kalidasa may not feel any need for much story telling, as anyday, renderings are bound to be comparatively less effective than the original. But, Srimathi Suna has done her work of narration so well that those who can study and enjoy the originals and those who cannot would feel attracted by her performance, in which she has successfully recaptured and reproduced the charm and thrill of the originals of immortal Kalidasa.

2. KRISHNAMURTHY—THE MAN IN REVOLT—By Andre Nael—(Chetena, Rampart Row, Bombay. Pp. 110. Price Rs. 3.50 or sh. 7 or Dollar 1-75).

This striking work on the philosophy of Krishnamurthy has been translated into English from the original French by the author. (i.e. of the translation).

As the title of the book powerfully suggests, Krishnamurthy has been described to be a man of Revolt. There is also a discussion about the relation between the philosophies of Krishnamurthy and of Marx.

Whether one likes it or not, mankind has been in Revolt ever since Paradise was lost, and there is no knowing when Paradise would be regained though on paper Milton demonstrated Paradise regained. There is frequent reference to inner freedom. What it is exactly, has not been made clear. Gandhi wanted freedom even to commit errors. No wonder there was police firing in old days. There it is rearing its charming head even now.

When there are scores of systems of philosophy, oriental and occidental, few will feel any need for a philosophic nouvelle, like the revolutionary-ISM of Krishnamurthy. Nevertheless, the author is to be congratulated on a brilliant accoun of Krishnamurthy, the revolutionary thinker. Be it noted that Krishnamurthy is not a follower of any traditional system of philosophy.

Scanned by www.saptarishis.org Preserve Old Books

3. MIND AND ITS MYSTERIES—By Swamy Sivananda—(Divine life Society, Rishikesh. Pp. 535. Rs 6).

Quite fittingly and appropriately dedicated to Maharshi Patanjali, the author of the Yoga-Sutras, the revised and enlarged fifth edition, in which parts I and II are combined, of Swami Sivananda's "Mind-Its Mysteries and Control", had been published on the holy and sacred "Guru-Purnima" day and Swami Venkatesananda has explained that the publication of the massive volume running to over 500 pages of astonishingly analysed abstruse matter of metaphysics presented in popular, plain, and precise terminology, is due to the donation given by a lady Medical Practitioner, who remains, to mark her intense humility and genuine self-effacement perhaps, anonymous. Her very anonymity will ensure her universal popularity.

In Western or Occidental Psychology, British, European and American, nothing has so far been discovered and identified, corresponding to the Manas of Indian Psychology and Vedanta. The Manas has been identified to be the inner-sense, (antah karana) and has been differentiated into four functional units—Manas, Buddhi, Ahankara and Chitta—of which there is not even the slightest trace in Western Psychology. Swami Sivananda has carefully pointed out the differences amongst these and fully brought out the significance of Manas or the Mind.

In the West, they just talk of organism, behaviour, consciousness or personality and nothing about the mind understood as inner-sense. Swami Sivananda has laid under contribution practically everything of importance or significance contained in the Yoga-Sutras of Patanjali and explained that an individual comes into contact with the world both objective and subjective only through the mind.

Characteristic of mental-energy is flowing externally outwardly to the countless objects of the Universe. Essence of Yogic methodology consists in crying halt to the outward-flowing mental energy and directing it inwardly and focussing it on the self. (quite distinct and different from the mind).

If and when such a methodical and methodological control has been achieved over the direction or flow of mental energy, the aspirant or sadhaka will find himself or herself in a new world with new environment. I should like to invite special attention of your readers to the section entitled "How to Control the Mind", (Pp 364—417) which contains practical hints.

If Indians to-day instead of writing frantic appeals to America to stop using of the Atomic weapons unilaterally, learnt to control their minds, they would be behaving sensibly and true to their traditions, atleast.

Swami Sivananda as the only institutional Head to-day who is disseminating correct knowledge about theory and practice of Yoga should be gratefully complimented by all. The error on Pp. 412 (Sanskrit text) is glaring.

4. ASPECTS OF INDIAN MUSIC—(Publications Division, Minstry of Information and Broadcasting, Govt. of India, Delhi-8. Pp. 76, Price R.O. 75 nP.)

It should be common knowledge that commencing from 1955, All-India Radio has been conducting a Music Symposium, at the Annual Sangeeta-Sammelan. The subject for 1955–Symposium was "The Importance of Voice Culture". In 1956, the Symposium turned on "Aspects of Emotional appeal in Indian Music". In this booklet, some of the papers read at the two Symposia, and some specially contributed articles have been assembled together so that the contents may reach a wider public.

There are twelve articles that have been brought together in the present publication. The articles are by specialists and are therefore authoritative.

Where all the contributions have been written by experts and professional artists in the line, it may seem invidious to single out this or that for purposes of praise or blame. I would rather suggest there should be a Symposium on How To Make Radio-Music Live and Dynamic?

I rarely listen to radio-music, but, whenever I do, it has been my misfortune to have my tympanic membrane assailed by Jhallak–Jhallak–Jhallak, or, by Muruga...et hoc genus omne. Radio can justify itself only if and when it is able to give listeners new pieces of classic compositions.

5. MUNSHI—HIS ART AND WORK—(Bharateeya Vidya Bhavan—Bombay-7. Vol. 1, Pp. 257. Price Rs. 2.)

Planned and projected into four volumes, the series seeks to describe and portray the "amazing" career of Sri K. M. Munshi, and this venture has been undertaken by the Citizens' Celebration Committee constituted in connection with his 70th birthday.

The first volume deals with (a) Early Life, (b) As a Lawyer, and (c) Munshi in Life and Literature. Part-I is written by Dr. A.K. Mazumdar, Part II, by Justice J.M. Shelat, and Part-III by N.C. Mehta.

A reviewer has no right to comment on the private and personal affairs of the hero of this publication. So, I say nothing about the Munshi–Lilavathi romance. But, it is downright blasphemy and irreverence that Mr. Munshi should compare himself with Lord Siva, his wife with Parvati, and his dream-girl in flesh and blood with Ganga. (P. 91). The stanza quoted on p-95 has a bad typographical error.

The Lakshmikantam-murder case is mentioned as cause celebre of the century, in which Mr. Munshi appeared for the defence in the Madras High Court. On p-218, Mr. Narayana Iyengar is mentioned as having engaged Mr. Munshi. But, on p-227, Mr. Narayana Iyer is mentioned. Admirers of Mr. Munshi will find the volume quite engaging and will be looking forward with interest to the advent of future volumes vouchsafed.

6. LETTERS TO SIRDAR VALLABHBHAI PATEL—By M. K. Gandhi.—(Pp. 250. Price Rs. 2.50).

7. DRINK, DRUGS AND GAMBLING—By M. K. Gandhi.—(Pp. 152. Price Rs. 2).

8. THE STORY OF BARDOLI—By Mahadeva Desai.–(Pp. 252. Price Rs. 3).

9. SEARCH FOR PURPOSE—By Arthur E. Morgan.–(Pp. 168. Price Rs. 3).

10. PEACEFUL INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS–THEIR SCIENCE AND TECHNIQUE—By R. J. Soman.—(Pp. 320. Price Rs. 4).

(All published by Navajivan Publishing House, Ahmedabad).

Letters written by Mahatma Gandhi to Sardar Patel and carefully preserved by Manibehn Patel were originally in Gujarathi. These letters have been translated into English and edited by Valji Govindji Desai and Sudarshan V. Desai for the benefit of a wider public. These letters cover the period 8th July 1921 to 29th December 1947. These letters undoubtedly demonstrate the utmost intimacy that existed between the Sirdar and the Mahatma, and they are bound to have historical, political, and even literary significance. These letters throw light on the confidence Gandhi had in the Sirdar. Ideas, plans and projects, were formulated by the Mahatma, and practical and concrete execution of these was left to the Sirdar. Some of the letters show that the Mahatma, was very stern and even severe with the Sirdar when the situation demanded it. Gandhian memories are revived by the publication of this correspondence.

Mahatma Gandhi's views about drink, drugs and gambling are too well-known to be repeated and in this volume they are elaborated. Bharatan Kumarappa has contributed Editor's note. It should be within public memory that after the advent of freedom these evils have been sought to be removed, wherever possible. But, it is an open secret that all these evils exist in a subterranean manner. Gandhi's views on racing are given. Still, racing is proceeding merrily on and it does not appear that it would ever be stopped at all. It is considered as a sign of civilization to own race horses and put in regular attendance at races. It is pointed out in the Editor's note that Gandhi observed some of his fellow Barristers "rolling in the gutters under the influence of drink", and this sight must have so greatly horrified him that he decided on prohibition-propaganda. Government must preserve Law and Order. It is not clear if in return for the taxes paid, Government should seek to transform subjects into moral paragons. It must be plain to what extent Bharat is following in the path chalked out by Gandhi.

Bardoli Satyagraha demonstrated to the entire civilized world that when provoked beyond certain limits, even peasants would get ready to defy a powerful government like the British Raj. Not only did the peasants defy the government, but, secured ultimate victory. Government, in the face of incontrovertible and unchallengeable facts had to yield to the vital demands made by the peasants. Mahaveva Desai, who was an intimate and close associate of Gandhi has written this volume which is described as "History of the Bardoli Satyagraha of 1928 and its Sequel". The movement was led to a victorious termination by Mr. Patel who was known as Peasants' Sirdar. Even in the contemporary setting of Free Bharat, contemplation of the planning and projection of Bardoli Satyagraha, and its execution and achievements, is bound to have its own significance. Satyagraha is a very powerful weapon when wielded by persons endowed with courage of conviction, and it is impossible to predict, who would wield it, and under what given circustances. All governments and constituted authorities should be prepared to face soul force opposition. That is the lesson of Bardoli.

Dr. A. E. Morgan was a member of the University Commission headed by Dr. Radhakrishnan. Engineer, educator, author, and first chairman of the Tennessey Valley Association, he has varied interests in life, and he put forth the idea of a rural University for India. This work is something like a spiritual auto-biography of the author, and his view seems to be that life is a great adventure in pursuit of which, every individual must try to do his or her best. Dilettantism, playing with life is just treason. Here is the author's confession of faith. "I do not know what the significance of life is, or that any significance, is predetermined or given, in the philosophic sense. I do not know whether there is any "God's purpose for the world". (P. 154). No student of Hindu systems of philosophy can accept such a view, or such a world-view. There is God's purpose in the evolution of the universe and of human life and spiritual search or quest consits in endeavour to learn the divine purpose and model life and conduct according to Purpose of the Divine Architect of the world.

The volume is Doctorate Thesis of the author. In Free Bharat as in other countries, the relation between Capital and Labour is bound to get more and more complicated with the advance of time. Industrial relations are studied from the standpoint of Gandhian philosophy. To-day, news-

(Continued on page 249)

Your SCIENTIFIC DIFFICULTIES Solved

BY MIHIRA

[In the letters THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE receives from the readers, many interesting questions are put pertaining to astrological and scientific problems. Here are a few recent queries together with answers. If some similar doubts are puzzling you, why not write us about them? This service is free to all readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. Address communications to—MIHIRA, c/o THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE].

Q. 1. (a) Lagna Taurus with ruler Venus in 3rd house aspected by full Moon. Has the horoscope gained strength because the lord of Lagna is in an Upachaya house aspected by full Moon? (b) If three planets are exalted in a Drekkana chart, has it any bearing on the horoscope? (c) Planets well placed in Lagna but debilitated in Navamsa, what will be the effect during their dasa? (d) Jupiter exalted but combust. Do his benefic influences get lost because of combustion? (e) An exceptionally good Dasa and Bhukti but very bad Gochara like Sadesathi. Which will dominate? (f) Moon in ninth in Capricornus and Sun in 3rd in Cancer. Will these positions raise the native to official eminence? (g) Will full Moon in ninth cause all kinds of happiness to the native? (h) Suppose at birth a person has Saturn in 12th from Moon. Anapha Yoga is caused but at the same time the person is born under sadesati influences. So which will affect the native? When Saturn passes over radical Saturn in Gochara, what will be the effect? Will Sadesathi effects be mixed as Saturn has given rise to a benefical yoga? (i) Of all positions as between lord of Lagna or lord of 7th house which is good or bad? Give the order of preference: Mutual kendra, mutual kona, shashtashta, dwirdwadasa, when both are benefics by nature, when one is a benefic and the other malefic, when they are inmically disposed to each other? (j) Does a grouping of planets in a particular bhava weaken it or strengthen it? (k) Will sadesathi affect persons born under Taurus with Moon in Capricorn?

H.B.R.C. Bombay.

Ans. (a) It is not a feature of strength for the lord of Lagna to be in third house as it is a cadent house, where planets are said to be weakest; so also 6th house but it is also a dusthana. The 3rd house is also known as Upachaya or house of increase. This is one source of strength. But on this account it cannot be said that the horoscope as a whole has gained strength. (b) One of the Shadbalas—Drekkana strength—is present, that is all. No doubt this will add in its own way to the strength of the horoscope. (c) There cannot be any feature of strength greater than exaltation. When planets are exalted in Rasi and in debilitation in Navamsa, they give bad results only in Dasa according to almost all authorities. (d) When a planet is in combustion its effects are similar to that of a planet in depression and in depression a planet has no effect. So a planet in exaltation but in combustion need not share the same fate. (e) The results will be mixed. (f) Data not sufficient to warrant such an inference. (g) Not necessarily. According to Varaha Mihira Moon in the 9th denotes: "the native will possess sons, friends, relations and wealth". (h) Anapha Yoga endures for whole life and is a yoga. Sadesati is an influence by transit and its effect lasts only for a limited time. Therefore there is no comparison between the two. If it so happens that a person is born with Saturn in 12th from Moon, both co-exist and both will have to be taken into effect. Anapha Yoga is said to confer well formed organs, majestic appearance, good reputation, polite, generous, self-respect, fond of dress and pleasures; but in later life renunciation and austerity. As a newly born child is not expected to materialise these results, Saturn's quota of the yoga will manifest during his Dasa and Bhukti. Sadesati effects of Saturn will be present till he leaves the second sign from Moon. (i) When all other conditions are same or similar, this may be taken to be the order of beneficence. Mutual trine, mutual kendra; Shastashtaka and dwirdwadasa are not beneficent positions. Of the two, shastashtaka may be taken to be less evil generally. Whether these two planets are benefics or malefics does not alter the position much. (j) The effects depend on the planets in the grouping. Greater activity of matters pertaining to the sign or house where the grouping occurs is to be expected. Whether it is of good sort or bad, depends on whether the planets are benefics or malefics. (k) The effects will certainly manifest but will not be severe.

Q. 2. (a) In answer to question (1) in May 1952 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, it is stated that the Moon is strong and auspicious when he has his full Pakshabala. What does this Pakshabala mean? (b) Ref: Answer to question 5 (a) May 1952 issue and in answer to question 6 (b) of February 1958. In the former you say that it has to be concluded that when Sunapha Yoga is found with Jupiter as the concerned planet, this yoga will be rendered more or less infructuous because of the other yoga that is automatically formed thereby. In the latter answer, you say that there will be a good Sunapha Yoga but योगभंग पदेपदे (destruction of yoga now and then): How to reconcile? (c) How will Anapha, Sunapha and Durdhura operate if there are planets before succeeding Moon when Moon herself is in conjunction with Sun and Mercury? (d) How many stars are there—27 or 28? What is Abhijit? (e) It is stated that planets in 2nd and 12th are friendly. Why then should dwirdwadasa positions of planets be condemned? (f) Is there an English translation of Bhrigu Samhita and where can it be got from? (g) Is it bad for Venus to occupy 11th house? (h) Will Sun in eleventh be an antidote to Balarishta just as Jupiter in a kendra? (i) For Libra, is Venus in Virgo weak or strong? What will be the effect if that Venus is aspected by Mars (j) How is Nabhi Yoga formed and what are its effects? (k) Is it true that Chandra Lagna should be taken as the centre of reckoning after a certain age? (l) Will exchange of 10th and 11th lords create a yoga? What are its effects and when will it fructify? (m) How to find the special Dhana Lagna in a birth chart? (n) Refer to answer to question 19 (c) of January 1956 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. You have not made the statement as your final opinion. King George VI's Empire was liquidated at the end as he has got Jupiter in 10th. Does this fact substantiate the contention? (o) It is seen that some illustrious horoscopes of millionaries, political and industrial magnates have Kemadruma Yoga without cancellation. How to interpret this? (p) Sankha Yoga is defined differently in 300 Important Combinations and January 1955 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL

Scanned by Gurudev Siddhanta Trust. Contact us to Preserve Old Rare Books

MAGAZINE and verse 65 of Chapter VIII of Jatakadesamargd. Which is correct? (q) If Lord of Lagna and lord of 2nd house interchange, what is it called and what are its results? (r) Are Vasumathi Yoga, Gajakesari Yoga, Malavya Yoga, Adhi Yoga, Chandra Mangala Yoga, Gurumangala Yoga, applicable to Navamsa chart? (s) Will a planet in 6, 8 or 12 in his debilitation sign produce good results in his dasa period if there is neechabhanga? (t) Exchange of signs between Moon and Mars (Moon in Scorpio and Mars in Cancer) produces Ubhaya Neecha Parivarthana. For other planets, this is not possible. But they will aspect each other which is not the case for Mars and Moon. It is also evident that the effects of the exchange depend upon the rulership of bhavas. Can benefic results be predicted in the case of the above example of exchange between Moon and Mars? —V. V., Hyderabad.

Ans. (a) Your quotation is wrong. (b) If you want to strain the meaning of plain statements out of their contexts and make distinctions without differences, nobody can help you. The questions are different and the answers are necessarily slightly varied to suit the form of question. The answers are substantially the same if you would only read them aright. (c) The presence of Sun and Mercury with Moon in the same sign does not alter the yogas mentioned. Only in the case of Kemadruma, the effect is to cancel the evil of the yoga according to some. (d) The last 15 ghatikas of Uttarashadha and first 4 ghatis and 4 vighatis or Sravana, total 19 ghatis 4 vighatis constituting Abhijit star is the 22nd star when the total number of stars is 28, which is taken to be the case for some purposes. Ordinarily it is only 27. The presiding deity of Abhijit is Brahma and the name for the star is α Aquilae. (e) Planets in 2nd and 12th are stated to be friendly only for specific purposes, i.e., to assess whether two planets are very friendly, or friendly, or neutral towards each other. Even this is questioned by some astrologers. Planets so situated are to be considered as inimical to each other when one is the major lord and the other sub-lord in assessing the effects of dasa bhukti. (f) No English translation of Bhrigusamhita has been made. What is available for sale is not the genuine work. (g) It is not bad for any planet to occupy 11th house. (h) This is not mentioned as an antidote to Balarishta. (i) A planet is weak if it is debilitated. This weakness does not depend upon what Lagna rises at birth. (j) If Jupiter occupies eleventh from Lagna and Lord of the sign occupied by Jupiter occupies eleventh from Jupiter along with the Full Moon, the yoga is known as Nabhi Yoga. The effects are that after completing 30 years he will get 15,000 sovereigns and will live happily. (k) This is the view of some but not generally accepted. (m) The seven planets are given the following root numbers: Sun 30, Moon 16, Mars 6, Mercury 8, Jupiter 10, Venus 12, Saturn 1. Take the lords of 9th from Lagna and Moon. Add the root numbers of these planets. Divide the total by 12. The remainder counted from Chandra Lagna (the place of the radical Moon) goes under the name of special Dhana Lagna. (n) In the query referred to, the explanation from a statement made by Janma Bhoomi Astrological Section was asked for. A plausible explanation was attempted by us. That is all. (o) If astrology is true, there must be some reason and no satisfactory answer to this question can be made in the absence of such horoscopes. (p) There are three defininitions of Sankha Yoga. The definition given in 300 Important Combinations by B.V. Raman is in accordance with the definition given in Jataka Parijata, 1st part of verse 138, Chapter VII. The second part of the same verse says that the same yoga is said to exist when the lord of Lagna as well as the lord of the 10th bhava occupy a movable sign and the lord of 9th bhava is strong. The definition given in Jatakadesamarga is different from either of the above. It is defined as arising when all the planets are posited in Kendra and Kona houses and if any out of them occupies his exaltation sign. (q) It is called Ayatna Dhana Labha Yoga and the native is said to make money without much effort. (r) There is no direct authority. But it is to be inferred from the rule, that Navamsa Rasi is to be judged in the same way as a Rasi chart, that they are applicable. (s) It cannot produce unmixed good results. (t) As you say it depends on their rulership of houses, whether they produce good or bad results.

Q. 3. (a) Is exchange of planets present between one planet in one sign and the ruler of that sign in the exaltation sign of the other planet? (b) On page 782 of November 1953 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, you state that 'if Saturn be in 6th or 8th counted from Venus, it causes impotence'. What will be the case if Saturn is exalted, or in his own house aspected by natural benefics? (c) Why are the signs in 7th house always ruled by an inimical planet of the lord of Lagna? (d) Full Moon is said to be strong. What will be the result if Moon occupies Scorpio. (e) It is stated that lords of 3, 6 and 11 are melefics as lords of 6, 8 and 12. What set is more malefic? (f) Does Kuja Dosha apply to Rasi Chakra or Bhava Chakra? (g) Will the presence of Moon in one of the Kendras from Lagna cancel Kemadruma Yoga? (h) A Tamil work says that if Saturn occupies 2nd house, the native will be a scholar. Can the statement be taken as correct?

V.V., Hyderabad.

Ans. (a) No. (b) The degree of impotency will be less and may come later on in life. (c) Because the arrangement of the zodiac is like that. Your statement is not correct as Moon has no enemies and Venus and Mars are not always enemies. (b) It will be much less strong. (c) Stanza 6 of Jataka Chandrika says that evil planets become more and more powerful as they own 3, 6 and 11 houses respectively. Stanza 7 says that lords of 2nd and 12th houses give good or bad results according as they are in conjunction with lords of other houses and the nature of the houses they occupy. Stanza 8 says that lord of 8th house produces evil but if he chances to be lord of 1st or combines with a benefic, he becomes good. Therefore it is seen that the order of maleficence given here is somewhat different from the commonly accepted notions. (f) Kujadosha is to be judged only from Bhava Chakra. (g) No, the exception arises only when Kendra from Lagna is occupied by a plannet or Moon is associated with a planet. (h) Yes, as this position is present in the horoscopes of a number of scholars.

Q. 4. (a) Will the presence of planets in Kendras from Lagna or Moon in Bhava Kundali cancel Kemadruma Yoga? (b) Why should the word 'house' be used in the texts sometimes as synonymous with sign or bhava. (c) The transit of Saturn over Janma Nakshatra is considered a critical period. What will be the effect if Saturn rules Lagna and the star is Anuradha? (d) Vide answer to question 11, April 1956 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. Suppose a person is destined to go to jail by a combination of planets in his horoscope. What is the good of knowing that unhappy incident before hand? Can this be averted by any method? (e) In Standard texts on Astrology, the houses 3, 6, 10 and 11 are described as Upachayas. It is also stated that if Yogakaraka planets occupy evil houses like 6,8 and 12, the yoga loses vitality. It is also stated that planets occupying Kendras and Konas produce good results. But these are Anupachaya houses. How are these doctorines to be reconciled. (f) Sakata Yoga arises if Moon occupies 6, 8 or 12 from Jupiter. But if Jupiter is in 6th or 8th from Moon Adhi Yoga is said to be caused. Vide B. V. Raman's remarks that if there is one benefic in full strength in any one of the signs, a person becomes a leader. (g) If Rajayoga planets occupy 3rd, 6th, 8th, 11th and 12th houses, how will the results vary in each case? (h) Is the aspect of a malefic upon his own sign evil? (i) Is combustion cancelled if a planet is both combust and retrograde? (j) Kahala Yoga as mentioned by B. S. Rao in Satayoga Manjari is different from that given in page 727 of October 1954 issue of THE ASTRGLOGICAL MAGAZINE. Please reconcile. —V. V., Hyderabad.

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

Ans. (a) Vide answer to (g) of question 3 supra. (b) The context would always make it clear as to what is really meant. (c) The effect will be much less malefic in such a case. (d) The whole matter is fully explained in the answer referred to. Please read it well again and then judge whether such a foreknowledge of a coming incarceration will be useful or not. (e) and (f) Only 6th house is both Upachaya and Dusthana. Therefore 6th house will be better than other Dusthanas and worse than other Upachayas. Adhi Yoga is not caused by Jupiter alone and it will be at its best only when it occupies 7th. The observations of B. V. Raman are confined to the beneficial aspect of the Yoga. He does not say which sign is to be occupied by Jupiter. If Jupiter occupies 6th or 8th from Moon he may become a leader but may also suffer from the effects of Sakata Yoga. Signs are divided into Upachaya and Anupachaya houses and also as Kendras, Konas, etc. Among Anupachaya houses, Kendras and Konas are the best and these have peculiar efficacy and will rise above the limitations of their being classed as Anupachaya houses. (g) It will be best in 11th, and worst in 6th, 8th and 12th; in 3rd and 6th, effects will be medium. (h) It will not be so bad as otherwise. (i) No. (j) There are two definitions for the yoga as in the case of Sankha Yoga, that is all.

Q. 5. (a) In Panchamaha Purusha Yogas, is it necessary that the planets should be alone in their respective signs or other planets may also be in conjunction? (b) Question 2, page 129, January 1955 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. Rahu and Kethu are not taken into account in Malika Yoga. Question 30, page 138:

(Continued on next page)

BOOK REVIEWS

(Continued from page 246)

appears are full of events connected with Dock-workers' strike, and both Capital and Labour are uneasy over such strikes. Part I deals with the science of peaceful industrial relationship. Part II is devoted to description of the technique. It contains a historical account of the Ahmedabad Labour Association. Whether the money intoxicated capitalists and industrialists would ever agree to treat labourers as co-partners of industry must for ever remain an unsettled problem of modern civilization. Still, both Capital and Labour are bound to welcome perpetuation of good-will and peaceful relationship as between them. And yet, profits are the rock on which peaceful Industrial relationship would be sooner or later shipwrecked. The book is well-written and thoroughly documented.

HINDI

7. KUNDALI-SANGRAHA—By Suryanarayana Vyas—(Madhavanagar Ujjain. Pp. 166. Price Re. 1-2-0)

In this volume, Sri Suryanarayana Vyas has brought together 166 horoscopes of distinguished personalities and celebrities that had figured from time to time on the theatre of the World, played their part, and vanished from view.

The author and editor has explained in "preface", (aavasyaka...lit-necessary to note) the nature and circumstances that led to the publication of this work for the benefit of the public. Thus, 166 charts have been assembled in the work and their peculiar configurations are noted. The charts are first indicated in their numerical order as found on the pages, and, the place, year, month, date, and time of birth are also given for practically all horoscopes.

Lords Vinayaka, Rama, Krishna, Ravana, Hanuman, Sivaji, Aurangazeb, Rani Lakshmibai of Jhansi, Gandhi, Stalin, several ruling personalities of pre-Indpendent India and foreign lands find a place in the volume. The volume will be useful as an important source of reference, and those interested in statistical study of different planetary groupings would welcome the publication which does great credit to patient work of the author and editor.

FRENCH

1. GEMEAUX—(Pp. 128. Price 246 fr.)
2. CANCER—(Pp. 128. Price 246 fr.)
3. VIERGE—(Pp. 128. Price 246 fr.)

All by Andre Barbault, ("Le zodiaque" Aux Editions Du Suil, Georges Lang, Paris.)

These highly interesting volumes by Andre Barbault deal with symbolism, features and characteristics of birth under different zodiacal signs, and in the book on Gemeaux, (Period —21 May—21 June) of which is Mercury, the outstanding qualities of those born under the influence of this planet are described.

Radio, Telephone, Journalism, and others are mentioned as likely professions of those born under this Ascendant. Mercury being connected with characteristic developments pertaining to the period of adoloscence, the effects in men and in women are sure to be correspondingly different. Arthur Conan Doyle, Gerard Philipxe, Jean-Paul Sartre, Madame de Sevigne, and others are mentioned as illustrations of birth under this ascendant.

The volume on Cancer contains important details about the physical and mental characteristics of persons born under Cancer, (22 Juin—22 Juillet) a significant watery sign rulership of which has been assigned to the Moon. A certain amount of passivity and sense of dependence seems to be associated with Cancer-births, but, on occasions, Cancerians can most provocatively and annoyingly assert their independence. Memory, Imagination, and Intuition would appear to be some of the striking features of Cancer-births. George Lord Biron, Lola Montes, Montaigne, Jean-Jacques Rousseau, and others have been listed as some of Cancerian births. It should, perhaps, be observed, that Cancerians, will rise to giddy heights of romance, particularly, if Venus happens to be afflicted in any manner, either in reference to location or aspectarian.

3. The Volume on Vierge, (23 Aout—22 September) contains a study of the type born under this ascendant, and even though Mercury, happens to be ruler of this along with Gemeaux, still, differences are to be found, in the physical and intellectual endowments of those born under this sign. Medical service, domestic work, stenography, laboratory research, and others have been mentioned as likely professions. In the matter of finances, though a person born under this sign may be some what close-fisted, and stingy, others will be spendthrifts, particularly, if Sun is not well-placed. Cesar Borgia, Cardinal Bubois, Goethe, Jean-Baptiste Greuqe, Jean-Dominique Ingress, Materlinck, Tolstoi, and others have been mentioned as typical of birth under this ascendant. The author has to be complimented on the charm and systematic thoroughness with which these volumes have been written and prepared.

YOUR SCIENTIFIC DIFFICULTIES SOLVED

(Continued from previous page)

Bhavartha Ratnakara recognises all the nine planets including Rahu and Kethu for Malika Yoga. Please reconcile. (c) Moon and Mars combined produce menses. (Page 130, question 9, January 1955 issue). This happens for only 9 days in the month when Moon is with Mars or Moon is in 4th, 7th and 8th from Mars. Does this mean that women the world over have their menses on these days? (d) Can Saturn in 7th in Taurus cause early widowhood if 7th lord is in debility? Will the above native suffer from unhappy married life? (e) Refer to answer to question 3 of July 1956 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. It is stated that combination of lord of 1st and 9th houses is Rajayoga. It is usually called Lakshmi Yoga. Quote authority for saying Lakshmi Yoga. (f) In Ashtakavarga, Rahu and Kethu are not taken into account. So please enlighten as to whether they are to be ignored in judging a sign as occupied or unoccupied. (g) Is it a fact that the sixth Mahadasa from birth is always bad and harmful to the native? (h) Is it necessary that after marriage, the horoscope of a person's wife also should be studied along with that of his to arrive at correct results.

V.V., Hydarabad.

Ans. (a) The concerned planet may be alone or in conjunction with other planets. If they happen to be malefics, efficacy of the yoga will be reduced to some extent. (b) The matter has been fully explained in the above reference in answer to question 30 (iv) where this question was asked. I wonder what remains for elucidation. (c) Moon parallel Mars should also be taken into consideration, in which case, the menses of women need not be confined to nine days. Moreover statistics of world menses are unavailable for verification. (d) It has been stated in Stri Jataka that if Sani occupies with unfriendly aspect, she becomes a young widow. Even when the sequence is not inevitable, nothing definite can be stated solely from the data furnished. The horoscope should be studied as a whole. (e) In putting this question, it is clear that you have not followed the answer to the other question properly. The answer given there for the question "if lord of Lagna and lord 9th house join in Lagna what is the yoga called". Since this is a combination between lord of a Kendra and Kona, their combination gives rise to Raja Yoga. Lakshmi Yoga also can result. It is obvious that it was intended that other conditions also should be present. B. V. Raman defines Lakshmi Yoga as "If the lord of Lagna is powerful and the lord of 9th occupies own or exaltation sign identical with Kendra or Kona Lakshmi Yoga is caused". Raja Yoga arises even if these additional elements are present or not. If these are also present, then there is a specialised form of Raja Yoga by name Lakshmi Yoga. Question should be put only after due deliberation as it means denial of space to other legitimate qustions. (f) Yes. (g) There is no such rule. On the other hand, the Dasa ruled by the asterism from birth should prove to be beneficial. (h) Not necessary, though the other horoscope may also be considered alongside with advantage.

STUDIES IN JAIMINI ASTROLOGY

Scanned By www.sapatrishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

By B. V. RAMAN

SECOND EDITION

This is the first attempt to present the complicated principles of Jaimini contained in all the four Adhyayas, is a simple, comprehensive and attractive manner, information being gathered from rare and difficult sources. Calculation and interpretation of Dasas suggested by Jaimini, which have hitherto remained obscure have, for the first time, been clearly expounded with suitable illustrations.

CONTENTS

Differences between Jaimini and Parasari; Distinctive Features of Jaimini; Importance of Karakamsa; Jaimini's Abstruseness, Significance and Determination of Karakas; Certain Exceptions; Different kinds of Lagnas; Pranapada and its Significance; Dwara and Bahya Rasis; Gulika; Finding Brahma, Rudra and Maheswara; Aspects and Argalas; Significance of Argalas; Source of Rasi Strength; Numerical Measure of Strength; Kinds of Dasas; Importance of Chara Dasa; Determination of the Order and Duration of Chara, Sthira, Brahma, Shula, Yogardha, Thrikona and Varnada Dasas; Longevity Determination; Increase and Decrease of Terms of life; Main and Sub-periods of Death; Horoscope Judgment, Physical and Mental Characteristics; Financial Prospects; Health and Disease; Education and Marriage; Combinations peculiar to Women; Karakamsa and Profession; Source and Nature of Death; Rajayogas according to Jaimini; Misfortunes and Miscellaneous Yogas; Timing Events by Chara Dasa; Nature of Results in Rasi Dasas; Maraka Periods for Parents, Self, Brothers, etc., according to Nirayana Shula Dasa; Summary.

Illustrated by two example Horoscopes. This is a book that no astrological student could afford to mis as this is the first time an attempt has ever been made to write a text-book exclusively based on Jaimini.

Crown 1/8 Size; Antique Paper; 196 Pages; Type Face—Clear and Bold; Cloth Bound

Price Rs. 6 per copy: Postage, etc., extra

Less 12½% to Subscribers of: THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE-3

Hints FOR AGRICULTURISTS

FOR FEBRUARY 1959

BY MIHIRA

"....FROM these premises, it follows not only that all bodies which may be already confounded, are subjected to the motion of the stars, but also that the impregnation and growth of the seeds from which all bodies proceed are framed and moulded by the quality existing in the ambient at the time of such impregnation and growth. And it is upon this principle that the more observant husband-men and shepherds are accustomed, by drawing their inferences from the particular breezes which may happen at seed time and at the impregnation of their cattle to form predictions as to the quality of the expected produce".

—Ptolemy.

Harvesting.—This can be commenced in Meena Lagna (Pisces ascendant) on a day ruled by Bharani; Vrischika (Scorpio) on a day ruled by Sravana; and Kataka (Cancer) on a day ruled by Visakha. These pairs form special combinations and promote prosperity.

B. V. Raman.

"If Venus sets in the asterism of Revati, crops that were planted late, if he sets in the asterism of Aswini and Bharani, all crops; and if he sets in the asterism of Uttaraphalguna crops planted early will be damaged. If in any month there are showers in asterism of Bharani, thunder in the asterism of Makha and lightning in the asterism of Swati, then there will be good rains".—Science of Rainfall.

WEATHER

Rains probable from 10th February to 20th.

COMMODITIES

General rise during first half but gradual fall in the case of oils and oilseeds. Just the contrary during second half.

BULLION

Gold.—Gradual fall in prices during first half but steady during the second half.

Silver.—Gradual fall in prices during first half but steady during the second half.

DAILY GUIDE

1. Throughout unfavourable for any kind of work or new beginnings. Yogam, lunar day all bad day and night; keep routine work only such as digging, levelling, weeding and fencing, etc.

2. A generally good day. Specially suitable for manuring, ploughing and planting operattons; also good for harvest and storing of grain and for purchase of cattle; any auspicious matter can be begun between 9-30 a.m. and 10-30 a.m.

3. Marana Yogam till midnight; not good for any kind of work except routine.

4. Marana Yogam till midnight; not good for any kind of work except routine.

5. Asterism not favourable for any kind of agricultural beginnings but cattle can be purchased.

6. Yogini towards sky and earth day and night; so not good for ploughing, planting, even manuring; L.D. too not good though asterism is favourable; new beginnings better avoided.

7. Yogini towards earth whole day; so unfitted for ploughing, planting or manuring; but asterism favourable for harvest, dealing in cattle, etc.

8. Marana Yogam till 11 p.m.; L.D. too bad; avoid all important works and new beginnings.

9. An alround good day for ploughing, planting and dealings in cattle and grain.

10. L.D. good but asterism makes the day unsuitable for any purpose except dealings in cattle.

11. L.D. is not generally recommended for any auspicious matters or new beginning; keep to routine.

12. An alround good day for all kinds of agricultural work, ploughing, planting, cattle dealings, digging of wells, putting up water lifts, harvesting, defraying paddy, etc; for best effects, use animal or fish or organic manures.

13. An ordinary day; suited for purchase of grain, planting, dealings in cattle.

14. Early hours not good for anything because of lunar date and Rahu kalam; later asterism evil; so to be avoided for any undertaking throughout.

15. Asterism throughout bad for any kind of work or auspicious matters; keep to routine.

16. Lunar date throughout evil; keep to routine work only.

17. Yogini unsuitable throughout for planting, ploughing and manuring. L.D. bad till 2-30 p.m.; day suitable only for harvesting, dealings in grain, storing grain, dealings in cattle.

18. Day good for ploughing and planting, storing grain, digging wells, etc.; also harvesting.

19. Throughout day marana yogam; unsuitable for any auspicious matters or new beginnings.

20. Good for all purposes in general; till 5 p.m. good for ploughing and planting, also manuring; for best effects, use organic manure; favourable for dealings in cattle.

21. Good for all purposes, beginning of agricultural operations, planting, purchase of cattle, harvesting, manuring; for best effects, use organic manure.

22. Asterism not suited for any important work or new beginning.

23. Yogam bad throughout day; no new beginnings; keep to routine work.

24. Day suitable only for dealings in cattle, because of asterism.

25. Yogam bad only after 5-45 p.m.; till then alround good day for all purposes; epecially suitable for manuring, ploughing and planting;

(Continued on next page)

FOR FEBRUARY 1959

BY MIHIRA

"A CLOSER study of the doctrine of elections as the proper choice of time for specific purposes is called in astrology —would lead men to take a conscious part on the conspiracy of well doing by the adjustment of action to purpose and of both to astral and cosmic conditions. This would be infinitely better than 'taking one's chance' and certainly more in conformity with true religion". —Sepharial.

'Yogini' should be behind and to the left when starting on a journey.

—Varushadi Nool.

N.B.—If Yogini is towards sky or earth, avoid air journeys.

Sunday and Friday. — Dhanishta, Satabhishak, Uttarabhadrapada and Revati, Aswini—good for travel towards north.

Monday and Saturday.—Uttaraphalguna and Hastha good for travel toward south.

Tuesday.–Rohini, Mrigasira, Ardra, Punarvasu, Pushya—good for travel towards east.

Thursday and Saturday.—Anuradha, Jyeshta, Moola, Uttarashada and Sravana good for travel towards west.

—Varushadi Nool.

DAILY GUIDE

1. Any journey by air ruled out as Marana Yogam persists throughout day and night.

3. Marana Yoga till 0-45 a.m. (night); air journeys permissible thereafter; till then avoid all journeys especially towards north.

Marana Yogam till 11-45 p.m.; avoid journeys till then especially towards north and south west.

5. Yogini towards sky after 3 a.m. (night); avoid journeys by air thereafter.

6. Yogini towards sky or earth throughout day and night. Therefore avoid journeys by air especially towards west; Yogam also bad after 10-30 p.m.; avoid especially night journeys.

7. Yogini towards earth till 1-40 a.m. (night); avoid journeys by air till then especially towards east.

8. Marana Yogam till 11-0 p.m.; avoid journeys especially towards west till then.

11. Marana Yogam after 3-40 a.m. (night); avoid air journeys thereafter especially towards north.

16. Marana Yogam till 1-30 p.m.; Yogini towards sky after 12-50 p.m.; L.D. bad day and night; avoid all journeys, especially by air and towards east.

17. Yogini towards sky or earth day and night; avoid all journeys by air especially towards north.

18. Yogini towards earth till 4-0 p.m.; avoid air journeys till then.

19. Marana Yogam till 7 p.m.; avoid all journeys till then especially towards south.

20. Marana Yogam after 8 p.m.; avoid all journeys thereafter especially towards west.

21. Marana Yogam after 8-30 p.m.; avoid all journeys thereafter especially towards east.

22. Marana Yogam after 8-25 p.m.; avoid all journeys thereafter especially towards west.

23. Marana Yogam till 7-45 p.m.; avoid all journeys till then, especially towards east.

25. Marana Yogam after 5-45 p.m.; avoid journeys thereafter especially towards north.

26. Yogini towards sky after 10 a.m.; avoid journeys by air thereafter especially towards south.

27. Yogini towards sky or earth whole day and night; avoid air journeys entirely especially towards west.

HINTS FOR AGRICULTRIESTS

(Continued from previous page)

for best effects, use chemical manures.

26. Till 10 a.m., good for all purposes and new beginnings, except for dealings in cattle; after 10 a.m. unsuited for ploughing and planting.

27. Yogini towards sky or earth throughout day and night; unsuitable for ploughing, planting and manuring; but favourable for dealings in cattle, grain, etc.

28. Day good only for manuring and harvesting of all the agricultural operations; for best effects, use both chemical and organic manures mixed.

Astrological Magazine Is Dedicated To Preserving B.V. Raman's Work

THREE HUNDRED IMPORTANT COMBINATIONS

BY B. V. RAMAN

This is not a collection of combinations but a careful selection of just the most important ones which cannot be easily identified in a horoscope.

What makes one a dunce? Why is one unhappy, what makes one poor and the other rich? Why one has no bodily comfort—what makes one a King or an equal, a leader, a business magnate, an industrialist, a great politician, a pauper, a sickly man and a miserable wretch? What makes one attain success without much effect and what makes the other to meet with disappointment in life inspite of his very best efforts?

A study of this book will enable you to easily judge the worth of your own horoscope and adjudge its merits and demerits.

A book of this type containing a collection of rare combinations some of which are special yogas has never been published before.

The author has illustrated the principles with innumerable horoscopes from practical lives. Do not fail to read this book.

Excellent Paper, Cloth bound, Rs. 9/- or Sh. 18. Postage Extra.

Less 12½% to Subscribers of: THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE-3

FOR FEBRUARY 1959

[This study is not intended as a tip for investors to follow. The writers have arrived at certain conclusions regarding Cotton, Commodities, etc., etc., mainly based on planetary influences. Those who act on this information will be doing so at their own risk.—Ed., A.M.].

By D. R. MUNSIF, B,Sc. (Econ). (London), B.A. (Hons.) (Bombay),
5/1, Russel Street, Royal Court, Calcutta–16

Astrological Section

THE Stock Exchange trends for the month of February determined by three lunations, the first occurring on 24–1–1959, 2nd on 7–2–1959 and 3rd on 23–2–1959. The first one was already partly discussed last month. It will not give rise to any particular trend or maintain it—it is a state of flux reflecting the conflict in the minds of men. The market will move both ways but within narrow limits—it is an ideal state for jobbers because the highs will be followed by lows and vice versa. Secondly the fortnight is dominated by the sesqui-quadrate aspect between Saturn and Uranus—this aspect is called by some people to be very bearish but to my mind, it is the harbinger of constructive trend. It may be safely said that the lows or the bottoms of the month will not be penetrated in the coming month but the progressive trend lays its foundation in this fortnight. The market has to grind itself if it is to rise and it will grind upto 7th February when a positively bullish trend will emerge.

The lunation of 7th February has Jupiter on the Ascendant with Mars in the 7th house. The conservative Saturn is in the 2nd house in good aspect with Venus in the 4th house and Pluto in the 11th house and Neptune in the 12th house. The three heavy planets as stated above are in harmonious configuration. This map is for North East India which shows that once again Calcutta will call the tune and set the tone of the market.

But the lunation falls in the 3rd house with Mercury in conjunction and the Mars of the three is opposed to Uranus in the 9th house. This shows the danger of rail accidents in this region of India,

The lunation of 23rd February shows the minor light in conjunction with Pluto well configurated with Neptune in the 4th house and Saturn in the 6th house. The major light stimulates all the three heavy planets and plays a prominent part in determining the character of the budget at the end of February. The position of Pluto in the 2nd house indicates a good rise for the markets but at the same time the position of Jupiter in the 5th house is not very harmonious. Owing to this, there will be some violent fluctuations in the market. But I want my readers to bear in mind that inspite of all this, the prices will rise and the bullish trend will be well established within a few days of the budget.

Neptune becomes retrograde on the 7th the very day of the lunation which is a bullish sign.

The days on which the bullish enthusiasm on stock-markets becomes particularly evident are 7th, 8th, 10th 14th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 22nd and 26th.

Commodities

Jute.—After a period of nearly three months of bearishness, the values begin to rise of the commodity as well as of jute-manufacturers. But the trend will reverse itself again from the beginning of the final week of the month or even a day or two earlier owing to the entry of Mercury in Satabhisha and Venus in Uttara-Bhadrapada. The days beginning from 6th until the end of 9th will witness a straight and strident rise in this commodity.

Gold and Silver.–The rise that began during the last week of January continues and persists until the vedha of Sukra stops it in Uttara Bhadrapada because Mercury joins Sukra in the same Nakshatra. The bullish trend steps at the end of the third week and values will begin to recede. The speculators have always a preference for some commodity but those who have no prejudices or superstition should concentrate on this market, i.e., both silver and gold and square up their transactions on the 18th and withdraw completely until a new trend emerges which will be indicated in these columns next month.

Cotton.—A positive bearish trend will affect the markets from 21st onwards. Prior to that the trend is mildly bullish. Values will show a good rise between 5th and 10th and the bullish operators can make a good profit during these four days. Rahu's entry in Hasta from 28th January is not good for cotton but the position of Sun, Mars and Mercury keep the market rising until the 10th definitely. Thereafter the market steadies itself but the bears get an upper hand in the last week of the month.

Oilseeds and Vegetable Oil.–including Coconuts:—This is indeed a very good month for speculators in this line of trade. The demand for these commodities will suddenly flare up and will continue until the 18th of the month. I would say that this is the month for bullion and oilseeds. The influence of the bearish trend on the other markets will influence this section indirectly after the third week even though there is no particular astrological factor bearing directly upon this line of trade.

Economic Section

This month, I wish to inform the readers about the position of Steel Industry in India, particularly under the private sector because the share prices of the two units Tata Iron & Steel Co., Ltd., and Indian Iron & Steel Co., Ltd., so dominate the markets in Bombay and Calcutta that all the sections follow the pattern of trend set by the shares of those two companies.

There has been for some time among the minds of investors a feeling that when the expansion schemes are fully put into operation, the profits will be adequate to repay the foreign loans and increase the dividends at the same time. This is a mistaken conclusion of the lay public.

First and foremost, the expansion of Steel Industry all over the world has been on such a tremendous scale that the world today cannot consume the products of the steel industry. The American industry is barely working at present at 75% of its full capacity inspite of the lifting of the trade recession. The German and continental units are working at 63% to 70% of their full capacity. In Great Britain the same story is being repeated. Further, small countries

Health and Domestic.—General debility will be present throughout and chronic sufferers will have their particular ailments lighted up and suffer from them more or less. Precautionary measures will certainly reduce the extent of suffering. Accidents too may occur during the first half and wounds sustained through sharp instruments. Wearisome journeys will further deplete vitality. Troubles, quarrels and misunderstandings are likely to arise through the female members within the domestic circle.

Finance and Speculation.—There is no helpful inflence for finance except that of Sun for the second half. But this solitary influence cannot accomplish much; lack of ready cash will be felt much more during this month than at any other time during the year. Any financial venture or enterprise during the month will come to grief and end in loss. Even otherwise, setbacks may arise in your financial position owing to various and unexpected causes. It would be folly to think of speculation as the means of improving one's finances.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—The worst sufferers from the evil transits of the month will be landlords and land-owners who will be hard hit from more sources than one. In addition to poor yield, losses may arise through pest and extraneous agencies as well. There will be capital depreciation, and even loss of property. Further losses, troubles and difficulties may arise although through litigation by being dragged to courts to defend your just rights. Nor can the services be expected to fare much better though in their case, the influences touch them more lightly. While the troubles will be acute during the first half, some betterment will be positively noticed in the second and you may be able to gain a point or two even over your rivals. During the first half, it is probable that you may incur the displeasure of your immediate superiors or those who can exercise power over you. The profession and business may continue normal though not without occasional setbacks.

For Women.—For matters pertaining to the fair sex, the first half may be said to be generally favourable and they can go ahead with their plans with the confidence that they may have a fair measure of success. They can be sure of co-operation from persons of either sex to further their aims. Though not highly favourable, a smooth running period can be expected. But the second half may not prove so favourable and greater care in their activities should be exercised to attain some measure of success.

Fortunate Dates.—Real property matters—6 and 9; money dealings and ventures—2, 4 (p.m.), 6, 9, 11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.), 15 and 18; long journeys—6, 12 (p.m.), 15 18 and 26; dealing with corporete bodies—18; children's affairs—11 (a.m.); interviews, educational, etc.—2 and 25; personal and private matters—12 (p.m.), 15 and 26; partners and opposite sex—2, 4 (p.m.), 6 and 9; profession and business—11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.). 15 and 26; insurance and estate of the deceased–4 (p.m.), 9 and 26.

Critical Dates:—Professional and business affairs—1, 8, 14 and 28; educational and interviews and tests —28; new ventures—1, 7, 8, 14, 21 and 22; journeys and accidents—16, 21, 22 and 28; dealing with superiors, etc.—1, 14 and 22; personal and private affairs—8 and 14; insurance activities—8, 14, 21 and 22; children's affairs—1, 21, 22 and 28; partners and opposite sex—7 and 14.

Chandrashtama from early morning hours of 13th till evening of 15th.

7. Thula (Libra).—Jupiter in 2nd; Saturn in 3rd; Sun and Mercury in 4th and 5th; Venus in 5th and 6th; Kethu in 6th; Mars in 8th; and Rahu in 12th.

General.—Jupiter and Saturn whose transit influence count for most are in favourable signs for the entire month but both are under vedha throughout. The only other favourable transit influences are those of Mercury and Venus. Mercury is good before change of sign and Venus after change of sign. Mercury is under check when he is good and Venus when he is evil. Sun and Mars are evil throughout. Thus, the good influences in substance do not amount to much. Neither are the evil elements formidable. The general results for the month are therefore likely to be of a mixed character. Obstacles and setbacks, quarrels and disputes with friends and relatives, pressure of money, difficulties caused by enemies, mental unrest and worries, health troubles, purposeless undertakings, litigation, dishonour and disgrace, are the likely results of the evil transits. General success, acquisition of position, luxuries and enjoyments, auspicious events and celebrations, help from willing friends, triumph over rivals and enemies, happiness, etc., are what one can expect from the good transits. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Chitta will suffer least and get the highest benefit from the favourable transits. But those those born with Swati and Visakha as their birth star will not benefit much and may have to suffer more or less from the evil transits.

Health and Domestic.—Bodily illness may have to be endured. Loss of blood either through pathological causes or through accidents or injuries may occur and precautions against sepsis, in such cases, should be considered as absolutely essential. Conditions within the domestic sphere will reflect the mixed nature of the transit influences. Peace, harmony and happiness may alternate with troubled conditions, quarrels and anxieties. On the whole however domestic peace and happiness is assured and the troubles will be only slight.

Finance and Speculation.—The good transits will promote influx of wealth from more sources than one and the evil ones take their way with need left for more so that contant pressure for money will be present throughout the month. There will be a tendency to launch into hasty enterprises which if given effect to will be the cause of much greater pressure. Therefore by exercising great restraint and mature judgment, it should be possible to get through the month without much difficulty. Speculative transactions are liable to end disastrously.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Conditions are propitious for landlords and landholders and for many this month will prove to be a trying and testing period. They may be called upon to face hitherto unknown hardships, make sacrifices and experience a period of suffering that may appear unparalleled. Unwanted quarrels, disputes, litigation may be thrust upon you, involving your rights. Management of your holdings may become difficult and you may be forced to think of some long-range arrangements though they may prove disadvantageous to your interests. The services are generally more favoured than any other department of activity. These affairs are likely to run smoothly and the more favoured are even likely to secure new status and positions and though there may not be much difference between the first half and second half, it can be said that the former will prove ever so slightly more productive of good results. The above observations are substantially applicable to the profession and business as well which will function above normal levels with very few setbacks during the latter half.

For Women.—A month which is better left alone with routine matters and no extra activities, is the best guidance that can be given for the fair sex in so far as matters that are peculiar to their sphere. Lack of harmony inside or outside the domestic circle, sometimes amounting to even mutual suspicion may act detrimentally to the full fruition of their activities and produce only indifferent results. Therefore it will be best to have no ambitious programmes for the month and await better times.

Scanned by www.vedicastrologyshop.com for personal use only. Not for sale or work

Fortunate Dates.—Profession and business—2, 9, 11 (a.m.), 18 and 25; journeys—2, 6, 11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.), 15, 18 and 25; new ventures—2, 6 and 26; children's affairs—2, 9 and 26; private and domestic—4 (p.m.) and 25: dealings with superiors, etc, 4 (p.m.) and 18: partnership and opposite sex—4 (p.m.), 6, 11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.) and 15; educational tests, etc. —9; insurance—9 and 25.

Critical Dates.—Speculation—1, 7, 14 and 21; children's affairs—1; partnership and opposite sex—1, 7, 14 and 22; profession and business—7, 14 and 21; interviews, etc.—7, 14, 21 and 28; journeys—14; real property —21; personal and domestic—28; insurance—21

Chandrashtama from evening of 15th till about sunrise of 18th.

8. Vrischika (Scorpio).—Jupiter in 1st; Saturn in 2nd; Sun and Mercury in 3rd and 4th; Venus in 4th and 5th; Kethu in 5th; Mars in 7th; and Rahu in 11th.

General.—Venus is the only planet in a favourable sign for the entire month and he is free of vedha. Sun is good before change of sign and Mercury after. This exhausts the good influences for the month. Mars, Jupiter and Saturn are evil throughout and free of vedha. The only evil transit that is under check is Mercury during the first half. It can be gathered that the bad transits are not only more numerous but are also powerful and unchecked. Therefore the general results for the month will be preponderatingly adverse. On the whole a month of trails and tribulations; the first half of which may be considered slightly less troublesome. Sorrows and unhappiness, quarrels and and disputes with friends and relations ill-health, financial pressure, losses, enemities with relatives, troubles from superiors, tedious journeys, disgrace and worries, heavy expenditure, delays and obstacles in all matters, etc., are the unwelcome results due for the evil transits. During the first half, however, some relief may be experienced and there may be some happiness with excursions, receipt of good news, auspicious events and celebrations and the like. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Visakha and Jyashta will suffer much less than those born under Anuradha.

Health and Domestic.—Troubles incidental to bad digestion, such as stomachache, diarrhoea, etc., eye troubles, rectal haemorrhage are what one may expect during the month. But they should be preventable, by ordinary care and caution as to diet and general habits. But the mind is likely to be more troubled with disputes and quarrels within the domestic circle as well outside in social spheres. You may have to incur the enemities of relatives but you may gain friends. Much can be done to reduce such troubles by controlling your temper and actions.

Finance and Speculation.—Some acute disappointments are liable to occur in the financial sphere though the month may not pass without some good features as well. The influx for usual sources will be easy and ready but problems will arise because they cannot be disbanded and properly utilised for your legitimate expenses as unexpected and uncalled for drains upon your purse will be practically forced upon you. Your bank accounts may dwindle and your securites depreciate in value. It woule be wiser to refrain from speculation, though with considerable care and restraint and avoidance of risks it may be possible to net some gains.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—The real property affairs will go only steadily worse from the point of view of landlords and landholders but this does not exclude the possibility of gains through dealings in real property, or purchase and sales of interests on land or mining companies, etc., short of speculation. In this as well as in the routine management of your holdings, you should avoid temper and take particular care in maintaining harmony in all your relationships and guard against erratic and rash actions, however strong the inclination thereto. Sun in 3rd is in the tenth sign of the zodiac and as this obtains only during the first half it should be utilised for furthering your interests in the service, by trying to bring your merits to the notice of your superiors and win their recognition as such attempts during the second half may not produce the same results if not results that are even contrary. It may not be possible to secure any postive results anyway during the month. There will be considerable activity in the profession and business though the results (profits and gains) may not be commensurate to the full extent of expectations.

For Women.—The month as a whole is not generally favourable for matters and activities pertaining to the fair sex as such and in most cases their activities and ambitious projects may not shape out well because of lack of enthusiasm on the part of those on whom they will have to depend for help and ultimate success. This lack of harmony, even mutual suspicion in some cases, may even completely wreck your schemes. Therefore it will be wise to restrict your outside activities this month and confine yourself to domestic matters.

Fortunate Dates.—Profession and business—2, 4 (p.m.), 6, 11 (a.m.), 18, 25 and 26; journeys—2, 4 (p.m.), 6 11 (a.m.), 15, and 26; new ventures —2, 9, 11 (a.m.), 15 and 25; children's affairs—2 and 4 (p.m.); private and domestic—6 and 26; dealing with superiors etc.—6, 11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.) 18 and 26; partnership and opposite sex—4 (p.m.) 9, 15 and 25; insurance—15.

Critical dates.—Speculation—1, 7, 8 and 16; children's affairs—7 and 14: partnership and opposite sex—28; profession and business—8, 14 and 22; interviews etc.—1, 14, 16, 22 and 28; journeys—1, 7, 8, 16 and 28; real property—16; personal and domestic—14; dealing with superiors—7; insurance—16.

Chandrashtama from early morning hours of 18th till noon of 20th.

9. Dhanus (Sagittarius).—Saturn in 1st; Sun and Mercury in 2nd and 3rd; Venus in 3rd and 4th; Kethu in 4th; Mars in 6th; Rahu in 10th; and Jupiter in 12th.

General.—Venus and Mars are good throughout the month but Venus under check. Sun becomes favourable after change of sign. While Sun is free of vedha when favourable, just the contrary is true in the case of Mercury. Saturn in Janma is evil for the entire month. Jupiter in twelfth is neither wholly good nor wholly bad. Therefore this month's results will partake of a mixed character, in which the evil side will predominate somewhat and the seeond half may prove to be slightly better than the first. Some success, gains, domestic comforts, good friendships, some luxuries and pleasures, pleasure trips, good news etc., can be expected during the second half. But, difficult and tiresome journeys, separation from relatives, obstructions and setbacks in undertakings, ill-health, enemities with relatives, losses, etc., are also among the probable events for the month owing to the evil transits. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Uttarashada will fare best; next best will be those born under Moola and those who have Poorvashada as their birth star will suffer most.

Health and Domestic.—Inspite of the slight preponderance of evil transits, health may not suffer much as they are not of such a nature as to cause illness. There may be some general weakness and debility and some passing ailments only. But the impact in the domestic sphere will be somewhat severe. Illness to wife, difficulties, separation from family, bad news, quarrels and misunderstandings with relatives, enemities etc. are likely to arise and cause much mental adistress acute and anxieties.

Finance and Speculation.—There is likely to be much fluctuation in the financial position during the month. There will be much of financial worries and pressure for ready money. Heavy expenditure items will figure throughout the month. Waste and extravagance will also figure among the items and contribute to the dearth of cash. Therefore, much caution and restraint will have to be exercised to keep expenditure within bounds. This is not the month for financial venture and enterprises and will be much worse in the case of speculation.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Though unexpected events will contribute to make conditions steadily worse for the landlords and landholders, good yield and rentals and some other favourable factors will make conditions tolerable at least for this month. The conditions will still be much worse for whom radical Mars, Jupiter or Saturn is much afflicted. They must exercise much control, otherwise they may be rushed into actions, the consequences of which will prove very detrimental later on, to their own interests. The services come into conflicting influences. During the first half, anything that they may do or attempt to further their interests will not fructify and fail of their purpose. They may even produce contrary results. The second half will be more propitious. Their work and merit will get recognition from their superiors which will help them later on to acquire promotion, or new position and status. The profession and business will meet with only indifferent results. It will be better therefore not to be too ambitious in their ventures and enterprises.

For Women.—In matters also pertaining to the fair sex as such there will be much difference between the first and second halves of the month. The first half cannot be said to be favourable at all for their interests generally. However a smooth running period may be experienced during which they may ordinarily get the co-operation and help from those connected with their activities. As the influences are much worse during the second half, it would be better for them to confirm their activities to routine matters only and not launch into ambitious enterprises.

Fortunate Dates:—Profession and business—2, 4 (p.m.), 9, 12 (p.m.), 15, 18 and 26; journeys—2, 18 and 25; new ventures—4 (p.m.), 6, 9, 12 (p.m.), 15 and 25; children's affairs—4 (p.m.), 6 and 11 (a.m.); private and domestic—6, 11 (a.m.) and 25; dealings with superiors, etc.—4 (p.m.) and 25; partnerseip and opposite sex—12(p.m.) and 15; educational and tests, etc.—6 and 9; insurance—2, 9 and 29.

Critical Dates:—Speculation—1, 8, 14, 16, 21 and 22; chiidren's affairs—8; partnership and opposite sex—1; profession and business—8; journeys—1, 7, 14, 16, 21, 22 and 28; real property—7 and 8; dealing with superiors—7; insurance—7.

Chandrashtama from noon of 20th to sunset of 22nd.

10. Makara (Capricornus). — Sun and Mercury in 1st and 2nd; Venus in 2nd and 3rd, Kethu in 3rd; Mars in 5th; Rahu in 9th; Jupiter in 11th; and Saturn in 12th.

General.—Venus and Jupiter, the two outright benefics are favourable for the entire month and unchecked throughout. The other planets, namely, Sun, Mercury, Mars and Saturn are all evil but all these planets except Mars are held up by vedha and so their rays will be powerless to do harm and the effects of unchecked Venus and Jupiter will dominate the results of the month. Therefore the month can be expected to be generally favourable inspite of the numerical superiority of the evil transits. General good health, happiness, prosperity, gain and enjoyment of articles of luxury, auspicious events and celebrations, gains of various kinds, new position, honours, increase in one's sphere of influence and popularity, triumph over rivals and enemies are the kind of good happenings to be expected for the favourable transits. Still as at least Mars is free of vedha and evil sign, there will be troubles through rivals and enemies, quarrels with near and dear relatives, anxieties and apprehensions, losses, etc. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Uttarashada and Dhanishta will fare much better than those born with Sravana as their birth star.

Health and Domestic.—Slight deviations from health are liable to occur. Benign blood pressure may be present and ordinary cure would suffice to keep it under control. But it is likely that the health of a child may cause acute anxieties and require prompt medical aid. It is probable that you may have to undertake tedious journeys which will cause debility. But harmony will prevail in domestic circle and also in social matters.

Finance and Speculation.—This month is generally good for the finances also, though no lasting good can be expected nor any spectacular results. No doubt there will be gains but losses as well; not only losses in the conventional sense but also through not availing good opportunities for making money or netting gains either through indifference or through an extra conservative attitude. But this attitude will be useful to you in restraining your speculative activities which may otherwise cause heavy losses.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—This month will prove to be quite ordinary for the landlords and landholders. There may not be much to complain of in the matter of yield and rentals. There is even scope for increased yield and profits and also for some additions to your existing holdings. But the month is not favourable for new enterprises or projects on a large scale to improve your holdings with a view to better yield generally as they may prove to be a deed loss later on. The month is on the whole favourable for the services though contrary elements contend for mastery in this sphere with the result that, though whatever promotion or new status you may be in for may be assured for you beyond doubt or controversy, the actualy coming into effect may be kept in abeyance for some time for no apparent cause and may be the source of annoyance and apprehension for some time. The

BHRIGUSAMHITA PADDHATI IN ENGLISH

Know Thy Fate and Thy whole Future Life as well as of others from the book which shows all like a mirror. Knowledge of Astrology is not necessary. Read all horoscopes easily with it. Even a wrong horoscope could be corrected. It is a dictionary and gives answer for all horoscopes.

Price Rs. 12: Foreign advance £ 1/9 (Postage Free)

Hindi Edn. Rs. 9 only.

Apply to BHAGWANDAS MITTAL
Naya Bazaar, Mathura, U.P.

FOR FEBRUARY 1959

[This study is not intended as a tip for investors to follow. The writers have arrived at certain conclusions regarding Cotton, Commodities, etc., etc., mainly based on planetary influences. Those who act on this information will be doing so at their own risk.—Ed., A.M.].

By D. R. MUNSIF, B.Sc. (Econ). (London), B.A. (Hons.) (Bombay),
5/1, Russel Street, Royal Court, Calcutta-16

Astrological Section

THE Stock Exchange trends for the month of February determined by three lunations, the first occurring on 24-1-1959, 2nd on 7-2-1959 and 3rd on 23-2-1959. The first one was already partly discussed last month. It will not give rise to any particular trend or maintain it—it is a state of flux reflecting the conflict in the minds of men. The market will move both ways but within narrow limits—it is an ideal state for jobbers because the highs will be followed by lows and vice versa. Secondly the fortnight is dominated by the sesqui-quadrate aspect between Saturn and Uranus—this aspect is called by some people to be very bearish but to my mind, it is the harbinger of constructive trend. It may be safely said that the lows or the bottoms of the month will not be penetrated in the coming month but the progressive trend lays its foundation in this fortnight. The market has to grind itself if it is to rise and it will grind upto 7th February when a positively bullish trend will emerge.

The lunation of 7th February has Jupiter on the Ascendant with Mars in the 7th house. The conservative Saturn is in the 2nd house in good aspect with Venus in the 4th house and Pluto in the 11th house and Neptune in the 12th house. The three heavy planets as stated above are in harmonious configuration. This map is for North East India which shows that once again Calcutta will call the tune and set the tone of the market.

But the lunation falls in the 3rd house with Mercury in conjunction and the Mars of the three is opposed to Uranus in the 9th house. This shows the danger of rail accidents in this region of India.

The lunation of 23rd February shows the minor light in conjunction with Pluto well configurated with Neptune in the 4th house and Saturn in the 6th house. The major light stimulates all the three heavy planets and plays a prominent part in determining the character of the budget at the end of February. The position of Pluto in the 2nd house indicates a good rise for the markets but at the same time the position of Jupiter in the 5th house is not very harmonious. Owing to this, there will be some violent fluctuations in the market. But I want my readers to bear in mind that inspite of all this, the prices will rise and the bullish trend will be well established within a few days of the budget.

Neptune becomes retrograde on the 7th the very day of the lunation which is a bullish sign.

The days on which the bullish enthusiasm on stock-markets becomes particularly evident are 7th, 8th, 10th 14th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 22nd and 26th.

Commodities

Jute.—After a period of nearly three months of bearishness, the values begin to rise of the commodity as well as of jute-manufacturers. But the trend will reverse itself again from the beginning of the final week of the month or even a day or two earlier owing to the entry of Mercury in Satabhisha and Venus in Uttara-Bhadrapada. The days beginning from 6th until the end of 9th will witness a straight and strident rise in this commodity.

Gold and Silver.—The rise that began during the last week of January continues and persists until the vedha of Sukra stops it in Uttara Bhadrapada because Mercury joins Sukra in the same Nakshatra. The bullish trend steps at the end of the third week and values will begin to recede. The speculators have always a preference for some commodity but those who have no prejudices or superstition should concentrate on this market, i.e., both silver and gold and square up their transactions on the 18th and withdraw completely until a new trend emerges which will be indicated in these columns next month.

Cotton.—A positive bearish trend will affect the markets from 21st onwards. Prior to that the trend is mildly bullish. Values will show a good rise between 5th and 10th and the bullish operators can make a good profit during these four days. Rahu's entry in Hasta from 28th January is not good for cotton but the position of Sun, Mars and Mercury keep the market rising until the 10th definitely. Thereafter the market steadies itself but the bears get an upper hand in the last week of the month.

Oilseeds and Vegetable Oil.-including Coconuts:—This is indeed a very good month for speculators in this line of trade. The demand for these commodities will suddenly flare up and will continue until the 18th of the month. I would say that this is the month for bullion and oilseeds. The influence of the bearish trend on the other markets will influence this section indirectly after the third week even though there is no particular astrological factor bearing directly upon this line of trade.

Economic Section

This month, I wish to inform the readers about the position of Steel Industry in India, particularly under the private sector because the share prices of the two units Tata Iron & Steel Co., Ltd., and Indian Iron & Steel Co., Ltd., so dominate the markets in Bombay and Calcutta that all the sections follow the pattern of trend set by the shares of those two companies.

There has been for some time among the minds of investors a feeling that when the expansion schemes are fully put into operation, the profits will be adequate to repay the foreign loans and increase the dividends at the same time. This is a mistaken conclusion of the lay public.

First and foremost, the expansion of Steel Industry all over the world has been on such a tremendous scale that the world today cannot consume the products of the steel industry. The American industry is barely working at present at 75% of its full capacity inspite of the lifting of the trade recession. The German and continental units are working at 63% to 70% of their full capacity. In Great Britain the same story is being repeated. Further, small countries like Pakistan, Burma and Egypt are trying to have their own steel-producing factories.

It is in the communist part of the world that even now, the expansion of the heavy steel-making industry continues, but here lies the great danger to the capitalist countries because the workers in such countries constitute a slave labour force whose exploitation becomes the basis, of utter economic disorganisation in the free world owing to dumping from the communist countries.

Further, the scientific advance has been on such a scale, that steel is being displaced in many lines of productive enterprises by Almunium and Plastics. Even the bearings today are made from plastics. Further, oils of such heavy and uniform viscosity are developed that they reduce the friction on parts of machinery as can be seen from the fact that in the U.S.A. some motor cars have been shown that have run nearly for 60,000 miles without servicing, with sealed joints. But this means less demand for mineral oils and consequently less demand for machinery for oil which trend will spread to every kind of industry and produce its cumulative effect.

During the last trade recession, the industry in Ameriea and even on the Continent has brought into use so many labour saving devices that for the same number of units of manufacture, at least ten per cent on the saving of labour can be effected.

Next, the expansion programmes of our steel units which has been so much in the limelight that the actual results will disappoint the shareholders. The planning of expansion in the Tata Unit has been tampered with by so many cooks that the broth will be insipid and tasteless. It has been the pride of the directors that machinery had been obtained from all over the world but in doing so, an entirely un-co-ordinated unit has sprung up so that even if two thirds of the intended expansion is brought out, the shareholders shouldconsider themselves lucky.

Finally, the Chinese competition will be so severe in neutral markets that the Government will have to subsidise the exports of steel which would mean indirect taxation on society.

Let me now come to Mr. Nehru's speech at the time of the unveiling of Mahatma Gandhi's statue in Calcutta. His speech was to be noted for the two points he made which make a direct impact on the economics of the country. According to him, the public sector was to be expanded and secondly, the critics of the Second Plan should bear in mind the perspective of the fast expanding labour force in the country and that the Third Five-Year-Plan would be big enough relative to the increasing population. If the Plan is to be big, foreign exchange sources will have to be sought after. This is possible by expanding our exports; since the exports are priced out in foreign markets, they will have to be financed by subsidies. Secondly to increase the internal resources, more income out of taxation will have to be arranged; alternatively they could be found by borrowings. So far as our experience goes about public borrowings, the aim of the Government is not likely to be fulfilled by normal measures. It is not beyond our ken to envisage that some measures of a compulsory character will have to be adopted.

Turning to the international situation, the prospects are gloomy. The readers must watch the developments about Berlin and Formosa, much more than the Middle-East and draw their own conclusions. These are so to say the fulcrum points where one political mistake means the defeat or victory of a party, and a trial of strength in cold war can start the atom-bombers and missiles flying. If a conflagration emerges, we shall have to bid good bye to foreign help from either of the two systems, right or left, but it will enable us to develop our industry on antiquated machinery, which is not conducive to a rising standard of life.

Starting on the assumption that no international conflagration emerges, it will be a prosperous year in 1959 for stock-exchange investors because the full impact of the spending after the second plan will be felt. Money will be very cheap with interest rates at a very low ebb. As an insurance against the falling value of rupee in terms of commodities, investments in ordinary equities would be desirable. At present, this stage has been reached in the American economy where inspite of a high level of production per head, the leaders of finance and industry are afraid of inflation. Our country, with very low productivity per head has to be frightened of it. But yet the game merrily goes on.

The readers may suspect the last statement. Such of them may well peruse the comments that are made on the floor of the legislatures. At this time, in the same places the prices of foodgrains have been falling but this fall has encouraged our legislators to come out urging the Government to support the price-level. The same is true of jute and tea. The attempt on the contrary should be to bring the prices down all round instead of propping up the food prices round which a continuous round of rising prices moves on.

BY PANDIT SHARDANANDJI,
Shukla-Vas, Patri P.O.
(Dist. Ahmedabad).

On previous occasions, I have mentioned that India is under the influence of Virgo, as far as as her masses are concerned. Politically India is ruled by the constellation Pushya and the zodiacal sign Cancer, as the capital town Hastinapur—New Delhi—area comes under Pushya.

This article is being drafted for February 1959. Hence, some general view of the planetary positions during 1959 A. D. will not be out of place. Sarwato Bhadra Chakra has much to do with forecasts pertaining to weather, crop, disease, famine etc. With these preliminaries I shall proceed with the main issues.

With reference to India's ruling sign, Saturn transits through 4th house, having governance over crop, weather, coal and mining concerns, opposition party and labouring class. For Kanya Lagna, Saturn in this position presages changes of a constructive nature, as this planet is a natural friend of Mercury ruling Virgo. Martian aspects on Saturn will give inopportune times, troublesome periods on the boundaries of India, accidents in coal mines and lesser yield of crops of the season. Contacts between Saturn and Mars will be of a fatalistic nature. It will be more so, because, this warlord makes its headway in front of Sun. Sun and Mars are fiery planets, emitting warmth and heat in the atmosphere. So, such a transit is not favourable for timely rains during this year's rainy season. During summer, India will experience waves of heat, with the result there will be fires in several places manufacturing explosives and the like. In cotton, ginning and pressing factories, there will be several cases of fire accidents. Thus astrology indicates and does not compel. It is for the discerning people to act carefully at such critical junctures, and save themselves and the nation from losses of commodities and godown wares, of fire catching materials, oils, seeds and so on.

Jupiter passes through the 3rd and 2nd houses. Its transit presages increased facilities in inland transport, automobile and railway concerns, opening of new branches of railway and road transports, new post, telegraph and telephone lines and offices. Electric power supply will be increased and new installations will be carried out. It will facilitate the additional water supply driving dry season through tube-wells and the tillers of the land will have two or three crops in a year. The faminish state to be created by Saturnine transit through the 4th house, will thus be remedied by the position of Jupiter.

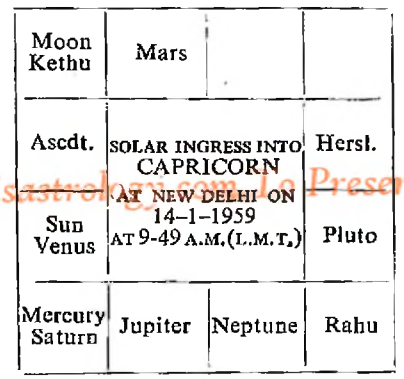
With reference to Cancer, Herschel, a planet of democracy is in the rising sign. This planet is of queer nature and uncertainties. It is for the good of the Indian masses, that such a queer planet is in a benefic aspect to the major benefic planet Jupiter transitting through 4th and 5th houses. The present-day administrators in India preach the welfare or a socialistic pattern ideal. This is the effect of Jupiterian transit. The Planning Commission has begun the first and second five-year Plans while Herschel from the ascending house squares Neptune in Libra, the 4th house in this chart. Crores of rupees have been sunk, but, Indian people have still to depend on foreign foodstuffs. The real cause behind this failure are the attributes of Neptune. This planet is a 'despot' and a day dawns when we shall read about fresh cases of Government money being embezzed in one way or the other.



The benefic aspect between Herschel and Jupiter warns the hoarders of foodstuffs, black-marketeers and bribers to think what happened to their counter-parts in Pakistan. Saturn's movements according to the Sarwato Bhadra Chakra, brought Pakistan under military dictatorship. If India is to be saved from emergent laws, traders in general should be honest in their dealings with the public. Saturn's transits through Uttarashadha and Sravana constellations in opposition to Pushya ruling India's capital indicate adverse developments.

Coming to the subject proper, the Kartika Purnima (26-11-1958) fell in the constellation Krittika. Hence the period of four months should prove easier for foodstuff supply. Weather conditions would prove favourable to seasonal crops during this period.

Every year February is very important, because the annual financial budget is presented in the Parliament. Since Herschel has entered Cancer and Neptune is in Libra causing square aspect between the legislative house (11th) and the house of finance (2nd) in the Indian chart every year, the taxing capacity of the finance department has advanced further and further, in one direction or the other.

For the annual budgect indication, I must scrutinise the chart erected for Capricorn solar ingress time on 14-1-59 (9-39 A.M., L.M.T.) for New Delhi. In this Chart; the Sun is in the 12th and the Moon is in the 2nd with Ketu, in square to Mercury-Saturn, and trine to Herschel and Jupiter. Aquarius 19th degree is rising on Ascendent, Venus ruler of 4th and 9th and Sun ruler of the 7th being placed in the 12th.

This configuration presages that the Finance Minister not only wishes to increase the crop of the land but would like to have most of the cash crops for export purposes, to keep our balances with foreign countries, especially U.S.A. U.S.S.R. in equilibrium. To achieve this end, he will recommend to lesen expenditure in the administrative organs of the lower rung and at the top level.

With reference to India's ruling sign, Sun annually remains in the 5th house, at this time, but the lunar place and aspects to Sun and Moon are changeable. Moon and Kethu come in 7th house. Some eventful steps seem to be in the mind of the Finance Minister to vigorously check black-marketing on the boundaries of Indian outposts. Nationalisation of tea, coffee and mining industries seems to be the result of martian movements. Neptune in Libra—sign of equality in trade and business concerns—again indicates the severe steps, the Finance Minister wants to propose before the house. Some land reforms and increase in land revenues are not ruled out by this aspect. The man in the street need not fear any adverse effects on him due to this yearly budget. Death duties will be increased by a few annas per rupees above 50 lakhs. Stamp duty for the shares and speculative purposes will be enhanced. Taxes on piligrim places are not ruled out. The entertainment tax, surcharge on air travels and places of recreation are imminent. Summing up I think there will be some bullishness in stock, share and seeds markets and bullions till 4-2-1959. Budget rumours will bring sales on advancing rates or good inclines till 14-2-1959. Between 15-2-1959 to 28-2-1959, some nervousness in a bullish state would be evident in stocks and shares on account of Jehad cries across our eastern borders. The effects of the budget will thus be, first of depression on the markets till 9-3-1959 and thereafter of gradual bullish side, with spurts and declines in general.

Lunar appearance and New Moon affecting February 1959 fall on 9-2-1959 and 8-2-1959 respectively. The New Moon falls on Saturday in Sravana and Dhanistha constellations, that is, in opposition to Pushya and Cancer ruling New Delhi. Politically this will be a very important month, so one should remain in touch with the latest news. It is partly accompanied with Vyatipatayoga, which adds to its malefic side. Herschel and Cancer rule U.S.A. as well. So an important announcement from New York or Washington is most imminent to affect the trade, commerce and speculation in this country. The change in sea freight or exchange ratio is anticipated as a result of this planet's position.

Lunar Magha month begins on Sunday and there are five Sundays and five Mondays. Lunar appearance, Ashthami, full Moon day, dark fortnight Ashtami and Amavasya as well fall on Mondays, a day ruled by Moon, and as this planet is a fast-moving body, the repercussions of her transits create unstable and quick effects causing a bullish tone till 14-2-1959 on which date the 6th lunar date is duplicated. For foodgrains and commodities 14-2-1959 would be strong in a bull market, but shares and stocks would rule weak on account of sales by prominent operators in touch with the informents. From 21st to 28th February, commodities will rule weak, and a double sided market in shares and stocks with some advances in textile, plantation, tea, steel and coal shares will bring on sales at good inclines.

Stocks and Shares (Indian) :-Transit of Saturn in Moola is unfavourable to the progress of shares-prices in general. Under the impression that (textile industry would receive some favourable treatment) there will be purchases in the leading exporting textile mill shares, while steels and coal will draw sales at higher prices. Thus during this month, there will be separate type of fluctuations in steel and coal on one side and textiles and industrial shares on the other side. Between 1st and 4th and 14th to 20th every section will rule weak in stocks due to political matters; 21st to 28th, all counters will rule firm, with some prominent types in advanced position. A shake-out will be experienced after the Budget and during the first ten days of the following month.

Scanned by CamScanner https://vishastrology.com/ Preserving Vedic Work

New York Stocks and Shares.—This is not a favourable month for U.S.A's diplomatic heads. They are likely to commit glaring blunders, which will draw severe criticism from their own people. This is due to solar transit through Aquarius and the 4th angle in this chart. Steels and mechanical shares will appreciate, while tobacco, medicine, radio, oils and cable shares will have profit taking business and some falls. Grains associations will receive good falls. Principal falls will centre round 6th to 8th, 13th, 14th and 21st.

London Stocks and Shares.—During this month, Mercury ruling England and Herschel ruling U. S. A. (politically) are in opposition. American foreign policy will clash with that of Britain. The latter's fortunes in the Middle-East specially of oil concerns would be in serious jeopardy and in South African territories as well. It is not a favourable month for mechanical coal, steel, rubber, tin and oil shares. Textiles and woollen shares may witness some good incliness on account of their good export business in the southern parts of the world. Principal shocks would centre round 4th to 7th, 13th, 14th, 20th and 22nd and 26th to 28th. Bullions and tea markets would remain on progressive side.

Rubber (Malaya).—Jupiter ruling this section is placed in the 9th house —a favourable position. But Saturn its maraka is transitting through 10th house and aspects its own house. Demand from U.S.A. and the U.K. will appear in the stand-still market or one moving in small fluctuations till 10th. It is advisable for the stockists to hold on their stock and the bears should now clear out from bearish side. Some good spurts are in store during this month between 20th and 28th. It is not a favourable month for the rubber crops in Australia where fire accidents are very likely to reduce the stocks in the plantation areas or godowns. 1959 A.D. is a year for heightened prices in rubber section.

Black Pepper.—(Especially Indonesian, Java, Sumatra Products):—Entry of Jupiter into Scorpio heralds good crops in all spices from 28-12-1958. But the entry of Sun into Aquarius is not good for the political parties. Past rivalries will again come on the surface. Trade, commerce and export shipping will be greatly affected. The prices in the local markets will go down on account of political troubles while prices in the country side which depend on the supplies from these islands will advance. It is thus advisable to export goods before 12th February 1959, and remain care-free of destruction of stocks or inability to export goods during the disturbed times.

Coconut Oil.—(Ceylon and India):—The Governments concerned are likely to raise tariff rates, freight or reduce quotas, which will cause temporary sudden spurt in this section. The production is very likely to be lower than expectation in the following month; hence, those who can hold the stock till 20th February will profit thereafter. 1959 is in general favourable for higher prices. Indian stock is very likely to be consumed by U.S.A in very good quantity during this year, but this month itself is not favourable in that respect. Some good decline is indicated between 6th and 10th, 13th and 15th and 23rd to 25th.

Hides and Skins.—(Madras and Kanpur):—Higher market for goat and sheep skin comes to an end by 17th. Hence stockists should dispose off their stocks if the market has passed through bullish tone during past two months. Buffalo-skin is likely to be cheap on account of heavy death roll in buffaloes during last two months. Kine leather would rule high on account of good demand and less production. Skins of wild animals, viz., deer, jackals and so on would experience bull market on account of increased demand and lesser stock. The freight is very likely to be reduced in case of export of bovine animals' skin and hide to European nations. Higher prices are expected on 2nd, 3rd, 11th, 12th, 16th, 17th and 21st to 23rd. So if the auction days coincide with any of these dates, it is good to avail of the chances. Traders in bovine animals' skin and hide have to be very careful as the prices are likely to touch bottoms during this year, which are not tipped during last 15 to 17 years.

Madras Shares and Stocks.—(Plantation, Tea, Coffee Scripts)—These sections will have very reactionary fluctuations on account of apprehensions created in the public mind by Government threat to nationalize tea, coffee, rubber and plantation industries. Productions are likely to go below expectations which is a bullish factor in those markets. Under this mixed situation, there will be great nervousness in trading circles and trading centres. Some good falls are anticipated on 7th to 9th, 16th, 17th, 23rd and 24th.

Cotton Market (Bombay Jarilla in particular).—Rates of cotton in U.S.A. are likely to affect the price-structure of cotton in India as well, and in the ending part of the month the Indian Government is likely to announce larger quota of lower cotton for export. In the commencement of the month, the March 1959 option will be nearing its maturity, and new one may be installed in its place. So there will be divergent trend in each of them. In the maturing contract local textile industry will be buying, as the new crop staple is likely to be of lower type, and unsuitable for superfine cloth production. Though the new crop will be plentiful in Punjab, Gujerat and Central India, the hurdle will be a lowered quality and its unsuitability for tendering in the maturing contract. Especially from 13th February as Mercury enters Aquarius, the cotton prices will begin to look up speedily. Side by side, there will be selling pressure by the prominent parties, under the impression that budget will contain duties on cotton and cloth export. On the whole, this month will prove profitable to those who will remain buyers in good declines. A straight rise is anticipated from 19th to 28th. Between 13th and 19th, there will be queer fluctuations, but it will pay to buy in good declines, in any type and contract and anywhere. 1st to 9th, reactionary; advisable to buy in good declines on 7th, 8th and 9th; 10th to 19th rise gradually; 21st reactionary on account of teji mandi business, but will emerge firmly bullish: and continues so till the budget time.

Groundnuts and Groundnut Oil.—(Bombay). Holland, Denmark, Belgium, New Zealand and China will be principal buying nations in Groundnut oil and groundnut oil cakes, while vegetable products will be bought by the State Trading Corporation on behalf of Burma, Egypt and Russia. But this fact will not come out in the principal centres of productions till 13th; so prices will advance narrowly with bearish reactions. But from 19th to 28th good advance will be achieved. However on the budget occasion, announcement of export tariffs will cause cut in prices spectacularly. It is well to consider the political atmosphere at the same time. February 1959 option will be closed on 28th. Tenders will be offered for deliveries in number greatly below than experienced tradesmen's expectations. Those offered will be picked up against export items by prominent shippers. In the newly begun option, there will appear selling pressure, and, hence the rate parity between the two options will be very variable.

Castorseeds (Bombay).—Jupiter's aspect on Aslesha still continues. This is a major bearish factor. But Saturn's transit through the 4th in the chart of this section, indicates an inferior quality of the crop on account of heavy frost in the ending days of the last month. After the entry of Mars into Taurus on 14-1-1959, the American purchases in this section should appear at the reduced levels. During this year, the crop of this type of seeds will be either below standard or less than expectations throughout the world. Hence, the traders who will be able enough to hold on the stocks will see progressive rates in the future to come. 1st to 9th rise; 9th (latter part of the day) to 11th reactionary, small decline; 12th to 16th (noon) bearish; 16th (afternoon) to 22nd rise; 23rd to 24th reactionary fall; 25th to 28th good rise. This rise is not likely to be sustained as Mercury rises on 28th and budget is very likely to contain export tariff on this type of seeds. Cautious the trading on the bullish side is advisable.

Jute.—Fire accidents are expected in Jute mills and godowns in the eastern parts, U.S.A. will buy Pak Jute in larger quantity and resell to other nations, so foreign trade is very likely to be affected in India. Transits of Mercury and Venus indicate bearishness with some temporary inclines between 18th and 28th in consonance with other markets. During this period some business is likely to be transacted with Australia and China. It is a nervous and bearish month for this item.

Bullions (Bombay).—India Government is likely to consider the question of raising the restriction against the import of the precious metals. It will be well to watch the rumours coming over the bullion trading centres from 12th February. Pushya Amavasya falls on the opposite side of Krittika ruling bullions. Lunar Magha Amavasya on a Monday falls in Purvabhadrapada on 9-3-1959. Between these two dates important fluctuations are anticipated on account of the causes mentioned above. So it is worth watching as there are possibilities of very good fall. Contrary to this, there is a major general bullish factor—Saturn causes vedha on Punarvasu from Moola and Kethu is placed in Revati. Mars will be coming on Rohini. These positions indicate a bullish side if the above said rumours do not materialise. This as well indicates an uproar followed by a crash in the bullions market and gold prices in Paris—the Capital of France.

Chemicals.—This section will pass through a boomlet, on account of the Government intention to reduce or prohibit the foreign stuff, to save the foreign exchange situation and help the Indian industries to flourish.

Mercury.—This section will either rise speedily or fall speedily during this month. My apprehensions are for a good rise on account of our Government allowing its export with a favourable quota.

Sugar.—The administrators will encourage more export of sugar and prices are likely to advance by a few annas per maundage. Export facilities will be given to encourage foreign trade. From 19th one should watch the activities of the "informants". The consuming masses ought to remain careful.

Jaggery.–Jupiter's position indicates very good crops; but, Saturn and Mars transits indicate possibilities of Government taking over the possession of the productions. When the Sun transits through Aries, Leo, Sagittarius, Aquarius or Gemini, such a situation is likely to be created during Vikram Samvat 2016 (12-11-1958 to 31-10-1959). Watch the trend on 1st and 2nd; again on 4th and 5th if rates of the latter dates are higher than in 1st and 2nd please follow bullish line; if these are lower than on 1st and 2nd, then follow bearish line. The same trend will continue on 23rd. A reverse trend will be in progress thence after and till 9th proximo.

Commodities Markets (New Delhi).–New Moon of Lunar month Pushya is very unfavourable for speculative purposes in this section. According to Sayana system, Aquarius 18° is considered explosive. The very degree stands on mid-heaven point of New Delhi's Geodetic chart. It means that the Government of India may take over the grain and foodstuff stocks for distribution from the producers. The New Moon of lunar Magha indicates bearishness in all sorts of grains, skinned, bipeds, oils, and cereals. This thinking of mine is supported by the transit of Jupiter through Anooradha and Jyeshta. The general line is bearish till lunar Phalguna Purnima and backed by Saturn-Mars position in relation to Jupiter. But, if the Government scheme is ill-conceived (the square of Mars and Sun) Mars trine Rahu indicates failure in the attempts. It is possible as well that discussions in the legislative session may prove abortive and the Government maay find most opposition from its own followers to take away crop production from farmers.

There will be plentiful crops of winter season including wheat, seeds, pulses; but the position of Mars, Rahu and Saturn indicate destruction of crops by fire on the boundaries of India in her northern and western frontiers. Granaries are likely to be set on fire with intention to neutralise the Governmental intentions of taking over grain crops, production or stocks held by the producers. The Government should take suitable precautionary measures.

February 1959 is a bearish period for all sorts of grains, pulses, cereals and edible oils in short. If other Government restrictions are not announced on 28-12-1958, 16-1-1959, 24-1-1959, 2-2-1959 or 12-2-1959, the price structure ought to come down in all the commodity markets.

Dried Fruits Markets (New Delhi).—All malefic planetary rays have been

(Continued on next page)

Sri. K. S. Shastry

A correspondent writes: Sri. K. S. Shastry, Astrological Research Centre, Jalgaon, Bombay State, has been appointed as Asian Representative of Astrologers' International Ltd., Hollywood, U.S.A. with effect from 19th May 1958. His range of operation is whole of Asia.

Sri. K. S. Shastry is a native of Harihar in Mysore State and belongs to B. V. Raman's school of thought. He is a young man of 28 years, and a leading astrological practitioner.

On 4th June 1958 a reception was arranged in his honour to facilitate him on his new post under the auspices of Vedic School at Ahmedabad. The Principal of the School of Astrology Mr. Himmatram Jani presided besides a number of astrologers and scholars.

In his speech Mr. K. S. Shastry recalled the ancient manuscripts on Astro-Science and stressed the need for more research in the field of Astrology. He gave the details about the status of this Science in America and other European countries and the interest of American scientists towards Hindu Astrology. He has suggested legislature for removing quackery in this field which has considerably given a blow to the standard of our science. He was of the opinion that a research institution is quite a necessity in a place like Ahmedabad for the exchange of views among the scientists of the City.

Scanned by Jagannatha Hora Professional Version 7.0 - valid for Astrological Work

MARKET FORECASTS

(Continued from previous page)

removed from the constellation of Sravana and Abhijit ruling this section, so the production must be plentiful : but, trade over border lines may prove a barricade for good and ample transport facilities. It all depends on the political situation in our neighbouring country, for India has to depend on suppliers from the north western country parts. Incomes are very likely to be augmented after 19-2-1959 and prices must come down till 28th if everything goes well.

BY A. P. SATHE
Dr. Deshmukh Building.
Dr. Deshmuksh Lane, Bombay-4

This month is important owing to the fact that Government budget will be presented for the financial year 1959-60. If we study the National chart with this subject specially in view, we find that the 2nd house at the time of presentation of the budget is being transitted by the Sun and Mercury ; second lord occupies 12th house and transits Moola ; Rahu transits 8th house from 2nd while the benefic Venus is afflicted by Kethu though transiting his exalted sign. Mars transits Taurus in square to the 2nd house. The 2nd house does not receive any benefic rays. All these factors present a gloomy picture. It is well known that our financial position is not sound. Planetary indications show that those at the helm of affairs will themselves not have a clear perspective to see through all aspects of planned economy. The result will not be very happy and instead of financial soundness the decisions taken will lead to dwindling of the financial position further. It is not however indicated that new avenues of indirect taxation will be resorted to at this stage, but more direct taxation specially on the growers might be decided and as a result this will mainly affect the commodity markets.

Change of sign by Mars on 24th January receiving benefic rays from Jupiter should help in stabilising the position of stock markets specially from 3rd Feb. Coming to the New Moon chart of 7th February it will be seen that placements of benefics are good. However the potency to push up prices is lacking, owing to the fact that general mutual aspects amongst the major heavenly bodies are unfavourable. The Lagna lord here is Venus. The transit of this planet specially with her entry into Meena is weak and in association with Kethu after the 22nd stock-market is bound to loose good ground. The positions in both the New Moon charts and the Nakshtra transits indicate that activity will be slowed down and very meagre business would be done in the stocks, resulting in lifeless market till 22nd February 1959.

In the January 1959 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE I have already mentioned that Solar ingress into Makara is bullish and upto 3rd February commodity markets will be rising. Thereafter till 12th bothway fluctuations are indicated. In the Solar ingress chart of 12th February the Lagna is Libra, 10th lordship rests with Moon in association with Kethu (in the Nakshatra of Revati) receiving vedhas from Saturn. The positions of this chart are not strong. Till Venus enters Uttarabhadra commodity markets will be strong, the peace of Bullish sentiment will be curbed thereafter and in the latter half of this Sankranti one could expect, good fall in prices of commodities.

Kethu		Mars
Venus Sun Moon	7-2-1959 NEW MOON
Mercury
Saturn	Jupiter	Lagna	Rahu

Moon Kethu		Mars
Sun Venus	12-2-1959 KUMBHA SOLAR INGRESS
Mercury
Saturn	Jupiter	Lagna	Rahu

Cotton and Allied Products.—Among the important Cotton Naksharas Punarvasu remains under vedha by Saturn throughout the month. Martian transit from Krittika is bullish though this planet remains all along under check owing to Jupiter's position in Scorpio. Mercury while transitting from Sravana receives vedha from Mars, while in Dhanista and Satabhisha remains with Sun, whose conjunction with Mercury is indicative of bullish conditions. The advance of price of cotton will more or less remain unchecked owing to all these facts during the first fortnight, the reation dates being 6th, 8th and 11th. Follow teji in the fortnight. In the latter half one good drop in values is indicated but will be short-lived. In general selling is not advised. 1st to 14th teji with mandi reactions on dates mentioned above ; 15th to 18th mandi : 19th teji; 20th to 22nd mandi ; 23rd to 25th teji and 26th to 28th mandi.

Oils and Oilseeds.—Hasta transit of Rahu and Saturn and Rahu transitting same Navamsa (from 4th) along the solar transit from Dhanistha and Satabhisha coupled with martian transit form Rohini when Swati will be under vedha the position appears to be very bullish in this section which will enjoy boom conditions. Mandi reaction is indicated after 20th. Groundnuts however will lack follow-up after 21st, it may even godown. Follow teji in every mandi reaction up to 21st. Groundnuts become mandi from 21st evening.

Dedicated To Maharishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

Metals and Bullions.—Martian transit helps rise. Solar transit also indicates the same way, but transit of Jupiter is weak. Saturn's transit from Caneer Navamsa and Jupiter in Leo Navamsa denote that till 10th prices of precious metals will remain subdued, but thereafter will rise appreciably.—1st to 10th Steady ; 11th to 14th teji ; 15th to 19th morning Mandi ; and 19th evening till end teji. Silver prices will remain more or less subdued, while gold prices will show good rise.

Sugar and Molasses.—Steady trend indicated in the first fortnight. In the latter half gud prices will come down.

Food Grains.—Proper distribution and stricter watch by Government will keep the prices of foodgrains easy specially in the latter half.

Stocks and Shares.—Navamsa positions of Saturn and Rahu help rising trend in prices. However the indications available in New Moon chart are not very favourable for good rise. In fact no severe fall or good rise is indicated during the month. 1-2 dull; 3-4 steady ; 5th to 21st rise ; 22nd to 28th Mandi—drop in values.

FEBRUARY 1959

By MIHIRA

[The following forecasts based on Janma Rasi are general and as such those having favourable aspects according to present Dasa and Bhukthi, will have favourable results from the indications made below; while those having adverse aspects according to current directions will experience these predictions to a less proportion. The predictions given below are based not upon conjecture, but upon a clear interpretation of the movements or transits of planets. If you do not know your Janma Rasi write to Mihira, C/o THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.—Ed., A.M.].

MAJOR TRANSITS:—Sun transits Capricorn till 11th, then enters Aquarius. Mercury remains in Capricorn till 12th, then passes into Aquarius. Venus moves in Aquarius till 17th, then goes to Pisces. No other planets change signs during the month. Mars remains in Taurus, Jupiter in Scorpio, and Saturn in Sagittarius. Rahu and Kethu continue their retrograde motion in Virgo and Pisces respectively.

1. Mesha (Aries):—Mars in 2nd; Rahu in 6th; Jupiter in 8th; Saturn in 9th; Sun and Mercury in 10th and 11th; Venus in 11th and 12th and Kethu in 12th.

General:—Sun, Mercury and Venus transit favourable signs during the entire month. Of these, Mercury is under check throughout and Venus after change of sign only. Mars, Jupiter and Saturn are evil throughout and of these, Saturn alone is under vedha. Thus all the minor planets alone are good and the major planets are in evil signs. Therefore though the general results are certain to be mixed, the evil element is likely to predominate. General success, accomplishment of one's desires, gains, acquisition and enjoyment of articles of luxury, friendship of highly placed persons, happiness and prosperity, triumph over rivals and enemies, increase of name and fame, auspicious events and celebrations, etc. are the probable results due for the favourable transits. Troubles from enemies, difficult journeys, losses, ill-health, sorrows and unhappiness through loss of friends and relations, danger of dishonour, disputes, accidents, etc., are what may be caused by evil transits during the month. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Krittika will fare best as the evil transits will touch them only lightly. Next best come those born under Aswini and those born under Bharani will fare worst.

Health and Domestic.—Health is liable to suffer no doubt and the native may have to suffer from windy and bilious complaints and those chronically subject to such ailments should take good care as to their health. Journeys should be avoided as far as possible as they may be the cause of ill-health and fatigue. Disputes and quarrels too should be eschewed as they may cause much excitement resulting in mental and health troubles. The domestic sphere may not suffer much though conditions may not be ideal.

Finance and Speculation.—As may be expected, there will be money difficulties during the month but they will arise not because your usual resourses fail you or there less is income and so on. There may be even increase in influx. But the expenditure items will mount up and strain your resources to the utmost. There is even scope for financial losses through extravagance, over optimism and ill advised monetary ventures and speculation may bring you to the verge of disaster.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Though the basic position does not improve in the case of landholders and landlords, this month may not witness any major setbacks and may even be considered as mildly favourable in general. Transactions of both sale and purchase may take place that are likely to prove advantageous later on. But this month cannot be said to be good for litigating about your rights in courts of law. It should prove better to settle things by arbitration. The services are the only exceptions to the general rule that this month will prove more unfavourable than otherwise, and new position, honours, promotion or beneficial changes may take place and those who have already completed the necessary tests beforehand will naturally reap the richest results. But success will not come readily for anybody and will have to be patiently worked for and only merit will tell. This may be said to be one of the best months for the profession and business.

Women only.—Some unexpected happenings will be among the events experienced by the fair sex this month and also strange experiences, in some cases emotional disappointments bringing keen suffering, may be an unfortunate love affair. Those religious minded and with spiritual leanings and practices may have their consciousness broadened by visions or other spiritual experiences, with a feeling of ecstacy. Much will depend upon the individual outlook and current directional influences.

Fortunate Dates.—Real property matters—2, 15, 18 (p.m.); money dealings and ventures—2, 4 (p.m.), 6, 9, 12 (p.m.) and 25; long journeys—2 and 15; dealings with corporate bodies—2 and 12 (p.m.); children's affairs—2, 12 (p.m.) and 18 (p.m.); Interviews, educational, etc., 4 (p.m.), 6, 11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m. and 18 (p.m.); personal and private matters 4 (p.m.), 6, 11 (a.m.) and 26; Partners and opposite sex—4 (p.m.), 9, 15 and 25; land affairs—6 and 25; profession and business—15; insurance and estate of the deceased—26.

Critical Dates:—Professional and business affairs—1, 7, 14, 21 and 23; educational interviews and tests—1 and 8; new ventures—1, 16, 21 and 28; journeys and accidents—1, 8 and 16; investment and real property—7 and 14; dealing with superiors, etc.—8 and 22; personal and private affairs—8 and 14; insurance activities—8, 14 and 16; and children's affairs—22;

Chandrashtama from about sunset of 1st till midnight of 3rd.

2. Vrishabha (Taurus).—Mars in 1st; Rahu in 5th Jupiter in 7th; Saturn in 8th; Sun and Mercury in 9th and 10th; Venus in 10th and 11th; and Kethu in 11th.

General.—Though Jupiter is the only planet in favorable sign for the entire month, he is unchecked and hence is a powerful influence on the good side. The second half has more favourable transits, namely those of Sun, Mercury and Venus who all become auspicious after change of sign. Thus Mars and Saturn are the only planets that transit evil signs throughout and of these, Saturn is under vedha. It is an easy influence from the above that the second half of the month will be much better than the first as no lesss than four planets are good one of them alone being checked. Gain of friends, acquisition and enjoyment of articles of luxury, happiness and general prosperity, auspicious celebrations or auspicious events in the family, such as birth etc., study of new subjects, probably philosopical and spiritual, success over rivals and enemies, fame, etc., are the good things due for the second half. During the first half enemities, loss of status, humiliation, obstacles and hindrances in all matters, wearisome journeys, quarrels, adverse ending in litigation etc., are likely. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Krittika and Mrigasira will fare much better than those born under Rohini.

Scanned by gurmeet.singh@jain.com for Parampara, B V Gurukulam, Pune, India

Health and Domestic.—Fatigue and general debility will be in evidence exits and entrances, and the beginning and end of things. It is singularly dramatic, with the full searchlight of world opinion centred upon the event it signifies.

(Continued on next page)

THE KALEIDOSCOPE

(Continued from page 230)

The horsocope of Pope John XXIII is not known but he was born on the 25th November, 1881. The Greenwich Noon positions are as follows :—

Sun	10.18	Scorpio.
Moon	0.30	Capricorn
Mars	22.01	Gemini
Mercury	20.28	Libra
Jupiter	26.26	Aries
Venus	19.23	Libra
Saturn	14.00	Aries
Uranus	25.06	Leo
Neptune	21.34	Aries
Pluto	4.40	Taurus

The conjunction of Mercury and Venus in Libra in opposition to Jupiter and Neptune show ecclesiastical preferment and advancement through the Church. He rose from being a peasant's son born on Sotto il Monte, Near Bergamo, Italy. The remarkable triple transit of Sun, Jupiter and Venus in Libra fell exactly on his radical Venus and Mercury in opposition to his Neptune and Jupiter radical, and this brought him to power, the aspects being exact on the day of his enthronement, 4th November, 1958.

In view of my remarks about the prominence of 5° Taurus in the chart of his Proclamation and the Capsolar progressions, it should also be noted that this degree is the position of his radical Pluto.

The auguries of his installation are remarkably auspicious since it took place under the Chandradhi Yoga in Aries-Libra, but the coming transit of Neptune over Saturn radical in his chart, during the next few years will much affect his health, and when Saturn transits the Moon in his 80th year, that is in 1962, this may bring his demise. In 1960, Mars and Mercury form an opposition in his Solar Return on the place of his radical Pluto, and he may be shocked into indignation and protest, about some of the misfortunes befalling the Catholic Church. Saturn is now about to enter Sagittarius and the religious world will lose much ground.

The Military Coup D'Etat In Pakistan

The growing chaos in Pakistan came to a sudden halt with the declaration of martial law on 7th October, 1958 by President Mirza and the handing over of power to General Mohammed Ayub Khan. Law and order had so disintegrated that it finally became a free-for-all fight for personal power amongst the various Khans and political parties.

If we erect the Capsolar Chart for Karachi, we would find the L.T. was 0.16a.m. on the 15th Jan. 1958 with an S.T. of 7.50. The cusps would be 1° Cancer on the M. C., and 0.14 Libra on the Ascendant. The Sun is found to be exactly on the nadir with Jupiter and Neptune rising in Libra. This is a favourable sign and suggests a new start for Pakistan. If readers can supply me with the birth-date of the General or the President, I will comment on it at a future time.

Progressing the Capsolar Chart by the two methods of the Quotidians and the P.S.S.R's we get very significant directions in both cases. The Quotidian method gives an Ascendant opposition Mars, on the 7th October, 1958, and the P.S.S.R. an M.C. opposition Mars.

ASTROLOGY & DETERMINATION OF PROFESSION

(Continued from page 221)

temporarily—these are some of the noble doctrines developed and adhered to by the people in ancient times; no one who has studied ancient Indian culture will assert that Indian nation has suffered losses in its journey along such a path.

I am not writing a practical text-book on astrology. First of all the science must be accepted and recognised as a science by the peoples of the world; secondly, peoples in the world must realise the unity of modern sciences and the science of astrology. The attempts must be first to convert Indians themselves into a belief in the value of this science, and thereby to bring a new light to the other nations of the world. My desire is only to make out a case that it is worthwhile to open a new track for the nation to travel so far as employment of the nation's talents are concerned, so far as the supply for the nation is concerned for a full life of happiness, by employing the Right man in the Right Place, to function at the Right Time through the application of Astrological Methods.

Scanned by Bhrigu Saptarishi Astrology and Research Centre. All Rights Reserved. Dr. V. Ramans Work for the entire month. Natives with weak lungs should guard themselves against exposure to cold as this may bring on bronchial affections. Some care will be also necessary for those suffering from disorders of blood, bile and 'heat'. Conditions within the domestic circle should on the whole prove satisfactory with minimum disturbance on account of some troublesome relatives. Children should be protected against prevailing epidemics if any by prophylactic care.

HOW IS THIS MONTH?

(Continued from previous page)

Finance and Speculation.—There will be good influx of wealth and gains during the month especially during the second half of the month but conditions are such that the month is not proof against losses as well throughout and therefore greatest care will be necessary in financial ventures. Really enterprises should be avoided. Success in any matter will be below the best and not up to expectations. It will be advisable not to take risks in speculative ventures as the profits even if they are realised will be poor and not worth the trouble.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Even the favourable transit influences during the second half of the month may be unable to accomplish from the landlords and landholders whose lot will get only steadily worse. Quarrels, litigation, troubles in management and other losses as well are likely to create acute anxieties. Real property holdings are likely to decline in capital values and it may not be worth while to invest money in or advance money on security of immovable property. The services may not fare very well during the earlier half and may even incur the displeasure of superiors for something or other. The situation however improves very much during the second half and even though nothing may actually happen within the month, there will be support to your cause for those above you and this will produce satisfactory results sooner or later, perhaps next month itself. The profession and business will gradually improve and develop during the month as the month advances.

Women only.—For the fair sex as such this month cannot be said to be favourable for their interests. Their dealings with the other sex either within or outside the domestic circle may not shape out well and mutual suspicion or at least lack of harmony will produce only indifferent results in any matter. Social activities may not be the success they are hoped to be. On the whole, a month to keep quiet and undemonstrative and let routine prevail generally.

Fortunate Dates:—Real property matters—2; money dealings and ventures—2, 12 (p.m.), 25 and 26; long journeys—2, 6, 9, 11, 18, 25 and 26; dealings with corporate bodies—18 and 25; Children's affairs—18 and 25; interviews, educational, etc.—2, 12 (p.m.), 18 and 23; personal and private matters—12 (p.m.) and 25; partnership and opposite sex—6 and 11; profession and business—9, 12 (p.m.) and 26; insurance and estate of the deceased—6 and 11.

Critical Dates:—Professional and business affairs—1, 7, 8, 21 and 28; educational and interviews and tests—22; new ventures—1, 7, 8, 16 and 21; journeys and accidents—1, 7, 14 and 22; dealings with superiors, etc.—14 and 22; personal and private affairs—16 and 21; partners and opposite sex—1, 7, 8, 14, 16 and 21.

Chandrashtama from about midnight of 3rd till about midnight of 5th.

3. Mithuna (Gemini).—Rahu in 4th; Jupiter in 6th; Saturn in 7th; Sun and Mercury in 8th and 9th; Venus in 9th and 10th; Kethu in 10th; and Mars in 12th.

Scanned by www.sanskritisastrology.com To Preserve Rare Books

General.—The majority of the transit influences of the month are unfavourable. In fact, it is difficult to single out the good ones. Mercury and Venus are favourable before change of sign. That is all. Sun, Mars Jupiter and Saturn are throughout evil, but there is much mitigation because of the fact that Sun and Saturn throughout the month and Venus so long as he is evil, are under check. Mars and Jupiter are evil and free of vedha all along. Under such conditions, scarcely any good results can be expected and the first half will be only less evil than the latter half. Quarrels and misunderstandings with friends, wicked associations, irritable and apprehensive mind, troubles through women, dishonour, wealth troubles, obstacles in almost all matters, unjust blame, tedious journeys, enmities, etc., will make the month a trying one in all respects. Of the three stars of the month, those born with Mrigasira as their birth star will suffer least during the month. But those born under Ardra or Punarvasu will have to bear the brunt of the evil transits more or less.

Health and Domestic.—Health will be generally indifferent though no serious illness need be apprehended. High blood pressure people should take normal precautions against further rise and be careful in their diet. Other forms of illness to which persons chronically liable have to be careful about, are eye troubles and bilious complaints. Conditions within the domestic sphere will give rise to quarrels and misunderstandings and disputes with relatives and internal harmony may be spoiled by worthless relatives.

Finance and Speculation.—Though the financial affairs will also be affected adversely by the impact of evil transits, they will not suffer much, at any rate during the first half. Provided extravagance and waste and rash enterprises are rigorously eschewed, there may not be much difficulty during the entire month. Usual income from normal sources will not fail and there will be also help from willing friends when needed. The danger about speculation this month is that some initial successes will engender false hopes and lead you on so that during the second half, you will meet with sudden and heavy losses.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Matters pertaining to real property and welfare of landlords and landholders born under this sign are liable to be severely affected by causes both foreseen and unforeseen. There is nothing in the transit influences to help them out at least during this month. Difficulties in management coupled with poor yield are liable to reduce their affairs to desperation. Of course there will be various grades of suffering from well-nigh total failure to comparatively higher losses. The services will be the only class of people that will escape much suffering but even be positivelly benefited during the month, that is, assuming that they, by their own actions, do not attract anything that will give impetus to the adverse influences, i.e., by rash and inconsiderable actions, inefficient work, etc. Produce and discretion should be their watchwords and it can be expected that their powers of endurance will be strained to the utmost. Hence caution will be needed all the more what has been said of the services will apply so for as may be for the business and the profession also.

Women only.—The first half of the month cannot be said to be at all unfavourable for all matters pertaining to the fair sex as such but a generally smooth running period may be experienced during which things will shape out well to their satisfaction generally and they may expect and get helpful co-operation from those connected with them. The same state of things does not continue during the second half and they will do well to restrict their activities to routine matters and not launch into ambitious enterprises.

Fortunate Dates :—Money dealings and ventures—2, 6, 25 and 26; long journeys—6, 9, 11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.) and 26; children's affairs—4 (p.m.), 9, 15, 18 and 25; interviews, educational, etc.—15, 18 and 25; personal and private matters—2; partners and opposite sex—2, 6, 11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.); profession and business—6, 9, 11 (a.m.), 12 p.m.) and 26; insurance and estate of the deceased—9.

Critical Dates:—Professional and business affairs—7, 16 and 21; educational and interviews and tests—8 and 16; new ventures—1, 7, 14, 22 and 28; journeys and accidents—1, 7, 14, 21 and 22; investment and real property—1 and 14; dealing with superiors, etc.—7 and 22; personal and private affairs—1 and 14; insurance activities—7, 21 and 28; children's affairs—28.

Chandrashtama from about midnight of 5th till morning of 8th.

4. Kataka (Cancer)—Rahu in 3rd; Jupiter in 5th; Saturn in 6th; Sun and Mercury in 7th and 8th; Venus in 8th and 9th; Kethu in 9th; and Mars in 11th.

General.—Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn are favourable for the entire month but Venus, Mars and Saturn are unfortunately under check throughout so that their benefic influence is practically lost. Yet unchecked Jupiter in fifth is a great deal in itself on the side of good. Mercury becomes favourable after change of sign and is unchecked so long as he is favourable. Thus Sun is the only planet in an evil sign for the whole month but he too is under check all along. Five planets are in favourable signs for the second half and four for the first. Therefore the month should be productive of good results though because of vedha, they cannot be said to be very good. General success, happiness, auspicious events and celebrations, favours and respect from elders and influential persons, acquisition and enjoyment of articles of luxury, increased prosperity, meeting of friends, good name and fame, various gains, are the good effects that are due for the month. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Punarvasu and Aslesha will reap better results than those born with Pushya as the birth star.

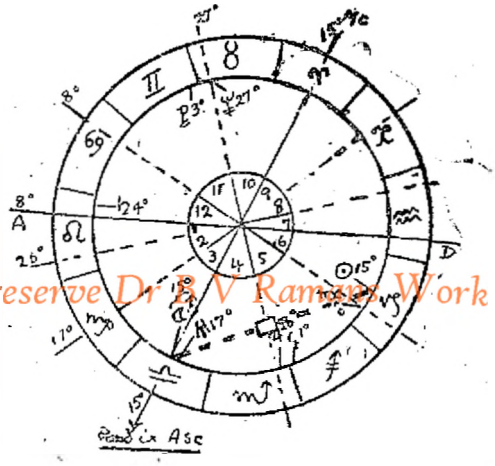
Health and Domestic.—Good health will be experienced for the entire month as practically all the transits are favourable and the few evil ones are under check. Some minor ailments may cause some trouble to the wife or children. There will be complete happiness and accord within the domestic circle during the second half. Minor bickerings with friends and children may be present during the earlier half. So far as this sphere is concerned, this month will be one of the best in the whole year.

Finance and Speculation.—This month is also very good for the finances. There will be success in money dealing and enterprises, with influx of wealth from more sources than one. It is quite probable that some entirely new venture may open a fresh chapter in your financial history during this month; this does not mean that caution can be thrown to the winds as rashness and extravagance can cause a lot of worry, even losses. This is all the more true in connection with speculations.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—With all the unfavourable directions, it is not possible to visualise much good for the landlords and landholders as great confusion, uncertainty as regards future, reduced income, rentals, etc., will face them at every step and cause much apprehensions. One should also be prepared for unlooked disappointments and setbacks in general. At the same time, it is abundantly clear that because of the good transits, the worst will not happen during this month. The position with regard to the services can be said to be quite good though not very good. The native will be the recipient of official favours based on merit and previous achievements and in the case of most, it will be a smooth-running and promising period. The native should be alert to take advantage of opportunities by completing all technical tests and qualifications that may otherwise stand in the way of future advancement. This is one of the best months in the whole year for profession and business and an alround expansion and advancement is probable.

Women only.—Taking a long view, this month will later on figure as the spring-board for various achievements in the domestic, social and philanthrophic spheres of activity, though no significant events may happen within the month itself, so far as the fair sex is concerned, who will come into contact with older persons ripe in wisdom and experience from whom it is possible to imbibe wholesome ideas and plans. This is also the month in which the unattached will find themselves moving and associating with their future partner in life.

(Continued on next page)



Copyright Astrological Research Bureau. All rights reserve Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

TROINSKI'S TERTIARY DIRECTIONS

(Continued from page 222)

629 + 102 = 735 = 2 years + 5 days = 5th January 1888.

So the TDH for Thaelmann which would be valid for 6th May 1933, has to be set up for 5th January 1888, and for the thereafter following change of month (May/June)—the 6th January 1888 at 18*h.* 0*m.* Hamburg Local Time. This TDH for Thaelmann works out very catastrophically. Mars, Moon and Uranus on the cusp of the 4th hose (I/C) are in conjunction to each other and square to Sun

TDH: Thaelmann dated 6-1-1888 corresponding to June 1933 (his arrest).

Compare TDH: Alfonso dated 6-1-1888, corresponding to April 1931 (his abdication).

in the 6th house. Specially the I/C cusp (opposition M.C.) acts devastatingly. Had Mars, Moon and Uranus been in the 3rd house, the native would probably have absconded and evaded the murder planned by the State. Further, the relations in the Radix Horoscope do not show any contradictions. On the contrary Thaelman's birth Ascendant is 16° Libra and the conjunctions in the TDH take place exactly on the birth Ascendant.

(To be continued)

HOW IS THIS MONTH?

(Continued from previous page)

Fortunate Dates:—Money dealings and ventures—6, 9, 12 (p.m.), 15, 18, 25 and 26; long journeys—9, 13, 18 and 26; dealing with corporate bodies—11 (a.m.) and 25; interviews, educational, etc.—2, 6, 12 (p.m.) and 25; personal and private matters—2 and 15; profession and business—2, 6, 11 (a.m.), 18 and 25; insurance and estate of the deceased—26.

Critical Dates:—Professional and business affairs—8, 14, 16 and 21; educational, interviews and tests—23 and 28; new ventures—22; journeys and accidents—1, 7, 8, 22 and 28; dealing with superiors, etc.—8 and 28; personal and private affairs—1, 14, 16 and 22; insurance activities—1, 8, 14, 16 and 21; children's affairs—8, 14, 16 and 22; partners and opposite sex—7, 21, 22 and 28.

Chandrashtama from morning of 8th till sunset time of 10th.

5. Simha (Leo).—Rahu in 2nd; Jupiter in 4th; Saturn in 5th; Sun and Mercury in 6th and 7th; Venus in 7th and 8th; Kethu in 8th; and Mars in 10th.

General.—The only doubtful transit influence that is good for the entire month is that of Mars. All that can be said of Mars in 10th house is that he cannot be classed as an outright evil transit. Sun and Mercury are favourable before change of sign and Venus after change of sign. The other transits are not good. Venus, Jupiter and Saturn are under check for the entire month. Therefore this month is practically benefit of good as well as evil influences and this feature is likely to be reflected in the general results. Ordinary health, some success, gains, wearisome travels, minor quarrels and bickerings, humiliation, worries and anxieties, losses, enmities, popularity, vain temptations, obstacles, misunderstandings, false charges and apprehensions, some enjoyments, losses among friends and relatives, are the sort of mixed results to be expected from the transit influences of the month. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Uttaraphalguna will fare best. Next come those born under Makha and those born with Poorvaphalguna will get the least benefit and maximum troubles.

Health and Domestic.—It may not be possible to enjoy good health for the entire month, though weather disturbances may occur, will not prove serious. Generally it is the stomach that may give some trouble though in the case of those chronically liable, urinary and rectal troubles are also probable. The health of wife and children also may demand more attention than in your case. While travelling, care against accidents is essential. Some quarrels and dissensions inside the domestic circle is also indicated.

Finance and Speculation.—Though conditions may be quite tolerable in the beginning of the month and may continue so for some time, steady deterioration is likely to set in from about the middle of the month. Great care in financial ventures will be necessary as some losses too are not improbable, that may arise mostly from rashness and haste, or from grave errors of judgment, not without element of some self-deception, or from vague or muddled thinking. Therefore all speculative transactions should be avoided as far as possible.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Landlords and landholders are liable to be subjected to various troubles. Though crops and rentals may be quite good, there will be great difficulties in the way of their realisation. Losses may arise through pests, acts of state, or other unavoidable causes. Disputes and unwanted litigation may arise and endless expenses may result therefrom. All kinds of worries will beset the mind which will be full of apprehensions. There may be considerable capital depreciation of your holdings. The services may fare ordinarily well during the first half which is somewhat favourably disposed to their interests. The situation is just the contrary during the second half. Various obstacles will arise and alter your position for the worse. It is not at all improbable that you may have to face some charges, however improbable, and unfounded though they may be or your own apprehensions regarding such may be found to be imaginary. There will be good activity in the case of the profession and business and the proportion of profit or advantage therefrom will depend upon how such activities are directed along proper lines without waste or being fostered away.

For Women.—Activities pertaining to the fair sex as such wil be subject to various vicissitudes during the month. Generally speaking, the first half is not so favourable to their interests as the second. Their plans may not shape out well, sometimes because of over-ambition or through interference and delays arising mostly from extraneous causes, such as setbacks to the principal earning member of the family resulting in less favourable circumstances. Such eventualities may not happen in the second half.

Fortunate Dates.—Money dealings and ventures—4 (p.m.) 12 (p.m.), 15, 18 and 25; long journeys—2, 4 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.) 15 and 25; dealing with corporate bodies—2, 4 (p.m.), 6, 11 (a.m.) and 18; children's affairs—2; interviews, educational, etc.—4 (p.m.) 6, 11 (a.m); personal and private matters—26; partners and opposite sex—9, 12 (p.m.) and 26; profession and business—2, 4 (p.m.), 9, 12 (p.m.) 15 and 25; insurance and estate of the deceased—2, 6, 11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.), 15 25 and 26.

Critical Dates.—Professional and business affairs—1, 8, 14, 21 and 28; edcational interviews and tests—8, 14 and 21; new ventures—1, 8 16; journegs and accidents—7, 14. 16, 21 and 28; dealing with superiors, etc.—7, 8 and 14; personal and private affairs—22; insurance activities—7 and 21; children's affairs—8 and 16; partners and opposite sex—1, 7. 14 and 28; land affairs—21.

Chandrashtama from the evening of 10th till early morning hours of 13th.

Scanned by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Project Dr B V Raman's Work

6. Kanya (Virgo).—Rahu in 1st; Jupiter in 3rd, Saturn in 4th; Sun and Mercury in 5th and 6th; Venus in 6th and 7th; Kethu in 7th; and Mars in 9th.

General.—No planet is in favourable sign for the entire month and even for part of the month, there are only two planets Sun and Mercury who become good after change of sign only and of these two, Mercury is under check all along. Thus the good influence of the month is practically reduced to one planet namely Sun for the second half of the month. Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn are evil for the entire month of which Saturn alone comes under vedha. So there is not much relief by check either. It can easily be imagined that the month will prove trying without practically anything in the shape of good results. Difficulties through the action of rivals and enemies, sorrows, separation from friends and relatives, mental agitation and anxieties, quarrels and misunderstandings with friends and relatives, troublesome journeys, unwelcome changes, failure in undertakings, disgrace and dishonur, litigation, evil associations and consequent troubles, etc., are what one may expect for the transits of the month. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Uttaraphalguna and Chitra will suffer much less than those born with Hastha as their birth star.

Health and Domestic.—General debility will be present throughout and chronic sufferers will have their particular ailments lighted up and suffer from them more or less. Precautionary measures will certainly reduce the extent of suffering. Accidents too may occur during the first half and wounds sustained through sharp instruments. Wearisome journeys will further deplete vitality. Troubles, quarrels and misunderstandings are likely to arise through the female members within the domestic circle.

Finance and Speculation.—There is no helpful inflence for finance except that of Sun for the second half. But this solitary influence cannot accomplish much; lack of ready cash will be felt much more during this month than at any other time during the year. Any financial venture or enterprise during the month will come to grief and end in loss. Even otherwise, setbacks may arise in your financial position owing to various and unexpected causes. It would be folly to think of speculation as the means of improving one's finances.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—The worst sufferers from the evil transits of the month will be landlords and land-owners who will be hard hit from more sources than one. In addition to poor yield, losses may arise through pest and extraneous agencies as well. There will be capital depreciation, and even loss of property. Further losses, troubles and difficulties may arise although through litigation by being dragged to courts to defend your just rights. Nor can the services be expected to fare much better though in their case, the influences touch them more lightly. While the troubles will be acute during the first half, some betterment will be positively noticed in the second and you may be able to gain a point or two even over your rivals. During the first half, it is probable that you may incur the displeasure of your immediate superiors or those who can exercise power over you. The profession and business may continue normal though not without occasional setbacks.

For Women.—For matters pertaining to the fair sex, the first half may be said to be generally favourable and they can go ahead with their plans with the confidence that they may have a fair measure of success. They can be sure of co-operation from persons of either sex to further their aims. Though not highly favourable, a smooth running period can be expected. But the second half may not prove so favourable and greater care in their activities should be exercised to attain some measure of success.

Fortunate Dates.—Real property matters—6 and 9; money dealings and ventures—2, 4 (p.m.), 6, 9, 11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.), 15 and 18; long journeys—6, 12 (p.m.), 15 18 and 26; dealing with corporete bodies—18; children's affairs—11 (a.m.); interviews, educational, etc.—2 and 25; personal and private matters—12 (p.m.), 15 and 26; partners and opposite sex—2, 4 (p.m.), 6 and 9; profession and business—11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.), 15 and 26; insurance and estate of the deceased—4 (p.m.), 9 and 26.

Critical Dates:—Professional and business affairs—1, 8, 14 and 28; educational and interviews and tests —28; new ventures—1, 7, 8, 14, 21 and 22; journeys and accidents—16, 21, 22 and 28; dealing with superiors, etc.—1, 14 and 22; personal and private affairs—8 and 14; insurance activities—8, 14, 21 and 22; children's affairs—1, 21, 22 and 28; partners and opposite sex—7 and 14.

Chandrashtama from early morning hours of 13th till evening of 15th.

7. Thula (Libra).—Jupiter in 2nd; Saturn in 3rd; Sun and Mercury in 4th and 5th; Venus in 5th and 6th; Kethu in 6th; Mars in 8th; and Rahu in 12th.

General.—Jupiter and Saturn whose transit influence count for most are in favourable signs for the entire month but both are under vedha throughout. The only other favourable transit influences are those of Mercury and Venus. Mercury is good before change of sign and Venus after change of sign. Mercury is under check when he is good and Venus when he is evil. Sun and Mars are evil throughout. Thus, the good influences in substance do not amount to much. Neither are the evil elements formidable. The general results for the month are therefore likely to be of a mixed character. Obstacles and setbacks, quarrels and disputes with friends and relatives, pressure of money, difficulties caused by enemies, mental unrest and worries, health troubles, purposeless undertakings, litigation, dishonour and disgrace, are the likely results of the evil transits. General success, acquisition of position, luxuries and enjoyments, auspicious events and celebrations, help from willing friends, triumph over rivals and enemies, happiness, etc., are what one can expect from the good transits. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Chitta will suffer least and get the highest benefit from the favourable transits. But those those born with Swati and Visakha as their birth star will not benefit much and may have to suffer more or less from the evil transits.

Health and Domestic.—Bodily illness may have to be endured. Loss of blood either through pathological causes or through accidents or injuries may occur and precautions against sepsis, in such cases, should be considered as absolutely essential. Conditions within the domestic sphere will reflect the mixed nature of the transit influences. Peace, harmony and happiness may alternate with troubled conditions, quarrels and anxieties. On the whole however domestic peace and happiness is assured and the troubles will be only slight.

Finance and Speculation.—The good transits will promote influx of wealth from more sources than one and the evil ones take their way with need left for more so that contant pressure for money will be present throughout the month. There will be a tendency to launch into hasty enterprises which if given effect to will be the cause of much greater pressure. Therefore by exercising great restraint and mature judgment, it should be possible to get through the month without much difficulty. Speculative transactions are liable to end disastrously.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Conditions are propitious for landlords and landholders and for many this month will prove to be a trying and testing period. They may be called upon to face hitherto unknown hardships, make sacrifices and experience a period of suffering that may appear unparalleled. Unwanted quarrels, disputes, litigation may be thrust upon you, involving your rights. Management of your holdings may become difficult and you may be forced to think of some long-range arrangements though they may prove disadvantageous to your interests. The services are generally more favoured than any other department of activity. These affairs are likely to run smoothly and the more favoured are even likely to secure new status and positions and though there may not be much difference between the first half and second half, it can be said that the former will prove ever so slightly more productive of good results. The above observations are substantially applicable to the profession and business as well which will function above normal levels with very few setbacks during the latter half.

For Women.—A month which is better left alone with routine matters and no extra activities, is the best guidance that can be given for the fair sex in so far as matters that are peculiar to their sphere. Lack of harmony inside or outside the domestic circle, sometimes amounting to even mutual suspicion may act detrimentally to the full fruition of their activities and produce only indifferent results. Therefore it will be best to have no ambitious programmes for the month and await better times.

Fortunate Dates.—Profession and business—2, 9, 11 (a.m.), 18 and 25; journeys—2, 6, 11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.), 15, 18 and 25; new ventures—2, 6 and 26; children's affairs—2, 9 and 26; private and domestic—4 (p.m.) and 25: dealings with superiors, etc, 4 (p.m.) and 18; partnership and opposite sex—4 (p.m.), 6, 11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.) and 15; educational tests, etc. —9; insurance—9 and 25.

Critical Dates.—Speculation—1, 7, 14 and 21; children's affairs—1; partnership and opposite sex—1, 7, 14 and 22; profession and business—7, 14 and 21; interviews, etc.—7, 14, 21 and 28; journeys—14; real property —21; personal and domestic—28; insurance—21

Chandrashtama from evening of 15th till about sunrise of 18th.

8. Vrischika (Scorpio).—Jupiter in 1st; Saturn in 2nd; Sun and Mercury in 3rd and 4th; Venus in 4th and 5th; Kethu in 5th; Mars in 7th; and Rahu in 11th.

General.—Venus is the only planet in a favourable sign for the entire month and he is free of vedha. Sun is good before change of sign and Mercury after. This exhausts the good influences for the month. Mars, Jupiter and Saturn are evil throughout and free of vedha. The only evil transit that is under check is Mercury during the first half. It can be gathered that the bad transits are not only more numerous but are also powerful and unchecked. Therefore the general results for the month will be preponderatingly adverse. On the whole a month of trails and tribulations; the first half of which may be considered slightly less troublesome. Sorrows and unhappiness, quarrels and and disputes with friends and relations ill-health, financial pressure, losses, enemities with relatives, troubles from superiors, tedious journeys, disgrace and worries, heavy expenditure, delays and obstacles in all matters, etc., are the unwelcome results due for the evil transits. During the first half, however, some relief may be experienced and there may be some happiness with excursions, receipt of good news, auspicious events and celebrations and the like. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Visakha and Jyashta will suffer much less than those born under Anuradha.

Health and Domestic.—Troubles incidental to bad digestion, such as stomachache, diarrhoea, etc., eye troubles, rectal haemorrhage are what one may expect during the month. But they should be preventable, by ordinary care and caution as to diet and general habits. But the mind is likely to be more troubled with disputes and quarrels within the domestic circle as well outside in social spheres. You may have to incur the enemities of relatives but you may gain friends. Much can be done to reduce such troubles by controlling your temper and actions.

Finance and Speculation.—Some acute disappointments are liable to occur in the financial sphere though the month may not pass without some good features as well. The influx for usual sources will be easy and ready but problems will arise because they cannot be disbanded and properly utilised for your legitimate expenses as unexpected and uncalled for drains upon your purse will be practically forced upon you. Your bank accounts may dwindle and your securites depreciate in value. It woule be wiser to refrain from speculation, though with considerable care and restraint and avoidance of risks it may be possible to net some gains.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—The real property affairs will go only steadily worse from the point of view of landlords and landholders but this does not exclude the possibility of gains through dealings in real property, or purchase and sales of interests on land or mining companies, etc., short of speculation. In this as well as in the routine management of your holdings, you should avoid temper and take particular care in maintaining harmony in all your relationships and guard against erratic and rash actions, however strong the inclination thereto. Sun in 3rd is in the tenth sign of the zodiac and as this obtains only during the first half it should be utilised for furthering your interests in the service, by trying to bring your merits to the notice of your superiors and win their recognition as such attempts during the second half may not produce the same results if not results that are even contrary. It may not be possible to secure any postive results anyway during the month. There will be considerable activity in the profession and business though the results (profits and gains) may not be commensurate to the full extent of expectations.

For Women.—The month as a whole is not generally favourable for matters and activities pertaining to the fair sex as such and in most cases their activities and ambitious projects may not shape out well because of lack of enthusiasm on the part of those on whom they will have to depend for help and ultimate success, This lack of harmony, even mutual suspicion in some cases, may even completely wreck your schemes. Therefore it will be wise to restrict your outside activities this month and confine yourself to domestic matters.

Fortunate Dates.—Profession and business—2, 4 (p.m.), 6, 11 (a.m.), 18, 25 and 26; journeys—2, 4 (p.m.), 6 11 (a.m.), 15, and 26; new ventures —2, 9, 11 (a.m.), 15 and 25; children's affairs—2 and 4 (p.m.); private and domestic—6 and 26; dealing with superiors etc.—6, 11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.) 18 and 26; partnership and opposite sex—4 (p.m.) 9, 15 and 25; insurance—15.

Critical dates.—Speculation—1, 7, 8 and 16; children's affairs—7 and 14: partnership and opposite sex—28; profession and business—8, 14 and 22; interviews etc.—1, 14, 16, 22 and 28; journeys —1, 7, 8, 16 and 28; real property—16; personal and domestic—14; dealing with superiors—7; insurance—16.

Chandrashtama from early morning hours of 18th till noon of 20th.

9. Dhanus (Sagittarius).—Saturn in 1st; Sun and Mercury in 2nd and 3rd; Venus in 3rd and 4th; Kethu in 4th; Mars in 6th; Rahu in 10th; and Jupiter in 12th.

General.—Venus and Mars are good throughout the month but Venus under check. Sun becomes favourable after change of sign. While Sun is free of vedha when favourable, just the contrary is true in the case of Mercury. Saturn in Janma is evil for the entire month. Jupiter in twelfth is neither wholly good nor wholly bad. Therefore this month's results will partake of a mixed character, in which the evil side will predominate somewhat and the seeond half may prove to be slightly better than the first. Some success, gains, domestic comforts, good friendships, some luxuries and pleasures, pleasure trips, good news etc., can be expected during the second half. But, difficult and tiresome journeys, separation from relatives, obstructions and setbacks in undertakings, ill-health, enemities with relatives, losses, etc., are also among the probable events for the month owing to the evil transits. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Uttarashada will fare best; next best will be those born under Moola and those who have Poorvashada as their birth star will suffer most.

Health and Domestic.—Inspite of the slight preponderance of evil transits, health may not suffer much as they are not of such a nature as to cause illness. There may be some general weakness and debility and some passing ailments only. But the impact in the domestic sphere will be somewhat severe. Illness to wife, difficulties, separation from family, bad news, quarrels and misunderstandings with relatives, enemities etc. are likely to arise and cause much mental adistress acute and anxieties.

Finance and Speculation.—There is likely to be much fluctuation in the financial position during the month. There will be much of financial worries and pressure for ready money. Heavy expenditure items will figure throughout the month. Waste and extravagance will also figure among the items and contribute to the dearth of cash. Therefore, much caution and restraint will have to be exercised to keep expenditure within bounds. This is not the month for financial venture and enterprises and will be much worse in the case of speculation.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Though unexpected events will contribute to make conditions steadily worse for the landlords and landholders, good yield and rentals and some other favourable factors will make conditions tolerable at least for this month. The conditions will still be much worse for whom radical Mars, Jupiter or Saturn is much afflicted. They must exercise much control, otherwise they may be rushed into actions, the consequences of which will prove very detrimental later on, to their own interests. The services come into conflicting influences. During the first half, anything that they may do or attempt to further their interests will not fructify and fail of their purpose. They may even produce contrary results. The second half will be more propitious. Their work and merit will get recognition from their superiors which will help them later on to acquire promotion, or new position and status. The profession and business will meet with only indifferent results. It will be better therefore not to be too ambitious in their ventures and enterprises.

For Women.—In matters also pertaining to the fair sex as such there will be much difference between the first and second halves of the month. The first half cannot be said to be favourable at all for their interests generally. However a smooth running period may be experienced during which they may ordinarily get the co-operation and help from those connected with their activities. As the influences are much worse during the second half, it would be better for them to confirm their activities to routine matters only and not launch into ambitious enterprises.

Fortunate Dates:—Profession and business—2, 4 (p.m.), 9, 12 (p.m.), 15, 18 and 26; journeys—2, 18 and 25; new ventures—4 (p.m.), 6, 9, 12 (p.m.), 15 and 25; children's affairs—4 (p.m.), 6 and 11 (a.m.); private and domestic—6, 11 (a.m.) and 25; dealings with superiors, etc.—4 (p.m.) and 25; partnerseip and opposite sex—12(p.m.) and 15; educational and tests, etc.—6 and 9; insurance—2, 9 and 29.

Critical Dates:—Speculation—1, 8, 14, 16, 21 and 22; children's affairs—8; partnership and opposite sex—1; profession and business—8; journeys—1, 7, 14, 16, 21, 22 and 28; real property—7 and 8; dealing with superiors—7; insurance—7.

Chandrashtama from noon of 20th to sunset of 22nd.

10. Makara (Capricornus). — Sun and Mercury in 1st and 2nd; Venus in 2nd and 3rd, Kethu in 3rd; Mars in 5th; Rahu in 9th; Jupiter in 11th; and Saturn in 12th.

General.—Venus and Jupiter, the two outright benefics are favourable for the entire month and unchecked throughout. The other planets, namely, Sun, Mercury, Mars and Saturn are all evil but all these planets except Mars are held up by vedha and so their rays will be powerless to do harm and the effects of unchecked Venus and Jupiter will dominate the results of the month. Therefore the month can be expected to be generally favourable inspite of the numerical superiority of the evil transits. General good health, happiness, prosperity, gain and enjoyment of articles of luxury, auspicious events and celebrations, gains of various kinds, new position, honours, increase in one's sphere of influence and popularity, triumph over rivals and enemies are the kind of good happenings to be expected for the favourable transits. Still as at least Mars is free of vedha and evil sign, there will be troubles through rivals and enemies, quarrels with near and dear relatives, anxieties and apprehensions, losses, etc. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Uttarashada and Dhanishta will fare much better than those born with Sravana as their birth star.

Health and Domestic.—Slight deviations from health are liable to occur. Benign blood pressure may be present and ordinary cure would suffice to keep it under control. But it is likely that the health of a child may cause acute anxieties and require prompt medical aid. It is probable that you may have to undertake tedious journeys which will cause debility. But harmony will prevail in domestic circle and also in social matters.

Finance and Speculation.—This month is generally good for the finances also, though no lasting good can be expected nor any spectacular results. No doubt there will be gains but losses as well; not only losses in the conventional sense but also through not availing good opportunities for making money or netting gains either through indifference or through an extra conservative attitude. But this attitude will be useful to you in restraining your speculative activities which may otherwise cause heavy losses.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—This month will prove to be quite ordinary for the landlords and landholders. There may not be much to complain of in the matter of yield and rentals. There is even scope for increased yield and profits and also for some additions to your existing holdings. But the month is not favourable for new enterprises or projects on a large scale to improve your holdings with a view to better yield generally as they may prove to be a deed loss later on. The month is on the whole favourable for the services though contrary elements contend for mastery in this sphere with the result that, though whatever promotion or new status you may be in for may be assured for you beyond doubt or controversy, the actualy coming into effect may be kept in abeyance for some time for no apparent cause and may be the source of annoyance and apprehension for some time. The

BHRIGUSAMHITA PADDHATI IN ENGLISH

Know Thy Fate and Thy whole Future Life as well as of others from the book which shows all like a mirror. Knowledge of Astrology is not necessary. Read all horoscopes easily with it. Even a wrong horoscope could be corrected. It is a dictionary and gives answer for all horoscopes.

Price Rs. 12: Foreign advance £ 1/9
(Postage Free)
Hindi Edn. Rs. 9 only.

Apply to BHAGWANDAS MITTAL
Naya Bazaar, Mathura, U.P.

profession and business will do exceedingly well this month, though owing to various causes, it may not be possible to achieve the best.

For Women.—This is a good month for the fair sex generally. At least some of the unattached among them will be moving in circles in which they will find their future partner in life, though it may not be even suspected at the time and the actual event may come much later. The fair sex generally will come into touch with persons who are older and wiser from whom they will learn much that is vital to their interests and will be helpful to them in their social and philanthropic activities.

Fortunate Dates.—Profession and business—2, 4 (p.m.), 9, 18, 25 and 26; journeys—2, 6, 11 (a.m.), 15, 18 and 25; new ventures—4 (p.m.), 6. 9, 11 (a.m.) and 26; children's affairs—2, 4 (p.m.) and 6; private and domestic—6 and 26; dealings with superiors etc.—4 (p.m.), 6, 11 (a.m.), 12 (p.m.), 16 and 26; partnership and opposite sex—2 and 25; educational and tests, etc.—4 (p.m.); insurance—2, 9 and 25.

Critical Dates.—Speculation—1, 16, 21, 22 and 28; partnership and opposite sex—1, 8 and 28; profession and business—1, 8, 22 and 28; interviews, etc.—8, 16, 21 and 22; journeys—1, 7, 8 and 14; real property—1, 14, 16, 21 and 22; dealing with superiors—7, 14, 16, 21 and 22; insurance—7.

Chandrashtama from sunset of 22nd till about 8 p.m. on 24th.

11. Kumbha (Aquarius).—Venus in 1st and 2nd; Kethu in 2nd; Mars in 4th; Rahu in 8th; Jupiter in 10th; Saturn in 11th; and Sun and Mercury in 12th and 1st.

General.—Venus and Saturn are the planets in favourable signs for the entire month. Though Venus is under check during the first half, Saturn is free for the whole month and Venus for the rest of the month. Sun, Mercery, Mars and Jupiter are in evil signs throughout and only Sun and Mercury are under check, Mars and Jupiter being free. The evil elements have therefore some preponderance and this feature will be reflected in the general results of the month. All sorts of obstacles and setbacks in your undertakings, troublesome and tedious journeys, loss of prestige, sorrows, quarrels with friends and relatives and troubles through them, low company with its incidental evil consequences, losses, unwelcome changes and removals, danger to property, scandals, etc,, are likely forms of suffering during the month. Still some luxuries and enjoyments, educational and academical successes, auspicious events in the family are also probable. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Dhanishta will reap the richest results for the favourable transits and suffer least from the evil ones. But those born with Satabhishak and Purvabhadra as their birth star may not benefit much from the good transits and will have to suffer more or less from the evil transits.

Health and Domestic.—Digestive disorders, rectal troubles like haemorrhage, dysentery etc., may figure among the ailments of the month. But it should be possible to avoid them or at least alleviate them with care as to diet and general habits. Comparatively, the troubles incidental to the domestic and social spheres will be greater and mental sufferings more acute. Sundry bickerings and quarrels with friends and relatives inside and outside the domestic circle may be inevitable and it may be necessary to exercise considerable restraint.

Finance and Speculation.—The evil transits, however, touch the financial sphere lightly and the conditions in this respect may be fairly satisfactory throughout the month, though the second half may be expected to be somewhat better than the first. Increase in wealth, gifts, presents, also opportunities for improving one's financial position are the results to be expected from the favourable transits. At the same time, one should be wide awake not to suffer losses through deceit or confidence tricks etc., or through speculative activities.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—It is difficult to visualise what will happen to landlords and landholders in respect of their holdings, rentals, profits etc., as both good and bad transits impinge upon their affairs. As the evil transits are more powerful, only adverse results are to be expected though their severity will be tempered by the benefic influences. Loss of property may occur. Yield may be affected by pests, rents may become unrealisable, quarrels and disputes, even litigation may arise with regard to your rights to property. The services will do fairy well this month. The unemployed may get employed and those entertained on a temporary footing may be retained on a permanent basis. As regards promotion or new status and positions, the influences are conflicting and some help from current directions may be necessary to implement them so that actual results may be realised within the month itself. The profession and business will have to experience ups and downs this month but they may not at any time go below average levels.

For Women.—The first half is generally more favourable for interests concerning the fair sex as such. Some altered circumstances in the family, or less co-operation from the earning members etc., may be responsible. Setbacks to your plans may also occur because of your plans being too ambitious or unrealistic. Though chances for at least partial success in your schemes may fluctuate widely throughout the month, it will be better if you concentrate all your efforts during the second half rather than allow them to run waste in the first.

Fortunate Dates.—Profession and business—2, 6, 9, 18 and 25; journeys—4 (p.m.), 6, 15 and 18; new ventures—2, 6 and 26; children's affairs—2, 9 and 26; private and domestic—4 (p.m.) and 25; dealing with superiors, etc.—4 (p.m.) and 18; partnership and opposite sex—2, 4 (p.m.), 12 (p.m.) and 15; educational and tests, etc.—9; insurance—9 and 25.

Critical Dates.—Speculation—1, 7, 14 and 21; children's affairs—1; partnership and opposite sex—1, 7, 14 and 22; profession and business—7, 14 and 21; interviews, etc.—7, 14, 21 and 28; journeys—14; real property—21; personal and domestic—28; dealing with superiors—14 and 22; insurance—7.

Chandrashtama from night of 24th till about midnight of 26th.

12. Meena (Pisces).—Kethu in 1st; Mars in 3rd; Rahu in 7th; Jupiter in 9th; Saturn in 10th; Sun and Mercury in 11th and 12th; and Venus in 12th and 1st.

General.—Mars and Jupiter are in favourable signs for the entire month. But it is a pity that both these benefic and powerful influences are throughout under check. Venus is good and free of vedha for the wole month. Sun and Mercury are in very favourable places before change of sign. Of these, Mercury alone is under check when favourable. The only other transit influence is Saturn who is in tenth where he cannot be said to be wholly evil. He is free of check. Thus there are many benefic transits for the month; in fact at the opening of the month, five planets are in outright favourable signs though three of them are under check. Still, the month will prove to be one of the best in the whole year and the first half will produce still better results than the second. General success, prosperity, gains, happiness, luxuries, pleasure from children, auspicious events and celebrations, educational and academical successes, enjoyments, etc., are the good happenings due for the first half. Troubles from rivals and enemies, quarrels and misunderstandings with friends and relatives, sorrows and anxieties may occur during the second half. Of the three asterisms of the sign, those born under Poorvabhadra and Revati will reap better results and suffer less than those born with Uttarabhadra as their birth star.

Scanned with CamScanner Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

Health and Domestic.—Good health will be experinced throughout the month as even the evil transits have not much jurisdiction to cause illness. Those chronically subject to malarial fever will be well to take precautions however during the second half. Home and domestic conditions will be pleasant and harmonious with auspicious events and celebrations, visits of welcome friends, acquisition of luxury items and their enjoyment. The month is well suited for social and philanthropic activities which will bring fame and popularity.

Finance and Speculation.—The month should also prove good for finance. Fresh sources of income as well as increased income and gains from the usual avenues can be expected. Financial enterprises gain considerably greater chances for success during the first half than later on. It may even be necessary to take special precautions against losses through strained relationship with partners or others on whose co-operation you will have to depend for success in your schemes. Speculation conducted with much care and caution may bring in good profits.

Real Property, Services, Profsssion, etc.—Inspite of all the favourable transits, real property matters in so far as related to landlords and landholders will manifest a decided downward trend during the month, though there will be great variation on the way which affects individual members. In a great majority of cases, the native's own pessimism and defeatist mentality will be responsible for a much greater suffering or losses than need be the case. A positive and buoyant attitude with cheerful tackling of the problems relating to real property as and when they arise will go a great deal towards a satisfactory solution. The services stand to profit much during the month, especially in the first half even though what comes to them will not be easy or without striving for them. What seems quite near may be swept far away through unforeseen causes and what may will be beyond your control. With all this, there is scope for substantial betterment during the first half. The same observations also apply for the business and the profession who will succeed well in their enterprises but not without much effort and straining therefor.

For Women.—The month is generally favourable for all matters and activities appertaining to the fair sex as such and the difference between the first and second halves will be secured without much trouble or efforts and with the willing co-operation of all those interested in you of either sex will be much more difficult of achievement during the latter half as such co-operation will be lacking or half-hearted. Still this month can be said to be one in which matters generally run smoothly and without hitch.

Fortunate Dates.—Profession and business—2, 4 (p.m.), 6 11 (a.m.) and 26; new ventures—2, 9, 11 (a.m.), 15 and 25; children's affairs—2, 4 (p.m.) private and domestic—6, 25 and 26; dealing with superiors, etc.—4 (p.m.) and 18; partnership and opposite sex—4 (p.m.), 6, 11 (a.m.) 12 (p.m.) and 15; educational and tests, etc.—9; insurance—9 and 25.

Critical Dates.—Speculation—1, 7, 8 and 16; children's affairs—7 and 14; partnersship and opposite sex—28; profession and business—8, 14 and 22; interviews etc.—1, 14, 16, 22 and 28; journeys—1, 7, 8, 16 and 28; real property—16; personal and domestic—14; dealing with superiors 7; landlords—8; and insurance—16.

Chandrashtama from about midnight of 26th till midnight of 28th.

ERRATAUM

The author of the article "Influence of Planetary Colours on Racing" published on page 111 of January 1959 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE is Mr. S. Niogi and not Mr. Khiogi as wrongly printed.

Ready for Sale

Jyotish Aur Adhunik Vichara Dhara

(ज्योतिष और आधुनिक विचारधारा)

(IN HINDI)

By Bangalore Venkata Raman

Hindi Translation by Prof. Om Prakash Kahol, M.Sc., B.T.

This is a translation of ASTROLOGY AND MODERN THOUGHT into chaste Hindi by a Scientist and Scholar. Presents the Rationale of Astrology with Statistical Proofs.

The finest Book to be ever published in Hindi on the Scientific Aspect of Astrology.

Excellent get-up. Price Rs. 3

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari" :: BANGALORE-3

Scanned by www.vedicastrologyhisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B.V Ramans Work

Astronomical Notes

By S. K. KAR, B.Sc.

 Sayana Positions of Planets on 1st February 1959, true for 5–30 a.m. (Indian Standard Time).

Graha (Planet)			Dhruva (R.A.)		Kranti (Declin.)		Sphuta (Long.)		Kshepa (Lat.)
			°	′	°	′	°	′	°	′
Ravi	☉	...	313	50	17 S	22	11 ♒	22	...
Chandra	☽	...	222	19	13 S	43	14 ♏	2	2 N	27
Kuja	♂	...	56	3	21 N	14	26 ♉	4	2 N	1
Budha	☿	...	304	52	21 S	28	2 ♒	10	1 S	51
Guru	♃	...	236	52	18 S	57	28 ♏	52	0 N	59
Sukra	♀	...	333	28	12 S	36	0 ♓	51	1 S	32
Sani	♄	...	273	12	22 S	28	2 ♑	53	0 N	56
Uranus	♅	...	136	25	17 N	11	14 ♌	26	8 N	43
Neptune	♆	...	215	12	12 S	10	6 ♏	56	1 N	46

Scanned by www.vedicastrology.ac To Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

THE SUN

The Sun starts on his journey from 20th degree of Nirayana Capricornus, enters Aquarius on the 11th and terminates the journey on the 17th degree. His south declination decreases from 17° 22′ to 8° 20′ during this month.

THE MOON

The Moon begins to move from the 23rd degree of Libra, and then gradually completing the journey in the heavens, he stops on the 19th degree of the same sign. He attains maximum declination of about 18° 35′ South on the 4th, and again a maximum declination of about 18° 29′North on the 18th. He crosses the celestial equator towards the North on the 10th, and towards the South on the 25th. He comes to his Apogee on the 14th and to his Perigee on the 26th. He goes to his descending node on the 12th and the ascending node on the 26th. He forms with the Sun the following aspects in this month:

New Moon	on 8th	at about	1 a.m.
First quarter	on 16th	,,	1 a.m.
Full Moon	on 23rd	,,	2 p.m.
Vaidhriti	on 14th	,,	6 a.m.
Vyatipata	on 26th	,,	11 p.m.

MARS AND MERCURY

Mars starts on his journey from the 5th degree of Taurus and stops on the 17th degree.

Mercury begins to move on from the 11th degree of Capricornus. He enters Aquarius on the 12th and then stops on the 29th degree of the same sign. He crosses the celestial equator towards the north on the 5th and rises heliacally in the West on the 28th.

JUPITER AND SATURN

Jupiter begins to progress from the 8th degree of Scorpio and proceeds upto the 10th degree of the same sign. His average daily motion varies from 8′ to 4′ during the month.

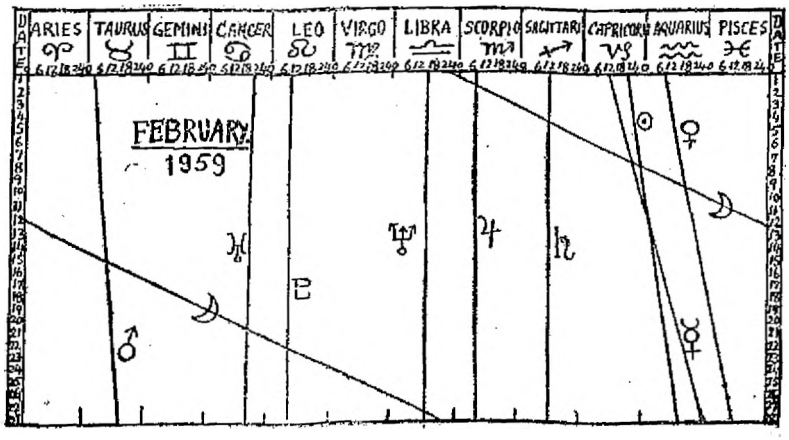
Saturn starts on from the 12th degree of Sagittarius and stops on the 14th degree. His average daily motion is about 5 minutes in this month.

VENUS AND RAHU

Venus starts on his journey from the 10th degree of Aquarius, enters Pisces on the 17th and then stops on the 13th degree. He comes on the celestial equator on the 26th and crosses it towards the north.

Rahu moves back from the 24th degree of Virgo to the 22nd degree.

OTHER PLANETS



Uranus is retrograde and moves back from 22° 37′ to 21° 28′ of Cancer.

Neptune is direct at first, and then becomes retrograde on the 7th. He moves from 15° 7′ to 15° 1′ of Libra.

Pluto is retrograde and moves in a backward direction from 11° 42′ of Leo to 11° 0′ of the same sign.

LUNAR CONJUNCTIONS

The Moon will form conjunctions with planets in following order:

* The R.A. is always given on Sayana basis, while in the description of planetary movements, the longitudes are given on Nirayana basis, the current Ayanamsa being 21° 49′ 38.789″.

Jupiter	on 2nd	at about	7 a.m.
Saturn	on 4th	,,	5 p.m.
Mercury	on 7th	,,	3 p.m.
Sun	on 8th	,,	1 a.m.
Venus	on 9th	,,	8 p.m.
Rahu	on 12th	,,	11 a.m.
Mars	on 16th	,,	1 p.m.
Uranus	on 22nd	,,	3 a.m.
Pluto	on 23rd	,,	1 p.m.
Rahu	on 26th	,,	8 a.m.
Neptune	on 27th	,,	11 p.m.

POURNIMA (FULL MOON) AND AMAVASYA (NEW MOON) TITHIS

Commencing moments for the meridian of New Delhi. (77° E 13′, 28° N 39′)

I. Amavasya tithi commences at 1h. 33m. a.m. (I.S.T) on 7th Feb. 1959

Cusps of Houses:—Ascendaut 213° 46′; 2nd 246° 1′; 3rd 278° 16′; 10th 130° 31′; 11th 158° 16′ and 12th 186° 1′.

Nirayana Positions of Planets

The Sun 295° 28′; the Moon 283° 27′; Mars 36° 35′; Mercury 290° 4′; Jupiter 217° 45′; Venus 316° 18′; Saturn 251° 39′; Uranus 111° 22′; Neptune 195° 8′; Pluto 131° 33′ and Rahu 172° 50′.

II. Pournima tithi commences at 16h. 15m. i.e. 4h. 15m. p.m. (I.S.T.) on 22nd February 1959

Cusps of Houses:—Ascendant 105° 33′; 2nd 133° 52′; 3rd 162° 11′; 10th 10° 29′; 11th 42° 10′ and 12th 73° 51′.

Nirayana Positions of Planets

The Sun 311° 14′; the Moon 119° 16′; Mars 43° 33′; Mercury 318° 8′; Jupiter 219° 14′; Venus 335° 42′; Saturn 253° 1′; Uranus 111° 42′; Neptune 195° 5′; Pluto 131° 10′ and Rahu 171° 42′.

PLANETARY ASPECTS

THE SUN

Opposition	Uranus	on the	3rd
Trine	Rahu	,,	4th
Conj. (Sup.)	Mercury	,,	14th
Paralle	Neptune	,,	17th
Paralle	Mercury	,,	19th
Square	Jupiter	,,	20th
Opp.	Pluto	,,	22nd
Sextile	Saturn	,,	24th
Trine	Neptune	,,	26th
Square	Mars	,,	27th

MERCURY

Square	Nepture	on the	4th
Parallel	Jupiter	,,	7th
Opp.	Uranus	,,	8th
Trine	Rahu	,,	8th
Square	Jupiter	,,	17th
Parallel	Neptune	,,	18th
Opp.	Pluto	,,	18th
Square	Mars	,,	19th
Sextile	Saturn	,,	19th
Trine	Neptune	,,	21st

VENUS

Parallel	Neptune	on the	2nd
Sextile	Saturn	,,	2nd
Opp.	Pluto	,,	3rd
Trine	Neptune	,,	5th
Trine	Jupiter	,,	25th
Square	Saturn	,,	28th

MARS

Parallel	Pluto	on the	5th
Opp.	Jupiter	,,	10th
Square	Pluto	,,	17th

SATURN

Trine	Pluto	on the	6th

URANUS

Sextile	Rahu	on the	22nd

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Late B. V. Raman's Work

FUTURE OF BURMA

(Continued from page 210)

trouble which will become more manifest by April, will be overcome with methods involving tact and wisdom.

Summing up, though the future of Burma is indeed disquieting, General Ne Win will be giving the country a strong Government and his administration will be able to suppress the insurrection. But there is no indication that democracy will be restored in the immediate future. On the contarry, U.Nu's experiment will most likely result in the dissolution of the A.F.P.F.L. Real peace and prosperty for Burma can have any meaning only after 1962. Until then the country will have to pass through serious troubles. Though the army will be imbued with the idea of service, it will be drawn into the centre of serious controversy. There are chances of some insubordination even in the ranks of the military but General Ne Win's Government would be able to meet successfully all such threats to law and order. Whether or not democracy in Burma will be assured by authoritarian means, if U Nu had not acted in the way he did by way of transferring power to Ne Win, Burma would have had to pass through a civil war, thanks to the disposition of Mars and Saturn in Chart No. 1. General Ne Win will pave the way for prosperity and peace to come only after 1962.

To us, developments in Burma are of great significance. For, Burma is not only our neighbour in the political sense but a part of India in the cultural and religious sense for it was India that carried arts, culture and civilisation to all these Eastern countries and that Indian influence is still supreme. Even now Burma's cultural and religious life are so much influenced by Indian thought that it would not be wrong on our part to say that the people of Burma seem to be nearer akin to us.

—Written 28-2-1958.

To be out Shortly

Prasna Marga

(English Translation)

With original slokas in Devanagari, notes and illustrations. A great and unique classic on Prasna (Horary) as well as Jataka (Horoscopy)

IN TWO PARTS

I Part—1 to 16 Chapters, Price about Rs. 12.75

II Part—17 to 32 Chapters Price about Rs. 12.75

First Part will be ready by April 1959

Orders Registered for both Parts and not for the I part only

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"SRI RAJESWARI"

BANGALORE-3

The Astrological Magazine EPHEMERIS

FOR FEBRUARY 1959

All positions are true for 5-30 a.m. (I.S.T.)

Feb.	Day of the Week	Sun ☉ Ravi			Moon ☽ Chandra			Mars ♂ Kuja		Mer. ☿ Budha		Jup. ♃ Guru		Venus ♀ Sukra		Saturn ♄ Sani		Rahu ☊ Rahu
		°	′	″	°	′	″	°	′	°	′	°	′	°	′	°	′	°	′
1	Sunday	289	32	54	202	13	0	34	15	280	21	217	3	309	2	251	4	174	36
2	Monday	290	33	48	216	18	35	34	39	281	59	217	11	310	17	251	10	174	33
3	Tuesday	291	34	41	230	22	56	35	2	283	38	217	19	311	32	251	16	174	29
4	Wednesday	292	35	33	244	24	12	35	26	285	17	217	26	312	47	251	22	174	26
5	Thursday	293	36	24	258	19	49	35	50	286	58	217	33	314	2	251	28	174	23
6	Friday	294	37	15	272	6	34	36	15	288	38	217	40	315	16	251	34	174	20
7	Saturday	295	38	4	285	41	1	36	40	290	20	217	47	316	31	251	40	174	17
8	Sunday	296	38	52	299	0	0	37	5	292	2	217	54	317	46	251	45	174	14
9	Monday	297	39	30	312	1	57	37	30	293	46	218	1	319	0	251	51	174	10
10	Tuesday	298	40	24	324	45	34	37	56	295	30	218	7	320	15	251	57	174	7
11	Wednesday	299	41	8	337	11	44	38	21	297	15	218	13	321	30	252	2	174	4
12	Thursday	300	41	50	349	22	33	38	48	299	0	218	20	322	44	252	8	174	1
13	Friday	301	42	31	1	21	21	39	14	300	47	218	26	323	59	252	13	173	58
14	Saturday	302	43	10	13	13	25	39	40	302	34	218	32	325	14	252	18	173	54
15	Sunday	303	43	48	25	0	40	40	7	304	22	218	37	326	28	252	24	173	51
16	Monday	304	44	24	36	51	21	40	34	306	11	218	43	327	43	252	29	173	48
17	Tuesday	305	44	58	48	49	48	41	2	308	0	218	48	328	57	252	34	173	45
18	Wednesday	306	45	30	61	1	4	41	29	309	51	218	53	330	11	252	39	173	42
19	Thursday	307	46	2	73	29	29	41	57	311	42	218	58	331	26	252	44	173	39
20	Friday	308	46	30	86	18	23	42	24	313	33	219	3	832	40	252	49	173	35
21	Saturday	309	46	56	99	29	33	42	52	315	25	219	8	333	54	252	54	173	32
22	Sunday	310	47	22	113	3	0	43	21	317	18	219	13	335	9	252	59	173	29
23	Monday	311	47	45	126	56	43	43	49	319	10	219	17	336	23	253	4	173	26
24	Tuesday	312	48	7	141	7	0	44	18	321	3	219	21	337	37	253	8	173	23
25	Wednesday	313	48	27	155	28	47	44	46	322	56	219	26	338	51	253	13	173	20
26	Thursday	314	48	46	169	56	33	45	15	324	48	219	29	340	5	253	17	173	16
27	Friday	315	49	3	184	25	0	45	44	326	40	219	33	341	19	253	22	173	13
28	Saturday	316	49	19	198	49	38	46	14	328	32	219	37	342	33	253	26	173	10

AYANAMSA 21° 49′ 38.789″

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Raman's Work

A FEW SHOP-SOILED COPIES OF THE FOLLOWING BOOKS ARE AVAILABLE

	Rs. nP.		Rs. nP.
Astrology and Modern Thought	... 1 00	The Universe and the Heavens	... 3 00
Your Next Five Years—1953 to 1957	... 0 75	Ayurveda	... 0 75
Muhurtha or Electional Astrology	... 5 50	Annual Numbers of 1954 & 1956	... 2 50
A Manual of Hindu Astrology	... 3 00

No. V.P.P. Post Free. Send M.O. or I.P.O.

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS : : "Sri Rajeswari" : : BANGALORE-3

Daily Guide

FOR FEBRUARY 1959

By MIHIRA

1. Sun.—L.D. 8 till 12-30 p.m., then L.D. 9. Visakha till 3-25 a.m. (night), then Anuradha. A.M.: Generally unfavourable; bad for changes and removals, danger in travel, liability to accidents, bad also for money dealings, liability to losses, bad also for dealings with superiors, interviews, etc. P.M.: Continues evil; bad for business enterprises, dealings in real property. To women especially, liability to slander or disgrace.

2. Mon.—L.D. 9 till 9-50 a.m., then L.D. 10. Anuradha till 1-55 a.m. (night), then Jyestha. A.M.: Bad in general till sunrise but good thereafter for money matters, business dealings, new attachments, dealings with opposite sex, social activities, etc. P.M.: Continues less favourable for all above matters, good also for changes, new enterprises, increase of business but not so good for the female sex.

3. Tues.—L.D. 10 till 8-0 a.m., then L.D. 11 till 6-0 a.m. (night), then L.D. 12. Jyeshta till 0-25 a.m. (night), then Moola. A.M.: Mixed influences prevail though the good ones predominate; bad for courtships, love affairs, dealings with opposite sex in general; likelihood of emotional disappointmnnts but good for dealings with superiors, journeys, changes, new enterprises. P.M.: The same trends continue with less force—mostly nondescript.

4. Wed.—L.D. 12 till 4-20 a.m. (night), then L.D. 13. Moola till 11-45 p.m., then Poorvashada. AM.: Generally bad but specially so for money dealings, transactions speculation, standing surety, etc.; liability to losses by fraud and deception. P.M.: Continues evil till about sunset; bad for business enterprises, etc., but better influences prevail thereafter and may be considered good in general

5. Thurs.—L.D. 13 till 3-0 a.m. (night), then L.D. 13. Poorvashada till 10-45 p.m., then Uttarashada. A.M.: Not very important; bad for litigation, speculation, money dealings; generosity likely to be abused by friends; not advisable to travel as accidents are not improbable. P.M.: Continues evil for changes and removals, dealings with superiors, interviews, domestic matters; avoid dealings with public bodies, etc.

6. Fri.— L. D. 14 till 2-5 a.m. (night), then L.D. 15 (Amavasai). Uttarashada till 10-25 p.m., then Sravana. A.M.: A very good time in general, a period for steady enterprise activities in art, music, fine arts, holidaying, new enterprises, changes and removals, physical and athletic activities. P.M.: Continues favourable for business affairs, financial deals, social activities, etc.

7. Sat.—L.D. 15 (Amavasai) till 1-40 a.m. (night), then L.D. 1. Sravana till 10-30 p.m., then Dhanista. A.M.: Favovrable for all activities in general, professional and business enterprises, correspondence, ravels, interviews, litigation, changes and removals, contracts and agreements. P.M.: Generally unfavourable; bad for changes and removals, money dealings, credit dealings, dealings with superiors, public bodies, etc.

8. Sun.—L.D. 1 of increasing half of lunar Makha till 1-40 a.m. (night), then L.D. 2. Dhanishta till 11-0 p.m. then Satabhishak. A.M.: Not favourable in general; avoid heavy food and be careful in general habits as colds and minor ailments are probable; avoid journeys as far as possible; be careful in speaking and correspondence. P.M.: More unfavourable then favourable, though better than a.m.; Continue to exercise care in all of above matters.

9. Mon.—L.D. 2 till 2-15 a.m. (night) then L.D. 3. Satabhishak till 0-5 a.m., then Poorvabhadrapada. A.M.: Good for new enterprises and ventures, gains through industry and business, assumption of new responsibilities, purchase of articles of luxury, courtship, love affairs, activities in art, music, etc. P.M.: Continues favourable for all of above matters.

10. Tues.—L.D. 3 till 3-20 a.m. (night), then L.D. 4. Poorvabhadrapada till 1-40 a.m. (night), then Uttarabhadrapada. A.M.: Mildly favourable for journeys, correspondence, dealings with public in general, literary matters, interviews, activities in the art field. P.M.: Avoid extravagance and wastefulness, financial dealings and enterprises, litigation, travel and specultion, lending money, standing surety, etc.

11. Wed.—L.D. 4 till 4-50 a.m. (night), then L.D. 5. Uttarabhadrapada till 3-40 a.m, (night), then Revati. A.M.: Favourable for all matters in general, business activities, speculation, new contracts, money dealings, social activities, physical and athletic activities; women should beware of impulsive attachments. P.M.: Unfavourable in general, liability to delays and disappointments in all matters, business failures, avoid real property dealings and transactions.

12. Thurs.—L.D. 5 whole day and night. Revati till 5-55 a.m. (night), then Aswini. A.M.: Generally good; favourable time for exploiting inventions, original ideas, dealings with Governmental, political or Corporate bodies, contracts, changes and removals, journeys, romantic attachments. P.M.; Not favourable in general, avoid opposite sex, travel, money dealings, etc. For women specially harmful, avoid compromising situations, dealings with employers, etc.

13. Fri.—L.D. 5 till 6-37 a.m. then L.D. 6. Aswini whole day and night. A.M.: Generally favourable for all matters in general; specially good for journeys, correspondence, interviews, scholastic matters, changes, removals, contracts and agreements, litigation, publication work, etc. P.M.: Continues favourable for dealings with the public, social and philanthropic activities, new enterprises.

14. Sat.—L.D. 6 till 8-45 a.m. then L.D. 7. Aswini till 8-50 a.m., then Bharani. A.M: Mixed influences prevail. Good for business matters, real property affairs, new responsibilities, etc., but not for money dealings, litigation, activities connected with art, music, speculation, etc. P.M.: Bad for all matters in general; avoid rash actions, quarrels, disputes in general, travel, liability to accidents.

15. Sun.—L.D. 7 till 10-50 a.m., then L.D. 8. Bharani till 11-5 a.m., then Krittigai. A.M.: Good for pleasurable activities, purchase of articles of luxury, courtships, love affairs, new friends, theatre going, journeys, literary and journalistic activities, contracts and agreements. P.M.: Not favourable generally; avoid all important enterprises and activities, dealings with superiors, journeys, etc., as far as possible.

Scanned by www.saptarishi.jyotish.org.in (Reserved) Do not Reproduce

16. Mon.—L.D- 8 till 12-50 p.m., then L.D. 9. Krittigai till 1-30 p.m., then Rohini. A.M.: Not generally favourable but not bad; avoid journeys as far as possible, correspondence and interviews, also money dealings, speculation, new attachments, etc. P.M.: Unfavourable for all matters in general; avoid specially dealings with opposite sex, bad company, travel, new enterprises.

17. Tues.—L.D. 9 till 2-35 p.m., then L.D. 10. Rohini till 3-45 p.m., then Mrigasira. A.M.: Ordinarily favourable for all matters but good for dealings with Government and Corporations, exploiting original ideas, inventions, journeys, changes and removals in general, new friends, etc. P.M.: Generally unfavourable; avoid lending moneys and becoming surety, avoid litigation, speculation; beware of false friends and traitors.

18. Wed.—L.D, 10 till 4-0 p.m., then L.D. 11. Mrigasira till 5-35 p.m., then Aridra. A.M.: Mildly unfavourable in general and even that only for matters connected with opposite sex, courtships, etc.; not bad for business pursuits and enterprises, dealings with Governmental bodies, superiors, interviews, etc. P.M.: Favourable for new enterprises in general, dealings with superiors, seeking help from opposite sex, journeys, changes, etc..

19. Thurs.—L.D. 11 till 4-35 p.m., then L.D- 12. Ardra till 7-0 p.m., then Punarvasu. A.M.: Mixed influences prevail, bad for new enterprises, dealings in real property and to women danger of slander, disgrace, etc., but good for activities connected with art, music, new friendships, journeys, excursions, etc. P.M.: Good for contracts, agreements, business advancement, long journeys, assumption of new responsibilities.

20. Fri.—L.D. 12 till 5-25 p.m., then L.D. 13. Punarvasu till 7-55 p.m.. then Pushya. A.M.: Not favourable for social or public activities, journeys, physical and athletic activities, dealings with superiors, Governmental or corporate bodies litigations, money dealings, standing surety. P.M.: Favourable for dealings with opposite sex, courtships, love affairs, purchase of articles of luxury,, presents, picnics, theatre going, etc.

21. Sat.—L.D. 13 till 5-15 p.m., then L.D. 14. Pushya till 8-30 p.m., then Aslesha. A.M.: Till sunrise, good and favourable in general. After sunrise: Evil for all matters, avoid bad temper, rash actions, journeys and conduct yourself above board in all matters; otherwise danger of dishonour and disgrace. P.M.: Much of the evil influences disappear; even favourable for physical and athletic activities, sports, journeys. To women, danger of impulsive attachments.

22. Sun.—L.D. 14 till 4-40 p.m., then L.D. 15 (Poornima). Aslesha till 8-25 p.m., then Makha. A.M.: Not favourable in general: danger in travel, liability to accidents, bad for dealings with superiors, beware of discord inside domestic circle, of organised opposition in the office or business, bad for dealings with opposite sex. P.M.: Generally favourable; good for dealings with Governmental offices, contacts, agreements, etc., interviews.

23. Mon.—L.D. 15 (Poornima) till 3-25 p.m., then L.D. 1. Makha till 7-45 p.m., then Poorvaphalguna. A.M.: Good for correspondence, journeys, interviews, service matters, dealings with superiors, money dealings and transactions, new enterprises and ventures; still great caution will be required as to some extent contrary influences also prevail. P.M.: Unfavourable; bad for changes, speculation, dealings with opposite sex, business activities in general, service matters.

24. Tues—L.D. 1 till 1-35 p.m., then L.D. 2. Poorvaphalguna till 6-55 p.m., then Uttaraphalguna. A.M.: Not very good; likelihood of disputes with friends and relatives, which avoid as far as possible; bad for literary matters, tests, examinations, publications, contracts, agreements, journeys. P.M.: Favourable; good for investments, dealings with professional people, real property matters in general, dealings with elderly people.

25. Wed.—L.D. 2 till 12-10 p.m., then L.D. 3. Uttaraphalguna till 5-45 p.m., then Hastha. A.M.: Quite favourable for all matters in general; specially good for dealings with opposite sex, courtships, love affairs, money dealings, speculation, social activities. P.M.: Very favourable in general, financial enterprises, benefits through women in general, social activities, lasting attachments, care with regard to real property matters necessary.

26. Thurs.—L.D. 3 till 10-10 a.m., then L.D. 4. Hastha till 4-20 p.m., then Chitra. A.M.: Very good in general for all matters; unexpected gains, good time to exploit original ideas, inventions, seeking benefits through Governmental or Corporate bodies, journeys, changes, etc., even speculation is favoured. P.M.: Becomes generally unfavourable but only mild afflictions prevail and ordinary business can be done.

27. Fri.—L.D. 4 till 7-55 a.m., then L.D. 5 till 5-35 a.m. (night), then L.D. 6. Chitra till 2-45 p.m., then Swati. A.M.: Favourable for general activities, bnsiness matters, new enterprises, changes, but not good for the female sex who may be subjected to anxieties, health changes, etc. P.M.: Generally favourable for business matters, real property affairs, investments, dealings with superiors, elderly persons in general.

28. Sat.—L.D. 6 till 3-10 a.m. (night), then L.D. 7. Swati till 1-5 p.m., then Visakha. A.M.: Mixed influences prevail in general; good for dealings wirh supetiors, Governmental bodies, contracts, interviews, tests, etc., but not for changns, removals, journeys, etc. P.M.: Bad for business matters, investments, liability to losses through deception, fraud, etc., bad for dealings with opposite sex, love affairs, liability to emotional disappointments, avoid undesirable persons in generai of both sexes.

LIST OF FESTIVALS.

HINDU :

7 Thai Amavasaya
15 Ratha Sapthami.
24 Masi Makha
Guru Ravi Das Birthday (Govt. of India Holiday)

MOHAMADAN

6 Sab-e-Meraj (Festival observed on the preceding night).
14 Shab-e-Barat (Festival observed on the preceding night)
26 Syed Shah Moosa Kadiri.

CHRISTIAN

1 Sexagesima
8 Shrove Sunday
10 Shrove Tuesday.

Scanned by Professional Astrologer Group. Preserve Dr. Raj's Valuable Work

TEST MY SHAMSI CHARM
For any object whatsoever, FREE of cost. Only state your sensible object and send postage order 75 nP. towards incidental expenses and will receive the velvet charm absolutely free. Countless of needy in India and foreign countries have benefited. Akhtar Husen Sahib,
Khas Road, RAMPUR, (U.P.) India.

TABLES OF SPUTALAGNA
1900 to 1960 (13 N Lat)
(A ready-reckoner) By R.N. Ramasubban
Enables even a layman to ascertain correct sputalagna. The knowledge of Ayanamsa, Sidereal Time, Latitude, Longitude and L. M. Time are absolutely unnecessary. Very useful for beginners as well as adepts. The timings are given in Indian Standard Time.
Rs. 1-25 per copy. Packing & Postage extra. Apply to:
R. N. RAMASUBBAN,
Ravanasamudram-Tirunelveli District

By Parimal Purkayastha
INDIAN ASTROLOGY AND DISEASES
Price Rs. 5.50
INDIAN ASTROLOGY, SEX, MARRIAGE AND CHILDREN
Price Rs. 6
Available from:
P. PURKAYASTHA
12-A, NETAJI SUBHAS ROAD
CALCUTTA-3
OR
RAMAN PUBLICATIONS
"SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE-3

Sri Chakra Pooja
AT
SRI RAMANASRAMAM
TIRUVANNAMALAI
SIX POOJAS A MONTH
WITH SIX PRIESTS
ACCORDING TO
Saparya Paddathi
Why not lay your problems at the Feet of Sri Thripurasundari,
the Divine Mother?
Hundreds of devotees take advantage of this
Why don't you participate?
Remit Rs. 10/-
with Name, Gothra and Nakshatra to the Manager-President.
(No pooja can be performed except on the specified days: Fridays, Full Moon and first day of Tamil Month.)

Consult
Late Famous Astrologer
PROF. B. SURYANARAIN RAO'S SECOND SON
B. LAKSHMINARAIN RAU, B.A.
Retd. Govt. High School Headmaster,
17, East Anjaneya Temple Street,
Basavangudi, Bangalore-4.
For your mental and bodily worries and proper remedial measures
Minimum charge for a detailed horoscope
Rs. 100 and upwards.
Enclose stamped covers for reply.

Consult Famous Astrologer
V.P. KANHERE
129, Shukurwar Peth, Poona City-2
Scientific Life Reading: Rs. 10
One Question: Rs. 2
Horoscope or Birth Time, Place, Date necessary.

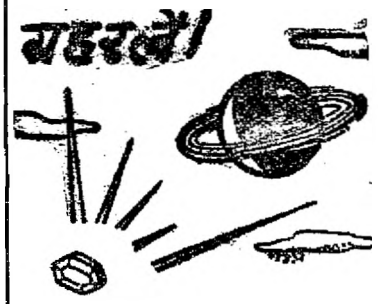
SPECIAL REPORT
OF
A. C. Percy for Budget and February 1959

Sure success and golden chance to make money in February and Budget of 1959 is knocking at your door. Our forecasts have worked wonders and proved amazingly correct.

Shares:—Sharp Mandi in Shares was predicted by us from November 1958 before Diwali and also in December after along spell of Teji and it proved quite correct.

Silver and Gold:—Long Teji line still running has been predicted by us from July from price of Rs. 179-8-0 for Silver and from Rs. 103-8-0 for Gold and it also proved amazingly quite correct.

Cotton, Kapsia, Groudnuts, Castorseeds and Oils, Rayons, Chemicals, etc.:—Forecasts similarly proved correct.



Please don't fail to get our special forecast for Budget 1959 as some Yogas occurred in past are reoccuring from February/March, 1959 and the same will cause the same effect on all markets and especially on Shares. Apply for fees, etc., enclosing stamped and self-addressed envelope

To:

A. C. PERCY,
Botawala Building, 3rd Floor,
257, Takurdwar Road,
BOMBAY-2

MONEY MAKING BOOK
Start your own business at home with or without capital; full or part-time and solve your financial and employment problems. Read 50 practical money making ideas to suit India and other Asian countries. Rs. 3 only.
ENTERPRISE PUBLICATIONS,
POST BOX NO. 3019, NEW DELHI

ASTRAL GEMSTONES

If you wish to have your correct Astral Gemstone, please do not fail to consult us by sending Birth Chart with date, time and place of birth.

KALEY & SONS
DEALERS IN ASTRAL GEMSTONES
Wardha (Bombay State)

KNOW YOUR FUTURE
Scientific Life Reading Fees Rs. 10 only. Detailed Life Reading Fees Rs. 25 only. Answer to 3 queries Rs. 5.25. Please send copy of horoscope, birth-date and time with remittance. No V.P.P.
Gayatry's Astrological Services
P.O. Ratlam, (M.P.) INDIA.

Most Authentic & Practical Guide Books on Yoga, Vedanta, Mind-Control & Psychology:

By Swami Narayanananda
RISHIKESH, (HIMALAYAS).

(F.Cgs. EXTRA)	Rs.
Secrets of Mind-Control ...	6
Revelation	4
The Kundalini Shakti ...	4
The Mysteries of Man, Mind & Mind-Functions	12
Practical Guide to Samadhi ...	4
Mind, Its Source & Culture...	4
Way to Peace, P. & Long Life	2.50
Ideal Life and Moksha ...	3.50
Gist of Religions	2

Order From:
M/S. N. K. PRASAD & COMPANY,
P.O. RISHIKESH (U.P.), INDIA

ALWAYS ADVERTISE
IN
The Astrological Magazine

Scanned by www.sptarishastrology.com Preserve Old Books Work

Edited, Printed and Published by B.V. Raman at RAMAM PUBLICATIONS' PRESS, Sri "Rajeswari", Bangalore-3.

READY FOR SALE

BRIHAT JATAKA

OF VARAHA MIHIRA

English Translation by Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao with original slokas in Bold Devanagari

(FOURTH EDITION)

This is a monumental work written by Varahamihira the versatile genius of the first century B.C. and deals with the entire Science of Astrology in a masterly way. Brihat Jataka, as the author rightly asserts, is intended as a boat for all those who at first get despirited at the sight of the vast ocean of astrological knowledge but who wish to cross the same.

The book contains the invaluable commentaries of Bhattotpala which have made clear many of the obscure passages. Prof. Rao has given copious notes in his own inimitable style which facilitates easy comprehension.

CONTENTS

Introduction, Explanation of Technicalities, Differences in Planets, Various forms of Birth, Conception and Peculiarities of this Phenomenon, Peculiarities of Birth, Balarishta or Early Death, Determination of Longevity, Periods and Sub-periods, Results of Planets, Means of Livelihood, Rajayogas, Nabhasa Combinations, Results of two Planets in Combination, Ascetic Combinations, Stellar Influences, Lunar Influences, Results of Planetary Aspects, Results of Planets in different Houses, Mixed Results, Misfortunes, Female Horoscopy, Combinations for Death, Lost Horoscopy, Drekkana Influences, etc.

In fact this is the one book that everyone should read for getting a thorough knowledge of the subject. Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao is hailed as Abhinava Varahamihira and his masterly notes and the lucidity with which he has explained the principles merit your attention.

About 650 Pages, Glazed Paper, Cloth Bound, Rs. 12 or Sh. 24

(Postage Extra)

Less 12½% to Subscribers of: THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

AS ONLY A LIMITED NUMBER OF COPIES ARE PRINTED, ORDER YOUR COPY AT ONCE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari" : : BANGALORE-3

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

Registered as a Newspaper in Ceylon (No. 39-500) Regd. No. M. 4201

We Supply ALUMINIUM in All Forms

ALUMINIUM RAW METALS: Circles, Sheets for Bus Bodies and Industrial uses, Wires, Strips, Rivets, Ingots, Tubings, Mouldings, Paint, Powder for Fireworks, Corrugated Sheets for Roofing, Prefabricated Houses, Ornamental Extrusions, etc., &c.

WE MANUFACTURE:

ALUMINIUM ARTICLES FOR INDUSTRIAL USES: Rubber Coagulating Pans and Tanks, Bottles and Distillation Tanks for Sandalwood Oil Industry, Radio Horns and Chassis, Fan Blades and Canopies, Tea Basins, Embrocation Containers, Ferrules for Shaving Brushes, Transformer Covers, Camphor Tablets Containers, Clock Dials, Hands and Bezels, Carding Cans, Separators and Barrels for Textile Industry, Electrical Shades, Louvres and Fittings of various types and designs, Aluminium Roof Water Tanks, Special Castings, Furnishing Components and Louvres for Railways, Castings for Automobile and other Industries, Building Materials such as Windows, Frames, Tower Bolts, Hinges, Door Handles, Knobs, Pegs, Kitchen Sinks, etc., Equipment useful for Hospitals, Aluminium Tablewares, Typewriter Covers, Solar Cooker, etc., etc., Aluminium Cooking Utensils in hundreds of shapes, designs and sizes useful for household purposes, Canteens, Hotels, Clubs, etc., etc., and Aluminium Anodised Articles in various attractive colours and multi-colours suitable for presentation on any occasion.

JEEWANLAL (1929) LIMITED

THE LARGEST ALUMINIUM UTENSILS MANUFACTURERS

127, MINT STREET : : MADRAS-1

Managing Director :
RAI BAHADUR HIMCHAND K. SHAH

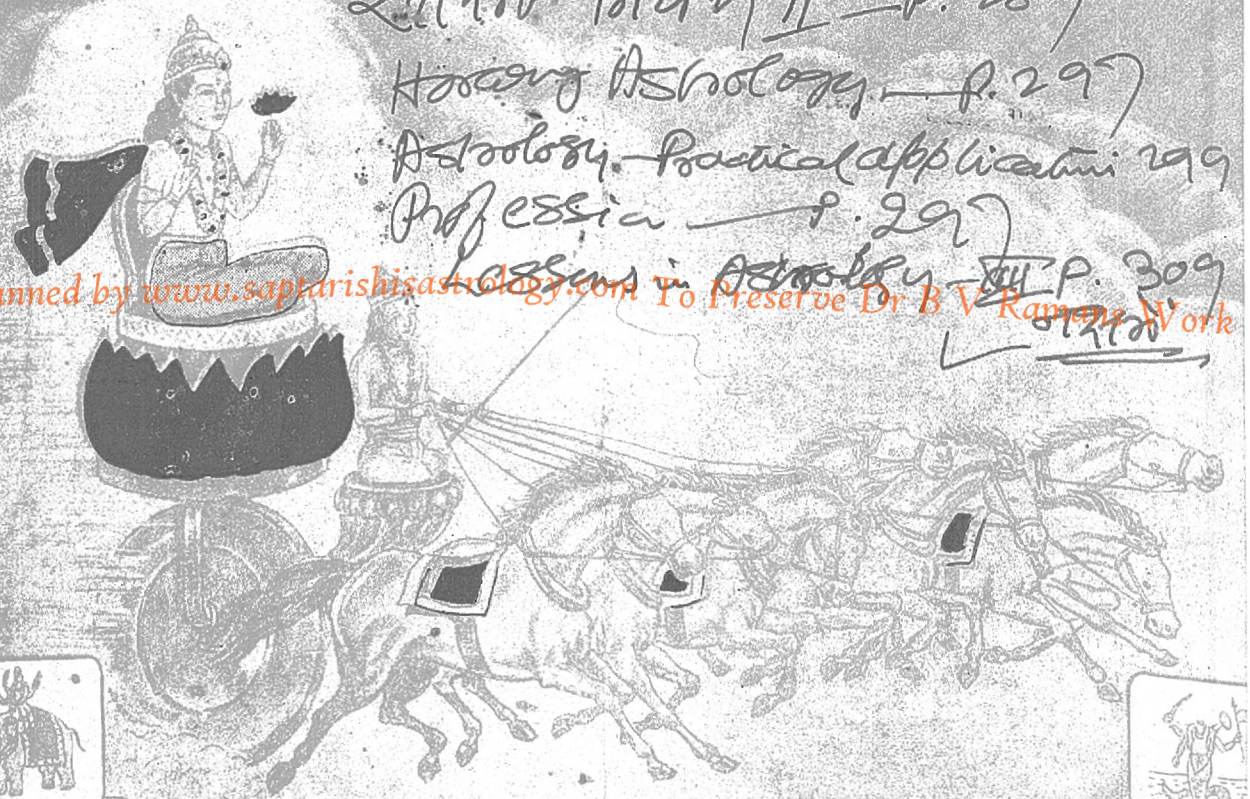
PURE ALUMINIUM * THE CROWN *
MARK OF PRESTIGE

Offices & Factories :
CALCUTTA, BOMBAY, MADRAS
DELHI, RAJAHMUNDRY, ADEN.

Scanned by www.Digitized by eGangotri & Preserved by B V Ramans Work

RA[illegible] PUBLICATIONS' PRESS

Founded in 1895 by
B. SURYANARAIN RAO



MARCH 1959

The ASTROLOGICAL Magazine

Re. 1

Edited by B.V.RAMAN

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Raman's Work

INDIA

SAYANA VERSUS NIRAYANA IN ASTROLOGY
ASTROLOGICAL SIGNIFICANCE OF BASIC INSTINCTS
HOUSE DIVISION AND THE AYANAMSA
OBSERVATIONS ON HORARY ASTROLOGY
ASTROLOGY AND ITS PRACTICAL APPLICATION
NEW LIGHT ON JAIMINI ASTROLOGY

THE FIRM

with

DISTINGUISHED IDENTITY!

Keshavlal & Co.

71, Sri Narasimharaja Road
P. O. Box No. 56
BANGALORE-2

TELEPHONE: 3027 Telegrams: "ALUBRASSCO"

Suppliers to the trade of :

"CROWN" & "SUN" Brand
Aluminiumwares
"CROWN" Brand Anodisedwares
"SUN" Brand Stainless
Steel & Brasswares
"FLAG" Brand I.C.C. Brass Sheets
AND
COPPER SHEETS
of all Specifications and Sizes
AND
ALUMINIUM Hard and Soft Sheets,
Circles, Beadings, Strips, Wires,
Rods, Rivets, Ingots,
Scraps, Etc.

Enquiries Solicited

●

GOVERNMENT AUTHORISED DISTRIBUTORS

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

Mathematical Accuracy is the Basis of Correct Predictions

GET YOUR HOROSCOPE SCIENTIFICALLY AND CORRECTLY WORKED OUT BY COMPETENT HANDS UNDER THE PERSONAL SUPERVISION OF THE EDITOR.

1. Correct Casting of a Horoscope giving the positions of planets in degrees, Rasi and Navamsa diagrams with balance of dasa at birth. Rs. 10 or Sh. 20.
2. No. 1 plus Bhava Sphutas. Rs. 12 or Sh. 24.
3. Nos. 1 and 2 with Shadvargas and Ashtakavarga. Rs. 21 or Sh. 42.
4. Nos. 1, 2, 3 plus Determination of Planetary and House Strengths (Shadbalas) including Kashta and Ishta Balas. Rs. 50 or Sh. 100.

If you consult others, you can test the correctness of their calculations.

If you are a student of astrology, these works will be simply invaluable.

All these castings will be registered at the office to be made use of in due course for research purposes

SEND DATE, PLACE AND TIME OF BIRTH TO

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

The Astrological Magazine

Founded in 1895

By Prof. B. SURYANARAIN RAO

Edited by B. V. RAMAN

Vol. 48] MARCH 1959 [No. 3

DETAILED CONTENTS

		PAGE
1.	India	279
2.	As It Strikes Me By Bhrigu and Agastya	283
3.	Sayana Versus Nirayana in Astrology By Prof. Jyotish Chandra Ghatak, M.A. (Triple) M.R.A.S.	287
4.	Astrological Significance of Basic Instincts By Wm. J. Tucker, D.Sc., Ph.D. ...	289
5.	House Division and the Ayanamsa By Ram Dularey Gupta, M.A. ...	295
6.	Observations on Horary Astrology By B. Surya Prakash	297
7.	Astrology and Its Practical Application By I. Aghorapati, B.A., B.Ed. ...	299
8.	New Light on Jaimini Astrology By M. K. Sastry	303
9.	Cartomancy By Walter Friedjung	305
10.	Astrology and Determination of Profession: A Symposium By Prof. Amarnath Mukerjee ...	307
11.	Lessons in Astrology—XIII By Vidyabhaskara, Prof. M. Ramakrishna Bhat, M.A.	309
12.	The Kaleidoscope By Yogiraj George Cecil Nixon ...	311
13.	Around the World By Douglas Hunt, M.A.	313
14.	Planets and Developments in Pakistan By Shambu Prasad	315
15.	Pandit Nehru—A Numerological Appraisal By Bageswar Prasad	317
16.	Letters to the Editor	319
17.	Book Reviews By Dr. R. Nagaraja Sarma, M.A., Ph.D., D.Litt.	325
18.	Stars in their Seasons By M. V. Ramakrishnan, M.A., L.T. ...	328
19.	Your Scientific Difficulties Solved By Mihira	329
20.	Astronomical Notes for March 1959 By S. K. Kar, B.Sc.	331
21.	Market Forecasts for March 1959 ...	333
22.	Ephemeris for March 1959	334
23.	Hints for Agriculturists (March 1959) By Mihira	339
24.	Airways Guide for March 1959 By Mihira	341
25.	How is This Month (Mar. 1959) for You? By Mihira	342
26.	Daily Guide for March 1959 By Mihira	348

IMPORTANT BOOKS

By Prof. B. SURYANARAIN RAO

Female Horoscopy.—This book describes and exemplifies the full method of working the horoscopes of women. 4th Edition. Rs. 4.50 or Sh. 9.

Jaimini Sutras.—English Translation. A most scientific system of astrology which entirely departs from the conventional methods. This is a book the type of which has never been published before. 3rd Edition. Cloth bound. Rs. 6 or Sh. 12.

Brihat Jataka of Varahamihira.—English Translation with original slokas in Devanagari, elaborate notes, etc. 4th Edition. Rs. 12 or Sh. 24.

By B. V. RAMAN

Astrology for Beginners.—The best book for beginners. 10th Edition. Rs. 2.25 or Sh. 4/6.

A Manual of Hindu Astrology.—Gives a clear and concise account of the essential principles of Hindu Astrology. 5th Edition. Rs. 4.50 or Sh. 9.

Astrology and Modern Thought.—The rationale of astrology has been ably expounded and the truth of the subject statistically proved. 3rd Edition. Rs. 2.25 or Sh. 4/6.

Hindu Predictive Astrology.—Contains a clear exposition of all branches of astrology in a graduated form casting the Horoscope, finding Dasas, Predicting all events correctly, Medical Astrology, National Astrology, Horary, Transits, etc. Full Cloth bound. 440 pages. 5th Edition. Rs. 9 or Sh. 18.

Graha and Bhava Balas.—A Guide to Predictive Astrology. Cloth bound. Rs. 3.75 or Sh. 7/6.

How to Judge a Horoscope.—The most complete and extensive work. Illustrated by 110 actual charts. Cloth bound. 2 Pts. Now ready. Rs. 10.50 or Sh. 21.

Varshaphal or the Hindu Progressed Horoscope.—Gives an easy method for deciphering yearly results scientifically. Full Cloth bound. 6th Edition. Rs. 3 or Sh. 6.

Ayurveda or the Hindu System of Medicine.—Gives an idea of the grandeur and importance of Ayurveda. 4th Edition. Re. 1 or Sh. 2.

Notable Horoscopes.—A book of outstanding importance on Practical Astrology. Pp. 430. Rs. 7.50 or Sh. 15. Deluxe Edn.: Rs. 10.25 or Sh. 20/6.

Three Hundred Important Combinations in 2 Parts.—Gives a masterly exposition of Yogas. Rs. 9 or Sh. 18.

Electional Astrology or Muhurtha.—A book of practical importance enabling you to make use of astrology in day-to-day affairs 200 Pp. Antique Paper. Cloth bound. 2nd Edition. Rs. 7.50 or Sh. 15.

Studies in Jaimini Astrology.—Presents the complicated principles contained in the four chapters, calculation and interpretation of Dasas suggested by Jaimini in a simple, comprehensive and attractive manner with suitable illustrations. Rs. 6 or Sh. 12.

Ask for a free descriptive Catalogue

Less 12½% to Subscribers:

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

Scanned by Dhruv Sampath Vedicastrology.com for Non-Profit Research Work

THE WINNERS

The most unique and dependable work with a mathematical, astronomical and astrological basis for spotting out the winners in Racing. 1954 Model—Enlarged and neatly Stencilled, 170 pp foo lscap size with 75 charts and 300 examples. Every chapter very lucidly written even for the novice to master the methods—highly praised by the purchasers, Rs. 300,

J. Donald, Bengal—" I had a big measure of success with very handsome dividends...Yours is a sure money-maker ".

N.K.P., Malaya—'It is the best... Worth more than 10 times its price.'

Asterisms and Flukes help you pick out all the Fluke days in any year and on any centre.

Printed in 2 Parts Rs. 30

No agencies for these anywhere. Order direct.

Literature and opinions posted free.

Dr. Bh. Satyanarayana Rao,
Author,
Circlepet, MASULIPATAM,
(S India)

By Parimal Purkayastha
INDIAN ASTROLOGY AND DISEASES
Price Rs. 5.50
INDIAN ASTROLOGY, SEX, MARRIAGE AND CHILDREN
Price Rs. 6
Available from:
P. PURKAYASTHA
12-A, NETAJI SUBHAS ROAD
CALCUTTA-3
OR
RAMAN PUBLICATIONS
"SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE-3

Consult
Late Famous Astrologer
PROF. B. SURYANARAIN RAO'S SECOND SON
B. LAKSHMINARAIN RAU, B.A.
Retd. Govt. High School Headmaster,
17, East Anjaneya Temple Street, Basavangudi, Bangalore-4.
For your mental and bodily worries and proper remedial measures
Minimum charge for a detailed horoscope
Rs. 100 and upwards.
Enclose stamped covers for reply.

SPECIAL REPORT
OF
A. C. Percy for Budget and February 1959

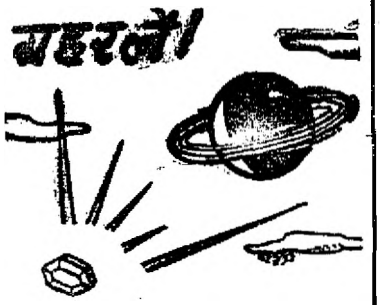
Sure success and golden chance to make money in February and Budget of 1959 is knocking at your door. Our forecasts have worked wonders and proved amazingly correct.

Shares:—Sharp Mandi in Shares was predicted by us from November 1958 before Diwali and also in December after along spell of Teji and it proved quite correct.

Silver and Gold:—Long Teji line still running has been predicted by us from July from price of Rs. 179-8-0 for Silver and from Rs. 103-8-0 for Gold and it also proved amazingly quite correct.

Cotton, Kapsia, Groudnuts, Castorseeds and Oils, Rayons, Chemicals, etc.:—Forecasts similarly proved correct.

Please don't fail to get our special forecast for Budget 1959 as some Yogas occurred in past are reoccuring from February/March, 1959 and the same will cause the same effect on all markets and especially on Shares. Apply for fees, etc., enclosing stamped and self-addressed envelopse



To :

A. C. PERCY,
Boatwala Building, 3rd Floor,
257, Takurdwar Road,
BOMBAY-2

KNOW YOUR FUTURE
Scientific Life Reading Fees Rs. 10 only. Detailed Life Reading Fees Rs. 25 only. Answer to 3 queries Rs. 5.25. Please send copy of horoscope, birth-date and time with remittance. No V.P.P.
Gayatry's Astrological Services
P.O. Ratlam, (M.P.) INDIA.

ALWAYS ADVERTISE
IN
The Astrological Magazine

ASTRAL GEMSTONES

Astral Gemstones are definitely the real stones but this does not however mean that all real stones are the astral gemstones. For your Astral Gemstone apply with birth data and birth chart.

KALEY & SONS
DEALERS IN ASTRAL GEMSTONES
Wardha (Bombay State)

TEST MY SHAMSI CHARM
For any object whatsoever. FREE of cost. Only state your sensible object and send postal order 75 nP towards incidental expenses and you will receive the velvet charm absolutely free. Countless of needy in India and foreign countries have benefited Akhtar Husen Sahib,
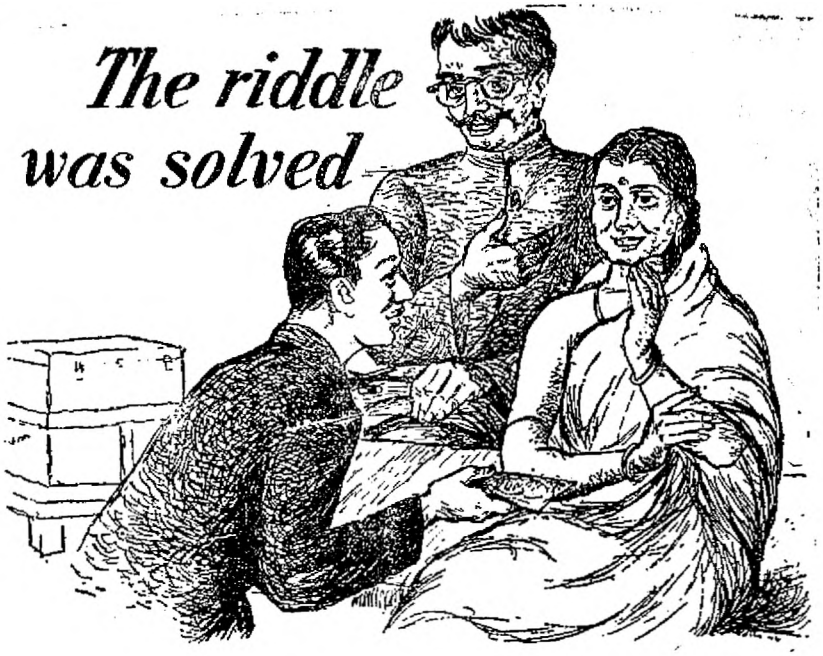
Khas Road, RAMPUR, (U.P.) India.

KNOW THY FUTURE
PREDICTIVE ASTROLOGY
(exhaustive Bhava Phala Gochara Phala and Character Reading)
BY
DR. JAGANNATH RAO,
M.B.B.S., M.A.A.S.



(You can easily decipher the hidden meaning of the position of planets in your horoscope and that of your friends and relations, with the help of this book. Besides you can astonish them by reading their character accurately).

Preface by: SRI NARSING RAO, Manvi, M.A., L.L.B.
(Director of Information Bureau. Andhra Pradesh)

Available from:
RAMAN PUBLICATIONS,
"Sri Rajeswari"
BANGALORE-3

Scanned by Gangotri Digital Library. All Rights Reserved. Use for Non-Commercial Work

The riddle was solved

I am a civil engineer. My father was an ordinary office clerk. I could not explain my expensive education until 5 years ago when I brought home my first salary cheque. That was the day when my father told me he had sold my mother's jewellery years ago and invested the proceeds in National Savings Certificates. He had also been adding to this investment by regular savings. He enjoined upon me to save regularly and invest likewise and I am glad I heeded him. Today I have a small capital which I am using for advanced studies abroad.

Investments in NATIONAL PLAN SAVINGS CERTIFICATES and other Small Savings Scheme securities of the Government come back to you with tax-free interest. They serve you and the NATION by providing resources for the country's development.

12-YEAR NATIONAL PLAN SAVINGS CERTIFICATES

- 5.41% tax-free interest paid annually.
- Easily available from all Post Offices in denominations of Rs. 5, 10, 50, 100, 500, 1,000 and 5,000.
- GUARANTEED by Government of India

OTHER GOVT. SECURITIES under the SMALL SAVINGS SCHEME:
10-YEAR TREASURY SAVINGS DEPOSIT CERTIFICATES
POST OFFICE SAVINGS BANK DEPOSITS

DAS/325

NATIONAL SAVINGS ORGANIZATION

Further particulars and/or rules governing these investments available from the National Savings Commissioner, Nagpur or the Regional National Savings Officer of your State.

Scanned by www.sapanishtasteblogspot.com The Presence Dr. K.V Ramans Work

ANY PLANET THAT IS WEAK IN YOUR HOROSCOPE WILL CAUSE EVIL—
SUCH MALEFICS CAN BE WARDED OFF BY WEARING
ASTRAL GEMS AS RECOMMENDED BY
OUR RISHIS AND ANCIENTS

Planets Weak in your Horoscope	Likely Malefic Affect	Gems You Should Wear
Sun	BILIOUSNESS—RIGHT EYE COMPLAINT—GENERAL WEAKNESS	RUBY
Moon	PHYSICAL STRUCTURE—DIFFERENCE WITH MOTHER—LEFT EYE TROUBLE	PEARL
Mars	QUARRELS AMONG BROTHERS—TIMIDITY—TROUBLES OF FIGHTING NATURE	CORAL
Mercury	WEAK BRAIN—SLOW IN UNDERSTANDING—NERVOUS DEBILITY	EMERALD
Jupiter	IMPURE BLOOD—DISRESPECTFUL—OBSTINATE VIEWS	TOPAZ OR POKHRAJ
Sani	LOW MIND—WEAK BONES—RHEUMATIC COMPLAINT—LIAR—LOW CLASS ASSOCIATES	SAPPHIRE
Rahu	DISEASED BODY—PREJUDICED MIND	GOMEDAK
Kethu	WRONGLY CURSING THROUGH LIFE UNDER EVIL INFLUENCE OR MANTRIC POWER	CAT'S EYE
Sukra	CONJUGALLY UNHAPPY—HATER OF WOMEN—WEAKNESS OF ONE EYE	DIAMOND

We will help you to get a

QUALITY and GENUINE Astral Gem

SURAJMAL'S

JEWELLERS AND DEALERS IN QUALITY
GEMS SINCE 1895

313, ESPLANADE — MADRAS-1

Telephone: 2250 Telegrams: "MORALITY"

Scanned by www.sapta-rishis.blogspot.com in Memorize Dr B V Raman's Work

The Astrological Magazine

Founded 1895 by Professor B. SURYANARAIN RAO
Edited by BANGALORE VENKATA RAMAN
Annual Subscription: India Rs. 12; Burma and Malaya Rs. 15; Foreign Sh. 24

PUBLISHED EVERY MONTH

By Raman Publications, "Sri Rajeswari", Seshadripuram, Bangalore 3, (India)
TELEPHONE No. 3296

New Series Vol. 23 | MARCH 1959 | No. 3
Old Series Vol. 48 | VILAMBI—MAGHA 1880 S.S

INDIA

INDIA celebrated on 26th January 1959 the ninth anniversary of her assuming the status of a sovereign democratic republic. There were, as usual, country-wide festivities and a torrential flow of sanctimonious words from the mouths of professional politicians eulogising the achievements of the Congress Governments during the past one decade of India's independent political existence. None of the professional politicians belonging to the Congress ever paused to reflect how, despite the stability we have attained at home and the great part played by us in world affairs, progress in the home front is more illusory than real and that the Congress brand of socialism has led the country to the brink of economic ruin and moral bankruptcy. Could any sane thinking person have foreseen at the time India got her independence that within a decade, the Indian National Congress, nurtured as it was in the Gandhian ideals of satya and ahimsa, would have degenerated itself into a body of self-seekers and opportunists, chiefly bent upon retaining power and completely oblivious to the risks and dangers, the country is being exposed to by their doctrinaire and unimaginative economic, social and political programmes? There are doubtless honourable exceptions amongst Congressmen who have always placed service above self and these remarks are not addressed to them. Why the Congress Party which has many serious tasks awaiting solution has been frittering away its energies by slogan-mongering and by exhibiting no signs of purposeful leadership, becomes evident if we study the Congress horoscope with particular reference to the present directional influences. We have examined in these columns the horoscope of the Congress several times and have clearly indicated the fate awaiting it unless the party sets its own house in order.

Scanned by jyotishsuryastrology.com. Do not reuse. Dr. V. Pandey, Varanasi

What is ominous at the moment is the authoritarian trends increasingly discernible in the methods adopted by the Congress Governments, in forcing their pet reforms on the people in the name of socialism. With an eye on the next elections, the Congress is now holding the bait of 'land reform' before the masses and of course "this is a very big step, a revolutionary step, which will lead the country towards 'socialism'" and perhaps in due course to the monolithic communist way of life and the suppression of human personality.

These authoritarian trends evident in the Congress Government's policies are disturbing especially that there is a sustained campaign against members of the business community most of whom are no less patriotic than professional politicians. The question is posed whether India is in for any dictatorial regime, especially that the lamps of democracy all round India have gone out after a brief flickering. Answers to such questions can be found in the horoscope of the Indian Republic as different from the horoscope of Indian Independence. The latter chart, we have examined a number of times and have shown that India would continue to be independent for a long time and that the distant future of this country is indeed very bright. Before analysing the future trends in the Republic horoscope, we propose to reproduce in extenso our discussion of this horoscope in the earlier issues of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, for the information of our readers.

We observed thus: "We are concerned with two things, viz., whether the new Constitution, built as it is by our great lawyers, statesmen and leaders, would survive the changes which are being effected in the political landscape with such kaleidoscopic rapidity and whether the Republic would have a long lease of life. With due deference to those political seers who dispose of the dangers due to the socialistic bias of the Constitution, it must be said that the conjunction of the democratic Saturn and the incendiary Mars in the fiery, fixed and royal sign of Leo, which happens to be the 8th from the sign ascending at the time the Constitution was signed reveals danger-spots. This we shall elucidate subsequently. Our new Constitution has been admired by some, criticised by others and looked upon differently by different experts. The adoption of adult-franchise, abolition of communal electorates, the integration of the States' constitutions with that of the Union, and adherence to the ideal of what is described as the 'secular state' are the main features of the Constitution.

"A careful study of the horoscope reveals the nature of the Constitution apart from the fact whether or not it could be successfully implemented. That pride of place is given to the fundamental rights is revealed by the situation of the Moon and Jupiter in Lagna forming Gaja Kesari Yoga. Unfortunately, the Yoga is more nominal than real because of the great distance between the two planets. The fundamental rights are not constitutionally guaranteed. Some of them are subject to interpretation by Courts. Jupiter the planet of justice is neecha in Lagna (which rules the people). There is no neechabhanga for Jupiter. On the contrary, he is blemished due to the ownership of the 3rd house. Saturn, lord of Lagna, is in the 8th house in an inimical sign. This again makes it doubtful how far, the statutory responsibilities undertaken to prevent discriminations between citizens would actually work in practice. According to the new Constitution citizens shall have the right to (a) freedom of speech and expression, (b) to assemble peacefully and without arms, (c) to acquire, hold and dispose off property, (d) to practice any profession, and (e) to move freely throughout India, etc., but as these rights are subject to a host of restraints, it is felt that fundamental rights are limited to the extent they become ineffective. It looks as though the provisions relating to fundamental rights and their limitations are reflected by the conjunction of Mars and Saturn in the 8th. This conjunction is capable of a variety of interpretations. In this particular context, it may mean that in enforcing the rights there will be an excess of display of force with the result the rights will become illusive. Jupiter neecha in Lagna, Lagnadhipathi devoid of Jupiter's aspect or association, and Kethu's presence in the 9th or house of religion, make it clear that the State will not take upon itself any ecclesiastical responsibility and that it would be a secular State to all intents and purposes. We have often said in these columns that Mars, Saturn, Jupiter and Rahu are the most important planets which indicate outstanding events pertaining to national affairs. Here Saturn, representative of the common people, is in the house of the Sun, ruling royalty and aristocracy. Mars representing desire, aversion, changes and revolutions, is lord of the 4th (land, estate, property) and the 11th (gains). Both are in conjunction in the 8th, a house of death and destruction. Evidently there will be many violent passages between the different social groups and in the exercise of some of the provisions of the Constitution, both the judicature and legislature will find it difficult to preserve individual freedom. Thanks to Saturn-Mars conjunction, there is danger of the deeply held beliefs of the majority equating with the good of all sections of people. Consequently the majority may be able to establish a dictatorship democratically. It is the bounden duty of the leaders concerned to eliminate such tendencies and their injurious consequences.

"It must be noted that the successful working of democracy can be ensured only by means of an educated electorate functioning through an alert legislature. But the age-long communal patriotism that has persisted throughout recent Indian history plus the movements of an ideological character which are powerfully influencing our neighbours representing all nationalism as reactionary and seeking to fire the imagination of the masses by advocating economic short-cuts, these influences being again traceable to Mars-Saturn conjunction, are powerful enough to militate against orderly development of constitutional evolution. The introduction of the adult franchise is bound to have grave repercussions on the future course of events in this country. No constitution is perfect and no constitution can be perfect. The Constituent Assemby being predominantly composed of the Congress, has been guided in its main objectives by the visions cherished by that party. The republican ideal was never foreign to the Indian genius. India had made comprehensive experiments in different forms of Government and until the invasion of the foreigners there were republics functioning in several parts of the country. Indian books on polity furnish enough proof about the existence of popular Governments but the stress is invariably laid on the character of the man elected. Kautilya dealing with the duties of a King observes thus:

"'In the happiness of his subjects, lies his happiness: in their welfare his welfare: whatever pleases himself he shall not consider as good, but whatever pleases his subjects, he shall consider as good.' The form of Government depends upon the character of a people, the conditions of life obtaining among them and the principles of their social system. The best form of Government is that which enables only men of character, noble minds and wide sympathies to rise to the top and prevents men of shallow minds, mean capacities and unscrupulous characters from coming into power. If high moral principles guide the people, the Government is free from party strifes. It is due to a thorough recognition of this truth that the Indian sages laid so much stress on the necessity of formation of character on ethical and altruistic principles to secure political and social prosperity. The higher the ethical development the greater the freedom enjoyed by a people. Our present constitution is a sort of synthesis of American Federalism and French Centralism. Its not having its roots in Indian tradition is to be deplored. And the greatest omission from the Indian point of view that is repugnant to Indian sentiment, is the exclusion of any reference to God the Almighty, the source of all moral law. Whether or not our legislators believe in God, the majority of the Indian people have a living faith in the existence of a Supreme Force, and consistent with the Indian tradition, if Divine blessings had been invoked for the successful working of the Constitution it would have had a psychological effect on the mass-mind.

Scanned by www.sreenivasaastrology.com In loving memory Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

"India entered into a new phase of political existence in the comity of Nations on 26-1-1950 at 10-19 a.m. when she was declared a sovereign, independent Republic. Our Constitution aims to build a democratic Republic. This means upholding the worth of the individual, and the individual realising that he is ultimately responsible for the good of the country. That neither of these would be practically possible in the immediate future, becomes evident by the almost direct aspect, the ascending point receives from the incendiary Mars. At 10-19 a.m. at New Delhi, the 15th degree of Pisces would be rising, while Mars would be setting three degrees ahead of the opposite point, a circumstance which according to all astrological cannons, is capable of giving rise to unexpected and sudden happenings especially in regard to 7th house indications, viz., foreign affairs and relations with neighbouring countries. In a horoscope, whether individual or national, the Sun, Moon and Lagna represent respectively the soul, the mind and the body.

Rahu Ascdt. Mandi	Moon			Mandi		Sun	Mars Kethu
	REPUBLIC HOROSCOPE RASI				NAVAMSA		Jup. Venus
Venus Jup. Sun			Sat.				Moon
Mer.			Mars Kethu	Sat. Mer.	Ascdt.

In the above chart Lagnadipathi though neecha may be said to be fairly well placed on account of his exaltation in the navamsa. The Moon happening to be lord of the 5th occupies the 2nd aspected again by Mars, lord of the 2nd and 9th. While Mars is good by ownership, and consequently his

Scanned by www.vedicastrologer.org & astrologer.com In Pursuance For S. K. Kapoor's Work

A SYMPOSIUM ON

Eight-Planet Combination and World Affairs

As readers are aware, there is going to be a combination of eight planets in Capricorn (Aquarius according to Sayana or the Movable Zodiac,) on 2nd February 1962. This subject has been dealt with by us not only in August 1957 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE under the caption The Third World War, but reference has also been made to this great concentration of force in one part of the heavens, in our inaugural address to the All-Kerala Astrological Association, at Trichur. This unique celestial combination seems to have excited the curiosities of a large section of the educated public to such an extent that some of them have suggested the subject being discussed in a more detailed manner.

In view of the great importance of the subject, we have decided to start a symposium on 'The 1962 Eight-planet Combination and World Affairs' and we expect astrological thinkers all over the world to participate in this symposium. The first paper will appear in the next issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

Those intending to participate can kindly prepare a suitable paper on this subject and send the same for publication at an early date. It is left entirely to one's discretion whether to interpret the combination astrologically or astronomically, on the basis of the Nirayana or Fixed Zodiac or Sayana or Movable Zodiac. You have to set out what in your opinion, are the likely results to happen as a consequence of this eight-planet combination in the world as a whole with reference to the different countries, and/or in regard to individuals born in different signs. All points of view—whether based on ancient classical writings or on modern western texts or on one's own experience, are welcome.

The size of the article may be about 3000 words and it will be paid for.

EDITOR,
THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

aspect on Lagna may also be deemed to be good in a way, due to his inherent malefic nature coupled with the fact that the 12th house in the Navamsa has the evil influences of all the malefics (except the Sun) concentrated on it, the Republican ship has to pass through many a dangerous shoal before it can reach the goal. Our rulers will doubtless be actuated by noble motives, but their achievements in the practical field will not be commensurate with their ideals. After all the Moon is a visionary planet and his ownership of the 5th house endorses this inference. When Rahu and Kuja oppose each other, there will be ideological conflicts especially in regard to foreign affairs. The 2nd being aspected by Kuja is no doubt good. But Kuja as second lord being subjected to the aspect of Rahu is clearly indicative of a discouraging atmosphere in most financial matters. Mars is the planet of War. Even though the President has pointed out in his address to the Parliament that expenditure on defence would be reduced as far as possible, keeping, of course, in mind the security of the country, the situation of Mars in the house of war seems to belie this hope: consequently there will be heavy military expenditure. It is absolutely necessary that the armed strength of the country is maintained at its highest level, especially in view of the possible threats of war from neighbouring countries so clearly indicated by Mars. The 10th lord is Neecha and he is not free from affliction, especially that he is associated with two planets, viz., the Sun lord of the 6th and the Venus lord or the 3rd and 8th. The disposition of all these planets in the 11th is no doubt good. But on account of the unfavourable conjunction happening in the 10th from the Moon, one could anticipate that the country will be treated to further legislation covering every conceivable subject. Especially that Venus has got into the picture, there will be legislative onslaughts on the social structure affecting the Hindus. Such measures may no doubt be actuated by very good intentions. But they will have very unfavourable repercussions. Mercury the planet of trade and commerce, who happens to own the 4th and 7th is in the 10th in a benefic place aspected by Mars, lord of the 2nd and the 9th. This means grandiose industrial plans and programes will be announced and that industries will considerably benefit. Nor is the Prime Minister's optimism about achieving self-sufficiency in food by 1951 justified in view of the agricultural planet Mars being conjoined by Kethu. The Martain aspects lay emphasis on nationalisation of industries. Saturn happening to be the lord of the 10th from the Moon occupies 5th. There is Parivarthana or exchange of places between the 10th add 5th lords from the Moon and 6th and 11th lords from Lagna. This means ill-considered reforms will be rushed through solely with the desire of making political capital, while the approach to many important problems facing the country would be unrealistic and somewhat ludicrous".

The Republic horoscope will be having the major period of Venus and the sub-period of Jupiter from 20th February 1959. The major lord Venus is not altogether happily placed. He owns the 3rd and 8th houses from Lagna and is a malefic. He occupies the 11th the sign of a friend. This is good as far as it goes. He is associated with the Sun lord of the 7th and Jupiter lord of Lagna who is neecha. Jupiter has obtained neechabhanga because of Mars who in his turn is in the 7th aspecting Lagna powerfully. The sub-lord Jupiter can not only give the effects of Lagna and the 10th but also that of the 7th. In the Navamsa, the disposition of both the major and sub-lords are not unfavourable. But from Chandra Lagna, they are in the 12th house. Therefore during the period covered by Jupiter as sub-lord, mixed results will happen. While the Republican form of Government will continue to be maintained, because of the neechabhanga being caused by Kuja, who in his turn aspects Lagna with Kethu, the Government will persist in implementing some of the resolutions passed at the Congress Party session held recently at Nagpur, despite opposition from many thoughtful Congressmen.

As Kuja aspects the Moon, lord of the 5th or buddhisthana, the 'land-reform' experiment will lead to all sorts of complications resulting in utter chaos. Cultivation will be affected and there will be agrarian disturbances of a violent nature. Apart from the directional influences, the Gochara movements are equally disquieting. Saturn is transitting the meridian place in the Republic horoscope while Rahu has been passing through the radical place of Mars and Kethu. The Gochara Saturn afflicts the 10th, 12th, 4th and especially 7th house most. There will be further onslaughts on the private sector. As Mercury the planet of trade is also involved in the affliction, State monopolies will create convulsions in trade and Governmental interferences will be alround. Even to enlightened criticism Government will continue to be unresponsive. India's food position will become acute and the Government's handling of the situation would be anything but realistic. Countries like Britain, Japan, America, Germany, etc., have made remarkable strides in socialism having solved important problems facing their countries—unemployment, food, industries, etc.—without having recourse to land-reforms on the model of communist countries. As during the next two and odd years, directional influences will be mainly those pertaining to the two natural benefics Venus and Jupiter and as the results of Martian disposition in the 7th are to manifest indirectly by virtue of Mars having caused neechabhanga of Jupiter, it is very unlikely that there is any danger of India passing under military rule. India will continue to be a Republic but Saturn's transits, by the intensity of their affiiction of the Republic horoscope, will render the Government more and more authoritarian and less and less responsive to public opinion. No real attempts would be made to tackle the urgent tasks facing the country either in regard to economic development or foreign matters. The land-reform experiment and the further extension of the public sector will have the effect of bringing out all the differences among the people and further breaking up the national integration. In view of the affliction of the 7th house, the problem of defence must receive special attention. The Moon in the Republic horoscope being placed in a movable sign aspected by Mars denotes irrational expositions of political ideologies and violent demonstrations. There will be a feeling of discontent and helplessness everywhere, the common man lacking happiness and security. Whilst India's distant future is indeed bright—and this point has been emphasised by us a number of times—for the next two to three years, planets are in a frowning mood. Let us hope that Providence will enable our leaders to overcome the crisis and build an India worthy of her past glory, tradition and greatness.

—Written 29–1–1959.

As it STRIKES ME

BY BHRIGU

Astrology and Psychology

OF late we are hearing of too many Conferences and seminars on subjects taught in our Universities in such a way that one wonders whether these subjects have a bearing on Indian traditions and whether they are useful at all. In November last there was a para-psychology seminar in one University. Setting aside the money and energy spent, if we ask what the outcome was, we have no satisfactory answer. We chanced to come across the participants. Not one could say that he believed in the reality of the para-psychic phenomena. And yet the seminar was intended to promote the development of para-psychic research in the country. Then again a few days back, we had a conference on psychology at Madras. Psychology is no longer the good old science of the mind. Just as there are the behaviourists who deny the reality of the mind, there are the psycho-analysts swinging on the unconscious. But the more fashionable have been endeavouring to make psychology an exact science by introducing the quantitative standards and measurement. Intelligence measurement has become the foundation. The psychologists are busy measuring the general and special abilities and the like. And some of our Universities have departments of experimental psychology even though they have no laboratory equipment. This is just like having teachers in archaeology who teach no one. Educational, vocational and industrial aspects of psychology are all quantitatively studied. In this craze for quantity, the psychologist gives up quality. A few activities known to the common man as mental are studied in isolation. When the unity of the mental life is thus broken, it is not possible to understand man or his characteristics. Man remains as the unknown. And yet these are acclaimed as the most scientific subjects. Europe and America have recognised them and we import them because of this recognition. And yet a truly scientific subject like Astrology is condemned and brushed aside as unscientific. It is possible that astrology cannot be a science because it insists on the qualitative study of the whole man, of the unified personality.

Astrology studies the human being in a specific context. The framework, in which this study is carried out, is the solar system to which the physical earth belongs. It is a framework which considers man as organic to universe. For a long time even the scientists studied the universe, isolating the human observer. But the recent advances in quantum physics have shown that this human observer cannot be isolated. Consequently the basis of the astrological study is becoming more and more clear as science advances. Man is originally related to the universe, not merely to the solar system; and this is the ultimate background of the astrological study. Now modern psychology tries to study man either as a creature belonging to some vocation or as having a certain faculty. Such a study, it need not be stated again, fails to tell us anything about the real nature of man.

Then again astrology offers an approach to a clearer understanding of the characteristics, and the tendencies of the human being. This study enables man to understand himself better, and to plan his career properly. It is a more useful study for the simple reason that it reveals the basic pattern of an individual's nature, features, energies and tendencies more adequately. This of course does not exhaust the scope of the astrological study. It at least offers a valuable clue which the psychologist can ill-afford to neglect. An eminent psychologist like Carl Jung frankly has admitted the immense benefit he derived from an astrological study of the horoscopes of the persons he had to examine.

In this connection, it is proper to remind the modern psychologist that there is a specific system of thought and enquiry known as Yoga which has outlined a clearer and a more comprehensive system of psychology. The Yoga thinkers have given us some valuable information about metapsychics. They have demonstrated that the mind can be dissociated from the senses and the brain Even this mind (Chitta), says the Yoga system, is the first product of the primal stuff which is both matter and energy. It is a product of the physical forces and it is its relation to a self that renders it self-conscious. It gets contracted or expanded in accordance with the medium in which it operates. The yogic discipline is intended to turn it back to its original all-prevading character. The aphorisms of Patanjali, and the valuable expositions of the system by Vyasa, Vachaspati, Bhoja and others have a great relevance today when the psychologist is groping in the dark about the very nature of his enquiry.

Scanned by www.sribalamurugan.org for preservation. Dr. P. V. Kumaran, Madurai

The yoga psychologist tells us that "the body can be made the basis of either animal incontinence or divine strength". Breath control can result in a certain serenity of the mind (See Yoga Sutras 1.33–39). Then again we have the process of introversion explained under the term pratyahara. The yogic discipline can and does give rise to certain supernormal powers. One such is the indifference to heat and cold. This is a power that can control and regulate bodily sensations. Concentration results in the heightened powers of the senses. Even today we do come across people who have what is called the sixth sense or second sight. A direct knowledge of the subliminal too is possible here. These and other psychic phenomena outlined in the works of yoga by the great Indian thinkers, mystics and sadhakas, form the true rational psychology. It is the only psychology that deserves a careful investigation. Once it is proved that these phenomena are correct, it will not be difficult to accept the powers of forseeing and the like, powers which astrology seeks to stimulate.

As long as the modern psychologist is blind to Indian Astrology and to the yoga system of thought and practice, he will achieve precious little. He will understand neither the human mind nor the direction of human life in an adequate manner.

Sir Mirza M. Ismail

BY AGASTYA

One of the distinguished Dewans of Mysore, Sir Mirza M. Ismail passed away on 5th January 1959 at the age of 76. A man of great vision and a patriot, Sir Mirza served Mysore with all his heart and brought to it the appelation of a model State. That the Government of Mysore did not think it fit to honour the memory of such a great Mysorean and Indian, by declaring a holiday on his death, because he was Dewan of "a former Princely State" is a sorry reflection on the state of democracy in India. The "Princely State" of Mysore, under the rule of the Maharajas and the great Dewans was indeed a welfare state with a progressive industrial policy and good administration. For those who have seen both the former "Princely State" of Mysore and the present 'democratic' rule, the contrast is evident.

Sir Mirza's horoscope is an interesting study. Cancer rising with Moon and Jupiter gives the clue to his nature and personality. He was a large-hearted

Scanned by www.sapatrishiastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

STUDIES IN JAIMINI ASTROLOGY

By B. V. RAMAN

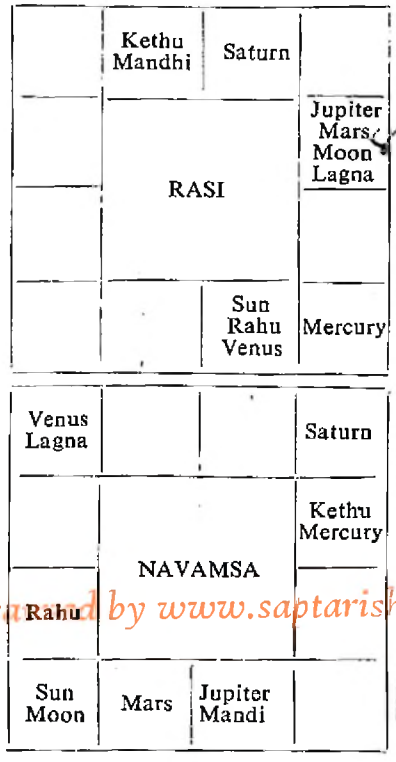
SECOND EDITION

This is the first attempt to present the complicated principles of Jaimini contained in all the four Adhyayas, is a simple, comprehensive and attractive manner, information being gathered from rare and difficult sources. Calculation and interpretation of Dasas suggested by Jaimini, which have hitherto remained obscure have, for the first time, been clearly expounded with suitable illustrations.

CONTENTS

Differences between Jaimini and Parasari; Distinctive Features of Jaimini; Importance of Karakamsa; Jaimini's Abstruseness Significance and Determination of Karakas; Certain Exceptions; Different kinds of Lagnas; Pranapada and its Significance; Dwara and Bahya Rasis; Gulika; Finding Brahma, Rudra and Maheswara; Aspects and Argalas; Significance of Argalas; Source of Rasi Strength; Numerical Measure of Strength; Kinds of Dasas; Importance of Chara Dasa; Determination of the Order and Duration of Chara, Sthira, Brahma, Shula, Yogardha, Thrikona and Varnada Dasas; Longevity Determination; Increase and Decrease of Terms of life; Main and Sub-periods of Death; Horoscope Judgment, Physical and Mental Characteristics; Financial Prospects; Health and Disease; Education and Marriage; Combinations peculiar to Women; Karakamsa and Profession; Source and Nature of Death; Rajayogas according to Jaimini; Misfortunes and Miscellaneous Yogas; Timing Events by Chara Dasa; Nature of Results in Rasi Dasas; Maraka Periods for Parents, Self, Brothers, etc., according to Nirayana Shula Dasa; Summary.

Illustrated by two example Horoscopes. This is a book that no astrological student could afford to miss as this is the first time an attempt has ever been made to write a text-book exclusively based on Jaimini.



Crown 1/8 Size; Antique Paper; 196 Pages; Type Face—Clear and Bold; Cloth Bound

Price Rs. 6 per copy: Postage, etc., extra

Less 12½% to Subscribers of: THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE-3

gentleman, aristocratic in every way but greatly interested in the welfare of the people. It is not my purpose to analyse this horoscope in all its aspects.

Students of astrology will find a lot of interesting combinations. The Lagna is strong and subject to two powerful Raja Yogas—Guru-Mangala and Chandra-Mangala. The 10th lord Mars, who is Yogakaraka, is neecha but has neechabhanga. The 10th is aspected by Venus from his own house and by debilitated Sun. It will be seen that the Sun is also neechabhanga.

Another important feature of the horoscope is that Mars and Saturn or Mars and Rahu or Rahu and Saturn are not involved in mutual associations. Sir Mirza, though a Muslim, was highly catholic in his outlook and was completely free from religious bigotry or fanaticism. As one who knew him ever since my 12th year, I can say that he had true regard for Hindu culture and Sanskrit. Jupiter, as lord of the 9th in Lagna must give a clue to his personality and mental make-up.

It may be recalled that as early as 1914 or 1915, late Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao had given Sir Mirza the prediction that he would become Dewan during Sun's Dasa. It will be noted that the Sun's Dasa commenced in 1924. Sir Mirza was Dewan from 1926 to 1941 which covered the periods of the Sun and the Moon and the beginning of Mars. The Sun is lord of the 2nd and is in parama neecha. But the neechabhanga is equally strong as Venus who causes neechabhanga is in his own sign, having also caused Malavya Yoga. The Sun is eclipsed and is aspected by a neechabhanga Mars. The disposition of the Sun as Yogakaraka is intriguing as well as interesting. In the Navamsa, the Sun is in the 10th, with the Moon lord of the 5th. During the period of his Dewanship—1926 to 1941—Sir Mirza rendered great service not only to Mysore but to India as a whole. He beautified Bangalore and Mysore and developed the State "on carefully planned lines". Rural reconstruction made considerable headway. He was mainly responsible for the industrialisation of Mysore—despite the opposition of Congressmen then. The reorganisation of the great Bhadravati Iron Works and establishment of Sugar Factory in Mandya and the Hindusthan Aircraft Factory at Bangalore were all due to the progressive vision of Sir Mirza. Another characteristic of this great man was loyalty. He was throughout loyal to Mysore and the Mysore ruling family and stood firmly loyal even at the time of India's partition. I have had the good fortune of his friendship for 30 years. When I met him last about 3 months back, he expressed to me his profound sense of disappointment at the way public money is being squandered by the Congress Governments and the degeneration that has eaten into the vitals of public life in India. They say that administrators are born and not made and the horoscope of Sir Mirza justifies this dictum. He was not merely a Mysorean. He was one of the greatest administrators and statesmen that India has produced. And people of Mysore—whatever may be the excuse put forth by the Mysore Government in not honouring the memory of the deceased by declaring a public holiday—really mourned the death of such a great and true son of India. May his soul rest in peace.

Scanned by www.saptarishiastrology.com to preserve Dr B V Raman's Work

Books You Should Read

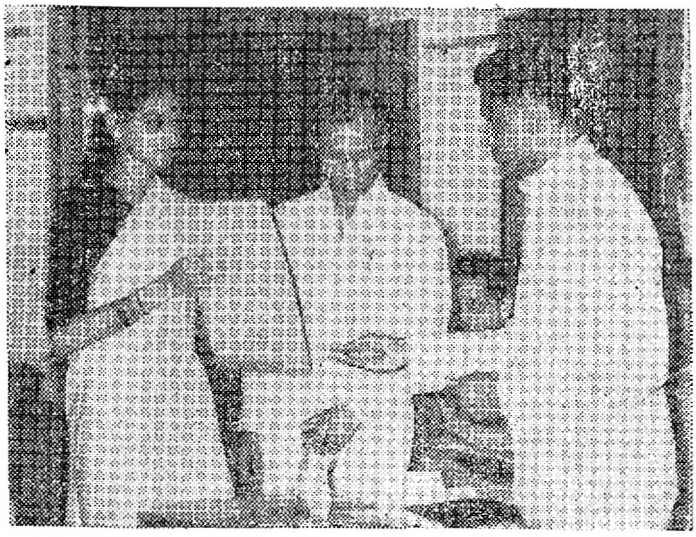
MARKET FORECASTING

How to Forecast Prices and Winners in Races.— By T. G. Butaney. Expounds jealously guarded secrets. Rs. 15 or Sh. 30.

Planetary Influences on Markets.— By Lagon Mars. Deals with application of Astrological rules to markets. Rs 7–50 or Sh. 15.

Perpetual Market Forecast.—By Pt. Ganga Prasad. A book of great importance to all speculators, merchants and students of Astrology. Rs. 10–50.

Complete Course of Self-Instruction in Commercial Astrology and Numerology —By T. G. Butaney. Rs. 15 or Sh. 30.



Less 6¼% to Subscribers of:
THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS
"Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

Graha Nakshatra Phaladesh Mandal, Poona.

Certificates Awarding Ceremony

The successful candidates in the Jyotisha Pragna and the Jyotisavisarad examinations held by the Graha Nakshatra Phaladesh Sanshodhan Mandal, Poona, were awarded certificates at the hands of Shri Rambhau Telang, Mayor of the Poona Municipal Corporation on Sunday the 18th January 1959. Shri D. N. Narawane in his introductory speech emphasized on the necessity of studying astrology on more academic lines. He, furtheron, said that in order to facilitate the students who desire to take instrucions in this science, the institution started regular classes from the year 1956. Shri Rambhau Telang in his presidential address said that this ancient science is severely criticised by the educated people. It is useless to criticise any branch of knowledge without studying the same. He said that Poona City is a seat of learning. The City is famous for various educational institutions. This institution is definitely a pride of this City like other educational institutions. Shri S. K. Kelkar concluded this function, which was largely attended by the City astrologers and well-wishers of this science, by a thanks-giving speech.

PICTURE SHOWS—Kumari Sarla Patankar taking "Jyotish Pragna" certificate from Shri Rambhau Telang, Mayor of the Poona Municipal Corporation, (Right). (In the centre) Shri S. K. Kelkar.

Following students were awarded

Jyotish Visharad Certificates

Dr. P. L. Deshmukh, M.D.,
Shri G. N. Rajmachikar, B.Sc.,
Shri V. D. Bhat, B.Sc.,
Shri S.R. Rege.
Shri V.D. Juvekar.

Jyotish Pragna

Kumari Sarla Patankar; Shri S.G. Deshpande; Shri S. D. Rekhi; Shri B. R. Divekar; Shri Y.D. Gangal; Kumari Sumati Paradkar; Dr. S. K. Joshi, M.B.B.S. and Dr. M. N. Phadke, M.B.B.S.

Following persons were in the Board of Examination appointed by the institution for the purposes of examinations:

Shri J.S. Karandikar, B.A.,LL.B., Chairman.

Shri H.B. Bhide, M.A.,LL.B.,

Shri M. D. Bhat., LLB.

Scanned with CamScanner www.saptarishiastrology.com Dr. B V Ramans Work

A WARNING

This is to warn to all our readers and the general public that some unscrupulous person has been visiting different places of Rajastan and other States posing himself as Mr. B. V. Raman and thus impersonating as our Editor. By so impersonating, this person (whose photo appears marginally) is alleged to have induced some persons to part with money on the pretext of making predictions. We have reported the matter to Bangalore Police. We advise the public not to be misled by such impostors and further request them to kindly intimate to the nearest Police Station whenever they come across the alleged impostor. This is also to inform the public that whenever our Editor visits any place on professional work, the information will be generally published in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

Manager,
THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

Sayana Versus Nirayana in Astrology—II *

BY JYOTISH CHANDRA GHATAK, M.A. (TRIPLE) M.R.A.S.

IN the horoscope of Mahatma Gandhi who was so wonderfully magnetic in his influence, we only expect a majority of planets in the Cardinal signs and in angles and actually that is the case; as Mars, Venus, Mercury, Jupiter, Dragon's Head, Dragon's Tail and even Moon (according to some calculations), are all in chara or cardinal signs according to the Nirayana method and so is his Ascendant too. But according to the Sayana calculation only one planet, viz,, Sun (and three planets if Uranus and Neptune are taken into consideration) would be in the cardinal signs. Besides, Venus in his own sign Libra confers a sort of hypnotising influence over all, but this is possible only in the Nirayana calculation: since in the Sayana, Venus would be in Scorpio and not in her own house Libra. Thus according to Sayana method, the ascendant would be in Scorpio (or very well nigh on the border of Scorpio)—the sign Scorpio would afford a nature which is quite different from that of the Mahatma, which would make the native secretive or sensual or selfish (qualities which essentially belong to Scorpio). Similar is the horoscope of late C. R. Das. There also the Ascendant (according to the Nirayana method) is Libra with Venus in it (as in the horoscope of Mahatma). This chiefly accounts for the great magnanimity of his soul and his high magnetic power.

In the horoscope of the great poet Rabindranath Tagore, the Ascendant is Pisces with Moon in it, and Jupiter is in Cancer (his exalted sign). Moon in Aries (which is according to Sayana) makes poetic expression of a martial type, while Moon in Pisces (which is not only the house of Jupiter, the planet of wisdom and lofty thought, but also a watery sign where the Moon, a great friend of Jupiter, finds a congenial soil for full development and free growth) has made possible what the poet actually was. This is true only on the Nirayana basis.

Similarly in the horoscope of the great epoch-making Bengali novelist Sarat Chandra Chatterji, the Moon is in in 28° Cancer (Nirayana) which is Moon's own house and as such is in full agreement with his wonderful capacity of life-like characterisation, superb plot-making and highly facile and happy power of expression.

Again in the horoscopes of some great Bengali poets (1) Madhusudan Dutta (2) Hemchandra Banerji (3) Nabinchandra Sen and others the Moon is in watery sign (according to Nirayana) where he can develop his imagination's treasure best.

Similarly, the Moon is in his own sign Cancer in the horoscope of Wordsworth, Coleridge, Byron (according to the time indicated in the letter preserved in the British Museum) and the Moon is in the house of Venus (the great Kavi), viz., Taurus in the horoscopes of Tennyson, Milton, Keats and others. The Venus–Mars or Venus–Sun or Mars–Sun–Kethu conjunction which imparts a witty and facile pen would not be possible in such horoscopes as those of Bankim Chatterji (Venus–Mars conj.) D. L. Roy (the greatest of the wittty and humorous poets of Bengali (Sun–Mars conjunction), Dinabandhu Mittra the great Bengali satirist (Venus–Mars conj.), Joseph Addison (Venus-Sun conjunction), and Mark Twain (Mars-Sun-Kethu conj). The sign-conjunction (Rasi-yoga) of Sun and Mercury, which confers a great writing ability, especially when placed in their own houses or exalted houses or friend's houses, is found amply exemplified in horoscopes of many great and good writers e.g., in those of Goethe, Tennyson, Wordsworth, Goldsmith, Charles Dickens, Lord Benjamin Disraeli, Indra Banerji, Hemchandra Banerji etc. and the still more rare sign conjunction of Sun-Mercury-Venus which happens in the horoscopes of (1) George Elliot (2) Rudyard Kipling (3) Thackery (4) Matthew Arnold (5) Aravinda Ghosh and others is only on the Nirayana basis of calculation. But such things do not happen in the Sayana computation.

Again the sign conjunction of Mercury-Venus which bestows great mathematical and scientific acumen is to be found in the horoscopes of (1) Sir Isaac Newton (2) Lord Ernest Rutherford (3) Alexander Graham Bell (4) Sir Arthur Conan Doyle (5) Thomas Henry Huxley and many others according to the Nirayana calculation. But according to the Sayana no such conjunction is to be had. Again the still more rare sign-conjunction of Mercury-Venus-Sun which endows the native with great mathematical and scientific genius is to be found in the horoscopes of Sir William Herschel (2) Sir Oliver Lodge (3) Laplace, and others.

Again in the horoscope of Scanned & Digitized by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan

* The first part of the article has appeared in February 1959 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

Lord Reading, we find Mars exalted in 14° Capricorn (on the basis Nirayana calculation). Now, Capricorn is the sign of India, where he was no doubt the most exalted executive head and Jupiter also is (according to Nirayana) in the 30th degree of Cancer (his exalted sign) fully aspecting Capricorn (i.e. India).

Thus Gladstone, Bismarck, Woodrow Wilson (all executive heads in their respective countries) had Mars exalted in Capricorn (only according to the Nirayana system). But no such exalted Mars is to be had under the Sayana method.

Taking another singular instance we find that the great poet Rabindranath's high political excellence teeming in profound wisdom and saturated with high philosophy is not at all warranted if Jupiter in Cancer (his exalted house) and also Moon in Pisces (Jupiter's house) where not only the planets of wisdom and "muse" are powerful but are holding their houses in exchange (Bhavana-Vinimaya).

The inventive genius of the great epoch-making Scientists, viz., (1) Thomas Alva Edison (2) Sir Isaac Newton (9) Albert Einstein and such others are not at all explainable or understandable unless Saturn (the planet of meditation and invention) is not placed in his own joy-house of Aquarius in conjunction with Venus (as in the horoscopes of the first two) or unless Venus (the planet of mathematics and physics) is exalted in Pisces being in conjunction with Saturn (as in the case of the last mentioned). Similarly is the conjunction of Mercury and Venus in Mercury's exalted house (Virgo) to be sought in the horoscopes of such great mathematicians and savants as (1) Dr. Brojendranath Seal; (2) Anandamohan Bose, etc. Similarly, the sign conjunction of "Mercury-Venus-Saturn" in Saturn's own house Capricorn is to be sought in the horoscope of the great Bengali mathematician Gowrishankar De.

The sign-conjunction of Venus and Saturn in a good sign, which is the hall-mark of scientific genius and invention, is to be found also in the case of the great Swedish chemist Alfred Bernhard Nobel (the inventor of dynamite), where both the planets are placed in Virgo (a sign where Saturn is advancing towards his exaltation house Ucchabhitashmi and is thus supposed by astrologers to be far more powerful and calibre-making than when actually placed in his exalted house Libra. All this is so according to the Nirayana. The late great Tantric Judge of the Calcutta High Court Sir John George Woodroffe has his Moon, Venus and Mars in Scorpio (according to Nirayana), thus, not only clearly explaining his innate liking for occult (Scorpio) science but also his profundity of knowledge in the science of Tantra. The deep and well-adjusted knowledge of religion, science and philosophy which the great theosophist Annie Besant had, speaks not only of a Uranian influence on the Ascendant mixed up with the ray of Kethu's, (both being placed in Jupiter's house) and aspected by an exalted Mercury but also of the location of Saturn (the great meditative and yogic planet) in his own joy-house of Aquarius. But the whole case should be totally altered if we go with Sayana calculation. In a very large number of horoscopes of judiciaries it would be found that Jupiter (the planet of wisdom and justice) is placed in "the Balance", i.e., Libra, (balance being an instrument here symbolises the measurement of man's action in the light of right and wrong) or in his own house or in the house of his exaltation. But all this would be true only on the Nirayana basis.

Now turning our attention to Accidents, we would find that cases of (1) Burning have been found in nativities where Sun or Mars is afflicted in a fiery sign or Mars or Uranus afflicting the lord of the Ascendant who is in a fiery sign. Turning to (2) Drowning fatalities, the 8th house or the location of the 8th house, has often been found to be watery signs (according to Nirayana). Neptune (water) or Moon's (water's) opposition to Sun (life-spring) has a great susceptibility to drowning, if conjoined by other malign factors. Again, Neptune or Moon in watery signs afflicted by malefics, the malefics themselves being located in watery signs, is a fruitful source of drowning fatalities. Again the sign conjunction of Neptune and Kethu or Moon and Kethu in watery signs, brings about death by drowning. If we consult the horoscope of W. Thomas Stead (Editor of Review of Reviews) who was drowned in the Titanic disaster in April 1912, we would find that Moon is afflicted by Saturn (in Pisces according to Nirayana) and that there is a conjunction of Neptune and Kethu in a watery-airy (Aquarius) sign. But here, the drowning fatality is more in tune with the Sayana method, for the conjunction of Neptune and Kethu in a watery sign happens only in the Sayana method and the Moon also comes to locate Capricorn (an earthy-watery sign) according to Sayana basis. Thus, in Lord Kitchner's horoscope (on the Sayana computation alone) both the Sun and the Moon are opposed to each other in watery signs, and even Neptune happens to be in a

(Continued on page 344)

Scanned by AdvancedJyotishastraBooks.com To preserve Dr. V. Ramans Work

*Astrological Significance of Basic Instincts

BY WM. J. TUCKER, D.Sc., Ph.D.

PSYCHOLOGICALLY speaking, a person's ego consists of his natural self, whereas his super-ego consists of his moral self, or conscience. Now in every form of psycho-neurosis the conflict is one and the same, namely a conflict between a person's natural self (ego) and his conscious (super-ego). Wherein the nervous breakdown occurs by reason of the compulsive refusal of the natural self to remain any longer represented by the rigid demands of the conscience.

Now, if the reader can see and understand the real meanings of the words "ego" and "super-ego" we can dispense with the terms "natural self" and "conscience" (moral self) and proceed a stage further.

If the reader stops to reflect he will realise that the little he knows about his ego and super-ego, he knows solely by virtue of his conscious mind. For he knows virtually nothing about that greater and more shadowy portion of his mind which psychologists refer to as the unconcious mind. Nevertheless he does apprehend the possibility of the existence of an unconscious mind because, in certain states of his existence (the somnolent state, for example), he becomes aware of the contacts and links between the conscious and unconscious parts of his mind by reason of the appearance of certain subconscious phenomena. "The thought occurred to me subconsciously"; or "It was on the tip of my tongue..."

What the reader does not perhaps yet realise is the fact that his conscious ego and super-ego are duplicated in his unconscious mind, and that these unconscious duplicates carry on their battle within depths of his psyche, unperceived by his conscious mind. Also therein, burried deeply with these two dynamic agents, is the Id (the name which Freud gave to the well in the unconscious from whence gush forth the dynamic springs of the basic instincts), the Libido (or dynamic psycho-sexual composition of his being), and that weird monstrosity which is capable of forming a horrible nexus of phantasies and associated effects called by Freud the Oedipus Complex. (According to Freud, it is this complex which sets in motion impulses to have intercourse with a parent).

Now it is no part of my purpose to decry the contributions made to psychology by Sigmund Freud, nor to contest the idea that psycho-sexuality does play an extremely large part in the development of our mental processes. Nevertheless I would suggest that the theories of Freud have become a serious obsession in the minds of modern psychiatrists, with the result that they have come to assume unconscious and automatically that psycho-sexuality lies at the root of all mental ailments. This, however, is an idea which is far removed from the truth and which needs to be fundamentally corrected.

In these days we hear a lot about psycho-analysis, which makes one wonder just what kind of an idea is being evoked in the mind of the average person unversed in the science of psychology when he hears the word. For "analysis" suggests dissecting: "taking to pieces for examination." And inasmuch as the word "analysis" is being applied to the psyche, it suggests that the mind is somehow being taken to pieces in order that it may be examined bit by bit!

Psychologists, of course, will explain that it is necessary to make a mental analysis in order to discover the cause or causes of the mental ailment which is afflicting the patient. But after all, this is only a process of deep introspection on the part of the patient. For the psycho-analyst is seeking to make the patient rake up the past and to make him re-examine ideas and incidents which have long since been buried and left forgotten deep inside the unconscious mind. It is introspection, therefore, which is the basis of the whole business. And, in the words of J.A. Dafield: "Introspection is nature's method of compelling us to face our inner problems; its true function is to solve them."

This, then, is a process which everyone can perform for himself—provided he knows how! For a healthy mind is the product of right thinking; of a proper adjustment of values; of a real plan for a living. Whereas an unhealthy or deranged mind is the product of erroneous thought, of a disequilibrium of feelings and impressions, of an imperfect sense of values, of an aimless plan of existence.

Most psycho-analysts blissfully imagine that all that requires to be done is to discover the alleged psycho-sexual cause of the ailment and explain its real nature and effects to the patient, upon which the patient will himself effect his own cure by means of a mental re-orientation. But unfortunately for them, this by no means always happens. Again to quote J. A. Hadfield:

Scanned by www.spiritualastrology.com Copyright R. Robinson Work

*The first part of the article has appeared in January 1959 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

"Suppose a patient could be told exactly in detail all that happened to him when he was blown up, it would not cure his war neurosis. A patient may accept the fact that he has a sexual fixation to his mother and know why, but still retains his headache, phobia and obsession. That is the weakness of interpreting the cause to the patient. It is like seeing a joke: it always seems a poor one if it has to be explained. The pleasure is in seeing it for oneself. The mere discovery of the cause may simply stir up a patient's complexes and make worse, as we have seen".

Exactly so; and one of the main reasons for not seeing the joke is that the discovered sexual fixation may bear no relationship whatever to the real cause of the person's mental ailment!

In the course of life, for example, worries may tend to crown in upon a man. He may fall out of work through no fault of his own, and with the best will in the world he may be unable to obtain another job (possibly because he is now over forty and it is inconvenient for modern firms to fit him into their superannuation schemes). But he has bills to meet and responsibilities to s h o u l d e r. He feels hemmed in and assailed from all quarters. As a result he begins to fear reality. This fear, in fact, is one of the first signs of his mental unbalance, for it reveals clearly that the man has not equipped himself with the right ideas to withstand this form of mental pressure. And with the growing of his phobia, the Escape Instinct becomes very stronger and more compulsive. The man knows full well that to take the escape route is to surrender his responsibilities and to seek in flight the coward's way out. Actually, thoughts of this kind constitute his mental battle: the fight between his ego and super-ego. However he still does not know how to dissipate or allay his basic fear; and with the growing of the phobia the compulsion of the flight instinct may grow to such an intensity that finally his super-ego may be swept out of the way by a blind panic-stricken rush of feeling, in order that the man may seek relief in escape—to what? Now that his defences have gone by the board, his escape-hole may be suicide. Or amnesia. Or a mental breakdown or grave physical illness. Or insanity.

Yet he could have been spared all this mental anguish with its horrible consequences had he but possessed a complete knowledge of the functions and consequences of the Escape Instinct and had known of the way to build up mental defences against it by means of a mental synthesis compounded of right thinking. For the man who relapses into insanity by virtue of mental stresses of this order has not necessarily achieved his sad state by reason of a sexual fixation to his mother! Possibly he may indeed have such a fixation; but pointing that fact out to him is certainly not going to cure him of his real trouble. Which is the reason why we must make it our business to discover a whole lot more about these basic instincts of ours and what they signify.

Let us first examine the Food-Seeking Instinct—an Instinct which is correlated with the zodiacal sign of Libra. It is an instinct which is identifiable with the instinct for self-preservation. Food is indeed a primary requisite for self-preservation, since without it the individual will assuredly perish.

But when we think of food we inevitably tend to interpret the idea in terms of alimentation of the body in order to satisfy our physical needs of food and drink. However, the instinct does not come to a halt with the mere satisfaction of physical needs. The intellect needs food too. And so does the spirit. And the instinct has been installed in order to clamour for the satisfaction of all these varied needs.

Is it necessary to build up mental defences in the form of the unconscious super-ego? Of course it is necessary—vitally necessary. For, even in the physical plane, if we do not do so we shall overeat and pay a heavy price in obesity. For our alimentation may cause fatty degeneration of the heart, a disturbed liver, high blood pressure and many other effects calculated to shorten life very considerably. Hence the necessity from the start for right thinking in the matter of food. We must learn to know what is good for us individually in terms of bodily economy, and we must gain clear ideas concerning the quality and quantity of the intake. As a matter of fact many parents do endeavour in a crude way to impart correct ideas on this topic to their children by enjoining upon them that they should not eat to satiety but should leave the table with appetite for one more helping.

On the other hand the instinct should not be repressed so badly on account of erroneous thinking that the individual develops a mania for "mortifying the flesh" on the lines of a fakir or ascetic. For that would endanger his life through malnutrition by reducing his calory-content so severely that resistance to disease is lowered to zero.

Also on the intellectual plane it is decidedly wrong thinking which produces a misologist (hater of knowledge or reason), this being a form of insanity created by the unbalance produced by a near-total suppression of the food-seeking instinct in its application to mental pursuits. On the other hand control of the instinct by the super-ego is absolutely necessary if mental indigestion and nausea created through over-satiation is to be avoided.

The same thing is observable on the spiritual plane. Severe repression of the instinct will produce the atheist, the godless and the amoral—types which are the products of unrealistic and erroneous lines of thought. Sooner or later such errors upset or seriously disturb the mental balance by creating "religious difficulties", "guilt complexes" or mental conflicts based upon irreconcilables.

Libra is the sign of the Balance and demands equilibrium for satisfaction. This is a point which needs to be remembered in order to acquire the right ideas capable of leaving in the unconscious mind the 'memory traces' that will form the basis which the super-ego will operate to effect the unconscious control of the food-seeking instinct.

Broadly speaking, planets in the sign of Libra in the horoscope may indicate peculiar difficulties which the native may have to contend with. A knowledge of which is necessary in order to achieve equilibrium. The presence of Saturn in the sign, for example, will tend to produce an ascetic type, whereas with Jupiter in this sign a glutton may be the product. Mars in Libra is capable of producing the misologist; and Neptune can create "religious difficulties". It is hoped, however, to produce a fully detailed study of all these things in due course.

We must now turn our attention to the Mating Instinct. Which, of course, is an alternative name for the Sexual Instinct. In fact it is the energy attaching to this instinct which Freud styled "the Libido".

In the broadest sense this instinct may perhaps be considered a "creative" instinct, since psychologists seem persuaded that its energy may be transmuted and applied to the purposes of creative art in accordance with the process which they call sublimation. Its primary purpose, however, is that of procreation—the procreation of children. It is the instinct which clamours for satisfaction by inspiring the individual to seek a mate and discharge the energy of the instinct via the act of copulation. (Alternatively, the energy will clamour for discharge in other sublimated forms as already indicated).

The things which usually occasion erroneous thought on this topic are the sentient sensualities and colourful emotions which the individual contrives to channel through this instinct and which give rise to distorted ideas concerning the nature of love. It is rarely realised that motives can be mixed, and that the Libido can channel hate and sadism with the same facility with which it can channel love and tenderness. That it can channel spite and detestation as easily as it can channel affection. That it can be lust-ridden and perverted just as easily as it can express unity divine. Such bad effects are the products of wrong thinking of a kind one can expect from an apology for a super-ego.

Right thinking insists that the word "love" should describe solely the unselfish concern which we may feel for his welfare, the well-being and unhappiness of the person beloved, unconcerned with any consideration of personal satisfaction. For that idea alone can guarantee self-respect and at the same time inspire in us proper regard and respect for the personalities of others, in particular the personality of a person beloved. We cannot, however, make the right impress upon our unconscious mind in order to leave behind the vitally-necessary "memory traces" for the future guidance of the super-ego until we first, consciously, separate from our notion of love all ideas of sensuality, self-gratification, lust, etc. It is therefore vitally necessary to achieve that form of dissociation if we are to avoid future trouble.

It is true that in many instances correct mental adjustment can be achieved by reason of the impact upon us of the personality of a mate whom we have reason to respect and who has the necessary force of character to correct our misapprehensions whilst at the same time inspiring us with affection and esteem. But this is done through another mechanism built upon the fact that right from childhood our developing simple character traits has become enshrined in the process known as identification. Identification is in fact the second stage following suggestibility, and by its means we build up a special facility for identifying ourselves with others (especially with outstanding personalities), and, by absorbing their personalities, we unconsciously take over some of their characteristics. This is, in fact, a process of impersonation. However, it often does have the effect of correcting faulty thinking.

It is our conscious thinking on this topic which builds the shape of the unconscious censor (super-ego) and which determines the precise nature of the repressions brought to bear upon this instinct. Severe repression may be capable of producing frigidity, masochism, or other perverted forms of the instinct. But, of course, if the right forms of repression are absent, the compulsive power of the instinct can readily result in the promiscuity of a Don Juan or in the emergence of lustful, sadistic urges. But the final expression of the instinct will truly reflect the rightness of our thoughts on the topic of mating, or alternatively the grossness of our outlook will be fashioned by the perverted phantasies which we have cultivated in our conscious mind through the process of disordered thoughts.

Scanned by Dinesh Sapratashinde for Dr. V Ramaiah Work

Scorpio is the zodiacal sign correlated with the mating instinct, and the presence of planets in this sign can reflect the general attitude of the individual towards the mating instinct if the influences remain uncorrected. Lustful desires, for instance, may be inspired by the presence of Mars in this sign. Or if Venus be present, sensuality. If Jupiter, self-indulgence. If Saturn, a sense of responsibility and parental duty but possibly coloured by sadistic impulses. Uranus might inspire a degree of perversion. However, all these disabilities are capable of correction by dint of right thinking.

Very much more might be usefully contributed to our knowledge of the mating instinct but it is now time to turn our attention to the Self-Assertion Instinct which is correlated with the zodiacal sign of Sagittarius.

At first sight it might be supposed that the Self-Assertion Instinct is so useful and even necessary as not to need any form of repression or control. However, those who have witnessed the antics of any person who is giving free and uninhibited rein to this instinct will speedily be converted from that point of view. For the quality of egotism, bombast, arrogance and megalomania which can attach itself to an overbearing indisciplined nature is something that can stink in the nostrils of men. And if the individual in question should gain the powers of a Dictator, one can watch out!

Obviously right thinking is a prime requisite for the formation of the super-ego that can interpose the right inhibitions to tone down the instinct without unduly or unnecessarily repressing it. For should the repressions be severe, the development of an inferiority complex beocmes inevitable. Nor can we correct such a complex merely by trying to persuade ourselves that we are as good as the other fellow. There has to be conviction about it—based upon the certainty of knowledge. Otherwise our bluff may be called and our inferiority proven —with disastrous consequences to our mental balance once our defences have been penetrated. Actually it is this form of errroneous thought which fashions the core of communism and which produces inevitably the very violent manifestations which all too frequently emanate from adherents to that creed. The fact is that communists one and all are afflicted by a form of superiority complex (a simple inversion of the inferiority complex) which makes of them envious and malicious individuals, with no respect for human personality, but full of hatred and venom against any mark of distinction. People with whom a word is followed by a blow expressive of the unregulated Self-Assertion Instinct. People whose arrogance knows no bounds once they have gained the upper hand. People who regard the personalities they hate as "vermin". People who make their own laws to suit themselves without regard to the welfare rights or interests of the rest of the community. People who are prepared to ride roughshod over anyone attempting to impede their special and peculiar efforts at self-assertion. All of which should give one a pretty shrewd idea of why it is so wrong to allow our Education Authorities to continue with the pernicious experiment of "free self-expression" in children of the rising generation.

Very definitely. this is an instinct which requires judicious repression by the super-ego; and this can only be done through the process of right thinking.

Mars in Sagittarius may intensify the bellicosity of the Self-Assertion Instinct. Jupiter in this sign might intensify arrogance. Saturn could increase malice, and Uranus could generate the destructive forcefulness of self-assertion. Neptune, on the other hand, can inculcate cunning.

Now we must turn to consider the Laughter Instinct—an instinct which is associated with the zodiacal sign of Capricorn.

"Laugh and grow fat" is a commonplace expression symbolising the belief that laughter makes for contentment and well-being relaxes the nerves and adjust us so well with the world that for the time being we remain as it were in a state of blissful suspended animation, in which, through lack of exercise, we are liable to grow fat.

Gioberti has written: "Il riso fu dato all'uomo perche ne usi; e chi non ride mai non e uomo. L'anima e una cisterna che si secca se non e inumidita dal riso e dalla giovialita." ("Laughter was given to man to make use of it: and he who never laughs is not a man. The soul is a cistern which dries up if it be not moistened by laughter and joviality"). However, Perfetti, in his book entitled L'uomo, has recognised something else: "Il riso c'innebria; dopo il riso glorioso la procacita e la licenza." ("Laughter intoxicates us; after a glorious laugh comes impudence and licentiousness ").

Scanned by www.sueburnsastrology.com © Treasures by B. V. Burns Work

Everyone knows of course that we may be induced to laugh over a witty saying, a good joke, over an object held up to ridicule, over our perceptions of what is incongruous or what we term "funny". Nevertheless there are many other forms of laughter ranging from sheer joie de vivre to the Homeric, the ironic, and the hysteric. Also there is the kind which the French term "la moquerie". In the words of La Bruyere:

"La moquerie est de toutes les injuries celle qui se pardonne le moins; elle est le langage du mepris et l'une des manieres dont il se fait le mieux entendre; elle attaque l'homme dans son dernier retranchment, que est l'opinion qu'il a de soi meme: elle veut le rendre ridicule a ses propres yeux: et ainsi elle le convaint de la plus mauvaise disposition ou l'on puisse etre pour lui et le rend irreconciliable." (Ridicule is of all the insults that which is least pardoned; it is the language of contempt and one of the ways in which it makes itself best felt; it attacks a man in his last d i t c h which is the opinion he has of himself: it seeks to render him ridiculous in his own eyes: and thus it manoeuvres him into the worst disposition that could exist for him, and renders him irreconcilable. It is therefore clear that laughter can frequently become something quite different from a benefactor, and that there may be less truth than at first sight appears in the often expression thought that a man who is given to laughter can never be dangerous). It all depends upon the motive that provokes our laughter and on the kind of emotion which is being channeled through the instinct. Consequently it is just as necessary to build up unconscious defences against certain aspects of this instinct as with the other instincts. We have to ensure, by dint of right thinking, that the unconscious censor (the super-ego) has been properly instructed to interpose the required inhibitions.

Certain planets in the sign of Capricorn in a horoscope may provide reliable indications of special difficulties which the native may have to contend with. For instance, Mars in Capricorn may destroy a true sense of honour and substitute biting sarcasm. Jupiter in Capricorn may provide that admixture of bonhommic which often appears to be a fount of laughter. The depressive Saturn in the sign of Capricorn strange as it may seem often yields as product the born comic.

Let us now take a glance at the Construction Instinct which goes hand-in-glove with the zodiacal sign of Aquarius. Whether or not this is the true creative instinct I know not, for the Mating Instinct is a heavy contender for this title having much to do (in sublimated form) with creative conceptions in the world of art. However, the real function of the Construction Instinct is to spur man on to build and construct, to conceive plans and execute them, to invent and to translate dreams into reality.

Obviously this is not the kind of instinct which one should repress too severely. For under repression self-reliance may tend to vanish, leaving us planless, formless lost sheep. On the other hand, are defences really needed at all? Of course they are! The Construction Instinct can, for example, be made the instrument of intrigue, of plots, conspirations and treasons. Not every plan or work of construction is innocent of intent. It all depends upon the colour of the particular emotion that is being channeled by the instinct. Many a wealthy man has built his "Folly" for reasons of personal vanity aggrandisement. Many an autocratic ruler has built his empire for the same reasons. Some build upon contempt—as did Alexander the Great. Others are driven to build through a lust for power and authority. Others for reasons of vainglory. However, it is still true that the majority, consciously or unconsciously, do build for the service of man. Hence the instinct can be a great benefactor like science itself. But again like science, it can become the Great Destroyer. Hence the necessity for the safeguarding unconscious Super-Ego which we individually build upon 'memory traces' left behind in our unconscious mind as the product of our introspective thoughts sorting out our motives, ends and purposes, and of our understanding as to how these things can become distorted or perverted through the channeling of undesirable emotional forms.

Scanned by www.sriramdasa.org Courtesy of Preserve Dr. B.V.Raman's Work

Lastly, we have to consider the Escape Impulse in conjunction with the zodiacal sign of Pisces.

At first blush we might be tempted into thinking that the flight instinct might be a good thing to suppress altogether. But we have to ask ourselves: Is it desirable to repress the instinct entirely by depriving ourselves of every avenue of escape? Let us consider a set of conditions which may put our backs to the wall and confront us with the threat of annihilation. Under such circumstances, if we have not already conceived a well thought out plan of strategical retreat, one of two things is going to happen. Either we are annihilated (by the circumstances or via suicide), or we take refuge in insanity. For there is no other way out, if we have blocked every other avenue of escape. The fact is, the dynamic energy belonging to the Escape Instinct refuses to be totally confined. It clamours to be discharged, and obliges us to provide safe routes for its discharge. On the other hand we certainly must not give free rain to the flight instinct, because the net result of that procedure is the blind panic action of the kind indulged in by the soldier of a routed army. It will make abject cowards of us, or it will make us cunning and ruse. Or it will turn us into creatures of grave indecision, so that we are constantly wavering, and to all intents spineless and supine.

The kind of emotion that is channeled with the Escape Instinct will define its ultimate character. If anger and hate be channeled by the instinct, the product may be the malicious coward who will shoot a man in the back and make his escape along a safe and prepared route, or the hired assassin or terrorist who shoots an unsuspecting victim from ambush and then disappears. Such people possibly trained boys who have the trick of kicking their opponent on the shins unexpectedly and then taking to their heels to escape retribution. The traitor who is experienced in the art of double-cross and whose main ends and purposes in life are compounded of treason and disloyalty, is another of kidney. Or if lust be the emotion, one will get the kind of individual who seduces and then runs in order to evade his responsibilities. And so on.

It will be seen, therefore, that the basic instincts, taken as a whole, require a preconceived and well thought out plan on the part of every individual in order to develop the really efficient form of unconcious Super-Ego which goes with a thoroughly healthly mind. And this really efficient unconscious Super-Ego can only be the product of right thinking with our conscious mind in order to lay the defences of 'memory traces' in the unconscious mind.

All the psychoses and all the psycho-neuroses known to man are the products of erroneous conscious thought that has left the defensive barrier of the Super-Ego weak and inefficient. Hence it is certain that the work of a psycho-analyst cannot be restricted solely to Freudist objectives based slowly upon the functions of the Libido and the Oedipus Complex in relation to the Ego and Super-Ego, or even on the Id considered as a relatively unimportant part of the cathexis. What psycho-analysis needs to do, on the contrary, is to explore the exact mental structure of a patient, conscious as well as unconscious, with a view to discovering and understanding the exact construction of the erroneous lines of thought which have resulted in production of the symptoms of the malady. For the transition to a throughly healthy mental state may be achieved only through a process of mental re-education presented in an ideally synthetic form.

In other words, the structure and composition of the unconscious mind may only be altered, influenced and transformed by the application of proper dynamic energies operated by the conscious mind and made to impinge upon the unconscious mind by consciously re-thinking the whole process over again.

Scanned by www.vedicastrologyinstitute.com Vedic Research Work

THREE HUNDRED IMPORTANT COMBINATIONS

BY B. V. RAMAN

This is not a collection of combinations but a careful selection of just the most important ones which cannot be easily identified in a horoscope.

What makes one a dunce? Why is one unhappy, what makes one poor and the other rich? Why one has no bodily comfort—what makes one a King or an equal, a leader, a business magnate, an industrialist, a great politician, a pauper, a sickly man and a miserable wretch? What makes one attain success without much effect and what makes the other to meet with disappointment in life inspite of his very best efforts?

A study of this book will enable you to easily judge the worth of your own horoscope and adjudge its merits and demerits.

A book of this type containing a collection of rare combinations some of which are special yogas has never been published before.

The author has illustrated the principles with innumerable horoscopes from practical lives. Do not fail to read this book.

Excellent Paper, Cloth bound, Rs. 9/- or Sh. 18. Postage Extra.

Less 12½% to Subscribers of: THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE-3

House Division and the Ayanamsa

BY RAM DULAREY GUPTA, M.A.

RECENTLY some Western scholars have raised certain fundamental issues about Hindu Astrology, which deserve our deepest consideration, Yogiraj George Ceceil Nixon has contributed three articles to January, March and December 1958 issues of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, which have been published under the caption "Hindu Astrology Scientifically Analysed." His thesis is that there is a mixture of two different systems in the present day Hindu Astrology. One he calls the Karak or Natural Indicator System and the other he calls the House and the Sign Ruler System. He holds that as the Yogas (Rajayogas, Arishta Yogas, etc.) are not found elsewhere and as their interpretation is based on the ownership of houses, therefore, this system is indigenous to India. This is the system of Parasara, which includes the Vimshottari Dasa System. He feels that the Natural Indicator System does not belong to India and has been imported from outside about 300 B.C. when Greek Culture greatly affected Indian Astrology.

Yogiraj Nixon's main argument really revolves round the mode of House Division.

It is well known that a number of systems of House Division are prevalent. They can be divided into two broad categories, namely, (1) Quadrant Division System, and (2) Equal House Division System.

In the Quadrant Division System great circles containing the East-West and North-South lines of an observer on the Earth cut at four points giving four quadrants. These Quadrants of the great circle containing the East-West line of the observer on the Earth are then sub-divided into three parts each to give Twelve Houses. There are four variations of the Quadrant Division System given below :—

(a) The System of Porphyry (232 to 304 A.D.),

(b) The System of Campanus (died about 1297 A.D.),

(c) The System of Regiomantanus (1436 to 1476 A.D.), and

(d) The System of Placidus (1603 to 1668 A.D.).

In the West the Placidean System is mostly followed at present. The System of of Sripati, which is followed by the present Indian Astrologers, is identical to that of Porphyry.

The Equal House Division System does not recognise Quadrants. It only takes into cognizance the ascendant and erects subsequent houses by adding 30° each to them. In this System for Cancer ascendant, the second, third and subsequent houses will have Leo, Virgo, etc., rising at their cusps in their natural order. The degree of the ascendant will be repeated on the cusps of subsequent houses. Now this system of equal House Division appears to be crude and elementary, but of late it has been gaining ground amongst thoughtful Western scholars like Charles E.O. Carter and Mrs. Margaret E. Hone. Carter says:

"This ancient and simple method of house division, fallen into disuse during the would be 'scientific' age, when mathematical considerations outweighed the much more profound symbolism of astrology, has of late years had a strong revival in Britain and is now being accorded some attention on the continent of Europe.

"Without totally rejecting the significance of the Placidean cusps, I must state that only by using equal houses for natal work will the student be able to do justice to himself and his art"[1]

Mrs. Hone is a great follower of the Equal House Division System. She has devoted chapter 16 of her book The Modern Text Book of Astrology to the defence of this system of House Division. She has succinctly stated arguments for and against both the Quadrant and Equal House Division Systems, which I am sure, will bear reproduction in original. She says :

"The importance of the Meridian (as indicating a house cusp in the quadrant systems) has been insisted on since it is the great circle which passes through the North and South Poles of the equator, and the observer's Zenith, thus making it personal to his individual situation in longitude especially in the astrological significance of this as his birth-place.

"The degrees at which it cuts the ecliptic have invariably marked the cusps of houses 10 and 4 in such systems.

"What has not been realised is that the degrees of ecliptic which mark the cusps of houses 10 and 4 in the Equal House System are also cut by a great circle which passes through the observer's Zenith, and that this passes through the North and South Poles of the ecliptic, hence it is just as individual to a person at any birth-place but include the

[1]. Quoted in M.E. Hone's The Modern Text Book of Astrology on page 125.

Scanned by www.vedicastrology.com To Preserve Dr B.V. Raman's Work

Poles of the circle which is being used, and not any other."[2]

What I have been driving at would be clear by now. I am inclined to agree with Mr Nixon that Ancient Hindu Astrologers did not make any difference between the Signs and the Houses. It is, however, not because of their ignorance of a Quadrant System of House Division, but because they followed the Equal House System.

It is correct that India is situated nearer to the equator than northern countries are. But it may be stated that Varanasi which has been a centre of Hindu learning since ancient times has a latitude of 25°.20.' At Varanasi the difference between the Signs and House Divisions according to the Quadrant System begins to make itself felt with sufficient force. Moreover, it is an historical fact that Buddhist monks travelled to China and Turkestan and other northern latitudes. Relics of even older Hindu culture have also been found in these northern latitudes. It would, therefore, be fair to presume that Ancient Hindu Astrologers knew about the conditions obtaining in the northern latitudes but did not take note of them as they followed a system of house division which was not affected by them.

Jaimini is usually regarded as older than Parasara. We know that Jaimini did not make any use of House Divisions, but relied only on the Signs in his system of Astrology. This is another argument in favour of the belief that Ancient Hindus were the followers of the Equal House Division System. They perhaps did so as they attached greater importance to the ecliptic in which the Sun and the planets appear to have their existence and motions.

Now, if this fact is taken into consideration, most of the difficulties that have arisen in the mind of Mr. Nixon will be laid to rest. The difficulty about the mixture of two different systems will also disappear. Broadly speaking, the purpose of the Natural Indicator system is to give a general reading regarding a horoscope and that of the House-Ownership system to help in the interpretation of Yogas and the Vimsottari Dasa of a chart. Both are complementary to each other. Yogas and the Vimsottari Dasa are peculiar to the genius of India, and the Natural Indicator system appears to have a common origin in the hoary past when Indians, Chaldeans, Babylonians and Egyptians practised Astrology as a part of their religion and learnt from each other.

In this connection it may be stated that Sripati flourished in the first half of the eleventh century. It seems to me that the System of Porphyry came to India at about that time and began to be followed by Indian Astrologers, giving rise to the confusion pointed out by Mr. Nixon.

Another question of fundamental importance which has recently been raised by Western scholars is about the value of the Ayanamsa. Hindu Astrology follows and belives in the Niryana Zodiac. Therefore, the fixation of the correct value of the Ayanamsa is of the utmost importance.

Indian Astrologers employ the value of the Ayanamsa between 19° to 24°. This naturally makes a considerable difference in the fixation of the ascendant and other cusps of houses, and a very great difference in the calculations of the Vimshottari Dasa system. We know that in the Vimshottari Dasa system $13\frac{1}{3}°$ of the arc is equated to the years of the particular planets. This means that in case of Venus $13\frac{1}{3}° = 20$ years. The difference in the timing of events that the difference of one degree in the value of the Ayanamsa would bring about can very well be imagined.

Cyril Fagan in his article "Zodiacs False and True" published in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE of March 1955 has drawn our attention to the problem. He has correctly said that without the fixation of a correct value of the Ayanamsa the case for the Nirayana Zodiac would be lost as if by default. This is why a number of Indian Astrologers have begun to follow the Sayana Zodiac. We must fix a correct value of the Ayanamsa if we wish to present Hindu Astrology to the World on a firm ground.

The problems of House Division and the value of the Ayanamsa both require systematic research. This can naturally not be done by an individual who has limited means at his command. Research work of these problems should be taken up by some institutions. There are a number of societies for the study of Astrology in India. I regret I am not aware of the work they are doing at present. It is suggested that one or more of these societies may take up research work on these two fundamental problems, and we should be grateful to Western scholars for drawing our attention to them.

Scanned by www.sahajajyotish.com for the Preservation of Dr. B.V.Raman's Work

[2] M. E. Hone's The Modern Text Book of Astrology on page 283.

ALWAYS—Please write your Subscriber Number printed on the wrapper of your Magazine just above your name and address. This ensures quick attention.

MANAGER,
The Astrological Magazine

Observations on Horary Astrology

BY B. SURYA PRAKASH

IN my last article published in August 1958 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, I had discussed the method of answering questions pertaining to missing articles, specially concerning thefts In this article, I propose to discuss one more example pertaining to the same topic and then deal with methods of answering questions pertaining to missing persons, and success or failure in litigation.

Query 1.—"A pair of golden ear rings has been lost. Is there any chance of recovery?" Questime 12–25 p.m., (I.S.T.) on 14–3–1958. Lat. 13° N; and Long 5–10–20E. Ayanamsa 21° 49'.

Sun Mercury	Kethu		Lagna
Mars Venus	RASI
Moon Saturn		Jup. R. Rahu

	Saturn		Venus
Mars	NAVAMSA		Kethu Sun
Rahu Mercury
Lagna Jupiter	Moon

Lagna is Gemini. Navamsa Lagna is Sagittarius. Lord of 7th (thief) Jupiter is in 5th in association with Rahu. Jupiter is well placed from Lagna. Hence the article is misplaced rather than stolen. The first decanate of Gemini rising indicates the person responsible for the misplacement of the article—'a handsome female, skilled in needle work'. The aspect of Moon from the 7th on the Ascendant and that of Saturn also indicate the physical characteristics and temperament of the person concerned. That is, the person must be tall (Saturn aspecting the Lagna and Gemini rising), with good physical features (Moon aspecting) and rather short-tempered (Moon conjunction Saturn), but of a good disposition (Jupiter aspecting the Lagna). The association of the 7th lord Jupiter with Rahu in Libra indicates that the article might be at some elevated and airy place but concealed from view (7th lord Jupiter conjunction Rahu), like granaries or shelves high above the ground.

As regards recovery, a superficial glance at the chart will surely mislead us in our judgment as Lagna receives the powerful aspect of Saturn, and its lord is debilitated in association with a malefic, Sun. Against these factors, it is but natural for us to conclude that Jupiter's aspect is of no use, and that the article is lost for ever. But on a closer examination, we find that Lagna in Navamsa is occupied by its own lord and further aspected by another powerful benefic Venus. Further, the lord of Navamsa Lagna is strong by being in his own house and having the aspect of Venus. According to Chappanna (English translation by Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao), "if the rising sign is benenficial and joins beneficial Shadvargas or if the rising sign be Sirshodaya, the object of the question will be successful. In the reverse, there will be failure".

In the present case, Gemini, a benefic sign rises with a benefic Navamsa, benefic Drekkana, benefic Dwadasamsa, and a benefic Saptamsa. Thus there is a majority of four benefic vargas. Hence Saturn's aspect over Lagna is of no great harm against Jupiter's aspect coupled with the fact that rising Navamsa and its lord are also strong. This is further aided by benefic Shadvargas rising. On these grounds, the prediction given was—that the article has been mis-placed by the querent herself (judged from the fact that Jupiter lord of 7th aspects Lagna, together with the indication given by the rising Navamsa), and that it must be in some elevated place concealed from view (7th lord Jupiter conjn. Rahu) and that would be recovered with some searching. The prediction was fully realised as anticipated and the querist later said that she herself had mislaid the article in a small packet contained in a basket suspended from a support.

Incidentally and curiously enough, this example illustrates the validity of the Navamsa chart and the usefulness of the Shadvargas.

Now we shall take up questions pertaining to missing persons.

General principles regarding questions about missing persons

1. First of all, the strength or weakness of Moon should be ascertained to know the mental state of the person who is missing.

2. The early return of a person who has gone abroad or missing, is indicated if at the time of query (a) all the planets are in 2nd, 3rd and 5th houses. (b) the above three houses are mainly occupied by the benefics —waxing Moon, well-associated Mercury, Jupiter and Venus. (c) any one of the above three houses is occupied by Jupiter and Venus. (d) the 6th house or 7th house be occupied by any planet and Jupiter occupies an angle. (e) Mercury and Venus occupy trinal houses. (f) Moon is in the 8th house and angular houses are free from malefic planets' aspect or association. (If benefic effects prevail in the above angular houses, then the person will return with some gain). (g) Moon in Lagna which should be a movable sign or Moon in Lagna (in Rasi) with a movable Navamsa rising, or in the 4th house—indicates that the person will return home safely after accomplishing his work.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com ©All Rights Reserved - Dr. K. Ram Work

About the time of return: The time within which the missing person would return is the number of days indicated by multiplying by 12 the number of the sign (nearest to the rising sign) which contains a planet. If the concerned planet is in retrogression, then the number of the sign (from the rising sign) where this retrograde planet is situated will indicate the number of days within which the person concerned will return. It need not be multiplied by 12.

Here is a practical example about a missing person.

Query 2:—"My cousin aged 32 went for an interview to..... but has not returned so for. What about his whereabouts and conditions?" Query-time 16-12-1958 at 7–11 p.m. (I.S.T.) at Bangalore. Ayanamsa 21° 49'. The Ascendant is Cancer, a watery sign. This indicates the place where the person concerned has gone. That is a northern place, probably a sea-coast town. The Ascendant lord though in the 8th is in Vargottama aspected by benefic Jupiter, both in Rasi and Navamsa. Note also the rulership of body and

Kethu	Mars R
Moon	RASI		Lagna
Sun Saturn Venus	Mercury	Jupiter	Rahu

Kethu	Sun	Saturn	Jupiter
Moon	NAVAMSA		Venus
Lagna Mercury	Mars		Rahu

mind in this case rests with a single planet Moon, who is fairly well placed. This promises that the native is healthy without any worries and bodily troubles. Next the question is, what is he doing? Since it was mentioned by the querent that the native had gone for an interview, the 10th house also has to be examined. The 10th is occupied by its lord Mars but in retrogression, powerfully aspected by Jupiter. Mars is also well placed in Navamsa in his own sign. So this clearly points to the state of affairs as for as the profession of the native is concerned. This shows that the native would be fixed up in some decent job, but the confirmation would be delayed on account of the retrogression of Mars aided by his being aspected by Saturn in Navamsa. But Jupiter's aspect restores the equilibrium. Mars becomes direct on 20th December 1958, and hence it is probable that the querent would have his order confirmed on this day.

Next about his return. Now the factors that point to his return are as follows:—

1. Jupiter is in an angular sign and the 6th house is occupied by planets.

2. Moon is in the 8th house and the angles are free from malefic associations. Though the 10th is occupied by Mars the evil is practically neutralised, as it is occupied by its own lord Mars with the powerful benefic aspect from Jupiter.

Now about the time of return. In this case, Jupiter (the first planet from Lagna) is in 4th house and hence the time duration is 4×12 or 48 days.

The answer given to the querist was that the querent would most probably secure or be fixed up in his job by about 20th December and that he would return within 48 days. The forecast was correctly verified. The person queried about, had gone to a sea-coast town for an interview and though he was promised that the job would be given to him, he had to pass some anxious moments as some strong rivals were delaying his confirmation and in that state of affairs he was not in a mood to write to his people about the outcome as it might upset them. So he decided to stay till he could get the final word about his appointment.

Now we shall proceed to the method of knowing success or failure in litigations. Here it should be noted that these queries involve at least two parties or persons. Lagna represents the party or person concerned and the 7th house the opponent.

(Continued on page 340)

Scanned by www.sriramvishwastrology.com The Present Day Astrological Work

Astrology and Its Practical Application

BY I. AGHORAPATI, B.A., B.ED.

THE biologist approaches national and international problems with their persistent evils of maladjustment and wars through an analogy of the human brain and suggests a solution. The astrologer asks humanity to look forward to the coming of the Aquarian Age when the equinox enters the sign of Aquarius (Kumbha), one of the intellectual signs belonging to the Trinity of Association. It will then usher in the 'Age of Reason' and the 'Age of Scientific Advancement.' Humanity will respond more and more to the vibrations of this sign. Men will be guided more by reason than by emotion (Pisces). We can then better understand the nature of 'Uranus' the higher octave of Mercury and the co-ruler of Aquarius. Reasonableness is a trait of Mercury and the signs Gemini, Libra and Aquarius. People who have Aquarius well pronounced can always appreciate different points of view and approach problems in a reasonable spirit. Humanistic ideals come largely under this sign, the natural eleventh sign of the zodiac. The sign Libra is noted for its pacifism. Men coming under its sway are pacifists and they always avoid conflicts and prefer compromise for the continuance of ties. The ruler Venus is always ready to effect a compromise or to arrive at a mutual understanding. It is noted for its spirit of give and take, forget and forgive and on it depends our happiness in life. Happiness, love, friendship, society and family are ruled by Venus. It makes friends easily, promotes social life and is the binding factor of the family. I shall illustrate its functions by a few examples. One is a doctor born with Libra as the Lagna and its lord Venus is in the fifth Aquarius. In the domestic sphere his love and affection for the family is so wide and deep that he gave high education to all his brothers. His home is open to all the vagrant train. In society he is a fine gentleman with elegent manners and refined speech. Mind you such people with a fine Venus in the fifth out of tender love for their children cannot keep them under control and discipline. There is a bosom friend of mine in whose horoscope Venus lord of 7th (Libra) is in 11th (Kumbha). He makes friends easily and has polished manners and tastes. He used to direct social dramas in the school and college. Unfortunately Venus is opposed by Mars from Leo a fiery sign. The outspoken nature bestowed by that planet worked against his own interests. With the advent of Sukra dasa, his co-workers through false C.I.D. reports brought about his fall. Moreover Sukra is in shadastaka (6th and 8th position) with Saturn (in Cancer) the ruler of the 11th house. Carter in his brief essay on the zodiacal signs has finely summarised the influence of this trinity as "can see now why afflictions to Libra or Venus, or indeed to any of the Airy signs cause some form of maladjustment or disharmony, either actual quarrels, or inner discord in mind or emotions. On the other hand benefic influences cause content and peace".

The chief and the most important derivative of the 7th house is marriage. Much has been written about the astrological aspect of marriage, but I wish to present briefly its biological, social and spiritual aspects. Evolution is a continuous process and the human species reproduces itself through the sexual process. It is the sacred debt of man to continue the race by reproduction. 'Prajaya Pitribhya'. This is the debt we owe to our ancestors. "Do not cut off the thread of offspring" is the advice of the Upanishads. Children are a source of spiritual sustenance to the parents. Man and woman are as purusha and prakriti—they are complementary. To think that woman is inferior to man in intellectual competence is erroneous. In Geeta Govinda Radha leads timid Krishna home. The daughters of Dakshyana are learned in philosophy and religion. Love binds man and woman together and has its spiritual and physical sides. Love and marriage are not merely union of body, but they are the union of two souls. Love is a supreme blessing. It is 'spirit calling spirit'. Savitri loved Satyavan body and soul and steadfastly stuck to him inspite of his short life—Na dvitiyam vrunomyaham'. Rama discards Sita after killing Ravana for he thinks she became impure. But Sita simply says,

'Saham tapah Suryanvitadiistir urdhvam prasutes karttnm yatisye' Bhuyoyathame janmantarepi tvameva bharta na caviprayogah"

Bhuyoyathame janmantarepi tvameva bhartana caviprayogah (Raghuvamsa). By Suryopasana She wants to take Rama as her husband in her next life without separation. How selfless Sita is; her love no longer depends on the way Rama treats her. Her love for Rama thus shines with a spiritual glow. Married life is not merely for natural passions but supremely for the sake of the spirit. Hindus look upon sex life as sacred. By judiciously regulating our sex life we can secure spiritual freedom. But in the present age we seem to forget these great teachings.

Scanned by drishy.sapthrishiastrology.com For Preservation & Research Work

Man is not complete without a wife. She is called 'Ardhangi'. Mahadeva and Parvati are represented in one body. Both in flesh and spirit man and woman are one. The image of Ardhanariswara is India's monumental evidence to the fact that man and woman are incomplete separately but complete mutually. The chief aim of marriage is to achieve the four objectives of life—dharma, artha, kama and moksha. The several rituals at the time of marriage prepare the couple for the attainment of those great objectives. A man is fully born and complete only after he marries a woman. The position of wife is an exalted one in that all religious acts cannot be performed without her. During Sita's absence in Lanka, Rama performed the daily rites with the golden image of Sita by his side. It is an exalted one because women are better known for their trait of suffering born out of self-denial, patience, dutifulness and unselfishness. Uma won Siva through penance, austerity and suffering. Kalidasa makes Sakuntala unite with Dushyanta after a long suffering. Did not the Aswinidevatas learn from Sukanya that she married an old and ugly sage only because their souls were one. She never minded his age or his ugly features. Yagnavalka before retiring for penance wanted to give some material provision for his wives Anasuya and Maitraye. But Maitraye addressing her husband as 'O Brahman', requested him to teach them Atmavidya and give them spiritual sustenance instead of the material things. Gruhastasrama and Gruhinitva are ment for the attainment of liberation. Through performance of social duties, through service and austerity we can make a home a real home. Nowadays marriage has become purely a utilitarian institution. Only mercenary and beauty aspects govern the choice of a marriage partner. Marriage can be registered in a court at any time by the stroke of a pen and broken by the decree of a divorce. These are signs of degeneracy.

I wrote on the philosophy of marriage because it forms the background of the astrological injunctions prescribed by our sages. As the objectives of marriage are of a very high order, elaborate rules are laid down for proper muhurtam for a marriage. It is agreed on both sides, East and West, that on it depends the future well-being and prosperity of a couple. As married life is a journey of the couple towards the spiritual goal of liberation it is essential that none should lose the other. Hence the importance of 'Mangalyam' (8th house) and Kuja dosha. For the prosperity, welfare and marital felicity the sages have prescribed 'Marriage Kutams'. Many are satisfied if in the horoscopes of a couple a high percentage of marks is obtained in 'Poruthams'. There are cases of failures in marital life wherein the couple have obtained great agreement with regard to Kutams.

There is something more to be looked into. The greatest consideration should be given to the mutual aspects between the planets and houses in one with those in the other. The trinal relationship and the Upachaya relationship (excluding 6th) between the ascendants is desirable. My uncle and his wife have their Lagnas in Cancer and Pisces (both are trines) respectively. The ascendant in my wife's case is third from that of mine. In both cases good harmony is present. In the case of my Guru in Astrology, his wife's ascendant was 8th from his. His is Kanya and hers was Mesha. She was aggressive and always argued and disagreed with him in several matters. I have with me two cases of males of Kanya Lagna whose wives were natives of Vrischika Lagna (3rd and 11th positions). They prospered well. Next we come to the mutual relation of Sun in one with Moon in the other. This governs respect and reverence which each has for the other. They are Siva and Parvati (Sanatata Dampatulu). If the Sun in one is 3, 5, 9 or 11 from the Moon in the other good respect and reverence is denoted Sita used to remark to Anasuya that Rama treated her matravat pitruvat priyat. In Ramayana Kausalya is represented as 'Yada yadahi Kausalya dasivacca sakhivcca/bharyavad bhaginvaca matruvacca upathisthate'.

Another factor is the physical aspect of sex—the sexual act. Mars and Venus govern this aspect. For proper consummation of this act trines are excellent testimonies. Dissociate signs (12, 2, 6, 8) are to be avoided. Mars in one conjunct Venus in the other is good. The opposition aspect is to be highly preferred. It is complementary in nature. It is said by the great Varahamihira in his Brihat Samhita that even a poor man is reckoned a king if he consummates sexual act and enjoys sexual bliss.

'Striratna bhogosthi narasyayesya
Nisvopi sampratyava iswarosow
Rajyasya saran sena anganascha

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri Preserving Dr B V Raman's Work

Trushtnalodeepana daruses-ham.'

The hall-marks of kingship are but two—food and woman. The rest are auxiliaries. Let me reiterate 'Atmanastu Kamya' and abide by it.

With the horoscope of the couple before us, mark the Lagna point of the husband in the horoscope of the wife and note the respective position of her planets with reference to his angles and houses and do the same in the chart of the husband. Malefics in one should not fall in the angles of the other, especially if Mars or Saturn in one comes to 4 or 7 in the other it speaks of lack of domestic happiness, harmony and marital felicity. Below is an example of a would-be couple.

Uranus 22 43	Rahu 4.27	Mars 24.15	Jupiter 16.31
Ascdt. 13.25	MALE		Sun 22.25
Moon 12.52			Nep. 9.46 Mercury 14.17
Saturn 13.13 R	M.C. 19.50	Kethu 4.27	Venus 5.32

	Moon 24.12	Mars 5.40 Uranus 15.33 Asc. 22.32	Saturn 1.32
M.C. 19.56	FEMALE		Jupiter 18.16 Rahu 22.9
Kethu 22.9			Sun 4.46 Venus 26.46
			Mercury 0.57 Nep. 7.30

Birth particulars are not given. Mutual Sun, Moon, relationship is absent. So mutual respect and reverence for each other is below mark. Only Mars in the female chart is trine Venus in the male chart. But Venus is neecha and heading to a square of Saturn, planet of sorrow and gloom. The value is not up to the mark at all. From the Ascendant of the male 13° 25' of Kumbha, Uranus in the female chart comes to the 4th (house of domestic happiness) of the male! The eccentric and most independent nature bestowed by Uranus in the ascendant of the female will be the cause of domestic unhappiness. But Jupiter's (exalted) sextile aspect from the female chart is on the 4th angle of the male and it is the redeeming feature. From an examination of the 4th house of the male, we find Mars there and its lord is debilitated in the 8th and is receiving the aspect of lagnadhipathi Sani. Domestic happiness is below par. Such a Mars is conjunct the Ascendant of the female. Birth promise is fulfilled by having her as the wife. Therein we see the hand of destiny. My aunt has her Ascendant conjunct her husband's Moon the ruler of his ascendant. The ascendant in my wife's case is conjunct my radical Moon. "The commonest and strongest tie between a man and woman is probably the presence in the one horoscope of the Sun, Moon or Venus on the ascendant of the other. Such "positions occasion very strong physical attraction" (Carter). Deep sympathy and understanding will also be there. Benefics in one going to the angles of the other work in a beneficial way. A woman with Jupiter and exalted Venus conjunct in Meena placed the combination in the 7th of a man. Jupiter of that man, who happens to be lord of 4th and 7th, is in the 7th of the woman. The woman was married to the man when she was seven. All on a sudden the parents agreed and the marriage was performed. In another case of a man, his Venus lord of 4 happened to go to the Ascendant of a lady. and that lady's Jupiter, lord of 2 and 5 happened to oppose this Venus from the 7th. Moreover her Moon, almost full, came to the 7th of the man. Both were married before the age of twelve. There are several such intesesting cases where the parents could bring about marriages very easily without effort and expense.

Let us examine what evidence the horoscopes of the couple (given above) lend to the fact that from the time of her birth it was settled that she should be given in marriage to that boy (her paternal aunt's son). In the girl's horoscope Saturn from the Ascendant and Jupiter from the third house aspect the 7th house powerfully. True to their combined aspects the boy is a native of Aquarius ruled by Saturn. Both the lagna and its lord Saturn are aspected by Jupiter from the 5th house. Jupiter in the girl's horoscope is conjunct Sun in the other who rules 7th house and Moon stands in opposition to this combination. The angular houses in both are almost the same areas with the difference that Lagna in one becomes 10 in the other and so on.

I have thus placed before the learned readers a very liberal discussion on this aspect of marriage with a few examples. I have left out the importance of Sahams—Vivaha, Punya, Dampathya—for the present. They play a very important part. With all these elaborate rules and principles can we mitigate the evil—disharmony and conflict—indicated by the 7th house by suitable selection of the partner? Marriages are made in heaven!

Scanned by www.saptarishiastrology.com to Preserve Dr. B V Raman's Work

READY FOR SALE

NOTABLE HOROSCOPES

By B. V. RAMAN

A reliable guide to Practical Astrology

This does not contain starling predictions and amazing forecasts. But it is the product of investigations and studies by the Author presented here in an orderly and specific form but in simple language easily understandable by the average reader.

One is born a beggar but becomes a ruler. One is born a ruler but becomes a begger, How and why? What combinations make one a Scientist, Physicist, Chemist, Botanist, Poet, Politician, Statesman, Artist, Murderer, Dissimulator, etc.

Though several circumstances are the same for the rich and the poor alike, there will be certain astrological peculiarities in Notable Horoscopes (e.g., Tagore, Nehru, Hitler, C. R. Das, Prof. Rao, Einstein, etc.) which are easily discernible and a careful study of which would enable one to acquire that practical knowledge and experience which is otherwise impossible.

This work shows that birth date and time are of supreme importance as determining not only character but also eventful periods of life.

The book contains the horoscopes of notable persons—their birth data, planetary positions, Dasas and Bhukthis in which important events have taken place in their lives. Then the various combinations which have produced different types of great men are carefully analysed with a view to showing to the readers, the practical application of Raja Yogas, Daridra Yogas and the like. The book also demonstrates the truth of Vimshottari Dasa.

Scanned at www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

SOME OF THE HOROSCOPES CONTAINED IN THE BOOK

Sri Krishna, Adi Sankara, Akbar, Alexander, Gautama Buddha, Jesus Christ, Prophet Mahomed, Augustus, Goethe, Aurangzeb, Gandhi, Ramakrishna Paramahamsa, Vivekananda, Tilak, B. Suryanarain Rao, Aurobindo Ghose, Ramana Maharshi, Sri Thyagaraja, Sri Vidyaranya, Rabindranath Tagore, Hitler, Mussolini, Abraham Lincoln, Subhas Bose, Jagadish Bose, Milton, Savarkar, Annie Besant, Bernard Shah, Godse, Stalin, Nehru, Eisenhower, Maotse-Tung, C. R. Das, Ashutosh Mukherjee, Sree Chaitanya, Karl Marx, Nero, Duke of Windsor, etc.

And also horoscopes illustrative of extreme religiousness, suicidal tendencies and certain other definite traits.

Crown Octavo: 415 Pages

Ordinary Edition: Glazed Paper & Cloth Bound
PRICE: Rs. 7/50 or Sh. 15

::

Deluxe Edition: Art Paper & Rexine Bound
PRICE: Rs. 10/25 or Sh./206

Order your copy at once.

Less 12½% to Subscribers of: THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

Raman Publications, "Sri Rajeswari", Bangalore-3

New Light on Jaimini Astrology

A Discourse on Somanatha Misra's Jyothishakalpalatha commentary

By M. K. SASTRY

IT was in the ancient times that the Jaimini Sutras was written by Maharshi Jaimini and ever since commentaries on such a great work are being written by scholars till the present day. About twenty such commentaries have been secured so far and there is every prospect of procuring about ten to fifteen more in the near future. The difficulty is mainly due to the reason that most of the commentaries are in manuscript, with the exception of one or two, which are available in printed form. Of these manuscripts some have given the information upto two chapters while some upto one chapter only. The present day scholars have given commentary for two chapters and printed copies are available. The five commentaries mentioned below are complete commentaries:

1. Neelakunteeya : 2. Jyothishaphalaratnamala : 3. Jyothishakalpalatha : 4. Vanchanadheeya : 5. Jainapandithavyakhya.

Of these works, the subject matter of Jyothishakalpatha, Jyothishaphalaratnamala and Vanchanadheeya is almost similar. And again of these three books Jyothishakalpalatha is found to be more useful and I wish to present "Jaimini Sutras" as given in this commentary.

In the exordium of the Jyothishakalpalatha it is stated:—

भगवानाचार्यः कालपरिज्ञानार्थं गणित-
शास्त्रं सूत्रचतुष्टयं निरूप्य
तद्वारा सर्वेषां जंतूनां फलपरिज्ञानार्थं च
आयुर्ज्ञानार्थं च, किंच
अथ भगवानाचार्यः पूर्वं गणितप्रवर्तक
सूत्राध्यायविधायकसूत्राध्यायचतुष्टयं
निरूप्य, तद्वारा फलविधायकसूत्राध्याय-
चतुष्टयौं विवृणोति ॥ इति ॥

Thus it is seen that Mahrshi Jaimini had written Sutras containing eight chapters four on astronomical calculations and four on predictive side and the former portion is yet to be secured.

I quote below some details contained in the four chapters concerning the predictive side:

प्रथमाध्याये प्रथमपादस्य संज्ञानिरूपणं,
द्वितीयपादे स्वकारकाधिष्ठितफलं, तृतीय-
पादे पदाधिष्ठितफलनिरूपणं, चतुर्थपादस्य
तु कलत्राधिष्ठितफलम् ॥

In the first chapter which consists of four padas, the first deals with the enunciation of the principles of prediction, the second predictions according to Karakamsa, the third Arudha and the fourth pada contains Upapadaphala.

द्वितीयाध्याये तु चत्वारिंशद्दशानयनम् ।
आयुर्ज्ञानम् ॥

This chapter gives the procedure of calculating Dasas in 40 different methods and also longevity.

तृतियाध्याये द्रेक्काणवैषयिकराजयोग,
आयुर्ज्ञान, अंतरंगदशानयनम् ।
स्त्रीलक्षणानि च ॥

This chapter also consists of four padas and the first pada is for determining the Rajayoga according to Drekkana, the second about the longevity calculations according to Drekkana and Ghatikalagna, and calculations of Antharanga dasa, the third and fourth padas to read the predictions of female horoscopes and some dasas.

चतुर्थाध्याये मृतिलक्षण, नानादेशसंचार,
परलोकविधायक चतुष्पद, वियोनि,
निषेक गर्भलक्षणं, अन्याश्चदशाः । तेषां
लक्षणानि ॥

Here indications of death, foreign travel, the horoscopes of animals and creatures, conception and its characteristics and other Antharanga dasas are dealt with.

Thus the subject has been discussed chapter by chapter in detail.

According to "Jaimini Sutras" it is said that 70 dasas are known and the entire sastra is suggestive of two different parts one discussing lagna and Karaka and the other Drekkana as quoted below:—

" चत्वारि सूत्राध्यान्यपि पर्यालोच्य, सप्ततिरपि दशास्समालोच्य सर्वमपि फलं "॥
किंच, द्रेक्काणशास्त्रस्य अंतरंगत्वात्
अंतरंगबहिरंगयोरंतरंगो बलीयानिति
न्यायेन अंतरंगशास्त्रस्य दृगाणरीत्यैव
फलादिकम् प्रवृत्तम् ॥ इति ॥

So the first part tells about Bahiranga and the second about Antharanga, of which Antharanga being more prominent.

Dasas:

Of the 40 dasas, mentioned above in the second chapter, some are consulted for calculating the longevity and some for periodical predictions.

द्वितीयाध्योयोक्त चत्वारिंशद्दशासु
सार्वभौम, राजाधिराजयोगोद्भवानां पंच-
दशभिर्दशाभिः फलानि वक्तव्यानि ।
प्रभूणां च पंच, इतरास्तु साधारण्येन,
तत्रापि राजयोगप्रद, राजयोगजनितानां
योगार्ध, लाभाधिपस्यद्रेक्काण, भावरहस्य,
मंडूकप्लुतयः ॥ इति ॥

Scanned by www.sriramsastrology.com. All Rights Reserved. Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

As quoted above 15 dasas are exclusively meant for predicting the horoscopes of Kings and Emperors, five for Prabhuyoga category, and for those born in the special Rajayogas, the Yogardha, Labhadhipastha drekkana, Bhavarahasya, and Manduka are only applicable and the remaining dasas for calculating all the other common horoscopes. Common dasas for periodical pedictions are :

नक्षत्रभेद, नक्षत्रज, निसर्ग, चरपर्याय, स्थिरपर्यायादिभिः

as per the above quotation :

1. Nakshatrabheda :
2. Nakshtraja : 3. Nisarga :
4. Charaparyaya :
5. Sthiraparyaya, etc.

Dasas for calculating the longevity :

आयुर्दायविधये जंतूनां चतुर्था ब्रह्म, वर्णद, चर, तत्पर्यायैः प्रधान्येन, इतराश्च दशाश्च तत्तदनुगुण्येन निर्णयाः इति ॥

1. Brahma : 2. Varnada (three kinds) : 3. Chara : 4. Charaparyaya :

These four dasas are most important to determine the longevity and in some other exceptional horoscopes dasas other than these are necessary for finding out the longevity.

In order to calculate the 70 dasas completely it is stated that Mulasastra of Kalidasa might be taken as an authority and this work is to be obtained still on enquiries.

The procedure of calculating the balance period for the Prarambhadasa (first Dasa) is not permitted by the great commentator Somanatha. He has specifically mentioned about the twelve Rasis for a period of twelve years at the rate of one year for each Rasi.

Bhavas (Twelve).

Bhavaphalas are discussed in four ways :

1. Lagna ; 2. Karaka ; 3. Amsa : and 4. Drekkana.

The twelve rasis are termed as twelve bhavas calculated from the point of lagna and the Charakarakas are the twelve bhavas in karaka chakra and all the planets become twelve bhavas in navamsalagna and there is a speciality in drekkana and it is that the same drekkana which has been occupied by the lagnadhipathi is itself the lagna and in the same manner other bhavas are also determined in drekkana chakra.

Karakas :

कारकनिर्णयसु :—कारका बहुविधा तत्र च कारक, आत्मकारक, स्वकारक, दशाकारक भावकारक, चरकारक, स्थिरकारक, नित्यानित्यकारकाः । कारको नात्र भागाधिकः । आत्मकारकस्तु प्रसिध्धः । शास्त्रांतरैरवगंतव्यम् । स्वकारकस्तु विलग्नाधिपतिः इतरास्तु कर्णाये स्पष्टम् ॥ इति ॥

There are many kinds of karakas and only some are mentioned here for the present :

1. Karaka ; 2. Atmakaraka ; 3. Swakaraka ; 4. Dasakaraka ; 5. Charakaraka; 6. Sthirakaraka 7. Nitya and 8. Anityakaraka, etc.

Krishneeyam is the authenticated work for knowing the complete details of karakas. Of the karakas mentioned above Swakaraka only should be consulted for giving the general readings of any horoscope but never Atmakaraka and Vilagnadhipathi is the Swakaraka: (Vilagna will be discussed at a later stage.)

Kinds of Lagna :

1. Thripravana ; 2. Divya ; 3. Indu ; 4. Amsa ; 5. Sreelagna. The subject relating to the calculation of these lagnas also will be taken up later.

Rajayoga Planets :

1. Yogada ; 2. Kevala ; and 3. The lord of the Chandra rasi.

In any horoscope the Rajayoga can be determined with the aid of the already mentioned five lagnas and the three planets.

In my next article I deal with more important subjects of Jyothishakalpa.

(To be Continued)

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Sri Ramana Work

Ready for Sale

Jyotish Aur Adhunik Vicharadhara

(ज्योतिष और आधुनिक विचारधारा)

(IN HINDI)

By Bangalore Venkata Raman

Hindi Translation by Prof. Om Prakash Kahol, M.Sc., B.T.

This is a translation of ASTROLOGY AND MODERN THOUGHT into chaste Hindi by a Scientist and Scholar. Presents the Rationale of Astrology with Statistical Proofs.

The finest Book to be ever published in Hindi on the Scientific Aspect of Astrology.

Excellent get-up. Price Rs. 3

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"SriRajeswari" :: BANGALORE-3

Cartomancy

BY WALTER FRIEDJUNG

CARTOMANCY is the art to prophecise through the help or the "mediation" of cards. The origins of this art are not known, but they must go far back into antiquity. The first we hear about it, is that the famous "Tarot" was already known to the Arabs in the early middle-ages (who presumably got it from the Chinese, with whom they traded, amongst others), and was generally used by sages everywhere by the end of the 15th century. It is still used in our day, alas, rather too much than too little, by individuals some of whom have neither the right understanding and insight nor the ethos that are required to use such a wonderful and holy tool satisfactorily. In consequence of which the Tarot quite undeserved-did come rather into disrepute of late.

There is still another origin to cartomancy. There existed in olden times, especially amongst some of the Indo-European peoples, a system of oracles that was based on the so-called "runes" rrunic letters but which were originally holy symbols scratched into wands of beechwood. This system served its purpose in view of the rather primitive and uncomplicated conditions that were then prevailing but it was from thence that, in tho course of the middle-ages, the 32 or 36 playing cards developed. (The packs of 52 cards representing a kind of compromise between the ordinary playing-cards and the Tarot). For a long time the playing-cards bore still the tradition of the 36 little wands with the runes scratched in, being used in their stead for oracles. It was not until the beginning of the last century, when Mme. Lenormand introduced special oracle cards, having them derived from the playing cards, according to which each playing-card bore a specific and meaningful and rather obvious picture, and a correspondingly obvious name. These simple oracle-cards (whose connection with the playing-card was later greatly lost, sentimental verses often replacing the allusions to them) are in our day very much in use, greatly for the forecasting of simple events, such as are connected with love marriage, with money or property, with travels, with birth and death and with illness. This usage, I do feel, is below the dignity of man.

Thus there is noticeable a definite decay in the ancient art of cartomancy in modern times. Attempts to revive the real thing are failing, are bound to fail, as the faculties of modern man differ decisively from those of earlier days, and what was good at one time, is not necessarily good and helpful at another time, i.e., in our case, at present. But that does not mean that Cartomancy is of no purpose or use to modern man at all! Quite the contrary is true, and it is only those types of cartomancy just referred to, and developed from earlier days, that seem to be of no avail any longer, at least not to really progressive, really modern human beings!

In point of fact, modern man is, altogether, a far more complex and complicated being than was man in his earlier days. Therefore also—as its reverse side, as it were—the many neuroses and "complexes" amongst modern men, and the subsequent (or at least apparent) need for psychotherapeutic treatment. The discovery of the trans-Saturnine planets Uranus, Neptune and Pluto in modern times, and the necessity to empoly them in modern maps—especially (including Pluto) in maps relating to the present generation—without which those maps would be incomprehensible, surely is evidence that the increase of knowledge, including that of the universe, goes hand in hand with the increasing involvement and complexity of modern man.

What, then, should modern Cartomancy be like? Obviously, it should satisfy the needs and the quests of modern man, i.e., it should comprise within itself, its own build-up, if possible, all the complexities and potentialities of modern life!—This need is met by two systems as developed by the well-known German scholar Dr. Walter Koch. Those systems resemble each other very much, the first one bearing the name "Astromantisches Schicksalsspiel" and having been printed and published in Germany many years ago, together with an excellent describing and explaining book, named "Kartomantie." Both —that particular pack of cards, as well as the book related to it —have been published under the pseudonym of Dr. Egenolf. The system we are referring to now, consists of 144 square cards that show no pictures or symbols, (apart from astrological ones) show instead certain words or terms that represent particular meanings.

The main-meaning of each card can be found in its centre. What are those various main-meanings? They do constitute those basic facts and principles that recur in life again and again, as are expressed by the various astrological "hieroglyphs" such as the signs or the constellations of the Zodiac, the planets, their dignities and debilities, the Moon's nodes, the astrological houses, the aspects, other fixed star-contellations, the phases of the Moon, the four elements, the prime qualities; beyond that by such fundamental pairs of opposites as light and darkness or heaven and hell, and so on, or by the basic forms of the weather, etc. Now, on each of the four sides of those cards there is being printed one of the four principal expressions of those individual main-meanings or basic principles (and also some relevent associations with them) as are significant in relation to each individual card: Namely the uninhibited expression, the inhibited one, the good one and the bad one. As Uninhibited and Inhibited on the one hand, and Good and Bad on the other hand, do constitute opposites that are always to be found at the opposite sides of the cards, the four sides, being numbered do always represent in their consecutive order: (1) Uninhibited; (2) Good; (3) Inhibited; (4) Bad. (See figure 1.)

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com Preserved by B. V. Raman Trust

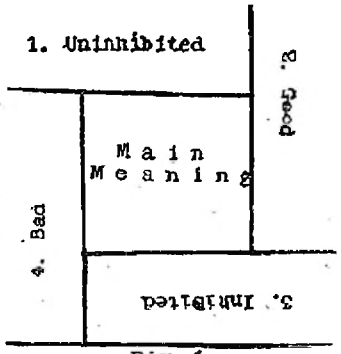

Fig. 1

Let us choose, as an example, say, the card for "Opposition" the 43rd card. According to those principles (as expounded by Dr. Koch) it looks like this. (See figure 2). Surely that makes sense, and shows clearly what is meant.

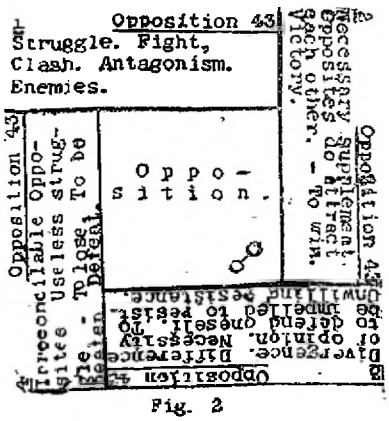

Fig. 2

Now, before drawing those cards, one has, of course, to mix them well, but as they are square cards, not to trouble at all on which side they are coming to lay or stand. When drawing them and interpreting them —i.e., their particular meanings so far as each individual card is concerned, one has to connect its main meaning with that particular expression of it the position of which is coming to stand just at the top (or nearest to the top or top-horizonal). Of course, usually several cards will be drawn and will be interpreted together accordingly.

It is extremely important to realise that the use of such an elaborate pack of cards as that, when drawing the cards, will tend to reveal quite a lot as regards the momentary—or also general—mental state of the person who draws the cards, or the person who is seeking advice; quite apart from happenings in the nearer or distant future (or past!), more correctly, certain tendencies as regards that future (or past). That means, in other words, that the use of these cards will enhance true self-knowledge, will reveal the "Seelengemalde" (i.e., the "image of one's soul"), as Dr. Koch calls it. According to him, it is really the "image of the soul" at the particular moment, that should always, at the very first, be looked for, namely before engaging in the task to prophecy, also in order to test whether one is really in the right disposition to do so. But in every connection and respect, the various meanings, submeanings, terms and associated terms on the cards, as being drawn—combined with one's own imagination, psychological understanding, and/or prophetic gift—will be of the greatest help and assistance.

By the way, there are two or three cards which, if drawn, are hinting that one should not ask a particular question—or questions — that is in one's own mind, at all, or that it is not a particularly suitable question. And if such a card turns up right at the beginning (when one isconcerned with examiningone's mind—or that of the person seeking advice—i.e., with the "image of the soul", it is a sure indication not to proceed as oneself or the other preson is apparently not in the right state of mind on this occasion to carry on with the "psycho-test" (as Dr. Koch calls it). The reason for it may be false curiosity, or lack of humanity, or lack of awe.

However, in order to help to bring oneself into the right state of mind, to prepare oneself properly for the psycho-test, Dr. Koch advises that, even before starting with the first mixing of the cards, one ought to say a little prayer, so as to clear one's own mind and to direct one's own being towards the true, the Good, and the Divine, in the hope ("but not my will, Thy Will be done") that one may thus be sufficiently humble, that no evil influence may interfere, or may even get hold of the test with possibly disastrous conse-

(Continued on page 332)

Scanned by www.astrologicalmagazine.com - To Preserve Dr. Koch's Work

Astrology & Determination of Profession: A Symposium

[It is not our intention to try to prove that every event in life is predetermined by the positions of planets at the time of birth. Instead it is to suggest in what manner astrological forces influence or indicate life and how these indications can be utilised for the good of the individual concerned. One of the most important uses of astrology is the direction of education and selection of a profession. How often do we not come across misfits? Can any branch of modern science pretend to say that it can show the vocation for which one is best fitted? The psychological tests now employed to judge the aptitudes of persons are not only unscientific but unreliable. In initiating this symposium, we wish to give an opportunity to our esteemed readers to record their observations on the most important subject of determination of one's means of livelihood, in the light of astrology and to show the extent to which astrology can be used for the solution of the problem of vocational guidance. An astrologer can discover on the very day when a child is born, whether its aptitude, when grown up, would be for physics or philosophy. This symposium on vocational determination, on the basis of the horoscope, it is hoped will be of great practical value as it deals with the solution of one of the most baffling problems facing the modern man. Readers are therefore requested not to miss the issues in which this series will appear. The first nine papers by Drs. R. Nagaraja Sarma, P. S. Sastri, Srimathi M. A. Rukmini, M/s. L. Narayana Rao, V. Venkataramana Rao, S. P. Sambasiva Iyer, Prof. M. Ramakrishna Bhat, K. Kurian and Dr. C. Kunhan Raja have appeared in May 1958 to December 1958 and February 1959 issues of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.—Ed., A.M.]

PAPER No. 10: BY PROF. AMARNATH MUKERJEE

THE Editor of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE has undoubtedly opened a very instructive forum of discussion by inviting articles relating to the 10th house of one's birth chart. The astrological literature is curiously not very illuminating regarding the most important aspect of one's life—i.e., profession. It passes one's comprehension why the Sages were so particular about the different parts of a wife's body and maintained a comparative silence in respect of profession. In Brihat Parasari Hora, the learned sage Parasara has indicated profession by a study of the 1/60th division (shatiamsa) of Lagna or the Ascending sign. I do not know how we can arrive correctly at the 1/60th division of the Ascendant while the Panchangas vary widely in India. Every almanac maker claims to be correct and in matters mathematical, such complacency makes the whole thing ridiculous. It goes without saying that the Western Almanacs do not show divergence of such wild nature and if we can depend on them, we must find out what the correct Ayanamsa is. Here again we enter into another wilderness. The Ayanamsa differs widely as much and everyone who advocates a particular Ayanamsa claims it to be correct! Such a stand is wholly unscientific, to my mind, and all efforts should be directed towards finding an exact Ayanamsa, let alone one's prediction for a particular Ayanamsa. The importance of the matter cannot be gainsaid by anyone interested in the scientific basis of Indian Astrology. If our almanacs vary widely as they do today inspite of the efforts of the Calendar Reform Committee, it shows to my mind a kind of perversity which ill accords with a true scientific system of prediction. Truth is invaluable and must be accorded its due, however much it may create a sort of dismay in the mind of a particular supporter of a particular Ayanamsa. I am a bit out of my way because I feel the matter should be dealt with very thoroughly without any delay. May I suggest to the learned Editor to invite another forum for the discussion of Ayanamsa on a global basis so that all shades of opinion may be invited and truth about the elusive Ayanamsa may be found out? (A symposium on Ayanamsa will be initiated shortly—Ed. A.M.)

Now, after this digression, I return to my subject. I think it is well known to all students of astrology that 1/60th division goes by the name of Shastyamsa and the "S" (symbol for 1/60th division) is determined according to the Rasi being odd or even. In odd signs the "S" is counted for every 30 minutes and is assigned a name whereas in even signs, it is just the reverse. Some of these divisions are supposed to be good while others are bad. But I am concerned here chiefly with the indicator of profession and I submit a list here so that a further study of these divisions can be made in the light of one's experience. I believe that the Sage Parasara is right and the only trouble is that we have lost the correct interpretation on account of confusion in our Almanacs. As the division is 1/2 of any degree, i.e., 30 minutes only, an error of a few minutes will throw the 'S' from one to another—changing the meaning completely. I give below the significance of each "S" of odd signs and it should be worth remembering that the 1st Shastyamsa of odd sign is equal to the 60th part of even sign. The Shastyamsa of Lagna (Ascending sign) is to be found out first and the profession then will be indicated. The indications of 'S' in odd signs are :—

Scanned by www.sreyantrishi.wordpress.com For free distribution only

Shastya-msa No.	Significance	Meaning
1	Adhyapakastu Vedanam ...	Professor of Vedas.
2	Sevak ...	One holding a service.
3	Shastrapathak ...	Purohit (priest), scholar, professor, etc.
4	Asvasadivasadi ...	A good rider of horse. Jockey or Cavalryman ?
5	The same 'Ivasadi' sloka...	Expert in managing elephants. Mahuts ? Kheda Operator.
6	Lipilekhantatpara ...	Writers, Clerks, Editors, Reporters, Shorthand Writers.
7	Mandura Bandhako ...	Officer-in-charge of stables, Mandura may mean bedding requisites.
8	Natyo ...	Players in Dramas.
9	Desiko ...	Guru, Travellers, Professors.
10	Yagnik ...	Priests.
11	Guru ...	Preceptor, Teacher ?
12	Dhansil ...	A charitable man, founder of Institutions, Hospitals and such like charitable institutions.
13	Trinako ...	Dealer in Straw, Hay, etc.
14	Gramani ...	Leader of village, President of Panchayat, Zamindar, etc.
15	Byasanadhip ...	Promoters of Races, Lotteries, Games, owners of breweries.
16	Aramkaranodyukta ...	Proprietors or owners of Gardens, Parks, Caretakers, Horticulturists.
17	Pushpa Vikraya Tatpara ...	Sellers of flowers, florists, owners of flower gardens or Nurseries.
18	Rajkarya rata ...	One doing a job in the Govt.
19	Sena ...	Army, soldier, Infantry, or one connected therewith.
20	Latapushpya Phala Kraya..	Dealers in herbs, plants, flowers and fruits.
21	Nritya Gita Cha Kusal ...	Expert in Dancing, Song-Dancers, Musicians.
22	Tambul Phala Bikrayi ...	Sellers of nuts, betels, spices.
23	Nishidya Bikraya Karo ...	Sellers of prohibited or contraband articles, smugglers.
24	Gramanamadhikar Krit ...	Lords of Grams or Villages, Big Zamindars.
25	Bandi ...	Prisoner or Court Musician or Minstrel.
26	Deshika ...	(See No. 9 supra).
27	Pragnya ...	Learned men Scholars, Authors.

(Continued on page 310)

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

Varshaphal

OR

THE HINDU PROGRESSED HOROSCOPE

Based on Tajaka (6TH EDITION)

By B. V. RAMAN

This book based on Tajaka covers fresh grounds in the field of prediction. It describes a unique method never before disclosed for deciphering annual life readings. Predictions made according to this work yield unique results. Whether you are a layman or initiated, you can draw up and interpret the annual reading in an easy and scientific manner. The system propounded in the pages of this work is rational and in actual practice yields most satisfactory results.

OPINION

"The author outlines a method of deciphering annual results from the Hindu horoscope. He claims that the principles of Tajaka astrology have been found to work accurately in actual practice, and controverts the orthodox belief that the system can be applied only to charts of individuals who have passed the age of thirty. There are many useful tables at the end and a summary."

—Indian Express.

Rs. 3 or Sh. 6

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari"

BANGALORE-3

The Kaleidoscope

BY YOGIRAJ GEORGE CECIL NIXON

[Under this heading Mr. G. C. Nixon will astrologically comment on important happenings in the world such as political upheavals, natural calamities and train disasters, etc., with special reference to events in India. Mr. Nixon has been a keen student of Hindu Astrology and Yoga for a number of years. It is hoped that this feature will be welcomed by our esteemed readers. Publication of Mr. Nixon's views does not necessarily mean that the Editor endorses them.—Ed., A.M.]

The Horoscope of Dr. Kwame Nkrumah

THE Negro State of Ghana has been in existence for nearly two years now, and in that time has given several surprises to the world, the latest of which is the proposal to unite with French Guinea, a small territory to the West, which recently voted for, and unexpectedly received its freedom, in the French referendum.

At this juncture, I have received the birthdata of Dr. Kwame Nkrumah, the first Premier of Ghana, and this no doubt will throw some light upon his intentions and prospects. He was born on the 18th September, 1909, though unfortunately, the time is unknown. The planetary positions of Greenwich Noon are as follows: (Ayanamsa 23.29).

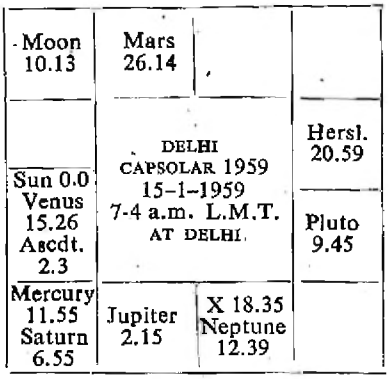
Sun	1.25	Virgo
Moon	13.31	Libra
Mars	8.57	Pisces
Mercury	27.51	Virgo
Jupiter	1.29	Virgo
Venus	8.18	Libra
Saturn	27.00	Pisces
Uranus	23.40	Sagittarius
Neptune	25.32	Gemini
Pluto	3.20	Gemini
Rahu	17.49	Taurus

In these positions it will be noted that the Sun is conjoined with Jupiter in Virgo, and the Moon is conjoined with Venus in Libra which are both favourable indications for success, popularity and personal charm. The Sun is also square Pluto which is a necessary ingredient for making one an outstanding personality, with an individualistic urge to be first and foremost in the race of life. At the time when Ghana became a free State, on the 5th March, 1957, the planet Jupiter had transitted over the radical place of the Sun and Jupiter in his horoscope. On comparing the planetary positions on that date, (see Horoscope of Ghana in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, May, 1957), it will be noticed that the position of the Sun in 21° Aquarius, was exactly in opposition to his Solar Jupiter, which occurred in his Solar Return for that year.

From Hindu Astrology point of view, it is not possible to divine much information from the mere birthday alone except, perhaps from a study of the Gochara system of transits, in relation to the Moon, and I propose to use this case to examine in detail its claims, with a view to testing its reliability, and to see if it has any truth in it at all. The Moon is in Libra, and on the date when Dr. Nkrumah assumed full power, the planets were disposed as follows in regard to the Radical Moon.

Saturn	in Scorpio	in the 2nd	sign from the Moon	in Libra	...	Bad
Jupiter	in Virgo	,, 12th	,,	,,	...	Bad
Rahu	in Libra	,, 1st	,,	,,	...	Bad
Mars	in Aries	,, 7th	,,	,,	...	Bad
Sun	in Aquarius	,, 5th	,,	,,	...	Bad
Venus	in Aquarius	,, 5th	,,	,,	...	Good
Mercury	in Aquarius	,, 5th	,,	,,	...	Bad
Moon	in Aries	,, 7th	,,	,, Radical	...	Good

Here it will be seen that the Gochara system fails miserably to give even a clue to the important events of that day. Six of the planets are in a bad position vis-a-vis the Moon radical including the major planets, Saturn, Jupiter and Mars, and only Venus and the Moon are favourable. It is all very well to say that the planets should be considered in conjunction with the Dasas, but how? A system of transits to be of any use at all, must at least show some effect of the planets, no matter how slight. Planetary transits as used in Western Astrology never fail to register, no matter how fleeting, both over the radix positions and in the Solar Return quite independently, of what the "directions" or the Dasas might be.



For instance, although we do not know the position of the Moon exactly in Dr. Nkrumah's case—it could range from 7° to 20° Libra, we notice that Neptune is about to transit this position probably during the next two years, and this denotes that political events will greatly confuse and upset him, and cause him much embarrassment and perhaps humiliation, and as a result, he will lose much of his popularity in his own country, in the not too distant future. When this comes about, we will be in a position to determine the exact position of the Moon and the approximate time of birth.

The 1959 Delhi Capsolar Chart

I now present the chart for the Solar Ingress into Sidereal or Nirayana Capricorn, using

Scanned by Arava Sadasivarao Digitized on Preserved by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan

the Synetic Ayanamsa of 24° 10′ 13″, for the current year 1959. This occurred on the 15th January, 1959 at 7.04 a.m. L.M.T. at Delhi, or at 1.54 a.m. G.M.T. The chart is as follows :—

Here we find the Sun and Venus rising and Neptune near to the meridian Mars, however is in the 4th house, opposition Jupiter in the 10th house. The outlook is therefore very assuring for India during the coming year and the country will make rapid strides forward, and enjoy prosperity, and inflationary financial conditions, with good crops. The only really adverse position is that of Mars, which is on the nadir of 85° East, and which seriously affects the regions of Patna, Gaya, and the Eastern provinces of Bihar and Orissa especially. It also falls very close to Katmandu in Nepal and still further north, on Tibet. In all these regions there will be civil disturbances, serious accidents, great fires, mining disasters, and even risk of an earthquake.

Jupiter falls still further east on the meridian 91° East, which generally favours East Pakistan, Bhutan, and Lhasa in Tibet. There will be great prosperity and public rejoicing in these parts, owing to some important political development in these countries. It is reported that rebels are in control of large parts of Tibet, and it looks as though the prediction found in a Tibetan cave, that Tibet would regain her freedom is likely to be fulfilled in 1958/59. Venus would be exactly rising and Jupiter exactly culminating, forming a mundane square in 91° East. There will be big floods also in the lower Ganges and Brahmaputra valleys during the year. The position of Neptune culminating in 71° East will affect Saurashtra and Kutch, and bring some political confusion there, but the position will affect West Pakistan more than India.

Looking further affield, we find that Mars and Pluto form a mundane square on the angles of Italy and especially of Rome. There will be tumults in that city. The curve of Mars setting, stretches North between Budapest and Vienna, through Poland and the East Russian satellities to Leningrad. To the south, it stretches across the Mediterranean to Tunis, where Arab fighting may endanger the position of President Bourgiba. Pluto is also on the meridian of Berlin and foreshadows a tense situation there.

Saturn is on the meridian of South Japan and Manchuria and denotes natural catastophes, and some political crisis, as well as on the nadir of Brazil about 49° West. Depression should hit these parts. Again Mars is on the M.C. of about 90° to 95° West, which runs through South Mexico, and the central U.S. States of Texas, Louisiana, Akansas, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma; when I expect great tornados in the Spring and severe drought in the Summer.

In Retrospect—What was said.

At this point, I think it would be wise to take stock of what was said about last year's, 1958 Capsolar chart, and judge if it really did denote accurately the major areas of political development and major world disasters. The chart was published in the May number of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, page 511. Readers could also refer back to Mr. Kharegat's article of "Casualty Tracks in National Astrology", with advantage.

The most outstanding "casualty track" was obviously the Mars/Saturn conjunction which was rising over Indonesia, Borneo, the Phillipines, just going East of Formosa and Quemoy, and also through Japan to Kamchatka. This enabled us to predict the Civil War in Indonesia, at the beginning of the Year. Japan, recently at the end of September and beginning of October, 1958 had the worst typhoon in 24 years and some 600 were killed. This was especially forecast on page 511, last year. Quemoy, of course was heavily shelled for a while by the Chinese communists, and lead to American naval intervention around Formosa. I was not however, aware of anything untoward occurring in the Phillipines.

The other Mars/Saturn "casualty track" commenced in Brazil and ran northward through Venezuela, Cuba and Haiti, and crossed U.S.A., from Florida to Chicago. The continuous fighting with the rebels in Cuba is well-known and finally, the great school fire in Chicago, on the 1st December, 1958, in which 90 children lost their lives, is a tragic, if superb example, of the effect of Mars and Saturn, setting on the angle of that city.

As for the major meridional position, this traversed from South Africa, through the Rhodesias to the Sudan, Egypt, and just west of Cyprus, including both Greece and Turkey, the Balkan States and the Eastern satellites of U.S.S.R. Continual racial tension simmered in

(Continued on page 316)

Digitized by Sri Kapali Sastry Trust. The Preserve Dr B.V. Raman's Work

AROUND the WORLD

BY DOUGLAS HUNT, M.A.

WRITING in the last few days of 1958 I naturally look to see what some of our astro-prophets forecast for 1959.

May I be absolved of partiality if I turn first to Mr. Carter. I quote his editorial in Astrology:

"Generally I regard 1959 as a year of crisis, and have said so long ago, giving my principal reasons. Whether it will be, as others think, the year of crisis of the century only time will show.....I cannot help thinking that some widely-read writers tend to the gloomy point of view, drawing depressing conclusions, for example, from aspects so wide that I for one would almost ignore them, while turning a blind eye to the brighter side of mundane maps..... For example, the New Year map for 1959 shows Moon trine Venus and sextile Jupiter, the former being very close indeed."

Mr. Carter does not at this point further particularise, but in a later article he refers to a lecture by Brigadier Firebrace, in which the latter gave fairly conclusive proof that none of the three main national maps suggested for Great Britain—1066, 1707, and 1801—give positive results. As a student of history your columnist entirely fails to see why any of them should be expected to. What, then, is one going to take in their place? Mr. Carter suggests that the map of the Sovereign may often provide a useful basis, and gives some ten pages of examples to substantiate that claim.

Does this not once again imply that, while one can have exact data as to birth-time and place of an individual, from which one can construct a scientifically accurate chart, the same cannot be said of mundane astrology, which must remain to some extent speculative? Hence the widely varying mundane predictions of equally competent experts.

Let us see what another of them, Lyndoe, says.

In his article in Prediction Annual Lyndoe aligns himself with both Troinski and C.E.O. Carter in regarding 1959 as probably the "Weltschicksalsjahr" of the century. "That avoidance of war could be engineered I have no doubt," he writes, "but that people in charge of large affairs right across the world are of the kidney to make a genuinely altruistic effort lacks evidence in my subject, just as it does in the studies of political scientists."

One might remark in passing that whether the 'statesmen' of the world are altruistic or not there is very definite evidence that on both sides of the Iron Curtain there is an ardent desire for peace and a genuine settlement. It would appear that almost the only obstacle is the acute distrust which each side feels for the other. If this could be overcome then 1959 might indeed be a "Weltschicksalsjahr" in the most favourable sense.

Mr. Lyndoe then draws certain conclusions for Great Britain—and the world—from the 1801 map. But what, one may well ask, has a map for the Union of Great Britain and Ireland got to do with present-day Britain which no longer includes two thirds of Ireland? Was it indeed ever a real Union?

In the December number of Prediction Lyndoe does take up this question, and remarks that "it is entirely wrong to take the 1801 Chart for the Union as fundamental." He regards it as having been "superseded by the great chart for the Statute of Westminister."

Lyndoe views the 1959-map, however, with equal alarm and despondency, quoting Troinski's calculations, which support his own.

Within the bounds to which I am limited it is impossible to be really fair to any of the authorities quoted, so let me give Lyndoe's own words in summary of the prospects for 1959.

"I think (against my will and [illegible] reluctantly) that when Troinski talks of war he has judged fairly of the effects. I wish I could disagree with him entirely. The question I raise is whether, so far as 1959 is concerned, this is cold war or hot. In many ways the indications are of drift towards hot war, through some minor wars, while the cold war proceeds. And I conclude that 1959 is the year in which that drift will be halted by tremendous events. These seem likeliest in and from late September. Decisions taken then have immense gravity."

I am still not quite clear whether this means that there will, in Lyndoe's view, be a world war in 1959, or that 1959 will see the end of the drift towards war.

Finally one more comparison between the views of two authorities.

Supplied by www.astrologyclock.com To Preserve Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

With regard to the total eclipse of the Sun on 2nd October Lyndoe writes: "There is something almost satanic about it, just when the tertiaries are most seriously informative regarding Britain."

Mr. R. Marshall Harmer writing of the same eclipse in Astrological Quarterly Review remarks "There is not much to say about the October eclipse, which looks quite calm and serene. The strongest feature is Mercury conj. Mars on MC sextile Uranus. There are no strong afflictions, the eclipse having separated from square of Saturn in 1st. The MC bodies fall on the 7th cusp of the UN chart."

A hopeless amateur like your commentator can only look forward with bated breath to this 'satanic' event which 'looks quite calm and serene.'

Nevertheless Mr. Marshall Harmer does suggest, in a study of the United Nations horoscope, that the April eclipse may set off 'world-shattering events.' Lyndoe does not think it would be correct to term this eclipse map a pessimistic map, and writes of "a decided willingness for people to get together to settle issues, and this is the direction in which many of the changes of the period occur."

To add to all these complications it has been suggested that astrologers will have to take into account the various satellites, directed missiles, sputniks, and assorted ironmongery now circling our planet.

Surely this is a complete fallacy. Is one wrong in supposing that the planetary influences are not exerted by the physical mass of the planets, but by the spiritual entities informing them? And is it seriously suggested that these coffins of unfortunate dogs and monkeys are the outward and visible signs of some inward spiritual Being?

I fear that some readers may be indignant with me for pointing out the fallibility of mundane astrology. In fact I have not done this, but have only implied that mundane astrologers, being human like the rest of us, are fallible in their interpretation of the celestial data, and are not even agreed on exactly which data they have to interpret. I do not believe that nations, any more than individuals, are compelled by their stars, so that to that extent all predictions must be liable to error, since it cannot calculate the effects of human will. But if I doubted the influence, both individual and national, of the heavenly bodies I should not have the honour to be writing for THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

The invitable deduction would seem to be that if we wish not to be slaves we must cultivate our will to a far greater extent than most of us do. Is that perhaps the message of the superb statue of Ajax defying the lightning? The divine will within man can defy even the stars.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Raman's Work

Astrology and Modern Thought

BY B. V. RAMAN

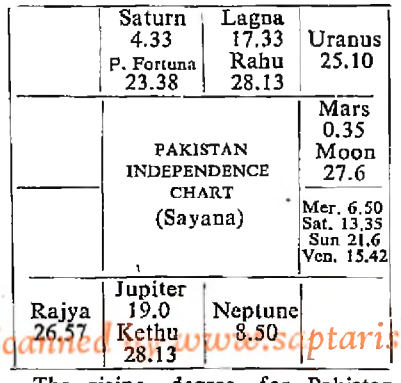
(FOURTH EDITION)

The rationale and claims of Astrology have been examined from the viewpoint of Modern Scientific Thought. The arguments put forth by some of the scientists to decry Astrology have been ably refuted and supported by unimpeachable evidence.

The book will convince any so-called sceptic who is accustomed the slogan 'I do not believe in Astrology'. To an intellectual it contains full of weighty material for reflection.

It is a book that every one should read.

PRICE Rs. 2.25 PER COPY. POSTAGE EXTRA



Less 12½% to Subscribers of: THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE-3

Planets and Developments in Pakistan

BY SHAMBU PRASAD

RECENTLY an article was published in Film India of August 1958 issue by Sri Jaswant Keshav Pradhan, Bombay, on the comparative charts of India and Pakistan. It is known to all that on the midnight of 14th and 15th August 1947 India and Pakistan were declared as independent countries. Though Greenwich Mean Time for Karachi and Delhi is the same, yet the local times for Delhi and Karachi are different and even the latitudes also vary. Except the ascendants and mid-heaven, all the planetary positions are common to both charts :—

The rising degree for Pakistan taking Karachi as the seat of Government is 17° 33′ in Taurus whereas for India it is 0° 52′ in Gemini. Recent change of Government in a sudden way in Pakistan gives sufficient material for students of astrology to make researches in political astrology. I have given here the charts showing radical as well as progressed position of Pakistan for 24 N 51 latitude and 67 E 4 longitude. The calculations are as per Sayana system based on tropical zodiac. The lord of Lagna Venus is in conjunction with Saturn and Sun, all situated in the 4th in Leo. Mercury the lord of 2nd is also placed in Leo. The location of Venus in Leo is not desirable and more so in conjunction with Saturn. Mars, the war lord, here at present representing open friends and foes, is in Cancer debilitated. The 7th house in a Mundane chart governs all matters pertaining to foreign countries, disputes, wars and international affairs. The debilitation of the lord of the 7th is a clear index of the behaviour of the rulers of Pakistan. Of course in the 7th house there is Jupiter near its cusp. This is a happy sign to some extent but unfortunately it is squared both by Venus and Sun which shows how the aristocratic society and the landed interests differ both in foreign matters and home affairs. As Sri Yaswant points out selfish and carnal desires are rampant and so change whimsically the policies of the country to suit their designs. The Satru Saham is in Aries at 4.33 and the Rajya Saham is located in Sagittarius 26.57. The Rajya Saham is nearly in exact opposition to Uranus. When we progress the planets for the year 1958, we will be surprised to find the following aspects :—

1. Progressed Ascendant conjunction Rahu radical.
2. Progressed Venus square progressed Ascendant.
3. Progressed Satru Saham trine Sun radical.
4. Progressed Mercury square radical.
5. Progressed mid-heaven opposition progressed Saturn and Venus radical.
6. Progressed Rajya Saham opposition progressed Mars.
7. Kethu by transit conjunction fortuna radical in winter solstice chart.

All the above aspects show ominous events. Progreesed Satru Saham in trine to Sun shows that the country's enemy is very powerful and is situated in its own house. Hence it should be interpreted that the country's top man, the President at the moment, is the country's present enemy. Sun is the 4th lord in the chart and now has come to trine with the progressed Satru Saham. Rajya Saham coming in opposition to Mars, the war lord shows how the 'lord' of the country —here the President—together with the head of the Army disturbed the country's peace under the garb of maintaining peace and bringing prosperity to the country. Ultimately it will become evident that this unholy alliance will be hated by all the other Nations. When Mars progresses to the square of Neptune by the end of 1960, events in Pakistan will take a further violent turn and countries which are patting Pakistan at present might themselves be taken unawares due to the chaotic conditions prevailing in the country. By the end of 1959 both Venus and Mercury are goining to be sextile with Mars radical. This indicates that the present regime might try to show some inclination to settle the Kasnmir issue or the Canal Waters dispute. At that time India will have also the same planetary configuration, i.e., progressed Mars coming in square with Neptune. Of course, the ascendant of India will be improved by coming into sextile with Saturn but yet this Mars square Neptune is going to affet the country in a peculiar way. There may be huge defence expenditure and there is a great danger of a financial crisis in India. It is quite possible that some of the proposed projects may be given up as Mars is situated in the radical horoscope very near the second cusp which shows huge wastage of national funds. By the end of 1960 Pakistan will prove a problem in international affairs, though for a short period. By the end of 1959 she may try to come to some agreement with India and other nations. When we scrutinise the winter solstice figure the present events are clear. Ascendant and mid-heaven are in dual signs and added to it Saturn is located in the 10th house. In the 7th cusp in Virgo both Mercury and Venus are situated which shows the double standards and underhand dealings in the policies of Pakistan. The lord of the 10th house, Jupiter, is in exact conjunction with Neptune in the mysterious 8th house Scorpio. All the planets are afflicted in the winter solstice figure. The policies or the agreements made by Pakistan will be shrouded in mystery and there is every reason to interpret them in two diametrically opposite ways at the opportune time. The only source of some consolation in the winter chart is that Sun and Mars are in trine.

Scanned with www.saptarishisastrology.com. All Rights Reserve Dr B V Ramans Work

Some fellow researchers might say that I have tried to enter the political arena and conclude that what is destined for Pakistan nobody can stop. My past experience shows that when we see bad stars, it is better to give warning to the concerned individual, group or country to be careful in their dealings either private or public. Otherwise there is no use of studying astrology at all. As we use weather guides both for rain and earthquakes and thereby caution ourselves by placing ourselves as far as possible in convenient situations not to be harmed by vicissitudes of the nature, so would we do in astrology. Unforutnately there is a fashion in the country to denounce every astrologer and science itself. To them I only submit as Newton said: "You know nothing of stars and you are not capabable either to comment whereas I have studied".

I request the fellow researchers to comment on the charts of both India and Pakistan. I have discussed the charts only for Karachi and a passing reference has been made to Delhi chart.

THE KALEIDOSCOPE

(Continued from page 312)

S. Africa, and further north, on the 17th November, 1958 an Army Revolt occurring in Khartoum. Nasser was checkmated in Tunisia, the Cyprus Civil strife continued to inflame Graeco-Turkish relations, but as far as the situation inside the U.S.S,R., no-one knows anything.

Coming to India, the rising position of Jupiter and Neptune brought further prosperity and expansion to India, some confusion at the Centre, greater expenditure on the Second Five Year Plan, whilst the position of Uranus on the M.C., brought major Cabinet changes, as well as political upheavals in the provinces along the meridian 82 East. I also mentioned that this ran through Eastern Ceylon, and this lead to the racial disturbances there. Altogether, it was a very imposing array of accurate indications of the major political developments of the year. There were many more evidences with regard to the other planets, but let these suffice to illustrate that mundane astrology's "New Tool", is indeed a most effective one!

The Horoscope of Crown Prince Akihito of Japan

According to American Astrology, October, 1958 issue, page 14, the Crown Prince was born on the 23rd December, 1933 at 6.39 a.m. I.S.T., in Tokio. The Horosope is as follows—Ayanamsa 23° 49' 18".

Hersl. 29.41
Moon 24.19	CROWN PRINCE AKIHITO OF JAPAN 23–12–1933 6-58 a.m. L.M.T. AT TOKIO		Pluto 0.17 Kethu 28.14
Rahu 28-14 Ven. 20-27 Sat. 19-38 Mars 2-5			Nep. 18.33
Sun 6.48.7 Ascdt. 3.53	Mercury 21.17		Jupiter X 23.0

In this chart, there are strong evidences of Rajayoga, with the Sun ruler of the 9th sign, in the first sign Sagittarius, denoting a great inheritance or patrimony, Jupiter ruler of the first sign, in the 10th sign Virgo, on the meridian; Mars, ruler of the 5th sign is exalted in Capricorn, the 2nd sign, conjunct Saturn, Venus and Rahu, and receiving the trine aspect of Jupiter from the 10th.

The Prince has been in the news recently, since it has been reported that he is expected to marry, this year, 1959. He has decided to marry a commoner, Miss Michiko Shoda, 24 year old daughter of a rich miller, and this has received the approval of the Japanese Imperial Household,

Mercury, ruler of the 7th sign is in the 12th sign Scorpio, and the Karaka of wife Venus, conjoined with Saturn and Rahu in Capricorn in the 2nd. These are not favourable indications for marriage and denote sorrow, loss and risk of bereavement. There is some personal sorrow here which needs more careful consideration and analysis than space allows at the moment. The Moon is in 24° 19' Aquarius in the Taurus navamsa of P. Bhadrapada, ruled by Jupiter and the unexpired portion of Jupiter dasa was 10.66 years. The dasa and sub-periods are as follows:—

0. Jupiter in Virgo Dasa

10.66	Saturn in Capricorn Dasa
2.97
13.68	Mercury in Scorpio sub-period
2.65
16.28	Kethu in Cancer	,,
1.09
17.37	Venus in Capricorn	,,
3.13
20.50	Sun in Sagittarius	,,
.93
21.43	Moon in Aquarius	,,
1.56
22.99	Mars in Capricorn	,,
1.09
24.08	Rahu in Capricorn	,, January 1958
2.81
26.89	Jupiter in Virgo	,, November 1960
2.50
29.39

It will be seen that the Crown Prince is now in his Saturn Dasa and Rahu sub-period in Capricorn, the second sign. Since it is conjoined Venus, the Karaka for marriage, this event is likely in this sub-period, though the presence of the malefics, Mars and Saturn in Capricorn, bring dangers of some sorrow, illness or bereavement. The outlook is not at all reassuring, in view of the fact that Saturn is about to transit the position of his radical Sun. This transit always

(Continued on page 318)

Scanned by www.sapnaush Siddhanta Society For Preserving Dr. B.V.Raman's Work

Pandit Nehru—A Numerological Appraisal

BY BAGESWAR PRASAD SINGH, B.A.

OUR Prime Minister was born on November, 14th, 1889, which has reference to the zodiacal sign of Scorpio, covering the period 21st October to 20th November. Personalities like President Roosevelt, Harding, Garfield, King Edward VII, Charles I of England, Lord Mount Gomaery, George Eliot, Saint Augustine, Sunyat Sen, Chiang Kai Shekh, Sir C. V. Raman, Sri Ashok Mehta, Professor N. G. Ranga, Sri Bipin Chandra Pal, Maulana Azad, Doctor Pattabhi Sitaramaya, Sir C P. Ramaswami Aiyar, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, Mira Behn and Cheiro himself were all born during this period.

Pandit Nehru's birth number is 5 (14 is reduced to single number 5 by addition of 1 and 4) which stands for planet Mercury and is versatile and mercurial in all its characteristics. Mercury is the first prince of heavenly bodies. It is a very strong and magical birth number. The Greeks carried number 5 as a mascot to the battlefields. This number has got the best capacity of making friends.

St. Louis of France, Louis XVI, King George VI, Shakespear, Thomas Hood, Karl Marx, Subhas Chandra Bose, Sir R. S. Krishnan, Achyut Patwardhan, S. K. Patil and others have all been born under this number.

Number 5 people are mentally very highly stung, quick in thoughts and decision and impulsive in their actions. They are born speculators. Sometimes they exhaust their nervous strength to such an extent that they often fall victim to nervous breakdown of the worst kind and under any mental tension they easily become irritable and quick tempered, unable to suffer fools gladly.

Number 5 (Mercury) rules over mechanism, commerce, speech, education, intellect and currency. Its favourable direction is North and hence India's present politics should suit Russia.

All those born during the same period or even if their birth numbers are the same a true and prosperous affinity is predicted. This affinity stands between man and man or man and place or even between place and place.

Our present Independent India was born one minute after midnight on 14th of August, 1947. The calendar date is 15th but for astrological purposes 14th continues till the sunrise. Thus free India's birth date is 14th which gives the single number 5. Having this highest affinity of birth numbers for Nehru and India one can safely say that India will flourish with Nehru and vice-versa The prospects of India and Nehru are interrelated. The next current of destiny for India comes in the year 1947+21 =1968. This 21 is the sum total of 1 + 9 + 4 + 7 which constitutes the birth year of Free India.

The current of destiny of our leader is the total of 1889, i.e., 1 + 8 + 8 + 9=26. His first current of destiny was in the year 1889 + 26 = 1915. Near about this year he had delivered his first political impressive speech at Allahabad on which Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru had embraced him. Near about the same period he had met Mahatma Gandhi, who also blessed him like his son. He came in the forefront in the Indian History of revolution.

The next current of his destiny was in the year 1915 + 26 = 1941 from 14th November till 14th November 1942. The Indian history of revolution stands as a most convincing evidence as to how this second current of destiny re-acted with the life of our leader.

His third and probably a last current of destiny commences from November 14, 1967 (1941 + 26) and lasts till 14th November, 1968.

Coincidently the first current of destiny for India and the third current of destiny of our leader Pandit Nehru coincide in the year 1968. This year therefore should be a most remarkable thing affecting both India and Nehru. This year may bring the Indian politics and Nehru at the top of the world situation. Our leader may meet some serious type of accident.

The influences of period of birth indicates that Nehru is intensely emotional. He has magnetic influence and psychological power over others. He can sway his audience as he chooses and can keep them spellbound. He has extra-ordinary talents to make original contributions to the contemperory thought. In sudden crises he can maintain his balance of mind and pursue his final purpose with dauntless determination and indomitable will.

He has to be a great humanitarian, with great plans for making the world and Utopia. He has got the inborn tendencies to make sincere efforts in settling down the quarrels of other countries and bringing the situation to normal but he has to be looked up to and his services recognised. The world can safely depend upon the advices of this leader as they would be the best ones. Cautions for him are that he should always gauge the extent to which he should honour the world opinion, lest it may occassion others to blackmail him. However he is not to "put any thing for tomorrow" for procrastination is one of his besetting signs. He is a good mental fighter being subtle in argument, strong in organisation, but always detests bloodshed.

This is why he is gaining and would succeed in gaining a world reputation for him as a peace-maker.

Our leader has got the inherent tendency to pay back ten-fold for any help that he might get for his country. Other nations of the world may note that the investment of generosity towards India through Nehru is bound to be returned with more than the compound interest.

The period of birth does not support the ideas of Nehru being on rest. Though it would be too selfish to deny such a proposal, yet country's well being is not seen even astrologically in such a suggestion.

Thus he has to perform two roles in life: one as the Indian leader and the other as the world leader.

Now I proceed with the above two roles of his life calculating according to the occult significance of numbers as indicated by Cheiro in his Book of Numbers.

Calculations are to be based on the name by which a man is known. In India he is known as Jawaharlal Nehru, whereas the world calls him more as Nehru (simply by adding Mr. before it).

	As Indian Leader	As World Leader
	JAWAHARLAL NEHRU	NEHRU
	1 1 6 1 5 1 2 3 1 3 5 5 5 2 6	5 5 5 2 6
	= 24 = 6 23 = 5	= 23 = 5
	6 + 5 = 11 = (1+1) = 2

Probably under some divine force our great leader has already renounced the word Pandit from his name. Pandit in itself was giving a very good compound as well as single number for him but the total compound number of the entire name was being very fatalistic as it was coming to compound number 16.

Scanned by gurukulkangri.vishvavidyalaya.Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

The readings are getting muddled up to some extent because of non-harmoneous vibration between his birth number and his name number (changeable), specially in the calculation of his name as Indian leader. For Jawaharlal we get the single number 6 and for Nehru we get 5. Thus the final single number is 6 + 5 = 11 giving 1 + 1=2 which stands for Moon whereas his birth number is 14 giving 1 + 4=5 Mercury. The best modification has already been suggested above. Addition of one "L" more in a Lal mends the entire conflict. The valuation of "L" according to Chaldean origin is 3. Thus Jawaharlal would have come to a compound number 27 giving the single number 9 by addition of 2 and 7. For Nehru we get single number 5. Thus the final compound number would have been (9 + 5) = 14 giving 1 + 4 = 5, which would have the best of harmonious vibration.

Turning to the more mysterious or hidden influences indicated by the compound number of birth we get November 14, influencing his career. We find for this number in Cheiro's Book of Numbers, the following. "14—This is a number for movement, combination of people and things, and danger from natural forces such as tempests, water, air or fire. This number is fortunate for dealing with money, speculation and changes in business, but there is always a strong element of risk and danger attached to it, but generally owing to the actions and foolhardiness of others".

The next important compound number occuring in his calculation is 11 as a final compound number of his name. 11 reads in the same book as:—

"11—This is an ominous number to occultists. It gives warning of hidden danger, trial and treachery from others. It has a symbol of a clenched hand and a lion muzzled of persons who will have great difficulties to contend against".

This changeable compound number of the name adds something to the fatalistic indications of the birth compound number 14.

The third compound number 24 comes in the calculation of Jawaharlal only which reads as follows:—

"This number is fortunate; it promises the assistance and association of those of rank and position with one's plans; it also denotes gain through love and the opposite sex; it is a favourable number when it comes out in relation to future events".

The 4th compound number is 23 which is found in the word "Nehru", which is another fortunate number and reads as follows:—

"This number is called the Royal Star of the Lion. It is a promise of success, help from superiors and protection from those in high places. In dealing with future events it is a most fortunate number and a promise of success for one's plans".

However, a numerologist would have been as much pleased to see him wearing a diamond set in platinum as he is pleased to see him in white garb.

THE KALEIDOSCOPE

(Continued from page 316)

frustrates high hopes and ambitions in some way.

If we erect the Solar Return for his 25th birthday, which occurred on the 23rd December, 1958 at 7.33 a.m. G.M.T. or 4.33 p.m. I.S.T., we find that Venus is in the 7th house denoting possibility of marriage but the Sun and Saturn are also on the cusp of the 7th, bringing some untoward event which confuses the issue. Again Uranus is opposite to the Venus-Saturn conjunction in the radical chart, to which Mars throws a square aspect.

However, we may note that Jupiter is opposite the Solar Moon and will become exact on the 30th January, 1959, together with a square from Venus, and this suggests a favourable development such as a betrothal. It is also reported that a Palace is being built for them. Again the

	Mars 22.9	Moon 4.32	Ascdt. 8.5
X 19.0	SOLAR RETURNS FOR PRINCE AKIHITO 23–12–1958 4-33 p.m. L.S.T. AT TOKIO		Hers. 21.45
Ven. 17.0 Sun 6.48.7 Sat. 4.18	Mercury 17.4	Neptune 12.13 Jupiter 28.10

transits are very remarkable in the month of July 1959, being a mixture of both good and bad, and it will be very interesting to observe how this unique astrological situation works out, so far as the Japnese Royal Family is concerned.

Scanned by astrologicalmarriages.com To Preserve Late B.V. Raman's Work

To be out shortly

Prasna Marga (English Translation)

With original slokas in Devanagari, notes and illustrations. A great and unique classic on Prasna (Horary) as well as Jataka (Horoscopy)

IN TWO PARTS

I Part....1 to 16 Chapters, Price about Rs. 12.75/-
II Part....17 to 32 Chapters ,, Rs. 12.75/-

First Part will be ready in April 1959

ORDERS REGISTERED FOR BOTH PARTS AND NOT FOR THE I PART ONLY

Raman Publications, "Sri Rajeswari", Bangalore:3

[The Editor does not hold himself responsible for the views of his readers. Constructive criticism is always welcome. Vituperation and innuendo will not be permitted. While the Editor encourages healthy controversy on subjects relevant to THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, he must remind readers that claims on the available space in this column are heavy. The Editor, therefore, requests readers to be as brief as possible in all letters submitted for the correspondence columns.—Ed., A.M.]

1959 Annual Number

Sir,—I have received the 1959 Annual Number of THE ASTRGLOGICAL MAGAZINE. It is a worthy successor to the many excellent annuals put out by you in order to acquaint the world of the worth and value of true Hindu Astrology.

The get-up of the 1959 Annual as well as the solid matter it contains make the modest sum of Rs. 3.75 seem too little. I believe you are making some sacrifice in order to bring Hindu Astrology within reach of everybody. No student of astrology could be called widely read if he or she does not subscribe to your valuable monthly magazine. May the Goddess Saraswati confer on you mental and physical power to carry on your noble task.

Let me wish you and your dear ones a very happy and prosperous New Year.—"Om".

Colombo-4. CYRUS D.F. ABAYAKOON.

Sir,—I have just gone through the articles in the 1959 Annual Number of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE and I am emboldened to state that this number excels in the quality of contents all the previous annuals. Your "World Predictions" are simply marvellous. The article "Astrological Affiliations of Religion and Theology" by Dr. R. Naga Raja Sarma provides a very interesting reading. "Interpretation of a Planet's Influence" by Prof. P.S. Sastri is one of absorbing interest. "Foundation Map of Independent India" by Mr. C. M. Ghosh throws a new light on the fate that is in store for India. The article "Astrological Appraisement of Behaviour-Patterns" by Srimathi M.A. Rukmini is balanced, well-argued and very interesting. I cannot but mention here the bold prediction that Netaji is still alive contained in "Horoscope of Netaji Bose". One thing is to be mentioned here. If Netaji's birth Lagna is taken as Aries, then Saturn would be in 8th and as the dictum karako bhavanasaya does not apply to Saturn, Saturn would be promoting the longevity of Netaji. If the Lagna is taken as Taurus (as the contributor has now taken) this aspect, we lose. This requires to be examined. In "Significance of Fingers in Palmistry", the author has not dealt with the Sankus and Chakras found at the end of the fingers and their significations. This information would have added to the quality of the article. Moreover, a detailed article touching on the "Life Line, Fate Line, Head Line, and Sun Line" in the hand is eagerly awaited by me. Regarding "A Tragedy" in the correspondence columns, in the bridegroom's horoscope, there is Rahu in 8th and the principle, Rahu Saniyathu, Kethu Kujavathu does not apply to Rahu in the special exemption given to Sani for Ayus when it occupies eighth. Hence Rahu in 8th must have been the reason for the Alpayus of the native.

To sum up, just as Shri K. Ramanathan of Hyderabad has pointed out in his letter under the caption "Leprosy", the educated men of India today would not have taken that much interest in astrology as they have been taking nowadays, had it not been for your untiring efforts and unremitting zeal to make astrology a popular science. Your annual number every year is really a superb, scholastic feast to the discerning public. The articles in this year's annual have been very carefully selected so as to include all sides of astrology—predictive, nadi, mundane etc. Many highly educated doctors, engineers and lawyers in Hyderabad eagerly look forward to reading the annual of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE and the interest you have created in such highly intellectual type of men in the seemingly less accurate science of astrology is tremendous. Your caseless efforts to make astrology a complete, up-to-date science, can never be forgotten. In this pious duty, you have a chain of scholarly contributors whose contributions are well digested by even more voracious readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. The annual edition has been superbly got up and in these days of soaring prices of paper, the quality of the paper used for the magazine is also splendid. What repayment can a reader make to this splendid intellectual feast that you have provided now and you have been providing every year. We raise our hands with humility towards the Almighty to spare you for many more years to do such incalculable service to this noble science of our holy foresighted Rishis of ancient India.

Hyderabad. V. SANTHANAM.

Perpetual Calendar

Sir,—With reference to the above article published in November 1958 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE may I draw the attention of your readers to the fact that there exists a very simple rule for deducing the day of the week corresponding to any date of the Christian Era,—B.C. or A.D; Old or New Style? No tables are required and the whole of the arithmetic can be performed mentally. The rule was expressed as a formula by Gauss, the great German mathematician. This formula is: $W=D+M+Y+L-C$ (Modulo7), where W is the day of the week required, starting from Friday as 1 for dates in the Julian calendar, D is the date of the month, M is a constant for the month obtained from the following table:

Jan.	0	April	5	July.	6	Oct.	0
Feb.	3	May	1	Aug.	2	Nov.	3
Mar.	3	June	4	Sept.	5	Dec.	5

Y are the last two figures of the given year, L is the quotient obtained after dividing Y by 4 (rejecting the remainder), and C=first or first two figures of the given year. Modulo 7 means that the sum is to be divided by 7 and the reminder kept.

I—All dates in the Old Style:

A few examples will make the method clear.

(1) What day of the week was 1st January, 601 A.D.? (Mr. Bhat's example) Here D=1, M=O, Y=1, L=O, C=6. So, W=1+1+7—6=3. Counting from Friday as 1, the week day is Sunday. (Note that as 6 is greater than the sum of D+M+L+Y, we add 7 and then subtract.)

(2) For B.C. dates convert the year first to the astronomical reckoning by subtracting 1 from the year and prefixing the negative sign. Then add any convenient multiple of 7 as will make the year positive and proceed as above for (1). Example: Required the week day of 18, February, 3102 B.C. which was the first day of Kaliyuga Era. Here, 3102 B.C.

$= -3101$ Astronomical. Adding 3500 (a multiple of 7) gives 399. So the day of the week was the same as on 18, Feb., 399 A.D. or $W = 18+3+99+24-3 = 141 = 1$, or it was a Friday. Example: What day of the week was 15 June, 763 B C. 763 B.C. $= -762$ Astronomical, add 840 giving 78 A.D. so $W = 15+4+78+19 = 116 = 4$, or Monday. This was the day of the great historical Solar eclipse observed at Nineveh, when the Sun was totally eclipsed at noon, while the emperor was having his dinner, and which caused consternation throughout the Middle East.

II—Dates for the 19th and 20th Centuries, New Style.

As we at present are more interested in the dates of the present and last centuries, we can simplify the above formula, by omitting the value of C and taking W to begin from Wednesday and Monday respectively.

(3) What day of the week was the 4 November 1939?

Here, D=4, N=3, Y=39, L=9, so W=55, or rejecting multiples of 7=6, so counting from Monday as 1, the day of the week was Saturday.

(4) What day of the week was 24 May, 1819?

D=24, M=1, Y=19, L=4; so W=48=6, rejecting multiples of 7, so counting from Wednesday as 1, the week day was Monday.

It might be observed that the addition need not be carried through to the end, for as we go on adding we can simultaneously go on casting out the 7s, as for instance in the last example instead of saying $24+1+19+4$; we may mentally say, $3+1+5+4$ or total 6.

For January and February of leap years, subtract 1 from the value of L, as the year has not "leaped", as it were, till the 1st March. For B.C. reckoning a year is a leap year if the Astronomical year is a leap year.

III—Dates for all centuries. New Style.

The above formula gives week days for all dates in the Julian calendar, and to the 19 and 20th centuries in the Gregorian calendar. We can make the formula universal for the Gregorian calendar also by slightly modifying it to read:

$$W = D + M + Y + L - 2\left(\frac{C}{4}\right)_r.$$

Here the count is to be made from Sunday as 1. $\left(\frac{C}{4}\right)_r$ means that C is to be divided by 4, and the remainder taken. For instance, for all years beginning with 19, the value of $-2\left(\frac{C}{4}\right)_r$ will be 161.

VI—What day of the week was May 24, 1819?

$W = 24+1+19+4$ or $3+1+5+4 = 13 = 6$. The day was Monday counting from Wednesday as 1.

This method of Gauss in an improved form is given by A.H. Russell in his book Rapid Calculations (Gregg Publishing Co.) An admirable book which should be in the possession of all who perform calculations.

The process is extremely easy and the only thing to remember are the figures for M. An examination of these figures will however reveal that they follow a certain law so that even if they are forgotten they can be readily revived. With a little practice the whole of the calculation can be carried out mentally and the result obtained in a few seconds without tables or any other external aid. This method of Gauss (improved by Russell) is not generally known, and so I trust will be of interest and value to your readers.

Bombay. K. M. Kharegat.

Sidereal Solar Returns

Sir,—I thank Mr. D. R. Munsiff for having supplied the relevant data in connection with the Broach gentleman who had to resign his job. But before dealing with it, I have to refer to the Ayanamsa question.

Ayanamsa:—Mr. Munsif says that his case was that I was not justified in using Mr. Bradley's Tables of Ayanamsa for Cyril Fagan's Solunars as the two are different, the former using 45″ or 46″ per year and the latter 50″ per year. I beleive that Mr. Munsif ignores the difference between true Ayanamsa and mean Ayanamsa. Cyril Fagan gives the mean Ayanamsa in Table I to which two further corrections have to be applied for Solar and Lunar Nutation and these are given as Tables II and III respectively. The true Ayanamsa for the date required has to be computed on the basis of Tables I to III, whereas Mr. Bradley gives the calculated result for every tenth day.

The examples should suffice to show that both employ the same values.

The case of the Broach Gentleman:—The relevant Sidereal Solar Return calculated for Calcutta (place of residence at the time of resignation) shows Nirayana M.C. Aries 17°, Sun Aries 29°, Saturn Libra 11°, Pluto Cancer 29°. Thus Saturn, Sun and Pluto are all seen to be in the foreground. Therefore the statement of Mr. Munsif that "there is no planet except Pluto in the foreground taking the Sidereal Zodiac according to Bradley's reckoning which Mr Fagun follows", is not justified. The following additional features may be noticed. There is an almost exact square between Sun and Pluto. Solar Mars is within four degrees of the radical meridian, Solar Mars is in exact opposition to radical Mars which is in the radical foreground (close to 4th cusp). Cyril Fagan says, "Nothing prospers when Saturn is in the foreground and in business and official life, the native meets with reverses and is not popular with those in authority ..... when directions are made to transitting Saturn (Solar) the native may be hard pressed by creditors and should be beware of his enemies who conspire to injure him and destroy his fair name". "Among the planetary host, Pluto is the astrological mile-stone, par excellence he signifies the parting of the ways and when he exerts to bring about an event it can seldom be redressed". For squares and oppositions between Sun and Pluto Bradley says "Impatience to the extreme, nervously tant appears on the verge of cracking. Nervous breakdowns seldom occur without the 'last straw' coming about through Pluto's influence. A native's whole life may change under the aegis of a foreground Sun-Pluto configuration". Space forbids further quotations and the above must suffice as they practically paraphrase the act done by the native—"resignation under pressure of superiors and under high strain".

For example:

(1) Cyril Fagan's Vernal Point for January 1, 1957	(Table I) ...	5° 45′ 32″
Solar Nutation for ... do	(Table II) ...	plus 4″
Lunar Nutation for ... do	(Table III) ...	− 14″
	Result ...	5° 44′ 22J
Bradley's Vernal Point for January 1, 1957		∴ 5° 45′ 22″
(2) Cyril Fagan's Vernal Point for January 1, 1958	(Table I) ...	5° 44′ 42″
Solar Nutation for ... do	(Table II) ...	Plus 4″
Lunar Nutation for ... do	(Table III) ...	− 10″
	Result ...	5° 44′ 36″
Bradley's Vernal Point for January 1, 1658		... 5° 44′ 37″

Scanned with CamScanner Digitized by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Preserved by Harvard Work

Rulership:—Mr. Munsif gives five reasons for above event based on Tropical Solar Return all based on rulership of planets. I have not referred to rulership of planets in the above analysis as not being necessary. Cyril Fagan's objection as understood by me is the same. If rulership is permitted anything can be made to fit anything and there is no sure basis for predictions. All known events can be ideally accounted for. In the above Sidereal Solar Return, there are some rulership positions also having the same complexion. (a) Mars ruler of 10th is in in 6th, (b) Jupiter ruler of 6th occupies eleventh, (c) Mercury ruler of 12th occupies ninth, (d) Saturn ruler of 8th in 4th aspecting 10th and Sun is posited there. I am not an adept in the interpretation of tropical Solunars but in the light of guidance given in the letter of Mr. Munsif, all these appear to be evil and (e) is at least common to both for which the effects given by him are "Risk of social and business position, native will be forced to accept sacrifices. In every way diminution of prestige".

The above quotations from Mr. Fagan's Solunars and Bradley's book and those that follow should also suffice to correct another statement made by Mr. Munsif in his present letter as well as in the first that with Fagan's Solunars all that can be said is whether the period that follows is lucky or not. In fact differentiation is made under several groups (a) radical planets coming to the foreground of Solunar maps, (b) Planets in the foreground of Solunar (c) Solunar planets configurating radical planets, (d) planets progressed configurating radical as well as Solunar planets, and so on and detailed effects are given for each, of which the above quotations form a very small part.

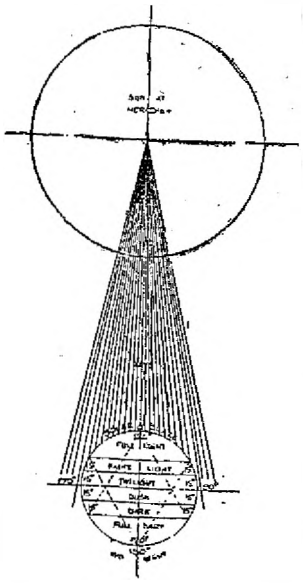
Uranus.—Mr. Munsiff puts within brackets "Uranus is a benefic for the Sidereal Zodiac!" The exclamation mark indicates that he is not in agreement and implies that this is against the rules obtaining in Tropical (Sayana) Astrology, i.e, according to Sayana Astrology, he should be considered as a malefic. I have convinced myself that it is not so in Tropical Astrology by reference to such books as I possess in that Astrology from Simmonite to M. Hone. But I may be mistaken and if so, hope to be corrected. As it is not possible to give quotations from all these books, I shall give only one from the latest book of Colin Evans, Section 36 (P.9): Benefics and Malefics. "Uranus, Neptune, Pluto all of recent discovery have naturally no traditional character but each when newly known tended to be regarded as 'bad' which by no means describes their now more fully studied effects" (italics mine). Even Alan Leo one of the older writers appears to treat Uranus as a benefic. He gives the following effects for conjunction of Uranus and Jupiter. (a) Where the slower planet is the significator: "Original, inventive, deep musical ability, occult tendencies, peculiar religious views, imagination, eloquent, persuasive". (b) where the quicker planet is the significator: "Inspirational, marvellous, devotional, aspiring, dramatic power, sense of dignity". More striking is his delineation of the effects of Moon separating from the aspect of one to the aspect of the other: Moon separating from an aspect of Uranus to Jupiter—success in foreign lands, sudden good fortune and for Moon separating from an aspect of Jupiter to one of Uranus "Romance and good fortune". Here the nature of the aspect is not mentioned as a factor in the judgment as in the beginning, it is stated that there can be good only if the planet applied to is a benefic. Cyril Fagan has given almost identical effects to transitting Uranus configurating natal Jupiter and transitting Jupiter configurating radical Uranus.

Loss of Mother.—Mr. Munsif says that in the case of native born in Bombay on 10–2–1923 at 8–35 p.m., I.S.T., who lost his mother during last January, the event can be read only with the Sayana Solar Return map. The matter cannot be dealt with fully here as already the letter has become too long. The reason stated is that Mercury ruler of 12th is in 4th and no other is given. I do not know if it is the only reason. I worked out the Sidereal Solar Return Chart and find the Solar Moon square natal Saturn. Also in the Solar Chart, Venus square Neptune (very close) Neptune being practically upon the radical Mars on the cusp of the Solar 8th house. For Moon–Saturn configurations, Bradley says "where personal relationships are involved, a bereavement is not unlikely". For Solar Venus configurating radical Mars, Cyril Fagan says "Events are often anguishing and may on occasion betoken tears, grief, laments. Under its transit husbands have mourned the loss of their wives, parents of their children and children of their parents". Venus is not in foreground but in midground but radical Mars and Solar Neptune are on the cusp of the 8th house implying anguish through death. Since the date of death is not given, it cannot be shown which malefic became angular for the time of death and caused the death.

I may say here that I hold no brief for either Tropical or Sidereal Zodiac or for the methods of Fagan or Bradley. I follow them and find results adequate and in some cases astonishing. If others are able to get the same results by other methods, who is to question? I do not at any rate, but want to place the facts as they are before the readers to be judged.

Mayuram. S. RAJAGOPALA Iyer.

Political Forecasts



Sir,—Ever since you wrote about the United States getting involved in the Middle East, and forecasting that she would for some reason get out of it and that there would be no involvement in war, I have been wanting to write and congratulate you but I waited for the final withdrawal which has now taken place. Your prediction has completely come true as many others in the past. I have read your latest article on Pakistan and its future. Your past writings on Pakistan have all come true and I am sure you will study this subject a little more in detail and with greater devotion and write another article which should make the unbelievers in Astrology sit up and take note of what is forecast on the study of the planets. My congratulations to you and good wishes for your continued success and progress in your inestimable and invaluable work.

Bombay. A. S. BHARATAN.

A New Astrological Theory

Sir.—Many learned men are under the notion that the Sun's rays fall on the hemisphere because they are impressed by the demonstration (a rotating globe with Moon and candle light) witnessed in their educational institutions. This impression coupled with the ignorance—to distinguish between the rays of the Sun and light has made Mr. V.K. Pantulu of Bombay cast some aspersions on my article written under the above caption in August 1958 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

Modern Astronomy tells us that on the day of Equinox the day and night are equal as the light of the Sun falls on the hemisphere because it is spherical. We should note that only light and not the Rays of the Sun fall on the hemisphere.

From the above illustration it is clear that only two thirds of the hemisphere (i.e.) 120° of the globe) get the Sun's rays or solar blaze. In other words only 120° of our earth (60° on either side of the meridian point) recive the Sun's rays directly. The remaining one third portion of the hemisphere (the places between 120° and 180°) gets only the diffused light of the rays of the Sun that travel in the outer space, the brightness varying according to the distance of the rays from the earth.

So only 120° of the earth (60° on either side of the meridian point) gets the rays of the Sun directly and perpetually and we call it "full light". The Places lying between 120° and 150° (15° on either sides of it) receive "faint light" and the rest (between 150° and 180°) i.e. 15° on either sides beyond) gets "twilight"

The formula 1/3 x 360 x 69 miles etc. to find out the distance of the Sun etc. given in my article is based on the above facts. Since the distance of the Sun and Moon arrived at by my formula nearly tallies with that of Kandha Purana I have given the scientists some food for thought.

Our present day scientists are making fast strides in their effort to land a rocket on the Moon. We won't be surprised if the scientists so engaged give out some new astronomical theory out of the facts borne out of their experiments in the outer space in the near future, which may corroborate the theory expounded by me.

In this connection I wish to add a word to Mr. V. K. Panthulu, who thinks that Kanda Purana is a synonym for a bundle of fairy tales. The stories of King Arthur and his knights of the round table are also fairy tales to all appearance; yet they are based on facts and pertain to the history of England and similarly every popular myth and legend in Puranic literature could be traced invariably to a fact in nature, provided one takes necessary pain. Moreover Mr. Panthulu does not seen have correctly read my article regarding the Eclipse wherein I have stated that only the luminary of the Sun enters the shadow and not the Sun itself. (Copy right reserved by the Author).

Tuticorn KARAIYALA PILLAI O. P. MUTHURAMALINGAM.

A Request

Sir,—Will any reader of your esteemed magazine let me know the names and addresses of well-known English Astrological journals published in foreign countries together with their rates of subscription and help me in becoming their subscriber. I have tried my best in this respect but my efforts have gone in vain. In December 1957, I enquired the address of American Astrology from Raman Publications, Bangalore, and they provided me the address.

Jammu. ASHWINI KUMAR SHARMA.

Saturn and Makara Lagna

Sir,—Reference letter of Sri A.A.N. Sastry of New Delhi under the above heading, I would like to make the following observations:

The data given is not complete but from what has been given, it is clear that Sun is in Thula, i.e., he is debilitated. In absence of the degrees, it is not known if he is within 10° and if so he is parama neecha and in that case his effect is still worse. Such a position of Sun in itself is sufficient to neutralize the good effects of Saturn and also to play havoc. In support I would refer to *slokas 16 and 17 of Adhyaya 39 of Saravali. Sloka 17 says "If other Grahas are in their Moolatrikona or Uccha (exalted) or in their own house (स्वक्षेत्र) but only one planet Sun is in debilitation (अतिनीच) then it alone destroys all the above mentioned good effects of other Grahas and their beneficent effect is not possible under such circumstances".

From this it is clear why the good effects of Saturn in Makara in Lagna, which is a very good position for Saturn are destroyed and Saturn being a malefic by nature is free to exercise his bad effects in conjunction with bad Sun.

As for Jupiter in Kumbha, I do not understand why Sri Sastry supposes that it will check Sun. Firstly Jupiter is in Aquarius (the degrees are not given) but he may actually be in Makara where he is debilitated in which case he will be bad. Anyway it is very near his debility position and hence not good. Thus Sun is the most powerful of planets and has supremacy over all other planets. That is why when he is debilitated he counters all other Raja Yogas. It is not clear on what basis Sri Sastry thinks Sun has obtained neechabhanga.

I would like to add that a horoscope has to be considered in its entirety and not piece-meal depending only on one fact.

Ayodhya, DR. VIDYA DAT RAM.

*जूकस्य दशमे भागे स्थितः कमलबोधनः ॥
सहस्रं राजयोगानां मन्दमेव करोत्यसौ ।
स्वत्रिकोणगृहं केचित्स्वोच्चं याताः स्वमन्दिरम् ।
अतिनीचे रविश्चैको न तेषां फलसंभवः ॥

Scanned by www.vedicastrologyforum.com To Preserve Dr. B.V. Ramans Work

Astrology—East and West

Sir,—With reference to the above article by Mr. V. Thiruvenkatacharya appearing in the January 1958 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, referring to the Hindu method of rectification of birth time said to have been discussed in Brihat Jataka of Varaha Mihira I feel that the rules detailed by the writer are not traceable in the edition of Brihat Jataka published in Sanskrit and Bhasha in Hindi during 1938 A.D. from Lucknow. And the slokas mentioned therein do not mean the same as detailed in the article.

Rules No. 1 and 2, are not traceable in any standard book.

Rule No. 3 is contra-indicated to rule No. 4 and does not fit in the practical application as shown by the learned contributor in an example given on page 65, except in two conditions only viz. when distance is 1 and 2 rasis or 11 or 12 rasis and the dwadasamsa chosen is 1st, 7th 6th and 12th respectively. The above two conditions only agree with rule 3. Otherwise it is quite impossible, if the rasi occupied by the Moon at birth is the same as the dwadasamsa occupied by the Moon at conception.

Suppose the 8th dwadasamsa of Meena is taken. It is Thula at conception and Moon in Thula at birth (rule 3) indicates a difference of rasis from conception Moon in Meena to birth Moon in Thula (=8) while it should be 3 or 4 for the 8th dwadasamsa as taken; similarly it varies in each case (rule 4).

And as per slokas given in Brihat Jataka :—

तत्कालमिन्दु सहितो द्विरसांशको
कस्तत्तुल्य राशि सहिते पुरतः शशांके ॥
यावानुदेति दिनरात्रि समात भागस्तावद्गते
दिन निशोः प्रवदन्ति जन्म ॥

—Ch. 4, Sl. 21.

and again according to Gargi :—

यावत्सये द्वादशांश शीतरश्मिर्व्य-
वस्थितः ॥
तत्संख्यो यस्ततो राशिर्जन्मेन्दुस्तङ्गतो
वदेत् ॥

Both the slokas do not mean as shown by the learned writer. The above mentioned slokas mean that the Rasi occupied by the Moon at birth is to be counted from the dwadasamsa occupied by the Moon at conception and the distance would be equal to the number of dwadasamsas elapsed at conception. Suppose the Moon at conception is in Aquarius 19° and in 8th dwadasamsa of Kanya; the Moon at birth should be in the 8th Rasi from Kanya Dwadasamsa, i.e., Mesha.

Hence the rule 4 alone cancels the rules 1, 2 (not traceable) and also rule 3. And rule 4 is the only key which belongs to the given slokas.

As regards rule 5, that is also wrongly interpreted by the learned writer in his example shown on page 65, though the meaning under rule 5 is correct to find out the traversed part of the rasi by the birth Moon or Nakshatra at the time, proportionate to the portion of the dwadasamsa traversed by her at the time of conception.

The formula is clearly given in Brihat Jataka and Jataka Parijata also. One dwadasamsa or 150 minutes is equal to 1 Rasi, or 1800 minutes. The traversed part of the dwadasamsa will be equal to the part of the rasi required by the rule of three. The result would be the traversed part by the Moon at birth time.

Similarly the rule No. 6 is totally wrong and does not tally with the sloka. Varahamihira says Yavanudeti Dinaratri Samanbhagas Tavadgate Dina-Nishoh Pravadanti Janma.

(Continued on page 327)

DETERMINATION OF PROFESSION—(Continued from page 310)

Shastyamsa No.	Significance	Meaning
51	Phala muladi Vikrayi ...	Sellers of fruits, tubers, etc.
52	Shanta Krit ...	One who establishes and maintains peace—may include Policemen, Defence Organisers, Ambassadors of Peace missions, etc.
53	Swarnakar ...	Goldsmith, one dealing with bullion, ornaments.
54	Krishikrit ...	Same as No. 33.
55	Pala Vikrayi ...	Pala=Meat. Sellers of meat, owners of piggery, abattoirs.
56	Yajako ...	Priests, Teachers, etc.
57	Adhyapaka ...	Professors, etc.
58	Adhyaksya ...	Owners or Proprietors, Principals of Institutions.
59	Pratigrahapara ...	One who accepts gifts from others. This may include beggars, to Directors of Charitable Institutions.
60	Phali ...	Sellers of fruits, owners of orchards, gardens.

The meaning or significance can be stretched to a great extent to suit modern conditions and varieties of occupations. This section of "Shastyamsa" in Parasari Hora should merit the serious attention of astrologers and offers fruitful field of research.

Scanned by ... Jyothisastro.com ... Research Work

LESSONS IN ASTROLOGY

(Continued from page 310)

star should be the natal star or one of its trines. In the given example this rule does not hold good. But if you take 8 gh. 31.5 vgh. you get a remainder of 6 which gives the required star Satabhishak. Yet another method is this :—Multiply the time of birth in ghatis by 6. Add to this the particular date of the solar month. This total would reveal the number of degrees by which the lagna is removed from the very commencement of the sign occupied by the Sun. It was the 24th day of Simha month. If you add this to 51-30, which is the product you get by multiplying the Ishtaghati by 6, you get 75°-30′ According to this rule the cusp of the first house or Lagna must be 75°-30′ farther from the beginning of Leo, because the Sun is situated in that Sign. But actually our Lagna-sphuta is 6s-10°-31′-41″. However, this will help us in locating the Ascendant broadly. I shall give you yet another method :—Note the Rasi and Navamsa occupied by Mandi as well as by the Moon. Now the Lagna of birth will have some connection with this Rasi. The Lagna may be the 7th, 5th or 9th from the sign or Navamsa of Mandi or the Moon, whichever is stronger of the two. In our example Mandi is in Makara both in Rasi and Amsa. The Moon is in Kumbha Rasi and Makara Navamsa. But the latter is stronger. Here the Lagna is actually in the 9th house from the Moon, the degrees of both being exactly the same i.e. 11th. According to another view the Lagna may be trine to the lord of the sign or Amsa of the Moon or Mandi.

There are some simple rules to find out the sex of the child. In this case too you have to be doubly careful before pronouncing judgment. Convert as before the Ishtaghatis etc. into Vighatis. Divide this by 225. Now you may have a remainder upto 225. What you have to do with the remainder is this: Have five groups of 15, 30, 45, 60, 75, i.e. from 1 to 15 first group, 16 to 45 second, 46 to 90 third, 91 to 150 fourth, and 151 to 225 fifth. In the odd groups male births are indicated. Take our example. Divide 515 by 225. You will get a remainder of 65. This falls in the third group. So the child must be male. Another method is to multiply the Ishtaghati by 4 and to add to it the number of Rasis alone in the Lagna-sphuta. Divide the result by 8. If the remainder is an even number, it is male, and if odd, it is female. In our example, 8-34 × 5 plus 6=40*g*-20*v*. Leave off the Vighatis. By dividing 40 by 8 you get nil remainder or 8 as remainder, which being an even number indicates male birth.

In this connection I must tell you that Gulika and Mandi are not identical though both are the sons of Manda or Saturn. You have already seen how the position of Mandi is to be calculated. The position of Gulika is found out thus:—When the duration of daytime is 30 ghatis Gulika rises at 26, 22, 18, 14, 10, 6 and 2 ghatis respectively on the seven days beginning with Sunday. Suppose the duration of day is 32-15 ghatis, then you have to do it thus for Sunday:—26/30 × 32-15 ghatis. For the night you have to take the figure for the 5th day i.e. if you want to know the time of Gulika's rise on a Sunday night, you have to take 10 ghatis and make the necessary calculations. Of course, there are some people that make no distinction between these two planets. There are others who interchange the methods for finding out their periods.

I shall tell you another interesting point in this context. From the Lagna of birth you can find out the direction of the lying-in-chamber in the house. If the Ascendant be Aries, Cancer, Libra, Scorpio or Aquarius, the chamber would be in the eastern portion of the house; if Leo or Capricorn, in the south; if Taurus, in the west; and if Gemni, Virgo, Sagittarius or Pisces, in the north. Before making any pronouncement you will have to see which of the two viz. the Lagna or its Navamsa, is stronger. In case the Navamsa is stronger, then you will have to give the direction indicated by that sign and not by the Lagna-Rasi. What do you mean by the Navamsa being stronger? See if that particular sign whose name the Amsa bears is well aspected or occupied and also see if its lord is strong, in benefic house and has the aspect of and association with benefics. You can similarly find out the direction which the lying-in-chamber faces. The planet that occupies a Kendra position in the birth chart gives the direction. You know the quarters presided over by the planets. Suppose there are many planets in Kendras. Then you will have to declare the direction from the strongest of them.

The women or obstetricians etc., in attendance on the expectant mother would depend on the number of planets posited between the Ascendant and the Moon. The number of persons standing or waiting outside is equal to the number outside that range. The quantity of oil in the lamp will correspond to the portion of the sign yet to be covered by the Moon in the particular Rasi occupied by her. The part of the wick remaining is to be guessed from the part of the sign of Lagna that has not yet risen. The nature of the lamp whether movable or fixed is to be deduced from the nature of the Rasi occupied by the Sun. These details may not be needed now in view of the existence of maternity homes and electric lights. Still I have given them because of their scientific character and interest.

It is said that if in the chart the Moon does not aspect the Ascendant, the child's father must have been away from home at the time of birth. This means that the Moon should be in 7th house from the Lagna for the father to be at home. I advise you not to take this Yoga too literally. See if the lord of the 9th house is in the visible hemisphere—six signs counted backwards from the Lagna—and in a fixed Rasi or Amsa and has some sort of connection of aspect on the Lagna or its lord and the Moon or the lord of its Rasi. If these conditions are satisfied you can say the father was at home. In the above conditions, i.e., when the Moon does not aspect the Lagna, if the Sun is posited in the 9th or 8th house, which is a movable, fixed or dual sign, the father is in another village, in his own village or on his way home respectively.

(To be continued)

Scanned by www.astrologicalmagazine.com Copyright Dr B V Ramans Work

Register Your Subscription

To ensure prompt supply of The Astrological Magazine every month become a regular subscriber today.

RATE OF SUBSCRIPTION

For One Year Rs. 12

Subscriptions for periods less than one year are not accepted.

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

BY DR. R. NAGARAJA SARMA, M.A., Ph.D., D.LITT.

GOVT. PUBLICATIONS

1. WE PLAN FOR PROSPERITY-(Pp. 102. Price 75 nP.)
2. FACTS ABOUT GOA.—(Pp. 16. Price 40 nP. 10 d. 15 c.)
3. THE METRIC SYSTEM OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.—(Pp. 36. Price 35 nP. 9d. 10 c.)
4. WORLD-OPINION-ON GOA.—(Pp.52. Price 60 nP. 1 sh. 20 c.).
5. INSCRPTIONS OF ASOKA.—(Pp. 86. Price Re. 1. 2 sh. 30 c.).
6. FOODGRAINS.—(Pp. 20. Price 25 nP. 6 d. 10 c.).
7. SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH.— (Pp. 88. Price Re. 1. 2 s. 6d. 30 c.).
8. IRRIGATION-IMPROVED SEEDS AND LAND RECLAMATION.— (Pp. 28. Price 25 nP. 6d. 10c.).
9. GEOLOGY IN INDIA.—(Pp. 28. Price 40 nP. 9d. 10c.).
10. PANCHSHEEL. — (Pp. 54. Price 50 nP. 10d. 15c.).
11. THE ANDAMAN AND NICOBAR ISLANDS.—(Pp. 56. Price 60 nP. 1s. 6d. 25c.).
12. SAVE YOUR HOME FROM FIRE.— (Pp. 44. Price 75 nP. 1s. 6d. 25c.).
13. KURUKSHETRA.—(Pp. 198. Price Re. 1).
14. CHILDREN OF INDIA.—(Pp. 46. Price Re. 1.50 nP. 3sh. 30c.).
15. 1857—A PICTORIAL REPRESENTATION.—(Pp. 70. Price Rs. 4).
16. GANDHI IN CHAMPARAN—By D.G. Tendulkar. — (Pp. 115. Price Re. 1.50 nP. 3s. 6d. 50c.).
17. THE TENTH YEAR.— (Pp. 190. Price Re. 1.50 nP. 3s. 6d. 50c.).
18. SPEECHES OF T. T. KRISHNAMACHARY.—(Pp. 162. Price Rs. 2).
19. LITERATURES IN MODERN INDIAN LANGUAGES.— (Pp. 332. Price Rs. 2.50 nP. 5s. 75c.).
20. OCCASIONAL SPEECHES AND WRITINGS OF RADHAKRISHNAN-SECOND SERIES. (Pp. 403. Price Rs. 3.75 nP. 7s. 6d. 1 Dollar).
21. INDIA-1957.— (Pp. 664. Price, Rs. 5.50 nP. 12sh. 6d. 2 Dollars).

All from Publications Division, Government of India, Delhi-8).

When the Government of a Country with all its tremendous resources in men, money and materials, commences its own publications, it is natural to expect that publications would be presented in fairly attractive get-up, whatever be the intellectual and cultural value of the contents thereof. From a standpoint like this, publications of the Government of India listed above, are noticed in the ensuing paragraphs, necessarily in a brief manner, and it is sure that these publications would be welcomed by all for whom they are presumably intended.

We Plan for Prosperity is a booklet in which all about the Five-Year Plans of the Government are described in fair detail. These National Plans are described as wonderful things. River-Projects, Industries and village reconstruction and other aspects and items of the plans are given, and the booklet is illustrated. It is amusing to note that this Government Publication tells the kindergarten story of King and his three sons to bring home to the world the importance of UNITY. Who is doing all this wonderful work? Is a question. The answer is—Yes. Government is doing a great deal. But, the people also should co-operate.

In Facts about Goa, certain items of information are furnished. Some idea can be had of the difficulties under which the people suffer from the following. In the Settlement neither freedom of speech nor of association is recognised. The press is said to be rigorously controlled, and even invitations to weddings, etc., should have prior approval of the Censor. The Armed Forces are said to be 14,000 strong and important posts in the different services would appear to be held by Europeans. The entire administration is said to be colonial. There is not even the slightest semblance of self-government.

The Metric System of Weights and Measures contains a descriptive account of the new system of weights that is to be introduced by Government. What is the metric system? Why and how? Why this change-over? The New Weights and Measures, are the topics explained and expounded. The Act of 1956 relating to Standards of Weights and Measures is printed. Simple conversion tables are also given. Present conditions are described to be chaotic. Poor traders are duped by unscrupulous middlemen. So, with a view to avoiding such victimization, Government would seem to have come forward to standardise Weights and Measures. This step is also in conformity with International practice.

World Opinion on Goa sums up the collective judgment on Goa from different quarters. "Support for India", "Christianity and Goa", "Goa, a Port of India", "Goa and NATO", "Dulles–Cunha-Statement" are the topics explained. It remains to be seen what the Portuguese authorities propose to do in the light of world-opinion assembled and marshalled in this booklet. Most enlightened people judge that Portuguese have no place in Goa after Indian Independence. But, the Portuguese counter-propaganada consists in telling the world that the denizens of Goa are quite happy under the present foreign regime. Only astrologers can predict what would eventually happen to Goa.

Inscriptions of Asoka are too widely known to all students of Indian History and Culture to need any elaborate explanation. These inscriptions are given in translation into English. Dr. D. C. Sircar, Epigraphist for India, has done the inscriptions into English at the request of Buddha-Jayanti-Working Committee formed by Government of India. The object is said to be carrying of Asoka's message to the people. Asoka has reigned and gone. Buddha has preached and gone. But, the world goes on for ever in its own ways driven under the urge of Karma and driven alike by some sort of directional destiny. The volume must have, still, undoubted cultural interest.

Foodgrains is concerned with the vital problem of finding two square meals a day to the toiling millions of India. The "Introduction" dramatically begins—The First Five-Year-Plan has ended. The Second has begun. By putting the Second-Plan into execution, authorities hope to produce 15½ million tons of additional foodgrains by 1960–61. This is hoped to be achieved by means of improved technique and intensive methods of cultivation. Meanwhile, complaints and murmurs are heard about shortage of rice, and it is amusing Pandit Nehru is advocating birth-control. But, those already brought into existence should be fed and clothed. I hope Free-Bharat may be able to do it.

The volume on Scientific Research gives an account of the work accomplished by National Laboratories,

Scanned by www.sptarishi.com Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri and of Sponsored Reasearch, and India is doing Atomic Research as well (P. 76). The Indian Science Congress has been meeting all these years in fact, for over forty years and more, and it would be interesting to inquire if the Indian Scientists have made any new discovery or discoveries. In the interests of public Finances, it must be asked if there is real and genuine advancement of Scientific Knowledge in India comensurate with the huge and enormous amount of public money expended. The Book contains no answer.

In the booklets on Irrigation, etc., it is pointed out that notwithstanding the best that had been done during the progress of the First Five-Year Plan, India could not secure self-sufficiency in the production of food. So, the Second Plan has been patterned in a more ambitious manner. Irrigation will be improved. Seeds of improved quality would be made available. Land reclamation would be accomplished. All this and possibly more would enable, India, in due course to obtain self-sufficiency in the production of Foodgrains.

In Geology in India, an account is given of India's mineral wealth and what was been done and what is being done to utilise the mineral wealth to the best and maximum advantage of the country. "India's Mineral Wealth", "Early History", "1856 and after", "Since the Independence" "The Indian Bureau of Mines", and "Mining Education" are the topics explained and elaborated in the booklet. Nature has kept hidden mineral resources, and industrialization means utilization of the mineral wealth and potential of the country. It is to be hoped that mining and metallurgical achievements of Free Bharat would in due course elict world-approval.

Since Independence, the term Panchaseel is on the lips of almost everybody who may be somebody. The booklet explains that Panchaseel as used and understood in contemporary political parlance is different from the Buddhistic doctrine. Buddha wanted people to refrain from injury to bring, not to take what is not given, not to commit sexual immorality, not to utter falsehood, and not to drink wine or liquor. Indonesia was the first to bring the term into contemporary politics. Panchasila in relation to Indian Foreign Policy, to United Nations and to co-existence is described in the booklet.

The Andaman and Nicobar Islands have acquired a new meaning, new status, and new importance, since Indian Independence. They have been forgotten as quandom penal settlements. Since 1947, the Government of India would appear to have launched several schemes for the development of the natural resources of these Islands, and naturally great difficulty is felt on account of lack of manpower, skilled labour and so forth. It may not be irregular or out of place in political possibilities to hope that in due time, these Islands develop to be tropical health-resorts or holiday-resorts for Free Bharat's Ministers and other V.I.P's.

Save Your Home from Fire is an important booklet which would be found useful in fire-fighting and in prevention of fires. The title WHY FIRE seems outlandish. One may as well go on interrogating Why Water—Why Government and so forth. Escape from Fire, First-Aid, Rescue from Fire, Village-and-rural Fires are some of the topics dealt with. The Fire-Brigade is emphasized as being most essential. Day in and day out, fire-accidents are reported in the Press. Deepavali crackers have caused disasters. Government must ban high-explosive - crackers — the so-called Atom-Bombs. This Pamphlet would be welcomed by individuals and institutions.

Kurukshetra Anniversary Number dated October 2, 1957 which is described as an Open Forum on Community-Development, contains a number of highly instructive and informative contributions from eminent sons of India like Bharata-ratna C. Rajagopalachar, and others. Since advent of Independence, a great deal has been heard of Community-projects and Community-development, but, judging from concrete economic conditions and cost-of-living index and other criteria, Independence has not meant anything real or substantial to the man-in-the-street the adult voter. Kurukshetra was the battle-field where the Bhagavad-Gita was taught. It has nothing to do with community-development so far as one can see. But, the peasant actually pays for Ministers' Air-travels to all places between the poles. That may justify.

Children of India contains photographic representations of different groups of children of India. It is an album. It has been compiled by Children's Bureau of the Indian Council for Child-Welfare. In this album, children of India, future citizens, Ministers and others are presented pictorially, in all activities, in work and in play, in fun and frolic, in study and sport. If Bharat adopts birth-control on the advice of Pandit Nehru, there may be in course of time dearth of material for the publication of albums like the present one. Children and elders would like the album carefully and attractively assembled.

1857 has been pictorially represented. Many historians and chronologists consider that to be year of dawn of struggle for Indian Independence. In this pictorial portraiture, the leading incidents and personalities connected with the Great Indian Sepoy Mutiny as it is usually and familiarly known in History-books, have been presented in black and white in an attractive way. Jhansi Lakshmi Rani's picture on Pp. 60 presents a resolute face and as physiognomy may testify, her eyes flash forth strong will and determination.

Whether the Mutiny of 1857 was just a simple Sepoy Mutiny, or, it was politically well-informed and direct agitation for Independence is still an open question.

Gandhi in Champaran is a work by D. G. Tendulkar, a devoted student of the life and ideals of the Mahatma. It may be recalled that Mr. Tendulkar is the author of Mahatma in 8 Volumes. Mr. R. R. Diwakar ex-Governor has contributed a "Foreword". The work "Satyagraha in Champaran" by President Rajendraprasad is supplemented by the author. Unpublished material marked "confidential" by the British has been used and the material is in possession of the Bihar Government. Gandhi took his first plunge in Champaran in 1917, and it is observed that within a period of 30 years from the date, he liberated India from thraldom of British. The British have kicked the dust of Bharat off their feet. But how do Indians feel?

The Tenth Year contains survey of the achievements of the Central Government and the different States and the Union Territories for the period—ranging between April 1956 and March 1957. Social, Economic, Internal and External affairs and achievements are chronicled. It is the first year of the Second Plan. Reorganization of the States is chronicled as a notable event of this period. It should be interesting to note that in this period the number of trade-unions increased by 106, bringing the total to 315 at the end of the year. The total cost of Atomic Reactor is stated to be in the neighbourhood of 7 crores of Rupees. Thus, the tenth year has a good story to tell.

Speeches of T. T. Krishnamachary are assembled together in a single handy volume. The speeches have been arranged, it is said, in chronological order. The speeches were made in the Parliament during the Union Budget Debate. These speeches relate, of course, to the Five-Year Plan in the progress and execution, structure of Taxation and Foreign Exchange. Readers going through these speeches will wonder whether after the advent of Freedom the burdens of taxation falling on the devoted heads of poor millions have in any appreciable manner been lightened. For travel in Railways, Posts and Telegraphs, the citizens of Free-Bharat have been called upon to pay more and more.

Literatures in Modern Indian Languages seems a misnomer. For, it is actually found the volume does make reference to Ancient and Medicaval periods as well. There is an account of the development of literature in different languages like Assamese, Bengali, Telugu, Kannada, Marathi and so forth. The volume constitutes a collection of broadcasts from the All-India Radio and they have been edited for publication by V. K. Gokak. The Editor has contributed an "Introduction" (Pp. 38) in which the plan and purpose of the publication are explained.

Occasional Speeches and Writings of Vice-President Dr. Radhakrishnan runs in its second series. They relate to "International Affairs", "Education and Culture", "Philosophy and Religion", "General" and "Prefactory Introductions". These speeches range between practically all subjects under the Sun commencing with Agriculture and terminating perhaps with Zoology. In the speeches of the Vice-President made in foreign countries, there reigns supreme a dull monotony. He invariably thanks the Governments of the countries visited by him. He conveys India's good-will. He returns literally groaning under the heavy weight of honorary Degrees and good-will given by other countries to India. The World would await with interest a subsequent volume in the series.

India—1957—is a valuable reference volume intended for use both by Indians and Foreigners. The First Annual was published in 1953. This is the fifth issue. This annual is observed to include new sections. The Annual contains facts and data collected from reliable and authoritative sources. On P. 16, it is observed that "The South compensated for whatever the North lacked". The North-South distinction has been incorporated into the Annual. The Annal will receive the same welcome as its predecessors.

From the fore-sketched brief notices of the Publications issued by the Government of India it would be realized immediately, that most if not practically all of these are intended for purposes of propaganda and commendation of the efforts of the Government in different directions. It would be a palpable error if readers will run away with the impression, after a perusal of these volumes, that India is a land flowing with milk and honey after the advent of political independence.

The facts, data and interpretations, statistics, figures, etc., are all taken from different Government Departments. Just for instance, take the Railways. I know from personal experience that the lot of poor third class travellers (others know it too) is daily growing from bad to worse. There is abnormal over crowding. No reservation is guaranteed. There is no speeding up of trains. A Madras train takes over an hour to clear a distance of 18 miles (from Tambaram to Egmore). But, the Annual sings the glory of Railways, sings hellelujahs to all concerned with running of the present Governments at the Centre and in the States. The publications illustrate a grand truth: It is one thing to get political freedom. It is totally another to utilize it in securing the maximum good for maximum number of persons and poor adult voters.

Scanned by Digitized by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

(Continued from page 323)

It means that if at the time of Nishe-ka, the Navamsa of the Lagna is in Dina or Ratri Rasi then the birth will be according to that in day or night after sunrise or sunset as the case would be. And not if day and night as being equal as mentioned by the writer in rule 6.

Therefore may I request your readers to throw more light on this subject and clarify the matter.

Thanking you,

Dehra Dun. G. CHANDRA JAIN.

Seventh House

Sir,—In the horoscope given by Sri V. K. Balakrishnan in his letter appearing on page 1075 of December 1958 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, Libra is rising. For this Lagna, Jupiter, Sun and Mars are malefics while Saturn and Mercury are benefics. Mars is also a maraka. Kalatrakaraka Venus is in Vrischika, the negative sign of Mars, his enemy and a maraka. 7th house from Lagna is aspected by malefic Jupiter and exalted yogakaraka Saturn. Seventh lord Mars is in 6th (satrusthana)—a fiery planet in a watery sign! Mars though placed in an Upachaya house is not completely purged off its inherent malefic nature. By his rulership and aspect the matters ruled by the 1st (body) 2nd (family), 7th (wife), 9th (fortune) and 12th (loss) houses are destined to suffer in some form or the other. From Chandra Lagna, 7th house is aspected by Moon ruling 12th. Venus, Saturn and Mars are respectively in the constellations of Jupiter, Mars and Saturn. These planetary positions coupled with the aspect of Mars on Saturn in the Lagna give the clue to the nativity being separated from his partners and denied a happy matrimonial life.

All about the first wife should be divined through the Darapada and its Upapada. Information about the second wife should be sought for through the 8th house from these two padas. Sages say that the number of wives that would be lost should be declared through the amount of papatva (malevolence), if any, in the pada over and above that in the Darapada (Sloka 40, Khanda IV, Uttarakalmrita).

Applying this principle to the chart we see that the seventh pada is aspected by Moon afflicted by kendradhipatya dosham (quadrangular ownership) and occupation of the eleventh. The sixth (Upapada) receives full aspect of Mars. This explains the death of the first wife. Coming to the second wife, it may be observed that the second pada is occupied by malefic Rahu and aspected by Kethu another malefic in opposition are indeed bad. Its upapada (first) is occupied by Sun, Jupiter and Mercury. The only benefic in the group viz., Mercury is also afflicted considerably by his association with the malefics as well as rulership of the twelfth. Thanks to the aspect of Yogakaraka Saturn on both the padas, the second marriage ties lasted a little longer than the first one. The position of the seventh lord Mars in Meena, a double-bodied sign, is not without significance, when we analyse astrologically the causes of more than one marriage in this case. By the way, I may mention that there are indications for the third marriage also in the chart which may last longer. The ninth pada and its upapada (eighth) being aspected by their respective lords Mercury and Venus support this conclusion. The aspect of Sun and Jupiter on the ninth pada can, in my opinion, produce passing domestic quarrels only now and then.

Bhopal. P. C. SUBRAMANIAN.

STARS IN THEIR Seasons

By M. V. RAMAKRISHNAN, M.A., L.T.

Night Sky in March 1959

Zodiacal Constellations

THE zodiacal constellations that are visible this month at about 9-30 in the night are, from west to east, Aries (Mesha), Taurus (Vrishabha), Gemini (Mithuna), Cancer (Kataka), Leo (Simha) and Virgo (Kanya). Aries is setting, and you can see Aswini and Bharani, very close to western horizon. Virgo has already risen and is shining prominently with its bright star spica a little above the eastern horizon to the south. Leo has not yet crossed the meridian, and is in a favourable position for observation at about 9-30 p.m. The curve of stars forming the head of Lion, called the 'Sickle' starts from Regulus, the brightest star of the group. On the convex side of the sickle lie the other stars of the constellation. Cancer is very nearly overhead and is therefore in a favourable position for observation. Although it contains no bright stars, it contains a star cluster, called Praesepe or the Beehive, which to the unaided eye appears as a hazy-looking spot. Gemini and Taurus have crossed the meridian and are attractive at their present elevation in the western sky.

Non-Zodiacal Constellations

Of the non-zodiacal constellations Ursa Minor and Ursa Major are shining prominently in the north. Ursa Major—the constellation of the Rishis—has come out fully of the north-eastern horizon. Between Ursa Major and Virgo is seen the small but attractive constellation Coma Berenices. This constellation contains a large number of nebulae. A large portion of the south-eastern sky is occupied by the long winding, constellation Hydra, balancing on its back the two small constellations Crater and Corvus. The Crater or the 'Cup', is in the shape of a goblet tilted to one side and consists of a number of dim stars. Corvus consists of a group of five fairly bright stars, four of which form a square with a fifth outside it. This group is Hastha of the lunar zodiac.

The south-western sky is occupied by the winding river Eridanus; Argo Navis in full sail with its principal star Canopus shining prominently, and Canis Major and Orion shining with a brilliance all their own. Low down in the south-east is seen the constellation Crux, popularly known as the Southern Cross. In the north-western sky you can easily identify the constellations Auriga and Perseus and the principal Stars in them.

Lunar Asterisms

The lunar asterisms that can be identified in the visible hemisphere are Aswini and Bharani in Aries, Krittika and Rohini in Taurus, Mrigasira and Ardra in Orion, Punarvasu in Gemini, Pushya in Cancer, Aslesha in Hydra, Makha and the Phalguni in Leo, Hastha in Corvus and Chitta in Virgo.

The Milky Way

The Milky Way traverses the sky from south-south-east to north-north-west and is seen to pass through or between constellations Crux, Argo Navis, Canis Major, Canis Minor, Orion, Gemini, Taurus, Auriga, Perseus and Cassiopia.

[The chart should be held in such a way that the horizon marked at the bottom in the chart corresponds to the horizon the observer is facing. Then the constellations he sees before him from the horizon to the zenith will be found in the chart from the bottom to the centre. The constellations to his right and left will be found in the corresponding positions of the chart].

Your SCIENTIFIC DIFFICULTIES Solved

By MIHIRA

[In the letters THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE receives from the readers, many interesting questions are put pertaining to astrological and scientific problems. Here are a few recent queries together with answers. If some similar doubts are puzzling you, why not write us about them? This service is free to all readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. Address communications to—MIHIRA, c/o THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE].

Q. 1. (a) Bhavartha Ratnakara page 18, stanza 5, states that Venus can cause no yoga if placed in tenth. But if Venus occupies 10th for those born under Leo, the yoga is Malavya. Please explain. (b) There is a Tamil saying that if an exalted planet aspects another exalted planet, the person will become a beggar. In Morarji Desai's horoscope, this is present. Can the view be taken as correct? (c) In Sakata Yoga (Guru in 6th from Moon) where Moon and Jupiter are in 6, 8 positions 1/3 Adhi Yoga also occurs. Which will prevail—Adhi Yoga or Sakata Yoga. (d) If according to Srimathi Rukmani (vide her article in Adi Sankara in January 1958 issue of THE ASTROLGGICAL MAGAZINE), four or more planets combined should make one a Sanyasin. Why did not Hyder Ali who had six planets in 2nd become a Sanyasi? (e) There is a belief that the first child if it is a female, brings luck to the parents as if Mahalaxmi herself comes to the family. Is there no astrological sanction for this? (f) Can Mercury in 4th house promote good education if it happens to be sign of an enemy? (g) Are Ayatna Dhanalabha Yoga and Sakata Yoga applicable to Navamsa chart? (h) As between Mars and Saturn occupying 7th house in a girl's horoscope which is more baneful? (i) How is it that Neechbhanga Raja Yoga is present even in the horoscopes of persons born as kings and emperors and do not work up far below. (j) Is not Virgo a double-bodied sign? (k) When Jupiter is exalted and retrograde, does he become powerful or powerless? (l) On page 397 of 1954 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, Sri D. V T. V. Chari says that lords of 6th, 8th and 12th houses destroy completely the houses they occupy. But on page 384 of the same issue, you state that the lords of 6th, 8th and 12th if they occupy these houses cause a favourable yoga. Please reconcile. (m) When a planet rules two houses, the effects of that house which is Moolathrikona will be mainly felt. Is it correct? (n) A planet is in exaltation in the Rasi and in debility in Navamsa chart. But in Navamsa chart, there is cancellation of debility. Will the fact of debilitation affect the powers of the planet adversely? (o) All standard books state that Vargottama is good. But Jataka Parijata contradicts this in chapter VI verse 1, regarding Sun and Venus. What is your opinion? (p) Between 3rd and 12th houses which is the more favourable house for the combination of 9th and 10th lords? (q) In Lagna Chandrika by Pt. Maitri Prasad, it is written that when three planets occupy their own signs that will usher in a Maharaja. Here Kendra from Lagna is not mentioned. Nehru has Moon in 1, Venus in 4 and Jupiter in 6. Can this be taken as correct? (r) Of the various kinds of Neechabhanga, which is most effective? (s) Is it true that persons having Angaraka dosha will be (i) haughty and arrogant, (ii) will be very passionate, (iii) will be expert in mathematics, (iv) will have a scar in their bodies, (v) will posses a hot constitution. (t) We see a large number of persons losing their wives at the age of 34, 38, 42 and marrying another. Correspondingly we do not see a large number of girls being widowed at the age of 14, 16, 18 and 19 why? (u) Is it true that in the case of a male having Angaraka dosha, he will not lose his wife if he is made to have his first marriage after his 26th year. (v) So also if a girl has got Angaraka dosha for whom Mars dasa obtains from 23 to 30, if marriage is celebrated in the 30th year there will be no widowhood: state the authorities. How do they combine the result of a radical chart and Gochara position?

—V. V., Hyderabad.

Ans. (a) Malavya Yoga is a general yoga. What you state Bhavratha Ratnakara lays down is intended to those born under Simha Lagna. Why ignore alternatives and be bent on only seeing difference. (b) What about Sri Rama's horoscope? (c) There is no such thing as 1/3 Adhi Yoga though some people are in the habit of saying these things. (d) If you read every rule in astrology as being applicable to all cases without exceptions, it will lead you nowhere. It is not correct to say that all persons who have got four or more planets in a sign or house should be a Sanyasi. There are exceptions. If the most powerful planet of the group is combust or defeated in conjunction, the yoga will not materealise. But in this case, the reason is different. There is more than one Raja Yoga in Hyder Ali's horoscope. In such a case Raja Yoga will have precedence over Ascetic Yoga. (e) Astrology is a science and has nothing to do with superstitious beliefs of old women. (f) Mercury in 4th will be Karaka in the concerned bhava and so will not promote education. Being in inmical sign also will make matters only worse. (g) Vide answer supra. (h) Each will be baneful in its own way. (i) Are you sure there are no other yogas present? (j) No. (k) "If a planet is retrograde in his motion while in his exaltation house, he gets only his neechabala, i.e., nothing—Uttarakalamrita Chapter II, Verse 6. (l) The first is a general statement and the second is an exception. (m) Yes. (n) Yes. (o) Your quotation is wrong. Chapter VI, Verse 1 refers to something else. (p) No common answer is possible as it will vary according to the Lagna. (q) May be taken as correct. (r) There is not much difference. (s) The effects of Mars in places where it is mentioned to be a dosha namely 2, 4, 7, 8 and 12 cannot have all of them the same well defined characteristics. The effects of Mars in these places have been given in all text books which should be refered to. (t) As we have not had a similar experience of a large number of people losing their wives at the ages specified above nor of girls becoming widows at these ages, we cannot answer such questions. Please do think of botter questions to put in these columns. (u) We are not aware of any such exceptions. (v) By this question, you exhibit your own ignorance of astrological terminology. Angaraka dosham is a radical influence, that is, it is referrable to the radical horoscope. Mars dasa 23 to 30 refers to directional influences. There is nowhere Gochara to be seen in the data. How to answer your query regarding the combination of radical and Gochara influences? Moreover we are also curious to learn the authorities that state where Mars dasa obtains from 23 to 30 there will be no widowhood if the marriage is celebrated after the 30th year.

Scanned by Jayaram Jyotish Trust, Bangalore. Preserved by Parashara Net Work

Q. 2. (a) Hitler and Stalin had Mars in 7th both Thula Lagna but they were dictators and cruel people. But Ramana Maharshi was different. What is the correct definition of Ruchaka Yoga ?. (b) Does any yoga arise by the combination of Mercury and Venus, Mercury and Moon, Sun and Moon, Mercury and Jupiter, Venus and Saturn, Mercury and Mars, Venus and Moon, etc. Why are these not at all recognised in astrology ? (c) Is it a fact that persons having Venus and Moon combination, will be interested in natural scenery, forests and the like ? (d) Mechanical engineers are always highly passionate because Mars has to be strong. Is this true ? (e) In great men's horoscopes and always so if Rahu is in 3rd, they are generally brotherless. What is your opinion about this point ? (f) An authoritative Tamil astrological work says that Mesha, Kataka, Thula, Simha and Dhanus are Lagnas in which Maharajas are born. What is your opinion ? (g) It is stated that Venus in Libra will give Vahana Yoga. Does a clerk's trip to office and back in a Government transport vehicle means Vahana Yoga ? (h) Does Venus in Libra confer love for the whole world ? Gandhi, Nehru, Rajendra Prasad, etc., have this position. But Tippu who had this was a cruel man. Why ? R.R., Hyderabad.

Ans. (a) It has already been pointed out that Mars is in 8th bhava in Sri Ramana Mahrshi's horoscope though in 7th sign from Lagna. (b) You are wrong. An entire chapter is devoted to Dwigraha Yogas in Brihat Jataka and also in other standard works. (c) This combination develops the artistic sense and therefore there is a fondness for the beautiful in nature, scenery and so forth. (d) The statement as a fact and the reasons alleged for the statement are questioned. (e) There are also great men without Rahu in 3rd. So nothing follows. (f) It is probable as the first four angles of the zodiac and the other two are royal signs. (g) Yes in the sense that peons employed to sweep their buildings are in Government service and are called Government servants.

Q. 3. (a) Some film producers and cinema actors have sexual intercourse with hundred to two hundred girls. What combination in their horoscopes makes this possible ? (b) Venus in Cancer will make a drunkard. Is this correct ? (c) In Electional Astrology which Lagna is better for a couple to have sexual intercourse for getting a virtuouse son ? (d) In answer to question 5 (c) in February 1958 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, it is stated that exaltation is more powerful than own sign. Nehru has not even one exalted planet but only 3 planets in own signs. But he commands great wealth, is a Prime Minister and has political power. How to explain ? (e) In very few horoscopes, exchange between lords of 9th and 10th is seen but their conjunction is more common. Which is the most powerful one ? (f) Will Venus in Lagna without being in own sign or exaltation, produce Malavya Yoga ? (g) Is Lakshmi Yoga present only when rulers of 1 and 9 are benefics ? (h) Out of the Panchamaha Purusha Yogas, Bhadra Yoga formed by Budha is not much spoken of. Why ? (i) Between Chandra Mangala Yoga, Gurumangala Yoga and Gajakesari Yoga, which yoga is more powerful for giving wealth ? (j) Born 2-8-22 at 6-18 a.m., at Madras. Chart as follows :—Lagna–Aries with Mercury and Sun ; Virgo–Venus and Saturn ; Libra Rahu and Jupiter ; and Sagittarius Mars and Moon. Balance of Saturn's Dasa years 11–6–15. The native passed in I.A.S. and was in service for 3 years. Suddenly died in May 1949. Please state the reason for Alpayur Yoga. (k) Lord of 8th in 12th or 6th, lord of 6th in 8th and 12th, lord of 12th in 6th or 8th. These give rise to Vimala, Harsha Yogas, etc. What is the technicality involved in the lord of one dusthana being in another dusthana. (l) It is stated at times when lords of 10th and 11th combine, there will be Raja Yoga. Another authority states that Raja Yoga arises by combination of 9th and 10th lords. Which is more powerful ? —R. R. Hyderabad.

Ans. (a) We cannot give the combinations without the horoscopes before us. But if you want geneneral combinations for such occurrences, vide verse 29, 30 and 31 of Chapter VII of Sarwartha Chintamani. (b) Varaha Mihira gives the following effects for Venus in Cancer. "The person concerned will have two wives, will solicit monetary help from others, will be timid, but very arrogant and will suffer great misery". (c) Any Lagna ruled by benefic and aspected by Jupiter. (d) Three planets in own signs are more powerful than one planet in exaltation. (e) Both are equally powerful. (f) No. (g) It is not so defined in standard texts. (h) Not much spoken of by whom ? (i) None of them are wealth producing yogas (Dhana Yogas) and so there is no basis for comparison. (j) It must have been due to the mischief of the astrologer who cast the horoscope as for a birth which took place in August, he has placed Sun in the sign Aries with Mercury. But if the Lagna is taken as Cancer as is more probable, then Alpayur will be indicated as per Jaimini formula : viz. (i) Lord of Lagna Moon in common sign and Saturn lord of 8th in common sign—medium. (ii) Lagna movable, Moon common, short life. (iii) Lagna and Hora Lagna movable and fixed—medium. Majority for medium group. As Atmakaraka Venus is joined with lord of 8th Saturn, reduction to short life. (k) We can only surmise. B. V. Raman has suggested that the principle of two negatives being a positive may be responsible. (l) We are only familar with the latter kind of Raja Yoga.

9. A wide circle of Ceylon astrologers adopt a verse which means "If the birth sign or the ascendant of a nativity is not aspected by either Venus or Mercury or if Kendras are not aspected by Jupiter or if 10th bhava is not aspected by Mars, such a horoscope serves no purpose or is rendered useless." Is it justifiable ?

L. W. Ratnapura.

Ans. The verse is not to be taken literally but only as an exaggerated way of emphasising the importance of the positions given in the manner of old text writers.

Scanned by www.sabarishastrology.com Courtesy Dr B V Ramans Work

AYURVEDA

or The Hindu System of Medicine

4th EDITION

BY B. V. RAMAN

With an Introduction by

W. B. CROW, D.SC., PH.D.

In this book an attempt is made to explain the broad outlines of Ayurveda to the general public and give them an idea of the grandeur and importance of this ancient Medical system. Every true Indian must study this lucid exposition.

OPINION

"The book is nicely written and the get-up is decent".

Prof. J. C. GHOSE, M.A., F.C.S.

Re. 1 or Sh. 2

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari", Bangalore-3

BY S. K. KAR, B.Sc.

 Sayana Positions of Planets on 1st March 1959, true for 5–30 a.m. (Indian Standard Time).

Graha (Planet)		Dhruva (R.A.)	Kranti (Declin.)	Sphuta (Long.)	Kshepa (Lat.)
		° ′	° ′	° ′	° ′
Ravi	☉ ...	341 15	7 S 57	9 ♓ 39	...
Chandra	☽ ...	233 27	15 S 39	24 ♏ 56	3 N 27
Kuja	♂ ...	66 28	23 N 39	8 ♊ 32	1 N 57
Budha	☿ ...	352 6	3 S 31	22 ♓ 11	0 S 27
Guru	♃ ...	239 35	19 S 27	1 ♐ 29	1 N 2
Sukra	♀ ...	5 36	1 N 22	5 ♈ 36	0 S 56
Sani	♄ ...	275 46	22 S 24	5 ♑ 20	0 N 56
Uranus	♅ ...	135 55	17 N 31	13 ♌ 14	0 N 43
Neptune	♆ ...	215 4	12 S 6	6 ♏ 49	1 N 48

Scanned by www.sapthrishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

THE SUN

The Sun progresses on from the 18th degree of Nirayana Aquarius, enters Pisces on the 16th and then terminates on the 18th degree. He comes to the Apogee on the 14th and to the Vernal Equinox on the 21st. His south declination decreases from about 8 degrees to zero degree. Then from 20th his north declination gradually increases upto about 3 degrees during the latter part of the month.

THE MOON

The Moon begins her journey from the 4th degree of Scorpio, and after completing a round of the heavens she terminates on the 12th degree of Sagittarius. She attains maximum declination on 3rd, 17th and 30th. She crosses the equator towards the north on the 10th and towards south on the 24th. She comes to her descending node on the 11th and to her ascending node on the 25th. She goes to her Apogee on 14th and to her Perigee on the 26th. She forms with the Sun the following aspects in this month :—

Last quarter	on	2nd	at about 8 a.m.
New Moon	on	9th	,, 4 p.m.
First quarter	on	17th	,, 8 p.m.
Full Moon	on	25th	,, 1 a.m.
Last quarter	on	31st	,, 4 p.m.

* The R.A. is always given on Sayana basis, while in the description of planetary movements, the longitudes are given on Nirayana basis, the current Ayanamsa being 21° 49′ 4.978″.

N.B.—There will be a partial Lunar Eclipse on the 24th.

MARS AND MERCURY

Mars starts from the 17th degree of Taurus and after entering Gemini on the 26th he stops on the 3rd degree.

Mercury commences to move from the 1st degree of Pisces. He becomes retrograde on the 19th and terminates his journey on the 15th degree. He goes to his Perihelion on the 8th and attains greatest elongation on the 12th. He sets heliacally in the west on the 23rd.

JUPITER AND SATURN

Jupiter begins to move on from the 10th degree of Scorpio, and slowly proceeds upto the 10th degree.

Saturn starts from the 14th degree of Sagittarius and very slowly proceeds upto the 16th degree of the same sign.

VENUS AND RAHU

Venus begins her journey from the 14th degree of Pisces. She enters Aries on the 14th and then goes upto the 21st degree of the same sign.

Rahu as usual moves in a backward direction from 23° 6′ of Virgo to 21° 40′ of the same sign.

OTHER PLANETS

Uranus [moves back an arc of 52′, i.e., from 21° 28′ of Cancer to 20° 36′ of the same sign.

Neptune is still retrograde and moves back from 15° 0′ to 14° 28′ of Libra.

Pluto moves back from 10° 59′ to 10° 18′ of Leo.

LUNAR CONJUNCTIONS

The Moon forms conjunctions with planets in the following order :—

Jupiter	on 1st	at about	4 p.m.
Saturn	on 4th	,,	3 a.m.
Sun	on 9th	,,	4 p.m.
Mercury	on 11th	,,	7 a.m.
Mars	on 17th	,,	1 a.m.
Uranus	on 21st	,,	11 a.m.
Pluto	on 22nd	,,	10 p.m.
Rahu	on 25th	,,	5 p.m.
Neptune	on 27th	,,	7 a.m.
Jupiter	on 28th	,,	12 p.m.
Saturn	on 31st	,,	11 a.m.

POURNIMA (FULL MOON) AND AMAVASYA (NEW MOON) TITHIS

Commencing moments for the meridian of New Delhi. (77° E 13′, 28° N 39′)

I. Amavasya tithi commences at 15h. 30m. (I.S.T.) on 8th March 1959

Cusps of Houses:—Ascendant 106° 52′; 2nd 135° 5′; 3rd 163° 18′; 10th 11° 30′; 11th 43° 17′; 12th 75° 4′.

Nirayana Positions of Planets

The Sun 315° 16′; the Moon 313° 18′; Mars 50° 25′; Mercury 342° 38′; Jupiter 219° 59; Venus 352° 54′; Saturn 253° 59′; Uranus 111° 11′; Neptune 194° 55′; Pluto 130° 49′ and Rahu 172° 45′.

II. Pournima tithi commences at 4h. 28m. a.m. (I.S.T.) on 24th March 1959

Cusps of Houses:—Ascendant 298° 50′; 2nd 332° 55′; 3rd 7° 0′; 10th 221° 7′; 11th 247° 1′ and 12th 273° 5′.

Nirayana Positions of Planets

The Sun 340° 44′; the Moon 148° 45′; Mars 58° 35′; Mercury 350° 6′; Jupiter 220° 8′; Venus 11° 51′; Saturn 254° 46′; Uranus 110° 44′; Neptune 194° 38′; Pluto 130° 27′ and Rahu 171° 52′.

PLANETARY ASPECTS

THE SUN

Trine	Jupiter	on the	23rd
Square	Saturn	,,	28th
Conj. (Inf.)	Mercury	,,	29th

MERCURY

Trine	Jupiter	on the	6th
Square	Saturn	,,	9th
Trine	Uranus	,,	17th
Opposition	Rahu	,,	19th
Trine	Uranus	,,	22nd
Square	Saturn	,,	30th

VENUS

Sextile	Mars	on the	5th
Trine	Uranus	,,	7th
Opposition	Rahu	,,	7th
Trine	Pluto	,,	23rd
Opposition	Neptune	,,	26th
Trine	Saturn	,,	26th
Square	Uranus	,,	31st

MARS

Sextile	Uranus	on the	9th
Trine	Rahu	,,	10th

SATURN

Sextile	Neptune	on the	21st

CARTOMANCY

(Continued from page 306)

quences. But even if such a danger does not exist (because of the high morality of the person or persons concerned), such a prayer, right at the beginning will usually prevent one's asking the cards out of pure curiosity, as such a prayer will either dispel or transmute it, and, not seldom, after—or even during—if one may feel not to be worthy or pure enough to undergo a test at that particular moment. Also the prayer may help to bring about the drawing of one or the other of the cards just mentioned, indicating that one should not proceed with the test at that time!—What matters here, is really a moral question.

Dr. Koch compiled another pack of cards on very similar lines (existing yet only in manuscript) called the "Mantik Spiel" which resembles the one just referred to in every respect—also based on the very same high standards of ethics—, with the sole difference that it comprises only 72 cards (instead of 155). The smaller pack is handier than the larger one, and in several respects rather preferable. It would appear to be the more suitable one of the two to be transtated into English (if only one of them were to be translated), which seems to be an urgent need anyway.

Also, as regards both these systems of packs of cards, Dr. Koch is well aware as to certain minor improvements that could still be brought about, and it is his wish that the English edition should be as perfect as possible. Let us hope that it will come out soon!

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri www.parishtastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

The Universe and the Heavens

By M. V. Ramakrishnan, M.A., L.T.

The book gives in simple non-technical language all that is known at the present day about the heavenly bodies giving the latest theories of an evolving and expanding Universe. Attempts have also been made to correlate ancient astrology with modern observations.

Though much of the matter in this book has already appeared years ago in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, the matter has been entirely rewritten to meet the needs of the layman, the University student, the astronomer and the astrologer.

An invaluable book that every lover of knowledge should possess.

Crown 1/8 size: Cloth Bound with attractive Jacket

Rs. 5.25 or Sh. 10/6 per copy. Postage Extra.

Less 12½% to Subscribers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari" : : BANGALORE-3

FOR MARCH 1959

[This study is not intended as a tip for investors to follow. The writers have arrived at certain conclusions regarding Cotton, Commodities, etc., etc., mainly based on planetary influences. Those who act on this information will be doing so at their own risk.—Ed., A.M.].

By D. R. MUNSIF, B.Sc. (Econ). (London), B.A. (Hons.) (Bombay),
5/1, Russel Street, Royal Court, Calcutta–16

Economic Section

IT is said that when politics enter the heads of rulers, economics fall out. Unfortunately politics by which I mean oppurtunism is always able to discover a crack in many heads. Such a spectacle we find today in the framing of jute policy.

When India attained independence, it found itself obliged to feed its jute mills by importing the raw material from Pakistan. The partition was decided upon by our power-hankering politicians to avoid the conflict-betwen the two major communities and yet as soon as it came to function, the the commercial politics of both the countries were anything but framed in a spirit that would lead to accord harmony. India wanted to be self-sufficient in jute production; a programme to increase jute production was decided upon—a measure in the spirit of nationalism.

Today we are trying to run away from its economic implications. Even in 1948, the world as a whole was producing more jute than it consumed and our policy for reaching self-sufficiency was certainly to lower the price of the fibre. Today when we have achieved our objectives, we are evolving measures to fight the consequences. Our rulers, to make matters worse, are adopting measures which throw dust in the eyes of the tax-payers. It has been decided that the state—authorities can buy jute from the cultivators and thus support the price-level; and the Central Government will compensate the States if any loss results; and the State Trading Corporation will enter the jute markets.

Let us examine the suitability of each of these measures. First jute of the highest grade is in demand from the foreign countries. We are still short of such jute and if it is exported, we shall again have to import the required fibre from Pakistan. Thus on our hands will be left a glut of jute which would remain always surplus. Secondly the ministry of the provinces will gladly buy all the jute from cultivators to catch votes because the state-Governments have been promised protection against loss. Thirdly the State Trading Corporation which made a hash of our manganese exports is now to try its hands at jute purchases and exports. Further the personnel who will be busily engaged in buying jute will be recruited God knows from what class. The technical efficiency of our administrative army is being post-poshed everywhere to which of course will be added one more round of hurrahs.

The private sector did a major disservice to jute trade during the Korean crisis—now the official sector is doing the same thing by supporting artificially price-levels and encouraging the development of substitutes. The foreigners are not likely to lose sight of the fact that our country by adopting a restrictive policy tries to earn more. The U.S.A. disposes of its surplus in foodgrains at prices below the world price-level; we do the contrary. That is what will happen precisely on a larger scale to the disadvantage of every Indian consumer and taxpayer if we give up the principles of economic internationalism.

The private sector in jute industry is lending its support today to such nationalist practices. Once again these narrow minded capitalists have failed to see beyond the tip of their noses. Since 1936, our jute industry has been adopting restrictive practices. Today over and above sealing of the looms, it is working short hours and has thus contributed directly to powerful competitors abroad. The result in the long run will be that the tax-payers will be making a contribution to the election fund of the ruling party.

The boiling fervour in the iron-trade is at a low point. At the height of the year when demand for rods and bars increases, there is no stockist willing to purchase even at falling prices. In some sections, the market prices have fallen by nearly Rs. 500 per ton. The five-inch billets, the controlled price of which is Rs. 476 per ton, are reported to have been sold in the open market at Rs. 440 per ton. The imported cost including freight and duty of many articles of prime quality is lower than the local cost. This is a piece of direct evidence that in the long run when our steel plants come into operation, the sale of the products to foreign countries will have to be subsidised.

The readers therefore are warned of the long trends because the public has been dreaming of the astronomical figures in the prices to be of stocks and shares. No doubt, this year both on astrological and economic grounds will unfold a picture of rising prices; but they must be prepared to see a reduction also in the retention price—this stage is now drawing near. The investors must clearly foresee a time that the industry which had been in the fore-front of offering a rise in wages at every turn, will now suffer the most in the coming future when a cut in the retention price will be made.

In the annual number, it was stated under this column, that the purchase of jute shares will be found profitable. When the price of raw jute was Rs. 27 some three to four months ago, the price of B. Twills was Rs. 97 yielding a profit of nearly Rs. 200 per ton to the mills. Today the price of raw jute is a little over Rs. 23 and the price of B. Twills is a little less than Rs. 96. And this margin of profit will remain throughout the year.

It was also stated that after a fall in December (and mark the dates of fall given under the stock-market section) prices will grind for some time and begin to rise. At the time of writing this, the news has come through that there was going to be no ceiling on urban incomes, this piece of news has already started the process of a rise in prices.

For the month of December, an absolute bearish note was sounded for jute markets—the readers could not have expected more. And mark also, that in astrology, it is not enough to study the planets and their aspects; one has to delve deep into reading

(Continued on page 335)

The Astrological Magazine EPHEMERIS

FOR MARCH 1959

All positions are true for 5-30 a.m. (I.S.T.)

Mar	Day of the Week	Sun ☉ Ravi			Moon ☽ Chandra			Mars ♂ Kuja		Mer. ☿ Budha		Jup. ♃ Guru		Venus ♀ Sukra		Saturn ♄ Sani		Rahu ☊ Rahu
		°	′	″	°	′	″	°	′	°	′	°	′	°	′	°	′	°	′
1	Sunday	317	49	32	213	7	8	46	43	330	22	219	40	343	47	253	31	173	6
2	Monday	318	49	45	227	15	18	47	13	332	10	219	43	345	1	253	35	173	3
3	Tuesday	319	49	56	241	12	45	47	42	333	56	219	46	346	15	253	39	173	0
4	Wednesday	320	50	6	254	58	41	48	12	335	41	219	49	347	29	253	43	172	57
5	Thursday	321	50	14	268	32	32	48	42	337	22	219	52	348	43	253	47	172	53
6	Friday	322	50	21	281	53	49	49	13	339	0	219	54	349	56	253	51	172	50
7	Saturday	323	50	26	295	2	2	49	43	340	33	219	57	351	10	253	55	172	47
8	Sunday	324	50	31	307	56	49	50	13	342	3	219	59	352	24	253	59	172	44
9	Monday	325	50	30	320	38	0	50	44	343	27	220	1	353	37	254	2	172	41
10	Tuesday	326	50	30	333	5	49	51	15	344	45	220	3	354	51	254	6	172	38
11	Wednesday	327	50	27	345	20	59	51	45	345	58	220	4	356	5	254	9	172	34
12	Thursday	328	50	23	357	25	33	52	16	347	4	220	6	357	18	254	13	172	31
13	Friday	329	50	17	9	21	18	52	47	348	3	220	7	358	31	254	16	172	28
14	Saturday	330	50	8	21	11	28	53	19	348	54	220	8	359	45	254	19	172	15
15	Sunday	331	49	57	32	59	34	53	50	349	38	220	9	0	58	254	23	172	22
16	Monday	332	49	44	44	50	22	54	21	350	13	220	9	2	11	254	26	172	18
17	Tuesday	333	49	30	56	48	1	54	53	350	40	220	10	3	25	254	29	172	15
18	Wednesday	334	49	12	68	57	29	55	25	350	59	220	10	4	38	254	32	172	12
19	Thursday	335	48	52	81	23	27	55	56	351	10	220	10	5	51	254	34	172	9
20	Friday	336	48	30	94	10	12	56	28	351	12	220	10	7	4	254	37	172	6
21	Saturday	337	48	6	107	20	35	57	0	351 R	6	220	10	8	17	254	40	172	3
22	Sunday	338	47	40	120	56	36	57	32	350	53	220 R	9	9	30	254	42	171	59
23	Monday	339	47	11	134	57	47	58	4	350	32	220	8	10	43	254	45	171	56
24	Tuesday	340	46	45	149	21	29	58	37	350	4	220	8	11	55	254	47	171	53
25	Wednesday	341	46	7	164	2	46	58	32	349	30	220	7	13	8	254	49	171	50
26	Thursday	342	45	33	178	54	49	59	41	348	51	220	5	14	21	254	51	171	47
27	Friday	343	44	56	193	49	52	60	14	348	7	220	4	15	33	254	53	171	44
28	Saturday	344	44	17	208	40	12	60	46	347	20	220	2	17	46	254	55	171	40
29	Sunday	345	43	37	223	19	15	61	19	346	31	220	1	17	58	254	57	171	37
30	Monday	346	42	54	237	42	8	61	52	345	40	219	59	19	11	254	59	171	34
31	Tuesday	347	42	10	251	45	58	62	25	344	49	219	56	20	23	255	1	171	31

AYANAMSA 21° 49′ 42.978″

Scanned by Parashurama Astrological Blog from Text Preserved by B. V. Raman's Work

A FEW SHOP-SOILED COPIES OF THE FOLLOWING BOOKS ARE AVAILABLE

	Rs. nP.		Rs. nP.
Astrology and Modern Thought	... 1 00	The Universe and the Heavens	... 3 00
Your Next Five Years—1953 to 1957	... 0 75	Ayurveda	... 0 75
		Annual Numbers of 1954 & 1956	... 2 50

No. V.P.P. Post Free. Send M.O. or I.P.O.

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS : : "Sri Rajeswari" : : BANGALORE-3

MARKET FORECASTS

(Continued from page 333)

what the degree positions reveal. I repeat therefore that Saturn's position in the first decanate of Capricorn, though in malefic aspect with Uranus will prevent a fall and mark its tenure as a constructive period for the stock-markets.

Astrological Section

This article will cover the month of the budget. The two lunations of February 23 and March 9 will reveal the trend for the month of March, while the former would at the same time disclose the secrets of Morarji-bhai.

The lunation of 23rd February falls across the axis of the 2nd and the 8th house, and the ruler of 2nd house is placed in the 8th house. Further Saturn, the ruler of the 8th is in the 6th well aspected by the ruler of 2nd and also with Neptune ruler of the 9th. But the Sun is mal-aspected with Mars, the ruler of 10th and 5th. Since the ruler of the 5th house is afflicted, the taxes on pleasures will be increased. You can take it for granted that excise duties on liquor, tobacco, cigarettes will be raised. The taxes on expenditure will be increased as well. Finally Neptune's placement in the 4th house is the warning to agri-cultural landlords to pack up. Since the luminaries are closely aspecting the various major planets involved, the conclusions arrived at will prove to be more to the point. There will be some rise in the estate duty as well and taxes on holding companies not directly engaged in productive enterprises. I therefore confidently expect that the budget will prove in long run to be bullish but for a week after the budget the prices will have a little shake out.

The lunation of 9-3-1959 will give a signal for a quick march forward on the stock markets, because Saturn the ruler or part ruler of 5th house is placed in the same house in good aspect with both Neptune and Pluto. The ruler of 5th and 8th well placed in the lunation immediately after the budget is a good sign for the in-vestors.

The period between 1st and 9th March is a period of uncertainty. It is such a period as when on the expectation of good news, there has transpired an overbrought position, which actually results in liquidation on receipt of the actual good news.

The dates for a noticeable rise are 9, 10, 12, 21, 22, 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29.

There is however one warning. Some time in the last week of March, some news of troubles between the great powers will percolate which can make the market move in an erratic fashion, but trend will be bullish.

Commodities:—The important vedhas are between Mercury and Rahu, Mars and Kethu, Sun and Rahu, Mercury and Saturn and once again between Saturn and Rahu. Guru passes through Anuradha, Saturn through Mula leaving it on the 24th and entering Purvashadha and Kethu through Revati. The passages of other planets are not mentioned because the effects of vedhas this month will subordinate the effects of the minor planets' stay in certain nakshatras.

Cotton:—The prices will continue to sag. The fall will be more marked between 18th and 24th. From the 25th onwards, there will be both-sided movements but on balance the prices will remain stable.

Jute:—Upto the 16th, prices will fall. Thereafter, adverse political news on the international sphere will give a lift to the prices; but at the same time, Sun's afflicting of Saturn will not allow a big rise.

Foodgrains:—The price will fall—particularly rice prices.

During the first three weeks, the fall will be prominent.

Sugar and Molasses:—Please follow the same trend as for food prices.

Kariana Goods:—The same remarks remain good.

Silver and Gold:—The basic trend is bullish but between 18th and 24th will witness a good reaction.

Oil, Oilseeds and Cocoanut:—The prices will move within a very narrow range except between 16th and 26th when a fall is indicated.

BY MANUBHAI P. SHUKLA, Esq.
Shuklavas, P.O. Patdi,
Dt. Ahmedabad.

On 25-3-1959 Tuesday an important Lunar eclipse takes place in Hasta-Virgo—the ruling sign of India, after midnight at 1-32 a.m. (I.S.T.). The results of such a lunar eclipse according to ancient texts are:—

तेजोयुनाश्च वणिजो रथिकुंजराश्च
पण्यानि शिल्पि तुष धान्य राजाधिरोह्याः ।
चौराश्च शास्त्र कुशलाः परिपीडिताः स्युः
हस्ते यदा ग्रहणमिन्दुनयोस्तदानीम् ॥

"Chivalrous persons, commercial magnates, commanders-in-chief of armies, commodities, grass, lower types of pulses, viz., moonga, matha, urad, etc., elephant riders, outlaws, thieves and those well-versed in Sastras will suffer".

The effects of this lunar eclipse wi be experienced more severly by the Martian transit over this eclipse point during September 1959.

The masses in general become more tamasic in nature, and consumption of foodstuffs will be increasing day in and day out. Rahu in Virgo becomes more powerful, it being its own house. Brahmins, warrior-tribes and cows will pass through agonied times and grain markets will see higher rates for six months. Dancers, songsters, cinema actors and actresses, the best amongst the fair sex, arms and ammunition makers, kshatriyas, ascetics, pious and religious personalities, forest dwellers in Bengal, Austria, Malwa, territories around the banks of the river Narmada will pass through distressed times till September 1959. Gram and rice markets would go higher, during August and September.

वायोर्गणे कोऽपि यदोपसर्ग भवेत्सहानीं
पवनोऽतिचंडः ।
सित्ताग्रहो वीरहतोरणानां लोके नृपे
चापि महामधर्मः ॥

Hasta belongs to airy group of constellations; hence there will be heavy cyclones, gusts of wind passing at high speed, military classes will be much perturbed, the rulers and the ruled will act in an unjust manner and experience agonies of malefic times. (This means that black markets and curruption would thrive).

Other effects of the eclipse are scarcity of rains in southern regions and famine conditions, the price-levels of urad, moonga, matha, black coloured grains, iron, manganese, ore, coke and coal, krishnagaru, kasturi and black coloured articles going up.

New Moon affecting March 1959 occurs on 9-3-1959 Monday in Purva-bhadrapada aspected by Saturn. Lunar Phalguna begins on Tuesday and the New Moon appearance takes place on the same day in Uttara-bhadrapada aspected by Jupiter. Pratipada, Ashtami and Purnima fall on Tuesdays. Mars in Taurus and Sun in Pisces are under favourable aspect from Jupiter. Therefore Government actions pertaining to foodgrains con-trol will be effective and prices will be under good check. In fact, this will be due to favourable crop posi-tions and good estimates. The crops of the Vasant Ritu (Spring) will be favourable as Venus and Mars are posited in each other's signs. Mars is the ruler of lunar Phalguna and he is aspected by Jupiter. Retrogression of Mercury in Pisces and Jupiter in Scorpio, further lend helping hands to the administrator's actions pertaining to foodgrains. On the whole, March 1959 will be bearish. Almost all commodities will have easy supply positions except some export items. It is advisable to stock in those commodities which are available in markets now, viz,, grain, barley, wheat, sarsoo, linseed, tilli, groundnut, cottonseeds, castorseeds, moonga, matha, urad, rice, ghee, coconut oil.

Scanned by eGangotri Digitized by eGangotri To Preserve Old Books for Knowledge Network

From April 1959 beginning, the markets will begin to yawn up. The general day to day trend for March 1959 will be as under except for the commodity for which fluctuations are given in their individual columns.

Datewise fluctuations for March 1959 :—

1st and 2nd (10 a.m.) bearish ; 2nd (10 a.m.) to 9th (5 p.m.) bullish ; 9th (5 p.m.) to 12th (9 a.m.) bearish ; 12th (9 a.m.) to 15th (3 a.m.) bullish ; 15th (3 a.m.) to 17th (8 p.m.) bearish ; 17th (8 p.m.) to 18th (5 p.m.) reactionary rise ; 18th (5 p.m.) to 21st (11–30 p.m.) bearish ; 21st (11–30 p.m.) to 24th (11–30 p.m.) bearish with reactions ; 24th (11–30 p.m.) to 26th (10 a.m.) buying time ; change of trend, bearish to bullish ; 26th (10 a.m.) to 29th (0 a.m.) buying period ; 29th (0 a.m.) to 30th (4–30 p.m) rise ; 30th (4–30 p.m.) to 3 (11 p.m.) reactions, steady.

Low levels of the month will be touched on 24th and 26th during this month. It is a bearish month for all markets, unless specified in the individual columns.

New York (Stocks and Shares) :— Mars the ruler of the ascending sign transits through 7th house in opposition to Jupiter transitting through Scorpio and is in square aspect to the New Moon. Further Mars is in sextile aspect to Herschel. This means U.S.A.'s diplomatic relations with Britain on the Middle East question will be the cause to uplift the New York stocks and shares levels. Saturn in the 2nd—the house of finance—is getting separated from Mercury—the planet ruling India. The latter planet comes in trine with Herschel. This will enable the U.S.A. Senate to grant a still big 3rd loan to India to purchase her requirements for proceeding with her 2nd Five Year Plan. These causes put together will serve as a tonic to uplift N.Y.S.E. prices. Good advances will be made during the following periods :—9–11 : 20–22 : and 28–30.

London Stocks :—Mars transits through 10th house and is in trine aspect with Rahu in the 2nd house. Saturn is transitting through the 5th aspecting Rahu, but. this is already under the sadastaka aspect from Mars in accidentally dignified position. It is advisable to clear out of the bullish side before Mars enters Gemini on 29–3–1959. The opposition of Mars and Saturn is anticipated to bring a pretty good fall in British stocks and shares on account of Britain's failure in manipulating her diplomatic missions in the Middle East. It is a bullish month for this section. Good upward swing will be noticed during periods mentioned in the New York Stocks Sections.

Indian Stocks.—(Bombay and Calcutta):—March 1959 opens with a bearish attitude, chiefly due to uncertainities as regards the progress of the 2nd Five Year Plan and nationalisation of some industrial and agricultural concerns. Mars and Jupiter in opposition from fixed signs as a matter of fact gives constructive measures; under the circumstances, it is adviseable to remain a buyer in good lapses, as the Vedha from Saturn to Rahu is expected to uplift the prices of steels and metals of lower types. Rahu and Saturn are conjoined in the same Cancer Navamsa aspecting Jupiter in Virgo Navamsa till lunar eclipse on 19th. With ups and downs the shares prices are expected to remain bullish till this date. It is essential to watch the trend here, as some good fall or further sudden rise is possible on account of martian transit through the last Navamsa and degrees of Taurus, the house of speculation for this section. My anticipations are for a sudden critical stage between 18th and 28th.

Madras Stocks market will be very nervy as Mars is separating from the sextile aspect of Herschel and joining a square aspect with the Sun. Some Governmental steps are likely to create a scare in a bullish trend market and a plunge into declining date is expected. Nationalisation of tea, coffee and plantation industries are likely.

Textile shares will have separate trends for individual scripts as this is the season of declaring the dividends and annual interests on the total outlay of the shareholders. Saturn's transit through 9th house, do indicate success for the Government in curbing power to announce more dividends to shareholders. Foreign exports are most likely to remain on the improving side on account of Jupiterian transit through the 7th house, at some reduced rates. It is anticipated that textile industrial magnates will choose to reduce rates of export items to clear stocks and encourage export.

Cotton Market (Bombay Jarilla).—Jarilla March 1959 will come to an end and new option must have either started during the last days of February or beginning of this month. Those who have concern in March 1959 option have to remain careful from 24–3–59 when Saturn–Rahu get separated from Cancer Navamsa ; if the cotton rates have advanced to a pretty fair scale, it is profitable to clear out from bullish side. Some good fall is anticipated between 25th March and 3rd April. Bearish periods are :— 2nd to 7th, 15th to 18th, 7th to 10th. In the primary stage of the month, local textile concerns are anticipated to purchase cotton and hence prices of good staple types would improve. If new option opens high rated, it is advisable to sell in higher levels between 24th and 29th and keep sales pending to be cleared during the first week of the following month. It is a very important month for this section as Government will announce import of foreign cotton and export of Indian cotton between 17th and 22nd and 29th and 3rd proximo. Between 5th and 7th incomes of the new crop will be at their best.

Seeds Section.— Groundnuts.—New option must have been started during the preceding month. During this month, there will be good purchases from crushers, millers and factory owners—for oilcakes and vegetable productions. In every type of seeds, there will be pretty good chances to earn, as India Government will be bent upon to export seeds, oils and oilcakes as best as posible to earn foreign currency exchange. Good aspects of minor planets and luminaries with Neptune will be periods of such export possibilities. Some good spurts are possible between 3rd and 5th ; 8th-9th ; 12th-14th ; 22nd-25th ; and 28th-31st.

Castor Seeds.—Jupiter's entry into Virgo Navamsa on 9-2-59 has most do with the fluctuations in the prices of this commodity. There are possibilties of U. S. A's purchase of castor oil from India. The first fortnight is bullish. Watch the market trend between 14th and 19th. Bullishness with reactions is anticipated till the end of the month. But in case the income of stocks is on the increase, care and caution should be applied, before a plunge for the upward swing. It is practically a bullish month on the whole. Major bullish periods are as given in groundnuts.

Cotton Seeds.—Oil cakes of this section will be greatly in demand and the bullish tone is likely to be maintained with occasional declines for profit taking. Buyers in the lowered rated reactions would be in good position as export of oilcakes will bring purchases from the millers and vegetable product-factory owners. Between 26th and end of the month, heavy fluctuations are expected. Second week of March 1959 offers easy conditions, when it is advisable to enter the market on bullish side. Major bullish periods are as given in groundnuts column.

CC-0. Mumukshu Bhawan Varanasi Collection. Digitized by eGangotri

Cocoanuts and Cocoanut Oil:–Imports from mofussil countries are likely to be greatly lessened on account of either increase in sea freight or increase in export-import tariffs. In India the crop will be below expectation. Hence, importers will be the chief buyers, in addition to those dealing with vegetable products and soap-manufacturers. It is a bullish month with occasional declines caused by profit-taking business between 18th to 28th; major bullish periods are as given in the groundnuts section.

Linseeds:—This section will rule very steady and maintain its bullishness till 10th: after which some good decline is possible for a week till 6th, and thereafter will recover prices till end of the month. Good export business is likely to be registered during this and following month.

Sarsoo Seeds and its Oil:—Good crops are anticipated, but, the new stocks are likely to be consumed soon, on account of strength of other seeds markets. Ist to 24th is a bullish period and thereafter decline is anticipated.

Jute Markets:—Very good crops are expected in both Bengal regions. Pak-area will sell at reduced rates, which would affect morale of Indian jute markets as well. Heavy fluctuations inclined bearishness are possible between 15th and 28th. The recoveries will follow thereafter.

Bullions (Bombay).—Rahu – Saturn remaining in Cancer Navamsa is a bullish factor for silver market. While retrogression (from 19th) of Jupiter and Mercury at the same time is another bullish factor for silver and gold as well. There will be some fall between 3rd and 10th and 23rd and 28th. But it is advisable o pick up in good dips. Strong bullish sentiment will prevail between 14th to 23rd. It would be no wonder if new levels are touched during this period. Oils and bullions would remain very active during this and following month.

Grains Markets.–The Governmental actions and incomes of new crops will keep wheat, barley, gram and pulses markets under the thumbs of bearishness. The retrogression of two benefics Mercury and Jupiter—is a factor for bearish or easy supply position. The arrivals of new foodgrains would be heavier in northern Indian rural areas between 5th and 20th. The month is bearish one for foodgrains. The stockists should purchase in the ending days of this month for future good rises after four months. Unless precautionary measures are taken to protect the foodgrain store-houses and godowns, there are planetary indications to create fire havocs in such places by the inimical elements of the Congress party and interested parties in the grain markets trading with intention to create chaos in the country (Mars square Rahu square Saturn opposition Mars) during following three to four months.

Sugar and Jaggery:—Incomes are likely to be delayed in southern India due to late start of crushing. The north Indian markets would rule strong due to heavy purchases from Rajputana, Gujrat and eastern regions of India. Prices would rule strong between 20th and 10th proximo. The Government would allow larger quota of sugar to be exported during this month nearby 6th, 17th or 22nd March 1959 and those elements who get information secretly would remain buyers in advance of these periods and take profits soon after the Government announcements. The consumers should buy the stocks for their future rise in the bearish periods.

Black Pepper:—The imports will be very limited and some good higher rates will be registered between 10th and 24th March 1959. The prices will rule steady thereafter.

Kiranas:—Dhania, mithi, rai, jira turmeric, onions, garlic, chillies would rule steady to strong position. All incomes would be purchased by the industrial area merchants and shippers, as exporters would be having very good profits.

Chemicals:—Alcohols, soda of every type, sulphur preparations would rule very steady to bullish market positions. Black, yellow and white colours and their counterparts would have animated prices. Local industrial concerns would have flourishing times. Salt prices will rule weak on account of good products; but, transport difficulties would create bottlenecks in some areas. So the prices will depend on the position of supply and demand.

Dried Fruits.—(New Delhi). Transit of Mars through Rohini and Mrigasirsa, presages inadequate supplies and hence the prices would rule strong during the first fortnight of March 1959 and thereafter will remain inactive.

Leather and Skin.—Buffalo and cow skin markets would rule very steady and strong. While skins of wild animals would remain easy priced. Leather market would rule strong and highest rates of the month will be touched between 10th and 20th.

Mercury.—The month opens with a bullish tone and with actions and reactions would register highest points between 15th to 20th. After this date, there will be a gradual fall off from highest levels.

Rubber Markets.—It is evidently a bullish month, as Jupiter will be trining Sun during this and coming month. But one has to take into consideration administrative controls over import and export problems. The output would be estimated now below expectation and foreign demand would appear as the month progresses. Malaya and Indonesian rubber stocks will be purchased by U.S.A. and China in a competitive market prices. Fire episodes are most to be threatened during this month, to lessen the output and raise market prices.

Scanned by CamScanner Digitized by eGangotri and Sarayu Trust. Funding by MoE-IKS Reserve Dr B V Ramans Work

BY A. P. SATHE
Dr. Deshmukh Building,
Dr. Deshmuksh Lane, Bombay-4

At the time of writing this article, the Congress (A.I.C.C.) session at Nagpur continues and all eyes are set on its resolution as the ruling party people are anxious to see the decisions that are being taken. On the fears that some definite line of action will be decided so as to reach the advertised socialistic pattern of society and to satisfy the rank and file of the congress members all sections of the forward and ready markets, specially stocks were subdued at the beginning of the current month. However these fears seem to have vanished by themselves before the Session is over and markets as indicated by planetary forces are staging a recovery. Since this article has to deal with the indications available for March 1959 I do not wish to discuss here about the outcome, etc., of the ruling party's decisions.

By the beginning of March 1959 Government's policy on economic matters, budgetory provisions for various planned projects and new taxation measures must be known to the public. Planetary indications do not suggest any drastic or sudden change in the policies so far announced. I myself disregard any possibility of any drastic fall in prices either of commodities or of stocks; though initial reaction of the new taxation measures is bound to create some selling pressure.

Solar Ingress Charts of 12th February and 14th March 1959

Coming to Solar Ingress chart of 12th February, readers are aware that I had hinted that towards the ending part of the Aquarius Sankranti commodity prices will go down. If the planetary positions are studied as at the beginning of March 1959 in relation to the chart already provided for in the last report this view is still strengthened and I am of the opinion that during the first half of this month commodity prices will remain subdued and would lose ground to a small extent at least. The positions of planets in the Pisces Ingress chart and their inter-relations indicate and do favour a rising tendency, but I cannot forget the fact that majority of the planets transit signs favouring bearishness. Specially Meena transit of planets is never taken to indicate rise and it will be my advice to sell in the occasional spurts that would be witnessed during the second half of the month, this relates to commodities in general.

New Moon Charts of 7th February and 9th March 1959:

If indications for the first 9 days are judged from the previous chart, it would be observed that there is no new factor that either helps rise or fall. Market is likely to maintain a steady tone, but between 3rd evening and 7th March one small rise in prices would be witnessed and on other days market will be dull or somewhat bearish. The New Moon chart of 9th March 1959 is also lacking strength. Moon the Lagna lord in 8th shows inherent weakness though other planetary positions are quite favourable. Amavasya falling in the 8th house, is surely inharmonius and indicates bearishness. At the beginning of this period therefore one should expect a crude jerk to the Stock Markets and between 8th and 10th it is likely that the market will be unnerved by factors which I cannot discuss here. Thereafter again good recovery is indicated too. In fact planetary positions are such that no definite straight line could be marked for the period from 9th till end of March, abrupt changes, sudden spurts and fall will be witnessed during the whole period and traders should do business by applying options, or by limiting losses.

Commodities

Cotton and Allied products: Mars the first ruler for Indian Cotton still transits Taurus, Nakshtras transitted being Rohini and Mrigasira. He receives vedha from Mercury for a short period between 16th and 20th and again from Sun on the last day of the month. The transit indicates higher levels and it may be stated that this factor would help maintaining steady conditions. Venus all along her passage from Uttarabhadrapada and Ravati remains under vedha from Rahu and Saturn and afflicted by Ketu. During the latter half transit from Ashwini cannot be said to be bearish and would be a helping factor for maintenance of steady levels. Mercury during the period upto 20th is direct but then gets retrograde and sets on the 22nd. This planet also during the period 3rd to 27th remains under vedha by Rahu and Saturn. While Rahu's vedha is inharmonious, vedha by Saturn are likely to help the rise in prices. It could be summarised therefore that this section will have a good set-back upto 15th and thereafter will have two—sided activities and hovering in a narrow margin. Bombay is the main centre of this market. March 1959 contract would be coming to a close. Looking to the Vaida horoscope with entry of Sun into Pisces, this chart also gets weak and it would be well advised if bulls get out of the market by about 12th to 14th. 1st mandi; 2nd to 5th teji; 6th to 11th mandi; 12th to 19th teji; 20th to 25th mandi; 26th to 28th teji; 28th evening to 30th mandi; 31st teji.

Oils and Oil Seeds: Saturn in Moola does not denote rise. But Navamsa positions of Saturn, Rahu and Mercury remaining under vedhas of Saturn should keep this section, specially Castorseeds in demand and contrary to the indications available in the Solar Ingrass chart, this section is likely to stage advance in prices; 1st to 11th bearish; 12th to 27th rise; 28th till end dull. Specially castors, will be strong, other sections being weak or dull.

Metals and Bullions: Excepting martian transit, Solar and Jupiter transits are bearish. Jupiter getting retrograde on 19th adds to his strength and I expect a good jerk in bullion values. Silver will witness a good jerk between 14th and 16th. 1st mandi, 2nd to 5th teji, 6th to 9th dull; 10th to 16th mandi, specially silver; 17th to 31st bothways narrow movements.

Sugar and Gud: Uttarabhadrapada transit of Venus, Mercury and Sun under Vedha of Rahu will keep this section particularly weak and one can see a sagging tendency throughout the month.

Stocks and Shares: Indications available in the New Moon chart do not show any definite trend. Navamsa positions of major planets—Saturn and Rahu favour rise and might be during the period 10th and 18th one can expect abnormal rise in stock-values. 1st to 10th mandi; 11th to 18th good rise; 19th to 23rd mandi; 24th steady; 23rd to 28th again mandi; and 29th till end steady.

Scanned by www.sriramkrishnaparamahamsa.org Please like for more Books Work

GRAHA AND BHAVA BALAS (SIXTH EDITION)

A Unique Treatise for measuring the Strengths of Planets and Houses numerically

By B. V. RAMAN

An entirely new book on Mathematical Astrology. The first real effort to present the complicated methods of assigning planetary and house strengths in a popular and easy style. Suitable for even laymen, it is just what enquirers have long been seeking containing as it does everything necessary for a quick and accurate study of astrological mathematics so very essential for correct predictions. Experts and students will welcome this new publication.

Rs. 3–75 or Sh. 7/6 :: Postage Extra

Order your Copy at once. Less 12½% to Subscribers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE.

FOR MARCH 1959

By MIHIRA

"THE Moon on account of the proximity to Earth, her reflection of the solar light and the swiftness of her motion is considered to be the most powerful significator in Astrology. It is therefore of the utmost importance that the Moon be free from affliction and in close aspect to either one of the Fortunes or the Sun or the planet ruling the business on hand when election of an opportune moment of the commencement of such business is desired". —Ptolemy.

"At the time of digging a well, no planet should be found in the eighth house. Lagna should be preferably Taurus, Cancer, Capricornus, Aquarius or Pisces. Day should be wednesday, Thursday or Friday and asterism Rohini, Pushya, Mrigasira, Aslesha, Makha, Hasta, Anuradha, Sravana, Satabhishak or Revati.

—Kalavidhanan.

The soil should be tilled on days ruled by benefic planets. Generally the sign Leo, or the sign occupied by the Sun or the constellation governed by him is favoured. The benefic stars are Rohini, Punarvasu, Pushya, Uttara, Hasta, Anuradha Moola, Uttarashada and Uttarabhadrapada.

—B. V. Raman.

WEATHER

Weather conditions mostly dry.

COMMODITIES

Gold.—First half general rise, steady at about the middle, later uncertain trends will manifest.

Silver.—Trends generally to lower levels during first half, then later good rise.

DAILY GUIDE

1. Marana Yogam throughout, no activities recommended.

2. L.D. unfavourable for any kind of work. Stick to routine.

3. L.D. not good throughout day. Yogam bad till 8-30 a.m.; better keep to routine matters; but the day is traditionally recommended for planting creepers, which should be done after 8-30 a.m.

4. Asterism good only for purchase of cattle.

5. A good day for all kinds of agricultural beginnings.

6. Marana Yogam day and night; to be avoided for all kinds of agricultural activities and new beginnings.

7. A fairly good day but to be avoided for ploughing, planting, etc., after 4-20 p.m. as Yogini turns towards sky.

8. Yogini towards sky and earth throughout day and night; hence unfitted for ploughing, planting, manuring, etc.; but weeding, levelling, fencing, etc., routine work can be done.

9. Yogini towards earth till 5 p.m.; activities like ploughing, planting, etc., to be done only thereafter.

10. Marana Yogam till 8-55 a.m.; thereafter good for all kinds of ordinary work, most suitable being manuring; for best effect, use organic manure.

11. Till 10-50 a.m. one of the best days in the month for all kinds of work; thereafter Marana Yogam; avoid all new beginnings thereafter; but work begun previously can be continued.

12. One of the best alround good days in the whole month for all kinds of work, and also purchase of cattle.

13. An ordinary day favourable for all kinds of agricultural work.

14. Asterism throughout day is not good for any new beginnings.

15. Both lunar date and asterism not propitious for new works.

16. A very good day in which all kinds of agricultural work can be begun and continued. For best effect, use farm yard manure.

17. Day, L.D. both not good; Keep to routine works.

18. L.D. continues bad. Yogini too towards sky; avoid planting, ploughing, etc.

19. Yogini towards sky or earth whole day and night; avoid ploughing planting, etc.

20. Marana Yogam throughout day and night; avoid all new beginnings.

21. Marana Yogam throughout day and part of the night; avoid all new beginnings.

22. Everything same as above.

23. L.D. not favourable throughout. Keep to routine works. Not favourable for new beginnings.

24. Good for harvesting, planting, storing grain, defraying paddy, etc.

25. Marana Yogam till midnight; hence whole day unfit for any new beginnings; routine matters alone to be attended to.

26. One of the best days in the whole month for all purposes in general—also for buying grain, cattle digging wells, etc.

27. Same as above for all purposes.

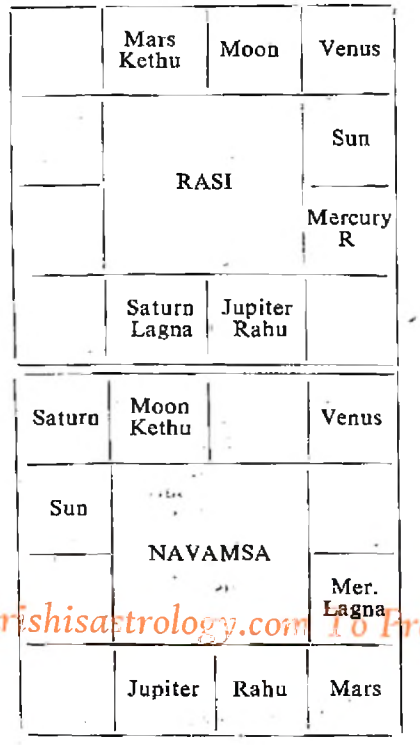
28. Yogini towards sky or earth whole day and night; to be avoided for ploughing, planting, manuring, etc., but good for purchase of grain and cattle.

29. Whole day and night ruled by Marana Yogam; avoid all new beginnings.

30. Asterism good only for purchase of cattle and digging wells, etc.

31. Till 10-30 a.m. favourable ordinarily for all purposes. Specially good for manuring. For best effect, use combination of minerals and organic manures.

Scanned by CamScanner



OBSERVATIONS ON HORARY ASTROLOGY

(Continued from page 298)

According to standard Indian astrological treatises, in such queries if Lagna is occupied by a malefic it indicates success to the querent. The occupation of Lagna by a benefic does not do any harm but at the same time it does not promise success. But in case of aspects, the aspect of a malefic planet on Lagna is always bad, whereas the aspect of a benefic planet assures success. Similarly with regard to the 7th house. Many people who have judged query charts concerning court cases, competitive examinations, etc., are disappointed to see their predictions going off the mark. It is because of this peculiar rule. When a malefic occupies Lagna, they say it is destructive to the querent and vice-versa.

To take an example: The querent was a film distributor and he had been promised by a producer the right of distribution of a popular release. Accordingly the distributor made arrangements for the distribution of the concerned film which his producer had assured him. But to the surprise of the distributor, the producer never cared to carry out his promise and finally on account of the losses suffered by the distributor, through his not getting the right to distribute the promised film, a case was filed. The case was defended by well-known lawyers on both sides and the distributor thought that the case would definitely go against him. Since he had sufficient belief in Astrology and since he was also much perturbed about the outcome of his case, he put a query on 9th August 1958 at 1–11 p.m. (I.S.T.), at Bangalore. Ayanamsha 21° 49'.

Lagna is Scorpio, a reptile sign with its lord Mars in 6th with Kethu aspected by Jupiter lord of the 2nd and 5th. This indicates the involvement of the querent in a court case with regard to false (Mars conjunct Kethu) promises resulting in loss of finance (Jupiter lord of 2nd in 12 conj- Rahu) Mars as lord of 6th aspecting the lord of finance and also natural Dhanakaraka Jupiter indicates that the loss was considerable.

Now the opponent is represented by Taurus (a sign ruled by Venus—the planet controlling the film industry). Its lord Venus is in 2nd from 7th powerfully aspected by Jupiter lord of 2nd and 5th from Lagna indicating that the producer did derive considerable profit by deceiving the querent (distributor). But the presence of the ruler of the mind Moon (exalted) in 7th (representing the mind and person of the producer) aspected by Saturn clearly indicates that though at first he managed to get a huge profit by deceiving the querent, his judgment of the situation was erroneous and that he would be the loser. The exaltation of the Moon aspected by Saturn as far as the 7th house (producer) is concerned only points that he was hasty and over-confident in depriving the querent of his rights with regard to the concerned film. As otherwise Lagnadhipathi of the producer Venus quite unafflicted from the 7th and also as he is aspected by Jupiter, it indicates that by nature the producer was an honourable gentleman. The same situation of Venus in 2nd shows that the producer would not suffer seriously even if the judgment were to go against him.

Now about the outcome of the case: Lagna is occupied by Saturn a malefic aspected by exalted Moon. But here it should also be noted that the Moon is a malefic as he is decreasing and his exaltation gives him only more malefic powers as far as the querent is concerned. But Lagna is equally powerfully occupied by a strong malefic Saturn. Hence both the 1st and 7th houses are more or less equal in strength. So also Lagna lord as Mars is in his own sign and Venus is in a friendly sign aspected by a benefic, Jupiter. So this only indicates that neither of the two parties would be affected by the judgment and the powerful situation of Mars as Lagna lord in his own house as compared to that of Venus in a friendly sign, gives the querent a slightly upper hand. On the basis of these combinations, it was told to the querent that neither the querent nor his opponent would suffer from the judgment and both would be benefited. Accordingly, the Judge in his judgment gave them some time within which to settle their disputes between themselves. Accordingly the querent and the

(Continued on page 344)

Scanned by www.sarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

FOR MARCH 1959

BY MIHIRA

"TO stop start in any research that bids fair to widen the gates of knowledge, to recoil from fear of difficulty or adverse criticism is to bring reproach upon Science". Sir W. Crooks.

Man has harnessed some of the most potent forces of nature and has used them to his service but for some as yet unknown reason he perfers to remain in ignorance of the laws which relate him to his greater cosmical environment. We have imagined that by controlling these natural forces, we have asserted the mastery of destiny. The heavens from out of the immeasurable depths of space are the silent witnesses of our folly and arrogance. We are fated to the extent that we are ignorant of these laws and culpable to the degree that we know". —Sepharial.

DAILY GUIDE

1. Marana Yogam rules day and night; avoid all journeys especially by air and towards west.

3. Marana Yogam till 8-30 a.m; avoid journeys till then, especially towards north.

4. Marana Yogam till 7-20 a.m; avoid journeys till then, especially towards north.

6. Marana Yogam whole day and nearly whole of night: avoid air journeys towards west.

7. Yogini towards sky after 4-20 p.m.; avoid journeys by air thereafter especially towards east.

8. Yogini towards sky or earth whole day and night; avoid air journeys towards west.

9. Yogini towards earth till 4-55 p.m.; avoid air journeys till then, especially towards east.

10. Marana Yogam till 8-55 a.m.; avoid journeys till then, especially towards north.

17. Marana Yogam after 0-50 a.m. (night); avoid journeys after that specially towards north.

18. Yogini towards sky after 6-15 a.m.; avoid air journeys afterwards, especialy towards north.

19. Yogini towards sky or earth whole day and night; avoid air journeys especially towards south.

20. Marana Yogam day and night; avoid all journeys especially towards west.

21. Marana Yogam till 4-0 a.m. (night); journeys only thereafter.

22. Marana Yogam till 3-35 a.m. (night); no journeys till then especially towards west.

25. Marana Yogam till about midnight; journeys only thereafter.

27. Yogini towards sky after 7-25 p.m.; avoid night journeys by air especially towards west.

28. Yogini towards sky or earth whole day and night; avoid journeys by air especialy towards east.

29. Maran Yogam throughout day and night; avoid all journeys especially towards west.

Scanned by Vedic Astrology Institute. Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

Research in Astrology

The Editor of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE will be glad to receive birth particulars of persons suffering or having suffered from chronic diseases, misfortunes pertaining to family life, loss of children, loss of political power, social status, etc. Persons who are very rich, who are extremely poor, who occupy high positions, who have suffered from incarcerations (political or otherwise) will also do well to send their birth particulars (time, place and date) giving dates of such important happenings and also enclosing their photographs and palm impressions.

These horoscopes will be made use of by our Research Department for purposes of astrological investigation. They will be treated confidentially and illustrated for demonstrating typical astrological principles. Readers should note that making predictions is beyond the scope of this section. Those who wish to submit their horoscopes should fill in the details called for above in a questionnaire which will be supplied free on request to

THE EDITOR,

THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

"SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE-3

MARCH 1959

BY MIHIRA

[The following forecasts based on Janma Rasi are general and as such those having favourable aspects according to present Dasa and Bhukthi, will have favourable results from the indications made below; while those having adverse aspects according to current directions will experience these predictions to a less proportion. The predictions given below are based not upon conjecture, but upon a clear interpretation of the movements or transits of planets. If you do not know your Janma Rasi write to Mihira, C/o THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.—Ed., A.M.].

MAJOR TRANSITS.—Sun transits Aquarius till 13th, then enters Pisces. Venus remains in Pisces till 14th, then passes on to Aries. Mars remains in Taurus till 26th, then enters Gemini. Mercury is in Pisces throughout. Jupiter and Saturn continue in Scorpio and Sagittarius respectively. Rahu and Kethu are in Virgo and Pisces respectively.

1. Mesha (Aries).—Mars in 2nd and 3rd; Rahu in 6th; Jupiter in 8th; Saturn in 9th; Sun in 11th and 12th; Mercury and Kethu in 12th; and Venus in 12th and 1st.

General.—Venus is good throughout the month, Sun for the first half and Mars for the last few days. This sums up all the favourable transit influences for the month. But when it is remembered that Venus is throughout under check, there is not much that is left. Saturn however is under check for the entire month and Mercury for the first half, Mars and Jupiter being evil and unchecked throughout. This means that evil elements have upperhand but the first half will be less troublesome. Sorrows and anxieties, quarrels, disgrace, losses, troubles from rivals and enemies, misunderstandings, fear of humiliation, wearisome journeys with likelihood of accidents, failure in enterprises, are the likely evil results more especially for the second half. Of the three asterisms of the sign, those born under Krittika will suffer least from the evil rays of the transitting planets, next come those born under Bharani and probably those born under Aswini will have to bear the brunt of the transit influences during the second half.

Health and Domestic.—Though the evil transits are very many, they do not affect the health directly. Bilious and windy complaints may be present off and on. But the domestic sphere will not escape the evil effects. There will be quarrels and misunderstandings, even estrangement with those near and dear to you either inside or outside the domestic circle. Sorrows from death of relatives or friends are not unlikely. The liability to accidents during journeys should not be overlooked and journeys in which some risk is involved, should be avoided as far as possible.

Finance and Speculation.—During the first half, both good and bad influences are present but the second half cannot be said to be at all favourable and losses from various causes may arise. It may come through rash and reckless enterprises, or through deceit and confidence tricks and ill-luck may dog your footsteps everywhere. But this does not preclude the possibility of some unexpected gains through exploiting original ideas, inventions and the like and also benefits through even strangers. Speculative activities however are completely ruled out in any form.

Real Property. Services, Profession, etc.—This would certainly prove to be a difficult month for landlords and landholders. Still something or other may turn up so that their sufferings may not be as great as may have been apprehended at first. In most respects, the second half would prove really bad. Disputes with tenants, legal actions, heavy expenses, worries and anxieties, unsatisfactory yield, etc., would all contribute to make this month unhappy and unprofitable for them. Therefore, landlords and landholdrs should be careful in whatever they do during the month, especially during the latter half. The services too cannot but be affected adversely by the influences. But the first half will be exempt. During the second half, displeasure from Government, from superiors in office, troubles and disgrace through the activity of rivals and enemies and other setbacks may occur. The same will be more or less the case with the profession and business. Some success and prosperity will attend them during the first half but the same levels will not be maintained and obstacles, even losses may be the case thereafter.

For Women.—Contrary to what may be inferred from the foregoing, the first week of the month will prove quite favourable to the interests of women as such so far as social activities are concerned, but at the same time they will have to be on the guard and have a tight control over their emotions as there is a likelihood of dangerous attachments and entanglements. Of course, as the month advances, conditions become only worse and it will be better to refrain from all kinds of activities, social or otherwise and confine oneself to routine.

Fortunate Dates.—Personal and domestic affairs—2, 4, 6, 21, 26; money dealings and transactions—1, 2, 6, 21, 26; journeys (short)—2, 6, 10, 17; real property matters—1, 2, 4, 8, 15, 21, 25: children's affairs and prospects, speculations, excursions, love affairs, etc.—8, 10, 23; service affairs and prospects—2, 4, 6, 21, 26; partnerships, dealings with opposite sex in general—1, 2, 6, 21, 26; insurance affairs, matters connected with estate of deceased—2, 4, 6, 21, 26; journeys (long) 6, 10, 23; professional and business enterprises—13, 21, 22.

Critical Dates.—Personal and domestic affairs—1, 9, 13, 16, 23, 26, 29, 30; money dealings and transactions—7, 22, 26, 31; journeys (short)—4, 9, 13, 30, 31 (long) 3, 8; real property matters—1, 3, 4, 6, 9, 10, 11, 13, 16, 18, 20; children's prospects affairs and speculation, excursions, love affairs—2, 9, 12, 17, 28, 31; service affairs and prospects—1, 4, 9, 10, 18, 20, 26; partnership and dealings with opposite sex—7, 10, 23, 26; insurance and dealings with estate of deceased—1, 9, 13, 16, 23, 29, 30; professional and business enterprises—2, 17, 25, 28, 29, 30, 31.

Chandrashtama from the beginning of the month till early morning hours of 3rd and again from about sunrise of 28th till forenoon of 30th.

2. Vrishabha (Taurus).—Mars in 1st and 2nd; Rahu in 5th; Jupiter in 7th; Saturn in 8th; Sun in 10th and 11th; Mercury and Kethu in 11th; and Venus in 11th and 12th.

Digitized by www.siddhanta.eprint.com The Property of Vedanta Work

General.—Sun, Mercury, Venus and Jupiter, are all favourable for the entire month. What is more remarkable still that all the above planets except Sun for the second half only are free of vedha. Mars and Saturn are in evil signs for the entire month, but Saturn is under check all along. Thus it is seen that benefic influences are not only more numerous but also more powerful and this month will, in consequence, prove to be one of the best months in the whole year. Gradual success, achievement of one's desires and wishes, gains, acquisition of articles of luxury and their enjoyment, good associations and friendships, success and prosperty in undertakings, domestic happiness and felicities, auspicious events and celebrations, study of new subjects, educational and academical success and triumphs, new status and positions are all due for the favourable transits. But as Mars is unchecked and unfavourable, there may arise some obstacles now and then, displeasure of superiors, separation from relatives and mental anxieties. Of the three asterisms of this sign, those born under Krittika will derive the greatest benefit from the transits and suffer least from the evil ones and those born under Rohini will get only the least benefits. Those born under Mrigasira will rank equally with those born under Krittika.

Health and Domestic.—Generally quite a healthy month but as Mars transits Janma and 2nd stars for those born under Rohini, ill-health, dangers through accidents, falls, etc., are the results mentioned. Therefore those born under Rohini should take appropriate precautions. But no serious apprehensions need be entertained as the majority of the planets are favourable. The domestic sphere will be harmonious and happy with auspicious celebrations and events, beneficial changes and removals, enjoyment of luxuries, etc.

Finance and Speculation.—Inspite of the predominence of favourable transits, the financial sphere will not benefit as much as can be expected. There will be reduction even in the usual sources of income with multiplication of items of expenditure that lack of ready cash will be keenly felt several times, within the month, though with some difficulty they will be tided over. The real trouble will be only during second half. At no time within the month, conditions can be said to be favourable for speculation, and are very bad during the latter half.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Nor are the influences capable of giving relief to the landlords and landholders very much during the month. Their affairs will become unstable and sudden misfortunes may befall them and losses accrue through political or Government action. Disagreements, quarrels and disappointments and adverse changes have all to be feared as they are all in the background though much of it may not erupt within the month because of the favourable transits. Beware of trying short-cut methods in any matter as they will not end as expected. The services will do very well during the month, as conditions are exceptionally favourable for them. All your previous works, associations and connections will begin to give results and help in the accomplishment of your desires and gain of new position and honours. However, it may require great effort as well as efficiency on your part to have them realised within the month itself; otherwise such events will tend to be postponed. The profession and business will have good opportunities for advancement and enterprises which will bring them results proportionate to effort.

For Women.—Generally speaking, this is not a favourable month for the fair sex. But this fact need not deter them from their usual activities as only some select dates will really affect them adversely which can be learned by reference to the critical dates. But it will be good to remember that success in any matter will not come up to expectations. The unattached will do well to avoid the opposite sex as far as possible, as it is probable that undesirable attachments may be formed which it may be difficult to shake off later on when found to be so.

Fortunate Dates.—Personal and domestic matters—2, 4, 7, 20, 22, 26; financial matters in general—2, 6, 17, 22; short journeys—1, 2, 4, 8, 10, 11, 14, 20, 21, 22, 24; long journeys—13, 26; real property matters, affairs connected with landlords and landholders, educational and academical activities, etc.—4, 8, 10, 14, 20, 23; speculation, excursions, courtship and love affairs—2, 6, 22; services—1, 2, 4, 7, 22, 26, 27; partnership, dealings with opposite sex in general—4, 6, 9, 26; insurance activities, matters pertaining to estate of deceased—1, 6, 10, 15, 23, 28; professional and business enterprises—13, 21, 22, 26.

Critical Dates.—Personal and domestic matters—4, 7, 10, 18, 22, 26, 31; financial matters, standing surety, etc.—4, 9, 18, 20, 30, 31; short journeys—1, 3, 6, 8, 10, 13, 17, 25, 31; long journeys—3, 9, 16, 18, 21, 25, 28, 30; real property affairs, educational matters, etc.—2, 4, 8, 24, 28, 31; excursions, courtship, love affairs; speculation, etc.—2, 4, 9, 18, 20, 30, 31; service matters—4, 10, 18, 22, 26, 27, 31; partnerships, dealings with opposite sex in general—1, 4, 9, 13, 16, 23, 26, 30; insurance matters, matters connected with estate of deceased—3, 6, 8, 15; professional and business enterprises—3, 9, 10, 25, 28, 29, 30, 31.

Chandrashtama from early morning hours of 3rd till forenoon of 5th and again from forenoon of 30th till end of the month.

3. Mithuna (Gemini) —Rahu in 4th; Jupiter in 6th; Saturn in 7th; Sun in 9th and 10th; Mercury and Kethu in 10th; Venus in 10th and 11th; and Mars in 12th and 1st.

General.—No planet except Mercury is favourable for the whole month and Mercury is under check throughout. Sun is good for the second half only and good or bad he is under vedha for the entire month. Venus is good for the second half and also free of vedha but this influence does not amount to much anyway. Mars, Jupiter and Saturn, all major planets, are evil for the entire month and of these, Saturn is under check. Therefore this month cannot but prove a difficult one generally, but the second half may prove somewhat less troublesome than the first. Despondency, humiliation, enemities and quarrels with elderly people, relatives, apprehensions and worries, dishonour, losses. obstacles in all matters, adverse results in litigation, tedious journeys and fatigue are what one should be led to expect from the evil transits of the month. Of the three asterisms covered by this sign, the evil transits will affect those born under Mrigasira least and those born under Aridra most, while those born under Punarvasu will come in between.

Health and Domestic.—You may not be able to enjoy good health during the month and your wife and children too may be afflicted with sickness. Bilious complaints will be prominent in your case unless you are careful in your diet and general habits. Quarrels and misunderstandings with near relatives may develop within the domestic sphere and in bad cases may even lead to estrangement and separation, though it may prove to be only temporary. It will be wise therefore that you should refrain from quarrels as it requiries two persons for a quarrel to develop to undesirable proportions.

Finance and Speculation.—Finances cannot be expected to be satisfactory for the month but may not prove very bad. No doubt some misunderstandings with money as the principal reason and expenditure may develop to undesirable lengths. At the same time, some unexpected gains may accrue as well and help in tiding over difficulties. Benefits and other help from relatives and friends too will be available at times of need. The month is not unpropitious for exploiting original ideas, inventions, etc. But there is nothing to help in speculative activities.

Scanned by www.copyrightsupportservices.com

Real Property Services, Profession, etc.—Matters pertaining to landholders and landlords will suffer progressive deterioration during the month and the usual expectations as to yield etc., may not be realised. There may be damage to crops through pests, adverse atmospheric conditions, etc. Many contrivances may arise with regard to your rights, and differences with your agents, tenants etc., may well lead to very depressing conditions. A very difficult month to pull through unless you exercise considerable patience and fortitude. The services will experience both good and bad times during the month itself and the principal troubles will occur during the first half when you may have to incur the displeasure of your superiors; though this may totally disappear during second half, you can succeed in vindicating your position during this period. Perhaps it is only the profession and business that will forge ahead during the month inspite of the adverse transits though there may be obstacles and setbacks now and then.

For Women:—Though the month is unfavourable in many respects, matters pertaining to the fair sex as such will not be affected adversely to any great extent. Their relations with the opposite sex will be happy and harmonious and they are likely to succeed in their objectives generally. But they will do well to restrict their activities to the first three weeks only as later on conditions are not favourable for progress. These observations are more applicable to courtships and love affairs for the unattached and for social and philanthropic activities in the case of others.

Fortunate Dates.—Personal and domestic matters, dealings with relatives, etc.—1, 2, 6, 17, 22; money dealings and transactions, financial ventures, etc.—1, 2, 10, 11, 15, 20, 22, 28; short journeys—8, 10, 11, 20, 23, 24; long journeys—13, 26; matters connected with landlords and landholders—2, 6, 11, 12, 17, 22; excursions, courtship, love affairs, speculation—1, 2, 7, 11, 22, 26, 31; service matters and prospects—4, 19, 26; partnerships, dealings with opposite sex in general—1, 8, 10, 15, 20, 23, 28; insurance affairs, dealings with estate of deceased—13, 22, 26; professional and busines advancement and enterprises—1, 6, 10, 15, 20, 23.

Critical Dates.—Personal and domestic matters, dealings with relatives—3, 4, 9, 10, 20, 30, 31; money dealings, standing surety, financial ventures, etc.—3, 4, 8, 9, 13, 16, 18, 23, 25; short journeys 2, 9, 12, 17, 28, 29; long journeys—3, 9, 21, 29; real property affairs in general—3, 7, 9, 10, 13, 18, 30; excursions, picnics, courtship, love affairs, speculation—2, 4, 10, 18, 25, 27; service matters and prospects—1, 9, 19, 23, 29, 30; insurance matters and dealings with estate of deceased—3, 9, 21, 25.

Chandrashtama from forenoon of 5th till afternoon of 7th.

4. Kataka (Cancer).—Rahu in 3rd; Jupiter in 5th; Saturn in 6th; Sun in 8th and 9th; Mercury and Kethu in 9th; Venus in 9th and 10th; and Mars in 11th and 12th.

General.—Jupiter and Saturn are in auspicious places for the entire month, but Saturn is under check. Mars is good till change of sign, that is, for the greater part of the month, but unfortunately he too is under check so long as he is favourable. Venus is good for the first half only. Sun and Mercury continue in evil signs for the entire month. Mercury is under check for 1st half and Sun for the second. Therefore, so far as the general results for the month are concerned, a fixed pattern is presented. Quarrels with relatives and friends, undesirable associations, apprehensions, ill-health, enemities, humiliation, dishonour, losses, obstacles and setbacks in undertakings, etc., are the unwelcome probabilities watery sign. But this is not the case in Nirayana. If we turn to Poet Shelley's birth map (Poet Shelley met his death by getting drowned in the sea while returning from Leghorn, where he had gone to welcome his friend Leigh Hunt) there is a sign-conjunction of Moon (water) and Kethu (accident) according to the Sayana method. But in the Nirayana system this does not happen. In the birth map of Lord Gouranga (Sri Chaitanya) who in an ecstatic fit of divine love saw Lord Narayana in the waters of the ocean near Puri and jumped into the water to lay hold of His Blissful Feet and was drowned to death, we find that Moon (water) and Kethu (accident) are conjoined. Here according to the Nirayana system, the 8th house is a watery sign (Pisces) but according to the Sayana method, the 8th house is a fiery one; while the lord of the 8th is in an earthy-watery (Capricornus) sign (according to the Sayana). But in the Nirayana method, the lord of the 8th happens to be in a fiery sign. So in this case at least the claims for each are quite well-balanced.

(Continued on next page)

SAYANA VERSUS NIRAYANA IN ASTROLOGY—II

(Continued from page 288)

Another case of Drowning which has peen illustrated in "Cosmos and Human Destiny", has also the same Moon-and-Kethu conjunction in Gemini (the 8th house). In the Sayana sytem the lord of the 8th is Mercury, and is placed in a fiery sign. Evidently, the Sayana system has a much greater and better claim than the Nirayana in this case, in-as-much-as actual verification is concerned.

(To be Continued)

OBSERVATIONS ON HORARY ASTROLOGY

(Continued from page 340)

producer came to an understanding and producer out of his own will, paid compensation to the querent and thus ended the matter. Curiously enough this chart shows that where both 7th and Ascendant are equally strong, it would not be an easy matter to give an astrological judgment. I shall recur to this subject on a subsequent occasion.

Digitized by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan. CC-0. Dr. K. V. Ramana Collection. Work from the evil transits. But Jupiter in 5th and unchecked is a great asset on the favourable side and this will secure for the native the favours of superiors, respect from elders, wealthy friends, luxuries and increased prosperity in general. There is also likelihood of auspicious events and celebrations in the family. Of the three asterisms of the sign, those born under Punarvasu and Aslesha will fare much better than those born under Pushya.

HOW IS THIS MONTH?

(Continued from previous page)

Health and Domestic.—There are both good and bad influences in the matter of preservation of health. Therefore there will be only minor ailments which will quickly respond to treatment, and the health during first half may be even trouble-free. But those subject to habitual blood pressure should be careful. There will be peace, harmony and joy in home surroundings with auspicious functions and celebrations, acquisition and enjoyment of luxuries With all this, there is yet some likelihood of fatigue and troubles from journeys, petty enemities and jealousies.

Finance and Speculation.—Here also though conflicting influences bear upon this sphere, conditions will on the whole prove to be tolerable during the greater part of the month. There will be influx of wealth from more sources than one and though there will be heavy expenditure and nothing left over at the end of the month, there will be no room for regrets as such expenditure will be devoted to luxuries such as new clothes, items of jewellery, auspicious functions, etc. Though conditions are not unfavourable for speculation, still the attendant risks are too great and so it will be better not to indulge in such activities.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Confusion is likely to prevail in all matters pertaining to real property affairs in general and particularly in respect of landlords and landholders. They may have to face losses on all sides and are also liable to suffer much from purely extraneous causes. What has been once considered to be a good investment may prove a source of loss owing to causes beyond your control. Still there is some balancing influence which will prevent matters going too far and you will get indirect help from others that will enable you to tide over difficult situations. This is a fairly good month for the services. There will be honour, fame, and advancements and various benefits through superiors. This is the month you can build up also for your future advancement by preparing the ground completing tests, interviewing important persons, etc. It would be good to remember at the same time that for all such matters the last week is not so favourable, even adverse. Business and profession will flourish fairly well throughout.

For Women.—This is really good month for all matters in which the fair sex is apt to be interested as such. This is favourable for bargaining a matter that is always dear to the feminine heart and in which they generally excel the stronger sex. It does not matter what, whether household necessities or articles of luxury or building up stock of what may be required in future, it would be found advantageous. This is also an ideal month for parties, excursions, courtships, love affairs and all kinds of social activities.

Fortunate Dates.—Personal and domestic matters, dealings with relatives interviews, etc.—1, 2, 4, 11, 15, 20, 22, 25, 31; money dealings and transactions, financial ventures, investments—4, 8, 10, 20, 23, 24; short journeys—2, 6, 11, 17, 22, 25; long journeys—1, 3, 6, 15, 20, 23; real property matters, educational and academical activities, tests, etc.—1, 2, 7, 22 26, 31; speculation, children's affairs and prospects, excursions, courtship and love affairs—4, 6, 7, 9, 11, 21, 26; service matters, interviews, dealings with superiors, etc.—1, 6, 10, 15, 20, 28; partnership, matters connected with opposite sex in general—8, 13, 22, 26, 27; insurance matters and affairs connected with the estate of deceased—8, 13, 22, 26, 27; professional and business enterprisess—4, 6, 9, 11, 21 and 26.

Critical Dates.—Personal and domestic affairs, dealings with relatives, etc.—1, 2, 3, 6, 15, 16, 25, 31; money dealings and transactions, financial ventures—1, 17, 24, 31; short journeys—3, 18, 25, 30; long journeys—8, 22; real property affairs, educational and academical matters, etc.—4, 20, 29; speculation, children's affairs and prospects, courtship, love affairs, etc.—1, 5, 9, 16, 23, 30; service affairs and prospects—8, 22; partnership, dealings with opposite sex in general—3, 10, 18, 25, 28, 31; insurance matters and dealings with estate of deceased—3, 10, 18, 25, 28, 31; professional and business enterprises—1, 5, 9, 16, 23, 30.

Chandrashtama from afternoon of 7th till midnight of 9th.

5. Simha (Leo).—Rahu in 2nd; Jupiter in 4th; Saturn in 5th; Sun in 7th and 8th; Mercury and Kethu in 8th; Venus in 8th and 9th; and Mars in 10th and 11th.

General.—Mercury, Venus and Mars are in good places throughout the month, but Venus is under check throughout. The other planets Sun, Jupiter and Saturn are evil for the whole month. Of these, Jupiter and Saturn suffer check for the entire month and Sun comes under vedha for the second half only. With both the good and bad transits under check mostly it is not to be expected that the month will prove remarkable for either good or bad. Some successes, mental satisfaction and happiness, increase in influence, auspicious events, gains, good health, meeting with friends, gain of articles of luxury, acquisition of new knowledge and prosperity, etc., are the results due for the beneficial transits. Tedious journeys, health troubles, lack of harmony at home and in social circles, mental depression, humiliation, varied anxieties, wicked associations, losses, false implications, etc., are the results of the inimical transits. Of the three asterisms covered by the sign, those born under Uttaraphalguna will reap the best results for the good transits and suffer least. Next come those born under Purvaphalguna and those born under Makha come only last.

Scanned by Digitized by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Collection Reserved by B.V. Ramans Work

Health and Domestic.—During the first half, it is probable there may arise troubles due to stomach and rectal disorders, dysentery, fever, etc. The second half may prove comparatively more healthy but blood pressure may have to be watched The wife and children may fall sick and give rise to anxieties. The domestic circle too will experience troubles of its own. There may arise sundry quarrels, bickerings and misunderstandings, marring domestic harmony and peace. But as none of the evil planets are powerful, these things will pass off without leaving any serious consequences behind.

Finance and Speculation.—There is not much in the evil influences to effect the financial matters adversely and the month may be said to be on the whole more favourable for finance than otherwise. It will be possible to realise outstandings due for a long time and monetary enterprises will be generally successful. Some unexpected item of gain too may take place. Expenditure too will be on the increase especially during the latter half of the month. With Saturn in 5th aspected all along by Mars, there is very little scope for success in speculative dealings.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—Many worries may arise with regard to real property affairs so far as landlords and landholders are concerned. Yield and rentals may be alright and may even reach above average levels. But there may be troubles from agents, tenants, unwanted litigation may arise and lead to unnecessary expenditure, worries, anxieties, tedious journeys, etc. Still as there are good influences also to balance the evil transits, no serious troubles, inconvenience or losses need be apprehended within the month itself which may be passed tolerably. There is nothing special that calls for mention in respect of the services who may pass through a normal month in all respects, and everything may pass on smoothly except during the last week when you should be careful as you are likely to come into conflict with your employers and those above you generally. Even loss of employment is threatened in the case of those in temporary employment through carelessness or rashness. Business and profession will progress normally without any obstacles or setbacks and may even improve as the month advances.

For Women.—The month for the greater part is favourable to all matters pertaining to the fair sex as such. It is the closing week that is rather unfavourable. The month is ideally situated for courtships, romance and love affairs that will have desirable consequences and may ripen into permanent alliance later on. Except for the last week, the month is favourable for parties, social activities, etc. During the last week however, some troubles from servants, inferiors, etc., may happen which may prove obstructive to the smooth flow of events and hence care is necessary.

Fortunate Dates.—Personal and domestic affairs, dealings with relatives, etc.,—4, 14, 20, 23, 26; finance and money dealings and enterprises—5, 6, 11, 16, 21, 22, 28; short journeys—1, 2, 4, 6, 11, 22, 26, 31; long journeys—4, 6, 11, 26; real property matters, educational and academical activities, etc.—4, 6, 11, 26; speculation, courtship, love affairs, excursions, etc.—1, 6, 10, 15, 20, 23, 28; service affairs, prospects—8, 13, 25, 27; partnerships, matters connected with opposite sex in general—8, 13, 21, 25, 27; insurance activities, dealings with estate of deceased, etc.—1, 6, 10, 15, 20, 23; professional and business enterprises—1, 2, 4, 6, 11, 22, 26 and 31.

Critical Dates.—Personal and domestic affairs, dealings with relatives, etc.—2, 9, 17, 24, 28, 31; money dealings, financial ventures, standing surety—10, 11, 18, 25, 30, 31; short journeys—6, 13, 20, 27, 29; long journeys—1, 9, 15, 22, 28, 29; real property affairs, educational and academical activities, tests, etc.—5, 9, 18, 25, 31; speculation, excursions, picnics, courtship and love affairs—8, 19, 22, 28, 29, 31; service affairs and prospects—3, 10, 18, 22, 25, 31; partnerships, dealings with opposite sex in general—3, 10, 18, 21, 25, 31; insurance activities, dealings with estate of deceased—4, 9, 10, 15, 22, 31; professional and business enterprises—6, 13, 20, 27 and 29.

Chandrashtama from about midnight of 9th till forenoon of 12th.

6. Kanya (Virgo):—Rahu in 1st; Jupiter in 3rd; Saturn in 4th; Sun in 6th and 7th; Mercury and Kethu in 7th; Venus in 7th and 8th; and Mars in 9th and 10th.

General.—The good influences for the month are very few. No planet is in a favourable sign for the entire month and those that are good for at least part of the month are only Sun and Venus. Mars is in a good sign for the last few days only. Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn are evil throughout. Saturn is under check, and Mercury for the first half only. Sun is also checked so long as he is evil. Still the evil transits are sufficiently powerful and can make the month quite an uncomfortable one generally. The first half, because of Sun, will be less troubled than the second. Tiresome journeys, worries, humiliation, failure in attempts, misunderstandings and quarrels with all and sundry, loss of position, death among friends and relatives, unpleasant changes in work or environment, troubles through the opposite sex, lossess, friends becoming enemies, etc., are liable to be experienced during the latter half of the month. But, some gains, successes, triumph over rivals and enemies, are probable during the first half. Of the three asterisms of the sign, those born under Uttaraphalguna will be among the least troubled and those born under Hastha will fare worst and those born under Chitra will rank nearly equal with those born under Uttaraphalguna.

Health and Domestic.—The month may not pass without the health being upset in some way or other. Stomach, rectal and urinary affections may arise but are not likely to prove serious. But liability to injuries through wounds from sharp instruments is real and while handling such instruments or gadgets, you should be extra careful. In a few cases, an operation is indicated. With so many evil transits converging in eighth, it is only natural to expect that peace and harmony within the domestic circle will be disturbed and strained relationship subsist between yourself and the important members of the family, such as your wife and children.

Finance and Speculation.—Inspite of the preponderance of evil transits, the financial affairs will not be affected very much adversely during first half when there will be gains through relatives and friends and an item of sudden and unexpected financial gains as well, perhaps through exploitation of original methods, ideas, inventions, etc. There will be free and generous expenditure also which may even increase to extravagant proportions during the second half. The possibility of losses through fraud and deception cannot be ruled out during the second half. There is no support whatever for speculative activities and the liability to losses therefrom increases as the month advances.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—The position this month, is worst for the landlords and landholders who still suffer from the effect of the evil transits. Many are the causes that will contribute to their sufferings. Yield and rentals will deteriorate or become irrecoverable. Litigation is likely to prove expensive with practically no advantage therefrom. Relationship with tenants, agents, co-owners will become highly strained and cause much apprehensions and anxieties. Investments made during the month may not shape out well and may end in serious losses. There will be troubles from the services also but they may do ordinarily well during the first half. During the second half, you will have to be careful in your dealings with your superiors and with your inferiors as well as disgrace, loss of reputation, danger to employment, accusations and charges, etc., are within the scope of the evil transits. The caution applies not only to spoken words but also extends fully to what you commit to writing in despatches, explanations, statements and the like. The month does not also favour the profession and business and there is likely to occur considerable reduction in the scope and extent of your activities without consequent decrease in income and profits.

For Women.—So far as women and interests peculiar to them are concerned, the month is likely to pass off fairly well without any important happenings either way. Their activities are liable to be attended with ordinary success. Their social standing and popularity will improve. But uniform success in all such activities may not be possible and they should be predared for setbacks and disappointments as well which are likely in spite of the best of care on their part, as they will be due to causes beyond their control. Total strangers should be avoided as far as possible.

Fortunate Dates.—Personal and domestic matters, dealings with relatives, interviews, etc.—5, 6, 11, 12, 16, 21, 22; financial matters, money dealings, investments, etc.—2, 4, 6, 11, 16, 22, 31; short journeys—4, 6, 11, 21, 26; long journeys—7, 8, 26; real property matters, educatonal and academical activities, etc.—6, 10, 13, 27, 31; excursions, picnics, speculation, courtship, and love affairs—8, 13, 22, 27; service affairs and prospects—8, 13, 21, 22, 27; partnerships, dealings with opposite sex in general—1, 5, 10, 15, 20, 23, 24, 28; insurance activities and dealings with estate of deceased—4, 6, 11, 21, 26; professional and business enterprises—2, 6, 11, 16, 21, 22.

Critical Dates.—Personal matters, dealings with relatives, interviews (private), etc.—7, 9, 10, 18, 30; financial matters, money dealings, standing surety, etc.—1, 10, 20, 26, 31; short journeys—1, 9, 16, 22, 29, 30; long journeys—1 9, 10, 20, 26, 31; real property affairs, educational and academical matters, tests, etc.—9, 10, 18, 21, 25, 31; speculation, excursions, picnics, courtship and love affairs, etc,—3, 10, 14, 18, 25, 31; service affairs and prospects—3, 10, 14, 18, 25, 31; partnerships, dealings with opposite sex in general—9, 10, 18, 21, 25, 31; insurance matters, dealings with estate of deceased persons—1, 9, 16, 22, 29, 30; professional and business enterprises—7, 9, 10, 18, 30.

Chandrashtama from forenoon of 12th till midnight of 14th.

7. Thula (Libra).—Jupiter in 2nd; Saturn in 3rd; Sun in 5th and 6th; Mercury and Kethu in 6th; Venus in 6th and 7th; Mars in 8th and 9th; and Rahu in 12th.

General.—Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn, all of them transit favourable signs for the entire month and on this account alone this month should prove to be one of the best in the whole year but for the fact that almost all the above planets suffer check, Jupiter and Saturn throughout the month and Mercury for the last few days only. Sun who is good for the second half and evil during the first is under check throughout. Venus and Mars, the remaining planets are evil for the whole month, but Venus is under check all along; thus, Mars is the only planet evil and free of vedha. Thus evil transits are in minority but the good transits are powerless. While one can be assured of freedom from evil effects this month, nor can good results of any magnitude can be expected and generally the second half will be better than the first. Success, gains, triumph over rivals and enemies, peace of mind, popularity and renown, auspicious events and celebrations, enjoyments, acquisition of new position and status are the results due for the beneficial transits. Of the three asterisms governed by the sign, those born under Chitra will get the utmost benefit from the good transits and suffer least. Those born under Visakha will fare next best and those born under Swati come last.

Health and Domestic.—The only evil transit of the month, namely Mars is unchecked and he is likely to upset the health and chronic sufferers from ailments should take adequate precautions against acute exacerbations of their complaints. There is also a likelihood, although the month, of accidents from sharp things entailing loss of blood, or it may be a case for operation. Whatever it may be, the danger from sepsis should be had in mind and provided for. On the other hand, the domestic sephere will be peaceful and harmonious and full of joy and happiness with success also in social activities.

Finance and Speculation.—The financial sphere is well favoured this month. Influx of wealth from various sources, success in financial ventures will make the month happy and prosperous and may constitute increase of wealth, though for various causes, the extent of increase may not be considerable or quite up to expectations. Those in the literary and publishing fields may have special facilities this month to met sizable profits and extend the sphere of their demand for them by adequate advertisements and pushing their sales. Speculation too may bring in some profits provided it is done carefully and within limits.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—The greater part of the month is generally favourable to the interests of landlords and landholders. This does not mean that everything will be alright. There will be a lot of pinpricks, difficulties in management, dealings with tenants, reduction in yield and rentals but these will never prove serious and you will be able to tide over all such difficulties without much effort with the help of the favourable influences. The only precaution that needs to be specially mentioned is that you will be tempted to take the law into your own hands on many an occasion but you should refrain from doing so. It may be said that it is the services that are most favoured this month. Increased influence and power, success over rivals and enemies, new status and positions, popularity with superiors or those in power, etc., may mark this month as a memorable one in the whole year, and it is the second half that is to be looked to for best results. At the same time, it is essential that in your dealings with co-workers associates and superiors, you should be circumspect and give no cause for any controversies, etc. The profession and business will also register good advances and witness expansion almost throughout.

For Women.—Women too will benefit in all matters and activities peculiar to their sex. But uniformity in any matter is what cannot be expected by them. The first is no doubt good for courtships and love affairs but referring to the critical dates below they will find that 1st and 4th are liable to get them into dangerous attachments and entanglements and therefore they should be necessarily be on their guard on these dates. But in all other matters such as parties, philanthropic activities, social calls, etc., their actions will prove successful. The unexpected element will no doubt play a part in their activities.

Scanned with CamScanner Digitized by eGangotri To Preserve This Document for Future Work

Fortunate Dates.—personal and private affairs, domestic matters; dealings with relatives, etc., 4, 7, 11, 16, 21, 22; financial matters, money dealings and transactions, 4, 9, 11, 21, 26; short journeys, 1, 5, 6, 10, 15, 20, 24, 28; long journeys, 5, 11, 16, 22; real property affairs and matters pertaining to the interests of landholders and landlords; educational and academical activities, tests, etc., 8, 13, 22, 27; children's affairs, travel and prospects, speculation, courtship and love affairs, 8, 13, 22, 27; service matters and prospects, 4, 11, 21, 23, 26; partnership matters and business, dealings with estate of deceased persons, 4, 7, 11, 16, 21, 22; professional and business enterprises, 7, 9, 11, 16, 25.

Critical Dates.—Personal and private affairs, domestic matters, dealings with relatives, etc., 1, 4, 20, 22, 26, 31; financial matters, money dealings and transactions, standing surety, 1, 9, 16, 23, 27, 30; short journeys, 8, 22, 29; long journeys, 3, 9, 10, 26, 30; real propety matters, matters connected with landlords and landholders, academical, educational activities, tests, etc.—3, 9, 10, 18, 25, 31; speculation, matters pertaing to children and their prospect, courtship, love affairs, parties and excursions—1, 4, 9, 10, 18, 25, 31; service affairs, dealings with superiors, etc.—8, 22, 29; partnership buiness, dealings with opposite sex in general—1, 9, 16, 23, 27, 30; insurance activities, dealings with estate of deccased—1, 4, 20, 22, 26, 31; professional and business enterprises—4, 8, 19, 21, 27.

Chandrashtama from about midnight of 14th till noon of 17th.

8. Vrischika (Scorpio).—Jupiter in 1st; Saturn in 2nd; Sun in 4th and 5th; Mercury in 5th; Kethu in 5th; Venus in 5th and 6th; Mars in 7th and 8th; and Rahu in 11th.

General.—Practically this month is without any favourable transit. Venus in fifth for the first half is the only good one and that is not much on any account. All the other planets transit inauspicious signs all the time without much alleviation from vedha either. Mercury is under check for the greater part of the month and Sun for the second half only. That is all. The effects so far as transits alone are concerned can be more imagined than described, and should be prepared for a rather troublesome period. Many troubles and sorrows in all directions, quarrels and disputes with friends and relations, ill-health, troubles caused by rivals and enemies, varied anxieties, purposeless endeavours, loss of position, delays and setbacks in all matters, heavy expenditure, tedious journeys, dishonour, litigation, losses, etc., death of relatives, loss of comforts, etc., are the sort of troubles due for the evil transits. During the first half, however, there is scope for some happiness, help from friends, success, etc. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Visakha or Jyeshta will not suffer much from the evil transits and only those born under Anuradha may have to feel the full force.

Health and Domestic.—It would be difficult, with the best of care, to maintain good health throughout the month, though timely precaution will reduce the extent of suffering very much, and each may suffer according to his constitutional pre-disposition such as eye-troubles, stomach ailments, blood pressure and so on. Wounds, injuries and accidents is an ever present possibility and may not be ignored. There is no promise of peace and harmony within the domestic circle as well as in social circles with the likelihood of conflicts arising almost in respect of every matter. The month is likely to be full of domestic worries over something or other.

Finance and Speculation.—Contraction of financial resources with the increasing expenditure with some items superadded will mark the month as one of the most difficult ones in the entire year to be passed. In bad cases, it may even reach the extent of pressure from creditors, litigation and consequent unpleasantness. But the first half may not prove so bad as there is likely to be help from willing friends which will enable you to tide over difficulties. The temptation to meet the difficult conditions by resorting to speculation will be great but to actually do so, will be only to court disaster.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—As in all other matters, conditions will be difficult for landlords and landholders also who will have to face depression in almost all respects and should be prepared for much disappointments, even losses. Many of the anxieties will be traceable to relations with tenants, agents, inferiors generally. Troubles may arise from unexpected quarters. Compulsory alienation of lands may entail much suffering. Yield and rentals are also liable to suffer and go below average. It is difficult to visualise what adverse effects the transits will cause to the services in the absence of any favourable influences which may range from mere pinpricks to loss of position or dismissal with disgrace and bad name. Sun in 5th is stated to cause displeasure from Government or people in power and position or superiors in office and Mercury in the same place and Jupiter in 1st will contribute to the dishonour of the employee. Therefore, the services should be generally careful in their routine work and in their dealings with their superiors, so that there will be no scope for the evil influences to work harm. There is nothing special to be mentioned as regards profession and business except it be that they are not directly hit by the transits and may function along normal lines.

For Women.—After the above dismal picture of the possibilities of the month with regard to the various spheres of activity, it is somewhat heartening to turn to matters governthe fair sex as such and note that the evil transits do not have much play here. But all the same, it is good to remember that success in any matter will not come up to expectations. The unattached will do well to avoid the opposite sex as for as possible as it is not unlikely that undesirable attachments may be formed which to shake off later, may prove difficult.

Fortunate Dates.—Personal and private affairs, domestic matters, dealings with relatives, etc.—4, 6, 11, 20, 21, 26; money dealings and transactions, financial ventures, etc.—1, 5, 6, 10, 15, 20, 24, 28; short journeys—8, 22, 27; long journeys—1, 10, 20, 28; real property affairs, matters pertaining to landlords and landholders, educational and academical activities, tests, etc.—8, 13, 22, 27; speculation, children's affairs and prospects, courtships, love affairs, excurcions, etc.—1, 5, 10, 15, 20, 23, 24, 28; service affairs and prospects 6; 11, 21, 26; partnerships, dealings with opposite sex in general—1, 6, 11, 17, 22, 27, 31; insurance activities, dealings with estate of deceased—5, 11, 16, 21, 25; professional and business enterprises—4, 14, 20.

Chandrashtama from noon of 17th till night of 19th.

9. Dhanus (Sagittarius).—Saturn in 1st; Sun in 3rd and 4th; Mercury and Kethu in 4th; Venus in 4th and 5th; Mars in 6th and 7th; Rahu in 10th; and Juqiter in 12th.

General.—Mercury and Venus are in favourable signs for the entire month and the only planets under check are these two. But they are not so for the whole month. Both are under check only during the first half only. So the only planet evil for the whole month is Saturn and he is unchecked thoughout. Jupiter in 12th may not be considered as wholly evil or wholly good. In a month of mixed general effects, the first half will be better than the second. Happiness, success, comforts and luxuries, good friendships and associations, good health, new position or status, triumph over rivals or enemies in litigation or otherwise, prosperity, gains, pleasure trips, good news, fame, honur from elders, etc., are the good results to be expected by the transits during the first half. Fears and apprehensions, sorrows, quarrels and disputes with friends and relatives, obstacles and setbacks, even losses, distant journeys, death among friends and relatives, are the possibilities for the second half. Of the three asterisms of the sign, those born under Uttarashada will reap the best results from the favourable transits and suffer least from the unfavourable ones. Next come those born under Poorvashada and probably those born under Makha will have to bear the brunt of the transit influences during the second half.

Health and Domestic.—Health can be expected to be fairly good during the first half and only some slight disturbances due to cold or indigestion may occur. These may grow somewhat worse during the second half and even haemorrhages may occur if sufficient precautions are not taken in advance. Domestic comforts and happiness are assured for the first half as also purchase and enjoyment of articles of luxury. An auspicious event in the family is not also improbable. But the second half may not witness the same conditions of harmony at home and in social circles and some bickerings even quarrels and in bad cases, the possibility of separation may arise. But a little tact and forbearance will be all that is required to avert or resolve such occurrences.

Finance and Speculation.— Though there will be no lack of income from the usual sources and may be from a few additional ones as well, there will be constant pressure for money felt all through the month because of heavy expenditure, increasing items, journeys, etc. Losses may arise through theft, through servants and inferiors or through envy or through undesirable friends. Care should also be taken to see that your own carelessness and extravagance do not aggravate the situation further. There is very little support this month for speculative activities.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—With all the troubles and difficulties that are likely to befall the landlords and landholders, there may be some steadying influence which will prevent their sufferings going too far. There may be nothing to complain of in the matter of yield and rentals and you may be the recipient of various benefits, gifts, etc., which will be materially helpful to you in connection with your estate matters. Attempts to improve the level of the yield through resort to modern methods of cultivation, manuring, etc., should prove successful and yield satisfactory results. This month especially the first half should prove favourable to the services, many of whom may find improvement in their prospects in general and perhaps gain a position or two over those in the same run as yourself. To some this month may mean the acquisition of new position and status by reason of the recognition of your merits in proper quarters and special honours and increase in sphere of influence may result. The profession and business may not meet with the same amount of success, though not much difference may be noticeable during the greater part of the month. The close of the month may witness some inevitable setbacks and obstacles though temporary only.

For Women.—The month is generally favourable to the interests of the fair sex. Their relationship with the opposite sex will be happy and harmonious with success in all their objectives. But these observations hold good mostly for the first half only. The unattached may find that their engagements are definitely fixed and suggestive of promise to assume a more permanent footing later on. In the case of quite a number of them, matrimony may take place within the month itself.

Fortunate Dates.—Personal and domestic matters, relations with friends and relatives, interviews in general—6, 10, 15, 26, 24, 28 ; money dealings and transactions, financial ventures—8, 13, 22, 27; short journeys—1, 13, 22, 27; long journeys—4, 20; real property matters, educational and academical activities—6, 10, 15, 20. 24 ; children's affairs and prospects, speculations—6, 11, 21, 26; service affairs and prospects—1, 6, 17, 22, 31; partnerships, dealings and business matters connected with opposite sex in general–6, 11, 16, 21, 26 ; insurance activities, dealings with estate of deceased—1, 3, 8, 18, 24, 30; professional and business enterprises—6, 11. 16, 21, 25.

Critical Dates.—Personal and private affairs, dealings with relatives, interviews in general—10, 11, 19, 25 ; money matters and dealings, standing surety, financial ventures—9, 10, 18, 25, 28, 31; short journeys—10, 25, 29, 31 ; long journeys—2, 9, 17, 24, 31 ; real property matters in general, matters pertaining to landholders and landlords–8, 11, 19, 22, 31 ; children's prospects and affairs, speculation, excursions, courtships and love affairs —1, 9, 16 23, 30 ; service affairs and prospects, dealings with superiors—4, 20 ; partnership dealings and matters connected with opposite sex in general—3, 18, 25, 31; insurance matters, dealings with the estate of deceased—1 8, 15, 28 ; professional and business ventures 8, 11, 12, 22 31.

Chandrashtama from the night of 19th till sunrise of 22nd.

10. Makara (Capricornus).— Sun in 2nd and 3rd ; Mercury and Kethu in 3rd ; Venus in 3rd and 4th ; Mars in 5th and 6th; Rahu in 9th ; Jupiter in 11th ; and Saturn in 12th.

General.—Though no single major planet except Jupiter is good for the entire month, still Jupiter in eleventh and unchecked is a mighty influence on the favourable side and this coupled with the fact that principal malefic influence, Saturn in twelve is on that account muzzled by vedha, the month's general results will be quite good. Venus too is good and unchecked throughout and though not very much by itself will make its influence felt alongside of Jupiter. Both Sun and Mars become good after change of sign on 13th and 26th respectively. But much benefit may not acrue therefrom as they are under check so long. But it can be said generally that in a month of mixed effects, the second half would be much better. Success, gains, comforts, valuable friendships, happiness, purchase and enjoyment of articles of luxury, auspicious events and celebrations, honours, respect and prosperity; increased influence and position, pleasure trips and excursions, etc., are the things promised by the good transits of second half. Troubles through rivals and enemies, enemities with friends, and relatives, quarrels with sons and relatives, obstacles and setbacks are what one may expect from the evil transits of first half. Of the three stars covered by the sign those born under Uttarashada will derive the greatest benefits from the good transits and suffer least from evil ones ; and those born under Sravana will get only the least benefits. Dhanishta will rank equally with Uttarashada.

Health and Domestic .—Some well disturbances in health are to be expected during the first half such as, fever, accidents, or it may be mere physical weakness and debility. Everything would depend upon constitutional predisposition. But these troubles will be quite ordinary and easily amenable to treatment. It is the first half again that may cause some disturbance in the domestic sphere also with quarrels with sons and relatives, mental agitation and worries. The ill-health of some one or more of your children may add to your anxieties.

Finance and Speculation .—Though the finances for the month may be quite satisfactory, this is not the sphere most favoured. But Jupiter in eleventh is a very good and powerful influence and will ensure good income from more sources than one. Still there is the basic weakness of lord of 1 and 2 occupying twelfth though held up by check. As in almost all other matters, the second half would prove much better than the first. All the same, some losses through theft, deceit by false friends, or through servants and inferiors may occur. There may be temptation to make some easy money by speculation but the attendant risks are too great for such an adventure to prove a success.

Real Property, Services, Profession etc .—There is nothing special that calls for mention in connection with real property matters or the interests of landlords and landholders as conditions will continue more or less the same as the previous month and continue so for some time more as well. This month if favourable for introducing up-to-date facilities, new methods, mechanised methods, etc., in all stages of cultivation work from the preparation of the soil to manuring, and pumping water by power sources. These will yield good returns in the future. The month will prove fairly good for the services also though it is likely that expectations will not be fully realised and some last minute obstacle may crop up to prevent the realisation of your hopes to the full. The opening of the month will not be promising but conditions will improve as the month advances and the best position will be the closing week. Still for any important work, it would be advisable to refer to the dates listed below as the above is only a general statement. Business and profession are also favoured well and will function on above average lines throughout.

For Women.—This month is unreservedly a good one for all matters in which the fair sex are liable to be interested as such. This month favours the purchase of luxury items and other fineries, silks, ornaments, etc.. in which the feminine heart ever delights, not always approved by the other sex though. This is also a good month for parties, picnics, outings, courtships, etc., in fact all kinds of social activities. But it is a matter to be taken into account that however successful all this may be, they are likely to have no lasting but only temporary values.

Fortunate Dates.—Personal and domestic matters, dealings with friends and relatives, interviews, etc.—8, 13, 22, 27; money dealings and transactions, financial ventures, investments, etc.—4, 5, 14, 22, 27; short journeys–1, 5, 10, 15, 20, 24, 28; long journeys—5, 16, 21; real property affairs, educational and academical activities—8, 13, 22, 27; children's affairs and prospects, speculation, excursions, courtship and love affairs —1, 6, 11, 17, 22, 27; service affairs and prospects—5, 11, 16, 21, 25; partnership business, dealings with opposite sex in general—4, 5, 8, 13, 22, 27; insurance activities, dealings with estate of deceased—4, 10, 14, 20, 23; professional and business enterprises—6, 11, 17, 22, 27.

Critical Dates.—Personal matters, dealings with relatives, interviews, etc,—7, 9, 10, 18, 30; financial matters, money dealings, standing surety, etc.—1, 10, 20, 26, 31; short journeys —1, 9, 16, 22, 29, 30; long journeys —1, 9, 10, 20, 26, 31; real property affairs, educational and academical matters, tests, etc.—9, 10, 18, 21, 25, 31; speculation, excursions, picnics, courtship and love affairs, etc.—3, 10, 14, 18, 25, 31; service affairs and prospects—3, 10, 14, 18, 25, 31; partnerships, dealings with opposite sex in general—9, 10, 18, 21, 25, 31; insurance matters, dealings with estate of deceased persons—1, 9, 16, 22, 29, 30; professional and business enterprises—7, 9, 10, 18, 30.

Chandrashtama from sunrise of 22nd to sunrise of 24th.

11. Kumbha (Aquarius).—Sun in 1st and 2nd; Mercury and Kethu in 2nd; Venus in 2nd and 3rd; Mars in 4th and 5th; Rahu in 8th; Jupiter in 10th; and Saturn in 11th.

General.—Venus and Saturn are the favourable planets for the entire month and both are practically free of check, vedha in the case of the latter planet being negligible. Sun, Mercury, Mars and Jupiter are all in evil signs throughout and the vedha element here too is negligible. Sun is under check only for the second half and Mercury from the last few days; that is all. Hence the general trends for the month will be predominatingly unfavouvable and a somewhat trying period awaits those born under this Rasi. Of the stars covered by this sign, those born under Dhanishta will get the utmost from the benefic transits and suffer least from the evil ones. Those born under Poorvabhadrapada will come next, but those born under Satabhisha rank last. Loss of prestige, obstacles in undertakings, troublesome and aimless journeys, quarrels with friends and relatives, troubles arising from wicked associations, deceit through friends sorrows through relatives, troubles through enemies, unjust blame, unwelcome changes, etc., are the sort of unsavoury effects due for the evil transits. The good transits would reduce the tempo of these effects no doubt. Still the month may prove somewhat trying.

Health and Domestic.—All sorts of troubles and setbacks in heath may arise such as indigestion, pains in chest, heart region, respiratory difficulties, eye affections. This of course does not mean that all these ailments will visit the same individual but only defines the scope and nature of the evil transits. Each will be affected only according to his constitutional idiosyncrosies. Precautionary care will do much to alleviate the extent of sufferings and recovery will also be quick with the aid of the good transits. There is likely to be much irritation, fears and anxieties with regard to domestic matters and may give rise to actual unhappiness with regard to private matters because of bickerings and quarrels with near and dear relatives within the domestic circle.

Finance and Speculation.—The fact that numerically evil transits are greater does not mean that every sphere of activity will be affected adversely. In fact the least affected will be matters pertaining to the financial sphere as there are sufficient compensatory factors are at work. Gains and other money facilities would be available during the greater part of the month though some losses and setbacks are inevitable in between and the gains will not be very much. With Mars in 4th and 5th and Saturn also aspecting 5th there is no use expecting any additions to wealth through speculation. On the other hand, losses alone are probable.

Real Property. Services, Profession, etc.—Both good and bad awaits landlords and landholders and the policy of the Government bodies no good for either class. In the sweltering confusion, that is likely to spread far and wide, with nothing known as to what is definitely going to happen, it may be some comfort to know that those born under this Rasi may not immediately feel the depressing effects, at least so far as this month is concerned, though who is ultimately going to gain or going to lose still remains problematical. Yeild and rentals may be good and give no room for complaint. But it can be said with a greater measure of certainty that the services will benefit in some way or other this month. Though initially there may be some troubles, unjust blame, displeasure of superiors, etc., these will gradually give place to better appreciation as the month advances, and the ground may well be laid for future preferments. There is a likelihood of some of the unemployed getting into service and those temporarily taken may gain permanence in their respective jobs. The profession and business though not exempt from various viscissitudes and setbacks that may befall them this month, they will be able to forge ahead all the same as the month advances and their income and profits may never reach below average levels.

For Women.—But for the closing days of the month, this month is generally favourable for the interests of the fair sex as such. The month is well suited for romance, courtships, love affairs, etc., that will give real pleasure and leave desirable consequences, such as by refining into permanent alliances later on. Some care, however, should necessarily be exercised during the last week in your dealings with the opposite sex in courtship, love affairs, etc., as there is a liability to unwary commitments about which one may have to regret later on.

Scanned by CamScanner Digitized by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan Preserved by eGangotri Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan

Favourable Dates.—Personal and private affairs, dealings with relatives, friends, interviews, etc.—8, 13, 23, 27; money dealings and transactions, financial enterprises, investments—1, 5, 10, 15, 20. 23, 24, 28; short journeys—6, 11, 21, 26; long journeys—1, 6, 11, 17, 22, 27, 31; educational and academical activities, matters pertaining to landholders and landlords—6, 11, 17, 22, 27; matters connected with children and their prospects, speculation, excursions, picnics, courtship and love affairs—5, 11, 16, 21, 31; service affairs and prospects—1, 9, 13, 23, 27: insurance activities, dealings with estate of deceased—5, 11, 16, 21, 31; professional and business enterprises—6, 11, 21, 26.

Critical Dates.—Personal and private affairs, domestic matters, dealings with friends and relatives, interviews, —3, 10, 18, 25, 31; money dealings and transactions, financial ventures; standing surety for others—8, 15, 19, 23; short journeys—1, 5, 9, 16, 23, 30; long journeys—4, 20, 27; real property affairs, educational and academical activities, tests—4, 20, 27; children's affairs and prospects, speculation, excursions, courtships and love affairs—3. 18, 25, 31; service affairs and prospects—3, 10, 18, 25, 31; partnership business, dealings with opposite sex in general—2, 9, 17, 24, 28, 31; insurance activities, dealings with estate of deceased—3, 18, 25, 31; professional and business enterprises—5, 9, 16, 23, 30.

Chandrashtama from about sunrise of 24th till morning of 26th.

12. Meena (Pisces).—Mercury and Kethu in 1st; Venus in 1st and 2nd; Mars in 3rd and 4th; Rahu in 7th; Jupiter in 9th; Saturn in 10th; and Sun in 12th and 1st.

General.—Venus and Jupiter transit favourable signs throughout the month and beyond the fact that Saturn in 10th cannot be said to be wholly evil as being a malefic in an Upachaya house, there is no other transitting influence which can be said to be good for even part of the month except Mars and he is under check so long as he is favourable. Even the two good transits are mostly under check, Jupiter for the entire month and Venus for the second half. Mercury and Sun are evil throughout but come under vedha only for the second half. Therefore mixed results alone can be expected for the month and the evil element may even preponderate generally. Sorrows and anxieties, quarrels with friends and relatives, ill-health, loss of prestige, obstacles in undertakings, delays and setbacks, increase of rival and enemies, losses through relatives, false friends, etc., unwelcome changes, etc., are the sort of troubles liable to be caused by the evil planets. Some success and prosperity, auspicious events and celebrations, increased returns, etc., are also due for the favourable transits. Of the three stars of the sign, those born under Poorvabhadrapada or Revati will not suffer much from the evil transits and only those born under Uttarabhadrapada may have to feel the full force of the bad transits.

Health and Domestic.—Some erratic trends in health may be witnessed during the month in the beginning and towards the close. Feverishness, digestive troubles, etc., may be the likely forms. The middle part of the month may be fairly healthy. So far as domestic matters are concerned, various problems may arise which will not lend themselves easily for solution and may entail a perplexing and anxious state of mind and difficulties may be caused by your own relatives. But with Venus and Jupiter favourable, all these problems are likely to be satisfactorily resolved within the month itself.

Finance and Speculation.—The first half is fairly good for financial gains that some extra expenditure, even losses may prove inevitable. Practical work and enterprises will prove fruitful though the returns may not be realised within the month itself. This is also a good month to exploit new ideas, inventions and derive financial benefits from them, especially through machinery or as a reseult of mechanical ability. In the case of some, it would be found advantageous to leave the beaten track and take to new activities and change of environments. Speculation is not without its attractions this month but should be warily done, though it is also probable that there may be an unexpected stroke of luck.

Real Property, Services, Profession, etc.—The month is not a promising one generally for landlords and landholders, though ordinarily tolerable conditions may prevail during the greater part of the month. Yield and rental may be alright. It is almost certain that Saturn aspecting the fourth may affect major changes before he is through with the sign but this is no peculiar feature for this month only and wtth Jupiter in ninth and Venus too favourable, no acute troubles or losses may arise within this month itself. You should beware of being drawn into controversies, or disputes and quarrels at about the close of the month. From the point of view of the services, this month is quite equivocal. Apparently beneficial changes may not prove to be so in the long run and some unwelcome changes that happen to you this month, may prove to be productive of highly beneficial results in the not distant future. Within the month itself may be found dates that are highly propitious and some that are very disadvantageous to your interests. The same unsettled features will characterise the profession and business which are likely to experience much of ups and downs but never far from average levels.

For Women.—So far as women and interest peculiar to them are concerned, this month may be quite uneventful and likely to pass off without any important happening either good or bad. But by a few judicious and timely activities, it may be possible to improve one's social standing and become more popular in social circles but the nature of the transit influences may not permit uniform success in any achievements and one should be prepared for some setbacks and disappointments in between which may be due to causes entirely beyond your control.

Fortunate Dates.—Personal and private affairs, domestic matters, dealings with relatives, interviews, 5, —1, 6, 10, 15, 20, 24, 28; financial ventuse, money dealings and transactions—6, 11, 21, 26; short journeys—1, 6, 11, 17, 22, 31; long journeys—6, 21, 26; real property affairs, educational and academical activities—6, 11, 16, 21 25; children's affairs and prospects, speculation, excursion and

(Continued on page 354)

BHRIGUSAMHITA PADDHATI IN ENGLISH

Know Thy Fate and Thy whole Future Life as well as of others from the book which shows all like a mirror. Knowledge of Astrology is not necessary. Read all horoscopes easily with it. Even a wrong horoscope could be corrected. It is a dictionary and gives answer for all horoscopes.

Price Rs. 12: Foreign advance £ 1/9
(Postage Free)
Hindi Edn. Rs. 9 only.

Apply to BHAGWANDAS MITTAL
Naya Bazaar, Mathura, U.P.

Daily Guide

FOR MARCH 1959

BY MIHIRA

1. Sun.—L. D. 7 till 0–50 a.m. (night), then L.D. 8. Visakha till 11–30 a.m., then Anuradha. A.M.; Good for all purposes in general; specially favourable for matters connected with writings, literature, journalistic activitiess, etc. P.M.: Favourable for dealings with opposite sex, courtship, love affairs, etc., also for excursions, picnics, activities connected with arts.

2. Mon.—L.D. 8 till 10–40 p.m., then L.D. 9. Anuradha till 9–55 a.m., then Iyestha. A.M.: Unfavourable ingeneral; specially bad for journeys, physical and atheletic activities, dealings with opponents, rivals, Governmental and Corporate bodies, superiors generally. P.M.: Generally favourable good for occult activities, religious matters, journeys, dealings with opposite sex, literary and journalistic enterprises, pleasurable pursuits in general, also for financial matters.

3. Tues.—L.D. 9 till 8–45 p.m., then L.D. 10. Jyeshta till 8–30 a.m., then Moola. A.M.: Not good for social and public activities, journeys, interviews, literary and publication affairs, occult and religious interests. P.M.: Continues unfavourable for real property matters, dealings with tenants and servants and inferiors, money matters in general.

4. Wed.—L.D. 10 till 7–0 p.m., then L.D. 11. Moola till 7–20 a.m., then Purvashada. A.M.: Favourable for activities in art, music, dealings with public in general, journeys, dealings with opposite sex, courtship and love affairs. P.M.: Mixed conditions prevail ;not good for religious and occult interests; not bad for dealing with superiors, Governmental and Corporase bodies, contracts, etc.

5. Thurs.—L.D. 11 till 5–40 p.m., then L.D. 12. Purvashada till 6–30 a.m., then Uttarashada till 6–0 a.m. (night), then Sravana. A.M.: Favourable for pleasurable activities, physical and athletic matters, money dealings and transactions; but women have to be specially careful against undesirable attachments: P.M.: Unfavourable for journeys, dealings with superiors, Governmental and Corporate bodies and public in general, care during journeys necessary.

6. Fri.—L.D. 12 till 4–45 p.m., then L.D. 13. Sravana till 6–0 a.m. (night), then Dhanishta. A.M.: Favourable for journeys, correspondence, literary activities, religious and occult matters, money dealings and financial enterprises. P.M.; Continus favourable for journeys, physical and athletic matters, journeys, publications, interviews, money dealings financial enterprises, dealiings with opposite sex, courtship and love affairs.

7. Sat.—L.D 13 till 4–20 p.m. then L.D. 14. Dhanishta throughout day and night. A.M.: Favourable for romantic adventures, excursions, picnics, etc., but not for literary matters, dealings with public en masse, real property matters in general. P.M.: Unfavourable for all above matters as also for dealings with opposite sex.

8. Sun.—L.D. 14 till 4–20 p.m. then L.D. 15 (Amavasai). Dhanishta till 6–25 a.m. then Shatabisha. A.M.: Unfavourable for journeys, money dealings, matters connected with opposite sex, public en masse. P.M.: Favourable for dealings with opposite sex, Governmental and Corporate bodies, real property affairs, musical and artistic interests, theatre-going and enjoyments.

9. Mon.—L.D. 15 (Amavasi) till 4–55 p.m. then L.D. 1. Shatabhisha till 7–25 a.m. then Purvabhadrapada. A.M.: Bad for journeys and travels, likelihood of accidents but not bad for literary matters and popular activities. P.M.: Unfavourable for dealings with Governmental and Corporate bbodies, literary and academical activities, real property affairs and service matters in general.

10. Tues.—L.D. 1 of increasing half of lunar Phalguna month, then L.D. 2. Purvabhadrapada till 1–55 a.m. then Uttarabhadrapada. A.M.: Not favourable generally, specially unsuitable for journeys, interviews, activities connected with fine arts, money matters, opposite sex, and religious matters. P.M.: Favourable for interviews, dealings with superiors, Governmental bodies money matters in general.

11. Wed.—L.D. 2 till 7–30 p.m. then L.D. 3. Uttarashada till 10–50 a.m. then Revati. A.M.: Generally favourable, specially good for literary and journalistic activities, publications, journeys, contracts, dealings with Governmental and Corporate bodies and Religious matters. P.M.: Continues favourable generally but specially suitable for physical and athletic activities, sports, etc.

12. Thurs.—L.D. 3 till 9–20 p.m. then L.D. 4. Revati till 1–5 p.m. then Aswini A.M.: Favourable for journeys, excursions, picnics, dealings with opposite sex, courtship and love affairs, also for money matters in general. P.M.: Practically without any influences, good or bad. May be taken as mildly favourable for all ordinary matters.

13. Fri.—L.D. 4 till 11–10 p.m. then L.D. 5. Aswini till 3–25 p.m. then Bharani. A.M.: Favourable for real property matters in general, dealings with public en masse, journeys, from elderly people. P.M.: Unfavourable generally. Specially unsuitable for journeys, artistic and musical interests, service matters, dealings with superiors. Governmental and political bodies, contracts.

14. Sat.—L.D. 5 till 1–20 a.m. (night then L.D. 6. Bharani till 6–0 p.m. then Krittika, A.M.: Not good for journeys, dealings with Governmental and Corporate bodies, religious and occult matters, new beginnings and innovations; sudden and unexpected events, liable to be put under pressure, to do something unusual but which later on prove to be unfavourable, keeping to routine matters is essential. P.M. Same as A.M.

15. Sun.—L.D. 6 till 3–20 a.m. (night) then L.D. 7. Krittika till 8–35 p.m. then Rohini. A.M.: Favourable for service matters, dealings with superiors, Governmental bodies and public generally. But not favourable for journeys, literary and journalistic enterprises. P.M.: Unfavourable generally, continues evil for journeys, dealings with public, new departures and innovations in general.

16. Mon.—L.D. 7 till 5–0 a.m. (night) then L.D. 8. Rohini till 10–50 p.m. then Mrigasira. A.M.: Generally favourable for journeys, literary and activities, dealings with opposite sex, courtship and love affairs. P.M.: Favourable for journeys, literary activities, publishing, religious and occult interests, dealings with public.

17. Tues—L.D. 8 whole day and night. Mrigasira till 0–50 a.m (night) then Aridra. A.M.: Not favourable for physical and athletic activities, sports, dealings with rivals, litigation, etc. Not also favourable journeys, musical and artistic interests. P.M.: Good for journeys, excursions, picnics, courtships and love affairs, dealidgs with opposite sex in general. But not favourable for dealings with superiors and Governmental bodies, interviews, etc.

Scanned by www.sastrishop.com Courtesy of Sri B.V. Raman's Work

18. Wed.—L.D. 8 till 6-15 a.m. then L.D. 9. Aridra till 2-25 a.m. (night) then Punarvasu. A.M.: Nondescript influences prevail but general trends are mildly unfavourable. P.M: Unfavourable for journeys, real property matters, investments dealings with elderly people, interviews in general.

19. Thurs.—L.D. 9 till 7-30 a.m., then L.D. 10. Punarvasu till 3-45 a.m (night), then Pushya. A.M.-Bad for journeys, literary aetivities, interviews. publications, dealings. with Governmental bodies, religious and occult interests. P.M.: Mildly unfavourable generally for dealings with public en masse.

20. Fri.—L.D. 10 till 7-35 a.m., then L.D. 11. Pushya till 3-55 a.m. (night), then Aslesha. A.M.: Favourable for dealings with Governmental bodies, Corporations, contracts, dealings with superiors, interviews, journeys, money matters, etc., but not for dealings with opposite sex, courtship and love affairs. P.M.: Not good for journeys, physical and atheletic activities, sports, musical and artistic activities, romance, etc.

21. Sat.—L.D. 11 till 7-25 a.m., then L.D. 12. Aslesha till 4-0 a.m. (night), then Makha. A.M.; Mixed influences prevail; not good for religious and occult matters, journeys, etc., but favourable for literary and academical activities, interviews, publications, journalistic enterprises. P.M.: Unfavourable for dealings with superiors, service matters in general but good for dealings with opposite sex, courtship and love affairs, physical and athletic activities sports.

22. Sun.—L.D. 12 till 6-40 a.m., then L.D. 13 till 5-35 a.m. (night), then L.D. 14. Makha till 3-35 a.m (night), then Purvaphalguna. A.M.: Not good for matters connected with real estate, affairs of landlords and landholders, musical and artistic interests, romance and courtships, also journeys. P.M.: Favourable for literary and academical matters, tests, interviews, journeys, money dealings and enterprises.

23. Mon.—L.D. 14 till 4-5 a.m. (night), then L.D. 15. (Poornima). Purvaphalguni till 2-45 a.m. (night), then Uttaraphalguna. A.M.: Good for all matters pertaining to real estate, landlords and landhylders, journeys, service affairs, dealings with superiors, interviews, Governmental bodies—good alround. P.M.: Continues less favourable for all of the above matters except dealings with Governmental and Corporate bodies.

24. Tues.—L.D. 15 (Poornima) till 2-10 a.m. (night), then L.D. 1. Uttaraphalguna till 1-40 a.m., then Hastha. A.M.: Till sunrise, not good for travels, liability to accidents also for physical activities. Till noon: Generally favourable but specially good for journeys, dealings with superiors, Governmental and Corporate bodies, contracts, etc. P.M.: Favourable for money dealings and transactions, enterprises, religious matters, philanthropic activities.

25. Wed.—L.D. 1 till 0-5 a.m. (night), then L.D. 2. Hastha till 0-15 a.m, (night), then Chitta. A.M.: Not good for dealings with superiors, interviews, etc., service matters in general, nor matters pertaining to real property, journeys, literary and academical matters, etc. P.M.: Continues unfavourable for journeys especially by water, liability to accidents and hurts; great care necessary: avoid crowds.

26. Thurs.—L.D. 2 till 9-45 p.m., then L.D. 3. Chitta till 10-40 p.m., then Swati. A.M.: Good for journeys, literary and academical activitics, interviews, physical and athletic activities, sports, but not for romance and courtships and dealings with opposite sex in general, liability to entanglements. P.M.: Good for monetary and financial matters, ventures, investments, benefits from friends, favourable attachments.

27. Fri.—L.D. 3 till 7-25 p.m., then L.D. 4. Swati till 9-5 p.m., then Visakha. A.M.: Mixed conditions prevail; good for all matters connected with real estate, new friends. benefits from elderly people, also for investments, etc,, but not for journeys, liability to accidents. P.M.: Not favourable for dealings with Governmental bodies, interviews with superiors, religious and occult interests and actvities.

28. Sat.—L.D. 4 till 5-0 p.m., then L.D. 5. Visakha till 7-25 p.m., then Anuradha. A.M.: Very unfavourable conditions prevail in general; all important actions to be avoided particularly dealings with superiors, dealings with Governmental bodies, political activities, real property matters, investments. P.M.: There is no material improvement except late in night; hence useless for ordinary matters.

29. Sun.—L.D. 5 till 2-40 p.m., then L.D. 6. Anuradha till 5-50 p.m. then Jyestha. A.M.: Good influences' prevail in general; good for service matters, interviews with superiors, dealings with Governmental and Corporate bodies, contracts, interviews, journeys, literary and academical activities. P.M.: Continues favourable for all above matters and also for religious and accult interests and activities.

30. Mon.—L.D. 6 till 12-30 p.m., then L.D. 7. Jyestha till 4-25 p.m., then Moola. A.M.: Not good for journeys, liability to accidents, bad for all physical and athletic activities, sports, etc.; avoid litigation, quarrels, dealings with women in general, money dealings, etc., as also doubtful company. P.M.: Bad for dealings with relatives and associates, contracts, business matters, long journeys, etc.

31. Tues.—L.D. 7 till 10-30 a.m., then L.D. 1. Moola till 3-10 p.m., then Poorvashada. A.M.: Mixed influences exist; good for dealings with public, musical and artistic interests but not for dealings with opposite sex, romance, changes, removals, financial matters, real property affairs, investments. P.M.: Continues unfavourable for real property matters, dealings with Governmental and Corporate bodies, contracts, interviews, journeys, artistic and musical interests.

Sanatanadharma Astrology.com To Preserve Our Rishis Work

LIST OF FESTIVALS

HINDU

7. Mahasivarathri.
11. Ramakrishna Jayanti.
14. Karadayan Nombu.
21. Holika Pooja. Panguni Uttaram
24 & 25. Holi.
29. Vijaya Govindaji Halankar.

MOHAMMADAN

9. Syed Sab Mustoor Jabasha.
11. First of Ramadan.
13. Bibi Kadun Ejenath.
24. Nathath Avyulia Pasha.
31. Ali Iflae Ali Thaleep.

CHRISTIAN

1. Saint David.
15. Fashion Sunday.
26. Maundy Thursday.
28. Easter Eve.
29. Easter Sunday.

HOW IS THIS MONTH?

(Continued from page 351)

picnicf, courtship and love affairs—1, 4, 5, 10, 15, 20, 24, 28; service affairs and prospects—4, 14, 20; partnership matters, dealings with opposite sex in general—6, 11, 16, 21, 25; insurance activities, dealings with estate of deceased persons—1, 6. 11, 17, 22, 27; professional and business enterprises—1, 5, 10. 15, 20, 23, 28.

Critical Dases.—Personal matters, dealings with relatives, interviews, domestic affairs, etc.—8, 11, 19, 22, 31; moncy dealings and transastions, financial ventures and enterprises, standing surety—1, 9, 16, 18, 30; short journeys—4, 20, 29; long journeys—1, 9, 16, 23, 30; real property affairs, educational and academical activities, tests, etc.–3, 18, 25, 28, 31; children's affairs and prospects, speculation, excursions, courtship and love affairs—1, 4, 9, 16, 23, 30; service affairs and prgspects–2, 9, 17, 24, 31; partnerships, dealings with opposite sex in general—3, 18, 25, 28, 31; insurance activities, dealings with estate of deceased—4, 20, 27, 30; professional and business enterprises —8, 15, 19, 22, 29.

Chandrashtama from morning of 26th till morning of 28th.

Ready for Sale

JAIMINI SUTRAS

ADHYAYAS III AND IV

(English Translation)

With original sutras both in Devanagari and transliteration

By SUSIL KUMAR KAR, B.Sc.

AT LONG LAST THE LOST CHAPTERS OF JAIMINI HAVE BEEN RENDERED INTO ENGLISH WITH ELABORATE NOTES AND ILLUSTRATIONS. NO VERSION OF JAIMINI HITHERTO PUBLISHED CARRIES THE III AND IV CHAPTERS. THIS IS THE FIRST TIME THAT THESE TWO CHAPTERS HAVE SEEN THE DAY OF LIGHT

A Unique Opportunity for Students of Astrology to Possess this Magnificent Book

300 Pages Crown 1/8 Size Cloth Bound

Price Rs. 6 or Sh. 12. Postage extra.

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"SRI RAJESWARI" : : - BANGALORE-3

Sri Chakra Pooja

AT

SRI RAMANASRAMAM

TIRUVANNAMALAI

POOJAS A MONTH

WITH SIX PRIESTS

ACCORDING TO

Sapta Paddathi

Why not pray your problems at the Feet of

Sri Thripurasundari,

the Divine Mother?

Hundreds of devotees take advantage of this

Why don't you participate?

Remit Rs. 10/-

with Name, Gothra and Nakshatra to the Manager–President.

(No pooja can be performed except on the specified days: Fridays, Full Moon and first day of Tamil Month.)

Scanned by www.vedicupanishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B V Ramans Work

PANDIT SHARDANANDJI's monthly forecast report for any commodity can be had by payment of fees Rs. 25. An Annual client has to prepay Rs. 250. One can become an annual client from any English month for 12 months. Six monthly fees Rs. 130. For three months Rs. 70.

Annual chart for any commodity, shares script, bullions, or any metal can be had by prepayment of Rs. 100.

All astrological works and graha shantis are done. Questions on important problems are solved. Fee Rs. 25 per question.

No post cards are replied. Self addressed envelope must accompany if reply is desired.

Pandit Shardanandji

Shuklavas, PATDI P.O.

(Dist. Ahmedabad)

PATDI

Edited, Printed and Published by B.V. Raman at RAMAN PUBLICATIONS' PRESS, Sri "Rajeswari", Bangalore–3.

READY FOR SALE

BRIHAT JATAKA

OF VARAHA MIHIRA

English Translation by Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao with original slokas in Bold Devanagari

(FOURTH EDITION)

This is a monumental work written by Varahamihira the versatile genius of the first century B.C. and deals with the entire Science of Astrology in a masterly way. Brihat Jataka, as the author rightly asserts, is intended as a boat for all those who at first get despirited at the sight of the vast ocean of astrological knowledge but who wish to cross the same.

The book contains the invaluable commentaries of Bhattotpala which have made clear many of the obscure passages. Prof. Rao has given copious notes in his own inimitable style which facilitates easy comprehension.

CONTENTS

Scanned by www.saptarishiastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

Introduction, Explanation of Technicalities, Differences in Planets, Various forms of Birth, Conception and Peculiarities of this Phenomenon, Peculiarities of Birth, Balarishta or Early Death, Determination of Longevity, Periods and Sub-periods, Results of Planets, Means of Livelihood, Rajayogas, Nabhasa Combinations, Results of two Planets in Combination, Ascetic Combinations, Stellar Influences, Lunar Influences, Results of Planetary Aspects, Results of Planets in different Houses, Mixed Results, Misfortunes, Female Horoscopy, Combinations for Death, Lost Horoscopy, Drekkana Influences, etc.

In fact this is the one book that everyone should read for getting a thorough knowledge of the subject. Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao is hailed as Abhinava Varahamihira and his notes and the lucidity with which he has explained the principles merit your attention.

About 650 Pages, Glazed Paper, Cloth Bound, Rs. 12 or Sh. 2.

(Postage Extra)

Less 12½% to Subscribers of : THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

AS ONLY A LIMITED NUMBER OF COPIES ARE PRINTED, ORDER YOUR COPY AT ONCE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

"Sri Rajeswari" :: BANGALORE-3

Registered as a Newspaper in Ceylon—(No. 39-500) Reg. No. M. 4201

CROWN IS CROWN

USE ONLY INDIA'S BEST

CROWN  BRAND

Aluminium in all forms available:

- Sheets
- Circles
- Strips
- Rivets
- Wires
- Ingots
- Tubing
- Paint
- Powder
- Mouldings
- Corrugated sheets
- Ornamental extrusions, etc. etc,

ALUMINIUM UTENSILS

- They are made from PURE virgin Aluminium—harmless to human health.
- There is an experience of half a century behind the craftmanship of 'CROWN BRAND'—Modern shape—strong—easy to clean and last longer.
- They are easily available everywhere at economic prices.

⊙ ⊙ ⊙

Aluminium suitcases for school children and air travel and Anodised articles in different elegant fast colours, are our speciality.

We Manufacture:

- Rubber Coagulating pans
- Sandalwood oil bottles
- Radio horns
- Fan blades and canopy
- Tea basins
- Embrocation containers
- Carding cans
- Electrical shades
- Louvres and Roof water tanks for Railways
- Automobile castings
- Window frames
- Tower bolts-hinges, door handles, etc.
- Table wares and all industrial articles.

Scanned by www.sapthrishiastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

JEEWANLAL (1929) LIMITED

31, NETAJI SUBHAS ROAD,

CALCUTTA-1

BOMBAY	MADRAS	RAJAHMUNDRY	DELHI	ADEN
P.O. Box No. 562	P.O. Box No. 1389	Riverside	Subzimandi	(Arabia.)

AMAN PUBLICATIONS' PRESS

APRIL 1959
9862

THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

OUTLOOK FOR NEPAL

PLANETARY INFLUENCES FOR STOUTNESS

THE 1962 EIGHT-PLANET COMBINATION & WORLD AFFAIRS

ASTROLOGY AND CELIBACY

YOGA, PSYCHOLOGY AND PARAPSYCHOLOGY

PREDICTING SPECIFIC EVENTS BY MEANS OF TRANSITS

MATRIMONIAL MATCHING—A STATISTICAL APPROACH

TROINSKI'S TERTIARY DIRECTIONS—III

Edito
B.V. RA

THE FIRM

with

DISTINGUISHED IDENTITY!

Keshavlal & Co.

71, Sri Narasimharaja Road
P. O. Box No. 56
BANGALORE-2

TELEPHONE: 3027 Telegrams: "ALUBRASSCO"

Suppliers to the trade of :

"CROWN" & "SUN" Brand Aluminiumwares
"CROWN" Brand Anodisedwares
"SUN" Brand Stainless Steel & Brasswares
"FLAG" Brand I.C.C. Brass Sheets
AND
COPPER SHEETS
of all Specifications and Sizes
AND
ALUMINIUM Hard and Soft Sheets, Circles, Beadings, Strips, Wires, Rods, Rivets, Ingots, Scraps, Etc.

Enquiries Solicited

●

GOVERNMENT AUTHORISED DISTRIBUTORS

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Late B V Ramans Work

Statement about the ownership and other particulars about the newspaper THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE to be published in the first issue of every year after the last date of February.

FORM IV

Under Rule 8 of the Registration of Newspapers (Central) Rules, 1956

1.	Place of Publication ...	...	Bangalore
2.	Periodicity of its publication...	...	Once a month on every 9th
3.	Printer's Name ...	...	B. V. Raman
	Nationality ...	...	Indian by birth
	Address ...	...	"Sri Rajeswari", 115/1, New Extension, Seshadripuram, Bangalore-3
4.	Publisher's Name ...	...	B. V. Raman
	Nationality ...	...	Indian by birth
	Address ...	...	"Sri Rajeswari", 115/1, New Extension, Seshadripuram, Bangalore-3
5.	Editor's Name ...	...	B. V. Raman
	Nationality ...	...	Indian by birth
	Address ...	...	"Sri Rajeswari", 115/1, New Extension, Seshadripuram, Bangalore-3.
6.	Names and addresses of individuals who own the newspaper and partners or shareholders holding more than one per cent of the capital.		Sole Proprietor

I, B. V. Raman, hereby declare that the particulars given above are true to the best of knowledge and belief.

9—3—1959

(Sd.) B. V. RAMAN, Publisher.

The Astrological Magazine

Founded 1895 by Professor B. SURYANARAIN RAO
Edited by BANGALORE VENKATA RAMAN

Annual Subscription: India Rs. 12; Burma and Malaya Rs. 15; Foreign Sh. 24

PUBLISHED EVERY MONTH

By Raman Publications, "Sri Rajeswari", Seshadripuram, Bangalore 3, (India)

TELEPHONE No. 3296

New Series Vol. 23	APRIL 1959	No. 4
Old Series Vol. 48	VILAMBI—MAGHA 1880 S.S

9862

CONTENTS

		Page
1.	Outlook for Nepal	359
2.	As It Strikes Me. By Bhrigu	363
3.	Planetary Influences for Stoutness. By Agastya	365
4.	Sayana Versus Nirayana in Astrology—III. By Jyotish Chandra Ghatak, M.A. (Triple), M.R.A.S.	367
5.	The 1962 Eight-Planet Combination and World Affairs—A Symposium By Dr. P. S. Sastri, M.A., M.Litt., Ph.D.	371
6.	Astrology and Celibacy. By B. M. Bharadwaj, B.E., A.M.I.E.	373
7.	Yoga, Psychology and Parapsychology—XII. By Dr. V. M. Bhat, B.A., M.B.B.S.	375
8.	Predicting Specific Events by Means of Transits. By W. J. Tucker, D.Sc., Ph.D.	378
9.	Matrimonial Matching—A Statistical Approach. By Kasyapa Rama Sarma	381
10.	Astrology and Determination of Profession. By C. M. Ghosh	383
11.	Troinski's Tertiary Directions—III. By Dr. S. N. Dutt	387
12.	Lessons in Astrology—XIV. By Vidyabhaskara Prof. M. Ramakrishna Bhat, M.A.	389
13.	New Light on Jaimini Astrology—II. By M. K. Sastri	391
14.	The Kaleidoscope. By Yogiraj George Cecil Nixon	393
15.	Around the World. By Douglas Hunt, M.A.	395
16.	Electional Astrology. By K. V. Sivarama Iyer	397
17.	Letters to the Editor.	399
18.	Book Reviews. By Dr. R. Nagaraja Sarma, M.A., Ph.D., D.Litt.	403
19.	Your Scientific Difficulties Solved. By Mihira	407
20.	Weather Forecasts for April 1959. By D. R. Munsiff	410
21.	Astronomical Notes for April 1959. By S. K. Kar, B.Sc.	411
22.	Ephemeris for April 1959.	413
23.	Stars in Their Seasons. By M. V. Ramakrishnan, M.A., L.T.	414
24.	Hints for Agriculturists for April 1959. By Mihira	415
25.	Airways Guide for April 1959. By Mihira	416
26.	Market Forecasts for April 1959.	417
27.	How is this Month for You? (April 1959). By Mihira	422
28.	Daily Guide for April 1959. By Mihira	432

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com ©Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

THE WINNERS

The most unique and dependable work with a mathematical, astronomical and astrological basis for spotting out the winners in Racing. 1954 Model—Enlarged and neatly Stencilled, 170 pp foo Iscap size with 75 charts and 300 examples. Every chapter very lucidly written even for the novice to master the methods—highly praised by the purchasers, Rs, 300,

J. Donald, Bengal—" I had a big measure of success with very handsome dividends...Yours is a sure money-maker ".

N.K.P., Malaya—'It is the best... Worth more than 10 times its price.'

Asterisms and Flukes help you pick out all the Fluke days in any year and on any centre.

Printed in 2 Parts Rs. 30

No agencies for these anywhere. Order direct.

Literature and opinions posted free.

Dr. Bh. Satyanarayana Rao,
Author,
Circlepet, MASULIPATAM,
(S.India)

By Parimal Purkayastha

INDIAN ASTROLOGY AND DISEASES

Price Rs. 5.50

INDIAN ASTROLOGY, SEX, MARRIAGE AND CHILDREN

Price Rs. 6

Available from:

P. PURKAYASTHA
12-A, Netaji Subhas Road
CALCUTTA-3
OR
RAMAN PUBLICATIONS
" SRI RAJESWARI ", BANGALORE-3

Consult

Late Famous Astrologer···
Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao's Second Son
B. LAKSHMINARAIN RAU, B.A.
Retd. Govt. High School Headmaster,
17, East Anjaneya Temple Street, Basavangudi, Bangalore-4.
For your mental and bodily worries and proper remedial measures
Minimum charge for a detailed horoscope
Rs. 100 and upwards.
Enclose stamped covers for reply.

ASTRAL GEMSTONES

To determine the correct Astral Gemstone is the matter of experience.

For your Astral Gemstone apply with Birth Chart, time, date and place of birth.

KALEY & SONS
Department of Astral Gemstones
Wardha (Bombay State)

Consult Famous Astrologer
V. P. KANHERE
129, Shukurwar Peth, Poona City-2
Scientific Life Reading: Rs. 10
One Question: Rs. 2
Horoscope or Birth Time, Place, Date necessary.

NEW 4 HINDI PUBLICATIONS ON PREDICTIVE ASTROLOGY

Ravi-Vichar	... Rs. 1/8
Chandra-Vichar	... Rs. 2/-
Mangal-Vichar	... Rs. 2/8
Adhyathma Jyotish Vichar	... Rs. 10/-

All by Late H. N. KATWE
A Famous Indian Astrologer
Author of 25 Similar Books
Nagpur Prakashan,
Nagpur-1

KNOW YOUR FUTURE
Scientific Life Reading, Fees Rs. 10 only. Detailed Life Reading Fees Rs. 25 only. Answer to 3 queries Rs. 5.25. Please send copy of horoscope, birth-date and time with remittance. No V.P.P.
Gayatry's Astrological Services
P.O. Ratlam, (M.P.) India.

ALWAYS ADVERTISE
IN
The Astrological Magazine

Sri Chakra Pooja

AT
SRI RAMANASRAMAM
TIRUVANNAMALAI

SIX POOJAS A MONTH

WITH SIX PRIESTS
ACCORDING TO
Saparya Paddathi

Why not lay your problems at the Feet of Sri Thripurasundari,
the Divine Mother?
Hundreds of devotees take advantage of this
Why don't you participate?
Remit Rs. 10/-
with Name, Gothra and Nakshatra to the Manager-President.
(No pooja can be performed except on the specified days: Fridays, Full Moon and first day of Tamil Month.)

Scanned by www.sriptanjalisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

BOOKS

Numerology Made Easy	Rs. 3-50
How to be a success in Life	,, 3-50
Hand book of Seer ship	,, 7-50
Dictionary of Homoeopathic	,, 7-50
Money-making Formula	2-50

By V.P.P. Post Free
Write to A. K. BILLAWALA
G. P. O. Box No. 18, Bombay-1

GREAT CONJUNCTIONS

Know how these are going to help or hinder your progress. After 35 years of deep researches in astrology and allied sciences, contributor of over 1200 articles, author of Astro series and books on Philosophy, contributor of forecast section to many journals in India, I am for you now. Please write with 25 nP stamps for details of charges and publications. Special concession to the readers of this Magazine.

Hora Ratna R. G. Sapre, B.Sc., B.Psy.
RAHURI Dt.
Ahmednagar, RAHURI.

ज्योति विद्या संशोधन
पुस्तक क्रमांक ...
२ न ह / १८१

SAVE FOR A PURPOSE

You can provide for your child's education

'start in life or marriage

your retirement needs

or building a house

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

by regular monthly savings wisely invested with your Government in the NEW

CUMULATIVE TIME DEPOSIT SCHEME

DEPOSIT MONTHLY ▶	Rs. 5, Rs. 10, Rs. 20, Rs. 50, Rs. 100 or Rs. 200 every month.
YOU GET FOR EACH RS. 10 MONTHLY ▶	Rs. 650 at the end of five years; Rs. 1,450 at the end of ten years.
DEPOSIT LIMITS ▶	Rs. 12,000 for an individual and Rs. 24,000 for two adults jointly.
IF YOU CANNOT CONTINUE PAYMENT ▶	(a) breaks of 5 months and 10 months allowed for 5-year and 10-year deposits by extending the maturity dates;
	(b) proportionate amounts paid on maturity.

YOUR POST OFFICE SAVINGS BANK OR

NATIONAL SAVINGS ORGANIZATION

will be glad to assist you with further details.

DA-58/344

ANY PLANET THAT IS WEAK IN YOUR HOROSCOPE WILL CAUSE EVIL—
SUCH MALEFICS CAN BE WARDED OFF BY WEARING
ASTRAL GEMS AS RECOMMENDED BY
OUR RISHIS AND ANCIENTS

Planets Weak in your Horoscope	Likely Malefic Affect	Gems You Should Wear
Sun	BILIOUSNESS—RIGHT EYE COMPLAINT—GENERAL WEAKNESS	RUBY
Moon	PHYSICAL STRUCTURE—DIFFERENCE WITH MOTHER—LEFT EYE TROUBLE	PEARL
Mars	QUARRELS AMONG BROTHERS—TIMIDITY—TROUBLES OF FIGHTING NATURE	CORAL
Mercury	WEAK BRAIN—SLOW IN UNDERSTANDING—NERVOUS DEBILITY	EMERALD
Jupiter	IMPURE BLOOD—DISRESPECTFUL—OBSTINATE VIEWS	TOPAZ OR POKHRAJ
Sani	LOW MIND—WEAK BONES—RHEUMATIC COMPLAINT—LIAR—LOW CLASS ASSOCIATES	SAPPHIRE
Rahu	DISEASED BODY—PREJUDICED MIND	GOMEDAK
Kethu	WRONGLY CURSING THROUGH LIFE UNDER EVIL INFLUENCE OR MANTRIC POWER	CAT'S EYE
Sukra	CONJUGALLY UNHAPPY—HATER OF WOMEN—WEAKNESS OF ONE EYE	DIAMOND

We will help you to get a

QUALITY and GENUINE Astral Gem

SURAJMAL'S

JEWELLERS AND DEALERS IN QUALITY
GEMS SINCE 1895

313, ESPLANADE — MADRAS-1

Telephone: 2250 Telegrams: "MORALITY"

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

OUTLOOK FOR NEPAL

WHILST the lamps of democracy in several Asian countries have faded away giving place to authoritarian rule, the King of Nepal has launched an interesting experiment in his own country, viz., that of holding the first general elections. Whether the introduction of democracy of the western type into Nepal is a "big stride towards the shaking off the shackles of a medieval system of Government" or it is merely the beginning of political confusion, ultimately leading to stark authoritarianism, time alone should justify.

Scanned by www.santoshastrology.com To Preserve Dr. K V. Ramans Work

Before discussing the future of Nepal, we shall make a few observations as regards the astrological basis upon which predictions could be ventured. In his division of India into astrological units assigning different parts to different constellations, Varahamihira has not referred to Nepal at all. This is a handicap for students of astrology. However as Nepal is in the north-east of India, the triad of of stars, Makha, Pubba and Uttara allotted to this direction may also be considered to rule this country. Great changes have taken place during the last ten centuries in the various principal boundaries within India and it therefore seems somewhat uncertain to what extent this change of boundaries has affected or could affect the constellational rulerships. Geological features and the flora and fauna are also valuable aids in enabling us to astrologically classify a country. Nepal lying as it does at the foot of the hills, consists mostly of mountainous tract though there is also the tarai territory, a strip of cultivated and forest land lying along the southern border. The greater portion of Nepal however consists of swamps, jungles and forests. As regards fauna, wild beasts seem to abound the greater part of the country. This description seems to fit in with the characteristics of Leo, as depicted by Yavanacharya, viz., "a person roaming about in woods and hills-tracts; mountainous regions, caves and forests".

Nepal has an interesting history of her own. The Nepalese Vamsavali takes us back to a very early period in Kritayuga when the present valley was still a lake. The Vamsavali covers thousands of years of history involving Krita, Treta and Dwapara Yugas. Nepal, it appears, takes its name from Ne-Muni who is said to have founded the Gupta Dynasty in the beginning of Kali Yuga. Till the conquest of the country in 1324 by Harisimha Deva, the chronology of the Vamsavali is very confused. At this time Saturn was in Taurus Jupiter in Aries and Rahu in Libra. Saturn's disposition in the 10th in dwirdwadasa position to Jupiter in the 9th and Rahu's involvement in a shastashtaka disposition from Saturn denote internecine quarrels, fear and enmity. Upto the conquest of the country by Gurkhas in 1768, Nepal passed through a series of vicissitudes. By the end of 1768, Saturn was in Cancer causing sade-sathi and Rahu was in Aquarius aspecting the ruling sign. These transit positions do not mean much by themselves but they provide, however inadequate, a base for an astrological study of history in respect of a country, for it is evident that historical developments in regard to any country studied in the light of planetary combinations reveal that there is an obvious element of correlation between transits of certain major planets in certain zodiacal signs and development of outstanding events in the countries concerned. After the Gurkhas got hold of power in 1768 and before the independence of Nepal was recognised by the British on 21–12–1923, the country had to pass through lot of trouble involving wars with China, Tibet and the British, so that a student of astrology-cum-history can have lot of material on which he can build up the sign-rulership of Nepal. We propose however to consider Leo as the ruling sign of Nepal.

Though the rule of the hereditary Prime Ministers was overthrown in 1951, it cannot be a matter of chance that the King ended his direct rule when Saturn was in Virgo, Jupiter was in Taurus and Rahu in Capricorn. It was on 15th June 1953 that the King ended his direct rule and started the first experiments in democracy. The time at which the end of direct rule was announced is not known. Therefore one has to have recourse to Chandra Lagna.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

Leo the ruling sign of Nepal is hemmed in between Saturn and Kethu. The Moon, indicator of thinking, is afflicted by Kethu.

	Venus	Jupiter	Sun Mars Mercury
	CHART NO. 1		Moon Kethu
Rahu
			Saturn R

The political planet Sun is in a common sign with the military planet Mars aspected by Saturn, the ruler of the masses. All the malefics are involved in some way or other in mutual aspects. Excepting Saturn and the shadowy planet Kethu, the other planets are all in dwirdwadasa positions. These planetary dispositions are ominous enough and justify the political chaos which Nepal has witnessed ever since the end of Rana-regime. There has been a succession of Governments since 1931 but still life seems to meander along in a rather indolent way. In Chart No. 1, lord of the 10th Mars, who is also the Yogakaraka is in the 12th with 12th lord Mercury, aspected by Saturn, a maraka. This explains the ills that have be-devilled Nepali politics ever since the King's direct rule ended. It is clear that the Nepalese were not ripe for full responsible Government when the Ranas were deprived of their power.

According to newspaper reports Nepal went to polls at dawn on 18th February 1959.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com Transcribed by B V Raman Work

Kethu Venus		Mandi Mars	Moon		Mars		Mandi
Ascdt. Sun Mer	Chart No. 2 RASI			Kethu	NAVAMSA		Sat. Venus / Rahu
Sat.	Jup.		Rahu	Ascdt. Sun Mer.		Moon	Jup.

Before we analyse this chart, it would be interesting to refer to some details about these elections, which will continue even into the month of March. The number of contesting candidates is 830 for 109 seats in Pratinidhi Sabha. If all goes well, the Pratinidhi Sabha can be dissolved after five years. The Mahasabha to be constituted later will have 18 members to be nominated by the King and 18 by the Pratinidhi Sabha. The number of parties contesting the elections is nine, viz., the Nepal Congress, the Goorkha Parishad, the United Democratic Party of Dr. K. I. Singh, the two Praja Parishads, the Terai Congress, the Prajatantra Mahasabha, the Communist Party and the Nepali National Congress.

The "Polling" chart has many interesting features. Not knowing the horoscopes of the several parties contesting the elections it is not worthwhile making any predictions as to which party would win. We shall try to read the general outlook for the country and whether this experiment in democracy would be successful. Since the conservative planet Jupiter occupies the 10th and the democratic planet Saturn as lord of Lagna is in the 11th, we may venture to suggest that the Gurkha Parishad and the National Congress would get most of the votes. The election will largely be a battle among individual leaders struggling for power. Lord of the ascendant in a Dwiswabhava Rasi aspected by the martial planet Mars suggests grouping and re-grouping of parties after the election and it will not be possible to form a really stable Government. The lord of the 4th Venus is no doubt exalted but is in association with Kethu. The 4th house is occupied by Mars but aspected by Jupiter. This suggests that 'Land Reforms' such as the abolition of Zamindari will be attempted but much headway will not be made due to Jupiter's aspect on the 4th. But there will be a severe curtailment of the exploitation of peasants by the landlords. The 7th lord Sun is in Lagna, aspected by Saturn. Neither the 7th nor the 7th lord is subject to any benefic influences. Consequently Nepal will aslo try to follow the footsteps of India in regard to foreign policy—"friendship with all, no entanglement with any power block". On trade matters, there will be considerable friction with India. The 8th lord in Lagna and lord of Lagna being aspected by Mars are not very happy combinations. There will be attempts on the part of parties like the communists at law-breaking and especially when Mars transits Sagittarius, the law and order situation in the country will be in jeopardy and the wheels of day-to-day administration will be clogged owing to the personal rivalries and jealousies of political leaders.

With reference to the ruling sign of Nepal, which we have considered as Leo, the movements of the major planets during the next two years will not be happily disposed. Rahu is in the 2nd and gets into Leo by about the middle of May 1960. Saturn will of course continue to transit the 5th or house of thinking. Jupiter will be transitting the 4th and 5th signs. All these do not favour either stability or smooth functioning of democracy in Nepal. The young King will have lot of headache having to deal with complicated political and administrative problems. He will again be obliged to take over the administration and top-politicians will continue to show themselves incapable of unity. In the midst of all this confusion, the monarchy will be stable and the royal influence will hold together the people. In view of the difficult period ahead for Nepal, due to political developments, India should be ever vigilant and render guidance and assistance to our neighbour and help the King to maintain political stability. Stars for Nepal for the next few years are not cheerful. They denote danger of violent outbreaks within, communist infilteration and internecine jealousies and economic ills: whatever may be the blessings of democracy in other parts of the world, in Nepal the democratisation of public life is most likely to lead to anarchy. The King must try to steer clear of these hurdles with great effort, care and farsight.

—Written 28-2-1959.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com Courtesy Dr. B.V.Raman's Work

GRAHA AND BHAVA BALAS (SIXTH EDITION)

A Unique Treatise for measuring the Strengths of Planets and Houses numerically .

By B. V. RAMAN

An entirely new book on Mathematical Astrology. The first real effort to present the complicated methods of assigning planetary and house strengths in a popular and easy style. Suitable for even laymen, it is just what enquirers have long been seeking containing as it does everything necessary for a quick and accurate study of astrological mathematics so very essential for correct predictions. Experts and students will welcome this new publication.

Rs. 3-75 or Sh. 7/6 :: Postage Extra

Order your Copy at once. Less 12½% to Subscribers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE.

As it STRIKES ME

BY BHRIGU

Astrology and Science Congress

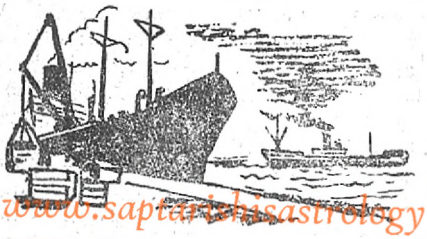
RECENTLY the Government of India brought forth a short brochure of eighty-eight pages on " Scientific Research ". This is intended to give an account of the work turned over by the National Laboratories. There is also a mention of the atomic research. Scientific research, however, has two important aspects. One refers to its utility in the development of the industrial and social life. The other concerns fundamental research in pure science. Of late it has become customary to derive applied science from pure science. Whatever may be the fact, it is an undeniable truth that what our country needs today is a carefully planned industrial development which should not run counter to the basic human values. To this end we need either an application of the available scientific discoveries or a new scientific discovery.

For more than four decades we are having annual gatherings of scientists in the country. In the same manner, historians, philosophers, economists, educationists, and orientalists are having their annual conferences and Congresses. Still our orientalists have not done anything spectacular beyond what the western orientalists have shown. Inspite of our educational conferences the pay-scales of the teachers do not compare favourably even with the income-tax paid by some of our politician-statesmen ; and our educational system continues to be the same old foreign one. Our philosophers are busy speculating on the linguistics of Viennese and American thinkers, all the while remaining indifferent to their traditions and to the problems of Indian life. Our historians have not yet been able to offer even a correct chronological history of the country. And our Science Congress has not shown even one valuable discovery.

The holding of each such Congress or Conference annually means spending a few thousand rupees. In addition to this, the U.G.C. and other bodies give large sums of money for institutions and individual scientists. Recently we had a Science Congress at the capital and the Golden Jubilee celebrations of the Indian Institute of Science, at Bangalore. These two must have resulted in the spending of very huge funds at a time when the Government is talking of loans atbroad. The sums spent at the time of these Conferences could as well have been canalised properly. For instance, every time we have a session of the A.I.C.C. a new Nagar is built up at a great cost ; and after the session, the Nagar disappears. This wastage is unpardonable at a time when the national economy is struggling and when we are going abroad a begging.

Moreover, all our Laboratories have imposing edifices. They are equipped with great gusto and we have highly paid staff too. But have they discovered any thing of value? We all remember Dr. C.V. Raman's discovery ; and it is ironical that this great scientist has nothing to do with any of our National Laboratories or with the Indian Science Congress. Instead of utilising the services of such men, the Government appears to be building their Laboratories with the help of others. The others may be brilliant scholars and experts ; there is no reason why the services of those who have already made a mark should not made use of. And the Science Congress too has now become a department of the Governmental machinery. Before further sums are spent on these and on other organisations the people have a right to know how the finances are spent and what contributions these present Associations and Institutions have made to the advancement of science in India.

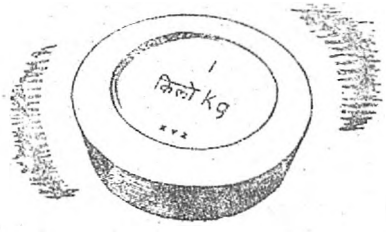
All this sorry tale goes hand in hand with a concerted cry against more useful branches of science. If even a tenth part of these resources is kept apart and made available to research in astrology the astrologers can show better results especially in meteorology and psychology. Everyone knows the notorious weather forecasts of our scientists. Their notoriety springs from their statistical basis. In astrology an important section is devoted to meteorology. Varahamihira and others have given us valuable principles in order to forecast the daily weather, rainfall and the like. If one begins collecting the proverbs of the farmers, he will know how much of Varahamihira's astrological lore has filtered into the minds of the masses : and these farmers are better guided by these proverbs which are continuously being verified. Now in the light of the astrological principles, the student of astrology can interpret the data more accurately



(Continued on page 366)

Scanned by www.sanskritibharati.org Archives of Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

TWO Great BENEFITS



The change-over to the Metric System of Weights and Measures will benefit us in two important ways. At home, there will be an end to the confusion and loss arising from innumerable systems.

We will at the same time have the system which has been internationally well established. The Metric System is recognised the world-over.

Scanned by www.sapthrishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

The first step in achieving this two-fold objective is the use of Metric Weights already introduced in selected areas of the States and industries.

METRIC SYSTEM

for Simplicity and Uniformity

DA 68/133

ISSUED BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

Planetary Influences for Stoutness

BY AGASTYA

IT must be be borne in mind that, while habits have an influence on body and mind, they do not form the entire causes and cannot explain human vagaries in colors and statures. Planetary influences must be considered with reference to the determination of the mind and the mysterious power of the soul or jeeva in the body. After the life leaves the body, its stoutness or leanness is supposed to be subjected to the all-powerful Vayoo (air) called Dhananjaya which spreads entirely over the body and begins its work of putrefaction and separation of the Pancha Mahabhootas into the various elementals. This question is very interesting and deserves to be carefully studied in its proper place. If the lord of the Navamsa occupied by the birth lord joins with Sun, Mars or Saturn or occupies any of the 'lean' signs, then the body will be lean or emaciated. The emaciation depends upon the intensity and strength of the evil planets and that of the Lagna. The three planets named above are purely evil planets and therefore it may be safely asserted that if evil planets occupy Lagna, or join with its lord, stoutness ought not to be pridicted. This statement again has to be modified with reference to the signs which are occupied by the evil planets or in which the Lagna falls. Suppose birth is in Cancer or Pisces and Sun, Mars or Saturn occupies it, or joins the lord of Lagna, then much leanness ought not to be predicted. Suppose Scorpio, Aries or Leo or Aquarius is occupied by Jupiter or Venus, much stoutness ought not to be predicted. The reader is expected to use his knowledge and judgement carefully and summarise the various sources of strength and weakness before he makes his predictions. Then again, if the birth falls in a lean sign and its lord joins with Guru or Sukra, emaciation ought not to be predicted. If the birth falls in a lean rasi, and all the lean planets occupy that without favourable conjunctions or aspects, then the person will have a withered body and will be subjected to constant ill-health and chronic complaints like piles, asthma, dyspepsia, diabetes or general debility. In some of the works on astrology, the word nasa is used. Searching for its meaning, two interpretations are found and they are (1) Nasa means—the 8th house from Lagna and (2) the 12th house from Lagna. Nasa generally means destruction or loss and we may well select the 12th house instead of the 8th. The general principle of the bodily comfort is based upon the good position of the lord of birth and when he occupies the 12th or house of loss from it, this must necessarily refer to loss of healh or loss of the normal development of the body. The 6th, 8th and 12th houses are called dusthanas or evil houses, and if the lord of Lagna occupies any one of them then the signification (Bhava) indicated by him, viz., body—must suffer. But the word Nasa referring to the 8th house means loss of normal development in the physical body and we humbly suggest that the word Nasa in the books may be taken to be the 12th house instead of the 8th. However our personal experiences have shown us that the body suffers much when its lord occupies the 8th house also. Guru has been specially described as a stout planet and if he occupies the lagna, and if it falls in a watery sign, the person becomes stout, and puts forward flesh rapidly. Astrological writers describe combination for leanness and after that they commence with planetary conjunctions for corpulence or stoutness. Leanness is less than normal bulk, and the combinations for it are well given by astrological writers. Habits are considered as second nature, and by some scientists even greater than nature. Habits give also stoutness or leanness as they are constantly practised. While there is the general resultant of the previous Karmaic deeds to give the person's human frame particular shapes, the localities, occupations, food, modes of thought, habits of life, surroundings, and various other hygienic causes, have a great tendency to make the bodies stout, ordinary or lean. Good physical exercises, like military training, active and energetic habits of walking, riding, digging, drawing water, gymnastic exercises, act as powerful preventives to make the body stout, they serve equally well to improve the condition of very lean persons and give their bodies a much better appearance than what they would have been without them. Watery signs, watery planets and watery conjunctions pre-indicate a tendency to develop the flesh and make it stout, sometimes very abnormally. Dry planets, signs and conjunctions, on the other hand, have a great tendency to make the bodies abnormally lean and repulsive. By a study of the astrological principles, and knowing the future tendencies of the planetary influences, the persons concerned may at once take to such exercises and habits as would neutralise these future

Scanned by www.sapthrishisastrology.com Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work tendencies, and preserve their bodies, from either becoming unbearably stout, or disagreeably lean. Bodies offer different stages of development under different planetary combinations and aspects. There are some individuals who are unpardonably lean in the commencement of their careers, and who after some years become very stout, quite against their expectations. The reverse also holds good in many instances. These vagaries ar explained by the directional influences operating from time to time-.

AS IT STRIKES ME

(Continued from page 363)

and the astronomical observations will be of great help to him. Such a planned study needs finaces and equipment. If some of our Laboratories and institutions can take up the astrological study of weather and rainfall, it will be more useful to the agriculturists.

Similarly astrology is of great value in the psychological study of man, and in assessing the psychological fitness of an individual for any profession or occupation. And Professor Jung employed astrology for medical purposes, for enabling the psychiatrist to know his patient thoroughly. These varied uses by themselves provide a compelling reason why the psychological approach to man should be made through astrology. This psychological value is widely recognised by many who do not know astrology as such. And yet our scientists are afraid of pursuing such a study.

We have no quarrel with the scientists as such; nor have we any quarrel with the National Laboratories and with the Science Congress. We wish them well; and we respect them even when we are not directly benefited by their activities. We only plead for a useful, for a more useful activity on the part of our scientists; and in order to be useful to the nation they can take up an astrological study of the weather problems and of the psychological problems. If they do so, they themselves will be in a position to demonstrate to the world and to themselves the scientific character of astrology; and at the same time they will be able to serve the people of the country in a much better manner. It is not too late to begin a sympathetic investigation on astrological lines.

Scanned by www.sapturishisastrology.com To Visit B V Ramans Work

A WARNING

This is to warn all our readers and the general public that some unscrupulous person has been visiting different places of Rajastan and other States posing himself as Mr. B. V. Raman and thus impersonating as our Editor. By so impersonating, this person (whose photo appears marginally) is alleged to have induced some persons to part with money on the pretext of making predictions. We have reported the matter to Bangalore Police. We advise the public not to be misled by such impostors and further request them to kindly initimate to the nearest Police Station whenever they come across the alleged impostor. This is also to inform the public that whenever our Editor visits any place on professional work, the information will be generally published in THE ASRTOLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

Manager,

THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

*Sayana Versus Nirayana in Astrology—III

BY JYOTISH CHANDRA GHATAK, M.A. (TRIPLE), M.R.A.S

NOW I shall discuss only a few personal characteristics of a few distinguished persons.

(1) Lord Chaitanya's great love and devotion for God is very well explained by the Nirayana system where the lord of the 5th house, which represents devotion and love is Jupiter, who is very powerful in his own joy-house Sagittarius and is in conjunction with Mars (the fiery planet) there; whereas in the Sayana method the lord of the 5th house is Saturn and he is in the 4th house (Sagittarius). The fiery and cheerful and ever-glowing devotion of Gouranga is in keeping with facts, and the silent secluded and icy ascetic's love, in aloofness of society and mankind, which belongs to the planet Saturn, does not at all accord with the actual nature and career of Lord Chaitanya. (2) The Poet Shelly's elopement with Miss Harriet Westbrook to Edinburg in September 1811 in a mood of pity and commiseration and his further elopement with Mary Godwin to Switzerland in July 1814, are very nicely accordant with Nirayana Saturn who is not only in his house of fall (Aries) but also is in a chara or movable sign, in the 5th house (the house of love) and fully aspected by Mars the lord of the 12th house (the house of elopement). The movable sign which is the 5th house here, shows with clear perspective that the elopement should happen to a very distant land. The Sayana planets cannot stand the test here. Again, the suicide of Shelly's second wife and the leaving away of his first, are fully accordant with the Nirayanic system, where the lord of the 8th of Shelly's 7th house (wife) i.e., Saturn, is in his house of fall and fully aspected by the malign planets Mars and Neptune. (3) The death of the father of the poet Keats in 1804 through a riding accident is also nicely explained by the Nirayana planets alone and not by the Sayana ones. Keat's Sun, the indicator of father (Nirayana) is in the house of Fall (Libra) conjoined with Neptune and the 8th house (the house of death) from the Sun is also occupied by Nirayana Saturn (the planet of fall) in Taurus (a sign which indicates domesticated quadruped animals). (4) The poet Goethe who was one of the greatest of lovers the world has ever seen, had his first love-affair at the age of 15, but the love was not the immature or puerile love of a boy budding into youth but was the serious love of a full-grown adult. Goethe had a great succession of love affairs, and even at the ripe age of 80, he was found making love to a girl of 16. These facts, as well as the incident of his marrying a fat, ugly, intemperate woman, are all superbly accordant with the Nirayanic position of planets. The lord of 5th (Saturn) being almost in the cusp of the Ascendant and in his exalted house Libra (Nirayana) is a fact which alone can explain such an exuberance of love propensity which the poet manifested. His lord of the 7th Mars (Nirayana) is in Jupiter's (the fat-creating planet) house, and in the Navamsa of Cancer, of a watery sign. His Venus (the natural lord of the 7th) is in Virgo, his house of fall (this clearly accounts for the wife's being both intemperate and ugly) in full aspect to Jupiter (fat) in his own watery sign Pisces (Nirayana).

The calculations from date of birth-months, i.e., from Sun's position in different signs, is a very important study in this connexion. The Sayana system of computation would be found here to be pretty fairly correct and sometimes even astoundingly accurate; but there are instances where Nirayanic basis tallies more accurately while the Sayana basis even totally fails. Take for example the poet Rabindranath's birth date, viz., 6th May (Indian: 7th May English because after mid-night) or Shakespeare's birthday viz., 4th May (NS). They are the greatest poets of the world and their originality of conception and robustness of expression are really without parallel. This highly accords with Nirayana Aries (the Head or Brain of Kalapurusha) as the birth sign. It is well-known to all astrological scientists that the Taurus or "Bull" nature is rather that of an originalist and "Taurus" is at the farthest point from creativeness. (Besides, it is also worthy of note that people born from 4th to 8th May more often suffer from Head (Aries) complaints than from throat (Taurus) troubles; we further find from the birth dates of great satirists (satires often carry a pungency or "sting" in their caustic and scolding remarks of men and things) e.g., Sterne (Nov. 24), Jonathan Swift (Nov. 30), Mark Twain (Nov. 30), Mark Lemon (Nov. 30) and similar other writers of satire who really carry always a "sting" in their writing, which essentially belongs to Scorpio as a characteristic. It should be further noted that Mars who is the lord of Scorpio is a fiery planet burning and scalding

Scanned by www.sriguruastrology.com TO Preserve Dr B V Raman's Work

* The first two parts of this article have appeared in February and March 1959 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

things and it highly fits with the burning and scathing remarks of the Satirists.

Sir Francis Burnand, the famous editor of the Punch, who was born on November 29, is also more a Scorpio person than a Sagittarian one, when judged from the stinging remarks and representations characteristic of the famous paper Punch. The great scientist late Sir J. C. Bose (born Nov. 30). was a person of secretive habit, secludedly and solitarily passing his hours in a Science Laboratory in search of the mysterious Laws of Nature (the occultism of Science) which very pronouncedly marks out Scorpio as his sign.

The great novelist, Sir Walter Scott who was born on August 15, 1771, has his Nirayana Sun in Cancer (Moon's own sign) a sign of fertile and high-flowing imagination. The high level of his writing and his prolificness are quite compatible with the Sun in Cancer in the Navamsa of Pisces which sign is not only watery but very productive and fertile, and also happens to be Jupiter's (wisdom's) own house. Bernard Shaw born July 26 is also a Nirayanic Cancer person and the Navamsa happening to be Libra, the sign and the Navamsa together, exactly describe his taste and his type of writing. Rudyard Kipling (Dec. 30) is more a Sagittarian than a Capricornian. Here also the Nirayana method is more in conformity. Charles Dickens (Feb. 7), Ruskin (Feb. 8) and Charles Lamb (Feb. 10) are all of them more Capricornian than Aquarian, and the Virgo (Mercury) Navamsa of Charles Lamb gives him witness in the midst of the Capricornian (Saturnine) seriousness and gravity. Victor Hugo (Feb. 26) is clearly an Aquarian and and is certainly not a Piscean. According to the Nirayana School, he was born in the 2nd decanate (Mercurian) of Aquarius in which decanate, born students of human nature come into this earth. They have a natural gift for mixing easily with strangers and to get themselves adjusted and accommodated to their habits and manners and are none-the-less extremely amiable and courteous. This nature admirably fits Hugo. The 16th degree of Aquarius happens to be in the Vargottama Navamsa of Aquarius, and Saturn's best qualities are found in him in pre-eminence.

According to the Nirayana method the poet Rabindranath was born in the 3rd decanate of Aries in the 8th (Scorpio) Navamsa. The 3rd decanate is a Sagittarian. There is in him the shrewd and thorough comprehension of men and things which belongs to Aries especially to its 3rd decanate. This 3rd decanate belonging to Jupiter or Jove, is well calculated to make men glad and wise by the native's cheering and sagacious (philosophical and soothing) words and writing.

Mahatma Gandhi's position of the Sun at birth was in Virgo (Nirayana) but in Libra (Sayana). Those born in Virgo are descriminative, critical and shrewd but still never lacking in methodicalness or industrialness or practicality. Virgo's characteristics have very nicely been described by Alan Leo and I cannot resist the temptation of quoting it here:—"This is the sign for the businessman, the individual who is keenly alive on the physical plane who does not doubt the existence of the spiritual, but who wastes no time in dreaming or speculating on the unseen, endeavouring to bring all things down to the sensible matter-of-fact everyday world. Those born in the sign are self-possessed, cool and careful, painstaking, cautious and at the same time active, tactful, alert and ingenious with an ever open eye to the main chance. Being for the most part evenly balanced and cool-headed Virgo people make few pretensions, preferring to work quietly and unobserved. Nothing can describe Mahatma Gandhi more fully and accurately than the lines quoted above. Specially those born in the 2nd decanate are "the best types of Virgo, being more thorough." Besides, he was born while the Sun was in the 6th (Gemini) in Virgo Navamsa (according to Nirayana) which also speaks of his rationalistic basis conjoined with a full matter-of-fact business sense and ability.

I shall conclude my paper with a discussion of the different degrees of the Zodiac as characterising a person. Here also I have found the Nirayana method most happily accordant. I shall cite here only one salient instance. Mahatma Gandhi had the seventh (7°) of Libra rising (Ascendant) according to the Nirayana system. This 7th degree of Libra is really a Messianic one and is amazingly accordant with the Mahatma's wonderful personality. Let me quote from Charubel.—Libra 7°: "An angel standing in mid-air with a long scroll in his hand, unfolded. The scroll is covered with writing"—Indeed Mahatma has a real message—a new message—viz., the message of peace and cosmopolitic brotherhood. The scroll indicated in the symbol shows his businesslike attitude and procedure. I cannot but quote here from Kozminsky about the 7th degree of Libra as mentioned in his Zodiacal Symbology—"A winged globe on the back of sporting dolphin"—"Denotes one with a great message, who will travel everywhere and whose thoughts and feelings are expanded and uplifted thereby. His wanderings are often directed beyond this earth to the heavenly fields and the lands closed to those held in material bodies. He is capable of performing many good acts for others and is ever ready to resist actions unworthy of a true man, holding meanness in contempt. It is a symbol of movement". How graphically and and fundamentally is this picture true to Mahatma. The representation of the symbol (as indicated by the degree rising) is drawn, as it were, with mathematical accuracy.

Scanned by www.freeastrologybooks.com to Preserve Dr. B. V. Raman's Work

But I must not multiply instances from an endless list. The consideration of the position of the different planets in different signs (both Sayana and Nirayana) is alone an immensly vast subject.

In fine, I would like to draw the attention of those interested in Astrology to the fact that even the present wars, were so accurately predicted by the Indian Panchanga-makers, long before their occurence, not only in the matter of the countries which were to be involved but also in the exact time of direction of such events, from a purely Nirayanic standpoint. But most of the Sayana predictors (e.g., Naylor and others) have awfully failed by predicting that there can be no war in 1940.

It would not be out of place to mention here that even Bhrigu (the wonderful Astrologer-Seer of India) is startling the world by his amazingly accurate prediction basing all his calculations on the highly scientific Nirayanic standpoint.

—Reprinted from January 1941 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

Important Books

By Prof. B. SURYANARAIN RAO

Female Horoscopy.—This book describes and exemplifies the full method of working the horoscopes of women. 4th Edition. Rs. 4.50 or Sh. 9.

Jaimini Sutras.—English Translation. A most scientific system of astrology which entirely departs from the conventional methods. This is a book the type of which has never been published before. 3rd Edition. Cloth bound. Rs. 6 or Sh. 12.

Brihat Jataka of Varahamihira.—English Translation with original slokas in Devanagari, elaborate notes, etc. 4th Edition. Rs. 12 or Sh. 24.

By B. V. RAMAN

Astrology for Beginners.—The best book for beginners. 10th Edition. Rs. 2.25 or Sh. 4/6.

A Manual of Hindu Astrology.—Gives a clear and concise account of the essential principles of Hindu Astrology. 5th Edition. Rs 4.50 or Sh. 9.

Astrology and Modern Thought.—The rationale of astrology has been ably expounded and the truth of the subject statistically proved. 3rd Edition. Rs. 2.25 or Sh. 4/6.

Hindu Predictive Astrology.—Contains a clear exposition of all branches of astrology in a graduated form casting the Horoscope, finding Dasas, Predicting all events correctly, Medical Astrology, National Astrology, Horary, Transits, etc. Full Cloth bound. 440 pages. 5th Edition. Rs. 9 or Sh. 18.

Graha and Bhava Balas.—A Guide to Predictive Astrology. Cloth bound. Rs. 3.75 or Sh. 7/6.

How to Judge a Horoscope.—The most complete and extensive work. Illustrated by 110 actual charts. Cloth bound. 2 Pts. Now ready. Rs. 10.50 or Sh. 21.

Varshaphal or the Hindu Progressed Horoscope.—Gives an easy method for deciphering yearly results scientifically. Full Cloth bound. 6th Edition. Rs. 3 or Sh. 6.

Ayurveda or the Hindu System of Medicine.—Gives an idea of the grandeur and importance of Ayurveda. 4th Edition. Re. 1 or Sh. 2.

Notable Horoscopes.—A book of outstanding importance on Practical Astrology. Pp. 430. Rs. 7.50 or Sh 15. Deluxe Edn.: Rs. 10.25 or Sh. 20/6.

Three Hundred Important Combinations in 2 Parts.—Gives a masterly exposition of Yogas. Rs. 9 or Sh. 18.

Electional Astrology or Muhurtha.—A book of practical importance enabling you to make use of astrology in day-to-day affairs 200 Pp. Antique Paper. Cloth bound. 2nd Edition. Rs. 7.50 or Sh. 15.

Studies in Jaimini Astrology.—Presents the complicated principles contained in the four chapters, calculation and interpretation of Dasas suggested by Jaimini in a simple, comprehensive and attractive manner with suitable illustrations. Rs. 6 or Sh. 12.

Ask for a free descriptive Catalogue Less 12½% to Subscribers:

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS

Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

Scanned by Archive Thisastrology.com. All Rights Reserved By B.V Ramans Work

READY FOR SALE

NOTABLE HOROSCOPES

By B. V. RAMAN

A reliable guide to Practical Astrology

This does not contain startling predictions and amazing forecasts. But it is the product of investigations and studies by the Author presented here in an orderly and specific form but in simple language easily understandable by the average readers.

One is born a beggar but becomes a ruler. One is born a ruler but becomes a begger, How and Why? What combinations make one a Scientist, Physicist, Chemist, Botanist, Poet, Politician, Statesman, Artist, Murderer, Dissimulator, etc.

Though several circumstances are the same for the rich and the poor alike, there will be certain astrological peculiarities in Notable Horoscopes (e.g., Tagore, Nehru, Hitler, C. R. Das, Prof. Rao, Einstein, etc.) which are easily discernible and a careful study of which would enable one to acquire that practical knowledge and experience which is otherwise impossible.

This work shows that birth date and time are of supreme importance as determining not only character but also eventful periods of life.

The book contains the horoscopes of notable persons—their birth data, planetary positions, Dasas and Bhukthis in which important events have taken place in their lives. Then the various combinations which have produced different types of great men are carefully analysed with a view to showing to the readers, the practical application of Raja Yogas, Daridra Yogas and the like. The book also demonstrates the truth of Vimshottari Dasa.

SOME OF THE HOROSCOPES CONTAINED IN THE BOOK

Sri Krishna, Adi Sankara, Akbar, Alexander, Gautama Buddha, Jesus Christ, Prophet Mahomed, Augustus, Goethe, Aurangzeb, Gandhi, Ramakrishna Paramahamsa, Vivekananda, Tilak, B. Suryanarain Rao, Aurobindo Ghose, Ramana Maharshi, Sri Thyagaraja, Sri Vidyaranya, Rabindranath Tagore, Hitler, Mussolini, Abraham Lincoln, Subhas Bose, Jagadish Bose, Milton, Savarkar, Annie Besant, Bernard Shah, Godse, Stalin, Nehru, Eisenhower, Maotse-Tung, C. R. Das, Ashutosh Mukherjee, Sree Chaitanya, Karl Marx, Nero, Duke of Windsor, etc.

And also horoscopes illustrative of extreme religiousness, suicidal tendencies and certain other definite traits.

Crown Octavo : 415 Pages

Ordinary Edition : Glazed Paper & Cloth Bound : : PRICE : Rs. 7/50 or Sh. 15

Deluxe Edition : Art Paper & Rexine Bound PRICE : Rs. 10/25 or Sh./206

Order your copy at once.

Less 12½% to Subscribers of : THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

Raman Publications, "Sri Rajeswari", Bangalore-3

The 1962 Eight-Planet Combination & World Affairs—A Symposium

[As readers are aware, there is going to be a combination of eight planets in Capricorn (Aquarius according to Sayana or the movable Zodiac,) on 2nd February 1962. The subject has been dealt with by us not only in August 1957 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE under the caption The Third World War, but reference has also been made to this great concentration of force in one part of the heavens, in our inaugural address to the All-Kerala Astrological Association, at Trichur. This unique celestial combination seems to have excited the curiosities of a large section of the educated public to such an extent that many of them have suggested the subject being discussed in a more detailed manner.

Those intending to participate in this symposium can kindly prepare a suitable paper and send the same for publication at an early date. It is left entirely to one's discretion whether to interpret the combination astrologically or astronomically, on the basis of the Nirayana or Fixed Zodiac or Sayana or Movable Zodiac. You have to set out what in your opinion, are the likely results to happen as a consequence of this eight-planet combination in the world as a whole with reference to the different countries, and/or in regard to individuals born in different signs. All points of view—whether based on ancient classical writings or on modern western texts or on one's own experience, are welcome.—Ed., A.M.]

PAPER No. 1 BY DR. P. S. SASTRI, M.A., M.LITT., PH.D.

IN an age when no opportunities are provided either by the society or by the academic institutions or by the Government, to pursue a systematic and scientific study of astrology, Prof. B. V. Raman has been good enough to offer the columns of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE for a discussion on a problem that has already begun to give rise to all kinds of speculations. In February 1962, eight bodies (...seven, if we omit the Node) are to transit in an area that comes within the orb of conjunction. Some, claiming astrological support, have already started prophesying a disastrous war, while others are brushing it aside as a trifle. This symposium will throw considerable light for a co-ordinated study.

First let us look at the planetary positions, which are as follows at 5–30 a.m. (I.S.T.)

For the sake of convenience and uniformity, we have here adopted 23° 19′ as the ayanamsa. From this table, it is clear that Sun, Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Kethu are in conjunction on the 4th February, while Moon, Saturn and Mars are in conjunction. Through the Moon we find Mars and Saturn also are brought nearer the first group. By the morning of the 5th, Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Kethu are in conjunction. Mars and Saturn are within the orbit of the Moon. Thus in a way we can speak of an eight-planet combination on the 4th and 5th of February. By the 6th, only Sun, Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Kethu are together. The most important day thus appears to be only the 5th February. From the Sayana position, this combination appears in Kumbha (Aquarius). But some of us who have inherited the Nirayana tradition and who believe in its validity, find this combination in Makara (Capricorn).

	4—2—1962				5—2—1962				6—2—1962
	Sayana		Nirayana		Sayana		Nirayana		Sayana		Nirayana
	°	′	°	′	°	′	°	′	°	′	°	′
Sun	314	42	291	23	315	43	292	24	316	43	293	24
Moon	302	12	278	53	316	59	293	40	331	37	308	18
Mercury	317	47R	294	28R	316	37R	293	18R	315	24R	292	5R
Venus	316	12	292	53	317	28	294	9	318	43	295	24
Mars	301	30	278	11	302	16	278	57	303	4	279	45
Jupiter	318	21	295	2	318	35	295	16	318	50	295	31
Satrun	303	40	280	21	303	46	280	27	303	54	280	35
Rahu	138	12	114	53	138	9	114	50	138	6	114	47
Kethu	318	12	294	53	318	9	294	50	318	6	294	47
Uranus	149	3R	125R	44R	149	0R	125	41R	148	57R	125	38R
Neptune	223	26	200	7	223	26	200	7	223	26	200	7
Pluto	160		137		160		137		160		137

In the August 1957 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE Sri B. V. Raman had discussed this problem under the caption "The Third War". Again in his inaugural address to the All-Kerala Astrological Conference at Trichur, he has touched this problem. He may again offer his valuable interpretation later on.

What does this configuration signify? The constellations afflicted by this unique transit are Uttarashada, Sravana and Dhanishta. The last two are designated 'chara' or moving, and they are good for any worldly undertakings (Brihat Samhita, 98.11). But on the 5th of February, there is also a solar eclipse; and all the planets in conjunction with the Sun are further afflicted by this phenomenon. The results of an eclipse in Sravana or Dhanishta, says Varahamihira, will be felt in seven to eight months (Brihat Samhita. 97, 16). On the 31st July 1962, there is an annular solar eclipse, and on January 25th, 1963, there is another annular one. The year looks ominous. One can predict safely that 1962 and 1963 are important years in the history of the world.

Scanned by www.vedicastrology.co.in Courtesy B.V. Raman Web

After the eclipse and after the combustion, some of the non-luminaries emerge in Capricorn and Aquarius; and the countries indicated by these will be faced with famine and epidemics. Varahamihira observes that when planets come together in any asterism, people belonging to that constellation will be heavily afflicted (B.S.20.4). He ascribes the Himalayan regions, Taxila, Peshawar, Malwa, Hunas, Gandharas and others to Sravana and Dhanishta (14–24–28). Armies come under Uttarashada (15.19), the righteous are under the asterism Sravana, and the peace-loving people belong to Dhanishta (15.20–21). It appears that many people will be dragged into chaos unwillingly, and that the area touches India's frontiers in the North and in the West. The theatre of confusion can extend to the Punjab, Uttar Pradesh and Bihar. But the actual area that will be directly involved in the trouble will be that indicated by the zodiacal sign of Makara (Capricorn). This is the ruling sign of Greece Iran, Afghanisthan, Bulgaria and Lithuania. According to some western authorities India too comes under this sign. But we believe that those parts of the Punjab and Bengal which are parts of Pakistan are ruled by Capricorn. Mexico and the cities of Oxford and Port Said also belong to the same sign. In the lunar year 1961–62 there is an intercalary month in Jyestha. It is likely that the atmosphere in the countries from Egypt, Greece and Tukey to the northern and western frontiers of India will be surcharged with great excitement and chaos that are likely to bring about epidemics, famine and ruin. There will be storms and earthquakes too.

All this is to be modified in the light of some valuable remarks made by Varahamihira in his Brihat Samhita, 20th chapter. He speaks of six varieties of planetary combinations. When four or five planets have a conjunction in a single asterism, the combination is called Samvarta. Here Rahu is excluded. On the 4th February 1962, we find the Sun, Mercury and Saturn in Sravana. The effects of this combination are neither good nor bad. If Rahu or Kethu joins such a combination, it is called Sammoha. Kethu is with Jupiter, Venus and Sun in Dhanishta on the 6th of February. Here too we do not get the minimum of four planets. But in the early hours of the 5th, just after mid-night, Sun, Moon, Mercury and Saturn are together in Sravana. This is Samvarta with indifferent results. When some other planet joins the conjunction of Jupiter and Saturn, we have Kora which is said to be dangerous to the people. On the 18th of February 1961, we find the conjunction of Jupiter and Saturn in the second degree of Makara. By the middle of October, they are again conjunct. Apart from the Moon no planet joins them. In 1962 February they are in the sign, but not in the same constellation. Varaha-Mihira finally speaks of a Sannipata combination which arises when one of the planets rises heliacally in the east and another rises a litte behind in the south. This produces hostilities, and it is this combination that we have in February 1962. Serious hostilities of a benefic nature are likely to break forth during 1962. Little skirmishes are likely even by September or October 1961; but hostilities on a major scale will rage by September or October 1962. And the theatre of war will include parts of North Africa like Egypt, parts of Europe like Hungary, Bulgaria, Greece and Turkey, and practically the whole of Western Asia upto the frontiers of our own country.

Significantly enough this unique planetary combination is heralded by a solar eclipse in Capricorn which afflicts ruthlessly the ministers, those living by weapons, and those belonging to the lower classes, according to Varahahamihira (5–41). The armies and diplomats, the Governments and the working classes appear to have a pretty bad time in and after 1962. This eclipse is significant because many other planets fall within the eclipsed orb, symbolically speaking. More than the combination, this is capable of spelling disaster. There may not be a direct danger to India; but there is a serious threat to the peace of Asia and Europe. It is curious to find that the theatre of war localised mostly in Asia.

Those who were born with Cancer as their Ascendant stronger than Janma–Rasi, and those born with Cancer as their Janma–Rasi stronger than their Ascendant, will find themselves in a difficult situation. They are not likely to be benefitted by the eight-planet combination.

The combtnation takes place in a watery sign. The sea-routes will be in danger either due to the physical disturbances or due to man's quixotic experiments. The war is likely to prolong for a little over one year. Even then the problems that have given rise to the present cold war may not wholly disappear. Yet under the Saturnian influences, democratic outlook and democratic institutions will strike a deeper root in Asia. Vast changes of a socio-political nature will take place both in the United States and Russia. And the craze of the water will upset the equilibrium of the earth and physical forces operating on it, because of man's

(Continued on page 421)

Scanned by www.sagittariusastrology.com Dedicated to Late Sri Kenneth Work

Astrology and Celibacy

BY B. M. BHARADWAJ, B.E., A.M.I.E.

ASTROLOGY is a science of the stars but it is very often limited in its scope of application to the effects of major planets only. Because, major planets exert greater influence on the Earth and its inhabitants. Its application is very wide and the fields of all activities are governed by the planets. Therefore the planets are effective in the matter of the conjugal life of an individual also.

From experience, it is found that in the reading of a horoscope, the planets Uranus, Neptune as well as Pluto should not be ignored. Specially, Uranus and Neptune are very powerful planets which have got a great concern in the affairs of a human being.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastro.com © Reserved. Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

In the ancient Hindu Astrological works, Venus has been taken to be the principal planet governing marriage and married life or the Karaka of the 7th house which represents the wife. Venus has got a very great influence in this matter. However, according to the Western Astrology, Moon is considered as a representative of the wife in a male horoscope and Sun is taken to represent the husband in a female horoscope. This conception is quite sound as the Moon being the lord of the mind, should occupy the wife's place as the latter generally exercises a good control on the thoughts of her husband. Similarly, Sun being the soul force, ought to be the husband's indicator in a female horoscope, as the two souls are united by wedlock. In general practice also, this theory has been observed to work well.

Multiple marriages, as a rule, are caused by malefic planets either by their disposition in particular houses or peculiar aspects between the malefic planets and Venus or the 7th house or its ruler. Rahu, Mars and Saturn are considered to be first rate malefics whereas Sun behaves as secondary to them in this respect. Jupiter, Mercury and Venus are powerful benefics in preserving the wife. The disposition of planets is considered from the ascendant or the Lagna Rasi but some ancient Rishis have assigned the same importance to the lunar sign or Chandra Rasi.

Also, Jaimini, whose astrological system is peculiar and more reliable has given us some Sutras for predicting the marriage partner's longevity and the social status of her parents. All the available material in the oriental and the occidental systems of astrology verified to be accurate will now be placed before the readers.

Before discussing planetary configurations conducive to multiple marriages, it seems necessary to explain definite combinations and dispositions of planets for single or one marriage only. In this connection, Kalyana Varma, the author of Sarawali and Mahadeva, the author of Jataka Tattwa, have taken pains to give us some reliable astrological rules. However, Uranus and Neptune should not be ignored among malefics.

(a) Single marriage occurs when the Navamsa sign of the 7th house is ruled by the Sun, Mars, Mercury or Jupiter.

(b) It can also occur when the rulers of the 2nd and the 7th houses are debilitated and benefics occupy Kendra and Trikona houses.

(c) The single marriage becomes possible when Jupiter and Mercury occupy the signs of the Sun and Mars in the Navamsa chart.

(d) When the lord of the 7th house occupies it and is not afflicted by malefics, single marriage should be predicted. Multiple marriages and celibacy are violently antagonistic in nature. Hence the planetary dispositions for one are absolutely different from the other.

However in this world, a few persons are really reliable celibates as most of the monks and sanyasis of India are, some, though apparently unmarried have experienced the bliss of the married life without taking on themselves the attendant responsibility. The reasons as to how such recluses fail in their lives are not proposed to be discussed in this article. Here the planetary combinations, only causing celibacy will be mentioned.

Celibacy can be due either to adoption of a particular mode of living as religious heads like clergies, sanyasis and so on, or hatred for women. Readers will probably be sceptic about hatred for women. In this world, women trouble their husbands in some cases either due to their irascible nature or bad character. Therefore, these men who have been thus troubled in their past births, develop dislike for the woman and become celibates in their next birth. Therefore, hatred for the woman should not be ruled out as an impossibility.

Celibacy is caused by the affliction of Venus in a male horoscope and Mars in a female horoscope.

(a) When these planets are afflicted by conjunction, a quadrature (square aspect) and opposition from Uranus, Saturn or Neptune, there are sorrows in regard to marriage and celibacy results.

(b) Similarly, the above aspects or conjunction of Mars and Venus in any horoscope cause celibacy.

(c) If Moon occupies the 7th house, the lord of the 7th house is placed in the 12th house and Venus is weak, then there is no pleasure of a marriage to the native.

Those persons who are born to be sanyasis or anchorites are generally supposed to be unmarried. The important combinations leading to Sanyasa are as under:—

(a) Four or more planets occupy the same house.

(b) If these planets are not rising but combust the native is simply a devotee of sanyasis and not a sanyasi himself.

(c) Moon occupying Saturn's or Mars' signs in the Navamsa Chart or Saturn's signs only in the Drekkana Chart causes sanyasa if aspected by Saturn only.

(d) The lord of the Ascendant and Saturn are devoid of power.

e) Moon, Jupiter and the lord of the Ascendant are aspected by Saturn, and Jupiter occupies the 9th house.

Precaution.—If the lord of the Moon's sign is aspected by Saturn only, these combinations become ineffective.

Multiple marriages can occur in two ways.

A native may marry after the death of his wife or he may marry again for progeny or due to divorcing his first wife. Here the cause has not been discussed but the combinations resulting in multiple marriage only have been indicated.

When the following Yogas or dispositions of planets occur in a male horoscope, more than one marriage may occur.

(a) Strong Moon and Venus are joined together.

(b) Venus being very strong fully aspects the 7th house.

(c) The lords of the 2nd and the 12th houses occupy the 3rd house and are aspected by Jupiter or the lord of the 9th house.

(d) The lords of the 7th and the 11th houses being strong occupy the 5th or the 9th house.

(e) The lords of the 7th and the 11th houses are joined together in the same sign or aspect each other.

(f) Saturn, being the lord of the 7th house, is joined with a malefic planet.

(g) When a number of strong planets having been aspected by the lord of the 7th house occupy the 7th house. The number of marriages in this combination corresponds to the number of planets.

(h) Similarly, the number of planets are aspected by the lord of the 8th house and are placed in the 8th house.

(i) Mars occupies the 6th house, Rahu occupies the 7th house and Saturn is placed in the 8th house. In this case, the number of marriages is usually indicated by the sign on the 7th house.

(j) Jaimini has evolved his own method in this respect. He has laid down that the 2nd house from the Upapada Rasi in a chart, indicates wife. The method of determining the Upapada Rasi in natal chart, indicates wife. The method of determining the Upapada Rasi is explained by Sri B.V. Raman, in his book entitled Studies in Jaimini Astrology. When a malefic planet or the sign Gemini or a debilitated planet (in Neecha rasi) occupies this house, the wife of a native dies and he marries more than once. In this Yoga, the Sun is not considered as a malefiic.

Illustration

A lady born on 26–3–1917 at 6–0 p.m. Acendant-Virgo.

Mars 6.47 Mer. 15.47 Venus 6.19 Sun 12.49	Jupiter Moon 25.46	Saturn 29.44 Kethu Pluto
	RASI	Nep. 9.21
Uranus 29.35
Rahu 22.38		Lagna

Venus and Mars have formed perfect conjunction. Mars is joined with Sun and Neptune is in trine aspect with Mars and Venus. Inspite of good status as a doctor, she is not married so far.

Scanned by www.vedicastrologyastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

Books You Should Read

MARKET FORECASTING

How to Forecast Prices and Winners in Races.— By T. G. Butaney. Expounds jealously guarded secrets. Rs. 15 or Sh. 30.

Planetary Influences on Markets.— By Lagon Mars. Deals with application of Astrological rules to markets. Rs 7–50 or Sh. 15.

Perpetual Market Forecast.—By Pt. Ganga Prasad. A book of great importance to all speculators, merchants and students of Astrology. Rs. 10–50.

Complete Course of Self-Instruction in Commercial Astrology and Numerology.—By T. G. Butaney. Rs. 15 or Sh. 30.

Less 6¼% to Subscribers of:
THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS
"Sri Rajeswari", BANGALORE-3

Yoga, Psychology and Parapsychology—XII

BY DR. V. M. BHAT, B.A., M.B.B.S.

Knowledge by Being

THEORETICALLY also, we come to the same conclusion. For, so long as we study problems other than the self, we have to be in duality. There is subject-object relation then. The seer and the seen, the knower and the known or knowable, remain different. But when we begin to study the I–hood or ourself, then this relation no longer holds true. For now the subject, the knower, is pursuing the object, the known, i.e., himself. The object itself becomes the subject. Here duality ends, and in the language of Bergson, becoming becomes the being. In practice, for example, our emotions can be studied fully by experiencing them by being emotional. We cannot study love or hate or anger, unless we we love, hate or become angry with someone. This is what is called 'knowledge by being'. Sankara calls it अपरोक्षानुभूति i.e., 'direct experience'. Vedantists also say—"one who knows Brahma becomes Brahma himself". (ब्रह्मविद्ब्रह्मैव भवति). We do not get this 'knowledge by being' like any other knowledge through the instrumentality of senses, mind or reason. Because, for these duality is necessary. For 'knowledge by being' duality has to be transcended. Hence, Miss Underhill says that "mystics find the basis of their method not in logic, but in life... in that ineffable experience which they call the act of union". Kathopanishad declares that the Atman or Soul cannot be studied in classes or by intellect or by hearing hundreds of lectures.

"Four thousand volumes will not teach us what the soul is" declares Voltaire in the same strain. The reason is that mind and intellect are born of the soul, and are its parts or aspects only. They belong as if to the next generation. And as the son cannot see the birth and growth of his father, so an aspect or a part cannot know the whole. Hence Patanjali says, "All thinking must cease to have a glimpse of the Reality or Soul. And as this knowledge flashes suddenly, without any effort, it is called 'intuitive'. This 'knowledge by by being' comprehends the 'wholes'.

Here a word must be said about the distinction and superiority of intuition over the intellect. Myers has shown in his chapter on 'Genius', how child prodigies could surpass and dazzle all the intellectual giants of their age. He quotes Archbishop Whately's account of his early intuitive powers in his childhood and their decadence in his youth. Whately says: "There was something peculiar in my calculating faculty. It began...between five and six, and lasted about three years. I soon got to do the most difficult sums in my head, for I knew nothing of figures beyond numeration. I did then sums much quicker than any one could on paper, and I never remember committing the smallest error. When I went to school... I was a perfect dunce at cipher-ing and have continued ever since" (P. 54). Myers quotes Prof. Saford's example also to show that his intuition had fully blossomed when he was ten years old. He could then tell in one minute a multiplication sum whose answer consisted of 36 figures. Later he too lost this faculty.

Dase's example is still more startling. Myers writes: "He (Dase) was singularly devoid of mathematical grasp. Peterson tried in vain for six weeks to get the first elements of mathematics into his head. He could not be made to have the least idea of a proposition in Euclid. Of any language but his own, he could never master a word. Yet Dase got a grant from the Academy of Hamburg for mathematical work, and in twelve years made tables of factors and prime numbers for the 7th and nearly the whole of the 8th million. He may thus be ranked as the only man who has ever done valuable service to mathematics without being able to cross the Ass's bridge" (P. 55).

Scanned by www.sanatanshikshanvidyalay.com To Preserve Dr. B.V.Ramans Work

These three instances show the enormous difference between 'Intuition' and intellect. Intuition is thus really a Yogic power, unconsciously emerging and ending in some lives, even in childhood.

Dr. Radhakrishnan has, in his Idealist View of Life devoted a full chapter to this Intuition. Therein he proves that this knowledge is non-sensuous or extra-sensory as Dr. Rhine calls it, and is immediate, and whole. It is knowledge by being and not by senses...the object is seen as a part of the Self". Yoga calls it Sampathhi.

And as this covers the whole field of the object, it is all-comprehensive in the words of Patanjali (सर्वविषयं सर्वथाविषयम्). Miss Coster has beautifully told us in her Yoga and Western Psychology that more and more knowledge about a thing means there are more and more correlations between us and the objects. And hence when the object is fully known, it means that the object has become a part of the 'subject' as Dr. Radhakrishnan says.

Samadhi in Art

Every man has sometime in his life this blissful experience e.g. when he loses himself in admiring a beautiful picture or sculpture like the Taj Mahal at Agra or the gorgeous, magnificient snowclad peaks of the Himalayas, or the symphony, cadence, and melody of the music of Balagandharva or Paluskar Senior or Subbu Laxmi or the rapturous poetry of Kalidasa, Tulsidas, Shakespeare, and others; or the innocent joyful smile of an infant; or the ravishing glance of a beautiful, coy maiden. It is true that unlike the Yogi's bliss it is short-lived and beyond our control. But it is sufficient to life us on the supersensual plane, from which alone we can enjoy it. As Hegel has, said "Beauty is merely the spiritual, making itself known sensuously". Underhill rightly says that Religion, Pain and Beauty take us right to the door of the mystical and the Absolute. And someone has rightly said that 'Art is common man's Yoga'. Tagore has said somewhere, perhaps in Sadhana that 'Beauty is Nature's signature upon a thing'.

Here another theory of Yogic Self-realision can be appropriately stated. It is contained in one word Pratiprasara in the last aphorism of the 4th Chapter. This word means recession, going back to the source, by inductive method. On the contrary, Sankhyas have treated the theory of creation deductively. They started with the two simple elements and explained how the complete universe is created. Yoga Science has accepted the Sankya principles upto dualism, but it is not content with their ultimate duality. Prakriti and Purusha, or something like matter and energy, are held by the Sankhyas as the ultimate principles of creation. Yoga like Vedanta denies this duality. It says that duality means limitation, and how can the unlimited and the absolute remain limited and dual? It therefore says that inductively we find unity in multiplicity. So, practically detaching and stripping the bodily sheaths one by one, the Yogi can withdraw himself to the soul or the reality—his final destination. This is what Patanjali means by Partiprasara. The last aphorism of Yoga means that absolute liberation or reality dawns when, everything being attained, no purpose is left for matter and its properties to evolve; so they resolve themselves into their source (self) in the reverse order, and the self then stays into its native state. Karma Yoga and Bhakti Yoga also come to the same conclusion. Although they emphasize full activity according to the prescribed rules of science, ethics, and philosophy, ultimately the Karma Yogis and Bhakti Yogis have to fall back on self-surrender (ईश्वरप्रणिधान) or total dedication to God, rejecting and surrendering body, mind and intellect as they do not take him to God and thus ultimately sacrificing, giving up all the desires and fruits of their activities to God, thus immolating even the ego, the limited self, into the Higher Self. So here too, total self surrender is the key to the solution of their problem. So whatever road the seeker chooses, ultimately all roads meet on the point of self-immolation before the final merger into the infinite.

Hitherto we have tried to go to the root source of the individual and the universal phenomena by both the deductive and and inductive methods, and we found that we reach to the ultimate unitary principle of cosmic energy in both. But, here, as in materialistic and idealistic theories in the West, we come across some differences of opinion in the Indian schools of thought. Some like Sankara accept and teach monism with all the fervour of a missionary. Others like Ramanuja advocate qualified monism; while the Vallabha and Nimbarka school preach full dualism. These differences can, I think, be explained from the planes and grades from which these authorities speak. But whatever the differences, they all agree on one omniscient, omniprevalent and ominipotent reality. Some say we are that, while others say we are of that—chips of the same block, or sparks of the same fire. The ultimate principle is the same in the whole cosmos, full of creative, vibrant energy, wisdom and bliss (सत् चित् आनंद). And that is enough for us—worldly men and women—, to rely upon. For, do we not use heat, light and electricity without knowing their true nature? Physicists themselves are undecided about their essence. But all the same, they and we do not refuse to use those forms of energies. Similarly, though philosophers and mystics wrangle among themselves about the true nature of Reality, we ordinary people should be content to know, worship and if possible to merge ourselves into the one Almighty God, agreed upon by all the schools of thought.

Sure Test of Merger is Siddhi

And here the seeker, after his temporary merger with the Infinite, can test for himself whether his union is truly or imaginarily effected. And that test consists in the full blossoming of his potential energy. Just as the Almighty has all the powers of creation, maintenance, and destruction, so its tiny part, the little microcosm in the seeker, must partake of those very powers if the merger be truly effected. I have already said above, that, according to Patanjali, the Yogi, after his attainment of Kaivalya or Union is endowed with, if I may say so, a flash of omniscience (सर्वज्ञातृत्वम्) and ominipotence (सर्वथाधिष्ठातृत्व) the very powers with which things in the whole cosmos are created, stabilised and destroyed. So the Yogi too, after his union with the reality, must be able to wield similar powers to some extent at least. Theoretically, an individual soul, being a part and parcel of the Universal Soul, has, and must have, these powers in himself, although latent. Yoga practices enable the Yogis to realise these potential energies into practice. Evolution has already yielded us proofs of these powers, very beautifully illustrated by Dr. Sinnott in his Biology of the Spirit (1956) 2nd Chapter. For the very theory of evolution, according to him, is based upon the fixed goal, and seeking adjustment with the environment is not favourable to the existing organism, it changes its direction according to its plans, using extraordinary ingenuity in its plans and intensively strives for effecting the changes. And evolutionists say that the organism, even after some generations, evolves in course of time the necessary change in it for adapting itself to the changed circumstances. Hence desire, intensive persistent desire, precedes the change. This shows that creativity in the organism is inherent. Conversely, we see in it "disuse strophy". So the powers of creation are native to the organism. These very powers, lying latent and slowly active, are flowered fully in the perfect Yogi and are at his command.

Scanning by Jigyasu and his astrology gurus. In loving Memory of Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

Hypnotists can create blisters on the body by suggestion only. Psychotherapists effect marvellous cures by the same means. Drs. Carrell and Leo Beck have shown conclusively that even hopless diseases like T. B. and sometimes even Cancer, are cured by faith and prayer. Stigmata are produced on the mystic's body in his ecstasies. All these are instances of changes, occurring, even in another's body, due to concentrated will and desires, which are called 'suggestions'. In psychokinesis, we see mind moving inanimate substances at a distance. Dr. Evans Wentz and Dr. Alexander Cannon have actually seen Tibetan Lamas putting in, and taking out, life in a body, dead for all practical purposes. All these are instances of immediate creation and destruction easily practicable for the Yogis. And in instant healing and cures of hopeless diseases, we see that the effects can be even permanent. Similarly they can materialise and dematerialise themselves and travel anywhere in the world. These verified instances and events exemplify the powers of omnipotence mentioned by Patanjali in his Sutras. And they show that the Yogi can draw upon the soul's creative and destructive energy according to the needs of the situation. What then can be more convincing than these positive proofs of the highest powers coming to him by Yoga, —when he merges himself into the Infinite, and can bank upon to some extent at least on his powers of creation and destruction?

Unconscious Goal-Seeking

These powers are used by the Yogi voluntarily but rarely for moral exigencies. And they are and can be objective if the Yogi so wishes. But what about the apparently unconscious creation and destruction of thousands of bodily cells daily? Is not the same power used unconsciously by the individual soul for the life-time directed to some purpose? This purpose may not emerge into consciousness of the ordinary individual. But can we say that all these processes are going on blindly without any plan and purpose, when we see all the gross involuntary physiological functions being carried on in the body for a set purpose, and in complete harmony and order? We cannot say that some bodily functions are going on smoothly for a set purpose and others not. So we must postulate, like Dr. Sinnott, some purpose, goal and objective behind all the bodily phenomena. And this purpose is known to the Yogis if they concentrate and contemplate on it. To postulate no purpose violates the ordinary laws of causation and energy. For, according to Freud and McDougall, "Causative energy, once directed towards a particular goal, continues towards it subconsciously so long as the goal is not attained" (P. 226, Abnormal Psychology by McDougall). The subconscious mind or soul knows the goal according to Patanjali's Sutras, (18, Chap. IV). Dr. Osty, in his Supernormal Faculites of Man (P. 185) and Sir Oliver Lodge, in his lecture on Rationality of Survival, say the same thing, and the whole organism is subconsciously working towards it. And here comes the theory of Law of Karma and Reincarnation, which alone rationally explains the unexpected and unexplained ups and downs, joys and sorrows, of life (vide Sutra, 2 and 9, Chap. IV). The goal is set according to the

(Continued on page 416)

Scanning Sponsored by Siddhanta eGangotri Gyaan To Preserve The R V Pandit's Work

Predicting Specific Events by Means of Transits

BY W. J. TUCKER, D.Sc., PH.D.

AS a result of requests from readers, your Editor has kindly invited me to contribute a series of articles on the subject of predicting by means of transits. Inasmuch as my researches into the predictive side of astrology have now been completed, I am happy to respond to the invitation which affords opportunity to present readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE with detailed particulars of a method for predicting future events with the certainty that they will be fulfilled on the stipulated dates.

The method itself is fashioned from clear-cut scientific principles from the basement upwards and will be found to withstand any critical test that may be applied to it. But before I can even begin to present it, it is imperative to clear up first of all a number of vastly important fundamental points which are vital to a successful application of the method. The first of these is:

The Type of Frame to be Employed for the Horoscope

First and foremost, scientific application demands consistency. There must no longer be any ringing of the changes beloved of astrologers who find it necessary to resort to the method in order to "explain" awkwar devents in the light of the horoscope after the events. The principles employed must be clear-cut throughout and must be capable of only one interpretation.

This statement applies to the vital frame of the horoscope itself. What we imperatively need is a frame for our horoscopes capable of guaranteeing permanency of place-position so that there may always be a perfect correspondence between designated points on the Ecliptic Sphere and terrestrial place-positions. And that in an uncomplicated form that will enable a vast range of horoscopes to be rapidly compared and repetitive significant configurations in identical house-positions picked out and noted. A requirement which automatically eliminated all-house division systems which introduce "intercepted signs" as containing futile and unnecssary complications and anachronisms.

No doubt you are wondering what I think is wrong with the house division systems of Placidus, Regiomantanus, Campanus, etc. Well, let me try to explain it to you this way:

Astronomers have the responsibility of predicting accurately the positions which the Sun, Moon, planets and stars will individually occupy at any given time on any future date, by recording the positions in terms of two coordinates which will allow other astronomers equipped with the necessary instruments to check up the accurcy of the predictions physically when the moment arrives for their fulfilment. These astronomical predictions are published in a volume called The Nautical Almanac, and each volume contains the full range of calculations covering the whole of the particular year for which it has been compiled.

However, the positions recorded in the Nautical Almanac can only be measured upon the Celestial Sphere, a sphere which is defined by the position of the plane of the Celestial Equator which divides it into two hemispheres, and by the plane of the great circle defining the Prime Meridian which passes through the celestial poles (the north one of which coincides with Polaris) and which cuts the Celestial Equator at right angles, thus dividing the Celestial Sphere into four great quadrants.

In order to locate the position of any given celestial body on the Celestial Sphere it is necessary to know the values of the body's two coordinates: Right Ascension and Declination; (or, if the alt-azimuth system of coordinates is being used instead, then its altitude and azimuth).

Astrologers ought, by rights, to employ precisely the same system in their work. Instead, they choose to make their measurements upon a totally different celestial sphere which I shall call the Ecliptic Sphere. This sphere is defined by the plane of the Ecliptic Circle which divides into two hemispheres, and by the plane of a great circle which divides the hemispheres into four great quadrants by passing through the ecliptic poles and the Zenith-Nadir of the Ecliptic Circle.

It must now be stressed that the north pole of the Ecliptic Sphere does not coincide with the position of Polaris. If we want to designate its position on the Celestial Sphere we say that the position of the north pole of the Ecliptic Sphere is located at Right Ascension 18 hours, Declination +66° 33′. That the ecliptic south pole is located at Right Ascension 6 hours, Declination —66° 33′.

In fact, the only coordinates which may be used for measurements on the Ecliptic Sphere are Celestial Longitude, (i.e.. zodiacal degree measurement based upon the division of the Ecliptic Circle into 360 equal degrees), and Celestial Latitude. Thus astrologers may NOT ring the changes by attempting to measure declination on this sphere. Unfortunately it is true that hitherto astrologers have been in the habit of making unscrupulous use of all worlds so to speak, by persisting in mixing totally irreconcilable coordinates. They do so, for instance, when they employ the medieval house division systems.

For example, let us consider the Campanus system. Mr. E.H. Bailey says that this system consists of "the trisection of the quadrants formed between the Prime Vertical and Meridian, by great circles cutting the north and south points of the horizon circle, the points on the ecliptic midway between the defining circles becoming the cusps of the houses".

If Mr. Bailey's definition is correct it is perfectly easy to see what is implied. The "north and south points of the horizon circle" do NOT mean the celestial poles. What is implied is that these points are the actual poles of Prime Vertical, and these must necessarily be located in the heavens at the north and south points of the horizon circle absolutely. But.....both the Prime Vertical and the Poles, vary with each slight step of terrestrial latitude! The plane of the Prime Vertical forms an angle with the plane of the Celestial Equator narrower by one degree for every degree of terrestrial latitude measured from the north pole to the equator. So that what is in fact achieved by the Campanus method is the creation of the unending succession of new celestial spheres, each replete with its own unrelated poles which are varying in position constantly. And the astrologer using the method is seeking to superimpose that outrageous system of coordinates on to his Ecliptic Sphere.

The Regiomontanus system may at first sight appear more logical to some, as it trisects the arcs of the equator between meridian and the horizon circle. But it is exposed to precisely the same objection as for the campanus system in that it produces an endless succession of new unrelated "celestial spheres" on account of the fact that the poles of the system likewise travel with the north and south points of the horizon circle and therefore vary everywhere with the latitude of the place.

I advise the resolute scrapping of all these systems in favour of a perfectly rigid frame that will fit the Ecliptic Sphere unerringly, and which will enable measurements made upon that sphere to register accurately over radical positions in order that events produced by salient celestial phenomena may be fulfilled both as to time and nature. For it will be realised that it is hopeless to expect transits to register accurately over radical positions to produce effects in the form of specified events of definite character at the predicted dates and times if one cannot rely upon the accuracy of the frame itself. It is certainly impossible if one persists in using co-ordinates which are invalid for the Ecliptic Sphere upon which it is proposed to make the measurements.

That was why, some thirty years ago I set about developing the Zenith System of House Division which I myself have since employed consistently throughout my life time in the prosecution of my researches. Therefore, if astrologers expect to obtain the same precision in the prediction of events which I myself obtain, they must necessarily employ the frame of this system for the erection of their horoscopes.

It is simplicity itself to divide up the Ecliptic Sphere into twelve equal segments called houses. As already explained, the plane of the Ecliptic circle divides the sphere into two hemispheres. Then the plane of a great circle passing through the ecliptic poles and through the point of bisection of the 180° arc of the ecliptic which at any given instant in time is always spanning the horizon circle (i.e. the zenith of the ecliptic circle), will divide the Ecliptic Sphere itself into four great quadrants. It is then only necessary to trisect each of these four quadrants by means of great circles spaced 30° apart on the Ecliptic Circle but which converge together on passing through the ecliptic poles.

The point Ascendant of a Zenith Horoscope is always located by measuring 90° from the ecliptic Zenith along the ecliptic circle in the natural run of the signs. Alternatively, the position of the Zenith of the Ecliptic Circle can always be located by measuring 90° from the Point Ascendant against the natural run of the signs (or shall we say in a clockwise direction). The houses of a Zenith Horoscope are automatically equal. Each cusp subtends the perimeter of the Ecliptic Circle at a point exactly 30° from the next. It is therefore an equal-house division system.

Nevertheless it has been alleged by a German astrologer that my Zenith system of House Division is not an original idea but is really the oldest system of them all, in that it is identifiable with the system named after the god Hermes Trismegistos which divided the heavens into four quadrants that were afterwards trisected to form twelve equal houses. This German astrologer therefore places the origin of my system in the fourth century before Christ. In this allegation, he is completely mistaken. What he has omitted to take into account (beside other matters) is the fact that astrological houses themselves are mundane. They have to be related to the Earth as centre, and the planes of the great circles which divide the Ecliptic sphere into twelve equal sectors have to intersect precisely at the very centre of the Earth. Therefore these earliest systems were decidedly not the same as my Zenith system of House division for the simple reason that the ideas of the men of those early times were in the process of crystallising into a theory known to us later as the Ptolemaic system. The men of the fourth century B.C. believed the heavens to consist of ten concentric transparent spheres which had the duty of revolving at the rate of revolution appointed to each, around the earth which was stationary and immobile at the centre. One sphere had the duty of carrying the Sun around with it, a second one performed a similar duty for the Moon, five others performed similar functions for Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. Another sphere held all the fixed stars in their proper relative places. And yet another was the Primum Mobile which controlled the speeds of the other spheres in rotating once in every 24 hours.

Scanned by www.saptarishiastrology.com

Aristotle (384–322 B.C), for instance, in his book On the Heavens, made the following observations:

"Let us first state whether the earth is in motion or at rest. Some, as we have said, make it one of the stars, where as others put it at the centre but describe it as winding and moving about the pole as its axis. But the impossibility of these explanations is clear if we start from this, that if the earth moves, whether at the centre or at a distance from it, its movement must be enforced: it is not the motion of the earth itself, for otherwise each of its parts would have the same motion; but as it is their motion is invariably in a straight line towards the centre. The motion therefore, being enforced and unnatural, could not be eternal; but the order of the world is eternal.

"Secondly, all the bodies which move with the circular movement are observed to lag behind and to move with more than one motion, with the exception of the primary sphere; the earth therefore must have a similar double motion, whether it move around the centre or as situated at it. But if this were so, there would have to be passings and turnings of the fixed stars. Yet these are not observed to take place: the same stars always rise and set at the same place on the earth."

"Thirdly, the natural motion of the earth as a whole, like that of its parts, is towards the centre of the Universe: that is the reason why it is now lying at the centre. It might be asked, since the centre of both is the same point, in which capacity the natural motion of heavy bodies, or parts of the earth, is directed towards it; whether as centre of the Universe or of the earth. But it must be towards the centre of the Universe that they move, seeing the light bodies like fire, whose motion is contrary to that of the heavy, move to the extremity of the region which surrounds the centre. It so happens that the earth and the Universe have the same centre, for the heavy bodies do move also towards the centre of the earth, yet only incidentally, because it has its centre at the centre of the Universe. As evidence that they move also towards the centre of the earth, we see that weights moving towards the earth do not move in parallel lines but always at the same angles to it* therefore they are moving towards the same centre, namely that of the earth. It is now clear that the earth must be at the centre and immobile. To our previous reasons we may add that heavy objects, if thrown forcibly upwards in a straight line, come back to their starting point, even if the force hurls them to an unlimited distance.

"From these considerations it is clear that the earth does not move, neither does it lie anywhere but at the centre. In addition, the reason for its immobility is clear from discussions.....Its shape must be spherical."

In order that the student may realise exactly what is involved, let him take an orange as a model of the earth, and the point where stalk joins the orange as the terrestrial north pole. By opening the orange he can divide it into twelve equal segments that will correspond to the divisions to be obtained by dividing the world into twelve segments by means of lines of longitude spaced 30 degrees apart at the equator, all of which converge at the poles. For that is how the Hour Circles will divide up the Earth into twelve segments to 30 degrees apart at the equator.

However, the Zenith System of House Division cannot divide the Earth in the same fashion as the Hour Circles do. To prove this, let the student first draw a reference circle through the north and south poles around his orange to represent the 90th degree of longitude on one side of the orange and the 270th i.e. at right angles to a tangent.

(Continued on page 412)

Courtesy of astrologicalparishmusstrology.com To Preserve Dr. V. Manansala's Work

Matrimonial Matching—A Statistical Approach

BY KASYAPA RAMA SARMA

IT was a little before the second World War that I had the pleasure of having for a guest a German Professor of Sociology. One day he remarked that he found the institution of marriage much more of a successs in South India and that he could feel the presence of a deeper harmony in domestic relations than in any other civilised region he had so far visited and studied.

It made me proud to hear him say so and I remember to have observed at that time that it was probably due to the system of matrimonial matching based on the ten point agreement (poruthams), invariably resorted to by parents prior to settling of marriages.

The Professor, a scientist, with his pragmatic approach to life and its problems could not readily subscribe to astrology but when it was explained that the ten point agreement method had nothing to do with horoscopes, that even the year and date of birth, etc., had no signicance but only the position of the Moon in a particular constellation at the time of birth that counted, he felt interested and enquired whether any statistical appraisal of this factor was made and if so with what results. I could make no answer then, but later.

During the early years of the last war I had to spend about a year convalescing after an illness in a small town in South India. My interest in astrology brought around me a large number of people in and around the town and I considered that to be a good opportunity, if possible to find an answer to the question of the German Professor.

I started collecting case histories of married couples. The age-group selected was 30-40. I managed to collect 832 cases for study. The collection was not made on any selective basis except for age. They were random samples. They were not confined to any particular community or caste. The survey was made in 1940-41. All the people concerned were born between 1901—10 and married between 1915—30. The economic background was mostly rural and agricultural though 22% of the case histories concerned people who derived their livelihood from commercial and industrial occupations. The people on the whole were strongly inclined to religion and in a great measure governed by customs and traditions.

Scanned by Prabhu Sastry Jaisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Raman's Work

These factors are important in so far as they have a bearing on the nature of conclusions arrived at through study of statistical data. It must be remembered that statistics are merely evidence of social phenomena. This became evident in the course of two other similar surveys I made in Northern India in 1951 and in 1955. In the 1951 effort I managed to collect 623 case histories from among refugees from Punjab and Sindh, now Pakistan territory. The 1955 collection consisted of people from the cosmopolitan crowd from Delhi.

The information obtained in all cases came broadly under the following heads.

(a) Age, (b) Nakshatra at birth, (c) the year of marriage (d) death of either partner in the meantime and at what age. (e) remarriages, (f) divorces or separations, (g) polygamous relations, (h) children and (i) introspective statement by either partner on the success or otherwise of their marriages.

In all the cases the information recorded was elicited in personal conversations. In the majority of cases the informants were males. In 3.2% of the cases the subjects being young widows the information had to be secured through other sourees.

I give below in tabular form the data secured. For purposes of convenience I shall call the 1940–41 collection as group I, the 1951—Group II and that of 1955, Group III.

TABLE I.

	Gr. I	Gr. II	Gr. III
Total No. of case histories ...	832	623	311
Marriages on basis of Poruthams	547	—	—
Marriages on Horoscopic agreement	—	512	78
Marriages on other considerations	235	111	233
Hindus	729	562	280
Others	103	61	31

It will be seen that in South India about 65% of the marriages were entered into after consulting Poruthams with or without other astrological agreements. Among the refugee population from the North West nearly 82% of the marriages took place on astrological advice. Out of 285 cases of marriage on other considerations under Group I, I find that nearly 41% of them came under divine consent (daivasammatam), 36% compelled by tribal usage and custom, 6% marriages of convenience and the rest due to other causes. Out of the 111 under group II, more than 62% through comparison of Nama Nakshatras (name constellations) 29% tribal custom and the rest because of other causes. The 233 alliances under group III have defied all attempts at classification so far.

TABLE II

	Gr. I	Gr. II	Gr. III
Average age of Marriage
Male	17.09	16.10	21.30
Female	14.20	13.90	20.10

The marriages considered here are those that took place between 1915 and 1930 for Group I, 1925 and 1940 for Gr. II and 1930 and 1945 for the third group, thereby limiting the scope of the enquiry only to those who got married in the period of fifteen years after their fifteenth year. It will be seen that all the marriages except for the few under group III occuring between 1940 and 1945, took place before the second World War when conditions of life were comparatively more easy and staid. Perhaps if a survey is made of marriages that occured during and after the War there might be some difference.

Children:–Poruthams or astrological matchings do not seem to have much significance in the incidence of child birth. Still the slightly higher percentage under B in all the three groups might mean something. It is for future studies to furnish conclusive proof either way.

Deaths:—Only cases where atleast one of the parties to the marriage was alive at the time of the enquiry were taken for consideration. It can be seen that deaths of husbands are significantly more than that of wives thereby proving the contention of anthropologists that the males are more vulnerable. Further deaths recorded under B are significantly of higher percentage under all groups providing an argument in favour of Poruthams or astrological consultations for marriages.

Remarriages:—The figures represent only widowers who remarried. Calculating from the ages at which the husband or the wife of the survivor died I find the average for marital longevity for the bereaved in this group as 6.35 years. Since only marriages between the ages of 15 and 30 were considered the basic year of marriage for statistical purposes could be taken to be 22.5 years. Adding to this the marital longevity of 6.35 years one can say that in this group the male becomes a widower at the age of 29. Since the period between 29 and 40 years is the prime of life, no wonder such a large percentage remarried. Again those who married under astrological advice seem to take to matrimony again in more numbers than those who did so for other considerations.

Divorces or Separations:-Cases of judical separations were few and as such negligible. Infidelity seems to be the main cause. But so far as statements on this aspect are possible only from males I do not think that it proves anything definite. But the incidence of separation as indicated by the figures under the various heads are self-revealing to need specific comment.

Polygamy :—Here again it is the story of the male. These cases represent the presence of two or more wives at a time. The incidence is not much. Most of the multiple marriages are said to have taken place because of the barren-ness of the first wife or wives.

Introspective Statements.–Only in very few cases these statements could be had from both husband and wife. This is a record of male reaction to this question and there is no method to determine the genuineness of the sentiments expressed. Still the figures prove the efficacy of Poruthams or Astrology in marital settlements.

I would have liked it very much if a record of female reactions on the subject could be available. I believe it will be more valuable and significant in any scientific appraisal of marital life. I say this because the 'female' seems to be the better and the greater half, truly so. According to anthropology which we have no reason to

(Continued on page 409)

Scanned by www.sriparishakastrology.com In Present for Library Purposes Work

TABLE III

"A" will indicate marriages after consulting Poruthams and "B" those on other considerations.

	Gr. I %		Gr. II %		Gr. III %
	A	B	A	B	A	B
Childless ...	18.2	19.7	16.1	20.3	16.8	17.9
Death: Wives ...	8.3	14.2	10.6	13.9	11.7	16.1
Husbands ...	12.6	18.5	12.8	17.7	13.2	18.2
Remarriages: Widowers	72.2	53.6	87.4	61.2	42.6	40.8
Divorces or separations	3.8	5.7	4.1	9.3	22.6	26.1
Polygamy ...	2.9	1.8	3.2	4.5	1.2	0.9
Introspective Statements :
Positive ...	42.0	37.5	47.0	42.0	32.0	22.0
Neutrul ...	37.0	36.5	42.0	28.0	40.0	40.0
Negative ...	21.0	26.0	11.0	30.0	28.0	22.0

Astrology and Determination of Profession

BY C. M. GHOSH

LORD Krishna refers to Swadharma in the Bhagavad Gita: What exactly is this Swadharma? And what if this Swadharma is jettisoned in favour of a richer and more salubrious Paradharma? But the Bhagavad Gita would have no trucks with Paradharma. Pondering this sloka from the point of view of astrological theory, I am inclined to think that Swadharma means a person's proclivities or inner urges or what the scientist calls 'properties' which determine his behaviour, progress and line of growth. Swadharma seems to mean the inalienable behaviour-pattern to which a person is condemned by his past karma. We damn a thief and exalt a saint only because we judge them detached from their backgrounds. The knave upon the stage may be a preceptor in real life and the man who acts the part of a philanthropist may be a blackmarketer off the stage. Our judgment is vitiated and falsified because our memory does not stretch into the innumerable lives lived by us in the past and because we see only the effect and not the correlation and the cause.

I very much doubt if the 10th house indicates the calling of the native at all and if by Karma is implied the nature of the occupation of the native. To my mind the 10th house or Karmasthana stands for the native's standing in society and in the world. It reveals the trajectory chalked out for him by the accumulated actions of past lives. The nature of the profession must be determined from the 11th and 2nd houses, the lords posited thereof, the planets posited in them and the aspects which they receive. This view seems to be corroborated by the expositions in the chapter on Karmajeeva in the famous Brihat Jataka of Varahamihira. Varahamihira was a professional astrologer and it is intriguing that he did not snatch at the tenth lord for the purpose of indicating the calling. According to this celebrated astrologer the lord of the Navamsa in which the tenth lord is posited is the indicator of profession. On an objective examination of horoscopes it will be noticed that though the 10th house and the lord there of point to the natives, standing in the world and the heights to which they may rise and the depths to which they may fall or to both, the nature of the profession is not generally indicated by the 10th house but by the eleventh and 2nd houses which indicate not only earning capacity but also the source of earning and therefore the profession.

Sometimes a wrong impression is gathered regarding the combination responsible for a particular avocation. When a native enjoys the Mahadasa of a yogakaraka planet, he necessarily shines in a job or profession for which he has neither the taste nor the needed qualifications. A Kanya lagna native having the major period of Venus can be highly successful in a profession which is just the antithesis of a Venusian calling. Such a person, even if thrust into a military job will receive promotion and may be mentioned in the despatches. By an error of judgement on the part of his commandent his convoy may find itself deep in the enemy lines and yogakaraka Venus will somehow make him escape to safety, perhaps again, due to a tactical blunder on the part of the enemy chief. Such a man will succeed as a teacher though teaching is a Jupiterian calling. He will be highly successful as a boiler-attendant or a foundry manager though these professions hardly come under the jurisdiction of Venus. In such cases the judgement is likely to be falsified if the astrologer tried to ferret out the particular yoga responsible for the calling and for the success attending it. Again, a student undergoing the major period of a yogakaraka planet which may have nothing to do with the houses of education, will nevertheless come off with flying colours. My reason for stating all this at length is to bring home the point that nothing succeeds like success in the dasa of a yogakaraka planet and the karakatvas and lordships pale into insignificance during the tenure of office of the yogakaraka who can give results even of bhavas (houses) over which he does not hold sway. The yogakaraka can give anything like a job, a promotion, a house, liquidation of debts, travel for gain, literary ability, good relationship with neighbours, a wife, a bank balance, and success at the general elections.

I dare say that with our present knowledge of astrology, it is hardly possible to forecast the exact profession of a native. A great weakness of astrology, with its rules of judgment as handed down to us, lies in the fact that even veteran astrologers cannot read off at a glance the profession of a person from the birth chart. Often-times the astrologer 'justifies' a horoscope as belonging to a V.I.P. only after knowing to whom it belongs. In such a case, the reasons adduced for greatness are often stilted, far-fetched and involved. It is better to admit that the rung of the ladder on which a native stands cannot be assessed except in a few cases.

Scanned by CC-0. Vasishtha Tripathi Collection. Digitized by eGangotri

An important fact which is overlooked in estimating the profession is the emolument and the prospect by which we often judge whether a person has got into a correct job or not. Do we not jump to the conclusion that the General Manager of a big Corporation who rose from the ranks is necessarily in his own element and that he must have lighted upon the correct job? The generality of people would consider the job to be a fit one which fetches money and has prospects. So it is not the inclination and the flair as revealed by the horoscope that always counts. We must also consider the direction from which success would come to the native. I know a youngman who had a flair for journalism. As a matter of fact, he started life as a journalist. He could write fine editorials in two languages and was qualified in social science. But he was not appreciated by his boss in any newspaper office which he had to quit after a few months. Sometimes the newspaper office where he worked closed down. Tired of his journalistic misadventures, he joined a factory as a senior clerk. He hated his job in the factory but he was highly appreciated by his superiors though he took an inordinately long time to pick up the work in the factory. The job called for some technical knowledge which he did not possess. But he was thrust from smaller to bigger posts. What would astrologers have told him seeing that there were fine combinations for journalism in his horoscope? Certainly, that the native was fitted for journalism! The direction of success is the foremost thing that an astrologer has to find out. The aptitude is very often of no practical importance. It is absolutely wrong to think that a man will succeed in that line for which he has a flair or for which he is academically qualified. Do we not find a singer highly appreciated in musical soirees eking out his livelihood as a statistical clerk in a Government office? What is the profession of this man—music or statistics? As a musician he gets applause but no money and as a statistical clerk he is an underling but gets sufficient money to keep the pot boiling.

The yogas or conjunctions of planets do point to a man's profession but these must have some connection with the lord of the ascendant. Where the lord of the ascendant is not a component of the yoga, it generally remains dormant or finds fulfilment in the life of that relative of the native indicated by the house where such a yoga occurs. This is a very fundamental consideration in horoscopic delineation and should never be overlooked.

In the following paragraphs are set down the combinations which, I think, are responsible for particular vocations. I have tentatively codified them after serious study of the horoscopes of eminent as well as obscure men of our own times and have made minimum draft on the indications given in the ancient text-books. I find that the combinations set out in the ancient text-books do not work in modern times except in a general way and I would therefore request my readers to excuse me if I have been somewhat insolent. Of course, one cannot but rely to a great extent on the aphorisms of the Sanskrit textbooks which have passed the test of time. But there should be no scope for prejudice. It is stated in the ancient textbooks that Rahu in the 2nd house makes the native earn his livelihood by selling nails, teeth and bones and that a man with Sun in Pisces becomes a pearl merchant. I admit that the ancient astrologers knew that one swallow does not make a summer and when they had the temerity to codify such results it can be assumed that at some era in the history of our country quite a large number of people with Rahu in the 2nd house were dealers in such commodities as nails, teeth and bones. Perhaps a high percentage, say 20 to 30 percent, of the people with Sun in Pisces were pearl traders. I concede that the ancient Hindus codified these results after a statistical analysis of thousands of such cases. But today we cannot say that Rahu in the second house or Sun in Pisces account for such trades as mentioned. Could we not then, without violating the sanctity of Sukracharya's astrology, say that in modern time Rahu in the second house points to the dealer in scrap iron, combs and brushes? Or again, since Rahu stands for gas, welding, metallurgical operations, radio, shadow-shows and therefore cinemas, could we not say that Rahu in our own times would point to profession connected with the above when occupying the 2nd house?

With our present knowledge of astrology we can only indicate the general nature of one's profession. What I mean is that the Engineering profession should embrace not only the Engineer proper but also the mechanic, machinist, operator, machine-minder, boiler-attendant, stocker, engine driver and fireman, and I may add with some fear of criticism, the non-engineering and non-technical personnel of an engineering factory as well. For unless those in the clerical jobs in an engineering concern had a combination for engineering in their horoscopes. they could not have gravitated to an engineering firm. Even at the risk of vehement criticism, I must stress the point that the yoga which makes a doctor also makes the druggist, the compounder and the nurse. The same configuration occurs in the horoscopes of hospital clerks and ward boys. The difference lies in the strength or weakness of the yoga. There could be no earthly reason why a clerk should spend his whole life in a hospital office when clerical jobs are plentiful elsewhere and everywhere unless his blood smacks of medicine. Unless we accept this view we shall not be able to account for yogas that appear as common factors in the nativities of great, mediocre and obscure men.

Scanned by Jyotish Sahitya Prishtha astrology.com To Preserve Late B. V. Raman's Work

The Civil Engineer falls in a different category from the mechanical, electrical and marine engineer in view of the great differences in the nature of their jobs. Venus–Saturn yoga indicates the civil engineer, the architect, the sculptor, the carpenter and mason. The civil engineer should properly fall in the group "Builders and Architects". Though Rahu enters into civil engineering in view of the uses of steel and iron in it Mars hardly enters into the picture. Mars and Rahu stand for electricity, propellents and motors, flames and gases, irons and waves in space. The Mars-Saturn or Mars–Rahu configuration therefore points to the mechanical, electrical, marine and radio engineer. Mining engineering should fall in a separate class indicated by a connection between strong Saturn and weak Mars.

Doctors must have a prominent Venus configurated with strong Mars or Moon and should preferably receive the rays of the Sun as well. Venus–Mars configuration indicates the surgeon and Venus–Moon the physician. But a good Homoepath is almost invariably indicated by Jupiter–Kethu configuration. This combination or connection points to a highly developed intuition and a sixth sense. Jupiter–Kethu yoga is found in the horoscopes of those who are engaged in research in borderline sciences.

The politician must have an exalted or well placed Moon and Venus should preferably be in kendra. The placement of Venus or Asuracharya in Thula or Libra is by itself a sign of leadership in the political field. Saturn in 2nd house, whether yogakarka or not, also indicates the born leader. This position is found in the horoscopes of politicians and statesmen who go the whole hog. Military commanders who will not play second fiddle to anybody else often have Saturn in the 2nd house. For a political career the Sun should preferably be in the 12th house where it indicates clash with Government and banishment by the King. The 7th house must be particularly strong for a successful political career. The 10th house, when strong, indicates the high executive and the big boss but strong 7th and 4th houses indicaie those who excel in international and home politics respectively.

Businessmen and industrialists should have a strong 3rd house besides a strong Venus who should preferably be posited in the 2nd or 11th house. According to Uttarakalamrita, the 3rd house is connected with 'Urukarya' or big enterprise. Those at the head of big public limited companies or are steersmen of large corporations, utility services, cartels and industrial groups are very often found to have a strong 3rd house.

Paradoxically enough, the Venus-Mercury conjunction does not point to the industrialist or the businessman through Venus, or rather, Sukracharya; is the technologist and the inventor, and Mercury is the planet of commerce and communications. When these planets stand alone they do indicate the successful industrialist or businessman but in combination they turn out the literateur and the poet. The combination should occur in the 2nd, 11th or 5th house. When Venus-Mercury conjunction is reinforced by Sun, we have the musician and composer. Even where the native does not happen to be a musician, his plans and projects are Wagnerian in conception. The tri-ekadasa yoga between Moon and Venus points to the ordinary singer.

Saturn-Mars conjunction, when weak, indicates the agriculturist. If Kethu is in the 11th or 2nd house, such a combination goes with the jailor, the secret service man and the police. However, litigious people are often found with Saturn-Mars conjunction in the upachaya houses.

Lawyers are generally characterised by Jupiter-Mercury and Rahu-Mercury configurations.

Mercury–Saturn conjunction goes with the accountant, statistician, mathematician and with all those specialised jobs where finesse and concentration of mind are called for. In lower natures the combination bespeaks the liar and the cheat. In the higher stratum of profession and society and unless relieved by benefic aspects, the combination may indicate the tax-dodger, the plagiarist and the forger. Unless the combination occurs in the 2nd or 5th or 11th house connected with money deals, it will have become immobilised and rendered innocuous so far as the public is concerned. The combination often occurs in the horoscopes of research scholars who can pin themselves down to a particular subject.

Scanned by www.sapthrishisastrology.com Prof. Veera Brahma V.V. Ramana SSC-k

Apart from the Pravrajya yogas so well-known to the students of astrology, the Moon-Saturn and Moon-Kethu conjunctions when occurring in angular houses indicate the saint and sadhu. Original thinkers, renegades and conspirators often display these combinations. These are apparently very bad combinations and are theoretically and presumably to be found in the horoscopes of professional thieves and thugs. But in higher natures, they are conducive to concentration of mind resulting in trance. In the Moon-Saturn conjunction the mind represented by the Moon is perhaps freezed and rendered immobile by Saturn so that it becomes possible to get into a state ef samadhi. Similarly, in the Moon-Kethu conjunction, Kethu the coiled serpant, perhaps unwinds and reaches out like Kundalini towards the Moon perched on the head of Shiva.

Those engaged in fundamental research often have Kethu in the 3rd or 4th house although it is difficult to link Kethu with higher study and research.

If Saturn is connected with Jupiter and Mercury we have the journalist or the publisher.

Teachers and professors are generally seen to have their Jupiter aspected by Saturn. This is a fine configuration indicating lack of snobbery and a nature given to high thinking and low living.

Rahu-Sun conjunction bespeaks generally the rich man and Rahu-Moon the diplomat.

Lastly, it is a hard fact that often times though a clear-cut yoga indicating a definite event occurs in a horoscope, the native is never found to experience that event. In such cases it will be noticed that the lord of lagna is not a component of the yoga. Again, my experience suggests that the 2nd, 11th and 5th houses are concerned with blossoming and manifestation and unless the yoga occurs in these houses, the possibility of its fructifying is remote. Planets in angular houses are highly spoken of capable of giving maximum results but a close study of horoscopes will convince the reader that the potential energy of the Kendra lord assumes a kinetic form only when posited in the 2nd, 5th and 11th houses.

STUDIES IN JAIMINI ASTROLOGY

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work

By B. V. RAMAN

SECOND EDITION

This is the first attempt to present the complicated principles of Jaimini contained in all the four Adhyayas, is a simple, comprehensive and attractive manner, information being gathered from rare and difficult sources. Calculation and interpretation of Dasas suggested by Jaimini, which have hitherto remained obscure have, for the first time, been clearly expounded with suitable illustrations.

CONTENTS

Differences between Jaimini and Parasari; Distinctive Features of Jaimini; Importance of Karakamsa; Jaimini's Abstruseness. Significance and Determination of Karakas; Certain Exceptions; Different kinds of Lagnas; Pranapada and its Significance; Dwara and Bahya Rasis; Gulika; Finding Brahma, Rudra and Maheswara; Aspects and Argalas; Significance of Argalas; Source of Rasi Strength; Numerical Measure of Strength; Kinds of Dasas; Importance of Chara Dasa; Determination of the Order and Duration of Chara, Sthira, Brahma, Shula, Yogardha, Thrikona and Varnada Dasas; Longevity Determination; Increase and Decrease of Terms of life; Main and Sub-periods of Death; Horoscope Judgment, Physical and Mental Characteristics; Financial Prospects; Health and Disease; Education and Marriage; Combinations peculiar to Women; Karakamsa and Profession; Source and Nature of Death; Rajayogas according to Jaimini; Misfortunes and Miscellaneous Yogas; Timing Events by Chara Dasa; Nature of Results in Rasi Dasas; Maraka Periods for Parents, Self, Brothers, etc., according to Nirayana Shula Dasa; Summary.

Illustrated by two example Horoscopes. This is a book that no astrological student could afford to miss as this is the first time an attempt has ever been made to write a text-book exclusively based on Jaimini.

Crown 1/8 Size; Antique Paper; 196 Pages; Type Face—Clear and Bold; Cloth Bound

Price Rs. 6 per copy: Postage, etc., extra

Less 12½% to Subscribers of: THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

RAMAN PUBLICATIONS, "SRI RAJESWARI", BANGALORE-3

Troinski's Tertiary Directions—III *

TRANSLATED BY DR. S. N. DUTT

RUSSIAN HOROSCOPES

THE TERTIARY DIRECTIONS (TDS) act specially powerfully when in the birth horoscope of a native:

(a) the Moon is powerfully placed, or

(b) the sign Cancer is heavily occupied or

(c) the 4th house assumes prominence.

Such however is not the case with the horoscope of a State, as the Moon in Mundane Astrology represents the "folks" in all cases.

The birth of the Soviet State may be taken as the 7th November 1917 at 10 a.m. Petersburg (Leningrad) Time; and we shall apply the TDs to elucidate the following events:

I. The defeat of the Russians: at the Battle of Warsaw: 14–21 August 1920.

II. German attack on Russia 22–6–1941.

III. Russian Victory in World War II: April/May 1945.

IV. The Korean War: June 1950.

V. The Berlin Blockade: 7–5–1949 (ended), and

VII. The Future of Russia: 1959?

I. The Battle of Warsaw: August 1920 (H. II)

In the Battle of Warsaw, although the Russians had besieged the town, they were unexpectedly defeated by the Poles in August 1920.

Upto August 1920, 37 lunar revolutions had occurred from November 1917. Hence 37 days from 7–11–1917 come to 14th December 1917. So the TDH has to be set up for 14–12–1917,

H. II

TDH - Battle of Warsaw
14-12-1917 - 10 Am (Petersburg)

10 a.m. (Petersburg). Vide Horoscope II. This TDH for August 1920 shows an annular solar eclipse on the cusp of the 12th house and in exact square to Mars in 8th house.

II. Hitler's attack on Russia: June 1941. (H. III)

From Nov. 1917 to Nov. 1940 =23 yrs.=308 (Tr.) months =308 days

Further upto June 1941 =7yrs. 7 ,, 315 ,,

Add year number of 7th Nov. (as per Table) 311 ,, 626 ,,

(Less) 365 ,,

= 1 year plus 261 days
= 18th September 1918.

Hence the TDH for the German attack on Russia in June 1941 has to be set up for 18–9–1918, 10 a.m. (Petersburg): Vide Horoscope III. This TDH is rather strikingly decisive. The most important points are:

1. For the first time in a TDH of Russia after 1917, Tertiary Mars is square to Tertiary Saturn.

2. Scorpio ascending, and Mars in Scorpio and in 1st house.

3. Saturn badly afflicted both by the rising Mars and by Uranus-Moon opposition culminates in the Heavens (M.C.).

4. Observe also: the culminating Saturn (for the first time in the TDH of Russia after 1917) stands in exact conjunction with radical Moon (21° Leo).

H. III

TDH: Russia attacked
18-9-1918 - 10 AM (P

5. The radical Moon also receives catastrophic aspects from T Mars square T Uranus opposition. (T means Tertiary and R means Radical).

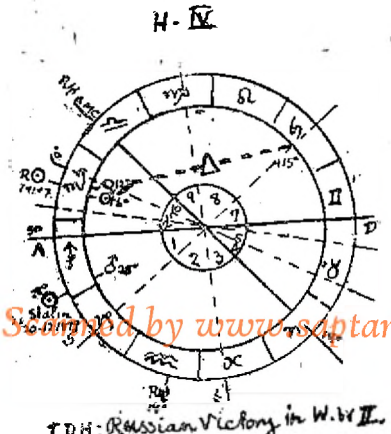
6. The tertiary Moon is square tertiary Mars.

7. R. Moon opposition to T. Moon.

III. Russian Victory in World War II: April/May 1945: (H.IV)

From November 1917 to November 1944 (27 years), 361

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr B V Ramans Work



* The first two parts have appeared in January and February 1959 issues of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

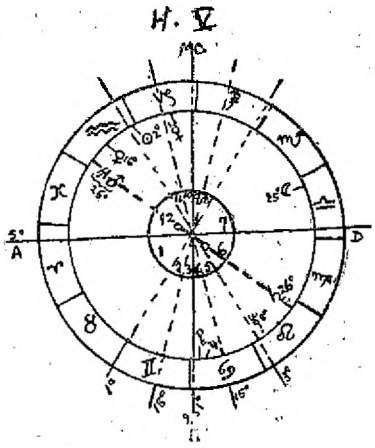
tropical months have elapsed (vide Table) and 367 tropical months upto 6th May 1945.
Hence 367 + 311 = 678 days.

678—365 (1 year) = 313, which according to the table for "Year-numbers" gives us 9th November. Therefore the TDH for this event should be set up for 9th November, 1918, 10 a.m. (Petersburg): vide Horoscope IV.

In this TDH, we find the following :—

1. Jupiter on the cusp of 8th house and in exact trine to radical and tertiary Sun.

2. Observe also that Jupiter is the lord of Ascendant in the TDH.



3. Shortly thereafter, the T Venus comes to a conjunction with R Sun and at the same time forms trine with T Jupiter.

4. And finally the chief effect: the T Mars in exact conjunction with R Sun in Stalin's horoscope (in 28° Sagittarius).

So the war luck is shown both in the TDH in its relation to the radical horoscope of the Russian State, as well as with that of Stalin; the head of the Russian State and an important military factor.

IV. The Korean War: June 1950: (H. V).

We have already shown that the first square between the two malefics, T Mars and T Saturn fell timely with the beginning of the Russo-German war in June 1941: (vide H.III). Since then, the T Mars in its progress through the signs of Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricornus, Aquarius now comes for the first time (in the TDH of Russia) into opposition with T Saturn at a time which coincides with the Korean War in the autumn of 1950 (vide H.V).

We calculate as follows :—

From Nov. 1917
to Nov. 1950
(=33 yrs.) = 442
Add year-number for 7th Nov. = 311
753
730 (=2 yrs.)
= 2 years plus 23 days.
= 23–1–1919.

So the TDH for the Korean War has to be set up for 23–1–1919 at 10 a.m. (Peters :)

According to this TDH (Vide H. V.) we find the following:

1. T Mars in 26° Aquarius opposition to T Saturn in 26° Leo.

2. T Mars 26° Aquarius conjunction T Uranus in 26° Aquarius.

3. With the beginning of the Korean War in June 1950 (TDH: 17/18 Jan. 1919), the T Moon was in conjunction with T Saturn and both in opposition to T Mars and T Uranus.

4. To give further weight to the aspects, the T Sun (of TDH 18th January) stood on the cusp of the 12th house (26° Capricornus).

5. However, Russia escaped the danger of an actual involvement, as the exact opposition between T Mars (conjunction T Uranus) and T Saturn did not fall this time with the Radical Moon in 21° Leo. This difference of 5° in the orb is a bit too much.

The so-called cease-fire in Korea in the middle of 1951 is reflected again in the TDH of Russia: Jupiter in 7° Cancer in conjunction with Pluto on the cusp of the 4th house (I.C.).

Scanned by www.saptarishis.org. All Rights Reserved Dr B V Ramans Work

V. The Berlin Blockade: May 1949

The Berlin Blockade of 1948-49 officially ended on 12th May 1949, and represents a defeat in a diplomatic war. Let us therefore examine the Russian TDH for the month of May 1949.

Upto 7–11–1948
(31 yrs.)=415
tr. months = 415 days.
From Nov. 1948
to May 1949
=6 tr. months = 6 days.
Year-number (for 7th Nov.) = 311 days.
732 days.
730 (=2 yrs.)
= 2 years plus 2 days.

Therefore the TDH for this event has to be set up for 2nd January 1919 at 10 a.m. (Peters). This tertiary horoscope shows that both Sun and Moon are at

(Continued on page 406)

*New Light on Jaimini Astrology—II

A Discourse on Somanatha Misra's Jyothishakalpalatha commentary

BY M. K. SASTRI

HERE in these pages, I deal with different Dasas as detailed by Somanatha Misra and also the opinions of the other commentators on the same subject.

The Dasas are of two kinds:

1. Ayurdaya Dasas, (used in the calculation of Longevity)

2. Phalitha Dasas, (to know the periodical readings). Amongst these Dasas, many of them have Dwara and Bahya significances but these significances are not furnished for some Dasas.

According to the opinion of Somanatha Misra, these two significances are elaborately discussed taking into consideration the opinions of similar works of the other commentators. Dwara and Bahya significances are of paramount importance to determine the periodical readings of Dasas, extent of longevity etc. These two are also termed as Paka and Bhoga. Six out of the twelve Rasis are known as Oja pada and the rest Ugma pada.

Mesha (♈), Vrishabha (♉), Mithuna (♊), Thula (♎), Vrischika (♏), and Dhanus (♐) come under the category of Oja pada and Karkataka (♋), Simha (♌), Kanya (♍), Makara (♑), Kumbha (♒) and Meena (♓) belong to Ugma pada. The counting of the Dasas is in two ways, Clock-wise and Anti-clock-wise. So far the general discussion on Dasas is dealt with here. Now the detailed formula of both the Dwara and Bahya Rasis for all the twelve Rasis are discussed below according to Somanatha Misra.

If the first sign (Prarambharasi) at the time of birth is:	Dwara	Bahya
Mesha	Mesha	Mesha
Vrishabha	Vrishabha	Mithuna
Mithuna	Mtihuna	Simha
Karkataka	Karkataka	Thula
Simha	Simha	Dhanus
Kanya	Kanya	Kumbha
Thula	Thula	Mesha
Vrischika	Vrischika	Mithuna
Dhanus	Dhanus	Simha
Makara	Makara	Thula
Kumbha	Kumbha	Dhanus
Meena	Meena	Kumbha

The above principle is applicable only when at the time of the birth the prarambhadasa (first one) happens to be Mesha.

Scanned by www.sriastrology.com To Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

If the Prarambharasi at the time of birth is:	Dwara	Bahya
Thula	Thula	Thula
Vrischika	Vrischika	Dhanus
Dhanus	Dhanus	Kumbha
Makara	Makara	Mesha
Kumbha	Kumbha	Mithuna
Meena	Meena	Simha
Mesha	Mesha	Thula
Vrishabha	Vrishabha	Dhanus
Mithuna	Mithuna	Kumbha
Karkataka	Karkataka	Mesha
Simha	Simha	Mithuna
Kanya	Kanya	Simha

As these two Rasis viz Mesha and Thula are Chara Rasis of Oja pada, the Dasas should be counted clock-wise only.

If the Prarambharasi at the time of birth is:	Dwara	Bahya
Karkataka	Karkataka	Karkataka
Mithuna	Mithuna	Vrishabha
Vrishabha	Vrishabha	Meena
Mesha	Mesha	Makara
Meena	Meena	Vrischika
Kumbha	Kumbha	Kanya
Makara	Makara	Karkataka
Dhanus	Dhanus	Vrishabha
Vrischika	Vrischika	Meena
Thula	Thula	Makara
Kanya	Kanya	Vrischika
Simha	Simha	Kanya

The above calculation is to be followed when the prarambhadasa happens to be Karkataka only (as opined by Somanatha Misra).

If the Prarambharasi at the time of birth is:	Dwara	Bahya
Makara	Makara	Makara
Dhanus	Dhanus	Vrischika
Vrischika	Vrischika	Kanya
Thula	Thula	Karkataka
Kanya	Kanya	Vrishabha
Simha	Simha	Meena
Karkataka	Karkataka	Makara
Mithuna	Mithuna	Vrischika
Vrishabha	Vrishabha	Kanya
Mesha	Mesha	Karkataka
Meena	Meena	Vrishabha
Kumbha	Kumbha	Meena

These two Chara Rasis, Karkataka and Makara, belong to the group of Ugma pada and hence the counting should be anti-clock-wise.

This process of calculating Dasas as promulgated by Somanatha Misra though accepted by many in general, Mahidhara Sridharachary had raised an objection to this. But on the same subject the author of Sundarabhatteeya had accepted the calculations of the two Rasis, Mesha and Thula and disagreed with the remaining two Rasis and stated that:

If the Prarambharasi at the time of birth is:	Dwara	Bahya
Karkataka	Karkataka	Karkataka
Simha	Simha	Mithuna
Kanya	Kanya	Mesha
Thula	Thula	Makara
Vrischika	Vrischika	Kanya
Dhanus	Dhanus	Mesha
Makara	Makara	Thula
Kumbha	Kumbha	Meena
Meena	Meena	Karkataka
Mesha	Mesha	Thula
Vrishabha	Vrishabha	Simha
Mithuna	Mithuna	Karkataka

* The first part of the article has appeared in March 1959 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE.

And, if the Prarambha-rasi at the time of birth is:	Dwara	Bahya
Makara	Makara	Makara
Kumbha	Kumbha	Dhanus
Meena	Meena	Thula
Mesha	Mesha	Karkataka
Vrishabha	Vrishabha	Meena
Mithuna	Mithuna	Thula
Karkataka	Karkataka	Mesha
Simha	Simha	Kanya
Kanya	Kanya	Makara
Thula	Thula	Mesha
Vrischika	Vrischika	Kumbha
Dhanus	Dhanus	Makara

This process of calculation is the only proper method for the two Rasis, Karkataka and Makara of the Ugma pada group; though he asserts that this is the opinion of the Maharshi Jaimini the author of Sundarabhatteeya had not followed this method at any time, and I give below the method he had adopted in the practical side:

If the Pra-rambhadasa at the time of birth is:	Dwara	Bahya
Karkataka	Karkataka	Karkataka
Simha	Simha	Kanya
Kanya	Kanya	Vrischika
Thula	Thula	Makara
Vrischika	Vrischika	Meena
Dhanus	Dhanus	Vrishabha
Makara	Makara	Karkataka
Kumbha	Kumbha	Kanya
Meena	Meena	Vrischika
Mesha	Mesha	Makara
Vrishabha	Vrishabha	Meena
Mithuna	Mithuna	Vrishabha

And, if the Prarambha-rasi at the time of birth is:	Dwara	Bahya
Makara	Makara	Makara
Kumbha	Kumbha	Meena
Meena	Meena	Vrishabha
Mesha	Mesha	Karkataka
Vrishabha	Vrishabha	Kanya
Mithuna	Mithuna	Vrischika
Karkataka	Karkataka	Makara
Simha	Simha	Meena
Kanya	Kanya	Vrishabha
Thula	Thula	Karkataka
Vrischika	Vrischika	Kanya
Dhanus	Dhanus	Vrischika

Thus it is seen that the counting is made clock-wise for the Rasis like Mesha and Thula of Oja pada though the two Chara Rasis Karkataka and Makara belong to the Ugma pada group. This very same practical process of counting is accepted by Bhattoji Deekshita but Appayya Deekshita has followed the theoretical method of Sundarabhatteeya. But on this system my opinion is that the proper method should be that of Somanatha Misra.

Thus after the discussion of Chara Rasi I now come to Sthira Rasis.

Sthira Rasis

If at the time of the birth the prarambha (the first) dasa happens to be sthira rasi the second dasa should be the sixth rasi from the prarambha dasa rasi. The remaining dasas also should be considered in the like manner i.e. the third dasa should be the sixth rasi from the second dasa rasi and so on upto the twelve rasis. But there is one speciality with this. It is the two rasis, Vrischika and Vrishabha, belonging to the Oja pada, are to be calculated anti clock-wise instead of clock-wise. Again Simha and Kumbha, belonging to Ugma pada, the calculation should be clock-wise and not anti-clock-wise. But there is an exception in some dasas like Kendradi dasas where the calculation would be clock-wise for Vrishabha and Vrischika and anti-clock-wise for Simha and Kumbha.

Now I give the process of calculation according to the above theory:

If the Pra-rambharasi at the time of birth is:	Dwara	Bahya
Vrishabha	Vrishabha	Vrishabha
Dhanus	Dhanus	Karkataka
Karkataka	Karkataka	Kanya
Kumbha	Kumbha	Vrischika
Kanya	Kanya	Makara
Mesha	Mesha	Meena
Vrischika	Vrischika	Vrishabha
Mithuna	Mithuna	Karkataka
Makara	Makara	Kanya
Simha	Simha	Vrischika
Meena	Meena	Makara
Thula	Thula	Meena

If the Pra-rambharasi at the time of birth is:	Dwara	Bahya
Vrischika	Vrischika	Vrischika
Mithuna	Mithuna	Makara
Makara	Makara	Meena
Simha	Simha	Vrishabha
Meena	Meena	Karkataka
Thula	Thula	Kanya
Vrishabha	Vrishabha	Vrischika
Dhanus	Dhanus	Makara
Karkataka	Karkataka	Meena
Kumbha	Kumbha	Vrishabha
Kanya	Kanya	Karkataka
Mesha	Mesha	Kanya

Both the above two calculations, for Vrishabha and Vrischika are anti-clock-wise.

The clockwise calculations for Simha and Kumbha are:

If the Pra-rambharasi at the time of birth is:	Dwara	Bahya
Simha	Simha	Simha
Makara	Makara	Mithuna
Mithuna	Mithuna	Mesha
Vrischika	Vrischika	Kumbha
Mesha	Mesha	Dhanus
Kanya	Kanya	Thula
Kumbha	Kumbha	Simha
Karkataka	Karkataka	Mithuna
Dhanus	Dhanus	Mesha
Vrishabha	Vrishabha	Kumbha
Thula	Thula	Dhanus
Meena	Meena	Thula

And, if the Prarambha-rasi at the time of birth is:	Dwara	Bahya
Kumbha	Kumbha	Kumbha
Karkataka	Karkataka	Dhanus
Dhanus	Dhanus	Thula
Vrishabha	Vrishabha	Simha
Thula	Thula	Mithuna
Meena	Meena	Mesha
Simha	Simha	Kumbha
Makara	Makara	Dhanus
Mithuna	Mithuna	Thula
Vrischika	Vrischika	Simha
Mesha	Mesha	Mithuna
Kanya	Kanya	Mesha

The calculations given above for the four sthira rasis (fixed signs) are in common usage. But in some of the Karaka and Kendradi dasas there is a difference in the method of calculation and that is: clock-wise for Vrishabha and Vrischika and anti clock-wise for Simha and Kumbha.

(Continued on page 398)

Gurudeva's Astrological Library - Dedicated to Preserve Dr. B.V. Raman's Work

The Kaleidoscope

BY YOGIRAJ GEORGE CECIL NIXON

[Under this heading Mr. G. C. Nixon will astrologically comment on important happenings in the world such as political upheavals, natural calamities and train disasters, etc., with special reference to events in India. Mr. Nixon has been a keen student of Hindu Astrology and Yoga for a number of years. It is hoped that this feature will be welcomed by our esteemed readers. Publication of Mr. Nixon's views does not necessarily mean that the Editor endorses them.—Ed., A.M.]

The Horoscope of Mao Tse Tung

DURING the past few months, the world's attention has been speculatively turned to the momentous and far reaching events, which have been occurring in China, and more especially the agony of Tibet. Mao's intervention last summer in the Bagdad crisis, which prevented Krushev going to New York; the subsequent shelling of Quemoy and its failure to achieve anything, and finally the world's realisation of a serious civil war in Tibet, together with the unrest in China itself, owing to the vast communal reforms breaking up the traditional family life, were the events which lead to the resignation of Mao Tse Tung from the Presidency. He still retains the Chairmanship of the Chinese Communist Party, but the question arises—is this but a tactical move on his part, or has his influence waned altogether? His horoscope should give us the answer.

According to Prediction November 1958 issue, he was born on the 26th December, 1893 at 7.30 a.m., L.M.T., 27.53 North, 112.40 East. Using an Ayanamsa of 23°16' his chart is as given in the next column.

Here we find the Sun rising in Sagittarius, and Saturn on the Meridian, exalted in the sign Libra. Since the Sun is ruler of the 9th sign, there is evidence of some Rajayoga here, especially as Jupiter, ruler of the 1st, is in Aries, the 5th sign from the Ascendant. The Moon is also in Cancer, the 8th sign, in opposition to Venus in Capricorn, the 2nd sign. This latter position denotes a poet, according Bhavartha Ratnakara, and there is no doubt of his love of books from the Moon posited in Cancer, trine Mercury, opposite

Rahu 20.15	Jupiter 28.53	Nep. 18.18 Pluto 14.31
	HOROSCOPE OF MAO TSE TUNG AYANAMSA : 23° 16		Moon 20.32
Venus 26.50
Ascdt. 20.15 Sun 10.13	Mars 2.36 Mercury 22.32	Sat. 0.37 Uranus 20.46 M.C. 6°	Kethu 22.15

Venus, and square Jupiter and Uranus. He has a fine mind, and we read that he was originally a Librarian in Peking.

The tragedy in his life was portrayed by the position of Mars in Scorpio in th 12th sign, and ruling the 5th sign, conjoined with Mercury, ruler of the 7th sign, for he lost his wife and three children who perished in the upheavals which followed with the wars with the Kuomintang. Here it should be noted that these facts could only be predicted if we use the Rasi or sign chart, and not the Bhava or house positions, for in the latter, the distribution of the Ecliptic is much distorted when applied to the Mundane Houses. In the Bhava or House chart, the sign Taurus is spread over two houses, the 5th and 6th, and if we were to apply the divinatory method of sign rulerships, Venus would have been the significator of children, safely placed and well-aspected in the 2nd house. But this is not true. Aries being the 5th sign from the Ascendant Sagittarius is the true significator for children for Sagittarius Lagna and he has to be well placed to bring happiness to them. In the Bhava chart, Mars is in the 11th house. I am sure that all Hindu astrologers agree with me, that for loss of children, malefics should rule the 5th sign and be placed in the 6th, 8th or 12th signs from the Ascendant. Only the Rasi chart gives this and not the Bhava chart, what is yet another case proving that the rules according to Parasara, should be applied to the Rasi chart only.

Again we are also told in Bhavartha Ratnakara, Stanza 2 for Dhanur or Sagittarius Lagna, that only Saturn in Libra in the 11th, gives Raja Yoga, and not for any other sign rising. This obviously must mean the 11th sign. In the horoscope of Mao, Saturn is on the cusp of the 10th house in the Bhava chart, but in the Rasi or sign chart, Saturn is in the 11th sign and correctly applies to give Raja Yoga.

Again, the Sun rising in Sagittarius gives Rajayoga, due to Leo being the 9th sign from the Ascendant, but in the Bhava chart, Leo is intercepted in the 8th house. I can give scores of cases to prove that this solar position gives Yoga, and to give but one, readers should refer to the Horoscope of Crown Prince Akihito of Japan, published last month, who had this position also.

In Mao's chart, Virgo is the 10th sign from the Ascendant, and Mercury the ruler is with Scanned by Jayanti Jyotish Vidyapeeth Seva Nyas. Digitized by eGangotri. Preserving Ancient Knowledge for Future Work

Mars in Scorpio, ruler of the 5th sign again denoting Raja-yoga, but unfortunately for Mao they are in the 12th sign from the Ascendant, which makes his position somewhat unstable and his policies are not successful. He has attempted too much re-form and a reaction has set in.

The Dasa periods are as follows, based upon the position of the Moon in Aslesha Naksha-tra, ruled by Mercury, and with an unexpired period of 11.90 years.

.0	Mercury in Scorpio Dasa
11.90	Kethu in Virgo Dasa
6.90
18.80	Venus in Capricorn Dasa
19.72
38.52	Sun in Sagittarius Dasa
5.92
44.44	Moon in Cancer Dasa
9.87
54.31	Mars in Scorpio Dasa
6.90
61.21	Rahu in Pisces Dasa. (March 1955)
2.66
63.87	Jupiter in Aries sub-period (November 1957)
2.36
66.23	Saturn in Libra sub-period (March 1960)
2.85
69.08	(Dec. 1962).

When China was proclaimed a People's Republic on the 1st Oct. 1949, it will be noticed that he was in Mars in Scorpio Dasa and this was shortly followed by the Korean War. As Mars par-ticipates in the Rajayoga, when combined with Mercury, ruler of the 10th sign, yet the 12th sign position hindered full success.

He commenced his Rahu in Pisces Dasa in March, 1955, and at present is in the Jupiter in Aries sub-period, which extends from November, 1957 to March 1960. Whilst this is normally a most favourable sub-period, yet there is an aspect of Saturn to Jupiter in the Rasi chart, which denotes his recent setback and failure of policy. It has lead to Krushev feeling free to send his man Mikoyan to New York for talks. It is clear that Russia fears a strong China, and sees a temporary tactical move in ap-proaching the West. My recent comment on the horoscope of Chiang Kai-Shek, in which I predicted some measure of suc-cess for him, this year 1959, all fits into the picture, that Com-munist China is having serious internal trouble.

During 1959 to 1960 Mao is going to have the transit of Saturn over the place of the Sun in Sagittarius, which will depress his fortunes still further and he will have great loss of prestige as well as ill-health. There is a risk of the Civil War in Tibet spreading into China.

Scanned by www.saptarishisastrology.com To Preserve Dr. V. Ramans Work

His fortunes however will re-vive again when Jupiter transits the Sun in December, 1960, and he will again become bold and aggressive in 1961. If any major war breaks out at that time, he will undoubtedly be the storm centre, as the great eight planet conjunction in Capricorn in 1962, will fall in opposition to his natal Moon. By that time he will have entered his Saturn in Libra sub-period of Rahu which threatens disaster and danger of defeat and even death in 1962/63.

The Tragedy of Tibet

The Chinese infiltration into Tibet has been going on for some seven years now, and little infor-mation has filtered through to the outer world until recently, when news that General Tobgye Wangdue, commander of 20,000 armed guerillas, contacted the two intrepid Daily Mail reporters, Noel Barber and Ralph Izzard.

China has moved in four and a half million men and women colonisers, and the Tibetans have been driven from their villages into the mountains to perish. Monasteries have been bombed, slaughtered, and ancient reli-gious books burnt or destroyed. 17,000 Tibetans have been killed. and the northern side of the Himalayas is now ringed with seven strategically placed aero-dromes. Training schools for fifth-columnists are sending out spies to enter Nepal and the North Indian States.

The Himalayas have been a mighty protection to India from time immemorial, but just pause for a moment and consider how dreadful it would be, if those great barriers in the North were surmounted by Commu-nist Chinese hordes, who by air, descended upon the Ganges plain, destroying all Mutts, Temples and sacred Ashrams of India and massacred their in-habitants. Does this sound fantastic? Not to day! The stars indicate that this may happen some day.

Take a look at the astrologi-cal indications. Tibet is said to be ruled by Libra and during the past five years has been suffering the transit of Neptune, the planet of infiltration and chaos, disruption and over-throw. Saturn and Neptune entered Libra in 1953 and the situation so far as the Tibetans are concerned, has gone from bad to worse. No doubt the recent conjunction of Jupiter and Neptune in Libra in Septem-ber last, sparked off the Tibetan Freedom Movement but can it last in face of the military might of Red China? I suggest that there will be a temporary halt, in China's march, for which

(Continued on page 396)

AROUND the WORLD

BY DOUGLAS HUNT, M.A.

WHEN I was a boy there was a Lodge of Theosophists just across the road from the church of which my father was the vicar. We used to pass it with delicious shudders of horror at the thought of the nameless orgies which went on within. We were never quite sure whether to roar with laughter at the idea that anyone could believe anything so ridiculous as that one might be born again—we conveniently forgot the biblical injunction to that effect—or to shudder at the thought of what would happen to these wicked and deluded people when the Last Trump should sound.

That was quite a long time ago, and those days are as dead as the mastodon and the pterodactyl. Today there are innumerable mystery schools, curricula of Yoga for Westerners, 'ashrams', adyta, and what not. Some of these are fountains of truth, others mere catch-pennies, but nearly all of them have some kind of spiritual revelation adapted to the intellects and spiritual capacities of those who cast in their lot with them. One is no longer thought odd because one is not orthodox—the orthodox in fact are regarded as the oddities—nor wholly-minded because one is not a materialist.

In England, as elsewhere, there are many of these mystical or occult organisations. One of the latest, which has recently been brought to my notice, is The Atlanteans.

The Atlanteans claim a 'knowledge' of the creation of this planet and of the "early continent of MU, and how certain evolved spirits from another sphere incarnated into earth bodies to assist the evotution of this planet". They see a certain connection between these events and the reported interest of beings from other planets in our civilisation today. Their President, Miss Jacqueline Murray, is one of those who from early youth have had recollections of former lives. They run, moreover, a very efficient healing circle. Miss Murray, I may mention, located a osurce of trouble in my wife's spine before she had even seen her.

A record from their healing case-book makes very interesting reading.

One of the Atlantean healers was witness of a crash in which a motor-cycle was involved. The rider was badly injured and in great pain. "Our healer was quickly on the job", reads the report, "and while awaiting the arrival of the police and ambulance was able, by her strong healing thought force, to calm the frightened suffering man, and so cut off the lower part of his body from consciousness—a leg and his lower body were badly smashed—that point which a few minutes before had been unbearable became almost non-existent".

Such psyhic first-aid is comparatively common in the East; it is significant and hopeful that it is no longer such a rarity in the West.

The Atlanteans, like most esotericists, have their own views on the future of the world, views based to a considerable extent, but not entirely, on astrology.

They believe that in the not too distant future the world-axis will receive a tilt, which will inevitably cause fairly widespread destruction. From that new foundation a new and better world will be built. They also believe that Uranus has commenced to break up and that it will pass sufficiently near the earth to spin it on its axis and cause considerable disturbance.

Abnormal weather conditions will prevail, growing worse as time progresses. (Have these not started?) The seasons will appear to have no more significance, for there will be warm days in winter months and cold days during the normally warm periods of the year. As the time nears there will be increasing darkness, for the rays of the sun will be blocked out. A substance commonly known as 'black rain' will fall from the skies and there will be widespread chaos. It is when these events have risen to a crescendo that the earth will tilt. The Island Continent of Atlantis will be one of the lands to rise from their watery resting-place.

For most people all this must remain mere speculation—though the Atlanteans assure us that most of us will experience it—yet oddly enough something like confirmation comes from that staid American monthly Harper's.

For the past five years Maurice Ewing, Director of Columbia University's Lamont Geological Observatory and William Donn, geologist-meteorologist, have been occupied with certain theories that suggest that the world is now heading into another Ice Age. Like the Atlanteans they believe that it will not come as a sudden catastrophe, but as an inevitable culmination of a process that has already begun. They do not, however, attribute this coming Ice Age to the break-up of Uranus.

Okkulte Stimme now appears under its new title of Die andere Welt. The quality is as good as ever, and a welcome new rubric brings us news from various parts of the world. Included is an account of the case reported—in Prediction and elsewhere—of a photographer who took a snap of the interior of a Winchester Cathedral, and found on developing it that it showed a crowd of figures in mediaeval costume. Heim und Welt also reports this phenomenon—and a number of similar ones sent in by readers. The first number of Die andere Welt opens with a forecast by Astrologer A.M. Grimm for the remainder of the century. If I may be pardoned the ghastly fun it is as grim as all too many similar prognostications. We are promised events which will put into the shade all the horrors we have already experienced this century. Though 1962 is stressed as a year of great importance we are told that the nineties will see the climax of events. Those of us who survive these catastrophies may live to see the beginnings of a new world, but it is asserted categorically—with no shred of evidence—that the Aquarian Age will not begin for another two hundred years. The article concludes with the cheerful words: "God have mercy on us."

For those who find these, often contradictory, prophecies of doom alarming and depressing, may I recommend the words of the Christian Master: Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. They may or may not be true, but surely to scare the living daylights out of people is not the true function of the astrologer.

A recent visitor to England was Dr. George Hunt Williamson, an acknowledged authority on Flying Saucers and an archaeologist of repute. Foreign papers—not our own—announced that he was received by the Queen, and that Her Majesty is greay interested in the subject of UFOs.

Dr. Williamson asserts that the Air Ministry in London have a diary recording all sightings—reported now to exceed 30,000—and a map showing by little flags where Unidentified Flying Objects have landed.

Another UFO researcher, Dr. Walter Buhler of Rio de Janeiro, addressed an audience of some 600 persons in Zurich on the subject of landings and contacts in Brazil, which country seems to have had more than its fair share of such. If Ufologists are indeed the crack-brained people that official circles would like us to consider them, it would seem to be time to build a great many very large asylums. If they turn out to be right, the buildings could always accomodate some of those who consider the production of viruses and bacteria on a world-destroying scale to be the height of sanity.

THE KALEIDOSCOPE

(Continued from page 394)

India should be thankful to the guerilla leaders. But it can only be a short respite before the onslaught comes with renewed vigour, when all the planets move into Capricorn in 1962. The Chinese menace may well be the signification of this awe-inspiring planetary combination, for Cancer, the opposition sign rules China, and Capricorn is the sign which rules political India, especially the northern parts of the country, and the Ganges plain from Delhi to Calcutta.

From the Capsolar Chart for the year 1959, there is a threat to the safety of Nepal. Communist infiltration aims to link up with Calcutta.

The birthdate of the present Dalai Lama, the 14th incarnation is not known for certain, but Tibetan authorities claim that he was born, or supposed to have been born, on the day of the death of 13th Dalai Lama, which we do know was the 17th December, 1933. The boy child was discovered by the Lamas in Sining, Chinghai Province, after five long years of search. He was identified by marks on his body and he is said to have recognised his former posessions when incarnated as the 13th Dalai Lama. For what it is worth and as an astrological speculation, I append herewith the planetary positions at Greenwich noon for the 17th December 1933. (Ayanamsa 23.49).

Sun	1.18	Sagittarius
Moon	6.44	Sagittarius
Mars	27.52	Sagittarius
Mercury	13.18	Sagittarius
Jupiter	25.29	Virgo
Venus	16.24	Capricorn
