My subject is "The Gentilization of the House of Israel," and I shall divide it as follows: 1. What do we mean by the Gentilization of Israel? 2. The Gentilization of Israel is a predicted fact. 3. The time during which Israel is to be Gentilized. First, then, what do we mean by the Gentilization of Israel? By "Israel," I mean all that part of the whole Hebrew nation which, after the fall of the Empire of the Medes and Persians, remained in the countries of their captivities, entirely disassociated in name, and in religious belief and observances, from the people, whether in Palestine or in other countries, commonly known as "the Jews." I affirm as a fact that at the time specified there was in Palestine, and also scattered in all the provinces of what had been the Medo-Persian Empire, a people consisting principally of members of the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, but also containing an admixture of all the other Hebrew tribes, recognising Jerusalem as the civil and religious centre of their nationality, renouncing all idolatry, and observing the laws of Moses, who were known then, and have been continuously known till the present day, as "the Jews." I affirm that this body, with all the individual members who compose it—to whichever of the Twelve Tribes they may belong—is that which is meant by the expression "the House of Judah," in all passages of Scripture which speak of "a House of Judah" as distinct from "a House of Israel" (Ephraim or Joseph) during the interval from the separation of the Hebrew nation into those two Houses to their yet future political re-union into one kingdom under one king. I affirm that the rest of the Hebrew nation, who are not included under this term, "the Jews," did for the most part consist of members of the Ten Tribes, which from B.C. 975 to 721 constituted the kingdom of Israel; that they became entirely separated from all visible association and distinguishable identification (as a part of the Hebrew race) with the Jews, losing gradually, as they did, their name, religion, and Hebrew characteristics, and became, to the eye of the world, and to the view of the historian, part and parcel of the non-Jewish heathen or Gentile world. (Hear, hear.) This, then, is what we mean by the "Gentilization of Israel." No words of mine better define it than those of Dean Prideaux in his standard work, "Prideaux's Connection." Speaking of Esarhaddon's populating with foreigners the land of Israel in B.C. 677, accomplishing Isaiah's prophecy of Ephraim's being broken from being a people in sixty-five years from the first year of Ahaz (Isa. vii. 8), the Dean says, "and so the Ten Tribes of Israel, which had separated from the House of David, were brought to a full and utter destruction, and never after recovered themselves again. For those who were thus carried away as well in this, as in the former captivities [excepting some few who, joining themselves to the Jews (mark this) in the land of their captivity, returned with them], soon going into the usages and idolatry of the nations, among whom they were planted (to which they were too much addicted while in their own land), after awhile became wholly absorbed and swallowed up in them, and thenceforth utterly losing their name, their language, and their memorial were never any more spoken of." Thus does Dean Prideaux witness to the fact of these people becoming the LOST Ten Tribes. Thus does he testify to what we call the Gentilization of Israel. From this fact arises another which is important to be noticed: that, there being no separate House of Israel visible to the world in the first century as distinct from the Jews it is "the Jews" who are sometimes called "Israel" in the New Testament, as indeed they are in Ezekiel, Ezra, and Nehemiah, and in Hosea iii. It is "the Jews" who are regarded and spoken of as the Twelve Tribes in the New Testament, they being then the only visible representatives in the world of the Twelve Tribes. Israel has, I think, in the New Testament, only two meanings. It either is used as synonymous with "the Jews" and denotes the only remaining visible representatives of the Hebrew race in the world at that time; or it is used without distinctive reference to either lost Ephraim or unlost Judah in passages relating to the Israelite descendants of Abraham in which the people are contemplated as a whole, though what is said of them may have its fulfilment at one time in Judah, at another in Ephraim, or ultimately in both reunited. But I doubt if ever in the New Testament "Israel" denotes the separate body which became Gentilized, the Lost Ten Tribes; for the simple reason that being lost and being Gentilized, they are referred to, when at all, as part, and indistinguishable from the rest, of the Gentile world. In fact, if you want to find out in the New Testament anything about the Lost Ten Tribes, you must turn up those passages which mention Gentiles; and in some of them—mind I do not say in all of them—you will find, if you are sufficiently enlightened, references to Gentilised Israel. In passages referring to the circumcision you have "the Jews" spoken of; but in passages referring to the uncircumcision, whilst that expression (as also the term "Gentiles") includes all the world who are not "the Jews" or "Judah"), the initiated in British-Israel views will discover latent references especially to the Gentilized Lost Tribes of the House of Joseph. My second point is, the Gentilization of Israel is a predicted fact. The spiritual promises were made to Abram, the father of altitude, but the first (Genesis xvii. 2) distinctive promise made to Abraham, the father of multitude, was that he should be the father of a multitude of nations. "Nations": the Hebrew word is gôyîm, which the A.V. and the R.V. render by two different words, nations or Gentiles; and probably if it were always rendered Gentiles the real meaning of the Holy Ghost would come out more clearly, and people would see that there is no absurdity in saying that it was God's design from the first that Abraham's seed through Isaac and Israel should some day become no inconsiderable part of the Gentile nations of the world, and thus that the promise that Abraham should be "the heir of THE WORLD" should receive its fulfilment. Goyim, nations, is never used of the Hebrew race inhabiting Palestine as the recognised descendants of Abraham. This is a fact of which I challenge disproof. Therefore, if we are to interpret God's Holy Scriptures, the most accurately written books in the world, and (though discovering all the diversity of style and character of their human authorship, yet) all pervaded by a unity of spirit which is of the Holy Ghost—if, I say, we are to interpret these by their own usage of words, then God told Abraham that, out of Palestine, and not as his (Abraham's) recognised descendants, his seed should become a multitude of nations. God predicted to Abraham, when he was 99, the Gentilization of Israel, that is, of at least some portion of his seed; and he predicted that Gentilization as something which was to be manifested in Abraham's seed, becoming not only a nation, but a multitude of nations. This is the spring of this kind of promise. Let us follow the stream. "She shall be a mother of Gentiles. Kings of people shall be of her." And, mark you, at the same time God foretold Ishmael's multiplication into a dozen nations; and we know how the promise to Ishmael has been fulfilled, and is still fulfilling to this day literally. Can we suppose the promise concerning Isaac to have been waiting for a not less literal fulfilment all this time, even in the Christian dispensation, when the promises to Abraham and his seed were more markedly to receive their fulfilment? Witness the songs of Mary and Zacharias. These promises were made before Abraham was circumcised, to denote, as is shown in Romans iv., the interest in them, not only of Abraham's circumcised descendants, but of those uncircumcised Gentiles that were in future days to be manifested as having come out of his loins. The uncircumcised seed of Abraham no doubt includes a vast number of purely Gentile—in the ordinary use of the term as meaning non-Abrahamic, which is not its Scriptural meaning—purely Gentile believers in Christ, Abraham's seed by faith only, and members of Christ's mystical body; but I believe, whatever Paul may have meant by the words in Rom. iv. 16—23, the Holy Ghost intended a reference to the Christian nations of uncircumcised Gentiles filling the earth in the latter days, and in the end to be manifested—when God's time comes for it—as the once lost, outcast, dead seed of Joseph and the Ten Tribes, but now the living, expanded, Christianised, fulness of the Gentiles. Now we come to Jacob, and the time when God said, "Israel shall be thy name" (xxxv. 11). Here a still more remarkable promise is given. Bearing in mind what I have contended is the Scriptural meaning of gôy, and especially of gôyîm (the plural), "A nation and a company of nations shall be of thee," means "a Gentile people and a company of Gentile peoples shall be of thee." As regards the nation, this very soon began to have a literal fulfilment: for God says to Jacob (Gen. xlvi. 3), "Go down into Egypt, and I will there (mark the word)—not in the promised land—make thee a great gôy, a great 'Gentile nation' in the midst of another Gentile nation." The next thing we notice is that this particular kind of promise is continued, not with reference to all Jacob's sons, but with reference to the two sons of Joseph, Ephraim and Manasseh. And of these two this particular kind of promise of becoming Gentile nations seems limited to the descendants of Ephraim. For thus we read in Gen. xlviii. First, Ephraim and Manasseh together "grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth," or in the midst of the land. (God called the dry land "earth." London is very nearly, if not quite, the centre of the land in the world, while New Zealand, the Antipodes, is nearly in the centre of the water on the earth. Take that for what it is worth. The words are as I quote them in Gen. xlviii. 16, and the facts are as I state them.) Then when they (Ephraim and Manasseh) have grown into a multitude, they are to split into two bodies: Manasseh a people, and great; but Ephraim greater, and "a fulness of Gentiles" (xlviii. 19). I am bound to confess that I am forcibly impressed with the fact that this promise, by a principle of limitation (so obvious in the working out of God's promises), is limited, first, out of Ishmael and Isaac to Isaac; secondly, out of Esau and Jacob to Jacob; thirdly, out of Judah and his eleven brethren to Joseph, as is still more clear from Gen. xlix. 22—26, as compared with what Jacob said of his other eleven sons; and in 1 Chron. v. 12 it is distinctly asserted that the birthright (that which Esau rejected, and which came to Jacob) was given unto the sons of Joseph, the son of Israel; of Judah came the Prince—David and Messiah—but the birthright was Joseph's. And lastly, out of Manasseh and Ephraim it is limited to Ephraim. I must confess that this goes far to drive one to this conclusion, that the extent to which this promise is to be fulfilled to Ephraim far exceeds anything which the prophetic Scriptures foretell for the other tribes. Yet in Ezekiel xxxvii., which refers to a time yet future, when there shall be two distinct sticks—viz., the House of Joseph and the House of Judah—the former does not consist only of Ephraim, but of Ephraim and the Tribes of Israel his companions, all forming one body before being re-united to the other body, the stick of Judah. It would seem, then, that in the latter days Ephraim, itself a multitudinous nation, should, with his brethren of the other tribes, form a confederacy, or company of nations, the whole being regarded as Ephraim's seed by reason of the union existing between them. I shall now pass to Hosea. In chap. i. the name of the prophet's unfaithful wife, Gomer, being in accordance with the other names in this prophecy symbolic, must denote that the Ten Tribes of Israel, whom Gomer represents as one people, should become an apparently Japhetic race, Gomer being the first name (in Gen. x.) in the list of Japhet's sons. It may go further than this, and intimate some connection or identity with peoples who figure largely in history with names in which G M R and C M R are conspicuous consonants—e.g., Cimbri, Cimmerians, Cymry. Then Gomer's three children symbolise, first, the bringing to an end of the Ten-Tribed kingdom of Ephraim in B.C. 677; secondly, their being expatriated for a long time, and excluded from God's mercies, whilst Judah, punished for a briefer time, should be wonderfully and manifestly, by divine power, brought back out of captivity and delivered from their enemies; and, thirdly, their being completely cast off as God's people, divorced from all spiritual relation to Him, put away, a fate which has never befallen "treacherous Judah" (see Jer. iii. 8). Yet both here and in Hosea these terrible things are followed by words of bright hope and encouragement. This very denationalised, cast out, and repudiated Israel, reduced to the condition of heathen Gentiles, shall, in the very land of their repudiation, become an immense multitude, and be there recognised, not, indeed, as the old people (Ammi) of God, but as the pre-eminently Christian nation: "Ye are the sons of the living God. Here, then, is a by no means obscure prediction of Ten-Tribed Israel's future. Brought to an end as a kingdom in Palestine, cast out in other lands, there punished without mercy and for a considerable period, there also entirely divorced from spiritual relationship to God as His peculiar people (which Judah still continued, and still continues to be); but out of that state, and in those lands of Egyptian captivity and spiritual bondage, multiplied exceedingly, till they become innumerable as the sand, and also brought into relationship to God as His children by the national acknowledgment of Jesus as the Christ. Here is Israel, then, to be Gentilized and to take the lead in that distinguishing privilege of this Gentile dispensation, to become, though uncircumcised, the children of Abraham, and the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus, and by the circumcision made without hands, the baptism of water and of the Holy Ghost. I think I have sufficiently shown what Israel's Gentilization is, and that it is predicted in Old Testament Scripture.

Digitized by Google

The third point will not detain me long. When Israel and Judah together are in the land of Palestine, recognised as the seed of Abraham, and acknowledged by God as His one peculiar nation, His Ammi (My people), then they are not in a Gentilized state. From the entrance to Canaan under Joshua till the death of Solomon this state of things existed. Then disruption began. Still the two kingdoms existed side by side in Palestine. But in B.C. 721 Israel were carried away, and in B.C. 677 their end as a kingdom in Palestine came. The re-union of Israel and Judah as one kingdom under one king—viz., Messiah—in the land of Palestine, clearly predicted in several prophecies, has not yet taken place. Then between these two lies the time of Israel's Gentilization. But the earlier part of that was her time of punishment. And her time of blessing as a Christian people, the sons of the living God, could not commence till the Dispensation had set in. Therefore the time of Israel's Gentilization, in which she may expect to become a multitudinous people and a pre-eminently Christian nation, is in the latter days of the Messianic time, and more and more so as those days hasten towards the dawning of the Millennial day. (Applause.)

Digitized by Google

THE PRACTICAL VALUE OF ANGLO-ISRAEL TRUTH.

By Rev. George Hider

(Baptist Minister, Paignton, Devon.)

Mr. Chairman, My Dear Friends, Men and Brethren of the stock of Abraham,—After the very convincing and powerful speeches that have been delivered by those who have preceded me, I am very glad to find that mine is a much lighter duty than has fallen to them. It is no longer necessary that anything should be said to convince us that there is truth in the assertion that we are descended from Abraham; and therefore I have nothing to do but begin with assuming the truth of our Israelitish origin. What I have to do is to show that there is a practical value in that truth in itself, and in the publication of that truth. Now that it is very difficult to disprove this truth, it has become the fashion to say, "Oh, it is a very inconvenient and intrusive truth, if it be truth at all; and what is the good of it? What are you going to get out of this truth?" Well, as to its intrusion, we have only to refer to what Mr. Douglas has told us about the central position of that truth. About twenty years ago, a merchant of this city, who was the superintendent of a London City Missionary, was reading his journal, and he saw some instances of overcrowding of the people of his particular district. Among the rest of the statements was one to the effect that in one room there lived five different families. "Dear me," said the merchant "I can hardly believe that." "Would you like to come and see for yourself?" said the missionary. "Most certainly I should." And together they went to the house. In answer to their knock, a tall Irishwoman came to the door. "Is it true," asked the merchant, "that there are five families living in this one room?" "Shure it's quite thrue, yer honour; there's one in that corner, one in that, one in this corner, and one in the other corner, and one in the middle—(laughter)—and it was very comfortable we were until the gintleman in the middle took in a lodger." (Renewed laughter.) It is just so that we have been regarded in the promulgation of this great truth. We have been considered to be as the gentleman in the middle who has taken in the lodger among the five points of our theology. This truth is regarded as one of the disturbing elements. But this great truth is no more a lodger among the points of our theology than my heart is a lodger in my body. (Hear, hear.) It is the central soul of spiritual and national truth. It is that out of which all other spiritual and national truth concerning ourselves is proceeding. But it is not only by the consideration of the central position of this truth by which we ascertain its practical importance, but the making known this truth has valuable practical tendencies. One or two of these tendencies I should like to point out. In the first place, the promulgation of this truth has not only the tendency to fulfil, but it is fulfilling, the decree of the Divine Being concerning that truth. God decrees that—not this council, not this association, but He Himself, the living God, "in whom we live and move and have our being." He has told us, "Publish ye, praise ye, and say, O Lord, save Thy people, the remnant of Israel," "the tribes of Thine inheritance." In Hosea, He has said: "And it shall come to pass that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not My people, there it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God." And therefore, in publishing this great truth, we are fulfilling the Divine decree. How pleasant it must be in the sight of our Almighty Master, our glorious Lord and Saviour, that we should be engaged here to-night in considering how we should best fulfil this Divine decree concerning the British people, spreading, as they are spreading over the whole round earth, forming a belt of power around the earth, on which the sun never sets. The Duke of Wellington once said to a desponding Christian, "What are your marching orders? If God has said you should do this thing, then how can you question as to whether or not you should go forward?" It is yours not to ask about the results, whatever hindrance or circumstances may be against you. You are to obey the living and true God. In the next place, there is a very strong tendency in the publication of this truth to produce repentance. It is the goodness of God that leadeth men to repentance. If you can prove to me that all this great nation of ours has truly repented, has come into the acknowledgment of the mystery of the love of Christ, has received our Lord Jesus Christ; if there be a new heart and a true heart in every son and daughter of Adam in this great empire over which our Queen Victoria is reigning, then, of course, gentlemen, let us go no further. But the heart of England as a whole has yet to be won for God, notwithstanding the activity of all our Gospel agencies! Therefore, as the preaching of the Gospel in its partial form, as it has been preached, has failed to produce general repentance, shall we not now try the effect of this larger Gospel, and proclaim these greater glad tidings of God's goodness to our nation by the Gospel and in connection with it? Let us publish it to the praise and glory of His holy name. The Emperor of China once invited a friend to go with him and see him destroy his enemies. His friend was very glad indeed to accompany his Imperial Highness. Away they started, with a mighty army, equipped with great care and at great expense. They came in view of the rebel army, drawn up in martial array. Immediately on arrival, the Emperor sent a messenger to the rebels to proclaim their free pardon on condition that they ceased their hostility, and laid down their arms. The rebel army, tired of their rebellion, were only too glad to lay down their weapons, every man of them. His friend remonstrated with his majesty, saying, "You told me you would show me how you would destroy your enemies." "So I have," replied the Emperor, "not merely have I forgiven them, but I have destroyed their enmity, and they are now my friends. If I had killed them, they would have been my enemies even in death." And so we are, in publishing these glad tidings of our Father, of our Saviour's goodness to us, as a nation, and to our Queen, in the 19th century—we are, I say, in the strongest way, touching the hearts of England with the goodness of God. There is in this the strongest tendency to lead us to repentance. In the next place—and this is one of the great points—this truth has a tendency to produce true and deep humility. (Hear, hear.) It has been said by a popular preacher that this theory produces jingoism and national pride. Well, I should be sorry to dispute that, for in one important sense it is true. If we treat this truth as a mere theory, I cannot tell what evil things may come out of its publication, but it is not a mere theory, but a revealed truth. It has been proved to us to-night that it is no mere theory, but Divine and everlasting truth, laid down by the Lord of all power. I say again, the knowledge of this truth, the effect of the publication of this truth, is to produce true humility. With true greatness there is sure to be true humility. The Duke of Wellington never spoke of glory, but duty. He did not think of his great victories, but was like the great Nelson who said, amid the roar and din of battle, "England expects every man to do his duty." Duty, and not glory, is the thought of great men like Wellington and Washington. Lastly, the tendency of the publication of this great truth is utterly to abolish and annihilate all sectarian narrowness and bigotry. (Hear, hear.) There has been, in the past, a dreadful amount of Donnybrook Fair spirit in Christian rival sects. A good story is told in connection with that Fair. At the close of the day, the burly head of an Irishman was seen by another bulging from an opening in the canvass of a tent which he was passing. Up goes his shillelagh, and down goes the man at a blow. Out rushed a host of angry fellows to avenge the deed. Seeing it was one of their own party that had done it in ignorance, they exclaimed, "Ah now, Pat! didn't ye know that it was Michael O'Flannigan that ye hit?" "Och! bad luck to me for that same! I didn't know it at all; but if it had been my own father, and his head looking so nice and convenient, I couldn't have resisted the temptation." (Laughter.) Very often we of the different sects seem to be engaged in picking out texts of Scripture, as boys pick up stones, to throw at one another's head. This is waste of power, but here we have something that would be a true bond of union. The Plymouth Brethren, and others, have tried to fight down this sectarianism, but the weapons have not been strong enough, the truth has not been broad enough; but here is a truth, broader, deeper, and higher, than our national Church, broader than all the sects and parties which are fighting together and rivalling each other—a broad, glorious, national truth; and that is to be the bond of union, the ground on which our Lord's prayer for unity shall be fulfilled, "That they all may be one as Thou, Father, art in Me and I in Thee." Dear brethren, this is the prospect that is set before us. It is with all these things in view that we go forward in the great work to which our Lord has called us, and which Philo-Israel, who is here this evening, says we are obliged to do. Men may laugh at us as much as they will, we must go forward, because our Father and Master calls us. "Speak, therefore, unto the children of Israel, that they go forward. Publish ye, praise ye, and say, O Lord, save Thy people." (Applause.)

Digitized by Google

WHAT PLACE IS THERE IN THE DIVINE ECONOMY FOR OUR IDENTITY, IN THE PRESENT DISPENSATION.

By the Editor.

I am requested this evening to say a few words to you on the subject set out on the bills opposite my name, and which reads as follows, "What place is there in the Divine Economy for Our Identity, in the present Dispensation," the Dispensation of Grace? You will doubtless recognise in these words a reference to one of the stock arguments of our opponents, of the Cui bono? kind, which they are so ready to bring up against us, and so skilled in using. But I am bound to say that those who use this argument, and say there is no place for Our Identity now, are among the most godly of men and women, those whose praise is in all the Churches; men and women who are spending and being spent in the Lord's service, in the ministry of His Word, among the home heathen and those abroad, in the effort to save their souls. What they say is this. We are labouring for the Lord Jesus, preaching the humbling doctrines of the Cross among the worldly, those lying in the wicked one. Why are we to be stopped in our work by considering a subject which after all is only a historical, philological, ethnic puzzle, one that even if proved will not by a hair's-breadth alter our duty in this matter, or vary our practice in respect to the heathen, to whom we are preaching. Such is our opponents' contention. How are we to reply? and what can we urge in answer to what seems so very specious an argument?

Now, let me frankly admit to you that our opponents are right so far, that this is the time when the Gospel has to be freely made known to every creature, and Foreign Missions are our nation's duty. The guiding text at this time is, "God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life. God sent His Son into the world, not to judge the world, but that the world should be saved through Him" (John iii, 16, R.V.). Besides that, there is the teaching of Psa. lxxxvi. 9, embracing the whole world:—"All nations that Thou hast made shall come and worship before Thee, O Lord, and shall glorify Thy name." Also Num. xiv. 21, "As truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of Jehovah." Where, then, the need of the discovery of Israel? Why tell of the Identity of the British with Israel, when our missionaries have need only to tell of "God's tender love to the world," but none of His special favour towards His people of a past dispensation—i.e., of the Jews, and if you like also of the long-since departed Israelites of the Ten Tribes?

Let me try and explain. God did, and does, indeed, so love the world (all nations, families, and kindreds of it), that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever among them believeth on Him should not perish but have—what? Mighty Empire? No! Multitudinousness? No! Earthly blessing? the Gates? the Heathen and Colonial Empires? and abnormal wealth? No, no, no! nothing of that sort for them! Their inheritance through Christ is spiritual. They are, if believers, never to perish as to their immortal souls, but have ETERNAL LIFE. The nations, or non-Israelite Gentiles, therefore, have a claim in Christ to the spiritualities included in the Abrahamic blessings, but not a word is said in the Holy Record of the temporalities—i.e., the empire, the population, the wealth, the dominion we claim to be reserved for British-Israel. Is this so? Have I any further proof of that? Turn to Rom. xv. 27, 28, R.V., and see what St. Paul told the Israelite converts and the Gentile Christians then at Rome, was the portion of the latter as the "believers in Christ." The Churches of Macedonia and Achaia had made a certain collection for the poor saints (or Hebrews) of Jerusalem. "It hath pleased them verily," added the Apostle, "and their debtors they are. For if the Gentiles have been made partakers of their spiritual things, their duty is also to minister to them in carnal things." The Gentile, non-Israelites, then, receive at Israel's hands only spiritual things, but have no inheritance in the temporal blessings God promised "to Abraham and his seed for ever," exclusively and for a special purpose. Here then is the measure of God's love to the world outside the family of the seed of Abraham. They receive from Israel what God stored up in Israel's hands to pass on "to all the nations, to all the families, and to all the kindreds of the earth," that is, spiritual things connected with salvation only. Such being God's love to the world and the object and purpose of it, is this the only exhibition of that love of God as indicated in the Word written? Surely not! There is a special love He felt and told us that He felt, and therefore feels to-day and will feel for ever, towards the children of Israel His chosen ones, His inheritance, His heritage, His people, His sons, His anointed, His holy, His separated ones, His jewels, His peculiar people, His own. "I am the Lord, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed" (Mal. iii. 6). "For God changeth NOT." Our opponents do not recognise this love to Israel and its operations to-day. But they must! I ask now: 1. Why does He feel that love for them? and 2. How long will it last? 3. How does He manifest it to them exclusively?

1. Why does God feel it? Ask Him! He will tell us! see Deut. vii. 6—9, where the subject is explained. "Thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God. The Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people unto Himself, above all peoples that are upon the face of the earth. The Lord did not set His love upon you, nor choose you because ye were more in number than any people, for ye were the fewest of all peoples, but because the Lord loveth you, and because He would keep the oath which He sware unto your fathers, hath the Lord brought you out with a mighty hand and redeemed you out of the house of bondage, from the hand of Pharaoh, king of Egypt. Know, therefore, that the Lord thy God He is God, the faithful God, which keepeth covenant and mercy with them that love Him and keep His commandments to a thousand generations." Since these words were recorded (B.C. 1451), only one hundred generations have passed away (3,300 years), and lo! nine hundred more such have to come and go (29,700 years) ere God's blessing and love to the seed of Abraham can ever approach exhaustion, even if they can measure blessings and covenants which were by oath promised to be everlasting (Gen xvii. 7).

The Lord loves Israel, then, "because He loves them as His people," and because of His oath; two reasons behind which we cannot go. That love lasts for ever, and therefore exists in this, our present dispensation.

Digitized by Google

And thirdly, how does He manifest this love to this, His people Israel, as He does not manifest it to other non-Israelite races?

I can only touch one point, the chief one, however. He distinguishes them from all the nations by making them nationally, exclusively, His messengers and His missionaries to all the nations, families, and kindreds of the earth, to minister to them those spiritual blessings which are to be theirs. To qualify Israel for this task, they require those temporal gifts He has bestowed on them, being the British nation, exclusively, without which they could not perform it. Here, then, is Israel's place, which is Britain's place, now in the divine economy of grace. They are an absolute necessity. He has given them POPULATION—i.e., EMPIRE (Joseph's birthright), therefore power; RICHES (by which God works and establishes His covenant); the BIBLE; the SABBATH; the DECALOGUE; the LOVE OF SOULS; the EVANGELIZING FUNCTION (to fit them spiritually for the spiritual duty He puts on them); a HEATHEN EMPIRE (as the theatre of their operations); a COLONIAL DOMINION, colonies becoming nations, and nations becoming a Federation of States (to extend the knowledge of Christ in the regions beyond). All this He gives them exclusively and absolutely as their necessary endowments for a specified duty.

You see, therefore, how important is Israel's position in this, our dispensation; how grand their functions. They are God's agents, servants, and messengers, to show to the world His great saving love to it, in sending to save it His only begotten Son. That Gospel is committed to them, and they must perform the duty assigned, for He created, made, and formed them to do it (Isa. xliii. 21). Thank God they are doing it! Thank God they are carrying out the purposes for which He made, created, and formed them thus to show forth His praise, and our faithful opponents are the chief proof thereof! We do well to point to the British, then, as the people so distinguished, and proclaim God's praise for what He is causing them to do for the world at large; and our opponents' pleas, then, are of no avail in opposition.

"What place, then, is there in the Divine Economy for Our Identity in the present Dispensation?" What place? It is the very central place, the chief place under Christ Jesus in the whole scheme; it is the hand, and power, and the love of God; it is the mainspring of the instrument by which He works. Here is seen His servant, His messenger, His agent, His loved ones, His missionary, those by whom His purposes of mercy are performed. "This people," He says, "I have formed for Myself; they shall show forth My praise." Without them, God's praise would not be effectively and effectually proclaimed; and therefore, we Anglo-Israelites reply that the dispensation of grace would fail, were Israel and Our Identity with Israel to be found a myth, a false tale, invented by man. For "Israel is to blossom and bud and fill the face of the world with fruit." "All the nations, families, and kindreds of the earth," are to be blessed in Israel and without Israel it could not be done; and all that see them shall acknowledge them that they are the seed the Lord hath blest (Isa. lxi. 9), and therefore, the Divine Economy demands the Identity, and without it God's purposes of grace and His glory could not, according to His revealed purpose, be exhibited to the world; and, therefore, men—our opponents, too—must, and shall, and ere long will acknowledge and see its necessity, and shall praise the Lord for it besides, admitting that the British nation are the people the Lord hath so blest.

I cannot illustrate what I have said to-night better than in words I find in the Free Church of Scotland Monthly for May 2, where the writer admits that British Christians are the appointed "witnesses" of God, besides being the evangelists of the whole world. Europe has only (he says) a "Christianised Paganism" and a "Paganised Christianity" for religion. I conclude with this writer's sentiments, since he shows us what place Britain holds in the Divine Economy in the present Dispensation, her work for God being that which Israel was to do. The Scotch journalist wrote thus:—

Here is a good thought. It appears in one of a series of letters from Rome which have been published in The Christian:—"British Christians, by the favour of God, have become His witnesses, and in some degree occupy a like position to that of the disciples at the first. We have become missionaries to the world, but we have not given sufficient heed to the primitive order of evangelisation. We have begun at home, and for seventeen centuries we had little thought of going further. And when we did awake to this duty we largely overlooked Samaria. The continent of Europe is our Samaria, and it lies between us and the uttermost parts of the earth. Just as in Samaria there was a hybrid religion—'they feared the Lord and served their own gods'—so on the Continent there is a Christianised Paganism, a Paganised Christianity; and in the evangelisation of the world Europe should be regarded as primary to Africa and Asia. Therefore every effort should be made to send the Gospel into the Roman Catholic countries of Europe, and to afford every encouragement to those who are already labouring there, of whatever nationality they may be."

That is, British-"Israel must blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit," and THAT is "the Place in the Divine Economy for Our Identity" to-day.

A JUBILEE ODE FROM SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

THE gold medal, offered in South Australia, for the best ode in celebration of the Jubilee Year, has been won by Mr. G. H. Cossins, of the South Australian Government Survey Office, with the following:—

Opening Solo.

Under the Southern Cross,
Girt by the Southern Sea,
Lieth our island home—
Our island free—
Australia!
Our island home,
O ir island free,
Australia!

Duet.

Queenly and fair, with eager, earnest eyes,
Undimmed by sorrow, Young Australia stands,
Set in the summer sea, 'neath summer skies;
And to the Mother Land holds outstretched hands—
Brown, sunburnt hands, all hardened o'er with toil;
Warm, loving hands—she holds across the sea—
Strong, kindly hands, that till her generous soil—
To her Queen-Mother on her Jubilee.

Chorus.

God bless them both, Old England and the New,
God keep them both for ever hand in hand;
Each helping each—each to the other true—
Old England and our fair Australian land.

Duet or Trio.

Full-grown and strong, yet still her mother's child,
As loving now as when, in childhood's days,
Her mother helped her with her judgment mild,
With kindly words, encouragement, and praise.
Stand out, fair land! and let the nations hear Australia hail her Sovereign's Jubilee—
Australian men and women, far and near,
Send your God-speeds across the Southern Sea.

(Chorus repeated.)

A LOCAL PREACHER writes: "Having searched out I found the foundation for the truth of Our Identity stronger and stronger. My whole soul has been on fire with the subject, and hence the success that has attended my efforts. If God preserves me another Winter, I am trusting that our villages will become Israelitish."

Digitized by Google

ISRAEL'S JUBILEE.

By Mrs. G. A. Rogers.

Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Starlit Crown," &c., &c.

An incident characteristic of the great Duke of Wellington is given in a letter from Lord Palmerston in the Life of the 7th Earl of Shaftesbury. An old and tried friend ventured to tell the Duke the rumours which were afloat respecting the mismanagement of his Strathfieldsaye property, and that his affairs required looking into. The Duke's reply was, "Mind your own affairs, and do not meddle with mine;" and for a couple of years afterwards he almost cut his friendly advisers. Meantime, his eyes were gradually opened, and when that friend was again taken into favour, the Duke confessed that if he had attended at the time to his wise counsel, he would have been saved considerable loss.

The moral of the above story is that a true friend should not be daunted by unwillingness on the part of those he desires to serve to hear facts which it is essential for their welfare to be told. One sometimes feels cast down by the apathetic indifference on the one side, or the contemptuous rejection on the other, of those truths which we know to be all important for the nation's well-being. But when our own eyes have been opened to see the fulfilment of prophecy in the unrolled chart of our national history, we cannot but recognise the grateful duty incumbent upon us to make known the fact to others. The prophet was commissioned to declare this welcome truth to the children of his people in captivity. Thrice was the command repeated to speak, "whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear;" and though 2,480 years have since elapsed, and the tidings we are able to announce are as gladsome as those of Ezekiel were threatening, strange to say, they are (for the most part) met with as wide-spread rejections by Israel in British glory and freedom, as erst by Judah in Chaldean bondage and degradation. "'Tis true, 'tis true, 'tis pity; and pity 'tis, 'tis true," exclaimed our national bard, who would have rejoiced with all the fervour of his great soul could he have witnessed the unparalleled goodness of God towards His Israel which we have to recount in this our Jubilee year.

"But, thus saith the Lord God, He that heareth, let him hear;" and gladly we admit that though many reject our message, there are also many who have heard, and who—while afresh learning to set to their seal that God is true—rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory in the discovery of "lost Israel" under another name.

It is well to cite some of the many who bring valuable outside testimony to the truth which we desire to impress. A letter from a friend points out that such is to be found in Mr. Grattan Guinness' recent work, "Light for the Last Days."

In connection with this year of 1887, he gives a mark suggestive of Our Identity, the more striking that the author ignores the discovery of our origin and consequent status as the House of Israel, with a lineal descendant of David seated according to promise upon the throne (Jer. xxx. 17). Without, therefore, the most distant thought of establishing our contentions, but simply giving the many results of his calculations and measurements, he points out, amongst other things, that starting from the fall of the throne of Judah, and the deposition and captivity of King Zedekiah, this year of 1887 marks a great epoch in its rise again. Mr. Grattan Guinness offers no solution of the problem, nor hazards a conjecture as to what may be in store for the throne of David; but all who know that our Sovereign is a lineal descendant of the Royal Psalmist, and that the immutable Word of God declares that David shall never want a man to sit on the throne of the House of Israel, have no difficulty in reading the measures offered. A Jubilee, marked by accompaniments such as the world never saw,—declaring progress such as no previous half-century has ever witnessed, ushered in by rejoicings which, without hyperbole, may be said to have already resounded from shore to shore, and the echoes thereof from pole to pole; assuming everywhere grateful form of beneficence and mercy worthy of the chosen nation, is surely an epoch as noticeable as any in Israel's earlier history. And though we cannot yet see how this will re-act upon Judah's restoration, yet filled as our throne is by a stem of the House of David, the faith which has grasped this fact can find no difficulty in believing that God will now soon "take the stick of Joseph which is in the hand of Ephraim," and put it "with the stick of Judah; and they shall be one in Mine hand" (Ezek. xxxvii. 19). And why is all this world-wide jubilation if not to shew the realisation of the promise: "Surely the isles shall wait for Me, and the ships of Tarshish first, to bring thy sons from far, their silver and their gold with them, unto the name of the Lord thy God, and to the Holy One of Israel, because He has glorified thee." Well may the chapter (Isa. lx.) open with "Arise! shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee."

"Instead of thy fathers thou shalt have children, whom thou mayest make princes in all lands." Here stands a promise, and by its fulfilment Israel is to be known; for God is not a man that He should lie. What have we to say to the incipient federation of England's company of nations, which makes our Jubilee so unique an epoch—not only in our own, but in the world's history? Has not the promise been fulfilled to the full? If so, to whom? Are we, or are we not personally interested in it? Dare we claim the promise as the privilege of our own nations? In opposition to Psa. xlv. 16 we are being perpetually reminded that "States, like individuals, inevitably tend, after a period of maturity, to decay;" and of Gentile nations we believe its true. But the Cui bono? which is being constantly demanded from us, we claim to be this—that if we are Israel, ours is a kingdom which, having been "set up by the God of Heaven," shall "never be destroyed, and the kingdoms shall not be left to other people." Is such a claim not worthy of investigation by those to whom the inheritance belongs?

In byegone days, when the Creed was repeated, the Pomeranian nobles used to spring to their feet and unsheath their swords, to signify their readiness to be valiant for the truth. On the 50th anniversary of Her Majesty's accession to the throne of her father David, Queen Victoria will lead the devout praises and thanksgiving of her people in our magnificent Westminster Abbey. To Anglo-Israelites it will be a thrilling moment when they see their Sovereign seated once more in the Coronation Chair, upon the Coronation Stone which assures her right to reign,—recalling, as they will, that "it is the one primeval monument which binds together the whole Empire;" shall it not stir them up to follow the example of the Pomeranian nobles of old, and unsheathing the sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God, declare themselves valiant for the defence and proclamation of this God-glorifying truth?

The countless blessings bestowed on the heirs of Joseph, (Gen. xlix. 22-26; Deut. xxxiii. 13-17), are they not fulfilled in us? "Yes, spiritually," is the reply of indifference. "We are a Christian and Protestant nation, and to us accordingly have the promises been transferred." Indeed! and we had trusted that with our God was no variableness nor shadow of turning! But who has made us a great Protestant nation? What is the signification of the term? A mark given for Israel's identification—when already exiled nine years from the land to which she has never since returned—was a prediction that she should glory in, or be known by that very name, for "Ye are My witnesses (i.e. Protestants), saith the Lord of Hosts;" (Is. xliii. 10), and again the declaration is reiterated by Him who saw the end from the beginning—"Therefore, ye are My witnesses, saith the Lord, that I am God. I will work and who shall let it?"

June 21 will witness Queen Victoria sitting on the sacred Stone witness of the covenant which God made with her father Jacob. Loyal Britons, turn to Gen. xxviii. 13-22 and see if you cannot recognise your nation's title deeds. Accept them as such; prize and make them your own. Then publish to all around that "Lost Israel" is found. Then "bring forth the best robe and put it on him, and put a ring upon his hand, and shoes on his feet." Let England and her "company of nations" clustering around her hear the glad tidings. Thus shall the year of grace, 1887, be to us in deed and in truth a JUBILEE YEAR.

Digitized by Google

"Happy art thou, O Israel!
Who is like unto thee,
O people saved by the Lord?"
—Deut. xxxiii. 29.

THE JUBILEE OF 1887 AND THE SILENT REVOLUTION.

By C. Piazzi Smyth, F.R.A.S.
(Astronomer-Royal for Scotland).

"The Silent Revolution" was the title of a little book which some thirty years ago excited much enthusiasm among the manufacturers in the North of England. For it so eminently glorified their position, in setting forth that the gradual progress of mechanical knowledge, combined with chemistry, geology and the development of the manufacturing system was year by year building silently up a new Great Britain—more populous, more wealthy, more influential throughout the world, than ever it was or could have been, when the agricultural cultivation of the surface of the land formed the said country's only means of support.

But that is not the silent Revolution to which I would call attention now. For that kind above described can most safely be left to progress by itself in its predestined course, benefiting quietly all classes in the kingdom, more or less, sooner or later. But the new and vastly different kind of revolution which I would attempt to lasso on this occasion, and haul out to the light of day, the talk of the empire, is one which, though noiseless, though not composed of red-republican ruffians, or burglarious "blood-and-fire" socialists, is yet, in its secret and ultimate ends, going so directly against the honour, the majesty, the universality of the future dominion of our country, a country which has now been blessed by God with the Jubilee—long period of its Sovereign's reign, that the present seems a most appropriate opportunity for raising a protest against what would speedily, if left to grow undisturbed, make our Queen's semi-sacred festival the ending of a fine earthly empire, and not the beginning of new and still better things.

Banner readers are well versed in allusions to England and "a company of nations"; understanding always thereby a company of nations to come both of her, and with her, to rule one day the entire earth in the ways and by the grace of God. But others, and by no means the least influential or worst educated of the community, hold that England is, on the contrary, to be in the future a mere one amongst many competing nations; and even to occupy so inferior a place among them, that although she may not be called on to drop her own language of speech in favour of that of another particular people,—she is, nevertheless, and quite certainly, to do the next thing to it, namely, forego her own practical language of weights and measures in all her avocations in this world. Yet weights and measures are the only efficient mode of dealing with those precious things of the interior of the earth, and heavy things of the mountains; or, to go to oft-quoted Scriptures at once,—"the chief things of the ancient mountains, the precious things of the everlasting hills, the precious things of the earth, and the fulness thereof, also of the deep"—the right understanding, comprehension, and treatment of which, as developed by the first kind of "silent revolution" amongst us, has raised this country during the present century to so vast a height and magnificent a strength that she may reasonably and scripturally hope, within but a few years more, for the accomplishment in and by her of the evangelisation of the whole earth, in the cause and for the glory of God.

But whence can come any danger to a nation going on thus far, and even up to the present moment, so prosperously?

Alas! it is close by, and even at our very doors! We are living in days of compulsory education for all classes, low and high. Certain Government text-books have to be learnt by the poorest children, almost at the point of the bayonet; and no scions, even of the richest families, are allowed to enter any Government office or service, without passing stringent Government examinations, and showing their acquaintance with, and perfect grounding in, certain modern manuals of science, wherein almost all the references to Nature in the heavens above and the earth beneath are no longer expressed in British measures, but in those of another European nation, at perpetual and even threatening variance with ours—viz., the French.

And as two absolutely opposite principles cannot be safely cultivated side by side, any more than the service of God and the demands of Mammon—that one which is made compulsory by the Government of the country, and encouraged by the chief scientific societies therein allowed to bear the title of Royal before their names, is, in a human point of view, certain to prevail; as well as to place this country, before long, in the position of a helpless, stupid vassal, in both intellectual operations and industrial concerns, to another nation. Nay, more, and far worse; in the position of a people which, having received in primal time the gift of a divinely-inspired system of weights and measures, adapted in the most admirable manner to form a harmonious and intelligent connection between the infantine works of man, and the majestic creations of God,—has yet, first of all allowed that system to become rusty and adulterated during mediæval days of barbarism,—and is now ending by trying to throw it bodily overboard in favour of a confused and confusing, but highly vaunted, modern invention by a most atheistical nation.

Compared with this terrific act of apostacy, Esau's bartering away of his blessing for a mess of pottage was surely a very venial offence. But then, "What can we do?" may despairingly cry many a truly religious-minded Banner reader, "if Government and the great scientific societies are on the opposite side! The sin, together with the calamity it will assuredly lead to, are national; while we are private individuals only, and as yet very few and far between in the land."

True; but every nation is made up of private individuals, and according to the number and activity of such necessary component items, when all of one way of thinking and acting, so will the progress of the nation ultimately prove. Nor do I believe that the British Government, though just now acting unhappily, is wilfully and determinedly on the wrong side. It is rather simply unable to lift itself out of the metrological ruts laid down to entrap both it and the nation by rich societies with secret councils, and by the restless over-reachings of some of their too-zealous members, through whose designing handiwork it has come to pass that the chief modern English manuals of science at the service of Government in the present day, for examination and practical purposes, are almost all of them expressed in French weights and measures. In which case, however, the very nature of the disease points straight to its remedy. For who disputes the honest old maxim, that when bad men conspire, good men must combine and meet them on the same field.

Without further delay or hesitation, therefore, let a Jubilee series of scientific manuals in every branch of Natural Philosophy be prepared, wherein only British, or British perfected by the Great Pyramid, weights and measures, as well as the British language, shall be used, for either merely approximate instruction, or up to the highest degree of accuracy and refinement ever required in original research. And then, with those references and foundations at their command, Government may be rightfully approached, and requested by the proper political agitators to ordain that henceforth no scientific examinations of any of its candidates for office or employment in Great Britain or the Colonies shall be carried on in terms of French weights and measures: while they also withdraw all their contributions of British money from any and every scientific society in the land which does not publish its results in terms of British weights and measures.

Digitized by Google

As a mere beginning of such a series, which must be contributed by many distinct individuals, here one and there another, each according to his special studies hitherto,—I have now in preparation a fuller account, in English language and British terms of measure, of nearly the whole length and breadth of the new insight into the constitution of matter, both cosmic and terrestrial, opened up by the happy invention of SPECTROSCOPY within just the time limits of Her Majesty's now Jubilee crowned reign,—than has yet appeared in probably any language. And though of course all that I, like the majority of purely scientific authors, can do, is to prepare the MSS. of my particular subject, yet I rest in firm faith that in such a cause, the means of printing and publication will come in due time, if the MSS. be completed within the Jubilee year.

It was on the occasion of a Royal procession, nearly four hundred years ago, as it went careering through the streets of London, delighting and entrancing all, both young and old, rich and poor with the instant glories of its gorgeous cavalcade, the flauntings of silks and gold and scarlet, the pomp of music and military display, the crowding of the populace and the shoutings,—that one humble individual, as loyally impressed by all that part of the festival as anyone else, yet bethought him, as soon as it had all gone by, and left him alone in the empty street, What could he do—more particularly by his own labours in his own line of education and experience—to show that he appreciated it all? So he, whose name was Sebastian Cabot, went out into the Western sea, and discovered North America, or those regions of the Western Continent which, two hundred years after, were to become the refuge of the Pilgrim Fathers of long-time English Manasseh; and are now the scene of the greatest extent of Anglo-Saxon population that the whole world can show.

Why, then, should not every good reader of the BANNER go, and within his own compass and opportunities, do likewise? that is, enjoy the coming open-air display of the Jubilee celebration to the utmost; but then retire to his closet, and give thanks in prayer to God, and in the following days and weeks and months try if he cannot accomplish something which, in some way, or to some degree, or somehow or other, may eventuate in bringing out the Israelitic descent of this great nation, while placing it in its institutions or literature closer to what is characteristic thereof, and is likely to be approved by God and His Christ.

JUBILATE.

By the Rev. Denis Hanan, B.D.

MUCH is being written and spoken concerning the history of the nation during the past fifty years. Secular and religious writers and speakers recall the wondrous and unparalleled advance made during the period that our Queen has occupied the throne. Under her gentle sway, and fostered by her high example, this advance has been so guided that in this her Jubilee year she and her people are willing to give God the praise; and amid the many causes for national thanksgiving which our God has given us, there is none greater than this: that the nation is willing to offer to Him its public thanksgiving.

We know not what advance may yet be made in science and art, but this we must perceive, that the world is more ready now than it was fifty years since to receive a yet further knowledge of God. This knowledge we teach by our national and individual ascription of praise.

Now more than ever the peoples of the world have to be taught that God rules, in order that they may learn that God loves.

The existence and power of God have ever—in His wisdom—been witnessed to by the controlling power which has been manifested in history—the history of the one selected nation, and of the nations as connected with it. Israel had first to be taught; when the nation or any part of it forgot, it was reminded of its history; when the nations declared that the God of Israel was but as their gods, His deliverance of His people was the constant reply. Thus it is that God's rule over Israel has ever been His manifestation of His being to them and to the world; and then came the further revelation concerning His love manifested in Christ the Lord.

This work of witnessing for God's existence and glory, through His rule, is needed now; there are those amongst our own people, and there are nations—alas! how many—who have not learned the lesson, and until they do learn it they cannot receive the further truth, the Gospel.

Our Jubilee rejoicing, inter-permeated as it is with the recognition by Church and State, by Sovereign and people, of God's goodness and guidance and forbearing love, is our unequivocal witness that God is. The opportunity has been given, and it has been availed of. "Bring forth the blind people that have eyes, and the deaf that have ears. Let all the nations be gathered together, and let the peoples be assembled: who among them can declare this, and shew us former things? let them bring their witnesses that they may be justified: or let them hear and say it is truth. Ye are My witnesses, saith the Lord, and My servant whom I have chosen: that ye may know and believe Me, and understand that I am He; before Me there was no God formed, neither shall there be after Me. I, even I, am the Lord, and beside me there is no Saviour. I have declared, and I have saved, and I have shewed, and there was no strange god among you; therefore ye are My witnesses, saith the Lord, and I am God. Yea, since the day was I am He; and there is none that can deliver out of My hand: I will work, and who shall let it?"

But our Jubilee is cause for further rejoicing, because of the hope which it sanctions of yet further blessing, whether the time be long or short, before Shiloh comes.

When Israel of old was faithful she kept Jubilee; when faithless she did not do so. The Jubilee faithfully kept was the period from which a new advance was to be made. The immediate result of the release effected when the silver trumpets sounded was—under the social conditions then existing—to give a new spring of life and energy to the people. The mistakes of the past were undone, the hope of the future was unshackled. Israel, having observed the Jubilee in the fear of God, was empowered to witness more fully for God.

This hope is ours, and it ought to add to our rejoicing. The nation, although yet in God's wisdom ignorant of its origin and destiny, is witnessing for Him. We rejoice, and day by day while rejoicing we testify that everyone of Israel's birthright blessings are ours, not one good thing has failed us. Together with, and because of, the gift of His Son, and the gift of a pure faith in Him, we have received the "blessings of heaven above, blessings of the deep that croucheth beneath, blessings of the breast and of the womb," "unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills." Obedient, brought under the new covenant, the Lord our God has "set us on high above all the nations of the earth," and all the blessings enumerated in Deut. xxviii. 1—14 are fulfilled to us. The empires of the past have lost their power, and the empire of the present grows, the stone becomes a mountain, and the world looks on and wonders. But the world has yet to learn that all has been brought about by the direct rule of the God of Abraham, and because of His faithfulness to His covenant with Israel. At present it seems that He has filled the world with a nation and company of nations, with a nation blessed with supreme blessings, to the exclusion of the seed of Abraham; and God, who is faithful and true, is not known, as He will yet be known, when the truth so blindly rejected now is made manifest. Then will God indeed witness to Himself as of old, through Israel. Until that truth is known our people will not universally acknowledge His hand, and the world will not believe; but when it is known—and we advance to certain victory—then the further knowledge of God in Christ will have free course and be glorified.

Digitized by Google

The nation rejoices, but there can be no joy equal to that which is the portion of those who know that our past, our present and our future has been, is, and will be guided by Him who said, "I am a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my firstborn." God's gifts to us are the fulfilment of His covenant with our forefathers; therefore, "Sing with gladness for Jacob, and shout for the chief of the nations; publish ye, praise ye, and say, O Lord, save Thy people, the remnant of Israel."

FIFTY YEARS OF RIGHTEOUS TENDENCY.

By F. Gass.

National progress makes for righteousness. When it ceases to do this, it is no longer progress. At the present moment the nations of Continental Europe are not in the true sense of the term progressive. Their actions are not equal to the greatness of that trust to which the order of Providence has called them; the development of the arts of peace and goodwill towards men. The result is the breaking of God's laws in at least two most serious points. The Scriptures declare that "all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword." But the continental nations are rapidly perfecting fearful manslaying machines, enormous armies, prepared to kill on a gigantic scale, for ambition's sake only. And that they may not be behind in this unholy race, they are heaping public debt on debt, producing mountains of indebtedness, beyond their utmost powers to honestly repay. But the Lord be praised. He has provided British-Israel a little sanctuary, surrounded by a silver streak of sea, that saves us from the terrible, but self-imposed, inflictions and burdens of less fortunate peoples. The Jubilee is the climax of a reign of growing and splendid prosperity, when the life of England has grown in wealth, in commerce, and in Colonial Empire. During the fifty years' reign of our most wise and constitutional sovereign, Queen Victoria, the British Empire has become the grandest that the world has seen. Ancient Rome spread her territory far and wide, in the then known world, by the conquering power of her legions, but ours have been peaceful conquests, which have fallen into our arms unsought for, and often uncared for, because we did not as a people understand our high and noble destiny. By God's sign-manual, the Bible, we are to be a blessing to all nations, and for this cause He has given us the heritage of the heathen.

One of the greatest of living English philosophers, Mr. Herbert Spencer, has said that "There is a stream of tendency that makes for righteousness." Without inquiring too closely into the precise meaning the author intended to be put on his famous aphorism, it can be claimed as truly applicable to the British nation. There is but one stream of righteous tendency in the world; it issues direct from God, and His Son, Jesus Christ. This, by the guiding mercy of the Father, flows a sparkling river of eternal life through all the length and breadth of her Majesty's dominions. The rustling wings of our gigantic mercantile navy cover every sea, and with it go to all parts of the earth bands of earnest missionaries, to preach to Jew, Turk, heathen, and infidel, the message of Israel's blessed Saviour. The cry, "only believe and thou shalt be saved," penetrates to the centre of Africa, across China, and throughout the Indian Peninsula. The brightness of British progress will never grow dim while we have such men as Livingstone, Moffat, and Gordon, and such women as Florence Nightingale and Sister Dora, to represent us. An Englishman's word is his bond. Public integrity is the nation's watchword. With us, international treaties are made to be righteously kept. Great Britain's word is taken throughout the world as ample security for countless millions. The nation expects from its political leaders entire self-sacrifice for the common weal, and it is rarely disappointed. If a man were called of God for a high purpose, would he not govern his actions with scrupulous and conscientious care? How careful, then, ought we, the chosen nation of God, to be in our transactions, with those peoples that He had granted us the power to rule over. The desolate heritages of the earth are ours by divine charter. The patriot statesman, Edmund Burke, in one of his speeches, said*: "By adverting to the dignity of their high calling, our ancestors have turned a savage wilderness into a glorious empire, and have made the most extensive, and the only honourable conquests, not by destroying, but by promoting the wealth, the growth, the number, the happiness of the human race." God's privileges have made our empire all that it is. God's privileges will make it all it can be. It is our duty, under His guidance, to see that there is an increasing stream of righteous tendency, flowing through it constantly in perennial freshness. Let us in all our dealings with the great heathen empires of the world be above suspicion. The greed of commerce must be restrained by the responsibilities of our unique opportunities. The textile fabrics supplied must do strict justice to the buyer. When the poor heathen toiler purchases a simple outfit, suitable to his environment, he should always have cause to thank the British firm that manufactured it, for the genuineness of the material. Ardent spirits should be cast into the sea, rather than supplied for the sake of a little filthy lucre. We must wash our hands of the opium traffic. And above all, the fruitful examples of morals and language demand to be above reproach. If we are conscious of the high and holy position in which it has pleased God to graciously place us, and glow with zeal to fill it as becomes our situation and ourselves, we may go forward in conscious assurance of His increasing favour, pressing onward to that universal millennium, that awaits only the hour of the nation's decisive answer, as Israel, to the roll-call of its Redeemer, the Lord Jesus Christ. Israel, praise ye the Lord for all His mercies. Pray for the peace of Jerusalem.

TEN-TRIBED ISRAEL'S JUBILEE ODE.

Hail! Queen of Israel, hail!
How wondrously transpires what God of old declared!
Confirmed stands David's Throne,
Whose heirs should never fail.
And lo! the mysteries of Prophecy are bared.
Soon shall the nations own
Thy Heav'n-decreed entail!
For thou dost Judah's sceptre wield by right Divine!
And Israel's foes shall quail,
And crouch as suppliants, prone
To serve the new-found Head of long hid David's line!
Hail! Guardian of the Stone—
Blest Bethel's Lia Fail!†
As incense curls to Heav'n, this prayer ascends for thee—
"God bless thy Jubilee."

Philip John Le Geyt.

20, Devonshire Place, St. Heller's, Jersey.

* On conciliation with America.

† The Stone—Jacob's Pillow—which lies under the Coronation Chair in Westminster Abbey.

Digitized by Google

PAST AND CURRENT HISTORY AND ITS TESTIMONY TO OUR IDENTITY WITH ISRAEL.

A LECTURE BY MISS V. M. COX, DELIVERED AT BATH AND CLIFTON ON APRIL 28 AND 29, 1887.

(Continued from page 240).

PART IV.

Is Our Identity proved? Of course our opponents say "no," but they have not been able to disprove it. Their little stock-in-trade of stale arguments against us have been met and fully answered, not once nor twice, but still no new ones are forthcoming; still men persist in quoting as objections to our belief some of the very strongest of our proof texts (vide Num. xxiii. 9); and still we inquire in vain how they propose to harmonise the apparent discrepancies of the prophetic writers if Israel is to be left out of the reckoning, while Judah only is considered. But it is not our opponents alone who declare that the Identity is not proved; that in fact it does not, from the very nature of the case, admit of demonstration.

Such was the view of one of the ablest of the defenders of our faith; one whose scholarly, comprehensive presentation of the whole subject, has brought conviction to the minds of scores, and awakened interest in the hearts of hundreds. In this respect, however, we cannot subscribe to his opinion. We think, if we assert that the Identity is not proved, it will follow that nothing ever has been proved on circumstantial evidence, and that nothing ever can be. If I, in a specified place, lose an article bearing certain peculiar marks which I have myself put on it; and if it is at length restored to my keeping with every mark still traceable on its surface; if I further learn that it has been found near the very place whereabouts I lost it, shall I not be mad to doubt the identity of that article, even though I may have lost it in Europe and regained possession of it at the Antipodes?

Why do we assume that the deductions of astronomers are correct, and why do we accept as accredited facts their statements regarding the velocities and distances of the heavenly bodies? Surely it is because they have given us proof positive of the correctness of their calculations, in the exactitude with which they are able to predict a transit of Venus or Mercury, a lunar or solar eclipse, or the reappearance of a comet within the limits of the solar system. In like manner if the belief in Our Identity enables us to forecast with any degree of correctness political events, we claim that our premises are proved to be right ones, and that we ought to receive, no less than the astronomer, the credit due for the reasonableness of our conclusions.

Not that we aspire to establish a reputation for the gift of prophecy, which we certainly do not claim to possess; we merely accept the predictions of inspired writers as literally and absolutely true, and we thus gain an immense advantage over those who do not know Our Identity, in forecasting the probable issues of affairs closely affecting our country's well-being. For Anglo-Israel truth is not only a key to prophecy but a clue to current history. It empowered us to predict without hesitation the failure of the Separatist policy, the defeat of the Premier who advocated that policy, and the establishment of a government whose watchword should be "Union." It enabled us to foresee the futility of the repeated efforts of the late Government to evacuate Egypt, and it still makes us bold to say that so surely as the Ministry now in power pursue a similar course, circumstances will arise to frustrate the design; till Israel has been made a means of blessing to the land of Egypt, and having been already used to smite that land, shall also be instrumental in its healing, according to the prophecies (Isa. xix).

It is unnecessary to multiply instances. Any constant reader of the BANNER will have been impressed over and over again with the clear insight displayed, and the correctness of the opinions given in advance by Anglo-Israelite writers; opinions which have often been in opposition to what appeared probable, yet which, shortly after the publication of the articles, have been entirely justified by the events that have taken place, Does not this prove that we reason from correct premises, and that the teaching we advocate is founded on an incontrovertible truth?

Yet, like many another great truth, it begins with a small following, and is not at present very generally received. The reasons for this are not far to seek, the principal one is gross ignorance as to the nature of Joseph's birthright and destiny; nay, as to the possession of the birthright itself. Not long ago a very able man, pastor of a Congregational Church near London, came to me and said, "I am told you are a strong advocate for the theory that the British are the Lost Tribes of Israel; now it is a subject I know very little of, and I should like a chat with you about it, as I am curious to learn what grounds you have for accepting such a conclusion." "Yes," I said, "I shall be very pleased. Will you first tell me which of the twelve sons of Jacob became the inheritor of the birthright blessings?" After a moment of hesitation he replied, "Really I am not sure that I can say certainly, without referring to the passage: was it not Judah?" (!) Now this rev. gentlemen had received a college education, was a fair classical scholar, and had for years made the study of the Bible the chief occupation of his life, yet of Joseph's unique position he knew just nothing, for indeed he was not aware that Joseph had any special pre-eminence or privilege! On two separate occasions I have been asked by Christian ladies, both constant students of Scripture, and one of whom really seems to have the New Testament at her tongue's end, the surprising question, "Which tribe is it that is lost?" So superficial is the knowledge of Biblical History even among those who treasure their Bibles highly and read them frequently. Blinded by prejudice or tradition they read prophecy relating to Israel (as the Jews read that which refers to Christ), with "a vail over their hearts," and miss the true meaning altogether. You may be aware of the existence of an excellent society calling itself the Church Sunday School Institute. Associated with this institution is the Church Sunday School Choir, which during the present year will hold a Jubilee Festival gathering at the Crystal Palace, giving a selection of music chiefly patriotic in character; and this is the chorus which concludes the programme:—

"Mighty Britannia! Mother of nations!
Glory and honour surround thy throne;
Hark! o'er the ocean, loud acclamations
Echo the homage that here is shown.
Vast is thy empire, wide thy dominion,
Circling the globe with an endless chain;
Far as the sea-wind sweeps on its pinion,
There shall Britannia be Queen of the main.

Stretch forth! stretch forth! from the South to the North,
From the East to the West, stretch forth, stretch forth!
O strengthen thy stakes and lengthen thy cords,
The world is a tent for the world's true lords!
Break forth and spread over every place,
The world is a world for the Saxon Race!
England sowed the glorious seed,
In her wise old laws and her pure old creed;
Her stout old heart and her plain old tongue,
And her resolute energies ever young,
Her free bold hand, and her frank fair face,
Her faith in the rule of the Saxon Race.

O! Englishmen, everywhere, faithful and free,
The lords of the land and the kings of the sea;
O! brave Anglo-Saxons, honest and true,
By hundreds of millions, my word is to you.
All love one another! As brothers embrace,
That the WORLD may be blessed in the Saxon race!"

Now I think that if a special committee of "crazy" Anglo-Israelites, with the Editor of the BANNER as Chairman, had been empowered to arrange that programme, they could not possibly have selected anything stronger than this. Yet we must suppose that those who really did sanction the choice, would be about the last to admit Our Identity.

Digitized by Google

Really it is inexpressibly shocking that such language as this should be put into the mouths of our Church of England Sunday Scholars; language well adapted to prepare the way for teachings which numerous dignitaries of the Church have stigmatised as dangerous, heretical, and even blasphemous! If a good many of the members of the Church Sunday School Choir should develop into Anglo-Israelites, it will not be surprising! "The world is a world for the Saxon Race." Exactly! We always maintained that! but we should like to be informed who it was that received a distinct intimation from on high, that he should be "heir of the world." We would further inquire to what nation the exhortation was addressed, "Stretch forth the curtains of thine habitations; spare not, lengthen thy cords and strengthen thy stakes, for thou shalt break forth on the right hand and on the left, and thy seed shall inherit the Gentiles, and cause the desolate cities to be inhabited;" words imported verbatim into the poem, a most unwarrantable proceeding if the Identity be not true. The Anglo-Saxons we are told are "the lords of the land!" But who was guaranteed an inheritance whose only limit should be "the utmost bound of the everlasting hills:" they are also "the kings of the sea!" But of whom are the words recorded, "I will set his hand also in the sea, and his right hand in the rivers"? And again:—"He shall pour the water out of his buckets and his seed shall be in many waters . . . and his kingdom shall be exalted!" (Ps. lxxxix. 25; Num. xxiv. 7). Lastly, we have a hint that the union of the English-speaking peoples will eventuate in blessing to the whole world. But of such a mission for any people except Israel only, the Word of God is absolutely silent. What is the obvious conclusion?

Our opponents have set their seal to the sentiments expressed in the lines, by admitting them into the programme of the Sunday School Jubilee Festival Concert; they are therefore shut up to two alternatives, that of eating their own words, and acknowledging that the hopes they entertain for the English-speaking nations are wholly devoid of foundation; or that of impugning the veracity of the clearest statements of Holy Writ as to Israel's position "in the latter days." Unless they are prepared to do either the one or the other, they are bound as candid men to admit that we are right, and that the inheritance of the world by the Anglo-Saxon Race is the fulfilment of the promises, not their nullification!

I cannot conclude without a brief allusion to that essentially Israelite celebration, the Jubilee, which is just now engaging all minds, and is the foremost topic of conversation on all tongues. Every loyal Anglo-Israelite (and I believe a disloyal one would be hard to find) must delight to do honour to that admirable woman who has been permitted to rule for 50 years over the British people, and who, during the whole time, has most worthily discharged the onerous duties incumbent on the monarch of so colossal an empire. Of no other Sovereign have we been allowed to know so much of the inner life and personal character; yet the more that we learn, the more do we feel constrained to love her. We scarcely know which most to admire; the splendid ability which she has manifested in holding the reins of government, the stainless purity of her private life, or the unselfish devotion she has exhibited in her family relationships, as wife and mother. We see her, when all but heart-broken under her crushing grief at the removal of her noble husband, putting aside her own great sorrow in order to send a message of loving sympathy to the widows and orphans of men who perished in the disastrous Hartley Colliery accident. We see her entering the homes of the humble poor around Osborne, and carrying to the aged and afflicted words of heavenly cheer and consolation from the pages of God's Holy Book. We see her hastening to the hospital ward where a tiny sufferer lay stretched on a bed of weariness and pain, and speaking in tones of touching gentleness to the little child who had said that if she could only see the Queen she thought she should grow strong and well again. And we praise God for giving us a Sovereign whom we can not only reverence as a ruler, but love as a tender-hearted woman, and honour as a consistent Christian. Many monarchs have been dignified (some most undeservedly) with the title of "great." She will be remembered less for her greatness than for the worth and beauty of her character, and her name will go down to all future generations of the world's inhabitants as, pre-eminently, "VICTORIA THE GOOD!"

(To be continued).

LAUS DEO.

OH! happy nation, kingdom blest, thou Israel of the Lord,
Now in a ringing strain of praise let all thy sons accord;
Praise for the tender care and love that erst have watched o'er thee,
And brought at length this crown of years, thy Monarch's Jubilee!

Praise for thy God-appointed home, the Islands of the West,
Where, shielded safe from every foe, the people dwell at rest
(2 Sam. vii. 10).
Where faith and glorious liberty, thine angel guardians, stand,
And peace her sheltering wing extends o'er all thy favour'd land
(Deut. xxxiii. 28).

Praise for the oracles divine, Jehovah's written word;
The custody of heavenly truth on Israel's race conferred (Ps. cxlvii. 19).
Praise for the high commission, His salvation to proclaim,
And bear to every distant shore the Saviour's precious Name (Isa. lxvi. 19).

Praise for the empire of the sea, upon whose flowing tide
Our ships of commerce and defence float proudly side by side.
(Num. xxiv. 7).
Praise for the Gates that guard the whole, a world-engirdling chain,
Securing Israel still supreme upon the trackless main (Gen. xxii. 17).

Praise for the throne that cannot fall, established and secure,
Upholden by divine decrees, unalterably sure. (Jer. xxxiii. 17).
Praise for the Queen who rules the realm with strong, yet gentle hand;
Whose name is known through every zone, and loved in every land.

Praise for the noble hearts and true, beyond the surging sea,
That beat as one with Israel's own, to hail the Jubilee!
Northward, and South, and East, and West, their thronging hosts are seen, (Gen xxviii. 14).
All faithful to the dear old home, all loyal to their Queen!

Praise for the earnest of that boon, that gift of matchless grace,
By oath and covenant assured to Israel's sinful race; (Isa. xliv. 3).
That source of life, and light, and joy, the Spirit of the Lord,
On old and young, on rich and poor, to be one day outpoured
(Heb. viii. 10, 11).

Oh! happy people, favoured land, lift high the notes of song;
Peal out your anthem far and near, the tuneful strain prolong.
In one exultant chorus now let every voice accord,
Extol the glory of His Name, and praise, oh! praise the Lord!
(Ps. cv. 1—6)

Abingdon, June, 1887. V. M. COX.

Correspondence.

DEAR MISS RUSH,—I have been very ill again, and not able to read the BANNER till now, but I feel I must tell you that I fully agree with you about "the Name of Jesus." That is why I try to send it far and near, because in every number the way of salvation by Jesus Christ only is so fully set forth. I send it to eight or nine (men, all but one) and I have heard that God has blessed the reading of it. I cannot write more, only my kind regards.

Yours very truly,

E. L.

Hastings, May 30th, 1887.

Digitized by Google

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON,

RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

A CHRONOLOGICAL and GEOGRAPHICAL TREE. Showing the Development of the British Power and the Affinity of the British Nation with the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel, with Scriptural Quotations. Price 8d., mounted and varnished, 2s.

WHO ARE WE & WHAT IS OUR MISSION? By J. Thornhill Harrison. With seven Maps. Handsome cloth, gilt, price 5s. Free for P.O.

THE LOST TEN TRIBES OF ISRAEL. By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D., Pastor of Union Congregational Church, Brooklyn, New York. Price 3s., post free 3s. 3d.

THE FUTURE OF ISRAEL AND JUDAH. Companion volume to above, By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D. With Portrait of the Author. Cloth, gilt lettered, bevelled boards. Price 2s., post free 2s. 3d.

THE SISTERS OF HARROWDALE RECTORY. A Tale of Great Interest for Young People. By Mrs. M. A. Searson. With double-page illustration of Harrowdale Rectory. Price 2s. 6d., post free 2s. 9d.

JEHOVAH TRIUMPHANT. The New and Complete Theology and Electric Light of the Bible, containing the History of British-Israel, Compiled from the Sacred Scriptures. Cloth gilt, price 10s. 6d., post free for Postal Order or Cheque.

THE GEOGRAPHY OF THE GATES. By PHILO-ISRAEL. With Map, and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d.; post free.

THE WORD: THE WORLD: THE BRANCH. By J. LEYLAND FIELDEN, Esq. Price 12s., post free.

EPHRAIM-ENGLAND. The Nineteenth Century Revelation of the Fruits of History. By Rev. R. DOUGLAS, Vicar of Kidsgrove. Cloth gilt, lettered, 4s., gilt edges 5s., free by post.

FIFTY REASONS WHY THE ANGLO-SAXONS ARE ISRAELITES of the Lost Tribes of the House of Israel. By Rev. W. H. POOLE, D.D. Price 6d., post free 7d.

BIBLE LESSONS AND REFLECTIONS. By the late ROBERT GAIRDNER, of Kilmarnock, N.B. Price 2s. 6d., by post 2s. 9d.; cheap edition, limp cloth, 1s., by post, 1s. 2d.

THE ANGLO-ISRAEL POST-BAG; or, How Arthur Came to See It. By the Right Rev. BISHOP TITCOMB. Price 2s. 6d. in cloth gilt; paper cover, 1s. 6d., by post 1d. extra.

THE ISRAELITES FOUND IN THE ANGLO-SAXONS. The Ten Tribes supposed to have been Lost, traced from the land of their captivity to their occupation of the Isles of the Sea. By WILLIAM CARPENTER. Price 2s. 6d., by post 2s. 8d.

THE ANSWER TO THE EASTERN QUESTION, With Some Facts Concerning the Identity of the British With Israel. By the Author of "The New Old Story," enlarged. Price 3d.; for distribution, 50 copies, 11s., post free.

CARDINAL PROOFS THAT THE BRITISH Are the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel—the Abrahamic Covenant. By F. W. PHILLIPS. With two chapters by PHILO-ISRAEL. Price 6d., post free 7d.

THE NEW OLD STORY. By "A E I." Price 6d., post free; in cloth, 1s., post free.

THE BIBLE ATLAS. To Illustrate the Old and New Testaments. Price 1s.; post free 1s. 1d.

ANGLO-ISRAEL TRACTS. 8 pp. Royal 16mo., on toned paper. Adapted to enclose in letters, and for general distribution. No. 1—12. Half-penny each. 12 copies, post free, 6d. Specimen packet for 6 stamps.

PRESENT-DAY PROBLEMS, and How Anglo-Israel Truth Explains and Solves Them. By V. M. COX. 3d., by post 4 stamps.

LIGHT SHED BY THE GREAT PYRAMID OF EGYPT on the Last Days of this Dispensation, from A.D. 1814 to A.D. 1922. By JAMES KEITH. Price 4d., by post 5 stamps.

NEW TESTAMENT TRUTH on the Anglo-Israel Controversy. By J. G. TAYLOR. Price 3d., by post 4 stamps.

A NEW LIGHT. An Elementary Pamphlet for General Distribution. By A E I. Price 2d., by post 2½d. in stamps.

EPHRAIM-ISRAEL, the Pivot Nation of Prophecy and History. By V. M. COX. Price 1d., one dozen free for 1s.

AMMI; OR, THE CHOSEN PEOPLE. By MISS BIRD. Tracing the Descent of the British People from Abraham as "friend of God," and showing that true science, history, philology, and ethnology, are on the side of the Identity of the Anglo-Saxon Race with the Ten Lost Tribes. Price 2d., post free 2½d.; 12s. 6d. per 100 for distribution.

IS NOT QUEEN VICTORIA the Royal Seed to King David's Throne, and Are Not Her Subjects, the British People, the Ten Lost Tribes? By W. HOPTON. Price 2d.; 12s. 6d. per 100.

A Complete Catalogue Free on Application.

THE CORONATION CHAIR,

WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

The "Daily Telegraph" writes:—

"With opportune reference to the great event of the year, Mr. Alfred T. Dawes, of Thorncliffe Road, Clapham Park, has designed a model of the CORONATION CHAIR in Westminster Abbey. The Chair is in oak, with the four lions at the feet in brass, and the "STONE OF DESTINY" under the seat has been arranged so that it may be used as an inkstand. It is a pretty momento of an object of unique historical interest, in which all the Sovereigns have been crowned who have reigned in England since Edward I."

For full particulars and price apply to

ALFRED T. DAWES,

10, THORNCLIFFE ROAD, CLAPHAM PARK.

Fourth Thousand, crown 8vo., cloth, price 1/6.

The Coronation Stone; and

England's Interest in It. By Mrs. G. ALBERT ROGERS, author of "The Folded Lamb," "The Star-lit Crown," etc.

The Star-lit Crown: Brief

Memorials of the Life and Work of the Rev. G. A. ROGERS, M.A., late Vicar of Christ Church, Dover. Price 1s., cloth.

JAMES NISBET & Co., Berners-street, London, And of all Booksellers.

Where Is The Firstborn?

Crown 8vo., wrapper, price 6d. By the Rev. G. A. ROGERS. Edited by his Widow.

R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., E.C.

BY REV. HENRY ROE.

(Fifteenth Thousand).

1. Israel's World. Origin and Destiny of British Race, Colonies, and Empire. 2d., post free 2½d. "Worthy of a world-wide circulation." H. B Thompson, Association Sec. 50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.

2. Going to Afric. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.

3. Fernando Po Mission. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.

4. West African Scenes. 2s., post free 2s. 2d.

5. Consecration. 2d., post free 2½d.

50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; and Rev. H. Roe, Dawley, Salop.

EDWARD HINE'S PUBLICATIONS.

SHOULD BE READ & DISTRIBUTED.

FORTY-SEVEN IDENTIFICATIONS, 6d.; post free, 7d.

CUI BONO? 6d., post free, 7d.

LOST ISRAEL FOUND, 3s. 6d., post free, 3s. 9d.

F. W. PARRY, 29, Paternoster Row, London, or direct of ISAAC LOVELAND, Shoreham, Sevenoaks.

Price 2s. 6d., Cheap Edition, 1/-

BIBLE LESSONS & REFLECTIONS.

By ROBERT GAIRDNER, of Kilmarnock, N.B.

"Mr. Gairdner has given us in his book a series of Bible lessons, with his own reflections added thereto, and though he has been very cautious in the latter, and has not committed himself too broadly, he has plainly let it be seen that he is an Anglo-Israelite by conviction, and that the Scriptures which he quotes at length and extensively throughout his book, are meant to teach Our Identity and God's faithfulness, from first to last, to His promises to Abraham and His seed for ever." —Banner of Israel.

ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st.

The Identity Demonstrated

See new book by the Rev. R. DOUGLAS, M.A.

(Vicar of Kidsgrove, Stoke-on-Trent) entitled,

Ephraim-England.

London: Sold by R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., who will forward a copy free on receipt of P.O.

Price 3d., post free 3½d.

PRESENT-DAY PROBLEMS,

How Anglo-Israel Truth Explains and Solves Them.

By V. M. COX.

Author of Ephraim-Israel, the Pivot Nation of Prophecy and History

"A book to read is 'Present-Day Problems: How Anglo-Israel Truth Explains and Solves Them.' By V. M. Cox. This little book is an excellent summary of the clearance effected in the great burning questions of the time, the moment it is understood that the Anglo-Saxon folk is the very Israel of God. Federation of the Empire, the Irish question, the Eastern question, our relation to Russia, our hold on Egypt, submitted to this solvent, become parts of one intelligible scheme. The paragraphs on Foreign Missions, as the special work of Israel, and on our relation to our fellows of the Tribe of Judah, are especially good.—The Messenger.

R. Banks and Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London.

A New Light.

BY A E I.

Author of "The New Old Story," "4,000 Years Old," &c.

This pamphlet is prepared specially for general distribution, and as a means of introducing "Our Identity" to persons unacquainted with the subject will be found particularly useful. It is printed on good paper, in clear type, and bound in primrose colour cover.

Price 2d., post free 2½d R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court.

New and Useful Work for Students of the Origin of the British Race and Their Mission.

Just published, price 5/-, free by post for Postal Order.

WHO ARE WE?

AND

WHAT IS OUR MISSION?

By J. THORNHILL HARRISON, of Ealing.

With Seven Maps, printed by the Woodbury Permanent Process, illustrating—

1.—Showing the Dispersion of the family of Noah after the Flood. 2.—Great Western and Eastern Plains. 3.—Colonisation of the Tribes of Dan and Asher from Phœnicia, B.C. 1,400 to 740. 4.—The Assyrian Empire, B.C. 710. 5.—Extent of the Persian Empire and its Division into Twenty Satrapies, B.C. 521 to 464. 6.—The Parthian Empire, B.C. 207 to A.D. 226. 7.—The World with the Commencement of the Christian Era.

The Work is printed on good toned paper, and handsomely bound in cloth, bevelled boards, with handsome design in gilt on cover, gilt lettered.

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, E.C.

WORKS BY

J. LEYLAND FEILDEN, Esq.

The Word, the World, the Branch. Handsomely printed in Octavo, substantially bound, and ILLUSTRATED BY A LARGE DIAGRAM, or Chart of the Line of Time, from the Creation to the Final Destruction of the World, comprehending a Period of Fifty Thousand Four Hundred Years. Also Illustrated by Separate Diagrams of the Six Days, or Periods of Creation, and of the Seventh Day of Millennial Rest. Price 12s., sent carriage paid on receipt of remittance.

The Meeting of the Nations in the Universal Day. 1s., post free. A book for the times.

Links in the Chain of Evidence Connecting Israel and England. Price 2s. 6d., cloth, gilt, by post 2s. 9d.

Israel's Jubilee; or, 1882. Contents:—"Children of the Most High"—Four Folds: One Flock—"The Dust of Jacob"—Who Are the Gentiles?—Bethlehem and Greenwich—"The Princesses, the King's Daughters"—The Testimony of the Pyramid—Who Are the Turks?—Who Are the Russians?—Ritualism—The Three Destructions—The Site of the Temple—"The Ransomed of the Lord Shall Return"—Temple Bar—"Behold the Fig Tree"—The Lia Fail, or Fatal Stone—The Number Fifty-Two—A Dream—The Cross a Symbol of Paganism. Price 1s. 6d., 2s., and 2s. 6d.; by post, 1s. 8d., 2s. 2d., and 2s. 9d.

The Gentiles and the Times of the Gentiles. Price 6d., by post 7d.

Israel Ubiquitous: A Letter to an Enquirer. By "Reuben." With Diagram. Price 4d.

Genealogy of the Brigantes or Douglas. A Synopsis of the Genealogy of the Most Antient and Most Noble Family of the Brigantes or Douglas. Price 6d., post free

ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st, And, by order, of any Bookseller.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS.

	£ s. d.
Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free	0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers)	0 13 6
Three Copies " " "	1 0 4
Four Copies " " "	1 5 6
Six Copies " " "	1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

A New Work on the Identity of Lost Israel
By the late BISHOP TITCOMB.

Now ready, in Cloth Gilt, Bevelled Boards, Imperial 8vo, Price 3s.; sent Post Free for Postal Order or Stamps.

A MESSAGE TO THE CHURCH
FROM
THE NINETEENTH CENTURY,
BY THE LATE
RT. REV. BISHOP TITCOMB, D.D.

The Kentish Mercury, April 21st, says:—"This book derives a peculiar and pathetic interest from the circumstances that the proofs of its concluding pages were revised by the author during the last few days of his life, and that its publication took place simultaneously with his death. One feels, in noticing a book under such circumstances, a special responsibility, when the author is removed beyond the reach of human criticism of whatever kind. But in truth it is impossible to glance at these pages without being struck by the deep and reverent research into the prophetic Scriptures which it manifests, by the tone of piety that pervades it, as well as the lucidity and eloquence of its style. Nor is it necessary to express concurrence with the views of the gifted and pious author in his prophetic theories to give this praise. Of course with regard to Dr. Titcomb's prophetic interpretations there will be much difference of opinion, but there can be none in the mind of any impartial person who reads this work, either as to the diligence with which he testimony of the prophets has been studied, or the earnestness of the expositor in stating his conclusions. Bishop Titcomb, it is well-known to those who have studied his works, was one of the school of prophetic interpreters who believe that the British Empire, or perhaps, more accurately speaking, the English-speaking race, are identified with those whom we have been in the habit of calling the 'Lost Tribes of Israel.'" [Then follow several extracts.]

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet court, Fleet-st F. W. Parry & Co., Paternoster-row, and all booksellers.

LEAFLET FOR THE YOUNG.
WHO ARE YOU?
Price 1s. per 100; postage 1½d.

To be obtained from the Hon. Sec., Anglo-Israel Association, 27, Pulteney Street, Bath; and of R. Banks & Son, Racquet Court, Fleet Street.

"A happy effort, well and successfully made, and likely to lead to good results. The Leaflet teaches the Scriptural distinction between Israel and Judah. . . . The separate captivities. . . Our nation's possession of the Gates, the Sabbath, etc."—Banner of Israel, Mar. 16, 1887.

Crown 8vo., wrapper, price 6d.

Where is the Firstborn?

An investigation of the British Claim to Identification with the House of Israel. By the REV. G. A. ROGERS, M.A. Edited by his Widow. Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

"Ably written, well edited, and carefully presented to the readers. . . . We wish it a large circulation."—Banner of Israel.

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-st.

Price 2d., 12s. 6d. per Hundred,

Is Not Queen Victoria the Royal Seed to King David's House, and Are Not Her Subjects, the British People, the Ten Lost Tribes?

By WILLIAM HOPTON,
Colliery Manager (Author of "Conversations on Mines"), St. Helen's.

London: R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

An Elementary Digest or Sketch of the Chief Facts and Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Adapted to the Unlearned and Unscientific 56 pages, Illustrated with Diagrams, price 4d., post free 5d. 10th Thousand.

Our Identity with the House of Israel. Price 4d. Reprinted from "Clifton Chronicle Letters"

The History of the House of Israel; How they were Lost, and How they were Found, Told for the Children. Price 6d., cloth 1s.; post free 7d. and 1s. 1d. Fourth Edition. Eleventh thousand

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

Philo-Israel's Leaflets. Four pages Crown 8vo. Price 1s. 6d. per 100, postage 2d. No. 1.—"The Identity of the British with Lost Israel." 2.—"The Glory of God." 3.—An Address to British Seamen. 4.—An Address to British Soldiers. No. 5.—The Communion of the Body and Blood of Our Lord Jesus Christ Viewed in the Light of Our Identity. 6.—The Bible and the Jew. 7.—The Jewish People. 8.—Lo-Ammi; or, the Gentilisation of Ten-Tribed Israel. 9.—The Atonement. 10.—Is Our Identity Evangelical, or Non-Evangelical in its Tendency? No. 11.—Cui Bono? No. 12.—The "Thoughts" of God Towards Israel, Judah, and the Gentile Nations. 13.—The Teutonic Theory. Is It True? 14.—An Address to the Police Force of Great Britain. 15.—An Address to Israel's Missionaries and Their Supporters. 16.—The One Seed, Christ. 17.—An Address to Israel's Electors.

Robert Banks and Son, Printers, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Thoughts for the British Folk.
Suggested by PHILO-ISRAEL.

No. 1.—Multitudinousness.
No. 2.—The Gates.
No. 3.—The Nation and Company of Nations.
No. 4.—British Wealth.
No. 5.—The Rulers Over Many Nations.
No. 6.—The Universal Creditor.
No. 7.—The Ever-Continuing British Monarchy.
No. 8.—The Scattered People at Home in Every Climate.
No. 9.—The Queen, Lords, and Commons.
No. 10.—The Unconquerable Nation.
No. 11.—The Fatally Destructive Race.
No. 12.—The Isolated Nation.
No. 13.—The Nation Which Belts the Earth.
No. 14.—The Emancipators of the Slave
No. 15.—The Christian Nation.
No. 16.—The Ten Commandments.
No. 17.—The Asylum for the Foreign Refugee.
No. 18.—Possessors of the "Sign."
No. 19.—The Universal Missionaries.
No. 20.—Testimony of the Book of Common Prayer.
No. 21.—Church and State, and also Disestablishment.
No. 22.—Our Poor Laws.
No. 23.—The Labour Question is an Identity Question.
No. 24.—Emigration.

London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

Price Sixpence, by post Sevenpence.

Fifty Reasons Why the Anglo-Saxons are Israelites of the Lost Tribes of the House of Israel?

By Rev. W. H. POOLE, D.D.

"There is a principle which is a bar against all argument, and which cannot fail to keep a man in everlasting ignorance. This principle is, contempt prior to examination."—DR. PALEY.

ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st.

THE TEETH, THE TEETH, THOSE PRECIOUS TEETH!
Save, Purify, Beautify.
GEORGE & WELCH'S
CARBOLINE
1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.
Is the Best Known
Cleanser, Preserver, and Deodoriser.

Dental Guide says:—"No Tooth application equals the Carbolics."

Proprietors: GEORGE & WELCH, Worcester.

Throgh Chemists or Post Free from Makers.

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION.

PULVERMACHER'S WORLD-FAMED GALVANIC BELTS, for the cure of Nervous Diseases, have received Testimonials from three Physicians to Her Majesty the Queen, and over Forty Members of the Royal College of Physicians, London.

The distressing symptoms of Nervous Exhaustion and Debility are speedily removed by means of PULVERMACHER'S world-famed Galvanic Belts, which are so arranged as to convey a powerful electric current direct to the affected parts, gradually stimulating and strengthening all the nerves and muscles, and speedily arresting all symptoms of waste and decay.

Dr. VINES, Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, writes, 19th September, 1885: "Having used Mr. Pulvermacher's Belts for many years, in the course of medical practice, I am in a position to speak of their great value as a curative agent in cases of nervous disease or functional malady where Electricity is likely to be serviceable. I am entirely convinced of their efficacy."

Dr. C. HANDFIELD JONES, F.R.C.P., F.R.S., Physicians to St. Mary's Hospital, says: "I am satisfied that Mr. Pulvermacher is an honest and earnest labourer in the field of science, and I think he deserves to meet with every encouragement from the profession and scientific men."

Dr. GOLDING BIRD, M.D., Physician, Guy's Hospital says: "I can hardly recommend Mr. Pulvermacher's invention too strongly to the notice of my medical brethren."

For full Price List and Particulars see New Pamphlet, "Galvanism, Nature's Chief Restorer of Impaired Vital Energy." Post free from Pulvermacher's Galvanic Establishment,

194, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

ISRAEL IN THE NEW TESTAMENT
OR,
Proofs of the National Conversion of the Ten Tribes to Christianity.
By SURGEON-GENERAL J. M. GRANT, M.D.

Price 4d., post free, 4½d.; 12 Copies, post free, 4s.

London: R. Banks and Son, Racquet Court, Fleet St., and by order of all Booksellers.

ETHELINE

A New and most effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

A BOON TO SUFFERERS.
HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT.
Testimonial

From Miss J. HOULDSWORTH, Rozelle, Ayr, N.B.

"I am glad to be able to tell you that the HARNESS' ELECTRIC BATTERY BELT has been very beneficial in strengthening the system generally, as well as instrumental in relieving the Neuralgic pains from which I have suffered.

NEURALGIA & DEBILITY.

Every man and woman suffering from any disorder of the Nerves, Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys, should at once stop physicing, and remit 21s. for HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT (post free) and obtain immediate relief. Pamphlet and Book of Testimonials POST FREE. MEDICAL BATTERY CO. Ltd.,
52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.
Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GURST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22, 1887 [All rights reserved.]

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 548. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, JUNE 29, 1887. PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
The Benefits of British Influence in Egypt	261
The "Messenger" and Mr. Edward Hine	262
Comparative Criminality	263
Past and Current History and its Testimony to Our Identity with Israel. By Miss V. M. Cox.—Part V.	264
The Queen's New Title	265
The New Coinage	265
Blessed Are the Meek—An Identity. By H. R. Shaw	266
The South American Missionary Society	266
Correspondence	267

THE BENEFITS OF BRITISH INFLUENCE IN EGYPT.

IT is not often we are able to quote the London Daily News. It is a great satisfaction to us that we are able to do so in respect to its Cairo correspondent's report, published on June 3, as to the effect of the threat of the British evacuation of the country in the three years mentioned in the Convention just signed. The writer in Cairo declares that when the British army goes, "there will be a great exodus of foreign merchants, tradesmen and shopkeepers of all sorts and conditions." Even the French tradesmen, it appears, declare they will leave when the British troops do. Our government have, most unwisely for the good of Egypt, declared their intention to depart at the end of three years. The result is that the signs of the revival of trade and prosperity which were beginning to shew themselves are now rapidly disappearing. The effect, says the Daily News correspondent, is most disastrous, and the conclusion he arrives at is ominous. "If we wish (he says) to have another rebellion in Egypt, and thus secure an excuse for re-occupying it, then evacuation at as early a date as possible is advisable, but otherwise it is impolitic."

The consequence of our withdrawal will certainly be what the correspondent says, and we wonder that Lord Salisbury should have sanctioned such a Convention, noted as he is for shrewdness and sound judgment. If he desires to bring about fresh troubles to justify another and a final occupation of Egypt, then the experiment, besides being immoral, will be the height of cruelty to the Fellahin of Egypt, as well as to all those foreign (including British) merchants and tradesman who, depending on the enforcement of law and order by the British troops, have settled in the land and carry on business there. The correspondent founded his opinions and conclusions on such arguments as these, which seem to us fair and cogent. He wrote thus:—

From all parts of the country, and from various classes, I have reports which prove that the benefits of a British occupation are thoroughly appreciated. The poor fellah says, when he is quietly by himself, that he never sees British troops, but that he knows that the fact of their presence in Cairo secures him in his rights and saves him from being plundered and illused by Government officials. One thing, too, that comes home to him with peculiar force is, that he is no longer subjected to the "Kourbash," nor is he fleeced by tax-gatherers, for the taxes are equitably collected. He values, too, his freedom from the corvée, or forced labour. These advantages he fully recognises, and fears that with the disappearance of the red coats from Cairo, things will gradually revert to their former condition, and that his last state will be worse than the first.

There is a good deal of practical sense in this fellaheen view of the matter. True, we have succeeded in getting control of many of the administrations, but even in these the influence of the English officials will only last while material force is at hand. Withdraw that force, and the whole fabric will, little by little, crumble away, disturbed as it will inevitably be by the insidious work of our foreign friends, who will use every endeavour to supplant us, and who will poison the minds of the natives and induce them to intrigue against every English official in the country. The police as a body could never be depended upon in case of emergency, and it is open to question whether the army, with the wide gulf that exists between the English officers and the rank and file, could be relied on either.

If the Daily News agent can say that from all parts of the country and from various classses he has reports that the benefits of our occupation are thoroughly appreciated, then it is clear that Isa. xix. 20—22 is under fulfilment, and that the British are Israel "in the midst of the land," a blessing to afflicted, smitten Egypt. We have saved the down-trodden Fellahîn from plunder, and illusage from his own native rulers. We have delivered him from the "Kourbash" or flogging, to which he was ever liable. We have freed him from injustice at the hands of tax-collectors, and forced labour, or the Corvée, is abolished. These things amount to a revolution in the condition of the peasantry of the land, and the saviours of Egypt in these respects have been the British alone. We feel confident that God, who has begun a good work in the land of Egypt by the hand of His people Israel, will continue it to the end. Isa. xix. 20 et sequitur makes no mention of Egypt's retrocession into anarchy or misery which would follow our departure from the land, and therefore we believe that there will be no evacuation of Egypt three years hence, but a continued Protectorate depending on the presence of British troops, in however small numbers, just to notify to the world that Israel is the God-appointed guardian of Egypt, and "nemo me impune lacessit," shall be her cry.

Digitized by Google

Those who have watched God's dealings with the land of Egypt, and how He has employed our nation to smite her and now commence to heal her, must be struck with the manifest interposition of the Lord in the affairs of that most unfortunate land. God has allowed us, by a sudden and startling victory, that of Tel-el-Kebir in 1882, to obtain the sole dominion in the land of Egypt. Yet from that hour we have struggled hard to get rid of the treasure the God of Israel put into the hands of His chosen people, to bless and save it, and bring it to His Son for His Inheritance. God means to constitute the Egyptians His people, that is, to incorporate them with Israel, as Isa. xix. 25 teaches us. Yet Israel, by her accredited rulers, Mr. Gladstone and Lord Salisbury to wit, have over and over again declared they will abandon Egypt to her own devices and evacuate that land. In vain! Each attempt has been frustrated by the Lord with sharp and stern rebukes; by blood and fire and pillars of smoke; till now by a solemn Convention the government of Lord Salisbury repeats the mistake, and declares before all the nations that in three years he will carry out Mr. Gladstone's intention and evacuate the land! We believe the intention will be met and frustrated by the God of His people Israel and Egypt, and that we shall (if the crisis does not arrive before 1890) find that the British Protectorate is then finally proclaimed, to the blessing and satisfaction of Egypt, and to the glory and praise of the God of His people Israel. So may it be!

THE "MESSENGER" AND MR. EDWARD HINE.

We beg to draw attention, but without particular comment, to some words which appear at the foot of p. 207 of the June number of the Messenger, and beg our readers to note that they refer to the Banner, as may be seen by going back to Vol. x., p. 414. The words are these :—

"The harmless reference in the Messenger article to the social shyness of the Scots 'to strangers, especially if English,' evoked an outburst from those people who call themselves 'Anglo-Israelite' teachers, which I ask you to let me say boldly was lamentable for stupidity and dishonesty. I pray continually that we may be delivered from such teachers. They have hindered the work in Scotland more than words can tell. Happily the Messenger is now everywhere displacing their crude and even illiterate ineptitudes." . . . "To make out that this is pointing the finger of scorn and hatred against the Anglo-Saxon is pure dishonesty." . . . "That the truth be paramount, let these people leave off lying by calling the Scots 'English' which they never were, are not, and never will be, whether they be Ephraim or no." The following on p. 205 is remarkable, and the allusion to the writer who has had "the adjustment of petty transactions with niggers," is hardly worthy of a journal with high literary pretensions. The words were these :—"The cruel mischief is that we are afflicted and the work more hindered than helped by teachers . . . parading what you have called their 'ridiculous personality,' and whose exiguity of information about the commonest things, not to speak of breeding, and whose ill-concealed malignity makes one think they must have passed their lives shut off from the world in some remote obscurity, adjusting petty transactions with niggers."

Our readers must judge whether such a mode of presenting "Our Identity with the lost Ten Tribes" to outsiders, is likely to have a good effect on those whom we are all striving to persuade. Discourtesy and violent language can benefit no cause; but when used by a journal which professes to tower above all others, and chiefly above the Banner, it seems needful to remind those who conduct it that the words recorded in 1 Peter iii. 8 are the words of God, and that language such as we have quoted is neither loving, pitiful, nor courteous. We fear the words evince violence and hatred against brethren in the same cause. In the Special Federation Edition of "Britain's Inheritance," issued by Mr. George Bullock, of Liverpool, is a smart article, extolling Mr. Edward Hine, and depreciating most of the other "Identity writers of our time." The editors of the Messenger and of the Banner of Israel, however, are not mentioned at all; the latter, we suppose, because the writer of the review thought he did not deserve notice, and the former—well we need not explain that! What we wish to say is this—At the end of that article is the following: "We have not fawned in his (Mr. Edward Hine's) face by applauding his unavoidable errors, and stabbed him in the back as so many have done. The men who have stolen all they retail in their scribbling from Hine, habitually sneer at him as 'the despised Edward Hine,' and pretend to pity him! Let them spare their hypocrisy—Hine needs no pity. He can hold his own against them and all comers on his own ground, and we feel that to the world Edward Hine and the Identity of Israel and Britain in race and work are synonymous—and all other writers upon it nowhere." We only quote these words to explain that we, and we only, have used the words, "the despised Edward Hine," and we have used them but once during the whole course of our connection with the subject of Our Identity with Israel. Our readers will find the words in Banner, Vol. x., No. 501, p. 314, in our review of the Rev. Robert Douglas' last work, "Ephraim-England." We are sorry to find that not only has our (not too flattering) mentor misunderstood us, but our own friends, in some instances, have been led into the error of supposing that in speaking of Mr. Hine as "the despised Edward Hine," we expressed our own sentiments! Such was not the case. We were putting the words into the Rev. Mr. Douglas' mouth, and telling him that though he despised Mr. Hine, he had adopted one of the latter's peculiar views in regard to Acts ii. 36, but never explained why he did so, contrary to the universal opinion of his own cloth in the matter. Mr. Douglas clearly entertains but a poor opinion of Mr. Hine, and he expressed it in the preface to the book in question. In reviewing the latter, we noticed this fact. We have never "despised" Mr. E. Hine. We were for long one of his literary fellow-helpers in "Life from the Dead" and "The Glory Leader." We always had a high opinion of his ability, and only regret that extreme views in regard to his own position and calling, also as to the question of the Jews and their salvation, prevented our working further in union with him. Latterly Mr. E. Hine indulged in some strong language in regard to ourselves which has made the gulf quite impassable; but we cannot plead guilty to the accusation that we have thought him a person to be "despised." God is using him, no doubt, to carry the truth into quarters where our own influence does not and can not extend; and we therefore desire to honour those whom God honours—but never to despise such men.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

Sir,—It has taken the Messenger half a year to hatch another egg on the Scoto-Ephraim supposition, and although the deliverance is scarcely formidable, it is clear from the robust language employed that what appeared in the Banner on the subject has gone where it was intended to go—straight home. I opine that you are one of the editors who cannot edit, and I will be one of the writers who cannot write. To write like the amiable contributors to the Messenger is not my ambition. That would be an accomplishment! It might be an easy task for me to retaliate, and administer a few Rolands for each Oliver, but I prefer to leave childishness to children, and make a further remark or two on the real point at issue. The identification of the different tribes is not at the present moment a matter of supreme importance, but it is one of interest. With the enlightened staff on the Messenger, however, it seems to be merely a channel for the conveyance of their clannish prejudices. The claim, and the spirit in which the claim is put forward, are equally amusing. The idea that the Scotch are Ephraim is eminently ridiculous. Scotland is no more composed of a single tribe than England is. The Messenger is correct when it states that the tribes have been kept in a large measure distinct, and it so happens that these tribal distinctions are even bolder in Scotland than they are in England. Scotland is a geographical expression, and has no racial significance at all, as it is a combination of the Gaelic, Cimbric and Teutonic elements that colonised Britain in succession. The border between England and Scotland is purely artificial, and as Sir John Lubbock recently showed, the racial boundary lies not from East to West, but from North to South—the East, generally speaking, being Anglo-Saxon, and the West Cimbro-Gaelic. The N., E., and Midlands of England and the S. of Scotland are inhabited by essentially the same people, —viz, the Engles, who set up the four kingdoms of East Anglia, Deira, Bernicia and Mercia, stretching from Ipswich to Edinburgh. The separation of Bernicia into two parts, and the union of the Northern portion with the Keltic Highlanders, was a political alliance, and has no bearing on the ethnological character of the country. This being so, it is evident that the writers in the Messenger are as ignorant as they are impertinent. The two things, in fact, usually do go together. They are also in the dark as to the import of the term "Scot." All the "Scots" may be "Scotch," but the "Scotch" are certainly not all "Scots." The Highlanders are Scots, but they call the Lowland Scotch "Saxons," and are as distinct from them tribally as the English are from the Welsh. Hence there is no nation of Scots in reality, and no Scottish people except in a political or nominal sense.

Digitized by Google

The Scotch writer has not taken the advice tendered him to buy a good map of the world and study its surface. He has bought an "Anglo-Israel Almanack" instead, which is in keeping with the national repute for economy. He has (he informs us) made a careful analysis of the British victories, and finds that out of a total of 309 commanders 111 have Scottish names. This also is in keeping with the national repute. Much, of course, depends on what we are to understand by Scottish names. Campbell is a Scottish name, and so, in certain circumstances, is Smith. It is even affirmed that Adam was Scotch, being the undoubted father to Macadam, of that ilk. But after looking over the list I may say that, whatever the number of Scotch names, not more than forty were Scotchmen, and the number of Scots proper is still fewer. Indeed, if we take the Scots particularly, and exclude the English district of Scotland, it will be found that the "Scots" are not at the "head" but the "tail" in all departments, for they have not produced a great genius of any kind, unless it be the editor of the Messenger. The somewhat injudicious statement is made that the victories go back "centuries before the Scots and English came together." This is ominous, for what was the "leading tribe" doing during all these centuries? While England was pounding away at the toes of the image, Scotland was pounding away at England, or stealing her neighbour's sheep. What remarkable behaviour for the "head tribe!"

The means by which the Messenger construes Scripture into teaching that Ephraim had to dwell separate from his brethren are worthy of the Rev. John Wilkinson, and it fails to see, moreover, that if Scotland is "separate" from England in law, etc., England is "separate" from Scotland to exactly the same extent. The "dwelling alone" suggestion is consequently as long as it is broad. Your contemporary repeats the assertion that the Scotch hate the arrogant and narrow provincialism of the English, and I therefore repeat that England, not Scotland, must necessarily contain Ephraim, by its own proving. We are told that this hatred does not imply "hatred against the Anglo-Saxon personally." This is consoling, and will help to make life bearable. But two remarks may be passed. The first is that if they hate the Anglo-Saxons, either personally or collectively, they hate the greater proportion of Scotland. The second is that if they hate the people of England they certainly love the country. And for the patriots who mis-conduct the Messenger to accuse others of narrowness or provincialism does surely seem to be the climax of incongruity. It is intimated that the BANNER and its supporters are doing "a vast amount of harm." If the BANNER is doing "harm" who is doing all the "good?" What has brought the Identity to its advanced position? It is difficult to comprehend what service the Messenger is rendering the cause. It may tickle the fancy of a few laddies across the border, but it will alienate every sober-minded person, which is not a satisfactory recompense. If the aforesaid magazine has nothing else to do save stir up ill-feeling at the extremities of the nation, it has no reason for existing. Mr. Gladstone has devoted himself to this noble object, so that the occupation of the Messenger is gone, while the fate of Mr. G. ought to convince it that the occupation is at best not a popular or paying one.

Yours faithfully, SASSENACH.

COMPARATIVE CRIMINALITY.

THE following statement, which we suppose may be relied upon, has been published in the Southern Free Press lately, and was forwarded to us by a zealous Anglo-Israelite as something suitable to our columns. The returns made by "The Italian Statistical Society" are highly flattering to our people as compared with the alien races of Europe. In 100,000 inhabitants, it is wonderful that as regards the British Isles, there should be only 1.70 convictions for "crimes against morals," while in Belgium they amount to 15·11 and in Germany to 14·03.

In regards to "blows and wounds," we were prepared to learn that our race was beyond comparison more addicted to such violence than others, and that the Continentals were less inclined to such acts. We find, however, that Austria leads the way with 248 out of 100,000 inhabitants committed;—whereas in these Islands the number is only 7·13! We cannot answer for the figures, but if true, these returns go to show that as a nation we are a more peaceful and law-abiding people than our Gentile neighbours; but Austria, Belgium, Italy, Germany, and France are the worst! Our quotation is as follows:—

COMPARATIVE CRIMINALITY.—The Italian Statistical Society has recently published the following interesting figures concerning the number of criminals in every 100,000 inhabitants of the different European countries. Of crimina s condemned for all kinds of homicide the proportions are—In Italy, 8·12; Spain, 7·83; Hungary, 6·09; Austria, 2·24; Belgium, 1·78; France, 1·36; Germany, 1·11; British Isles, 0·60. Under the heading "Blows and Wounds" we find the following number of persons condemned out of 100,000 inhabitants—Austria, 248; Belgium, 177; Italy, 162; Germany, 129; France, 65; Hungary, 46; British Isles, 7·19. The statistics with regard to "crimes against morals" run as follows—Belgium, 15·11; Germany, 14·03; France, 9·77; Austria, 9·18; Hungary, 6·25; Italy, 3·77; British Isles, 1·70.

How are we to account for this wonderful superiority of the British over Continental races in the matter of crime and offences against the law? Surely it must be caused by the fact that the Spirit of God dwells with this people as He does not with other nations? The promise is to that effect in Exod. xxxi. 16; xxix. 45, 46; and Haggai ii, 5; and it shows that

Digitized by Google

"God goes with us," "dwells amongst us," and by His Spirit "remains with us," as His people Israel. He sends His word to us also according to Psalm cxlvii. 19, 20; which declares that "He showeth His word unto Jacob, His statutes and His judgments unto Israel; and that He hath not dealt so with any nation." God's presence with us, and His special instruction given to us in His holy Word, are enough to account for our superior national morality (such as it is) as compared with other nations. But sin nevertheless lies at our door, and we have no reason to boast! In God's sight we are accounted vile indeed. The early history of our race is painted in black colours by Moses in Deut. ix. 5, 6, 7. They were, he declared, "unrighteous," "stiffnecked," and "rebellious." They were idolatrous afterwards; continually disobedient to their Heavenly King; "incurring" wrath and punishment at His hands, till at last, "there being no remedy," they were driven into exile and banished from their land (2 Kings xxxvi. 16.) What they were in exile, and how they appeared when they reached these shores, we have historical testimony to show. The sad catalogue of Israel's offences against the Lord culminates in the fact that they were seduced into Popery, and remained in their wilderness retreat for many centuries in that sad condition, till God in mercy sent them renewed light; the Bible by the hand of John Wickcliff first in A.D. 1322, and then the blessed Reformation in the sixteenth century. But the testimony of God's Word is true. "Because Ephraim hath made many altars to sin, altars shall be unto him to sin" (Hosea viii. 11). And they "have been unto him to sin" even to this hour! The time of Israel's blessing, however, is near at hand, and we believe the day approaches when the nation will be baptized with the spirit of the living God, and then we shall all know Him, from the least of us to the greatest of us, and our national "sins and iniquities He will remember no more" (Jer. xxxi. 33, 34.; Hebrew viii. 10-12.)

PAST AND CURRENT HISTORY AND ITS TESTIMONY TO OUR IDENTITY WITH ISRAEL.

A LECTURE BY MISS V. M. COX, DELIVERED AT BATH AND CLIFTON ON APRIL 28 AND 29, 1887.

(Concluded from page 258).

PART V.

OUR opponents tell us sometimes that Our Identity is a selfish and vainglorious doctrine; calculated to puff us up with a sense of our own importance, and to make us more aggressive and domineering than we are, which, they say, is quite unnecessary. It is true that but for the grace of God, a spirit of vainglory might take possession of us, in contemplating the grand destiny in store for us as Israel. But rightly considered, the knowledge of our origin should tend to humiliate us when we remember our national shortcomings, and how unworthy we are of the divine favour so richly bestowed upon us, but which is ours because Jehovah cannot break His covenant, and because Christ has appeared for the national redemption and restoration of the chosen race, as well as "for salvation to the ends of the earth."

But with regard to the other charge, that ours is a selfish doctrine, we say, "No, a thousand times NO!" for it represents Israel blessed on purpose that she may become a blessing; enriched that she may succour the needy and distressed; and entrusted with divine light that she may flash the lamp of truth into earth's darkest corners, and thus dispel the gloom. This she has begun to do, and the work, as we have tried to show, is rapidly progressing. Where Israel's glorious language goes, the faith of Christ goes too, and it is leavening the world. To this end science too has given up her secrets, and we have so girdled the earth with the electric wire that distance is practically annihilated; all with the same object,—that Israel may be a blessing to all nations, and that the splendid future of which the American poet Whittier sang, when first the Atlantic Cable was completed, may become a joyful reality.

"What saith the Herald of the Lord?
The world's long strife is done!
Close wedded by that mystic cord,
The Continents are one.

And one in heart, as one in blood,
Shall all the peoples be.
The hands of human brotherhood
Are clasped beneath the sea.

Throb on, strong pulse of thunder! Beat
From answering beach to beach;
Fuse nations in thy kindly heat,
And melt the chains of each.

Weave on, swift shuttle of the Lord,
Beneath the deep so far,
The bridal robe of earth's accord,
The funeral shroud of war!

For lo! the fall of ocean's wall,
Space mocked, and time outrun;
And round the world the thought of each
Is as the thought of one.

The poles unite, the zones agree,
The tongues of striving cease:
As on the Sea of Galilee
The Christ is whispering 'peace'!"

To these lines, breathing as they do, the very spirit of tranquillity, an awful contrast is presented in the state of Europe at the present hour. Vehement jealousies are agitating the nations, and all are absorbed in increasing their military strength, and in storing material for a terrific conflict which, we apprehend, cannot long be delayed, and which may be at any moment precipitated by some untoward combination of circumstances; a conflict in which we believe we shall bear no part, but that, while it rages, we shall remain in hiding, preserved by the mercy of God from those fearful judgments which are described by the prophets as the inevitable fate of the Gentile nations, but not of God's people Israel. Our Home Gates are safeguarded by divine promise (Isa. lx. 11); and those on the ocean highways we are proceeding to fortify. But nothing except Our Identity with Israel insures our safety from the horrors of the impending European war. As the BANNER has lately shewn us, men are still deluding themselves with fallacious hopes of continued peace; literally dancing on the edge of a precipice, and seemingly unconscious of the fearful abyss beneath. But it is a false security, and its very existence may be an indication of their extreme peril; since the Word tells us that "When they shall say, 'Peace and safety,' the hour of their sudden destruction is at hand, and they shall not escape."

And what of Israel? Is hers to be one long vista of undimmed sunshine, and of immunity from chastisement and tribulation? Not so. Her dross must be purged, and her national character tried as by fire, ere she enters into the full enjoyment of those blessings which, together with Judah, she is to inherit under the New Covenant. Ephraim's distinctive portion is hers already; the company of nations, the supremacy in many waters, the Gates, the evangelising function, the multitudinous seed, and the heritage of the heathen—all these she has already in possession; but under the millennial reign of her divine Redeemer a future awaits her which as far excels her present as the full brilliancy of the noontide sky exceeds the first pale glimmering of the dawn. Vividly does the prophet Isaiah depict this future in the cheering language, "Violence shall no more be heard in thy land; wasting nor destruction within thy borders; but thou shalt call thy walls salvation and thy gates praise! The sun shall be no more thy light by day, neither for brightness shall the moon give light unto thee, but the Lord shall be unto thee an everlasting light, and thy God thy glory! Thy sun shall no more go down, neither shall thy moon withdraw itself, for the Lord shall be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended. Thy people also shall be all righteous; they shall inherit the land for ever; the branch of My planting, the work of My hands that I may be glorified!" (Isa. lx. 18—21).

Digitized by Google

Ought not we who believe in our glorious Identity to derive unspeakable comfort from a prophetic declaration such as this? Apart from our truth what gleam of hope could penetrate the dense gloom that everywhere prevails, and which every moment intensifies? but here we behold a rift in the inky cloud, and through it streams a flood of Heaven's own radiance; while we realise that though "darkness that may be felt" envelopes the Continental peoples, it will be true of us, as of our fathers in Egypt more than 3,000 years ago, "the children of Israel had light in their dwellings."

"Oh! Israel! thou shalt NOT be forgotten of Me;" is the divine message of cheer and comfort to this unworthy nation. And as the recipient of such a gracious promise, though she may have yet to pass through the darkest hour of her national history Israel may rejoice in the knowledge that the millennial glory lies beyond it; and assured of His immutable faithfulness and everlasting love, she may unfalteringly and unreservedly

> "Trust the Lord of Light to guide her people
> Till the thunders pass, the spectres vanish,
> And the Light is Victor; and the darkness
> Dawns into the Jubilee of the Ages!"

THE QUEEN'S NEW TITLE.

WE cannot do better than direct our readers' attention to the following short but satisfactory sub-leader which we find in the London Times of May 7, 1887. The Proclamation, when issued by authority, will announce to the world that the Federation of "the Nation and Company of Nations" is all but complete, and that the House of David has assumed the title of Sovereign, or King, over the whole House of Israel of the Ten Tribes. The Colonial Conference has done a good work. It has paved the way for the Federation in a manner which must fill with amazement those who convened it in the hope of its serving some good purpose. It has been a prophetic meeting of the Colonial Empire of British-Israel and has already planned an efficient defence for the distant Australian colonies, and secured for the outlying "Company of Nations" a Sovereign Head of the House of David, which will proclaim to the non-Israelite nations of the earth that Israel is found, and is about to assume her destined position as heir of the world (Rom. iv. 13). The Times wrote as follows :—

One of the last acts of the Colonial Conference is likely to be not the least memorable record of its work. It has agreed to recommend that the title of Her Majesty should, in recognition of the unity of the Empire, be "Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the Colonies and Dependencies thereof." The proposal was adopted unanimously by the Delegates, and throughout the length and breadth of her dominions there will be but one opinion as to the seemly nature of the proposal, which is expressive of the sincere desire of multitudes. It seems to be suggested that the proclamation announcing the change should be modelled upon that published on November 1, 1858, informing the people of India that henceforth all acts of the Government of India would be done in the name of the Queen. How dissimilar the circumstances of publication! The latter appeared at the close of a fierce struggle over one of the members of the body of the Empire; it was the sign of truce and an offer of grace and amnesty. The new proclamation is the fit crown of a period of profound peace, and is symbolical of the happy truth that never were the relations between the Mother Country, the colonies, and the dependencies smoother and more harmonious than they now are. When Her Majesty was proclaimed Empress of India in 1876, the new title was not received with universal favour. Dark designs were seen in it; predictions, which now seem foolish, of the consequences of "Imperialism" were common. No such criticisms will be heard with respect to the latest addition to her style and title. It is the cover of no perilous policy—it is the record of peace and friendship. It is not disparaging the other work accomplished by the Colonial Delegates to say that this last act is among their most important achievements. In the discussion in Parliament in 1876 on the Royal Title, much use was made of the argument that in selecting India for recognition the colonies were treated with indifference; Lord Sherbrooke in particular pressed this point. Whatever force it had—and it was little—would disappear with the adoption of the designation of Queen of "the Colonies and Dependencies."

So far the Times. The St. James's Gazette, on the other hand, accords only a qualified approval to the proposal, but wants something more simple than the title now to be given to Her Majesty. It wants a name applicable to every part and portion of the Empire—a general term which is to "English, Irish, Scotch, Welsh, Canadian, and Australian, as German is to Prussian and Bavarian." We think we can supply the writer with the term he demands. It is the name, "ISRAELITE." The article was to the following effect :—

The Colonial Delegates are in favour of some modification of the royal title by which the claims of the colonies would be recognised. There is, of course, not the least reason why their wish should not be gratified. It may be hoped, however, that next time some amendment of the royal title is attempted the result may be to make it more simple rather than more cumbrous and complex. It is a pity that we have no single name which would connote any "Anglo-Saxon" subject of Queen Victoria. We want in fact a new national adjective and substantive; but it does not seem easy to find them. Colloquially, we talk of ourselves as Englishmen; but that, of course, would not be accepted, even as sufficient in the United Kingdom, by Scots, Irishmen, or Welshmen. The adjective "British," again, has been accepted, both in America and the colonies, as distinctively applying to the Government and inhabitants of these islands. We want a general term which is to "English," "Irish," "Australian," and "Canadian" as "German" is to "Prussian" and "Bavarian."

THE NEW COINAGE.

THE proclamation recently issued respecting the new coinage that is shortly to be put in circulation includes a double florin, or four-shilling piece. The issue of this coin will bring some consolation to those who, like Professor Piazzi Smyth, dread the gradual introduction of the decimal coinage in preparation for the universal metrical system of weights and measures, as used by the French and other continental nations. For "four shillings is not the tenth of anything—and is not even a division of half-a-sovereign—and so its adoption may be regarded," says the Times, "as a definite renunciation of the decimalists and all their works." The legend, "one-tenth of a pound," now visible on the silver florins, is to be omitted in the new ones to be issued, which is another move in the right direction. The double florin will, however, be an unpopular coin. It will be large, heavy, and cumbersome. The same objection will exist in regard to the five-pound and two-pound pieces it is proposed to circulate; and therefore, being unpopular, we believe these coins, like the double florin, will be little used by the public, and so fall into disuse. Those who look on the alteration of the coinage as likely to favour the decimal idea and the metrical system of British weights and measures, may leave the solution of this peril and difficulty to the God of Israel, who has the matter under His entire control and guidance. He has brought us safely hitherto out of the peril, and He will yet keep His unworthy people from the danger they deserve to incur. With the difficulty, there will always be made a way for us to escape; and we have, therefore, no anticipation ourselves that the metrical or decimal systems some of us so seriously dread will ever be forced upon this reluctant nation; for the Lord God of Israel reigns over His people, and in such a matter His will must and shall prevail. Let Israel, therefore, praise the Lord!

Digitized by Google

BLESSED ARE THE MEEK—AN IDENTITY.

By H. R. Shaw.

The subjoined extract from a leading article appearing in the Daily Telegraph, of May 31st, 1887, seems worthy of notice by readers of the Banner. It appears that the International Arbitration Association have been gathered together a few evenings ago at Exeter Hall to listen to a witty and good humoured lecture by M. Max O'Rell, in furtherance of the objects of the Association, and treating more particularly upon the subject of the differences and possibilities of friendship between the two great nations divided geographically by the silver streak. Much of the lecture as reported seems to consist of a reproduction of the matter contained in the lecturer's book, entitled "John Bull et Son Ile," with which the public is already familiar, but the application of the moral by the newspaper writer is certainly remarkable. The extract is as follows:—

Of M. O'Rell's account of our own tendencies in the matter of warlike enterprise we have no reason to complain. It is satirical, of course; but there is no venom in the satire, and, after all, we can easily foil an ironical compliment by accepting it as serious. The French fight for glory, observes our critic—that is, we suppose they used to do so in their unregenerate days; "the Germans fight for a living; the Russians to divert attention from home affairs; but John Bull, who is a reasonable, moral, and reflective character, fights to promote trade, to maintain peace and order on the face of the earth for the good of mankind in general, and if he conquered any one it was to improve his condition in this world and to secure his welfare in the next." Many a true word, we may remind M. O'Rell, is spoken in jest, and really this is not by any means an inexact account—we do not say of John Bull's motives, for that would be unbecoming, but of the results of his military adventures. The promotion of trade is an achievement which we suppose that even the most grudging of our critics will consent to put to our credit. The epigram, again, about our going to war to maintain peace and order "on the face of the earth" derives its point from what is merely an apparent and not a real contradiction. The lecturer's audience laughed at it, as they did, we are proud to say, at every hit at themselves. We wonder if a French audience would have shown the same power of humorous self-detachment; but, as a matter of fact, the laugh was obtained from them under false pretences. There is only a verbal opposition between making war and maintaining peace. In the order of nature, in the region of facts as distinct from that of words, the former work is almost always a necessary forerunner of the other. Indeed, if M. O'Rell were to flash this epigram of his before a native of Bengal, on whom and whose forefathers a few years of war have conferred a century of the blessings of the British peace, we venture to predict that the mild-eyed Bengali would not see the point. To him the proposition that a war of conquest has resulted in the "maintenance of peace and order," and with them the promotion of happiness in a land to which it had for ages been a stranger, would appear to be no joke whatever, but simply the expression of a patent and most beneficent fact. Other subject races of our Empire might possibly go so far as to demolish another of M. O'Rell's epigrams, and to admit in all seriousness and good faith that British conquest has not only "improved their condition in this world," but done something towards "securing their welfare in the next." The last point, however, is one of too conjectural a nature to allow of our insisting upon it with safety, We will stop short at contending that our conquests have generally resulted, as a matter of fact, in improving the condition of the conquered in this present world, and we only regret that the countrymen of M. O'Rell were so insensible to that compensating accompaniment of our occupation of Egypt. This cause of jealousy, however, is destined, as we hope, at no distant time to disappear. We fully share our French critic's amiable aspiration that the "most brilliant nation in the world may shake hands with the wisest," and that two races who, "in spite of their past and of clashing interests, were formed to respect, esteem, and even love each other, were it only on account of their contrast," may be drawn more closely together in the future.

So the journalist would foil the Frenchman's ironical compliment to our nation's warlike tendencies, by accepting it as serious, and no doubt he is quite correct in so doing; but he is also proud to note the fact that the lecturer's audience laughed at the epigram upon John Bull's apparent contradictions as they did at every hit at themselves, and he immediately questions if a French audience could show a similar temper. The question is not expected, of course, to be answered in the affirmative, but until our neighbours have reached a similar pitch of self-detachment to that of the Exeter Hall audience, it is to be feared there cannot be much chance of the most "brilliant nation in the world shaking hands with the wisest," with any degree of cordiality. And upon reflection such a contingency is Scripturally impossible inasmuch as the journalist has lighted upon a characteristic which is just now almost if not quite unique to our race, and which is none other than the meekness spoken of by King David (Psa. xxxvii. 11), and quoted with a blessing by the Founder of Christianity (Matt v. 5); and if the marginal reference from the latter passage to Romans iv. 13 may be accepted as correct, then the meek to whom is given the inheritance of the earth is none other than Abraham's seed made righteous through faith and not through the law; in other words, Christian Israel, who must according to this have arrived, ere entering upon their inheritance, at such a pitch of self-effacement among the nations of the earth as to be accounted, par excellence, "the meek."

There is no need to write more—the Almighty's promise to Abraham was that his seed should, in a Christian state, inherit the earth and possess the Gates of the enemies; the Psalmist and the Saviour declared that the meek shall inherit the earth; M. O'Rell and the Daily Telegraph have discovered between them what is palpable to every one—viz., a nation meek or ostensibly so, and yet preparing to swallow up all the others and bless them notwithstanding—in fact fulfilling the role of Israel of the latter days. Wherefore this same British nation and Israel are one.—Q. E. D.

24, Ludgate Hill, E.C., 2nd June, 1887.

THE SOUTH AMERICAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

In the report of the South American Missionary Society for 1885, issued last year, a passage occurs near the conclusion which must find a place in the pages of the Banner. The writer of that report must, we think, have had some idea of Our Identity, and permitted his knowledge to leak out in presenting his thoughts to the Society at its annual meeting in 1886. He declared that it is the peculiar mission of the English-speaking people to diffuse their civilisation throughout the world; that in doing this in the most distant lands and under the most adverse circumstances, they have made the desert to blossom as the rose. Other races, he says, have failed to accomplish this. The French, Spaniards, and Portuguese have all essayed to plant colonies after the manner of the British, but failed. The latter alone have laid the foundations of enlightened freedom and true religion in many and distant lands, for the benefit of rising empires in ages to come. Surely in all this the report was drawing the picture of God's people Israel, and unconsciously proving our nation's identity with them! The testimony is that we have nationally been a blessing to all the nations, families, and kindreds of the earth—thus performing Israel's functions. In making the desert to blossom as the rose we have but been doing what Israel was to achieve according to Isa. xxxv. 1, 2; Gen. xxii. 18, xxviii. 14; Acts iii. 25. The portion of the report to which we allude is as follows:—

To carry to the poor wandering Indians the Gospel of peace and the hope of heaven; to supply the sacred ministrations of their old English Church to the thousands of Englishmen scattered throughout the mighty continent of South America, and indirectly to hold up to the admiration and instruction of the native peoples an example of holy living and the type of a purer and holier faith; these have been the objects of this Society—objects which are naturally suggested by the spiritual privileges and the grand and unprecedented dominion which has marked the history of our British Empire. That Empire at this moment comprehends more than one-sixth portion of the earth, and nearly one-fourth of its population; and if America be united to our Empire, they represent a fourth part of the globe, and more than a fourth of the human race. It seems, under God, to be the peculiar mission of the English-speaking people to diffuse their civilisation throughout the world. "They have," as has been well said, "established their laws, their religion, their industries, their system of education, and their code of morals in the most distant lands and under the most adverse circumstances, and made even the desert to 'blossom as the rose.' Other races have not been so successful. Long before the settlement at Jamestown, or before the pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock, the French and Spanish nations planted their colonies in Canada, Florida, Mexico, and Peru. And what has been their fate? They have either remained stationary, or failed to make progress in the essential elements of civilisation." For centuries have the descendants of the Spanish and Portuguese conquerors held the Continent of South America; but so far as Christian civilisation is concerned—the only civilisation permanent or worth having—they have held this great trust only to leave behind debasing superstition, a low morality, and the bloody tracks of constant wars, both with the Indians and amongst themselves.

Digitized by Google

It has been the unspeakable privilege of England's nation and England's Church to show the "better way;" and though, through political antagonism, disloyalty, and unbelief, the nation may be agitated and the Church threatened at home, it is a subject of deep thankfulness to Almighty God that both Church and nation have laid the foundations of enlightened freedom and true religion in many and distant lands for the benefit of rising empires in ages to come.

So far the report. What we wonder at is, that the writer and others who refuse to admit the Israelitish origin of the British, can hold the views the report expresses above in respect to our nation, and yet fail to see who the nation must be which responds to such clearly Scriptural features! For instance, can they not see that this nation, as the report describes it, is the one to which Psa. lix. 13 (R.V.) points. There the Psalmist David, after referring to the case of the wicked, and calling down on them the just wrath of God, proceeds to sing thus: "Consume them in wrath; consume them that they be no more! And let them know that God ruleth in Jacob, unto the ends of the earth." The secret of our success, and the failure of other nations in establishing everywhere "enlightened freedom and true religion," with "our civilisation throughout the world," is that "God ruleth in Jacob unto the ends of the earth," which is just where the British Power to-day has extended!

God guides our nation, and is ever present with it, thus causing us "to dwell alone" (Exod. xxxiii. 16); and the result is that He rules in Jacob, and He makes us to be a blessing to the nations, according to such prophecies as Gen. xii. 2, 3, xxii. 18, xxviii. 14; Isa. xxvii. 6, lxi. 9, and the like: "He showeth His word unto Jacob, His statutes and His judgments unto Israel. He hath not dealt so with any nation; and as for His judgments they have not known them. Praise ye the Lord" (Psa. cxlvii. 19, 20). But He has given us the commission, with our Bibles in our hearts and hands, to go to the ends of the earth, where He rules in Jacob, and there and everywhere proclaim that "God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life;" and to Him must be, and is, and shall be, all the praise from British-Israel, "the seed the Lord hath blessed" (Isa. lxi. 9).

THE poem by Miss Cox in our last issue is now published as a leaflet, on tinted paper, price one shilling per hundred. Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London.

Correspondence.

DAWLEY CIRCUIT.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—When my last letter said, "I do not ask for any more help," and "this is probably my last on the subject," I did not mean that the great distress was removed, nor that I was wearied in receiving and giving relief; but having done all I could, I wished to leave the matter to God and His providence.

Then came donations from yourself and family, with these encouraging lines, "Let me have another letter by-and-bye with more gifts to record." Others wrote me in the same cheering strain, so that I accept it as providential to continue in this work.

I most thankfully acknowledge the following:—

Philo-Israel, 10s.; Mrs. Bird, 3s. 6d.; Miss Bird, 2s. 6d.; Miss K. Bird, 2s.; R. G. C. 10s.; "A Friend from Nottingham," £1; Rev. S. Minton-Senhouse, £1; Agnes Nuttall, £1; John J. Dean, 2s. 6d.; "Food for the Poor," 1s.; J. R. Humphreys, £1; Frances Deane and Sister, 10s.

Last week I visited here sixty-five families from house-to-house, and found at least fifty entire families suffering by local distress. Some had neither money nor food, and many articles of ordinary furniture had been sold for bread. Of course I relieved the most needy. Painful details I now forbear giving. "I was an hungered and ye gave Me meat . . . Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, My brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

Yours in the trials and glories of Israel,

HENRY ROE, Minister.

Dawley, Salop, June 2nd, 1887.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

SIR,—Being believers in the "Identity" doctrine, and regular readers of the BANNER OF ISRAEL under your able editorship, and taking great interest in the subject, my wife and I are desirous in every way possible to diffuse a knowledge of the theory.

Having a son established in the Indigo districts of India, we regularly forward to him the BANNER OF ISRAEL, and after he has read them, he sends them, I believe, to Burmah. By the mail arrived this day, I had a letter from him, from which I beg to annex an extract, as it contains, I think, a valuable suggestion, and perhaps through your influence might be put in train for early accomplishment—though, perhaps others may have suggested the same thing.

I remain, &c.,

W. C. L.

May 2, 1887.

EXTRACT.

"Thanks for the BANNERS you send me so regularly—they are a source of great enjoyment to me. Why don't they explore the Hill of Tara, and excavate it? It would set at rest all doubts on the subject—one way or the other, if they did so.

"The fact of their not taking any steps to explore the mound, leads one to suppose they are afraid of the story of the Princess not turning out to their satisfaction, or that the proofs of her having been Zedekiah's daughter would not be found. I think they are bound to explore the place, as they make so sure of the story being true, and the important link between David's line and Queen Victoria's depends upon that one solution of the problem.

"Is the Hill of Tara private property, or does it belong to Government?" W. C. L.

[NOTE BY THE EDITOR.—The Hill of Tara is private property, and cannot yet be explored, as it is believed to be sacred ground by the peasantry around, and there would be difficulty in obtaining permission to dig up the Hill. Besides, the evidence regarding Our Identity does not depend upon the tomb on Tara Hill; nor would the remains of Tea Tephi, if found, prove our case one iota. If nothing were discovered, such fact could not invalidate the proofs we have in abundance that the British are Israel! "The link between David's line and Queen Victoria" depends, not on Tea Tephi's tomb, but upon Jer. xxxiii. 17, and 25, 26, and the fact, proved by sufficient evidence, that the British nation is the Lost Ten Tribes. We never can understand why people consider that the discovery of the Tomb, if extant, on Tara, in Ireland, will strengthen the proof already existing that the English, Scots, North Irish, and Welsh, are the remnant of Israel, in truth.]

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

A New Work on the Identity of Lost Israel
By the late BISHOP TITCOMB.

Now ready, in Cloth Gilt, Bevelled Boards, Imperial 8vo, Price 3s.; sent Post Free for Postal Order or Stamps.

A MESSAGE TO THE CHURCH
FROM
THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.
BY THE LATE
RT. REV. BISHOP TITCOMB, D.D.

The Kentish Mercury, April 21st, says:—"This book derives a peculiar and pathetic interest from the circumstances that the proofs of its concluding pages were revised by the author during the last few days of his life, and that its publication took place simultaneously with his death. One feels, in noticing a book under such circumstances, a special responsibility, when the author is removed beyond the reach of human criticism of whatever kind. But in truth it is impossible to glance at these pages without being struck by the deep and reverent research into the prophetic Scriptures which it manifests, by the tone of piety that pervades it, as well as the lucidity and eloquence of its style. Nor is it necessary to express concurrence with the views of the gifted and pious author in his prophetic theories to give this praise. Of course with regard to Dr. Titcomb's prophetic interpretations there will be much difference of opinion, but there can be none in the mind of any impartial person who reads this work, either as to the diligence with which he testimony of the prophets has been studied, or the earnestness of the expositor in stating his conclusions. Bishop Titcomb, it is well-known to those who have studied his works, was one of the school of prophetic interpreters who believe that the British Empire, or perhaps, more accurately speaking, the English-speaking race, are identified with those whom we have been in the habit of calling the 'Lost Tribes of Israel.'" [Then follow several extracts.]

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet court, Fleet-st F. W. Parry & Co., Paternoster-row, and all booksellers.

ISRAEL IN THE NEW TESTAMENT
OR,
Proofs of the National Conversion of the Ten Tribes to Christianity.
By SURGEON-GENERAL J. M. GRANT, M.D.

Price 4d., post free, 4½d.; 12 Copies, post free, 4s.

London: R. Banks and Son, Racquet Court, Fleet St. and by order of all Booksellers.

Crown 8vo., wrapper, price 6d.

Where is the Firstborn?

An investigation of the British Claim to Identification with the House of Israel. By the REV. G. A. ROGERS, M.A. Edited by his Widow. Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

"Ably written, well edited, and carefully presented to the readers. . . . We wish it a large circulation."—Banner of Israel.

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-st.

Price 2d., 12s. 6d. per Hundred,

Is Not Queen Victoria the Royal Seed to King David's House, and Are Not Her Subjects, the British People, the Ten Lost Tribes?

By WILLIAM HOPTON,
Colliery Manager (Author of "Conversations on Mines"), St. Helen's.

London: R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

An Elementary Digest or Sketch of the Chief Facts and Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Adapted to the Unlearned and Unscientific 56 pages, illustrated with Diagrams, price 4d., post free 5d. 10th Thousand.

Our Identity with the House of Israel. Price 4d. Reprinted from "Clifton Chronicle Letters"

The History of the House of Israel: How they were Lost, and How they were Found, Told for the Children. Price 6d., cloth 1s.; post free 7d. and 1s. 1d. Fourth Edition. Eleventh thousand

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

Philo-Israel's Leaflets. Four pages Crown 8vo. Price 1s. 6d. per 100, postage 2d. No. 1.—"The Identity of the British with Lost Israel." 2.—"The Glory of God." 3.—An Address to British Seamen. 4.—An Address to British Soldiers. No. 5.—The Communion of the Body and Blood of Our Lord Jesus Christ Viewed in the Light of Our Identity. 6.—The Bible and the Jew. 7.—The Jewish People. 8.—Lo-Ammi; or, the Gentilisation of Ten-Tribed Israel. 9.—The Atonement. 10.—Is Our Identity Evangelical, or Non-Evangelical in its Tendency? No. 11.—Cui Bono? No. 12.—The "Thoughts" of God Towards Israel, Judah, and the Gentile Nations. 13.—The Teutonic Theory. Is It True? 14.—An Address to the Police Force of Great Britain. 15.—An Address to Israel's Missionaries and Their Supporters. 16.—The One Seed, Christ. 17.—An Address to Israel's Electors."

Robert Banks and Son, Printers, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Thoughts for the British Folk.
Suggested by PHILO-ISRAEL.

No. 1.—Multitudinousness.
No. 2.—The Gates.
No. 3.—The Nation and Company of Nations.
No. 4.—British Wealth.
No. 5.—The Rulers Over Many Nations.
No. 6.—The Universal Creditor.
No. 7.—The Ever-Continuing British Monarchy.
No. 8.—The Scattered People at Home in Every Climate.
No. 9.—The Queen, Lords, and Commons.
No. 10.—The Unconquerable Nation.
No. 11.—The Fatally Destructive Race.
No. 12.—The Isolated Nation.
No. 13.—The Nation Which Belts the Earth.
No. 14.—The Emancipators of the Slave
No. 15.—The Christian Nation.
No. 16.—The Ten Commandments.
No. 17.—The Asylum for the Foreign Refugee.
No. 18.—Possessors of the "Sign."
No. 19.—The Universal Missionaries.
No. 20.—Testimony of the Book of Common Prayer.
No. 21.—Church and State, and also Disestablishment.
No. 22.—Our Poor Laws.
No. 23.—The Labour Question is an Identity Question.
No. 24.—Emigration.

London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

Price Sixpence, by post Sevenpence.

Fifty Reasons Why the Anglo-Saxons are Israelites of the Lost Tribes of the House of Israel?

By Rev. W. H. POOLE, D.D.

"There is a principle which is a bar against all argument, and which cannot fail to keep a man in everlasting ignorance. This principle is, contempt prior to examination."—Dr. PALEY.

ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st.

THE TEETH, THE TEETH, THOSE PRECIOUS TEETH!
Save, Purify, Beautify.
GEORGE & WELCH'S
CARBOLINE
1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.
Is the Best Known
Cleanser, Preserver, and Deodoriser.

Dental Guide says:—"No Tooth application equals the Carbolics."

Proprietors: GEORGE & WELCH, Worcester.
Through Chemists or Post Free from Makers.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON,
RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

A CHRONOLOGICAL and GEOGRAPHICAL TREE, Showing the Development of the British Power and the Affinity of the British Nation with the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel, with Scriptural Quotations. Price 8d., mounted and varnished, 2s.

WHO ARE WE & WHAT IS OUR MISSION? By J. Thornhill Harrison. With seven Maps. Handsome cloth, gilt, price 5s. Free for P.O.

PRESENT-DAY PROBLEMS, and How Anglo-Israel Truth Explains and Solves Them. By V. M. COX. 3d., by post 4 stamps.

LIGHT SHED BY THE GREAT PYRAMID OF EGYPT on the Last Days of this Dispensation, from A.D. 1814 to A.D. 1922. By JAMES KEITH. Price 4d., by post 5 stamps.

NEW TESTAMENT TRUTH on the Anglo-Israel Controversy. By J. G. TAYLOR. Price 3d., by post 4 stamps.

A NEW LIGHT. An Elementary Pamphlet for General Distribution. By A E I. Price 2d., by post 2½d. in stamps.

EPHRAIM-ISRAEL, the Pivot Nation of Prophecy and History. By V. M. COX. Price 1d., one dozen free for 1s.

AMMI; OR, THE CHOSEN PEOPLE. By Miss BIRD. Tracing the Descent of the British People from Abraham the "friend of God," and showing that true science, history, philology, and ethnology, are on the side of the Identity of the Anglo-Saxon Race with the Ten Lost Tribes. Price 2d., post free 2½d.; 12s. 6d. per 100 for distribution.

IS NOT QUEEN VICTORIA the Royal Seed to King David's Throne, and Are Not Her Subjects, the British People, the Ten Lost Tribes? By W. HOPTON. Price 2d.; 12s. 6d. per 100.

A Complete Catalogue Free on Application.

BY REV. HENRY ROE.
(Fifteenth Thousand).

1. Israel's World. Origin and Destiny of British Race, Colonies, and Empire. 2d., post free 2½d. "Worthy of a world-wide circulation." H. B. Thompson, Association Sec. 50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.
2. Going to Africa. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.
3. Fernando Po Mission. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.
4. West African Scenes. 2s., post free 2s. 2d.
5. Consecration. 2d., post free 2½d.

50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; and Rev. H. Roe, Dawley, Salop.

ETHELINE

A New and most effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

RHEUMATISM, GOUT,
SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, INDIGESTION, CONSTIPATION, LIVER & KIDNEY COMPLAINTS, NERVOUS DISORDERS, LADIES' AILMENTS, ETC. Promptly Relieved and CURED BY
HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT
ALL sufferers should read "Harness' Guide to Health," free by post, containing copies of Thousands of Testimonials. Every man and woman in search of Health, Strength, and Energy, should at once send a 21s. postal order to the Medical Battery Co. Ltd. 52, OXFORD ST. LONDON, W. and procure one of these famous Belts, and they may rely upon being CURED
Corner of Rathbone Place.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, JUNE 29, 1887 [All rights reserved.

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 549. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, JULY 6, 1887. [DOUBLE NUMBER, TWOPENCE.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
"Hallelujah!" A Jubilee Retrospect of Her Majesty's Reign, and the Glorious Jubilee Itself	269
"There Remaineth Therefore a Sabbath Rest for the People of God."	270
The Lord Jesus Christ's First Sermon	271
The Plagues of Egypt. By John T. Gott	272
British Difficulties	273
The Colonial Empires of Britain and of Foreign Nations Compared	274
The Jubilee at Kadur, in the Mysore State, South India	276
Is the British Throne and Dominion Safe? By W. S. Cavill	277
Lord Wolseley at Southampton on Emigration and the British Empire	279
The Mission of Israel of the Isles	280
The Work of the Colonial Conference	281
Report of the Glasgow Anglo-Israel Identity Association	281
Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund	282
Blind Evidences by Cruden in 1861	283
Israel's Scripture and Prayer Union	283
Correspondence	283

"HALLELUJAH!"

A JUBILEE RETROSPECT OF HER MAJESTY'S REIGN, AND THE GLORIOUS JUBILEE ITSELF.

THE Bristol Times and Mirror, issued on June 18th, a long and interesting retrospect of Her Majesty's life and reign (apropos of the Jubilee celebration on June 21st), from which we take a few extracts which deserve to be reproduced in our columns, as follows :—

The changes that have taken place in our own country are paralleled by those that have occurred abroad. The continent of Europe has been rearranged. The maps issued at the commencement of Her Majesty's reign, are as useless as those of one hundred years ago. France, which has during the fifty years of Queen Victoria's reign, veered from Monarchy to Republicanism, from Republicanism to Empire, and lastly back to Republicanism, has acquired provinces in the South, and lost others in the North. Germany, formerly a cluster composed of petty principalities and states, has become consolidated into a powerful empire. Italy has thrown off the yoke of Austria, and the separate states have become fused into a strong and united kingdom. Even Spain, under its late wise king, has progressed. Portugal is happy in having no history to record. Russia has advanced so far to the East as to be practically in contact with our Indian Empire. Sclavonic nations have separated from Turkey, and if not eventually absorbed by their Northern neighbour have a grand career before them.

In other continents events have not stood still. North America has, at the immense cost of a sanguinary civil war, abolished the slavery of the negro population, and Brazil, in a peaceful manner, is more slowly, but no less surely, accomplishing the same feat. Africa, formerly known as the Dark Continent, has been opened to the light of civilisation. Japan has revolutionised itself; the oligarchy that ruled with despotic power is at an end, and a limited monarchy is now established in its stead. Even China, that most conservative of empires, seems moving in accord with the progress of the Western world; whilst India and the Colonies, many of the latter not being as old as her Majesty's reign, are more closely drawn to the old country than they have ever been before.

During the half-century that her Majesty has held sway over the British Empire, her influence has been in great part personal. The purity of her Court, the absence of political intrigue, no less than her outspoken sympathy with all who have been sick or suffering, have caused her to reign in the hearts, no less than in the minds, of her people; and she has never been less popular as a true, noble-hearted woman than as a Constitutional Monarch, who, whilst maintaining her own rights, has never sought to infringe on those of her people.

In this year of Jubilee the British Empire throughout the world under Queen Victoria, exceeds in greatness and extent that of any other, ancient or modern. Besides Great Britain and Ireland, British Colonies and possessions are as follows:—The Indian Empire, Burmah, Aden, Socotra, Ceylon, Hong Hong, Labuan, British North Borneo; The Straits Settlements, comprising Singapore, Penang, Province Wellesley, Malacca; Cyprus, the Dominion of Canada, Newfoundland, British Guiana, British Honduras, the five Colonies of Australia, as follows: New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, and Western Australia; New Guinea, New Zealand, Tasmania, the Fiji Islands, the West Indies, which include Jamaica, Trinidad, Turks and Caicos Islands, the Leeward Islands, Antigua; Montserrat, St. Kitt's, Angulla, Dominica, the Virgin Islands, the Windward Islands, consisting of St. Vincent, Grenada, Tobago, and St. Lucia; the Bahamas, Barbadoes, the Bermudas, the Cape of Good Hope, the Colony of Natal, Zululand, Mauritius, Sierra Leone, Gambia, the Gold Coast Colony, Ascension, the Falkland Islands, South Georgia, St. Helena, Gibraltar, the Channel Islands, Heligoland, and the Isle of Man.

"God save the Queen—all nations
In this great prayer unite—
And crown her coming eventide
With rays of heavenly light!"

So far the Bristol paper. During one of the meetings for prayer held in Clifton, June 20th, in anticipation of the splendid event which will make Tuesday, June 21st, 1887, ever memorable in the annals of Israel, the chairman, the Rev. Vicar of Clifton, made mention in his concluding prayer of the unique fact that the British nation had rapidly developed by the enlargement of her colonies into "a company of nations," all of whom were Christians and Protestants. He thanked God for this, and sought for them grace from above to enable them to offer Him the praise due to His name. It was strange that a divine who saw this, and acknowledged the fact in the presence of His Maker, was unable to discover that a nation so blessed is blessed as God said He would bless the after seed of Abraham. As God cannot change or lie, the consequence is manifest, that the British, who in this unique manner are in possession of one of the chief of the Abrahamic promises must be of the seed of Abraham, but not otherwise. The prayers offered on this and other occasions were most fully answered. The great and splendid success of the Jubilee commemorations has been proof that these prayers were heard. God has given such an answer to His servants' requests, that the day passed off without accident or injury to our beloved Sovereign, her family, and guests. The Jubilee service is of Hebrew origin and the fact that our whole nation threw itself heartily into that celebration, is an evidence of some value that the British are Israel. The object of the celebration was the performance of a national, religious, Israelitish act. It aimed at the acknowledgment before God, that by His directing care, and blessing, the British Queen had concluded fifty years of a prosperous and happy reign; also that the end of that period finds the empire infinitely greater, grander, richer, holier, than it was when it began. The deeply interesting details which we have all been reading of the circumstances of the celebration, show us that the people love their Queen, and that the Queen respects her subjects and their rights, and knows the value of their love and allegiance. The story of that day's proceedings is, regarded from an Identity standpoint, most affecting and encouraging. In the first place the weather was bright and cheerful. It was Queen's weather. The sunshine was uninterrupted the whole day; tempered, however, by a North-East breeze, which made the hot, blazing, sun less trying than it would have been had that been a calm, instead of a breezy summer's noon. Not a hitch, not a misfortune damped the joy of the United Kingdom, and it was remarked throughout the country, North, South, East, and West, that the people in their millions were orderly, good-humoured, sober, law-abiding, and courteous throughout the week. Kings and Princes—European, Asiatic, and Australasian—came to this land from immense distances from beyond sea to do honour to Israel's Queen (Isa. lx. 3). Princes were her body-guard—and her own sons and sons-in-law—a gallant, noble band, surrounded her, who had yet a stronger defence—even the love and loyalty of a united happy people—nay, the strong arm of the Lord God of His chosen ones, to safeguard and defend her from the dynamite and the dagger, which were so daringly threatened against her life. God defended and saved our Queen from all harm—Her people and the princes of Israel were her defence, upon her right hand and on her left. Shall not we, Israelites, who prayed so earnestly that she might be kept safe, join in one loud shout of praise to Him who heareth prayer, and who calls for our praise when He shows towards us His shining face and saves us? "Turn us again, O God," has been our prayer, "and cause Thy face to shine, and we shall be saved." He has graciously turned us again as a nation, and given us, as a people, improved and more sober habits than we had in 1837. Now has the Lord caused His face to shine on us in the matter of the Queen, and our own national Jubilee; and we justly regard this as a foretaste of that blessing the Lord is ready to bestow upon His chosen ones,—even that salvation which is promised to them nationally in Jer. xxxi. 33, 34, and Heb. viii. 10—12.

Digitized by Google

The lessons we have to learn from such a Jubilee as that we have just celebrated, are, first, the stability of our monarchy. It has lasted a thousand years, and is as dear to the nation now as ever. It is David's sceptre over Israel, and therefore God has provided that it shall lovingly unite the people by its righteous character. In France there is no stability, because no guarantee from God that that nation's government shall last in any form. Fifteen years are declared by French writers to be the average length of any system of French Government. Hence we have seen poor France pass through various changes in a hundred years. First, as our journalists observe, from a Monarchy to a Republic; then to an Empire; to a monarchy again; next to a second Empire; and lastly to a Republic once more. It is an incalculable blessing to have such a Monarchy as ours, beloved by the nation, blessed of God, guaranteed to exist for ever, because it is that of "David's over Israel," and exists for God's glory. Israel, praise ye the Lord and shout aloud for joy, for all the blessings He has so graciously given you during the late joyous time of our beloved Queen's glorious, happy, Jubilee! and let Him have all the praise.

"THERE REMAINETH THEREFORE A SABBATH REST FOR THE PEOPLE OF GOD."

THESE words were addressed by St. Paul in the Epistle to the Hebrews, "to God's people," Christianized Israel. A careful perusal of Heb. iii. and iv. will clearly prove that. There the references are entirely and exclusively to the history of the children of Israel. The Mosaic allusions in chap. iii. 3—6, 16—19; the quotation from Psa. xcv. 7—11, addressed to Israel; the comparison between Israel of old and the Hebrews of St. Paul's day in Heb. iv. 1—5; the statement regarding the High Priest in ver. 14, as compared with the great High Priest, the Lord Jesus Christ; all these prove that chapters iii. and iv. of this Epistle particularly deal with the children of Israel, but not with the Gentile Church, as we are so often taught by the teachers of our establishment. The word "rest" occurs in our A. and R. Versions as the translation of the Greek noun (and derived verb) katapausis—a "cessation" or "ceasing," in chap iii. 11 and 18; and iv. 1, 3, 4, 5, 8, 10, 11. Eight times is the word repeated, and in each case this same one was selected by the Spirit of God to explain His meaning. But when he wished to describe the future blessedness awaiting "the people of God,"—that is, "Israel"—he used quite another phrase—not katapausis, but Sabbatismos, "a keeping of Sabbath"—as reserved for them. St. Paul coined a word in fact to express his meaning, and he took it from the Hebrew vocabulary to show us, we believe, that the Lord has reserved the thing specified for the children of Israel (and those joined to them)—who are alone "The people of God," according to the testimony of the inspired Scriptures. "These people of God" are existing to-day, not only in Great Britain but in South Africa, and New Zealand; nay, in all parts of the earth where the Lord has scattered them. They are those of whom St. Peter wrote in his first Epistle ii. 9, R. V., where he called them "an elect race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for God's own possession, that ye may show forth the excellencies of Him who called you out of darkness into His marvellous light, which in times past were 'No people,' but now are 'The people of God, which had not obtained mercy, but now have obtained mercy." This passage is only a translation into Greek of the general Hebrew description of the Ten Tribes as given us in Hosea i. 8, 9, 10, and of "Israel obedient" in Exod. xix. 6. "God's "elect race" are "His chosen ones," and 1 Chron. xvi. 13, tells us distinctly that these were "the seed of Israel;" but not otherwise. Therefore "there remaineth the Sabbath rest for the children of Israel;" they did not obtain it under Joshua, as Heb. iv. 8, admits. The Sabbath-keeping rest is therefore future even now, as it was in St. Paul's days; it is reserved for "the people of God," British-Israel, as their inheritance in the time yet to come.

What is the "Sabbatismos?" Surely it is the glorious hope of Israel's return to the Land of the Inheritance to welcome the King of Israel, Jevohah-Jesus, there; and never to cease to be "the people of God" from that time and onward (Ezek xxxvii. 22—28). Surely it is to realise that great change to come over the whole nation of Israel, as distinguished from Judah, which Jeremiah and St. Paul both so accurately describe—the one in the Hebrew tongue in Jerem. xxxi. 33, 34; and the other in Greek in Hebrew viii. 10—12; which Ezekiel also pictures in prophetic language, very literal in its signification, too, in Ezek. xxxvii. 14. The new covenant blessing which will baptize Israel with the Spirit of God (comp. Joel ii. 28), will transform the nation in such wise that they will then enjoy the "Sabbatismos," or "keeping of Sabbath," in the land which is to be their happy portion, according to the prophecies.

Digitized by Google

To apply Heb. iv. 9, to the Christian Church gathered from all nations, or to tell us that the promise of the keeping of Sabbath is to be the future portion of "the people of God," meaning the true believers in Christ everywhere now, is, we think, to take the heart and meaning out of St. Paul's argument, and to do despite to the sworn promises of God to His chosen or elect people Israel, who only are "the people of His choice." St. Peter's words in his 1 Epistle ii. 9, already quoted, declare that his reference was to a holy or separated nation, (not to scattered believers); to a people for God's own possession —that is, a purchased and redeemed people; and who can those be but the Ten-Tribed House of Joseph, in the face of such texts as Deut. iv. 20, Zech. x. 6 to 9, and many others like them familiar to our readers? The people of God are therefore a redeemed people; and the testimony of 2 Sam. vii. 23 and 24, R. V., is that the redeemed ones are Israel only. "What one nation in the earth is like Thy people" (is the declaration), "even like Israel whom God went to redeem unto Himself for a people, and to make Him a name and to do great things for you, and terrible things for thy land. . . Thou didst establish to Thyself Thy people Israel, to be a people unto Thee for ever; and Thou Lord (Jehovah) becamest their God." This is also the statement of Isa. xliii. 1 and xliv. 6. We ask, then, where in the Word of God can it be found that any other nation but Israel is God's chosen, purchased, redeemed, separated people—named by His own Spirit "the people of God"? We know of none. We declare, then, that to the people of Israel, therefore to the British people, and to all who join themselves to them out of the Gentile non-Israelite races, there remaineth in the Land of the Inheritance a keeping of Sabbath, or Sabbath-rest, to God's glory.

THE LORD JESUS CHRIST'S FIRST SERMON.

In an article published in Banner, Vol iv., page 47, on Feb. 4th, 1880, and written by the Rev. A. J. J. Cachemaille, the respected Vicar of Oldham, there appeared under the heading, "Our Lord's Mission and Commission" (Isa. lxi. 1; Luke iv. 17), some very excellent remarks on the subject of our Lord's first discourse, on the first named text in Isaiah, preached in the Synagogue of Nazareth, His native place. The writer did not mention the fact that our Lord only read Isaiah lxi. 1 to 2—closing with the first sentence of the latter verse, but omitting the words, "And the day of vengeance of our God." Why did He omit these words? Because those He addressed were not concerned with the "Day of vengeance of Jehovah," but had their portion only in the comfort, deliverance, and rescue promised to the Hebrew people, to whom those He spoke belonged. They were probably moreover of the House of Israel, and the blessings were promised to them, but not to the other branch of it, the House of Judah.

But when they realised that He would perform no miracles there, they became filled with rage and envy. They required the Lord to do among them the great and miraculous works they heard were done among the people at Capernaum on the borders of Galilee of the Gentiles. Our Lord's answer exasperated them, for He showed them that in former times the aliens were blessed, but Israel of the Ten Tribes missed the blessing. In the days of famine in Elijah's time, for instance, the widow of Sarepta, in Sidon, was fed; but no widow of Israel was so distinguished, and in Elisha's time, the leper, Naaman, the Syrian, was healed, but no Israelite leper was cleansed!

The Gospel of the Grace of God was however to be preached to them in the place where He was brought up, but His fellow villagers rejected it, and probably never heard it again after their bloodthirsty attempt to destroy Him, when His gracious message to them, founded on Isaiah lxi. 1 and 2, was rejected.

The Lord's sermon, in fact, described His own "mission and commission." It clearly had reference to the House of Israel, then in banishment, and not to the remnants of that House joined to Judah which resided in Galilee of the Gentiles. The language used referred to a Hebrew people, blind to their origin—poor, oppressed, and meekly submitting to their degradation; to the broken-hearted. To them as such He came, in the technical language of Levit. xxv. 10; Jer. xxxiv. 8, 15, 17; Isa. lxi. 2, and lxiii. 4, to "proclaim liberty to the captives." Our Lord went accordingly to the Ten Tribes. He rejected Nazareth. Capernaum, Chorazin, and Bethsaida were cursed with terrible woes (Matt. xi. 21—24). But to outcast Israel He was sent, and His commission He thus described:—

"The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me,
Because He anointed Me to preach good tidings to the poor,
He hath sent Me to proclaim release to the captives,
And recovery of sight to the blind,
To set at liberty them that are bruised,
To proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord" (Luke iv. 18, R.V.).

In Isa. lxv. 1, R.V., it is recorded that the Lord did according to the prophetic statement, "I am inquired of by them that asked not for Me. I am found of them that sought Me not—I said, 'Behold Me, behold Me,' to a nation that was not called by My name" That nation was not Judah, or the Jews, for "the kingdom of God" was destined to be "taken away from them and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof" (Matt. xxi. 43). Those to whom the Lord went were "the blind," and who is blind but My servant? or deaf as My messenger that I send? who is blind as he that is at peace with Me, and blind as the Lord's "servant"? (Isa. xlii. 19, R.V.). These were the House of Israel as distinguished from the House of Judah, whose character was ever that of the rebellious House (Isa. lxv. 2; Ezek. ii. 3, 6, 7).

The question now comes forward for reply, Has the Lord's promise to Israel and His mission and commission for their benefit been fulfilled? Not yet!

The gospel has been preached to the poor and meek of Israel. He has "proclaimed liberty" to the enslaved people of the house of Israel. But He has not yet restored them to their land, the forfeited possession. The blind are not yet a seeing nation, and the bruised are still held captive by Satan and their sins. "The acceptable year of the Lord" is preached continuously from ten thousand pulpits, but still the people are in captivity, and the return of Israel has not taken place. What prevents the fulfilment of the Lord's gracious purposes? The sentence that in Nazareth the Lord refused to utter, must be carried out, and then Israel will be restored, the blind eyes will then see; the liberated captive will then go free, and the land will again welcome its people. "The day of vengeance of our God" upon the Goim or Gentile nations, must come first; and then will "He comfort all that mourn" to "appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them a garland for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness" (Isa. lxi. 3, R.V.).

"The day of vengeance" that is to befall the Gentile non-

Digitized by Google

Israelite nations, may be seen described in Zeph. iii. 8; Isa. xxvi. 20, 21; Mal. iv. 1—3; Isa. xxxiv. 1—15; Rev. xvi. 18. These terrible judgments overpast, then will the Lord remember mercy towards His people, restore them to His favour and to the land which He hath promised to their fathers for an inheritance (Jer. iii. 18).

THE PLAGUES OF EGYPT.

By John T. Gott.

The wise man hath said, "The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done, is that which shall be done; and there is no new thing under the sun" (Ecc. i. 9).

Under many different forms, and by many different writers, this idea is continually reiterated in the pages of Holy Writ.

The history of Israel in Egypt is strange, mysterious, yet marvellous issues were involved. It seems to be—prophetically—a graphic outline of Israel's history in the world in the latter days: i.e., what took place in Egypt nearly 3,400 years ago, is a prophetical outline of what we may anticipate to be experienced in our days, not in Egypt, but among the nations of the earth; Egypt, at this early date, evidently indicating the world in miniature. Then, remarkable men were raised up (Moses and Aaron), men endowed with much power and wisdom, and dwelling richly under divine favour. They were raised up at a time when the Israelites were in deep trouble and distress, when hope was almost extinguished. But there was a divine object in this, for it is written, "The Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, when I stretch forth Mine hand upon Egypt, and bring out the children of Israel from among them" (Ex. vii. 5). Precisely the same thing is to take place in the latter days, when the Lord "shall set His hand the second time to restore the remnant of His people which shall be left from Assyria, and from the islands of the sea" (Isa. xi. 10—16).

The plagues that fell upon Egypt were regarded as national calamities: so we must anticipate corresponding national calamities among the nations of the earth ere the God of Israel shall be known, Israel identified, and restoration times begin. These plagues were peculiar in their character, and each aimed a decisive blow against the most prominent forms of Egyptian idolatry. They were blows, smitten with a suddenness that startled the people, with a rapidity that alarmed them, and with a climax that utterly confounded them. And this was done that the Israelites might know, and the Egyptians know, the Holy One of Israel. The plagues "were eminently adapted to impress the unreflecting, and to instruct the thoughtful." In the Egyptians we see the world-power of that era, a great military power, confiding in horses and chariots of iron. They were face to face with a seemingly weak people, but with a people who were multiplying and increasing at an alarming rate. They had spread all over Egypt. From being slaves—a captive people—some had forced their way into positions of power and influence, and we find one in the palace of the king—"one who was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in words and in deeds" (Acts vii. 22). Prophecy declares that in the latter days, two nations, shall, in the same manner, stand face to face with each other, in Bible terminology, "Gog v. Israel." Time changes all things. Old nations, old diseases, and old things, are now known under new names. We look abroad to-day, and see a nation, Rnssia, with a tremendous land force (as the Egyptians had), a nation striving for world-wide supremacy, and they are face to face with a people who have spread over the world in precisely the same way that the Israelites spread over Egypt. And this people have gained power, wealth, and influence throughout the whole world, and a strange fact to contemplate, is, they have a prince who is connected with the palace of the Tzar.

One general remark may be made about the plagues of Egypt. They were extraordinary events, national calamities: but so long as the magicians could do what Moses and Aaron did, there seemed to be nothing marvellous in the miracles. But a plague came which they could not imitate (Ex. viii. 18); and then they acknowledged "This is the finger of gods," for "they spoke as heathens." And as the plagues increased, and the "wise men" were powerless to stay or cure them, the Egyptians were gradually compelled to admit that there was only one God—the Holy One of Israel.

The unsettled state of the times, and the ominous cloud in the Eastern sky, are absorbing the attention of politicians and theologians throughout the world. Strange events may be anticipated any day. Russia, the modern Gog, is seeking allies, and they are all armed to the teeth, but Israel, the "silly dove," is literally helpless. Her people are scattered throughout the whole world, her land and sea forces similarly spread abroad, and we seem now to be an easy prey, just as the Israelites seemed to be to the Egyptians of old. But, let them not reckon without "the covenant-keeping God of Israel." Then the Israelites experienced hard and bitter times, and similar times must be experienced again, and for the same reason, that the heathen may know the people whom the Lord hath blessed, and thus shall Our Identity with lost Israel become established.

The plague of darkness calls for a passing thought. It could be felt: it lasted three days: "the longest night the book of God specifies." It rested over all the land of Egypt, "but all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings."—So is it now. Israel-Britain has "light" on the destiny of the Empire, light on the future of her people: "light" on the hitherto dark pages of prophecy: "light" on the true meaning of the "signs of the times:" but the Gentile nations of the earth, like the Egyptians of old, do not seem to understand this in the least. And this leads us to reflect that "blindness in part" hath happened to Israel, a development of the "horror of great darkness" which fell upon Abram. What can be more gloomy than the grave? Yet this is Ezekiel's description of lost Israel in the dark valley. Now it must be remembered that not many of the Israelites had much faith in Moses and Aaron. Their troubles, instead of becoming lighter, became worse than ever, and yet restoration times were close at hand. The hand of God was at work; His servants were at hand: the time was ripe: and the enemies of Israel were jubilant over a supposed easy victory. So is it now, in these latter days, with Israel-Britain. In our national history, there never were such times as we have just passed through. And during this identical period, identity truth has been quietly forcing its way, and has become known to every intelligent man in the country. But, with what result? Not many of the Israelites in Egypt believed in Moses and Aaron! And not many now believe "all that Moses and the prophets have written." There is an idea very prevalent, that prophecy long ago "spun itself out." It is a very erroneous idea, but one that has taken firm root, producing outrageous indifference to Bible truths, and forming sad impediments to Identity teaching.

Those who believe in the inspiration of the Scriptures may easily see the hand of God in history, and especially British history, if they can read between the lines. National calamities are the direct result of national sins. It does not necessarily follow that in these latter days national calamities will take the same form as befel the Egyptians. The times are changed, but "the finger" of Jehovah may still be seen manifestly at work. Amid the many tokens recently vouchsafed to the watchers in Israel, we single out one which arrested the attention of the whole world: which held, for a time, all the nations in Europe in breathless suspense: one in which the "finger of God" should have been seen, felt, and acknowledged, but we are afraid was not, owing to the ignorance that abounds with respect to the literal meaning of the predictions of the prophets. We refer to the time when the Russians (the Gog of the Bible), anxious and eager for world-wide supremacy, marched down to seize the Gate of Gates, Constantinople. But a mysterious hand led Israel-Britain's Queen* into close proximity with the king of the North, which was a decided and most unmistakable "check."

Digitized by Google

The political chess-board of Europe was then so complicated that there was only one move left—Retreat—a retreat speedily effected—without a shot being fired, or a man lost. "Turned back," is the Bible phrase. Russia will make similar attempts to achieve her object. She will renew the role of Sennacherib of old, and like him, the war will meet with similar rebuffs. "I will put My hook in thy nose, and My bridle in thy lips, and I will turn thee back by the way by which thou camest" (Ezek. xxxvii. 29).†

It will be observed that Pharaoh the oppressor endeavoured on several occasions to compromise matters with Moses and Aaron. First, he would let the men go: then he would let the people go and their little ones, but not their flocks, which brought the reply from Moses that "not a hoof" should be left behind. This was too exasperating for such a despot. "Get thee from me," said he. "Take heed to thyself: see my face no more" (Ex. xi.). This was the final conference. Israel-Britain has had her conference with Russian-Gog, but the final is yet to come. During the plagues, indifference and unbelief among the Israelites gradually succumbed. They were "signs of the times," and the Israelites clearly saw the predictions of Moses verified, and this brought about a time when they became unanimous, willing to hear, and ready to obey. "Moreover, the man Moses was very great in the land of Egypt, in the sight of Pharaoh's servants, and in the sight of the people" (Ex. xi. 3). This unanimity of feeling and action symbolises Federation in the latter days.

(Last plague.) He "called for all the elders of Israel," and gave them instructions respecting the preparation that was to be made for the "night of observations"—"a night to be much observed unto the Lord" (xii. 42). Of all the night-scenes recorded in the Old Testament, this is the most memorable and the most solemn. "None of you shall go out of his house until the morning" (ver. 22). And the result was to be that God would give them the land promised to their forefathers, after He had smitten the Egyptians, and delivered His people Israel. Condensed, we have in all this, "obedience, faith, humiliation, and deliverance." Now comes an end of all human agency. "At midnight, the Lord smote all the first-born in the land of Egypt," &c. (29—30). And there arose "a great cry" in Egypt for there was not a house where there was not one dead.

The "light" we have at the present day ought to make this instruction plain and practical. Danger looms ahead in the threatened European war. Israel-Britain's safety lies in Federation, the necessity of which is plainly understood both at home and in the Colonies. The "Elders of Israel" are symbolical of our Parliamentary Houses, the governing body of the Empire, and in the leaders, when the time occurs, we most look for men with remarkable characteristics. There will be ready obedience to their dictates throughout the empire. The dangers encompassing the empire on all sides will be so great that it will bring about a day of national humiliation and prayer, for it is predicted that at this particular time Jehovah "will yet for this be inquired of by the House of Israel to do it for them" (Ezek. xxxvi. 37). And as the Israelites at this set time were not to go out of their houses till the morning, so Israel in the latter days is divinely instructed to act in the selfsame way. "Come, My people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors (Gates) about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. For, behold, the Lord cometh out of His place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity" (Isa. xxvi. 20—21). The agitation existing at the present time respecting the defence of our coaling stations (Gates) is a manifest sign of the times. There arose a great cry in Egypt during the night, but peace and quietness reigned in Israel: "not a dog moved his tongue against man or beast:" for the Lord "put a difference between the Egyptians and Israel" (Ex. xi).

In prospect of a European war, there are many who persist in the opinion that we must be drawn into it. But being Israel-Britain, we cannot, as this is the Lord's work, and it is so predicted. And if "a great cry" rose up from the land of Egypt on that dread night, what will be the wail of woe that will rend the heavens when that brief but destructive conflict takes place between millions of men on the battle-plain of Europe. May the dark gloom of midnight soon give place to the dawn of that bright day which shall bring deliverance and restoration to the remnant of all the Tribes of Israel, and universal peace to all the peoples of the earth!

May, 1887.

* The British Fleet.

† "Pharaoh the Oppressor" may be seen in a glass case in the Bulag Museum, and we may now stand face to face with the figure of the King who was alarmed at the multitudinous character of the Israelites, the king whose daughter adopted Moses, the king who sought to slay Moses. (vide "Scribner's 19th Century" for May, in which will be found an interesting account of the finding of Pharaoh). Those who believe in the writings of Gall, Lavater, and Fowler, will also find a graphic description of the personal appearance of "the King who was worshipped as a God."

"BRITISH DIFFICULTIES."

THE Russian Press is making itself happy by anticipations of the growing difficulties with which the British Empire is apparently environed, and predicts that as we grow weaker and weaker their own national prospects will become brighter.

A specimen of the kind of thing which is now appearing in Russian papers we give below, taken from one of our provincial journals lately. We must clearly be in a bad way if the Russian accounts be even approximately correct. Thank God we know them to be far from that! Our quotation is as follows:—

A RUSSIAN ESTIMATE OF ENGLAND'S DIFFICULTIES.

In an article headed "British Difficulties," the Odessa Listok, one of the leading South Russian papers, makes out a most gloomy case for England. The principal theme of the article is the Anglo-Turkish Convention with reference to Egypt, which the Listok says "will not be agreed to by the European Powers." Sir Henry D. Wolff's and Sir William White's success at Constantinople is accounted for thus:—"Thanks to gold—so at least the foreign papers believe—Sir H. D. Wolff and the British Ambassador at Constantinople, Sir W. White, have won over Turkey to the side of England, and concluded the Convention by virtue of which Egypt will be given over to the exclusive power of John Bull." The article goes on to say that, among the many difficulties England is groaning under, the Irish question is practically as much as she can manage; and as there will be a considerable party in the House of Commons who will object to the Convention, not to speak of the serious opposition by the leading European Cabinets, England will be forced to give way. After remarking that "Sir W. White is strongly agitating for the re-election of Prince Alexander to the Bulgarian Throne," the article winds up by referring rather exultantly to the Irish evictions, in which Michael Davitt could so defy the British power as to be present and superintend the resistance to the British law—"an example showing plainly the inherent weakness of England"—and informs its readers that on the occasion of the Queen's Jubilee celebration the Irish dynamite party in America "intend to give a series of 'pyrotechnic' displays in honour of the event in England." Exultation over our apparent difficulties, and a hope that they will be too much for us, is the general feeling of the press in Russia.

We cannot, any more than the Russian paper, anticipate how the Anglo-Turkish Convention is going to terminate; nor are we aware that it will be abrogated by reason of our domestic difficulties in Ireland, or because the European Powers will object to it. The weakness of the British nation, as exhibited in its dealings with the contemptible Irish difficulty, is, of course, a serious matter, because that weakness is caused, not so much by the strength of the Irish rebellion as by the seeming inability of the British Government to use the enormous powers they already possess, but will not, or can not exert. How the dynamite party were purposing to punish us during the Jubilee rejoicings is not now worth considering. The thing is matter of history. It was found they were impotent to injure, or perhaps had no heart to make the attempt, in the face of an entire nation's congratulations offered to their beloved Sovereign, and of that Sovereign's solemn acts of worship and thanksgiving to the Lord God of Israel, for His wondrous blessings granted her during her fifty years of glorious reign over His inheritance, Israel. What we desire to notice now, is the fact that we are, as a nation, surrounded with difficulties, and those difficulties are clearly of God's own creation.

Digitized by Google

These are, as the Russian journalist says, the problem of Egypt, where we are in possession, but wish to depart out of the country as soon as we decently can. We seem ready to yield to the clamours of France and of our own ultra-Radicals, and are prepared in three years to throw up all the advantages of our position at present, and leave Egypt to ruin, our road to India insecure, with not a single commensurate advantage to follow, which any sensible person can recognise.

Then there are the Irish difficulties. We have admitted Irish Papists into the House of Commons as our equals, and the result is, that Government by free Parliament has become a by-word,—the freely elected Parliament of a free people cannot call its soul its own, and is obliged to follow meekly the rabid minority of Irishmen, led by the ex-Prime-Minister of England! All Legislation is at a standstill in consequence; even the business of Ireland these Irish patriots (?) will not allow to be transacted, and as to the domestic affairs of England, Scotland, and Wales, they never permit them to be so much as approached! As to the Irish evictions, it is quite true that women with boiling and dirty water have put to flight police and soldiery sent forward by the Government to defend the majesty of the law; and we present to the foreign world a sorry figure, indeed, when it is admitted as a fact that we cannot make the Queen's writ "run" in many parts of Ireland; and that even when the soldiery of Great Britain stand up, the authorities are afraid to call upon them to put their hands on the rebellious unarmed crowd before them! All these things are difficulties, but all are from God. He has brought each upon us for a purpose—a purpose we cannot yet see, no doubt, but which will be apparent enough ere long. In all this, God is doing by His people Israel only what He said He would do, in Isa. xlii. 16, when He declared—"I will bring the blind by a way that they know not; in paths that they know not will I lead them: I will make darkness light before them, and crooked places straight. These things will I do, and I will not forsake them."

It is God, then, who is leading us, His people Israel, in the present dark and critical crisis in which we find ourselves nationally; but we know what the end will be, and, therefore, need not fear. What is darkness now will ere long be light; and the places which look crooked now will become straight, because, being Israel, God has said He will do these very things to us: but will never, never, no never leave us nor forsake us (Josh. i. 5; Heb. xiii. 5, R.V.).

The Russians may gloat over our apparent helplessness in the matter of Egypt and of Ireland, but they will find in the future, as in the past, that the lion can stand up and roar when the crisis comes, and then Russia must submit, and find herself a conquered foe, for the Lord God of Israel, her God as well as ours, has judged her, and will yet put her under Israel's feet. Quite recently Russia deemed the access to India was gained when she made the advance to Pendjah, and Herat seemed within her grasp. But that very success raised such a shout of loyal defiance from every native tribe, and Hindu and Mussulman potentate, from one end of India to the other, that she must have been convinced that Hindostan may be threatened from the North-west, but never can be torn or wrested from Israel's hands, and fall into her own. Russia must conquer God Himself, and destroy "the power of His work," as Psa. cxi. 6 teaches us, before she can hope to take the heathen from the Lord's Christ, and from His inheritance Israel, and make their lands her own! Israel, praise ye the Lord for all His distinguishing mercies to your unworthy race! You are in His care and safe-keeping! Live, then, as those so highly distinguished should and ought to live!

THE COLONIAL EMPIRES OF BRITAIN AND OF FOREIGN NATIONS COMPARED.

A THOUGHTFUL and fair exposition of the subject of our "British and Foreign Colonial Dependencies" appeared in the Scotsman of January 29th. The views of the writer must find expression in the BANNER, though he had nothing to say to Our Identity, and spoke of the colonies of our continental rivals with respect. He pointed out blots in our management of our own military possessions, which put us at some disadvantage. He admitted, to begin with, that our own nation is by far the most extensive colonial Power in the world, but pointed out that France and Germany are determined to be our rivals, and are working hard, with success, too, to acquire military possessions everywhere, that shall intercept our trade, if they do not supplant us altogether. They are beginning, says the writer, to discover that their own plans for Outland Empires were not in past time founded on correct principles, but that the British succeeded because they deserved to succeed. They have lately, therefore, followed our lead, and are endeavouring to secure possessions beyond sea, which shall, like ours, yield them commerce, wealth, and colonial possessions of a valuable kind. The writer of the notice in question quotes a M. Valbert, a Frenchman of ability and intelligence in the domain of colonial matters. His words are complimentary to our nation, but he and the French in general are resolved that they will, in future, imitate us, and strive, at any rate, for a large share of the supremacy of the sea, as well as for the dominion of foreign territories, from which they see we derive much of our wealth, influence, and power. The following are some suggestive extracts from the article in question:—

> The position of Great Britain is without precedent in the world's history. Mr. Valbert accounts for it by saying, "Les Anglais ont été mis au . . . monde pour dominer sur les mers comme les abeilles pour faire du miel." This is very complimentary, but the French have an eye to a share in this dominion, and are ceaseless in their vigilance in every quarter of the globe to obtain it. Englishmen, also, have been known to speak lightly of some of their possessions, as if they had been secured without trouble, whereas they have all been acquired by the concentrated efforts of the most vigorous of the race during successive generations. Now the work is done, it is easy to say that in founding colonies or commercial settlements our emigrants and merchants only followed where their interests and inclinations led them; that they emigrated and traded to better themselves, and not to extend the power of Great Britain; that, in fact, they only pursued their natural vocations. While French writers tell us the British Empire has become powerful because the British race was born to rule the sea and to colonise, they are alive to the fact that possessions have first to be acquired by Governments, and held by a strong arm, before they can be available for colonisation, if not for trade.

This last sentiment is one which we hope our readers will note. Governments must acquire lands and hold them by force of arms before such can become colonies or marts for trading, or localities where the Gospel of Christ can be peacefully propagated. The flag must precede the Gospel, as trade also follows the flag. For lack of this power, which is of "the earth, earthy," we cannot extend the Gospel to Afghanistan, for instance. But where the British dominion extends, as over Hindostan, Burmah, the Fijis, and North Borneo, there the Missionary can stand and preach Christ, no man forbidding him. The protection of the flag goes first, then the power to trade, to colonise, and evangelise the earth and its inhabitants follows. The writer in the Scotsman recognises the fact that the French as colonists are wanting in "surplus-population." But he observes that this is no hindrance to the acquisition of "possessions which Europeans only hold for trading purposes and for the ends of Empire." The French seek not for colonies so much (like Australia), but for "suzerainties where they can manipulate trade"—for Gates, in short, like Gibraltar and Malta, Singapore and Hong Kong, which, aided by fleets and powerful armies will "always suffice for such work" as they desire to do. One of the reasons why we British have succeeded in founding a Colonial Empire, but the French have comparatively failed, is described by the writer in the following words:—

Digitized by Google

The acquisition of territory is an easy matter compared to the keeping of it. Mere success in arms would not have given Great Britain her position to-day if she lacked the necessary qualities to deal with the possessions she acquired. Her old and time-honoured home institutions have developed in her sons certain habits and beliefs, among which loyalty to the crown and detestation of bureaucratic meddling are the most prominent; they love to be left alone without Governmental interference, but under the flag. One of the main characteristics of British rule, in colonies of British race, is that the people in these dependencies regulate their household and internal affairs after their own fashion, as much as they please. Keeping in view the main objects of empire, British statesmen have, on the whole, in recent times, tolerated and even supported the social customs and religion of every alien people under British rule; and where British civilisation and institutions are making any way among alien races, it is because the people themselves desire the change. All the races under the dominion of the Queen are, consequently, in sympathy with her Crown, because under it they believe their interests and hopes will, on the whole, be secured to them and their posterity. Neither racial affinities, nor similarity in language, nor identical beliefs and habits of life, can so surely knit an empire together as a persistent force which attracts all equally from its unquestioned superiority of administration, its justice, and undoubted benefits conferred, and which never seeks to crush out what is honestly believed and cherished by any considerable section of a people. The British nation of itself never countenances wrong, and there are societies established to uphold and vigilantly guard the rights of aborigines, and to see that no injustice is done to the weak. Nowhere else have ever such things been seen. It is more easy to commit a wrong deed and to be oppressive in almost any country in Europe than in the most obscure and distant possession under the British flag, due to this public opinion.

The following are sentiments worthy of notice—

If there is a divine power which points the road a nation should follow, and writes empire on its brow, there are also some qualities expected from the fulfilment of this great career; it cannot recede from its acquired position without moral degradation; if it fails it will be because it deserves to fail. There have been nations holding possessions comparatively as widespread as the British, but they have left no traces that have survived their passage. In such cases a close study will show they became unworthy, they held lightly to their responsibilities, they conferred no benefits, they respected no time-honoured institutions, they had no influence over the home-life of the people they were among, and therefore could have none over the future of the race, and their power has faded away like the baseless fabric of a dream. Nations have sometimes so tyrannised over their dependencies that their own offspring have turned on them. The just and vigorous have left their mark for ever in the centres where they had their seats. There are no want of examples in history to warn and to encourage. If the British Empire, as it now stands, reposes on the goodwill of the several peoples composing it, who are all equally interested in the maintenance of its power as the surest bulwark of their common rights, yet, with the facts history before us, it would be folly not to perceive how necessary it must be to vigilantly guard this inheritance in its integrity—integrity meaning not only the right of empire, but its duties, which comprise the rights of the people. There have already been losses, and we know the danger of them. The rivals of Great Britain looked eagerly to see her stagger under a blow. These rivals of British power know better perhaps than the people of the United Kingdom, how the loss, if not by conquest, by their falling into decay, of any colonies and possessions would be the draining of so much life blood. When we come to regard all the British colonies and dependencies from a true standpoint, future difficulties will be much lessened.

Most other nations—all those that have failed—have looked on possessions, especially those that have happened to be distant or inhabited by alien races, as being outside of the nation itself, and they have often been treated from a purely mercenary point of view. The result is seen in the eventual loss. The British Government, happily, is inclined to follow another system, although it has not always done so. The British people themselves respect in fellow-subjects of other races what they most value at home. But this very faculty of desiring to make the interests of all in the one empire identical, increases responsibility by making any loss the greater felt.

So far the Scotsman. All this is very interesting reading. But it entirely puts on one side the dominant fact which really rules this question. That fact is British Identity with Israel; also our possession, therefore, of all those blessings and qualities which go to make ours the ruling, colonising, world-blessing race. Given these, and our position is accounted for. We have gained the colonies, and the boundless possessions we retain at this hour, because we are Israel, to whom such were promised. We have, besides, all that the writer in the Scotsman describes as national pre-requisites to qualify us for our position, and to make our acquisition and retention of our colonial empire easy, natural, and rational. To no other nation have such blessings and their results been promised. If it seems likely for the moment that France and Germany are about to become powerful Colonial Empires, then we must recall the past history of France, and remember that she once promised to become a mighty North American, Canadian Power; that the Mauritius was colonised by her; that India once was likely to become French; that she had a large interest in Egypt; but that all these countries have passed into the power of God's people Israel.

So it will be again, we believe. The power that France and Germany are acquiring in foreign lands will be difficult to retain, what time the Great Earthquake Woe ravages the European continent. Then we expect that these nations will be forced by distress at home to relinquish all their outland dominions, causing them thus to lapse, as India and Canada, and the Mauritius have lapsed, to the seed of Abraham, the heir of the world; for whom the Lord the God of Israel will then ordain peace, according to the prophecies (Isa. xxvi. 12, R.V.). Let Israel, therefore, praise His gracious, glorious Name!

THE QUEEN'S LETTER OF THANKS.—The following letter from the Queen has been received by the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Home Department:—"I am anxious to express to my people my warm thanks for the kind, and more than kind, reception I met with on going to, and returning from, Westminster Abbey, with all my children and grand-children. The enthusiastic reception I met with then, as well as on all these eventful days, in London, as well as in Windsor, on the occasion of my jubilee, has touched me most deeply. It has shown that the labour and anxiety of fifty long years, twenty-two of which I spent in unclouded happiness shared and cheered by my beloved husband, while an equal number were full of sorrows and trials, borne without his sheltering arm and wise help, have been appreciated by my people. This feeling and the sense of duty towards my dear country and subjects, who are so inseparably bound up with my life, will encourage me in my task, often a very difficult and arduous one, during the remainder of my life. The wonderful order preserved on this occasion and the good behaviour of the enormous multitudes assembled merits my highest admiration. That God may protect and abundantly bless my country is my fervent prayer."

Digitized by Google

THE JUBILEE AT KADUR, IN THE MYSORE STATE, SOUTH INDIA.

THE Daily Post is a newspaper published in Bangalore, Mysore State, India. On March 1st, it issued an account given by "a native correspondent" of how the Queen-Empress' Jubilee was celebrated at the little town of Kadur. It is a remarkable history. The rejoicings were got up by natives, paid for by natives, intended to be witnessed only by natives, and yet at the chief ceremony of the day the President of the proceedings, a native officer of the Revenue service, the Amildar, delivered a first-rate speech in English, which by accident was listened to by a young English officer of the South Mahratta Railway Company's staff, and pronounced to be an admirable address. Mr. Srinivassa Rao (for that is the Amildar's name), acquitted himself so well that we desire to reproduce his speech for our readers' information, to prove to them the kind of thing our education is effecting in India among the educated classes of native gentlemen; and that they may see how loyal and true were the sentiments of this servant of a native Independent Prince in regard to the British Râj. Before we quote the speech we think a few words explaining how the Jubilee was celebrated in that small out-of-the-way town outside British Territory, will amuse and interest our friends. The committee of management (all natives):—

1st. Fed the poor of all classes and ranks in Kadur.

2nd. They put up a flagstaff in front of the Image in the Temple of Channakasavadavaru as a permanent memorial of the day!

3rd. They held sports for the school children, and gave treats also of sweetmeats.

4th. They gave cloths to the poor of all classes.

5th. They held a grand Durbar in honour of the day, at which the Amildar, Mr. S., made his speech.

6th. They illuminated the fronts of all houses at Kadur at night.

7th. They carried the Idols of Kadur in procession all round the place.

To carry all this out, the municipality voted 150 Rs. (£15) and private subscription gave 100 Rs., or £10 more. The villagers, besides, paid the cost of their own almsgiving. They fed accordingly 2,160 people of all classes, ages and sexes. At the sports the sum of 10 shillings (Rs. 5) was spent on prizes! Fourteen people received cloths. One hundred boys and others received treats in sweetmeats; but the grand sight was the illuminations at night! Kadur never saw such a sight as that before! But Kadur would do the thing handsomely! mark that! Then came the Durbar! Everything gave place to that! Quite 200 people were there!! Mr. B., the assistant railway engineer, was specially invited as he arrived at the place unexpectedly that morning. A salute of 101 guns were fired by some Sepoys present. Two (!) prisoners were released by order of the Maharajah in honour of Her Majesty's Jubilee, and the Amildar made the following observations, first in English, and then in Canarese, for the benefit of those who did not know English! He said, inter alia:—

GENTLEMEN,—I am sure that all present in this assembly realise the character of the occasion on which we have met. It is an occasion which many of us have never before heard of. Moreover, it is an occasion which it does not fall to the lot of people of every generation to witness, and it is one which seldom if ever, occurs more than once in one's life time. We are met here, as you all know, to commemorate the joyful occasion of Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria, Empress of India, attaining the 50th year of her singularly benevolent rule. This Sovereign Lady unites in her person the office of the Ruler of Great Britain and Ireland with that of the ruler of the vast Empire of India. Though the foundations of the English rule in India were laid in the time of her predecessors still the work of consolidation dates from no earlier period than that of her accession to the rule. It may be metaphorically remarked that though the seeds were sown in former years, it was reserved for Her Majesty to see them germinate and become young plants, it was reserved for her to water them and otherwise nourish them so as to enable them to arrive at a bearing state. To enumerate the various blessings derived from English rule in India would be a needless task; for there is none but knows and feels what those blessings are. We know and feel that our life and property are safe, and we can enjoy them in any manner that best pleases our fancy. This, it may be said, is no more than what we have a right to expect from any government to which we may be subject. But let us consider whether we had from previous governments what we have now learnt to regard as no more than our right. We learn from our old people that it was the general custom of the country even for rich families to live in poor houses and to expose outside their houses, to the public gaze, the coarsest kind of grain, in order to conceal the real circumstances of their position. They had to bury their wealth under their hearths. All this was done to save what was their own from the needy grasp of their wicked neighbours. Now any person may fearlessly parade his wealth in the shape of palatial buildings and magnificent vehicles of locomotion. Instead of burying his wealth under ground often to find that his wealth is no more, he may now publicly employ it in such a way as to multiply it to any extent that his wit can reach. We performed our journeys before at snail's pace, by vehicles of the clumsiest construction. We can now whirl along in mechanical conveyances, and at a speed which we may justly say annihilates time and distance. When our friends left us on a journey to a distant place, we ceased to hear of them till they came back to us again. We can now exchange thoughts with them in whatever part of the habitable globe they may be, and that, with the swiftness of thought itself, in fact we now feel as if separated from them only by a thin screen.

Perhaps the greatest of all good that we have derived from England is knowledge in its various departments, which we have acquired by means of English education. This education has admitted us into what I may call a museum, where the richest gems of intellect that ever world produced are stored,—gems, whose power to promote the happiness of mankind and to do good, otherwise is unlimited and unsurpassed by anything under the sun. All over India, there are men who have imbibed large draughts of Western education in all its varieties—men who, from being mere nonentities, have by the power of education, been made so strong as to be able to compete with those from whom they originally derived their strength.

These men, not satisfied with the privileges extended to them, are clamouring for more, in the fulness of their confidence that they are deserving of more. What a contrast to our former existence, when we used to be treated by our rulers as little better than slaves! What a mighty triumph England has achieved, in that she has been the means of not only making her Indian subjects deserving of what she can bestow upon them, but of emboldening them to ask for more!!

We of Mysore have certainly more reason than the subjects of any other State in India to feel grateful to England for the favours conferred on us. Having taken up the direct administration of the country at a time when nothing short of what was done could have adequately met the then condition of things, she has corrected the defects which existed, improved the administration so as to bring it to a perfect level with that which obtains in the British Provinces, trained our beloved Maharajah for the efficient performance of the arduous work of administration, and in a spirit of disinterested generosity, whose value it is impossible to overrate, restored the country to the rightful native dynasty which long ruled it. Even had she stopped here, she would have done enough to entitle herself to our lasting gratitude. No, she did not stop here. Half measures would never content her. With the act of restoring the country to native rule, she has not withdrawn her protecting arm from us and our beloved Maharajah. She allows us still to rest ourselves in peace and security under the shadow of her divine flag, and guarantees to us a non-recurrence of those evils of maladministration which at one time rendered her direct interposition necessary. Have we not mighty good reason to think ourselves specially favoured?

All these blessings, and others too numerous to mention, have we enjoyed under the benign rule of Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria. There is something peculiarly interesting in the idea that it should have been reserved for a woman to dispense to us blessings such as no other sovereign either before or after her ever did or ever will dispense. But she is no ordinary woman. She is a lady endowed with the richest gifts that nature or education can confer, and she possesses, in its highest perfection, the power to win the hearts of all her subjects. This power consists chiefly in the general simplicity of her nature and in the sincere sympathy which she is ever prone to feel for the slightest affliction that may befall to any living creature. For the possession of these inestimable qualities, it is likely she is in some measure indebted to her sex. If for instance we had a male sovereign, equally good and kind as Her Majesty, we are not quite sure we would have felt equal love for that sovereign. As it is, we are unconsciously led to love her. Even the meanest peasant—the most illiterate and ignorant peasant—feels a sort of pride glowing in his bosom, when he observes to another "Yenu, Idu Rani Dowlat Itey," "what, this is Queen's reign." We love her more as a child loves its mother than as a subject loves his Sovereign. We feel as if there were a peculiar charm in the name Victoria. Indeed, it looks as if some prophetic angel suggested the name when she was christened; for her whole life has been one grand series of glorious victories nobly achieved. Oh, how we wish we could see her with our eyes, and throw ourselves down at her feet! But this is not to be. It is a happiness which we are not destined to enjoy. Let us therefore transport ourselves mentally though not bodily to England and there behold her. Let us all pray to God, from the inmost depths of our heart, to preserve for us, for many, many years to come in all health and prosperity, this treasure of our Sovereign, our august mother, Queen Victoria, Empress of India.

Digitized by Google

So far Mr. Strinivassa Rao, the Amildar! He made a capital and a loyal speech, and one which we quote because we desire our readers to see first how the blessings of our rule are appreciated by intelligent natives; next, what a blessing our English education has been to them; and finally, how after his fashion this Hindu fellow-subject of ours blindly proves that the British are Israel, by showing that in India we have dispensed untold blessings, "blossoming and budding and filling India with fruit" (Isa. xxvii. 6). To the Lord Jesus who has given us India be all the praise! (Rev. ii. 26, 27.)

IS THE BRITISH THRONE AND DOMINION SAFE?

By W. S. Cavill.

The present century has been marked by rapid and marvellous progress. The prolonged peace which the overthrow of the would-be despot of Europe on the plains of Waterloo secured, has yielded grand and auspicious results. Thenceforward the pillars of European society rested on a firmer basis. Freedom rejoiced in its release from the oppressive thraldom of ignorance and superstition. The aspirations of humanity have since been directed to loftier spheres, and the burden of life's daily task has found embodiment in the numerous and varied institutions, the inauguration of which has been a leading feature in the history of the past half-century, and the objects and work whereof demand our admiration at this hour. Knowledge has rapidly spread, scientific investigations have moved apace, arts and industries have wonderfully improved, trade and commerce have received world-wide extension, and the power of Gospel truth, in witnessing fulness, has been felt in every known land. In the political world, too, great changes have taken place, and these are of such a nature as to be exerting gigantic influences at the present moment. The absorption of small States, and the uprising of large ones, are too important elements in recent and passing history to be overlooked. Thus the rapid march of Russia over wild and difficult regions, and the consequent strong aggregation of States under the autocratic rule of the Czar, forms one striking illustration; while we have again the consolidation of Germany, and the independence gained by Italy—the last named event being accompanied with the repression of the temporal power of the Roman Pontiff.

But great as has been the progress made by the civilised nations of the earth in general, the progress which Britain herself has made has been truly greater, and has formed a theme for anxious consideration to many of her sons. When the century opened, the population of Great Britian was under eleven millions; at the last census, (1881), the population of the British Isles was more than thirty-five millions, and that notwithstanding the ever-moving tide of emigration to distant lands. In the United Kingdom and the colonies there will be a population of more than fifty millions, and which is ascertained to double itself in forty years. From owning two-and-a-quarter millions of square miles when Her Majesty ascended the throne, Britain has passed to rule over a territory of nearly nine millions of square miles. And our responsibilities, in this respect, are continually increasing, in spite of the adverse principles which have again and again been put forward from different sources. Nearly sixty territorial divisions are comprehended within the empire, many of which enjoy some form of government of their own—in some cases, as in Canada, the Governor-General alone being chosen by the Crown.

From these few facts, we must recognise the importance of the position which Britain holds in the world, and be prepared for the considerationof the varied questions associated therewith. Two distinctly opposed views are held by those who seriously reflect upon these facts. There are those, in the first place, to whose minds reflection brings dark and unwelcome forebodings. They regard the sun of British prosperity as having passed its meridian altitude. They look back into history and read that Assyria, Babylon, Persia, Greece, and Rome, have all fallen, each succeeding empire being larger and more extensive than its predecessor; and from hence they reason that Britain's turn to sink in the scale of nations must inevitably draw near, and that no very distant future may witness her giving place to the United States, or some other invigorated Power. We simply need to remark here that there is a very marked difference between Britain's position in the world and that enjoyed by her predecessors. She has been, and remains, the pioneer in the path of progress, in civilisation, freedom, and truth, taking up her position on the side of religion; whereas the empires that have passed away were purely military in their character, holding the subject peoples under despotic rule.

The supporters of the opposing view to the preceding, look with pride upon the strength, power, wealth, and dominion of Britain. They look upon her as the pioneer in the path of civilisation, as the friend of the cause of freedom, and the champion of truth. They recognise with pleasure her advance in the acquisition of new territories, and the dissemination of her influence over the earth. It is to them a matter of profound pleasure that the English language bids fairly to come into universal use at no very distant date, a result which is being accelerated by the marvellous increase of the Anglo-Saxon race. British law and British customs are finding favour, and gaining assimilation throughout the empire. They would have security established in all parts of the Queen's dominions, and in promotion thereof welcome the scheme, now under development, of Imperial Federation, as the welding together for high and beneficial ends of the now separated and disunited sections of the empire. To this they look as leading largely to the consolidation of our power, to the increase of our wealth and comfort, and to the promotion of the world's truest interest, that of peace.

Such is the confidence expressed; but whence is it drawn? What is the basis whereon we rest for the permanence of our power, our wealth, and our influence? Why are our minds withdrawn from the consideration of the fate of preceding empires, as though Britain had some specially granted charter?

If we take the ordinary view of events we must own that the ground thus taken up is untenable. Such an assumption demands a very high sanction. That sanction can alone come to any people from the Supreme Ruler over all, who has declared, "I will work, and who shall let it?" (Isa. xliii. 13).

Digitized by Google

Has any such sanction been given in His dealings with mankind? This is the crucial—the important question. History gives a distinctly affirmative answer, and prophecy affords abundant, rich, and glowing confirmations.

Firstly, the promises to Abraham and the confirmations in the prophets are most distinct and clear. Abraham was to become "a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth were to be blessed in him" (Gen. xviii. 18). Jehovah declared He would be with Jacob until all was accomplished (xxviii. 15). This doubtless included the development of Jacob's seed into "a nation and a company of nations," as unfolded later (xxxv. 11). Joseph's blessing was rich and world-embracing, both as conferred by Jacob and Moses (Gen. xlix. 22-26; Deut xxxiii. 13-17). To Ephraim and Manasseh were given special blessings (Gen xlviii.), and we must look therefore to their posterity for the realisation and enjoyment of the birthright inheritance. What do we find, then, in history? The Ten Tribes were in revolt after the death of Solomon, led by Ephraim, successful in their efforts, because having the divine sanction (Kings xii. 24), and taking to themselves the name of Israel. Under the influence of their newly chosen king, the revolted Tribes entered upon a course which led to their complete estrangement from the service of their covenant God, and their history in Old Testament times is marked by such a declension as led eventually to their removal from off the land (Hosea i.), as Moses had foretold (Deut. iv. 26). Under the constraint of the Divine Power they passed into exile, and so must they remain (Amos ix.i-10). Yet, though hidden from human recognition (Hosea i. 9), still preserved (Amos. ix. 9), and that for a definitely assigned purpose (Isa. xlix. 8, 9). In their exile they would be brought to the enjoyment of the rich blessings which were comprehended in the promises made to the fathers, and all that they might be placed in the position to shew forth the praises of Jehovah (Isa. xliii. 21; and see also Isa. liv. 1—3; Mic. v. 7, 8). Carefully reflecting upon the prophecies which follow: Hosea i. 10, 11; Isa. liv. 4—10; Jerem. xxxi. 31, 37; Isa. xi. 11, 14; Ezek. xxxvii. 11—23, do we not see clearly that the House of Israel, which to human view has been lost, is to be assuredly brought back, and inherit with Judah the land of sacred promise. Wherever they are they will have Jehovah as their sanctuary (Ezek. xi. 14—16). Wherever found, it will be as "the chief of the nations" (Jer. xxxi. 7). When they return it will be as "the righteous nation" (Isa. xxvi. 2), having the glory of God upon them (lx. 1, 2), under the terms of a new and everlasting covenant (Ezek. xxxvii. 26).

Considering that by all students of the prophetic word we are deemed to be now living in the last days, where shall we look for the nation of such peculiar favour and blessing? Where can we find it, but in our own race? And if this be so, do we not see the folly of holding gloomy views of our future? Rather we should be grateful to our covenant God for the abundant tokens of His favour, and labour to fulfil the mission entrusted to us.

Secondly, the promises to David are equally clear and distinct. Jehovah would build him an house (2 Sam. vii. 11). His posterity might err, and be corrected, but Divine mercy would not be removed, but his house and kingdom would be established for ever (ver. 12—16. His seed did err, and God punished them, but He himself provided for the perpetuity of His servant's House, as distinctly stated in Ezek. xvii. The argument which deals with this highly important matter is too intricate to treat of here, so the reader is referred to an excellent work entitled, "England the Remnant of Judah and the Israel of Ephraim," by the late Rev. F. R. A. Glover, M.A. The work will repay perusal, and should lead to the conviction that our own beloved monarch can be none other than the lineal representative of David's House. The preservation of the seed of David in the sceptral sway has the same grand security as that of the elect seed—the oath of Jehovah (see Jer. xxxiii. 17—26). And if this be so, what do we see to-day? Even the exact fulfilment of what is declared—namely, that under the shelter of the branches of the goodly cedar should dwell fowl of every wing. And are not the trees of the field truly recognising the exaltation which has been given to the once tender plant? And let those who would fain take up lines of opposition to God's anointed, beware; for it is written, "His (David's) enemies will I clothe with shame; but upon himself shall his crown flourish" (Psa. cxxxii. 18).

We thus give two most valuable truths. The nation and the throne of Britain are both secured, being under the safe keeping of our covenant God. Whatever may be the conflicts of surrounding nations, no harm can come to our race. God, indeed, may correct, and correct severely. Yea, He has even said that He will correct His people in measures, not leaving them wholly unpunished (Jer. xlvi. 28). The nation has the promise of 2 Sam. vii. 10, but the individual must not slacken effort in attention to his duties, for while the time tarries for the outpouring of the Spirit, when Israel will be brought to know their God, "from the least to the greatest" (Jer. xxxi. 31—34; Isa. xxxii. 13—15), there rests over us a declaration of Divine purpose to take away from us the rebels, and them that transgress against God, and that they "shall not enter into the land of Israel" (Ezek. xx. 38). Let us, then, shun all semblance of idolatry, cast forth from ourselves all strange doctrines, cling to the simple testimonies of the written Word, and so seek to be truly waiting for God's appointed time.

Having the aid of this Divine light, we, as British-Israelites, look on passing events, not only with confidence, but with the assurance of a strong and unyielding faith in the promises of God. Britain's position in the world is, in our view, the exact fulfilment of what was fore-declared to the Fathers. With our fellow-countrymen we rejoice in the numerous signs of abiding strength. The progress made with the question of Imperial Federation—the presence of the colonial representatives in the capital of the Empire for purposes of high State policies—the additions continually being made to our territorial possessions, are all verily signs of the approaching consummation. Nor does the threatening war-cloud in the European firmament disturb us. This also is a sign equally expressive. And wherever we turn, we behold these signs in grand and effectual accumulation.

But these are only means to the attainment of a mighty purpose. Israel is truly great; but why? We should never lose sight of the reasons—the "great and mighty nation" into which exiled Israel has developed exists that, by the instrumentality of the greatness, and power, and wealth, and privilege, and influence, thus vouchsafed, the mission work of the Gospel may be truly and effectually accomplished. But for this, no elect people would have been summoned into existence. And therefore to us does not belong the glory, but unto Him through whose wonder-working our nation stand at this hour as the foremost in the path of progress, and in the championship of freedom and truth.

THE LOST TEN TRIBES OF ISRAEL.—On Monday evening, May 2nd, Surgeon-General J. M. Grant, M.D., gave a lecture on the above subject to a large audience at St. Peter's parish room, Lee-Green, the Rev. R. J. Simpson, M.A., vicar of St. Peter's, Eltham-road, presiding. Dr. Grant sought to show, in the course of his lecture, that the dispersed Ten Tribes are to be found in the Anglo-Saxon race, and advanced various theories, supported by certain prophecies, to substantiate this view. At the close of the lecture, which was of about one hour's duration, discussion was invited, but the only person to accept the invitation was the Rev. Mr. Williamson, of St. Mildred's, Burnt Ash, who put a question to Dr. Grant as to whether the German nation could claim also kindred with the scattered tribes, which was answered in the negative. A vote of thanks to the lecturer, proposed by the chairman and duly accorded, followed by the Benediction, closed the proceedings.—Lewisham Gazette.

Digitized by Google

LORD WOLSELEY AT SOUTHAMPTON ON EMIGRATION AND THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

We take the following report of a lecture given some weeks since at Southampton by Mr. Arnold White, under the auspices of Lord Wolseley, who was in the chair (the subject being "Free Emigration"), from the Southampton Times and County Newspaper and the Hampshire Advertiser :—

FREE EMIGRATION.

On Thursday evening the Lecture-hall of the Hartley Institution was crowded to hear a lecture by Mr. Arnold White upon the subject of "Blacks, Boers and Whites," a scheme for free emigration, privately aided, to the Cape of Good Hope. General Viscount Wolseley occupied the chair, supported by the Mayor (Alderman H. Coles), Canon Wilberforce, and Colonel Lynden Bell.

The noble and gallant Chairman, who received quite an ovation, briefly introduced the Lecturer, saying there was no man in the kingdom more qualified to speak upon the subject to be brought to their notice than he was, as, at great trouble and inconvenience to himself he had gone out to the Cape, and put people in the way of gaining their own livelihood and improving their prospects in life, establishing themselves in a healthy and prosperous country to their own comfort and the credit of the nation to which they belonged. (Applause).

Mr. Arnold White said he should try to make it clear, in the first instance, why English people must forthwith take steps to organise on a new basis, and with greater determination than hitherto, a system of colonisation. In this country there were only 72,000 square miles, and the acreage was not increasing. There were over thirty-seven millions of human beings, who were increasing at the rate of 330,000 per annum, and there were 330,000 babies who came into the world naked, hungry, and bringing no land with them. (Laughter.) The mouths were increasing, but not so the means of livelihood. Until recently they held the supremacy in the manufacturing markets, but they now had to compete with the ability and machinery of all the nations of Europe. They had also an inroad into England for foreign paupers, which did not exist in any other civilised country. Half-education had made people discontented, especially amongst the agricultural labourers, who were crowding into the towns, which seemed to exercise a magnetism over them like magic. In London, the greatest city in the world, crowds of hungry men fought every morning at the dock gates for work, which could be given to one out of ten, and he had seen men pick up from the road traffic-stained crusts and eat them ravenously, while a well-fed animal would have refused them. Girls worked at cigar-rolling for 4s. 6d. per week, upon which it was impossible for them to maintain themselves decently. Then there were the sweating tailors, who worked fourteen hours a day, with barely sufficient to keep body and soul together. Such a state of things was wholly unnecessary while they had such a magnificent inheritance as the Colonies, won by the bravery of the soldiers of the past and present day. (Applause.) The question was where to go, and he enumerated our foreign possessions, and how we became possessed of them. After laying down certain rules for successful colonisation, he explained the reasons why he chose South Africa, believing it to be best suited for village settlements. He hoped to receive the names of twenty-five families from Hampshire. Each man must not be over 40, would be allowed five children, must have a knowledge of digging or agricultural work, and undertake to abstain from intoxicating drinks. (Applause.) Their passage money would be paid, they could take their household goods, they would find huts built and furnished for them, knives, forks, carts, oxen, cocks and hens, an allotment of forty acres partly cultivated, so that work could be commenced at once, with common rights over 2,500 acres. Rations would be served to them for six months, and at the end of twelve months they would begin paying back what had been advanced, and this would be applied in assisting other emigrants. Measured by time, he pointed out that the Cape was no farther from London than Edinburgh was 100 years ago, and as to the voyage, he would rather go to the Cape than from Dover to Calais. He referred to the Kimberley diamond pits, from which four tons of diamonds had been dug, worth forty millions of money.

Lord Wolseley said he had listened with intense interest to the very interesting lecture which had been delivered, and the lecturer had travelled over a great portion of the country in South Africa which was well known to himself (Lord Wolseley). He had on two or three occasions in his career as a soldier been engaged in duties of various sorts in the Cape of Good Hope and the adjacent provinces, and he could testify to all the lecturer had said as to the health of the country and its climatic advantages. The subject of emigration was one that had always been of the greatest importance to England, as shown by the great disproportion which existed in regard to the acreage of these two small islands of ours as compared with the lands and provinces belonging to the empire situated in various other parts of the world. Those great possessions—our colonies—had been created by us, and had been built up for us, at various times, dating back for a great number of years. They had been produced almost invariably by great wars, which had been followed up by emigration and by colonisation. The subject of emigration was one of the greatest importance to England, because, remembering what a small and insignificant island ours was of itself, and how small and insignificant a Power we should be if we were deprived of our possessions abroad, we could realise what a great calamity it would be, whether through any extreme folly on the part of ourselves or our rulers, if we were to break up this great empire, which had been built up by the courage of our soldiers and sailors, and which had been afterwards consolidated by the emigrants who had gone out from this country to seek prosperity and happiness in distant climes. But if this colonisation had been of great importance in the previous history of the nation, never had it been of such importance as at the present time. The lecturer had adverted to the difficulty experienced in obtaining employment by large numbers throughout the country, and if they went to any of the great centres of population they found a great craving for labour, in order to obtain an honest and proper living. This was a subject altogether distinct from party politics, but it was impossible not to see that there were two prominent subjects before the minds of the English people, and which presented two great difficulties which we were struggling to get over—one was the difficulty in Scotland as to the Crofters, and the other was the land difficulty in Ireland; and he believed that the only one great cure for these difficulties was to be found in emigration. (Applause.) It was to him melancholy to think that our rulers and governors, who were supposed to be, above all things, English people, should allow the present condition of things to exist; that hundreds and hundreds of thousands of people should be craving for employment or for land on which they could not support themselves or their families, while abroad, under the British flag, there were thousands upon thousands of acres which had never yet been touched by the plough. It was the duty of our rulers, then, to take measures whereby our surplus population could be to a great extent removed from our shores in the manner described by the lecturer, and anything done in that direction might considerably lessen the difficulties in dealing with the two great questions to which he had referred. (Applause.) He remembered some years ago the present Lord Derby said that the English people would be more prosperous if we had two million people less in these isles. Of course they made allowances for differences of opinion on the question; but they could not get rid of the fact that we had an over-teeming population, while the land was incapable of supporting the people. The poverty existing amongst a large number of the people was undeniable, and where there was poverty there was a temptation to crime. In the reference which Mr. Arnold White had made to the colony which he had planted, he had displayed the greatest modesty, as he had made no reference to himself; but he (Lord Wolseley) should like to incidentally allude to the great part which that gentleman had taken in establishing a prosperous colony at the Cape of Good Hope. If he was addressing any who were inclined to accept Mr. Arnold White's invitation to go out, he would impress this upon them, that they must not do so in the expectation of finding any royal road to success, comfort, and happiness, any more than he could do in this country. Success in any of our colonies or in any foreign possession had to be achieved by hard work, energy, and determination. (Applause.) Where a man was not diligent and thrifty there would be no success in life. A man going abroad must carry with him the determination to work, which had been one of the best characteristics of the English race, wherever that race had penetrated. But although colonists might live on most intimate terms with the natives, and regard them as an inferior race, they could take lessons from many of those whom they regarded as barbarians. The Zulus were as virtuous a body of people as could possibly be imagined until some of the white traders introduced their intoxicating liquors. Up to then the Zulus were a most prosperous people. He hoped, therefore, that if any persons emigrated from Southampton and its neighbourhood, they would by their example and exhibition of Christian virtues endeavour to obtain the respect of the natives with whom they were brought in contact. It was too much the habit of white people to try and lord it over the natives, because they knew themselves to be superior in bodily strength, courage, and endurance; but it was by no such lordly manners that they would succeed in ingratiating themselves in the affections of the people with whom they would have to mix, and, moreover, they should be careful to take no mean advantage of any of the natives in their dealings with them—truth and justice being characteristics which should always be pre-eminent. Then let those who emigrated carry with them the great sentiment of love to the Mother Country from which they had started. (Cheers.) Remember that we all belonged to a great empire. At the present time the English-speaking race bade fair to become the predominant race in this world; and he thought they were justified in looking forward to the time, which he believed to be a no very distant one, when the largest proportion of people who spoke any one language in the world would be those who spoke the English language. Therefore he hoped that wherever the English people went they would never cast off entirely the rope which joined them to the country from which they had come. It was of the greatest importance, not only in regard to the greatness of the empire in a national point of view, that the nation should be prosperous, but also in the interests of humanity and civilisation. As the home of freedom, and freedom of institutions, this country, in the interests of mankind and of civilisation, should be foremost in the world. The Queen's Jubilee would not be celebrated simply in these islands of ours, but in almost every latitude and longitude of the earth. (Applause.) He only hoped that those who emigrated to South Africa would so act that they would do honour to the greatness of the country from which they came, and that whatever was done would be done honestly and justly, and in such a way as would tend to strengthen the bond which united the various portions of the great empire to which we had the privilege of belonging. (Loud applause.)

Digitized by Google

So far Lord Wolseley.

Our readers will notice how closely his lordship came to the Scriptural description of Israel when he described the British empire. He noticed that our race bade fair to become "the predominant race in this world." But this was to be Israel's destiny (Deut. xxviii. 1 and 13). He said that our English language would soon become the language of the largest proportion of the people of the world. But as the language must follow the race, he plainly indicated by his words that, in his view, the British would be more numerous than other races. This, however, was God's promise to Israel (Gen. xxii. 17; Hosea i. 10). In the latter part of his speech he pointed to this as a great nation and empire, whose various portions would be and were united or federated. The promise of God to Jacob was, "A nation and a company of nations shall be of thee" (Gen. xxxv. 11).

THE MISSION OF ISRAEL OF THE ISLES.

"THE Isles afar off" from Jerusalem were, we believe, "the appointed place" of Israel's sanctuary which the Lord indicated in 2 Sam. vii. 10 and Jer. xxxi. 10, R.V., when He said, "Hear the word of the Lord, O ye nations, and declare it in the 'isles afar off,' and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him as a shepherd doth his flock." "The Isles afar off" from Jerusalem were the "gathering place" of scattered Israel, where the Shepherd of the sheep, the Lord Jesus Christ, "allured them" as into the "wilderness," and spoke "comfortably to their heart" (Hosea ii. 14, R.V.), saying, in the words of Isaiah lxv. R.V., "I am enquired of by them that asked not (for Me); found of them that sought Me not. I said, Behold Me, behold Me! unto a nation that was not called by My name." That nation was the British-Israelite nation, and that place the "far off" wilderness-land of the British Isles. In Isa xli. 1, 2, we believe the history of these "wanderers," who had found refuge in "the Isles of the West" when expelled from their distant home in the East, is very clearly, accurately, and graphically told. The afflicted wanderers, slowly journeying Westward from the land of their captivity in Media and Assyria, were gathered at last in these British Islands during many centuries, commencing with the eighth or ninth before Christ to the eleventh A.D. Rifts and remnants of the same race are doubtless still coming in, even now, from time to time, to complete the number of God's chosen or elect ones. They reached these shores in those early times before A.D. 1066 in an enfeebled, exhausted condition, cut to pieces by war and struggles of all kinds, by land and sea. The first direction God sent them prophetically on arriving was translated into history in the fact that after they reached these shores they gradually recovered national strength, increased in population, power, and wealth, till they were ready, in the sixteenth and following centuries subsequently to the era of the Reformation (after A.D. 1558, when Queen Elizabeth ascended the throne), to carry out their further destiny as the conquerors and rulers of the East, in order that the kings and people thereof subdued to Christ might submit to Him, believe, and be saved by Him, nationally. To the islands and the inhabitants thereof God first spoke in Isa. xli. 1, R.V., "Keep silence before Me, O islands, and let the people (the Israelite, Ephraimic, Christian nation) renew their strength. Let them come near (to God). Let us come near together to judgment." Those that so approached to God must have come by and through the Lord Jesus Christ, and therefore were Christian people saved by His grace. Then God demanded of Israel an answer to a question which can only apply to them, and could never have been answered with any confidence till the eighteenth century, and more fully now:—"Who hath raised up one from the East whom He calleth in righteousness (that is in Christ, as a Christian nation) to His foot?" This is what the Lord Jehovah did for His righteous one, Israel, righteous only in Christ (Isa. liv. 17). "He giveth nations before Him," not one but many "nations," and those Gentile non-Israelite Goim or Heathen nations; the "Heathen Empire," in short, of India, Burmah, New Zealand, South and Central Africa, Borneo, and the Fijis. "He maketh him (i.e., Ephraim-Israel) rule over kings," the kings and Rajahs of Hindostan, Ceylon, Burmah, Borneo, and the heathen world of the East. "He giveth them as dust to his sword, as the driven stubble to his bow"; words exactly descriptive of the way in which God caused us British to triumph over the heathen in India and elsewhere. "He pursueth them and passed on safely; even by a way that he had not gone with his feet." These sentences describe with great accuracy the passage by the Cape, and the "overland" sea routes by which God sent the British from their "Isles of the West" back to the East, that there they might reduce the Eastern potentates to subjection, and bring them under the standard of the kingdom of Christ. They went by a way they had not travelled with their feet. They sailed and steamed over the Atlantic and Indian Oceans, and thus reached the shores of the Heathen Empire, where nations contended with them—nations of idolaters—but were unable to withstand them in the shock of battle. They were as "dust to our sword, and as the driven stubble to our bow." History tells us this record is true! At Plassey, at Assaye, at Argaum, at Mooltan, at Guzerat, at Delhi, at Lucknow, and in Burmah, the same facts have been repeated over and over again, and every where, at all times, on a thousand fields, the record has been that God has given the heathen as "dust to our sword, and as the driven stubble to our bow." By sea we have reached these our enemies, and on their own lands, with every advantage in their favour, we have continuously and always beaten and subdued them. And "who hath wrought and done it, calling the generations from the beginning? I, the Lord Jehovah, the first and with the last, I am He!" "The isles (the British Isles) saw it and feared," because of the abnormal enlargement of their Heathen Empire; "the ends of the earth," in India and elsewhere, "trembled: they drew near and came." The object of their assemblage as idolaters seems to have been opposition to the people of Jehovah, but God's promises to Israel in verses 8 et sequitur make that opposition hopeless. "Thou Israel," said the Lord, "art My servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham, My friend! thou whom I have taken hold of from the ends of the earth, and called thee from the corners thereof, and said unto thee, Thou art My servant, I have chosen thee and not cast thee away. Be not dismayed, I am thy God. I will strengthen thee, yea I will help thee, yea I will uphold thee with the right hand of My righteousness"—a people so favoured and so protected by Christ's righteousness must needs be a Christian people, a race whom God assures, not twice nor thrice, that they have no need to fear, for he will uphold and bless them in their terrible contention with the infuriated nations of the Eastern heathen world. And this our God has done by giving British-Israel the "Gates" of the Eastern world, to enable His people to acquire those lands (thereby "showing the House of Joseph the power of His works"—Psa. cxi. 6); and by giving them also the Gates of the routes to the East, to enable Israel to retain their hold upon their Heathen Empire (Gen. xxii. 17). To Him be all the praise!

Digitized by Google

THE WORK OF THE COLONIAL CONFERENCE.

THE Colonial Conference closed on May 9, when its final sitting was held. It was congratulated by the Secretary of State on the satisfactory results achieved, and the members parted with the feeling that they had not met in vain, but that the Conference had brought the component parts of the Empire closer together. The Federation, in fact, had been advanced a step. "Sir Samuel Griffiths briefly summed up the work of the Conference, and the advantages which had been secured from it. He expressed a confident hope that the results which might be expected from it would tend to strengthen the Empire; and draw the colonies closely together, both with the Mother Country, and each other."

This good wish clearly pointed to the welding together of the Empire by the operation of Federation,—thus developing a state of things when it will be said of Britain and her colonies that they are "a nation and a company of nations," united in maritime defence, having one fleet, one commerce, one Sovereign, one heart, one mind, and one polity. Our own people at home have hardly realised the facts as they affect our home in these Isles of the West. But those who reflect on the change in respect to maritime defence, and as regards the "Australian and Cape Squadrons," which this conference will probably inaugurate, will be aware that we are on the threshold of changes which will alter the whole aspect of the world. It will make the British-Israelite Empire, though "a nation and a company of nations," yet one strong, powerful dominion, strategically placed on the outer circle of all the other non-Israelite races, to their West, their South, and their East; whereby the ocean highways of the world will be Israel's, to control as the guardians and police thereof, by reason of their preponderating numbers, their gigantic wealth, and their world-wide influence.

The French occupation of the New Hebrides group of islands is a burning question which the Conference has, no doubt, helped to solve. The Australian colonies feel this subject acutely, and deeply resent the desire of the French to make these islands French penal colonies. The conduct of the British Government in so long winking at the virtual annexation which the French have been allowed actually to accomplish, has also been viewed with displeasure; whether the islands are about to be restored to their normal condition of independence, or allowed to lapse to France for a time, we know not. There is no doubt they ought to belong to the Australian colonies, and ought not to be ceded to a Power which is hostile to our interests wherever it has the opportunity of exhibiting its opposition. The Conference has done something to make the postal and telegraph communications between the United Kingdom and the Australian colonies cheaper and more expeditious. It is supposed that the rate of postage for a letter now charged sixpence may be reduced soon to threepence, in accordance with a proposal made by the Government of Victoria. This will serve to bind the two distinct portions of the Empire together, and so make Federation, when it comes, easier. An oceanic penny postage is what our statesmen desire to see established, but whether it is possible as a question of revenue is a doubt.

On the whole the Conference has done a good work, and done it well. We hope it will ere long be repeated, but that when it next comes together it may be as a permanently elected body, chosen by the colonies, as "daughter nations," to represent the diverse, but important interests, at a national council in their old mother's capital in the West; and so form the united Federation Government of Israel's "Nation and Company of Nations."

REPORT OF THE GLASGOW ANGLO-ISRAEL IDENTITY ASSOCIATION.

THE Council of the Glasgow Anglo-Israel Association, in presenting this, their first published Report, are happy to be able to announce progress—a progress not so rapid, perhaps, as is to be desired, but nevertheless progress. During the past year thirty new members have been added to the Association, many of them doing good work by reading papers, and otherwise doing what they can to create an interest—amongst the Young Men's Christian Association and other meetings that they are connected with—in the grand truths we are established to advocate, viz., the Identity of the Anglo-British race with the long-lost but now recovered Ten Tribes of Israel, God's own chosen people.

During the past year your Council have spared no efforts to extend the work of former years, consistently with their income, to promote the objects of the Association, whether by means of lectures, the distribution of Anglo-Israel literature, or the encouragement of correspondence upon this subject in the public press.

Under the auspices of this Association, lectures have been delivered and public meetings held in the following places:—Govan, Partick, Bridgeton, Airdrie, Motherwell, Lennoxtown, Paisley, Johnstone, Bridge of Weir, Kilbarchan, and Greenock. In some of these places a course of six lectures has been delivered by our agent and lecturer, Mr. Robert Jamieson, who lectures on the Glasgow Green every Sabbath evening from four o'clock till dark, to audiences of sometimes three thousand people. It is a matter of regret that your Council have not been able to recompense him for his labour for want of the necessary funds, and we feel assured that this has only to be made known to be remedied.

During the year your Association entered into their present premises, 1, Antigua-place, Nelson-street, City, which they have found very suitable. There is a good-sized hall, capable of holding over 300 persons, with committee rooms attached, and a house in which our agent and his wife resides, so that any Anglo-Israelite visiting Glasgow will be made welcome either by night or by day, and shall receive any information that it may be in their power to give. There is also a very good reference library of over 600 volumes, which is very much appreciated by the members. Lectures and addresses have been delivered in the Hall every Sabbath evening since the month of August by our agent and the following gentlemen, to whom the Association is very much indebted:—The Rev. Archibald Allison, Prestwick; the Rev. John M'Kay, Bridgeton; Mr. H. Brittain, Birmingham; Mr. A. M'Millan, President; Mr. N. Colville, Secretary; and Mr. D. M'Callum. The attendance at each lecture was very good, many coming long distances, so great was their interest in these lectures, proving, as they did, that our God is faithful, and that "Lost Israel is found."

Digitized by Google

Your Council feel indebted to Sir Archibald Campbell, Bart., of Blythswood, M.P. for West Renfrewshire, for having kindly consented to be our Honorary President. During the past year we have found Sir Archibald's name to be invaluable. People who have looked upon our teachings as a craze have been compelled to reconsider their position, as it is well known that Sir Archibald would not countenance anything that could not be substantiated by evidence and sound reason; and we feel certain that during the present year, both numerically and financially, his name will have an influence for good.

It is with feelings of the deepest gratitude your Council are able to refer to the rejection of the so-called Home Rule (or Separation) Bill, and the vindication thereby of the fact that this nation is one of the Almighty's witnesses that "He is God," who said every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn (even Mr. Gladstone's); and we feel gratified that our Hon. President had a share in the rejection of the Bill, and at his triumphant return to Parliament with an increased majority at the last General Election.

Your Council take this opportunity of expressing their thanks to those who have helped on the work by subscriptions or donations, amongst whom we think it right especially to name our Hon. President, Sir A. Campbell; William Kidston, of Ferniegair; Mrs. Giels, of Ardmore, Cardross, who has been very liberal both with cash and literature; the late Councillor David Logan; and Dr. Sutherland, 243, Sauchiehall-street, who has proved a friend indeed when your Association was in need. There are others whom we would have been glad to name, but space will not permit. Next year we hope to be in a position to publish a more extended Report, giving full details of income and expenditure.

The receipts for the past year have amounted to £38 5s. 5d., and the expenditure to £41 15s. 7d., with liabilities outstanding estimated at £35.

A. M'Millan, President.
N. Colville, Secretary.

GLASGOW ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

Hall and Offices—1, Antigua-place, Nelson-street, City.

To Protestants, and all Christians interested in the spread of the Kingdom of God by the preaching of His Word, and active opposition to the Papal and Infidel error.

Brethren,—Our institution has now been a recognised part of the organisations of Glasgow, for educational purposes, for several years. There, and at our Green meetings, thousands of our fellow-citizens have heard the truth proclaimed as it is taught in the Scriptures.

To keep pace with the age, we have issued, by our agent, thousands upon thousands of tracts and pamphlets, not only on the subject of the Identification of our race with the "Lost House of Israel," but those simply pointing out the Lamb as the sole hope of man.

Our platform has been occupied by ministers and laymen representing nearly all the evangelical denominations. Nor has our work been unblessed. Many cases might be related did space permit, besides good done, which must, in the nature of things, be unknown until the Day shall declare it.

To carry on our propaganda, funds are needed. Hitherto these have been mainly supplied by the pence of the operatives. Our work could be made to effectively cover more ground were we not so unhappily restricted by want of finance.

Those who desire to identify themselves with us, may become members for the quarter by payment of one shilling; for the year by payment of four shillings; for life, by payment of £1. Friends at a distance wishing to arrange for lectures on the Identity ought to communicate with our agent, who will be glad to do all he can to spread the good news that lost Israel is found.

Nathaniel Colville, Secretary.

Dr. Alder Smith, F.R.C.S., contributes to the July number of Israel's Hope and Destiny the paper he recently read before "The Prophecy Investigation Society;" the subject being—"Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time? And What will be their Place in the Millennium?"

ANGLO-ISRAEL FREE DISTRIBUTION FUND.

Forty-third Monthly Report.

The following donations and subscriptions, from May 14th to June 17th, are very gratefully acknowledged:—

Received by Miss E. M. Rush: Miss M., 4s.; M. C., for Banners, 1s. 6d.; a Sower, Bridge of Allan, Jubilee gift, £2; Rev. A. B. C., 5s.; the Lady J. E., Jubilee gift £5; Mrs. T., 1s.; Colour-Sergeant M., 3s.; "1, 2, 3," per Colonel F. W., 5s.; G. J., Hamilton, N.B., 2s. 6d.; Miss B. (P.O.O. ten francs), 7s. 11d.

By Mr. C. Horner: G. W., 1s.; Mrs. C. B. (monthly subscription), 5s.; Miss. F., 2s. 6d.

By the Treasurer: E. L. D., Launceston, Tasmania, a collection, 12s.; S. L., Horndean, 5s.; Mrs. M., Doncaster, 2s. 6d.; Mrs. M., Stroud, 3s.; Mrs. D., 3s.; H. G., two months' subscriptions, 2s.; J. C., Auckland, New Zealand, per Mrs. A., 5s.; Mrs. S. T., £5; Major St. G. P., 5s.

Total, £15 15s. 11d.

J. Lawrence, Hon. Treasurer.

One to three Banners are forwarded weekly, and two fortnightly, by the Secretary, to St. John's, South Africa; Ohio, U.S.A.; Birkenhead, Upper Teddington, West Kensington, Mechanics' Institute, Crewe, Richmond, Maesteg; to the Wandsworth and Wimbledon Free Public Libraries, and Rome.

Also eighty-two packets, varying from one to two, were despatched as follows: To Aberdeen, Aston, Barrow-in-Furness, Bethnal Green, Birkenhead, Birmingham, Blackpool, Bolton, Bradford, Brighton, Bristol, Cambridge, Chester, Crewe, Coventry, Derby, Exeter, Doncaster, Dundee, Ealing, Glasgow, Handsworth, Hereford, Halifax, South Hayling, Kingston, Kidderminster, Leamington, Leeds, Liverpool, Manchester, Middlesborough, Newbury, Newburyport, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, Newport, Norwich, Nottingham, Paisley, Reading, Rochdale, St. Helens, Runcorn, Salford, Sheffield, North Shields, Sidcup, Stockwell, Rainham, Edinburgh, Tring, Mere, Upper Teddington, West Kensington, Lambeth, Brixton, Ludlow, Tunbridge Wells, Par, South Wimbledon, Rome; Launceston, Tasmania; Auckland, New Zealand.

By Miss E. M. Rush:—It is a pleasure to report that this last month of my stewardship for the Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund has proved to be one of good things for many Sowers, who may have to experience some little delay before anything else will reach their hands. Two most welcome "Jubilee gifts," amongst other kind donations of money, and 1,000 very useful leaflets from T. D. Almond, Esq., have enabled me to send Seed packets to almost all Sowers who have hitherto looked to me for supplies, and have made it possible to start others in free distribution work in several new fields opened by reliable hands; consequently sixty-five parcels of "Identity" literature have been sent to the following places, in some of which two or more Sowers are working quite independently (necessarily so) of each other: London and suburbs, Aldershot, Blackfen, Chatham, Devonport, Ford, Ponsanooth, Portsmouth, Jersey, Bishopston (Bristol), Buxton, Walton-on-Naze, Great Yarmouth, Alvaston, Sheffield, Whittingham, Stockport, Liverpool, Carlisle, Dundee, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Hamilton, Northroe (Shetland), Dublin, Montreal, Toronto, Barbadoes, Cape Town, Port Nolloth, Pietermaritzburg (South Africa), Walla-Walla (New South Wales), Kandy, Colombo (Ceylon), Hong-Kong, Rangoon (Burmah), Poonah, Meerut, Bangalore, Secunderabad, Trimalgherry, Peshawur (India), Assam (Nile), Malta, Munich, Crest (France), H.M.S. "Orion." By Indian and Ceylon Parcel Post, on Monday, June 30, I hope to despatch a packet to C. P. Bird, Esq., B.C.S. District Judge Ambala, Punjab, India, who has kindly offered to act as agent for the Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund, for the Punjab and N.W. Provinces, India. On the same day, and by the same service (P. and O.) I anticipate sending supplementary packets, which now await packing, to Peshawur, Secunderabad, Poona, Bangalore, Rangoon, Hong-Kong. 130 Banners have been sent out each week up to June 8th, that, with the exception of a few issued this week, being the last issued.

E. M. Rush.

We continue to receive satisfactory letters from various parts where the action of the fund is in operation. Notably the work is progressing in and around Sheffield. Our chief Sower there writes: " . . . Best thanks for last parcel. I received the enclosed from one of my district Sowers, and was so pleased with the good news that I transmit it for your information." . . . "As a Sower of literature, I have great cause to thank God that so many are beginning to have their eyes opened to the truths we are spreading. I may say that in our Sunday-school we can count upon seven or eight male and a few female teachers who are believers, with one or two in our select Bible Class who are earnest students. One of our teachers has begun to take in the BANNER weekly, and works assiduously with the light he possesses, seldom losing an opportunity of broaching the subject to his friends. All this may be said to have been brought about by my own exertions in the way of papers, and more especially the free distribution of leaflets which you have been kind enough to send to me. Giving all the praise and glory to the Lord God of Israel and His Son and Holy Spirit."

Digitized by Google

Our Manchester correspondent writes: "I intend to extend operations in this quarter. There are a few Free Public Libraries here in this town, and as you send BANNERS to other libraries I do not see any reason why Manchester should not be included in the list. I have already started to put leaflets on the tables of three of the different reading-rooms, and if you send any BANNERS and other such literature for the same purpose I will see to them being laid on the tables also. I have nothing to report but steady progress." We had already under consideration the question of extending our supply of BANNERS weekly to various public libraries, and communications are taking place with the object of ascertaining at which they will be acceptable.

Those of our readers whose custom it is to spend some weeks away from home during the summer months should take every opportunity of serving the cause by scattering leaflets broadcast. The Secretary will therefore be most happy to provide friends applying for them with suitable selected packets of a hundred.

CHARLES HORNER, Secretary.

Contributions to the Fund will be thankfully received and acknowledged by the Hon. Treasurer, Miss J. Lawrence, Rosslyn, Hampton-road, Upper Teddington, Middlesex; or by Mr. Chas. Horner, 34, Sheen-park, Richmond-on-Thames. Cheques may be crossed, "London and Provincial Bank, Teddington Branch." Grants of literature will be made, as far as funds allow, on application to the Secretary.

ISRAEL'S SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER UNION.

DURING the past month three cards of membership have been sent out. Owing to the necessity for using cards returned by a local secretary, the number issued remains as before, 1,423. A donation of 2s. 6d. from No. 1,413 towards the expenses of the Union, is thankfully acknowledged.

The secretary requests that new members, when writing for cards, would kindly state whether their names are to be entered as Mr., Mrs., or Miss, etc.

For the convenience of those members who wish to continue the daily reading, the following list of chapters for July is printed:—

1st ...	Psalm	clxvi.	12th ...	Prov.	vii.	23rd ...	Prov.	xviii.
2nd...	,,	clxvii.	13th ...	,,	viii.	24th ...	,,	xix.
3rd ...	,,	clxviii.	14th ...	,,	ix.	25th ...	,,	xx.
4th ...	,,	clxix.	15th ...	,,	x.	26th ...	,,	xxi.
5th ...	,,	cl.	16th ...	,,	xi.	27th ...	,,	xxii.
6th ...	Prov.	i.	17th ...	,,	xii.	28th ...	,,	xxiii.
7th ...	,,	ii.	18th ...	,,	xiii.	29th ...	,,	xxiv.
8th ...	,,	iii.	19th ...	,,	xiv.	30th ...	,,	xxv.
9th ...	,,	iv.	20th ...	,,	xv.	31st ...	,,	xxvi.
10th ...	,,	v.	21st ...	,,	xvi.
11th ...	,,	vi.	22nd...	,,	xvii.

The card of membership will be sent on receipt of three stamps.

The first and second series of Monthly Comments on the whole Bible, by Philo-Israel, may now be obtained in volume form. Price in paper cover, 1s. 2d. each, post free; in cloth, 2s. each, post free. The "Prayers for Daily Use," being a prayer for each day of the week, by Philo-Israel, are 1d., or 9d. per dozen, postage extra. The prayer of the Union, as on the Card of Membership, may now be obtained printed in larger type, price 1d. for three copies, post free, or 1s. per 100 for distribution. Address, Miss E. Sibbald, 3, Townshend-villas, Richmond, Surrey.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—I have been a reader of the BANNER now about two years, and am always glad to receive it every week. I must say it puts Scripture truths in a different light to that I ever saw them in before. Being a member of a Bible-class, conducted by a very efficient teacher, whenever a fitting occasion has presented itself, I have brought forward the question of the identity in our discussions. This has always been received with good humour by our leader, who is a clergyman of the Church of England. When he was about to leave us for another parish in this city, he kindly consented to our having a meeting to open up the subject properly, he himself taking the chair. On Wednesday last, January 19th, the meeting was held; but being the first time I had spoken on the subject in public, I scarcely knew in what way to take it, as there are so many different points connected with it, but I decided to put it in this way:—

"The promises to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, fulfilled in the Anglo-Saxon Race," quoting portions of Scripture, and comparing them with the history of this country. In order to show that the promised blessing, especially those to Ephraim and Manasseh, were not fulfilled in Palestine, I quoted Romans xi. 25, where St. Paul regarded them as still future; I showed that this cannot be a "Gentile parenthesis," by the figure which the apostle Paul uses of the Olive-tree—viz., that only some of the branches were cut off for unbelief, which branches everyone present knew to be the Jews. After the lecture there was a rather lively discussion; some could not agree that we were the House of Israel, thinking that most probably they were in the place of their captivity, or that the people of Kurdistan were they. Others agreed that possibly we were the House of Israel, but that room would not be found in Palestine for all the Anglo-Saxon race. To the first I replied, that such a race as the Kurds were unfitted for the high position that God assigned to Israel in the world; to the second proposition I replied, we should go back "representatively" to Palestine, "one of a city and two of a family." One of the members present, not quite understanding my quotation that "all Israel should be saved," thought that being Israel we need not be particular how we live, to whom I said it would fare far worse with an Israelite out of Christ, than with a Gentile. I was rather glad the last speaker mentioned this, because it gave me an opportunity to show that identity is not salvation. The Rev. Chairman, while not being decided as to Our Identity with Israel, yet thought there was a great coincidence.

I thought that very probably you would like to see we thought a little of the identity in Exeter. In fact, I believe the effort is leading people to think seriously of the subject, and I hope I may be able to still further endeavour to promote the knowledge of it.

Yours, &c.,

Exeter. W. H. H.

BLIND EVIDENCE BY CRUDEN IN 1761.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

SIR,—The following forms part of the dedication of Cruden's Concordance, published June, 1761, and dedicated to His Majesty King George III. Taken in conjunction with his religious views, as they are stated by his biographer in the same work, I think he must have had an idea of our Hebrew origin.—Yours, &c.

A TEN YEARS' READER OF THE BANNER.

Ashton, January 13, 1887.

"The memory of Hezekiah, the religious King of Judah, is precious. He has been celebrated in all ages of the Church for his pious zeal in the reformation of his people at the beginning of his reign; for God honours those that honour Him, and they that despise Him 'shall be lightly esteemed.' It is said of that pious king, that 'he trusted in the Lord God of Israel, so that after him there was none like him among all the kings of Judah, nor any that was before him; for he clave to the Lord, and departed not from following Him, but kept His commandments, which the Lord commanded Moses.'

"Hezekiah, like your Majesty, began his reign in his youth; yet his zeal for the worship of God, and for promoting religion among his subjects, carried him through the great difficulties of informing a people who had so much degenerated into gross idolatry. May the great God be the guide of your life, and direct and prosper you, that it may be said by the present and future ages that King George the Third has been an Hezekiah to British-Israel."

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies " " " 1 0 4
Four Copies " " " 1 5 6
Six Copies " " " 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION,

14, King William-street, Charing Cross, W.C.

J. E. NELSON, Esq.,

Will LECTURE

ON THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 7TH, IN THE LIBRARY OF THE ASSOCIATION,

Subject: "The Ethnology of the British Isles;"

AT HALF-PAST SEVEN O'CLOCK.

Admission Free.

SEND US FOUR STAMPS, and we will send you, carriage paid, samples of goods, and guarantee you to earn Five Shillings a day upwards. Satisfaction guaranteed, or stamps returned. This is genuine.—LOUIS H. HART & Co., 126, Clerkenwell Road, London, E.C.

Price 2d., 12s. 6d. per Hundred,

Is Not Queen Victoria the Royal Seed to King David's House, and Are Not Her Subjects, the British People, the Ten Lost Tribes?

By WILLIAM HOPTON,

Colliery Manager (Author of "Conversations on Mines"), St. Helen's.

London: R Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

Price 3d., post free 3½d.

PRESENT-DAY PROBLEMS,

How Anglo-Israel Truth Explains and Solves Them.

By V. M. COX.

Author of Ephraim-Israel, the Pivot Nation of Prophecy and History

"A book to read is 'Present-Day Problems: How Anglo-Israel Truth Explains and Solves Them.' By V. M. Cox. This little book is an excellent summary of the clearance effected in the great burning questions of the time, the moment it is understood that the Anglo-Saxon folk is the very Israel of God. Federation of the Empire, the Irish question, the Eastern question, our relation to Russia, our hold on Egypt, submitted to this solvent, become parts of one intelligible scheme. The paragraphs on Foreign Missions, as the special work of Israel, and on our relation to our fellows of the Tribe of Judah, are especially good.—The Messenger.

R. Banks and Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London.

A New Light.

BY A E I.

Author of "The New Old Story," "4,000 Years Old," &c.

This pamphlet is prepared specially for general distribution, and as a means of introducing "Our Identity" to persons unacquainted with the subject will be found particularly useful. It is printed on good paper, in clear type, and bound in primrose colour cover.

Price 2d., post free 2½d R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court.

Price 2s. 6d., Cheap Edition, 1/-

BIBLE LESSONS & REFLECTIONS.

By ROBERT GAIRDNER, of Kilmarnock, N.B.

"Mr. Gairdner has given us in his book a series of Bible lessons, with his own reflections added thereto, and though he has been very cautious in the latter, and has not committed himself too broadly, he has plainly let it be seen that he is an Anglo-Israelite by conviction, and that the Scriptures which he quotes at length and extensively throughout his book, are meant to teach Our Identity and God's faithfulness, from first to last, to His promises to Abraham and His seed for ever."—Banner of Israel.

ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

An Elementary Digest or Sketch of the Chief Facts and Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Adapted to the Unlearned and Unscientific 56 pages, Illustrated with Diagrams, price 4d., post free 5d. 10th Thousand.

Our Identity with the House of Israel. Price 4d. Reprinted from "Clifton Chronicle Letters"

The History of the House of Israel; How they were Lost, and How they were Found, Told for the Children. Price 6d., cloth 1s.; post free 7d. and 1s. 1d. Fourth Edition. Eleventh thousand

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

Philo-Israel's Leaflets. Four pages Crown 8vo. Price 1s. 6d. per 100, postage 2d. No. 1.—"The Identity of the British with Lost Israel." 2.—"The Glory of God." 3.—An Address to British Seamen. 4.—An Address to British Soldiers. No. 5.—The Communion of the Body and Blood of Our Lord Jesus Christ Viewed in the Light of Our Identity. 6.—The Bible and the Jew. 7.—The Jewish People. 8.—Lo-Ammi; or, the Gentilisation of Ten-Tribed Israel. 9.—The Atonement. 10.—Is Our Identity Evangelical, or Non-Evangelical in its Tendency? No. 11.—Cui Bono? No. 12.—The "Thoughts" of God Towards Israel, Judah, and the Gentile Nations. 13.—The Teutonic Theory. Is It True? 14.—An Address to the Police Force of Great Britain. 15.—An Address to Israel's Missionaries and Their Supporters. 16.—The One Seed, Christ. 17.—An Address to Israel's Electors.

Robert Banks and Son, Printers, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Thoughts for the British Folk.

Suggested by PHILO-ISRAEL.

No. 1.—Multitudinousness.
No. 2.—The Gates.
No. 3.—The Nation and Company of Nations.
No. 4.—British Wealth.
No. 5.—The Rulers Over Many Nations.
No. 6.—The Universal Creditor.
No. 7.—The Ever-Continuing British Monarchy.
No. 8.—The Scattered People at Home in Every Climate.
No. 9.—The Queen, Lords, and Commons.
No. 10.—The Unconquerable Nation.
No. 11.—The Fatally Destructive Race.
No. 12.—The Isolated Nation.
No. 13.—The Nation Which Belts the Earth.
No. 14.—The Emancipators of the Slave
No. 15.—The Christian Nation.
No. 16.—The Ten Commandments.
No. 17.—The Asylum for the Foreign Refugee.
No. 18.—Possessors of the "Sign."
No. 19.—The Universal Missionaries.
No. 20.—Testimony of the Book of Common Prayer.
No. 21.—Church and State, and also Disestablishment.
No. 22.—Our Poor Laws.
No. 23.—The Labour Question is an Identity Question.
No. 24.—Emigration.

London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

Price Sixpence, by post Sevenpence.

Fifty Reasons Why the Anglo-Saxons are Israelites of the Lost Tribes of the House of Israel?

By Rev. W. H. POOLE, D.D.

"There is a principle which is a bar against all argument, and which cannot fail to keep a man in everlasting ignorance. This principle is, contempt prior to examination."—Dr. PALEY.

ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st.

LIVER TONIC,

GEORGE & WELCH'S,

2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. per Bottle.

This Tonic, which embraces the active principle of the best known Liver Cures, relieves Indigestion and Debility, sharpens the appetite, and corrects all unpleasant symptoms arising from sluggish liver.

Proprietors: GEORGE & WELCH, Worcester.

To be had through all Chemists or by Parcels Post from Makers.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON,

RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

A CHRONOLOGICAL and GEOGRAPHICAL TREE. Showing the Development of the British Power and the Affinity of the British Nation with the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel, with Scriptural Quotations. Price 8d., mounted and varnished, 2s.

WHO ARE WE & WHAT IS OUR MISSION? By J. Thornhill Harrison. With seven Maps. Handsome cloth. gilt, price 5s. Free for P.O.

PRESENT-DAY PROBLEMS, and How Anglo-Israel Truth Explains and Solves Them. By V. M. COX. 3d., by post 4 stamps.

LIGHT SHED BY THE GREAT PYRAMID OF EGYPT on the Last Days of this Dispensation, from A.D. 1814 to A.D. 1922. By JAMES KEITH. Price 4d., by post 5 stamps.

NEW TESTAMENT TRUTH on the Anglo-Israel Controversy. By J. G. TAYLOR. Price 3d., by post 4 stamps.

A NEW LIGHT. An Elementary Pamphlet for General Distribution. By A E I. Price 2d., by post 2½d. in stamps.

EPHRAIM-ISRAEL, the Pivot Nation of Prophecy and History. By V. M. COX. Price 1d., one dozen free for 1s.

AMMI; OR, THE CHOSEN PEOPLE. By Miss BIRD. Tracing the Descent of the British People from Abraham as "friend of God," and showing that true science, history, philology, and ethnology, are on the side of the Identity of the Anglo-Saxon Race with the Ten Lost Tribes. Price 2d., post free 2½d.; 12s. 6d. per 100 for distribution.

IS NOT QUEEN VICTORIA the Royal Seed to King David's Throne, and Are Not Her Subjects, the British People, the Ten Lost Tribes? By W. HOPTON. Price 2d.; 12s. 6d. per 100.

A Complete Catalogue Free on Application.

BY REV. HENRY ROE.

(Fifteenth Thousand).

1. Israel's World. Origin and Destiny of British Race, Colonies, and Empire. 2d., post free 2½d. "Worthy of a world-wide circulation." H. B. Thompson, Association Sec. 50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.
2. Going to Africa. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.
3. Fernando Po Mission. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.
4. West African Scenes. 2s., post free 2s. 2d.
5. Consecration. 2d., post free 2½d.

50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; and Rev. H. Roe, Dawley, Salop.

ETHELINE

A New and most effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

A BOON TO SUFFERERS!!

HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT CURES Gout, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Epilepsy, Indigestion, Constipation, Liver and Kidney Complaints, Ladies' Ailments, Nervousness, Neuralgia, General and Local Debility, etc.

HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT

NEVER FAILS to promote HEALTH, STRENGTH, AND VITAL ENERGY; therefore it will pay you to procure one without delay.

NERVOUSNESS CURED.

Every man and woman suffering from any disorder of the Nerves, Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys, should at once stop physicing, and send a P.O.O. or cheque for 21s., for HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT (post free) and obtain immediate relief. Pamphlet and Book of Testimonials post free. THE MEDICAL BATTERY CO. (LTD.),

52, OXFORD STREET, London, W.

(CORNER OF RATHBONE PLACE.)

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW.
WEDNESDAY, JULY 6, 1887
[All rights reserved.

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 550. Entered at Stationers' Hall] WEDNESDAY, JULY 13, 1887. PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
Home Rule for Wales	285
The Geography of the Gates.—The Bermudas, or Somers' Islands	286
"Thy Seed Shall be as the Dust of the Earth"	287
The Sons of God	288
Archbishop Lynch, of Canada, and the Roman Catholic Church	289
"The House of Judah Shall Walk to the House of Israel" (Jer. iii. 18)	290
The American Church	291
Correspondence.	291

HOME RULE FOR WALES.

IF it were not a fact, which is notorious, we should be inclined to doubt whether Mr. Gladstone, the lately honoured Prime Minister of the British nation, had really been busy striving to persuade the Welsh people that they were entitled (as he believes the Irish are entitled) to "Home Rule" and detachment from the hated jurisdiction and control of "the English" in all but Imperial affairs. He has, however, done his best to secure the Welsh, as supporters of his policy respecting Ireland, by promising them freedom from the control of the rest of this island, where their lot is cast. But if Wales, with a population of only 1,360,000, is entitled to be independent of the 22,000,000 of English and Scotch, who occupy the rest of the neighbouring country, on what principles of justice does Mr. Gladstone ignore the 1,750,000 of Ulster-Irish, who are Protestants and Loyalists besides, when he desires to give Ireland, as a whole, "Home Rule," which means the rule of Mr. C. Parnell and the men of the dagger and the dynamite, who are his fellows? The Right Hon. John Bright's letter, published in the Times of June 9, is much to the point here, and we refer to it as the view of a Liberal Unionist and former supporter of Mr. Gladstone, but who now prefers the Unionist to the Separatist policy of his former leader. The letter was as follows:—

MR. BRIGHT ON MR. GLADSTONE'S WELSH SPEECHES.

The following important letter was received yesterday from Mr. Bright by Mr. Thomas Sinclair, of Hopefield, Belfast, in reply to one enclosing copies of resolutions passed at a recent Liberal Unionist meeting in that town:—

"One Ash, Rochdale, June 6, 1887.

"Dear Sir,—I thank you for your friendly letter, and for the copy of the resolutions passed at your recent great meeting on the question of the Union.

"I have just been reading Mr. Gladstone's speeches in South Wales. He speaks as if there were no province of Ulster, and no Protestant or loyal Catholic population in Ireland.

"He seems ignorant or unconscious of the fact that the whole of Wales had a population in 1881 of only 1,360,000, which is, I think, less than that of Ulster by something more than 300,000. Ulster may be a nationality differing from the rest of Ireland, at least as much as Wales differs from England, but Wales is treated to a flattery which, if not insincere, seems to me childish, and Ulster is forgotten in the discussion of the Irish question.

"Is it not wonderful how onesided Mr. Gladstone can be, and how his great intellect can be subjected to one idea, and how he can banish from his mind everything, however important, which does not suit the purpose or object he has before him? He speaks, too, as if it were a good thing to make Wales almost as un-English as he assumes all Ireland to be. He conceals the fact that there are more loyal men and women in Ireland than the whole population of men and women in Wales. It is sad that a great Minister should descend to artifices so transparent, and that crowds of his countrymen should be thus imposed upon.

"Yours very sincerely,

"JOHN BRIGHT.

"Thomas Sinclair, Esq., Hopefield, Belfast."

Here, then, is exposed the artifice of the enemies of Israel to promote disintegration and distrust among a people whom God has "made, created, and formed" to be "a nation," united "to show forth His praise." Mr. Gladstone's effort is to frustrate that purpose of His Maker, and to sever the Irish from the British, and the Welsh from their Anglo-Saxon and Keltic brethren, and to give Ireland as well as Wales (and, therefore, why not to Scotland, Norfolk, Devonshire, and Yorkshire?) separate Parliaments, and discord instead of union and stability! The effort, thank God, we know, will never succeed. It bears on its face the stamp of failure. The plan is concocted by the arch-enemy of our God and of the chosen people of God, but will, from the necessities of the case, fall to the ground a miserable failure. It may be argued that the separate Parliaments which Mr. Gladstone promises to Ireland and now to Wales will not necessarily lead to the separation of "the three nations," if such a phrase is admissible in this case. But we answer in the words of Sir George Trevelyan, with which the Times of June 10 furnishes us, as below:—

SIR GEORGE TREVELYAN.—Replying to a correspondent at Nottingham, who had addressed him on the subject of the retention of the Irish representatives at Westminster, Sir George Trevelyan has written from Grosvenor-crescent as follows:—"Dear Sir,—I am much interested by your letter, but I should do no good by publishing my opinion on the details of a scheme for retaining Irish representatives at Westminster. If we have not a common Imperial Parliament I conceive that the virtual separation of the two countries would ensue.

Digitized by Google

"I remain, yours faithfully,
"G. O. TREVELYAN."

Under Mr. Gladstone's proposals we shall not have a common Imperial Parliament, and therefore the virtual separation of Ireland from Britain, and of Wales from England and Scotland must, according to Sir George Trevelyan, speedily follow. These consequences, however, never can ensue, because this nation is Israel, and the union of its component elements, so as to form "a nation," is guaranteed by God Himself in Jer. xxxi. 36. Mr. Gladstone's plans, therefore, are foredoomed to failure, and never can be carried out. He has ruined himself by his proposals, destroyed his party, and sown the seeds of discord and trouble among his countrymen, which will one day, we feel sure, recoil on himself by annihilating his hopes of ever regaining power in the Councils of his Queen and fellow-subjects, which is his ambition. It is, when we see plans like these, conceived and proclaimed by such an one as the Right Hon. Mr. Gladstone, that we realise the value of Our Identity. Without it, what hope would there have been of the continuance of our world-wide Empire? The people worshipped their idol, Mr. Gladstone, and whatever he desired they were ready to grant and do.

The folly of the people, however, cannot frustrate the purposes of the God of Israel respecting His people. Therefore, we see that our God raised up opposition to the late Premier among his own followers, and thus Lord Hartington, Mr. Chamberlain, John Bright, Sir Henry James, Mr. Goschen, and a host of other Liberal celebrities, forthwith abandoned his leadership, and joined the Constitutional, or Unionist, party in the State: in order thus to preserve God's people Israel from a deadly danger, and to safeguard the Empire in the four quarters of the globe which He has given, is giving, and will yet more abundantly give to them in the time to come, according to the prophecies. Mr. Gladstone's efforts to break up the Empire should serve this purpose. It should prove what dangers Satanic malevolence can bring against God's own inheritance, and show how easily those dangers can be averted by the gracious interference of our heavenly King. A few months ago no one could possibly have predicted that a man beloved of the people could have conceived the idea of compassing the separation of Ireland from Great Britain, and Wales from England and Scotland. But still more difficult would it have been to imagine that we should have lived to see Mr. Gladstone abandoned by his most able Liberal lieutenants, the giants in the ranks of statesmen on the Liberal side, and that these would have stood shoulder to shoulder with Conservatives to defeat Irish miscreants with their dynamite and cruel weapons of revenge, such rebels to their Queen having for their chief defence and champion the Right Hon. William Ewart Gladstone, late Prime Minister of Great Britain! Surely God's hand is visible in all this! And we should be ungrateful if we did not acknowledge it, and praise Him for His tender mercy to His people Israel. The Lord is manifestly on our side, and therefore we need not fear! Nay, we may and must rejoice, and praise His glorious name for His lovingkindness to us His chosen nation.

MR. NAVILLE and his co-workers on the staff of the Egypt Exploration Fund have succeeded in unearthing some stupendous relics of the ancient city of Bubastis, the Pi-Beseth of Scripture. Among the statues are several representing Rameses II. The bas-reliefs, which are at present in Cyclopean heaps, are believed to have formed two large tableaux, one of which represented the great festival given by King Osorkon II. It is not a little strange that the fragment of an inscription which refers to a festival as one "which takes place every fifty years" after being hidden from the eye of man for uncounted centuries should have been brought to light in the Jubilee year.

ERRATA.—Page 253, col. 1, line 26, read "unwelcome truths." Col. 2, lines 28 and 35, read "nation" and "kingdom."

THE GEOGRAPHY OF THE GATES.—THE BERMUDAS, OR SOMERS' ISLANDS.

IN our work on "The Geography of the Gates" of Israel, we made no mention of one of the oldest and most important of them all—the Bermudas, or Somers' Islands. They were discovered in A.D. 1522 by a Spaniard named Juan Bermudez, and afterwards, in 1609, Sir George Somers was wrecked on these Islands. They, therefore, bear both names. Soon after Sir George's misfortune—that is, in 1641—a brother of Sir George led a colony of sixty persons to settle on the Islands. The colonists were from England and Virginia. During the American war, in 1779 or 1780, the Americans, under Washington, made some effort to wrest the place from the British; but they did not get the Islands! They were reserved by the God of Israel for His people, to constitute for them an important Atlantic Gate—one almost, if not quite, impregnable to attack. The Five Islands forming the British Gate belong to a cluster, said to be 365 in number, and are situated in the North Atlantic in lat 32° 20′ N. and long. 64° 45′ W. They lie mere specks on the Ocean, 600 miles East of the South Carolina coast, and their area is only 20 square miles!—that is, they contain in all about 12 or 13 thousand acres. The population is about 15,000, and the capital is Hamilton, on the larger, or Southern Island. This spot, which is a true Gate, is placed in a superb harbour difficult of approach by strangers. "The Islands are very strongly fortified, and possess extensive arsenals, and one of the Islands has been a convict station for some years."

The vegetation is sub-tropical, and the verdure is consequently perpetual. The peculiarity of the Islands is that the harbours and anchorages are all inside the Island, "reached by a few deep and safe passages through the reef, difficult for strangers." To the British these Islands are invaluable as a maritime or sea fortress of the first class, for they lie midway between the West Indies and the Canadian territories, and in the centre of the North Atlantic they form a good coaling station and rendezvous for our ships of war and our merchant vessels. The size of the islands may be estimated, when we say that even in the largest no point is more than one and a-half miles from the sea. The rest are mere "rocks, or islets." The town of St. George, in the North Island, "has a fine, spacious, and safe harbour, admitting vessels drawing 22 feet of water; but the entrance of the harbour is under 22 yards wide." The following account of the climate and picturesque character of the place will be interesting to all Anglo-Israelites, who know the value of the British Gates, and can appreciate one which is so wonderfully and strategically placed in mid-ocean, in the very track of the trade between Canada and the West Indian Islands on the one hand, and between the latter islands and "the Mother of Nations" in the West on the other. We take the account from the Scotsman of Edinburgh, of March 14th, 1887:—

BERMUDA.

Bermuda ("the still vexed Bermoothes" of Shakspeare's "Tempest"), indicated on some of the best maps of the Atlantic by a few small dots, which might be made by the nib of a fine pen, is really a small compact group of some 200 islands—some say 300 or 365, corresponding in number to the days of the year. They lie due East from Charleston about 650 miles, due South from Halifax 700 miles, and the same distance South-east from New York. From Halifax there is monthly communication by one of the Cunard steamers, and from New York by a fine class of steamers, once a week in the crop season, from the middle of March to the middle of June, and fortnightly during the rest of the year. In the crop season a number of extra steamers are employed transporting the agricultural produce of the islands, which consists of potatoes, onions, tomatoes, and other vegetables, to New York and other markets, where it finds ready and profitable sale, being three or four months in advance of the local produce. The scenery of Bermuda cannot be styled grand, but it is charming and fairy-like as an "Arabian night's dream." The ever-changing tints of the water—opal, emerald, sapphire, and the purest crystal—would defy ingenuity to give adequate expression to on canvas. The still water in the numerous inlets and sheltered places is so transparent that one never tires of gazing at the beautiful objects to be seen at the sea bottom—coral of various forms, sea fans of pinkish hue, like delicate lace-work, and almost every variety of marine flora that make the bottom of the sea in this and similar regions a beautiful flower-garden, in which can be seen myriads of fishes and creeping things innumerable. Every island, although not bigger than a small parlour floor, is covered with vegetation, from the sage bush, lantano, cedar (Juniperus Bermudiana), the same as our fragrant pencils are made of, to the palmetto or tall cocoanut palm. The aggregate area of the islands is between 12,000 and 13,000 acres, of which less than 3,000 acres are under cultivation. The population numbers about 15,000, including the naval and military departments. About half the population, or rather more, are coloured people, descendants of manumitted bondsmen, who are now a well-to-do, respectable, and industrious class.

Digitized by Google

The climate is a perpetual spring. The winters are like our English summers, and the summers are not oppressively hot like New York, where the thermometer rises to 105 degrees in the shade. Here the temperature in winter is from 60 degrees to 70 degrees, and in summer from 75 degrees to 85 degrees. The weather is variable, as experienced on a ship at sea in similar latitude, but tempered from the shelter afforded by the numerous islands and their arborescence. It is only within the last two or three years that it has become famous as a health resort, to Americans at least, who go to it in large numbers at the time when their own country is bound up in frost and covered with snow. Two and a-half days' steaming from New York transports the traveller from the rigour of a hard winter to the felicity of an English summer, or sub-tropical region rather, where oranges, lemons, bananas, and varieties of tropical fruits may be seen growing in the open air in the months of December and January, along with grapes and occasionally an apple-tree, but the latter is regarded more as an arboricultural curiosity, and barely lives in that climate. Flowering trees, flowering shrubs, herbaceous flowering plants abound in greatest profusion, and most gorgeous colour. Many of our commonest weeds are there found with their colours changed. Our common chickweed there changes the colour of its flower from white to scarlet. The beauty and salubrity of Bermuda have long been appreciated by transient visitors, mostly of the naval and military class, who had business in the islands, but it is only within the last thirty years that any one resorted to it for health, and only a very few from North America, generally in the last stage of consumption. Within the last two or three years, however, the place has become an American sanatorium. Formerly there was not a single hotel in the islands; now there are at least a dozen, all created within a very few years. The selection of Bermuda as a winter residence for Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise in 1882-83 has been the means of attracting hundreds of Americans to these islands in winter. The fairy-like transition from arctic to tropical scenery in two and a-half days must be a great sensation even to the most stolid American. Sir J. H. Lefroy, formerly Governor of Bermuda, recommending Bermuda as a winter residence for the Princess, says: "In selecting it, I fearlessly assert that Her Royal Highness has selected one of the most healthy spots, one of the most delightful winter climates, and most loyal communities to be found within the range of our colonial possessions." Her Royal Highness (February 22, 1883), replying to an address of welcome by the Corporation of St. George's, says: "My sojourn upon these islands in that among such a frank and genial people will, I assure you, be ever gratefully remembered by me."

'Eternal Spring
Which here enamels everything,'

The inrush of winter visitors has given a great impetus to the building trade of the islands, which, however, has been long generally prosperous. The houses are all built of stone, and are neat and commodious, from the humblest cottage of the negro to the handsome villa of the merchant or judge. The stone is a very soft concretion of the detritus of coral and shells, porous as a sponge, but durable. It is usually plastered or cemented to resist moisture.

As a "Gate," the use of the Bermudas is obviously to afford naval protection to British trade travelling North and South off the coast of the United States. It acts as a coaling station to our vessels, and for importance is second to none. About the same time that God gave us Madras, on the Coromandel coast of South India (1639), He gave to our nation the Bermudas also (1641). In the former case it was the firstfruits, or promise of the whole Peninsula. In the case of the Bermudas it was the guarantee that the British should become possessors of the whole continent, and that the Atlantic, like the Indian Ocean, should at last become their highway, owning the power of the House of Israel. Israel was "to rule the waves," not only in the Eastern, but also in the Western Oceans, and accordingly God gave to our race the Indian Gates as well as those leading to it from Gibraltar, and He granted also to our nation the mid-Ocean maritime fortress Bermuda, as an island Gibraltar to remind the world that everywhere the "Meteor Flag" must at last prevail, because it is the banner of the chosen ones of the great King, the King of Israel, and to Him must therefore be all the praise!

"THY SEED SHALL BE AS THE DUST OF THE EARTH."

A REMARKABLE leading article appeared in the Daily Telegraph of January 25, 1887, dealing with the subject of the rapid rise in the population of the British Islands between the years 1816 and 1861. The friend who drew our attention to the article remarked that the period under comment by the London journal commences with that which we regard as marked by the Great Pyramid Step, "the level breathing period granted to Ephraim-Israel" wherein "to renew their strength" and "spread abroad to the West, and the East, and the North, and the South," according to the prophecy of the Lord, addressed to our forefather Jacob in Gen. xxviii. 14. The journalist was passing in review Mr. Spencer Walpole's "History of England between 1815 and 1861," the period which succeeded the close of the Napoleonic wars. Those forty-five years, as the writer justly observed, beginning with 1816 and ending with 1861, comprise a period full of the most wonderful "facts and figures which will be received with no ordinary surprise." Some of these we reproduce for our readers' information. In 1816 the British Islands contained 19 millions of inhabitants; in 1861 there were 29 millions! Exclusive of Ireland, where the population rapidly decreased after 1821 by reason of the potato famines, Great Britain's census in 1816 gave 13 millions as the number of its people, while in 1861 they were 23 millions, a rise of 75 per cent. in 45 years! The comparison of the incomes of the people of this country, however, at the two periods is more astonishing still, and this is how the Daily Telegraph describes the rapid growth of wealth in these Islands during the period:—

The incomes of the inhabitants of Great Britain paying income-tax in 1816 were one hundred and fifty millions of pounds, whereas in 1861 they had ascended to three hundred and twelve millions of pounds, or at the rate of more than one hundred per cent. In 1816 incomes of fifty pounds a year and upwards were charged to the tax, while in 1861 incomes of one hundred a year and upwards were alone assessed, so that within those forty-five years the true increase in the incomes of the upper and middle classes in England and Scotland was at least one hundred and fifty per cent. In other words, the incomes of these classes were increasing from 1816 to 1861 twice as rapidly as their numbers.

But it is when the entire English-speaking races of the world are compared at the two periods in question that the figures become bewildering and astounding. Quoting from Mr. Walpole's history the journalist wrote thus on this point:—

At the conclusion of the Napoleonic wars, there were not thirty million persons in the world who were English in race and language. In 1861 there were about seventy millions. Thus the

Digitized by Google

English-speaking races double their numbers in every thirty-three years. If this progress continues, they will number one hundred and fifty million souls at the end of the present century. "Before the close of the twentieth century they may perhaps comprise almost as many persons as are now living on the face of the globe." No parallel to this wonderful growth can be found in the past history of the world.

We have here, then, two wonderful signs of our Israelitish origin, unique in their character, and unmistakable in their teaching. They are the two chief marks God put upon His chosen people by which they were to be infallibly identified. Multitudinousness was one sign. The "power to get wealth" was another. The former was predicted over and over again in the Scriptures as the peculiar attribute of God's people. They were to be always prolific, and their power of rapidly doubling their numbers was to be unique. "Be fruitful and multiply," was the Lord's command to His servant Jacob in Gen. xxxv. 11; and in chap. xxviii. 14 the promise was, "Thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth." Later on, in the history of this people, when Israel of the Ten Tribes was cast out of their land under the displeasure of their offended God, the message of mercy which was sent after them in Hosea i. 10 was this: "Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea which cannot be measured or numbered. . ." This blessing followed them from the first to the last, and by this mark and sign they are to be known in all ages, but especially at the end. Accordingly our public historians and journalists notice that the increase in the numbers of the English-speaking races is so great and so rapid, that already they double their populations once in 33 years, or over three times in a single century. So that a people numbering 37 millions (as ours do to-day in Great Britain) must in 33 years become 74 millions, 148 millions in 66 years, and 298 millions in 99 years!

In regard to national riches, Deut. viii. 18 tells us that God gives us "the power to get wealth" as He has never given it to any other race upon the face of the earth. "Thou shalt remember" (He said in Deut. viii. 18) "the Lord thy God, for it is He that giveth thee power to get wealth that He may establish His covenant which He sware unto thy fathers as it is this day." Such a promise as this appears nowhere else within the four corners of God's Word addressed to any nation but Israel. It was to be their portion, and theirs alone. And accordingly we find in the Daily Telegraph that fast as our numbers have increased, our riches have increased nationally faster still—that is, in the ratio of two to one. Surely our opponents, if men of the world, and not likely to be influenced by the value and character of the spiritual gifts God has given to us, the British people (because we are Israel) must see in the abnormal description of the two temporal blessings we have received at God's hands that our race is none other than His hidden, but not forgotten people, the House of Ephraim. "There is no parallel to this wonderful growth" (either as to numbers or wealth) "in the history of the world," and therefore we rejoice in the comfort the facts give us, and we call upon all our readers also to praise the Lord."

"THE SONS OF GOD."

THE lesson that is to be learnt from Gal. iv. 4—6 is a spiritual and yet an Identity lesson. In the first place, the Epistle of Paul in question was addressed to the strangers of the dispersion of Pontus, Galatia, and other parts of Asia Minor, as chap. i. 1 teaches us, and therefore chap. iv. 4—6 must be held to apply to the Ten Tribes, but not otherwise. What are the apostle's words as recorded in the Revised Version?—"When the fulness of time came, God sent forth His Son, born of a woman—born under the law—that He might redeem them which were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons. And because ye are sons, God sent forth the Spirit of His Son into our hearts, crying 'Abba' Father. So that thou art no longer a bondservant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir through God."

There are several lessons taught here applicable to the individual believer in Jesus, as also to the nation of Ephraim-Israel. They are these:—1st, That men in general, and nations in particular, are not by nature sons of God, but by nature and birth are subjects, creatures, and servants of God, to whom He is under no sort of obligation or covenant. Thus, in Abraham's family were two sons, Isaac and Ishmael. Both were equally entitled to the shelter of their father's house, and to the father's love. But there was this difference, they were not both accounted his sons. One was elected for that honour; the other as a servant and a subject was destined to be cast out (Gen. xxi. 9—13). Esau and Jacob were other instances. Jacob was of the seed royal of the sons of God whom God "loved." The other, "a profane person," who when the time came, was rejected and received no saving blessing from the Lord. Jacob, God loved. Esau was not preferred; he was "hated" in respect to the election (Gen. xxvii. 30—40; Mal. i. 2, 3; Heb. xii. 16; Rom. ix. 13).

The next lesson is that those whom God chooses for His sons must be redeemed with the precious blood of God the Son, who fulfils the law for them, and then, being recognised as sons, they must receive the Spirit of the Son of God into their hearts, which will teach them to cry, "Abba"—that is, "Father." Once a son so sanctified, set apart, and sealed with the adoption of sonship, they have no more to fear. They may transgress, and for such transgression there will be fatherly chastisement, but no vindictive judicial punishment, to which those are obnoxious who have no sonship and no Spirit of Jesus in them to witness that they are Christ's. These views are often enough enunciated in the pulpit, in reference to the condition of the saved sinner, redeemed by the precious blood of Jesus Christ, sanctified by the Spirit of Christ, and made a child of God, therefore an heir—an heir of God, and a joint-heir with Christ, as stated in Rom. viii. 16, 17. But why is it we never hear of the national election; this national adoption of Israel into the sonship of God; of her redemption by the same precious blood; the same sanctification, or setting apart for the service of God, and of the heartfelt cry through the Spirit of the Son, "Abba," Father? Yet the facts are on the surface, and demand of our clergy and ministers their most patient and careful consideration. All nations, it is true, were once before God in the condition of rebellious subjects, servants, and bondsmen. They had no more claim on the Fatherhood of God than Ishmael had on Abraham. They were obnoxious to God's wrath for sin, and were not His sons in any sense. But God early chose one special nation to be His sons from among all the rest. How is it our clergy never notice that? The fact is stated everywhere in the Word of God, so that no one can mistake its tremendous importance. In Deut. vii. 6 there is an unconditional declaration that should decide the matter if any one can be found to doubt it. "For thou art," said Moses, repeating the Lord's own words, "an holy people unto the Lord thy God. The Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto Himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth." To this effect is also 2 Sam. vii. 24; Isa. xli. 9; 1 Chron. xvi. 13; Mal. iii. 6; Rom. xi. 1, 29; Rev. vii. 2—8, etc., etc., etc. This being so, and God's character for unchangeableness, for faithfulness and truth, being such as these Scriptures and Numbers xxiii. 19, 20 describe, it is perfectly certain that God has chosen one nation among all the rest to be His sons, and with the adoption of sons means to give, and has given them all the blessings, both spiritual and temporal, tied up to that condition in His holy Word. In Exod. iv. 22, 23 we have the Lord, on an official and solemn occasion, declaring to Pharaoh that Israel was "His son"—nay, "His firstborn." In Jer. xxxi. 9 we read again, centuries afterwards, that even when the Ten Tribes were outcasted from the land, and had fallen so low as to be rank idolators in the lands of their captivity, God still called Himself "a Father to Israel," and declared that "Ephraim was His first-born." The Ten Tribes on their part regarded God as their Father, and prophetically called Him so in Isa. lxiii. 16—19; lxiv. 8. But there is further prophetic evidence that in the latter days (our Christian times) the Ten Tribes, being God's Lo-Ammi, outcast people still, were to be converted to Christ, to receive the privilege of the sonship of God in Christ, with all the spiritual and temporal blessings appertaining to the same. Hosea i. 10 furnishes the proof. When banished and brought very low, the promise in their favour was this: "Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered. And it shall come to pass that in the place where it was said unto them, 'Ye are not My people' (Lo-Ammi), it shall be said unto them, The sons of the living God." The latter term means conversion to Christ, belief in His Name (John i. 12), adoption into the family of God, and salvation by grace through the blood of the Sacrifice on Calvary. Here, then, is the fulfilment of Gal. iv. 4—6, which our pastors apply to the individual Christian, but never to the people that were under the law, and yet were redeemed by the Son of God. These thus redeemed ones are blessed with the Spirit of Christ, and even now cry, "Abba, Father." They will yet more universally and nationally do so when Jer. xxxi. 33, 34 and Heb. viii. 10, 12 are fulfilled in them as a nation, and the law of God is written in their heart and mind, in such wise that "they shall all know Him, from the least of them to the greatest of them, and He will remember their sins and their iniquities no more." The adoption into the sonship of God through Christ confers the following blessings upon Israel the nation:—It gives them safety, freedom, and a right to the inheritance; safety, including salvation by grace, for which they pray, as directed in Jer. xxxi. 7, "O Lord save Thy people, the remnant of Israel;" freedom from the curse and power of sin what time the Lord writes His law in their minds and hearts, and "when they shall no more say each one to his neighbour and his brother, 'Know the Lord,' because they shall all know Him, from the least to the greatest of them;" and the right to the inheritance, since God has given it to them by a gift never yet revoked, and it has become doubly theirs since they are now heirs of God and joint-heirs with Christ. The people to whom all this refers are the British; and let us therefore praise the Lord!

Digitized by Google

ARCHBISHOP LYNCH OF CANADA AND THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH.

THE following appeared in The Toronto World on April 21st, 1887, and deserves a place in the BANNER. We only reproduce a part of the article, which contains also a glorification of Mr. W. E. Gladstone, as well as a prophecy that Ireland is sure to have Home Rule by his influence; matters regarding which we decline to say anything favourable or the reverse in these pages. We republish our extract for reasons which will be apparent to the reader:—

Archbishop Lynch lived a long time in Texas, if The World is rightly informed, and the fact perhaps accounts for the violent language in which he carries on his controversy with the enemies, as he considers them, of Ireland. An Irishman is naturally fond of a scrimmage, but a Texan Irishman, it is evident, bangs Banagher in that line. We respectfully submit that as a high ecclesiastical dignitary he ought to endeavour to restrain his ardour when he has a pen in his hand. For example, we do not think it was right in a loyal subject of Her Majesty, which we understand the Archbishop to be, as one who "fears God and honours the king," to threaten the British Government with the conquest of Canada by Irishmen from the States if it does not grant Home Rule. He ought to have remembered that Canadians, among whom he lives and by whose representatives in the Government and Legislature he is allowed to exercise considerable influence, would be injured by such a raid, and that blood would be spilt as in 1866. In spite of his sojourn in Texas, the Archbishop is one of the kindest of men, and would not hurt a fly if it did not wake him from his after dinner nap, but he ought to restrain his pen lest he cause the uncircumcised to triumph.

Then, again, as a loyal subject of Her Majesty he should not say that "proud England" is "now low enough in the estimation of the civilised world." The World (Toronto) can make allowance for a good deal of feeling among Irishmen at the present moment.

* * * * * *

No individual nor people is always just or enlightened, but when Dr. Lynch speaks of England as "low in the estimation of the civilised world" he only shows his inability to judge her dispassionately. Where is her equal on the face of the earth? To what quarter of the world do not her arms, her commerce, her language, her religion, penetrate? What rival has she in the justice, the clemency, the liberality of her rule? What people stands higher than she for valour, honesty, generosity and morality? "Regenerated humanity," says the Archbishop, cries against England. England has done more to regenerate humanity than all other nations combined. She was the first to commence the great movement which freed the modern world from superstition and tyranny. Her revolutionary movements in the seventeenth century gave the keynote to the system of self-government by the masses of the people now happily spread over the civilised world. Her Puritans who settled in New England made America republican, and largely influenced the French Revolution and produced the French Republic, while Spain, Italy, Austria, Belgium, and the Scandinavian States have now adopted her form of government. No man suffers on account of his politics or his religion where Britain or British principles of government hold sway. Can the Archbishop say the same of the gods of his idolatry? The Archbishop ought to remember that it is to Englishmen whom he slanders that Ireland must look for relief from landlordism.

So far our Canadian kith and kin. Of course the Roman Catholic prelate hates the great witnessing nation of God—which has protested against the idolatry of his fallen Church. The true animus of Rome against Israel, God's chosen, comes out in Canada! Here, in England, Rome puts on quite another aspect. Her prelates and her priests are patriots here; and pretend to love their Queen and country because no other attitude would permit them to ingratiate themselves into this people's hearts, and so enable them to capture, as they hope to do, that imperial race which alone stands up against the pretensions of Rome, and convicts her of idolatry, as well as of insult to the Majesty on High. "Superstition and tyranny" are Rome's characteristics, and against them it has been British-Israel's duty for the last 300 years to protest. For such protest Archbishop Lynch hates "proud England" as he calls her; she who The Toronto World declares is "the head and not the tail, above only, and not beneath" all other nations "in valour, honesty, generosity, and morality"—who has regenerated humanity by the Reformation, and sent her language, religion, commerce, and arms to the four quarters of the globe. Here the character of Israel of the House of Joseph is described by the journalist, and he becomes a "blind witness" to the truths of Our Identity in his contention with the prelate who owes obedience to a foreign potentate, the enemy of our God and of His Christ. The journalist calls on our adversary to tell him what other nation is like the British for justice? She is "the righteous nation" (Isa. xxvi. 2). For clemency?—She is the nation whom the Gentiles seeing among them declare to be the one the Lord hath blessed (Isa. lxi. 9). For the liberality of her rule?—She "reigns over many nations, but none reign over her;" all therefore acquiesce in her benignant sway, and none desire that the sceptre should leave her grasp, for she is "Israel obedient" (Deut. xv. 4—6).

Whatever Archbishop Lynch may say or do, the fact will remain in spite of him. The British are Israel and will survive; for God has blest them from the first. He gave command to Balaam to bless the people—and He hath blessed and neither Balaam nor Archbishop Lynch "can reverse it" (Num. xxiii. 20). Whereas the Canaanitish Irish, who are the Archbishop's clients, "must perish and be utterly wasted" —for they will not serve or obey Israel—God Himself has pronounced their doom in Isa. lx. 12, and nothing can stop their miserable fate. Already these misguided people are perishing from off the face of Ireland by wholesale emigration—misery and want of energy. They are in the United States striving hard to make the Government of that country impossible; but among the fifty millions of British-Americans, it is not likely that the two or three millions of rebellious Irish will be able there to disturb the peace of the two Anglo-Saxon British nations who are the "remnant" of Ephraim and Manasseh, constituting the God-blessed House of Joseph. These Irish are "the pricks in our eyes and the thorns in our sides, our vexation in the land wherein Israel dwells"—prophetically prescribed for our distress and trouble because of Israel's failure to obey the commandment of the Lord. But their day has its prescribed end; and the time is at hand when the Canaanite and the stranger who is the alien in Israel's borders now will be banished never to re-enter the house of the Lord of Hosts or to appear in Jerusalem (Joel iii. 16; Zech. xiv. 21). Then shall "Jacob be in rest and be quiet, and none"—not even Archbishop Lynch and his fellow-Irishmen—"will be able to make him afraid" (Jer. xxx. 10). At present their object is "to make him afraid" with dynamite, daggers, fire, and sword, as applied to men, women, and children, and houses; by cruel houghing of cattle and horses, and by lawless conduct in general; destruction of all confidence between man and man in civil contracts and the ordinary business of life. All this will cease, for the Word of God has promised it, to Israel's great comfort and joy.

Digitized by Google

"THE HOUSE OF JUDAH SHALL WALK TO THE HOUSE OF ISRAEL" (JER. III. 18).

THE following extracts from a remarkable article in the St. James's Gazette, of April 29, regarding "the Jewish colonies in the provinces," seems to be startling "blind evidence" that "the British are Israel," and that the preliminary steps are being taken by the House of Judah to bring the return of "Israel and Judah united" to the land of their inheritance within measurable distance of practical politics. The "walk" of Judah to our land is evidently taking place surely, steadily, almost silently, until from the pressure of so much poverty, not in London only, but throughout all the large towns in the provinces, the Jewish Board of Guardians are in some places driven to apply for relief from the rates. While our own people are forced to emigrate, and we are losing the best of our working classes, their places are filled, and more than filled, by thousands of our Jewish brethren in the lowest depth of poverty, and working for wages on which our own people would starve! The "hunters" are indeed doing their work prescribed by Jer. xvi. 16, 17, and the "hunted" Jews are being driven from every hole and corner where they have hidden themselves. Manasseh will have none of them unless they bring with them the wherewithal to live. Therefore to us, in increasing numbers, they come! We wonder if these facts will open the eyes of our rulers and our clergy, and enable them to see that prophecy is being fulfilled in spite of themselves, and that Judah is now "walking to Israel," preparatory to the great exodus towards Palestine, which the cost and trouble to us of this "Jewish invasion" will compel us nationally to facilitate, by every means in our power! The extract is as follows:—

THE JEWISH COLONIES IN THE PROVINCES.

A glance at the Jewish settlements in the provinces, supplemented by a few figures gleaned from the reports of Hebrew charity organisations there, suffices to show that the wholesale immigration of foreign paupers to which we have lately drawn attention is by no means confined to London. Much the same thing has been going on in various parts of the country, only in the provinces the influx of poor Jews has been proportionately greater than in London. Many towns in the Midland and Northern counties have, in the past decade, become the seats of Jewish pauper colonies, the members of which are to be reckoned not by hundreds but by thousands. The spectacle presented by the East-end settlement finds its exact counterpart in the provincial "Jewries," which are crowded with Russo-Polish immigrants, unclean, untaught, who bring with them to this country all that is evil in the foreign Ghettos whence they spring. In smaller towns "nests" of the pauper colonies that are to be are already forming. And everywhere the number of these people is increasing at a very rapid rate.

These provincial "Jewries" are all recent creations. A few years ago a Jewish pauper was unknown in the country. There were, of course, some poor who were relieved from the local synagogue funds. The "schnorrer" (Jewish tramp or beggar) went his regular rounds through the provinces; but he had a sort of licence, and half-a-crown and a blessing twice a year sent him on his way rejoicing. Occasionally a poor resident got into difficulties, and then he was assisted out of the funds of the Philanthropic Society to which he had himself, in nine cases out of ten, been a contributor. But, throughout the length and breadth of the land there was not, save in the metropolis, a single organisation dealing with chronic Jewish pauperism. Now such institutions have had to be formed in nearly every great provincial town. Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool, Leeds, Hull, Sheffield, Newcastle, Glasgow, Middlesbrough, and Cardiff, all have their Jewish "Board of Guardians" after the London pattern. Liverpool has its "Jew streets" equal to anything the East-end can show in the same line; "Crown-court" and "Back Vernon-street," in Manchester, are as Jewish and as squalid as Wentworth-street, Whitechapel; and Sheffield has its "Petticoat-lane"—a bad copy of its London namesake—where the wigs of the Jewesses and the Hebraic jargon spoken inform the wayfarer that he stands in one of the provincial "Jewries." The number of pauper Jews in these country towns is, in the aggregate, enormous. In Lancashire alone, where the total of Jewish residents probably does not exceed sixteen to eighteen thousand souls, the average of paupers may be set down at over ten thousand.

Take a few figures referring to Manchester—a town largely affected by foreign immigrants who come from Lithuania and Galicia. It has altogether not more than from ten to twelve thousand Jews. Now an examination of the reports of the Manchester Jewish Board of Guardians shows that the average number of families on the books of the charity is over twelve hundred in receipt of ordinary relief. This will represent a pauper community of nearly six thousand souls; for Jewish families are large as a rule—among the poor at all events. Then there is another section of the poor, about one-third as numerous, which is helped from an industrial and loan fund, besides those benefited by the lesser philanthropic societies and the Passover distributions. So that we have here a pauper colony of nearly eight thousand in a body of Jews not exceeding, all counted, twelve thousand persons. And how many of these poor people are natives of this country? Less than ten families, says a report of the Manchester Jewish Board before us: just upon one per cent.! The rest are all foreign immigrants. Can anything throw clearer light upon the gathering flood of foreign pauperism? Nothing, unless it be the figures showing the rate at which the number of poor Jews is being augmented every year. Two hundred and twenty families is stated to be the annual increment on the books of the Manchester charity, and these come "direct from abroad."

Liverpool can tell a similar tale of foreign pauper immigration. It has a smaller Jewish community, but a relatively larger foreign poor-list. The pauper colony settled on the banks of the Mersey is over 2,500 strong, and is increasing as rapidly as that of its neighbour Manchester. The additions are at the rate of at least 1,000 annually for the last two years. In 1885 the Jewish Board of Guardians found the "magnitude of the pauperism" it had to deal with "unparalleled," and the new cases—235 families, or about eleven hundred souls, counting five to each family—more numerous than in any previous year. The "previous year," though, had seen a "serious increase," like the one before it.

Digitized by Google

And here we may give an instance of the way in which the foreign immigrant beats down the price of labour. The Liverpool board cast their eyes round to arrange "some easy occupation in which unskilled labour was employed." They found that there were a number of poor Gentiles in the town who contrived to keep themselves from the union by making the cheap coarse mattresses required by steerage passengers on board the American liners. Forthwith the foreigners (partly supported, of course, by the charity-dole they received) were set to work upon such mattresses, being paid for them at the rate of 9d. per dozen. Imagine three-farthings for filling, sewing, and finishing a mattress! The experiment was successful: the new comers earned sufficient to keep themselves. Of course the other workers were displaced; and down went the current rate of pay.

"A more striking instance yet is furnished by Glasgow. The figures we have given represent nothing like the actual volume of Jewish pauperism in the provinces; they only indicate the average numbers in receipt of relief at a certain time. . . At the present moment the three counties, Lancashire, Yorkshire, and Warwickshire, have between them a Jewish pauper list of probably not less than 20,000; and every packet from Hamburg entering Hull or Grimsby is adding to the numbers."

It may seem hard to many that any notice should be taken of this immigration of poor foreigners; but one question settles that point. What is the use of "relieving the congestion of the population," and reducing the poverty of the country by emigration of our own poor, if their places are taken by a swarm of penniless creatures from the continent?

THE AMERICAN CHURCH.

"YESTERDAY morning the chapel of Lambeth Palace was the scene of a ceremony the interest in which, far from being confined to those who took part in it, will be widely spread both in England and in the United States. A hundred years having elapsed since the consecration in that chapel and by English bishops of the first bishops for the American Episcopal Church, a service in commemoration of that event was conducted yesterday by the Archbishop of Canterbury on the scene of the original consecration. Apart from the special interest attendant on the circumstance of such a celebration there was another and scarcely less impressive character imparted to it by reason of the venerable associations which centre in the Palace of Lambeth. The chapel itself, a small but well proportioned edifice with groined roof and stained glass windows of singular richness and beauty, has played no unimportant part in many familiar episodes of ecclesiastical history. From among these may be selected as perhaps the most noteworthy the arraignment of John Wycliffe in 1378 before Archbishop Sudbury for heretical teaching on the doctrine of transubstantiation. Nor is the chapel wholly without evidences of the affectionate relations existing between the Anglican and American Churches, for the central light of one of the lancet-shaped windows was presented as an offering by the American bishops in commemoration of their presence at the Lambeth Conference in 1878. The hour fixed for the service was 9.45 a.m., and shortly after 9 o'clock those who had received invitations to be present began to gather in the outer chapel, where they were received by Mr. Mandeville B. Phillips (the assistant secretary) and conducted to seats within the chapel. Among those who attended at the service were the American Minister and Mrs. Phelps, Mr. Charles Phelps, Mr. Henry White (Secretary to the Legation), Lord Norton, the Rev. Henry White, the Rev. Treadwell Walden (Boston), the Rev. Dr. E. W. Syle (Tokio), the Rev. T. Teignmouth Shore, the Rev. J. Cave-Browne, Mr. L. W. Ginsaburgh (Washington), Mr. George Glanvill, and General Lowry. The officiating clergy were the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of London, the Bishop of New York, the Bishop of Rochester, Bishop Lyman (Bishop of North Carolina and bishop in charge of the American congregations on the Continent), the Dean of Windsor, and the Rev. Montague Fowler. The service, which was that appointed for the celebration of the Holy Communion, was conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the Bishops of London and Rochester. The sermon was preached by Dr. Potter (Bishop of New York) In the course of his sermon the preacher reviewed the circumstances from which the American Episcopal Church had taken its rise, and the history of the growth of that Church. After having dwelt at some length on these points, and having alluded to the fact that a telegraphic message had been received by the Archbishop of Canterbury from the Bishop of Pennsylvania expressing the cordial thanks of that diocese for the centenary service in Lambeth, the preacher asked if it were strange that the American Church should wish to come back to that venerable shrine where she had drawn her first breath as a daughter of the Anglican communion. Never were the influence and example of the Church of England more potent in all their best elements in America than now. Never was the memory of her saints and martyrs and doctors more reverently cherished than at this hour across the sea. To-day the children of the Church sent the greeting of their homage and their love, and surely they too might be permitted to remind themselves that half of their first century had been covered by the reign of a single Sovereign, who, whether as wife, mother, or ruler, had endeared herself to the people of two hemispheres. And so as some of them came back to that historic spot to keep the first centennial birthday this was the prayer they breathed:—"Honoured mother, hitherto you have been pre-eminent in Christendom—by faith, sound learning, and pure manners. you have already borne witness to the Catholic doctrine in all its primitive simplicity and power; and when another hundred years are gone, and children's children gather here, may you still be found in all the splendour of advancing triumphs, rich in treasures of your God and head—'fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners.'

"The offertory was then made, and it was explained by the Archbishop of Canterbury that, at the request of the Bishop of New York, the sum collected would be given to the Church House fund. Then followed the celebration of the Holy Communion, after which the hymn, 'Jesu, gentle Saviour,' was sung, and the service concluded by the pronunciation of the Benediction by the Archbishop of Canterbury."

The above, taken from the Times of February 5th, 1886, is a remarkable illustration of the brotherly love still existing between Ephraim and Manasseh, and a pledge we hope of the coming Federation of the two nations, brethren in fact, whose interests are all one. For they are united in religion, laws, language, manners customs, and institutions. They love their Mother Church, and unitedly Israel's Queen as well.

Correspondence.

"OCEANA" AND THE JUBILEE.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—I send you two extracts from Froude's "Oceana," which are interesting as showing how it is possible, after sneering at a sermon which probably contained much that is true to adopt unconsciously the same way of speaking soon after. At p. 98 of the cheap edition, Froude says:—"It was . . . . a somewhat ambitious sermon on the English race and its destinies. We were to regard ourselves as the salt of the earth, as a nation chosen above all the rest to represent the Spirit of Christ. It was good to tell us to exhibit Christ's Spirit, but was flattering our vanity the best way to bring us to it." And at page 191, "The inhabitants of Victoria and New South Wales are as completely subjects of the Queen of Great Britain as any of ourselves. They are as proud of their sovereign—they are as heartily loyal—they as little dream of throwing off their allegiance. Nay, perhaps they have more part in David than those who are nearer the throne. Their attachment is enhanced by the emotional enchantment of distance." Froude says, in effect, that the Australian colonists are better Israelites than ourselves, because more loyal to a sovereign who has exhibited more of Christ's Spirit than perhaps any other before her. These sentiments being suitable to the Jubilee may fitly find a place in the BANNER, between our gracious Sovereign's birthday and her coronation day; for which we praise the Lord.

C. P. BIRD.

District Judge, Ambala, Panjab.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

Price 4s., Crown 8vo., cloth, pp. 208, illustrated with 15 Woodcuts.

THE TOWER OF EGYPT;

Or, the Types and Chronology of the Great Pyramid. By A. R. G.

In this work the chronology of the Grand Gallery and Ante-chamber passages of the Great Pyramid of Egypt is re-investigated by a NEW MEASURING KEY, based upon the sacred inch-unit, whence it is found that the Pyramid Date for the Second Advent suprisingly harmonises with that deduced by the Rev. H. Grattan Guinness from independent sources.

"We recommend this thoughtful and well-written book to the attention of all Pyramid students and readers of the Banner. . . . We shall be surprised if it is not found at last that this work is a real advance in Great Pyramid knowledge."—Banner of Israel.

LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, PATERNOSTER ROW;
R. BANKS & SON, RACQUET-COURT., FLEET-ST.

Price 6d., by post 7d.; Annual Subscription, 2s. 6d., post free.

THE JULY QUARTERLY PART
OF
ISRAEL'S HOPE & DESTINY

CONTENTS:

Jubilee Hymn. By Hecla.—The Jubilee of Queen Victoria.—Honour to Whom Honour is Due.—Gog's Attempted Invasion Against Israel. Does it Take Place in India or Palestine? Being Alexander MacPhail's Second Reply to John T. Crosthwait's Views.—"The Ancient of Days"—Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time? and What Will be Their Place in the Millennium? By Dr. Alder Smith, F.R.C.S.—Armageddon. By John Gilder Shaw.—How to Preserve a Record. By A. M. Searle.—Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association.—Review.—Mother of Nations.

London: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; F. W. PARRY (late Guest, Hayworth & Co.), 29, Paternoster-row.

Price 2d., 12s. 6d. per Hundred,

Is Not Queen Victoria the Royal Seed to King David's House, and Are Not Her Subjects, the British People, the Ten Lost Tribes?

By WILLIAM HOPTON,
Colliery Manager (Author of "Conversations on Mines"), St. Helen's.

London: R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

A New Light.

BY A E I.

Author of "The New Old Story," "4,000 Years Old," &c. This pamphlet is prepared specially for general distribution, and as a means of introducing "Our Identity" to persons unacquainted with the subject will be found particularly useful. It is printed on good paper, in clear type, and bound in primrose colour cover.
Price 2d., post free 2½d R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court.

EDWARD HINE'S PUBLICATIONS
SHOULD BE READ & DISTRIBUTED.

FORTY-SEVEN IDENTIFICATIONS, 6d.; post free, 7d.
CUI BONO? 6d., post free, 7d.
LOST ISRAEL FOUND, 3s. 6d., post free, 3s. 9d.
F. W. PARRY, 29, Paternoster Row, London, or direct of ISAAC LOVELAND, Shoreham, Sevenoaks.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

An Elementary Digest or Sketch of the Chief Facts and Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Adapted to the Unlearned and Unscientific 56 pages, Illustrated with Diagrams, price 4d., post free 5d. 10th Thousand.

Thoughts for the British Folk.

Suggested by PHILO-ISRAEL.

No. 1.—Multitudinousness.
No. 2.—The Gates.
No. 3.—The Nation and Company of Nations.
No. 4.—British Wealth.
No. 5.—The Rulers Over Many Nations.
No. 6.—The Universal Creditor.
No. 7.—The Ever-Continuing British Monarchy.
No. 8.—The Scattered People at Home in Every Climate.
No. 9.—The Queen, Lords, and Commons.
No. 10.—The Unconquerable Nation.
No. 11.—The Fatally Destructive Race.
No. 12.—The Isolated Nation.
No. 13.—The Nation Which Belts the Earth.
No. 14.—The Emancipators of the Slave
No. 15.—The Christian Nation.
No. 16.—The Ten Commandments.
No. 17.—The Asylum for the Foreign Refugee.
No. 18.—Possessors of the "Sign."
No. 19.—The Universal Missionaries.
No. 20.—Testimony of the Book of Common Prayer.
No. 21.—Church and State, and also Disestablishment.
No. 22.—Our Poor Laws.
No. 23.—The Labour Question is an Identity Question.
No. 24.—Emigration.

London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

Fourth Thousand, crown 8vo., cloth, price 1/6.

The Coronation Stone; and England's Interest in It.

By Mrs. G. ALBERT ROGERS, author of "The Folded Lamb," "The Star-lit Crown," etc.

The Star-lit Crown: Brief Memorials of the Life and Work of the Rev. G. A. ROGERS, M.A., late Vicar of Christ Church, Dover.

Price 1s., cloth.

JAMES NISBET & Co., Berners-street, London,
And of all Booksellers.

Where Is The Firstborn?

Crown 8vo., wrapper, price 6d. By the Rev. G. A. ROGERS. Edited by his Widow.
R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., E.C.

Price Sixpence, by post Sevenpence.

Fifty Reasons Why the Anglo-Saxons are Israelites of the Lost Tribes of the House of Israel?

By Rev. W. H. POOLE, D.D.

"There is a principle which is a bar against all argument, and which cannot fail to keep a man in everlasting ignorance. This principle is, contempt prior to examination."—Dr. PALEY.
ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st.

SEND US FOUR STAMPS. and we will send you, carriage paid, samples of goods, and guarantee you to earn Five Shillings a day upwards. Satisfaction guaranteed, or stamps returned. This is genuine.—LOUIS H. HART & CO., 126, Clerkenwell Road, London, E.C.

LIVER TONIC,

GEORGE & WELCH'S,

2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. per Bottle.

This Tonic, which embraces the active principle of the best known Liver Cures, relieves Indigestion and Debility, sharpens the appetite, and corrects all unpleasant symptoms arising from sluggish liver.

Proprietors: GEORGE & WELCH, Worcester.

To be had through all Chemists or by Parcels Post from Makers.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON,
RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

A CHRONOLOGICAL and GEOGRAPHICAL TREE, Showing the Development of the British Power and the Affinity of the British Nation with the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel, with Scriptural Quotations. Price 8d., mounted and varnished, 2s.

WHO ARE WE & WHAT IS OUR MISSION? By J. Thornhill Harrison. With seven Maps. Handsome cloth, gilt, price 5s. Free for P.O.

PRESENT-DAY PROBLEMS, and How Anglo-Israel Truth Explains and Solves Them. By V. M. COX. 3d., by post 4 stamps.

LIGHT SHED BY THE GREAT PYRAMID OF EGYPT on the Last Days of this Dispensation, from A.D. 1814 to A.D. 1922. By JAMES KEITH. Price 4d., by post 5 stamps.

NEW TESTAMENT TRUTH on the Anglo-Israel Controversy. By J. G. TAYLOR. Price 3d., by post 4 stamps.

A NEW LIGHT. An Elementary Pamphlet for General Distribution. By A E I. Price 2d., by post 2½d. in stamps.

EPHRAIM-ISRAEL, the Pivot Nation of Prophecy and History. By V. M. COX. Price 1d., one dozen free for 1s.

AMMI; OR, THE CHOSEN PEOPLE. By Miss BIRD. Tracing the Descent of the British People from Abraham as "friend of God," and showing that true science, history, philology, and ethnology, are on the side of the Identity of the Anglo-Saxon Race with the Ten Lost Tribes. Price 2d., post free 2½d.; 12s. 6d. per 100 for distribution.

IS NOT QUEEN VICTORIA the Royal Seed to King David's Throne, and Are Not Her Subjects, the British People, the Ten Lost Tribes? By W. HOPTON. Price 2d.; 12s. 6d. per 100.

A Complete Catalogue Free on Application.

BY REV. HENRY ROE.

(Fifteenth Thousand).

1. Israel's World. Origin and Destiny of British Race, Colonies, and Empire. 2d., post free 2½d. "Worthy of a world-wide circulation." H. B. Thompson, Association Sec. 50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.
2. Going to Africa. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.
3. Fernando Po Mission. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.
4. West African Scenes. 2s., post free 2s. 2d.
5. Consecration. 2d., post free 2½d.

50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; and Rev. H. Roe, Dawley, Salop.

ETHELINE

A New and most effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

A BOON TO SUFFERERS.

HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT.

Testimonial

From Miss J. HOULDSWORTH, Rozelle, Ayr, N.B.

"I am glad to be able to tell you that the HARNESS' ELECTRIC BATTERY BELT has been very beneficial in strengthening the system generally, as well as instrumental in relieving the Neuralgic pains from which I have suffered.

NEURALGIA & DEBILITY.

Every man and woman suffering from any disorder of the Nerves, Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys, should at once stop physicing, and remit 21s. for HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT (post free) and obtain immediate relief. Pamphlet and Book of Testimonials POST FREE. MEDICAL BATTERY CO. Ltd.

52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, JULY 13, 1887 [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., NO. 551. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, JULY 20, 1887. PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
How the Great Gate was Nearly Lost	293
Extraordinary Development of Emigration	294
A Lecture at Clifton. By Surgeon-General J. M. Grant, M.D.	294
Is Constantinople the Gate of Promise? By G. N. Walsh	296
The Racial Characteristics of Israel. By F. Gass. Part I.	297
The BANNER British-Israelite Jubilee Funds	298
Correspondence	299

HOW THE GREAT GATE WAS NEARLY LOST.

THE Times' correspondent at Paris sent to that paper on May 9th a remarkable statement, which, if true, as we suppose it is, proves that just before the Berlin Treaty, at the end of the Turko-Russian War, the Russian General was within an ace of occupying Constantinople with his troops, and that humanly speaking it was a mere accident the catastrophe was prevented! The so-called accident was followed by another most unlooked-for circumstance, namely, the sudden and vigorous resolve of the British Cabinet, when summoned by the Sultan, to resist the Russians by force of arms, and to regard the occupation of the Gate as a casus belli. The attitude of the British Government and nation previously had been so equivocal that the Russian Ambassador at St. James's was quite deceived, and telegraphed to the Czar to order the troops to occupy Constantinople, as the British would offer no opposition, if only Gallipoli and the English Fleet were left unmolested. When the crisis came the true attitude of Israel was seen! She refused to allow her promised Gate to fall into the hands of her enemies, and claimed it herself at the point of the bayonet! The Russians of course retreated, and so Constantinople escaped. The extract from the Times we allude to was as follows:—

Paris, May 9th.

The following gives an absolutely authentic account of an unknown episode of the Turco-Russian war, and may be read in connexion with my despatch published in The Times of to-day.

To understand the violent disappointment of the Russians after the Congress of Berlin one must know the following incident, which shows that Russia thought at the end of the war that she was absolute mistress of the Turks and of European Turkey. Count Schouvaloff, then Russian Ambassador in London, repeatedly telegraphed to the Russians to enter Constantinople, affirming that England would not raise a finger against the occupation of Constantinople on condition that Gallipoli should not be occupied, and that no attempt to blockade the English fleet should be tried. Accordingly a telegram was sent from St. Petersburg to San Stefano and to General Ignatieff, ordering the commanders to enter Constantinople and to occupy it at any cost. This telegram in cipher passed through Turkish territory, and before being transmitted to San Stefano came under the eyes of the Turks. An attempt was made to discover the cipher, but this trial succeeded only partially. Nevertheless, the Turks understood that the occupation of Constantinople was ordered by the Czar. To gain time they mingled the ciphers of the Russian despatch in such a fashion that it became absolutely unintelligible, and under this form transmitted it to San Stefano. There General Ignatieff vainly tried to discover the sense of the order, and after two days' hard working asked for an explanation.

Meanwhile Musurus Pasha was ordered to inform the British Cabinet of the designs of Russia, and to ask the help of Great Britain. The English Cabinet was summoned in haste to a meeting, and an order was given to Lord A. Loftus at St. Petersburg to see the Czar, and to inform him or his Chancellor that an occupation of Constantinople by the Russians would be considered by England as a casus belli, and that he, Lord A. Loftus, would have in this case to ask for his passports. The Czar then changed his mind, and when General Ignatieff's despatch asking for explanations reached St. Petersburg the idea of an armed occupation of Constantinople had been abandoned by His Majesty.

From this one may understand the bitterness of the Russian resentment at having been despoiled by the Berlin Congress of nearly all the most important advantages gained by the San Stefano Treaty. Austria alone, without a shot or the loss of a man, kept her conquest by virtue of the draft of 1876 and of the treaty between her and Russia.

So far the Times correspondent. Those who depreciate the peerless Port and regard it as quite a secondary "position of arms" in these modern days must ask themselves why, if that be the case, the Russians are so determined to secure it, and why, when the alternative presented itself to them, the British Government lately refused to allow its military occupation by the Russians? The fact is, it is the most magnificent Gate in the world, regarded as the outlet of a sea which is now a Russian lake, and which teems already with Russian arsenals, harbours, and docks. If only the outlet were in Russian hands the Russian Fleets would be largely augmented, and our passage to the East by the Suez Canal, or by the Euphrates Valley, would be for ever compromised. For once the Russians are in possession of the Bosporus it would cost millions in money and torrents of blood to expel them. The occupation of Palestine by the British and the Jews would after that be a most difficult, if not impossible, operation; and therefore, we see God has reserved the place for us, but has not permitted the Russians to occupy it when it was within their grasp, only a few years ago. It is said by some that the value of Constantinople as a commanding Gate is greatly lowered since the date of the Berlin Treaty, because of the Pacific Canadian route now opened viâ Esquimalt, and because the ocean highway past the Cape is still in our own grasp. Granted, if British interests were only what God cared for! But He cares for more than that. He is pledged to carry out the restoration in peace and safety of His united people Israel and Judah to their own land of Palestine, and to give them there wondrous prosperity and enlargement. How can this be done humanly speaking, and without a standing miracle, which we have no right to expect, if the Russian armies are to be in possession of the mighty Gate, and all the resources of that Empire will be for ever ready to block the passage of Israel's commerce with the East, and her communications with her sons in the Holy Land? Russia at the Bosporus in power would prevent the restoration of Israel and Judah, and would, if it were effected, lead to the evacuation of the land again by reason of the flank of the British march being in the hands of the enemies of the people of the Lord! We believe, however, none of these adverse events will take place, but that when the time comes, and the pear is ripe, the Gate will fall into the hand of God's people, and remain with them forever.

Digitized by Google

We feel confident of this, not because we claim any prophetic function. Far from that! But simply because God's Word gives the Gate to Israel; and the British, being Israel, have all the Gates already, with one magnificent exception. As the Gates generally, without Constantinople, would be worthless, we conclude that God means this strategic city to be ours like the rest. We put forward this expectation, with the line of reasoning which leads to it, for our readers' adoption or rejection as they may think fit. It suffices for us; and we believe the end will see our race in possession of the stronghold, what time the Turkish Empire collapses, according to the prophecies. At the date of the Treaty of San Stefano the "times of the Gentiles" who now are treading down Jerusalem was not fulfilled, consequently they were not expelled from the city then, and Russia was not allowed to take possession. When that event which will make Jerusalem free occurs, and the Turkish Empire falls to pieces, the last word in the Eastern Question will have been asked and answered. "Who shall have Constantinople?" is that question of questions. To our mind the answer is conveyed in the words of Gen. xxii. 17: "Thy seed" (Israel's) "shall possess the Gate of his enemies."

The British are Israel; therefore the conclusion seems inevitable. But to the Lord will be all the praise!

Extraordinary Development of Emigration.—The Liverpool Mercury says:—The remarkable revival of trade in the United States and Canada has led to a substantial increase in the proportions of the emigration from Europe. So pronounced is this that nearly all the Atlantic lines have issued notices to their agents to stop booking for the present. The special feature of this position is that numbers of mechanics are going out, especially bricklayers, plasterers, and masons, from Scotland, Wales, and the Northern districts of England, in response to advices from the other side that good openings are now presenting to such craftsmen. The general prospects of the emigration trade are equally brisk. The German lines are understood to be already fully booked, and a considerable accession to the numbers of Germans passing through Liverpool is to be expected. The Swedes and Norwegians are fully to the fore. The attractions of the Canadian North-west, and especially of the Canadian Pacific slope, are distinctly in the ascendant, more emigrants having been booked for British Columbia during the past two months than in the preceding year, and, indeed, for a long time previous. Altogether the emigration trade of the current season is more brisk than at any time during the previous seven years; and the prospects point to a long period of activity.—Forwarded by F. S. G., of Manchester.—The Manchester Evening News, April 5th, 1887.

A LECTURE AT CLIFTON.

By Surgeon-General J. M. Grant, M.D.

A lecture was given by Surgeon-General Grant, in the Victoria Rooms, Clifton, on the evening of Friday, 3rd June, on "The Present and Future of Israel." The chair was taken by Commander Roberts, R.N., and there was a good attendance.

The lecturer introduced his subject by remarking that all search for the "Lost Tribes" had heretofore been unsuccessful because it had been made by the light of history and ethnology instead of that of revelation; "that all secular knowledge must be in itself unavailing in searching for a people whose history and nationality God had declared that He would obliterate; and that such knowledge could be of no value whatever, except in so far as it might confirm what the prophets had spoken." He then went on to show some of the conditions under which prophecy declares that Israel must be found in "the latter days," or the Christian dispensation, such as :—

1st. Separate from Judah.—Under this head he exposed the error of Canon Rawlinson and others who affirm that the Ten Tribes became merged in their conquerors, or that the few who remained distinct returned with the Jews from Babylon, pointing out that this error originates in a misinterpretation of the book of Ezra, where the word Israel is applied to Judah; all Jews being Israelites, although all Israelites are not Jews, and Judah having been the only representative House of Israel extant when the book of Ezra was written, because the other House had long since ceased to be a people. This error, too, was to be traced to the very common practice of trusting to isolated texts, for if the whole book of Ezra were studied in its connection with other Scriptures, it would be seen that the edict of Cyrus was promulgated in fulfilment of a prophecy by Jeremiah which had reference to the kingdom of Judah only, and that the Jews were to return from Babylon to their own land after seventy years, not by bow, or by sword, or by battle, but by the Lord their God; whereas the other House of Israel was to be gathered from the nations, not into their own land, but into the wilderness of the people, with a mighty hand and a stretched-out arm; and with fury poured out—that is, after long and desolating wars, which exactly corresponded with the early settlement of Britain. He showed from the writings of St. Paul, comparing Jer. xviii. and xix. with Rom. ix., that the apostle recognised two Houses of Israel as existing in his day, the one Gentile and Christian, and the other clinging in stubborn unbelief to the law, and he insisted that unless we accept the teaching of St. Paul on this point we may draw a wet pen through the whole of the Old Testament writings, and the greater part of the New, because if the Jews are the only remaining House of Israel, the mission of Christ has proved a failure. He has not redeemed Israel from the bondage of the law, nor fulfilled the prophets, whom He tells us that He came to fulfil. The absurdity of the objection raised by the Rev. H. Bonar in his celebrated letter to the Sunday at Home, that the early Britons could not have been Israelites because they brought no Israelitish books or ritual with them was also dealt with. "How could they," asked the lecturer, "considering that they had been sunk in heathenism for about a thousand years?" They brought with them Druidism, which in many respects was identical with Baal worship as described in the Bible; and a form of worship much more significant of their origin than the most exact pattern of the temple service could have been."

The second condition under which we must look for Israel was that of a widely-spread Gentile nation, separating into two great peoples, the one greater than the other—and under this head, the lecturer referred to the 48th chapter of Genesis, where Jacob blesses first Joseph and next his two sons, transferring the blessing of the father to the younger son Ephraim, and thus constituting him the federal head of the House of Joseph; and predicting that he would become the fulness of the Gentiles, or a multitude of nations; that is, that he would spread abroad from the place where he would originally settle as a Gentile people, and establish himself in all parts of the world, being known amongst the Gentiles as the seed which the Lord had blessed, a prophecy which was fulfilled by attaching a condition to the captivity of Israel which was not attached to that of Judah—viz., rejection from the covenant of Moses. He then went on to show that the distinction between an Israelite and a Gentile, was that the one was in covenant with God under the law of Moses, and the other was not; and that as Israel had been divorced from that covenant and never brought under it again, they became Gentiles and remain Gentiles to the present time. He traced to the misapprehension of this important truth the universal error of the theologians expressed by the Church of England in the doctrine of the Epiphany, that when the Jews rejected Christ the oracles of God were taken from them and committed to the heathen; a doctrine which he said contradicts the most solemn utterances of the Word of God, because our Lord told the Jews that the kingdom of God would be taken from them and given to a nation bringing forth the fruit thereof, and St. Paul, in telling them that the salvation of Christ which they had refused would be sent to the Gentiles, added that they would receive it, which must mean that they would receive it, as the Jews had rejected it in a body, or as a people; a condition which does not apply to the heathen at large, or any heathen nation, but which is in accord with the universal voice of prophecy that the Jews would so reject, and that Israel would so receive it. In connection with this Gentile condition of the people the question of their circumcision was considered. It was contended that the Galatians must have been Israelites, because St. Paul converted them from heathenism, not Judaism, and yet he speaks of them as a people which had been at some former period under the law, and remonstrates with them on their wish to be again under its bondage, especially in this matter of circumcision, which of course they would not have abandoned if they had been Jews; and the inference he drew from their case was that the rite had been generally abandoned by Israel as distinct from Judah in apostolic times, and that it never could have been re-imposed, because one of the first acts of the early Christian Church had been to abolish it, "so that," continued the lecturer, "the objection that we cannot be Israelites because we are not circumcised, has no weight whatever." With regard to the prophecy that the House of Joseph would separate into two great peoples, our contention that it had been exactly and literally fulfilled in the separation of America from England, and the development of both, unexampled in the history of nations, yet showing a vast preponderance in our favour, was treated by our opponents with a good deal of flippant ridicule. The commentators interpret the prophecy as having been fulfilled in the past history of Israel, "inasmuch as Joseph was the only son of Jacob who was the progenitor of Two Tribes," and so forth; but they do not tell us how the branches of the fruitful bough of Joseph ran over the wall in Palestine, that is, extended beyond it; how Ephraim became the fulness of the Gentiles there; or how Israel became a nation and company of nations in Old Testament times. Such plain temporal promises, said Dr. Grant, they spiritualise; a process in which it is impossible to follow, and idle to answer them.

Digitized by Google

The next mark put upon Israel by the prophets was that she would be Christian; a promise in which all the others, temporal and spiritual, made to the fathers centred. Dr. Grant fully conceded to opponents the point upon which they so strongly insist, that Christ was "the promised seed" in whom all the families of the earth should be blessed, but he reminded his hearers that the after seed of Abraham in the line of Isaac was associated with Him as the heralds of His work of redemption by the further promise that they should be an holy nation, a kingdom of priests and a peculiar people, formed by God for Himself, to show forth His praise. With reference to this latter promise the lecturer showed that it had no reference to Old Testament times, because God distinctly told the people of Israel that they would break His covenant and mix themselves with the heathen before they entered into Canaan; and that it was evident from the 49th chapter of Genesis, the 24th of Numbers, and St. Paul's teaching in the 13th chapter of Acts, that all the promises to Israel centred in Christ, and were intended, at the time that they were made, to have their fulfilment in the Christian dispensation; so that the common objection that the people forfeited the promised blessings by their disobedience in Canaan was not only unscriptural but impious, as impugning the truth and faithfulness of God.

The next mark upon Israel was that she should be chief of the nations, and in possession of all the blessings promised to her, while obedient, in the 28th chapter of Deuteronomy—blessings which she had forfeited, or never fully attained to, through her disobedience in Canaan, but which had been purchased specially for her, in order that she might communicate them to the world, by Christ, the Redeemer of Israel. In connection with this part of his subject, the lecturer pointed out that it would have been perfectly impossible for the Church to carry the Gospel to the heathen; that such a work required the intervention of a strong nation, having the will as well as the power to carry it out, established in security in all parts of the world, and having the dominion of the sea, or possessing, as the inspired penman expresses it, "the Gate of her enemies;" and such a nation, for such a purpose, God had specially educated--in Egypt, in the wilderness, and in Palestine.

The next mark noticed was that Israel must be found as a vast imperial dominion, under the rule of a lineal descendant of King David, in support of which view the old Irish legends were compared with prophecy; and the lecturer maintained that from their exact correspondence with Scripture we were justified in considering them authentic. He noticed the common objection that we cannot trace the dynasty of David from the 33rd chapter of Jeremiah, because a similar promise is made to the priests, the Levites, and we do not know where they are. He contended that there was no necessary connection between the two cases, and that they were not parallel, because in the case of David we had two promises—first, that Israel would not cease from being a nation for ever; and secondly, that there would never cease to be a descendant of David sitting on his throne and ruling over Israel. So that having found the nation, we have, as a necessary consequence, found the throne; whereas in the case of the Levites, Jeremiah prophesied that there would be a breach of continuity in their office, during which a posterity would be preserved to them to do sacrifice continually, or without further interruption, at some future time, which he does not specify, but which we learn from the concluding chapters of Ezekiel to be the next dispensation, so that those who live then will have the same means of recognising the descendants of the Levites as we have of recognising those of David now, because they alone will be ministering at the altar.

The lecturer summed up this part of his rather extensive subject by remarking that if it had been shewn from prophecy that Israel must exist in the Christian dispensation as chief of the nations, her whereabouts had been indicated with sufficient clearness to enable the most superficial readers of English history to determine it for themselves; that we might cull forty-seven identifications from the Bible, or forty-seven hundred, but they must all resolve themselves into the two conditions of Christianity and national ascendency.

With regard to the future of Israel, Dr. Grant contended that in the next dispensation she would be as she had been in the two which had preceded it—God's witnessing nation, His kingdom, and the channel of His blessing to the world. He pointed out that before the separation of the nation many people joined themselves to the Lord by union with His people because they saw that a special blessing rested upon them; that after the captivity of Israel the witnessing function devolved upon Judah, and that she alone kept the lamp of truth burning till Christ came, when, having rejected Him, the kingdom and oracles of God were taken from her and committed to the other House of Israel, which from that day to this has become His kingdom and the custodians of His oracles, under the sacred trust that they will communicate them to the world. In the next dispensation the two nations will be united, remaining, of course, established, as Israel already is, over all the world, but the seat of government being moved from London to Jerusalem; and in this state of unity they will witness for God as they have done heretofore, but with more energy and success, because the Holy Spirit will be more abundantly poured upon them. The purposes of God do not change, continued the lecturer, so that from the time that He formed Israel into a nation and said to them, "You only have I known of all the families of the earth," there has been no instance, individual or general, of the conversion of the heathen to God except through her instrumentality; so that wherever we find a Christian Church planted amongst the heathen we know that it has been planted there, that it is not indigenous to the soil, and that its members, of whatever nationality they may be, have all been admitted into spiritual communion with the family of Abraham, through the Israelitish rite of baptism; and therefore there is not, and never has been, such a thing as a "Gentile Church" in the sense in which we generally regard it—that is, a Christian Church outside and independent of Israel.

Digitized by Google

The lecturer went on to show that the mission of Christ was not to change God's government of the world, but to restore it; so that when His mediatorial and kingly work should have been accomplished, and the works of the devil destroyed, one of them being the separation of the human family into languages and races; there would be one people and one language as at the beginning, and that then Christ would restore the kingdom to the Father—that is, the restored kingdom of Israel, including, as it then would do, all the people of God in the world—He being subject to the Father as the second Adam, although as the glorified head of the House of Israel He would reign over it for ever and ever, as expressly declared in Psa. xlv. 6, 7. Such, continued the lecturer, is the plain teaching of the Bible regarding the everlasting kingdom of Christ and the glory of His people Israel as being associated with Him in establishing it over the world; and I think it is to be regretted that this "Gospel of the kingdom," which He commanded His Apostles to proclaim to all nations, should have been so much obscured as it has been by spiritualising interpretations.

A short and rather animated discussion followed, chiefly on the two questions of the restoration of sacrifices, and the nature of Christ's kingdom. Upon the former the lecturer replied that "the one sacrifice for sins for ever" had been made in the Lamb slain from before the foundation of the world; that sacrifices which could be distinctly traced back to the time of the Deluge, and probably existed in Eden, were typical, or anticipatory of the Atonement, while the spiritual sacrifice which we now offer in the Communion had its duration limited by our Lord's own appointment, to the time of His coming again; and it would be reasonable to suppose, even if Ezekiel did not distinctly tell us, that when this mode of commemoration should cease, the ancient mode of sacrifice by presenting the beasts slain for the food of the people as an offering to the Lord should be resumed in commemoration, as they had formerly been instituted in anticipation, of the great sacrifice which, in the counsels of God, with whom there is no beginning nor ending, had been ordained from before the foundation of the world. At least, the lecturer said that the prophecies of Ezekiel were, to his mind, conclusive that sacrifices would be restored, and he did not see how it was possible to spiritualise that portion of Scripture with any regard to the truth of the Word of God.

The second objection was raised to a remark by Philo-Israel that God is now, and has been for centuries, spreading His kingdom by means of the conquering sword of British-Israel, and was to the effect that the kingdom of God was righteousness and peace; to which it was answered that although peace would undoubtedly be the characteristic of the millennial reign of Christ, His kingdom was not yet established over the world, as He testified before Pilate, and He Himself declares that He came not to send "peace upon the earth, but a sword" during the present dispensation.

A vote of thanks was accorded to the lecturer, and the meeting closed with singing the Doxology.

IS CONSTANTINOPLE THE GATE OF PROMISE?

By G. N. Walsh.

The leading article in the Banner, March 30th, No. 535, entitled "Russian Finances and the Coming Wars," contains an extract from an Indian paper, upon which you comment as follows:—"So far the Madras Mail. We do not, of course, see with the Eastern journalist that Constantinople is likely to fall into the hands of Russia, because we know better. Our Identity with Israel informs us the Madras paper is wrong, and that, so far from the Cossack getting into the peerless port, it is destined for the British people, as the promise of Gen. xxii. 17, to the after-seed of Abraham, being God's best blessing to the race. 'Thy seed shall possess the Gate of his enemies.'"

My reason for calling attention to these remarks of yours is because it appears to be an almost unanimous belief with Anglo-Israelites that the Turkish metropolis must eventually become a British possession in consequence of its unique position and present strategical importance. But, I would ask, is it not somewhat hazardous to conclude so confidently that this peerless port must some day fall into our hands, in the absence of any direct scripture testimony to that effect? For after all Gen. xxii. 17 is only a general statement, and cannot be construed into a reference to any particular Gate. Personally I am of opinion that Russia will succeed in obtaining possession of the long-coveted prize, for I cannot imagine her coming down with her armies upon the mountains of Israel "like a cloud to cover the land," and leaving a place of such strengh as Constantinople, garrisoned by an enemy, in her rear. Russia may, by treaty or by conquest, ultimately secure to herself the sovereignty of Stamboul, but it by no means follows that she is certain to reap the advantages she expects from its acquisition: for it is more than probable that, in the not far distant future, this "Queen of Cities" may be shorn of much of its value and importance.

A startling scheme was propounded some years ago for restoring Palestine to its pristine loveliness, and making it the most valuable tract of territory on the face of the globe. This scheme (at present in abeyance) was to have effected its purpose by the cutting of two canals, one from the Red Sea to the Lake of Sodom, the other from the Mediterranean, near Mount Carmel, to the River Jordan, thereby establishing a water communication between the two seas. Only a sterile and unproductive waste of country would be submerged by these operations, and two or three towns of minor importance engulphed; with respect to one of which, however, it would appear to be a remarkable fulfilment of a singular curse. "And thou, Capernaum, which are exalted to heaven, shalt be thrust down to Hades" (Luke x. 15). As verily it would be if pressed down beneath the super-incumbent weight of six hundred feet of water, that being its depth below the level of the sea. The extraordinary depression known as the Jordan Valley being thus filled up, a great inland sea would thereby be formed, measuring some two hundred miles in length, with an average of five or six in width, whose waters, as surveyors have shown and Ezekiel foretold (chap. xlvii. 8, 9, 10), would reach from En-gedi on the one side, to En-eglaim on the other, and lave also the foot of the hills upon which Jerusalem stands.

Digitized by Google

The carrying out of this grand purpose is, I believe, but a question of time. If ever it should be accomplished Constantinople would at once lose the proud distinction she has so long enjoyed, of being the pivot upon which the whole Eastern Question turns. This distinction would then be transferred to Jerusalem, which would thenceforward be regarded (to use your own expression) as the "Peerless Port"; her commanding position on the shores of the New Jordan Sea constituting her Mistress of the World. As a commercial port standing midway between the Eastern and Western worlds, and situate where all the lines of traffic must necessarily converge, her position will be unrivalled. As a fortress she could be made impregnable. For charm of position she would again be "the joy of the whole earth." And when beautified and restored to fit her for the noble and important part she is destined to take in the future history of the world, our Zion will indeed be a name and a praise in the earth.

When these things are accomplished, then will the visions of Ezekiel xlvii. 1—12 be fulfilled. The New Jerusalem fronting towards the East will overlook a great expanse of sea, whose waters, to those standing on the heights in the city, will appear to issue from its threshold on the South, or right-hand side, and going Eastward for a short distance, will turn and go in the direction of what was once the desert and the Dead Sea, now obliterated by the overwhelming waters of the Mediterranean, and thus forming the New Jordan Sea, whose shores will be the remunerative and inexhaustible fishing grounds for a large population, and on whose fertile banks will grow a profusion of trees of almost endless variety, producing fruits in every month, the fruit thereof being for meat, and the leaf thereof for medicine (see also Rev. xxii. 1, 2).

In the foregoing remarks it may be thought by some that I am looking a long way ahead into the future, but these events are probably nearer than many of us imagine, and although the great engineering work I have spoken of is not likely to be commenced until the Holy Land is owned by the British, and possibly not until after the great conflict between the King of the North and his numerous allies on the one side, and Israel on the other (Russia and England)—Ezek. xxxviii., xxxix.—yet, as I firmly believe that Great Britain will, within two or three years have undisputed possession, not only of Egypt, but also of Syria, as far North, perhaps, as Aleppo, in fulfilment of the promise to Abraham, "Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt, unto the great river, the river Euphrates" (Gen. xv. 18), and repeated in somewhat different terms by Moses (Deut. xi. 24), it may be that the accomplishment of Ezekiel's prophecy is less remote than most people suppose.

Western Bank, Sheffield, April 7th, 1887.

NOTE BY THE EDITOR.—The best rule for us all is "not to prophesy unless we know." No one can tell whether Constantinople is the Gate promised in Gen. xxii. 17, or if the canals described by Mr. Walsh will eventually be cut to render Stamboul no longer a strategic position. But we may safely declare:—

1st. That the promise in Gen. xxii. 17 gives to Israel, in this our Christian Dispensation, "The Gate 'par excellence' of her enemies."

2nd. That "the enemies" of Israel of Ezek. xxxviii. and xxxix., and of modern notoriety, are Gog-Magog, that is, Russia.

3rd. That the Gate of the Empire of Russia as described by her own writers continuously, is Constantinople.

4th. That the Eastern Question, which is the question of the Lord's "recompenses for the controversy of Zion," is an Israelite question, and circulates round Stamboul, the last word in it being, "Who shall have Constantinople?"

5th. That the settled determination of ninety-nine out of every hundred British men and women, quite irrespective of Our Identity, is, that "Russia shall not have it, but that Britain must, as a question of mere self-defence."

Personally we believe our possession of Constantinople will bring about the invasion of Palestine described in Ezek. xxxviii., as the last desperate throw of a ruined, ambitious Power. If we could imagine that God would give so commanding a Gate as "the Peerless Port" to Israel's enemies, then indeed we should begin to doubt the doctrine of the Gates. Then we should wonder why God, who has given us all the Gates everywhere, should have handed to Russia, our enemy, the one which military men know (but Mr. Walsh does not) is "the Gate of all the Gates," the chief dominant city of the earth, with its stupendous arsenals and ocean dock-yards behind it, in the Black Sea; which is also the bridle, in short, in the lips of Germany, Austria, and the Thracian peninsula, as well as the spot which commands the approach to the valley of the Euphrates, and the road to India. With the chronology of Mr. Walsh's vivid dream of the great inland sea we cannot deal—not being prophets. He may be right, and we hope he is. But we fail to see, if he be, how, with the strategic port of Constantinople in our enemies' hands, our engineers will be able to cut the wondrous and costly canals in question, Russia being in the Gate which commands the sea route to Palestine, also the landward approaches besides, from the North and East. In fact improbabilities surround Mr. Walsh's views on all sides and lead us to repeat the caution—"we had better not prophesy until we know!"

THE RACIAL CHARACTERISTICS OF ISRAEL.

By F. GASS.

PART I.

IN dealing with the race characteristics, such as physiognomy and form, of the Tribes of Israel, it is important to bear in mind a special peculiarity of the Hebrews as a people. Unlike other nations, they were divided into twelve sections, called "tribes," who did not intermarry with each other. It is, therefore, probable that there were considerable physical distinctions between these families, which would be increased by their being the descendants of five people—Jacob, Leah, Rachel, Bilhah, and Zilpah. A widespread belief, based on the rendering of the A. V. of Isaiah iii. 9, "The shew of their countenance doth witness against them," is that a miraculous change of countenance, or to speak more exactly, of physiognomy, came upon Judah as a mark and punishment for the awful crime of crucifying our Lord. But the theory, for several reasons, is a doubtful one, and is, so far as I can learn, destitute of evidence to support it. The supposition that the cruel persecution and contempt to which the Jews were subjected for ages wrought the change in their physiognomy referred to does not seem to have a scientific basis. That it might bring about a change in the expression of the face, such as a melancholy, hard, or impassive look, is very probable, and, I think, true; but this is widely different to a radical change in the form of the features and, to a certain extent, of the frame. There is a broad distinction between the "Western" and "Eastern" type of nations. The great European nationalities North-west of Palestine have, in common, the "Western" type of physiognomy. The racial type of the Jews is distinctly "Eastern" in face and form, which is to be accounted for by their exclusiveness, they seldom intermarrying with strangers. The persecution of the Jews would have missed its mark for want of recognition, if a strong physical distinction between them and the nations amongst whom they dwelt had not been patent from the earliest Christian times. Without that, they could have successfully hidden their identity from their persecutors. Esther and Mordecai passed among the Persians without their Jewish descent being known; and this is often referred to as proving that they had not the prominent features of the Jews of to-day. But this evidence tends just in the opposite direction. "The Persians, like the Afghans, were a high-featured race, with strong Jewish features;"* and, as Mordecai and his niece passed among them unnoticed, the inference is that they were of the same type as the general populace around them. David was "ruddy, and withal of a beautiful countenance," but this does not show forth his type of physiognomy; many fair Jews are to be met with who yet have the Jewish cast of face, and in the East red hair and blue eyes are quite common among them. The Scriptural quotation relied on to prove a miraculous change of physiognomy is only of value in connection with the context; and the whole of the third chapter of Isaiah is a prophecy of the calamities that would be occasioned by the Babylonish invasion and captivity. Verse 9 probably refers to Judah's sinful courses, particularly the sin of idolatry. Bishop Lowth, in his commentary on Isaiah,† gives the words "the shew of their countenance" a different turn. He has it, "the steadfastness of their countenance. They appear to be bent on iniquity; their eyes tell the wickedness of the heart. The eye is the index of the mind. Evil passions look most intelligently out at the eye."

Digitized by Google

What, then, is the reason of the peculiar physiognomy of the Jews, and the marked difference in that respect between them and their brethren of British-Israel, the descendants of the Lost Ten Tribes? Experts differ as to the cause of the racial characteristics of the Jews. At the meeting of the British Association, held in Birmingham, on Sept. 7th, 1886, Sir George Campbell, K.C.S.I., the President of the Anthropological Section of the Society, stated that after the Babylonish captivity the Jews intermarried freely with the Persians. He said that "the Persians had large, strongly-marked features, which by marriage they communicated to the Jews."‡ This settles the matter, provided it is correct; but another authority, Professor James K. Hosmer, holds a different opinion. In his fascinating book, lately published, on the Jews,§ he speaks of the unique solidarity of the race: "In mental and moral traits, in form and feature even, the Jew to-day is the same as when Jerusalem was the peer of Tyre and Babylon. Abraham and Mordecai stand out upon the sculptures of Nineveh, marked by the same eye and beard, the same nose and jaw, by which we now recognise their descendants." Says Mr. E. A. Freeman: "They are very nearly, if not absolutely, a pure race in a sense in which no other race is pure. Their blood has been untouched by conversion, even by intermarriage."

Mr. Jacobs, in a paper on "The Racial Characteristics of the Modern Jews,"‖ read recently before the British Anthropological Institute, declared in favour of the purity of the race. He said that "it depended on the number of proselytes made by the Jews in ancient and mediæval times. The earlier proselytes, before the foundation of Christianity, were mostly fellow-Semites, and would not affect the type; while the number made afterward was too small to modify the race. A considerable number of Jews, the Cohens, were not allowed to marry proselytes, and must, therefore, be tolerably pure." But Dr. A. Neubauer differed from Mr. Jacobs. He read a paper on "Race Types of the Jews," the purport of which was to show that "there had been considerable intermixture in the Hebrew race, from the time of Abraham down. Joseph married an Egyptian woman, and Moses a Midianite; David was descended from a Moabitess and Solomon was the son of a Hittite woman. So we read of the non-Jewish women in contact with the Israelites; and, undoubtedly, the proselytes increased the mixture of races by marrying Jewish women. Quite a marked difference prevailed in the middle ages, and still exists, between the Jews residing in different races." It is not likely that Dr. Neubauer meant us to infer that the physical characteristics of the Jews were obliterated by admixture with foreign elements, but rather that the type was toned down only. His paper, therefore, does not much assist in explaining the reason of their strongly-marked features. Nor can I quite follow Sir George Campbell in supposing—for there is no proof of it—that Judah's is a Perso-Jewish physiognomy. There may have been, and probably was, considerable intermarriage between the Persians and the Jews at Babylon, especially as they lived together on a friendly footing. Ezra's enforced separation of all who had made heathen marriages, in which number were many priests and Levites, supports this. But this is a different matter to saying that intercourse with the Persians changed the face and form of the Jews, and seriously impaired the purity of the race. This is a theory I should be slow to adopt, remembering the constant conservative racial instincts of the Jews, instincts which were founded on religion, the strongest of all forces for preserving a people intact.

(To be continued).

* The Times, September 8th, 1886. Report of Meeting of British Association

† Dr. Adam Clarke's Commentary in loco.

‡ St. James's Gazette, 8th September, 1886.

§ "The Story of the Nations: The Jews."

‖ Knowledge, April, 1887.

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" BRITISH-ISRAELITE JUBILEE FUNDS.

OUR readers will see in another column the result of the experiment we made some time ago in regard to the three Jubilee British-Israelite Funds which we thought it would be well to open in connection with the BANNER OF ISRAEL for the benefit of the Church Missionary Society, the Society for the Promotion of Christianity Amongst the Jews, and for the Bible Society. The sum realised has exceeded our expectations, and we thankfully announce that the total is £126 0s. 11d., all now duly paid over to the three Societies. The receipts were as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
For the Church Missionary Society ...	80	15	9
For the Jews' Society...	14	17	8
For the Bible Society	30	7	6
Total	£126	0	11

We had hoped that the sum subscribed for the Church Missionary Society might have reached £100, and that for the Bible Society £40; but we are content to know that we have been the means, under God, of giving very substantial help to the three Societies in question. We beg to offer the subscribers our heartfelt thanks for their willing response to the appeal we made to them during Her Majesty's Jubilee year, to notify to our opponents and all others that Anglo-Israelites are a loyal, God-fearing body, anxious to show their devotion to their Queen, and yet ever ready to bring forth fruit to the glory of God by furthering His work among the ignorant and careless, the heathen, and the ungodly throughout the world. The proof thus afforded has already borne good fruit. One who has hitherto looked with much contempt on our views was obliged to declare, when he heard how generous the Anglo-Israelite public had been in the matter of the Church Missionary Society, that "if the list increased much more he should be almost persuaded to become an Anglo-Israelite himself." The three Societies concerned cannot but feel that the much-abused Israelites are, after all, their very earnest and self-sacrificing friends, desiring the conversion of the Jews and of the heathen, as well as the world-wide circulation of the Word of God.

Digitized by Google

We beg to notify that although these three Jubilee Funds are now closed pro formâ, we shall be very glad to receive any other contributions to the same objects if our friends who have not yet subscribed feel desirous of adding their help. Only £19 4s. 3d. are wanted to make up £100 for the Church Missionary Society, and £9 12s. 6d. more will make the Bible Society's portion the round sum of £40. We ought not to give less than £20 to the Jews' Society, and for that we would ask £5 2s. 4d. In short £34 more are needed, and we shall be very glad to receive that sum. We trust that those who can afford it for the Lord's service will gladly and gratefully pay it, to mark a glorious epoch, as well as to help our own cause before God and men in an adequate manner. Laus Deo!

CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

	£	s.	d.
Amount acknowledged on pp. 163, 203, and 243...	54	2	1
F. J. (per Miss Rush) ...	0	2	0
K. E., Wandsworth ...	0	2	6
Anglo-Israelite, Folkestone	0	2	6
Mr. Thos. Weir (per Miss Rush)	0	2	6
Mr. G. Cowar (ditto) ...	0	1	0
A Friend (ditto)... ...	0	1	0
Mr. S. Cunningham (do.)	0	1	0
Mr. J. Richardson (ditto)	0	0	6
Miss Clayton, Clifton ...	0	3	0
F. H., Lamport, Northampton...	0	2	6
G. A., ditto	0	2	6
J. C. F., London... ...	0	1	8
Mr. E. Brett, Plaistow (per Miss Rush) ...	0	2	0
L. W., Plaistow (ditto)...	0	2	6
Z. Z., Plaistow, (ditto) ...	0	0	6
Mrs. Phillips, Bangor ...	0	2	6
K.A.M. (value of trinket), Buxton...	0	3	0
From A Friend, Buxton	0	10	0
MissE.Tavender,Islington	0	2	6
Mrs. Mallett, Richmond, Surrey	0	5	0
I. and J. W., Halifax ...	0	3	0
A. M., Clifton	20	0	0
J. Anderson, Esq., Croydon	0	5	0
T. E. M., Buckingham ...	0	2	0
Mr. and Mrs. Hunter, Helensburgh	0	4	0
Mrs. Scarborough, Egremont, Cheshire ...	0	5	0
Mrs. Stones, ditto ...	0	2	6
Mrs. J. Calvert Jones, Newill Hall, Bracknell	2	0	0
Ellis Jones, Esq., Sheffield	0	5	0
F. and M. J., Kingsworth	0	2	6
C. E. Priestley, Esq., Manchester	0	2	6
A Member of the A.-I. A., South Wimbledon ...	0	1	6
Mrs. Sandiland, Sandown	0	10	0
	£80	15	9

JEWS' SOCIETY.

	£	s.	d.
Amount previously acknowledged	11	17	0
An Anglo-Israelite, Folkestone	0	2	6
Mr. G. Jackson (per Miss Rush), Hamilton, N.B.	0	2	6
Mr. G. McDougall (ditto), ditto	0	2	0
Mr. J. Hiddow (do.), do.	0	2	0
W. J. W., A.S.R. (do.), do.	0	1	0
P. S. (do.), do.	0	1	0
W. J. G. McL. (do.), do.	0	1	0
Miss E. M. Rush (do.), do.	0	2	6
Miss Clayton, Clifton ...	0	3	0
Mrs. Smith, Folkestone...	0	4	0
J. C. F., London ...	0	1	8
Miss Brown, Bangor ...	0	1	0
Mrs. Phillips, Bangor ...	0	2	6
K. A. M. (sale of trinket), Buxton...	0	4	0
Mrs. Ralph, London ...	0	1	0
Miss Babington, Harrow-road, London	0	2	6
Mrs. J. Calvert Jones, Newill Hall, Bracknell	1	0	0
A Member of the A.I.A., South Wimbledon ...	0	1	6
Mrs. Crichton, Tenby ...	0	5	0
	£14	17	8

BIBLE SOCIETY.

	£	s.	d.
Amount previously acknowledged	19	9	4
W. J. W., Crewe... ...	0	2	6
An Anglo-Israelite, Folkestone	0	2	6
A Friend (per Miss Rush, Hamilton, N.B.) ...	0	2	0
Mr. J. Wilson (ditto) ...	0	1	0
Mr. J. Robertson (ditto)	0	0	6
Mr. J. Pendie (ditto) ...	0	2	6
Quarter-Master-Sergt. Cooper, H.L.I. (ditto)	0	1	0
Miss Clayton, Clifton ...	0	3	0
J. C. F., London... ...	0	1	8
Miss Williams, Bangor ...	0	1	0
Mrs. Phillips, Bangor ...	0	2	6
K. A. M. (value of trinket) Buxton...	0	4	0
Mrs. Bates, Leicester ...	0	2	6
Mr. T. Smart, „ ...	0	2	6
E. C. Beale, „ ...	0	2	6
P. G. C., Sheffield ...	5	0	0
A. Henly, Isle of Wight	1	0	0
Miss Smallwood, Isle of Wight	0	2	6
Mrs. Scarborough, Cheshire	0	5	0
Mrs. Stones, Cheshire ...	0	2	6
Mrs. J. Calvert Jones, Newill Hall, Bracknell	2	0	0
Ellis Jones, Esq., Sheffield	0	5	0
A Member of the A. I. A., South Wimbledon ...	0	1	6
Mrs. Sandiland, Sandown	0	10	0
	£30	7	6

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—In the Times of the 22nd inst. the Chief Rabbi, Dr. Adler, is reported in his Jubilee sermon to have said, "That he might speak to them of the marvellous growth and expansion of the Empire. He preferred, however, to dwell upon the righteousness and godly fear that had been the leading traits in the character of our beloved Sovereign. . . . There existed a small band of enthusiasts, who claimed that the indwellers of this island were descended from the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel. Never was theory broached that rested on a more slender foundation. England had, however, a moral kinship with Israel (?)." May I be allowed to remark, that as Chief Rabbi Adler does not believe that the Messiah as man has lived and died on earth, his judgment in the matter of evidence may well to Bible lovers seem of small account. Likewise, that if we "enthusiasts" are "a small band" resting our views on one of the slenderest foundations, it seems strange the Chief Rabbi should have considered us worthy of any notice. At any rate, he acknowledges that though of the "slenderest," there is yet some foundation for our "theory." It would be satisfactory to know what is the point which affords this very slender foundation!

Yours faithfully, L. P.

June, 1887.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,— I came upon the enclosed blind evidence (?) last night, in a little collection of hymns by Cowper, Wesley, &c., but this one is "Anonymous":—

"Thou Holy Paschal Lamb,
Whose blood for us was shed,
Through whom we out of Egypt came,
Thy ransomed people led.

Angel of Gospel grace,
Fulfil thy character,
To guard and feed Thy chosen race,
In Israel's camp appear.

Throughout the desert way
Conduct us by Thy light,
Be Thou a cooling shade by day,
A cheering fire by night.

Our fainting souls sustain
With blessings from above,
And ever on Thy people rain
The manna of Thy love."

I see the little book is called "Select Poetry," and published 1825. A. B.

Exmouth, March 29th, 1887.

DEAR MISS RUSH,—I had hoped to have this small offering ready in time for your Jubilee Fund, to which every true Israelite should feel it a privilege to subscribe. I do not see how anyone who reads his Bible by the light of the Identity can for a moment doubt its truth. I have come to this conclusion, that if Israel is non-existent, then the prophecies have but little meaning; but by that light it is delightful to trace the glorious truthfulness of our God. You will see by my style of writing that I have not education to fully express myself as I should like; but be assured of my deep, earnest interest in the good work you have undertaken. I have been reading the BANNER for about three years, and much enjoy its teachings. I take two numbers weekly for lending out. Many read them, some believe in them, others doubt; but in His own good time God will remove the veil and we shall see clearly. I had thought to send you six dozen old BANNERS for the army and navy, but Mr. W—— told me he would be glad of them for the Hamilton Barracks. I trust you will not think me presumptuous in asking you to draw the attention of our much respected editor, Philo-Israel, to Jeremiah xxiii. 5, 6, 7 and 8. I have been reading them over and over again. I think by reading between the lines it points to two distinct characters—First, to an earthly king, under whose just reign in the latter days Judah shall be saved, and to the final coming of Christ.

Yours very respectfully,

G. J.

Hamilton, N.B., May 5th, 1887.

P. S.—We should be glad to have a lecture here, but must wait till we can make arrangements. G. J.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies " " " 1 0 4
Four Copies " " " 1 5 6
Six Copies " " " 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

Price 6d., by post 7d.; Annual Subscription, 2s. 6d., post free.

THE JULY QUARTERLY PART

OF

ISRAEL'S HOPE & DESTINY

CONTENTS:

IMPORTANT PAPER BY DR. ALDER SMITH

Jubilee Hymn. By Hecla.—The Jubilee of Queen Victoria.—Honour to Whom Honour is Due.—Gog's Attempted Invasion Against Israel. Does it Take Place in India or Palestine? Being Alexander MacPhail's Second Reply to John T. Crosthwait's Views.—"The Ancient of Days"—Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time? and What Will be Their Place in the Millennium? By Dr. Alder Smith, F.R.C.S.—Armageddon. By John Gilder Shaw.—How to Preserve a Record. By A. M. Scarle.—Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association.—Review.—Mother of Nations.

London: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; F. W. PARRY (late Guest, Hayworth & Co.), 29, Paternoster-row.

Price 2d., 12s. 6d. per Hundred,

Is Not Queen Victoria the Royal Seed to King David's House, and Are Not Her Subjects, the British People, the Ten Lost Tribes?

By WILLIAM HOPTON,

Colliery Manager (Author of "Conversations on Mines"), St. Helen's.

London: R Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

A New Light.

BY A E I.

Author of "The New Old Story," "4,000 Years Old," &c.

This pamphlet is prepared specially for general distribution, and as a means of introducing "Our Identity" to persons unacquainted with the subject will be found particularly useful. It is printed on good paper, in clear type, and bound in primrose colour cover.

Price 2d., post free 2½d R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court.

Price 5s., Cloth Bound, Gilt Lettered, 584 p.p., free for Postal Order. COMPLETE EDITION OF

FIFTY YEARS IN THE CHURCH OF ROME.

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

"No history like it since the time of Luther."—New York Witness.

"The work is a good one, and we pray that it may succeed in opening men's eyes to the deadly dangers which are in our midst."—Methodist Recorder.

ROBERT BANKS & SON. Racquet-court, Fleet-st., E.C.

Price Sixpence, by post Sevenpence.

Fifty Reasons Why the Anglo-Saxons are Israelites of the Lost Tribes of the House of Israel?

By Rev. W. H. POOLE, D.D.

"There is a principle which is a bar against all argument, and which cannot fail to keep a man in everlasting ignorance. This principle is, contempt prior to examination."—Dr. PALEY.

ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

Philo-Israel's Leaflets. Four pages Crown 8vo. Price 1s. 6d. per 100, postage 2d. No. 1.—"The Identity of the British with Lost Israel." 2.—"The Glory of God." 3.—An Address to British Seamen. 4.—An Address to British Soldiers. No. 5.—The Communion of the Body and Blood of Our Lord Jesus Christ Viewed in the Light of Our Identity. 6.—The Bible and the Jew. 7.—The Jewish People. 8.—Lo-Ammi; or, the Gentilisation of Ten-Tribed Israel. 9.—The Atonement. 10.—Is Our Identity Evangelical, or Non-Evangelical in its Tendency? No. 11.—Cui Bono? No. 12.—The "Thoughts" of God Towards Israel, Judah, and the Gentile Nations. 13.—The Teutonic Theory. Is It True? 14.—An Address to the Police Force of Great Britain. 15.—An Address to Israel's Missionaries and Their Supporters. 16.—The One Seed, Christ. 17.—An Address to Israel's Electors.

Thoughts for the British Folk.

Suggested by PHILO-ISRAEL.

No. 1.—Multitudinousness.
No. 2.—The Gates.
No. 3.—The Nation and Company of Nations.
No. 4.—British Wealth.
No. 5.—The Rulers Over Many Nations.
No. 6.—The Universal Creditor.
No. 7.—The Ever-Continuing British Monarchy.
No. 8.—The Scattered People at Home in Every Climate.
No. 9.—The Queen, Lords, and Commons.
No. 10.—The Unconquerable Nation.
No. 11.—The Fatally Destructive Race.
No. 12.—The Isolated Nation.
No. 13.—The Nation Which Belts the Earth.
No. 14.—The Emancipators of the Slave
No. 15.—The Christian Nation.
No. 16.—The Ten Commandments.
No. 17.—The Asylum for the Foreign Refugee.
No. 18.—Possessors of the "Sign."
No. 19.—The Universal Missionaries.
No. 20.—Testimony of the Book of Common Prayer.
No. 21.—Church and State, and also Disestablishment.
No. 22.—Our Poor Laws.
No. 23.—The Labour Question is an Identity Question.
No. 24.—Emigration.

London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

BY REV. HENRY ROE.

(Fifteenth Thousand).

1. Israel's World. Origin and Destiny of British Race, Colonies, and Empire. 2d., post free 2½d. "Worthy of a world-wide circulation." H. B. Thompson, Association Sec. 50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.
2. Going to Africa. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.
3. Fernando Po Mission. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.
4. West African Scenes. 2s., post free 2s. 2d.
5. Consecration. 2d., post free 2½d.

50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; and Rev. H. Roe, Dawley, Salop.

SEND US FOUR STAMPS, and we will send you, carriage paid, samples of goods, and guarantee you to earn Five Shillings a day upwards. Satisfaction guaranteed, or stamps returned. This is genuine.—LOUIS H. HART & CO., 126, Clerkenwell Road, London, E.C.

LIVER TONIC,

GEORGE & WELCH'S,

2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. per Bottle.

This Tonic, which embraces the active principle of the best known Liver Cures, relieves Indigestion and Debility, sharpens the appetite, and corrects all unpleasant symptoms arising from sluggish liver.

Proprietors: GEORGE & WELCH, Worcester.

To be had through all Chemists or by Parcels Post from Makers.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON,

RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

A CHRONOLOGICAL and GEOGRAPHICAL TREE. Showing the Development of the British Power and the Affinity of the British Nation with the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel, with Scriptural Quotations. Price 8d., mounted and varnished, 2s.

WHO ARE WE & WHAT IS OUR MISSION? By J. Thornhill Harrison. With seven Maps. Handsome cloth, gilt, price 5s. Free for P.O.—

THE LOST TEN TRIBES OF ISRAEL By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D., Pastor of Union Congregational Church, Brooklyn, New York. Price 3s., post free 3s. 3d.

THE FUTURE OF ISRAEL AND JUDAH. Companion volume to above, By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D. With Portrait of the Author. Cloth, gilt lettered, bevelled boards. Price 2s., post free 2s. 3d.

THE SISTERS OF HARROWDALE RECTORY. A Tale of Great Interest for Young People. By Mrs. M. A. Searson. With double-page illustration of Harrowdale Rectory. Price 2s. 6d., post free 2s. 9d.

PRESENT-DAY PROBLEMS, and How Anglo-Israel Truth Explains and Solves Them. By V. M. COX. 3d., by post 4 stamps.

LIGHT SHED BY THE GREAT PYRAMID OF EGYPT on the Last Days of this Dispensation, from A.D. 1814 to A.D. 1922. By JAMES KEITH. Price 4d., by post 5 stamps.

NEW TESTAMENT TRUTH on the Anglo-Israel Controversy. By J. G. TAYLOR. Price 3d., by post 4 stamps.

A NEW LIGHT. An Elementary Pamphlet for General Distribution. By A E I. Price 2d., by post 2½d. in stamps.

EPHRAIM-ISRAEL, the Pivot Nation of Prophecy and History. By V. M. COX. Price 1d., one dozen free for 1s.

AMMI; OR, THE CHOSEN PEOPLE. By Miss BIRD. Tracing the Descent of the British People from Abraham as "friend of God," and showing that true science, history, philology, and ethnology, are on the side of the Identity of the Anglo-Saxon Race with the Ten Lost Tribes. Price 2d., post free 2½d.; 12s. 6d. per 100 for distribution.

IS NOT QUEEN VICTORIA the Royal Seed to King David's Throne, and Are Not Her Subjects, the British People, the Ten Lost Tribes? By W. HOPTON. Price 2d.; 12s. 6d. per 100.

A Complete Catalogue Free on Application.

Wonderful Value by Parcels Post.

WALTER KEAST, 102, Kennington Park Road, London, S.E., will on receipt of Postal Order for 3s. 6d. send a pair of Ladies' High-leg Six Button Walking Boots. These Boots are warranted to give complete satisfaction, being sewn, thoroughly well made and very comfortable. Ditto in Oxford Shoes, 3s. 3d. Send number of size or length of boot in inches. Parcels sent daily to all parts of the United Kingdom.

Established 1851.

ETHELINE

A New and most effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

RHEUMATISM, GOUT,

SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, INDIGESTION, CONSTIPATION, LIVER & KIDNEY COMPLAINTS, NERVOUS DISORDERS, LADIES' AILMENTS, ETC. Promptly Relieved and CURED BY

HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT

ALL sufferers should read "Harness' Guide to Health," free by post, containing copies of Thousands of Testimonials. Every man and woman in search of Health, Strength, and Energy, should at once send a 21s. postal order to the Medical Battery Co. Ltd. 52, OXFORD ST. LONDON, W. and procure one of these famous Belts, and they may rely upon being CURED

Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, JULY 20, 1887 [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 552. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1887. PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
July 4th, 1887	301
The Racial Characteristics of Israel. By F. Gass. Part II.	302
The Rev. Josiah Strong, D.D., of the United States, on "The Anglo-Saxon and the World's Future"	303
Navigation Among the Ancient British, Phœnicians, and Hebrews. By J. Thomson. Part I.	304
Progress in St. Alban's	305
Are the British People Hebrews?	306
Review—Dr. Alder Smith, M.B., F.R.C.S., on Our Identity	306

JULY 4TH, 1887.

Surely Monday, July 4th, 1887, was a day much to be remembered by the House of Joseph. It was a day when the two sections of that House—namely, Ephraim and Manasseh, each in its separate way, Scripturally and literally testified to the world that God's Word recorded in Gen. xlviii. 19 was fulfilled in their two cases respectively, and that therefore His Word was true and worthy of all reliance, and that God is a faithful Creator fulfilling His promises; therefore, also His threats, to the very letter. On July 4th the American nation, which we know to be Manasseh of the House of Joseph, kept high holiday throughout their Western lands, celebrating with joy the fact that as on that day, more than one hundred years ago, they became an independent and "great" people, according to the prophecies. The following telegraphic news from America testifies to the fact very clearly. We take it from the Times of July 5th:—

PHILADELPHIA, JULY 4.

The 4th of July has been celebrated with the usual patriotic demonstrations throughout the United States. A special feature of the celebration was a reunion of Federal and Confederate soldiers on the Gettysburg battlefield, the occasion being the dedication of monuments marking the positions on the field where the Philadelphia Brigade of the Union troops met and repulsed Pickett's charge. Eight hundred survivors of the Philadelphia brigade and 300 survivors of Pickett's charging column met on the field, where many thousands of spectators had assembled, and held joint ceremonies, each side testifying to the burial of animosity. Mrs. Pickett came with her husband's troops. The festivities were continued all day, both organisations being encamped on the field.

"He also shall become a people, and he shall be great," is God's testimony respecting Manasseh. On July 4th the American people testified to the world that they had become a great and independent people when they separated from their brethren of Ephraim in anger. They now keep the day as one of national rejoicing, thus publicly notifying the fact to all the world that God's will has been done, and that on July 4th, 1776, the seal was put on the fulfilment by a solemn act of State.

But if Manasseh acted prophetically on July 4th, what occurred in Ephraim-Israel's—that is, in British—lands, to testify that God has not forgotten His promise to that section of the House of Joseph? On that date, a very red-letter day in our nation's history, Her Majesty Queen Victoria laid the foundation-stone (before 12,000 people gathered from all quarters and all classes of her dominions and subjects), of the Imperial Institute, which is meant to be a permanent memorial of her fifty years' reign, and the symbol of the extent of her sovereignty. She thereby proved that hers is a world-wide dominion, an Indian and Colonial Empire, one virtually federated already, and about to be ere long consolidated by political ties, which will fulfil the Scripture, "a nation and a company of nations shall be of thee" (Gen. xxxv. 11; xlviii. 19). That this is the object and purpose of the Imperial Institute appears from the Address of the Prince of Wales to the Queen on July 4th, and from Her Majesty's reply, portions of which we quote to illustrate our point. The Prince's Address stated, inter alia:—

It has been our desire, in pursuance of the ideas which gave birth to the Colonial and Indian Exhibition of 1886, to combine in some harmonious form a broader and more enduring representation of your Majesty's Colonies and India, as well as of the United Kingdom; and our confident hope is that this Institute may hereafter not only exhibit the material resources of the Empire, but may be an emblem of that Imperial unity of purpose and action which we believe has gathered strength and reality with every year of your Majesty's reign.

The Queen's gracious reply put the idea of Federation clearly before the nation in the following well-chosen words:—

One indirect result of that movement has been to bring more before the minds of men the vast and varied resources of the Empire over which Providence has willed that I should reign during fifty prosperous years.

I believe and hope that the Imperial Institute will play a useful part in combining those resources for the common advantage of all my subjects and in conducing towards the welding of the Colonies, India, and the Mother Country into one harmonious and united community.

In laying the foundation-stone of the building devoted to your labours, I heartily wish you God-speed in your undertaking.

Digitized by Google

The ceremony, then, which took place on July 4th, 1887, was Ephraim-Israel's public avowal of the necessity that exists for the Federation of the Empire, and the Queen's anticipation that the United Kingdom, the Colonies, and India will be finally "welded into ONE harmonious and united community." Then will be fulfilled the prophecy uttered by the Lord Jehovah Himself through His prophet Jacob: "but truly his (Manasseh's) younger brother (Ephraim) shall be greater than he" (that is, than Manasseh), "and his seed shall be a fulness of Goyim" (or Gentile peoples outside Palestine). The prayer which the Archbishop of Canterbury offered to the divine King of Israel in the name of the Queen and people was a very remarkable one, and demands a record in the BANNER. He said, speaking to the Lord:—

We yield Thee hearty thanks, O Heavenly Father, for the abundance of dominion, the loyal majesty and might of India and the Colonies, wherewith even to this year of jubilee, Thou hast multiplied the Empire of our Queen, and fortified it. We praise Thee for the swift increase of knowledge with power, freedom with reverence, and truth with faith, and for gifts untold above all that we could ask or think. And of all these things, O Lord, we pray Thee to make this Institute, for future and for past, an instrument and record. And humbly we beseech Thee to grant that, overmastering all base passion and selfish greed, protected against temptations and delivered from all evils, the unnumbered peoples of the Queen may be kept in dutiful remembrance of her laws and Throne, and serve Thee with brotherly bearing of one another's burdens; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Here were many Identity points solemnly urged on a historic occasion before the whole nation representatively assembled in an address to God Himself. The Archbishop declared that the Lord had given abundance of dominion, the heathen and Colonial Empires, swift increase of knowledge with power, the multiplication of the Empire and its fortification. He declared that the "peoples" of the Queen were "unnumbered," and prayed for them what amounts to the blessing of the new covenant of Jer. xxxi. 33, 34, and Heb. viii. 10, 12. These are all Israelite benefits, promised to Israel exclusively, but all claimed at God's hands by the Archbishop for the Queen's subjects, the British nation and peoples! (Psa. cxi. 16, ii. 8; Isa. xlix. 8; Hosea i. 10; Dan. vii. 27, etc.). The record of the Times concludes with some striking words which we must quote, as they well draw the contrast between the national Jubilee Thanksgiving of June 21 and the pageant and spectacle of July 4th, 1887, indicating a distinction which ought to be remembered. The writer said:—

As the eye roved from end to end of that great theatre and fell upon the thirty tiers of spectators rising from the floor in regular gradation until the topmost almost touched the canvas covering overhead, the mind unconsciously reverted to the Jubilee Thanksgiving in Westminster Abbey. The ceremonial of yesterday was felt by all who witnessed it to be a happy sequel and a fitting complement to that historic scene. But it was more than this, it was a contrast also. In the one case the prevailing sentiment was one of retrospection, in the other it was one of hopeful anticipation. And so the scene of yesterday, brilliant and imposing though it was, was fraught with an interest far deeper and far more abiding than any that pertains to mere spectacular magnificence. It was the symbol of the fact that the triumphs of peace have contributed more than those of war to the greatness of our Empire.

The blessing of the God of Israel has given our Empire the prosperity it enjoys, and whether it be for the mercies of the past or for the coming glories of the future, let us never forget that we owe our nation's thanks and praise to the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, who has given us all, because of His promises to them, and because He is the faithful covenant-keeping Jehovah.

ERRATUM.—Page 288, col. 1, line 50, read "the description of the two abnormal temporal blessings," &c.

THE RACIAL CHARACTERISTICS OF ISRAEL.

By F. GASS.

(Concluded from page 293).

PART II.

PROFESSOR HOSMER, referring to the Assyrian slabs, tells us that "according to the inscription on the slabs, the number of families that were driven from Samaria was twenty-seven thousand two hundred and eighty. These are the Ten Lost Tribes of the House of Israel, and one may see them sculptured on slabs like those in London (at the British Museum), some going to augment the splendour of Nineveh with unrewarded toil, some to people in distant and barren regions far to the East. There is no mistaking the Jewish faces; the same lines mark them which mark the faces of the Abrahams and Mordecais of to-day" (the italics are mine). This statement, if it is not, from some unexplained cause, a mistaken one, puts the matter at rest by demonstrating that the present Jewish physiognomy was common to the whole of the Twelve Tribes of Israel prior to the era of the captivities.

The Talmud, the traditional oral instruction of the Jews, faulty as it may be, has been held in high veneration among them for ages, ensuring by its prescriptions unity of faith and uniformity in ceremonial practices. It became a powerful moral barrier, a high surrounding wall, effectually neutralising the dissolving influences from outside. The probability is that this, and the honour paid to the Scriptures containing the law of Moses have kept them a comparatively pure race. But on the other hand, after the Assyrian captivity, the Israelites of the Ten Tribes, the progenitors of British-Israel, had no such safeguard to be "a lamp to their feet and a light to their way." They were in the bitter position of Lo-Ammi, God had cast them off and they were "not His people." They had lost their landmarks, the Scriptures and remembrance of their origin, and were among the heathen worshipping stocks and stones. Their religion was a mixture of false faiths. Having lost their material and moral anchorage it would have been a matter for wonder if they had not largely intermarried with the women of the nations among whom they were wanderers for a thousand years. There is therefore no difficulty in understanding that their physiognomy has undergone a change since they left Palestine two thousand six hundred years ago.

Another fertile cause of change of physical characteristics is due to climatic influences. An immense period of time has passed since Israel became a nomadic race, and for a large part of that time they, who were originally nurtured in a hot climate, have resided in a temperate, even a cold one. The descendant of a few generations of native-born Americans can be recognised in any part of the world by his form and features. Seeing that so great a change can take place in a branch of the Anglo-Saxon race in a couple of hundred years, what limit can we put to the change in British-Israel during a period at least ten times as long?

British-Israelites are a finer race of men than the Jews, taller and deeper chested. But it was not always so. The British people were once of smaller stature, and less breadth of limb than now. This is clear from the fact, well-known to military men, that an average sized Englishman cannot get into our old armour. The race, when well cared for, still progresses in a remarkable manner. It is stated on good authority that the normal schoolboy of to-day weighs several pounds heavier than his father did at the same age.*

Professor Hosmer says that "A little company of Hebrews had dwelt in Rome even from ante-Christian days. Unmixed with Romans or barbarians they had transmitted their blood. More indestructible than a column of brass, the little troop survived the Nemesis of the ages." It is reasonable to suppose that this colony of early emigrants, established before Christ,

* Standard, sub-leader, March, 1887.

Digitized by Google

must have had the peculiar Jewish cast of countenance, or they would not have been known as Hebrews. In the Revised Version, the alternative or marginal reading in Isaiah iii. 9, does not apply to a miraculous change of countenance, "Their respect of persons doth witness against them." Joseph's marriage to an Egyptian woman would tend to increase any original difference between the Ephraimites and the descendants of Judah.

THE REV. JOSIAH STRONG, D.D., OF THE UNITED STATES, ON "THE ANGLO-SAXON AND THE WORLD'S FUTURE."

A WORK entitled "Our Country: its Possible Future and its Present Crisis," has been published by the Rev. Josiah Strong, D.D., of New York, and the book has reached its 45th thousand. Its object is to persuade the American people that they are part of "the great Anglo-Saxon race destined to inherit the earth." He speaks of the British, their colonists, and the people of the United States, as all entitled to the same glorious privileges. To this race, he declares, belongs two great ideas, the first that of civil liberty, the other that of pure spiritual Christianity." Drawing a comparison between the Anglo-Saxon Protestantism and the Protestantism of the Continent, he declares that the latter has degenerated into mere formalism. In Berlin and Leipsic only a little over one per cent. of the Protestant population are found in church. "Protestantism on the Continent seems to be about as poor in spiritual life and power as Catholicism. "And," adds Dr. Strong, "that means that most of the spiritual Christianity in the world is found among the Anglo-Saxons and their converts, for this is the great missionary race" (p. 160). The evangelisation of the world, says our author, must be looked for chiefly from the English and American peoples, for German contributions received by all their missionary societies together do not equal those of the smallest of the three great English missionary societies, either as to the number of workers or the amount of contributions." "The Anglo-Saxon," he considers, "is divinely commissioned to be, in a peculiar sense, his brother's keeper." He has the peculiar blessings to administer to the world, which are included in pure spiritual Christianity and civil liberty combined (p. 161). "Besides that," says Dr. Strong, "the destiny of this race is shown by its rapidly increasing faculty. In 1700 the race numbered only 6,000,000 souls. In 1800 they were 20,500,000, and in 1880 they were 100,000,000 strong. They multiplied five-fold in 80 years. The expansion of the race, he shows, too, is unique. "In one century the United States has increased its territory ten-fold, while the enormous acquisition of foreign territory by Great Britain, and chiefly within the last hundred years, is wholly unparalleled in history." "The mighty Anglo-Saxon race," wrote Dr. Strong, on pp. 161 and 162, though comprising only one-fifteenth part of mankind, now rules more than one-third of the earth's surface, and more than one-fourth of its people. If this race, while growing from 6 millions to 100 millions, thus gained possession of a third portion of the earth, is it to be supposed that when it numbers 1,000 millions, it will lose the disposition, or lack the power to extend its sway?" In regard to the rapidly multiplying power of the Anglo-Saxon race, the Doctor writes, on p. 162, quite eloquently: "This race," he says, "is multiplying not only more rapidly than any other European race, but far more rapidly that all the races of Continental Europe." In 1980 he thinks its numbers will reach 1,343 millions of souls, while those of the Continent, at present rates of increase, will be only 534 millions. On p. 163 our author notices the fact that when Germany loses her sons by emigration they go to the Anglo-Saxon Colonies, and there in one generation become, as to their children, Anglo-Saxons themselves! We do not follow Dr. Strong when he goes on to anticipate that the American branch of the Anglo-Saxons will be in future the ruling, governing dominant race, because of its vast population, and its immense country. The Americans according to him are to be supreme; for and they occupy "the latitude of power." Dr. Strong notices that the English language is to be the language of the world, the great agent of Christian civilization throughout it (p. 178). In fact "We," he wrote, "of this generation and nation occupy the Gibraltar of the ages, which commands the world's future" (p. 180).

"Time's noblest offspring is the last,"

In respect to all this and a vast deal more of the same kind which runs through this book, we could ask Dr. Strong, "If the Anglo-Saxon race are to inherit the earth, what becomes of the solemn oath of God to Abraham that his seed was to do so; unless the Anglo-Saxons are Israel?" He notices, as we have seen, the possession by the Anglo-Saxons of "a pure spiritual Christianity," and "Civil Liberty." But where could they have got these apart from God's blessing to Israel (the after-seed of Abraham) to whom was promised the presence of the Spirit of God, in Exod. xxix. 45, 46; Haggai ii. 5; and Matt. xxviii. 20? Theirs also was the promise of the Word of God (Psa. cxlvii. 19, 20); the kingdom of God (Matt. xxi. 43); and the Gospel of God (Gen. xxii. 18: xxviii. 14; Acts iii. 25).

Dr. Strong admits that the evangelization of the world is chiefly to be looked for from the "English and American peoples." But God declared in Isa. xxvii. 6 that "Israel should blossom and bud and fill the face of the world with fruit." "The English and Americans," therefore, must either be the peoples of Israel, and are thus found to possess their blessings, or God's Word has failed; and not Israel at all, but another (alien) race has inherited this Israelite benefit, which God forbid! The rapid increase of the Anglo-Saxon race is admitted by the Doctor to be unique. It is "wholly unparalleled in history," as he allows (p. 161). But this is a certain sign of Israel's Identity in these last days. In Hosea i. 10 the Prophet declared that Israel in its outcast condition was to become "as the sand of the sea which cannot be measured nor numbered" and Zech. x. 6—9 uttered predictions which were to the same effect. The Anglo-Saxon increase in population has been and is unparalleled in history; and Israel's was to be the same, according to the prophecies. Dr. Strong admits that the Anglo- Saxon race now rules over more than one-third of the earth's surface, and more than one-fourth of its people! God's Word predicts that this shall be the very destiny of His people Israel, if obedient to His will. "Thou shalt reign over many nations," He said, "but they shall not reign over thee" (Deut. xv. 6).

In short, Dr. Strong, in his chapter on "The Anglo-Saxon and the World's Future," has been blindly drawing the portrait of "Israel in the latter days," according to the Scriptures, while writing almost a monograph on the subject of the British and American Anglo-Saxon races, in their wonderful increase and expansion, their imperial position in the world, and their moral superiority over all the other nations of the earth in respect to their possession of a pure spiritual Christianity and civil and religious liberty, which have their home among them. To those who desire to read Dr. Strong's book, and it is well worth perusal, we recommend them to write for a copy from The Baker and Taylor Co., 9, Bond Street, New York, U.S., or to the Rev. Josiah Strong, D.D., at "The American Home Missionary Society," New York. The price is fifty cents. in cloth, twenty-five cents. in paper covers.

The friend who sent us the work for perusal writes thus: "You will see how Dr. Strong, starting from quite a different point, arrives at the conclusion that the Anglo-Saxons are to rule the world; but though writing with strong religious sentiments it has never apparently occurred to him that he is very successfully proving the truth of the promises made "to Abraham and his seed for ever" by God, and that these are rapidly being fulfilled.

Digitized by Google

NAVIGATION AMONG THE ANCIENT BRITISH, PHŒNICIANS, AND HEBREWS.

By J. Thomson.

PART I.

I.—THE ANCIENT BRITISH NAVY.

That the ancient Britons had a navy something better than that with which they have generally been credited, is evident; for without ships, of some reasonable size, they could not have carried on the foreign trade, which it is acknowledged they possessed. Julius Solinus describes the ancient British "coracles," and says that they who used them "abstain from eating during their passage from Britain to Ireland, lest they should overweight their vessels!" It is indeed wonderful what some people will believe! Their faith must be great that believe this. Coracles similar to the ancient ones, (which were made of wicker work, or light wood, and covered with skins), are still used on the Wye, and the upper parts of the Severn, and other rivers in Wales, by fishermen:* but if our old British ancestors did indeed use such to cross over from Britain to Ireland, they were very clever, and brave fellows. We should like to see some one try it now-a-days; and he can have a week's fasting beforehand to boot, that he may become "as light as a feather." Or, failing a "coracle," the venture may be tried in an Oxford or Cambridge outrigger. Just as well may a visitor from China or Japan, describing a University boat race, try to persuade his countrymen that such boats constituted the present navy of Great Britain!

The ancient Britons, no doubt, covered their ships with skins, as Julius Cæsar describes them doing; just as we now sheath ours with copper, zinc, and iron; and possibly, for the same reasons—to increase their strength, and for protection: but then their ships must still have been of considerable size, for otherwise they could not have sent their wheat and their tin to Gaul, which we are assured that they did. Indeed, from one account we might infer, if read without due thought, that no timber was at all used in the construction of these vessels, and which, notwithstanding, we are informed were used to transport tin across the sea. It would be very difficult indeed to make vessels of skins only, that could carry such weights as ingots of tin; ballast is required to make even a timber-built ship sail properly; but what could any one do with skins only in making a ship? Adamnan, in his life of St. Columba, describes the "currach," which that apostle of Scotland employed in his voyages, as "possessing all the parts of a ship, with sails, and oars, and with a capacity for passengers;" and, he adds, that in this roomy, though seeming fragile vessel, he sailed into the North Sea, and during fourteen days, remained there in perfect safety.† Cæsar speaks of the navy of Gaul as being a full match for his own, and indeed superior in build; while from Acts xvii. 37, 38 we know that the Roman merchant vessels were occasionally large in size; and as he also describes the Britons as instructing the Gauls in many important matters, we can hardly imagine that they were so much their inferiors in navigation. How, it may be asked, without a greater navy than the Britons are generally supposed to have had, did the Belgæ invade Britain about 350 B.C.? The Britons also sent a fleet to assist their allies the Veneti (a kindred tribe in Britany), when Cæsar made war against them; and the destruction of this fleet at that time by Cæsar, was the principal reason for his finding no naval opposition to him when he shortly afterwards invaded Britain. The possession of ships, i.e., of vessels built of planks, with beams, and decks, is an evidence of civilization: while a canoe, i.e., a vessel hollowed out of a tree, or one piece of wood, is an evidence of barbarism, as it is the product of a degenerate mind. Centuries before the era of Julius Cæsar, the Hebrews, Phœnicians, and Carthagenians had commercial intercourse with Britain; from them the Britons most probably learnt the art of ship building, they, most probably, being the first colonists of this country; and it is not at all likely that during the interval between the overthrow of the Carthagenian empire in the third century B.C., and the advent of the Romans, that the Britons had lost the art, and that all they possessed in the way of ships, was the ancient "coracle"; but they must have had vessels fit for the navigation of the wider seas, and even to take safely a voyage of 2,000 to 3,000 miles, as from Carthagenia, Palestine, and Phœnicia in the East, to the British Isles in the West.

II. ANCIENT KNOWLEDGE OF THE MARINERS' COMPASS.

It may here be objected that the voyages of the ancient British, as also those of other ancient nations, must have been very circumscribed and limited to coasting, for they had no knowledge of the mariners' compass; which is assumed to be a modern discovery. But that this assumption is very questionable, to say the least, is certain; for there is much evidence to the contrary. Mr. Godfrey Higgins, in his "Celtic Druids," says, "It is not unlikely that Marco Polo might bring home what he thought a modern discovery, but the mariners' compass was certainly previously known in Europe." Alonzo el Sabio, in his code of laws promulgated in 1260, observes,—"And as mariners guide themselves in the dark by the needle, which is the medium between the magnet and the star; in like manner ought those who have to counsel the king, always to guide themselves by justice." Fuller, in his "Miscellanies," asserts that the Phœnicians knew the use of it: and which knowledge they tried to conceal from others by all possible means. The Rev. William Maurice in his "Ind. Antiq." (vi. 191—199), says that "the magnet is mentioned by the most ancient classical writers, under the name of Lapis Heraclius, after its asserted inventor, Hercules."

He also contends that the vase given by Apollo to Hercules in which he sailed over the ocean, contained the mariners' compass; and quotes the passage in Homer which describes the vessels of the Phæacians (i.e. Phœnicians) as "instinct with mind," and gliding through the pathless ocean, without a pilot to guide them, as alluding to the compass.* The name of this stone, Lapis Heraclius, and the gift of it from Apollo to Hercules, is important evidence. Hercules, in the symbolical Phœnician literature, was the personification of the Phœnician mariner, and Apollo was the north star. The stone pointed northwards to its reputed divinity; which is evidently the meaning of the name Lapis Heraclius. In the Sanconiathon, i.e., the old beginning of time, an ancient fragment of Phœnician literature handed down to us by the Greeks, we read, "It was the god Ouranos devised Betulia, contriving stones that moved as having life."† That is Ouranos, (which was Astronomy personified) taught Hercules, (the Phœnician mariner) that the magnet pointed to Apollo (or the north star) who thereby is said to have given the magnet to Hercules.‡

In addition to this very ancient allegorical tradition, we are informed by Dr. Hyde that the Chaldeans and Arabians have immemorially made use of the magnet to guide them over the vast adjoining deserts: and 1,000 years B.C. according to the Chinese records, the Emperor Ching Vang presented the Ambassadors of the king of Cochin-China with a sort of mag-

* "Boats made of wicker, and covered with a skin, resembling the upper skin of a tortoise (whence the fabled tortoise-shell boats), are frequently used for passing rivers in different parts of India. Boats of a similar structure are found in Wales, where they are called coracles. They are supposed to have derived their name from being covered with coria or hides."—Lane's "Arabian Nights," Vol. III., note on p. 93. New Edition. London: Bickers & Son, Leicester-square. 1877.

† 'Gazetteer of Scotland," Intro., p. lviii.

* Pope's "Homer's Odyssey," B. viii. lines 601—616.

† Is this not very probably what the Apostle Peter had in view as his illustration, in 1 Peter ii. 4, 5?

‡ "Etruria Celtica," II., pp. 10, 19, 22, 268. Edition, 1842.

Digitized by Google

netic index. The Chinese call this instrument chinan, a name by which, at this day, they denominate the mariner's compass.

In addition to these testimonies may be added a bronze Etrusco-Phœnician nautical compass of eight points, now in the museum at Florence, and also a smaller similar compass of eight points, sculptured on a tomb in marble at Perugia; plates of both are given in Sir W. Betham's "Etruria Celtica" (Vol. II.) On each of these, according to Sir W. Betham, there is an inscription fully explaining its use; which inscriptions he has, by the aid of the old Irish character, rendered intelligible to modern readers. That on the bronze at Florence runs thus; "In the night on a voyage, out or home, in sailing happily, always in clear weather, is known the course of going." The inscription on the other, found on the tomb, in our idiom reads thus: "This power of steering, in boisterous voyages, on the ocean, by night and day, out and home, over the ocean, enabled us when on the ocean to guide the rudder." This evidence may not satisfy those who will not believe, or cannot conceive how the ancients had so much scientific knowledge; but, as Sir W. Betham observes, "we confess and feel that it demands and coerces acquiescence in its truth. It is more difficult to refuse, than to admit its force."*

It is only proper, however, here to observe that some modern authorities differ considerably from Sir W. Betham respecting this supposed Etruscan "nautical compass;" one even calling his discovery of it, a "mare's nest." Thus, in Dennis's "Cities and Cemeteries of Etruria"† (II. p. 105, note), we read; "Sir William Betham, when he found this mare's nest, had evidently made acquaintance with the relic only through illustrations, which all present but one view of it. Had he personally inspected it, he must have confessed it a lamp" ("an eight-branched lamp") as it is described in the text), "with the holes for the wicks, and reservoir for the oil. The inscription runs in a circle round the bottom," and Mr. Dennis gives it in Roman letters, but does not venture upon any interpretation; which, perhaps, shows wisdom on his part, and is hardly to be wondered at, seeing he has confessed that "the language of Etruria, even in an age which has unveiled the Egyptian hieroglyphics, and the arrow-headed character of Babylon, still remains a mystery," (I. pp. xlvi. —xlvii). In the centre of this assumed "lamp," ne "compass," is a "Medusa's head, with wings on the temples, as on the lamps in the tomb of the Volumni at Perugia" (see also II., pp. 402—405; 442). We shall here leave this question to be decided by our readers for themselves, according as they may estimate the value of the evidence produced: for in such a case, where eminent authorities differ, who shall decide? At some other time we may, perhaps, try to answer the question, "Who were the Etruscans?"

(To be continued).

PROGRESS IN ST. ALBANS.

A FRESH centre of Anglo-Israelite influence has suddenly shown itself in St. Albans and Luton (Herts).

The Editor of The St. Albans Chronicle, Mr. John Clarke, on March 9th, delivered a capital lecture on the subject, "The English Nation the Lost Tribes of Israel," at St Albans. A full report of the same appears in the journal of the lecturer. The address was given to the members of the St. Albans Liberal Club, the room being crowded. After it was concluded an animated discussion arose on the historical and scriptural aspects of the question, which the lecturer was able successfully to carry on. The result of the lecture was that a number of the members of the club expressed their belief in the Identity. Mr. Clarke is going shortly, he tells us, to deliver a lecture at Luton where he resides, and he seems very earnest in his desire to make known what he calls, quite correctly, "our glorious" truths far and wide. It is a great satisfaction to us to find that an advocate of such a subject as ours is found at last among the conductors of our secular journals, and that he is not only an able man, but one quite anxious, willing and resolved to make personal efforts to publish the good tidings abroad to the best of his ability, and wherever his influence can be made to reach.

We fear we can hardly promise to make room in our crowded columns for even a short résumé of Mr. Clarke's excellent lecture, but we feel tempted to quote his Chairman's speech, as given in the report, because it very exactly expresses our own views on the subject he dealt with. Mr. Joseph Bell, the president during the lecture, said

That he had not read much about the subject, which he considered a very important one, for two reasons, one being that if it was proved that we were Israel, then those promises of greatness, prosperity and peace mentioned in the Bible as being the future portion of Israel were ours, and, secondly, because if this theory was true it was a great argument in favour of the truth of the inspiration of the Bible

Surely the Cui bono? question never received two such satisfactory and concise replies!

Mr. Clarke, the lecturer, divided his subject into two parts. 1. The history of the Tribes subsequent to the Assyrian Captivity; and 2. the Scriptural Identifications of the British with Israel. The conclusion of the lecture was to the following effect:—

From the date of the Reformation, England, once a barbarous and idolatrous nation, has stood before the world as the foremost Christian nation, and from the commencement of the present century she has pioneered the way in missionary work, and later still she has assumed the championship of the cause of liberty. Where was Israel to be found? All the prophets seem to be agreed upon this matter. They are to come from the North, from the isles and from the coasts of the earth, that is, from all parts of the earth. Anglo-Israel is to be found in every country. Jeremiah in chap. xxxi. says—"Behold, I will bring them from the North country, and gather them from the coasts of the earth . . . . for I am a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my first-born. Hear the word of the Lord . . . and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him and keep him, as a shepherd doth his flock." This clearly shows that the tribes were to be found in the North, and inhabiting the isles, and yet they were to be gathered from "the coasts of the earth." In every part of the world the Briton can be found. Another remarkable thing is that we read in Jeremiah xxxiii; "For thus saith the Lord; David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the House of Israel," and to emphasize this He adds, "If ye can break My covenant of day, and My covenant of the night, and that there should not be day and night in their season; then may also My covenant be broken with David My servant, that he should not have a son to reign upon his throne." That is to say, "if you can prevent the recurrence of night and day, then My promise might be broken, but so certain as night and day occur, so certain it is that David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the House of Israel." This is plain speaking, and although Israel has been lost 2,000 years, God cannot lie, and the throne of David has always been occupied by his descendants. I will tell you how. I think it has been clearly proved that the Saxons or Angles are the Israelites, and Snorre Sturleson, who compiled the chronicles of the early kings of Norway, says of Odin "That he migrated in a North-westerly direction from Scythia, that he was a chief of a Scythian tribe who first was settled at Asgard, the metropolis of a mighty empire situated by the Don, after which he acquired supreme power in the North." This Odin was he from whom the Saxon kings traced their descent, and was a Scythian and an Israelite. This is not all, the ancient Irish historians are agreed that the first kings of Ireland were descended from an Irish Prince, who was one of the escaped Danites, and the descent of Queen Victoria is clearly traced to this source. The whole genealogy can be obtained at the Identity office in Paternoster Row, having been compiled by the Rev. A. B. Grimaldi, B.A., and an ancient manuscript can be seen in the Herald's College, London, which gives the genealogy of Odin from David. There are many other matters in connection with this point, but I must

* "Etruria Celtica," II. pp. 267—272.

† London; John Murray, Albemarle Street. 1878.

Digitized by Google

mention one thing I came across in an old Irish history published more than 120 years ago, in the year 1763, written by F. Warner, LL.D., in which is an account of the Coronation Stone in Westminster Abbey, upon which all our kings and queens have been crowned. It states that this stone, which is also known as Jacob's pillar, or the Stone of Destiny, was brought to Ireland from a Danish or Dante City, and that there was a tradition with it that in whatever country it was preserved a prince of the Scythian or Israelite race would undoubtedly govern. This stone was removed to Scotland by an Irish prince, who became the king of Scotland, being crowned as Fergus I., and was kept in the Abbey of Scoon, all the kings of Scotland being crowned upon it until the time of Edward I. of England, who, upon becoming king of Scotland, had the stone removed to Westminster Abbey, where it has remained ever since. This Irish history also states that Ireland was peopled about 600 B.C., by the Scythians, who came from near the Caspian Sea, and were of Hebrew descent. Here then we have the Stone of Israel, the symbol or pledge so to speak of our Israelitish descent, the guarantee that our monarchs are really of the House of David.

There are many marks of Identity which I have not been able to touch upon, and must therefore leave for another occasion, but you may enquire, "What advantage is all this to us?" Well, in these times of trade depression, when the clouds of trouble are hanging thickly overhead, and on every hand the "dogs of war" are ready to slip from the leash, and our old enemy Russia is assembling her millions in order to make one final desperate attempt to crush us, it may be some comfort to know that we are that nation to whom it is said, "Fear not, O Jacob, neither be dismayed, O Israel, for I am with thee . . . . I will accept you with your sweet savour, when I bring you out from among the people and gather you out of the countries wherein ye have been scattered . . . . and ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall bring you into the land of Israel, into the country for which I lifted up Mine hand to give it to your fathers . . . . Behold, I will take the stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel his fellows, and will put them with him, even with the stick of Judah, and make them one stick, and they shall be one in Mine hand . . . . and I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel, and one king shall be king to them all; and they shall be no more divided into two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all . . . . Moreover I will make a covenant of peace with them; it shall be an everlasting covenant . . . . My tabernacle also shall be with them; yea, I will be their God, and they shall be My people . . . . And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a lion among the beasts of the forest, as a young lion among the flocks of sheep; who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver. Thine hand shall be lifted up upon thine adversaries, and all thine enemies shall be cut off . . . . The nations shall see and be confounded at all their might . . . . At that time will I bring you again, even in the time that I gather you: for I will make you a name and a praise among all the people of the earth."

ARE THE BRITISH PEOPLE HEBREWS?

LECTURE AT MIDDLESBOROUGH.

On Wednesday evening the first of a series of addresses upon the above subject was given in the Temperance Hall, Middlesborough, by Mr. R. Lamb. There was a fair attendance, the chair being taken by Mr. Henry Howe.

The Chairman in opening the meeting said that from what he had heard at previous lectures by the speaker of the evening he felt that the proposition advanced was a revelation of truth, and he grew more interested the more he heard about it.

Mr. Lamb then addressed the meeting. He pointed out the circumstances of the Assyrian captivity, and adduced proof from the Assyrian monuments that the outcasts of Israel were placed under the Magian religion, and quoted from an independent source to show that the Druidic religion of Ancient Britain was identical with the worship of Apostate Ephraim under Jeroboam. The locality of Israel's exile coincided with the geographical locality of the Ancient Saxons and Cymry, in North-West Asia, as pointed out by Turner, the historian of the Anglo-Saxons. He explained that these outcast Hebrews were the heirs of the temporal part of the Abrahamic covenant, while Judah or the Jews were the heirs of the spiritual part of that covenant. These people, outcast and mingled among the heathen, were still under the eye of Divine Providence destined to fulfil a glorious destiny, not solely on account of their fleshly descent, but in conjunction with their conversion to Christianity from heathenism. This was the reason why immediately our people at the time of the Reformation turned to a purer faith, and said as predicted, "What have I to do any more with idols?" they then began to increase in numbers and power until we were now, as the Times expressed it, "filling continents, fringing oceans, and making the whole world our home." He argued that Ephraim at the time of the restoration would be a righteous nation keeping the truth, a strong nation, a messenger-people declaring God's glory from a place of rest and safety in the isles, an oceanic Power having vast colonies. In regard to this restoration of Israel he said that there would be a partial restoration of the Jews first, and the reason given by the Scripture was that the stronger nation of Ephraim should not have occasion to say that it was by their power alone it was accomplished, thus magnifying themselves against their weaker brethren, the Jewish people. Afterwards, however, the two people would return together, the strong Christian missionary nation of Ephraim taking the scattered and peeled Jews as an offering to give in Jerusalem. Much had happened during the last twenty years to bring this about—the purchase of the Suez Canal shares, then the acquisition of Cyprus, next the Anglo-Turkish Convention, and lastly our occupation of Egypt. He had no doubt that our statesmen of both parties would be glad to get out of Egypt, but that was impossible, for the Bible declared that at the Restoration, Egypt would be in alliance with Israel (i.e., the British people), or under their influence. He quoted the Apocrypha to show that the exiles emigrated into Europe in the direction of the British Isles, and referred to the interesting collection of inscriptions from the Crimea now preserved at St. Petersburgh showing traces of that migration, and agreeing in some measure with statements in the Welsh Triads.—The Daily Exchange, Middlesborough, April 28, 1887.

Review.

DR. ALDER SMITH, M.B., F.R.C.S., ON OUR IDENTITY.*

In the July number of Hope and Destiny, p. 94, we had a valuable paper contributed by Dr. Alder Smith, M.B., F.R.C.S., being one read by the author at the meeting of "the Prophecy Investigation Society," on April 29th, 1887. At that meeting the Dean of Ripon presided, and Dr. Alder Smith was supported by the Rev. Robert Douglas, M.A., Douglas A. Onslow, Esq., J.P., Surgeon-General J. M. Grant, M.D., and Rev. S. A. Adam, M.A., of Wolverhampton, all believers in the Identity of the British Nation with the lost Ten Tribes of Israel. Dr. Alder Smith made much of the elementary point so often greatly neglected in such investigations, namely, that whereas "all Jews are Israelites, not all the Israelites are Jews." He also from first to last avoided the statement that the British were Lost Israel. He left that inference for his hearers to draw, but contented himself with describing in detail some of the signs God put upon His People (destined to be lost) in order that they might be discovered in these our last days "of the Christian Dispensation." He commenced his argument by asking the question, "Where are the Ten Tribes?" not among the Afghans or Nestorians! not amalgamated with the Jews, not united with the latter in the return from Babylon. Putting these hypotheses aside as untenable the opener at the discussion laid down three points: First, The separation of Israel from Judah in the time of Rehoboam. Secondly, The dispersion of Judah about A.D. 70. Thirdly, The Captivity of the Ten Tribes by the kings of Assyria in B.C. 721, and their disappearance from Scriptural history ever after. Their coming reunion with Judah during Millennial times he said was provided for by the prophet Ezekiel in chapter xxxvii. 16–27; and he laid it down as a point which could not reasonably be disputed that the Ten Tribes are not now amalgamated with the Jews, but are existing somewhere distinct from them, waiting for the coming reunion with them, and return to their common land. Looking back to God's covenants made with Abraham for the benefit of these people, Dr. Alder Smith found that these were threefold. First, that the seed of Israel would become a great nation. Second, that the Messiah would come from them; and third, that they would develop into many nations (Gen. xvii. 8; xxii. 18; xxii. 4, 17). He took it for granted that these promises were literal, not spiritual only, and gave scriptural proof thereof. These promises, it was contended, were in course of time divided amongst the sons of Jacob. The Messiah was to come of Judah; the land was to be the common possession of Jacob's twelve sons. But "the Company of Nations," including the Birthright, was to be Joseph's, and from him Ephraim's and Manasseh's (Gen. xlviii. 4, 14—19). These promises to Joseph and his sons, it was strongly contended, were not fulfilled in Old Testament times. They were reserved, as Jacob himself declared for "the last days" (Gen. xlix. 1). "The last or latter days," Dr. Alder Smith proved, by reference to Heb. i. 2; 1. Peter i. 20; 1. Tim. iv. 1; 2. Tim. iii. 1; Jude 18; Dan. ii. 28, x. 14; Isa. ii. 2, to be a scriptural expression, descriptive of, and confined to the Christian dispensation. It never referred to Old Testament times. It could not relate to Millennial days. The blessings conferred on Joseph and his posterity, then, must be fulfilled in our own Christian dispensation times, and we must find Joseph now enjoying the birthright or double portion, including multitudinousness or the fulness of nations, as his special gifts. The argument that Joseph had these blessings conferred on his seed before the captivity, was negatived by the fact that the blessings described in Deut. xxxiii. 17; Hosea i. 10, and Zech. x. 6—9, as Ephraim's were never enjoyed by that House during that period of their history. Zechariah's prophecy indeed was dated long after Israel's captivity.

* "Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time, and What will be Their Place in the Millennium?" Being a paper read before "The Prophecy Investigation Society," on April 29th, 1887, by Alder Smith, M.B., F.R.C.S. Robert Banks & Son, Racquet Court, Fleet Street. Price Sixpence.

Digitized by Google

The result is that we have to look for Israel's uprising into a mighty and prosperous nationality during the present dispensation, but not before. The signs given to us whereby to know the restored House of Israel, are wanting in the case of the Afghans and Nestorians, and decide the matter against them! Dr. Alder Smith candidly admitted that he was himself long an opponent to the Anglo-Israelites, and his opposition had reference to this one point. He could not see that "the great nation's" blessing was to be Israel's till after their restoration. Inquiry had resulted in convincing him that that view was erroneous.

Dr. Alder Smith referred to Deut. iv. 27—31; Hosea i. 10; Isa. liv. 1, as scriptures in point, and came to the conclusion that they indicate that the Ten Tribes were to be greatly multiplied before their reunion with the House of Judah. They were then to become "Sons of the Living God," that is Christians: another indication of the chronology of Israel's reappearance before men. It was noticed that St. Paul, in quoting Hosea i. 10, in Rom. ix, spoke of the calling of the Gentiles, whereas the prophet was writing to the Ten Tribes; a pregnant hint that the Ten Tribes were to be discovered in this dispensation, apparently as Gentiles, but Christians in reality of the House of Joseph.

Dr. Alder Smith pointed out that "the wilderness" to which Israel was to be allured by the Lord, as described in Hosea ii. 14, was not necessarily a barren desert place, but was some spot to the West of Palestine (Hosea xi. 10), where in "the latter days" they were to be cured of their idolatry.

In referring to the prophecies of Isaiah respecting Israel, as distinct from the Jews, Dr. Alder Smith made a fine point by quoting the "Speaker's Commentary" on Isaiah x. 22, thus: "Ephraim was soon to be cut off from being a people. It should lose its name, and be scattered across the Gentile world, not however to perish, but (in accordance with that mysterious oracle in Gen. xlviii, 16—19) to multiply like fish in the midst of the earth, and to become the fulness of the nations." What the learned writer in the "Speaker's Commentary" says must happen, is only what Dr. Alder Smith said had happened. References were made to Isa. l., liii., and liv. to show the literal character of this prophet's utterances, and that when speaking of Israel he pointed invariably to the Ten-Tribed House. Dr. Alder Smith alluded to the fact that just after the Messianic chapter liii., the Ten Tribes and their work for Christ, and condition as a Christian people, became the subject of chapter liv. There they are shown to be multiplying, blessing the Gentile world, and glorifying God as His people.

Dr. Alder Smith showed that the spiritualising interpretations of such prophecies as Isa. lxv. 1, and Jer. iii., were untenable, because these promises refer to the "divorced wife" of Jehovah, and it was impossible to give all the curses literally to the Jews, but the promises, spiritualised, not to Ephraim-Israel, but to the Christian Church.

Dr. Alder Smith brought his paper to a close by asking "what great modern nation would most certainly take possession of Palestine, and then restore the Jews?" That nation would do so, he answered, which responds to Isaiah's prophecy in chapter lx. 9, and has "the isles," and "ships of Tarshish," has "the nation and company or fulness of nations" as its qualification, and attracts the Jews to them according to the "Speaker's Commentary" on Jer. iii. 18. That nation having a conflict with Russia is ready to withstand her as "the merchants of Tarshish with all the young lions thereof" (Ezek. xxxviii. 13).

The paper ended with the following telling peroration, which we commend to our readers, and to our opponents' attention as well:—

"I contend I have proved from Scripture that the so-called Lost Ten Tribes ('Joseph's House,' 'Ephraim,' 'the House of Israel,' 'Israel,') are to be a great host before the return to the Holy Land; even during these 'latter' or 'last days,' and that they must be found 'as the sand of the sea,' as 'the sons of the living God,' before the re-union with Judah; also that they must exist as a 'a fulness of nations,' as 'a nation and a company of nations'; having the 'blessings of the deep,' and having already pushed 'the peoples, all of them, even to the ends of the earth,' and inhabiting 'the isles of the sea' in the 'West' from Palestine. Thus Joseph's descendants when recognised by their brethren will be found the head—not of a single nation, as their founder was discovered—but 'the chief of the nations' (Jer. xxxi. 7). Do remember that Christ came to confirm the Abrahamic covenant, or as Romans xv. tells us, 'that He might confirm the promises given unto the fathers;' and that Hebrews viii. informs us that the new covenant with the House of Israel came into operation 1,800 years ago. Have these eighteen centuries passed by, and are these promises given to the fathers still unfulfilled? Christ also said, 'The kingdom of God shall be taken away from you'—that is the Jews—'and shall be given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof' (Matt. xxi. 43). Referring to the 'other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their seasons,' I ask you, where is this 'nation bringing forth the fruits thereof?' For the solution of this nineteenth century mystery you must look around to see what nation has already fulfilled the prophecies spoken of old concerning the House of Israel. As an old antagonist of the view contended for, and one fully aware of all the texts generally quoted against it, I beseech you to give it your earnest consideration once more; as it is a matter of vital importance to us, as prophetic students, not to make a mistake upon so weighty a matter, in these 'latter days.'"

Such was Dr. Alder Smith's excellent paper. We are glad he has issued it as a separate pamphlet, and thus put it within the reach of many beside those who heard it read, or have perused it since in the pages of Hope and Destiny.

We attach great value to this paper by reason of the fact that the writer, once a resolute enemy, is now a strong and powerful friend, a man of ability and standing, who cannot but be of future service to a cause which is distinctly God's. The paper is useful because it takes nothing for granted, leaves a large margin for further inquiry, and, though it does not mention the name of the nation, yet clearly points to the inevitable conclusion that the British nation is the Lost House of Israel of the Ten Tribes. The argument and mode of it were just suited to the audience before whom it was delivered, composed mostly of clerics, with a Dean at their head! But we regret to learn that in spite of the ability of our friends who supported the opener, Dr. Alder Smith's paper, though received respectfully, did not apparently convert any of the Prophetical Investigation Society then present to the writer's views. Dr. Alder Smith is now about to send a copy to each member of the Association, and we trust God will bless that effort to spread the knowledge of this glorious truth.

MR. REUBEN HARRIS, of the Ark, Paradise-street, Rotherhithe, London, is about to visit Scotland, and is willing to make arrangements to deliver free lectures.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS.

	£ s. d.
Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free	0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers)	0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ...	1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ...	1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ...	1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

Just Ready. Price 2/6, cloth, gilt, bevelled boards, Imperial 8vo., free for P.O.

A CONSECRATED LIFE.

A MEMOIR

OF THE

RIGHT REV. BISHOP TITCOMB, D,D.

By the Rev. ALLEN T. EDWARDS, M.A., Cantab.

With an Introduction by the Right Rev. the LORD BISHOP of ROCHESTER.

Frontispiece: Cabinet size PHOTO-PORTRAIT of the late BISHOP by Messrs. Elliot and Fry.

CONTENTS:

Introduction. 1.—Early Life to the Period of His First Curacy. 2.—Cambridge Ministry. 3.—London Life and Woking. 4.—Rangoon. 5.—Northern and Central Europe. Appendix.—1. Funeral Sermon by the Rev. J. McCann, D.D. 2. Sermon by Bishop Titcomb. 3. Public Work in Rangoon in one year. 4. Tabular Statement of Tours in Northern and Central Europe. 5. Consecration of St. George's Church, Berlin.

R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London.

Price 6d., by post 7d.; Annual Subscription, 2s. 6d., post free.

THE JULY QUARTERLY PART

OF

ISRAEL'S HOPE & DESTINY

CONTENTS:

IMPORTANT PAPER BY DR. ALDER SMITH

Jubilee Hymn. By Hecla.—The Jubilee of Queen Victoria.—Honour to Whom Honour is Due.—Gog's Attempted Invasion Against Israel. Does it Take Place in India or Palestine? Being Alexander MacPhail's Second Reply to John T. Crosthwait's Views.—"The Ancient of Days"—Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time? and What Will be Their Place in the Millennium? By Dr. Alder Smith, F.R.C.S.—Armageddon. By John Gilder Shaw.—How to Preserve a Record. By A. M. Searle.—Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association.—Review.—Mother of Nations.

"In Israel's Hope and Destiny (R. Banks and Son) the most elaborate paper is one by Dr. Alder Smith, who now accepts the 'great nation's theory' which he formerly for years opposed. This will have no meaning for most of our readers; a few, however, know that it refers to the Anglo-Israel craze. The intense earnestness with which the writers in this periodical advance their speculations is a phenomenon we contemplate with mixed feelings."—From Christian Leader, July 21, 1887.

London: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; F. W. PARRY (late Guest, Hayworth & Co.), 29, Paternoster-row.

PRICE 4d.

AN EXPOSITION OF JEREMIAH LI.

BY THE

REV. H. MARRIOTT.

F. W. PARRY, 29, Paternoster-row, London.

J. E. CHILLCOTT, Bristol.

SEND US FOUR STAMPS, and we will send you, carriage paid, samples of goods, and guarantee you to earn Five Shillings a day upwards. Satisfaction guaranteed, or stamps returned. This is genuine.—LOUIS H. HART & Co., 126, Clerkenwell Road, London, E.C.

"THE TEN TRIBES."

Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time; and What will be Their Place in the Millennium?

A PAPER read before "The Prophecy Investigation Society" on April 29, 1887,

BY

ALDER SMITH, M.B., F.R.C.S.

LONDON:

R. BANKS & SON, RACQUET-COURT, FLEET-ST.

Price 6d., post free 7d.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

Philo-Israel's Leaflets. Four pages Crown 8vo. Price 1s. 6d. per 100, postage 2d. No. 1.—"The Identity of the British with Lost Israel." 2.—"The Glory of God." 3.—An Address to British Seamen. 4.—An Address to British Soldiers. No. 5.—The Communion of the Body and Blood of Our Lord Jesus Christ Viewed in the Light of Our Identity. 6.—The Bible and the Jew. 7.—The Jewish People. 8.—Lo-Ammi; or, the Gentilisation of Ten-Tribed Israel. 9.—The Atonement. 10.—Is Our Identity Evangelical, or Non-Evangelical in its Tendency? No. 11.—Cui Bono? No. 12.—The "Thoughts" of God Towards Israel, Judah, and the Gentile Nations. 13.—The Teutonic Theory. Is It True? 14.—An Address to the Police Force of Great Britain. 15.—An Address to Israel's Missionaries and Their Supporters. 16.—The One Seed, Christ. 17.—An Address to Israel's Electors.

London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

BY REV. HENRY ROE.

(Fifteenth Thousand).

1. Israel's World. Origin and Destiny of British Race, Colonies, and Empire. 2d., post free 2½d. "Worthy of a world-wide circulation." H. B Thompson, Association Sec. 50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.

2. Going to Africa. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.

3. Fernando Po Mission. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.

4. West African Scenes. 2s., post free 2s. 2d.

5. Consecration. 2d., post free 2½d.

50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; and Rev. H. Roe, Dawley, Salop.

NON-INTOXICATING BEER

(A Splendid Dinner Beverage)

MADE IMMEDIATELY WITH

MASON'S EXTRACT OR ESSENCE OF HERBS,

Composed of Yarrow, Dandelion, Comfrey, and Horehound. Send 9 stamps for sample bottle, enough to make five gallons, NEWBALL and MASON, Chemists, Nottingham.

AGENTS WANTED. APPLY FOR TERMS.

LIVER TONIC,

GEORGE & WELCH'S,

2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. per Bottle.

This Tonic, which embraces the active principle of the best known Liver Cures, relieves Indigestion and Debility, sharpens the appetite, and corrects all unpleasant symptoms arising from sluggish liver.

Proprietors: GEORGE & WELCH, Worcester.

To be had through all Chemists or by Parcels Post from Makers.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON,

RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

A CHRONOLOGICAL and GEOGRAPHICAL TREE, Showing the Development of the British Power and the Affinity of the British Nation with the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel, with Scriptural Quotations. Price 8d., mounted and varnished, 2s.

WHO ARE WE & WHAT IS OUR MISSION? By J. Thornhill Harrison. With seven Maps. Handsome cloth, gilt, price 5s. Free for P.O.

THE LOST TEN TRIBES OF ISRAEL. By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D., Pastor of Union Congregational Church, Brooklyn, New York. Price 3s., post free 3s. 3d.

THE FUTURE OF ISRAEL AND JUDAH. Companion volume to above, By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D. With Portrait of the Author. Cloth, gilt lettered, bevelled boards. Price 2s., post free 2s. 3d.

THE SISTERS OF HARROWDALE RECTORY. A Tale of Great Interest for Young People. By Mrs. M. A. Searson. With double-page illustration of Harrowdale Rectory. Price 2s. 6d., post free 2s. 9d.

PRESENT-DAY PROBLEMS, and How Anglo-Israel Truth Explains and Solves Them. By V. M. COX. 3d., by post 4 stamps.

LIGHT SHED BY THE GREAT PYRAMID OF EGYPT on the Last Days of this Dispensation, from A.D. 1814 to A.D. 1922. By JAMES KEITH. Price 4d., by post 5 stamps.

NEW TESTAMENT TRUTH on the Anglo-Israel Controversy. By J. G. TAYLOR. Price 3d., by post 4 stamps.

A NEW LIGHT. An Elementary Pamphlet for General Distribution. By A E I. Price 2d., by post 2½d. in stamps.

EPHRAIM-ISRAEL, the Pivot Nation of Prophecy and History. By V. M. COX. Price 1d., one dozen free for 1s.

AMMI; OR, THE CHOSEN PEOPLE. By Miss BIRD. Tracing the Descent of the British People from Abraham as "friend of God," and showing that true science, history, philology, and ethnology, are on the side of the Identity of the Anglo-Saxon Race with the Ten Lost Tribes. Price 2d., post free 2½d.; 12s. 6d. per 100 for distribution.

IS NOT QUEEN VICTORIA the Royal Seed to King David's Throne, and Are Not Her Subjects, the British People, the Ten Lost Tribes? By W. HOPTON. Price 2d.; 12s. 6d. per 100.

A Complete Catalogue Free on Application.

Wonderful Value by Parcels Post.

WALTER KEAST, 102, Kennington Park Road, London, S.E., will on receipt of Postal Order for 3s. 6d. send a pair of Ladies' High-leg Six Button Walking Boots. These Boots are warranted to give complete satisfaction, being sewn, thoroughly well made and very comfortable. Ditto in Oxford Shoes, 3s. 3d. Send number of size or length of boot in inches. Parcels sent daily to all parts of the United Kingdom.

Established 1851.

ETHELINE

A New and most effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

A BOON TO SUFFERERS.

HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT.

Testimonial

From Miss J. HOULDSWORTH, Rozelle, Ayr, N.B.

"I am glad to be able to tell you that the HARNESS' ELECTRIC BATTERY BELT has been very beneficial in strengthening the system generally, as well as instrumental in relieving the Neuralgic pains from which I have suffered.

NEURALGIA & DEBILITY.

Every man and woman suffering from any disorder of the Nerves, Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys, should at once stop physicing, and remit 21s. for HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT (post free) and obtain immediate relief. Pamphlet and Book of Testimonials POST FREE. MEDICAL BATTERY CO. Ltd.

52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

Corner of Rathbone Place.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1887 [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 553. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1887. [DOUBLE NUMBER, TWOPENCE.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
Israel Conquers the Eastern Soudan by the Arts of Peace	309
Israel Under Hezekiah, and Israel Under Victoria the Good	310
The Universal Asylum	311
The Vision of a Present Reality. By U. P.	312
Navigation Among the Ancient British, Phœnicians, and Hebrews. By J. Thomson. Part II.	312
Britain and the Coming War	313
Mr. H. A. Marchant Lecturing on the Brighton Beach	315
Mr. Samuel Lee, who Lived in the Reign of Charles Second, on the Ten Tribes	315
The Head, and not the Tail, Even in Shipbuilding and Marine Engineering	316
The London Society for Promoting Christianity Amongst the Jews	317
Hebrew Prophecy and Its Fulfilment in the British People	318
The Queen's Letter	318
The Secret of Britain's Greatness	319
Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund	320
Israel's Scripture and Prayer Union	321
The Vicar of Clifton on 1 Kings x. 9	321
John Wesley an Anglo-Israelite	321
Correspondence	322

ISRAEL CONQUERS THE EASTERN SOUDAN BY THE ARTS OF PEACE.

WE hope our readers have noted the wonderful way in which God has enabled us to restore peace and commerce to the neighbourhood of Suakin. It has been done without the cost of a single life, without battles, wars, or sieges, but simply by the skill and straightforward tactics of two Englishmen, Watson Pasha, an officer of H.M. Engineers, and Colonel Kitchener, the commandants in succession of Suakin and the Egyptian coast of the Red Sea. We have latterly satisfied ourselves with the mere retention of Suakin, and that only on account of the Egyptian Government. The country outside the limits of the town has been in the undisputed possession of Osman Digma, our late enemy. We had however always a friend fighting for us. This was the natives' love of commerce, and their desire for peace and safety. Some of the tribes have therefore always been "friendly" towards ourselves and towards the power we represent. Watson Pasha, the governor from May to September last, was left soon after he assumed office without any British troops at all, 2,300 Egyptians having been sent him to hold the place. Unable to fight Osman Digma with these means, Watson Pasha set to work with the "friendlies," and told them that if they wanted trade and peace they must unite and defeat Osman Digma themselves as the condition precedent. If they were contented to remain as they were, so was the Egyptian Government; but if they wanted to have markets and trade, the friendlies must fight for themselves. These counsels produced the intended effect. The friendlies accordingly united and combined; they were joined by other lately rebel tribes, and the result has been that first Osman Digma's troops were beaten out of the country North of Suakin; Osman Digma himself decamped from Tamai in August; and now, after his departure, the friendlies in force have attached and taken Tamai, killed 200 of its defenders, and captured "eighteen guns, two gatlings, two rocket apparatus, a great number of rifles and a large amount of ammunition, besides the stronghold itself."

Here, then, is the sequel of a line of policy which seems likely to bring peace and commerce back to the Soudan. It will leave the country to the management of the native tribes, but ensures the peaceful prosecution of the operations of commerce, of which the chief promoters must be British merchants. The change has been brought about by British officers with the aid of friendly native Arabs, and now the country about Suakin is cleared of the enemy and trade is beginning to occupy the ground so long given up to a senseless warfare. As the correspondent of the Times put it on the 9th October in a letter from Alexandria dated 17th September:—

How has all this been accomplished? Not by waste of English blood or treasure, not by indiscriminate slaughter of the righteous champions of freedom, but by allowing the blameless Ethiopian to settle his own quarrels in his own way, and by the moral influence of common sense. No English or Egyptian soldier has been employed, the native tribes have been offered, not peace or war, but plenty or starvation at their own choice. There has been attached no humiliating condition, no inhuman penalty, unless it is one to refuse to barbarians the means whereby alone they can continue their internecine slaughter. The result is that which was foretold in your columns, the natural trading instinct—which is but the instinct of a wish to live—has risen superior to the fanatical instinct, which is but the instinct to kill.

So ends my bare record of facts. The lesson which it teaches is, I think, this, that the Soudan difficulty, like others, disappears if it is faced with a union of decision, common sense, and tact.

So far the Times correspondent. We would rather say that the difficulty has disappeared because of the blessing of the God of Israel upon His chosen people. He has let the native tribes feel our power, and now He makes them admit our wealth and influence in commerce. Peace and safety is restored to a distracted district, and the instrumentality used in producing the change is the common sense of two young British officers who have local knowledge, and the true Israelitish success which follows the blessing of God upon their efforts. The Times correspondent continues his remarks by some disparaging words regarding the Exeter Hall policy which would send missionaries into the Soudan to convert the Arab. Herein he is utterly mistaken. Trade alone will not bring peace and contentment. Left alone it will lead to further wars. Christ's Gospel, Christ's Word, Christ's Spirit, and Christ's Love, these are the only remedies for nations and people sold under sin and miserable from wars and the consequences of wars, as our own history and those of the heathen nations of the world abundantly prove. What has reclaimed the cannibals of the South seas but the Gospel? What the bloodthirsty Maories but the good news of the Redeemer's love? What kept the South of India quiet during the Mutinies, but the influence of the Gospel, which had there permeated the masses as it had not then (in 1857 and 1858), North, North-west and Central India? The true remedy for the woes of the Soudan is the Gospel, but the pioneer of the Gospel is frequently the merchant and the wealth he brings in the track of peaceful commerce. The only question in regard to the Soudan will be whether the fit and proper time has arrived for the introduction of the Word among the people. As sure as mercy is in store for the Arabs of the Soudan so sure is it that the missionary and the Word of God must re-enter and occupy the land. But when it will be safe and right to do so is in the hands of Him who shutteth and no man openeth, and openeth and no man, not even a correspondent of the Times, can close the open door. One thing we may confidently affirm. When the door has been widely opened, the missionary to enter in will be the British soldier of the Cross; for to him as the Hebrew messenger of the Gospel the duty is by God Himself assigned, to take the Gospel of the grace of Christ to all the nations, families, and kindreds of the earth, and therefore to the unhappy, desolated, war-stricken people of the Egyptian littoral of the Red Sea, the Eastern Soudanese. And therefore British-Israelites should praise the Lord.

Digitized by Google

ISRAEL UNDER HEZEKIAH, AND ISRAEL UNDER VICTORIA THE GOOD.

We have lately listened to a discourse wherein the conduct of Hezekiah king of Judah was compared with that of the British people and their Queen. The point in Hezekiah's history selected for comparison, was the visit of the ambassadors of Berodach Baladan, king of Babylon, recorded in 2 Kings xx. 12—19; 2 Chron. xxxii. 27 31. The Babylonian monarch hearing probably of the striking victory of Judah over Sennacherib described in 2 Kings xix. 35, 36, sent ambassadors to Hezekiah to ask for an alliance. God "left" His servant "to try" him, and the trial showed the weakness of the king, but the inestimable blessing of the presence and teaching of the spirit of the living God. In a boastful spirit the king of Judah showed the ambassadors all his earthly possessions, and dismissed them, little thinking that he had incurred the displeasure of the Lord. These heathen visitors might have been led to the knowledge of God, and shown the service of the Lord Jehovah. But Hezekiah showed them only "all the house of his precious things, the silver, the gold and the spices, and the precious ointment, the house of his armour and all that was found in his treasures." "There was nothing in his dominions" in short "which he did not show" his visitors. But he was silent regarding the Lord God of Israel, and regarding His faithfulness and truth! The divine whose sermon on the subject we heard with pain, told us that our press and the journalists of the day have evinced a spirit like that of Hezekiah in reference to the visits of our numerous foreign guests, ambassadors, princes, kings and queens who have lately visited our shores to offer Her Majesty their congratulations on her Jubilee. No acknowledgment of God was in all their writings. They extolled the power, the might, the wealth, the resources, the size and population of our Empire, but no word of thanksgiving to the God of this nation ever transpired in their writings for all His mercies to His people. The Queen it was allowed was not blameable in this respect; "nay," said the preacher "the only dissatisfaction with her ever expressed by her people has been that she did not come forward sufficiently to satisfy her subjects, and that she was too retiring and self-effacing for her exalted position."

As regards the press of this country, no doubt there is truth in the charge that God's control of this nation is never admitted or allowed by our secular journalists. But these writers do not represent the nation? There is a large mass of religious journalism in the British Empire which is never backward to acknowledge God's providence and grace in dealing with our race. The multitudes of godly ones in this and our Colonial possessions are not an inconsiderable minority. They have a vast power and influence in our midst, and may be said to govern the uninstructed, ungodly majority. These all admit God's power and guiding hand in directing our nation's career. They admit that He rules among us. Putting this aside, however, what is the fact regarding our foreign princely and kingly guests who have lately come among us at the invitation of our Queen? In the first place we invited them to come that they might witness Israel and Israel's Queen upon their knees in the most splendid Christian shrine in the kingdom, worshipping God and thanking Him for His tender mercies to His lost but now re-discovered people.

The Jubilee services were representative services, embracing the whole Empire! In the person of our Queen we were all suppliants at the throne of God's grace, thanking Him for His fifty years gift of life and health to our Sovereign Lady, and she thanked Him in person for His love and tender pity to His people, her subjects. Our heathen and godless guests were invited to see this, and nothing more. They joined in our processions, and the first and only thing we asked them to do was to go in state to Westminster Abbey and join in Christian prayer and praise with our Queen, princes, lords, commons and people to God Almighty in the most solemn manner conceivable. We asked no questions as to their religious belief, but heathen or not we made no distinction, and asked them only to join heart and hand with us in praising God through Christ Jesus, for His past mercies to Queen Victoria, and to implore grace and happiness for her in the future. Surely nothing could be further in spirit in all this from the offensive conduct of king Hezekiah and his ministry! We did not show these visitors of ours our nation's precious things, the silver, gold, spice and precious ointments, our armouries, and treasure houses? We showed them our Abbey Church, and we bid them note that the ten thousand spectators were there as worshippers of Jehovah, and our service Israelitish from first to last. It was "The Jubilee" of our Queen we celebrated, and we nationally rejoiced with her and praised the Lord. The song of the day was the hymn, "God save the Queen!" and we shouted for joy throughout the land because of the tokens of the Lord's goodness and loving kindness to us His people, but we had no thought whatever of boasting to the three or four dozen exalted foreigners who came among us of our riches, power, or might. In our reviews we showed them our mere handfulls of troops, not to exhibit to them our strength but our weakness, and to show them that God was and is our shield and our defence! On July 23 when our Queen reviewed our Home Fleet before the nations, we rejoiced in God's goodness to us as a people, and exhibited to them the matchless power He has given us at sea for defence, and for the furtherance of the Gospel of His Son; but not at all for purposes of boasting and offence! We cannot then concur with our preacher that our Queen and people are to blame in the late Jubilee proceedings and celebrations. We have acknowledged in them our God's goodness to us as a Christian people under Christ our King, and in doing so we have publicly honoured and worshipped Him, and rejoiced before Him by our illuminations, our decorations and our reviews; and to the Lord be all the praise! Regarding the Naval Review we shall have a word to say before long.

Digitized by Google

THE UNIVERSAL ASYLUM.

THERE is no doubt that our land, in these "Isles of the West" have become the asylum for the foreign refugee; and that all who are in distress or want take to our shores as their natural home in their trouble, and coming here are at ease and in safety. The reason for such a state of things is not difficult to guess. This nation is Israel. And it is under the divine command given only to that race, "If a stranger sojourn with thee in your land, ye shall not vex (i.e. oppress) him. The stranger that dwelleth with you shall be unto you as one born among you, and thou shalt love him as thyself; for YE were strangers in the land of Egypt. I am Jehovah, your God" (Lev. xix. 33, 34). "One law shall be unto him that is homeborn and unto the stranger that sojourneth among you" (Exod. xii. 40). Here only, out of all the nations of the world, is the stranger therefore treated as God directed Israel to treat him—namely, as "one born in the land" (Num. ix. 14).

At the present time, however, the asylum for the nations is becoming so densely crowded with foreign and chiefly Jewish refugees, that it is becoming a serious political question—whether we can longer afford to allow these masses of pauperised Jews and non-Israelite Gentiles to invade our shores to suit their own convenience. We are sending away our able-bodied men and women to the Colonies at great cost to enable the rest at home to live—but as soon as the ground is a little cleared at home, the Jews from Russia and Poland, penniless and poor, rush in to fill their vacant places, and accepting wages our own people cannot manage to live upon, elbow out the poor of our own land, and reduce them to starvation. The home children have the right to the food in the first instance, no doubt. But how are we to reconcile that right with the fact that the foreign Jews and the pauper Germans are arriving in their tens of thousands to enjoy our hospitality and safe asylum? but while doing so they are taking the bread from the very mouths of our own flesh and blood. For instance, in London, the bakers, the tailors, cabinet makers, and cigar manufacturers, once used to be British subjects, but now are almost all German immigrants. Out of 4,000 master bakers in London, fully 2,000 are Germans, Swiss, and Italians. These, of course, will employ only workmen of their own nationality. In cabinet making, there are said, by the Daily Telegraph, on May 21st, to be 4,000 German workmen engaged in the trade in London only. The boot and shoe trade, the tobacco-leaf rolling and cutting business, have got now into the hands of foreign workmen in East London. American-born immigrants and the Irish labourers who come to cut our harvests generally, all help to swell the numbers of those who are trying hard to supplant the British workmen—and drive him to despair. What then is to be done? Shall we continue to allow the foreign immigrant the right of free entry into our own land to our injury and hurt? or, like the Americans, shall we sternly refuse these pauper foreigners to disembark, by taxing all such as wish to settle in our land in such sums as will prohibit the moneyless coming over, or hoping to make an entry into our body politic to our people's most grievous injury? The writer in the Daily Telegraph having discussed the subject fully, comes to the conclusion we state below, and we quite concur with him in his view of the matter. He says:—

It will never do, however, to forfeit the character of our land for free entry and exit, or to fail in hospitality to those who come hither. We have established our islands as the Universal Asylum of the world, and they must remain so. Our own people will have to wake up and retain their pre-eminence by borrowing the virtues of the foreigner while keeping their own good qualities. London suffers by her prodigious reputation for wealth and business. Her vastness draws humanity to her, as a great magnet attracts iron filings: and it is palpable that we are, perhaps becoming too numerous and crowded for health, order, and prosperity. In the meanwhile every foolish strike, every wild denunciation of capital, helps the watchful and frugal foreigner, whether he snatches our trade from us abroad or partakes our people's wages at home. Nor are our own artisans blameless in the matter: their want of technical education, and slowness to learn new methods, give so many points in the game of life to the inferior but patient and docile alien. A great nation must find better remedies than to tax its visitors or forbid their approach.

So far the journalist. There is no doubt that our people being Israel must be driven forth from their resting-places in these islands, and go out to occupy the distant heritages of the earth, thus forming fresh colonies and offshoots of the Anglo-Saxon race—colonies destined in their turn to become nations—absorbing, as we do, and shall do here, the foreign element, able and willing to serve Israel their hosts (Isa. lx. 11, 12). Israel is to be a blessing to all the nations, families, and kindreds of the earth—and she cannot therefore refuse to allow her islands to be used as "the Universal Asylum" they are intended to be—nor veto an immigration of the Jewish people, her own flesh and blood, whose coming is according to the prophecies—and a fulfilment of the will and purposes of God. —(Jer. iii. 18; Hosea i. 11). The House of Judah is to walk to the House of Israel, and nothing can prevent the accomplishment of that fact, for the restoration of the Thirteen Tribes depends on it, as its condition precedent. "The House of Judah shall walk to the House of Israel," before they can "come together out of the land of the North, to the land that the Lord hath given for an inheritance to their fathers." Another species of immigration, not of the poorest, but of those who have some means, and desire to become clerks in English houses of business, is a source of great heart-burnings to our English youth. On this subject the Echo had some words of wisdom in an article published on the 11th March last, which we think worth reproducing. Thus:—

Among English clerks there is undoubtedly no small discontent at the competition of young Germans, who are well educated, and who are able and willing to live on next door to nothing. Let us cherish no illusions. It is not possible to keep these Germans out. A young German with a decent coat on his back, can cross from Hamburg in a few hours. How is it possible to determine whether he is an immigrant or an excursionist, unless, indeed, he produces a return ticket; but that is only a matter of a few shillings. The immigration of educated Germans cannot be stopped, and the only remedy of the English clerk is to make himself, at least, as valuable in the labour market. Immigration can only be limited in the case of the obviously-needy and non-English speaking foreigner, who cannot easily evade two rough-and-ready tests, which may be easily applied. The Government of the United States applies such tests, and so may we if we choose. An American poet once boasted of his country that "her free latch-string never was drawn in against the poorest child of ADAM'S kin." Our cousins across the water have long since seen reason to modify that boast. It is from this that we suffer. The Jews of Eastern and Central Europe suffer from bitter persecution, and naturally turn to the Western Hemisphere as a refuge. England is their half-way house. If they go forward the gates are shut against them, but if they attempt to go backward the German Government shuts the gates behind them. Congestion is the inevitable result if no action is taken, and congestion means that comparatively unskilled labour is beaten down in wage to the point of bare subsistence.

The Universal Asylum, in short, must be respected, whatever the cost may be. The fact probably is, that God is using these means to force our redundant population to go abroad to found new Israelite empires, and though the process is painful for those who are, just now, suffering from the invasion of German and Jewish immigrants, the end will be for our nation's good, but above all for God's glory, and to Him therefore will be all the praise!

Digitized by Google

THE VISION OF A PRESENT REALITY.

By L. P.

We do not know if others experience the same sensation as ourselves, but to us the very fact of the striking applicability of a prophecy to existing circumstances causes us half to shrink from accepting it, as if it were an act of overdaring to receive it as a right interpretation. Yet such fear is scarcely reasonable, and so in all humility we venture to point out a passage in the Old Testament, which we would suggest distinctly pictures an event that is at this time filling the thoughts and thrilling the hearts of millions. We refer of course to the Jubilee of her who sits on the throne of David ruling over the Tribes of Israel, and receiving the sympathetic homage of the peoples God has given to His inheritance.

As we read the first portion of Isa. lx. our hearts burn within us, for we seem to recognise in the prophet's words the description of that which is passing under our eyes, and glorifies our country with a "glory that has risen upon us" from the Lord. Kings, princes, and potentates have assembled here to take part in what? A great display of barbaric pomp? No. To witness the triumphal entry of a mighty conqueror followed by prisoners from vanquished and enslaved countries? No—but to pay homage to domestic virtues gracing a throne, and to take part in the public acknowledgment that to the God of Israel is all the praise and thanksgiving due, in that for fifty years He has spared a royal lady to her loving subjects. During that period the Lord of all the earth has blessed His chosen people with an exceptional advancement in knowledge, position, dominion, and prosperity, even while chastising them ever and anon as a father chasteneth his children that he loves for their warning and their future welfare. Alas! in verse 2 we read, what cannot now be denied, that darkness overspreads the world, and gross darkness in spiritual things is to be found shadowing this the most highly favoured people on the face of the globe. Yet surely God's glory is to be seen on them, while Gentiles are seeking to share in the light we possess, and sue for the protection of our power.

This nation has welcomed the sons of their royal mistress to its shores, and we may say that her daughters by birth and by marriage, with two exceptions, are nursed at her side—of these two excepted ones, destined by their positions to live away, one "is not," but while alive it seemed to have been her greatest earthly joy to fly to the parent nest, and to rest for happy periods beneath the shelter of the old home. But more than this, the nation's sons have flowed together to the land of their fathers, and the Gentiles from the far East, as well as those from countries nearer, have laid their gifts and the homage of their reverence at our Queen's feet. "It is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes."

Let the prayer go up from millions of hearts that intense thankfulness may glow within us, that there may be an outpouring of grace and of God's spirit from on high, awakening in us a sense of national sin and shame, and causing an abundance of labourers to rise up, strong in the strength of the Lord, ready to go forth with the weapon of truth to slay the powers of superstition, idolatry, and vice in every form, and to scatter the seed of the Word among the idolaters, scoffers, infidels, and lawless at home, and amongst the heathen in all lands whither our swift messengers, our winged vessels, can speed our seed-bearers.

June, 1887.

NAVIGATION AMONG THE ANCIENT BRITISH, PHŒNICIANS AND HEBREWS.

By J. Thomson.

(Concluded from page 305.)

PART II.

III.—THE VENETI, AND PELASGOI, OR PHŒNICIANS.

The Veneti of Gaul were the best sailors in that country. Cæsar found the best, and largest ships there, with iron chain cables. The Veneti of Italy were a people of the same character; their name probably indicates this, and had reference to their habits as sailors. According to Sir W. Betham, it was probably derived from three Irish, or Phœnician, words, which together mean able wanderers by the wind, or expert seamen. The Pelasgoi of Greece, were also a wandering people, i.e., navigators; who, when they had found out the way of navigating by night, assumed the honourable names of Pelasgoi, and Pelargoi, because they had advanced so far in the art of navigation, as to be able to proceed by night as well as day. These names may also have their etymology in several ancient Irish words, which together mean navigators by night and day. The Pelasgoi were Phœnician mariners, found not only in Greece, but everywhere where a ship could approach the coasts of the Mediterranean. "Like the English of the present day, their operations were different in different localities; in some they had only factories; but where they found an eligible position, and encouraging circumstances, they settled colonies, as in Italy, Gaul, and the British Islands."*

IV.—EARLY PHŒNICIAN ENTERPRISE.

That the Phœnicians at a very early period visited these islands, and probably ventured even further, there is much evidence to show. From Herodotus† we learn that they circumnavigated Africa in the time of Pharaoh-Necho, king of Egypt, who reigned B.C. 616—600. Dionysius, the Periegite says, "The Syrians who live near the sea, and are called Phœnicians, are descended from the Erythreans," (so called because they lived on the coast of the Red Sea). "They were the first who traversed the seas in ships." Hence we learn that the Phœnicians were not Canaanites, except by residence; i.e., they were not descended from Canaan. Other authorities, among them Strabo, bring them from the Persian Gulf; Herodotus thither from Chaldea; and eventually all settle them on the Mediterranean, at Tyre and Sidon.‡ Here they prospered wonderfully, especially after the date when the maritime tribes of the Hebrews settled in their vicinity; attaining their highest prosperity during the time of David and Solomon, with whom Hiram, king of Tyre, had close alliance (2 Sam. v. 11, 12; 1 Kings v.; 1 Chron. xiv. 1; 2 Chron. ii. 2—16). Indeed, Hiram seems to have been so flourishing, that when Solomon gave him "twenty cities in the land of Galilee," and he saw them, they displeased him so much, that he held them in contempt; calling them "Cabul," i.e. displeasing, or dirty; and besides returning these cities, which he did not want, he gave Solomon 120 talents of gold,—a sum equal to about £656,520 sterling (1 Kings ix. 11—14; 2 Chron. viii. 2),—a vast amount in value in those days.

V.—ANCIENT HEBREW KNOWLEDGE OF SHIPS AND NAVIGATION.

The era of Solomon was 1,000 B.C. But centuries before that time we read in the Hebrew records of "ships." Balaam declared, B.C. 1452 (the year before the entrance upon the Promised Land), "And ships shall come from the coast of Chittim" (Num. xxiv. 24), which shows that both Balaam and those whom he addressed, knew what ships were, or his words

* "Etruria Celtica," II., pp. 249, 250; and 265, 266.

† Melpomene, xlii.

‡ "The Gael and Cymbri," by Sir W. Betham, pp., 41—48.

Digitized by Google

would have had no meaning to them. Indeed, there can be little doubt that at the very time of the sojourn in Egypt, there was a large fleet of Egyptian ships in the Red Sea: for Sesostris, or Rameses the Great, is said to have had about four hundred war-ships, in which he carried his army when he attacked various places on the coast of that sea, and which are shown on the walls of his palace at Thebes; the size of the vessels being roughly indicated by the number of men represented in them. But at an even earlier period we find mention of "ships." In his blessings of the Tribes, B.C. 1689, Jacob said of Zebulun, he "shall dwell at the haven of the sea; and he shall be for an haven of ships" (Gen. xlix. 13), evidently indicating a position eminently favourable for commerce.

The idea generally held respecting the children of Israel when they left Egypt, is that they were simply an ignorant multitude of shepherds. But surely this is not a correct description of them. True they had been much oppressed, ground down, and treated as very slaves by their Egyptian taskmasters. But this had not been the character of their history during the whole period of their sojourn in Egypt. At first they had the best of the land given them. Joseph, their head, was, next to Pharaoh, the highest in the land; during his life, and for some time afterwards, they would, no doubt, be treated with great consideration. Indeed we find that a descendant of Judah married a daughter of Pharaoh (1 Chron. iv. 18), and others of the same tribe were employed as skilled workmen, and even as governors—having "dominion in Moab"—under the king (1 Chron. iv. 21—23). Thus we can readily understand that the children of Israel went to school, as it were, when they went down into Egypt, which, during the reign of Sesostris the Great, (who was the Napoleon of his day) was at the height of its power and magnificence, extending from India on the East, to Thessaly on the West. The Hebrews, therefore, must have learnt many things in Egypt which they put to use at subsequent periods of their history; as well while in the wilderness, at the building of the tabernacle, and when settled in the Promised Land, as opportunity occurred. Though the Egyptians were not pre-eminently a maritime nation, they yet knew the use of, and possessed ships for commercial as well as military purposes, in which they trafficked down their great waterway, and along the coasts of the two seas which bordered their land.* These conjectures receive ample confirmation when we find that about a hundred and fifty-five years after entering the Promised Land (B.C. 1296, about), that portion of the tribe of Dan, which, some century or so before (B.C. 1406, about), had taken Laish, and "called it Dan," was upbraided by the prophetess Deborah for not coming forward to help at a time of national emergency—"Why did Dan remain in ships?" implying that they were too much engaged with their ships and merchandise for patriots; a fault also chargeable to the maritime tribe Asher, who, we are told "continued on the sea-port, and abode in his creeks" (Judges v. 17, marg. and Judges xviii.). From all these considerations it will be evident that at a very early period, some of the Israelites, especially those living upon the coast, and close neighbours with the Phœnicians, would make use of their facilities for visiting foreign parts; and we may be certain that wherever the Phœnicians went, some of their neighbours, and subsequent allies, the Hebrews, would not be far off. We have already quoted Sir J. Lubbock as holding the opinion that the Phœnicians were acquainted with these islands as early as "between B.C. 1,500, and B.C. 1200;"† a date which is very remarkable as embracing that which we have arrived at by another way, viz., from the Biblical history of the first centuries after the settlement of the Hebrews in Palestine.

In all this we see the wonderful providence of God in watching over, and teaching His people, and so preparing them for their world-wide work. First they are brought into contact with the Egyptians—then the first nation of the world—afterwards into close neighbourhood, and alliance with the greatest maritime and commercial nation of antiquity; the result is,—Our Identity being true,—the modern leading, maritime, and commercial nation of the world, is now seen to be that which, in its infancy, had such an appropriate tutelage.

* For a description of the models of two vessels found in an ancient Egyptian tomb, see "Israel's Hope and Destiny," for 1886, p. 147.

† "Pre-historic Times," p. 73; Edition, 1878. See also BANNER OF ISRAEL, ix. p. 506, and Israel's Hope and Destiny for 1886, pp. 152, 153.

BRITAIN AND THE COMING WAR.

EXTRACTS from a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Wild, of Toronto, preached January 30, 1887, taken from The Parkdale News of February 3, 1887:—

Your attention is directed to the last clause of the 4th chap. 6th verse of the Prophecy of Zechariah:—"Not by might, nor by power, but by My spirit, saith the Lord of hosts."

God calls Israel His annointed ones; He also says in the 6th verse of the same chapter, "O ye seed of Abraham His servant, ye children of Jacob His chosen." Some argue that the covenant made with Abraham is dissolved. No such thing, for we read in verse 8: "He hath remembered His covenant forever; the word which He commanded to a thousand generations, which covenant He made with Abraham, and His oath unto Isaac; and confirmed the same unto Jacob for a law, and to Israel for an everlasting covenant." That the covenant with these parties is in full force and operation, and whoever is the seed of Israel, whoever are the chosen ones, they are set apart for special work and special witnesses; that is, God has chosen them and set them apart for special work, and also special work in this world.

The prophet Jeremiah (xi. 16) says:—"The Lord called thy name, a green olive tree, fair, and of goodly fruit." That is, the House of Judah is called an olive tree. Where is the other olive tree, you ask? Israel, found in the tribe of Benjamin in the time of our Saviour, was spoken of as the other—spoken of as a literal olive tree.

The Gentiles, in Romans xi. 17, are called the wild olive, but they were to be grafted into the good olive tree, which is Israel. If you want to know who the two olive trees were they are Judah and Israel, and the Bible says so. If you want to know the meaning of the two candlesticks that were to give light to the world, you'll find it refers to Judah and Israel. If you want to know what is intended when He says "the chosen seed of Abraham" you will find it on this line of interpretation. When the Bible refers to these things, I am not at a loss for anything only so far as to find the real seed. Then I have found the olives and found the two candlesticks.

God's purpose through the tribes of Jacob, humanly speaking, may have been delayed, but it cannot be entirely set aside. British history must be studied in the light of God's purpose. Britain as a factor in the civilization of the world must not be alienated from the Divine intention. Britain is literal Israel, and therefore one of the olive trees, just as much as the Jews are literal Jews, and no one would think of judging Jewish history independent of the Divine intention. Many will try to spirtualize this meaning about Israel; but if you do so in their case, why not so with the Jews? Up to this day all that the prophets have said would happen to the Jews has come to pass. The prophets told the truth thousands of years ago. Just so, and all they said concerning Israel has been fulfilled, and will be fulfilled; knowing the work assigned to Israel it is not so difficult to mark out the line of Britain's course as some would think.

The Rev. Mr. Baxter and many others fail to discern who

Digitized by Google

Britain is, and so they fail every time they attempt to outline her course and destiny. They see clear enough one of the olive trees, namely, Judah, but the other they do not seem to see or to know. They see one olive tree as a witness distinctly. They see how the Jews in their wanderings and history and present condition do bear unmistakable evidence to the truth of God's Word; but they refuse to see the other witness; yet what a mighty witness Britain has been? How wonderfully she has in her past history illustrated my text! The little Island home, few people, a small army coming into possession of such a vast empire, such majesty, such will, such authority, such influence, such wealth and such independence. At times almost battling the whole world, hated and despised, meeting superior numbers on the battlefield, yet winning victories. Truly we may say in her case: "Not by might (or by armies, as in the margin) nor by power, but by the help of the Spirit of God" has Britain gained her present position.

Take Britain and the United States: are they not first and foremost—without disparaging any other country—in all that pertains to the humanities of the earth? In government, in personal liberty, in commerce, in wealth, in facilities of education, in Christian enterprise, home and foreign, and the volunteer nature of their army; taking the word Ephraim in a generic sense as meaning Israel—that is, Britain and Manasseh to mean the United States, we cannot wonder that Jacob should exclaim when blessing these lads (Genesis xlviii. 20): "In thee shall Israel bless, saying, God make thee as Ephraim and as Manasseh." What nation does not wish to be like the United States and Britain? Those of a republican turn of mind will point to the United States. Those of a monarchical turn, do they not seek to have the liberty and stability that we have under our beloved Queen? Did not Jacob foresee? Did he not see the ambition of other nations to try and share his blessing?

Britain's place and power cannot be accounted for by an appeal to human agency alone. One cannot read Hebrew history in the Old Testament without having God in it. Nations with God are like Samson with Him, and nations without God are like Samson without Him. The religious idea that enters into a man and into a nation makes a vast difference with either.

You can no more account for Britain's place than one can account by human means for the strange career and present condition of the Jews. I have said to all my opponents, they see one of the candlesticks with its light of judgments shining amid the gloom and persecution of the Jews. For the judgments are a light, as we read in Hosea vi. 5:—"And Thy judgments are as the light that goeth forth." What a light the Jews have shed on the history of the world! His peculiar position is more than the agnostic or infidel can account for—he is an enigma to them—it cannot be accounted for without the Bible and God. The position of the Jew is unique—so unique that the rules applied to other races do not apply to him. The moment you attach common rules to him you are upset. Where has there ever been a race of nine million people who have not had for 1,800 years either city, government, king; or landless, like the Jew, scattered through the other nations? Tell me why this has happened. Because God said it would be so, and nobody could make it otherwise. That is the reason. Well, what do you say? I simply say you have nothing to say. If you have anything to say send it up in a letter. I throw out the challenge to you agnostics. Tell me why a large body of men like the Jews should come down through the centuries and be in that condition to-day? But all should remember that there were two candlesticks —Judah one—I ask where is the other? I answer, in Israel or Britain. Who will be bold enough to deny but she has been a light in the political, social, and religious world? More than any other she has been a light for many years to the other nations of the world.

The Rev. Mr. Spurgeon and many other eminent divines readily perceive the remarkable likeness between Britain and ancient Israel, and I believe, before long, that they will fully see the likeness and see the real thing itself—Israel. It will come that all parties will have both their eyes opened so that both candlesticks can be distinguished and both lights recognised. It is a queer thing that people will only open one eye, and then go down street talking and wondering about Britain being Israel, and thinking others are wrong when they open both eyes and behold both Judah and Israel. The two olive trees are still in existence; neither has been cut down. The two candlesticks still shed their light. They have not been blown out.

Look at the critical condition of Europe to-day—you will find it one vast camp of soldiers. One cannot remain indifferent and not enquire what is all this din of war's alarms about. Take the peace footing of the armies of European nations to-day: it is something marvellous in this Christian dispensation:—Russia 850,000, France 575,000, Germany 460,000, Italy 500,000, Austria 480,000, Turkey 250,000.

Besides the armies of Bulgaria, Servia, Roumania, Greece, and other minor Powers, aggregating a total of 6,000,000, besides the reserves of about 10,000,000 more. This is the strange condition of things in the year of our Lord 1887. Leaving out Russia, Britain has an empire larger than all the rest put together, while the regular army to protect this kingdom, and play her part against all these millions, is only about 145,000. To some this may appear a mystery, but it is one of those regular promises God gave to Israel—saying, one should be equal to five, and two to ten. What an insignificant proportion! It surely is not by armies or personal power that Britain holds her own, but by the Spirit of the living God.

We can say, like Jonathan when attacking the Philistines (1 Sam. xiv. 6): "For there is no restraint to the Lord to save by many or by few." We have that verified in her history time upon time. You must remember that the little army of Britain is all volunteers, while the others are not. The British and the United States' armies are all volunteers: not another volunteer army in the whole of this earth. The United States being Manasseh makes it all right. Well that is what the Lord said the army should be, and it is so to-day; and yet men go wandering up and down this city and wondering if this theory is true. How account for these marvellous exceptions?

It is worth while noticing that no colony of Britain's is being ruled over by any other race on the earth only themselves. Britain has under her rule over 300,000,000 of other races—Germans, Spaniards, Greeks, Italians, Turks, Arabians, French, Dutch, Persians, Chinese, Indians, and many others, but nobody rules over her. God said that she should be at the head, and not at the tail. There is no exception to this rule, and that settles it.

Everybody seems to think that there will be a war very soon somewhere in Europe. Public journals and public writers and eminent statesmen very generally concur that there will be war this next summer. From another standpoint I feel persuaded that war cannot be much longer delayed, I may be mistaken in the date. I have had my mind on the coming summer for some time as the period when would be this European war. If it were that Britain had to go to war in this case, I could mark it out and tell exactly, but the prophets have not marked it out for other nations, so that one cannot so easily distinguish when trouble would begin between Gentile nations. I never have failed as to Israel, even when I have had the whole world against me.

Where it will begin, who the combatants will be, and what the results, are three questions easier asked than truly answered. Were any one of these three questions touching on Israel, or affecting them, I could answer almost safely. In the first place, whoever the combatants are, I know Britain will not be one of them—no matter what political party is in power—that much I know, so I can tell you at one point, Lord Randolph Churchill may resign for fear Britain will go to war. Lord Salisbury and the Ministry may think they will have to take part, but do as they will Britain will not be one of the combatants. At the close of the war Britain will have a work to perform—she will do it nobly. At the close of the Russian-Turkish war she settled disputes for them. She is generous, but generally wants to be well paid. She settled that dispute, and asked for pay—the island of Cyprus; and when she settles the next time she will ask for Palestine, and she will get it too.

Digitized by Google

During the war she will carefully keep an eye on Constantinople, for when this stronghold passes out of the hand of Turkey it will pass into the hands of Britain. The combatants seem likely to be Russia and Austria, which will include some minor states, and then Turkey, then Germany and France may join issue, in fact it is very difficult to say the exact time and extent of the combatants.

The Jews have proved themselves to be indestructible at certain times in the centuries past. All the nations tried to annihilate them, but they could not—they could not uproot that olive tree—one of God's literal witnesses they strove to silence, but they are still in the world's court to testify for God's Word; and His providence to Christian, agnostic, or infidel.

Come what may, Britain has work to perform, and in due time wars and hate between the nations will pass away, when nations shall not rise up against nation, and when they shall learn war no more. Britain has but one grand war to go through before the Millennium, and that is the battle of Armageddon; there will be no other great national war.

The agencies and facilities will multiply so rapidly, and increase to such an extent that war will be no true test. Repeating rifles, repeating cannons, shells filled with nitro-gelatine, or French melinite, or the German robusite, which is ten times more destructive —means wholesale slaughter—a whole army destroyed by the bursting of some of these shells.

God be praised that this will soon end, and that we can hear the song of peace in the future. Let us hasten that peaceful time by every effort on our part, until the nations from the North, from the South, from the East, and the West will nestle down in quietness and peace. The Lord bless us all! Amen.

MR. H. A. MARCHANT LECTURING ON THE BRIGHTON BEACH.

The following tells its own tale, and a very encouraging one it is:—

Anglo-Israel.—"The use of this Subject lies in the truth of it, because truth in every department of knowledge is both invaluable and indispensible." — Bishop Titcomb. "But thou, Israel, art My servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham My friend." "I have chosen thee, and not cast thee away" (Isa. xli. 8, 9). Mr. H. A. Marchant will deliver addresses on the beach, between the stone groynes facing Pool-valley, on Thursday evenings during the summer, at eight o'clock (weather permitting). Subject:—"Our Israelitish origin; its truth and value." "Sing with gladness for Jacob, and shout among the chief of the nations. . . . . Ephraim is My firstborn. Hear the word of the Lord, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off" (Jer. xxxi.).

Mr. Marchant, in sending us an account of his work, begs the prayers of our readers "that God would bless an effort thus being made by a working man to spread the knowledge of the truth." He tells us he has a Bible-class of working people, who meet every Monday for the study of the Identity. They have bought the Howard Vincent Map, and it is hung up in a public reading room. Mr. Marchant has often spoken on the subject in public, in halls, and the open air; and he tells us he has faith that God will bless the effort he is about to make, or is making, at Brighton. He hopes some friends will send him supplies of suitable leaflets and literature on Our Identity to be given away at his open-air addresses. They should be sent to him at 60, Upper Lewes-road, Brighton.

MR. SAMUEL LEE, WHO LIVED IN THE REIGN OF CHARLES SECOND, ON THE TEN TRIBES.

A VERY curious little volume has been lent to us through the kind consideration of our friend Mr. J. G. Taylor, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, and we now proceed to notice a few points in this most unique book, which was published in August, 1669, when Charles Second was King. The first part of the work consists of a Dissertation, edited by Mr. Samuel Lee, but written by Dr. Giles Fletcher, LL.D., Queen Elizabeth's Ambassador at the Court of the great Czar of "Moschovy." Lee obtained the MSS. from Dr. Fletcher's grandson, and published them. The subject of the doctor's researches was the probable whereabouts of the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel, which we see was a matter that occupied learned men over 300 years ago! The writer of the treatise having opportunities at the Czar's Court, came to the conclusion, according to his lights (a conclusion that we now know to be wrong), that the Ten Tribes were the Tartars, a people then in the neighbourhood of the countries where the Israelites were originally located by their conquerors, the Assyrians. We do not stop to ascertain the reasons for this singular solution, though Mr. S. Lee gave many, which seemed to him cogent. What we wish to point out, in anticipation of some more detailed accounts of this work from Mr. Taylor's facile pen, is, that Dr. Fletcher and Mr. S. Lee never hesitated to declare the Scriptural distinction of the Ten Tribes from Judah, their separate captivities, their continued separation down to their times, their eventual conversion to Christ, and the impossibility that Israel could have returned with Judah from Babylon. The writer of this treatise, Dr. Fletcher, clearly held that the Scythians who defeated Cyrus were the Ten-Tribed Israelites (p. 20). He says they affirmed the fact themselves, and were circumcised, "as were the Israelitish and Jewish people" (p. 22). This assertion of a contemporary of Queen Elizabeth, shows that, at any rate, we who make the same (declaring that the Scythians were the escaped Israelites) are not such demented enthusiasts as our opponents allege!

On p. 91, which is a part of Mr. Lee's "disquisition" or dissertation on the Ten Tribes, we have a series of questions and answers, quite in our own modern BANNER fashion. After citing many texts of Scripture, among which we recognise several of our own old friends, he proceeds to state "objections" of opponents, and replies to them.

The 1st objection is one of our own opponent's favourites—viz., "Cyrus permitted all the Tribes to return from Babylon; therefore the Ten Tribes returned with the Two!" "Nay!" says Mr. Lee, "Josephus denies that the Ten Tribes returned, and that settles the question."

Objection No. 2. "The Ten Tribes did not sin like the Jews in killing the Lord" (hear this, modern opponents, all of you!), "therefore, God could not have so severely punished them as alleged, by keeping them in captivity till now" (A.D. 1669). Mr. Lee put the objection aside very summarily. "God," he said, "knows best, and we cannot question His decrees!"

Objection No. 3. "The Scriptures mention the Twelve Tribes after the return from Babylon; therefore the entire Twelve Tribes did return thence together." "Nay!" replied Mr. S. Lee again; "even if we allow some of the Ten Tribes joined themselves to Judah before the captivity of the Jews to Babylon, and supposing some of the Israelites did return with them, this cannot affect the great mass and body of the Ten Tribes which never did return, as Josephus tells us."

Objection No. 4. The Scriptures affirm in Isaiah, Hosea, and Ezekiel, that Israel and Judah were both to be destroyed, and "utterly taken away." "Not so!" answers Mr. Lee. "God's threats against Israel have always a bright side, and proclamations of mercy were attached to each of them."

Digitized by Google

Objection No. 5. (A very remarkable one, and one quite on our own modern patterns.) This objection is our old friend Spiritual Israel! "The promises of Israel belong" (said those objectors of 1669) "to the Church of God, to the 'Spiritual Israel'—that is, 'but not to the literal people!'"

Mr. Lee's answer to this must be given in some detail. Our opponents now-a-days ought not to miss a word of it! He said: "The consensus of Primitive Saints, and Churches, and the Confessions of the Reformed countries, are against the opponents. For—

(1) "Israel, as a spiritual body, cannot be among the nations, since there is a manifest distinction drawn between Israel and the nations, in many of the promises of the Scriptures relating to this subject.

(2) "The Spirit of God addresses special comforts and consolations to natural Israel under their devastations and dispersions, as a distinct and particular nation. Besides, such a promise as Isa. xix. 25 could have no literal meaning, if the words as they relate to Israel, are to be understood as referring to a spiritual, mystical Israel.

(3) "Scripture expressly gives to Israel, as a nation, blessings spiritual and temporal far in excess of all other nations.

(4). "The promises of blessings and mercy are declared in Zech. xii. 10, to be applicable to that nation which pierced Him. The idea of Spiritual Israel is excluded here.

(5) "The promises have in each case reference to the release from the Captivities of the Two Houses. Now the first captivity of the Jews was literal, and the first release from Babylon was literal. Hence there must be a second literal release from the present captivities in like manner.

(6) "As the places wherein Israel is to be restored are specially mentioned as Elam, Assyria, etc., it is incongruous to give these places a spiritual meaning to correspond with "Spiritual Israel."

Strangely enough, and as if Mr. Lee's experiences were exactly similar to our own, he concludes his argument for the literal restoration of a literal Ten-Tribed Israelite nation by a few pages in reply to the Cui bono? argument of the opponents of his day! (p. 126). His answer is a scathing one. We wish our own Cui bono clergy could read and ponder it. It is to this effect. "Are you, ye opponents, wiser than God? Will you teach Him what He ought to do respecting Israel?" "He thought meet to write these promises, and who art thou, vile worm (!) to say to Him 'What doest thou?' Of what spirit must they be that reflect upon the counsels and dictates of God? certainly very nefarious and impious!" The author, even in his day, saw that "there were four things yet to rowl (roll) over the world:—viz., the destruction of Antichrist; the conversion of Israel; the Ruine (ruin) of the Turk, and the glorious state of the Church from the rising of the sun to his going down, when the name of the Lord of Hosts shall be great among the Gentiles," etc. On p. 122 (writes Mr. Taylor in sending us this book) there is a statement which is very remarkable from an Identity standpoint. The author shows that for forty-five years after 1766 there would be great wars engaged in by Israel with the nations that might obstruct their way to Palestine, ending in 1811, the time of the consumption and destruction of their enemies. You will remember that Waterloo was fought in 1815, and in fact all the great battles of the Peninsula war circle round 1811. That war was plainly a war with those who were attempting to obstruct the road to Palestine, as our way lies through the Mediterranean. It was further the expressed object of Napoleon to make this sea a "French Lake," and Palestine a "French Dependency." Our space forbids us dwelling longer on a most interesting treatise on our own nineteenth century subject. It is strange that in A.D. 1669 all the true and correct answers to our opponents of to-day were presented to the mind of Mr. Lee so far as they could be seen then, and that as regards the chief points of our controversy he was able to see clearly, while our clerics and scientists of to-day are in the dark about them still. As to the main fact, which nation represented Israel, neither Dr. Fletcher nor Mr. Lee, in 1669, were able to give very positive evidence, for in truth "the signs of Israel" were not very apparent then on our nation. The Tartars, our authors really knew nothing of, but even in respect to them, they came very near the mark as to their national origin. Being Scythians, they were the Ten Tribes; and this is their decided testimony.

THE HEAD, AND NOT THE TAIL, EVEN IN SHIP-BUILDING AND MARINE ENGINEERING.

THE following, from "The Capitalist" of May 28, 1887, is a charming illustration amounting to "blind evidence," called "unwilling testimony" by the journalist himself, that the British are "the head, and not the tail, above only and not beneath all the nations of the earth" in "shipbuilding and marine engineering"! If it were not so, the Belgian Government, now "wearing sackcloth," would have gone to some better market for her ships and engines than to the Clyde and Liverpool! She goes there, however, and confesses, first, that the British are Israel; and second, that Deut. xxviii. 1 and 13 are fulfilled in her, and her alone. The extract, kindly sent us by some nameless friend is as follows:—

AN UNWILLING TESTIMONY.

The old-established Dover-Ostend Mail Service is worked by the Belgian Government, and assisted by a subsidy of £5,000 a year from the British Government. Not long since two new boats were put on this service, and, as it had a perfect right to do, the Belgian Government had the new craft built in the home-building yards, and equipped by Belgian machinery for the encouragement of native industry. There were persons who warned the Belgian Government that the result would be unsatisfactory, but the Government was bound to believe in the capability, at all events, of les braves Belges. The result, however, has been eminently unsatisfactory, and les braves Belges stand confessed before the world as very inferior shipbuilders and marine engineers. The mail service has been demoralised. The hulls were not on good lines, and the boilers and engines have been surveyed and inspected and tinkered over and over again, but all to no purpose. The steamers will not keep time; the mails are delayed, and they cannot find out what is the cause of it all, or, at least, they cannot find a remedy for the defects of construction. The German Government, with patience exhausted, at last gave formal notice of withdrawal of the mails, which henceforth were to go viâ Queenborough and Flushing. The British Government protested and protested, but without hastening the speed of the donkey engines "what wouldn't go," and at last threatened to stop the subsidy. The Belgian Government has had to send special deputations to Germany, and probably his Majesty the King arranged matters with the British officials when he was recently in London. The upshot is that a portion of the German mail has been permanently lost, but an undertaking has been given to the German and British Governments to provide first-class swift steamers. Two new steamers will probably be ordered in the Clyde, and while they are being built a suitable steamer has been provisionally chartered in Liverpool to answer the requirements of the service. Here, then, is a positive but unwilling testimony to the superiority of the British shipbuilder and his associate the marine engineer. Belgium puts on sackcloth.

We need no comment in respect to the above. Our readers will be able to supply all that the case demands. The superiority of the British in shipping and marine engineering is so indisputable that men hardly deem it any proof of our Israelitish origin when they read of such a case as that quoted. It is the same, however, in all manufactures. It may be that for a time we are distanced in some department of production by particular nations. But as soon as our deficiency is recognised, and it is seen that we are losing markets or money by our own neglect, then forthwith the effort is made, our supremacy is at once asserted, and our blessing from on high, because we are Israel, is proclaimed. In the matter of the Gates, it was lately discovered that we had allowed them to be almost undefended, and that we had offered a very needless temptation to our European neighbours "to swoop down" upon and capture them. We read now in the Times of June 8th that the deficiency is recognised, and the remedy is being rapidly supplied. The following was in the naval and military intelligence of that date, and very satisfactory reading it is:—

Digitized by Google

The Lords of the Admiralty have just decided that the increase recently made in the number of first-class torpedo boats will render immediately possible a new and more liberal distribution of these craft among the various coaling-stations and naval ports abroad. Hitherto Malta has had four torpedo boats, and Gibraltar, Hongkong, the Cape and Simon's Bay, and Esquimalt (Vancouver Island), two each; now Malta is to receive six, Gibraltar four, and Hongkong and the Cape six each, in addition to the former establishment; while Bermuda and Halifax (Nova Scotia) are to be supplied for the first time with four boats each, Port Royal with two, and an extra one is to be sent to Esquimalt. The boats are expected to be at their destinations by the end of the present month, the crews being provided from Her Majesty's ships on the respective stations. Arrangements are also being made for increasing the number of torpedo boats at the home ports, especially at Portsmouth, Devonport, Sheerness, and Chatham, and Haulbowline.

In this extract, which deals with only a part of the subject connected with the defence of the coaling stations, we see a fulfilment of God's direction to Israel in these our last days, when He said, as recorded in Isa. xxvi. 20, "Come, My people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee; hide thyself for a little moment until the indignation be overpast." The doors, we presume, are "the Gates" of Israel, and the command to "shut them about" her we interpret (and we think justly) into a command to fortify and defend these coaling-stations and ocean fortresses, in order that enclosed within them British-Israel may there safely retain all her world-wide possessions and await the result, free from fear of molestation, during that awful catastrophe which is to overtake "the nations," what time God's indignation, even "all His fierce anger," is "poured out" on them, and "all the earth is devoured with the fire of His jealousy" (Zeph. iii. 8). The British Government has at last been roused to do the work God puts upon it to perform, and accordingly the land and sea-batteries which these places require are being constructed and furnished with their appropriate ordnance. The torpedo boats, which are to play so important a part in future maritime warfare, are also to be largely supplied to them as well as to our home Gates. We thank God that we have before our eyes a fulfilment of prophecy which applies distinctly to Israel of the Ten Tribes, and that both as regards the Gates and our shipbuilding operations we have reason to praise the Lord!

THE LONDON SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIANITY AMONGST THE JEWS.

We beg our readers to understand that in what we are about to put before them, we are desirous of addressing them as an honorary treasurer and friend of the London Society for Promoting Christianity Amongst the Jews, but not at all as a private individual anxious to exalt himself among men. As a servant of the venerable Society, who loves and is anxious to forward their work for his brethren of the House of Judah, we wish to communicate with the readers of the Banner.

Some weeks since at a meeting where the claims of Our Identity were pressed on the attention of some gentlemen who cannot yet see this truth, one of those present, much respected in the place, gave utterance to some such sentiments as these. He saw, he said, much to set him against the views which recognise the British people as the Lost Ten Tribes. As a Christian man, he was decidedly opposed to them because his experience had been that those who had most energetically espoused this new doctrine, had ceased to work for Christ. Doubtless, our readers have many of them come across objections of this character, and been deeply pained by their persistent repetition and by their manifest falsehood. We desire to offer a refutation of this calumny which falls within our own personal experience as a treasurer of the Jews' Society, and as the Editor of the Banner of Israel. Our opponents cannot deny that we hold views which men call Anglo-Israelite opinions. We have held them publicly, and it has been no secret to the London Society that their cause has been served in Bristol and Clifton by one who is far gone in "the Anglo-Israel" craze; who edits what (we hope) is the "leading journal" of those "enthusiasts," and does all he can in season and out of season, to make men believe that the British are Ephraim, and as Ephraim are bound to take the Gospel of the grace of God to their brethren the Jews, because there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby they (the Jews included) may be saved, but the name of Jesus; and "Israel" of the Ten Tribes is set apart "to blossom and bud and fill the face of the world with such Gospel fruit." The London Society, we repeat, have long known this. Have they resented it, and requested their Bristol and Clifton treasurer to resign? Nothing of the sort! They have taken a step, on the contrary, which if it does not convey approval of the views we Anglo-Israelites delight to honour, yet places the imprimatur of their approval on an Arch-Anglo-Israelite, who they believe, at any rate, is doing what he can to serve their own mission and cause. To such a one they wrote on June 20, 1887, as follows, through their Secretary:—

"I have great pleasure in informing you that the Committee last Friday elected you an Honorary Life Governor of the Society. There are only a few 'Life Governors;' as the Committee reserve this distinction for those who have rendered most essential service to the cause. This will be some little acknowledgment on the part of the Committee of the good and valuable help you have rendered as Treasurer of the most important Auxiliary Association for many years.

"With kind regards, yours very truly,

"W. T. Gidney."

The above must suffice. It is a complete and full reply to those who say that Anglo-Israelites on professing that belief cease to work for Christ. The London Society say the charge is false! Anglo-Israelites, as a body, say the charge is false; and the Editor of the Banner not only declares that the Rev. Mr. Gidney's letter proves it to be untrue, but that that other libel which declares we feel and teach that there is no need to send the Gospel to the Jews, because God has already accepted them, is shown by the facts now detailed to be a gross calumny, and one which Mr. Gidney has handsomely rebutted. The Anglo-Israelites who follow the teachings of the Banner love the Jews, and rejoice to offer them the Gospel. The London Society cannot but bear testimony to this fact, and we rejoice to be able to publish their Secretary's letter, in order that our opponents may take note of the matter, and for evermore cease to make statements respecting Anglo-Israelites which they now know are the offspring of a lively imagination, but are not founded on facts. For in truth, an Anglo-Israelite must from the nature of things be a worker for Christ, if he be sincere. He belongs to a nation "made, formed, and created," "to show forth God's praise;" whose duty is "to blossom and bud and fill the face of the world with fruit," to be "a blessing," in short, to "all nations, families, and kindreds of the earth" (Isa. xliii. 21; xxvii. 6; Gen. xxii. 18; xxviii. 14; Acts iii. 25). Such an one cannot but work for Christ, and if he do not, woe be to that sluggish, unfaithful, son of a glorious kingdom, of which surely he is totally unworthy. For the honour done to him, the editor of this journal desires to return to the Committee of the London Society heartfelt thanks, but for any help he may have given to the cause of the Gospel among the Jews, he desires that to the Lord may be given all the praise.

Digitized by Google

HEBREW PROPHECY AND ITS FULFILMENT IN THE BRITISH PEOPLE.

THE Hebrew prophecy to which we desire to draw attention is this: It was addressed by the Lord Jehovah to His servant Abram:—

"I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and be thou a blessing, and I will bless them that bless thee, and him that curseth thee will I curse, and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed" (Gen. xii. 2 and 3, R.V.).

Again, in Gen. xviii. 17, 18, A.V., we have God's promise to Abraham:—"Shall I hide from Abraham that which I do, seeing that Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation, and all nations of the earth shall be blessed in him?"

That nation, Christian in character, and therefore a modern nation, taking the gospel to all the nations, families and kindreds of the earth, we now know to be the British nation, bringing forth the fruits of the kingdom of God, according to our Lord's prophecy in Matt. xxi. 43.

But where is the fulfilment of this prophecy recorded, and how can we prove that the British fulfil it in respect to the "greatness" of this nation? The Times newspaper of June 10, in its sub-leader respecting the Jubilee celebration in London and the Provinces on June 21, shall be our witness. The writer said, in reference to the State procession: "It ought to be worthy, not merely in its State character, but in its character of a popular demonstration, of a great Empire, a great nation, a great city, a great sovereign, and a great occasion." Here we have a literal fulfilment of a literal prophecy blindly recorded! The Israelite nation to come of Abraham's seed is indeed now a "great nation" and a "great Empire." In this and in every other respect the British fulfil the prophecies, and for this we have cause to praise the Lord.

Of course we do not insist that this one identification of the Lost House of Israel is a final and decisive piece of evidence which concludes the case. We do say, however, that if the British people had every other identification of Israel, but lacked this one, and if it could be said that we were rich, the residents in islands to the West and yet in the North country, lovers of souls, and the evangelists of the world, and yet were not a really "great nation" in the common acceptation of the words, then we should have to admit that we do not yet answer to God's description of Israel of the latter days. But the Times has set that matter at rest, and no one can venture to deny the fact which the writer in it stated. We are a "great nation." Our Empire is a "great Empire"; our people are a "great people"; our metropolis is a "great" city; our sovereign is a "great Queen," because she rules over a "great nation." Some among us would deprecate the publication of such a fact as this because it is calculated to puff up the people of this land, and to make our race despise and contemn all others not so distinguished as ourselves. But have we the right to conceal that which God Himself twice distinctly foretold to Abraham? and by many signs and marks made known to Isaac and Jacob and confirmed the same to the people of Israel? He who gave the promise, and the reason for it, is sure to preserve those to whom it assigned it from a misuse of what is distinctly meant to subserve God's glory. "This people have I formed for Myself, they shall show forth My praise," was God's own declaration in respect to His people Israel whom He made, created, and formed into "a great nation," that by reason of such distinction they might be able to take the gospel and the knowledge of Christ the Lord to all nations, families, and kindreds of the earth, and so enhance God's praise and glory.

This view of the matter is one our clergy and opponents in general seldom or never take. But it is the reasonable view, and one that is most clearly stated in the scriptures, to account for God's dealings with Israel in these last days. God's selection of Israel for greatness as a nation now, for splendid empire, for maritime supremacy, for vast inconceivable wealth, for immense and portentous increase of population (which is Empire), for security in their island home—all these subserve that other purpose we have mentioned, namely, the conversion of the world through the instrumentality of fruit-bearing Ephraim-Israel (Matt. xxi. 45; Isa. xxvii. 6). All these gifts are needful to enable Israel to become the missionary of the whole world. "Greatness as a nation," and splendid Empire confer power, and without earthly power no nation can take the first steps towards the evangelisation of the heathen and unconverted world. Maritime supremacy is needed to make sure of constant uninterrupted communication with all parts of the heathen and colonial world where these operations are carried on. Unbounded, abnormal wealth is required to pay for these evangelising efforts, and that "God may establish His covenant which He sware unto Israel's father, as it is this day" (Deut. viii. 18). Multitudinousness is required to enable Israel to expand as to Empire throughout the world, and so come in contact with all the races, families, and kindreds of the earth in the prosecution of their evangelising functions.

The Hebrew prophecies favouring Israel thus are fulfilled in this our Christian dispensation, as it was destined they should be, and the British folk realise all the promises, not one wanting. The chief of them, including all that constitutes Joseph's birthright, is the blessing which God Himself conferred on the House of Israel, when He declared they should become "a great nation," "a great and mighty nation." Therefore let Israel praise the Lord!

THE QUEEN'S LETTER.

FORWARDED BY JOHN S. ANDERSON.

LETTERS from Royal personages are not of such frequent occurrence that we can afford to pass lightly over them; on the other hand it should be our aim to make a record of them; and I am sure no more fitting place could be found for this purpose than the columns of the BANNER, and especially for such a letter as this.

I trust you will accord me the privilege of sending you, for the above purpose, the letter from our beloved Queen, taken from the Standard this morning, with the fervent wish that it may please God to continue his blessings unto her, the first lady in the world, sitting on the throne of David, and ruling His people Israel, and that she may continue to do so for many years to come. God save the Queen!

Croydon, 27th June, 1887.

THE JUBILEE CELEBRATIONS.—LETTER FROM THE QUEEN.

A Supplement to the London Gazette was published on Saturday evening, containing the following:—

WHITEHALL, JUNE 25,

The following letter from the Queen has been received by the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for the Home Department:—

"WINDSOR CASTLE, JUNE 24.

"I am anxious to express to my people my warm thanks for the kind, and more than kind, reception I met with on my going to and returning from Westminster Abbey, with all my children and grandchildren.

"The enthusiastic reception I met with then, as well as on all these eventful days, in London, as well as in Windsor, on the occasion of my Jubilee, has touched me most deeply. It has shown that the labour and anxiety of fifty long years, twenty-two of which I spent in unclouded happiness, shared and cheered by my beloved husband, while an equal number were full of sorrows and trials, borne without his sheltering arm and wise help, have been appreciated by my people.

"This feeling and the sense of duty towards my dear country and subjects, who are so inseparably bound up with my life, will encourage me in my task, often a very difficult and arduous one, during the remainder of my life.

"The wonderful order preserved on this occasion and the good behaviour of the enormous multitudes assembled merit my highest admiration.

"That God may protect and abundantly bless my country is my fervent prayer. "VICTORIA, R. and I."

Digitized by Google

"THE SECRET OF BRITAIN'S GREATNESS."

A Sermon by the Rev. C. W. Hickson, M.A., of Bristol.

On Sunday evening, June 19th, the Rev. Vicar of St. Bartholomew's, Bristol (the Rev. C. W. Hickson), preached a remarkable and excellent sermon in his Church, in connection with the Jubilee services in the city, but having especial reference to the Identity of the British people with Israel. There was a good attendance, and we were glad to notice among the congregation some well-known Anglo-Israelites.

The Vicar chose for his text Micah iv. 7—"I will make her that halted a remnant, and her that was cast far off a strong nation; and the Lord shall reign over them in Mount Zion from henceforth, even for ever."

The subject, said the preacher, is a difficult one to bring within the compass of a sermon of half-an-hour's duration. The cause of Britain's greatness undoubtedly is that she is God's Israel; Israel not in a spiritual sense, but in a literal. This may be seen from her Church services and forms of prayer, where we find that our nation is spoken of as "God's people,"—nay, even as "Israel." Such expressions in our Liturgy as "Thy people," applied to the British, can only mean one thing; namely, that they are separated from the world, and constitute God's special family, all the other nations (America excepted) being non-Israelite Gentiles. The point now before us is this:—that we believe that the real root and source of Britain's greatness, influence, and prosperity are found in the fact that we as a nation are literally the inheritors of God's promises to "Abraham and his seed for ever." But how can we prove this? What are the promises and prophecies which bear upon this case? and are they all fulfilled in our own nation exclusively? If we receive God's promises to Abraham literally, as He spoke them, we cannot long remain in doubt! For we must reflect that God cannot give to one people what He promised to quite another! What He promised to reserve for Israel He cannot forthwith give to the non-Israelite British Gentiles.

Let me bring before you (continued the preacher) the subject to-night under the following threefold aspects:—

1st. The promise of great, world-wide blessedness.
2nd. The promise of multitudes of people.
3rd. The promise of the land.

In regard to the first subject, the promise of a great, world-wide blessedness. This, of course, related to the proclamation of salvation, by grace through Messiah, freely offered to all mankind. This blessing was given by God Himself to the seed of Abraham, when He said, in Gen. xxii. 18,—"In thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." Our nation responds to this blessing, and we do so exclusively. We alone preach the Gospel to all mankind, and do our best "to fill the face of the world with fruit."

The next blessing we have nationally realised is "multitudinousness," given originally by God to His servant Abraham, as his reward for obedience to His word and will. This was not "a spiritual" promise of large numbers of believers in the Lord Jesus Christ, but a literal "nation and a company of nations," such as the Lord promised to Jacob that He would grant to his posterity to become. But mark the peculiarity of this gift. They were to become "a nation and a company of Goyîm," or "nations," not resident in but outside Palestine. They were to become "a multitude of such nations," or "Goyîm," therefore, necessarily outside Palestine, and non-residents therein.

We have next the promise to Abraham and his seed of "The Land." It was to be theirs for ever! Promises to this effect are to be found in Gen. xii., xiii., xvii., xxii., xxvi., xxviii., and xxxv.

But who were to be the recipients of these magnificent blessings? They were to be God's own elected ones. Thus, after Abraham, the blessings were to descend (for the fact was so) to Isaac to the exclusion of Ishmael, to Jacob to the exclusion of Esau; to Judah and Joseph chiefly, to the exclusion of the other Tribes. The blessings enumerated in Genesis xlix. were granted to the sons of Jacob, literally. Judah was to become the ancestor of "the Christ," or Messiah. The sceptre was not to depart from Judah till "Shiloh" came. The chief ruler or kingly office was to belong to Judah, and accordingly of that tribe Christ sprang, destined to sit on the Throne of the House of David for ever.

But what of "the nation" and "the multitudinous seed"? These were conveyed to Joseph, as Gen. xlix. 22—26 teach us. The birthright was given to the sons of Joseph, Ephraim, and Manasseh (1 Chron. v. 1, 2). Theirs was to be the "double portion."

In due time two separate kingdoms were formed—that of Judah, and that of Ephraim, the son of Joseph. Ever since the death of Solomon the Hebrew people were divided into two nations, Judah and Israel; and never to this hour have they been reunited. The Jews being carried away to Babylon, were kept there in captivity for seventy years, and then returned to Jerusalem to build their temple, barely 50,000 in number. When the Lord Jesus came, they crucified Him, and so brought upon themselves the dispersion they are now suffering. For 1,817 years they have been penally scattered, and so they remain to this day.

But where, meanwhile, have the Ten Tribes gone? and where are they to-day? They were carried away, in B.C. 721, to Assyria; what became of them there? They were "lost." We have nothing in the Bible about them to tell us historically what became of them, or in secular history either, save this—that Amos viii. 12, and ix. 9, declare that they were to become "wanderers" all over the earth, seeking for the Word of the Lord, but not able to find it; scattered, but yet more utterly lost, so as to perish from off the earth. God's eye was to be and has been ever upon them. A special providence was always to guard them, as Ezek. xxxvii. 1—15 proves. In that passage they are described as "the whole House of Israel"; and under the figure of "the dry bones" they were pictured as scattered, till the Word of God brought them together, bone joined to bone, and the flesh covering the bones; but wanting the Spirit of God to give them life. God's wind next blows upon them, and they are "vivified." What does this figure mean? Surely the national conversion of the Ten Tribes, and their national up-rising as a Christian nation, covenanted through Christ!

We see, then, the process is this:—1st, the Ten Tribes were to be "scattered"; 2nd, God's eye was to be always upon them while so scattered; 3rd, they were to be finally "gathered together" as a Christian nation, but not yet known as Israel. Hosea i. 10 shows us that, and there it is revealed that where Israel was repudiated as "not God's people," there they were to be acknowledged as "sons of the living God," or a Christian nation! We see, then, that "lost Israel" was destined to become, in their dispersion, an immense multitude—"a nation and company of nations," as well as "a Christian" nation. Surely it would be impossible to conceal such a people? They cannot possibly be hidden now.

Let us ask another question. Where geographically are we to look for "the whole House of Israel," hidden, and yet revealed, before men? Isa. xxiv. 13 gives us our clue. It tells us Israel is to be at the last, both in the East, and praising God in the Isles of the Sea, outside Palestine; crying aloud, so that none can mistake the sound! In Isa. xi. 13, 14, we have some more hints. In returning to the land Israel will journey thither "from the West," so as to land on the Western coast of Palestine. Hosea xi. 10 is to the same effect. Ephraim will be "in the West" when the Lord shows His power in their favour. Ephraim will "tremble" then "from the West;" for Jer. xxiii. 5—7 also testifies that when Israel returns she will be outside Palestine, and will be restored from North, South, East, and West, the headquarters being "the Isles afar off," West of Palestine; yet "the North country."

Digitized by Google

But our text gives us a fresh indication. Israel will, in that day, be "a strong nation." The "cast out" one, "cast far off," must be found powerful and "great" as a people. Zech. x. 6, 7, repeats that, showing also that then Judah will be separate from Joseph. The latter House being the Ten Tribes will have then been long scattered, yet God promises Joseph to "save" them, and bring them again. God "hears" them and blesses them.

Surely all this describes the British Empire! an increasing race—a people "sown" among others in the four quarters of the globe in blessing, but not as a curse. They are in all lands now as witnesses for the truth. The Anglo-Saxons answer to these details, but no other race whatsoever does. They are in "far countries," outside Palestine. There they are "living with their children," and "thence they shall return." They are to be gathered from Egypt, where they are settled to-day. So numerous are they to be, that "place will not be found for them," by reason of their great expansion. Their function will be to take their brethren the Jews back to their common land, and lo! to-day we see the Jews flocking to these islands in preparation, according to the prophecies. The time will surely come when Israel-Britain will conduct the Jews back to Palestine, and occupy that land with them. Then will come the end, when the Lord Jesus Christ will return in glory and reign over His ancients, Israel and Judah, then one nation and one kingdom—not two, as to-day. These things are true, and they are revealed to us in the Word of our God. Shall we not look into them and observe them, though they may not directly affect the salvation of our souls?

If these things be true (and I believe they are true), what vast responsibility rests on us as a nation and an empire, to live holily, godly, and purely! No doubt we are a sinful race; no doubt we have not observed the Lord's-day as we ought to have done. Yet we have, in a measure, nationally recognised the day and kept it as the Sabbath of the Lord our God. Doubtless we are an unrighteous nation, falling far short of the standard of righteousness set before us in the Word. Yet we are the Lord's people, and we must humble ourselves in His sight. Our views encourage us to hope for bright things in future, as the destiny of our race. Let us "search the scriptures," and see that our nation's happiness and greatness are founded on them—not only on the New Testament, but on the Old—on the Books of Moses, and on the prophecies of the servants of the living God! In this our Jubilee commemoration can we be better occupied than by searching into that Word, and seeing how God has blessed us as a nation, under our glorious Queen, "Victoria the Good"; and how, because we are Israel, the Lord has given us all the blessings of Israel according to the promises! To Him be all the praise! Amen.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL for June 22nd. In answer to several inquiries the publishers beg to state that this number is entirely out of print a few copies of the July monthly part which contains the number may still be had. Early application should be made.

ENGLAND AND RUSSIA.—In a very hopeful telegram, the St Petersburg correspondent of the Standard announces that the Afghan frontier difficulty has been "settled," adding the hope that "we have now heard the last for some time to come, of Anglo-Russian differences in Central Asia." The settlement is said to have been effected by "mutual concessions" on the part of England and Russia respectively, the Ameer of Afghanistan losing neither revenue nor subjects. All this would be very pretty reading if it were possible to believe that the news is true; and that Russia will keep any engagements which she has made anywhere; or that Russia has frankly consented to give up the most cherished aims of her policy.—Bristol Times and Mirror, July 22nd, 1887.

ANGLO-ISRAEL FREE DISTRIBUTION FUND.

FORTY-FOURTH MONTHLY REPORT.

THE following donations and subscriptions, from June 18th to July 15th, are very gratefully acknowledged:—

By the Treasurer: Mrs. E. M. S. (per Philo-Israel), 5s.; Mrs. S. (per Philo-Israel), 2s. 6d.; C. H. N., a Jubilee thank-offering (per Philo-Israel), 5s.; C. P. B., Ambala, £1 14s.; Miss C., a Jubilee thank-offering (per Philo-Israel), £2; A. C., Zetholm, 10s.; J. T., Cambridge, 3s.

By Mr. C. Horner: Mrs. C. B. (monthly subscription), 5s.; I. S. A., Edinburgh, 2s. 6d.; T. D. L., Richmond, 2s. 6d.

Total, £5 9s. 6d.

J. LAWRENCE, Hon. Treasurer.

We have to acknowledge, with many thanks, one packet of BANNERS from Miss F., and another from J. H., Ripon, which have been forwarded to Sowers working at Portsmouth and Sheffield.

One to three BANNERS are forwarded weekly and fortnightly, by the Secretary, to St. John's, South Africa; Cleveland, U.S.A.; Birkenhead, Rome, Ambala (India), Upper Teddington, Mechanics' Institute, Crewe, Richmond, Maesteg; to the Free Public Libraries at Manchester (three copies), Wandsworth, and Wimbledon.

Seventeen parcels (one to two) of literature have been despatched to Rome, Ambala (India), New South Wales, Cleveland (U.S.A.), Sheffield, Hull, North Shields, Barrington, Tywyn, Quernersford, Shrewsbury, Upper Teddington, Richmond, Great Yarmouth, Hulme (Manchester).

Consequent upon Miss Rush's retirement, the Sowers hitherto supplied by her are, for the future, kindly asked to apply to the secretary, while it will facilitate matters if they also specify the particular pamphlets, etc., they desire for circulation.

About 12 dozen BANNERS are sent out weekly, which, with postage, amount to over £2 per month; and since the large additional staff of sowers are now dependent on the secretary for other literature, it is earnestly hoped our friends will continue their kind assistance to the Fund as heretofore.

We have to report the acquisition to our staff of sowers of one in the neighbourhood of Manchester, who writes:—"I beg to acknowledge receipt of the leaflets, 'Call for Prayer,' and other literature, which I distributed amongst teachers and friends at our little church. I gave a pamphlet to our assistant missioner, who is training for the ministry. He openly confessed to me that, if he believed his Bible at all, he was bound to believe in the Identity; though, not having sufficiently studied the subject, could not openly preach it. I expected great objection to my distribution of the various leaflets, but all received them gladly. At the parish church, St. Michael's, on June 19th, I gave as many as I had to the congregation, but had none left for the rector, to whom I intended to have spoken on the subject. . . . I should be glad to receive a supply occasionally, for I am anxious to forward the knowledge of such glorious truths."

Our Sower at Cleveland, Ohio, says:—"I cannot express my obligations I feel under to your Society for sending the BANNER continually for so long a time, and I herewith express my grateful thanks for your kindness, and hope I may be favoured with them yet longer. I am working continually to make known the glorious news of Israel discovered, and have been the means of opening some blind eyes. Could you send me another packet of the goodly seed to keep on my sowing? I know of no better work, or any way I can serve my dear Lord, or advance the interest of His coming kingdom on earth more effectually. That God may speed you in His blessed work is my prayer. I hope I may yet be able to induce some believers to form a Bible-class to meet together and study the glorious truths."

Our Birkenhead Sower, writing for more literature, states:—"I have a very excellent opportunity of 'sowing' amongst the loyal Orangemen here, some of whom asked me for literature. . . . The Bible-class is now quite an Identity one, and six are regular subscribers for the BANNER."

Another writes:—"My friend has been asked to take a class of children at the Wesleyan Chapel, and wishes for something that would be easy for beginners. It is a good opportunity."

Digitized by Google

CHARLES HORNER, Secretary.

Contributions to the Fund will be thankfully received and acknowledged by the Hon. Treasurer, Miss J. Lawrence, Rosslyn, Hampton-road, Upper Teddington, Middlesex; or by Mr. Chas. Horner, 34, Sheen-park, Richmond-on-Thames. Cheques may be crossed, "London and Provincial Bank, Teddington Branch." Grants of literature will be made, as far as funds allow, on application to the Secretary.

ISRAEL'S SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER UNION.

SINCE our last report only one new member has joined the Union—C. P. Bird, Esq., Ambala, who has kindly consented to become the local hon. secretary for the Prayer Union in India. A donation of 3s. 6d. from member 209 towards the expenses of the Union, is thankfully acknowledged.

New members are requested, when writing for cards, to kindly state whether their names are to be entered as Mr., Mrs., or Miss, &c.

For the convenience of those members who wish to continue the daily reading, the following list of chap. for Aug. is printed:—

1st ...	Prov.	xxvii.	12th ...	Eccles.	vii.	23rd ...	Song Sol.	vi.
2nd...	,,	xxviii.	13th ...	,,	viii.	24th ...	,,	vii.
3rd ...	,,	xxix.	14th ...	,,	ix.	25th ...	,,	viii.
4th ...	,,	xxx.	15th ...	,,	x.	26th ...	Isaiah	i.
5th ...	,,	xxxi.	16th ...	,,	xi.	27th ...	,,	ii.
6th ...	Eccles.	i.	17th ...	,,	xii.	28th ...	,,	iii.
7th ...	,,	ii.	18th ...	Song Sol.	i.	29th ...	,,	iv.
8th ...	,,	iii.	19th ...	,,	ii.	30th ...	,,	v.
9th ...	,,	iv.	20th ...	,,	iii.	31st ...	,,	vi.
10th ...	,,	v.	21st ...	,,	iv.
11th ...	,,	vi.	22nd ...	,,	v.

The card of membership will be sent on receipt of three stamps.

The first and second series of Monthly Comments on the whole Bible, by Philo-Israel, may now be obtained in volume form. Price in paper cover, 1s. 2d. each, post free; in cloth, 2s. each, post free. The "Prayers for Daily Use," being a prayer for each day of the week, by Philo-Israel, are 1d., or 9d. per dozen, postage extra. The prayer of the Union, as on the Card of Membership, may now be obtained printed in larger type, price 1d. for three copies, post free, or 1s. per 100 for distribution. Address, Miss E. Sibbald, 3, Townshend-villas, Richmond, Surrey.

THE VICAR OF CLIFTON ON 1 KINGS X. 9.

THE Rev. Talbot Greaves, M.A., the vicar of Clifton, preached a "Jubilee" sermon on Sunday evening, June 26th, 1887, taking for his text 1 Kings, x. 9, "The Queen of Sheba said to Solomon:—"Blessed be the Lord thy God which delighteth in thee to set thee on the throne of Israel: because the Lord loved Israel for ever, therefore made He thee king to do judgment and justice." After speaking of the Queen of Sheba's faith, which brought her so far to test the truth of God's dealings with the king; her want of belief, nevertheless, in the reports which first reached her; and the result when her faith was fully confirmed by sight and by hearing, leading to her attribution of praise to the Lord God of Israel; the preacher paid a warm tribute to the qualities which have endeared Queen Victoria to the hearts of her people. He commended the purity of her reign and life, and the excellence of her character as a wife, a widow, as the mistress of her household, as a queen, and as the reigning head of a mighty empire. He drew a glowing picture of her happy, virtuous, moral reign, pointed out that she ever leaned to Protestant principles as those on which her throne was founded; and observed that as in Israel, so in our own history, the good reign of such a good Queen was accompanied by the prosperity and true happiness of the people under her charge. Then the preacher made the following statement:—"The history of God's dealings with this, our nation, is an exact parallel to that of His dealings with His people Israel, and if anything could persuade me of the truth of Anglo-Israelism, it would be the fact of God's truth and faithfulness, as it has followed our nation just as it followed Israel, whom the Lord Jehovah loved for ever." "He has dealt with us as He did with Israel, and the parallelism is exact." We make no comment on the preacher's utterances, before a congregation of at least 1,000 people, except this:—That the Rev. Talbot Greaves does not really seem very far from the profession of a belief in our glorious truth.

JOHN WESLEY AN ANGLO-ISRAELITE.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—When this reaches you I shall have nearly completed my eightieth year. I have been a Methodist from quite a boy, when from John Wesley's work among men I was brought to know myself and to love the Saviour. Nearly thirty years ago, from the study of the Bible, assisted by Wesley's writings in that study, I became convinced that our British race are indeed and cannot be otherwise than Israelites. Through the late Mr. Joseph Glenny I became, happily, acquainted with the BANNER OF ISRAEL, and I have taken it in and read it with much pleasure ever since. In your last number that has reached me you speak of want of appreciation (page 83). I trust it will not discourage you; for you are doing a great work, and doing it well. Considering that there is now a lull before the storm, a halt before the onset, what can be done but watch and wait, and speak as God helps?

But these Methodists! There are some praying people among them God says He will be enquired of by the House of Israel to do for them what He has promised. I am grieved that so few of our people understand the question. I have written an article to call their attention to it. Many of them read the BANNER, and if you think it worthy of insertion it may do good. One month from to-day, namely 20th June, it will be just twenty years since I first lectured on the subject. Then it was new in these parts. Now it is well known and heartily embraced by not a few, coolly believed by a great many. But, "Great is truth and must prevail." The seed is taking root, and the plant is growing.

The mail leaves this for home, vid San Francisco, so I have no time to spare even to correct, as it should be, what I have written. But I commit it to good hands.

Grace, mercy, and peace be with you, dear Philo-Israel, and with all the Israel of God. I remain, with much affection,

Yours very truly,

J. S. H.

Warkworth, Auckland, New Zealand.
20th May, 1887.

P.S. In the year 1834, or fifty-three years ago, I was accepted by the London Conference as a travelling preacher. I have, either as a travelling, localised, or Home Missionary minister, continued in close and uninterrupted connection with the Body ever since. This fact may have a little weight with some persons.

THAT John Wesley was a full-grown Identity man is not pretended. But that he had the root of the matter in him is very evident. No candid man can read his almost prophetic sermon on "The general spread of the Gospel," without being struck with the prominence he gives to two great principles which are at the very root of Identity truth, namely, The literal interpretation of Scripture with regard to Israel; and, The providential destination of our British race as the disseminators of spiritual good. In the earlier part of this sermon he, indeed, refers to the whole body of the pious as the spiritual Israel. But this does not prevent him from giving quite a literal translation of those passages which refer to Israel as a nation, and to their restoration to their own land. After describing the way in which he supposed the Gospel leaven would leaven the whole mass of mankind, he adds:—

"25. And so all Israel, too, shall be saved. . . . Yea, and He will so have mercy upon all Israel as to give them all temporal with all spiritual blessings, for this is His promise (not, he thinks, to be allegorised or spiritualised away, as is too often done, but the reverse). 'For the Lord thy God will gather thee from all the nations, whither the Lord thy God hath scattered thee. And the Lord thy God will bring thee unto the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it. . . . Again, 'I will gather them out of all countries whither I have driven them, and I will plant them in this land assuredly, with My whole heart and with My whole soul,' &c., &c. To these passages from Deuteronomy (xxx. 3, &c.) and from Jeremiah (xxxii. 37), he adds a quotation from Ezekiel, "And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers; and ye shall be My people, and I will be your God.'"

Now, with regard to this 25th paragraph, there are several points which deserve very particular attention.

1st. We have in it three specimens of a large class of promises, all of which have equal claims to be understood in the same way.

2nd. These three specimens, and by implication the whole class, Wesley accepts as having, not an allegorical and spiritual, but a literal meaning.

3rd. And these he accepts as relating, not to the Jews only, but, as he repeatedly and emphatically says, to "all Israel."

4th. And these promises he holds to relate, not to the return from Babylon to Judea, as some persons most strangely hold, but to a future and grander display of Divine power and providential favour. The quick, keen eye of Wesley selected a text which expresses more forcibly than any other, the permanent result—"that they may fear Me for ever"—their restoration would be final, enduring, everlasting—"for ever." Their restoration, and everlasting possession of their own land—the gift of God to their fathers is, by Wesley's literally applied text, as fully assured as any "Identity man" could desire; every word is cumulative as well as emphatic: "I will plant them in this land assuredly, with My whole heart, and with My whole soul."

Digitized by Google

5. Moreover, he quotes the promise of God to "give them one heart and one way," which may very justly be taken to imply, first, their division into two nations, and second, their final and wonderful reunion into "one nation," when "One king shall be king to them all; and they shall be no more two nations" (Ez. xxxvii. 22).

Of the mode of this reunion the Wesleys' seem to have had a blind or dim foreshadowing. For they taught the people to sing :—

"O that the chosen band
Might now their brethren bring,
And, gathered out of every land,
Present to Zion's King," &c.
Hymn 452.

Now we know that that is quite in accordance with the prophets; for Jeremiah says: "Judah shall go to Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the North," &c. (iii. 18). And Isaiah says that just such a people as the Jews are shall be sought out by the special messengers of a similar people (xviii. 2—7), and brought as a present to the Lord of Hosts in Mount Zion; or as we Methodists, taught by Wesley, sing :—

"An offering to their Lord,
There let them all be seen,
Sprinkled with water and with blood.
In soul and body clean;
With Israel's myriads sealed,
Let all the nations meet,
And show the mystery fulfilled,
The family complete."

Seeing, therefore, the advanced views of Wesley, and how much he ever lived before his age, we may with the utmost confidence contend that if he had lived in our day, and seen the friendly posture of Britain towards Judah; had witnessed the great predominance of British power on the ocean, and the wondrous manner in which Divine providence is causing that power to occupy the thoroughfares leading to the Holy Land, placing her "Gates" at Gibraltar, Malta, Cyprus, Aden, Suez, Egypt, and the East, thus defending her road to Palestine on every side—he, we say, seeing all this—would, without doubt, have recognised Britain as "the land shadowing with wings" (or sails of ships—Isa. xviii. 1), "that sendeth her ambassadors by sea"; always "by the sea," because of her insular position; and who (after, or at a time of terrible slaughter, as noted in verses 2—6, and which all the dwellers upon earth are called upon to witness) are to bring as a present from themselves (!) of a "people scattered and peeled to the place of the name of the Lord of Hosts, the Mount Zion."

Wesley, always awake to note a providence, would not have failed to notice the wondrous spectacle which Divine providence is now causing the nations of the world to present. He, had he now been living, would have seen at once that we, the English-speaking people, filling the world with our colonies, and having come, originally, from the place of Israel's banishment, are the people spoken of by God Himself to Hosea (chap. i. 10): "Yet the number of the Children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered; and it shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not My people (but heathen Saxons, Danes, and Celts), there it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God."

Wesley, never blind to the "signs of the times," would we make bold to think (when looking at this in connection with the following verse, and the great events accruing in that ill-consolidated Europe) have called upon the doubting sceptic to watch the grand denouement, soon, evidently, to take place, as predicted by Jehovah in that next verse:—"Then shall the Children of Judah and the Children of Israel be gathered together, and appoint themselves one head, and they shall come up out of the land (the land, or place, mentioned in 2 Sam. vii. 10; 1 Chron. xvii. 9; and in Jer. iii. 18; and called there 'the land of the North'): for great shall be the day of Jezreel."

Great, indeed, shall that day be, for then God shall have fulfilled His promise made to His people in Ezekiel xxxvii. 20—23; the event for which in the words of Wesley, we thus pray:—

"Take the two sticks into thine hand,
The two shall then be one."

Enough has been said on the first point of Wesley's Anglo-Israelism. On the second, that is, The providential destination of Britain as the Dispenser of spiritual blessings, we have not much space to enlarge. But, as an illustration of his feeling, we may mention his motto, "The world is my parish." But his sermon on "The spread of the Gospel," bears strongly on the subject.

Wesley, in his above-mentioned sermon (63rd), traces the revival of all the religious reformations then going on in the world to that work of God in Oxford, when a few young men of the University, members of the Church of England, came to a full determination to serve God with their whole heart and soul; thus making England, or Israel, as we hold, a "blessing to all the families of the earth."

He shows how this work had spread through Britain, and was then extending throughout the earth. Questioning the remark of Luther, that a revival of religion never lasts above one generation, or thirty years, and stating the Oxford revival had continued more than fifty years, he fully anticipated, with the greatest confidence, that it would proceed without interruption, entering the darkest and most difficult regions of the globe, till the whole was enlightened.

"The God of Love," says he, "will prepare His messengers, and make a way to the Polar regions (among the Esquimaux, &c.), into the deepest recesses of America, and into the interior parts of Africa; yea, into the heart of China and Japan, with the countries adjoining them, And "their sound will then go forth into all lands, and their voice to the ends of the earth."

Speaking of the wickedness of earth's inhabitants, he says, "Things will not always be so; another scene will soon be opened, God will be jealous of His honour."

Now, if Wesley had only lived till our day, and seen how the revival of the last had culminated in the Christian work of the present century; if he had beheld the world-wide operations of the British and Foreign Bible Society; of the Church, the London, the Baptist, the Methodist, and other Missionary Societies; and had he noted how these are carried on, chiefly, almost solely, by British and American Churches, and at the same time called to remembrance what is said of Israel with regard to to the world's conversion, he would clearly perceive that we, the British, are Israelites, and that his own prayer, contained in one of our hymns, namely:

"From favoured Abraham's seed,
The new Apostles choose,
In isles and continents to spread
The dead-reviving news;"

and also other promises of God's blessing the world by Israel (Micah v.), are at once fulfilled in the British race and their missionary work.

We may, then, without hesitation, conclude from what we know of his advanced views, and very decided character, that the great John Wesley would, if he were now alive, be found in the front rank of the proclaimers of the grand scriptural truth of Anglo-Israelism.

AN OLD METHODIST MINISTER.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—The Hill of Tara is the property of Earl Russell, and during the lifetime of the first Earl application was made to him to permit of excavation being made, with a view to the discovery of Tea Tephi's tomb. Lord Russell gave consent, subject to the approval of his steward. The opinion of the latter was, however, that it would endanger some of the buildings, and the proposal had to be abandoned pro. tem.

The discovery of those royal remains would not, as you justly observe, strengthen our position of Israel in Britain one iota. My own reason for so earnestly longing for the excavation to be commenced you will find in chap. xii. of "The Coronation Stone," page 116. As I have endeavoured to show, I believe that the ark of the covenant, constructed as it is of imperishable wood, will be found beside that royal dust. Perchance the time is not yet come. The ark is safe in Ireland, in its consecrated mausoleum, even as the stone-witness is safe in England in its magnificent sanctuary. Did not our hearts burn within us when Queen Victoria once again sat on that sacred stone, and claimed the heritage of father Jacob, on the never-to-be-forgotten day of Jubilee? Soon may David's Son and David's Lord re-appear, and reveal to our wondering gaze both the ark and the stone, and make clear the secrets connected with each.—Yours truly,

ELLEN A. ROGERS.

Glenwood, The Shrubbery, Weston-Super-Mare,
June 29th, 1887.

P.S.—I enclose a cheque for £1 for the Rev. Hy. Roe (Mr. G. A. Rogers) as a Jubilee offering for his work of mercy.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—The BANNER OF ISRAEL was recommended to my notice by the Vicar of Plumstead, the Rev. J. A. McAllister, some few weeks ago, and I have since continued to read it. It is marvellous to me that it is not more sought after, but the reason is to be found in the fact that the God of Israel has not yet thought fit generally to make manifest Our Identity. He is, however, doing so gradually, and in His usual unostentatious manner, through the humble instrumentality of your paper. It is of the utmost importance that we should make known the doctrine which we profess, as it is best calculated to calm the mind in these troublous times, and with that object in view I should be most happy to act with others who are BANNER readers in Woolwich and Plumstead in the formation of an Identity Association for these localities, if they will kindly communicate with me.—Yours in the Lord Jesus,

W. GUY PINKNEY.

8, Cantwell-road, Shooters'-hill,
June 15th, 1887.

Digitized by Google

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—On reading in the Christian World—a paper that ought to know better—the enclosed extract, cut from a leading article upon "Royalty and Loyalty," I felt obliged to write to the Editor upon it as follows; it goes without saying that no notice has been taken of it to me.

"To the Editor of the 'Christian World.'

"SIR,—It is frequently amusing and not a little amazing to observe the gross ignorance displayed by writers and correspondents of your paper, but not often so glaringly as in your current issue, at the commencement of page 503, where it is said, 'The Jews who were without a king . . . complained to Samuel,' &c. Had this writer referred to his book he would have found that it was not the Jews at all that complained to Samuel, any more than the Gadites or Nephtalim, but the elders of Israel and the people of Israel, the very term of Jew not being used until some centuries after the transaction spoken of. What would be thought of a writer who should say that Magna Charta was extorted from King John by the Orangemen of Ulster, or the Cymri of Wales, yet that would be as correct as to say that the Jews complained, &c.; and yet no doubt this writer is as ready as anyone to have his fling at Anglo-Israelism, when occasion presents itself, by calling it 'that craze,' 'a delusion,' &c., &c. Did he, however, but understand the very first principle of Anglo-Israelism he would have learnt the scriptural distinction between 'the House of Israel' and 'the House of Judah' or the Jews, and been able to trace the very different—nay, often opposite—role marked out for them throughout the prophetic, as well as the historical, scriptures, commencing as early as 1700 B.C. (Gen. xlviii., 1 Chron. v. 2), and extending onwards to the present time, and beyond, until Judah and Israel are again united, as vide Jer. xxxi.; Ezek. xxxvii. 15, et seq.

"When will preachers and writers understand that though Jews are Israelites, all Israelites are not Jews, anymore than all Britons are Scots; yet scarcely an issue of your paper appears but this confusion appears in it. With this I send a little information* upon the matter, if willing to learn; if not, see Prov. xxvi. 12.

"I am, sir, yours, &c.,

"July 1st, 1887, London." "J. S. BARTON.

The Christian World wrote as follows on the occasion in question, under date June 30th, 1887:—

"The history of the Royal dignity is curious and obscure. As a quasi-sacred office, illumined by a halo of Divine favour, Royalty is an Oriental dream rather than a Western institution. The Jews, who were without a king at first—and, had they been sensible, would have remained so—complained with truth to Samuel that this crownless condition made them peculiar among Eastern peoples. But when the Aryan races established themselves in Europe the most famous of them soon got rid of their kings. Kingship did not work well in early Greece or in early Rome."

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—The enclosed extract from a Birmingham Gazette, may do something to quiet the existing fears and anxieties with regard to the increasingly defiant attitude of the Irish-American Faction.

If the statistics be true the numerical predominance of the British must sooner or later make itself felt in more ways than one, and especially in counteracting and nullifying the work of the Irish miscreants, who should be hunted down like rats.

Hoping you will find it useful, I am, &c.,

J. WILKINSON.

Wolverhampton, June 3rd 1887.

A NEW FACTOR IN AMERICAN POLITICS.

THE BRITISH VOTE.

A letter which has been printed in the Chicago Times contains some interesting information as to the voting power of the British, as distinct from the Irish, element in the United States. The correspondent observes that the British vote has never been fairly understood by the American people, and least of all by American politicians. He shows that the British element in the United States is already strong enough to extinguish the Irish vote by an overwhelming majority; and, further, that absolutely and relatively the British element is growing stronger and the Irish element weaker every day.

In 1880, he tells us, the Irish in the United States numbered 1,854,000 souls, while the British and Canadians together numbered only 1,639,000, giving the Irish a majority over all of nearly 215,000. Deducting 20 per cent. for losses by death and other causes from 1881 to 1887, there remained at the beginning of the present year of the people included in the census of 1880 very nearly the numbers following:—Of Irish, 1,500,000; of British and Canadians, 1,300,000; Irish majority, 200,000. From the 1st of January, 1881, to the 31st of March, 1887 the number of Irish immigrants who arrived in the United States was 393,000, while the British and Canadians together numbered 886,000, the British alone being over 456,000. Deducting 10 per cent. for losses by death and other causes, and adding the remainder to the figures given above, we find that there are now in the United States:—Of British and Canadians, 2,090,000; of Irish, 1,850,000; British and Canadian majority, 240,000. An important fact is that of the emigrants to the United States from Great Britain a large majority are men, while of those from Ireland the majority are women. Thus, for the year ended the 30th of June, 1885, the numbers from Great Britain were as follows:—Men, 34,362; women, 23,317; male majority, 11,045. For the same period the numbers from Ireland were:—Women, 26,608; men, 25,187; female majority, 1,421. For the year ended the 30th of June, 1886, the emigrants from Great Britain to the United States were divided thus:—Men, 38,910; women, 23,809; male majority, 15,101. For the same period the emigrants from Ireland to the United States were divided thus:—Women, 25,194; men, 24,425; female majority, 769. And this very remarkable disproportion appears to continue, for in the three months ended March 31st, 1887, the arrivals in the United States from Great Britain were:—Men, 10,642; women, 7,627; male majority, 3,015. For the same period the arrivals in the United States from Ireland were:—Women, 4,776; men, 3,793; female majority, 983. These statistics show that there is more "political capital" in a shipload of Britons than in a shipload of Irish emigrants; the former containing about ten men to seven women, while in the latter the women are in the majority.

These figures lead the correspondent to the conclusion that the Jubilee of Queen Victoria will mark the beginning of the decay of the political power of the Irish in the United States, overwhelmed by the purely British platform. "The political calmness of the Britons in America," the correspondent concludes, "is not due to a feeling of numerical weakness; it grows partly out of a sense of what is due to the American people, and partly out of an innate sense of personal dignity and independence. The Britons have been justly proud that neither the English, the Scotch, the Welsh, nor the Canadians in the United States have ever organised themselves into political clans. They have preferred to merge themselves into the great body of the American people as drops of rain into a kindred lake. They have desired to be politically undistinguishable from the Americans, and they have always regarded the agitation of foreign politics in this country as a very ungrateful return for the privileges of American citizenship. Nor do they now desire to use the British vote for any other purpose than to set a back fire against that raging Anglophobia which aspires to dominate all the political parties in the United States, and proscribe all our statesmen except those who show the greatest hostility toward Great Britain. The Irish vote is the prize offered to the demagogue who bids highest against Britain and in favour of Rome. To strip that prize of its value in the election market, to make it not worth bidding for, will be the mission of the British vote."

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—It is indeed very encouraging to find your faith so strong in respect to the Identification of the British as being the Lost Tribes of Israel. The Scriptural tests you apply are certainly very conclusive, and having as yet only taken four BANNERS, I am already somewhat strongly inclined to give warm support to the cause as opposed to decided hostility, which was my case a few years ago. If it be true that God—the God of the British, the God of Israel—has set His love on us as a nation, then it is impossible for the dismemberment of the Empire to be brought about, which is the aim, more apparently just now, of the enemies of God and of His people. Faith in God in this respect is calculated to diminish fear as to the probability of that result being obtained.

J. G. P.

Shooter's Hill, May 11, 1887.

*A copy of the BANNER for June 22nd.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

The Bible Readings will be discontinued till October.

Now Ready. Price 2/6, cloth, gilt, bevelled boards, Imperial 8vo., free for P.O.

A CONSECRATED LIFE.
A MEMOIR

OF THE

RIGHT REV. BISHOP TITCOMB, D.D.

By the Rev. ALLEN T. EDWARDS, M.A., Cantab.

With an Introduction by the Right Rev. the LORD BISHOP of ROCHESTER.

Frontispiece: Cabinet size PHOTO-PORTRAIT of the late BISHOP by Messrs. Elliot and Fry.

CONTENTS:

Introduction. 1.—Early Life to the Period of His First Curacy. 2.—Cambridge Ministry. 3.—London Life and Woking. 4.—Rangoon. 5.—Northern and Central Europe. Appendix.—1. Funeral Sermon by the Rev. J. McCann, D.D. 2. Sermon by Bishop Titcomb. 3. Public Work in Rangoon in one year. 4. Tabular Statement of Tours in Northern and Central Europe. 5. Consecration of St. George's Church, Berlin.

R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London.

Price 6d., by post 7d.; Annual Subscription, 2s. 6d., post free.

THE JULY QUARTERLY PART

OF

ISRAEL'S HOPE & DESTINY

CONTENTS:

IMPORTANT PAPER BY DR. ALDER SMITH

Jubilee Hymn. By Hecla.—The Jubilee of Queen Victoria.—Honour to Whom Honour is Due.—Gog's Attempted Invasion Against Israel. Does it Take Place in India or Palestine? Being Alexander MacPhail's Second Reply to John T. Crosthwait's Views.—"The Ancient of Days"—Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time? and What Will be Their Place in the Millennium? By Dr. Alder Smith, F.R.C.S.—Armageddon. By John Gilder Shaw.—How to Preserve a Record. By A. M. Scarle.—Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association.—Review.—Mother of Nations.

"In Israel's Hope and Destiny (R. Banks and Son) the most elaborate paper is one by Dr. Alder Smith, who now accepts the 'great nation's theory' which he formerly for years opposed. This will have no meaning for most of our readers; a few, however, know that it refers to the Anglo-Israel craze. The intense earnestness with which the writers in this periodical advance their speculations is a phenomenon we contemplate with mixed feelings."—From Christian Leader, July 21, 1887.

London: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; F. W. PARRY (late Guest, Hayworth & Co.), 29, Paternoster-row.

PRICE 4d.

AN EXPOSITION OF JEREMIAH LI.

BY THE

REV. H. MARRIOTT.

F. W. PARRY, 29, Paternoster-row, London.
J. E. CHILLCOTT, Bristol.

"THE TEN TRIBES."

Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time; and What will be Their Place in the Millennium?

A PAPER read before "The Prophecy Investigation Society" on April 9, 1887.

BY

ALDER SMITH, M.B., F.R.C.S.

LONDON:
R. BANKS & SON, RACQUET-COURT, FLEET-ST.

Price 6d., post free 7d.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

BY REV. HENRY ROE.

(Fifteenth Thousand).

1. Israel's World. Origin and Destiny of British Race, Colonies, and Empire. 2d., post free 2½d. "Worthy of a world-wide circulation." H. B. Thompson, Association Sec. 50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.

2. Going to Africa. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.

3. Fernando Po Mission. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.

4. West African Scenes. 2s., post free 2s. 2d.

5. Consecration. 2d., post free 2½d.

50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; and Rev. H. Roe, Dawley, Salop.

Price 2s. 6d., Cheap Edition, 1/-

BIBLE LESSONS & REFLECTIONS.

By ROBERT GAIRDNER, of Kilmarnock, N.B.

"Mr. Gairdner has given us in his book a series of Bible lessons, with his own reflections added thereto, and though he has been very cautious in the latter, and has not committed himself too broadly, he has plainly let it be seen that he is an Anglo-Israelite by conviction, and that the Scriptures which he quotes at length and extensively throughout his book, are meant to teach Our Identity and God's faithfulness, from first to last, to His promises to Abraham and His seed for ever."—Banner of Israel.

ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st.

NON-INTOXICATING BEER

(A Splendid Dinner Beverage)

MADE IMMEDIATELY WITH

MASON'S EXTRACT OR ESSENCE OF HERBS,

Composed of Yarrow, Dandelion, Comfrey, and Horehound. Send 9 stamps for sample bottle, enough to make five gallons, NEWBALL and MASON, Chemists, Nottingham.

AGENTS WANTED. APPLY FOR TERMS.

LIVER TONIC,

GEORGE & WELCH'S,

2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. per Bottle.

This Tonic, which embraces the active principle of the best known Liver Cures, relieves Indigestion and Debility, sharpens the appetite, and corrects all unpleasant symptoms arising from sluggish liver.

Proprietors: GEORGE & WELCH, Worcester.

To be had through all Chemists or by Parcels Post from Makers.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON,

RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

A CHRONOLOGICAL and GEOGRAPHICAL TREE. Showing the Development of the British Power and the Affinity of the British Nation with the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel, with Scriptural Quotations. Price 8d., mounted and varnished, 2s.

THE LOST TEN TRIBES OF ISRAEL. By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D., Pastor of Union Congregational Church, Brooklyn, New York. Price 3s., post free 3s. 3d.

THE FUTURE OF ISRAEL AND JUDAH. Companion volume to above. By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D. With Portrait of the Author. Cloth, gilt lettered, bevelled boards. Price 2s., post free 2s. 3d.

THE SISTERS OF HARROWDALE RECTORY. A Tale of Great Interest for Young People. By Mrs. M. A. Searson. With double-page illustration of Harrowdale Rectory. Price 2s. 6d., post free 2s. 9d.

Price 4s., Crown 8vo., cloth, pp. 208, illustrated with 15 Woodcuts.

THE TOWER OF EGYPT;

Or, the Types and Chronology of the Great Pyramid. By A. R. G.

In this work the chronology of the Grand Gallery and Ante-chamber passages of the Great Pyramid of Egypt is re-investigated by a NEW MEASURING KEY, based upon the sacred inch-unit, whence it is found that the Pyramid Date for the Second Advent suprisingly harmonises with that deduced by the Rev. H. Grattan Guinness from independent sources.

"We recommend this thoughtful and well-written book to the attention of all Pyramid students and readers of the Banner. . . . We shall be surprised if it is not found at last that this work is a real advance in Great Pyramid knowledge."—Banner of Israel.

LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, PATERNOSTER ROW;
R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., E.C.

Crown 8vo., wrapper, price 6d.

Where is the Firstborn?

An investigation of the British Claim to Identification With the House of Israel. By the REV. G. A. ROGERS, M.A. Edited by his Widow. Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

"Ably written, well edited, and carefully presented to the readers. . . . We wish it a large circulation."—Banner of Israel.

London: Robert Banks & Son Racquet-court, Fleet-st

EDWARD HINE'S PUBLICATIONS

SHOULD BE READ & DISTRIBUTED.

FORTY-SEVEN IDENTIFICATIONS, 6d.; post free, 7d.

CUI BONO? 6d., post free, 7d.

LOST ISRAEL FOUND, 3s. 6d., post free, 3s. 9d.

F. W. PARRY, 29, Paternoster Row, London, or direct of ISAAC LOVELAND, Shoreham, Sevenoaks.

Wonderful Value by Parcels Post.

WALTER KEAST, 102, Kennington Park Road, London, S.E., will on receipt of Postal Order for 3s. 6d. send a pair of Ladies' High-leg Six Button Walking Boots. These Boots are warranted to give complete satisfaction, being sewn, thoroughly well made and very comfortable. Ditto in Oxford Shoes, 3s. 3d. Send number of size or length of boot in inches. Parcels sent daily to all parts of the United Kingdom.

Established 1851.

SEND US FOUR STAMPS, and we will send you, carriage paid, samples of goods, and guarantee you to earn Five Shillings a day upwards. Satisfaction guaranteed, or stamps returned. This is genuine.—LOUIS H. HART & CO., 126, Clerkenwell Road, London, E.C.

A BOON TO SUFFERERS.

HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT.

Testimonial

From Miss A. HEYWARD, Peel Villa, 5, Manchester Road, Southport.

"I am very pleased to tell you that I have received much benefit for constipation since wearing your ELECTROPATHIC BELT, and am glad to state I require no medicine, as the Belt acts as a mild aperient."

CONSTIPATION CURED.

Every man and woman suffering from any disorder of the Nerves, Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys, should at once stop physicing, and remit 21s. for HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT (post free) and obtain immediate relief. Pamphlet and Book of Testimonials POST FREE. MEDICAL BATTERY CO. Ltd.

52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

Corner of Rathbone Place.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 554. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 10, 1887. PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

PAGE

The Naval Review at Spithead 325
The Blood-Royal of the World 326
The Anglican Dominion in A.D. 2,000 327
Eureka! I've Found It! A Hidden Scriptural Treasure. By the Rev. Thomas Lowe, M.B.A.S. 328
The Christian World Gives Evidence 329
The Second Commandment 329
Testimony by the Bishop of Lahore. By C. P. Bird 330
The British Empire 331
Correspondence 331

THE NAVAL REVIEW AT SPITHEAD.

THE 23rd July will long be remembered at Ryde and Southsea as the date of one of the most magnificent spectacles the world has ever seen. The review of her fleet by the Queen of England, embarked in "the royal yacht," was a sight which once seen can never be forgotten. The proceedings were favoured with "Queen's weather," as all the incidents of the Jubilee have been. Before Jubilee-day (June 21), there were grave fears that bad weather would mar the joy of the occasion. A "depression" was approaching from America, and it was feared it would deluge the land with rain. But the prophets were wrong. God cared for His people's joy, and sent the depression to the North and to the South, but left our islands free!

On the 23rd of July the weather was simply perfect. The heat was tempered at Spithead by a light South-westerly breeze, the sun never ceased to shine, and there was nothing to spoil the joy and happiness of the people while they witnessed their Queen's review of the most superb fleet which has ever been drawn up off the coasts of England for inspection by the Sovereign. There were 34 men-of-war of the first class, moored in two parallel lines, covering four miles of water from the entrance to the Solent Eastwards. Within the Northern line there were anchored in connection with the three squadrons, A, B, and C, about 40 gun-boats of every type now known in the Navy, and 39 torpedo-boats in five flotillas, besides the harbour defence vessels of the "Glatton," "Cyclops," "Prince Albert," build and class. It is quite certain that no other sovereign now existing in the world could produce such a long line of first-rate war-ships as that the Queen inspected on this occasion, as her Home Squadron, and it is certain we could not have done it ourselves till the present period of ourhistory. Foreign ambassadors and other distinguished visitors from abroad were present with the Lords, Commons, Indian, and other British celebrities to witness the magnificent sight, and saving one accident by which a man lost his life on board the gunboat, "Kite," there was nothing to mar the Queen's satisfaction, as well as that of her people, from first to last. The message that Her Majesty sent to her fleet, through the Admiral-Commanding-in-Chief, to the commanding officer of each ship, was this:—"Convey to officers and men under your command Her Majesty has great satisfaction and pride in the magnificent display made this afternoon by her Navy."

The Queen's "satisfaction and pride," mingled, we believe, with thanksgiving and praise to the Lord God of Israel, who has given such power to His people, are felt throughout the length and breadth of the land and re-echoed by every heart. The troop-ships, ten in number, occupied a line by themselves, and to the South of them the vessels of the large steamship companies, including those on the Government list for use as armed cruisers in time of war, were anchored; a goodly addition to Israel's fighting strength in case of need. One feature of this great show should not be omitted—namely, the forest of masts belonging to the fleet of yachts and small craft anchored off Ryde—all gaily dressed in bunting, which was the case also with all the ships present save some of the smaller torpedo-boats. These looked black, dangerous, and deadly in their unadorned ugliness! One of these forminable vessels which we saw after the review, was being navigated while almost wholly submerged! The officer in charge appeared to be the only living occupant of the boat, perched on the bow above water, as on a saddle.

The review was remarkable as showing the vast progress in naval construction which has been going on since the last great naval spectacle in 1856. The really terrible "Inflexible" has two feet of solid iron to act as its armour, and for attack it has its 80-ton guns. But it will soon be superseded by vessels whose guns will be of 100 or 110-ton weight! These monsters, however, are not our sole defence. They require the gun-boats, the torpedo-boats, and other auxiliaries, of which the review shows we are providing ourselves a good supply; and we may, under God, rest satisfied that He has given us the supremacy of the sea, by means which, humanly speaking, seem amply adequate. Let no one who was present at the great Jubilee Review of 1887 imagine, however, that we can dare to rest our defence at sea, or the security of our Gates, our Colonial and Heathen Empires, upon the power or number of our iron-clads! For without God's blessing on these means, they must prove vain and illusory. If used as His gifts, in order that, being

Digitized by Google

His people Israel, we may carry out His purposes of grace and love to the inhabitants of the world, then the British fleet becomes a sacred, divine thing; a means to a God-like end; and that end the purchase of the precious blood of Christ. For the fleets of Israel secure the supremacy of the sea to Israel's commerce, and free, safe passage to her missionaries in their work of mercy to the world. They safeguard Israel's Gates, which would without them fall at once into the power of her enemies. Israel's fleets bring home and protect her foreign trade which supplies her wealth; the power to get which is distinctly God-given to her, as reference to Deut. viii. 18 will clearly show.

It will be seen, then, that the review at Spithead, regarded from an Identity point of view, was a sublime manifestation of God's purposes towards us His people Israel, and a proof positive (which the foreigner dare not deny) that having given us the supremacy of the sea, God has placed enormous commerce and wealth, and dominion in our hands, which, aided by the power of the Gates, and by the spiritual blessings we also possess, make ours, to God's glory, "the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath all the other nations of the earth," according to the promise in Deut. xxviii. 1, 13, to the glory of His grace and of His faithfulness to His oath. Therefore, let us as Israel praise the Lord for His goodness to our nation in giving us such a fleet as we saw on the memorable Saturday of the review, remembering that not for our goodness or for our excellence as a nation, but because of the faithfulness of the Lord to His oath to Abraham our forefather, has He so abundantly exalted us among the nations, in order that we may give to them the message of salvation through grace. "For God so loved the world that He sent His only-begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life;" and the messengers He has deigned to employ are Israel, fortified and strengthened by such means as the Spithead Review indicated, to enable us to be His world-wide missionaries to the outside perishing nations of the earth!

To the brethren of the Trinity House we beg to tender our hearty thanks for the opportunity we enjoyed of witnessing the Review, and for their splendid hospitality on the occasion.

"THE BLOOD-ROYAL OF THE WORLD."

In the Globe of November 17th, 1886, a remarkable article appeared on the subject of "Celts and Celtic." The object of the article was to show that though the language of the Celts lingered long in Cornwall, and only died right out in 1778, when Dolly Pentreath, the last speaker of it, ended her days, yet the race itself exists, and ranks, it seems, as third among the great classes of European population. It is calculated, says the Globe, that out of 233 millions, the population of the whole of Europe, about 12 millions are of pure Celtic breed, and 56 millions Celts in various crosses.

The following historical sketch, which concludes the article, is a valuable contribution to our Identity, as it shows that the union of Celts and Gothic or Teutonic races (the very ingredients of the British races), forms, in fact, the "blood-royal of the world;" therefore, the chief of nations—"the head, and not the tail, above only, and not beneath" all the nations of the earth (Deut. xxviii. 1 and 13). The writer stated:—

Four hundred years before the Christian era a Celtic army under Brennus defeated the Romans in the battle of the Allia, and then marched against the Eternal City itself, which they captured and burnt to the ground. They only spared the Capitol on the payment of a large ransom, and all the archives of ancient Rome were destroyed, except such as were preserved in that stronghold. It is mainly owing to this that earlier Roman history is wrapped in so much obscurity. About 110 years later another Celtic host invaded Macedonia, and defeated and slew Ptolemy, the king of that country. A second invasion, in which they marched to Delphi, in the hope of sacking the treasures of the famous temple and oracle there, was less successful, for they were vanquished with heavy loss, their leader, another Brennus, being among the slain. Some of the fugitives settled on the neighbouring shores of France, or on the banks of the Danube; but the main body proceeded to Asia Minor, where they founded and gave name to the country of Galatia. As an evidence of the thoroughly Celtic population of the country, it may be mentioned that it was called by the Romans Gallogræcia, as being inhabited by Celts surrounded by Greeks; and Little Gaul, to distinguish it from Gaul Proper or France. Besides, Galatia was the Greek name for Gaul Proper. Six hundred years after this migration to Asia Minor, St. Jerome, who died in 420 A.D., at the age of 90, found the language of the Galatians the same as that of the Celts who dwelt round Treves, in Germany. Hence it would appear that, at the time of the partition of the Roman dominion into the Eastern and Western Empires in 395 A.D., Celts formed the extreme fringe of those dominions alike in the east and the west. Surely so widely distributed a population must have left some valuable documents in the shape of inscriptions or manuscripts in Asia Minor or South-Eastern Europe. The Celtic professors of Oxford, Dublin, and Edinburgh might do worse than spend their holidays in the interesting region of Galatia.

Some hundred and sixty years after the invasion of Macedonia by the Celts, the Romans again staggered under the attacks of these fierce warriors. For quite twelve years Italy was held in suspense and terror by them. In the later stages of this war is found the first instance of that combination of Celts with Teutons which fate seems to have determined as the doom of the former race. Celtic dialects may die before our eyes, and the children of this generation may possibly live long enough to hear the last living accents of Manx, if not also of some other branch of Celtic speech. Yet the Celtic race lives on, as vigorous as in its separate existence, and blends, throughout Great and Greater Britain alike, with the Teutonic race to form the blood-royal of the world. That combination goes on steadily and surely still, nor may Celts bewail it, for—

> "If such union is their tomb,
> It is Britain's soul and heart."

So far the Globe. Our ancestors, the Celts and Teutons united, were the death of Rome pagan, and they were, as Celts, the inhabitants of Galatia, to whom St. Paul addressed his epistle as Christian converts. They were the dispersion of Israel, once under the Law, and as "foolish Galatians" wanted to return to it, even after they had been enlightened by the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. These same Celts gave their language to Wales, called still by the natives Kymric or Kymraeg, and to the Cornish, where it is now extinct. The Israelitish portion of the vast Celtic race was the Kymri of Wales; the same as the Cimbri of the Romans, the Cimmerioi of the Greeks, and the Gimmeri, or Khumri, of the Assyrian inscriptions.

Our Celts of Wales, and Cornwall, of Ireland, and of North Scotland, were thus Asiatics, and one in race in Central Asia with their Sakai brethren, who as Angles, Saxons, Frisians, Jutes, Danes, and Normans, afterwards united with them, as they do to-day in Greater Britain, and formed one Imperial race, "the blood-royal of the world," since they are the Divinely-appointed heirs of it (Rom. iv. 13; Dan. vii. 27). Celtic dialects have died, but the race dies not, for it is Israel; and the various tribes of Israel coming to these islands under the guise of Celts, and Saxons, Jutes, Danes, Frisians, and Normans, became here, at once, one united kingdom, which is now that of the Imperial race of Britain—the very chief of nations, according to the prophecies (Isa. xli. 9; Amos vi. 1).

There are two causes which have, humanly speaking, contributed to make this race the leading one it is. First, its rapidly increasing population—and population is empire. Secondly, the much more rapidly increasing wealth of the upper and middle classes of the population. The numbers of our people have increased from 19,000,000 to 29,000,000 between 1815 and 1860, or 45 years, as Mr. Spencer Walpole's new volumes of the History of England declare. But the wealth has advanced at a ratio just twice as great as that of the population. The rapid increase of population, being at the rate of 75 per cent. in 40 years, was exceeded by the rate at which wealth increased during those 40 years. Wealth advanced at the rate of over 100 per cent., as against 75 per cent. in respect to population. But these two gifts, population and the power to get wealth, which so contribute to our national greatness, are just the gifts God has given us because we are Israel (Deut. viii. 18). Rapid increase in numbers is God's marked blessing to His people from the very first to the present hour of Israel's history. It runs like a golden thread through the Scriptures, and not only in Gen. xii., xv., xvii., xxii., xlviii., xlix.; Deut. xxxiii., and other passages does it appear; but in the prophetical portions of the Word of God, such as Hosea i. 10; Zech. x. 8—10, we have intimations that in these last days, in the Christian dispensation, Israel, as distinguished from Judah, is to be abnormally multitudinous, and developed into "a nation and a company of nations," presenting the aspect of "a grand federation of states such as the world never saw before." These things are now coming to pass, and therefore we may thank and praise our God, knowing that our own redemption draweth nigh.

Digitized by Google

THE ANGLICAN DOMINION IN A.D. 2,000.

AN extract from a Natal newspaper reached us lately anonymously, with a few lines from a nameless correspondent, whose letter bore the post-marks, "Durban, May 5th, 1887," and "Richmond, Natal." The newspaper "cutting" is headed as above, "The Anglican Dominion in A.D. 2,000," being "an American vision of possibilities." It was to the following effect:—

Professor John Fiske, of the United States, estimates that six hundred millions of English-speaking citizens will occupy that Union before 2,000 A.D. In past times population was kept down and the average of human life shortened by chronic wars, periodic famines, and sweeping pestilences. The Federal Union maintains peace, and famine and pestilence are not to be reasonably expected with the modern system of cultivation, distribution, and hygiene. Professor Fiske thinks his estimate of 600,000,000 American citizens in the time of our great-grandchildren an "extremely moderate" one, and forecasts the future of the English race and the world as affected by Anglo-Saxon growth. With regard to the Federal principle, he believes that the coincident advance of the English-speaking races in all quarters tends to prepare the world for a general acceptance of the Federal principle. Britain, endowed with maritime supremacy, has already taken possession of every station "that commands the pathways of commerce, or guards the approaches to the barbarous countries which she is beginning to regard as in some way her natural heritage." In Africa there are five flourishing British states, and "who can doubt that within two or three centuries the African continent will be occupied by a mighty nation of British descent, and covered with populous cities and flourishing farms, with railroads and telegraphs, and other devices of civilisation as yet undreamed of?" In Australia, nearly as large as the United States, and scarcely less gifted by nature, the British are firmly established, and multiplying with American rapidity; so in New Zealand, so in many rich islands of the Pacific Ocean, so in Canada. Everywhere are evidences that the work which the British races began in colonising America, "is destined to go on until every land that is not already the seat of an old civilisation shall become English in its language, in its political habits and traditions, and to a predominating extent in the blood of its people. The day is at hand when four-fifths of the human race will trace its pedigree to English forefathers." The race will keep maritime and commercial supremacy; its language, being a literary language, will not be broken up into dialects; its practical solidarity will thus be preserved, and therefore its predominance in the general polity of the world; and when this day comes the States of Europe will be compelled to enter into a federal union to hold their own against 150,000,000 of people in Australia and New Zealand, 50,000,000 in Canada, 30,000,000 in South Africa, and a reasonable number of hundreds of millions in other English-speaking countries allied to the British Empire. Here is a future, indeed, which may well make the mind dizzy to contemplate, especially as a proportionate amount of the advantages are already within our reach.

We suppose that the writer of the above was perfectly ignorant of the Identity of the Anglo-Saxon British races with the Lost Ten Tribes of the House of Joseph; yet in every sentence he wrote he unwittingly pointed to a fulfilment in that race of God's most solemn promises to the after-seed of Abraham, the House of Israel. He quoted the words of an American scientist, who declared that his own people responded to one of Israel's and Manasseh's most especial blessings, namely, multitudinousness (Gen. xlviii. 15—19).

The Federation of the Anglo-Saxon races, the professor also declared, was a certainty of the future, such Federation being accelerated by the manifest tendency of the British or English branch of the race to become "a federation of nations" already developing in Africa, North America, Australia, New Zealand, and the Islands of the Pacific. In saying this he was merely pointing to the prophecies of Gen. xxxv. 11, and xlviii. 19, respecting Ephraim-Israel, or the House of Joseph and Manasseh, declaring that the fulfilments were before our eyes! He further asserted that the British were endowed with maritime supremacy, such endowment being God-bestowed; and thus he declared they were the owners of Israel's gift of the Gates (Gen. xxii. 17). He accurately described "the Gates" and their manner of operation; for he told us that the British hold "every station that commands the pathways of commerce or guards the approaches to the barbarous countries which she is beginning to regard as in some way her natural heritage." Here is the true and accurate definition of the gift of "the Gate" to Israel, and the words which follow recall Psa. cxi. 6, R.V., and ii. 8 (R.V.), where God declares that "He showeth His people the power of His works in giving them the heritage of the nations" (or Gentiles). The world, says the professor, will fall under the power of this vastly-expanding, growing race, for four-fifths of the human family will be able to trace its pedigree from English forefathers, and speak the English language. Australians and New Zealanders together will soon number, he declares, 150 millions; Canadians 50; South Africans, 30;—230 millions in all, "besides a reasonable number of hundreds of millions of other English-speaking countries allied to the British Empire!" Well may the journalist conclude with the reflection that the future here indicated causes the brain to reel by reason of its glorious magnificence. It is certain it will do so, for it is Israel's future he was describing, and what that will be Jeremiah, our prophet, in chap. xxxiii. 9 (R.V.), fully declares—men shall "fear and tremble for all the good and all the peace that God will procure to Israel's city, and to His people"; and "all that see them shall acknowledge them that they are the seed which the Lord hath blessed" (Isa. lxi. 9, R.V.). We remark that the salient fact regarding our nation's progress in the eyes of this South African writer and the American he quoted is Britain's possession of "the Gates"—the "stations that command the pathways of commerce, and guard the approaches to barbarous countries," and so dominate them.

It is a remarkable fact that while one ignorant of Our Identity sees the truth so clearly in respect to "the Gates," Mr. Edward Hine, who regards himself as an authority in all matters relating to Our Identity, spurns the thought that these stations are the Gates of Gen. xxii. 17; and says, on p. 94 of the May number of The International Standard, that our view is "a silly misconception on the part of a few." For God said "Gate," and we "silly" ones declare He did not mean "Gate," but "the Gates," confounding the plural with the singular! The true "Gate" which God promised Abraham's seed, says Mr. E. Hine, was and is Palestine, and not the "many stations" throughout the world "which command the pathways to commerce." Now is Mr. E. Hine right in this piece of Hebrew criticism? Are we really wrong, or is he after all ignorant? We are afraid we must convict him of inconsistency in the first place, and of ignorance of the Hebrew idiom and usage in the next. He is inconsistent because, when we first mooted the idea, in 1875, that "the stations" in question were the Gates of Prophecy, Mr. Hine in his review of The Inquiry (Philo-Israel's first pamphlet), said, on p. 36 of vol. v. of the Glory Leader (March 10th, 1875), that "he was intensely interested in the author's exposition of 'thy seed shall possess the Gates of his enemies'; that he took the view propounded by Philo-Israel, and saw that, therefore, the Teutonic theory was false, since no nation but our own had complied with the conditions of this promise; whereas," he added, "our author by abundant evidence proves that the British, and the British alone, have done so." Mr. E. Hine enthusiastically welcomed the idea of "the Gate" in 1875, but in 1887 he rejects it as one held by "silly" folks, few in "number"! We venture to say that the bulk of BANNER readers hold our views on this point to-day, and that they are not the "silly few" Mr. E. Hine finds it convenient to describe us now! Then in regard to the impropriety of regarding "the Gate of the enemies" of Israel as the many Gates of the many "enemies," we may refer Mr. E. Hine and those who think with him to the masterly paper on this very subject we published for the Rev. C. W. Hickson, M.A., of Bristol, so far back as Nov. 2nd, 1881, in BANNER, Vol. v., No. 253, p. 466. There the Rev. writer, who is a fair Hebraist, shows us that the noun "Shahar," or "the Gate," in Gen. xxii. 17, is a singular noun, used in a collective sense, representing "the Gate" of different groups of "enemies"; and implying that as the enemies were many, and "the Gate" of each was referred to, "the Gates" were also many.

Digitized by Google

In Judges vii. 25 another Hebrew word is similarly used in the singular, but has a plural reference; "the head of Oreb and Zeeb," meaning not one head of two men, but two heads of the two princes. Mr. Hine would call us silly for speaking of two heads in this case, but he would be wrong. Oreb and Zeeb had two heads, but the Hebrew idiom gives them but one! So the "enemies of Israel" were to be many, and the Gate of each, or "the Gates," were to be in Israel's possession.

We find, then, that the weight of the evidence is on our side; and we cannot plead guilty to being "silly" in the matter! "The Gates" are stern facts which Israel, and therefore the British, must now be enjoying, just as she enjoys the multitudinousness, the general national blessing, and the evangelising functions promised in Gen. xxii. 17, 18. But we see no ground for Mr. Hine's interpretation that, while all the other blessings promised in these two verses are already in Israel-Britain's grasp, the Gates alone have been withheld by the God of Abraham, who sware to him that his afterseed should possess them all. If Palestine be Israel's Gate, then that Gate has not yet been given to the House of Israel; and since it can only be realised after the union of Israel and Judah, it stands to reason that it will never fall to the exclusive possession of the House of Joseph, whose is the birthright, and by consequence the Gate as well, such being the emblem of power and victory (1 Chron. v. 1, 2). Mr. Hine's idea lands him in an absurdity at once, and we must leave him to extricate himself from it as best he can.

THE jubilee of the introduction of the electric telegraph was celebrated on Wednesday, July 27. It is just fifty years ago since Wheatstone sent his first message from Euston to Camden Town. What advantages and blessings have accrued to man throughout the world by this invention.

OUR publishers have just issued the thirteenth thousand of "The History of the House of Israel: How They Were Lost and How They Were Found" (told for the children). We thank our friends for the circulation given to this little work, and trust it may continue to prove useful in disseminating the knowledge of Our Identity.

EUREKA! I'VE FOUND IT! A HIDDEN SCRIPTURAL TREASURE.

BY THE REV. THOMAS LOWE, M.B.A.S.

SUCH was the excited cry of Archimedes, the celebrated philosopher and mathematician of Syracuse, on making a certain discovery in specific gravities in relation to the crown of King Hiero, which had been adulterated. My discovery relates to Christ's crown as the King of Israel. "Thou art the Son of God; Thou art the King of Israel" (John i. 49). I had a vague idea of the existence of the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel somewhere; but where? I thought that I had discovered some faint traces of their local habitation among the American Indians, in their wigwams and prairies, and also among the Maories of New Zealand, in their pahs and wairees, and, stranger still, among the rude aborigines of Australia, in their gunyas, and in the wild, trackless bush. Then, not being perfectly satisfied with these supposed very crude discoveries, I assumed that the body of them must ultimately be found among the swarming, swarthy Asiatic tribes, or perhaps in the terra incognita of the regions of Central Africa, where the footprints of civilization have not yet pressed the primeval forest leaves. My theory was unsatisfactory, mere assumption, lacking clear and conclusive evidence. Occasionally I crossed the path of a sincere and intelligent believer in the British Identity theory. While respecting their honest convictions and well-meant intentions, I pooh-poohed the Israelitish origin of the British nation, as a meaningless and worthless conjecture, unsupported by Scripture proof and historical fact. I read some of the publications of Mr. Hine, whom I regarded as "making much ado about nothing." I read with my mind strongly biassed and prepossessed. On one great historical fact my views were clear and decided—the Ten Tribes are not mixed up with the Tribes of Judah and Benjamin, who had formed a separate kingdom under Rehoboam. The mystery, the great difficulty, was, where are the Ten Tribes to be found? The brochure of my esteemed friend the Rev. Henry Roe, of Dawley, "Israel's World," enlightened me, led to Scriptural and historical research, resulting in my adoption of the British-Israelitish theory.

I now read the Holy Scriptures in a new and vivid light. I received from the talented Editor of the BANNER OF ISRAEL, and from other leading gentlemen of the commonwealth of Israel, several booklets and tractates which very materially aided me in my inquiry for a right and fuller comprehension of this sublime and momentous Biblical subject and burning national question. "Therefore, behold the days come, saith the Lord, that they shall no more say, The Lord liveth which brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt. But, the Lord liveth, which brought up and which led the seed of the House of Israel out of the North country, and from all countries whither I have driven them; and they shall dwell in their own land" (Jer. xxiii. 7, 8). "And so all Israel shall be saved" (Rom. xi. 26). The true nature and extent of Israel's vocation and mission among the nations of the earth has for ages escaped observation in Christendom. "Our light is come. The Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising," (Isa. lx. 3), recently, literally fulfilled in the Jubilee celebration of the glorious reign of our gracious Empress-Queen!

It is not improbable that I may in some respects be ministerially and denominationally boycotted on account of my belief and advocacy of the British Identity theory. But no opposition, petty or powerful, can arrest the march of Truth.

> "Men smote it, but it struck them dumb;
> They knew not what a power had come;
> And hoary error shrunk away,
> Dazzl'd and blinded by its ray!"

Stratford-on-Avon, July 12th, 1887.

Digitized by Google

"THE CHRISTIAN WORLD" GIVES EVIDENCE.

It is a remarkable thing that the very journals which are most determined in their opposition to our views give us oftenest the strongest and the most conclusive evidence that the British must be Israel. The Christian World is a paper which laughs at the idea of the British being Israel, and yet quotes the words of Scripture as applicable to them alone at the present juncture, when it is perfectly certain that the passage in question speaks of Israel only. Our quotation is as follows:—

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.—WITHIN THE ABBEY.

It would, perhaps, be an exaggeration to say that the scene within Westminster Abbey on Tuesday was unprecedented; for this sacred shrine of national memories has been the central focus of almost all our historic pageantry. But this at least may perhaps be said without challenge—that never was so vast a congregation gathered within its walls; never did it contain an assembly so truly national in its representative completeness; and never in the whole world did a jubilee celebration of any Sovereign's reign suggest so close an approach to an identification of a monarchy and a commonwealth. For it was not a gathering only of courtiers and priests and officials. Parliament loomed large; but it did not crowd out the more local representatives of public order. Municipal authorities of all kinds had been recognised by the invitations sent out. Science, literature, and art were conspicuously present in their distinguished representatives. Nonconformist religion was welcomed as an essential factor in the national life. The dignity of labour was acknowledged by the places assigned to its leaders; and if we are compelled to admit that their number was too small, and their position in the Abbey too remote, it is still a circumstance characteristic of the age that their presence was considered necessary. Nor was the mother-country of the Queen's Empire alone represented. Considering the magnitude and solemnity of the human interests involved, WE may without impropriety adapt to the occasion the words of the prophet: "We have brought our seed from the East, and gathered them from the West; we have said to the North, Give up, and to the South, Keep not back; we have brought our sons from far, and our daughters from the ends of the earth." There was hardly an island of "the multitudinous sea" that was not represented; and India was conspicuous by the gorgeous robes and flashing diamonds of her princes.

The Christian World admits that Isa. xliii. 6 may without impropriety be applied to the circumstances of the Queen's Jubilee. If that be so, then may the context be also properly applied to this nation, and we find that the British are designated Jacob and Israel by the Lord Himself; that we are His redeemed people, precious in His sight, and that because we have the Lord's presence with us we have no reason to fear. It is certain, too, we are nationally created, formed, and made for God's own glory (ver. 7), to show forth His praise (ver. 21). We are sure our readers will see that if the Christian World is satisfied that ver. 7 may be applied to our present condition during the Jubilee celebrations, the rest of the chapter is also very properly descriptive of the British nation and its Identity with the lost Ten Tribes of Israel.

The Jubilee gathering in the Abbey, no doubt, was a thoroughly Israelitish scene. There the whole Empire was represented. But surely another passage of Scripture was also fulfilled on that occasion, as L. P. has already observed in these pages, and Isa. lx. 1—3 may be said to have had its accomplishment then. Then was Israel's glory manifested, and the splendid light of God's glory shone upon the nation. Then the Gentiles came to Israel's light, and many kings to the brightness of her rising. They gathered themselves together to the Abbey Church. Our sons came from far, even from Australasia and the Cape Colonies, from India and the Canadian Dominion. The wealth of the Gentiles came unto us; they gave gold and incense to Her Majesty, and they showed forth the praises of Jehovah, in so magnifying and glorifying the throne of His servant Victoria the Good, ruling over Israel. The kings of the East came bowing down to her with their faces towards the earth, and they thus testified, according to Isa. xlix. 23, that the British folk are Israel, and their beloved Queen one of the House of David ruling over Israel according to the prophecies.

By the admission of the Christian World, the British race are seated in power in the islands of the "multitudinous sea," to the East, and West, and North, and South, and they also occupy the ends of the earth. From all these parts they flocked on the occasion of the Jubilee, to do honour to the Queen of British-Israel. Who then can doubt that our race is Israel, since God's word tells us that the nation answering this peculiar description was to be Israel, but not otherwise? It seems to us that to doubt the fact amounts now to impiety and unbelief. God has given all men assurance of this stupendous truth by every variety of evidence. The prophecies are accessible to all, and they proclaim the fact. Sceptics as to Our Identity, like the Christian World, are forced by circumstances to declare that it is proved, though they are unwitting agents in making the fact known, and have nothing so far removed from their thoughts the while as saying or writing anything to help on this new and, to them, absurd and incredible view.

All things are working together to establish the identity of the British with Israel. Even the mistakes of our journalists and the admissions of our "blind witnesses" further the same object; and therefore there is need that for such mistakes and blind acknowledgments, so far as they conduce to the establishment of God's glory in and upon Israel, we should praise God and glorify His holy name.

THE SECOND COMMANDMENT.

The second of the Ten Commandments, or Decalogue, contains a twofold prohibition. It forbids the making of any graven image, or the picture of anything that is in heaven above, or in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth, for the purpose of bowing down to or serving them when made or prepared. The command thus strikes at heathen idol-worship in its grosser forms, and at the picture-worship of the Church of Rome and of the Greek Church. These practices are forbidden by the commandment for the good and sufficient reason that God is "a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generations of them that hate Him, and showing mercy unto thousands of them that love Him and keep His commandments."

In Leviticus xxvi. 1—39 we have a full detail regarding this Second Commandment, combined with the fourth, and a statement how God purposed to punish Israel for their breach of these two statutes of the Lord. "Ye shall make you no idols nor graven image, neither rear you up a standing image, neither shall you set up any image of stone in your land to bow down to it, for I am the Lord your God. Ye shall keep My Sabbaths and reverence My sanctuary. I am the Lord." Then follow details of the national and temporal blessings which God declared should be Israel's if they obeyed in these two respects; but contrariwise His curses on the people and their land if they disobeyed. These blessings and curses were quite apart from spiritual blessings accompanying salvation. They related only to national blessings and judgments. The blessings were these, conditional on obedience. The rain would fall in due season, yielding good harvests; the people would enjoy peace and safety in the land; they would be victorious over their enemies abroad, and blessed at home. These were temporal blessings to be obtained by obedience. There were also spiritual benefits to be derived from the same. God's tabernacle would be among the people; His presence would be theirs; He would be their God, and they His people. On the other hand, disobedience was to be followed by the reverse of all these benefits—terror, consumption, ague, sorrow, subjection to enemies, seven times' punishment, wild beasts, failure of harvests, destruction of cattle, fewness of population, and the sword. These and other grievous sorrows and troubles, temporal chiefly, and spiritual, too, were to be the return for disobedience. In point of fact the history of the two Houses of Israel proved that these judgments and blessings were theirs according as they failed to obey, or submitted themselves to the will and commands of their God, respectively.

Digitized by Google

In a discourse on the Second Commandment to which we lately listened, the preacher applied these verses to the condition of the British nation, and declared that inasmuch as we had lately fallen nationally into open and flagrant idolatry in our churches, where the worship of the wafer-god was rapidly advancing, we might look for God's judgments to be repeated in these islands as they were inflicted on the Jewish nation. That nation, he declared, was now suffering all the penalties denounced against those who worshipped idols and failed to observe God's Sabbaths, and had been dispersed and punished for 1,800 years according to the prophecies. We must, however, object to these statements by observing that the "Jewish nation," meaning the Jewish people, or Jews, were not scattered and destroyed by Titus in A.D. 70 because of idolatry, for they had renounced that sin, nationally, from the date of their return from the Babylonian captivity. From that day to this hour open idolatry has not been the sin of the Jews. They have been punished as we see they are for the far different and terrible sin of crucifying the Son of God. When they cried, "His blood be on us and on our children" (Matt. xxvii. 25), they sealed their own doom, and brought on them the terrible destruction they are now suffering. Their idolatries and Israel's brought on them the captivities to Babylon and Media respectively, and thereby the prophecies recorded in Lev. xxvi. 14—39 were fulfilled.

But when we are told that these judgments pronounced against the Houses of Judah and Israel, and fulfilled against them to the jot and the tittle before B.C. 588, are all to be repeated to the jot and to the tittle again against the British nation to-day because there is a recrudescence of Popish and Ritualistic practices in the midst of our people; this is, we think, carrying the matter a little too far. It is certainly not true that the British can be sent into captivity, and have their land in the isles of the West invaded, and subjected to their enemies, their population reduced to skeleton proportions, and "the pride of their power broken." For the British are Israel, and there is nothing in God's Word, from Genesis to Revelation, to show that once in the appointed place, in the isles of the West, God's promise to them of safe asylum there is to be ever broken, or that their home Gates, which are to be open continually for peaceful commerce, are ever to be attacked and invaded by an enemy who is to break the pride of their power.

This nation, however, is Israel, and doubtless there is a penalty to pay for disobedience to the second as well as to the other commandments of our God. These are, however, not the judicial punishments such as fell on Israel and Judah for their sins of idolatry, in B.C. 721 and 588, but they will be, and are, "corrections in measure," the guilty people not going altogether unpunished (Jer. xxx. 11). These are God's loving chastisements of His redeemed and accepted people, with whom He is now never angry or wroth (Isa. liv. 9). Our preacher, besides, did not reflect that, the British being Israel, we are to expect national declension and a rapid falling away here in these "latter days," to answer to the predicted "coming in" of the Satanic "enemy like a flood." The falling away and Satan's apparent conquest of this imperial race are to precede "the lifting up" against him of the Lord Jesus Christ's standard of victory, and then, but not before, the enemy shall perish for ever (Isa. lix. 19). Our preacher, therefore, was alarming himself and his hearers very unnecessarily. For the evil symptoms he was deploring are, after all, only the happy signs of the return of the glorious King of Israel, the Lord Jesus Christ, and it is just as reasonable to deplore the battle which is to precede His triumphs here over the arch-enemy in the midst of Israel, as it would be for us to regret Gog-Magog's invasion of Palestine, when it occurs, as one of God's deserved punishments of His people Israel, whereas He has plainly foretold to us that that invasion will be permitted by Him to enhance His own glory and triumph, but not at all to punish His redeemed, sanctified, and accepted people Israel.

TESTIMONY BY THE BISHOP OF LAHORE.

By C. P. Bird (Bengal Civil Service).

In a sermon preached by the Bishop of Lahore on Jan. 25, 1887, on the occasion of the opening of the Cathedral Church, he uses the following striking words:—

"To some of us it will be a cheering and stirring thought that in a temple such as this—built where it is in these far border lands of our empire— we cannot help being reminded of those old prophecies, in which the gospel of the kingdom, and the preaching of Christ the Reconciler and the Consummator, are foreshown as the meeting ground where the long-severed East and West shall meet at length. All through the later predictions of Isaiah the Isles of the sea are challenged to listen to the voice of God's messengers; to come forth out of their concealment and for a season at least to take the place of the Israel after the flesh:—to become God's Witnesses, and His fellow-helpers in the extension of His word of truth. Thus in several passages the islands and the lands of the Sunrise or the morning, are called to clasp hands, and band themselves together in this holy enterprise by which men shall be elevated and enlightened, and God's long-suppressed Truth vindicated and proclaimed. So in Isaiah xxiv: "Wherefore glorify ye the Lord from the Sun rising; even the name of the Lord God of Israel from the Islands of the sea." And again in chap. xlii., three times the Isles are summoned of God to have a privileged share in this consummation. May not the students of prophecy then be of good courage, and believe that it is no dream of wayward or playful fancy at all, but a hope founded on calm, sober reason, that here in this fabric may be a meeting place in which the Isles of the West and the lands of the Sunrise shall find their children joining hands more and more in holy rivalry for truth and love and holiness; for resisting all that is evil, and promoting all that is good:—that even such a thing might happen as (St. Chrysostom tells us in one of his sermons) happened in one of the Greek Churches in Constantinople. He was about to preach himself, but it so happened that a Gothic priest came into the Church with a number of his people, and he, the Greek Archbishop, gave up his pulpit for that day to the Gothic priest. And so before the polished Greeks was heard the rough and (then) uncultured tongue of our Northern forefathers; and they learnt the lesson in that simple and unusual occurrence, that in Christ there is neither Greek nor Jew, Briton nor Hindu, Barbarian nor Scythian, bond nor free, but Christ all, and in all. Wondrous blendings and interminglings of Western Islands and lands of the Sunrise;—of their tongues and thoughts and peoples —may these solid walls which encircle us to-day long be spared to witness! May the sum and substance of it be, 'Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, to the men of good will.'" So far the preacher.

The Bishop speaks of the Isles being "challenged to listen to the voice of God's messengers to come forth out of their concealment, and for a season at least to take the place of the Israel after the flesh:—to become God's witnesses and His fellow-helpers in the extension of His word of truth;" and he infers from these and other passages that England and India are "called to clasp hands, and band themselves together in this holy enterprise." The Bishop evidently thinks that the Western Isles will be eventually supplanted by Israel, though the Isles are stated by him to be doing Israel's work as "God's witnesses" and "fellow-helpers." When the Anglo-Saxon Race are perceived to be the children of Israel, the prophecy evidently means that India will be our great ally in the future struggle against evil. In Ezekiel xxxviii. 13, "the merchants of Tarshish" or India are mentioned as on the side of Israel. By such a righteous union may man be elevated and enlightened, and God's long-suppressed truth indicated and proclaimed.

Ambâla, Panjâb.

Digitized by Google

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

THE following letters, which appeared in the Manchester Courier, are interesting at the present time, and must find a place in the BANNER. They are valuable on another account. They include a letter from Mr. Joseph Baxendell, the Astronomer at the Birkdale (Southport) Observatory, whose communications, some time since published in the BANNER, were always interesting. The letters were as follows:—

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

To the Editor of the "Manchester Courier."

"SIR,—Mr. D. T. Batty, in to-day's Courier, gives as the reason 'why the British Empire should advance for ever more than the empires which have risen, shone, and fallen,' its profession of Christianity on the purest and broadest basis; but he strangely overlooks the fact that long before there was Christianity the Biblical prophecies had clearly indicated that at the present period in the world's history the so-called 'Lost Ten Tribes of Israel' should be a great and powerful nation, not known as Israel, but under another name, greater and more powerful in fact than any nation or empire that has hitherto existed, enjoying privileges and blessings not enjoyed by any other nation, much more wealthy, and lending to other nations, but borrowing from none, having command of the sea, and possession of the Gates of its enemies (fortresses, stategic points or stations dominating the principal military, naval, and commercial routes of the world), being a Sabbath-keeping and great missionary nation, ruling over many nations, but not ruled over by any, having a monarchical form of government, becoming ultimately a nation and company of nations, and not decaying like the empires of Greece and Rome. I need hardly say that the only nation which answers to these prophecies is the British, which therefore exists and advances in fulfilment of God's promises to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, for the purpose of being a blessing in the world, and carrying 'the knowledge of the Lord to all nations, kindreds, and families of the earth.'

"Yours, &c.,

"JOSEPH BAXENDELL.

"Birkdale, June 17, 1887."

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

To the Editor of the "Manchester Courier."

"SIR,—I was much gratified with the manner in which Mr. Baxendell has replied to the letter of Mr. D. T. Batty on the above subject. The latter seems to have striven to satisfy his mind as to the cause of the greatness of the British Empire, but it is only by taking the wider scope indicated by Mr. Baxendell, and impartially taking the Bible from one end to the other, that we can get an intelligent view of the unique position our empire occupies in these modern times. It is plainly set forth that the work of blessing the world was to be by means of a special people, and the Bible is almost exclusively the history of that people. After their separation into the two kingdoms of Israel and Judah, the former was to be lost for a time, but eventually to emerge and gradually grow into a dominant people under a new name, to carry out the divine design of blessing 'all the families of the earth.' The preparations for this were sketched out in the scriptures, as Mr. Baxendell says, long before Christianity, and nothing is more interesting than to connect the events now going on with the ancient promises and prophecies of the Old Testament. There are many who think with Mr. Baxendell, and I for one am glad that he has brought the subject forward, and also that you have inserted his letter on a matter which most editors seem to fight shy of. It is one, however, which amply repays investigation, and one which must before long come very much to the front."

"Yours, &c.,

"W. HULL.

"Brooklands, June 2, 1887."

We feel that Mr. Baxendell has placed the matter very clearly before the readers of the Manchester Courier. God's dealings with the world constitute almost a drama. The love of God to the lapsed and fallen world, devised a plan for its rescue and salvation. He gave His only begotten Son, to become incarnate, to live and die for man, to offer an acceptable atonement to God's offended justice and to present to mankind an example of a perfectly holy life. This salvation must be communicated to the world whom God so greatly loved. How could it be effected? Only by a nation formed, made, created, prepared and endowed to do the work of evangelisation. God accordingly chose Israel, and by slow degrees has been for nearly 4,000 years preparing them for the work He has resolved they shall do for the world outside their honoured race. That special people was Israel, and the British are "the remnant of Israel" in modern times. We have consequently all the marks and signs God foretold Israel should have in these the last days during the Christian dispensation. Not one is wanting. We have them all exclusively, and no other nation outside the British have so much as one. We must therefore be the Lost Tribes of the House of Israel, as God is true. To us is committed the ministry of the Word in respect to all the nations, families and kindreds of the earth; and we are carrying out the commission we have received in an earnest and faithful manner. These facts are what the nations of the earth, and indeed our own thoughtless people, do not reflect upon, and they therefore, using the language of the blind, tell us "they cannot see" our arguments, and fail to appreciate their force. But men of such great calibre as Mr. Joseph Baxendell, F.R.A.S., and Professor Piazzi Smyth, F.R.A.S., have fully embraced our opinions, believe and teach them. There is comfort in their enunciation for our race, in these dark days and uncertain times. These views are true, for they are based upon the unerring word of the living God, and current history is vouching for their truth in a wondrous way.

Correspondence.

THE "BANNER" BRITISH-ISRAELITE JUBILEE FUNDS.

To the Editor of "The Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—I have been glad to note that the lists of the BANNER British-Israelite Jubilee Funds are not closed, and I still hope that those who have not subscribed, and are able, will yet do so. Possibly the mention of June as the fixed month for closing prevented some British-Israelites, in distant parts of the Empire, from sending donations, who are as thankful and as much in earnest as any of us at home; it may not have been convenient or possible for them to contribute at once.

Feeling very much in accord with your desire that the amount for the Church Missionary Society may reach £100, I would add that I should rejoice to see £50 counted for the Bible Society, and any amount possible for the Jews' Society. The work of all is so valuable. We are only at the commencement of the Jubilee year, and I venture to think that if we take the first three months of the special twelve with the three preceding for the collection, we need not consider the time has been unduly prolonged for this test-work of our thankfulness and sincerity.

I should like, were it possible, for all the months of this Jubilee year to prove witnesses of good gifts. In regard to the special object kept in view by our Jubilee Fund, that of proving to the world the substantial existence and good faith of the British-Israel body,—may I express an earnest hope that we may resist the temptation which may assail us to stay our usual gifts through other channels, or for other good works, in order to give a better appearance to this? Unless we make our special fund a speciality in fact as well as in name it will not be a true thank-offering, nor fitted for the Jubilee; and while we give, let us be content with what we give, as according with our means with which God has blessed us, feeling sure that only so much, and no more, He will ever require.

With full appreciation of your desire for the increase of the amounts for the three funds, I have much pleasure in being able to send you another small contribution to each of them.

Yours very sincerely,

E. M. RUSH.

Lee, London, July 23rd, 1887.

NOTE BY THE EDITOR.—We are glad to say our appeal has borne good fruit. One friend of the Bible Society has sent us £9 12s. 6d., and so made up at once the £40 we asked for it. The C. M. S. and Jews' Society now ask for help.

THE half-yearly volume of Great Thoughts, just issued by Hall and Co., Fleet-street, is a very useful work for public speakers. There are several capital portraits, and a large number of useful articles.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS.

	£ s. d.
Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free	0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers)	0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ...	1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ...	1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ...	1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

The Bible Readings will be discontinued till October.

Now Ready. Price 2/6, cloth, gilt, bevelled boards, Imperial 8vo., free for P.O.

A CONSECRATED LIFE.

A MEMOIR

OF THE

RIGHT REV. BISHOP TITCOMB, D.D.

By the Rev. ALLEN T. EDWARDS, M.A., Cantab.

With an Introduction by the Right Rev. the LORD BISHOP of ROCHESTER.

Frontispiece: Cabinet size PHOTO-PORTRAIT of the late BISHOP by Messrs. Elliot and Fry.

CONTENTS:

Introduction. 1.—Early Life to the Period of His First Curacy. 2.—Cambridge Ministry. 3.—London Life and Woking. 4.—Rangoon. 5.—Northern and Central Europe. Appendix.—1. Funeral Sermon by the Rev. J. McCann, D.D. 2. Sermon by Bishop Titcomb. 3. Public Work in Rangoon in one year. 4. Tabular Statement of Tours in Northern and Central Europe. 5. Consecration of St. George's Church, Berlin.

R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London.

A New Work on the Identity of Lost Israel

By the late BISHOP TITCOMB.

Now ready, in Cloth Gilt, Bevelled Boards, Imperial 8vo. Price 3s.; sent Post Free for Postal Order or Stamps.

A MESSAGE TO THE CHURCH

FROM

THE NINETEENTH CENTURY,

BY THE LATE

RT. REV. BISHOP TITCOMB, D.D.

The Kentish Mercury, April 21st, says:—"This book derives a peculiar and pathetic interest from the circumstances that the proofs of its concluding pages were revised by the author during the last few days of his life, and that its publication took place simultaneously with his death. One feels, in noticing a book under such circumstances, a special responsibility, when the author is removed beyond the reach of human criticism of whatever kind. But in truth it is impossible to glance at these pages without being struck by the deep and reverent research into the prophetic Scriptures which it manifests, by the tone of piety that pervades it, as well as the lucidity and eloquence of its style. Nor is it necessary to express concurrence with the views of the gifted and pious author in his prophetic theories to give this praise. Of course with regard to Dr. Titcomb's prophetic interpretations there will be much difference of opinion, but there can be none in the mind of any impartial person who reads this work, either as to the diligence with which he test mony of the prophets has been studied, or the earnestness of the expositor in stating his conclusions. Bishop Titcomb, it is well-known to those who have studied his works, was one of the school of prophetic interpreters who believe that the British Empire, or perhaps, more accurately speaking, the English-speaking race, are identified with those whom we have been in the habit of calling the 'Lost Tribes of Israel.'" [Then follow several extracts.]

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet court, Fleet-st F. W. Parry & Co., Paternoster-row, and all booksellers.

SEND US FOUR STAMPS. and we will send you, carriage paid, samples of goods, and guarantee you to earn Five Shillings a day upwards. Satisfaction guaranteed, or stamps returned. This is genuine.—LOUIS H. HART & Co., 126, Clerkenwell Road, London, E.C.

"THE TEN TRIBES."

Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time; and What will be Their Place in the Millennium?

A PAPER read before "The Prophecy Investigation Society" on April 9, 1887,

BY

ALDER SMITH, M.B., F.R.C.S.

LONDON:

R. BANKS & SON, RACQUET-COURT, FLEET-ST.

Price 6d., post free 7d.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

Philo-Israel's Leaflets. Four pages Crown 8vo. Price 1s. 6d. per 100, postage 2d. No. 1.—"The Identity of the British with Lost Israel." 2.—"The Glory of God." 3.—An Address to British Seamen. 4.—An Address to British Soldiers. No. 5.—The Communion of the Body and Blood of Our Lord Jesus Christ Viewed in the Light of Our Identity. 6.—The Bible and the Jew. 7.—The Jewish People. 8.—Lo-Ammi; or, the Gentilisation of Ten-Tribed Israel. 9.—The Atonement. 10.—Is Our Identity Evangelical, or Non-Evangelical in its Tendency? No. 11.—Cui Bono? No. 12.—The "Thoughts" of God Towards Israel, Judah, and the Gentile Nations. 13.—The Teutonic Theory. Is It True? 14.—An Address to the Police Force of Great Britain. 15.—An Address to Israel's Missionaries and Their Supporters. 16.—The One Seed, Christ. 17.—An Address to Israel's Electors.

London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

BY REV. HENRY ROE.

(Fifteenth Thousand).

1. Israel's World. Origin and Destiny of British Race, Colonies, and Empire. 2d., post free 2½d. "Worthy of a world-wide circulation." H. B. Thompson, Association Sec. 50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.
2. Going to Africa. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.
3. Fernando Po Mission. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.
4. West African Scenes. 2s., post free 2s. 2d.
5. Consecration. 2d., post free 2½d.

50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; and Rev. H. Roe, Dawley, Salop.

NON-INTOXICATING BEER

(A Splendid Dinner Beverage)

MADE IMMEDIATELY WITH

MASON'S EXTRACT OR ESSENCE OF HERBS,

Composed of Yarrow, Dandelion, Comfrey, and Horehound. Send 9 stamps for sample bottle, enough to make five gallons, NEWBALL and MASON, Chemists, Nottingham.

AGENTS WANTED. APPLY FOR TERMS.

LIVER TONIC,

GEORGE & WELCH'S,

2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. per Bottle.

This Tonic, which embraces the active principle of the best known Liver Cures, relieves Indigestion and Debility, sharpens the appetite, and corrects all unpleasant symptoms arising from sluggish liver.

Proprietors: GEORGE & WELCH, Worcester.

To be had through all Chemists or by Parcels Post from Makers.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON,

RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

THE LOST TEN TRIBES OF ISRAEL. By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D., Pastor of Union Congregational Church, Brooklyn, New York. Price 3s., post free 3s. 3d.

THE FUTURE OF ISRAEL AND JUDAH Companion volume to above, By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D. With Portrait of the Author. Cloth, gilt lettered, bevelled boards. Price 2s., post free 2s. 3d.

THE SISTERS OF HARROWDALE RECTORY. A Tale of Great Interest for Young People. By Mrs. M. A. Scarson. With double-page illustration of Harrowdale Rectory. Price 2s. 6d., post free 2s. 9d.

THE ANGLO-ISRAEL POST-BAG; or, How Arthur Came to See It. By the Right Rev. BISHOP TITCOMB. Price 2s. 6d. in cloth gilt; paper cover, 1s. 6d., by post 1d. extra.

THE ISRAELITES FOUND IN THE ANGLO-SAXONS. The Ten Tribes supposed to have been Lost, traced from the land of their captivity to their occupation of the Isles of the Sea. By WILLIAM CARPENTER. Price 2s. 6d., by post 2s. 8d.

THE ANSWER TO THE EASTERN QUESTION, With Some Facts Concerning the Identity of the British With Israel. By the Author of "The New Old Story," enlarged. Price 3d.; for distribution, 50 copies, 11s., post free.

CARDINAL PROOFS THAT THE BRITISH Are the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel—the Abrahamic Covenant. By F. W. PHILLIPS. With two chapters by PHILO-ISRAEL. Price 6d., post free 7d.

THE NEW OLD STORY. By "A.E.I." Price 6d., post free; in cloth, 1s., post free.

THE BIBLE ATLAS. To Illustrate the Old and New Testaments. Price 1s.; post free 1s. 1d.

ANGLO-ISRAEL TRACTS. 8 pp. Royal 16mo., on toned paper. Adapted to enclose in letters, and for general distribution. No. 1—12. Half-penny each, 12 copies post free, 6d. Specimen packet for 6 stamps.

PRICE 4d.

AN EXPOSITION OF JEREMIAH LI.

BY THE

REV. H. MARRIOTT.

F. W. PARRY, 29, Paternoster-row, London.

J. E. CHILLCOTT, Bristol.

Crown 8vo., wrapper, price 6d.

Where is the Firstborn?

An investigation of the British Claim to Identification With the House of Israel. By the REV. G. A. ROGERS, M.A. Edited by his Widow. Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

"Ably written, well edited, and carefully presented to the readers. . . . We wish it a large circulation."—Banner of Israel.

London: Robert Banks & Son Racquet-court, Fleet-st

Wonderful Value by Parcels Post.

WALTER KEAST, 102, Kennington Park Road, London, S.E., will on receipt of Postal Order for 3s. 6d. send a pair of Ladies' High-leg Lasting Button Walking Boots. These Boots are warranted to give complete satisfaction, being sewn thoroughly well made and very comfortable. Ditto in Oxford Shoes, 3s. 3d. Send number of size or length of boot in inches. Parcels sent daily to all parts of the United Kingdom.

Established 1851.

A BOON TO SUFFERERS.

HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT.

Testimonial

From Miss J. HOULDSWORTH, Rozelle, Ayr, N.B.

"I am glad to be able to tell you that the HARNESS' ELECTRIC BATTERY BELT has been very beneficial in strengthening the system generally, as well as instrumental in relieving the Neuralgic pains from which I have suffered.

NEURALGIA & DEBILITY.

Every man and woman suffering from any disorder of the Nerves, Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys, should at once stop physicing, and remit 2s. for HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT (post free) and obtain immediate relief. Pamphlet and Book of Testimonials POST FREE. MEDICAL BATTERY CO. Ltd.

52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 10, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 555. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1887. PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
The Anglo-Turkish Convention Dead and Buried	333
The Strangest of Recent "Fads"	334
The Form of Thanksgiving and Prayer, also the Hymns for Her Majesty's Jubilee	335
What Some Americans Think Regarding the British Occupation of Egypt	336
French Aggression	336
The Small Band of Enthusiasts	337
Correspondence	338
Obituary	339

THE ANGLO-TURKISH CONVENTION DEAD AND BURIED.

WE are glad to see, by the answer of Sir J. Fergusson to Mr. Bryce in Parliament on July 19th, that the Convention is not now likely to become a valid instrument, but is, for the present at least, dead and buried. The mission of Sir H. D. Wolff is withdrawn; he has already left Constantinople, and is in London. It is a great relief to the public mind that an unfortunate episode has come to an end, and that "all's well that ends well."

It appears now, from the terms of the Convention just published, that after the British had evacuated Egypt that country might have been re-occupied by Turkish troops in case of external danger, internal disorder, or failure in the Khedive in his duties as a vassal! The Convention gave the Turks a prior right of intervention and interference over ourselves, which was quite an unexpected stipulation as far as the public here were concerned. How such a right could have been conceded to the Turks by the British Government of to-day is a marvel, though it is possible the stipulation was introduced into Article V. in order to save the dignity of the Sultan, but without any expectation that the right would ever be claimed. The words of the Convention are these, and our readers may judge how dangerous they were likely to have proved. They are part of Article V., and read thus:—

On the withdrawal of the British troops, Egypt shall enjoy the advantages of the principle of territorial immunity ("sureté territoriale"), and on the ratification of the present Convention the Great Powers shall be invited to sign an Act recognising and guaranteeing the inviolability of Egyptian territory.

Under such Act no Power shall have the right, under any circumstances, to land troops on Egyptian territory except in the cases provided for in the regulations annexed to the present Convention.

Nevertheless, the Imperial Ottoman Government will make use of its right of occupying Egypt militarily if there are reasons to fear an invasion from without, or if order and security in the interior were disturbed, or if the Khediviate of Egypt refused to execute its duties towards the Sovereign Court, or its international obligations.

On its side, the Government of Her Britannic Majesty is authorised by this Convention to send, in the above-mentioned cases, troops into Egypt, which will take the measures necessary to remove these dangers. In taking these measures the commanders of these troops will act with all the regard due to the rights of the Sovereign Power.

The Ottoman troops, as well as the British troops, will be withdrawn from Egypt as soon as the causes requiring this intervention shall have ceased.

If, by reason of hindrances, the Ottoman Government should not send troops to Egypt, it will send a Commissioner to remain during the period of the sojourn of the British troops with their commander.

Whenever the two States may consider it necessary to send troops into Egypt, they will notify the circumstance one to the other, and will act in conformity with the present Convention.

The Convention has been happily killed by the united action of France, Russia, and Turkey. The two first refused to sanction the Convention because it permitted the return of British and Turkish troops alone to Egypt, and absolutely refused the French any entry on the land. The Turks have refused to ratify the Convention because they were afraid of the influence of France and Russia, lest the Act so displeasing to these Powers should lead to war.

We hope our readers notice how God regulates the affairs of Israel, and in the easiest, simplest, most natural manner, rectifies the blunders of His blind ones, turning their errors into blessings, and conferring on them, by the folly of their opponents, those very "good things" which His people, in their short-sighted policy, are ready to put away from them, lest they should lead foreign nations to quarrel with them on account thereof. We know Egypt to be essential to our national interests because Lord Salisbury has said so in the course of these very negociations. But we have been ready and willing to give up Egypt at a given near date, lest the French should take umbrage; and have even been willing that the curse of Turkish rule should once again afflict Egypt, if only we could keep the peace with the Sultan! In vain! God wills otherwise; and, having given us Egypt, as He did in August and September, 1882, He obviously means us to stay there, and has been trying to teach that lesson in every variety of way, first to Mr. Gladstone, and now to Lord Salisbury, but all apparently in vain! Meanwhile He never allows us to be punished for our blindness! He never permits our rulers' folly to lead to the surrender of Egypt; and when He finds that they are ready to execute such foolish documents as the Anglo-Turkish Convention, He causes the latter to become a dead letter by making the French to oppose it against their own true interests, giving the Sultan such a vacillating mind that he has been swayed first on one side, then on the other, till he has ended by refusing to ratify the Convention at all! The end is just what we desired, and accords well with Lord Salisbury's bold words, sent by telegraph on January 15, 1887, during the course of these negociations, as reported by the Times. They are as follows, being the "unalterable resolution of Her Majesty's Government":—

Digitized by Google

They have resolved "in no circumstances to leave Egypt to the danger of renewed anarchy, or to accept as an admissible contingency that the void left by the retirement of our troops should be filled by the forces of any other Power."

That despatch clearly indicated the limits of the concessions which it is possible for this country to make without immediate dishonour and disaster, and the history of the subsequent negociations is simply a history of sedulous efforts on the part both of France and of Turkey to push us beyond these limits. Our right of re-entry in case of external menace or internal disorder was represented by the Turkish diplomatists as an infringement of the sovereign rights of the Sultan—an amusing contention in view of the fact that he owes to this country every vestige of real authority that remains to him in Egypt as well as every guarantee he possesses for the payment of his tribute. The French, on the other hand, have been equally bent on obtaining an unconditional promise to evacuate on an early date. They absolutely ignore the conditions in which this country is placed, and do not condescend to anything that can be dignified with the name of argument. Frenchmen do not like to see Englishmen in Egypt, therefore Englishmen are to walk out at once. That is all that the French representations come to, and it is pretty evident that the principle involved—ôte-toi que je m'y mette—is capable of the most far-reaching application.

The French and Turks, in fact, have urged us to get out of Egypt as fast as we can, and our rulers, to make things agreeable to their foes, have offered to "clear out" in three years, if possible, with right of re-entry. But God has interposed, and as He did before in the case of Mr. Gladstone, so now He seems in a voice of thunder to say to Israel, "Stop! thou shalt not depart! Abide where I command thee to stay!" We believe that in the end we shall have to obey the Lord God of Israel, and therefore we look for a long continuance of British-Israel's protectorate of Egypt—till France and Turkey, in short, will have other and more pressing work on their hands, which will give them no time or inclination to demand our evacuation of the Land of Ham. To Him, under any circumstances, will be all the praise!

THE STRANGEST OF RECENT "FADS."

THE Newcastle Daily Leader, in announcing the death recently of Dr. Andrew Bolton as "the most genial of companions and most cultivated of hosts," declares that of late years the deceased "had given much attention to one of the strangest of recent fads, and had become an earnest Anglo-Israelite." It seems that Dr. Bolton was in the habit of enunciating the views of Mr. Hine, with profuse references to Hebrew, Erse, and various other languages, "and so made what did not readily command respect as Mr. Hine's doctrines almost reasonable." We conclude that Dr. Andrew Bolton was strong on the philological aspect of our subject, and brought to bear upon it philological affinities between our own (also the Erse) language and that of the Hebrews. Even then he only succeeded in making it seem "almost reasonable." No wonder. The identity between the lost Ten Tribes and our own race can never be established by reference to philological similarities. There is something to be said on the subject favourable to our claim to an Israelitish origin, but nothing which can be held to prove Our Identity from a philological point of view only. Philology is only a handmaid to revelation, and can do no more than declare that from the standpoint of language there is nothing to negative or stultify our claim. As far as language is concerned there is, however, nothing to prove that we are not "the remnant of Israel." This, we suppose, is all Dr. Andrew Bolton could say in his declarations on the subject. We do not remember to have seen any of his lectures or writings on Our Identity with Israel, and therefore cannot explain how far he was an authority from our point of view. But if he set aside the Holy Scriptures, and failed to rest the whole weight of the argument on them, then we say he was bound to fail, and probably did fail, to do more than "seem to make it almost reasonable."

"The strangest of recent fads," however, rests on proof which is as strong as adamant, and deserves more respectful treatment than the Newcastle Daily Leader gave it on the 9th of July. It depends upon the Word of the living God reasonably and literally explained. Founded on that, it is not almost, but altogether reasonable. We there see the purposes of God towards a fallen world literally and exactly carried out in the most direct and useful manner. The world had fallen away from God, and God meant to win it back again to Himself from the power of Satan. The Son of God was willing to offer the atonement which should satisfy the demands of the outraged law of God, and that propitiation was to be for the sins of the whole world (1 John ii. 1, 2). But how could it be made known so as to reach to the knowledge of all mankind? By the instrumentality of a race of men whom God would choose, educate, endow, and send forth to preach this Gospel, or good news, to all nations, families, and kindreds of the earth; from whom, too, that Son would spring, as the incarnate God-man. He chose Abraham and Sarah his wife accordingly, in order from that single pair to make, create, and form for Himself a race that they might show forth His praise (Isa. xliii. 1, 7, 21). Israel became His chosen ones, therefore (1 Chron. xvi. 13), and from Judah-Israel the Lord came forth to bleed and die. From Ephraim-Israel there was developed a people fitted to become the evangelists of the world. They were destined to become so after banishment from their land, after reduction to the position of Gentiles in the West, after acceptance of Christ and His word, and after being duly endowed with the qualifications which alone would enable them to fulfil their allotted functions towards the still unconverted world (Isa. li. 1—3).

The following passages, in the order given, suffice to establish these statements. The Gentilization of Israel is predicted in Gen. xlviii. 19, xxxv. 11, and Matt. xxi. 43. Their destined duty of blessing to the whole world, nevertheless, depends on such texts as Gen. xxii. 18, xxviii. 14; Acts iii. 25; and Isa. xxvii. 6. Their location in the West and in islands appears in Hosea xi. 10; Isa. xli. 1, xlii. 4, xlix. 1, and their power as a nation to qualify them for the work, from Gen. xxii. 17, giving them the Gate; Deut. viii. 18 conferring on them the power to get wealth; and Gen. xxxv. 11 granting them a federation of nations, Christian and heathen (as the event has shown), such as the world has never seen before. The acceptance of Christ by Israel to qualify them for their world-wide functions is evident from Hosea i. 10, where they are described as sons of the living God; and from Zech. x. 6—9, where they are spoken of, in banishment, as a redeemed, multitudinous, Christ-remembering, returning people, rejoicing in the Lord. A people so qualified was needed to carry out the Lord's purposes of love and mercy to the back-slidden world, and in the British peoples we have them appearing, answering to the jot and to the tittle in all respects to the prophecies.

Digitized by Google

The Newcastle Daily Leader cannot deny that the prophecies are extant, and that they can never be successfully refuted as spurious and doubtful writings. They stand confirmed by the facts which surround the British people, and point to them as the nation of Ephraim-Israel, whom God chose and endowed to do that very work of love and mercy to the world which He had 4,000 years ago assigned to them. These facts are of more importance than the philological surmises of the late Dr. Andrew Bolton, and will stand the test of critical examination that we fear his will not. The result is that our contention and conclusions, founded on God's Word alone, are not only perfectly reasonable, but sure and certain and undeniable. To the Lord be all the praise!

THE FORM OF THANKSGIVING AND PRAYER, ALSO THE HYMNS FOR HER MAJESTY'S JUBILEE.

On the 20th, 21st, and 26th June, 1887, most of the churches throughout the land, and the cathedrals too, were open for divine service, and there Churchmen, and Dissenters also, came together to praise God for His special and marked blessings vouchsafed to our beloved Queen, "Victoria the Good," and to her people, British-Israel. Among the prayers the following struck us as very Israelitish in its purport and tenor:—

Blessed Lord, the Prince of the kings of the earth, who callest Christian princes to defend Thy faith, and maintain Thy spiritual kingdom; grant that no errors may disturb the peace of Thy Church, nor causeless divisions weaken it. Give unto our Queen all heavenly graces, for the service of Thy true religion, and the hallowing of Thy name among all nations. And that these blessings may be continued to after ages, let there never be one wanting in her house to receive the sceptre of our United Kingdom, that our posterity may see her children's children, and peace upon the Israel of God. Amen.

The framers of this prayer seemed to see that the scene of our spiritual operations in the earth was co-extensive with all nations, for all heavenly graces are besought for the Queen, for the service of true religion, and the hallowing of God's name among all nations. This clearly is an Israelitish blessing, promised exclusively to Israel in Gen. xxii. 18, xxviii. 14, and Acts iii. 25, and we do not see how the State could call upon the people to pray this prayer unless the British were Israel, and the Queen the ruler of the Lord's people! In the singular petition put up at the end of this prayer we have an addition to the Form of Prayer prescribed by the Church for the 20th June in the Prayer Book. There, in the Prayer for the Queen, we have these words set forth: "Let there never be one wanting in her house to succeed her in the government of this United Kingdom, that our posterity may see her children's children, and peace upon Israel." In the Jubilee Form we find that the compilers seem to have become alarmed lest these words should minister comfort to us Anglo-Israelites, and so changed "Israel" into "the Israel of God," referring evidently to Gal. vi. 16 (R.V.). But St. Paul, in speaking of "the Israel of God," was addressing the Galatians, or Kelts, and these were, no doubt, as the epistle proves, the Ten Tribes, then partly located in Galatia, as St. Peter also declares they were, in his first epistle i. 1. 2. If our posterity are to see the children's children of Victoria our Queen, then is that posterity "the Israel of God," or the Ten-Tribed House of Joseph.

Our archbishops need have been under no apprehension! Whether the British be "Israel" or "the Israel of God" the result must be the same. The British in either case are the remnant of Jacob, that is, Israel or Ephraim (Micah v. 7, 8, Hosea, passim).

Among the hymns prescribed and sung at some of the services, notably on June 20th, 1887, at the Victoria-rooms, Clifton, was the following. We wonder those who joined in it, being unbelievers in Our Identity, could gravely conclude the hymn, and did not smile to find themselves using the very words of the BANNER, and declaring themselves to be God's favoured people, the Ten-Tribed Israelites. The hymn was as follows:—

"Shine, Mighty God, on Britain shine,
With beams of heavenly grace;
Reveal Thy power through all our coasts,
And show Thy smiling face.

Amidst our isle, exalted high,
Do Thou, our glory stand,
And, like a wall of guardian fire,
Surround this favoured land.

When shall Thy name from shore to shore,
Sound all the earth abroad;
And distant nations know and love
Their Saviour and their God?

Sing to the Lord, ye distant lands,
Sing loud, with solemn voice;
While British tongues exalt His praise,
And British hearts rejoice.

Earth shall obey her Maker's will,
And yield a full increase;
Our God will crown His chosen isle
With fruitfulness and peace.

God, the Redeemer, scatters round
His choicest favours here;
While the creation's utmost bound
Shall see, adore, and fear!"

God's smiling face is what Israel longs and prays for in Psa. lxxx. 1—3, 7, and 19. Ephraim, Benjamin, and Manasseh, the heads of the House of Joseph, or the Ten Tribes, cry to God to show His shining face to them, and so save them. Verse 1 above makes the very same petition to God for the British congregations at the Jubilee services. Verse 2 is a wonderful one. Why is this a favoured land? How can God be asked to stand in the midst of this our isle, and be our glory? The hymn reminds us here of Isa. lx. 1, 2, 3, and proves that the British must be Israel, since no other nation but Israel is promised the glory of the Lord. In verse 3 we have the Israelitish promise of the propagation of the Gospel to all nations, families, and kindreds of the earth, clearly described, and its accomplishment predicted, what time British tongues "exalt the Lord, and British hearts rejoice" (verse 4). In verse 5 we have the statement that this is God's chosen isle. How did the writer of this hymn know that, apart from Our Identity? Fruitfulness and peace are God's good gifts to His chosen (British) isles, it appears, reminding us of Israel, who are destined to bring forth the fruits of the kingdom, and to "blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit" (Matt. xxi. 43; Isa. xxvii. 6). The last verse of the hymn tells us that God the Redeemer, our Lord Jesus Christ, "scatters round His choicest favours here," in these British Islands. Why should He do that unless we were Israel? And how can Creation's utmost bound take cognizance of that unless we be that people of whom it was said that "the blessings of their father (Joseph) have prevailed above the blessings of Jacob's progenitors unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills" (Gen. xlix. 26)?

On the whole the hymn selected for the meeting preparatory to Jubilee Day was as Israelitish as it could be, and the prayers, as we have also seen, pointed distinctly in the same direction. Let our opponents, and let our clergy too, ask themselves why this should have been the case? We can see only one reason, and that is the reason which explains all such difficulties. This nation is God's people, the lost Ten Tribes; and therefore our Queen has her Jubilee, to thank the God of Israel for His mercies to her; and, therefore, the people who joyfully celebrated it praise God in Israelitish hymns, and ask His blessing in words which presume that the suppliants are "the remnant of Israel."

Digitized by Google

WHAT SOME AMERICANS THINK REGARDING THE BRITISH OCCUPATION OF EGYPT.

A GREAT admirer of Mr. Gladstone addresses us from Liverpool, and tells us he is pained at the way some of our BANNER writers speak and write of his hero, the ex-Premier! Yet writing as a Liberal he believes that in the main the views of the BANNER as to the Israelitish origin of the British are quite correct! This friend sends us a cutting from an American journal (Leslie's Illustrated Paper), which he tells us sees in the Empire of Britain a power which "in spite of itself is extending in all directions," and yet regards the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone as a "Grand Old Man," "an honest ideal statesman" who is fighting "a Homeric fight for justice to Ireland." We are not concerned to deny all that the American and the local friend of the ex-Premier state regarding him. Mr. Gladstone may be "a Grand Old Man," "an honest ideal statesman," and one "fighting a Homeric fight," etc. We retain our opinion that he is fighting under a grave mistake; and honesty of purpose combined with error in principle and object means national disaster and calamity. "The Grand Old Man" proposes to carry out what will surely end in the disintegration of the Empire, and he affects not to know it! We cannot therefore either admire his purpose or his intelligence. What we do rejoice to know is, that his policy, which it is admitted is opposed to his country's, will never prevail; and that he can therefore be no more the leader of his fellow-subjects.

The policy of Britain is "to have and to hold, to take and to keep," whatsoever God gives us, "to take, to have, to hold and to keep," for the Lord Christ's sake and for His Gospel's. She is a prophetic Power, whom God is preparing to oppose Russia in her effort to secure Constantinople. Time is on our side, because God is for us; and as to "retribution," and the hint of retaliation the American gives us, we cannot see where it is to come from, since the Lord of Glory is the Giver of the kingdom and dominion of the whole world to Israel His people, so that they may reduce all the nations to obedience to the Lord Jesus Christ, who is God the Son! Our correspondent from Liverpool clings to his ideal Premier. But as an Anglo-Israelite he ought to remember that Mr. Gladstone, if in power just now, would make short work of Our Identity by dismembering the Empire, separating Ireland from Britain, offending the colonies, giving way to Russia in respect to Afghanistan, and offering God's enemy, Gog-Magog, the occupation of Constantinople, which the Lord, who cannot lie, made over by oath to the afterseed of Abraham, so far back as 4,000 years ago, in Gen. xxii. 17. All this is obviated by Mr. Gladstone's happy retirement; and we for our part while fully recognising his claim to be "a grand" as well as an "old" man, are content he should remain with all the honours such titles confer, so long as the state is not afflicted with his directing hand any longer at all, working the helm of the still older and grander vessel which is God's chosen inheritance and heritage. We give the American paper's opinion unabridged, that our readers may see that unfavourable as the writer's opinions are respecting our nation he is unable to perceive how we can evacuate Egypt, or avoid being in possession of those points of vantage which we call the Gates, in order to prepare for our final contest with Russian Gog for the dominion of the world. The words were these:—

AMERICA—THE EVACUATION OF EGYPT.

It is certain that England will not evacuate Egypt. She did not go there in order to come away again; she went there to stay. Mr. Gladstone was unquestionably honest in his declaration that England would leave Egypt with clean hands; but facts have abundantly shown that Mr. Gladstone is too conscientious to be a typical English statesman. He is rather the ideal statesman, of whom Mrs. Browning had a vision; the man who loves truth and justice, quand meme, more than Shakespeare and Shakespeare's country. He gave up the Ionian Islands to Greece, and earned, in doing so, the contempt of Prince Bismarck; he made peace with the Boers, victorious over England; and he is fighting a Homeric fight for justice to Ireland. His policy is not the policy of England. This is, to have and to hold, to take and to keep, by fair means or by foul.

England has acquired control of the Suez Canal; she holds Gibraltar, Malta, Cyprus, and Socotra, and she has gone into Egypt to remain there. Every Power in Europe knows this, and there is no one of them that will not think several times before attempting to drive her out. Greedy and oppressive as she is, she is a great Power, and will hold at any cost a position she believes to be of vital necessity. She is preparing for the Russian advance to Constantinople; and putting her house in order in the East, if not in Ireland.

Time, she thinks, is on her side; but time brings opportunity to all, and not even the Island Empire is safe from retribution.

So far the American. He sees that having Gibraltar, Malta and Cyprus (the Mediterranean Gates), as well as Socotra, and he might have added Perim and Aden, the Indian Ocean Gates, the possession of Egypt follows as a matter of course, once the plan proposed by our God from the beginning is clearly recognised. Not that we had any such plan when we took Gibraltar in 1704 and fought so hard to retain it in 1779 to 1782. Neither in 1800 when we acquired Malta, or Aden in 1839, did we dream of any connection between these places and Egypt. But God knew! and accordingly, in order that we might hold Egypt with an iron grasp He gave us first Gibraltar, then Malta, then Aden, then Cyprus, Perim, Socotra. Then at last the time had come for Israel to enter into Egypt, and Arabi Pasha appeared accordingly upon the scene to be struck down at Tel-el-kebir in 1882; in order to introduce us, alone of all the nations, as the guardian and protector of Egypt, always so mysteriously connected with Israel and her Return to the Holy Land. We too say that it is certain we shall not evacuate Egypt, convention or no convention; because He who now rules and regulates all that concerns His people is not the "Grand Old Man," standing idly aside to-day save to thwart and contradict the purposes of God, nor indeed Lord Salisbury, nor any other earthly authority whatsoever. God alone rules, directs and guides His people Israel, and therefore we are not concerned that the American journalist calls us a "greedy and oppressive" Power. He would doubtless have been opposed on the same grounds to the Israelitish invasion of Palestine under Joshua. But it was a God-directed invasion nevertheless. And to-day, too, the same Israel is God-directed still! Impelled by the power and the will of God she is in Egypt to-day, and we believe will remain there for ever. To God be all the praise! For by such occupation the kingdom of Christ will be enlarged, and Egypt will become God's "people" the blest nation, one of three, mentioned with such special eulogy in Isa. xix. 20—25.

FRENCH AGGRESSION.

THE late celebration in Paris of the anniversary of the destruc- of the Bastille, passed off quietly and without the anticipated disturbance. It was feared that the 14th of July Review would be made use of by the Communists of Paris to re-enact one of those scenes of civic strife for which the French capital has become famous. The remarks of the Times were positively alarming. In its article published on the morning of the celebration, the writer in that journal declared that there was abundance of evidence to show that this country was regarded by a great number of Frenchmen of the extreme Democratic party with a bitter animosity almost as violent as that felt for the Germans after their successes in 1870. What they believe is this. Germany is too powerful to be injured by the French; but as for Britain, the French of the Democratic classes are quite sure that the invasion of England is an easy task. Napoleon failed, but his idea is declared to be quite feasible now, and our defences are worth nothing. The populace is convinced, it appears, that we could be successfully invaded, and that their fleets and armies could do it.

Digitized by Google

The Times recommends, in the face of such menaces as these, that whatever the result of the celebrations in Paris on the 14th, we ought to take all precautions necessary under the circumstances, and remain like the Germans, on guard.

It is rather a timely circumstance clearly that Her Majesty resolved, as part of the national Jubilee festivities, to review her ironclad and other fleets at Spithead on July 23rd, and thus give an opportunity to our too confident French neighbours, to judge whether or not, in the face of such a gathering of ships of war as that day showed, they would be able as they suppose to "crumple up" our defensive resources as easily as they anticipate will be the case.

Some such attempt would be a valuable help to our Anglo-Israelite teaching and belief. It would show at once to our own doubtful and unbelieving ones at home, that one of the cardinal points of our case is invulnerable. Being Israel, it is one of our chief allegations that God has promised our nation immunity from foreign invasion, and that as the Spanish Armada failed to force our defences, and as Napoleon I. also did his best to land on our shores, but could not succeed, so now an attempt to conquer us by the French would end like theirs in lamentable failure. The reason for our confidence lies on the surface. This nation is the House of Israel, and to Israel God gave the solemn promise recorded in 2 Sam. vii. 10: "Moreover, I will appoint a place for My people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more; neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more as beforetime, and as since the time that I commanded judges to be over My people Israel, and caused them to rest from all their enemies." He has also given to His people Israel, and, therefore, to the British people, special promises respecting war, which it behoves us to remember in the face of such threats as those which the French people are once more in their folly and ungodly misery hurling at us in the most unprovoked manner.

In Isa. liv. 15, it is written respecting Israel's enemies, and all their terror-inspiring threats, "Behold, they shall surely gather together, but not by Me. Whosoever shall gather together against thee shall fall for thy sake. Behold, I have created the smith that bloweth the coals in the fire, and that bringeth forth an instrument for his work, and I have created the waster to destroy. No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper, and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn." The text concludes with the words which are Israel's true defence in all such assaults as those the French are once more contemplating according to the promises and prophecies: "This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and their righteousness is of Me, saith the Lord (Jehovah)."

This should settle the matter! Even if we had no "silver streak"—even if we had not the mighty fleets which the 23rd of July, 1887, revealed to the astonished gaze of the French at Spithead—God is a faithful God, and what He promised to Israel He will literally perform. He promised literal immunity from hostile invasion, and that promise He has kept for a thousand years.

The French do not know that we are Israel, and care less for the Lord's promises to His people. But He is stronger than our ironclads, and stronger than the fleets of all the world besides combined. He is stronger, therefore, than the French and their navies, powerful as they have become, because He is on our side, and He fights with His winds, and storms, and furious waves, His thunder blasts, and fiery lightnings, and can destroy whole fleets of His opponents by just the breath of His mouth. "The sea is His, and He made it." He can command it to destroy the enemy's "Invincible Armada," as He did in Queen Elizabeth's days, and He can do it again in Victoria's "the Good."

Our public writers know nothing of these things, and, therefore, take no account of such matters as the promises and prophecies of God, or of the certainty that He will carry out His purposes, be His enemies who they may. But the faithfulness and truth of God are the very pivot of all our nation's history, past, present, and future; and we cannot afford, as believers in His word, to set aside His pledges, or to despise His protecting love. He has provided for our British safety, and solemnly pledged Himself to give us the means to defy all our threatening foes. The French are now our threateners—but we may defy them in the name of the Lord to hurt us, because He who is omnipotent regards His people "as the apple of His eye," and none can molest, or invade, or conquer them, until they have first dethroned the Lord Jehovah, who ruleth over all. To Him be high hallelujahs from His people British-Israel; to Him be everlasting praise! Amen.

"THE SMALL BAND OF ENTHUSIASTS."

THE Rev. Dr. Hermann Adler, the Delegate Chief Rabbi of the Jewish Synagogues of the Metropolis, stated in his sermon on the occasion of the Jubilee service in the Great Synagogue, Duke-street, Aldgate, that we Anglo-Israelites were "a small band of enthusiasts" who claimed "that the British were descended from the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel." "Never was theory broached," says Dr. Adler, "that rested on a more slender foundation." He admitted, nevertheless, in the next breath that "England had, however, a moral kinship with Israel."

We are not aware what "a moral kinship" between two races can be apart from ethnic relationship, but suppose that Dr. Adler considers that the British are "the spiritual Israelites," while his own brethren, the Jews, are the Israelites according to the flesh. In regard to the question of evidence of course we do not recognise Dr. Adler as a safe judge in matters connected with the Word of God. As "L. P." lately pointed out in our columns, he is unable to see in our blessed Lord Jesus Christ the fulfilment of God's promises to the patriarchs respecting the Messiah. Eyes so blinded to evidence of the plainest kind cannot be trusted to decide when the people of the great King are in question. The claims of the King of Israel are denied by the Jews, and, of course, therefore, the Chief Rabbi is blind to the evidence as it relates to the Identity of the House of Israel, His subjects. We have often gone over the evidence as it bears upon the question of the Identity of the British folk with Israel, and do not propose to repeat the statement now.

We hardly think the foundation of proof can be "slender" when we find that its cogency has been admitted by Rabbi Ben-Oliel, of Rome, and Rabbi Eliezer Bassin, now in Edinburgh, both converts to Christianity, and teachers of the truth, which the Chief Rabbi in London rejects, respecting the Messiahship of Jesus of Nazareth.

Men like Professor Piazzi Smyth, Abbé Moigné, the late Bishop Titcomb, Bishop Helmuth (a Jew), Bishop Bond, the Rev. R. Douglas, and others too numerous to mention, are not likely to have surrendered their judgments "to slender evidence," or to have mistaken "moral kinship" between Israel and the British with ethnic Identity. These men, mostly alive at this moment, believe that the British are the "remnant of Lost Israel" in a very true, literal, and flesh and blood manner, but know nothing of a "moral kinship" between the two races. They have taken up their views after deep, prolonged, and careful study of the evidence in all its branches, historical, philological, physiological, scriptural and prophetical. Many of them have published the grounds of their belief at much length.

Where is the proof that the Chief Rabbi Adler knows anything at all about the subject, or has read a line to justify him in condemning the matter in the off-hand way he has done in his sermon under notice? The Chief Rabbi wisely gives his judgment, but publishes no reasons for it—a safe course, because no one can argue the matter with him, or show him wherein his error lies. By "moral kinship" we suppose the Chief Rabbi meant what the Rev. J. C. S. Kroënig, of Hull, in his famous sermon, asserted, namely, that the British (or "England," as he called them) are the modern Israel, exactly corresponding to the prophecies respecting the chosen race, the Gentile nation, selected in these modern times to represent the House of Israel. For this he finds the authority (which Dr. Adler, of course, will not recognise) of Matt. xxi. 43, wherein our blessed Lord told the Jews that "the kingdom of God was to be taken from them, and given to 'a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof.'" This mistaken view of Mr. Kroënig's, of course, has the slender support of this text, supposing he was right in affirming that the British are a Gentile non-Israelite race. But where can Dr. Adler get his "moral kinship" between the British and the Lost Ten Tribes? There is no Old Testament text which will support the idea of a "moral kinship" between a Semitic-Israelite nation, and the Japhetic Aryan Gentile British of modern times, supposing the latter are what the Rabbi believes.

Digitized by Google

In the absence of any light upon the Chief Rabbi's dictum we must leave the matter as we find it, merely asking our readers to pay no attention to him until at least he shall have shown cause for his opinions, and told us why our evidence has "a slender foundation," and yet what is the nature of the "kinship" existing between the two races?—what, in short, is "moral kinship"?

Correspondence.

A GREETING FROM INDIA.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—I must once more send you a line just to tell you what progress I am making in this far-off land with the history of Our Identity. Since my last letter to you I have been busy spreading the good news of Our Identity with the Lost Tribes of Israel. I have been laughed at by some for entertaining such absurd notions; I have been listened to by others with great interest and attention, and some of the latter have been sent to their Bibles, to search and see if these things were so, and they continued the search, being not a little astonished to find the truths of the Bible so plain, and Our Identity so plainly set forth in the Scriptures of truth. I spent one or two nights with some people of two families, in making plain the simple truths of God's Word concerning Our Identity. I began by pointing out how fully the promises made to Abraham and his after seed had been fulfilled in the English nation. I said that God had multiplied us so rapidly that some of our nation were to be found in nearly all parts of the world, and that I knew of no nation who had multiplied in numbers as the English nation had. Again, I said our Colonies were really nations, so that England had become a nation and a company of nations, according to the promises made to Abraham. They had multiplied almost as the stars for multitude, and have grown into such proportions that their influence was felt over all the world, and in reality we were the head of all the nations of the earth, and always stood foremost in the battle of life to liberate the down-trodden, and to succour and support the weak in their struggles against mighty foes. We were the leading missionary nation, our missionaries were nearly in all parts of the world, and still they were increased yearly, so that we were carrying the Gospel to all nations, even into the dark continent of Africa, and other dark places of the earth that are full of the habitations of cruelty, but which our nation hope to enlighten by the glorious Gospel of God.

Again, have we not lent to many nations, but have we ever borrowed of any? were we not the bankers of the world, and our capital and dominion were so extended that the sun never set on our dominions, and if it were true that we were enjoying all these blessings that were promised to Abraham and his seed for ever, must we not be the descendants of him unto whom these promises were made?

There was not one dissenting voice in the whole crowd, but all acknowledged that the truths were very plain, and that they could not deny a word. I begged them to search the Bible and see if these things were not so, and if they found that these promises as stated in the Bible were being fulfilled to us, the English nation, not to doubt or disbelieve the truths of God's most Holy Word longer. Certainly, I said, we cannot condemn anything till we have fairly and faithfully proved it to be false, but as you have assented to these truths, and declared that you cannot contradict them, I beg of you to believe them, accept them, and no longer doubt the blessed truths of God's Word. It must, however, be well understood that these people were but babes in the Identity question, and some of them, I may say the greater part of them, did not believe in it at all. But these few simple remarks, which are only milk for babes, sent them to their Bibles to see if these things were so, and I do rejoice at this, for no candid reader will be long left in doubt about Our Identity who will faithfully and earnestly search the Word of God with the full intention of finding out the truth contained in God's Holy Book. The reason why so many miss the mark is because they do not search the truth to see if these things are so; if they do search it at all it is with old preconceived notions, and not with an honest intention to find out the truth.

One of my audience who heard me speak is going to travel about 600 miles to carry the good news to her family, and she said she would not rest till all her family are made acquainted with these glorious truths. I have furnished her with all the literature at my command, including the "Fifty Reasons" and several other books I had kept for my own private use, but they are needed now for this new missionary to carry the tidings of Our Identity to her family, and if she succeeds in convincing them of the truth I shall be richly paid.

I thank you much for continuing to send me the BANNER; also I am deeply indebted to Miss Rush for my weekly supplies. The BANNER is read and sought after much by our soldiers. I am often asked for the paper or any other literature on the Identity question. Many of the soldiers have been led to search their Bibles after reading the literature, and I am sure that much blessed truth has been searched out by the above through reading the Identity question.

I fear Ireland and England, too, are in rather a disturbed state just now, by what I read in the newspapers and the revelations you make in the BANNER about the United Kingdom. May the Lord defend our country.

I remain, yours in Jesus,

L. HILL.

Peshawar, Punjâb, India, June 24th, 1887.

A GREETING FROM NEW SOUTH WALES.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—In accidentally looking over the "Fifth Reading Book for Boys" (Australian School Series), I stumbled upon a poem full of blind evidence, the most characteristic stanzas of which I send you, thinking that you might judge them worthy of recopying them in the BANNER.

Praying that God our Father may yet spare you for a long time to fight for Him, and that He may hasten the coming of His kingdom,

I remain, yours faithfully,

CH. GUS. JESSELMANN.

Walla Walla, N. S. W., Australia.
June 9th, 1887.

TRIUMPHS OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

Now gather all our Saxon bards, let harps and hearts be strung,
To celebrate the triumphs of our own good Saxon tongue;
For stronger far than hosts that march with battle flags unfurled,
It goes with Freedom, Thought and Truth, to rouse and rule the world.

It goes with all that prophets told and righteous kings desired,
With all that great apostles taught, and glorious Greeks admired;
With Shakespeare's deep and wondrous verse, and Milton's loftier mind,
With Alfred's laws, and Newton's lore, to cheer and bless mankind.

Digitized by Google

Mark as it spreads, how deserts bloom, and error flies away,
As vanishes the mist of night before the star of day!
But grand as are the virtues whose monuments we see,
These are but as the dawn, which speaks of noontide yet to be!

Take heed then, heirs of Saxon fame, take heed, nor more disgrace
With deadly pen or spoiling sword, our noble tongue and race;
Go forth, prepared in every clime to love and help each other,
And judge that they who counsel strife would bid you smite—a brother.

T. G. LYONS.

A GREETING FROM AMERICA.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—Two years ago God kindly cast your writings on the Identity in my pathway. Having been a constant reader of the Bible for years, it required only a moment for me to see the grand truth of your overwhelming argument. I was converted on the spot, and to-day am a firm believer in this glorious doctrine. The more I study the subject, the deeper I dive into its depths, and the closer I watch the movements on the political chessboard in Europe and Asia, the more am I rooted and grounded in the faith of Our Identity with Israel. God be thanked for this grand and startling revelation.

After my conversion, how plain and clear were the scriptures! how many dark places became light as the noon-day sun over Gibeon! Now we can almost say beforehand what will be the end of any political movement that concerns the Empire of your glorious Queen. I know now to a certainty that the Catholic Irish will never get Home Rule under their present circumstances. I know now to a certainty that England will never lose control over Egypt, nor will Russia ever possess Constantinople. I know now that eventually the Anglo-Saxon race will possess the entire world. Identity tells me all this. We, as Americans, and as the Tribe of Manasseh, do not envy Ephraim in his grand achievements, knowing full well that it is all God's work, and that He chose Ephraim before Manasseh. Yet we are grateful and content in feeling that as Manasseh we are a portion of the whole, and thanks be to God are to be joined on again in the "latter days." Through my Identity glass I can see this now being gradually brought to pass. We are slowly but surely drifting back home, as the prophet foretold centuries ago.

If it will afford you any gratification I would like to say that I have been for the last two years proclaiming the glorious doctrine of Our Identity with Israel, the British Empire being Ephraim-Israel, and the United States Manasseh. All praise to God.

I have engagements to lecture this coming autumn in this and adjoining counties and states on the subject, and intend to herald the glad tidings as long as necessary, or if needs be through life. I find many who drink in eagerly the glad news, and become firm believers. A few reject it with scorn. I am happy to say, however, that these latter are very few.

In conclusion would say, dear unseen friend, that I, as an humble follower in far-off America, wish you God-speed in your noble work, and pray that we may both live to see the accomplishment of all your aims and desires in this direction.

"Saxons everywhere, faithful and free,
Lords of the land, and kings of the sea;
Anglo-Israelites, honest and true,
By hundreds of millions, my word is to you,
Love one another, as brothers embrace,
That the world may be blessed in the Saxon race."

Respectfully and sincerely yours,
D. W. BORDER.

Kearneysville, W. Va., United States of America,
July 10th, 1887.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—Last December (on page 482) a reader of the BANNER in Canada, asked for information respecting the system for stopping the plague of locusts. I have obtained a little information on this important subject, which will no doubt prove useful to many others besides himself.

In Cyprus it appears these troublesome insects cost this country last year over £3,000, and gave employment to hundreds of men.

The locusts march in immense armies, and their course is interrupted by canvas screens placed across their path; the columns mount the screens, on the top of which oilcloth is fixed, which is too smooth to afford the insects a foothold, and they fall back, and seek to escape by a flank movement, when they drop into great pits, the edges of which are provided with strips of zinc. Vast numbers of the locusts are smothered by the surging mass on the top, and when the pit is nearly full the whole mass is covered with earth.

Another part of the work is of a preventative kind. The cases or cocoons of eggs, which the females deposit in the ground, are collected and destroyed, and the estimated number of cases done away with in one year was nearly two hundred and fifty millions. This preventative work is really the most important now, for there is not much occasion for the use of the screens and traps.

The whole of the operations in Cyprus is under the direction of Mr. S. Brown, Government engineer, who wrote a sixpenny pamphlet on the locust war in Cyprus, which was issued in connection with the Colonial Exhibition. The author states that he has ridden across columns of locusts, a mile or so broad and from two miles long, and they clear everything before them in the shape of vegetables.

In the United States the official estimates of the damage sustained by them for several years amounted to ten millions of pounds sterling a year.

In Spain these insects are causing fearful havoc, which the following cutting will show, which is taken from The Manchester Examiner and Times, June 2nd, 1887.

"LOCUST PLAGUE IN SPAIN.

"[From the Daily Chronicle.]

"Madrid, Wednesday night.

"The central provinces of Spain have been visited by so terrible a plague of locusts that whole provinces are ruined. Within the short space of a few hours these pests have destroyed every trace of vegetation, grass, wheat, vines, and olives. Over considerable tracts of country not a vestige of green is to be seen, and the reports state that at times the sun has been obscured when these fearful pests have been winging their flight from place to place. In La Mancha the trains have been stopped by them, and gangs of workmen have had to go ahead of passenger trains in trucks to clear the lines of the myriads of locusts that had descended upon them. In many cases the insects have lain so thick on the metals that trains have not been able to travel faster than three or four miles an hour. The Cortes are about to vote a large credit in aid of the sufferers, and to provide for a means of destroying these voracious swarms of insects."

Hoping the above will benefit some far-away readers of the BANNER,

Believe me, yours truly,
F. S. GANDY.

47, St. Oswald-street,
Queen's-park, Manchester, June 7th, 1887.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—I had lent me a history of England, by Richard Baker, apparently a very old book. I was very much struck by a prayer there offered by King Edward the VI., which, to my mind, bears strongly on Our Identity. It runs thus, and was said by him one hour before his death.—

"O Lord God, deliver me out of this miserable and wretched life; O Lord, Thou knowest how happy it were for me to be with Thee. Yet, for Thy chosen's sake, if it be Thy will, send me life and health that I may truly serve Thee. O Lord God, save Thy chosen people of England; and defend this realme from Papistrie, and maintaine Thy true religion, that I and my people may praise Thy holy name, for Thy Sonne Jesus Christ's sake."

So turning his face, and seeing some by him, he said, "I thought you had not been so nigh."

"Yes, said Dr. Owen, we heard you speak to yourself." Then said the king "I was praying to God: O, I am faint; Lord, have mercy upon me, and receive my spirit," and in so saying, gave up the Ghost, the 6th day of July, 1553.

C. C.

22, Clapham Road, London, S.W., May 25th, 1887.

OBITUARY.—At Chirton, on the 2nd August, John Pettigrew, aged 68, Treasurer of the Tynemouth Anglo-Israel Association, and an ardent propagator of the Identity; deeply regretted.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies " " " 1 0 4
Four Copies " " " 1 5 6
Six Copies " " " 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

A New Work on the Identity of Lost Israel
By the late BISHOP TITCOMB.

Now ready, in Cloth Gilt, Bevelled Boards, Imperial 8vo, Price 3s.; sent Post Free for Postal Order or Stamps.

A MESSAGE TO THE CHURCH
FROM
THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.
BY THE LATE
RT. REV. BISHOP TITCOMB, D.D.

The Kentish Mercury, April 21st, says:—"This book derives a peculiar and pathetic interest from the circumstances that the proofs of its concluding pages were revised by the author during the last few days of his life, and that its publication took place simultaneously with his death. One feels, in noticing a book under such circumstances, a special responsibility, when the author is removed beyond the reach of human criticism of whatever kind. But in truth it is impossible to glance at these pages without being struck by the deep and reverent research into the prophetic Scriptures which it manifests, by the tone of piety that pervades it, as well as the lucidity and eloquence of its style. Nor is it necessary to express concurrence with the views of the gifted and pious author in his prophetic theories to give this praise. Of course with regard to Dr. Titcomb's prophetic interpretations there will be much difference of opinion, but there can be none in the mind of any impartial person who reads this work, either as to the diligence with which he testimony of the prophets has been studied, or the earnestness of the expositor in stating his conclusions. Bishop Titcomb, it is well-known to those who have studied his works, was one of the school of prophetic interpreters who believe that the British Empire, or perhaps, more accurately speaking, the English-speaking race, are identified with those whom we have been in the habit of calling the 'Lost Tribes of Israel.'" [Then follow several extracts.]

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet court, Fleet-st
F. W. Parry & Co., Paternoster-row, and all booksellers.

Price Twopence.

BRITAIN AND PROPHECY.

"Before the heroic age of the Greeks had passed away, God was cradling nations of mighty men behind the Caucassian mountains; these were the Ases, the ancestors of the great Anglo-Saxon people."—H. A. LONG, Glasgow.

BY JAMES WRIGHT.

Read before the Sherwell Mutual Improvement Association, Plymouth. Re-written and read in Belmont Wesleyan School-room, Stoke, Devonport.
Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

Price 4s., Crown 8vo., cloth, pp. 208, illustrated with 15 Woodcuts.

THE TOWER OF EGYPT;
Or, the Types and Chronology of the Great Pyramid. By A. R. G.

In this work the chronology of the Grand Gallery and Ante-chamber passages of the Great Pyramid of Egypt is re-investigated by a NEW MEASURING KEY, based upon the sacred inch-unit, whence it is found that the Pyramid Date for the Second Advent suprisingly harmonises with that deduced by the Rev. H. Grattan Guinness from independent sources.

"We recommend this thoughtful and well-written book to the attention of all Pyramid students and readers of the Banner. . . . We shall be surprised if it is not found at last that this work is a real advance in Great Pyramid knowledge."—Banner of Israel.

LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, PATERNOSTER ROW;
R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., E.C.

SEND US FOUR STAMPS, and we will send you, carriage paid, samples of goods, and guarantee you to earn Five Shillings a day upwards. Satisfaction guaranteed, or stamps returned. This is genuine.—LOUIS H. HART & CO., 126, Clerkenwell Road, London, E.C.

"THE TEN TRIBES."

Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time; and What will be Their Place in the Millennium?

A PAPER read before "The Prophecy Investigation Society" on April 9, 1887.
BY
ALDER SMITH, M.B., F.R.C.S.

LONDON:
R. BANKS & SON, RACQUET-COURT, FLEET-ST.

Price 6d., post free 7d.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.
London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

EDWARD HINE'S PUBLICATIONS
SHOULD BE READ & DISTRIBUTED.
FORTY-SEVEN IDENTIFICATIONS, 6d.; post free, 7d.
CUI BONO? 6d., post free, 7d.
LOST ISRAEL FOUND, 3s. 6d., post free, 3s. 9d.
F. W. PARRY, 29, Paternoster Row, London, or direct of ISAAC LOVELAND, Shoreham, Sevenoaks.

BY REV. HENRY ROE.
(Fifteenth Thousand).

1. Israel's World. Origin and Destiny of British Race, Colonies, and Empire. 2d., post free 2½d. "Worthy of a world-wide circulation." H. B Thompson, Association Sec. 50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.
2. Going to Africa. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.
3. Fernando Po Mission. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.
4. West African Scenes. 2s., post free 2s. 2d.
5. Consecration. 2d., post free 2½d.

50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.
Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; and Rev. H. Roe, Dawley, Salop.

An Elementary Digest or Sketch of the Chief Facts and Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Adapted to the Unlearned and Unscientific 56 pages, Illustrated with Diagrams, price 4d., post free 5d. 10th Thousand.
London: R Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

NON-INTOXICATING BEER
(A Splendid Dinner Beverage)
MADE IMMEDIATELY WITH
MASON'S EXTRACT OR ESSENCE OF HERBS,

Composed of Yarrow, Dandelion, Comfrey, and Horehound. Send 9 stamps for sample bottle, enough to make five gallons, NEWBALL and MASON, Chemists, Nottingham.
AGENTS WANTED. APPLY FOR TERMS.

LIVER TONIC,
GEORGE & WELCH'S,
2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. per Bottle.

This Tonic, which embraces the active principle of the best known Liver Cures, relieves Indigestion and Debility, sharpens the appetite, and corrects all unpleasant symptoms arising from sluggish liver.

Proprietors: GEORGE & WELCH, Worcester.

To be had through all Chemists or by Parcels Post from Makers.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON,
RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

THE LOST TEN TRIBES OF ISRAEL. By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D., Pastor of Union Congregational Church, Brooklyn, New York. Price 3s., post free 3s. 3d.

THE FUTURE OF ISRAEL AND JUDAH. Companion volume to above, By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D. With Portrait of the Author. Cloth, gilt lettered, bevelled boards. Price 2s., post free 2s. 3d.

THE SISTERS OF HARROWDALE RECTORY. A Tale of Great Interest for Young People. By Mrs. M. A. Searson. With double-page illustration of Harrowdale Rectory. Price 2s. 6d., post free 2s. 9d.

THE ANGLO-ISRAEL POST-BAG; or, How Arthur Came to See It. By the Right Rev. BISHOP TITCOMB. Price 2s. 6d. in cloth gilt; paper cover, 1s. 6d., by post 1d. extra.

THE ISRAELITES FOUND IN THE ANGLO-SAXONS. The Ten Tribes supposed to have been Lost, traced from the land of their captivity to their occupation of the Isles of the Sea. By WILLIAM CARPENTER. Price 2s. 6d., by post 2s. 8d.

THE ANSWER TO THE EASTERN QUESTION, With Some Facts Concerning the Identity of the British With Israel. By the Author of "The New Old Story," enlarged. Price 3d.; for distribution, 50 copies, 11s., post free.

CARDINAL PROOFS THAT THE BRITISH Are the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel—the Abrahamic Covenant. By F. W. PHILLIPS. With two chapters by PHILO-ISRAEL. Price 6d., post free 7d.

THE NEW OLD STORY. By "A.E.I." Price 6d., post free; in cloth, 1s., post free.

THE BIBLE ATLAS. To Illustrate the Old and New Testaments. Price 1s.; post free 1s. 1d.

ANGLO-ISRAEL TRACTS. 8 pp. Royal 16mo, on toned paper. Adapted to enclose in letters, and for general distribution. No. 1—12. Half-penny each, 12 copies, post free, 6d. Specimen packet for 6 stamps.

PRICE 4d.

AN EXPOSITION OF JEREMIAH LI.
BY THE
REV. H. MARRIOTT.

F. W. PARRY, 29, Paternoster-row, London.
J. E. CHILLCOTT, Bristol.

Crown 8vo., wrapper, price 6d.

Where is the Firstborn?

An investigation of the British Claim to Identification With the House of Israel. By the REV. G. A. ROGERS, M.A. Edited by his Widow. Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

"Ably written, well edited, and carefully presented to the readers. . . . We wish it a large circulation."—Banner of Israel.
London: Robert Banks & Son Racquet-court, Fleet-st

Wonderful Value by Parcels Post.

WALTER KEAST, 102, Kennington Park Road, London, S.E., will on receipt of Postal Order for 3s. 6d. send a pair of Ladies' High-leg Lasting Button Walking Boots. These Boots are warranted to give complete satisfaction, being sewn, thoroughly well made and very comfortable. Ditto in Oxford Shoes, 3s. 3d. Send number of size or length of boot in inches. Parcels sent daily to all parts of the United Kingdom.
Established 1851.

A BOON TO SUFFERERS.
HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT.
Testimonial
From Miss A. HEYWARD, Peel Villa, 5, Manchester Road, Southport.
"I am very pleased to tell you that I have received much benefit for constipation since wearing your ELECTROPATHIC BELT, and am glad to state I require no medicine, as the Belt acts as a mild aperient."
CONSTIPATION CURED.
Every man and woman suffering from any disorder of the Nerves, Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys, should at once stop physicing, and remit 21s. for HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT (post free) and obtain immediate relief. Pamphlet and Book of Testimonials POST FREE. MEDICAL BATTERY CO. Ltd.
52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.
Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GURST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., NO. 556. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 24, 1887. PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
In Possession of Egypt	341
How the British Penny Vanquished the Proposers of the Decimal Coinage	342
The Presence of the Poor in Israel	342
The House of Judah Walking to the House of Israel	343
Is the Bible Britain's Strength?	344
Mr. Lamb's Efforts in Middlesborough	344
The Emigrating Wandering Race	345
Reviews	346
Correspondence	347

IN POSSESSION OF EGYPT.

THOSE who have seen the admirable cartoon in Judy, of July 27th, 1887, entitled "In Possession," must, if Anglo-Israelites, have remembered our own repeated assertions, that whereas God has, for purposes of His own, given us Egypt, we shall not, as far as human foresight can declare, be ever removed from that land. We are there for God's own strategic purposes connected with the Return of Israel, Judah, and Manasseh to their joint inheritance; and therefore, once in possession of the land of Egypt by the will of God, we certainly shall not relinquish our post of power and privilege there. Judy's idea is precisely the same, and the wonderful, powerful, way the engraver has carried it out is beyond all praise. The picture brings Egypt before us, since two of the Pyramids are depicted in the background, and since at "the Gate" where the British Lion is seated in power, sheathed sword in hand, two sphinxes appear with a smile of satisfaction on their thick NUBIAN lips, presumably at the decision arrived at by the Lion that, in spite of France, Turkey, and Russia, he will certainly remain where he is seated,—viz., in Egypt. The Lion is resting quite at his ease. His massive body and limbs take up the whole of the "Gate" way where be is seated, and the picture tells as plainly as words can do, j'y suis, et j'y reste (Here I am, and here I stay). In comparison with the Lion-headed British soldier, seated in the Gate, the French and Russian representatives look diminutive indeed! To the left there is the frog—a Frenchman, hopping about with vexation. To the right is the "Russian Bear" seated, holding up a toy which represents the Turkish puppet. This is one of the wooden toys which have the motions of life imparted to them by a stick, which is held by Russia, and worked upwards and downwards by her. She poses as a Power anxious that Turkey should have "no Convention"! It is really France's and Russia's game to see us British vacate Egypt, but when we entered into a compact with Turkey to sign the Convention to that very effect, the French, aided by Russia, came forward, against their own interests, and caused the effort to collapse. Nations do not usually act contrary to their own interests; and therefore when we lately saw both Russia and France do so in the matter of the Turkish Convention, we became sure that "this thing was from the Lord," and that He had interfered in Israel's favour to save them from the effects of their own folly in this matter. We perceive that, since the withdrawal of Sir Drummond Wolff from Constantinople, the Sultan is showing signs of relenting. But we do not suppose he will ever be induced in the face of Russian and French opposition to venture to cross their purposes and throw himself into the arms of the British, really his only true friends. The opinion of Judy is that "we are quit of the Egyptian question for some time. We are still in possession, and possession as we know is nine points of the law. We tried for the tenth—but failing, must be satisfied (for the present at least) with the nine." What Judy believed we were to gain by the tenth point to be acquired by means of "the tenth point of the law" we are unable to see. "Possession" is all we require, and the general supervision of the affairs of the country so as to prevent insurrection and misgovernment, and to keep our way to India, and the East and South open at all times for our commerce and our troops. Judy's idea of depicting the British Lion as seated in the middle of a Gate is a very happy Israelitish one. On July 25th, the Globe published the following, which gives us the German or foreign view of the matter. It said regarding—

ENGLAND AND EGYPT.

The Berlin Vossische Zeitung discussing the probability of England's permanent occupation of Egypt remarks, "Egypt is on the way to become, like British India, a trans-marine province on the English model. France will be little edified by British progress in the Nile Valley, and must come to the conclusion that the rejection of the Convention has brought about the greatest advantage to her rival. In the excess of her patriotic sensibility, which reaches its height in the idea of revanche France is blind and deaf to her own interests. Her last threat, in response to the Sultan's communications, has produced an effect the reverse of that desired, for England will settle herself more firmly and unconcernedly than ever in the beautiful Nile Valley, and will henceforth permanently maintain her position there."

So far the German writer. Our own Judy we see has followed on the same lines and given the public the pictorial representation of "England" as a Lion, seated among the beasts of the forest in the beautiful Nile Valley as in a Gate, settled firmly and unconcernedly, and permanently, for the good of Egypt and for the good of the world at large as well.

Digitized by Google

We can hardly go so far as the Berlin paper, in asserting that Egypt is likely to become incorporated into the British Empire. This we do not quite hold. We believe that land will become a Province, blessed by British-Israelitish control and government, but we suppose that it will never be merged into the mighty dominions of Ephraim-Israel. It will be one of the chief of the protected States, God's people, in short, blessed with and by Israel, who is "the third" with Egypt and with Assyria, a blessing in the midst of the land—"Whom the Lord of Hosts shall bless, saying, Blessed be Egypt My people, and Assyria, the work of My hands, and Israel Mine inheritance" (Isa. xix. 24, 25).

HOW THE BRITISH PENNY VANQUISHED THE PROPOSERS OF THE DECIMAL COINAGE.

On the 8th June the London Chamber of Commerce, supported by 68 out of 69 Provincial Chambers, had an interview with the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Goschen. The object was to urge him to adopt a system of decimal coinage instead of the present one in use throughout the United Kingdom. What Mr. S. Montagu suggested to the Chancellor was this:—

"Let the sovereign still remain our standard coin, and let us suppose it contains 1,000 mils.

The half-sovereign would	then	equal	500	mils.
The crown, or 5s. piece	,,	,,	250	,,
The double-florin	,,	,,	200	,,
The florin, or 2s.	,,	,,	100	,,
The half-crown, or 2s. 6d.	,,	,,	125	,,
The shilling	,,	,,	50	,,
The sixpence	,,	,,	25	,,

So far so good. Up to this point we have already a decimal coinage; but in the coins of lower value the difficulty arises, for the proposals of the Deputation require here the creation of some new coins to meet the case. They want a new unit among "the coppers," which neither the penny nor the farthing of our present coinage will suit. Mr. Montagu therefore asked for three new coins to make his system complete: viz., a dime, a half-dime, and the new unit—a mil! The dime would be worth ten mils, the half-dime five mus, and the mil the substitute for our farthing. But where is our present penny-piece in this arrangement?—that coin on which all our transactions are founded, from the threepence which buys an ounce of tobacco to the penny which buys our small roll or our stamp for postage? "The penny must go!" says Mr. Montagu. "It is not wanted in the new system! The half-dime is more than the present penny in value, because it is the fifth part of sixpence, and not the sixth, as, the penny is at present. Four mils or four farthings will not meet the case, for they are less than our present penny, and as nearly as possible equal to the French penny. Twenty-five of the new mils, or farthings, would go to make sixpence, whereas at present twenty-four farthings are sixpence.

The penny, therefore, is the difficulty, and it fights our battle for us and wins the day! We cannot give up the British penny. It is the root of the whole matter, and must not—nay, will not—be abolished. No system will succeed among us which ignores the penny, and denies that it is the sixth part of the British sixpence! The effect on our postage if the penny were abolished would be that the half-dime stamp would be too much to put on our penny letters, and the four mils, or four farthings, would be too little, and would cost the Post Office £1,000 as loss on every £25,000 now received by sale of the penny stamps.

The reason why our Chambers of Commerce desire the change in the British coinage, and would be willing to give up the penny to effect it, is—that they believe there would be a vast improvement in home and foreign business transactions, and the education of the young would become easy in regard to the arithmetic of the coinage. While it is true that a decimal system would be a trifle easier to teach and learn than the present, it is not true that even with the abolition of the penny we should have a coinage identical with those of foreign countries. We should have no coin equal to the French franc. The German coinage is diverse from the French and Italian coinage now, and would not be identical with ours even if the proposed changes were made. There would always remain the difficulty of calculating how many mils would be required to buy three-pennyworth of tobacco, or a fourpenny pot of beer!

For these and other reasons Mr. Goschen was unable to give much hope to the Chambers of Commerce that he could give up our time-honoured currency, and adopt the decimal system advocated. For this triumph, no doubt, under God, we are indebted to the British penny!

The Times of June 10th, while going into the question fully, seems to rejoice that the decimal coinage is not to be forced upon us; but at the same time gives the Deputation from the Chambers of Commerce some advice with which we cannot concur. They should, the writer says, leave the coinage alone, but turn their attention to "our British system of weights and measures!" "These might be simplified with general approval, and with a maximum of good for a minimum of trouble." We hope the Times does not mean by this that we ought to adopt the atheistic earth-born (French) metrical system of weights and measures? If it does, then we can promise the Times that that system, condemned by the Great Pyramid, will never be adopted by God's people Israel! because it is founded on man's, but not God's standards; and therefore will not be received by His people to found thereon their weights and measures.

The Times gave the coup de grace to the Deputation that waited on the Chancellor of the Exchequer in the following words:—

> Mr. Goschen, in reply to his visitors, admitted that they had done something towards making out their case in the abstract. The limitation is a very important one. Before the proposed new system can be brought in, there must be a work of destruction done, and Mr. Goschen, as a Constitutional Minister responsible to Parliament and to the country, will not venture on this unless he has some assurance that he has Parliament and the country with him. A decimal coinage can prevail only by a strong force of popular opinion in its favour. Of this, however, there is little or no sign. The Chambers of Commerce are not so far representative bodies that their convictions can count for much. They must convince the country first, and when they have done this they may return to the charge with good prospect of success.

THE PRESENCE OF THE POOR IN ISRAEL.

There is rising up among us an idea that there need be no poor in the land, and that Christian Socialism, as it is called, requires that there should be equality between Christian men—the rich imparting to the poor, and the poor acquiring from the rich, so that their conditions may be equalised. Such persons point out to us that this very thing took place in the days of the early Church in Jerusalem, as Acts iv. 34—37 describes the matter to us. In reply we have to say that the equal division of property there narrated to have taken place does not appear to have long been the custom in the early Church. At any rate there is evidence that in A.D. 60, or 27 years after, the saints at Jerusalem, had, as a body, become so miserably poor and pauperised, that the Gentile Christian Churches of Macedonia and Achaia had to be called on to make a "certain contribution" for the poor saints in Jerusalem (Rom. xv. 26). The Christian Socialism had been tried and failed. It had probably left the whole Church so impoverished that they required the pecuniary help of the Gentile Church to enable them to exist. The poor are never to cease among Israel, and the statement to that effect in Deut. xv. 11, still stands on record:—"For the poor shall never cease out of the land; therefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt open thine hand wide unto thy brother, to thy poor, and to thy needy, in thy land." It was by the direct Providence of God that it was so, and has ever continued, even to this hour. No Christian Socialism or Communism will ever alter the arrangement—nay, rather, any attempt to abolish the presence of the poor in the land will aggravate rather than lessen the evil which undoubtedly exists. Our Lord recognised the presence of the poor in Israel, and He told us why their continuance among us was needful, in Matt. xxvi. 11; Mark xiv. 7; and John xii. 8. "The poor always ye have with you—and whensoever ye will, ye may do them good." Here then is the fact stated, and the reason for it. God would have the presence of the poor always with His people, because He would teach the latter that they must be remembered and must share their blessings. Those to whom God has given much, must do the poor "good" with their own surplus wealth. To Israel, "God has given the power to get wealth, that He may establish His covenant which He sware to our fathers, as it is this day" (Deut. viii. 18). But He has also decreed, by an appointment which no man may annul, that where the wealth exists and accumulates there the poor shall be present, and shall receive his due share of that wealth. God's blessing follows the distribution of their riches by those who dispense it to the poor, as Deut. xv. 10. declares, "Thou shalt surely give to him (thy poor brother), and thy heart shall not be grieved when thou givest unto him; because for this thing the Lord thy God shall bless thee in all thy works, and in all that thou puttest thy hand unto." The poor must always remain in the land in order that Israel may learn that by befriending them and helping them with the wealth God gives them for this very purpose, the Lord their God will bless them in all their works, and in all they put their hands unto, to do it. We know, by our own experience, and it is a fact which brings also bitter reflection, that the poor abound among our own Anglo-British Israelites. They never can be, and never will be eradicated from among us, because their presence is according to God's ordinance, and an incentive to good, inasmuch as they need our help, and obtaining it, draw down upon the donors God's blessing, according to the Scriptures.

Digitized by Google

Even the miser who miserably hoards up his gold for the sake of hoarding, knows not that he is carrying out God's providential arrangements, for he acts as God's banker for the poor, because he hoards his money till death cuts him off, leaving it "for him that (coming after) will pity the poor" (Prov. xxviii. 8). The heir of the miser's wealth will open the tightly closed purse-strings, and the death of the miserable creature, who hoards his wealth, will be the joy of the poor of the land at last. The question here arises, how it happens that the nation which has the unique blessing from on High of stupendous inconceivable wealth, acquired with "the power to get" it, promised by God Himself, in Deut. viii. 18, is nevertheless the one race of all others which abounds in the very large number of the poor we are called on by the interference of the State to maintain under the Poor Laws of our land. The enigma is explained by the predictions we have alluded to. "The poor shall never cease out of the land," was addressed to Israel, and applied to Israel's habitation during the Old Testament Dispensation. "The poor ye have always with you" was our blessed Saviour's prophetic announcement respecting Israel Christianized. They were ever to have poverty among them, side by side with the most bewildering affluence, the latter being derived from the God-given "power to get wealth" before alluded to. Hence one of the puzzles of the day is cleared up by Our Identity. For it has always been a reproach to our nation, that while the merchants of the British race are princes in affluence, they have not known how to put down the crying shame of the existence of the most terrible grinding poverty, side by side with the boundless and lavish wealth of their own people. Our subject shows why it is so; and what the remedy must be. The rich "must remember the poor" (Gal. ii. 10). The people were created, made, and formed to do so. Israel has "to blossom and bud, and to fill the face of the world with fruit,"—which presupposes the idea that the world has in its normal state no fruit, and but for Israel would remain a sterile desert, as far as we know anything of the subject. Let Israel therefore praise the Lord for His goodness towards the poor in this land, and let the wealthy recollect that "He who hath pity upon the poor, lendeth unto the Lord; and that which he hath given, will He pay him again" (Prov. xix. 17).

"THE HOUSE OF JUDAH WALKING TO THE HOUSE OF ISRAEL."

In the November number of the "London City Mission Magazine" (1886), at page 250, we find the following, which seems to point to a fulfilment of Jer. iii. 18. The House of Judah appears now to be walking to the House of Israel, and taking up their position in the Island Home of the latter. The words are these:—

"THE DISTRICT.

"According to the last census (1881) there were about 18,000 inhabitants in Spitalfields. Of these about 14,000 were Jews. During the last year 12,000 Jews expelled from foreign countries landed in London; 7,000 went to the different Colonies, and 5,000 settled down in London. I cannot state the number of Jews in Spitalfields at the present time, but there must be over 20,000. The new buildings in Wentworth Street and Aldgate are almost entirely inhabited by Jews. The whole square from Houndsditch to Bethnal Green Road is likewise occupied by Jews. We have a little Russia, and representatives from all countries—Roumania, Germany, Austria, Poland, Spain, Jerusalem, &c.

* * * * * * *

A writer on this subject says, "There are plain evidences in the great thoroughfares of the East-end of London, and in the purlieu between Whitechapel and the Thames, that a new invasion of foreign Jews of the poorest class is in progress. Whole families of three generations may be seen laden with baggage and domestic utensils, wandering pitifully about the streets seeking a resting-place, and generally finding it amongst people of their own class. They are for the most part Polish Jews flying from the new development of the Judeatretze which has broken out in Eastern Prussia and Posen. These help to crowd up the neighbourhood, and cause their neighbours to set their faces against the truth of our holy religion; for they say that all their misfortunes have been brought upon them by the Christians."

The invasion of this country by large numbers of Jews fleeing from persecution in the East of Europe is probably only the beginning of the end. The commencement of that "walking of the House of Judah to that of Israel," which God's Word tells us must take place before the restoration of the Thirteen Tribes to their own land. We must wait and see how the movement ends, but it seems to us that if the "great earthquake woe" is to happen soon, the Continent of Europe will be no place of safety for the Jews, but that they will be forced by the very necessities of the case to seek refuge in the only country and empire where there will be then rest for the soles of their feet, by reason of the absence of war.

Digitized by Google

IS THE BIBLE "BRITAIN'S STRENGTH"?

In the "Monthly Reporter of the British and Foreign Bible Society," for July. 1887, on page 114, we find it broadly stated, on the authority of the late Earl of Shaftesbury, of revered memory, that "The Bible is England's Strength," meaning, of course, the strength of the people of Great Britain. The reasons assigned by the late Earl for this assertion are given in his recently published life, as follows :—

THE BIBLE IS ENGLAND'S STRENGTH.

The recently issued "Life and Work of the Seventh Earl of Shaftesbury, K.G.," by Mr. Edwin Hodder, reproduces (vol. iii., p. 464) the following appeal, on behalf of the Bible Society, by its late President:—

"The Bible, God's holy Word, will do its own work, and therefore it is that I urge the Bible Society to put forth its best energies, to relax no effort, in carrying on the work they have undertaken. Ay, the Bible will do its work in another way. It will counsel those who take a dark political view of the present times to look to God for protection against the evils which may be coming upon us. The Word of God will prove itself to be the chief defence of nations, the chief assurer of internal peace, the great bulwark against external danger from abroad. Who can be blind to the fact that there are many who desire the empire we possess? . . . Where, then, shall we look for alliances? Shall we look for merely earthly alliances? I tell you that merely earthly alliances have always been uncertain. They are not only uncertain, but they are feeble and treacherous. If you look for alliances, if you look for strength, I tell you to look here. Our strength lies in that old, effete Book; that Book so full of 'old wives' fables;' that Book which they say is so unsuited to the present generation; that Book which is not equal to the present intelligence of man;—ay, that old Book, that shall be the source of our safety and of our greatness. Amid all the conflicts of the nations that are coming upon the earth, that Book shall be our life, our light, our security, our joy, our pillar of cloud by day, our pillar of fire by night, our guide through all our perils; and it will be found in that great day that none but those who are engaged in this work, none but those who have the Bible in their hands and in their hearts, will be able to meet the great conflict, and stand in their lot at the end of the days."

Surely the late Earl, when he uttered these words, did not mean that the bare possession of the Book of Books was any protection against evils to come upon this or on any other of the nations? The House of Israel possessed the Book, but they knew nothing of its contents as a means of grace, and fell into gross idolatry. The House of Judah were its custodians for hundreds of years. Yet they grew worse and worse, and at last put the Son of God to death. To this hour they refuse its teachings, and despise the gracious Author of the precious volume. The Book was in our own nation's possession for generations, but the people remained steeped in the darkness of Popery. When God gave the Book anew to us in Wycliffe's days (A.D. 1322), the nation still benefited little or nothing by the gift—"the Bible was not England's strength" then! The Reformation put it in its proper place, but again the nation lapsed, and fell into evil ways. The Bible did not give it the strength then that its bare possession is said to afford. Now it is in every hand, its pages are submitted to universal criticism in the most intense and searching light; it is, in fact, this nation's guide and stay; and yet, what is the moral condition of our land as estimated by our clergy and by such of our laity as oppose Our Identity on the score that we cannot nationally be Israel because, as a nation, we are so excessively vile? We are proverbially a drunken race, if these our friends are to be believed! We are becoming idolatrous, they declare, in the matter of the Popish and ritualistic Mass;—we are Sabbath breakers,—approaching nearer and nearer to the adoption of the Continental Sunday, in place of God's Holy Sabbath-day of spiritual and bodily rest. Our national morality is rapidly declining—and in short, so far from "the Bible being England's strength" to-day, "England" is without strength, and is really ready to perish! Such are the opinions freely expressed of those who profess to know. They suggest a doubt whether Lord Shaftesbury was right when he declared that "The Bible is this nation's strength." The Bible is the gift of God to this nation, and just so far as He teaches us nationally His will, and how acceptably to worship Him, by and through the instrumentality of the Bible we are strong. Besides, this nation is "Lost Israel," the Ten Tribes, the House of Ephraim. For us God wrote this Book, which is His Law, and He gave it to us, as Hosea viii. 11, 12; and Deut. iv. 1—8, teach us. Having given us the Book, He Himself instructs us as to its meaning, by His Holy Spirit. "He showeth His word unto Jacob, His statutes and His judgments unto Israel. He hath not dealt so with any nation—and as for His judgments, they have not known them" (Psa. cxlvii. 19, 20), and this is declared in the same Psalm to be a matter for praise to God on Israel's part! It comes, then, to this: that it is not the Bible which is the strength of Great Britain or "England" as men will persist in describing the British. Their strength is the fact that they are the House of Joseph or Ephraim-Israel—the first-born son of the Lord Jehovah (Jer. xxxi. 9). Because they are His sons—the sons of the living God (Hosea 1—10), therefore He gives them the Bible, and having given them the written Word, "He showeth" them, and to them exclusively, its meaning. Our greatness as a nation is not because of our possession of the Bible, but because we are Israel, and because God promised to Israel greatness beyond and high above that of all other nations (Deut. xxviii. 1, 13; xv. 6). Because we are Israel, God has given us wealth abnormal; the Gates, and therefore the supremacy of the sea; a colossal commerce; a Heathen and Colonial Empire, such as the world never saw before; the Sabbath, the ten true laws of God, the love of souls, the evangelizing function, frequent revivals of religion, and among all the rest a very splendid gift, the gift of the written Word containing the mind and will of God, which He alone can and does explain to British-Israelites as a nation, and as individuals. Let us therefore praise the Lord!

MR. LAMB'S EFFORTS IN MIDDLESBOROUGH.

The following bill-poster has been sent to us by Mr. R. Lamb, and it tells its own tale. It shows us that at Middlesborough we have an energetic, able man who is doing what he can to spread the knowledge of our nation's Identity with the Lost Ten Tribes. He purposed to give a series of addresses on the subject, beginning with April 27, 1887, and no doubt will promote much enquiry and discussion in respect to the various matters he means to "talk" about. Mr. Lamb was a frequent Banner correspondent and contributor at one time. Doubtless he is now in a fair way to interest large numbers in his own town, and we wish him all success. The bill was to the following effect:—

"Temperance Hall, Park-street Room (entrance, Baxter-street). The Eastern Question; or, Who is to have Palestine? The Hebrew people were divided into two nations—Judah-Israel, and Ephraim-Israel. We all know where the Jews are. Where are the people of Ephraim? This people comprised the great bulk of the Hebrew race—viz., ten-twelfths of the whole. Dean Prideaux tells us that after the Assyrian captivity 'they soon got into the usages and idolatry of the nations among whom they were planted, and lost their name (i.e., Israel), their language (i.e., Hebrew), and their memorial (i.e., their history), and were never any more spoken of.' The Bible says, however, 'I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen whither they be gone, and bring them into their own land.' The British people Hebrews! The Right Rev. J. H. Titcomb, late Bishop of Rangoon, says of this question, in a work published a few days previous to his recent death, 'It is a nineteenth century revelation.' A series of addresses will be given in the above place, commencing on Wednesday, April 27th, 1887, by Mr. R. Lamb, entitled 'Talks on Anglo-Israelism.' Chair to be taken at eight p.m., by Mr. H. Howe. A collection to defray expenses. Discussion invited. A complete answer to infidelity. A message to the Churches, and demonstration of the cause of our national greatness, and that the British Empire is to fill the whole earth and last to the end."

Digitized by Google

THE EMIGRATING WANDERING RACE.

DR. J. E. TAYLOR in October last delivered a most excellent lecture on Australia in the Public Hall, Ipswich, a report of which, published in the East Anglian Daily Times, of Oct. 21, has been in our hands for some time. We regret our space forbids our publishing the report, which is that of an able, amusing address, full of useful information to intending emigrants, and evidently the statement of one who during his stay in Australia made much of his opportunities, and brought away a multitude of facts. Towards the end of his lecture Dr. Taylor made use of the following expressions, which deserve a place in the BANNER.

No doubt the Doctor was quite innocent of the fact that he was giving evidence in favour of our Israelitish origin. But that he certainly did, as our readers will see. What he is reported to have said was this:—

A thousand years ago our ancestors came to England from across the seas, and they took up what were then the forest-clad areas of Great Britain, which they held until they were conquered by the Normans. Our forefathers were emigrants. The English race was an emigrating race. [Cheers]. England was the mother of the nations, and for centuries the overflowings of our population had extended beyond the seas to form a Greater Britain there. The colonists from Germany, Norway, Denmark, or Holland dropped their languages the moment they came into our colonies; became English, and were proud of the name. As they spread in the spirit of all that was noble and good and true, so we should be every one of us emigrants, carrying with us a better and brighter life amongst men and women all over the world. [Loud and prolonged cheers].

"England," meaning Great Britain, was "the mother of nations," said the lecturer; words which clearly point to the prediction of Jacob in Gen. xlviii. 19, addressed to Ephraim his grandson, "his seed shall become a multitude of nations." "A nation and a company of nations shall be of thee," was the promise of God to the Patriarch Jacob. The fulfilment we see in the "nation colonies" of this country, as well as in the many nations of Hindustan who have submitted to the rule of the House of David as represented by the throne of the Empress of India to-day. Dr. Taylor said that the "English race was an emigrating race." In this he was correct, of course, because they are of the seed of Jacob; and Israel was destined by the prophecies to become, by reason of idolatry, "wanderers among the nations" (Hosea ix. 17). They were to be also scattered among the countries (Ezek. xi. 16), and sifted among all the nations like as corn is sifted in a sieve, and yet not the least grain (or stone) is to fall upon the earth (Amos ix. 9). The British folk, then, exactly fulfil the prophecies, as Dr. Taylor himself clearly shows. One point more in the lecturer's statement requires a word of comment.

He said that "the colonists from Germany, Norway, Denmark or Holland dropped their language the moment they came into our colonies; became English, and were proud of their name." Here is a fact for our philologists! Contact with an English-speaking people has, it is seen, a tendency to make these foreign colonists abandon their own language and adopt English as their vernacular. Two generations, if not one, would suffice to convert such colonists into Englishmen as regards their speech. Yet philology would declare, at the end of the first or second generation (and declare wrongly), that the individuals in question, because of the character of their speech, were of British but not of Germanic, Norwegian, Danish, or Dutch parentage, as would be the real truth. It must not be supposed that the British race is exempt from this tendency when the individual is separated from those who speak his language. Thus we are credibly informed that English men and women who have been forced to settle in the Argentine Republic of South America adopt Spanish as their vernacular, and sink down to the level of the natives there. They have an English physique, English faces, and English complexions, but are utterly unable to speak one word of their own language, having become by religion, manners, as well as by language, as like Spanish settlers as can well be imagined. Philology would pronounce (and wrongly) that these poor people were Spaniards, whereas, while their language and customs are Spanish, their descent is pure British! Language is in short only a test of social contact, but not of racial affinity. We conclude with some further extracts from Dr. Taylor's lecture which are instructive and amusing:—

Dr. Taylor then pointed to a large map of Australia which Mr. Vick put upon the screen, and said that this island continent was really a new England. Its breadth was 2,000 miles, and its greatest length 2,400 miles—a little short of the size of Europe, but whilst there were 200 millions of people in Europe, living chiefly for the purpose of keeping enormous armies to fight each other, in Australia the total number of Englishmen was a little more than half the population of London and its suburbs. We thought of Australia as a small place. A gentleman asked him that day, "Did you meet my uncle in Australia?" [Laughter.] He replied, "No!" There were seven countries in Australia, as distinct from each other in their laws and forms of government as Germany was from France or Belgium. They were English in this respect—that they owned the same Queen, were fellow-citizens with us, and were as proud of being called Englishmen as we were. [Cheers.] In Victoria we had a country about the size of Great Britain, with a million of people, 300,000 of whom were gathered into one city, Melbourne. Then there was New South Wales, the oldest colony, three times larger than the whole of Great Britain, but possessing a population of less than a million. South Australia, which at the present time was the poorest of the colonies because it was the largest, was eight or nine times bigger than Great Britain, and yet had a population only equal to that of Manchester and Salford. Queensland, one of the finest of the Australian colonies, had only 300,000 inhabitants. Western Australia was big enough to put eleven Great Britains within its boundaries, and yet have a little left over for some German Prince—[laughter and cheers]—and here there were not much more than two-thirds of the number of people that we had in Ipswich. Then there were the beautiful islands of New Zealand and Tasmania, the Switzerland of Australia. The chief timber of Western Australia was the jarrah, a great specimen of which might be seen in the Colonial Exhibition. It was of a fine port-wine colour, and bore as good a polish as mahogany. Jarrah wood, like teak, had learned to defeat its entomological enemies, and the vast forests of it, with which the whole of Western Australia was covered, promised, Dr. Taylor believed, to be a richer mine of wealth than the gold-fields of the other Colonies. Adelaide, views of which were shown upon the screen, was one of the loveliest cities it was possible for a man to dwell in. The climate was most delightful, and the heat of a kind that all people could stand well. The Australians had adapted themselves to their requirements by becoming a very sober people. They were tea drinkers, rather than gin or whiskey drinkers, and he believed that in about fifty years' time there would be a strong teetotal society in Australia to put down the excessive tea drinking habits in which the people were indulging. [Laughter.] Round Adelaide were the park lands with the forest trees left standing, and shrubs and flowers, all belonging to the people, who supported it by contributing in the shape of a rate. In towns of not more than 3,000 or 4,000 inhabitants, there were Botanic Gardens—lovely spots where any one could walk or sit down and rest. Every town in Australia had been founded in the belief that one day it would become a big town. [Hear, hear.] Everything was done, not for the benefit of a class, but for that of the people. It was a democratic country, although a lord was much sought after, and a duke was at once made chairman of a company. [Laughter and cheers.] The Colonies existed for the sake of the people, and everywhere there was manhood suffrage. [Cheers.] All could write and read, and as there was a system of State education throughout the seven colonies one could easily understand the feeling that there was a Greater Britain than the old country growing up beyond the sea, and that every man who lived there was a lucky man. [Cheers.] Victoria was the one colony where a man ought to go if he was not afraid of work. The lecturer pointed to a great number of small black dots upon the map of the Colony, saying that they were State schools, with State-appointed schoolmasters, and here the children were bound to attend. One of the most striking facts in his visit to Australia was the train pulling up at some building by the side of the railway to let the children—who all looked rosy-cheeked and healthy, their appearance speaking of mutton chops and good feeding- [laughter]—get down to go to school. They were carried to school free as well as educated free [Cheers]. That was co-operation on the largest scale—government by the people for the people. [Loud cheers.] He had not the slightest objection to that form of Socialism. The country was a forest land, where the trees wanted cutting down, and the bright and cheery atmosphere and the abundance of good food made it impossible for a man not to feel that life was good. [Cheers.] Dr. Taylor then went on to speak of Melbourne, describing the various views as they came upon the screen. It was a city with a wealthy look about it, having a splendid museum and a library of 110,000 volumes, a palatial hospital, and a fine House of Commons. Referring to the forests of gum trees with their healthy atmosphere, the lecturer said the death-rate in Australia was only seventeen per thousand, while in England it was twenty-two and sometimes as high as twenty-eight per thousand. The settlements in the forests were practically State grants. One could buy a patch of land at three farthings an acre and upwards. The Australian horses were stronger than any others, and as to sheep, he saw some whose fleeces would weigh from twenty to twenty-four pounds. Lately there had been a fall in the price of wool, and that was the reason why there was the so-called depression in some of the Australian colonies. While he was at Sydney he saw two emigrant ships come in with a number of servant girls on board. They looked excessively well and healthy, and when they landed they were met by a mob of well-dressed ladies. Ten or twelve of these wanted each girl, and girls who had been earning from £10 to £12 a year in this country were offered £20 or £30. There were some unemployed in the towns where the people were congested, but it was not the fault of the country, but of human political economy. He found some who were professionally unemployed. They were fellows who had disgraced their family here, and who were sent out by their relations because they knew they would never earn enough money to return. There they were disgracing the name of the old country, hanging round the whisky shops, and doing nothing, just as would have been the case in England. The rest of the views were of bush life and of the large towns of Australia.

Digitized by Google

Reviews.

"A Consecrated Life." Memoir of the Right Rev. Bishop Titcomb, D.D.; with an Introduction by the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Rochester. By the Rev. Allen T. Edwards, M.A., Cantab. London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street. Price 2s. 6d.

THIS is the life of one whom all Anglo-Israelites deeply respected and deplore. Bishop Titcomb had been the steadfast friend of the cause they love for many years before he died on April 2, 1887. The narrative of his life and work is told in the pages of this book by a loving hand—by one who was the late Bishop's curate forty years ago at Cambridge, and sat at his bedside the day before his death. The story is simply and affectingly told, and all our readers who loved and valued Bishop Titcomb cannot fail to appreciate the memoir. The Bishop of Rochester has furnished a couple of pages of introduction to the work, which doubtless adds to its value. The Bishop notices our late friend's career at St. Andrew's, Cambridge, where his ministry commenced; then at St. Stephen's, Lambeth; and lastly at Woking. Bishop Titcomb's labours in his native land concluded there. He was afterwards called to a larger sphere of duty as first Bishop of Rangoon, in Burmah, in November, 1877. A return to England, with his dying daughter, took place in 1879, and, after her death, his second departure for Rangoon occurred in October, 1879. In February, 1881, the accidental fall of the Bishop from a ledge of rocks in the road, on his missionary journey to Toungoo, resulted in his return to England, the resignation of his Bishopric, and, after a time, in his employment on the Continent of Europe as "Bishop Coadjutor in Northern and Central Europe," under the Bishop of London. The hard work involved in these new duties was too much for the shattered strength of our friend, and after several continental journeys he resigned his post, and on the 2nd of April, 1887, finished his career upon earth.

The details that this little memoir now furnishes to the readers of the BANNER will prove very interesting, and not the least attraction will be the admirable photographic portrait of the Bishop which appears as the frontispiece. It is a speaking likeness of the thoughtful face we have many of us seen on the platform of the Annual Meeting of the Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association on a recent occasion. When we ask what notice his biographer takes of the late Bishop's Anglo-Israelite views and publications, we are compelled to add that his remarks are most meagre and unsatisfactory. The Rev. Allen Edwards is evidently no believer in "the craze," and clearly did not like the necessity he was under of taking some notice of the late Bishop's views on the subject.

This is what he writes respecting the Bishop's first book, on page 56:—"In the year 1875 he (the late Bishop) published his Anglo-Israel Post-Bag, bearing on the subject of the English nation being found to be part of the Lost Tribes. The book was misunderstood,—it was quite away from his usual style of writing, but as he himself stated, it was not written en serieux. The subject of the discovery of the Lost Tribes, however, occupied much of his thought, but while convinced in his own mind, from the point of view in which he read the prophetic Scriptures, he never obtruded his convictions, nor did he ever in conversation dogmatically assert the fact. His last publication on the subject, 'A Message to the Church from the Nineteenth Century,' a very well-written little book, came out just at the time of his death. He corrected the proof-sheets some three weeks before, and the first copies of the books were sent to him a few days before he passed away."

This appears to be all the notice Our Identity gets in the life of one who was respected by all Anglo-Israelites,—who had written largely on the subject—had lectured and spoken much in the pulpit and on the platform in recommendation of our opinions, and was the honoured President of the Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association. It seems true that the Bishop kept his convictions too much to himself in his pulpit and parochial administrations. But when we are assured by Mr. Edwards that "The Anglo-Israel Post-Bag," which has passed through three editions, "was not written en serieux," but, we suppose, as a piece of huge practical joking, then we must beg leave to differ from Bishop Titcomb's biographer! Never was a man more in earnest than the Bishop was respecting Our Identity. He was always fond of maintaining that the subject was "incapable of demonstration like a proposition of Euclid," and doubtless, by so speaking, he cast a doubt in some minds upon the facts of the case, and upon the nature and strength of his own belief in it. But, without doubt, Bishop Titcomb's writings prove that he firmly held the views enunciated in "The Post-Bag," in "Joseph's Birthright—England's Possession," and in his last publication, to which Mr. Edwards refers in terms of respect and approval, though guarded in character.

We are thankful that Our Identity has had the benefit of Bishop Titcomb's powerful advocacy, and that men who freely accuse us of being "crazy" ones for believing it, can only resort to silence or ignore the subject altogether, when confronted with the fact that such an one as the late Prelate was also not only a believer, but a powerful writer, in advocacy of the views we hold.

Meanwhile, Mr. Edwards' book is a timely little volume, which is sure to interest Our Identity friends, and we have much pleasure in recommending it to their notice. It has been very neatly got up, and beautifully printed by our BANNER Publishers, Robert Banks & Son, of 5, Racquet-court.

"My Jewels"—being Choice Selections from writers of Sacred Poetry, with appropriate Texts from Holy Scripture, arranged for every day. By Sarah Sharp. London: Robert Banks & Son, Fleet-street, E.C. Price 2s. and 1s. 8d., post free.

WE have here a very pleasing little volume by an Anglo-Israelite, and published with a view to bring before the minds of her readers the Lord's office of everlasting High Priest. The antitype resembled the type, and Aaron's chief ornament was the breastplate which contained the twelve precious stones or jewels of the Lord, representing the Twelve Tribes of Israel. Following the teaching of the late Major R. W. D. Nickle in the BANNER OF ISRAEL, Miss Sharp has arranged her Jewels for the twelve months of the Christian year, and has given each month one of them, according to the names of the Twelve Tribes. Thus January is devoted to Judah, as the Jewel Sardius, responding to Love, and God the Son.

Digitized by Google

July falls to Ephraim, whose precious stone, or Jewel, was the Jacinth, meaning "Fulfilment—warmth of divine Love," pointing again to "God is Love." In September Benjamin is remembered as the Amethyst, or ninth Jewel in the Aaronic breastplate,—the last of the third row. The months being so arranged we have the dates throughout the months set out by a few lines of sacred poetry, each illustrated with appropriate texts or "Jewels" from the precious Word of God. Thus, on January 17th, we have such an entry as this :—

"17.

"One above
In perfect wisdom, perfect love,
Is working for the best."

"'The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord.'—Psa. xxxvii. 23."

"'All things work together for good to them that love God.'—Rom. viii. 28."

On July 15th the following appears :—

"15.

"O England, dear old England,
Thy priceless treasure keep;
Thy Sabbath is thy treasure."

"'Call the Sabbath a delight . . . . not finding thine own pleasure.'—Isa. lviii. 13."

"'The Son of man is Lord also of the Sabbath.'—Luke vi. 5."

Many of these quotations from sacred poetry and the Holy Scriptures are, as the authoress says, "costly gems," "a costly framework of the words of Holy Scripture—apples of gold in pictures of silver" (Prov. xxv. 11). Miss Sharp tells us, in her introduction, that she has written her book "especially in connection with the glorious truth which is now so widely taught—namely, that we are a portion of that chosen people who were so carefully placed and represented in Aaron's breastplate, selected by God Himself as His Jewels of delight."

We are glad to see that our authoress recognises the glorious fact that the chief of all the promises to Israel was that she "was to be the honoured vessel used by God to publish good tidings, and to take the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ unto the uttermost part of the earth" (Acts i. 8). To all nations, families, and kindreds of the earth, Israel was to become a blessing under the Christian dispensation, and therefore now. The comfort and refreshment of that thought are brought out clearly by the large number of passages of God's Word which our authoress has collected in this little book. On page 82, in dealing with Ephraim (July), a note appears, which is of value, and reads as follows :—

"'Ephraim is My firstborn.'—Jer. xxxi. 9."

"'Under the head of Ephraim the Ten-Tribed House of Israel is signified."

"THE BRITISH NATION AND HER COLONIES,

we believe, now represent

"THE HOUSE OF ISRAEL.

"The meaning of the word Ephraim is, one that brings forth fruit, that grows; fit emblem of the British Empire and her 'company of nations' (Gen. xlviii. 19)."

"'Let them grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth' (v. 16)."

"'They are the ten thousands of Ephraim, and they are the thousands of Manasseh' (Deut. xxxiii. 17)."

"'Converted, Ten-Tribed Israel shall blossom, and bud, and fill the face of the earth with fruit' (Isa. xxvii. 6). [Note.—By God's appointment our nation fulfils this prophecy through Evangelising Societies on an enormous scale, and the gift of the Bible, now translated into 260 different languages, is another proof that we are Israel, whose labours He blesses.]"

Many of Miss Sharp's quotations from the Word bear directly and fully upon the subject of Our Identity, and we have no doubt that, in consequence, her book will, in its measure, further our cause, and bring it into contact with persons whom we could not reach with our own efforts in the BANNER. Such a notice is reserved for December 31st, where we read thus:—

"31.

"God shall gather those that wandered
When they hear the trumpet's sound;
They shall join the sacred standard,
They shall come and flock around.
He shall save them,
They shall be with glory crowned."

"'Sing with gladness for Jacob, and shout among the chief of the nations; publish ye, praise ye, and say, O Lord, save Thy people, the remnant of Israel.'—Jer. xxxi. 7."

"'Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people.'—Deut. iv. 6."

"'Fear not; I am the first and the last . . . . I am alive for evermore. Amen.'—Rev. i. 17, 18."

"Let all the world in every corner sing
My God and King. Hallelujah!"

We like the tone and spirit which runs through Miss Sharp's "Jewels." We trust our readers will admire and buy the book, and keep it by them. For it begins with "The Blood," and ends with "Praise to the Lord our God."

The Royal Album of Great Names. By Charlotte Louisa Fewkes. London: Eyre and Spottiswoode, Great New-street, Fetter-lane, E.C.

THIS is a collection of acrostics addressed to the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Princess, and many other great ones, including even John Brown, Mr. Spurgeon, and Mr. Gladstone. The object of the book is stated in the preface to be the dissemination of the knowledge of the good tidings of the Identity of the British people with the Lost Ten Tribes, and to teach men to love one another. These objects are very praiseworthy no doubt, and they should be the aim of the BANNER as well of all the readers of it. But whether the purpose of the authoress is gained by the publication of short sonnets addressed to great names in an acrostic form is what our readers must learn for themselves. We cannot say we are very favourable to the plan Miss Fewkes has adopted to bring Our Identity to the notice of the "great names" she has addressed; but we suppose that she has received encouragement to make the effort or it would not have been done. We wish Miss Fewkes all success, because she is a zealous Anglo-Israelite; but we should have been better pleased had she left the muses to themselves and done battle on our side in plain prose, which "small names" as well as "great" ones would have enjoyed in common.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—When the Rev. Dr. Adler, the Chief Rabbi, as I observe in the Times of to-day, deems it desirable to warn his co-religionists that there exists in this great Empire "a band of enthusiasts who claim that they are descended from the lost Ten Tribes of Israel," and which he thinks "could not rest upon more slender foundation than he conceives they have for the belief," I think Anglo-Israelites may take courage in that "the dry bones" of this Jewish House of Israel is showing symptoms of life (Ezek. xxxvii.)—even coming to, and "walking to, or with" their brethren of the other Christian House of their brethren (Jeremiah iii. 18). But leaving this subject for the present, what I desire to submit to you and others of the writers and thinkers more devoted to the entirety of God's Word is, "Who is the king, that in Jeremiah xxiii. 5, 6 (Revised Version), shall reign as king, and deal wisely, and shall execute judgment and justice in the land, and in whose days Judah shall be saved; and Israel shall dwell safely: and his name whereby he shall be called,—The Lord is our righteousness?" True, this may be fulfilled in our Lord Jesus Christ, in Gospel days; but I ask, does not the context, in connection with your increasing knowledge of prophecy, and that of others, see more in the passage than that? Israel, as we believe now, to a great extent, truly "dwells safely," as was remarkable in yesterday's Jubilee day, as regards this nation. But, Judah is yet to "be saved," which necessarily implies union with us as a Christian nation. "One stick" (Ezek. xxxvii. 20—23). Having then this hope—when we see these wonderful works of God in the Anglo-Saxons in our day, may not we hope that our gracious and good Queen, or at least her son, may be the Ruler designated "The Lord is our Righteousness."

I am, dear Sir,
Yours truly,
CHARLES J. HADFIELD, Colonel.

Lichfield, 22nd June, 1887.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

WANTED, a SITUATION by an Anglo-Israelite, as GROOM and GARDENER. Total Abstainer. Good references. Address—A. B., Bepton, near Midhurst, Sussex.

A New Work on the Identity of Lost Israel
By the late BISHOP TITCOMB.

Now ready, in Cloth Gilt, Bevelled Boards, Imperial 8vo, Price 3s.; sent Post Free for Postal Order or Stamps.

A MESSAGE TO THE CHURCH
FROM
THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.
BY THE LATE
RT. REV. BISHOP TITCOMB, D.D.

The Kentish Mercury, April 21st, says:—"This book derives a peculiar and pathetic interest from the circumstances that the proofs of its concluding pages were revised by the author during the last few days of his life, and that its publication took place simultaneously with his death. One feels, in noticing a book under such circumstances, a special responsibility, when the author is removed beyond the reach of human criticism of whatever kind. But in truth it is impossible to glance at these pages without being struck by the deep and reverent research into the prophetic Scriptures which it manifests, by the tone of piety that pervades it, as well as the lucidity and eloquence of its style. Nor is it necessary to express concurrence with the views of the gifted and pious author in his prophetic theories to give this praise. Of course with regard to Dr. Titcomb's prophetic interpretations there will be much difference of opinion, but there can be none in the mind of any impartial person who reads this work, either as to the diligence with which he testimony of the prophets has been studied, or the earnestness of the expositor in stating his conclusions. Bishop Titcomb, it is well-known to those who have studied his works, was one of the school of prophetic interpreters who believe that the British Empire, or perhaps, more accurately speaking, the English-speaking race, are identified with those whom we have been in the habit of calling the 'Lost Tribes of Israel.'" [Then follow several extracts.]

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet court, Fleet-st F. W. Parry & Co., Paternoster-row, and all booksellers.

Price Twopence.

BRITAIN AND PROPHECY.

"Before the heroic age of the Greeks had passed away, God was cradling nations of mighty men behind the Caucassian mountains; there were the Axes, the ancestors of the great Anglo-Saxon people."—H. A. LONG, Glasgow.

BY JAMES WRIGHT.

Read before the Sherwell Mutual Improvement Association, Plymouth. Re-written and read in Belmont Wesleyan School-room, Stoke, Devonport.
Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

BY REV. HENRY ROE.
(Fifteenth Thousand).

1. Israel's World. Origin and Destiny of British Race, Colonies, and Empire. 2d., post free 2½d. "Worthy of a world-wide circulation," H. B. Thompson, Association Sec. 50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.
2. Going to Africa. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.
3. Fernando Po Mission. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.
4. West African Scenes. 2s., post free 2s. 2d.
5. Consecration. 2d., post free 2½d.

50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.
Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; and Rev. H. Roe, Dawley, Salop.

"THE TEN TRIBES."

Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time; and What will be Their Place in the Millennium?

A PAPER read before "The Prophecy Investigation Society" on April 9, 1887,
BY
ALDER SMITH, M.B., F.R.C.S.

LONDON:
R. BANKS & SON, RACQUET-COURT, FLEET-ST.

Price 6d., post free 7d.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

The History of the House of Israel; How they were Lost, and How they were Found. Told for the Children. Price 6d., cloth 1s.; post free, 7d. and 1s. 1d. Fourth Edition. Eleventh thousand.

Our Identity with the House of Israel. Price 4d. Reprinted from "Clifton Chronicle Letters'
London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

Crown 8vo., wrapper, price 6d.

Where is the Firstborn?

An investigation of the British Claim to Identification With the House of Israel. By the REV. G. A. ROGERS, M.A. Edited by his Widow. Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

"Ably written, well edited, and carefully presented to the readers. . . . We wish it a large circulation."—Banner of Israel.

London: Robert Banks & Son Racquet-court, Fleet-st.

ETHELINE

A New and most effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

SEND US FOUR STAMPS, and we will send you, carriage paid, samples of goods, and guarantee you to earn Five Shillings a day upwards. Satisfaction guaranteed, or stamps returned. This is genuine.—LOUIS H. HART & CO., 126, Clerkenwell Road London, E.C.

NON-INTOXICATING BEER
(A Splendid Dinner Beverage)
MADE IMMEDIATELY WITH MASON'S EXTRACT OR ESSENCE OF HERBS,

Composed of Yarrow, Dandelion, Comfrey, and Horehound. Send 9 stamps for sample bottle, enough to make five gallons, NEWBALL and MASON, Chemists, Nottingham.

AGENTS WANTED. APPLY FOR TERMS.

LIVER TONIC,
GEORGE & WELCH'S,
2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. per Bottle.

This Tonic, which embraces the active principle of the best known Liver Cures, relieves Indigestion and Debility, sharpens the appetite, and corrects all unpleasant symptoms arising from sluggish liver.

Proprietors: GEORGE & WELCH, Worcester.

To be had through all Chemists or by Parcels Post from Makers.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON,
RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

THE LOST TEN TRIBES OF ISRAEL By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D., Pastor of Union Congregational Church, Brooklyn, New York. Price 3s., post free 3s. 3d.

THE FUTURE OF ISRAEL AND JUDAH. Companion volume to above, By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D. With Portrait of the Author. Cloth, gilt lettered, bevelled boards. Price 2s., post free 2s. 3d.

THE SISTERS OF HARROWDALE RECTORY. A Tale of Great Interest for Young People. By Mrs. M. A. Searson. With double-page illustration of Harrowdale Rectory. Price 2s. 6d., post free 2s. 9d.

THE ANGLO-ISRAEL POST-BAG; or, How Arthur Came to See It. By the Right Rev. BISHOP TITCOMB. Price 2s. 6d. in cloth gilt; paper cover, 1s. 6d., by post 1d. extra.

THE ISRAELITES FOUND IN THE ANGLO-SAXONS. The Ten Tribes supposed to have been Lost, traced from the land of their captivity to their occupation of the Isles of the Sea. By WILLIAM CARPENTER. Price 2s. 6d., by post 2s. 8d.

THE ANSWER TO THE EASTERN QUESTION. With Some Facts Concerning the Identity of the British With Israel. By the Author of "The New Old Story," enlarged. Price 3d.; for distribution, 50 copies, 11s., post free.

CARDINAL PROOFS THAT THE BRITISH Are the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel—the Abrahamic Covenant. By F. W. PHILLIPS. With two chapters by PHILO-ISRAEL. Price 6d., post free 7d.

THE NEW OLD STORY. By "AEL." Price 6d., post free; in cloth, 1s., post free.

THE BIBLE ATLAS. To Illustrate the Old and New Testaments. Price 1s.; post free 1s. 1d.

ANGLO-ISRAEL TRACTS. 8 pp. Royal 16mo., on toned paper. Adapted to enclose in letters, and for general distribution. No. 1—12. Half-penny each, 12 copies, post free, 6d. Specimen packet for 6 stamps.

An Elementary Digest or Sketch of the Chief Facts and Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Adapted to the Unlearned and Unscientific 56 pages, Illustrated with Diagrams, price 4d., post free 5d. 10th Thousand.
London: R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

£500 TO BE GIVEN AWAY.

10,000 SUITES OF WEST'S PATENT 18 CT. GOLD TOP STUDS, and Pair of Self-acting Spring Solitaires to match. In elegant leather and plush lined cases. SUITABLE FOR LADY or GENTLEMAN.

10,000 Government Hearthrugs,

6 ft. long, 3 ft. wide, exquisite designs—viz., Fern and Oak-leaves, Flowers, Grapevine, Cat and Kittens, Lions, Tigers, Horses, Dogs and Deer. Suitable for Dining or Drawing-room, Parlour, Bed-room, or Kitchen. SELLING IN THOUSANDS. 2s. 6d. or 32 stamps, or two for 4s. 6d.; or with HEAVY LINOLEUM BACKS, 3s. 6d. each, or two for 6s. 6d. Sent free to any part of the country.

Note.—Every Purchaser of a Hearthrug this week will receive one of the above ELEGANT FREE PRESENTS. P.O. Orders to be made payable at Low Hill District Post Office, and all letters addressed—
J. WATTS, 113, BRUNSWICK ROAD, LIVERPOOL.

£500 TO BE GIVEN AWAY.

Wonderful Value by Parcels Post.

WALTER KEAST, 102, Kennington Park Road, London, S.E., will on receipt of Postal Order for 3s. 6d. send a pair of Ladies' High-leg Lasting Button Walking Boots. These Boots are warranted to give complete satisfaction, being sewn, thoroughly well made and very comfortable. Ditto in Oxford Shoes, 3s. 3d. Send number of size or length of boot in inches. Parcels sent daily to all parts of the United Kingdom.
Established 1851.

A BOON TO SUFFERERS.
HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT.
Testimonial
From Miss J. HOULDSWORTH, Rozelle, Ayr, N.B.
"I am glad to be able to tell you that the HARNESS' ELECTRIC BATTERY BELT has been very beneficial in strengthening the system generally, as well as instrumental in relieving the Neuralgic pains from which I have suffered.

NEURALGIA & DEBILITY.

Every man and woman suffering from any disorder of the Nerves, Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys, should at once stop physicing, and remit 5s. for HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT (post free) and obtain immediate relief. Pamphlet and Book of Testimonials POST FREE. MEDICAL BATTERY CO. Ltd.
52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.
Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GURRY & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 24, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."
(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 557. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 31, 1887. PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
The Bitterness of Invasion, and the Possibility of National Disaster	349
The "Seven Times" of Israel's Punishment, and "The Times of the Gentiles." By George Nelson Walsh.—Part I.	350
Imperial Federation as Approved in Melbourne	351
The New Factor in American Politics. The British Vote. By John S. Anderson.	352
Mediæval Sculpture. By Professor Middleton.	352
Ancient Watchmen Interviewed. By J. G. Taylor. Part I.	352
The True Cause of Britain's Greatness	353
England's Destiny, by the Rev. J. R. Purcell, M.A. (Rector of Eastwick, Harlow, Essex)	354
Correspondence	355

THE BITTERNESS OF INVASION, AND THE POSSIBILITY OF NATIONAL DISASTER.

THERE have been, as we all know, a series of naval manœuvres in connection with the Jubilee Naval Review, in which part of the British Fleet acted as the defenders of our land, and part as an attacking squadron endeavouring to show how easily the invasion of Britain could be accomplished, and irreparable damage occasioned to our great maritime ports by an enemy's fleet, successful for a few hours in evading our defending squadrons, or victorious in a decisive naval combat. The results of the evolutions and experiments which have taken place seem to be that even when a British fleet is engaged in defending our shores, a hostile fleet is quite capable of breaking down our defence, capturing our great cities, and holding London to ransom! It is quite evident that Falmouth, for instance, was captured by the enemy, that Liverpool was destroyed, and the Thames entered by the enemy and held quite long enough to make it most serious for the metropolis.

As the Standard remarked on the 5th August: "It is difficult to contemplate with anything like complacence the probable result of the capture of an English town, or, still worse, the entrance of an enemy's ship into the Thames. . . . Proof has now been afforded that these things are both possible and probable, and what is more, that these events have happened when the defending fleets were ready for and expecting an invasion."

It is quite possible, then, that, humanly speaking, in spite of our grand naval strength, our boasted ironclads, and the Naval Review, a resolute enemy may humble us before the world, put London to a ransom, and reduce Liverpool to ashes. We are heartily glad it is so! We rejoice to have it proved that our navy is no real defence to us, and that without the promises of God, and without the defence He has provided for us, we have no strength among the nations, but are as weak as they. No doubt the late experiments and manœuvres were sham fights and sham attacks. But it is clear that the strong British Fleet, commanded by a skilful admiral, was unable to prevent an inferior fleet, unaided, as the other was aided, by the signalling resources of the country, from entering Falmouth and capturing it, and sailing up the Thames and threatening to set London on fire!

These are facts, and there is no reason but Our Identity and the promises of God to Israel to prevent the proved possibilities from becoming horrible and grave realities to our national undoing. But here Our Identity interposes, and tells us that the thing contemplated is impossible, not because of the broken reed of the British Fleet, but because God has promised this thing shall not happen to His people Israel, and the British are Israel. He has declared in Isa. lx. 11, concerning Israel's Gates or sea ports: "Thy Gates also shall be open continually; they shall not be shut day nor night, that men may bring unto thee the wealth of the nations, and their kings led with them." The guarantee that God gives us, therefore, makes our national position sure, whatever the naval manœuvres tell us. They say our forts can be blockaded, closed and ruined. God's Word, on the contrary, declares they shall be "open continually," nay, "they shall not be shut day nor night"; and why? That men—the outside Gentile non-Israelite nations—may bring unto us, through those very "Gates," the wealth of the nations. Here the children of wickedness, that is, the enemies of Israel, shall afflict them no more, because these Isles of the West are the "appointed place" set apart for God's people Israel, where He has planted them that they may move no more (2 Sam. vii. 10). These promises suffice, and if accepted and believed by our nation would lead us to regard with great indifference the so-called discouraging results of the late naval manœuvres, because we should then see that, come what will, our country, her home ports, and her maritime cities, towns, and hamlets, are absolutely safe under the guarantee of God Himself, and our vast armour-clad fleets will, in case of danger, be liberated from the anxious duty of defending our coasts and Gates, and so be free to attack the enemy in their ports, or engage her fleets and destroy them, before they can approach to do our commerce harm.

Such views as these, of course, require strong faith, and real, solid, firm belief in the promises of God to Israel, as well as the assurance that the British are they. Our subject strives to convince the people of these realms that the Identity of the British with the Lost Tribes is a proved fact. It is one, therefore, which carries with it enormously important national consequences, giving the proper answer to the Cui bono? question. For, if we believe, the naval manœuvres will fail to bring anxiety to us as a nation by reason of the perils they are said to indicate to our very existence as a people, and we shall then see that even if our pessimists be right, and the destruction of our ports is now, humanly speaking, a possibility, in the face of our late experiences, yet that the defence the ships certainly can afford us will make our shores invulnerable, when to their power is added the shield of the protection of the Lord God of Israel, which we see is our inheritance, against all the efforts of God's enemies and ours, enemies who have no such ally as the Almighty Arm of Omnipotence to help them as He aids us: "For their rock is not as our Rock; even our enemies themselves being judges" (Deut. xxxii. 31).

Digitized by Google

We see that the Times correspondent claims victory for the defending force as regards London and the Thames, and as to Falmouth states that it was outside the limit of operations, and therefore no one tried to stop the attacking squadron going there. However all this may be, we beg our readers to remember that the British Navy has its work to do in God's hands; but that He never said it should successfully defend our British Gates, only that He would, on the contrary, keep them open for us Himself. To Him be all the thanks, and from Israel all the praise!

THE "SEVEN TIMES" OF ISRAEL'S PUNISHMENT AND "THE TIMES OF THE GENTILES."

By Geo. Nelson Walsh.

PART I.

"And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of His Christ; and He shall reign for ever and ever" (Rev. xi. 15).

There is a considerable difference of opinion amongst Biblical students with respect to the dates which mark the commencement and termination of Israel's Era of Punishment, but there is none, so far as I am aware, as to the fact itself. Some hold that, as the downfall of the sister kingdoms of Israel and Judah was accomplished in several progressive stages, so the Punitive era of "Seven Times" duration (Lev. xxvi. 21—28), to which, for their transgressions, they were condemned, should likewise be reckoned from an equal number of starting points, and close, of course, at as many corresponding dates; each stage, from beginning to finish, spanning an era of 2,520 years. To this opinion I am quite disposed to give my assent, having indeed some years ago independently arrived at the same conclusion. Some there are also who maintain that the period designated "Seven Times," and meaning, as all students of prophecy agree, 2,520 years, should be measured in solar, calendar, and also lunar years, thereby multiplying the number of terminal points threefold. This idea does not commend itself to my judgment; for it appears to me somewhat unreasonable to suppose that the sacred year was a year of variable lengths, as its result would certainly be to import an element of bewilderment, confusion, and doubt, into all chronological questions connected with Old Testament history, without producing any apparent corresponding advantages. Such being the case, it becomes needful to decide which of the three periods the prophets and writers of sacred history had in their minds when they translated their divine revelations into language, whether an astronomical year of lunar or solar dimensions, or a fixed arbitrary term of 360 days, whose duration is about midway between that of the other two.

Now there is no text, quotation, or expression to be found in the whole of the canonical writings, I feel sure, which gives countenance to the belief that the Biblical year is either a solar or lunar one. Those however who contend that the sacred year is a 360 day term or calendar year are not left without clear and positive evidence in support of their views. This evidence is of three distinct kinds: (a) The months of Scripture contained thirty days each, this is clearly proved by a reference to Gen. vii. 2—24 and viii. 3, 4. (b) The word "time," when used prophetically, means 360 years, and therefore a year must mean 360 days, as a "time" is a year of years. (c) The prediction of Daniel that sixty-nine "weeks" should elapse from the issuing of the decree to build the walls of Jerusalem unto the "cutting off" of Messiah is exactly fulfilled by this method of reckoning, and by no other. We conclude, therefore, that the year of Scripture is a calendar year; and having settled this point we will now indicate what I believe to be the chief stages in the dissolution of the twin kingdoms of Judah and Israel, merely premising that the dates hereafter attached to the various epochs, are in all cases in accordance with those given in "Israel's Chronological Chart."

The several steps, leading in a downward course to the complete overthrow of Hebrew nationality, and so far as Ten-Tribed Israel is concerned, to the blotting out of her name, for "Seven Times," from the page of history, may be regarded as six in number, whose character and place in the chronological records, together with the changes and events which signalise the expiration of each particular period may be illustrated in the following manner:—

	Epoch in Israel's History.		Antithesis in English History.
Ten-Tribed Israel, the British.	Separation B.C. 954-5.	2,484 Solar years. / 2,520 Calendar years.	Reformation, A.D. 1529.
	Disruption, B.C. 727.	2,484 Solar years. / 2,520 Calendar years.	Expansion, A.D. 1757.
	Degradation. B.C. 670.	2,484 Solar years. / 2,520 Calendar years.	Emancipation, A.D. 1815.
	Obliteration, B.C. 636-7.	2,484 Solar years. / 2,520 Calendar years.	Manifestation, circa A.D. 1848.
Two-Tribed Israel, the Jews.	Expatriation, B.C. 607.	2,484 Solar years. / 2,520 Calendar years.	Appropriation, A.D. 1878.
	Desolation, B.C. 596.	2,484 Solar years. / 2,520 Calendar years.	Restoration? A.D. 1889

1. The first of the prophetic periods on this list begins with the separation of the Twelve Tribes in the days of Rehoboam into two kingdoms, and ends with the Reformation under Henry VIII., a movement which did more to strengthen and consolidate this empire, and to bind it together in the bonds of brotherhood, than all else besides.

2. The next stage of decay is marked by the conquest of Samaria, in the year B.C. 727, by Shalmanezer, King of Assyria, and is most remarkable from the fact that from this date the disintegration of both kingdoms progressed uninterruptedly, with slow but certain steps; the gradual weakening of Judah and extinction of Israel, proceeding side by side, with stern, relentless, and unvarying determination—the conclusion of the era being signalised, in contrast, by an extraordinary expansion of England's greatness in the addition to her possessions of the first and most important of all her territorial acquisitions —the Indian Empire.

3. Although Israel had been terribly shaken by the blows dealt her by the conquering sword of the Assyrian monarch, she had not yet suffered the degradation of being removed bodily from her place. Now, however, we have reached the time when (in fulfilment of the prophecy (Isa. vii. 8), delivered about the year B.C. 735, that "within threescore and five years shall Ephraim be broken, that it be not a people.") Israel's humiliation was to be completed by their deportation as slaves to the lands of Assyria. The terminal epoch of the "Seven Times" of which this distressing state of affairs was the commencement being fittingly commemorated by the signal victory of Waterloo, June 18th, 1815, since which date British Israel has been emancipated, once and for ever, from all further fear of Gentile supremacy.

Digitized by Google

4. This Punitive era extends from B.C. 637 to A.D. 1848, or thereabouts, and is specially important from its dual character, having reference both to the long period of Israel's burial in the graves of oblivion, and also to the "Times" of Gentile domination, of which more anon.

The last remnant of Ten-Tribed Israel had been settled in Halah, and in Habor, by the river of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes, about a third of a century, when the break up of the proud, and at one time invincible Assyrian Empire was brought about by the defection of Nabopolassar, Satrap of Babylon; who, being reinforced with the help of Media, accomplished the complete destruction of Ninevite ascendency. In the confusion caused by the troubles of this eventful period, or it may be in return for services rendered by Israel at this important juncture in the subjugation of their hereditary foes, the Ten Tribes regained their liberty, and having left the land of their captivity, migrated Northwards, leaving no traces of their existence behind them. Thenceforward they became a lost people, their very name being obliterated from the page of history.

Their concealment, however, was not to be of unending duration. 2,520 years after, rumours began to circulate that lost Israel was found, and in the manifestation of the British race as the Ten-Tribed House of Israel was fulfilled that wonderful and glorious prediction contained in Ezekiel xxxvii. 12, 13:—"Thus saith the Lord God: Behold, O My people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel. And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have opened your graves, O My people, and brought you up out of your graves."

(To be continued.)

IMPERIAL FEDERATION AS APPROVED IN MELBOURNE.

IN the Herald, published in Melbourne on May 6th, 1887, we find the report of a statement made by the Rev. Dr. Ll. D. Bevan, D.D., regarding Imperial Federation, which appears to us in some respects interesting. The Doctor formulated a scheme of Federation which we do not care to notice, as we do not believe the time for such schemes has yet arrived. His views are thus recorded in the Antipodean journal.

When asked for a further statement of his views on Imperial Federation than he had yet given, Dr. Bevan said:—

In the first place I am thoroughly in favour of Imperial Federation. And what is more, I believe it is the only method in which this evergrowing Empire can be held together and made permanently strong. The warning of ancient history, derived from Rome, is quite sufficient, I think, at all events, to suggest the peril of a large Empire, in the government of which the component parts do not share. For though in a certain sense Rome extended the franchise, or rather the legal right of citizenship, to the inhabitants of the distant parts of the Empire, yet the Government was really centralised, and this became at last the cause of weakness and division, and finally ruin.

* * * * * *

Then another reason for Federation presents itself. The British Empire seems to me to be a great system intended by Providence for the spreading of ideas and influences of the greatest possible service to the Human Race; for although some of the methods by which the Empire has been built up and extended deserve serious reprehension, and cannot be justified, nevertheless the inherent qualities of the dominant races which combine to form the Empire are such as to lead in its establishment to the extension of Justice and Liberty, and the higher moral and spiritual influences by which mankind is bettered.

Therefore, not merely as belonging to the Empire am I anxious for its continuance and strength, but in respect of those far higher ideals, which embrace the good of all men, I know of nothing which next to the supreme influence of Christianity itself can be so useful to mankind as the continued and perpetual strength of the British Empire. These by no means exhaust the reasons that may be assigned for desiring the continuance and strength of the Empire. At the same time they are sufficient on which to ground one's conviction of its advisability, and it seems to me that Federation must necessarily follow.

FEDERATION INEVITABLE.

Why must it follow?

Because the British Empire is not simply an aggregation of subject races; but it is the development of the dominant race itself throughout all its parts, and at the same time the growth and improvement of such subject races as do not disappear before the advance of civilisation. While thus Great Britain multiplies herself throughout the world, it seems to me she lifts other nations who have come underneath her rule on to a higher plane, both of personal and social life. And therefore the question of the share which the Greater Britain must take in the Imperial development must necessarily present itself.

So far the Rev. Dr. Bevan. Had he tried to prove to his Melbourne interrogator and to the Victorian readers of his statement that the British Empire was "The Remnant of Israel," he could not have argued more directly to the point! for first he declared that the Imperial Federation of the Race was an inevitable necessity. Here he asserted that the fulfilment of God's words to Jacob would surely come true: "A nation and a company of nations shall be of thee" (Gen. xxxv. 11). He called ours a "Dominant Race," and is not that just what God's Word declares Israel shall become? They are to be "the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath all the other nations of the earth, 'set' by God Himself, 'high above them all'" (Deut. xxviii. 1 and 13). But the Doctor adds more. He tells us that in his opinion God made our Empire to do the greatest amount of good possible to the human race at large! What is this but to become a blessing "to all the nations, families, and kindreds of the earth"? What is it but the fulfilment of Israel's destiny, which was that of a "blossoming, budding nation, filling the face of the world with fruit" to God's glory? (Gen. xxii. 18; xxviii. 14; Acts iii. 25; Isa. xxvii. 6). Nothing, in the Doctor's opinion, except the diffusion of Christianity, can be more useful "to mankind" in general "than the continued and perpetual strength of the British Empire." Surely words cannot better describe the character of a people, who, by the Doctor's own showing, must have been "formed, made, created," and endowed. "to show forth God's praise," by serving and blessing all the other nations of the earth! (Isa. xliii. 1, 7, 21). The Doctor noticed the abnormal increase of the British people, "multiplying herself throughout the world," and thus pointed to the Israelitish origin of this race (Gen. xxii. 17; Hosea i. 10; Zech. x. 6, 7, 8, 9).

She lifts other races who come under her rule, he added, and thus proves that she has become "a blessing to all nations, families, and kindreds of the earth," with whom she comes in contact. Surely Dr. Bevan must be an Anglo-Israelite, or he is one of the blindest of the blind ones extant—since he describes Israel from her Scriptural portrait, and having traced the exact lineaments in the face of his own nation and Empire, has not the perception to declare that he sees the identity between the two races! But though he cannot see them the two people must be one and the same, unless we wish to reflect upon God's faithfulness. To Israel exclusively God promised those blessings which Dr. Bevan sees to be the portion of the British nation. He recognises the latter as a dominant, rapidly multiplying, imperial race, blessing all the world besides, raising up and benefiting all peoples who are fortunate enough to find protection under her wing, being distinctly a Power led by Divine Providence to do the greatest amount of good to the world at large, both morally and spiritually. The enumeration ought to have given Dr. Bevan the hint that thus he was drawing the portrait of God's people Israel in these "latter days." As there cannot be two Israels, since God undertook to take the sons of Abraham to be His inheritance and "chosen ones for ever" (2 Sam. vii. 24, R.V.), it follows, like the demonstration of a proposition of Euclid, that the British are the modern descendants "according to the flesh" of the people the Lord hath blessed, even of Israel of the Ten Tribes, once lost, and now destined to be found by these very marks. We trust Dr. Bevan may be yet led to see the cogency of this reasoning, and to learn from it that the British Empire is Israel's Empire, and that God's glory is served by the discovery!

Digitized by Google

THE NEW FACTOR IN AMERICAN POLITICS. THE BRITISH VOTE.

By John S. Anderson.

The communication from your correspondent, J. Wilkinson, of Wolverhampton, in the Banner of Israel of the 3rd instant, regarding the balance of parties in the United States in reference to the Irish as compared with the British element, is most satisfactory. Your readers will be pleased to learn that, by a cablegram of the 10th instant from New York, the correspondent of the Standard announces that various British and Scottish Associations are making a concerted effort to induce their members to naturalize themselves, in order to counterbalance the Irish vote in that country, as an influence in American politics.

This movement seems to be quite independent of that described by your correspondent from the Chicago Times, for this correspondent of the Standard declares that the impulse to it was given by the disgust of the Englishmen living in the neighbourhood of Boston at the undue influence wielded by the Irish, as shown by the hostile steps they took against the celebration of the Jubilee in that city. Actuated by this impulse a convention of thirty-four societies has been held, and agreed upon the movement we have named. It has since extended to other States. At Newhaven, for instance, only five hundred out of three thousand five hundred Englishmen are naturalized; but almost all favour the present movement. Of course the Irish are much angered about it.

In this, and many other ways, as we must all admit, the hand of the God of Israel may be discerned gradually and surely guiding His (unfortunately we must say) unwilling people to their ultimate triumph for their benefit and His glory. Israel, praise ye the Lord! Amen.

Croydon, 12th August, 1887.

MEDIÆVAL SCULPTURE.

By Professor Middleton.

The thirteenth century in England was one of the most remarkable periods in the history of the development of art that the world had ever seen . . . . By the end of the century England had reached the climax of her artistic splendour, and was, on the whole, the foremost country in Europe as an art producing nation in all the chief branches of the arts—in painting, sculpture, illuminated manuscripts, embroidery, and work in the precious metals,—England was alike unsurpassed. In one only of the lesser arts was England surpassed—that of pattern weaving . . . . In the qualities of reserve, and restraint in design, the thirteenth century English sculptor strikingly resembled the Greek sculptor of about 500 B.C.—Times, Feb. 26th.

Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund.—The Treasurer very gratefully acknowledges the receipt of £5 from P.C.G., Sheffield, towards the "expenses connected with the Free Distribution Fund's Secretary."

L. P. writes thus:—It seems to me as if those who do not care for the Identity, but do not distinctly object to it, must be lacking in one of three things. Either they do not love God; or, they do not believe the Bible; or, they do not love their nation and country! But no one who believes in Our Identity can disbelieve the Bible!

A lady who witnessed the Eton Procession and Windsor Illuminations says a prominent one was, "Queens shall be thy nursing mothers" (or, "Queens are thy nursing mothers").

ANCIENT WATCHMEN INTERVIEWED.

By J. G. Taylor.

I.—PREFATORY, AND A PREFACE.

Although the great bulk of mankind are quite indifferent as to the fate of the Ten Tribes, and are, perhaps, unaware that such things ever had a local habitation on the earth, there has always been reserved a band of watchmen in Ephraim. The Israelites have disappeared from the theatre of history as completely as if they had dropped to the bottom of the sea, and not a vestige remains on the surface to remind the world that they exist, or once existed; yet they have not been forgotten for a moment. Their form has vanished, but their memory has been kept bright, and there is now little fear that it will be allowed to rust.

We are often told that they were not lost, but that they returned in company with the Jews from Babylon, not, it is admitted, to inherit their national promises or occupy their paternal homesteads, but to engage in masonry round Jerusalem, an avocation which we may well suppose would have intense attractions for Ephraim and his fellow rebels. If this combined return really took place it is very strange that, from the early centuries of the Christian era down to the current hour, scholars who, it may be assumed, were endowed with as much intelligence as our opponents, have continued to search zealously after them. We are also informed, probably for the sake of variety, that the Ten Tribes cannot revive, as they were absorbed by their heathen neighbours. If this is so it is again very strange that in all ages many of the best and wisest of men have been filled with enthusiasm at the prospect of their restoration, and the brilliancy of their prophetic future. Nor do these venerable students of inspiration observe anything particularly carnal, or heretical, or frivolous in this series of events. They had the sense to see (without having it drilled into them) that the restoration of Israel, and, in fact, Israel herself, was but the means to an end, that end being the exaltation of God. It is true that the Farrars and the Wilkinsons had not then arisen to correct the mistakes of Hosea and his too-sanguine predecessors, but even if they had it is questionable whether their report would have been believed. In the good old days of the Puritan, while there was more ignorance among the ignorant than is the case at present, there was more sound learning among the learned, and if certain of our antagonists had ventured on the scene with their skin-deep theology it is just possible that they would have been stoned with stones. It is fortunate for them and their reputation that they flourish at an epoch when the outside of the Bible is lavishly adorned, and the inside comparatively neglected. Long, long ago, it was common to apply the whole life to a consideration of the interior of that volume, including, of course, the Psalms and the New Testament, but not to the exclusion of its other departments. The book lately referred to by the Editor is a fair example of this. The author of "Israel Redux" was neither a skimmer of the scriptures nor a devoted cogitator on half-a-dozen verses. He seems to have been on familiar terms with every object contained between the covers, from Gog and Anti-christ to Rebecca's bracelets and the fishes in Gennesaret. Birds, insects, flowers, fruits, reptiles, minerals, all came within his ken and his critical inspection. But his chief claim on the readers of the Banner is that he has somewhat to say concerning the Ten Tribes, which, naturally, cannot fail to be of interest to those who are his legitimate successors.

It is pleasant to think that in Armada times ecclesiastics were giving utterance to the same sentiments as we are today. It is even pleasant to think that they were heavily abused for doing so. And it is still more satisfactory to know that the friends of Israel were a match for her enemies. We shall therefore make a few short quotations; not simply, however, on account of the curiosity attaching to them, but because of their value, as the opinions of such mature thinkers will be almost sufficient to counterbalance the adverse Hippancy of two-year-finished curates.

Digitized by Google

The work is entitled "Israel Redux, or the Restauration of Israel," and is in two parts. In its own words, "the first contains an essay upon some probable grounds that the present Tartars near the Caspian Sea are the posterity of the Ten Tribes of Israel, by Giles Fletcher, LL.D. The second, a dissertation concerning their ancient and successive state, with some scriptural evidences of their future conversion and establishment in their own land, by S. L.," which being interpreted means Samuel Lee. The preface (or a portion of it) is as follows:—

"Having obtained this manuscript of Dr. Fletcher's from his grandson, Mr. Phinæas Fletcher, a worthy citizen of London, together with his kind leave to pass it into publick light, give me, I pray, the liberty of a line or two to acquaint thee that this author was a faithful agent for Q. Elizabeth, of famous memory, at the Pallace of the great Czar of Moschovy, and hath given us some fruits of his inquisitive travels in a book of the State affairs and customs of that large dominion. Having also collected some observations about the Tartars confining upon those territories near the Caspian Sea, composed this ensuing tract, endeavouring by some probabilities to evince that they may be the posterity of the 10 Tribes of Israel, antiently carried captives by Salmanasser into the northern mountainous crags of Assyria and Media, I shall not be bold to interpose any private conceptions, any further than that it seems to yield the best satisfaction in this point that I ever yet had the opportunity to peruse, and therefore recommend to sober and candid persons a modest and kind resentment of so modest and grave an author, and till they can light their candle at a brighter lamp, be thankfully content to follow his lanthorne among the Caspian Streights and the rigid tops of Schythian Caucasus, or else without noise to lye down in their home-sleepy cavernes, till the righteousness of Zion shine forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth. Not doubting but when the Israelites have finished their appointed times of dispersion in that and other lands of their remoter wanderings and intermixtures that they shall as certainly return to, as ever they went out of, their ancient land. For the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it. To which purpose I have connexed a Dissertation about their first exile state, and the certainty of their return in God's due time to a very glorious estate, both spiritual and temporal, when the Lord shall make them an eternal excellency, the joy of many generations, when that people shall all be righteous and shall inherit their land for ever. Let us pray for Israel, as once that Church did for us. So prays a humble and hearty well-wisher to the brightness of Israel's rising.

"Samuel Lee.

"August 7, 1667."

(To be continued.)

The Women's Jubilee Offering.—The Committee of the Women's Jubilee Offering to the Queen have received additions from the women of Ceylon and Burmah. The ladies of Burmah have sent a very remarkable address upon an embroidered red cloth, the figures embroidered being chiefly women with spangled ornaments, and the signatures are in Burmese characters. The women of Burmah in this presentation, which is accompanied by sums amounting to about £1,200, offer the following address, which Her Majesty will graciously receive:—"To our Most Excellent, Gracious Sovereign Lady Victoria, by the grace of God Empress of India, Queen, Defender of the Faith,—May it please your Majesty,—We, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, appointed at a public meeting representing all classes, held in Rangoon on the 5th day of February, 1887, to take steps to express the loyal appreciation of the women of Burmah of your Majesty's public and private character, venture to offer by telegraph our heartfelt congratulations to your Majesty on the occasion of the celebration in Burmah of your Majesty's jubilee. We again desire to express our loyalty, affection, and reverence for your Majesty, who for 50 years has borne the trials and troubles of public and private life as wife, mother, and Queen, and has held up a bright and spotless example to your own and other nations."—Times, July 13th.

THE TRUE CAUSE OF BRITAIN'S GREATNESS.

In the Yarmouth Gazette of July 2, 1887, we have the report of a sermon preached during the Queen's Jubilee, by the present Prime Minister's son, the Rev. Lord W. Gascoyne Cecil. The sermon preached on Sunday evening at the Parish Church was on a text taken from Acts xii. 21, 22, 23.

Some of the preacher's statements were so remarkable from an Identity point of view, that we feel bound to quote them from the Yarmouth Gazette, and to offer a few remarks on the views therein enunciated. The report is as follows:—

It was refreshing, the rev. gentleman observed, to turn from the conduct of King Herod, and reflect upon the thanksgiving of the Queen of England for the mercies she had received during her long reign of fifty years. Where Her Majesty was crowned, thither she returned to render her thanks for the great talents and all the favours God has bestowed upon her and upon the nation. Had her subjects done the like? Had not they chosen to consider their own greatness, their own efforts? Had they not gloated over the size of their Empire; over their victories; and over the prosperity which had come to them, instead of giving to God the glory for all? Had they not put it down too much to themselves? Not only this year, but nearly always, Englishmen were so ready to assert that their greatness and prosperity were due to their own boldness, their doggedness, and their business-like habits. But there was a sad thought. Where were the great nations of the past? Doubtless in their prosperity, their citizens also boasted. The citizens of Samaria did not believe the prophet Amos when he told them their apparently impregnable fortress would be destroyed. It had became a ruin. Where was the splendour of Jerusalem of old; where Babylon the mighty; where the Empires of the Greeks, the Persians, and the Romans? Gone. What had happened in Poland, for whom all other European nations once prayed, and who kept the Turks at bay and swept back the Mahometan hordes from the walls of Vienna? Poland was divided among three other nations. What had happened to Spain? It had become a mere second-rate Power. Should the English people say, in the face of such national destructions, that it was because they were mighty that they increased? Should not they rather say with the Queen, for she chose the Psalm for the Jubilee, "Some put their trust in chariots, and some in horses, but we will remember the name of the Lord our God"? As far as could be seen nations fell because they disobeyed the word of God. The English have risen and conquered greater and mightier peoples. It was because England had hitherto been a Christian country. The Sikhs were stronger and bigger men; the Mahrattas more dogged; but England conquered them. How were they conquered, and how was India held? It was because England had men like Gordon who would do all for Christian duty and never fail. Spain fell because the Inquisition sapped all the talent, wisdom, and energy out of the country. Had Spain worshipped God and His dear Son in true faith she would have remained great. To the neglect of the true worship was also to be traced the decline and fall of Syria, Israel, and Rome, the defeat of the Saxons by the Romans, the loss by England of Normandy, Picardy, and Guienne. To the Christianity of England, as opposed to French atheism, was attributed the victories of the British armies in the Peninsula and at Waterloo. Having successfully glanced at the condition of affairs during the Commonwealth; the change under Charles II.; the emigration of Puritans, and the loss of the American colonies, the preacher again recurred to the present time. He would not say the English were prosperous because they were all virtuous, but it was because there were virtuous men amongst them. If ever they became hopelessly bad, took all credit to themselves, and publicly denied that God had given them their greatness, then they would fall. While they were true to God He would help them, and lead them still to victory. Let them ever remember that their prosperity was God's gift, and being stirred with gratitude show forth their thankfulness, not only with their lips but in their lives. In doing that they would raise the whole nation, would find that they had built their house upon a rock, and that they were secure against all the storms that might beat around them.

So far the noble preacher. His point was this: our nation had become great because we are or have been a Christian people. India and other countries had been subdued by us not because of the goodness of the nation which attracted the notice of God, but because we happened to have good men among us like Gordon, who had shown a fine example of Christian duty. True worship of God, according to the preacher, made all the difference with Him. Let a nation worship Him according to His will, and prosperity and conquest followed. Thus Spain failed, and consequently fell into a position of inferiority. If however we as a nation put our trust in the Lord, and continue to do so, then God will give us increase; but let us go on boasting as we are doing now, and lose the few virtuous men we have, then all would be up with us, and we should sink into the position of Spain. If we are "good" He will prosper us. If we grow "bad" He will give us up, and we suppose try some other Power with our blessings.

Digitized by Google

We have no doubt that Lord Cecil quite believes all that he preached. But where did he find it in God's Word? We find there nothing to support his doctrine! We find there unconditional promises to His people Israel, which the Lord has fulfilled and performed to us British folk, though we deserve these splendid blessings as little as did Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, or their afterseed the children of Israel.

Within the four corners of the Bible we find not a single promise addressed to any nation but Israel conferring on them national prosperity, empire, wealth, dominion, God's Word and the like, contingent on their right worship of God. We find that to Israel only God promised His word. Psa. cxlvii. 19, 20 testifies that. For Israel only He wrote and gave those His divine statutes and judgments; Exod. xx.; Deut. iv. 6, 7; and Hosea viii. 12 assert that. To Israel only He promised multitudinousness, which is Empire, and He attached to this great gift not one single stipulation whatsoever (Gen. xxii. 17; Hosea i. 10). "Wealth and the power to get it" He promised to Israel only as a free gift (Dent. viii. 18).

A stable polity and a fixed dynasty He granted to Israel alone among all the nations, as 2 Sam. vii. 13, 16; Jer. xxxiii. 16—26 prove. Universal empire and dominion was unconditionally entailed on the people of the saints of the Most High—that is, on Israel, as Dan. vii. 27; and Psa. cxlviii. 14 testify. In practice we find the same principles carried out. Even when Israel became rank idolaters as a nation, then God marked them out for favour, and declared He was a "Father to Israel, and Ephraim was His firstborn!" (Jer. xxxi. 9). To what other nation did God ever say that? And the nation to whom He did address those gracious words were then rank apostates and rebels against Him, deserving nothing good at His hands at all. Let Lord Cecil study Our Identity with the Bible in his hands and the history of England before his mind! He will see then that British prosperity rests on quite another basis than national desert, or that of a few persons in the nation who seem to have lived holy and noble lives. However we may judge them, these men, Gen. Gordon and the rest, were helpless, worthless sinners in God's sight, and totally unable, by their own merits, to buy God's favour for their country, even in the smallest degree! Surely the Rev. Lord Gascoyne Cecil ought to know that? What then regulates the destiny of nations? Is there not the text in Prov. xiv. 34, R.V., "Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any peoples"? True! but what righteousness? The righteousness of General Gordon, and noble but sinful men like him? Alas, no! But the righteousness of God, which is the righteousness of Jesus the Son of God, as plainly stated in Isa. liv. 17, R.V. "This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord" (that is, of "Israel" Isa. lxiii. 17), "and their righteousness which is of Me, saith the Lord." To the same effect is Isa. xlv. 24, 25; and 2 Cor. v. 21, proves that righteousness is the God-man's—even Christ's—the Redeemer of Israel (Psa. cxxx. 7). The doctrine that, "while men are true to God He will help them, and lead them still to victory," is hardly a Bible principle! Where does his lordship find it from Genesis to Revelation? God promised blessings to one race only, namely, to His people Israel, and because of their disobedience He often withheld their blessings for a time. But how comes Lord G. Cecil to apply that principle to a Gentile non-Israelite nation like the British, according to his ideas on the subject? We can see no ground to concur with the preacher in his teaching regarding this matter! God's promises to Israel exclusively, cannot ever be cancelled in the future any more than they were in the past by the nation's shortcomings, because they were unconditionally bestowed, as Gen. xxii. 1—18 proves. The nation's sinful proclivities God cures by giving "more grace" (James iv. 6). How He is going to remedy all our national sins and iniquities let Jerem. xxxi. 33, 34; and Heb. viii. 10—12 teach his lordship! But even those spiritual blessings will not have been bought by British virtues, or English heroes, like Gordon and his like, but by the grace of God, and by the precious, precious blood of Christ, to whom, for these and all His blessings, shall be ALL the praise. Amen.

ENGLAND'S DESTINY, BY THE REV. J. R. PURCELL, M.A. (RECTOR OF EASTWICK, HARLOW, ESSEX).

AN Anglo-Israelite at Bideford, North Devon, has asked us to notice an article by the Rector of Eastwick, Harlow, Essex, in the July number of the Silver Morn. Our Bideford friend thinks the paper may be ranked as "blind evidence" of the purest kind to prove that the British are Israel. We are inclined to agree with him, but desire our readers also to assist at the decision of the point, and so proceed to analyse Mr. Purcell's argument on the subject.

In the first place he believes that "England's" destiny (he means Britain's) is closely connected with the prophecy in xxiv. 13—15, which we beg our readers will peruse for themselves, using the Revised Version. The chapter, he says, describes vast and terrible judgments, world-wide in their character. In the midst of these, the three verses in question tell of an oasis of peace and blessing to some maritime State. Bishop Lowth translates these verses thus: "Yea, thus it shall be—in the very centre of the land, in the midst of the people, as the shaking of the olive, as the gleaning when the vintage is finished. But these shall lift up their voice and sing. The waters shall resound with the exaltation of Jehovah. Wherefore in the distant coasts, glorify ye Jehovah, in the distant coasts of the sea, the name of Jehovah, the God of Israel." The time of devastating judgments shall be marked, in short, by a remarkable exception to the condition of the nations. There will be a people in the Isles of the sea free from those judgments, and glorifying Jehovah there. Some maritime nation will, at that period of overwhelming judgments which will destroy other nations, be preserved in peace and safety. "Where is that nation?" asks the Rev. Mr. Purcell. A most pertinent and important inquiry! Let us see how he arrives at a conclusion. He does so by comparing Isa. lx. 9, with xviii. 1, 2, and 7, and Ezek. xxxviii. 13, with Psa. lxxii. 10. The result of the comparison is, that it is certain "God has chosen some one powerful State, a maritime State, in these latter days, to gather together the dispersed of Judah and the outcasts of Israel."

Here, of course, Mr. Purcell begins to go wrong. For instead of stating the case as he does, we would declare that the maritime powerful State selected by the Lord is the House of Israel, and she has to conduct Judah back to their common land, and settle down in it, according to the prophecies (Jer. iii. 18; Hosea i. 11). Yet still Mr. Purcell does not name the chosen nation. But he says he can do so by examining Isa. xviii. Quoting Bishop Lowth again, he says the translation is: "Ho! land of the winged cymbal," the Sistrum, which was the national emblem of Egypt. The prophet indicated, he thinks, the modern Power that over-shadows Egypt. That Power is "England." "England is driven to occupy Egypt, and will hold it until God has accomplished His work in the restoration of Israel." Mr. Purcell looks on "our acquisition of Cyprus, the purchase of the Suez Canal shares, the proclamation of Queen Victoria as Empress of India, the Protectorate over Asia Minor, as so many links in the chain of the destiny of England."

Digitized by Google

The argument proceeds by a reference to the scriptural phrase "Tarshish." This name Mr. Purcell connects, for reasons given, with the British island of Ceylon, near Point de Galle. Tarshish, then, is "our own England with its East Indian possessions, 'the young lions' thereof, mentioned by Ezekiel, being in all probability our Colonies, at that time confederated with the Mother Country."

Mr. Purcell concludes a remarkable paper by hoping that in the coming conflicts, "God will spare England because He has work for her to do, and that she is not one of the ten horns of Daniel's wild beast, and is not going to lose Ireland and India," as Mr. Baxter predicts. In short, he says, God has reserved for England the high honour of "bringing back to their long-lost home God's ancient people Israel, for so many years, 'Tribes of the wandering foot and weary breast.'"

So far the Rev. J. R. Purcell. In all this, of course, he has no intention of allowing for a moment that the British are the Ten Tribes. On the contrary, he carefully wishes it to be known that the British are a Gentile race, not Israelitish or Jewish, who are set apart by God for the honour of helping His people of the Two Houses back to their land. Of course there is nothing about all this in the Bible, or Mr. Purcell would have mentioned it. The texts he quotes all show that the nation that conveys Judah back to their land is Israel, and that no nation accompanies Judah back but Ephraim-Israel only. Jer. iii. 18, Hosea i. 11, Ezek. xxxvii. 15—28, Zeph. iii. 9, Isa. xviii. 1, 2, and 7, are clear on this point. There is not a shadow of proof, not half a text, or a single word in half a text, to support Mr. Purcell's monstrous fable of a purely non-Israelite Gentile interference of British folks in Israel's affairs.

Mr. Purcell proves all the facts of our case, and blindly shuts his eyes to all the rest which tends to establish Our Identity with Israel. We accept his aid as far as it goes, and wish him better eyesight to see clearly what is "England's destiny," and on what splendid Israelitish foundations that destiny is built up by the Lord Jehovah Himself. Why did not Mr. Purcell quote Jer. iii. 18? "The House of Judah shall walk to the House of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the North, to the land which I have given to their fathers for an inheritance." Where in the four corners of this passage, or in Hosea i. 11, or in Ezek. xxxvii. 16—19, or in Zeph. iii. 9, is there the intervention of any Gentile nation with Israel and Judah noticed or provided, in the glorious details of the Restoration? We await Mr. Purcell's answer.

MR. JOSEPH COOK'S DEBUT.—The following is from the Christian. Mr. Joseph Cook is, we believe, a famous Boston preacher in the United States.

"While the meeting was in progress, Mr. Joseph Cook arrived, and that eminent champion of the orthodox belief was greeted with great eclat. Being called upon to speak at the close of Professor Drummond's narrative, Mr. Cook said:—'God is great, and the consecrated thoroughly Christian young men of Europe and America are to-day especially His abode. These young men will be the rudder of the twentieth century. I venture to salute the college students here, and through Professor Drummond, those in Europe, as the Pilgrim Fathers of a new age. A very large nation rejoiced on the other side of the Atlantic on the Queen's Jubilee. You have sixty millions in this Continent, and not forty millions in the British Islands. Most of the young men before me will live to see a hundred millions between the Atlantic and Pacific, the lakes and the Gulf. But the English-speaking world is a unit; if, under the forms of representative government, which now control us all, we make Christianity the rudder of this English-speaking community, they will become the rudder of the world at large.'"

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—The enclosed letter was sent to the Christian, but not inserted. Of course not! It would not do to expose the misquotations of such men as Mr. Wilkinson after recommending his refutations of the solemn truth of our origin; but thanks be to God such miserable one-sidedness is doomed to perish, because it is arrayed against the truth. I wrote to you a few weeks ago to call your attention to my meetings on the Beach, and asked you if you could let me have some tracts to give away; they would be of great use. We get very attentive audiences. The first night the time went so quickly, and the people were so attentive, that I was surprised to find I had been speaking one hour and three-quarters. A lot of people stood from beginning to end. One man from London (who came to help Mr. Baxter with his diagrams and bills) said it was impossible to refute the arguments that had been used, and said he was thankful to have heard the first address, and was only sorry he would not be able to hear more, but should go back determined to look into the subject, although the minister of his Church was against it.

So if you can help me in any way, I shall be very pleased. Specimen copies of the BANNER and tracts will be thankfully received.

I remain, dear sir, yours truly,
H. A. MARCHANT.

60, Upper Lewes-road, Brighton, July 26th, 1887.

To the Editor of the "Christian."

SIR,—As a subscriber to the Christian, I saw that you eulogised a young man a short time ago for defending the Bible from being misquoted by an infidel who quoted half a text which entirely altered its sense. Now, Sir, if it is wrong for an infidel to misquote the Scriptures, much more so a Christian who quotes it to support a theory which he wishes to advance in opposition to what he holds to be an error. Seeing Mr. Wilkinson's pamphlet advertised by you, and knowing that you had spoken highly of his way of refuting the Anglo-Israel question I procured it, and amongst other things which are very misleading, I find the following half text quoted (to support the theory that the Jews absorbed the Ten Tribes, which Mr. Wilkinson acknowledges on page 15 could not have been the case, although it seems he is very reluctant to admit it, but is forced to do so because "it may be frankly confessed that certain plain predictions of the Word of God seem to necessitate the restoration to Palestine in the future of a people known as descendants of the Ten Tribes of Israel, and designated the outcasts 'of Israel' in contradistinction from the dispersed of Judah') from 2 Chron. xi. 16: "And after them out of all the Tribes of Israel, such as set their hearts to seek the Lord God of Israel came to Jerusalem to sacrifice unto the Lord God of their fathers, so they strengthened the kingdom of Judah." Mr. Wilkinson says: "Here we see that portions of all the Ten Tribes fell away to Judah on religious grounds." The part of the text left out says, "And made Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, strong three years; for three years they walked in the way of David and Solomon." Now why did they strengthen him only three years? Because by that time Rehoboam (as well as Jeroboam) had departed from the law of the Lord, and all Israel with him, which in this instance must have included Judah; so when there was nothing to choose between the two kings on "religious grounds," the Ten-Tribed Israelites would most naturally prefer their own people on national grounds, and we are led to infer that by the end of the three years they went back to their own people, and when Rehoboam had reigned five years, Shisak, king of Egypt, was used by God to chastise him and his people for apostasy.

I am surprised to find a man with the reputation of Mr. Wilkinson (whom I greatly appreciate on account of his work amongst the Jews) leaving out of a text a sentence which the Holy Spirit saw was so important as to put it in twice: "three years—for three years."

As a lover of truth, which should have a fair field and no favour, I hold it as much your duty to correct this error of Mr. Wilkinson's as to expose the error of the infidel, and, therefore, hope you will publish this letter.

I remain, dear Sir, truly yours,
H. A. MARCHANT.

60, Upper Lewes-road, Brighton, July 9th, 1887.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

Now Ready. 16mo. Price 2s., in bevelled boards, full gilt, gilt edges: or cloth boards, gilt lettered, 1s. 8d.; White Skiver binding, full gilt, 2s. 6d. Post free for P.O.

"MY JEWELS"

(MALACHI III. 17).

"The Precious Sons of Zion."

(LAM. IV. 7).

Choice Selections from Writers of Sacred Poetry, with Appropriate Texts from Holy Scripture, arranged for every day.

BY SARAH SHARP.

In Anni Jubilaei Memoriam, 1887.

A CLERGYMAN writes:—"I have read your MS. of 'MY JEWELS' and long for the book to come out. May 'MY JEWELS' adorn many lands, and homes, and hearts, and add some stars to our Saviour's crown."

See "BANNER OF ISRAEL," Aug. 24.

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet Court, Fleet Street. May be ordered from any Bookseller.

Now Ready. Price 2/6, cloth, gilt, bevelled boards, Imperial 8vo., free for P.O.

A CONSECRATED LIFE.
A MEMOIR
OF THE
RIGHT REV. BISHOP TITCOMB, D.D.

By the Rev. ALLEN T. EDWARDS, M.A., Cantab.

With an Introduction by the Right Rev. the LORD BISHOP of ROCHESTER.

Frontispiece: Cabinet size PHOTO-PORTRAIT of the late BISHOP by Messrs. Elliot and Fry.

CONTENTS:

Introduction. 1.—Early Life to the Period of His First Curacy. 2.—Cambridge Ministry. 3.—London Life and Working. 4.—Rangoon. 5.—Northern and Central Europe. Appendix.—1. Funeral Sermon by the Rev. J. McCann, D.D. 2. Sermon by Bishop Titcomb. 3. Public Work in Rangoon in one year. 4. Tubular Statement of Tours in Northern and Central Europe. 5. Consecration of St. George's Church, Berlin.

R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London.

Price Twopence.

BRITAIN AND PROPHECY.

"Before the heroic age of the Greeks had passed away, God was cradling nations of mighty men behind the Caucassian mountains; these were the Aryas the ancestors of the great Anglo-Saxon people."—H. A. LONG, Glasgow.

BY JAMES WRIGHT.

Read before the Sherwell Mutual Improvement Association, Plymouth. Re-written and read in Belmont Wesleyan School-room, Stoke, Devonport.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

BY REV. HENRY ROE.

(Fifteenth Thousand).

1. Israel's World. Origin and Destiny of British Race, Colonies, and Empire. 2d., post free 2½d. "Worthy of a world-wide circulation." H. B Thompson, Association Sec. 50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.

2. Going to Africa. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.

3. Fernando Po Mission. 1s., post free 1s. 1d.

4. West African Scenes. 2s., post free 2s 2d.

5. Consecration. 2d., post free 2½d.

50 post free from H. Roe for 4s. 9d.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; and Rev. H. Roe, Dawley, Salop.

"THE TEN TRIBES."

Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time; and What will be Their Place in the Millennium?

A PAPER read before "The Prophecy Investigation Society" on April 9, 1887,

BY

ALDER SMITH, M.B., F.R.C.S.

LONDON:
R. BANKS & SON, RACQUET-COURT, FLEET-ST.

Price 6d., post free 7d.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d.. post free 3s. 10d.

The History of the House of Israel; How they were Lost, and How they were Found. Told for the Children. Price 6d., cloth 1s.; post free, 7d. and 1s. 1d. Fourth Edition. Eleventh thousand.

Our Identity with the House of Israel. Price 4d. Reprinted from "Clifton Chronicle Letters."

London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

An Elementary Digest or Sketch of the Chief Facts and Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Adapted to the Unlearned and Unscientific 56 pages. Illustrated with Diagrams, price 4d., post free 5d. 10th Thousand.

London: R Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

Crown 8vo., wrapper, price 6d.

Where is the Firstborn?

An investigation of the British Claim to Identification With the House of Israel. By the REV. G. A. ROGERS, M.A. Edited by his Widow. Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

"Ably written, well edited, and carefully presented to the readers . . . We wish it a large circulation."—Banner of Israel.

London: Robert Banks & Son Racquet-court, Fleet-st.

EDWARD HINE'S PUBLICATIONS

SHOULD BE READ & DISTRIBUTED.

FORTY-SEVEN IDENTIFICATIONS, 6d.; post free, 7d.

CUI BONO? 6d., post free, 7d.

LOST ISRAEL FOUND, 3s. 6d., post free, 3s. 9d.

F. W. PARRY, 29, Paternoster Row, London, or direct of ISAAC LOVELAND, Shoreham, Sevenoaks.

NON-INTOXICATING BEER

(A Splendid Dinner Beverage)

MADE IMMEDIATELY WITH

MASON'S EXTRACT OR ESSENCE OF HERBS,

Composed of Yarrow, Dandelion, Comfrey, and Horehound. Send 9 stamps for sample bottle, enough to make five gallons, NEWBALL and MASON, Chemists, Nottingham.

AGENTS WANTED. APPLY FOR TERMS.

LIVER TONIC,

GEORGE & WELCH'S,

2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. per Bottle.

This Tonic, which embraces the active principle of the best known Liver Cures, relieves Indigestion and Debility, sharpens the appetite, and corrects all unpleasant symptoms arising from sluggish liver.

Proprietors: GEORGE & WELCH, Worcester.

To be had through all Chemists or by Parcels Post from Makers.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON,
RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

THE LOST TEN TRIBES OF ISRAEL. By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D., Pastor of Union Congregational Church, Brooklyn, New York. Price 3s., post free 3s. 3d.

THE FUTURE OF ISRAEL AND JUDAH. Companion volume to above. By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D. With Portrait of the Author. Cloth, gilt lettered, bevelled boards. Price 2s., post free 2s. 3d.

THE SISTERS OF HARROWDALE RECTORY. A Tale of Great Interest for Young People. By Mrs. M. A. Searson. With double-page illustration of Harrowdale Rectory. Price 2s. 6d., post free 2s. 9d.

PRESENT-DAY PROBLEMS, and How Anglo-Israel Truth Explains and Solves Them. By V. M. COX. 3d., by post 4 stamps.

LIGHT SHED BY THE GREAT PYRAMID OF EGYPT on the Last Days of this Dispensation, from A.D. 1814 to A.D. 1922. By JAMES KEITH. Price 4d., by post 5 stamps.

NEW TESTAMENT TRUTH on the Anglo-Israel Controversy. By J. G. TAYLOR. Price 3d., by post 4 stamps.

A NEW LIGHT. An Elementary Pamphlet for General Distribution. By A E I. Price 2d., by post 2½d. in stamps.

EPHRAIM-ISRAEL, the Pivot Nation of Prophecy and History. By V. M. COX. Price 1d., one dozen free for 1s.

AMMI; OR THE CHOSEN PEOPLE. By Miss BIRD. Tracing the Descent of the British People from Abraham the "friend of God," and showing that true science, history, philology, and ethnology, are on the side of the Identity of the Anglo-Saxon Race with the Ten Lost Tribes. Price 2d., post free 2½d.; 12s. 6d. per 100 for distribution.

IS NOT QUEEN VICTORIA the Royal Seed to King David's Throne, and Are Not Her Subjects, the British People, the Ten Lost Tribes? By W. HOPTON. Price 2d.; 12s. 6d. per 100.

A Complete Catalogue Free on Application.

Price 4s., Crown 8vo., cloth, pp. 208, illustrated with 15 Woodcuts.

THE TOWER OF EGYPT;

Or, the Types and Chronology of the Great Pyramid. By A. R. G.

In this work the chronology of the Grand Gallery and Ante-chamber passages of the Great Pyramid of Egypt is re-investigated by a NEW MEASURING KEY, based upon the sacred inch-unit, whence it is found that the Pyramid Date for the Second Advent surprisingly harmonises with that deduced by the Rev. H. Grattan Guinness from independent sources.

"We recommend this thoughtful and well-written book to the attention of all Pyramid students and readers of the Banner. . . . We shall be surprised if it is not found at last that this work is a real advance in Great Pyramid knowledge."—Banner of Israel.

LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, PATERNOSTER ROW;

R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., E.C.

Wonderful Value by Parcels Post.

WALTER KEAST, 102, Kennington Park Road, London, S.E., will on receipt of Postal Order for 3s. 6d. send a pair of Ladies' High-leg Lasting Button walking Boots. These Boots are warranted to give complete satisfaction, being sewn, thoroughly well made and very comfortable. Ditto in Oxford Shoes, 3s. 3d. Send number of size or length of boot in inches. Parcels sent daily to all parts of the United Kingdom.

Established 1851.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GILPIN & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 31, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 558. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1887. [DOUBLE NUMBER, TWOPENCE.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
Delagoa Bay and British Supremacy There	357
Lord Salisbury at the Mansion House Banquet	358
More About the Gates of Israel's Home	359
Mr. D. T. Batty, of Manchester, Replies to Professor Joseph Baxendell	360
How the Empire Grows	361
The "Seven Times" of Israel's Punishment, and "The Times of the Gentiles." By George Nelson Walsh.—Part II.	361
An Old Objection Under a New Phase. By Joseph Thomson	362
The Ninth Annual Report of the Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association	363
The Fact of the Resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the Fact of the Resurrection of His People, Lost Israel	364
Ancient Watchmen Interviewed. By J. G. Taylor.—Part II.	365
A Sermon Preached at Portobello, N.B., on June 26, 1887, in Connection with the Queen's Jubilee	366
The Lord Jehovah Will Not Forsake His People	366
The Head, and Not the Tail, in Geographical Exploration	367
Suggestive Extracts from the Life of Lord Shaftesbury, by Edwin Hodder. Forwarded by L. P.	368
Israel in Britain	369
Israel's Scripture and Prayer Union	369
Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund	370
The Jubilee and Israel	370
The Coronation Stone	371
Correspondence	371

DELAGOA BAY AND BRITISH SUPREMACY THERE.

THE Edinburgh Evening Despatch, of August 3rd, speaks of Delagoa Bay as "the Gate of access" to "King Solomon's mines," and the scene of some of the marvellous adventures of Mr. Rider Haggard's heroes. There is no doubt that the Bay in question is a veritable Gate of South-East Africa. It possesses a natural harbour, the only one on that coast for many hundreds of miles. Five large rivers discharge themselves into it, and these drain a large part of South Africa. At this spot the interests of several races meet, and must come into collision, unless one asserts its right to supremacy and maintains it. These races are, first, the Portuguese; second, the British; third, the Boers of the Transvaal; fourth, the Swazies, who are under British protection; and fifth, the Amatongas, who are applying to be received by the British as a protected native Power. The Portuguese and British claims to this important Gate were once in dispute, and these being submitted to Marshal McMahon's decision by arbitration were declared in favour of the Portuguese. But the native tribes of the Amatongas refused to allow the frontier to be marked out, since it passed right through their possessions, and "almost through their Queen's Kraal." Since the Marshal's award the centre of commercial activity in those parts is at Lorenço Marques, once a wretched, neglected, poverty-stricken spot, now advancing to great prosperity. Her Majesty's Consul at Mozambique, Mr. O'Neill, thus describes its present condition:—

That town, which has been cited by travellers as a perfect example of the misery, neglect, and depression that are associated with Portuguese rule in Africa, has wonderfully improved. It has numerous public buildings—including custom-house, local government buildings, post office, churches, and powder magazines—most of them risen within the last five years. Its streets are properly cleaned, lighted, and paved; the malarious swamps around it are being drained; and among its civilising institutions is a "Botanical Society." The pier is to be extended so that steamers may lie beside it and discharge, and the long abandoned railway to the Transvaal is being taken up again, and is making some progress.

But what has been the cause of this wonderful change? Have the Portuguese changed? Does its Government now bring prosperity and advancement in its train? Nothing of the sort! British prosperity and British advancement tell here, as elsewhere, and have transformed the whole scene! The Edinburgh Evening Despatch shall tell us the story. Thus:—

The magic which has wrought the change at Delagoa Bay is the discovery of gold in the De Kaap district and other places on the eastern slopes of the Lobombo Mountains, to which Lorenço Marques is the nearest and readiest point of access. The notable feature to which Mr. O'Neill calls attention is "the rapid extension of British interests in the district, and their growingly permanent nature." There is not merely a transitory stream of diggers, storekeepers, speculators, and the like, with their supplies, on their way to Barberton and other gold workings in the Transvaal, but permanent British colonies for cattle raising and for securing the transit trade to the interior, are growing up at the points of contact of British and Portuguese influence in Eastern Africa. Nothing is more curious, says Mr. O'Neill, than the manner in which the district is being Anglicised; here, if nowhere else, the commercial instincts of the race are seen in full force. The only steamer regularly plying upon the Lemby River—the smallest of the five streams of this African "Punjaub"—is the property of a Scotsman. Stages have been formed for the crossing of the unhealthy track of low country between the head of navigation and the Lobombos, and storehouses planned at either end. The "strong, eager rush for gold" is drawing prospectors from the Kaap River mining centres along the slopes of the mountains and courses of the streams in search of auriferous reefs; and the question of Portuguese authority over such powerful chiefs as Gungunhana, of the Gaza country, is on the point of being raised. A deposit of coal has been found upon the Umbelosi, another of the Delagoa Bay rivers, within fourteen miles of carriage by water; and should it prove of good quality, it will be exceptionally well placed for competing with Natal coal. The popularity and strength of British influence among the natives are exhibited in some amusing forms. There is "an increasing circulation of blacks" between Delagoa Bay and the centres of industry in our South African colonies—Durban, Port Elizabeth, and Kimberley—and the travelled Swazi or Tonga who left his native land without so much as a rag on his back, returns at the end of two or three years with "well-lined pockets." The native wealth of the country, indeed, consists of the native "savings" in the South African Colonies. English money is the currency of the district; and Portuguese coin is unknown outside the public offices. Even in the Public Works Department at Lorenço Marques, when the officials attempted to pay the Kaffirs in Portuguese silver, they refused in a body to accept it, saying, "This is no money;" they would only take the Queen's shilling. The English language, in a miserably clipped condition, is also current. The natives are very content to admit the white men and the white coinage, so long as both are British; they have been encouraged by the experience of the Swazi King, who, under British protection, has found that while his coffers have been filled his rights have been rigidly respected. For one concession he pocketed the other day £3,000 in hard cash. The chiefs of the Gaza, Mashona, and Manica countries, where report says the richest gold-bearing strata are to be found, would not object to entertain prospecting parties on these terms. But an attempt to thrust Portuguese sovereignty and Portuguese regulations upon them would be likely to bring about lively times at the Gold-fields and Delagoa Bay.

Digitized by Google

Such is this interesting account, founded on the report of Her Majesty's Consul near the spot, as the result of a personal inspection of the country. It is the old, old, story! The British are Israel; and to Israel God gave certain and special valuable blessings, which have led to the results we see reported at Delagoa Bay. To the House of Joseph God gave, by the hand of His prophet Moses, the following privileges and blessings, as Deut. xxxiii. 15, R.V. shows:—They were, first, "the chief things of the ancient mountains"; second, "the precious things of the everlasting hills"; and third, "the precious things of the earth, and the fulness thereof," with the "good will" of God Almighty! What these "precious things" of "the ancient mountains, and of the everlasting hills" are, is shown by the quotation which appears above! They are the gold deposits of Barberton and De Kaap; the auriferous reef of the Lobombo Mountains; and the coal of the Umbelosi River! Given these, because the British are Israel, and because God is faithful, the British, as a consequence, succeed to the possession of the whole country, since they are the purveyors of the wealth God has given them, and because, being a just and upright nation, the native races declare for their protectorate, and are ready to submit to them alone, inasmuch as their rule brings wealth, safety, prosperity, and power; and since they are "the seed the Lord hath blest." The nations, seeing the result and consequences of such selection, are ready to obey them as they will not obey the Portuguese, to whom, by a foolish and fatal decision, under French arbitration, the land belongs (Isa. lxi. 9). These are glorious and splendid facts, and should fill with shame those who are foolish enough still to say to us, "Cui bono?" "What good?" Let Delagoa Bay reply "What good?"—Let Lorenço Marques say "What good?" Let the Swazie races, and the Amatongas, who enjoy, or wish for, British rule, tell our blind opponents "Cui bono?" The bonum is God's blessing; which the world at large appreciates, if our blinded antagonists do not! The Scotsman who has obtained the fee simple of the steamer plying on the Lemby River, is only an agent in the hand of God to give Israel access to the regions beyond, and to procure for his British fellow-countrymen "the power to get wealth," which God granted to Israel exclusively by a covenant of salt for ever (Deut. viii. 18). Finally, Delagoa Bay is a veritable "Gate," strategically placed; and is not the promise of God to Israel respecting the Gates in Gen. xxii. 17, likely to be fulfilled to the British only, as the above clearly shows it is being fulfilled; and is not the English language already beginning to prevail in that remarkable spot, to the praise of the faithfulness of Him who promised that the House of Israel should "spread abroad to the West, and to the East, and to the North, and to the South," carrying, as they were bound to do, their own language with them? Our evidence is accumulating. Let our clergy and our opponents deal with it. What is occurring at Delagoa Bay has taken place in India from end to end of that immense Asiatic possession, in North Borneo, in Australasia, in New Guinea, in Cape Colony, in Natal, all over North America, and apparently is about to occur in South America as well. Why this monotony of recurrence? What theory explains it all? Only one! Our British Identity with the Ten Tribes does; and nothing else can! Therefore we invite all who reflect on these facts to acknowledge the faithfulness of the God of Israel to His promises, and to praise His glorious, gracious name, for His mercies to our ungrateful, unworthy nation. For verily our own worthiness is nil; but our righteousness is exclusively the Lord's! (Isa. xliv. 1—25; liv. 17; 2 Cor. v. 21).

LORD SALISBURY AT THE MANSION HOUSE BANQUET.

On August 10th, the Prime Minister made the usual annual statement at the Lord Mayor's Banquet, dealing with various public matters of interest to this nation. In regard to Egypt his remarks were particularly interesting just now. Again and again his lordship has given assurances, which he repeated on the 10th of August, that "we are bound not to leave Egypt until we have secured for her the blessings of order and independence, and complete protection alike against external attack and internal sedition." Now when we remember that Egypt is an Eastern power, a Musselman nation, "a base kingdom" (to use the language of Scripture applied to that very land in Ezek. xxix. 14, 15), we wonder how long his lordship thought our duty would in all probability compel us to remain in Cairo and Alexandria before we could safely retire? We have a case in point in India. There, as a matter of fact, we are endeavouring to teach the nations to govern themselves, and have given them such a share in the civil and judicial government of their land, that we may say all the subordinate offices of the judicial as well as of the fiscal and magisterial departments of the state are already in their hands. Only the supreme direction of affairs is in that of Englishmen, Scots and Irishmen.

The natives of India have been under tuition for over 100 years. But are they one iota nearer the point of self-government than they were when we began? Could they defend themselves if we withdrew our troops? and could the machinery of government work if it were made over into their hands? Those who know India best are well aware how absurd this question is. No Asiatic government can subsist an hour in the presence of a stronger armed Power in the vicinity. If we were to leave India to-morrow there would be a scramble for power at once, in which the Sikhs would contend with the Mohammedans, and the Mahrattas with both, leaving India, North, South, East, and West, a ruin, till the Russians appeared on the scene, and reduced them all to obedience and Muscovite civilisation—such as it is—to prove to us how absurd it were to expect that Asiatics can govern themselves.

The Egyptians are in even worse plight. They are as incapable of self-government as the Hindoos. They have had no experience of autonomy. They have always leant upon some foreign Power to rule for them, and, as Lord Salisbury said, they require, before we can leave them, that measures be taken "to enable them to go on in their own way, safe from internal sedition, and safe from external attack." Meanwhile we are conferring blessings on the Egyptians which are priceless in their value. Here is Lord Salisbury's enumeration of them;—

Digitized by Google

"In the meanwhile it is pleasant, at all events, to think that our sojourn in that country is accompanied with the greatest benefits to those among whom we are dwelling (hear, hear). The law is being improved and civilised; the great burdens on the fellaheen resulting from the corvée are being gradually removed; large tracts of country are being brought into cultivation; the foundations of future national prosperity are being laid, broad and strong; and whatever the issue may be, however long, in the fulfilment of the duty that fate has laid upon us, it may be necessary for us to continue our care of this much tried country, we may feel that we are pursuing an object which confers upon us no immediate benefit, but is subservient to the highest interests of philanthropy and of humanity" (cheers).

These words, uttered on a great occasion by the leading statesman of Israel, points one back to Isa. xix. 20, where Egypt's cry unto the Lord because of the oppressors moves Him to send them "a saviour, and a great one, and he shall deliver them." "The great and mighty" nation is the "great one" promised, and he has delivered Egypt, and will yet more surely deliver her from all her oppressors, and all the wrongs they have caused her to suffer. Lord Salisbury admitted that our military occupation of Egypt was probably offensive to "many Musselmans, and to some Christians." So is our occupation of India offensive to quite forty millions of Musselmans, and to the entire nation of Christian Russians! But is that any reason why we should ruin India's 200 millions of Hindoos to please her forty millions of Mohammedans? Nor is the reason assigned any ground why we should offer to give Egypt over to insurrection and political ruin in order that some Turks and Arabs may feel less sore, or that thirty millions of Frenchmen who are galled at our stay in a country that they refused to protect against Arabi Pasha may rejoice at our departure. Yet to give that foolish satisfaction to "many Musselmans, and some Christians," Lord Salisbury was ready to sign a Convention to scuttle out of Egypt whether our work were done or not in three years' time, and was only saved from that piece of folly by God's interposition and mercy towards His blind people Israel! The Convention, happily, is dead and gone! We owe no thanks for that happiness to Lord Salisbury or to his government. We owe it to God only, who has refused to let His chosen ones be compromised by the weakness of their ministers. The failure of the Convention enables Lord Salisbury to see that we are still bound "not to part with the control of Egyptian affairs till order and security have been placed beyond all doubt." But what if the Turks had signed the Convention, and France and Russia had wisely assented to its terms? Then would his lordship have looked back with anguish at his missed opportunity, and been compelled, probably at the cost of war, to recover his hold of Egypt for his country's and India's sakes! The end, however, is satisfactory, and we may all rest content to know that Egypt is still under Britain's wing, and that she will so remain till God's plans for the restoration of Israel and of Judah to the land of their inheritance shall have been further advanced. We thank God for Lord Salisbury's reassuring speech, and we call upon our readers to praise Him, to whom alone praise is due, for His late blessings to our blind and careless people in reference to the land of Egypt.

MORE ABOUT THE GATES OF ISRAEL'S HOME.

THE subject of the Home Gates of the British ought to be interesting to the latter, since we spend enormous sums to safeguard and protect them from possible invasion. In the East of Kent, in the Isle of Thanet, we find, on reference to the maps, that there are no less than five places to which is attached the very name of "Gate." First, there is Westgate-on-the-Sea, Margate, otherwise called "Mere-gate," Newgate, then Kingsgate, and, lastly, Ramsgate—five towns or villages on the East or sea-coast of the county of Kent, to which are assigned the name which has a Scriptural significance in connection with God's people Israel.

All these Gates, be it remarked, are sea-ports, or sea-gates; "ways" leading from the land, through the chalky cliffs, to the sea, and from the ocean opening ways or "paths of entry" into the land for voyagers to this country by way of the sea. These five are Kent's "Home Gates." The guide-books cannot say distinctly whence the names were derived. In regard to Ramsgate, the derivation is alleged to be from "ram," strong, and "Grela," a gate. This was a strong Gate in the time of the Romans, though as to that fact and the derivation itself there is admitted to be great doubt. Another derivation is Ramis-gate, or "Rimu's Gate," or Roms-gate, a word derived from "Roman's Gate," because it was thought that in the time of the Romans they made use of it. Margate, on the other hand, is clearly another form of "Mere Gate," a gate into the sea. Being a notoriously healthy spot, the motto of the borough arms is "Porta maris Portus Salutis"—"The Gate of the sea (i.e., Margate) is the harbour of health." Westgate-on-the-Sea, and New Gate, and King's Gate, all respond to their respective names. The one is "the Gate of Kent,' abutting on the sea, to the West; the next is a New Gate, discovered late in time as a pleasant spot, and the last is the "King's Gate," to dignify the Gate with the attribute of royalty. These five places are maritime Gates belonging to Israel's land, and they have this promise attached to them, that they shall be always open, not shut by day or by night, that through them the wealth of the nations—the French, Germans, the Dutch and Danes—may be poured into Kent, and "their kings led with them."

The Isle of Thanet is contiguous to French and Dutch territory, and lies almost defenceless before them; yet Israel takes no heed to safeguard them. The French, the Germans, and Dutch pour into the places represented by three of these Gates, and help to enrich them. But no attempt has ever been made to capture them in view to the subjection of Israel's capital and their Home Gates in general. The reason now is obvious. These and the other Gates of Israel are all under the guarantee of God's protection. No one can touch them, or do them harm. They are open night and day, never shut at all; and through and by them pleasure-seekers pour into Israel's land, bringing their wealth with them, and enrich the residents and country-side around.

These five Gates—actually so called—are a sample of the whole coast of Great Britain and Ireland. The entire littoral is open to attack, open continually by day and by night, yet no one ever attempts to molest us, or to wrest from us through them our beloved Fatherland! They remain secure and safe because God promised Israel they should so abide. The promise of the Gates lies at the foundation of all God's good gifts to His people. The foreign Gates are ours to consolidate our power abroad, and make the outside world our own, to bring it to Christ. The Home Gates, like those of the Island of Thanet, are ours, secure and safeguarded for ever, in order that the heart of the Empire may never be pierced, and so the colossal edifice of Christ's kingdom may never be brought into peril even for an hour. Little do the pleasure-seekers at Westgate-on-the-Sea, at Margate and Ramsgate, reflect that the beautiful beaches in which they always seem to find such pleasure, are God's good gifts to them and their children for ever, preserved and guaranteed to them, and to them alone, for all time to come, from invasion from their foreign foes, and from capture by their enemies. The Goodwin Sands, just opposite to Ramsgate, are one portion of the earthly means God uses to protect the East coast of Kent, and the powerful home squadron of the British Navy doubtless constitutes another. But we may be sure of this, that these means alone would never suffice to protect this rich country and the wonderfully wealthy metropolis that lies only eighty miles away to the West, were not other influences at work to help Israel. God Himself stands pledged to save us and our chief city from these potent dangers. He has declared that our Gates, our home ports, shall never be closed by the violence of our foreign foes, but shall be open, free, and safe, day and night, continually, and that solely because we are His people Israel. Are not these blessings of infinite value to us as a nation? and do they not call for praises to our God, the God of Israel, from us, His beloved people, who are indeed to Him as the apple of His eye (Zech. ii. 8)?

Digitized by Google

Since the above was written, we have been perplexed as to the meaning of Broadstairs, a real Gate between Margate and Ramsgate, a cheerful little spot, admirably suited for a port of entry into or exit from the Isle of Thanet. Our friends the guide-books again came to our aid, and tell us what follows:—"Broadstairs, or Bradstow (the Saxon for BROAD GATE), so called originally from the broadness of the Gate, or way, into the sea, has had its praises sung in inimitable fashion by Charles Dickens," &c. There are many other spots on the coast of the Isle of Thanet called Stairs, or Stow, and these places, therefore, are also "Gates" in the strict sense of the word. Kent, in fact, abounds in "Home Gates," and to all of them the promise of Isa. lx. 11 applies.

MR. D. T. BATTY, OF MANCHESTER, REPLIES TO PROFESSOR JOSEPH BAXENDELL.

MR. D. T. BATTY returned to the charge in the Manchester Courier, and the following reply to Professor Baxendell's letter appears in that journal in continuation of the correspondence we re-published on page 331 of our own issue on August 10:—

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

To the Editor of the "Manchester Courier."

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me a small space in your columns so that I may not be understood to acquiesce in the deductions arrived at by your correspondents, Joseph Baxendell and W. Hull, who, although not exactly contradicting my statement, are at least at variance with my idea that Christianity in its purity, and not ethnological causes, is to be the greatest factor in the renovating of mankind. Your correspondents must excuse me if I do not follow them in their arguments, and fail to see how the purposes of the Almighty would be consistently served by choosing those tribes who, out of all the others, had excelled in wickedness to the extent that by their idolatry they had (in a degree similar to the Greeks and Romans) become absorbed in other nations, and thus lost their identity. To my mind your correspondents' reading of prophecy is not the correct one, for, as the prophecies in the main are centred in Christ, and consequently His kingdom, which was to follow, was to be not of an earthly character, it is obvious to me that a spiritual and not a temporal power is shadowed forth by the prophets, and can only be represented by Christianity in its pure original form, which did not teach temporal domination.

Yours, &c., D. T. BATTY.

10, Cathedral-yard, July 8, 1887.

We think a few remarks on Mr. Batty's letter may not be out of place by way of reply. He believes prophecy does not contemplate any but a "spiritual kingdom," since the kingdom is to be Christ's, and "Christianity in its purity, and not ethnological causes, is to be the greatest factor in regenerating mankind." We pause at this extraordinary sentence, and ask Mr. Batty where in the four corners of the Bible he has found it stated that God meant to renovate mankind by "Christianity in its purity" (whatever that may mean) independently of "ethnological" agencies?—that is, of a flesh and blood instrumentality, "a nation and a company of nations," such as that to which we can point as a fulfilment of the prophecies? Mr. Batty must have read his Bible to little purpose if he fails to see that the Lord Jesus Himself declared that "the kingdom of God should be taken from the Jews," with whom it had till then resided, "and be given to a nation (ethei) bringing forth the fruits thereof." Not a word is said here about a "spiritual Power," but a distinct declaration is made that "the kingdom of God" was henceforth to be transferred to "a nation"—one of the Gentile, ostensibly non-Israelite Powers, existing outside Palestine. This is in accordance with our views, but not in accordance with Mr. Batty's! "A spiritual Power," pure and simple, the world has no knowledge of, unless the papacy as at present constituted, and stript of temporalities, may be regarded as "a spiritual Power." Surely Mr. Batty does not believe the Pope to represent that Power to-day, or that Roman Catholicism is the "Christianity in its purity," to which he believes the Lord intended "the kingdom of God" to be transferred?

Mr. Batty failed to consult the Scriptures before he formulated his ideas as to what prophecy means in regard to the agency God has chosen whereby to "renovate" mankind. He chose Israel to do this work, as God's oath to Abraham should teach Mr. Batty. In Gen. xxii. 17 we read that in Abraham's seed "all the nations of the earth were to be blessed." In Isa. xxvii. 6, R.V., we find prophecy confirming that prediction, for it is there declared, "In the days to come Jacob shall take root. Israel shall blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit." That the "Israel" so distinguished is no mere spiritual Power deprived of temporalities, like the papacy of to-day, but is a "great and mighty nation," according to the prophecies, is manifest from Micah v. 7, 8, where the spiritual and temporal power of Israel are both clearly defined. Zech. x. 6—9 is equally explicit, proving as it does that Joseph or Israel, alias Ephraim, is in the days of the Christian dispensation to be a multitudinous wide-spread Power, "increasing as they have increased," "sown among the peoples" of the earth, dwelling in far countries, remembering Jehovah there; "living with their children" in such localities, and destined to "return"; a people coming out of Egypt, gathered out of Assyria, strengthened in the Lord (therefore weak without Him), "walking up and down in His name," therefore a Christian people.

Such is Ephraim's portrait, according to Zechariah, the Hebrew prophet! He represents them to be a people "like a mighty man;" therefore a great, and strong, and mighty nation, "rejoicing as through wine," rejoicing and glad in the Lord, rejoicing in their children, who see all this prosperity, and are glad. Here we have the picture of a great and glorious temporal, yet Christian nation, and not only a "spiritual," nondescript Power such as Mr. Batty imagines. The factor, in short, of the "renovation of mankind" is, according to God's Word, the House of Israel—"a seed whom the Lord hath blessed" (Isa. lxi. 9).

But, says Mr. Batty, "how can the purposes of the Almighty be consistently served by the choice of tribes who, out of all others, had excelled in wickedness to such a degree, that by their idolatry they had become lost among the nations, and absorbed by them?"

Here, again, we must charge Mr. Batty with defective acquaintance with the Scriptures. It is quite true that the Tribes of Israel were all that Mr. Batty alleges: yet he must be a bold man who denies that God "chose" them out of all the nations to do His will, evil and wicked as they always were! Why God so acted let Mr. B. learn from Deut. ix. 5—7. There he is fully answered! God promised Abraham, and He cannot lie. Therefore, He gave Israel—unworthy Israel—His favour, His love, and His abounding blessings.

In Deut. vii. 6—9 Mr. B. may learn another lesson, of which he is in much need to-day. He can learn how it comes to pass that God can continue to love so recreant a people. God "chose Israel," and set His love on her for two reasons:—1st, Because He loved Israel; and 2nd, Because He would keep the oath He sware unto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob! These considerations go for nothing to Mr. Batty, because he is unable to recognise God's faithfulness to His sworn covenants. But God is not as Mr. Batty; for He delights to remember His promises to His servants, and to keep them. Herein the power of God is manifested; for He works with the most unlikely and unworthy agents, giving such "more grace," and fitting them for His purposes. Israel He "made, formed, and created," in order "that they might show forth His praise." But Israel was unworthy in the beginning, is unworthy now, and will be unworthy to the very end! "Where, then," cries Mr. Batty, "is their qualification for the service of God?" Their righteousness, like Mr. Batty's (if he is to be a saved man) is of God! Let Isa. liv. 17, xlv. 25, and 2 Cor. v. 21 teach him that. God redeemed Israel, sprinkled Israel with the precious, precious blood, and covered her with the robe of Jesus' righteousness, and, behold! an agent fitted for the work, however vile she may be, and is, intrinsically!

Digitized by Google

But "temporal dominion" is not, according to Mr. Batty, the qualification God gives to His spiritual "kingdom." Is it not? Abraham and his seed were destined to be "heirs of the world" (Rom. iv. 13). "The kingdom and dominion and greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven is to be given to the people of the saints of the Most High," and they are "the children of Israel," with Jesus for their King! (Dan. vii. 27; Psa. cxlviii. 14).

Mr. Batty, therefore, is wrong from first to last, and his mistake arises from failure to realise the character of God, and from judging of Him as if He were a man who can change, and the son of man who can repent and lie! Numbers xxiii. 19 will inform Mr. Batty of the character of the Being with whom we all have to do. "He is not a man that He should lie, nor the son of man that He should repent. . . . He hath not beheld iniquity in Jacob, neither hath He seen perversity in Israel." And why? Because "the Lord His God is with Israel, and the shout of a king is among them." He has chosen Israel to be His people for ever; and God (the God of Israel) cannot change! Oh! let Mr. Batty praise the Lord for this good news, and learn to regard Him as "the Father of Israel," "Ephraim"—idolatrous Ephraim—being "His first-born" (Jer. xxxi. 9).

HOW THE EMPIRE GROWS.

EXTENSION OF BRITISH TERRITORY AT THE CAPE.

It is officially announced that the Queen has been pleased to direct letters patent to be passed under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom providing for the annexation of certain territory in South Africa, commonly called the Rode Valley, to the colony of the Cape of Good Hope.—Manchester Evening News, Aug. 3rd, 1887.

There is very little feeling here, either way, respecting the failure of the Egyptian Convention. The Government are undoubtedly gainers; they have shown a willingness, which Liberals fully admit, to get out of Egypt, and they are now left with a freer hand. M. de Freycinet's policy in refusing to join England to suppress Egyptian disorder was a strange mistake, but not so grave as the line taken by the Count de Montebello in virtually encouraging the Turk to prolong our stay in Egypt, now we have got there. France and Russia are distinctly responsible for keeping open this Egyptian question, as these two Powers are likewise responsible for the absence of any settlement in Bulgaria. As a consequence, all the other States in Europe are drawing more closely together, and the sympathy of public men in this country is distinctly settling more and more strongly in the direction of Germany. The latest news from Constantinople leads to the belief that though Sir H. D. Wolff has left that city, the Sultan may after all screw up his courage to ratify the Convention. Whether he does or not, matters little; whether he signs or refuses Lord Salisbury is a gainer in many ways, and perhaps he gains most if his Majesty still holds out.—Manchester Evening News, July 19th, 1887.

THE "SEVEN TIMES" OF ISRAEL'S PUNISHMENT AND "THE TIMES OF THE GENTILES."

By Geo. Nelson Walsh.

(Concluded from page 351.)

PART II.

5. The House of Israel being now in a lost condition our interest is necessarily transferred entirely to the House of Judah. The era we have now to consider begins B.C. 607 and ends 1878. Like the one last mentioned it has a double significance, embracing as it does, the most acute period, alike of Gentile ascendency and Jewish depression. Its initiatory date is that of the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar, and marks the fateful epoch whence Judah's captivity dates its first commencement. God's mercy however had not been exhausted by His people's flagrant and repeated provocations, and as Israel's Burial was not to be a thing interminable, so likewise was Judah's Banishment not to be without hope of an eventual return. The tender solicitude evinced for Israel's welfare in the following divine declaration: "I will take you from among the heathen, and gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land. Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and will give you an heart of flesh, and I will put My spirit within you, and cause you to walk in My statutes, and ye shall keep My judgments and do them. And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers and ye shall be My people, and I will be your God" (Ezek. xxxvi. 24—28). And a hundred other such like precious passages scattered throughout the Word of God, attest the unchangeable love of Jehovah for the people of His choice, and His never-failing interest in their concerns, temporal and spiritual; whilst His faithfulness, as a covenant-keeping God, has been exemplified, times without number, in the case of Ten-Tribed Israel; and in the fulness of time is at length beginning to be made manifest in Judah's case also, as witness the striking and unmistakable evidence afforded by the Anglo-Turkish Convention of 1878, which secured to British-Israel a reversionary interest (euphemistically designated a Protectorate) in the Holy Land, by which she has appropriated, in prospect at least, that glorious country as her own; a proceeding which is certain to eventuate, at the time appointed, in its full possession as the joint inheritance of Israel and Judah.

6. We have now arrived in the due chronological order of events, at the sixth and last phase of these eventful and troublous times. It was ushered in B.C. 596, by the bitterest trials and humiliations, unless we except the sacking of Jerusalem by Titus between six and seven centuries later, which the Jews have ever had to undergo. The last of their kings and his sons were cruelly put to death, perhaps in the vain hope of putting an end to all chance of a successor to David's throne; their nobles, and all that still remained of the learned and skilful in the land, were carried captive to Babylon; their beautiful metropolis was utterly destroyed, and its walls broken down; but worst of all—for the culminating point of misery was not reached till then—their glorious temple, of which they were so justly proud, built by Solomon, and consecrated at its dedication by the presence, in the form of a cloud, of Jehovah Himself, was ruthlessly demolished and razed completely to the ground. Could desolation be more complete!

Sad, however, as were the troubles and sufferings of this distressful period, they will be more than compensated by the glory yet to be revealed, a glory transcending all that has gone before it, the glory of what may be termed Restoration Times, whose first dawning we are, I think, justified in expecting to take place about the year 1889, but the date of whose close, at the Second Advent and the commencement of millennial blessedness, appears as yet to be shrouded in impenetrable mystery.

Digitized by Google

In these "Restoration Times," for which she has waited so long, so anxiously, and yet so patiently, Judah has received the assurance that "For your shame ye shall have double; and for confusion they shall rejoice in their portion: therefore in their land shall they possess the double: everlasting joy shall be unto them." . . . "For since the beginning of the world men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye seen, O God, beside Thee, what He hath prepared for him that waiteth for Him" (Isa. lxi. 7; lxiv. 4.)

Before closing my paper, I have one or two observations to make, as already intimated, on "the Times of the Gentiles." These "Times" synchronise with the fourth and fifth periods given in my first diagram, and are both divisible into two equal portions of 1,260 calendar years each (Time, Times, and half a Time). The one which agrees in point of time with the fourth period of the diagram, dates its rise from the foundation of the Babylonian Empire, B.C. 637, by Nabopolassar, the first of the four great Gentile Powers mentioned in the seventh chapter of Daniel. Its central date is A.D. 607, the foundation year of Papal supremacy by decree of the Emperor Phocas; and it runs out in the year 1848, a revolutionary epoch, when every Gentile Power in Europe was shaken to its very base. This latter portion of the era gives the measure of the Western or Papal Apostasy's duration, whose power has been felt principally by the British-Israel section of the Hebrew race.

The other Gentile era starts from the subjugation of the kingdom of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar, B.C. 607. Its middle date is A.D. 637, when Jerusalem fell into the hands of the Saracens, and "the Abomination of Desolation" was set up; and terminates A.D. 1878, when authority over the Holy Land passed out of the hands of Gentiles into that of Hebrews. The second half of this period represents the duration of Mahomedan tyranny, which chiefly affected the happiness of Jewish Israel. "The Times of the Gentiles" may be illustrated thus :—

It will be noticed that in this division of "the Times of the Gentiles" into two equal periods, the sovereignty of the first 1260 years (1242 solar) is altogether of a temporal character, whilst in the second it is a blending of the temporal and spiritual together. So will it be with the empire of Israel and Judah. Until "Restoration Times" the rule remains a purely temporal one, but when freed from the trammels of Papal and Mahomedan thraldom it will become partly temporal and partly spiritual. This is the kingdom whose throne shall be established in righteousness, whose dominion is an everlasting dominion, which Daniel compares to a stone which became a mountain and filled the whole earth, and to whose beneficent sway our Lord Himself makes frequent allusion in His discourses, under the appellation of "the Kingdom of God."

There is also a third era of Gentile domination, whose occurrence falls between the two already mentioned. As however the second moiety of its existence (the 1,260 years of spiritual apostasy) is not entirely confined to either the Papal superstition of the Western Empire, or the Mahomedan heresy of the Eastern, I have not thought well to give it a place in a diagram. Nevertheless it may be regarded, in some respects, as the most important of the three. It opens with Nebuchadnezzar's first attack upon Judah, B.C. 615, in the first year of his reign, being the first marked development of Gentile supremacy over the Jews. It is bisected, A.D. 628-9, by Mahomet's conquest of Mecca, the crowning event of the prophet's career; and winds up with the wresting from the feeble grasp of Papal Rome of the last shred of its long declining temporal power, A.D. 1870.

If I have not already spun this article out to immoderate proportions I should like to add, by way of conclusion, that we appear to be gaining a clearer insight into the meaning of the "thirty days" and "forty-five days" which in the concluding chapter of Daniel are added to the "Time, Times, and half a Time," whereby two new eras are formed, of 1,290 and 1,335 years respectively. The former very possibly denotes the prolongation of Papal power for another thirty years from A.D. 1848 to A.D. 1878, in order that the period of its more rapid decadence may be made to synchronise with the speedy effacement of Mahomedan or Turkish rule, and thus as the prophet writes, "to consume it unto the end." It is certainly worthy of note that in the latter year the last of the popes who combined temporal with spiritual authority, passed away.

The "forty-five days" may give the clue to the duration of the "Restoration Times," which fill up the interval from A.D. 1878 to the introduction of the millennial era of blessedness. During the greater part of the time, it will probably be a season of dire war, and grievous tribulation for all the Gentile nations of Europe, but (with one memorable and short exception, the campaign narrated in Ezek. xxxviii. and xxxix.) of progressive peace and prosperity to the Twelve-Tribed House of Israel. Its end will usher in universal peace and goodwill, for we are told, "Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days."

AN OLD OBJECTION UNDER A NEW PHASE.

By Joseph Thomson.

Our old friend, "The Physiological Objection," has not been called upon lately to do duty by our opponents. We dare not hope that it is dead, and for ever set to rest by the arguments of ardent Anglo-Israelites, who cannot see that the descendants of Ephraim, or of others of the Ten Tribes, must necessarily bear a close family resemblance to those of Judah. That the contrary may be the fact, and that a great contrast may be discerned between them, every unprejudiced mind will admit as a natural thing. But that even among the Jews themselves, there may be much variety, will hardly be so readily admitted. And yet there is evidence to show this; and that the ordinary type of Jewish feature was not the original one may also be suspected from another natural law, by which creatures, once domesticated but allowed to degenerate and become wild, will revert to their original type. That this same phenomena may not be observed in the case of man, where a family, tribe, or nation has long been subject to hardships and persecution, no one conversant with the subject of "heredity," and "reversion to the original type," will be in a hurry to deny; but, on the contrary, rather investigate impartially any evidence that may even appear to point in this direction.

Digitized by Google

In his "Underground Jerusalem,"* speaking of the Jews, Captain (now Sir Charles) Warren says:—"In England, where they are supposed to number only 12,000, we consider the Jews as having particular characteristics, dark eyes, hooked nose, dark complexion, ruddy or florid cheeks; but these peculiar features are quite wanting among the Jews of Jerusalem; in fact, an English Jew who happened to be living there, was in no way whatever similar in appearance to others of his nation" (p. 365).

The bulk of the Jews in Jerusalem, Captain Warren says, came from Poland and Morocco; the former are called Ashkenazim, the latter Sephardim. The Sephardim number about 4,000, are subjects of the Porte, and not under the protection of any European Power. They say that they were colonists in Spain at the time of the Crucifixion, and, therefore, are not in any way subject to the curse uttered by the Jews at Jerusalem:—"His blood be upon us, and on our children." In the reign of Ferdinand and Isabella they were expelled from Spain on account of their religion, and found shelter chiefly in Morocco, while others are scattered in various distant countries, including Palestine, where they "still speak the Spanish language, though they also know something of Arabic; they dress in Oriental costume, and have the same features as the Morocco Jews; i.e., light, or often red, hair, with hooked nose; sometimes, however, the nose is straight. They are a robust race, industrious, and accustomed to hard work, honest, straight-forward," and so far as Captain W. knew, "cleanly in their habits. . . . They are very even in their religious feelings, quite different to their Polish brethren; but when roused they are extremely vindictive, and difficult to appease" (pp. 357—8).

It has been suggested that the Ashkenazim are so called from Ashkenaz, son of Gomer, who settled between Armenia and Russia; but as Captain W. remarks, "if this were correct they could not be the seed of Abraham."

At the present day the Rabbis call Germany Ashkenaz; therefore the Jews living there are called Ashkenazim; just as the Sephardim receive their name from Spain, which the Rabbis similarly term Sepharad.

Captain Warren estimates the Ashkenazim at Jerusalem as about 6,000, the most part from Poland. They are, however, of "three nationalities, Austrian, Prussian, and Russian; the two former are well looked after by their consuls, but the Russian-Polish Jews lose their protection unless they return to Russia once in six months; and, as this is an impossibility to them, they would become rayahs under the dominion of the Porte, only for the exertions of the late English consul at Jerusalem, Mr. Finn, by whom authority was given to allow of their being transferred to British protection when Russia had discarded them." As Captain W. remarks, "this was a most kind and humane arrangement of our Foreign Office; for they are Europeans, quite unaccustomed to the cringing ways of the rayah, and would not fail to secure to themselves religious persecution should they lose their protection."

As a religious sect, Captain Warren fears if they "increase to any extent, without some organisation," the Ashkenazim will "cause some trouble in Jerusalem in future days, for they are subject to the wild bursts of fanatical zeal which distinguished their race so many centuries ago, and when under its influence nothing will stop their fury; they would rather be hacked to pieces than submit. In Palestine the reminiscences and climate tend to influence their religious fervour, and at times they seem scarcely amenable to reason, so carried away are they with their passions; for being all of one poverty-stricken class, living in a separate quarter of the city, there are no calmer strata of human beings to separate them, none of their own upper classes to influence them" (pp. 359—360).

In physical appearance, Captain Warren says the Ashkenazim are "singularly unlike our type of Jew. In height they are above the average, but of very slender make—quite fragile—but there is something in their independent walk which tells of a greater strength than at first one is inclined to give them credit for. They have broad foreheads, straight eyebrows—often meeting together—straight noses, full lips, and narrow chins, dark hair and eyelashes, and blue or grey eyes. They wear their hair in long straggling ringlets at each side of the face, often twelve inches in length, and they let the hair on their faces grow, but it does not often exceed three inches in length, and frequently the beard is but a few straggly tufts.

"There is something very defiant in their faces, as though they had nothing to lose and little to gain, by any act of their own. There is an irrepressible pride and presumption about this fragile wayward people," which Captain W. said he "could not help admiring. Dressed in greasy rags they stalk about the Holy City with as much dignity as if they were dressed in the richest garments, and give way to no one; years of oppression have in no way quelled their ancient spirit: and if they could only be induced to work, and become united, they would be a very formidable race, for their courage and fortitude makes up for their want of stamina" (pp. 360—361, 365).

"The women are often very beautiful, and do not appear, in comparison, so delicately made as the men. The children, when of three or four years of age, are most lovely; but as they grow up their figures are so slight that it is painful to see them, and difficult to believe that they are not in a decline, so bright is the colour of the eye, and delicate the complexion" (p. 366).

Having adduced this evidence from a trustworthy and impartial source, we now leave it to our readers to decide for themselves as to what was the original physical type of the Hebrew race;—whether the dark Jew as we now know him, or the fairer type of which Sarah, Rebekah, and Rachel were early instances.

* London: Richard Bentley & Son, 1876.

THE NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

Our friends have been long in issuing the Report of the Metropolitan Association, whose Annual Meeting took place on May 24th last, at Exeter Hall. The delay has been occasioned by the desire of the Council to embody in the Report the Address to the Queen in connection with the Jubilee, and Her Majesty's reply. These appear on pp. 30 to 32 of the Report. We are glad to know that "Her Majesty was pleased to receive the Association's dutiful Address very graciously."

The Report tells us that having received as Subscriptions and Donations the sum of £186 10s. 9d., the Council still owe £40 as rent, furnishing, &c. We trust this item is now cleared off, and that ample provision has been made by fresh subscriptions and donations for the Secretary's salary and the necessary expenses, such as rent, &c., of the new rooms. As a means to this end, and one conducive at the same time to the wider circulation of the knowledge of Our Identity, our new secretary has, with commendable zeal, held eighty meetings, lectures, or drawing-room gatherings in all parts of London, Dublin, Banff, Edinburgh, Bath, Bristol, Torquay, &c., to elucidate our subject. These meetings spread the knowledge of our Hebrew origin and promote inquiry. They add, too, we hope, to the number of those who become supporters of the Metropolitan Association, and readers also of the Banner of Israel. The secretary has fifteen lectures to deliver in Scotland during his coming visit there, and some of these are in fresh places, where the subject has not yet been mooted.

We do not comment now on the speeches which were delivered at the annual meeting, because these have for the most part appeared already in the Banner, and our readers have judged of their merits. We commend the present Report to the attention of those who desire to become acquainted with our subject, and will do all in their power to make it known. The Metropolitan Association is carrying out this object very successfully, and we wish it all prosperity, with God's blessing on its efforts.

Digitized by Google

THE FACT OF THE RESURRECTION OF THE LORD JESUS CHRIST, AND THE FACT OF THE RESURRECTION OF HIS PEOPLE, LOST ISRAEL.

We lose sight too much of the fact of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ, and how entirely it was, and is, a question of evidence. It was as much a question of evidence as the facts of His death and of His burial. What evidence was there of His death? He was crucified; He was seen, by thousands, to die; He gave up the ghost; His head fell forward on his breast; His eyes were closed and sealed in death; He spoke no more, heard no more, breathed no more! A soldier, to make sure of the legal execution, pierced His side. The spear point penetrated to the pericardium, and the blood and the serum, separated after death, flowed forth from the ruptured heart, and drained away upon the earth. The death —the natural bodily death—of the Lord was a fact testified by eye-witnesses, certified by the Word of God, recorded in contemporary Roman history, and accepted by the whole world as proved and true. So as to His burial. The dead body of Jesus was taken from the cross, it was wound in linen clothes, the napkin was about the head, and the body was laid inside the grave, secured with a stone, sealed with a public, official seal, and guarded by the military guard of His enemies, in order to prevent His body being removed; and a false tale invented that, as predicted, He had revived and risen from the dead. The fact of the burial of Jesus was fully authenticated.

But as to the resurrection. If He did not rise, then were the disciples and apostles either deceivers themselves or dupes of others. No one believes, in this day, that they were deceivers. Their testimony, that He rose, was sealed with their blood, as the witnesses thereof. They died to attest the fact. The resurrection was proved by vast numbers who saw Jesus alive and well, for many days after He rose. Above 500 brethren, at once, saw Him on one occasion. If He did not rise, then, nothing could have been easier for the Jews to prove that He was still dead, than the production of the body. They got up the story that the disciples had stolen it while the guard slept. That was an incredible statement on the face of it, and carried no weight. No one believed it! The religion, founded on the resurrection, survived, and is energetic and advancing throughout the world to-day. If the disciples, who preached this fact, were not deceived, but only dupes themselves, who was there to deceive them? and what object could such deceivers have had? The Jews had no such object! nor the Roman soldiers and authorities! There was no gain to accrue to any one by inventing the false tale. Besides, the disciples and friends of Jesus never expected Him to rise. Their settled belief seems to have been that He would rise again only at the last day; but not during their own day. Martha said so at the grave of Lazarus. "I know that he (Lazarus) shall rise again in the resurrection, at the last day." The disciples had not realised, and did not know the Scriptures, that Christ was to suffer, and was at once to enter into His glory (Luke xxiv. 26). On every ground conceivable, therefore, the evidence of the fact of Jesus' resurrection suffices to prove it. Without that evidence there is no hope for the believer, since it is the proof of the acceptance by the just God of satisfaction, sufficient for the broken law. The infinite penalty was paid; the infinite sacrifice was found ample and sufficient. The resurrection put the seal upon the sinner's acceptance with God, and the road to everlasting life was opened by the fact thus plainly and abundantly certified by the evidence adduced to prove it, that God was, and is, just, and yet could, and can, now be the Justifier of him who believeth in Jesus (Rom. iii. 26).

Such is the case stated in regard to the Lord, the King. It was meet and right that that of the people of the King, His kingdom and His subjects should be, in all respects, in correspondence, a far as possible, with His. They, nationally, died accordingly; they were buried, and must rise again. The death, the burial, and the resurrection, must be distinct facts, capable of clear and cogent evidence, adducible in the courts. Did Israel, as a polity or nation, die? Surely it did. In Isa. vii. 8 we have a date fixed for the final dislocation of the people. "Within three-score and five years shall Ephraim be broken, that it be not a people." "When Ephraim spake trembling, he exalted himself in Israel; but when he offended in Baal, he died" (Hosea xiii. 1). "After two days He will revive us," is the testimony of Hosea vi. 2; and the expression implies that the House of Israel died before they were to be "re-vived." The vision of the dry bones, in Ezek. xxxvii. 1—15, implies that the political state of Israel was that of death. It is clear then, that like her Master, Israel died. But was Israel buried? put out of sight? lost? Nothing is plainer than that, from Scripture. The burial of Israel is taught by Ezek. xxxvii. 1—15, by Hosea viii. 8, by Jer. l. 17. She is spoken of as "lost" in Jer. l. 6; Isa. liii. 6, and 1 Peter ii. 25. History corroborates the facts. It affirms that the House of Israel disappeared from the comity of nations, and that after a time she was lost to history and human knowledge. The place she now occupies has become a puzzle to the ethnologists; and so assured are most that the nation is dead and finally buried, that the majority declare the people of God have actually disappeared, and will never be recognised or appear again as a living nation. The death of Israel, and her burial, being historical and Scriptural facts, it is certain that her restoration and resurrection must finally take place. We Anglo-Israelites point to the British and say, "Behold, Israel rising from her grave!" The resurrection of the House of Joseph is as certain as the promises of God. It was predicted in Deut. xxx. 1—4; in Hosea vi. 1, 2; i. 10, 11; in Ezek. xxxvii. 1—28, and in many another Scripture.

The strange pertinacity with which men now are, in all manner of ways, declaring that "the British are Israel," that "their Identity is true," are proofs none can deny, that our arguments are correct and our teachings Scriptural. In no other country, and among no other people, is the cry raised that "the son which was dead is alive again," and the "lost found." Here in the United Kingdom, and in the British Empire alone, is the warning incessant and repeated, that "the Ten Tribes are the British races," and that the people of these realms are the remnant of Israel, inheriting the promises! For here is a people whose origin was Asiatic, and who came from Media soon after Israel's captivity there. They are occupying "isles afar off" from Palestine; "isles of the West," situated in "the North country." There they are "a great and mighty" Christian nation, living securely, "their Gates not closed night or day." They have abnormal wealth, "their enemies' Gates," the command of the sea, and are numerous beyond all former experience among nations. They have Colonies everywhere in the desolate regions of the earth; and these they have made "like the garden of the Lord." These Colonies are now "nations," all in happy union with their old "Mother in the West," and they are evidently about to Federate, and become "a nation and a company of nations." They own a "Heathen Empire," unique in magnitude and history; and "they reign over many nations," but never submit to any alien race; "lending, also, to many" such, but "never borrowing." These are only the outer fringes of the case! For these remarkable islanders are a great missionary nation, possessing the Sabbath, the Decalogue, and the love of souls, which impels them to go out abroad, to lead those men to Christ who now are aliens from Him, and outside His loving, saving, influence. They "bless all nations, families, and kindreds of the earth," and so prove by their very character and functions that they are verily "the people of God," "His chosen," "His heritage and inheritance"—Israel of the Ten Tribes, risen from the dead! And let us, therefore, praise the Lord for His mercies to our once dead, once buried, but now rising people, destined to such great things as the Scriptures most distinctly predict for them.

Digitized by Google

ANCIENT WATCHMEN INTERVIEWED.

By J. G. Taylor.

II.—CRITICAL AND APPROBATORY.

The foregoing preface contains several valuable corroborations of our belief. In the first place the writer of it tells us that Dr. Fletcher's Scythian Tartar theory was the most satisfactory solution he had met with of the difficulty as to the whereabouts of Israel. And what does this indicate? It certainly indicates that even in his day there was an extensive literature on the Lost Tribes, and that many suggestions had been thrown out respecting their geographical position. Seeing also that Lee was such a conscientious inquirer, and so thoroughly interested in this particular theme, it is obvious that his investigations would be the reverse of superficial, yet his language implies that he had not the opportunity of consulting all that had been ventured on the subject. The existence of this literature denotes in its turn that the Israelites were understood and acknowledged to be lost—in other words, that they did not accompany the Jews from Babylon and become merged in them. This contention would need a strong lining of truth to face and survive the patent fact that Israel was apparently utterly extinct as a separate community; but it is plain that there never was any hesitation in holding it, or in asserting that the tribes were safely hidden somewhere. We can easily discern from this that the idea of the amalgamation of Israel with either Jews or heathen was not seriously entertained until recent times, after every attempt at discovery had ended with failure. In strict loyalty to the fable of the fox, so long as there was a chance of our philosophers securing the grapes, the prize in view was all that could be desired, but now they find it beyond their reach the cue is changed.

A second point worthy of notice is that although Lee supported the Hebrew origin of the Scythian Tartars, he was prepared to learn that bodies of Israelites had moved considerably further away from the scene of their bondage than the Caspian, and alludes to the "lands of their remoter wanderings." This is not in harmony with the more modern and more approved deliverances on that head. One redoubtable adversary of ours invariably insists that we ought to look for and expect to obtain Israel "where she was lost." But this depends very much on whether the Israelites had legs or not. If they had, it is quite possible—nay, probable—that in the course of a thousand years they would make use of them. It was lately announced by a naval hero that the Identity had not "a leg to stand on," and one gentleman at least appears to think that the missing Israelites were in a similar predicament. Assuming that the tribes remained where they were settled by the Assyrians they would be over-run by a succession of military despots, and would have to endure the grossest forms of oppression. If they quietly submitted to this when (as we know) the means of escape were at their disposal, we must conclude that the captivity had tamed their spirit and emasculated their energies to an extraordinary degree. But the presumptions are altogether in favour of the supposition that their contact with the wild races of the Caucasus would render them fiercer and more ungovernable than ever, so that the "standstill" hypothesis is not deserving of the slightest credence.

Again, the "intermixtures" of Israel are spoken of in this preface. The Identity is frequently demurred to on the ground that if the tribes actually entered Europe they would be swamped and extinguished by Gentile hordes, or fatally deteriorated by fusion with them. Lee was manifestly alive to the likelihood of this intermixture, but it does not seem to have struck him that the swamping operation was a necessary sequel, nor was the mingling process any obstacle in his mind to their being finally and fully regathered. It is evident that our opponents have not only the happy faculty of closing their eyes to realities, but they are able to clearly detect a variety of savage animals in the path, which other people cannot perceive. The author maintains also that Israel shall return to inherit "a very glorious estate," and that the glorious estate will be temporal as well as spiritual. This will not suit Pastor Spurgeon, but it coincides with Scripture, which is much better.

Adverting to Dr. Fletcher, he opens his treatise with these remarks:—

"What is become of those Ten Tribes who were subdued and carried captives by the Assyrians, and whether they live and hold together as a people apart, or by themselves, or are confused with other nations, and where they are, is often questioned by divines, but not resolved, for aught I know, with any reasonable probability. That they have lost their name, and the distinction of their Tribes, is more than probable; for that no nation of the world are called Israel, and so divided by their tribes at this day, as anciently they were called. Neither was there cause why the distinction of their Tribes should be continued. For that men might know where to look for the blessed seed, it pleased God to elect one nation of all the world, and out of that nation one tribe or kindred, and out of that tribe one house or family, whereof the Messias should be born, who being now come, there is no cause why the distinction of their tribes should now continue. But that they are somewhere extant, and, by God's providence, as a people kept intirely and inconfused with other nations is plain by this. For that they were not destroyed, no! nor dispeopled, but only captived and transplanted by the Assyrians; and because all Israel (whereby is meant the whole nation) shall be called to the acknowledgment of Jesus Christ to be the Messias. Which general calling cannot be true, except those tribes be still continuing somewhere extant in the world to be conjoyned and re-united into one nation, as once they were."

That Israel has lost her name, that the tribes have ceased to exhibit their distinctive titles and boundaries, that they are nevertheless being preserved intact by Providence, that they have to be converted, restored, and united with the Jews into a single nation, as at the first,—is all inculcated in this extract. There is a wonderful agreement between the testimony of these ancient watchmen and the teaching of Anglo-Israelism. How, then, does it happen that the public utterances of to-day are so completely at variance with it? The simple reason seems to be that once upon a time the Bible was both read and accepted as a reliable guide in the matter of Israel's future, while at present it is neither the one nor the other.

(To be continued.)

A Singular Identity.—The Standard observes: "Is it mere accident, is it absolutely fortuitous and meaningless, that the trusted adviser of Elizabeth was the founder of the House that abides at Hatfield, and that the trusted adviser of Queen Victoria in her jubilee reign is the successor and modern representative of that capable statesman? Have we not here something more than a mere chance continuity, and do not Radical revolutionists and Conservative pessimists alike stand rebuked in the presence of this singular identity between the sixteenth and the nineteenth centuries? No doubt there is more contrast than similarity between the two most famous Queens in English history. But, at least, they have in common the instinct of elevated patriotism, and the record of a reign replete with glory. And what shall we say of the two statesmen, the two Cecils, compared and contrasted with each other across the interval of 300 years? We read of Burleigh that his policy at home and abroad was at once shrewd and cautious, liberal and comprehensive, and that as a statesman he was above all personal animosities and all favouritism, and that capacity, truth, and honour were what he sought for in public men. Is the description altogether out of date; and if we reproduced it to-day would it be an anachronism?

Digitized by Google

A SERMON PREACHED AT PORTOBELLO, N.B., ON JUNE 26, 1887, IN CONNECTION WITH THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

THE minister of the Parish Church chose for his text the following:—

"Take away the wicked from before the king, and his throne shall be established in righteousness" (Prov. xxvi. 5; Matt. xxvi. 8, last clause).

"To what purpose is this waste," has often been said within the last few days, when we saw the lavish expenditure of thought and money in connection with the Jubilee. Now I readily admit that the spending of money on public occasions very seldom does any good. But there are occasions when it is right and proper.

In the present case lavish expenditure is no waste, because the occasion is worthy of it. The wise and good Queen, the Queen whom all her subjects love, has completed the fiftieth year of her reign. It is right and proper that the people should rejoice with their Queen. It is the one opportunity which the nation has of doing this, and the lavish expenditure has only been a fitting tribute from a loyal people to their beloved Queen. Scurrilous articles on the Queen and the Royal Family have appeared from time to time in various papers. But had these articles represented the feeling of the country, the Queen's Jubilee would not have been celebrated with such enthusiasm and such lavish expenditure.

Another reason why it is not waste is, that the celebration of the Jubilee has shown how much the present form of Government is approved by the people. So that, even from a money point of view, it has served a good purpose. If such a demonstration could only be produced at every attempt at sedition, how much of the money that is used for police purposes would be unnecessary!

Again, if it has been the means of proving that this nation is still true to its God, then assuredly the expenditure has not been wasted, for unless a nation is faithful to its God it cannot prosper.

Now that the Jubilee is over, it is hardly possible for us to avoid looking into the future and speculating as to whether there will be as great changes in the next fifty years as there have been in the past fifty.

* * * * *

Looking back, as we have been doing, upon the past fifty years, could anyone say that the previous fifty were better? It is the reverse. Our country enjoys greater prosperity now than it did fifty years ago. And not only is our country excelling, but it will still maintain its greatness, and it will occupy a greater advantage over all other nations at the end of the next fifty years than it has ever done before. In some of those countries where the elective power has passed into the hands of the poorer people, it has been injudiciously used, and disorder and revolution prevailed, and ultimately ruin fell upon the nation. The British democracy, in spite of rumours to the contrary, have not yet thrown off their allegiance to their God, and there are no signs that they will ever do so. As a whole, they are a religious democracy. Whatever changes of a political character may come we may feel confident that the nation will continue to progress in all that really constitutes a nation.

Since, then, the continuance of a nation's greatness depends on its Christianity, let us pray that righteousness may prevail throughout our country. Our Queen recognises this, and she asks us this day to return thanks to God for His goodness to us. As for the moral influence that rulers have upon a nation, I would emphasise the influence that Joshua had over his people. It is said that Israel served the Lord during all the life-times of Joshua and his elders. Thus we see how the good or evil example of rulers tells in a very marked way upon the life of the whole nation. Moses, by instituting a national worship, and David and Solomon, all exercised a good influence over their people. But on the other hand, when Israel sinned, God punished them in a curious way. He took away all their great and good men, and gave them foolish men to rule over them. The consequence was, the country went down into chaos. Disorder everywhere prevailed, and the people were oppressed by their neighbours. Thus you will see from the history of these ancient people how the rulers exercised a good or bad influence. It would be easy to quote similar instances in other countries.

Let me now show you that rulers are but instruments in God's hands, to punish or help nations. "By Me kings reign, and princes decree justice," God said (Prov. viii. 15); and to Pharoah He declared, "For this cause have I raised thee up." So that we see that God is Governor amongst the nations, and that rulers are but His instruments. We should therefore pray to God that he would bless our rulers. In our public religious services we are in the habit of offering up prayers to Almighty God on behalf of the Queen and all in authority in the land. But we are specially asked to pray here to-day by our Sovereign. Every Christian in the land will readily and heartily join in her request. The very fact of her having made this request must endear her to her Christian subjects, and make her known as one of the best Queens we could ever have. Let us respond with all our hearts to her request.

Let us thank God for her long life, for her domestic happiness, for the Christian influence she has exerted over the nation, and for the wise and able men who have surrounded her throne. Let us pray that she may be long spared to reign over us, that God may bless her in her family, and in her Government, and that at last she may receive the crown that shall never fade away. Let us also pray for all under the Queen and over us; let us pray that they may have no selfish aim in view; but all for the good of our country.

Let us pray that God will give them courage to stand by good and right measures, though loss of power be the consequence, and that He will prosper the work in their hands. Never were prayers on their behalf more needed than at the present time. So long as the elective power was in the hands of the landed classes, selfish interest, if nothing else, made them seek to preserve stability in the State. And even when the power was in the hands of the middle classes, selfish interest made them dread revolution and anarchy. They had nothing to gain by it.

I observe that one of our most prominent statesmen, who has been regarded as the leader of the democratic party, was speaking, last week, of the desirability of a new national party to stand against anarchy in the State. A new party! No new party will ever be able to stand against anarchy when religion has ceased to be a power in the land. Let statesmen make a stand for religion, and make the Bible the foundation of all their legislation. Thus righteousness will prevail, and God will bless us.

We have cause for satisfaction that the Jubilee has proved that the attachment to the throne is deeply seated in the hearts of the nation. It shows that the nation is ready to acknowledge God as the great King, and "Fear God, honour the King" will still be the motto of the British nation. So long as righteousness continues to progress in the land, so long will our prosperity continue, for God has said "Happy is the people who follow the Lord." Britain shall still be a great nation of the earth, and the nations of the distant future shall come and worship at our feet, and know that the Lord has prospered us.

So far the Scottish minister. He is opposed to the Identity, as we understand—but his words are the words of one who believes that the British are Israel, and therefore, accepting him as a "blind witness" to the truth, we have much pleasure in quoting a portion of his sermon in the pages of the BANNER.

THE LORD JEHOVAH WILL NOT FORSAKE HIS PEOPLE.

WHEN our opponents tell us that it is now of very little consequence whether the British are the Lost Ten Tribes or not, we wonder whether they have read the Old Testament, or such passages in it as 1 Sam. xii., which was appointed to be the first lesson of the day in the Churches of the Establishment, on July 3, 1887. In that portion of Scripture the Prophet Samuel convinced the Twelve Tribes of their sin and ingratitude in demanding a king to reign over them, when "the Lord Himself was their King" (ver. 12). Seeing the miracle Samuel performed in their sight (ver. 18, 19), the Tribes entreated the Lord to pardon their national iniquity, asking for the prophet's prayers. What was the answer? A gracious one indeed! Samuel said unto the people, "Fear not! ye have indeed done all this evil; yet turn not aside from following the Lord, but serve the Lord with all your heart, and turn ye not aside, for then should ye go after vain things which cannot profit nor deliver, for they are vain. For the Lord (Jehovah) will not forsake His people, for His great name's sake, because it hath pleased the Lord to make you a people unto Himself." Surely the fact that the Lord has chosen a people for Himself, and has resolved never to forsake them, as a matter affecting His personal honour, must be one of the most extreme importance to the nation indicated? How any one can make light of such a distinction we cannot imagine! If they suppose that the Advent of the Son of God has made any difference, let our opponents recollect that the Lord Jesus Christ was Jehovah! He was one with the Father, coequal with Him, and identical with Him. It was His promise which Samuel, His prophet, enunciated in 1 Sam. xii. 22—namely, "The Lord will not forsake His people for His great name's sake." The Lord Jesus Christ was the Promiser then, and it was "His own name" to which He, on that occasion, appealed. If that be so (and who can dare gainsay it?), then is Israel still under the Lord Jehovah-Jesus' protection. He has not forsaken Israel, as a nation, to-day; and He will never do so in the time to come, "for His great name's sake!" It ought, then, to be a subject of the deepest concern and interest to every Christian man and woman to learn, once for all, whether the British are, or are not, the Lost Ten Tribes. For if they are, then is the Lord Jesus Christ pledged for His great name's sake never to forsake them—"For it hath pleased Him to make them a people unto Himself." These, certainly, are magnificent privileges, which we neglect and despise at our peril—privileges no sensible person, who has once grasped the meaning of the thing, could ever afford to contemn or put aside as worthless. See what the Lord's selection of our ancestors did for them, sinful and stubbornly provoking as they were to their divine King. In Ezek. xx. 9, 14, 22, 44, we have four splendid illustrations of the wickedness of the nation, and yet the goodness of the Lord in sparing them, simply because He had once chosen, and could not therefore forsake those He had made a people to Himself for His great name's sake. Egypt was the first scene of the people's provocations, as ver. 5—9 declare. There they were rebellious, idolatrous, and disobedient to the Lord, and deserved instant destruction at His hands. Did the Lord destroy them? Nay, "He wrought for His name's sake," which was pledged to protect them by His oath to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. As ver. 9 and 10 tell us, they were brought by Him out of Egypt in triumph, and led into the wilderness in safety by Him they had so grossly insulted!

Digitized by Google

But Israel's conduct in the wilderness was no better! They rebelled again against the Lord! They despised His laws and statutes, and they polluted His Sabbaths. Surely, after that, there was no more mercy for them? Nay! Again the Lord "wrought" to deliver them. His eye spared them because of His oath, and He brought Israel's little ones into the land of the inheritance, as promised to the fathers (ver. 15—17). But did the children of the Israelites in the land behave better than did their fathers? Alas! they, too, rebelled, polluted God's Sabbath, broke His laws, and incurred His wrath. Did His vengeance, therefore, fall upon them, and destroy them? Again, in ver. 22, we learn that the Lord "wrought" for His name's sake, and refused to deal with them as they deserved! He punished them repeatedly, but He never destroyed them "for His great name's sake." And finally, ver. 44 gives us the cheering tidings that the time is coming when "we shall know" (being Israel) "that He is the Lord Jehovah, when He has wrought with us for His name's sake, not according to our wicked ways, nor according to our corrupt doings, saith the Lord God." A God so merciful and loving is ours, because we are Israel, and because of His oath to our fathers. He bears with us, teaches, reforms, and corrects, but never destroys us, for His great name's sake, and because of the oath. Can we, under the circumstances, despise our birthright, and reject the only safeguard between us and the destruction of our nation—even God's choice of us and our protection from the consequences of our own national sins and iniquities, by reason of "the anointing," and of the blood of sprinkling, which is nationally ours, and that exclusively? Let us, then, turn to the Lord our God, with repentance and change of heart; but above all, let us never forget His loving-kindnesses and tender mercies in choosing us, guarding, and guiding us, and promising us such glorious blessings as He has in His holy Word; and to Him, as the King of Israel, shall be all the praise.

THE HEAD, AND NOT THE TAIL, IN GEOGRAPHICAL EXPLORATION.

GEOGRAPHY is said to be one of the sciences of which Englishmen are supremely ignorant as a nation. They are confined within the limits of two small islands in the West, and care not to inquire what the rest of the world is like. Hence the immense importance of the Royal Geographical Society, which undertakes to teach the nation the geography of the whole Empire, and of all those interesting but unknown portions of the planet, which its members are always scientifically exploring. The wonder, however, is that, as the Times observed on May 26th, "The richest fields of geographical research are within the actual dominions of the Queen of England!" The journalist adds that "her ascendancy on the ocean brings her people into immediate contact with the few remaining corners and edges not territorially overshadowed by her flag"; and "circumstances have imposed upon Englishmen an obligation of universal inquisitiveness."

The chief geographical discoveries and researches of the day are being made still by Englishmen. The Founders' Medal this year has gone to Colonel Holdich. The Patron's Medal has been won by Mr. George Grenfell for explorations in Western Africa. As the British Empire constantly advances, so the knowledge of the geography of the earth is increasing too. As a consequence thereof, the chief explorers are British subjects, and to them we are mostly indebted for our modern very wonderful advances in geographical knowledge. But if the Royal Geographical Society and its active members are doing their utmost to teach us all geography, and is constantly collecting, and putting before the world, new additions to its knowledge of this important science,—we may claim for "Our Identity," too, a potent ability to instruct the students of the subject in this necessary department of learning. For instance, any one who takes up the Identity, and prosecutes the study of the matter, is bound to understand the subject of "The Gates." He must know where they are, and what geographical facts constitute these spots Gates. He must learn, in short, "The Geography of the Gates." He must get an atlas, and take a large world-wide lesson in its geography. He must traverse the British Channel, and see how the Channel Islands are situated with respect to France, and observe that they answer to the description of "the Gates." Then Gibraltar, Malta, and Cyprus will make him familiar with the geography of the Mediterranean Sea. The Red Sea will next invite his attention. He will see that its Northern Gate is the Suez Canal, and its Southern Perim Island—Aden, and Socotra Island. Then mighty India will attract notice, and the capitals of its three Presidencies, Bombay, Madras, and Calcutta, will teach him the geographical "why and wherefore" the whole Peninsula fell to the Power which holds them, as well as the supremacy of the sea besides. The Straits Settlements will next appeal to his notice, and show him that the British settlements, Penang, Malacca, and Singapore (or the Lion's City), are the true Gates of the route to China from the West, and that this sea passage is one of the routes which lead from India to Australasia, and bring us thus to Israel in the Antipodes.

Digitized by Google

The subject of "Our Identity" leads men to go everywhere as travellers throughout the earth, and teaches them its geography! For Israel's possessions are West, and East, and North, and South; in all oceans, all lands, all regions, all climes. They are to be owners at last, as "Heirs of the World," of "the kingdom and dominion and greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven," and therefore there is no wonder that they should be forced to learn the geography of the world they are to subdue and rule. At present the ignorance of the masses of our people in respect to the form and fashion of the countries of the world, nay, even of our own Colonial and Indian dominions, is stupendous. We have heard of persons inquiring whether Adelaide is not an island in the Southern Ocean; and if Meerut is not somewhere in the neighbourhood of Madras!

The Times recognises this ignorance, and writes of it as follows:—

Among Englishmen, outside the pale of the Geographical Society, a portentous ignorance of geography reigns uncontrolled. Men who would be ashamed to confess that they had never learnt Latin do not pretend to be abashed at being caught tripping over some rudimentary geographical fact. Not till this year has the Society been able to bring to the verge of accomplishment its cherished plan for the introduction of geography into the course at Oxford and Cambridge. Before a song of triumph is sung, even now, for the promised establishment of University lecture-ships, it is well to wait for the issue. Means may be found for burying geography, like English literature, decently under antiquarianism. In the case, indeed, of geography there would be more excuse than in the other, from the entire want in the Universities of practical familiarity with the subject propounded for inquiry. At Cambridge that is recognised, and the authorities have had the modesty to invite the Geographical Society to send them a guide to sketch the general character of the unknown idea they have been asked to develop.

Whatever may be the present ignorance of our people respecting geographical knowledge, our nation is "the head and not the tail, above only, and not beneath," in regard to geographical exploration. When Our Identity becomes better known and more firmly grasped by our people, then will ignorance of geography be deemed a disgrace, and be avoided accordingly.

SUGGESTIVE EXTRACTS FROM THE LIFE OF LORD SHAFTESBURY, BY EDWIN HODDER.

FORWARDED BY L. P.

WELSH LANGUAGE.

AFTER completing his study of Welsh, Lord Ashley turned his attention to Hebrew. The two languages are alike in many peculiarities of construction, in the paucity and confusion of tenses, in the conjugation of verbs, and in the binding together in one word of some prepositions and pronouns.

ISRAEL AS BARBARIAN BRINGS A BLESSING.

It so fell out, writes Lord Ashley, that I talked of the barbaric irruption into the Roman Empire. Two ideas then passed across my mind: that it was necessary to cleanse and sweep away that structure of corruption and beastliness which had wholly obscured the real purpose and calling of mankind, and was rapidly spreading amongst all other people contiguous to the Roman world. The imperial rule embraced the entire compass of civilised existence, and both governors and governed stank alike in the sight of morality. There remained, then, no polished nation wherewith to dilute, by conquest, the quintessence of Roman profligacy. Rebellion would have been useless; it would merely have transferred the helm from the director to the agent of accursed filthiness. God, therefore, summoned to His aid the hardy and simple vices of barbarian minds; they overran Europe, and, during the night of literature, saved, by the grace of heaven, the seeds of morality. A second reason: these rude, uncultivated hearts were better qualified to imbibe the pure spirit of revelation—this is substantiated by the perusal of history. The pride, the licence, the illogicism of pagan belief (pagan as existing in the laboured and attractive ritual of Italy) might to eternity have withstood the Christian faith. The religion of Vandals, of Huns, of all tribes such as these, had nothing to gratify their pride or advance their pleasures. They were, therefore, indifferent to its perpetuation. A form of worship was all they wanted, for man will worship. Settled in prosperity, they became improved, and chose the most decent.

APPOINTMENT OF A BISHOP TO JERUSALEM.

September 29 (1838). Took leave this morning of Young, who has just been her Majesty's Vice-consul at Jerusalem! He will sail in a day or two for the Holy Land. If this is duly considered, what a wonderful event it is! The ancient city of the people of God is about to resume a place among the nations, and England is the first of Gentile (?) kingdoms that ceases to tread her down!

CAPABILITIES OF BRITISH CHARACTER.

November 9 (1840). It is really heart-stirring to read of our successes in Syria, the forward valour, the iron steadfastness, of our countrymen; wherever they go, they impart life, and soul, and energy—one midshipman does more than a hundred Turks, though they be all Seraskiers—every man is an army, every sailor a fleet, and yet the whole fleet acts as one sailor. Marvellous the effects of discipline acting on the vigour of British character! What materials for greatness! What elements for service! What instruments, should it so please God, for the alliance and protection of His ancient people, and for His final purposes on earth!

ENGLAND'S MISSION.

(1843). Let us put out of mind the great and stirring consideration that the moral condition of England seems destined by Providence to lead the moral condition of the world. Year after year we are sending forth thousands and hundreds of thousands of our citizens to people the vast solitudes and islands of another hemisphere; the Anglo-Saxon race will shortly overspread half the habitable globe! What a mighty and what a rapid addition to the happiness of mankind, if these thousands should carry with them, and plant in these distant regions, our freedom, our laws, our morality, and our religion!

"HOLD THOU ME UP, AND I SHALL BE SAFE."

March 23rd (1848). Insurrection at Berlin! Insurrection at Vienna! The Prince Metternich deposed! It is astounding at first to see how these monarchies fall! They seem as though they had no roots, nor ever had any. . . . Terror—moral, physical, and financial—is at its height, every tremendous passion is about to be unchained. France seems surrendered by God to a reprobate mind, the devil reigns for a while. . . . Mobs are everywhere triumphant, with more or less of moderation in their demands at present; the ultimate issue is certain. And we yet stand upright—a column in the midst of ruins. Glory be to Thee, O Lord!

THE IRISH PUZZLE.

January 5 (1849). . . . Ireland again distressed, and again to be relieved; all admit the fact and the necessity, but wish to throw the necessity on every shoulder but their own. . . . What is the remedy for this state of things? What is the cause of it? Is it the Celtic race? Yet we see many of this tribe in other parts of the world frugal, industrious, orderly; much may be recorded of the economy, foresight, and affection of thousands. Is it the religion? Yet I do not find, however faulty, superstitious, idolatrous, may be their belief and practice, that any physical incapacity is necessarily connected with it; in many heathen nations there may be found much temporal prosperity, and the Tuscan farmers and peasantry show by their high cultivation and general comfort that indolence and barbarianism are not inevitably the consequence of Popery. Is it national hatred to the Saxon, or pious hatred to the Protestant? or is it both combined? But if so, this would appear in Ulster, but hardly be known in Connaught, where Saxons and Protestants are as rare as a meat dinner. Is it misgovernment? Why, every measure, however excellent, and by whomsoever brought in, fails at once. And why? You can obtain no agency in Ireland—no one is to be trusted—no public, no private functionaries: all are of one complexion; whatever enters Ireland is transmuted by the prevailing atmosphere; everything acquires an affinity to job and to job it all. Whence is this?

Digitized by Google

[We believe the explanation of the above to be, that while doubtless there is a much-to-be-regretted mixture of blood in some classes in Ireland, the pure Irish are not Celts but Canaanites, destined of old to be a snare and sore trouble to the disobedient Israelites.—Ex. xxiii. 33; Num. xxxiii. 55; Josh. xvii. 13.]

ISRAEL IN BRITAIN.

Commander Roberts, R.N., recently lectured in Ilfracombe on the subject "Israel in Britain." The subject was divided into two parts, dealing with the historical and Biblical evidence showing the connection of the English people with the Israelites. His first point was that the ancient Britons, according to the histories of Diodorus Siculus, Festus Avienus, and also from the Cæsar's commentaries, bore close resemblance to the Israelites. Their trade and commerce, tools and implements, which had been unearthed, the original names of several ancient towns, and various other evidences also went to give similar proof. They worshipped one supreme God, had no images or idols, and although they were not what in the present days would be expected from a Christian or Biblical race, yet their religion was free from gross superstition and idolatries practised by surrounding nations. Then came a description of the Druidical worship, as described by Quintius Cicero, the brother of Mark Tullius Cicero. He describes their temples such as Stonehenge, their ceremonies, &c., showing that their worship was free from any barbarous customs or ideas attributed to the British. And there were traditions to show that they belonged to the children rescued from the flood. The story of the flood, of Moses in the bulrushes, of Sodom and Gomorrah, and other matters bore a close resemblance to the stories of these circumstances, as in the Bible. Then came the question. Whence came these people? It would appear that the ancient inhabitants of these islands arrived here under three heads, the Cymry, the Llocgryn, and Brythons, in about the 12th century before Christ. After having possessed land for a considerable time, eventually other tribes came over, known as the Coritani or Belgae, and these tribes not being able to trace their connection with the former inhabitants were not admitted into social intercourse with them until the ninth generation. A description of the dress and decoration of the Druidical priests was then given to show their close resemblance to the Jewish priests. A list of impartial historians, including Josephus, was quoted to show that when the exiles left Egypt the best part of them went from the wilderness under Danaus and Cadimus, passed through Syria and Sidon, then to the Phœnician Colonies, and caused all the former inhabitants who were Palasgians to take the name of Danai. Then came an account of the Trojan wars, which was a race against race, to show that the fugitives on their return found their homes appropriated by their children, and eventually they sought other shores, and by way of Illyria passed into Umbria and Etruria, and founded the great Etrurian Kingdom. Others passed into Sicily, got along by the Mediterranean, found their way to Spain, and settled at Cadiz, and eventually came through Spain into Ireland. Those who went by Thrace came over to the north and west of Britain, and arrived on these shores through the German Ocean. Those who passed through Illyria and Etruria migrated to Gaul, and formed the Celtic or Gaelic nations. Eventually the Celtic nation arrived in Britain, some through Holland, and others through Gascony. His next evidence in proof of the connection was numismatic in character. He quoted the various coins, medals, &c., &c., in proof of the course taken by these races from Egypt to Great Britain. The trident, for instance, was a Jewish symbol, and that, as everybody knew, had from time immemorial also been an English symbol. The next division of the subject was proofs from the Bible showing the connection of the English with the Israelites. He quoted the promises made to Israel in the Word of God, which were definite and clear, and which promises had been fulfilled in the English people. Remembering, in addition to this, that the present English tongue has 6,000 words in it which are primarily derived from the Hebrew, that the people inhabiting these islands as the British race have fulfilled and are fulfilling all the special characteristic features of Israel in the promises, such as being the most wealthy, most powerful, and most civilized race in the world, carrying the Gospel to all nations, lending to all nations and borrowing of none, ruling over all nationalities and being ruled over by none, he thought that there were unanswerable proofs in favour of the position which he had taken up. Was not the position which he wished to give to the British people a very noble position—one that is highly satisfactory to the British character, and that also which had been given by God to Abraham and his seed—"In blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand upon the sea shore, and thy seed shall possess the Gate of his enemies, and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed?"

ISRAEL'S SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER UNION.

The number of cards now issued, including those in the hands of the local secretaries, is 1,423, no new members having joined since our last report.

Members of the Prayer Union are specially requested to pray for the little company of Anglo-Israelites in Malta, during this time of cholera visitation, that they may pass through it unscathed, receiving grace and strength to stand without fear, as faithful servants of the Lord, and to encourage and sustain those around them.

A donation of 1s., from J. D., St. Helen's, is thankfully acknowledged.

New members are requested, when writing for cards, to kindly state whether their names are to be entered as Mr., Mrs., or Miss, &c.

For the convenience of those members who wish to continue the daily reading, the following list of chapters for September is printed:—

1st ...	Isaiah	vii.	12th ...	Isaiah	xviii.	23rd ...	Isaiah	xxix.
2nd...	,,	viii.	13th ...	,,	xix.	24th ...	,,	xxx.
3rd ...	,,	ix.	14th ...	,,	xx.	25th ...	,,	xxxi.
4th ...	,,	x.	15th ...	,,	xxi.	26th ...	,,	xxxii.
5th ...	,,	xi.	16th ...	,,	xxii.	27th ...	,,	xxxiii.
6th ...	,,	xii.	17th ...	,,	xxiii.	28th ...	,,	xxxiv.
7th ...	,,	xiii.	18th ...	,,	xxiv.	29th ...	,,	xxxv.
8th ...	,,	xiv.	19th ...	,,	xxv.	30th ...	,,	xxxvi.
9th ...	,,	xv.	20th ...	,,	xxvi.
10th ...	,,	xvi.	21st ...	,,	xxvii.
11th ...	,,	xvii.	22nd ...	,,	xxviii.

The card of membership will be sent on receipt of three stamps.

The first and second series of Monthly Comments on the whole Bible, by Philo-Israel, may be obtained in volume form. Price in paper cover, 1s. 2d. each, post free; in cloth, 2s. each, post free. The "Prayers for Daily Use," being a prayer for each day of the week, by Philo-Israel, are 1d., or 9d. per dozen, postage extra. The prayer of the Union, as on the Card of Membership, may be obtained printed in larger type, price 1d. for three copies, post free, or 1s. per 100 for distribution. Address, Miss E. Sibbald, 3, Townshend-villas, Richmond, Surrey.

Digitized by Google

ANGLO-ISRAEL FREE DISTRIBUTION FUND.

Forty-Fifth Monthly Report.

The following donations and subscriptions, from July 16th to Aug. 19th, are very gratefully acknowledged:—

By the Treasurer: F. H. G., Moulmein, Burmah, 8s. 6d.; the late Miss S., a bequest, £3; T. G., Griquatown, S. Africa, £1 1s.; A. C. B., M.D., Griquatown, £1 1s.; S. W. S., Griquatown, 10s.; S. W., Griquatown, 10s.; Mr. L., Dublin, 2s. 6d.; Mrs. H., Weston-under-Penyard, 10s. 6d.; Miss B., Chichester, 3s.; Miss T., Rhyl, £1 1s.

By Mr. C. Horner: Mrs. C., 2s. 6d.; H. E. T., 10s.; Mrs. T., 2s.; Mrs. H., 1s.; Mrs. C. B. (monthly subscription), 5s.

Total, £9 8s. 0d. J. Lawrence, Hon. Treasurer.

We beg to acknowledge the handsome donation to the Fund of 50 copies of "The Ten Tribes," from the author, Alder Smith, Esq., M.B., F.R.C.S., per Messrs. Banks and Son. Also a parcel of Banners from West Hartlepool, sent to Hull; another from M. S., Forest Gate, sent to a sower at Dover; whilst a third parcel, with some pamphlets, has reached us from Henley.

One to three Banners are forwarded weekly and fortnightly, to St. John's, South Africa; Cleveland, U.S.A.; Birkenhead, Abergavenny, Mechanics' Institute, Crewe, Richmond, Maesteg; to the Free Public Libraries at Manchester (three copies), Wandsworth, and Wimbledon. Over 9 doz. are also despatched weekly by Miss Sibbald, who has kindly undertaken the Banner distribution formerly carried on by Miss E. M. Rush.

Thirty-three parcels of literature (one to two) have, during the past month, been forwarded to Ambala (India), Rome, Edinburgh, Manchester, Abergavenny, Farnworth, Lee, Brighton, Sheffield, Upper Teddington, Quernerford, Ludlow, Richmond, Wandsworth and Wimbledon Public Libraries; South Hayling, Stokes Road, Barrington, Eastbourne, Stockport, Lower Sherringham, Shepherd's Bush, Rochester, Crossgate, Ballyhooly, co. Cork, Lydney (Glos.).

A highly praiseworthy effort is being made by Mr. Marchant, of Brighton, to bring the discovery of Israel to the masses, by that most public of all means, the delivery of open-air addresses. As soon as we saw from the Banner his single-handed endeavours, we gladly and at once responded to his request, by furnishing him with a goodly packet of 400 leaflets and minor works, for circulating amongst the most attentive of his hearers. His first discourse on the beach was listened to by a crowd with great attention, though his exposition lasted an hour and three-quarters, and many confessed the doctrine could not be denied.

One of our Manchester Sowers writes:—"I beg to acknowledge, with many thanks, the receipt of leaflets and other literature. Many I distributed amongst the Men and Women's Bible-class, who received them with gladness, the result of which I will inform you another time. I anticipate sending you good tidings ere long of good work being done at our little Church; though there are several staunch opposers in our congregations, still I am proud to say our missionary preacher renders me every facility in the distribution, and readily, yea, indeed, gladly receives the pamphlets for his own perusal. As I am going for a week's holiday into Wales, I intend, with God's blessing, doing my utmost in spreading the glad tidings that 'Lost Israel is Found!'" Thus is the seed being scattered.

Our excellent Sower at Quernerford travels over a considerable area, and hence the seed is sown in many towns and villages. In his first communication to us he narrates how he received the light originally through reading Mr. Hine's "Forty-seven Identifications." He is discriminating in his method of distribution. He has recently given away pamphlets and leaflets to ministers, schoolmasters, and Sunday-school teachers. He found such leaflets as the "Queen's Descent" often very useful in arousing interest in the minds of some. Meeting a farmer in the train one day, he made use of the occasion for speaking on Israel. This good man was greatly impressed, and in his turn lent some leaflets, etc., to villagers, who thus expressed their astonishment: "Wherever did e get it vrom? We never se'ed such books avore." Our Sower found the "Thoughts" especially valuable for working men. While at Oxford he met a batch of railway platelayers, and during the chat he had with them found they had greater knowledge than many among more educated people. These men had, it seems, received their first instruction through a signalman on the line. Our Sower, on parting, gave them some works to pass on to him. He concludes by saying that lately, in one place, a Primitive Methodist preacher made an excellent sermon on Israel from the two brothers in the parable of the Prodigal Son. Owing to the large number of places this Sower is in the habit of visiting, we shall undertake to furnish him monthly with a good parcel of well-assorted matter.

Charles Horner, Secretary.

Contributions to the Fund will be thankfully received and acknowledged by the Hon. Treasurer, Miss J. Lawrence, Rosslyn, Hampton-road, Upper Teddington, Middlesex; or by Mr. Chas. Horner, 34, Sheen-park, Richmond-on-Thames. Cheques may be crossed, "London and Provincial Bank, Teddington Branch." Grants of literature will be made, as far as funds allow, on application to the Secretary.

THE JUBILEE AND ISRAEL.

By J. T. Cassino, Peabody, Mass., U.S.A.

[Note.—We cannot say the following are perfect as verses, but we publish them as the work of an American—the hearty greeting, in fact, of an Israelite of Manasseh, on our Queen's Jubilee, and meant by him for publication in the Banner of Israel.—Ed.]

Hail to the land o'ershadowed with wings!
Hail to its great and noble Queen!
Never such land and ruler were seen:
Hail to the land and its Queen, all hail!

Never had God made a people so great,
Never a Queen reigned o'er such a State,
Never hath God with a people so dealt:
Hail to the land and its Queen, all hail!

Thou art of God the favoured heir,
And ever hast been His especial care,
Among nations the fairest of the fair:
Hail to the land and its Queen, all hail!

Thou art the people who never shalt be Conquered by any, on land or on sea,
Ever the home and abode of the free:
Hail to the land and its Queen, all hail!

Thou art the people, long chosen of God
To carry to every people His Word,
Till the ends of the earth of Him have heard:
Hail to the chosen of God, all hail!

Of nations the head and not the tail,
The nation that will not serve thee shall fail,
Against all odds shalt thou prevail:
Hail to the land and its Queen, all hail!

Hail to the people dwelling alone,
For a time by their ancient name unknown,
Hail to the Queen on David's throne:
Hail to the land and its Queen, all hail.

Hail to the people that borrow of none,
But lend their wealth freely to every one,
No want shall there be in thy wide domain:
Hail to the Queen and her realm, all hail!

Hail to the land that in every zone
Their colonies plant which remain their own,
Hail to the nations owning one throne:
Hail to the Queen of the nations, hail!

Hail to the people spread abroad,
West, East, North, and South, and blest of God,
That grow and increase by the power of the Lord:
Hail to the millions that are coming, all hail!

Hail to the people that blossom and bud,
And fill the face of the world with fruit,
To thee all may flee from oppression's rod:
Hail to the land of the free, all hail!

Hail to the people that own the Gates
Of their foes whom they rule from their high estate,
On whom the commerce of nations wait:
Hail to their Empress-Queen, all hail!

Hail to the people that dwell in the Isles,
Whose gates night nor day are shut the while,
God loves them, and on them for ever shall smile:
Hail to the people God loves, all hail!

Hail to the land o'ershadowed with wings,
Hail to the nation great and strong,
Hail to the good and noble Queen,
May the King of kings her reign prolong.

Digitized by Google

THE CORONATION STONE.

To the Editor of the "Cheltenham Examiner."

SIR,—My attention has been just called to a paragraph in your issue of Wednesday last, June 22nd, concerning the Coronation Stone on which Her Majesty—having been crowned thereupon at her accession to the Throne—again sat on the never-to-be-forgotten Victorian Jubilee.

The article states as follows:—"The Anglo-Israelite myth, however, as to its Biblical pedigree, is roughly shaken by the undoubted fact (?) that the stone consists not of Bethelian granite, or limestone, but of honest Scotch sandstone." Having gone very fully for many years past into the history and antecedents of this our much-prized national heirloom, will you permit me to state that the "shaking" referred to may be "rough," but far from conclusive. Imprimis: The stone is a small block of red sandstone; the only "myth," therefore, lies in describing it as "granite, or limestone."

Mr. Giekie, in his report on the Coronation Stone, expressly says: "It is unlike the red sandstone of the Highlands, and equally unlike the usual red sandstones of the South and South-east of Scotland." The same authority adds: "It cannot have come from Iona, . . . there is no red sandstone in it."

Geological testimony is equally clear as to the stone not being of Tara origin. But while we are thus told whence it does not come, Canon Tristram in his "Land of Moab" helps us to discover whence it does come. He tells us that this very red sandstone is found, near the surface, on the shores of the Dead Sea. And this is not so far from Bethel or Luz, but that "the stone which the builders rejected" might have been drawn thence before Jacob appropriated the rejected red sandstone for his pillow.

Mr. Skene, in his work on the Coronation stone, quotes Blind Harry, the Rhymer, who says:—

"At Canmore syne King Fergus has it won,
Brought it to Scone, and stable made it there,
Where Kings were crowned eight hundred year and mair,
Before the time that King Edward it faud,
This jewel he gart turse into England."

If Blind Harry meant to say that King Fergus brought it himself to Scone (though it is by no means clear that he does more than allude to Fergus as having won it for Scotland), it is a self-evident mistake; for Fergus brought it over to Scotland in the 4th century, B.C., and Scone is never mentioned in history till the 10th century, A.D. Yet upon this mistake Mr. Skene builds a stronger and baseless theory of his own, when he says, "Icolmkill therefore now falls out of the legend, as well as Argyll, and the stone is brought direct from Tara to Scone, and placed there by Fergus himself"—fourteen centuries before Scone had any existence! Mr. Skene shews the strange bias with which he approaches the subject, by adding, "We also hear no more of the prophecy, 'Ni fallat fatum,' for which let us be thankful." Singular indeed is the state of mind which can derive such comfort from believing that our heirloom, with all the priceless and covenanted blessings thereto attached, is—a myth!

Mr. Skene further tells us (page 20): "It is remarkable that prior to Baldred, not a trace is to be found in any of the older chronicles. He is absolutely the first who mentions it." Remarkable indeed, if true! Baldred's works were compiled A.D. 1301. From Dean Stanley's Appendix to his "Memorials of Westminster Abbey," we learn, however, that Cumine, who was Abbot of Icolmkill from 657 A.D. to his death in 669, did not only mention this venerated Stone, but records that St. Columba, when dying, caused himself to be carried into the sanctuary where it was kept, so that he might depart with his head resting on "Jacob's Stone." (Cumine's Vit. Columb., cap. xxi. Pinkerton's Vit. Ant. S. S. Scot., p. 40.)

Nor was Cumine the only historian who related this fact, which is also attested by Adamnan, who subsequently filled the same office from 679 to 704 A.D. (Adamnan Vit. S. Columb., lib. iii., cap. xxiii., pp. 233, 234); and for such testimonies we are "thankful."

I fear, sir, to trespass upon your space; but if you will permit me, I will give in another letter some further proofs of its antiquity and value to ourselves.—Yours obediently,

ELLEN M. ROGERS,
Author of The Coronation Stone and England's Interest in it.

Glenwood, The Shubbery, Weston-super-Mare. June 23rd, 1887.

[The above appeared in The Cheltenham Examiner, of July 6th, 1887, and we republish it because it deals with a subject in which our readers generally take much interest.].

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—Kindly accept my thanks for your kind note and parcel of tracts, also for your kindness in calling attention to my meetings on the beach. It has brought me about 100 BANNERS and 500 tracts and leaflets, and three books to lend about (I am in great need of such) for an ever widening circle of enquirers, and am very thankful to all kind friends who have sent what they could to help on the work.

I am, dear Sir, yours truly,
H. A. MARCHANT.

60, Upper Lewes-road, Brighton, August 10th, 1887.

ANDREW BOLTON, M.D.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—In meting out justice to the Newcastle Daily Leader, I am afraid you have done some injustice to our late friend Dr. Bolton. He was the treasurer of our association, so that I can speak as having authority, and am able to assure you that the doctor was quite familiar with the Scriptural argument, nor was he afraid of using it. It is true that you will not have noticed any lectures by him. He was one of those gentlemen who have an aversion to being seen or heard on the platform; but he was a lecturer none the less, and scores could testify to the lectures they had received in railway carriages and other public vehicles. The reason why the writer in the Leader laid particular stress on the doctor's linguistic proficiencies probably was that the former is, no doubt, better acquainted with politics than philology, and would be highly surprised to learn that there was the remotest affinity between English and Hebrew. Hence this fact, and evidently this fact alone, remains impressed on what mind he has.—Yours faithfully, J. G. T.

Newcastle, Aug. 23rd, 1887.

[NOTE BY THE EDITOR.—We regret the tone of our reflections, but the journalist misled us! All honour to the memory of our late friend Dr. Bolton!]

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

SIR,—Respecting the titles of the Almighty met with in the Bible, is it not remarkable how many of them are so intimately connected with His chosen people Israel? some for instance are the following:—

"The Holy One of ISRAEL," Isaiah i. 4; "The Mighty One of ISRAEL," Isaiah i. 24; "The Creator of ISRAEL," Isaiah xliii. 15; "The King of ISRAEL," Isaiah xliii. 15, Matt. xxvii. 42, John i. 49, Isaiah xliv. 6; "The God of the armies of ISRAEL," 1 Sam. xvii. 45; "The God of ISRAEL," 1 Chron. xxix. 18; "The God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob," Ex. iii. 6; "The mighty God of Jacob," Gen. xlix. 24; "The Holy One of Jacob," Isaiah xxix. 23. C. E. P.

Manchester, 15th August, 1887.

"To the Editor of the Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—Having been a constant reader of the BANNER for some time, and a firm believer in the facts set forth therein—viz., that the British are the Lost Ten Tribes, I am of opinion that the blindness in part which has happened unto Israel may be in a very great measure dispelled, if those my fellow believers in Bible truths would but band themselves into companies in the cities, towns, or villages, where they may happen to reside, and irrespective of creed or ism meet together periodically to study God's word with a view to the more extensive propagation of Bible truths in relation thereto, as I am happy to see has been done in many places.

Now, Sir, I have for a long time been very anxious to find some, in this ancient city Hereford, desirous of helping to make known more generally the facts contained in Anglo-Israel truth, as set forth in the BANNER, but up to the present I have been disposed to think with Elijah that I even I only am left; but happening to see in your issue of 15th inst. the initials of G. M. A. (per Miss Jones) also F. J. and T. J., as subscribers to the Jubilee Funds, I am still in hopes that there are some in this city who are not unwilling to do something in this direction, and I shall therefore feel extremely obliged if you will kindly insert this in an early issue of the BANNER, trusting it may meet the eyes of those interested in the good cause, and lead to some practical result.

Yours sincerely in the hope of Israel,
JAMES DYER.

77 Green Street, Hereford.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

Now Ready. 16mo. Price 2s., in bevelled boards, full gilt, gilt edges; or cloth boards, gilt lettered, 1s. 8d.; White Skiver binding, full gilt, 2s. 6d. Post free for P.O.

"MY JEWELS"

(MALACHI III. 17).

"The Precious Sons of Zion."

(LAM. IV. 7).

Choice Selections from Writers of Sacred Poetry, with Appropriate Texts from Holy Scripture, arranged for every day.

BY SARAH SHARP.

In Anni Jubilaei Memoriam, 1887.

A CLERGYMAN writes:—"I have read your MS. of 'MY JEWELS' and long for the book to come out. May 'MY JEWELS' adorn many lands, and homes, and hearts, and add some stars to our Saviour's crown."

See "BANNER OF ISRAEL," Aug. 24.

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet Court, Fleet Street. May be ordered from any Bookseller.

Now Ready. Price 2/6, cloth, gilt, bevelled boards, Imperial 8vo., free for P.O.

A CONSECRATED LIFE.
A MEMOIR

OF THE

RIGHT REV. BISHOP TITCOMB, D.D.

By the Rev. ALLEN T. EDWARDS, M.A., Cantab.

With an Introduction by the Right Rev. the LORD BISHOP of ROCHESTER.

Frontispiece: Cabinet size PHOTO-PORTRAIT of the late BISHOP by Messrs. Elliot and Fry.

CONTENTS:

Introduction. 1.—Early Life to the Period of His First Curacy. 2.—Cambridge Ministry. 3.—London Life and Woking. 4.—Rangoon. 5.—Northern and Central Europe. Appendix.—1. Funeral Sermon by the Rev. J. McCann, D.D. 2. Sermon by Bishop Titcomb. 3. Public Work in Rangoon in one year. 4. Tabular Statement of Tours in Northern and Central Europe. 5. Consecration of St. George's Church, Berlin.

R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London.

Price Twopence.

BRITAIN AND PROPHECY.

"Before the heroic age of the Greeks had passed away, God was cradling nations of mighty men behind the Caucassian mountains; these were the Aæs, the ancestors of the great Anglo-Saxon people."—H. A. LONG, Glasgow.

BY JAMES WRIGHT.

Read before the Sherwell Mutual Improvement Association, Plymouth. Re-written and read in Belmont Wesleyan School-room, Stoke, Devonport.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

Price 2s. 6d., Cheap Edition, 1/-

BIBLE LESSONS AND REFLECTIONS.

By ROBERT GAIRDNER, of Kilmarnock, N.B.

"Mr. Gairdner has given us in his book a series of Bible lessons, with his own reflections added thereto, and though he has been very cautious in the latter, and has not committed himself too broadly, he has plainly let it be seen that he is an Anglo-Israelite by conviction, and that the Scriptures which he quotes at length and extensively throughout his book, are meant to teach Our Identity and God's faithfulness, from first to last, to His promises to Abraham and His seed for ever."—Banner of Israel.

ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st.

Price 2d., by post 2½d. Second Edition, revised.

A SUMMARY OF ANGLO-ISRAELITE TEACHING,

And of the Scripture Proofs on which it Rests

By SURGEON-GEN. J. M. GRANT, M.D.,

President of the Cheltenham Association, and Vice-President of the Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; F. W. Parry & Co., Paternoster-row.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

The History of the House of Israel; How they were Lost, and How they were Found. Told for the Children. Price 6d., cloth 1s.; post free, 7d. and 1s. 1d. Fourth Edition. Eleventh thousand.

Our Identity with the House of Israel. Price 4d. Reprinted from "Clifton Chronicle Letters'

London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

Price 5s., Cloth Bound, Gilt Lettered, 584 p.p., free for Postal Order. COMPLETE EDITION OF

FIFTY YEARS IN THE CHURCH OF ROME.

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

"No history like it since the time of Luther."—New York Witness.

"The work is a good one, and we pray that it may succeed in opening men's eyes to the deadly dangers which are in our midst."—Methodist Recorder.

ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., E.C.

Crown 8vo., wrapper, price 6d.

Where is the Firstborn?

An investigation of the British Claim to Identification With the House of Israel. By the REV. G. A. ROGERS, M.A. Edited by his Widow. Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

"Ably written, well edited, and carefully presented to the readers. . . . We wish it a large circulation."—Banner of Israel.

London: Robert Banks & Son Racquet-court, Fleet-st.

Wonderful Value by Parcels Post.

WALTER KEAST, 102, Kennington Park Road, London, S.E., will on receipt of Postal Order for 3s. 6d. send a pair of Ladies' High-leg Lasting Button Walking Boots. These Boots are warranted to give complete satisfaction, being sewn, thoroughly well made and very comfortable. Ditto in Oxford Shoes, 3s. 3d. Send number of size or length of boot in inches. Parcels sent daily to all parts of the United Kingdom.

Established 1851.

NON-INTOXICATING BEER

(A Splendid Dinner Beverage)

MADE IMMEDIATELY WITH

MASON'S EXTRACT OR ESSENCE OF HERBS,

Composed of Yarrow, Dandelion. Comfrey, and Horehound. Send 9 stamps for sample bottle, enough to make five gallons, NEWBALL and MASON, Chemists, Nottingham.

AGENTS WANTED. APPLY FOR TERMS.

LIVER TONIC,

GEORGE & WELCH'S,

2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. per Bottle.

This Tonic, which embraces the active principle of the best known Liver Cures, relieves Indigestion and Debility, sharpens the appetite, and corrects all unpleasant symptoms arising from sluggish liver.

Proprietors: GEORGE & WELCH, Worcester.

To be had through all Chemists or by Parcels Post from Makers.

30,000 BEDS SOLD in SEVEN YEARS

NEWHAM'S CELEBRATED LINCOLNSHIRE FEATHER BEDS.

THE CHEAPEST FEATHER BEDS IN THE WORLD.

Direct from Boston, Lincolnshire.

No. 1. SINGLE BED, BOLSTER, and PILLOW, 6ft. 3in. by 3ft. 6in., weighing 40lb. 30.0

No. 2. DOUBLE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6ft. 6in. by 4ft. 6in. weighing 50 lb. 37/6

No. 3. DOUBLE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6ft. 6in. by 4ft. 6in., weighing 55lb... .. 42/3

No. 4. EXTRA SIZE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6ft. 6in. by 5ft., weighing 65lb. .. 48.9

WARRANTED NEW AND SWEET.

Any sized Bed only 9d. per lb., including Feathers, in Strong Union (bordered) Tick, making, packing, wrapper, and Carriage Paid to any Station in the United Kingdom.

SUPERIOR BEDS, Splendid Feathers, Linen Tick, 1s. per lb.

Samples of Feathers and Ticks, Price Lists, &c. post-free.

For the convenience of Purchasers we have opened a Branch Establishment at 178, Strand, London.

All orders must be accompanied by Cheque or P.O.O. (which, as security to purchasers, may be post dated ten days) payable to

NEWHAM & CO., Boston, Lincolnshire,

or to THOS. SMITH, 178, STRAND, LONDON,

where Goods and Samples can be seen and obtained.

Feathers only 9d. per lb. The trade supplied. Please mention this paper. A great reduction on three or more beds.

10,000 CARPETS

5/- Five Shillings each. 5/-

EACH. EACH.

GUARANTEED GENUINE BARGAINS.

The British Carpet Weaving Company will forward DIRECT FROM THEIR LOOMS to any address, on receipt of Postal Order for 5s., or stamps, one of their GENUINE WOVEN, REVERSIBLE TRIUMPH CARPETS, bordered and woven in colours, to suit Dining-room, Drawing-room, Bed-room, &c., and LARGE ENOUGH TO COVER ANY ORDINARY-SIZED ROOM, as an advertisement for the introduction of their goods.

These Carpets are made of a material almost equal to wool, and, being a speciality of our own, they can only be obtained DIRECT FROM OUR LOOMS, thus saving the purchasers ANY MIDDLE PROFITS.

Send for sample, and if not satisfied MONEY WILL BE RETURNED IN FULL,

A Rug sent to match Carpet for 1s. 6d. extra, or four Carpets and four Rugs sent carriage paid for 20s.

This extraordinary offer will not be repeated,

The words, UNION BANK, should be written across all Postal Orders. Address—

The British Carpet Weaving Co., 76, St. John St., Clerkenwell,

LONDON, E.C.

THE COMFORT SLIPPERS.

COMFORT after a hard days' toil is obtained at once by wearing the Comfort Slippers, the easiest, prettiest, and most comfortable slippers in the world. Uppers made of Velvet, Carpet, or Felt. Prices:—

	Chdn.	Ladies.	Gents.
Velvet Uppers, double soled, rivetted	1s. 6d.	2s.	2s. 6d.
Carpet ,, ,, ,,	1s. 3d.	1s. 9d.	2s.
Felt ,, sewn throughout	1s.	1s. 3d.	1s. 6d.

A Clearance line of Felt Slippers, Children's, 10d., Ladies', 1s., Gents', 1s. 3d.; all post free for P.O. or stamps.

J. Pickup, Slipper Maker, Rawtenstall, Lancs.

A BOON TO SUFFERERS.

HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT.

Testimonial

From Miss J. HOULDSWORTH, Rozelle, Ayr, N.B.

"I am glad to be able to tell you that the HARNESS' ELECTRIC BATTERY BELT has been very beneficial in strengthening the system generally, as well as instrumental in relieving the Neuralgic pains from which I have suffered.

NEURALGIA & DEBILITY.

Every man and woman suffering from any disorder of the Nerves, Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys, should at once stop physicing, and remit six for HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT (post free) and obtain immediate relief. Pamphlet and Book of Testimonials POST FREE. MEDICAL BATTERY CO. Ltd.

52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 7, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 559. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1887. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
The Rule of the "Righteous Nation" in Egypt	373
Ancient Watchmen Interviewed. By J. G. Taylor.—Part III.	374
The Work on the Beach at Brighton	375
Canals in Palestine. By J. H. Collins, F.G.S.	376
What the Lord Jehovah Remembers and What He Forgets	376
Freemason Foundation-Stone-Laying. By Joseph Thomson	377
"Our Rest and Signs of the Times"	378
Correspondence	379

THE RULE OF "THE RIGHTEOUS NATION" IN EGYPT.

IT is no secret that the Egyptians are glad that the Anglo-Turkish Convention has broken down and failed. The bulk of the Egyptian people know when they are well off, and were terribly alarmed at the prospect of our leaving them all to the tender mercies of the Turks. What Lord Salisbury meant by seriously proposing to vacate Egypt, and so give the Turks a chance of marching in and staying there on some flimsy pretext, or on no pretext at all, we cannot imagine! The whole thing, we are glad to know, has fallen through—greatly to the delight and relief of the lately-oppressed fellahin, and of the Egyptian well-to-do citizens as well. The result, of course, is, that, as respects the French, we have now regained a "free hand," and can go about our work of Egyptian regeneration without particular regard for, or attention to, the almost feminine sentimentalities of the French or the bluster of the Russians.

We are in Egypt to do the country good, and at the same time to safeguard our Indian, Australian, and South African interests; and there we must stay till our work is done, which may happen in the next hundred years or so. We have taken over a century to educate India so that she may one day go alone; but we are not yet near the goal, by all accounts. And it will take quite as long, if not longer, to enable down-trodden Egypt and her semi-Asiatic population to settle down, before she is fit for autonomous government or self-defence in the face of her many surrounding enemies.

A correspondent at Cairo, addressing the Scotsman (which is said to be a "Liberal-Unionist" paper), has made the following statement in full corroboration of our own views and opinions. Let our readers study what he says. He wrote as follows, on July 24, published in Edinburgh, in the Scotsman, of August 2, 1887:—

BRITISH RULE IN EGYPT.

CAIRO, 24th July.—Great satisfaction is expressed here at the results of the negotiations in respect to the much-talked of Turkish Convention. A secret joy reigned among the influential classes—those whose opinions are worth taking on political matters—when the non-signature of that Convention was announced, because it at once freed many minds from the apprehension of any probable interference of Turkey in Egyptian affairs. When the mission of Sir H. D. Wolff commenced, a growl of dissatisfaction was heard in every circle, from the pasha to the fellah, for it was generally believed that this was the first step toward handing Egypt over to the tender mercies of the Turk. The ex-President of the native tribunals, Ismael Pasha—who had resided in England for some years, and is also well conversant with native ideas, being a man of weight and popularity among the natives—expressed the popular opinion when he said to me the other day: "What Mehemet Ali fought for and succeeding Egyptian rulers have maintained, you English are about to sweep away in an hour. You are going to introduce the Turk here, thus showing yourselves the friends of Oriental despotism and decay, and the opponents of civilisation." Now, the prevailing voice of Turkish rule may be found in this Arab proverb, "The Turk either devours you out of very love, or tears you to pieces in his rage." It will be then readily understood with what joy the Egyptians saw this vision of Turkish interference in Egyptian affairs removed by the diplomatic disagreement between the Sublime Porte and Britain, ending in the departure of Sir Henry Drummond Wolff from Constantinople. Let scoffers at the inflexible character of our rule say what they will—and they can talk a great deal from easy editorial chairs in Paris, or even nearer home—the bulk of the Egyptian nation—that is, the tax-paying fellah, is only capable of expressing one opinion. That opinion is to this effect, that British rule has sensibly diminished the burden of the fellah by the justice and impartiality with which the taxes are levied and collected; that he no longer works to support the tawdry splendour of a favoured city and Court while the rural population are doomed to the courbash and misery; and that a liberal system of public works has been inaugurated under the British régime for the common, not any particular, benefit. I could say more under this head, but I think that these few lines are sufficient to set forth the present political feeling and situation in Egypt.

So far the Cairo correspondent. Let us note the character which the Egyptian fellah gives of the British Government. Their's is a righteous rule, and, therefore, constitutes ours "the righteous nation" (Isa. xxvi. 2). It acts with justice and impartiality, and relieving the burdens of the oppressed, lets the latter go free (Isa. lviii. 6). These are the benefits the British have already conferred on the Egyptians, hitherto plunged in misery and iron! Who can learn this without thinking of the prophecy of Isaiah xix. 20, et sequitur, where Egypt's cry of bitter anguish is heard by the Lord God of Israel, and He sends her "a saviour and a great one; and he shall deliver them: and the Lord shall be known in Egypt; and the Egyptians shall know the Lord in that day, and shall do sacrifice and oblation. . . . And the Lord shall smite Egypt. He shall smite and heal it; and they shall return even to the Lord. And He shall be intreated of them and shall heal them." The blessing in the midst of the land in that day is destined to be Israel, "the third with Egypt," whom the Lord of hosts shall bless, saying, "Blessed be Egypt, My people, and Assyria the work of My hands, and Israel Mine inheritance." But the British are Israel, as we have proved by hundreds of lines of proof ab extrâ, and, therefore, we are but carrying out our prophetic functions in respect to Egypt, and doing that for the land which God declared Israel alone should effect. Under the circumstances, who can for a moment doubt whether we are going to remain in Egypt, or are about to surrender the land to the Turks, as the fellahîn fear, or to the French, which would be far more probable, if the matter were not one with which the prophecies are concerned, as we have seen? Our stay in Egypt has a yet further meaning. It is one link in the vast chain God has been preparing for two or three hundred years, whereby the Return in triumph of Israel, with Judah and Manasseh, will by-and-bye be carried out. That Return is evidently to be brought about by human means and human agency. The Gates are to play a grand part in the Return. They are to safeguard it, and make Israel's progress secure and sure in a naval point of view at every step. Therefore, God gave us Gibraltar in A.D. 1704. Therefore, Malta was added in 1800. Cyprus was the next gift to our race as a stage in the progress of events; and in 1882 the military possession of Egypt being needed for His people to enable them to "return," it was given over to their charge as a military post or great Gate, to safeguard the right flank of Israel's march from her "Isles of the West" to "the land of the inheritance" which God gave to their fathers for an everlasting possession.

Digitized by Google

The Return cannot take place, and the settlement of Palestine will be impossible, if the French or the Russians are seated in power at Cairo. The Turk cannot possibly hold the country, being hateful to the Egyptians, and effete as a Power. The Egyptians themselves, as everyone knows (none better than themselves), cannot stand alone. It remains that Israel herself must take care of her own defence, and must occupy Gibraltar, Malta, Cyprus, Egypt, and eventually Constantinople too (for the same cogent reason); and then in due time, when the Return has been triumphantly accomplished, Egypt will fall naturally into her destined position of Israel's blessed ally, serving the Lord as "His people," equal thus in rank even with the chosen race; one of the triad of blessed nations, even the blessed ones of the Lord Jehovah! So may it be, to God's own glory!

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN has been pleased to accept and most graciously acknowledge Miss Sharp's little volume, "My Jewels" (Mal. xvii. 3), In Anni Jubilaei Memoriam. The book is elegantly bound in white satin, full gilt, by Messrs. Banks & Son. The price of the vol. is 1s. 8d. and 2s.; in white skiver binding, 3s. 6d.

THE LATE BISHOP TITCOMB.—A memorial to the late Right Rev. J. Holt Titcomb, D.D. (late vicar of St. Peter's, Brockley), has been erected at Wickersley Church, Rotherham. The subject of the sculpture is the call of St. Matthew.

THE work of the distribution of Identity literature to the various "sowers" is now being carried on by Mr. Charles Horner. Some friends are evidently under the impression that this work has been discontinued. Funds for assisting the work may be sent to the treasurer, Miss Lawrence, Rosslyn, Hampton Road, Upper Teddington.

ERRATUM.—Page 354, line 31, supply "Isaiah."

ANCIENT WATCHMEN INTERVIEWED.

By J. G. TAYLOR.

(Continued from page 365).

III.—THE AMBASSADOR AMONG THE TARTARS.

IT is not a latter-day custom for our Russian Ambassadors to concern themselves with the Lost Ten Tribes. Perhaps they deem it beneath their station to do so, or perhaps our representatives at the Court of the Czar have a more anxious time now than they had when the palace was fixed at Moscow. Ambassadors are not all alike, however. Some of them have found opportunities to disinter the buried cities of the East, although, unfortunately, they take greater pleasure in their stones than in the people who once inhabited their streets. One of the most worthy of his class is expressly and determinedly opposed to the idea of ever allowing the Israelites to raise their heads again in this world, and if they are to do so it will clearly have to be effectuated without the aid of Ambassadors. But when Ambassadors were called Agents it was not thus. Dr. Fletcher had a much firmer grasp on prophecy than Rawlinson, and he was perfectly satisfied that the tribes would return to their own land as surely as they had gone from it. The only question with him was, Where were they lodged? and he was not content that even this point should be left open. Consequently, the Armada having, we presume, been disposed of, he directed his attention to the solution of that vexed problem. And it is to be observed that he knew what he was doing. He did not fall into the common error of seeking for Jews while looking for Israelites, but was fully aware of their complete severance, and their separate destinies:—

"As for those other two tribes, to wit, of Judah and the other of Benjamin, which for their notable infidelity and contempt of God's Son are made a spectacle to the world and plagued by God with this so horrible a desolation, it is well known both where they are and how they live, diffused (though not confused) and dispersed in small numbers here and there, deprived of all save their name, which they retain rather for a reproach than for an honour and estimation, that they may be known by other nations to be that people whom God hath punished for that sin in so rejecting the Son of God. But these other Tribes whereof we speak, which were not massacred nor extirped, but transplanted by the Assyrians, where now they are, and how they have lived ever since, is nowhere mentioned either in Heathen or Sacred Story for aught I know."

The Doctor was not one of those who consider it an "absolute certainty" that Israel would be wiped out of existence by their heathen connections. It is indeed curious that any person, or at least any person who has bestowed two thoughts on the subject, should come to the conclusion that a race of people which had received so severe a course of moral, mental, and spiritual training as the Israelites, died away immediately it was brought into competition with degraded Pagans. Such an event would have contradicted the laws of nature just as flagrantly as it would have negatived the statements of inspiration. But Dr. Fletcher viewed the situation from purely historical ground, and arrived at an equally satisfactory decision, for, after describing the countries to which the tribes were carried, he says:—

"So that all these Tribes might easily meet and joyn together, when opportunity serves their turns, which happened to them when all these Provinces of Media, Chaldaran and Mesopotamia, with their Governors Merodack, Baladan, and Dejoces, by a defection, fell away from the Assyrians, in the tenth year of Esar-haddon. And these tribes did, not long after, re-unite themselves and joyn together in one nation as they were before, being induced partly by their own desires, as disdaining ever to live commixt with other people, and partly forced by the violence of the Medians, who expelled them thence, being but strangers, and thrust upon them by the Assyrians. That the Tartars are the Israelites, you shall hear such reasons as I observed when I remained among the Russes some years ago, which, if they be not demonstrative, yet to me seem so probable as that I myself am now perswaded that they are the natural and true offspring of those Israelites. The country lying upon the North-east or Northern side of the Caspian contains in it a large territory, and is now possessed by the Tartars, and by the consent of all stories which since have written of the Assyrian and Persian Monarchy, have so continued since Cyrus's time; who, after he had obtained the Monarchy, did first invade those Scythian Shepherds, or Tartar people, 200 years or thereabouts, after the Israelites' deportation, who were grown by that time into a great and mighty people. These Scythian Shepherds, now called Tartars, as by all stories doth appear, have contained themselves betwixt the Caspian and Northern Seas since Cyrus's time, when for their victory against so great and mighty a Monarch they began to be first known and famous with other nations. How long before, it is not recorded by any story, but they inhabited not that country which is now possessed by the Tartar till after the Israelites' deportation, which was 240 years before Cyrus his time, as may be collected from the best and ancientest stories."

Digitized by Google

Hence it was Dr. Fletcher's belief that the tribes who suddenly made their appearance on the Caspian in the seventh century B.C., and successfully resisted the advance of Cyrus, were none other than the descendants of Israel, "grown by that time into a great and mighty people," and this being so he was unconsciously an Anglo-Israelite. He differs from us in supposing that the Scythian-Tartars were their posterity, but in this he also differs from historical facts, as it is acknowledged that the division of Scythians (so-called) who put an end to the Persian monarch were the Massagetæ, or Getæ, identified by ethnologists with the Jutes. Some have termed them Sacæ, but in either case the result is the same, for the Sacæ were the ancestors of the Saxons, and both the Saxons and the Jutes found their terminus in England. The Semitic original of the Scythians, or a portion of them, is a theory which has not met with the favour of an Aryan-smitten public, but if they gave it dispassionate consideration they would see there was nothing absurd or impossible in the contention. And if it does not contain the proverbial grain of truth it is singular that the rumour should have been repeated again and again by Ortelius, Matthew of Paris, Eldad, and others, who had exceptional facilities for judging whether it was a preposterous invention or a tradition within the range of probability.

(To be continued).

THE WORK ON THE BEACH AT BRIGHTON.

We learn that Mr. Marchant's lectures on the beach at Brighton are remarkably successful. He has received some parcels of Banner and Identity literature for distribution, and given them away to willing readers. He had, when we heard last, delivered six addresses, and was received without the slightest opposition. He has spoken sometimes for an hour, or even two, and been received favourably, in spite of the length of his addresses. The men at the railway works have been reported to be interested, and in some instances even convinced of the truth of Our Identity by Mr. Marchant's arguments. No doubt he has at times to encounter opposition and ridicule; but Mr. Marchant has made up his mind to expect that, and perseveres. In the end, by God's blessing on his labours, he is sure to succeed, for he is dealing with the truth. A minister once came, four years ago, to one of his meetings on our subject, and denounced his teaching. But he did not argue. When called on by Mr. Marchant to prove he was wrong by reference to the scriptures, the clergyman failed to accept the challenge, though Mr. M. offered him his own Bible to enable him to make the attempt. The clerical objection, it seems, was a very venerable friend of ours,—namely, "There are no Lost Tribes" in the first place; and in the second, "the term Israel is only a figure of speech, not meaning the Ten Tribes according to the flesh, but the "redeemed Church of Christ," that is usually the Church of England, or the favourite sect of the speaker.

Mr. Marchant is ready for controversy, and we believe invites it, but he has great faith in oral testimony in favour of Our Identity. If halls and lecture rooms are not too expensive he advocates them; but where they cost too much, then he wisely recommends the seaside, where there is room enough and to spare, and plenty of idlers to listen. We hope that many who sympathise with Mr Marchant's faithful efforts will aid him by sending him their spare Banners or other literature suited for the purpose, to enable him to give them to those willing to study the subject and to profit thereby. His address is 60, Upper Lewes Road, Brighton. The seaside, and especially the beach, in summer time, affords great opportunities for the introduction of the subject. The lecturer has only to point to the sea, and to find a statement respecting it in Psa. xcv. 3, 5, to be furnished with a safe text to enable him to begin. "The Lord is a great God, and a great King above all gods . . . . The sea is His and He made it, and His hands formed the dry land." Having made the sea, to whom did God give the supremacy thereof? To Israel; when He made her "the possessor of the Gate of her enemies" (Gen. xxii. 17), and gave her for her habitation "the Isles of the West," "in the North Country," or "Land of the North" (Isa. xxiv. 15; Jer. xxiii. 8; and iii. 18).

The gift of the dominion of the sea to an island nation situated in the North-western extremity of Europe, carried with it, wonderful to relate, every other valuable Israelite blessing. It brought with it "the power to get wealth" (Deut. viii. 18); wealth, that God uses to establish His covenant which He sware unto Israel's fathers as it is this day. It gave them the power to hold the Gates all round the world, which could not exist a single year in Israel's possession were the dominion of the sea shifted from their grasp to that of any other of the strong and masterful European races. It gave them, and still confers on them, the ability to protect their many daughter nations, which are their Colonial Empire in the four quarters of the Globe, all such being accessible by the sea only. It gives them the power to send the Bible, the Gospel, the missionary, and the Sabbath, to all nations, families, and kindreds of the earth who can be reached, by the medium of the sea alone, but not otherwise. All these lessons bearing upon Our Identity arise from the contemplation of the sea as the creation of God, and as His gift to His people Israel. But the sea is the great element which "Britannia rules," the supremacy of which God has conferred upon our nation from time immemorial. By means of it we have acquired the Gates of our enemies everywhere, and these Gates in their turn enable us to hold the supremacy of the ocean, for the one gift acts and reacts upon the other. By means of the sea we derive our abnormal wondrous national wealth, wherewith we send the Gospel, the Bible, and the messengers of salvation, to all the other nations, families, and kindreds of the earth; and by the access which the sea has given us to the uttermost parts, and ends of the earth, we have acquired our Heathen and Colonial Empires, with the Gates by which we seized and hold them still.

Being an island nation, occupying a contracted territory, we depend for our food supplies on our colonies and on foreign nations. These being secured to us by reason of our command of the sea, we have multiplied, according to the prophecies, in a marvellous manner, till we are like the stars of heaven, like the dust of the earth, or like the sand of the sea, for multitude, that sand which can be neither "measured nor numbered" (Hosea i. 10). The sea thus is the foundation of all our British prosperity and greatness, corresponding in every iota of the picture to the blessings of Israel which also were to rest in all respects upon the gift of the Gates, united with the multiplicity of seed, God's benediction crowning all (Gen. xxii. 17). Such being the case, we wish God-speed to Mr. Marchant's work by the "sad sea-waves," and many converts to the glorious belief in the fact that the British nation and Empire represent to-day, because they actually are, the Ten-Tribed House of Ephraim-Israel. To the Lord be all the glory and all the praise!

Digitized by Google

CANALS IN PALESTINE.

By J. H. Collins, F.G.S.

In the Banner of July 20th, Mr. G. N. Walsh refers to the proposal for making a water communication between the Mediterranean and the Red Sea by way of the Jordan valley. This proposal was set forth so long ago as 1853 by Capt. W. Allen, and a company was, I believe, actually registered in 1883 with a capital of eight millions sterling to carry it out. The political and engineering difficulties of the scheme have hitherto prevented anything being done, and we must not shut our eyes to the fact that these difficulties at the present moment are of a most stupendous character. Yet events move rapidly now-a-days, and a year or two may completely remove the political difficulties. As to those of an engineering character, they are so great that Capt. Conder, the chief author of the admirable survey of Western Palestine, published by the Palestine Exploration Fund, and Prof. Hull, who made a geological reconnaissance in 1882-3, consider them to be insurmountable. Two canals would be required—the first from near Mount Carmel to near the Lake of Galilee, perhaps twenty-five miles long—and the second from the Dead Sea to the Gulf of Akaba, about eighty miles long. Capt. Condor estimates the cost of these canals at from 200 to 400 millions sterling, and he further calculates that the great depressions would take at least fifty years to fill up to the level of the Mediterranean. His levelling shows that the first canal would have to pass through limestone and basalt rocks in cuttings over 200 feet deep; while Prof. Hull, Major Kitchener and Mr. Armstrong have ascertained that the second would include cuttings in limestone and sandstone up to nearly 700 feet deep. However, no actual level has been run through the Wady Arabah, and the difficulties may ultimately prove less formidable than at present appears; while they can hardly prove more formidable. As to the Northern canal, I think it may be shown that it could be constructed at a very moderate cost, and in a very few years.

The greater part of the canal would follow the general direction of the River Kishon, and the first ten miles at any rate would be comparatively easy work through marshy country. This first ten miles could no doubt be made in three years, at a total cost of £1,000,000; or, £100,000 per mile. This would be succeeded by fifteen miles of excavation, principally through soft limestone, having a mean elevation of perhaps 120 feet, so that the actual cutting would be about 150 feet deep. By working in the following manner the water itself could be made to do the greater part of the work of transport. In the first instance, while the first ten miles of canal were being made through the marshy and low country, a heading should be driven from the Jordan Valley at a point a few miles below the Lake of Galilee westward, starting at about 550 feet below the Mediterranean, thus giving a fall of about thirty-five feet per mile for the fifteen miles of heading. This heading should be set out about twelve feet high and nine feet wide, work being started simultaneously at thirty or more points, using rock-drills driven by compressed air. The heading could be driven in three years at most, there would be probably very little trouble from water, and the cost would not exceed £10,000 per mile, or £150,000 for the whole heading. As soon as the heading was completed the water could be let in. The tunnel would have an area of twelve square yards; and, assuming the very moderate speed of ten miles an hour, the first cubic mile of water would flow through in about three years. During this three years a large staff of men would be employed in breaking away the ground around the western mouth, and the rush of water would carry the stuff into the Jordan Valley, where it would do no harm whatever. Assuming for the canal when finished a mean width at bottom of twenty-five yards, at top of seventy-five yards, and a depth of fifty yards, the total quantity of stuff to be removed would be about sixty-six million cubic yards; or $\frac{1}{8\frac{1}{3}}$ of a cubic mile, a quantity easily removeable by the water under the specified conditions.

This is on the assumption that the cutting would be everywhere through rock. Of course if soft coherent strata were to be met with, the slope would have to be much greater, but the stuff would then be much more easily and cheaply removed. The whole of this stuff could probably be removed at a cost not exceeding 4d. per yard, or in all £1,100,000. And it could be done by using a proper staff of men and machinery in three years.

We thus arrive at six years as the period necessary to complete the northern tunnel, at a total cost of £2,250,000. If we add one million for works at the entrance, half-a-million for works along the canal and on the lake, all of which could be constructed during the six years, and £250,000 for contingencies, we have a total of £4,000,000 for the Northern canal.

To construct this no forced labour would be required, there being a considerable local population available who would be glad to work where pay was secure, besides which, much more would be done by machinery and the water itself than in the case of the Suez Canal. Nor would there be any sweet water canal to construct, as there are numerous springs along the route, and the river Kishon itself is rarely dry.

In a future letter I propose to return to the subject and to deal with some of the other difficulties.

WHAT THE LORD JEHOVAH "REMEMBERS" AND WHAT HE "FORGETS."

There is perhaps no more wonderful statement in God's Word than that which declares that the omniscient Creator can "forget," and that there are some things which He remembers and delights to recollect. David, in Psa. xxv. 6, 7, brought this out very clearly. He said there, "Remember, O Jehovah, Thy tender mercies and Thy lovingkindnesses, for they have been ever of old. Remember not the sins of my youth, nor my transgressions. According to Thy mercy remember Thou me, for Thy goodness sake, O Jehovah!" Here we see what God is ready to forget, nay, what He says He does forget, so that not a trace of the matter remains in His recollection! These are the sins of youth; and the transgression of maturer years, which have been washed away by the precious, precious blood of Calvary, shed by His own well-beloved Son for hell-deserving sinners. We see, too, what things they are the Lord is ever remembering. These are His tender mercies and His lovingkindnesses; "those that have been ever of old." He bids us recollect the days gone by and note how, nationally and individually, mercies and lovingkindnesses have followed us continually.

But can the Almighty, the God of heaven and earth, really "forget"? Can the sins of His enemies be so blotted out of His recollection that not even a faint trace of them remains there? "To the law and to the testimony!" Let us see what they say about God's forgetfulness of His chosen people's sins and national iniquities. David claimed for his own individual case that God would do this. But how will it be as to the nation of which David was a unit?—that nation which 2 Sam. vii. 23, 24 declares shall remain a God-blessed one "for ever"? Let such Scriptures as these testify. Addressing Jacob and Israel, the Lord said, in Isa. xliv. 21, 22: "I have blotted out as a thick cloud thy transgression, and as a cloud thy sins.

Digitized by Google

Return unto Me, for I have redeemed thee." In Isa. xliii. 25 the Lord addressed the same Jacob and Israel again, and said: "I, even I, am He that blotteth out thy transgressions for Mine own name's sake, and will not remember thy sins." In Isa. i. 18 we have the same gracious declaration addressed to Israel: "Come now and let us reason together, saith the Lord; though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow, and though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." The distance the Lord has put away our sins who believe in Jesus is shown by Psa. ciii. 12: "As far as the East is from the West, so far hath He removed our transgressions from us." And by Micah vii. 19, in respect to the sins of His heritage Israel, "Thou wilt cast all their sins into the depths of the sea," so that they never, never can rise again to accuse them. The national forgiveness of both Israel and Judah—two nations—at the time of their restoration, is thus described in Jer. l. 20, R.V.: "In those days and in that time, saith the Lord, the iniquity of Israel shall be sought for, and there shall be none: and the sins of Judah and they shall not be found. For I will pardon them whom I leave as a remnant."

In Jer. xxxi. 31 we have Israel's new covenant described as distinguished from Judah's, and the Lord promised them, "I will forgive their iniquity, and their sin will I remember no more." It comes then to this: that what David claimed for himself as an individual in Psa. xxv. 6, 7, in reference to the Lord's forgetfulness of his (David's) own sins, God has promised faithfully shall be the portion of His people Israel first and of Judah next. Their sins and iniquities too He will remember no more. Wondrous thought! The vast mountains of Israel's sins for 4,000 years God in His sovereignty declares He will utterly forget! But how and why? It is for His tender mercies' sake. It is for His goodness' sake that He does this! He has redeemed Israel. This is His express statement in Isa. xliv. 22, R. V.: "I have redeemed thee." Verse 23 repeats the glorious fact: "For Jehovah hath redeemed Jacob, and will glorify Himself in Israel." The price has been paid for the nation, including the individuals of which it is composed, and that price was the precious blood of the Son of God—nay, of God Himself, the Son (Acts xx. 28). God can now forget the sins He abhors, and He can cast them into the depths of the sea and behind His back (Isa. xxxviii. 17), because the blood, the precious blood, has washed them all away, and the nation, vile though it now is, being covered with the blood as with a robe, even the eye of God cannot penetrate that covering or see the guilt beneath. Israel's righteousness now is God's. The same in kind, in spotlessness, in beauty and glory. "Their righteousness, saith the Lord Jehovah, is of Me!" (Isa. liv. 17).

Can a nation hedged in by promises so gracious, so splendid, so unbounded, so divine, have disappeared from the knowledge of God, though yet unknown to men? Surely not! He sees them, and has followed them, ever since they left Him (like the prodigal, to spend their substance in riotous living and on harlots), with blessings and with lovingkindnesses and tender mercies, according to His promises in Zech. x. 6 and Ezek. xi. 16. And now, believing them and resting on them, can this nation, or a pardoned member of it, conscious of his glorious standing as righteous in God's sight, continue to supplicate for pardon like a criminal? Nay, the blessings God has given us as a nation, according to the promises, are realised as given for the sake, and as the purchase, of the precious blood of Christ. Surely he cannot so supplicate! The prodigal son, when his father kissed him, clothed him in the best robe, gave him the ring, with the shoes, and killed for him the fatted calf, began to dance and make merry, but he did not break off from time to time as if he did not quite understand the nature of the welcome his father had given him, nor sue again and again on his knees for the pardon he had already received, once for all, in full. He certainly did nothing of that sort! but next day, with his elder brother, doubtless, went into the paternal vineyards and fields, and worked for his father with all his might, giving him zealous service and deep gratitude for his so great salvation, and for restoration to his gracious favour.

When the Lord has forgotten His people's sins, and remembers their iniquities no more, we may not properly ask Him to forgive them afresh, as if we doubted Him; but we have need to seek His forgiveness for daily, hourly, sins newly committed by act and thought, by omission and commission, pleading anew for every such sin fresh merciful forgiveness, recollecting that "the blood of Jesus, God's Son, cleanseth us from all sin" (1 John i. 7, R. V.). Recollecting, too, what the Lord Himself has said regarding Israel, when she cried, "Jehovah hath forsaken me, and the Lord hath forgotten me! Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? Yea, these may forget, yet will I not forget thee" (Isa. xlix. 14, 15, R.V.). Therefore, surely for these glorious things Israel should praise the Lord! Recollecting these things, too, our Church in her Litany properly puts this supplication into Israel's mouth, "O God, . . . our fathers have declared unto us the noble works that Thou didst in their days, and in the old time before them." (Therefore) "O Lord, arise, help us, and deliver us for Thine honour!" "As it was in the beginning so it is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen." "Thy lovingkindnesses" (towards Israel) "they have been ever of old" (Psa. xxv. 6).

NOTE.—An able sermon preached by the Rev. Talbot Greaves, M.A., at Clifton, October 13, 1886, suggested the line of thought presented in the above remarks.

FREEMASON FOUNDATION-STONE-LAYING.

BY JOSEPH THOMSON.

AMONG the many noticeable features distinguishing the present year of the Queen's Jubilee, which has been observed with more or less enthusiasm in almost every city, town, and village in this country, is the vast amount of money that has been devoted to various objects, mostly local, some national, by which to commemorate this eventful year. Second to none of its size stands Glossop, a manufacturing town in North Derbyshire, where a sum of £25,000 has been given by a local gentleman for the erection and endowment of a public hospital. Others have generously followed so good an example with the gifts of a Public Hall, Free Library, Public Baths, and the lord of the manor with fourteen acres of land for a Public Park, to be laid out at his expense. The total value of these gifts amounts to over £50,000, and will nobly commemorate the Jubilee year of 1887 to future generations as an era to be remembered in that district.

But it is not the value, nor the particular character of these gifts, to which we now would desire notice; but the ceremony of laying the foundation stones of the Public Hall, and Free Library, which was done with "Masonic honours." The anthem, "Except the Lord conduct the plans," having been sung, the Provincial Grand Chaplain offered prayer. The stones were then laid, and while "the upper ones were slowly let down, solemn music was played." After being declared laid in due form, the Provincial Grand Chaplain, receiving the cornucopia from its bearer, presented it to the Provincial Grand Master, who strewed grains of wheat upon the stone, saying, "We strew this corn as the emblem of plenty." The Junior Grand Warden next presented the cup of wine to the Provincial Grand Master, who sprinkled the stone, saying, "We pour this wine as the emblem of cheerfulness and joy." The Senior Grand Warden then gave the ewer of oil to the P.G.M., who poured oil on the stone, saying, "We pour this oil as the emblem of prosperity and happiness." The Deputy Grand Master next presented the salt to the P.G.M., who sprinkled it on the stone, saying, "We sprinkle this salt as the emblem of wisdom, fidelity, and perpetuity; and may the All-bounteous Author of nature bless this district, this ancient town, the county, and the kingdom at large, with abundance of corn, and wine, and oil, and all the necessaries, comforts, and conveniences of life. And may the same Almighty power preserve the inhabitants in peace, and unity, and brotherly love;" to which all the brethren responded, "So mote it be." A prayer was then offered by the Provincial Grand Chaplain, and the National Anthem concluded the ceremony.*

Digitized by Google

No one can be otherwise than struck by the Scriptural character of this ceremony, and its eminently Israelitish features. Many questions might here be asked, which, perhaps, only a P.G.M. would be able fully to answer. We should like to know, for instance, if this ceremony, these emblems and words, are always used at foundation-stone-laying by the Freemasons? Also, when and how, did the form originate? The emblems are strictly Oriental, and that of salt is particularly referred to in Scripture as indicating perpetuity. "The Lord God of Israel gave the kingdom over Israel to David for ever, even to him and to his sons by a covenant of salt" (2 Chron. xiii. 5). "It is a covenant of salt for ever before the Lord," &c. (Numbers xviii. 19).

Again, we may remark that if this is a fair sample of the teaching sanctioned by the Freemasons, it is much to be commended; for we have too little of the public acknowledgment of God's hand among us now-a-days. The Freemasons, as a Society, have more than once been cursed by the Pope, and subject to the terrors of excommunication: but we see no reason for this, except in the bigoted persecuting spirit of the Papacy, which hates all truth, and particularly Scriptural truth. On the contrary, were the Pope a truly Christian bishop and shepherd of Christ's flock, we see much that he should bless in the Freemasons; and the fact that he does not bless, has long made us respect the Freemasons (although not a "brother") as being much more than "jolly good fellows well met," and really useful members of society.

We have been induced to call the attention of our readers to this ceremony, in the hope that some believers in Our Identity with the lost House of Israel, who are also Freemasons, may be able to throw more light upon what, in itself, is most interesting.

"OUR REST AND SIGNS OF THE TIMES."

FROM our Chicago contemporary we take the following, contributed to the American paper by an American of Peabody, Mass., U.S.A.

THOUGHTS FOR A MISSIONARY CONCERT, IN THE FORM OF QUESTIONS.

BY J. T. CASSINO.

QUESTION. What promises do we find in the Bible regarding missionary work?

ANSWER. The gospel is to be preached "for a witness to all nations," but there is no promise that the world will be converted by preaching. Isa. ii. 2, 3; Micah iv. 1, 2.

Q. Are there any promises to an ancient people that they are at any time or in any way to carry on the work?

A. The promise to Abraham that his seed should bless the world, requires that they should not only give the Saviour to the world, but also carry the news of that Saviour to the end of the earth.

Q. What people, or race, are doing the most of the missionary work of to-day?

A. The Anglo-Saxon race is preeminently a missionary people.

Q. Is it a part of God's plan that the Anglo-Saxon race should do this work?

A. God rules among the nations, and for His own glory, and as He planned from all eternity to save the world, He also planned by what people He would do it.

Q. Has He raised up and fitted this people by giving them their great power and wealth, and a "pure language," evidently destined to be the language of the world purposely; that they might not only carry the gospel to all lands, but be able to protect and defend their missionaries wherever sent, or did they fall into this work?

A. The question answers itself. No thoughtful mind can fail of seeing that God has most wonderfully blessed and fitted the Anglo-Saxon race for this work.

Q. In God's providential dealings with the world, does anything ever "happen"?

A. Nothing ever "happens." God rules the world in righteousness.

Q. Did God know from all eternity that this people, at this time, would do this work?

A. "He saw the end from the beginning."

Q. In foretelling the great events to take place in the world, why did He not foretell this people's prominence and work?

A. I believe He did.

Q. Did not God say the world was to be blessed through Abraham and his seed?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that a purely spiritual promise?

A. No; Most assuredly not. Christianity carries innumerable temporal blessings wherever it goes.

Q. In God's promises to His ancient people is not temporal prosperity always closely allied with spiritual faithfulness?

A. We think it is, rationally.

Q. Where no discrimination is made, may we not expect the world to be blessed, temporally as well as spiritually, by the descendants of Abraham?

A. Yes, certainly.

Q. What was the blessing which Judah was to give to the world?

A. This was a spiritual blessing, the Messiah coming from him.

Q. What was the birthright blessing taken from Reuben and given to Joseph?

A. Evidently not spiritual, as that was Judah's; neither was it the land of Palestine—that belonged to all the tribes. It must then be the multitudinous seed and many nations.

Q. How long did Judah wait before receiving blessing for the world?

A. Until Messiah came. About 1680 years.

Q. When did, or when will, Joseph get his birthright?

A. As Judah was to be the leading tribe until the Messiah came, Joseph must wait until after He came before receiving his full inheritance.

Q. Was the whole people of Israel to be a blessing to the world, or only one tribe?

A. All Israel was to bless the world. Judah, by giving a Saviour, the tribes, by telling the story of that Saviour.

Q. If Judah was to be blessed in temporal things until he received his spiritual blessing (albeit he did not know when it came), might we not infer that the same course would be taken with Joseph?

A. Joseph could not enter upon his inheritance till Messiah came.

Q. Are the seed of Abraham blessing the world temporally and spiritually to-day?

A. Yes, if God is true.

Q. What people are to-day the world's benefactors?

A. The Anglo-Saxon race alone.

Q. Was there any condition affixed to the making of Abraham's descendants a blessing to the whole world?

A. There was not.

Q. If the world was to be blessed by the seed of Abraham through Isaac and Jacob, why are they not doing it?

A. God is not a man that He should repent. He made Abraham's seed to be a blessing, and they are blessing the world to-day.

*See The Ashton Weekly Reporter, Aug. 6, 1887.

Digitized by Google

Correspondence.

DOCTORS DIFFER.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—Dr. Adler's statement that never was theory broached that rested on a more slender foundation than that of the indwellers of this island being descended from the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel, leads me to think that if the Rev. Father possessed a little more of the spirit of the ancient Bereans, he might possibly have come to a different conclusion, as some of his brethren have done.

In Rev. F. R. A. Glover's "England the Remnant of Judah,&c." (page 171—176), the author relates what occurred at an interview he had with Rabbi Bamberge, of Kreuznach. After he had explained to him his belief relative to the Hebrew evidences of holy things of divine revelation, in connection with Irish history contemporaneous with the first destruction of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, B.C. 588—such as Jacob's pillow, the Coronation Stone, the lion of the Tribe of Judah in the Royal Standard of Great Britain, the tender twig (the Eastern princess), &c., &c.—the learned Rabbi, after deep thought, asked Mr. Glover what his countrymen thought of his opinions. "They say I am mad." "Mad!" rejoined the Rabbi. "All that I can say is, that I have never heard anything half so reasonable concerning Jacob's Stone as that which I have heard from you now. It is the corner stone of the future. Certainly it is. I am content to accept your story, and thank you most heartily for bringing it to my notice." When Mr. Glover went to take leave, after an interval of six weeks, the Rabbi said, "Herr Pastor, give heed to what I say. I am ready to carry the standard that floats on the keep of Windsor Castle which has the blazon on its dexter quartering of the 'Lion of the tribe of Judah' (presumably on the return to Palestine)."

Rabbi Schwartz, of Cologne, Rabbi Weilchenfeld, of Dusseldorf, and the Chief Rabbi of Frankfort, all arrived at similar conclusions, and pressed Mr. Glover to visit them again.

These Rabbis are represented as conspicuously learned Hebrews, and the Chief Rabbi of England, Rev. Dr. Adler, himself told Mr. Glover that in Rabbi Weilchenfeld he had the advantage of the acquaintance of a man who is second to none in Germany.

May the veil be soon taken away from the heart of both Jew and Christian, so that they may recognise the justice of the expectation that every promise of temporal inheritance which God made to Abraham and his seed for ever will be literally fulfilled.

Yours faithfully,

Streatham, July 25th, 1887. GEORGE BAILY.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—Referring to the letter of your correspondent, Col. Hadfield, I think I may be able to contribute something towards a solution of the problem he has propounded. I observe he quotes Jer. xxiii. 5, 6 (R.V.), and I begin by asking whether the king therein referred to is the same as that mentioned in chap. xxxiii. 15? If not, how shall we distinguish between them? But if he is the same, then we have a variation which is peculiar. Chap. xxiii. reads: "In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely, and this is the name whereby he shall be called, The Lord is our righteousness." Chap. xxxiii. reads: "In those days shall Judah be saved, and Jerusalem shall dwell safely, and this is the name whereby she shall be called, The Lord is our righteousness." If in the first text the title be applied to "The Branch," to whom is it applied in the second? Can it mean that Jerusalem shall be called "The Lord our Righteousness"? If not, who is it that is referred to as "she"? And this leads me to something in the nature of a coincidence. St. John speaks of the Bride, the Lamb's wife, the Holy City, New Jerusalem. If the title be applicable to Jerusalem the Bride, much more must it be applicable to the Bride's spouse, who is Jesus. But a little further on, Rev. xxii. 16, it is expressly stated, "I, Jesus, have sent Mine angel to testify unto you these things in the Churches. I am the root and the offspring of David. This seems to have direct reference to the passage in Jeremiah.

I do not think it at all a straining of Scripture to suppose that a wife should be called by the same name as her husband, especially when we find that our Maker is our Husband, that we are called by His name, that He hath set His name upon us, that we have been divorced from Him, and that we shall be married to Him again. If our blessed Lord had expressly declared He was not coming again, then might we seek some other interpretation. On the contrary, when His disciples (who had already been informed that in the regeneration they should sit on twelve thrones judging the Twelve Tribes of Israel) directly asked Him, saying, "Lord, wilt Thou at this time restore again the kingdom unto Israel?" He never said He would not, but only that it was not for them to know the times or the seasons which the Father hath put in His own power, which plainly implies that He would restore the kingdom at some time. Besides, He has said, "Behold, I come as a thief," and, in the parable of the Ten Virgins, has bidden us watch for His coming. Again, the angel, in announcing His birth, expressly declared that "the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David, and He shall reign over the House of Jacob for ever, and of His kingdom there shall be no end." The other angels, also, at His ascension declared, "This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven."

Suppose, then, a son, a grandson, or, say a great grandson of our beloved Sovereign should call himself or suffer himself to be called the Lord our Righteousness, what title should we give to our blessed Lord Himself when He comes to take His seat on the throne of David? But who on earth could, except he were a divine person, rightly assume such a name as that!

Of one thing we may be quite certain, whether the Second Advent of Christ take place before, during or after the reign of such a king as we have supposed, whenever He comes He will have been preceded by false Christs, who will work signs and wonders, so as to deceive, if it were possible, even the very elect. The first earthly potentate, therefore, who should thus assume the name of the Lord his God, would almost inevitably be Antichrist.

I am, dear Sir, yours truly,

JOHN H. WOOD.

164, St. George's-road, Peckham, London, S.E., Aug. 26th, 1887.

SOWING THE SEED.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—Many Identity believers tell me that I ought to make the readers of the BANNER acquainted with what I have had placed on the fan-light of my hall door as a Jubilee decoration. I am induced to do so in consequence, as well as from a letter which I received a few day since from an "M.D.," of which I forward you a copy.

My decoration was simply the Graphic likeness of our Queen, and I had printed underneath it "Israel's Queen," in letters about two inches long.

As the fan-light projects some little distance from the door it was well seen, especially at night when the gas was lighted, as then it became a transparency. It has been in its present position since Jubilee day, and it is my present intention to keep it there, as it is very much noticed, and indeed forms a great attraction to those who pass the door. Especially has it been so during this cricket season, as thousands pass it to go to the Marylebone cricket matches. Many have come in to ask the meaning of it, and that has given me an opportunity of explaining, and giving a short—sometimes a lengthy—lecture on the subject.

I flatter myself that I have made a favourable impression, and in this way the seed is sown, as "Israel will blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit" (Isa. xxvii. 6), if only others would have the courage of their opinions, and do likewise.

Should you think the following letter (which as I said above I have received from an M.D.) worthy of a place in the BANNER, you are at liberty to publish it, as I have his consent; but he does not wish his name to appear. I wish much that he had the courage of his opinions; at any rate I have!

Yours very truly, H. HODSON RUGG.

Alpha Villa, Grove Road,
St. John's Wood, London, July 14th, 1887.

"July 9th, 1887.

"DEAR SIR,—Although I have not the pleasure of your personal acquaintance, I cannot resist the pleasure of writing to say how delighted I was to see the inscription at your door, below the Queen's portrait, 'Because the Lord loveth Israel, therefore He hath made the King (Queen) to execute judgment and justice.' It is a grand belief, and with the knowledge that our race are the Lost Tribes of Israel, how we can watch the marvellous progress of history at the present time, all pointing in one direction! I hope you will pardon my troubling you with this letter, but I thought you would be pleased to know that at least one man appreciated your Jubilee decoration.

"Believe me, yours faithfully, M. D."

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

Now Ready. 16mo. Price 2s., in bevelled boards, full gilt, gilt edges: or cloth boards, gilt lettered, 1s. 8d.; White Skiver binding, full gilt, 3s. 6d. Post free for P.O.

"MY JEWELS"

(MALACHI III. 17).

"The Precious Sons of Zion."

(LAM. IV. 7).

Choice Selections from Writers of Sacred Poetry, with Appropriate Texts from Holy Scripture, arranged for every day.

BY SARAH SHARP.

In Anni Jubilaei Memoriam, 1887.

A CLERGYMAN writes:—"I have read your MS. of 'MY JEWELS' and long for the book to come out. May 'MY JEWELS' adorn many lands, and homes, and hearts, and add some stars to our Saviour's crown."

See "BANNER OF ISRAEL," Aug. 24.

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet Court, Fleet Street. May be ordered from any Bookseller.

Price 4s., Crown 8vo., cloth, pp. 208, illustrated with 15 Woodcuts.

THE TOWER OF EGYPT;

Or, the Types and Chronology of the Great Pyramid. By A. R. G.

In this work the chronology of the Grand Gallery and Ante-chamber passages of the Great Pyramid of Egypt is re-investigated by a NEW MEASURING KEY, based upon the sacred inch-unit, whence it is found that the Pyramid Date for the Second Advent surprisingly harmonises with that deduced by the Rev. H. Grattan Guinness from independent sources.

"We recommend this thoughtful and well-written book to the attention of all Pyramid students and readers of the Banner. . . . We shall be surprised if it is not found at last that this work is a real advance in Great Pyramid knowledge."—Banner of Israel.

LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, PATERNOSTER ROW;
R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., E.C.

To the Readers of the "Oil of Wisdom of the Wise Virgins."

"BEHOLD THE BRIDEGROOM COMETH!"

CARBOLINE

1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.

Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved. DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.

Makers:

GEORGE & WELCH

CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,

Who will forward Free of Postage.

POISON IN THE ASHES.

MANY people believe that Nature has somewhere a remedy for every disease. So many and so terrible are the ills of life, and so slight the pleasure we get as time flies past, that such a belief is the least faith we can show in a gracious and all-wise Providence. A few remedies—but, alas, how few!—have been found. Others, so far, lie hidden from human inquiry. Occasionally death follows quickly on the heels of the evil—an illustration of the dangerous character of the ailment to be relieved:—

For example, Nervous Dyspepsia is a comparatively new disease, growing out of the conditions of modern life. It is a joint affection of the digestive organs and of the nervous system These two were formerly treated as separate ailments, and it was left for the clear-sighted thinkers to prove that the basis of this terrible and often fatal complication lies chiefly in the disordered and depraved functions of digestion and nutrition. They reasoned thus: "If we can induce the stomach to do its work, and stimulate the excretive organs to drive out of the body the poisonous waste matters which remain after the life-giving elements of the food have been absorbed, we shall have conquered Nervous Dyspepsia and Nervous Exhaustion." And they were right. Knowing the infallible power of Seigel's Syrup in less complicated though similar diseases, they resolved to test it fully in this. To leave no ground for doubt, they prescribed the remedy in hundreds of cases which had been pronounced incurable—with perfect success in every instance where their directions as to living and diet were scrupulously followed. Nervous Dyspepsia and Exhaustion may almost be called a peculiarly English disease. To a greater or less extent half the people of this country suffer from it—both sexes and all ages. In no country in the world are there so many insane asylums filled to overflowing, all resulting from this alarming disease. Its leading symptoms are these: Frequent or continual headache; a dull pain at the base of the brain; bad breath; nauseous eructations; the rising of sour and pungent fluids to the throat; a sense of oppression and faintness at the pit of the stomach; flatulence; wakefulness and loss of sleep; disgust with food even when weak from the need of it; sticky or slimy matter on the teeth or in the mouth, especially on rising in the morning; furred and coated tongue; dull eyes; cold hands and feet; constipation; dry or rough skin; inability to fix the mind on any labour calling for continuous attention; and oppressive and sad forebodings and fears.

All this terrible group Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup removes by its positive, powerful, direct, yet painless and gentle action upon the functions of digestion and assimilation. Those elements of the food that build up and strengthen the system are sent upon their mission, while all waste matters (the ashes of life's fire) which, unremoved, poison and kill, are expelled from the body through the bowls, kidneys, and skin. The weak and prostrated nerves are quieted, toned, and fed by the purified blood. As the result, health, with its enjoyments, blessings, and power, returns to the sufferer, who had, perhaps, abandoned all hope of ever seeing another well day.

Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup is for sale by all chemists and medicine vendors, price 2s. 6d. per bottle, and by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 35, Farringdon Road, London, E.C.

Price Twopence.

BRITAIN AND PROPHECY.

"Before the heroic age of the Greeks had passed away, God was cradling nations of mighty men behind the Caucassian mountains; these were the Ases, the ancestors of the great Anglo-Saxon people."—H. A. LONG, Glasgow.

BY JAMES WRIGHT.

Read before the Sherwell Mutual Improvement Association, Plymouth. Re-written and read in Belmont Wesleyan School-room, Stoke, Devonport.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

Price 2d., by post 2½d. Second Edition, revised.

A SUMMARY OF ANGLO-ISRAELITE TEACHING,

And of the Scripture Proofs on which it Rests.

By SURGEON-GEN. J. M. GRANT, M.D.,

President of the Cheltenham Association, and Vice-President of the Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; F. W. Parry & Co., Paternoster-row.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

Philo-Israel's Leaflets. Four pages Crown 8vo. Price 1s. 6d. per 100, postage 2d. No. 1.—"The Identity of the British with Lost Israel." 2.—"The Glory of God." 3.—An Address to British Seamen. 4.—An Address to British Soldiers. No. 5.—The Communion of the Body and Blood of Our Lord Jesus Christ Viewed in the Light of Our Identity. 6.—The Bible and the Jew. 7.—The Jewish People. 8.—Lo-Ammi; or, the Gentilisation of Ten-Tribed Israel. 9.—The Atonement. 10.—Is Our Identity Evangelical, or Non-Evangelical in its Tendency? No. 11.—Cui Bono? No. 12.—The "Thoughts" of God Towards Israel, Judah, and the Gentile Nations. 13.—The Teutonic Theory. Is It True? 14.—An Address to the Police Force of Great Britain. 15.—An Address to Israel's Missionaries and Their Supporters. 16.—The One Seed, Christ. 17.—An Address to Israel's Electors.

London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

NON-INTOXICATING BEER

(A Splendid Dinner Beverage)

MADE IMMEDIATELY WITH

MASON'S EXTRACT OR ESSENCE OF HERBS,

Composed of Yarrow, Dandelion, Comfrey, and Horehound. Send 9 stamps for sample bottle, enough to make five gallons, NEWBALL and MASON, Chemists, Nottingham.

AGENTS WANTED. APPLY FOR TERMS.

ETHELINE

A New and most effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA,

COUGHS, COLDS,

CONSUMPTION,

and all Pulmonary Affections can be immediately relieved and rapidly CURED by simply using the

AMMONIAPHONE

FOR THE Voice, Throat, Chest, and Lungs.

21s. post free.

WILL LAST FOR YEARS.

Used and recommended by the Royal Family, and principal Physicians, Clergymen, Vocalists, and Public Speakers throughout the country. New illustrated Pamphlet with copies of Thousands of Testimonials may be had FREE OF CHARGE on application to Medical Battery Co. Ltd.

52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 14, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."
(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 560. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1887. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
The Stately Daughters of the Empire, and the Gates	381
A Fresh Clerical Objection	382
A New Answer to an Old Objection. By D. Dyce Brown, M.A., M.D.	383
Ancient Watchmen Interviewed. By J. G. Taylor.—Part IV.	384
The Canaanites. By John T. Gott	384
Our Position in Egypt. By John S. Anderson	386
The Coronation Stone	386
Correspondence	387

THE STATELY DAUGHTERS OF THE EMPIRE, AND THE GATES.

THE striking article in the Times of August 30, commenting on Lord Carnarvon's letter to that journal on "The Defence of our Commercial Forts and Coaling Stations," must have some notice in our columns. They recall to our readers' recollection his lordship's first letter, written on January 6th last, and alluded to in No. 526 of the BANNER, of January 26th. The noble writer complains that though the Session is expiring, and the working year is closing, his note of warning remains unheeded, and our Home and Foreign Ports (or Gates) remain undefended. The chief imperial coaling stations, such as Hongkong, Singapore, and Mauritius, undertook to erect the works needed to receive the guns required for their defence, and have performed their part of the contract. The Home Government have neglected theirs; and not only have failed to provide the guns, but have not begun to provide them. The guns, which require two years to manufacture, have not been ordered.

The Home Gates are in the same sorry plight. The wealthy towns and manufactories situated on the Tyne, the Clyde, the Mersey, and other rivers, are left without protection, and no place which is a commercial port of the first class "has a single heavy gun mounted of modern pattern." This, says Lord Carnarvon, is a fact known to every foreign Government! And yet our own rulers and our people make no sign! They refuse to defend their own shores, and they decline to fortify their foreign Gates. The nation and its rulers seem sound asleep, and by their apathy invite destruction at the hands of their enemies. This, and a great deal more of the same kind, appears in the Times' really alarming article. The termination of one of the paragraphs declares that "by the criminal negligence of which Lord Carnarvon complains, Great Britain endangers its reduction to a level with adversaries much inferior to it in nautical strength, and invites the chances of loss incomparably beyond theirs."

Humanly speaking, and supposing this nation to be a non-Israelite Gentile race, the Times and Lord Carnarvon are quite right. If our safety depends upon the mounting of heavy guns at all our Home Ports; and if we shall be undone if we fail to make attack impossible—then indeed our case is hopeless. For our Government and people, after repeated warnings, refuse to be frightened, and persist in "living carelessly and confidently in the Isles" (Ezek. xxxix. 6). Hitherto nothing has hurt them, and they see no reason why they should be hurt in the future. "They dwell safely alone," and they laugh at anyone who tells them they may pay heavily for their vain confidence in future! The only question is whether in respect to the Home Gates our nation's confidence is vain? They are Israel, and that makes the difference! The nation as a whole does not know it is Israel certainly! But ignorance of the fact does not prevent them enacting the part of Israel unconsciously. Thus they have become a great nation, the ruler of the seas; they own the Gates; their wealth is inexhaustible; they populate the earth; their offspring have founded nations all round the world; and these seem resolved to federate and become a company of nations, in union with their old mother in the West; and last of all, not only have they unconsciously inherited all Israel's choicest spiritual gifts, but they "dwell alone safely," as Deut. xxxiii. 28 describes, carelessly and confidently, as the Times and Lord Carnarvon testify, and, so doing, afford another proof of their Identity. Otherwise how can we account for this nation's crass neglect of their own safety, and of their own vital interests? Are they mad? Far from that! Or fools? The British are not that. Why then are Liverpool, Glasgow, Newcastle, Brighton, and London itself, allowed to remain defenceless, a prey ready to fall into the power of the first daring cruiser which in time of war may escape from our Channel Squadron, and for six hours have command of the sea near these ports? The Identity, and that alone, explains the singular fact. The British are Israel, and, as Israel, must act as God said Israel should act, carelessly, confidently, in the Isles; and yet, by God's protecting care, dwell safely and alone, too, under the gracious care of His mighty arm. Here, then, is the explanation of this puzzling matter. But our race transported to the Antipodes do not act so rashly. The very same nation located in Victoria and New South Wales, and exposed to precisely the same dangers, though they may not, apparently, be so imminent as in these islands, are quite alive to their duty. Here is what Lord Carnarvon says of them and of their efforts:—

Digitized by Google

Meanwhile, in contrast to these sorry shifts, some at least of our great colonies across the sea, taking a truer measure of public duties and requirements, have set us an example which may—according as we think of them or of ourselves—fill us either with admiration or with shame. Without aid from us they have manfully faced the trouble and the outlay which are the insurance policy that nations must pay for safety from hostile aggression. In Victoria and New South Wales a navy has been created, first-class works built, armaments of the newest type mounted; while in Australia generally a total sum, I believe, of not less than £5,000.000 has been spent upon defence. In a few weeks from this time I hope to see with my own eyes the result of these wise and patriotic exertions, and, when now on the eve of leaving England for some months, I cannot refrain from again urging alike upon the Government and the country the vast importance of this question, and the deep unwisdom of delay.

Why do the British Anglo-Saxon colonists in Australia defend themselves, but we British at home laugh at all precautions? For the reason already stated. Only the inhabitants of the Isles are described as "dwellers carelessly and confidently" in their appointed place—the Isles! Their children in their far-off habitations are safe too, but they are not described as living carelessly. They are under the necessity—acting like other nations, and "shutting their doors about them"—to take measures accordingly for their safety. It is the same with our Foreign Gates or Coaling Stations, which Lord Carnarvon blames our Government so severely for neglecting. The neglect will and must be remedied, and the Gates he mentions, as well as others he has not named, must and will be adequately guarded against a danger which possibly may arise ere long, but surely not yet!

In regard to our Home Gates and island habitation, whom have we to fear? Germany? Nay; Germany has no heart for such a fight, and has no maritime power for such a venture. Austria? Italy? Turkey? These are our firm allies, and will be so to the end. France? She has the power, and perhaps the will to smite us. But she dare not go to war with us while Germany confronts her, and dare not drive Britain into an alliance with her mortal enemy when that dread conflict breaks out, as it will one day. But Russia—what of her? Russian ships will all be met and vanquished, or locked up in ice, if the war anticipated ever takes place. But the Russian controversy with Israel is not yet to happen, and when it does it will be one where God Himself will intervene to protect and guard us, and will provide for the destruction of our enemy before he can do us the least material harm.

The article in the Times to which allusion has been made declares that Canada, too, has made ample provision for her own defences, and describes its efforts in this direction as "energetic." In writing of these great colonies of the Mother Country, the leading journal makes use of these striking words, which, in themselves, point to Our Identity:—"These stately daughters of the Empire have recognised in a very practical mode their duty to it and to themselves." Surely we have here a reference, blindly made by the Times, to the prophecy in Gen. xlix. 22, wherein Joseph's bough, even the fruitful bough by a well, whose daughters (or branches) run over the wall, are mentioned. These Antipodean and Western "daughters" are stately nations, carrying out their destiny as Israel's Confederated States, and we may be sure that He who gave them to Israel and presented them with the Gates to guard them, will preserve all to His own glory for ever! The value of the Gates or Coaling Stations the Times has again very graphically described to us in the article we have already quoted. "Without coaling stations," it stated, "a nineteenth century fleet becomes in a few weeks a number of hulks, and at present the great majority of British coaling stations are at the mercy, in the event of a naval war, of any enemy's flying squadron." A dearth of coal, the Times says truly, would cause inconvenience now to a foreign fleet, because Britain possesses all the coaling stations. But we are voluntarily courting this inconvenience ourselves by our carelessness in guarding them. Our carelessness, no doubt, is very great. But God cares for Israel (His blind ones), and will see that the Gates, which are theirs by promise, are not lost to them by any mischance whatever. "Behold, He that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep. The Lord is thy keeper," and He will be, we may be sure, the keeper of Israel's Gates as well! Therefore, let us praise His holy name for evermore, and thank Him, not only for our "stately daughters" in the four quarters of the globe, but also for our splendid Gates, the value of which even blind Israel may be expected soon to know!

A FRESH CLERICAL OBJECTION.

We notice the following objection to our views because of the exalted region from which it emanates, not to indicate any very new or very profound argument against us. The objection as stated is this:—"According to your view, those whom we call Jews, descendants of the Jewish Tribes, came, when they came to England, into the midst of a race who represent the Ten Tribes, and yet the facts of the difference of race are so marked, that even a child can tell the Jew when he meets him from the Anglo-Israelite. It may be said that migrations and vicissitudes have obliterated the race-marks in the one, and not in the other; but migrations and vicissitudes have been the lot of both."

Such is the argument, and it is an old friend! The Jew is known as a Jew everywhere by his racial and facial type. The British racial and facial type is wholly diverse. Therefore the British cannot be racially connected with the Jews; that is, are not Israelites at all. What reply can we give to our clerical objector who thinks to disarm us by saying that "migrations and vicissitudes have been the lot of both Jews and the Ten Tribes, and therefore if these have changed the one House they ought to have changed the other"? Now, as the Jews are supposed to have retained their facial type and race-marks, it is clear that migrations and vicissitudes alone will not change the type of a race or account for divergencies in type. Let us see what God said He would do with the Ten Tribes as distinguished and separated from the Jews, the Two. Amos ix. 9, R.V., tells us. "Lo, I will command, and I will sift the House of Israel among all the nations like as corn is sifted in a sieve, yet shall not the least grain fall upon the earth." In Ezek. xi. 16, 17, R.V., God announced His resolve to scatter all the House of Israel among the countries far off among the nations or Gentiles. The Ten Tribes, therefore, were to be mingled and scattered among the Gentiles, intermarried with them, and thus amalgamated with them. This would suffice in a thousand years to break down all race distinctions and modify facial types, especially when climatic changes are added to those caused by intermarriage with alien races. The Jews have in large measure abstained from mingling their blood with the Gentiles among whom their lot has been cast.

But even in their case it is a mistake to suppose that they have not felt the influence of their migrations and vicissitudes. These have had a powerful effect on the Jews of, say the Malabar coast of Western India, turning them into black men! The Jews of Spain and Morocco differ vastly from those of Germany and Poland, and could not be known as racially connected with them. So much for physiological facts. But there are sacred and scriptural considerations to weigh also, in looking into this problem, to which our clerical opponents, of all men, are bound to give good heed. God's purpose was to banish His people Israel, and "to remove them out of His sight" (2 Kings xvii. 20). A people "removed out of the Lord's sight," must have been hidden from man's too. For indeed they were to lose, and did lose, every distinguishing mark of their Israelitish origin. They ceased to be His covenant people, therefore became His Lo-Ammi (Hosea i. 9). They ceased to be a "kingdom;" they were broken up and banished in small parties to a distant alien land, and there were lost to history and human ken. Their language was changed, their religion disused, their sacred writings abandoned, for they became rank idolaters and apostates (2 Kings xvii). They became a "lost" and abandoned people, separated from the covenant of their God, mixed with, and scattered among, the heathen. They went Westward, to the Isles of the West, and in the cold climate of these hyperborean regions, it was a certainty that they would nationally be changed in physique during their protracted residence there of many centuries.

Digitized by Google

God's will regarding them was thus fully carried out. They were "lost," and could never have been rediscovered by reason of facial or racial likeness to the Jewish type. Their language religion and customs were also changed, as all needs must have been if God's purposes were ever to be carried out at all. The Jews being still under covenant with God, and remaining His Ammi, or people, could never have been lost, and must therefore still retain those identifications which enable even a child to point to them and say, "Behold the Jews!" Our clerical objector has yet another suggestion to make against us, and that is, that there is no connecting link between King Zedekiah and King Eochaid Heremon. On this subject we do not care to contest the matter. To many minds that line of evidence is particularly strong. We do not feel it to be so; but of this we may be confident:—that, given the British nation to be Israel, then Jer. xxxiii. 17—26, and 2 Sam. vii. 16, compel the assent of the mind to the conclusion that Queen Victoria the Good, the Queen of England, Scotland, and Ireland, and Empress of India, is of the House of Judah, by lineage.

A NEW ANSWER TO AN OLD OBJECTION.

By D. Dyce Brown, M.A., M.D.

Those who are opposed to the view that the British nation are the Lost Ten Tribes, are wont to make a good deal of the fact that the British features of face and the language show no evidence of a Semitic origin of the race, contrasting thus, at least in the facial characteristics, with the marked type of feature presented by the Jews in all lands. A sufficient reason for the maintenance of the Jewish type of feature is to be found, besides the constant inter-marriages, in the fact that in the Bible the Jews are nowhere spoken of as becoming a separate nation, with a king, government, etc., but on the contrary they were to be "scattered and peeled," mingled with, and yet separate from other races. This being their destiny, till they are restored with Israel, they would infallibly have become undistinguishable were it not for the standing miracle of the facial characteristics. But with Israel, destined to be a "nation and company of nations," and having so many prophesied marks by which they can be found, though lost for centuries, their case is different. Here one can understand how God, in order that they should be lost to outward observation for centuries, yet gradually develop into the most powerful nation in the world, and present all the promised characteristics, should allow the outward distinctions of face and language to disappear.

It has been answered before to these objectors that the facial features of a race do alter in generations, owing to change of climate, habits, inter-marriages, etc., and that an originally new language may, from change of country, mixing with other nations, etc., disappear. These points I shall, therefore, not here enter into again. The answer I am now propounding seems to me so simple that it makes the objection really no objection at all. In every argument facts must be taken as facts, and given their proper place, whether theory can explain them or not. Now the fact exists that the Ten Tribes, whoever and wherever they are, have lost their Semitic features and language. If they had not, they would be as easily discovered as the Jews are. This being the case, the question becomes, Does any nation in the world, independently of the facial and language points, correspond in the least to all the promises and prophecies of what Israel is to be in the "last times"? The answer to this is that no other nation but the British in the least degree does so correspond, and that the British nation fulfils every requirement of the case. We have, therefore, simply to take as a fact that the Ten Tribes have lost their oriental facial expression and language. No theory will alter the fact, and consequently the fact ceases to be any real objection in the question of Identity. We are thus placed on the horns of a dilemma. Either the Ten Tribes do not exist as a nation, and these promises and prophecies remain unfulfilled, or, looking to the numerous characteristics which are of first-class importance, and which are in the Bible specially descriptive of restored Israel, these Ten Tribes have, for some reason, lost their Semitic features and language. We cannot, as far as I see, get away from one or other horn of the dilemma, and I think that this is of itself not only a clear reply to this objection, but effectually disposes of it as an objection at all. This argument may seem a case of "reductio ad absurdum," but it is all the more potent and conclusive.

Professor Sayce's address at the British Association at Manchester (see Times, Sept. 2nd), has an important bearing on the language question of Identity. He maintains that affinity or non-affinity of language is no proof for or against the Identity of origin of two races. Such an opinion from an expert in philology goes far to nullify any argument on this score against the Identity of the British nation with the Ten Tribes. Professor Sayce further goes on to endeavour to refute Professor Max Müller's theory, derived from a study of the Sanskrit language, that the Aryan race originally came from Central Asia and migrated to Europe. Professor Sayce maintains that all the evidence goes to show that the Aryan race originally sprung from the cold Northern regions of Europe, and that they were a race different in all particulars from that pictured by Max Müller.

When two authorities in philology arrive at diametrically opposite views, and from the same evidence, it is clear that both conclusions must be received with caution and doubt. And when such diverse opinions result from the study of philology, it follows that objections to Our Identity with Israel on the score of language have really none but the most uncertain basis. If we, therefore, maintain the position of simply accepting as a fact, which cannot be explained away, that the Ten Tribes have lost their original language, we stand on impregnable ground. It is far more philosophical and scientific to accept a fact as a fact, and reason from this as a standpoint, than to be led to explain away the fact in order to suit theories. After Professor Sayce's opinions, expressed in his address, does it not seem much more in accordance with God's providential rulings, that He should permit the language of the Israelites to be lost, in order that they should, as events develop, gradually discover who they are by the aid of the numerous tests which are scattered through the Bible? He has permitted to occur just what Professor Sayce admits may occur—viz., the disappearance of the language as a mark of racial affinity.

29, Seymour-street, Portman-square, W.

The great Jewish religious observance in connection with the first day of the new year—A.M. 5648—will commence at sundown on Sunday next.

Dr. Morell Mackenzie has been knighted in recognition of his successful treatment of the Crown Prince of Germany.

Digitized by Google

ANCIENT WATCHMEN INTERVIEWED.

By J. G. Taylor.

(Continued from page 375).

IV.—HEBREW TRAITS, WITH A DISQUISITION THEREON.

The reasons which led Fletcher to infer that the Scythians of the Caspian were Israelites, are not in our opinion very convincing. But it must be allowed that, until recently, identifications of this class were the best available, so that while we may consider them to be weak, they faithfully served their day and generation in the absence of anything stronger. The fault we have to find is, not that Dr. Fletcher utilized what material he had, but that the majority of people still prefer to rely on such broken reeds. With the former it was a matter of compulsion, with the latter it is deliberate choice.

Our author says: 1. The Scythian-Tartars observed the rite of circumcision. 2. Sundry of their towns bore names resembling those of Israel, to wit, Samarchian, which he derives from Samaria; Tabor, "a great town and well fenced;" Jericho, "seated upon the river Ardoce, near the Caspian;" and "Corazen, the great and the less, whereof the less was surprised not long agoe and taken from them," by which we collect that their "Gates" were not quite invulnerable. 3. They sacrificed on the day of "Elias." 4. They offered up a goat on the death of their friends. 5. "It is conjectured that they have many Hebrew and Chaldee words" in their language. 6. They were divided into tribes, of which he discovered ten. 7. A surviving brother was at liberty to marry the relict of a deceased one. 8. "They affirm, as they receive it by tradition, that they had their origine from the Israelites, by which tradition it is reported that the great Tamerlain would boast himself that he was descended from the tribe of Dan."

The progress of ethnological research has not confirmed this alleged Hebrew lineage of the Scythian Tartars. But beside and beyond this, the national features of Israel are pretty plainly delineated in the Bible, not one of which have the Tartars developed, and the chances that they ever will do so are becoming exceedingly slender. Like those other candidates for Hebrew honours, the Red Indians, they will probably be "destroyed from off the face of the earth;" but that is the only reference to Israel in which they are calculated to have a share. We are aware that on the question of Israel's identity the Bible is a very inferior court of appeal in the estimation of many. But Dr. Fletcher was not of that caste. With Abraham, "he believed God," and if he had been alive to-day we think he would have confessed that a full and palpable response to prophecy is evidence more weighty than the immolation of a whole herd of goats over the ashes of a defunct Tartar. When enumerating the cities possessed of an apparently Hebrew nomenclature, he remarks that "this univocation of Tartar cities with those of Israel doth show that the Israelitish people have been there and given the names unto these cities as the manner is, for the remembrance of their countries from whence they came," which we can safely admit without admitting that they were near the Caspian in the sixteenth century. It is indisputable that the Ten Tribes inhabited this region at one period of their history, but it does not follow that they are there now, or were there when Fletcher wrote. Supposing, however, that the practices of which he speaks, and on which he rests his hypothesis, were purely Israelitish, in what way are they to be accounted for apart from the idea of Hebrew ancestry? This is not difficult to answer, but it trenches on a wide field of inquiry, and bears distinctly on the Teutonic theory. That the Sacæ were really Scythians is doubtful, but that they associated with Scythians in so far as to be often confounded with them is well known. Out of this Gentile "companionship," as it may be called, arose the Gentilization of Israel, a circumstance clearly foretold in prophecy, and an event (it should be noted) which scientists who have dealt with the subject acknowledge to have taken place. The professors, in fact, go further, and assert that the Ten Tribes were entirely assimilated to the Gentiles, being ultimately absorbed by them; and although Scripture is explicit in its witness to the impossibility of "absorption," it is equally precise in predicting a measure of "assimilation." But this assimilation could not be all on one side—it would be mutual. If Israel was so long and so closely intimate with Gentile races as to adopt numberless foreign traits, it is absurd to imagine that she would leave no trace of this contact on her neighbours. When two nations are drawn into fast relations, a process of social borrowing and lending is inevitable; and seeing that Israel has contracted so much, it is certain that she would return at least something. Keeping this in mind, we not merely understand why it is that scraps of humanity here and there can produce a few Hebrew customs, but we get at the root of the Teutonic conception. It is obvious that the advocates of this theory are debarred from basing their view on the Bible. They cannot point to a general or definite fulfilment of Israel's destiny in the German States. The British Empire is unique in that respect. But once it is granted that the English are of Israelitish origin, they can indicate a resemblance between the usages of England and Germany suggestive of a common stock. If the existence of an Israelitish law in England helps to link her on to Israel, the existence of a like law in Germany will, it may be said, do the same for the Germans. Not exactly so. The presence of numerous Gentile characteristics in this country is no valid proof that the British are of Gentile extraction, and similarly the occurrence of Israelitish characteristics in Germany is not a decisive token of Israelitish descent.

It is, of course, true that the Saxon and German races were political connections. But this is an argument against, not in favour of the Teutonic theory. For if the Germanic people are sprung from the Ten Tribes, where are the alien nations among whom Israel had to wander, and from whom she has reflected her Gentile complexion? In spite, also, of many affinities, there are fundamental differences which seem to demand a separate origin for each, while the testimony of Scripture broadens the gulf and makes it quite impassable.

(To be continued.)

THE CANAANITES.

By John T. Gott.

"Thou shalt drive them out before thee."—Ex. xxiii. 31.

Strict injunctions were given to the Israelites of old, that when they entered the Land of Promise, they were to "drive out" the Canaanites, and others. "By little and little" ye shall drive them out. But the Israelites were not a military people, and the people with whom they were to contend were men of war, trained from youth. What Jehovah required from His chosen people was obedience. The insuperable difficulties which seemed to lie before them were really as nothing, for if we read carefully, we shall find it is written, over and over again, "I will drive out the Canaanite," &c. What they lacked in military skill, nature was to supply. "I will send hornets before thee, which shall drive out the Canaanite," &c. (ibid, v. 28). We may thus see how little the Holy One of Israel required from His chosen people, and how much He intended to do for them. From the testimony of Joshua, we know that the "hornets" drove out two kings of the Amorites, but the victory was not gained by Israel's "sword" or Israel's "bow" (Josh. xxiv. 12). These victories were gained before the Israelites entered the land, and were a Divine sign that Jehovah would certainly fulfil His promise.

But He who "knoweth the end from the beginning," declared, "If ye will not drive out the inhabitants of the land from before you: then, it shall come to pass, that those which ye LET REMAIN of them, shall be pricks in your eyes, and thorns in your sides, and shall vex you in the land wherein ye dwell" (Num. xxxiii. 55).

Digitized by Google

The eyes and sides are the most tender and sensitive parts of the body, and it requires no great strain of imagination to understand what torture and agony pricks and thorns are capable of producing. It is a plain truth, but one not easily perceived, as a rule, that the Lord God requires complete obedience, even to His simplest commands. He knew the Israelites would obey, but He also knew that they would not completely finish the work He had given them to do. And, therefore, the warning was duly given, that those whom they "let remain," should eventually become "pricks and thorns," wherever they might dwell as a people. We know from sacred history that the Ten Tribes did let some remain, and that they did become very grievous "pricks and thorns" to them, while they remained in their own land, and when they went into Assyrian captivity, they carried the "pricks and thorns" with them, for it is written "there was none left but the tribe of Judah only" (2 Kings xvii. 18).

When the Assyrian empire was broken up, the captive Ten Tribes of Israel disappeared from the ken of man in a somewhat mysterious manner, yet in a manner plainly predicted by the prophet Hosea. He declared of Israel obedient, "When Israel spake, there was trembling, but when he offended in Baal, he died" (xiii. 1).

We all have our own views of death. Most of us believe in "the resurrection of the dead." We see, yearly, illustrations of this in the animal and vegetable world. But the dead are out of sight, and in time, become forgotten. So Israel "died," so he disappeared, and so he eventually became forgotten. The prophet Hosea, under four graphic and unmistakable symbols, which may be easily understood, declared of them that they should be, 1st, "as the morning cloud;" 2nd, "as the early dew that passeth away;" 3rd, "as the chaff that is driven with the whirlwind out of the floor;" 4th, "as the smoke out of the chimney" (xiii. 3).

A very elementary knowledge of science enables us to understand that the component parts of clouds or dew are ever present, but that under altered conditions they may become invisible, and that under a reversal of these conditions they again become visible. So is it predicted of Israel. Ephraim-Israel died; but as the Bible is true, Ephraim-Israel, who disappeared at the end of the second act of the world's great drama, is to re-appear in the last, and is destined to perform a rôle that shall silence the sceptic, confound the "wise in their own conceit," and redound to the praise and glory of the Holy One of Israel.

We come now to the point of this short paper. The British people have been proved to be the Stone Kingdom of Daniel's prophecy, and, therefore, lost Israel. If they are not, then the Sacred Record, which has predicted the rise and fall of all the great world powers that have ever existed, has failed, because the greatest, mightiest, wealthiest, and most influential nation that ever ruled in this world, has an existence to-day. Such a nation the Bible speaks of under the old cognomen—Israel.

If, then, the British people are Israel, where are the "pricks and thorns"? Thoughtful people will have little hesitation in saying that the Bible term, "pricks and thorns," as applied to the Irish malcontents, is exceedingly appropriate, even if it be very old. They are true descendants of the ancient Canaanites. Like them, they have proved themselves to be equally as clever, crafty, and cruel as their forefathers. We doubt whether any civilised nation of modern times except our own, has been more worried, harassed, or afflicted by a mere handful of men, whether the "difficulty" be considered in a national or a political aspect; whether any such nation has undergone the horrors of vindictive murders, loss, and ruin of property, but, over and above all, the wanton cruelty these fiends in human form have inflicted on poor, dumb animals, in order to revenge themselves on men with whom they choose to differ. No wonder, then, that the elders of Israel have been driven to adopt measures that "all the world wonders at."

The Holy One of Israel is unchangeable. He commanded Israel of old to "drive out" the Canaanite. No matter what length of time may elapse, that command must be obeyed. That is, when Israel obedient does the little required, the Lord God of Israel will do much. In ancient times, He gained for His people the greatest and most astounding victories, when they, as a nation, were in a weak, miserable and deplorable condition. So, we believe, it will be again in our own national history, ere many years have rolled away.

The National League has been proclaimed, and we are not sorry to read the unexpected news to-day. The outrages which have been committed in the past have at length "driven" the British people to consider the Irish question very seriously: the British Houses of Parliament have been "driven" to adopt measures of a very severe character: the Bill has literally been "driven" through, and now we wait the result of this very manifest sign of the times.

During the present year, there has been a very steady flood of emigration from Ireland, and we, as watchmen, are called upon to note the effect of this extreme measure which has now become law.

We have many pillars of proof to support Our Identity cause, and have much unchallenged evidence to advance it; we have had many signs to corroborate it, but they are now becoming so numerous and so important, that each one calls for special notice. These signs indicate that we are swiftly drawing near to the days predicted by the prophet Ezekiel, when he declared respecting the House of Israel, "I will settle you after your old estates, and will do better unto you than at your beginnings" (xxxvi. 11).

He, who in the beginning caused "thorns and thistles" to spring out of the earth, on account of man's sin, can alone remove them, and He has promised to do so, for the day is yet to come when the mountains and the hills shall break forth into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands, and "instead of the thorn (the wicked) shall come up the fir tree (the godly), and instead of the brier (emblem of uncultivation) shall come up the myrtle tree" (type of the Christian Church.* It is a lowly, beautiful, fragrant, ever-green shrub — Isa. lv. 12).

And in precisely the same manner will the God of Israel remove the human "pricks and thorns" from the "eyes and sides" of His chosen people when they bestir themselves to complete the work He gave to their forefathers of old. Israel-Britain has been driven to do this, for it is a work that must be done. Ere long, we may see the hand of God at work, for it is written, "In that day there shall be no more the Canaanite in the House of the Lord of Hosts" (Zech. xiv. 21).

If the "pricks and thorns" are not to be found after restoration times, they most certainly will be plucked out beforehand. Watch, therefore!

August 20th, 1887.

THE Jubilee coins have been snapped up by collectors, and are already fetching more than their value. The £5 piece sells at £7.

NEARLY 5,000 people went to see the Queen's Jubilee presents at St. James's Palace on the opening day.—The Manchester Jubilee Exhibition has now been visited by three millions of people.

AN attempt is being made to secure the house and grounds at Brixton, which formerly belonged to Sir Walter Raleigh, as a public park.

---

* This is Dr. Fausset's comment. We prefer to substitute the House of Israel for the Christian Church. The House of Israel is the "spreading vine," the "tree of low stature."

Digitized by Google

OUR POSITION IN EGYPT.

By John S. Anderson.

The Standard of to-day contains in a leading article some very good remarks arising out of the debate in the House of Commons on our occupation of Egypt. On the diplomatic question arising out of our position in Egypt, this paper says:—

Sir James Fergusson's statement was, perhaps, less complete than on other points. But he clearly indicated this much—that England would never allow the jealousy of other nations to force her out of a position which she believed to be advantageous both to herself and those whom she protected. "Nothing," he said, "was to be gained by hauling down our flag, and turning tail in Egypt." The public will read these words with great satisfaction as symptomatic of a thoroughly healthy feeling in the Cabinet on the subject of our relations with Egypt, and calculated to dispel many prejudices against the Government which have been set afloat by interested persons.

It is a curious thing that the only people who cannot see the importance of Egypt to England from a military and naval point of view should be Englishmen. All the other Great Powers recognise it, and every soldier and sailor must see it plainly enough. But professors and doctrinaires are not the best guides for a nation in questions of practical statemanship; and we hardly suppose that their remarks on such a subject as this will attract very much attention. As for saying that we must retire from Egypt to soothe the susceptibilities of France, had we acted on that principle in former days the British Empire would never have existed. It is enough for us that we give no reasonable cause of offence to any; but to say that we will never provoke the jealousy of other nations is simply to say that we will abdicate the position we have so long occupied in the world, and desist from all further efforts either to protect our interests or extend our influence. It would be a matter for very serious regret if our friendly relations with France were interrupted by any cause. But security may be bought too dear, and nations, like individuals, must beware of sacrificing for the sake of life all that makes it worth having. When it is asked whether England is "going in for philanthropy or Empire," the unhesitating answer should be "for both." In this instance the two coincide. The interests of the Egyptian people and the interests of the British Empire point to one and the same conclusion—namely, that we ought not to evacuate Egypt and leave the door open behind us for another Power to walk in as soon as we have disappeared. We must remain where we are as long as our retirement from the country means, not Egyptian independence, but only a change of occupiers. If it is disagreeable to France to see us where we now are, it would be worse than disagreeable—highly dangerous—to ourselves to see France in our place. Yet that is the almost certain result if we follow the advice of such counsellors as Mr. Bryce and Mr Labouchere. We are happy to think that the effect of the whole debate will be to strengthen the hands of the Government, and clear away a good many misconceptions which have gained currency on the Egyptian Question. If we are right in this opinion, Saturday will not have been wholly wasted, even though it led to nothing more. We are to have another debate yet on the mission of Sir Drummond Wolff. But the speech of Sir James Fergusson leaves little more to be said on the general policy of the Government, of which, however, it must after all be admitted that the more it succeeds the more certain is it to be condemned by those who regard Imperial responsibilities as a cumbersome and useless burden.

Of course there is here the usual "blind evidence." But is not this secular writer's statement remarkable when he says that the only people who cannot see the importance of Egypt to England, are Englishmen themselves? and further answering the question, "whether we are going in for philanthropy or Empire," he replies, for "both." This answer is almost inexplicable, unless the matter be looked at from the scriptural point of view, and the acknowledgement be made that this nation is Israel.

Croydon, August 22, 1887.

THE CORONATION STONE.

To the Editor of the "Cheltenham Examiner."

Sir.—Stress has been laid by some of our opponents—and if I remember rightly, by Mr. Skene—upon the fact that in the description of the Coronation of Aidem, King of the Scots, at Argyle, by St. Columba, no mention is made of the Lia Fail—the Stone of Destiny—the much-prized Coronation Stone. I, therefore, looked with no small degree of interest to our chroniclers and historians of passing events—our daily journalists—to see what mention they would deem it necessary to make of the presence of the Coronation Stone at the late Jubilee celebration in our own Westminster Abbey. And if you will turn to their columns, I believe you will usually find that notice thereof is conspicuous by its absence. Yet Anglo-Israel writers will note with grateful praise the striking and significant fact that Queen Victoria refused to allow this celebration to be holden (as proposed) in St. Paul's Cathedral, and that she did for the second time seat herself upon Jacob's Stone upon this august occasion.

We cannot prove a negative, but we can reason from analogy.

Again: readers of the daily morning papers will have noticed a statement that the Coronation Chair was removed from the Abbey for renovation and embellishment, in preparation for the Jubilee. This statement was afterwards distinctly contradicted. Ought we then to count it strange when we find conflicting statements in the early chroniclers respecting this sacred stone?

In proof of the acknowledged antiquity of this our national heirloom, I would quote Sir I. Ware, who collects in his "Antiquities of Ireland" various notices of this celebrated stone. Amongst these are the following: "That the Irish historians say it was brought into their country by the Tuath de Danans, when it was regarded as an enchanted stone, having peculiar properties: that when any of the Royal Scythian race (i.e., the House of Israel, so called during their emigration hither) placed themselves upon it to be crowned, if he were a lawful king, it made a noise resembling thunder; if the king-elect were a pretender, the stone remained silent. That before the birth of Christ, he only was crowned monarch under whom the stone thus spoke or groaned. That in the reign of Moriertach Mac Erc he sent it over to his brother, Fergus I., King of Scotland, who being descended from the blood royal of Ireland, was crowned upon this Stone of Destiny." Sir I. Ware further says, that "the ancient historians of Scotland fix the date of his receiving the Stone from Ireland B.C. 330; that it was placed in Argyleshire, where it remained till the reign of Kenneth II., who, having vanquished the Picts, near Scone, A.D. 840 (?) enclosed the Stone in a wooden chair, and deposited it in the Monastery there, to serve for the inauguration of the Kings of Scotland."

Pennant says, "Its station in Argyleshire was the Castle of Dunstaffnage"; and he gives an engraving of a figure in ivory which was found in the ruins of that Castle, and which is supposed to represent a king sitting in the ancient chair which contained the sacred stone.

Holinshed says, "In this chiar all kingis of Scotland was ay crownit qulid yl tyme of King Robert Bruce."

Chalmers says, "The last of the kings of Scotland who had the felicity to be crowned in this essential seat was Alexander III." Caledonia I., p. 468.

These notices are given by Mr. Geikie in a letter to Mr. Skene.

The Treaty of Northampton, 1328, between Edward III. (then a minor) and King David, agreed that the Stone should be restored to Scotland. But though the Abbot of Westminster was commanded to deliver it up, when the Londoners heard of it the public feeling was such that the agreement remained unfulfilled. God in His mercy preserved to us "the stone which the builders rejected," and we should regard it with at least as high a veneration as did our ancestors on that memorable occasion.

Yours obediently,

Ellen M. Rogers.

Glenwood, The Shrubbery, Weston-Super-Mare,
July 9th, 1887.

Erratum for previous letter: for "stronger," read "strange" (theory).—Cheltenham Examiner, July 3rd, 1887.

Digitized by Google

Correspondence.

To the Editor of "The Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—During this happy Jubilee time how often "Rule Britannia" has been sung on land and sea round the world! Has anyone remarked how very prophetic the words are? It is curious that they were written when England was but small in the eyes of the nations of Europe; we were scarcely more than a third-rate Power when these proud words were first sung. Is it known who composed them?

I enclose these verses, if you think fit to draw attention to them.

I am, Sir, yours very truly,

L. T. DAVIES.

2, Riven-street, Bath, August 1st.

"When Britain first, at Heaven's command,
Arose from out the azure main,
This was the charter of the land,
And guardian angels sang the strain:

Rule Britannia, Britannia rules the waves!
Britons never shall be slaves!

The nations not so blest as thee
Must in their turn to tyrants fall,
Whilst thou shalt flourish great and free,
The dread and envy of them all.

Chorus.

Thee, haughty tyrants ne'er shall tame,
All their attempts to bind thee down,
Will but arouse thy generous flame,
And work their woe and thy renown.

Chorus.

To thee belongs the rural reign,
Thy cities shall with commerce shine,
All shall be subject to the main,
And every shore it circles thine.

Chorus.

The muses still with freedom found,
Shall to thy happy coasts repair;
Blest Isle, with matchless beauty crowned,
And manly hearts to guard the fair."

Rule Britannia, &c.

[Such are the words of our popular national song, written, it is believed, by James Thomson, the poet, who lived in 1700 to 1748, long before "Britannia was great." The little popular poem actually bristles with Identity points, and must be a prophetic song of Israel, so exactly does it accord with the prophecies regarding God's chosen ones. The first verse declares that she arose by Heaven's command. "This people have I formed for Myself," is God's declaration in Isa. xliii. 21. "Rule Britannia, Britannia rules the waves," was the divine command according to the song. But the gift of the Gates to Israel, and the promise that she should be above all the nations of the earth, show that the Scriptures give the clue which the song merely follows up (Gen. xxii. 17; Deut. xxviii. 1 and 13). The second verse tells of God's guarantee to Israel, and that "He hath not so dealt with any nation" (Psa. cxlvii. 19, 20). Other nations have no promise of continuance; but Israel is to continue "a nation for ever" (2 Sam. vii. 23, 24; Jer. xxxi. 36). Haughty tyrants, says the song, shall never tame Britons, the heirs of renown. And God's word makes them the heir of the world, the rulers of all nations (Dan. vii. 27; Rom. iv. 13). The fourth verse promises the British vast commerce—the power of the sea—and the dominion of all the lands it circles. Here we have the same promise to Israel repeated, and the power of the Gate, admitted to be Israel's, assigned to the sons of Britain. The last verse terms ours "The blest Isle," and surely "the Isles afar off," of Jer. xxxi. 10, where Israel was to be located, are shown in that and other passages to be blessed of God above all the other countries of the world. The chorus of the song, which is national, is remarkable in the extreme—"Rule Britannia, Britannia rules the waves"—was a plain fact in Thomson's days as in ours, and points to the fact that the British are Israel, a people made free by God Himself, and destined "never to be slaves." Slaves they once were in Egypt, but God freed them, and freed them for ever, as the Decalogue teaches us in Exod. xx. 2, and Deut. v. 6 (comp. Isa. lviii. 14, and Deut. xxviii. 1 and 13). The national sea song is a song of triumph resting upon the promises of God, and we do well to repeat it on all occasions, for it points to Our Identity, and should lead us nationally to praise the Lord!—ED.]

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—In the February No. of The Prophetic News and Israel's Watchman, published at 2, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row (price 2d), there are several articles which deserve your attention as Editor of THE BANNER OF ISRAEL. I desire to draw your attention chiefly to the last paragraph in it, on page 64, which occurs under the heading, "What the Jewish papers are saying: Abyssinian Falishas":—

"A valuable contribution to the knowledge of these most interesting people has recently been given by the well-known Orientalist, Dr. Neubauer, in a paper read by him before the Jews' College Literary Society. In Abyssinia there are about 200,000 Jews who go under the name of Falishas, which means 'emigrants,' or 'exiles.' The name indicates clearly that they are not of Abyssinian origin, but strangers who settled in the land."

The extract concludes with the last paragraph thus (already mentioned):—

"The rabbis of the 15th and 16th centuries speak of the Falishas as belonging to the Ten Tribes. The Ten Tribes! Where are they? and where are they not? In Kurdistan, in the Caucasus, in England, in Ireland, in Malabar, in China, and in Bombay amongst the Beni-Israel! Well, it would be difficult to prove that the English do not belong to the Ten Tribes, but it is most certain the black Jews at Malabar—those in the Caucasus and Kurdistan, and even the Beni-Israel—are rabbinistic Jews, some of whom retain more or less the tradition, while some have lost all knowledge of Hebrew. But it can be proved that the Beni-Israel knew it, and that they possessed Hebrew books when they emigrated from Persia to India. The small colony of Jews in China came from Persia, as may be seen from a postscript to their Pentateuch. They have also forgotten the Hebrew language."

On referring to page 45, under the article "The Pontificate and Prophecy," I find the author classing Anglo-Israelism with Pharisaism, Popery, &c., but on page 64 I read that "it would be difficult to prove that the English do not belong to the Ten Tribes . . . and that the Ten Tribes amongst other nationalities are found 'in England, in Ireland.'"

The teaching of Israel's Watchman is certainly very incoherent on the subject of the Twelve Tribes, but the learned Orientalist, Dr. Neubauer, who is doubtless "a Jew" in the usual acceptation of the word, certainly draws a clear line of distinction between the Tribes of Judah and the Tribes of Israel, though perhaps he has not learnt out of the S. P. C. K.'s remarkably good "Old Testament History" (1d.), headed thus:—

No. 797.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS.—No. III.

Old Testament History.—No. 2.

LONDON:
SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE.

On page 18, Lesson XI is headed "Kings of Judah and Israel"; Lesson XII. (p. 19), "The Kingdom of Israel," and concludes as follows:—

"At last the people of Israel (see p. 20) became so wicked that God sent the King of Assyria to take them away to his country, and they have never since come back to their own country."

On page 21 occurs Lesson XIII., headed "Kingdom of Judah," and on the following page, at the conclusion of the lesson, occurs this passage: "After seventy years, God let the Jews go back to Judæa, and build the Temple again."

"The outcasts of Israel," and "the dispersed of Judah," escape the notice of most people.

With the exception of the grouping of "Anglo-Israelism" with "Pharisaism and Popery," the article on page 45 in Israel's Watchman is very good in many points (viz.: "The Pontificate and Prophecy"). In my copy of the magazine I find in the table of contents an article mentioned thus: "Popery, Resuscitated Paganism," by Rev. Dr. Wylie, of Edinburgh.

Wishing you all success in your noble efforts to promote the truth of God and its knowledge,

I am, dear Sir, yours truly obliged,

A CONSTANT READER.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

A New Work on the Identity of Lost Israel

By the late BISHOP TITCOMB.

Now ready, in Cloth Gilt, Bevelled Boards, Imperial 8vo. Price 3s.; sent Post Free for Postal Order or Stamps.

A MESSAGE TO THE CHURCH

FROM

THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

BY THE LATE

RT. REV. BISHOP TITCOMB, D.D.

The Kentish Mercury, April 21st, says:—"This book derives a peculiar and pathetic interest from the circumstances that the proofs of its concluding pages were revised by the author during the last few days of his life, and that its publication took place simultaneously with his death. One feels, in noticing a book under such circumstances, a special re-ponsibility, when the author is removed beyond the reach of human criticism of whatever kind. But in truth it is impossible to glance at these pages without being struck by the deep and reverent research into the prophetic Scriptures which it manifests, by the tone of piety that pervades it, as well as the lucidity and eloquence of its style. Nor is it necessary to express concurrence with the views of the gifted and pious author in his prophetic theories to give this praise. Of course with regard to Dr. Titcomb's prophetic interpretations there will be much difference of opinion, but there can be none in the mind of any impartial person who reads this work, either as to the diligence with which he testimony of the prophets has been studied, or the earnestness of the expositor in stating his conclusions. Bishop Titcomb, it is well-known to those who have studied his works, was one of the school of prophetic interpreters who believe that the British Empire, or perhaps, more accurately speaking, the English-speaking race, are identified with those whom we have been in the habit of calling the 'Lost Tribes of Israel.'" [Then follow several extracts.]

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet court, Fleet-st F. W. Parry & Co., Paternoster-row, and all booksellers.

Price 2d., by post 2½d. Second Edition, revised.

A SUMMARY OF ANGLO-ISRAELITE TEACHING,

And of the Scripture Proofs on which it Rests.

By SURGEON-GEN. J. M. GRANT, M.D.,

President of the Cheltenham Association, and Vice-President of the Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; F. W. Parry & Co., Paternoster-row.

CARBOLINE

1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.

Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved.

DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.

Makers:

GEORGE & WELCH

CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,

Who will forward Free of Postage.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON,

RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

THE LOST TEN TRIBES OF ISRAEL. By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D., Pastor of Union Congregational Church, Brooklyn, New York. Price 2s., post free 3s. 3d.

THE FUTURE OF ISRAEL AND JUDAH. Companion volume to above. By the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D. With Portrait of the Author. Cloth, gilt lettered, bevelled boards. Price 2s., post free 2s. 3d.

THE SISTERS OF HARROWDALE RECTORY. A Tale of Great Interest for Young People. By Mrs. M. A. Scurson. With double-page illustration of Harrowdale Rectory. Price 2s. 6d., post free 2s. 9d.

THE ANGLO-ISRAEL POST-BAG; or, How Arthur Came to See It. By the Right Rev. BISHOP TITCOMB. Price 2s. 6d. in cloth gilt; paper cover, 1s. 6d., by post 1d. extra.

THE ISRAELITES FOUND IN THE ANGLO-SAXONS. The Ten Tribes supposed to have been Lost, traced from the land of their captivity to their occupation of the Isles of the Sea. By WILLIAM CARPENTER. Price 2s. 6d., by post 2s. 8d.

THE ANSWER TO THE EASTERN QUESTION, With Some Facts Concerning the Identity of the British With Israel. By the Author of "The New Old Story," enlarged. Price 3d.; for distribution, 50 copies, 11s., post free.

CARDINAL PROOFS THAT THE BRITISH Are the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel—the Abrahamic Covenant. By F. W. PHILLIPS. With two chapters by PHILO-ISRAEL. Price 6d., post free 7d.

THE NEW OLD STORY. By "A.E.I." Price 6d., post free; in cloth, 1s., post free.

THE BIBLE ATLAS. To Illustrate the Old and New Testaments. Price 1s.; post free 1s. 1d.

ANGLO-ISRAEL TRACTS. 8 pp. Royal 16mo., on toned paper. Adapted to enclose in letters, and for general distribution. No. 1—12. Half-penny each, 12 copies post free, 6d. Specimen packet for 6 stamps.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

Philo-Israel's Leaflets. Four pages Crown 8vo. Price 1s. 6d. per 100, postage 2d. No. 1.—"The Identity of the British with Lost Israel." 2.—"The Glory of God." 3.—An Address to British Seamen. 4.—An Address to British Soldiers. No. 5.—The Communion of the Body and Blood of Our Lord Jesus Christ Viewed in the Light of Our Identity. 6.—The Bible and the Jew. 7.—The Jewish People. 8.—Lo-Ammi; or, the Gentilisation of Ten-Tribed Israel. 9.—The Atonement. 10.—Is Our Identity Evangelical, or Non-Evangelical in its Tendency? No. 11.—Cui Bono? No. 12.—The "Thoughts" of God Towards Israel, Judah, and the Gentile Nations. 13.—The Teutonic Theory. Is It True? 14.—An Address to the Police Force of Great Britain. 15.—An Address to Israel's Missionaries and Their Supporters. 16.—The One Seed, Christ. 17.—An Address to Israel's Electors.

London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

Price 5s., Cloth Bound, Gilt Lettered, 584 p.p., free for Postal Order. COMPLETE EDITION OF

FIFTY YEARS IN THE CHURCH OF ROME.

By FATHER CHINIQUY.

"No history like it since the time of Luther."—New York Witness.

"The work is a good one, and we pray that it may succeed in opening men's eyes to the deadly dangers which are in our midst."—Methodist Recorder.

ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., E.C.

FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles, and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of different diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 40 pages. Sent free on receipt of two stamps to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C.

Wonderful Value by Parcels Post.

WALTER KEAST, 102, Kennington Park Road, London, S.E., will on receipt of Postal Order for 3s. 6d. send a pair of Ladies' High-leg Lasting Button Walking Boots. These Boots are warranted to give complete satisfaction, being sewn, thoroughly well made and very comfortable. Ditto in Oxford Shoes, 3s. 3d. Send number of size or length of boot in inches. Parcels sent daily to all parts of the United Kingdom.

Established 1851.

30,000 BEDS SOLD in SEVEN YEARS

NEWHAM'S CELEBRATED LINCOLNSHIRE FEATHER BEDS.

THE CHEAPEST FEATHER BEDS IN THE WORLD.

Direct from Boston, Lincolnshire.

No. 1. SINGLE BED, BOLSTER, and PILLOW, 6ft. 3in. by 3ft. 6in., weighing 40lb. 30/0

No. 2. DOUBLE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6ft. 6in. by 4ft. 6in. weighing 50 lb. 37/6

No. 3. DOUBLE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6ft. 6in. by 4ft. 6in., weighing 55lb... .. 41/3

No. 4. EXTRA SIZE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6ft. 6in. by 5ft., weighing 65lb. .. 48/9

WARRANTED NEW AND SWEET.

Any sized Bed only 9d. per lb., including Feathers, in Strong Union (bordered) Tick, making, packing, wrapper, and Carriage Paid to any Station in the United Kingdom.

SUPERIOR BEDS, Splendid Feathers, Linen Tick, 1s. per lb.

Samples of Feathers and Ticks, Price Lists, &c. post-free.

For the convenience of Purchasers we have opened a Branch Establishment at 178, Strand, London.

All orders must be accompanied by Cheque or P.O.O. (which, as security to purchasers, may be post dated ten days) payable to

NEWHAM & CO., Boston, Lincolnshire,

or to THOS. SMITH, 178, STRAND, LONDON,

where Goods and Samples can be seen and obtained.

Feathers only 9d. per lb. The trade supplied. Please mention this paper. A great reduction on three or more beds.

£500 TO BE GIVEN AWAY.

10,000 SUITES OF WEST'S PATENT 18 Ct. GOLD TOP STUDS, and Pair of Self-acting Spring Solitaires to match. In elegant leather and plush lined cases. SUITABLE FOR LADY or GENTLEMAN.

10,000 Government Hearthrugs,

6 ft. long, 3 ft. wide, exquisite designs—viz., Fern and Oak-leaves, Flowers, Grapevine, Cat and Kittens, Lions, Tigers, Horses, Dogs and Deer. Suitable for Dining or Drawing-room, Parlour, Bed-room, or Kitchen. SELLING IN THOUSANDS. 2s. 6d. or 32 stamps, or two for 4s. 6d.; or with HEAVY LINOLEUM BACKS, 3s. 6d. each, or two for 6s. 6d. Sent free to any part of the country.

Note.—Every Purchaser of a Hearthrug this week will receive one of the above ELEGANT FREE PRESENTS. P.O. Orders to be made payable at Low Hill District Post Office, and all letters addressed—

J. WATTS, 113, BRUNSWICK ROAD, LIVERPOOL.

£500 TO BE GIVEN AWAY.

NON-INTOXICATING BEER

(A Splendid Dinner Beverage)

MADE IMMEDIATELY WITH

MASON'S EXTRACT OR ESSENCE OF HERBS,

Composed of Yarrow, Dandelion, Comfrey, and Horehound. Send 9 stamps for sample bottle, enough to make five gallons, NEWBALL and MASON, Chemists, Nottingham.

AGENTS WANTED. APPLY FOR TERMS.

ETHELINE

A New and most effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE.

To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

RHEUMATISM, GOUT,

SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, INDIGESTION, CONSTIPATION, LIVER & KIDNEY COMPLAINTS, NERVOUS DISORDERS, LADIES' AILMENTS, ETC. Promptly Relieved and CURED BY

HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT

ALL sufferers should read "Harness' Guide to Health," free by post, containing copies of Thousands of Testimonials. Every man and woman in search of Health, Strength and Energy, should at once send a 21s. postal order to the Medical Battery Co. Ltd., 52, OXFORD ST. LONDON, W. and procure one of these famous Belts, and they may rely upon being CURED

Corner of Rathbone Place.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 21, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."
(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 561. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1887. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
The French in Madagascar	389
The Surrender of the Mediterranean and its Gates	390
Ancient Watchmen Interviewed. By J. G. Taylor.—Part V.	392
The Silent Growth of the Empire	393
Who Were the Early Moravians? By Surgeon-General J. M. Grant, M.D.	394
Review	394
The British Empire	395
Correspondence	395

THE FRENCH IN MADAGASCAR.

THE Edinburgh Evening News, some weeks since, published the following, which supports our view, founded on Scripture, that the British are "the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath" in all things, nationally considered. Even in Madagascar, the land of recent French diplomatic triumphs, we British (being Israel) snatch influence from the protectors of the island, and assume it ourselves! The facts are given thus:—

FRENCH DECLINE IN MADAGASCAR.

The National Association for the Propagation of the French Language, better known as the Alliance Francaise, has just published a report which shows that, contrary to what the French expected when they went to Madagascar, their influence there has decreased instead of increased. It appears from statistics furnished by the association that the number of English Protestant schools in the island is 1,288, and the number of pupils 135,000. Before the expedition the French Catholic schools reckoned 19,103 pupils; now they have only 11,290. This falling off is attributed to the manœuvres of the English missionaries, who are accused of resorting to all kinds of villainous means to prevent the Malagasy from sending their children to the French schools. The Alliance says that if this state of things be allowed to continue the French Protectorate will become merely an idle word, in spite of the patriotic efforts of the Resident-General; but the Alliance offers no specific remedy—probably because it would be puzzled to do so to the satisfaction of French amour propre.

In regard to the above, the editorial remarks are not complimentary to the powers of the French to occupy the earth. The writer said:—

The efforts of France in the direction of colonisation have always been a failure. No better result has followed her missionary work. . . . This is a sad condition for our neighbours to be in. If they fail in any enterprise, why should England be to blame? It never seems to occur to the French that they can in any way cause their own failure. The secret lies in the fact that the French race are too self-centred and too egotistical. Wherever they try to found a colony they endeavour to transplant France. This country, on the other hand, endeavours to develop the native races when practicable, and incorporate good government with the native customs. Until France learns England's method, she will never be a colonising Power.

We may, as Anglo-Israelites, ask why England (meaning the British nation) should succeed in colonising enterprise, and why the French so invariably fail? The reason is plain; but it is not so apparent on the grounds assigned by the Edinburgh Evening News. France succeeded very well in founding a Canadian colony some million strong. In the Mauritius they managed to settle large numbers of their countrymen, who did well there. They have a grand military colony in Algeria, which bears no comparison, of course, with our settlements in Australia and the Cape, but still shows that the French can, if God permit, occupy portions of the earth, and give them a sort of civilisation they would not otherwise enjoy. Why is it, then, that the French have failed to found French colonies after the kind we so grandly possess? Why, having established their Canadian colonies, have they lost them, and these are now part of the British Empire—a loyal and contented portion too? Why, having secured the Mauritius as a colony, were they compelled to part with the island, and to see it now a contented British Gate, fortified against their own men-of-war? Surely it is because the French are not Israel, and have not the promises respecting the inheritance of the earth and the God-bestowed power to raise up the "desolations" and "desolate heritages" thereof!

The British being Israel, to them the inheritance of the earth is promised. The coasts, the ends, the uttermost parts of it, are to be theirs; and to secure them the command of the sea, but to prevent the other nations obtaining it, to them also God has given the possession of the Gates, and that exclusively. The heathen are to be their inheritance by promise, and their colonies in the four quarters of the globe, where their seed was "to spread abroad," were to become a Federation of States such as the world never saw before—"a nation," in short, "and a company of nations."

The following passages of Scripture, in the order noted, support these allegations:—Dan. vii. 27 promises to these Israelites the whole earth as their dominion. In Jer. xxxi. 7, 8; Isa. xxvi. 15, lii. 9, 10; Psa. ii. 8, cxi. 6; Gen. xxii. 17; we find Israel were guaranteed "the coasts," "the ends," uttermost parts of the earth," with "the Gates." In Gen. xxviii. 14 and xxxv. 11 it is declared the children of Israel, being spread abroad, were to become "a nation and a company of nations," separated as we know they are by vast oceans, yet one in Government, language, religion, laws, manners, customs, literature, loyalty to the throne, and sympathy with their old mother in the West.

Digitized by Google

Because the French are not Israel they have none of these advantages. The colonies they found they cannot and do not retain. India, which they conquered partially, they were forced to give up to the coming owners of the world, and Hindostan forthwith became British. Canada and the Mauritius, as we have seen, have changed hands, and Israel is mistress of both. Egypt was once greatly influenced by France, and now, as we all see, her power has waned, and the British are the paramount rulers in the land of Ham to-day. In Madagascar we shall ere long notice the same results. Already the influence of the French over the young in the schools is declining, as we see; and before the great impending struggle in Europe has been long in progress, we shall perceive that French influence in other quarters will expire, and British-Israel, the heir of the world, will somehow be found to be "the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath," even in Madagascar! But to the Lord God let us give all the praise!

THE SURRENDER OF THE MEDITERRANEAN AND ITS GATES.

THE late General Gordon held peculiar views regarding our proper British naval policy in the event of war with a European naval Power of the first order. He held that we ought to abandon the Mediterranean, the Suez Canal, (as the route to India), Malta, and of course Cyprus. The reason General Gordon gave for this extraordinary idea was this: that if a war took place between this country and France we should be unable to defend the overland route to India, and that therefore it would be better to abandon that route, remove our fleet from the Mediterranean, give up Malta to the French, Egypt and the Suez Canal to the same Power, or whoever would care to take it: and concentrate our efforts to safeguard the home ports as well as the Cape route to the East, which General Gordon would have preserved. General Gordon of course was not aware of Our Identity with Israel, or did not believe that the thing was true. Had he satisfied himself from the evidence that the British were Israel he would not have fallen into the egregious error of supposing that the Gates which God had given to us in order to prepare the way for Israel, Judah, and Manasseh's safe return to their inheritance, could under any circumstances have been given back to the enemies of God who are bent upon preventing that return.

The Mediterranean is absolutely needed as an Israelitish possession to make the restoration of the Tribes a possibility. That sea cannot be held by the British unless they are possessors also of the Gates which guard it. Gibraltar (which even General Gordon thought should be retained in British hands), because it guards the entry into the Mediterranean from the West; Malta, because it is the only really powerful maritime fortress on the route, situated at about the centre; the Suez Canal and Egypt, because they protect the flank of Israel's march from the East and South as well as from the West; and Cyprus, because it is the Gate of the Levant and of Syria, guarding Palestine from attack on its seaboard to the West. God acts by and uses means. He has clearly arranged that the Thirteen Tribes are yet to return in triumph under Israel's flag, and He has as obviously stored up in Israel's hands, which are British hands, the Gates and commanding strategical positions in the Mediterranean that we may in due time carry out His will. General Gordon's project therefore falls to the ground self-condemned in the light of the Identity, and we cannot but wonder that a master mind like his should have conceived so foolish a project and given utterance to so suicidal a national policy. It depends, we see, entirely on the figment that our British naval strength is so small that we could not hope to defend the long chain of British Mediterranean interests and defend our own shores as well, if we ever happened to be at war with a first-class European naval Power. God gave us the overland route to India, and He has put in our hands the powerful Gates which command that route from Gibraltar to Aden. General Gordon, while he would retain India, proposed to safeguard it by blockading the navies of France and Russia, Turkey, Austria, and Italy, who would necessarily become hostile naval allies in the event of our abandoning them now. He considered that a strong squadron at Gibraltar would keep them in, in that direction, and another at Aden would prevent their egress by the Red Sea route. But Gordon did not reflect that Aden is not fitted to be the head-quarters of a fleet. It possesses a small and dangerous harbour, has no docks, or appliances for the repair of injuries to a man-of-war. It would depend for its store of coal on the Cape route, that viâ the Mediterranean and Red Sea being closed. Gibraltar is exposed to the same objections, and has not a safe anchorage besides. Modern artillery would search out the ships at anchor in the harbour from the opposite coast of Spain, and the place on the whole could never be a substitute for a strong maritime fortress of the first-class such as Malta. In short, the proposal of General Gordon, supported now by his brother Sir William Gordon, is suicidal from every point of view. The monstrous proposal is combated by two powerful letters, which appeared in the Times on Aug. 17, from Sir Samuel Baker and Admiral P. H. Colomb, who both take the same view that the Mediterranean Gates are absolutely essential to our national safety, and cannot be surrendered. We wish we could quote these two letters in the BANNER in order to reassure our readers, some of whom are ever ready to take the pessimist view of our naval strength. We cannot do that, for our space forbids it. But we can give a few extracts from the Times' leader on the subject, and a few words from Admiral Colomb's and Sir. S. Baker's well-reasoned letters, that cannot fail to interest those who regard the Gates as God's gift to Israel, and vital to her future national life. The Times wrote thus:—

We publish to-day a letter from Admiral Colomb and a second from Sir Samuel Baker, dealing with the suggestion that this country should abandon all attempt to keep open its commercial route through the Mediterranean. General Gordon was in many ways a very remarkable man, and in his own peculiar sphere his opinions were entitled to great respect. But it is a doubtful kindness to his memory to make public his views upon a large question of naval policy, the very elements of which he does not appear to have grasped. It appears to have been assumed by him and others that the Mediterranean route is of no particular value, and that we have no concern with that sea at all except to put a stopper in each outlet in case of war. A more preposterous assumption could hardly be made. It is further assumed that by ceasing to maintain our road through the Mediterranean we should release naval forces sufficient to block up the road at both ends to the powerful fleets inside. That also is an unwarrantable assumption, and were it otherwise it would remain ridiculous to go on expending in order to block a useless road what now suffices to keep the road open. Those who talk of giving up Malta and Gibraltar begin at the wrong end, even if we admit their views to be sound. It will be time enough to give up the Mediterranean route when another is absolutely assured. It will be time to think of abandoning Malta when we have such establishments at the Cape and Aden as to enable us to meet on equal terms as to time and strength any attack upon India. We are a very long way from occupying that position at present. Our whole commercial system and our telegraph system, as well as our military and naval arrangements, will have to be revolutionized before we can fall back upon the Cape route without immediate disaster. When all the required changes are thoroughly carried out, it will be time to present our rivals with a line of coaling stations up to our Indian frontier, and cut ourselves off for ever from the shortest route to the East.

Digitized by Google

Sir Samuel Baker wrote as to the effect of our possession of the coaling stations and the French lack of such Gates, these words:—

In the event of war with France an Anglo-Italian fleet would blockade Toulon, while a British fleet at Gibraltar would prevent the passage of any hostile vessels through the straits. A squadron would operate at Tunis and Algiers to encourage a rising of the Arab tribes, while all supplies would be cut off from the Mediterranean. French ships that might be cruising at the declaration of war would be devoid of coaling stations and would be captured by the cruisers of the Anglo-Italian fleets, or they would be shut up in neutral ports.

England would not only possess the advantage of a line of coaling stations from Gibraltar to Port Said, but she would have the dockyard of Malta for repairs, at the same time that the Italian ports would be always at her service, both in the Mediterranean and the Adriatic.

The result of an alliance with Italy would be not only the security of the Mediterranean route, but the absolute domination of all Eastern seas through the possession of the Suez Canal.

The effect of these operations would be utterly disastrous to France. Italy in friendly concord with Great Britain is already in occupation of Massowah on the Red Sea, while England is mistress of the entrance at Perim and Aden. No French vessel could under any circumstances exist in the Indian seas, as there would be no possibility of obtaining a supply of coal. The French fleets could not attempt the route by the Cape of Good Hope for the same reason, and they would be hopelessly excluded from the East, while their stations at Madagascar, Tonquin, and the miniature settlements on the shores of India would fall into our hands.

There can hardly be a doubt upon this result of an Anglo-Italian alliance. The only Power from whom France could hope for assistance would be Russia, but the naval action of such an ally would be immediately frustrated by the stoppage of the Dardanelles, should Russia have forced the Bosphorus in contravention of treaties, which would bring Turkey into the Anglo-Italian alliance.

Admiral Colomb's observations relate to the probable operations of the British Fleet if war were declared with a continental naval Power such as France. He said:—

I know that many of my naval friends are not wholly in accord with me on these points. I have admitted differences of opinion when I have admitted general want of study. But I believe the keystone of such proposals as are offered to form the arch of a naval policy rests upon a preliminary misconception of the primary operations of naval war. These misconceptions are at the bottom of all our invasion scares, and are at the bottom of a dangerously-mistaken view which the public are taking of the present autumn naval manœuvres. If our relations with France and Russia became to-morrow so strained as to lead us to apprehend war, what orders would first issue from the Admiralty? They would be to every commander-in-chief to watch and follow up every ship of the possible enemy, and not lose sight of them wherever they might be. The number and nature of the war ships in every French and Russian port would be immediately known. What forces of ships would be required to watch each hostile force in their own ports would be there and then determined, and immediately on the declaration of war—before the ink had time to dry—these forces would be despatched to their respective posts. This is what was done all through the days of our sailing ship wars. We did it on the outbreak of the Crimean war, and there was not a Russian ship anywhere which was not so watched in the last Russian scare. The French did it in their war with Germany, and even Chili attempted it in her war with Peru. The Northern States of America, though utterly unprepared, made shift to do it as against the 189 odd ports of the Southern States. Now if the State so sending her ships to watch is absolutely mistress of the seas, as we were in the Crimean war and France was in the German war, the watch becomes blockade, and the enemy does not stir from the shelter of his harbours. If the watching nation is not wholly in command of the sea, as we often were not in former wars, and as Chili was not in the Peruvian war, the main forces of the enemy will come out, and there will be battles at sea. Such there were between the Peruvians and the Chilians, between the Austrians and the Danes, and between the former and the Italians. But after such battles the command of the sea, for the place and time, is decided; the State which remains in sufficient preponderance resumes or takes up the watch. The command of the sea never means, and never has meant, that no enemies shall appear at sea; it only means that the main war forces shall not appear at sea. Thus, from Trafalgar up to the end of the war, French cruisers snapped up our merchant ships in the Channel in immense numbers; a French and a German ship went out and fought a duel, and a German warship captured a French merchant ship off the Gironde in the height of the war. Thus the Alabama, Florida, and Sumter carried on terrible depredations, though the blockade of their own ports was so complete that only stratagem and desperate daring combined could enable them to break it. Minor depredators there always will be, for no blockade can be close enough to forbid their exit; but main fleets can never roam the sea at will, unless they have the command of them; and the necessities of coaling have emphasized this axiom of naval war in the most marked manner.

Now, applying all this to this Eastern trade route, viâ the Mediterranean, it may be seen that if we have the naval force to do it we shall watch our Mediterranean enemies in their own ports. If they are strong enough they will come out and fight us; if they are not they will remain, as they often have before, quietly in their harbours, of which there are not so many. We thus clear the road for our line of commerce by not letting the main fleets which might impede it out of our sight. As to the minor depredators, whose presence we must admit, we cannot keep our eye on them, and must provide against them in another way. Say that from Gibraltar to Malta the distance is a thousand miles, from Malta to Port Said another thousand, and then we have a route of two thousand miles resting on three naval bases. Having these in our possession it is easy with a comparatively small force to maintain such a patrol as, if it does not keep the route absolutely free, will yet make it so exceedingly risky for the ordinary depredator that only the extraordinary will try it. It would be hopeless work for any Alabama. For twelve-knot speed is an inconsiderable rate at the present day, and this would make the passage from Gibraltar to Malta, or from Malta to Port Said, only occupy three days and a half. Four ships working each half of the route, and following one another at intervals of a day, would keep every mile of it so continually under observation that the attempt to make a capture without a fight for it would evidently be almost futile. The chances of approaching the route out of sight of one patrol, and concluding a chase and a capture before the next one appeared, could not probably be faced except by superior force. But if such existed, it would be watched, and if not fought then followed if it attempted to issue from port. It is on grounds such as these that I am unable to accept the abandonment of the Mediterranean route to our enemies as anything but a disaster which may be forced on us, but must not be accepted without a struggle.

Such are the cogitations of men who know not the promises of God to Israel, and that the British are they. It is ours to know that God has given us the Gates of our enemies, and these include the Mediterranean coaling stations and sea fortresses; also that they are ours for two purposes—namely, to prepare for the restoration of the Thirteen Tribes to their land, and that He may give us the wealth and the dominion of the world. He acts by human means, and what those are our public writers have indicated above. Israel, praise ye the Lord your God!

"The Throne of David, Where is It, and Who Sits Upon It?" By J. T. Crosthwait, C.E. The above is the title of a second series of questions and answers by Mr. Crosthwait on subjects bearing on Our Identity, which will repay perusal. The leaflet is published in Dublin at 5, Manders Terrace, at one halfpenny each, or 3s. 6d. per 100, by Mr. Crosthwait.

The Bible readings at the rooms of the Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association will be resumed the first Tuesday in October. The Secretary will be pleased to see all friends who can devote an hour to the study of the Scriptures during the middle of the day.

Digitized by Google

ANCIENT WATCHMEN INTERVIEWED.

By J. G. Taylor.

(Continued from page 384).

V.—LEE AMONG THE PROPHETS.

Identificationists are often taunted with being prophets, for the reason, we suppose, that they look a short distance into the future, and speak of it with a little less hesitation than most people. We do not prophesy, however, before we know, but because we know. It is not a superhuman exploit to prophesy of Israel, seeing that her career was definitely arranged many ages ago, and inscribed on rolls of parchment for the benefit of those who should learn the art of reading. It only requires an ordinary mastery of the alphabet, and a moderate amount of common sense, to enable even the historic ploughboy to map out the fortunes of Israel with adequate precision. In several instances the very dates are vouchsafed and added to the events. Whether the former are susceptible of decipherment or not is another question. But there they stand, and the least they do is to exercise the ingenuity of theologians, while, when they have become things of the past, and Time the Interpreter has rendered them legible, they will serve to light up the sacred Book with a doubled effulgence. There are some who have an inveterate dislike to meddle with prophecy. The verse containing an allusion to the day and the hour is always on their lips, and seems to exert undue influence over their imagination. They consider, also, that the failures which have accompanied the attempt to unravel futurity are a sufficient condemnation of the practice. But it might as well be argued at once that the failure of mankind to keep intact the Ten Commandments is proof that they never were intended to be kept. Prophetic chronology has no doubt been a pitfall to the wisest. The point of inception is so uncertain, and our acquaintance with secular registers so imperfect, that to fix a prediction into its proper place is an essay surrounded by difficulties. This may be an excellent incentive to caution, but it is no excuse for superciliously ignoring what God has seen fit to say. If rashness is open to censure, cowardice is a great deal more so. Such is evidently the view that Samuel Lee took in the matter, for though "desirous to proceed with all tenderness, modesty, and sobriety," he quotes Rev. i. 3, and remarks:—

"We ought to be more curious and diligent in calculating the motions of Scripture-times than the most accurate observer of eclipses and other heavenly configurations. Shall the great God think it meet in His heavenly wisdom and goodness to foretell by all His holy prophets and apostles these glorious times? And shall minute, silly, mortal worms make light of these things and despise to study the splendid radiant prophecies let down from heaven? Are they wiser than Daniel, who understood the number of the years by books and set himself to prayer about it? Yea, the angel of the covenant urges the number of the years in prayer, and the Spirit of God sets it down for a point of wisdom to count the number of the beast. It is a great reviving to the hearts of saints to hear that God will bring down His proud enemies, and shortly make Jerusalem the joy and praise of the whole earth, and though themselves should not survive to see all the goodness that God will shew to His people, yet, like good old Simeon, will sing to take the young beginnings of this salvation in their arms. What though several have erred in the computation of times? This does no way invalidate the dignity of Scripture oracles, but should stir up others to compare Scriptures more accurately."

He consequently endeavours to put dates to the destruction of Antichrist, the consumption of the Papacy, the ruin of the Turk, the final triumph of the Church, and similar important events. But his main effort is devoted to Israel's deliverance, and among other statements he has the following:—

"The first more general note of the time may be gathered from the destruction of the Turk, who by some learned expositors is thought to be signified by the second wo trumpet. The second general note may be taken from the time of the pouring out of the sixth vial—i.e., upon the Turkish Assyrian, that the way of the kings of the East may be prepared. The third note may be collected from the time of the duration of the second wo. But the most apposite time which concerns Israel more especially when Daniel shall stand in his lot at the end of the days, is the computation of the beloved prophet who lays the root, or epocha, of the numeration of his 1,290 years from the taking away the daily sacrifice, and that at the end of those times his people shall be delivered. But if you take it from Nebuchadnezzar's, or Antiochus, or Titus, or Julian, the times as to all those roots will be expired and no deliverance accomplished, and therefore we must take another foundation for the decurrency of this number. Moreover, since the same prophet mentions the time, times and a half, in the seventh verse, which is frequently affixed, both by Daniel and John, for the duration of the last head of the 4th monarchy, I conceive that his 1,290 years do conjointly initiate with John's 1,260. We must infer that since all the forenamed roots of numeration are past without deliverance to either Gentile Churches or to Israel, we must spring another rise, and that is from the taking away of the Gospel sacrifice of pure worship, by a new Babylonian monarch, by a second Antiochus, by the grand Antichrist, who, sitting in the temple of God, as God, hath introduced most horrible pollutions and defilements into the evangelical worship. Now this prince of sin arose gradually, together with the ten kings, from the year 410, when Rome was taken by Alaricus. The Roman Empire drew its last gasp in 476. We may, indeed, look upon it as good as ruined at the death of Valentinian III., in the year 455, which, by connection of the 1,260, brings us to 1715, about which times the pre-consideration of the ruin of the Roman Empire conducts to the expectation of great devestations in the Papal. So that if the 1,260 do finish about 1700, or 1715, or at utmost in 1736, then thirty years after their expiration and the great conflicts with the Papal powers in the West will begin the stirs and commotions about the Jews and Israel. If, then, to 1,736 we add 30 more, they reach to 1,766, the times of Israel's gatherings and conflicts for their country with the nations that may obstruct them, which times of distress are to last 45 years. If then we conjoyne these 45 years to 1,766 it produces 1811 for those times of happiness to Israel, for blessed is he that waiteth and cometh to 1,335 days, to the consumption and destruction of their enemies."

These figures supply a "coincidence" in British history which apparently has not yet been laid hold of by us. If the manipulation were the work of an Anglo-Israelite it would, of course, be worthless. Out of Nazareth can no good come, and even when the facts advanced on behalf of the Identity are quite convincing, it has to be remembered that Satan can assume the garb of an angel. But Lee having lived centuries anterior to the advent of that "monstrous fable," we may accept his deductions and still remain free from the disagreeable charge of fanaticism. That Daniel's prophecy is liable to a different construction will not be denied. But it is more than singular that A.D. 1811, "the time of the destruction of Israel's enemies," harmonises strikingly with Waterloo, and that our war with Napoleon involved a "conflict" for Palestine, and a struggle for possession of the road to it. By 1797 the Continental Powers were glad to conclude treaties of peace with Buonaparte, and he then concentrated all his hate on England. His objects were the extinction of British commerce and the extension of French territory. The first implied the annihilation of our mercantile marine, and the transfer of the sea-dominion to France. The second comprised the capture of Gibraltar and Malta, the conquest of Egypt, the annexation of Syria, and transformation of the Mediterranean into a French pool. Had Napoleon succeeded in either of his designs, our passage to Palestine would have been completely blocked. To prevent the subjugation of Egypt and Palestine, and thus avert the disastrous results which would have immediately flowed from it, was the task which this country had to perform, and to which its every energy was bent. How it was accomplished is a portion of the world's history. Nelson, at the Nile, blighted Napoleon's carefully prepared schemes. Sir Sidney Smith, at Acre, baffled his frantic exertions and almost broke his heart; while Abercrombie and Hutchinson finished the plot, and taught Napoleon that the word impossible was in his dictionary. The issues of this contest have been vast and varied, but two of them are that Palestine is an appendage of England, and the highway to it is a British thoroughfare.

Digitized by Google

(To be continued.)

THE SILENT GROWTH OF THE EMPIRE.

MEN have begun to recognise that in spite of all their efforts this Empire of the Stone will not stop growing, but goes on adding to itself while they sleep, just as trees and stones increase and add to their bulk. The House of Commons must be well aware of this portentous fact, for as soon as any growth takes shape and form, members like Sir George Campbell and Mr. Conybeare, and others to whom the idea is hateful, cry out against the iniquity, and demand of Government (always in vain!) that the thing shall be disallowed and the growth of the Empire stopt, nipped in the bud, and utterly discouraged! They might as well cry out against the rising of the tide, or whistle for the wind. The thing is outside all their puny efforts, and comes to us as the good gift of the God of Israel, who is working out His purposes by His additions to our Empire, for His glory and for the good of mankind in general. The last trouble that has raised alarm in Mr. Conybeare's breast is the disquieting fact that the Queen-Regent of Amatongaland, whose territories border on Delagoa Bay, has begged Her Majesty's Government to annex her country because she fears (and justly) that if we do not extend our protection to her, the Portuguese, who are meditating mischief at our expense, will seize her territory, and make it part of their own Colonial Empire! The question, when asked by Mr. Conybeare, elicited from Sir Henry Holland, the Colonial Secretary, the following reply, which must have been "gall and wormwood" to those who dread the growth of the Queen of Israel's dominions, and know not that this growth is from God—a blessing, and not a curse. He said that the Queen-Regent of Amatongaland had more than once petitioned either for protection or annexation, and the question of the future relations to be established with her was still under consideration. In the meantime a treaty of friendship had been concluded with her under which she bound herself not to enter into any treaty, nor cede any territory to any foreign Power, without the consent of Her Majesty's Government.

This is the regular course of procedure when we venture to annex territory. The native owners get into difficulties. They see a Power like Portugal, France, or Germany ready to swallow them up. They count the cost, and knowing they cannot resist, they ask for protection or annexation from the Queen of England, whose rule in India they have heard is beneficent and good. The reply is always governed by what "the Opposition" in the House of Commons will say! The Government dare not annex. They dare not either refuse to annex. So they temporize, and do what we have done to the Queen of Amatongaland, and what we did recently to the Imaum who owned the Island of Socotra. We tell them we cannot just now comply with their wish, but we are ready to sign a treaty of "friendship;" and the native King or Queen must promise never to give up their lands to anybody else who desires to have them. The Opposition are satisfied and lulled. By-and-bye, without anyone being aware of it, the treaty of friendship becomes a treaty of annexation, and the thing is announced as "an accomplished fact," and no one takes the trouble to ask any more about it. It is no use crying over spilt milk! So the Empire grows. But it grows in another way too. Protectorates assumed have a knack of turning into sovereignty! Witness the following, which will be found in the proceedings of the House of Commons, of August 18th:—

The SPEAKER took the Chair at four o'clock.

NEW GUINEA.

Sir GEORGE CAMPBELL asked the Secretary of State for the Colonies whether an opportunity will be given to Parliament of expressing an opinion before Her Majesty is advised to assume sovereignty in New Guinea, and to hand the control over the administration of the portion of New Guinea thus appropriated to the Government of Queensland, subject to certain reservations.

Sir HENRY HOLLAND said that Her Majesty's Government had agreed that upon the passing of a Bill by the Queensland Legislature Her Majesty would be advised to assume sovereignty over the Protectorate. (Hear, hear.) It was considered important in the interests of the natives that there should be no delay in declaring the sovereignty after the Bill had been passed. There were opportunities upon which the hon. member could raise the question before Parliament rose. No formal sanction by Parliament was required; but a vote would be taken in due time for a steam vessel and its maintenance.

Sir G. CAMPBELL asked what opportunity he would have of raising the question.

Sir HENRY HOLLAND said upon the Appropriation Bill.

Poor Sir George Campbell! He is like a fowl with a brood of ducks! They take to the water as a part of their nature, to the alarm and consternation of the mother fowl. So he sees what God is providing for His people as part of His wise and gracious plans; but Sir George, who has as much notion of that plan as the fowl has of the duck's aquatic propensities, is in agonies of fear lest this constant increase of our Queen's dominions will end at last in national ruin and destruction. Our journalists, too, with exception of the few wise ones like the Times, share in Sir George's alarms, and wonder where all this is going to end. They ask how our nation is going to bear the fresh loads that are thus laid upon our shoulders. "How long will it be before it is discovered what a rudis indigestaque moles these various annexations, protectorates, and the like, which have recently been declared, amount to in South Africa alone?" This is the spirit in which the subject is discussed. But no one knows or cares to know why this vast burden of Empire is thus cast upon our nation, and why God gives us continually here a little and there a little of additional Empire, and what the end is to be! They must learn, first, that the British are Israel, and that being Israel God has promised that to them "there shall be given the kingdom, and dominion, and greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, as the people of the saints of the Most High" (Dan. vii. 27). That kingdom is the kingdom of our God and of His Christ, and it is a blessing unutterable merely to belong to such a kingdom, and so to come under the wings of the protection of such a King instead of being outside of it, ranged on the side of those who are His enemies, and, therefore, destined to be destroyed. This is the secret Sir George Campbell and Mr. Conybeare do not know, and, lacking the knowledge, are perplexed and in distress about what after all is no real puzzle or problem. The radical fact is Our Identity. If that be seen and accepted, all the rest comes naturally. We must inherit what God destines for Israel, and His gifts include blessings spiritual and temporal to all who join themselves, or are joined to His people, and who so joined become His people themselves. Therefore, let us be thankful that the Empire "silently grows," as we see it growing, and let us praise the Lord for all His goodness, not only to us His people Israel, but to the world at large, which, bit by bit, is becoming Israel too, by the process of absorption!

MRS. G. A. ROGERS, author of "The Coronation Stone," will shortly publish a new work, entitled, "Britain in History."—The only English journal published in the Dominions of the Emperor of Austro-Hungary, has just completed the first year of its existence, a fact which speaks well for the journal and the English Colony in Vienna.

Digitized by Google

WHO WERE THE EARLY MORAVIANS?

By Surgeon-General J. M. Grant, M.D.

I have sometimes heard it objected to our contention that Great Britain must be Israel because she is pre-eminently the missionary nation of the world, that the Moravians were in the mission field long before us, and this led me to inquire who the Moravians were. On referring to Buck's Theological Dictionary, by the Rev. E. Henderson, I find that they were called Moravians because the sect is generally said to have arisen under a German nobleman of the last century, and the first converts to their system were some Moravian families, but that they themselves claim a much greater antiquity, as having derived their origin from the Greek Church in the ninth century; that, after long persecution from the Romish Church, by far the greater number of them joined her communion, but "a few adhering to the rites of their mother Church united themselves to the Waldenses in 1170, and sent missionaries into many countries."

Here then we have grounds, both historical and Scriptural, for supposing that they were Israelites. Historical because Israel was scattered amongst the Gentiles at the time of their first establishment as a sect; and Scriptural because their zeal for the religion of Christ, and their energy in spreading it, are characteristics of the chosen people; and St. Paul's converts in Corinth, the Church which he founded there, and probably in other parts of Greece, were Israelites, a fact which, I think, is clearly demonstrated by the first four verses of the tenth chapter of his first epistle to the Corinthians. But whatever may have been the nationality of the Moravians, it is evident that they must have received Christianity from Israel.

Finding, on the authority of Buck's Dictionary, that the earliest missionary effort of the Moravians was in 1170, it struck me as being very improbable that the British Church should have remained through all these centuries inactive and indifferent to the propagation of the Gospel; and turning to a rare pamphlet, published in London in 1840, and entitled, "Chronicles of the Ancient British Church," I found that the See of the Isle of Mann had been founded by St. Patrick, and that in the time of Maughold, the fourth bishop of Mann (A.D. 498) missionaries were sent by the Irish Church, which was probably an extension of that founded in England in apostolic times, to the continent to propagate the Gospel, where they erected and established schools of learning, and taught the use of letters to the Saxons and Normans. Burgundy, Germany, and other countries received their instructions; and Europe with gratitude confessed the superior knowledge, the piety, the zeal, the purity of the Island of Saints.

It thus appears that the British Church was doing an active mission work about 600 years before the first Moravian missions, and 400 years before the sect came into existence. Possibly the first Moravian missionaries may have been sent out before any of our missionary societies had been formed; but that is a very different thing from their having been before us in the mission field, and if they had been, it would not in any way affect our claim to be Israel, because the testimony of the Bible, Old Testament and New, is that according to the purpose of God, the knowledge of Him and of His Christ was to be proclaimed to the world by a nation, not by individuals or corporate bodies, whose influence in the spread of the Gospel, although most important, can only be secondary, as communicating the truth which they had received from Israel, to whom alone it was divinely imparted (Psa. cxlvii. 19, 20). "Let the children first be filled;" that is, let Israel first receive the Gospel, in order that she may proclaim it to other nations, is the order of things appointed by Christ while on earth, so that if we be Israel, of which the proof is cumulative and conclusive, it is absurd to talk of the Moravians, or any other Christian sect, as having been before us in missionary work, because our first missionaries were the apostles of the Lord.

Review.

Britain and Prophecy. A Lecture by James Wright. London, Robert Banks and Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C. 2d.

We ought to feel cordially towards Mr. James Wright because of the favourable notice he has given in his lecture under review of the Banner of Israel. He quotes our words, or gives our authority for his statements, on pp. 14, 15, and 28. At the end of the lecture he gives this advice to his hearers: "Now, dear friends, I would ask you to study the subject. Get the Banner of Israel and your Bibles." Sound advice! which, however, we should be inclined to vary somewhat in form and say, "Get (and prayerfully read) your Bibles, but get also the Banner of Israel, and study it." Mr. Wright's concluding words seem to us words of wisdom, and contain the whole subject in a nutshell. "Find out," he urged his audience, "find out the distinction between Israel and Judah. You will see God has been faithful to His promises. Tom Paine, the infidel, would not believe the Bible because God made promises to Abraham and his seed which were not being fulfilled in the Jews, and, he said, never could be. The fact is, they never were made to the Jews, but to the House of Ephraim, the Ten Tribes who were not Jews. Let our ministers proclaim the Identity, and they will silence the pretensions of Rome, and destroy the Radical, Republican, Atheistical, and Communistical spirit that is abroad in our land and in our Churches—the three unclean frogs, the three lying spirits (Rev. xvi. 13)." The lecture in question has been delivered in Plymouth and Devonport, where the lecturer resides, but would bear repeating in most of our cities and towns. It is just the sort of lecture wanted. It is elementary, Scriptural, historical, and full of quotations from contemporary authorities. The lecture commences with the Scriptural distinction between Israel and Judah, and branches off into every department of the inquiry by which we endeavour to establish Our Identity with the Lost Ten Tribes. The fault of the lecture, in its printed form, is the enormous mass of facts and arguments which are compressed into its 28 pages. These are crowded together so greatly that the author's reasoning and line of argument are often felt to be confused. Mr. Wright has presented the whole case in the short compass of a lecture, and we cannot blame him if, in his effort to do so, he has failed sometimes to be connected. We are unable to give a résumé of the address, for our space forbids it, and justice to the author would prevent our attempting the task. But we may venture, in recommending the little work, to give our readers the benefit of a couple of Mr. Wright's pages, which seem to us to be much to the point, and present a portion of the subject in a luminous aspect to his readers. He said (pp. 11 and 12):—

"God knighted Jacob and made him a prince, 'for as a prince thou hast power with God and man.' Jacob knighted the two sons of Joseph. They only had the name of Israel given them. 'And let them grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth' (in the margin, as fishes do increase). And Jacob placed his right hand on the head of Ephraim, but Joseph wanted to remove his father's right hand to Manasseh's head, but he refused, and said, 'Manasseh truly should become a great people, but his younger brother should be greater than he, and his (Ephraim's) seed should become a multitude of nations,' or a Federation of nations, or a company of nations. There is no other people forming a company of nations but the British. M. Litre, the Frenchman, has said if there were a federation of the British Empire it would be such a federation as the world has never seen, and if America were united with them they would be able to dictate terms of peace to the whole world. Federation is coming; no power on earth can prevent it. 'For a mother of nations have I made her.' 'Prevost Parodol has said the world would not be Russian, and, alas! he said, it would not be French, but Anglo-Saxon. A French doctor says in twenty different departments in France in fifty years' time there will be no inhabitants left.'—Vide Western Morning News.

"'And of Joseph he said, Blessed of the Lord be his land, and for the precious fruits brought forth by the sun. His horns are like the horns of unicorns; with them he shall push the nations together to the ends of the earth. Israel then shall dwell alone in safety. The fountain of Jacob shall be upon a land of corn and wine. Happy art thou, O Israel; who is like unto thee, O people saved by the Lord?' Which of the nations answers the prediction? Not one but Britain. The House of Joseph, or Ephraim-Israel, the Ten Tribes, were to dwell alone in a place of safety, while the Jews were to be scattered throughout all the earth. Our Saviour said their House would be left unto them desolate (Matt. xxiii. 38). The shew of their countenance was to testify against them, while the other House, Israel, 'all that see them shall acknowledge them to be the seed which the Lord hath blessed.' Their seed was to be known among the Gentiles, and their offspring among the people. Exodus xix. 5, 'Now, therefore, if ye will obey My voice indeed, and keep My covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto Me, above all people, for all the earth is Mine, and ye shall be unto Me a kingdom of priests, and a holy nation, and I will dwell among the children of Israel, and I will be their God, and ye shall be My people, and ye shall put My name upon the children of Israel, and I will bless them.' Num. vi. 27, 'Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, Verily My Sabbaths ye shall keep, for it is a sign between Me and the children of Israel for ever.' The British and the American nations are the only people that keep the Sabbath of the new dispensation, while the Jews are the only people that keep the Sabbath of the old. The Continental nations do not keep the Sabbath. The Sabbath in France is the greatest holiday of the week. They have their horse-races, boat-races, and reviews, and bull-fights on Sundays. The Emperor of Germany said some time ago the English Sabbath was not suited for the German people. Frenchmen cannot understand why one out of every five of our population meet every Sunday to teach and be taught in our Sabbath-schools, and yet Christians say, 'O, it don't matter who we are!' Numbers xviii. 9—21, 'And behold I have given unto the children of Levi all the tenth in Israel for an inheritance by a statute for ever, all the best of the oil, the best of the wine, and of the wheat, and the first ripe fruits of the land.' There has lately been a great controversy about the State Church and tithes, but no one asks why England alone, of all the nations, has a State Church which takes tithes? It is because we are Israel. Israel's Church of old was connected with the State, and King David took an active part in it. Our Church Service is Israelitish:—'O Lord, save Thy people, and bless Thine heritage, Thy chosen people Israel!' Has God changed, and chosen another people Israel? God's chosen people Israel are the Ten Tribes; the Jews, the remnant of His people. Israel is the rod of His inheritance, the Jews the remnant of His heritage. 2 Kings xxi. 14, 'And I will forsake the remnant of Mine inheritance, and deliver them into the hand of their enemies; and they shall become a prey and a spoil to all their enemies.'"

Digitized by Google

The above is a fair specimen of Mr. Wright's style and argument. We think his publication a useful one at the present time, and therefore recommend it. We do not say that it is faultless. No human efforts are. Nor can we pretend that we can agree with all the author states. That were unlikely. But on the whole the lecture is a good lecture, and deserves a candid perusal from all who are not yet convinced that the British are Israel of the House of Joseph.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

[The following letter was duly forwarded by the writer to the Manchester Courier, but not inserted. We therefore publish it as a timely answer to Mr. Batty, whose letter we also noticed on page 360 of the BANNER.—ED.]

To the Editor of the "Manchester Courier."

SIR,—Permit me to remind Mr. Batty that he has made no attempt to disprove any of my statements, or to show that the spiritual blessings of the new covenant, refused by the House of Judah, were not transferred to the House of Israel of the Ten Tribes, to be by them carried to all nations and peoples, and that although he "fails to see how the purposes of the Almighty would be consistently served by choosing those tribes who, out of all the others, had excelled in wickedness to the extent that by their idolatry they had become absorbed in other nations, and thus lost their identity;" it is distinctly and repeatedly stated in the Bible, that He did choose these tribes "as a peculiar people," to be lost for a time as Israelites, but ultimately to be found and known under another name in "an appointed place," "a place of safety;" not only enjoying all the temporal blessings promised to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, but having the high privilege of being His chosen instruments to carry the gospel and the blessings of Christianity to all the nations and peoples of the earth, "to blossom and bud, and fill the whole earth with fruit." God promised Abraham unconditionally that his seed should become "a great and mighty nation;" should possess the Gate of his enemies, and that in it "all the nations of the earth should be blessed." Will Mr. Batty venture to say that God has broken His promise, and cast off Abraham's seed, and adopted a Gentile nation to carry out His purposes? And does he not see that without the temporal blessings which were promised to Abraham's seed, and which we now enjoy, we could not be the great missionary nation we are, having the opportunities and means, which no other nation has, of sending out missionaries to preach Christianity to all the nations and peoples who "sit in spiritual darkness." I am, yours truly, Birkdale, July 11, 1887. JOSEPH BAXENDELL.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—Believers in Anglo-Israel truth know for certain that Imperial Federation must and will come soon, but the one thing wanting to cause the masses to see the vital necessity of it is outside pressure. I enclose you a cutting from the New York Sun, a Fenian newspaper published in New York, which shows how our enemies are going to help us blindly without knowing or foreseeing the certain result.

As many readers of the BANNER would doubtless like to know of these matters, perhaps you will find room for it in the BANNER.

Yours respectfully, W. H. BILLING.

Toronto, May 31st, 1887.

THE NEW ALLIANCE
TO HUMILIATE BRITAIN, FREE IRELAND AND ANNEX CANADA.

There are patent and convincing reasons of state why it behoves patriotic Americans to bind with hooks of steel the only possible allies which this country can count upon in Europe. Those allies are France and Russia, and it is easy to forecast a contingency in which their co-operation might be imperatively needed.

The British Tories hate us, and the masses of our people regard with responsive detestation the brutal tramplers upon human rights in Ireland and the insolent deriders of our democratic institutions. But Ireland only seems helpless, for her friends are mighty. Never again will Irishmen, amid their ruin and despair, lift up hands of supplication to unmoved spectators on this side of the Atlantic. And let it be distinctly understood that when the wrongs of Ireland shall call for succour more effective than effusions of lip sympathy, Americans will not stand forth alone to do the work of rescue and redemption.

There exists already an agreement between the French Republic and the Russian Government to render each other reciprocal support in certain eventualities. We could have for the asking a similar engagement from both of those countries, particularly if Great Britain were the Power in which we recognised a contingent enemy. Nowhere in the world, outside of the United States and Ireland, is England so detested as in France and Russia. It would be a prearranged result that, before we actually entered on war with Great Britain, fleets of French and Russian ironclads would be ordered to rendezvous in the chief harbours of our Atlantic and Pacific coasts. Then, with our seaboard cities secured against bombardment, wherein lies our only danger, we should have time to build forts capable of self-defence, and to pour forth swarms of privateers that would sweep the British commerce from the ocean, and force our ancient enemy to quaff the cup of vinegar and hyssop that she compelled us to drain amid the throes of the rebellion. Meanwhile our friends, the Irish and French Canadians, representing a great majority of the Province of Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, would heartily invite us to annex the Dominion, and an invasion undertaken for that amicable purpose would be a holiday excursion.

Such a coalition between Russia, France, and the United States would unquestionably involve the humiliation of the British Empire: and no American should hesitate to avow his conviction that, if the British Empire is for some time to come to be swayed by Tory ruffians, it deserves to be humiliated. Such an event would mean the assured ascendancy of American commerce on the seas; it would mean the deliverance of Ireland, the elevation of Canada to the dignity of real independence and industrial prosperity, the transfer of Egypt to the nation that created the Suez Canal, and the supersession of the obnoxious British Raj in India by the rule of the White Czar, which, though doubtless autocratic, is much less offensive to Asiatic feelings and ideas.—From the New York Sun, May 29.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies " " " 1 0 4
Four Copies " " " 1 5 6
Six Copies " " " 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

EASTBOURNE.—Furnished House or Apartments, central situation, 7 minutes' walk from sea and station. To let with attendance, moderate terms, highest references, established 13 years. Apply Sarah Menefy, 29, Hyde Gardens.

WANTED OFFERS for Bound Volumes "Banner," "Glory Leader," "Life from Dead," "Israel's Hope and Destiny." Any books wanted on the Identity send on query. First vol. "Messenger." J. W. Carter, 81, Scarbro' Street, West Hartlepool. No reasonable offer refused.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

THE BIBLE READINGS

Will be resumed

ON TUESDAY, OCTOBER 4th, 1887,

At 3.30, in the Library of the Association, 14, King William Street, Charing Cross, W.C. All friends are invited.

Price 4s., Crown 8vo., cloth, pp. 208, illustrated with 15 Woodcuts.

THE TOWER OF EGYPT;

Or, the Types and Chronology of the Great Pyramid. By A. R. G.

In this work the chronology of the Grand Gallery and Ante-chamber passages of the Great Pyramid of Egypt is re-investigated by a NEW MEASURING KEY, based upon the sacred inch-unit, whence it is found that the Pyramid Date for the Second Advent suprisingly harmonises with that deduced by the Rev. H. Grattan Guinness from independent sources.

"We recommend this thoughtful and well-written book to the attention of all Pyramid students and readers of the Banner. . . . We shall be surprised if it is not found at last that this work is a real advance in Great Pyramid knowledge."—Banner of Israel.

LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, PATERNOSTER ROW;

R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., E.C.

Thoughts for the British Folk.

Suggested by PHILO-ISRAEL.

No. 1.—Multitudinousness.
No. 2.—The Gates.
No. 3.—The Nation and Company of Nations.
No. 4.—British Wealth.
No. 5.—The Rulers Over Many Nations.
No. 6.—The Universal Creditor.
No. 7.—The Ever-Continuing British Monarchy.
No. 8.—The Scattered People at Home in Every Climate.
No. 9.—The Queen, Lords, and Commons.
No. 10.—The Unconquerable Nation.
No. 11.—The Fatally Destructive Race.
No. 12.—The Isolated Nation.
No. 13.—The Nation Which Belts the Earth.
No. 14.—The Emancipators of the Slave
No. 15.—The Christian Nation.
No. 16.—The Ten Commandments.
No. 17.—The Asylum for the Foreign Refugee.
No. 18.—Possessors of the "Sign."
No. 19.—The Universal Missionaries.
No. 20.—Testimony of the Book of Common Prayer.
No. 21.—Church and State, and also Disestablishment.
No. 22.—Our Poor Laws.
No. 23.—The Labour Question is an Identity Question.
No. 24.—Emigration.

Price 2d., 12s. 6d. per Hundred,

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

TO BE GIVEN AWAY,

AN EIGHT-ROOMED HOUSE,

ABSOLUTELY and ENTIRELY FREE OF CHARGE.

A CHANCE OF A LIFETIME TO EVERY READER OF THIS PAPER.

A HOME FOR LIFE! AND AN INCOME FOR LIFE!

GUARANTEED GENUINE.

IN ADDITION TO THE ABOVE PRIZE OF AN EIGHT-ROOMED HOUSE, WE OFFER TO THE READERS OF THIS PAPER

TWO HUNDRED FURTHER VALUABLE PRIZES, including a CASH PRIZE of FIFTY POUNDS. Moreover, in accordance with our annual custom at this season of the year, we now offer to every reader of this paper, entirely free of charge, a MAGNIFICENT SCRAP ALBUM, as a Grand Free Gift.

By the above offer it will be seen that every READER of this paper has positively the OPPORTUNITY of WINNING, absolutely and entirely free of charge, an EIGHT-ROOMED HOUSE and a CASH PRIZE of FIFTY POUNDS, for there will be no entrance fee whatever, the only condition being that every reader wishing to compete for the above Prizes becomes a subscriber (before October 14, 1887) for our

GRAND

BONUS PRESENTATION PARCEL

at 2s. 6d. by Post Office Order, or 33 Stamps, carriage free.

We have secured an enormous stock of the most choice and beautiful Christmas and New Year's Cards ever produced, and although very early to offer these goods, we are obliged to do so in order to clear them before Christmas. However, as an inducement to the readers of this paper to make an early purchase, we shall give them the most extraordinary bargains ever known, for, encouraged by ever-increasing success, we have this season made special efforts to place before our readers a Parcel of Fine Art Publications of such value as to make this year's Grand Bonus Presentation Parcels positively unrivalled at the price charged—viz., 2s. 6d. by Post Office Order, or 33 stamps, carriage free.

We have also secured some thousands of handsome Scrap Albums, all of which are new goods, each having a very elaborate cover, beautifully illuminated, the Fine Art design being really exquisite, and to every reader applying before Oct. 14 will be presented, entirely free of any extra charge, one of those magnificent Scrap Albums.

Every parcel will contain the whole of the articles enumerated below:

A charming SCRAP ALBUM, as described above.
Also a magnificent PACKET of CHRISTMAS and NEW YEAR'S CARDS, containing a very choice and splendid assortment from the original designs of the most eminent English artists, with appropriate prose or verse, written expressly by writers of the best talent.
Also a PACKET of choice BIRTHDAY CARDS, with appropriate wording on each.
Also a useful and very pretty LEATHERETTE TABLE MAT, of chaste design.
Also a very pretty DIAMOND-SHAPED WALL TEXT, with a beautiful floral illumination and shield in the centre, and gold background, measuring across 12¼ by 12¼ inches.
Also a most charming OBLONG WALL PLAQUE on GOLD GROUND, with embossed floral illuminations, the edges being so printed as to imitate a plush frame, measuring 15 inches by 5.
Also two beautiful Plaque Pictures (animal subjects), DOGS' HEADS, framed complete in printed imitation plush frames, ready for hanging.
Also a PAIR of very pretty CHROMOS, from the original paintings, entitled "EXPECTATATION" and "TIRED OUT"
Also a NICELY-COLOURED EMBOSSED RELIEF, representing a bust on a pedestal of either one of the Soudan Heroes or one of our Leading Statesmen.
Also an ELEGANT IMITATION BRONZE FRAME, with floral design and appropriate wording in the centre.
Also a PAIR of ILLUMINATED TEXTS, beautifully coloured.
Also a pair of relief EASELS, constructed to stand, being two exquisitely designed miniature imitation mirrors in beautifully-printed floral designs, with suitable motto in the centre of each.
Also a beautiful BIBLE TEXT, nicely illuminated and framed complete, in a charmingly-embossed black frame.
And to every reader applying before Oct 14, we will present, entirely free of any extra charge, as a Grand Fine Art Gift, a magnificent SCRAP ALBUM, as described above, and containing 12 sheets of the most beautifully coloured Embossed Relief Scraps.

In every parcel sent out will also be enclosed, entirely free of charge, a signed PRIZE CERTIFICATE, giving full rules and all necessary particulars, and entitling the holder to compete, absolutely and entirely free of charge, for a PRIZE of an EIGHT-ROOMED HOUSE, which will be selected within a ten-mile radius of the winner's own dwelling, also a CASH PRIZE of FIFTY POUNDS and 200 other Valuable Prizes. The result will be duly announced in Great Thoughts, a copy of which paper, giving the result, will be sent post free for two stamps.

One of our pictures, and an assortment of our wall texts, were forwarded to the Rev. C. H. SPURGEON, and in acknowledging the same, he wrote as follows:—

"These are the prettiest and cheapest things that have ever come under my notice. For how small a sum may houses be made beautiful!"

THE LIVERPOOL DAILY POST,

Of Tuesday, June 14, 1887, says:—"We believe that the Kensington Fine Art Association is a genuine institution, supplying excellent pictures, birthday and Christmas cards, and other fine art publications at low prices. With regard to the Competitions conducted by the Kensington Fine Art Association, we believe that such Competitions are of a thoroughly genuine character, the prizes promised having been in all cases awarded in full. All prize-winners names and addresses are obtainable on application to the Association."

The following coupon should be cut out and forwarded with the remittance with as little delay as possible.

B. of I. PRIZE COUPON.

October 1, 1887.

Please order before October 14 (unless from abroad).

On receipt of this Bond, accompanied by Post Office Order 2s. 6d. (or 33 stamps), I agree to forward, carriage paid, to any address, one GRAND BONUS PRESENTATION PARCEL, containing the whole of the goods described above, and I undertake to present to every reader applying before October 14, as a Grand Fine Art Gift, entirely free of any extra charge, a MAGNIFICENT SCRAP ALBUM, as described above.

We also agree to enclose in every parcel, absolutely and entirely free of charge, as a Grand Free Gift, One Prize Certificate, giving full rules and all necessary particulars, and entitling the holder to compete absolutely and entirely free of charge for the above Prizes, including the EIGHT-ROOMED HOUSE; also a CASH PRIZE of FIFTY POUNDS and Two Hundred other valuable Prizes.

(Signed) WALTER H. BACON.

THE KENSINGTON FINE ART ASSOCIATION, KENSINGTON RD., KENSINGTON, LONDON, W.

To ensure safe delivery, the Association will be happy to cover insurance of the Parcel for safe transmission, provided two extra stamps are enclosed.

If you can get four of your friends to become purchasers, we will send you an extra Prize Certificate, thus enabling you to compete without becoming a purchaser.

Post Office Orders are preferred to Postal Orders, and to be made payable at Kensington Park-road Post-office, London, to Walter Henry Bacon, and cheques to be crossed "Alliance Bank, Kensington Branch."

WALTER HENRY BACON,

THE KENSINGTON FINE ART ASSOCIATION, KENSINGTON ROAD, KENSINGTON, LONDON, W.

Send three stamps for our new Catalogue of Oil Paintings, Engravings, Oil Portraits, Chromos, Oleographs, Fancy Goods, Stationery, Christmas and Birthday Cards, Christmas Novelties, &c., containing also many pages of Press Opinions and Testimonials, and a complete list of our past, current, and future "Picture Puzzle," "Copying," "Ballot," and "Word" Competitions. Thousands of prizes.

FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles, and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of different diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 40 pages. Sent free on receipt of two stamps to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C.

CARBOLINE

1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.

Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved.

DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.

Makers:

GEORGE & WELCH

CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,

Who will forward Free of Postage.

PRICE 21s., POST FREE. HARNESS' WILL LAST FOR YEARS.

ELECTROPATHIC BELT.

An agreeable, natural, and certain remedy for

Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Nervous Affections Sleeplessness, Paralysis, Indigestion, Constipation, Liver and Kidney Disorders, Ladies' Ailments, &c.

SEND POSTAL ORDER OR CHEQUE FOR 21s. FOR AN Electropathic Belt (post free), and you will have an electual and marvellous remedy always at hand. Harness' Electropathic Belt promotes Health, Strength, and Energy.

Thousands of Testimonials received. Write for copies or call and see the originals.

Pamphlet and advice free of charge.

The Medical Battery Company, Limited,

52, OXFORD ST., LONDON, W.

Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 28, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 562. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1887. [DOUBLE NUMBER, TWOPENCE.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
Irish Resistance to Israel's Supremacy	397
The Cheese of the World	398
Sown in the Earth.—Part I.	399
Ancient Watchmen Interviewed. By J. G. Taylor.—Part VI.	401
God's Purposes of No Int rest to the Spiritually Minded! By Rev. Denis Hanan, B.D.	402
The Premier of New South Wales on the Federation of the Empire	403
The Greatest Nation in the World	404
"None of Those Men Which Were Bidden Shall Taste of the Supper"	405
Salvation in Zion for Israel, God's Glory	405
Mr. Ruskin on Christian Travellers on the Continent	406
Ananias	407
A Nation Before Jehovah for Ever	408
Extract from the Preface of "Buddhism in Christendom; or, Jesus the Essene." By Arthur Lillie	409
Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund	409
Israel's Scripture and Prayer Union	410
Correspondence	410

IRISH RESISTANCE TO ISRAEL'S SUPREMACY.

"THE BATTLE," as the Times told us on Sept. 10, has commenced, and we suppose a few lessons taught to the refractory spirits led on by Messrs. W. O'Brien, Labouchere, and Dillon, will teach those who seek for the separation of Ireland from Great Britain that the thing is impossible! The public meeting which the seditious were going to hold near Ennis, in the County Clare, on Sunday, Sept. 4, collapsed because the Government "stood up" and declared that, come what would, the meeting should not take place. It was not held accordingly, simply because the Government of this land, being merciful to a fault, after much provocation decided at last to carry out its own decisions, and showed the enemies of the Empire that it would be obeyed.

On Sept. 9 there was a sort of pitched battle between the police and a mob organised to resist the Government at Mitchelstown, where Mr. O'Brien was summoned to attend for trial. The Separatists were holding a public meeting at the place at which a Government shorthand reporter attempted to do his duty by appearing. The mob resisted the police who escorted him, drove them back to the police-station, and finally were fired on by the police. The result was the death of one of the rioters on the spot, shot dead; the severe wounding of another, since dead; and injury to several more. The blow sufficed! The rioters dispersed, and there was no more heard at the place of mob opposition.

We may ask, as the Times does, "how long these turbulent mobs would have been tolerated in Republican France? or Republican America? In France they would long since have been put down with the sternness with which the Commune was extinguished. And America showed her lack of sympathy with Irish disorder when, during the riots of New York, a thousand Irishmen were shot down without parley. In Ireland only is disorder and riot condoned, and respect is bidden to be paid to the sacred right of petty insurrection."

The fact appears to be that the British only of all the nations seem tolerant (almost to a fault) of the weaknesses and feelings of others, and rather than appear to be willing to put down freedom of action among the people, they permit millions of the loyal subjects of the Queen to be tyrannised over instead of compelling the rebellious by force to obey the law and refrain from indulging in the exercise of their freedom to do harm. Henceforth we trust the Government of this long-suffering land will learn that to suffer evildoers to tread down the loyal is no proof of wisdom or of good government. It is a sign of weakness and pusillanimity. On such principles India could never be governed, and insurrection and rebellion could never be put down there. We do not therefore attempt to apply these rose-water ideas in the Heathen Empire; but merely to suit the exigencies of parliamentary and party life, we act on them in Ireland, and so render good order and happiness simply impossible in the Emerald Isle; and millions miserable and wretched. Trade, further, in Ireland cannot flourish because the law is set at defiance with the connivance of Government; and men who refuse obedience to it are assured that, while they beat and attack our police and soldiery a much as they please, the latter are so tender-hearted that they will never take life, or make a serious attack on the disaffected so as to endanger life or limb. This state of things must come to an end, and Government must assert itself, if we are to have peace.

The promises to Israel are all to the active and energetic while standing up to assert their just position as the dominant race. "The remnant of Jacob is to be among the nations, in the midst of many people, as a lion among the beasts of the forest, as the young lion among the flocks of sheep, who, if he go through (but not otherwise), treadeth down and teareth in pieces, and there is none to deliver" (Micah v. 8). "Let thine hand," continues the prophet, "be lifted up above thine adversaries, and let all thine enemies be cut off." The hand must be lifted up, and show the adversaries that it is their master, before we can expect that the latter will succumb and be destroyed.

The late event in Mitchelstown is a move in the right direction, and will show the rebellious Irish that there is a limit to their contumacy, and that that limit has been reached. Their separation from the larger island is an impossibility, because it is against the promises of God to Israel, and we cannot allow Ireland, closely linked as it is to ourselves, to become a thorn in our flesh, and the habitation of our foes. Chronic disaffection in Ireland may be needful for us at present, to force our rulers to concentrate our nation's military power in that island, and so draw off our attention and influence from the coming Great Earthquake Woe which is to devastate the Continent, but to pass us by untouched, by reason of our entire and complete separation from its concerns. "Come, My people," is the command, "enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee; hide thyself for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. For behold, the Lord cometh forth out of His place, to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity. The earth also shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain" (Isa. xxvi. 20, 21, R. V.). From that turmoil we are commanded to abstain, and a potent means to compel our national obedience seems to be this very trouble in Ireland, not amounting to actual rebellion, but so near it that nothing but incessant watchfulness, backed by military force, will prevent an outburst, and civil war as its final consequence.

Digitized by Google

In all these things it is our abiding comfort to know that, being Israel, God is managing all our national concerns for us, and that the Irish trouble, as well as all the events, domestic and foreign, that are happening to us, are under His all-wise control. That control is exercised for His people's benefit always, and we look, therefore, for a speedy settlement of our Irish difficulties as soon as events have so far developed as to prevent our active interference in foreign complications, and the maintenance of our nation in that perfect peace which God, the God of Israel, has faithfully promised to us as a nation. To the Lord shall be all the praise!

THE CHEESE OF THE WORLD.

We hope our readers will not think we are trifling with them when we descend to such matters as cheese in connection with Our Identity. But when God promised to "Israel obedient" that they should be "the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath all nations of the earth," He did not confine the benediction to matters of state and national greatness. The whole passage in Deut. xxviii. 1—13, which relates to the promises to "Israel obedient," shows that God included in His blessing not only the increase of cattle and the flocks of Israel's sheep, but also their basket and store, travelling mercies, manufactures, the produce of their land, rain, and fruitful seasons, and pecuniary wealth.

Cheese is a valuable staple of British trade, and one of the products of Israel's flocks and herds. We may expect, therefore, that in this commodity also our British-Israelites would exhibit a decided superiority in manufacture and production, and that the article of commerce called "cheese" would therefore be the best of the kind produced in the whole world, "the head and not the tail" among the cheeses of the world, "above only and not beneath." What is the fact? Let the correspondent of the Times, Mr. Henry F. Moore, of Frome, Somerset, tell us in his letter to that journal on October 18, 1886. He wrote as follows:—

At the present time of the year the attention of agriculturalists generally is forcibly directed to the question of the manufacture of Cheddar cheese. The large dairy show at Frome, with its 225 entries of cheese, all made on this system, was followed by the large show at the Royal Agricultural Hall, when, out of 180 entries of cheese of all makes, something like two-thirds were manufactured on the Cheddar system. In a few days the great Ayrshire show at Kilmarnock will be opened, and here again the great bulk of the cheese will be made on the same system. It is no disparagement to other local makes to point out that the Cheddar is our national cheese. Originally made in a small and poor parish in Somersetshire, and being there improved and systematised, the method extended over the whole of the Western counties of England. It then went to Scotland, where it has become the main make of the large dairy belt in that country. Besides these two large districts, the system has also spread to other smaller districts in this country. But the Cheddar system is not only our national system of cheesemaking—it has been adopted by the world as the best system for the two hemispheres. It is not only in Great Britain that the Cheddar is the king of cheese, but throughout the world. Holland, with its humid climate, has adopted it for a large proportion of the cheese it exports. On the banks of the Volga, in Russia, are cheese factories, built and equipped by the enterprise and zeal of the late Czar, and in these are manufactured Cheddar cheese of exceedingly good quality. When we go further afield, and take the vast American continent, we find that on both sides of the St. Lawrence it is the Cheddar cheese that is invariably made. Going still further, and taking nearly the whole of the cheesemaking in the Antipodean colonies of Australasia, we find that there also it is the Cheddar system that is most usually followed. It is only by looking at the universal extent to which the Cheddar system has been adopted by the English-speaking races of the world, and its adoption by a new cheesemaking country like Russia and an old cheese country like Holland, that we thoroughly realise the position which has been won for itself by the local cheesemaking style of the West of England, as improved and raised into a definite system by old Joseph Harding, of Marksbury.

I think that this history is well needed in order that the importance of the dairy events of this year may be thoroughly understood and appreciated. Cheddar is the world's cheese, and though the Frome show represents the birthplace of the system, we must not forget that the system has been carried forth into all lands, and that improvement in the average quality, perfection of quality, and details of manufacture are world-wide questions.

So far the correspondent. He tells us that "Cheddar is the world's cheese," and that, originating with Cheddar, it is now adopted as the best of all cheeses, and manufactured accordingly everywhere on the Somersetshire plan. The Canadians, being Israelites, still press the Cheddar cheese makers very hard in respect to the quality of what they are turning out, and it is a question whether they are not becoming the best Cheddar cheese makers in the world. At present, however, the home manufacturers bear off the palm, but even if it goes at last to Canada, it will not go out of the family! The Canadians are Israelites too, and their excellence and pre-eminence among the nations in cheese manufacture will be equally a fulfilment of the prophecy favourably affecting the Tribes of Israel.

The lesson we would draw from this subject is this:—If God, who made certain distinct promises to the children of Israel in respect to numberless blessings which He stated He was going to give to them, exclusively fulfilled His promises to the very jot and tittle, even as to excellence in the manufacture of their cheeses, then surely we may trust this faithful Jehovah in the greater matters wherein He has also pledged His word to Israel, His people, and to those who believe in Jesus through their word. Such a promise is the one to which we are always glad to point as the raison d'être of British-Israel. "God so loved the world that He gave His only-begotten Son that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John iii. 16).

In reference to the above, the following appeared in the Bristol papers of September 28, 1887:—

THE FROME CHEESE AND BUTTER SHOW.

THE JUBILEE PRIZE WON BY A SOMERSET MAN.

The Frome Cheese and Butter Show commenced with the dinner of the judges last night, when it was announced that the Jubilee Prize had been won by Mr. Henry Cannon, of Milton Clevedon, Evercreech, Somerset, thus keeping the prize in the county.

Another account declared that the result of the competition showed that very fine Somerset Cheddar was still the king of cheese.

Digitized by Google

SOWN IN THE EARTH.

A Paper read by the President to the Anglo-Israel Association, Brisbane, 19th January, 1883.

FROM "THE ANGLO-ISRAELITE," VOL. IV., NO. 3).

PART I.

WE conclude that it is admitted by all Christians that we are to receive God's Word as a whole, and that we are not permitted to take one or more isolated passages from it, passages which are sometimes quite ejaculatory, at other times used as illustrations, simply to make the truth more easily to be comprehended by some minds upon which mere ordinary phraseology makes but little impression; we are not to take such passages and thereupon erect a battery of arguments to demolish that very truth they are employed to illustrate, by fixing upon that illustration a meaning that it was not intended to convey, and so suffering it to usurp the authority of the truth itself, and thus lose the substance while grasping at the shadow, or as Peter expresses it, "wrest the Scriptures to their own destruction" (2 Pet. iii. 16).

Our contention is that God called Abram, took him from Ur of the Chaldees, separated him from his kindred, even to his great squatter-nephew Lot; and Abraham "sojourned in the Philistines' land many days;" and after those things God commanded Abraham to offer up his son, his only son, as a burnt offering, which Abraham would assuredly have done had he not been prevented by an angel from heaven; and then God said to him, for his prompt obedience and unquestioning self-denial, "I will multiply thy seed as the stars of heaven; and as the sand which is upon the sea shore; thy seed shall possess the Gate of his enemies; and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed."

This blessing of all nations through the seed of Abraham is our grand theme, and to exhibit the progress of God's purposes, in one phase of its operation, is my humble endeavour just now; to that end I invite your attention to that shadowing forth of the prophecy in the few words "Sown in the earth;" for if the seed of Abraham is thus to bless the nations, it must be sown among them. Therefore, if we can find a nation sown, not in one drill here and another there, but broadcast through the earth, can it be other than the seed of Abraham? and we are they. "Sown in the earth!" Hosea speaking of Israel says: "I will sow her to Me in the earth!" (ii. 23), and Zechariah repeats it: "And I will sow them among the people, and they shall remember Me in far countries" (x. 9). A very notable testimony to this sowing of Britain-Israel among the nations comes to us from our brother Manasseh. A distinguished New York clergyman described the ubiquity of Britain in substance thus: "I wish you to notice how God, in Christianising England, made provision for Christianising the world. We, in the United States, are centralised in a vast territory, whose resources are limitable, but whose possessions are self-contained. But this is not the case with Christian and Protestant Britain. She has her possessions scattered all over the earth. She is here beside us in Canada nursing a young nation into manhood. She is in South America, developing and guarding her commerce. She is in the Pacific Ocean, on a hundred islands, finding harbours for her navies, and trading ports for her merchants. She is in New Zealand, building up and consolidating a great Anglo-Saxon nation. She is in China, dictating to the Emperor. She is in Japan, leavening the fermented masses with her institutions. She is in India, transfusing her influence through Hindoo and Mahommedan organisations, and transforming that vast country. She is in Africa, waging wars, and digging out channels for the streams of her commerce. She is away up the Mediterranean and among the nations of Europe, modifying their laws and shaping their policy. England to-day is ubiquitous by her possessions, and wields a mightier influence than any other nation on the face of the earth. And as a Protestant Power, she has become a great missionary nation. All her institutions, through her whole territories, throb with Christian life. Where Britain goes she carries the Bible, which has been the secret of her power. Where she colonises she Christianises. Where she takes her merchandise she brings her religion. Before her armies she sends her missionaries. Her life-blood is saturated with Christian truths, and she sends it throbbing to the remotest point of her national organisation. Her greatness is in her wide-spread dominions; her power and glory in her Christian vitality."

In using this illustration of the fulfilment of promise and prophecy, our objectors cannot convict us of self-laudation. This testimony is furnished by one ignorant, it may be, of our Israelitish origin, yet thus bearing witness to the fact that the marks by which "lost Israel" is to be identified are here found unmistakably impressed upon the features of a nation found to be filling up (notwithstanding all her shortcomings) the grand outline drawn by our blessed Lord Himself, when He said to the Jews of Judah: "The kingdom of God shall be taken away from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruit thereof" (Matt. xxi. 43).

Now, a nation being found bringing forth, even in a faint degree, the fruits of the kingdom of God, as set forth by Christ's sermon on the mount, must not that be the nation to whom the kingdom is given? But a large majority of our people are calling us and themselves Gentiles; and God nowhere promises that He will give His kingdom to Gentiles. How could He promise the dominion to Abraham's seed, with a foreknowledge that at a certain time he should give it to Gentiles! Horrible, to speak thus of the God of Israel! Therefore, if we be found evidencing by our fruits that we are entering into the possession of that kingdom we must be Israel, at present very much "blinded"—and in that condition also, according to the Scriptures; yet all the while on the eve of having that blindness taken away, for, as Paul writes (Rom. xi. 25) it must continue "until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in," an event, it is thought, nigh at hand. But this approaching event, whatever it may be, I do not propose to touch upon at present, my object just now being simply to show that God has fulfilled His gracious promise to Israel "by sowing him in the earth;" and I prefer to take my illustrations from far-away witnesses, and witnesses who are themselves "blinded" to our and their own Israelitish origin, and thus disarm those adverse critics who attack us, Israel-Britain, with the barbed accusations of self-laudation. I am now speaking of ourselves "as others see us." So again pursuing this purpose in the self-same spirit, I give to you a speech delivered at the celebration of the last anniversary of the birth of our beloved Queen Victoria, by the British Benevolent Society at Portland, United States, by District Judge M.P. Deady, while proposing the toast "The British Empire:"—"This day we meet to celebrate the sixty-third anniversary of the birth of the good Queen Victoria, the woman who has been at the head of the British Empire with honour and renown for the last forty-five years of the most eventful century of the world's history. And this Empire, what is it? and whence came it? Fifty years before the Christian era, during the breathing spell in his Gallic wars, Cæsar made a hasty descent, from the opposite coast, upon the then almost unknown island of Britannia, situate on the far North-west of the then known world. The exploit resulted in the occupation of the country by the Romans for five centuries thereafter, as far North as the Firths of Forth and Clyde. Beyond this—into the land of mountain and mist—their eagles never dared or cared to soar. Then came the decadence and downfall of the Roman Empire; and the sturdy and stubborn Angles, Saxons, Jutes, and Frisians swarmed across the German Ocean, and occupied the island, crowding the spare remnant of Romanised Britons into the mountains of Wales. In the ninth century came the hardy, shrewd, and enterprising Dane and carved a home for himself and Vikings in the coveted land. After 200 years of contention for supremacy among the discordant though kindred people, came the Norman, with his genius for law and order, and marshalled them into an orderly society; and so, in time, the barbarous island of Britannia became the famous England of the Plantagenets, the Tudors, of Raleigh, Drake, Chaucer, Spencer, and Shakespeare. From thence the sons of the blended Briton, Saxon, Dane, and Norman carried the arms, language, law, literature, and commerce of England over the world, planting, wherever they went, the civil polity and institutions which have distinguished their mother country among the nations of the earth, as the origin and preserver of rational individual liberty and constitutional government.

Digitized by Google

"And what is the result? To-day the British Empire includes 300,000,000 of people—35,000,000 in Great Britain and Ireland; 5,000,000 in America; 1,700,000 in Africa; 3,000,000 in Australia; and 250,000,000 in Asia—nearly one-fourth of the population of the globe, occupying nearly one-eighth of its land surface, and containing probably one-half of its wealth. Every sea is whitened by the wings of its commerce, and the Union Jack floats in every port known to navigation. The imports of the United Kingdom reach the enormous value of £1.800,000,000, and the exports £1,300,000,000 yearly while 200,000 vessels enter and clear at her ports yearly, having an aggregate tonnage of over 75,000,000 tons. These are some of the elements which constitute the British Empire—an empire upon which the sun never sets—a colossal fabric of political, social, and commercial power and rule, such as never has been witnessed since the days when the whole world acknowledged the supremacy of Rome, and reposed in peace and security beneath the standards of the invincible legions of an absolute emperor. This Britain is the power of which a distinguished American orator and statesman once said, on the floor of the American Senate: 'She has dotted over the surface of the whole globe with her possessions, and military posts, whose morning drum-beat, following the sun, and keeping company with the hours, circles the earth with one continuous and unbroken strain of the martial airs of England.'

"But there is another phase of the British Empire—a phase which reaches over and beyond its material limits and possessions, and asserts itself wherever man is found—I mean the empire of mind, which, with its effective instruments of language, law, literature, and commerce, is bringing the nations of the world into a common brotherhood; in witness whereof we are gathered around the festive board to-night to honour England's Queen as the representative of the English-speaking race—including the 50,000,000 dwelling hereabouts, under the 'broad stripes and bright stars,' and are proud to call themselves Americans. Hoping then, Mr. President and gentlemen of the British Benevolent Society, that the long delayed traveller from New Zealand will, when he comes, take his stand upon the un-broken arch of London bridge and sketch not the ruins, but the glories of St. Paul's, I give you the toast: 'The British Empire—Esto Perpetua.'"

Now this, my friends, may be all blind witnessing, but to my mind, and doubtless also to yours, it carries with it a most enlightening power, and ought to be, and eventually will be, recognised as the absolute fulfilment of our Father's living promise, "I will sow her to Me in the earth." If it be not so, let our opponents, if they can, find any land, luxurious or desert, any island, continent, isthmus, or promontory of any strategic importance in the world, where Israel-Britain does not possess the Gate of her enemies, or a Gate that threatens them; let them seek—but they shall not find—any port "known to navigation," as our brother Manasseh has stated, where the Union Jack has not yet fluttered in the breeze. Truly Britain-Israel is "sown in the earth."

Let us follow on. A Frenchman, M. Dupin, writing fifty years ago, thus speaks of the British Empire:—

"In Europe the British Empire borders at once towards the North on Denmark, on Germany, upon Holland, upon France, and towards the south upon Spain, Sicily, Italy and Western Turkey. It holds the key of the Adriatic and Mediterranean; it commands the mouth of the Black Sea and of the Baltic. No sooner had its navy, the arbiter of the Archipelago, ceased to be adverse to the cause of Greece, than, on the instant, the ports of the Peloponnessus found new liberators in the posterity of the Heraclidæ, and from Corinth to Tenedos, the sea which leads to the Bosporus, became, to the descendants of the Argo nauts, the path to victory! and to a second and richer 'golden fleece'—national independence! In Europe, the British Empire permits this conquest. In America, it gives boundaries to Russia towards the Pole, and to the United States towards the temperate regions. Under the Torrid Zone it reigns in the midst of the Antilles, encircles the Gulf of Mexico, till at last it meets those new States which it was the first to free from their dependence on Spain, to make them more surely dependent on its own commercial industry, and, at the same time, to scare in either hemisphere any mortal who might endeavour to snatch the heavenly fire of its genius, or the secret of its conquests. It holds, midway between Africa and America, that rock to which it chained the Prometheus of the modern world (St. Helena and Bonaparte). In Africa, from the centre of that island Malta, devoted of yore, under the symbol of the Cross, to the safety of every Christian flag, the British Empire enforces, from the Barbary States, that respect which they pay to no other Power. From the foot of the Pillars of Hercules, it carries dread into the heart of the remotest provinces of Morocco; on the shores of the Atlantic, it has built the forts of the Gold Coast and of the Lion's Mouth (Sierra Leone). It is from thence that it strikes the prey which the blacks furnish to the European races of men; and it is there that it attaches to the soil the freed man whom it snatches from the trade in slaves. On the same continent, beyond the tropics, and at the point nearest the Austral Pole, it has possessed itself of a shelter under the very Cape of Storms. Where the Spaniards and Portuguese thought only of securing a port for their ships to touch at—where the Dutch perceived no capabilities beyond those of a plantation—is now established the colony of a second British people, uniting British activity with Batavian patience; at this moment it is extending round the Cape the boundaries of a settlement which will increase in South Africa to the size of the States which it founded in North America. From this new focus of action and of conquest, it cast its eyes towards India; it discovers it, seizes the stations of most importance to its commercial progress, and thus renders itself the exclusive ruler over the passes of Africa from the East of another hemisphere. As much dreaded in the Persian Gulf and Erythrean Sea as in the Pacific Ocean and the Indian Archipelago, the British Empire, the possessor of the finest countries of the East, beholds its factors ruling over 80,000,000 of subjects [now reaching to 250,000,000, according to our American's statement, shewing an increase of 170,000,000 for the last fifty years, the time ago when the Frenchman wrote]. The conquests of its merchants (the late East India Company) in Asia began where those of Alexander the Great ceased, and where the terminus of the Romans could never reach."

Such then was the opinion of our nearest neighbours 50 years ago, almost before the isles had begun to renew their strength, under the mighty impetus of electricity and steam power.

Passing over the colonies—nations yet in their infancy—let us cast a brief glance at the rise and progress of British power in the East, where the Queen of England, the Empress of India, rules over 250,000,000 of subjects. First, we note the astounding fact that these mighty possessions grew up under a mercantile company, and against their wishes—for invariably we find stringent regulation, going out with every Governor-General to avoid conquest, and not to provoke war. And in 1880 similar instructions were forwarded to Zululand. This might perhaps have been expected from a mercantile community, but in spite of themselves, the empire grew, and it is now as difficult as ever to affix boundaries or limits, however scientific.

(To be continued).

Digitized by Google

ANCIENT WATCHMEN INTERVIEWED.

By J. G. Taylor.

(Concluded from page 393).

VI.—REASONS FOR THE RESTORATION.

The effacement of Israel is so total and remarkable that it has naturally given rise to much dispute, and, what is not quite so comprehensible, it has led to the virtual denial of many scriptures which would otherwise have been acquiesced in without a murmur. Were we to tell our opponents that they had renounced and contravened large portions of the prophetical writings, they would no doubt hold up their hands in horror; but the accusation would nevertheless be true. For if there is one fact in the Bible which is lucidly expressed, reiterated, emphasised, and expatiated upon, it is the fact of the restoration of the whole Twelve Tribes of Israel. Yet there are hundreds who disbelieve it, thousands who are not satisfied, and tens of thousands to whom it is a mere hazy uncertain possibility. The numbers of such people have of course increased exactly in proportion as this restitution has seemed to become more and more remote; hence they are to-day a multitudinous seed. But even when Fletcher lived they were busy plying their figments—urging that the Israelites may have returned with Judah, and that the pilgrimage from Babylon to Jerusalem was a sufficient fulfilment of prophecy. This had to be refuted, and we will transcribe a skeleton of the reply then made, as it is very suitable for the times in which our lot is cast:—

1.—The sacred Scripture directly asserts that at the penning of that portion of the Book of Kings they were in those cities of the Medes to this day, and that the Samaritans were placed in their room, where mention is made of their continuation to the fourth generation.

2.—The author also of the Book of Chronicles declares the Israelites to reside in those seats of their captivity to the day of his writing. Now, whoever wrote that book, or annexed the additions to it, plainly recites the tenth generation after the captivity of Judah.

3.—They are prophecied to return out of their dispersion after the manifestation of the Messiah, Psa. lxviii. 18—22; Isa. xi., xlix. 6, lx. 21; Jer. xxx. 3, xxxiii. 15, l. 19; Ezek. xxxvii. 21: Hos. ii. 19, iii. 5; Joel iii. 1, 10; Amos ix. 11, 14; explained by Acts xv. 16.

4.—These Tribes are to return with a conversion to the Messiah and His law. To this point Hosea speaks as to the children of Israel that they shall become the sons of the living God. This return is further accomplished in the third chapter, that after they have been many days without a Prince, &c., which was not verified upon all the Tribes until the incarnation of our Lord, then shall they return after those days of the intermission of government.

5.—They are to return at or about the time of the destruction of Gog and Magog in Ezekiel. But the ruine of those nations signified by God, &c., as yet rests under the conduct of Providence to be fulfilled, and therefore those Tribes were never yet restored to their glorious estate. Who these people are that shall come like Stormes upon the mountains of Israel I shall not here stand to discuss, but rest with the general apprehension that they denote the Turks. Give leave also to represent one text about Gog's ruine in the latter days mentioned in Balaam's prophecy, according to the Samaritan copy of the Pentateuch, where, speaking of the latter times of the world, he saith, in our versions, Israel's king shall be higher than Agag, and his kingdomes shall be exalted. The Samaritan reads it, and so the Seventy—"He shall be exalted above Gog." Not to argue about the authentickness of that Lection at present, let it suffice that according to that ancient reading Israel is to be exalted above the kingdoms of Gog in the latter days, that is above the Turk, as we apprehend by consideration of Ezekiel, who acquaints us that the Lord had spoken of old concerning Gog and his ruine by his prophets in former times. But as yet the Turk is in great splendour, though we hope his crescent is a waining and tending to his fatal eclipse and period.

6.—The Tribes of Israel are to rule over all their enemies and ancient oppressors. They never returned as yet to enjoy a kingdom, but after the return from Babylon were as a province inserted into another empire. Therefore the promised state of an absolute kingdome to rule over their enemies was never yet fulfilled. And who is the Assyrian in the land but the Ottoman family, who holds part of the ancient Assyria, and all the land of Canaan, under his Damascen scymiter. But Israel is to captivate those in the latter day that had led them captives in former times. Now, this hath never been fulfilled to this moment, and therefore rests under the veracity of God to accomplish to His ancient people.

7.—They are to possess a far larger country than ever they did since they were a people. Israel must enjoy whatever was contained in that ample charter given to Abraham, from Euphrates to the entring in of Egypt. When some further add that Israel fell short of the promise by sin, that's not cogent, for so they might have fallen short of all, and the Lord acquaints them that He chose them not to be His people for their worth, and therefore brought them into Canaan at the first, but to get Himself a glorious name.

8.—They are to return to such a state of grandeur that the nations and their kings shall come with presents to Jerusalem.

9.—They are to return as at the first, when Israel came out of Egypt, that is, all the Twelve Tribes are to be raised out of their various dispersions.

10.—If these Scriptures are to be construed in reference to a deliverance by the indulgence of the Persian princes of old, then must they never have been brought under any further yoke of captivity. The Holy Scriptures do promise that when they are reduced to their own land they shall never remove more.

If the evidence contained in this answer will not convince our opponents of their error, the attempt to do so will have to be abandoned. Stronger proof we are unable to offer, and stronger proof they have no right to expect. The people who, in face of these facts, still persist in asserting that Israel will never return, are unwilling to be convicted or do not know what an argument is, and in either case a further resort to logic is superfluous.

The identification of Balaam's Agag with Ezekiel's Gog is a point of signal importance, as it brings the fulfilment of Balaam's prophecy into these last times, compelling us to look at the present dispensation for the elevation of Israel over Gog and the development of all the magnificent promises uttered through that seer in Numb. xxiii. and xxiv. Fletcher and Lee fancied that Gog signified the Turks, but modern writers are agreed that it represents Russia. Where, then, is the Power decreed to surpass Gog? According to conventional opinion the Jews ought to occupy that position, and so verify Balaam's divination. But they are themselves at the mercy of Russia, and do not show any symptoms of prevailing against her. There is only one nation outstripping Russia, and possessing a prospect of continuing to keep the front, namely, the British Empire; and although the extent of territory under the Russian Empire closely approaches that of her rival, it is admitted that England has been exalted high over Russia in every element of real greatness. The existence at this moment of two colossal, expanding, and antagonistic monarchies is surely a suggestive omen of the predestined collision. We learn from Ezekiel that there will be but two nations competing for universal rule, Gog and Tarshish, the latter of which is uniformly believed to typify the British dominion; and Balaam also speaks of two, Gog and Israel. If England, however, is a Gentile State there would be three—Gog, Israel, and Tarshish—a triple contest which is at variance with scripture. Prophecy clearly testifies that the future strife lies between two combatants; the condition of the world indicates the same thing, and in order to solve the difficulty we have to assume that Israel and Tarshish are one, in other words, that Israel and the British Empire are identical.

To conclude, these extracts from "Israel Redux" display its main features in so far as they bear on the captivity and restoration of Israel, but they do not form by any means an exhaustive review of the book. What we have aimed at is to exhibit the noteworthy and encouraging circumstance that men of the profoundest learning were, if not are, in entire sympathy with our interpretations of both prophecy and ancient history. The intellects of this age denounce Identity ideas with indignant fervour and hearty contempt. Let them persevere unto the end, because it is not very distant. But they must not imagine that in so doing they are defending the orthodox faith from unorthodox attacks, nor should they delude themselves by supposing that such hostility is a sign of superior wisdom. It is well for them to understand that they have on this matter completely drifted from the original principles of the Church, and that to conscientiously oppugn the Identity it is necessary to teach the rankest heresy and evince an ignorance of almost incredible denseness.

Digitized by Google

GOD'S PURPOSES OF NO INTEREST TO THE SPIRITUALLY-MINDED!

By Rev. Denis Hanan, B.D.

If circumstances which I have noted do not deceive me, I think I am justified in saying that years of effort have so far produced an effect upon the minds of many that they are ready to admit the possibility of a Hebrew emigration from the East to these Islands. Its possibility is not denied, for many have become aware that Europe was peopled by waves of emigration from Asia. Its probability is admitted, for many theories concerning race and language have been overthrown by the advance of more accurate knowledge. But with this readiness to say, "We do not at all deny that it may be so, the Israelites of the Northern kingdom may have found their way to Britain." There comes the rider. "We do not see what difference it makes; it is a matter of no interest to us."

This position is taken by men of two very opposite poles of thought. On the one side we find those who are practically indifferent to revealed religion, while on the other we find those who realize so fully the glories of redemption that they are indifferent to its mundane effects. The opinions of these latter are deserving of our most serious consideration, and I purpose to mention them now.

They say, if it was proved with mathematical certainty that we are Israel, it would make no difference to us. We, with men of other races, are members of the Church of Christ. The Church is His body. We are co-heirs with Him. Our inheritance is in the heavenlies. We wait for His appearing. The Abrahamic covenant and Israel's position is earthly. Ours far exceeds it. We cannot descend from the contemplation of the inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away, and fill our minds with national and temporal considerations. I hope that I can sympathise fully with this realisation, while I endeavour to show that it does not justify the position taken; and I would hope that, as there could be no clashing between any of the purposes of God, so it may be seen that God's purposes with the Church, and God's purposes with Israel, are but the complement one of the other.

In the first place, if Israel was guarded, and has been guided to a "prepared place" in "the Isles of the sea," and if the temporal blessings promised have been given to her, this has been God's work. Can the Bride of Christ, the heir of the ages, affect indifference to the manifestation of the hand of God in history? Is she justified in doing so? Is she truly spiritually-minded while so doing? If in the purpose of God it was as necessary for the redemption of the world that, as Israel was called into being before the Incarnation, so she should be continued in being after that great event, surely it manifests a lack of wisdom on the part of the Church when she declares that her high calling raises her above that which God in His wisdom has deemed necessary. The Church, and each member of the out-called body, exists, not for her or its own present or eternal joy and glory, but for the good of those for whom her Lord died; so that He, through her work and witness, may ultimately see the full result of the travail of His soul. The Church cannot share His joy unless she is co-partner in His labour; and her high calling, if thus transcendentalized, must lead to as unreal a position as that occupied by those who conceive themselves to be too spiritually-minded to make use of the material elements appointed for use in the Sacraments. There are many dangers which beset our path, and a false spirituality of mind needs to be guarded against equally with the glamour of material things. The Lord Jesus Christ took our nature. As man He ascended, and is at the right hand of God. As man, His feet shall stand upon the Mount of Olives; as man, He will occupy the throne of David, and reign over the House of Jacob. The preparation for this development of the kingdom must be made in this age. If God has preserved Israel as foretold (and this is not denied by those to whom I refer), that preservation has been, and is, necessary as a means to the end, and blindness to this, with its necessary unfitness to take part in the work of God, is culpable in the body as a whole or in the individual member, whether produced by indifference or by spiritual egotism.

When we find in the prophetic Word plain statements concerning the future of Israel, and the great work yet to be wrought, which will cause the deliverance from Egypt to be so eclipsed that it shall be no more referred to as the manifestation of God's covenant faithfulness and power (Jer. xvi. 14); when we learn that Israel under the new covenant are to be known as the sons of God (Hosea i. 10), "His witnesses" "filling the world with fruit," surely it is but wise to endeavour to ascertain how the fulfilment of these promises harmonises with the position of the Church, and it certainly must be unwise to assume that the one is opposed to the other. The extent of that divine harmony needs yet to be fully manifested by the teaching of the Holy Spirit. It will be given to those who humbly seek for it, and insensibly it will find its way into the hearts of those who truly and practically wait for their Lord. There are many who, while rejoicing in their position as members of the Church, or body, or spouse of Christ the Lord, and while waiting for His appearing, can yet see that but for the witnessing function of preserved and Christianized Israel, every wild graft would long since have returned to original sterility, and that the Church (so-called) would have been paganized utterly. There are those who, knowing that their Lord's rule extends over the universe, yet remember that He foretold that "the kingdom" taken from Judah would be given to "a nation," and by that nation be maintained, and see no difficulty in harmonising with this the command to evangelise all nations. For as all are blessed through the one seed, Christ, so the multitudinous seed is to be His executive in blessing.

There are those who have learned that the Abrahamic covenant fulfilled to Ephraim-Israel was as necessary in the purpose of God for the evangelization of the world as was the Incarnation of the Word for its redemption. Yes, let us joy and glory in the high calling of the Bride, but ever remember that she sins when she does not regard the purposes of the Bridegroom, and thinks herself too refined to partake in that mundane work which, wondrous as it is to contemplate, is the work of the Son of David. The real difficulty would be, or ought to be, to understand how the call of the Church rendered valueless the covenant promises made to Abraham and his seed for ever. We are taught that Christ the Lord, the Messiah, came "to confirm the promises made to the fathers," but we are expected to believe that they have become void, worthless, earthly, injurious to those whose conversation is in the heavenlies! Is this the mind of the Spirit of God, or is it the blindness in part that has happened to Israel until Ephraim's fulness of the nations be come in?

That Israel, addressed as God's firstborn a century after the deportation, should be unblessed during nineteen centuries, excites no wonder. But that God should have pre-eminently blessed her under the new covenant is regarded as extraordinary, and opposed to the call of the wild graft nations. We who see a beauteous harmony in the fact that the first-born have been pre-eminently blessed in Christ are looked on as visionaries. That the Church should occupy the place of Israel is assumed to need no explanation; but that the divine wisdom could possibly harmonise the earlier and later "calls" is supposed to be inexplicable. The mystery is not very deep, but, forsooth, it is "of no interest;" nay, rather it is "dangerous" to seek for the clue which sheds a light upon the whole record—magnifies the faithfulness of the faithful One, and recalls the Church to her true position as a fellow-worker now and here with her Lord.

Digitized by Google

THE PREMIER OF NEW SOUTH WALES ON THE FEDERATION OF THE EMPIRE.

At a meeting of the surviving members of the first Parliament of New South Wales, held in Sydney in May last, Sir Henry Parkes, the Premier, made some fine remarks on "the Union," or "Federation of the Empire." He said:—

I have to propose to you a sentiment which will awaken interest in all of you—"The Union of the Empire." It has always appeared to me that the greatest of all problems to be solved by European statesmen is to discover the magical bond which will unite all the branches of the Empire to a centre. No plan has been so far devised or promulgated which at present is satisfactory, but there is no reason to doubt but that as time goes on there will be some means of uniting the vast areas which are now swayed by the sceptre of our Queen, and if the many distinct countries—I might say the many distinct commonwealths—which inherit the laws, literature, and science which belong to the Mother Country—if any scheme could be devised to unite these in one compact whole, it would not only be to the great glory of our race but also of unspeakable blessing to the whole world. I regard the one great difficulty yet to be solved—the one great question yet to be thoroughly mastered—is the question of uniting every part of the Empire in one compact mass. (Cheers.)

Here was a plain admission of a fact men here are slow to recognise, namely, that the Colonies are now so many "distinct commonwealths, inheriting the laws, literature, and science (we may add also the religion, the Bible, the Sabbath, the decalogue, and the missionary spirit), which belong to the Mother Country." Let us mark, too, the grand idea which Sir Henry Parkes enunciated, that it would be the great glory of our race, and an unspeakable blessing to the whole world, if any scheme could be devised to unite these (the nation and company of nations or commonwealths) in one compact whole.

This, Sir Henry felt to be the one great question and great difficulty to be yet mastered, viz., how every part of the Empire was to be consolidated into a universal, compact, federated mass! The thing that Sir Henry Parkes foresaw and so earnestly desired is the one certain thing which is to happen to our race, because we are Israel. God said of us, to and by our forefather Jacob, in Gen. xxxv. 11, and xlviii. 19, "A nation and a company of nations shall be of thee." "His seed (Ephraim's) shall become a multitude of nations." These predictions point to just what is taking place in the world at this very moment, and that for the first time in its history. It is to this fact we would most earnestly point in dealing with our opposing clergy and our antagonists in general. Here is before our national gaze one of the most interesting and unique facts the world has ever witnessed! We have a modern nation developing suddenly into a grand "company" of "many distinct commonwealths," tending to union and federation, but not yet quite united.

We have the foremost statesman of one of our great Antipodean commonwealths, New South Wales, declaring that "the great glory of our race" depends upon the discovery "of some way of federating these many distinct countries," and to respond to these aspirations we have God's word promising Israel that their race, "spread to the West, and to the East, and to the North, and to the South," should become as the one great distinguishing sign, "a nation (that is, the Mother State) and a company of nations," as its Colonial or Daughter Empire, united as one—a "fulness" or "company of nations," distinct and yet united—many and yet one.

Here is no trivial or crazy hallucination, but a stupendous modern fact, one so big and so great that our statesmen look it anxiously in the face and declare that to produce the fulfilment of this prophecy in its integrity will be tantamount to placing on our race "its great glory." And not only that, but that it will be just what God desired in the matter, "an unspeakable blessing to the whole world." Can our opponents make light henceforth of our subject? Can they look on us as crazy lunatics when our minds are busied with the most glorious theme the heart of man can reflect upon, next to the work of human redemption? Here is a purpose announced 4,000 years ago by God Almighty Himself as sure of accomplishment in Israel exclusively; and translated into fact in the Nineteenth Century after Christ, in our nation alone. If Christian men, and Christian teachers especially, pass by such tremendous facts as these with contempt and derision, how can they expect attention to be paid to their Gospel message? It is the same God and Saviour whom they preach, who promised to Israel what is fulfilled before men's eyes to-day, and yet, though the fact is the most magnificent conceivable, we are invited by our opponents to pay no attention whatever to it as a sacred fulfilment of a Divine purpose; thereby opening the way for the dreadful inroad of the infidel's evil suggestions, and the shipwreck of the faith of the weak disciples of the Lord.

The following words of Sir John Hay at the same meeting, recorded by the Daily Telegraph of Sydney, May 24, we think of value, and we ask for them our readers' attention. He said:—

That the colonies should remain united with Great Britain was almost necessary for their safety, and it was entirely necessary for the expansion of commerce and wealth. The time had been when there were large tracts of unoccupied land left unnoticed, but of late years civilisation had so spread itself over the world until it was almost impossible for any tract of unoccupied land to escape notice. They remembered a generation ago, when they entered upon the legislation of New South Wales. They then seemed to have before them a long period of slow and gradual growth. Now we found ourselves in the midst of the bustling world and that we could no longer escape notice. All eyes were now upon us. Population had increased four-fold, wealth had increased in a still greater proportion; wealth, instead of being under-estimated, was over-estimated by the people of the world, and poor nations who had fleets and armies began to look upon us almost as a prey; and he had a feeling that we could not remain safe if the union of the Empire were destroyed. The British Empire had still command of the seas, but it could not maintain command of the seas unless it maintained its colonies beyond the seas. ("Hear, hear.") While Great Britain owned that circle around the globe, its greatness would be assured by its continued and increasing unity. The Empire was too great to allow it ever to become small and yet to remain safe. Let them hope that Great Britain would be true to itself, and that it would never give up dominions which it had won after encountering apparently insurmountable barriers. ("Hear, hear.") To his mind, the time for small nations had gone. To be safe, to be powerful, to be independent, a nation must be great, and for many a long day might we hope to be connected with this great and beneficent Empire: and might they not wish that it should continue great? He hoped this colony would never lose the pride of her association with the Mother Country, and that the perpetuity of its existence would continue to be the desire of all Australians—("hear")—and, if in the course of time the necessity arose for an independent nation in these Southern seas, let us remember that we could not do better than to plant a new Britain in the Southern Hemisphere. (Cheers.)

We are glad to be in a position to correct Sir John Hay. There never will be need to establish an independent nation in the South Seas. "The nation and company of nations" are Ephraim-Israel, spoken of in Zech. x. 6—9; and God's Word does not contemplate the disruption, but rather the consolidation and Federation of the Empire, till at last all the world shall become "the kingdom of the Lord and of His Christ." Israel, praise ye the Lord Jehovah, your God and King!

Digitized by Google

"THE GREATEST NATION IN THE WORLD."

WE hope we do not pander to the spirit of pride and haughtiness in our race when we remind our readers that God declared, in regard to Israel, that if they hearkened to His commandments He would constitute them "the greatest nation in the world"? His words, as recorded in Deut. xxviii. 1, 13, R.V.—well known to all our readers who are believers in the Hebrew origin of the British, but not so well known to those who are not persuaded of that fact—were these:—"And it shall come to pass, if thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the Lord thy God, to observe to do all His commandments which I command thee this day, that the Lord thy God will set thee on high, above all nations of the earth, and all these blessings shall come upon thee and overtake thee if thou hearken unto the voice of the Lord thy God. . . . And the Lord shall make thee the head and not the tail, and thou shalt be above only and thou shalt not be beneath . . . ." Our object being to prove that the British people are Israel; we have to show that they are "the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath all other nations"—in short, that they are "the greatest of all the nations in the world"—or we shall fail in our attempt to prove the great fact for which the BANNER OF ISRAEL exists. What God declares is, that if a certain contingency occurs He will bless Israel in such wise that they will become "the greatest nation in the world."

Now, before we enter on the consideration of the point, whether the British can be said "to have hearkened to the voice and observed to do all the commandments of the Lord," we have the burden of proof resting on us to show that this our nation is now the greatest in the world, because even if we have hearkened to the voice of the Lord, and have done according to His commandments," it will be obvious that we are not and cannot be Israel, unless we can also point to the accompanying features of the case, by showing that we are, as a nation, "the greatest in the world," and therefore, accepted of God. But if we can show that we are to-day "the greatest in the world," we can then enter on the demonstration of the most vital point, which is, that ours is the greatness of a people, blest of the Lord, who have obeyed His commandments, and are, in His sight, accounted to be those to whom His commandments are precious. Now, in regard to the first point, is it true or is it false that the British occupy a position which can be accounted that described in the text? Are they "the greatest nation in the world"? "the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath all nations of the earth"? For the last ten years we have been placing before the readers of the BANNER the testimony of this very circumstance, and piling proof upon proof that we are, as a plain matter of fact, "the greatest nation in the world," "the head of the nations, but not the tail, high above them all," according to the prophecies; not in one aspect only, but in all. Lord Salisbury, in his Mansion House speech on August 10, fully corroborated our position, as we have consistently maintained it in the BANNER for eleven years! For he then declared, in the face of Europe, that "we are the greatest nation in the world;" which, as a friend observed to us, is rather an unusual thing to hear said in public by a Prime Minister. His lordship's words, congratulating the Lord Mayor, were these:—"This has been the festal year of English loyalty; of the loyalty of the most loyal and the greatest nation in the world. (Cheers.) The sights that we have seen, the unbidden enthusiasm that we have witnessed, will remain engraven in the memory of all who have passed through this year," &c.

The above must be a palpably true statement, or the Premier would not have dared to make it. It is true, as facts and statistics prove, in whichever way we regard them. In reference to areas, the British Empire includes a fifth part of the habitable globe, or nearly nine millions of square miles! It is one-eighth larger than the colossal Empire of Russia to-day, with a population 200 millions in excess of that of the Czar's dominions. This Empire of ours is sixteen times larger than the great Empire of France! It is forty times larger than the Empire of the German Kaiser! It is three times bigger than the territory of the United States, though that is so large, that going thirty miles an hour, it will take a man seven days and seven nights to cross the continent of the American States! Ours is, then, as to area, "the greatest nation in the world!" Then as to population. Ours is 316 millions; the United States, fifty-seven millions; Germany's, forty-five millions; France's, just over thirty-seven and-a-half millions; Russia's, 103 millions. We are, then, the greatest of the nations of Europe, judged in this way, and only China exceeds ours in number, if it be true that her population touches 400 millions. We believe it does not exceed that of India, 250 millions. Then, as regards trade, which brings wealth, the gift of God (Deut. viii. 18), what are the facts? The following tells us:—

	TRADE.	REVENUE.
British Empire ...	1,076,000,000 ...	210,000,000
Russian Empire ...	120,000,000 ...	70,000,000
United States ...	356,000,000 ...	66,000,000
German Empire ...	327,000,000 ...	35,000,000
Chinese Empire ...	100,000,000 ...	50,000,000
French Empire ...	394,000,000 ...	130,000,000

This part of the case is largely in favour of our assertion, and gives the pre-eminence, over the most prosperous of the alien races, in the proportion of three to one in some cases, of ten to one in others. So we might go on comparing the British with other Empires, and the results would be always just the same. We should be found, easily, to be "the head and not the tail" in this and in all other respects. Lord Salisbury, therefore, had ample justification for his statement. We are, indeed, "the greatest nation in the world." We, therefore, may point to the British Empire and say, that in this respect, as in all others, we fulfil prophecy, and God has made us, as He said He would make Israel, the head of all nations, high above them all. The evidence, in other respects, having established the fact that we British are Israel, we might argue from the fact of our national supremacy, that we do, in truth, satisfy God's requirements, and are accounted by Him to be a nation which now "hearkens diligently to the voice of the Lord, to observe to do all His commandments." For in truth this part of the case does not depend only on Deut. xxviii. 1, 13. We have a conditional promise in Deut. xv. 6, which is also fulfilled exclusively in the British, but not in any other race. We do, indeed, "lend unto many nations, and borrow from none." We do, indeed, "reign over many nations," but are in subjection, as a conquered or naturalised people, to none. Those promises, too, were made on condition Israel "hearkened unto the voice, and observed the commandments of the Lord," and our nation has exclusively been blessed with the fulfilments of those singular and unique promises. The argument, therefore, can be reasonably and rationally maintained, that God, being such a Being as He is, would not have given us these blessings unless we had, in His sight, nationally performed the condition precedent. The question arises, however, apart from this consideration, "Have we, indeed, nationally obeyed the voice of the Lord our God, and observed to do all His commandments?" Individually and, in one aspect, nationally, we have failed, and fallen short. No doubt about that! But by the substitution of our accepted Daysman, Advocate, Redeemer, Representative, and Saviour, we have, indeed, fully, completely, and absolutely kept God's laws, statutes, and commandments. We have also, nationally, accepted Jesus as our King, Redeemer, God, and Advocate, and taken His ten true laws as the basis of our nation's laws and jurisprudence, as our standard of right and wrong, before men and God. We have obeyed Him, too, in respect to His prescription regarding His memorial of the blood spilt on Calvary; and carried out, as no other nation has done, His divine directions in regard thereto, in the State-Church Liturgy made and prescribed for the nation's use. We have, then, complied, as no other nation has, with the commandments of the Lord our God, and hearkened diligently to the voice of His mouth, to observe to do all that He has directed us to do; therefore, He has blessed us as He said He would bless us, because we are Israel-obedient. We have, then, proved our case. We are a people accounted obedient by the Lord, for our Redeemer's sake; and we do actually, in our national aspect, obey His divine commands. We therefore reap all those blessings He promised to Israel-obedient, and so stand confessed before the world, by a double line of proof, that we are God's chosen ones, His inheritance and heritage, His people, ever loved as the apple of His eye! Let Israel, then, praise the Lord, and give glory to His name, for His unutterable mercies to us His people, so highly favoured, so undeserving, and yet so gloriously clothed in the finished, perfect righteousness of God Himself, even of our Jehovah-Jesus (Isa. xlv. 25; liv. 17; lxi. 10; 2 Cor. v. 21).

Digitized by Google

"NONE OF THOSE MEN WHICH WERE BIDDEN SHALL TASTE OF THE SUPPER."

THERE is a remarkable parable of our Lord's in Luke xiv. 15 to 24. The pulpit in dealing with it of course spiritualises the whole passage, and applies it, not to the case of the Jews whom the Lord addressed on the particular occasion, but to that of the Christian congregations assembled in this our favoured land: declaring that none of them who make frivolous excuses to justify their neglect of the gospel of the grace of God will taste of the supper God has prepared in the future world, for the bidden but unwilling guests; for those only will be welcome there who accept the invitation and personally partake of God's heavenly gifts, purchased by the precious blood of Christ. Though this application of the parable may seem to be appropriate to some, surely there are many other texts calculated to bring home the great truth our clergy strive to preach, without wresting one, which, on the face of it, has no application to the Christian formalist or unbelieving professor! Instead of reading a simple parable literally, and applying its teaching to the subject and to the race to whom the Lord's words clearly pointed, why do our ministers take a Judah text and apply it to Christian, British Israel? The passage in question, recorded in Luke xiv. 15, commences with the ejaculation of a guest at the Pharisee's dwelling one Sabbath when the Lord sat down to eat bread at his house. Struck with our Lord's teaching this man of Judah said, "Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God" (verse 15, R.V.). Our Lord seized the occasion and taught the assemblage by a parable addressed clearly to the Jews, as a nation, and to them alone. He spoke of a certain man who made a great supper, and "bade many." Not all were bidden. This was not the universal invitation of the gospel confided to Israel, as distinguished from Judah, in Matt. xxviii. 19, 20; Mark xvi. 15; Luke xxiv. 47; John iii. 16. It was a special bidding to the Jews, from whom the Lord "sprung," to accept His redemption. "He came to His own: but they that were His own received Him not" (John i. 11, R.V.). "Come," He said to them at supper time, speaking to them by His Benjamite disciples and apostles, "Come, for all things are now ready." The Jews, however, refused Him. "Not this man" they said, "but Barabbas!" Crucify Him! "His blood be upon us and our children" (Matt. xxvii. 16—25). The Jews, in the face of the Lord Jesus Christ's claims to their obedience and faith, simply ignored Him. They all at first with one consent began to make excuses, and these were worldly excuses too! One had bought a field, and could not attend just then to Christ, as he must go and see his field. Another had purchased five yoke of oxen, and had to go and prove them. Another had married a wife, and of course he could not be expected to listen to the claims of Christ and His gospel at such a moment! No wonder the Lord was angry with Judah for such an ungrateful repulse! He at once turned from the Jews, who proved themselves unworthy of His blessings, and stretched out His hands of love and mercy to the other, the lost House of Israel—the "poor," the "maimed," the "halt," and "blind" ones; names applied to them exclusively in Isa. lxi. 1, R.V. (marg.); Jer. l. 17; Micah iv. 7; and Isa. xli. 19; xlii. 8 (in the order stated). In Isa. lxv. 1 R.V., we have the Lord's testimony that Israel sought and found Him, being "a nation not called by His name; but a Gentilised "Lo-Ammi" people, who were yet "His servants" (ver. 8, 13—15); and therefore Israel. For the Tribes of God's "Inheritance" were His servants (see Isa. lxiii. 17). By the instrumentality of Ten-Tribed Benjamin, the Lord's servant, the lost House of Israel was reached—converted—brought to Christ, and made His servants, and His people, "the sons of the living God" (Hosea i. 10). But even so the supper table was not full. Yet there was room! What was the result? The Lord declared His resolve to invite also the Gentile non-Israelites to partake of the gospel supper instead of Judah, who refused the honour. "Go out into the highways and the hedges and compel them to come in, that My house may be filled." And the passage closes with the awful denunciation of the sin of the Jews. "For I say unto you, that none of those men which were bidden shall taste of My supper." Not a crumb, not a morsel of the supper shall be theirs. No gospel comforts shall be theirs. No evangelical blessings shall they nationally inherit! And yet our clerics will still declare that the Jews are the heirs of all the Scriptural promises to "Israel," and that they have reserved for them the high honour and privilege of being God's evangelists to the entire outside world in the millennium; whereas, God's testimony is that they shall not even "taste of My supper!" But there is mercy yet, thank God, if no privilege, for Judah! "Behold," said the Lord Jesus, "your house is left unto you desolate. For I say unto you, Ye shall not see Me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord" (Matt. xxiii. 38, 39, R.V.); and then, but not till then, will the desolation pass away. Therefore, let Judah also praise the Lord with Israel!

SALVATION IN ZION FOR ISRAEL, GOD'S GLORY.

WE have recently heard from the pulpit a beautiful exposition of Isa. xlvi. 12 and 13, in which a full explanation of each clause of these verses was given by the preacher, saving as to the last eleven words, and of these no mention was made at all! It was explained that these, being the very words of God, were inspired verbally and plenarily, and that those who are here addressed by God Himself, are the unconverted, those outside Christ, who had and have no faith in His mediatorial and expiatory work, and are "stout-hearted" therefore as against the Lord. To them, He says, that their righteousness is as filthy rags, and are of no account with Him, with whom they have to do. To escape the condemnation of the law they require God's own righteousness, which is His, not theirs, and it is a righteousness which He brings near to them, and which they cannot work out and bring near to Him. That righteousness is closely connected with salvation. The one leads to the other. Where the glorious robe of Jesus' righteousness is, there is salvation for the sinner who puts it on. And it tarries not. The one follows instantly on the other. "The righteousness of the servants of the Lord is from Me," is the testimony of Isa. liv. 17. This "righteousness" is God's, as St. Paul declares in Rom. iii. 21, and it comes "by faith of Jesus Christ" (ver. 22); its object being "the remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God" (ver. 25). The preacher stated all this and a good deal more, showing the application of the passage to the individual believer; but he treated the last eleven words of ver. 13 of Isa. xlvi., his text, as if God had not written them! He simply ignored and passed them over in silence! They are however on record, declaring "And I will place salvation in Zion for Israel, My glory." This is the reading of the Authorised Version. The Revised is the same, but in the margin reads somewhat differently, thus:—"I will give salvation in Zion, and My glory unto Israel." Under either view it is certain that Israel is God's glory; or, if we prefer it, God permits His glory to rest upon Israel, which of course consecrates Israel to God for ever, and identifies that people with His glory, which is Christ the King. There are many texts to show that Israel is eventually to appear to the world as God's glory. In Isa. lx. 1, the glory of the Lord is declared to be risen on Israel; and in ver. 2, the Lord Jehovah is declared to be risen on her, and His glory seen upon His people. In Luke i. 32, the spirit of the Lord, speaking by the aged Simeon, said of the infant Jesus, that He was Israel's salvation, which God had prepared before the face of all people, "A light for revelation to the Gentiles" (or unveiling of the Gentiles, marg.); "and the glory of Thy people Israel." Christ, then, is God's glory upon Israel. He is their salvation in Zion, and His is the divine righteousness, the robe of righteousness of Isa. lxi. 10 (R.V.); which is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, their "glorious dress" in the presence of the Lord, and constitutes their glory.

Digitized by Google

We regard, then, the whole passage with which the preacher dealt in discoursing on Isa. xlvi. 12, 13, as a message to the stout-hearted Babylonian nation condemned to destruction in chap. xlvii., and their condition was contrasted in those verses with Israel's. They were far from the righteousness of Jesus. God's acceptable righteousness He reserved and gave to Israel. He brought it near to them, according to the prophecies in Gen. xii. 2, 3; xviii. 18; xxii. 18; xxvi. 4, &c., and bestowing it on them thus made the nation of His choice, even Israel, one with Jesus, and thus constituted them one with Him, and so God's glory. So our Lord, in His beautiful prayer in John xvii. 22 (R.V.), spake of His Hebrew disciples and of all those who would become one with Him by faith: "The glory which Thou hast given Me I have given unto them, that they may be one, even as we are one." The salvation, and righteousness, and glory, then, are all Israel's, and all national. This is the plain meaning of the passage, and no wonder the preacher, when he individualised the whole, was unable to comment on the last sentence of ver. 13 of Isa. xlvi., since his whole teaching, had he done so, would thus have been discredited. Not, however, that that was a needful consequence. Herein is the beauty of the Scriptures as they apply to the Lord's people Israel. The promises are theirs nationally and primarily. The fact should always be acknowledged and insisted on. But they belong in a secondary sense (as our preacher might have declared) to the believers everywhere; for these, along with the home-born Israel, according to the flesh, are the "adopted" sons; the "spiritual House" to which the House of Ephraim is sent to make known the glad tidings of the gracious, glorious, salvation (Isa. xxvii. 6; lxvi. 19; Gen. xxii. 18, &c.).

THE WORK OF THE POST OFFICE.—Last year the Post Office circulated 1,459,900,000 letters, 180,000,000 post-cards, 368,900,000 book packets, and 151,200,000 newspapers. This is equal to an average of sixty letters and packages per head of the population.

IT is proposed to celebrate next year the bicentenary of the Revolution of 1688, and also the tercentenary of the defeat of the Spanish Armada.

MR. RUSKIN ON CHRISTIAN TRAVELLERS ON THE CONTINENT.

THE Christian of July 22, 1887, published the following as Mr. Ruskin's advice to Christian travellers on the Continent. We republish it that we may have the opportunity of commenting on words which are meant for severe rebuke, but are at the same time hardly just towards God's people, British-Israel:—

A correspondent sends to us the following extract from "The Stones of Venice," by Mr. John Ruskin, remarking that the advice it contains deserves the attention of English Christians at this time as much as when it was first written:—

There has now been peace between England and the Continental Powers about 35 years (1851), and during that period the English have visited the Continent at the rate of many thousands a year, staying there, I suppose, on the average, each two or three months; nor these an inferior kind of English, but the kind which ought to be the best—the noblest born, the best taught, the richest in time and money, having more leisure, knowledge, and power than any other portion of the nation. These, we might suppose, beholding, as they travelled, the condition of the states in which the Papal religion is professed, and being, at the same time, the most enlightened section of a great Protestant nation, would have been animated with some desire to dissipate the Romanist errors, and to communicate to others the better knowledge which they possessed themselves. I doubt not but that He who gave peace upon the earth, and gave it by the hand of England, expected this much of her, and has watched everyone of the millions of her travellers as they crossed the sea, and kept count for him of his travelling expenses, and of their distribution, in a manner of which neither the traveller or his courier was at all informed. I doubt not, I say, but that such accounts have been literally kept for all of us, and that a day will come when they will be made clearly legible to us, and when we shall see added together, on one side of the account book, a great sum, the certain portion, whatever it may be, of this 35 years' spendings of the rich English, accounted for in this manner:—

To wooden spoons, nut-crackers, and jewellery, bought at Geneva and elsewhere among the Alps, so much.
To coral horns and lava brooches bought at Naples, so much.
To glass beads at Venice, and gold filigree at Genoa, so much.
To pictures and statues and ornaments everywhere, so much.
To avant-couriers and extra post-horses, for show and magnificence, so much.
To great entertainments, and good places for seeing sights, so much.
To ball-dresses and general vanities, so much.

This, I say, will be the sum on one side of the book; and on the other will be written:—

To the struggling Protestant Churches of France, Switzerland and Piedmont, so much.

Had we not better do this piece of statistics for ourselves in time?

We suppose by Mr. Ruskin's tone of rebuke that he believes the English Christians, who visit the Continent and spend their money on the trifles he enumerates, care nothing for the spiritual condition of our Continental neighbours. We are not in a position to deny or assent to this, nor (we are sure) is Mr. Ruskin either! He cannot tell what portion of the vast sums collected in England and Scotland, and sent annually to aid the Waldensian Church Missions in Italy, for instance, comes from the pockets of these rich travellers, or how much they defray of the large subscriptions which are sent to Paris from the United Kingdom to help the evangelistic work that is being carried on there and throughout France by earnest British Christians. To our own certain knowledge, as Secretary of an Auxiliary Association in aid of the Waldensian Church Missions in Italy, several thousands a year sterling are sent to aid that good cause, and we know, too, that Mr. McCall's and other missions in France are similarly aided from this country. Israel is blossoming, and budding, and filling the face of the world with fruit to God's glory, and France, and Italy, and Switzerland are no exceptions to this Scriptural and blessed rule. Mr. Ruskin is probably unaware of the facts, or he would not have fired a poisoned arrow at his own countrymen, which has no just foundation to support it. In another respect Mr. J. Ruskin is right. God did indeed give "peace upon earth" in the campaign which ended in Waterloo, "and gave it by the hand of England," meaning the British nation. That He did so was no wonder. For the British are Israel, and by Israel's instrumentality God has always carried out His operations in the government of the world. "Thou art My battle-axe," He said to Israel, "and My weapons of war. For with thee will I break in pieces the nations, and with thee will I destroy kingdoms" (Jer. li. 20). When the great Napoleon had to be removed from the scene of his desolations the Lord used Israel's hand to effect His purpose, and raised up two British captains, Wellington and Nelson, to do His mighty work. Accordingly, the one on land and the other on the sea, struck down the power of the scourge of Europe, and so fulfilled the prophecy to which Mr. Ruskin evidently alluded.

Digitized by Google

But God did not give peace upon the earth by the hands of a Gentile, non-Israelite people, for that would be to run counter to the purposes of Him, who has created Israel alone to be a blessing to all nations. The British being Israel, it was Israel who brought peace upon the earth in 1815, and gave it, by God's grace, in consequence of the splendid victory at Waterloo. Having been used by God for that blessed purpose, is it likely God would allow His people to neglect the good of the Continent and its inhabitants since? What efforts have not been made by our race to benefit France, and Italy, and Switzerland, and all the Continental nations by sending them God's Word, His laws, His Gospel, His Sabbaths, and the living missionary to carry all this good news to the "nations lying in the wicked one!" We have done this, but imperfectly indeed; yet we have no merit in the fact. The account of debit and credit which Ruskin imagines will be the record by which we shall be saved or perish hereafter, will depend on other considerations. Our nation, quâ nation, is vile in God's sight, and none of its doings have any merit with Him. But Jesus has intervened. He has redeemed Israel. His blood has been shed for her, and is sprinkled over her. His robe of righteousness, which is God's, and therefore is spotless and glorious as Himself, surrounds us, and He, even He, cannot detect a spot of evil or a taint of sin upon the nation, or the believing members of it. Hence we read such words as these in Num. xxiii. 21: "He hath not beheld iniquity in Jacob, neither hath He seen perverseness in Israel. The Lord His God is with Him, and the shout of a king is among them." And in Isa. liv. 17: "This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and their righteousness is of Me, saith the Lord (Jehovah)."

Of course, if we put this glorious righteousness aside, and count Israel's good deeds in the blazing light of the sanctuary, the result will be poor and miserable indeed. Israel as a nation would be lost but for God's righteousness, and we bless and praise Him for the precious gift thereof to our worthless nation. We have it because the Lord loved Israel in spite of all her wretched shortcomings, as Deut. vii. 7, 8, and many another text teaches us; and, therefore, let us praise His glorious, gracious name, and thank Him that we are not to be tried by the standard Ruskin sets up for our condemnation, but by that other better one St. Paul described in Rom. viii. 33: "It is God that justifieth," for Jesu's sake.

ANANIAS.

ALL through the Scriptures we find characters introduced to our notice now and again in a sudden and abrupt manner; characters distinguished for faith or some other godly characteristic, who appear on the scene, and as suddenly disappear from it never to be heard of again. Such an one was Obadiah, who had saved the prophets of the Lord, hiding them by fifties in a cave (1 Kings xviii. 13). Such was Obed-Edom, whose whole household was blessed of the Lord, because of the ark that was left in his house (2 Sam. vi. 11); and such was Ananias, the Lord's messenger to Saul, the contrite persecutor, who prayed (Acts ix. 10, 11). Surely no man was ever more honoured by personal communication from the Lord Jesus, after His ascension, than was Ananias, the disciple of the risen Saviour, at Damascus. The Lord appeared to him in a vision just as the humbled Saul had reached the city, where the latter purposed to do his utmost to destroy those who believed in Jesus. He was selected for a service which the Lord by a word might, without man's interposition, have carried into effect. But He appeared to and commissioned His human, Hebrew servant to go in His stead, in order to teach him that even such a blood-thirsty enemy as the threatening Saul of Tarsus, the Christian's persecutor, must be met at Jesus' bidding, as a brother, and helped and blessed. "Go" (He said) "to the street which is called Straight, and inquire at the house of Judas for one named Saul of Tarsus, for behold he prayeth." But Ananias had conscientious and reasonable scruples and objections to the man he was commanded to go and bless, and he was right, reverently to state his objections, even to the Lord his God. "I have heard from many of this man," he urged, "how much evil he did to Thy saints at Jerusalem; and here he hath authority from the chief priests to bind all that call upon Thy name."

The Lord might have bidden Ananias to obey, and have refused to parley with His apparently reluctant messenger. But He did not so treat him. He explained to His servant why He had chosen the persecuting Saul, what the object of the selection was, and what his commission. He said, "Go thy way; for he is a chosen vessel" (a vessel of election) "unto Me, to bear My name before the Gentiles and kings, and the children of Israel; for I will show him how great things he must suffer for My Name's sake." Not before Gentiles only; but "before Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel." He was the apostle to the Gentiles; but that did not exhaust Paul's commission from the Lord of glory! He had to deliver the message before "the children of Israel" too. These last were not the Jews only. St. Paul never neglected them. With him it was always "the Jew first" (Rom. i. 16; ii. 9, 10). But his commission was to "the children of Israel," who included the Ten Tribes. Work for the Lord, with great sufferings for Christ, was to be his portion. All this the Lord, in compassion for his ignorance, told His doubting servant, and Ananias obeyed to the letter. He went. He approached the powerful persecutor without a particle of doubt or terror. He went up to him and accosted him at once as "brother"! "Brother Saul!" and with words of blessing and of welcome he told him of the gift of sight the Master was going to confer upon him again. But, best of all, he told him he was to "be filled with the Holy Ghost." He was to receive the Spirit of God, and to be filled with His divine presence!

Surely never was man so honoured before as was Ananias with so divinely gracious a message; and great was the commission it was given him to carry out. But for the conversion of Paul, where would Christian doctrine and Christian teaching have been now in Europe? St. Paul's writings are the fount and store from which Christ's Gospel is taught, and has been chiefly taught to millions since. Paul was to bear "Christ's Name" throughout the then known world. His writings since have borne "Christ's Name" before countless multitudes everywhere for 1,800 years!

In these two servants of the Lord we see obvious types or portraits of British-Israel, God's messengers to the heathen. Like Ananias we have a word of comfort and of warning too, to deliver to the heathen, cruel and violent as they often are, like Mwanga of Uganda, the cruel murderer of Bishop Hannington. We have to go to them and to such as they, to bear Jesus' name before them, to open the blind eyes, to soften the stony hearts. We have to tell them all that the Lord

Digitized by Google

Jesus commanded us to declare:—"Making disciples of all nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever He commanded us; relying ever on His promise, Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the dispensation or age" (Matt. xxviii. 19, 20, R.V.). St. Paul's position was even more closely allied to ours as God's messengers to "All the nations, families, and kindreds of the earth"—the Jew being always our first charge. We have to bear "the Name," like Paul, "before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel." And we have to suffer for His Name's sake too. We have beside to go at the Lord's bidding to those who hate us and revile us, and desire to persecute and kill us (like Mwanga), for the Lord's command is, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature" (or the whole creation—Mark xvi. 15, A. and R.V.). This commission we received when our national blindness was partially removed at the Reformation, and we began to see our duty towards the Jews and heathen, still enemies to Christ. As Israel it was, and is, ours to go with the Gospel to all nations, all families, and all kindreds of the earth, a field which embraces and covers the extent of St. Paul's commission too. For Christ's Name's sake, our Master, our missionaries have to suffer, and in some instances, like Bishop Hannington, "greatly to suffer." But our help and support are the same as his; for the presence of the Lord is promised us, as to Paul, "Lo, I am with you, even to the end of the dispensation." But we have also a priceless blessing coming in, just precisely of the kind and character promised to the still blind Paul. He was "to be filled with the Holy Ghost" (Acts ix. 17). But what is our promise to fit us for our glorious, gracious work? "And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy; . . . and also upon the servants and upon the handmaids, in those days will I pour out My Spirit" (Joel ii. 28, 29). The same is reiterated as the promise of Israel in Ezek. xxxvii. 14 as one of the accompaniments of their restoration: "And I will put My Spirit in you and ye shall live." The new covenant blessing which is to be theirs involves also this blessing; for it will "put God's law in our inward parts, and in our hearts write it," in such wise that we shall "all know Him from the least of us to the greatest of us, for our iniquity and our sin will the Lord remember no more" (Jer. xxxi. 33, 34). A people so blessed must needs have the indwelling of God's Spirit in their hearts, and that was distinctly God's promise to His people Israel only, in Exod. xxix. 45, 46, and Haggai ii. 5.

Like Paul, after his conversion, we are still "blind"; but we have one who cares for us as a nation, even Jesus Christ, the righteous; and in His righteousness we are clothed as with a garment (Isa. xlii. 16, liv. 17, lxi. 6—10; 2 Cor. v. 21), for we are His (Isa. lxv. 1, li. 4; Matt. xxi. 43). Therefore, like Paul restored, let us praise the Lord and preach His holy Name (Acts ix. 20, 22; 1 Tim. i. 11—17).

"A NATION BEFORE JEHOVAH FOR EVER."

THE Rev. J. C. S. Kroenig, A.K.C., the Vicar of St. Barnabas, Hull, preached in Clifton Parish Church, for "The Society for the Promotion of Christianity Amongst the Jews," on Sunday, May 29th, 1887. His text was Malachi iii. 6, "I am Jehovah, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed." The gist of his sermon was that "the sons of Jacob of the text were the Jews. 'Israel' of Scripture were the Jews. 'The Nation before God for ever,' of Jer. xxxi. 36, were the Jews." Because, though they were, in fact, as he admitted, a scattered, persecuted, miserable people just now, they were "for ever" "before God," and regarded for ever by Him as "a nation." He allowed that Hosea iii. was true of them now. They had no king, or prince, or sacrifice, or image, no Teraphim (that is, were free from idolatry) since the Babylonian captivity. Yet in God's sight they were "a nation" still, as surely as sun, moon, stars, and waves exist. That is, though these creations of God's hands have not ceased materially and actually to be present before God at this moment, and the Jews have actually ceased to be at this moment a nation before us at all, yet in some unreal sense the Jews "are a nation before God for ever," at this very instant! The Rev. Vicar of Hull gave us this explanation of Jer. xxxi. 36, as satisfactory to himself, because he chose to ignore the existence of the other House of Ephraim, and strove hard to tell the congregation he addressed that the only existing remnant of "Israel" left to-day was the Jews, and that they were the "all Israel" of Rom. xi. 26, who "were to be saved" in accordance with Isa. lix. 20, which St. Paul there quoted.

Yet this is the divine who, in November, 1878, nine years ago, preached and published a sermon on "England's Divine Mission in the East, or England's Identity with Israel Proved," which we reproduced in the BANNER, vol. iii., pp. 62, 74, &c., and vol. iv., p. 38.

In listening to the rev. preacher's sermon in Clifton, we could not but call to mind our words on p. 39, vol. iv. of the BANNER, when we wrote thus:—"We never knew which to admire most when we think of the Rev. J. C. S. Kroenig, of Hull, his wonderfully true 'blind' witnessing to 'Our Identity' with Israel, or his strange perversity in denying, in the teeth of his own strong and irresistible reasoning, that we are in truth the Lost Ten Tribes!"

In regard to the truly perverse rendering of Jer. xxxi. 36, that the Jews are now a nation before God in some mystical sense not apparent to human reason, we should like to submit to the preacher, and to our readers also, that there are two passages in God's Word in which He declared that Israel of the Ten Tribes were "cast out of His sight" for iniquity. The passages occur in 2 Kings xvii. 17, 18, 20, 23. The Ten Tribes sold themselves to do evil in the sight of the Lord while they were a nation before Him, and He, to punish them, "removed them out of His sight," that is, reduced them from their status as a nation, and made them "wandering Goyim," or Gentiles (Hosea ix. 17). That they were cast out of God's sight in that very manner is declared in 2 Kings xvii. 20 and 23, and ipso facto they ceased to be a nation before Him. That this took place actually, as regards Ephraim-Israel, and as a real fact, is what the Rev. Mr. Kroenig seems to admit, for he forgets Ephraim altogether, and ignores that House, although Ezek. xxxvii. 15 to 28, stares him in the face, and tells him that such rejection of Ephraim-Israel was not to be "for ever." But while they were "cast out," the prophecy of Jer. xxxi. 36, demanded that Judah-Israel should remain "a nation before God," and that was accordingly the case. But ere long (in A.D. 70) Judah's turn came to be "cast out" and be dispersed, a wandering Hebrew people among the Gentiles, as Ephraim had been till then as a Gentile Lo-Ammi race among the non-Israelite nations. How was Jer. xxxi. 36 to be fulfilled? "In a non-natural sense," is Mr. Kroenig's reply. Why now, we ask, in a "non-natural," while from B.C. 720 to A.D. 70 the sense demanded was a natural sense?

We leave Mr. Kroenig to answer that reasonable question, and reply that when Judah-Israel fell, Ephraim-Israel rose into the condition of "a nation," here in these "Isles of the West," and have ever since been proving what God declared in Zech. x. 6, and Ezek. xi. 16, He would do for them. For then He became "a Sanctuary" to Ephraim (His firstborn) "for a little while," "in the countries where they were to come," and He was to them as though He had not cast them off." Why does Mr. Kroenig ignore these two important texts? They belong to the Old Testament, and as a Jew he must know them well. Yet he passes them by, and regards "the House of Ephraim" or "Israel" as if they were swallowed up in God's wrath, but not preserved by His oath, and kept alive as His firstborn (Jer. xxxi. 9), to be blessed as the British (or modern Israel) are with all the promised blessings of Israel herself. Mr. Kroenig himself fully admitted in his famous sermon before alluded to, preached in Nov. 1878, and republished in the BANNER in vol. iii., pp. 62, 74, &c., that our race was a sort of "modern Israel," parenthetically endowed with all the real Israel's promised gifts, tied up to the sons of Abraham by God Himself in the Holy Book. But he never showed how it was that God gave to us Gentiles for these 1,800 years what He solemnly sware "to Abraham and his seed for ever" should be their exclusive and sole possession always. This is the weak point of the Rev. Mr. Kroenig's discourses and views. But we freely and fully admit that he was quite corroborated by the Rev. Vicar of Clifton on the evening of May 29th, when, preaching on the Vision of the Valley of Dry Bones, of Ezek. xxxvii. 1—11, he admitted the fact of the existence of Ephraim as represented by one of the sticks of verse 16—19, but insisted on it that the "Jewish people" were the "dry bones," and that in a converted state they would finally go back to "their" land, and there fulfil the prophecy which describes the children of Israel as "one nation and one kingdom on the mountains of Israel, under one King for evermore."

Digitized by Google

Of course our readers will see that if the Vicars of St. Barnabas, Hull, and of Clifton are scripturally correct, and teach the truth in this matter, then we have for eleven years past pursued an ignis fatuus. Also, that there being no House of Israel disinct from the Jewish people, we are woefully in the wrong. But after hearing these two able discourses we still (strange to say) believe we are in the right!

EXTRACT FROM THE PREFACE OF "BUDDHISM IN CHRISTENDOM, OR, JESUS THE ESSENE."

By ARTHUR LILLIE.

THE Old and New Testaments are studied very carefully in England, and the Indian religions are scarcely studied at all.

If only for the sake of historical illustration, a civilisation which is still so like the civilisation of Palestine in the holy epoch deserves to be studied.

The position of her gracious Majesty Queen Victoria is a very peculiar one. In the sixteenth century, one Trithemius, a Benedictine, uttered a strange prophecy. He announced that in November, 1879, a new universal kingdom would arise which would seize the Gates of the East. Whatever may be thought of this prediction, it is plain that the Gates of the East are now in English hands. Owing to Free Trade also, fifty-five out of every hundred sailors are Englishmen; and the even balance of military force on the Continent, as well as in the opposing sections of the United States, has given to us a physical prominence that the victories of Marlborough and Wellington failed to gain us. But if we leave the plane of matter, the position of the Queen is more remarkable still. She holds in her dominions the most vital sections of all the great religions of the past. Her subjects pray to Christ, and Buddha, and Brahma, and Jehovah. They honour Zarathustra, and Moses, and Mahomet. Benares, the holy city of the greatest religious section of her subjects, is in her domains. She guards the so-called "Tooth of Buddha," whose possession is always promised the empire of the world. No wonder that thoughtful minds begin to see in all this a possible mission for England, namely, to fuse the old creeds in one great crucible, and eliminate the superstitious parts. Ancient creeds had much once in common, and it is chiefly this common portion, the vital essence, that has been allowed to evaporate.

"Five hundred years, Ananda," said Buddha, in the "Cullavaga," "will the doctrine of truth abide."* He also prophesied that a new Buddha would come—Maiheya (the Buddha of Brotherly Love). Buddha died 470 B.C.; so exactly 500 years after his death, the Buddha of Brotherly Love began to preach.

* Cited by Dr. Oldenburg, "Buddhism," p. 327; see also Beal, "Romantic History," p. 16.

ANGLO-ISRAEL FREE DISTRIBUTION FUND.

FORTY-SIXTH MONTHLY REPORT.

THE following donations and subscriptions, from Aug. 20th to Sept. 16th, are very gratefully acknowledged:—

By the Treasurer: P. C. G., Sheffield, towards the expenses connected with the Fund's Secretary, £5; H. G., Tooting (three months' subscription), 3s.; W. J. S., Edinboro', 10s.

By Mr. C. Horner: Mrs. H., Lower Sherringham, 2s.; Mrs. C., Tenby (monthly subscription), 2s. 6d.; G. R., Stokes-road, 2s. 6d.; Bath Association (per Mrs. T.), 2s. 6d.; Mrs. C. B., Weston-Super-Mare (monthly subscription), 5s.; G. W., Barnsley, 2s.

Total, £6 9s. 6d.

J. LAWRENCE, Hon. Treasurer.

For sundry parcels of BANNERS we are indebted to Miss M., Richmond, and to a friend at Cheltenham. These have been distributed, and notably to the Thames Church Mission, 31, New Bridge-street, London, E.C., and the Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen, 181, Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C. But we can easily supply the addresses of parties who will be glad to use them if friends in the first instance will kindly communicate with the secretary. We have also to acknowledge a parcel of leaflets from the proprietor of "Britain's Inheritance," Liverpool.

Mr. Thomas Clark Westfield, F.S.A., has kindly consented to act as auditor of the Free Distribution Fund.

The following is a list of the gentlemen who kindly act as local treasurers and agents of the Fund:—Mr. C. K. Stevens, Cornwall; Mr. John May, Malta; Mr. Thomas Craig, Auckland, New Zealand; Mr. E. C. Baxter, British Bechuanaland; Mr. F. A. R. Winter, George Town, British Guiana; Mr. C. P. Bird, B.C.S., Ambala, India; Mr. C. F. Garland, Nelson's Plains, New South Wales; and Mr. E. L. Dwyer, Tasmania.

One hundred and fifty-one BANNERS are disposed of weekly, and over ten dozen are despatched weekly by Miss Sibbald to the following places and Public Libraries: St. John's, South Africa; Cleveland, U.S.A.; Birkenhead; Abergavenny; Mechanics' Institute, Crewe; Richmond, Maesteg; to the Free Public Libraries at Manchester (two copies), Wandsworth, and Wimbledon. Also to Rome, Malta, Barbadoes, Port Nolloth (S. Africa), Toronto, New South Wales, Peshawur, Secunderabad, Trimulgherry, Poona, Bangalore, Ambala, Hong Kong, Rangoon, Shetland, Jersey, Ponsanooth, Devonport, Silvertown, Catford, Commercial-road, Southwold, Walton-on-Naze, Cockburnspath, Carlisle, Aldershot, Dover, Minehead, Dublin, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Westminster, Sheffield, Hamilton, Hound, Cowbridge, Farnworth, and Upper Teddington.

Twenty-five parcels (one to two) of assorted literature were despatched during the past month to the following places:—Alvaston, Brighton, Cowbridge, Upper Teddington, Eastwick, Great Yarmouth, Norwich, Dundee, Sheffield, Hull, Wilsden, North Shields, Tywyn, Devonport, Carlisle, Weston-Super-Mare, Richmond, Barnsley, Westminster, Sterling, Commercial-road, Quernerford, and Malta.

Communications from various localities where our sowers are busy contain interesting accounts of active progress. At Sheffield, the lecture season opens next month with one by Mr. Chapman. Our sower at Stockport writes: "I acknowledge, with many thanks, the parcel of pamphlets, etc., you have kindly sent me, and I have, and am, distributing them in the neighbourhood where I think they are likely to be read and studied. Never losing an opportunity to introduce the subject, I am continually meeting with people who are much interested in it, and when I explain the distinction of the two Houses, and what was to be the position and destiny of each, I find them wishful for further information on the subject."

The following is from one of our Dundee sowers, who supplies some valuable hints as to the methods of distribution adopted by him: "Received your packet of Anglo-Israel literature, with many thanks. They were most welcome, as my supply was almost exhausted. My plan is first to have some conversation on the subject, and afterwards give the pamphlets or leaflets which I judge best suited for each case. I have many opportunities at cottage meetings, and on Sabbath evenings in the Mission-hall of our church, of introducing the subject by directing the hearers to the study of the historical and prophetical Scriptures about Israel and Judah, and enforce the necessity of the literal fulfilment of them as the words of the living and true God. These meetings, being in connection with our church, and under the supervision of the Kirk Session, and for purely evangelistic work, I on that account simply read and give an exposition of the Word on Anglo-Israel lines, with the evangelistic address afterwards. . . . These meetings are largely attended, so that a good opportunity is afforded for spreading the news. But I have to exercise caution not to arouse opposition, or I might be debarred from the work altogether. There are a few that have received the Identity with gladness, and tell me what a flood of light it sheds upon the Old Testament Scriptures." He presented the subject to a minister, "in the light of the nation that was to bring the present unto the Lord of Hosts (Isa. xviii.). He admitted that it would likely be either Britain or America, or both together. Having allowed so much, I showed how Zephaniah declared it to be the 'daughter' of the Lord's 'dispersed' that would do so. and that Jeremiah and Hosea told us that the House of Judah should go to the House of Israel, and they, unitedly, were to return from the land of the North to the land of their inheritance. The answer I got was that I had the advantage of him, as he had never studied the matter!"

Digitized by Google

A lady subscriber writes: "Thank you for the packet of such interesting Anglo-Israel literature. I was just wanting something fresh on the subject to send to my nephew in India, who is trying to be a sower there. It is delightful to see how this truth is spreading, notwithstanding the opposition of many, and the coldness and indifference of others. I fear it is some time since I sent any contribution for the Free Distribution Fund, which is increasing in work greatly now. I enclose now £2, and will you let me know, from time to time, if any extra help is needed?"

CHARLES HORNER, Secretary.

Contributions to the Fund will be thankfully received and acknowledged by the Hon. Treasurer, Miss J. Lawrence, Rosslyn, Hampton-road, Upper Teddington, Middlesex; or by Mr. Chas. Horner, 34, Sheen-park, Richmond-on-Thames. Cheques may be crossed, "London and Provincial Bank, Teddington Branch." Grants of literature will be made, as far as funds allow, on application to the Secretary.

ISRAEL'S SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER UNION.

SINCE our last report, one card of membership has been sent out. As we are still using cards returned by a local secretary, the number issued remains as before, 1,423.

New members are requested, when writing for cards, to kindly state whether their names are to be entered as Mr., Mrs., or Miss, &c.

For the convenience of those members who wish to continue the daily reading, the following list of chapters for October is printed:—

1st ...	Isaiah	xxxvii.	12th ...	Isaiah	xlviii.	23rd ...	Isaiah	lix.
2nd...	,,	xxxviii.	13th ...	,,	xlix.	24th ...	,,	lx.
3rd ...	,,	xxxix.	14th ...	,,	l.	25th ...	,,	lxi.
4th ...	,,	xl.	15th ...	,,	li.	26th ...	,,	lxii.
5th ...	,,	xli.	16th ...	,,	lii.	27th ...	,,	lxiii.
6th ...	,,	xlii.	17th ...	,,	liii.	28th ...	,,	lxiv.
7th ...	,,	xliii.	18th ...	,,	liv.	29th ...	,,	lxv.
8th ...	,,	xliv.	19th ...	,,	lv.	30th ...	,,	lxvi.
9th ...	,,	xlv.	20th ...	,,	lvi.	31st ...	Jer.	i.
10th ...	,,	xlvi.	21st ...	,,	lvii.
11th ...	,,	xlvii.	22nd ...	,,	lviii.

The card of membership will be sent on receipt of three stamps.

The first and second series of Monthly Comments on the whole Bible, by Philo-Israel, may be obtained in volume form. Price in paper cover, 1s. 2d. each, post free; in cloth, 2s. each, post free. The "Prayers for Daily Use," being a prayer for each day of the week, by Philo-Israel, are 1d., or 9d. per dozen, postage extra. The prayer of the Union, as on the Card of Membership, may be obtained printed in larger type, price 1d. for three copies, post free, or 1s. per 100 for distribution. Address, Miss E. Sibbald, 3, Townshend-villas, Richmond, Surrey.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—Several months ago I received a packet—"Fifty Reasons," and other pamphlets—by post, sent, no doubt, by the late secretary of the Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund, as they bore that name. For these I return my thanks, though very late in doing so. I am sorry to see that Miss E. M. Rush is obliged to resign. I may say that I have placed them, with "Forty-seven Identifications" and others, in a small private library here which has lately been got up. The BANNERS which have been forwarded to me from Port Elizabeth I have lent about, and several persons have felt somewhat interested, but it is very hard to make any lasting impression; so many people feel so very indifferent on the subject.

During the last four or five years I have lent several ministers books on the subject, but they fail to grasp the key (i.e., the difference between Israel and Judah); consequently do not find it interesting. One told me that some very dear friends of his in America had mentioned it to him years ago, and that if he thought it was true, he would devote a great part of his time to it. Another, after some conversation, said that I "painted a very pretty picture, magnificent scenery, &c., &c., but it was too good to be true, and he could take some other nation or race, and caricature the same Identities that I had just mentioned upon them." Another told me the subject was "not good enough." Another told a friend that he had no time for it. I could mention many more similar answers I have received from the clergy of different denominations whom I have conversed with with the same effect. It certainly does seem strange that they will not study the subject, and consequently they withhold a truth from many millions of people. I say "a truth" because I believe it to be truth, and if not the truth, then it is their duty to prove it is not so, and thus put us right. Yet, strange to say, they will continually, Sunday after Sunday, tell us that we have all the blessings promised to Israel, and even call us Israel. We know, and one is often told, that the Son of God came down in a three-fold capacity—viz., Prophet, Priest, and King. As a Prophet He foretold many things. As Priest He is the only Mediator between God and man. As a King He rules the hearts of all true Christians, but I think we may consider Him in another three-fold capacity—viz., as the God-man, the Redeemer, the Saviour. As the God-man He shews us how near we are to Him, by acknowledging our mortality in His own flesh; this is applicable to the whole human race. As the Redeemer of Israel we are still nearer, because He was an Israelite, though of the Tribe of Judah. Now, the subject seems to me very simple. To "redeem" is to "bring back," therefore the Redeemer of Israel is to bring back Israel. We know that the House of Israel was taken captive, also 140 years later the House of Judah was taken captive; and we read in Nehemiah that the latter House returned after seventy years; but we never read in Scripture of the former House returning. God had foretold that He would cast them out of His favour for their sins, as a wife "divorced"; and it is also said, "they shall be as though I had not cast them off." Now, it is evident that Christ came to bring this "House" back into favour (i.e., to redeem them), and at the same time to be the Saviour of the whole world. It is impossible to reconcile the idea that the Jews constituted the Twelve Tribes, Israel and Judah, because they would not receive Him, and He declared He could not do His works because of them; besides. they do not accept Christ now! This would make Christ's work a failure, which we know is impossible. In redeeming the House of Israel into favour they must be followers of Christ, therefore Christians, therefore redeemed from the law of Moses, the Mosaic law, which was their "schoolmaster." But we still find the Jew under the same economy, and not a Christian, neither are they a nation. Have they a country or king of their own? I think God says, through Isaiah, that He would "never give His glory to another (people)," also that "He will never forsake His people Israel." When Christ was born, the aged Simeon declared the Babe to be the "light" and "glory of Israel"; and this certainly could not refer to the then Jewish nation, who were so soon afterwards to be scattered. despised, and driven to all parts of the world, always known and persecuted.

We know that the people that did receive Christ were chiefly Galileans, and it is easy to see that these were Benjamites (Obad. 19), and were the one Tribe (principally) left for "a light" (1 Kings xi. 13, 31, 36) for "David" and "Jerusalem's" sake, other wise the whole chosen race would have been cast off if the Jews had constituted the whole Twelve Tribes; and Josephus affirms that there were only Two Tribes subject to the Romans, and that the Ten Tribes were elsewhere.

Digitized by Google

Christ told His followers to go to the "lost sheep of the House of Israel," therefore the "light" Tribe were to carry the light to the scattered Ten Tribes, that they might take "fire" and burn as a "light" to the other races of the globe—i.e., Gentiles (Isa. xlix. 6)—that is, teach them to be Christians as only England and America are now doing, and many blessings would flow upon them. This we are acknowledging every day of our lives. Then, again, Judah was to be "few" in number, but Israel was to be "numerous"; and I think that the meeting of the representatives of the "company of nations" lately held in London ought to open the eyes of many this Jubilee year. In BANNER 544, page 226, you have a verse from Micah ii., of which I cannot accept your explanation. I have thought that it read thus: "Therefore will He give them (the Israelites) up until the time that she (Virgin Mary) which travaileth hath brought forth, then the remnant (Galileans or Benjamites; Joel ii. 12, Rom. ii. 5) of his brethren shall return unto the children of Israel." There is no doubt that the news of Christ's birth was carried abroad to the scattered tribes, as we find many of them had come from all parts, and were called Jews, which must have been simply from their blood relationship: and our Saviour told His disciples that "everyone should be scattered to his own," by which I understand that persecution would drive them out of Jerusalem to their own nation of Ten-Tribed Israel, immediately to be brought into favour as they accepted Christ, being redeemed by His death and resurrection, while Judah, losing God's favour, would go into what may be called captivity or punishment. Many people lose sight of the fact that the disciples were bid not to go to the Samaritans or Gentiles, and only to "lost Israel," although Christ never refused any who came to Him in faith and sincerity. But having redeemed Israel, and risen from the dead, He then gave the command to His followers to "go to all nations," &c., &c. To sum up in a few words: Jesus Christ said, "I am the Light of the world"; and to the believing Galileans He said, "Ye are the light of the world." These carry the "light" (Gospel tidings) to Israel, and Israel is to be the "light of the nations" (Isa. xlix. 6). Therefore the present Jews cannot be the whole House of Israel as they are not followers of Christ, while the early inhabitants of the British Isles came over from the continent, from the region of Media, the very place to which the House of Israel were carried captive.

My interest in the subject must be my apology for the length of this, which is written quite offhand. I have had no Bible for references, as, being just on the move, it was packed up and sent away a couple of days ago. Here in the mountain forest there is none come-at-able.

I remain, yours truly,

Millwood Goldfields, Knysna, Cape Colony, July 17th, 1887. J. D. MORLEY.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

"That they all may be ONE . . . . that the world may believe that Thou hast sent Me."

MY DEAR SIR,—I think it is time to give evidence of the value of our faith as Israelites by combining in many centres for zealous Christian work, as well as for spreading our own particular truth, and thus silence "Cui bono?"

I believe there is not one object more important for forwarding missions, home and foreign, and for promoting holiness, than that indicated in the quotation from our Lord's great Intercession, at the head of this letter.

I do not advocate any hasty, ill-considered, movement; but rather much prayer, much study of the Word, and whole-hearted surrender to God: and "He will bring it to pass." The glory of God demands that Israel, the true stock of the "good olive tree," should be at unity in itself, that the wild grafts may with it bring forth fruit unto God abundantly. If any friends in this neighbourhood would like to start a branch of the Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association, or to meet and discuss how best to promote our objects, I will gladly act pro. tem. as the medium of inter-communication, if they will write to me here.

Believe me, dear Sir, yours faithfully,

G. A. CATFORD.

38, St. John's Hill-grove, Clapham Junction, S.W.
August 13, 1887.

MORAL KINSHIP.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—As you very justly observe, in reference to Dr. Adler's sermon, on the occasion of the Jubilee service in the great synagogue in Duke-street, Aldgate, it is not easy to comprehend what the Chief Rabbi means by "Moral Kinship."

I beg to enclose a report of the prayer drawn up by him for use in all the synagogues on the 28th of September, 1882, as a thanksgiving for our victory over Arabi Pasha in Egypt. It will be for your readers to discover whether the evident recognition by the learned Rabbi, uniting with his Jewish followers, as expressed by the words, "the goodness Thou hast dealt unto us," "our Queen," our adversaries, and the invocation to God, "shield Thy people Israel," "shelter us all beneath the tabernacle of Thy peace, for Thou art our Redeemer," afford here any grounds for speaking of the Anglo-Israelites as "a small band of enthusiasts," resting our claim "on a mere slender foundation," or give any clue to what he meant by "Moral Kinship."

It appears to me that he slightly contradicts himself.

I am, dear Sir, faithfully yours,

H. JOHN HATCH, V.P., M.A.-I.A.,
August 19th, 1887. Rector of Little Stambridge, Essex.

"THE JEWISH THANKSGIVING DAY."

DR. ADLER (Chief Rabbi) has forwarded to the president of each Hebrew congregation a form of thanksgiving for the recent victories in Egypt, which is to be used in the synagogues of "the united congregations of the British Empire" on the first day of the Festival of Tabernacles, on Thursday next. After the recital of Psalm xlvi., the following prayer is to be offered:—"Almighty God, Father of the spirits of all flesh, we approach Thee this day to offer unto Thee the humble tribute of our thanksgiving and praise for all the goodness Thou hast dealt unto us. Thou hast been our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Thou knowest the heart of our Queen and of her counsellors. Not for the sake of conquest did they send forth our forces of land and sea to the land of Egypt, but to break the stubbornness of the rebel chief who violated law and judgment and sowed disorder and ruin. Thou, in Thy great loving kindness, didst prosper our work. Thou didst endow the leaders with wisdom and the fighting men with valour, so that at their approach our adversaries were dismayed; they fled apace, and turned not back, for fear was round about them. Lord of beneficence! grant that the peace which has been established in Egypt may be lasting and perfect. May the voice of the destroyer and the shout of war be heard no more in her midst. Source of all blessings, pour forth a spirit of humble thankfulness upon all the indwellers of this land. Make us worthy to receive Thy mercies by striving for that righteousness which alone exalteth a nation. Bless our gracious Queen, who cherisheth mercy and truth, and satisfy her with length of days. Vouchsafe tranquillity and plenty to her empire, so that contentment and welfare may abide throughout its borders. Deliver it from deceit and violence and bloodguiltiness, O God of our salvation. Shield Thy people Israel. Shelter us all beneath the tabernacle of Thy peace, for Thou art our Redeemer. Amen."—Morning Post, Monday, Sept. 25th, 1882.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—The following appeared in the Fireside News, April 29th, 1887, which seems to favour the Identity cause very much, and may be worth recording in the BANNER. It ran as follows:—

"WHO ARE THE IRISH?

"The Rev. Dr. Porter, of Southport, in a most interesting paper in the Day of Days, answering the question, 'Who are the Irish?' says:—'It is interesting in this Jubilee year to remember that Celtic blood blends with other elements, even in our Queen. From 'Niall, of the nine hostages,' King of Ireland, about A.D. 400, through King Aidan, of Dalriade, and Kenneth MacAlpine, and on through the Bruce and Stewart lines, is descended our present Royal Family. Even the Queen of England is of 'Irish extraction.' Surely the separation of the Emerald Isle from her Imperial crown would be an intolerable slight upon her own ancestry and lineage, as well as a disaster to the Empire. Much more will Imperial disaster be courted and deserved if her Irish kindred and people be left destitute of the 'Word of God,' the foundation of England's greatness, 'the only certain cure for Ireland's woes!'" Yours truly, F. S. GANDY.

27, Phelan-street, Collyhurst, Manchester, July 19th, 1887.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

EASTBOURNE.—Furnished House or Apartments, central situation, 7 minutes' walk from sea and station. To let with attendance, moderate terms, highest references, established 13 years. Apply Sarah Mendelsohn, 29, Hyde Gardens.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION,
14, King William-street, Charing Cross, W.C.

THE WINTER SESSION OF MEETINGS will commence on THURSDAY AFTERNOON next, OCTOBER 6, in the Library of the Association, when the REV. HIBBERT NEWTON, D.D., Vicar of St. Michael's, Southwark, will deliver an Address at 3.30, subject, "The Twelve Tribes in England." Admission free. Strangers invited. JAMES BILLINGTON, Sec.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

THE BIBLE READINGS
Will be resumed
ON TUESDAY, OCTOBER 4th, 1887,
At 3.30, in the Library of the Association, 14, King William Street, Charing Cross, W.C. All friends are invited.

Price 6d., by post 7d.; Annual Subscription 2s. 6d., post free.

THE SEPT. QUARTERLY PART
OF ISRAEL'S HOPE & DESTINY.

CONTENTS:

Hebrew v. Jew. By John Samuels.—"An Appeal to the Great Ones of the Nation."—The Papacy Unchanged and Unchangeable. By J. T.—The Ancient of Days. Being Alexander MacPhail's Second Reply to Surgeon-General Grant's Views.—"The Great Pyramid."—Errors. By the Editor.—Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association.

London: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; F. W. PARRY (late Guest, Hayworth & Co.), 29, Paternoster-row.

NON-INTOXICATING BEER
(A Splendid Dinner Beverage)
MADE IMMEDIATELY WITH
MASON'S EXTRACT OR ESSENCE OF HERBS,
Composed of Yarrow, Dandelion, Comfrey, and Horehound. Send 9 stamps for sample bottle, enough to make five gallons. NEWBALL & MASON, Chemists, Nottingham.
AGENTS WANTED. APPLY FOR TERMS.

FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles, and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of different diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 40 pages. Sent free on receipt of two stamps to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C.

SEND US FOUR STAMPS, and we will send you, carriage paid, samples of goods, and guarantee you to earn Five Shillings a day upwards. Satisfaction guaranteed, or stamps returned. This is genuine.—LOUIS H. HART & CO., 126, Clerkenwell Road London, E.C.

RECIPE for PRESERVING FRUIT, without sugar or boiling, cost 1d. per gallon. Fermentation impossible, will keep for years, and be as when gathered. See (Smith's) "Domestic Encyclopædia, or Household Guide." Revised Edition, price 1s., post free.—Address, J. Smith, Encyclopædist, Lewes, Sussex.—Note.—Any simple recipe sent on receipt of four stamps.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, OCT. 5, 1887. [All rights reserved

Now Ready. 16mo. Price 2s., in bevelled boards, full gilt, gilt edges; or cloth boards, gilt lettered, 1s. 8d.; Post free for P.O. A copy similar to the one accepted by the Queen, 4s.

"A BEAUTIFUL GIFT BOOK."
"MY JEWELS"
(MALACHI III. 17).
"The Precious Sons of Zion."
(LAM. IV. 7).

Choice Selections from Writers of Sacred Poetry, with Appropriate Texts from Holy Scripture, arranged for every day.

By SARAH SHARP.
In Anni Jubilaei Memoriam, 1887.

Favourably noticed by Morning Post, Daily Chronicle, Banner of Israel, Literary World, etc., etc.

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet Court, Fleet Street. May be ordered from any Bookseller.

Price 6d., post free 7d.

"THE TEN TRIBES."

Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time; and What will be Their Place in the Millennium?

A PAPER read before "The Prophecy Investigation Society" on April 9. 1887,

By ALDER SMITH, M.B., F.R.C.S.

THE LANCET says,—"The paper is worthy of perusal by all who take an interest in ethnological questions as connected with the historical and prophetical portions of holy writ."

LONDON:
R. BANKS & SON, RACQUET-COURT, FLEET-ST.

LUNG TONIC
SAVE YOUR LIVES BY TAKING OWBRIDGE'S
LUNG TONIC
THE MIGHTY HEALER.
It has a power over disease hitherto unknown in Medicine.
Are you at all Weak-chested or inclined to be Consumptive, with just a touch of Cough now and then?
"Try this Wonderful Medicine." The Cough and Weakness will disappear as if by magic, and you will feel a strength and power you never had before.
HAVE YOU A COUGH?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT!
HAVE YOU A COLD?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.
Bronchitis & Asthma it relieves instantly
The Spasms of Coughing so dreadful in Whooping Cough become less with each dose of the medicine.
Prepared by W. T OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull
Sold in Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s. by all Chemists and Patent Medicine Vendors. Wholesale all London and Provincial Houses.

30,000 BEDS SOLD in SEVEN YEARS
NEWHAM'S CELEBRATED
LINCOLNSHIRE FEATHER BEDS.
THE CHEAPEST FEATHER BEDS IN THE WORLD.
Direct from Boston, Lincolnshire.
No. 1. SINGLE BED, BOLSTER, and PILLOW, 6ft. 3in. by 3ft. 6in., weighing 40lb. 30/0
No. 2. DOUBLE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6ft. 6in. by 4ft. 6in. weighing 50 lb. 37/6
No. 3. DOUBLE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6ft. 6in. by 4ft. 6in., weighing 55lb... .. 41/3
No. 4. EXTRA SIZE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6ft. 6in. by 5ft., weighing 65lb. .. 48/9
WARRANTED NEW AND SWEET.
Any sized Bed only 9d. per lb., including Feathers, in Strong Union (bordered) Tick, making, packing, wrapper, and Carriage Paid to any Station in the United Kingdom.
SUPERIOR BEDS, Splendid Feathers, Linen Tick, 1s. per lb.
Samples of Feathers and Ticks, Price Lists, &c. post-free.
For the convenience of Purchasers we have opened a Branch Establishment at 178, Strand, London.
All orders must be accompanied by Cheque or P.O.O. (which, as security to purchasers, may be post dated ten days) payable to
NEWHAM & CO., Boston, Lincolnshire,
or to THOS. SMITH, 178, STRAND, LONDON,
where Goods and Samples can be seen and obtained.
Feathers only 9d. per lb. The trade supplied. Please mention this paper. A great reduction on three or more beds.

CARBOLINE
1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.
Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved.
DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.
Makers:
GEORGE & WELCH
CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,
Who will forward Free of Postage.

BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA,
COUGHS, COLDS,
CONSUMPTION,
and all Pulmonary Affections can be immediately relieved and rapidly CURED
by simply using the
AMMONIAPHONE
FOR THE Voice, Throat, Chest, and Lungs.
21s. post free.
WILL LAST FOR YEARS.
Used and recommended by the Royal Family, and principal Physicians, Clergymen, Vocalists, and Public Speakers throughout the country. New illustrated Pamphlet with copies of Thousands of Testimonials may be had FREE OF CHARGE on application to Medical Battery Co. Ld.
52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.
Corner of Rathbone Place

5/- EACH. 10,000 CARPETS 5/- EACH.
FIVE SHILLINGS EACH.
Guaranteed Genuine Bargains.
The British Carpet Weaving Company will forward DIRECT FROM THEIR LOOMS to any address, on receipt of Postal Order for 5s., or stamps, one of their GENUINE WOVEN, REVERSIBLE TRIUMPH CARPETS, bordered and woven in colours, to suit Dining-room, Drawing-room, Bed-room, &c., and LARGE ENOUGH TO COVER ANY ORDINARY-SIZED ROOM, as an advertisement for the introduction of their goods.
These Carpets are made of a material almost equal to wool, and, being a speciality of our own, they can only be obtained DIRECT FROM OUR LOOMS, thus saving the purchasers ANY MIDDLE PROFITS.
Send for sample, and if not satisfied MONEY WILL BE RETURNED IN FULL,
A Rug sent to match Carpet for 1s. 6d. extra, or four Carpets and four Rugs sent carriage paid for 20s.
This extraordinary offer will not be repeated.
The words, UNION BANK, should be written across all Postal Orders. Address—
THE BRITISH CARPET WEAVING COMPANY,
76, St. John Street, Clerkenwell, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."
(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 563. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1887. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
The Neutralisation of the Suez Canal	413
The Lighthouse	414
Sown in the Earth.—Part II.	415
Seated at the Right Hand of God in the Heavenly Places	417
Work for the Winter Evenings. By E. M. Rush	417
Is our Race Physically Deteriorating?	418
The Saxons Asserted to be of the Race of the Jews, in 1649	418
The King of Israel and His People. By W. L. Blore	419
Correspondence	419

THE NEUTRALISATION OF THE SUEZ CANAL.

IT is said that France and England have agreed to a project for "the neutralisation of the Suez Canal," that is, for the separation of the Canal and a small portion of land on each side of its entire length, for its superintendence and government by a Commission composed of the Consuls-General at Cairo, representing thirteen nations. The object is to prevent the world fighting for the Canal, and to secure free passage to all the Powers from the Mediterranean to the Red Sea at all times, even when a European war is raging. To protect this Commission in its jurisdiction, a force of 2,000 men is proposed to be maintained in the neutralised zone, to be contributed by the nations concerned.

Such is the proposal! But it remains to be seen whether the French will agree to its conditions, and whether these can be recognised as favourable to our own national interests in the East. It seems to us that if our Government have agreed to these stipulations they have again, for the sake of peace and in order to conciliate the French, offered to place themselves and their country at the mercy of their rivals, and so repeated a mistake from which they only recently were saved when France and Russia declined to sanction the Anglo-Turkish Convention respecting Egypt and its surrender to the Turk. We object to the proposed arrangements because it is obvious that they can only remain in force while peace reigns. "Supposing the arrangement concluded, the first puff of warlike wind would blow the whole fabric away. Each Power would then assert its own rights, and do the best for itself; and the weakest would go to the wall!" Beside this radical defect, there are other objections which have been pointed out to the proposed scheme. Mr. Justin Scott, writing in the Times of Sept. 21st, indicated some of them. He said:—

The proposal actually before the Powers is that the Commission should be formed of the consular representatives of the various Powers accredited to the Court of the Khedive. That would, I believe, comprise the Consuls-General of the seven great Powers and six representatives of the secondary Powers. The voting influence of Great Britain would be as one in thirteen voices.

In short, to speak plainly, the composition of the Commission is bad. At the moment of really important action its chief members would be neither impartial nor disinterested. Not only is the composition bad. The proportion of voting power is unfair. Great Britain would have no more voice than, for instance, Sweden and Norway, although four-fifths of the whole shipping of the Canal is under the British flag, while the flag of the two Northern Powers is rarely, if ever, seen. Surely this is not a fair adjustment.

In short, the idea of this commission should be abandoned. The stake of Great Britain in the matter is too important for us to risk our consent. Not only do our ships almost monopolise the Canal. We have Imperial interests at stake of still greater importance. The route by the Canal brings Bombay, the great port of arrival and departure for all India, 5,000 miles nearer to us than it is viâ the Cape. We cannot afford to run the risk of having our Indian thoroughfare declared closed to us in any important respect by the adverse vote of a court beyond appeal, of thirteen where we have only one voice. Not only is this Commission bad. No Commission is conceivable to which such a power could be safely intrusted. The principle of perpetual neutrality is all that can be conceded. Its observance in detail must be left to the honour of the signatory Powers, as in every other instance of international neutralisation the world has yet seen.

Whatever arrangements may be finally made regarding the Canal, we are sure that they will be made in accordance with God's will, if carried out at all; and that the result will be for Israel's benefit and advantage as God's messengers and missionaries to the nations. Nothing would please France better than to see Britain reduced to the level of Sweden and Norway in voting power on the Commission which is to rule the Canal. But though there is no depth of folly to which our Government and people do not seem to be ready and willing to descend in respect to their foreign policy or possessions, yet we know who alone "keepeth Israel," and that His Divine mind "neither slumbers nor sleeps." The Lord "is our Keeper, and He is our nation's shade upon the right hand" (Psa. cxxi. 4, 5). He will preserve to us our Gates, and see that the Suez Canal and Egypt will be, not nominally only, but really, in our own charge, to have and to hold, to keep and to preserve for the good of all the nations, and that the prophecies may be fulfilled—respecting Israel's work for the world.

Digitized by Google

The surrender by the world of the Suez Canal to the British will be virtually to neutralise it. For we shall, during the coming European war, be at peace with all the belligerents, and it will be our aim as well as our interest to have the passage of the Canal perfectly open, like an arm of the sea, to all the nations able and wishing to navigate it. Our desire to hold it springs from the dread lest any other nation in charge of it should, in time of war, close it against British commerce and navigation, or impede our access from Europe to our Eastern and South-Eastern possessions in India, China, Borneo, and Australasia; to say nothing of South Africa and the islands of the Indian Ocean. Here it is that our interests clash with those of France. She wishes to exalt her own interests in the East and to minimise those of Great Britain. She will be glad then to find us willing to efface ourselves on the Commission, and to take up a subordinate but not a ruling position on the Canal. In vain! God has given us Egypt, and India, and the whole of the mighty empire beyond the Red Sea, and we dare not, cannot venture to relax our hold upon that Gate which opens our road to us, and makes it safe for us to travel by it day or night towards our distant possessions in the East.

Besides all this there is yet another consideration which governs all. The British are Israel; and to Israel is confided the duty of taking back the House of Judah in glorious triumphal procession to the Land of the Inheritance, what time the Lord shall decide to recall His sons to their ancient possessions. That time is drawing near! To secure the safe return of the Eastern contingents of the Jews from India, China, and Australasia, Egypt and the Canal must be in our own safe keeping exclusively. It will be vain then for the French to desire to obtain possession herself, or to hope to frustrate the determinations of the great King of Israel, who, 4,000 years ago, decided that Israel, and they alone, should occupy the Gates (including Port Said and the Canal) and thus safeguard the returning processions.

On all these grounds we doubt if the neutralisation scheme will have any, even the least effect, and if it should be signed whether the Lord will permit its provisions to work ill to His people Israel. Therefore, O blind Israel, praise ye the Lord for all His benefits and His blessings to our perverse and God-provoking nation, for our interests are His, and His strength is made perfect in our weakness (2 Cor. xii. 3—6).

THE LIGHTHOUSE.

We are all familiar with the uses and objects of those splendid lighthouses which do such noble work in saving the lives of our home and foreign mariners while navigating the dangerous seas surrounding our Island abode. These lighthouses, founded on the rock themselves, give to all who have business in the great waters about them, warnings of a great danger. They exhibit a strong light, and by means thereof they tell those who, but for it, would perish on the rocks, that they must avoid the dangerous spots, and depart at once from the perils they point out. With their warnings of danger the lighthouses also give promises of safety to those who will be guided by their warnings. They tell the mariner where he is, for he is able to read by the character of the light exhibited near what particular lighthouse he is making sail, and thus, by reference to his chart, near what particular coast and portion of it he is passing

The bright light these lighthouses diffuse around them are contained within the main structures themselves, and they are lights which, small in magnitude, yet by ingenious systems of prismatic reflectors cast their lights along the waters so that ships at a distance can see them, and learn the lesson they would teach them: that they must avoid the rocks which would destroy them, but trust for safety to the harbour whither they would go. The lights which the lighthouses contain would never shine forth to the saving of others unless the reflectors through which they pass were kept clean and clear for the transmission of their varying illumination. The lighthouses and their light-giving machinery within them exist for the good of others. They were made, formed, created, and fashioned for this sole purpose, that they might do good to the world of waters around them. They are the glory of the nation which made and caused them to reflect the light. They prove that those who built them desire to save life, and that they are willing to go to great expense and trouble to do good to the multitudes who "do business in great waters," irrespective of nationality (Psa. cvii. 23, 24). The objects of their solicitude are "all the nations, families, and kindreds of the earth," and the way they benefit them is to offer them light in the midst of darkness, as it were, "a light to lighten the Gentiles," the same being "the glory" of the Lord's "people Israel." We have heard the lighthouse described as the type of the Christian, the man who is a true believer in the Lord Jesus Christ. There is no doubt truth in this idea. Certainly the Lord Jesus Himself is the Light of the World, for He said so Himself in John viii. 12. But the lighthouse cannot be the true type of Him, for it warns men not to come near it, as the rock on which it is built is a place of danger, whereas the Lord Jesus cries to every perishing sinner, "Come unto Me all ye that labour and are heavy laden and I will give you rest" (Matt. xi. 28). The lighthouse certainly is the type of the Christian, for he is set on a hill to warn men of the danger which awaits the unrepenting sinner, and his privilege and duty is to reflect the light of Christ stored up in his heart, even though it be only a small spark, so that he may carry out the Lord's command, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven" (Matt. v. 16).

But the type fails, as all types do, in some important particulars. The Christian believer cannot be "the light of the world," as Matt. v. 14 declares, describing it as "the city set on a hill," which is the reflection of the light "to all that are in the house." The Christian's sphere of shining is like the lighthouse, very circumscribed. Each unit in the Christian world cannot represent "the light of the world," in the way that Christ is "the light of the world." There must be another and a truer type of the "light bearer," which better resembles Him, and is rightly described as the real "Light of the world," that which "shines as lights in the world, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation" (Phil. ii. 15). There must be a national light-bearer or light-reflector which is capable of taking the light and dispensing it "to all the nations, families, and kindreds of the earth." Such a nation, if there be one, must be "the light of the world," resembling the Lord Jesus Himself (John viii. 12). We thank God that we know of such a nation which is the true lighthouse of the world in subordination to the Divine Head, the latter being "the true Light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world" (John i. 9). This nation, so reflecting Christ's light which is within it (Exod. xxix. 45), is the world's lighthouse, spreading Christ's glorious Gospel by its own instrumentality to the world at large, "blossoming, and budding, and filling the face of the world" with gracious "fruit" (Isa. xxvii. 6). It tells the inhabitants of the world that "God so loved it that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John iii. 16). It takes the Word of God, which tells of the light of life, and spreads it broadcast throughout the world, as the people to whom is committed the oracles of God (Rom. iii. 1, 2). It tells the sinners of the Gentiles (and of Israel, too) to go, not to the shelter of Israel herself, which would be only to perish by rushing into danger, but to go for succour to the Rock of Ages, Israel's God and Saviour; and there to find rest and shelter in His arms, who is the Shepherd, the Light, the Life, the Way, the Truth, the Door, the Refuge, and the Ark of all who seek and find Him. Israel is the light-bearer and light-reflector for the Lord to the world lying in the wicked one, but it is needful, in order that Christ's light may clearly and fully shine through her instrumentality, that she should be clear and clean herself, washed by the blood, cleansed by the Spirit of God, and made, by reason of the purifying of the Holy Ghost, meet messengers of the Lord of Glory.

Digitized by Google

SOWN IN THE EARTH.

A Paper read by the President to the Anglo-Israel Association, Brisbane, 19th January, 1883.

FROM "THE ANGLO-ISRAELITE," VOL. IV., NO. 3).

(Concluded from page 400.)

PART II.

IN the "Edinburgh Cabinet Library," article British India, we read—"In the Government administered by the East India Company, the most striking feature is that military force, by which their extensive dominion was originally acquired, and is held in submission. Its composition is perhaps more remarkable than that of any army ever levied. India is subjected to a foreign yoke by her own troops, paid with her own money. In 1786 Marquis Cornwallis began his rule in India by a determination to engage in no hostilities, unless strictly defensive. Sir John Shore, the next Governor-General, followed a strictly pacific system. In 1798 the Marquis Wellesley, Earl Mornington, was sent out with the most solemn injunctions to follow a pacific course. Again the company sent out Marquis Cornwallis to conclude peace at almost any price. He was succeeded by that most pacific Governor, Sir George Barlow, who, rather than go to war, surrendered every point in dispute, and perilled the national faith of England. In 1807 Lord Minto found himself involved in wars which he had no means of preventing. In 1813 the warlike Lord Hastings plainly saw that the favourite policy—the defensive—could no longer be maintained. Lord Amherst endeavoured to follow the pacific policy of Cornwallis, but was compelled to go to war. In 1848 Lord Dalhousie thus addresses his Council: 'I wished for peace; I hoped for peace; I have been disappointed; war has come upon us, and war they shall have with a vengeance.' This war ended in the annexation of the Punjab. In 1832 Mr. Jenkins, Political Resident of Nagpore for twenty years, thus speaks in his evidence before the House of Commons: 'Unlike other kingdoms, ours has been, in a great degree, forced upon us; built up at almost every step against our own deliberate resolution to avoid it; in the face, I may say, of every opposition which could be given to it by the Legislature of His Majesty's Government, and by the Court of Directors acting upon corresponding dispositions in our Government abroad.'"

What can we say to these things? Are not these nations given to us? Are we not "sown amongst them"? And, consequently, are we not Israel? Hath not "the Lord given the nations before him, and made him rule over kings, and given them as dust to his sword, as driven stubble to his bow"? (Isa. xli. 2).

The latest evidence on this subject brings out the picture in yet bolder relief. And we recommend this to the careful study of those who maintain that, owing to our national vices, our occupation of India has been a curse rather than a blessing to that vast country. Dr. W. W. Hunter, in his valuable lectures, reprinted in the Cornhill Magazine, January and February, 1880, says:—

"If, as some have recently alleged, our rule has failed to benefit the Indian races, then I can sympathise with those who question whether we should continue to accept or to extend the responsibilities which Indian rule involves. For no government has a right to exist [note it, Queenslanders] which does not exist in the interest of the governed. The test of British rule in India is, not what it has done for ourselves, but what it has done for the Indian people. By this test our work in the East must stand or fall. If our attempt to administer that vast and distant Empire has turned out a failure, if its people are not more free, more secure, and more prosperous under British rule than they were under their native dynasties, then the wise course for Great Britain would seem to be to curtail her former responsibilities, to accept no new ones, and to withdraw, as far as may be, from an undertaking to which she has proved unequal. If, on the other hand, we find that our countrymen have not failed in their splendid and difficult task; if we find that British rule in India means order in place of anarchy, protection in place of aggression, government by law in place of misgovernment by the sword, and a vast free people dwelling in safety, where of old each man was beaten down beneath whatsoever was stronger than himself, then I think that Great Britain may, with a firm heart, continue to accept the great responsibility which has fallen to it, and that it may calmly face the duties which that responsibility involves. During the last ten years it has been my business to visit, almost every winter, the twelve provinces of India, and to superintend a survey of their population and resources. The Indian Government has, so to speak, ordered me to conduct for it a great stock-taking after a century of British rule.

"I have often amused myself, during my solitary peregrinations, by imagining what a Hindoo of the last century would think of the present state of his country if he could re-visit the earth. I will suppose that his first surprise at the outward physical changes has subsided, that he had got accustomed to the fact that thousands of square miles of jungle (what we call bush), which in his time were inhabited only by wild beasts, have been turned into fertile crop lands; that fever-smitten swamps have been covered with healthy well-drained cities [listen to this, Brisbane]; that the mountain walls, which shut off the interior of India from the seaports, have been pierced by roads and scaled by railways; that the great rivers which formed the barriers between provinces, and desolated the country with their floods, have now been controlled to the uses of man, spanned by bridges, and tapped by canals.

"But what would strike him as more surprising than these outward changes is the security of the people. In provinces where every man, from the prince to the peasant, a hundred years ago, went armed, he would look round in vain for a matchlock or a sword. He would find the multitudinous native States of India, which he remembered in jealous isolation, broken only by merciless wars—now trading quietly with each other, bound together by railways and roads, by the post and the telegraph. He would find, moreover, much that was new, as well as much that was changed. He would see the country dotted with imposing edifices in strange foreign architecture, of which he could not guess the uses. He would ask, 'What wealthy prince had reared for himself that spacious palace?' He would be answered that the building was no pleasure-house for the rich, but a hospital for the poor. He would enquire, 'In honour of what new deity is this splendid shrine?' He would be told that it was no new temple for the gods, but a school for the people. Instead of bristling fortresses he would see courts of justice; in place of a Mahomedan general in charge of each district, he would find an English magistrate; instead of a swarming soldiery he would discover a police. As regards the Northern or Himalayan frontier of India, the wild tribes are no longer invaders, but are employed as loyal soldiers or border police. As regards the Southern frontier of India, the sea, the pirate races have been converted into cheap and excellent seamen. Indian waters are now as safe as the English

Digitized by Google

Channel, and the Indian navy, having finished its work, is disbanded. As regards internal disturbances, banditti are unknown; breaches of the law are rarer in India than in England, and the special department which was created to deal with the old special crimes of India now finds no more work to do within the British provinces. Besides rural industries, a number of manufactures have sprung up. Coal mines have been discovered in several provinces, and now employ thousands of miners. Mills and steam factories have followed the opening up of the coal fields. Twenty-six years ago there was not a single loom worked by steam power in India: there are now 1,150,000 spindles employed in the cotton manufacture alone, and 40,000 spindles employed in the manufacture of jute. When in the last century the English became the ruling power in India, the country did not produce £1,000,000 sterling a year of surplus products for exportation. Last year India sold to foreign nations £71,000,000 worth of strictly Indian produce. In 1877-78 the total trade of India, including exports and imports, exceeded £126,000,000 sterling.

"When we obtained Calcutta, it consisted of three mud-built hamlets, without any trade whatsoever. In 1874 its commerce had risen to over £54,000,000 sterling, besides £45,000,000 of trade with the interior, making a total commerce of £100,000,000 sterling a year at a town which had not £10 worth of external trade when the British settled there!

"In the last century, education in India was a monopoly in the hands of the priests, a power which they employed to subjugate the minds of the people. Under British rule, education in India has been taken entirely out of the hands of the priests, and it has become the emancipation of the Indian races. In ancient India a Brahmin was forbidden, under pain of death, to teach the sacred books to the masses. Under British rule, the State schools offer instruction to every one, and open the same careers to all. In the last century, the Hindoos were taught from their earliest childhood that they must remain fixed for life in the caste in which they were born. We have now 2,000,000 of boys and girls receiving public instruction in India. Under the British Government, these 2,000,000 of native children are learning that every occupation and every profession is open to every boy on the benches of an Indian school. The rising generation in India have been freed from superstitious terrors; they have been led to give up cruel practices; they have learned to detest and despise their forefathers' bloody rites. Widow-burning, infanticide, hook-swinging, self-mutilation, and human sacrifices—these are a few familiar relics of the old bondage under which the Indian intellect groaned and the Indian heart bled. Great as has been the material progress of India during the past century, its emancipation from ignorance and priestcraft forms, to my mind, a far more splendid memorial of British rule."

I have striven thus to show to you some of the results that are set plainly before your minds of what, thus far, has been the issue of Britain-Israel's being "sown in the earth." Yet this is but the first-fruits of the grand work that is delegated to Israel in the earth. Much she has accomplished in her condition of solitariness and "part blindness;" but wait a short time, until fully cognisant of herself as God's chosen people, and rejoined by her brother Manasseh, and both again united under the crown and sceptre of David; and with reconciled Judah in acceptance with God, then must come to pass this word of the Lord, "Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land; and I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all. And they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all; neither shall they defile themselves any more with their idols, nor with their detestable things, nor with any of their transgressions; but I will save them out of all their dwelling-places wherein they have sinned, and will cleanse them: so shall they be My people, and I will be their God. And David My servant shall be king over them; and they shall have one shepherd; they shall also walk in My judgments, and observe My statutes, and do them. And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob My servant, wherein your fathers have dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, even they and their children, and their children's children, for ever; and My servant David shall be their prince forever. Moreover, I will make a covenant of peace with them; it shall be an everlasting covenant with them and I will place them, and multiply them, and will set My sanctuary in the midst of them for evermore. My tabernacle also shall be with them. Yea, I will be their God, and they shall be My people. And the heathen shall know that I the Lord do sanctify Israel, when My sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore" (Ezek. xxxvii. 21—28).

Further interesting testimony to confirm the statement that India has thriven under British rule will be found in the following part of a speech delivered by Sayed Mahmood, a well educated Mahomedan judge, at a banquet given to General Macpherson and the Indian troops under his command, on the eve of their departure to take part in that glorious campaign in the delta of the Nile, the land of Egypt—Israel's former house of bondage:—"While Continental powers boast of tens of millions of subjects, Britain can look with pride, and with satisfaction, to the 300,000,000 who can supply her armies with hundreds of thousands of soldiers—soldiers who, under British discipline, and the leadership of British generals, can cope with any army in the world. To me personally, and, I may say, to all the natives of India, the circumstance appears charming, that the enemies of Britain must necessarily be the enemies of India; also, that the protection afforded by the British standard is shared by us in no small measure. Gentlemen, the time is fast approaching, if it has not indeed already begun, when the distinctions of race and of creed will sink into insignificance, in comparison with the stronger bonds of friendship and political union between Britain and India; when political power and martial glory will be shared more obviously by Britons and natives alike, when the civilised world will be convinced that India is neither a source of danger, nor a point of weakness, in the vast empire of Britain; when the native of India will be as proud of being a British subject as the native of Kent. It ought to be a source of pride to Britons that the comfort, the peace, and good government, the blessings which Britain has brought to India, have achieved the devotion of millions of a different race and creed."

On which Philo-Israel remarks:—"On the whole, Sayed Mahmood's speech [the half of which I have not given you] is pleasant reading, and when we know that his words were spoken in our own language, before a brilliant assemblage of British officers, civil and military, we may feel satisfied that this nation has done its duty by its great dependency, and that if God has given us their land to conquer and retain, we have at least raised the inhabitants in the scale of nations, making them feel it an honour, as well as a privilege, to be a part and parcel of Israel's great and mighty dominion, ruling such large masses of the earth."

My pleasing link is done. I have endeavoured to show you how that God called a man to Him; entered into covenant with him; made to him large and precious promises, to which promises He attached no kind of condition which could in any wise bring it to pass that, in the progress or in the fulness of time those promises could possibly fail of fulfiment. They were therefore absolute and unconditional—the reason being given by God Himself to Abraham, "because thou hast obeyed My voice." Further, I have exhibited to you a nation that has entered very largely, although not yet completely, into the possession of those great and precious promises—a nation that has already far surpassed in numbers any nation that has been dwelling on the earth, that has exercised an influence for good among mankind reached by no other people under the sun; a nation that possesses as no other kingdom or empire ever did, "the Gates of those that hate her," and has been thus blessed to bring forth fruit, and to fulfil the Divine promise to Abraham, that his seed should be a blessing to all the kindreds and the families of the earth.

Digitized by Google

And thus it is that Britain-Israel is literally and spiritually "sown in the earth," but in no wise a Gentile nation.

SEATED AT THE RIGHT HAND OF GOD IN THE HEAVENLY PLACES.

THE Lord Jesus Christ was appointed by the oath of God, the Lord Jehovah, to be a Priest for ever. The promise in Psa. cx. 1—4, establishes the fact. "The Lord (Jehovah) said unto my Lord, Sit thou on My right hand till I have made Thy enemies Thy footstool." In Heb. x. 12, 13, we have the New Testament confirmation of the fact in the Lord Jesus Christ, God the Son. "This Man, after He had offered one sacrifice for sin for ever, sat down on the right hand of God: from henceforth expecting till His enemies be made His footstool." In the Mosaic tabernacle there was no place for the officiating priest to sit down. His dwelling was not there. It was amongst the Levites in the towns of Israel. But in the Temple he was only temporarily employed. His duty was to stand till that work was done, and for him there was no rest at all. Heb. x. 11 shows us this: "Every priest standeth daily ministering and offering oftentimes the same sacrifices which can never take away sins." Earthly priests in the Jewish Temple then had to perform their duties "standing"—but the position of rest—the seated position—was not for them, because their work was never completed. The Lord Jesus Christ however "has offered one sacrifice for sins for ever," and is seated in the very place where the sacrifice is exhibited—the heavenly places—where also the throne of God exists. On the right hand of God, the seat of Divine power and glory, the highest the universe presents—there is the Lord Jesus seated (a Being higher than the angels, as Heb. i. 13 shows), His work of atonement and mediatorship entirely accomplished—and in that place He sits, waiting till His enemies are put under His feet. But does He sit there alone? Not alone! There sit there with Him those who once were dead in "trespasses and sins"—but now, by grace and mercy, are quickened with Christ,—saved by grace,—raised up together with Him—and made to sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus! Those thus seated "in heavenly places" are seated in the very blaze of the glory of the throne of God,—spotless therefore in His sight,—washed perfectly from the very stain of sin, although still in the body, and battling with sin and corruption in the world! These so graciously saved and redeemed ones, are those in whom the Father can see no trace of evil. They are spotless in His sight, for they are sprinkled with the precious blood of Jesus, and clothed with His robe of Righteousness (Heb. ix. 13, 14, 21; Isa. lxi. 10). These are, according to the testimony of our evangelical preachers at the present time, "the true believers in the Lord Jesus Christ," Christians of all nations, languages and colours. Doubtless this is so. But we feel that there is a national as well as an individual application of this subject, according to the Scriptures. It is obvious that those so elected, saved and glorified, are "the Church of Christ"—"His body," of which, according to Eph. v. 25—33, and i. 22, 23, He is Himself the head. These are the spotless ones, because sprinkled with the blood; the people in whom God Himself "hath not beheld iniquity, nor seen perverseness"—even Israel and Jacob (Num. xxiii. 21). For them is prepared "the robe of Jesus' righteousness," as Isa. liv. 17, and lxi. 10, testifies. Their's is the seed that "all who see them acknowledge to be the one Jehovah hath blessed" (ver. 9). This is the "nation" which exhibits God's righteousness and praise, ready to spring forth before all the Gentiles (ver. 11). "This people hath He formed for Himself, that they may show forth His praise" (Isa. xliii. 21). "For He hath redeemed Israel from all her iniquities" (Psa. cxxx. 7); and for them has He brought near His "righteousness." "For He will place salvation in Zion for Israel,—His glory" (Isa. xlvi. 13). "For God's glory was Israel made and created" (Isa. xliii. 7); and on Israel that "glory" is destined to appear (Isa. lx. 1, 2). "With Israel the Gentiles are commanded to rejoice" (Deut. xxxii. 43; Rom. xv. 10); and they are those to whom the Lord their Maker is married, and is their Husband; therefore is one with them (Isa. liv. 5; Jer. iii. 14, R.V.). Israel! praise ye the Lord your God, your Maker, your Redeemer, Husband, Saviour, and Friend!

WORK FOR THE WINTER EVENINGS.

By E. M. RUSH.

IN a letter published on Sept. 7th, signed "James Dyer, Hereford," the writer expresses an earnest wish that believers in Our Identity with Israel "would band themselves into companies in the cities, towns, and villages where they may reside, and irrespective of creed or ism, meet together periodically to study God's Word with a view to the more extensive propagation of Bible truths in relation thereto," and he believes that much good would result. Whilst agreeing heartily with Mr. Dyer's main desire, and wishing that more could be done than is attempted, I see there may be a difficulty in carrying out his suggestion unless there be a leader in each company well able to direct the particular study and the proceedings generally. Without such a leader there will be a danger of the gatherings resulting in the reading of a few passages from Scripture, some desultory talk, with wandering argument, and in a short while total collapse is likely to set in. Even with the best possible leader there is a difficulty in attracting and keeping people together for pure study. I would like to supplement Mr. Dyer's wish with the idea that probably little companies of would-be students might find their work more easy to accomplish if on each occasion of meeting they were to take up some definite lines of thought, by one of their number reading aloud a portion, or the whole of one or other of the admirable lectures that have been delivered in public, and are now published. I doubt if any of us take in the whole matter and full meaning of a lecture by once hearing or reading; more likely it is that we should benefit by going through them again and again, Bible in hand for verifying references, and making ourselves familiar with what is brought before us, the result of much patient thought and research. Doubtless after such a reading a discussion would often follow that would prove advantageous. Were this plan followed it might be possible to obtain the presence and the listening ear of one and another totally ignorant of the subject of "Our Identity," people who could not be attracted by the prospect of merely study or discussion. Small gatherings in private houses at regular intervals during the coming winter evenings would do much to increase knowledge, and make known the truth we value, and this without the necessary expenses incurred by public lectures. Having witnessed the advantage of the plan, I recommend it confidently.

Glancing through the catalogue* of Messrs. R. Banks and Son, I give the titles as they come of a few of the lectures likely to be useful:—"British and Jewish Fraternity" (Bassin), price 3d.; "The Ten Tribes" (Alder Smith), 6d.; "Ephraim-Israel" (Cox), 1d.; "Present-day Problems" (Cox), 3d.; "Our Identity" (Philo-Israel), 2d.; "The British Constitution" (Philo-Israel), 3d.; "Egypt's Place in the Bible" (Philo-Israel), 1d.; "A Summary" (Grant), 2d.; "The Covenants" (Grant), 2d.; "The British Nation" (Weldon). This last, though not least in importance, is in three parts, 4d. each, but I understand is about to be reprinted all under one cover, price 6d.

Lee, London, S.E., Sept. 22nd, 1887.

ERRATA.—Page 405, col. 2, line 16, read "Isa. xlii. 19; xliii. 8."

* The Catalogue is sent free on application to Messrs. R. Banks and Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

IS OUR RACE PHYSICALLY DETERIORATING?

If it be a fact, as some declare it is, that the British folks are falling off in size—in health, in strength, and height, and that our men and women are rapidly deteriorating, certainly as regards the "lower orders" of the population, then a doubt clearly arises whether we are as a people likely to continue in the van of mankind, "the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath the other nations of the earth," which we ought to be if we be Israel, to whom that promise was made. It appears from some returns of "The Public Medicine Section of the British Medical Congress," that so far as the recruiting returns of the War Office of 1860-64 compared with the five years which ended in 1886 can guide one, there has been a serious falling off among the classes who furnish us with army recruits. In the first period 371 per 1,000 were rejected out of 32,000 recruited; while in the last, 415 per 1,000 were rejected out of over 128,000 recruited. The figures seem to indicate that we have seriously fallen off as a race in physical condition. But a closer investigation of the facts alters the aspect of the matter. Twenty-five years ago the soldier was chiefly recruited from the agricultural classes, a healthy section of our people, who made healthy, hardy, soldiers. Now they come chiefly from the off-scourings of our towns, where their physical condition is very inferior, and the healthier agricultural classes find more remunerative employment than the ranks of the military services give them, and therefore avoid the recruiting sergeant. Our soldiers are recruited from the pauperised and diseased city refuse, for the most part; and these open a worse field to-day than did the recruiting grounds of a quarter of a century ago. Taking another view of the manhood of the nation as a whole, we have a capital résumé of the subject in the Standard of August 5th, which we shall ask our readers to consider. These remarks put the matter in quite a new aspect, and tend to show that if the army is now recruited from a less hopeful field than in former times, the nation as a whole is not going backwards but forwards, and that Deut. xxviii. 1 and 13 it still true of the British nation. The Standard said:—

Fortunately there is another and a brighter side to the picture. When all is said, the class to which we have referred is a small one. There is no greater mistake than to imagine that the condition of the mass of our workmen is accurately gauged by the facts which come under the notice of those who investigate the slums. Respectable artisans and labourers have no more in common with these degraded creatures than with the frequenters of aristocratic salons. Taking Englishmen as a whole—excluding the fringe of population which borders on the gutter—we believe that there is no reason to despair of their bodily condition. We may go further, and say that there are good grounds for believing that the physique of our race, as a whole, was never better than it is at this moment. Sanitation is better attended to than at any previous period. Food, clothing, house accommodation have improved to an extraordinary degree within living memory. Fifty years ago meat was a luxury for labouring people, and such articles as tea, coffee, cocoa, and fresh vegetables were too dear and scarce to be commonly indulged in. Now they are regarded as necessaries of life almost as much as bread itself. Next to food, the most important factor in determining the health of a nation is pure air and exercise. No one will contend that in either respect there is not abundant room for improvement; but the progress that has been made during the present reign is astonishing. It is a matter of notoriety that in all feats of strength and skill the Englishman of the present day is a better man than his predecessors. There is no athletic "record" which has not been lowered within recent memory. It is hard to believe in the physical degradation of the race when we consider that our contemporary athletes can run faster, swim further, and shoot more steadily than the best champions of the past. A school boy will keep wicket against furious bowling which would have struck terror into the hearts of the professionals of the old Sussex school. There is seldom a College Meeting at Oxford or Cambridge in which the mile is not run in time which would have seemed impossible to the amateurs of Tom Brown's day. Lawn tennis has developed the chests and shoulders of our girls to an extent which would have appeared monstrous in the eyes of the young ladies who went to school with Becky Sharp and Amelia Sedley. Shopkeepers, clerks, and working-men are ardent devotees of athletics. "Cycling" has created an industry, and has brought country air and vigorous exercise within the reach of thousands of all classes. Every Saturday afternoon, tens of thousands of young men turn out, to the football ground in winter, and to the river and the cricket-field in summer. It would be satisfactory if figures more truly representative than those of the recruiting returns were available, to contrast our physical condition at the present time with that which prevailed before the era of sanitation and athleticism. If they were, we do not hesitate to say, it would be found that the deterioration of part of our population has been more than equalled by the improvement of the vast majority, and that in spite of the excessive death-rate produced by overcrowding among the poor, the mass of Englishmen live longer and lead healthier lives than their fathers and grandfathers.

So far the public journalist. It is satisfactory to know that God's promises are being fulfilled to our people in the mass, though a section, reduced by the insanitary condition of our cities to physical weakness, causes our recruiting list to present an unfavourable appearance. This is to be regretted. But it will not last for ever. The promises to Israel can cover even this present discouraging blot upon our nation's case. Military supremacy is distinctly one of Israel's promises, as Deut. xxviii. 7 shows. "All people of the earth shall see that we are called by the name of Jehovah, and they shall be afraid of us" (Deut. xxviii. 10). This involves a powerful army, and one which will strike terror into the hearts of the people, who would injure if they did not fear us. The mass of the people in the words of prophecy, shall be in such good case that "their seed shall be known among the Gentiles, and their offspring among the people: all that see them shall acknowledge them that they are the seed which the Lord Jehovah hath blessed" (Isa. lxi. 9). These conditions do not tally with the present depressed state of our town populations of the lower order—and therefore we believe there is a "good time coming" even for our town populace, which has hitherto fed the ranks of the British army.

THE SAXONS ASSERTED TO BE OF THE RACE OF THE JEWS, IN 1649.

In Oliver Cromwell's letters and speeches, by Thomas Carlyle (vol. I., p. 432—434), there are some notes regarding certain infatuated persons called "Levellers," who in 1649 appeared at St. Margaret's-hill, near Cobham, in Surrey, and at St. George's-hill. These folks digged the ground up there, and sowed it with roots and beans. One Everard, once of the army, was the chief of them, and he gave himself out to be a prophet. The account that Everard and others gave of themselves to the General of the troops was this: "Everard said he was of the race of the Jews, as most men called Saxons and others properly are; that all the liberties of the people were lost by the coming of William the Conqueror, and that ever since the people of God had lived under tyranny and oppression worse than that of our forefathers under the Egyptians. But now the time of deliverance was at hand, and God would bring His people out of this slavery, and restore them to their freedom, in enjoying the fruits and benefits of the earth."

We allude to the above as a curious fact to show that there were persons in 1649, in Oliver Cromwell's time, in England, who were fully persuaded that the Saxon people here were "of the race of the Jews," and declared that "our forefathers were under the Egyptians in the matter of tyranny and oppression." Those who would pursue the subject should consult Thomas Carlyle's volume, and look up "The King's Pamphlets" he mentions in the note at foot of p. 433, small 4to., No. 427. § 6 ("Declaration of the bloody and unchristian acting of William Star, &c., in opposition to those that dig upon George-hill, in Surrey), ib. No. 418, § 5, &c."

Digitized by Google

THE KING OF ISRAEL AND HIS PEOPLE.

By W. L. Blore.

It is astonishing what an amount of ignorance is exhibited from our pulpits in the discussion of Gospel truth by our professed teachers. About three weeks ago, in attending a service which was conducted by a man of considerable mental power, I was not surprised to hear the announcement, considering the prejudices existing amongst many against our Anglo-Israelitish origin, that the lecturer "was quite content to receive the blessings of the Gospel as a Gentile, although he had been informed that he was an Israelite." At the conclusion of the service he stated, "You will find all that I have been speaking about in a tract which you will receive as you pass out." The title is, "A present, free, and full salvation;" and the text, "Thou shalt call His name Jesus, for He shall save His people from their sins." The question is then asked, "But who are His people?" "All those in whom His saving power could be consistently exercised."

Now we know that all are invited to participate in some measure in the benefits arising from our Saviour's grand work; but we certainly demur to the misapplication of this particular text. The real question is, Who were His people at the time that He was named Jesus? Without considering the many texts in which Israel are referred to as "My people, His people, people of God, Thy people," let us merely confine our attention to the meaning at the time that this announcement was made to Joseph (Matt. i. 21).

First, in Luke i. 16, we have the announcement to Zacharias as to John. "And many of the children of Israel shall He turn to the Lord their God;" and in the 17th verse, "to make ready a people prepared for the Lord;" and in the 68th verse, Zacharias being filled with the Holy Ghost, prophesied, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for He hath visited and redeemed His people, and hath raised up an horn of salvation for us in the house of His servant David;" and in the 71st verse, "That we should be saved;" verse 72, "To remember His holy covenant; the oath which He sware to our forefather Abraham;" verse 77, "To give knowledge of salvation to His people, by the remission of their sins." Paul wrote, Gal. iv. 4, 5, "But when the fulness of time was come, God sent forth His Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem—whom?—them that were under the law." Were the heathen under the law? No. Israel and Christ were both under the law (see Rom. iii. 1, 2, 19, 21; 1 Cor. ix. 20; Gal. iii. 23).

In Luke ii. 11 the announcement is made to the shepherds, "Unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour." Then we find "Simeon waiting, for—what—the consolation of Israel—and the Holy Ghost was upon him," and prophesying that Jesus should be "a light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of His people Israel." And so in the other texts in the New Testament the reference is manifestly to Israel as His people.

And now with reference to the term, "The King of Israel." I was astonished to hear a clergyman, reading from his manuscript the other day, declare to a large and intelligent congregation that "Jesus refused to be called the King of Israel." He quoted John xviii. 36, and John vi. 15, forgetting that the kingdom of Israel is in no sense "a kingdom of this world," but that Jesus acknowledged that He had a kingdom, and added, "My kingdom is not from hence." The idea of making Jesus a king by human force! when in John iii. 35, we read: "The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into His hand," and to the Father He will deliver it, "for He must reign till He hath put all enemies under His feet." But some will say that this refers to a spiritual kingdom. Was not God's intention that the kingdom of Israel should be His kingdom, when He said, "I will be your God, and ye shall be My people," but at the same time having place here on earth? The kingdom of Israel was not of this world; but we read in Rev. xii. 15, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of His Christ, and He shall reign for ever and ever."

In Matt. ii. 6 we have, in reply to Herod's question to the chief priests and Scribes, the following reply from prophecy: "Out of thee shall come a Governor that shall rule My people Israel;" or, as the New Version has it, "shall be Shepherd of My people Israel." In the first verse of the New Testament we have "Jesus Christ, the Son of David, the Son of Abraham," and within four verses of the end, "I, Jesus, I am the root and the offspring of David." In the first text Abraham is represented as the root of David, and Jesus as the offspring. The promise made to Abraham was developed in David, but perfected in Jesus. Abraham was chosen, David was chosen, Christ was chosen (1 Peter ii. 4). But in Rev. xxii. 16, David is put forth as a representative person, of whom he was both root and offspring—thus pointing to his announcement to Pilate. John xviii. 37: "Art Thou a King, then?" Jesus answered, "To this end have I been born, and to this end am I come into the world, that I should bear witness to the truth." What truth? The truth of God in His covenant with Abraham, with David (Jer. xxxiii. 14, 16; Isa. ix. 1); and with Mary (Luke i. 32, 33). "He shall reign over the House of Jacob for ever, and of His kingdom there shall be no end."

Jesus did not rebuke Nathanael for calling Him the King of Israel, when he called Him the Son of God, but merely referred to the ground of his belief. But apart from our present revelation as to the House of Israel, is it not astonishing that clergymen should deny our Lord the title, "The King of Israel," and misapply the term "His people," as used in Scripture as signifying any other people than Israel?

Hill-house, Sandown, I.W.

Correspondence.

DAWLEY CIRCUIT.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

Dear Philo-Israel,—Without my begging for the poor and needy, the Lord has sent the following:—Without name or information, 1s.; A. Powis, Parcel of left-off clothes and 6d.; "A friend at Stafford for food," 2s. 6d.; Mrs. G. A. Rogers (per Philo-Israel), "A Jubilee offering for your work of mercy," £1; Mr. J. Dudley, "Distribute to the best of your knowledge," 3s.; Mr. Joseph C. Paine, "For the poor," 5s.; The Misses Danberry, "For the poor," £6.

The public works have now been closed over twelve months, and are still closed. The following are part of the persons relieved by the above gifts:—nine emigrating to America with a prospect of work; an aged widow with an afflicted son, both formerly supported by a pious son and brother, unable to get work for the past twelve months; a respectable member of the Church who had been so long unable to get work that all his little savings were gone, and he came to me weeping and saying, "This is my sixtieth birthday, and my wife and I have nothing to eat in the house, and don't know where to get any." Many of the young and strong men are removed to other parts of England and abroad, but the aged and afflicted are nearly all left wish us.

As I regularly minister to congregations in the most distressed districts, the effect of constant contact with hungry people is very heavy on my spirit, so that recently I felt like Elijah under the juniper tree, so wearied and ready to throw up even divine work. With such a heavy heart I went out to visit the sick and needy, and when I had relieved several families and prayed with them, I stood watching the setting sun. Why should the sun depart in so much light and glory, leaving us in darkness and want? How desirable to go from these scenes as the sun goes. But, if now departing, what would you do? I would like to be AN ANGEL OF BREAD, receiving real loaves from the hands of God and flying through these clouds to feed these poor folk. A clear voice within replied, "You are in that same service now, for it is God who places this relief in your hands by His ministering spirits who send you the means; and your work is as heavenly as if you had a white robe and flew with wings. O the joy of those moments! My light broke forth as the morning; my darkness became as the noonday; and, like Elijah's meal, it will help me to go many days.

My dear Sir, I purpose not to beg, for the Israel under your Banner have done so much better than others outside. Surely they believe these words of Israel's God to "the House of Jacob," in Isaiah lviii. 7, "To deal thy bread to the hungry, and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house"; 8, "Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily"; 10. "If thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noonday"; 11, "And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and SATISFY THY SOUL."

Again thanking all who have made so many sad hearts happy, and you also for the kind ministry of the Banner,

I am pleased to remain, yours in the trials and glories of Israel,

Dawley, Salop, Sept. 20th, 1887. Henry Roe, Minister.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

EASTBOURNE.—Furnished House or Apartments, central situation, 7 minutes' walk from sea and station. To let with attendance, moderate terms, highest references, established 13 years. Apply Sarah Meneffy, 29 Hyde Gardens.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

A LECTURE will be Delivered in the ASSOCIATION ROOMS, 14, King William-street, Charing Cross, W.C., on THURSDAY EVENING NEXT, October 13, 1887, at 7.30 o'clock, by Mr. DOUGLAS A. ONSLOW, J.P. Subject: "My Nation." Strangers will be made welcome. JAMES BILLINGTON, Sec.

Price 4s., Crown 8vo., cloth, pp. 208, illustrated with 15 Woodcuts.

THE TOWER OF EGYPT;

Or, the Types and Chronology of the Great Pyramid. By A. R. G.

In this work the chronology of the Grand Gallery and Ante-chamber passages of the Great Pyramid of Egypt is re-investigated by a NEW MEASURING KEY, based upon the sacred inch-unit, whence it is found that the Pyramid Date for the Second Advent suprisingly harmonises with that deduced by the Rev. H. Grattan Guinness from independent sources.

"We recommend this thoughtful and well-written book to the attention of all Pyramid students and readers of the Banner. . . . We shall be surprised if it is not found at last that this work is a real advance in Great Pyramid knowledge."—Banner of Israel.

LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, PATERNOSTER ROW;
R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., E.C.

Price 6d., by post 7d.; Annual Subscription 2s. 6d., post free.

THE SEPT. QUARTERLY PART OF ISRAEL'S HOPE & DESTINY.

CONTENTS:

Hebrew v. Jew. By John Samuels.—"An Appeal to the Great Ones of the Nation."—The Papacy Unchanged and Unchangeable. By J. T.—The Ancient of Days. Being Alexander MacPhail's Second Reply to Surgeon-General Grant's Views.—"The Great Pyramid."—Errors. By the Editor.—Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association.

London: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; F. W. PARRY (late Guest, Hayworth & Co.), 29, Paternoster-row.

Price 2d., by post 2½d. Second Edition, revised.

A SUMMARY OF ANGLO-ISRAELITE TEACHING,

And of the Scripture Proofs on which it rests.

By SURGEON-GEN. J. M. GRANT, M.D.,

President of the Cheltenham Association, and Vice-President of the Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, E.C.; F. W. Parry & Co., 29, Paternoster Row.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

SEND US FOUR STAMPS, and we will send you, carriage paid, samples of goods, and guarantee you to earn Five Shillings a day upwards. Satisfaction guaranteed, or stamps returned. This is genuine.—LOUIS H. HART & CO., 126, Clerkenwell Road London, E.C.

Now Ready. 16mo. Price 2s., in bevell'd boards, full gilt, gilt edges; or cloth boards, gilt lettered, 1s. 8d. Post free for P.O. A copy similar to the one accepted by the Queen, 4s.

"A BEAUTIFUL GIFT BOOK."

"MY JEWELS"

(MALACHI III. 17).

"The Precious Sons of Zion."

(LAM. IV. 7).

Choice Selections from Writers of Sacred Poetry, with Appropriate Texts from Holy Scripture, arranged for every day.

By SARAH SHARP.

In Anni Jubilaei Memoriam, 1887.

Favourably noticed by Morning Post, Daily Chronicle, Banner of Israel, Literary World, etc., etc.

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet Court, Fleet Street. May be ordered from any Bookseller.

Price 6d., post free 7d.

"THE TEN TRIBES."

Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time; and What will be Their Place in the Millennium?

A PAPER read before "The Prophecy Investigation Society" on April 9, 1887,

By ALDER SMITH, M.B., F.R.C.S.

THE LANCET says,—"The paper is worthy of perusal by all who take an interest in ethnological questions as connected with the historical and prophetical portions of holy writ."

LONDON:
R. BANKS & SON, RACQUET-COURT, FLEET-ST.

Just Published, crown 8vo., elegantly bound in cloth, price 3s. 6d.

BRITAIN in HISTORY:

ANCIENT AND MODERN.

Or, Proofs Linking Israel with Britain Throughout the Ages.

By MRS. G. A. ROGERS,

Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

London: J. NISBET & Co., 21, Berners-street, W.; ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, who will send a copy free by post on receipt of P.O.; and to be had of all Booksellers.

Thoughts for the British Folk.

Suggested by PHILO-ISRAEL.

No. 1.—Multitudinousness.
No. 2.—The Gates.
No. 3.—The Nation and Company of Nations.
No. 4.—British Wealth.
No. 5.—The Rulers Over Many Nations.
No. 6.—The Universal Creditor.
No. 7.—The Ever-Continuing British Monarchy.
No. 8.—The Scattered People at Home in Every Climate.
No. 9.—The Queen, Lords, and Commons.
No. 10.—The Unconquerable Nation.
No. 11.—The Fatally Destructive Race.
No. 12.—The Isolated Nation.
No. 13.—The Nation Which Belts the Earth.
No. 14.—The Emancipators of the Slave
No. 15.—The Christian Nation.
No. 16.—The Ten Commandments.
No. 17.—The Asylum for the Foreign Refugee.
No. 18.—Possessors of the "Sign."
No. 19.—The Universal Missionaries.
No. 20.—Testimony of the Book of Common Prayer.
No. 21.—Church and State, and also Disestablishment.
No. 22.—Our Poor Laws.
No. 23.—The Labour Question is an Identity Question.
No. 24.—Emigration.

Price 2d., 12s. 6d. per Hundred,
London: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

NON-INTOXICATING BEER

(A Splendid Dinner Beverage)

MADE IMMEDIATELY WITH

MASON'S EXTRACT OR ESSENCE OF HERBS,

Composed of Yarrow, Dandelion, Comfrey, and Horehound. Send 9 stamps for sample bottle, enough to make five gallons. NEWBALL & MASON, Chemists, Nottingham.

AGENTS WANTED. APPLY FOR TERMS.

LUNG TONIC

SAVE YOUR LIVES BY TAKING

OWBRIDGE'S LUNG TONIC

THE MIGHTY HEALER.

It has a power over disease hitherto unknown in Medicine.

Are you at all Weak-chested or inclined to be Consumptive, with just a touch of Cough now and then?

"Try this Wonderful Medicine." The Cough and Weakness will disappear as if by magic, and you will feel a strength and power you never had before.

HAVE YOU A COUGH?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT!
HAVE YOU A COLD?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Bronchitis & Asthma it relieves instantly

The Spasms of Coughing so dreadful in Whooping Cough become less with each dose of the medicine.

Prepared by W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull

Sold in Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s. by all Chemists and Patent Medicine Vendors. Wholesale all London and Provincial Houses.

CARBOLINE

1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.

Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved.

DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.

Makers:

GEORGE & WELCH

CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,

Who will forward Free of Postage.

ETHELINE

A New and most Effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles, and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of different diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 50 pages. SENT FREE on receipt of 2 stamps to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON B. MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C. Write to-day.

RHEUMATISM, GOUT,

SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, INDIGESTION, CONSTIPATION, LIVER & KIDNEY COMPLAINTS, NERVOUS DISORDERS, LADIES' AILMENTS, ETC. Promptly Relieved and CURED BY

HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT

ALL sufferers should read "Harness' Guide to Health," free by post, containing copies of Thousands of Testimonials. Every man and woman in search of Health, Strength, and Energy, should at once send a 21s. postal order to the Medical Battery Co. Ltd. 52, OXFORD ST. LONDON, W. and procure one of these famous Belts, and they may rely upon being CURED

Corner of Rathbone Place.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, OCT. 12, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 564. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1887. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
The Nizam of Hyderabad and the Russian Invasion of India	421
Britannia the Daughter of Zion. British Supremacy, Israel's Greatness. By The Rev. Thomas Lowe, M B.A.S., Stratford-on-Avon	422
More Evidence Connecting the Ancient Inhabitants of Ireland with the Phœnicians and Hebrews. By Joseph Thomson. Part I.	423
The Testimony of Canon Brigstocke in St. John, New Brunswick, Canada	424
Where is Britain's Place in the Bible?	425
The British Post-office	426
Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association	426
Correspondence	427

THE NIZAM OF HYDERABAD AND THE RUSSIAN INVASION OF INDIA.

ONE of the chief of the Mahommedan Princes of India, our oldest ally during and long before the Mutinies, has, in a manner perfectly unmistakable, entered his protest against Russia's designs upon India, and offers a magnificent sum of money to defend the Empire against the Czar's aggression. He has written a letter to the Viceroy, which first saw the light in the columns of the Times on Sept. 27, 1887, offering twenty lacs of rupees a year for three years, or £600,000 sterling in all, to be devoted to the defence of the North-west frontier. This he describes as his offering in the time of peace, as a measure of precaution. But if invasion should come, and Russia's aggressive advance terminate in hostile action, then the Nizam tells "England" that "she may count upon his sword" to repel the invader of India.

Surely there never was a more splendid tribute to the excellence of the British Government of Hindoostan than this offer of an independent Mussulman Prince, the ruler of the Dekkan, to the value he sets upon the British Râj as compared with the boasted power and government of the Czar, whose advances this native Prince is prepared, he tells us, to resist "with his sword"! "British politicians," says the Times, "can learn from his action the moral that British authority in India is both popular and useful; and, at the same time, that the menace from Russia is regarded by the responsible representatives of the Peninsula as a real and a growing danger." The Indian Princes know that the British Government is a strong, righteous, and beneficent Power, and when potentates on the spot, like the Nizam of Hyderabad, surrounded as he is on all sides by the British territory and Government, announces that opinion, we cannot wonder that races at a distance, Asiatic and African, learning the truth, are anxious also to enjoy the benefits of Britain's righteous rule. Hence the Egyptian fellahîn are content that the British should rule over them at the Nile; hence the Syrian ryots and the people of Palestine inquire of their English visitors, "When are you coming to govern us?" and hence the natives of Amatongaland and others in South Africa are submissive to the just and strong government Britain ever administers when she is unfettered by the curse of "party" struggles, as in Ireland and Wales.

The example which the Nizam has set will be followed by Mahommedan chiefs elsewhere in India, since he is their representative and leader. His letter will silence the Russian calumnies directed against our rule as oppressive and hated, especially by Mahommedans. It will show the Russians that the chief Mussulman Independent State in India is content to defend the British Râj against the Russian invasion which is clearly contemplated, and that when it comes it will find the Nizam fighting in alliance with the British against it. The letter of the Nizam, as it appears in the Times, must find a record in the BANNER, since it bears so strongly upon Our Identity, and proves God's blessing to be upon our race. The noble munificence of the Nizam is unique in Indian history, and will, we trust, meet with its due reward at our nation's hands. He has done us an immense service, and proved to the world, by his offer of £600,000, that he is sincere in his approval of our Government, and is willing not only to make enormous pecuniary sacrifices to secure its perpetuity, but that he is willing besides to throw into the scale his military strength. The following is the document:—

SPLENDID GIFT OF MONEY BY THE NIZAM FOR PURPOSES OF FRONTIER DEFENCE.

We have reason to believe that a communication has been received at the India Office from the Viceroy stating that a most important letter has been addressed to his Excellency by his Highness the Nizam of Hyderabad. The significance of this document can be best judged by a summary of its contents.

The Nizam begins by saying that he has for some time observed that the revenue of India has shown little increase, while the expenditure has gone on steadily growing, and he finds on inquiry that the latter fact is due solely to the large sums devoted to the improved defence of the Indian frontier, rendered necessary by the aggressive advance of Russia in Central Asia.

His Highness then declares his conviction that the whole of India benefits from these measures for its security against external attack, and therefore he, "as the oldest ally of the English in India," has felt it incumbent on him to show in some open way that the interests of all the inhabitants of India, British and native, are identical in this matter of frontier defence against Russian aggression.

Digitized by Google

His Highness accordingly offers the Government of the Queen-Empress, through her Majesty's representative the Viceroy, as a free gift, the contribution of 20 lakhs (£200,000) yearly for a period of three years, to be devoted to the purposes of promoting the military defence of the North-west frontier.

This very significant and welcome letter is written throughout in the most cordial and, indeed, affecting terms, and in concluding it the Nizam frankly declares that his pecuniary aid is only intended for the day of peace and preparation, and that when the hour of battle arrives with any invader of India "England can count upon his sword."

The most enlightened and powerful of the independent nations of India is to be found in the Mussulman State of the Nizam of Hyderabad. When God has put it into his heart to write such a letter as the above, and support it by such a gift as £600,000 to defend the Empire against Russia, we can see how His purposes are maturing, and how, while He brings Russian Gog against our power in the East, He means to defeat him there. Russia will be met on the frontier of India by the whole military power of Great Britain, and that effort will have the active, help, and support of the native Indian Princes. Russia will meet a united India, but need not hope for traitors in the British camp. In short, Russia is preparing for her own last dreadful fall. To make ready for the invasion of Palestine, where Ezek. xxxviii. and xxxix. tells us what her fate will be, Russia is making preparation for attacking Israel's heathen, Indian Empire as a feint, no doubt, to mask her designs on the land of the inheritance. Her policy is wonderfully skilful and astute. It will doubtless greatly hamper the efforts of our race, if we have to keep the Russians out of India and defend the Holy Land as well. We shall, therefore, fail to prevent the complete invasion of Palestine, and thus Russian Gog, obtaining the mastery there, will be in the commanding position described by Ezekiel just prior to his destruction by the direct interposition of the Lord, who will thus fight the battles of His people and destroy their insulting enemies and His own.

BRITANNIA THE DAUGHTER OF ZION. BRITISH SUPREMACY IS ISRAEL'S GREATNESS.

By the Rev. Thomas Lowe, M.B.A.S., Stratford-on-Avon.

On the occasion of my first trip to Cornwall, one fact in its topographical nomenclature particularly excited my deep interest, that was the name of the last station on the Great Western Railway on approaching Penzance, opposite St. Michael's Mount, Marazion—Marah, Bitterness; Bitter-Zion, vide Exodus xv. 23. Certainly "a tale hangs thereby." The Rev. H. Roe rightly conjectures, that in all probability some of the migrating Israelites, after the Captivity and consequent dispersion, "with sad hearts, landed just over this hill, and named the place Marazion."*

If such be not the etymological origin of this ancient British-Hebrew compound, whence its derivation? Dr. Borlase, the great Cornish antiquarian, states, that "Britain is from Brit, in Hebrew, to separate or divide, or to cut off, being the first idea that would strike a stranger viewing the land separated from the Continent."

There are many words, names of both places and persons, in our vocabulary, derived originally from the ancient Hebrew, it is supposed about 1,000 at least. The Israelitish origin of Marazion is unquestionable. It came with the migration and settlement of Israelite wanderers or captives in the remote past.

Britain being placed between Northern ice-floes and Southern fruit-fields, birds and fishes make for our island in their migration to and fro as to a half-way house. Hence, we possess a more varied fauna than any other spot on the globe of equal dimensions. Just so with regard to nations—Gaels, Romans, Saxons, Danes, Norsemen, Normans, and Jews, led by ambition, driven by necessity, or urged by hope, have made for our island.

It is not a very difficult task to distinctly trace the migration of the tribes of ancient Israel to the Isles of the West. At the period of the Celtic invasion of Britain, it is an historical fact that they found other races here on their arrival, whom they failed to exterminate. The Silures, who played so prominent a part in the resistance to the Roman invasion, and who inhabited the South of Wales and Monmouthshire, belonged to some more primitive race than the Celts. After the Celts came the Belgæ, who were of German origin, and who settled on the Southern coast. But the mass of the population was purely Celtic, consisting of two large divisions—the Gaels, who dwelt on the Northern and Western coasts of England, Scotland, and over a great part of Ireland, and the Britons, who occupied the country South of the Firths of Forth and Clyde, with the exception of what is now Hampshire and Sussex.

The Romans describe them as a tall and finely built race, recklessly brave, strikingly patriotic, courteous in manner, eloquent of speech, fond of novelty, and faithful to the family tie.

It is unquestionable that the Israelites, from very early periods of their history, possessed some knowledge of navigation. Jacob, in his blessings of the Tribes, prophetically, B.C. 1689, said of Zebulun, "He shall dwell at the haven of the sea; and he shall be for a haven of ships" (Gen. xlix. 13). Balaam said, B.C. 1452, "And ships shall come from the coast of Chittim" (Num. xxiv. 24). Deborah, the prophetess, in her song, said of the Tribes Asher and Dan, "And why did Dan remain in the ships? Asher continued on the seashore, and abode in his breaches," or creeks.

It is evident that some of the Tribes of Israel possessed sufficient nautical knowledge and resources for communication with the Western Isles.

The Israelitish portion of the swarming, migratory Celtic race was the Kymri of Wales, from which the present name Cambria is derived.

"The Briton held the Isle; avails it not
To know the story of that earliest sway;
The stream which flows through subterranean grot;
Can bear no burden, and reflect no ray;
But still it winneth its resistless way,
And soon emergeth to a course of pride,
And beauty and fertility array
Its banks, the heavens mingle with its tide,
And there selects its seat, and Power and Fame abide."

It has been well said:—"The pen of the historian is a jet of flame, dazzling at day-dawn; the science of names is many sparklets at the noon of night."

The recent annexation of Burmah is another political and territorial fact of deep interest, as indicative of the supremacy of the British nation as the Israel of God.

Last December, the Burmese envoy to Paris stated to an interviewer that the English might make Burmah one of her richest possessions. The soil is most fertile. Wherever a grain falls by chance it there produces a plant, and before long this country which is as large as France, and has 10,000,000 or 12,000,000 of inhabitants, will yield a revenue of 100,000,000 rupees.

Burmah possesses mines of sapphires, rubies, iron, and silver, and forests yielding teak in immense quantities. It is one of the richest and most fertile countries on the globe.

Such is the grand inheritance of God's Israel, wherever her drum-roll beats, wherever her trumpet-call is heard, wherever is heard the chimes of her Sabbath-bells, and the melody of her Sabbath-songs.

"Ye shall eat the riches of the Gentiles, and in their glory shall ye boast yourselves" (Isa. lxi. 6).

* "Israel's World."

Digitized by Google

MORE EVIDENCE CONNECTING THE ANCIENT INHABITANTS OF IRELAND WITH THE PHŒNICIANS AND HEBREWS.

By Joseph Thomson.

PART I.

I.—THE PARTHOLANI, FOMORII, OR NEMETHAE.

Having thus far inquired into the ancient names of Ireland,* the next question that presents itself is concerning its inhabitants, "Who were they?" The first that present themselves are the Partholani, "undoubtedly the very earliest people in this island," says Dr. Villanueva, and "of whose colonies we cannot discover a single vestige any more than we can of the Nemethæ." Some think that the Partholani were from among the aboriginal Britons, and that they arrived in the country much about the same time as the Nemethæ, i.e., as they say, in the sixth century B.C. Others get their name from the Irish words "bhoeruys-lan-ui," i.e., the shepherds, or herdsmen beyond the great ocean, and thence suppose that they must have been the first who introduced cattle into Ireland.

Others derive the name from Partholanus, the son of Sera, of the race of Japhet, and who, they say, was the first to arrive in Ireland, having set out from Scythia, Græco-Scythia, or Mygdonia (a maritime district of Macedonia) about 300 years or so after the deluge, with his sons Sanguin, Saban, and Ruturugus, their armies and colonies: and they tell us that he landed at Inversgene in Kerry, and took up his residence in Ulster at Inis Samer, in the river Erne, an island called after his castle, and from which also the river was called Samarius. Some writers add that these colonists found on their arrival other inhabitants whose origin was unknown, and who were called by the Latins aborigines, and by the Greeks giants: both thus intimating the true natives of the soil. With these gigantic aborigines, they tell us that the Partholani waged incessant warfare, with such acrimony that both were almost extinguished, though the Partholani eventually made good their footing in the country. But these and similar things told of the Partholani amid the darkness of an unknown age, are probably largely fabulous. More probable is Dr. Villanueva's opinion that the Partholani are the most ancient, or first tribes of the Phœnicians who landed on the Irish coasts. and from them was given the name of Partulin to all who had left their native country. The word "para," Syriac, means to sprout, or shoot; and tulin, number or equality, from tul, translation. But "para" also means he grew, or increased, so that partulin would mean a body of emigrants who increased or multiplied. This race the ancient Irish writers call Fomhoraigh, Formhoraice, and Formoragh, meaning, as they think, pirates who infested the coasts in defiance of the ancient colonies; and they say they were descended from Ham, or Midacritus from Africa, with the exception of the first Formorii, to whom they assign neither other sect nor origin than that above given of the Partholani.

Pliny (vii. 5, 6) says that Midacritus was the first who imported lead from the Cassiterides. But later critics assert that this was Melicartus or the Phœnician Hercules, mentioned in Sanchoniathon, who is said to have made many voyages to the West. Midacritus is a Greek name, and the Greeks were ignorant of the exact locality of the Cassiterides—see Bochart—which some think were the Scilly Isles.

Some suppose the Formorii to have been Celts: others Phœnicians, which the name would seem to indicate. In the Phœnician "famori" means the lord of an extreme land (i.e., an island), which they supposed was the utmost habitation of the globe. The Nemethæ, or Nemetii were as some say, the posterity of Nemethus, who planted a second colony in Ireland about thirty years after the death of Partholanus, when it had become almost a desert and covered with forests. The tradition runs that Neivy or Nemedius, great grandnephew of Partholan, having heard of the disasters which overtook his relations in Ireland, and as heir of Partholan desirous of succeeding him, embarked thirty-four vessels each carrying thirty persons, besides Macha his wife, and his four sons, Starn, Janbaneal, Annin, and Feargus, who followed with him in the expedition. Macha died twelve years after, and was buried in the place called from her name, Ardmach.—Mac Geoghegan. Some writers add, that on the arrival of the Bœlgæ on the coast of Heremonia, now Leinster, several of the Nemethæ retired into the northern districts of the island.

There are also some who assign a different origin to the Nemethæ, and call them Momæ, or Nomæ, from the Celtic words "Mon," or "Non," i.e., land or country, and "Mam" or "Mae," i.e., maternal, so that Nemethæ would mean the original people, or aboriginal inhabitants of Ireland.

But leaving aside the fables of the poets, it seems more certain that the name Nemethæ was given by the Phœnicians to one of their own tribal colonies as meaning pleasant, cheerful, or agreeable. For in the Phœnician nemoth means all these; from "neem," i.e., delightful, amiable, respectable. This tribe was also called Nomæ by the Phœnicians as having cemented their treaty by an oath, noma; which also indicates the truthfulness of the people; nom signifying true, from naum, a discourse or language.

II.—THE MOMONII.

Other ancient inhabitants of Ireland were the Momonii, who occupied the modern province of Munster, and which was divided into Desmond, or southern, Momonia, Homond, or northern Momonia, and Ormond, or eastern Momonia. The name of Momonians is composed of the Irish words mou-man, or pou-man, i.e., a mother country. Mou and pou were the same as magus and pagus, mais and pais; so that momon, or mouman would mean the mother country of the aborigines: this part of Ireland, being inhabited chiefly by the Nemethæ, who left the district of Bolgæ for their own residence in Leinster, it is said about 550 B.C. From the first annals of Ireland it is gathered that its southern parts were called Mumha, which it is supposed means the settlement of the aborigines: and hence its inhabitants were called Mumhanii, or Momonii, i.e., inhabitants of the country of the aborigines.

Others think Momonia is a corruption or contracted Celtic word, Mammon, i.e., the country of the great mother, and which was the ancient name of Munster: as Mama, or Moma, the name of a cavern between Elphin and Abbey-Boyle, is derived from Mammonii, i.e., (Celtic) the place of the shrine of the great mother. Tradition says that there once existed here a celebrated grotto, consecrated to Ops, the "great mother" of antiquity, whither the Belgian chiefs used occasionally to resort to consult the shades of departed heroes. This place of religious resort was also known by the several names of Sibbol Ama, Anum, Anagh, Aonagh, and Mamman; whence the Bolgæ, who had settled in the southern parts of Ireland, and who chiefly worshipped the idol Mammon, called themselves Mammanagh (Mammonii) to distinguish themselves from the Crombrii, Crumbrii, or Crimbrii, on the western coast, who worshipped Fate; and from the Belgæ who worshipped Bal, or Beal, or Baal, i.e., the sun, or the element of fire.

But it is more probable that the Momonii were a Phœnician tribe who became possessed of this district to which they gave the name of Mamon, i.e., riches, or wealth; and thence they naturally called themselves Mamonii, i.e., the wealthy,—the possessors of abundance: intimating thus the superiority of their settlement above the others in the country: probably in artificial resources, as well as luxuriancy of the soil.

Further, a comparison of these words with the superstitions of the nation will show them agreeable with Phœnician origin. Ammun in that language means the image or likeness of a mother; and Ammana, a gift or offering to a mother.

* See "Banner of Israel," Vol. x. Nos. 505—508.

Digitized by Google

Mammanagh is most probably not from Mammon, but Mammuna, which was the term given by the Phœnicians to the sacrificing priest. Hence it is also very probable that the whole tribe took their name from them, as the heads of their places of worship. The ancient Peruvians worshipped the sea as a deity under the name of Mammacocha, and paid similar honours to rivers and fountains. The ancient pagans also worshipped the sea and all large collections of water. The Book of Wisdom (xiii. 2) indicates this. Beyer says that the inhabitants of Mexico, Virginia, and Bengal adored certain rivers and fountains: for they imagined that rivers and fountains were lesser deities, or genii. The Nile was worshipped by the Egyptians (see Plutarch and Athanasius). For, Julius Firmicus says, from the universal benefits of water, they conceived it must be a god. Hence the poets call rivers and fountains sacred, because of the presiding nymphs (Hor. I. od. 1: Juven. sat. III.). Amongst the ancient idolatrous Spaniards fountains were considered divine. Seneca (epis. 41) says, "We" (i.e., the Spaniards) "venerate the sources of great rivers . . . . . the springs of warm waters are worshipped, and certain pools, etc." The Persians, the Scythians, Saxons, and other nations, as well east as west, conceived water to be sacred, as is seen from Herodotus (iv.), Strabo (xvii.), Tacitus, and others.

But though the Peruvian name for their sea-divinity bears some analogy with mamman, and Mammanach, yet it is of different origin, though Phœnician, all the while, if Dr. Villanueva is not mistaken. For, he says, "maim macha" (Phœnician) means encompassing waters: and, metaphorically, people applauding or clapping hands; in which sense we find macha in Psa. xcviii. 9, the rivers will applaud. Machoc in the original, meaning waters that brush, or sweep away, as waves do bodies upon the shore.

(To be continued.)

THE TESTIMONY OF CANON BRIGSTOCKE IN ST. JOHN, NEW BRUNSWICK, CANADA.

THE Daily Sun, of St. John, N.B., published an account, on June 22, of the presentation of the Queen's bust, by the St. George's Society, to Trinity Church in that city, being a memorial of Her Majesty, in memory of the Jubilee of the Sovereign. The bust was presented by Dr. F. E. Barker, the President of St. George's Society, and accepted, on part of the Church, by the rector, the Rev. Canon F. H. J. Brigstocke, his churchwardens, and vestry. The sermon was subsequently preached by the rector, and was one deserving of repetition in our pages. We cannot pretend to quote it fully. But its more important portions are reported below. The text was:—

"Sing unto the Lord; for He hath done excellent things: this is known in all the earth."—Isa. xii. 5.

The occasion which has brought us together to-day in this house of prayer, though not unique in the history of the nation, is unique in the circumstances which attend it. Other sovereigns than our gracious Queen, as you well know, have been permitted to celebrate the jubilee of their reign, but never has the celebration been observed amid such national power, peace, and prosperity. Abundant cause therefore at once arises for our assembling here in an unwonted manner to offer up a special tribute of praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for the excellent things which He hath done for us during the last fifty years, and to make them known in all the earth. Well it is that we have come together, and gladly do I welcome you here in this place, which is of itself a noble monument of loyalty to the throne, and a striking testimony to the value set by our forefathers on national unity and national integrity.

It is needless to say that thoughts crowd fast and thick on the mind as we turn our attention to the auspicious event we are now permitted to celebrate. But as much has already been said on the subject, and time is short, I propose passing on at once to point out what I conceive to be two of the chief lessons of the hour.

1st. A lesson of gratitude. The events and changes of the last half century have placed the British nation foremost in the world. At no period of our history has progress been so rapid, so marked, and of so beneficent a character. Take a map showing the limits of the British Empire in 1837, and compare it with one of 1887, and you will at once see one of the greatest changes that has taken place in its enormous expansion. The Roman Empire—the last great Empire of antiquity—was only one-fourth of its size. All the Russias are an eighth less. It is sixteen times larger than France, and three times larger than the United States. The British Empire is estimated to cover one-sixth of the entire surface of the globe, and embraces one-fourth of its inhabitants. The most striking event in connection with that growth was that which took place on May 1, 1876, when the Queen was proclaimed Empress of India, and nearly 200,000,000 subjects were added to the Empire. Again, there has been rapid progress in the amelioration of the condition of the poorer classes. This is chiefly seen in the establishment of a system of public education, which, though far from perfect, confers great benefits, and the extension of political power. The time was when "the people" meant a mass of wronged persons, or at least those who were supposed to have no rights and were called to obey laws which were made solely by and too much in the interest of the higher classes. The rights of all are now respected, and anyone who dares to proclaim himself the apostle of liberty is regarded with suspicion as an instigator of sedition or the advocate of a dangerous licentiousness. In this connection there have been many and fierce struggles, and so there always will be, so long as selfishness and avarice make men unreasonable and exacting. But they are fewer than they were, and will one day, we trust, cease to be known in our national life. The masses enter now into the care and consideration of the nation, and "the rights of the people" is no longer a political watch-word. Note again the changes made by the development of mechanical skill and the discoveries of modern science. I need not particularise. It is well known how the application of steam and electricity have entirely altered our modes of trade, and revolutionised the world. Hardly any more striking example of the changes that have taken place in the time occupied in the transmission of news is to be found than that furnished in the Royal Gazette of this province, dated August 5, 1837. From that document, for which I am indebted to our city historian, I learn that the death of King William IV., and the accession of Queen Victoria, were not officially known here till forty-six days—more than six weeks—after they occurred; while now all that takes place in any part of the world is known as soon as it transpires. The world, I say, has been revolutionised. The modes of carrying on commerce are all altered, when a merchant of Japan can telegraph to his agent in London or New York, where millions pass from house to house by the stroke of the pen; when the crops of the field or plantation are all pledged for the market before they are harvested; when railroads cross continents and open a line of rapid communication round the world. All nations, races, and people, really form one vast organisation of labour. A brotherhood of nations is formed, and a world-wide sympathy has, to a great extent, sprung up. Through the rapid means of communication, and the vast productive power now in operation, famine is almost impossible. Through the advancement of social science pestilence is a very rare calamity, health and vigour of constitution have been much improved, and even duration of life has been extended. Through the progress of medical science greater skill has been developed in the treatment of disease; and suffering has been greatly lessened.

Nor would I omit to mention the advancement of knowledge that has characterised our age, and the placing that knowledge within the reach of the people by means of educational institutions of every kind, and public libraries. And I would further remember that tide of Christian benevolence and philanthropy which has flowed forth and caused to be erected hospitals, asylums, homes for the diseased, the incurable, the fallen, and the destitute. Parks, too, have been opened by many cities for the recreation and amusement of the toiling masses, and Christian sympathy has stepped in to regulate the hours of labour for children and others in factories, lest the pressure of work should bring on disease and premature death.

When we think of all these things, as we are called to do at this time, what ought, what must our feelings be but those of gratitude to Almighty God, who, notwithstanding our national sins and vices, has been pleased to bless us so abundantly? What abundant reason have we to praise our God with the best member that we have that He has given us such enormous territories, with all their vast resources—lands, in many respects, flowing with milk and honey—where our sons, and daughters, and overcrowded populations, may find a home and sustenance. We know that others will take a different view. Their thoughts will run in a different strain. Look, they say, at the general depression, and how can we be thankful and rejoice? Nay, more, it is thought that England has reached its climax of glory, and that the future will see her decline. We cannot stay to-day to argue the point, nor is it worth while to hazard predictions of what shall be; but of this we are sure, that nothing can tend more to darken the future than to forget the lovingkindness of the Lord, and withhold from Him the honour due unto His holy name:—

Digitized by Google

"For the priceless gifts of knowledge.
Which by genius now are ours;
For the ever patient science,
Which extended human powers;
For the girdle which has girdled
With quick sympathy the earth;
For the intercourse of nature,
Which checks the steps of dearth;
For the deepening sense of brotherhood,
Which makes all nations one;
For the dawning love by which, O God,
Thy will may yet be done.
We praise Thee, O God."

2nd. A lesson of responsibility. It is by no chance that we are the greatest nation on the earth, and as such have a birthright of great blessings. God is the judge. He putteth down one and setteth up another. He distributes His gifts for the good of all, and calls those who have them to disperse and scatter them abroad. Holding, then, as we do, a position of exceptional power and influence, we are called to great responsibility. We cannot doubt that our position, as a nation, is closely analogous to that of Israel of old. Israel was given a unique position that it might be a divine instrument for blessing the world. And we, in like manner, occupy a position not granted to any other nation, that we may serve all mankind. Our aim should be, surely, that the British nation should be the realm of religion, truth, justice, and righteousness. The power we have, and the vast possessions we occupy, are not for our own aggrandisement, but that we may make known the religion of Jesus Christ and the blessed fruits of righteousness as taught us by Him. Too often has the British nation been known abroad for its greed of gain and oppression of weaker races. Vengeance has often quickly followed such conduct, and valuable lives have been sacrificed. We have in Christianity the true ideal of what our duty is, and the power to carry it out. Wherever the British nation holds sway, there may the incarnate sorrows of the world be known and manifested by a reverence for humanity and a reverence for God. But while directing attention to the blessings that have come to us through the last fifty years, and our responsibilities in possessing them, we must specially note the fact that we are very largely indebted for them all to the sovereign on the throne, our noble and gracious Queen.

So far the rev. rector of St. John, N.B. Unless we had been sure that the preacher was not an Anglo-Israelite by belief, we should have concluded from the tenor of his sermon that he was impressing on his hearers how exactly we British, nationally, correspond to the Biblical portrait of the House of Israel! He admitted that our position was closely analogous to that of "Israel of old." As Israel was set apart to bless and benefit the world, so we British, he declared, bless and benefit it to-day. We are, he added, exclusively so blessed, and we "serve all mankind!" Surely the Rev. Canon Brigstocke was here knowingly drawing the portrait of Israel when he pointed to the British nation and its doings in the present day? "Israel shall blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit," being a "blessing to all nations, families, and kindreds of the earth." For this is the testimony of Scripture respecting Israel (Isa. xxvii. 6; Gen. xxii. 18; xxviii. 14; Acts iii. 25). The Rector of St. John, N.B., tells us that the British are doing just those very things! It did not occur to him to say that the British, therefore, must be Israel! That conclusion ought to have occurred to his mind, and it ought to have found a place in his sermon on that memorable Jubilee day, June 21 last. But he was silent as to the fact, and we must therefore, we suppose, rank him as one of "the blind witnesses" of a stupendous, glorious circumstance, which is our nation's crown in the sight of God. The rev. preacher was careful to explain to his hearers how magnificently the British Empire had grown during the present reign—that it was "the foremost nation of the world," therefore, "the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath, and high above all the other nations of the world," as Israel was to be (Deut. xxviii. 1, 13). He pointed out that the British Empire was in area one-sixth of the surface of the globe, and that in population it embraced one-fourth of its inhabitants. Its Heathen Empire, he admitted, contains 200 millions of individuals. These Israelitish traits and features the rector saw in the lineaments of the British folk, yet he never so much as hinted that the British and Israel are one and the same people. Yet the rector has one good point in common with ourselves. He called on his hearers "to praise the Lord" for His goodness to our race! He would not have us ungratefully forget the lovingkindnesses, undeserved as they are, of our God, and he quotes some verses, the burden of which is so dear to our own hearts, on this side the water—namely, "Praise to the Lord Jehovah." "Hallelujah to the Lord and to His Christ!"

WHERE IS BRITAIN'S PLACE IN THE BIBLE?

A FRIEND in Chatteris, Cambridgeshire, has written to us asking for Identity literature for circulation in his neighbourhood, and in making that request gave us his views of the whole subject in the following rather forcible and happy way. "I have been," he says, "a reader of the Bible for fifty years and for many years there have been two questions exercising my mind—namely,

"1. As there are many great and glorious things in the Bible promised to Israel; where are the Israelites?

"2. There are many great and glorious things now being enjoyed by the English people. Where are the British mentioned in the Bible? In short 'Where is Israel to be found in the world?' and where is Britain or 'England' to be found in the Bible? These two questions I find are answered by the Identity alone!"

So far our correspondent. The questions he puts to himself and thus answers are indeed of the greatest moment. They concern God's glory, His faithfulness, and His love towards His "chosen ones."

Of course, as our friend puts his two questions, much of the point of the matter has been lost or escaped observation. For when he asked "where the Israelites are?" and "where England is to be found in the Bible?" he omitted to state the governing fact, that the very self-same "great and glorious things," which the Bible promises to Israel, those very great and glorious things are to-day in the exclusive enjoyment by the British nation. It is the identity of blessings promised to the one (Israel) and enjoyed now exclusively by the other (the British) that settles the question of the oneness of the two peoples. Because there can be no question here of the fickleness of the great Promiser, the Lord Jehovah. "He changeth not" (Malachi iii. 6). Therefore to whom He promised, to them He must perform, and give what He has promised. What He promised to Israel, Israel and no other nation must be found to be enjoying, if we are to continue to respect the faithfulness and truth of the Divine Promiser. To doubt Him and His oath is blasphemy! and therefore we declare that the British, who enjoy all the blessings promised to Israel, must be "lost Israel" themselves, since they are not Jews. Britain's place in the Bible is consequently Israel's, and wherever we read there of the covenants and promises God made with Israel, we look for the fulfilments thereof in the British people; since facts of their history and their present circumstances show that they are in enjoyment of the promised blessings.

Digitized by Google

The case may be put in another way, as illustrating Britain's place in the Bible. Let us suppose that the British nation long since ceased to exist, and their place in the world knew them no more. If they were removed from the scene altogether, then which among the nations would be able to respond to Israel's prophetic rôle? What nation would take, as they do, the Gospel "to all the nations, families, and kindreds of the earth"? Not one! Not the Germans or Scandinavian races, the only European protesting nations; not even American, Christian, Protestant Manasseh! None of these aim, as the British do, to take the Gospel and the Bible, the Sabbath, and the Decalogue to all the inhabitants of the globe! The removal of the British, then, would leave a terrible spiritual blank and vacancy in the machinery of God's good purposes towards the world at large, and no means would exist for carrying out the Lord's designs regarding the evangelisation of the earth by the instrumentality of His people Israel. There would be no Israel existing in fact, doing Israel's work; and God's declaration that He had "created, made, formed and redeemed," this His peculiar people to show forth His praise, would be found untrue, because no such people, in point of fact, would have existed since the advent, according to our hypothesis! Britain would have had no place in the Bible, because there would be no British Empire in the world, and God's promises, as detailed in the Bible, would never find the Israel to whom they were given and assigned. Thank God, however, Israel exists as the British nation to-day, and Britain has a place in the Bible, even the place that Israel occupies there! The great and precious promises made to Israel in the Word are now in actual possession and enjoyment of our own nation, our opponents and our own observation being the witnesses. That being the case, we have no difficulty in arriving at the conclusion that Lost "Israel" and the British are one people, living to-day incog. and under an alias. The British are Israel, and the place of the British in the Bible is well known now to all Anglo-Israelites!

THE BRITISH POST OFFICE.

We had lately the privilege of witnessing the operations of the General Post Office and the new Telegraph Offices in St. Martin's-le-Grand, between the hours of 5 and 6 p.m., just at the time when the 8 o'clock mail was being sorted for despatch. It was a sight of the deepest interest, once seen, never to be forgotten. There were before us, in the General Post Office Department, 1,500 employés engaged in sorting, stamping, and arranging 1,500,000 letters, which were to be disposed of, and cleared out of the General Post Office, between 6.30 p.m., and the prescribed hour, 8 o'clock. It was a busy scene indeed, one which could not be paralleled in all Europe or America, and therefore in the world! The British General Post Office is thus the largest and most important in the world! Israel is, no doubt, "the head and not the tail; above only and not beneath," even in respect to the Post Office! The Blue Book just issued regarding the operations of the past year give a wonderfully graphic account of the work done in the United Kingdom. Thus the total of all letters, post-cards, book packets, circulars, and newspapers, delivered within the United Kingdom during the twelve months was the magnificent amount of 2,160,100,000; the letters alone figuring for 1,459,900,000! The parcels were 32,860,000 more; making a grand total of 2,192,960,000, an increase of nearly five per cent. over last year's results! Surely there was never such a grand Post Office as ours! and none other now existing anywhere compares with it for size, and the greatness and grandeur of its operations. The Times, commenting lately on the last Report of the Postmaster-General, made this just remark: "On the whole there is not a firm in the Kingdom which consults the interests of its customers more loyally or gives them better value for their money, when it can be persuaded to take their orders," than the British Post Office.

Adverting to the Telegraph business of the Post Office, it is in its London centre simply gigantic. It employs 2,500 persons, male and female, at the instruments during the day in the buildings in St. Martin's-le-Grand; and the work carried on by night as well as by day is on the grandest scale. The Blue Book report tells us that in 1886-7 there were 40,137,145 messages sent along the wires; being over 10,000,000 more than in 1885-6. The revenue derived in 1886-7 was £1,354,879, against £1,277,606 in the previous year. The London local messages during the six months of cheap sixpenny telegrams, have increased 50 per cent., being 3,800,000 in number! The number of messages throughout the country for the same period of six months, gives that of messages at 19,071,782, as compared with 16,737,837 in 1885-6. The increase was 2,333,945, or at the rate of 14 per cent. increase. The revenue showed an increase of £75,670, or 13 per cent. increase on last year. The nett revenue of the whole Post Office, putting expenses against gross receipts of the various departments, letters, parcels, telegraph, postal order, money order, life assurance, savings' bank, &c., &c., was £2,514,635. This is a highly creditable result, seeing that the telegraphs do not yet nearly pay, though the earnings of this department are yearly rising with "leaps and bounds." We give these details to prove to our readers that the British are, even in the Post Office, a "great and mighty" nation, wealthy to a degree, a highly educated, mercantile, prosperous, people; "the head and not the tail," "high above all the nations" even in respect to their Postal arrangements. We are thankful that the matter stands so, because we have here a fresh cause to praise God for His faithfulness to His promises to His people; and see that even in such a matter as this, His word is inviolable, and that what He has promised He has made good to the jot and to the tittle.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

This Society, now in the tenth year of its existence, is busily engaged in pressing on the great Identity work, as it did in the early days of its formation. The commodious and convenient premises it now occupies are daily becoming more known and better appreciated by its members and friends.

Believers in the great truths of "Our Israelitish Origin" coming from the provinces will always find here a home-like centre and a hearty welcome, amid the din and bustle of this mysterious London.

The summer months are times when but little can be done in the way of meetings, lectures, or addresses; yet the work has been going on in other directions from this centre of Identity truth.

Our Bible readings were suspended for two months only—August and September—and met again in force on Tuesday, October 4th, our first study being Ezek. xvii. As the members choose the subject of enquiry, each in their turn, the greatest interest is shown in the various questions brought under consideration from time to time.

Strangers and enquirers will be gladly welcomed to these, as to all other meetings.

A series of twelve addresses on alternate Thursday afternoons and evenings in each week was commenced on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 6, in the Library of the Association, with an address by the Rev. Hibbert Newton, D.D., Vicar of St. Michael's, Southwark. Subject: "The Twelve Tribes in England."

This was followed by an address on Thursday evening, Oct. 13, by Douglas A. Onslow, Esq., J.P. Subject: "My Nation." These lectures commence at 3.30 and 7.30 respectively.

Particulars can always be found advertised, week by week, in the Banner of Israel.

The Association has been busy, during the months of August and September, promulgating the truths of the Identity by means of sermons and lectures in various parts of Scotland. The Secretary opened his commission on August 24, with a lecture entitled, "A Common-Sense View of our Israelitish Origin." This was given in the Parish Church-hall at Bathgate, a mining district near Edinburgh, under the presidency of T. Maxwell Durham, Esq. A fairly good audience attended.

Digitized by Google

On the following evening at the Baptist Church, Helensburgh, one of the most beautiful of the Scotch Churches, a large and influential audience gathered, under the presidency of the Rev. G. A. Wilson, the pastor, who, by the way, is an Identity believer. This was a bright, interesting meeting, such an one as must be productive of good to the cause.

We then proceeded due North to Peterhead, a large fishing-port from which the vessels depart for the whale and other fisheries. The fishing season just ended, there were hundreds of men in the town whose homes lay in nearly every port around our coast. This was new ground wherein to sow the seed, and such an opportunity, as does not often present itself for spreading the knowledge of the British being Israel. On the Sabbath forenoon and afternoon, it was our high privilege to address over 2,000 persons from the pulpit of the parish church, followed on the Monday evening by a lecture in the Music-hall, presided over by the Rev. James Stewart, M.A., minister of the parish. In these three meetings some 3,000 persons or more must have been present, including two Jews from Russia who were paying their annual business visit to this market. Many questions were put at the close of the meeting, and the local newspaper gave, in its report of this lecture, the names of the questioner, as well as the questions and replies.

Leaving this interesting town and its associations, we journeyed still farther north to Macduff, where, under the presidency of the genial Bailie Gordon, we lectured on Wednesday, August 31, in the Gordon Hall; and on the following evening, with the same chairman in the Congregational Church, Banff.

Sunday, September 4, found us advocating our cause in the fine old parish church of Bervie, where morning and evening very large congregations were gathered. This is the fifth year the Rev. John Brown, parish minister, has opened his Church to give us a welcome.

On the following Tuesday we lectured in the United Presbyterian Church, Montrose, to a fairly good audience. Sunday, September 11, found us for the seventh year in succession occupying the pulpit of our old and valued friend, the Rev. Charles Morrison, M.A., in the parish church of Laurencekirk. Here, again, large congregations gathered morning and evening, and we have reason to know that among them are some warm-hearted Israelites, who, under God, owe their knowledge of Identity truths to these services.

Our last lecture was delivered at Kirkpatrick, Durham, near Castle Douglas, where an audience, filling the roomy lecture-hall, under the presidency of the Rev. James Stark, parish minister, met to hear their first public address on the "British being the House of Israel." Here, again, the same lively interest in our subject was manifested as at other places of meeting; thus, in three weeks, we were privileged to address THIRTEEN audiences, numbering SEVERAL THOUSANDS of persons, and travelled nearly 2,000 miles.

In every town and district the local and county newspapers reported our meetings, in two or three cases making it a special feature in their summaries of events. This cannot fail of doing good, if it accomplishes no more than calling attention to our existence as an Association at work.

Here we must express our gratitude to God, the Giver of all good and the Preserver of life, for His manifold blessings in caring for us in these labours and journeyings; also to those brethren in the ministry who so kindly opened their hearts, and homes, and Churches to welcome and help us in carrying on the work. May God bless them in all things yet more and more abundantly.

We have determined, with the help and blessing of God, to give 100 lectures by the time our next Annual Meeting of 1888 is held, and shall be pleased to receive applications for the same, the terms being within the power of any who may desire them in their respective districts.

This Association prepared a beautiful illuminated address for presentation to Her Most Gracious Majesty on the occasion of Her Majesty's Jubilee, which was duly forwarded, and which Her Majesty most graciously received and acknowledged. The cost of preparing this address was specially defrayed by H. H. Pain, Esq., one of our Council.

Several small parcels of literature, leaflets, &c., have been sent out to various friends.

The Council trusts that these efforts of the Association, covering such a large area as they do in their operations, and opening up new centres throughout the United Kingdom, may meet with due recognition from Identity believers everywhere in enlarged donations and subscriptions, to enable them to carry on the work effectively and without undue anxiety.

Subscriptions and donations, which are much needed, will only benefit the Association when sent direct to the offices, 14, King William-street, Charing-cross, London, W.C.

JAMES BILLINGTON, Secretary.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—My committee would esteem it a great favour if you would kindly insert, in your next issue of the BANNER, the appeal to your readers, which I enclose, and you would thereby render great assistance to our noble cause. With best wishes,

Yours sincerely,

J. W. WILLET, Hon. Sec.

AN APPEAL.

I am asked to bespeak the kindly sympathy and assistance of the Editor of the BANNER, by bringing to the notice of his many readers the following facts regarding our present position here in Cubitt Town, Poplar. For the past seven years an important Identity work has been carried on, systematically, by Mr. Joseph Hook; he is now ably and actively assisted both in preaching the Identity and in the distribution of leaflets, &c. During the past Summer months an active campaign has been carried on in the open air, with the best possible results. The Hall we meet in, at present, we can only have on Sundays, and it is becoming too small for our rapidly increasing congregations. We are negotiating for larger premises of our own, where we can hold week-night meetings as well as our Sunday services. From £50 to £100 is required to take this and furnish it. Our congregation is composed entirely of working people. The depression in trade is keenly felt here at present, and we are unable to raise this money among ourselves. We feel the importance of the work, and the great success we are now meeting with justifies us in asking a little assistance from our fellow-believers beyond our own sphere. We therefore make this appeal to the numerous readers of the BANNER, who have been blessed with a larger portion of this world's goods, to help us in our present emergency, and so enable our faithful band of willing workers to carry on, successfully, their good work during the coming Winter. We feel assured this appeal will not be made in vain.

Contributions, however small, will be thankfully received and acknowledged by J. W. WILLET, 221, Manchester-road, Cubitt Town, Poplar, London, E.

September 24, 1887.

IS NOT KNIGHTHOOD AN IDENTITY?

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—In this week's BANNER you notice the knighting of Dr. Morell Mackenzie, by our beloved Queen of Israel, in recognition of his successful treatment of the Crown Prince of Germany. One would think out of gratitude the Prince or the Emperor of Germany would have bestowed the title. The Jews do not knight any one. I am not aware any of the Gentile nations do. God changed Jacob's name to Israel, made him a Prince, gave him power with God and man. Jacob knighted the two sons of Joseph, and gave them his own name Israel.

I am, dear Sir, yours truly,

Plymouth, Sept. 24th, 1887. JAMES WRIGHT.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—In Farrar's "Life of Christ," volume ii., page 48, chapter 39, on "Jesus at the Feast of Tabernacles," I read the following words, "and on each day the Temple trumpets sounded twenty-one times an inspiring and triumphant blast." Can this be the origin of our Royal Salute?

Yours fraternally,

WILFRID CARTER.

27, Peel-street, Dingle, Liverpool, August 30th, 1887.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

PARTIAL BOARD FOR ONE OR TWO GENTLEMEN in the superior house of Widow Lady with grown-up family. Home comforts, bath, piano, etc. Near Clapham-common Railway Station. A desirable home for educated gentlemen. Terms moderate. Excellent references given and required. Address—Mrs. E., Stafford House, Nightingale Lane, Clapham.

EASTBOURNE.—Furnished House or Apartments, central situation, 7 minutes' walk from sea and station. To let with attendance, moderate terms, highest references, established 13 years. Apply Sarah Menefy, 29, Hyde Gardens.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

A LECTURE will be Delivered in the ASSOCIATION ROOMS, 14, King William-street, Charing Cross, W.C., on THURSDAY AFTERNOON NEXT, October 20, 1887, at 3.30 o'clock, by MISS E. M. BABINGTON. Subject: "The Three Emigrant Tribes of Palestine." Strangers will be made welcome.
JAMES BILLINGTON, Sec.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

THE BIBLE READINGS
are held
EVERY TUESDAY AFTERNOON,
At 3.30, in the Library of the Association, 14, King William Street, Charing Cross, W.C. All friends are invited.

Price 6d., by post 7d.; Annual Subscription 2s. 6d., post free.

THE OCTOBER QUARTERLY PART
OF ISRAEL'S HOPE & DESTINY.

CONTENTS:

Hebrew v. Jew. By John Samuels.—"An Appeal to the Great Ones of the Nation."—The Papacy Unchanged and Unchangeable. By J. T.—The Ancient of Days. Being Alexander MacPhail's Second Reply to Surgeon-General Grant's Views.—"The Great Pyramid."—Errors. By the Editor.—Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association.

London: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; F. W. PARRY (late Guest, Hayworth & Co.), 29, Paternoster-row.

PAPAL IDOLATRY.

An Exposure of the Dogma of Transubstantiation and Mariolatry: to which is added "MY REASONS WHY I WILL NEVER GO BACK TO THE CHURCH OF ROME."

Price 6d., by post 7d.

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, and all Booksellers.

EDWARD HINE'S PUBLICATIONS
SHOULD BE READ & DISTRIBUTED.
FORTY-SEVEN IDENTIFICATIONS, 6d.; post free, 7d.
CUI BONO? 6d., post free, 7d.
LOST ISRAEL FOUND, 3s. 6d., post free, 3s. 9d.
F. W. PARRY, 29, Paternoster Row, London, or direct of ISAAC LOVELAND, Shoreham, Sevenoaks.

SEND US FOUR STAMPS, and we will send you, carriage paid, samples of goods, and guarantee you to earn Five Shillings a day upwards. Satisfaction guaranteed, or stamps returned. This is genuine.—LOUIS H. HART & Co., 126, Clerkenwell Road London, E.C.

Just Published, crown 8vo., elegantly bound in cloth, price 3s. 6d.

BRITAIN in HISTORY:
ANCIENT AND MODERN.
Or, Proofs Linking Israel with Britain Throughout the Ages.

BY MRS. G. A. ROGERS,
Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

London: J. NISBET & Co., 21, Berners-street, W.; ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, who will send a copy free by post on receipt of P.O.; and to be had of all Booksellers.

Now Ready. 16mo. Price 2s., in bevelled boards, full gilt, gilt edges; or cloth boards, gilt lettered, 1s. 8d. Post free for P.O. A copy similar to the one accepted by the Queen, 4s.

"A BEAUTIFUL GIFT BOOK."
"MY JEWELS"
(MALACHI III. 17).
"The Precious Sons of Zion."
(LAM. IV. 7).

Choice Selections from Writers of Sacred Poetry, with Appropriate Texts from Holy Scripture, arranged for every day.

BY SARAH SHARP.
In Anni Jubilaei Memoriam, 1887.

Favourably noticed by Morning Post, Daily Chronicle, Banner of Israel, Literary World, etc., etc.

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet Court, Fleet Street. May be ordered from any Bookseller.

Price 6d., post free 7d.

"THE TEN TRIBES."

Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time; and What will be Their Place in the Millennium?

A PAPER read before "The Prophecy Investigation Society" on April 9, 1887,

By ALDER SMITH, M.B., F.R.C.S.

THE LANCET says,—"The paper is worthy of perusal by all who take an interest in ethnological questions as connected with the historical and prophetical portions of holy writ."

LONDON:
R. BANKS & SON, RACQUET-COURT, FLEET-ST

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON
RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

An Elementary Digest or Sketch of the Chief Facts and Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Adapted to the Unlearned and Unscientific 56 pages, Illustrated with Diagrams, price 4d., post free 5d. 10th Thousand.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

Our Identity: What it is Not; What it is; and Our Obligations To-day in Respect to it. Being a Lecture recently delivered in London by Philo-Israel, and published by special request. Price 2d., a reduction for quantities.

The History of the House of Israel. How They Were Lost and How They Were Found. Told for the children. Price 6d., cloth 1s.; post free 7d. and 1s. 1d. Fifth edition.

NON-INTOXICATING BEER
(A Splendid Dinner Beverage)
MADE IMMEDIATELY WITH
MASON'S EXTRACT OR ESSENCE OF HERBS,
Composed of Yarrow, Dandelion, Comfrey, and Horehound. Send 9 stamps for sample bottle, enough to make five gallons. NEWBALL & MASON, Chemists, Nottingham.
AGENTS WANTED. APPLY FOR TERMS.

LUNG TONIC
SAVE YOUR LIVES BY TAKING OWBRIDGE'S
LUNG TONIC
THE MIGHTY HEALER.
It has a power over disease hitherto unknown in Medicine.
Are you at all Weak-chested or inclined to be Consumptive, with just a touch of Cough now and then?
"Try this Wonderful Medicine." The Cough and Weakness will disappear as if by magic, and you will feel a strength and power you never had before.
HAVE YOU A COUGH?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT!
HAVE YOU A COLD?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.
Bronchitis & Asthma it relieves instantly
The Spasms of Coughing so dreadful in Whooping Cough become less with each dose of the medicine.
Prepared by W. T OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull
Sold in Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s. by all Chemists and Patent Medicine Vendors. Wholesale all London and Provincial Houses.

CARBOLINE
1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.
Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved.
DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.
Makers:
GEORGE & WELCH
CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,
Who will forward Free of Postage.

ETHELINE
A New and most Effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE.
To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of different diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 50 pages. SENT FREE on receipt of 1 stamps to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON B. MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C. Write to-day.

BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA,
COUGHS, COLDS,
CONSUMPTION,
and all Pulmonary Affections can be immediately relieved and rapidly CURED by simply using the
AMMONIAPHONE
FOR THE Voice, Throat, Chest, and Lungs.
21s. post free.
WILL LAST FOR YEARS.
Used and recommended by the Royal Family, and principal Physicians, Clergymen, Vocalists, and Public Speakers throughout the country. New illustrated Pamphlet with copies of Thousands of Testimonials may be had FREE OF CHARGE on application to Medical Battery Co. Ltd.
52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.
Corner of Rathbone Place.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW, WEDNESDAY, OCT. 19, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."
(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 565. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1887. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
The Great South African Railway, and What it Means	429
The Three Hundredth Anniversary of the Defeat of the Spanish Armada. By John S. Anderson	430
More Evidence Connecting the Ancient Inhabitants of Ireland with the Phœnicians and Hebrews. By Joseph Thomson. Part II.	431
God's Royal Bounty to the Children of Israel, and the Manner of It	433
Review	434
BANNER OF ISRAEL British-Israelite Jubilee Funds	435
Correspondence	435

THE GREAT SOUTH AFRICAN RAILWAY, AND WHAT IT MEANS.

THOSE who have read the remarkable paper in the Morning Post of October 6, 1887, will know the meaning of the title of this article, and the direction in which it points. Which of us was aware, two years ago, that at this date there would be a railway, in full working order, between Cape Town on the far South, and Kimberley on the West of the Free Orange State—650 miles in length? Who would have imagined that this railway would probably, ere long, have to be prolonged, North-eastward through the Orange Free State and the South of the Transvaal, to meet the new railway now being made, and nearly completed, between Delagoa Bay on the Indian Ocean, and the Transvaal? Not only are these the facts, but there are four separate British railways, now completed, from the coasts of the Cape Colonies to the borders of the Orange Free State, pouring their masses of British passengers and colonists into that State and the Transvaal, as diggers for gold and diamonds. These four lines are: (1) that from Cape Town to Kimberley, just mentioned; (2) one from Port Alfred to Colesberg; (3) from East London to Aliwal; and (4) from Durban to Newcastle. If any one will examine these routes with a good map, he will find that the Orange Free State is attacked, by the British railway invasion, on four sides—namely, on the West, from Cape Town, at Kimberley; on the East, at Newcastle, from Durban; and on the South-east and South-west, at Colesberg, and Aliwal, from Port Alfred and East London respectively. The consequence is, that the influx of British settlers, attracted by diamonds and gold, has been so enormous, that it bids fair, ere long, to swamp the Boer element in the Orange Free State altogether, and so cause it to become British by the mere majority of numbers. "The area of the State," says the Morning Post, "is 70,000 square miles, or more than 10,000 larger than England and Wales, with a white population of less than 70,000, or of one per square mile! The natives number 75,000. The capital, Bloemfontein, has a population of only 2,567 inhabitants, and is really little more than an overgrown village. Of the whites, a considerable number are British subjects;" and now, with these four British railways, pouring their living freights into the country, "the British element is increasing so rapidly, that at no distant date the Boers must go under." The Boers' fighting strength now is only 15,000 men; while the rapidity with which the four railways could pour many times 15,000 men into the country, can easily be imagined. But here comes a more unlooked-for result still. We have never been in hostility against the Orange Free State. But the Boers of the Transvaal have, as we all know, been allowed to pose as the conquerors of the British, under Mr. Gladstone's late Government. That question is now, however, being amicably settled in another way, and the preponderance of British-Israel is asserting itself by the Israelite gifts of population and wealth. There are only 40,000 Boers in the Transvaal altogether; a country as large as the British Islands! Pretoria, the capital, is only a village of 2,000 or 3,000 inhabitants. But gold has, as we have before noticed in the BANNER (Vol. x., p. 464; xi. p. 190), worked wonders! It has brought into the Transvaal, between Pretoria and the sea, an alien British population, half as large as the whole of the Boer race. Barberton, a town that is the offspring of the gold mines there, possesses a population of between fifteen to twenty thousand souls. In one town there are thus half the entire population of the Transvaal, who are spread over 115,000 square miles. The railway from Delagoa Bay to Barberton is approaching completion, and will attack the Transvaal with its fresh hordes of British thews and sinews from the North. That railway will have a British man-of-war or two at its terminus in Delagoa Bay, able to send its aid to the British settlers, if need be.

Where will the Boers be two or three years hence against such tremendous odds as these? Attacked and "pushed" on all sides as Ephraim was "to push the peoples together to the ends of the earth" (Deut. xxxiii. 17), who can doubt that in the Transvaal and the Orange Free State too, the same events are shortly to be brought about and enacted, which in New Zealand settled the Maori question, and in Canada disposed of the French difficulty? The multitudinous Israelites, attracted by gold, will become the masters of the two Boer States! and the conquerors of the latter will be Israel's gold, which made the five railways, now built or building, being the gift of God to Joseph's seed, which apportioned to them "the precious things of the lasting hills," the gold and diamond mines, the coal, iron, and silver, which Deut. xxxiii. 15 endowed them with, exclusively, for ever! The object of the Cape Government is, to extend their existing railway through the Orange Free State, to the gold fields of the Transvaal beyond, and thus to join the railway, now making, from Delagoa Bay to the Transvaal. "The enterprise of the Cape Colonists may be gathered from the fact that they have offered to spend £2,800,000 on this undertaking, of which the bulk will be invested on foreign soil, only fifty-one miles out of the 452 miles of proposed railway being on Cape territory. It is impossible not to admire the pluck and generosity of this offer. Without any responsibility or expenditure on the part of the Orange Free State, it would open up that State from one end to the other, and not only connect it at a stroke with European steam communication, but give it three sea outlets for its produce—Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, and Port Alfred." But the Boers of the Transvaal, on the other hand, are opposed to this plan, and wish to have nothing to do with the Cape railways. It will immediately be settled whether the Cape Government will have its way, or whether the Boers shall carry out their plans. In either case Israel must win, because it is proposed (and it must, eventually, be carried out) that the Portuguese be asked to sell Delagoa Bay to us, which is of immense importance to our Empire, and none to them. The Morning Post, contemplating the effect of President Kruger's success in persuading President Brand to refuse the Cape proposals, goes on as follows:—

Digitized by Google

Admit that he succeeds, he simply manages to oppose a mop to the Atlantic, for the development of a rival Delagoa Bay route will be attended with precisely the same results—the stultification of the Boer element—while, moreover, the Cape Government will be driven from a friendly tolerant attitude into an attempt to place the Transvaal at its mercy by devoting the money it wants to spend on railways to the purchase of Delagoa Bay. Fortunately, Sir John Brand is not disposed to favour racial conflicts of any kind, and it is expected that he will exercise his influence not only to divert President Kruger from his scheme, but to secure his acquiescence in a complete arrangement among all concerned for the general extension of railways throughout South Africa, and the establishment of a Customs union to replace the revenue tariffs between the different States, now productive of so much ill-feeling. Should he adopt this policy, and succeed in impressing President Kruger with it, the development of South Africa will be immensely accelerated. At present British capital is pouring readily into it, and the goldfields are attracting swarms of emigrants. The influx of both, however, would be at once largely increased if it were generally known that an agreement had been arrived at between the two Boer States and the two British Colonies to work harmoniously in regard to railway development, and take in hand at once the completion of the through line from Cape Town to Delagoa Bay. Such a policy would be hailed with pleasure by the public of this country, which would be encouraged to open, without delay, negotiations for the purchase of Delagoa Bay from Portugal. That is a matter for which events are rapidly preparing the ground, and it is to be trusted that the Government of Portugal will see its way to accede to our wishes whenever they are expressed, since the importance of the place for South Africa increases every day, while for the Portugese territories it possesses but limited value.

So far the Morning Post! How wonderful are the ways of our God! How silently and admirably He works out His plans! He promised multitudinousness and "the power to get wealth" to His people Israel, and by means of these two gifts He brings to them power, expansion, territorial increase, new markets, commerce, wealth, and the ability to spread the Gospel of His own dear Son. In the Transvaal a disastrous and absurd policy brought shame and disgrace upon our race. But now, by the silent operation of God's promised blessings on His people, we see the Boer subdued, and he will probably be quietly incorporated into the British race, and made an Israelite as well (see BANNER, Vol. xi., No. 541, p. 190, and vol. x., No. 517, p. 464). On the result of the consultation of the two Boer Presidents, which takes place at about this time, the Federation of the South African States will probably depend—a Federation similar in kind to that now uniting the Dominion of Canada. As in Canada, so in South Africa, a gigantic railway, uniting two distant oceans, leaning also on two great maritime Gates, will bring about the consolidation of the Empire in a new direction, and weld into one mighty whole, various States along its course, whose interests, then, will be one, but all subservient to the British. Just now, this is rather an anticipation than a realised fact, in South Africa. But we may be sure that God's purposes are fast maturing, and that He is about to give South Africa to "His chosen ones," that by them Christ's salvation, the Scriptures, the Sabbath, and the Decalogue, may all be granted to that portion of the world, to His own glory, according to the prophecies. Let Israel, therefore, praise the Lord for all these His blessings!

THE THREE HUNDREDTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE DEFEAT OF THE SPANISH ARMADA.

By JOHN S. ANDERSON.

A FEW weeks ago we called attention to the remarks of a secular newspaper, the Standard, on our position in Egypt; we have now to chronicle an even more remarkable advance in opinion set forth in a subsequent issue of this same paper, when it is shown that our present position is the gift of God. It appears that the people of Plymouth are considering the advisability of having a great Naval Fête of their own next year, to celebrate the three hundredth anniversary of the defeat of the Spanish Armada, which took place during the months of July and August, A.D. 1588.

If the inhabitants of Plymouth, the writer says, have special reasons to dwell upon the Tercentenary of 1588, there are good grounds why all Englishmen should join in the celebration, which ought not to be merely local. The repulse of the Spanish Armada was one of the great crises in the history of England, and indeed of the whole civilised world.

Like the defeat of Louis the XIV., and the defeat of Napoleon, it meant the deliverance of the smaller nations of the world from a vast and crushing military Imperialism. But it was something more even than that. It was practically the close of the long struggle of two races, two spheres, and two religions. Was Northern Europe to be Roman Catholic or Protestant? Were the fates of the maritime and colonial worlds to be in the hands of Englishmen and Dutchmen, or in that of Spaniards and Italians? These were the questions which were being resolved in the sixteenth century, and the answer to them was by no means clear till Britain decisively established her superiority on the seas. Twice in the history of modern Europe have the designs of great military conquerors been checked and annihilated by English seamanship—

"Had they not," as Charles Kingsley says, in one of the many eloquent passages he has dedicated to their fame, "first crippled by their West India raids the illgotten resources of the Spaniard, and then crushed his last huge effort in Briton's Salamis, the glorious fight of 1588, what had we been by now but a Popish appanage of a world tyranny as cruel as heathen Rome, and far more devilish." Englishmen when they heard how there were not only soldiers and sailors and galley-slaves aboard the Spanish fleet, but also a small army of monks and friars, with the Vicar-General of the Inquisition at their head, and a complete panoply of racks and thumb-screws, might well say with Lord Henry Seymour, that "God had been their friend," when the Armada of Spain was scattered.

But this is not all; the account is so interesting that we do not think we could do better than quote the remainder, word for word, our readers being able to note for themselves the important points, and those which bear more particularly on Our Identity. In truth—the writer continues:—

Digitized by Google

Providence had befriended England more than any English-of that age knew. Their descendants, who have the records of the age opened to them, and can measure, as they could not, the power and resources of the enemy, can only be humbly thankful for the deliverance from a great national peril. It is no disparagement to the valour of our great seamen to confess that their bravery alone could not have saved us if the elements themselves had not come to our help. Looking back upon the events, the historians tell us that, though Philip was absurdly mistaken in his calculations, and very much in error in leaving the English fleet out of account altogether, he was justified in the belief that the chances were in favour of his armies making good their landing. Had that been done, the result must have been great and enduring disaster to England. There were sixty thousand troops under Parma in the Spanish Netherlands, and against this magnificent army—the best organised, the best disciplined, and the best equipped in Europe—the raw levies of English peasants commanded by country squires would have been useless. The famous camp of Tilbury, with its chivalrous picture of the Queen on her white charger, escorted by her gallant Raleighs and Leicesters looks well enough in the pages of picturesque chronicle and romance, but sober historians have to tell us that at the very time when Elizabeth was bidding foul scorn to Parma and Spain her Councillors were at their wits' ends to provide bread and beef —to say nothing of muskets and halberts—for the ardent, but undisciplined, mob which surrounded her. The troops of Leicester and Hunsdon would undoubtedly have fought bravely, as became the Englishmen of that fighting time; but there is every reason to suppose that they would have made as poor a show against the veterans of the Dutch Wars as Mr. Pitt's excellent volunteers would have done against the conquerors of Italy and Germany. If it is any comfort to ourselves, we may reflect that the incompetence of Government at this great crisis, which ended so gloriously, was rather worse than anything of which we have had experience in more recent times. The most discreditable failures of the early Crimean days are insignificant compared with the achievements of Elizabeth's Commissariat and Ordnance Departments. At the very time that the fleet was battling for the nation's life in the German Ocean with the invader, the sailors were dying with hunger aboard the ships, and the captains were afraid to fire their cannon for fear of exhausting their scanty stock of powder. Until six weeks before the arrival of the Armada in the Channel, the "authorities," like other authorities before and since, refused to believe that Philip had any serious intention of sailing; and declined to spend money to fit out the royal ships for sea. So far as her Government was concerned, England was left to face the mightiest force which had been seen since the time of the Romans, an undefended country. Fortunately, the spirit of the people rose with the danger, and the voluntary efforts of the people went some way to supplement the weakness of the administration. It ought not to be forgotten that the noble fleet which beat off the Armada was chiefly equipped, manned, and supplied by private individuals and Municipal Corporations, not by the Government of the country. It is what Lord Randolph Churchill would call "an undying historic memory," none the less to be cherished because in these days of scientific warfare the precedent cannot by any possibility be repeated.

From the above alone, if we had no other sources of knowledge, who could deny that, in the words of Psalm cxxiv. (Bible version). "If it had not been the Lord who was on our side, now may Israel say, If it had not been the Lord on our side, when men rose up against us: Then they had swallowed us up quick, when their wrath was kindled against us."

"Blessed be the Lord who hath not given us as a prey to their teeth." "Our soul is escaped as a bird out of the snare of the fowlers, the snare is broken and we are escaped." "Our help is in the name of the Lord who made heaven and earth."

Free Distribution Fund.—The Hon. Treasurer acknowledges with very grateful thanks the receipt of £5 note from P. C. G., Sheffield: £3 towards the expenses connected with the Fund's Secretary, and £2 for literature.

MORE EVIDENCE CONNECTING THE ANCIENT INHABITANTS OF IRELAND WITH THE PHŒNICIANS AND HEBREWS.

By Joseph Thomson.

(Continued from page 424).

PART II.

III.—THE CROMBRII.

Some derive the name of the Crombrii, another ancient people of Ireland, from the ancient Irish word crom, i.e., God. But if it refers to the place wherein this deity was worshipped (and which is not unlikely), then it comes from the Phœnician crom, i.e., a grove. So that Crombrii, Crumbrii, or Cimbrii may mean Crambrii, foreigners; that is the Phœnicians who worshipped Providence, or Fate in this island. That the Phœnicians are meant, though termed foreigners, is seen from the fact that in their language bri, or bari means a foreigner; while the practice of worshipping in groves is shown by numerous testimonies from ancient heathen authors. Thus, in his 9th Æneid, Virgil introduces Cybele speaking of herself, "On a lofty mount I have a grove, a piny wood, by me beloved for many a year." And Prudentius, in "The Roman Martyr," says, "Shall I go to the piny grove of Cybele?"

But the question is naturally asked, "whence this custom of the heathens erecting altars to their idols in woods and groves?" Most probably it was in imitation of Abraham, who, we are told, planted a grove in Beersheba, and there called upon the name of the Lord (Gen. xxi. 33).

"In the first ages the worship of God was very simple; there were no temples; an altar of sometimes only a single stone, or sometimes turf, was all that was necessary: on this fire was lighted, and the sacrifice offered. Any place was equally proper, as they knew that the object of their worship filled heaven and earth. In process of time, when families increased, and many sacrifices had to be offered, groves or shady places were chosen for the sake of the shade, as some time must necessarily be required in offering many sacrifices. These groves became afterwards abused to impure and idolatrous purposes, and were, therefore, strictly forbidden. See Exod. xxxiv. 12; Deut. xii. 3; xvi. 21."—Dr. A. Clarke.

Abraham, the father of the faithful, was called away from his native country about 300 years after the Deluge. As a wanderer and sojourner in a strange country he had not left Ur of the Chaldeans above 10 years, when a famine obliged him to go down into Egypt, then a very flourishing monarchy. That Egypt should have had a regal government within 300 years after the Deluge, has been an objection urged against the history: but if thoughtfully considered, there is nothing in this of an extraordinary nature. For in those early times people lived in a simple, frugal manner, and few did not arrive at maturity; so that there is no reason for surprise when we find the children of Mizraim so numerous as to found a monarchy in the fertile plains of Egypt at so early a period.—Condensed from Bishop Hurd.

The groves wherein the first worship was celebrated, were oak plantations; as we read of Abraham (Gen. xii. 6, 7) that he "passed through the land, unto the place of Sichem, unto the oak (alon) Moreh," and there the Lord appeared to him, and he erected an altar in consequence. In Deut. xi 20, Moses refers to this place in the plural; "beside the oaks (aloni) Moreh." (The A.V., has it "plain," and "plains:" a confessed mistranslation). See also Gen. xxxv. 4; and Jud. ix. 6., margin of this last passage has it "oak," A.V. From Gen. xiii. 18, we learn that Abraham dwelt in the oaks (aloni) of Mamre, in Hebron, and there built an altar to the Lord. Also see Gen. xiv. 13. These passages in the LXX are rendered peri ten drun, i.e., "about the oak." In imitation of Abraham the idolatrous Canaanites began to consecrate oaks to their own deities, and worshipped in groves of these trees; and the Phœnicians afterwards introduced the custom into Asia, Egypt and Africa, the continent of Europe and the British Isles. Ovid, speaking of the oak, says it is "sacred to Jove." Virgil says "it was accounted an oracle by the Grecians;" and Homer says the same in Od. xix.

Digitized by Google

Vestiges of the word "crom" may still be traced in Ireland. Thus there is a village called Crom, partly in the counties of Kildare and Dublin. Crom-artin is a little village near Ardee; Crom-castle a town in the county of Limerick. Mount Crom-mal, or Crom-la, between Loughs Swilly and Foyle, county Donegal: near the river Lavath, in the same district, on the declivity of a hill, is a remarkable cave called Cluna. Mount Crom-la-sliabh, now Hill of Allen; Crom-oge a little town in the barony of Maryborough, Queen's County; Crom-chin, an old town, also called Atha, Rathcrayhan and Drum-Druid, but now more generally Croghan, barony of Boyle, county of Roscommon, and formerly the principal city in the province of Connaught. It is supposed to have been called Croghan from the adjacent mountains resembling a pitcher, which croghan in Irish means; and Crom-chin from a cave in the same mountain which the Druids had dedicated to Fate. Crom-lin, or Crum-lin, a little town in the county of Dublin, and also a little village in the barony of Massareen, county Antrim. This name the Irish explain as the chapel, or shrine of Crom, where the idolaters used to sacrifice to this deity: to the same origin they also refer Crumlin Water, the name of a river in the same district.

But Dr. Villanueva thinks that the word Crom has reference not to worship, but to a nation that worships, and derives Crom-artin from the Phœnician Crom-arithin, i.e., a shrubbery dedicated to Fate, and surrounded with pools or rivers. Crom-mal from Cram-mala (Phœnician) a congregation in a grove of the deity Fate. Cromla from Cram-lah, anxious worshippers of Fate in a grove. The word sliabh, at the end of Crom-la-sliabh, has reference to a fountain contiguous to the shrine, for sliaba is Phœnician for the pipe of a fountain through which the water flows. Crom-oge from Crom-og, i.e., people burning victims in the shrubbery of Fate. Crom-chin from Crom-schin people applauding in the shrubbery of Fate; and Crom-lin from Cram-lun, i.e., people entertained, or sojourning in the grove of Fate, or hospitality practised beside the shrine of this idol. Cromarty, the name of a town and detached country in the north of Scotland, had probably the same origin.

IV.—THE IBERI.

Ptolemy mentions the Iberi as inhabiting the coasts of the county Kerry. Irish writers also mention another people of this name who had settled in the county Derry, between Lough Foyle and the river Ban. Richard of Cirencester (De Situ Britannicæ III.), says, on the authority of an old Roman geographer, that "The ancients put it past doubt, that the Iberi took up their settlements in Ireland."

Who were they? is the question that now suggests itself. The supposition that the Caucasians had gone into Spain, and given that country the name of Iberia, Dr. Villanueva hesitates not to pronounce as "most absurd nonsense, though supported by the authority of Varro, and sanctioned by the adoption of Apian and Diodorus Siculus. No, the origin of Iberia must be sought from another source" (Phœnician Ireland, p. 113). Eber, in the Hebrew, or Ebra or Ibra, in the Chaldee, mean a passing over, or any thing remote: plurals Ibrin, or Ebrin, mean boundaries, or limits: the Spaniards thus were very naturally called by the Phœnician Iberi, and their country Iberia, being, as they thought, the very remotest inhabitants, as their country was the farthest in the earth, and their city, Calpe, the furthermost spot of the habitable globe.

Agreeable to this is the language of Possidonius respecting the temple of Hercules in Gades (Cadiz), calling it "the boundary of the earth and sea." The Zarphat and Sarphad of Obadiah (v. 20) the Jews explain as Gaul and Spain, because the Psalmist (lxxii. 8) extends the empire of Messiah even unto the boundaries of the earth, and which Aben Ezra says, are situate in the remotest west. The Spaniards themselves have long since given the name of Finis Terrae, i.e., Land's End, to the Nerian, or Celtic promontory in Artabria. A city and district of the same country still preserves the name, Finisterre.

Some Spaniards derive this name from the Celtic fin-es-terre, i.e., a fair and fertile mountain: also similarly the names of the towns, Finestras, in the Celtiberi, and Finestrat in the Edetani, from the Celtic fin-es-tra, a village on a hill beside a river.

Some suppose that the Spaniards were called Iberi, from the river Iber; just as Egypt was called from its river, which Homer designates Egyptus. Iber, the name of the river, in Phœnician means rapidly flowing; it rises in the district of the Cantabrians, and flows by the ancient Vetones and Vascones.

The more ancient Iberi did not occupy all Spain, but only the Mediterranean portion extending from the Pyrenees to Calpe and the Pillars of Hercules. But though the Iberi were, properly speaking "the more remote, yet the ancient writers generally accounted the Spanish people indiscriminately as the most distant people; and thus gave rise to the fiction of the sun's setting not merely in the ocean, but in the river Iber more particularly, thus marking out the extremity of the earth.

The Iberia of the ancient Irish, therefore, took its name from the tribes of the Iberi of Spain, and was applied to that district in the environs of Beerhaven, county Cork, the families of which people would seem to have been the original inhabitants of the county Kerry, and a part of the county Clare, where we still find the barony of Ibrickin, showing the presence of the Iberi who gave it that name. The poets tell us that this district of Ireland was appropriated to Heber, the son of Milesius. Spain also retains races of this name in the Iberic mountains, in Arragon; in Ibera, an ancient city of the Ilercaones, which Livy terms "most opulent," and in Iberum, a town of Cantabria. It is probable that the descendants of the Spanish Iberi, who all originated from a Phœnician stock, were accounted kin, as the sons of Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, and from him called Kini (Jud. i. 16; iv. 11—17. This may explain the appearance of this word as the last syllable of Iberi-kin; for the Phœnicians were very desirous of perpetuating their nobility, and delighted in every memorial of their ancestors' glory. Traces of this name seem to be found in Cin-neich, near Bandon, county Cork; and Cin-eal Fearmaic, a district in old Thomond, county Clare; and Cin-eal Eoghean, an ancient and extensive tract in Ulster, comprising counties Tyrone, Armagh, Donegal, and part of Derry.

This same interpretation may be also applied to several old Irish towns whose names begin with Kin. Ibercon, county Kilkenny, is from the Phœnician words Iberi-con, i.e., the staunch, the firm Iberi. Nor is it unlikely that they consisted of those who borrowed from the Phœnicians the worship of the idol Kiun or Kion whom the Prophet Amos tells us the Syrians (rather the Israelites) worshipped in conjunction with their idol Moloch (v. 26). The LXX calls this idol "Astron," i.e., a star; the Vulgate renders it, "the image of your idols the star of your God." The Hebrews think it to be Saturn, who was called Kenan by the Persians and Arabians; and in is known that the Phœnicians worshipped this deity under a variety of names and symbols.

Dr. Villanueva has been nodding here; for a reference to Amos. v. 25 will show that it was the House of Israel whom the prophet is upbraiding with the worship of Chiun, or Kiun. With this correction, his becomes a most important testimony for the Israelitish origin of these ancient inhabitants of Ireland.

Upon ver. 26 it may be desirable to note that the Phœnicians were accustomed to carry about with them small images of certain gods, in carved chariots; the "tabernacle of Moloch" may have been something of this kind. The first images or statues were made in honour of great men who had wrought great deeds: these being put up in public places, particular veneration was paid to them, which eventually turned to religious adoration. From Pliny it appears that those statues were first made of brick, such as was used in building the tower of Babel. Amos v. 26 may thus be rendered: "But ye have borne the tabernacle of your God (Moloch); and ye have also borne Chiun, your likeness; the star (Remphan) of your God" (the same Moloch).

Digitized by Google

The A.V. insinuates that Moloch and Remphan, or Chiun, were different deities; whereas, according to this rendering, they were the same; Chiun and Remphan being the names of that star which the Arabians and Egyptians appropriated to the false deity, called by the Ammonites, etc., by way of eminence, Moloch, or King.

(To be continued).

GOD'S ROYAL BOUNTY TO THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL, AND THE MANNER OF IT.

ASSUMING that the British are the Lost House of Israel, it is an interesting inquiry to ascertain how entirely all that we possess as a nation comes from the Lord as His free gift, sometimes sought of Him in prayer, sometimes not asked at all, but simply desired; and, oftenest of all, neither desired nor requested by us, but granted by the Lord of His own free will and bounty as His good gift to His chosen people. Before we enter on particulars, we may recognise an exact parallel to God's treatment of His people and their attitude towards Him in the history of Solomon, the king of Israel, and type of the Lord Jesus Christ, in his dealings with the Gentile Queen of Sheba, as described in 1 Kings x. 13. There the departing Queen is represented as receiving from the King of Israel three classes of gifts—1st, all she desired; 2nd, whatsoever she asked of the king; and, 3rd, besides and beyond those things, that which Solomon "gave her of his royal bounty," or, as the margin has it, "according to the hand of King Solomon." Some things she "asked" of the king, and those he gave her. Others she "desired" to have, but for them did not venture to formulate her wish. Those the king also conferred upon her, and in addition, out of his royal bounty, he presented her with what she neither desired nor asked for, thinking probably that such gifts were unattainable, or, perhaps, not knowing of their existence. She was indebted therefore for them to the king's generosity entirely.

In the services of the Church of England we have forms of prayer prescribed which follow these three distinctions very closely. Thus there is the prayer of St. Chrysostom, in which this request appears: "Fulfil now, O Lord, the desires and petitions of Thy servants as may be most expedient for them." Here are the unexpressed "desires" distinguished from the outspoken "petitions," and the Lord besought to fulfil them both. Then, in regard to gifts of God not included among the things we desire, or openly pray for, or ask, we have such a prayer as this: "We beseech Thee to have compassion upon our infirmities; and those things which for our unworthiness we dare not, and for our blindness we cannot ask, vouchsafe to give us for the worthiness of Thy Son Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen." A prayer, even more in point, is the collect for the twelfth Sunday after Trinity, where British-Israelites are instructed to pray thus: "Almighty and everlasting God, who art always more ready to hear than we are to pray, and art wont to give more than either we desire or deserve, pour down upon us the abundance of Thy mercy," &c., &c. We find thus that Solomon's treatment of the Queen of Sheba was exactly in accordance with the British practice in our public worship, where we admit that God gives us our "desires" and our petitions as well, granting us besides what we do not "desire or deserve," and for our blindness and ignorance we do not and cannot ask; thus plainly showing that we receive at the Lord's hands blessings which are of "His royal bounty," besides those things that we "desire" to have but do not "ask" for, and the many that we ask Him to bestow and get. The application of all this to the believing Christian is obvious and clear. There is much men ask in prayer which, if according to God's will, He gives them; much that they desire to have but fail to ask for, yet which the Lord gives them, though they have not made request to Him according to His will. But there are blessings unspeakable which He gives us of His royal bounty, though we have neither desired nor prayed for them by reason of our blindness, ignorance, or indifference.

It is, however, when we apply the subject to the national wants, and to our national prayers, in seeking the Throne of Grace respecting them, that we see how miserable are our shortcomings, and how splendidly liberal in His bounties is the gracious, glorious King of Israel. There are things which as a nation we desire, but do not remember to pray for, but which the Lord gives us nevertheless. There are others that we ask Him for, and He grants them according to our desires; and there are blessings He gives us, or is about to grant, which we neither desire nor solicit at His hands, because we are ignorant of our claims to them from Him, or too faithless and indifferent to request Him to bestow them. What are these threefold blessings which we receive from our God in our national capacity? We desire national prosperity, success in our commerce, victory over our enemies, protection from national calamities, from epidemics, from civil commotions and foreign wars; and though we seldom pray for these and such-like things, God gives them to us in abundance. The multitude of requests we do make to Him, as enumerated in the Book of Common Prayer, He grants to us, as all may see, according to His sovereign will, as it pleases Him to do for our nation's good!

But we come now to that large class of blessings which God gives us of "His royal bounty," for which we never ask Him, and which we do not even desire to have of Him, not knowing that we are entitled to them at all. These are all the blessings promised to Abraham and his seed for ever, which God gives us because of His oath, and because He loves us, not because we either desire or deserve them. What are these things? First, multitudinousness, which is population, in other words, empire. We never pray for this; we know not it is a blessing; we are inclined to believe it is a curse, and deprecate our enormous increase, and the additions to our Empire to make room for our increasing people! Second, the Empire of the Sea, the Gates, and the Heathen Empire, which has been acquired by these. We have prayed for none of these things, nay, we have regarded them as no advantages at all, and should never have desired or asked for them, yet God has of "His royal bounty" bestowed them upon our race exclusively. Then, third, the Colonial Empire with the vast commerce and wealth they have brought us, and the Federation of States looming in the distance, besides the national outpouring of the Spirit and the new covenant blessing promised. Have we ever asked for, or even desired, these things? Never! Yet God has freely given them all to us, because they are Israel's blessings, and because He promised them all by the oath which cannot be broken, since it is Jehovah's! So we might continue the enumeration, a long list of earthly, and temporal, and spiritual, and eternal blessings for which we have never sought, but which the Lord has given us of "His royal bounty," because of His oath to our forefathers, and by reason of the blood-shedding upon Calvary, whereby the Son of God has bought for us the promised gifts. Who will not, then, join in the hallelujah chorus of praise to the Lord Jehovah, not only for His tender mercies to us in granting us our desires as well as our petitions, but for His splendid bounty in bestowing upon us (unworthy as we are) all those good things which He promised to Israel His chosen, and to us British because we are they?

Digitized by Google

Review.

Britain in History, Ancient and Modern. By Mrs. G. Albert Rogers. London: James Nisbet & Co., 21, Berners-street, W., and Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street. Price 3s. 6d.

THE work which has just been published by our gifted authoress, Mrs. G. Albert Rogers, purports to furnish us with "proofs linking Israel with Britain throughout the ages." The book is, as regards some of its chapters, a reprint of several papers and articles contributed to the "Anglo-Israel Almanack" and to the BANNER OF ISRAEL by the writer, and these, to meet the objects of the work, have been, the Preface says, partly re-written and re-cast. The result is a very excellent volume, which, doubtless, will prove useful to those who are interested in our subject, and lead to further research. The object of the book is to prove to men that the Lord is faithful to His promises, and that what He engaged to give to His people Israel, His bride, He has made over to, and is granting them while He is endowing the British with these gifts. Mrs. Rogers designs by this work "to present the grounds on which we found our claim to be Israel." To do this, she aspires to show from history how God conducted His firstborn, Ephraim, to Britain, diving into the prehistoric period for her proofs. She appeals to God's watchful care over the Twelve Tribes during their wanderings in the wilderness (Numb. xxxiii.), and asks why we are to believe that He was not equally careful of His people during their wanderings among the Gentiles after their captivity in Media? She points to Britain's "stupendous growth and greatness," to show that God has been mindful of His covenants, and she carefully reviews the position of the question regarding the coronation-stone, our "national heirloom," because she justly believes it to be "a sacred trust and credential of Our Identity."

The volume opens with a chapter on the Victorian Jubilee—a joyous, confident chapter which surveys our nation's prosperity, and asks at last, "Shall not the outcome of Britain's jubilee be to make us confess that the Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge?" One portion of this opening chapter we deem important as indicating a new Identity, which has been noticed before, but not insisted on as Mrs. Rogers does as a sign of our origin, not to be denied. She writes thus on page 19:—"Let others then tremble who deem England but a Gentile power, doomed as such to extinction. We—who can claim as our own the faithful word which said, 'Instead of thy fathers thou shalt have children whom thou mayest make princes in all lands'—lift up our heads as we see its increasing fulfilment in Britain's sons. The promise was not, and could not have been, accomplished under the former dispensation, or before Israel was uprooted and dispersed abroad. Neither since then has it ever been verified in Judah. But the Lord has established His covenant with His firstborn; and of Britain—and of her alone, amongst all the nations of the earth—can it be said that she does send forth her children to be viceroys, governors, or potentates in all lands."

The Sabbath sign is the subject of chapter ii., and our authoress strongly insists upon it that the British possess it in a marked, exceptional, and exclusive manner. From the Sabbath sign the "stone witness" engages the readers' attention, and the coronation-stone as "the heir-loom" of Britain, is identified in chap. III., IV., and V., as being "the rock" which represented Christ; to strike which, in anger, was the offence Mrs. Rogers believes for which Moses died (Numb. xx. 8—13; Deut. xxxii. 48—52). The stone was the representative of Christ, or, as St. Paul has it in 1 Cor. x. 4, "That rock was Christ." Hence to strike it in disobedience to God's command was, she believes, Moses' death-warrant; for that rock was the house of God (Gen. xxviii. 18—22). We cannot traverse all the ground Mrs. Rogers takes in discussing this subject in order to establish her contention, that the coronation-stone is the very stone Jacob used at Luz for a pillow. The argument is ably put, though, unfortunately, as the authoress admits on page 126, she has had to deal, "in the absence of positive information," with probabilities, the most rational she can find, to supply links in the history which is buried in prehistorical times. A strong primâ facie case, doubtless, is made out to prove that the stone is Jacob's veritable pillow, though, if the case were to go into a court of law, there might be still some doubt, we fear, whether our information yet suffices to secure a verdict such as Mrs. Rogers pronounces, and such as we inwardly should assent to, in foro conscientiæ.

When we reach the authoress's 8th chapter, we feel we are on ground which cannot be shaken. "Israel's recognition is Britain's safeguard." We may here quote a few paragraphs of the book, which will give the reader a specimen of the style. We read on page 147:—"What means this Identity of which we vaunt? If God had intended the banished, exiled, divorced one, whom He had once called His own, to reappear on earth, in the shape of a great and powerful nation—the most favoured on this our globe—would not His prophets have predicted its rise and progress? But England—the mightiest nation upon which the sun has ever risen, and upon which it never sets—has no place assigned her in the prophetic page! So men gravely tell us, and if it be so, then truly has God ceased to rule the world." . . . "In the 8th century before Christ, four great empires were founded. Each found its place in Holy Writ. . . Rome was the latest—a kingdom 'strong as iron.' Yet each and all have passed away. We are now living in momentous times—a crisis is admittedly at hand. What shall assure us that England is not now on the eve of a decline and fall like theirs? . . . If the ruins of Babylon, and Greece, and Rome tell of the grandeur unutterable from which they fell, why should we not share a like fate? The answer is at hand. 'In the days of those kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed, and the kingdom shall not be left to other people.'"

In the chapter on "Britain's place in prophecy" (the 9th), we have a fine passage which we must pass on to our readers, and ask them, as well as our opponents, to ponder it. "Tell us this: Were Greece and Rome, Medo-Persia and Babylon, so near and dear to the heart of our God that He must needs honour them by special mention, and give to one of Judah's prophets a revelation concerning these heathen nations, while omitting all reference to His chosen ones? Tell us, further:—Does a wise and tender earthly father delight to place his enemies in honourable evidence, while in a document intended for his children's guidance to the end of time, he makes no mention of his sons? And shall we wrong Jehovah by declaring Him less mindful of His firstborn? A veil indeed must blind our eyes that ever we should harbour thoughts so unworthy of our God. Let us consent to be disillusioned."

"An historical sketch" of Israel-Britain, and a question, "Who were the Etruscans? follow in consecutive order as chap. XI. and XII., regarding which all we need notice is that our authoress, principally following Commander Roberts' view, gives an interesting and instructive detail of the wanderings of Israel, quoting some authorities for her statements. Whether these amount to proof or really support the scriptural evidence, is a matter we must leave to our readers' judgment. They point to probabilities, and these confirm the prophecies of our Holy Book. These historical and ethnological hints corroborate our scriptural title-deeds; but the weight of our case, we believe, rests not on these hazy, historical points, but upon the sure word of prophecy, in regard to which we cannot err, for it is the word of the living God. Not that we should do right to neglect the former. But we must beware of relying on them to the exclusion of our only true line of argument. We are glad to see our authoress places these historical corroborations in their proper place.

The last chapter (XIV.) of this remarkable volume is to our mind the best. We believe our readers will be of the same opinion when they come to peruse it. It deals with "the spiritual aspect of the Identity." Mrs. Rogers' views are very clear and forcibly expressed. As the widow of an evangelical clergyman, now gone to his rest, she has put the matter in so clear and satisfactory a point of view, that we believe the clergy, if they can only be brought to peruse this chapter, will find their objections fully met, and themselves reconciled to their splendid position as "the shepherds of Israel," literally so-called.

The late Bishop Titcomb's strange objection to the sex of the occupant of the British throne as a bar to her fulfilment of Jer. xxxiii. 17, is met by our authoress very successfully on pages 259 and 260. She argues that if the promise were only to a "man" but not to a woman too, then "the new birth" is necessary only for a "man," but not for a woman (John iii. 3); a "man" only needs faith, not a woman (Jas. ii. 14); a "man" only requires "to examine himself," not a woman (1 Cor. xi. 28); and the "man" only was driven out of Eden, not Eve, the woman (Gen. iii. 24); all which propositions are absurd, and prove that the late bishop was wrong. Though we cannot concur with Mrs. Rogers' statement (misled by the English version) that the word "holy" (p. 258) was unknown till God applied it "to Israel, a literal nation" (because it was the very Hebrew word translated "sanctified" in Gen. ii. 3, as applied to the Sabbath), we are glad to concur entirely with her sentiments upon the doctrine of election, as she has stated it on pp. 264, 265, to 268.

Digitized by Google

With the quotation of one fine passage near the end of the book, we must conclude. For this entirely corroborates our view that God has been blessing us, since the Reformation, with the untold wealth of the Abrahamic promises, temporal and spiritual, while we as a people have had no idea why such have been poured out upon us in such profusion. Regarding this, our authoress writes (page 271): "We should think it strange to hear of unclaimed dividends lying at the Bank of England, if the heirs knew their lawful claims. Yet wealth for Israel's children has been accumulating, from which, to a great extent, they debar themselves; because they know not it is theirs to claim. 'I will lay upon thee none of these diseases;' 'I am the Lord that healeth thee;' are samples of these unclaimed dividends. One and another has indeed gone to the bank of faith, and outstretched the hand to grasp their portion. What will it be when the whole nation awakes to the realisation of its position, and Anglo-Israel cries out, 'My God! we know Thee' (Hosea viii. 2)."

We welcome this addition to the literature of Israel, and though there probably will be differences of opinion in respect to the value of our authoress' chapters on the Stone, there is much in the work which is exceedingly striking, and we heartily commend it to our readers' attention.

"BANNER OF ISRAEL" BRITISH-ISRAELITE JUBILEE FUNDS.

Church Missionary Society.

	£	s.	d.
Amount acknowledged on p. 299	80	15	9
Per Miss Rush	0	2	6
Mrs. Wandsworth, London	0	2	0
J. C. H. M. (per Miss Rush)	0	3	0
Miss Lewis, London ...	0	15	0

	£	s.	d.
E. F. L., Folkestone ...	0	2	6
Mr. J. Tindale, Durham	0	2	0
Mrs. A. Henley, Derby ...	0	5	0
D. W. T., London ...	0	7	6
J. S., Bristol	0	5	0
	£83	0	3

Jews' Society.

	£	s.	d.
Amount acknowledged on p. 299	14	17	8
Per Miss Rush, Lee ...	0	2	6
Mrs. Wandsworth, London	0	2	6

	£	s.	d.
E. F. L., Folkestone ...	0	2	6
Miss Lewis, London ...	0	15	0
	£16	0	2

Bible Society.

	£	s.	d.
Amount acknowledged on p. 299	30	7	6
Per Miss Rush, Lee ...	0	2	6
Mrs. Wandsworth, London	0	2	6

	£	s.	d.
Mrs. Thomson, Tunbridge Wells	9	12	6
	£40	5	0

The Fund is now Closed.

Correspondence.

THE "BANNER" FREE DISTRIBUTION FUND.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

Dear Philo-Israel,—I have very deeply regretted to receive information that there appears an imminent necessity for cutting down the number of the Banners sent out weekly by the Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund, on account of the general purse showing signs of drought. Having had so great a personal interest in the Fund, and received ample proof of the good work it can accomplish, I have earnestly wished that there should be no cessation. Miss E. Sibbald having kindly offered almost at once to take up the Banner distribution, there was little loss of time in starting again after my relinquishment of that work, and it has gone steadily on; but now that the resources are low I cannot but desire to hasten to make known this fact to all who generously helped me to increase this special distribution, and preserve it in working order for the benefit of many Sowers and others who make good use of the Banner, but who by necessity can only obtain it by means of the weekly gift.

I would like also in this matter to draw the attention of those readers of the paper who value it themselves, but who may not yet have taken part in the provision we have tried to make for putting it into trustworthy hands, for I hope there may be many who will be willing to give what substantial help they can afford. I have wished for some time to put before old subscribers and new some few quotations from letters received in response to gifts from the A.-I. Free Distribution Fund that prove again how the seed has been sown and how far afield it has been cast; in doing so now, I trust it may be said "better late than never," and that they may create in the hearts of all those who can give aid a warm desire to do so.

From Carlisle.—"I have just got several new readers of the Banner, and they like it much. All the other papers I usually give to the men in the barracks, and they get well talked over in the barrack-room; and I let the library and the Soldiers' Institute have the Banner, so it gets read indeed, and I hear many good remarks made on it. I think it a most wise plan to send out the readings; it is so much more likely to convince men of the reality of our claims than if one was often talking about it. I love to read of the spread of our cause, and shall do the best I can with what you have sent me. My wife and her father are now firm and strong in their belief that we are right," i.e., as to the truth of Our Identity with Israel.

From Hamilton, N.B.—"I have given a few of the leaflets to the Soldiers' Institute, a few I sent to California, a few to New South Wales, where I know they will be acceptable. I am glad to know we have some good and able Identity believers in the Colonies. I may now just say how much I delight in trying to spread this glorious truth. We have much to contend with in regard to questions asked, but knowing my own inability to enter into controversy, I simply point out the great truths, and ask my friends to carefully and prayerfully search their Bibles, to look up all the references given. I may say that I have myself laid my Bible aside with the thought that if Israel was extinct the prophecies would have no meaning; but now I can read and search with thankfulness for every chapter, and every verse seems to glow with a new light."

From Edinburgh.—"My time is much taken up, having many meetings and visitings (in hospital), and some weariness through feeble health, yet the little opportunity I have proves refreshing and the articles in the Banner conclusive—the possession of the Gates, and many other features in the hands and in the hearts of our own people, such as wealth in the hands, and desire after the heathen glowing out of renewed hearts, is a kind of argument that staggers the most unbelieving, and gives satisfactory food to the mind that is willing to search for the truth."

From Griquatown, S. Africa.—"I am glad to say that our precious truth is spreading out here in a very satisfactory manner. I lend my works on the subject to numbers, and nearly everyone who reads them becomes convinced of the truth of the arguments, &c., found therein."

From Rangoon.—"I try to make the most of the papers. One (Banner) I keep, one goes to the Institute, one to the man-of-war, and one I circulate amongst the American Baptists. I have been greatly distressed since hearing of good Bishop Titcomb's death; he was greatly missed."

This correspondent in the far-off port has been supplied with some valuable packets of literature, which no doubt has been as judiciously distributed, and is doing good service amongst the many men with whom he is able to communicate.

While I still hope that some one with the necessary time will volunteer to take the post of Hon. Sec. to the Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund, and continue the general work (except the distribution of Banners) which I have been compelled so reluctantly to relinquish, I am glad to give the information, which has been omitted in the monthly reports of the Fund, that the Secretary is willing to do what he can to supply my Sowers. It is a satisfaction to me that to a certain extent I am able to supplement his work by sending out now and again various publications that I know will be valuable to many Sowers; this I hope always to continue, according to what is possible in the time at my disposal, as I was glad to do in the days before taking the official post, which entailed in the end more general, and necessarily regular work than could be accomplished properly in due time.

Donations to the Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund will be gratefully received by the Treasurer, Miss Lawrence, Rosslyn, Hampton-road, Upper Teddington, Middlesex; or by the Secretary, Mr. C. Horner, 34, Sheen Park, Richmond, Surrey.

Sincerely yours,

E. M. Rush,

Late Hon. Sec. A.-I. F. D. Fund.

Lee, London, Oct. 10th, 1887.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies " " " 1 0 4
Four Copies " " " 1 5 6
Six Copies " " " 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

PARTIAL BOARD FOR ONE OR TWO GENTLEMEN in the superior house of Widow Lady with grown-up family. Home comforts, bath, piano, etc. Near Clapham-common Railway Station. A desirable home for educated gentlemen. Terms moderate. Excellent references given and required. Address—Mrs. E., Stafford House, Nightingale Lane, Clapham.

VALUABLE CONSULTATION PRESCRIPTION for cure of Indigestion sent to any address for One Shilling. Part profits to Banner Free Distribution Fund.—"Identity," 8, Charlotte-terrace, Clacton-on-Sea.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

A LECTURE will be Delivered in the ASSOCIATION ROOMS, 14, King William-street, Charing Cross, W.C., on THURSDAY EVENING, NEXT, October 27, 1887, at 7.30 o'clock, by Mr. George F. Treverton. Subject: "What God Wants to Find in Israel." Strangers will be made welcome.

JAMES BILLINGTON, Sec.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

THE BIBLE READINGS

are held

EVERY TUESDAY AFTERNOON,

At 3.30, in the Library of the Association, 14, King William Street, Charing Cross, W.C. All friends are invited.

Price 3d., post free 4d.

PRESENT-DAY PROBLEMS,

How Anglo-Israel Truth Explains and Solves Them

By V. M. COX.

Author of Ephraim-Israel, the Pivot Nation of Prophecy and History

"A book to read is 'Present-Day Problems: How Anglo-Israel Truth Explains and Solves Them.' By V. M. Cox. This little book is an excellent summary of the clearance effected in the great burning questions of the time, the moment it is understood that the Anglo-Saxon folk is the very Israel of God. Federation of the Empire, the Irish question, the Eastern question, our relation to Russia, our hold on Egypt, submitted to this solvent, become parts of one intelligible scheme. The paragraphs on Foreign Missions, as the special work of Israel, and on our relation to our fellows of the Tribe of Judah, are especially good.—The Messenger.

London: R. Banks and Son, Racquet Court, Fleet St.

Price 6d., by post 7d.

PAPAL IDOLATRY.

An Exposure of the Dogma of Transubstantiation and Mariolatry: to which is added "MY REASONS WHY I WILL NEVER GO BACK TO THE CHURCH OF ROME."

By FATHER CHINIQUY.

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, and all Booksellers.

NON-INTOXICATING BEER

(A Splendid Dinner Beverage)

MADE IMMEDIATELY WITH

MASON'S EXTRACT OR ESSENCE OF HERBS,

Composed of Yarrow, Dandelion, Comfrey, and Horehound. Send 9 stamps for sample bottle, enough to make five gallons. NEWBALL & MASON, Chemists, Nottingham.

AGENTS WANTED. APPLY FOR TERMS.

Just Published, crown 8vo., elegantly bound in cloth, price 3s. 6d.

BRITAIN in HISTORY:

ANCIENT AND MODERN.

Or, Proofs Linking Israel with Britain Throughout the Ages.

By MRS. G. A. ROGERS,

Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

London: J. NISBET & Co., 21, Berners-street, W.; ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, who will send a copy free by post on receipt of P.O.; and to be had of all Booksellers.

Price 6d., post free 7d.

"THE TEN TRIBES."

Where, and in What Condition are the Ten Tribes at the Present Time; and What will be Their Place in the Millennium?

A PAPER read before "The Prophecy Investigation Society" on April 9, 1887,

By ALDER SMITH, M.B., F.R.C.S.

THE LANCET says,—"The paper is worthy of perusal by all who take an interest in ethnological questions as connected with the historical and prophetical portions of holy writ."

LONDON:

R. BANKS & SON, RACQUET-COURT, FLEET-ST.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON, RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

Catalogue Post Free on Application.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

An Elementary Digest or Sketch of the Chief Facts and Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Adapted to the Unlearned and Unscientific 56 pages, Illustrated with Diagrams, price 4d., post free 5d. 10th Thousand.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

Our Identity: What it is Not; What it is; and Our Obligations To-day in Respect to it. Being a Lecture recently delivered in London by Philo-Israel, and published by special request. Price 2d., a reduction for quantities.

The History of the House of Israel. How They Were Lost and How They Were Found. Told, for the children. Price 6d., cloth 1s.; post free 7d. and 1s. 1d. Fifth edition.

Our Identity with the House of Israel. Price 4d. Reprinted from "Clifton Chronicle Letters"

A Resume of the Scriptural Argument, Proving the Identity of the British Race with the Lost Ten Tribes. Price 1d.; 6s. per hundred, postage 6d.

30,000 BEDS SOLD in SEVEN YEARS

NEWHAM'S CELEBRATED LINCOLNSHIRE FEATHER BEDS.

THE CHEAPEST FEATHER BEDS IN THE WORLD.

Direct from Boston, Lincolnshire.

No. 1. SINGLE BED, BOLSTER, and PILLOW, 6ft. 3in. by 3ft. 6in., weighing 40lb. 30/0

No. 2. DOUBLE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6ft. 6in. by 4ft. 6in. weighing 50 lb. 37/6

No. 3. DOUBLE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6ft. 6in. by 4ft. 6in., weighing 55lb... .. 41/3

No. 4. EXTRA SIZE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6ft. 6in. by 5ft., weighing 65lb. .. 48/9

WARRANTED NEW AND SWEET.

Any sized Bed only 9d. per lb., including Feathers, in Strong Union (bordered) Tick, making, packing, wrapper, and Carriage Paid to any Station in the United Kingdom.

SUPERIOR BEDS, Splendid Feathers, Linen Tick, 1s. per lb.

Samples of Feathers and Ticks, Price Lists, &c. post-free.

For the convenience of Purchasers we have opened a Branch Establishment at 178, Strand, London.

All orders must be accompanied by Cheque or P.O.O. (which, as security to purchasers, may be post dated ten days) payable to

NEWHAM & CO., Boston, Lincolnshire,

or to THOS. SMITH, 178, STRAND, LONDON,

where Goods and Samples can be seen and obtained.

Feathers only 9d. per lb. The trade supplied. Please mention this paper. A great reduction on three or more beds.

LUNG SAVE YOUR LIVES BY TAKING TONIC
LUNG OWBRIDGE'S TONIC
LUNG LUNG TONIC TONIC
LUNG THE MIGHTY HEALER. TONIC
LUNG It has a power over disease hitherto TONIC
LUNG unknown in Medicine. TONIC
LUNG Are you at all Weak-chested or inclined TONIC
LUNG to be Consumptive, with just a touch of TONIC
LUNG Cough now and then? TONIC
LUNG "Try this Wonderful Medicine." The TONIC
LUNG Cough and Weakness will disappear as TONIC
LUNG if by magic, and you will feel a strength TONIC
LUNG and power you never had before. TONIC
LUNG HAVE YOU A COUGH? TONIC
LUNG A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT! TONIC
LUNG HAVE YOU A COLD? TONIC
LUNG A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL TONIC
LUNG REMOVE IT. TONIC
LUNG Bronchitis & Asthma it relieves instantly TONIC
LUNG The Spasms of Coughing so dreadful in TONIC
LUNG Whooping Cough become less with each TONIC
LUNG dose of the medicine. TONIC
LUNG TONIC
LUNG Prepared by W. T OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull TONIC
LUNG Sold in Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. TONIC
LUNG and 11s. by all Chemists and Patent TONIC
LUNG Medicine Vendors. Wholesale all London TONIC
LUNG and Provincial Houses. TONIC

CARBOLINE

1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.

Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved. DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.

Makers:

GEORGE & WELCH

CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,

Who will forward Free of Postage.

ETHELINE

A New and most Effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles, and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of different diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 50 pages. SENT FREE on receipt of 2 stamps to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON B. MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C. Write to-day.

RHEUMATISM, COUT, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, INDIGESTION, CONSTIPATION, LIVER & KIDNEY COMPLAINTS, NERVOUS DISORDERS, LADIES' AILMENTS, ETC. Promptly Relieved and CURED BY

HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT

ALL sufferers should read "Harness' Guide to Health," free by post, containing copies of Thousands of Testimonials. Every man and woman in search of Health, Strength, and Energy, should at once send a 21s. postal order to the Medical Battery Co. Ltd. 52, OXFORD ST. LONDON, W. and procure one of these famous Belts, and they may rely upon being CURED

Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW WEDNESDAY, OCT. 26, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 566. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1887. [DOUBLE NUMBER, TWOPENCE.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
The Polyglot Empire	437
"The Empire Route," which is a New North-west Passage	438
More Evidence Connecting the Ancient Inhabitants of Ireland with the Phœnicians and Hebrews. By Joseph Thomson. Part III.	439
Is the Knowledge of Our Identity Advancing at the Present Time?	440
"A Blessing in the Midst of the Land"	441
Answer to Five Objections of an English Clergyman to Anglo-Israelism. A Sermon delivered by Rev. Dr. Wild. Part I.	442
The Argument in Another Form	443
The Sacrifice of Thanksgiving	444
The Annexation of Eastern Zululand	445
The Spirit of Negation and the Spirit of Prayer. By a German	446
The British and Foreign Bible Society	448
"The Stone Cut Out of a Mountain"	449
"A Musical Conversion." By E. M. Rush	449
Israel's Scripture and Prayer Union	450
The Late Joseph Baxendell, F.R.S., F.R.A.S., &c.	450
Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund	451
Correspondence	451

THE POLYGLOT EMPIRE.

WE belong to a Polyglot Empire—one where more languages and dialects of languages are spoken than in any other in the world. In respect to the number and variety of tongues vernacular in the Queen's dominions, the British are "far and away" in advance of all nations, and in this, as in all respects, they are, being Israel, "the head, and not the tail—above only and not beneath," all the Gentile non-Israelite races of the world. In India and Ceylon we have sixteen distinct nations, containing many of them scores of tribes within each of them, speaking either distinct languages or varieties and dialects of the predominant tongue in each, constituting the Peninsula, in truth "the land of a hundred tongues." In Canada and the Mauritius masses of Her Majesty's subjects speak French, and the newspapers there are published in that language. In South Africa we have not only native tongues by the score spoken by the Queen's subjects, but we have Dutch and Germans there living loyally under Her Majesty's sceptre. The languages vernacular in the British Islands are spoken in the Australasian colonies, in Canada, and South Africa, and there besides we have the native tongues of the Maories, of the Fijians, of the Australian blacks, of the New Guinea tribes, of the Red Indians in Canadian North America, of the Malays, Chinese, and the Borneans in the Straits Settlements and Borneo, besides Spanish in Gibraltar, Maltese and Italian in Malta, Turkish and Arabic, Syriac, Cypriote, Hebrew, and Egyptian in Cyprus, to say nothing of the Arabian and African dialects which are to be constantly heard in Aden, Socotra, and Perim; and, finally, the languages spoken in the Falkland Islands, Yahgan, Ona, and others, whose very names we know not.

On this subject we find the St. James's Gazette discoursing in the following fashion, proving Our Identity with Lost Israel, but giving evidence in regard thereto in blindness, and missing the conclusion, because the prophecies of the living God are of no account with our secular writers, but are regarded as foolishness in their sight. The journalist wrote thus:—

The Queen's dominions constitute pre-eminently a polyglot empire. There has just been published in Russia a pocket glossary of a hundred languages—seventy of them spoken in the Russian Empire itself. That is nothing, however, to the number of languages which are the mother-tongue of British subjects born and dwelling in British possessions. Every leading language of Europe (except Russian) is either the accepted speech of some part or other of Greater Britain or extensively spoken by an element of the population. India alone, "the land of a hundred tongues," is richer in distinct variations of Aryan than all Europe combined, while every living form of Semitic speech finds a habitation somewhere or other under the British flag. And when all this is said there remains the Babel of unclassified tongues, from the Effic of West Africa to Chinook of British Columbia, spoken by the peoples and tribes and nations who live and thrive under the ægis of England. This polyglot character of the empire is not a disintegrating quality, if what M. Renan says in his profession of faith as regards things human is true. "We set (he says) above language, race, or geographical frontiers the consent of populations, whatever their tongue, race, or creed may be. What constitutes a nation is not the fact of speaking the same tongue or belonging to the same ethnographical group; it is to have achieved great things in the past, and the desire to do more in the future." That strikes one as the enunciation of a true doctrine of Imperial Federation."

The true doctrine of Imperial Federation, according to the St. James's Gazette, agrees remarkably with the picture the Scriptures draw in figurative language respecting Israel's world-wide dominion. Such a text as Ezekiel xvii. 22 and 23, R.V., is in point:—"Thus saith the Lord God, I will also take of the lofty cedar and will set it; I will crop off from the topmost of his young twigs a tender one, and I will plant it upon a high mountain and eminent; in the mountain of the height of ISRAEL will I plant it, and it shall bring forth boughs and bear fruit, and be a goodly cedar, and under it shall dwell all fowl of every wing;" "in the shadow of the branches thereof shall they dwell." In this parable, or allegory, we have a branch of the Israelitish nation exalted to be a high mountain (or empire) and eminent. It is a God-planted empire, having boughs, or branches, that is, colonies (Gen. xlix. 22, marg.); a fruitful nation (Matt. xxi. 43), therefore Christian (Isa. xxvii. 6); and a polyglot Empire, too, because under the shadow of it "all fowl," or all heathen nations, "dwell" and prosper. Surely the St. James's Gazette is a true and faithful commentator on Ezekiel's remarkable prophecy, and proves that by God's own good providence Israel has developed under the name of Britain into a lofty cedar tree, in a position of great eminence, "the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath" the other nations (or Gentiles); possessing colonies, such being fruit-bearing branches, where races speaking many languages, therefore polyglot in character, are living and flourishing, or as the Scripture describes it twice, are "dwelling" in Israel's "shadow," that is, under her protection.

Digitized by Google

It must not be supposed that the possession by Israel of a polyglot Empire is any particular blessing. The confusion of languages at Babel was a curse and punishment because of ambition and sin on the part of the post-diluvian inhabitants of the earth. But it is a curse which God promised to remove, if we mistake not, and that in connection with Israel. In Zeph. iii. 9, R.V., we have a promise of a blessing to the nation and company of nations of Israel, which they are to inherit after the destruction of the earthly powers by the devouring fire of God's jealousy. "For then," He says, "will I turn to the peoples a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of the Lord to serve Him with one consent." Then, surely, the fowl of every wing which now find refuge under the shadow of the Israelite Colonial branches will learn the one pure language, English, as they are busy doing even now in preparation for the coming day of blessing, when there will be united Christian service rendered to the Lord Jehovah, that with Israel they may call upon the name of Jehovah-Jesus, and serve Him with one consent. Then Israel's Empire will no longer be a polyglot but a monoglot Empire, world-wide in its extent, where English will be the world's vernacular, for the language must follow the race, and "the kingdom and dominion and greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven" will be given to British-Israel, as "the people of the saints of the Most High," and to Him then, as due, will be, and must be, all the praise! (Dan. vii. 27.)

"THE EMPIRE ROUTE," WHICH IS A NEW NORTH-WEST PASSAGE.

THE Times of October 4, 1887, published a remarkable letter of a correspondent, in respect to the new Overland Route, Westward, which may now properly be called "The Empire Route to the East," since it connects the outlying portions of the British Empire with the Mother Country, by a splendid railway lying wholly within portions of the British Empire; the high seas crossed being also free from menace by any possible enemy of our race. A review of that communication will be acceptable to our readers because it relates to one of the most stupendous of modern achievements, nationally considered, having also a close connection with the subject of our British Identity with Israel. The new "Canadian Pacific Railway," then, to begin with, has been built by Canadian energy backed by British capital. "The power to get wealth" has been given by the Lord to Israel; and the British therefore have had to provide the money, and did so, "that God might establish His covenant that He sware to our fathers as it is this day." This railway connects Halifax, a deep-water port on the Atlantic, with a deep-water port, Esquimault, nearest the coast of Japan, and China, and Australia, on the North Pacific. The railway in question is the most Northerly of all the American lines from sea to sea, and it runs parallel with, but at a safe distance from the famous North-West Passage, following however all its curves! This route, says the correspondent, is the only one going to the East from Britain which is not dominated by foreign, and therefore possibly hostile, States. Thus, the Suez Canal, or Overland Route, passes through France, Italy, and Egypt; and coasts along these three countries as well as along Spain, Portugal, Morocco, Algiers, and Arabia. The Cape and South American routes to the East also pass by these and other foreign coasts, and therefore are liable to molestation. "The Empire Route" is free from all these dangers. Steam coal, further, is found near three strategical points on "The Empire Route," namely, at Halifax, close to Vancouver, and near Sydney too. Along the rival routes coal must be carried, at vast expense, 3,000 miles to Port Said; 4,500 miles to Aden; 6,500 miles to Colombo or the Cape. No coal exists at or near these four places. The journey from England to the East, viâ Canada, is shorter in time than all other competing routes; thereby saving two days to Sydney; four to five to Brisbane; two to Hong Kong; between seven and nine to Shanghai; and between seventeen to twenty to Yokohama, in Japan. As to the trade which this new route is certain to foster and develop, it is sufficient to remember how this trade has already advanced by "leaps and bounds." Here are some figures the Times gives us in illustration. The record is in millions sterling—

Between the United Kingdom and	In the year 1860.	In the year 1885.	Estimate for 1910.
Australasia	17	51	153
Straits Settlements	3	7	16.5
Java Phillipines, &c... ...	3	7	16.5
Hong Kong and China ...	15	20	26.5
Japan	.2	3	4.5
Total	38.2	88	217

The trade of the Australian Colonies is advancing with giant strides, and will want as many outlets as we can provide it. "The Empire Route," as being the shortest, will be sure to carry off a large share. Here are some of the figures:—The trade between Australia, and Canada, and the United States rose from £700,000, in 1870 to over £4,000,000 in 1885, or fifteen years! That between North America, and China, and Japan amounts now to £9,000,000 a year. China's 400,000,000 (certainly 250,000,000) of people are preparing to open trade with the world. The vista that opens out is unfathomable. In regard to length of voyage, the distance between Liverpool and Vancouver is reduced already to eleven days, being six days by rail from Halifax, and five days to cross the 2,400 miles between Liverpool and Halifax. Many reasons are given by the Times correspondent recommending the support by Government of the new line on the Pacific, and it is a matter for congratulation that our rulers have seen the wisdom of the policy, and have resolved to subsidise a fortnightly mail service to run between Vancouver and Hong Kong, to begin in Feb., 1888. The sum to be granted is, we believe, about £45,000 a year; though we suppose that is not the limit of the help which the British Exchequer is expected to afford. By the achievement we record the Government, or rather our God has given us through our Government, "incomparable consolidation to the edifice of British Power. It has completed for it an independent circle outside the practical range of European ill-will. Unless England choose to abdicate her naval superiority, no political combination could henceforth dislocate the connection of the Empire." The port of arrival from Europe is well chosen at Halifax, which is accessible in all tides, and in a fog can be approached by use of the lead alone, but when the fog lifts, with certainty; whereas, in New York, a fog prohibits entry absolutely, on account of dangerous shoals, and no ship can cross the bar save at high water. Such are the details which the Times correspondent gives us in reference to the splendid communication now established by the Empire Route. The Germans were hoping to secure the Pacific line of steamers, and their own Government subsidies for steamers between Vancouver and China; but the arrangements now made have, we believe, put aside this danger. We see in all these matters how the hand of God is working to consolidate

Digitized by Google

the power of His people, and thus is building up an Empire which is to be "the kingdom of the Lord and of His Christ," and is to include at last "The kingdom and dominion and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven." The Stone kingdom in short is growing "by leaps and bounds," and one of the most potent means which we have just seen, to hold the whole together, a means which will be found to help forward "The Federation of the Company of Nations," is the opening of "The Empire Route." That route rests upon two mighty Gates, Halifax and Esquimault, and is served by a splendid work, constructed with Israel's wealth, namely, the Canadian Pacific railway. For these glorious gifts let Israel praise the Lord, and recognise His hand in them!

MORE EVIDENCE CONNECTING THE ANCIENT INHABITANTS OF IRELAND WITH THE PHŒNICIANS AND HEBREWS.

By Joseph Thomson.

(Continued from page 433).

PART III.

V.—THE BRIGANTES.

A much more celebrated people in ancient Ireland than the Iberi, were the Brigantes, who were either actually Phœnicians direct from the East, or descended from the Phœnicians of Spain. In Cæman's poem which begins—"I sing of the origin of the Gadalians," it is said that Brioganus, son of Brathus, in a direct line from Fenius, one of their wise men, was the founder of Brigantia in Spain, and that thence his posterity sailed into Ireland, under the lead of Heber and Heremon. Nennius in the ninth, and Giraldus Cambrensis in the tenth century, also say the same. The Spanish harbour called by the Greeks Brugantia, and by Ptolemy Phlaouion Brigantion, and by the Romans Flaora Brigantum, is supposed to have been so called after Brioganus. It is now Corunna, and is only forty-eight hours' straight sail, with a fair S.W. wind, from the south coast of Ireland. Œticus says that in the same town of Brigantia there was a high tower, or Pharos, used chiefly as a lighthouse for vessels at sea. Orosius says this was built by the Tyrian Hercules, who, according to Diodorus Siculus, had subdued all Iberia, and all the country westward before he crossed the Alps. On the other hand, Keating asserts that this tower was built by Brioganus himself, and that the first discovery he made therefrom, by a telescope, was Ireland, and to it he immediately sent a colony of his subjects, i.e. the Brigantes, who in the Irish annals are called Sliocht Briogan, i.e., the stock, or progeny of that leader.

Of the origin of this observatory, Strabo says,—"In this place is the oracle of Menestheus, and the tower of Capio, built upon a rock, surrounded by the sea, a prodigy of art, like the Pharos; and it is so contrived that the rays of light falling thereon are refracted and reflected in every direction, as if issuing out of so many chinks, exhibiting all the beauty and ruddiness of the sun or moon, when either rising or setting, and seen through the medium of a transparent and dry cloud." He also mentions the harbour of Menestheus, as does also Ptolemy: Menestheus was the leader of the Athenians in the Trojan war, and on his return from Illium to Athens, was expelled thence by the descendants of Theseus, when he betook himself to Spain.

Baxter is of opinion that the Brigantes were a people of ancient Phrygia and Armenia, who passed into Thrace, and made themselves masters, in the very earliest days, and by natural occupation, of almost all Europe; and they were also called Heneti, as he thinks, from hen which in the two countries above mentioned means ancient, or antique. In the Welsh (ancient British) hen means old, or aged, as Llywarch Hen, i.e., the aged.

But in opposition to this opinion, Dr. Villanueva thinks that the Brigantes, being either Phœnicians, or a stock of the Phœnician Iberi, got the name Heneti, in after times, from the depravity of their moral conduct, eneth, in Phœnician, signifying scandalous, or depraved. Thence perhaps was derived the Spanish word bergante, which has the same meaning. It may, however, admit of another derivation, (and which we prefer), and infinitely more to their credit, viz., that of being expert in the management of a spear, for heneth, in the Syriac and Hebrew, means a spear. Another derivation makes it come from the custom of embalming the dead, which the Jews and Syrians had borrowed from the Egyptians: henet, or henat, in the Syro-Chaldaic signifies to embalm, the ingredients in which process were myrrh, aloes, cedar oil, wax, pitch, rosin, and salt, with the intention of preserving their dead in a state of indecomposition in the tomb. It is therefore, not improbable that these Phœnician tribes were called the Eneti, i.e., the embalmers, from having introduced this custom into Ireland, as they did also into Spain. Baxter thinks that these Brigantes, or Heneti, having passed into Thrace, got the name of Bruges, Briges, or Friges, from the coldness of that climate; and that these were afterwards inflected according to the various Teutonic and Britannic dialects into, Brigantes, Frixi, Frigones, Frisii, Friscones, Briscones, Britones, and Britanni: that the Brigantes of Ireland were the Gauls and the foreigners who in the older times were called the Erii, or Scots; and that this was a name common to the Britons, nay to all the Gauls before the arrival of the Belgae from Germany. He adds that the original Brigantes, on being expelled their own territories, came in quest of a new settlement to Ireland, and that the Ceangi, a people of the Dumnonian Belgæ, called by the Irish, Scoto Brigantes, For-Bolg, or Belgian-men followed them in pursuit of similar adventures.

But, it being admitted on all hands that the Brigantes were a people of the Phœnicians who landed in Ireland, from the coast of Gallacia, or France, they could not have been so named from the cold of that climate, which we all know to be rather warm. Neither were they so called from Brioganus, son of Brethus, who belongs more to the day-dreams of story-tellers than strict historical truth. Bregan or Breogan Dr. Villanueva considers is from brekin (Phœnician), i.e., bringing offerings to an idol, or genuflecting before it; and which again comes from brie, i.e., he bent the knee.* It also means to offer presents to an idol: hence the scriptural phrase of blessing (brie) an idol. From brekin, they being the most superstitious of all the Phœnicians, they were at first called Breghan, then Bregan, or Breogan, and afterwards, by the Greeks, Brigantoi and the Latins Brigantes, according to the genius of their respective tongues. Some maintain that the Spanish Brigantes were called Brigantoi by the Greeks from purgos anthos, a florid tower, the name by which the Pharos in Brigantia, in Spain, was formerly designated. But they should remember that the Spanish Brigantes were not Greeks, but Phœnicians.

Ptolemy places the Irish Brigantes in the S.E. of Ireland, as if they were akin to those in Britain, i.e., about the sacred promontory Ieron, just opposite Wales. To the west of them were the Vodii; behind these the Itterni, or Ivernii, and to the west of them the Vallabori, with whom Drosius joins the Luceni. From these the Nagnatæ, the Erdini, and Venicnii stretched away towards the north, the extreme of which was occupied by the Robogdii. On the east were the Voluntii, the Eblani, or Blanii, (near the city Eblana, now Dublin), the Cauci and the Manapii, between whom and the Brigantes were the Coriondi. These are the inhabitants of Ireland according to Ptolemy, in his day: but there is no mention of the Scots, which has suggested the idea that they were subsequent to those people (at least under the name of

* In Vol. X. of the Banner, p. 500, we suggested that Brechin, the name of a town in North Britain, indicated a people wearing breeches, or garments coming to the knees, which the Brigantes did. It may also indicate a people bowing the knees, or going down upon their knees in worship.

Digitized by Google

Scots) in point of occupancy. Modern geographers think that they inhabited the eastern districts, afterwards called Catherlaghensis, Midensis, and Waterford; and that from them a part of the district of Media is called, as well in the Irish annals as in some old writings respecting St. Patrick, Magh-breg, or the plain of the Brigantes, a name it retains to the present day.

Brigantia, then, or modern Waterford, was situate opposite to Brigantia in Spain. The river Brigas (now Barrow), and the barony of Bargy, in the S.W. of Ireland, show traces of the Brigantine name: also Bruighan-da-darg, a district in Meath; Brigown, Brigowne, or Brighghobban, once a city, but now a little village in the barony of Condons, county of Cork, though some think this last was so called from St Abban, the reputed founder thereof. To these may be added Briggo, a village in the barony of Ardes, county Down; Bright, a town in the barony of Licale; Briggs, some rocks on the sea coast at Carrickfergus; Breoghain, an old district in the county of Waterford; the river Braghan, and the town of Brick-river. We may also see the Brigantine lineage in the names of illustrious leaders of the ancient Irish, as the Hy-Breaghan, or the O'Breaghan, afterwards altered into O'Brien, and O'Brian. "Hy" here means "of," and is equal to "O."

In Spain are found memorials of this ancient people in the town and country of Brigantinos, near the port of Flavia Brigantium, the modern Corunna; in Brigantes, a river of the Edetani; Bergatiano a town of the Vetones; Berganzo, a city of Cantabria, and in many other towns, as Berga, Bergo, Bergara, Bergezo, Bergedo, etc. But whether the Bergitani, a very ancient people on the east of the Lacetani, by the river Iber, could claim the same origin, Dr. Villanueva could not positively determine. Among the Pannonians there was also a place called Brigantium, which Aurelius calls Victor Bergentium. To this may also be referred the lake called Brigantium Lacus, now Lago de Constanza. Thus we see the nation of the Brigantes were very numerous, laying claim to a large part of Europe as their proper country.

(To be continued).

IS THE KNOWLEDGE OF OUR IDENTITY ADVANCING AT THE PRESENT TIME?

THE question we have asked above, "whether the knowledge of our subject is advancing among the public, or really making little or no progress," will be answered according to the temperament of the person interrogated. The despondent and the pessimist will declare that the whole thing is dying out, and the interest in the subject rapidly departing. The sanguine, on the other hand, will tell us that, without doubt, large multitudes are fully persuaded of the truth of Our Identity, and are only waiting for some startling event to make known their convictions. We suspect the truth lies somewhere between these two extremes. Our own experience is that there are larger numbers than ever who know all about the facts with which we deal in these pages; but that, while the stream is broader, the interest woefully flags. Men are in that state, that knowing the British to be Israel, they are quite content to leave things as they find them. Folding their hands, they say, "No doubt we are the lost Ten Tribes, but there is nothing particular to be done because this is the case, and therefore we see no reason to pay more attention to the matter, but must leave it alone for some other rather more pressing, important work we have to do."

Indifference, therefore, takes the place of enthusiasm and activity. Consequently our Associations fall off in numbers, our lectures are poorly attended, our subscriptions decrease, and there seems to be general discouragement on all sides. The clergy, too, have taken up what doubtless is, from their point of view, their proper attitude to kill the pernicious craze, by leaving it "severely" alone. They "boycott" the subject in their sermons and their lectures. They refuse to listen to it, argue about it, or converse with anyone regarding it who evidently has "Identity on the brain!" Consequently, no one hears now of adverse or abusive pamphlets appearing from the press. The word has gone forth, "Leave these men alone! If this thing be from Satan it will come to nought, and if it be of God it will advance in spite of us, and it will be time enough then for us to espouse it or not when we see it is beginning to be popular." The shepherds of the flock being thus minded towards what we call "the Identity," the sheep can afford to slumber over the subject, and take a languid interest in it when it is thrust before them, or if it is very obtrusively brought to their notice by a red-hot advocate of the matter.

How are we to account for this state of things? The apathy of the clergy one can understand. Their position seems to be prophetic, and they cannot but turn their backs upon a theme which they are destined to reject just as the ministers of religion in the Saviour's time rejected Him, and so ensured His rejection by their followers, the people of Jerusalem. But why should our laity also prove so utterly listless regarding this glorious truth, and show by their conduct that the Identity has not much interest for them, convinced though they may be that the evidence favours our views, and that the British are doubtless the lost House of Israel? We think the conduct of the people in this respect is just what we should expect from Israel's prophetic character. We fail to see from Israel's scriptural portrait that they were destined, before the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, to care in the least degree for their Israelitish origin, or to evince any concern at all for the dealings of their God with them, till frightened by His judgments into some regard for their relationship to Him. Their past character, as sketched in God's Word, plainly exhibits them in this unfavourable light. They were ever faithless, stubborn, stiffnecked, and rebellious towards their heavenly Father. Can we expect them in this their old age to exhibit a more faithful, obedient spirit? On the contrary we find, from Hosea xi. 10, that it will require "the roar of the Lord, like the roar of a lion," to induce the children "to come trembling from the West." The Lord just now is not "roaring like a lion," and has not been for some time. Consequently the children of Israel show no signs of trembling, but, like Gallio, "care for none of these things." They see nothing to alarm them in the present state of affairs, but, like the "mockers" of 2 Peter iii. 3, 4, they cry, "Where is the promise of His coming? for from the days that the (Hebrew) fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation." But what is the testimony of the apostle? Those Israelites who are destined thus to speak, and who are so speaking now, "wilfully forget!" They know the Scriptures, but they determinately put them out of their minds and their thoughts, and so "forget God" and "His determinations." He resolves to find Israel, and tells men where and how they shall appear, when found. But our opponents forget these promises, and conclude that because the Ten Tribes have been "lost" for 2,000 years or so, they will continue to be "lost" for ever! We have, however, "earnestly to desire the coming of the day of God," that is, "to hasten it" (2 Pet. iii. 12). But that day cannot come till Israel be found, and Israel, Judah, and Manasseh being discovered, shall return in triumph to their land.

If men, however, would only regard the many and multiplying "signs of the times" apparent to-day, they would see that the Lord's judgments are rapidly coming upon the earth, and that His own return is at the doors. "The universal conflagration" called in the Scriptures "The great earthquake, an earthquake so great and so mighty" (Rev. xvi. 18, R.V.), unparalleled, in short, in the experience of mankind, is at hand, and "men's hearts are failing them for fear" because of it

Digitized by Google

This should recommend our subject to them, since it brings hope to our nation as nothing else can or will. Even the secular journals write thus of the present prospects of peace. We quote these remarks from a provincial paper of Sept. 29th, 1887, which takes no account of such trifles as Our Identity or its promises. It spoke of "Troublous Times," and adds:—

The time has gone by when any observant person could doubt that a great war is imminent in Europe. At present there is no well-informed man who would be surprised if war were to break out next week, or even to-morrow. . . . Englishmen will be called upon to take sides—at any rate, as far as sympathy goes—in the coming war between France and Germany. They should never forget that the aggression has been entirely on the part of France. In writing thus, however, we make the assumption, which we are sorry to say is by no means justified, that the coming encounter will be a single-handed one. Every sign of the times points to a general war, in which England will almost certainly have to bear her share. Fortunately, England will be on the right side, whatever may befall, and she will be on the winning side too. . . . Of the permanent preservation of peace between Germany and France, there is no hope at all. The latest "frontier incident" is not settled yet. French and German views on the matter are very conflicting, and, although Germany promises that she will make reparation, she does so with the significant reservation—if she should be proved to be in the wrong. If Germany do not apologise, there will almost certainly be war. A German apology, on the other hand, would raise a shout of malignant exultation in France, which would still further embitter the relations between the two countries. There is danger that the guns on the frontier will go off of themselves. The momentous question then would be whether Germany and France would be the sole combatants.

Such are the dismal anticipations of our secular writers to-day. But Our Identity brings the comfort the journalist and our nation sorely want; though at present men reject it, being blind as to their future joyous prospects, a blindness which will only have its end when "the fulness of the Gentiles" (or the Federation of the Empire) "shall have come in," and so all Israel (of the Ten Tribes) "shall be saved." Then will "the Spirit be poured out upon us from on high, and the work of righteousness shall be peace, and the effect of righteousness, quietness and assurance for ever" (Rom. xi. 25, 26; Isa. xxxii. 15, 17). We wait for those days with the certainty that they will come, though now, as ordained, Israel, blind Israel, cannot see, by reason of the veil over their heart. Then, indeed, will she praise the Lord!

"A BLESSING IN THE MIDST OF THE LAND."

We think a sub-leader of the Times some time ago, on the subject of Egyptian Slave Trade and its virtual suppression by the exertion of British influence, was a strong confirmation of Our Identity, and a fulfilment in some measure of Isa. xix. 24, R.V.:— "In that day shall Israel be the third with Egypt, and with Assyria a blessing in the midst of the earth;" for "the Lord hath blessed them, saying, Blessed be Egypt My people, and Assyria the work of My hands, and Israel Mine inheritance." What Power Assyria may represent is still a moot point, but we know whom "Egypt" indicates, and Israel, the Lord's "Inheritance," we need not doubt is the British nation. It is to be, according to the prophecy, a blessing in the midst of the earth, or land of Egypt, and the evidence that this is the fact is furnished by the reports of Col. Schaefer, the chief of the Slavery Department in Egypt, and of Sir Evelyn Baring, the British Chief Commissioner in Egypt. The accounts of the condition of the Slave trade now in Egypt proper are most encouraging. The trade has been "withered up at the roots." "Sales by slave merchants are believed to have entirely ceased." The slave dealers' professsion has become profitless, and the dealer himself "has disappeared!" In 1883, says Col. Schaefer, he had a list presented to him of thirty-two dealers of slaves in Cairo. Of these twenty-five have been arrested, and the rest (seven) have given up the trade as a thing that does not pay! The law of manumission is working vigorously throughout the country, and the Colonel believes that henceforth "no slave will stay in his master's house in the Province of Esueh unless by his own free will." The Khedive and his ministers are loyally working with the Department to put a stop to slavery, and the result is that new rules are passed by which fresh slaves cannot be imported into Egypt without great difficulty. The Italian and Austrian governments are acting with the British in the endeavour to stop the trade through the Suez Canal, by means of the Italian and Austrian steamers. Sir Evelyn Baring does not doubt that the slave trade is still carried on by the Red Sea ports, but he declares that in Egypt proper it no longer exists!

The difficulty, of course, has always been, and still is, that the whole nation and population of Egypt secretly favours the traffic, and is ready at a moment to conspire at its immediate re-establishment. The Mahommedan religion favours the trade and institution; but for all that, Colonel Schaefer considers the thing is dead in Egypt, and will not revive, because the British have shown the land-holders and slave-owners that "free labour is cheaper and far less troublesome than slave labour." They find that the possession of slaves brings them vexation, and is precarious. They know now that the human chattel has learnt its own rights, and "can appeal elsewhere for liberty and against oppression, and that fresh supplies cannot easily, or, indeed, at all, be got from outside."

The last few words of the Times' article on the subject are worth repeating, because we think they point not doubtfully at the Israelitish origin of the people so favoured as the British are in Egypt. The writer said:—

If British ascendancy in Egypt had no other effect than the downfall of slavery there as a dominant and living institution, it could not be said to have been purposeless or futile. Amid all the errors committed by or charged against British policy on the Nile, backwardness or hesitation in this is not to be reckoned. England has held steadily up the standard of emancipation, and the facts of the decline of domestic Egyptian slavery and the annihilation of the Egyptian slave trade show that humanity and Egypt are beginning to reap the fruits.

Israel was and is destined "to blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit" (Isa. xxvii. 6, R.V.). Good fruit is sown in Egypt when the curse of the land, the slave trade, is destroyed. That, by God's help, we have done, our public officials and public journalists being the witnesses; and surely we may now say that "Israel is a blessing in the midst of the land" of Egypt. We have also blessed India in every possible imaginable way; we have given all races with whom we have any influence the Bible, and the knowledge of the way of salvation; and so have proved the truth of the promise that "In thy seed (i.e., in Abraham's, Isaac's and Jacob's) all the nations, all the families, and all the kindreds of the earth shall be blessed" (Gen. xxii. 18, xxviii. 14; Acts iii. 25). It is true that with the blessing we have also taken, in many cases and in many places, alas! the curse of drink and evil habits. But this is part of our prophetic ignoble character so wonderfully drawn in Zech. viii. 13, R.V.: "And it shall come to pass that, as ye were a curse among the nations, O House of Judah and House of Israel, so will I save you, and ye shall be a blessing; fear not (but) let your hands be strong." Israel's character was ever evil in certain respects, and these have verily operated as curses among the heathen nations where God has sent us to preach the Gospel. But the promise remains, and is ours, that these blots and blemishes in the people of God shall yet be wiped away, when the law of God will be written on their hearts and minds, when we shall know Him "from the least of us to the greatest of us," and "our (national) sins and iniquities He will remember no more" (Jer. xxxi. 33, 34). Verily this will meet our case, and call for Israel's praises

Digitized by Google

ANSWER TO FIVE OBJECTIONS OF AN ENGLISH CHURCH CLERGYMAN TO ANGLO-ISRAELISM.

A Sermon delivered by Rev. Dr. Wild,

In Bond Street Church, Sunday Evening, August 21st.

(From "Parkdale News" Aug. 25, 1887.)

PART I.

"Hear the word of the Lord, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, as a shepherd doth his flock."—Jeremiah xxxi. 10.

A friend has called my attention to a lecture delivered a short time since in Northampton, England, by the Rev. J. Wilkinson, of Mildmay. In his lecture the rev. gentleman labours to show the mischievous character of the modern theory—he so calls it—that the Anglo-Saxons were the lost tribes of Israel. The theory he describes as one of the leading latter-day errors of these perilous times. For myself, I am perfectly willing that he or any one else should state their objections, because I am a thorough believer in the fact that Great Britain is the Ten Lost Tribes organized, and that the United States are none other than the tribe of Manasseh, in an organized form: nay more, I believe myself, with many others, that we are perfectly willing and as able to answer all reasonable objections, and meet honestly and fairly all our opponents, be they the Rev. Mr. Spurgeon, the Rev. Dr. Sexton, or the Rev. J. Wilkinson, or any other reverend, or any others that shall think they have got a reasonable objection against this theory. This I may confess, that the opponents have helped me greatly to grasp the subject and more clearly to see that God-revealed distinction between the Houses of Israel and Judah, which I deem from my present experience and former darkness to be one of the grandest truths for a man to know who wants to read the Old Testament intelligently. Any person ignorant of that one key can understand but little of the prophecies revealed. No doubt, by reason of objections urged against Anglo-Israelism I have been made to be more careful in my utterances, and at the same time more persevering in my studies, that I might know whether this theory was sustained by the Bible or not: as in the past, even more so in the present, I like to answer objections. They do not in the least annoy me, for I believe the theory is so plainly taught in the Bible, and mirrored forth in the history of the Anglo-Saxon race, in their origin, in their growth, in their present position and influence in the British Empire, that I cannot fail to find the correspondence between the perfect utterances and the state of things I see in history or see at the present time. Yes, even the Bible future of Israel I find in Britain. In that empire I find the potency and promise of the prophetic future of Israel reasonable and possible. For instance, I see no Power among the nations of this earth more likely finally to possess Palestine than Britain. I see no Power more likely to protect the Jews and put them back in Father Abraham's land than Britain. I see no Power leading Britain in the fact of civilizing the nations, Christianizing and colonizing the world of men; all of which were to prominently characterize Israel in the latter day. If I am sure that these are the latter days I may look for the evidence in some nation of people. I have looked, and the conclusion of my looking is that Great Britain stands the best chance to be Israel in this organized form. My opponents as well as myself believe that Israel is to be the dominating and ruling power among the nations. The dispute between us is, Who is this Israel? If Britain is not Israel, she has got to go under, and I am willing for her to go under if she be not this appointed people of God. This being so, I am sure that Britain at the present time seems to me the most likely to be Israel. She certainly is ahead in the race at the present time, and I believe she will keep ahead a long time, any way until I get through with Bond Street Church. I may prophesy all that I can, talk fulsomely up to that point—a point we will never reach.

I have not read a verbatim report of the reverend gentleman's lecture, but if that which is reported be true, I cannot but feel he will be a hard person to convince or to correct. I am afraid he, like many others, wants proofs that cannot be given, for he wants that which is both unfair and in the very nature of things unreasonable. For instance, he says, "Supposing the Anglo-Saxons could be traced back to their origin as satisfactorily as the Jews could be traced back to Abraham, this would by no means prove the Anglo-Saxons to be the Ten Lost Tribes." I would like to ask what it would prove if it did not prove that; for surely, racially, traditionally, historically, and religiously, the Abrahamic origin of the Jews no one doubts, and if I could trace back the Ten Lost Tribes as sure as the Jew can trace back his origin to Abraham, I believe it would be as safe as that this desk is a piece of wood. I simply say it is a demand that no reasonable man should make. No people have a pedigree so sure and authentic as the Jews. This fact itself is one of the staggering points that meets every infidel; even the careless Lord Rochester said, "I reject all arguments in favour of the Bible with one single exception, namely, that founded on the existence of the Jews, that alone baffles my Scriptural infidelity." Now for a man to say it would be no proof if we could trace back the origin of the Anglo-Saxons equal to that of the Jews, I am of the conviction I can do nothing with him, but I take up the subject for others, who, I presume, are a little more generous, and may be a little more willing to accept evidence when presented. For my part, I consider such proof the very strongest of its kind. What pulpit, what minister, what historian doubts the origin of the Jews? Not a single pulpit or historian in the world! The gentleman must have, as a good many of you have, a hatred to this subject, a perversion in your mind that blinds your eyes to the clearest light that God has furnished for us, and you simply overlook the plain facts that are historically recorded.

What are his objections? There are five. The first one arises out of the prophecy of Balaam as recorded in Numbers xxiii. 9, when Balaam is speaking for Balak with the intention of cursing the Israelites. They were encamped on the plains below the mountain on which he stood. Instead of uttering a curse upon the encamped host of Israel, he uttered a blessing three successive times. He says, "For from the top of the rock I see him, and from the hills I behold him: lo, the people shall dwell alone, and shall not be reckoned among the nations."

Mr. Wilkinson thinks that we have never been and are not now alone, and hence cannot be the people that were spoken of by the prophet Balaam; but he should remember that this prophecy had reference to the whole Hebrew race, encamped at the foot of these hills. It had reference also to God's intention concerning these people. What was this intention, I pray? Simply God calls Abraham from Ur in Chaldea, from his own friends and relatives, and locates him among strangers, saying to him that the land He will give to him for himself and his seed. He isolates him in his religion, He isolates him in his rites and ceremonies of that religion, He isolates him sanitarily, He intercepts him in his social relations, for they were not to intermarry, nor to eat, nor to worship with the people around them. Was it not indeed God's intention to separate this people from the rest?

Most certainly it was: and the people occupying that land—these Israelites—when they went in were commanded to destroy and not live side by side with them, lest they should become part of them, so strict was God. In their mission and privileges they were alone. God never came so near to a people, nor have we a people on the face of the earth so distinctly separate from the rest of mankind. This is the idea Moses has given us in Exodus xxxiii. 16. He understands what separation means, for he says: "For wherein shall it be known here that I and Thy people have found grace in Thy sight? Is it not in that Thou goest with us? so shall we be separated, I and Thy people, from all the people that are on the face of the earth." It is a wonder that Mr. Wilkinson did not read that verse. People read the verses they like as a rule, and pass over those they do not. This is the trouble I have meeting nine out of every ten opponents. They have got a portion of their own, and they will stand by it and they will knock the other parts of the Bible endways. My idea is a man should get in the Bible something that will sustain his theory and take the majority. When you get ten passages, for instance, supporting your theory, and five opposed to it, go with the majority. That is sensible. If that rule were followed to-day it would unite a great many churches that are not united, for they are only sectional, and can only be sustained by referring to portions and parts of the Bible. I am perfectly willing to admit when I meet a person of another denomination that he has certain passages favouring his special view; I grant that. They say, Explain then why do you not believe as I do when I have got ten passages where you have only got five. That is the point. You are neither wise enough nor am I to explain the whole of them, but as a British subject believing that the Government should be conducted on an honest majority, I go in for it in theology. It is a piece of foolishness to say that the whole Bible sustains any one denomination. There may be a few passages that seemingly favour the existence of any one, but that is not enough. They should have the whole Bible at their back, and take fairly and squarely the majority of inferences and declarations.

Digitized by Google

None like Britain has dwelt alone in her island home. She has been alone in her great missionary enterprises, alone in her grand effort to free humanity from slavery; alone in the grand effort to colonize and civilize the desolate places of the earth. The matter of dwelling alone was spoken of by Balaam as a blessing; hence it is a poor argument for Mr. Wilkinson to apply it to the Jews, because the Jews have not been blessed. If any body has suffered on the line of the centuries the Jews have. What Balaam predicted is believed by all commentators to be a blessing. Why apply it to the Jews, who have been cursed above all other races on this earth from the time our Saviour was crucified to this very present moment? Surely common-sense would indicate that that saying of Balaam's could not be applied to the Jews!

His second objection is from Hosea iii. 4. "For the children of Israel shall abide many days without a king, and without a prince, and without a sacrifice, and without an image and without an ephod, and without teraphim." Mr. Wilkinson applies it to Britain now. He says Britain is not now without a king. Go back to the time when Hosea uttered these words, and see if between that time and this that part of the prophecy has been fulfilled. Was there a portion of the Saxon history when they had no king, nor prince, nor government? Yes, for hundreds of years. Any common school scholar in Canada could correct the rev. gentleman on that point. I am astonished that a man living in that favoured land should think that the Saxons have always had a king and government.

When they were first carried captive they were slaves, and they became a nomadic people, without tribal princes, king or government, for centuries. Can we not read in 2 Kings xvii., their relation, how the House of Israel was destroyed, its king destroyed, its government destroyed, its princes destroyed, its worship destroyed? As the centuries moved on they again began to organize in tribal forms, and finally came over to England as the Angles, the Saxons, the Jutes and others to consolidate again. Now, if Mr. Wilkinson would, he might find the first part of what Balaam said in the past. The present state of Britain he will find to be consistent with the next verse, for Balaam went on to say: "Afterward shall the children of Israel return, and seek the Lord their God, and David their king; and shall fear the Lord and His goodness in the latter days." This simply means that for centuries they were to be without a king, without princes, without government, and finally they should return from their backsliding, acknowledge God and receive the true worship. If you take Britain from the time Hosea uttered these words, you will see she has fulfilled both prophecies. In her first career she was without government, without kings, without princes. Now she has governments, kings and princes by the wholesale.

(To be continued).

THE ARGUMENT IN ANOTHER FORM.

LET us suppose the Christian's Bible, the Old and New Testaments, could be submitted for perusal and study by one who never heard of it before, who was, therefore, entirely unprejudiced either for or against it. What would be the verdict of such an one, after a full, candid and careful perusal of its contents? What he would say would be surely something like this:—"I find this book from first to last to be the history of one race, and that it contains a picture of the Supreme Being's dealing with it from the earliest times, commencing with its small beginnings, when the founders of the nation, Abraham and Sarah were selected, to the last glorious termination of the history of the chosen race as the rulers of the planet. The book records, too, their careful education and preparation for this splendid destiny. The record concerns this race alone, and when other nations are mentioned in this extraordinary volume I find that it is only in an incidental fashion, and that merely so far as such mention influences or bears upon the main story of the nation whose fathers were Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and his twelve sons. The book, I observe, is written mostly in the Hebrew tongue, by Hebrew authors, published among the Hebrew people, preserved by them, addressed to them, and leading up to the appearance of the Divine Man, the Son of God, the Man Jesus Christ, Himself a Hebrew sprung from the Tribe of Judah." Such would be the testimony of the stranger to revelation when put upon the task of studying the Hebrew Scriptures. Such an one would also tell us, what is the truth—namely, that at a certain crisis in the history of the race in question they were divided into two distinct nations, both of whom were banished at separate epochs to distant lands for sin; that one of such divisions, the Jews, returned from banishment in B.C. 538, but the other, the House of Israel, never did so return at all. The book however makes provision for this catastrophe, and promised that in due time the two Houses would be reunited and return together under one head, no longer two nations and two kingdoms, but one nation and one kingdom, to remain so for ever and for evermore under God's blessing, within their own inheritance, the country of the mountains of Israel. As the House of Israel was destined to disappear from history and exist under "another name" than that of Israel, the book provided for the recognition of this lost people, and declared respecting them these among other signs and marks by which they were to be known in the "last days." They were geographically to be discovered in

1. The Isles of the West, "afar off" from Palestine.
2. In the North Country.
3. In the West.

They were to be known, then, as

1. A powerful people, strong at sea.
2. Multitudinous to a degree, therefore an Imperial people.
3. Wealthy abnormally.
4. Possessing a Colonial Empire tending to become a Federation of united nations.
5. Having a Heathen Empire great beyond example.
6. Excelling other nations in all respects, as the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath.
7. Holding their enemies' Gates, their own secure the while.
8. Possessing the Word of God.

Digitized by Google

9. Honouring the Sabbath of the Lord their God.
10. Obeying the laws of God.
11. And so loving the souls of men, as to be constantly not only endeavouring to benefit and bless "all nations, families and kindreds of the earth;" but succeeding in that attempt.

This and much more our student would discover and repeat to us.

Can any one deny that this is a true report of the contents of the sacred book? None can! That being the fact, we turn to another phase of our inquiry and ask what are the material facts of the case? Can we point to-day, the destined time, to any race geographically, and in all other respects answering to the picture God gives us in the book, of Israel in the last days, as to their characteristics and lineaments? We can! There is the British nation before us, responding in all points to the portrait. To the jot and to the tittle the likeness is exact! Not a feature is wanting. There is no point omitted, none in excess of the description! Geographically; in regard to religion, manners, customs, love of the Bible, of the Sabbath, of the Decalogue, in respect to evangelical ministry, nothing is wanting to point out the identity of the races when the facts are compared with the written prophetic description.

Such, we say again, are the facts. Can any one deny them? None can. Here we leave the case. We draw no conclusion, we do nothing, but ask the world at large two questions:—

Are we wrong with reference to the premises if we draw the conclusion that the British people are Israel of the House of Joseph? If we be wrong, what other race fits the description better?

Such a race there must be if the British be not they! And Christian men are bound to prove the faithfulness of God by showing us where the hidden people are to-day, responding to the prophecies.

If they fail, as fail we believe they must, then we maintain that the violent presumption raised by the facts we have disclosed to show that the British are the House of Israel, must prevail; and the conclusion must stand that the British are

"LOST ISRAEL FOUND!"

The burden of proof is now shifted to our opponents. Let them assume it!

Concisely we may state the contention thus:—

1. God Almighty gave, on oath, "to Abraham and his seed for ever," certain blessings, exclusively.

2. The British nation to-day enjoys those very same blessings exclusively.

As men who exercise their reason reasonably what conclusion would our opponents draw from these premises?

THE SACRIFICE OF THANKSGIVING

THE testimony of God's Word in regard to the duty of "thanksgiving" is this:—we find it in Psalm l. 23 (R.V.)—"Whoso offereth the sacrifice of thanksgiving glorifieth Me—and to him that ordereth his conversation aright will I show the salvation of God." The marginal reading of the last verse is this—"Whoso offereth the sacrifice of thanksgiving glorifieth Me, and prepareth a way that I may shew him the salvation of God." The sacrifice of thanksgiving then is a means of grace! We thereby glorify God, and so prepare a way by which God may in Christ shew us the way of salvation, or the salvation of God itself! What a privilege then is this thing! and how bounden our duty constantly to offer the Lord praise and thanksgiving, that He may be glorified, and that He may shew us the salvation of God! It is our study in the BANNER, to lead men "to praise the Lord." At the end of every article—especially in those in which we seem most to exalt the nation, we strive to teach men that all we are and have is from and of the Lord; purchased by the blood of Jesus and promised by God Himself to the Lord Jesus for His people; that is, for His servants, Abraham and his seed for ever. Surely "the sacrifice of thanksgiving" is due from such a race as ours to the Giver of such gifts as we enjoy! How utterly unworthy the nation is of the high privileges we have inherited none can know but God Himself, and if we did not offer Him "the sacrifice of praise" we must give to Him, such as it is, surely the very stones would cry out! But when we know, as we now do know, that to offer Him thanks is "to glorify the King of kings," then we have the very highest sanction and incentive to praise which we possibly can have, and it is needful it should be continuous. For our own self-interest is also involved in this matter; seeing that by such sacrifices of thanksgiving, we "prepare a way that He may shew us," what is quite a separate matter, namely, "the salvation of God!" None can see the way of salvation by the blood of Jesus but those to whom the Spirit of God first "shows" it, and therefore it is of the utmost importance that we should cultivate the thankful, praising spirit, in order that we may "glorify our God," and so "prepare a way by which He may shew us the way of salvation." To this result, all God's dealings with his people tend. He leads them to ask for salvation, when He tells them, "Publish ye, praise ye, and say, O Lord, save Thy people—the remnant of Israel!" (Jer. xxxi. 7). Praise to the Lord, then, leads to salvation—and that salvation is the gift of God through Jesus Christ our Lord, for "By grace we are saved—through faith; and that not of ourselves—it is the gift of God" (Eph. ii. 8). "The sacrifice of thanksgiving" is further appropriate in a peculiar way from Israel of the Ten Tribes. For they have been Gentilized; "cast out" of the covenant of Sinai; made the Lord's Lo-Ammi—not reckoned to be His people—yet never forgotten by Him. Herein then is the ground for our thankfulness, seeing we are, as a race, unworthy of the least of all the Lord's mercies, and yet covered with the vast multitude of His lovingkindnesses and tender mercies. We are like the prodigal son of the parable (Luke xv.), who, coming to his father in his rags, and all his moral defilements, which in his own eyes unfitted him to be any longer reckoned as his father's son, can aspire only to be made "as one of his hired servants" (ver. 19). The father's love however gave him his son-ship again, and with the fatted calf, the ring, the shoes, the "best robes" (of righteousness), the feast, merry-making, and dancing. For this the son was dead, and was alive again; was lost (as a nation), but now "found again." Was not the sacrifice of perpetual thanksgiving the right return for such as the lost prodigal to make after such a reception as that? The episode of the ten lepers of Luke xvii. 12—19 (R.V.) is another case in point. Like the world at large, the ten lepers were recipients of the blessing of Jesus—He died for the sins of the whole world. But the only race alive in any respect to the benefits and blessings He died to bestow, was out-cast, Lo-Ammi, Israel—none "save this stranger" or "alien"—the British nation! He returned to give glory to God for his cure—falling at Jesus' feet and giving Him thanks as God! (ver. 16), "and he was a Samaritan!" The only praising ones are Israel of the Ten Tribes; and they alone therefore glorify Him who has done such great things for them. To this effect is David's testimony in Psa. cxxvi. 1, 3, (R.V.):—"When the Lord Jehovah turned again the captivity of Zion—we were like them that dream. Then was our mouth filled with laughter, and our tongues with singing. Then said they among the nations: The Lord Jehovah hath done great things for them. The Lord hath done great things for US (whereof) we are glad!" Gladness, joy, rejoicing, and praise, then are needed on our part to testify that the Lord's blessings and benefits are conferred upon us, unworthy as we are of them all.

When we consider our condition, hopeless as it seemed (Ezek. xxxvii. 11), and how He has blessed us, we cannot fail to praise Him for His goodness, mercy, and truth towards the

Digitized by Google

House of Israel, and we glorify Him for His grace accordingly. For what has He done for us? nay, what has He not done for us, whereby to make us "glad"? When our hope was lost and we dared not believe we were His people, He sent us the assurance by means of the Identity, that we are verily His people, His inheritance, His heritage, His chosen ones, His nation! He has made us a "strong nation" (Micah iv. 7). He has given us nationally His blessing; He has given us multitudinousness inconceivable; and the Gate of our enemies (Gen. xxii. 17). He has given us wealth abnormal (Deut. viii. 18); so great that we "lend to many nations, but never borrow" of them (Deut. xv. 6); and we are privileged by such wealth to enable the Lord (wondrous thought!) "to establish His covenant which He sware unto our fathers as it is this day!" (Deut. viii. 18). He has made us to reign over many nations, while none of them reign over us (Deut. xv. 6). He has given us, besides all this, an inviolable home; an "appointed place" of refuge and safety, where, like "the apple of His eye," He protects and saves us; making our home Gates secure and safe, "open day and night," filled hourly with the wealth of nations (2 Sam. vii. 10; Zech. ii. 8; Isa. lx. 11). Then of spiritual gifts He has bestowed upon us precious stores. An open Bible; the blessed Holy Spirit to teach us its meaning (as He dealt not with other nations); His Sabbath days; His ten true laws, which are the laws of God; the love of souls; and the wish to benefit and save the nations; and revivals of religion perpetually! (Psa. cxlvii. 19, 20; Matt. xxi. 43; Exod. xxxi. 13, 17; Ezek. xx. 20; Isa. xxvii. 6; Gen. xxii. 18; xxviii. 14; Acts iii. 25; Joel ii. 28; Acts iii. 19).

These are the benefits and blessings He has promised to bestow on Israel, His people; and under Christ, and by the Hand of Jesus our Lord and King, He has given them all to us British because we are the remnant of Israel, to the praise of the glory of His grace and because He is the faithful and true God who keepeth covenant (Deut. vii. 6—11). Shall we not then do rightly to make every page of the BANNER OF ISRAEL resound with the praises of Jehovah our King, and shall not our daily cry be, among ourselves, "Brethren, let us praise the Lord!"

"Ye that fear the Lord, praise Him!" "All ye the seed of Jacob, glorify Him!" "And stand in awe of Him all ye the seed of Israel!" ". . When he cried unto Him, He heard" (Psa. xxii. 23, 24).

THE ANNEXATION OF EASTERN ZULULAND.

FROM February 5, 1887, the Eastern portion of Zululand ceased to be a protected territory, but became part of Her Majesty's dominions by annexation. How was that strong measure brought about? What could possibly induce the timid British Government to act in so decisive a manner? The story is told, in a Blue Book, just published, by Mr. Osborn, the Resident Commissioner. It appeared in the Times of August 25. The report shows that the annexation has been too long delayed, and that the delay has cost the Zulus large territory, but has given the Boers a valuable portion, which we have culpably allowed them to steal. The matter became urgent at last. The Boers had got the whole country, saving that portion called the Reserve, which we had secured at the end of the war; and the difficulty was to make them give it up. The matter was complicated by the fact that the Zulu chiefs had "recklessly signed away their rights" to the Boers, who were not slow to assert their own in consequence. On the 22nd October, 1886, however, the British Government entered into an agreement with the Boers, by which some of their gains were recovered for the Zulus, and the land was divided then as follows. There was "the Reserve" to the South, which the Queen has governed since the war, of which the battle of Ulundi was the sequel. Then there was the New Republic, which was the Western and North-western portion of Zululand, allowed to be retained by the Boers; and finally, Eastern Zululand, the strip of coast and contiguous land, which was all that was left or could be secured for the original owners, from their rapacious neighbours. The Zulu chiefs were dissatisfied with the partition, but the people were grateful that so much was saved out of the wreck. How forlorn was the hope, is evidenced by Sir Arthur Havelock's reply to the many Zulu deputations from the chiefs who visited him, asking for help. "The Government," he said, "is willing to intervene, and will try and save something for them. They will not get all—or nearly all—but the Government will try and save something for them." That something was Eastern Zululand. Then came the further question. How was this Eastern portion to be governed? By the Zulus or by the British, their late conquerors? The Zulus alone could never hold the land against their aggressive neighbours the Boers, and they knew it. They were in terror of them. There was but one way to meet the difficulty, which would avail to keep the Boers in order. The British must either establish a protectorate over Eastern Zululand or annex it outright, and so govern the Zulus as a subject race. The protectorate was tried first, but was found unsatisfactory. The Zulus admit we conquered them, and are content we should govern and make laws for them. They could not understand a protectorate, and though national pride forbad them asking for annexation, they acquiesced in the thing being done. On and after May 19 last, all Zululand, save and except the New Republic, became part of the British possessions, and so a fresh and large addition must be made in the maps to the countries already distinguished by the "thin red line." The Governor of Natal, assisted by elective members of the Legislative Council, will henceforth be the rulers of the country for the Queen, making laws "by proclamation."

Such is the history of this our last annexation. Had we done our duty by the people we conquered, we should have at once annexed the whole of Cetewayo's kingdom; but failing that, we gave up the whole land to anarchy, war, bloodshed, and plunder. We let the Boers seize the most valuable part of it, and so wretchedly vacillating has been our Governments' conduct of affairs, for years past, in respect of Zululand, that Sir Theophilus Shepstone, in the Blue Book under reference, declares that "Her Majesty's Government has for many years past seemed to be so feeble and hesitating of purpose in all matters connected with Zululand, that the most difficult portion of the task of any officer representing the Government to the Zulus, is to impress them with belief in the permanence of any intentions or arrangements that it may become his duty to announce to them." The final result is, that we are obliged to annex the land as to a portion only of it. But the best and most valuable has gone to enrich a semi-barbarous people, who will not long submit to have civilised neighbours. They will one day cross swords with us to their own loss, at great expenditure of life and treasure to ourselves. The salient fact that comes up for consideration in all this is, that the British Empire has recently grown in Zululand against our nation's wishes, just as it has grown in our own times in New Guinea, Upper Burmah, North Borneo, Amatongaland, and all round the littoral of South Africa, from the Orange River on the West, to Delagoa Bay to the East. The cause is the old one. The British are Israel, and by them God means the heathen world to be reached and saved by the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. Our nation, blind to their glorious origin, refuses to see need of this constant increase of territory, and so continually and strenuously seeks to avoid it. God's will, however, must and shall be done. If resisted, it still has its fulfilment, though with loss and tribulation to the people who ignorantly withstand that will. So in Zululand, our resistance has led to our own loss of prestige, to misery to the innocent people whom we had just conquered in a sanguinary war, and then refused to govern, and also to the prospect of future trouble with the Boers, a people whom Mr. Gladstone allowed to treat with us while in overt rebellion, on British ground, with arms in their hands at the time! The tale is a sad and mournful one; but out of it all comes this consoling fact:—God, finally, has His own way, which is the best and most blessed way, and Zululand will now, so far as it is under Israel's Government, enjoy peace and prosperity, the Gospel and the Word of God. To Him be all the praise! We conclude with a few lines of Mr. Osborn's Report, which explains why the Zulus would not volunteer or verbally consent to their country's absorption by the British Empire, but why they are quite ready to acquiesce in the accomplished fact. Mr. Osborn continues:—

Digitized by Google

I was not surprised at this answer sent by the chiefs. From the moment I received their message on the 30th ult., I knew that they were convinced of the dangerous position in which the country is placed, and that their only escape was to come under the direct authority and protection of Her Majesty's Government, as now offered them; and I knew that if they thought otherwise they would not have failed to return to me in terms of the adjournment on the 29th ult. I was aware that, by Zulu tradition and law, no Zulu, whether a chief or not, may, under any circumstances, voluntarily consent to the transfer of the country or any portion thereof, or of the rights and position of the paramount chief, to any Power or person. At the same time, they fully understand the wisdom of submitting to the inevitable, whether in consequence of conquest or of insuperable political difficulties besetting them. They could not, even in self-preservation, make any offer to be taken over by any friendly Power, nor could they openly consent to any measure involving such a condition. They would, however, submit cheerfully to any act, even of total absorption by such a Power, and especially by the British Government, who had conquered them, and to whom they still admit they belong. But they could only so submit on the initiative of that Power, as they would thereby be at once relieved of the responsibilities imposed upon them by their own tradition and law.

On May 11, 1887, the Home Government telegraphed their approval of Mr. Osborn's proceedings, and authorised the issue of a proclamation (made three days afterwards), declaring the whole of Zululand, with the exception of "the New Republic," "a British possession." So the Empire of the Stone grows, by leaps and bounds!

THE SPIRIT OF NEGATION AND THE SPIRIT OF PRAYER.

By A German.

"That I may see the prosperity of Thy chosen, that I may rejoice in the gladness of Thy nation, that I may glory with Thine inheritance" (Psalm cvi. 5).

May it not be asserted without fear of contradiction, that at all times the children of God have been called upon to discern the moral occasion of the age in which their lot was cast? For, as from the beginning of the history of this fallen race, the Almighty has ever in unceasing mercy and faithfulness wrought amidst and for the children of men, and by means of chosen vessels from among them, and is so working still until the glorious consummation He has purposed in Himself be attained; so has also His Holy Spirit ever been ready to illuminate the minds of those who, being born from above, were indeed appointed, if they understood their position aright, to be witnesses for Him in their day and generation; and according to their faith and faithfulness would be their capacity to interpret the circumstances and signs of their own time, and to shape their course accordingly. Moreover, this spiritual discernment was more especially needed in times of weakness and failure among the people of God, frequently the waiting-time preparatory to a new stage in the development of His counsels. Then, when the great epoch had arrived, and the prophet or deliverer appeared on the scene, it was ever only the few, who entering into the Divine mind, understood the situation and were prepared for the action of faith: the rest, in heart and mind lagged behind, thus more or less positively "resisting the Holy Ghost." It was thus at the time of the deliverance under Moses. It was thus that the testimony of even the greatest prophets effected so little, morally, to all appearance, in their own day: so that their utterances seem rather to have been recorded for the benefit of those upon whom the ends of the age have come.

And this apprehending through faith on the part of the few, in opposition to the many who heeded not and disbelieved, was at no time more marked a feature than when, on the greatest of moral occasions, the moment had come for the Incarnate Son of God to present Himself: "He was in the world, and the world was made by Him, and the world knew Him not. He came unto His own and His own received Him not." It is because man is ever prone to apply his own small measure to God's lofty ways, judging of them by his own feeble and unhallowed thoughts, that he fails to discern that element of convincing power, even the moral glory which, as a halo, invariably surrounds every Divine revelation, be it in judgment or in mercy and grace. It is the "understanding with the heart" that is needed. May it not be said that at His first coming as the Saviour of the world and Redeemer of Israel, the Son of God veiled His personal and divine glories, and that it was by this moral glory of His, and "the works (in gracious deliverances) which the Father gave Him to do, "that He addressed the heart and conscience? But to those who had received Him, He vouchsafed glimpses of His majesty.

Throughout the sacred volume do we thus find records of failure and resistance on the part of the many, shewing that we have to do here with a principle of evil which we must ever expect to assert itself; and the greater the occasion the more manifestly so. It is in fact that spirit of negation which at the beginning, before Adam's race had commenced its course, was instilled into the human mind with the word, "Yea hath God said . . . ?" which in the heart of the fool takes the form of, "There is no God," which at another time found expression in "The Lord will not do good, neither will He do evil," which in His own day "denied the Holy and Righteous One," which in the language of the "scoffers in the last days" exclaims, "Where is the promise of His coming?" and which now, at the close of the period in which man has been left apparently to work out his own history, adds to the words, "Yea hath God said . . . ?" another evil thought, "Yea hath God wrought?" Is not this in perfect keeping with all that has gone before, and are we not almost driven to expect it? What then is the situation at present? What is proposed to faith now, and wherein consists the moral glory that accompanies it?

More than eighteen centuries have run their course since the commencement of the Christian dispensation, ushered in on the day of Pentecost as the "ministration of the Spirit, exceeding in glory" what had gone before. Fifty years ago it would have been more necessary than it is now, in the countries inhabited by the British race (where alone the Bible is really prized and duly studied), to demonstrate that the march of events and the concurrent testimony of the inspired writers, both go to prove that this protracted era of grace is drawing to a close, and is to end in judgment over a professing Christendom, characterised by an utter departure of heart from the "living God," in fact by the great "falling away" or apostasy. Yet, on the other hand, Christ Himself testifies (Matt. xxiv. 14): "This Gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole world for a testimony unto all the nations; and then shall the end come." But since it is ordained that this evangelising is to be carried on by human agency, as it is also said (Rom. x. 15):—"How beautiful are the feet of them that bring glad tidings of good things!" can we suppose such messengers to proceed from out of a faithless Christendom? Impossible! There must therefore be somewhere some portion of the human race, also professing Christianity, and amongst them men and women not a few, full of faith and the Holy Spirit, fitted instruments for such glorious work; in fact a nation bringing forth the fruits of the kingdom of God (Matt. xxi. 43). But this is exactly what is said of Israel: In days to come shall Jacob take root; Israel shall blossom and bud, and they shall fill the face of the world with fruit" (Isa. xxvii. 6). Moreover, we need not go further than the verses from Micah v. and Deut. xxxiii., heading the BANNER OF ISRAEL, to prove that before the establishment of the millennial reign of righteousness the remnant of Jacob, the House of Joseph, as leading Israel, will have developed into an all-absorbing, conquering nation (and company of nations), its power extending to the ends of the earth. Now do not these two lines of thought in the prophetic Scriptures blend perfectly: that of a race so enjoying the divine favour as to be given imperial sway over the whole world, and at the same time so blest spiritually as to bring forth the fruits of righteousness suited to the Kingdom of God, and to be His witnesses in proportion to the extent of its sway? But if we are right in saying that the present dispensation is drawing to a close, there must now be indications, at least, of the existence of such a people as the Scriptures describe it—namely, all-prevailing, absorbing and evangelising.

Digitized by Google

This, therefore, is the problem set before faith: to look around expecting to find a nation, a race fulfilling or giving promise of fulfilling these conditions; and, having found it, to give God the glory! What mind so dull and void of interest that has not been struck within these Jubilee days, if never before, that the British Empire in this our day surpasses in magnitude by far any that have gone before, ever extending its borders, borne on by an imperial race, carrying along with it the Gospel of the grace of God with its hallowing and elevating influences! Most truly appropriate, therefore, are the words from the Form of Thanksgiving and Prayer:—"We yield Thee humble thanks for the abundance of dominion wherewith Thou hast exalted and enlarged Her empire, and for the love of Her in which Thou hast knit together in one the hearts of many nations; we praise Thee for the swift increase of knowledge with power, for the spreading of truth and faith in her times, and gifts above all that we could ask or think."

But here, before these striking facts, proving with irresistible evidence that the prophecies concerning Israel are fulfilled in and being made good to the British race, with its world-wide empire, thus showing that the one is identical with the other, here, whenever this truth is insisted upon, that baneful spirit of negation makes itself felt with its subtile influence: for many a child of God, yea many true servants of God and ministers of the Gospel, have their minds tainted by it. They would fain have God accomplish His purposes according to their own preconceived notions, founded upon an interpretation of the Holy Scriptures full of inconsistencies. How hardly did the disciples of old learn the fact that although their Messiah, the King of Israel, was present with them, yet, in order to the fulfilment of all the Scriptures concerning Him, it was not at that time He would establish His kingdom in power and glory; (as He said also to Pilate: "Now is My kingdom not of this world"); their thoughts were not God's thoughts, surely. So now there are true disciples who will not see God's hand working in and by His chosen people; who expect this promised kingdom to be ushered in by some sudden display of might, to be brought into the world all at once and full-grown; but they utterly discard the thought of a gradual development, the Almighty, in silent grace and power—and herein is moral glory, —all the while controlling and guiding all things to the grand issue of an imperial race and a world-wide empire, only awaiting the baptism of the Spirit and the presence of the King. Yet, but for the confusion caused by the spiritualising interpretation of prophetic Scriptures, ought not (in Dan. ii. 35) the "stone cut out without hands . . . . which became a great mountain and filled the whole earth" to suggest as gradual a process of growth, as that figure of the Kingdom of God, from another aspect of it, given in Mark iv. 26: "First the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear"? What upheavals, what eruptions from within, accretions from without, are not implied until that stone, that piece of rock, has grown into a great mountain and filled the whole earth!

How needful it is for those who have been given to see in the British race and empire, with its "abundance of dominion" in our day, "and the swift increase of knowledge with power, for the spreading of truth and faith," the realisation ever more manifest, to their descendants of the promises made unto the fathers, unto Abraham and his seed forever,—how needful is it, for all so believingly convinced, to seek to be well prepared and armed at all points to meet this spirit of negation with its chilling influence! Not only must they be ready to give an answer to the infidel and caviller, but also to that numerous class of Christians who listen with suspicion to anything new in the interpretation of the prophetic writings, and want to know, and rightly so, how what we urge bears upon all Christian doctrine.

As time goes on, all earnest Anglo-Israelites will increasingly feel the need of being endowed with the spirit of prayer and supplication in order to be given the spirit of wisdom and revelation of Him and His ways, so that their testimony may gain in clearness and harmony. shewing forth this great truth of the Identity, as having been discovered in its appointed time (a "virgin mine") to throw light upon and bring order into our conception of the manifold and yet "all-united truth" of God. How doubly forcible from this point of view is the exhortation in Eph. vi. 10—18, and encouraging too, ending as it does with an injunction to persevere in "all prayer and supplication, praying at all seasons in the spirit!" For it is a blessed thought that the moral outcome and expression in its essence of Anglo-Israelism is the fact that a number of earnest Christians, being at the same time believers in the Identity, are banded together, however apart from one another, for the daily study of the Scriptures and for Prayer.

Moreover, may it not be counted upon that the call to all Anglo-Israelites to threefold prayer and praise on the 20th June of this year was gladly obeyed by them, and that this united action will have begotten a more abundant spirit of prayer and supplication, carrying us far beyond the given date and the Jubilee year? Surely, there is moral glory in this also, and in the results that must flow from it.

September, 1887.

RUSSIA AND ABYSSINIA.—The proceedings of Russian activity in Abyssinia should be closely watched, Abyssinia being the ancient Ethiopia of the Old Testament Scriptures, and predicted to be in union with Gog's confederacy against Israel in the "latter days" (Ezek. xxxviii. 1, 2, etc.). In a telegram from Moscow, Sept. 22, "Om Aschinoff, the Free Cossack, accompanied by 120 followers, left here on Sunday last on a second expedition to Abyssinia." There can be no doubt these will pose as friends, and assist the Ethiopians against the Italians, who are endeavouring to gain a foothold in that country.—Forwarded by Charles Horner.

A NEW ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.—We are glad to notice that an Anglo-Israel Association has been formed in Sunderland, at No. 13, Mordey-street, Hendon-road, Mr. J. Stevenson being, we believe, its secretary. There are 13 members on the books already, and a Bible-class has been organised, with Mr. Greig for its conductor, to be held every Thursday night, at 7.30 p.m., in Lockhart's Cocoa Rooms, No. 115, High-street, Sunderland.

SECRETARIES OF ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATIONS who have not yet sent in particulars of the Association with which they are connected, will oblige the publishers of the Anglo-Israel Almanack by doing so as early as possible. Address—R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London.

Digitized by Google

THE BRITISH AND FOREIGN BIBLE SOCIETY.

WE republish the following valuable paper, which is purely an Identity document describing the operations of Israel in regard to the circulation of God's holy Word throughout the vast Empire of our Queen. The details and statistics with which this paper bristles are most interesting to us as Anglo-Israelites. They confirm such texts as Isa. xxvii. 6, xliii. 21; and Psa. cxlvii. 19, 20:—

THE BRITISH AND FOREIGN BIBLE SOCIETY

In India and the Colonies and Dependencies of Great Britain and Ireland.

President—THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF HARROWBY.

The British Islands are but a hundred and twenty-one thousand square miles in extent, and their population amounts to only thirty-six millions.

The Colonies and Dependencies of the Crown raise these totals to nearly nine millions of square miles, and to nearly three hundred and ten millions of people. This area is about one-fifth of the habitable globe, and this population is between one-fourth and one-fifth of the entire human race.

British India and Burmah alone contain nearly a million and half of square miles, and support a population of two hundred and fifty-seven millions of people.

"This Empire is five times as large as the Persian Empire under Darius, four times that of the Romans under Augustus, an eighth larger than all the Russias, three times the size of the United States, sixteen times that of France, and forty times that of Germany."—Handbook to Howard Vincent Map.

There is no single Colony or Dependency in all this vast Empire unprovided with the Word of God. In every case a portion or whole of the Bible exists, and may be had from the British and Foreign Bible Society.

Generous auxiliaries of the Society exist and are flourishing in Canada, in Newfoundland, in Australia, in Tasmania, in New Zealand, in South Africa, and in the East and West Indies. Valuable help is also received yearly at the Bible House from foreign native Churches under the British flag.

"The expansion of England in the New World and in Asia, is the formula which sums up for England the history of the eighteenth century."—Professor Seeley.

The formula which sums up for Christian England the history of the succeeding century (the nineteenth) is "the expansion of the Christian Church," through the planting and watering of Missionary Churches in all those vast newly-acquired territories, most of them requiring versions of the Holy Scriptures in their own tongue.

The Colonies and Dependencies of Great Britain, putting aside those which are merely watch-towers in the sea, are in alphabetical order:—

		ACQUIRED			ACQUIRED
1	Aden	1839	22	Leeward Islands (West Indies)	1663
	Anatralia		23	Malta	1628-1763, 1800
2	Bahamas	1629-1783	24	Mauritius	1810
3	Basutoland	1871	25	Natal	1843
4	Bermudas	1609	26	Newfoundland	1713
5	Canada—		27	New Guinea	1884
	Ontario and Quebec	1759-90	28	New South Wales	1788
	Nova Scotia & New Brunswick	1628—1713	29	New Zealand	1840
6	Cape Colony	1806-1815	30	North Borneo	1878
7	Ceylon	1796, 1815	31	Queensland	1825
8	Cyprus	1878	32	Rotumah	1881
9	Falkland Islands	1771	33	Sierra Leone	1787
10	Fiji Islands	1874	34	South Australia	1836
11	Gambia	1588	35	St. Helena	1673
12	Gibraltar	1704	36	Straits Settlements (Singapore, Penang, &c)	1786-1824
13	Gold Coast	1664	37	Tasmania	1803
14	Guiana	1781	38	Trinidad	1797
15	Heligoland	1807	39	Turk Islands	1783
16	Honduras	1783	40	Victoria	1803
17	Hong Kong	1841	41	West Australia	1829
18	INDIA & BURMAH	1612, 1756-1886	42	Windward Islands	1605-1803
19	Jamaica	1655
20	Labuan	1846
21	Lagos	1861

Note 1.—The oldest of these colonies is the Gambia, founded by settlement in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The latest acquisition is Upper Burmah, assumed in the present year of Her Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria's reign.

Note 2.—It is an interesting fact that Aden, recently occupied by the Bible Society, with a view to its importance as a port of call, was in the second century before Christ a place of similar character, and is so described in the Periplus of the Erythræan Sea, which bears the name of Arrian (not the historian). Thence it would seem the South Semitic alphabet may have passed into India (see Isaac Taylor, Alphabet, Vol. 2, pp. 315 ff), to develop and live a new and larger life in a deeper intellectual soil.

The versions of the Bible required in these various Colonies and Possessions include the following living languages. (The small figures refer to the corresponding number in the preceding list, and indicate the chief colony or Dependency in which each several version is used.)

EUROPEAN LANGUAGES.

English,* French,[5-24] Spanish,[12] Dutch,[6] German,[15] Frisian,[15] Greek,[8] Turkish,[8] Italian,[23] Judeo-Spanish[12] (Hebrew).

AFRICAN LANGUAGES.

Nearly six hundred languages and dialects are known to exist in Africa (R. N. Cust). Of these some seventy have been so far reduced to order and method that portions of the Bible exist in them. The Bible Society has aided this work in about forty instances. Of those which come within the limits of the Colonial Exhibition the following is a tolerably complete list:—

Accra,[13] Otshi[13] or Ashanti, Bullom,[33] Dahomé,[21] Ewe,[13] Fanti,[13] Hausa, Kafir,[6] Mende,[32] Nama,[6] Otjiherero,[6] Sechuana,[6] Sesuto,[6] Temne,[33] Yariba,[21] Zulu.[25]

[The names of these versions are spelt popularly, and correspond with the Society's little book of "Specimens of Scripture in 267 languages," obtainable at the Office of the Society.]

ASIATIC LANGUAGES.

Her Majesty's subjects, Christian and non-Christian, use the following ancient languages for religious purposes. Translations of the Bible, or part thereof, are provided in these tongues:—

ARABIC, ARMENIAN, HEBREW, PALI, SANSCRIT, SYRIAC.

Of living languages the speech, in most cases, of many millions of the Queen's subjects, the following list is a selection:—

In ADEN—Arabic, Judeo-Arabic.

In BURMAH—Burmese, Peguese, and Karen.

In CEYLON—Sinhalese, Tamil, Indo-Portuguese.

In INDIA (North and North-West)—Beluchi, Bengali, Mussulmani-Bengali, Hindi, Hindustani or Urdu, Lepcha, Mundari, Uriya, Persian, Punjabi, Pushtu, Rajmahali, Sindhi.

In BOMBAY—Gujarati, Marathi, Parsi-Gujarati.

In MADRAS—Canarese, Dakhani, Malayalam, Tamil, Telugu.

[N.B.—The bulk of this population speaking Canarese, Malayalam, and Dakhani, are not the direct subjects of Her Majesty, but the remainder amount, together with the Tamil and Telugu people, to over 30,000,000.]

Her Majesty has other Asiatic possessions of importance, for which provision of Holy Scriptures has been made: amongst them are the Straits Settlements, Singapore, Penang, &c. Many languages are spoken there, but of the resident native population the majority, between 400,000 and 500,000, speak Malay.

CHINA—At Hong Kong, the British Flag floats over a people whose language is the symbol of the thoughts of a quarter of the human race. Labuan and North Borneo are also British possessions. The New Testament is prepared for these people in the Dyak.

AMERICAN LANGUAGES.

Chipewyan, Cree, Esquimaux, Greenlandish (British Greenland is almost uninhabited), Iroquois, Maliseet, Mic-Mac, Mohawk, Ojibwa, Quagutl, Slavé, Tinné, Tukudh.

LANGUAGES OF BRITISH ISLANDS IN THE PACIFIC.

Fijian,[10] Motu,[27] Rotuman,[32] Saibai,[27] South Cape.[27]

From these and other Islands in the Pacific the Society has received for many years an average of £1,000 in payment for Scriptures sent to them.

It is an exceedingly interesting fact that of the first twelve versions of the Bible known to have been made, viz.:—

	CENTURY.		CENTURY.
Syriac	2nd or 3rd	Armenian	5th
Coptic of Sais	2nd	Georgian	6th or 8th
Coptic of Memphis	2nd or 3rd	Slavonic	9th
Ethiopic	4th	Anglo-Saxon	9th
Gothic	4th	Arabic	8th or 9th
Latin	4th	Persian	12th and 14th

not one has utterly perished. They either survive as monuments

*The English-speaking people all the world over are reckoned at about 100,000,000.

Digitized by Google

of Ancient Christianity (some of them in fragments), or they live in the larger life of their lineal successors. Thus the Bible Society's work is linked in bonds of unbroken vitality with the missionary work of the Early Church.

Scriptures in raised characters for the Blind are obtainable in some few languages.

The Society has made experimental arrangements in co-operation with various Missionary Societies working in the Queen's dominions, for reading the Scriptures by Christian women to their sisters secluded from other opportunities of coming to the knowledge of the Truth.

The principal Societies which take part in this work are, in the order of their foundation :—

	FOUNDED.		FOUNDED.
The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel	1701	General Baptist Missionary Society	1816
Baptist Missionary Society	1792	Welsh Calvinistic Methodist Missionary Society	1841
London Missionary Society	1795	English Presbyterian Missionary Society	1847
Church Missionary Society	1798
Wesleyan Missionary Society	1808

The Society's income during the past year was £238,391 18s. 6d. Expenditure £240,728 15s. 5d. Circulation: 831,513 Bibles, 1,816,186 Testaments, 1,476,205 Portions; total 4,123,904 copies.

The total number of versions on the Society's list has this year reached to about 270. The total number displayed in the Colonial Exhibition, and used in the Colonies and Dependencies of this Empire, is 133.

More detailed information can be obtained at the Bible House, 146, Queen Victoria Street, E.C., where contributions will be thankfully received. Cheques and Post Office Orders should be made payable to Mr. Charles Finch.

"THE STONE CUT OUT OF A MOUNTAIN."

On Sunday last the subject of "Nebuchadnezzar's Dream' (Daniel ii.), illustrated by diagrams, was discussed by the young men of the Select Class of the Stockport-road Congregational Sunday School, and it opened up a wide field for consideration. It was shown that "the stone cut out of the mountain without hands," bore a strong resemblance to Britain, both from a scientific and historical aspect, geologists informing them that Britain was formerly connected with the Continent by land, the cliffs at Dover and the other side of the channel being alike and bearing testimony to the fact. The silver streak had since cut us off from the continent of Europe, and such being the design of Providence no amount of boring for a Channel Tunnel was likely to prove successful, hence its complete failure. Britain had literally been "cut out without hands" in fulfilment of prophecy. Moreover, there was the fact that beneath the coronation chair at Westminster Abbey lay a stone called "Jacob's stone," and on this chair all the kings and queens of England for centuries have been crowned, thereby symbolising the stone kingdom or empire.

It was reasonably concluded, after other portions of Scripture had been examined, particularly Matthew xxi. 43 and 44, that a stone nation bringing forth the Gospel fruit, growing, colonising, and filling the whole earth, must refer to England, or Greater Britain as it will soon come to be called. It was shown that the stone (Britain) had fallen upon the feet of the image considerably since the time of the Spanish Armada down to the time of Napoleon, whose empire it shattered, and imprisoned its emperor. The power that fell upon the stone was broken, and the power upon which the stone fell was shattered to pieces. It was also shown that Britain could not possibly, by any process of reasoning, form part of the image, not even a little toe, which would mean its future destruction. Historically, also, it was cut out of a mountain, the Roman Empire, without hands, even against its will, by an edict of the Emperor Honorius, A.D., 409. Yet this rejected portion of the empire, a mere stone in comparison, had now become the political head and corner-stone of Europe and of the world.

The teacher pointed out the fallacy of those who believed in the reconstruction of the image, it being clearly stated in the 35th verse, "Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver and the gold broken in pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing floors; and the wind carried them away that no place was found for them, and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain and filled the whole earth." The subject is to be further discussed next Sunday.—South Manchester Gazette.

"A MUSICAL CONVERSION."

By E. M. Rush.

(Vide "The Daily Telegraph," Sept. 22.)

"A Musical Conversion." So runs the somewhat misleading heading to an account in the Daily Telegraph of the proposed plans of the Wesleyan Methodists to organise a West Central Mission for the benefit of that portion of London which is in great measure aristocratic, wealthy, or what is termed well-to-do, and which up to the present has been but litttle touched by Methodist influence. It may readily be imagined that the great wish of the earnest workers in the Mission, led by the well-known Wesleyan ministers, the Revs. Mark Guy Pearse and Hugh Price Hughes, is not merely for the increase of the numbers of the Wesleyan body, but it is a real and strong desire to win from amongst the bright crowd of fashionable London life the frivolous and unthinking, the heartless and the vicious, to the consideration and love of God's way, the very opposite of that which they are treading. How much starts to mind at the idea! Who, caring for the best interests of all classes, would not wish God-speed to every effort, made by legitimate means, to obtain a hearing for the Gospel of our Lord from those who have no regard for it, whose life in consequence is evil, and who therefore by influence and example are doing evil to those who by the will of God have been born in a lower social position!

The secular newspaper lightly passes over the field to be worked, and gives the plan of operations to be carried out. In the following quotation we see how the heading, "A Musical Conversion," touches the keynote of the movement so far as concerns the means to be employed for attracting attention and gathering congregations; it is music, real music, not mere noisy sound of popular tunes, that is to play an important part in the business of the mission. "The Wesleyan Methodist body, staid, conservative, and respectable as it has long been, has deliberately determined to take a leaf out of the book of the Salvation Army on the one hand, and that of the High Church party on the other, and make a bold venture by new methods to obtain a footing in Western London. To carry out this project there are to be preachings in and out of doors, open-air, and especially musical services on Sundays and week-days, and all the musical talent vocal and instrumental which the Methodist community can produce or enlist is to be combined in the work. . . . Music is to hold a very prominent place in the mission. There are to be three bands—first, the drum and fife band for the lads, an orchestral band to play in St. James's Hall, and finally a brass band to lead the preaching expedition to Trafalgar-square and the parks." This departure from established custom by a prominent religious body, giving proof again, as Ritualists and Salvationists have already done, of the dependence placed upon the power of music, is worth something more than a passing thought by British-Israelites.

Music had its recognised place in the ritual of the sacred services appointed for the Hebrews in their worship of God under the old Dispensation; more than this it is to be remembered that music is the one source of earthly employment and delight which Revelation shews us we may certainly expect, and which will find true expression in the kingdom of Heaven, to the glory of the Lord God Almighty (Rev. xv. 2, 4). This thought may well encourage those who love and cultivate the Divine gift, and also reconcile those who have not been blessed in this life with the faculty necessary for the appreciation of music as they watch the general and increasing growth of the public taste for this great enjoyment, while to some of us it is no matter of regret that British-Israel has been counted "the head and not the tail" in musical culture. But here let us pause to consider if this feature now so generally presented in the programme for Christian work is always legitimate in use and likely to be productive of real good. Long before the Ritualists in the English Church introduced much music as a special attraction in their public services, well-trained choirs and sweet solo singers were entrancing musical souls during the hours of worship; Rome, with the lovely music composed for her Masses, had provided for the members of her communion all that should attract and gratify the senses. Alas! Wesleyan Methodists, Protestants, now seek to adopt as a means to an end a power that has been mainly borrowed from the corrupt Church of Rome.

Good music, sacred or secular, with suitable surroundings, executed on six days of the week, for the pleasure of the people high and low, to refine and cultivate them, who will say a word against? On the seventh day in our churches and chapels, suitable music of the very best with which to sing praises, give thanks, and make prayer to God in hymns we may well desire; but this is not the only, the true, and most seemly use that is now again sought for music to be put to on Sundays. It is offered as a pleasure, a delectation to man; in fact, in one form or another, as a Concert for his enjoyment, not as an act of worship. No doubt it is hoped that it will induce or conduce to real worship; but Isa. lviii. 13, shews the necessity of adopting different means than that which is advocated if we desire to please God in our Sabbath observance, to which He has of His own goodness to us attached such gracious promises.

Digitized by Google

"If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on My holy day; and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honourable; and shalt honour Him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words: then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and I will feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

Surely there must be felt to be some loss of power in the Christian Church, something wanting, or her ministers would not deem it necessary to resort to questionable means ere they can hope to win the people to listen to their preaching. Is the human heart to be influenced so very different to what it was in time past? Do we not need to remember the simplicity of the action of the Apostles of our Lord? When He sent them forth there was no flourish of trumpet or beat of drum, no elaborated plan of attraction with offers of ravishment for the senses, yet the Gospel was presented in great power to the minds and hearts of men, and surely it was by the unerring force of true faith in Him whom they preached! If our preachers fail now in obtaining a ready and appreciative hearing, is it not just possible that they fail partially because in their eagerness to press home the truths of the Gospel they ignore in great measure much of the Holy Scriptures which will supply a man with powerful aid in forming a reason for the hope that is in him, without which his "I believe" may soon become faithless, and contain no more comfort and hope than the belief of the devils, who believe and tremble? And this passing over of much of the Scriptures, as just alluded to, doubtless entails upon our clergy continued blindness as to Israel, and it may be that they experience failure because the time has come by God's decree for the revelation of Israel, and they regard it not. Thus they fail to set forth that which helps to prove to us again and again most clearly our sins and iniquities which all men must be conscious of, more or less, ere they realise the need of a Saviour. Oh, Israel in the Isles and in far-off lands, from whose eyes the scales have fallen, who understand the obligations pressing upon us, labour on to make known the sometime hidden truths of God! Our work may be quiet, and as yet little regarded, but we know its power; we know the need of it, and have the assurance of the promise, "in quietness and in confidence shall be your strength" (Isa. xxx. 15).

THE LATE JOSEPH BAXENDELL, F.R.S., F.R.A.S., &c.

We deeply regret to record the death of Mr. Joseph Baxendell, one of our most able Anglo-Israelites, who expired at his residence, the Observatory, Birkdale, on October 7th, 1887, in his 73rd year. He was interred in Brooklands Cemetery, Manchester, on October 12th, deeply regretted. For many years the deceased had been fully persuaded that the evidence to prove that the British nation is the remnant of Israel was sufficient to establish the fact, and his pen had accordingly been ever ready to advocate the claim to the best of his ability. It has been a great point in our favour that such an one as Mr. Baxendell, whose mind had had a mathematical training, from the first has been satisfied that our arguments are well founded, and our conclusions regarding the British nation sound. We feel his loss greatly, and trust others like him may soon be raised up to put to shame those who despise our views as the foolish vagaries and crazes of uneducated men.

The following short memoirs have appeared in the Times and some Manchester papers, from which we are glad to make extracts giving particulars of our late friend's career. The Times of Oct. 12 says:—

"The death is announced of Mr. Joseph Baxendell, F.R.S., of the Observatory, Birkdale, Southport. He was a native of Manchester, and was born in 1815. He educated himself, and early gave himself to the study of natural phenomena and mathematics. In 1858 he was elected a member of the Manchester Literary and Philosophical Society. He contributed a great number of memoirs to the papers of the Society, and also to the Transactions of the Royal Society. On the Phenomena of Solar Sunspots and Variable Stars he was a recognized authority. In consideration of his scientific attainments he was elected a corresponding member of the Royal Society of Königsberg, of the Scientific and Literary Academy of Palermo, and of the National Observatories of France, Germany, and Italy. On the death of the Rev. H. H. Jones, in 1859, Mr. Baxendell was appointed astronomer to the Manchester Corporation. Removing to Southport some years later, he superintended for the Corporation of that town the erection of meteorological apparatus in the Hesketh-park. He applied himself closely to meteorological science, and proposed the use of storm signals, which have since proved of great benefit to navigation. On this subject he conducted a protracted controversy with the Government authorities."

The Manchester Courier added (inter alia):—"In 1871 the late Mr. John Fernley, of Birkdale, formerly of Manchester, having presented a completely fitted-up meteorological observatory to Hesketh-park, Southport, requested Mr. Baxendell to superintend the instruments and publish the results of the observations; and shortly after he was appointed meteorologist to the Corporation of Southport. Mr. Baxendell was the first in England to announce the wonderful outburst of the star T Coronæ, and he communicated his observations to Dr. Huggins, describing from sight what the spectroscope afterwards revealed, that the star was surrounded by hydrogen heated to the state of ignition. He had long been a fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society, as mentioned before, and his election as fellow of the Royal Society recently, entirely unknown to and unsought by him, was therefore doubly honourable and gratifying, though too late in life to yield the advantages of the acknowledged high position. He contributed many papers on different subjects to the Manchester Literary and Philosophical Society, the 'Monthly Notice' of the Royal Astronomical Society, and other home and foreign journals. In the year 1875, in Southport, he judged, from atmospheric tests and phenomena, that a disease of a serious and epidemic character would prevail, and he warned the Town Clerk to take precautionary measures. A deplorable attack of small-pox shortly afterwards came upon the town. He was some time president of the Southport Literary and Philosophical Society, and two or three years ago gave two lectures before that association. This was almost the last public work he did. He died on Friday at his residence in Southport, in his 73rd year. He was a member of the Established Church, and a staunch supporter of the Union."

ISRAEL'S SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER UNION.

Within the last month five cards of membership have been sent out, making the number now issued 1,426, including those in the hands of the local secretaries.

A new member writes:—"I am very glad to believe in Our Identity, because it makes a great difference. The Bible is so much more real to me, though always a precious study."

New members are requested, when writing for cards, to kindly state whether their names are to be entered as Mr., Mrs., or Miss, &c.

For the convenience of those members who wish to continue the daily reading, the following list of chapters for November is printed:—

1st ...	Jeremiah	ii.	12th ...	Jeremiah	xiii.	23rd ...	Jeremiah	xxiv.
2nd ...	,,	iii.	13th ...	,,	xiv.	24th ...	,,	xxv.
3rd ...	,,	iv.	14th ...	,,	xv.	25th ...	,,	xxvi.
4th ...	,,	v.	15th ...	,,	xvi.	26th ...	,,	xxvii.
5th ...	,,	vi.	16th ...	,,	xvii.	27th ...	,,	xxviii
6th ...	,,	vii.	17th ...	,,	xviii.	28th ...	,,	xxix.
7th ...	,,	viii.	18th ...	,,	xix.	29th ...	,,	xxx.
8th ...	,,	ix.	19th ...	,,	xx.	30th ...	,,	xxxi.
9th ...	,,	x.	20th ...	,,	xxi.
10th ...	,,	xi.	21st ...	,,	xxii.
11th ...	,,	xii.	22nd ...	,,	xxiii.

The card of membership will be sent on receipt of three stamps.

The first and second series of Monthly Comments on the whole Bible, by Philo-Israel, may be obtained in volume form. Price in paper cover, 1s. 2d. each, post free; in cloth, 2s. each, post free. The "Prayers for Daily Use," being a prayer for each day of the week, by Philo-Israel, are 1d., or 9d. per dozen, postage extra. The prayer of the Union, as on the Card of Membership, may be obtained printed in larger type, price 1d. for three copies, post free, or 1s. per 100 for distribution. Address, Miss E. Sibbald, 3, Townshend-villas, Richmond, Surrey.

Digitized by Google

ANGLO-ISRAEL FREE DISTRIBUTION FUND.

Forty-Seventh Monthly Report.

The following donations and subscriptions, from Sept. 16th to Oct. 14th, are very gratefully acknowledged:—

By the Treasurer: Mrs. H. (per Philo-Israel), 5s.; J. C. F., Market Lavington, 5s.; H. E. T., Dorking, 10s.

By Mr. C. Horner: Miss C., Richmond, £2; Mrs. S., Sandown, £1; J. D., Hereford, 2s. 6d.; O. W. (per C. P. B., India), 8s.; Mrs. C., Tenby, 3s. 6d. (monthly subscription, 2s. 6d.); Mrs. C. B., Weston-Super-Mare (monthly subscription), 5s.

Total, £4 19s. 0d. J. Lawrence, Hon. Treasurer.

We have to tender our best thanks to the Rev. Minton-Stenhouse for the large presentation to the Fund of 500 copies of his valuable lecture on the Great Pyramid. In due course this excellent pamphlet will be circulated amongst our staff of Sowers; and those friends who wish for a copy can have one upon application to the secretary. We also intend distributing one or two copies to each of the Free Libraries in Great Britain, together with Dr. Smith's "Ten Tribes."

Parcels of Banners received from Budleigh-Salterton, and Tralee, co. Kerry, have been forwarded to the "Missions to Seamen," and Portsea.

Literature Distribution.—Twenty-two parcels have been forwarded to the under-mentioned places: Hereford, Tasmania (2), Wimbledon, Stourbridge, Lee, Upper Teddington, Tufnell-park, North Shields, Griquatown (South Africa), Weston-Super-Mare, George Town (British Guiana), Tenby, Abergavenny, Manchester (2), Sheffield (2), Westminster, Commercial-road, Barnsley, Hull. Received letters of thanks for pamphlets from Chairman of Richmond Free Library Committee, and from the Secretary of Wimbledon Free Library.

Banner Distribution.—25 copies weekly to Lee; 83 copies are despatched by Miss Sibbald weekly to the places enumerated in last report, Oct. 3rd. We have been reluctantly compelled to diminish this distribution through want of funds, the cost up to Oct. 3rd, with postage, amounting to over £4 per month. We trust we may be enabled to return to the original number, as they are greatly appreciated and anxiously looked forward to by all the recipients at home and abroad.

Gratifying reports from Sowers continue to be received by the secretary. We quote from some, giving interesting particulars concerning method of work and progress made.

One of our Manchester correspondents communicates the following intelligence:—"I write to inform you that I have adopted a new method of spreading the Identity, which is as follows: In place of ordering one copy of the Banner I order two copies instead, and ask the news-vendor of whom I order them to kindly exhibit one of them in a conspicuous position in the shop window. By so doing it serves as an advertisement, and brings the question of Israel before the public in a prominent manner. So far this scheme has proved successful, for nearly every copy so exhibited has been sold, thus increasing the sale of the Banner by one. Of course what copies remain unsold I pay for, though they have been very few indeed. Now, sir, if say only 100 readers of the Banner did likewise, and gave it a fair trial, they would, I am sure, help forward the cause in a wonderful manner." In reference to the Banners which go from the Distribution Fund he adds: "The Banners you send to the Free Libraries here serve, I believe, at least a double purpose, for I find that after they are done with at the Libraries journals similar to the Banner are sent to the hospitals and infirmaries for the patients to read, and I don't think their mission of usefulness even ends there, for patients are often allowed to take some of the papers with them when they are leaving. . . . There is a discussion on 'Israel in Britain' taking place in one of our local papers, the Middleton Guardian, between some of the members of our Association and others. So you see we have some zealous workers in this quarter."

Our indefatigable lecturer and distributor at Brighton, Mr. Marchant, meets with every encouragement in his discourses on Israel. He is well received by the many, though occasionally he meets with some opponent. He lately had some combats with one who took up the philological weapon against him; but after renewing his studies, with the help of some literature sent to him from the Fund, he proved himself more than a match when he met his antagonist a second time.

Our Barnsley Sower continues to spread the good news wherever he can, and with the arguments at his command recently silenced a Bradlaughite. God is abundantly blessing his labours. We lately received the following remarkable testimony showing the great good effected by this glorious work of God, and is a clear and decisive answer to the absurd Cui bono? question: "Dear Sir, I must tell you it was an Identity book lent to me three years ago by a ship-mate which woke me up to the sinful state I was in, and led me to our Saviour, the Redeemer of Israel, bless His holy name; and I have striven to make it known everywhere I have been since, and will continue to do so in the future. Again, many thanks for the books."

Charles Horner, Secretary.

Contributions to the Fund will be thankfully received and acknowledged by the Hon. Treasurer, Miss J. Lawrence, Rosslyn, Hampton-road, Upper Teddington, Middlesex; or by Mr. Chas. Horner, 34, Sheen-park, Richmond-on-Thames. Cheques may be crossed, "London and Provincial Bank, Teddington Branch." Grants of literature will be made, as far as funds allow, on application to the Secretary.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

Dear Sir,—As there appears to be some misunderstanding of the object of an Anglo-Israel Conference Association which it is proposed to establish, and the programme of which will shortly be published, causing you and other influential Anglo-Israelites to keep aloof from it; will you allow me, as Chairman of the meeting at which it was resolved to form such an Association, to explain briefly what its object is:—

Our intention is to make the truth of Our Identity with the House of Israel more generally known by periodical conferences in the principal towns of the Kingdom; and we hope, by means of a strong united platform, on which ministers of religion of all denominations will be fully represented, to attract the Christian public more generally than has been done heretofore; and, as many of our speakers will be clergymen, we trust that the local clergy of the towns where our meetings are held may be induced to attend; and that if it be in accordance with God's will and purpose, the great truth which Anglo-Israelites are striving to promulgate may be raised from the platform to the pulpits in the land.

Our intention is to proclaim the Identity of the Anglo-Saxon race, the British and American peoples, with the House of Israel. That is a matter upon which Anglo-Israelites of all shades of opinion are agreed; and in our discussions we will endeavour to avoid all matters of controversy upon which there is a legitimate and necessary difference of opinion, even amongst ourselves.

We do not desire to offer any opposition to the Metropolitan and other existing local Associations; but simply to try the effect of a means of propagating the knowledge of our subject which has not hitherto been adopted; the idea of which, I am happy to say, originated with a clergyman of the Church of England; and so far from diminishing the influence of these Associations, or impairing their finances, as you seem to apprehend, we believe that we should add largely to both, because our work is intended to supplement and extend theirs, but in no manner or degree to supersede it.

Whether such an undertaking is calculated to do good I will not pretend to determine, but I do not see how it can by any possibility do harm to the general cause. I do not of course look for unanimity on such a question, but I desire to remove or prevent misconception, and therefore I request an early insertion of this letter in your influential journal. Yours very truly,

J. M. Grant, M.D., Surgeon-General.

Cheltenham, October 10, 1887.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies " " " 1 0 4
Four Copies " " " 1 5 6
Six Copies " " " 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

MANCHESTER AND SALFORD ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION. ANNUAL TEA MEETING on TUESDAY, November 8, 1887, at ST. JAMES'S SCHOOL, Major-street, off Portland-street, Manchester. Tea at 6.30 prompt. Tickets 9d. each.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

A LECTURE will be Delivered in the ASSOCIATION ROOMS, 14, King William-street, Charing Cross, W.C., on THURSDAY AFTERNOON NEXT, November 3, 1887, at 3.30 o'clock, by Mrs. George F. Treverton. Subject: "What Israel may Find in God." Strangers will be made welcome.

JAMES BILLINGTON, Sec.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

THE BIBLE READINGS

are held

EVERY TUESDAY AFTERNOON,

At 3.30, in the Library of the Association, 14, King William Street, Charing Cross, W.C. All friends are invited.

VALUABLE CONSULTATION PRESCRIPTION for cure of Indigestion sent to any address for One Shilling. Part profits to Banner Free Distribution Fund.—"Identity," 8, Charlotte-terrace, Clacton-on-Sea.

Price 6d., by post 7d.

PAPAL IDOLATRY.

An Exposure of the Dogma of Transubstantiation and Mariolatry: to which is added "MY REASONS WHY I WILL NEVER GO BACK TO THE CHURCH OF ROME."

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street and all Book-sellers.

A PORTRAIT OF

MR. G. H. PEMBER, M.A.

And the commencement of a Series of Articles on the First and Second Psalms Prophetically Interpreted, by Mr. PEMBER. See the

"Silver Morn & Prophetic Voice"

For November. Price 2d., post free 2½d.

London: S. W. Partridge & Co., 9, Paternoster-row; or Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON, RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

Catalogue Post Free on Application.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

An Elementary Digest or Sketch of the Chief Facts and Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Adapted to the Unlearned and Unscientific 56 pages, illustrated with Diagrams, price 4d., post free 5d. 10th Thousand.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

Our Identity with the House of Israel. Price 4d. Reprinted from "Clifton Chronicle Letters"

Price Reduced to 7s. 6d. Sent post free from the Publishers for Postal Order.

JEHOVAH TRIUMPHANT

The New and Complete Theology and Electric Light of the Bible, containing the History of British-Israel, compiled from the Sacred Scriptures,

And traced down chronologically through the Pentateuch, the Historical Books, the Prophets, the Evangelists, Apostolic Writings, the Book of Job, and Revelation of John, and proving that Great Britain is a Development of the Monarchy of David, and has been established by eternal law the kingdom of God, and that the Anglo-Saxon race, together with the Jews, are the lineal descendants of the great Hebrew Race, and the heirs to the substantialities of the Abrahamic Covenant. Together with the key to future Prophecy, and a sketch of events looming on the Prophetic Horizon, and ending in the Coming of our Lord.

Introduction. 1.—The Ecclesiastical Error. 2.—The Everlasting Covenant. 3.—The Design of an Immortal Nation. 4.—The Great Nation Created, its Perpetuity declared. 5.—The Features of the Great Nation. 6.—Meridian and Sunset, the Burning Bush. 7.—Light out of Darkness 8.—The Hidden Counsel of Jehovah. 9.—The Separation of the Houses and Doom of Judah. 10.—The Permanent Distinction: Jews are Israelites, but Israelites are not Jews. 11.—"The Sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a Lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh come." 12.—The Intermediate National Tribe. 13.—The Building and the planting, the throne of David. 14.—"Unto Him shall the gathering of the people be." 15.—The Valley of the Shadow of Death. 16.—The Shepherd of Israel with the People prepared. 17.—The Valley of dry bones and mighty revival. 18.—"The Twelve Tribes who are of the Dispersion." 19.—"The Elect who are sojourners of the Dispersion." 20.—The Intermediate Ecclesiastical Tribe. 21.—Migration and Settlement, 22.—Behemoth and Leviathan. 23.—The Signs of the Times 24.—The Last Great Revolution. 25.—The Judgment of the Nations—Edom, Moab 26.—The Coming of the Lord. 27.—"Tekel." 28.—Reveille.

See Review in Banner of Israel, January 6 and 13.

ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., London

Just Published, crown 8vo., elegantly bound in cloth, price 3s. 6d.

BRITAIN in HISTORY:

ANCIENT AND MODERN.

Or, Proofs Linking Israel with Britain Throughout the Ages.

BY MRS. G. A. ROGERS,

Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

London: J. NISBET & Co., 21, Berners-street, W.; ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, who will send a copy free by post on receipt of P.O.; and to be had of all Booksellers.

FOR ONE WEEK ONLY.

5,000 SETS OF BEST SHEFFIELD STEEL CARVING KNIVES & FORKS, White Handles. Extra Finish.

GIVEN AWAY. TO BE GIVEN AWAY. GIVEN AWAY.

10,000 GOVERNMENT HEARTHRUGS

6ft. long, 3ft. wide. Exquisite designs—viz., Fern and Oak Leaves, Flowers, Grape Vine, Cat and Kittens, Lion, Tigers, Horses, Dogs, and Deer. Suitable for dining or drawing-room, parlour, bedroom or kitchen. Selling in thousands, 2s. 6d., or 32 stamps, or two for 4s. 6d., or, with Heavy Linoleum Backs, 3s. 6d. each, or two for 6s. 6d. Sent free to any part of the country.

SHEFFIELD STEEL CARVING KNIFE and FORK COUPON. B. of I.

One Set of Best Steel Carving Knife and Fork will be presented to every purchaser of a Hearthrug this week. Signed.

BE IN TIME. J. WATTS.

J. WATTS, 113, BRUNSWICK ROAD, LIVERPOOL.

SPECIAL JOB LINES. 500 Carpets, 3 by 2, 5s. 6d.; 3 by 2½, 6s. 11d.; 3 by 3, 7s. 11d.; 3 by 4, 10s. 6d. Grey Army Shirts. 4s. 9d. each. Two for 9s., three for 13s. Yorkshire Cloth Blankets, extra size, very heavy, 12s. 6d. per pair. 1,000 Pure Silk Handkerchiefs, all colours, large size, ONE SHILLING EACH. Two for 1s. 10d., three for 2s. 9d. P.O.O. to

J. WATTS, 113, BRUNSWICK ROAD, LIVERPOOL.

LUNG TONIC

SAVE YOUR LIVES BY TAKING

OWBRIDGE'S LUNG TONIC

THE MIGHTY HEALER.

It has a power over disease hitherto unknown in Medicine.

Are you at all Weak-chested or inclined to be Consumptive, with just a touch of Cough now and then?

"Try this Wonderful Medicine." The Cough and Weakness will disappear as if by magic, and you will feel a strength and power you never had before.

HAVE YOU A COUGH?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT!
HAVE YOU A COLD?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Bronchitis & Asthma it relieves instantly

The Spasms of Coughing so dreadful in Whooping Cough become less with each dose of the medicine.

Prepared by W. T OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull

Sold in Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s. by all Chemists and Patent Medicine Vendors. Wholesale all London and Provincial Houses.

CARBOLINE

1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.

Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved, DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.

Makers:

GEORGE & WELCH

CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,

Who will forward Free of Postage.

ETHELINE

A New and most Effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

HUMAN—LIFE. FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles, and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 50 pages. SENT FREE to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON B. MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C. Write to-day.

BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, and all Pulmonary Affections can be immediately relieved and rapidly CURED by simply using the

AMMONIAPHONE

FOR THE Voice, Throat, Chest, and Lungs.

21s. post free. WILL LAST FOR YEARS.

Used and recommended by the Royal Family, and principal Physicians, Clergymen, Vocalists, and Public Speakers throughout the country. New illustrated Pamphlet with copies of Thousands of Testimonials may be had on application to Medical Battery Co. Ltd.

52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, NOV. 2, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."
(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 567. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1887. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
The War of Giants	453
How Israel Governs Oriental Races	454
Thoughts Suggested by an Anthem Sung at a Harvest Festival. By D. Dyce Brown, M.A., M.D.	455
The Anglo-Israel Conference Association	455
More Evidence Connecting the Ancient Inhabitants of Ireland with the Phœnicians and Hebrews. By Joseph Thomson. Part IV.	456
Answer to Five Objections of an English Clergyman to Anglo-Israelism. A Sermon delivered by Rev. Dr. Wild. Part II.	457
The British Yard Measure for India	459
British-Israel Association	459
Correspondence	459

"THE WAR OF GIANTS."

THE coming European war is described by the journalists of the day as "the war of giants." The Word of God describes it as "a great earthquake, such as was not since there were men upon the earth, so great an earthquake, so mighty" (Rev. xvi. 18, R.V.). It will be an unparalleled affliction—unknown hitherto, amongst men, for its extent and terrible accompaniments—a war, in fact, of giants. The parties to this great conflict will be, we suppose, five in number; "two against three, and three against two." The parties are even now taking sides! Germany, Austria, and Italy, are ostentatiously entering, even to-day, into a compact, to which they hope the British nation will be drawn; and this "quadrilateral," as Central Europe imagines it will yet prove to be, is clearly to be arrayed against Russia on the East, and against France, restless France, on the West. France and Russia, then, it is expected, will engage in a deadly struggle with Germany and Austria, aided by Italy, and perhaps the British nation. Vain hope in respect to the latter! God "will ordain peace for us" in that time of trouble. He tells us so in Isa. xxvi. 12, and in verses 20 and 21 He bids us to take measures whereby our neutrality, in that tremendous quarrel, will be secured. This is His command to His people: "Come," He tells them, "Come, My people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. For, behold, the Lord cometh out of His place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity; the earth also shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain." We British, then, are to take no part in this war of giants. The secular journals of the day support and follow the Word of God in their anticipations. What said the Daily Telegraph on October 4 last, respecting this very matter? The following:—

Germany, Italy, and Austria have practically no colonies or distant dependencies, and comparatively little commerce on the high seas; their interests lie, so to speak, in a ring-fence. England has interests everywhere. If she openly joined the Triple League of Peace her allies could give her no assistance whatever against Russia swarming through Afghanistan, or France preying upon our shipping in distant seas. Morally we may applaud and support the new combination; but from a military or naval point of view we cannot make common cause with it. England must defend herself, and therefore will never attack unless the quarrel be her own. It would be preposterous for us to assail Russia because the Czar and Kaiser quarrelled over Bulgaria, or to declare war against France because she was advancing on the Rhine. We are not a Continental Power, and, though our sympathies must always be on the side of the nations that are simply standing on the defensive—a position which is fully understand and appreciated by Prince von Bismarck and Signor Crispi, as our Berlin correspondent mentions this morning—our armies and fleets should be reserved for our own concerns. If the five Powers rush into a war of giants, we shall stand outside and watch. That very attitude may tend to keep the peace. The French will say, "Should we win or lose in this new struggle, England, saving herself, will gain at our expense;" and Russia, if she ever contemplates a contest with us in Asia, may hesitate to plunge into another conflict that might last for years. In fact, the union of the central States of Europe in favour of mutual defence, with England friendly and looking on, leaves Russia and France, the two restless and unsatisfied Powers of Europe, out in the cold, and not yet united. There are guarantees of peace in that situation.

So far the journalist. But there can be no guarantees of peace when God's "determination" is for war? We, doubtless, "shall stand outside and watch," which is exactly the attitude the Lord prescribes for His people in Isa. xxvi. 20, we have just quoted. What we have to do is, to hold our own, lock up our Gates and chambers, close our doors, be at peace with all the world, and let them fight it out—if fight they must—according to the prophecies. The recent journey of Signor Crispi, the Italian Minister, to Friedrichsruh, is ominous for France and Russia, and lets out the secret that the Italians have agreed to lend their strength to their German neighbours. Why? The Times' Berlin correspondent tells us! "Italy," said the count, when interrogated, "aims at nothing more than the maintenance of peace and the balance of power in Europe. To this end we have joined the Austro-German Alliance, and are honestly endeavouring to do our part in obviating international conflicts." Then he added: "Italy, like all other European States, has reason to dread the approach of Russia to Constantinople. We cannot allow the Mediterranean to become a Russian lake." Pregnant words are these! Europe will fight Israel's battles, and prevent Russia occupying the Gate of Gates. Herein is confirmation full of God's gift of the Gate to Israel. For failing Russia, who shall occupy the Peerless Port when the Turk vacates, as vacate he must? France? How so, when France will be Russia's ally? Germany or Austria? They are neither of them powerful enough at sea to hold the place. Italy? She has no wish to take it, nor could Austria, Germany, or Russia, to say nothing of France, endure to see her there. But just as Germany, Austria, and Italy, are content to see the British hold Egypt in the interests of the world, so we believe these Powers would agree that Britain should occupy the Gate, and hold it free for the commerce of the world, as the powerful friend of all the parties to the strife.

Digitized by Google

Such are the rumours of the hour, the premonitions of the coming storm, the war-woe of the Titans, which will carry all before it, excepting Israel and her interests. These last, we see, God Almighty has in His safe keeping, and means to preserve, for the benefit of His chosen ones according to the prophecies. They are those whom He tells us in Zech. ii. 8 He looks upon as the very "apple of His eye;" "He that toucheth you," He says, "toucheth the apple of His eye." To Him be all our thanks! To Him all our praise!

HOW ISRAEL GOVERNS ORIENTAL RACES.

THE death of two gallant British officers, at a place near Chindwin, in Upper Burmah, has just been reported. Major Kennedy was accompanied by Captain Beville, the Assistant Commissioner, and commanded a small British force of seventy-five men, of whom twenty-five were mounted infantry, and the rest riflemen, under Captain Welchman, the attack being made on a party of 200 Dacoits, under one of the Pretenders, named Boh-Thugye. The Dacoits were almost annihilated; forty were killed outright with the two chiefs, and many were wounded. This success, following on the death of Boh-Shway, will probably do much to put a stop to Dacoity, and enable Burmah to settle down as a quiet and peaceable portion of the British Empire in the East. We notice this success in order that we may place before our readers the description the Times gives of the British civil and military government of that last acquired Province of our Queen. The panegyric of the leading journal is perfectly disinterested, and gives us, in a few words, the reason why our Empire in India and Burmah has been blessed with success, and why all Eastern races, hearing how we govern the Peninsula and Burmah, desire to have the same beneficent Government for themselves. The account is perfectly marvellous, and deserves careful attention. The writer said:—

That these Dacoit leaders should one after another fall or surrender, is proof of the skill and efficiency with which the British outposts are handled, and of the pluck and endurance with which those troops—mostly Indian and Burmese—do their work under difficult and often depressing conditions. Living in wretched huts, far off among the forests and mountains, these men contend successfully against the evils of a bad climate, bad food, and solitude, and their feats of arms are often astonishing. Led by a single British officer, or sometimes by a native officer from the Punjab or some other region of India, where fighting men are reared, they make forced marches, they scale lofty mountains, they penetrate dense jungles, they attack strong defences, and they drive ten times their number of Dacoits in headlong rout. With men who can do this, the conquest of the vast regions that have been lately added to the British Empire becomes possible, and with 40,000 men, of whom only 4,000 are Europeans, we are able to hold and develop a country that bids fair to be one of the richest portions of the Queen's dominions.

Moreover, this is done with the assent and the willing acquiescence of the vast majority of the natives. Nothing is more certain than that, by nine out of ten Burmese, the British rule has been welcomed, and after the first fear has worn off the inhabitants have rejoiced to see stable, and honest, and merciful government substituted for the tyranny and exactions of Thebaw and his provincial deputies. The Burmese are, as a rule, easy to govern. They are a pleasant, honest, well-mannered people, and there is no antipathy on their part to the English. Consequently, few difficulties have been placed in the way of the settlement of the country, and signs of improvement are present everywhere. The sanitary condition of the troops has greatly improved, for it is no longer so necessary as it was to send men to unhealthy regions and to keep them under arms at times and in places where to do so must mean certain death to a large proportion of them. And if this has been the case with the British and the Indian troops, some kind of beginning has been made in sanitary reform in the Burmese towns. Still more important are the measures that have been taken for the improvement of the means of communication, which, when we went first to the country, were almost non-existent, except along pirate-haunted rivers. In eighteen months the pirates have practically disappeared, and not only steamers but the small native boats can take their course uninterrupted. New lines of river steamers are running in many directions. Cross-country tracks have been made into roads, and 300 miles of new roads have been taken in hand. The native wealth of the country, especially the mineral wealth, has been "prospected," and in at least one most important direction has been proved to be immense. We say nothing of the ruby mines and of their mysterious stores that may be hidden within them, for their working, as we know, has been hampered by administrative difficulties. Possibly at some future time they may become a source of revenue, but that is a matter that only experience can prove. What seems to be of more importance is the supply of coal, which a geological inspection has revealed. Four large coalfields have been examined, and two of them, which lie close to navigable rivers, have been pronounced most valuable, while the two others, which are more remote, may turn out to be equally important. For the working of these and other natural resources of the country measures will speedily be taken, and already a railway 240 miles long is in progress, and is expected to be finished in less than twelve months from the present time. And behind all this, and as an indispensable condition of it, there has been organised a system of administration which has already commended itself to the natives, and which bears new and striking testimony to the English power of guiding and governing Oriental peoples. When we state, in the words of a recent correspondent, that it is intended that "the actual staff for the civil administration—judicial, magisterial, revenue, and police—will probably be about one English officer to 1,400 square miles," it is needless to say more. In a year or two the lives of those men will be as safe as that of magistrates in English counties. But this is only so because of the firmness which officials, from Lord Dufferin downwards, have shown in governing, and our soldiers, from Sir Frederick Roberts downwards, in fighting. The people of Burmah have been shown that the assumption of sovereignty over that country by Queen Victoria has not been an experiment or a temporary whim, but a part of the well-conceived and necessary policy which guides and guards the Indian Empire.

So far the Times. Surely we may say that the nation which, within two or three years, has done such wonders for a land like Upper Burmah, must be "the righteous nation," and being such, must be also Israel! "All that see them must acknowledge them, that they are the seed which the Lord hath blessed" (Isa. xxvii. 2; lxi. 9). They are, as Israel, "the heirs of the world" (Rom. iv. 13), but to be able to hold their inheritance when once the sword has placed it in their possession, they must be gifted by the Lord with the power to govern justly, and by righteous dealing to build up the dominion He has put in their charge. This we see to be the case in India and British-Burmah, in North Borneo, in Singapore, and China. Orientals, seeing the character of the Government which rules them, rejoice, as the Burmese rejoice, that the British Government is stable, and honest, and merciful, and strong, and beneficent. Therefore, in Asia, in Arabia, in Egypt, and throughout Africa, native races look with envy at the Indian nations, because of the excellence of the Government under which they prosper, and ask, when Britons visit them, "When are the English coming to give us, too, such a Government as that?" But let us not boast! We govern well, because God's Spirit guides and blesses our operations. He dwells among us as Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, and with Almighty wisdom to help us, we cannot but succeed! But let the Lord have all the praise! (Exod. xxix. 45, 46; Haggai ii. 5; Matt. xxviii. 20, 21; Psa. cxlvii. 19, 20).

Digitized by Google

THOUGHTS SUGGESTED BY AN ANTHEM SUNG AT A HARVEST FESTIVAL.

By D. Dyce Brown, M.A., M.D.

On the 1st of October, at a well-known Church in London, on the occasion of a harvest festival, the anthem at Evensong was a beautiful one by Dr. Stainer. In the "Church and Parish Paper" the words of the anthem were printed, and are as follows: "Ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers, and ye shall be My people, and I will be your God. And I will multiply the fruit of the trees, and the increase of the field. And the desolate land shall be tilled, whereas it lay desolate in the sight of all that pass by. And they shall say, This land that was desolate is become like the Garden of Eden" (Ezek. xxxvi. 28, 30, 34, 35). "Give thanks unto the Lord, for His mercy endureth for ever" (Psa. cxxxvi. 1).

As the verses in Ezekiel, selected for the anthem by the composer, were not consecutive, as is customary in anthems, I turned up the chapter on the Saturday evening before the festival day, and on reading over again the whole chapter it was clear that this was a prophetic promise of what God was to give to the House of Israel after they had been restored to the land of their fathers.

No words for a harvest anthem could be more suitable to the occasion than those quoted, provided they were a general promise to the Gentiles. But it struck me that, however many verses of this beautiful chapter can be interpreted spiritually as promises to the Church of God, Gentile as well as Israelitish, such as those well-known verses, which are such a comfort to all God's people, "Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean," &c., &c., this especial promise, taken for the anthem, is a distinct one of temporal blessing on the land of Israel only and its fruits. And though even this promise may be used spiritually, as was done the following Sunday evening by the Vicar in his sermon, yet on the occasion of this harvest festival the words were used not spiritually, but literally, as a promise of God concerning our land and its fruits.

The question at once occurred to my mind, What right have we to sing this, a promise to the lost Tribes of Israel, and to them alone? If we are Gentiles, then it was surely a piece of assumption to sing, as our own, a promise which has nothing to do with us, and in which we have no title to partake. But on the other hand, if we are Israel, what most beautiful, appropriate and inspiriting words to sing on such an occasion! In doing so we become God's "remembrancers," and enter into the anthem with a fulness of meaning which no other words could convey. Such was my own feeling, and the anthem was to me a glorious song of praise and prayer "to the Lord, for His mercy endureth for ever," as the choir went on to sing. Is not the fact of this anthem being sung in Britain among the many "blind" admissions that we are the House of Israel, though probably very few in the congregation were aware of it when joining with their hearts the voices of the choir? And I could not but think how much was lost to those who did not believe, or rather I should say who did not know, that we are the very people to whom this precious promise is made.

Finally, we are often asked, "Even if we are Israel, what use is it for us to know it?" or, "Cui bono?" as the expressive Latin phrase has it. What grander answer can be given to this query than the 37th verse of this chapter, coming at the end of all these gracious promises, "Thus saith the Lord God, I will yet for this be inquired of by the House of Israel, to do it for them." We are thus told distinctly by Jehovah Himself that He expects to be, and "will be inquired of for this by the House of Israel." And when we do all we can to spread the good news that we are Israel, what greater incentive can we have for so doing, and for praying for the fulfilment of God's ancient promises which "He spake by the mouth of His holy prophets"? To any Christian, or to any one who believes in Holy Writ, this reply to the "Cui bono?" question is more than sufficient. Let us then, the House of Israel, diligently "inquire of the Lord for this." O Israel, praise thou the Lord!

THE ANGLO-ISRAEL CONFERENCE ASSOCIATION.

Surgeon-General J. M. Grant's letter on the above, published in our last number, calls for a few words of explanation from ourselves. The question is asked us sometimes, why have we not ourselves joined so admirable an institution? Our reply is two-fold. First, we do not see on what grounds such a society is called for, and in the second place, we are sure that an association of the kind set on foot, is likely to injure if not to destroy the pecuniary support on which the existing Metropolitan and other Anglo-Israel Associations at present only barely subsist.

First. Why should there be a Conference Association at all? The object—an admirable one—seems to be to attract the clergy and ministers of religion who have hitherto been deaf to our appeals. But are conferences foreign to the rules and objects of our associations, Metropolitan and provincial? We cannot see they are; and we think that before launching a new organisation the rev. secretary and treasurer of the new body should have joined the London Association and proposed the plan which is now declared to be, we suppose, so full of promise. Do our friends who are founding this new society imagine that the older ones have no wish for clerical and ministerial adhesion to the doctrines of Our Identity? On the contrary they were never satisfied till they had in London a bishop for their president, a Baptist minister for their secretary, seven clergy and ministers as their vice-presidents, and two more on their council! They hailed with joy every cleric who joined them, and none were unwelcome. In the provinces it is the same. We know of one large town where Anglo-Israelite meetings have been held for ten years, month by month. The clergy have been incessantly plied with urgent invitations to attend them, and it is the grief of the office-bearers of that society that hitherto the clerical ear is stone-deaf to their appeals. Does the Conference Association mean to resort to new modes of approach to the clergy? If so, who are the clerical advocates ready to stand forth, unknown to our existing associations? Are their names on the new prospectus? They may be; but they are not known yet, either by pen or voice, as advocates of Our Identity to the general public, with three exceptions. Will the clerical advocates of the Teutonic theory help the new association? or those who adhere to Mr. Edward Hine's teaching? We think that unlikely! Where then are the men to be found able and willing to lead a movement, to which the clergy of the Church and our nonconformist ministers, hitherto so utterly opposed, will now give a willing ear? We think, then, the proposal is, in the present condition of the question, simply hopeless and premature; and we, therefore, do not feel willing to waste our strength on a project which seems to be of that character.

In the second place we cannot but think that the new society, which is to start with a new secretary, a new treasurer, a new committee, and a fresh subscription list, to which all Anglo-Israelites are to be invited to subscribe, must in the very nature of things tend to starve the old societies, which have not yet done their work, or are proved to be effete.

On these grounds we cannot personally give our countenance to the new association; but should the Rev. Mr. Aston and Dr. Grant happily succeed in bringing to the support of the cause we all so love, a large and influential band of clergymen of the Church and ministers of the various nonconforming bodies, then we shall hail their success with joy, admit we were wrong, and give these two worthy Anglo-Israelites the right hand of fellowship in the name of the God of Israel.

Digitized by Google

MORE EVIDENCE CONNECTING THE ANCIENT INHABITANTS OF IRELAND WITH THE PHŒNICIANS AND HEBREWS.

By Joseph Thomson.

(Continued from page 440).

PART IV.

VI.—THE SCOTI AND SCYTHIANS.

Cellarius thinks that it was not until after the days of Ptolemy that the Scots effected a landing in Ireland, or at least they were not recognised under this distinctive name. Spenser writes,—"Two kindes of Scots were indeed (as you may gather out of Buchanan); the one Irin, or Irish Scots, and the other Albin Scots; for the Scots are Scythians, arrived in the north parts of Ireland, where some of them after passed into the next coast of Albine, now called Scotland, which (after much trouble) they possessed, and of themselves named Scotland; but in process of time (as it is commonly seene) the dominion of the part prevaileth in the whole, for the Irish Scots, putting away the name of Scots, were called only Irish, and the Albine Scots, leaving the name of Albine were called only Scots. Therefore it cometh thence that of some writers Ireland is called Scotia Major, and that which is now called Scotland, Scotia Minor."

In his treatise Capitula (or little notes) Nennius has clearly shown that the Scots were originally Scythians, who, as the Irish Annals further inform us, had started from Egypt in the tenth year of Darius, King of Persia. There is here an obvious mistake as to the place of their birth, for the Scythians were not Egyptians, but Asiatics, and the most celebrated and widely extended people in the northern regions of that continent, and described by Horace, the poet of the Augustan age, "as wanderers, and fond of living in the open plains." They had no fixed abode, built no houses, but spread themselves over the country, taking up a temporary residence for themselves, and their families, who accompanied them in carts, wherever, and as long as their convenience or inclination suited. Hence they were called Amaxobioi, and Amaxoforetoi, i.e., as Sallust renders it, "whose waggons were their abodes," or dwellers in waggons. Trogus Justinus says, "The Scythians have no boundaries among themselves, neither do they till the ground, nor build themselves house or habitation, being alone occupied in feeding their flocks and herds, and in wandering incessantly through the uncultivated deserts. Their wives and children they carry with them in carts, covered over with a canopy as a shelter from the weather, and thus answering all the purposes of a house. They cultivate Justice more by inclination and by habit, than by the obligations of law. Gold or silver they do not covet. They live on milk and honey. The use of wool and of clothes is to them unknown, being dressed only in the skins of wild beasts. This course of abstinence and habitual restraint extended its influence even unto the heart itself, elevating the tone of their moral character, and eradicating every extraneous and artificial desire." The same testimony is also borne by Spenser, who writes:—"I will begin then to count their customes in the same order that I counted their nations, and first with the Scythian, or Scottish manners. Of the which there is one use amongst them to keepe their cattle, and to live themselves the most part of the year in boolies, pasturing upon the mountaine, and waste wilde places; and removing still to fresh land, as they have depastured the former. The which appeareth plaine to be the manner of the Scythians, and yet is used amongst all the Tartarians and the people about the Caspian Sea, which are naturally Scythians, to live in heards, as they call them, being the very same that the Irish boolies are, driving their cattle continually with them, and feeding onely on their milke and white meats." To this high moral character of the Scythians Homer also testifies, calling them "Dikaiotatoi Anthropoi," i.e., "the most just of men." Strabo, Herodotus, Virgil, and others, have made equally honourable mention of them. Justin records three things worthy of notice respecting them: (1) their antiquity; (2) their military valour, and (3) their having founded the kingdom of the Parthians. To these may be added the fame of the Amazons, a tribe of female wariors, sprung from their race, whose exploits have been set forth in every age and clime, with such romantic characteristics as to give the whole the appearance of a fiction. In short, they were "a nation indefatigable from the pursuits of labour and of war, possessed of incalculable strength of body, desiring to procure nothing which they might fear to lose, and seeking nothing, when victors, but pure glory."

That the Scythians were, in some degree incorporated with the Phœnicians, and had together overrun the whole of Palestine, is evident from their occupation of Bethshan, which they called Scythopolis. It is further proved by the name of Bambyx, or Hierapolis (now Aleppo, as some think) which they gave the city of Magog, so called from the son of Japhet, from whom the Scythians were descended; or in memory of its founder, who was supposed to have been the son of Magog, and to have come from the land of Magog into Syria. Bochart has tried to show that Magog was the same as the Greek Prometheus. Deucalion, the son of Prometheus, a Scythian, is said to have been the founder of the city of Magog, in Syria, and built a temple there to the "Syrian Goddess." The name "Magog," Vallancey says, signifies a pine tree. There is a beautiful allegory of this kind in the Annals of Innisfallen, A.D. 1314, composed extempore by Turlough O'Brien, on the death of his favourite chief Donogh O'Dea; the last lines are,—

> "My wood has lost a tow'ring branch,
> My Donoh, dear, in you!"

Of the Syrians, Strabo says that they had extended the limits of their empire to Armenia and Cappadocia, calling Saca, a district in Armenia, Sacasene, after their own name. There was also a settlement of the Scythians in Trogus along the Thermodon. But it is doubtful what Thermodon means, as it is a river of Scythia in Plutarch; but in Philostratus the boundary of the Scythian empire. Thence they advanced into Cimmeria driving out the natives before them; thence to Caucasus and the Palus Mæotis (sea of Azof) to the Tanais on the northern ocean (north side of the Black Sea) according to the testimony of Herodotus, and Diodorus Siculus. Thence they sailed into Spain, as Varro, and from him Pliny, testify; which accounts for Silius Italicus mentioning the Scythæ or Sacæ in Spain. Speaking of the Cantabrians, who had been subdued by Agrippa, Horace says,—"The Cantabrians, that ancient enemy on the Spanish coast, subdued at last by a long disputed victory, are subservient: the Scythians now meditate to quit their plains with their bows slackened." This they actually did, first laying down their arms to the Roman authorities. Suetonius says,—"Such was the reputation for virtue and moderation established by Augustus all over the world, that the Indians and Scythians, who were not known of otherwise than by rumour or hearsay, were induced, of their own accord, to court his alliance, and that of the Roman people." They sent a deputation to Rome, and thus occasioned Horace in his secular poem (Carm. Sæc. v. 55) to observe, "Now the Scythians, lately so proud, court our answer." Thus they voluntarily sought the friendship, advice, and laws of the Romans, which, as Justin says, was the more wonderful, inasmuch "they only heard of, not felt, their power." Nay, when the empire of Asia was thrice threatened by invasion, the Scythians stood untouched, or unconquered in their native independence, compelling Darius, King of Persia, to retire with disgrace, making Cyrus, and his whole army, the victims of their revenge, and cutting to pieces the forces of Zopyrion, and himself too, at their head, though supported by all the spirit which the consciousness of being general to Alexander the Great, must have inspired.

Digitized by Google

Spenser writes,—"All Spaine was first conquered by the Romans, and filled with colonies from them, which were still increased, and the native Spaniard still cut off. Afterwards the Carthagenians, in all the long Punick Warres (having spoiled all Spaine, and in the end subdued it wholly to themselves) did, as it is likely, root out all that were affected to the Romans. And, lastly, the Romans having againe recovered that countrey, and beate out Hannibal, did doubtless cut off all that favoured the Carthagenians, so that, betwixt them both, to and fro, there was scarce a native Spaniard left, but all inhabited of Romans. All which tempests of troubles being over-blowne, there long after arose a new storme, more dreadful than all the former, which over-ran all Spaine, and made an infinite confusion of all things; that was, the comming down of the Gothes, the Huns, and the Vandals; and, lastly, all the nations of Scythia, which like a mountaine flood, did overflow all Spaine, and quite drowned and washt away whatsoever reliques there was left of the land-bred people, yea, and of all the Romans too."

Tue Scythians having concluded a treaty with the Romans, proceeded from Spain to Ireland; in an old hymn in honour of St. Columba, we find it said that "the Celtiberian Scythian had nothing equal to Columba." They landed at the south, but finally settled towards the north of Ireland. Baxter says that their descendants still occupy Valentia; and Ammianus Marcellinus Zosimus are the authorities for the assertion that, whilst only an Irish colony, they were the confederates of the ancient Saxons (and proved successful) in checking the encroachments of the Roman power.

All this testimony goes to prove that the Scythians who settled in Ireland and Britain were no mere barbarians. Spenser writes:—"Whether they at their first comming into the land, or afterwards by trading with other nations which had letters, learned them of them, or devised them amongst themselves, is very doubtful; but that they had letters anciently, is nothing doubtful, for the Saxons of England are said to have their letters, and learning, and learned men from the Irish, and that also appeareth by the likenesse of the character; for the Saxon character is the same with the Irish."

The Scoti or Milesian Irish, like their kinsmen the Scythians when rushing to battle, made use of the cry "Farragh, Farragh." Spenser says,—"Here is another proof that they bee Scythes, or Scots; for in all their incounters, they use one very common word, crying 'Ferragh,' 'Ferragh,' which is a Scottish word, to wit, the name of one of the first Kings of Scotland called Feragus, or Fergus, which fought against the Pictes, as we all may read in Buchanan (de rebus Scoticis): but as others write, it was long before that, the name of their chiefe Captaine, under whom they fought against the Africans, the which was then so fortunate unto them, that ever sithence they have used to call upon his name in their battailes. Some, who (I remember) have upon the same word Ferragh, made a very blunt conjecture, as namely, Mr. Stanihurst, who though he be the same countreyman borne, that should search more neerly into the secret of these things, yet hath strayed from the truth all the heavens wyde, (as they say), for he thereupon groundeth a very grosse imagination, that the Irish should descend from the Egyptians which came into that island, first under the leading of one Scota, the daughter of Pharaoh, whereupon they use (saith he), in all their battailes to call upon the name of Pharaoh, crying Ferragh, Ferragh." In the sequel it will be seen that Mr. Spenser himself, "hath strayed from the truth all the heavens wyde," as regards the origin of this war-cry.

(To be continued.)

"The British Nation Proved to be the Remnant of Israel and Representatives of the Lost Tribes," by J. H. Weldon, J.P., hitherto published in three parts at one shilling, is now issued in one pamphlet for sixpence.

ANSWER TO FIVE OBJECTIONS OF AN ENGLISH CHURCH CLERGYMAN TO ANGLO-ISRAELISM.

A Sermon delivered by Rev. Dr. Wild,

In Bond Street Church, Sunday Evening, August 21st.

(From "Parkdale News," Aug. 25, 1887.)

(Concluded from page 443)

PART II.

I am always amused in answering anybody on this subject, at the weakness of their position; and I often invite from this pulpit men in other pulpits who have objection to this theory to send them along and we will meet them. We have not the slightest doubt we can meet them. Whenever I give you a quotation I give you the chapter and the verse, I give you the historical page and the author. I never say simply I think this or I think that. I believe it is a fair and square way of argument. But some men simply give their opinion. I could give mine, and it would be worth as much to some as other people's, but I do not think that is the right way to argue. Now, Mr. Wilkinson evades that verse which is exactly the point that stands over against the present condition of Britain.

His third objection: The Twelve Tribes out of Palestine, he says, were to be few in number, under a national curse. This objection arises from the gentleman's ignorance of the difference between Judah and Israel. Now the prophets all point out that Judah was to be sparse and persecuted, but Israel the very opposite. She was to be numerous, prolific and prosperous. Now, take for instance what God says in Hosea i. 10: "Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered; and it shall come to pass that in the place where it was said of them, Ye are My people, there it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God." That is exactly what we would say, You are not Israel, you are not sons of God. We are just coming into the light. These sons of God are in this world somewhere. These sons of God are on this earth in a national form, in an organized form, and I ask you where they are if they are not Britain. I know Britain has her faults. I know she is treacherous sometimes. She is not honourable at all points, yet, with all her faults, she meets the requirements the best of any of the nations. Men will object to that which is most evident, and will wander around and say, "I do not see them anywhere; I don't think they are in existence; or, as Mr. Wilkinson thinks, that part of the Nestorians look like these Israelites." Are they as numerous as the sands of the sea? Oh, no. Can they be compared to the stars of heaven? Oh, no. Are they a leading nation? No. Are they powerful on land and sea? No; they have no sea at all. Are they a head and not a tail, as promised Israel? No; they are nothing but a little nomadic people. You had better not look in that direction. Israel are to be a powerful people, a numerous people. Why will we persist in hunting among a few sparse, nomadic tribes when we are distinctly taught that they are to be a powerful people? He said they were to be under a curse. That refers to Judah. I defy Mr. Wilkinson or anybody else to find that Israel is to be under a curse in the latter days. Not knowing Judah from Israel he takes the prophecy applying to Judah and applies it to Israel. Let him read Hosea ii. 21, 22, 23, and he will learn of the great blessings promised to Israel. The Lord will call upon the heavens and the earth, and they shall yield corn and wine in abundance unto His people in the latter day. That is just what we are getting to-day. Only seventy-two cents. per bushel for wheat. We can never have a famine.

His fourth objection is: He says that we are not observing the covenant of circumcision. Now circumcision is not a covenant; it is the sign of a covenant. That is a great difference. It was specially applied to Abraham by the Almighty as a sign of a covenant. But how long was that covenant to run? What was its object? It was to run until He came who is our Lord and Christ. Now, does any sensible man believe that circumcision was to be continued on after Christ came? Not at all. Hence if we are Christians, if we have the Spirit of Christ we will not be practising it, but Judah is. Well, Judah is not Christian in this sense. When Christ came people were freed all over the world from that ceremony, and a new one was appointed, which is baptism by water instead of circumcision. But you say, Why did Israel abandon it? Because of the following reason (Jeremiah iii. 8): they were divorced. What were they divorced from? From the covenants of God that were relative between them and God. There are some covenants that can never be broken, for they are unconditional on the part of God. "And I saw, when for all the causes whereby backsliding Israel committed adultery I had put her away, and given her a bill of divorce; yet her treacherous sister Judah feared not, but went and played the harlot also." Israel being divorced, she is free from the law of circumcision. How could I prove Israel is divorced? Because she does not practise circumcision. Judah is not divorced because she practises circumcision. Hence, one of the very objections he makes is one of the grandest evidences on this earth in favour of my ground. If we had been practising it I guess I would have had a hard work to meet him.

Digitized by Google

His fifth objection is one of his own, and one quite frequently brought up. It is, being Israel does not free us from conversion. I do not know a single Anglo-Saxon writer that would argue that is so. We never argue that it frees us from conversion. We argue it is actually a set of covenants referring to us nationally. Individually, whether I am a believer in the theory or not, I have to be converted to be saved. There is not a single writer—and I know them better than Mr. Wilkinson perhaps—either in Britain, the United States or Canada ever uttered such a sentiment, yet ministers are constantly arguing that we are putting Anglo-Israelism in place of conversion. I say to him, Give me the first proof. Why can a man get up before an audience and cast that upon us? It is because he wants to I suppose. I cannot give any other reason.

In sustaining these few points he makes some funny statements. Referring to the return of the Jews from Babylon, he actually says Israel was as free to return to Palestine as Judah, the door being as wide open to the one as the other. Could anything be more contrary to truth? You must remember the two Houses were at variance one with the other before Israel was carried captive. You read they were carried captive about the year 725 B.C. This is what 2 Kings xvii. 6 says. Their location is given as in the city of the Medes, in Assyria. Where is that? About 800 miles north-east of Jerusalem. Get your maps now. The Jews are called the House of Judah. One hundred and thirty years after this Israelitish captivity they were taken captive to Babylon. Where is Babylon? About 700 miles south-east of Jerusalem. One was just as free to return as the other, he says. The Lord bless the man for his geography, if he cannot tell the difference between Assyria and Babylon. Judah's captivity was fixed by the prophet as to time. It was to last 70 years. No such date is given to the captivity of Israel. Then, that this might be fulfilled, God prophesied beforehand that a man should be born, a king should rise who should deliver Judah. His name was Cyrus. How then, Mr. Wilkinson, were they as free to return as the Jews? Could they return without a permission from the king of the country in which they lived? No, sir. Could they return through 800 miles of enemies without protection? No, sir. Could they return without some means to help? them on their journey? No, sir. When Judah returned there was a proclamation that made them free; then letters were given to all the kings and chiefs between them and Jerusalem to let this people pass freely; and more, he appropriated out of the king's treasury money to help them on their way.

Not one of those things was ever promised or given to Israel. He says they were as free to return as Judah. That shows you, when you come to think, how careless men can be in their expressions. I presume it is carelessness. Again, when the Jews left Palestine they left a few old people and children behind, and the land was partly desolate. It was reserved for them. When they returned there was plenty of room. If you read 2 Kings xvii. 24, you will find that Israel could not return because they had nowhere to return to. When they left the land the King of Assyria took his own favourites from the different parts of his empire, and gave them the houses and farms and cities that had belonged to Israel. When Judah returned, those favourites had been living there for two hundred years, and were as numerous as the land could stand. Supposing Israel had come back, where would they have gone? I may read you that verse: "And the King of Assyria brought men from Babylon, and from Cutah, and from Ava, and from Hamath, and from Sepharvaim, and placed them in the cities of Samaria instead of the children of Israel: and they possessed Samaria and dwelt in the cities thereof." They are there to-day, what remains of them. They have never been removed. What nonsense to say Israel could have returned equally with Judah. It was not God's will that they should return. It is never stated that they should return, only as a deputation, one of a city and two of a family. Israel can never go back. She has a country of her own, islands of her own, a home of her own. That is what God promised in 2 Sam. vii. 10: "Moreover I will appoint a place for My people Israel, and will plant them that they may dwell in a place of their own, to move no more." Now, how could they go back there if they were never to move? Where was that home? The British Isles is their home, and you can no more move them than you can move the sun from the firmament. They will stay there in spite of all you can do. God gave it to them.

The very difficulty of tracing their origin and the difficulty of finding the Lost Tribes, correspond very well. I have teachers and professors here from the different colleges, and you cannot tell your students who the Saxons are, and where they came from. Why should we be in doubt as to our origin? Because the Lost Ten Tribes were lost, and God said He would hedge their way, and lead them in a way they should not know. Now, I challenge any man to tell their origin. Sharon Turner is the best authority on this point, yet he stops in Central Asia, where he finds two fountains, from which spring the Saxons and Germans, but he does not know where they come from to that point; but we know that the tribes were lost at the place where the Saxons begin.

We are the Stone or the fifth kingdom, and the mysterious rising of it is a symbolism of our mystery of origin. This is the stone cut out of the mountain without hands, small in the beginning, but always fighting at the image until it will grind it to powder. How long are we to grow? Until we fill the whole world, He says. We have now one-fourth, we will have the other three-fourths, when we want it. We are that Stone kingdom. We are the only country that values a stone. There is a ragged old stone in Westminster Abbey, upon which our queens and kings are crowned. There is no country in the world having a stone upon which its rulers are crowned but ours. You say it is an accident. All right, it is on my side. Everything symbolizes the fact that Britain is the Lost Tribes in an organized form. The scriptures make a great deal of the Isles of the Sea. There are no isles near Palestine. "The isles shall wait for My law." So they did wait. They are there to-day. The world makes a great deal of those isles, for Israel is to be dominant, pre-eminent to lead. Then Britain is that dominant and leading Power to this hour. What is the result? We have a God-elected mission and a God-elected work. Our work is to Christianize and civilize and bless the nations of the earth, and God will put the power and means in our hands, if we will only do so. The Lord bless us. Amen.

Digitized by Google

THE BRITISH YARD MEASURE FOR INDIA.

A FRIEND draws our attention to the notice which is going the rounds of the papers regarding the proposal by the Government of India to fix by legislation the "English Yard Measure" as the standard of length for British India. This is, indeed, as he says, "an important step taken in order to maintain British measures in the East." The real facts of the case are stated in the Calcutta Correspondent's letter to the Times of Sept. 4th, which was published in London on the 5th, and is to the effect following:—

"The Indian Government, at the suggestion of the Chambers of Commerce of the Presidency towns, has addressed the local Governments on the subject of the adoption of the English yard as the standard of length throughout India. In doing so it states that the yard has now practically superseded the ever-varying gaz of the native dynasties and is largely used everywhere. The Government considers it desirable to fix it as the standard of length, but seeks the opinions of the local Administrations before moving. The despatch goes on to say that the Bombay and Madras Chambers of Commerce call for legislation making it punishable to mark a false length on a bale of cloth. The Governor-General doubts whether this is practicable, but desires an expression of views on that point also."

The word "Gaz" is, in the Hindusthani tongue, used to represent the British yard. The object of the proposed legislation is to make the Indian "Gaz" to be equal exactly to the British yard, carrying with it, of course, its corresponding length of the British foot and British inch. The fact, of course, if it becomes a legislatively established one, will be the death of the French metre, and will put a stop to the abortive efforts which Indian Governments of the past have made to confirm that system as the basis of India's weights and measures. True British measures, as by the Great Pyramid established, must and will prevail, at last, all over the Empire, because the British are Israel. Great fears were entertained some years ago that India would submit to the French metrical system, and so bring discredit upon our contention regarding Our Identity, as well as upon the teachings of the Great Pyramid as applied to the chosen people of God. But we see that God, in His own good time and His own good way, brings about the most unlikely things, and now will establish Israel's yard measure as the basis of India's metrical system, contrary to the devices and efforts of all those whose hearts are set upon following the French in their impious and daring defiance of the sacred metrology given us in God's own standards in the Pyramid.

That God has His own just weights and measures and regards their observance by His people as a matter of vast consequence can be seen by such texts as these:—"Thou shalt not have in thy bag divers weights, a great and a small. Thou shalt not have in thine house divers measures, a great and a small. A perfect and just weight thou shalt have—a perfect and just measure shalt thou have—that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee" (Deut. xxv. 13—15, R.V.). The very same promise is attached to the perfection of weights and measures used by His people, as upon their duly honouring their fathers and mothers, according to the Decalogue! "A false balance is an abomination to the Lord, but a just weight is His delight" (Prov. xi. 1, R.V.). "He is the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever," and, therefore, is as concerned as He ever was that Israel should in India, as elsewhere, use a just and true measure, such as the British yard.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—As I take a great interest in following up the proofs of what you preach, I beg to enclose a cutting from the Argus newspaper of the 15th inst. It is another instance of how rapidly the Gospel of Christ is spreading, for even those who were a few years ago fierce and untamable savages are now teachers and missionaries amongst their own dark tribes.

With reference to the letter in vol. xi., No. 546, in justice to this colony I must say we are not quite so black as we are painted by "Echoes," for the Bible is allowed to be read in all our state schools—after the hours of tuition. I have only been in Victoria a short time, and am not very well up in the Education Act; but this much I am certain, that Education is compulsory, and the Government provide schools, teachers, &c., not for one special denomination, but for all and every one, therefore you can easily understand why the "Church of England," "The Roman Catholics," "Jews," and all other sects, cannot agree how much or how little religion shall be taught in the State Schools.

I think I am right in stating that we have as many churches (of various denominations) in this colony as you have in the old country, therefore, please do not endorse the assertion of "Echoes" that we are "not only irreligious but anti-religious."

Yours truly, W. R. W.

Melbourne, Victoria, Australia, Aug. 19th, 1887.

The Melbourne Argus of August 15th, 1887, stated as follows:—"The Rev. James Chalmers, New Guinea missionary, preached yesterday morning at the Independent Church, Brighton, and in the evening at the Independent Church, at Albert-park. His subject in the morning was the mission station at South Cape, in New Guinea, which was founded by himself and Mrs. Chalmers in the beginning of 1878. During the earlier history of the mission the natives were very troublesome. Nevertheless, teaching at length bore fruit, and at the present time there are no less than four mission stations at that one place, and an equal number within a short distance. In the evening, at Albert-park, Mr. Chalmers spoke on the native missions in the South Seas and in New Guinea. A great number of the teachers came from the island of Raratonga, in the Hervey or Cook's Group. This island was peopled by fierce and untamable savages, and it was with the utmost risk to himself that the first missionary landed there. Now, however, the inhabitants were all Christians, and from their schools teachers were sent forth to spread the Gospel in New Guinea and other places. These native teachers from Raratonga, and from the Savage Island proved themselves most zealous, and were at all times to be found facing danger bravely. In New Guinea, at Moresby, and near the Fly River, the early missionaries died one after another, but nevertheless, volunteers were ready to take their places, and the difficulty lay in selecting the few required from among the large number who were anxious to step into the places of their comrades. The same enthusiasm was manifested even though the teachers were murdered, others being ready to hazard their lives. In conclusion he urged that the flag of England should not be allowed to be withdrawn from New Guinea, nor the mission there to languish for want of support, and though the past history of our dealings with savage nations was a dark blot, the future should be made glorious by the enlightenment and civilisation of the land of New Guinea and the surrounding islands."

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

SIR,—It may or may not have been intimated to you that the Identity has lost one of its warmest and most generous supporters in Mr. J. D. Almond, Baytree Cottage, Lower Breck-road, Liverpool, who was interred at Anfield Cemetery, Liverpool, yesterday, Oct. 18th, 1887.

Few men ever took up a cause more warmly than the deceased took up the Identity.

He was mainly instrumental in the issue of "Britain's Inheritance," of which so many thousands have been gratuitously distributed all over the world, as well as many hundreds of thousands of leaflets.

His purse seemed ever open and his energies continually bent upon the spread of the cause.

It may safely be said that there are few men who possess such a combination of qualities. He was a man of immense energy and business capability, kind and generous to a degree.

His place will not be easily supplied. He who putteth down one and setteth up another can alone find a substitute.

E. LYON.

British-Israel Identity Association,
14, Newington, Liverpool, Oct. 1887.

BRITISH-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.—On Tuesday evening a meeting was held in the Oddfellows' Hall, Colombo-street, Sydenham, for the purpose of establishing a British Israel-Association. Mr. T. M. Gee was in the chair. It was decided to entitle the Society the Sydenham British-Israel Association. Mr. T. M. Gee was elected President, and Mr. S. Smart Vice-President. Rules were formed for carrying out the objects of the Association. Among other things it was agreed that the meetings should be held every alternate Tuesday, and that no fee should be charged for membership, the money required for expenses to be supplied by voluntary contributions. A number of persons gave in their names as members.—The Star of Christchurch, New Zealand, Aug. 19th, 1887.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies " " " 1 0 4
Four Copies " " " 1 5 6
Six Copies " " " 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

A LECTURE will be Delivered in the ASSOCIATION ROOMS, 14, King William-street, Charing Cross, W.C., on THURSDAY EVENING NEXT, November 10, 1887, at 7.30 o'clock, by the Rev. James S. Forsyth, M.A., of Caledonian Church, Holloway. Subject: "Ancient Egypt" Strangers will be made welcome.

JAMES BILLINGTON, Sec.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

THE BIBLE READINGS

are held

EVERY TUESDAY AFTERNOON,

At 3.30, in the Library of the Association, 14, King William Street, Charing Cross, W.C. All friends are invited.

VALUABLE CONSULTATION PRESCRIPTION for cure of Indigestion sent to any address for One Shilling. Part profits to Banner Free Distribution Fund.—"Identity," 8, Charlotte-terrace, Clacton-on-Sea.

Price 6d., by post 7d.

PAPAL IDOLATRY.

An Exposure of the Dogma of Transubstantiation and Mariolatry: to which is added "MY REASONS WHY I WILL NEVER GO BACK TO THE CHURCH OF ROME."

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street and all Booksellers.

A PORTRAIT OF

MR. G. H. PEMBER, M.A.

And the commencement of a Series of Articles on the First and Second Psalms Prophetically Interpreted, by Mr. PEMBER. See the

"Silver Morn & Prophetic Voice"

For November. Price 2d., post free 2½d.

London: S. W. Partridge & Co., 9, Paternoster-row; or Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON, RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

Catalogue Post Free on Application.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

An Elementary Digest or Sketch of the Chief Facts and Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Adapted to the Unlearned and Unscientific 56 pages, Illustrated with Diagrams, price 4d., post free 5d. 10th Thousand.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

Our Identity with the House of Israel. Price 4d. Reprinted from "Clifton Chronicle Letters"

Our Identity: What it is Not; What it is; and Our Obligations To-day in Respect to it. Being a Lecture recently delivered in London by Philo-Israel, and published by special request. Price 2d., a reduction for quantities.

A New Work on the Identity of Lost Israel By the late BISHOP TITCOMB.

Now ready, in Cloth Gilt, Bevelled Boards, Imperial 8vo. Price 3s.; sent Post Free for Postal Order or Stamps.

A MESSAGE TO THE CHURCH FROM THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

BY THE LATE

RT. REV. BISHOP TITCOMB, D.D.

The Kentish Mercury, April 21st, says:—"This book derives a peculiar and pathetic interest from the circumstances that the proofs of its concluding pages were revised by the author during the last few days of his life, and that its publication took place simultaneously with his death. One feels, in noticing a book under such circumstances, a special responsibility, when the author is removed beyond the reach of human criticism of whatever kind. But in truth it is impossible to glance at these pages without being struck by the deep and reverent research into the prophetic Scriptures which it manifests, by the tone of piety that pervades it, as well as the lucidity and eloquence of its style. Nor is it necessary to express concurrence with the views of the gifted and pious author in his prophetic theories to give this praise. Of course with regard to Dr. Titcomb's prophetic interpretations there will be much difference of opinion, but there can be none in the mind of any impartial person who reads this work, either as to the diligence with which the testimony of the prophets has been studied, or the earnestness of the expositor in stating his conclusions. Bishop Titcomb, it is well-known to those who have studied his works, was one of the school of prophetic interpreters who believe that the British Empire, or perhaps, more accurately speaking, the English-speaking race, are identified with those whom we have been in the habit of calling the 'Lost Tribes of Israel.'" [Then follow several extracts.]

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., F. W. Parry & Co., Paternoster-row, and all booksellers.

Price 1d. One doz. post free 1s.; 100 post free, 6s. net.

WORK:

A THOUGHT OF THE PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE.

BY E. M. RUSH,

Author of "The New Old Story," "The Answer to the Eastern Question," "A New Light," "The Emblem of the Empire."

"The night cometh, when no man can work."

R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London.

Just published, demy 8vo., 66 pp, in tinted wrapper, price 6d., by post 7d.

THE BRITISH NATION

Proved to be the Remnant of Israel, and the Representatives of the Lost Tribes.

BY J. H. WELDON, J.P.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

Price 6d., by post 7d.; Annual Subscription, 2s. 6d., post free.

THE OCTOBER QUARTERLY PART OF

ISRAEL'S HOPE & DESTINY.

CONTENTS:

Hebrew v. Jew. By John Samuels.—"An Appeal to the Great Ones of the Nation."—The Papacy Unchanged and Unchangeable. By J. T.—The Ancient of Days. Being Alexander MacPhail's Second Reply to Surgeon-General Grant's Views.—"The Great Pyramid."—Errors. By the Editor.—Metropolitan Anglo-Israel Association.

London: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.; F. W. PARRY (late Guest, Hayworth & Co.), 29, Paternoster-row.

Price 5s., Cloth Bound, Gilt Lettered, 584 p.p., free for Postal Order. COMPLETE EDITION OF

FIFTY YEARS IN THE CHURCH OF ROME

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

"No history like it since the time of Luther."—New York Witness.

"The work is a good one, and we pray that it may succeed in opening men's eyes to the deadly dangers which are in our midst."—Methodist Recorder.

ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., E.C.

LUNG TONIC

SAVE YOUR LIVES BY TAKING

OWBRIDGE'S LUNG TONIC

THE MIGHTY HEALER.

It has a power over disease hitherto unknown in Medicine.

Are you at all Weak-chested or inclined to be Consumptive, with just a touch of Cough now and then?

"Try this Wonderful Medicine." The Cough and Weakness will disappear as if by magic, and you will feel a strength and power you never had before.

HAVE YOU A COUGH?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT!
HAVE YOU A COLD?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Bronchitis & Asthma it relieves instantly

The Spasms of Coughing so dreadful in Whooping Cough become less with each dose of the medicine.

Prepared by W. T OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull

Sold in Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s. by all Chemists and Patent Medicine Vendors. Wholesale all London and Provincial Houses.

CARBOLINE

1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.

Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved.

DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.

Makers:

GEORGE & WELCH

CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,

Who will forward Free of Postage.

ETHELINE

A New and most Effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

HUMAN LIFE.—FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles, and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 50 pages. SENT FREE to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON B. MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C. Write to-day.

PRICE 21s., POST FREE. HARNESS' WILL LAST FOR YEARS.

ELECTROPATHIC BELT.

An agreeable, natural, and certain remedy for

Rheumatism,	Indigestion,
Lumbago,	Constipation,
Sciatica,	Liver and Kidney
Nervous Affections	Disorders,
Sleeplessness,	Ladies' Ailments,
Paralysis,	&c.

SEND POSTAL ORDER OR CHEQUE FOR 21s. FOR AN Electropathic Belt (post free), and you will have an effectual and marvellous remedy always at hand. Harness' Electropathic Belt promotes Health, Strength, and Energy.

Thousands of Testimonials received. Write for copies or call and see the originals.

Pamphlet and advice free of charge.

The Medical Battery Company, Limited,

52, OXFORD ST., LONDON, W.

Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, NOV. 9, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."
(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 568. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1887. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
The Settlement of Two Burning Questions	461
The British Fulfilling the Prophecies	462
A Missionary Journey Round the World	463
Israel's Road to the East	464
More Evidence Connecting the Ancient Inhabitants of Ireland with the Phœnicians and Hebrews. By Joseph Thomson. Part V.	465
Our Identity as Treated in the Southern Free Press and East Grinstead Times	466
Correspondence	467

THE SETTLEMENT OF TWO BURNING QUESTIONS.

WITHIN the last few weeks two questions which threatened the peace of such near neighbours as France and Great Britain have been brought to a peaceful settlement. These were the subjects of the Neutralisation of the Suez Canal and the French occupation of the New Hebrides Islands, off the North-East coast of Australia.

On the subject of the neutralisation of the Suez Canal, we wrote on Oct. 12th, in No. 563 of the BANNER, and we see nothing to alter on the subject now. The Commission of the delegates of the nations armed with equal voting power, we then pointed out, was a radical defect in the proposal. We find in the Convention lately signed by France and Britain that these objectionable points have disappeared, and that the arrangement is quite according to British desires, and harmless as to our interests in the East. It appears now that the Canal having been neutralised, that is, declared free and open to all nations during times of war as well as of peace, the Khedive and the Sultan are to be charged with the protection of its neutrality. A Commission, further composed of the Consuls-General of the Powers, is to be appointed, "whose chief function will be, in case of necessity, to set the action of the Khedive in train." In time of peace the Commission will have nothing to do but meet once a year as a mere piece of formality. But when war occurs its function will be exhausted as soon as it has warned the Khedive that danger exists, requiring him to intervene for the defence of the Canal.

The British are most interested of all nations in seeing that the Canal is permanently open in war and peace as well, and, therefore, by the arrangement made she obtains what she desired, and what she determined to have. The way to India will be always open, whether the nations are at war or peace with each other or us.

In regard to the New Hebrides, the French were always in the wrong. They had no right to occupy the Islands, and it was in direct contravention to their treaty with us. Their continued stay was a source of irritation and annoyance to the Australian Government, which could not much longer have been neglected. The French, however, held their ground, hoping, we suppose, to use that question as a lever to obtain some advantage over us in respect to Egypt. She has now agreed to conform to the Treaty, and will, no doubt, do so. France has a deadly quarrel to compose in Europe, and finds Germany, Austria, and Italy in alliance against any attempt to coerce Germany on the part of France or Russia. No doubt, then, the French are finding out that it will be better to settle the burning questions which are dividing them from us before the conflagration takes place. The ill-temper of Russia in respect to the Italian addition to the German Alliance plainly shows that the fire of the volcano is smouldering and threatens an eruption. Now, too, French sensibilities are exercised by the fear that the Italians meditate, with German help, to annex Tripoli. The Balkan States are Europe's danger, and seeing how the wind is blowing, we are quite of opinion that France has done well to secure a friend behind her back by giving way on the New Hebrides question, and by consenting to settle the Suez Canal dispute without insisting on dragging the question of the Egyptian Protectorate after it.

The removal of these two matters from the list of burning questions adds to the certainty that in the coming troubles the British Anglo-Israelite nation will not be involved. The prophecies declare that the Lord will "ordain peace for us," and that our proper place, when that time of terror shall have come, will be in the seclusion and security of our own chambers, our Gates the while being shut behind us, and ourselves "hidden for a little moment till the indignation of the Lord Jehovah be overpast," and the nations which are obnoxious to His fierce anger be consumed in the fiery wrath of His jealousy on account of their idolatries (Isa. xxvi. 12, 20, 21).

If France, then, be reconciled to us, if the Suez Canal question and the New Hebrides' sore be removed from the category of burning questions, what further complications have we to fear from the nations of the earth? Germany is our natural ally; so is Austria. Italy's foreign policy respecting the Suez Canal and the Red Sea is ours. They all three desire us to continue to be the guardians of Egypt, and, virtually, that of the Canal. Spain and Portugal are not likely to confront us on any conceivable question; and it stands to reason that we could not take part in the quarrels between France and Russia on the one side, and of the German nation, aided by Italy, on the other. Russia, no doubt, will eventually become our deadly assailant, and the quarrel will be about the possession of "The Gate of Gates" (Constantinople), as well as concerning the occupation of the Holy places and Syria. But that conflict will not take place till the Restoration of Israel and Judah has become a fact, and the Russian Empire finds that it must strike a blow for Jerusalem and the Gate of their House as well, before it be too late.

Digitized by Google

At present we do not see that the hostility of Russia is to be dreaded just yet, and, therefore, we perceive that the policy of non-intervention which God's Word prescribes to us at this time, nationally, will be carried out without difficulty by the Government of the day. The ease with which our God can carry out His purposes in the most improbable and adverse circumstances, must strike the most casual observer in regard to the matters we are now discussing, and shows us that our nation's career is entirely under His guidance and direction. It was first sketched out for us by the prophecies of the living God, and His hand is transforming into history what was drawn first in the once dim but now radiant and clearly legible lines of ancient Scriptural prediction. To Him be all the praise!

THE BRITISH FULFILLING THE PROPHECIES.

WE have received from a London correspondent (W. C. B.) a copy of the Echo of Oct. 29th, with a request that we would notice in some way the remarks of a contributor, signing himself "A," wherein our treatment of various subjects in the BANNER is deemed highly objectionable. Our correspondent, who calls himself, in a measure, a believer in Our Identity, thinks nevertheless "that matters are often introduced into this Journal that had better have been left unsaid, since such questions as the Echo rails at do more harm than good to discuss, and they fail to advance the interests of the question, but rather bring it into contempt." Such is Mr. W. C. B.'s opinion.

The subjects noticed by the Echo are these: First our reference to "the cheese of the world" (p. 398, No. 562); to the neutralisation of the Suez Canal (p. 413, No. 563); to the alleged deterioration of our race (p. 418, No. 563); to the Nizam's offer of £600,000 to the Viceroy (p. 421, No. 564); and to the Irish trouble and their resistance to British supremacy (p. 397, No. 562). Exception is also taken to two short and suggestive letters from a couple of correspondents (p. 427) respecting "knighthood and its origin," also as to the meaning of our British royal salute of twenty-one guns.

Of course we are gratified to know that the BANNER and its sayings and doings have attracted the notice of the London Echo, and even if that notice should be highly adverse to our claims to deal with a serious subject reasonably, it is a satisfaction to note that the Identity has attracted at least some notice, and is deemed important enough for a public condemnation by the correspondent of the paper. The Rev. Thos. Lowe's article on "Britannia, the daughter of Zion," published on p. 422, No. 564, comes in for strong animadversion. When Mr. Lowe quoted Isa. lxi. 6, "Ye shall eat the riches of the Gentiles, and in their glory ye shall boast yourselves," the Echo's correspondent rejoins thus:—

> This forcibly reminds us of the famous syllogism of the Fifth Monarchy men, "The earth is the Lord's; the Lord hath given the earth to His saints; we are His saints; therefore the earth is ours!" If ever such theories were generally received by the British people it would become the serious duty of all the other nations to destroy such a mad dog of civilisation.

Our own words in regard to Ireland (p. 397) are thus treated:—

> As to Ireland, the present Government is "merciful to a fault," and if we wish to realise "the promises to Israel" we must assert our just position as the dominant race. Here is the proof:—"The remnant of Jacob is to be among the nations, in the midst of many people, as a lion among the beasts of the forest, as a young lion among the flocks of sheep; who, if he go through treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and there is none to deliver." The young lion tearing in pieces among the flocks of sheep! Did ever the Devil quote Scripture to a more shameful purpose? Italian brigands who hung their plunder round the neck of a Madonna did not more grossly misapprehend the sweet reasonableness of Christ than the leaders of the Anglo-Israel superstition.

We are inclined to ask where is the shamefulness of the quotation in question? Is it not in God's Word? Does not the prophet Micah, speaking by the Holy Ghost, tell us that Jacob's portrait shall be recognised in days future to his own, by two distinct characteristics portrayed in verses 7 and 8 of chap. v.? In the one we have the beneficent evangelist carrying the Gospel to many people and operating amongst them; in the other there is the same, but now belligerent nation victorious over those very self-same races, and successful always when, without vacillation, the House of Jacob girds itself for action, and "goes through" their opposing enemies? The prophecy finds its fulfilment in the British alone of all the nations, and do we do wrong in noting the fact? According to the Echo's correspondent, "the sweet reasonableness of Christ" forbids this interpretation of the prophecy, and we should, we suppose, do well to expunge the horrid sentiments from the page of inspiration. Yet the Echo must have read Matt. x. 34, and Luke xii. 49 to 53, and seen there that the Lord Jesus Himself told us that His mission was "not to send peace upon the earth but a sword," division and warfare! The Echo must learn that God uses war to carry out His purposes, and reflect that He who taught Joshua how to compass the destruction of Jericho and of almost all its inhabitants, was the Lord Jesus Christ Himself, the great Captain, or the Prince of the Host of the Lord, whom Joshua worshipped, and whose presence made the very ground on which His servant stood "holy ground" (Joshua v. 13 to 15, vi. 1 to 27).

In reference to the allegations that the British would be the "mad dogs" of civilization, and worthy of destruction by the rest of the nations if they claimed the earth as "the saints of the Lord," after the fashion of the fifth monarchy men, we would ask the Echo whether God's Word does or does not say that "the saints shall inherit the earth," and that Israel are "His saints"? So at least we read, for instance, in Matt. v. 5; Psalm cxlviii. 14, in respect to these two points. If we have proved by sufficient evidence that the British are Israel, are we wicked and wrong to tell our countrymen that, "since they are Israel, they are the saints, and that they are the heirs of the world, according to St. Paul's Epistle (Rom. iv. 13), and Daniel's prophecy (chap. vii. 22 and 27)"? Besides, are not the facts of the day such that we find we can appeal to them as the fulfilment of these Scriptures? We are gradually absorbing the earth; and the nations are at this very moment reviling us as devourers and usurpers of the earth, whom they would destroy—if they could!

In regard to such articles as "the cheese of the world," we fail to see how reference to such a subject can on our principles be unfit for our pages, or likely to do harm to our cause. Being Israel, the British must be fulfilling prophecy in the jot and the very tittle thereof. If God saw fit to allude to "cattle," and "the fruit or produce of cattle," and declared He would pre-eminently bless Israel in respect to those very matters, do we not well to point out how facts prove God's faithfulness to His promises, and that in not one respect do we belie Him as the Faithful Promiser? In Deut. xxviii. 4 we find God promised to "Israel obedient" His blessing in respect to the fruit of their cattle; also in ver. 8 and 11 as to their manufactures, and to the plenteousness of their riches in reference to cattle. Such being the case, the promises include the manufacture of cheese, one of the products of cows, or cattle. We find men proclaim our superiority in respect to the manufacture of cheese, the British being "the head and not the tail"; and can we be silent, and fail to proclaim in this matter also the faithfulness of God to us His people?

Digitized by Google

The supremacy of our nation in athletic sports, again, is no matter for surprise, and we do right to mention the fact, because God promised His people Israel that He would cause them to become "high above all nations of the earth" in personal prowess as in all other respects, and surely such facts as these, the true foundations of military supremacy, we did right to notice and call upon our readers to be grateful for, as "the Israel of God."

In regard to the Suez Canal, the Echo knows as well as we do that that highway between the East and the West is absolutely vital to our nation's existence; and whatever political arrangements be made, it must be always open to our ships of war and commerce, in peace and in war, by day as well as by night. In other words it must be under British protection, and controlled by British power. The objections of the French have not been much regarded in the arrangements already made, and the Echo knows it! The anguish of the French is that the so-called neutralisation will constitute the British masters of the Canal even now, but when war breaks out the mistress of the sea will then be sure to dominate at the Canal as she does north and south of it to-day. We look steadily at facts, and find they accord with prophecy. The Echo blinks the facts, but laughs at the prophecies of the living God, and at His splendid promises to His chosen ones, the House of Israel, His people.

We hope the Echo, and its correspondent too, will henceforth study the question of Our Identity, and rejoice and be glad in the splendid national blessings it brings us, instead of ridiculing those, who, with the Bible in one hand, and the facts of current history in the other, are praising God for His faithfulness to His oath "to Abraham and his seed for ever," in giving us, His chosen people, all that He promised He would grant us, for the glory of His great name, and for the spiritual and temporal good of all the nations, families, and kindreds of the world at large!

A MISSIONARY JOURNEY ROUND THE WORLD

THE Rev. F. E. Wigram, M.A., Honorary Secretary of the Church Missionary Society, has just completed a work which has never been exceeded for magnitude since the Christian Church was established. He has made a missionary tour of the Eastern and Western world so far as the operations of the Church Missionary Society there are concerned. The journeys of St. Paul were circumscribed in extent. Mr. Wigram's included India, China, Japan, Canada, West and East. He went from home Eastwards and returned to England still travelling Eastwards from the West! He did it all, too, accompanied by his son, Mr. Edmund F. E. Wigram, entirely at his own charge, without the cost of a sovereign to the great Missionary Society, whose messenger he constituted himself, and really was, during his widely extended journeys. He went first viâ the Suez Canal to Aden; thence to Ceylon, visiting Colombo, Kandy, and Baddagama. In South India he saw the work of the missions in Tinnevelly, Travancore, and Cochin. In Madras, and in the Telugu country, he visited the Church Missionary Society's stations at Bezwada, Masulipatam, Ellore, Raghavapuram; seeing Western India, Poonah, Bombay, Nasik, he went on to North India—to the Panjab and Sindh. In the Central Provinces he visited Rajputana and the Bheel Country. En route to China he saw Singapore, Hong Kong. He traversed the Fuh-kien and Che-kiang Provinces in China; also Japan, British Columbia, and Victoria, North-west America, Rupert's Land, Winnipeg; and so he journeyed home viâ Montreal. He reached England on September 3, after eleven months' continuous travelling.

"In the course of this tour Mr. Wigram has met the native pastors, the Church Councils, and other organisations connected with the native Church in the various Missions; has had interesting interviews and conferences with the educated classes of India, both Christian and non-Christian; has come into contact with missionaries of other denominations, and has had opportunities for making himself acquainted with their modes of operation." Surely there seldom has been so extended a missionary journey undertaken before; nor so grand a record of missionary operations given to the world as that little volume written from time to time from notes on the spot during the course of the travels by Mr. Edmund Wigram, which anyone can obtain at Seeley, Jackson, and Halliday's, 46 to 48, Essex-street, Strand, W.C., for the reasonable price of 1s. 6d. The volume is entitled, "Mr. Wigram's Tour."

The result of Mr. Wigram's inspection of the Church Missions he visited is that he believes the work is a real and a valuable work; that God is opening doors everywhere for the Church of England to enter; that the barriers raised to oppose the advance of Christianity are on all sides being thrown down; and that there is a motion apparent in the dry bones of heathendom which gives promises of a splendid conversion to Christian life, among the various native races he visited. He greatly commends the Zenana work of ladies in India, but thinks they need to temper their zeal with discretion, and work less continuously, in order that by so doing they may preserve their health longer for their arduous duties.

During the course of an address recently delivered by Mr. F. E. Wigram in Clifton, he uttered a strong panegyric on the Church of England, declaring his belief that God had constituted her from her earliest establishment in this country, the "light bearer of the world at large"; and that, both at home and abroad, she did more for the evangelisation and spiritual enlightenment of mankind than any other institution on the earth. Mr. Wigram's language on this occasion quite corroborated our BANNER'S opinion, since he affirmed that even as to Church teaching and usefulness she had no equal among the other denominations at home or other Churches abroad. She was in fact, in his estimation, "the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath" the Churches of other nations.

In the work Mr. Wigram has done, and in the account of that work he has now published to the world, we see proof of our Israelitish origin. He tells us of a world-wide Christian, evangelical work, which the Church and people of England are carrying on among a vast number of nations, families, and kindreds of the earth. He tells of missions in Ceylon and India among 16 or 17 separate nations, numbering 250 millions of Hindus, Mohammedans, Cingalese, and other races. He describes missions in China and Japan amidst a dense, alien, heathen population, where the Gospel is already making good progress, and the large portion of the work is carried out by the Church of England and her ministers. He sees that to this our Church and nation the evangelisation of the world is likely to be committed, and that even now it is almost world-wide in its efforts and application.

In the Word of God we see that this function is by promise to devolve upon Israel only, the Ten-Tribed House of Joseph or Ephraim (Gen. xxii. 17; Isa. xxvii. 6, xliii. 1, 7, 21). The plain conclusion to which the facts of Mr. Wigram's tour point is that the British nation and Church are Israel's nation and Church. They are doing the work allotted by God Himself for Israel to do, and, therefore, must be Israel, as He is true!

The address of the Rev. Mr. Wigram at Clifton was a distinctly "Identity" address, but the strange fact connected with its delivery was that he was perfectly unaware that in describing the missionary operations of our race, which he had seen with his own eyes, throughout a large part of the world and mostly within the outland empire of Britain, he was in fact testifying to the Lord's fulfilment of His promises to His people Israel. The likeness is exact, and yet Mr. Wigram apparently did not see that God's promises to Israel cannot be fulfilled to the British in these "last days" unless the British be Israel, or unless (and that God forbid) the Lord has forgotten His oath "to Abraham and his seed for ever," and given the very things He promised on oath to his after-seed, to the non-Israelite, Gentile, British folk, not mentioned at all in prophecy.

Digitized by Google

We trust the result of Mr. Wigram's admirable tour will be to teach him that God is faithful, and that the British, being Israel, are fulfilling God's promises to His chosen people, His heritage and inheritance. The salient points of Mr. Wigram's address, as reported in the Bristol papers, appear below, and we republish them as illustrating our remarks. They were as follows:—

The Rev. F. E. Wigram, Hon. Sec. of the Church Missionary Society, gave some interesting particulars of his missionary tour round the world. First, he remarked that he had the strongest confidence in the benefits which would result from the formation of their union and the holding of that conference. He then spoke of the urgent need of additional workers in India. There was also abundant scope for missionaries in China. The cry from Japan was now or never. Opportunities were numerous, and the people were ready to listen to anybody who would go to them and tell them what Christianity was. He was sorry to say that there was some hitch about the new treaties with that country, but he hoped it would be removed, because they had anticipated that much good would result from their operations. He asked what they were going to do to meet the demands he had mentioned. The Church Missionary Society, he believed, was placed in a most prominent position in the matter. The English language was becoming more and more spoken throughout the world. Their Church had an enormous advantage from its historical continuity—from its early faith, preserved in its articles and liturgy. Let them look at the spiritual work which the Church had already done through spiritual men, in the old faith and on the old principles, and then remember that they wanted double the number of men and double the amount of money they now received. When they obtained these their mission fields might be enlarged to the extent that was desired.

ISRAEL'S ROAD TO THE EAST.

A REMARKABLE letter appeared in the Times on October 19th, signed "Commerce," "comparing the various routes to the East." The writer's object was to show that, as a matter of fact, the Canadian Pacific Railway can never be of any material benefit to our nation in time of war, but that all will depend, as a point of national life and death, upon our retaining a firm hold upon our supremacy at sea, and our ability especially to maintain the right of "going as we please" on the high seas by the Mediterranean and Cape of Good Hope routes. Of these two, "Commerce" regards the Mediterranean route as by far the most important, because it is the shortest road to India; besides that it is the route along which are many ports (we call them "Israel's Gates") where our ships can coal and refit. There is the arsenal at Malta, the ports at "Gibraltar, Aden, &c.," and numerous points along that route can be connected by telegraphic cables or despatch boats.

"Commerce" argues that along that "shortest route" our road must lie, if we are to retain our imperial position and power, our Colonies and India! None of our cruisers or merchant steamers need travel from the Cape to Australia or to China, and none need be seen in time of war crossing the Pacific Ocean. All the objects of the Empire can be attained by our throwing the whole of our strength on the defence of the shortest route viâ the Mediterranean and the Red Sea, for on that line our chief Gates are situated. A few sentences of the writer in respect to the value of the Gates must be quoted here in his own words to prove their priceless importance to our own nation, and the complete bar they oppose to an enemy's fleet, which, on that route, will have no coaling stations to fall back upon, and no hope of obtaining an ounce of coal wherewith to navigate their ships back to port if they are unsuccessful in their attack upon the British Gates. He wrote thus:—

To maintain the necessary fleet of ships for scouting, fighting, transports, and commerce, refitting and coaling stations are indispensable, and the shorter the distance from one to the other the better. Neither our great ironclads nor our belted cruisers can steam at full speed for many days; they at least must be stationed within reasonable proximity to coaling stations and refitting docks. There are no such conveniences all the way from the Cape to the Mauritius and India, or all the way from the Cape to Australia. Neither need there be any commercial marine in time of war along those vast tracks of ocean to defend. Our ships can all go most quickly and most easily, with more ports to coal and refit, along the Mediterranean route than by any other.

After what has been recently urged and apparently well understood, I will not suppose our Government will be so unwise as to require our belted cruisers or battle-ships to defend our coaling stations. One would expect to find all the stations sufficiently armed to give a warm reception to any kind of craft our enemy would be in a position to send; for, after all, the enemy also must see that the coal supply of their attacking squadron must be sufficient to take them away again should they fail in their object. But is it not as certain as anything can be that, if it were known we were prepared at our coaling stations—prepared with sufficient of these scouts, cruisers, and torpedo craft Mr. Forwood has promised—and that we mean to defend the Mediterranean route against all comers, we should be left in quiet possession; and, on the contrary, if we are neither prepared nor determined to do so, that we shall certainly find ourselves attacked if at war with a naval Power?

The salient facts of the case respecting our trade with the world, and the risks we run in time of war, are these: Our trade along the Mediterranean to Egypt, to India, and to the far East, amounts, in round numbers, to £200,000,000 annually. This is about one-third of our entire foreign trade. Our trade with America and Canada amounts to £126,000,000—that is, the value of the commerce of Great Britain with India, the East, Canada, and America united, is about half of all our foreign trade put together. To defend the enormous trade with India and the East, and to uphold our prestige in Asia, South Africa, Australia, and throughout the world, "we must maintain our right of going as we please by our Mediterranean highway and by the Cape of Good Hope." We see from all this that though our new Canadian Pacific Railway will give us a valuable alternative route to India and the East on British ground throughout, it will be impossible for our race to relax its hold on the Mediterranean route, defended, as it is, by a chain of splendid fortress Gates, all of which have been given us by the God of Israel. It is remarkable that these considerations are placed before us by one who calls himself "Commerce;" for, in fact, the Word of God agrees with him, and tells us that the return of Israel and Judah to their land must be along the western route of the Mediterranean, and, therefore, along the very path to India and the East which "Commerce" recommends to us as the shortest and most important available. That road and the God-given Gates along it, then, never can be relinquished by our race, being Israel. Theirs is to be the honour of restoring Judah to their God as a "Present" to the Lord; and the glorious procession at the head of which the King Himself will travel as our Saviour and our guide, must come from the west, the route from "far-off" America, from Canada, and from the Isles of the sea (Isa. xi. 14, xlix. 12). It must needs, then, journey by the Mediterranean ocean-highway. To secure that, God gave our race Gibraltar in A.D. 1704, Malta in 1800, Egypt in 1882, Aden in 1839, and the Great Indian Gates, whereby Hindostan itself has become our nation's heritage. While we hold these and the other Gates of the world as well, the supremacy of the sea must continue ours. But God has promised the Gates to His people Israel, and, therefore, to the British nation, who are Israel, and the gift is given in perpetuity. Therefore, "Commerce" need have no fear that we shall lose the command of the sea, or forfeit the prestige we have got to-day. On this point he says:—

Digitized by Google

In proportion as we can retain the position we now occupy as a great Power, strong enough to protect what we now have, with the free untrammelled right of going to and fro on the high seas when and where we please, we shall be respected by all other great Powers; but, hold that position light, disregard it in any way, or seem so mild as to be unwilling to fight for its retention, and we shall not only lose the respect of great Powers, but find that our hold upon India and the esteem of our own growing Colonies will be lost to us.

Just so! So no doubt the matter appears to the secular writer, to whom Our Identity is a myth. But the British are Israel, and, being Israel, we repeat, God has promised us the Gates; therefore, the supremacy of the sea—nay, of all seas, in perpetuity, and also the command of the Mediterranean route to the East, because by that route He means all His people destined to return, to travel from their homes in the West, and by the gifts of all our European Gates He has given us the security we need whereon to ground our faith, that what He has so graciously promised He will punctually, faithfully, and literally perform. Let Israel, therefore, praise the Lord!

MORE EVIDENCE CONNECTING THE ANCIENT INHABITANTS OF IRELAND WITH THE PHŒNICIANS AND HEBREWS.

By Joseph Thomson.

(Continued from page 457).

PART V.

O'Flaherty thought he had discovered the time of the Scots' landing in Ireland from Spain in an old Irish poem of the 9th century, beginning "List ye learned" (it may be seen in the Dublin Library). The date he fixed to the 3,698th year of the Julian period; or according to Scaliger, the fifth year of Solomon's reign. Others, tracing the matter still further back say that when the Egyptians were drowned in the Red Sea, the survivors expelled from among them a Scythian of high birth, lest the facilities of his station should induce his ambition to usurp the sovereignty; whereon he betook himself and his whole family to Spain, where he lived many years; while his descendants being increased beyond the capabilities of the place they occupied, they proceeded thence (or at least some of them) to Ireland. But Tigernachus says "all the memorials of the Scots up to the period of Alexander the Great, are vague and uncertain." This may be so, without admitting that before the 8th century there was no such place in Britain known as "Scotia," the name by which Ireland is designated by Venerable Bede, as also by the monk Ravennas. "Ireland," says Bede, "is the proper country of the Scots, who, quitting it, added themselves as the third nation to the Picts and Britons in Brittannia." Ussher has also proved (Primordia) that the Romans called Ireland Scotia. Gibbon also asserts to the same fact in his preface to his great history. But the Scythians were not first distinguished by the name of Scots in Ireland: St. Jerome introduces Porphyry saying, that "neither did Britain, that fertile province in tyrants, nor the Scotic nations and all the barbarous provinces round about, know anything of Moses and the prophets;" whence O'Connor infers that the Scotic nations then lay beyond the pale of the British isle. Baxter also affirms that Scotia was so called by the Romans from the Scoti. Orosius, a presbyter of Tarracona (circa 410), says that in his time Ireland was inhabited by the nations of the Scoti; and St. Isidorus says that "Ireland and Scotia are the same, being called Scotia, as inhabited by the Scots." "Hence in aftertimes," writes Ludovicus Molina, "arose the origin of the Iberi in Ireland, who retained, as their characteristic, the very ancient name of Scythians, or Scots, from whom the Spanish promontory, now called Finisterre, or lands-end, was formerly designated Sythicum, or Celticum. These people removed themselves to Ireland from Spain, as Orosius informs us."

MacGregor says,—"The most celebrated geographers agree that ancient Europe was possessed by four grand classes of men: viz.,—the Celtes who extended themselves from the Bosphorus Cimmorinus on the Euxine, to the Cimbric Chersonese of Denmark and the Rhine, dispersing themselves over Western Europe and her isles: the Scythians, who came from Persia, and spread from thence to the Euxine, and almost over all Europe, speaking the Gothic and its kindred dialects, the Teutonic, the Belgic, etc.; the Iberi, or Mauri, who came from Africa, and peopled Spain and Aquitain, and their language survives in the Cantabric or Basque; and the Sarmatæ, whose language was the Sclavonic, and whose appearance in Europe was later than the others."

MacGeoghegan writes,—"Eginhard, secretary to Charlemagne (or, according to others, his son-in-law), in his Annals, on the year 812, says that the naval forces of the Normans landed in Ireland, the island of the Scots, and having given them battle, in which they were defeated, that those barbarians who escaped shamefully took flight, and returned to their country."

Baxter inquiring into the etymology of the word Scots, says that the Britons called them "Isgwydhyr," which in the old Scriptural style is equivalent to "Scoituir," or woodland men. The modern name Guydhal is the same as Brigantine, or woodland Gaul. For the Irish are, undoubtedly, a mingled race, consisting, as he says, on the one hand of the Erii, or barbarous natives; on the other hand of the Scots and Brigantes; and thirdly, of the Guydhali, or woodland Gauls: and from this he accounts for their being so often designated by the British writers under the compound name of Scoto-Brigantes.

Others look still higher for the origin of the Scythian name, and derive it from their dexterity in darting the javelin, scutlen, in German meaning persons expert in this art; just as a portion of the Scythians were called Arimaspi (from Arima, one, and Spia, an eye), i.e., those who close one eye, or use only one, which is the practice with all who aim at perfection in shooting; hence the origin of the fabulous one-eyed Cyclops.

In opposition to all these notions, to Dr. Villanueva it seems more likely, if not indubitable, that the Scythians were so named by the Phœnicians from the time of their first incorporation with them, occupying as they did a great part of Syria; and that they called them so from having noticed their roving propensity driving them on as adventurers, through hill, through dale, desert and forest. The word Scythian he derives from the Phœnician shitin, i.e., traversers, wanderers, rivers, and which is itself from shit, to go, run about, surround or digress; or from shitah, to expand or dilate, either in allusion to their straggling, or the successful ardour with which they extended their sway, striking terror into their foes by the very name of their princes, and laying low at their feet the most numerous armies. Saca, or Saccasene, a district in Armenia called after them, may have the same origin; sacac (Phœnician) meaning to run about, or walk, and sacah, a roof, or covering. This last is very near succoth (Hebrew) booths or tents. But if we look at the character borne by the nation for justice, we may suppose them so called from zaca (Phœnician), i.e., praiseworthy, or just; or zaki, blameless, irreproachable: all which attributes we find briefly noticed by Chœrilus in his work "Diabasis of Xerxes." "The pastoral Sacæ, a Scythian race, Asiatics who tilled the land, colonists belonging to the roving nation of the Nomades, a people who practiced justice." The word zaca also means to overcome or conquer, which agrees well with the warlike character of the Scythians.

Digitized by Google

Comparing the arms of the Scythian and the Scots, Spenser quaintly writes,—"Their short bowes and little quivers with short bearded arrowes, are very Scythian, as you may read in Olaus. And the same sort both of bowes, quivers, and arrowes, are at this day to bee seene commonly amongst the Northerne Irish-Scots, whose Scottish bowes are not past three quarters of a yard long, with a string of wreathed hempe slackly bent, and whose arrows are not much above half an ell long, tipped with steel heads, made like common broade arrowe heads, but much more sharpe and slender, that they enter into a man or horse most cruelly, notwithstanding that they are shot forth weakly.

"I have heard some great warriors say, that, in all the services which they had seene abroad in forraigne countreyes, they never saw a more comely man than the Irish man, nor that cometh on more bravely in his charge; neither is his manner of mounting unseemely, though he lacke stirruppes, but more ready then with stirruppes; for, in his getting up, his horse is still going, whereby he gayneth way. And therefore it was called so in scorne, as it were a stay to get up, being derived of the old English word 'sty,' which is, to get up, or mounte."* In fact they were a tribe of that people whom Virgil (from the Punic records) designates as "Numdæ infreni." (Phœnician Ireland, p. 145).

VII.—THE SILURES.

To the Phœnician Iberi also belong the Silures who had settled in the British Isles, and who are thus described by Tacitus;—"Their faces are coloured, their hair for the most part twisted, and seem to encourage the belief that the ancient Iberi, who lay opposite to Spain (i.e., in Ireland), had crossed over and seized these settlements." Thus he speaks concerning the Silures who inhabited that part of South Wales which we now call Hereford, Radnor, Brecknock, Monmouth and Glamorgan shires. And though the same reason may be given for that part of Ireland which lieth next unto Spain, yet in Tacitus there is no such reference. The Iberi alluded to, Bochart says, are those of Tartasus, who were a colony of the Phœnicians; for they only had the spirit and skill for navigation and colonizing distant countries. And as there will be an effort to derive the word Silures otherwise than from the Phœnician language, the learned, he says, know well that the British as well as the Gauls, were accustomed to wear breeches, quoting Martial (11 Epigr. 22);—"As an old pair of breeches belonging to a Briton." Then he says "sirwal," and "sarawuel," in Arabic, from which comes the Spanish word saraguelles, one and all mean the same thing,—viz., a pair of breeches. Sirwalin, therefore, in Arabic signified persons who wore breeches; and from this, he says, the Romans, by transposition gave the name of Silures to those Phœnicians who had settled in Ireland, to distinguish them from the rest of their race; just as a part of Gaul, where the use of this garment prevails, is called Braccata from that very circumstance: such is Bochart's opinion.

To Dr. Villanueva, however, it appeared that only a few of the Phœnicians who had settled in these islands, the lowest and the poorest, were called in contradistinction, Silures; and this not from an Arabic word relating to dress, but a Phœnician one signifying meanness or obscurity of origin. In the Phœnician, Zeluth means vileness, or contemptibility; and zaluth, impurities, filthiness. So much respecting their condition as a caste. But if we should prefer referring it to the national superstition, the word may be derived from the words, zil 'ur i.e., worshippers of the sun, or fire: or, as also ur, in both Hebrew and Syriac mean the sun, to blaze, or any luminous body. In this sense it is used in Job xxxi. 26, 27; where the word rendered "sun" is "or" in the original; and in Neh. viii. 3; "From the morning (or) until midday." From this word Apollo was also called Orus by the ancient heathen. It also means fire, lighted and blazing; and hence, by accommodation, the hearth on which it blazes, as in Isa. l. 11,—"In the blaze (or) of your fire." "Zila" means to pray to, or worship; "ziluth," prayer, adoration. That the Phœnician custom of worshipping fire and the sun was practiced in this country, there is no dispute; and the Silures may have been so named from this.

From the Silures was named an island Silura, separated by a strait from the coast which was inhabited by a British race, the Dumnonii. Some think that the islands of the Silures, or Silenæ were the Scilly Isles, called also the Sarlings by the Belgians, and which Camden says numbered about 145 (more or less) circularly arranged, and about eight leagues from the extreme point of Cornwall. These islands have also by the ancients been called Cassiterides from the tree which they produced abundantly: Hesperides from their western locality: and Ostrymnidæ, from the cape of Ostrymnus, in Artabria, to which they are opposite. Every one but slightly acquainted with ancient history knows that the Phœnicians exported great quantities of tin from these islands. Strabo tells us that they also came thither from Gades for this commercial product, and studiously concealed the place of its origin from all others, and which Bochart confirms by several collateral testimonies. This tin they traded with in Syria and Arabia. In Num. xxxi. 22 we find it was much sought after by the Midianites; and in Job xix. 24, by the Arabians. See also Pliny, Nat. Hist. vii. 56.

The word Cassiterides is from Kassitera, Greek for tin, and which again is the translation of Bara-anac, which is Phœnician, meaning the land of tin; and from this again Britannia was probably formed, as many authorities are of opinion.

We must not however confound these islands with some others also called Cassiterides in the Spanish main, opposite to Baiona of Tudium, and which are thought by some to have been so called from the great rocks with which they are surrounded; by the Greek inhabitants of Spain, called Cica, from cicos, i.e., "strength," a stronghold, or fortress. Others with greater probability think it a Phœnician name given to these islands before the Greeks set a foot in Spain and from the same circumstance which designated the other islands of the same name,—viz., their tin mines; "cicar," or "kicar," in the Syriac, signifying metal of any kind.

(To be continued).

*This word is still preserved in the famous "Stye-head-pass," Cumberland.

OUR IDENTITY AS TREATED IN "THE SOUTHERN FREE PRESS AND EAST GRINSTEAD TIMES."

(July 29th, 1887.)

THE LOST TEN TRIBES OF ISRAEL.

How to Find the Lost Ten Tribes.

PORTRAIT II.—BY SCOTI.

A SINGLE NATION.—To find lost Israel it is necessary that she have the well-defined features of a single nation. It would be useless to look for it in the Jews, because they do not constitute, in any sense, a nation for the following reasons: 1st—They are scattered or dispersed; 2nd—they have no king or ruler; 3rd—they have no Senate, wherein to form their own laws and privileges; 4th—they have not the marks and qualifications, as a body, to demand or form a government of their own; 5th—they are subject to any Power, wherever they are found, and are forced hither and thither by an alien popular will—that is to say, never permitted, for any length of time, to enjoy immunity from personal violence. England is the only nation that has accorded to the Jews privileges equal to those of her own people, and placed them on an equal footing with her subjects, no man daring to make the Jew afraid. The people that can do this for that remarkable race (the Jews) in opposition to all that foreign continental Powers have done, must be a nation in every sense of the term. As the Jews are a dispersed people, having no distinct nationality because of their mixture with the nations, they cannot be a nation, and therefore it would be wrong to look for them as such. This being the case, then, where must we look for Lost Israel? In England—the British Islands. And why the British Islands, more than other country? Because Britain, and Britain only, answers to all the marks or signs that are given respecting Israel in the Bible. She alone responds to every characteristic recorded of her.

Digitized by Google

Last week we gave a characteristic mark by which to trace her, namely, "Company of nations." Talk about finding Israel as a "Single Nation," the subject of the present paper, why we actually have a "Company of Nations" from Ephraim alone, who only form one-twelfth or one-thirteenth of the Tribes of Israel. Then Israel must be found as a Nation, having all the rights and privileges of such. Let us read Jer. xxxi. 35, 36, "Thus saith the Lord, which giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon and of the stars for a light by night, which divideth the sea when the waves thereof roar; the Lord of Hosts is His name. If (mark the word if) those ordinances (of the moon, &c.) depart from before Me, saith the Lord, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before Me for ever." The 37th verse is equally explicit. These words were delivered nearly 120 years after the Ten Tribes were carried captive into Media, and yet there are not wanting some who aver that the Tribes of Israel existed conditionally; while here we have the Lord Himself saying that the House of Israel should cease from being a nation only as soon as the moon and stars should cease to shine in the heavens. Again, in Isa. li. 4, we read, "Hearken unto Me, My people, and give ear unto Me, O My nation, for a law shall proceed from Me, and I will make My judgment to rest for a light of the people." We see that He not only addresses them as His nation, but also shews that His people, as a nation, shall have the power to become a light to the world, and no nation can do this unless they have the influence and power to do so. For one nation to make other nations to feel its power, influence, and example, must be a nation indeed; and it stands to reason that if God were determined to make all thrones, dominions, and nations subservient to His will and glory He would, of course, use human methods, and so choose a nation to carry out the work of bringing all other nations to the footstool of Christ. Israel, then, to do this work, must be constituted a Nation (and be found as such) under the Divine protection and blessing. It follows as a consequence that this nation must be somewhere, carrying out, in a most unconscious manner, the Divine designs respecting their universal missions, and what nation other than Britain answers to such a national character? A nation whose missionary enterprise is backed up by the throne and the people, a nation whose civilising influence is backed up by all the force of public opinion and the Press. As an instance of what was designed and expected of Israel as a Nation, we read in St. Matthew xxi. 43, after that our Lord (in the 41st verse) had shewn that the House of Judah were unworthy to have charge of the vineyard, He said unto them (in the 43rd verse), "The Kingdom of God shall be taken from you (the House of Judah) and given unto a Nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." Here we see the House of Israel, then in captivity, was to bring forth fruit. Did they do so? Yes. Look at the work of the Apostles, who were of the Tribe of Benjamin, and then after them and through them the Gospel work was carried out in this country. British-Israel is, therefore, the nation that is bringing forth fruit, while the Jewish people (from whom the kingdom was taken away) are a wandering race, having no national character.

In concluding this part I would suggest one thought. We find Israel being spoken of as a nation in the singular number. This would imply that one was sufficient, in the hands of God, to commence a great work in the world. Consider her present position and influence, admitted to be the most wonderful and unique in the world. Is not this the nation referred to by our Lord in Matt. xxi. 43? Or is the nation yet to be found at the end of the present Gospel Dispensation? What nation is bringing forth the required fruit of Gospel work at the present time if England is not? For I suppose every candid mind will agree that there must be a nation somewhere which is spreading the news of salvation as well as exerting a civilising influence, to prove that the Gospel is a present going dispensation, and not one to come.

We understand that Miss Lawrence, the late Secretary of the Israel's Scripture and Prayer Union, and Treasurer to the Literature Free Distribution Fund, is about to issue a small work, entitled, "Words of Help and Wisdom, Gleanings Gathered from Various Authors and Poets."

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

Dear Philo-Israel,—I have just received this week's Banner, and in your correspondence column, where Mrs. Davies, of Bath, draws attention to the poem, "Rule Britannia," and your comment thereon. I doubt not these will please many of Our Identity friends and readers. I have been often struck (since I accepted the Identity as God's truth) with the sentiments of the said poem, as containing the very gist of our contention, that we, the British, are Israel; and would likewise draw your attention, along with that of the readers and believers in Our Identity, to a verse (the last one) in another British sea-song—viz., "Ye Mariners of (England) Britain." The words of the last verse run thus:

"The meteor flag of (England) Britain,
Shall yet terrific burn,
Till danger's troubled night depart,
And the Star of Peace return."

I have not the author's name beside me, but that matters little: there can be no doubt he was a true Briton. And how prophetic are these words! well may our flag be termed a "meteor" one, blazing (flying) aloft before all nations, terrible from the beginning; and it will yet more terrifically burn during the coming great conflict of the nations, during the dangers of the night of the world's history, previous to and at the return of Him who is our Peace—our Star of Peace—when He shall show forth His great power, and then shall He reign over His ancients gloriously.

I commend the above to all who accept Our Identity, and would ask how the author of this verse, unless divinely inspired, could use such words, so far-reaching and so true?

I remain, yours obediently, William McVey.

Portobello, N.B., September 20, 1887.

RELIGION AND EDUCATION IN VICTORIA.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

Dear Sir,—Under the heading above stated, there appears in the June number of the Banner, a quotation from "Echoes" of the 7th June, casting such aspersions upon our State-school system, as to make one feel indignant. It would be impossible for me, within the limits of a letter such as you may have room for, to give you even an outline of the vast amount of earnest, public, and parliamentary discussion, during the last thirty years, which has resulted in the building up of a State-school system; that, however imperfect, will compare favourably, in its moral and intellectual results, with any other in the Empire. It is true that religious dogma, in the form of expressions or phrases, have, necessarily, been expunged from the State-school books, and that the Bible is not admitted as a text-book. But it is a slander upon the clergy of the Independent Church, upon many of the clergy of the Baptist Church, and upon the unquestionable Christianity of multitudes of private citizens, and of very many public men of high repute here, to say that these conclusions have been arrived at from anti-Christian motives. The school books are still replete with lessons of the highest Christian morality, and, if out of the 2,500 or more teachers in this Colony, these truths are not being impressed upon the minds of the young, by many sincere and earnest Christian schoolmasters, the more shame for those Churches that make such a confession of their want of influence. Do you suppose our schoolmasters are all infidels? Neither here, nor in any part of the Empire, are schoolmasters yet what schoolmasters ought to be, but the Victorian teachers are, as a class, morally and intellectually in advance of the men who were, more or less, subservient to the clergy, under the extinct and, in this Colony, never-to-be-revived denominational system. "So far as the Government is concerned," says "Echoes," "all is done to secure that a child shall be able to pass through its school course without suspecting that Christianity ever existed." A most marvellous echo, only an impossible one. Why did "Echoes" not repeat, that on the completion of two hours literary work, or on every afternoon, it is competent for the clergy, or any authorised Christian teachers, to enter the schoolroom and give religious instruction, and that every facility will be placed in the way of their doing so? It would be too much to expect "Echoes" to tell us why the clergy are almost voiceless in this direction.

Lastly, our State-school system is administered by a Christian gentleman, of considerable sagacity, high literary attainments, and great educational experience. John Leechman (Author of "Jehovah Triumphant").

Melbourne, Victoria.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies " " " 1 0 4
Four Copies " " " 1 5 6
Six Copies " " " 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

A LECTURE will be Delivered in the ASSOCIATION ROOMS, 14, King William-street, Charing Cross, W.C., on THURSDAY AFTERNOON NEXT, November 17, 1887, at 3.30 o'clock, by Mr. Douglas A. Onslow, J.P. Subject: "The Throne of the House of Israel." Strangers will be made welcome.

JAMES BILLINGTON, Sec.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

THE BIBLE READINGS

are held

EVERY TUESDAY AFTERNOON,

At 3.30, in the Library of the Association, 14, King William Street, Charing Cross, W.C. All friends are invited.

VALUABLE CONSULTATION PRESCRIPTION for cure of Indigestion sent to any address for One Shilling. Part profits to Banner Free Distribution Fund.—"Identity," 8, Charlotte-terrace, Clacton-on-Sea.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. BANKS & SON, RACQUET COURT, FLEET STREET, E.C.

Catalogue Post Free on Application.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

An Elementary Digest or Sketch of the Chief Facts and Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Adapted to the Unlearned and Unscientific 56 pages, Illustrated with Diagrams, price 4d., post free 5d. 10th Thousand.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

Our Identity with the House of Israel. Price 4d., Reprinted from "Clifton Chronicle Letters"

Our Identity: What it is Not; What it is; and Our Obligations To-day in Respect to it. Being a Lecture recently delivered in London by Philo-Israel and published by special request. Price 2d., a reduction for quantities.

The History of the House of Israel. How They Were Lost and How They Were Found. Told, for the children. Price 6d., cloth 1s.; post free 7d. and 1s. 1d. Fifth edition.

Ready at Advent. Price 6d., by post 6½d.

Old Dogmas as From New Aspects.

By V. F. A. H.

Contents: 1. The Apostolic Succession. 2. The Apostle Peter. 3. The Successor of Judas Iscariot. 4. The Athanasian Creed. 5. The Trinity. 6. Eternal Punishment. 7. The Great Tribulation. 8. The Great White Throne. 9. The Atonement of Jesus Christ.

H. E. Hill, 60, Nevill-road, Stoke Newington, London.

The Nation Warned by the Scripture Teachings of "The Great Pyramid,"

Of Things to Happen About 1887, and Onwards,

By EDWARD HINE,

Author of "Forty-Seven Identifications," 6d., post 7d.; "Cui Bono?" 6d., post 7d.; "Lost Israel Found," 3s. 6d., post 3s. 9d.

F. W. Parry & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

A New Work on the Identity of Lost Israel By the late BISHOP TITCOMB.

Now ready, in Cloth Gilt, Bevelled Boards, Imperial 8vo. Price 3s.; sent Post Free for Postal Order or Stamps.

A MESSAGE TO THE CHURCH FROM THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

BY THE LATE

RT. REV. BISHOP TITCOMB, D.D.

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., F. W. Parry & Co., Paternoster-row, and all booksellers.

Price 1d. One doz. post free 1s.; 100 post free, 6s. net.

WORK:

A THOUGHT OF THE PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE.

BY E. M. RUSH (A E I),

Author of "The New Old Story," "The Answer to the Eastern Question," "A New Light," "The Emblem of the Empire."

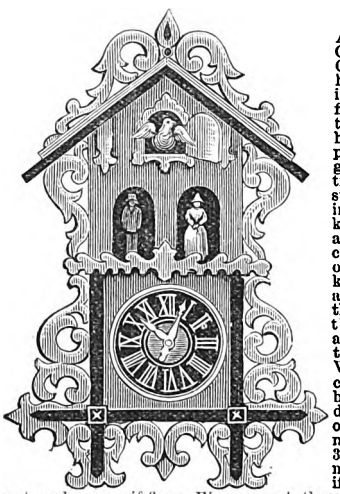
"The night cometh, when no man can work."

R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London.

Just published, demy 8vo., 66 pp., in tinted wrapper, price 6d., by post 7d.

THE BRITISH NATION

PROVED TO BE THE REMNANT OF ISRAEL, AND THE REPRESENTATIVES OF THE LOST TRIBES.



BY J. H. WELDON, J.P.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

A Resume of the Scriptural Argument, Proving the Identity of the British Race with the Lost Ten Tribes. Price 1d.; 6s. per hundred, postage 6d. Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

CUCKOO CLOCK AND WEATHER HOUSE (Combined).

A Handsomely Carved Wood Clock, 22 in. in height, with ivory hands and figures, strikes the hours and half-hours on a powerful wire gong. Each time the clock strikes a charming little cuckoo pushes open a door at top of clock and comes out, and cuckoos the hours and half-hours, then retires, and the door closes after it. Above the Clock is the Weather House containing beautifully modelled figures of male and female peasants, 3 in. high. The man comes out if about to be wet, and woman if fine. We warrant these Clocks to go for years, and for time-keeping qualities no better Clock can be obtained at any price, while they are ornamental, and fit to decorate a palace.

Packed in case free, and sent to any address on receipt of .. .. 21s.

TRUMPETER CLOCKS.

Beautifully carved, standing 30 in. high; figure of trumpeter 4 in. high emerges from pair of folding doors, and plays a fanfare for every half-hour, and series of flourishes according to hours.

Majestic Clock. Sent in case to any address for .. .. 40s.

Brackets for above Clocks, 2s., 4s., & 5s. each.

NOTICE OUR ADDRESS—

SWISS NOVELTY IMPORTERS,

C. BAILEY (Sole Agent),

85, HIGH ST., KINGSLAND, LONDON.

Next to LONDON AND COUNTY BANK.

Same address fifteen years.

One Minute walk from Dalston Junction.

LUNG TONIC

SAVE YOUR LIVES BY TAKING

OWBRIDGE'S LUNG TONIC

THE MIGHTY HEALER.

It has a power over disease hitherto unknown in Medicine.

Are you at all Weak-chested or inclined to be Consumptive, with just a touch of Cough now and then?

"Try this Wonderful Medicine." The Cough and Weakness will disappear as if by magic, and you will feel a strength and power you never had before.

HAVE YOU A COUGH?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT!
HAVE YOU A COLD?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Bronchitis & Asthma it relieves instantly

The Spasms of Coughing so dreadful in Whooping Cough become less with each dose of the medicine.

Prepared by W. T OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull

Sold in Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s. by all Chemists and Patent Medicine Vendors. Wholesale all London and Provincial Houses.

CARBOLINE

1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.

Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved.

DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.

Makers:

GEORGE & WELCH

CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,

Who will forward Free of Postage.

ETHELINE

A New and most Effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE.

To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

HUMAN LIFE.—FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles, and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 50 pages. SENT FREE to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON B. MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C. Write to-day.

BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA,

COUGHS, COLDS,

CONSUMPTION,

and all Pulmonary Affections can be immediately relieved and rapidly

CURED

by simply using the

AMMONIAPHONE

FOR THE Voice, Throat, Chest, and Lungs.

21s. post free.

WILL LAST FOR YEARS.

Used and recommended by the Royal Family, and principal Physicians, Clergymen, Vocalists, and Public Speakers throughout the country. New illustrated Pamphlet with copies of Thousands of Testimonials may be had FREE OF CHARGE on application to Medical Battery Co. Ltd.

52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

Corner of Rathbone Place.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, NOV. 16, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 569. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1887. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
"The League of Neutrals"	469
The Pall Mall Gazette on British Continuance in Egypt	470
Is it a Coincidence Only?	470
More Evidence Connecting the Ancient Inhabitants of Ireland with the Phœnicians and Hebrews. By Joseph Thomson. Part VI.	471
Prophetic Medallion Portrait of Israel in the Christian Era. By W. H. Mason	472
The Secret of Israel's Colossal Wealth and of her Colossal Power	474
Review	475
Correspondence	476

"THE LEAGUE OF NEUTRALS."

A FRENCHMAN, of the name of M. de Molinari, wishes to set on foot a league of neutral nations, whose alliance, for defence of peace against all States who wish to disturb it by war, he believes will finally abolish war, and bring in the millennial reign of peace. He wants to abolish war before the coming of the Prince of peace, but we fear he will fail in carrying out his very laudable designs. What he alleges, however, is this, and the arguments are plausible enough. They are detailed in the Times of July 28, by a Parisian correspondent of that paper. He says, what is very true, that the condition of the Continent is becoming exceedingly alarming. Europe is an immense camp. There are now, in a time of peace, nearly four millions of soldiers ready for the fray, and when war is declared, these may become twelve and a-half millions. The cost of the present armies is 4,600 million francs per annum, leaving Europe indebted 115,000 million francs, or 45,000 million francs more now than in 1870! Such a state of things renders the outbreak of war a very imminent calamity, which can only be prevented, according to M. de Molinari, by a combination of neutral States, always ready to side with the Power which is threatened by the aggressor in Europe. And that there should be such a combination, ready to menace the disturber of public tranquillity, our French peacemaker thinks very reasonable. For war would injure all the States whose wish is to live at peace with the world. Such States are, he thinks, "England" (he meant Great Britain), Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Denmark. Their united strength, thrown into the scale against an aggressor, would suffice, he thinks, to make the latter pause and give up the meditated attack. The present combined military strength of these five States, he tells us is, in time of peace, 453,432 men, and in time of war, 1,095,223. The combined fleets of these pacific Powers, he adds, would form the mightiest naval power that exists. The purse which would be relied upon, by the League, to pay for all these operations would, of course, be "England's," for she has "the first credit in the world!" In short our Frenchman, who wants donations, subscriptions, and adhesions to his project, of which he is going to be the "promoter," is quite sure "England," and the other small States who are likely to join her, will be ready to raise their troops to the war standard, and stand up to fight quite irrespectively of the ruinous cost thereof, in order that the other big States of Europe may not become hostile to each other, and so break the public peace, and hurt the League's own commercial prospects. We do not believe that the British people will ever see the matter in this light. They have a horror of war, and of the sufferings which accompany its operations. They will submit to any pecuniary losses, as they did in the American Civil War, rather than voluntarily allow their own sons to embark upon quarrels with which they have no concern immediately. They will rather seek their compensation for losses, which will certainly fall upon them, in a vastly extended commerce with distant semi-civilised races, access to whom their supremacy at sea enables them to command. Besides all this, M. de Molinari forgets one material factor in the whole case. He should remember that this world and the kingdoms thereof are God's, and that they are, for the most part, in violent rebellion against Him, His laws, and His people. He has resolved, therefore, to compel their obedience; and the only way to force them to obey, since they will not willingly submit to Him, is to bring upon them the punishment of war. That this is God's determination, is evident from Zeph. iii. 8, and nothing that M. de Molinari can say or do about the subject he has at heart, will avail to set aside God's determinations. These are His words: "Therefore, wait ye for Me, saith the Lord, until the day that I rise up to the prey. For My determination is to gather the nations, that I may assemble the kingdoms, to pour upon them Mine indignation, even all My fierce anger: for all the earth shall be devoured with the fire of My jealousy."

We fear that the French Savan's Association will be unable to make head against the tremendous judgments that God means to pour upon the earthly nations of the Continent, what time "He turns to the peoples" (of Israel) "a pure language," in order "that they may all call upon the name of the Lord, to serve Him with one consent." Even if matters turn out as the French writer suggests, we do not think the results would be altogether unfavourable to this country. The belligerent Powers of Europe will be forced to employ British ships to carry on their trade for them during the pendency of their wars. The profits of such a state of things will be a large addition to Israel's wealth, and the carrying trade of the Powers at war will benefit us greatly. That God means this to be the consequence, is, we think, plain from Zeph. iii. 20, where the ingathering of Israel, to their own land, is said to be accompanied by a condition of national prosperity which the prophet thus describes: "At that time I will bring you in, and at that time will I gather you; for I will make you a name and a praise among all the peoples of the earth, when I bring again your captivity before your eyes, saith the Lord" (comp. also Jer. xxxiii. 9). In what way this prosperity is to be brought about, we cannot yet say (not being prophets); but we are sure of this, that nothing will prevent these coming wars, because they are of God's own arrangement, and have a divine purpose to fulfil. They are to observe British-Israel's interests, and without the wars the latter could not be safeguarded. In one respect, however, our French friend is quite right. There must be, and there is to be, "a League of Neutrals." It is a League God has Himself promised and constituted. It is even now beginning to show itself! There is to be "a nation and a company of nations," all of the Hebrew stock, and these will, when they appear in their gigantic might, overawe the earth by their tremendous power, and dominate it for Christ, in the interests of His peace. That "nation and company of nations" is the British Empire, to be joined before the end, we believe, by the affiliated United States, a confederacy, thus, of the English-speaking races, whose number will, ere long, be 1,000 millions strong. To these, perhaps, the peoples of Holland, Denmark, Belgium, and Switzerland, with China, Japan, and Africa (who knows?), may join themselves. Then, with the 250 millions of India united as one man, a League will exist which ought to command the peace of the world. Then will come the millennial reign of the King of Israel—Jehovah-Jesus; whose will be the kingdom, and dominion, the power, and the glory, for ever and for evermore! Amen!

Digitized by Google

THE "PALL MALL GAZETTE" ON BRITISH CONTINUANCE IN EGYPT.

On the 5th anniversary of Tel-el-Kebir, Sept. 13, 1887, the Pall Mall Gazette published the following under the head of "Occasional Notes":—

> To-day is the anniversary of the battle of Tel-el-Kebir. After Sept. 13, 1882, we were going to clear out of Egypt in five weeks, or possibly in five months. Five years have passed, and we are there still. And fifty years after, will it be otherwise? That will be not as the Liberals will, or the Tories will, but according to the decree of the Fates. Against our will we went there, against our will we have remained there. As it is, and has been, so will it ever be till the end.

The Pall Mall Gazette has come round to our opinion that the stay of five weeks, extended to five months, and then to five years, seems likely to last fifty years, with no probability of ending then. "The Fates," it seems to the Pall Mall, will govern this issue, and their "decree" (whatever that may mean) will regulate the matter. We rather repeat what we have always maintained, that the God of Israel sent us to Egypt; and He has forced us to remain there these five years, to do His will, and carry out His gracious purposes towards Egypt and towards His people Israel, the British. Such an idea is foolishness, of course, to the secular journalist. But surely it is rank foolishness to attribute to the decree of "the Fates" what nothing but the finger of God can effect, and to declare that whereas the British went to Egypt unwillingly, and against their will have stopt there ever since, they have been driven to do what they dislike by anything short of the determination of the Almighty Himself!

We are in Egypt to fulfil the prophecies respecting Egypt, and what these are Isa. xix. 20—25 tells us plainly. God has designs of mercy and favour towards Egypt, because Egypt was kind to Israel once. He means, moreover, to make Egypt subservient to His own designs in respect to the return of Israel, Judah, and Manasseh to their own land. The first return was through Egypt, when Moses and Joshua conducted the people of the Lord. The second is to be by and through Egypt, too, what time the Lord Himself shall lead the way, as He did also before at the Exodus. "As it is, it has been," and "so will it be" till the glorious end shall come, and so far the Pall Mall is quite right.

The account which the prophecies give of the matter quite supports this view. Here is one taken from Jer. xxiii. 7, 8, R.V., showing that the Lord will be Israel's Leader on this occasion too: "Therefore, behold the days come, saith the Lord, that they shall no more say, 'As the Lord liveth which brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt,' but 'As the Lord liveth which brought up and which led the seed of the House of Israel out of the North country, and from all the countries whither I have driven them, and they shall dwell in their own land.'" In Isa. xi. 11 and 16 we find that Egypt is one of the countries whence dispersed Israel shall be assembled to return to their own land. For "there shall be an highway for the remnant of His people which shall remain, from Assyria; like as there was for Israel in the day that he came up out of the land of Egypt." "And it shall come to pass in that day that the Lord shall set His hand again the second time to recover the remnant of His people, which shall remain, from Assyria, and from Egypt, and from Pathros, and from Cush, and from Elam, and from Shinar, and from Hamath, and from the islands of the sea." Egypt thus is to be connected with the second return of Israel to their land; and in both the returns the Lord is represented to be the Leader of His people, guiding them through all their course.

These facts are hidden from the eyes of the leaders of our secular Press, but while they notice the historical events as they occur, they are utterly unable to account for them. They see that in Sept., 1882, Egypt became our possession; but they are quite unable to understand why we have remained there contrary to our desires and intentions, and why we are as likely as not to remain in Egypt to manage its affairs and govern it for fifty years to come! Hence they are obliged to resort to the "decrees of the Fates" and the like to account for the wonderful events they are witnessing, refusing to admit the interposition of the God of Israel, or that He is acting for His people, and bringing about for them the blessings which He promised them by the mouth of the prophets, who have foretold of the events now transpiring in the world.

Men ask respecting the Identity, "Cui bono?" We answer that there is great good in a view which gives us the key of God's dealings with His people Israel, in reference to the land of Egypt. There is great good in the view which enables us to recognise God's hand in His treatment of the land of Egypt, and causes us to reject with ridicule an explanation of the facts which sends us to "the decrees of the Fates" for the solution of the puzzle connected with our prolonged stay in the land of Ham.

Is it a Coincidence Only?—A short time ago, the foremost Protestant house of prayer in Israel's kingdom was to my mind desecrated by the placing in the middle of the doorway an image of the Mother of our Lord with the infant Jesus in her arms. This I considered, and still think, was a marked advance towards Mariolatry; a growing tendency to which, in the Church of England, I note in various directions. On a recent Sunday the interior of this same House of prayer was profaned by a ribald and obscene mob. "The God of Israel is a jealous God."—L. P., Nov., 1887.

Digitized by Google

MORE EVIDENCE CONNECTING THE ANCIENT INHABITANTS OF IRELAND WITH THE PHŒNICIANS AND HEBREWS.

By Joseph Thomson.

(Continued from page 466).

PART VI.

VIII.—THE VODII.

According to Ptolemy the Vodiæ or Vodii were an ancient people of Ireland, adjoining, on the west, the Brigantes in the now county Cork, and the same as the Mediterranean Momoniensis: or as Baxter says, what were the "woodland folk," or primitive stock of the Erigenæ, or real natives. Vydhieu, or Guydhieu, meaning woods. Others interpret Vydhieu as people living in woody places by the water-side, Ptolemy mentions a place called Vodie, which the Irish writers call Dergtenii, or Dergteachneagh, saying it means a woody habitation beside a lake, and comprised the southern coast of the county Cork.

But may not the Vodiæ have been one of the Phœnician tribes who settled in Ireland? In Phœnician "Bohodi" meant a congregated clan, or as you would say, "stop with me," "live with me:" hence bahad (Arabic) he stopped, or sojourned; and badi the origin of a race, or family. This is supported by the name of the country Dergteachneagh, probably abbreviated from Derc-teachin-agch, i.e., travellers, or strangers in a wilderness: from derc he walked; teachin, living, or lurking in a lonely place: and agah, he passed the night. Dergtenii may also be from the Phœnician; from derc-tenar, i.e., a rocky road; or derc-tenin, a road on which men or animals carry provisions, etc.

IX.—THE LUCANII.

Ptolemy also mentions the Lucanii or Luceni as an ancient people of Ireland; they are mentioned also by Orosius. Richard of Cirencester says they lived in the county Kerry near the bay of Dingle, once a town of considerable importance, with which the Spaniards held direct intercourse, building many private residences there, besides the parish church. Queen Elizabeth granted it a charter in 1585. The name Lucanii is thought to be composed of the two Irish words lugh-aneigh, i.e., the inhabitants of a district adjoining the sea, or a lake, marigene or sea-born. Baxter imagines that originally they were a colony of the Dumnonian Belgæ, and that they gave their name to the province of Lugenia, or Leinster, i.e., the land of the Lugeni; and in after times they advanced into the interior into Momonia, or the province of Munster. Others suppose that they were the Lugadii, who according to old Irish writers inhabited the South-western coasts from Waterford bay to Shannon's mouth. To the natives the name Lugadii was equivalent to "sliocht lugach macithy;" i.e., a maritime race dwelling by the water. But "sliocht" may be from the Phœnician "shlic" i.e., a neighbour: "slioght" in Irish means alliance, or kindred.

But Baxter says "aug," by the ancient Britons meant vater, and thus, the sea; while "geni," or eni, meant descent: and hence he infers that the Saxon pirates were called Lhoegyr, corruptly for Luguir, i.e., seamen; and from this he says comes the modern name of Anglia or England: lhuch in Britain signifying a lake, as loch (or lough) does in Ireland.

Dr. Villanueva, however, thinks he is nearer the true origin of this name by getting it from "lucus," a grove; and "slioght" from the Phœnician slocah, or sliocah, i.e., divinity. But the Luceni or Lucanii lived before the time of the Romans; and it would be incongruous to take as a parallel case the name of the Spanish city, Lucus, now Lugo, in the country of the Gallaici, which was so designated from those religious groves. Therefore, it, as well as Lucene, the name of a Phœnician town in Bœtia, may come from lushen, or leshen, a word of various significations, which however all apply to this people. 1st, it is a people or nation. 2nd, a difference of language or dialect (which we know prevailed among the tribes of Syria). The Ephratæi could not articulate the double letter, sh, which they pronounced in its single form S (see Jud. xii. The "Ephratæi," as they are called by Villanueva, were Hebrews, though in a sense a tribe of Syria, yet not Phœnicians). The Bœtians of Spain also pronounce S as Z; saying zabana for sabana. The Gallicians also differ from the other provinces of Spain, in pronunciation, and "many other peculiarities of language." The same thing is observable by every one in the idiom of his native country. In the 3rd place this word lushen, means a flame of fire, which points to their practice of worshipping fire in their sacred groves, in common with the Chaldeans, Persians, Medes, and other nations of Asia. At first this fire was worshipped as a symbol, or type of the Deity; gradually, from this commemoration, and may be, at first, innocent adoration (comparatively), it degenerated into actual worship of the element itself: which superstitious practice the Phœnicians introduced into Ireland, as they did into Spain and their other colonies.

But the Lucani having their settlement in Ireland, by the Notium Promontory (S.W. point, now Mizen Head), it is not unlikely that they had their name from that very fact, for lushen, or leshen in the Syriac, is a cape; or oblong and mountainous tongue of land jutting into the sea.

X.—THE LUGADII.

The name of the Lugadii may also be equivalent to that of allies, from luahin (Phœnician), i.e., union or association. Or from luch or lach, i.e., sturdy youths, valiant warriors, whence lucadin, the stormers of towns; and whence probably, laochd, which is Irish for an armed soldiery, as well as lugh, active, and luch a captive in battle. A usual affix to the names of many leading Irish families was laga, i.e., renown, or preeminent distinction, as Lughaidh-laigha. Richardson mentions a celebrated Arabian tribe called Legah, or Lukah, that never submitted to the dominion of a tyrant, or lost their liberty. It is not altogether improbable that the origin of this name may be found in the Irish word lughadh, which means the interposition of an oath, and therefore indicating their compactness as a social body; or in lughad, i.e., scantiness, as if they were only few; or, finally, in luchd a tribe or assemblage.

XI.—THE VOLUNTII.

The Voluntii, or Boluntii, mentioned by Ptolemy, were an ancient people of Ireland who took up their quarters in a part of the present county Down, which name Baxter thinks is a corruption for the land of the Voluntii; as also that the Britons called them Boluntii, from Bol, or Vol-unte, i.e., the farther head-land, or Vennicnium.

Others think it is degenerated from Ull-anteigh, i.e., the inhabitants of the county of Ull. But teigh in Irish is a house or shelter. Ull is indeed mentioned by Ptolemy as a district in Ireland, and called by Irish writers Ullagh, and also Ullad. This word some derive from Thuat-all-adh, a northern section of the county of Ull, formerly the modern province of Ulster, but afterwards circumscribed to the single county of Down. The old chroniclers and poets call the inhabitants of this tract Tuath de Danans, i.e., the northern people of intrepid bravery: for tuath in Irish means both a people, and the north; and dan, brave, intrepid.

Dr. Villanueva thinks Boluntii is of Phœnician origin, and probably derived from the quality of the ground, bolun (in Phœnician) meaning a glebe or gleby (turfy) land, as also fruit and the shoots of palm trees: or with even greater probability, it may be derived from the Phœnicians' superstitious worship, bolinthis, or belinthis signifying the sacrifice of he-goats to Baal, and bolintur his augurs or soothsayers. Akin to this is the gentile Spanish name of Boluntii or Bolonii, inhabitants of the old city of Bolona, built by the Phœnicians in the straits of Gibraltar, by the pillars of Hercules.

Digitized by Google

But "Ull" also may be of Phœnician origin, in which language it means fortitude; and hence el, brave, powerful, and also in Isa. xliv. 10, an idol. Ullagh may have the same origin; for "olagh" is Syriac for an idol, and "olaha," a goddess; by this latter the Phœnicians knew Diana of the Ephesians, as may be seen in the Syriac version of the Acts of the Apostles, xix. 37. The origin of tuath may not be positively denied as essentially Irish; but the word thohath, it should be noticed, in Phœnician, meant a low ground, or the skirt of a country, which agrees with the situation of Ulster, where the Voluntii lived, being surrounded almost on all sides by the sea.

XII.—THE BLANII, OR EBLANII.

Adjoining the Boluntii, in the east, the Blanii, or Eblanii, had settled. Their name has been derived from the Irish words ebb, or aobb, a region or tract, and lean, a harbour, evidently referring to their vicinity to the sea. From them the city of Dublin obtained its name of Eblanum, as Ptolemy gives it; and from it is derived that of Eblinii or Ebhleaneigh, i.e., inhabitants by the water-side. Other writers, however, place the Eblinii in the county Limerick, and derive the name from ebhluin, a mediterranean region, or one widely separated from the sea. We may not be far wrong in supposing both Blanii and Eblani are Celtic terms, as in that language the word ebelin, means a people, or habitation alongside a river. They may, however, be originally Phœnician, from eblin, i.e., uncultivated wilds; or hebelin, idols, whence is Ebelium, an ancient city in Celtiberia, on the site of which it is supposed that the town Ayerbe now stands. From the same origin may also come the name Blanes, another Spanish town of the Ilergetes on the Mediterranean coast, and called Eblanessa by Nubiensis in his geography, although some derive it from a Greek root balanos, i.e., an oak; or planes, a wanderer; while others again find it in the Celtic words, blaen-ess, i.e., a promontory in the water.

XIII.—THE ERDINII.

The Erdinii, another ancient people of Ireland, situated, according to Ptolemy in the northern promontory of Robogdium, now Donegal and Fermanagh, are called Hardinii by Richard of Cirencester. Some derive their name from the Irish, eir dunedh, i.e., a mountainous people, or inhabitants of mountains in the west; considering them identical with the Ernai, i.e., a western people, or rather the aboriginal natives of the soil; for Erin, used for Erie, is Ireland, as Erionnach is an Irishman.

Dr. Villanueva, however, thinks they were a haughty, overbearing Phœnician tribe who got their name from erdin, or eradin, i.e., Hectors, from rod, he domineered or bore haughty sway. This nation seems to have occupied several districts of Spain, which still retain their vestiges, as Ardines and Ardon amongst the Astures; Ardanne, and Ardanæ in Celtiberia; Ardanaz in Cantabria, and Ardon, and Ardona in Gallacia. Also it is very probable Ardinan, at the mouth of the river Ban, in Ulster, where they first introduced their colonies and Ardicnice, a village, derived their name from them: also Ardoyne, in county Wicklow, and Erinach in Ulster, celebrated for its well dedicated to St. Fionan. In the beginning of the 12th century a monastery was erected here and called Carrig, from an immense cliff adjoining: carriac in Irish is a rock, from the Phœnician carric, i.e., fortified. To the same origin may probably be referred Artane, the name of a delightful village in Leinster, although it may also be from Araa-tanar, i.e., stony or flinty ground, corresponding with the Irish arteine or artine, of the same signification.

(To be continued.)

On Monday, Nov. 14th, the Queen had reigned 50 years and 147 days, and she has thus exceeded the period during which Edward the Third was monarch.

PROPHETIC MEDALLION PORTRAIT OF ISRAEL IN THE CHRISTIAN ERA.

By W. H. Mason.

Scattered through the Scriptures we have many views or phases of Israel, which being all put together give such a portrait of the chosen, but temporarily outcast and lost nation, as cannot fail to lead to her identification by the earnest and candid enquirer. One Scripture however, is so remarkable and presents such striking features of the nation as to constitute of itself a portrait, a two-sided-medallion portrait of Israel, which is so unique as a national portrait as to be quite unmistakable, and certain, it would seem, of recognition when compared with the long missing original. The passage in question presents us with but two features of Israel, but they are so remarkable from their apparently antagonistic and utterly irreconcileable nature, that being found in any people anywhere, they must stamp that people as Israel, however unlikely such a conclusion would seem from all other considerations. On this account the term medallion portrait is chosen, for a medallion can give two separate and distinct views of an object, and so can exhibit these two most opposite phases of the national portrait. One phase of our medallion represents Israel as most peaceful, gentle and beneficent—a source of life and blessing to surrounding nations: the other exhibits her as fierce, warlike, irresistible, the ravager and destroyer of nations. Both these most opposite characteristics are moreover found in Israel at the same time, not one character succeeding the other. Israel is described as being at the same time life-giving and life-destroying to the nations! This is moreover to be Israel's character in the Christian Era. Therefore within the nineteen centuries fast drawing to a close, such a nation must have been seen in the world!

Let us look at the symbols by which these characteristics are represented. The obverse of our medallion shews us the gentle dew falling noiselessly, imperceptibly upon the parched Eastern landscape, infusing life, beauty and vigour into the withered blackened vegetation, changing death into life, blackness into beauty, and sterility into fruitfulness. The reverse presents us with a view of flocks of sheep worried and destroyed by a young lion against which the poor sheep have no protector. The Dew and the Lion both represent Israel, and Israel in the Christian era. This latter fact is evident from the context of our medallion passage. Now, that we may get a correct idea of what is meant by the dew and its influence, let us look at a passage which appears to fully explain the term. The Song of Moses, given in Deut. xxxii., supplies our need in the second verse with first clause of the third verse: "My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew, etc., because I will publish the name of the Lord."

Can we imagine any other reason than this, why God should compare Israel to dew upon the grass! Can anything be here meant besides the proclamation of the Gospel? Would not Israel be hereby fulfilling her covenant work as Abraham's seed, carrying the glad news of the seed, which is Christ, to all the nations and all the families of the earth? Would she not thus be fulfilling the purpose of her being as a nation; the end and aim of her calling, training and preservation as declared by Isaiah:—"This people have I formed for Myself, they shall shew forth My praise"? Yea, surely, and thus in truth would Israel be among the nations as dew from the Lord, carrying life and beauty and fertility to sin-blighted, withered and dying peoples.

Now let us look at the medallion. It is given in Micah v. On the obverse we have Israel thus described in verse 7:—"The remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many people as dew from the Lord; as showers upon the grass, that tarrieth not for man, nor waiteth for the sons of men."

On the reverse is given the following picture of the same nation:—"The remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles, in the midst of many peoples as a lion among the beasts of the forest, as a young lion among the flocks of sheep, who if he go through both treadeth down and teareth in pieces and none can deliver."

Digitized by Google

Examine these passages carefully; see what they really mean, and say if you would have thought it possible for one nation to bear at the same time such opposite characters. Yet many long years before Israel went into captivity to Assyria the prophet declared that in the far distant future these should be Israel's characteristics.

When Micah thus described Israel of the then future, she promised to be among the nations anything but life giving! That she should ever proclaim the name of the Lord to the blessing of the nations, seemed the most unlikely thing possible. She was then entirely given up to idolatry, and had utterly repudiated the service of Jehovah. More than 200 years had elapsed since Jeroboam set up the worship of the calves at Bethel and Dan, and but about thirty years of grace were yet to be allowed the wicked and obstinately impenitent nation, before they were for this very thing cast out of their own land and sent forth to serve strangers in a strange land. From Ezekiel xx. we learn further that they were obstinately determined, even after this heavy punishment, to cling to their dearly-loved idol worship, in spite of all the efforts of God by His prophets to reclaim them. How unlikely then was Israel to be "as dew from the Lord among many peoples." Nor were they any more likely to be as a lion among the flocks of sheep, among many nations, for they were now being brought very low, and just at this very time the king of Assyria carried away a great portion of the people into that captivity from which they never returned. Yet were they to be among many people as "dew from the Lord," and at the same time as "a young lion among the flocks of sheep." When should this be? The immediate context shews that it should be after their deliverance from Assyria, and the earlier part of the chapter shows that it must be after the birth of Christ, and the return of Benjamin to his brethren, the House of Israel, while many scriptures shew that it cannot be after the Return. These most unlikely and remarkable traits must then be found in Israel in the period between the Assyrian captivity and the yet future Return, now probably not very distant.

Is it possible for such a nation to be playing such a part in the world, and yet be hidden, unseen and unknown? Surely not! Where then has been or is seen this wonderful all-conquering and at the same time life-giving nation? Where is the nation whose hesitating military character is so aptly described by that expressive "if,"—"if he go through." That is to say, when he is in earnest he is irresistible, as a lion among sheep, but he is not always in earnest, and therefore his vacillation affects his invincibility. Have you read of such a nation during the Christian centuries? Is there such a nation in existence now? If there has been or is such a nation, and only one such, surely that must be Israel, however unlikely the case may otherwise appear.

Let us look a little more closely at our portrait and see distinctly who is therein delineated:—"The remnant of Jacob." Who is here meant? Is it Judah; the Jews? If it is we must at once admit that the prophecy has failed of fulfilment, for since the prophet spake, even until now, we know the history of the Jews, and know well that neither of the figures apply in any degree to them, at any period of their history, though an attempt has been made to apply these passages to the Maccabees. Are they however alluded to by this title, "the remnant of Jacob"? The title must surely belong to Jacob's heir! Was that Judah? No; Judah was not the firstborn, therefore not heir on that account. Was he then chosen and appointed heir as Jacob himself in preference to his elder brother Esau, as Isaac before Ishmael, or as Abraham before his brethren? No. 1 Chron. v. 1, 2, tells us distinctly that he was not, though he should be the progenitor of the chief ruler. The heir, however, we are told, was to be Joseph, and after him his second son Ephraim, with a portion of the birthright to Manasseh the eldest son of Joseph; these two in this order having been indeed adopted by Jacob under Divine inspiration as related in Gen. xlviii.

We need not then look to the Jews, or try to trace in them the outlines of our medallion portrait. The remnant of Jacob must be the descendants of Ephraim, the Divinely-appointed firstborn or heir, and perhaps of his partial fellow-heir, Manasseh. As Ephraim became head of Ten-Tribed Israel, who was led captive to Assyria, we must look for them if we would find the "Remnant of Jacob." This people must also have been reduced to "a remnant" before they exhibit the features of our portrait, but we are not therefore to expect them to remain a remnant, few and feeble. From the remnant must arise a people whose future must exhibit the features of our portrait, and who must therefore of necessity have become a numerous and great people, even as other scriptures declare Israel was to become, and as is indeed declared of Ephraim and Manasseh by the dying Jacob, "Let them increase as fishes do increase." Not then the few and feeble Jews, but "the remnant" of Israel, become a great people, shall be the dew and the lion of our medallion. This too must be in the Christian age. Verse 2 is the passage quoted to Herod by the Scribes as indicating the birth of the Messiah, and the following verse tells us that in spite of this gracious purpose and promise of Jehovah to send the Messiah, He would yet give His people up till the birth of the Messiah. Then the long separated brethren of Israel,—the tribe of Benjamin—should return to their own House and brethren of Israel, and that nation, in the strength of the Lord his God, should become great unto the ends of the earth and become to many nations as a dew from the Lord: as a young lion among the flocks of sheep, being themselves delivered from their idolatries, and fully reconciled to their God, who alone should henceforth be their strength and their confidence. Where then is this people? Has there ever been such a one? There is a nation in the West which came from the East, from the very country about the Caspian Sea where Israel was captive. They were a people few in number when they left the East and though they afterwards greatly increased their numbers, yet at the period of their early settlement in their present home they were again but few in number, a real remnant. They were gross heathen, and remained such for centuries, but at length were brought under the power of the Gospel—the bond of the covenant, as Ezekiel expresses it. They became in later days a missionary people, carrying the Gospel to all parts of the world, yet were they also a warlike people, actually realising the "if" of the prophet. "If he go through;" if he be in earnest, he is invincible, irresistible, ever victorious. Thus is found a people bearing the very remarkable characteristics of Micah's prophetic medallion portrait of Israel in the Christian era. Are not the two peoples, then, one and the same? Is not Israel England, and England Israel? England, and England alone, among nations ancient or modern, bears the features of Micah's Israel—she alone by her missionary agency "proclaiming the name of the Lord" to many nations and peoples as dew from the Lord, as showers upon the grass, carrying life and fertility to the dying sin-withered nations; making the barren deserts to bud and blossom as the rose: she alone among nations is at the same time like a lion among the beasts of the forest; like a young lion among the flocks of sheep: she alone among nations is at once to many peoples life-giving by the Gospel, and death-dealing by her sword: she alone bears the most opposite and antagonistic features of Micah's medallion portrait of Israel in the Christian age, and therefore Israel she must be, and therefore heir she must be of Israel's most glorious future, as declared by the prophets of Jehovah, the God of Israel.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRET OF ISRAEL'S "COLOSSAL WEALTH" AND OF HER "COLOSSAL POWER."

LORD RANDOLPH CHURCHILL, when speaking at Newcastle-on-Tyne, on Oct. 22nd, told his audience what, in his opinion, was "the secret of the colossal wealth and the colossal power of the British Empire." He admitted that the wealth of this country was stupendous, and its power colossal; but added that if certain things happen and certain things are not done by the Government in power at the moment—then "the sun of British prosperity, of British wealth, of British commercial greatness, will depart, set, and rapidly decline!"

This is a very serious matter indeed, of course; and if Lord Randolph Churchill be correct, the poor British nation, which has existed for a thousand years, and for the last 200 years has been rapidly growing in all ways, has only a short time to live! The point on which his lordship took his stand was the imminent outburst of the revolutionary principle, which he sees is ready to escape from all control, and submerge the State in one devastating flood of ruin. This ruin, he thinks, will hurt the masses, but not the "classes." For the "classes" have the money, and will take wings and fly away with their capital, beyond the reach of the devastating storm. The working men alone who have no capital, but have households, and families, and children to feed and preserve, will be the sufferers. The repeal of the Union, the speaker believed, would be the signal for the outburst which would destroy our Commonwealth. He thought "our exuberant wealth, our bounding and swelling prosperity in times not long ago, our rapid annexations of territory and acquisitions of Empire, our measureless commerce, our proud marine, have blunted the perceptions and dulled the energies of our race," and have led us to believe that we may lightly acquiesce in any political experiment, any organic change." And then he went on to make the following remarkable observations:—

Yet surely there are moments when we must realise that England, surrounded as she is by mighty States disposing of colossal armies, is not invulnerable, that her resources are not inexhaustible, and that there is no certainty that her Empire should endure for ever and for aye. Other Empires, as wide and great as ours, have waxed and waned and faded away; other States as powerful and as wealthy as ours, have risen and have sunk into the ocean of the past, and it may be that the time is inscribed upon the book of fate when the busy marts, the crowded streets, the bustling factories of this living city shall be as desolate as the ruins of Thebes, as silent and as mournful as the courts of the palaces of the Mogul. Who will dare pronounce? But of this I am sure and certain, that if such is the inevitable fate of our Empire, history will unerringly decide that the knell of our glory and might was earliest tolled on the day when the people relaxed their firm grip of the noble principle of the Union, and feebly and fatally followed the broad and downward path of separation; on the day when popular cowardice was substituted for civic courage; when surrender to rebellion, treason, and sedition was disguised under the specious pretexts of concession, conciliation, philanthropy, and the rights of man; when order, law, and loyalty and authority were no longer the watchwords of the community, no longer the bulwarks of the State. (Cheers.) It may be neither right nor wise nor profitable thus to speculate upon or pry into the mysteries of the future, but should these anticipations, founded upon the mutability of institutions and the spirit of decay which pervades all human arrangements, not wander far from actual eventuality, then I am confident that it will also be recorded that the Unionist party will have striven hard and long and to the last to avert the doom, and that they will be innocent and guiltless of all responsibility for a calamity which will shock mankind and change the world itself." (Loud and prolonged cheers.)

So far his lordship. They were bold and noble words he spoke; words worthy of a statesman of high degree. But there was error lurking in them notwithstanding, which deprived him of the comfort he might have had, had he known that, being Israel, the British people cannot perish; for mutability and the spirit of decay cannot be written on our institutions and on our State, because we have the guarantee of God Himself that "His people Israel He has established to Himself to be a people to Him for ever," while "He became their God" (2 Sam. vii. 24, R.V.).

Lord R. Churchill tells us that there is "no certainty that our Empire is to endure for ever and for aye!" We tell him on the authority of the Word of the living God, that that is just the very thing God has assured us shall be the case, because the British are Israel (2 Sam. vii. 24, R.V.). Because other Empires have waxed and waned and faded away, though they were rich and powerful as we now are, and yet have gone into dust, it does not follow that the British must do the same! The former were not Israel. We are. To us and to our children belong promises they never had; and, therefore, they are no more! To us is promised "the kingdom and dominion and the greatness of the kingdoms, under the whole heaven." Guided by our great, celestial King, the Lord Jesus Christ, our adorable Redeemer, we know that for the kingdom of which He is the Head there shall be no end (Dan. vii. 27, R.V.). It is "an everlasting kingdom," and, therefore, one which never, never can decay. Ours is that kingdom of this great King, and we are His people, He our God.

Lord Randolph in one respect, however, is perfectly correct. If the Union could be broken between Great Britain and Ireland, then might we doubt the truth of Our Identity, and the genuineness of our Holy Book, as well as the existence of our Almighty God. Thank God, the Union cannot be broken, because "The Isles" are Israel's, and we cannot, according to the Scriptures, lose any of those possessions the Lord our God has given to His people. It follows, then, that our Empire, wide and great as it is, our colossal wealth and our colossal power, too, being God-given and God-protected, because we are His chosen ones, His heritage and inheritance, will not only never wane, and never decay, but will increase more and more till the whole earth will become one mighty British Empire, the Empire of the great King, who is the Lord of hosts, our Jehovah-Jesus.

Deprived of the knowledge and hopes given by Our Identity, we can see how even Lord Randolph Churchill becomes, perforce, a pessimist of the darkest hue; looking forward to his nation's ruin and destruction, without apparently any hope to sustain him under the terrible anticipation of the coming desolation of his country. But this nation is in the keeping of the Lord God of Israel. He ever dwells among us. His Christ is always with us. His Holy Spirit never leaves us, for this is the "chosen nation," led, guided, guarded, and blessed by the Lord their God, who made, created, fashioned, and formed them for Himself, that they might shew forth His praise (Exod. xxix. 45, 46; Matt. xxviii. 19, 20; Haggai ii. 5; Isa. xliii. 1, 7, 21). His lordship has no such consolation as this, and therefore anticipates all sorts of troubles for his country because he fears the Union is about to be ruptured, and the British Empire, which men are trying to cement in the Colonies, is sure to be broken in two at head-quarters. Surely the God who gave us the Colonies, and is about to grant us a federated "company of nations" for our outlying Empire, can be trusted to prevent a breach of the United Kingdom at home, especially when there is a solid majority of 100 in the House of Commons to defeat the Gladstonian projects, and such men as Lord Salisbury, Lord Hartington, Mr. J. Chamberlain, Mr. John Bright, and such as they, are standing shoulder to shoulder, to carry out the will of God! Men are but "pawns" in the Hand of the King of Israel, and He is pledged to preserve His people's interests in the future, as He has faithfully done in the time that is past! Let Israel, therefore, praise His holy Name!

THE ANGLO-ISRAEL ALMANACK AND DIARY for 1888 will be ready for publication on Monday, Nov. 28th, and should be ordered with next week's BANNER OF ISRAEL.

Digitized by Google

Review.

The Sabbath: With Special Reference to the Operations of the Sunday League. By William Spouse. Price 6d. Dover: Standard Office, 17, Snargate-street.

THE pamphlet which bears the above title, and is written by Mr. W. Spouse, has been long on our hands, but unfortunately has not yet found notice in the BANNER. We regret the fact, and trust that the importance of the subject, and the excellent manner in which the author has treated it, will induce many to peruse the work as treating of a matter which bears closely on "Our Identity" with the Ten Tribes. The Sabbath is, indeed, "a sign between the Lord and the children of Israel for ever," and Mr. Spouse, to emphasise the fact, has adopted Exod. xxxi. 17 as his text, and placed it at the head of his title-page. Mr. Spouse, we need not say, is an ardent believer in our Israelitish origin, but he also evidently has some fear lest the enemy of our race may succeed in robbing us of our Day of Sabbath Rest. When he says that the solemn obligation of "observing one day in seven as a day of holy rest and holy work to God's honour is the duty, the right, and the sacred privilege of all men" (page 5), we are not sure we can go so far with the writer. As a fact, the great mass of the heathen and European world as well, do not honour God's holy day, and God has not enjoined it on them as a "duty, right, or sacred privilege," since He gave it to Israel at Sinai and enjoined it on them exclusively as "a sign," and that for ever. When these alien nations accept Christ, and join themselves to Israel, then do they participate in Israel's privileges, and enjoy with her the Sabbath of the Lord, which they may receive as part of His gracious gifts to "the men of His good pleasure" in Christ.

Mr. Spouse admits this in some measure on page 7, where he says "Sabbaths are privileges; they are signs of our being God's people Israel" (Ezek. xx. 12). In speaking of those who ignore these facts, our author mentions the case of the Rev. W. Rogers, M.A., rector of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate, who strongly advocates the opening of museums to working-men on Sundays. Mr. Spouse answers him thus (page 7): "The Sabbath was given by the Lord to His people as a sign throughout all generations. It is one which is monopolised by the Jews and Anglo-Saxons only, identifying, yet separating them from each other as Hebrews of the two Houses. Judah keeps hers on the seventh day. The British-Ephraimites and American Manassaites on the first, or Christian, holy day. But the Gentiles have not the sign, not being Israel. The Lord has not put on them the obligation to keep the day holy. When they come under the Gospel of Christ, it is their privilege to use the day as one of holy rest; but even in this respect we see that they keep it much less strictly than do the British-Israelites. The most rigid Sabbatarians of Germany have no reverence for the Sabbath sign. Their laws do not enforce its observance. They deny its binding character on their nation. The Protestant Continent thinks its duty is done when only half the day is kept holy to the Lord. Gentile Christians give the Lord half the day, and use the rest for themselves. The institution was not given to them as it was to Israel as a binding obligation, but these lose national, personal, spiritual benefit by using the holy day as they do. Wherever, therefore, we see a people keeping Sabbath nationally, there we know Israel is; but it is not so when we find distinct dishonour of the Sabbath and forgetfulness of the Sabbath sign; and what God said regarding it (Exod. xxxi. 13, 17), "The children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath," is God's unfailing decree, "and they shall keep it (He adds) as His sign throughout their generations." The above are our own sentiments, and we heartily approve them; but we hardly see how they accord with the opening of the pamphlet (p. 5) in respect of the universality of the obligation of Sabbath-keeping.

To those who complain that the British method of keeping Sabbath is dull and miserable, our author has a good answer on page 9: "If the day which commemorates the resurrection of our most loving Saviour from the grave is a miserable and dull day, if passed in thinking of Him, reading and hearing about Him, worshipping, serving, and honouring Him, who has died for our sins, and has redeemed us from everlasting woe at such a price, then how utterly unbearable would the life of heaven be to such persons." . . "It is better for us to come under the reproaches of men for keeping the Sabbath rather than under the holy anger of God for despising it." In spite of the light which Mr. Spouse has in regard to the certainty that this nation is Israel, and sure, therefore, to exhibit the sign of the Sabbath, he ever and anon goes back to his fears that we shall as a nation drop it! Thus, on page 11, he argues that having the Sabbath and the Bible as God's good gifts, "shall we turn away from the divine precept, and make it a day of pleasure-seeking? Would it not be distinctly contrary to the mind of God? Could we, as a people and nation, expect a blessing to rest upon us if we by Act of Parliament deliberately dishonour the Fourth Commandment, repudiating the divine law to keep holy His day?" Our answer to Mr. Spouse is that the thing is impossible, and he ought to know it! We cannot repudiate our origin, and we cannot depart from God's will, which declares that the Sabbath we shall and must keep!

Much of Mr. Spouse's pamphlet is occupied in fighting a creation of his own imagination, which pictures to him that the British, in spite of their Identity with the House of Israel, are possibly about to falsify their Creator's design, and cease to keep that sign as sacred, which He has declared, not twice nor thrice, they shall exhibit to the world for evermore! Here is Mr. Spouse's weak point. He must not argue this matter as an Anglo-Israelite, and yet give up that vantage point and discuss it in the moral, political, and religious aspect of the question quite independently of our Israelitish origin! Our Hebrew origin guarantees our perpetual observance of the Sabbath! But our author constantly relinquishes this point, and urges his opponents to consider how dangerous and miserable the (impossible) result would be if we ceased to keep the Sabbath, and thus ceased to be Israel too. We like Mr. Spouse best when he takes courage, as he does on page 38, and cries out in tones of triumph, "We have no fear! This nation being Israel, and by God's solemn promise and arrangement recorded in Exod. xii. 17, we are certain the Continental Sabbath never will be adopted by this chosen race, but that they will always, as now, be the only nation in the world where the Sabbath-day is observed nationally and by law." Such being the case, why the terrors expressed by the author, even in the very same page as the above? There he contemplates the judgments which will fall on "that nation, which, in full blaze of Scriptural light, chooses for itself darkness," meaning, we presume, our own land when it fails to keep holy the Sabbath-day according to the Commandment. The "poem" at the end of the pamphlet on "The Man of Sorrows and Victory," might, we think, have profitably been omitted.

Correspondence.

A WONDERFUL RELIC.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—It is not difficult to imagine a doubter as to Anglo-Israelism saying, "Show me some tangible proof of the connection of any of the alleged descendants of the Lost Ten Tribes with those Tribes in Captivity."

To such an one I should reply, 'Go and consider, as I have recently done, a relic preserved amongst the treasures at York Minster, and called the Horn of Ulphus."

We are told, as we may also read, that when Ulphus, prince of Deira, in the seventh century conveyed all his lands and revenues to the Cathedral, he drank the sacramental wine out of this horn, which he thereupon also presented in token of his gift.

Some of the Cathedral property on the West side of York is to this day held by this horn, just as in some copyhold manors lands are held by the rod, by a mote of straw, &c., and such has been the estimation with which it has been regarded that when the minster was rebuilt in the thirteenth century a massive representation of the relic was conspicuously carved on one of the spandrils of the choir arches.

Now, of what does this sacred token consist? It is formed of an entire tusk of an animal indigenous—to what portion of the globe?—to Asia. Its larger end is girt round with a gold band, and enriched with embossed figures—of what?—of winged lions, exactly resembling those on the Nineveh marbles and other Assyrian remains.

The relic is known to be as old as the seventh century of the Christian Era; but may it not be very many centuries older even than that? Ulphus evidently held it in great veneration, for he thought it an appropriate symbol of his solemn gift to the Church. It may of course have got into the hands of the Saxons of Deira, from any one of many imaginable sources. What I suggest is, that the ancestors of that Tribe of Saxons brought it with them in their wanderings Westward from the land of their Assyrian Captivity.—Yours faithfully, E. B.

Whitby, September 4th, 1887.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies " " " 1 0 4
Four Copies " " " 1 5 6
Six Copies " " " 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

A LECTURE will be Delivered in the ASSOCIATION ROOMS, 14, King William-street, Charing Cross, W.C., on THURSDAY EVENING NEXT, November 24, 1887, at 7.30 o'clock, by Mr. JOHN S. LOWE. Subject: "The Holy Land." Strangers will be made welcome.

JAMES BILLINGTON, Sec.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

THE BIBLE READINGS

are held

EVERY TUESDAY AFTERNOON,

At 3.30, in the Library of the Association, 14, King William Street, Charing Cross, W.C. All friends are invited.

The Annual Meeting of the British Israel Identity Association to be held on

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 1,

In the Association Rooms, 24, Newington, off Renshaw Street, Liverpool.

Chair to be taken at 7.30. E. LYON, Hon. Sec.

READY NOVEMBER 28.

Price 3d.; Interleaved with Ruled Paper, 5d.; Cloth bound, gilt lettered, marbled edges, 1s.; by post 4d., 6d., and 1s.

THE

ANGLO-ISRAEL ALMANACK

AND DIARY

FOR 1888.

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, and all Booksellers.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

An Elementary Digest or Sketch of the Chief Facts and Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Adapted to the Unlearned and Unscientific 56 pages, Illustrated with Diagrams, price 4d., post free 5d. 10th Thousand.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

Ready at Advent. Price 6d., by post 6½d.

Old Dogmas From New Aspects.

By V. F. A. H.

Contents: 1. The Apostolic Succession. 2. The Apostle Peter. 3. The Successor of Judas Iscariot. 4. The Athanasian Creed. 5. The Trinity. 6. Eternal Punishment. 7. The Great Tribulation. 8. The Great White Throne. 9. The Atonement of Jesus Christ.

H. E. Hill, 60, Nevill-road, Stoke Newington, London.

Just Published, crown 8vo., elegantly bound in cloth price 3s. 6d.

BRITAIN in HISTORY:

ANCIENT AND MODERN.

Or, Proofs Linking Israel with Britain Throughout the Ages.

BY MRS. G. A. ROGERS,

Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

London: J. NISBET & Co., 21, Berners-street, W.; ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, who will send a copy free by post on receipt of P.O.; and to be had of all Booksellers.

Just published, demy 8vo., 66 pp., in tinted wrapper, price 6d., by post 7d.

THE BRITISH NATION

PROVED TO BE THE REMNANT OF ISRAEL,

AND THE

REPRESENTATIVES OF THE LOST TRIBES.

BY J. H. WELDON, J.P.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

30,000 BEDS SOLD IN SEVEN YEARS

NEWHAM'S CELEBRATED LINCOLNSHIRE FEATHER BEDS.

THE CHEAPEST FEATHER BEDS IN THE WORLD.

Direct from Boston, Lincolnshire.

No. 1. SINGLE BED, BOLSTER, and PILLOW, 6 ft. 3 in. by 3 ft. 6 in., weighing 40 lb. 30/0

No. 2. DOUBLE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6 ft. 6 in. by 4 ft. 6 in. weighing 50 lb. 37/6

No. 3. DOUBLE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6 ft. 6 in. by 4 ft. 6 in., weighing 55 lb... .. 41/3

No. 4. EXTRA SIZE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6 ft. 6 in. by 5 ft., weighing 65 lb. .. 48/9

WARRANTED NEW AND SWEET.

Any sized Bed only 9d. per lb., including Feathers, in Strong Union (bordered) Tick, making, packing, wrapper, and Carriage Paid to any Station in the United Kingdom.

SUPERIOR BEDS, Splendid Feathers, Linen Tick, 1s. per lb.

Samples of Feathers and Ticks, Price Lists, &c. post-free.

For the convenience of Purchasers we have opened a Branch Establishment at 178, Strand, London.

All orders must be accompanied by Cheque or P.O.O. (which, as security to purchasers, may be post dated ten days) payable to

NEWHAM & CO., Boston, Lincolnshire,

or to THOS. SMITH, 178, STRAND, LONDON,

where Goods and Samples can be seen and obtained.

Feathers only 9d. per lb. The trade supplied. Please mention this paper. A great reduction on three or more beds.

LADIES! We will send a full dress length of beautiful cloth, in any of the following colours, carriage paid to any address, for 10s. 6d. Colours—Black, blue, fawn, ruby, claret, green, slate, grenat, brown, grey, navy, tabac, bronze, reseda, gold, myrtle, &c. These Wonderful Dress Lengths have gained a world-wide reputation for Magnificence, Cheapness, and Durability. Thousands have been sold, and repeat orders and testimonials received. Ladies should write for patterns, which may be had free and need not be returned.

GRAND CHRISTMAS PRESENTS. We will give a very handsome Brocaded Silk Handkerchief with each dress length ordered before December 31.

LUTAS B. LEATHLEY, Armley, Leeds.

FOR ONE WEEK ONLY.

5,000 SETS OF BEST SHEFFIELD STEEL CARVING KNIVES & FORKS

White or Buckthorn Handles. Extra Finish.

GIVEN AWAY. TO BE GIVEN AWAY. GIVEN AWAY.

10,000 GOVERNMENT HEARTHRUGS.

6ft. long. 3ft. wide. Exquisite designs—viz., Fern and Oak Leaves, Flowers, Grape Vine, Cat and Kittens, Lion, Tigers, Horses, Dogs, and Deer. Suitable for dining or drawing-room, parlour, bedroom or kitchen. Selling in thousands, 2s. 6d., or 32 stamps, or two for 4s. 6d., or, with Heavy Linoleum Backs, 3s. 6d. each, or two for 6s. 6d.

SPECIAL OFFER.—1,000 Pure Silk Handkerchiefs, all colours, large size, One Shilling each or 14 stamps, three for 2s. 9d. Sent free to any part of the Country.

SHEFFIELD STEEL CARVING KNIFE and FORK COUPON. B. of I.

One Set of Best Steel Carving Knife and Fork will be presented to every purchaser of a Hearthrug this week. Signed,

BE IN TIME. J. WATTS.

J. WATTS, 113, BRUNSWICK ROAD, LIVERPOOL.

LUNG TONIC

SAVE YOUR LIVES BY TAKING

OWBRIDGE'S LUNG TONIC

THE MIGHTY HEALER.

It has a power over disease hitherto unknown in Medicine.

Are you at all Weak-chested or inclined to be Consumptive, with just a touch of Cough now and then?

"Try this Wonderful Medicine." The Cough and Weakness will disappear as if by magic, and you will feel a strength and power you never had before.

HAVE YOU A COUGH?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT!
HAVE YOU A COLD?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Bronchitis & Asthma it relieves instantly

The Spasms of Coughing so dreadful in Whooping Cough become less with each dose of the medicine.

Prepared by W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull

Sold in Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s. by all Chemists and Patent Medicine Vendors. Wholesale all London and Provincial Houses.

CARBOLINE

1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.

Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved.

DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.

Makers:

GEORGE & WELCH

CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,

Who will forward Free of Postage.

ETHELINE

A New and most Effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

HUMAN LIFE.—FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles, and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 50 pages. SENT FREE to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON B. MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C. Write to-day.

PRICE 21s., POST FREE. HARNESS' WILL LAST FOR YEARS.

ELECTROPATHIC BELT.

An agreeable, natural, and certain remedy for

Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Nervous Affections Sleeplessness, Paralysis, Indigestion, Constipation, Liver and Kidney Disorders, Ladies' Ailments, &c.

SEND POSTAL ORDER OR CHEQUE FOR 21s. FOR AN Electropathic Belt (post free), and you will have an effectual and marvellous remedy always at hand. Harness' Electropathic Belt promotes Health, Strength, and Energy.

Thousands of Testimonials received. Write for copies or call and see the originals.

Pamphlet and advice free of charge.

The Medical Battery Company, Limited,

52, OXFORD ST., LONDON, W.

Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, NOV. 23, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 570. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1887. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
Madagascar and French Commerce	477
Our Fatal Policy of Shilly-Shally	478
"The Sceptre Shall not Depart from Judah till Shiloh Come"	479
Tithes and Disestablishment in Wales	480
London in the Jubilee Season—1887. By J. Rutter	481
The Throne of David	482
Progress in Cheltenham. Contributed by Surgeon-General Grant	482
Correspondence	482

MADAGASCAR AND FRENCH COMMERCE.

THE French lately made war on Madagascar, and obtained what was believed to be a brilliant victory in every sense of the word. They were to be the protectors of the island, all its foreign relations were to be managed by them, and it was hoped that they would secure the monopoly of the Malagasy trade. These fruits of the so-called victory have not been attained. Foreign nations have refused to acknowledge the claims of the French to approve of the appointment of Consuls before they could appear before the Malagasy Queen with their credentials. The British, supported by the Germans and Italians, refused this demand made by France, and the result of the contention just announced has been that France has waived her claims. The Protectorate, in the sense the French understood it, will not stand the test of practical politics, and of course had to be abandoned. But what other advantage have the French reaped from their long and expensive contention with the Hovas? Have they secured a monopoly of the commerce of the island? On the contrary the British have that! They have sixty per cent. of the trade, and their only formidable rivals are not the French but the Americans, in some article such as cheap cotton stuff. These facts are reported by Mr. Haggard, the British Consul at Tamatave, and can be depended on. How is it that the French, whose military success should have secured to them the commercial supremacy have failed in Madagascar as they have failed in Tonquin to retain the first rank in the trade advantages of the places they have conquered? Their flag is there supreme. Why does not trade follow the flag, as with us? It is not for lack of will on the part of the French, for they do all they can to exclude foreign nations from trading with those over whom they have secured influence by arms. Not so the British! Regarding their policy the Standard said justly on August, 25th:—

No Englishman is likely to lose sight of the fact that this country has possessed itself of some of the fairest and most valuable regions of the earth, or to forget that only within the past twelve months we have added to our already colossal Empire a province so large, and so rich, and so important as Upper Burmah. But wherever the English Flag is planted—though it represents the paramount authority of the English Crown—instead of securing to Englishmen the sole and exclusive material advantages incidental to conquest, it at once offers to share these with the whole world. France pursues a different policy, and her proceedings, therefore, are watched with a jealous scrutiny by other nations, from which the annexations of this country are exempt. Even Russia is not more careful in retaining for herself, and for herself alone the material benefits of territorial aggrandisement. Exclusive tariffs are at once established for the benefit of French commerce, and the first and most lasting thought of the conquerors is how to prevent any but themselves from trading with the conquered

France in fact expends her money and the lives of her sons to enrich the British. So it was in India, so in the Mauritius, in Canada, now in Egypt, and so finally in Tonquin and Madagascar, where British trade is grandly in the ascendant, but French commerce is small and sinking. The fact is France does not really want these places, in which she is now striving to establish herself, as commercial centres, but as military Gates; and the French covet these spots, not to interfere with our trade so much as to use them as military and naval posts, whence they may harass our trade and paralyse it whenever war may break out between the two nations. This we believe to be at the bottom of the intense desire the French evince to secure the New Hebrides as a military post in a position to threaten the coasts of Australia in time of war. They want in short to pose as Gate-holders before the world, and thus to emulate the power of the God-appointed nation to whom the Gates of the earth were given. The Australians see through this clearly, and therefore resist in every way they can the attempts the French are making to secure these Islands, where already they have troops and resolutely refused, till lately, to direct them to depart. The French, however, have failed to calculate their powers, and know not against whom they propose to measure their strength. Hitherto everything has been against them, and they never have succeeded against God and His people Israel combined. India was witness to that where once that country was at their feet, but they could not hold it against a handful of Israel! Canada and the Mauritius and Egypt are all witness to that! Israel backed by the power of God, is more than a match for the French! They went to enormous expense to create the Suez Canal, but it becomes virtually a British possession. They conquered Tonquin by vast efforts, but it was only to increase the volume of British trade. They conquered the Hovas, thinking they could secure thereby the Island of Madagascar, as we have secured India. But disappointment meets them. The Protectorate turns out to be of no value, and the trade does not follow the French flag, but Israel's!

Digitized by Google

The French, further, in their vain pursuit after the Gates, altogether miscalculate their ability to constitute them coaling stations. For East of Suez where would the French get the coal to store in Madagascar, Tonquin, and the other places on which they have set their hearts, such as the New Hebrides? The stores for coal are in Europe; mostly, as regards steam coal, in Wales. How are the French coal ships to get to Madagascar in case they are at war with the British nation? By the Red Sea? Nay; the keys or Gates of that sea are in British hands at the Suez Canal, Perim, Aden, and Socotra! By the Cape route? Then must France fight her way to the East past Gibraltar, St. Helena, Cape Town, and Simon's Bay, and the Mauritius, all British Gates; and what hope would there be for her coal fleets if they had to run the gauntlet of such attacks? Here we see the value of the Gates, and what a splendid gift God gave His people when He bestowed upon them these strategic places, which already, in our own modern times of steam navigation and ironclads, make Britain the mistress of the seas, to God's glory, and to her own safety and well-being. To Him be all our praise!

"OUR FATAL POLICY OF SHILLY-SHALLY."

THESE words aptly describe our doings in Zululand, and they were used by the Times on November 8 to describe them. We have acted, and retreated; decided, and reversed our decision; fought, and withdrawn from the consequences of our victories. How we have ever survived in South Africa as a Power to be respected is matter for wonder, and why we have conducted ourselves there as we have done is a question that hardly admits of an answer which can satisfy the reason. Our policy with respect to the Zulus has been what the Times called a "melancholy" one, "full of reproach." We went to war with Cetywayo for a right and lawful purpose as we believe, and when we conquered him we failed to give his country peace. To get rid of a troublesome and expensive burden we resolved to restore the captive king to his throne, such as it was, and left him to realise that it was but a shadow of his former one. We did worse. We left him to encounter civil war, and in that war he lost his life. But his country went from bad to worse. "Shilly-shally" still dogged our footsteps. When the party of the dead king called in the Boers of the Transvaal and the Free States to come in and help them, and the Boers demanded land as their pay, the Zulus signed away their rights over large tracts of Zululand, and lost their territory accordingly. We have now at their request delivered a portion from the jaws of the lion and annexed the recovered portion to the Queen's Empire, with the Zulus' consent; but the latter, trusting to our "policy of shilly-shally," seem inclined, as far as Dinizulu (Cetywayo's son) is concerned, to pick a quarrel with us because we respected the Boers' rights and failed to make them disgorge all the land the Zulus themselves ceded to them in their extremity. Whether we shall venture to retain the protectorate of Eastern Zululand or maintain the annexation, would be a matter of great uncertainty if Mr. Gladstone were to come again into power. We hope the present Government of the Queen is made of sterner stuff, and will not again indulge in a policy of "shilly-shally" in order to enjoy the pleasures of a quiet life. But if we do, we can foresee that the vacillation will cost us dear, for we shall have, after all, to recover Zululand by force of arms, and teach a lesson to the Boers which they will not forget.

Mr. W. H. Mason, in his paper on "The Prophetic Medallion Portrait of Israel in the Christian Era" (BANNER, p. 472) has shown us that Israel's hesitating military character is described in Micah v. 8. "If he go through," shows that he is not always in earnest. Sometimes he acts as if he were uncertain what to do, and consequently vacillates and temporises. When he does so he fails. "If he go through, he both treadeth down and teareth in pieces, and there is none to deliver." The same sort of strange vacillation seems to have haunted the Government of the day in their treatment of the few thousand London roughs who have constantly held seditious meetings of their own sweet will in Trafalgar-square, during the busiest parts of every day for weeks, have occupied the most crowded thoroughfares of London in defiance of the lawful rights of a million peaceful law-abiding citizens, and on the Sabbath have invaded the sacred precincts of the nation's Abbey Church during divine service, and defiled its walls unspeakably. Yet all the sign the Government of Israel made, for weeks, with a military expert at the head of the police, has been to accompany the mobs of murderous roughs wherever they chose to drag them. One day they allowed them to march, the next clubbed them for so doing; one day they allowed them to defile Nelson's monument by making it a pulpit for their filthy speeches, and the next hurled them down from their platform for so doing! Israel feared "to go through" with the London mob, as she feared to "go through" with Zululand and its inhabitants, and the consequence was that the policy in both instances has been of the "shilly-shally" order, and her police could not "go through," tread down, tear in pieces, or gain a victory over their "mob-masters," and so restore peace to the Metropolis.

In Ireland the same uncertain policy of "shilly-shally" pursued there, and also in Africa, by Mr. Gladstone, as Israel's Premier, has landed us in an impasse. We seem unable to advance or to retreat, simply because "shilly-shally" has a hold upon us, and we cannot make up our minds "to go through." All these things seem to be against us, but they are not really so. They are for us. For God is working by, and with, and for us. He holds us in check at home and abroad, to let us see that He forbids us joining in the tumults that are just about to break out in "yonder ill-consolidated Europe." The complications that must arise when the aged Emperor of Germany passes away, and should the Crown Prince be denied health or life to take up the reins of power with vigour, will produce results that will probably shake Europe to its centre. Then it will be seen that our troubles in Ireland, in London, at the Cape, and elsewhere, have been "God-sends" to keep us employed at home, and without the power or inclination to interfere in the quarrels of the giants abroad, who will certainly destroy each other, but leave us, protected by the hand of God, safe in our own chambers, hidden behind our own barred Gates and shut-up doors, God's hidden, saved, redeemed, and blessed people, the remnant of Jacob and Israel, the heritage of the Lord. To Him will then be all the praise!

FROM "The Giant Cities of Bashan, and Syria's Holy Places," by the Rev. J. L. Porter, A.M.1867; p. 261. "The geographical position of Naphtali produced other effects upon its history. The tribe occupied borderland. It came into close contact with the Syrians of Damascus, with the mountain tribes of Lebanon, and especially with the great commercial nation of Phœnicia. Separated from the body of the Jewish people, forced into connection with strangers, the Naphtalites became less exclusive than their brethren. The Phœnicians traded with them, and settled among them (1 Kings ix. 11—13). That sharp line which separated Jew and Gentile was in part, at least, obliterated. In worship, in manners, and even in language, they accommodate themselves to their Gentile neighbours, and, at length, the whole land was called 'Galilee of the Gentiles,' and its people lost caste with the exclusive Jews of the South."

Digitized by Google

"THE SCEPTRE SHALL NOT DEPART FROM JUDAH TILL SHILOH COME."

WE were present at a meeting of clergy and laymen recently, a clergyman being in the chair, when the following subject was discussed by about 18 clergy and laity:—"How are we to understand the words in Gen. xlix. 10, 'The sceptre shall not depart . . . until Shiloh come'"? The discussion was opened by a layman, and then the opinions of the assembly being taken, member by member, the chairman closed by summing up the whole discussion.

The opener commenced by saying that the text, with its context, under discussion, caused anxious thought to Christians, and gave room to sceptics to mock. History seems to forbid the idea that Judah retained the kingly office as a tribe till the coming of our Lord at the beginning of the Christian era. The temporal power had departed from Judah long before our Lord came to suffer, and, therefore, to maintain that this was to be the case till His first advent, was to open the ground for the sceptic's sneer and the atheist's revilings. What is the literal meaning of the passage? What are we to understand by it? The commentators say the kingly power represented the sceptre, and the Lord Jesus Christ at His first coming was the Shiloh of the passage. Now, if that be the interpretation, then we are bound to conclude that the kingly office was to, and did, remain in the tribe of Judah's grasp till Christ came. But was this so? It was notoriously not so. The kingly power had departed from Judah centuries before A.D. 1.

The opener of the debate then stated his own view. "Who was the king of Israel," he asked, "when Jacob uttered this prophecy? The Lord Himself was King. He always asserted it Himself, and claimed afterwards to be the King of Israel. The sceptre was, when Jacob spoke, in God's own hand as Israel's King." Various passages of Scripture were quoted to prove this point—such as 1 Sam. xii. 12, viii. 7; Zech. ix. 9; Jer. xxiii. 5; Isa. xxxiii. 22. The sceptre, then, was from the first in God's own hand, even from Jacob's time, and we cannot understand it as representing in any way a dynasty of earthly kings succeeding each other. The Scriptures show us that, after the date of the prophecy, the great lawgiver was Moses, who was not of Judah, but of Levi. Joshua, the great commander of Israel, was not of Judah, but of Ephraim. The first earthly king of Israel was Saul, and he was of Benjamin, but not of Judah. "These facts," said the opener, "connect the sceptre not with earth but heaven, and indicate to us that God's own hand held the sceptre and was to hold it till Shiloh, the Lord Jesus, should come (a yet future event) at the second advent, to assume the Kingship."

The words of ver. 1, which pointed to "the last days," when the events should be fulfilled described in the verses following, did not appear to the opener to affect the case. There was nothing in ver. 10 to mark when the sceptre was assumed by the Lord, and clearly it was in existence when Jacob blessed his sons. The speaker alluded to Matt. xxi. 43 as giving support to his view, because it described "the kingdom of God" as then appertaining to the Jews, and the Lord informed them that the divine rule in God's hand would be removed from them and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof, for "Shiloh had come." As the earthly sceptre had departed before this, the opener quoted Matt. xxi. 43 to show that the king, whose kingdom or reign was to be transferred to another nation, must be our Lord; so frequently declared in other Scriptures to be the "King of the Jews."

The opinions of the clergy and laity were then asked and obtained on the text. One of the clergymen present thought the opener was wrong, and that Shiloh represented Melchizedec, the Prince of Peace, and the type of the Lord Jesus. Another thought Shiloh was the Messiah, and that the prophecy related to the time of Christ's first advent. Judah did in a measure still hold the sceptre even up to His advent, and, therefore, the prophecy was in this manner fulfilled. The "gathering" or "obedience" of the people to Him, represented the gathering of the Gentiles, and their admission to the privileges of the Gospel during this parenthetical dispensation. Another clergyman declared he was never able to accept the Anglo-Israelite view of this text, because that teaching did not recognise the double fulfilment of each prophecy—the spiritual as well as the literal—and so deprived the believer of the spiritual consolation such a text as this brought out. Two or three of the laymen present were unable to throw any light on the passage at all, as they had not given it particular attention. One, however, declared that he could not see with the opener, or go with the commentators who recognised the Shiloh as the Messiah during the first advent. History, he said, seemed to oppose that view.

The chairman summed up, after one of the laymen, who was an Anglo-Israelite, had expressed his opinion, "that Shiloh came when Jerusalem was destroyed, and that then and there the sceptre departed from Judah." He did not explain how it could be made out that "the gathering of the people to Him took place then." The chairman generally agreed with the commentators. He held that "the people" were the Gentiles, but not the Ten Tribes or Judah only, and quoted John x. 16 to prove that our Lord has besides the Jews, "other sheep not of that fold," and these being the Gentile Church, He declared "that them also He must bring, and there shall be one fold, and one Shepherd."

The editor of the BANNER, being one of the company present, gave his views of the passage soon after the opener's statement had been made, and his remarks were to the following effect, in answer. He said that he agreed with the opener that by Shiloh the patriarch intended to point to the Lord Jesus Christ; but that the prediction in regard to the sceptre had reference to the second, but not to the first advent. Historical facts contradicted the opinion which the great body of commentators so firmly held. For the sceptre was last held by Zedekiah, whose sons were slain before his eyes, his own put out, and himself carried in chains to Babylon, whence he never was permitted to return. Henceforth none of the royal House of David ruled over Judah—none of the Tribe of Judah exercised kingly rule or held the sceptre over that House. Levites and scribes exercised such authority over them, and some years before our Lord was born Herod the Great, an Idumean, who was not even a Jew or Israelite, was "King of the Jews," and held the sceptre over them. To that effect our Lord's own conduct testified, when the Jews, for lack of a king, offered to make Him one; but He refused (John vi. 15). That He never held the sceptre, even after His resurrection, is manifest from the disciple's affecting question: "Lord, wilt Thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?"—that is, the "Ten-Tribed kingdom"—to the only ostensible and patent Israel, the Jews. It is plain from His reply that that restoration was not to be then, and that, therefore, the Lord did not Himself hold the sceptre at that time. The sceptre in Judah's hand was that of a dynasty in David's house, as proved by such texts as Jer. xxxiii. 25, 26, and Ezek. xxi. 27. The reference to "the lawgiver from between his feet," pointed to human generation and succession from mother to son, and not to the kingship in the Lord Jesus' hand, according to the opener. Again, the sceptre had clearly no reference to Jacob's days, but as Gen. xlix. 1 declares, to the "last days," which Acts ii. 17, Heb. i. 1, Isa. ii. 2, tell us are the Christian dispensation between the two advents. In those days the sceptre was to be found in Judah's possession, and shall not depart from them till Shiloh, the Lord Jesus Christ, comes to reign on David's throne in Jerusalem (Luke i. 32, 33), and to Him shall the gathering or obedience of "the people" be.

Philo-Israel insisted that the expression, "the people," referred to the people of the family-party addressed by Jacob (as in almost every other instance in the Bible), and that it was their reunion under the great Shepherd of the two flocks which was (he submitted) the subject of Jacob's prophecy. In John x. 16, the Lord alluded to the same event when He said that He had other sheep (Israel) not of that flock (of Judah), and them He must bring, and they shall be (He declared) one "flock" (not one fold) "and one Shepherd" (see R. V.). From beginning to end of Gen. xlix., Israel, Judah, and their offspring alone were the subject of promise, and it is incongruous to suppose that the Gentiles should be introduced in a Judah promise as those "gathered to Him." The great gathering of "the two sticks," Israel and Judah, described in Ezek. xxxvii. 15—28, was evidently the gathering in Jacob's, as well as in our Lord's, minds, and that was to take place at the second, but not at the first advent. "But," said the speaker, "it might be objected that if the sceptre was always to be with Judah 'till Shiloh come,' in the yet future time, and the sceptre departed from Judah in B.C. 588, then there is nothing to show how the prophecy is true now? How can Judah be said, to-day, to hold the sceptre pending the return of Shiloh? Here the whole statement of the evidence in support of Our British Identity with Israel comes in, as well as the proof to support the allegation that Queen Victoria, being of the House of Judah, is now Queen regnant over Israel according to the prophecies. "I believe this, Mr. Chairman," said Philo-Israel, "and think I need not in this assembly make further allusion to that point. But these are the grounds why I cannot concur with the respected opener of this debate, or hold with opinions regarding the passage which the whole tenor of God's Word respecting Israel and Judah, the two families He has chosen, seems to contradict."

Digitized by Google

So far the proceedings of the meeting. The result appeared to be that Philo-Israel only found two laymen to concur with him. The clergy present were, including the chairman, in opposition; and the opener of the address, who leans towards the Anglo-Israelite views, was not persuaded by the discussion that he was wrong in the least degree.

TITHES AND DISESTABLISHMENT IN WALES.

THE Earl of Selborne, when he addressed the students of St. David's College, Lampeter, in Wales, on October 28th, spoke largely on the subject of the Church in Wales, respecting the threatened disestablishment of that Church, and also in reference to tithes. The history he gave of the whole subject of tithes was so clear and lucid that we feel inclined to reproduce his lordship's words for the benefit of our readers. He said:—

I will refer to what is called the Tithe War. What are the grounds upon which the poor clergyman, who is entitled to the scanty pittance of £143 a year, is to be robbed of that? It is as much his property as any land which the law secures to an individual. I do not think the ancient history of tithes has much to do with the matter; but I will say this, that the tithe was not imposed on Wales by any English law. In Wales, as elsewhere, it arose out of a sense of religious propriety, deepening into the idea of a religious duty, enforced as such by the teachers of religion, and so, passing into a national custom, came like other customs to be recognised by law. But as to Wales it is perfectly certain that no English legislation imposed the tithe. But what happened at the time of the commutation, without going into figures on this occasion, is this. The right to tithe from time immemorial had been to one-tenth of the produce of the land. Whoever bought or sold the land, that was a charge upon it—one-tenth of the gross produce of the land, which the tithe-owner had to take away at his own expense. When the commutation took place in 1836, these great operations were performed, which fixed permanently, at a largely diminished figure, the interest of the clergyman, and handed over permanently great advantages to the landowner, who was made to bear, and in substance does bear, the burden. The tithe no more belonged to the landowner or cultivator than anything else in the world. From very ancient times it was no doubt the property of the parishes endowed with it, and was like a family charge. When the commutation took place, various deductions were made to the amount of 60 per cent. of the amount to which the clergyman was entitled; and ten years after the commutation Mr. Jones, one of the commissioners, put the gain to the landlords at £600,000; while a few years afterwards, Sir James Caird stated that if there had been no commutation, instead of £4,000,000 fixed at the time of the commutation, the clergy would have been entitled to £6,000,000. So that even in these days of agricultural depression, the landlords gain by the commutation as much as the whole amount of the entire tithe rent-charge. Lord J. Russell and other statesmen of that day said:—"We know we are giving a great boon to the land, and the public interest is concerned in doing it; but we are also giving to the Church and to the clergy." Well, then what happened? The landlords made terms with their tenants, and they were made the agents to pay it. To treat the fulfilment of that contract as a thing to be made the subject of attack, as a thing to be withheld, I call no less than immorality, no less than robbery, no less than persecution. (Cheers). And I cannot but believe that if we could get at the real sentiment of the majority of Welsh Nonconformists, they would not approve it. And yet political agitators support, encourage, and foment this wrong. (Cheers).

So far Lord Selborne. The origin of the tithe was, he says, "a sense of religious propriety;" then the idea arose that it was a religious duty; then a national custom, enforced as a duty by the teachers of religion; then it was recognised by law. Among our people, then, this peculiar custom, which limited the right of the clergy to one-tenth of the produce, was not imposed by law, but grew up as a matter of "religious propriety." We claim that this nation being Israel the "religious propriety" in our case arose from our connection with the chosen nation to whom the payment of tithes was early prescribed. We alluded to this subject at page 48, of Vol. X. of the BANNER, in No. 475, on February 3rd, 1886. We found then, in our article headed "Tithes, an Identity," that the institution was as old as Abraham's days, when Abraham paid them to Melchizedek (Gen. xiv. 18, 20). To Jacob the subject was familiar (Gen. xxviii. 20, 22, R.V.). In Numbers xviii. 21—24, the payment of tithes was prescribed for the whole Israelitish nation. In 2 Chron. xxxi. 5, 6, 12 (R.V.), we read more about it. In Lev. xxvii. 30—33 (R.V.), God Himself claimed tithes from the Twelve Tribes of Israel, as His own due. In Neh. xiii. 12; Malachi iii. 8—10; Matt. xxiii. 23; Luke xviii. 12, we have indications that the institution was Israelitish, and we have no record that it obtained in any other nation on the face of the earth, as a divinely appointed usage and custom. The lawless agitation against the payment of tithes in Wales, fomented as it is by the teachings of demagogues who know better, but use this subject as a lever to regain power in the State, will not succeed. It is fore-doomed to failure, because tithes were ordained of God for Israel's benefit, and this nation is Israel.

Lord Selborne, after speaking of tithes, had a word to say respecting the argument which Mr. Gladstone lately used in regard to the disestablishment of the Church in Wales. He said:—

Mr. Gladstone's argument is that, because 28 out of 30 Welsh members are ready to vote for it, though I am told there are not more than 24 out of 30 who are ready to do that, it ought to be carried out. I demur to that principle. We are a United Kingdom. (Cheers). There are 665 members of Parliament, and we must reflect also that there is a pretty considerable minority whom these 30 members do not represent. I utterly reject the principle. (Cheers). I say this is a matter of Imperial importance, and the flimsy pretext that it can be dealt with as a special Welsh question is exposed the moment a man looks the question in the face. (Cheers). To treat this as a question to be determined by 30 votes, with all the consequences it would involve to England, is the most absurd proposition in the world. (Cheers). Wales is, no doubt, a very important district, but Yorkshire has a larger population. Suppose the same proportion of members for Yorkshire were in favour of disestablishment in Yorkshire. Would they be entitled to have it? To suppose that we are going like birds in sight of the snare, to walk into it, to go into this trap, is perfectly preposterous. Is there the slightest reason for saying that this piecemeal disestablishment of the Church of England in Wales is to be treated on the ground of treating Wales as a separate nationality? It is indeed remarkable that Mr. Gladstone last year, when he was proposing his measure to give a separate Parliament to Ireland, refused that Parliament the power to deal with the whole subject of religion. On what principle are the Irish, among whom, beyond all question, one great religious body preponderates over all the rest, to be refused the power of legislating as they please on the subject of religion, unless it is that it is a matter of Imperial concern? Mr. Gladstone saw that.

Digitized by Google

The Welsh are being educated up to the demand for the disestablishment of the Church in Wales, and Mr. Gladstone is quite ready to give it them, and to Scotland next, if only in return they will vote for Irish Home Rule, and himself as the Prime Minister to carry it, in the teeth of the hated English majority. In vain! Israel is not divided—nor is she destined to be divided, even though so fertile a genius as the late Prime Minister has set his heart upon it. Israel of the Isles will remain one and indivisible, and the "Grand Old Man" will have to be disappointed in his ambition. Mr. Gladstone once had the Identity distinctly put before him, but he rejected it; and in consequence he is like a ship without a rudder. He drifts about without a settled policy, resolving to do now what a few years age he used to denounce and repudiate as distinctly false and wicked. The confusion in Ireland and the coming troubles perhaps in Wales, and possibly ere long in Scotland too, we attribute to the approaching "desolation" of the European nations and God's "determination" that His people Israel shall escape them all. To effect that object she must needs have grave troubles at home, in Ireland, Wales, and Scotland, to engage her whole attention and strength, and so prevent her meddling in the conflagration about to be kindled among the nations non-Israelite in origin. Hence the lawless one is let loose in our own land and Ireland. Hence peaceful Wales is resolved to destroy tithes, and will if possible kill the Established Church as well. Therefore she requires just such an one as the powerful and able ex-Premier to put her upon seeking even Home Rule after the fashion of the Irish Canaanites! These things are blessings in disguise—and so we shall all account them what time we see Europe in a blaze, and ourselves clean escaped from the terrors of the Lord's "fiery jealousy," by the operation of those very causes which we all so much regret to-day, working disorder and lawlessness at home. "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are His judgments, and His ways past finding out! To Him be the glory for ever! Amen" (Rom. xi. 33, 36, R.V.).

LONDON IN THE JUBILEE SEASON—1887.

By J. Rutter.

Usually a dweller in the country, and loving retirement, I yet, this Spring, resolved that, God willing, I would be in London in "the season" of this Jubilee year, and see something of what was going on in so interesting a period of our history. Eventually I was in London from the beginning of May to the end of June—a time never to be forgotten by any who were there. On the 14th of May I had a fine view of the Queen going to the East-end to lay the foundation stone of a public institution. The weather was fine, and all the streets on the road by which Her Majesty passed, brightly decorated with drapery, flags, and streamers. After seeing the Queen return by the same route, I went along Oxford-street eastwards to see the decorations and illuminations, of which there were many. The streets were crowded, but all were orderly and well-behaved, although it was Saturday evening.

The immense crowds resorting to London and thronging the streets, however, greatly increased, as also did the warmth and brilliancy of the weather, as the summer advanced; and great were the preparations on all hands, and the anticipations and prognostications leading up to the grand anniversary, June 21st. The weather became very fine and unusually warm, and great anxiety was felt lest a thunderstorm should occur, and "break up the weather" on or before the great day. Fearing that I might not be able to get a seat in a good position to view the procession, I resolved to see the preparations and decorations along the line of route previously. It was difficult from the immense crowds, and in an omnibus, or cab, one might often get blocked for half-an-hour at a time, and so have full opportunities to view the busy carpentering going on in that locality; or if, unhappily, you were on foot, it was hopeless to get a place in a conveyance; and on these occasions I always enlivened the tedium of waiting by a little conversation on some kindred topic, either with a policeman, or some fellow-passengers, according as I might be on foot, or in a tramcar. Occasionally I broached the subject of the Israelitish origin of the British race. To most the idea was perfectly new, and after a little explanation on my part, the listener would perhaps say, in a wondering and reverential tone, "Well, sir, I shouldn't wonder!" "I think it may be!" or, "England has so many blessings!"

Kindly feeling, loyalty, and good-humour, often not unaccompanied by sincere gratitude to an Almighty Providence, seemed to be the prevailing tone of mind in those with whom I spoke. Having it in my power to say that I well remembered the Queen's coming to the throne, and seeing her pass by to the City, when her appearance was that of a pale, delicate young girl, always secured to me a respectful and deeply interested hearing.

On the Saturday and Monday preceding the 21st (Tuesday), I spent the greater part of each day going about London to see the preparations, and the excitement was at the highest pitch. I found one friend in his dining-room (at the West-end), with his whole family superintending the arrangement of flags and coloured lamps which were to shine forth on the 21st. Another friend, a solitary lady, was busy at the same loyal occupation. Kensington High-street, through which I had to pass, exceeded every other part in the abundance and brilliancy of its triumphal arches and banners. The whole of London was making holiday, and even humble streets, with poor dwellers, were gay with Union Jacks, or red and white streamers. The almost continuous sunshine added immensely to the brightness of the scene. London was truly en fête.

On the evening of the 20th, I went round by Northumberland Avenue and Westminster Abbey; carpenters were even then still hard at work, and the streets thronged by lookers-on. One marvelled how possibly everything would be finished for the morrow. Yet so it was. During the previous week I had twice had the opportunity of hearing the whole of the music for the great Jubilee service rehearsed in St. Margaret's Church, and I shall never forget the melody of the words in the anthem, "Because thy God loved Israel," &c. (2 Chron. ix. 8), which still seems to ring in my ears.

The 21st came, and the weather was very fine, but much cooler. I had a seat in an excellent position at the Westminster Palace Hotel, from which "coign of vantage" I saw the Queen and the whole procession come up to the Abbey door, and return, amid the music of bands, ringing of bells, and the cheers of thousands. All went off well. Specially striking was the bodyguard of horsemen, all kings or royal princes, most of them sons or near relatives of the Queen. Involuntarily one's mind re-echoed the words:—"Instead of thy fathers thou shalt have children whom thou mayest make princes in all lands." In that memorable month, kings, and princes, and Eastern potentates were continually to be met in the streets of London.

On the succeeding Wednesday I attended the second grand Jubilee service in Westminster Abbey, in one of the peers' places. After that I was obliged to go into the country, far West, but all the way one saw a succession of tokens of past or approaching Jubilee festivities, in the shape of flags, wreaths, and banners, at every town and village, as if the people loved to prolong the happy celebration, and it seemed as if indeed England had become "merry England" again!

Oct., 1887.

Trinity Church Institute, Eccles.—On Tuesday night, an interesting discussion took place among the members of the above institute, on the subject of "Is the British Nation the Lost Tribes of Israel?" The question was opened by Mr. Bull reading a paper in the affirmative, and Mr. Mitchell replying in the negative. After a long debate the question was put to the meeting, and a vote declared in favour of the affirmative. A vote of thanks to the chairman (Mr. Storer) concluded the meeting.

Digitized by Google

THE THRONE OF DAVID.

"THIS formed the subject for discussion at the weekly meeting of the West Hill Protestant Educational Society on Monday evening, in the Emmanuel Schoolroom, when there was a good attendance of members, under the presidency of the Rev. G. N. H. Tredinnick. Mr. J. R. Mitchell having read an interesting essay upon the subject, a very animated discussion ensued, in which Messrs. J. C. Robinson, H. Griest, Walter Mayo, C. Nash, and others took part. At the close of the discussion the usual vote of thanks was accorded to the essayist, and the meeting terminated in the usual way."

The following particulars have been furnished to us regarding the above:—

As I know you must always be glad to hear of any progress, I send you the above cutting from Friday's Hastings News in order that you may see that although we are quiet here, yet we are not idle. I am sorry to say that our Association as to meetings amongst ourselves is almost non est, as the members, many of them ladies, are not able to attend on winter evenings, and in the summer no one will come; but notwithstanding this we work individually, and I am glad to say not without results, as under God's blessing several have been persuaded of the truth, which is quietly spreading.

Last winter I was made a member of the Protestant Association connected with the Parish Church of Emmanuel, on the West Hill, and it struck me I could do good there. My paper was the result; the members, some 80 or 90 in number, were strangers to me, being out of my district, but I made a very fair impression, far better than I expected. I looked naturally for a strong opposition, but was agreeably surprised to find it almost nil. The curate of Emmanuel, who was in the chair, admitted that although he was not prepared to accept all he had read on our subject, yet it could not be denied that the vast majority of arguments were in our favour, and as far as he was concerned the Identity demanded every respect and consideration. Only one gentleman really took up the cudgels against me in anything like opposition, and went in strongly for "Gentile Supremacy;" he contended that the "Church" had been transferred from Israel to the Gentiles, but after the meeting was closed, I was introduced to him, and if I did not convince him at least I silenced his guns; a few others rose against me, but their opposition was feeble; I think my reply satisfied them; two other gentlemen rose and expressed themselves persuaded we were Israel; and the paper was altogether so favourably received that I have been requested to give another next quarter, which (D.V.) I shall do, taking for my title "Which is the True Church, and Where Is It?"

About 100 BANNERS were distributed at the meeting. I hope they will bear fruit.

Hastings, 31st Oct., 1887.

PROGRESS IN CHELTENHAM.

CONTRIBUTED BY SURGEON-GENERAL GRANT.

ON Sunday, October 16th, the Rev. R. Douglas, Vicar of Kidsgrove, preached morning and evening on the subject of the Identity, in St. John's Church, and on Monday evening delivered a lecture in the Parish-room, entitled, "Bible Light on our Jubilee History, or God's Hand Fulfilling His Word."

The chair was taken by Dr. Gooding, who apologised for the absence of the Vicar of the parish, which, he said, was caused by no indisposition to the subject, as was evident from the fact that he had given his pulpit on the previous day and the parish room that evening for the purpose of proclaiming it.

The Lecturer proceeded to give a very interesting account of the institution of the year of jubilee under Moses, showing that as it commenced with the great day of atonement, it was typical of the deliverance to be wrought by Christ for His people; that it was calculated to impress the people who had been subject to it for centuries with the love of liberty, justice, and brotherly good will, as well as with a sense of the constant presence and providence of God, because His special intervention was required to enable the people to observe it. They were to do no work during that year; but to provide for their requirements the earth was to yield threefold during the year which preceded it. And this deep impression of the constant presence of God in their midst, supplying their daily wants, the lecturer contended, could never by any subsequent adversity have been effaced from the minds and hearts of the Hebrew race. It caused them to cherish a strong affection for the Hebrew Scriptures and the institutions of the Mosaic law, distinct traces of which might be found in the idolatry into which they fell; and this long course of training in all that was most ennobling and God-like in man, fitted, as it was intended to fit the Hebrew race alone to be the messengers of God's salvation to all the world, as the Psalmist expressly declares in Psalm cxlvii.: "He showeth His word unto Jacob, His statutes and ordinances unto Israel. He hath not dealt so with any nation; neither have the heathen knowledge of His laws." The lecturer next went on to consider the covenant with Abraham, and ridiculed the idea of a spiritual seed, maintaining that the promises were literal, and proving that Abraham so understood them from his dialogue with God, as recorded in Gen. xv. He showed that these promises were made to Abraham while in uncircumcision, and from the teaching of St. Paul that they were the reward of faith, and could not be inherited under the law, that is by unbelieving Judah; that, in short, they were made to Joseph, and were tied up in his two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, of the former of whom it was predicted by Jacob that he should be the fulness of the Gentiles—that is, a wide-spreading or overflowing Gentile people. He explained that prophecy was in the main a reiteration in detail of the promises made to Abraham, and an assurance to his seed throughout all ages of the world that God would remember His covenant, and that however they might be diminished or degraded as a people, He would restore them in His own appointed time. Mr. Douglas dwelt strongly on the ignorance of Scripture displayed by those who assert that the time of such restoration was to be the millennium, because Moses, in Lev. xxvi., limits the duration of Israel's punishment to "seven times;" and taking "a time" as 360 years, according to the interpretation of Mr. Grattan Guinness and all the most accredited students of prophecy, seven times counted from the final carrying away captive of Israel about B.C. 720 would bring us to the beginning of the nineteenth century, from which period all the blessings promised to Israel obedient have been showered upon Britain; and her development as a nation, with regard to population, territory, religion, science and art, has been such as was never attained to at any period of her former history, and is altogether unprecedented in the history of any other nation. We have thus, continued Mr. Douglas, a new revelation, which must make itself known and felt throughout the land, a revelation of action, God making bare His mighty arm for the recovery of His chosen people, on comparing which with the book revelation of the Bible we place before us two pictures corresponding so exactly in every lineament that the original must have been in each case the same.

The above is an imperfect sketch of an able and instructive lecture, which was listened to with close attention by a large and appreciative audience. Those who may desire a more full detail will find it in the first number of a new magazine which Mr. Douglas is editing, entitled The Two Witnesses, several copies of which were sold in the room.

A vote of thanks having been proposed and heartily responded to, the rev. lecturer pronounced the benediction, and the meeting closed.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR SIR,—I have great pleasure in sending you a short report of the work on the Identity question, which I have, during the past Summer, been carrying on, on the Brighton beach, the concluding address of which, for this year, I gave on Thursday last. I was unable to begin until the second week in July: since this date there have been ten fine Thursday evenings, and therefore, I have given ten addresses. On each of those evenings I had a very good audience; many seemed to take great interest in the matter. I had no one to oppose the subject until the ninth night, but my opponents did not put in an appearance on the tenth, so I can claim the victory. I will send you a few anecdotes about that night when I have the time to spare. Your kindness in noticing the work in the BANNER, caused several friends to send me literature for distribution, to all such I am very thankful. Since commencing I have received about 1,300 BANNERS OF ISRAEL; 2,000 "Glory Leaders," "Life From the Dead," &c., by Mr. Hine; 3,000 Liverpool tracts and papers; 1,200 "Philo-Israel

Digitized by Google

Tracts," "Dublin Tracts," "Who Are You," and various other small literature—total, 7,500. And I have had printed 10,000 handbills, announcing the meetings, with Scriptural texts on them, to draw attention to the subject. Nearly all this literature has been distributed amongst the visitors and townspeople. I have about 1,000 tracts left. The Rev. R. Douglas kindly sent me fifteen vols. of Good Tidings (unbound), which I gave in vols. to enquirers, and those who knew something of the subject. I am sure that all this sowing cannot be in vain: it will certainly be reaped at some time. May it please God to spare me to sow more of this good seed, for His name's sake. I feel deeply grateful to C. Horner, Esq., and the Free Distribution Fund, for the kind help and counsel I have received; and also to Miss Mary M. James, of St. Leonards, who has taken great interest in my work, and given me every encouragement, as well as books for my own study. There are many others whose names I should like to mention, but must not trespass further on your space.

I remain, dear Sir, yours faithfully,
H. A. MARCHANT.

60, Upper Lewes-road, Brighton, Sept. 26, 1887.

P.S.—Mr. Banks kindly sent me about 400 of the BANNERS, with promise of more when wanted.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—The question which you ask in capitals at page 440 of the BANNER, "Is the knowledge of Our Identity advancing?" admits I think of a positively affirmative reply.

I know one, who half a century since had begun to inquire, "Where are the Ten Tribes?" and who some ten years later heard of John Wilson's lectures, and mentally leapt at the thought of even the possibility that the British race might in great part be not only "of Israel," but Israel itself in a twofold sense; namely both as the literal seed of Jacob, and as the spiritual seed of Abraham through faithful acceptance of the Saviour. Then again, he being one of that body whom you deem the "apathetic clergy" "destined to reject" your doctrine, and who "boycott" the subject in their sermons etc., another five years elapsed ere he met with Mr. Hine's pamphlet entitled "Flashes of Light," and became acquainted with yourself and your coadjutor, and your effort to promote the knowledge of the Identity subject; and then conviction followed. And though that conviction received occasional shocks from unanticipated arguments, it was never uprooted; and now, notwithstanding some difficulties on a few non-essential issues connected with the subject, conviction is firmly based on positive facts of history and of the present times, as in accordance with the plain predictions of the Word of God respecting the Ten Tribes and their status and character towards the end of this dispensation.

Now what I would suggest is, that very many others may be (nay, must be) undergoing a similar but more rapid process of tuition and silent persuasion than in the above case. The mere fact of your BANNER OF ISRAEL having reached its 570th number by weekly issue, and having been read by proportionate myriads upon myriads of the "Great Nation," more or less habitually for the last ten years, added to the issue of so many other publications as to have formed an Anglo-Israel literature which has penetrated to the furthest corners of the Empire, surely speaks for itself! Why, there is scarcely one educated and tolerably well informed professing Christian who has not by this time at least heard of the discovery, which is not now so frequently called "a craze;" though some still reply, "I have not yet received it;" and others "I am not interested about it;" or others, "It is too good to be true;" or others again, "Well, perhaps so, but what is the good of it?" It no longer surprises people as it did ten or twenty years ago, and the probability is that many occasionally think of the subject, while the certainty is that very many also entertain it favourably.

Far, therefore, from being one of your despondent pessimists, I cannot but regard the increasing quantity of seed sown as being scattered under the direction and with the blessing of the Divine Providence. Let the Sowers, like St. James's husbandman, patiently wait for the precious fruit of the earth. The dew from heaven will not fail to make it germinate, hereafter to fructify in those Christianized and sincere hearts to whom the faithfulness of God to every portion of His word is dear. Your seed-pearls are not all cast before those who lack perception of their value as corroborative of the truth and honour of Israel's covenant God.

An illustration of this may be drawn from a recent incident at Brighton, where a zealous Christian worker, who had recently imbibed your views after diligently testing them by the Scriptures, lectured periodically on the sea-shore to increasing numbers, till on the last occasion he held a very numerous audience till eleven o'clock at night. And if (as probable) most of his hearers returned to a household, the subject of this good and able man's teaching would naturally be mentioned. Thus, and in many other ways, the seed is sown, and often proved to be in no way inconsistent with "the good seed" of which the Son of man is the Great Sower: but rather its effectual confirmation. Instances, too, have only recently become known to me in which connections of many years' standing in different parts of Australia, some of these also of ripe Christian experience, have long been confirmed Anglo-Israelites.

What then if quiet adherents seem to diminish in number, especially in some localities, because unwilling to receive pressure; or what if subscriptions fall off through decease or from other causes, as it were to try our faith? The truth will grow on till its autumn and winter are past.

Such a spring-tide is approaching, it is my belief, (though it may be years hence) as will render many mere time-servers and conventionalists less ashamed of a topic which vindicates chiefly God's faithfulness, and which will at length find utterance from all hearts and lips which are not ashamed of anything that may help to establish the truth as revealed by His Son.

T. W. BOYCE.

Clapham Common, Nov. 4th, 1887.

P.S.—Permit me just to add that upon myself the effect of the article to which I refer, is simply to resolve me upon an increased subscription.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—I have found persons of a sceptical turn of mind reasoning with themselves very much in the following form, when they are about to become believers in the Bible and the Lord Jesus Christ. They have said:—I do not think my infidelity can be rightly founded, so long as I am placed between two positions, from neither of which can I properly deliver myself. I may now call myself a believer in the Bible, which tells me one race, and one race only, shall ultimately dominate the world. I may say with many others the Jews will be that dominating people, but 1,800 years have passed, during which time the people to which the world attaches the name of Jews—that is, the Two Tribes, and the Ten Tribes—have never under that name been a dominating people. I am driven under these circumstances to look through the Bible and History in parallel lines, and at once my scepticism vanishes, for I find the people I search for—

1st. In the Isles of the West, "afar off" from Palestine.
2nd. In the North Country.

They were to be known as—

1st. A powerful people, strong at sea.
2nd. Multitudinous to a degree, therefore an imperial people.
3rd. Wealthy abnormally.
4th. Possessing a Colonial Empire tending to become a federation of united nations. Having a Heathen Empire great beyond example.
5th. Excelling other nations in all respects, as the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath.
6th. Possessing a Colonial Empire tending to become the propagator of the Word of God in the same manner as itself.
7th. So loving the souls of men as to be constantly not only endeavouring to benefit and bless "all nations, families, and kindreds of the earth," but succeeding in that attempt.

These are only a very few points which have occurred to me in connection with this subject, but really and truly their "name may be called legion."

The individual I have referred to as thus soliloquising with himself, is only one of many who have done the same thing, wishing to bring their once sceptical friends into an interrogatory turn of mind, having become convinced that the Apostle's words will become applicable to them:—"And if in anything ye are otherwise minded the Lord shall reveal even this unto you."

I am, Sir, yours truly,
EDWIN W. COX.

The Shrubbery House, Redland, Bristol, Nov. 1st, 1887.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

A LECTURE will be Delivered in the ASSOCIATION ROOMS, 14, King William-street, Charing Cross, W.C., on THURSDAY AFTERNOON NEXT, December 1, 1887, at 3.30 o'clock, by Mr. J. SPENCER COOPER. Subject: "The Keystone of the Arch." Strangers will be made welcome.

JAMES BILLINGTON, Sec.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

THE BIBLE READINGS

are held

EVERY TUESDAY AFTERNOON,

At 3.30, in the Library of the Association, 14, King William Street, Charing Cross, W.C. All friends are invited.

VALUABLE CONSULTATION PRESCRIPTION for cure of Indigestion sent to any address for One Shilling. Part profits to Banner Free Distribution Fund.—"Identity," 8, Charlotte-terrace, Clacton-on-Sea.

Just published, in bevelled boards, gilt lettered, gilt edges, price 1s., post free for P.O.

WORDS OF HELP AND WISDOM.

Gleanings Gathered from Various Authors and Poets

BY JESSIE LAWRENCE.

More useful and acceptable than Christmas or New Year's Cards.

LONDON: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, or of the AUTHOR, "Rosslyn," Hampton Road, Upper Teddington.

CHRISTMAS GIFT BOOK.

Royal Copy, 4s., Coloured ditto, gilt edges, full gilt 2s., Plain 1s. 8d., postage 2d. extra.

"MY JEWELS"

(MAL. III. 17),

BY SARAH SHARP.

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, and all book-sellers.

ETHELINE

A New and most Effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

HUMAN LIFE.—FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles, and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 50 pages. SENT FREE to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON B. MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C. Write to-day.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, NOV. 30, 1887. [All rights reserved

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

An Elementary Digest or Sketch of the Chief Facts and Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Adapted to the Unlearned and Unscientific 56 pages, Illustrated with Diagrams, price 4d., post free 5d. 10th Thousand.

Anglo-Israelism. True, Not False. Being Philo-Israel's Reply to the Rev. Canon Bell's pamphlet, "Anglo-Israelism: True or False?" Price 1d., 6s. 6d. per 100. 16 pages, crown 8vo.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

A Resume of the Scriptural Argument, Proving the Identity of the British Race with the Lost Ten Tribes. Price 1d.; 6s. per hundred, postage 6d.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

Just published, demy 8vo., 66 pp., in tinted wrapper, price 6d., by post 7d.

THE BRITISH NATION

PROVED TO BE THE REMNANT OF ISRAEL,

AND THE

REPRESENTATIVES OF THE LOST TRIBES.

BY J. H. WELDON, J.P.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

NOW READY.

Price 3d.; Interleaved with Ruled Paper, 5d.; Cloth bound, gilt lettered, marbled edges, 1s.; by post 4d., 6d., and 1s.

THE

ANGLO-ISRAEL ALMANACK

AND DIARY FOR 1888.

CONTENTS:

CALENDAR AND DIARY FOR THE YEAR, January: Christ's Commands. February: Commands. March: Promises. April: Promises. May: Prayers. June: Prayers. July: Christ's Promises. August: Promises. September: Proverbs. October: Proverbs. November: Invitations. December: Prophecies. Church Lessons for each Sunday of the Year. Notes for the Month. Moon's Changes. Moveable Feasts. Measures of Length. Bank Holidays. Length in a Mile in Different Countries. Letters Patent for Inventions. Notes for 1889. Meteoric Showers. Legal Tender of Money. Legacy and Succession Duty. Income Tax. Postal Regulations, Money Orders, etc. General Information. The Royal Family. The Church. Public Exhibitions. The Ministry.

ARTICLES:

The Testimony of History that the British are Israel By Philo-Israel.
The Foundation of Anglo-Israel Truth. By V. M. Cox.
"The Fulness of the Gentiles." By the Rev. C. W. Hickson, M.A.
Fulfilling Prophecy. By Douglas A. Onslow.
The Clue to the World's Future. By the Rev. Denis Hanan, M.A.
The Principles of a Divine System; and Israel's Place In It. By Ernest P. Dix.
Rule Britannia! By H. B. Shaw.
Nazareth.
God's Israel. By Rev. Hibbert Newton.
A Christmas Carol.
List of Anglo-Israel Associations in Various Parts of the World

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, and all Book-sellers.

LUNG TONIC

SAVE YOUR LIVES BY TAKING

OWBRIDGE'S LUNG TONIC

THE MIGHTY HEALER.

It has a power over disease hitherto unknown in Medicine.

Are you at all Weak-chested or inclined to be Consumptive, with just a touch of Cough now and then?

"Try this Wonderful Medicine." The Cough and Weakness will disappear as if by magic, and you will feel a strength and power you never had before.

HAVE YOU A COUGH?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT!
HAVE YOU A COLD?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Bronchitis & Asthma it relieves instantly

The Spasms of Coughing so dreadful in Whooping Cough become less with each dose of the medicine.

Prepared by W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull

Sold in Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s. by all Chemists and Patent Medicine Vendors. Wholesale all London and Provincial Houses.

CARBOLINE

1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.

Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved.

DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.

Makers:

GEORGE & WELCH

CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,

Who will forward Free of Postage.

RHEUMATISM, COUT, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, INDIGESTION, CONSTIPATION, LIVER & KIDNEY COMPLAINTS, NERVOUS DISORDERS, LADIES' AILMENTS, ETC. Promptly Relieved and CURED BY

HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT

ALL sufferers should read "Harness' Guide to Health," free by post, containing copies of Thousands of Testimonials. Every man and woman in search of Health, Strength, and Energy, should at once send a 21s. postal order to the Medical Battery Co. Ltd. 52, OXFORD ST. LONDON, W. and procure one of these famous Belts, and they may rely upon being CURED

Corner of Rathbone Place

EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.

5/- 10,000 CARPETS 5/-

FIVE SHILLINGS EACH.

EACH. Guaranteed Genuine Bargain. EACH.

The British Carpet Weaving Company will forward DIRECT FROM THEIR LOOMS to any address, on receipt of Postal Order for 5s., or stamps, one of their GENUINE WOVEN, REVERSIBLE TRIUMPH CARPETS bordered and woven in colours, to suit Dining-room, Drawing-room, Bed-room, &c., and LARGE ENOUGH TO COVER ANY ORDINARY-SIZED ROOM, as an advertisement for the introduction of their goods.

These Carpets are made of a material almost equal to wool, and, being a speciality of our own, they can only be obtained DIRECT FROM OUR LOOMS, thus saving the purchasers ANY MIDDLE PROFITS.

Send for sample, and if not satisfied MONEY WILL BE RETURNED IN FULL,

A Rug sent to match Carpet for 1s. 6d. extra, or four Carpets and four Rugs sent carriage paid for 20s.

This extraordinary offer will not be repeated.

The words, UNION BANK, should be written across all Postal Orders. Address—

THE BRITISH CARPET WEAVING COMPANY,

72 & 76, St. John Street, Clerkenwell, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 571. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1887. [DOUBLE NUMBER, TWOPENCE.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
The Transvaal Conquered by Israel for the Lord	485
How the Indian Empire Grows	486
Israel's Increase of Population	487
Great Britain, the Sister Isle and Confederation. By J. S. Anderson	488
"The Church Times." By Rev. Denis Hanan, B.D.	488
The Crater of a Volcano in the Midst of Israel	489
Extract from the Opening Address in the Anthropological Section of the British Association (1887), by the President, Prof. A. H. Sayce, M.A. Forwarded by Arthur B. Prowse, M.D.	490
Britannia, the Daughter of Zion—Vastness of Colonial Possessions. By the Rev. Thomas Lowe, M.B.A.S.	490
A Reply to "Cui Bono?" from Auckland, New Zealand	491
Lord Brassey on Imperial Federation	492
Biblical Criticism and Egyptian Exploration. By F. Gass	494
Two Thoughts. By L. P.	495
Sir Arthur Cotton, K.C.S.I. on the Gift of the Holy Spirit to the British Nation	495
Israel's Scripture and Prayer Union	496
Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund	496
Questions. By J. Rutter	497
Review	498
Correspondence	498

THE TRANSVAAL CONQUERED BY ISRAEL FOR THE LORD.

IN the leading article of No. 565 of the BANNER, October 26, 1887, we noticed the proposed "great South African Railway," and suggested what it meant. We stated our opinion that it pointed to British supremacy in South Africa, and the formation there of a magnificent "Confederation," constituting a South African bund or British nation, similar in character to the Canadian dominion, which is one of Britain's stately daughters—and now a veritable "nation." A correspondent of the Morning Post of November 10, has some further information on this interesting subject, which it behoves us all attentively to consider. He tells us how rapidly the incorporation of the Transvaal is being effected by the omnivorous British settlers; and that already the Boers are only a moiety of the population, and must yield an equal share of the government to their British neighbours, who are clamouring to enter the Transvaal Volksraad, or parliament, on the ground that they have a right to rule themselves! The disproportion in the numbers, however, will not stop there. Gold is the ruling cause of the tremendous change, and daily fresh immigrants, of the British stock, are arriving, to share in the profits of the diggings, and the numbers will soon result in the demand that the government, no longer Boer, shall be British and Boer united, the majority being the former! The Transvaal, in short, is being conquered by the British, and the conqueror is gold, combined with the inconceivably numerous Britishers who hold it.

The correspondent of the Morning Post tells us that the Boers of the Transvaal must lower their flag before the inroads of the British; for, inter alia, the capital of the Transvaal, Pretoria, with a population of only 2,000 or 3,000 souls, is already dominated by a town called Johannesburg, only thirty miles off, which already has a larger population than Pretoria; has wide streets, several hotels, five English newspapers, three churches, and is British from first to last! That English town is now the capital or chief city of the district! It is the centre of one of the richest gold fields, and is sure to grow! It will be soon as large as Barberton, another much larger British town, lying between Pretoria and Delagoa Bay, having a population already of 20,000 British souls, or one-half the total Boer population, which is spread abroad all over that immense country! President Kruger, the chief ruler of the Transvaal, is aware that his reign is over, and therefore wants to put down these intruding "diggers" by an armed force. He cannot do it alone, but has asked the President of the Orange Free State to join him in expelling them! Luckily, President Brand is of a more liberal spirit, and sees that his only chance is to enter into a Federation of the South African States under the British flag, and refuses to wage a "racial war." The extent of country which is now British, in South Africa, comprises 450,000 square miles (more than twice the size of Germany), and consists of the territories of the Cape, Natal, and Bechuanaland. Their united population is 2,500,000 souls, including friendly natives and friendly Africanders. These united, would, in any contest, be much more than a match for the two Boer States, even if they could unite! which we see they will not, and cannot do. The Orange Free State has an area of 70,000 square miles, and a population of only 150,000, including 80,000 natives. That State is now quite surrounded by British territory, without any outlet to the sea, but has British railways from the sea, ready to dominate, if needs be, or enrich it, if it will listen to reason, and unite with the British Empire. The whole white population of the Orange Free State is only 70,000, and is only a fraction larger than the population of Cape Town alone, which a year ago had 60,000 inhabitants. The capital Bloemfontein, is only a village of 3,000 souls! The whites, besides, are sparsely spread over the country of the Orange Free State, and even so, one-fifth of them are British subjects. The President of that country is Sir John Brand, and his speech at the opening of the Free Orange State Volksraad, when President Kruger was present, was as follows:—

Digitized by Google

In contemplation of the bright future which, through the discovery of the goldfields, awaits the whole of South Africa, my conviction has become more confirmed that a trunk line of railway through the Free State, connecting the Delagoa Bay and Pretoria railway with that of Cape Colony, is imperatively necessary. Not only will our coal mines and other resources be made available, but thereby a rapprochement will be brought about which will lead to that more intimate connection of the South African Republic with the Free State, that compact of federal union, which will prepare the way for a Confederation of all the States and Colonies of South Africa, and will lay the foundation for the rise and growth of our South African nation.

As nothing can be done with President Kruger and the Boers, President Brand has turned to the British Colonies in a friendly spirit, and is ready to enter into a Federation, which at last will result in the South African dominion, including Zululand, and all the other smaller States. The area of the Transvaal is 115,000 square miles, and its population, 750,000, of whom 40,000 only are Boers, and 15,000 British subjects; the rest are natives. The Transvaal, if it joins the Federation, which is imminent, will raise the area of the proposed South African dominion to 635,000 square miles, and a population of three and a-half millions—a vast territory indeed, and with a grand future before it for our British surplus population. But this is not all. Already our public writers are anticipating a yet grander future for our South African Daughter. The following, from the Morning Post, gives us the idea in a few glowing words. The writer said:—

Into this union, of course, Zululand would naturally enter, and this combination of States and Colonies will not only be able to develop their own resources more effectually than by a clashing policy, but will also be better fitted for dealing with the expansion of South Africa towards the Zambesi, now commencing. This expansion, in view of the Portuguese on one side and the Germans on the other, will be better dealt with by a Dominion than by scattered Colonies, and will preserve for the South African nation, territories which otherwise would fall into foreign hands. The reported discovery of gold in the German territories renders such a Confederation all the more essential. It is notorious that but for the prompt annexation of Bechuanaland the Germans would have pushed their way across Africa to the Transvaal, and in alliance with the Transvaal Boers would have blocked any further expansion of South Africa. This peril has passed away, and, thanks to the discovery of gold in the Transvaal and the inrush of English diggers, we are not likely to hear any more of the alliance. Still, the country to the North of Bechuanaland and the Transvaal, in the direction of the Zambesi, remains open; and the sooner its future is assured by an English protectorate, the better for South African interests. Such a protectorate would recommend itself the more to this country if there were a South African Dominion ready to assume charge of the administration.

So far the journalist. Will our opponents tell us how it is God is thus giving our nation such enormous territories and such vast populations in Africa? How is it that Egypt has slipped into our charge? How is it that the Niger Basin, the West and East coasts, and now an enormous territory in South Africa, is added, or will be added, that threatens only to stop its extension with its approach to equatorial or tropical regions, too hot for our European colonists to inhabit? Surely there is design in all this, and the whole thing is not the result of mere blind chance? God promised the whole earth to His chosen people Israel, and the birthright, which is Joseph's, is falling to the proper, promised possession of the rightful heir! The British are Israel, and the Empire of Israel is receiving another addition according to the prophecies; in order that Africa, like Asia, and America, and the islands of the sea, may be brought finally to Christ, and so escape the terrors of the great earthquake woe which is to overwhelm all nations but Israel, and those under her protecting, shadowing wings. Let us, therefore, praise the Lord for this new proof of our Israelitish origin, and carry out the object of His distinguishing grace, by sending Christ's Gospel, His Holy Word, and His Sabbaths, to the ignorant native masses, now becoming so strangely our British fellow-subjects, in the great black Continent.

HOW THE INDIAN EMPIRE GROWS.

A FRESH annexation, announced on November 15, 1887, marks how the ever-expanding Empire of Israel, in India, has made another advance towards the North-west. This enlargement of a gigantic Empire is in the direction of Candahar, and brings the railway system of Hindostan into connection with the neighbourhood of the Afghan province of that city. The new territory now added to the Empire has been for some years—that is, since 1879—administered by British officials, though the country itself belonged to the Khan of Khelat. In that year we arranged with the latter to pay him an annual subsidy, and in return for it he allowed us to occupy Quetta, Sibi, the district of Pishin, North of Quetta, and Thal Chotiali, to the South-east of the chief town of that district. The rapid growth of Russian power beyond Herat, and the plain object of the Czar to strike at India, through Herat and Afghan territory, have now made it needful to secure, as part of the Empire, the road of Russia's access to the North-west frontier of Hindostan; and consequently it has been decided to annex the territory, and constitute it a chief Commissionership under the Viceroy. The railways of Beloochistan will now be rapidly completed for warlike purposes, if needful, and steps are being taken to push it on towards Candahar, where, long since, it was decided the telegraph wires should go. Lord Dufferin, the Viceroy, and Sir Frederick Roberts, the Commander-in-Chief, have just visited Quetta, and the new Commissionership together, and it is understood that their object was to take measures for the defence of India against Russia, by looking to our railways on the frontier, so that the enemy, if he advances, may be met at Candahar, situated on the only road by which, from Herat, he can hope to strike a blow at the Queen's dominions.

Silent preparations, we thus see, are being made for the great "earthquake woe," what time Russia, "the scourge of Europe" in the future, will doubtless make a powerful attempt to penetrate our Indian frontier, chiefly as a feint to cover the real attack on Constantinople and the European Powers, Germany and Austria, which are Israel's allies, to defend that "Gate of Gates" against the mighty spoiler. God works by means; and He is already preparing a defence for His people's Eastern dominions, and forcing our Government, in Calcutta and Simla, to annex a strategic territory on the confines of Afghanistan, within the borders of Beloochistan, far to the North-westward of India, Scinde, and the Punjab. These we now acquire, because we have secured the Gate Kurrachee, and through and by means of it are pointing to the acquisition of the military Gate Candahar, whereby to bring Russia's march towards India to a final and disastrous halt. Should the Russians, sooner or later, make an attempt to capture Herat, of which no one, with the least knowledge of their objects, entertains any doubt, then it will be seen that the extension of the British Empire towards Candahar, by the annexation of Pisheen, Quetta, Sibi, and Thal Chotiali, was an absolute necessity, to enable the Indian Government to lay down their military railways along the frontier, and to the plain beyond the Khoja Amran range, South of Candahar. The despised "scientific frontier" of the late Earl of Beaconsfield is being rapidly adopted again, and the matchless wisdom of his far-seeing statesmanship is now being acknowledged on all sides.

The point, however, which strikes one as an Anglo-Israelite, is the wonderful way in which God is conferring upon Israel expansion of dominion, not in one but in all directions. All causes combine to confer it. In South Africa the discovery of gold is bringing to the Anglo-Saxon British-Israelite vast territories in Zululand, Amatongaland, and the Transvaal. Trade and commerce are conferring on the same race large accessions of dominion in North Borneo and the Basin of the Niger. Victory in war has given the British, in Upper Burmah, enormous territories, as large as France; and the preparations needed to resist a coming Russian invasion have forced Lord Dufferin to take possession of a province, the property of the Khan of Khelat, for which we have paid him a subsidy. So one portion after another is added to the Empire; and the final stage of our nation's expansion will never come, until God has given us what He has promised to bestow on us, because we are "the people of the saints of the Most High"—namely, "the kingdom, and the dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven;" our King being the Lord of hosts Himself—Jehovah-Jesus—whose will be the dominion for ever and for evermore (Dan. vii. 27).

Digitized by Google

This new extension of our Empire in India, North-westwards towards Afghanistan, in order that there an invasion by a first-class, gigantic, European Power may be met and vanquished, must impress even the thoughtless with the fact that in India we have an Empire built upon 250,000,000 of men of alien races, opposed in religion, manners, customs, and laws, many of them warlike by inclination and caste, and in some respects naturally constituting a grave danger to the continuance of our Power in the East. How do we dare to disregard these dangers, and consent to the enlargement of our responsibilities, even beyond the Suliman range? It is because we are Israel; because we have the defence of the God of Israel; and because He has bid us, as His people, "enlarge the place of our tents, stretch forth the curtains of our habitations, and spare not, but lengthen our cords, and strengthen our stakes, and . . . inherit the Gentiles" (Isa. liv. 2, 3). From the moment when we built our first Gate in Madras, in A.D. 1639, to the present hour, when our North-west frontier has been pushed forwards to the Khoja Amran range, beyond the Pishin Valley, towards Candahar, 1,700 miles away from the Coromandel coast, our advance has been unceasing and prosperous. Every step has been ordered by the Lord our God, and we have, as His people, followed the guidance of His hand. Hence we witness to-day the new annexation of a province of Beloochistan, beyond Scinde and the Indus; and we not only are not afraid, but we praise the Lord for His mercies to the people of His choice, even to Israel!

ISRAEL'S INCREASE OF POPULATION.

THE scientists are becoming alarmed, and from their point of view with just cause, at the incredible increase of Britain's population, and not only consider that increase no blessing, but a downright curse. A letter to that effect appeared in the Times of October 13th, in which "A Malthusian" expressed himself thus:—

MONEY VALUE OF HUMAN LIFE.

To the Editor of the "Times."

SIR,—It requires no arguments to show that England is very seriously over-populated. The increase in the last 50 years is under-estimated at 8,000,000, and the £159 value per head calculated by the late Dr. Farr (who died in 1883), is converted into a debit factor. Human over-production is evident in every profession and trade, and while the duration of life has risen 19 years, the population goes on increasing at an alarming rate of compound interest.

Between 1861—1871 in round numbers our population increased 3,000,000; between 1871 and 1881, 3,400,000; and between 1881 and 1891 it will be found to stand at nearer 4,000,000.

When a community is obliged to take up stock of any kind (but especially live stock) at the rate of 400,000 to 500,000 a year beyond its requirements, the stock becomes a curse and not a blessing—at least this is the opinion of

Yours truly,
A MALTHUSIAN.

So far the secular writer. He judges from man's point of view, but fails to consider that God may have a purpose of His own to answer in bringing about this excessive increase of a particular race of men or nation. A rate of increase which leapt up, from 1861 up to the present time, by numbers ranging from three to four millions per decade, and will soon be five millions as the nett increase in ten years, is abnormal and portentous. The writer in the Times evidently thinks the addition to the population is not required, and never can be utilised; and, therefore, constitutes a menace to our nation, a curse but not a blessing. If that be so, then, indeed, the British nation is in a bad way! For all trades and professions are clearly overstocked. If competition is not only pressing severely in all directions, reducing the chances of making a living everywhere, but the duration of life has also gone up nineteen years, so that death vacancies are rarer than they were before, then our people have good reason to mourn, but not to rejoice, at the prospect which lies before them. But when we bring the light of Scripture to bear upon this problem, and remember that the British folk are "The remnant of Israel," then another complexion is given to the matter; and we may bid the disciple of Malthus "cheer up," and wait upon the Lord to see how He means to bless us, even by what the worldly-wise declare to be an unmitigated "curse." In the first place, God declares this over-populousness to be a blessing! He promised it to our forefather Abraham as a blessing, and one adapted to a great and mighty end. His seed were to be "heirs of the world," to go out, occupy, and hold it for Christ; to do that, they needed, and were endowed with, the blessing of extreme multitudinousness. Their seed was to be like the stars, like the sand of the sea, like the dust of the earth, for multitude. And since "population" means "empire," the gift included with it universal dominion, which in this case was specially provided for by the declaration that "the kingdom, and the dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven were to be theirs, as the people of the saints of the Most High" (Dan. vii. 27). Colonies were promised them as a means to that end in Gen. xxxv. 11, xlix. 22, and xlviii. 19, and those colonies, like the rest of the earth promised them, required "people."

Here, then, is the secret of our nation's abnormal increase in these our own times, pointing to a mighty exodus to fill up the vacant spaces of the habitable earth, where already our people are going at the rate of 1,000 individuals per diem. This rate, of course, is already too small to keep pace with the abnormal increase; but when Africa opens up more largely than it has done yet, when the advantages of colonising North-west Canada and Australia, Tasmania and New Zealand, are more clearly seen, then we may expect a larger departure of our people to take possession of the earth preparatory to the greater exodus still which awaits us when "one of a city, and two of a family" throughout the Empire must take part in the grand returning procession, what time Israel and Manasseh unite to conduct Judah back to "the inheritance" as a "present" to the Lord, and Jehovah Himself, their King, goes before His people to guide them, and constitutes Himself their "rereward," a guard to protect them by the way" (Isa. lii. 12).

All these operations require a vast and overwhelming population. God, who foresaw the necessity, is now giving it to us His people, and so is arranging for the fulfilment of His oath, His promises, and covenants to "Abraham His friend," and "to his seed for ever." Our Malthusian, therefore, need be under no misapprehension or feel alarm. This matter of our national increase is under God's own special care and arrangement. Without it He could not, humanly speaking, carry out

Digitized by Google

His purposes of love and mercy to the world. It is the foundation, we see, of our world-wide Empire. It has given us our colonies, our Indian territories, the wealth these have brought us, our supremacy at sea, and our Gates. It has made ours the Imperial race of the world, and the foremost in it. But if we were to be deprived of this unique gift of rapid reproduction, what would be the result? We should fall back in the national scale like the French; we should cease to colonise for lack of men; we could not spare our people to hold India, Burmah, and the East; our wealth would be curtailed, and we should be disqualified to carry out the Scriptural functions of Israel or her prophetic mission either. Which God forbid! With our Bibles to instruct us, and the knowledge of Our Identity with Israel to guide us, we see the rapid advance of our people in numbers without the least dismay. We suffer like our neighbours, for the time being, by reason of the tremendous competition which our numbers bring; but even this has its compensations since it cheapens all productions, and food among the rest. But "there is a good time coming," which will show the disciple of Malthus that his views are misleading and inapplicable to our own nation, since the British are God's people Israel, and He promised them by oath that He would multiply them to bless them, and bless them (and the world as well) by increasing them exceedingly! Let Israel, therefore, praise the Lord and glorify His name (Gen. xxii. 17; Zech. x. 6—9; Isa. xxvi. 15, lxi. 9, liv. 1—3).

GREAT BRITAIN, THE SISTER ISLE, AND CONFEDERATION.

By John S. Anderson.

In the present condition of affairs with regard to Ireland, the following, from the Standard of Saturday, October 15, 1887, is very interesting and instructive:—

"Sir Samuel W. Baker, speaking at a Conservative meeting held in the Courtenay-street Hall, Newton Abbot, last evening, said he would not dilate upon the difficulties of Ireland, but at a time when Statesmen of the highest intellect had proposed the Confederation of our Colonies, it appeared ridiculous to consider the question of the separation of Ireland so close to our own home. He would not attempt to argue a question which had been so thoroughly threshed out as 'Home Rule for Ireland,' with a separate Parliament that would render her independent of Great Britain, but he would merely invite the simple question whether if such quasi-independence were granted, Ireland would be a loyal friend, or whether, no matter what terms were accorded to her, she would be disloyal and devoid of confidence? He imagined there were few who would be optimists. If Ireland would be loyal under a good administration, she had no need of a separate Parliament, which would create civil war with the Loyalists of Ulster. All present trusted that the Government was a good and a firm Administration, that would reform abuses, enforce respect and obedience to the laws, and that justice would be assured to every class. This policy was what it pleased Gladstonians to ridicule."

The argument used by Sir Samuel W. Baker, does not appear to have been previously brought prominently forward, but it is of very great weight, and should be urged on every opportunity. While our Government is determined faithfully to carry out their part of the contract, which Lord George Hamilton described as "a financial naval partnership" between this country and the Australian Colonies, by sending out H.M.S. Orlando, belted cruiser of 5,000 tons, 8,500 horse-power, and carrying two guns of twenty-two tons, and twenty-eight others of various dimensions, as the new Australian flagship, with other smaller craft to follow, thus making the first steps towards Imperial Federation, the question of the separation of Ireland so close to us, is, of course, ridiculous, and it is wonderful how any, with all the facts before them, could advocate such a policy for a moment.

Croydon, Oct. 22, 1887.

"THE CHURCH TIMES."

By Rev. Denis Hanan, B.D.

The Church Times of Sept. 30th, when arguing against the assumption by any church of the title "Mother" or "Mistress," makes some strange statements with respect to the tribes of Israel.

It will be remembered that the Ten Tribes of the Northern Kingdom never returned from captivity as tribes, but were dispersed amongst the Gentiles, pretty much as they have been ever since. The two tribes of the Southern Kingdom, on the other hand, did go back to Judæa, accompanied by a certain number of individuals from the rest of Israel. The Hebrews of the dispensation (or dispersion) who did not absolutely relapse into heathenism kept up the custom of making, if possible, at least one pilgrimage to Jerusalem, and hence at all the great festivals the Holy City was filled with "devout men out of every nation under Heaven." This was no doubt especially the case at Pentecost, because it fell at the season most suitable for travel, and it is reasonable to believe that in the year of the Crucifixion the throng of pilgrims was even greater than usual. From the list of countries named in Acts ii. it appears that they came from as far East as Parthia and as far West as Italy. It is further to be observed that St. Luke does not speak of "Romans," but as "strangers of Rome"—in other words, of a mixed multitude from Gaul, Spain, Germany, Britain, and in short, from every place West of the eternal city where Jews had settled. Now it is plain that the miracle of tongues was addressed to the foreign Jews, and was appreciated by them alone. Further, it will be observed that the three thousand who were baptized on the first Whitsun Day would be at the rate of 250 per tribe; and if it be assumed that the five hundred brethren to whom our Lord appeared at once, represented the strength of the believers before the Ascension, and so of the two home tribes, it will be seen that the new Israel was roughly speaking, drawn equally from the entire Jewish race. As the pilgrims came in parties each group of believers would form a ready-made Church, and, doubtless, when the time came for them to return home, each would go back completely ecclesiastically organised so far as was necessary for its full Church life. After baptism of Cornelius these little communities of Jewish Christians would begin to accept Gentile converts, and so develop into national Churches.

It results from these considerations that no Church has, or ever has had, any right to the title of "Mother" or "Mistress." Certainly Rome had none, and though Jerusalem till its fall remained a sort of head-quarters of the Apostles, it had just as little, for it will be seen that the church at the very first was overwhelmingly non-Palestinian in her character. From the very beginning she was Catholic. In her first year she must have comprised a hundred or two local churches scattered over the known world from beyond the Caspian to Britain. We say Britain because it has been ascertained that this island had a gold coinage at least a century and a-half B.C., and a gold coinage meant commerce, and commerce meant Jews. Such an origin, in fact, exactly suits the conditions of the British Church. There is no trustworthy history of her origin, and there does not seem to have ever been a time after the first Whitsuntide when she did not exist. It is also equally certain that Christianity was never driven out by heathen invasion; and though it may possibly be true that the British Christians did nothing directly for their persecutors in the sixth century, there is no reason to doubt that the Gospel which had spread from them to Ireland, and thence to the Picts, finally won for the Cross nearly all England north of the Thames.

Here we have the admission that Ten-Tribed Israel of the Northern Kingdom were in existence at the date of the day of Pentecost, and that they were to be found within a wide but defined area. But the writer of the article, and also presumably the editor, are so ignorant of the meaning of the statement that they are incapable of perceiving the ludicrousness of the illogical remark that a "new Israel was drawn equally from the entire Jewish race!" It is not difficult to estimate at its true value the further statement found in the same article—viz.

Two stories of our own times have also achieved great success One, written by an American named Spalding, fell into the hands of Joe Smith, and was developed by him into the Book of Mormon. The other fiction has not yet done much mischief, but it is at least as silly, and shows an ever-increasing tendency to generate sects—we refer to the fable of the Anglo-Israelites.

Digitized by Google

It is easy to formulate theories without evidence, and it is yet easier to jeer at statements based upon evidence the bearing of which there has been no attempt to master. How does this writer know that Twelve-Tribed Israel were, even "roughly speaking," the nuclei of the national churches of Christendom. It may be so: probably was so: but how does he know that the tribes which he says were represented by the various two hundred and fifties were at the time dispersed amongst the Gentiles, without, as is evidently implied, any national solidarity; or that they continued scattered in the same localities "ever since," although all other races moved. Where are they now? Perhaps as the Twelve Tribes of Israel were newly developed from one, they may have again reverted to their former condition and become the tribe of Judah! but we want some historic evidence of these changes. Perhaps the author might consider it "silly" to seek for them. We who know somewhat about the real condition of the peoples of that age, may be excused if we consider such statements weak and silly in the extreme.

The Jews are dispersed, but Ephraim-Israel was to be a nation for ever (Jer. xxxi. 36). The writer admits that they were in being in the year 33 A.D. Can he prove that they did not move westward, or that they had not increased, or that the Israelite nuclei of national churches "with and among" whom, according to St. Paul, the Gentile wild grafts were to partake, were absorbed by Gentile Christendom. Truly the book of Mormon has no more fanciful or faithless statement than this, and yet the Church Times presumes to class a sober opinion based upon evidence scriptural, historical, and scientific—evidence so unknown to the writer that he has not even been able to guard against expressions which display his ignorance, as on a par with the book of Mormon, and as "silly" when compared with his crude theories and illogical deductions.

We claim with reason for the British church the position which this article assigns to her without proof, and because we do this forsooth we are accused of "generating a sect." Nay, rather, "the conversion of the world" will not be accomplished, and divisions at home will not cease, until Israel Christianized and possessed of the inheritance of God's "firstborn," stands forth revealed as the Lord's medium of blessings to the uttermost parts of the earth; then it will be no longer silly or sectarian to know that the grace bestowed upon the Gentile wild grafts, was not incompatible with the full performance of every promise national and earthly, as well as spiritual and heavenly, which the Lord God of Israel (not of Judah alone) gave by covenant to Abraham and his seed for ever.

THE CRATER OF A VOLCANO IN THE MIDST OF ISRAEL.

We have heard it stated lately at a meeting in aid of the Church Pastoral Aid Society that we were all at the present moment sitting in this country on the crater of an active volcano, because there are five millions of our fellow countrymen in this land who are never seen within the walls of church or chapel, and are never reached by the ministrations of any denomination. "What," it is asked, "can be the end of such a state of things?" For these multitudes are practically heathen, and are never touched by the Gospel or the means of grace, by the Bible or the preacher of the Word? There is no doubt, if these facts are as stated, that our country is indeed in a very serious condition, spiritually; and it is clear too, that if some remedy be not speedily found, the result will, humanly speaking, be what it was in France at the end of the last century, and a volcanic political eruption of a violent revolutionary character will possibly take place, bringing misery and suffering on multitudes in our body politic.

There is no doubt, too, there are millions of our people now who have gone quite beyond the grasp of our clergy and ministers of religion. The Israelite blessing of multitudinousness is the chief cause of this state of things. The people increase too fast to enable the ministry to overtake their multitudes. There is reason to believe, however, as a check on any such outbreak of a violent character as that anticipated, that the Gospel has a widely extended indirect operation now which in some measure reaches our home heathen and mitigates the peril. The people do not darken the doors of church or chapel, it is true. But on the other hand, vast numbers of our laity and our godly missionary sisters visit them, do them good, preach to them in theatres, in cottages, and in the open air; whereby some are reached and saved. Allowing for this as in some measure a counteracting influence for good, it is clear that but for Our Identity this nation would be in a very bad way. But is there no hope, no remedy for our national evil case? And must we wait till the Church Pastoral Aid Society and kindred agencies have so far been reinforced by our sorely-pressed religious public that they will be able to draw these five millions of straying sheep into the net of the church or chapel before we can feel safe? Surely not! There is a remedy provided in the Word of God, and that remedy is ready to our hand to use; since this nation is Israel, and for Israel alone and exclusively is this blessing provided. What is it? and why are we not nationally using it to-day? It is found recorded in Jer. xxxi. 33, 34, and Heb. viii. 10—12; in Hebrew and in Greek both; in the New and Old Testaments alike, so that none may overlook it, or err therein! But men never use it, or plead with the Lord to apply the promised blessing to our race, because they do not believe this nation is Israel, and therefore cannot comprehend that the blessing can be claimed or expected by us!

Here then is a fresh reply to the inquiry, Cui bono? This promise of the New Covenant is the bonum which our nation sorely needs but dare not and does not ask for, since it is so blind that it cannot see that it is itself "Lost Israel found," entitled to the boon! But once let the nation know itself to be Israel, and ascertain from God's Word that it is entitled to the New Covenant blessing, to cure all its terrible, horrible sins, miseries and sorrows, then will "the good" of Our Identity be manifest to the most dull intellect among us, and men will see that they must ask the Lord for this His blessing, since "He will yet for this be inquired of by the House of Israel to do it for them" (Ezek. xxxvi. 37).

The blessing in question is just the one to reach the five millions of our home heathen, as our Pastoral Aid and other Societies never can, or will. For it will put God's law in the hearts and minds of these poor blinded, neglected creatures. It will make them "God's people" and He "their God." There will be no need then of the Pastoral Aid Society's ministrations, saying "Brother! neighbour! know the Lord!" for then "they will all know Him, from the least of them to the greatest of them, and their sins and their iniquities He the Lord will remember no more" (Jer. xxxi. 33, 34). When the time comes for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the masses of Israel then will men be put upon praying for the gift. The time is not yet come, and consequently we see our five millions of sinful ones going on still in their wickedness. But this will come to its end at the appointed time; and meanwhile there is no fear that any volcano will burst forth under our feet, or that our nation will be rent asunder by reason of the dangerous classes in our midst. For we are Israel, and therefore God, even our own God, will keep and preserve us from this and every other danger, for "He who keepeth Israel" cannot, and will not, and does not slumber or sleep. "He will preserve us from all evil!" Therefore, let Israel never fear, but praise the Lord continually! (Psa. cxxi. 1—8).

Digitized by Google

EXTRACT FROM THE OPENING ADDRESS IN THE ANTHROPOLOGICAL SECTION OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION (1887), BY THE PRESIDENT, PROF. A. H. SAYCE, M.A.

FORWARDED BY ARTHUR B. PROWSE, M.D.

LANGUAGE is a characteristic of a community, and not of an individual. The neglect of this fact has introduced untold mischief, not only into philology, but into ethnology as well. Race and language have been confused together, and the fact that a man speaks a particular language has too often been assumed, in spite of daily experience, to prove that he belongs to a particular race. When scholars had discovered that the Sanskrit of India belonged to the same linguistic family as the European languages, they jumped to the conclusion that the dark-skinned Hindu and the light-haired Scandinavian must also belong to one and the same race. Time after time I have taken up books which sought to determine the racial affinities of savage or barbarous tribes by means of their language alone. Language and race, in short, have been used as synonymous terms.

The fallacy is still so common, still so frequently peeps out where we should least expect it, that I think it is hardly superfluous, even now, to draw attention to it. And yet we have only to look around us to see how contrary it is to all the facts of experience. We Englishmen are bound together by a common language, but the historian and the craniologist will alike tell us that the blood that runs in our veins is derived from a very various ancestry. Kelt and Teuton, Scandinavian and Roman, have struggled together for the mastery in our island since it first came within the horizon of history; and in the remoter days of which history and tradition are silent, archæology assures us that there were yet other races who fought and mingled together. The Jews have wandered through the world adopting the languages of the peoples amongst whom they have settled, and in Transylvania they even look upon an old form of Spanish as their sacred tongue. The Cornishman now speaks English. Is he on that account less of a Kelt than the Welshman or the Briton?

Language, however, is not wholly without value to the ethnologist. Though a common language is not a test of race, it is a test of social contact. And social contact may mean—indeed, very generally does mean—a certain amount of intermarriage as well. The penal laws passed against the Welsh in the fifteenth century were not sufficient to prevent marriages now and then between the Welsh and the English; and in spite of the social ostracism of the negro in the Northern States of America, intermarriages have taken place there between the black and the white population. But in the case of such intermarrying the racial traits of one member only of the union are as a general rule preserved. The physical and moral type of the stronger parent prevails in the end, though it is often not easy to tell beforehand on which side the strength will lie. Sometimes, indeed, the physical and moral characters are not inherited together, the child following one of his parents in physical type, while he inherits his moral and intellectual qualities from the other. But even in such cases the types preserve a wonderful fixity, and testify to the difficulty of changing what we call the characteristics of race.

Herein lies one of the most obvious differences between race and language, a difference which is of itself sufficient to show how impossible it must be to argue from the one to the other. While the characteristics of race seem almost indelible, language is as fluctuating and variable as the waves of the sea. It is perpetually changing in the mouths of its speakers; nay, the individual can even forget the language of his childhood and acquire another which has not the remotest connection with it. A man cannot rid himself of the characteristics of race, but his language is like his clothing, which he can strip off and change almost at his will.

BRITANNIA, THE DAUGHTER OF ZION—VASTNESS OF COLONIAL POSSESSIONS.

BY THE REV. THOMAS LOWE, M.B.A.S.
(Stratford-on-Avon).

THE vast influence of our island home over the million masses of the world is a great fact. This sea-girt, densely-peopled land, so insignificant on the map of our globe, so infinite in its social relations, is ubiquitous, for who can measure its shores or put a boundary to its possessions?

Whence this energy and life so conspicuous in the English race? Does it belong in a particular manner to islanders? Then we ought to have many rivals, equally daring and brave. Where are they? Our French neighbours, chivalrous, intelligent, brave, full of force and genius as they really are, have no colonies in the slightest degree comparable to our splendid possessions.

The grand German nation, great as they are as a political and military power, and in arts, and in literature, in wealth and resistless force of character, have equally signally failed in the world's colonization. Borneo is 1,500 miles in circumference, with fine rivers, iron, tin, loadstone in its mountains, and what England has not, brilliant diamonds.

What about New Holland, New Zealand, and Madagascar, teeming with natural beauties and advantages, with cataracts rivalling Niagara, scenes of Italian beauty, a soil of surpassing fertility, ebony and rose woods springing in every direction. The least labour produces 400-fold. The inhabitants hospitable, simple, brave, not idolaters, imbued with religious principles of the Old Testament type.

Why with such resources in Borneo and Madagascar at least not attempt to rival England? They are stationary. We are full of vitality, elasticity, energy, and perfectly free. No country, no power can encroach upon our land or crampour mighty energies.

The aggregate year's trade of our outlying empire alone now exceeds by over £100,000,000 sterling the total value of the whole trade of the United Kingdom in 1851. Now the tonnage of our ports abroad exceeds that of our home ports by 13,000,000 of tons.

Although home revenue has very largely increased, it is less by £22,000,000 sterling than the aggregate revenue of the rest of the empire.

"Thou shalt suck the milk of the Gentiles, and shalt suck the breast of Kings," &c. (Isa. lx. 16).

"Whom the Lord of hosts shall bless: Israel Mine inheritance" (Isa. xix. 25).

"I will be as the dew unto Israel, he shall grow as the lily and cast forth his roots as Lebanon. His branches shall spread, and his beauty shall be as the olive tree, and his smell as Lebanon" (Hos. xiv. 5, 6).

> "This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England,
> This nurse, this teeming womb of royal kings,
> Feared by their breed, and famous by their birth,
> This dear, dear land,
> Dear for her reputation through the world."

Such, according to Shakespeare, is this haunt and home of the Israel of God:—this "stone set in the silver sea."

"Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion, thy king cometh unto thee, and His dominion shall be from sea to sea, and from the river, even unto the ends of the earth" (Zech. ix. 10).

OBITUARY.—We regret to have to record the death of Mr. Henry Bailey Thompson, which took place at his residence, 58, Church Way, North Shields, on November 22nd. Mr. Thompson was Secretary to the Borough of Tynemouth Anglo-Israel Association, and also agent to the Free Distribution Fund at North Shields. He was a most indefatigable man, although aged 78, and a most industrious distributor of Anglo-Israel literature in connection with the Free Distribution Fund. His loss is simply irreparable at present.

Digitized by Google

A REPLY TO "CUI BONO?" FROM AUCKLAND, NEW ZEALAND.

We take the following from the Auckland Evening Bell of Saturday, June 4, 1887, and beg our readers to notice how able an apologist and advocate we have at the Antipodes, in New Zealand.

ANGLO-ISRAELISM.

Cui bono? Of what good is it?

There is no objection to Anglo-Israel views oftener heard than the one, "Of what good is it? What does it all matter?" Some say, "I am a Christian, and that is enough for me, no amount of belief in what you teach, supposing it to be true, could make me one whit better or ensure my admission eventually into the Kingdom of Heaven." This argument it is needless to point out is utterly and entirely selfish; he who uses it is wrapt up in his own individuality; he is safe, what need he care for others, he is not his brother's keeper. Others again say, even granting the truth of it, How is it possible for mortal man to do anything to hasten the time when the identification of Britain with Israel shall be established? The times are in God's hand, and nothing that man can do will hasten or retard the result one moment.

This objection is simply rank fatalism, and might be equally as reasonably urged against prayer of all sorts. We are told, and as Bible believers we are bound to accept as truth, that "the effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." We are told distinctly to "pray for the peace of Jerusalem," and in even still stronger language we are told "to keep not silence, and give God no rest, until He establish, and until He make Jerusalem a praise on the earth." It seems, therefore, plain that although the omniscient God, who knows all things from the beginning, and who therefore knows the day and the hour when these things shall come to pass, still leaves the whole matter to be brought about by man's agency.

Instances also have over and again occurred of infidels being brought to believe in the truth of the Bible and in Jesus Christ, through a careful study of the Anglo-Israel view of Scripture. A professed infidel, who gives his name and address, writing to an English paper, says: "I am a Freethinker, and therefore an infidel, but I frankly confess that this Anglo-Israel theory has made me think very differently of the Bible; and should I ever live to see the restoration of the Jews to Palestine, and the British identified with Israel, I will lay my hand on the Bible and confess that, however many errors have crept in through writers and translators, I can no longer deny its inspiration."

God, through the prophet Ezekiel, says, "I will yet for this (that is, the restoration of Israel to their own land) be enquired of by the House of Israel to do it for them." This evidently points to national prayer, and this national prayer must precede the restoration of Israel to God's favour and to their own land. Now it is quite clear that humanly speaking a national prayer, such as this, can never be offered up until the truths of identity teaching have been spread far and wide, and until a considerable number of people have been found willing to accept them.

But there is another answer to the question, Cui bono? and it is one that few seem able to realise, that is, the position in which Anglo-Israelism places our nation in relation to the Supreme Being. The ordinary orthodox Christian accepts in a vague sort of way that all nations are equal, and that all men are equal in the sight of God; if pressed upon this point, he will say that God is a just God, and therefore He cannot make any distinctions between nations and individuals. Now, if there is one fact more clear than another to be found in the pages of the Bible, it is this, that out of all the families of all the nations of the earth, God, to the exclusion of all other families and nations, chose one man, Abraham, through whom and through whose descendants He willed that all the families of the earth should be blessed.

God's unconditional promise to Abraham is as follows: there are no conditions attached to it whatever:—"By Myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, that in blessing, I will bless thee, and in multiplying, I will multiply thy seed as the stars of heaven, and thy seed shall possess the Gate of his enemies; and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." This unconditional promise was confirmed to Isaac, and afterwards to Jacob, and subsequently to Jacob's twelve sons. The promise was of a twofold character; it contained a promise of a purely spiritual nature, and one that was as clearly of a purely temporal or national character. The spiritual portion of the blessing was confirmed to the tribe of Judah, through which branch of the family Christ came, whereas the temporal or national blessings were confirmed to Joseph, the representative of the Ten Tribes and Manasseh.

Jacob, on his death-bed, gathered his twelve sons around him to tell them what should befall them in the last days, that is during the Christian dispensation; and to Judah he says:—"The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh comes, and unto him shall the gathering of the people be." But to Joseph he said:—"Joseph is a fruitful bough, even a fruitful bough by a well, whose branches run over the wall; the archers have sorely grieved him, and shot at him, and hated him; but his bow abode in strength, and the arms of his hands were made strong by the hands of the mighty God of Jacob, from hence is the shepherd, the stone of Israel, even by the God of thy father who shall help thee; and by the Almighty who shall bless thee, with blessings from heaven above, blessings of the deep that lieth under, blessings of the breast, and of the womb, the blessings of thy father have prevailed above the blessings of my progenitors unto the utmost bounds of the everlasting hills: they shall be on the head of Joseph, and on the crown of the head of him that was separate from his brethren."

The whole matter is briefly summed up in 1 Chron. v. 2, in the words:—"For Judah prevailed above his brethren, and of him came the chief ruler; but the birthright was Joseph's." The chief ruler was the Messiah, but the birthright which was Joseph's included temporal and national blessings only.

Up to the time of the appearance of Christ on earth, the Jewish nation represented the kingdom of God. At that time the nation of Israel had been cast out of their land for their sins and were divorced from God; they were as the prophet Hosea tells them: "Lo-ammi, for you are not My people, and I will not be your God." But on Christ coming all was changed; the Jews rejected Him, and He distinctly told them: "The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." The kingdom was taken from Judah and transferred to Israel. Christ's mission on earth was a double one: in the first place to redeem Israel, and in the second place to bring blessing to the whole world through redeemed Israel.

Anglo-Israelites are accused, in consequence of their promulgating these views, of teaching salvation through Abraham, instead of through Christ, but they do nothing of the sort; they believe Christ came to save all, whether Jew, Gentile or Israelite, who sincerely trust in Him, but at the same time nothing can be clearer than the Bible teaching that Christ came in the flesh to Israel and to Israel only. His own words were: "I am not sent save unto the lost sheep of the House of Israel," and His instructions to His apostles were, "Go not in the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not, but go to the lost sheep of the House of Israel." The Virgin Mary, prior to the birth of Christ, speaking under inspiration, says: "He hath holpen His servant Israel in remembrance of His mercy; as He spake to our fathers, to Abraham, and his seed for ever."

There is no allusion here, whatever, to Gentiles, or to the salvation of the world; it is Israel only that is mentioned, and God's former promise to Abraham. So also, when John the Baptist was born we find his father Zacharias also under inspiration, for it is said "He was filled with the Holy Ghost, and prophesied," in referring to the birth of Christ, and the era of peace and prosperity that was then foreshadowed to Israel saying: "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for He hath visited and redeemed His people."

It will be observed here that God is mentioned as the God of Israel, and it was "His people" that He came to visit and redeem. The Gentiles did not require to be redeemed; they wanted salvation, but Israel, in addition to salvation, needed redemption, in order that she might carry out her God-ordained mission, Zechariah goes on to say "that God had raised up a horn of salvation for Israel in the House of Judah, as He spake by the mouth of His holy prophets, that Israel should be saved from her enemies and from the hands of all that hate her, to perform the mercy promised to the patriarchs, and to remember the holy covenant and the oath that He swore to Abraham." Nothing could very well be more explicit than these words. It is Israel from beginning to end.

In this matter-of-fact nineteenth century there are few things more difficult to realise than our position amongst the nations; in consequence of the fact that we are Israel, few people attempt to conceive or try to realise what God is; they accept the idea of the Deity, they allow His attributes, and then forthwith cavil at the way He chooses to carry out His work. God says Israel shall never cease from being a nation so long as day and night last, and the sun and moon and stars remain in the heaven. But, say the parsons, "You mustn't take that literally, because we know positively that Israel has ceased from being a nation; so whatever God may have meant, He did not mean that the people of Israel should remain what we understand by the word nation, what He no doubt intended to convey was that there would always be good people in the world." Well, we say, take the Bible and look at the promises made to Israel, and see how exactly they describe the position of Britain at the present time. "Yes, indeed," say the parsons, "quite a series of most extraordinary coincidences; but really the whole thing is too ridiculously absurd to suppose that the English people can be Israel; God is no respector of persons," etc., etc. The ridiculous absurdity on our part is believing that when God says a thing He means it, that when He says Israel shall always be a nation under a monarchy, that He meant the literal people themselves, that when He addresses them in their islands, He knew that they were congregated in islands at the time He was addressing them. No, said a parson, "when islands are mentioned in the Bible it does not mean a portion of land surrounded by water; it means the Christian's heart surrounded by the love of God!" Another clergyman told the writer, not long since, that "the Hittites and Amalekites and other Canaanitish nations mentioned in the Bible as enemies of Israel, never really existed in the flesh; the whole thing was an allegory, and really represented our spiritual enemies." To a plain, ordinary common-sense Englishman all this appears as the most unmitigated nonsense. However, it is taught in our churches: and as many people prefer having these matters thought out for them by somebody else rather than tackle them themselves, they go to church, sit and listen, and go away again feeling a sensation of relief that it is all over for another week.

Digitized by Google

But, as we were saying, if we could realise in the faintest degree the power and might and majesty of God and then try and grasp, in all its mysterious grandeur, the full meaning of the passage, "The Lord hath chosen Jacob for Himself; Israel for His peculiar treasure," or if it were possible for us to grasp the meaning of the announcement made by God through the prophet Jeremiah, that "His whole heart and His whole soul was engaged upon restoring His people to their own land." Then it might be possible for us to realise our true position, and we should see clearly how all mundane matters are gradually but certainly working towards this grand consummation, and we should understand what St. Paul meant when he said "that the whole creation was waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God." The "sons of God" are Israel. For the prophet Hosea says to Israel, "Where it was said unto you, ye are not My people, there it shall be said unto you, ye are the Sons of the living God." This manifestation of the sons of God, or in other words the identification of the lost House of Israel, her recognition and restoration, is according to the Bible, the grand climax upon which the attention of all the hosts of Heaven are directed, and upon which (deeply mysterious utterance) the whole heart and whole soul of the God of heaven, and earth is also directed. And yet puny insignificant man will sneer and say Cui Bono? of what good is it? and will argue that it is a matter of no consequence one way or the other.

So far our Auckland friend. We have no certain knowledge as to his identity, since the paper is anonymous. But we would beg our readers to notice how exactly his views on the various points he deals with are in accord with our own, and how, reading the Scriptures literally, as no doubt they were intended to be read by the Spirit of God, he comes to precisely the same conclusions we have reached in these Isles of the West. No doubt our friend is hard upon "the parsons," as he terms the "shepherds of Israel." We do not wish to be disrespectful to them, since some of our best friends and our staunchest Anglo-Israelites are clergy and ministers of religion. But in spite of that it is undeniable that the pulpit is the great obstacle to the advance of our views, for the shepherds are as a body opposed, and the sheep who follow them fear to accept ideas which their guides tell them are dangerous and noxious, and should therefore be avoided. We are quite ready for this result, because we believe God has so arranged it, and Ezek. xxxiv. seems to inform us what the end will be. It is ours meanwhile to publish our evidence far and wide, and leave all results to Him for whose glory and praise Israel was "formed, created and made" (Isa. xliii. 1, 7. 21); and who will provide in due time for the discovery of His now "lost" or hidden people. Then to Him (but not before) will be all the praise, but to His opponents, then too all the confusion and the pain (Ezek. xxxix. 21, 22).

LORD BRASSEY ON IMPERIAL FEDERATION.

In June last Lord Brassey made a speech at Melbourne on the subject of Imperial Federation, at a banquet given in his honour by "The Victorian Branch of the Imperial Federation League," the Mayor being in the chair. The account of Lord Brassey's speech, taken from The Age of Melbourne, we quote from the issue of June 27. It is beyond our power to reproduce the report of the whole meeting, but we quote his lordship's speech because in it we observe some references to Identity points, though they are all unwittingly mentioned. His Lordship witnessed to our general likeness to Israel, but his evidence was given in "blindness." He spoke as follows:—

Lord Brassey said that as treasurer of the Imperial Federation League established in London it afforded him the greatest pleasure and gratification to be their guest. Their work in the old country would be of little value unless it were approved and supported by public opinion in these great and growing Colonies. Speaking on behalf of the Imperial Federation League, it was proper that he should say that they had no cut-and-dried plans which they were anxious to put forward, but they wished to recognise the difficulties they would have to contend with in arriving at any solution of the question of Federation. (Hear, hear.) As with their growth in population, in wealth, and in the resources of the Colonies, the league anticipated that they would see more and more displayed a manly and independent attitude on the part of the Colonies, not only by their incorporation for their own defence, but to share the responsibilities in the defence of the united Empire. With increased participation in the burdens the Colonies must necessarily receive an increased share in determining the policy of the Empire. The league, without laying down any particular doctrine, said there was a necessity for some futher approach to the settlement of Imperial Federation. They did not desire a hasty solution. They should deprecate a hasty solution, and probably the wisest solution would be of a gradual, piecemeal character, dealing with circumstances as they arose. (Applause.) But for wise action when the necessity arose they wished to pave the way by timely and temperate discussion. (Hear, hear.) The views of the members of the league were very well put in one of his latest speeches by that grand statesman of the old country, Mr. W. E. Forster, the first president the league had. He said:—

"The idea of the permanent unity of the realm, the duty of preserving the union, the blessings which its preservation will confer, the danger and loss and disaster which follow from disunion, are thoughts which possess the minds of Englishmen, both here and over the seas. These thoughts are expressing themselves in deeds. Let this expression continue; at present it helps our cause far more effectually than any possible scheme." (Cheers.)

He (Lord Brassey) was not one of those who ever doubted the loyalty of the Colonies to old England, and if any Englishman were in doubt as to the feelings of the Colonies towards the mother country, the evidence of the past week in this noble city of Melbourne would have done much to expel it, and dispel it effectually. At the outset of the week they had seen the noble force of militia march past like a wall to the tune of the "Old Folks at Home." It might seem a very small thing, but it conveyed a touching sentiment to the spectator from the old land. (Hear.) Then followed the ball given at Government House—an entertainment, the splendour of which could hardly have been exceeded in any capital of Europe. Added to that was not only the graceful hospitality of the host and hostess, but there was shown a great desire in those who were present to seize the occasion of showing an undying attachment to the Queen in whose honour the ball was given. On the following day the hall of Parliamentary buildings, which by the beauty of their design and the amplitude of their proportions were expressive of the greatness that the country was now in a position to anticipate, was dedicated in a generous spirit of loyalty to the name of the Queen. (Cheers.) On the evening of the same day they had attended a concert of colossal proportions, in which, on four several and separate occasions, the national anthem was sung, and on each occasion with increasing fervour. On the following day 30,000 children were brought together trained to utter the sentiments of their parents in that national anthem they sang so well; and in a journey in some of the remoter parts of the colony they (Lord and Lady Brassey) had also heard the national anthem sung by little children, thus early trained in the sentiment of loyalty. If they passed from these incidents they came to considerations of a more permanent and serious character. What were the conclusions which an intelligent traveller from the old country would draw with reference to the ties which bind the colonies to the mother country? If he looked at our society and our family life he found the same manners, the same habits, and same ways of viewing circumstances and things. Our English tastes were shown in the houses we built, the clothes we wore, and the goods we bought. The national character of the Anglo-Saxon race was shown as strongly here as in the old country in our marked devotion to manly sports and pastimes; and when we thought of other ties which bound us—a common faith, a common literature, the same dear mother tongue—it seemed to him that scarcely any other conclusion could be drawn by the intelligent traveller than this: that the ties which bind the colonies to the mother country are stronger than those which any legislation or any statesmanship could provide—(cheers)—and that they were implanted in the innermost life of the people. They might call that union which bound them to each other in one empire a Federation, an offensive and defensive alliance of the very closest kind; and this led him to think that that combining force which they had seen during the Jubilee week was destined to prove of the utmost value in the future. There was a time when the colonial connection was less valued than it was at present—at any rate by some of the eminent statesmen of the old country; but since the days of which he spoke great changes had taken place. The map of the earth had been reconstructed, and our tight little island—small indeed in comparison with the great territories of Continental Europe—had grown into a great and powerful nation, and instead of having her children disunited from her, the great English-speaking nations who had overspread the globe by remaining together had now become the first nation of the earth. He thought there were some advantages with regard to the continuance of the unity of the British Empire that might perhaps in former days not have been anticipated. Science had, however, done much to shorten distance, and had given us the electric telegraph, the improved and improving steamship, and the railway, and these had the effect of giving to the colonies such importance that it must almost necessarily follow the Imperial policy would be concentrated more and more upon the objects which were common to the colonies and to the mother country. The policy would be directed to the maintenance in security of the connection of the mother country with her colonies. (Applause.) Looking toward a not very distant time it was evident that the growth of the colonies in population and power would be such that they would have a dominating interest in the waters adjacent to their own shores. With the growth in trade their relations would become closer and closer, and they would be in a position no less strong than that of the mother country itself in preventing the hoisting of any flag hostile to our own. He believed they would hold together all parts of the British Empire, because it would be to their advantage to do so. If they wished to find any reason for that there was no better illustration than the manner in which the colonies had flourished in the past. Looking at it from this, our point of view, there were some considerations of a business character not to be lost sight of. England, for instance, lent the colonies capital on more reasonable terms than would be the case were they not a portion of the British Empire. From a colonial point of view he could not do better than endorse the words of Sir James MacDonald when he said:—

Digitized by Google

"We want no independence in this country except the independence that we have at this moment. What country in the world is more independent than we are? We have perfect independence. We have a Sovereign who allows us to do as we please; we have an Imperial Government that casts on ourselves the responsibilities as well as the privileges of self-government; we may govern ourselves as we please; we may misgovern ourselves as we please; we put a tax on the industries of our fellow subjects in England, Ireland and Scotland. If we are attacked, if our shores are assailed, the mighty powers of England on land and sea are used in our defence."

There were some who thought that the union of the Empire could not be maintained, because it was difficult to reconcile the impetuosity of youth with the prudence of old age. (Cheers.) They thought that the colonists might be inclined to make a rush for an object with all the impetuosity of youth, and would resent the perhaps excessive prudence with which the mother country thought they should act, but he ventured to contend that upon a wise view of it they would find as they recognised the characteristic qualities of each—each quality having its corresponding degree in youth and age—one reason the more why it might be prudent for those who were young to remain in one common bond with the more aged mother country. (Hear, hear.) The father of philosophy, the historian, Thucydides, had put into the mouth of the orator Alcibiades a view of this subject which seemed to him to contain a great truth—that youth and age had no power unless united. He hoped that the philosophic view would be illustrated by a policy in which the affairs of the British Empire might be directed by the young colonies and the dear old motherland. (Hear, hear.) He felt deeply grateful to them for having invited him to be their guest, and he most particularly appreciated the presence of so many of their eminent men. He did not for one moment suppose that they had assembled there simply to pay him a compliment as an unworthy individual. They had come, he must assume—and he was glad to make the assumption—in order to express their deep interest in the important question upon which the Imperial Federation League was engaged. He could assure his hearers of this—that he should go back to old England deeply touched by the love which he had seen the people in these colonies show to that mother country—that dear old England—whose greatest pride it was to be the mother of mighty nations. (Loud cheers.) He could not sit down without acknowledging, on behalf of Lady Brassey, the kindness which they had shown in the mention of her name. He would be a faithful reporter of their proceedings to his dear wife, and felt sure that she would cordially appreciate the kind reception given to her name. (Cheers.)

The Mayor proposed her Majesty's Ministers in Victoria. It would be a great pleasure for them to hear from Lord Brassey that this great question of the Federation of the Empire was exciting men's attention. What the Premier had heard might perhaps induce him to deal with the question of the Federation of the Australasian colonies. (Applause.)

"The mother land with her colonies;" "a great and powerful nation;" with "the great English-speaking nations who had overspread the globe;" "now become the first nation of the earth;" these and such as these were Lord Brassey's expressions when he was describing Britain and her colonies. But so doing he was only using the Scriptural phrases which picture to us Israel's condition in "the latter days," or our times. A reference to the following passages of Scripture will prove it is so. Thus Gen. xviii. 18 describes Abraham's afterseed, Israel. Isa. xxvii. 6 tells of Israel's future destiny, "to blossom and bud, and to fill the face of the world with fruit." Deut. xxviii. 1, 13, of God's promises that Israel should be "above only and not beneath" all other races upon the face of the earth, constituting her "the first nation of the earth."

SYDENHAM BRITISH-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.—The first meeting of this Association was held on Tuesday evening in the Oddfellows' Hall, Colombo-road. After some routine business was gone through, Mr. T. M. Gee, the President, delivered an opening address, in which he pointed out the objects of the Association; the kind of evidence for believing the British to be the lineal descendants of the Lost Ten Tribes, the spirit in which the inquiry should be made, and the benefits to be derived from such an inquiry. Some discussion took place after the address, and a vote of thanks was passed to the President. Several new members were elected. The Association now numbers about twenty-four. The subject for discussion at the next meeting was announced to be "The distinction between the Houses of Judah and Israel."—From The Press, Christchurch, New Zealand, Sept. 2nd, 1887.

Digitized by Google

BIBLICAL CRITICISM AND EGYPTIAN EXPLORATION.

By F. Gass.

It is pleasant to learn that the new school of Biblical critics, of the destructive sort, led by Kuenen and Wellhausen, has been dealt a heavy blow by Reginald Stuart Poole, LL.D.,* an able Egyptian scholar, who has come forward as the champion of the antiquity of the Pentateuch.

The theory of the critics, which is now attracting so much attention, goes very far indeed. They hold that the five books of Moses, so called, and the Book of Joshua, are a series of documents, three in number. The first was written during the conflict with Assyria. The second is the Book of Deuteronomy, produced in Josiah's reign. The third consists of the greater part of the Hebrew legislation, put together after the return from Babylon. The dates are said to be about B.C. 750, 600, and 450. The Books of Judges, Samuel, and part of Kings were modified to bring them into line with the legal codes. The name of Moses was used to clothe the whole with a fictitious authority. This summarises the theory without going into side issues.

But the hypothesis rests on a suspicious basis. The system of dates being assumed, the agreements with the later legal codes in the group of historical books, which are earlier by the theory, are asserted to be interpolations, or modifications. The frequency with which the critics, in support of their theory, have to resort to the assertion that the text is corrupted is amazing, which destroys the weight of the evidence of these historical books in favour of the hypothesis. Wellhausen and his followers do not scruple to cut away any passages that tell against it.

Dr. Poole aptly compares the controversy as to the unity and date of the Homeric poems, at the close of last century, with the hypothesis of the new school as to the later date of the Pentateuch. Eminent critics argued that the Homeric poems were the work of several authors welded together into the form that Homer now presents. The date of the final welding was not about B.C. 850, but nearly five centuries later, about B.C. 400. The argument in both cases, Biblical and Homeric, is the existence of apparent internal discrepancies, and the inability to find a trace of the Homeric poems in any writer earlier than B.C. 400. The facts stated are not denied, but the inference is shown to be false by the evidence of archæology. The internal discrepancies are now put aside by the consent of the scholars of Europe, as of no moment. Universal scholastic judgment has destroyed the argument. Due weight is allowed to the difficulties, but they are not admitted as evidence of later date.

An elaborate statement of Kuenen is exposed. He states that the whole affair of the priests and Levites having particular cities set apart for them is unhistorical. "There is not," says he, "a single trace of such cities for priests and Levites in trustworthy historical accounts. They are the product of the imagination of a priestly historical writer." Kuenen repeats that not a trace of these cities can be produced from other historical sources. "But," answers Dr. Poole, "it strangely happens that there is a trustworthy historical account, which proves that the Levitical cities had been constituted about five centuries before the supposed date of their invention." He then cites the contemporary list of Shishak's conquests for authority. In this list there are seventeen identifications of these cities, which have been known and undisputed for twenty-three years. Pul, king of Assyria, was banished by the critics as a fictitious person, but very recently Pul has been discovered in a cuneiform inscription, and is acknowledged to be a historical character.

* "The Dates of the Pentateuch—Theory and Facts."—The Contemporary Review, September, 1887,

Space compels the passing on at once to what will be of special interest to Banner readers, and in which Dr. Poole is on his own ground, the new Egyptian explorations. Mr. Naville's excavations for the "Egyptian Exploration Fund" have had brilliant results in support of the accuracy of the geographical and historical statements of the Pentateuch—the discovery of the store-city of Pithom at Tell-el-Maskhuta, on the sweet-water canal. This city was the centre of the district of Thukut, a name identified with the Biblical Succoth. Pithom as the centre of the district of Succoth, indicated the second station on the Exodus route. Therefore this route was along the line of the sweet-water canal, the older canal of King Rameses. There has always been a difficulty in explaining why Goshen and Rameses should be used interchangeably in the narrative of Genesis. It now appears that the town Ramses was close to Goshen, if it were not the same place rebuilt. It superseded Goshen as the capital of the district. This is a small but significant detail, which would not be likely to be known to a scribe writing at the period of the captivities. These discoveries exactly fulfil the geographical conditions of the Exodus march. Two days' march along the fertile valley, and then the wilderness is reached, bringing the crossing place to the highest part of the ancient extension of the Gulf of Suez.

The Egyptian monumental evidence allows eighty-one to eighty-six years for the most dire period of the oppression, to which Exodus assigns eighty years. The character of Rameses the oppressor, and Meneptah, his son, believed to be the Pharaoh of the Exodus, is shewn by the Egyptian records to agree precisely with the Biblical record. Rameses is an unscrupulous tyrant, and Meneptah is a weak likeness of his father—arrogance followed by suddenly giving way. At a momentous period of his reign he resigned the command of his army to one of his generals, and thus lost the credit of the victory.

Putting together Hebrew and Egyptian chronology, it is found that Joseph's government was under the Hyksos or Shepherd kings. Just at this time, as related in Genesis, there was a famine, according to the monuments, "lasting many years." In Egypt famines are remarkably rare. In its whole history there is but one which had a like duration, the great seven years' famine in the eleventh century of our era. Thus the identity of Genesis and the Egyptian record is most remarkable. There is an Egyptian colouring in the story of Pharaoh's dreams; Joseph's investiture is seen portrayed in a like function; his office was repeated on two subsequent occasions. The central action of an Egyptian novel, written about the time of the Exodus, seems to have been suggested by the story of the trial of Joseph. The history of Joseph has been a constant subject of ridicule, but, at last, the Egyptian explorations bring out the truth of the Bible story. A strong light has been flashed into the gloom by the statement that the Hebrews marched out of Egypt in military order, a fact that the critics have noted for its "grotesque improbability." In front of this unexpected and independent evidence, will the hypothesis of the critics stand: that the Biblical documents were written many centuries later than the date of the events they so vividly describe?

The cause of the defenders of the genuineness of the oldest books of the Bible is thus seen to be progressing splendidly.

The monumental discoveries are beyond dispute, and accepted by Egyptologists. The Egyptian explorations are as yet in their infancy, so far as the Bible narrative is concerned. Next year, Mr. Naville will continue his work in eastern Lower Egypt, the Israelite territory. It would be a grand anti-climax to the boastings of the idolatory-admiring school of Egyptologists, if that ancient land delivered up from the silence of its invading sands and over-covering debris, evidence that will lead to the capitulation of the Old Testament critics. Faithful men of learning have long looked forward with vivid hope to this consummation.

Digitized by Google

TWO THOUGHTS.

By L. P.

The late Bishop Titcomb, in the "Anglo-Israel Post-Bag," refers, in the last paragraph but one, to the Anglo-Israel theory as a matter which "admits of no absolute demonstration." The spirit of this remark seems to me unnecessarily and unwisely to suggest that the opposition of those who contend against us is reasonable. In reply to those Christians who make similar observations, might we not ask:—

"How do you know that your Redeemer liveth?"

"By the Scriptures, Old and New," is answered.

"On those Scriptures rests our belief," we remark.

"We lean on fulfilled prophecies," say our opponents.

"That is the ground on which we alone assert we are Israel," is our reply.

"We have internal evidence with us," is urged.

"That is to say, that the Holy Spirit has borne in upon your soul the conviction of our Lord's death and resurrection. We, while rejoicing also in this faith, believe that it is by the light of God's Spirit we have been brought to see and acknowledge that we are actual Israel," is our response.

"We have history on our side," is asserted.

"There are no distinct and positive facts of history against us. We were destined to be lost—as Israel—and being lost, history, of course, ignores us as such," we retort.

"We have the evidence of the miraculous, gradual progress of Christianity, in spite of persecution and barbarism," is pleaded.

We answer, "We have the testimony of a glorious nation, being built up, widening, strengthening, growing, we scarcely know how (and, as it were, in spite of ourselves), to amazing proportions, from remnants and fragments of barbarous tribes, that strove and struggled through wilds and wildernesses, and over stormy seas, till God's Almighty hand gathered them together into these little Northern isles, whence they have spread themselves over the 'wide wide world.' The facts we point to are existing, tangible, visible realities, announced beforehand in God's Holy Word, patent to all nations, and an acknowledged marvel."

"Yet you cannot prove your claim like a problem in Euclid," is remarked.

"And can you so prove the truths which, God be praised, have made us Christians?" We ask and—

We pause for a reply.

It would seem superfluous to refer again to the argument against Our Identity, which our antagonists have grounded on the words of Balaam—"the people shall dwell alone"—seeing how frequently it has been met and answered. Yet only this Summer a clerical gentleman brought it to bear on me, with the air of a person wielding a weapon which must at once shatter the whole "theory," and stifle further argument. "But," was my reply, "where is there any people more alone than we are, unless it be up in the moon?" Not a particularly wise answer, I am free to confess, but it served its purpose for the moment, as my opponent at once shifted his ground.

It has set me wondering what our opposers themselves imagine must be the position of this people dwelling alone, since, according to them, we do not, in our insular condition, fulfil the requirements of the prophecy. Must they be a people not living in either of the divisions of the globe? Then, in that case, they must be altogether off its surface. If on the earth, are they so shut out by their loneliness as to have no intercourse with any other peoples? speaking and understanding no language but their own, having no trade outside their own borders, no communications by earth, sea, or air, with the dwellers in other lands? Are they to be looked for in the Arctic regions or Antarctic regions? in some valley, hidden amongst hitherto unexplored mountains, or on the peaks thereof? If so, what becomes of other predictions of Balaam, concerning this people who were blessed of God, and of all the prophecies about them, scattered throughout the Old Testament?—its posts or Gates never closed; its company of nations; its immense wealth (and yet no trade, or imports, or exports!). How does it lend to many nations? and so on.

I suppose the reply would be in accordance with the belief of my reverend opponent, that all the good and great things promised are to come after the restoration of the Tribes to Palestine. But then, what becomes of the multitudinousness of the people of God? Are the few thousands, of which this lonely people must only consist, in order to be now thoroughly shut off from others, suddenly to spring forth in tens of millions, when they are joined to the seven or eight millions, of which Judah is now said to consist? But if so, will they not find the fair lands and places of the earth already occupied? How, also, are they at once to learn the arts, and the knowledge, and the experience of civilised nations, after their isolated condition?

It were well, I think, if people, instead of hastily opposing a view, would remember in what a dilemma they may find themselves, unless they think out carefully the arguments with which they hope to prevail against—a "theory" they dislike. Can any opponent of Our Identity be persuaded to give a description of a people dwelling alone, a people of whom it is said, "Blessed is he that blesseth thee, and cursed is he that curseth thee," who, according to their view, would carry out the description given in the prophetic vision?

November, 1887.

SIR ARTHUR COTTON, K.C.S.I., ON THE GIFT OF THE HOLY SPIRIT TO THE BRITISH NATION.

An Anglo-Israelite at Ferry-side has sent us a copy of the quarterly paper of the Daily Prayer Union and Worcester Tract Society for October, 1887, No. 32, asking us to note Sir Arthur Cotton's letter to the Rev. H. L. Harkness on p. 55. We have much pleasure in quoting it in these pages, as it places clearly before the reverend secretary of that union some of the most valuable identifications of this nation with Israel. We are well aware that Sir Arthur Cotton is favourable to our views and rejoices in them. He has now joined the Committee of the Worcester Tract Society, and will, we hope, induce the Rev. Secretary and that body generally to take a favourable view of our subject, to embrace and help on its publication. Sir Arthur's letter was to the following effect:—

"SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

"Dorking, July 4, 1887.

"My dear Mr. Harkness.—We are much obliged to you for the various papers you have kindly sent, all bearing upon the grand subject of your chosen work. I am persuaded that our nation has now arrived at that point, where the gift of the Holy Spirit is the one thing needed, and for which she is ripe. Last night, an evangelist preaching here said, 'the Gospel is perfectly understood by multitudes! there are numbers to whom I preach who know it as well as I do myself.' No words could more fully coincide with those of Ezek. xxxvii. 7, 8. I suppose every evangelist in England would say the same. I am persuaded that for 150 years the Gospel has been preached with a simplicity and distinctness never before equalled, and that there is at this moment a body of men and women instructed in the truth, immeasurably beyond anything that existed previously, and that the one thing now needed is the breath of life. This is most certainly the state of England at this time. I never enter a church without thus feeling that all is ready. There are not less than 10,000 places of worship where the true Gospel is preached in this country, though certainly in many of the churches of England there is much childish nonsense, and in the Presbyterian and Nonconformist churches, politics, infidelity, and discontent are rampant. At the same time there are innumerable tent, drawing-room, and open-air preachings, and house-visitings. All this is going on with rapidly increasing volume under the surface while the leaders in politics, and the Houses of Parliament, are full of popery and infidelity. If we were to judge from the newspapers we should conclude that the country was ripe for a return to submission to 'the man of sin.' But have we not abundant cause for hope, for confident expectation, that the 9th and 10th verses of the above chapter will now be fulfilled; that nothing now is wanted but the invocation of the Spirit, the prophesying to the wind, from all the four quarters?

Digitized by Google

"When our Lord Himself was here He upbraided His people with not knowing the signs of the times. Surely it becomes us to search the Scriptures on this point, that we may know the signs of the times we live in. We know that harvest is coming four months before-hand, that is, when the corn is only just springing out of the ground; most assuredly the fields are now white already to harvest in spiritual things. God has been pleased to raise this land to be the head of the world, in uprightness, in wealth, in science, in dominion, in the great commanding qualities of the mind, and even in physical powers and courage, before which no armies can stand, black or white. He has placed all the Gates of the world in our hands, given us the complete command of the ocean, and directly subjected to us 330 millions of the human race. He has caused these "Isles to wait for His law," so that the sound of it goes out from us through all the earth. May we not, ought we not, to expect that He will now crown all by breathing into us the breath of life, and that He will now fulfil the promise that His Word shall prosper in the thing whereto He has sent it? All this expansion of England goes on in spite of her rulers. There is one fact which they do not remember, "The Lord reigneth, He will do all His pleasure." Sometimes He works by great men, as in the days of my youth, and sometimes without men, or in spite of them, as seems good to Him. May He prosper your great work and speedily answer your prayers! "Yours very sincerely,

"ARTHUR COTTON."

ISRAEL'S SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER UNION.

THE total number of members now is 1,436, five more having joined since our last report.

New members are requested, when writing for cards, to kindly state whether their names are to be entered as Mr., Mrs., or Miss, &c.

The following donations towards the expenses of the Union, are most gratefully acknowledged:—2s. 6d. from Mrs. J., Doncaster, and 2s. 6d. from J. L., Teddington.

A new member writes:—"I am sure you will be interested to know that the first chapter I read as a member of Israel's Scripture and Prayer Union brought conviction to my mind (Isa. xli.), and now I am anxious to lead others to rejoice in our glorious destiny."

Another new member, who is earnestly trying to spread the good news of Our Identity, says, "How I wish all would believe in the Anglo-Israel theory. Now I read in its light, many old things become new and interesting!"

We are thankful to hear from Mr. May, our agent in Malta, that our prayers are being answered in the decreasing of the cholera plague, for which the prayers of the Union were requested a short time ago.

For the convenience of those members who wish to continue the daily reading, the following list of chapters for December is printed:—

1st ...	Jer.	xxxii.	12th ...	Jeremiah	xliii.	23rd ...	Lam.	ii.
2nd...	,,	xxxiii.	13th ...	,,	xliv.	24th ...	,,	iii.
3rd ...	,,	xxxiv.	14th ...	,,	xlv.	25th ...	,,	iv.
4th ...	,,	xxxv.	15th ...	,,	xlvi.	26th ...	,,	v.
5th ...	,,	xxxvi.	16th ...	,,	xlvii.	27th ...	Ezekiel	i.
6th ...	,,	xxxvii.	17th ...	,,	xlviii.	28th ...	,,	ii.
7th ...	,,	xxxviii.	18th ...	,,	xlix.	29th ...	,,	iii.
8th ...	,,	xxxix.	19th ...	,,	l.	30th ...	,,	iv.
9th ...	,,	xl.	20th ...	,,	li.	31st ..	,,	v.
10th ...	,,	xli.	21st ...	,,	lii.
11th ...	,,	xlii.	22nd...	Lam.	i.

The card of membership will be sent on receipt of three stamps.

The first and second series of Monthly Comments on the whole Bible, by Philo-Israel, may be obtained in volume form. Price in paper cover, 1s. 2d. each, post free; in cloth, 2s. each, post free. The "Prayers for Daily Use," being a prayer for each day of the week, by Philo-Israel, are 1d., or 9d. per dozen, postage extra. The prayer of the Union, as on the Card of Membership, may be obtained printed in larger type, price 1d. for three copies, post free, or 1s. per 100 for distribution. Address, Miss E. Sibbald, 3, Townshend-villas, Richmond, Surrey.

ANGLO-ISRAEL FREE DISTRIBUTION FUND.

FORTY-EIGHTH MONTHLY REPORT.

THE following donations and subscriptions, from Oct. 15th to Nov. 17th, are very gratefully acknowledged:—

By the Treasurer: E. M. R., Lee, for BANNERS, 10s.; Captain F., Wimbledon, £3; P. C. G., Sheffield, £5; Mrs. B. (per Mr. M.), Malta, 2s. 6d.; Lady M. L. W. (per Miss E. M. Rush), for BANNERS, £1; Ephraim, Great Yarmouth, £1; D. A. N., for Oct. and Nov. Messengers, 5s.; Mrs. J., Doncaster, 2s. 6d.; A Servant, Upper Teddington, 2s. 6d.

By Mr. C. Horner: Mrs. L. H. S., Bath, £1; Mrs. M., Ramsgate, 2s.; Mrs. T., Sheffield, 1s.; Mrs. M. C., Tenby (monthly subscription), 2s. 6d.; Mrs. S V. B., Stirling, for BANNERS, 2s. 6d.; J. G. T. Newcastle-on-Tyne, 10s.; Mrs. C. B., Weston-Super-Mare (monthly subscription), 5s.; G. G., Holloway, 5d.; Rev. J. J. V., East Grinstead, 6d.; R. G., West Coker, 1s.; H. H. P., Bromley, £1 1s.; G. D., Hull, 1s.; Miss A. W., Edgbaston, 7s. 6d.; "A Trifle from Riding Mill," Northumberland, 3s.; per H. B. T., North Shields, 5s.

Total, £15 4s. 11d.

J. LAWRENCE, Hon. Treasurer.

The following gifts are received with many thanks: 200 No. 1 Leaflet, from J. T. Crosthwaite, Esq.; and parcel of BANNERS from Claughton.

LITERATURE DISTRIBUTION.—Thirty-three parcels have been forwarded during the month to the under-mentioned places: North Shields (2), Penzance, Gravelly Hill, Tenby, Ramsgate, Holloway, Barrow-in-Furness, Quernerford, Weston-Super-Mare (2), Upper Teddington, East Grinstead, Dublin, Hastings, West Coker, Stirling, Sunderland, Richmond, Malden, Wimbledon, Birkenhead, Tring, Bath, Tywyn, Sheffield, Cubitts' Town (2), Malta, Ambala, Nellore (India), Barbadoes, and New South Wales.

BANNER DISTRIBUTION.—In consequence of the augmentation of our receipts during the month, we are glad to announce the resumption of the usual weekly number of BANNERS: 27 go to Lee; while 119 are despatched by Miss Sibbald to the places enumerated in report for Oct. 3rd. There is, however, one new addition to the list of the Free Public Library at Barrow-in-Furness.

DISTRIBUTION TO FREE PUBLIC LIBRARIES.—In pursuance of our determination to extend operations to the Free Public Libraries throughout the Kingdom, we have forwarded to each of the following a copy of Dr. Smith's "Ten Tribes;" "Israel in Britain," by C. M.; and the "Great Pyramid," by Rev. M. Stenhouse, viz., Aberdeen Mechanics' Institution; the Free Public Libraries at Aston, Barrow-in-Furness, Bethnal-green, Birkenhead, Birmingham, Blackpool, Bolton, and Bradford. We have received courteous acknowledgments from several of the librarians of the above institutions.

We reproduce the letter from the librarian at Barrow, as we feel sure it will interest our friends and supporters of the cause universally. He writes:—"Dear Sir,—I beg to acknowledge with best thanks the receipt of the three pamphlets you send me on the question of Israelitish Identity. They will prove very useful, and will to some extent supplement what we have on the question. I am inclined to think there must be a good many adherents of the belief in Barrow, and that, unfortunately, many or most of them are in poor circumstances. We have in the Library Hine's 'Forty-seven Identifications,' 1874, and Wilson's 'Our Israelitish Origin,' 1867. These books circulate very well indeed, and I think if you can see your way to place others of a similar nature in the Library, the gift would be well appreciated. Until recently one of our readers presented, as published, the BANNER OF ISRAEL, a paper sought by a large class of readers. Unfortunately the giver has recently left the town, and has ceased to send the paper."

On the receipt of the foregoing communication, we at once despatched Hine's "Forty-seven Identifications," "Fifty Reasons," Weldon's Lectures, "Where is the Firstborn?" "Present Day Problems," and "British and Jewish Fraternity," etc. We also agreed to place Barrow upon our weekly BANNER distribution list. Upon receipt of parcel, the librarian wrote as follows: "I am much obliged by your note to hand, and for the further supply of pamphlets you send me. I shall have them bound into one volume, and they will make a very acceptable addition to the two books we possess on the subject. I am pleased to hear you will present the BANNER OF ISRAEL, for numerous readers ask for it."

Digitized by Google

Since we expressed our willingness to give away copies of Mr. Stenhouse's gift to the Fund we have had many applications. One recipient, residing in the North of England, writes: "I am greatly obliged for the 'Great Pyramid,' and have made the best possible use of the pamphlets. I gave one to the Vicar of Benwell; the other to a good Wesleyan minister at Stockton, and have no doubt they will be appreciated." On receiving a further supply, he says: "I cannot refrain from letting you know how well the 'Great Pyramid' is taken by our friends here. Some say they have read something about it previously, but this carries the palm. Several copies are now over 30 miles away, where I was a month ago trying to break up the fallow ground, of which I have nothing special to report, only I am invited to go and give them a lecture on some date to be fixed by themselves. I only heard yesterday that one of them, a local preacher, had remarked that my few facts from Scripture were indisputable; so I will wait their time, and hope the lecture on the 'Great Pyramid' will sharpen their appetite."

We understand that a lecture on the "Great Pyramid," illustrated by magic lantern views, is to be given on Dec. 5th, at Sheffield, by Mr. Mason, under the auspices of the Association there.

We have much pleasure in stating that Mr. W. Rogers, of Gravelly Hill, near Birmingham, will be happy to arrange to read a paper before Young Men's Christian Associations, and the like. His paper gives an outline of the whole subject of Israel in Britain, and is well adapted for bringing the discovery before people for the first time. It lasts 60 to 70 minutes, but could be curtailed. Mr. Rogers is actively engaged in the cause. He read his paper at the Young Men's Christian Association, St. Albans, on Nov. 3rd, on the 2nd at Harpenden, and later at Tenterden and Folkestone. Besides these places, he intends visiting Yorkshire, Weston-Super-Mare, etc. Of the success of the meeting at Harpenden he says: "I find they had advertised it as a 'Public Lecture,' and we had the room full of a highly respectable company. I was well received afterwards, and warmly thanked by all. We had a doctor, a curate, one or two captains, a Congregational minister, and many others, who exhibited quite a lively interest. I have promised to again visit them in February." We have supplied Mr. Rogers with literature, comprising small pamphlets and leaflets for circulation amongst his listeners.

THE GENERAL CORRESPONDENCE is so voluminous this month that we can only find room for an extract from our agent in New South Wales, who writes: "I always read with pleasure the report of your work in the BANNER, which I regularly receive. I am gratified to see how varied and extensive your distribution is. It must do an immense amount of good. Mr. Percy Williams, the energetic secretary of our Anglo-Israel Association in Sydney, in occasional letters, says that in journeys that he sometimes takes in the country on business he is surprised to find how extensively the Identity is known. Of course there are other places where and to whom the Identity is unknown. These places can be reached by distribution." He has a good opportunity of doing very much in this way, since he is also local secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society.

Contributions to the Fund will be thankfully received and acknowledged by the Hon. Treasurer, Miss J. Lawrence, Rosslyn, Hampton-road, Upper Teddington, Middlesex; or by Mr. Chas. Horner, 34, Sheen-park, Richmond-on-Thames. Cheques may be crossed, "London and Provincial Bank, Teddington Branch." Grants of literature will be made, as far as funds allow, on application to the Secretary.

CHARLES HORNER, Secretary.

BRITISH SOVEREIGNTY OVER NEW GUINEA.—A Reuter's telegram, dated Sydney, Dec. 1, says the Hon. John Douglas, Special Commissioner for New Guinea, in an interview with Sir Henry Parkes, Premier of New South Wales, intimated that he had been instructed to proclaim, without delay, British sovereignty over New Guinea, a governor for which would speedily be appointed. Mr. Douglas stated that the attitude of the natives was friendly, but added that they were very superstitious.

QUESTIONS.

BY J. RUTTER.

FIRED with impassion'd zeal to trace,
To noblest source our Saxon race,
And credit England's ancestry.
With most remote antiquity,
Some say that we are Israel!
How that may be I cannot tell.
Truly old Israel's sins we nourish,
And under Israel's blessings flourish;
But then our clerics to a man,
The notion as a figment ban.
Our Sadducees of every shade,
E'en of the question seem afraid.
And all our Pharisees and Scribes,
Against it hurl their diatribes.
"What, would you Britain's race abuse,
And flout us as a set of Jews?"
Indeed, to (touch) or smell this heresy,
Is tantamount to lunacy!
So—as I would not qualify
For Bedlam—let the subject lie.
I will not touch it with my finger,
Yet on "the fable" fain would linger.
For, of all nineteenth century crazes,
This most the Gentile mind amazes;
And, setting scientists at nought,
Flies in the face of modern thought.
In fact, words fail us to express
Its idiotic foolishness!
Yet, if I know my Prayer-book well,
We call ourselves GOD'S Israel!
We bid our children say by rote
That GOD "from Egypt brought us out."
And with strange hardihood lay claim
To every consecrated name.
While ev'n our Queen* is made to own,
That she "was set on Israel's Throne."
Query, should not our Scribes revise
The Prayer-book, and these words excise?

* * * * *

Yet, hangs there not a gracious spell
About the name of Israel?
"A Prince with GOD," a Prince with men,
A name of power now as then!
Children of Abraham, "Friend of GOD,"
Who erst the plains of Syria trod,
Led on by the Almighty hand,
Holding no acre of the land
(Save where he might bestow his dead):
On GOD'S own Word of favour fed—
And dower'd with wondrous promises,
Illimitable destinies,
Which virtually have no end!
"The seed of Abraham, My friend,"
The people multitudinous,
As ocean's sands innumerous!
As stars of heav'n uncountable,
As lions insurmountable!
To whom "remains a certain rest,"
"In whom all nations shall be blessed."
Can these decrees be minimised?
Is this a lot to be despised?
GOD'S truth has been by some assailed,
Who say these promises have failed!
But have the blessings come to naught?
Where are the bless'd ones to be sought?
Are there no heirs to take possession,
Or are they forfeit thro' transgression?
Can we no trace of Israel find
Throughout the ranks of human kind?
Where is, then, long lost Israel?
GOD knows! for me, I cannot tell.

Sept. 30th, 1887.

*See the most remarkable words chosen for the special anthem for the Queen's great Jubilee Thanksgiving Service in Westminster Abbey, on June 21st, 1887 (2 Chron. ix. 8).

Digitized by Google

Review.

"Work: A Thought of the Past, Present and Future."—By E. M. Rush (A E I). London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street. Price one penny, 100 post-free 6s. nett., one dozen 1s. post-free.

Miss Rush, the Secretary (lately) of the Free Distribution Fund, has, like ourselves, taken alarm in some measure at the apathy which Anglo-Israelites are generally evincing just now in respect to the duties Our Identity throws upon them, and she therefore sounds a note of warning. "Work" is her cry and her advice. She points out in her pamphlet that with our privileges we have our duties to perform nationally and individually. We have, she tells us, to confront and conquer the atheist. Our Identity establishes the Holy Scriptures, and proves to the sceptic that the Bible is true. We cannot supinely neglect the weapon God has given us, and so fail to present the truth to the infidel, and to clear up the darkness which keeps him bound. Our authoress admits that there are cases when a Bible lesson will fail to produce a good effect upon the class in question, and then adds that remarks on "the position our nation holds in the world, and the work that Great Britain performs which sets her on a higher platform than other (the Gentile) nations can occupy," will be the proper subjects to present to the unbelieving ones, in order to lead them to Christ and His word, written. "If we keep silence," says our authoress, "shall we not share the guilt? Should we from time to time fail in what we attempt let us not lose heart; only let us work as we ought, for the honour, praise, and glory of God." To these sentiments we can say "Amen" from the heart—and we can also recommend this little effort which Miss Rush has made, to persuade those who believe we are Israel to carry out their belief into action.

Correspondence.

THE CORONATION STONE IN TIMES ANCIENT AND MODERN.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

Dear Philo-Israel,—A lady writing from Ireland wishes me to give through the Banner a reply to the enquiry, "When did the Coronation Stone lose its Divine virtue?"

My own belief, as stated in "Britain's Heirloom,"* and elsewhere, is that its mystic virtue has never been lost. Like as when David fled before Absalom, and his right to reign was disallowed by the men of Israel (2 Sam. xv. 12, 13), his kingly power was in abeyance, and a Shimei might curse him with impunity (xvi. 5—13); but the consecrating oil still marked him as the Lord's anointed, and this, in His own good time, the Lord made manifest to his rebellious subjects. So was it with the anointed Stone, see Gen. xxxi. 13.

The writer continues:—"I feel very much puzzled to understand the difference between former and later intrinsic value; as to touch or strike it now is not death."

The answer I would submit is twofold. "We are living under a totally different dispensation. If the ark should ever be found at Tara—and I have given my reasons for expecting it will one day be discovered (See "Coronation Stone," pp. 111—116), I don't believe it would be death now to touch it; yet not alone was Uzzah struck dead for this offence, it also cost 50,000 lives in Israel. This has been fully discussed in the chapter on "The required something" in "Britain in History."

We are not now living under the dispensation of shadows and figures, but these things did unquestionably happen; and St. Paul tells us they "happened unto them for types" (marg.), "and they are written for our admonition upon whom the ends of the world are come" (1 Cor. x. 11). "Before faith came," as he explained to Israel in Galatia, "we were kept under the law, shut up unto the faith which should afterwards be revealed. Wherefore the law was our Schoolmaster . . . . . but after that faith is come we are no longer under a Schoolmaster" (Gal. iii. 23, 24). "Even so we, when we were children, were in bondage . . . But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth His Son . . . to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons." A son may do much which in a bondman would be an unpardonable liberty.

Throughout the many centuries during which we have jealously guarded this our heir-loom—albeit, we had forgotten its sacred story—it has been dwelling among us in such strict incognito, that its "intrinsic value" has been unrecognised. An absolute Monarch, whom to treat with discourtesy or familiarity when seated on his royal throne were death, unless he held out the golden sceptre, might be addressed as a plain wayfarer with impunity, if he chose to assume this disguise.

I think, Sir, I cannot add more cogent reasons than I have already adduced in my chapters on the Stone. I trust these may satisfy our enquirer. I am, truly yours,

Ellen M. Rogers.

Glenwood, Weston-super-Mare,
Nov. 1st, 1887.

* Page 127, "Britain in History, Ancient and Modern;" or Proofs Linking Israel with Britain throughout the Ages.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

Dear Philo-Israel,—I shall be much obliged if you will allow me, through the Banner, to inform my correspondents that my address remains the same as when I held the post of Hon. Sec. to the Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund. It having come to my knowledge that there has been some misapprehension on this point, I am anxious to state that if any letters or communications have been or are unacknowledged by me, I shall be glad if correspondents whom I may appear to have neglected will kindly send me a few words, giving the date of posting as near as may be, and any necessary particulars, in order that I may make enquiries. All letters sent direct here will doubtless be delivered as usual, and as at all times I shall have pleasure in replying to them as quickly as possible. Yours sincerely,

E. M. Rush.

103, Burnt Ash-road, Lee, London, S.E.,
November 12th, 1887.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

Dear Philo-Israel,—Would you publish this letter in the Banner if you think it worthy of a place in its columns. I am a constant reader of the Banner. It is of great interest and profit to me.

I am preparing myself, and intend to devote my time to lecturing and advocating Identity truth by voice and pen. I hope to open many blind eyes (have already done so), and say to Israel, "Behold, your God, and know that you are His own dear covenant people, the seed of Abraham His friend." I know of no better way of serving my Lord and making known His truth and faithfulness. God bless and speed you in your great work.

Yours in the love and welfare of Israel,

Thomas Sanford.

55, Rockwell-street, Cleveland, Ohio, U.S.

LETTER TO AN AMERICAN PASTOR IN ISRAEL.

Dear Pastor,—I was very much interested in your Sabbath morning's discourse on Moses and Exodus. Old Testament history has a fascinating interest to me, knowing, as I do, by the light of Identity truth, that we are God's own people Israel, literally and lineally. How interesting to read of the Lord's dealings with our fathers, and to be able to trace them down (as we can) to our own times, and to see our own covenant God still working out His own grand designs and purposes, as ever, by and through His own people Israel. "This people have I formed for Myself; they shall show forth My praise." Israel is now, and always has been, "the pivot nation of prophecy and history." I I cannot tell you what a benefit this truth has been to me—throwing a wonderful light on His Word, strengthening my faith, giving me a deeper insight and larger grasp of the prophecies, enabling me to trace His dealings in history (fulfilled prophecy), and in events in our own times, and now going on.

But you will ask, how do I know how we, who are accounted as Gentiles, are really Israel of the seed of Abraham? The proofs are many and convincing—would be sufficient to establish our claim in any court of justice. It is the only key to the prophecies. How do we know when we have found a right key? Why, its works are counterparts of the lock. We unlock and open the door that was previously closed to us. So when we come to comprehend that the Anglo-Saxon, or the British race, are Israel, and not Gentiles, then we unlock and get at the literal meaning of prophecies that were before dark and mysterious to us, so that they become clear and comprehensive. It does not do away with their spiritual interpretation and comfort, but shows what their primary meaning and intent was. Again, we will suppose a loved and favourite child has been lost for a long time. It is a peculiar child, not another like it in the world. The child is found at last bearing all the marks to prove its identity. Can we, then, doubt that "the lost is found, the dead is alive again"? But how is the last shadow of doubt dispelled when we can retrace its wandering footsteps back to the very spot where it was lost? So we find our Anglo-Saxon race bearing all the marks of God's first-born Israel, filling the predicted rôle, and doing throughout the world the very work that Israel, and only Israel, could do. About 70 years ago Sharon Turner, an English historian, set himself to investigate the origin of the British race. So he traced his ancestors back as Angles, Jutes, Saxons, Khumry, Sacæ, in their wanderings through Europe and Asia till he found they came from Assyria. There he left his investigations, and pursued them no farther. Long after it was reserved for Wilson, Hine, Philo-Israel, and others to take up the search where Turner had left it, and follow it to its legitimate conclusion, and make the wonderful discovery that these progenitors of ours dwelt on the river Gozan, in Habor, and the cities of the Medes, and were no other than the Israel of the Ten Tribes who were deported from Samaria. The historical and ethnological proofs are complete, and will satisfy any one who will take trouble to investigate them. And is it not well worth the time and labour? But the best and most abundant proof is found in the Bible. It proves the truth of God's Word, and completely vindicates His faithfulness in carrying out His covenants to Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses, David, down through all the ages. We are not forced to resort to any such makeshifts and inventions as "the Gentile parenthesis" and "spiritual Israel" (a Gentile Church). It establishes another and a double chain of proof to God's word and faithfulness. The Jews, or House of Judah, is one (never lost, still under the curse), and the House of Israel the other. Are not these the two witnesses, the two candlesticks, the two olive-trees?

Digitized by Google

The Lord "allured her into the wilderness," "spoke comfortably unto her," guided her in all her wanderings. She was "sifted as wheat" among the nations, but "not one grain was permitted to fall to the ground." They escaped from Assyria, went northward and westward, through the Caucasian Mountains, through the Crimea to Europe, thence up the Danube, and across the German Sea to their appointed place, the British Isles, as He had promised David: "Moreover, I will appoint a place for My people Israel, and I will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own; neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them as before time" (2 Sam. vii. 10).

At the end of their long wanderings and conflicts they reached their destination in a depleted and exhausted condition. So the Lord speaks to them by His prophet Isaiah: "Keep silence before Me, O islands, and let the people renew their strength; let them come near; let them speak; let us come near together to judgment" (Isa. xli. 2). "But thou, Israel, whom I have chosen, art My servant, the seed of Abraham, My friend." Thou, whom I have taken from the ends of the earth, "Thou art My servant, and I have not cast thee away." Then follow many encouraging and comforting words and splendid promises in this and following chapters, telling them of the great work He had for them to do among the nations, peopling the "desolate heritages," and carrying His truth by land and sea to the ends of the earth. You will note that these, and many other promises and predictions, were addressed to Israel in "the Isles," not in Palestine.

Well, they arrived at last in the British Isles, not in one body, but in successive waves of emigration. The last accession in the eleventh century were the Normans, recognised as the tribe of Benjamin. With the exception of the last, they arrived in a state of heathenism. They established the worship of Baal (called in history Druidism). They sacrificed their sons and their daughters unto devils. They were wholly divorced from the law and Mosaic covenant. They were "backsliding Israel." But Christ had redeemed them and called them. He remembered His covenant with Abraham: "Ephraim smote on his thigh, and said, What have I to do any more with idols?" At the Reformation they were converted from Papal idolatry, and became, as a nation, Israel obedient. The "sons of wickedness," Gentile and Papal powers, have tried to crush and subdue them, but in vain. The God of their fathers, Jehovah, who delivered them from the Egyptians, and brought them through the Red Sea and the wilderness, interposed for them again and again in a most signal manner, fought for them, and subdued their enemies under them. They never have been invaded or conquered, and now we find them "chief among the nations," "the head only and not the tail, above only and not beneath." "Dwelling in safety alone," as Balaam prophesied, "He hath, as it were, the strength of a unicorn; he shall eat up the nations his enemies. He coucheth, he lay down as a lion, and as a great lion; who shall stir him up?"—carrying religion, law, civilization, and freedom everywhere to the ends of the earth. Were Gentiles ever appointed to this work in the world? Is there one syllable of intimation or proof of it in the Bible? On the contrary, according to God's Word, it is just the work that God's elect people were set apart, trained, and appointed to do.

I know that the headings of the chapters make out Israel to be the Church, but they are no part of the inspired Word. But even admitting that the prophecies do mean that it was the Church that was referred to, it certainly was no Gentile Church, but God's own Church Israel. These chapter headings were added by the Church of Rome, and we are not in any way bound to recognize their interpretations. The logical and irresistible conclusion therefore, is, we Anglo-Saxon, English-speaking people, must be that same people of God, Israel. Otherwise, if we are Gentiles, as we are called, and call ourselves, Jehovah, the God of Abraham, has broken His covenant, and has transferred His work and blessings to Gentiles! Can we, dare we believe, or assert that? (Read Jer. xxxi. 35—37, and xxxiii. 20—26).

Jacob vested the birthright of temporal blessings in Joseph, and prophesied that in the latter days (or Christian dispensation) of the seed of his two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh—one was to be "a nation and a company of nations," and the other (Manasseh) was to be "a great people" (nation). Now is not Great Britain, with her great colonies, "a nation and a company of nations"? And is not our own United States, that "great people," or nation, of one blood and origin? Nearly 2,600 years ago Isaiah predicted our revolution, or disruption from the Mother Country, and the prophecy would not have been fulfilled unless it had occurred. Great Britain has about eighty colonies and dependencies in all parts of the world. She never lost but one of them, the brightest jewel of them all, her American colonies (United States). That is history. Turn to Isa. xlix. 20, you will find the prophecy. You will see that the chapter is addressed to Israel in the Isles, and gives the cause that led to forming these colonies (over population): "The children which thou shalt have after thou hast lost the other shall say again in thine ears, The place is too strait for me: give place for me that I may dwell." So the Word says that after the disruption other colonies were to be formed. The Lord told Abraham, His friend, that his seed were to increase "to a multitude in the midst of the earth." They were to "spread abroad to the west, and to the east, to the north, and to the south." The historical facts tally with the prophecies in Isa. xlix. Our Mother Country, England, was over-populated, and after the American colonies were formed, an outlet was needed for the redundant population, and other colonies were sent out to the west, and to the east, to the north, and to the south. Israel entered upon her colonizing function, and so it has been going on ever since "Her seed is in many waters," and her colonies belt the earth. They own one-third of the globe, and over one-fourth of the population is under her benignant rule. Is not all this a literal and wonderful fulfilment of prophecy, and shall we be blind to its great meaning and importance? I was born of British parents, on British soil. I bless God that I have a lot and part with His people Israel. I do not lightly esteem, but glory in my birthright with such an ancient lineage, of whom came patriarchs, prophets, priests, and kings. Do you wonder, then, that realising it as I do, I grow enthusiastic over it?

With this I send you a pamphlet, "Present-day Problems Solved by Anglo-Israel Truth." It interested me so much that I determined to send it to you. I feel sure it will interest you, and well repay a careful perusal. I have made this subject a study the last six years. I have carefully studied it by the light of history, ethnology, but, above all, by the Bible. There is the fullest and most complete proof. It is an overwhelming proof to the truth of the Bible against sceptics and infidels, and completely vindicates God's honour and faithfulness in fulfilling His covenants to Abraham and His people.

You, dear pastor, I am sure will not echo the wretched sneer Anglo-Israelites have had so often cast in their teeth, "Cui bono?" I would not spend so much time and thought upon this subject if it had no practical bearings. Life is too short and time too precious to waste on fruitless speculation. Commending it to your most earnest and prayerful consideration,

I remain, yours sincerely,

THOMAS SANFORD.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

A LECTURE will be Delivered in the ASSOCIATION ROOMS, 14, King William-street, Charing Cross, W.C., on THURSDAY EVENING NEXT, December 8, 1887, at 7.30 o'clock, by Mr. ALBERT W. SMITH. Subject: "Federation." Strangers will be made welcome.

JAMES BILLINGTON, Sec.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

THE BIBLE READINGS

are held

EVERY TUESDAY AFTERNOON,

At 3.30, in the Library of the Association, 14, King William Street, Charing Cross, W.C. All friends are invited.

TO ANGLO-ISRAELITES.—Three 10s. prizes, 25 holiest men in Old Testament. Decision by votes of Competitors. Entrance fee 1s. and lists by December 10 to Miss M. C. Garnier, Quidenham, Thetford. Results by post cards. December 14. Proceeds for poor parish.

VALUABLE CONSULTATION PRESCRIPTION for cure of Indigestion sent to any address for One Shilling. Part profits to Banner Free Distribution Fund.—"Identity," 8, Charlotte-terrace, Clacton-on-Sea.

Just published, in bevelled boards, gilt lettered, gilt edges, price 1s., post free for P.O.

WORDS OF HELP AND WISDOM.

Gleanings Gathered from Various Authors and Poets

BY JESSIE LAWRENCE.

More useful and acceptable than Christmas or New Year's Cards,

LONDON: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, or of the AUTHOR, "Rosslyn," Hampton Road, Upper Teddington.

CHRISTMAS GIFT BOOK.

Royal Copy, 4s., Coloured ditto, gilt edges, full gilt 2s., Plain 1s. 8d., postage 2d. extra.

"MY JEWELS"

(MAL. III. 17),

BY SARAH SHARP.

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, and all booksellers.

Just Published, crown 8vo., elegantly bound in cloth price 3s. 6d.

BRITAIN in HISTORY:

ANCIENT AND MODERN.

Or, Proofs Linking Israel with Britain Throughout the Ages.

BY MRS. G. A. ROGERS,

Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

London: J. NISBET & Co., 21, Berners-street, W.; ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, who will send a copy free by post on receipt of P.O.; and to be had of all Booksellers.

HUMAN LIFE.—FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles, and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 50 pages. SENT FREE to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON B. MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C. Write to-day.

Price 3d.; Interleaved with Ruled Paper, 5d.; Cloth bound, gilt lettered, marbled edges, 1s.; by post 4d., 6d., and 1s.

THE

ANGLO-ISRAEL ALMANACK

AND DIARY FOR 1888.

CONTENTS:

FRONTISPIECE—VIEW OF NAZARETH.

CALENDAR AND DIARY FOR THE YEAR, January: Christ's Commands. February: Commands. March: Promises. April: Promises. May: Prayers. June: Prayers. July: Christ's Promises. August: Promises. September: Proverbs. October: Proverbs. November: Invitations. December: Prophecies. Church Lessons for each Sunday of the Year. Notes for the Month. Moon's Changes. Moveable Feasts. Measures of Length. Bank Holidays. Length in a Mile in Different Countries. Letters Patent for Inventions. Notes for 1889. Meteoric Showers. Legal Tender of Money. Legacy and Succession Duty. Income Tax. Postal Regulations, Money Orders, etc. General Information. The Royal Family. The Church. Public Exhibitions. The Ministry.

ARTICLES:

The Testimony of History that the British are Israel By Philo-Israel.
The Foundation of Anglo-Israel Truth. By V. M. Cox.
"The Fulness of the Gentiles." By the Rev. C. W. Hickson, M.A.
Fulfilling Prophecy. By Douglas A. Onslow.
The Clue to the World's Future. By the Rev. Denis Hanan, M.A.
The Principles of a Divine System; and Israel's Place In It. By Ernest P. Dix.
Rule Britannia! By H. R. Shaw.
Nazareth.
God's Israel. By Rev. Hibbert Newton.
A Christmas Carol.
List of Anglo-Israel Associations in Various Parts of the World

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, and all Booksellers.

Twelve Choice Christmas Cards Free

To every Reader of this Paper with our

GRAND MONSTER CHRISTMAS PARCEL

The Largest and Best ever Offered.

READ CAREFULLY TO THE END. Each parcel contains the whole of the following remarkable assortment of goods, which cannot fail to astonish and delight every customer. One magnificent Pair of Oil Pictures, size 14½ by 10½ inches, produced in 15 colours, entitled "Our Guards," and "Our Highlanders," illustrative of the daring and heroic deeds of bravery achieved by our gallant warriors in the Soudan War. These pictures are admirably suited for framing, and are worthy to adorn and beautify the walls of the cottage or palace. One popular copyright Four Shilling Song, written by William C. Bennett, and composed by Henry K. Morley. One set of six beautifully coloured Christmas and New Year Mottoes with artistic and floral designs specially adapted for room or hall decorations. One beautifully coloured and embossed portrait of the Queen. An excellent Jubilee memento with superior card mount, size 12 by 9¾ inches, suitable for framing. Gives particulars and dates of special incidents associated with the life of Her Majesty. One interesting and instructive book, entitled, The Language of Flowers, with which also is incorporated the Language of Precious Stones, etc.; also one Monster Budget with twenty-six Amusing Games, nine easy but deceptive Tricks, one Shadow Pantomime, One Royal Goose Game, One Hampton Court Maze Game, Experiments in Mesmerism, and upwards of two hundred Puzzles, Proverbs, Charades, Conundrums, etc., etc.

REMEMBER! Each parcel contains the whole of the above goods, and, in addition to this, we shall send to every customer at the same time, and free of any charge whatever, 12 Choice Christmas and New Year Cards, of new and beautiful registered designs, with appropriate copyright verses.

We challenge the world for a more liberal and genuine offer than this, and guarantee a faithful performance of every promise made in this advertisement One complete Parcel, with Present, delivered free for 1s. 6d., two for 2s. 9d., or three for 4s. Money returned if not as represented.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—To prevent disappointment, intending customers should avail themselves at once of this extraordinary offer, as already an enormous demand has begun, and we cannot replace these goods at anything like the price now offered. Don't miss this opportunity.

W. B. FOOT & SON, 44, Camden Road, London, N.W.

LUNG SAVE YOUR LIVES BY TAKING TONIC

OWBRIDGE'S LUNG TONIC

THE MIGHTY HEALER.

It has a power over disease hitherto unknown in Medicine.

Are you at all Weak-chested or inclined to be Consumptive, with just a touch of Cough now and then?

"Try this Wonderful Medicine." The Cough and Weakness will disappear as if by magic, and you will feel a strength and power you never had before.

HAVE YOU A COUGH?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT!
HAVE YOU A COLD?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Bronchitis & Asthma it relieves instantly

The Spasms of Coughing so dreadful in Whooping Cough become less with each dose of the medicine.

Prepared by W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull

Sold in Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s. by all Chemists and Patent Medicine Vendors. Wholesale all London and Provincial Houses.

CARBOLINE

1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.

Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved.

DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.

Makers:

GEORGE & WELCH

CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,

Who will forward Free of Postage.

LADIES! We will send a full dress-length of beautiful cloth, in any of the following colours, carriage paid to any address, for 10s. 6d. Colours—Black, blue, fawn, ruby, claret, green, slate, grenat, brown, grey, navy, tabac, bronze, reseda, gold, myrtle, etc. These Wonderful Dress-lengths have gained a world-wide reputation for Magnificence, Cheapness and Durability. Thousands have been sold, and repeat orders and testimonials received. Ladies should write for patterns, which may be had free, and need not be returned.

GRAND CHRISTMAS PRESENTS. We will give a very handsome Brocaded Silk Handkerchief with each dress-length ordered before January 31.

LUTAS LEATHLEY & Co., Armley, Leeds.

The Latest Publication by EDWARD HINE.

The Nation Warned by the Scripture Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Things to Happen about 1887, and Onward.

PRICE SIXPENCE; Post Free, 7d.

F. W. PARRY, 29, Paternoster Row, London, E.C.

BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA,
COUGHS, COLDS,
CONSUMPTION,
and all Pulmonary Affections can be immediately relieved and rapidly
CURED
by simply using the
AMMONIAPHONE
FOR THE Voice, Throat, Chest, and Lungs.
21s. post free.
WILL LAST FOR YEARS.
Used and recommended by the Royal Family, and principal Physicians, Clergymen, Vocalists, and Public Speakers throughout the country. New illustrated Pamphlet with copies of Thousands of Testimonials may be had FREE OF CHARGE on application to Medical Battery Co. Ltd.
52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.
Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 7, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."
(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 572. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1887. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
The August Mother of Free Nations	501
French Revolutionary Instability; but Israel's Security	502
Two New Australian States	503
Foreign Bounties on Sugar and Shipping	503
Foreign Testimony to Israel's Supremacy Among the Nations	504
The Rev. John Bond, a Methodist Minister, Gives Evidence	505
Who Were the Galileans? By Surgeon-General J. M. Grant, M.D.	506
Review	507
Correspondence	507

"THE AUGUST MOTHER OF FREE NATIONS."

IN the leading article of the Times of November 18, 1887, the expression occurs applied to the British people that they are "The August Mother of Free Nations." This is tantamount to saying that there is here a central nation, which is the "Mother of Nations"—that these last are her daughters; "stately daughters," as the Times also recently called them, and that this "Old Mother in the West" is an "august," an honoured, God-blessed Mother, whose existence is a blessing to the world, and to her daughter-nations too; being "a nation" as the central link, and a cluster of daughter-nations, a veritable "company of (Israelite) nations," according to the prophecies in Gen. xxxv. 11; xlviii. 19; xvii. 5—16; "a Federation of States, in fact, such as the world never saw before." But though this is indeed an "august" and "great nation," men are beginning to fear that the disgraceful scenes which have been lately witnessed in the House of Commons, and during the riots which have dishonoured Trafalgar Square, in the very heart of London, are sure signs that the days of Britain's glories are over, and that henceforth her fall will be rapid. If, as Mr. Goschen said at Manchester, on Nov. 17, "the colonists have begun to fear that Imperial degeneracy has set in, how long will they continue to retain their respect for the English character, or to feel any confidence in the stability of English power?" When the Colonial delegates were with us in the spring they were, it is known, "amazed and disgusted at the audacity and the success of obstruction in the House of Commons, and of plundering anarchy in the usurped dominions of the League." The facts are, alas, correct. The House of Commons has disgraced itself! and Ireland in parts has broken loose from its loyalty to the Crown, and is in a state practically of veiled rebellion. "The enemy has come in like a flood," in short, both in the House of Commons and in the country at large in Ireland, as well as in the Metropolis, and it will be a work of time to restore tranquillity, and bring the peccant people to their senses. Of the final result there is and can be no doubt.

This nation is Israel; and to her God has given gracious promises of national stability, such as no other nation has received at His hands. To no other nation than Israel have words ever been addressed by God Almighty such as those we find recorded in 2 Sam. vii. 24 (R.V.): "Thou didst establish to Thyself Thy people Israel, to be a people unto Thee for ever; and Thou Lord becamest their God." Her polity is thus everlastingly secured! Her throne is established for aye, by the promise to David in the same chapter in verses 13 to 16; and in Jer. xxxiii. 26. Her constant participation in the knowledge of salvation and of the Word of God, are also guaranteed, by the glorious spiritual promises recorded in Psa. cxlvii. 19, 20. The stability of this nation then is safe, in spite of such untoward events as the riots in London and in Ireland, and the miserable condition of the House of Commons during late years.

The support to lawlessness given by men in high places is responsible for all the trouble through which we are passing to-day. But while we dislike the cause of this national declension, we can see that it is appointed to us as a nation to pass through it. The advent of "the enemy coming in like a flood" will be the signal for the Lord's uplifted standard to appear, and the result of that must be that "the Spirit of the Lord" shall conquer and put His enemies to flight. If to realise the latter joy and triumph we must needs pass through our present bitter sorrow and discomfiture, we welcome the latter to realise the former; and we are glad that our body politic should be made the scene of Satan's onslaught if his defeat here by the King of Israel redound to our Jehovah's glory and the victory of God the Son! With such thoughts as these we rejoice to know that the triumph of law and right over anarchy and wrong has begun already, and that as in Ireland, so in Trafalgar Square as well, the armies of Israel, led we cannot doubt by the Lord Himself, are already proving stronger than His enemies. To clear the streets of the lawless rabble, the police alone sufficed, on Sunday, Nov. 13; but now, the citizens being forewarned and forearmed, the lawless will have to meet not only the ranks of the police, armed merely with fists and batons, but 20,000 free citizens of a free nation's metropolis besides, ready to stand by their police and show their foes that mob-law will only prevail when the millions of the law-abiding shall have been laid low. Then as to Ireland, there seems no reason to doubt that the steady effort now being made to put down lawlessness, boycotting, and crime there, is sure in the end to succeed, though much time may be consumed before success is achieved, because the lawless have the aid and sympathy of so powerful a friend as Mr. Gladstone, the ex-Prime Minister of England.

Digitized by Google

But he and such as he cannot succeed! For he is seeking the disruption of an empire which has God for its indwelling Protector and Friend! This is the nation which is the Stone kingdom of Daniel's prophecy, in chap. ii. 35, 44, and 45, and has been under God's control and creative power since the time of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, in B.C. 603. It is the nation which such prophecies as Gen. xxii. 17, and Hosea i. 10, connect with the Ten-Tribed Israelite nation's multitudinous seed, like "the sand of the sea shore"—Christian and dominant—yet full of international beneficence, spending and being spent to spread the knowledge of Christ's salvation, and bringing forth "the fruits of the kingdom of God" (Isa. xxvii. 6; Matt. xxi. 43). Ours verily is an "august nation;" and she is free; while also she is the "free Mother" of "free nations," according to the prophecies, and to the glory of the Lord her God, the God of Israel!

FRENCH REVOLUTIONARY INSTABILITY; BUT ISRAEL'S SECURITY.

EVENTS in France seem to be pointing to a fresh outbreak of Revolution. All the political parties in the State have combined to "boycott" the President, M. Grevy, in order to force him to resign. They have, of course, as the result of such combined action, compelled him to vacate his high office. Each party to whom he sent to help him to form a Ministry refused, and gave him to understand that what the nation demanded was his own resignation. France just now, as always, has been and is governed by Paris. Herein the danger of the situation consists. For the political cliques of the capital control the situation, and the good of the country and the peace of Europe are not thought of. For long no candidate for the Presidency had been named who would be likely to escape the same hostility to which M. Grevy has succumbed. It was not at all certain that the Congress of the Chamber and the Senate, which was lately convened by the Rouvier Ministry, would elect any new President. As to the one now elected, it is all but certain that there will be a combination of parties formed against him to make government impossible.

The military garrisons near and in Paris have been reinforced, but behind all these precautions there looms the figure of General Boulanger and the army which idolises him! It may be that what is before us is a Military Dictatorship which will again be the ruling power of France, to commence the work of warlike demonstrations, and so introduce the conflict of the great earthly nations of Europe, the time of whose visitation of punishment seems drawing near. "France appears to be on the eve of Revolution," is the opinion of the Press in England, and who can say that it is misled by the circumstances of the hour?

In Germany despondency reigns. The Crown Prince's condition is very sad and critical. There seems no hope that his life will be preserved. Preparations for the coming war are continuing, and Russia was lately massing her troops on the Eastern frontiers of Germany and Roumania, while General Gourko, the coming Commander-in-Chief of the Czar's armies, is allowed to make incendiary speeches which distinctly menace the peace of Europe, and tell the world that a terrible war is quite close at hand! What is apparent in all the confusion that is reigning around us is, that God has given, to France at least, no stability of government. She has repeatedly, during the last hundred years (ever since she committed the awful crimes which nationally degraded her at the epoch of her bloody Revolution in 1789), had to pass through many vicissitudes of political condition. Her government has repeatedly been overthrown, and new and unstable forms of government been repeatedly tried, only to be cast aside again. For her Monarchy was destroyed by the great Revolution in January, 1793; the reign of terror gave place to the Military Dictatorship, to the Consulate in 1802, and in 1804 to the Empire of Napoleon the Great. But his Empire fell in 1815, to be succeeded by the Monarchy again, and this has been followed by the Republic in 1848, by the Empire once more of Napoleon III. in 1853, and by the Republic of the present hour in 1870. To-day it seems as though a fresh change were imminent, and unstable, wicked, godless France were about to fall again into the hands of some adventurer, to prepare for the yet greater and more terrific confusions and catastrophes of the "great earthquake war-woe," which seems ready to fall upon and desolate "yonder ill-consolidated Europe," according to the prophecies.

Contrasted with all these changes—past, present, and yet to come—abroad, what do we find at home here, in these "Isles of the West"? We see security and safety, a polity and throne which has existed for a thousand years and shows no signs of decay, but only of continuance. Why should there be this contrast between our political status and that of the nations on the Continent? There is but one assignable reason. The British are Israel, and have God's own guarantee for the perpetuity of their national institutions; while the continental nations are not Israel, and not only have no such guarantee, but a certainty that their polities shall crumble into dust, destroyed as by a political earthquake unparalleled in the history of man, which God is preparing for them to destroy them on account of their rebellion against His Divine Majesty (Zech. iii. 8; Isa. xxvi. 20, 21; Rev. xvi. 18).

The perpetual preservation of our own British nation, being Israel, and of its political constitution, depends on such texts as the following:—"Thou didst establish to Thyself Thy people Israel to be a people unto Thee for ever, and Thou, Lord, becamest their God" (2 Sam. vii. 24, R.V.). "I have loved thee (Israel) with an everlasting love" (Jer. xxxi. 3). "Thus saith the Lord, David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the House of Israel" (Jer. xxxiii. 17; 1 Kings viii. 25, R.V.). The promise in 2 Sam. vii. 13—17, R.V., goes also to show that God's covenants with Israel and with Israel's monarchy were everlasting, never-ending covenants, and therefore, being unconditional in both instances, must be current and of force to-day!

The senseless cry of Cui bono? which, doubtless, we hear less frequently now than before, finds its best answer in the state of affairs here and in the neighbouring Republic of France. The latter is wretched by reason of the anxieties which the present state of matters brings upon it; while Israel rejoices in the knowledge that her throne is founded on what is stronger and firmer than rocks of adamant, namely, on the promises of God. "Happy art thou, O Israel! Who is like unto thee, a people saved by the Lord, the shield of thy help, and that is the sword of thy excellency. And thy enemies shall submit themselves unto thee, and thou shalt tread upon their high places" (Deut. xxxiii. 29, R.V.). Let Israel, therefore, praise the Lord for His loving-kindness to His servants!

THE GOOD TIME COMING.—During November the value of exports exceeded those of November last year by 5¾ millions, and the value of the imports by 9¼ millions sterling. This is a larger increase than has been recorded in any one month since the improvement in trade began, and may be taken to indicate that an improvement in one department soon effects another, until all combines to inaugurate a period of leaps and bounds. Only yesterday word came from Liverpool that a great advance has taken place in freights, and from London that a well-known city firm of iron merchants have lately sold more iron for shipbuilding purposes in one week than they had previously sold during the whole year.

Digitized by Google

TWO NEW AUSTRALIAN GATES.

LORD BRASSEY'S letter to the Times, published on November 1st, but written from Thursday Island on September 1st, 1887, will repay perusal. His lordship was detained at that spot for ten days when he wrote, and he took the opportunity of telling the world what is the strategic value of the place. It is situated in a commanding, therefore strategic, position. It lies in Prince of Wales Channel in Torres Straits, to the North of the Gulf of Carpentaria, in the very pathway and track of the enormous trade which passes every year between India and Australia, the Archipelago and the Southern ports of China. There passed Thursday Island last year, shipping to the extent of 300,000 tons. The navigable channel is just at that spot hardly a mile in width. This island will never possess any trade of its own, any more than Aden or Singapore have a trade of their own. But it is so strategically placed that it must become ere long as important an entrepôt for trade as either Aden or Singapore are at this moment.

"Thursday Island is," says Lord Brassey, "a port of transhipment for the gold and agricultural produce sent from Normanton and the Gulf of Carpentaria by the local steamers. The goods brought thence are trans-shipped to the monthly steamers of the British-India Line, proceeding direct to Europe." But it is as an entrepôt of the future trade of New Guinea, that this island will prove of most importance. Everything that can be grown in Java is also able to be reared in New Guinea. This trade, so fostered, can be cheaply conveyed to Europe; and the meeting-place thereof will be Thursday Island, making it a free port or new Gate, such as is Singapore or Aden. In time of peace the island will hardly be of much importance for Australia. But in time of war the case will be different. It must then, says Lord Brassey, become a coaling station (which we would call a Gate), in order to protect the commerce travelling by that route from the depredations of our enemies' cruisers. His lordship's advice about the arming of this place as well as of King George's Sound, at the South-West corner of the great island continent, where he proposes to constitute another Gate to control our enemies, is as follows:—

As a coaling station the business of this port is inconsiderable. The advantages of price in harbours situated near to the coal-fields must necessarily tell against Thursday Island. In war other considerations would prevail. Cruisers would be stationed here, and it would be essential to provide supplies of coal. Hence the necessity for defences of sufficient strength to prevent a hostile cruiser from steaming into the port. A fleet is not to be apprehended. Wherever an enemy gathers in force a British squadron should be near at hand. A casual cruiser might take the seas unperceived. As a security against the form of attack which is most to be apprehended, inexpensive works should suffice, armed with a few long-range guns. The garrison might be furnished, as at King George's Sound, by a small force of Marines and Marine Artillery, supplemented by a Militia or Volunteer Artillery, which could be recruited in limited numbers among those engaged in the fisheries.

The formation of a naval station in another part of the anchorage, as recommended by Sir John Coode, does not commend itself to the officials and merchants on the spot. It would involve a large expenditure.

What is really urgent is not a costly work, and there should be no delay or hesitation in taking it in hand. King George's Sound and Thursday Island could be adequately fortified, armed, and garrisoned without appreciably adding to the Navy or Army Estimates.

I have the honour to be, Sir, yours faithfully,

BRASSEY.

Thursday Island, Sept. 1.

Here, then, are two new Gates added to those which we always reckon upon as Israel's throughout the world. They are intended to repulse our enemies who would harass our trade in the time of war, or attack the South-west coast of Western Australia. They will add to our national strength by making a foreign cruiser's operations extremely dangerous for itself, and reduce the chances of the acquisition by an alien nation of a coaling station at the Antipodes, whereby to threaten our supremacy at sea and to cripple our trade on that ocean highway of the world.

How is it that our nation has monopolised these Gates or coaling stations throughout the planet? Can it be by mere chance? If it were chance we might expect there would be many and important exceptions to the rule, and that our rivals for maritime power would occasionally be able to secure some of these peculiar and very valuable possessions. But they do not secure them! Such places as they do secure for a time turn out disappointments. Thus the French laid hands on the New Hebrides group contrary to their own treaty, intending to use them against the opposite shores of Eastern Australia. But circumstances are too strong for them and they have to give them up! They intended to hold Egypt, but they foolishly let us put down Arabi Pasha in 1882, and win Tel-el-Kebir. They therefore have to stand aside while we protect the Egyptian Government. The Germans thought to hold Angra Pequina as a hostage for the good behaviour of Britain in South Africa. But the place has not answered the expectation of the Fatherland, and its influence is nil. The North of New Guinea, again, has been annexed to the German Empire, but it is an equatorial burning possession, out of the way of the trade of the world, which will pass by Thursday Island. This, Lord Brassey wishes to fortify, and so constitute it a Gate of Israel. No doubt he will succeed in so doing.

The Gates, in short, are Israel's. They are God's good gifts to His people, to enable them to acquire the dominion of the world, and to administer the Gospel "to all nations, families, and kindreds of the earth," thereby. The power of Israel is destined to grow in the Antipodes as it has grown in the Mediterranean and Atlantic, because there God is building up an enormous British Empire, which we can scarcely realise till we know that Australia being as large in size as Europe has already five grand States within its borders growing up into the condition of nations, ranking as "the stately daughters" of the British mother! Already Australia is flanked by such a splendid sister as New Zealand to the East, by Tasmania to the South, and by the Fiji Islands to the North-east.

Such an Empire requires flanking outposts which men call coaling stations, to be used as ocean fortresses to defend the Australian trade in the neighbouring seas. Thursday Island is such an one, and King George's Sound on the South-west coast requires a fortress there to check the invasion of some would-be enemy attempting to injure her in time of war. Lord Brassey points to two necessary Gates, and doubtless his advice will meet with due attention from the British Government as both reasonable and seasonable under the circumstances of the case.

FOREIGN BOUNTIES ON SUGAR AND SHIPPING.

IF we were to consider only a certain class of facts which are pressed upon our attention just now, we should be forced to the conclusion that the British industrial classes are being ground down to the earth, aud that before long they must be ruined wholesale. There is the agricultural depression, caused by the fact that our farmers cannot possibly compete with the enormous production of wheat and cereals grown chiefly by our own colonies, India, and the United States, and that, therefore, more and more of our arable land is being thrown out of cultivation and being turned into pasture. Then there is the foreign bounty system as it presses on our sugar refiners and shipowners. The former, in the East-end of London alone, used to employ 18,000 working-men; but the operation of the French Government bounty system has ruined the home trade, and forced the closing of 31 out of 33 refineries, leaving only two existing. These workmen lately held a mass meeting in Hyde-park to try and induce our Government to take some steps to protect British industries by checking the system of foreign bounties to sugar refiners abroad. They declared the system was ruining British interests and starving our own people to enable the French to secure 20 per cent. profits in this particular trade.

Digitized by Google

The profits of the great docks of London were falling off, they added; and they saw nothing but misery and starvation before them, if the bounties were not speedily abolished. There is no doubt that as to this particular branch of our nation's trade we are under heavy disabilities. The French exports of sugar rose in 1886 from £1,400,000 in value to £2,600,000, which, of course, is a tremendous increase, and a proportionate advantage to our trade rivals. But this is not quite all the case; for while no doubt our own people suffer cruelly from this evil system, the French themselves do not escape. They gain, it is true, about 30,000,000 francs by the extra profits of their sales of sugar; but the bounties must be paid for by the French nation, and the 30 millions of francs received cost the French tax-payers 32,000,000 francs—that is, for every 30 francs' worth of sugar exported, those Frenchmen who do not refine sugar have to pay 32 francs. And the advantage of cheap sugar thus produced is not enjoyed by the French alone. They confer it on the British consumer too. The French Government and nation, therefore, pay very heavily to give us cheap sugar, and to afford their own sugar refiners 20 per cent. profits. It is not likely so ruinous a system will last. The French must see in time that their nation suffers for the benefit of only a section of their artizans.

The shipping bounties given by the French Government to their shipowners to foster the shipping trade and thus ruin ours, seems somehow to have altogether missed its mark! French shipping, though bountifully encouraged, does not increase. On the contrary, it decreases, and the shipping that increases fast in the French carrying trade is the British. Can the French long continue a destructive system which costs them enormous sums, but benefits us but not themselves exclusively? We see, then, that forces are at work which will remedy the troubles under which our working-classes labour, and promise to give them the relief which they are beginning to ask from protective duties, but surely will never obtain in that direction! Our labourers and artizans, it is true, are sorely tried just now by a commercial depression which is universal. "Germany, in spite of the superior technical education its people enjoy, is suffering from commercial depression, and is complaining of the competition of England." There is no doubt that we are passing through a time of sifting and trial, from which no country is exempt. There "is upon the earth distress of nations and perplexity. Men's hearts are failing them for fear, and for looking after those things that are coming on the earth." But to us, being Israel, there is a message of mercy to which we are bound to give good heed if we wish to partake of the comfort which the Lord desires to send us as a nation very especially. For, it is added to the above, in Luke xxi. 28, "And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh."

The redemption of Israel demands these troubles as the condition precedent, and thus these afflictions must be our sign of the coming blessing; since we are bidden to note them coming to pass, and, seeing them, we must "Look up and lift up our heads with joy" in spite of them, because they are the heralds of the approaching prosperity, to be nationally the lot of Israel, God's chosen, and that exclusively. To Him be all the praise!

THE Hon. James Service recently stated that the Australians were intensely loyal. They loved England with all their heart, and they wanted England to love them in the same way. They felt that the old folks at home ought to feel a pride in their children, because the children did their best to deserve that pride, and to try to raise themselves to the level of Imperial feeling.

FOREIGN TESTIMONY TO ISRAEL'S SUPREMACY AMONG THE NATIONS.

WE allude to the subject of Britain's supremacy not to exalt and puff up our people but to prove that being Israel God is true. He declared that if they hearkened to His voice and obeyed His commandments to do them He would set them high above the nations, making them "the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath," in respect to all of them (Deut. xxviii. 1, 13). It is a matter of the most serious moment to us as a nation that we should be enabled to prove that God has done this for the British. For if we can show that He has fulfilled this promise as He has not dealt with any other nation, then we prove that the British are not only Israel, but that portion of Israel which He accounts to be "Israel obedient."

Let us see, then, what the Times told us on September 16, as a portion of its communication from Trieste, where its correspondent telegraphed as follows:—

Vienna, Sept. 15.

All the newspapers publish detailed and sympathetic reports of the cordial reception accorded to the British Fleet at Trieste. The Neue Freie Presse, the leading Liberal journal in Austria, says:—

"It is now the fashion to speak of England's decadence, but, in spite of all that may be adduced in support of this pessimist view, the fact remains that Great Britain's moral and physical power has not its equal in the world, and can only be compared with the greatness of ancient Rome."

The Neue Freie Presse's testimony confirms the Scriptural statement to the jot and to the tittle. The Austrian writer says that "Great Britain has not its equal in the world in moral and physical power," which we take to be nearly a verbatim repetition of God's blessing promised to "Israel obedient" which we have just quoted from Deut. xxviii. 1 and 13.

In the Times of September 17, we have a few words quoted from the Trieste Independente, declaring, regarding the British squadron in those waters, that it "was a model and pattern of officers and seamen who have not their equals." God, in short, according to His promise, "has set our nation on high above all nations of the earth," and we do right to notice the fact, and praise Him for His truth and faithfulness to our unworthy race. If the facts were not as the Austrian papers describe them, then we had not been Israel. But being as they are (our foreign friends being the judges), then we may accept them as proof of our Israelite origin, and that God is true to His sworn promises to His people—promises made to them exclusively. The Austrian writer says that "the moral and physical power of Great Britain can only be compared with the greatness of ancient Rome." We believe that there is no comparison between the two Powers. Ours is infinitely greater, grander, and purer than ever was Rome's. The latter was a heathen, corrupt, brutal, and Satanic Empire, while ours blesses all it touches and rules, and morally as well as physically excels the other nations, because its rule is righteous, founded on the Word of God, regulated also by the presence of the Spirit of Him who loves all nations, and has "created, made, and fashioned Israel to show forth His praise" (Isa. xliii. 21).

We may accept, then, the statement of the Austrian writer as further evidence of the truth of our contention, and see also thereby that God is faithful to His covenants. If true in this matter, we have evidence afforded us thereby that He is also true in all; that His condemnation of sin and His resolve to punish it, will surely be carried out. Heaven and hell, salvation and eternal misery, all these are seen then to be as true as Our Identity, and depending upon precisely the same evidence which establishes the latter. Here is the moral value of our teaching. It confirms the Scriptures and points to the conclusion that they are literally the Word of the living God, which can no longer be neglected or despised.

Israel's history as illustrated by British facts and British blessings is the witness to the world that "the Lord He is God!" This is the witness to which God Himself appeals in Isaiah xliii. 10—12, and xliv. 8, to demonstrate to an infidel world that He is God. Our Identity with the Ten Tribes, and all the facts that underlie that tremendous subject, demonstrate to the unbeliever in Revelation that God exists, and "that He will judge the world in righteousness by that Man whom He hath ordained" (Acts xvii. 31). We rejoice, therefore, when we can obtain the disinterested, if blind, testimony of a foreigner, to prove that the British are indeed fulfilling God's promises to His people, and that therefore they must be they, as He is true. The Austrian acknowledgment confirms the truth of such a text as Isa. lxi. 9, R.V., where we read regarding Israel: "Their seed shall be known among the (Gentiles or) nations, and their offspring among the peoples. All that see them shall acknowledge them, that they are the seed which the Lord hath blessed."

Digitized by Google

The Austrians have seen the power and the excellent behaviour of the British Fleet, its officers and men, at Trieste; and their testimony is forthcoming at once. "This is the seed that the Lord hath blessed; their moral power and their physical strength have not their equal in the world." We thank God for the testimony we here record, and believe it is most valuable to our case. The pessimists are always most active in representing that "the British sun is setting." But there is no truth in that assertion. God is with us, and for us, and has repeatedly promised to Israel His people that "He will never leave them nor forsake them." Why should we then take pessimist views of our nation's case, or doubt that He who has redeemed Israel will yet "give her the promised kingdom, and dominion, and greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, as the people of the saints of the Most High" (Deut. vii. 22 and 27). What He has done for us in Burmah in adding that enormous Empire to our Queen's dominions, we all know. But we do not yet all know how greatly we have benefited the conquered nation even in these late years during and after the protracted war against Dacoity. We learn the facts from the recent speech of Mr. Crossthwaite, the Chief Commissioner, on Aug. 5th, at Mandalay—a very remarkable address, published by the Times on Sept. 14th, showing how God has prospered our new dominion and efforts to rule it for His glory. He said:—

In August, 1886, the country was overrun with gangs of armed banditti, and there was little time to think of anything but stern preparation for the field. Few of these gangs are now in existence. Most of their leaders have been killed, or taken prisoners, or have surrendered, or, like Hla-Oo. have died miserably at the hands of their own followers. You have only to look round you as you walk through the streets of your own city to see the change which is being wrought. Where dacoit gangs roamed and plundered, the unarmed citizen can now walk without care. At night rows of lamps light up the streets. The roads, formerly rough, and in wet weather almost impassable, are now covered with carts and carriages. Rows of handsome, substantial houses, taking the place of the old bamboo or wooden hut, show the wealth of your citizens, and their ability to display it without fear. The railway is made from the city gates to the shore of the river, where steamers are constantly loading or delivering their cargoes. Everywhere in this province, in every town and village that enjoys the kindly shelter of the British power, similar changes are taking place.

And this protection, he continued, which, as our power is becoming consolidated, is being spread over the whole length and breadth of Burmah, is not a thing which to-day is, and to-morrow will pass away. This country has become part of the British Empire, and its people have become the subjects of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen-Empress. So long as the British Empire remains, Burmah will remain under the rule of England. Her soldiers will never leave your shores; her magistrates and judges will never cease to maintain the law.

After explaining the various measures being taken for the security of the people, the education of their children, and the development of trade, Mr. Crosthwaite concluded thus:—

You have all learnt the meaning of our word "jubilee." Her Majesty's jubilee has just been celebrated in England, and I think it will be a happy omen if we date the pacification of Burmah from the date of the Queen-Empress's jubilee. I hope I may be allowed, without being guilty of presumption, to indulge the thought that Her Most Gracious Majesty, who well knows the condition of affairs in every part of her vast Empire, found time to give a thought to Burmah on her jubilee day, and that the knowledge that peace and protection were being extended under her authority to the people of this hitherto harassed country did not fail to add to her joy. I hope, also, that I may be allowed to look forward to a day, fifty years hence, when your children will be celebrating the jubilee of the advent of British peace. For of this be assured—that, come what may, if God so wills, the British flag will continue to fly over Mandalay, and the Queen of England, and no other, will be the Queen of Burmah.

Such words as these, officially uttered, require no comment from us. But they prove in many ways that Our Identity with Israel is true, and they corroborate the Austrian journalist's statement very fully. To the Lord shall be Israel's praise!

THE REV. JOHN BOND, A METHODIST MINISTER, GIVES EVIDENCE.

THE Methodist Recorder, on Oct. 20th, 1887, published a speech by the Rev John Bond, made on the occasion we suppose of some Methodist Missionary Meeting, and it has been sent to us by a friend residing in Manchester with the very true remark, that "it seems to be exactly in point!" That is exactly what it is! The Rev. John Bond is not, we suppose, a believer in Our Identity and yet he has made a speech that any Anglo-Israelite might make, and one which exactly proves our case! We fear the Rev. speaker was after all only a "blind witness;" but his testimony was perfectly conclusive. The nation that answers to the description he gave of the British in the eloquent burning words we quote, must be Israel. Yet the speaker, who is a religious man and full of the scriptures, never so much as once remarked on the fact that the peculiarities of our race which he so well described are the marks given in God's Word whereby He tells us we may know "Lost Israel," His chosen people. Thus he stated his belief that God had given to our race "a large portion of the work of spreading the word of life." But Israel was to bless "all nations, families, and kindreds of the earth," and "He sheweth them and them alone His word" to qualify them for their world-wide work (Gen. xxii. 18; xxviii. 14; Acts iii. 25; Isa. xxvii. 6; Psa. cxlvii. 19, 20). He was struck with the fact that God has given to this same race an almost universal dominion "with the keys of the great ancient Sea." But God gave Israel universal dominion and the Gates to acquire and hold it (Gen xxii. 17; Dan. vii. 22—27; Rom. iv. 13). He noticed that God has given us the languages of the world to form part of our dominion, and that with it He meant us to fill it with "the music of the Gospel." But where the language goes, the race must have preceded, and this is only another way of saying that God has promised to make Israel "the heir of the world!" It proves that the British are Israel, and blessed according to the prophecies (Rom. iv. 13; Isa. xliii. 1, 7, 21; Zeph. iii. 9).

The writer alluded to the stupendous wealth of the British and our bewildering commerce. But God gave Israel "the power to get wealth" for a specific purpose. Our race fulfils the prophecy both in respect to our abnormal wealth, and as to our dissemination of the Gospel with it (Deut. xv. 6, viii. 18). We have seldom met with so remarkable a speech as Mr. Bond's, and our reflection on reading it was, that "our reverend brother was not far from belief in the Israelitish origin of the British people." The following was the Methodist Recorder's report of an excellent speech, and we are glad to be able to repeat it in full:—

Digitized by Google

The Rev. John Bond, after some prefatory remarks, said: There will fall to the Anglo-Saxon race a large portion of the work of spreading the Word of Life. Sometimes the insignificance of this country is spoken of. An American said, "You say Columbus discovered America. Why on earth, if he went West—how could he have missed it? If you said he discovered England it would have been something; but, as for me I am afraid to go out at night lest I should step over and be drowned" (Laughter). He had perhaps forgotten that the greatest and most influential of the nations of the world had been small, at least at the commencement. Greece and Rome are instances in point; and what is England but the heart of a great empire?

I see how God has been pleased to place the nations of the world at the feet of England. I cross the waters of the Atlantic and find there in British North America a tract of country, after all her losses, as large as the whole of the United States put together. I go South and find a multitude of Islands, once given by the Pope to Spain, but now filled with a race of emancipated blacks rejoicing under English protection. I find even in South America, British Guiana, equal in size to Portugal, Greece, and Denmark all put together. Then I go further South to the Cape of Good Hope. I find there a territory attached to this country exceeding by 56,000 square miles the whole Republic of France and Empire of Germany. I go to the East, and I find there a wonderful land that the Greeks, under Alexander, managed to enter, but could never conquer: a land the Romans wanted to touch but could not, but which to-day reposes under the shield of England, and represents a population twice as large as the whole Russian Empire put together. I pass on further, and find in Australia a continent as large as the five great Powers on the continent of Europe put together. These are vast tracts of the world which God has been pleased to place under the Eastern section of the Anglo-Saxon family. In the South Atlantic I find Ascension and St. Helena (large enough to contain Napoleon, that all Europe could not contain), and further South still the Falkland Islands—guarding the South Pole for this country. East I find Sierra Leone, Aden, Mauritius, the Straits Settlements; and across there are the Islands of Fiji, which have been lately added to the empire mostly through the instrumentality of Methodists, where Australia is watching as a scout, lest any fox from the nations of Europe should come into the poultry-yard of the great Pacific Ocean. (Cheers and laughter.) I find in the Mediterranean, Cyprus, where we are watching at the open door to see whether the sick man is dying at Constantinople or not, and a little further on I find that we are face to face with Malta, and are encased in granite at Gibraltar, holding the keys of the great ancient sea.

Why is it that God has given us all this? How is it there is this vast empire placed at the foot of the British people? Sir, people talk of the greatness of the Russian Empire. I see that great Polar bear come down from the North, one foot upon Poland and the other foot upon Siberia; one foot spudding in the waters of Bulgaria, another scratching in the mountains of Afghanistan, its great mouth open to destroy two Turkeys, one in Europe and one in Asia—(laughter)—its snout piercing the Dardanelles and thrusting itself into the Mediterranean; sniffing at us in Egypt and Cyprus, and threatening to close the Suez Canal.

Then I turn to the British Empire, and I find England to be its heart, Canada its head, Australia its feet; one arm down the coast of Africa and the other arm in India: and I find belted round this land 10,000 hills sparkling and 10,000 gems scattered over the waters of the whole earth, a mighty belt that encircles the waist of this strong and old England of ours. (Cheers.) And to-day Great Britain has half-a-million more square miles beneath her standard than Russia has ever had or probably ever will have.

Why has God so favoured us, but we may put the leaven of His truth into the hearts of the people of the earth? Why has He told us to carry the flag of Christianity before us but that the world might be Christianised by this branch of the Anglo-Saxon race to the utmost of its capacity? Why has God given us the languages of the world? Dutch is spoken under the authority of England at the Cape; French in the Channel Islands and Canada; Spanish at Trinidad and Gibraltar; Italian at Malta; Greek at Cyprus; Arabic at Aden; Chinese at Hong Kong, and multitudes of languages are to be found in India. Why has God given us these languages? In order that we may proclaim the blessed Gospel.

And then think of our own language, which I am trying to speak now! (Laughter). 37,000,000 speak it here. In India it is the language of the ruling race. In Australia and in America it is spoken over more square miles than all the French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Dutch put together. It is the language in which civil and religious liberty finds an unbroken voice throughout the world. There are more books of solid genius, poetry, and Bibles in this language than in all others put together In the East it is beating languages that have been in existence since the Flood. 120,000,000 of people are speaking the language that you and I speak, and a German has made the calculation that in time it will be the universal language. It has its defects, I daresay it is not equal to the language of Greece for philosophy, Rome for law, and Italy for music, but for all practical purposes it is the language of the world. Why has God done that? Simply that He would take this language to the world, and fill it with the music of the blessed Gospel.

The revenue of the British Empire is not less than £200,000,000. Many of our rich men could buy up the whole set of German princes. (Loud laughter.) . . . The heart of England is full of wealth—iron, coal, and other treasures. Commerce bears our wealth into every sea and harbour, and throughout the whole world we find gold and silver placed at the feet of England. Why has God given us all this, but that we may lay it at the feet of Jesus, offering Him gold, frankincense and myrrh for these purposes and for the glory of His Kingdom.

And then there is our political power. A Russian a little time ago said, "A great and long-continued war to which England is not a party cannot be maintained." "No Englishman can be injured in any part of the world," says an American, "but within twenty-four hours a gunboat is run out and cries, 'Does anybody want anything from me?'" God forbid that these political forces should ever be used except in the cause of justice, righteousness, and truth! (Cheers.) I believe in individual missions and I believe in national missions. Greece, Rome and other nations have had their missions; but the mission of England I believe to be this—to "Bring forth the royal diadem.

And crown Him Lord of all."

God grant that England may not be unfaithful to it. I hear a voice speaking to this country—"Arise, shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord has risen upon thee." Shall England obey that summons, or shall she be disgraced?

I remember hearing of a regiment that was deprived of its colours because of its unfaithfulness. The regiment was disgraced, but the day came when a fortress had to be stormed, and the general pointing the disgraced regiment to the top of it, said, "There are your colours, go and take them." They darted off from crag to crag, from cliff to cliff, and rock to rock, and tree to tree, in spite of the thundering cannonade and the roar of the musketry. They captured the fortress, they won their flag, and the whole army applauded them to the echo. We all have been unfaithful in times past, but there are strong castles to be captured all over the world, and the battle in array is set. May we be true and faithful! May England capture these fortresses in the name of our Master! May she arise and shine! The day is coming when if England shall fail, she shall be disgraced, but if she fufil her destiny, and act up to her duty, God shall crown her with everlasting life. (Loud cheers.)

WHO WERE THE GALILÆANS?

By Surgeon-General J. M. Grant, M.D.

I have long held, and have stated in some of my published papers, the idea that the Galilæans were the tribe of Benjamin. I founded this belief on the prophetic blessing pronounced by Moses on Benjamin in Deut. xxxiii 12, "The beloved of the Lord shall dwell safely by him," which was apparently fulfilled during Christ's ministry in His always having found an asylum in Galilee from the malice and persecution of the Jews (John vii. 1, and xi. 7, 8).

It must have struck every attentive reader of the Gospels that there were two classes of Israelites in Palestine in our Lord's time, and that they regarded themselves quite distinct from each other (compare John xi. 8 with Acts ii. 5—8). I have long thought it probable that these two classes belonged respectively to the two tribes of which the kingdom of Judah was composed, the Galilæans being Benjamites; and I have met with strong confirmatory evidence in the course of my recent reading. In Luke xxiii. we read that when Pilate found that Christ was a Galilæan, and belonged to the jurisdiction of Herod, he sent Him to Herod, who sent Him back, having found no cause of death in Him: from which we gather the very important fact that, whoever these Galilæans may have been, they were certainly Israelites, and received Christ, who took His twelve apostles from amongst them; that they were under a separate government from the Jews; and that they were not involved in the guilt of the crucifixion, because their chief ruler, unlike those of the Jews, refused to condemn Jesus. We find further, from Matt. ii. 16—18, that the prophecy of Jer. xxxi. 15, in which Rachael is allegorically represented as weeping for her children, was fulfilled in "the slaughter of the innocents," as it is called, from which it follows that those Galilæan children whom Herod slew were the descendants of Benjamin, the son of Rachael, whom the prophet comforts regarding both him and her other son Joseph, the representative head of the banished tribes, that there was hope in her end, in the ultimate destiny of all her children, that they should come again from the land of the enemy, because He that had scattered Israel would gather them.

Digitized by Google

Cheltenham, November 12th.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—I am very glad to learn from you, that "there is rising up among us an idea that there need be no poor" among us "in the land." I have long since entertained that idea. Not that I believe in Christian Socialism, or Papal Communism: but simply because I believe in the word of the living God—which you seem to have overlooked in Deut. xv. from which you quote, and which quotation only refers to the land, and in the year of release therein. For at the fourth verse of the same chapter I read, "save when there shall be no poor among you; for the Lord shall greatly bless thee in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, an inheritance to possess it." It is surely self-evident that if God has given the power to get wealth, it is that He may establish His covenant which He sware to our fathers. What covenant but that he (Abraham) and his seed should heir the world? Not "a surplus" from the upper ten, nor help out of the poverty of many others—I read of no such thing in this everlasting covenant; but believe all that is written of it in the thirty-third chapter of the same book, verses 13—17, in their entire literality—and see no obstacle to their immediate realisation in our land, even now, but the blight of Popery, and the curse of drunkenness, and their progeny.

In a certain poorhouse of about 900 paupers, when the visiting missionary asked the governor, "How many of God's poor have you?" he replied, "There may be four, but I am only sure of two." So easy is it to maintain Israel's poor now. And I do say to them, "There's a good time coming."

"For He the needy shall preserve, when he to Him doth call,
The poor also and him that hath no help of man at all;
The poor man and the indigent in mercy He shall spare,
He shall preserve alive the souls of those that needy are.
Both from deceit and violence their soul He shall set free,
And in His sight right precious and dear their blood shall be;
Sure as thy Truth shall last to Zion shall be given
The brightest glories earth can yield, and brighter bliss of heaven."

VICTORINE.

September 5th, 1887.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

DEAR PHILO-ISRAEL,—I have just finished reading a most excellent sermon on "The Accession of Queen Victoria," preached by the Rev. W. Jay, in Argyle Chapel, Bath, on Sunday evening, July 9th, 1837. "As for My people, children are their oppressors, and women rule over them" (Isa. iii. 12). In the course of his exposition, Mr. Jay, that eminent servant of Christ, refers to our beloved Sovereign as "the illustrious female Sovereign who has just ascended the first throne in the world," and after a few intervening remarks, thus continues his discourse:—"I derive our satisfaction from the moral and religious condition of the country itself. We, as a nation, are exalted to heaven by our privileges. It would be unbecoming to speak of ourselves in the spirit of self-righteousness, and to say, 'The temple of the Lord! the temple of the Lord are we,' for we are well aware of the many and great evils which still exist amongst us; but we are persuaded that there is no country in the world superior to our own, morally and religiously. Oh, my brethren, let us acknowledge with gratitude before God that ours is, indeed, a good land, a land of Bibles, and holy Sabbaths, and sanctuaries, and Gospel preaching, and Christian missions, and philanthropic institutions, and civil and religious freedom, a land now without a slave. Great efforts are made, and large sums of money contributed, to spread the Gospel of Christ both at home and abroad. Then, may we not reasonably expect that God will say, 'Destroy it not, for a blessing is in it'? If He bless a nation as such, He must bless it in this world, not in the next. I think we ought not to overlook the favourable providence of God in the preservation of the life of our Queen, and in her coming of age at the very time when the late king's illness commenced, being prepared for her accession to the Throne without the difficulties and dangers of a regency."

I feel certain, my dear Philo-Israel, that my beloved fellow-readers of the BANNER will be intensely gratified thus to have placed before them and put on record the thoughts and the ennobling sympathies of such an undoubted blind witness to our glorious and ever-awakening Identity of our royal House to "David's" kingly line, and if by so doing I can kindle a spark in the breast of any haphazard reader of this, the universally-accepted exponent of Identity truth, I shall, Mr. Editor, and you also, both of us will rejoice in that blessed consummation.

Yours fraternally,
WILFRID CARTER.

27, Peel-street, Dingle, Liverpool, 2nd Nov., 1887.

Review.

Words of Help and Wisdom. Gleanings Gathered from Various Authors and Poets.—By Jessie Lawrence. London: Robert Banks and Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C. Price 1s.

THE title aptly describes this little book, which is the work of an Anglo-Israelite, well known as the Honorary Treasurer of our Anglo-Israel Free Distribution Fund. The Gleanings are general in their character, but there are many extracts from Anglo-Israelite writings, which give them a claim to a favourable notice in these pages. Thus the Rev. C. W. Hickson contributes a portion on p. 14, Mr. Douglas A. Onslow on p. 41, C. M. on p. 40, Miss V. M. Cox on pp. 26 and 62, and Philo-Israel on pp. 38, 56, and 57. Here and there, too, we have notices such as this on p. 33, "Great Britain is the only nation fulfilling the promises given in Deut. xv. 6." On p. 36 another sentence deals with Gen. xxxv. 11, xlviii. 19, pointing to our seventy colonies as Israel's "company of nations." A paragraph on p. 45 pointedly declares that "the British possess the Gate of their enemies," according to the promise in Gen. xxii. 17.

The extracts that the reader will find in this pleasing little volume are altogether good in their object, and cannot but edify those who take them up for perusal in their moments of leisure. The work is chiefly meant for private circulation, and distribution through societies "whose object is to spread the knowledge of salvation" among our sailors, fishermen, and others. But there are sufficient subjects mooted in this volume connected with Our Identity to make our opponents repent of their opposition, and show them that in the midst of much that is holiest and godliest in the writings of our contemporaries our nation's blessings are traced by our Anglo-Israelite writers to God's goodness and faithfulness to His promises and to His covenants with "Abraham and his seed for ever."

THE Bible readings at the rooms of the Metropolitan Association will be discontinued during the Christmas season.

AT the complimentary banquet given to the Hon. James Service (late Prime Minister of Victoria), Earl Rosebery said that the great discovery of the nineteenth century was the discovery of the British Empire. The world was previously aware of the existence of the United Kingdom, and knew of a country called India, governed by a private company, and considered a land of mythical wealth. Since then a great awakening had taken place.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies " " " 1 0 4
Four Copies " " " 1 5 6
Six Copies " " " 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

A LECTURE will be Delivered in the ASSOCIATION ROOMS, 14, King William-street, Charing Cross, W.C., on THURSDAY AFTERNOON NEXT, December 15, 1887, at 3.30 o'clock, by Miss E. M. BABINGTON. Subject: "The Three Emigrant Tribes of Israel." Strangers will be made welcome.

JAMES BILLINGTON, sec.

VALUABLE CONSULTATION PRESCRIPTION for cure of Indigestion sent to any address for One Shilling. Part profits to Banner Free Distribution Fund.—"Identity," 8, Charlotte-terrace, Clacton-on-Sea.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

A Resume of the Scriptural Argument, Proving the Identity of the British Race with the Lost Ten Tribes. Price 1d.; 6s. per hundred, postage 6d.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

Just published, in bevelled boards, gilt lettered, gilt edges, price 1s., post free for P.O.

WORDS OF HELP AND WISDOM.

Gleanings Gathered from Various Authors and Poets

BY JESSIE LAWRENCE.

More useful and acceptable than Christmas or New Year's Cards.

LONDON: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, or of the AUTHOR, "Rosslyn," Hampton Road, Upper Teddington.

CHRISTMAS GIFT BOOK.

Royal Copy, 4s., Coloured ditto, gilt edges, full gilt 2s., Plain 1s. 8d., postage 2d. extra.

"MY JEWELS"

(MAL. III. 17),

BY SARAH SHARP.

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, and all booksellers.

The Latest Publication by EDWARD HINE.

The Nation Warned by the Scripture Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Things to Happen about 1887, and Onward.

PRICE SIXPENCE; Post Free, 7d.

F. W. PARRY, 29, Paternoster Row, London, E.C.

ETHELINE

A New and most Effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

HUMAN LIFE.—FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles, and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 50 pages. SENT FREE to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON B. MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C. Write to-day.

Price 3d.; Interleaved with Ruled Paper, 5d.; Cloth bound, gilt lettered, marbled edges, 1s.; by post 4d., 6d., and 1s.

THE

ANGLO-ISRAEL ALMANACK

AND DIARY FOR 1888.

CONTENTS:

FRONTISPIECE—VIEW OF NAZARETH.

CALENDAR AND DIARY FOR THE YEAR, January: Christ's Commands. February: Commands. March: Promises. April: Promises. May: Prayers. June: Prayers. July: Christ's Promises. August: Promises. September: Proverbs. October: Proverbs. November: Invitations. December: Prophecies. Church Lessons for each Sunday of the Year. Notes for the Month. Moon's Changes. Moveable Feasts. Measures of Length. Bank Holidays. Length in a Mile in Different Countries. Letters Patent for Inventions. Notes for 1889. Meteoric Showers. Legal Tender of Money. Legacy and Succession Duty. Income Tax. Postal Regulations, Money Orders, etc. General Information. The Royal Family. The Church. Public Exhibitions. The Ministry.

ARTICLES:

The Testimony of History that the British are Israel By Philo-Israel.
The Foundation of Anglo-Israel Truth. By V. M. Cox.
"The Fulness of the Gentiles." By the Rev. C. W. Hickson, M.A.
Fulfilling Prophecy. By Douglas A. Onslow.
The Clue to the World's Future. By the Rev. Denis Hanan, M.A.
The Principles of a Divine System; and Israel's Place In It. By Ernest P. Dix.
Rule Britannia! By H. R. Shaw.
Nazareth.
God's Israel. By Rev. Hibbert Newton.
A Christmas Carol.
List of Anglo-Israel Associations in Various Parts of the World

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, and all Booksellers.

CARBOLINE

1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.

Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved.

DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED

Makers:

GEORGE & WELCH

CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,

Who will forward Free of Postage.

GRAND CHRISTMAS PRESENT

GIVEN AWAY, 5,000 SETS OF BEST SHEFFIELD STEEL CARVING KNIVES AND FORKS. White or Buckthorn Handles. Extra Finish.

GIVEN AWAY. GIVEN AWAY.

10,000 GOVERNMENT HEARTHRUGS.

6ft. long, 3ft. wide. Exquisite designs—viz., Fern and Oak, Leaves, Flowers, Grape Vine, Cat and Kittens, Lion Tigers, Horses, Dogs, and Deer. Suitable for Dining or Drawing-room, Parlour, Bedroom or Kitchen. Selling in thousands. 2s. 6d., or 32 stamps; or two for 4s 6d.; or with heavy Linoleum Backs, 3s. 6d. each; or two for 6s. 6d., three for 9s.

SPECIAL OFFER. 1,000 PURE SILK HANDKERCHIEFS, all colours, large size, 1s. each, or 14 stamps; three for 2s. 9d. Sent free to any part of the country.

B. of I. CHRISTMAS PRESENT.
SHEFFIELD STEEL CARVING KNIFE and FORK COUPON.
One Set of Best Steel Carving Knife and Fork will be presented to every purchaser of a Hearthrug before Christmas. Signed,
BE IN TIME. J. WATTS.
All orders taken in rotation.

J. WATTS, 113, BRUNSWICK ROAD, LIVERPOOL.

ONE MILLION CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR'S CARDS to be presented to readers of this Paper. Send stamped directed envelope (2d. stamps) for specimen dozen Christmas and New Year Cards to J. WATTS, Card Department, 113, Brunswick Road, Liverpool.

LUNG TONIC

SAVE YOUR LIVES BY TAKING

OWBRIDGE'S LUNG TONIC

THE MIGHTY HEALER.

It has a power over disease hitherto unknown in Medicine.

Are you at all Weak-chested or inclined to be Consumptive, with just a touch of Cough now and then?

"Try this Wonderful Medicine." The Cough and Weakness will disappear as if by magic, and you will feel a strength and power you never had before.

HAVE YOU A COUGH?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT!
HAVE YOU A COLD?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Bronchitis & Asthma it relieves instantly

The Spasms of Coughing so dreadful in Whooping Cough become less with each dose of the medicine.

Prepared by W. T OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull

Sold in Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s. by all Chemists and Patent Medicine Vendors. Wholesale all London and Provincial Houses.

30,000 BEDS SOLD in SEVEN YEARS

NEWHAM'S CELEBRATED LINCOLNSHIRE FEATHER BEDS.

THE CHEAPEST FEATHER BEDS IN THE WORLD.

Direct from Boston, Lincolnshire.

No. 1. SINGLE BED, BOLSTER, and PILLOW, 6 ft. 3 in. by 3 ft. 6 in., weighing 40 lb. 30/0
No. 2. DOUBLE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6 ft. 6 in. by 4 ft. 6 in. weighing 50 lb. 37/6
No. 3. DOUBLE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6 ft. 6 in. by 4 ft. 6 in., weighing 65 lb... .. 41/3
No. 4. EXTRA SIZE BED, BOLSTER, and TWO PILLOWS, 6 ft. 6 in. by 5 ft., weighing 65 lb. .. 48/9

WARRANTED NEW AND SWEET.

Any sized Bed only 9d. per lb., including Feathers, in Strong Union (bordered) Tick, making, packing, wrapper, and Carriage Paid to any Station in the United Kingdom.

SUPERIOR BEDS, Splendid Feathers, Linen Tick, 1s. per lb.

Samples of Feathers and Ticks, Price Lists, &c. post-free.

For the convenience of Purchasers we have opened a Branch Establishment at 178, Strand, London.

All orders must be accompanied by Cheque or P.O.O. (which, as security to purchasers, may be post dated ten days) payable to

NEWHAM & CO., Boston, Lincolnshire,

or to THOS. SMITH, 178, STRAND, LONDON,

where Goods and Samples can be seen and obtained.

Feathers only 9d. per lb. The trade supplied. Please mention this paper. A great reduction on three or more beds.

LADIES! We will send a full dress-length of beautiful cloth, in any of the following colours, carriage paid to any address, for 10s. 6d. Colours—Black, blue, fawn, ruby, claret, green, slate, grenat, brown, grey, navy, tabac, bronze, reseda, gold, myrtle, etc. These Wonderful Dress-lengths have gained a world-wide reputation for Magnificence, Cheapness and Durability. Thousands have been sold, and repeat orders and testimonials received. Ladies should write for patterns, which may be had free, and need not be returned.

GRAND CHRISTMAS PRESENTS. We will give a very handsome Brocaded Silk Handkerchief with each dress-length ordered before January 31.

LUTAS LEATHLEY & Co., Armley, Leeds.

RHEUMATISM, GOUT,

SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, INDIGESTION, CONSTIPATION, LIVER & KIDNEY COMPLAINTS, NERVOUS DISORDERS, LADIES' AILMENTS, ETC. Promptly Relieved and CURED BY

HARNESS' ELECTROPATHIC BELT

ALL sufferers should read "Harness' Guide to Health," free by post, containing copies of Thousands of Testimonials. Every man and woman in search of Health, Strength, and Energy, should at once send a 21s. postal order to the Medical Battery Co. Ltd. 52, OXFORD ST. LONDON, W. and procure one of these famous Belts, and they may rely upon being CURED

Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, DEC. 14, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."
(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 573. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1887. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

	PAGE
Yonder Ill-Consolidated Europe	509
The Trade of the World	510
Druidical Circles: What Were They, and What Their Use? By Joseph Thomson	510
Knowing . . . Your Election of God	512
The Rev. C. H. Spurgeon's "Down Grade"	513
Remarkable Coincidences. By F. Gass	514
The Canaanite	515
Review	515

"YONDER ILL-CONSOLIDATED EUROPE."

THESE remarkable and ominous words were used by some writer in the Times newspaper, eight or ten years ago, and they left a deep impression on our mind at the time—an impression which subsequent events have only strengthened. To-day we have the same writers in the journal in question, commenting on the state of Europe now in precisely similar language. In the leader of December 14, 1886, the journalist speaking of "The Condition of Europe," describes it as "one of extreme tension—and of visible instability." The structure which is seen to be of unstable equilibrium is ready to fall; nay, it is tottering to its fall, if the instability is visible to the eye! Such is said to be the position of Europe at this hour! It is "ill-consolidated," and it is ready to fall in fragments to the ground, at the first impact of some attacking body! The Times notes the approximate reasons for the alarming condition of Europe, and describes them in the following words:—

In adding to her army Germany only follows a movement which is going on around her. Europe, already armed to the teeth, seems bent upon increasing preparations for a tremendous struggle, and these exaggerated preparations themselves go far to render the struggle inevitable. The movements of Russia are incalculable for more reasons than one, but there is no doubt whatever that she is making extensive preparations, both naval and military, which are certainly not prompted by any fear of attack. The one thing that is persistent amid all the kaleidoscopic changes of French Administrations is a steady effort to increase French power of offence by land and sea. French Governments proclaim a policy of peace, but their acts do not agree with their words. Their enormous armaments are not justified by any rational apprehension of attack, since, if France lets other people alone, none will dream of meddling with her. . . . . With these grave causes for apprehension on either hand, it is easy to understand why German statesmen hold it necessary to add to the already heavy burden of military preparation. They would be more than human, however, did they not ask themselves whether there is no way by which a pacific people may free itself from the tremendous burden of constant preparation for a life and death struggle. Germany, England, and Italy have all alike given ample and continuous proof of a desire to live at peace with the world, yet all these have to pay a heavy tax for permission to dwell in safety within their own borders. That condition of painful and exhausting tension cannot endure indefinitely. We may not be able to conjecture how or where the storm will burst, but burst it must and will, unless other means are found, and that shortly, to relieve Europe of apprehension, and to set free the energies of her peoples for the tasks of peace and progress.

These words are explicit. Europe is on the verge of the explosion which God has been carefully preparing for it; one of "fire, and smoke, and brimstone," accompanied by a great hail; all emblematic of the destruction which a Northern Power has the commission to employ for the disruption and disintegration of the nations of "the earth" who are to suffer the fiery indignation of the Lord for their iniquity (Zeph. iii. 8; Isa. xxvi. 20, 21). The Russians are contributing to it. France is, as we see, following, and the action of these two colossal Powers drives Germany, which is placed between them, to pile on her armour, and increase her armies, till, as the Times declares, these "exaggerated preparations go far to render the struggle they are meant to guard against absolutely inevitable!" Meanwhile, Israel is the favoured nation still! Our own preparations are those wanted to enable us to carry out our part of the coming events. We are denuding Egypt of our troops that we may safeguard the neighbouring Gates, Malta and Cyprus, and send troops to distant India, where the neighbourhood of Russia to the North-western frontier makes precaution necessary. "Shut thy doors about thee" is the Divine prescription, and this we are busy doing at the present hour, as the events of the day clearly show. The condition of Europe is another sign provided for us in the prophecies, to mark the stage of the wonderful drama at which we have now arrived.

Thus we read in the vision of the metallic image, that just as the disruption of the Gentile kingdoms is about to take place in its final stage, the feet and toes were to be seen as partly strong, and partly broken or brittle, by reason of the mixture of iron and potters' clay in the structure of the parts. They were to be in short "ill-consolidated"—exhibiting to the eye a condition of "visible instability;" and therefore threatening a general collapse as soon as the blow should be administered which is destined to bring the whole vast fabric down in fragments to the ground (Dan. ii. 31—45).

Surely the vision is now plain to the most feeble capacity! All attentive observers of the condition of the Continental nations cannot fail to see that the bodies politic there are about to be rudely shaken—and as there is no political cohesion among the nations, but instability, tension, and want of consolidation, the collapse is likely to be final and complete, what time the little Stone, cut out without hands, strikes the blow which will set the train in motion, and make Europe a desolation in order that the Stone may itself become the universal kingdom, and fill the space left void by the ruin of all the rest. These later movements are yet hidden from our expectant gaze. But the God who has given Egypt to us, who has made us masters of India, of Australasia, of South Africa, of North America, of the oceans of the world, can perform that which He has foreseen and means to bring to pass.

Digitized by Google

Israel is the Lord's "Dominion," as Psa. cxiv. 2 teaches us, and that decision is irrevocable, because Jehovah the Lord changeth not, and His gifts and His callings are without repentance (Mal. iii. 6; and Rom. xi. 29). He is not a man that He should lie—nor the Son of man that He should repent. To Israel, the people of the saints of the Most High, He has promised the kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven—for He is the King of that kingdom—which is everlasting, and all dominions shall serve and obey Him (Dan. vii. 27). What the Lord of All thus confers, who can annul or set aside? And therefore, amid the wreck of Empires and the fall of ill-consolidated States, it is ours as the people of God to rejoice before Him—and to praise Him for all His love and unutterable loving-kindness to our ungrateful race, who are nevertheless His inheritance and heritage, His people and the chosen nation according to His oath, promises, and covenant with "Abraham and His seed for ever" (Luke i. 55).

THE TRADE OF THE WORLD.

THE GLASS TRADE IN GREAT BRITAIN.

We had been so long accustomed to regard the glass trade as a peculiar perquisite of Belgium that we are pleased and surprised to find, from a report addressed by the Belgian Consul in Newcastle to his Government, that the British glass trade is decidedly moving. The exports from Great Britain last year were greater than those of Belgium. This is the result of always keeping our manufacturers acquainted with new markets. The Consul says that the profits in the chemical trade are not great, but they are less than in the preceding year. He notes that last year Sir Charles M. Palmer, who was until then the foremost shipbuilder on the Tyne, has been compelled to take a second place, the first name on the list being that of Messrs. W. G. Armstrong, Mitchell, & Co.

A LAMENT OVER GREAT BRITAIN'S COMMERCIAL GREATNESS.

A foreign Consul, residing in Batavia, after enlarging on the fact that most of the coals supplied to the Dutch West Indies come from England, observes: "What other Power besides England can find in every quarter of the world as many different nationalities devoted to her and anxious to be useful to her? It is this love of the mother country and this confraternity of the English which unite them everywhere and contribute largely to their commercial transactions. It is not astonishing, therefore, to see a country like England possessing vast colonies and many ships which plough the seas, taking possession gradually of the commerce of a small country. One might suppose that New South Wales coal being cheap, and the distance being small, would have the preference, but it is not so. Cardiff and West Hartley coals are preferred. Newcastle (New South Wales) coals fetch from 12 florins to 15 florins per ton; Cardiff and West Hartley from 18 florins to 21 florins in the roadstead." It appears that German briquettes are sold in Batavia at "a price which defies competition." It seems, however, that they are very bad, and they yield a large quantity of ash and smoke. —The Manchester Courier, June 29, 1887.

DRUIDICAL CIRCLES: WHAT WERE THEY, AND WHAT THEIR USE?

By Joseph Thomson.

A correspondent has sent us a cutting from the Daily Telegraph of September 28th, containing an editorial on certain ancient stone monuments. From it we gather that the French Government are about taking steps to preserve the "archaic masonry" at Carnac, in Brittany, sometimes called "The French Stonehenge." Besides describing these silent and "mysterious" monuments of antiquity, the opportunity is taken by the writer to enter upon a somewhat elaborate, and, on the whole, interesting, exposition of the whole subject; though several things mentioned are new to us, and others very questionable. Thus he quotes the exaggerated description of the ancient Druidical worship as handed down to us by Latin writers, who, by the way, wrote only from report, that the worship was so sanguinary, and "trees and altars so incessantly dripped with blood," as to scare both bird and beast, adding that these sacred woods "abounded with statues of gods, of pale and mildewed wood, grossly carved," and which description is said to agree curiously with an image formerly kept in Chartres Cathedral, and known as the "Virgin of the Druids." Most "connoisseurs" pronounced this effigy to be mediæval, though the peasantry asserted it was Druidical, which character was perhaps inferred from the head being encircled by a crown of oak leaves. But its "real history was never cleared up," and the effigy was burned by a revolutionary mob in 1792.*

The writer then goes on to say: "All that we know" about the Druids "does not throw one scintilla of light on the meaning of the stones of Carnac, or of those of Stonehenge. . . . The objects, ages, and uses of which, although dimly supposed to have been in some way connected with the Druids, have never been satisfactorily accounted for." Then follows a description of the stones and their nomenclature; and again the admission is made that "modern science knows not what all these objects have to do with Druidism—if they had ever anything to do with it—nor is it known how so rude a people as the Celtic Gauls transported these prodigious stones to their present sites," some of which are about eighteen feet high; and he concludes his elaborate editorial with the words, "The stones of Carnac remain as inscrutable as ever."

Let it clearly be understood that we admit the difficulty of the case, and that the evidence adducible does not amount to certainty; still, we think it is possible to throw much light upon this confessedly mysterious subject. Modern scientific men often commit two errors, which are indeed a wonder to us. They do not always allow sufficient for the wear and tear of the elements in a climate like ours upon monuments exposed to their influence; and, secondly, they treat, with almost a contemptuous neglect, the Biblical historical record. Stone monuments, five hundred to a thousand years old, are frequent in this country; and where they have been exposed to the weather, almost all trace of sculpture or inscription is erased, and it is only guess work attributing it to Saxon or early Norman times. In what state, then, should we expect to find monuments, or the remains of "temples" even, two or three thousand years old, to say nothing of the far greater length of time for which some would contend, when they give them the character of pre-historic"?

* The "Goddess of Reason" set up in Paris during the Revolution in 1793, was crowned with a "garland of oak." It might prove interesting if we knew the exact symbolical meaning intended by those modern idol manufacturers when they thus decorated that living "virgin" of the philosophers. Perhaps it was a survival of the vague Pagan notion that the oak was, for some reason, sacred to Jove. (See above, p. 432). Anyhow, it was a singular commentary on the destruction of the wooden "virgin," similarly decorated, during the preceding year.

Digitized by Google

We do not know very much of the Druidical religion, but from what is known we may gather that Britain was its head-quarters in the time of Julius Cæsar; and if we compare what is recorded of it, with what is recorded in the earlier books of the Bible respecting the Patriarchal and Mosaic religions, with the corruptions added by the Israelites through their connection with other nations, we shall find a very great similarity, amounting even to identity in the opinion of some.

After the Flood, when Noah and his family had come out of the ark, Noah built an altar to the Lord, and offered sacrifices therein. His immediate descendants doubtless remembered this, though they soon corrupted his pure worship, and adored the host of heaven, in addition to, if not in substitution of, the great Creator. The altar built by Noah was probably of the rudest kind, and to draw His people back from the grander and more elaborate altars of other idolatrous nations, God's instruction to His people by His servant Moses was, "An altar of earth thou shalt make unto Me, and sacrifice thereon thy burnt offerings. . . . And if thou wilt make Me an altar of stone, then shalt thou not build it of hewn stone; for if thou lift up thy tool upon it, thou hast polluted it."* This prohibition against the use of "tools," besides other reasons, was probably meant to prevent the altars having images sculptured upon them.

The patriarchs also worshipped in groves; as also did the Druids. The same word in Hebrew signifies an oak, and an oath; and a stone placed under an oak, was a monument of a Divine covenant. Jacob erected a stone as a memorial of his dream, and another over Rachel's grave. Probably the erect gravestones in our churchyards arose from this custom. In Scripture we read of several circles of stones, as Gilgal, which word means circle, and the altar which Moses built "under the hill" (Sinai), and the "twelve pillars according to the twelve tribes of Israel," which he set up, probably encircled it.†

On their entrance to the Promised Land, the Israelites were cautioned against imitating the idolatrous customs of their neighbours; but this warning they neglected; they planted groves and built "high places" upon every hill, where they worshipped Baal, Moloch, Ashtaroth, and other false gods, besides Jehovah. At first, they probably worshipped Jehovah under the title of Baal, i.e., Lord, and then lapsed into idolatry, and sun-worship, &c. So also we find the Druids in Britain worshipped the great uncreated and unseen Spirit, whose chief epithet was Bel, or Bal, i.e., Baal. They taught the immortality of man; and that the great Deity was to be propitiated by sacrifices, rites, and ceremonies similar to those of the Israelites. Human sacrifices characterised both; and their children "passed through the fires" to Moloch. The evidence for this is even superabundant. On the east side of Jordan, in the Holy Land, the indications of this idolatrous culture are abundant, but on the west side there are few or none now remaining. The explanation is, that in the reformation under Hezekiah and Josiah, every "high place" was thrown down, and all the "groves" destroyed in the kingdom of Judah, and so far as their influence extended; but they were left elsewhere. In the British Isles there are still seen similar remains, larger, and more numerous, than are to be found within the same space anywhere. The serpent entered largely into the Hebrew theology; and the brazen serpent—a relic of the "wandering"—was worshipped as an idol, till Hezekiah broke it in pieces as a "piece of brass." So also among the British Druids we find the serpent occupying a high place of reverence, if not of worship; even their temples being formed on a large scale in the shape of a serpent, as at Abury and Shap. The stones at Carnac stand in eleven parallel lines, forming ten passages, probably a rude imitation of a serpent's coil; and down them, as down the avenues of Stonehenge and similar places, the priests and their devotees marched in solemn procession—something in the same way that certain imitators of Baal's priests do now-a-days. The ancient Israelites practised divination, and cast the lot; so also did the British Druids—practising magic, and auguring upon future events. The teachers of religion among the Israelites were divided into three classes—Priests, Levites, and Prophets—with a High Priest at their head; so also with the Druids: and their three orders were headed up by their Arch-Druid. After a battle the Israelites often raised a monument to commemorate the victory; so also with the ancient British, many of whose "menhirs," i.e., great stones, are probably the sole mementoes remaining of some great event, a battle or something equally remarkable, as the "Cath" (Erse, battle), stone, on Stanton Moor, Derbyshire. while in other cases they may be boundary stones to mark off adjoining territories of different chiefs, and to which a semi-sacred character was attached; even as we find it in the Mosaic Law—"Cursed be he that removeth his neighbour's landmark."* The ancient Israelites seem to have buried their dead (at least their kings, Ezek. xliii. 7), occasionally in, or near their holy or "high places," a practice found among both the ancient and modern British; indeed, it is only within memory that the practice of burying eminent personages inside places of worship in this country has been given up. The neighbourhood of Stonehenge (as also other sites of Druidical temples) abounds with burial places. The "Cromlechs," or "Crobnlechs," i.e., round, huge, flat stones, and "Kistavens," or stone chests, frequently found in the British Isles, though popularly called "Druidical altars," were mostly sepulchral, as bodies have been found in them; though it cannot be said that none of them were altars; for some probably served both as tombs and altars; whence arose the practice of sacrificing at the shrines of celebrated individuals, leading on to hero, idol, and saint-worship. We are rather of opinion that most of the Druidical altars were made of earth, especially in the earliest times; though no doubt many were built of stone, and particularly at a later period when labour was plentiful, and huge, "whole stones" (Deut. xxvii. 6) became attainable.

Again, according to the editorial of the Daily Telegraph, the Druidical sacred groves "abounded with statues of gods grossly carved," and one, denominated the "Virgin of the Druids," is adduced by way of proof. We may say that this is the first we have heard of such a thing, and opine that the authorities who pronounced that effigy to be mediæval, were about right, and the cause of truth did not suffer much by its destruction. But as Britain was reputed to be the home and chief seat of Druidism, we must mainly confine our attention to Britain. Selden says, "although Apollo, Mars, and Mercury were worshipped among the vulgar Gauls, yet it appears that the Druid's invocation was to one All-healing, All-saving Power." Though heathens, the ancient British can hardly be called "idolaters," because they had no idols to worship; and this is proved by the fact, that, while statues of gods and goddesses abound in Egypt, Greece, Rome, India, and other places of ancient heathen worship, no vestige of an idol, or an image, has ever been found in a British long barrow (which are the oldest), or on a temple site. But, like the ancient Israelites, the ancient British probably had their "teraphim," or small household images which they consulted as oracles. An account of a small stone head found on the site of a traditonary battle-field in Devonshire, and probably an unique specimen of a British-Hebrew-Phœnician household teraph, will be found in Israel's Hope and Destiny for September and December, 1885.

The Druids were also honoured with many privileges; they had great power, were exempt from taxes, decided public and private disputes, and no important step by the State was undertaken without their approval. They settled questions of peace or war, and all who disobeyed their interdicts were visited

* Exodus xx. 24, 25. † Exodus xxiv. 4.

* Deut. xxvii. 17.

Digitized by Google

with the severest punishment, put beyond the pale of law, and prohibited the sacrifices, or rites of religious worship—in a word, they were "excommunicated." So also among the Israelites; the priests had great influence, and the prophets feared not to denounce the wrath of God upon either the king or nation for their misdeeds; as when we read of Saul, "when he inquired of the Lord, the Lord answered him not, neither by dreams, nor by Urim, nor by prophets;" while Samuel had previously announced his rejection by God.

The earliest arrivals of these ancient British from the East, appear to have been by way of the Mediterranean, whence, having passed the "Pillars of Hercules," the Hebrew-Phœnician voyagers would naturally first approach the South of Ireland and the South-West of Britain, and so thence proceed inland. It is a remarkable fact, and also, perhaps, a proof of this being their course, that while these remains, stone circles, &c., are found abundantly in this direction, on the Eastern side of this country, they are almost absent, or comparatively rare; for while the hills and plains of Westmoreland and Cumberland "are scattered all over with Druidical remains," in Northumberland and Durham adjoining, "scarcely anything of the kind exists." The same phenomena may be seen in the names of places in which "Baal," "Bal," or "Bel," form a part; for while abounding in Ireland, the Isle of Man, and less abundantly in the Western parts of this island, they are very rare on the East.

The evidence arising from the names of places, rivers, and hills—which are among the most permanent memorials of olden time—is both extensive and interesting; but we cannot enter upon it now except to remark that "Carnac" itself betrays its origin; it is the same word as the name of the ancient Egyptian city "Karnak," so celebrated for its temple ruins, and the first part of which, "Car," the Hebrew "Kir," enters so often into the names of ancient British cities, and signifies a stronghold, or fortress.

One of the "abominations" which, in vision, the prophet Ezekiel saw, was that of worshipping "the sun toward the East," while the "temple of the Lord" was behind the worshippers; they having turned their backs to it. So also these Druidical stone circles show evidence of sun-worship, or toward the east. Stonehenge seems to have been built with reference to the point of the sun's rising at the summer solstice, i.e., on Midsummer-day; and so also more or less with other similar erections. They probably worshipped toward the East, and marched round the circle in solemn procession, to signify the circles described by the sun in his beneficent daily and annual courses. From this probably arose our custom of building churches East and West, burying in the same direction, and turning to the East in worship; for there is no ecclesiastical canon for these practices; and the peculiarity of building churches East and West, so characteristic of the British Isles, is traceable to the earliest centuries of our era, and is a custom evidently existing prior to the introduction of Christianity. Churches built in a different direction in this country, are very rare, and exceptions which prove the rule. Even where they are slightly out of the direction of due East and West, it has been attempted to show that the direction points out the place of the sun's rising on the day of the saint to whom the church is dedicated; and in some instances with a degree of success suggestive of its high probability. However this may be, the broad fact remains that our national places of worship have been built East and West from time immemorial; and this fact admits of no explanation so well as on the theory we have advocated.

We think we have now said sufficient on this subject, at least for the present, the literature of which is very extensive. We have purposely given few references, preferring to let our readers look them up for themselves, as well as save space. But if any want to see the subject in the light of Our Identity, they may look up the volumes of the BANNER, particularly Nos. 351—353; 356; 358—363; 460—465; 469; British Israel and Judah's Prophetic Messenger, Nos. 151, 155, 171, 176, 182, 188, 192, 195, 198, 204, 209; and Israel's Hope and Destiny for September and December, 1886.

"KNOWING . . . YOUR ELECTION OF GOD."

THE words recorded above appear in St. Paul's 1st Epistle to the Thessalonians (i. 4), and are usually understood to mean the individual election by God of the Thessalonian believers addressed; such election being manifested by the spiritual signs and marks the apostle enumerates in verses 3, 5 and 8. They showed it by their "work of faith," by "their labour of love," by "their patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ in the sight of God and our Father," by the manifestation of Paul's gospel "in word and power, in the Holy Ghost, in much assurance," and, lastly, by the converts' publication of the same good news abroad, "not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but in every place their faith to Godward was spread abroad." We are not at all concerned to contradict this interpretation of God's electing grace as it affects individuals. We, too, hold election of God as the cause of each saved sinner's call, justification, and final salvation. Men are first elected; then being called in due time with others, they alone respond, because of the election; and finally by reason of the election, and the calling too, such are sanctified as Christ's servants, and finally they are certainly, surely, and eternally saved also because of the election.

We think, however, that St. Paul, in 1 Thess. i. 4, had in view not only personal election, but the corporate election of the Thessalonian Church. Verse 1 says that was the body addressed. And it is clear that the marks by which the elected unit therein could have been known to St. Paul as a God-elected, saved one, sufficed to prove to him that the Church of the Thessalonians addressed was an elected Church too; though, of course, that election need not carry with it the election and salvation of each of its members. Thus Israel was elected and chosen of God to serve Him, yet "they were not all Israel who were of Israel" (Rom. ix. 6). The twelve apostles were, in a sense, the elected of the Lord; yet one of them was a devil! That body was elected, but one of the body was, we know, lost in hell!

But the point to which we now desire to draw attention is this. That as St. Paul declares that he knew by certain spiritual signs and marks that the believers and the Church of the Thessalonians were the elect or chosen of God, so it must be possible also in these our last days to recognise and detect the chosen nation of God, even the Ten-Tribed kingdom, by the same spiritual marks St. Paul enumerated in 1 Thess. i. 4, as well as by those other temporal marks and identifications, we have ordinarily been accustomed to bring before our readers' notice. For the chosen nation, the elect of God, being destined, as Hosea i. 10 teaches us, to appear during their wilderness, or outcast, Lo-Ammi, condition as "the sons of the living God," must be ipso facto believers in the Lord Jesus Christ in their national aspect. They, therefore, must respond nationally to St. Paul's signs, as described in the Epistle under consideration. They must be discoverable as those who exhibit "works of faith;" next "labours of love;" then "patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ in the sight of God and our Father." They must be showing their acceptance of the Gospel, not in word only, but in power and much assurance, and in the Holy Ghost; adding to all, this special fact, that they spread abroad and sound out the Word of the Lord, in such wise that every where and in every place their faith to Godward is published, so that all nations, families, and kindreds of the earth are aware that they have "turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God, and to wait for His Son from heaven, whom He raised from the dead, even Jesus, which delivered us from the wrath to come."

Digitized by Google

This is the testimony which the British people (and they alone of all the nations) nationally give, proving thereby that they are God's chosen and elect nation, regarding whom Isaiah wrote, in chap. lxv. 1, R.V.: "I am inquired of by them that asked not for Me, I am found of them that sought Me not. I said, Behold Me, behold Me, unto a nation that was not called by My name." They are that nation described by the Lord Himself in Matt. xxi. 43, to whom He said the kingdom of God was to be given when taken from the Jews, and that they would bring forth the fruits thereof. Their history is summed up in the words of Isa. xxvii. 6, R.V.: "In days to come Jacob shall take root. Israel shall blossom and bud, and they shall fill the face of the world with fruit." They have been the means whereby the blessing promised to all nations, families, and kindreds of the earth is communicated, by taking to them God's Word, His Gospel, Christ's salvation, His Sabbaths, and His ten true laws. Their works of faith as the Christian nation are known to all men. Their labours of love and patience of hope in Christ Jesus their Lord are seen in works of Christian beneficence such as no other nation can show, or ever has shown, and thus they nationally testify to the possession of those marks which prove, according to St. Paul, that they are God's chosen, God's elect people, made, created, formed, and fashioned for Himself, to show forth His praise (Isa. xliii. 1, 7, 21). Faultless they are not; no more were St. Paul's Thessalonians, as his epistles prove. But they have the spiritual signs which testify to their election, and that they are already the sons of the living God—that is, the Christian nation of Hosea i. 10, and Matt. xxi. 43.

But this is only half the picture. This is only the "spiritual" character of Israel, described in Micah v. 7, having an obverse to the shield, which verse 8 presents to us; telling us how (so-called) "spiritual Israel" has an earthly, temporal, warlike character too, exactly corresponding to the British nation! The Christian, evangelising race, which is likened to "dew from the Lord," and "showers upon the grass," is also "like a lion among the beasts of the forest," who represent "the many peoples" where British-Israel dwells. These last are like "a young lion among mere flocks of sheep," who, "if he go through, treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and there is none to deliver." Here we see British-Israel's military might and success in righteous war, if only she can make up her mind to act. The dual character is portrayed in Scripture as belonging to God's elect, and none may doubt, seeing the signs, that the nation before us is God's chosen one (1 Chron. xvi. 13). Therefore men may say, what our clergy and our opponents seem so unwilling to admit, that "they know our election of God," and that we are His ancient people, His chosen, Israel!

THE REV. C. H. SPURGEON'S "DOWN GRADE."

A LITTLE pamphlet, containing the celebrated Nonconformist's (Mr. Spurgeon's) charges against his fellow dissenting Churches, and his reasons for seceding from the Baptist Union, has fallen upon the religious world like a shell out of a veritable mortar. The picture there drawn by a master hand of the spiritual condition of the dissenting Churches is lamentable to a degree, and the account he gives of the ministers of the Baptist, Independent and Congregational sections, terrible and alarming. The broad school of dissent, he says, has gone as far down the descending path, the "Down-grade," as it possibly can! There is not a scriptural doctrine these ministers have not abandoned! They have initiated a new religion, a new Gospel—that is not another Gospel—which is no more Christianity than chalk is cheese! "The atonement is scouted, the inspiration of the Scriptures is derided; the Holy Spirit is degraded into an influence, the punishment of sin is turned into fiction, and the resurrection into a myth. Thence has come, as the sequel to falsehood in doctrine, the natural decline of spiritual life in these non-conforming Churches. A taste for theatres and questionable amusement has sprung up, devotional and prayer meetings are felt to be a weariness, and are often given up as useless. Conversions have ceased, congregations have dwindled, and the spirit of prayer has departed. Church and the stage, cards and prayer, dancing and the sacraments, these men are striving vainly to unite; and 'Modern Thought' in the pulpit, which is the root of all this mischief, has thinned the congregations, some having joined 'the Brethren,' others 'believers unattached,' and the more wealthy, show-loving, but some of the unquestionably devout, the Church of England! The ministers deride the demand for prayer, and the inspiration of the prophets of Israel is denied!"

"Germany," says Mr. Spurgeon, "was made unbelieving by her preachers, and England is following in the track." The younger preachers are teaching a new gospel wherein the Holy Ghost has no place; and the Christian World, which seems the champion of the new school of non-conforming teachers, openly tells its readers the following:—"The younger ministers especially must decide whether or not they will embrace and undisguisedly proclaim that 'Modern Thought,' which in Mr. Spurgeon's eyes is a 'deadly cobra,' while in ours it is the glory of the century. It discards many of the doctrines dear to Mr. Spurgeon and his school, not only as untrue and unscriptural, but as in the strictest sense immoral; for it cannot recognise the moral possibility of imputing either guilt or goodness, or the justice of inflicting everlasting punishment for temporary sin. It is not so irrational as to pin its faith to verbal inspiration, or so idolatrous as to make its acceptance of a true Trinity of divine manifestation cover polytheism."

Mr. Spurgeon, reciting all this, has resolved boldly to separate himself and his Church from the Baptist Union. He cannot, he says, "remain longer in ostensible union with teachers who make light of Christ's atonement, who reject the plenary inspiration of the Holy Scripture, who deny the personality of the Holy Ghost, who call evangelical doctrine a fable, and justification by faith immoral, and hold there is another probation after death, and a future restitution for the lost." With sorrow, Mr. Spurgeon details all this in most clear and outspoken language, and closes with this remarkable aspiration:—"Oh, that the day would come when, in a larger communion than any sect can offer, all those who are one in Christ may be able to blend in manifest unity! This can only come by the way of growing spiritual life, clearer light upon the one eternal truth, and a closer cleaving in all things to Him who is the Head, even Christ Jesus."

So far Mr. Spurgeon. We have heard lamentations as sad from the evangelical party in the Church of England, complaining of the ritualism, rationalism, broad-church, Modern Thought tendencies and practices of many of the ordained clergy. The result seems to be that both Church and dissent are largely infected with the leprosy which dishonours Christ the King, depreciates His Word, and tells of another gospel, which is not another, offering recovery to the sinner who dies out of Christ, and speaks words of comfort which the Scriptures fail to utter, that "thou shalt not surely die." The fact seems then to be that already in Church, and in dissent as well, "the enemy has come in like a flood," and there is no remedy but the standard of the Lord to rebuke and conquer him (Isa. lix. 19). These things, too, sad and depressing as they are, seem to indicate that the Churches of Israel are in need of the truer knowledge which Our Identity will bring them; and require to accept the inspired Word, being professing Christians, as the Word of the living God, which in truth it is. The religious world is waiting for the declaration of Israel, and is suffering for lack of it; for the time has come, as we are sure it has, for the manifestation of the sons of God—that is, of the people of the Lord; since the knowledge of the fact that the British are Israel would not have otherwise been revealed and made known, as now it is.

Digitized by Google

The "larger communion" for which Mr. Spurgeon sighs is approaching with the day when the new covenant blessing described in Jer. xxxi. 33 and 34, also Heb. viii. 10—12, will be granted to the House of Israel first. Then "we shall all know the Lord, from the least of us to the greatest of us," and the law of God will be "written in all hearts and put into all minds," whether we be Baptists, Independents, Congregationalists, Presbyterians, or Churchmen. Then will men who now deny the atonement and the Holy Ghost, and the eternity of punishment, learn from Israel's history that God exists and that the "Word written" is God's Word, verbatim et literatim, wherein the infinite guilt of sin requiring the infinite punishment of the sufferer to expiate it is taught, as well as the infinite power of the God-man to endure and exhaust the law's eternal penalty, and therefore to quench the righteous anger of God against the breaker of it. "Modern Thought," then, will be utterly vanquished in the light of God's Spirit dwelling in the hearts of the men of Israel, and "their sins and iniquities He will remember no more."

There is a good time coming, then, for our race, because we are Israel! and Mr. Spurgeon need be under no anxiety as to the future, for then will that "larger communion than any sect can offer" be prepared for faithful ones like him, and all those who are one in Christ will be able to blend in manifest unity therein, for "they will all then call upon the name of the Lord to serve Him with one consent" (Zeph. iii. 9). What Mr. Spurgeon wants and the Churches of Britain want is "the manifestation of the sons of God" (Rom. viii. 19), or the declaration of the Identity of the British with Lost Israel. For then the outpouring of God's Holy Spirit on the masses of our people will set right what is now so wrong, and give that spiritual life for which he and they so yearn!

REMARKABLE COINCIDENCES.

By F. Gass.

I.—There are some striking numerical coincidences connected with the British statute mile. Whether they are more than simple coincidences in the ordinary acceptation of the term, is beyond my power to decide. If the nation and company of nations using this measure were not descended from Israel, I should not ask the editor to favour me by publishing these figures, but as the British are God's chosen people, it makes a considerable difference, and causes these singular combinations to be, at least, remarkable.

In a British mile there are 63,360 British inches. Omiting the cipher, the four significant figures 6336, read the same backward or forward, from left to right as in English, or from right to left as in Hebrew. Again take the significant figures and divide them thus, 63—36, and it will be seen at once that the first pair read backward equal the second read in the usual way, 36 in both cases, the number of inches in the Englishman's birthright, the British yard.

Now divide the figures thus, 63—360. The three last, 360, give the number of days in the Bible prophetic year, equal to one-seventh of the "seven times," or 2,520 years of Israel's Gentile probation; the first three figures of 63,360 are 633, and the last three 360: this suggested to me to calculate the commencement of the "seven times" in tropical years, from the date B.C. 633, and see where the termination would fall in the Christian era. I find it expires next year, A.D. 1888,* the date given by the Great Step at the threshold of the Low Passage in the Great Pyramid, as explained in last New Year's number of the Banner.

In lunar years the "seven times" run out A.D. 1813, which date is registered at the foot of the Great Step, and singularly enough if we add to the "seven times" the divinely added 30 and 45 years (Dan. xii.) the whole period of 2,595 solar years, commencing B.C. 633, ends A.D. 1963, which is precisely the distance in inches from the North wall of the Grand Gallery, measured over the Great Step and through the Low Passage, to the North wall of the Ante-Chamber. The length, measured under the Step and up to the threshold of the Low Passage, is 1887·45, agreeing with the year 1888, and A.D. 1888 + 30 + 45 years will reach to A.D. 1963.

There is yet another method, a deeply interesting one, of dividing the significant figures of the mile, 6336. Place a dot, the usual decimal sign, immediately after the first figure and before the last, thus, 6·33·6. Read the first three figures backward and the last three in the usual way, the result in each reading will be 33·6, the number of years in the life of Christ, a number intimately connected with the measures of the Great Pyramid. It may be worth mentioning that seven times 63,360 equals 13,200 times 33·6. I will finish the first division of this paper by stating that the circuits of the four walls of the Ante-Chamber, added to the circuits of the four walls of the King's Chamber, and the length of the Low Passage joining the two rooms, equal 6,336.

II.—The Pyramid "earth-inch," the true cosmic inch of the solar system, so far, at least, as this planet, the sun, and the moon are concerned, is 1,000th longer than the present British inch. Consequently, in the British mile there are only 63,296·64 Pyramid inches. Now picture a very large level field, measuring just a mile on each side, and divided as near as possible, into 9,720,000* equal parts. Each of these divisions will contain 412·1878 square Pyramid inches, which is almost exactly the length of the King's Chamber in linear inches of the same description. By doubling the divisor, the product will of course be half of 412·1878, which is the width of the chamber, and divided by 17,000,000 it becomes 235·67, the height, within a small fraction, of the granite walls, which it will be remembered descend some inches below the level of the floor. The height between the floor and the roof is expressed simply by the equation $\frac{63360}{275} = 230{\cdot}4$. Or as Mr. Petrie claims the height to be, more nearly $\frac{63296{\cdot}64}{275} = 230{\cdot}17$.

The dimensions of the King's Chamber may be reached through the mile by quite a different method. I refer to circular measure. Divide the Pyramid inches in a mile by $\frac{4}{5}\frac{4}{0}$ths of π, and the result is 412·117, the length of the chamber. Divide by $\frac{8}{5}\frac{8}{0}$ths of π, and the width, 206·0585 is given, and by $\frac{7}{5}\frac{7}{0}$ths of π, and the granite height 235·49 comes out.

There is yet another way, separate from the other two, which connects the mile with the King's Chamber measures. A solid cube with a side measuring 515·1634, the length of the solid diagonal of the Chamber, contains exactly 2160 (= 36 × 60) times 63296·64, the number of Pyramid inches in the British mile.

Coming now to the quadrature of the circle, a simple calculation informs us that a side of a square measuring one mile has an area equal to that of a circle having a diameter of 71,423 Pyramid inches, which is about the cubic capacity of the Coffer. It is remarkable that the Polar diameter of the earth in Pyramid inches divided by the 10,000th of the cube of the length of the King's Chamber, equals 71,398, again the capacity (nearly) of the Coffer.

The diameter of a circle with a circumference of a mile, in Pyramid inches, measures just 600 times 33·58, which will be at once recognised as the time in years of the "Messianic

* In adding A.D. to B.C. dates one year has to be deducted.

* The number 972, of which this number is a simple multiple, is the cube root of the Sun-distance in miles, as given by the height of the Pyramid, and multiplied by 10 (correct within a small fraction of the whole).

Digitized by Google

Cycle;" given by Mr. Grattan Guinness as 33·585 years, a period of profound astronomical significance.

It is a very curious coincidence, and well worth making a note of, that the superficial area of Great Britain (England, Wales, and Scotland), is given by Professor T. H. Huxley, in "Physiography" (p. 300), as 89,644 square miles. The exterior length of the Coffer is 89·64± inches, which, taking inches to represent miles, and multiplying by 1,000, gives the superficial area of the island.

The scientific man who is sceptical in these matters, will of course sweep them aside as mere fortuitous coincidences. Indeed, he must do so, or admit there is a strange connection between British measures, the Great Pyramid, and the widely accepted period of the life of Jesus Christ. This he cannot, and will not do, as it will involve him in compromising admissions as to inspiration, the possibility of miracles, and supernatural foresight generally. Therefore he will draw closer around him his mantle of prejudice, and pronounce the whole affair an impossibility. But were he studying the philosophy of "chances," he would very quickly calculate for us the number of millions to one that there is against any one set of figures presenting themselves, again and again, unexpectedly and without design. But this is exactly the kind of series presented for consideration in this paper. These remarks apply, in the main, to the second division of the subject.

Since the above was written I have noticed the following:—

(1). A side of a square inscribed in a circle with diameter measuring 21120 inches, or one-third of a mile, equals 100 times 149·34, the height of the Ante-Chamber.

(2). The length of a side of a square inscribed in a circle with a diameter of 42 times 63,360,or the length of the diagonal of a square with a side measuring 21 times 63,360, equals1,000 times 1881·69. In a similar way other leading Pyramid lengths may be found. For instance, a circle with radius equal to 63,360 will have an inscribed square with a side measuring 1,000 times 89·604, the exterior length of the Coffer. But this paper is already too long, and I must not proceed further. The results are not, perhaps, absolutely exact beyond the first place of decimals, but they are so close that there is no room to mistake their meaning.

THE CANAANITE.

"But if ye [the children of Israel] will not drive out the inhabitants of the land from before you, then it shall come to pass that those which ye let remain of them shall be pricks in your eyes, and thorns in your sides, and shall vex you in the land wherein you dwell" (Num. xxxiii. 55; see also Josh. xvi. 10).

"'Australian' writes:—There is one aspect of the 'Irish in Australia' which has apparently escaped Mr. Hogan's notice, or which he has deemed it best to omit. If any Victorian or Tasmanian, or New South Welshman or Queenslander, be asked what class of man has given the greatest trouble in his colony, he will most certainly answer, the Irish. Now, I do not mention this in disparagement of the Irish, for I am of Irish descent myself; but it is a fact to be faced—make what deductions you will—that the low-class Irish have been at the bottom of a very large percentage of the crime in Australia. Almost every name of bush-ranging notoriety that rises to the memory is Irish, from Rocky Whelan to the Kellys. A few Irish have risen to great eminence in the colonies; many Irish have been very conspicuous in their criminal records. Such are the facts, whatever may be the explanations."—St. James's Gazette, Dec. 1.

Dear Sir,—I think the above cutting is suggestive.—L. P.

[Note by the Editor.—We find Mr. Labouchere has been recently complaining that the British people are ever striving to use the South Irish as "hewers of wood and drawers of water." Perhaps there is a reason for this, and L. P.'s "cutting" above published may give our readers the clue!]

Review.

The Anglo-Israel Almanack and Diary for 1888. Robert Banks and Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C. Price 3d.; or interleaved with ruled paper, 5d.; bound in cloth, marbled edges, and interleaved with ruled paper, 1s.

We are glad to welcome an old friend, and rejoice to find in our New Year's Almanack a volume which does credit to the publisher, and is so full of good matter that we need not be ashamed to place it in the hands of friends and foes alike. It contains all that a useful almanack ought to publish, and at the end of the little book we have the articles on the subject of Our Identity, which we mention below, by some of our well-known Banner and other friends, explaining the whole matter for the benefit of our learners, and helping to build up those who are already believers in the glorious truth. The leading article by Philo-Israel is historical; the object being to show that modern history gives no uncertain testimony in support of our Israelitish origin. Miss Cox follows with a paper on "The Foundation of Anglo-Israelite Truth," showing that as the Jews respond to their prophecies, so must Israel to theirs. The authoress points to Britain, and declares that, in all ways, we answer to the portrait, "not one trait being lacking—no point falsified."

The Rev. C. W. Hickson's article on "The Fulness of the Gentiles," deals well and clearly with the meaning of Gen. xlviii. 19, and shows that Ephraim's seed were to become not so much "a multitude of nations," but "an immensely numerous Gentile race, filling up all the void corners left unoccupied by other nations." The writer deals a blow at the Teutonic theory by declaring that "Jacob's prediction was to find its fulfilment not only, though very specially, in the Tribe of Ephraim, but in the whole House of Israel of which it was the head." "The Ephraim of prophecy, therefore," he rightly adds, "seems to mean rather the Lost Ten Tribes than the Tribe of Ephraim only."

Mr. Douglas A. Onslow's paper on "Fulfilling Prophecy" comments on the Rev. A. Keith's work, "Evidence of Prophecy," and shows that as the latter looked for literal fulfilments, so may we properly do so in respect to the great mass of Scripture which has the House of Israel and its destiny for its prophetical object. He vindicates the subject from the attacks of a late writer in the Echo (noticed in this journal, p. 462), and claims the Right Hon. Speaker of the House of Commons as an involuntary supporter of our views.

"A Clue to the World's Future" is the title of a short paper by the Rev. Denis Hanan, of Tipperary. Like all his, this article is thoughtful and suggestive. It asks where the stone kingdom of Dan. ii. is? and "where the people are whom God's Word describes as the people of the saints of the Most High?"

Mr. Ernest P. Dix has a paper on "The Principles of a Divine System, and Israel's Place in It;" the object being to show that Israel has always been the pivot round which all God's dealings with man are carried on, that this is not a Gentile dispensation, but still an Israelite one; that God, having once chosen Israel, has not, because He cannot, cast her aside contrary to His oath and covenant, or carry on His spiritual work for the world by means of a Gentile non-Israelite agency.

Mr. H. R. Shaw concludes the series of excellent articles by a gem of a paper, entitled "Rule Britannia!" He holds that the writer of this national poem claimed this, our people, to be Israel, and very originally brings Jer. xxxi. 33 to bear upon the subject, declaring that "the ruler of the waves" must be "Israel obedient" to God's law, having her "common law," the lex non scripta, written on their hearts and in their minds, as the British have, exclusively, among the nations; the judges administering the same, and the people submitting thereto according to the prophecies.

A short poem by Dr. H. Newton concludes the literary feast Mr. Banks has provided for his readers in 1888, and of course his poem is Protestant to the core, asserting that that name and Israel are synonymous.

The frontispiece is a view of Nazareth, the drawing being explained by a letterpress notice of the place on p. 64.

On the whole, "The Anglo-Israel Almanack for 1888" does not fall off when compared with its predecessors. We hope it will have a large sale and a wide circulation, bringing many waverers into the Anglo-Israelite fold, and building up others who hold these comforting views already.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 0 4
Four Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 5 6
Six Copies ,, ,, ,, ... 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

METROPOLITAN ANGLO-ISRAEL ASSOCIATION.

A LECTURE will be Delivered in the ASSOCIATION ROOMS, 14, King William-street, Charing Cross, W.C., on THURSDAY EVENING NEXT, December 22, 1887, at 7.30 o'clock, by Mr. Thomas Holland. Subject: "The Pyramid: New and Important Facts." Strangers will be made welcome.

JAMES BILLINGTON, Sec.

VALUABLE CONSULTATION PRESCRIPTION for cure of Indigestion sent to any address for One Shilling. Part profits to Banner Free Distribution Fund.—"Identity," 8, Charlotte-terrace, Clacton-on-Sea.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

The History of the House of Israel. How They Were Lost and How They Were Found. Told, for the children. Price 6d., cloth 1s.; post free 7d. and 1s. 1d. Fifth edition.

A Resume of the Scriptural Argument, Proving the Identity of the British Race with the Lost Ten Tribes. Price 1d.; 6s. per hundred, postage 6d.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

Just published, in bevelled boards, gilt lettered, gilt edges, price 1s., post free for P.O.

WORDS OF HELP AND WISDOM.

Gleanings Gathered from Various Authors and Poets

BY JESSIE LAWRENCE.

More useful and acceptable than Christmas or New Year's Cards.

LONDON: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, or of the AUTHOR, "Rosslyn," Hampton Road, Upper Teddington.

CHRISTMAS GIFT BOOK.

Royal Copy, 4s., Coloured ditto, gilt edges, full gilt 2s., Plain 1s. 8d., postage 2d. extra.

"MY JEWELS"

(MAL. III. 17),

BY SARAH SHARP.

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, and all booksellers.

Price 6d., by post 7d.

THE GREAT PYRAMID AND FREEMASONRY.

A Lecture delivered by MR. JOHN CHAPMAN, with Illustrated Coloured Plates. Published by request.

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

Free by Parcel Post.

Ladies', 1/6 Keep your feet warm. Gents, 1/9

WALTER KEAST is sending daily his celebrated NORWEGIAN HOUSE SLIPPERS, to all parts of the United Kingdom, on receipt of Postal Order. These Slippers are made of good felt, and are lined throughout with flannel. Warm, comfortable, and durable. Send number of size, or paper pattern of length of Boot, and try a sample pair.

WALTER KEAST, 102, Kennington Park-rd., London, S.E.

Price 3d.; Interleaved with Ruled Paper, 5d.; CLOTH bound, gilt lettered. marbled edges, 1s.; by post 4d., 6d., and 1s.

The cloth edition is well bound, with marbled edges, and is suitable for Library, the Desk, and general use.

THE

ANGLO-ISRAEL ALMANACK

AND DIARY FOR 1888.

CONTENTS:

FRONTISPIECE—VIEW OF NAZARETH.

CALENDAR AND DIARY FOR THE YEAR, January: Christ's Commands. February: Commands. March: Promises. April: Promises. May: Prayers. June: Prayers. July: Christ's Promises. August: Promises. September: Proverbs. October: Proverbs. November: Invitations. December: Prophecies. Church Lessons for each Sunday of the Year. Notes for the Month. Moon's Changes. Moveable Feasts. Measures of Length. Bank Holidays. Length in a Mile in Different Countries. Letters Patent for Inventions. Notes for 1889. Meteoric Showers. Legal Tender of Money. Legacy and Succession Duty. Income Tax. Postal Regulations, Money Orders, etc. General Information. The Royal Family. The Church. Public Exhibitions. The Ministry.

ARTICLES:

The Testimony of History that the British are Israel By Philo-Israel.
The Foundation of Anglo-Israel Truth. By V. M. Cox.
"The Fulness of the Gentiles." By the Rev. C. W. Hickson, M.A.
Fulfilling Prophecy. By Douglas A. Onslow.
The Clue to the World's Future. By the Rev. Denis Hanan, M.A.
The Principles of a Divine System; and Israel's Place In It. By Ernest P. Dix.
Rule Britannia! By H. R. Shaw.
Nazareth.
God's Israel. By Rev. Hibbert Newton.
A Christmas Carol.
List of Anglo-Israel Associations in Various Parts of the World

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, and all Booksellers.

A New Work on the Identity of Lost Israel

By the late BISHOP TITCOMB.

Now ready, in Cloth Gilt, Bevelled Boards, Imperial 8vo. Price 3s.; Sent Post Free for Postal Order or Stamps.

A MESSAGE TO THE CHURCH FROM THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

BY THE LATE

RT. REV. BISHOP TITCOMB, D.D.

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., F. W. Parry & Co., Paternostor-row, and all booksellers.

Just Published, crown 8vo., elegantly bound in cloth price 3s. 6d.

BRITAIN in HISTORY:

ANCIENT AND MODERN.

Or, Proofs Linking Israel with Britain Throughout the Ages.

BY MRS. G. A. ROGERS,

Author of "The Coronation Stone," "The Star-lit Crown," &c., &c.

London: J. NISBET & Co., 21, Berners-street, W.; ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, who will send a copy free by post on receipt of P.O.; and to be had of all Booksellers.

The Latest Publication by EDWARD HINE.

The Nation Warned by the Scripture Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Things to Happen about 1887, and Onward.

PRICE SIXPENCE; Post Free, 7d.

F. W. PARRY, 29, Paternoster Row, London, E.C

Dr. JOSEPH WILD'S WORKS

NEW EDITION JUST PUBLISHED.

THE LOST TEN TRIBES

Price 3s., post free 3s. 3d.

The FUTURE of ISRAEL and JUDAH.

Price 2s., post free 2s. 3d.

R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London.

LUNG SAVE YOUR LIVES BY TAKING TONIC

LUNG OWBRIDGE'S TONIC

LUNG LUNG TONIC TONIC

LUNG THE MIGHTY HEALER. TONIC

LUNG It has a power over disease hitherto unknown in Medicine. TONIC

LUNG Are you at all Weak-chested or inclined to be Consumptive, with just a touch of Cough now and then? TONIC

LUNG "Try this Wonderful Medicine." The Cough and Weakness will disappear as if by magic, and you will feel a strength and power you never had before. TONIC

LUNG HAVE YOU A COUGH? TONIC

LUNG A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT! TONIC

LUNG HAVE YOU A COLD? TONIC

LUNG A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL TONIC

LUNG REMOVE IT. TONIC

LUNG Bronchitis & Asthma it relieves instantly TONIC

LUNG The Spasms of Coughing so dreadful in Whooping Cough become less with each dose of the medicine. TONIC

LUNG — TONIC

LUNG Prepared by W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull TONIC

LUNG Sold in Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. TONIC

LUNG and 11s. by all Chemists and Patent TONIC

LUNG Medicine Vendors. Wholesale all London TONIC

LUNG and Provincial Houses. TONIC

CARBOLINE

1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.

Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved.

DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.

Makers:

GEORGE & WELCH

CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,

Who will forward Free of Postage.

HUMAN LIFE.—FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles, and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 50 pages. SENT FREE to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON B. MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C. Write to-day.

LADIES! We will send a full dress-length of beautiful cloth, in any of the following colours, carriage paid to any address, for 10s. 6d. Colours—Black, blue, fawn, ruby, claret, green, slate, grenat, brown, grey, navy, tabac, bronze, reseda, gold, myrtle, etc. These Wonderful Dress-lengths have gained a world-wide reputation for Magnificence, Cheapness and Durability. Thousands have been sold, and repeat orders and testimonials received. Ladies should write for patterns, which may be had free, and need not be returned.

GRAND CHRISTMAS PRESENTS. We will give a very handsome Brocaded Silk Handkerchief with each dress-length ordered before January 31.

LUTAS LEATHLEY & Co., Armley, Leeds.

BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA,

COUGHS, COLDS,

CONSUMPTION, and all Pulmonary Affections can be immediately relieved and rapidly

CURED

by simply using the

AMMONIAPHONE

FOR THE Voice, Throat, Chest, and Lungs.

21s. post free.

WILL LAST FOR YEARS.

Used and recommended by the Royal Family, and principal Physicians, Clergymen, Vocalists, and Public Speakers throughout the country. New Illustrated Pamphlet with copies of Thousands of Testimonials FREE OF CHARGE may be had on application to Medical Battery Co. Ltd.

52, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW. WEDNESDAY, DEC. 21, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google

"HEAVEN'S LIGHT OUR GUIDE."

(Motto of Her Majesty's Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.)

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a LION among the beasts of the Forest, as a YOUNG LION among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."—MICAH v. 8.

"His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the HORNS OF UNICORNS: with them he shall push the people together to the ENDS of the EARTH."—DEUT. xxxiii. 17.

THE BANNER OF ISRAEL.

"Thou hast given a BANNER to them that fear Thee, that it may be DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH. Selah."—Psa. lx. 4.

VOL. XI., No. 574. Entered at Stationers' Hall.] WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1887. [DOUBLE NUMBER. TWOPENCE.

EDITED BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

Contents.

PAGE

Our Jubilee Year Concluded 517
How I Came to See It as a Minister of the Gospel. By G. J. Vince 518
Irish Rebels and the Right Hon. John Bright 519
The Alliance of the Central Powers 520
Our Magnificent Inheritance 521
The Horns of a Dilemma. By the Rev. Denis Hanan, B.D. 522
The Bishop of Perth (Australia) on the Queen's Jubilee 523
The Hon. P. Carteret Hill, Ex-Prime Minister of Nova Scotia, Gives Evidence 524
The Importance of Vancouver 525
The Right Rev. Dr. Barry's Lecture at Ballarat 526
How the Work is Going Forward. By Charles Horner 527
Correspondence 527

OUR JUBILEE YEAR CONCLUDED.

THIS has been a year of joy and rejoicing, and right royally the nation and company of nations have responded to the invitation given at its commencement, that we should, as a people, sympathise with our beloved Sovereign Lady, Queen Victoria, in her auspicious completion of fifty years of prosperous rule over the Lord's inheritance. At home, and abroad, in India, Australia, the Cape, and throughout the Dominion of Canada, at all the Gates, in the islands of the sea, and even in Manasseh's land, the United States of America, there has been joy and rejoicing, thanksgiving to God, and heartfelt praise, that the Queen-Empress has been spared to us so long; also that her life in all ways has been so great a blessing to her people, and to the world at large. This has been the salient fact of an eventful important year—one that seems to have been noted in the Great Pyramid as an epoch to be remembered (See BANNER, vol. xi., p. 33 and 65).

Another remarkable event of the year was the meeting of the Colonial Conference, which took place on April 4th, and during the subsequent weeks, under the presidency of Sir Henry Holland, the Secretary of State for the Colonies. On that occasion, as we noticed on April 27th last (p. 165, BANNER), eleven Colonies enjoying responsible Governments, with twenty Crown Colonies, or thirty-one British possessions in all, met by their representatives, and discussed certain questions having reference to the military and naval defence of the Empire, which must have an important bearing on the future of God's people Israel of the House of Joseph. That event, we are convinced, was the inauguration of the mighty change which is to bring about the Confederation of the Anglo-Saxon races—and eventually mould into one the English-speaking peoples of the world.

This change accomplished, the dominion of the world must be theirs, as we showed on the 27th April—for the combination of the whole of the English-speaking races will be the union of all the power, wealth, civilization, military strength, and territorial supremacy, stored up, and placed by the God of Israel, in the hands of His chosen ones, for the benefit and blessing of the world; also for the consolidation of His kingdom under the sceptre of Jehovah-Jesus, our King, the coming Shiloh. In fulfilment of this design we have seen this year remarkable advances made in the growth of the outland Empire of our greatly favoured race. The discovery of gold in the Transvaal, as we showed in Vol. x., p. 46; Vol. xi., pp. 190, 357, and 429, has attracted an enormous Anglo-Saxon British population to the spot, and rendered it exceedingly probable that the whole of South Africa will shortly become British by pure force of numbers, and so over-power the Boer element by the sheer increase of population, according to the prophecies!

The land of Egypt again, in possession of which we entered in August and September, 1882, after the bombardment of Alexandria and the battle of Tel-el-Kebir, has remained firmly in British possession ever since. This year has seen the consolidation of British power there by the settlement of the question of the Suez Canal's neutralization; leaving that of Egypt itself as it was, undisturbed by the abortive Convention which France and Russia rejected (p. 333 BANNER). In New Guinea, as we pointed out on p. 393, the Empire has grown by annexation, and a great territory was added to the Government of Queensland; while in South Africa we showed that the Queen Regent of Amatongaland was anxious to place her territories under Israel's safeguard as against the designs of Portugal.

The manifest purpose of Russia to attack India at some future time of difficulty for our Râj there, has compelled our Government to round off the Empire at the North-west corner, near Candahar, by indirectly taking into the same all that portion of Beluchistan known as Pishin, Quetta, Sibi, and Thal Chotiali, to the South and South-east of the plain of Candahar. During the year Eastern Zululand has become British territory (p. 445), and Upper Burmah—an enormous province, as large as France—has been added to the Queen's dominions, as we have fully pointed out on p. 454, and in various other articles of this journal. "The Empire Route" to the East across the whole breadth of the North American Dominion has united the Atlantic with the Pacific Oceans by an iron road constructed throughout on British soil, and connected by two first-class British Gates as termini, at Halifax and Esquimault, as we have described the undertaking on pp. 438 and 464 of the BANNER.

Digitized by Google

Verily, this year has been one of Israel's advancement, territorially, according to the prophecies! In regard to our own editorial experiences, and this journal's progress, we have to thank God for a period of steady advance, and apparently of public appreciation of our poor services in a great and national cause. During the past period of trade depression, the BANNER has kept up its circulation, and its weekly message travels far and wide throughout the Empire, in naval and military circles, among emigrants and settlers in Israel's outland Empire, in India and at home, as our correspondence columns, and the labours of the Free Distribution Fund, will have informed our readers. To God be all the praise of any useful results, and may the influence of this journal, by His help, become a power in the nation and company of nations, for whose benefit it exists. During the year other journals have also been doing a good work in publishing the glorious news of Israel's discovery, by our side—our old friend the quarterly Hope and Destiny, and The Messenger, under the new editorial management of C. M., and his efficient staff; the Rev. R. Douglas' excellent monthly, The Two Witnesses; the Rev. J. Billington's The British-Israelite; all these are now actively engaged in propagating "Our Identity" at home, and The Anglo-Israelite, of Brisbane, Queensland, Australia, is doing a steady work at the Antipodes. We wish them all God-speed and much success.

During the year the British-Israel Conference Association, under the care of the Rev. F. Aston, M.A., as Secretary, the Rev. H. Marriott, M.A., as Treasurer, and Surgeon-General J. M. Grant, M.D., as friend and patron, has commenced work, and will soon be engaged in the task of bringing our subject before the clergy in our large cities, in order to supplement the efforts of our existing Associations, which hitherto have not been attended with much success in this direction.

During the year the happy idea of raising BANNER "Jubilee Funds" for the Church Missionary, the Bible, and the Jews' Societies, was carried out with success. The sums realised were in all (including £1 1s. paid after closing the Funds): for the Church Missionary Society, £83 7s. 3d.; for the Bible Society, £40 12s. 0d.; and for the Society for Promoting Christianity amongst the Jews, £16 7s. 2d.; total, £140 6s. 5d. The money paid into the hands of the Treasurers of these three Societies has been acknowledged by each with grateful thanks (page 435).

We conclude the labours of the year with an earnest hope that all workers in this field may experience abundantly the blessing of the Lord, and that their endeavours, like ours, may be greatly prospered by Him. To those who have aided us with literary matter during the year, and have thus helped to make the BANNER a success, we tender our sincere and cordial thanks. To Mr. J. T. Gott, who has this year again aided us with an excellent Index for Vol. XI., we are greatly indebted, and we offer him also the thanks of our publisher, the owner of the BANNER OF ISRAEL, for the constant valuable help he has given for so many years past to our little publication.

In conclusion, we observe that serious, momentous times are before us! Europe is armed to the teeth. Burning questions are everywhere strewed about our path before us, ready to bring on the great earthquake woe. The nations are in perplexity, "men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things that are coming on the earth." The Lord is at hand! and He bids us as His chosen ones to banish fear, but to "look up, and lift up our heads, because our redemption," national and individual, "draweth nigh" (Luke xxi. 25—28).

May a Happy New Year be all our readers' portion in 1888. To Him who keepeth Israel be all the praise!

HOW I CAME TO SEE IT AS A MINISTER OF THE GOSPEL.

BY G. J. VINCE.

FOR God's glory, and to bless other readers of your valuable paper, I thought I should like to tell you through its pages how one that was "blind" can now see; also, for the encouragement of others who are trying to open blind eyes, let me say that I used to laugh at the idea of "Englishmen being Israelites." Of course, I thought after being a preacher and teacher of the Bible for twenty-four years, I ought to know what the Bible contained. For had I not read it through and through, and never seen the slighest shadow of such a thing as Our Identity there? I would have sworn to the fact, if need be! A dear aged Christian, who has been a preacher for these fifty years, and has read his Bible through in Greek, Hebrew, Latin, and French, declared, when spoken to on the subject, that "he knew we had not a drop of Israelitish blood in our veins." Such is prejudice; and yet, to the open eye, it is seen on every page of the Old and New Testament, from the beginning to the end! "But how were thine eyes opened, poor blind Pharisee?" Listen, and I will tell you. "He made clay," nothing very expensive, no particular wisdom needed! The same poor man I had often laughed at, had begun to get discouraged altogether, because neither I, nor others, would listen to him on the subject, happened one day to get converted to Jesus! When I knew that, I thought in my pride and self-conceit I could help him in his new-found faith. But the thought struck me, "How can I get him to believe what I say, if I will not consider what I call his crazy idea regarding our Israelitish Identity?" So I thought to myself, "I will look into it, for I know I can overcome him and his queer notions." We agreed to meet together over the Bible. We did so, and I resolved that my friend should have it all his own way at first, and I would be very patient. First he took me to Deut. xxviii. 12, 13: "Thou shalt lend unto many nations, but thou shalt not borrow." He said that was true only of the English and their brethren the Jews. I said, "I suppose so." "Israel should be the head, and not the tail, above, and not beneath." And, as every Englishman loves to feel and know this, I was no exception to the rest, and consented. He next invited my attention to Isa. xi. 13, and said, "You know that all people and nations hate and persecute the Jews, and so did we once, years ago; but it is not so now, we are their true friends; the envy has gone as it was prophesied!" Of course, I thought all this remarkable, and I could not say, "No;" but how many more proofs was he going to bring?

Next he turned to Balaam's prophecy, and asked me if I knew that "The unicorn was the emblem of Israel"? (this led me back to days long gone by, when as a boy I used to go to church, and there on the gallery was a large board on which was painted a unicorn and a lion. Hundreds of times in those boyish days I had looked at them, and wondered what they meant). Now with this Israelitish question, the recollection of this came back with fresh force. "The unicorn the emblem of Israel!" I did not know that. But my friend pointed me to passages such as the following: Num. xxiii. 22, xxiv. 9; Deut. xxxiii. 17; Psa. xcii. 10; Isa. v. 29; Micah v. 8. I said nothing, but my interest was being awakened, and I forgot my purpose to try and do him good! Again, he said, "You know that the lion is the emblem of Judah?" "Yes," I replied, "I did." "Well," said he, "can you tell me how it is that the lion and the unicorn form a part of our national heraldry as Englishmen?" I said, "No, I could not." Four proofs advanced to prove Our Identity! Where were my proofs that we were not Israel? They had vanished into thin air. My feelings took another form—not now of opposition, not of sorrow for being conquered, not of the realisation of how little I knew compared with what I had thought I knew. All that was as nothing to the thought that crossed my mind—the thought of the preciousness and honour of the position we were in, if it could be proved to satisfaction that we were God's ancient people. It seemed to enhance the joy of being a Christian. It spoke of God's faithfulness and love as I had never before realised them, and the dim realisation of such a thing being true, caused such a revulsion of feeling that I trembled for fear lest the good, beginning to be realised, should be extinguished. I said nothing. My friend knew not what was going on within. I was eager to turn to another chapter for more proof. I was eager to grasp and have it settled. Yet I feared and dreaded that my new hopes would be, after all, blighted! My friend said, "Let us turn to Ezek. xxxvii., and read it together." As I read of the dry bones, what I had always thought of as lost sinners (a great man preaching a little while ago, said, in the course of his remarks, that they were "clothed with the flesh of charity and covered with the skin of piety), and of God informing the prophet, "These are the whole House of Israel," at present in their graves of oblivion, not knowing themselves, I reflected, "Was not that our case as a people?" I could see now plainly enough that it could not be a literal grave, because they were to be brought into the land of Israel. Then came the two sticks, positive proof of two Houses—Jews belonging to the one House, Israelites to the other. I had never seen all this before. It was now late, and my friend must needs go, promising to meet me over the same subject that day week. But could I rest a week, before thinking again of this new subject? No. I went on alone that night, and the next day I sat down and read one prophetic book after another, and as I read whole books, I was engrossed in the subject; and such was my interest, and so precious was the thought of my being one of God's ancient people, and so fully was my heart drawn out to Him, whose faithfulness I was beholding in a new light, that as fresh proofs appeared, my eyes were blinded with tears of gratitude and joy, and I could not read sometimes for minutes together. I thought of my conversion to Christ, but it never caused the joy that this had done. This seemed to me like a double conversion, intensifying the first, and I could see that I was a Christian, because I was an Israelite, redeemed; not an Israelite, because I was a Christian. I never realised how good God was, as this led me to realise it. This was so much added to intensify the joy, I could not express. Perhaps my readers may say that all this would pass away after awhile.

Digitized by Google

I rejoice to tell them that the feeling has deepened, as month by month has passed on. The Old Testament, which I had always given up to the Jews, I have now accepted as my very own; and to-day I am as familiar with the prophetic books of the Bible, as I was with my New Testament, which I had always thought belonged to me, a poor, ignorant Gentile. Such is the story. "Whereas I was blind, now I see." But perhaps some of my readers, like the Pharisees, would like to know a little more concerning my new views, as they may now call them. I have told them already their effects on myself. Now as to their effects upon others, for I was not content to enjoy all this alone. I must make it known, feeling sure that what would bless me would bless others. So I asked the members of three different chapels whether I might give them a lecture on the subject just to introduce it, and, having their consent, I have since, in those chapels, never ceased to preach the Identity with all my heart. Because of the warmth of my own heart on the subject, some seventy are believers in it; amongst them, some three or four ministers are beginning to preach it. One has opened a Bible-class "on the ancient people," to make known its truth. Of course, I have met with opposition. One aged Christian, when I asked him if he had an hour to spare to talk about the subject, said, "Do you want to shake my faith in the Bible?" Some tell me it is a waste of time to look into it, and some ask, "What is the good?" But thank God, one by one, they are realising the power of the truth, and are trying to spread it. Some hundreds are listening to it, and many are examining their Bibles and reading them with new interest. I have two or three policemen interested, and one is spreading the news on his beat.

I bless God that the truth must triumph, for, as I tell my opponents, they are bound to believe one of two things. If we are Gentiles, then God has made a breach of promise. Men may salve it over as much as they like, and try to escape out of it by various explanations, but it won't do. The young man who promises to marry a certain lady, and then afterwards makes another his wife, however it may look to the one he has married, is sure to be thought a breaker of his promise by the one left in the lurch. So having obtained Israel's blessings, we may hide the truth from our own eyes; but we should call it a breach of promise if the contract made with us were to be fulfilled to others. Thus with God. The blessings, all of them, were made over by Him to Israel, and we all know that we British, as a people, have them now. If He has been unfaithful to the Hebrews, what guarantee have we that He will be faithful to us? So we see that it comes to this—either God has broken His promise, or else we are Israel, the people of His covenant. For my part, I would rather believe we are Israelites, however many difficulties lie in the way, than that God is not faithful to His promises.

But there are no difficulties in the way, for the New Testament is as full of the same truth as the Old; and all one wants is to realise that Jesus is speaking to two peoples, or nations: to the Jews, composing the Jewish nation, and to the Benjamites, whom God caused to cleave to Judah to be a light to them (as the 11th chapter of 1 Kings testifies), from the time of Rehoboam until the siege of Jerusalem, when that tribe was commanded to flee by Jer. (vi. 1), and by our Saviour in chap. xxiv. of St. Matthew's Gospel. Afterwards they joined their brethren as the Normans in these "Isles of the West," according to Micah v. 8. And so, to my mind, all difficulties vanish.

IRISH REBELS AND THE RIGHT HON. JOHN BRIGHT.

Mr. John Bright has sent to a friend at Chichester the following remarkably outspoken and straightforward letter, in which his opinion of the party of Mr. Parnell and his followers is openly expressed. He deems them "rebels," and the acts that they are busy performing, "Irish rebellion." He wrote as follows:—

One Ash, Rochdale, Nov. 21.

Dear Sir,—The Irish rebel party will not look at my suggestion because they are rebels, and with rebel Irish members in the House the plan would not be allowed to work. Mr. Gladstone has a hobby or plan of his own, in which the rebel leaders for the time have agreed to join him. He is committed to it and cannot condescend to another plan which is less pretentious and more reasonable than his own. He has offered a scheme which the country has rejected, but which has made all other schemes almost impossible. I do not think anything can be done until his Bills are entirely got rid of, or the present position entirely changed. Mr. Gladstone stops the way. He insists upon it to the exclusion of legislation for the whole kingdom, and his followers still have faith in him and are anxious to return him to power. They are furious because the Conservatives are in office, and blame me and others for keeping them there. They seem blind to the fact that Mr. Gladstone put them in office. He would appeal to the electors on the merits of his Irish Bills, and the electors of Great Britain, by a majority of nearly two to one, condemned his Bills and destroyed his Administration. We cannot allow Mr. Gladstone to come back to office with his Irish policy, and we are willing to support a Government which the constituencies have by a great majority placed in power. I prefer to join hands with Lord Salisbury and his colleagues than with Mr. Parnell and his friends, the leaders of the Irish rebellion.

Yours very truly, John Bright.

Digitized by Google

This somewhat passionate letter is noteworthy because it emanates from a man of peace (a Quaker), who hates war and advocates Lord Salisbury's policy of repression of rebels and murderers, and the defence of those over whom the rebels and murderers would tyrannise. These rebels are men "guilty of murder, or attempts at murder, of maiming and houghing of cattle; who commit moonlight outrages on males and females, and place restraint upon the common decencies of birth and interment." These are the men, regarding whom Mr. J. A. Froude wrote in the Irish Times, on November 17 or 18 last, thus:—

DEAR SIR,—I have written so much on the Irish question, and my work on this subject, "The English in Ireland," expresses so fully what I think about it, that I have considered it unnecessary to add my voice to the present clamour.

The Celtic Irish are and always have been hostile to this country, while this country cannot for its safety's sake allow them to be independent. Any form of self-government which we conceded to them, whether in the shape of a national parliament or of local councils, they will use, I suppose, as they have always done, every liberty which we have hitherto extended to them, and increase our difficulties in keeping the island attached to us. That has been the history of the past. I have no reason to suppose that there will be any difference in the future.

You can govern the Irish more easily than any people in the world under a military or quasi-military authority; the police are uniformly faithful and loyal. You have never yet succeeded in governing them constitutionally, and I think you never will.

Yours faithfully, J. A. FROUDE.

Civilised constitutional government they do not understand, and nothing but firm military law and rule can keep them down. They are in fact of a totally different race and origin from the North Irish (who are Scots). They are "Celtic Irish," according to Mr. Froude; but Canaanites or Phœnicians, according to Anglo-Israelites, an "unimprovable element" in Her Majesty's dominions, which must be somehow got under. To them independence can never be conceded as a mere matter of self-defence on our part. They are a "doomed race," as an Irishman once said; "morally doomed," who "must sink more and more in the estimation of the world. Signs of this are appearing in the United States of America, whence hitherto their strength has been derived." This singularly corresponds with the Word of God, which declares that "the nation and kingdom that will not serve Israel shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted" (Isa. lx. 12, R.V.). The rebels in Ireland must be extirpated; for a Canaanite shall in the final result be found no more in the house of the Lord of hosts, "in that day" (Zech. xiv. 21). The rebels among Israel will have to be purged out from among the children of Israel, "and they shall not enter into the land of Israel," as the Lord Himself declared in Ezek. xx. 38, R.V. We may be sure that the Lord our God has got this Irish trouble of ours well in hand, and that not an incident that happens is without His cognizance and permission. Mr. Gladstone's strange conduct, calling forth such an almost violent letter from "the man of peace, John Bright," is no chance matter. The Irish farce could not be kept up or fanned into a sort of rebellion, without the eloquence of the ex-premier, and consequently he is granted long life, wondrous vigour, immense powers of elocution, and a following worthy of a patriotic and a righteous cause. He indeed makes the flames of rebellion to spread, and the consequence is that government in Ireland has become almost an impossibility, especially where it works, as here, by party; its policy being one of "shilly shally," lest it should lose votes and therefore power. Meanwhile God rules, and He is guiding Israel's course even in Ireland, and gives the Canaanites the means of paralyzing and stopping all peaceful government, in order that He may bring to pass other parts of His purposes respecting His chosen ones. It seems to us that God has caused His people Israel to be always a tried, tempted, suffering people, in order that He may, in their distress and suffering, show them His lovingkindness in bringing them deliverance from their troubles. He tempted their forefather, Abraham, in the matter of his only son Isaac (Gen. xxii. 1—18), and his people, like him, have ever been a tempted people. By temptations the Lord brought Israel out of Egypt (Deut. iv. 34; vii. 19). In the wilderness He further tried their faith. In Hezekiah's case God tried and tempted him, and He "left him, to try him, that He might know all that was in his heart" (2 Chron. xxxii. 31, R.V.). Of the Lord Jesus Christ it is said in Heb. ii. 18, R.V.: "For in that He Himself hath suffered, being tempted, He is able to succour them that are tempted." The tempted, tried, or suffering ones are Israel, and it endears the Lord Jesus to us, His people, to find that in our national sorrows and trials "He was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Heb. iv. 15).

At the present hour our sore temptation and trial is the Irish Canaanite—a noisy, troublesome, and worthless member of our body politic, who, helped by Mr. Gladstone, is our nation's grief. Do what we will for him, he is ungrateful and hostile still. The only way to govern him is as Mr. Froude has said, by the iron hand of military discipline—just the way this nation cannot endure to govern any subject people. We are trying now to govern even India by the modes that suit our Anglo-Saxon freedmen; but are unsuited to such as the Celtic Irish, who are not fitted for the privilege. Our difficulty, therefore, is this:—We cannot govern the Irish as we are attempting to do it constitutionally. Mr. Gladstone, while he lives, will never allow us the chance. We dare not give them independence, as they and he demand. For that were dangerous to ourselves, the vast majority of our United Kingdom. There remains then only one resource, if we put aside brute force, which we are always averse to employ. We must steadily enforce the law, and that will drive from our midst all those miserable Irish leaders, who are already "kept on the run" to avoid the constable in Ireland, and will steadily drain the country, by emigration, of the dwindling Canaanite population who will not work and cannot thrive, because God's blessing is not on them, since they are "the thorns and pricks" which afflict His people, who cry to Him day and night that this their temptation and their pest may be removed at once and altogether.

THE ALLIANCE OF THE CENTRAL POWERS.

THERE is a report prevalent on the Continent that the British Government has entered into an arrangement with the Central Powers engaging substantially to become a party to their alliance, "for the maintenance of peace and the status quo." The Times decidedly favours the idea and ridicules the opinion of the French "Temps," which strives to prove that the British Fleet is impotent to help the Continental nations in their effort to secure even the safety of the Mediterranean! The leading journal declares, what is no doubt true, that merely "a strong British squadron, reinforced by the Fleets of Italy and Austria, could command the Mediterranean, secure the safety of the Italian coasts, and deliver us from all anxiety respecting the Suez Canal and our approaches to India." Humanly speaking, this is quite true; but it would mean, if carried out, war with France and perhaps with Russia, and would involve us in all the tremendous consequences of a disaster which God's promises declare shall not be visited upon His people at the present crisis. The Gates are ours by promise, and the gift of the Gates, with the supremacy of the sea which that gift guarantees, will amply secure to us the command of the Mediterranean, free access to the Suez Canal and the approach to India, needed for the safety of our Empire there, without any hampering alliance with the Italian and Austrian Governments which the Times would fain see carried out.

Assurances may have been given by Lord Salisbury's government to these Powers, as the Times more than hints, that in spite of our national hatred of diplomatic entanglements, there will be, in the hour of need, the practical support of the British navy to the Mediterranean Powers belonging to the central alliance; yet we rather trust to the Scriptural intimations as to Israel's duty in the supposed contingency. She is there directed "to enter into her chambers, close her doors about her, and hide herself for a little moment until the indignation be overpast (Isa. xxvi. 20, 21., R.V.). It is not likely that under these circumstances a hiding and a hidden people will be allowed by their God and Saviour, who has prescribed their attitude in the coming time of trouble, to entangle themselves with alliances and promises which in the midst of the great Earthquake Woe will certainly involve them in the coming hostilities, instead of enabling them to enjoy "perfect peace" as promised them in Isa. xxvi. 12, 20, 21; Zech. iii. 8, 9, and other passages, notably by our Lord Himself in Luke xxi. 25—28. Meanwhile if the threat of a coalition of maritime Powers will tend to stave off the outbreak of hostilities till the fixed and settled time according to the determinations of our God, no doubt these reports will have their due effect. It is further consolatory to be assured, as we are, on the authority of Lord Charles Beresford, R.N., that the condition of our navy is fairly good just now. The Board of Admiralty have subsidised twenty-four swift merchant steamers to act as cruisers in case of need, and they have registered 150 others to serve as tenders. They have arranged further for the creation of an Australasian British Navy.

Digitized by Google

Those colonies will build and maintain at their own cost two first-class cruisers and two torpedo-boats. We have seen that the Governments of Victoria and South Australia have unanimously passed the Bills required to give effect to the recommendations of the Colonial Conference in regard to Colonial Defence. The other Governments will doubtless pass these "Naval Force Bills" by acclamation, and so safeguard British commerce and power in the Antipodean seas. Lord Charles Beresford however thinks that we are weak still in sea power as compared with a combination of two foreign nations, of which he takes France as one. He desires to see us in possession of four or five more ironclads in order to make our nation impregnable (!) as far as human foresight can do it!

It may be of course that God designs us to become so formidable in maritime strength that no nation or combination of nations will dare to molest us. But these anticipations of war, and the assertion of the necessity for our resting on the arm of flesh, without a word of acknowledgment of the mighty hand of the God of Israel, who has shielded us from harm for a thousand years, and promises so to protect us for all time, seem to us to be thoroughly bad and faithless. As Israelites we must repudiate the arguments and conclusions of Lord Charles Beresford, as well as all reliance on the value of Continental alliances, but lean wholly and entirely on our God, obeying His instructions which command us to enter into our national "chambers" and "shut" (or fortify) "our doors about us" and "hide ourselves" by a policy of non-intervention for a little moment until "the indignation be overpast." For the time of the visitation of the inhabitants of the earth in punishment will then have come, and from that punishment God's ancient people, Israel, Judah and Manasseh, will certainly be exempted for the Lord will then turn to them a "pure language," that they, "His peoples," may all call upon the name of the Lord, to serve Him with one consent." These considerations never for a moment enter into the minds of the great ones of the earth, the Lords of the Admiralty or the members of Israel's government! But they cannot be put aside or despised by us; for the Lord is "He that keepeth Israel." He is their shade upon their right hand. "The Lord will keep us from all evil. He will keep us in going out and coming in, from this time forth and for evermore" (Psa. cxxi. 1—8).

Let Israel therefore praise the Lord, and not fear what our Statesmen and our Admiralty experts tell us to expect if we do not follow their earthly counsels, which put God, the God of Israel, entirely and wholly out of view!

"OUR MAGNIFICENT INHERITANCE."

WHEN we speak of "Our magnificent inheritance," we mean "Our British-Israelite inheritance," and we say it is "magnificent." But though this is the fact, the words we quote are not ours. They were spoken by the Right Hon. Mr. Joseph Chamberlain on the eve of his departure for the United States to fulfil his mission there in respect to the fisheries dispute. He said what we quote, when he was bidding farewell to his Birmingham friends. "Spare no effort," he told them, "to maintain the magnificent inheritance which has descended from your forefathers." This inheritance was, according to Mr. Chamberlain, an Empire the largest in the world, one that was united in all its parts and loyal to the central Throne.

The Weekly Times and Echo, a workmen's paper of Liberal-Unionist principles, comments on these sentiments, on Nov. 5, 1887, in a manner which the friend who sent us the remarks of Mr. Chamberlain designates as "purely Israelitish!" "An Anglo-Israelite," he remarks, "could scarcely say more than this!"

For the journalist commented thus:—

It is a magnificent inheritance, take it all in all, the most magnificent that the world has ever witnessed. The British nation has already done more for humanity than Egypt, or Greece, or Rome; and if the Empire were to topple over to-morrow, its record would be a gain and a glory for all time to come. Of what does this inheritance consist? It consists principally, in the first place, of a language which enshrines an imperishable literature; a language which is talked in Great Britain, and in Greater Britain abroad; a language which is spoken over the North American Continent, in islands washed by Indian seas, and largely throughout Hindoostan, in the far-off Australias; and which bids fair to be ultimately the language of civilised mankind.

This magnificent inheritance consists, in the second place, of our Constitutional system. The British Parliament is the creation of the British race; and had that race done nothing but given the world a practical example of how nations may govern themselves through their own representatives in Parliament, it would deserve to be held in undying remembrance.

Our magnificent inheritance consists, in the third place, of a body of laws, which are the results of ages of experience. We have, as Mr. Justice Stephen said on Tuesday, a legislative department, or the power of making law; we have an administrative department, or a method of administering law; and we have a judicial department, the functions of which he, the learned Judge, was then discharging. This body of law, and the methods of applying it, are being imitated in the United States and the Colonies, by European nations, and cited more or less by all the jurists of Christendom.

Our magnificent inheritance consists, in the fourth place, of a vast commercial system, a system which whitens every sea and kisses every shore; a system which is a living link, uniting all nations, and peoples, and tongues. With this commercial system there is indissolubly associated great scientifically-directed industries—industries which absorb the energies and supply the wants of hundreds of millions of men.

And in the fifth place, and next in degree to the English language itself, are our Colonies, which were founded by British enterprise, or won by British valour. Our colonial system is the marvel of the world. There was nothing like it ever before, and in all probability there will be nothing like it again. We are not only a great people, but we are the mother of great peoples that are to be—peoples that will speak the English tongue, inherit English traditions, and carry onward through future ages the civilising work which England has done so much to develop.

We might refer to other elements of British civilisation; but we have only glanced at five. And we maintain that these ideas are British in inception, British in character, and British in growth and development; they are, in fact, essentially and characteristically British.

Digitized by Google

Well may our friend say that the above might have been the expressions of an avowed Anglo-Israelite! Our inheritance is indeed magnificent in respect to our world-wide language, our splendid constitutional system, our laws, our universal commerce, and our Colonies. But these all are God's good gifts to Ephraim-Israel.

The language follows the race, and to that race God has given the world (Rom. iv. 13; Dan vii. 27). Our Governmental representative system was Israel's, being first practised by Moses in the wilderness, as we have elsewhere proved (Exod. xviii. 21—26; Deut. i. 9—15). Our laws are founded on the Decalogue, God's good gift to Israel. Our Commerce, like Israel's, is in many waters (Numbers xxiv. 7); and our Colonies are only Joseph's daughters who have "run over the wall," the company of nations which were to be of Israel, "the Mother of nations," domiciled in the West (Gen xlix. 22; xlviii. 19; xxxv. 11; xvii. 16; Hosea. xi. 10; Jer. xxxi. 10). As a piece of "blind witnessing," the remarks of the Weekly Times and Echo are very striking. There are, however, other elements of the British character which that journal might have mentioned, and these would have strengthened our case. For we have a glorious inheritance in the Holy Scriptures, God's gift to Israel only (Psa. cxlvii. 19, 20); a glorious inheritance in the Decalogue which God wrote and gave to Ephraim only (Hosea viii. 12); an inheritance in the Sabbath, God's sign to Israel only that they are His people and He their God (Exod. xxxi. 13, 17; Ezek. xx. 20); a glorious inheritance "in the Evangelising Function, the very purpose for which God made, formed, and created" Israel, that they might "show forth His praise" (Isa. xliii. 1, 7, 21); a splendid inheritance in our stupendous, abnormal, wealth, which is God's good gift to us "that He may establish (not we) His covenant which He made with our fathers, as it is this day" (Deut viii. 18; xv. 6). The Weekly Times and Echo may be right in saying that the ideas it puts forward "are British in inception, character, growth and development." We add that they are decidedly also Hebrew and Israelitish, as the Bible will prove, since it is the word of God and cannot lie! If the Weekly Times has five characteristics to produce showing that the British are a nation blessed beyond all others, with choice and splendid temporal gifts as their inheritance, we can produce five more of a spiritual kind to testify that in such gifts too, the British are pre-eminent, "the head and not the tail, above only and not beneath, and high above all the nations of the earth" (Deut. xxviii. 1—13, R.V). These gifts, too, like those the Weekly Times and Echo enumerates, are God's precious endowments bestowed on the House of Joseph, who are "the whole seed of Ephraim" (Jer. vii. 15, R.V). The colonial possessions of our country are cited by the journalist as a glorious inheritance of the British people. But he did not notice the still grander fact that these colonies are now free and stately nations, who cling to their old Mother in the West; that they mean eventually in God's good time to federate and form a "bund" of nations, which the Times once called "the grandest Federation of States the world has ever seen," but God's Word better describes as a "nation and a company of nations," or "a multitude or fulness of nations" to come of Ephraim, the Israelite (Gen. xlviii. 19, xxxv. 11).

Our nation and its glorious inheritance of colonies responds to the picture God's Word gives us of Israel of the latter days, and testifies to us that Mr. Chamberlain's last words to his Birmingham friends were true, since our nation has indeed a "magnificent inheritance" handed down to us from our forefathers, and that inheritance is what Mr. Chamberlain forgot to mention, THE GIFT OF GOD.

OUR next number will contain 16 pages enclosed in a tinted wrapper, and a portrait-supplement printed on toned paper. There will be several valuable articles. We shall be glad if friends will order extra copies of this number for distribution.

THE HORNS OF A DILEMMA.

BY THE REV. DENIS HANAN, B.D.

"THE foregoing pages show clearly that in all parts of the globe the land is open to the English Church and nation as to no other Church or nation since the world began. Into the remotest corner of the most distant island of the sea their energy and courage will carry the children of the Anglo-Saxon family wherever gold is to be found, or the fertile soil promises wealth and competence. From the Arctic circle to Patagonia, from China and Japan, round the globe, to the islands of the Pacific, neither climate nor fear of man will deter them. And, however politicians and statesmen may deprecate the responsibility of extended Empire, the Empire will extend. And is the Church to lag behind faint and inglorious?

"Oh, for a potent voice that would ring in the ears of all Christian people the question asked by Joshua of old, 'How long are ye slack to go to possess the land which the Lord God of your fathers hath given you?' and demand, with an authority that cannot be neglected, an answer! That question is even now being put to the consciences of all Christian people, not in tones that the careless and indifferent can hear by the still, soft voice that of old followed in the footsteps of the wind, the earthquake, and the fire. Would that the answer of all the branches of our world-wide communion were the only one that faith and obedience suggest! Let the response be faint and half-hearted, and the page of history will record not the triumphs that might be won, but the sad record of the 'barren womb and dry breasts' of her who might have been the Christian mother of the nations of the future."

This extract is taken from no Identity publication, but from the report of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts—the oldest of England's great missionary organisations. It is an unintentional corroboration of statements made again and again in the BANNER OF ISRAEL. Never before has there been such an opportunity for filling the world with fruit and causing the inhabitants of its most distant parts to blossom and bud to the honour and glory of God.

But this distinctly is Israel's function (Isa. xxvii. 6): "He shall cause them that come of Jacob to take root. Israel shall blossom, and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit." This never has been done before, because, according to the testimony quoted, since the world began no other nation or Church has had the globe open to them. Therefore, according to the views of many—very probably of the Committee who prepared this report—Israel has never yet done this great work. As Judah is in unbelief, and as the Lost Ten Tribes are not known, and, therefore, are unchristianized, there is no Israel fit and ready to perform it; yet it is being done by those who have not "come of Jacob." The prophecy has hitherto failed to be accomplished, and must fail in the future, because the people, being unready, the work is being accomplished by others, of whom the prophetic word makes no mention. The practical deduction from this state of things is, Israel shall never so blossom and bud as to be the instrument whereby the world will be filled with fruit. They that come of Jacob shall not take root, for the Anglo-Saxons will leave no place for them. A deduction such as this is so dishonouring to God, and is so incompatible with faith, that men will not look their position fairly in the face. They dare not do so. They must spiritualize the literal statements of Holy Scripture, or find themselves impaled upon the horn of infidelity, or upon that which seems to be regarded by them as an equal evil, the acknowledgment of the absolute and literal fulfilment—viz., the identification of the people who, according to their own showing, are fulfilling the prophecy with those concerning whom the prediction was made.

But there is an escape from the dilemma! As Israel must fulfil her appointed work, that work must be left for her to do. The non-Israelite Church and nation cannot be "the Christian mother of the nations of the future," and she can fail to be so in but one way, through the loss of fruitfulness, "the barren womb and dry breasts," the loss of faith, of hope, of God, of Christ, of the Holy Spirit. The righteousness that exalteth the nation; the innate governing power which fits her sons to be rulers in all lands; the possession of the faith which protests for Catholic truth and against opposing error; the might which comes from the blessing of God must pass away; the response to God's call to do His work must, year by year, become "faint and half-hearted;" and then the foretold agent will be raised up to evangelise. We shall give place to Israel, as the Empires of Spain has given place to us. We must "lag behind faint and inglorious;" and, if so, there is a deeper depth to be reached. For this future fruit-bearer, at present unchristianized, will have to be converted to Christ and trained in all that is essential to give a race power to enter upon our present inheritance. And this work will have to be accomplished in them by the witnesses that now exist, by us when entering upon our period of decadence. It could not be done. Israel, unchristianized to-day, will never evangelize the world, and the kingdom of God and of Christ shall not be. An escape from the dilemma! Yes, by a plunge into the pit of horror; by the victory of evil over good. Israel Christianized, re-espoused in the bonds of the new covenant, is the necessity of the age. Of her it cannot be recorded in the history that is yet to be written, she "might have been the Christian mother of the nations of the future." She must fulfil her heaven-prepared function and be the blessing; and when the missionaries of the Cross, ministering to our own race in distant lands, or to their heathen neighbours, know who they are as well as they now know Him whom they serve, an omnipotent voice will ring in their ears and in ours, and we shall no longer be slack to go in and possess the land—the wide world—which the Lord God of our fathers has, according to His promises, given to us.

Digitized by Google

THE BISHOP OF PERTH (AUSTRALIA) ON THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

On Sunday morning, June 19, 1887, the Right Rev. Bishop of Perth, Western Australia, preached a sermon on "The Queen's Jubilee" in his Cathedral, Perth, taking for his text 1 Tim. ii. 1—3: "I exhort therefore first of all, that supplications, prayers, intercessions, thanksgivings be made for all men; for kings and all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty. For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God, who willeth that all men should be saved and come to the knowledge of the truth."

The sermon is one for Anglo-Israelites to ponder over, and to wonder how a prelate who writes and preaches like a believer in the Identity of the British with the Lost Ten Tribes, is yet perfectly unconscious of that fact! His sermon (which can be obtained at Perth from the West Australian Office, St. George's Terrace) testifies conclusively, though "blindly," that the British are Israel, though the Bishop of that Diocese unfortunately cannot "see" it. We regret we cannot quote the entire sermon for want of space, but we propose to present our readers with a résumé of its salient parts, with copious quotations, in order that they may see how fully the Bishop confirms all our facts, but how his conclusions therefrom are many of them erroneous, because he has failed to see that what God promised to Israel those very gifts our favoured nation exclusively enjoys, as he very clearly shows. At the opening of his address the preacher spoke as follows:—

Perhaps no past period of fifty years could be named which has produced such changes as have been produced during this period by the construction of railways, by telegraphic communication, by postal arrangements, by improved modes of travel, by the extension of commerce, by the increase of knowledge, and other such agencies. Englishmen have been spreading themselves, too, in increasing numbers during this period to all parts of the world; everywhere laying the foundation of large English-speaking societies. Everywhere, too, has there been a great growth of spiritual life and activity amongst us. The Church has worked wonders in her missions both at home and abroad. At home her bishops, her clergy, her services, her churches, have been largely multiplied; whilst abroad no less than sixty-eight new Colonial and missionary dioceses, including twelve of our thirteen Australian dioceses, have been founded since the commencement of the present reign. Throughout all this long period too, during which almost every other throne has been shaken, and many overthrown, we have been blessed with a sovereign whose faithful discharge of her duties and high personal character have secured to her the loyalty and love of all classes of her people. In such a retrospect, then, is much cause for rejoicing, much for which to be thankful, though it is a retrospect which, at the same time, if honestly made, cannot but suggest much ground for humbling ourselves before God, because of our national sins and shortcomings.

The Bishop then went on to ask the important question, why God had so favoured us above other nations, and what, looking to the teaching of His word, He means us to do for Him? These questions he answered just as we should answer them ourselves, by saying that God purposed that we as a race should carry the gospel to all the nations of the world, so that the promised great kingdom of which Christ is to be the King might be established over the whole earth. Here again the Bishop's teaching was exactly in correspondence with the BANNER'S for the last ten years!

As an instance of God's separation of a nation to carry out this purpose he mentioned "the Israelites of old, who were a nation especially chosen and set apart by God from other nations for the express purpose of accomplishing by their instrumentality His purposes of mercy towards the world at large." Proceeding to recognise the admirable rulers God had given this our own nation the Bishop added these burning words:—

In our present Queen especially, we have a sovereign who, during a long reign of 50 years, has made it her constant aim to promote objects such as those which my text teaches us to be the objects at which rulers should chiefly aim. In the words of the prayer which we shall use at our special service on Tuesday next, she has during all these years, by God's grace, stedfastly kept the charge given her on the day of her Coronation, "to do justice, to stay the growth of iniquity, and protect the Church of God, to help and defend the widow and the orphan, to punish and reform what is amiss, and confirm what is in good order," whilst in her own private and domestic life she has set a bright example of purity and truth and righteousness. It is no light blessing that we have thus so long enjoyed, and it is well that our united thanksgivings should this week be offered up in all parts of the British Empire alike, to the bounteous Giver of all good, for this as for all other tokens that He has given of His good will towards us. Why, we may well ask, is it that we have been thus favoured amongst the nations of the earth? Why is it that He has given England the world-wide empire that she now possesses, and an influence throughout the world by means of her commerce and civilisation, greater even than empire? Why is it that her sons and daughters are going forth year by year, in increasing numbers, into all lands, occupying the waste places of the earth, and laying everywhere the foundations of large kindred communities? Is it merely for our own national glory or aggrandisement, or is it not rather that He has some special work for us to do for Him in the world; that He has chosen our nation to be His instrument in some special manner in these latter days, for hastening on the accomplishment of His purposes of mercy to the world at large?

Let us trust that it may be so; let us show our true thankfulness for His gracious dealings with us by acting up to the responsibilities of our high position; let us not be satisfied merely with the boast that we are Englishmen; but let us endeavour everywhere to make the name of Englishmen honoured and esteemed as that of a righteous, God-fearing people. Let us remember that the character and true progress of a nation depends upon the character and lives of its individual members. Let those in authority rule in the fear of God, carefully framing their laws in accordance with God's will (not merely with the will of the people), to the real good, both temporal and spiritual, of those they govern. Let our merchants and tradesmen be honourable and upright in all their dealings, our labouring men industrious peaceable and faithful; let them in all ranks be sober, and pure and truthful, and women modest, loving and careful of their children's training; let each one be doing what in him lies in his own daily sphere of life, to further God's work of righteousness and peace and truth in the world, and we need not fear but that we shall remain a nation watched over and blessed by God, the instruments in His hands of blessings to others also.

Digitized by Google

So far the Bishop of Perth. The conclusion of his sermon exhorted his hearers to constant prayer for our rulers "because," he said, "the well-being of our country, the maintenance of her present high position among the nations of the earth, depends much upon our prayers being thus constantly and sincerely offered on behalf of her rulers." The Bishop's description of our nation is perfectly exact. But how was it that he was unable to see that the picture he drew of the British was line for line the scriptural portrait of Israel? God promised to Israel just those gifts the preacher found to be the possession of our own race. Multitudinousness, colonial possessions, love of souls, the evangelising function, national prosperity, God's favour, all these are God's good gifts promised to His people, as such texts as the following prove:—Gen. xxii. 17. 18; Hosea i. 10; Gen. xxxv. 11; Isa. xxvii. 6; Jer. xxxi. 33, 34, &c. How was it that the good Bishop did not see that since God promised these good gifts to Israel exclusively, and we British have them all and many such besides, we must be Israel, as God is true! It is true that we must ask Him for those good things the Lord is ready to bestow, because He has said that "He will be enquired of by the House of Israel to do it for them." But surely the Bishop does not imagine that our God, having sworn by Himself to give to His people Israel certain good gifts exclusively, He could by prayers and supplications on the part of the British people alienate those same gifts from Israel, and give it to them in violation of His oath, covenants and promises, all pledged solemnly to the afterseed of His friend Abraham for ever? Herein the Bishop of Perth, who is described to us as a veritable Nathaniel, "an Israelite indeed in whom is no guile" (John i. 47), has slightly erred! God cannot foreswear Himself; and therefore we British, who are in the very place of Israel, "God's chosen nation to be His instrument in some special manner in these latter days," as the Bishop intimates, must be Israel themselves, though our Prelate's eyes are holden, that he cannot see the fact! We trust God will soon open his eyes, for in very truth he is quite ready for Our Identity. He only requires to know that the House of Israel exists somewhere in the world ready to be identified by the very marks he describes as visible on the British; and then, surely, he cannot fail to see, and admit too, that the denial of Our Identity is rank insult to the God of Heaven. The assertion that the Lord's sworn promises to Israel His people have been wilfully and wantonly broken, to the great dishonour of His throne, is rank blasphemy, which God forbid! The Bishop is only blind, as Isa. xlii. 19 declared he would be, and if, reading these lines (as we hope one day he will,) he can bring himself to entertain and receive the glorious truth that the British are Israel, he will then see quite clearly why we are favoured by God as he knows we are, and what work God has allotted to us to do. (Gen xxii. 18; Isa. lxi. 9; Matt. xxviii. 19. 20; Isa. xxvii. 6.)

"'To loose the bonds of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the bruised go free.' That is Israel's mission. I have no hesitation in saying that Britain can make better use of Africa, and deal with the Africans better than any other people. If so, is it any wonder that God should give that country into her hands? Would He not give it into the hands of that people who could do best by the people and for the country? There seems a sort of nationality in this."—Dr. Wild.

THE QUEEN will spend Christmas at Osborne. A Christmas-tree has been erected in the servants' hall, and seasonable gifts from the same will be handed by Her Majesty to the servants and the children attending Whippingham School.

THE HON. P. CARTERET HILL, EX-PRIME MINISTER OF NOVA SCOTIA, GIVES EVIDENCE.

A LECTURE was given at Southbrough, on Nov. 15, by the Hon. P. Carteret Hill, formerly Prime Minister of Nova Scotia, on the subject of "Canada and our Colonial Empire." The report of the address, which appeared in the Tunbridge Wells Advertiser, on Nov. 18th, presents us with some very interesting statements, showing that the lecturer, a Canadian of the Canadians, is ripe to accept Our Identity, though at present, we suppose, he knows nothing whatever about the subject. What he said was this, prefacing his remarks in regard to the Dominion of Canada (of which an admirable map had been prepared for the purposes of the lecture by Mr. G. Pettit) by an able introduction setting forth the value and importance of our colonial possessions, and the vast extent of our Empire generally:—

From British India, with an area of 900,000 sq. miles, and a population of 250,000,000 souls, down to Gibraltar, with an area of less than two sq. miles, and a population of 18,000, the Crown of England had possessions of every extent in every clime, reaching altogether the enormous number of fifty distinct colonies and possessions. Even Rome, in her palmiest days, could not boast of such an empire as Great Britain. He passed on to point out how this great empire had been the gradual growth of centuries, contrasting with this the disposition of eager rivalry which of late had been shown by continental nations, who were now running a headlong race for colonial possessions, and who appeared to think that a colonial empire could be made to order. He deeply deplored the fatal blunder which led to the alienation of the thirteen American colonies, observing that John Bull had often won fair possessions by his sword, and had then allowed them to slip through his fingers by reason of the craft of rival diplomatists. Notwithstanding all the mistakes of the past, however, the advance of our Empire had been steady and irresistible, until at length it had reached a position for which there was no parallel in history. The English language was now spoken in every quarter of the globe, and appeared destined to become the almost universal language of the human race. The colonies might be said to cover the ocean with their shipping, and Canada, with barely five millions of inhabitants, had already reached the fourth place among the nations in regard to the great ship-building industry. What was the significance of all this? Had this great empire arisen merely to gratify the pride and self-esteem of the inhabitants of a little island in Western Europe? Did it mean nothing to the human family at large, that a spectacle of such surpassing interest was before their eyes? They might rest assured that it was not for naught, and as the future unravelled itself, the interest would be constantly intensified. He went on to say that among other nations we failed to see any whose constitution, laws, and government were so fitted to promote the happiness of the human family as those which prevailed in the British Isles; and that no thinking man, who looked beyond the boundaries of the street in which he lived, could fail to see that, on the whole, the Colonial Empire of England had been a blessing to the whole of the human race, and had a reflex action on himself for good. Stripped of her colonies, England would doubtless remain a busy hive of industry, another Holland or Belgium, but a queen among the nations she would no longer be. The loss to herself, no less than to the colonies themselves, would be enormous; but the loss to the world would be greater still. The moral spectacle of the foremost of the nations, governed by the eternal laws of justice, and, with all its shortcomings, seeking the true welfare of its subjects in every clime, afforded an example which could not be without effect upon the surrounding nations. The withdrawal of that example, and of that moral influence, would be one of the greatest calamities which could befal the world, and material prosperity would follow the moral in its flight. (Applause.) The speaker then turned to the map, and proceeded to give an interesting account of the growth and general features of the Dominion of Canada, calling attention to its vast area, and its development of late years. This was illustrated by the rapid growth of Winnipeg, in the central province of Manitoba, which, from having been a poor trading station, is now a flourishing and continually extending city. Taking up the subject of the congested state of our home population, as touched upon by the chairman,

Digitized by Google

he dwelt at length upon the advantages which the Dominion of Canada affords for the settlement of sober and industrious emigrants, not afraid of working on the soil, who might obtain a free grant of fertile land, and thus establish for themselves an independence. When he had proposed emigration to working men out of employment, he was always met with the question, How am I to get there? He confessed that it was a difficult question, but though all governments, of whatever politics, endeavour to avoid the question of State-aided emigration—seeing that if they once began it they would not know where to stop—surely it ought not to be beyond the powers of statesmen to devise some solution of the problem. He believed that eventually it would be done, and they might rest assured that by raising up British-speaking communities abroad, they would do more than they could do by any other means to perpetuate the British Constitution at home. (Applause.) He believed that the time was coming when they would be able to draw still closer the bonds which united this great Empire, not merely for the aggrandisement of the people of England, not only to add to the splendour of their history, and not simply to fill them with the insular pride which was sometimes spoken of by other nations, but for the welfare of the whole human family. He believed that God would bless this land, and make it a beacon light to the whole nations of the earth; that some day we should see British law and order, as well as the British flag, prevailing in every portion of the earth, and we should then, perhaps, be able to dictate peace to the world, and say that the nations should not learn war any more. (Applause.)

So far the ex-Prime Minister. We are surprised to see that Mr. Carteret Hill anticipates for this Empire that "God will bless it," and that "He will make it a beacon light to the whole of the nations of the earth." He goes beyond all public men, save those who are Anglo-Israelites by conviction, and tells us, further, that he expects to see "the British flag prevailing in every portion of the earth," leading to a state of things when "we shall dictate peace to the world." In regard to our language, Mr. Hill agrees with all others who have written or spoken on the subject, and believes that it will become the almost universal language of the human race! Where did the lecturer obtain the information on which he ventures to ground these anticipations? Not from the Bible, unless this Empire be Israel's! There we find all the promises centre in that race, but no provision is made for the world-wide predominance of the so-called Gentile British people. The heir of the world is, according to God's promise, "Abraham and his seed for ever;" but not at all the British Anglo-Saxons, unless indeed the latter be Israel, as we contend.

If we be not Israel, then we can tell Mr. Carteret Hill, under the authority of God's Word, that the British must come down from their present high position, and make way for the coming Hebrew race, to whom the promise has been made, which will never be cancelled, namely, that "the kingdom and dominion and greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven shall be given to (them, as) the people of the saints of the Most High" (Dan. vii. 27). Those saints are the children of Israel (Psa. cxlviii. 14). The empire which is a blessing to the whole human race is, according to Mr. Hill, the British or English Empire, as he terms it. But God's Word, which we must preferably trust, describes that empire as the Empire of Israel. "In thy seed," it declares, "shall all the nations, the families, and the kindreds of the earth be blessed;" the race so described being "the afterseed of Abraham" (Gen. xxii. 17, 18, xxviii. 14; Acts iii. 25). Israel was to "blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit"—not the Gentile British, as Mr. Carteret Hill, no doubt, believes to be the case!

"Thou shalt be a blessing," was God's promise to Abraham in Gen. xii. 2; and Mr. C. Hill is only correct in declaring that the British are in this enviable position by reason of the fact that the British and Israel, Abraham's afterseed, are one and the same race. Our lecturer deplored as a fatal blunder the severance of the thirteen American colonies from the British Empire. But he has to learn that America, being Manasseh-Israel, separation and independence were her God-appointed portions, necessary for the good of the world, and needful in order to fulfil God's purposes of grace, as revealed in prophecy (Gen. xlviii. 19). On the whole we find Mr. Carteret Hill has given good evidence to prove the fact that the British are Israel of the Ten Tribes; but he testifies blindly, not knowing the Scriptures, that the House of Israel are destined to rise again nationally, and assume a position of domination in the earth.

THE IMPORTANCE OF VANCOUVER.

At last the Government of this country has resolved to join hands with Canada, one of her "stately daughters," and to grant a subsidy for the establishment of a monthly mail service between Vancouver, and China, and Japan. The journals of the day regret that the service could not be made fortnightly; but are thankful for an instalment of the good things coming; since the great point was to induce the two Governments to see that the mail service to connect China and the East with Esquimault was an indispensable thing for the Empire, because that great Gate can be reached in fourteen days from England, by a route entirely on British ground and on British seas. It can be regarded therefore as an outpost of this Island, commanding the trade routes to India, Australasia, China, and Japan.

The railway across the Canadian or Dominion Continent is a great strategic railway, built on British territory throughout, and it connects Great Britain with the East and Indian Empire by two oceans, one of which, the Atlantic, is already under our own power, and the other, the Pacific, we must, by such mail subsidies as that now inaugurated, bring into subjection to our flag. "No enemy can blockade this route, and it will be the fault of ourselves alone if any can seriously harass us either in the Atlantic or the Pacific." The Times declares but one thing more is wanted to give us uninterrupted communication in time of war, and that is, a telegraph wire across the Pacific, with both ends under our own control, and with a branch to Australia. The Canadian Government is about to put on the Pacific side some powerful and swift ships, capable of being used as cruisers, and to be built under Admiralty supervision. Thus says the Times: "The Empire is on the point of being provided with a new and most efficient line of communications, binding together its remotest parts, and rendering it entirely independent of shipping and telegraph routes dominated by its rivals and possible enemies." At Victoria, Vancouver, we have a first-class, impregnable Gate, which, as a base of operations, naval and military, is unrivalled in the world. It stands on British ground, can be reached in a fortnight from our naval arsenals and dockyards at home, and situated in the North Pacific, communicates directly by sea with China, Australia, and India, along a route which is bound to become a British ocean. The advantages thus opened to our nation's power have long been foreseen; but we have now the thing put into actual operation, with the stupendous results to follow, exhibited to our view.

These facts illustrate to us, as we never saw them exemplified before, the wonderful geographical arrangements for the enlargement of British power, which God has carried out in order to add to our nation's strength and world-wide influence. These circumstances, in the last resort, depend upon the Gates for the help they give to our nation's military and naval power. Esquimault is an impregnable Gate or naval fortress, just at the spot where the Canadian Pacific Railway finds its terminus on the Western Ocean. The railway itself runs its 3,000 miles of length right across a mighty continent, all the while on British soil, almost on the same parallel of latitude from East to West. There on that Western terminus, British military and naval strength, the arsenal and stores, required to dominate the East, can be piled up at only fourteen days' distance from Plymouth; and thence they can be sent by swift steamers and war ships to reinforce the British troops in India, in Burmah, in Singapore, and Hong Kong. Surely never was there so grand and impressive an illustration presented to our nation's gaze of the power of the Gates as this case brings before us! "Thy seed shall possess the Gate of his enemies," was God's promise to the afterseed of Abraham, and the British nation being that afterseed, we have almost all the strategic positions of the world already placed in our grasp—the last and freshest instance of the gift being Esquimault and Victoria, in Vancouver—a mighty Gate which dominates the Pacific Ocean and all those points of vantage which the French and Germans have seized there, in view to turn them to hostile purposes by-and-bye, what time hostilities may take place between their countries and our own.

Digitized by Google

In vain! God has given us a Gate in Vancouver which commands them all! and the last new arrangement, which we chronicle to-day, made between Great Britain and her "stately daughter" in the Dominion, plainly shows us that God's blessing still attends this nation as "Israel obedient," and that God, even our own God, has fulfilled to us His promises. To Him be all the praise!

THE RIGHT REV. DR. BARRY'S LECTURE AT BALLARAT.

THE Right Rev. Dr. Barry, Bishop of Sydney and Primate of Australia, visited Ballarat on Oct. 12, and there delivered a lecture on his "Impressions of England and America." We quote portions of the report of the address as we find it published in The Herald, of Melbourne, Oct. 13. Some sentences of the editor's leader, also, remarking on his Lordship's speech, we add for our readers' information. The Bishop said, at a tea meeting held at Ballarat:—

He intended to speak to them of their mother country—he liked the expression—and her children in the year 1887, and to give some of his impressions during his sojourn in it. During the whole of his circuit of the world, the English language and English institutions were never absent. Everywhere this was noticeable, showing the influence and power of England. Right throughout the journey—from Australia by way of Colombo, Aden, Red Sea, Malta and Gibraltar—was the English flag flying, and during the whole voyage they were under its protection. Passing through the United States there was again the English language, though he might have travelled entirely through English territory by way of Canada. This was unparalleled in the history of the world, and there was clearly some great destiny for the English race—a trusteeship for all time, and a working out of God's dispensation for His creatures. The year 1887 was jubilee year, and from what he had seen, he did not believe the festival had created any new feelings, but had brought out old sentiments with increased force and power. After referring to his feelings on again entering England, and arriving in London—that city of impressive vastness—he remarked that the time was one of great anxiety. There was, first of all, the almost insoluble Irish problem, which was heard on every side. There was a resolution on the one hand to do everything that could possibly be done for Ireland, whether in the way of justice or favour, and on the other an absolute resolution that under no circumstances could any step be taken which involved real dismemberment of the British Empire. (Applause.) Then on the Continent, after so many centuries of Christianity, every nation possessed huge armies. The two great nations were in a state under which any rash action might precipitate a European war of which no man could foresee the extent. The interests of England on the Continent were peace, but that peace could not be what England desired unless it was the peace of honour. (Applause). . . He spoke in conclusion of the marvellous destiny which awaits the English race—to hold together unity and variety. Dear Old England represented the solidity of English character, the benefactor of civilisation, variety and depth of culture, and the influence of antiquity which represented respect and reverence. On the other hand there was our New England, with more rapid growth, rapid advance of culture, a larger measure, if possible, of freedom and independence without being burdened by tremendous difficulties. The United States character was subtler and keener, more impulsive and exciting, with great power of speech and expression, and with a great confidence in the future of their country. Between the United States and England there should be a perpetual and friendly alliance, and with the colonies the question of Federation ought to be settled. All over the world small kingdoms were aggregating together into colossal empires. Though there was a Republican association in Sydney, he believed there was a feeling against separation from England. He concluded with further reference to the grand destiny of the English race, and sat down amidst great applause.

The editorial on the Bishop's lecture was to the following effect:—

THE ENGLISH-SPEAKING RACES.

Dr. Barry, the Anglican Bishop of Sydney, while lecturing at Ballarat yesterday, told his audience that though on his recent visit to England he had, in the literal sense of the word, traversed the world, yet that in all his journey he was never removed from the English language, or from the influence of English institutions. It used to be the proud boast of the people of Great Britain that there was scarcely a coast in the known world on some portion of which, and at some time or other during the twenty-four hours, the British drums did not beat, and the British colours did not fly. The assertion of Bishop Barry constitutes even a prouder boast than this, for it shows that even in countries where there are no British drums beating the flag still flies in its apportioned spot, and the influence of British institutions is still felt. No doubt the construction of the Suez Canal was due in the main to French talent, energy, and enterprise, for it cannot be denied that the project was at first scouted by the leading British engineers; but it has turned out to be a water highway for British vessels, which at present carry the bulk of the commerce of the world. More than this, every halting place of the journey made by the Bishop to Europe was under the British flag; and Dr. Barry dwelt emphatically on the significant fact that from the time he left England until he re-entered the Sydney Heads he was in the dominions of the great English-speaking race. It is, indeed, as the lecturer stated, a position unparalleled in history that one race so encircles the earth that one can travel round the world without leaving its dominions. A talented writer once described the people of the United kingdom—at least almost the best portion of them—as buffaloes, ever pushing forward in search of fresh pastures, and, what is more, finding them. The simile is by no means an inapt one, and the result is, what the world well knows, that these buffaloes now possess the finest fields in the universe. . . . . There is not a word of exaggeration in the statements made by the rev. lecturer, and if the English-speaking Empire of Great Britain would be brought into thorough accord with the great Republic of English-speaking America, such a union would be formed, especially on the basis of an alliance offensive and defensive, that no foreign Power would venture for a moment to disturb.

So far our Australian friends. There is much in these two utterances to lead one to believe that if the speaker and the writer are not both of them believers in Our Identity they are excellent "blind witnesses" to the fact that the British race is "the remnant of Israel." The almost universal dominion of the English-speaking races is the one fact which deeply impressed the Bishop. Wherever he went there was the English language. The British Flag protected him the whole way on his voyage home, and everywhere he was among the English-speaking races. The destiny of the race he saw to be marvellous. But what that destiny was to be he could not tell, because he had not the key which alone could inform him.

"The race," he saw, "was trustee for all time, to work out God's dispensation for his creatures." Seeing that, why did not the Bishop come to the conclusion that the British were Israel, seeing that by the testimony of scripture the latter were to be God's instrumentality to benefit and bless the whole wide world? (Gen. xii. 2; xxii. 18; xxviii. 14; Acts iii. 15; Isa. xxvii. 6; lxi. 9, &c.) He saw too that our destiny was "to hold together unity and variety." This he felt could only be attained by the Federation of the empire, and Gen. xxxv. 11 ought to have taught him that to Israel alone is reserved the glory of constituting "a nation and a company of nations." The editorial comparison of the British with "the pushing" buffaloes, seeking for, and finding pastures rich and new and fresh, is an exact parallel to God's description of Ephraim and Manasseh, likened to the bullock, and to the horns of the unicorn (or reem), "pushing the people together to the ends of the earth" (Deut. xxxiii. 17).

Digitized by Google

We have indeed done this without meaning thereby to fulfil prophecy. We have acted in blindness, and the editor of the Melbourne Herald doubtless when he wrote the words we quote, did so in perfect unconsciousness that "the buffaloes pushing" for, and finding rich and valuable and fresh pastures, "the finest in the world," were Israel of the House of Joseph, fulfilling their prophetic destiny, "pushing the peoples together to the "ends of the earth" like bullocks, using their horns like the horns of "the reem," to effect their purpose. The union between the British and American peoples which the writer desired to see carried into effect, is sure to come to pass, for we find from Ezek. xlviii. that the Return of the whole House of Joseph, Ephraim and Manasseh together, is to take place in God's good time, since verses 4 and 5 show that in the distribution of the land, Manasseh will have "one portion," and that the very next "portion" will be occupied by Ephraim. This tells of "union" between the two leading members of the House of Joseph, namely, Ephraim and Manasseh; and of union of a permanent character, since the restoration of the tribes of Israel, including the now separated tribe of American Manasseh, will be conducted by the Lord God of Israel Himself. It can be therefore subject to no disarrangement, no hostile impediment, brought about by the evil passions of the sons of men. Reference to Ezek. xlvii. 13—23, xlviii. 1—29, will prove the correctness of our statement; and chap. xlviii. 35 puts the seal of Divinity upon the whole arrangement; for "The Lord Jehovah will be there!" Let Israel, Manasseh, and Judah therefore praise the Lord, for He is arranging all our history, and we may safely trust Him to bring us safely to our promised inheritance and home (Isa. xlii. 16).

HOW THE WORK IS GOING FORWARD.

By Charles Horner.

If the worthy John Wilson could rise up amongst us and witness the expansion of the Idea since his day, it would certainly rejoice his heart. He was like the voice of one crying in the widerness, and had he not had the power of the Spirit resting upon him, and admonishing him that it was at his peril if he neglected to inform the people, he never could, as an ordinary man, have withstood so manfully the taunts and jibes of the listeners to his strange story of Israel in Britain. But what an advance has the Idea made since his days! Not only are there little knots of believers in Israelite doctrines in nearly every village hamlet in Britain, but across the seas in far distant lands are there hundreds of staunch adherents with willing hands, and earnest hearts, ever ready to spread this great Truth to their utmost. And how in these days, when many run to and fro, and wanderers coming and going by sea, this story of Israel floats amongst the "gossip" is well shown in a letter we lately had the pleasure of receiving from the Free Distribution Fund's active Local Treasurer and Agent in Malta. After remarking how he can readily make use of all available literature, and the desirability of getting our troops well acquainted with the subject where there is a large garrison, he familiarly goes on to say: "I have good opportunities of distributing the papers among our merchant seamen, the captains and officers of whom often have a good share of spare time for reading between ports, and they often pass the papers on to other ships on their arrival at other ports. And the captains of these ships often dine together on shore at the port where they discharge and take in cargo, when of course they must have something to talk about, and anything new or interesting is sure to be introduced. I witnessed this myself last year when I paid a visit to India, and for nearly three weeks I took 'tiffin' with from twelve to twenty captains nearly every day. I have often, during the past seventeen years, had captains of ships and others call upon me to know if I had anything in the shape of Identity literature, saying they had been told about me in Melbourne, or Sydney, or Bombay, or in some other place. When Mr. Hine's 'Forty-seven Identifications' were first issued I supplied a captain of a merchant vessel with one, and in a few weeks there were several called upon me asking if I could favour them with a copy of the above work, saying Captain So-and-so had been telling them of the glorious news in Melbourne. I found this captain so interested that he used to invite captains of other ships to go on board to hear him."

As another instance of "How the work is going forward," but close at home, we lately received a communication wherein the writer, an earnest and systematic sower, briefly, but pointedly, narrates the results of his distribution amongst the following eight various parties: (1) A Christian Jew. Says it (the Identity) is glorious if true, and he sees no reason to doubt it. (2) A Roman Catholic. Says he believes it to be true. He is gradually losing the usual Romanist's bigotry. (3) A thoughtless young scoffer. Has suddenly found that there is something in the Bible concerning him and his country. (4) A Sceptic—of Protestant parents. Thunderstruck. (5) A Sceptic, once a Roman Catholic. The first he had heard of the matter, and says he is very much interested. (6) A Churchman. Very interested. (7) and (8) Presbyterians—cousins. One is now a thorough believer, while the other is inclined to think it is true." These are encouraging examples which speak for themselves, and are only a few out of many constantly recurring testimonies that reach us; and how remarkably we are witnessing the exact fulfilment of the words of the prophet, that "IN THE LATTER DAYS YE SHALL CONSIDER IT!"

Correspondence.

DAWLEY CIRCUIT.

To the Editor of the "Banner of Israel."

Dear Philo-Israel,—I very thankfully acknowledge the following, received for the destitute poor:—"The Widow's Mite," 1s. 6d; "A Mite for the Poor People," C. M. P., 2s.; Miss Remington, for the destitute, 6s.; "A thank offering after illness," 2s.; "For your poor people," H. H. P., Bromley, 3s. 6d.; "J. Greig, in gratitude for your pamphlet, 'Israel's World,'" 2s. 6d.; G. Dimbleby, "Do with it as you think best," 10s; Mrs. Murray, 5s.; Sophia de Bergue, "For the starving poor," £1; Miss Maran, 1s.; Mr. Franklin, 2s.; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. P., "For the sixty years' old couple," 7s.; "For the poor sufferers at Dawley, from three Banner readers and their friends," 10s.; G. R, Anglo-Israelite, "For the poor," 2s 6d.; C. S., "Bread for the poor under your care," 2s.; "The sigh of sympathy of five Israelites," per Helen C. Naismith, 10s.; J. Dudley, "To His suffering ones," 5s; "A daughter of Israel and a Salopian," 5s; J. Parsons, "A loaf of bread for one or two hungry ones," 5s.

With the above I have relieved six families of Church members and six other families. Some of them confess that this has saved them from starving. Only one of these persons, an aged Christian widow, has been compelled to enter the workhouse. The relief given to the poor unemployed has done much to keep them from crime. I will not beg for more, and when you wish to close this correspondence, I will be more than satisfied for the help given. But while breadless Christians come to me for help, as they do this week, I will thank God and His ministering ones for enabling me to feed them. "If thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul, then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noonday. And the Lord SHALL SATISFY THY SOUL." Yours in the trials and glories of Israel,

Henry Roe, Minister.

Dawley, Salop, Dec, 3rd, 1887.

N.B.—A number of the above givers have not referred to the Banner, but seeing their gifts here may do good.

Digitized by Google

NOTICES.

All communications intended for the Editor, to be addressed: "Philo-Israel," Woodcot Villa, Tyndall's Park, Clifton, Bristol.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. £ s. d.

Annual Subscription for one copy weekly (including the Twelve Double Numbers) post free 0 7 6
Two Copies (including Double Numbers) 0 13 6
Three Copies " " " 1 0 4
Four Copies " " " 1 5 6
Six Copies " " " 1 16 4

Post Office Orders to be made payable at the head office, St. Martin's-le-grand, London, to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C., or F. W. PARRY & Co., 29, Paternoster-row, London.

The Editor cannot undertake to return rejected MSS. unless stamps for the purpose be sent. Parties requiring an answer should enclose a stamp.

Contents Bills and Show Cards may be obtained on application to the Publishers.

Advertisements should be sent to ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Prepaid Advertisements are inserted at the rate of thirty words for 1s. 4d.

NOTICE!

THE ANNUAL VOLUME

OF THE

BANNER OF ISRAEL

WILL BE READY DECEMBER 29.

Price, in Handsome Blue Cloth, Gilt, 8s., Post Free for Postal Order.

Forms a handsome present. Useful for presentation to Working Men's Institutes, Libraries, etc., etc.

Price 1s. 6d.

CASES FOR BINDING

THE YEARLY VOLUMES.

ROBERT BANKS AND SON,
RACQUET COURT, FLEET ST.

VALUABLE CONSULTATION PRESCRIPTION for cure of Indigestion sent to any address for One Shilling. Part profits to Banner Free Distribution Fund.—"Identity," 8, Charlotte-terrace, Clacton-on-Sea.

WORKS BY PHILO-ISRAEL.

The Geography of the Gates. With Map and six full page, and one double-page, Illustrations, printed on plate paper. 208 pages, in handsome cloth, gilt. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d.

The History of the House of Israel. How They Were Lost and How They Were Found. Told, for the children. Price 6d., cloth 1s.; post free 7d. and 1s. 1d. Fifth edition.

A Resume of the Scriptural Argument, Proving the Identity of the British Race with the Lost Ten Tribes. Price 1d.; 6s. per hundred, postage 6d.

Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.

CHRISTMAS GIFT BOOK.

Royal Copy, 4s., Coloured ditto, gilt edges, full gilt 2s., Plain 1s. 8d., postage 2d. extra.

"MY JEWELS"

(MAL. III. 17),

BY SARAH SHARP.

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, and all book-sellers.

Price 6d, by post 7d.

THE GREAT PYRAMID

AND

FREEMASONRY.

A Lecture delivered by MR. JOHN CHAPMAN, with Illustrated Coloured Plates. Published by request.

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street.

Ready at Advent. Price 6d., by post 6½d.

Old Dogmas From New Aspects.

By V. F. A. H.

Contents: 1. The Apostolic Succession. 2. The Apostle Peter. 3. The Successor of Judas Iscariot. 4. The Athanasian Creed. 5. The Trinity. 6. Eternal Punishment. 7. The Great Tribulation. 8. The Great White Throne. 9. The Atonement of Jesus Christ.

H. E. Hill, 60, Nevill road, Stoke-Newington, London, N.

Price 3d.; Interleaved with Ruled Paper, 5d.; CLOTH bound, gilt lettered, marbled edges, 1s.; by post 4d., 6d., and 1s.

The cloth edition is well bound, with marbled edges, and is suitable for Library, the Desk, and general use.

THE

ANGLO-ISRAEL ALMANACK

AND DIARY FOR 1888.

CONTENTS:

FRONTISPIECE—VIEW OF NAZARETH.

CALENDAR AND DIARY FOR THE YEAR, January: Christ's Commands. February: Commands. March: Promises. April: Promises. May: Prayers. June: Prayers. July: Christ's Promises. August: Promises. September: Proverbs. October: Proverbs. November: Invitations. December: Prophecies. Church Lessons for each Sunday of the Year. Notes for the Month. Moon's Changes. Moveable Feasts. Measures of Length. Bank Holidays. Length in a Mile in Different Countries. Letters Patent for Inventions. Notes for 1889. Meteoric Showers. Legal Tender of Money. Legacy and Succession Duty. Income Tax. Postal Regulations, Money Orders, etc. General Information. The Royal Family. The Church. Public Exhibitions. The Ministry.

ARTICLES:

The Testimony of History that the British are Israel By Philo-Israel.
The Foundation of Anglo-Israel Truth. By V. M. Cox.
"The Fulness of the Gentiles." By the Rev. C. W. Hickson, M.A.
Fulfilling Prophecy. By Douglas A. Onslow.
The Clue to the World's Future. By the Rev. Denis Hanan, M.A.
The Principles of a Divine System; and Israel's Place In It. By Ernest P. Dix.
Rule Britannia! By H. R. Shaw.
Nazareth.
God's Israel. By Rev. Hibbert Newton.
A Christmas Carol.
List of Anglo-Israel Associations in Various Parts of the World

LONDON: ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, and all Booksellers.

A New Work on the Identity of Lost Israel

By the late BISHOP TITCOMB.

Now ready, in Cloth Gilt, Bevelled Boards, Imperial 8vo. Price 3s.; sent Post Free for Postal Order or Stamps.

A MESSAGE TO THE CHURCH

FROM

THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

London: Robert Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-st., F. W. Parry & Co., Paternoster-row, and all book-sellers.

Just published, in bevelled boards, gilt lettered, gilt edges, price 1s., post free for P.O.

WORDS OF HELP AND WISDOM.

Gleanings Gathered from Various Authors and Poets

BY JESSIE LAWRENCE.

More useful and acceptable than Christmas or New Year's Cards.

LONDON: R. BANKS & SON, Racquet Court, Fleet Street, or of the AUTHOR, "Rosslyn," Hampton Road, Upper Teddington.

The Latest Publication by EDWARD HINE.

The Nation Warned by the Scripture Teachings of the Great Pyramid of Things to Happen about 1887. and Onward.

PRICE SIXPENCE; Post Free, 7d.

F. W. PARRY, 29, Paternoster Row, London, E.C

Dr. JOSEPH WILD'S WORKS

NEW EDITION JUST PUBLISHED.

THE LOST TEN TRIBES

Price 3s., post free 3s. 3d.

The FUTURE of ISRAEL and JUDAH.

Price 2s., post free 2s. 3d.

R. BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London.

LUNG TONIC

SAVE YOUR LIVES BY TAKING

OWBRIDGE'S LUNG TONIC

THE MIGHTY HEALER.

It has a power over disease hitherto unknown in Medicine.

Are you at all Weak-chested or inclined to be Consumptive, with just a touch of Cough now and then?

"Try this Wonderful Medicine." The Cough and Weakness will disappear as if by magic, and you will feel a strength and power you never had before.

HAVE YOU A COUGH?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT!
HAVE YOU A COLD?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Bronchitis & Asthma it relieves instantly

The Spasms of Coughing so dreadful in Whooping Cough become less with each dose of the medicine.

Prepared by W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull

Sold in Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s. by all Chemists and Patent Medicine Vendors. Wholesale all London and Provincial Houses.

CARBOLINE

1/6 (TOOTH PASTE). 2/6 per Pot.

Is the most complete Cleanser, Preserver, and Beautifier of the Teeth, perfectly harmless, but marvellous in effect. By its use Toothache and Tartar are prevented, decay arrested, colour improved.

DISEASE by INHALATION AVOIDED.

Makers:

GEORGE & WELCH

CHEMISTS, WORCESTER,

Who will forward Free of Postage.

HUMAN LIFE.—FIFTY YEARS' Record of Facts, Principles, and Discoveries (just published, complete) Relating to the Improvement and Preservation of Human Life on Earth. Origin and true treatment of diseases. A series of articles by DR. SAMUEL BIRLEY, M.D., Ph.D. Book form, 50 pages. SENT FREE to every applicant by the publishers, GORDON B. MURRAY & CO., 50, Theobald's-road, Holborn, E.C. Write to-day.

ETHELINE

A New and most Effective Remedy for CORNS.—Perfectly safe and harmless. Is very easily applied. Cures in a few applications, without the slightest pain. Everyone troubled with either Corns, Warts, or Bunions, will find relief by using ETHELINE. To be obtained of all Chemists, or post free for 14 stamps from J. LLEWELLYN, CHEMIST, COWBRIDGE.

PRICE 21s., POST FREE. HARNESS' WILL LAST FOR YEARS.

ELECTROPATHIC BELT.

An agreeable, natural, and certain remedy for

Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Nervous Affections Sleeplessness, Paralysis, Indigestion, Constipation, Liver and Kidney Disorders, Ladies' Ailments, &c.

SEND POSTAL ORDER OR CHEQUE FOR 21s. FOR AN Electropathic Belt (post free), and you will have an effectual and marvellous remedy always at hand. Harness' Electropathic Belt promotes Health, Strength, and Energy.

Thousands of Testimonials received. Write for copies or call and see the originals.

Pamphlet and advice free of charge.

The Medical Battery Company, Limited,

52, OXFORD ST., LONDON, W.

Corner of Rathbone Place

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED for the Proprietor by ROBERT BANKS & SON, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C. F. W. PARRY (late GUEST & Co.), 29, PATERNOSTER-ROW, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 28, 1887. [All rights reserved

Digitized by Google