THE PROCLAMATION

In view of the Detonation,
Of which we have heard reports,
We announce the cancellation
Of the following pursuits;--

Falsehood, which we declare
Is the fear of nakedness.

Hatred, which we declare
Is the projection of our guilt.

Intolerance, which we declare
Is the angry mask of weakness.

Greed, which we declare
Is the first sin of the world.

Because of our great fear of the short war

We, the under-signed, proclaim
A wiser dispensation.
We declare the liberation
Of all political prisoners,
All slave labourers,
The relief of the oppressed
And the rehabilitation of the dispossessed.
We proclaim there are no heresies,
Only opinions,
And beg two thousand mercies
On our sins.
For thine is the Kingdom.

In pursuance of the above
We declare a state of love.

This proclamation takes effect
From tomorrow, tomorrow, tomorrow...

"WATER WITCHER" Locates 5,000 Wells. -- Aurameter Aid V.L. Cameron in Finding Supply of Underground Water. -- For years, sceptics and so-called "experts" have scoffed at the idea that underground water can actually be located with a forked willow stick or brass or steel instruments that bend toward the earth where water is supposedly running beneath the ground. But V.L. Cameron, who homesteaded near the San Pasqual Valley more than three decades ago and now resides in Elsinore, has been doing just that, successfully, for twenty-five years. And he is ready to prove it.

Cameron, with the use of two instruments he calls an 'aurameter' and a water scale, estimates he has located more than 5,000 water wells in his twenty-five years of "dowsing". Approximately 500 of those wells have been located in the Escondido area, Cameron said. -- Just as amazing is the fact that most of Cameron's wells are still pumping water.

It all started in 1925 when Cameron was seeking to develop water on his 320-acre ranch about eight miles southeast of Escondido. "I was trying to discover a better way to locate water than by just guessing and sinking a well," Cameron exclaimed. "A neighbor suggested I 'witch' for water, but I didn't believe in water 'witching' then. But I decided to try the willow switch. It didn't work at first. I must have walked hundreds of miles over my ranch before I finally developed a feel for the water."

Cameron said he succeeded in locating water on his land with a forked stick, although the well was not too productive. After years of experiment, Cameron said he developed a set of instruments -- the aurameter and water scale -- which were more effective than the crude forked stick. "If a person actually believes he can make the forked willow stick work, it will," Cameron emphasized. Among the first wells in this area that Cameron located was one on top of a hill on the old Bernardo Rancho, overlooking Lake Hodges. "We got water at seven feet," Cameron recalled with a smile. "That was in 1929." In 1952, Cameron said he was employed by the Ed Fletcher Realty Company of El Cajon to locate water on property that was to be subdivided. That venture was so successful that Cameron located four wells, the fourth of which is 840 feet deep and still pumping about 500 gallons of water a minute. Soon after that the value of the property jumped to more than $2,000 an acre, Cameron said.

During the period from 1948 to 1950, Cameron said he "dowsed" six wells above the 6,000 foot level on Mount San Jacinto for the Idlewyld, Fern Valley and Mountain Center Water Companies. He currently has been asked to locate three more for the same companies. One of the wells brought in artesian water, overflowed and formed a creek.

In location of one of the wells for the Fern Valley Company, Cameron said he told the company that drillers would go to at least 245 feet, the water would stand about 30 feet from the top when it came in, that it would pump between 50 and 100 gallons of water a minute and that a stream just above the well site would dry up. The drillers did dig to 245 feet, the water stood at 28 feet from the top, the well pumped 50 gallons of water a minute and the stream dried up. Fantastic? Cameron has a newspaper clipping to prove it.

What Cameron describes as his "most spectacular" well was located on desert land near Borrego in 1947. Cameron was among several water locaters called in by land developers in the Borrego area. He said that one well had been sunk to 700 feet, apparently by the 'guess' method, and no water was found. Cameron went to work with his instruments, located a spot only 150 feet from the dry well and said "Dig! Water was struck at the same level as the dry well and came in at 2,700 gallons a minute.

In 1953, Cameron said he was sought by Mrs. Martha Dougherty of Norwalk, Calif., to locate water after drillers had sunk a 1,200 foot dry well on her property. Four hundred feet from the dry hole, Cameron found water. The well was dug to 180 feet and pumped 1,800 gallons a minute.

Cameron has also located water for the U.S. Government, he said. "I estimate I'm about 90 per cent successful in locating water and I believe the supply of 'primary' water beneath the earth's surface is unlimited," Cameron concluded.

Can water be found with a forked stick or a steel rod? Cameron says so and he has proved it. - (by Ron Kenney, "Times-Advocate", and re-printed in "The Kosmon Pioneer Bulletin" -- Rt. 2 - Box 26A -- Montrose, Colo.)

PISCEAN and AQUARIAN TYPES - frequently clash.

"They fail to understand each other and omit to recognize that each type is right ... that both are needed and must work together. .. But how can an ordinary man recognize Piscean movements? How can he also recognize a new age movement? What are the functions of a true teacher at this time?

1. "Piscean movements always make an appeal to hierarchical authority, demand from their followers and acceptance of the demands of the leaders. In their worst aspects and more blindly developed, they impose upon their followers fanatical devotion and make them intolerant of all other groups. They usually possess a central authority, a bible, and a set of dogmas, no matter how loudly they may deny it.

2. "Individuals with a tendency toward the Aquarian nature exist. There are no Aquarian movements for the time is not yet ripe for the successful activity of the latter. The Aquarian Age is not yet with us; all we have are forerunners. But when they do come and we can truthfully speak of Aquarian movements, what will be their distinguishing marks?

"They will be characterized by the freedom to think as they choose which they will allow their adherents; they will refuse to emphasize any particular teacher, bible, or organization as the sole repository of truth, but will accord equal recognition to all groups who seek to present knowledge of God as it can be gained through science, religion, art or philosophy. They will therefore be conspicuous by the absence of rancour, criticism or condemnation of any other leader of group ef effort. They will be inclusive, not exclusive, they will emphasize principles, not personalities, service not selfish pursuits, and by the broadness of their vision and the trueness of their perspective they will lead toward a consummation of universal recognized unity.

"Everyone will be free to teach as he likes, to express truth as he sees it, and to work out his own methods in service. . . Only tendencies in this direction can now be seen, but they do indicate, as straws, the way the wind is blowing. Some day that wind will be upon us in full force and will blow away our clouds of differences and distinctions." 'The functions of the true teacher are to make and keep a contact with his own soul, to allow nothing to cloud his vision, and to make no claims, recognizing that he is only a server, and that by his words and works alone he is justified and known. The true teacher repudiates personality exaltation, and avoids wherever possible all reference to himself, and seeks ever to be in the background. . . He will present certain essentials as universally recognized, and leave his hearers to make their own decisions and applications. . . '

(from Modern Esoteric Movements; Alice A, Bailey; reprint in The Beacon, Feb. 1956).

(This seems to us to be wise and much-needed advice; let us apply it both to ourselves and to our would-be 'leaders', ml).

MAILBAG:

The following statement refers to paragraphs headed"WHAT? NOT!"-- on page 8 of "C.Q.C." F-3, of March 15, 1956, and sent us by Associate Dennis Kier. The statement comes from Telonic Research Center, Prescott, Arizona, George Williamson, Director:

"Just read recent C.Q.C. I'm afraid that your Assoc. Dennis Kier has made a most inaccurate assumption regarding our FIVE-SIDED UFO photo! We studied this photo for months before releasing it! Two photographers with the Atomic Energy Commission examined it minutely, and while it does "appear" to be a five-sided iris opening, it is DEFINITELY NOT! These two men have had 40 and 25 years of research in photography respectively. For one thing, they can NOT account for the radiation and turbulence, and there are many other things about the photo that are entirely unexplainable! I take these men's word - I feel they are more qualified than Mr. Kier. He shouldn't make such a 'positive' statement. . . G.W."

Assoc. R.O.L. of Powell River, B.C., Canada, has the following"complaint" - which is deeply appreciated: "I have a complaint to make, and that is that I am kept awake too late at night while reading your publications. I cannot help but go on from one piece to another. They are most thought-provoking. The 'theory' of emergence is certainly the most sensible one I have heard so far on Flying Saucers, that it comes from 'excarnate' beings is very interesting but somewhat secondary. Orthodox science must certainly be lost in its implications. To the materialist it raises more questions than it answers. However, the occultist will prefer it to any other- as long as the enigma remains otherwise unanswered.

"Thanks again for this opportunity of learning about these things and will be glad to comment again at some future time."

Dream Scheme That Might Work: "Dreams - Ha! I have dreamed up a scheme t h a t might work (??). It is that every person, instead of eternally looking out for 'self' would be assigned another party to care for, just as they would care for themselves, so that would eliminate selfishness, though there might be a few arguments, in that some might not think their 'guardian' was doing so well. Now isn't that dream worth while? We have tried letting the individual look after himself, and in doing so, he is apt to forget all else -- so my scheme does have a little merit - I hope!" (Assoc. Julia Hart, Ferndale, Wn.)

Excerpts from letter: Rolf Telano to Assocs. S.N.G. and M.L., Re "PROJECT HERMES" -(an "Inter-Plane" Communication device) --

"I have received a second letter from Mr. Arthur Bird, of London, and it now appears that, due to a misinterpretation of terms on my part, the news regarding "Project Hermes" is not as good as I thought it was. In his first letter, Mr. Bird said that he managed to get the receiver"working", but laid it aside because of illness, and burned out the tube when he attempted to demonstrate it to an associate.

"It now appears that he used the term 'working' in the sense that it was producing a radio wave, and not (as I understood the term) in the sense that it was producing the intended effect. In fact, his second letter makes the definite statement that he 'did not secure any results from it' -- which I would take to mean that he did not secure any psychic results. So there you are, So there you are, as George Gobels would say. He is now in communication with Associate Green, who probably 'speaks his language' much better than I, so that such misunderstandings will not come up in the future.

MAILBAG:
(contd) -- "I have the material on order to repair his first set, and also material to build a duplicate with which one of his associates will experiment. This has not yet arrived, but should be here the first of the week and will be started for London as soon as it arrives, so that the experiments will again be under way, I hope. It is my understanding, however, that the intended experiments are not on the original lines of a communication device, but as a device for healing purposes. However, perhaps Bro. Green has more complete information on this now.- Sincerely yours, R.T."

"HERE IS MY STORY - strange but true", says narrator Eugene Metcalf. (Perhaps one should add, OMINOUS. Printed in the UFO REPORTER, January 1956).

"For the past three years or so I have noticed a strange air-borne craft in the sky - it was shaped like the top of a call bell and could move faster than any plane I have yet seen. . In darkness it would give off a stream of green sparks . . .

On March 9, 1955, I saw the above-mentioned craft take a jet-propelled plane out of the sky, and believe it or not, this plane has never been found. This happend you might say in my own back yard. It was all in plain view. I saw plainly both the plane and this craft. It scooped the plane up as easy as a hawk would a chicken - then disappeared.

I sent letters describing this action to the following: The Chicago American Newspaper; Comment - none. News Week: 'would like to print if room could be found' Civial Air Patrol: first said it was an American craft, then said they didn't know (Who does?). FBI: Thanked me for the information. So maybe some one of them will get their eyes open some day." (E.M.) (THE UFO ANNUAL, by astronomer M.K.Jessup, for 1955, "coming soon", can be recommended in advance. Citadel Press,222 4th Ave., New York 3. $3.00 if ordered in advance. $3.50).

ATTENTION OF AMATEUR ASTRONOMERS - IS THE "MOON-BRIDGE" VISIBLE - ?
IS IT INCREASING IN LENGTH ?

Our Associate Mr. Paul Spade, of El Cajon, Calif. telephoned us on the evening of April 19, that while observing the moon with a mag. of 120 he observed a thin threadlike line, nearly straight, possibly by rough guess about 100 miles long. The surface being about 2/3 visible, the line was seen in the lower left-hand half of that area. Assoc. Spade makes no assertion as to the true nature of the 'line'and only points out to other amateurs that it should be visible under 100 or even 90 power, if conditions of observation are good - and that it should be accurately located on a lunar chart. This may - or of course may not - be related to the "moon-bridge" described by Keyhoe as over the crater of the Mare Crisium (v. Flying Saucer Conspiracy, pg. 71 ff); at any rate it may be a useful and interesting project for amateurs with the necessary equpiment. The BSR publications will be glad to report any significant items sent in.

"The United States is now considering a mental health bill for the Territory of Alaska. This bill (H.R. 6376) was passed in the House of Representatives last January. The importance and real dangers lurking in the bill were outlined in the Santa Ana Register on January 24, 1956, and the entire editorial is quoted in the Bulletin of the National Health Federation for April 1956. . . This legislation, say its opponents, will place every resident of the United States at the mercy of the whims and fancies of any person with whom they might have a disagreement, causing a charge of mental illness to be placed against them, with immediate deportation to Siberia, USA. ... The bill is now before the Senate. Every American

INFORMATION WANTED -- by Assoc. Delbert S. Peirce -- the BSR Director - et al.

"Re Hendershot motor and allied subjects: I wonder whatever happened to Lewis and his "Rkometon". Anybody know anything about it?

"I believe it was about 35 years ago that an account was printed in the Spokesman-Review of Spokane, Wash., and later in one of the Mechanics magazines - I don't remember which one. It seems that an inventor (I believe his name was Lewis) called a number of reporters to his hotel room in Seattle and proceeded to demonstrate what he called his Rkometon.

"This machine or apparatus was described as similar in appearance to a toy boxcar. It was a heavier than air machine, with no wings, propellers, or jets, and with no wires attached; yet it got off the floor and moved about through the air in the hotel room in response to the manipulation of a control box which the inventor held in his hands.

"The inventor envisioned enormous trains flying through the air at speeds up to 2000 miles per hour, and at very small cost so far as powere was concerned.

"For a long time I watched the papers for more news of this thing - but never another word.".

Assoc. Delbert Peirce can be reached at 6114 Bellingham Ave., No. Hollywood, Calif., or via BSR Hdqrs.

By odd coincidence, the same mail brings us the following comment by the poet Ella Young, of Oceano, Calif. "In Ireland, in the horse and buggy days, a friend of mine was shown the new methods of transportation. One was the auto - the 'horseless carriage'; the other puzzled my friend and anyone to whom she described it. She said it was like a train that went through the air without rails. It started from a platform and landed on a platform, describing in its passage through the air a kind of curve. My friend died years ago, but people are already talking of a guided missile passenger service between continents.

The catastrophe predicted by many, I fancy, will not overtake us until this mode of transportation has been established."

This 'showing' was obviously some kind of 'psychic' vision. Was it by any chance a vision of the "Rkometon" of inventor Lewis?

"Something for the Lighter Moment", writes Assoc. Mrs. Frank Kalan (San Diego); "It is interesting to note that after ten years of patient research on Unidentified Flying Objects we conclude that (1) the Men from Mars are monkeys (2) the space scout ship is a lampshade (3) the Martian canali are nothing but a big crack (4) the five-sided UFO is a cheap camera trick.

"But our efforts have not been in vain, dear Associates, because I can assure you of a tasty bit ahead; when we finally land on the moon we will find it is truly made of green cheese. The fishes swim and the birdies zing!

"Q"-Energy Film: Verne L. Cameron, inventor of the aurameter, has been experimenting with "Q"-Energy film, and contributes the following comments: "Some months ago Dr. N. Meade Layne, of the Borderland Sciences Research Associates, 3524 Adams Ave., San Diego 16, Calif., gave me a sample of this film, which is sold by the Originality House -- 480 Avalon Ave., Akron 20, Ohio. --- On trying this film with the aurameter, I found that it gave off energy from one side only. This probably means that it should have that side next to the body for best results.

"Now since the film is highly magnetic (static magnetism), it will readily cling to a wall or other surface. I fastened a piece (7" x 9") of it to my inside wall and found it projected a beam 190 feet long, passing through a wall. Outdoors, with it on my east wall, the beam was 416 feet long to the eastward. This I determined by the thrust on the aurameter, of course. Later I stretched a piece of kitchen plastic by hand and found the beam to be 230 feet long, out of doors. Then by placing a powerful Alnico magnet behind the film and a piece of carbon, (a flat graphic disc) in front and taping the group to my garage wall, the beam projected to the enormous distance of 3200 feet.

"The carbon-magnet experiments have been written up for years in the ROUND ROBIN (B.S.R.A.),as well as in other publications, which told of the strange properties, and their effect on the nervous system, etc., when the carbon (arc or battery) is held in one hand and a magnet in the other."

ETIDORHPA (The End Of The Earth) -- by John Uri Lloyd. (Assoc. Mary J. Hyde-) --

This is a story within a story. "I Am THE Man", tells Professor Johannes L. Drurey of his attempt to disclose certain secrets of a Secret Society (no doubt the same Society which enters into all these stories-) which were not supposed to be given to the outside world.

He was kidnapped by the Society on the 12th day of August, 1826, and given an opportunity to expatiate his crime by voluntarily renouncing his identity and performing a mission as directed by the Order.

This was a difficult decision for it involved allowing himself to pass completely from the knowledge of earthly men. He was also called upon to pass the dividing line that separated life from death, matter from spirit, and to explore an assigned section of this illimitable field to "accumulate further knowledge to be reported to those whose duty it is to retain and formulate collected facts and principles" for the good of humanity.

The trip took him into a cave through which he passed to the center of the earth. The exact location of this cave is given as near Shipping Port on the Ohio River (not far from Mammouth Cave, in Kentucky,)and the date of his departure as December 13, 1826.

He learned many strange things, for instance, he found the crust of the earth is only 800 miles think, and as he descended into the earth, about 100 miles farther than the edge of the crust he reached the "unknown country", and going further the "Sphere of Energy or Circle of Rest -- the land of Etidorhpa" (Aphrodite, spelled backwards).

This is a land of love and harmony, where a wise and very intelligent race live in absolute consciousness of their reason for living and the purpose of all life. Conditions of course were different from those on the outside, both as to mental and emotional outlook as well as physical. He found that he had completely lost all "weight".

The book abounds with much interesting lore. We are told "we live in a sea of absolute motion". "Matter is retarded motion". "Gravitation is the beginning and it is also the end". On page 18 we are told "The earth-forming principle consists of an invisible sphere of energy that, spinning through space, supports space dust which collects on it, as dust on a bubble. As the gradual accumulation of substance on that sphere, a hollow ball has resulted, on the outer surface of which you have hitherto dwelt". "The force inherent in this sphere manifests itself upon the matter which supports on both sides, rendering matter lighter the nearer it lies to the center of the sphere".

The inhabitants of the inside of the earth could travel at will, lowering themselves or ascending as they wished.

The author completes his book (at least the edition I have) with several discussion chapters, in which the reader becomes aware of the extent of his knowledge of matters occult.

I have read this book many times, but it gives me a strange impression, someway, as though it is trying to tell more than it is saying.

 Editor's note: This very remarkable book was first published in 1895, and ran through eleven editions. The BSR book dept. has frequent calls which we cannot supply).

NOTATION, concerning the item "moon-bridge" on pg 4, present issue of CQC. Assoc. Paul Spade, who contributed the memo., reminds us that the visibility of the 'bridge' will depend partly on the phase of the moon; also that perhaps the shadow of the 'bridge' is seen rather than the 'construction' itself. All physical conditions should be at their best in looking for this object. ml
