"EARTHQUAKES and LEVITY"

by
Trevor James, BSRA Reg. Director

As one favored with the honor of Regional Director of BSRA, I shall henceforth attempt to contribute to everything you put out, to the limit of my energies.

In They Live In The Sky I referred briefly to the force of levity, gravity's polar opposite, which is a peripherally based suctional force exerting an indispensable influence on all life on this planet. The Alaskan earthquakes, which took place subsequent to or during the U.S. nuclear tests this year, raised the question of levity in my mind once more, and I place these views and suggestions before the Associates for their consideration.

The reports from Alaska have something in common with almost all earthquake reports reaching us through the newspapers. Small craft off the Alaskan shore were placed in distress, capsized, and generally shaken up in a way that conventional science finds hard to explain. Aside from the fact that the bulk of the world's earthquakes take place near large bodies of water, ships are generally subjected to more severe effects from earthquakes than the average landlubber thinks.

In 1946, being then a Radio Officer on the British ship, "Baltannic," I had the somewhat terrifying experience of an earthquake on shipboard. We were passing through the Mona Passage in the West Indies, when there was a most terrific earthquake on the Island of Santa Domingo. This quake caused several miles of coastline to subside. Aboard the ship, hundreds of miles away, we rose and fell in a very strange way. The entire ship first felt as though it was being lifted bodily out of the calm sea and then it was dropped as though the switch of an electromagnet had been turned off. All the time, I knew a strange sense of alertness which I had experienced many times in the past in earthquake-ridden New Zealand, my native land. It was not until I became familiar later with aspects of "spiritual science" that I traced this feeling of alertness to the effect of the levity field on the physical structure. It is the only way I know that a human can enjoy or experience a sensation approaching true weightlessness, since it is produced by a change in the gravity-levity relationship that is abnormal indeed. This cannot be produced by diving jet airplanes in peculiar loops, as the field relationship is not altered by this process, as it is by earthquake effects.

Levity, being a peripherally based suctional force, tends to predominate over water. Gravity, being a point based pushing force, tends to predominate over land. Where the two forms of matter meet, which, incidentally are two of the alchemical elements, water and earth, there is a constant tendency toward conditions of strain. One force pulling upward and outward to the periphery, the other pushing downward and inward. Polarity is preserved in this concept.

As a schoolboy, I was always puzzled and fascinated by the manifestations of vulcanism that appear around the Pacific area, and which were described by my schoolmasters as "The Pacific Ring of Fire." This chain of volcanoes, some active, some dormant, begins in New Zealand, extends through New Caledonia and the Solomons, the East Indies, Phillipines and Japan, then crosses the Aleutians to Alaska, comes south through the Rockies to Central America and thence to the Andes.

The world's most ferocious volcanoes are situated in this "Ring of Fire" and include Krakatoa, which still has all man-made explosions eclipsed for violence.

Mechanical theories of conventional vulcanology hold that the instability is caused by the mountainous heights proximity to the oceanic depths. Japan's Fuji and the Tuscarora Deep are triumphantly quoted as the prime example of this.

"Spiritual science," based on viewing nature as a whole and training its disciples to think in polarities, takes note that the Pacific Ocean is by far the largest unobstructed sheet of water on the face of the earth. It is fringed by vast landmasses, that of Eurasia in the East, Australia to the Southeast, and the Americas in the West. "No other ocean can make this claim," as the advertisers of its glories might state. Nowhere else on earth are these conditions duplicated - nor is the vulcanism.

Levity tends to predominate over the vast ocean spaces, with its suctional force always drawing towards the periphery. This does not mean that levity overcomes gravity. Apples still fall from the trees in Hawaii. What it means is that there will be an appreciable alteration between gravity and levity over a large ocean, compared with its relationship over gravity-polaric earth.

Where the predominating or more common gravity-levity relationship over land meets the altered gravity-levity relationship over water, there will be a condition of strain. One field would be less negative than the other, so to speak. Just as mechanical push-pull force will bend and break steel, so do these fields in altered relationship tend to rend and bend the earth's crust. Hence, the Pacific Ring of Fire. The bodily hoisting of the ship mentioned earlier is due to its being unattached to the mass of the land, and yet subject to the suctional effects of levity. This is why in many earthquakes, boats have been LIFTED BODILY from the water. It is particularly prone to happen to small craft, first of all because they are usually closer to shore and near the strain line, and secondly because they are lighter than ocean-going ships, i.e. less gravity polaric. It takes a great amount of force to capsize fishing vessels, but when the earthquakes come, the force is provided, and it is obviously not because the mass of the water moves, as mechanistic theories would have us believe. An experiment with a wooden boat in a basin will illustrate this for those who love mechanical demonstrations.

Vulcanology and the conventional theories about the earth's interior make-up are all based on existing gravity theories, which hold it to be a unipolar force. Unless and until science thinks in polarities, thereby placing itself in tune with the entire observable order of the universe, and especially in tune with the primary polarity of gravity-levity effecting all life on earth, no coherent and enduring estimates of the behaviour of our planet can be made.

The gravest and most dangerous mistake of conventional science, for which all human progress has been held in check, is to distrust sensory testimony and attempt instead to reduce all phenomena to some debased electrical pointer reading. Proper use of the senses, together with a fundamental overhaul of the precepts of human judgement, leads man inevitably to broader understanding. The The testimony of Nature's activity presented to the mind by the senses is accurate. The judgement and the understanding of humans are not accurate. The earthquake and its sensory effect on all animals and humans is a case in point. Having been brought up in New Zealand, I lived a lifetime in a land where earthquakes are as much a part of life as the sky itself. My experience with them was long and steady, but it was not until my understanding of my sensory make-up was extended, and my criticism of my own judgement made very severe, that I was able to use the sensory testimony of a lifetime relative to earthquakes.

All my life I have found that I would awaken immediately prior to an earthquake, with this same peculiar feeling of alertness previously described. It seems to be a bodily feeling comparable to that experienced when one attempts to raise one's arm from the side of one's body against the pressure of the wall, then steps away from the wall, whereupon the arm rises on its own, with this same feeling of alertness. Whereas it is induced in one limb by the method described, it is produced in the whole body by an alteration in the fundamental gravity-levity relationship which both precedes and PRECIPITATES an earthquake.

Thus does a man find that all along his senses have not lied, but that he has been incapable of forming valid judgements of these sensory impressions from purely mechanical concepts held by conventional sources to cause earthquakes. In one case, man, as a participant in the whole life of the Earth, comes in contact by natural means with natural effects and causes of the earth's sufferings. This is hammered out of him by the one-eyed, color blind, mechanical concepts of ruling science, and he is sent forth into the world after his "education" sundered from his proper heritage and from a spiritual viewpoint closely resembling a whipped animal.

On the question of levity predominating over the Pacific Ocean in the manner described, it was a common experience for me in my years of ocean voyaging, to experience this same feeling of alertness on entering the Pacific Ocean after passing through the Panama Canal. Few men of even rudimentary sensitivity will deny that when one enters the Pacific Ocean, the ship, one's being, the whole environment seems pervaded with a lightness and happiness it did not possess before the Pacific was entered. These impressions would naturally be induced by a change in the normal gravity-levity relationship in favor of increased levity.

That it does happen is confirmed by the fact that when one comes the other way, a feeling of depression accompanies emergence into the Carribean from the Pacific Ocean. Things are not what they were.

Pointer readers from conventional scientific schools and psychologists would be compelled to state these things to be pure illusion, unless they expose themselves to the phenomenon, and drink in an properly interpret the lessons of Nature offered to them through the filaments of their senses.

No salvation or emancipation awaits mankind in developing more and more pointers, which only point the way to the slavery of onlooker's illusion. God, through Nature, offers wisdom, truth, light and emancipation through the senses and their proper use and development. We must investigate the Universe by becoming participants in its affairs, learning our lessons by deeper readings from Nature's book.

(I will follow this later with writings on the effects of H-bombs on gravity-levity relationships and how these extend to produce earthquakes.....very interesting). TJ

THE LAMA'S STORY (I)

(From APPROACH Vol. 1, No. 2, May 1958 published by Sagittarius Publishers, PO Box 1953, Pretoria, South Africa)

.... A man stating he has to write under pseudonym tells of his noble birth, his education, training as an occult and medical man, his life, task and destiny. He is a Tibetan. He writes of many things which have not been stated so clearly, so lucidly, so comprehensively by an authoritative person in the Western World before. Things not all of them absolutely unknown, though one must know where to look up for a check. Thus not only incidences in his personal life, but very much more in the way of knowledge and Eastern wisdom. Not only Tibetan things. But also general knowledge, to the benefit of all manking if only it would grab it! Advanced knowledge pe rhaps, of which many an 'expert' even might not have heard before. Now, if even conceited experts are made to see things in a light of which they thought they already knew all about (and perhaps knew better) does this necessarily brand the author a fake or a hoax? Definitely not; because the author could yet be right and the raving lot of 'experts' very wrong! It's happened hundreds of times before in history! So quite rightly, most literary critics the world over 'listened in' to the tone of "The Third Eye". What they found was sincerity. This they stated and admitted, from the London "Times Literary Supplement" down to obscure magazines. Even skeptics of the many wondrous things Rampa is telling were impressed! So his book became a best-seller in no time, was translated into more than a dozen languages. Despite those who thought they were able to discover 'inaccuracies' or who frankly disbelieved that of which they had never heard before, the author was accepted by a majority of soundly judging critics to be a man of exceptional gifts, of high ethical standing! Until someone found out that the man writing under pseudonym Rampa legally bore the name Kuon' Suo, who before was a Hoskins, an English plumber's son !!! Pandemonium reigned ! "Bogus Lama", "False Eye", "Ingenious Swindler", ran the headlines! Skeptics cried: We told you so! Respectable critics turned away dumbfounded! The man Hoskins had never been in Tibet, true enough. So with the author the book was condemned too! Outright. No one asked himself how an uneducated plumber's son could have written this book they had praised a moment before! When Dr. Rampa tried to say Why, he was laughed at! He was even told to say what pressmen were ready to print of him and nothing else!! Those who had believed in him were left confused; those who felt cheated, shut up, hurt! SO FAR AS WE KNOW, NOT A SINGLE NEWSPAPER IN THE WHOLE WORLD HAD SPACE ENOUGH TO QUOTE DR RAMPA'S STATEMENTS FULLY WHILE THEY DID HAVE IT WHEN IT HAD COME TO PRINTING IGNOR* ANTS' RUBBISH WHICH APPEARED TO 'EXPOSE' HIM! This is what the same man had to say, who, before, had been called sincere, this by the world's leading literary critics:-

"The Third Eye is absolutely true and all that I write in that book is fact. I, a Tibetan lama now occupy what was originally the body of a Western man, occupy it to the permanent and total exclusion of the former occupant. This can be done in accordance with natural laws but not, however, against the will or without the consent of the individual concerned. In view of my urgent need the man gave his consent. He was helpful and indeed glad to escape from life on this earth. - The actual change-over occurred on the 13th June, 1949, but the way had to be prepared some time before that. I had to come to Engl in connection with the fulfilment of a special task. As it was not possible for me to come in the body I then had, the way outlined above had to be resorted to. In the latter part of '47 I was able to send impressions to a suitable person by telepathy. In Feb. '48 he changed his name by legal deed poll to Kuon'Suo, as suggested by me. To make the change-over easier he altered his addresses a number of times and lost contact with friends and relations

On June 13, '49 he had a slight accident which resulted in concussion. As it had the effect at the same time, of freeing him from his body, I was enabled to take over. - My first task was to adept myself and to lay a suitable foundation for our subsistence. Although I had been registered with various public and private employment agencies, none could help me. We had to live on capital which had been saved and upon anything which I was able to earn from doing free-lance writing or advertising. Eventually a friend offered to put me in touch with a gentleman who might be able to use my service. This man was a literary agent. Mr. Brooks. He asked me to write a book. I insisted that I did not want to write a book as I feared such a job would interfere too much with the task I had taken upon myself. So we parted. Mr. Brooks did not give in and wrote to me, repeating his suggestion. As I had not had any further success in the meantime, I finally agreed to consider his proposal and this is how "The Third Eye" came to be written. I know that I have a special task to do. At a certain stage during my life in Tibet I had come to learn of a device which enables people to see the human aura. I personally can see the aura and have demonstrated this ability to many people and many a time. The aura is a corona discharge from the body of the life force. It would resemble the corona discharge from high tension cables which can be seen by almost everyone on a misty night. -

The human aura is a telltale barometer or instrument of various conditions existing in a person. This pertains also to an individual's state of health. Now, if medical men could be aided by a technical devide to see the aura, earlier diagnoses of the afflicted human body could be made and a suitable healing process started in good time. If money would be spent on research along this line, science would have one of the most potent tools for the cure of disease. Although I had to have money in order to carry out my own research I have never taken money for curing people's illnesses or for taking their troubles off their shoulders - as has been misrepresented in a certain paper. I repeat here again that everthing said in my book is true. Everything said in my second book "Medical Lama" is true, too. Finally, one should not place too much credence in 'experts' or 'Tibetan scholars' when it is seen how 1 'expert' contradicts the other, and how they cannot agree on what is correct or incorrect. After all: how many of those 'Tibetan scholars' have entered a lamasery at the age of seven and worked all their way through life as a Tibetan, at last to take over the body of a Westerner? I have!"

A statement as sincere and serious as is the whole man!! One may perhaps excuse this world's incredulity in the face of such "miraculous" things, plus the fact that Tibet knew of spacecships all along and he himself has flown in them! But excused or not, WHY SHOULD HE BE A FAKE AND IGNORANCE AND DELUSION NOTBE WITH THE MAJORITY OF MEN AS IT HAS EVER BEEN? We'll tell you next time WHY WE PREFER TO SIDE WITH LOBSANG RAMPA, AGAINST THE FORLORN KNOW*ALLS OF THIS AGE.

Dr. RAMPA'S SECOND book "Medical Lama" has been accepted for publication by Doubleday in the USA. No date has been given yet. Friends interested can advise our Book Order Service.

"THE COMING OF THE GUARDIANS" : Third mimeo printing now available. About one third of the text has been rearranged and some 40 pages added; about 100 pages in all. Consists mainly of statements by the Mark Probert Controls concerning the nature of the aeroforms (UFO).

The only satisfactory and inclusive interpretation ever offered. The first two printings were sold at $3.00 but we have had to advance the price of this third printing to $ 4.00. Order from BSR Headquarters, 3524 Adams Ave., San Diego 16.

RESEARCH BULLETIN of The Better Life Research Foundation, Inc., P.O. Box 42233, Los Angeles, Calif., 15 pgs. 5x7" (pocket size):

We are in receipt of a copy of this issue (No. 2), and note that the table of contents contains the following:

(1) Why This Month Is The Most Critical Period In All History
(2) Atomic Blasts And The Tipping Of The Earth's Axis
(3) The Forbidden Subject
(4) There Are No Clean Bombs - Planned deception
(5) New Invention Obsoletes Atomic Energy
(6) World Fuel Supply Almost Exhausted
(7) Too Late For Peacetime Uses Of Atomic Power
(8) What The Better Life Research Foundation Can Do For You and The World - How to qualify

Where to get information on:
Invention to neutralize nuclear radiation
Machine to make water from air
The best way to eliminate smog.

As of possible interest, all of the editorial staff appear to have the Ph.D. degree, and the main objective apparently is to promote immediate use of the T. Henry Moray Cosmic Energy devices. As to Dr. Moray's own research, BSR Headquarters has a few copies of his "Radiant Energy" (20 pgs) for distribution (.25); dated some time back but important material.

Extra copies of the Research Bulletin, No. 2 may be had at .10 per copy (less han printing costs) - or 1000 for $50.00. Any amount over $5.00 also pays for he Book of the Century (500 pgs., 'in prep'). Authors and publishers sound an ur- ent note of alarm, and insist that their efforts are non-profit and based on scien- ific data.

We lack information, in BSR offices, for more extended comment on the Research ulletin but have sufficient confidence to ask our Associates to send (say) $1.00 to the Bulletin address given in our first paragraph above. Mention BSR if you like, and let us know your opinion of this set-up please.

Excerpts from Research Bulletin, Sup. - pas.

The Barber Scientific Foundation states that on December 21, 1956 "the sun rose in the wrong place by about three degrees, indicating a forerunner axis shift." Last month (April 2, 1958) the sun rose at 6:00 when it was supposed to rise at 5:44 according to standard 1958 almanacs. It set at 6:15 when it should have set at 6:24. This shortening of the days at the wrong time of the year has brought the equinoxes about two weeks late.

In Russia, only this year (January 23, 1958) the Soviet Government reported what it called "one of history's greatest earthquakes, comparable only to prehistoric convulsions."

The IZVESTA (Russian Newspaper) said, "One whole mountain range rose nearly 20 feet...One mountain split open, leaving a 65 foot crevice yawning for 155 miles."

This indicates that Russia has an extensive geological fault similiar to our San Andreas fault which extends from Peru in South America, all along the west coast, through the full length of California and up to the Aleutians off the coast of Alaska.

Nothing but the nuclear explosions could have caused the tremendous upheavals in the Russian "fault". Must we wait until our west coast is devastated by similar eruptions and cataclysmic disasters before we call a halt to these death dealing nuclear blasts? .....

The Atomic Energy Commission report submitted to the sub-committee said that radioactive fallout in the United States is the highest in the world. And the radiation Hazards Committee of the Federation of American Scientists stated last year: "It may well be true that in certain areas of the world, the strontium-90 hazard may have already passed the danger point, to say nothing of the additional production of this material in future tests."....

The British Atomic Scientists Association estimates that 50,000 people will die of bone cancer as a result of fallout from past explosions. They estimate that there will be about 1,000 cases of bone cancer for every megaton exploded in the atomic tests; there have already been 50 megatons exploded to date with more scheduled.

Dr. Linus Paulling, a Nobel Prize winning chemist, estimated the increase in the number of serious mental and physcical defects to 200,000 every generation. Other data and recent photographs of some of the tragic and hideous deformities of infants born here in the United States due to radiation, will be given in my 500 page book discussed elsewhere in this bulletin. .....

A little unit only about two feet long and a foot high can soon be purchased for home use (if enough funds are forthcoming to produce them) which will furnish 60,000 watts of electrical energy which would be all that the average home would need for light, heat and power. There would be no batteries to replace, no moving parts to wear out, no fuel to power it and no connection with outside power lines to pay for. This unit generates its power directly from the air. Inventors in all ages have known this was possible but could not succeed in designing the right kind of a mechanism.....

Dr. Moray, the inventor of a Cosmic Energy device stated that "the atomic power plant is nothing but a glorified steam plant that will have to carry heavy fuels, and heavy steam turbines, etc." Added to the cost of the steam engine or turbine there would be the cost and maintenance to complicated transmission lines to and from those power plants. There would be little advantage over our present outmoded power plants and there would be the ever present radiation hazard because the atomic pile is a welter of radio-active fission products. The action set up in the atomic pile extends its damaging radiation at a much greater distance than recognized. When the shields become radioactive the forcefields from the interior of the pile radiate FAR out and can cause unexpected damage in spite of the quantity of "protective" shielding used close to the pile. Nuclear power applied to peacetime uses would be much too expensive and hazardous for individuals to own.

On the other hand, the Cosmic Energy generator is clean, safe, effective and far less costly than other types of heat and power production units.....

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

For PAM: I sure do know CQC - just repiled about two dozen of them. And I had just read T. J.'s new book, They Live In The Sky. All through the reading I was commenting that these were the things BSRA (and the MP Controls, Ed.) have been telling us for at least 10 years - so it was no surprise when T.J. got around to giving credit where credit was due.

Hey you, Meade! Whatzat 'lamb inside'. Get a little optimistic, please. Remember (Algy met a bear, the bear was bulgy, the bulge was Algy - - -

Dr. H. E. R.
Ben Lomond, Calif

Letter from W. G. Allen, to BSR Director:

I want to thank you very much for your kind words about the SPACE CRAFT DIGEST. The Summer issue will be out in a couple of weeks and I am certain that it is a better issue. I have several new members because of your unstinting praise.

Tomorrow I leave for Europe and the middle East thru the courtesy of Canadian Pacific Airlines. I will bring back some 16mm color footage on some of the ruins that seem to have been left by the earth's space colonists or their close progeny. I hope to visit Baalbek, Cairo, the fortresses in Sardinia that seem to have been blasted at the top by a heat ray. I shall return via Madrid, Toronto, Mexico City and visit also Chichen Itza . This should give me some background for a documentary ON THE TRAIL OF THE SPACE MEN. I intend to stop in San Diego in a couple of months and would like to give you a call.

In England I am going to check out with De La Warr,and hope to become a satisfactory operator of one of his units. I believe that there is no end of the uses of that knowledge. I note that John's Hopkins and a researcher of the AMA have now made a tentative admission that there is something to RADIONICS!

In the next issue of the Digest I have what I believe to be one of the most significant UFO photo taken.....a saucer in the act of dematerialization * which was taken by a Marine Air Group Photographer over Korea.

It is my feeling that we already know the basic principles of electrical flight and that they are very simple and fundamental. I have the impression that they are just beyond my grasp.....at least one of my mind levels seems to be working on it considerably.

Painfully aware that I have not written anything for RR for these many moons. Just a river of mail that keeps piling up. Don't know what the answer is except a 50 hour day and an air-cooled-typewriter... Each RR or CQC that you put out is a miracle of "just one more" considering your difficulties.... If you have any issues of the Magic Bag, please drop me a line with price quote ---

Buffalo Courier - Express of June 2 7, '58, announces the birth of the "Belk Psychic Research Foundation" Headquarters 2 80 Park Ave., New York, N.Y.. The announcement by Director Dr. Andrija Puharich is extremely naive - but of course he is talking for the public. Assoc. E.S.S., never naive, sends us the clip. (450 Colvin Ave. Buffalo, New York)

Psychic Mystery Zone Under Study - - - - - by George W. Cornell

An exacting, new research project is getting under way today to explore unknown forces at work in human beings. Its aim is to prove, experimentally, whether man is more than a material heap of atoms.

"We want to determine if he transcends the physical world he lives in," said Dr. Andrija Puharich, the projects' research director. "This problem is the next, big frontier in human learning." An advisory board of clergymen, philosophers, businessmen, Psychologists and others joined this month in launching the undertaking.

Could Revitalize Religion

The board chairman is William Henry Belk Jr., of Atlanta, head of a chain of about 350 Southern department stores. As he sees it, the long-range results could revitalize religion by amassing laboratory proof of its validity. "I think there'll be a breakthrough on this thing in a few years," he said. "Think what it would mean to the preachers if we could establish absolute evidence of a supernatural power. "It would give them some strong ammunition to shoot with." As the opening wedge into this zone of mystery, the project plans extended investigations, by strict scientific methods, into the obscure realm of extrasensory perception. This includes such controversial psychic phenomena as: "Precognition" - awareness of events before they occur; "Clairvoyance" - discerning existing objects never seen; "telepathy" - thought transference. "There has been le ss sound research in this field than any area of human concern", Dr. Pukarich said. "One obstacle is that everybody thinks something phony is going on whenever you start testing these enigmas."

Rigid Scientific Procedures

The project, called the Belk Psychic Research Foundation, is setting up headquarters at 280 Park Ave., New York, with plans to bring internationally-known investigators to this country to take part. Dr. Puharich, a Northwestern University-trained medical scientist and veteran clinical researcher, emphasized the studies will be under rigid laboratory procedures, detached from any religious connotations. " It only complicates the issue to see any long-time tieup with religion," he said. "We simply want to develop reliable, factual data to try to establish whether man has potentials beyond his physical senses, or whether these abilities are somehow related to the rest of the physical world." Belk, in laying the groundwork for the project, already has invested about $30,000 combining the field in this country and abroad, and recruiting cooperation of specialists and authorities.

"There are a lot of frauds in this field," he said, "but we've moved slowly, and got people we're sure of. We don't want any hokum." A key subject for the experiments will be Peter Hurkos, a Dutch psychic, employed under a five-year contract. A one-time housepainter, his unexplained insights have mystified European experts - and himself.

Responses Beyond the Known

Dr. Puharich, who has run some preliminary tests on him and others, said he's convinced that human beings have intelligent responses outside any known senses. "But where it fits into the scheme of nature, I don't know," he said. "Some leap to the conclusion it is something supernatural. Others attribute it to a level of physical energy we haven't been able to put our finger on." He said it is hoped the new program of careful, systematic investigation can contribute toward the still-distant answer, and help man "know himself." "It's the question our modern scientific age still hasn't got around to," he said.

Anyone on Other End?

"Belk sees a direct link with religion. He is the son of a late philanthropist who helped build hundreds of Presbyterian churches in the South. H e said: "For years, people have accepted faith as true because their forefathers said it was. They pray without knowing whether there's anyone on the other end of the line. Thatôs not enough. My theory is that religion can be proved by the scientific method."

UFO CRITICAL BULLETIN - Sao Paulo, Brazil, S.A.. J. Escobar Faria, Editor.
(Well, we've been expecting something like this - but the daily press prints worse):

" We don't know by what patterns behave such extra-terrestrial beings, and whether they are coming from a single or several planets. Of course I'm not accepting such alleged contacts - I'm only discussing their colorful patterns and trying a classification... What did happen wouldn't be, perhaps, some unusual form of behaviour unknown for us? Would they be real aggressors? Maybe yes, maybe not. For instance: recently occurred an alleged contact between a Brazillan farmer and midget creatures (not precisely monsters); the UFO stalled his tractor, and landed. After, he was compelled inside the UFO to copulate with a little woman. He did it (he had no chance); after, the woman pointed him, herself, and finally the sky (her planet of course) indicating that she will have a child in other world from their sexual relations. This farmer suffered, without harm, a previous little blood analysis, and had all his body cleaned by some sort of oil; all this before the forced copulation. This case is indeed a new and strange pattern into my classification - little creatures but not monsters; a compelled sexual act; the contactee wasn't injured but was useful as a human guinea pig for extra-terrestrial beings.

"Nobody knows, even psychiatrists, what is happening into the popular mind of this atomic age. Would be true such amazing accounts, or are we dealing with a mental aberration disseminated all over the world. "

MAX LONG : NEWSLETTER III of Aug. 1, '58 (pg. 5). Re. Col. Powell on Huna

IN THE "PSYCHIC OBSERVER" magazine, of June 10th is more notice of Huna. It is in a review of Alex Erskine's book, "A HYPNOTIST'S CASE BOOK" (Wilshire Book Co., 8721 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood 46, Calif. 124 pages. Price $1.00), and again, the reviewer is our Col. Powell. He gives four columns of review on this important book written by a widely experienced hypnotist, and in mentioning the cases one after another in which something important was accomplished or learned, HRA Powell tells in detail of the man whom Erskine found standing completely hypnotized before a four-foot snake in a cabin in the Canadian woods. The man did not respond when shouted at, and was in a state of trance as he stood facing the snake, its head reared and its tongue darting in and out. Erskine killed the snake, and at once the friend came out of the trance although he could not be convinced that there had been a snake present until its dead body was displayed. (This checks very well with the experience of one of the women HRAs who forced herself to try to overcome her fear of snakes by going into a zoo and staring eye to eye at a large snake - only to fall into a mesmeric trance and be picked up unconscious from the floor. (As I remarked in my book, "SELF-SUGGESTION", snakes were the first of the world's mesmerists.)

Col. Powell does Huna a great service in his review by writing about the Huna theory covering hypnosis. I take the liberty of quoting the pertinent passage:

"I have presented, fairly I hope, the author's (Erskine's) theory regarding the sub-conscious mind. Personally, I do not accept the theory that the sub-conscious mind is the real 'soul' or 'ego' of a person. I think that the Huna theory makes far more sense in stating that the sub-conscious mind is that of a separate and distinct entity, known in Huna as the 'Low Self.' This difference of opinion on the precise nature of the sub-conscious, however, does not detract from the value or significance of the particular cases of hypnosis that I have cited.

"No matter which theory you hold, you still have to get into touch with the sub-concious, and then persuade, induce or command it to carry out the instructions it is given. I hope soon to write more fully on the general Huna position, which at present seems to me to be more efficacious, upon which to base one's technique, than any other theory I know of, regarding the sub-conscious mind."

Sorry, but we must not pilfer more from Max Long's admirable News Letter. Send him a card of inquiry re the Huna publications: P.O. Box 875, Vista, California.

"Mat" and "Demat" Again : from The Coming of the Space Ships, (Astounding eye-witness accounts) by Gavin Gibbons, The Citadel Press New York, 1958 price $3.50

There is another explanation of this power of appearing and disappearing at will. I myself think it very likely that U.F.O.'s are capable of dematerialisation. It is generally supposed that all consciousness is due to the matter observed being on the same wavelength as the person who perceives it. Sound is the result of waves of different lengths. Colour, too, is composed of waves, but of much shorter length than of sound. If it were possible to change to a different set of wavelengths, then life on Earth, as we know it, would be impossible. If the vibrations were radically altered, it would even be possible to co-exist in the same space as an object an animal, or a human being. To be able to change this vibration artificially would be to possess the power of vanishing and appearing at will. It is clear that those who control or even fly in these strange craft have mastered this power - which is the only possible explanation of the things that observers such as I have seen.
