Editorial

The greatestand most clever anti "Flying Saucer' campaign of all times is now underway. This is, without a doubt, the best planned propaganda campaign ever used to hold down the truth about the Saucers. You have probably read some of the articles already written ridiculing mental telepathy, Saucer sightings and the little men stories. The latest one involves the "Green Fireballs" which is one of the greatest white lies I have ever heard of or seen. More about this later.

You may ask yourself, "Why the ridicule program now? There havn't been many Saucer sightings."

The Saucer sightings are on the increase. Landing reports are on the increase, along with reports of little green men. I should like to state here and now, don't laugh at the reports of little green men being seen around the country. Although you have not read about them in your newspaper, they are still taking place. In reporting this, I am not attempting to dramatize the issue. We are merely trying to give you the facts. One case involving little men has been published in this issue. Further accounts are available and will be published in the Review if at all possible.

To hide the truth of the entire Saucer issue, the powers to be are throwing at the American people one of the biggest lie campaigns in the history of the country. Unlike the news of Saucer sightings and landings, this propaganda is being spread throughout the country via the major newswire services.

The main purpose of this campaign is to squash the news of the present Saucer survey. On top of that, they are attempting to build a wall of resistance against the expected "mass" survey in 1956. This will be the year when Mars moves to within 35,000,000 miles of Earth. And, little known to the public, Venus will pass within 25,000,000 miles of Earth, 10,000,000 miles closer than Mars. From the information which we have recieved, this campaign will probably last until the first of the year.

During this time, newspapers, radio and television will be used to squash the truth.

Much of the ridicule campaign is being aimed directly at Saucer magazines. To date this has been the only means available to the public to obtain information involving the Saucers. Such ridicule may force a few editors of Saucer magazines to "chicken out." Not all of them will comply.

On August 25th, General Carl Spatz, former chief of staff of the U.S. Air Force said that the "Flying Saucers" come from peoples imaginations, not distant planets. He expressed belief that "Flying Saucers" will start to appear again because the peoples imaginations will make them appear. When asked about eyewitness reports on Saucers from Air Force personnel the general added: "Well, pilots have imaginations, too."

(Note: On August 24th, Saucers were chased by jet fighters over Cincinnati, Ohio.)

On August 25th, Captain Robert White, a member of the Saucer investigating staff at Wright Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio said that the consensus of Americans who have reported seeing invaders from outer space in the past four years is that: 1. The space visitors are little guys, less than four feet tall. 2. They are greenish. 3. They usually glow, especially if excited. 4. Often they smell.

The Captain said that after four years of investigation, he did not believe that any spacemen had landed here.

(Note: Reports of these little men have been received from all parts of the world, and their descriptions tally.)

On September 13, Dr. La Paz, director of the University of New Mexico's Institute of Meteoritics, said the "Green Fireballs" were test missiles made of ice. These missiles would be used by a "shrewd opponent" in a test war against this country. La Paz said an ice projectile could be shot from a plane at a high altitude many miles away from the U. S.

Doctor La Plaz does not say how these projectiles of ice would be shot from the plane. Being that there isn't a piece of fieldartillery big enough to shoot anything from the area of the north pole to any part of this country, I am slightly lost as to how this would be done. Possibly from a giant slingshot. The speed of the fireballs is almost equal to that of a meteor. Friction against such an ice projectile would melt it in a matter of seconds if it were traveling the speed of the fireballs.

Presuming that this shrewed opponent was operating in the area of the north pole, would Doctor La Paz please account for the fireballs which have been seen traveling from south to north, east to west and west to east. Just why would these balls of ice burn a fiery green? Possibly from their overheating caused by the long journey from the north pole.

After reading many statements made by Doctor La Paz in reference to the green fireballs, I find it hard to believe that he voluntarily let his name be used in connection with such a bold statement.

The results of this anti Saucer campaign will be confusion, confusion and more confusion. The readers of the review may be sure of one thing. You will get the news as it happens. You have a right to know what is going on.

Little Men With Indirect Lighting Glow Green All Over Kentucky Farm

August 22nd. Hundreds of curiosity seekers tramped across Cecil Sutton's farm today after the Sutton's said "little green men paid them a visit last night.

Sutton, his family and several relatives said they were up all night fending off the little men who, they said, glowed with an inner illumination. Kentucky state police and sherrif's officers investigated the weird reports, but were unable to find any trace of the "space visitors."

"That is because they used lights all over the place," Sutton said, "you can't see them except in the dark. When asked if they expected the space men to return, Mrs. Sutton said: "That's what I'm skittedy about. They might be back."

The Suttons told this story: About 7:30 Sunday evening , a visiting relative went to a well near the home and came back to the house excitedly talking of a "Space Ship" in a nearby field. A few minutes earlier a "little green man" approached the house, they said. "He was about three feet tall, with eyes like saucers and set about six inches apart with hands like claws and glowing all over," Sutton said.

About five feet from the door of the house he stopped and retreated when the Suttons fired a shotgun off into the air, Sutton said. But soon he returned, and the Suttons fired at him. The creature fell down from the blast, and then ran off into the fields. Later more of the men returned and climbed about the trees and on the roof of the house. After about three hours, the Suttons ran for their car and went into Hopkinsville to call the sheriff. The police officers said there definitely was no one drinking at the Sutton home.

July 14th. Miami, Florida--Was it a meteorite, a comet or a space ship which flashed across the sky over Miami? The bright ball of fire was reported by airplanes as far apart as Houston, Texas, and San Juan, P.R., approximately 2,000 miles. Some insisted it was not a natural phenomenon but most agreed it was a red-orange ball with a long white tail and traveled from east to west. Estimates of its height ranged from treetop level to thirty miles. One witness who was fishing from a seawall, said it was a ship with an elongated body and a dome top. Several others agreed with him.

Following this report we recieved this eye-witness report of the same sighting.

A Navy celestial expert said that the baffling bright object streaking across the skies on July 14th was not a meteorite, hinting broadly it was a man-made machine from outer space. The witness said the glowing tear-shaped object was "not made on this earth," and said he computed its speed at an estimated 63,000 miles per hour. "It's the first thing I've ever seen in the skies I couldn't explain," he said. He refused to guess exactly what it might have been. Yet he said it "was not a star, planet, airplane or rocket."

The witness is commander of the Navy's super-secret air development squadron at Key West, and an authority in astrological sciences.

While driving his wife and three children home, he spotted the object on the night it was seen throughout south Florida. By scientific computation he said the object was 800 feet in diameter and about forty miles above the earth. He believes the object was stationary. "It's interesting to note that the earth's orbital velocity is about 64,000 statute miles an hour. Hence, the object probably was a "fly-by" which the earth passed. He pointed out that the object passed in a straight line, with no visible tail, such as seen on comets.

Official government meteorologists have not identified the object, nor have they expressed opinions about its appearence.

The witness said the object had a solid appearance with almost a white light. "It was very discernible but not bright," he said. "It had more of a silvery glow."

July 18th. Hollywood, Florida--A woman witnessed a large ball of fire with sparks coming from the rear. Civilian Defense officials said it was a comet falling over the area. (Note: There is no such thing as a falling comet)

July 21st. Norristown, Pa.--Several witnesses watched a strange object which was described at first sight as being red in color and "like a hamburger roll." Later, the color of the moving object changed to green and took on an appearance of the shape of a "dunce cap." The object could be seen for about a half an hour before it disappeared.

July 26th. Chicago, Illinois--A mysterious object landed among six children playing volleyball last night. The kids are sure it came from outer space.

The children's father said: "We were sitting in the yard, the kids playing, when a blue thing with a yellow tail streaked through the sky. It landed right in the middle of my kids--might have killed one of them." "My boy came running over and said, 'Daddy, we've got a message container from a "Flying Saucer". We're going to open it.'

"I told him he'd been reading to many comic books."

The children smashed the thirty pound object with a sledge hammer and found nothing inside.

The object was described as about the size of a volleyball, mushroom shaped with a hard, spongy look like molten rock and metal all blended together. It smelled burnt and was smoking when his children brought it to him.

July 28th. Scotia, Nebraska--Witnesses watched a strange object flying about 35,000 to 40,000 feet in the air, had two V-shaped wings, and was about the size of the wing tip of one of the large six motored planes (possibly a B-36) which have been over this area. The object was following one of these planes, then circled it and took off at great speed toward the southwest.

July 28th. Fostertown, New York--Reports of a strange light in the sky which kept circling over the Fostertown area for about half an hour and then suddenly disappeared when a jet plane arrived on the scene was still unexplained.

Stewart Air Force Base officials said they could give no explanation of the occurance.

Between 10 and 10:30 p.m. a white light, with an occasional red flareup, was seen circling over El Cortijo summer hotel. The strange light was first reported by a group of children, guests at the resort. The children then notified several of the adult guests, who at first disbelieved the account. However, one of them went outdoors and saw the light, which he said was not falling nor was it a fireball. It was high in the sky, and was the size of a star and kept going around in circles.

Finally the other guests at the resort, some 75 in all, also took a look at the strange light. At that point the manager of the boarding house telephoned Stewart Air Force Base officials. Shortly thereafter, a jet plane arrived on the scene and the strange light disappeared straight up into the sky.

August 2nd. Alton, Illinois--A woman witness reported a strange object in the sky. It was like a star except that it definitely emitted green light and sometimes the color changed to a pink-red or back to the yellow glow of a star. It seemed to move up and down and sideways for short distances. She watched it for two hours, and concluded it was not a plane, since it remained in the same area and its color and apparent movement seemed to rule out the likelihood it was a star.

August 2nd. Richmond, Calif.--Mysterious balls of fire--this time in triplicate--were seen early today flashing upward over San Francisco bay by two Richmonders.

One of the witnesses, a member of the Air Force, saw the white ball about 3:08 a.m. They said they remembered the time particularly because he checked the clock in the auto in which they were sitting. He said the white ball was equipped with red, white and green lights. It was going east at about a 45 degree angle upwards.

"At first we thought it was a plane. Then as the lights began to fade out, it split into three parts. Each part was a white ball of fire and went in a different direction and faded out. Then we knew it wasn't a plane."

August 2nd. Near Walla Walla, Washington--Several hundred people between Dixie, Oregon and the state line observed an object in the sky east of Walla Walla. The nearby air base received more than fifty calls, it was reported. It was described as a ball of fire by a man in Dixie, an orange-ish thing by a youngster, luminous by a woman near the state line and many others referred to it as a light or white object.

"Had any calls on a "Flying Saucer?" one man asked. "Is it something from outer space?" another inquired.

"What's that bright light hanging in the eastern sky?" a lady asked. "Cars are stopping on the road while drivers watch it."

One man reported he had been hiking in the mountains under it, hoping it would fall. But it moved northward, he said, and kept its altitude.

Most intriguing description called it a strange speck with another speck flying around it. The one in the middle could be seen with the naked eye, the caller stated, but the one flying around it could only be seen through glasses.

Another witness said the object was giving off light, that it had three specks of light in it.

Most observers agreed it was remaining in the same place in the air, not progressing in any direction.

Tomorrow

by

W.C. Feavler

In these days where the influx of the ever new, is accentuated by the tempo of modern science, man is beginning to realize life is but a series of suprises. In the gloom of what lies ahead, science relentlessly toils to solve the riddle of life and envoirment. With a broadened scope realizing of late that the destiny of man cannot be defined by confined earthly deductions, science branches out to confront the mysteries of space. To these men of knowledge, we should give our sincere gratitude. For those who would condemn science for the H-Bomb, let them realize this abhorance is also capable of maintaining peace. Let them also acknowledge the bontiful pleasures, necessities and conveniences derived from a minority of men who realized an open mind leads to discovery.

How remote discoveries of today, shall appear to the children of tomorrow. How distant will present day concept seem to the passengers enroute to the moon and points out? Will not the pace of space travel bury beliefs of today like a breeze on a sunny day dims the memories of a cloudy yesterday? Many are asking--need we wait for the enrollment of evolution to participate in the wonders of tomorrow--or is it possible science will be aided by an intervention of higher intelligence from another planet.

It is our contention that the dawn of this tomorrow is breaking, that a smooth course over the rocky terrain of progress is being offered and far too many are unaware of it. However if the mass reports of "Saucer Visions" are to continue, the vai of ignorance will rapidly be lifted. Oddly enough the people receiving these visions are usually stron skeptics. It would seem that in this subtle manner, an intense orientation is taking place. On several occasions where visions were taken lightly, a series followed until the dreamer was thoroughly convinced that such persistant and systematic intervention could not be the product of actual dreaming.

It is to be noted of late many articles have appeared proclaiming the dire results of telepathy. Some have gone as far to state telepathy leads to insanity. Considering the very few that practice telepathy, why the warning? Surely this is not a concentrated attack on Dunninger. This man endowed with E.S.P. appears remarkably sane. If these rebutals be part of the great isolation campaign, they may be somewhat successful in depreciating reception of vision and telepathy from outer space, but they shall not be able to stop the transmitting.

This transmission is said to occur at the approach of slumber where the ability to reason becomes hazy whereby the mind is capable of passing from the world of material into another world not restricted by time and matter. Anyone having experienced this, may contact us without fear of ridicule.

There is reason to believe many of you have had or will have a demonstration of this phenomena, which while eluding scientific explanation, exists as mans first communication with the inhabitants of other worlds.

August 3rd. Gloucester, Mass.--A witness reported that while walking along a road at about ten o'clock one evening, a strange object suddenly appeared out of "nowhere". The object was about two feet long and was moving at a slow rate of speed and was very close to the ground.

"It was a gorgeous blue and at first I thought it was a firecracker. It was like a big star and the light in the center was a beautiful blue," she said.

It was moving in a straight line and then it just disappeared.

August 3rd. Lawrence, Mass.--Two residents insist they saw a bright yellow light in the sky about 9 p.m. The light was traveling at a good rate of speed and had a glowing tail attached to it. It disappeared from view after a short time but not before the two witnesses got a good description of it. They said it was definitely not a falling star nor the airline flight which comes over the city at about that time but are sure it was a Saucer of some type.

August 3rd. Fresno, Calif.--The latest person to see an object flitting through the atmosphere over Fresno was a weather observer stationed at the federal weather bureau at the Fresno Air Terminal. The observer said the object he saw was round, silver colored and moving through the skies at a regular rate of speed. Early that same day a photographer reported sighting a mysterious speeding light over Fresno.

The observer added he has been with the weather bureau for 17 years and while he has seen other UFO's this one caused the greatest question in his mind. The chief of the Fresno weather bureau station said he is one of his most reliable observers. He believes in the stories of so called "Flying Saucers" because "too many good observers have seen them."

He was making observations of a weather balloon about 1:30 p.m. when the object passed through his field of view against the wind.

"I was sighting through a theodolite at a pilot balloonwhen the object passed close by the balloon." He said the balloon was at 30,000 feet. He explained a theodolite is a low powered telescope used for sighting on balloons and determining wind velocities aloft and other weather data.

"I followed the object for 20 to 30 seconds," he added. "It moved away at a regular speed" I had no way of estimating its distance but it must have been up somewhere near the balloon. It appeared about one fourth or one third the size of the balloon, which is six feet in diameter. "I don't know what it was but it was sharply outlined against the sky.

August 3rd. Charlotte, N. C.--A housewife was hanging out the wash in her back yard around 10 o'clock when three black objects that looked like eels appeared in the northeast sky. She said the objects--a long one following two shorter ones--climbed into the sky and disappeared. Then they re-appeared, carrying out this maneuver about four times before climbing out of sight for the final time. The maneuvering lasted about four minutes. She said the objects did not appear to have engines and made no noise. She called both the Air Filter center and the U. S. Weather Bureau to learn the identity of the objects, but had no success.

August 3rd. Norristown, Pa.--An orange and green object was seen racing across the sky, then plunge toward the groung and disappear. It first appeared as an orange streak, then changed to a green color similar to a traffic color signal before disappearing.

August 4th. Clarksburg, W. Va.--For two nights strange objects have been reported visible near the moon. One witness said that there was a trail similar to that usually left by a jet plane, near the moon. From the ground it appeared to be about a block in length. She said that other witnesses near her home who saw it declared that there was no jet plane noise.

August 4th. Monterey, Calif.--The mystery of the pieces of plastic which have been raining over the Sacramento area in recent days was explained to the satisfaction of many, but others clung stubbornly to the belief there is more to the story. Most residents were willing to accept the explanation that the pieces of plastic, some as big as 12 by 14 feet, were remnants of disintegrated weather balloons.

Residents have reported finding the strips of plastic in a number of locations in Sacramento County and one was reported to have fallen in a palm tree in the park surrounding the state capitol. One witness retrieved a large piece from the Sacramento River after he said he saw it floating down to earth. Others reported seeing the pieces descending from the sky.

But some officials of the weather bureau were not too sure the plastic was from weather balloons. For one thing the material was not of the type used in most weather balloons, and they were large to have come from most balloons.

Also, there was no explanation as to why the Sacramento area suddenly should become the "target" for the falling strips. Whatever the explanation, practical-minded Sacramentans were making the best of the situation. Some were using the strips of plastic for automobile covers, table covers, shower curtains, or tents for the youngsters.

August 4th. East St. Louis, Ill.--A woman saw a strange object stationary in the sky for 15 minutes. Then it streaked off, faster than any jet. She said she and a neighbor were chatting on her front porch and went down on the steps to see a pair of jet planes roar past. As they looked up, her neighbor spotted the object, "just a shining speck in the sky."

At first they thought it was a weather balloon, she said, but its metallic appearance and the speed with which it disappeared ruled that out. Others joined them until three men and three women were in the yard craning their necks. She added, "A couple of the men weren't able to see it." Another woman had seen a strange object the night before.

August 5th. Hammond, Indiana--Reports of four "flying shoe boxes" in this area four night ago received support from other witnesses today. At least 19 other witnesses saw four strange lights the same night over Wolf Lake. They appeared headed for Hammond. The "lights" were traveling slowly and were about 3,000 feet in the air. They seemed to vanish over Hammond. They were positive the "lights" were not airplanes. They were unable to discern any outline of an object around the "lights". The previous report had stated the objects had an orange hue and appeared to be shaped like "shoe boxes."

Another witness said it was too dark to see what shape they were, but they had several white lights, and one light at the top seemed to be orange. They all appeared to have the same lighting and kept an even distance apart from each other. The lights were spaced too close together to be airplanes.

August 6th. Columbus, Ohio--Witnesses reported seeing a reddish-looking "ball of fire" streaking over the city at about 8:30p.m. A woman and a city fireman said that the "bright, yellow-colored light with red and green around the fringe" flashed through the sky from southeast to northwest.

One witness described the fireball as having a bright head and a dimmer tail. A report was received from Cincinnati that a similarly described fire ball was seen at 8:40 p.m.

August 9th. Berwick, Pa.--A ball of fire, about the size of an orange from the distance it was viewed, was seen at 9 o'clock streaking through the sky. It appeared to be traveling at a high rate of speed. Viewed through binoculars, it was bright orange and made no sound.

Storms, UFO's and Tables Of Stone

by

Bill Campbell

Shortly before "Storm Unusual" on the night of July 15th (North of Seattle) made headlines, a message was received by one of the many who possesses an undetermined amount of "ESP" scientifically referred to as extra-sensory preception.

Out of the depths of somewhere in the mind a masculine voice had spoken, "I'm coming through, don't worry, you are not going to be hurt."

Uneasy about this quirk of intellect, a thought was entertained in respect to UFO relationships and some of the mysterious things launched against the earth from unknown points in space.

A few facts about such phenomena can be found in Case 225 in the governmental summary about "Flying Saucers" for 1949. The crux of the affair happened at Albuquerque, New Mexico, when a strange reddish light came in at 500 feet, suddenly dropped down to 200 feet and exploded in a red ray. The same thing happened on three other nights at the same hour and the same place. With red spray, green fireballs, hunks of ice, stones and debris erratically bombarding the earth from no one knows where--when might what drop on whom--was a disturbing thought. In the pace of everyday routine the message was temporarily forgotten.

Blue light zig-zagged deep into the night sky to the southeast over Puget Sound and beyond. Thunder rumbled in the distance as a man watched the storm approach, comforted by a carelessly expressed idea that thunder showers never do much damage in Western Washington.

The storm passed through with dazzling flashes of lightning. Blasts of thunder rocked the neighborhood close after midnight. Fuses were blown, lights, telephones, electric fencers, clocks, radios and switches took an electrical beating. The man was not actually "hurt", but he had sufficient facts that necessitated some consideration be given the "ESP" voice and the storm. He wondered if the storm was taken over and controlled by some space intelligence or if it were plain coincidence.

He has Dr. George R. Price, research associate at the University of Minnesota who is now writing in Science Magazine about Mental Telepathy, clairvoyance and other psychic phenomena, to help him decide it was a coincidence or a result of some error of the human mind. Still, there may be a few others who do not wish Minnesota's learned doctor of research to get away with the assertion entirely, so it is to be hoped, as a side issue of course, that some of the pebbles from the nearby Mississippi River or a volume or so of Science Magazine "bops" the professor out of a clear sky just to help him in matters of research and alter his opinion about all believers in clairvoyance and other psychic phenomena as being "guilty of human error or deliberate fraud."

But to get to the facts of the case, the man thought about numerous peculiar incidents in his life time that did not agree with conventional scientific sense. Exploring writings from the remote past, if you will, study the ancient document that depicts "two tables of stone." A brief review of that ancient script illustrates a few events that transpired several thousand years ago. They are not amiss at this time for they easily conform to the claim of current writers that the UFO's have had us under observation for a thousand years or more.

One significance attached to the reference is by the act of a man when he stretched his hand toward space and "was answered with thunder and hail upon the land of Egypt." This man was given two tables of stone, we are told. On the mountain where communication was made with advanced space intelligence there were thunders and lightning and a thick cloud. Records show, accept it or not, that someone descended upon it in fire and the whole mount quaked greatly and there was smoke that ascended as the smoke of a furnace.

Now examine a more recent record dated 1697 in "The Case for the UFO" by M.K. Jessup, page 105. "A horrid black cloud, attended by frequent lightnings, was precursor of a violent hail storm, animals were killed, crops ruined, and people had their heads broken. The breadth of the cloud was about two miles. The hail stones were some round, some semispherical and others were embossed and crenclated like the foot of a drinking glass, the ice being very transparent and hard.

Before making a hasty conclusion one might ask, "What kind of people inhabited the area and what were their occupations?" One might question further as to whether or not both antagonistic and beneficial intelligences in the stratosphere have access to forces for the movement of storms, especially tornadoes and hurricanes that hit the Mid-West and East Coast seemingly in retalliation for atomic explosions reaching skyward into space to places we know not where. It is conceivable that which ever space intelligence wins out for the control of storms--where control is a desired feature by either--can harness its energy for good or evil depending upon humanity's ability to emonate energy. Man's emission of electro-magnetic brain waves for good or evil might be picked up in space, amplified, and turned back to earth in a capacity to spend a force that reflects the corrupt and violent thoughts sent out by aggressive groups of the worlds populace.

Since the atomic outrages of the century, the beneficial forces in space may by turning against observed spots on the earth's surface. World wide hopes for peace are stifled by rival contenders for seats of power. Citizens of the earth are taxed until they are paupers in the idiotic race to arm the military to the teeth. It is permissible to contend that those who loaned us the earth so that we might acquire wisdom are in a position to destroy it if trends keep careening towards atomic violence.

Much of the foregoing is theory, yet some of it may be truth of one's own choosing; but it is an established fact that physical scientists have measured and graphed the function of human minds to emit electrical brain waves.

Many references by Mr. Jessup stimulates one to prospect in a return of the ancients. His treatise on strange clouds that might camouflage the identity of something is alone sufficient to stimulate our curiosity

Consider the Maury Island mystery in the light of "thunderous clouds", the unusual storm of July 15th, the fiery visitor (Green Fireball) on July 20th, the ancient tables of stone, and the case is reopened for speculation.

Assume the skycraft came from space and had recently arrived when sighted by Harold Dahl. For two reasons each machine carried its own air foil. First, the metal covering was to retard congestion by physical matter as a by product of propulsion in our atmosphere. Second, the light metal hid the identity of the pilots of the machine. The light weight air foil could have been aluminum. Further consideration suggests some accident or attack on the machine in transit through space that cause a failure in the exhaust mechanism that plugged the crippled machine with physical matter. The condensation of "slag" behind the storage of the air foil forced the dumping of the sheets of metal prior to clearing out the lava like residue recognized as slag that appeared similar to that from a smelter's furnace. The square or rectangular rivet noted by Kennith Arnold may be a clue to a fact that the metal shown really did come from the machine described by Dahl and was not manufactured on earth as might have been concluded. From a technical view point, is there any advantage to be obtained from a rectangular rivet than ones ordinarily used?

The account from Dahl states, "the center aircraft began spewing forth what seemed like thousands of newspapers, from somewhere on the inside of its center. These newspapers, which turned out to be a white type of very light metal, fluttered to earth most of them lighting in the bay."

The skycraft Crisman saw dive into a thunderhead the next day may have returned to salvage the metal it needed for its air foil and camouflage. If the metal had been mounted to shield the center of the machine from cooling air currents, slag would not have formed in sufficient weights to pull it down for a detailed survey by Dahl. By postulation one might conclude this identity was to be withheld from malicious forces not ordinarily seen in the vibratory rates below that of normal physical vision unless one is a "drunk" or drug addict. It could be a truth, that the only way low-vibration disembodied entities can acquire information of what is going on in our physical world or beyond is by associating themselves with animals and humans of varying vibratory rates.

While there is much more to this case than one first sees with a casual glance, the unfolding of a plan in earth events may produce facts that substantiate hypothesis; however, it is gratifying that the "Stranger" seen by Dahl was recognized as human when one contrasts stories of things seen and rumored in UFO reports from South America, the East Coast and elsewhere.

Collect the outstanding evidence about the "Tables of Stone", Ezekiels Wheels, unusual storms and clouds of the past and view them with respect to objects seen in the skies today and some certainty can be attached to the idea that unless differences are adjusted to conform to the laws of the universe, severe punishment may be dealt the earth. So there may have been a real motive behind the unusual storm in July. The upsets from it had hardly been removed when the startling phenomena in the form of a "Fiery Ball" plowed a parallel path thru the skies of Western Washington deceiving most persons as to where it landed.

While some thought it had broken up and fallen in Puget Sound, others thought it landed on Vashon Island, Near Maury Island where the Great Saucer Mystery unfolded. The Weather Bureau of Vancouver B.C., Canada discovered it zipping northward at 10,000 feet elevation but not dripping wet. The "Fiery Visitor" could have just dropped around to see how well the preceeding storm's electrical processes disposed of undesirable low-vibration forms that may have been filtering into low levels along the West Coast.

In 1947 it is evident that Arnold, Dahl, "Big Smithy" and others had some frightening experience with invisible forces the Army's military intelligence could not reach, and it is probable legislation won't reach them either.

It can be assumed that Dahl saw the spacecraft before they were ready to be seen; not camouflaged nor equipped for operations in our atmosphere. Later seen by Arnold and others as silver discs they were fully assembled and equipped to carry out their mission. From "The Coming Of The Saucers" page 40 there is a clue in the statement,..."the top clipping of the handful which I had barely glanced at before, mentioned cinder lava ash particles that had fallen from the sky near Mountain Home, Idaho, the twelvth day of July, 1947, after a formation of "Flying Saucers" had passed over the area. The man who picked up portions of this ash sent it to the state chemical laboratory for analysis".

Who wouldn't like to know how the ash compared to the analysis of the "slag" sent to Ray Palmer by Crisman and Dahl?

Out of the maze of possibilities furnished in this script a moral might be sighted to sharpen our wits. "We reap what we sow" and there are forces in space to account of it.

U. S. Takes Over Canada "Saucer Plane" Porject

August 23rd. Toronto, Canada--The U. S. Air Force has taken over research and development of a super-secret "Flying Saucer" fighter plane designed in Canada but abandoned by the Canadian government. It was said that a contract was signed several months ago "making the project the exclusive property of the U.S. Air Force."

The Saucer began as a private Avro Canada, Ltd., project. It captured the imagination of Canadian government officials and the government spent about $400,000 to aid in its development. Defense Minister C. D. Howe said last year, however, the chances were five to one against it proving successful.

September 15th. Washington D.C.--The U.S. Air Force announced that they have failed in their attempt to develope a noiseless jet engine.

Runaway Rocket May Be Out There

United States experimenters already have pierced outer space with guided missiles and there is a wide belief that at least one such projectile may already be circling the earth as an "uncontroled satellite."

Announcement of the plan to launch a satellite program took the lid off highly competent reports that one rocket "worked too well" and shot out into outer space.

According to these reports, this test rocket generated such an enormous and unexpected thrust that it burst free of the earths atmosphere, that it is 800 miles out traveling about 16,000 miles per hour.

August 9th. Bristol, Conn.--A local woman reported seeing three mysterious objects flying over the city at 7 o'clock, describing them as "Flying Saucers". The witness said that she and her mother and several children saw the Saucers, which she said were gold in color and appeared to be six inches in diameter. They were flying low and slow and were in view for a full two minutes. She added that the discs were soundless and appeared to be heading in the direction of Hartford.

August 10th. Las Vegas, N.M.--Unidentified lights playing over Las Vegas were spotted by at least three persons at nine oclock. The lights, seen in about eight groups of a dozen to 100 individual lights, played through the sky like blowing leaves. They would form tight formations, each light plainly visible, the size of a large leaf. A group would zoom through the air at the speed of jet planes, stop in mid-air, hang there for a few seconds, raise straight up until scarcely visible, then vanish.

At the same time another large group of the lights would whiz through the air, circle a few times, and then as they began to rise, converge until where 100 had been visible, there were only a dozen left

Or they would circle a few times, fluttering up like a loose paper in a whirlwind, then suddenly fall into the formation of two large quarter circles, spaced exactly the same distance apart, left to right. The quarter circles flew exactly the same distance apart as they climbed, then would suddenly break formation and flutter aimlessly higher, but still in a close group.

There were no individual lights flying alone. All were in clusters, or groups, flying at varied heights above the center of downtown Las Vegas.

August 11th. Ainsworth, Nebraska--Several witnesses reported seeing a bright object in the sky, which appeared to be approximately four miles to the south and just above the horizon.

They said that the object was about the size of the moon or perhaps a bit larger, and much brighter, and that it hung in the same position for approximately two hours, between 9:00 and 11:00 p.m. During short intervals the object disappeared, and when it did, spark like objects or rockets could be seen shooting northward from it

August 12th. Tucson, Arizona--Three bike-riding boys are sure they caught a glimpse of outer space travel. "A silver disc--a "Flying Saucer"--was moving slowly at the far end on the Catalina Mountains near the Rincons. They all saw it. The sun was shining on it. And then in less than three seconds it was past the other end of the Catalinas."

One boy, 13, and his two friends were riding north when they saw the shining object tilt and move.

All three boys know enough about planes and weather balloons to know that "it wasn't anything we'd ever seen before." They agreed that it seemed to be slightly smaller than a B-47. They also agreed that it gave them a very strange feeling.

August 12th. Cincinnatti, Ohio--A woman witness reports that on August 3rd. she saw a strange object in the sky. It came from nowhere, and was short lived. We called it "operation teardrop," as it gave that appearance. It tapered off to a vivid green light, and before disintegrating, it threw off sparks. It gave me the memory of the old Roman candle. Its course was straight, and only a matter of seconds, and it traveled due north, and was high in the sky.

On August 5th she witnessed another object that was on a close course to the first, the only difference being a blue light instead of a green; 15 minutes later it was seen in quite another direction, due southwest. We weren't seeing things. It's new and it's different, and I wouldn't say "Ho, hum," as 100 years ago they said things could not be. Yet we have them today!

August 13th. Eugene, Oregon--Two witnesses reported that they had watched a "silver, shiny thing" up in the sky to the north. It wasn't moving. The supervisor for the Ground Observer Corps in Eugene, was notified. He had already trained his learned eyes on the thing and bore out the story of the other witnesses. He had gone out to the airport during the morning and an employee there said, "if you want to see what these "Flying Saucers" look like, look at this."

He looked through the glasses at the airfield and there hanging high above Leaburg Lake, was the object:

"It looked like an inverted parachute," he said. "It was about 15,000 feet up and was suspended from a rectangular object. Real plain. And it wasn't moving."

Air Force officials in Seattle were notified and took recognition of the object. But the Air Force didn't identify it. "If they know what it is, they're not talking.

August 15th. Norfolk, Va.--Two witnesses reported seeing a strange glowing, yellow object flying through the air at a great speed. A woman said she, her husband and a neighbor spotted the object about five times in two hours from the yard of their home.

"It seemed at first to be a comet, with a ball of flame behind it," she said. "But the weather bureau said a comet would not return after it disappeared." She said that once when it was going away a red glow like a tail light was seen.

Another witness said that he saw a square object with a pointed nose in the sky about 9:30 p.m. "It had fire bursting out the back and it had a long tail. It was as big and bright as the moon," he said. "We watched it disappear into the west.

August 15th. Columbus, Ohio--A strange object--"ball of fire" with a green tinge--was seen shooting swiftly from east to west at about 9:40 p.m. All witnesses reported the object had a "long tail" streaming out behind it and that the ball gave out a bright light. No sound was heard. Spokesmen for Lockbourne Air Force Base said they knew of no planes that would cause such a phenomenon.

August 15th. Greenville, S.C.--A "flying something" that started a grass fire that threatened a corn crib fell on a farm at Seneca, S.C.

Several witnesses said they saw a bright object descending from the sky. It was about the size of a teacup. It fell slowly and the descent was straight down.

"We were watching a number of birds on a wire," they said. "As it neared the wire the birds scattered."

It fell to the ground, and blue smoke appeared as if a small explosion had taken place. The grass caught fire and the wind fanned the flames. They put out the fire which was headed toward a corn crib about 25 feet away. All that was found was a burned piece of what appeared to be aluminum foil about 2x3 inches.

August 18th. Columbia S.C.--A "Flying Saucer" landing was reported here. Eleven witnesses saw an object land about 10:00p.m. Ten men spent some time looking for the Saucer, but got no results. One witness said he was about seven miles south of Sumter, when he saw an object settle slowly to earth, between Sumter and Manning. He was unable to pinpoint the landing spot. He described the object as a huge disc. with lights all around it.

August 19th Oxford , Nebraska--The UFO's apparently were spotted here. This time 12 of them--Unidentified Flying Objects--were sighted by a Lincoln man between Oxford and Orleans.

Another witness is sure that a cluster of lights he saw moving across the sky wasn't anything commonplace as an airplane. "I know doggone well they were Saucers," he said. He said they looked like a cluster of white lights. They wern't airplanes, he says. There were too many of them and they were arranged in a circular pattern. They were flying low. They were moving slowly from west to east. They were in sight maybe three or four minutes. He says two companions saw the same thing he did--and insist they were "Flying Saucers", too.

Two witnesses reported that while they were driving near Phillipsburg, Kansas, south of Oxford, Nebraska, reported a flash which lighted up the sky, like a meteor or lightning. The sky was clear.

At Arapahoe, northeast of Orleans, Neb. a number of persons reported lights in the sky, moving eastward about 11 p.m. They said they saw eight objects with very bright lights which did not blink. They were headed east with one object flying faster than the others, and a loud rumble was heard.

August 23rd. Beatrice, Nebraska--The sighting of an unidentified object drifting across the sky sent Ground Observer Corps members into hast impromptu drill.

It was spotted hovering in the sky near Beatrice at about 7 a.m. By noon it had drifted to about five or six miles west of Daykin. It was estimated to be at a height of 8,000 feet.

The object was reported to the Omaha filter center and the center said planes would be sent from Lincoln Air Force Base to identify it. A plane apparently from Lincoln. Conformation that a LAFB plane had made a flight was not obtainable, however.

August 23rd. Saginaw, Michigan--A flashing luminous object was sighted in the sky over central and western Michigan. The object was sighted at 9:30 p.m. at the observation post at the Saginaw fairground. A report was sent to the Air Filter center in Grand Rapids and Air Force planes reportedly went up to investigate.

A similar object was sighted from the ground observation post at Cutlerville near Grand Rapids. A witness described the object as red and green, moving in a counter clockwise arc, blinking and with a bobbing motion.

At the observation post in Saginaw, one of the observers said definitley that the object was not an airplane. He said it had a bluish tinge and flashed red. The Saginaw observers said they sighted the object for 20 minutes in the southwestern part of the sky and that it moved slowly in a westerly direction.

A similar object was sighted recently at the ground observation post at Burt, south of Saginaw. Two observers said they have sighted the luminous object several times in the last four weeks.

Another post in central Michigan reported a similar phenomenon. The Air Force was alerted but there has been no official report on any findings. They have been quite cryptic and quiet about the matter.

August 24th. Brockton, Mass.--A luminous moving object was seen by many witnesses. The object moved slowly and neither resembled nor sounded like an airplane. Some think it might have been a "Flying Saucer" and others just don't know what it was.

Saucer Chuckle

It happened this way:

7:30 p.m.--Telephone rings in newsroom, woman's voice. "There's a "Flying Saucer" above Yakima (Wash), I just know there is. No--I won't give my name."

7:32 p.m.--Reporter checks Yakima airport. "That's sunlight reflecting off the vapor trails of a jet plane," says airport man.

7:35 p.m.--Telephone rings in newsroom, woman's voice. "What was it?" Reporter says, "Thats sunlight reflecting off the vapor trails of a jet plane."

"O", says the woman. "Well, I'm sure glad to know that. I was getting creepy all over."

End of creepiness. End of chuckle.

Ray Stanford Reporting
from
Corpus Christi, Texas

(Official Investigator & Reporter For SOL)

The following sighting was sent to me by a friend visiting in Las Vegas:

On the evening of August 14th, we observed a very strange object. There were two people with me at the time who will bear witness to what I have seen.

The time was 9:05 p.m. When we first saw this strange object we could hardly believe our eyes. It would be rather difficult to estimate it's diameter, but if you took a silver dollar and held it at arms length, the size of the coin would have covered the whole object. One of my friends was especially astounded at the fact that this strange object made no sound. Being very close, we would have heard the sound of motors or jets if there had been any. It was absolutely silent. It seemed incredible.

This strange spacecraft was dark in color. We could make out orange colored lights which were spinning around the rim of this strange object. The sighting lasted for about two minutes. "I never have believed in "Flying Saucers", but I do now." A skeptic has been convinced.

They say there's a first time for everything. Well, this was the first time I had ever seen a Saucer:

On July 10th, 1954, I was talking on the telephone when I heard quite a commotion out in my front yard. Several of my neighbors were shouting, "Ray!, come out here, there's a "Flying Saucer" over your house." Of course I didn't believe them. I was sure they were playing a joke on me as they knew of my great interest in Saucers. I continued my conversation on the phone which was continually interrupted by additional shouts. I ended my conversation and went outside to see what was causing all the commotion

It was 8:40 in the evening and there was a small group of neighbors gathered in the yard looking into the sky. Directly above them was a strange object moving in a westwardly direction at a speed which I estimated to be anywhere from fifty to two hundred miles per hour.

It seemed to be a combination of orange, yellow and white in color. By the time I got outside the strange object had been in sight for five minutes and remained visible for an additional two minutes. The object was very bright.

As it continued it's flight westward our angle of observation changed. While overhead this strange spacecraft was circular in shape, but as it moved away from us we could see it from the side. I watched it through a pair of binoculars and I could see that it was flat. It was a "circular disc."

As it was traveling westward, it suddenly stopped. After hovering for a few minutes, it changed it's course to southwest or south and continued for quite a distance. It stopped again. It hovered for a few minutes and then resumed its movement on a westward course. It gained altitude and was soon out of sight.

To say that we were all amazed would be putting it mildly. There were eleven people in the neighborhood who witnessed this spacecraft and all eleven were left speechless. You would have to be with a group of people making their first Saucer sighting to know what I mean.

After believing in them for seven years, I had finally seen one.

I did not realize at the time that this was not the last one that I would see, by far, as you will see in the coming issues of the Review

Have you ever heard anyone say, "No one has ever seen a "Flying Saucer?"

On July 11, 1954 a friend of mine, and myself, saw a cigar shaped spacecraft. At the time my friend was a true skeptic, believing that no one had ever seen such a thing.

It was a clear day, and, at the time we were not looking for Saucers. It was 4:40 in the afternoon when suddenly he changed his mind. I noticed a very strange object in the eastern sky. It was cigar shaped and it had a very strange yellowish glow surrounding it. There seemed to be a pink tinge in the center of the glow.

This strange spacecraft was nearly stationary when I first noticed it. I pointed it out to my skeptic friend and said: "What's that?" After having a good look he admitted it must be a "Flying Saucer."

After being nearly stationary, it began to move south. This strange spacecraft was in view for about four minutes. This was the first "flying cigar" that I have ever seen, and believe me, it was an interesting sight to see.

This cigar shaped object was clearly outlined. I reported it to the proper authorities and they informed me that they had no balloons up at the time and that if it had been a balloon it would have been traveling east at the time. This object was traveling south. Anyway, this object was not shaped like a balloon. It was elliptical. The sun did not reflect off this object. While it moved, it remained in a tilted position.

That's it for now. See you next month.

Spectacular Sighting Reported

The story which you are about to read has reached us second hand. We have been in posession of this report for several months, hoping that we could get the original witnesses to come forth and make an official statement as to what they had seen. The two young men involved in this spectacular sighting have refused to come forth for fear of criticism and for no other reason. Previous to the time that we were told of this sighting, the entire incident was told to a very close friend of the two witnesses involved. Hearing of our club, this fine gentlman called me to his office. After putting me through a short but blunt third degree about myself and the club, he passed on to me the full story as it was told to him.

The third degree was not just one sided. I learned enough about this man to be sure he was not passing on to me a wild story to bring publicity to himself. He had no opinion of the Saucers, pro or con. He made that very clear.

I believe he was sincere and honest in the whole matter. He requested that his name not be used.

The scene was a lake south of Seattle, Washington. (He could not remember the name.) The two witnesses involved were young men not yet in their twenties. It was early in the morning, not quite daybreak. The two boys were very busy preparing their gear for, what they had hoped would be a very successful fishing trip.

After getting their rod's reel's, line etc. into the boat, they both prepared to push the boat off the beach into the water. It was a clear morning. By now the daylight was breaking over the Cascade Mountains to the east. As they were about to push the boat into the water, one of the boys looked up. What he saw stunned him so that he could hardly move. His partner wasn't much less shocked as they both stood there with their mouths open, speechless.

Hovering directly over their heads, not more than one hundred feet in the air was a mysterious object which they had never seen or heard of before. This strange craft had dropped out of the sky, stopped in mid-air, and hovered there without making a sound. They had a perfect view of this strange craft. There was enough light in the sky to see perfectly. It was circular shaped, in a disc shaped form. It had a transparent dome on top, and large buttons or portholes around the edge of this strange spacecraft. It was metalic, there was no doubt about that.

Now comes the clincher. Attention skeptic aircraft engineers. This spacecraft had no rivits and had no visible seams. It was perfectly smooth, just like glass.

Apparently the people in control of this disc had seen enough. It began to move. The two boys watched this craft as it circled the edge of the lake, never leaving the view of their four astonished eyes which followed it in it's smooth, and continued noisless flight.

After making a complete circle of the lake it banked and started across the lake at about the halfway point. Upon reaching what would be about the middle of the lake, it stopped and hovered again.

The two boys noticed one thing in particular at this point. The spacecraft cast a shadow on the water. They were sure now, beyond any doubt. The object was solid.

It began to move after hovering for a few minutes. With absolutely no sound this craft sped off over the trees, causing them to swing back and forth. It was gone, out of sight in a few seconds.

The two boys estimated the size of the disc to be between 100 and 150 feet in diameter.

There you have it. I wish to repeat. This story was told to me by a person who had it told to him by the two witnesses. These witnesses have refused to make themselves known. The decision to believe or disbelieve this story is with you, the reader.

The "Flying Saucer" Book Review

The "Flying Saucer" Conspiracy
by
Major Donald E. Keyhoe
(USMC, Ret.)

Startling New Developments In An Old Controversy

In a step-by-step analysis, The Flying Saucer Conspiracy shows how the facts about Unidentified Flying Objects are kept from most Americans, including many government officials, senators, and congressmen. Major Keyhoe, through diligent field work, has secured much new and important information on the "Flying Saucer" problem. His data leads to one clear conclusion: The Answer Is Definitely Known In Washington.

"More than 10,000 sightings have been reported," says England's Air Chief Marshall Lord Dowding, "the majority of which cannot be accounted for by any scientific explanation. I am convinced these objects exist and that they come from some extra-terresterial source." So are hundreds of thousands of people in every portion of the world.

The Flying Saucer Conspiracy is not a hysterical agglomeration of wild claims. It is a sober, logical attempt to get at the facts. It is doubtful that any reader of the book, whether he agrees with Major Keyhoe's conclusions or not, can disagree with the integrity of its method.

Here is an appropriate follow-up to "Flying Saucers From Outer Space", which sold 60,000 copies in the trade edition. Major Keyhoe, believes that the American people should know the truth about Flying Saucers. His new book tells them.
