OUR SEVENTEENTH VOLUME.

OUR first duty in announcing the commencement of a new Volume, especially when, as in the present case, such commencement coincides with the beginning of a new year, is the very pleasurable one of wishing our readers all the good things they can possibly wish for themselves during the one just opened. During the past few years we have apparently not had such bright prospects in store for us as when peace abroad and contentment at home were the order of the day, and we can only hope that the expression of hearty good wishes, whether one-sided or reciprocal, may exercise some sort of magic influence in bringing about the object with which they are uttered. Our next duty is to convey to our readers, in terms the most loyal, our thanks for the support we have received at their hands, a support so freely extended as to justify us in the belief that it will be forthcoming so long as we continue to show ourselves worthy of it. It goes without saying that it is no easy task to continue year after year supplying a regular weekly budget of Masonic news and criticism that shall satisfy the tastes, we will not say of every class of reader, but of the majority of readers. It cannot be said that Lodge reports are universally interesting, and now and again there comes a time when there is a comparative cessation of activity in Masonic circles, and then, of course, the said Lodge reports are, to use a homely, but familiar simile, very much like the raisins in a workhouse plum pudding, but few and far between. Again, it happens not infrequently that the course of Masonry runs on so smoothly and harmoniously that the difficulty we experience is to find anything worth criticising, and criticisms, it will be universally allowed, cannot be invented unless there be something to evoke them. In this case also, there invariably follows a dearth of correspondence, especially as there appears to prevail on the part of members of our Fraternity an unwillingness to air their grievances, whether real or imaginary, by means of letters addressed to one or other of their representative organs. A diary of Lodge meetings is most decidedly useful, and even, indeed, necessary, but it is the reverse of attractive reading. Yet, in spite of these difficulties, by which every Masonic paper must be surrounded, we seem to have jogged along during a period of eight years, and, accordingly, we comfort ourselves with the belief that our readers must have derived a certain amount of satisfaction from the perusal of our columns. At all events, as the Clown says in the pantomime, "Here we are again," prepared to continue our labours as heretofore, and braced up to such continuance by the belief that our friends who have helped us forward by their support during the past eight years will remain by us in the future. It will be readily gathered from what we have said that ours is no sinecure office. But if we succeed in pleasing our friends by supplying them punctually and regularly with the best budget of news possible under varying circumstances, and with kindly, yet impartial, criticism of the events that are passing around us, we are prompted to believe we shall secure a portion at all events of the reward we look for at their hands, namely, their respect and patronage. In this spirit and with a determination to labour on to the best of our ability, we present to our readers the first number of our SEVENTEENTH VOLUME.

A FORTNIGHT'S SUMMARY.

IT is not often that so many important Masonic events are crowded together within the brief period of a fortnight, especially when the said fortnight falls at Christmastide. It is true our most busy season extends from about the end of September to the month of May following, and therefore, in a certain sense, we ought not to be surprised, if occasionally, what is in family circles the essentially festive portion of the year should be marked by an unusual activity in Freemasonry. But even in this case we do not look for the consecration of sundry new Lodges and other well nigh equally notable events all occurring within the course of a few days. Yet on the 15th December, the Friday preceding the close of our last volume, was consecrated in the new Town Hall, Hove, Brighton, the Stanford Lodge, No. 1947, so named in honour of Bro. V. Fane-Benett-Stanford, Past Provincial Grand Senior Warden Dorset, in the presence of the Grand Master of the Province Bro. Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., Bro. J. H. Scott P.G.D. D.P.G.M., and other prominent brethren of the district. On the Monday following, a similar ceremony was carried out at Southwold, when Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn D.P.G.M. of Suffolk, had the satisfaction of consecrating the Lodge, No. 1983, bearing his respected name. Yet a few days, and Brother Rev. C. W. Arnold, M.A., D.P.G.M. Surrey, discharged a similar function on behalf of the Arnold Lodge, No. 1981, Molesey. That three Lodges, each bearing the name of a brother of high standing in the Craft, should be inaugurated at a longer or shorter interval from each other is by no means surprising; but it is a matter worthy of note that in each of these three instances the brother thus honoured should have been able to take a prominent part in the ceremonies. A few particulars of each event will not be without interest to our readers.

The Stanford Lodge, No. 1947, was, as we have said, consecrated on Friday, the 15th ult., in the Town Hall, Hove, the principal Officers designate in the warrant being Bros. V. Fane-Benett-Stanford W.M., C. A. Woolley P.M. 311 P.P.G. Registrar Sussex S.W., and Captain S. B. McWhinnie P.M. 1466 P.P.G.S.D. J.W. There was a strong gathering of brethren present at the commencement of the proceedings, and the Provincial Grand Master and his P.G. Officers having walked in procession to the large room, Lodge was opened, the chair being occupied by Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., while Bros. J. M. Kidd and G. Smith acted as Prov. G.S W. and Prov. G.J.W. respectively. A suitable address was delivered by Brother J. H. Scott, to whom were entrusted the duties of consecrating Officer, and who, after congratulating the brethren of the new Lodge on having at length been able to take possession of their quarters and commence their labours, administered to them the usual caution as to the care they should exercise in the election and admission of candidates. Bro. the Rev. A. F. Davies followed, with a shorter but equally effective address, in which he pointed out that Masonry had nothing political in its character, nor could it be considered as being otherwise than subservient to religion, and he trusted the members of the new Lodge would uphold steadfastly the principles of the Craft, as exemplified by their devotion to the G.A.O.T.U., and their observance of the watchwords of the Fraternity. The ceremony of consecration was then carried out according to ancient usage, after which Bro Fane-Benett-Stanford was duly and impressively installed into the chair of K.S., Bro. Scott being equally successful in this as in the preceding ceremony. The following brethren were appointed and invested, namely, Bros. C. A. Woolley S.W., Captain S. B. McWhinnie J.W., J. W. Stride Treasurer, G. Nash Secretary, C. J. Smith S.D., J. Eberall J.D., J. Dixon M.C., L. R. Styer I.G., and T. Hughes Tyler. Bros. Woolley, McWhinnie, Stride, Smith, and Nash having been chosen to serve on the Bye-laws Committee, and Bro. Woolley as the Lodge representative on the Charity Committee of the Province, letters of apology for non-attendance from the Grand Secretary and others were read, and several propositions for joining and initiation handed in. Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, under the presidency of the W. Master, the after proceedings being of the usual genial character. Sir W. W. Burrell, in responding for the toast of his health as Prov. G. Master, paid a high compliment to his Deputy Bro. Scott for the efficient manner in which he discharged his duties and the services which he (the Provincial Grand Master) always received at his hands. Bros. Scott Kidd, and Woolley responded for the Prov. G. Officers Present and Past, while that of the Prov. G. Chaplain was acknowledged by that brother. The health of the W. Master was proposed by Sir W. W. Burrell, and Bro. Fane-Benett-Stanford, in his reply, expressed a hope that the Lodge founded that day would have before it a long, useful, and prosperous career. The other toasts followed and the brethren then separated. The musical arrangements were entrusted to Bro. W. R. Roe Prov. G. Org., who had the valuable assistance of Bros. A. King, J. Large, G. Broadbridge and G. Cole, and in one of the intervals between the toasts Bro. W. Kuhe P.G.O. played a pianoforte solo in his usually masterly style. It should be added that Bro. Scott was complimented for his serivces as Consecrating Officer by being elected an honorary member of the Lodge.

The Martyn Lodge, No. 1983, Southwold, began its career under most favourable circumstances on Monday, the 18th December. It had been the intention of Lord Waveney, Prov. Grand Master Suffolk, to be present on that occasion, but his Lordship was prevented, by indisposition, from carrying out his wish. He manifested, however, his sympathy with the proceedings of the day in a communication addressed to his Deputy, Bro. Rev. C. J. Martyn P.G.C., in which he offered his congratulations and good wishes to the officers elect and members of the Lodge, remarking on the happy circumstances which had led to the revival of an old Lodge, and auguring well, from that proof of the Masonic vitality of the borough, for the prosperity of the new body. Even this expression of hearty good wishes does not appear to have been sufficient in Lord Waveney's estimation, for Bro. Martyn, after his arrival in Southwold, received a telegram from his lordship, in which he reiterated his good wishers for the prosperity of the Lodge, and added the usual Christmas and New Year's greetings. However, the regret experienced at Lord Waveney's unavoidable absence was diminished by the circumstance of his popular and highly respected Deputy, Bro. C. J. Martyn P.G.C., acting as his representative, and undertaking the principal functions of the day. There was a large gathering of brethren from the vicinity and other parts of the Province, and Lodge having been opened, Bro. Martyn delivered the usual address, in which, having expressed regret at the absence of their chief, the circumstances of which have already been explained, and having conveyed his thanks for the honour done in naming the Lodge after him, he hoped the Lodge would go on and prosper, increasing in strength, and doing its utmost to promote the principles of the Craft. Bro. James Terry Past Prov. G.S.W. Norths and Hunts delivered an oration on the nature and design of Freemasonry, and the usual ceremony having been most ably and impressively carried out, the brethren went in procession to the Church of St. Edmund, where a short afternoon service was held, the first part of which was taken by Bro. Rev. P. L. Cautley the Vicar, and the second by Bro. the Rev. J. Frome Wilkinson, Chaplain of the Stour Valley Lodge, No. 1224, Sudbury, Rev. Bro. Martyn's "Home" Lodge; after which, Bro. the Rev. E. J. Griffiths Prov. G.C. preached an eloquent sermon, which it affords us great pleasure to reproduce in full in another part of our columns. A collection, which realised £6 14s 5d, having been made on behalf of the Southwold Dispensary, the procession was reformed, and the brethren having resumed the Lodge, Bro. J. M. Canova, to whom is mainly due the credit of having brought about the revival of the old Southwold Lodge, was installed W. Master, and, after the customary salutations, appointed and invested the following brethren as his Officers for the year, namely—Bros. A. E. Smith S.W., R. Barker J.W., Rev. P. L. Cautley Chapalin, H. R. Allen (elected) Treasurer, T. H. Jellicoe Secretary, W. Chambers S.D., R. Claxton J.D., and W. A. Pepper I.G. Votes of thanks having been passed to Bros. Rev. P. L. Cautley for the use of the Church, Rev. E. J. Griffiths P.G.C. for his sermon, W. Clarke P.G.P. who had acted as Director of Ceremonies, James Terry who had travelled specially from London in order to be present, Sir Albert Woods G.D. of C. for the loan of the consecrating vessels, which were the same used by the Prince of Wales at the laying of the foundation stones of Truro Cathedral, and to Bro. Sadler G. Tyler for having brought them down; a similar compliment of a special character was paid to the Deputy P.G. Master Bro. Rev. C. J. Martyn, the motion being proposed by Bro. Strathern, a surviving member of the old Lodge at Southwold, who remarked that their reverend brother deserved commendation for the manner in which he conducted everything in Masonry, especially on behalf of its Charitable Institutions, while they one and all owed him their thanks, not only for his presence that day, but also for what he and his family had done for the Lodge. If the D.P.G. Master considered it an honour that the Lodge should bear his name, he (Bro. Strathern) was sure the brethren esteemed it a still greater honour that it should have been named after him. The motion having been seconded by Bro. W. Clarke P.G.P., Bro. Martyn warmly returned thanks for the compliment, assuring them of the pride which both he and his children, his parishioners, and his brethren of the Stour Valley Lodge, felt at his name having been adopted by the Lodge, and of his anxiety to do at all times what lay in his power to promote the well-being of the Craft. He had already expressed his regret at the absence of Lord Waveney, and he should experience great pleasure in communicating to him a full and circumstantial account of their proceedings. After sundry propositions for joining and initiation had been tendered, Lodge was closed, and the brethren sat down to a banquet at the Swan Hotel, close by the Town Hall, where the ceremony had taken place. The Lodge was handsomely furnished, the most noticeable articles being a fine Master's chair, presented by the D.P.G.M. and bearing a suitable inscription, and a copy of the Holy Bible, with the following inscription in it:—"Presented to the 'Martyn' Lodge, No. 1983, Southwold, by the daughters of the Rev. C. J. Martyn D.P.G.M. of Suffolk, 18th December 1882."

The consecration of the Arnold Lodge, No. 1981, took place on Wednesday, the 20th ult., at the Bull Hotel, East Molesey, the leading part in the ceremony, as well as in that of the installation of the W. Master being taken by Bro. the Rev. C. W. Arnold P.G.C. and Dep. P.G. Master Surrey. The initiatory proceedings having been carried out, the Rev. Bro. Milner P.G. Chaplain, in response to the invitation of the Dep. P.G. Master, delivered an oration on Freemasonry, in which he laid stress on the necessity and suitability of Freemasons professing a belief in one Supreme Being. Religion, he said, was an instinct of the human race, all men, whether civilised or savage, recognising and worshipping God. In Freemasonry, every Lodge was consecrated, every Lodge was opened and closed with prayer. At every step a brother took in Freemasonry the Divine assistance was invoked on his behalf. It was not a religion, but a religious institution which satisfied the instincts of humanity—recognising all religious truths, and repudiating nothing but Atheism. But Freemasonry was not based merely on religious belief, and would be more than useless unless it impelled brethren to carry out the three grand principles on which the Society was based. After further and equally appropriate remarks, the ceremony of consecration was carried out, and Bro. W. Youldon having been installed W. Master, appointed the following as his Officers for the year, namely, Bros. W. P. Catterson S.W., C. G. L. Kipling J.W., S. P. Catterson I.P.M. and Treasurer, J. W. Moorman Secretary, J. Youldon S.D., and Geo. Moorman J.D. The proceedings having been brought to an end, Lodge was closed, and the banquet, at which the W. Master presided, followed. On the removal of the cloth, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given and most heartily received. To the toast of his health, and that of the other Prov. G. Officers, present and past, Brother Rev. C. W. Arnold responded, especially thanking the Worshipful Master for the kind words he had used in proposing it, and those present for the manner in which they had responded thereto. If the Lodge was honoured by the permission to use his name and crest, he felt it impossible he could have received a higher honour than to have been asked for such permission. They certainly could not have adopted a more appropriate motto—"Vixit qui bene vixit," —he has lived who has lived well—and he trusted it would be held in reverence by every member of the Lodge. He loved Masonry, which he looked upon in a serious light, because he believed it would help a man on in the path of life, and the more thoroughly he mastered its principles, the better he would become as a man, a father, and a citizen. After expressing a hope that the Lodge might have before it a career of good fortune, and that it might always stand high among the Lodges of the Province, Bro. Arnold concluded by offering to them the toast of the W. Master, whom he had known for several years, and than whom he did not think the members could have selected a better man to preside over them. Bro. Youldon having suitably acknowledged the compliment, the health of the Visitors was proposed and responded to, and then followed the other toasts which invariably complete the programme, that of the Tyler bringing the proceedings to a close.

The testimonial to Bro. James Terry, Secretary to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, was presented at a small but select gathering of his friends, held in the Great Hall of the Asylum, Croydon, on Thursday, the 21st of December, Bro. Raynham W. Stewart P.G.D. being in the chair, while among those present were Bro. Dr. Strong and Mrs. Strong, Bro. Edgar Bowyer and Mrs. Bowyer, Bro. C. J. Perceval and Mrs. Perceval, Bros. T. Cubitt, Keyser, John Newton, and J. A. Farnfield, Bro. Col. Radclyffe and Miss Halford, Bro. P. Hastings Miller and Mrs. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Paget, Bros. Kenning, Mason, &c., together with Mrs. and Miss Terry. The testimonial consisted of Bro. Terry's portrait, by Mr. Paget, to be hung in the Hall of the Institution as an enduring memorial of the brilliant success which had attended his labours on its behalf, together with a jewel and the clothing of a Provincial Grand Senior Warden of Norths and Hunts, and a bracelet for Mrs. Terry. That such an event as its presentation should be made to bear a festive character was only in the order of things and strictly in keeping with the time-honoured national custom of paving the way for a good deed by partaking of a good dinner. Consequently, on the eventful Thursday, the basis of post-prandial eloquence having been laid in accordance with ancient usage, the superstructure rapidly developed itself, the first evidence of its progress being made patent to the guests by the Chairman rising and briefly proposing the toast of the Queen. This was followed by that of "Success to the Institution," with which was associated the name of Dr. Strong, the honorary medical officer, who was ready at all times, as well as Mrs. Strong, to minister to the wants and ailments of the inmates and make them comfortable. Dr. Strong, in his acknowledgment of the compliment, observed, that during the last two and twenty years he had seen many changes in the Institution, but there had been no change of feeling among the residents, who were deeply gratified to those who had procured for them so comfortable a provision during their declining years. He also stated, for the information of the non-Masons present, that the benefits of the Institution were very far from being confined to the residents, there being in all 325 male and female annuitants, for only thirty-two of whom the building afforded accommodation. The Chairman then rose for the purpose of proposing the toast of the evening—The health of our Guest and Worthy Secretary, Bro. Terry—and in order the better to fulfil one part of his duty in connection with this task he vacated the chair—which was temporarily occupied by Bro. J. A. Farnfield—and, taking Bro. Terry with him, moved to that part of the hall where hung the veiled portrait of the Secretary. He then spoke at length of the services which Bro. Terry had rendered to the Benevolent Institution. He was a thorough-hearted and good Mason, and possessed high qualifications for advocating Freemasonry—Charity. Bro. Dr. Crucefix, whose portrait adorned the walls of the room in which they were assembled, was the founder of the Institution, and Bro. Terry had shown a glorious example in carrying out the great work which the founder had originated. During the last nine years they had been able to double the number of their annuitants, and this was mainly due to the untiring exertions of Bro. Terry; and he felt it would be a great thing for Bro. Terry's family, when his work was completely done, to reflect how he had been appreciated and loved. Having unveiled the picture, and presented also to Brother Terry the clothing of a Provincial Grand Senior Warden, and a handsome jewel corresponding to his rank in the Craft, as well as the bracelet for Mrs. Terry, which he left to the more skilful fingers of Mrs. Bowyer to invest that lady with, the Chairman resumed his place at the head of the festive board, and formally proposed the toast we have mentioned. Bro. Terry, in returning thanks, expressed the pride he felt that his services, with which he had never allowed his individual or home comforts to interfere, had been so handsomely recognised, especially as through the kind instrumentality of the Craft they had had the effect of widening and enlarging the Institution. Twenty years ago, they had paid away £2,600 a year in annuities, now they amounted to £11,600. Then there were but ninety-one annuitants, now there were 325. Then the annuities were on a sliding scale according to age, the highest male annuity granted being £36, and the lowest £15, while the highest female annuity was £25, and the lowest £15; now the men receive £40 each, and the women £32. The investments then were about £32,000, whereas now they were £64,000, so that while the number of recipients had been increased, they had likewise doubled their reserve fund. As to the testimonial, it was indeed an honour, and one he scarcely knew how to acknowledge, to have his portrait hung in that hall, side by side with that of the Founder of the Institution, and he trusted the picture would remain there for all time, not because it was a memorial of him as Secretary, but as a token to those who came after, that if they endeavoured to do their duty thoroughly and conscientiously, they would be appreciated by their fellow men as he had been. He also expressed his thanks for the clothing and jewel, and, on behalf of his wife, who he hoped might be spared for many years, for the testimonial with which they had presented her. On the applause which followed Bro. Terry's resumption of his seat ceasing, Bro. John Newton read some impromptu verses he had composed as an address to Bro. Terry, after which Bro. Farnfield gave the health of the Chairman, for whom, though himself Chairman of the House Committee for the year, he had made way in the belief that the testimonial to Bro. Terry would have greater weight if presented by the hands of Brother Raynham Stewart. Other toasts followed, including those of the artist, Mr. H. M. Paget, and the Ladies, and brought a most agreeable celebration to a close. The jewel that was presented bears the following inscription: "This jewel, with the clothing of Senior Grand Warden of Norths and Hunts, was presented to Bro. James Terry, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, by the subscribers to the fund for placing his portrait in the Hall of the Asylum at Croydon, in recognition of his untiring energy and unwearied exertions on behalf of the Institution. 21st December 1882." For ourselves we beg to offer to Bro. Terry our congratulations on having deserved and received so handsome a testimonial. He has our best wishes for himself and his family at all times, but especially at this, the most festive season of the year.

ENGLISH MASONRY IN EGYPT.

ONE of the early effects of the British Expedition to Egypt has been to revive the interest felt in Masonic bodies working under the Grand Lodge of England. As a matter of fact English Masonry has been long predominant in Egypt, as its laws, rituals, and principles have been adopted by the Grand Lodge of Egypt, over which M.W. Bro. Borg, the British Vice Consul at Cairo, now most worthily presides.

Ten years ago one of the most prosperous Lodges in Cairo was the Bulwer, No. 1068. It was consecrated by the late Lord Dalling, when in Cairo; was the first English Lodge ever visited by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, when a F.C. Freemason, and was most efficiently ruled during two successive years by W. Bro. T. F. Reade, now G.M.M.M. for North Africa. By an unfortunate coincidence, nearly all its active members left Cairo six years ago, and the meetings of the Lodge ceased.

About six weeks since the five surviving members of the Lodge met under the presidency of Bro. Rogers Bey, the last elected and installed W.M., and decided to revive the Lodge.

This resolution was cordially supported by Most Worshipful Bro. R. Borg, and Bros. Wilson Bey and Waller Bey. At the next meeting Bro. A. M. Broadley P.D.D.G.M. of Malta, and Bro. the Honourable Mark Napier, of the Isaac Newton University Lodge, were elected joining members, and at a third meeting the Lodge received an accession of strength in the persons of Bros. Lieut.-Colonel Sir Norman Pringle, Bart., Lieut. Freeman, Dr. Donovan, and Dr. W. H. Russell, all of Lodge 349, Malta. Two candidates for initiation were also proposed. By an unluckly accident, the letters announcing the resuscitation of the Lodge only reached the Grand Secretary a day after the last meeting of Grand Lodge, at which the erasure of Lodge No. 1068 was voted, on the recommendation of the Colonial Board. An official communication has since been received, which leaves no doubt as to this decision being rescinded, and even as it is, it requires confirmation at the next Communication of Grand Lodge. At the last mentioned meeting, Most Worshipful Bro. Borg, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Egypt, was unanimously elected Wor. Master of the Bulwer Lodge for the ensuing year; and his acceptance of office, coupled with many applications for initiation and joining, leave little doubt as to a new lease of life awaiting this once flourishing and popular Lodge. After the election of the W.M., W. Bro. Rogers Bey expressed to W. Bro. Broadley the thanks of the Lodge for the manner in which he had seconded and assisted in the resuscitation which had been accomplished. Meanwhile, several M.M. Masons had applied for a warrant for a Lodge to work under the auspices of the Bulwer Craft Lodge. Their request was at once granted, and the Lodge of Egypt, No. 311, duly chartered by Lord Henniker. A preliminary meeting was held on Monday, the 18th December, at the Masonic Hall, Cairo, in which the degree was conferred by R.W. Bro. Broadley on Bros. Rogers, Napier, Wilson, Waller and Goodall. M.W. Bro. Borg, who had taken the degree under the authority of the Grand Lodge of Turkey, was re-obligated as a M.M.M.

The Consecration ceremony took place on the 20th of December, in the presence of a goodly number of members, and with all the usual formalities. The Consecrating Officer was R.W. Bro. Broadley P. District G.M.M. of the Mediterranean, and all the usual formalities were gone through, Bro. Goodall presiding at the organ. R.W. Bro. Broadley delivered the oration, in which he explained at length the history, position, and status of the degree, and its peculiar interest in Tunis, Malta and Egypt. He alluded to this being the fifth Mark Lodge he had consecrated in these countries, and exhorted the brethren to do their best to make the Lodge of Egypt an ornament to the Province of North Africa. The address was warmly applauded. The brethren having retired the Consecrating Officer installed the W.M. elect, Bro. Lieut.-Col. Sir Norman Drummond Pringle, Bart., in the chair, conferring at the same time the P.M. degree on M.W. Bro. Borg G.M. of Egypt, by authority of the P.G.M. of North Africa. W. Bro. Sir Norman D. Pringle, Bart., having been duly saluted, invested the following Officers:—W. Bro. Borg I.P.M., Brothers. Lieut. Freeman S.W., Rogers Bey J.W., Dr. Donovan M.O., Wilson Bey S.O., Quarter-Master McKirwan J.O., Goodall Secretary, Rogers Treasurer, Waller Bey S.D., Dr. Leader J.D., and Hon. M. Napier I.G.

M.W. Bro. Borg expressed his warm admiration of the degree, and promised for it all the support the Grand Lodge of Egypt could give. He hoped other Mark Lodges would soon come into existence. At the motion of Sir Norman Pringle, Bart., seconded by Lieutenant Freeman, a written address was voted to R.W. Brother Broadley for his assistance in founding the Lodge, and especially for the attention he had paid to the interests of Masonry in the midst of his onerous and arduous duties in his successful defence of Arabi Pacha and his associates. The brethren adjourned to refreshment, and a strong determination was expressed to make the Mark Degree as great a success as it has been in the Mediterranean Districts of Tunis and Malta.

CONSECRATION OF THE MARTYN LODGE, No. 1983.

WE feel assured that our readers will be pleased to have before them in our columns the sermon preached by Bro. the Rev. E. J. Griffiths, on the occasion of the consecration of the Martyn Lodge, No. 1983, Southwold. It is a heart-stirring and Masonic composition, and doubtless will be read with an interest worthy of its merits.

Romans xii. 4, 5.—"As we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office: so we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another."

"A birthday anniversary, what solemn thoughts it brings!" These are words from a well-known song, familiar and true. But if true of the anniversary, how much more true of the birth itself; whether it be the birth of an individual or of an institution. We have come to this town to-day to be present at the birth of a new Lodge; we have joined in private in our solemn service of consecration; and we are now assembled in God's house, Masons and non-Masons alike, to pay Him the honour due unto His name; and to testify by this public service, that though we have not all the same office, "we are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another."

Suffer me, then, to suggest to you for a few minutes some thoughts that may profit us on such an occasion as this.

I can imagine that many good people who are not Masons may have passing through their minds something of this sort: "How can the consecration of a new Masonic Lodge matter to me? It may be a good thing, for all I know. I dare say it is. But it has to do with a secret body of which I know nothing, and I do not see how it can concern me, or what interests we can possibly have in common."

Let, then, the first part of what I have to say be addressed more particularly to those who are not Masons; and let me try to show that in this, as in other things, we are members one of another.

Will it be presumptuous to add an illustration? Most of us remember the fabrics that were once fashionable called shot silks; each thread contributed to the irridescent beauty of the whole, yet each thread singly seemed without lustre. Withdraw a thread, and the fabric was weakened, and the lustre dulled. So is it with the life of a nation. We are so apt to think great battles, or startling catastrophes, all that is worth regard in history, that we forget history is not made up only of Marathons, and St. Bartholomews, and great Revolutions; but of our daily meetings and partings; of the actions belonging to our business, our friendship, our pleasure. These, I say, mainly make the history of a nation.

We have woven a fresh thread into the tissue of our history this day. See, then, how it concerns you.

Our actions, sensations, and states of feeling, grow together in such a way that when any one of them is presented to the mind, the others are brought up in idea. So the reproduction of tastes, of pleasure or pain, is a great power as regards our happiness. The fractional value of each may be but small, but a total result, very far from insignificant, may be gained by the reflection of a number of our happy moments. It is the custom of our Provincial Grand Lodge to visit periodically the various towns of the Province of Suffolk where Lodges exist, and the happiness that is derived from the visit is not merely caused by the reception and hospitality of our brethren, but also by the kindly welcome, the friendly interest, the pleasant faces, of the inhabitants. I doubt not that one of the pleasurable recollections of our lives will be the day that we spent when the Lodge was consecrated at Southwold.

Next let me urge a consideration of still higher importance. This is not the place for politics, but it would be foolish to ignore the fact that a great social danger is threatening. We cannot, if we are thinking men and women, overlook the growing concentration of wealth in a few hands, the ever-widening gulf between poor and rich, and the existence of desperate men who are planning to end all this by a terrible and crushing blow. Now it surely must be for the welfare of the whole community that there should exist as an antidote to the poison of this Godless Socialism a Christian Socialism; a body whose members are taught on their initiation into it that it is their bounden duty to observe obedience to the laws, and especially to remember the allegiance due to their sovereign and their native land; a body whose head is the future sovereign of these realms, and in whose meetings prince and peer mingle with every grade of our middle class, as brothers, united by the holy bond of love, relief, and truth. You know that there are mighty mountains which have slowly been compacted through countless ages of various layers of materials, once loose or liquid, and these layers, by pressure or otherwise, have become solidly united. But through them all run vast veins of granite or basalt, and when, after perhaps hundreds or thousands of years, the hidden forces beneath the earth's crust convulse the mountain, though it may be shaken and tremble, the great veins resist the shock, and the mountain stands. So in the different strata of our social system we have agencies that will strengthen the mass, if it shall please God that the shock come; our charitable institutions; our priests working in the midst of the poorest and most degraded; our Sisters of Mercy ever in their mission of love; and I trust that not the least among these veins of strength will be the Brotherhood of Masonry.

Thirdly, I have to emphasize this declaration of our mutual interest by a practical appeal, the result of which will, I trust, prove that the foundation of a Lodge in Southwold is for the benefit of all. I ask your aid for the Local Dispensary. To my brother Masons on such an occasion I need not say much. I need only remind them of one peculiar moment in their Masonic life when they were bidden to seize every opportunity of practising the virtue of the Charity they professed to admire. To you, my friends, I will only quote one sentence you hear in our Communion Service, "Blessed be the man that provideth for the sick and needy: the Lord shall deliver him in the time of trouble." Let us all show that we realise the truth that "we are members one of another."

And now, my brethren, I turn more especially to you. We have this day woven a new thread into the tissue of our Masonic life. Those who are about to enter Masonry will weave a new thread into the tissue of their lives. Let me speak a few earnest words, not as one standing in a higher court of the Temple to those in the lower courts, but as one who feels that he has been granted a great privilege, the privilege to say, in virtue of his office, those words which at another time might be deemed intrusive or unreasonable.

These threads that make up the tissue of our lives cannot be separated. Our business life, our professional life, our home life, our Masonic life, are all inextricably connected. The Christian who goes to church on Sunday, and then throws off every thought of Christian duty during the week; the Mason who looks on his Lodge merely as a place of social enjoyment, without a care for the lessons of self-restraint, of truth, of charity, and love, that he is taught within it, both these are men of words. We have a right to stand at the vestibule and proclaim that all within the Temple is beautiful and holy; but if those that issue from the porch are hideous and unholy, the world will not believe. And, brethren, the world watches. If we profess to sympathise with human joys and human sorrows, let not our professions be all words. Remember that the words of a true and brave man have the value of deeds, but that if we are not true and brave, our deeds and words have the same value; that is, they have no value at all.

I was speaking strongly some weeks ago about what appeared to me to be an unjust and reviled thing done for the sake of gain, and I said, it was unchristian. I was met with the words, "Christianity has got nothing to do with business!" I thought of an old anecdote of a prince-bishop of the Middle Ages, when great ecclesiastics were great feudal lords. He was a great swearer. One day a dependent ventured to expostulate with him. He answered, that he did not swear as a priest, but as a prince. "Then," said the servant, "when God judges the prince, what will become of the priest?" My brethren, if we separate from our home, our business, and our pleasure, the great moral and religious principles we have been taught, shall we separate them when we stand before the Throne?

Among these great principles is one that embraces many duties. It is enjoined upon us in our earliest charge. "Let Temperance chasten you." A much abused word this. It is used in meanings it cannot have, and in the abuse is both widened and narrowed. Temperance is not abstinence; temperantia, temperance, and its allied word, moderation, is self-restraint. It is keeping within limits. God has given us two natures. The lower nature has its needs, and to their gratification He has attached pleasure, that they may not be neglected. But they may not be indulged till they become masters. The social chat, the cheering glass, the pleasant mirth, the enlivening song, are all good things that the Great Ruler has given us freely to enjoy. But let the wholesome enjoyment of food become gluttony, the lawful use of wine become drunkenness, mirth become licence, and the limits are passed. Temperance is gone.

But Temperance has to do with more than this. We must restrain ourselves in our pursuit of gain, in our anxiety for success, in the judgments we pass on others, in the opinion we form of ourselves. It implies our trying to know God's will, our struggling to carry it out to the best of our ability, our striving to live honestly, conscientiously, and therefore holily the life, and do the work, that God has put each one of us into the world to accomplish. Fair and nothing short of this, is Temperance. Is this easy? No, brethren; if we honestly try it, we know it is not. But there is One who will help us. "One there is, above all others, best deserves the name of friend." He who healed the nobleman's son and the ruler's daughter, and in whom the poor and the outcast found a helper, He who lived the one perfect life set before us on earth, He will help us, Jesus of Nazareth. In whom "there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all. Put on, therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, bowels of mercies, kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, long-suffering: forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a quarrel against any: even as Christ forgave you, so also do ye. And above all these things put on Charity, which is the bond of perfectness. And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body: and be ye thankful."

BRO. CLABON'S MOTION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Permit me to reply to Bro. Mason's letter in your issue of the 16th ultimo. The worthy brother has, I feel assured quite unintentionally, misrepresented what I did say in Grand Lodge on the 6th inst. in the debate on Bro. Clabon's motion.

I am reported to have said—

1. "The Provincial brethren at the present time contribute to the Fund of Benevolence about as much as the Metropolitan brethren." What I really said was that, "Individually, the brethren in the Provinces contributed only half as much to the Fund of Benevolence as those of the London District;" and this, I maintain, cannot be disputed.

2. "The country brethren who were relieved represent two-thirds of the amount of that number." What I did say was that "of late the grants which came before Grand Lodge for confirmation represented in number two-thirds of country cases to one-third of Metropolitan;" and this cannot be denied.

3. "I was adverse to be mulcted in a larger sum than the Provincial brethren." What I said was, that "I, for one, had no objection to pay six shillings per annum to have the double privilege which Provincial brethren enjoy, but was adverse to be mulcted in fifty per cent. more than I already paid without corresponding advantage;" and this I still assert.

In each of the above propositions I seek to show that "equal measures" are not secured to Freemasons in England and Wales individually. On the 1st January 1882, there were on the Register of the Grand Lodge 1000 Country Lodges, 312 London Lodges, 495 District Lodges, and 129 Military and non-stationary Lodges, there or thereabout. I take no account of the number of new Lodges created in the year 1882, though if I had present time for the computation I believe my argument would be strengthened. Now, I deal only with the two former sections of Lodges, Country and Metropolitan, and will take Bro. Mason's figures as the basis of an arithmetical test as to the correctness of my statement as applied to the General Fund of Benevolence, from which each has like privileges.

Bro. Mason says, in respect of contributions "London provides £2,387, and Provincial Lodges £1,891." Therefore, each Provincial Lodge (taking its members, whether few or many, collectively) subscribes less than £5 per annum, as against £4 5s per annum from each Metropolitan Lodge; that is to say, the former contributes a little more than half as much as the latter. And if I could ascertain the number of individual Freemasons in the Provincial and London Lodges respectively, I feel assured that this proportion of contributions would still further favour my propositions, for the average number of members of London Lodges is, to the best of my knowledge and belief, far in excess of those of Provincial Lodges. Hence a larger proportionate contribution comes from London than from the country.

As to the disposal of the Fund, a large portion is distributed in small grants which do not require the confirmation of the Grand Lodge, and of which we have no published record; but in respect of the larger grants submitted to the Grand Lodge, let us take the agenda paper of the last Quarterly Communication as a fair specimen. On that occasion grants to the amount of £1,050 were recommended and approved. Of this sum seven grants of £50 each, equal to £350, were to London cases, and eleven, viz., three of £100 each, and eight of £50 each, equal to £700, to Provincial. Therefore, as to the number, the latter represented nearly two-thirds of the whole of the cases, and, as to amounts granted, twice as much as to the former.

Bro. Mason says, "It is well known that every Mason in England and Wales contributes one shilling per quarter to Benevolence." Granted, but not to the General Fund of Benevolence to which every Mason has an equal right to apply. To quote our worthy brother again, "In London the whole is paid over, but in the Provinces the Constitutions allow the brethren to send half to London, and half to their Provincial Grand Lodges." The italics are mine. Well, thereby the Provincial brethren secure a second source of relief (usually made use of before applying to the General Fund) denied to these Metropolitan brethren who individually subscribe twice as much to the latter as they do; and I therefore say, looking to the fact that the General Fund must be kept up, and its present accumulation left undisturbed, every Freemason in England and Wales should subscribe equally thereto, and if any have the benefits attached to a second organisation for charitable purposes they should provide the necessary additional contributions entirely irrespective of the Supreme Fund of Benevolence.

In my turn I must apologise for the length of this letter, but, for what I hope may be considered a requisite explanation, condensation of these remarks would have been ineffectual.

Yours truly and fraternally,

JAMES STEVENS P.M. P.Z.

Clapham, 19th December 1882.

At the last monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence, held on Wednesday evening, 20th ult., at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. James Brett, Senior Vice President, presided in the absence, through illness, of Bro. Joshua Nunn President, Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford Past Grand Chaplain occupied the chair of Senior Vice President, and Bro. Frank Richardson held the chair of Junior Vice President, in the absence of Bro. Charles Atkins. The attendance was not large, owing to the season of the year. The brethren first confirmed grants to the extent of £390, recommended at the November meeting. Of new cases there were thirty-six on the list, out of which twenty-one were Provincial, and fifteen London. One country case was dismissed, and one deferred. The remainder were relieved with a total of £660.

Our readers will be glad to hear that for the Eighty-fifth Anniversary Festival of the Boys' School, Brother Binckes has been so fortunate as to enlist the services as Chairman of Viscount Holmesdale, R.W. Provincial Grand Master of Kent. Both Lord Holmesdale and the Province he has presided over for so many years are known to evince on all occasions a deep interest in the success of our Institutions, and we have little reason to doubt that, under his lordship's auspices and through his influence, backed up, as it assuredly will be by the sympathetic co-operation of his Province, Bro. Binckes in June next will be in a position to announce another of his big successes.

At the regular meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, on Thursday, the 28th ultimo, Lt.-Col. Creaton, Grand Treasurer, in the chair, the tender of Messrs. Merryweather for a supply of fire buckets for the School was accepted. It was further resolved to insure the furniture in the Secretary's office, Freemasons' Hall, for £300. Twenty-five vacancies were declared for the April election, for which there are twenty-nine candidates.

Lord Brooke, M.P., it is said, will be the new Prov. G. Master of Essex in the place of the late Bro. Lord Tenterden, K.C.B.

The usual New Year's Entertainment to the Old Folks at Croydon took place on Wednesday. Everything passed off most satisfactorily. There was a strong muster of visiting brethren and their friends. An excellent dinner was provided in the Hall of the Institution, at which, under the presidency of Dr. Strong, the Old Folks thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Later in the evening Bro. George Buckland and Miss Blanche Paige gave a musical entertainment, which was as highly appreciated as it was worthy of appreciation. Bro. Terry, of course, was a prominent figure on the occasion, and the statistics he gave, which will be found mentioned in another part of our columns, were extremely well received.

A painted window, from the studio of Mr. Taylor, of Berners-street, has been erected in Semley Church, Wilts, by Bro. V. Fane Benett-Stanford, in memory of seven of his brother officers of the 43rd Regiment who fell at the Assault of the 'Gate-Pa' fort, New Zealand, on the 30th April 1864, viz.:—Lieut-Col. Booth, Captains Mure, Hamilton, Utterton, Coke Glover, his brother Lieut. F. Guy Glover, and Ensign Langlands; also of Captain G. V. Macdonald, of the 19th Reg., Exon. to the Queen. Brasses on either side of the window contain the badges and honours of the regiments, with suitable inscriptions.

On Wednesday evening, the 10th January 1883, Bro. James Terry P.M. P.Z. P.P.G.S.W. will rehearse the ceremony of installation, including the opening and closing of Board of Installed Masters, at the Mount Lebanon Lodge of Instruction, held at the Horse Shoe Inn, Newington-causeway. The chair will be taken at 7 o'clock precisely. Brethren are requested to attend in full Masonic clothing.

"The New Crusades: a Vision and a Warning," is the title of a brochure which, under the nom de plume of "Saladin," will be published immediately by Mr. W. Satchell. It deals with what the writer regards as the socially and politically dangerous tendencies of the "Salvation Army" movement, and foreshadows the state of England under Salvationist domination in the year 1900.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

YORK LODGE, No. 236.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday, the 18th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Duncombe-place, York. The W.M. Bro. J. Sykes Rymer (Sheriff of York) presided, supported by the following Officers and brethren, viz.:—Bros. Rooke I.P.M., Kirby S.W. W.M. elect, Garbutt J.W., the Very Rev. Dr. Purey-Cust Dean of York P.G.C. Chaplain, Todd P.M. P.P.G. Reg. Treasurer, Border acting Secretary, Draper S.D., Powell J.D., Hodgson I.G., Smith M.C., Take Organist, Lawton, P.M. P.P.G.R., Major Barstow P.M., Balmford P.M. P.P.G.O., Seller P.M., Major McGachen P.M., Lee W.M. Barnard Lodge, Terry, Sampson, Thompson, Foster, Thomas, Leeman, M.P. for York, Dent, Day, Clarke, Hewitt, Eberle, Jefferson, Camidge P.P.G.O., Nicholson, Young, Churchill, Houlden, and many others. Amongst the visitors were the following:—Bros. Gifford W.M. 570 (5th Dragoon Guards), Banks P.M. 570, Cumberland P.M. 1611 P.P.G.W., Millington W.M. 1611, Major-General Nason, Clennel 41, Everett 1045, Short 570, Knight 570, Kendall 570, Cheeseman 570, De Salis Aldershot Camp 1331, Blenkin S.W. 1611, Turner J.W. 1611, Dyson S.D. 1611, Goodall 1611, Maunell 1611, Waters 1611, Starkey 1611, Pearson 1611, &c. After the minutes of two previous meetings had been read and confirmed, Bros. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke G. Sec. and R. F. Gould Past G. Deacon were unanimously elected honorary members of the Lodge. An illuminated address was then presented by the W.M., on behalf of the Lodge, to Bro. Camidge P.P.G.O. on his removal from York. The chair was afterwards taken by Bro. Todd P.M., who appointed as his Wardens Bros. Cumberland P.M. and Rooke P.M., and the W.M. elect was duly installed into the chair of K.S. The following brethren were appointed and invested as Officers:—Bros. Rymer I.P.M., Geo. Garbutt S.W., Draper J.W., Rev. A. B. Day Chaplain, Todd P.M. Treasurer, Smith Secretary, Thompson S.D., Hodgson J.D., Rooke P.M. Master of Ceremonies, Sanderson Organist, Border I.G., Sampson and Purnell Stewards, and Calvert Tyler. A cordial vote of thanks was passed to Bro. the Dean of York for his services as Chaplain during the past two years, to which the Dean replied in an excellent speech. Letters of apology for non-attendance having been communicated by the Secretary from numerous brethren, and the expressions of hearty good wishes having been given, the Lodge was duly closed. The brethren subsequently dined together in the Masonic Hall, under the presidency of the newly-installed W.M. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given and heartily responded to, and a capital programme of music, by Bros. Gifford, Cumberland, Todd, Sampson, and others, considerably enhanced the enjoyment of the proceedings.

WEST MIDDLESEX LODGE, No. 1612.

THE last regular meeting of this Lodge was held at the Ealing Institute, on Saturday, the 9th ult. There was a strong muster of members present, including all the past Masters but Bro. Kingston, who has retired from the Lodge, and sundry Visitors. Bro. Henry E. Tucker W.M. presided, and was supported by Bros. Dyer S.W., Seward J.W., H. Kasner P.M. Treas., J. Chambers Roe P.M. Sec., Fisher S.D., Clarke as J.D., Wright I.G., Harrison Tyler. Visitors—Bros. Charles Veal 1549, Henry Stiles Worshipful Master 1507, Henry Essex 511, R. Goodinge Worshipful Master 171, and W. W. Morgan Secretary 211. Lodge having been opened and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed, Bro. E. J. Penny was raised to the sublime degree, after which Bros. W. F. Henning and S. C. Hadley were passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. In each case the ceremony was perfectly and impressively rendered by the Worshipful Master, who is to be congratulated on the marked efficiency with which he accomplished his task. There being no other business, Lodge was closed, and the brethren made for the Westbourne Restaurant, Paddington, where an excellent dinner awaited them. Full justice having been done to the viands, the cloth was removed, and the usual programme of toasts set before the brethren. Those of a Loyal and Masonic character were received with the accustomed enthusiasm, while that of the W.M., proposed by Bro. Green P.M., experienced a most cordial approval, and drew from Bro. Tucker an equally cordial reply, in kind acknowledgment of the compliment. The Visitors of course received an hospitable welcome in word, as they had previously received in deed, and expressed their thanks and the pleasure it had given them to be present. Bro. Coop, acting for the Senior Warden, returned thanks for the Officers, who were complimented on the efficient manner in which they fulfilled their duties. There was also an additional toast to the Masonic Press, for which Bro. Morgan was called upon to respond, and after he had spoken briefly but earnestly, and to the point, Brother Beasley P.M. rose, and with permission proposed that, in the event of Bro. Morgan reproducing in book-form the series of articles on the "Revised Book of Constitutions," which appeared in the closing numbers of our last volume, the Lodge should purchase the requisite number of copies for the Lodge members. This proposition was carried unanimously, and we trust may be taken as an index that the articles, when they are published in book-form, will be received encouragingly by other Lodges. The Tyler's toast closed this part of the proceedings, and the brethren parted in perfect harmony.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Rheumatism and Gout.—These purifying and soothing remedies deserve the earnest attention of all persons liable to gout, sciatica, or other painful affections of the muscles, nerves, or joints. The Ointment should be applied after the affected parts have been patiently fomented with warm water, when the unguent should be diligently rubbed upon the adjacent skin, unless the friction causes pain. Holloway's Pills should be simultaneously taken to diminish pain, reduce inflammation, and purify the blood. This treatment abates the violence, and lessens the frequency of gout, rheumatism, and all spasmodic diseases which spring from hereditary predispositions, or from any accidental weakness of constitution. The Ointment checks the local malady, while the Pills restore vital power.

WILLIAM DE LA MORE PRECEPTORY.

INSTALLATION OF SIR KNIGHT SYLVESTER MATTISON AS EMINENT COMMANDER.

A REGULAR meeting of this Preceptory was held at the Masonic Rooms, St. Helens, on Thursday, the 21st ult., when Eminent Sir Knight Captain Clement R. N. Beswicke-Royds, the Grand Commander of Lancashire, honoured it with his presence. Besides Sir Knight Royds, the following distinguished visitors accepted the invitation of the E.C. elect:—Sir Knights Henry Thomas Prov. Grand Chancellor, John Worsley Prov. Grand Registrar, George Turner Past Prov. Grand Vice-Chancellor and P.E.C. of the William de la More, and William Tyrer P.E.C. of the Jacques de Molay. The members of the William de la More Preceptory present were Sir Knights Robert Goldthorp Brook E.C. and Prov. G. 1st Pursuivant, Sylvester Mattison Marshal, Reginald Young Registrar and Prov. Grand Almoner, William G. Thomson Treasurer and Past Prov. G. Marshal, Walter R. Robinson Sub-Marshal and P.E.C Faith Preceptory, Frank A. Huet 1st Herald, A. H. Jefferis, Thomas Berry Past G. Standard Bearer of England, and Past Prov. Grand 1st Captain. The room was arranged by the Equerry of the Preceptory, Sir Knight John Taylor, and looked exceedingly comfortable. P.E.C.'s Sir Knights William Tyrer and George Turner presented Sir Knight S. Mattison for the benefit of Installation, which ceremony was most ably performed by the Grand Commander Sir Knight Clement R. N. Beswicke-Royds. The newly installed Commander made the following appointments:—Walter R. Robinson Prelate, A. C. Wylie Constable, W. Newsome Marshal, Reginald Young Registrar (re-appointed), W. J. Thomson Treasurer (re-elected at the last meeting), R. G. Brook Almoner, F. A. Huet Sub-Marshal, A. H. Jefferis Captain of the Guard, John Taylor Equerry. Apologies for non-attendance were sent by Sir Knights Thomas Chorlton Deputy Provincial Grand Commander, Joseph Wood, J. Kellett Smith, and Joseph Bell. A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to Sir Knight Beswicke-Royds for coming so far to attend the Installation, and the Preceptory having been closed, the Sir Knights adjourned to the Fleece Hotel, to partake of a most sumptuous banquet, which had been ordered by Sir Knight Mattison the newly-installed Commander. Sir Knight Tweedale Past Deputy Grand Commander of Lancashire, who had been detained on the way, here joined the members assembled, and was, as indeed he always seems to be, a welcome guest.

ST. JOHN'S MARK LODGE (T.I.)

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday, the 14th December, at the Commercial Hotel, Bolton, at half-past five o'clock in the evening, there being present—Bros. Alcock Past Provincial Grand Steward presiding as W.M., Cooper Provincial G.S.D. S.W., Taylor J.W., Kenyon M.O., Partington J.O., Morris P.P.S.W. Secretary, Brockbank P.G.W. Treasurer, Wolstenholme, Wood, Wadeson, Harwood P.P.G.D., Nicholson, Green, Orrell, Riley, Irving, Walker, Phillips, Allen, Barrett, Jones P. Prov. G.S.D. The minutes of the last meeting having been confirmed, Bro. Cooper Prov. G.S.D. the W.M. elect was presented by Bro. Alcock P.M. P. Prov. G. Steward to a Board of Installed Masters of the Mark Degree, with Bro. Brockbank as W.M. He having been duly obligated was installed, proclaimed, and saluted Master of the St. John's Time Immemorial Lodge for ensuing 12 months. The following brethren, having been appointed to their several offices by the W.M., were invested with the collar and jewel of office by Bro. Harwood P. Prov. S.G.D. and suitably addressed by him on the nature of the duties to be performed by them:—Bros. Taylor Senior Warden, Kenyon Junior Warden, Partington Master Overseer, Wadeson Senior Overseer, Nicholson Junior Overseer, Morris P.M. Secretary, Court Conductor, Tongue Senior Deacon, Barrett Junior Deacon, Kerr Time Keeper, Alcock P.M. Director of Ceremonies, Harwood P.M. Organist, Phillips Steward. Bro. Brockbank, who has served the office of Treasurer for more than 12 years, having earnestly desired to be relieved from its duties in favour of some brother who had more leisure to devote to the office, and being unwilling to be re-appointed, Bro. William Henry Alcock P.M. P. Prov. G.S. was appointed as Treasurer for the ensuing year. Bro. Thos. Higson was re-appointed Tyler. Bro. William Barnes, of Lodge St. John, No. 348, was balloted for and approved as a candidate for advancement, but being detained at some distance from home in consequence of the inclement weather, the ceremony could not be proceeded with. The Lodge was closed at 7 o'clock, and the brethren adjourned to banquet.

ROYAL ARK MARINERS.

ON Wednesday, 20th December, the inauguration and dedication of the Gosport Lodge of the Ancient and Honourable Fraternity of Royal Ark Mariners took place at the Lodge rooms at the India Arms Hotel. There were present Wor. Bros. H. M. Green P.M. P.G.M.K. D.C. England and P.M. Inspector-General Royal Ark Mariners, H. R. Trigg P.M. P.G.M.K. S.B. England and P.M. Deputy Inspector-General R.V.M., J. Parnell P.M. P.J.M.K. G.D. England and P.N. R.A.M., A. L. Emanuel P.M. P.P.G.M.O. and G.C. No. 7, R. L. Loveland G. Steward R.A.M. England G. Com. R.A.M. Southampton, G. F. Lancaster P.M. W.C.N. designate, Bros. R. W. Mitchell, F. Powell, B. Ring P.G. Chaplain, J. Howell P.G. Steward, H. Crisp P.G.J.G., G. Darby P.G. Steward, W. Green P.G. Sword Bearer, W. G. Robertson, A. M. Rae, A. Grey, and R. West. The Lodge was opened by Wor. Bro. Green, who appointed Wor. Brothers Loveland J. and H. R. Triggs S. pro tem. Brother Parnell, Acting D.C., addressed the chair, requesting the W.C.N. to form the Lodge, and, after the usual preliminary arrangements, Wor. Bro. Green delivered an eloquent oration on the principals of the Order, after which the Lodge was solemnly dedicated, and Brother G. F. Lancaster was installed Worshipful Commander. He appointed the following brethren as his Officers for the ensuing year:—Wors. Bro. F. Powell J., B. Ring Chaplain, G. Darby Treasurer, J. Howell Secretary, W. Green S.D., H. Crisp J.D., W. G. Robertson D. of Cer., A. Greig Guard, R. West and A. M. Rae Stewards, and L. Canvin Warden. Votes of thanks were accorded to Wor. Bros. Green, Parnell, Trigg, and Loveland, who were made life honorary members. At the close of the Lodge the brethren partook of a banquet, at which the usual toasts were duly honoured.—Portsmouth Times.

We are sorry to announce the death of Bro. E. J. Scott, Secretary of the City of Westminster Lodge, No. 1563, and a Past Master of the Belgrave Lodge, No. 749, who died on Friday, 29th ult., and was buried at Kensal Green, on Wednesday. Bro. Scott had exhibited great zeal in the fulfilment of his Masonic duties, and in so doing had won to himself many friends. Among those who attended the funeral were Bros. Hammond W.M., J. Shand P.M. and Treasurer, and other of the Officers of the City of Westminster Lodge, together with Bros. G. P. Festa, W.M. Montague Guest Lodge, No. 1900, C. A. Cottebrune P.G.P., &c. &c.

We regret to announce the death, at sea, on the 5th October, of Bro. Weber, who last year resigned his post of clerk in the Secretary's office of the Girls' School, on the score of health. He had acquired many friends by the faithful discharge of his duties, and we beg to express our sympathy with his widow and family in their bereavement.

EDINBURGH.

THE Festival of St. John was celebrated by the Masonic body on 27th December. The members of the Lodges in Edinburgh met in their different Lodge-rooms in the afternoon for the installation of the new Office-bearers, and afterwards dined together and celebrated the Festival. In the course of the evening they observed the usual custom of interchanging deputations amongst all the Lodges of the City. In the Journeyman Lodge, No. 8, the proceedings of the evening received additional interest by the presentation of a gold watch, subscribed for by the members of the Lodge, to Brother John Wilson. The presentation was made by the new Master of the Lodge, Brother Rennie, who referred to the services rendered by this Past Master during his three years of office.

A "HAPPY NEW YEAR."

OLD Father Christmas, with his traditional smiles, his flowing beard and lapful of blessings, has once more glided past us, gathering up in the folds of his royal robe the last remaining moments of the old year, with all its achievements and disappointments, its failures and successes. We have now entered upon a new era, as it were, and whilst we look back upon the year that has gone with mingled feelings of relief and regret, the stronger tendency within us is to peer into the future with cheerful hopefulness, that this year may be better and more prosperous than that which we have left behind. That time is fleeting, and that we are growing older, our annual bills and grey hairs sufficiently remind us; yet, amidst "all the ills that flesh is heir to," there are bright spots and felicitations which shine hopefully through the dim vista of the future. We will not enter into any speculation as to the "good time coming," nor a sentimental retrospect of departed days; our object is to acknowledge the kindness and support which we have continued to receive at the hands of our numerous friends in the Craft, and to express our hope that we may continue to deserve even a larger share in the future of that confidence which has been extended to us in the past. True, the New Year has come in tearfully and sullen; there is no crisp, frosty ring, as in "ye olden time," in the sound of the "wild bells," such as we have have been wont to hear clanging forth a welcome to the new-born year. The wild bells have rung out to a "wild sky" indeed, but it was a wildness we only expect when the equinoxial gales are fighting in their fury, carrying death and desolation along our coasts, and sorrow into many a parental heart. Instead of the stars glistening out from a pellucid sky, rendered all the more beautiful by the sharp, bracing frost, they were obscured by rain-laden clouds, whose contents sadly marred the festivities of friends whilst wishing to each other "the compliments of the season." Holiday keepers took their pleasures sadly out-of-doors, for the streets were bespread with mud, and the footpaths rendered dangerous by their being coated with a greasy, slippery compound; whilst the fog and rain continued to enforce the advice given us by the nondescript rhymster, who said—

> Now, mind, a respirator buy,
> A waterproof also,
> So much depends on keeping dry,
> And catarrh 's all the go.

Still the brightness of indoor life has compensated, in a great measure, for the meteorological miseries which have so marred the "merry" season, and there does not appear to be any diminution in the gaieties and soothing influences of home life which invariably accompany Christmas and the New Year. We sincerely hope our friends have done ample justice to the toothsome geese, turkeys and prime joints, erewhile decorated on the butcher's boards; that the young folks have enjoyed their frolics under the mistletoe and amidst the holly and all their suggestive accompaniments; that the little ones of all have realised the pictures conjured up in this "Land of Dreams," by the timely arrival of Santa Claus. Let us hope that they have been taken to the pantomimes, and learnt the origin of fairies and wicked sprites; opened their little eyes with rapture at the gorgeous transformation scenes, and laughed gleefully at the merry antics of clown and pantaloon. These are among the many pleasantries which accompany the great festivals which have just passed us, and it is not necessary for us to reverse the picture by any reference to the little obligations which will be reserved to Paterfamilias in consequence of the enjoyments he may have so considerately provided for his family and friends. The social aspect of the Christmas and New Year "tides" is a pleasant feature of English life which, we trust, may ever be sustained, for it brings into closer union those sentiments of love, friendship and amenity which it is most desirable should be cultivated in every grade of society. Moreover, it stirs into fresh activity the great principles of Charity which Freemasons, above all others, strive to inculcate and practise in their daily lives. It is a time when they who are warmly clad, with comfortable firesides and well-lardered kitchens, whence proceed odours of dainty creature comforts, are reminded of others who are less highly favoured, and Heaven only knows there are many such in our midst. We carry our thoughts to homes where fuel is scarce, food not much more plentiful, and clothing but ill-adapted to meet the chill blas; and when we talk about the "unseasonable" weather, we are apt to think whether that which would be otherwise welcomed as a good old-fashioned winter might not, in such cases, seem filling to the brim the cup of misery. We do not doubt that charity has been at work this Yuletide, as of yore, so that none shall pine—if it be avoidable and the case deserving—in misery and want in a time of festivals whose chief characteristics are feasting and joy. We are glad to know that in this specific feature of the festive season the brethren of the mystic tie have been by no means lagging in their efforts, and we have heard with pleasure some gratifying accounts of benevolence on the part of our brethren in various parts of the country towards the necessitous poor. True, Masonic charity is not spasmodic, but flows along in the even tenor of its consistency and constancy; but somehow or other there is an impetus given to it even in their case, when the merry-makings of the festive season are in full swing, and the heart swells into abnormal generosity under the kindly influences which accompany the opening of a new year. It is to be hoped that in the year now entered upon this spirit of brotherly solicitude on behalf of our humbler fellows may be kept alive, and that the poor may have "more friends and less need of them." We have started afresh, and anticipation is rife as to what will be the outcome of Eighteen Hundred and Eighty-Three. It is a time when men sit down and apply themselves to the balancing of accounts, the formation of new resolves, the drawing up of new plans for their guidance throughout the year. Experience tells us that many of the good resolutions entered upon with perfect faith on New Year's Day "grow small by degrees and beautifully less" as the weeks pass by; still it is a wholesome tonic after all, and if only adhered to in some instances, must be productive of good. If the remark applies to society in general, it does so also to ourselves as Masons. The Master who enters upon his New Year, when installed as the ruler of his Lodge, forms his plans, and makes a forecast of the duties which he will be called upon to fulfil. He will emulate, even if he cannot surpass, the excellences he has observed in his predecessors in office; he will impress upon his officers and brethren the true beauties of the profession they have espoused, and which they should seek to adorn. Were there no New Year in our Masonic Lodges, no "ringing out" of old and trusty friends, and heralding the advent of others equally true, though yet untried, the monotony of Masonic life would become unknown. But as one excellent Master retires with all the honours that his appreciative and grateful brethren can bestow upon him, so another star blossoms in the firmament of the Lodge, and gives promise of new and more vigorous life and enjoyment. We can only express our hope that peace and harmony will illuminate our Lodges during the coming year, that our numbers may receive a large and welcome, though judicious acquisition, and that the machinery of the Craft may be well oiled by an ample supply of Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth. There are yet some pleasant réunions to come, in the shape of Charity balls in connection with various Lodges, ere the New Year festivities can be said to be at an end, and we trust they may be eminently successful, so that our Institutions may receive the benefit. But these do not interfere with the ordinary and regular business of the Lodges, which, after a few days' respite in Christmas week, has been renewed with its wonted activity and usefulness, and we have before us anticipations of many a pleasant gathering on the chequered floor ere the summer recess calls us to vary the programme by jolly—there is no other adjective sufficiently expressive—excursions into the country. The Boys at Wood Green, and the "bonnie lassies" at Battersea, will be working up for their Midsummer Examinations, and will be filled with visions of displaying, amidst Civic smiles and friendly approbation, the results of the splendid education imparted to them at the Schools, and of the careful and efficient training they receive through the considerate kindness of the more fortunate section of the Craft. The "Old Folks," too, in their quiet way, will be looking forward to the visit of their best friends, who, in the summer-time, run down to Croydon and exchange with them kindly visits and friendly recognition. In every aspect of the case anticipation is in the foremost place, and we can only express a desire that in all the aspirations formed, either from a studious point of view in Lodge, or of increased friendliness and good-fellowship amongst those who do not participate in the active work of the Order, there may be a great amount of success realised, leavened with the smallest possible degree of disappointment. For ourselves, whilst again acknowledging the support which has been accorded to us in the past, we, too, indulge in the anticipation that, as the numbers of the Craft increase, so also may the recognition of our efforts to disseminate thoughts, and to circulate the record of events transpiring in the Craft, be enlarged. Whilst extending to our readers the wish which stands at the head of this article, we trust, by pursuing the steady, consistent course which the CHRONICLE has followed ever since it was started, and by the improvements which are contemplated in the various departments of this journal, we may succeed in extending our influence, and supplying much information which shall be of value to our Subscribers and to the Craft in general.

MASONIC BENEVOLENCE IN 1882.

WE congratulate the Craft generally, but especially the Executive Officers and Secretaries of our Charitable Institutions, on the result of the past year's labours. We have become so accustomed of late to extraordinary figures, that it is possible the announcement we are about to make may not be received with the usual fervour. But times have not been brilliant lately, and it is not worth while noting that only in one previous year has the aggregate receipts by our Charities been exceeded. In 1880, the total amounts received for these Institutions was close on £50,000; in 1882 it reached, in actual figures, the sum of £47,444 18s 11d, of which the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution must be credited with £16,595 7s 7d; the Girls' School with £15,969 15s 8d, and the Boys' School with £14,879 15s 8d. As regards "Donations and Subscriptions," however, which constitute the fluctuating income of all three, we note that the Girls' School received £13,927 8s 4d, the Boys' School £13,614 18s 8d, and the Benevolent £13,351 10s 9d, so that the support of the Craft appears to have been impartially distributed among them. As regards permanent income, the Benevolent heads the list, the Girls' School coming next, and lastly the Boys' School, the interest on invested monies being comparatively small in the last named Institution, while its grants from Grand Lodge and Chapter, like those received by the Girls' School, are about one-eighth of those received by the Benevolent. Certainly the work done on behalf of our Institutions during the past year is worth studying, if only showing what can be done for them under circumstances by no means the most favourable for heavy figures. We append a statement in detail of the receipts from all sources of the three Institutions as well as of the grants made by the Lodge of Benevolence during the past year.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

ST. JOHN LODGE, No. 70.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge was holden on the day of St. John the Evangelist, at the Huyshe Masonic Temple, Plymouth. There was a large attendance of members and visitors to do honour to the advent of Bro. Westlake as the unanimously-elected Master of the Lodge. The ceremony of installation was performed by the retiring Master Bro. Griffen, and Bros. Mayson, Westcott, and Gover. At the completion of the ceremony the following Officers were appointed:—Bros. Barker S.W., King-son J.W., Gover Sec., Westcott Treasurer, King-jun. S.D., Symons J.D., Scrivener I.G., Watts M.C., Hoppin A.M.C., Westcott Organist, Cook S.S., Hocking J.S., Phillips Tyler. The other appointments are:—Bros. Westcott Representative on Committee of Petitions; Bros. Gover, Westcott, Trist, Griffen, and Westlake, members of the Associated Lodges' Committee, and Bro. Parker is the Charity Steward for the Devon Masonic Educational Fund, and the first sum to be placed on his list will be that of five guineas from the Lodge. Other business was harmoniously completed, and the brethren then adjourned to the Globe Hotel for the banquet, admirably served by Bro. Watts.

LOVE AND HONOUR LODGE, No. 75.

THIS Lodge celebrated the Festival of St. John, on 29th ult., at the Lodge-room, Royal Hotel, Falmouth, when Bro. Polglase S.W. W.M. elect was installed by Bro. Newman Treasurer. The ceremony was performed in an impressive manner, and the W.M. appointed his Officers, as follow:—Bros. Carter S.W., Richards J.W., Gratrex Chaplain, Newman Treasurer, Tresidder Secretary, J. Carne S.D., Jeffery J.D., Dinner Organist, Reed I.G., Carter I.P.M., W. Carne and Richards Stewards, Rusden Tyler. The brethren afterwards sat down to a sumptuous banquet, provided by Bro. Carter.

MOUNT SINAI LODGE, No. 121.

THE installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. Holman, and the celebration of the Festival of St. John, took place on the 20th ult. The new W.M. was presented by Bro. Boase P.M., and duly installed by Bro. Small P.M., assisted by Bros. Boase and Levin. The W.M. then appointed the following Officers:—Bros. Martin Sampson S.W., Rodda J.W., Read P.M. Treasurer, Colenso Secretary, Simpson S.D., Wedlake J.D., Ralph I.G., Aitken Chaplain, White junior Organist, Rogers Master of Ceremonies, Barkell S.S. and Wellington-Dale J.S. Bro. Reynolds was unanimously elected Tyler, and re-installed. Bro. Read P.M., was re-elected Treasurer. The income for the past year has been £153, and the available balance £90. Bro. Read P.M. was cordially thanked for his many years' services. Ten guineas was voted to each of the Boys' and Girls' Schools, and five guineas to the Cornwall Annuitant Fund, of which Bro. Levin P.M. was re-elected Steward. The banquet followed at host Michel's, Western Hotel.

LODGE OF FORTITUDE, No. 165.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge was held at the Huyshe Masonic Temple, Plymouth, on 19th ult., when the retiring Master, Bro. Kitt, installed his successor, Bro. E. A. Lyons (the unanimous choice of the members). At the conclusion of the ceremony the following were appointed as the Officers for 1883:—Bros. Kitt I.P.M., Giffard S.W., Pillar J.W., Bignell Treasurer, Cooper Secretary, Horswill S.D., Hayes J.D., Gray I.G., Parsons M.C., Sloggett A.M.C., Hearder Organist, Joel Senior Steward, Spinney Junior Steward, Phillips Tyler. The Worshipful Master was elected to represent the Lodge on the Committee of Petitions, and the following brethren are to be the committee for this Lodge on the Amalgamated Committee of the Associated Lodges:—Bros. Lyons W.M., Gifford S.W., Bignell, Cooper, and Browning. The banquet will be held at Bro. Walter's, Farley Hotel, on 17th January. Refreshment in the refectory followed, and the usual toasts were honoured.

OLD LODGE OF FRIENDSHIP.

THE annual meeting of the above Lodge was held at the Hall of Friendship on the 28th ult., and there—in a Board of Installed Masters—William Allsford, the retiring Master, Bros. E. Murch P.M. P.P.G.O., H. Welch P.M. P.P.G.P., and J. P. Price P.M. P.P.G.S.B.—in ancient form and with accustomed ceremony, installed as the Master Bro. Joseph Viggers. The ceremony was performed with the care and solemnity which has always distinguished "Friendship." The Officers appointed were:—Bros. William Allsford I.P.M., Charles Organ S.W., Charles William Price J.W., Henry Welsh Treasurer, John David Sandy Secretary, John F. Burns S.D., John N. Taylor J.D., John Leonard I.G., Richard Carter M.C., George Bray A.M.C., William C. Cruickshorne O., Joseph Oldfield Chaplain, Thomas Shears S.S., Hebert William Doddridge J.S., Joseph Benny Tyler. Bro. Gover, by permission of the Master, advocated the claims of the Devon Masonic Educational Fund, and the W.M. and Bro. March followed. This fund, which now educates and clothes twelve children without removing them from the care of their remaining parent or destroying home influences, having no paid officials, and no buildings to sustain, the money went direct to the object. Dinner—supplied by Bro. G. W. Hancock, of the Golden Lion Hotel—followed, in the well-arranged refreshment rooms in the same building, and was very enjoyable, the W.M. ably presiding.

FIDELITY LODGE, No. 230.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge was held at the Ebrington Masonic Hall, Granby-street, Devonport, on the 23rd ult., when Bro. Richard W. Pitcher, the retiring Worshipful Master, installed as his successor Bro. John Arthur Whitford, who, from the manner in which he was received, appeared to be as popular amongst the visitors as he was with the members who had elected him. The following Officers were appointed:—Bros. R. W. Pitcher I.P.M., James Border S.W., William M. Bidland J.W., John Lyon Treasurer Richard Cawsey Secretary, Alfred Cawsey A.S., E. H. Littleton S.D., W. Rattenbury J.D., F. Orchard M.C., A. Maddock A.D.C., R. Pike Org., J. Meadley I.G., J. Toms, Charles Hunt, W. H. Burt Stewards, H. Harvey Tyler. The Lodge then proceeded to the election of a representative on the Committee of Petitions in the Provincial Grand Lodge, and Bro. Richard Cawsey was again unanimously selected for this important office. It was also resolved that the annual banquet be held as usual. The ladies will be invited, as on several previous occasions, and it goes without saying that this will be the event of the year. Bro. Gover, by permission, advocated the claims of the Masonic Charities, particularly the Devon Masonic Educational Fund, whose claims certainly were paramount, it was stated that in this and all the money went direct to the object of the institution. There were no office expenses, no paid officials, and the small subscription of 5s. per year would be paid by those who thus received a vote, whilst the aggregate subscription enabled twelve children to be clothed and educated at present. The Lodge being closed, the brethren retired to their own room for refreshment, the W.M. ably presiding and proposing the Loyal and Masonic toasts.

At the commencement of the proceedings the following brethren were present:— Bros. Beazley W.M., Hilton S.W., Harris J.W., Hancock P.M. Treasurer, King P.M. Secretary, Cope S.D., Stedman J.D.; A. E. Gladwell I.P.M.; P.M.'s Gurton (the father of the Lodge), Gaubert, Hockley, Hoadley, Holland, Dixon, and a numerous assemblage of the members. The following were among the visitors:— Hickman 177, Gibson P.M. 1420, Carmaud 548, Pilditch P.M. 1420, Lee P.M. 975, Wray P.M. 1604, Ray 1624, Morley 1891, Gosden 1532, Theodore Distin 145, Richardson J.W. 862, Donaldson 1968, Tappenden 548, Grammont 1559, Hilton 1475, Lee P.M. 975, Conolly 157, Worsden 1328, George P.M. 101, Croaker P.M. 185, Merry 1420, Ayling W.M. 973, Vickery P.M. 1627, Reid 1743, Baker 1328, Coleman 11, Baker 73, Hunt 1424, Morley 1891, Ray 1891, Miller 25, Wrigglesworth P.M. 975, H. M. Levy P.M. 188. Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Bros. Heideberger and Hone were passed, and Bros. Brooks and Wallis were raised. Ballots were taken for the admission of Messrs. J. Hall, H. J. Braisher, and W. Schutze. The result was unanimous, and these gentlemen were duly initiated into the Order, the ceremonies being ably rendered by the W.M. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Hilton S.W. and W.M. elect was presented. He was then duly installed into the chair by Bro. Geo. King P.M. and Secretary, whose ability as a worker of the Ritual is well recognised. There were twenty W.M.'s and P.M.'s present. On the re-admission of the brethren, the W.M. was saluted according to ancient custom. In appropriate terms he appointed and invested his Officers, as follow:— Bros. Beazley I.P.M., Harris S.W., Cope J.W., J. Hancock P.M. Treasurer (re-elected), G. King P.M. Secretary Stedman Senior Deacon, Whalley J.D., Sadler I.G., Gladwell P.M. M.C., Marriott Organist, C. T. Speight P.M. Tyler. The applause that followed the investment of Officers showed the W.M. had made a selection that was approved of. Feeling allusion was made to a severe accident that lately occured to the Treasurer, but who now, we are pleased to say, was able to be present to be re-invested. Bro. Beazley I.P.M. announced his intention to serve as Steward for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and Bro. Gladwell proposed that ten guineas be voted to the Widows' Fund, and this sum to be given as an endowment for the Inner Guard of the Lodge for the time being, with votes in perpetuity. Bro. Cope proposed that the sum of ten guineas be placed on the list of the Junior Deacon, who will serve as Steward for the Boys' Festival. Bro. Hoadley P.M. stated his intention to act as Steward for the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and the sum of ten guineas was voted for his list. These votes were all carried unanimously. The report of the Auditors was read; it showed the balance in hand was £243 12s 11d, while the Benevolent Fund had £218 19s 5d to its credit. The Lodge was then closed, and an adjournment to the Crown Room was made, where the brethren—93 in number—sat down to a sumptuous banquet and dessert provided by Messrs. Spiers and Pond (Limited), and superintended by Bro. Dawkins. Grace—"For these and all Thy mercies"—having been sung, the W.M. proposed the Loyal and Masonic toasts, Madame Worrell singing the National Anthem. This lady during the evening was assisted by Miss Emma Buer, Bros. Sydney Tower, and Theodore Distin; while Bro. C. Imhoff accompanied at the piano. The brethren seemed well in accord with the W.M., when he, with a few pertinent remarks, introduced the toast of the Provincial Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, and after a song by Bro. Sidney Tower, Bro. Hilton introduced the toast of the Initiates. He was proud to say the members of the Lodge were pleased to see initiates. Later on they would have a few words addressed to them by the father of the Lodge, Bro. Gurton. He (the W.M.) knew they would be pleased to hear him. Bro. George Gurton, thus urged, then addressed the initiates, giving them some excellent advice, and expressing a fervent hope that neither they nor the Lodge, would ever regret their entrance into Freemasonry. Here Miss Emma Buer sang, with exquisite taste, "Tit for Tat." Bros. Schutze, Braisher and Hall severally responded, and Bro. Speight sang the E.A. song. The Worshipful Master then proposed the toast of the Visitors, they had thirty-four present; he as well as every member of the Lodge was pleased to see them, and he would call on Bros. Pilditch, Gibson, Hilton and Wriggles to respond. Bro. Pilditch P.M. 1287, in replying, paid a great compliment to the Lodge for its perfect working, and speaking of its efforts on behalf of the Institutions, said, no other Lodge in one night had done so much for the three Charities. Bro. Hilton fully endorsed these remarks, and hoped other Lodges would follow so noble an example. Bro. Gibson followed; he felt it a great pleasure to see the excellent working of the Installing Master. Several of the other Visitors also spoke in reply to this toast. Bro. Beazley now rose to propose the health of the W.M.; the brethren had seen how ably he had done his duty before being invested; there was no doubt the Lodge would be proud of him, as they had the right man in the right place. The W.M., in reply, thanked Bro. Beazley for his kind remarks; he had been placed there by the free will and accord of the members; he wished to do his duty, and he could rely on his Officers. The W.M. then announced that the Annual Ball of the Lodge would take place, and he hoped it would be the ball of the season. The next toast was the health of the I.P.M., to whom the Past Master's jewel of the Lodge was presented, and special reference made to the energy Bro. Beazley had displayed during his year of Mastership. This was gracefully acknowledged, and then the other toasts were pushed merrily along. In reply for the Past Masters, Bro. Gurton, the father of the Lodge, said, personally he thanked the W.M. for his kind expressions. He had been with them thirty-five years, and if he had worked for that period to the satisfaction of the Lodge, he hoped, while he had health, his services might be equally well appreciated. Bros. Holland, Hockley, Gaubert, and Gladwell followed. The Tyler in due course gave the parting toast. The musical party must be congratulated on their efforts, also Bro. Marriott, for providing good music and such excellent singers; Madame Worrell, Miss Emma Buer, Bro. Theodore Distin, and Bro. Sidney Tower being the artistes engaged.

CHARITY LODGE, No. 223.

THE annual meeting was holden at the Masonic Hall, 193 Union-street, Plymouth, on 19th ult. There was a large attendance to do honour to the retiring Master—Bro. John Moysey—who had well and worthily carried out his duties for the past year, and culminated his work by installing his successor in a manner which elicited warm commendation from the Board of Installed Masters present. The Master installed was Bro. John Delve, and he appointed and invested as Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Moysey I.P.M., Lane S.W., Goodyear J.W., Cornish Treasurer, Browning Secretary, Hoyten, S.D., Hannaford J.D., Frost M.C., Bridgman A.M.C., Stenlake O., Williams I.G., Lavers jun. S.S., Sopers J.S., Bartlett Tyler. The Lodge is in a very prosperous condition, and as a proof it will at the annual banquet present to the retiring Master (Bro. Moysey) a gold Past Master's jewel, to mark its appreciation of his services; and a token of respect will also be presented to the Treasurer (Bro. Cornish), the form of testimonial being left to a committee. The Lodge adjourned for refreshment in their own rooms, where, under the presidency of Bro. Delve, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured, the Master congratulated, and a pleasant half hour spent. The banquet was held at Bro. Walter's, Farley Hotel, on Tuesday, 2nd January 1883.

ST. JOHN'S LODGE, No. 348, BOLTON.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday, the 28th December 1882, at the Ball's Head Inn, Bolton, at three o'clock in the afternoon. Bros. J. B. Taylor W.M., W. Crankshaw S.W., John Kenyon J.W., Thomas Raby P.M. Treasurer, John Alcock P.M. Secretary, John Partington S.D., R. H. Phillips I.G., Thomas Higson Tyler; W. Barnes, W. Hennifer, Alfred Jones, James F. Ryley, H. Stevenson, T. G. Orrell, James Eckersley, Robert Jones, J. Wood, W. Wood, W. Green, J. Callerbank, James Allen, George Walker, John Hamer, P.M.'s John Harwood, James Horrocks, P. H. Harwood P. Prov. G. Supt. of Works, J. Wolstenholme. Visitors—Bros. G. P. Brockbank P. Prov. G.S.D. and W.M. elect Lodge 37, W. Cooper P.M. 146, J. Birchnall W.M. 221, W. Court W.M. St. George's 1723, J. L. Allred P.M. 221, J. Mitchell, J. W. Forbes 1723, Robert Latham S.W. St. George's 1723, Charles Crompton J.D. 221, William Nicholson P.M. 146 Provincial Grand Sword Bearer. Lodge proceeded to the second degree, when Bro. William Crankshaw was presented by Bro. John Harwood to a Board of Installed Masters under the presidency of Bro. John Alcock, and he having been obligated, was subsequently installed, proclaimed, and saluted as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, and proceeded to appoint the following brethren as his Officers:—J. B. Taylor I.P.M., John Kenyon S.W., J. Partington J.W., R. H. Pailips S.D., W. Chadwick J.D., T. Raby Treas. (elected), J. Alcock Sec., J. Horrocks Charity Representative (elected), G. Walker I.G., R. Jones and W. Wood Stewards, R. Harwood M.C., W. H. Alcock Asst. M.C., J. Harwood Organist, T. Higson Tyler. The newly-appointed Officers were invested and instructed by Bro. Harwood on the nature of the duties of their respective offices, and the addresses to the Master, Wardens, and brethren were very effectively rendered by Brother Alcock. A gentleman was proposed for initiation, and hearty good wishes were expressed by the visiting brethren. A portion of the Ancient Rules and Charges was read by the S.W., and the Lodge closed in peace and harmony at half-past five o'clock. The brethren assembled at banquet, prepared with Mrs. Long's proverbial good taste, and a somewhat long toast list was duly honoured, Bro. Nicholson responding for the present Provincial Officers, and Bros. Brockbank and Harwood for the Past Officers. The W.M., in responding to the toast of his health, expressed his determination to work assiduously during his term of office, and repay the confidence the brethren had placed in him by diligent attention to his duties. Bro. James Horrocks, in proposing the Masonic Charities, made a forcible appeal to the brethren to use greater efforts to support the Masonic Institutions, and pointedly referred to their claims upon the brethren of this Lodge, inasmuch as one member was an annuitant on the Benevolent Institution, and another deceased brother's child was being educated by the East Lancashire Institution. A generous response was given to the request made, which doubtless will result in a substantial donation to one of the Charities. The Visiting Brethren was responded to by the W.M.'s of the Lodges 221 and 1723. The Installing Master was duly honoured, and replied to by the veteran Secretary, who for many years has, single-handed, undertaken this onerous duty. The vocal talent displayed added considerably to the success of this well-ordered meeting, and the brethren were indebted to Bros. Allen, Partington, William Wood, and John Harwood for their contributions to the harmony of the evening.

CORNUBIAN LODGE, No. 450, HAYLE.

THE brethren of this Lodge met on the 28th December, to celebrate their annual Festival of St. John. The W.M. elect, Bro. Frank John Vivian, was installed by the retiring Master, Bro. Mills, assisted by Bro. Pearce, who carried out the ancient ceremony very creditably and with much satisfaction to the Lodge. At the close of the ceremony the W.M. invested the following brethren as the Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Mills I.P.M., Hawkins S.W., Bazley J.W., Harvey Treasurer, Smith Secretary, West Chaplain, Sopers S.D., Richards J.D., Pearce M.C., Broad I.G., Bray Tyler, and Coombe Steward of the Charities, into whose hands the Lodge voted five guineas to the C.M.A. and Benevolent Fund, and ten guineas to the Boys' School. The Lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to the banquet at the White Hart Hotel, where a very pleasant evening was spent.

Antiquity Lodge, No. 170, Bolton.—The monthly meeting of this Lodge was held on Wednesday, the 13th December 1882, at the Bull's Head Inn, Bradshaw-gate, Bolton, at 6.30 p.m.—Present: Bros. George Taylor W.M., Wm. Cooper I.P.M., Rich. Duxberry S.W., Henry Broughton J.W., John Morris P.M. Secretary, John Barrett S.D., J. Galloway J.D., John Haslam I.G., Wm. Heywood Organist, Chorlton Steward, Carter, Kennedy, Nightingale. The minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, Mr. James George Cowper, of Bolton, hatter, was balloted for, approved, and initiated an Entered Apprentice Mason by Bro. William Cooper I.P.M., the working tools being explained by Bro. Broughton J.W. The brethren then proceeded to ballot for W.M. for the ensuing year, when Bro. Richard Duxberry S.W. was declared to be unanimously elected. Bros. William Nicholson P.M. Prov. G. Sword Bearer was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, Thomas Higson P.M. Tyler, John Wild P.M. re-elected Charity Representative of the Lodge. Bros. Broughton J.W. and Barrett were re-elected Auditors of the accounts for the past year. The Lodge was closed in form and with prayer at half-past eight o'clock, and the brethren proceeded to refreshment after labour.

PHŒNIX LODGE, No. 257.

THE installation of Bro. Ernest Hall as the W.M. of this Lodge for the ensuing year took place at the Lodge room in High-street, Portsmouth, on Wednesday, 27th ult. The ceremony was performed in efficient style by the retiring W.M., Captain W. H. C. St. Clair, R.N., who was supported by the Officers of the Lodge. There was a large attendance, while letters of apology were received from Bros. Sydney P. Hall (the well-known Graphic artist, and brother of the W.M.), H. Kimber W.M. 804, Thomas Cousins P.M. 257 P.P.G.W., Ellis W. Jolliffe, Henry Reed, W. Camper Storey, C. M. Houghton, Shenton, Herr Kreyer, and others. The W.M. appointed the following as his Officers:—Bros. Captain St. Clair, R.N., I.P.M., Miller S.W., Jolliffe J.W., Dr. O'Connor Treas., Hayman Sec., Rev. G. H. De Fraine Chap., Colonel Crease, C.B., S.D., Ferguson, R.N., J.D., Williams M.C., Houghton Org., Drummond I.G., Hall Steward, Carter and Exell Tylers. After the Lodge business, the brethren adjourned to the dining hall, where a récherché banquet was served, under the superintendence of Bro. W. Maybour, of Portsea. The newly-installed W.M. presided. The usual Masonic and other toasts were honoured, that of the W.M., proposed by Bro. Captain St. Clair, being enthusiastically received. The W.M. referred to the high position the Lodge had attained, and mentioned that it was now within three years of its centenary.

ST. JOHN'S LODGE, No. 328.

THE installation ceremony of this old and prosperous Lodge was held on 20th ult., when the W.M. elect, Bro. Mortimer, was duly placed in its chief chair, according to ancient custom. The ceremony of installation was conducted by Bro. Watson P.M. 328 P.P.G.D.C. The W.M. appointed as his Officers:—Bros. Taylor S.W., Grant J.W., Salter S.D., Carter J.D., Bovey I.G., Mugford S.S., Brooks Organist, Wakeham M.C., Bowden Chaplain, Harland Treasurer. At the conclusion of the ceremony the brethren adjourned to the Royal Hotel, where a most excellent banquet was provided by Bro. Foxlon.

"ONE AND ALL" LODGE, No. 330.

A MEETING of the brethren of this Lodge was held in their Hall in Turf-street, Bodmin, on the 20th ult. Bro. Treverton was installed in the chair as Worshipful Master, Bro. Rowe was unanimously elected Steward of the C.M.A. and B.F. Bro. Vercoe presented a Past Master's jewel to Bro. Rowe, in recognition of his services; he feelingly replied. The Officers appointed for the ensuing year are:—Bros. Vercoe I.P.M., Angwin S.W., Derry J.W., Rowe P.M. P.P.G.D.C. Treasurer, Edyvean Secretary, Spear S.D., Davey J.D., Whale M.C., Brewer I.G., Randall S.S., Watson J.S. The banquet, in celebration of the Festival of St. John, was held subsequently at Bro. Sandoe's, Royal Hotel. Forty members attended.

LOYAL VICTORIA LODGE, No. 557.

THE annual festival of the above Lodge was held on Thursday, 28th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Callington. The weather being extremely rough, the number of brethren present was fewer than on former occasions. Bro. George Morgan W.M. elect was installed by Bro. C. T. Pearce P.M. P.P.G.J.D., assisted by a large Board of Installed Masters. After the ceremony, which was most efficiently performed, the W.M. invested the following brethren as his Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Tamblyn I.P.M. Chaplain, Cousins S.W., Rabbage J.W., Pearce Treasurer, Williams Secretary, Bennett S.D., W. Bond J.D., Dawe I.G., T. C. Batty M.C., Edwards Organist, Norrington 1st Steward, Julyan 2nd Steward, Henwood Tyler, John Turner P.M. Steward to the Cornwall B. and A. Fund. The W.M., in a few well-chosen remarks, said he had endeavoured, with the advice of the P.M.'s present, to select his Officers so as to give satisfaction to all, and he trusted all would work harmoniously, and that every brother would do his best to be deserving the honour he had received. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren (about thirty) retired to Golding's Hotel, where a most excellent banquet was provided, and to which all did ample justice.

UNION LODGE, No. 411.

A REGULAR Lodge was held on Tuesday, 19th December, at the Masonic Hall, Reading. Bros. Mount Prov. G.S.W. Berks and Bucks W.M., Ferguson S.W., Wheeler J.W., Withers Secretary, Parry S.D., Witherington J.D., Blackwell I.G., Webb Steward, Hemmings Tyler; Past Masters Bros. Oades, Stephens, Egginton, Morris, Bradley; Bros. Tench, Sherwood, Higgs, George, Dodd, Long, Hawkes, McDowell. Visitors—Bros. Hole 410, Moran P.M. 1101, Hawkes J.W. 1101. After preliminaries, the ballot was taken for Mr. C. B. Tubbs, as an initiate, who was elected. Mr. G. H. Stubington was initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry. Bro. Ferguson was elected Master for 1883; he, in acknowledging the compliment, said: Worshipful Master and brethren, I thank you very sincerely for the honourable position you have thought fit to place me in as Master of this Lodge for the ensuing year, and I trust I shall receive from each member, as well as from the Past Masters and Officers of the Lodge, their hearty support and assistance in carrying out the good work of the Lodge, and that at the end of my year of office, I may vacate the chair with credit to the Lodge. I must admit it is with some diffidence that I accept the position, but I hope that at the end of my Mastership it will be found that your confidence has not been misplaced. The election of Treasurer resulted in the present W.M.'s appointment. Bro. Hemmings was re-elected Tyler. Some discussion took place respecting the demise of Bro. Jonathan Leaver (for 36 years Secretary of the Lodge), at Moulsford, in the parish of Cholsey, where he was buried without the knowledge of the Freemasons of Reading. It is in contemplation to erect a monument, either a tablet, stone, or window; the subject will be resumed at a future Lodge. All business being ended, Lodge was closed according to ancient form. The installation of Bro. Ferguson will take place on the third Tuesday in January. We congratulate Bro. Mount on a successful year of office, and on his having been appointed the Senior Grand Warden of the Province of Berks and Bucks.

ST. ANNE LODGE, No. 970.

THE brethren of this Lodge held their annual meeting on the 27th ult., at the Masonic Hall, East Looe. Owing, doubtless, to the wretched weather, there was not so large an attendance of members as might have been expected, the W.M. elect Bro. T. Cook being very popular among the brethren. Brother Cook was installed by his predecessor, Bro. R. Olver, supported by a full Board of I.M.'s. The ceremony was ably conducted by Bro. Olver, and at its close the W.M. invested the following brethren as his Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. R. Olver I.P.M., A. Hunter S.W., G. W. Martin J.W., G. Kerswill P.P.G.J.W. Treasurer, J. G. Henwood Secretary, J. Marshall S.D., S. White J.D., R. Edgcumbe I.G., J. Lillicrapp and S. Pearce Stewards, J. T. Hunting Tyler. The brethren afterwards reassembled at the Ship Hotel, where dinner was served up in excellent style by Bro. Cook. After dinner the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and the Treasurer congratulated the members on the flourishing financial condition of the Lodge. The health of Bro. G. W. Martin J.W. and late Secretary, who is about to leave England, was warmly drunk, and earnest wishes were expressed for his future prosperity in his new home. A very pleasant evening was spent, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

ELMS LODGE, No. 1212.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held at the Huyshe Masonic Hall, Stoke, when Bro. William Jenkins, who had been previously unanimously elected, was installed as the W.M. The important ceremony was well performed by Bros. Joseph Bassett, the retiring Master, T. Ripper P.M., and F. G. Bickle P.M., in a large Board of Installed Masters. The Officers appointed and invested were Bros. Joseph Bassett I.P. Master, H. Widden Senior Warden, William Bickle Junior Warden, William Fowler Treasurer, T. G. Bickle P.M. Secretary, J. Leonard Senior Deacon, John Elliott Junior Deacon, A. Watts Inner Guard, Cox M.C., Walter Wiggin Organist, Richard Bassett Senior Steward, Albert Spear Junior Steward, James Rashbrooke Tyler.

ST. JOHN'S LODGE, No. 1247.

THE annual meeting of the above Lodge was held on the 28th ult., at the Huyshe Masonic Temple, Plymouth. This, one of the younger Lodges, is also one of the most prosperous, and, under the presidency of W. Bro. J. Kinton-Bond, has gained increased repute. Bro. Bond, with the assistance of W. Bro. J. Russell Lord P.M., performed the ceremony of installing the W.M. elect, Bro. Richard A. Penrose, and the Installing Officers fully sustained the high reputation they hold in the Order. The Officers invested were Bros. Kinton-Bond I.P.M., Barter S.W., Elliott J.W., Lord P.M. Treasurer, Rendle P.M. Secretary, Rider S.D., Uglow J.D., Hamblyn I.G., Pearce P.M. M.C., Olver A.M.C., Strain Organist, Moses S.S., Dockett J.S., Phillips Tyler. The Lodge also unanimously chose W. Bro. Lord as their representative on the Committee of Petitions of the Provincial Grand Lodge, and Bro. Firke continues the Charity Steward for the Devon Masonic Educational Fund.

FREEMAN'S CHLORODYNE.

The Original and only true.

HUNDREDS of Medical Practitioners testify to its marvellous efficacy in immediately relieving and rapidly curing Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Spasms, Colic, Whooping Cough, and all Nerve Pains. It acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery. It rapidly relieves pain, from whatever cause, soothes and strengthens the system under exhausting diseases, and gives quiet and refreshing sleep.

Lord Chancellor Selborne, Lord Justice James, Lord Justice Mellish decided in favour of FREEMAN'S ORIGINAL CHLORODYNE, and against Brown and Davenport, compelling them to pay all costs in the suits. See Times of July 24th, 1873. Bottles 1s 1½d, 2s 9d, 4s 6d, 11s, and 20s. Sold by all Chemists.

TESTIMONIALS.—Head Quarter Staff, Cabul, May 31st, 1880. Mr. R. Freeman, Dear Sir,—It is with much pleasure I am able to state that your Chlorodyne has been of special service to me in alleviating the wearisome spasms of Asthma, which is here existent in an aggravated form. Many of my patients now come and beg me to give them that medicine which always relieves them, and which I need hardly say is your Chlorodyne. Yours faithfully, CHARLES W. OWEN, L.R.C.P. Lon., M.R.C.S. Eng., the Divisional Head Quarter Staff and Civil Surgeon, Cabul.

The Times, August 13th, 1877. From our own Correspondent with the Russian Army. Okoum, July 25th, 1877. The want of sanitary arrangements in the Russian Camp was dreadful, and had we remained there a few weeks longer, dysentery and typhoid fever would have played more havoc in our ranks than the bombs of the Turks. I myself acquired an unenviable reputation as a doctor, owing to my being provided with a small bottle of CHLORODYNE, with which I effected miraculous cures.

MASONIC BENEVOLENCE IN 1882.

WE publish elsewhere a letter from "Q," a frequent correspondent of ours, and his remarks on the subject of Masonic Benevolence, so far as they concern our Institutions, not so much in relation to the past and previous years, but with a view to the future, are well worthy of consideration. We know from our own experience that a large number of brethren are of the same opinion as he is as to the policy which should be adopted for some years to come, and that, having latterly increased so enormously the liabilities of our said Institutions, we are in duty bound to proceed with caution, if only that we may be the better assured of our ability to maintain them at their present strength. This view is at all events one which we cannot afford well to despise. We have no right to expect that brethren who have already given freely and frequently out of their means in order to provide for the education of our boys and girls, and make comfortable the declining years of the old folks, will go on repeating their subscriptions regularly; for it is not by any means apparent that the enthusiasm of the minority of the Craft, which has done this good work, has seriously affected the disposition of the majority to take their share of it. Brethren who are as accustomed as we are to scan narrowly the lists of subscriptions announced at successive Anniversary Festivals must be well aware that it invariably happens that the Lodges in London which have given towards one list, go on giving towards the next and the next and the next, and that the appearance of a new Lodge—new that is to say, in the sense of not having before appeared, or but seldom—is a matter of infrequent occurrence. Newly-created Lodges are proud of signalising the commencement of their career by giving liberally, but these are necessarily limited in numbers. Moreover, in a few years they cease to be new, and the efforts they make to raise Lodge subscriptions become in time somewhat less enthusiastic, or more probably still, they feel it is necessary they should have a little breathing time before renewing their assistance to the Charities. As to the Provinces, some make a point of giving regularly and liberally, and others, when they do contribute, do so handsomely, while there are yet others who, having local charity associations of their own, are only able to spare from time to time a modest donation to one or other of the Central Institutions. There is also, we regret to say, a fourth category, in which are included the Provinces which rarely, if ever, contribute anything. To state the case summarily, it will be found that the duty of providing from year to year the wherewith to keep our Charities in good working condition is in the main discharged by the same Lodges in London and the same Provinces, and it is not going too far to suggest that a day may come when these Lodges and Provinces may grow tired of these self-imposed responsibilities, and the alternative be forced upon us, either of looking for help where hitherto we have looked in vain or but to little purpose, or of reducing the number of those who derive benefit from our Charities. We allow these are not the most agreeable suggestions to offer, but they are suggestions which it would be an act of folly for us to ignore, and for this reason, "Q.'s" letter, which deals pretty exhaustively with the figure part of this question, is the more worthy of our consideration.

Naturally enough he begins by speaking in laudatory terms of the results of last year's Masonic Benevolence. Over £40,000 from subscriptions and donations is unquestionably a magnificent sum. What, however, he mostly directs his attention to is, the extent of the liabilities to which we stand committed and the extent to which those liabilities are provided for out of permanent income. He estimates the average annual expenditure of the three Institutions as amounting to £33,500 namely, on account of the Benevolent £13,500, of which £11,600 is for Annuities; Girls' School, £10,000; Boys' School, £10,000; and those who have seen the several reports must be well aware that this is by no means an excessive estimate. To meet this outlay there is, he points out, a permanent income amounting, in round figures to £5,900, of which, some £3,590 belongs to the Benevolent, £1,620 to the Girls' School, and £690 to the Boys' School. That is to say, the permanent liability in respect of the three Institutions taken all together is about five and two-thirds as much as the permanent income they receive together, while, if we take them separately, the liability of the Benevolent stands to its permanent income in the ratio of about three and three quarters to one; the liability of the Girls' School to its permanent income in that of over six to one; and the liability of the Boys' School to its permanent income in that of, as nearly as possible, thirteen and a half to one. To put the case less technically; the Benevolent Institution has £1 of fixed income to meet every £3 15s of liability, the Girls' School £1 of fixed income to meet over £6 of liability, and the Boys' School £1 of fixed income to meet £13 10s of liability, while if we take all three together there is £1 of income to meet £5 13s 4d of liability. His contention is, that under these circumstances, which he states briefly, but we have stated more fully, before we think of extending the sphere of our operations, it is our bounden duty to reduce this serious inequality between fixed income and liability. He argues, reasonably enough, that in the event of a war, a commercial crisis, or a succession of bad harvests, it would be useless to expect that the large sums which we have succeeded of late in raising by voluntary subscriptions would continue to be received. He points out that we narrowly escaped a great war in 1878, and suggests the possibility that the next time there is a serious difference among the Powers we may not be equally fortunate. He implies, if he does not particularly state it, that if either, or more than one, of these unpleasant contingencies should overtake us, whatever deficiency might be caused through the loss of voluntary assistance would have to be made good out of our investments, and this would necessarily have the effect of reducing the permanent income that is now available. We have spoken of his argument as being reasonable enough, and we will venture to emphasise this by adding that in the views to which he gives expression there is nothing of an exaggerated character. He advocates caution in our proceedings, and having regard to what we have done in the way of increase during the Grand Mastership of the Prince of Wales, we cannot say he is wrong in so doing. Moreover, though in the nature of things it is not in the power of the next and succeeding generations to show any consideration to the present, it is certainly part of the latter's duty to avoid committing those who may come after it to an expenditure which they may be ill-qualified or incapable to bear. Moreover, "Q.'s" letter comes the more opportunely, seeing that the Girls' School is not yet up to its full strength, while, as regards the Boys' School, we are to a certain extent committed to the establishment in connection with it of a Preparatory School. Consequently, there will, in the course of a short time, be a still larger amount of permanent liability placed upon our shoulders, and the duty of caution becomes more imperative still. We have reason to be proud of what we have done of late, and we must not mar the excellent effect of that good work by overtaxing our strength. Even the generous-hearted Mason must occasionally draw tight his purse strings.

OURSELVES.

IT is not often that we obtrude matters of a personal character upon our readers, but the receipt of so many kindly letters, from friends and subscribers in various parts of the country, emboldens us to say a few words respecting the progress and present position of this journal. We thank our correspondents most sincerely for these expressions of their sympathy and fraternal recognition, and also for their reciprocated wishes for our enlarged prosperity in the year upon which we have just entered. As we observed last week, we hope by steadily and consistently following the course we have pursued during the eight years of our existence, and by the improvements which are contemplated in the various departments of this journal, we may succeed in securing for ourselves a greater share of public confidence than we have enjoyed in the past, and that the CHRONICLE may be the means of constantly increasing usefulness to all sections of the Craft. We take the opportunity, at the opening of a new year—when men are forming their plans and entering into arrangements for the future—of bringing somewhat more into detail than it would be good taste often to do the claims that a paper like our own possesses upon the class to whose welfare it is devoted. And we do so on this occasion with entire kindness and frankness, knowing that our own interests are inseparably associated with those of the vast and important Fraternity amongst whom the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE circulates.

The further our experience as journalists extends, the more conscious we are how far our paper comes short of the standard we should desire it to reach; but yet we must be content for our work to be judged on its own merits. As we have never made promises or professions, it would ill become us now by a resort to such means to conciliate public favour, if we have not already by our past efforts succeeded in securing it. These efforts, however, we may truly say, have been appreciated in a degree far beyond what we could have hoped, and that our paper has found a circulation, and commands an influence, amongst the Craft generally it would be ungrateful to deny.

That in one respect, however, we have deserved the success that has attended our exertions we have no difficulty in saying. With whatever inefficiency it may have been, we have yet endeavoured to adhere to the great principles which guided us at the outset of our venture. We have always felt the importance of providing a journal worthy of general support amongst Masons, containing information on all matters of interest to the Craft, affording every opportunity for criticism and interchange of thought and opinion; and this we have sought to do in a manner free from any language or allusion that would offend the most fastidious sense of delicacy or propriety. As a class journal, addressing the vast number of thoughtful and studious men who are ranged under the banner of our Ancient and Honourable Institution, we have been free to admit all matters bearing upon the progress and welfare of the Order, deprecating the introduction of factious jealousy in anything affecting the general interests of the Brotherhood.

We are desirous, however, of extending, if we can, still more widely the influence of our paper, and to make it a still more complete and interesting reporter of Masonic events and opinions; and we have thought that we should take the present opportunity of explaning to our many thousands of readers why and how they should aid us in doing so. And first, perhaps, it may be proper to ask what are the legitimate uses of what is called a "class" newspaper? Some are inclined to ascribe to it a very circumscribed field indeed, and suppose that its functions are limited to the mere detail, without note or comment, of the affairs of the circle amongst which it moves; and that if it assumes in any degree the position of a moral or social teacher, or an advocate of ever-increasing improvement, it goes beyond its province. We have never accepted this definition of our duties. We do, indeed, hold most fully the desirableness of making our journal a medium for circulating with accuracy, and with a fulness proportionate to their interest and importance, the various occurrences of the Craft. Care and judgment are also needed in no small degree not to give undue prominence to any one interest, or to the affairs of any special locality, but to present, as it were, a bird's-eye view of the entire occurrences in Freemasonry, both at home, in the colonies, and abroad. But while accomplishing this, the intelligent and conscientious journalist has other responsibilities. Addressing himself as he does every week to the minds and thoughts of students of the Art, it is for him to interest and instruct, as well as to amuse; and so, alike by his own writings as by his selections from those of others, he is called to point the moral of the tale of current events his columns tell, and to enforce the great principles of Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth which it is the object of his journal to promote.

But a Masonic paper has other duties, of a less lofty, yet perhaps of more direct, interest to its readers. It is called as a sentinel to guard the special interests of the Craft, to watch the conduct of the various Lodges and branches of the Order, to expose wrongdoing when it has been made manifest, to foster intelligently the spirit of Masonic enterprise and charity, and to facilitate and stimulate measures of a moral or material nature—in a word, to exercise an honest, faithful, and fearless guardianship over all the interests of the community amongst whom it is circulated. To be qualified to discharge a trust so important as this, a journal must commend itself, by the straightforward honesty of its tone, to the confidence of its readers; maintaining a spirit of manly independence, it must never descend to unworthy personalities; and whilst zealously promoting every project calculated to further the general good, it must keep itself unspotted from even the suspicion of partisanship with cliques or coteries. The influence of a paper or magazine conducted on such principles as this must be healthful and beneficial to the audience by whom it is listened to, and the effect of such a messenger of information and instruction cannot be other than the most potent.

At the same time, it is a fact that the sheet we sell our readers costs us more money than we receive for it, and if the price we get for our paper merely was considered, we should expend our industry, and capital, and thought not only without pecuniary return, but at a positive loss, for, as is very well known, the profits of such a paper as ours are derived almost exclusively from the advertisements that are published in its columns. We, then, have no difficulty in appealing to all who are interested in the Craft, and its literary support, to sustain us liberally by their advertisements. To those engaged in business we shall not repeat the familiar arguments in favour of advertising. They are so generally understood now by intelligent commercial men that it has come to be accepted as an axiom that, for ordinary business, advertising is essential to success. We shall, therefore, only say to the vast audience to whom we speak that there is no other agency in existence so effective for making business announcements public as in the columns of this journal. And we must remind our business friends that the gain they thus derive from advertising is not only direct, but incidental. The general effect upon the interests of any community of a good paper is, as every one knows who has studied the subject, most important; and, as we have shown, a good journal cannot be sustained without liberal advertising. Thus it will be seen that the judicious advertiser not only increases his own business, but at the same time the prosperity of the Craft, by the policy he pursues; and we might cite the highest commercial authorities in support of the statement that no investment pays so certain and so large a per centage as advertising of this character.

Nor less useful are the pages of a respectable journal for bringing under the notice of the entire class sought to be reached appeals for charitable or benevolent purposes, or proposals for new commercial enterprises, or contemplated business improvements. One notice in the editorial columns of such a paper will at once find attention and circulate information on subjects like those we have named which no amount of private effort could produce; and the cost of the publication of the lists of the donors, the appeals of committees, the representations of the promoters of worthy enterprises, is almost in every case repaid twenty-fold in the increased subscriptions they produce. The policy of economy, therefore, that would save the cost of advertising in such cases is of the "penny-wise and pound foolish" kind, that all experienced promoters of works of charity or schemes of public enterprise or improvement have long since abandoned.

It will, then, be seen that as the prosperity, so the real power, of a newspaper depends upon the extent of its advertising business, and therefore we appeal to the entire advertising community for their liberal support in this way. We make this appeal on independent commercial grounds, for we give the most abundant value for the price paid us. In speaking thus we do not wish to be understood in any sense using the language of complaint, for, on the contrary, it is our grateful duty to acknowledge that never, we believe, has the advertising business of this journal been larger or more satisfactory than during the year just ended. But our ambition is to achieve still greater things, and in thus pointing out the advantages of advertising in our columns, we are but suggesting the means by which our supporters, with pecuniary profit to themselves and advantage to the Craft, may extend the circulation and increase the power of this paper. That the spirit in which we offer this appeal will be understood and reciprocated we have no doubt; and we believe that many who differ from us on some "minor points" still respect us for the honesty with which we maintain what we believe to be the true interests of the Order, and will sympathise with the desire to uphold a journal which, rising above party considerations in all matters that concern the welfare of the Craft, will be found advocating any measure calculated to promote the general good, from whatever quarter or whatever party it may proceed.

Of course, to the brethren of the mystic tie we come with especial claims—claims which we are sure will be cheerfully admitted—for support even more generous than we have hitherto received. We pray them to bear in mind what a powerful agency this paper places in their hands for propagating and defending the principles of Fraternity and Charity which they love, and to the advocacy of which let us assure them the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE will be devoted in the future with as great earnestness and zeal as in the past—and we hope with efficiency, at least, not diminished.

DISTRICT G. LODGE OF NORTHERN CHINA.

A REGULAR Communication of this District Grand Lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Shanghai, on Friday, the 6th October last. The R.W. Bro. Cornelius Thorne District Grand Master presided, and among those present were Bros. T. W. Kingsmill Past District Grand Senior Warden as Dep. Dist. G. M., H. Evans D.G.S.W., Lewis Moore D.G.J.W., H. S. Morris D.G. Treasurer, W. H. Short D.G.Reg., W. H. Anderson President of D.Board of General Purposes, A. Johnsford D.G. Secretary, D. M. David P.G.D.S.D. as D.G.S.D., J. D. Bishop D.G.J.D., E. P. Lalcaca D.G.D. of C., G. R. Wingrove as D.G.S.B., G. B. Fentum D.G.O., John Morris D.G.P., J. Findlay, and C. J. Holliday D.G. Stewards, C. Merritt as D.G. Tyler, while among the visitors was R.W. Bro. C. P. Chater D. Grand Master Hong Kong and South China. The members and visitors having taken their places, R.W. Bro. C. Thorne D.G.M. accompanied by R.W. Bro. C. P. Chater entered and was saluted in ancient form, and Bro. Chater having, at the invitation of the District Grand Master, been saluted with the grand honours and acknowledged the compliment, District Grand Lodge was opened, and the minutes of the April Communication read and confirmed. A resolution fixing the regular meetings of the District Grand Lodge for the 7th January and 22nd September, or as nearly as possible to those dates, was confirmed. From the report of District Board of General Purposes, which was submitted, and, on motion duly made and seconded, carried, it appeared that (1) a provisional arrangement till the end of the year that the Hall should be lighted, cleaned, and warmed on Lodge nights at a charge per night of two and a half dollars was held over for reference to the District Grand Lodge, and (2) that Brother T. Hore had resigned the office of District Grand Tyler, his place being temporarily occupied by Brother Charles Merritt. A motion to the effect that the sum of two and a half dollars for one night in accordance with the above arrangement be paid was agreed to. The D.G.M. then read an extract from a letter he had received from the Grand Secretary under date 30th March 1882 on the subject of Wardens conferring degrees, which was to the following effect: "With reference to the question of a Warden conferring degrees and the views of my predecessor as expressed in his letter of 18th January 1877, I can only say that the regulation I have quoted in my letter of the 22nd October last is the ruling given by the Grand Registrar of late years. Although, however, this must be considered as the law generally, there may be exceptional cases, as you urge, in distant spots, where, at the discretion of the local authority, the rule may be relaxed so as to permit of a Warden conferring the degree, but in such case he should be held responsible that no Installed Master was procurable within practicable distance." A case was mentioned in which the D.G.M. stated that it had been unofficially brought to his notice that endeavours had been made to obtain instruction in an irregular manner in some of the Lodges under the jurisdiction of the D.G. Lodge and that, in reply to a communication of his, the Grand Secretary had informed him that there was no doubt such irregularity constituted a Masonic offence, and that it was in his (the D.G.M.'s) power to inflict the punishment of admonition, fine, or suspension, on conviction. Among other matters referred to was one concerning the Lodge Germania, Tientsin, holding under the Grand Lodge of the Three Globes, Berlin. The D.G.M. said he had visited that Lodge by invitation on the occasion of the installation of its W. Master, Bro. J. Haas, who was not entrusted with the secrets of the Chair, and was consequently not qualified to be present at a Board of Installed Masters in an English Lodge. He had explained this to Bro. Haas, and the latter had fully understood and appreciated the explanation. Complimentary reference having been made to the presence of Right Worshipful Bro. Chater D.G.M. Hong-Kong and South China, and the kind and valuable assistance that brother had rendered when the D. G. Lodge of Northern China was constituted, and Bro. Chater having appropriately expressed his acknowledgments and the satisfaction he had experienced from being present that evening, District Grand Lodge was closed with the accustomed formalities.

The "Phœnix Universal Multiplying Tablets," of Messrs. Rath and Co., of Paul's Alley, Australian Avenue, E.C., will be found invaluable for the reproduction, whether for trade purposes or amusement, of Manuscripts, Sketches, Music, or Plates from Illustrated Papers or any Printed Pictures, &c., by architects, surveyors, solicitors, artistes, musicians, secretaries, and indeed those who require such multiplication. The process is very simple, and the materials inexpensive and trustworthy. There is no time wasted, as with other processes in use, in washing and preparing the Tablets, the production being effected so rapidly that in a few minutes hundreds of copies in different indelible colours and on different varieties of material can be produced without fail. The manufacturers already possess more than a hundred and twenty forms of reproductions by these Tablets, of which a first series of seventeen has been published, one being for copying printed originals, types, and illustrations, without any machine whatever, by mere manual proceeding, in colours and bronze. We commend this invention to the notice of our readers.

Monday the 8th instant was the nineteenth anniversary of the birthday of Prince Albert Victor, eldest son of the Prince and Princess of Wales, and was marked by the usual observances at St. James's and in Windsor.

MASONIC BENEVOLENCE IN 1882.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Like every one else I have read with the greatest satisfaction your statement of particulars showing the amounts received from all sources during the past year by our different Charitable Institutions and the Grants made by the Lodge of Benevolence during the same period. Especially worthy of praise is the total of the "Donations and Subscriptions" which, for the Schools and Benevolent together, amount to £40,893 17s 9d; and if to this be added, as I think may fairly be done, the "Huyshe Devon Presentation" to the Boys' School of five hundred guineas, we have a sum of £41,418 17s 9d raised by the benevolent exertions of the Craft during the year 1882, of which £14,139 18s 8d—including the aforesaid Huyshe Presentation of £525—was received by the Boy's School, £13,927 8s 4d by the Girls' School, and £13,351 10s 9d by the Benevolent Institution. As regards the other subscriptions we have, in respect of the R.M.B.I. for Dividends, Interest and Rent £1,893 16s 10d; from Grand Lodge £1,200 (the full amount for the year is £1,600); and from Grand Chapter £150; together £3,243 16s 10d. For the Girls' School we have Grand Lodge £150 and Grand Chapter £10 10s; Dividends and Interest £1,499 8s 1d; Purchase Case £187 10s; Music Fees £186 7s 6d; and Miscellaneous £8 11s 9d; total £2,042 7s 4d. For the Boys' School Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter, as in the Girls' School, together £160 10s; Dividends £530; Music Fees £49 7s; total £739 17s. These figures show the following results as regards (1) Fluctuating Income from "Donations and Subscriptions and (2) Permanent Income from Grants by Grand Lodge and Chapter and Dividends—the other items, such as interest on moneys on deposit, music fees, presentations, &c., being for obvious reasons omitted from the calculation. For the sake of perspicuity I will state them thus:—

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

Fluctuating Income from Donations and Subscriptions in 1882, say		£13,350	0 0
Permanent Income, viz.:—
Dividends, say	£1,830
Grants	1,750*
Total		£16,930	0 0

* N.B. Only three-fourths of the full grant from Grand Lodge received last year.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

Fluctuating Income from Donations and Subscriptions in 1882, say		£13,927	0 0
Permanent Income, viz.:—
Dividends, say	£1,455
Grants, say	160
		1,615	0 0
Total		£15,542	0 0

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

Fluctuating Income from Donations and Subscriptions in 1882, say		£13,615	0 0
Permanent Income, viz.:
Dividends	£530
Total		£14,305	0 0

It will be seen that while the Fluctuating Income of the three Institutions varies but inconsiderably, the Permanent Income of the Benevolent is vastly more than double that of the Girls' School, and five times as much as that of the Boys' School, while that of the Girls' School is as nearly as possible two and one-third times as much as that of its sister Institution at Wood Green.

Then the Investments stand as follow:—

Benevolent Institution	£64,000
Girls' School, say	£45,000
Boys' School	£15,000

There is then a vast inequality in the Permanent Incomes of the three Institutions, both in respect of those derived from Investments and the Grants by Grand Lodge and Chapter.

As regards expenditure, I shall not, I imagine, be very far out when I state it to be in round figures as follows, expenses of management being included in the case of each Institution:—

Benevolent Institution	£13,500
Girls' School	£10,000
Boys' School	£10,000
Total	£33,500

This is the sum that must be provided under any circumstances, if the Institutions are to be maintained in their present state of efficiency. Of course, it will be said—What could be better under the circumstances? Here is an Income from voluntary contributions of over £40,000 to meet an expenditure of no more than £33,500. Consequently, there is a balance on the right side of the account of £5,500, to say nothing of the certain receipt from permanent sources of a further £5,885—say, £5,900. What I wish to ask, however, is—How will it fare with our Charities, if at some time, nearer or more remote, the Donations and Subscriptions from the Craft show a substantial diminution from, say, £13,000 to £10,000 for each Institution in the year? Such a contingency must be taken into account by a wise administrative body, and it ought in my opinion to be so taken into account forthwith. We have before now had bad harvests, there may be, as there has been before, a stagnation in trade, or the country may find itself engaged in a great war, with a triple income tax and heavily-increased customs' duties to provide for. Whence, in either of these cases, shall we look to obtain the wherewith to maintain and educate our 450 Boys and Girls, and find the annuities for 325 Old Folks? We cannot always expect to have sunshine, and when the rainy weather comes and is prolonged for some years, as it was during the long war at the close of the last and the beginning of the present century, and as it may be again, can we hope that the Craft collectively will be much better off than the rest of their countrymen, and that they will be able to find the requisite funds for the necessities of their Institutions, just as they do in these piping times of peace? Much as I should like to do so, I cannot picture to myself so fortunate a state of things. I remember the Crimean War, which, though it lasted but little more than two years, cost about one hundred millions sterling. The then income tax of—if I remember rightly—11½d and 16d in the pound, according to the amount of income—pressed heavily on the well-to-do professional and trading classes from which come the majority of Craftsmen, and left them but a narrow margin for the luxury of Charity. We were on the verge of war in 1878, and, though I have no desire to be thought a Cassandra, it is by no means improbable, that, when the Eastern or some other great question affecting British interests crops up again, we may not be so fortunate as we were a few years ago, and keep clear of the disturbance. In short, we must not look forward to be always in a position to extract £40,000 a year from the pockets of the Fraternity.

In these circumstances, I hold that it will be well if we look the future boldly in the face. During the last few years we have pursued the plan of extending the benefits of our Institutions, and having regard to the fact that the permanent income of our three Charities together is less than one-fifth of their liabilities, I think it behoves us to adopt, for some time to come at all events, a policy of consolidation. Let us resolve on making no additions to the strength of our Schools and Benevolent Institution, at least until the vast inequality between the permanent income and normal expenditure of each is greatly reduced.

I am well aware that this is the reverse of the popular view in regard to our Institutions. They have prospered of late so marvellously that it does not appear to enter into the minds of Freemasons that the contingency of a war, a succession of bad harvests, or a financial crisis must seriously affect the receipts of our Charities. I am equally well aware that a policy of increase has about it a glorious fascination. I am moreover well aware that the expression of so unpopular a view would be quite uncalled for, if every subscribing Mason gave only the small sum of five shillings a-year to each Institution. Then they would have the wherewith to make the necessary provision for present requirements and at the same time to largely increase their investments against the inevitable rainy day. But I cannot shut my eyes to the fact that between the increased expenditure of, and the increasing demands upon, our Charities, we are going out of our way to invite the very failure of our obligations which all members of our Fraternity are so anxious to avoid.

Apologising for the length of this letter,

I remain, fraternally yours,

"Q."

MASONIC LITERATURE.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Permit me to congratulate you, whilst reciprocating the "Compliments of the Season," upon the new departure which your excellent journal has taken, and the improvements which are visible at the outset of your new arrangements. Few but those intimately connected with journalistic work know the amount of anxiety, thought, and care—to say nothing of expense—that is involved in the production of a newspaper, and if this be true in an ordinary sense, I imagine it is far more so in dealing with a class journal, and particularly one devoted to the interests of our Craft. As a rule, I fear Masons are not quick to appreciate the means placed within their reach, of acquiring information and a store of useful knowledge. Masonic journals are often heedlessly thrown aside unopened and unread, much to the disadvantage of those who profess to strive after "more light" in pursuance of their study of the Art. All the greater credit is due, therefore, to persistent enterprise, such as your own, to keep before such as are desirous of acquiring knowledge a record of events which are of daily occurrence and interest to the Craft, which should be more universally appreciated than they are.

I have watched with pleasure the steady, consistent course which the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE has pursued during the eight years of its existence, and consider the Craft is indebted to you for the mass of valuable information and record of Masonic intelligence contained in the volumes which I am proud to point at, ranged on the shelves of my library. They are to me a source of infinite pleasure in the hours of relaxation, and invaluable for reference on many points which call for thoughtful consideration in the execution of my Masonic duties. I would that every Lodge in the kingdom, nay, every individual brother, had secured to itself and himself the privilege of possessing so comprehensive and valuable a compendium of Masonic intelligence, criticism and counsel, and that they would put the same to practical use, in which case they could derive nothing but advantage to themselves and those around them.

I am fully aware of the difficulties you must have had to surmount; and to which you so modestly allude in your leaders last week. Such efforts, made patriotically in the cause of our Institution, deserve all the encouragement which it is in the power of the Craft to bestow, and I for one sincerely trust that in the future the brethren will be willing, even more than in the past, to show their appreciation of the labour and expense put forward in order to advance the true interests of Freemasonry.

I regarded with no little surprise and regret the apparent suspension of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE for a couple of weeks recently; but its reappearance in a more vigorous and complete form has set my fears at rest, for I should regard it as a positive loss had any apathy on the part of your should-be supporters and subscribers induced you to discontinue the issue of so valuable and essential a help to me and my fellow students of the Mystic Art. With all good wishes for the coming year,

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

SENIOR WARDEN.

OUR MASONIC ORGANS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASONS' CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—It can hardly have escaped you that certain vague rumours have been whispered about amongst the brethren that we were about to lose your valuable literary aid, in consequence of an apathy on the part of the brethren in according sufficient support to keep the CHRONICLE afloat. The assurance to the contrary conveyed in your last issue is most welcome to me, as I am certain it will be to many other brethren; for I should be utterly at a loss at the end of the week could I not number amongst my literary budget the familiar organs of the Craft, which I always peruse with much interest and pleasure. Considering the vast amount of valuable information you provide weekly, and the admirable means you open to Masons for the interchange of friendly thought and opinions, your journal should be read, certainly in every Lodge, if not by every member of the Order.

As a rule, Masons are not great readers: they are content with things as they find them in Lodge, or at their meetings for instruction. But I must say that, apart from the interest I have derived from a perusal of Masonic doings in this and other countries, recorded in your columns, I have been much edified and instructed by your able dissertations on the principles of Freemasonry, your criticism on nice points connected with the Craft, and the freely expressed opinions thereon by your numerous and talented correspondents.

I am, therefore, glad that the suspension of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE was only temporary, to enable you to pull matters straight and to complete another volume, and that you purpose with renewed vigour to continue your laudable efforts on behalf of the Craft, on a wider and improved scale.

With all best wishes for your enterprise, believe me to remain,

Yours very fraternally,

CONSTANT READER.

Torquay, 9th January 1883.

P.S.—Kindly renew my annual subscription, and send copy weekly, as directed, to my brother at Hornsea.

We are surprised at the letter, signed S. X., which appeared in our contemporary and which, while it animadverts most strongly on the courtesy of the officials of our Boys' School at Wood Green, would lead people to infer that the youngsters are anything but well treated. All who like ourselves have seen anything of the Institution must be well aware that such allegations and suggestions have no foundation whatever in fact. The officials are, at all times and in all circumstances, as courteous as it is possible for any persons similarly placed to be, while the Boys, if we may judge from their appearance, are the picture of contentment and happiness. As to the "awe-struck manner of one or two of the poor little fellows who had occasion to address" the said "S. X." and his companion on the occasion of their visit, we should, if such a thing were possible, be inclined to attribute it to the terror-inspiring aspect of the visitors, whose appearance must have exhibited a considerable amount of ferocity in order to have produced so unaccustomed an effect on the part of the little boys. We would point out that Brother Doctor Morris is as kind as he is capable, and that his subordinates, be they matrons or masters, have shown themselves on all occasions to be his worthy coadjutors. The executive, that is, the House Committee, but more especially Brother Binckes, the Secretary of the School, are as untiring in their efforts to promote the comfort and happiness of the pupils, as they are kind and considerate in their demeanour. The testimony of successive Festival Chairmen to the efficiency of the system of education pursued at the School and its happy effects on the Boys is so well known that we need do no more than refer to it as being ten thousand times more valuable in its favour than S. X.'s attempts at denunciation are in the opposite direction. Our Boys' School is not, perhaps, a perfect institution—having regard to the fact of its being worked by fallible men, that is out of the question; but that it will successfully bear comparison with other schools of the same or similar character has been proved again and again to the infinite credit of the Secretary, the Committees, and the Staff. Indeed, we almost feel ashamed at having felt called upon to defend its high character, nor should we have taken heed of the letter in question, but for the baneful effects it must exercise on the reputation of the School in the minds of those who are unacquainted with its tone and management.

The monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall, when there were present Bros. Stewart (in the chair), Dewar, Adlard, Mather, Matier, Roebuck, Moon, Bowyer, Duff-Filer, Rev. Richard Morris, D D. (Head Master), Brackstone Baker, Massey, Gladwell, Festa, Mann, Webb, Young, Gillard, Maple, Ousey, Paas, Saunders, Godson, Motion, Martin, Venn, Palmer, Binckes (Secretary). Two presentation cases were accepted, and two candidates were withdrawn; nine new applicants were placed on the list, and four outfits were granted. The list of candidates for the April election was settled at sixty-seven, and twelve vacancies were declared. It was remarked by Bro. Binckes that in October there would probably be twenty-two vacancies. Bro. Edgar Bowyer called attention to a letter printed in the Freemason, signed S. X., in which complaint was made of what the writer considered incivility he had received when he visited the School at Wood Green; and Bro. Bowyer inquired what would be done to ascertain the truth or falsehood of the statements in the letter, as it was the first time during his long acquaintance with the Institution that any such complaint had been made. Bro. Binckes said the letter was not properly before this Committee. The proper course would be to lay it before the House Committee on the 19th inst., and inquire into it. The letter would then be read in the minutes of the Committee at the next meeting of the General Committee, on the 3rd of February, and it would then be properly before the General Committee. Dr. Morris said the letter was thoroughly censorious, ill-tempered, and petty, and it was false on the face of it. The writer, who said he was ten minutes at the School, wrote about the awe-stricken appearance of the boys: the boys were admitted to be in School at the time of the visit. Did the writer expect them to be mirthful at such a time? He at first felt inclined to answer the letter, but it was so petty, and as the writer was no gentleman, he resolved not to answer it. If the Committee thought fit to do so they might. During the eight years he had been at the School, he had never received such indignity, except on one occasion, when he had to threaten to have a man turned out, he was so rude. Bro. Raynham Stuart said the more dignified way for the Committee would be to treat the letter with contempt. Bro. Binckes said the letter had appeared in print, and there were certain charges in it. The House Committee might inquire into the matter. It was hardly worth while to remain under these charges if they could get rid of them. Bro. Matier said the letter was an anonymous one. The author should write to the Committee and give his name, and the charges could be inquired into. Dr. Morris remarked that the editor of the Freemason was a weak-minded man; he refused the letter last week, and inserted it this. The Committee then adjourned.

The brethren of the Stockwell Lodge of Instruction, No. 1339, accompanied by their Preceptor, Brother Frances P.G.S.D. Surrey, will visit the Wandsworth Lodge of Instruction, No. 1044, on Tuesday, the 16th inst., for the purpose of working the Fifteen Sections. The Lodge meets at the East Hill Hotel, Alma road, Wandsworth, and will be opened at 7 o'clock precisely.

NEW YEAR'S ENTERTAINMENT AT WOOD GREEN.

THE bleak weather on Thursday evening did not prevent a large assemblage of friends from participating in the New Year's entertainment given to the pupils at the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, arrangements for which had, as usual, been made by the House Committee. These Festivals are looked forward to with very keen interest by the chubby little lads who, from a variety of circumstances remain at school, while the majority of their comrades are away enjoying their Christmas vacation; and, judging from the happy faces assembled in the great hall on Thursday evening, the considerate kindness of the executive in providing them with a couple of hours' real enjoyment was appreciated to the full. It is very evident that those to whom have been entrusted the conduct of this splendid Institution, do not believe in the motto, "All work and no play," and the consequence is that there are very few "dull boys" among the circle over which Bro. the Rev. Dr. Morris so genially and ably presides as Head Master. We have had the pleasurable duty, on many occasions, both at the summer athletic fêtes and other red-letter days at Wood Green, to notice how thoroughly wholesome relaxation is blended with the ordinary studies in the School, and we must congratulate the House Committee and the subscribers generally, upon the happy results which have flowed from the wise and discreet admixture of labour and recreation included in the curriculum at this Institution. In the face of many difficulties and disappointments, which were alluded to in the course of the evening by the indefatigable and excellent Secretary, Bro. F. Binckes, a varied and attractive programme was placed before the boys and their friends at this year's merry making, and all passed off as pleasantly as could be desired. The youngsters having been treated to a little extra consideration in the dining-hall by their ever-attentive and thoughtful Matron, Miss Hall, assembled at half-past six o'clock for the entertainment, and we could but notice the cheerful, happy countenances of the lads as they filed into the room, and took their seats, full of anticipation of the treat in store for them. Here they were joined by a large company of friends and supporters of the institution, who occupied the front tiers and seats, and amongst whom we noticed—Bro. J. L. Mather, Bro. C. F. Matier, Mrs. and Miss Matier, Bro. the Rev. Dr. Morris, Bro. Frederick Binckes (Secretary), the Misses Binckes, Bro. C. F. Hogard, Bro. G. F. Row, Mrs. Culmer, Mrs. Canning, Bro. W. Wray Morgan, Mrs. and Miss H. E. Morgan, Mrs. J. Constable, Bro. E. C. Massey, Mrs. Penny, Bro. Richardson, Mrs. and the Misses Durrant, Mrs. Bowyer and Family, and many other visitors resident in the village of Wood-green and its surroundings. As the audience was assembling the band of the Institution—or such members of it as Mr. Ware could muster, many of his corps being away on holiday bent—played selections of music in a style most creditable to a "scratch" team, and they were loudly applauded for their efforts. Bro. Binckes, who was, as usual, almost Protean in his efforts to make the affair go off smoothly and successfully—for he was here, there, and everywhere, superintending the arrangements, even to the minutest details, and improvising every available means of filling up gaps where they would otherwise have remained apparent—addressed a few words to the company, intimating that the executive had this year taken a new departure, which he hoped would be accepted. They had secured the valuable services of Brother Lieutenant Cole, the eminent and unequalled ventriloquist, who was about to submit to them some of his marvellous powers of mimicry and mirth, and he felt sure the children especially would be delighted with his clever exploits with "the Merry Folk and Talking Automata." He then introduced Brother Cole, who went through his very humorous and clever repertoire of ventriloquial sketches, to the infinite amusement of the little folk, as well as of the "children of larger growth." For upwards of an hour the "Lieutenant" kept up a running fire of fun, at which the audience laughed consumedly—more especially at the mercenary "Tommy Tucker;" the jolly old Lancashire lad, "Tommy Treddlehoyle," who persisted in declaring the whole "show" was "a regular do;" Miss Maggie Macdougall, the braw Scotch lassie of the old school; Zac Longshanks, the blighted being; and the comic little black bogie in buttons, whose grotesque guffaws were as catching as a cough before a sermon. At the close of his very clever delineations, Brother Cole received a most cordial vote of thanks, proposed by Brother Binckes, on behalf of the Committee and the audience, and the Lieutenant suitably acknowledged the compliment paid to him. In the interval between the first and second parts of the entertainment, the Misses Binckes played Coote's "Promenade" quadrilles as a duet upon the pianoforte, in a manner that elicited unqualified tokens of appreciation. A concert of vocal and instrumental music followed, in introducing which Bro. Binckes explained the difficulty which the committee had experienced in securing professional talent at this season of the year, which had compelled them to fall back, at very short notice, upon volunteer effort. He was much pleased, however, that many friends had rallied round them, and he trusted the audience might be enabled to complete a couple of hours' unmitigated enjoyment. The programme opened with a trio on the pianoforte, "The Chough and Crow," brilliantly played by Miss Binckes, Miss Agnes Binckes, and Miss Matier, who were rapturously applauded; and this was followed by a song from Miss Coyte Turner, who sang "Punchinello" in charming style, displaying to advantage a rich soprano voice of great compass, and well under control. Bro. Richardson came next, with a familiar nautical song, "Sailing," which was much enjoyed, and Miss Binckes played an exquisite solo on the pianoforte, which met with a cordial reception. Bro. Matier, then, in facetious terms, announced that, in spite of all their disarrangements, the Committee had succeeded in securing the services of one of the most eminent tragedians of the day, who would recite a selection from Shakespeare; and the laughter was loud and genuine as Bro. Binckes stepped upon the dais, and acknowledged the delicate encomium passed upon his histrionic qualifications. He then recited with good effect the apology from "Othello," for which he was greeted with genuine applause. Miss Coyte Turner then sang "Turn again, Whittington," in a manner that earned for her renewed expressions of approbation; and Bro. Matier recited the grotesquely humorous "Yarn of the Nancy Bell," from the "Bab Ballads," which evoked irresistible laughter. Bro. Richardson followed with the lusty old ditty, "Down among the Dead Men," and Bro. W. W. Morgan recited in spirited form the "Charge of the Light Brigade," which was well received. The trio, "Gli Ugueonotti," was then played by the Misses Binckes and Miss Matier, bringing to a fitting close a programme which was intensely relished by all present. At the close, Bro. Binckes expressed the hope that the audience had not been altogether disappointed with the evening's amusement which had been provided for them. He had enjoyed the evening from his point of view, and he only wished those who chose to write florid descriptions of the "cold and cheerless" aspect of this building had been present, when he thought they would arrive at a very different conclusion. Every one connected with the Institution did his best to give a hearty and hospitable reception to those who visited the School, and such comments as those which had recently appeared in a certain journal were utterly undeserved and uncalled for. The committee were much pleased to see so numerous an assembly of the friends of the Institution; they only wished there were many more. In commencing the New Year, he offered them all, on behalf of the executive of the School, the best wishes for a "Happy New Year." It had opened in a truly sensational manner, but let them hope that in the course of it they might derive all the happiness they themselves could wish. He concluded by quoting the old couplet—

"To each and all a fair good night,
Most happy dreams and slumbers bright."

Bro. Binckes's appropriate remarks, and especially his reference to a recent anonymous imputation against the management of the School, were received with unbounded applause. The Head Master then proposed a vote of thanks to those ladies and gentlemen who had combined to make up so excellent and enjoyable an entertainment, and to the Committee and Bro. Binckes, who had taken the trouble to go into every matter of detail, and to provide so capital a treat as one and all had thoroughly enjoyed. The vote was carried amidst acclamation, and Brother Binckes replied in a few happily chosen sentences, after which the National Anthem was sung by the whole company, and the lads soon afterwards were marched off to supper and bed. A number of the invited guests who had come from a distance were subsequently entertained at supper, returning home by the late trains, after having spent a thoroughly happy and enjoyable evening.

The members of the Lodge of Prosperity, No. 65, will hold their Annual Ball on Tuesday next, 16th inst., at the Cannon-street, Hotel. Brethren from other Lodges desirous of attending can procure tickets, by applying to Bro. J. Roberts W.M. 65, 32 Lawrence-lane, Cheapside, who will be happy to furnish full particulars. We may add that the price for a lady's ticket is 10s 6d, a gentleman's 15s; while double tickets, admitting lady and gentleman, can be had for 21s. This includes refreshments and supper.

At the North London Chapter of Improvement, Canonbury Tavern, Islington, N., on Thursday, 11th January, Comp. Gregory filled the chair of Z., Comp. Deane H., R. Bird J., Osborn S.N., Pearcy P.S., Edmonds Preceptor. The various duties were sustained by each officer in a praiseworthy manner.

At the monthly meeting of the Constantine Lodge of Mark Master Masons, No. 145, held at the George Hotel, Colchester, on Thursday evening, 11th inst., Bro. James P. Lewin J.W. was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year. W. Bro. Fred. A. Cole was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Munson Tyler. Twenty brethren were present.

On Wednesday evening, the 24th January, Bro. James Terry P.M. P.Z. P.P.G.J.W. Herts, &c., will rehearse the ceremonies of consecration and installation, at the Earl of Lathom Lodge of Instruction, No. 1922, held at Brother Charles Sims's, Station Hotel, Camberwell New-road, S.E., Lodge will be opened at 6 o'clock precisely. Brethren are invited to attend, in full Masonic clothing. After Lodge is closed there will be a supper, the tickets for which will be 5/ each. Brethren wishing to stay to the latter must signify their intention to Brother Sims, not later than the 20th instant.

The First Festival of the Brixton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1949, will be held on Tuesday, the 23rd instant, at the Prince Regent (Brother Monk's), Dulwich road, East Brixton. Brother H. Lovegrove P.M. P.P.G.S. of Works Middlesex, W.M. 1949, will preside.

ST. MICHAEL'S LODGE, No. 211.

THE January meeting of this Lodge was held at the Albion, Aldersgate-street, on Tuesday, the 9th instant. Present—Bros. Usher Back W.M., A. Withers P.M. as S.W., F. J. Hentsch J.W., C. Greenwood P.G.S.B. Treasurer, W. W. Morgan Sec., T. H. Peirce S.D., E. Thring I.G., C. T. Speight P.M. Tyler; Past Masters Brothers Alfred Green, Dr. John Waters, William Radcliffe, &c. After Lodge had been formally opened, the minutes of last regular meeting, also of emergency meeting of the 19th December 1882, were read and confirmed. The ballot was then brought into requisition for Mr. Frederick Trotman Bennett, proposed by Bro. Pembroke, seconded by Bro. H. Green; for Mr. Henry Lindfield, proposed by Bro. Thring, seconded by Bro. Radcliffe Past Master; for Mr. Frederick James Goodall, proposed by Bro. Thring, seconded by Bro. Radcliffe Past Master. In each case the result was unanimous, and these three gentlemen were introduced and initiated into the Order, the ceremonies being conducted, separately, by Bro. Alfred Green P.M., who fully sustained the excellency of working which characterised his Mastership of this Lodge. After the Bye-Laws had been read, the election of Master was proceeded with, and Bro. Hentsch, the Junior Warden, was chosen by the members as their W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. W. E. Young, the S.W. of the Lodge, would have been elected Master, but the critical state of his health rendered it impossible for him to undertake the duties. Brother C. Greenwood was re-elected Treasurer, and Brother Speight Tyler. The Secretary was requested to carry to Mrs. Young the deep regret with which they had received intimation of their esteemed brother's illness. A capital banquet was served by Brother Jennings, and the after proceedings were of a very agreeable character.

CAREW LODGE No. 1136.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge was held on the 20th ult., at the Masonic Hall Torpoint. There was a good attendance. The W. Bro. W. J. Barrat was the unanimously elected Master, and he was ably installed by the retiring Master W. Bro. W. Stephens assisted by W. Bros. T. Heath P.M., and E. Poor P.M. and P.P.G.P. The following were appointed as the Officers for the next year:—Bros. Wm. Stephens I.P.M., A. White S.W., C. Haggerty J.W., E. Poor Treasurer, R. Truscott Secretary, A. Debnam Assistant-Secretary, J. Pearse S.D., A. K. Collins J.D., J. Black I.G., J. Jewell M.C., S. Hoskin Organist, P. Lewis, J. Bailey, J. Walters, and T. Treaize Stewards, J. Webb Tyler. The brethren adjourned to the Royal Hotel, Devonport, where the banquet was admirably served by Bro. and Mrs. Parker, to whom a vote of thanks was given for their catering.

It is understood that the newly-appointed R.W. Prov. G.M. of Essex, Lord Brooke, M.P., has intimated his intention to re-appoint W. Bro. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Recorder of Colchester, to the office of Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and W. Bro. Thomas J. Ralling P.M. and Secretary 51, to the office of Prov. Grand Secretary.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

CONFIDENCE LODGE, No. 193.

THE annual installation meeting of this old and eminently progressive Lodge was held on Monday evening last, at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, when there was a gratifying attendance of brethren and visitors, under the presidency of Bro. J. E. Fells, the genial Worshipful Master. Bro. Fells' year of office has been characterised by the utmost urbanity and harmony, and the working has been of such uniform excellence throughout the year as to elicit unbounded expressions of appreciation from all who have visited the Lodge, as well as from the members collectively. It is not too much to say that the Master who has just resigned his seals of office evinced true wisdom to discern and ability to execute the responsible duties of his position, and the profuse expressions of admiration manifested towards him on Monday evening were most assuredly deserved. Lodge was opened soon after four o'clock, when the Wor. Master was supported by Bros. James Smith S.W. and W.M. elect, Walter Wood J.W., Walter Cubitt S.D., W. Saint J.D., G. F. S. Warne P.M. Treas., J. Shackell P.M. Sec., F. Silvester I.G., Henry Webb P.M. W.S., Bedford Lemere P.M., B. D. Kershaw P.M., J. R. Biddell P.M., H. T. Reed P.M., R. Foottit P.M., S. Webb P.M., J. Desave, J. Gelderslene, W. Kedge, E. Kiddell, J. Grundy, E. J. Davey, G. P. Nightingale, W. M. Covell, S. Smither, J. J. Craske, H. Morris, H. Doubleday, J. Collins, G. Masters, J. H. Bayley, C. H. Davis, W. Rickell, J. H. Clare, A. Jay, R. M. Presand, E. W. Filbian, Jas. Roberts, E. Walden, Isaac Passingham, W. J. Hall, F. H. Clemow, E. Symons, J. D. Collins, and others. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. F. L. Tinckley 1772, W. Diplock 65, C. W. Cox 1566, W. Fieldwick P.M. 1634, H. Massey P.M. 619, H. Barwell 901, J. Cox Sec. 1766, C. Wise 1158, Chas. Steel J.D. 1365, J. Staton P.M. 1287, K. Clemow 1744, C. Handley 475, J. Chinnery 145, C. G. Eastman 179 (Manchester), F. Mansfield 21, F. Meriton 1766, &c. Lodge having been opened in accordance with ancient rites, and advanced to the third degree, Bro. John Grundy was raised by the Worshipful Master, who performed the impressive ceremony in masterly manner, delivering the charges with good effect. Lodge was then lowered, and the ballot opened for Mr. James Heffard Clare, who had been proposed by the W.M. elect, and seconded by Bro. Covell. The voting was unanimously in favour, and Mr. Clare was duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Order. Bro. James Smith was then presented as the Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, and having assented in the customary way to undertake the responsibilities of the high position, a Board of Installed Masters was constituted, and Bro. Smith was formally inducted into the chair of K.S. by Bro. Samuel Webb P.M., who performed the ceremony with faultless precision and with admirable effect. On the re-admission of the brethren, the newly installed Wor. Master was proclaimed and saluted in the three degrees, his reception being of a very cordial description. He then proceeded to invest his Officers for the ensuing year, the collars being thus bestowed:—Bros. J. E. Fells I.P.M., Walter Wood S.W., Walter Cubitt J.W., W. Saint S.D., F. Silvester J.D., G. F. S. Warne P.M. Treas., J. Shackell P.M. Sec., G. P. Nightingale I.G., and L. G. Reinhardt Tyler. After the transaction of some formal business, the brethren and visitors adjourned to the Pillar Hall, where a sumptuous repast was provided by Bro. F. H. Clemow, whose arrangements were fully in accordance with the well-known excellence of this first-class City hotel, and which elicited the most unqualified expressions of satisfaction from all present. At the conclusion of the repast, the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured, the W.M., in giving the Queen and the Craft, speaking of the name of Queen Victoria as one that is revered in every household, and always received most heartily in the Lodge of Confidence. He also alluded to the admirable service rendered to the Craft by the M.W.G.M. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and the able way in which he discharged his duties in Grand Lodge—a sentiment that was heartily reciprocated by the company present. A similar compliment having been paid to our Masonic Rulers, Bro. J. E. Fells assumed the gavel, and proposed in felicitous terms the health of the newly-installed Worshipful Master. He had had the honour of Bro. Smith's acquaintance for three or four years, and had worked shoulder to shoulder with him throughout the year. The more he had of his company the better he liked him. They had worked together in Lodges of Instruction previous to their holding any position in the Lodge, and as Officers of this Lodge they had worked together with the utmost unanimity and good understanding. It had afforded him a great amount of pleasure to have the honour of being acquainted with such a brother, whose heart and soul was in Freemasonry, and who was a thorough master of the Art. He heartily congratulated them upon the choice they had made in electing Bro. Smith to the chair, for, during the past year, he had rendered him (the speaker) most valuable counsel and assistance. He had had a very prosperous year of office, as they all knew, and he hoped Brother Smith might enjoy a still better one. It afforded him much satisfaction to know that he was to be followed by a better man than himself, and one who was thoroughly competent to perform the ceremonies in all the degrees. The toast having been cordially received, the Worshipful Master thanked the brethren for the very kind manner in which the toast had been accepted. It was almost a wonder to himself, his having been so unanimously elected by the brethren of the Confidence Lodge to be installed in that high and exalted position. Had they told him, eleven years ago, when he was admitted into this Lodge as an E.A., that he should so soon attain to that dignity, he should have had his doubts. But having been elected and installed into the chair, he had but one object in view—the good of Freemasonry in general, and this Lodge of Confidence in particular. From the hour he entered the Lodge to this moment he had received nothing but kindness at the hands of the brethren, and the proceedings of the evening would be remembered by him wherever he might be, and whatever part of the world he might visit. It had made a deep impression upon him, and he should ever carry with him the happy recollection that he had lived in the esteem and confidence of the brethren of this Lodge. He had now a very pleasing duty to discharge, namely, to ask Bro. Fell's acceptance of a handsome Past Master's jewel, which had been subscribed for by the whole of the brethren, as a mark of esteem and in recognition of the valuable services he had rendered to the Lodge during his year of office. Turning to Bro. Fells, the W.M. said: You have had a most prosperous year of office. Your heart and soul, and your voice has been in your work, and I do say—and when I say it I express the feeling of every member of this Lodge—your heart has been at work in the cause of Freemasonry. You have had an eminently successful year, and in the name of the Lodge and every brother of it, I present you with this jewel. May you live many years in health and strength to wear it, and to continue to be an ornament to the Lodge of Confidence. The jewel was a massive one, of gold, beautifully chased, and inscribed in suitable manner, commemorative of the event. The Immediate Past Master, who on rising to acknowledge the compliment paid to him was loudly applauded, thanked the brethren heartily for the kindness they had manifested towards him, now as on all previous occasions. He should have been well repaid by their approbation of his humble endeavours to serve them as Master of this Lodge, and he thought his efforts had been crowned with success. The jewel they had so kindly and unanimously given him to-night would ever be prized, as much for its own worth as for the kindly motives which prompted it; he hoped he might be spared many years to wear it, and to be of service to the Lodge of Confidence. The health of the Installing Master was then given from the chair, and cordially received, and Bro. S. Webb responded in a lengthy speech, expressing the pleasure it had afforded him to instal his old friend Bro. Smith, whom he had known for many years. He, however, advocated that each retiring W.M. should instal his successor, as such a practice invested the ceremony with greater eclat than when the aid of an outsider was called into requisition. The health of the Past Masters was the next toast, and in response suitable speeches were made by Bros. Warne, Foottit (who remarked that it was thirty-one years since he was admitted into the Lodge of Confidence) and Reed. The W.M., in giving the Initiates, said they were always glad to meet in this Lodge good, honest and upright men, and he trusted the brother whom he had the honour to initiate that evening would in a few years make a most excellent and useful Mason. Bro. Clare replied, expressing the pleasure it afforded him to have been admitted a member of this ancient and honourable Fraternity. In proposing the Masonic Charities the W.M. asked the co-operation of the brethren in his task of Steward for the Old People's Annual Festival next month, and Bro. Kershaw P.M. very appropriately replied, supplemented by a few practical words on judicious charity by Bro. S. Webb P.M. The health of the Visitors came next, the toast being heartily received and replied to by Bros. Joseph Cox, C. W. Cox, Wise, Fieldwick, Handley, and Steel. Other toasts followed, including the Treasurer and Secretary, to whom deserved compliments were paid for the manner in which they had discharged their duties for many years; the Officers were responded to by the Wardens, and the Tyler's toast followed. During the evening the proceedings were enlivened by some vocal and instrumental music, Bro. Silvester lending valuable assistance as accompanyist on the pianoforte.

LODGE OF HARMONY, No. 309.

THERE was an unusually large attendance at the meeting of this Lodge, which took place at the Red Lion Hotel, Fareham, on 27th inst, when the R.W. the Provincial Grand Master, Brother W. W. B. Beach, M.P., attended with his Officers, to witness the ceremony of installing Brothers Edward Goldsmith, of Hambledon, as the W.M. of the Lodge for the year ensuing. The P.G. Master was supported by the following P.G. Officers:—Bros. the Revs. G. H. De Fraine and Pickering P.G. Chaplains, J. E. Le Feuvre P.G. Sec., J. R. Hayman P.G. Reg., H. W. Townsend P.G.S.D., C. W. A. Jellicoe P.G.J.D., S. Dore P.G.D.C., J. Laverty P.G.A.D.C., J. W. Willmot P.G.S.B., R. W. Beale and W. Dart P.G. Stewards. Amongst other members of the Craft who attended were—Bros. the Rev. A. A. Headly, Goble, Goldsmith, Edmonds, Holbrook, Bond, Hickman, Lancaster, Page, T. R. Williams, T. H. Williams, Powell, Rastrick, Rev. T. White Hall, Brickwood, Gale, Pink jun., Heath, Rev. A. C. Hervey, Gieve, Fraser, Dr. Crouch, Love, Gilmour, Cooke, Poad, Harry, Burt, Hill, Sutton, Nance, Rev. F. J. Ashmall, Smith, Pillow, Whitehall, White, &c. The ceremony of installation was efficiently conducted by Bro. J. R. Hayman P.G. Reg. The W.M. appointed and invested his Officers, as follows:—Bros. Hayman I.P.M., W. G. Heath S.W., Rev. A. C. Hervey J.W., Rev. F. J. Ashmall Chaplain, J. B. Goldsmith P.M. Treasurer, E. Goble P.M. Secretary, J. W. Gieve S.D., D. J. Gilmour J.D., W. A. Hill I.G., Liddell P.M. Organist, Henry Cooke M.C., Dr. E. T. Crouch and G. Harry Stewards, R. Eames Tyler. A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Hayman for the able manner in which he had carried out the work of installation, and in recognition of his services in the chair during the year it was unanimously decided to present him with a P.M.'s jewel. After the Lodge business the W.M. presided at the banquet, which was attended by the P.G. Master, and a large number of the brethren. An apology was made for the absence of the Deputy P.G. Master Brother Hickman, who was detained on urgent business.

LODGE OF GOOD FELLOWSHIP, No. 276.

THE members of this Lodge celebrated the Festival of St. John the Evangelist, at Chelmsford, on Thursday, the 21st ult., and the proceedings passed off with much eclat. At 3·30 the brethren and visitors assembled in the Board Room of the Corn Exchange (kindly lent for the occasion), under the presidency of W. Bro. E. Shedd W.M., and the usual routine business having been transacted, a brother was passed to the second degree. The only other business was the installation of Bro. W. J. Upton S.W. as W.M. for the ensuing year, a ceremony that was performed by W. Bro. C. P. Drawbridge W.M. 77 and P.M. 20. The new W.M. then appointed and invested his Officers as follow:—Wor. Bros. E. Shedd P.M. 1543 I.P.M., Arthur Mead S.W., F. P. Sutthery J.W,, the Rev. F. B. Shepherd P.M. P.P.G.C. Chaplain, F. Whitmore P.M. P.P.G.D. Treasurer, Jas. Nicholls, M.D., P.M. P.P.J.G.W. Secretary, A. C. Durrant S.D., A. G. Maskell J.D., Andrew Durrant P.M. P.G. Treas. M.C., W. Metcalfe I.G., J. Taylor and C. Williams Stewards, Thos. Sarel Tyler. The Treasurer presented the financial statement, from which it appeared that all debts were paid, and there was a small balance in hand. The I.P.M. proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Installing Master for his kind attendance and services that day, which being seconded by Bro. J. S. Brown P.M. P P.G.S.D., was carried by acclamation. Bro. Drawbridge acknowledged the compliment. The W.M. having been congratulated on his accession to the chair by the Visitors present, Lodge was closed. At six o'clock about 30 or 40 brethren assembled at the White Hart Hotel and partook of an elegant banquet, provided by the new host Bro. Haxell. The manner in which the dinner was put on elicited universal commendation, while the wines were of a very choice character. Bro. Haxell personally was most active in looking after the comfort of his guests, and all appeared thoroughly to enjoy themselves. On the removal of the cloth, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. In proposing the Past Officers of the P.G. Lodge, the W.M. deplored the fact of the death of the P.G.M. since their last anniversary, and spoke in high terms of the ability with which the late Lord Tenterden presided over the affairs of the Province during the three years his Lordship held office. The names of Bros. Andrew Durrant P.M. 276 P.G. Treas., and Thos. J. Ralling P.M. 51 P.G. Sec., were coupled with the toast, and both brethren endorsed what had fallen from the W.M. as to the earnestness with which the late Lord Tenterden devoted himself to the duties of the P.G.L. whenever the occasion offered. Bro. Ralling also announced, amid great cheering, that H.R.H. the Grand Master had appointed Lord Brooke, M.P., of Easton Lodge, Dunmow, to be P.G.M., and expressed a hope that his Lordship might long live to preside over them. The toast of The Visitors was responded to by Bros. Humphrey Wood P.M. 20 P.P.G.W. Kent, and W. Sowman W.M. 51. The health of the W.M. was heartily drunk on the proposition of Bro. Shedd I.P.M., and the W.M. in returning thanks, mentioned that he had been five years in office in the Lodge, and should do his very best to discharge the higher duties they had called on him to perform. Other toasts followed, and songs were given by Bros. Gowers, Lewin, A. C. Durrant, Clowes, and Sutthery, Bros. Gowers and J. J. C. Turner playing the accompaniments. The Visitors present included Bros. Humphrey Wood P.M. 20 P.P.S.G.W. Kent, Thos. J. Ralling P.M. and Sec. 51 P. G. Sec., W. Sowman W.M. 51, J. J. C. Turner P.M. 51 P.P.G.O., F. Bird W.M. 1024, D. J. Wright I.P.M. 1024 P.G.P., J. J. Cavill W.M. 1312, R. Clowes W.M. 650, A. F. Stevens 20, E. Gowers 1024, H. Phillips 1818, C. Taylor 1765, J. Taylor jun. J.W. 1817, and the following members of 276, besides those already mentioned:—Bros. J. P. Lewin P.M. P.P.G.S. of W., J. S. Brown P.M. P.P.G.S.D, A. F. Ginn P.M. P.P.G.S.B., J. W. Hair P.P.G.R., J. Tomlinson, J. R. Jarvis, John Taylor, J. O. Creswell, E. Durrant, A. Haxell, &c. It may be mentioned that "Ye olde White Harte," at which this festival is held, has lately been renovated throughout, and Bro. Haxell will be found a genial host.

Polish National Lodge, No. 534.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday, 11th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, under the presidency of Bro. J. Lancaster W.M. Among those present were Past Masters Corrie Jackson, V. Jagielski, F. Rath, W. Pass Secretary, and Nowakowski Treasurer. The Officers of the Lodge were well represented, but otherwise the meeting was sparsely attended. After confirmation of the minutes the Lodge was advanced, and Bro. Busby was raised to the sublime degree of M.M. Lodge being resumed, Mr. Robert Cooper, for whom the ballot had previously been taken, was introduced and initiated by the W.M., who performed this and the preceding ceremony in a most creditable manner. Bro. Pass having announced the receipt of communications from the two Schools in reference to the approaching Festivals, the W.M. offered himself as a Steward for the Boys', upon which it was proposed that the sum of ten guineas should be voted from the Lodge funds; five guineas to be placed on the W.M.'s list for the Boys' School, and five guineas on that for the Benevolent Institution, for which Charity Bro. Lancaster had previously expressed his intention of acting. The vote was unanimously agreed to; after which notice of propositions to increase the Lodge dues were submitted, and Lodge was closed.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Counsel for the delicate.—Those to whom seasons of changeable temperatures are protracted periods of trials should seek the earliest opportunity of removing all obstacles to good health. This cooling Ointment, perseveringly rubbed upon the skin, is the most reliable remedy for overcoming all diseases of the throat and chest. Quinsey, relaxed tonsils, sore throat, swollen glands, ordinary catarrh, and bronchitis, usually prevailing at this season, may be arrested as soon as discovered, and every symptom banished by Holloway's simple and effective treatment. This Ointment and Pills are highly commended for the facility with which they successfully conquer influenza; they allay in an incredibly short time the distressing fever and teasing cough.

BRO. JOHN ENTWISLE.

IT is with very deep regret that we announce to our readers the death, on Wednesday, the 10th instant, of Bro. John Entwisle, one of the most capable and popular Masons of East Lancashire, as he was also, without the slightest approach to exaggeration, one of the kindest and most generous of men. Our deceased brother during his Masonic career, extending over seven and twenty years, had taken a leading part in all the branches of the Craft. He was initiated in January 1856, in the St. John's Lodge, Bolton, and the very next year was chosen its Junior Warden. In 1850 he was advanced to the superior position of Senior Warden, and in 1859 was elected W. Master, his services in the latter capacity receiving cordial recognition from the Lodge in the shape of a handsome Past Master's jewel, while, later on, he was honoured by the G. Master of his Province with the appointment of Provincial Grand Superintendent of Works. He was exalted in the Royal Arch Chapter attached to his mother Lodge in 1857, and rose, step by step, to be its M.E.Z. He was also a joining member of the Chapter of Concord, No. 37, and Past Prov. Grand Scribe N. He was advanced to the Mark Degree in 1856, under the old regulations, and was nominated Senior Warden the year following, in the St. John's Lodge, No. 2, Scotch Constitution, being chosen Master in 1858. When Lancashire became a Mark Province under the said Scotch Constitution, Bro. Entwisle's abilities were so highly appreciated that he was presented with the patent of Prov. Grand Mark Master, and continued to fulfil the duties of that high office until the Union of the rival Prov. Grand Lodges, when he retired in favour of our late Brother W. Romaine Callender, M.P., who thus became the first Grand Master of the United Provincial Grand Mark Lodge, Bro. Entwisle himself being accorded the status of a Past Provincial Grand Master in the Mark Grand Lodge by the then G.M.M. Bro. the Rev. G. Raymond Portal. He was perfected in the Palatine Chapter of Rose Croix, 18, then periodically held at Bolton, and subsequently became a founder and second M.W.S. of the St. Peter's Chapter. He was also a member of the 30 degree. In addition he is a member of the Order of St. Lawrence, and a Past N. of the Mount Ararat Lodge of Royal Ark Mariners; a founder and P.S. of the St. George's Conclave of the Order of Rome and the Red Cross of Constantine; Past Grand Junior Warden Lancashire and Cheshire, of the Royal Order of Scotland; a founder and Past Master of the St. John's Council of the Royal and Select Masters, Chief Adept of the Lancashire College and Hon. IX. degree of the Rosicrucian Society, and a Past Preceptor of the St. James of Jerusalem Preceptory, No. 33, of the Order of the Temple. When to this array of titles to the respect of his brother Masons we add that he had contributed largely to all three of our Charitable Institutions, and had several times acted as Festival Steward for each of them, it will be seen that by the death of Bro. Entwisle the Craft has lost one of the ablest exponents of its mysteries, one of the most indefatigable and enlightened of its workers, and, in fact, one of the staunchest and strongest of its pillars. We sincerely sympathise with East Lancashire, and likewise his family, at the very great loss they have just sustained.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was held on Wednesday, Col. Creaton Grand Treasurer in the chair. The Secretary (Bro. Terry) reported the death of two annuitants and one approved candidate, one of the annuitants at the advanced age of 95. A vote of thanks was passed to the donors of the gifts to the New Year's entertainment to the Old People at Croydon, of the previous Wednesday. After the adoption of the Report of the Finance Committee, the chairman was authorised to sign cheques for the amounts mentioned therein. Sixteen petitions were examined, two of which were rejected, three deferred, and the remainder accepted. Bro. Terry informed the Committee that there were at present 131 candidates for election in May, but that this number might be slightly added to at next meeting. There were only 13 vacancies.

ECCLESTON CHAPTER, No. 1624.

THE regular Convocation of this popular Chapter was held on the 27th ultimo, at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. Comps. Vincent Z., Pulman P.Z. as H., Fisher J., Isaacs Treasurer, Beckham S.E., Wyer P.Z., Tayler P.S., Bond 1st Assistant, Coulthard 2nd Assistant. Visitors—Comps. Pulman P.Z. 157, Levy P.Z. 188. The Chapter was opened, and the minutes of last Convocation were confirmed. A ballot was taken for the admission of Comp. Johnstone. This was unanimously in his favour, and he was duly exalted into R.A. Masonry by the M.E.Z., who rendered the ceremony perfectly and impressively. The same may be applied to the H. and J.; in fact, every Officer was perfect, and it was a pleasure to listen to the excellent working. The election for Principals then took place. Comps. Johnson was elected Z., Fisher H., Wyer P.Z J., Beckham S.E., Tayler S.N., Bond P.S., Isaacs Treasurer, Church Janitor, all were unanimously elected. Comps. Grist and Ray were elected Auditors. The By-laws of the Chapter were then read. It was proposed that a jewel value £5 5s be presented to the M.E.Z. on retiring from office, for the able, zealous and energetic manner in which he had discharged the duties during his year of office, and in testimony of the respect he is held in by every Companion in the Chapter. Chapter was then closed till the fourth Wednesday in March, and the company adjourned to the Holborn Restaurant, where an excellent banquet was supplied by Comp. Hamp that gave great satisfaction. The M.E.Z. ably presided, and gave the usual Loyal and R.A. toasts. Comp. Wyer P.Z. had great pleasure in proposing the health of the M.E.Z., Comp. Vincent. They had seen how ably the Z. had worked the ceremony. He, as an old P.Z., had never heard it better done; he might say both in Lodge and Chapter he had rarely heard better work. The M.E.Z., in reply, thanked Comp. Wyer for his kind expressions. If he had been successful in mastering the ritual, and had done the work to their satisfaction, it was sufficient for him. He had their interests at heart, and he hoped the Chapter would flourish. The M.E.Z. then proposed the toast of the newly-exalted Companion. They were glad to welcome among them an old friend. It was indeed a great pleasure to exalt Companion Johnstone. Comp. Johnstone, in a very excellent speech, responded, and then the H. and J. were complimented. The M.E.Z. regretted the absence of the newly-elected H., Comp. Johnson, whom they would have been pleased to welcome as the newly-elected Z. He was in every way qualified to fill the chair; he now, in the name of the Chapter, personally thanked Comp. Pulman P.Z., and one of the founders of the Chapter, for coming this evening to assist in the working. Comp. Pulman had exalted him into R.A. Masonry, and had been his Mentor and friend through all his Royal Arch career; he had only to ask him for assistance on any occasion, and he was ready to give it. As for the J., the perfect manner in which he did his duties merit their respect; no better Officer could have been selected, and he hoped to see him in due course in the chair. Comp. Pulman P.Z. in reply said as a founder of the Chapter his heart was with them. In the absence of the H., he was only too pleased to render any assistance. Comp. Vincent was the first M.E.Z.; he had done his work thoroughly, and it was a pleasure to study him in every respect. Companion Fisher J. fully endorsed all the former Companions had said; he also informed them he was a Steward for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and hoped what they had done in the Lodge would be continued by the Chapter. The toast of the Officers was given. Comp. Wyer had been P.Z. of another Chapter, but he was their S.E.; they had elected him J. to-night; he was a founder. Although the Treasurer was absent, they had the S.E. present; he had done his duty thoroughly. Comp. Beckham S.E. responded, and so did Comps. Wyer and Tayler. Comp. H. M. Levy P.Z. responded for the Visitors. Comp. Bond 1st Assistant was toasted; he had been in ill health for some time, and they were pleased to see him among them again. The Janitor's toast was given, and an agreeable evening terminated. Several Companions contributed to the harmony.

GOSPORT CHAPTER, No. 903.

THE installation meeting of the Principals of this Chapter was held on Tuesday, when Comps. R. W. Mitchell was installed as Z., R. W. Downing H., and F. Powell J., the remaining Officers being invested as follow:—Comps. W. Brunwin E., Rev. Dr. Ring N., J. Senior P.S., Irons and Miller A.S., and Canvin Janitor. The ceremony was most ably performed by Comp. Valentine Brown, the retiring Z., who was subsequently presented with a handsome P.Z.'s jewel for his services as First Principal during the past year. The Companions afterwards partook of an excellent banquet, provided by Mr. Kingswell, at the India Arms Hotel, the newly-installed Z. presiding, and a pleasant evening was spent. The following Visitors represented neighbouring Chapters:—Comps. R. J. Rastrick Z., W. Palsgrave H., and R. W. Beale J., Portsmouth No. 487; G. F. Lancaster Z., W. Johns H., and G. P. Arnold J., United Service No. 1428; J. W. Wilmot Z., and R. Barnes H., Royal Sussex No. 342; J. R. Hayman J. Friendship No. 257, and others.

HARMONY CHAPTER, No. 156.

THE annual meeting of the above Chapter was held at the Huyshe Masonic Temple, on the 23rd ult. The installation of the elected Principals was very well performed by Ex-Companion Michell, and the following are the newly-appointed and invested Principals and Officers:—Ex-Companions D. Banks Z., W. H. Pike H., R. Hamley J., W. Whittley P.P.Z., W. K. Michell S.E., E. B. Thomson S.N., G. Whittley P.S., W. Skardon 1st A.S., T. R. Challice 2nd A.S., W. K. Michell Treas., W. H. Phillips Janitor. The Companions retired to dinner in their own rooms, where the newly-installed Principals presided.

TWELFTH NIGHT ENTERTAINMENT AT THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

THE annual Twelfth Night entertainment to the pupils remaining in the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls during the Christmas holidays, was given on Friday evening, the 5th inst. There was a very large attendance of brethren and ladies on the occasion, notwithstanding the miserable weather. The entertainment, which was thoroughly enjoyed, consisted of tea and coffee at half past five, and Lieutenant Cole's well known ventriloquial entertainment at six. At seven there was dancing in the large hall, and the Twelfth cake and other refreshments to the children, and the company at eight. The Twelfth cake was, as usual, presented by Brother Louis and Mrs. Hirsch. At a quarter to nine Dr. Lynn gave his conjuring entertainment, which was followed during the rest of the evening by dancing. The whole of the proceedings were highly satisfactory.

DEVON MASONIC EDUCATIONAL FUND.

A MEETING of this institution was held at the Huyshe Masonic Temple, Princes-place, Plymouth, on 29th ult. Bro. Richard Lose P.M. P.P.G.P. Vice-President, occupied the chair. There was a large amount of business on the agenda paper, but in the absence of Bro. Curtois the motion in his name was adjourned to the annual meeting. It was also proposed to adjourn the consideration of a large number of alterations in the Bye-laws, but it was decided by a large majority to consider and determine the matter then. Bro. V. Bird gave his reason for proposing the alterations in a lengthy speech. The brethren present, however, did not think they would be any improvement, and one proposed erasure having been negatived, all the other proposed alterations were withdrawn. Bros. Rev. W. Whittley, A. R. Luscombe, and J. A. Christie, were elected Scrutineers, and they having chosen Bro. Whittley as their Chairman, a ballot was taken for the election of one child on the Fund. There were four candidates, three of whom applied for the second time. The result of the poll was that case No. 3, the son of a late Brother of Lodge 1205, a Sergeant in the Royal Marine Light Infantry, was elected, with a total number, including 205 brought forward, of 712 votes. Case No. 1 carries forward 59 votes, No. 2 carries on 83 votes, and No. 4 94 votes. The Charity, now firmly established, requires only to be more widely known amongst the Lodges to become one of the most valuable in the Order. Whilst the Financial Committee certainly never refuse the ten guineas to qualify for a Vice-President, or the five guineas for a Life Governor, they wish especially to rely on the annual subscriptions of five shillings, and if the Charity Stewards will give their valuable assistance, many more candidates could and would be elected. Thanks were cordially given to Bro. Lose for his able Presidency, to the Scrutineers for the performance of their arduous duties, and to the Treasurer and Secretary.

THE HOME FOR FATHERLESS GIRLS.

CONCERT AT BELMONT HALL.

ON Thursday last week, in the Belmont Hall, Grafton-square, Clapham, a concert was given in aid of the Home for Fatherless Girls. "A Message Across the Sea," by Madame Worrell, was warmly applauded, but her rendition of "I Dreamed a Dream," which is a gem of melody, was encored, when she substituted "Three Old Maids," in so charming a manner as to create a genuine furore. Miss Lizzie Dunkley made a favourable impression by her graceful and pretty manners, whilst her rendering of "Auntie" displayed cultivated style, distinctness of enunciation and sweet expression. She was awarded hearty testimony of appreciation. The pianoforte solos of Madame Traynor, "Home, Sweet Home," and "La Pasquinade," constituted one of the most successful features of the programme. Bro. Egbert Roberts sang "Big Ben" with fine gusto, his rich and powerful tones fairly astonishing the audience. Bro. Chaplin Henry gave "The Brave Old Temeraire" in his usual spirited style, and was equally felicitous with the "Wolf." Bro. G. S. Graham in his buffo song, "Awfully Jolly, or the Christmas Party," provoked much laughter, and his "Perverted Proverbs" produced most ludicrous merriment and unbounded applause. Miss Browning, Miss Louisa Distin, Miss Isabel Browning, Miss Amy Graham, Mr. Sinclair Dunn, Bro. Theodore Distin, Mr. Plant Martin, Mr. John Pietroni, and and Mr. L'Estrange also contributed their valuable services towards one of the most successful entertainments ever held at Clapham.

COUNT MOLTKE ON GAMBETTA.—It is related at the time of the Franco-German War that some German Officers were one evening ridiculing Gambetta and his armies, when Count Moltke, who was standing near, remarked, "Yes, gentlemen, that is all very well; nevertheless it took us no more than a month to beat the great disiplined army of France, but it took no less than five months to beat recruits and mobiles. Indeed, M. Gambetta's levée en masse so astonished us soldiers, that we shall have to study this question during long years of peace." The interest is now necessarily revived in the details of that tremendous struggle between France and Germany, the issue of which still forms the key to the present state of Europe. In view of this the Publishers have determined to issue immediately, in monthly parts at 7d, a new Illustrated Edition of Cassell's History of the Franco-German War, with about 500 illustrations.

Mr. John Spencer has moved his business of a wrought-iron tube manufacturer to Wednesbury, he having purchased the Globe Tube-works, which were for many years conducted by the late firm of Whitehouse & Co. (Limited). These works were established in 1847. His London address (3 Queen-street-place, Cannon-street, E.C.) will remain the same.

Loughborough Lodge of Instruction, No. 22. — A meeting was held on Monday evening, 1st January, at Brother McDiarmaid's, the Cambria, Cambria-road, Loughborough-junction. Present—Bros. Littlewood P.M. 780 W.M., Banks S.W., Westley J.W., McDiarmaid Treasurer, McKinley Secretary, Keyse S.D., Warren J.D., Johnson Preceptor, Long Inner Guard. P.M.'s Bros. Price, Spencer, Westmore. Lodge was opened with the usual formalities, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Prince answered the questions leading to the third degree. Lodge was further advanced, and the ceremony of passing was most ably rehearsed. Bro. Westley next worked the third section of the lecture. A vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Bro. Littlewood, the brethren having been greatly edified by his most efficient working. There being no further Masonic business, the Lodge was closed in ancient form, and adjourned till Monday evening, the 8th instant.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—Held at the Jolly Farmers', Southgate-road, on Saturday the 6th inst. Brothers Galer W.M., Ashton S.W., F. W. Jones J.W., Pearcy Preceptor, Fenner Secretary, C. Lorkin Treasurer, Venning S.D., Archer J.D., J. Rhodes I.G.; also Bros. C. K. Killick sen., Hickman, Long, Houghton, Dixie, Weeden, Gribbell, A. M. Marks, Richardson, Hirst, Nicholls, J. A. Powell, &c. The usual formalities were observed in opening, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was then ably rehearsed, Brother C. Lorkin officiating as candidate. Lodge was called off, and called on, after which the W.M. gave the charge to the initiate. Brother Pearcy worked the fourth and fifth sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Brother Ashton was duly elected W.M. for the ensuing week. It was carried that the Bye Laws of this Lodge of Instruction be re-printed, after which Lodge was closed and adjourned.

United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, No. 507.—The ceremony of installation was rehearsed in this Lodge at its meeting at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, S.E., on Friday, the 29th ult., when there was a good attendance of members and friends. Bro. James Stevens P.M. and Preceptor officiated as Installing Master, and carried out the ceremony in full, installing Bro. J. N. Bate as W.M., Bro. Thomas Poore P.M. acting as M.C. The following brethren were invested as Officers, viz.:—Bros. F. Thurston P.M. and Treasurer S.W., Klingenstein J.W., M. E. Stokes S.D., C. H. Wiltshire J.D., H. H. Wiltshire I.G. At the conclusion of the business of installation a vote of thanks to Bro. Stevens was carried, and ordered to be recorded on the minutes. Bro. Thurston was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and the Lodge was then closed in perfect harmony.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—Held at Bro. Smyth's, Sisters' Tavern, Powsall-road, Dalston, on Tuesday, 9th January. Present:—Bros. T. Clark, W. M. Robinson S.W., Wardell J.W., Christian S.D., Smyth J.D., Collins I.G., F. Carr Sec., Wallington P.M. Preceptor, and others. The Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Carr offered himself a candidate for passing, was interrogated and entrusted. The Lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Carr was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. Bro. T. Clark then vacated the chair, and the Preceptor occupied the same and rehearsed the ceremony of Installation, Bro. Clark being the candidate for the Master's chair. Lodge was regularly closed in the third and second degrees. Bro. Clark invested the Officers. Bro. Wallington then delivered the addresses in a most eloquent manner. Bro. Robinson was elected W.M. for the ensuing week and appointed his Officers in rotation. Lodge was then closed and adjourned.

Alexandra Palace Lodge of Instruction, No. 1541.—The above Lodge of Instruction, which also embraces the dual character of a social and harmonic club, now holds its meetings at the Station Tavern, Camberwell New-road, of which Bro. Sims, of the Duke of Connaught, No. 1558, is the host, and he certainly has made excellent accommodation for these gatherings. On Saturday last about forty brethren were present; the business is commenced on these nights with great punctuality. On this evening it was the working of the ceremony and lectures of the first degree. The offices were filled as follows:—Bros. Stant W.M., Spencer S.W., Maxted J.W., Stokes S.D., Appleton J.D., Spicer I.G. Preceptor and President, J. R. Stacey, Dawson Treasurer. The ceremony of initiation was very correctly rehearsed by the W.M., Bro. Luckhurst being the candidate, and afterwards the first, second, third, fourth, and fifth sections of the lecture, the whole of the brethren being well up to the work. Bro. Tidsley, of the St. Dunstan's Lodge, was elected as a member. Bro. Maxted was appointed W.M. for the ensuing week. Several announcements having been made, the Lodge was closed in due form. The brethren then resolved themselves into a social party, Bro. Webb, of the Kingston Lodge, being called to the chair. A number of excellent songs and recitations were given, and an hour or two was spent in complete harmony and the genuine spirit of Masonry.

Zetland Lodge No. 1071.—A silver flagon, privately subscribed for by the members, was lately presented to their respected Treasurer. On it was engraved "Presented to the W. Bro Foxwell P.M. as a token of esteem and affection, by the brethren of Zetland Lodge, No. 1071, Saltash, of which Lodge he was one of the founders, and for fourteen years the Treasurer. December, 1882." It was intended to be, and was, a surprise to the worthy recipient, who is held in deserved esteem by the brethren of his own and other Lodges.

United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, No. 507.—The meeting of this Lodge of Instruction, at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, S.E., on Friday, the 5th inst., was well attended. Lodge was opened punctually by Brother F. Thurston as W.M., supported by Bros. M. E. Stokes S.W., Richard Poore J.W., C. H. Wiltshire S.D., A. J. Style J.D., E. C. Percy Stevens I.G.; Brothers James Stevens P.M. and Preceptor, J. N. Bate, A. Jones, and others. Labour was entirely in the first degree, the first four sections, including ceremony of initiation, being worked in most perfect manner. Lodge was called off for "Entry Drill," and called on for further despatch of business. Brother M. E. Stokes was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and the Officers were appointed in rotation. Lodge was then closed in due form.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—A meeting was held on Friday, the 5th inst., at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge. Present—Bros.Botley (Secretary) W.M., Beckett S.W., Monson J.W., Sperring S.D., Botley J.D., Maton I.G., Andrews P.M. Preceptor. After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, and the first and second sections of the lecture were worked. Bro. Beckett was elected W.M. for the 13th January.

Hyde Park Lodge of Instruction, No. 1425.—A meeting was held on 8th January 1883, at the Norfolk-square Hotel, Paddington. Present:—Bros. Mickelbury W.M., Chalfont S.W., Davis J.W., G. Read Treasurer, H. Debane Secretary, Snell S.D., Wickens J.D., C. S. Mott I.G., Hardy W.S. Past Masters—Bros. James Stevens, Craig, Sugg, Tribbel, H. Cotter, W. Poulter. Members—R. D. Smith, D. Stroud, J. Webb, Sinclair, Foskett, Thomas, W. C. Williams, J. H. Taylor, J. H. Smith, Matthews, Appleton, Watkins, Hatton, Mitchel, Perry, Cursons, Dutton, Burton, Holland, Goswell. Visitors—J. Debane 1052, T. Williams 221, T. E. Rogers 818, Robinson 1681, Job Windle 7536, Hayes 1767, J. Collinson 862, C. J. Fox 1743. The Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. introduced Bro. Stevens, with a few appropriate remarks. After a very earnest acknowledgment of the reception accorded to him, Bro. Stevens entered upon his lecture, and for over two hours kept his listeners thoroughly interested and frequently amused by the explanations afforded in relation to Ceremonial and Ritual as practised in Metropolitan and Provincial Lodges. The brethren unanimously expressed their entire satisfaction with the remarks of the Lecturer, who gave direct answers to many important questions arising from the diversity of working in certain localities. At the termination of the lecture Bro. G. Read P.M. and Preceptor moved, and Bro. G. Davis P.M. seconded, a vote of thanks to Bro. Stevens, and a request that he would accept honorary membership. This proposition was carried nem con. The Lecturer having briefly responded, the following bretbren were elected members:—Bros. Robinson, Snell, Cotter, F. T. C. Keeble, C. J. Fox, Hayes, Thomas, Williams, Job Windle. A vote of thanks was then proposed and carried unanimously to Bro. H. Debane W.M. 1543 P.G.S.D. Essex, the Hon. Sec., for his gift of the Ashlars. The Lodge was closed, and adjourned until the 15th January, at 8 p.m. We cordially recommend other Lodges of Instruction to hear Bro. Stevens's lecture, particularly as we learn he is willing to accept any invite for that purpose without further expectation than that of a friendly welcome.

New Finsbury Park Lodge of Instruction, No. 1695.—On Tuesday last this Lodge of Instruction held its usual meeting at Hornsey-wood Tavern, when Bro. Bird P.G. Sword Bearer Middlesex occupied the chair, supported by Bro. Davies Preceptor and several other brethren. The ceremonies of passing and raising were rehearsed by Bro. Bird, to whom a vote of thanks was recorded for the very excellent manner in which he had performed the ceremonies. On the second Tuesday in February Bro. Davies, the Preceptor, will rehearse the ceremony of installation, commencing at 8 o'clock p.m. Brethren are invited to attend.

Brixton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1949.—The weekly meeting was held on Tuesday evening last, the 9th instant, at Bro. Monk's, the Prince Regent, Dulwich-road, East Brixton, where Bro. Pooler W.M. was supported by the following:—Bros. Warren S.W., C. H. Phillips Treasurer J.W., Richardson S.D., R. Poore J.D., E. Bye jun. I.G., E. A. Francis Preceptor, H. Hooper Acting Secretary, H. M. Williams Secretary Organist; also Bros. Amsden, Monk, Wright, Napier, Robinson, and others. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Amsden proved his proficency and was entrusted. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and the ceremony of passing was ably rehearsed by the W.M. Lodge was opened in the third, and regularly closed to the first degree. On the motion of the Preceptor, Bro. Warren was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. A cordial vote of thanks was unanimously passed to the W.M. for the very efficient manner in which he had carried out the duties of the chair for the first time in his Masonic career, the resolution to be entered on the minutes. Hearty good wishes being expressed, the Lodge was closed in due form, and adjourned. The first Festival of the Lodge is to be held on the 23rd instant, when Bro. Henry Lovegrove P.M. P.P.S. of Works Middlesex and W.M. 1949 will preside.

THE EMPIRE LAMP.

THE MOST BRILLIANT AND ECONOMICAL DOMESTIC LIGHT EXTANT.

It equals Gas for Simplicity, but surpasses it for Illuminating Power.

IT burns without a chimney, a pine-shaped globe only being required, which has never been known to break from the heat of the flame. It will give more light than any other lamp with a wick of equal size. The combustion is so perfect that it deodorises the oil, and burns absolutely without smell, giving an intense pure white and beautiful light. It is unrivalled for simplicity in lighting, cleaning, and trimming, and is, in fact, the perfection of artificial light. Suitable for Cottage or Mansion, Churches, Chapels, &c.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL AND ITS CRITIC.

IT is evident that "S. X.'s" letter on the Boys' School has excited much indignation, not only among those officially connected with the School, but likewise among the Craft generally. That "S.X." imagined what he tells the world he saw, is not improbable, but he has yet to learn the folly of attempting to convert the imaginary into the actual, as he would have us believe it to be. We publish elsewhere a letter written by "AN OLD BOY," and one who, from the fact of his having spent seven years and a half in the School, must be accepted as a competent witness for the defence. Moreover, it is the letter of an ex-pupil, who can have no other object than to write impartially, and what he tells us of his personal experience during so many years must be looked upon as being far weightier evidence in favour of the system of training pursued at Wood Green than "S. X.'s" remarks, after a quarter of an hour's observation, can possibly be in condemnation of it. What says "AN OLD BOY" on the subject? "I was educated there for a period of seven and a-half years, two or three years of which time I was taught by Dr. Morris, and I can safely say that never during that time did I receive anything but kindness from either Masters or Matron," and, he adds, with marked emphasis, "If a boy was not happy, then he had only himself to thank." He winds up still more emphatically in his apology for troubling us with his short letter, because, as he remarks, "I feel deeply the wrong that has been done Dr. Morris and all the masters under him, and I feel it a duty to protest against such false statements as 'S. X.' brings forward." Had this been written by a present pupil of the School, it would have had less weight. Ill-natured people would have said perhaps that it was written to order. But "AN OLD BOY" has nothing either to gain or lose by describing his experiences—his connection with the school has ceased altogether. Thus, as between the imagination of "S. X." and the direct evidence of our present correspondent, the School—as every one expected it would—comes off with flying colours.

But shall we set down as of any value statements made, without any sense of responsibility, by an apparently dyspeptic brother who, to judge from his one letter, would seem to belong to that class of persons who think criticism is only worth listening to when it assumes the form of fault-finding? "S. X." presumes too much on the child-like simplicity of the rest of the world, if he thinks his single carping criticism will succeed in establishing the faults he imagines he has discovered, especially when there is an overwhelming array of testimony that such faults have no existence whatever. Successive Festival Chairmen, who, on the occasion of their visits to the School, must be held to have seen as much of its interior economy as "S. X.," and a great deal more, have spoken in the highest terms of its arrangements, and the system of education in force. Their praise is the more acceptable because it has been bestowed with discrimination, the practical suggestions they have offered from time to time showing clearly enough that while, in their opinion, the School was well managed and efficiently, there was here and there room for improvement. We know what examiners and examining bodies think of it as a home of education. The reports of the former have been on the whole as satisfactory as any executive or any staff of masters could desire, while the latter have adjudged honours to, or passed, the great majority of the candidates hailing from Wood Green who have submitted themselves to their examination. It is also on record that the dietary is both wholesome and sufficient, that discipline is maintained, and, if testimonials to the Matron for the efficiency of her services have any value, that the domestic arrangements leave little, if anything, to be desired. In short, we have, as opposed to the one unfavourable critic, who writes anonymously, the testimony of "AN OLD BOY," of successive Festival Chairmen, and of the examiners, as well as of hundreds of brethren who, when they have visited the School at prize distributions and on other occasions, have been most favourably impressed with all they have seen and heard. However, it is an ill wind which blows nobody any good, and in his uncompromising denunciation of the School, and all connected with it, it is not unlikely that "S. X." may unintentionally have done it the greatest possible service.

CRAZY AND PARTIZAN MASONIC WRITERS.

BY BROTHER JACOB NORTON.

THAT Masons have written a great deal of rubbish, cannot be disputed or denied; that some of these writers were mere crazy enthusiasts, I will readily admit. Others, however, have doubtless been prompted to pervert truth from mere partizan motives. Thus, it has pleased some brethren to try and persuade the Craft that Masonry is a Christian Institution, and others that it is a very ancient Institution; and to prove their pet theories, they have not hesitated to invent legends, to garble quotations, and to quote authorities which do not exist.

Mr. George Long, the translator of a work called "The thoughts of the Emperor M. Aurelius Antoninus," in the introduction to the said work, exposes the falsehoods of the early Christian martyrologists, and the sophistry and unfairness of modern ecclesiastical historians; thus, a letter on martyrology was preserved by Eusebius, said to have been written in A.D. 177, in which the following miracle is related:—

Sanctus was burnt with plates of hot iron till his body was one sore, and had lost all human form, but on being put to the rack he recovered his former appearance, and was thus cured instead of being punished. He was, however, afterwards torn by wild beasts, and then placed on an iron chair and roasted, and of course he died at last.

Now, ecclesiastical writers profess to believe in the martyrdom of Sanctus and Co., but, strange to say, they carefully omit the miracle, or deny its truth. As the evidence of the miracle, as well as of the martyrdom, rests upon the testimony furnished by the writer of the self-same letter, Mr. Long very justly remarks that if the writer of the said letter could invent the miracle, he could also have invented the martyrology, and therefore censured the modern ecclesiastical writers for their inconsistency. I can give instances of partizan Masonic writers who have been guilty of similar tricks, one will, however, for the present suffice.

EPPS'S (GRATEFUL COMFORTING) COCOA.

Bro. Simon Greenleaf issued a book in Portland, Maine, in 1820, viz.: "A brief inquiry into the origin and principles of Freemasonry." The writer ridicules the alleged Masonry of Grand Master Adam and Co., but he does not hesitate to assert as "beyond reasonable doubt," that Prince Edwin was Grand Master at York in 926, and that the York brethren were always styled "Ancient York Masons." Besides which he accepts the story about St. Alban, &c., and he refers to Anderson and Preston for his authorities; but as the Masonry of Adam and Co. rests also upon the authority of Anderson and Preston, why did Bro. Greenleaf reject their histories about Adam, and why did he believe, "beyond reasonable doubt," their histories about Prince Edwin, &c.?

The same writer has given long histories about the Eleusinian, Pythagorean, and Druid mysteries; the last-named mysteries, he says, were preserved by the English people even after Christianity was introduced into England; he defends the Druids from the charge of human sacrifices. He also says, "It is worthy of observation that the Supreme Being was worshipped by the Gauls and Britons, and under the name of Hesus, a word expressive of omnipotence, as Hizzus in the Hebrew," &c., and refers in a note to Psalm xiv. 8. As Hizzus sounded strange to me, I consulted the Bible. Yes, three different versions of the Bible; but the fourteenth Psalm does not mention Hizzus, and, what is more, there are no eight verses in the said Psalm; only seven could I find. I next looked into Cruden's Concordance, and into Smith's Bible Dictionary, but no Hizzus could I find anywhere in the Bible. Another of his references to the Bible I was equally as unsuccessful in finding. Now, if there is no truth in his statement about Hizzus, why should I believe in the rest of Bro. Greenleaf's statements?

Bro. Greenleaf, however, wrote more than sixty years ago, when the only authorities he could consult were Anderson, Preston, Hutchinson, and Laurie. These, together with the legends he received in the high Christian degrees, were enough to bamboozle his half, or little-informed mind. Indeed, he wrote in what may justly be called the dark Masonic ages, and he must have possessed considerable courage to deny even the Masonry of Adam. But what shall we say to the nonsense promulgated in 1881, by Bro. John D. Jennings, 33°, of Michigan, in an official pamphlet of the high degrees. He says, "The archives of the Rite can reckon among its votaries such men as Orpheus, Pythagoras, Thales, Virgil, Hippocrates, Socrates, Plato, and many other great names in Greece . . The sages educated in the Solomon mysteries of Heliopolis, Thebes, and Memphis were the conservators of the Divine fire. The sacred fire of Masonry glowed a thousand years, and no attempt was made to extinguish or weaken it. . . St. John, of the Apocalypse, was an initiate of the Cabiri, and alluded to the mystic stone just noticed when he says: "To him that overcometh will I give to eat the hidden manna, and will give him a White Stone." This is a fair specimen of Bro. Jenning's knowledge of the history of Masonry, and can any one blame me for believing (supposing he is sincere) that he, and all who believe like him, are fit subjects for a lunatic asylum?

But here is even a more recent candidate for Bedlam. Appleton and Co., of New York, have just issued a new book, by Robert Hewitt Brown, 32°, viz., "Stellar Theology and Masonic Astronomy;" the book is illustrated with numerous heathen and high degree woodcuts, coloured astronomical plate, &c. Bro. Brown throws overboard the Solomonic and Hiram legends, but insists that Masonry originated from the pagan mysteries. It is no use to try to select the most ridiculous passage in his book, for the whole of it is alike ridiculous. But here is a specimen of his lecturing:—

Q. "By what name were Masons anciently known?

A. "Long before the building of King Solomon's temple Masons were known as the Sons of Light; Masonry was practised by the ancients under the name of Lux (light), or its equivalent in various languages of antiquity."

Q. "What is said to be the origin of the word Masonry?"

A. "We are informed by several distinguished writers that it is a corruption of the Greek word mesouraneo, which signifies I am in the midst of heaven, alluding to the sun, which being in the midst of heaven is the great source of light. Others derive it directly from the ancient Egyptians, Phre, the sun; Mas, a child. Phre-Masen; children of the sun, or sons of light."

In the concluding part of the book the author complacently says, "We believe that the key is at length restored," and then goes on thus: "And why is not the explanation correct? Have you ever considered the 'calculus of probabilities,' as applied to a subject like this?" The Boston Advertiser of 4th December gives a brief notice of the said "Stellar Theology," &c., and good-naturedly winds up thus: "It is sad to have to despair of Adam. The full regular meetings in Eden must have been very entertaining."

But the ridiculous pranks of our high degree Masons are by no means exhausted. About fourteen years ago, our great American Masonic writer, and possessor of all the Masonic degrees in creation, "and more too," as Paddy would say, made a pilgrimage to what he called "the five Masonic centres," viz., Jerusalem, York, Kilwinning, Rhodes, and Malta. How he could designate these places as "Masonic centres," after Brother Findel demonstrated that our Masonry had no more connection with them than it had with Timbuctoo, &c., is more than I can tell. Brother Morris has since then again visited Jerusalem once or twice. Upon one occasion he opened (in one of the caves he visited there) a Masonic Lodge, with all imaginable solemnity, and to commemorate the great event, he scratched on the wall of the cave a Square and Compass. Probably, some future enthusiastic Masonic visitor to the said cave, may jump to the conclusion that the Square and Compass on the wall was placed by order of King Solomon. In a Lecture recently delivered by Bro. Morris in Boston, he claimed to have been initiated in the Holy Land into a Dervish Lodge. He assured his hearers that the Dervishes gave him three degrees, and some important parts in the said three degrees are precisely the same as in our Craft degrees. I shall not be at all surprised to learn of Bro. Morris receiving a Dervish Commission to establish the Dervish Order in America. But the latest scheme of Bro. Morris may be learned from the following editorial, copied from Loomis' "Musical and Masonic Journal," of Newhaven, Connecticut. Here it is:—

"PALM AND SHELL."

We learn from an exchange that a new Order, by the above name, has been organised in the city of New York, founded by Bro. Robert Morris. One of the objects is to gain possession of Mount Moriah, and construct thereon a Masonic Temple worthy the site and society of Ancient Masonry. We would mildly suggest, when possession is gained, to remove the Mount to America, and place it beside the Egyptian obelisk, before the erection of the Temple is begun, so that the American Mason can have a slight chance of witnessing it at its completion, and, perchance, take a part in its dedication. It is not stated whether plans are yet decided on, but we have no doubt it will be an exact imitation of King Solomon's Temple, with its roof of olive wood covered with gold. Nothing less would suffice to satisfy the demands of many of the "temple builders" of the present generation. Let all hands join the "Palm and Shell," and assist in carrying out the following extremely modest practical aims which this new Order has taken upon itself to perform:

1. To open the way broadly for Masonic intercourse between the East and the West.
2. To soften the fanaticism of Oriental sects—Christian, Jewish, Moslem,—by the soothing influence of Freemasonry.
3. To encourage Pilgrim Knights to make profound researches in the Orient, under the auspices of the Oriental Order, thus establishing our claims as a Scientific Association.
4. To encourage our Oriental brethren to visit America, that we may learn from them the legends and traditions transmitted to them by their fathers.
5. To organise Lodges in the cities of the Holy Land, and combine them, in due time, into a Grand Lodge at Jerusalem.
6. To establish a hospital in Jerusalem for the care of Masonic pilgrims sojourning there.
7. To gain possession of Mount Moriah, the birthplace and cradle of Ancient Masonry, and construct thereon a Masonic Temple worthy the site and society.
8. To prosecute special inquiries into the crypts that exist in Mount Moriah for objects believed to be concealed there.

Now, if Bro. Morris is not a downright humbug, he must certainly be afflicted with a deranged mind; and the fact that he could muster a sufficient number of demented Masons in New York to form an Order for such a Quixotic scheme, indicates an insanity among American Masons; and if our Grand Lodges cannot stop or check this Masonic malady, the best thing they can do is to provide at once one or more lunatic asylums for these unfortunate brethren.

But, before finishing the subject of Masonic irrationals, I must give an equally ridiculous specimen of anti-Masonic reasoning. A work called "Isis Unveiled," by a lady with a long Russian name was published several years ago, in which I found extracts from the late Bro. Leon Hyneman's book on the Grand Lodge of York, also from Bro. Yarker's writings, &c. &c. The lady was also acquainted with more or less Masonic exposés, and consequently regarded herself as a well-posted Masonic authority. She evidently believes in the high degree theories, viz., that the origin of Masonry was due to sun worship, and she therefore came to the conclusion that King Solomon was a myth, but it merely signifies the sun. Thus: Sol is the sun, Orn is the sun, and On also means sun. So, therefore, that imaginary individual was named by Masons as their Grand Master. Now, I admit, that her ladyship's ingenuity equals that of our Doctors Oliver, Mackey, Morris, and a host of other Masonic luminaries; but, unfortunately, the King's Hebrew name was not Solomon, but Shlomoh, which in Hebrew may signify peace; but I cannot understand how Shlomoh can in any way be tortured or twisted into an allusion to the sun.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally, and the Ointment rubbed externally, are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, and surest. Holloway's Pills and Ointment purify the blood, remove all obstructions to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the overgorged air tubes, and render respiration free without reducing the strength, irritating the nerves, or depressing the spirits. Such are the ready means of saving suffering when afflicted with colds, coughs, bronchitis, and other complaints by which so many are seriously and permanently afflicted in most countries.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR,—I was pained and grieved to see, in your issue of the 13th of January, that a gentleman (?) signing himself "S. X." has been making accusations against the officials of the Boys' School at Wood Green. I was educated there for a period of seven and a-half years, two or three years of which time I was taught by Dr. Morris, and I can safely say that never during that time did I receive anything but kindness from either Masters or Matron. If a boy was not happy there, he had only himself to thank. I would not have troubled you, Sir, with this short letter, but I feel deeply the wrong that has been done Dr. Morris and all the Masters under him, and I feel it a duty to protest against such false statements as "S. X." brings forward.

Believe me, Dear Sir,

14th January 1883. "AN OLD BOY."

MASONIC BENEVOLENCE IN 1882.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I quite agree with you that the views expressed by "Q.," in his letter of the 8th inst., are reasonable, and void of all exaggeration, and I am glad he has succeeded in eliciting from you a certain measure of approval. As he shows clearly enough, the Craft at this present moment stands committed to an annual expenditure very largely in excess of £30,000, and a very large portion of this liability has been incurred within the last few years. Additional accommodation has been provided at our Schools, and the number of pupils has been largely increased. So in the case of the Benevolent Institution; there are not only more annuitants on each fund, but the annuities they receive are greater. That notwithstanding these formidable increases, all three Institutions should have been able to add to their investments speaks volumes for the care, energy, and ability with which they have been managed. But it seems to me, as I fancy it does to you and your correspondent, that for some time to come we should rest content with what has been done, and is promised to be done in the case of the Girls' and Boys' Institutions, and that no further increase should be undertaken in any of the three Charities until their respective permanent incomes have been largely augmented. This is especially necessary in respect of the Wood Green Institution, which has not even enough, in the shape of interest and grants, to cover its working expenses. There are, no doubt, many who will take what "Q." describes indirectly as the popular view, and will suggest that further pupils shall be taken on at the earliest possible opportunity in the Boys' School, because the number of applicants is so vastly greater than the number of vacancies. These brethren, however, appear to me to lose sight of one fact I have noticed, namely, that as the strength of the School increases, so also does the number of those who seek its benefits. The same remark will apply to the Benevolent Institution, notwithstanding that, as Bro. Terry pointed out only the other day, it is paying away £11,600 in annuities as against £2,600 twenty years ago.

There is another point which deserves mention. Very many of our Provinces have Charity Associations of their own, and yet the pressure on the funds of the principal Institutions shows no sign of diminution. I am aware the benefits dispensed by these local associations are on a limited scale, yet some relief to the central associations should have resulted, and I have not come across the brother who has been able to trace any. Be this as it may, the questions to be considered are worth noting. Are we to go on adding to our responsibilities, leaving their fulfilment to the chance of raising the necessary funds by voluntary subscriptions; or, shall we rest awhile, till we have larger funds at our disposal without being compelled to trust to such chances? The latter seems to be the safer, and, therefore, the policy, for some years to come.

Fraternally yours,

SLOW AND SURE.

MASONIC LITERATURE.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Allow me also to congratulate you on the new start you have made, and to express a hope that the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE may long continue to be a representative of the Craft. Had you brought your labours to a close at the end of last year, as some inclined to think you proposed doing, it would have been a sad blow to Masonic periodical literature in this country. Competition between rival journals is good all round, in Masonry as in all things else. Greater energy, and it may likewise well happen, greater ability, are brought to bear on the production of the regular budget of new. Greater care is taken with the leading articles, and the views they express, for the simple reason that anything eccentric or injudicious is sure to meet with sharp and instant, albeit, I allow, good-natured criticism. In short, where there are rival journals, each feels it necessary to put its best foot forward and keep it there, but where one only is in the field it can do pretty much as it likes.

There is one particular in which the CHRONICLE would have been sadly missed had it not continued its labours. From the very outset of its career it has made an especial point of furnishing the fullest possible particulars in connection with our Charitable Institutions. It started the idea of carefully analysing the subscriptions, not with a view to establishing invidious comparisons between this and that Lodge or Province, but in order to promote amongst them a healthy spirit of emulation, and so in the end benefit the Charities. At the outset the purpose with which these analytical articles were written was not perhaps fully understood, but, as time went on, the anxiety evinced by individual brethren or stewards to have any clerical or other error corrected must, in my opinion, be regarded as conclusive evidence of the interest taken in the analyses, and the services they were the means of rendering to the Institutions. This fact should of itself enlist the sympathy and support of the whole Craft in England.

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

L. C. S.

It is impossible to walk any distance in the streets of London, but especially in the main thoroughfares, without coming to the conclusion that, owing to the nature and variety of the pavements in use, there is a terrible strain on the powers of all working horses, and, as a consequence, that in the course of every succeeding twelvemonths, there must be an immense waste of horse life. Any invention that will appreciably diminish this waste must be looked upon as a benefit, and it is our belief that the patent horse-shoe, manufactured by Messrs. Bidder and Rowley, of 14 Blandford street, Portman-square, is admirably calculated to satisfy the public need in this respect. Even if it were more costly than the shoe in ordinary use, it would still be well worthy of general adoption, as the terrible wear and tear to which horses are subject must be vastly more expensive in the long run. The great feature of Messrs. Bidder and Rowley's shoe is, that it is practically always roughed, and, consequently, that it enables the animal, all weathers, to get a firm grip of the pavement, whether granite, wood, or asphalte. Moreover, it involves no extra expense in the manufacture, no extra appliances in the shape of pads, screws, spikes, &c. Lastly, it has been tried very extensively, and, in all cases, has been found to answer its purpose of reducing the strain on the horse to a minimum. Military men, veterinary surgeons, farriers, and owners of horses, bear uniform testimony to this fact, and fully justify their strong recommendations in favour of its general adoption.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

UNITED MARINERS' LODGE, No. 30.

THE brethren of this old and exceedingly popular Lodge assembled in strong force on Tuesday evening, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, to witness the installation of Bro. Joshua Shipley as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. A variety of reasons combined to invest this gathering with more than usual interest, amongst them being the congratulatory success that had attended Bro. J. W. Crossley's year of office, which richly entitled him to the compliments bestowed upon him, both in the Lodge room and at the banquet table, and an equally substantial recognition of the continued and valuable services which had been rendered to the Lodge for many years by its indefatigable Secretary, Bro. Joseph Driscoll P.M., and for the unwearying support he has lent to the Masonic Charities. It is well known that for a long succession of years the United Mariners have been staunch and consistent promoters of the interests of our Institutions, in which they have set an example worthy of imitation, a fact to which Bro. James Terry made graceful allusion later in the evening. Lodge was opened soon after five o'clock, under the presidency of the retiring Worshipful Master, Bro. Joseph William Crossley, who was supported by Bros. Hiram Cosedge I.P.M., J. Shipley S.W., T. E. Davey J.W., J. Harling P.M. Treasurer, Joseph Driscoll P.M. Sec., J. Linscott S.D., L. Steingraber J.D., V. Fassheber M.C., A. Couldrey I.G., S. Lampen Steward, W. Audey P.M., C. Davey P.M. 7, T. Smith P.M., A. Lefeaux P.M., J. Clark P.M., G. J. C. Smith P.M., J. Lanckeman, J. H. Morgan, T. Oblein, D. J. Thomas, J. Rotheroe, A. Field, W. Boyce, J. Hildrath, H. Meyer, F. W. Sanders, C. Howard, J. Lewis, T. Campbell, G. L. Reinhardt Tyler, and many others. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. J. H. Dodson P.M. 55, W. Gill W.M. 612, W. H. Rudderforth P.M. 1668, L. J. Turner 1598, S. Richardson 183, D. C. Long 768, T. Tulett 1326, F. M. Harling 1139, L. Solomon 1732, E. A. Crosoe 1704, W. Martin 879, George Rowe 754, J. Terry P.M. 228 (Secretary of the R.M.B.I.), F. J. Parrott, R. Lawson W.M. 1426, W. Manger P.M. 1314, A. Murling 748, S. Ollendorf Montefiore, C. H. Gray 1704, &c. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the Auditors' report, which showed the finances of the Lodge to be in a healthy condition, was unanimously adopted, after which Bro. Shipley was presented in due form as the Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. The usual interrogatories having been assented to, a Board of Installed Masters was constituted, when Bro. Shipley was installed into the dignified position to which he had been chosen by the entire voice of his brethren. The impressive ceremony was worked by Brother Crossley, whose rendering of the Ritual was characterised by careful study and elocutionary effect, clearly demonstrating the lesson so often inculcated in this Lodge of the desirableness of each retiring Master installing his successor. On the re-admission of the brethren Bro. Shipley was saluted in the three degrees, the heartiness of the greeting being such as to afford him evidence, if indeed any were needed, as to the warm regard in which he is held by all the brethren of his Lodge. The newly-installed Worshipful Master then proceeded to invest his Officers for the year, the collars being thus distributed :— Bros. J. W. Crossley I.P.M., Thomas E. Davey S.W., J. Linscott J.W., J. Harling P.M. Treasurer, Joseph Driscoll P.M. Secretary, L. Steingraber Senior Deacon, A. Couldrey J.D., C. Fassheber I.G., C. Davey P.M. W.S., W. Boyce Assist. W.S., G. L. Reinhardt Tyler. Some formal business having been disposed of, the brethren and visitors adjourned to the throne-room of the hotel, where a sumptuous repast was spread, the arrangements for which, under the supervision of Bro. J. Marcham, gave general satisfaction. After the banquet the W.M. proposed the Queen and the Craft, and the M.W. the Grand Master His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the toasts being received with loyalty and enthusiasm. The health of the Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Lathom, were given with equal zest, special reference being made to the valuable services they each rendered to the Craft, together with the rest of the Grand Officers, past and present. Bro. Crossley then assumed the gavel, and in felicitous terms proposed the health of the newly-installed Worshipful Master, making special reference to the able manner in which he had discharged his duties in the minor offices through which he had passed, and in which he had proved his thorough love of Masonry. He had made way for Bro. Shipley, because, in the ordinary and inevitable changes in a Masonic Lodge, he was compelled to do so; and nothing had afforded him a greater amount of pleasure than to have had the privilege of installing so worthy a brother into the chair of K.S. In every way he was eminently worthy of the honour which had been conferred upon him by the brethren, and he wished Brother Shipley a very happy and prosperous year of office. The Worshipful Master was most cordially greeted on rising to acknowledge the toast. He assured the brethren of his deep interest in the Craft, and said in the future, as in the past, he should exert his utmost to promote the welfare of the Craft in general, and to uphold the prestige which had been gained by the United Mariners' Lodge in past years. He had attained to the proud dignity to which he had aspired, and he trusted that when he resigned into the hands of his successor the honourable trust which had to-day been handed to him, he might do so with the feeling that he had discharged his responsibilities with credit to himself and with satisfaction to the brethren. He then proposed the health of the Immediate Past Master and installing Officer, in doing which he congratulated Bro. Crossley upon the success he had achieved during his year of office, and upon the satisfactory position in which he left the Lodge upon his retirement from the chair. He acknowledged the kind and courteous assistance he had at all times received from his Immediate Past Master, who had so well and wisely ruled the Lodge during the past year, and whose worthy example he should study in every way to emulate. He then begged Bro. Crossley's acceptance of a handsome Past Master's jewel, which had been voted to him unanimously by the whole of the members of the Lodge, and expressed the hope that he might live long to wear it, and to adorn the Craft, of which he was a brilliant ornament. The jewel was a massive one, of gold, and bore the following inscription :—

Brother JOSEPH WILLIAM CROSSLEY P.M., by the Brethren of the
UNITED MARINERS' LODGE, No. 30,
In appreciation of his ability and courtesy while Worshipful Master.
January 16th, 1883.

The Immediate Past Master, in rising to acknowledge the compliment passed upon him was vociferously cheered. He briefly thanked the brethren for the proud distinction they had conferred upon him, and assured them he should wear this magnificent token of their esteem and regard as long as he was able to take an active part in Masonic life, which he trusted would be for many years to come. He thanked the Past Masters for their generous assistance during his term of office, and especially in the installation ceremony of to-day, and concluded by reiterating his continued interest in the prosperity of the United Mariners' Lodge. The W.M. then gave the health of the Visitors, on whose behalf Bro. Rudderforth P.M. 1668 responded; and the Past Masters severally acknowledged the mention of their names in such fraternal terms as those in which the toast had been couched. A pleasing and gratifying incident occurred at this juncture, when the Worshipful Master rose to propose the health of their able and excellent Secretary Brother J. Driscoll. He reminded the brethren of the long and faithful services which that brother had rendered to the Lodge, his unwearying advocacy and substantial support of the Masonic Charities, and his untiring efforts to uphold and increase the prestige of the United Mariners' Lodge. He had been the mainstay of the Lodge, and the brethren could not sufficiently thank him for the efforts he had put forth to promote its welfare. As a slight mark of their appreciation of those exertions, and sincere recognition of his personal worth, he begged Bro. Driscoll's acceptance of a testimonial which had been spontaneously and gladly subscribed to by brethren of the Lodge, and expressed the fervent hope that their excellent Secretary might be spared many years to work with them, and live in the high esteem and affection of all by whom he was surrounded. The testimonial consisted of a magnificent and valuable timepiece of black and brush marble, of the reconnaisance style, with real bronze ornaments, finished in green and picked out with gold, with gold ornamentation in the marble. The clock is fitted with a dead-beat movement, striking the hours and half hours on a gong, and goes for fourteen days. Accompanying the gift was an address, beautifully illuminated and engrossed on vellum, and which was admired for its exquisite and artistic design and finish. The address, which was enclosed in a massive gilt frame, and glazed, ran as follows :—

UNITED MARINERS' LODGE, No. 30,
Of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England.
Brother Thomas E. Davey S.W.; Brother J. Linscott J.W.
To BRO. JOSEPH DRISCOLL P.M. P.P.G.P.

We, the undersigned members of this Lodge, desire to express our gratification at the able and zealous manner in which the duties of Secretary have been performed by you for some years past, and further for the ready and fraternal help that you have at all times given to those who have sought Masonic instruction at your hands.

We also recal with satisfaction the many instances in which your sage counsels have safely guided the bark of the Lodge in the past, and we feel assured you will skilfully do the same in the future. We trust the Great Architect of the Universe will give you health and happiness for many years, to remain amongst us, and to give us the benefit of your experience.

(Here follow a number of signatures).

Bro. Driscoll, who was received with a perfect ovation, replied as follows: It would be affectation on my part were I to say merely that the testimonial you have just presented to me is too much to enable me to thank you for. I feel what you have done for me very keenly. I feel it in this way—not so much for its value, which is superb, and which appears to me to be splendid, but for the gracefulness with which you have forgiven many faults and drawbacks on my part. You know that I have endeavoured, and with the best of feeling, to do my duty; but I am getting on in years, and I feel my ability not so great as it might have been some time ago. But I try to do my best. I cannot thank you sufficiently for this estimation—and more than proper estimation—of the little I have done during the few years I have acted as your Secretary. It is true I am the father of this Lodge, but that does not much exceed twenty years, and I do hope that I may live to be the father of it for some time longer yet, even when my abilities to discharge the duties of Secretary shall have gone by. However, I thank you kindly and gratefully. I feel this much, and I feel it sincerely, that although this has been done altogether unknown to me, it has been done with a feeling towards me that the many errors I have committed—not of intention, but whatever they have been—are kindly and cordially forgiven by you, and I shall brace myself to the effort, with all the strength that remains, to do my duty if possible better than I have hitherto done. Bro. Driscoll resumed his seat amidst fresh outbursts of cheering. The Masonic Charities was the next toast given from the chair, and Bro. James Terry in reply said it was not the first time in the history of this Lodge that he had had the pleasure of responding to the toast. In fact, in this Lodge the toast of the Masonic Institutions could never be forgotten, because if they reverted to their early history, they would find that amongst the two Lodges which first supported the Boys' School the United

Mariners' was the one which took the leading part. The Royal Naval Lodge, No. 59, was the other, but the chief instrumentality came from the United Mariners'. Therefore, he was thankful to say, that as long as these Institutions existed, and as long as this Lodge lasted, so also would the history of the Institutions be closely allied to, and connected with, the history of their Lodge. He had to thank them very much indeed for the handsome donation of fifteen guineas which they had voted to the R.M.B.I. that evening, and the brethren also around the table, who had contributed liberally to the funds of that Charity. During the whole history of Freemasonry, so far as regarded our Institutions, there had never been such a list of candidates for the benefits of the Benevolent Institution as would be exhibited at the election in May next. When he told them that the list closed last Wednesday, and they had then no less than 136 candidates seeking admission, whereas there were only thirteen vacancies, he ventured to say it was a state of things unparalleled in the history of the Craft. The help afforded by this Lodge, therefore, came with double force to that Institution, and he was certain that when he could produce such facts as these before them he should always have their support, never mind whether it might be "the Old People's turn" or not. He made an eloquent appeal in behalf of the funds of that Institution, which so sorely needed help, to enable it to meet the urgent cases before it, and exhorted the brethren to do all they could to assist those who were too old and feeble to support themselves. The health of the Officers of the Lodge came next, and Bro. T. E. Davey S.W. briefly replied, the official list being closed with the Tyler's toast. During the evening some excellent songs were sung by Bros. Gill P.M., Harling P.M., Gray, Morgan and others, and Bro. Driscoll gave a pathetic recitation, which was much admired. Altogether a very happy and enjoyable evening was passed.

DOMATIC LODGE, No. 177.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge was held on Friday, 12th inst., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, and, as usual on such occasions, was numerously attended both by members of the Lodge and visitors. Bro. James McLean, the W.M. of the past year, presided at the opening of the Lodge, and during the proceedings the following Officers were present:—Bros. W. Herbage S.W., W. M. Foxcroft J.W., G. Everett P.M. Treasurer, Thomas Morris Sec., P. Pierpoint S.D., A. Skinner Steward, Harry Price M.C., W. Harris I.P.M., W. J. Ferguson P.M., H. Bowman Spink P.M., Edward White P.M., W. F. Smith P.M., Isaac Buscall P.M., J. E. Walford P.M., Frederick Kent P.M. Among the Visitors to the Lodge were Bros. Reichelmann P.M. 515, Alfred H. Bisley 901, W. H. Harrison I.G. 1895, B. Lyons P.M. 1227, Robert Thornton 217, Samuel Brooks P.M. 1608, Thomas Read 1420, C. Donaldson 1763, J. T. Pilditch P.M. 1420, W. Banberry 217, Robert George 1524, G. W. Clement Smith 1319, B. Simner P.M. 1405, 1096 P.D.G. Warden British Burmah, W. Iron S.W. 1579, H. Stiles W.M. 1507, J. Van Essen 171, C. Parsons Steward 1637, C. H. Everett 1507, F. Crockford P.M. 515 P.D.G.R. Malta, W. P. Webb W.M. 1381, C. M. Gray I.G. 1706, C. Phillips I.P.M. 820, A. Ercoll I.P.M. 1593, T. Fenn P.M. 259 P.G.D., G. P. Brotheridge 1649, W. Rudsell P.M. 77, James Terry P.M. 228 Sec. R.M.B.I., H. E. Tucker W.M. 1612, G. H. Finch 1586, H. Massey P.M. 619 1928, F. East 1678, J. Smith 1602, R. Underwood 780, J. Batting P.M. 1501 P.G.Reg. Berks and Bucks, B. Phillips W.M. 1305, J. Clarey 511, W. M. Stiles I.P.M. 1507, W. W. Morgan jun. J.W. 1107, J. Plenderleeth 1898, E. Bowles 1056, J. F. Hallet 907, T. W. Williams 1601, F. Briggs 25, T. C. Edmonds I.G. 1507, H. Reynolds 1772, H. Cox 144, C. H. Abrams 511, J. Coppen 1719, &c. The agenda paper shewed a full complement of business, the three degrees being set down for working, in addition to the installation ceremony. After the formal opening of the Lodge, Bros. F. Cole and A. H. Wilson were raised to the sublime degree of M.M., and Bros. T. D. Scott, L. Busmer, and J. E. Spurrell were passed, after which the ceremony of installation was proceeded with, Brother William Herbage being placed in the chair of K.S. by Brother Edward White P.M., in a most impressive manner. After the customary formalities, the following were appointed and invested as the Officers for the year, viz.:—W. M Foxcroft S.W., R. Pierpoint J.W., George Everett P.M. Treasurer, T. Morris Secretary, H. Price S.D., A. Simner Junior Deacon, Montague I.G., Chapman M.C., and Harvey Steward. The ceremonial of the installation was then completed. The newly-installed W.M. at once had an opportunity of showing his ability for office, Mr. Walter Bonwick, an approved candidate for Freemasonry, offering himself as candidate for the first degree, Bro. Herbage conferred on him the benefit of Masonic light, performing this first task in a most gratifying manner, and showing by his style that he was competent to fulfil the duties of W.M. Among other matters of business brought before the Lodge previous to its being closed was a proposal to vote the sum of twenty-five guineas towards the funds of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, which proposition was carried. The Lodge having been closed, the brethren proceeded to the banquet hall, and there engaged in one of the most successful gatherings we remember taking part in. The Master had provided a first-class musical programme, and everything was done to ensure the enjoyment of all present. At the conclusion of the banquet the usual toasts were given. The first on the list, the W.M. said, was one that was always acceptable to Freemasons, and indeed to all Englishmen. All knew the gracious way in which the Queen had discharged her duties in every sphere, whether as mother or as Queen. Of her it had truly and justly been written—

> "Her Court was pure, her life serene,
> God gave her peace, her land reposed;
> A thousand claims to reverence closed
> In her as Mother, Wife, and Queen."

As regarded the Craft, which it was customary to couple with the toast of the Queen, the brethren one and all knew sufficient of its merits to warrant them joining heartily in the toast. After the singing of the National Anthem, the health of the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M. was proposed. As brethren of the Craft they could but feel a deep debt of obligation to the Grand Master for the manner in which he performed every work connected with the Order, and the great lustre he had shed upon it. The next toast—that of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master and the rest of the Grand Officers Past and Present—the Master felt it a great honour to propose. The manner in which the Officers of Grand Lodge did their duty was an example every Lodge might feel proud to emulate. They had that night the honour of numbering Bro. Fenn, a Past Grand Officer, among them. The W.M. felt he need say little in connection with that brother's name to ensure a welcome to the toast; the kind way in which he always tendered his services towards the diffusion of Masonic knowledge was well known. He had always done it in such a manner that those whom he instructed became in themselves centres of Masonic light. Bro. Fenn tendered his thanks for the cordial manner in which the toast of the Grand Officers had been given and received. He felt especially gratified to feel that the poor services some of them were able to render to the Craft were appreciated. It was a matter of nineteen years since he had received the honours of Grand Lodge office, and since that time he had done what lay in his power for the welfare of the Craft, a course which should be pursued by each of the Grand Officers, although it must be admitted that some of them felt their work was done as soon as their year of office had expired. He might refer to Brother Brett, a member of the Domatic Lodge, as an example of the opposite kind, who had devoted his time to Freemasonry ever since his connection with it, and was as active now in advancing its welfare as ever. To such a class he (Bro. Fenn) hoped to belong. As one of the Committee of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, he felt extremely gratified to be present at the installation of one of its pupils. Bro. Herbage had long been known at its meetings, and was efficient in its style of working. He had heard that evening the ceremonies most efficiently performed, especially that of installation, but in many respects they had differed from what he was accustomed to. Still, though he had been born and bred under the wing of the Emulation Lodge, he was not so blind as to be unable to appreciate the beauties of other workings, especially when they were rendered as Bro. White had that evening done them. Bro. McLean I.P.M. proposed the health of the W.M., assuring the brethren they had elected a brother who would do them credit, and perform the duties of the chair to the satisfaction of all. The W.M. heartily returned thanks. He called to mind the moment when, seated on the right of his present position, he first returned thanks in the Domatic Lodge, and remembered how that then he looked upon Freemasonry as a glorious institution; an opinion which after experiences had confirmed. He should endeavour to perform the work to the satisfaction of all, and hoped at the conclusion of his term of office he might have obtained, in the words of Shakspeare—

> "Honour, love, obedience, and troops of friends."

The next toast on the list was a most important one—that of the Installing Master and the rest of the Past Masters. Bro. Fenn, in the course of his remarks, had most kindly and warmly called attention to the way in which Brother White, the Installing Master, had performed his work, and he (the W.M.) felt sure that no words of his would carry more weight than did those of Brother Fenn. The other Masters had done well in the past year, as indeed they had always done, and he hoped they would one and all be spared for many years to be present at the meetings of the Lodge. Brother White replied. With so many Past Masters around him he felt it a mere accident that he had been called upon to discharge the duties of Installing Master that evening, and felt that every other member of the board could have worked the ceremony equally as satisfactorily as he had done. Bro. Ferguson also replied; after which the W.M. rose—it was his pleasing duty to attach to the breast of the I.P.M. the jewel which the members of the Lodge had been good enough to vote him, in recognition of his services during the past year. All knew what he had done, and all thanked him for the attention he had given to the duties of his office. The brethren hoped he might long live to wear the jewel as the unanimous expression of the good feeling which was always felt towards him. Bro. McLean returned thanks, assuring the brethren he greatly appreciated the kindness they had shown him. He had endeavoured, during the past year, to perform the duties of his office to the best of his ability, and he hoped he had given some amount of satisfaction. As regarded the future, it would be his endeavour to advance the interests of the Craft generally, but more particularly to promote the welfare of the Domatic Lodge. The next toast was one always well received in the Domatic Lodge. If there was one thing that Freemasons delighted to honour it was the toast of the Visitors, and more particularly was this the case in the Domatic Lodge, the meetings of which were usually attended by a goodly array of guests. The W.M. considered that Visitors to a Lodge shed a light and lustre on the meeting which nothing else could supply. With the toast was coupled the names of Brothers Phillips Worshipful Master 1305, and Tucker Worshipful Master 1612. The former brother expressed the pleasure he, in company with the other visitors, felt in being present, and witnessing the working of the Lodge. He was also very pleased to see Bro. White acting as Installing Master. Twice he (Bro. Phillips) had been installed by Bro. White into the chair of a Lodge, and now as W.M. of the St. Marylebone Lodge, he hoped ere long to perform a like task for him, he being the present S.W. He looked upon Bro. White as a credit to any Lodge. Bro. Tucker followed, congratulating the members on the prosperity of the Lodge, and wishing them every success in the future. Bro. Webb, of the Kennington Lodge, also responded to the toast, and then the W.M. gave that of the Charities. This he considered a toast, which, whenever proposed, reached the heart of every

Mason. As members of the Craft they could but feel proud of the Institutions connected with the Order, for them, year by year, close on £50,000 was subscribed. He was associated with a Company where he knew there were more than one or two clerks who owed their position in life to the teaching at the Boys' School, and in many other ways he had been enabled to judge of the merits of the three Masonic Charities. The toast having been heartily received, was acknowledged by Bro. James Terry, who, in a forcible speech, urged on the brethren the advantages of the Institutions, and their need for continued support. They were the means of providing for a family of close on 800 persons, and he hoped they would never fail for want of contributions from the Craft. This Lodge had acquired a good reputation, and the way in which the brethren had supported the Steward for the coming Festival of the Benevolent Institution shewed they were still continuing the good work. Brother Terry urged on every member of the Lodge to do his utmost to secure donations, for, as the Earl of Carnarvon had remarked, it was not so much the large amounts, as it was the large number of donors that swelled the total. The coming year would be an eventful one for the Domatic Lodge, which had two candidates for the support of the Benevolent Institution, one a widow, who now made a third application, the other an old member of the Lodge. He asked the brethren to do their very best to place these two old people on the funds of the Institution; surely they would not like it to be said that the Domatic Lodge, with a membership of close on 150, could not provide for two of its old friends, while younger Lodges carried their cases on first application. In conclusion he would remind the brethren that they could never be girls, they could never be boys again, but they all looked forward to be old men, and such being the case he urged them to support the Benevolent Institution, which, in case of misfortune, would be open to receive them in the time of need. The Worshipful Master had great pleasure in proposing the health of their worthy Treasurer and Secretary, hoping that they would long be spared to render their services to the Lodge. They were both deserving of every honour that could possibly be bestowed on them. Each having replied, the toast of the Officers was given, and the proceedings brought to a conclusion. The musical arrangements were all that could be desired, consequently a most enjoyable evening was spent, and one that will be long remembered.

ANCHOR AND HOPE LODGE, No. 37.

THE installation meeting of this old Lodge was held in the Masonic Rooms, Swan Hotel, Bolton, on Monday, 15th January 1883. The Lodge was opened at 4·15 p.m. by the W.M. Brother Dr. E. M. Garstang, assisted by his Officers, the following brethren being present on the occasion:—Bros. John Booth S.W., F. W. Pacey J.W., G. P. Brockbank Past Provincial Grand Senior Deacon Secretary, James Newton P.P.G.S.D., Samuel Crowther Past Provincial Grand Superintendent of Works, Reuben Mitchell Past Prov. Grand Sword Bearer; P.M.'s W. H. Horrocks, James Walker, R. K. Freeman, Walter Pennington, Rooke Pennington, Johnson Mills; Rev. J. H. Gibbon S.D., J. W. Poyntz J.D., W. H. Lomax, Dr. C. F. Porter, James Naylor, William Golding, Robert Nightingale; also the following Visitors:—Bros. E. G. Harwood S.D. 1723, Mayor of Bolton, William Nicholson Provincial Grand Sword Bearer, J. W. Taylor Past Prov. Grand Organist, R. Duxbury W.M. 146, J. Boothroyd W.M. 221, W. Crankshaw W.M. 348, Dr. W. Court W.M. 1723, Thomas Morris P.M. 221, James Richardson P.M. 221, J. M. Rutter P.M. 221, John Alcock P.M. 348, J. H. Greenhalgh P.M. 1723, N. Nicholson P.M. 1723, John Priestley Chaplain 1723, J. M. Bentley, Mus. Bac., and John A. Orr P.M. 950. The minutes of the last regular meeting having been confirmed, the Lodge proceeded to the second degree, when the chair was assumed by Brother James Newton Past Provincial Grand Senior Deacon, the Installing Master, by whom the Worshipful Master elect, Brother G. P. Brockbank, was duly installed into the chair of K.S. according to antient custom, and proclaimed and saluted accordingly. The Auditors' report on the Lodge finances was read and adopted, and the retiring Treasurer, Brother William Slater Past Provincial Grand Senior Deacon was unanimously reelected to that office. The ballot was taken for the election of Brother J. M. Bentley, Mus. Bac., as joining member, the result being that he was unanimously elected. Brother Walter Pennington then proceeded to invest the Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. John Booth S.W., F. W. Pacey J.W., Rev. J. H. Gibbon Chaplain, William Slater Treasurer, James Newton Secretary, J. W. Poyntz S.D., John Hardcastle J.D., Walter Pennington M.C., J. M. Bentley Organist, W. H. Lomax I.G., James Naylor and R. Nightingale Stewards, J. W. Roiley Tyler, Thomas Higson Assistant Tyler. The addresses to the Worshipful Master, Wardens, and Brethren were delivered by Brother Johnson Mills P.M. Brother John Morris P.M. was reelected Representative of the Lodge on the East Lancashire Charity Committee. The Worshipful Master, on behalf of the Lodge, presented a Past Master's jewel to the retiring Master, Brother Dr. Garstang. Brother James Newton referred to the recent decease of Brother Thomas Entwisle P.M. 221 Past Provincial Grand Superintendent of Works, and the great loss which the Craft in this district had thereby sustained, and proposed a resolution, expressing the deep sense of regret of the members of this Lodge at this untimely occurrence. The motion was seconded by Bro. Walter Pennington, and unanimously adopted. Two brethren were proposed as joining members of the Lodge. Hearty good wishes were expressed by the visiting brethren, and the Lodge was closed at 5.45 p.m., the brethren adjourning to the banquet table.

It is a singular coincidence that Brother G. P. Brockbank was initiated into Freemasonry on 15th January 1846, and that in precisely thirty-seven years after, viz. on 15th January 1883, he should be installed as Worshipful Master of Lodge No. 37.

ST. JAMES'S UNION LODGE, No. 180.

THE installation meeting of this excellent Lodge was held on Tuesday, the 9th January, at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, at 4 o'clock. The W.M. Bro. G. A. B. Fletcher presided, supported by the following Officers and Brethren:—Bros. Stoner P.M. S.W., W. H. Baker W.M. elect, J. W. Maxted S.D., Chester J.D., Denne I.G., C. Wade I.P.M., E. Farwig P.M., J. Robinson P.M., J. Miles Treasurer, W. Parsons P.M. Secretary; also Bros. Bishop, Bar, Russell, Sarti, White, Shout, Spence, Van Duren, Symons, Dibley, Adams, Staden, and many others. Amongst the Visitors were Col. Shadwell Clerke Grand Secretary, Bros. Buss Assistant Grand Secretary, Woodrow P.M. 1297, Cantle P.M. 1257, R. Baker P.M. Joppa, Everett P.M. Domatic, Shand P.M. City of Westminster, Failly W.M. 1470, Taylor, Rolfe, Sir E. Lee, Lord H. Bruce, W. Hudson, J. Andrews, and several others. The Lodge being opened in due forme and the minutes of the previous meeting and the report of the Auditors having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Messrs. G. and N. Hemsted, initiates, also for Bro. Smead as a joining member; this being unanimous, the W.M. then proceeded to pass Bro. Paillard, who, having answered the usual questions satisfactorily, was duly entrusted and passed. The initiation of the Messrs. Hemsted was then completed by the W.M., whose perfect working deserves especial praise. Bro. W. H. Baker the W. Master elect was presented and duly installed into the chair of King Solomon, according to ancient custom, the ceremony being conducted by Bro. C. J. Wade P.M. in a manner which left nothing to be desired. The following brethren having been appointed to their several offices by the W.M., were invested with the collars and jewels of office, and suitably addressed by him on the nature of the duties to be performed by them. Bros. Maxted S.W., Chester J.W., Denne S.D., Staden J.D., Bishop I.G., Sarti W.S., Miles Treasurer, Parsons P.M. Secretary, and Farwig P.M. Master of Ceremonies. The Lodge being closed the brethren adjourned and enjoyed an excellent banquet. The W.M., who makes a capital President, proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. The National Anthem was sung by Miss Amy Romayne. In proposing the toast of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master, the W.M. said:—If evidence were needed of the loyalty of Freemasons to the throne we have it supplied in the fact that our beloved chief the M.W.G.M. is himself the heir apparent. His Royal Highness has connected himself with our Order, thereby affording an undoubted guarantee that Freemasonry has, even to the outside world, a something in it which men must respect; the country may be proud in the belief that H.R.H. would not connect himself with any institution which had not for its object the welfare and benefit of his fellow-countrymen. "God Bless the Prince of Wales" was here sung by Mr. Miles. The Worshipful Master then proposed the Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Lathom, and the rest of the Grand Officers, present and past. A body so well organised as that of Freemasons, possessing as it does such a powerful influence over the habitable globe, must be subject (in degree) to other men and other minds. Masons love order and discipline, because those attributes are the very concrete of their system. We are honoured with the presence of two Grand Officers to-night, and in calling upon Brother Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke to respond to the toast, all knew he would be able to speak well of the inner working of Grand Lodge. Brother W. Bolton then sang "Largo al factotum," which was capitally rendered. Colonel Shadwell Clerke, in responding to the toast of the Grand Officers, said it gave him infinite pleasure in being present at the working of the Lodge. Having previously heard of its excellence, he was delighted to bear witness to the fact, he also thanked Brother Wade for the very perfect way he had installed the W.M. With reference to the Grand Officers, he was always delighted to bear testimony to their worth. In all matters connected with the interests of the Craft, they were the life and soul, and he trusted the day was far distant when they would become unworthy of the respect, honour and esteem in which they were at present held by the St. James's Union Lodge and the Craft generally. The I.P.M., Bro. Fletcher, next proposed the health of the W.M., and in doing so, observed it was an especial pleasure to him, as not only had Bro. Baker worked up through the different offices in the Lodge to qualify himself, but he was an old, tried, and valued friend; and Bro. Baker having been unanimously elected by the brethren in open Lodge assembled, he felt he was only giving the toast in honour of their W.M. as the mouthpiece of the brethren. In addition thereto he not only congratulated Bro. Baker upon the position he had that day attained, but also the brethren upon the wisdom of their choice; he felt certain that the honour, influence and lustre of the St. James's Union would be transmitted to the Worshipful Master's successor pure and unsullied, and he would content himself by observing that, as in the past, so in the future, the W.M. would continue to merit the good opinion and esteem of every Brother of the St. James's Union Lodge. Mr. Miles then sang "Cœur de Lion." The Wor. Master in reply, said: Brethren, I acknowledge with gratitude, the very kind and flattering expressions which have just fallen from my old and valued friend, and our esteemed I.P.M. Brother Fletcher, I feel it is due more to his generous nature than any merit of my own. A man in any position, especially if that position be one of responsibility, naturally feels anxious, if not to some extent troubled. Anxious, in the first place, that he may not disappoint the kind expectations of his friends, and troubled when becoming Master of his Lodge that its interest might not suffer somewhat through his inefficiency. On the other hand, nothing gives strength and confidence so surely as the knowledge that, judging by the kind expressions of the I.P.M., I shall start with the sympathy, encouragement and help, not only of those who have preceded me, but of those who will, I trust, succeed me in the proud position I now occupy. I thank you, Bro. Fletcher, for the flattering manner in which you have proposed my health; and you, brethren, for the very hearty way in which you received it. The W.M.

then proposed the health of the I.P.M. Bro. Fletcher. He said: Brethren, if the labour and anxiety of the chair be great upon an installation night, the pleasures and privileges undoubtedly counterpoise them. The greatest of his pleasures that night was certainly the proposition of this toast—the health of our I.P.M. Bro. Fletcher. This was not the place to give precedence to the very natural feelings of regard for a personal friend, and he resisted the temptation. His first duty, as representing the brotherhood of the Lodge, was to express the unqualified appreciation of the earnest and kindly manner in which Bro. Fletcher had performed the duties of the ancient and honourable position of Master. All knew how ably he had performed his duties, and how gracefully he had presided at the social gatherings. On behalf of the brethren he presented a jewel, token and symbol of the high estimation in which Bro. Fletcher is held by every member. Gifts are the beads in memory's rosary, and in the hope that this gift may long hang on the chain of your memory, and ever link you with the traditions of the Craft, and the still more sacred remembrance of the brethren of the St. James's Union Lodge, Brethren, I ask you to be upstanding, and drink this toast with all the warmth and cordiality which is always accorded to popular members of the St. James's Union Lodge. Miss Amy Romayne here sang "The Lost Chord," with great feeling. The I.P.M., in responding, said: Worshipful Master and brethren, for the first time in my life I feel utterly unable to reply as my heart dictates; to you, Worshipful Sir, I tender my heartfelt thanks for the very high eulogium you have been pleased to pass upon my labours of the preceding twelvemonths, and to you, brethren, (I would I could do it individually) for the generous way in which you received it. It is a source of great gratification to me to mark the progress we have made during the past year, not only in numbers and finances, but in that happy concord without which no Lodge can be permanently successful. Brethren, as we are now once more fairly launched, I feel perfectly certain that we shall continue our even passage for many years to come; and I trust I may live with you to verify the very pleasant prophecy of our Worshipful Master. Worshipful Master and brethren, I again thank you. The W.M. next proposed the health of the Initiates: the duty he had to perform was one which all Masters take great pleasure in doing; that was, welcoming the Initiates. He was pleased to say they had two that night (and one joining member), and it gave him additional pleasure to say they were personal friends. In calling upon the brethren to welcome the Initiate with the social glass, he knew them to be good fellows; may they prove equally good Masons, and he felt sure they would always look back with pleasure upon their introduction into Freemasonry. After a song, Bros. George and Nathaniel Hemsted suitably and in well-chosen terms replied, as did also Bro. Smead, the joining member. In giving the toast of the Visitors, the W.M. said the brethren of the St. James's Union were always pleased to see them at the working of their Lodge, and to meet them at the social board. They had that evening with them a very distinguished and numerous company of Visitors; he would call upon Bros. Buss, Everett, and Lee to respond. Miss Amy Romayne then sang the "Gates of the West." Bro. Buss said it gave him much pleasure once more to visit the St. James's Union Lodge, and to endorse the remarks of Col. Clerke as to the work of the members; he specially wished to express his satisfaction, and thanks to Bro. Wade for the very excellent way in which he conducted the installation, and on behalf of the Visitors generally for the sumptuous hospitality with which they had been received. Bro. Everett had great pleasure in bearing testimony to the pleasurable evening they had all experienced; nothing could exceed the perfect way in which the ceremonies had been performed. He had the greater interest in witnessing the progress and general excellence of the St. James's Union Lodge, as it was exactly twenty-four years ago since he was raised there, by the kindness of the then W.M. He thanked Bro. Fletcher for giving him the opportunity of again coming amongst them. Bro. Sir E. Lee thanked the W.M. and brethren for the Masonic treat accorded the Visitors; he assured them it would afford them happy reminiscences. The W.M., in giving the next toast—the Past Masters—linked with it the Treasurer and Secretary. The Lodge was much indebted to the P.M.'s for the great care, time and attention they devoted to its interests. He was sorry Bro. Wade had been obliged to leave, as he desired to express to him his sincere thanks for many kindnesses, especially for his having installed him. The Treasurer, Bro. Miles, all knew, and all esteemed. The members would be glad to know their Treasurer had stated he had now more money in hand than on any previous occasion. They felt he was the man to guard it jealously. He now asked them to be upstanding, and drink to the health and prosperity of the Past Masters. After a humorous song from one of the Visitors, Bro. Farwig responded; assuring the brethren of the continued interest of the body he represented. Bro. Miles also replied, for himself and Secretary. Several of the Officers responded for the compliment paid them by the W.M., and then the Tyler brought this pleasant meeting to a close.

MASONRY IN PENNSYLVANIA.

THE Annual Communication of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania was held in the Masonic Temple, Philadelphia, on the 27th December last, under the presidency of M.W. Brother Samuel B. Dick Grand Master. The annual returns from the Lodges were received, and the Committee on Foreign Correspondence submitted their report. The Library Committee announced that Part IV. of the Proceedings of G. Lodge was ready in manuscript, and would be published shortly. The report of the Stewards of the Stephen Girard Charity Fund showed that, during the past year, the sum of 2,770 dollars had been expended in the relief of 171 poor but respectable brethren, of whom 149 hailed from the home, and twenty-two from foreign jurisdictions, while the Almoners of Grand Lodge Charity Fund had distributed 2,933 dollars among 257 applicants, of whom 233 hailed from Pennsylvania. Brother Dick, in his valedictory address, referred to the events of the past year, and especially to the Sesqui-Centennial celebration of Grand Lodge, and the sale of the old Masonic Hall in Chestnut Street for the sum of 225,000 dollars. The addresses delivered at the former he characterised as especially valuable, and said they should be preserved in a permanent form, and published by Grand Lodge for the edification of the brethren. As to the sale of the Hall, he congratulated the Craft on an event which released so large a sum belonging to them, a sum that had been locked up for nine years, but had now been added to the Grand Lodge Sinking Fund, which was thus increased to 255,000 dollars. He also stated that the bonded debt of G. Lodge which, in 1873, amounted to 1,455,000 dollars had since been reduced to 1,028,000 dollars, and he hoped and believed that the same steady ratio of decrease would be maintained. At the close of the address the principal Grand Officers were elected and installed, namely, Bros. Conrad B. Day M.W.G.M., E. Coppée Mitchell D.G.M., Joseph Eichbaum G.S.W., Clifford P. MacCalla G.J.W., Thomas R. Patton Grand Treasurer, and Michael Nisbet (P.G.M.) Grand Secretary. Grand Master Day then appointed and invested the other Grand Officers, namely, Rt. Rev. Brother Cortland Whitehead, D.D., Rev. Bros. William Suddards, D.D., Richard H. Allen, D.D., J. J. McIlvar, D.D., William B. Wood, D.D., J. S. McConnell, William H. Platt, James W. Robbins, D.D., Frank E. Miller, Henry S Getz, Samuel Hirsch, A. V. C. Schenck, D.D. Grand Chaplains; George S. Graham G.S.D., Robert E. Pattison G.J.D., John Slingluff and John W. Lee Grand Stewards, George W. Wood Grand Marshal, Louis M. Chastean Grand Sword Bearer, Robert P. Dechert Grand Pursuivant, William A. Sinn Grand Tyler. Bro. Nisbet then proposed a series of resolutions by way of recognising the valuable services rendered by Bro. Dick during the term of his Grand Mastership, and these having been unanimously accepted, and ordered to be engrossed for presentation to the retiring Grand Master, Bro. Richard Vaux P.G.M., on behalf of the Grand Lodge, presented Bro. Dick with a valuable Past Grand Master's jewel, which the latter accepted, and for which, as well as the resolutions, he returned thanks in a very appropriate speech. Grand Lodge was closed and the brethren separated, but in noticing these proceedings we cannot allow the opportunity to pass without congratulating Brother MacCalla, of the Keystone, from which we have derived these particulars, on his appointment as Grand Junior Warden.

The annual Convocation of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania was held in the evening of the same day, in the Temple, and was presided over by M.E. Comp. Hibberd P. John Grand High Priest, who also reviewed the events of the past year, referring, with regret, to the great loss sustained by capitular Masonry in Pennsylvania through the deaths of Past Grand High Priests, Comps. Potter, Parke and Griscom. He also suggested that G. Chapter should take into favourable consideration the subject of the Masonic Home advocated by the Girard and Columbia Mark Lodges, and concluded by thanking the Companions who had been his Officers and the members of Grand Chapter for the kindness and assistance they had rendered him. The following were then elected and installed as the Principal Grand Officers, namely, Comps. Augustus R. Hall M.E. Grand H. Priest, George W. Kendrick junior Grand King, Matthias H. Henderson Grand Scribe, Thos. R. Patton Grand Treasurer, and Charles E. Meyer Grand Secretary, after which the Grand H. Priest appointed the following Officers, namely, Comps. Henry R. Coulomb Grand Captain of the Host, John Keller jun. Grand Principal Sojourner, James S. Barber Grand R.A. Captain, J. V. Robbins, D.D., T. J. Davis, D.D., W. B. Wood, D.D., A. N. C. Schenck, D.D., T. F. Jackson, J. F. Crouch, W. H. Platt, W. P. Howell, H. S. Getz, and Alex. M. Wiggins, Grand Chaplains; Charles W. Bolen Grand Master of the 3rd Vail, Arthur H. Woodward Grand Master of the 2nd Vail, and Fred. K. Womrath Grand Master of the 1st Vail; Edward Masson Grand Marshal, Michael W. Reinoehl S.G. Master of Ceremonies, Elias W. Hale jun. G.M. of Ceremonies, Edward Frier Grand Pursuivant, and W. A. Sinn Grand Janitor. A memorial notice of the late Comp. Parke Past Grand High Priest having been read by Comp. Samuel C. Perkins Past G.H.P., Grand Chapter was closed until its quarterly meeting in March, when the Mark Master's degree will be exemplified by the Grand Officers.

The Keystone closed the year 1882 with a double number, of unusual excellence. Among the additional matter we note with pleasure a well-executed engraving of the Masonic Temple, Philadelphia, and portraits of the principal Officers of the Grand Commandery of Pennsylvania, with short historical sketches of the majority of them. There are likewise several tales and items of general interest.

The Voice of Masonry begins its volume for the current year bravely. We have so often spoken in terms of well-deserved praise of the contents and general style and tone of this Magazine that it will suffice if we say that the number for the present month maintains, if, indeed, it does not enhance, its reputation as a first class organ of American Masonic news and opinion. By the way, it notes a mistake we made some time since in attributing to the Masonic Review an article we quoted from its pages. We regret the error, which was unintentional, and apologise for having made it.

Our brethren are reminded that the annual ball given under the auspices of the City of London Lodge, No. 901, is fixed to take place at Freemasons' Tavern, on the evening of Wednesday, the 31st instant. In past seasons this event has been attended with a very large measure of success, and, judging for the demand for tickets, this year a similar result may be anticipated. The Stewards are doing their utmost to make the ball attractive, and those who have not yet secured tickets should lose no time in applying to them, or to the Hon. Sec., Bro. R. P. Stevens, 5 Little Argyll Street, Regent Street, W.

The Committee of Petitions of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Devon will be held this year at the Huyshe Masonic Temple, Plymouth. The Officers will be appointed, petitioners will be relieved, and candidates for the Great Charities will be selected to receive the support of the Province.

The Hon. Frank Lyon, second son of the Earl of Strathmore, was, on Wednesday, the 10th inst., installed as Prov. Grand Master of Forfarshire.

The Quarterly Court of Subscribers and Governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held on Monday afternoon at Freemasons' Hall. There were present Bros. Lieut.-Col. Creaton, Grand Treasurer, in the chair; William Roebuck, Leopold Ruf, Arthur E. Gladwell, H. Massey, C. F. Matier, Don. M. Dewar, and F. Binckes (Secretary). The Court declared a list of 65 candidates for the election of the 16th April, and vacancies for twelve boys in the School. There was no further business before the Court.

CITY OF LONDON LODGE, No. 901.

THE annual installation meeting of this highly disciplined and thoroughly popular Lodge was held on Monday evening last, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, when there was an unusually numerous attendance of brethren and visitors, under the presidency of the retiring Worshipful Master, Brother George Cundy. A hearty and fraternal greeting was interchanged as the brethren assembled, soon after four o'clock, and it was evident that the proceedings of the evening were anticipated with a considerable amount of interest. This arose, no doubt, from the exceedingly able manner in which Brother Cundy had transacted the business of the exalted position he had held during the year, and the equal popularity and promise of Brother John Hughes, who had so well discharged his functions as Senior Warden. Soon after four o'clock Lodge was opened in accordance with ancient rites, the Worshipful Master being supported by Brothers Charles Beaumont Immediate Past Master, John Hughes S.W., D. Hughes J.W., Henry Darcy P.M. Treasurer, George Darcy P.M. Secretary, T. McClelland S.D., E. V. P. Harris J.D., R. Clinch M.C., H. Harbord I.G., Ernest C. T. Hand Organist; also Bros. A. Ginger P.M., W. Lewis P.M., R. Gillard, D. Hughes, J. E. Finister, A. Bisley, R. Stevens, H. Smith, J. Watkins, J. Vale, A. Prince, R. Diamond, G. Lawson, G. Grist, W. R. Hanlock, C. Bates, Geo. Chivers, H. Gooch, E. W. Cundy, A. J. Sheffield, J. Hoddinott, George Britton, C. Huish, F. Eade, H. Barwell, W. B. Smith, J. Hoskins, J. Richardson, W. Alder, H. W. Taylor, W. C. Plater, A. Parker, W. Dance, P. C. Rogers, J. Hardwick, R. F. Whur, G. F. Lawson, W. Wallace, W. Hopkinson, G. Rubardt, T. Baines, T. James, T. Hocking, J. Hardwick, G. Walker, R. Fletcher, J. Woodstock Tyler, and others. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. R. Jeffreys P.M. 435, J. Zidpast P.M. 1306, J. Cooper P.M. 55, J. W. Cooper P.M. 538, J. Eldridge P.M. 167, J. Bladen 1839, G. G. Symons P.M. 45, E. King 554, V. Borg 515 (Malta), R. Woodward S.W. 1728, R. W. Henry 144, C. W. Cox 188, H. Wright 1965, A. Hickman W.M. 228, H. Price S.D. 177, B. J. Woolfe 720, W. Thomas 1853, E. A. Peachy 1764, E. Wood 829, F. J. Healey 749, S. Hurdle 1744, J. W. Hiscox 1512, Fredk. Hurdle 548, W. H. Chalfont 1425, E. Gell 1017, S. J. Ball 1517, H. Millis 1853, S. Etherington 1305, J. Barker 933, H. Champness 18, W. F. Green 861, Geo. Bassett 969, &c. After the confirmation of the minutes of last meeting, Lodge was advanced and Bro. Watkins was passed to the second degree, the ceremony being ably performed by the Worshipful Master, assisted by his Officers. Bro. John Hughes was then presented as the Worshipful Master elect, and a Board of Installed Masters having been constituted, he was duly installed into the chair by the retiring Worshipful Master, whose eloquent delivery of the Ritual elicited universal expressions of approbation, and afforded much pleasure as well as edification to all present. On the re-admission of the brethren, the newly-installed Worshipful Master was proclaimed with the customary honours, after which he proceeded to invest his Officers for the year, as follows:—Bros. George A. Cundy I.P.M., David Hughes S.W., McClelland J.W., H. Darcy P.M. Treas., C. Beaumont P.M. Sec., E. V. P. Harris S.D., H. Harbord J.D., J. Clinch M.C., Daniel Hughes I.G., Ernest C. T. Hand Organist, Gillard and R. Whur Stewards, R. Pittam Stevens W.S., and Woodstock Tyler. The ballot was then opened for Mr. Richard Fletcher, who had been proposed by Bro. Vale, seconded by Bro. D. Hughes, and the voting being unanimously in favour, that gentleman was duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Order. The proposal, by Bro. Lewis P.M. seconded by Bro. Venner, that ten guineas be given out of the Lodge Benevolent Fund, to a Brother, was agreed to, and after the transaction of some other business, the brethren adjourned to the throne-room of the hotel, where a sumptuous banquet was provided by Messrs. Ritter and Clifford, and personally superintended by Bro. Henry Mills, whose arrangements gave every satisfaction. Dessert having been placed on the tables, the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, the W.M. alluding in felicitous terms to the honour enjoyed by the Craft in having the first gentleman in the land to be its G.M., and speaking of the deep interest which his Royal Highness ever manifested in the welfare of the Order, which he had so nearly at heart. The toast was cordially received, and was followed by the trio, "Hail to thee, Prince of Wales," admirably sung by Bros. Hand, Sanford and Minton, who were deservedly applauded. Our Masonic Rulers formed the subject of the next toast, special mention being made of the valuable services each rendered to the Craft, and after the usual honours, Bro. Frank Laughlin played a brilliant pianoforte solo, from "Lurline." The I.P.M. then assumed the gavel, and said the brethren were compelled to listen once more to his voice, of which they must have heard enough during the past twelve months. He asked them to drink to the health of their W.M., whom he had the pleasure of installing that evening. When he said Bro. Hughes was a great honour to the City of London Lodge, it was sufficient to say he would be an honour to any Lodge in the world. He, therefore, asked them to drink with all cordiality the health of their esteemed Worshipful Master, hoping he might have a grand year of prosperity. The toast was received most heartily, and was followed by the trio, "The Peasant's Morning Song," by Bros. Hand, Sanford and Minton. The Worshipful Master, who on rising to reply was most cordially received, thanked the brethren heartily for the manner in which they had received the toast, and Bro. Gundy specially for the flattering terms in which he had referred to his humble services. When he entered the Lodge, four years ago, he little dreamed of so soon occupying the position to which he had that day attained, by the kindness of the brethren. It was a matter of great pride to him, and if he had given them satisfaction in what little he had done that evening, he should labour ten times more to give them satisfaction in the future. He then proposed, in suitable terms, the health of the Initiate, which was followed by the glee "Banish, O Maiden" by Bros. Hand, Minton, Sanford and Laughlin. Bro. Fletcher, in acknowledging the toast, said he felt very much honoured by having been admitted a member of the Ancient and Honourable Institution of Freemasons, and expressed the hope that he might prove an apt student of the art, and become a good Mason. The Worshipful Master then proposed the health of his Immediate Past Master, remarking that very little was needed from him to enhance Bro. Cundy in the opinion of the brethren. They must all acknowledge that he had conducted the ceremony of installation that evening in a most admirable manner. The effect was such that it thoroughly thrilled him. Throughout his year of office everything that Bro. Cundy had done, or attempted to do, had been done with the best intentions, and for the welfare of the Lodge. They had much to thank him for, because, before he took office, he was always busy in the Lodge, and did much to promote its interests. He had now pleasure in affixing to his breast a handsome jewel, which had been unanimously voted by the brethren of the Lodge. He was sure the company would all agree with him when he said never did jewel adorn the breast of a more worthy Mason than that of their Bro. Cundy. He hoped he might be spared many years to wear it, and to enjoy the respect and esteem in which he was held by all the brethren of the Lodge. The Immediate Past Master was warmly received on rising to respond. He said: Believe me, brethren, through my year of office I have, as you know, stood up many times to respond for the toast of my health, and to propose many toasts, and I generally have done so with a certain degree of confidence. But upon this occasion the words that our excellent Worshipful Master has used, saying that I have given such immense satisfaction to the Lodge during my year of office, and before, really make me feel a great amount of diffidence in returning thanks. I feel that during my year of office, and since I have been a member of this Lodge, I have been treated by every member of it, individually, with that degree of kindness, courtesy and respect which invariably exists amongst Freemasons, and it is this which makes me feel the diffidence which I have mentioned. Your kindness in voting me this jewel will never be forgotten. It will be worn by me upon every available occasion, with the greatest amount of pride and pleasure, because I know it has been unanimously voted, out of the good feeling of the brethren of the City of London Lodge. I shall always wear it as a token of the good feeling which I know does exist between every member of this Lodge and myself—a good feeling which, I trust, may continue to exist as long as I live. The W.M. next proposed the Visitors, on whose behalf Bros. Jeffreys, Thomas and Chalfont suitably replied; after which the health of the Past Masters was given, and duly acknowledged by the P.M.'s present. Bros. Sanford and Minton sang excellent songs between these toasts, and after the Officers, Bros. Hand, Sanford, Minton and Laughlin gave the quartette, "Oh! who will o'er the Downs?" in capital style. The Tyler's toast closed the official programme, and was appropriately followed by the song, "The Passing Bell," by Bro. Hand, soon after which the brethren separated, having spent a thoroughly happy and harmonious réunion.

UNION LODGE, No. 52.

THE Mayor of Norwich, Brother Charles R. Gilman, was on Tuesday, 9th inst., installed W.M. of this, the premier Lodge of the province of Norfolk, at the Norfolk Hotel, in presence of a large number of subscribing and visiting brethren—mostly the latter. The Right Worshipful W.M. afterwards proceeded to invest his Officers, as follow:—Bros. Courtenay Boyle I.P.M., P. E. Hansell S.W., C. A. B. Bignold J.W., H. G. Barwell Treasurer, Charles Cubitt Secretary, Harry Bullard S.D., Rev. W. Vincent J.D. and Chaplain, W. M. Pigott I.G., W. Murrell Tyler. Certain formal business having been transacted, a banquet, supplied in host Tidman's best style, followed, and the proceedings at the social board were of the most harmonious character. We may state, however, that the loss of Brother Gardiner C. Stevens, who had long acted as Secretary of Union Lodge, was alluded to with much feeling.

LODGE FORTITUDE, No. 131, TRURO.

THE brethren celebrated the festival of St. John, on Tuesday, 9th inst., when Brother R. Angel S.W. was installed W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremony of installation was performed by Brother T. Chirgwin P.M. The W.M. invested his Officers as follow:—Bros. W. B. Morriss I.P.M., H. Simmons S.W., T. C. Mack J.W., W. Middleton Treasurer, J. Tonkin Secretary, G. M. Downing S.D., W. J. Green J.D., J. Hearn Chaplain, J. Higgins I.G., T. Kendall M.C., W. T. Hawking and J. Greenaway Stewards, Lukie Organist, J. Langdon Tyler. Brother W. B. Merriss was appointed steward for the Cornwall Masonic Benevolent and Annuity Fund. The brethren afterwards sat down to a first-class banquet, supplied By Mrs. Bray, at the Red Lion Hotel. Amongst those present was Brother Sir James McGarel Hogg, M.P.

PROSPERITY LODGE BALL.

ONE of the most successful and agreeable ré-unions ever witnessed in connection with the Lodge of Prosperity, No. 65, took place on Tuesday evening last, at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, where the annual ball was given in aid of the Masonic Charities. Each succeeding Worshipful Master seems to be animated with a determination, if possible, to excel those who have gone before. The brethren who acted as Stewards on this occasion were Bros. Roberts, Schadler, Rich, Hawkins, Marshall, Gregory, Jones, Walker, Dyson, Goodwin, E. S. Cornwall, L. A. Leins, C. Daniel, C. E. Ferry, W. Chicken, G. F. Burge, Stafford, Bond, Ruse, Edridge, Bourn, and Wallis, to whom the utmost meed of praise is due for the excellent and efficient manner in which the whole of the arrangements were carried out. The ball was brilliantly illuminated by means of the electric light, whilst massive lustres adorned the mantle shelves, decked out on either side with ferns and ornamental foliage plants. On either side of the hall were large mirrors, tastefully adorned with curtains of white lace, whilst in the corners of the room were fountains from which cool plashing of water came with a refreshing sound. Lounges and seats were judiciously placed for the rest and retirement of the guests between the exciting phases of the dance, and the committee seem to have studied to the very minutest detail the comfort and convenience of their numerous party of friends. An excellent selection of music was submitted by Bro. Sibold's City of London band. At twelve o'clock supper was announced in the Pillar Hall, the entire company assembling under the genial presidency of Bro. J. Roberts.

LODGE OF SINCERITY, No. 174.

THE annual installation meeting of this old and flourishing Lodge was held on Wednesday evening last, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, when there was a very numerous assemblage of the members and visitors. Lodge was opened soon after four o'clock, under the presidency of the retiring W.M., Bro. F. Brown, who was supported by the whole of his Officers. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the auditors' report, which was of a very satisfactory character, was unanimously approved. The ballot was then opened for Bro. George A. Bashford, of the Wanderers' Lodge, No. 1604, who had been proposed by Bro. W. Gayton, and seconded by Bro. John Newton P.M., and the voting was unanimously in his favour. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Clifford was passed to Fellow Craft. Lodge was then advanced to the third, and resumed in the second degree, Bro. J. S. Fraser was presented as W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony being worked by the outgoing W.M. Having received the customary salutations, he invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. F. Brown I.P.M., A. Haig Brown S.W., T. F. Harvey J.W., Charles Lacey P.M. Treasurer, John Newton P.M. Secretary, W. Fraser S.D., F. Dellow J.D., H. J. Cant I.G., G. T. H. Seddon P.M. Organist, C. Blain M.C., John Miller Wine Steward, and J. Very Tyler. At the conclusion of some routine business, the brethren and visitors adjourned to the throne room of the hotel, where a récherché banquet was provided, and the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. These were interspersed with an abundance of good singing and music, and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed.

ROYAL UNION LODGE, No. 382.

THE regular meeting of the above Lodge was held at the Chequers Hotel, Uxbridge, on Monday, the 15th inst. Bros. J. Lonsdale W.M., G. Rowles S.W., H. W. Nicholson J.W., and a goodly attendance of the members. The Lodge being duly opened, M. W. H. Goodban was initiated. Lodge was then opened in the second, and Bro. Marsh was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, after which Lodge was resumed to the first degree. The election of W.M. for the ensuing year was then proceeded with, and the choice of the brethren fell upon Bro. G. Rowles Senior Warden. The Treasurer and Tyler were both unanimously re-elected, and after the appointment of two of the brethren as Auditors, Bro. C. Russ P.M. proposed that a Past Master's jewel be presented at the next meeting to the retiring W.M., as a proof of the excellent manner in which he had carried out the duties of the chair during his year of office. At the close of the Lodge the brethren sat down to an excellent repast, provided by the host Bro. Phillips, and after due justice had been done to this, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were drank. Bro. C. Russ P.M. P.G.P. Middlesex, on behalf of the brethren, presented Bro. W. Coombes P.M. P.G.S.B. with a handsome testimonial, consisting of a sterling silver tea service, and an illuminated address, as follows:—

To Brother W. Coombes P.M. Prov. Grand Sword Bearer Middlesex, Secretary to the Royal Union Lodge, No. 382.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—We, the brethren of the Royal Union Lodge, present you with this testimonial as a token of our esteem, regard, and appreciation of your many years valuable and devoted services as Secretary of our Lodge.

We also present you with this sterling silver tea service, the frequent use of which we trust may be conducive to give you health and strength, long to continue to be our worthy Secretary, and remain a beloved brother among us.

CHARLES RUSS P.M. P.G.P.

15th January 1883. Uxbridge.

The following is the inscription on the Tea Service: –

"Presented to Brother W. COOMBES P.M., by the members of the Royal Union Lodge, No. 382, as a token of esteem. January 1883."

Bro. Coombes having responded, a vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Russ for the excellent way in which he carried out the wishes of the brethren, and for the trouble he had taken in getting up the testimonial. This closed a very successful meeting.

The fourth annual ball, in connection with the Crichton Lodge, No. 1641, will take place on Friday, the 9th February, at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street. An influential list of Stewards has been announced, and as the proceeds will be devoted to the Charity Fund of the Lodge, we trust there will be a large attendance. A dispensation has been obtained to wear Masonic clothing.

The Quarterly Court of Subscribers to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held on Saturday, at Freemasons' Hall, Col. Creaton Grand Treasurer, in the chair. There were also present Brothers Richardson, Montennis, Massey, Massa, Tattershall, Harvey, Matthews, Webb, Roebuck, Peter de Lande Long, and F. R. W. Hedges Secretary. After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, the chairman announced that there would be twenty-nine candidates at the next election in April, and twenty-two vacancies. On the motion of Bro. Frank Richardson P.G.D., Vice-Patron, seconded by Bro. A. H. Tattershall, the following motion was unanimously passed: "That the best thanks of the subscribers to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls are eminently due, and are hereby tendered to, Bro. Lieut.-Col. Leach, R.E., for his fraternal conduct in voluntarily superintending the sanitary works lately so successfully carried out at the School buildings, at Battersea; and that, as a small recognition of the services rendered by him, he be, and is, hereby elected a Vice-Patron of the Institution, with all the rights and privileges attached thereto." In moving the resolution, Bro. F. Richardson said, that in consequence of Col. Leach's services, the building was now the most healthy in the country, and as they could not recompense the voluntary services of such a distinguished scientist in money, the House Committee thought they might offer him some slight recognition of those services by electing him a Vice-Patron of the Institution. Bro. Tattershall said he had great pleasure in seconding the motion, because it was he who introduced Col. Leach to Col. Creaton. The proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

We beg to draw the attention of our readers to the reprint, in pamphlet form, which has just been issued, of the Series of Articles that appeared in our last Volume on the Proposed New Edition of the Book of Constitutions. We were anxious on our own account, as well as at the instance of a large number of our readers, to undertake the difficult task of revising the Revise, and from letters received from various influential quarters it appears that our criticisms have been received with considerable favour. These criticisms have been most carefully overlooked since their first publication, and we are inclined to believe, from the kindly opinions which have been passed upon them, that they are not altogether unworthy of consideration, while here and there may be found suggestions which are not entirely valueless. At all events, we have reproduced them, and have derived no little satisfaction from the manner in which they have been received. If it should prove of service in promoting the important work which has been undertaken, and which must be discussed at length by Grand Lodge, we shall feel that our labour has not been in vain.

At a meeting of the North London Chapter of Improvement, held at the Canonbury Tavern, St. Mary's Road, Islington, on Thursday, the 18th inst., Comp. Gregory occupied the chair of Z.; Comps. Cull H., Hunter J., Gillard P.S., and Edmonds S.N. Brethren desirous of instruction in the duties of Royal Arch Masonry could not do better than join this Chapter of Improvement. Comp. Edmonds is a painstaking and competent Preceptor.

The Keystone for the 6th of January publishes a small supplement in the shape of a well-arranged Calendar, showing the names, numbers, and meeting-nights of the different Masonic bodies in Philadelphia for the year 1883. Its budget of news, though of local interest, is very readable. In fact, our Pennsylvanian contemporary has closed the past year and inaugurated the present in a manner worthy of its acknowledged rank of a Masonic journal.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

JOPPA LODGE, No. 188.

THE annual installation meeting of this old and popular Lodge was held at Freemasons' Tavern, on New Year's Day, when there was a large attendance of the brethren and Visitors. Under the presidency of the retiring Worshipful Master, Bro. L. M. Myers, Lodge was opened soon after half-past four o'clock, the Worshipful Master being supported by Bros. Benjamin S.W., Martin J.W., Albert P.M. P.G.P. Hon. Sec., Lyon Treasurer, Bean S.D., Wall J.D., Dewsnap M.C., Wynman Steward, Van Noorden Org., Baker I.P.M., P.M.'s Dodson, Levy, Alexander, Lazarus, Hyman, Berkowitz, and many other brethren. Amongst the Visitors were:—Bros. Isaacs 1614, Sims 1558, Thompson 1695, Phillips 205, Davis 1017, Jacobs P.M. 1327, Forge W.M. 1950, Woodman 1950, Pond 1260, Lazarus P.P.G.W. Wilts, Kauffmann 1732, Clark P.M. 1222, Adlard P.P.G.A.D.C. Essex, Faulkner P.M. 1423, Abrahams P.M. 1017, Posener W.M. 15, Da Silva W.M. 205, Massey P.M. 1928, Bush P.M. 185, Vallentine 1017, Lewis P.M. 1261, Fletcher W.M. 180, Myers 185, Bignold 1624, Braham 946, Hollis P.P.G.S.B. Herts, Cohen P.M. 185. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Lodge was advanced, and Bro. Davies was raised to the sublime degree by the Worshipful Master, assisted by his Officers, the ceremony being ably performed, and the charges delivered with good effect. Bro. Benjamin, who had discharged his duties as S.W. during the year in exemplary manner, and had been unanimously chosen as the W.M. elect, was then presented, and a Board of Installed Masters having been constituted, he was duly installed into the chair by Bro. Richard Baker P.M., whose admirable rendering of the ritual was much admired, and afforded the utmost pleasure and satisfaction to all present. On the re-admission of the brethren, the newly-installed W.M. was proclaimed and saluted in the three degrees, after which he appointed his Officers for the ensuing year, as follow: Bros. L. M. Myers I.P.M., Martin S.W., Bean J.W., Lyon Treasurer, E. P. Albert P.M. P.G.P. Secretary, A. Botibol S.D., Wall J.D., Dewsnap I.G., Dodson P.M. M.C., S. B. Alexander A.M.C., J. Wynman Steward, G. Green A. Steward, Van Noorden Org., J. Woodstock P.M. Tyler. At the conclusion of the business, the brethren and visitors partook of a sumptuous banquet, under the presidency of the newly-installed Worshipful Master, Bro. J. Benjamin, who, when dessert had been placed before the guests, proposed the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts, which were duly honoured. In giving the Right Worshipful the Grand Master, he said it was a toast that was always received with loyalty and enthusiasm, his Royal Highness being deservedly popular with all classes, and more especially amongst his brethren of the Craft. He (the W.M.) had therefore great pleasure in submitting this toast for the acceptance of the company. Bro. E. P. Albert suitably responded on behalf of the Grand Officers Past and Present; after which the Worshipful Master proposed Success to the Joppa Benevolent Fund, with which he associated the name of its excellent Past President, Bro. L. Alexander. Bro. Alexander said he had so frequently been called upon to respond to this toast that he had but little further to add as to the great usefulness of the fund, which was established in 1819, under the fostering care of its promoter, Dr. Canstatt. Since then they had dispensed large sums of money, with infinite advantage in many cases to its recipients. He detailed several instances of the benefits conferred by this fund, which now amounted to nearly £2900. Bro. Myers then, in felicitous terms, proposed the health of the newly-installed Worshipful Master, who had worked hard and zealously in the cause of Freemasonry and this Lodge in particular, and who well deserved the honours which had that day been conferred upon him. He felt sure that when Bro. Benjamin had completed his year of office the brethren would be in a position to congratulate him upon the happy result of his labours. The toast was most enthusiastically received, and Bro. Benjamin, in response, thanked the brethren for the cordiality of the greeting which they had accorded him. It had been his earnest desire to emulate the deeds of those who had preceded him in that high and exalted position, and he assured them he should strive ever to promote the true interests of the Joppa Lodge. His heart was warmly in the work of Freemasonry, and no words he could employ were adequate to express his appreciation of the dignity and honour which they had to-day bestowed upon him. The brethren had vouchsafed a kindly and patient hearing while he had been speaking of himself; he would now ask them to extend a similar mark of consideration to his Immediate Past Master, whose health it was now his pleasant duty to submit to them. In eulogistic terms, he then alluded to the admirable work of the brother who had just vacated the chair, and the valuable services he had rendered to the Lodge during his very successful year of office; and, in conclusion, he asked Bro. Myers' acceptance of a handsome Past Master's jewel, which had been subscribed for by the whole of the brethren as a token of regard and appreciation of genuine and useful service to the Joppa Lodge. The jewel was a very massive and handsome one, of gold, and bore the following inscription:—"Presented by the brethren of the Lodge of Joppa to Wor. Brother Lewis M. Meyers P.M., as a mark of esteem for his valuable services, and the efficient manner in which he discharged the duties as W.M. during the year 1882. January 1883." Bro. Myers, who on rising to acknowledge the gift was loudly cheered, said he should look upon the jewel not merely for its intrinsic worth, but more especially for the kindly and generous motives by which the gift had been prompted. The Joppa was not his mother Lodge, but since he had been connected with it he had made many valued friends, from whom he had received nothing but kindness; he assured them he should strive every nerve to advance the best interests and welfare of the Lodge. A compliment was paid to Bro. Silver, of 117 Gower-street, for the excellent banquet he had set before the brethren, and for the arrangements, which had elicited unqualified satisfaction. Bro. Da Silva, of the Israel Lodge, responded in a happy vein for the Visitors, as also did Bro. S. V. Abrahams the present W.M. of the Montefiore Lodge. He alluded to his initiation into the Joppa Lodge, of which he at one time filled the chair, and made suitable reference to the admirable way in which the Benevolent Fund was managed by its past and present Officers. He trusted, by removal to the Freemasons' Tavern, the Lodge might be benefited in every way, and continue to sustain the prestige it had for many years enjoyed. Brother T. W. C. Bush also suitably responded. For the Past Masters Bro. Baker replied, in a few happily chosen sentences, and the health of the Officers, for whom the Wardens responded, was followed by the Tyler's toast. During the evening some excellent vocal and instrumental music was given by Madame Pellitier, Miss Emily Dashwood, Bros. Arthur Thomas, Frank Quatremayne, Signor Villa, Chas. Braham, whose performances tended much to enliven the proceedings of the evening. Bro. Walter Van Noorden, son of Bro. E. P. Van Noorden, Organist of the Lodge, efficiently accompanied on the pianoforte.

PEACE AND HARMONY LODGE, No. 496, ST. AUSTELL.

THE members of the above Lodge held their annual meeting, to commemorate the festival of St. John, on 9th inst. After the second degree had been conferred on a brother, Brother John Brewer the W.M. elect was most ably and impressively installed by W. Bro. John W. Higman P.M. The W. Master appointed and invested the following brethren as his Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Charles Tozer I.P.M., Houseley S.W., William J. Tredinnick J.W., Rev. F. B. Paul Chaplain, W. Guy Treasurer (20th year), W. J. Watts Secretary, J. G. Blight S.D., H. Harris J.D., J. McTurk I.G., J. Bunt M.C., S. Truscott Organist, S. Tank and J. Connett Stewards, and William Real Tyler. W. Brother Guy was re-elected Steward of the C.M.A. and B. Fund. Among the visiting brethren were Bros. J. Doney S.W., and G. Louth 856, Lostwithiel, and Richard Parson J.W. 977, Fowey. The banquet which was well attended, was served at W. Brother Luke's, White Hart Hotel.

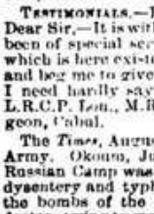
United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, No. 507.—At the Surrey Masonic Hall, on Friday, 12th inst., Brother Stokes officiated as W.M., and was supported by Bros. Richard Poore S.W., C. H. Wiltshire J.W., A. J. Styles S.D., H. H. Wiltshire J.D., J. N.

Digitized by Google

Bate I.G., James Stevens P.M. and Preceptor; J. Wilmott and others were also present. The Lodge having been opened in Fellow Craft, the first section was worked by the brethren, the ceremony of passing was rehearsed by the W.M., and the charge in the degree given by Bro. Bate. The Lodge was then lowered, and after the election of Brother Poore as W.M. for the ensuing week, was closed in due form and the meeting adjourned.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—The members held their usual meeting on Saturday last, at the Jolly Farmers', Southgate-road. There were present Bros. A. W. Fenner W.M., Jones S.W., Ashton J.W., Pearcy Preceptor, Lorkin acting Secretary, Gribbell S.D., Richardson J.D., Marks I.G., also Bros. Weeden, Defries, Wolf, Arober, Cohen, Nicholls, Houghton, Mackey, Hatch, Brasted, Galer, Rushton, &c. The usual preliminaries were observed, and then Brother Weeden answered the questions leading to the second degree. Lodge opened in the second, and the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Brother C. Weeden candidate. Brother C. Lorkin gave the lecture on the tracing board. Brother Rushton answered the questions leading to the third degree. Lodge opened in the third, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Brother Rushton being the candidate; the ceremony included the recital of the traditional history. The W.M. worked the third section of the lecture, thus completing an instructive evening's labour. Lodge resumed to first degree. Brother Rushton, of the Crusaders' Lodge, No. 1677, was elected a member, and Brother G. F. Jones was appointed W.M. for next week, after which Lodge was closed and adjourned.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—A meeting was held on Friday, 12th inst., at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge. Present—Bros. Beckett W.M., Monson S.W., Sperring J.W., C. E. Botley Secretary, F. Botley S.D., Goss P.M. J.D., Cammell I.G., Andrews P.M. Preceptor, Past Master Bro. Blasby; Bros. Maton and Turner. Business—Lodge was opened and the minutes of last meeting were read, confirmed, and signed. The questions leading to the third degree were answered, and the ceremony of raising rehearsed, Brother Turner candidate. Lodge resumed to first degree, and the third and fourth sections of first lecture were worked. Brother Monson was elected W.M. for 19th January. Lodge was then closed and adjourned.



West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction, No. 1612.—At the Institute, Ealing, on Tuesday, 16th instant. Present—Bros. Seward W.M., Acworth S.W., Longhurst P.M. 133, 1272 J.W., Smith S.D., Jones J.D., Wells I.G., Andrews P.M. acting Preceptor, and Brown. After preliminaries, the Worshipful Master rehearsed the ceremony of raising, Brother Wells candidate. Lodge was resumed to the first degree, and Brother Longhurst worked the fourth section of the first Lecture. Brother Acworth was elected Worshipful Master for the next meeting, and then Lodge was closed, and the meeting adjourned to Tuesday, 23rd instant.

On the 19th ult., at a well attended meeting of this Lodge of Instruction, Bro. James Terry, Past Provincial Grand S.W. Norths and Hunts, rehearsed the ceremony of installation. In acknowledging a vote of thanks most cordially passed to him, Brother Terry referred to the very able assistance he had received from Brother Delevanti, who presided at the organ on the occasion.

Bro. R. P. Forge, W.M. of the Southgate Lodge, No. 1950, will rehearse the ceremony of installation at the Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693, held at the Canonbury Tavern, St. Mary's Road, Canonbury, on Monday, 22nd January, upon which occasion the Lodge will be opened at 8 o'clock precisely, and will be closed at 9; after this it is the intention of the members to spend an hour in conviviality, several musical brethren having promised to support Bro. Forge on the occasion.

FREEMAN'S CHLORODYNE.

The Original and only true.

HUNDREDS of Medical Practitioners testify to its marvellous efficacy in immediately relieving and rapidly curing Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Spasms, Colic, Whooping Cough, and all Nerve Pains. It acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery. It rapidly relieves pain, from whatever cause, soothes and strengthens the system under exhausting diseases, and gives quiet and refreshing sleep.

Lord Chancellor Selborne, Lord Justice James, Lord Justice Mellish decided in favour of FREEMAN'S ORIGINAL CHLORODYNE, and against Brown and Davenport, compelling them to pay all costs in the suits. See Times of July 24th, 1873. Bottles 1s 1½d, 2s 9d, 4s 6d, 11s, and 20s. Sold by all Chemists.

TESTIMONIALS.—Head Quarter Staff, Cabul, May 31st, 1880. Mr. R. Freeman, Dear Sir,—It is with much pleasure I am able to state that your Chlorodyne has been of special service to me in alleviating the wearisome spasms of Asthma, which is here existent in an aggravated form. Many of my patients now come and beg me to give them that medicine which always relieves them, and which I need hardly say is your Chlorodyne. Yours faithfully, CHARLES W. OWEN, L.R.C.P. Lon., M.R.C.S. Eng., the Divisional Head Quarter Staff and Civil Surgeon, Cabul.

The Times, August 13th, 1877. From our own Correspondent with the Russian Army. Okoum, July 25th, 1877. The want of sanitary arrangements in the Russian Camp was dreadful, and had we remained there a few weeks longer, dysentery and typhoid fever would have played more havoc in our ranks than the bombs of the Turks. I myself acquired an unenviable reputation as a doctor, owing to my being provided with a small bottle of CHLORODYNE, with which I effected miraculous cures.

INSTALLATION OF SUCCESSORS.

HOWEVER excellent and instructive a good precept or maxim may be, it becomes a little ludicrous at times when it is harped upon ad nauseam, and flourished about with as much dexterity as a Hibernian would wield his shillalagh. Is their a man amongst us who, whilst attending an Installation meeting, has not heard the sentiment expressed that each successive Wor. Master should, and ought to be, installed by the former occupant of the chair, who should have so profited by the experience of his year in office as to have mastered the Ritual sufficiently to enable him to dispense with the services of an independent Installing Officer? This is a sentiment which, good as it is in itself, has been so often reiterated in our hearing, that we naturally anticipate what the Installing Officer will say when the toast of his health is proposed at the festive board. There can be no question whatever that it is desirable—most desirable—that every man who aspires to, and attains the dignified position of Master of a Lodge, should study to make himself perfect in all his work, amongst which is, that he shall be able to instal his successor when the time arrives, when he must, in the course of the changes that are inevitable in Masonic Lodges, retire, and take his place amongst the ranks of the Past Masters. Nobody will deny that this is a task to which every Master who is competent, and has the time to spare for it, should devote himself with all the zeal and assiduity at his command. It not only lends additional éclat to a ceremony which in itself is impressive and sublime, but it also gives pre-eminence, and a more lofty status to the brother who has devoted his efforts, and that successfully, to the acquirement of a complete mastery of his duties. It is the keystone to the archway of his year's labour, the last round in the ladder of his achievements while in the possession of the gavel. But there are occasions in which a Worshipful Master is unable to devote the time to that mental labour which is required to discharge so onerous a duty. He may be engaged in professional or commercial pursuits, in which case time is the very bread he has to win for himself and those dependent upon him; and in such a case he must feel unequal, much as he would desire to do so, to the somewhat formidable task of performing the Installation rite. Again, he might be possessed of the requisite tact and ability, with the assistance of his Past Masters and Officers, to discharge the ordinary duties of his Lodge, and to acquit himself passably in the three degrees; and yet he may be entitled to indulgence if he feels at last unequal to fulfil a function which—if the axiom that every retiring Master shall instal his successor were rigidly insisted on—would come to him only once in his Masonic career. To upbraid such a brother, therefore, and to cast an imputation on either his intelligence or zeal, is, to say the least, unkind. Many a man in such a case would reason to himself and say, that amongst his Past Masters he knows of one who, by constant reiteration of the part, having a love for elocution, a more than ordinarily quick memory—and perhaps a slight penchant for popularity—has mastered the whole subject thoroughly, and is able to deliver the charges with telling effect and accuracy. He has installed incoming Masters over and over again, and likes the work, as well as the expressions of approbation which follow his execution of it. What more natural, let us ask, under such circumstances, than to request that prominent Past Master to step on to a platform, where he feels so much at home, and to officiate in the room of him who, properly speaking, should have done the duty himself? Yet we know of instances in which brethren have undertaken this responsibility with readiness, and with every appearance of good faith, turn round when their health has been given at the banquet table, and lament that the practice of "every Master installing his successor" is not universal, and that the aid of "an outsider" had been found necessary in that particular case. Not long ago a very striking example of this assumption of the virtue of modesty,—which we fear our brother had not,—came under our notice, and suggested to our mind the opportunity of saying a few words upon this oft-repeated precept. Our brother, whose breast glittered with jewels, and whose countenance beamed with infinite self-complacency, feigned regret at having been called upon to discharge a duty which, easy and pleasant as it was, should not have been left in the hands of an "outsider," but have been discharged by the newly-fledged Immediate Past Master. It so happened that the last-named brother has under his personal care and supervision a large and important branch of commerce, which so absorbed his time as to render him capable, with great difficulty only, to sustain the responsibilities he undertook at his elevation to the rank of Master. He had, however, rendered a better account of himself to his Lodge than the brethren had a right to expect, who knew the multifarious duties which crowded daily upon the object of their choice. The Lodge had flourished more than ordinarily, thanks to his tact, urbanity, and business-like capacity; the working had been praised up to the hilt for its excellence and perfection; the Charities had been liberally upheld; and every good work in and connected with the Lodge had been duly and diligently performed. Yet, forsooth, because our brother relegated his prerogative of working the Installation ceremony to one of his Past Masters, who by constant practice had the whole of the Ritual at his fingers end,—and doing it more as a graceful compliment to a senior officer than from any wish to shirk the responsibility—the latter must needs turn round and build up his own vain glory by imputing, by inference, that the Immediate Past Master was deficient in intelligence and power of grasp, and that being unable to perform the ceremony himself, had shifted the saddle on to the shoulders of another,—an unwilling horse. There is a smack of the Uriah Heap in such conduct which does not "go down" among brethren who have sufficient sagacity to read between the lines. The brother to whom we allude is able to perform the ceremony perfectly,—and he knows it. He admits he is fond of the job, and as a consequence courts, and obtains it whenever he has the opportunity. He loves to pose before his less-favoured comrades below the chair, and seems to say, "Behold your superior in intellectual capacity and confidence in his powers." All this is very well, but for such a brother to feign regret that he has been compelled, unwillingly, to step into the shoes of either an incompetent or indolent retiring Master, is too good a joke to be swallowed seriously by those who know better. There are Past Masters who would sooner forfeit their jewels than concede what they deem to be their prerogative of installing every Master who succeeds to the chair of their Lodge. They are founders, and fathers of the Lodge, and as such it would be to deprive them of their right, and to sully their pleasure and popularity, were the brethren to insist upon the principle of every retiring Worshipful Master installing his successor. In such an event the occupation of these zealous, but somewhat selfish Past Masters would, like Othello's, be gone, and they would subside into that limbo of obscurity which would be so purgatorial to them as to be unendurable. This class of active men who love to shine before their fellows, and who delight in the work they have so well succeeded in accomplishing, say so straight out, and have done with it. They "esteem it a high honour to be permitted," &c. but do not, like sycophants, "wash their hands in invisible soap, in imperceptible water," and lament the incapacity of the brother, who has just completed his year of office, to instal his successor, while all the time he laughs within his sleeve, plumes himself upon his own superiority, and fattens upon the applause elicited by his own egotism and self importance. We do not say there are many cases of this kind, but there are some we have witnessed, with anything but pleasure or approbation, for we have seen good men wince under a sense of the infliction of reproaches, perhaps not intended, but which came like barbed arrows when charges made by inference apply with peculiar fitness to the case immediately under consideration. Thus, while fully endorsing the view so often expressed, that every retiring Worshipful Master should, if practicable and convenient to himself, instal his successor, it is by no means tantamount to saying that he who does not is an imbecile or a shirker of his rightful duties. There are circumstances, as we have pointed out, in which men are utterly unable to spare the time for such work, without injuring themselves in their businesses, which would be most reprehensible, and opposed to the tenets of the Craft. On the other hand, there are always plenty of brethren who, having passed the chair, and caught the spirit of the theme, are only too proud and pleased to be lifted into the distinguished and honourable position of Installing Officers whenever the opportunity presents itself. In these matters, as in all others in this life, mutual concession and consideration are most necessary and desirable, and it ill becomes one man to push his own popularity, or puff his own conceit, by triumphing over the apparent weakness of his neighbour. Having said thus much, it is our pleasant experience that the installation of successors is becoming a more frequent practice of late than it was in the olden times, and that the antiquated race of perpetual Installing Masters are rapidly dying out. Every young Master should strive, if convenient to himself, to make himself perfect in the most important of his duties; but if from any of the reasons above indicated he does not feel equal to, or inclined for, the task, there is no great harm done after all, and the delinquency has no shame whatever attached to it. In making these observations we do so free from any bias or personal feeling in the matter whatever, but only trust that the harmony and fraternal amenities of our Lodges will never be ruffled by even the slightest approach to unfriendly hints or inuendoes. If such is the case, happy we shall meet, and happy part, and happy meet again.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL AND ITS CRITIC.

WE are glad the Boys' School critic is no longer an unknown personage, and congratulate Bro. Capt. Nicols that he has had the manliness to avow his authorship of the letter which has created so much stir during the past few weeks. It is to him, of course, a source of satisfaction that the distinguished brother, the District Grand Master of the Punjab, who accompanied him, endorses fully his statements. But we cannot congratulate Bro. Nicols on the very curious reasons he assigns for having written the letter signed "S. X.," any more than on the tone and taste which characterised it. He tells us that "several passages (equally true) of the original letter were omitted, lest injury might be done to the prestige of the School in public opinion;" and he goes on to explain that the "sole object" of his letter "was an honest endeavour to prevent a repetition of the unseemly treatment which visitors to the Institution may be subjected to, and to ameliorate the social régime with regard to the lads themselves." He considers Dr. Morris, when he says that Bros. Col. Stewart and himself were only ten minutes at the School, "admits the whole gravamen of our complaint, which is this, that owing to the brusqeness of our reception, and the cynical curtness of his remarks, we were obliged to abridge our visit, and had to wait three-quarters of an hour at the railway station." He points out that he wrote originally under the initials "S. X." because he did not wish to make "a public matter too much of a private grievance," and because he and his brother visitor "felt satisfied that the Committee of Management, and Bro. Binckes as Secretary, would trouble themselves far more about facts affecting the interests of the Institution than the names of individual visitors." He concludes with this remarkably sagacious observation: "If the publication of this correspondence will eventually benefit the School, our object will have been attained." The letter which contains the foregoing passages deserves, and shall have, at our hands a very careful analysis.

Bro. Nicols does not tell us whether it was he himself who struck out from the "original" letter the other "passages (equally true)" which did not appear, or whether it was done, in the exercise of his discretion, by the editor of our contemporary. The matter, however, is of no material consequence. What it is important to note is that some damaging statements were allowed to stand, in the hope, we presume, that they might promote the well-being of the Institution, while other damaging statements, which the writer speaks of as "equally true," were struck out, "lest injury might be done to the prestige of the School in public opinion." We can understand that a man may not, to use a common expression, desire "to pile up the agony," but Solomon himself would have been puzzled to explain how any one, professing to be anxious for the prestige of a School, could publish, or rather ask to have published, certain statements seriously reflecting on its management. We care not what was omitted from "the original letter;" but it cannot have been calculated to cause greater injury "to the prestige of the School in public opinion" than what was allowed to appear in the letter of "S. X." We cannot conceive what could have been more injurious than the reference to "the awe-struck manner of one or two of the poor little fellows who had occasion to address our conductor," the remarks, "I pity the poor boys here;" "How different is all this from the happy contentment I observed at the Girls' School, at Clapham, the other day," the "pity for the poor boys themselves, whose natures might possibly be influenced through life under such moral training," or the comparison of our Boys' Institution with "the Industrial School at Feltham" where "the waifs of society are taught and trained under the strictest discipline;" and where, in place of "awe-struck" faces, there was nothing but "confidence and evident affection." It is not necessary to enumerate all the bruises a man who has been well thrashed may have received in order to prove that he has been thrashed, and nothing beyond what we have quoted from "S. X.'s" letter, as it appeared in print, is required in order to show that a school, of which such remarks, if true or applicable, can be made, must be in a very sorry condition as to its system of management. But Captain Nicols in the character of "S. X." and Captain Nicols in his own proper person are apparently two different individuals. The former suggests that he and his fellow visitor may have been "somewhat annoyed" at their reception—the exact words were, "perhaps we were somewhat annoyed at our reception"—that a "want of system" appeared to them to prevail, and that there was need for a "more careful 'surveillance' by the heads of departments at the School" in the "details of the domestic arrangements." These suggestions are followed by a description of the "awe-struck manner" of some of the "poor little boys," which is heightened by several expressions of pity for them, lest in after life their natures should be influenced by "such moral training" and by an unfavourable comparison of the Wood Green establishment, in the first place, with our Girls' School, and, in the next, with the Feltham Industrial School. Hence his complaint "against the unsatisfactory state of things" as they appeared "to him and his companion" at Wood Green. This is Captain Nicols's style of writing when he figures before the public as the mysterious unknown "S. X."

But Captain Nicols when he writes with something like a becoming sense of his responsibility is quite another person. He tells us the sole object of his letter was "an honest endeavour to prevent a repetition of the unseemly treatment which visitors to the Institution may be subjected to, and to ameliorate the social régime with regard to the lads themselves," while in the very next paragraph, the desire to "ameliorate the social régime" disappears altogether, and we learn that the "whole gravamen" of his complaint is this, "that owing to the brusqueness of our reception," by Dr. Morris, "and the cynical curtness of his remarks, we were obliged to abridge our visit and had to wait three-quarters of an hour at the railway station." Here the "unseemly treatment" resolves itself into a certain "brusqueness" of manner, and a "cynical curtness" in the remarks of the head master, while, as to the abridged visit, and the very serious consequences it entailed, in the shape of a three-quarters of an hour's detention at the railway station, we cordially sympathise with Captain Nicols on the latter score, but we fail to see how, under any circumstances, a visit of even twenty minutes or half an hour can be sufficiently long to enable him or any one else, to form an opinion, favourable or unfavourable, of the system pursued at a large school and its "social régime," that is to say, of course, an opinion that is worth listening to. We should like to hear what Captain Nicols would say if Dr. Morris, after spending half an hour in a barrack, should take upon himself to publicly condemn the interior economy of the regiment quartered there, and the social régime under which the men belonging to it were placed, as well as the bearing of the officer in command, because, in his opinion, the latter having been interrupted in the performance of his military duties was,—we will even go so far as to suggest,—a little brusque in his manner and curt in his remarks. A man who is suddenly called away from his work to attend on visitors may receive them with courtesy, yet not endue it with any excess of cordiality, and he is necessarily curt in his remarks because he still has his work to complete. But a lack of cordiality in receiving visitors and curtness in answering their inquiries do not constitute "unseemly treatment." And, after all, the brusqueness of manner and the cynical curtness of speech come before us not as matters of fact, but as matters of opinion, and may be regarded as having about the same value as the wholesale condemnation of a school system and its "social régime" after a ten minutes' experience of their character.

Of course, it is not surprising that Captain Nicols should reiterate the statement he made as "S. X.," and proclaim every word of it to be true; but we must remind our readers that his statements are only matters of opinion. It appeared to him and his friend that "a want of system" prevailed, and that more "surveillance" was required over the domestic arrangements, and even this opinion he is kind enough to qualify by suggesting that they might have been annoyed at their reception. He did not raise his voice against "the unsatisfactory state of things" at Wood Green, but against what appeared to be such, while "the awe-struck manner" of the little boys can only have been a fancy. Thus the reiteration of the original statement carries with it no greater weight than the original statement itself, and how utterly valueless is the latter may be judged from Captain Nicols's first letter—the "S. X." one—in which he says, "Thus, practically we saw nothing of the School." He may well disclaim for himself the province of judge, when he publicly condemns what practically he knows nothing about. We can also well understand why Captain Nicols preferred writing originally under the initials he adopted. He assigns as his first reason for this preference that he did not wish to make what he and his friend "considered a public matter too much of a private grievance." Next he tells us "the whole gravamen" of their complaint was "the brusqueness" of their reception by the head master and "the cynical curtness of his remarks." But be this a matter of fact, or only a matter of opinion, what else is it than a "private grievance?" No one will venture to say that Dr. Morris's manner, whatever it may have been, when receiving two visitors on a particular day, is a matter of the slightest interest to the world at large. We have already remarked that a lack of cordiality in receiving people is not the same thing as meting out to them "unseemly treatment," and we will go further, and say, that even the greatest possible discourtesy on Dr. Morris's part would not justify the wholesale condemnation of the School of which he is the head master, and its system and "social régime." However, Dr. Morris, who has been some eight years at Wood Green, and against whose manner of receiving visitors we have never yet heard one word of complaint, will no doubt answer this attack at the proper time and in the proper place.

That "the Committee of Management and Bro. Binckes as Secretary would trouble themselves far more about facts affecting the Institution than the names of individual visitors" is more than probable, and, if we mistake not, it will be for this very reason that they will resent more deeply than even the Masonic public generally the letter of Captain Nicols. Any vice in the system of administration at Wood Green directly concerns them, because it affects their character as the executive body. But Captain Nicols, as we have shewn, has established no facts at all, much less facts which call for any interference on the part of the Committee and Bro. Binckes with the magisterial functions of Dr. Morris, and the manner in which he discharges them. If, however, they think it consonant with their dignity to express any opinion on Captain Nicols's letter, it will probably be to suggest to him the propriety of in future submitting to them any private or personal grievance he may have, or imagine he has, against the School authorities at Wood Green, instead of promoting it to the rank of a public grievance, and airing it publicly in the columns of one of our Masonic journals.

The last paragraph of his second letter declares that "if the publication of this correspondence will eventually benefit the School, our object will have been attained." We fail to see how his publicly condemning the head master, the system, and the social régime of the School, and comparing it disadvantageously with other schools, can benefit the School any more than it can be said that a man is benefited when some one knocks him down in order to set him on his feet again. Were it an established fact that the system pursued at Wood Green was a vicious one, there would be good reason—indeed there would be an absolute necessity—for proclaiming and recognising it with a view to its being set aside in favour of one to which no exception could be taken. But there is ample testimony that it works admirably; and though in all human institutions there is always room for improvement, we have yet to learn that a system which turns out well-behaved and well-trained boys will be improved by wholesale condemnation in a public newspaper.

There is only one remark we are desirous of adding. We necessarily hear a good many things said about persons and things, and they do not always happen to be complimentary. For instance, we have heard it said, and we are not to be blamed for having heard it, any more than we are prepared to advance it as an established fact; we say, we have heard it remarked that Bro. Capt. Nicols is a haw-haw-ish kind of being, who carries himself rather majestically, speaks slightingly of Militia Officers, and boasts that his Lodge consists only of "gentlemen." Of course we have not lived all the years of our life without being perfectly well aware that in every grade of society there are people who have a very high opinion of themselves, and a very poor opinion of others. They are the salt of the earth, and none else will compare with them. Heaven forbid we should be understood as including Bro. Nicols amongst these worthy, albeit self-sufficient and self-opinionated, personages, but as he has expressed himself in public with greater freedom than good taste and gentlemanly feeling are usually held to warrant of Dr. Morris's bearing and manner of communicating information, there can be no harm in our suggesting that, if, by the remotest chance in the world, it should happen that Capt. Nicols even in the slightest degree answers to the description we have heard of him, and to which, we repeat, we attach no importance even as a matter of opinion, it is just possible Dr. Morris may have been less cordial in his reception of him in consequence, and more curt in his remarks than is his custom. Head masters being, as a rule, scholars and gentlemen, and what is more to the purpose, kings in their own several domains, do not care to be addressed with anything approaching to a supercilious haughtiness, and still less do they care about being patronised, as it were, by those who go to them seeking information. If they experience any "unseemly treatment" of this kind, they wisely ignore it, but it does not conduce towards making their manner more cordial than good breeding prescribes, or their discourse more effusive than is absolutely necessary in order to satisfy inquiries. This, by the supercilious writer, would no doubt be regarded as "brusqueness" of manner and "cynical curtness" of speech, but even then a supercilious person, if he is wise, will not condemn the subject-matter of his inquiries because of the manner in which they were answered. These remarks, of course, constitute only a vain imagining, resting on nothing more substantial than hearsay observations of no importance, but we have heard less unreasonable explanations offered of the origin of other wordy warfare. In any case, however, it is "hard lines" on the School.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Colds, Coughs, Shortness of Breath.—These maladies require early and unremitting attention, for if neglected they often end in asthma, bronchitis, or consumption. The Ointment, well rubbed upon the chest and back, penetrating the skin, is absorbed and carried directly to the lungs, whence its expels all impurities. All the blood in the body is perpetually passing through the lungs, and there all noxious particles tending to disease can be quickly, thoroughly, and permanently neutralised, rendered harmless, or ejected from the system. Holloway's Ointment and Pills perfectly accomplish this purification; and, through the blood thus cleansed, the influence of these wonderful medicaments reaches the remotest parts of the human body, and thus cures all diseased action, whether internal or external.

STORIES ABOUT MORGAN.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I sent to your office the last revelation about Morgan of the late Thurlow Weed; also some slips from American newspapers containing opinions thereon. Weed was a professional American politician and lobbyist, and his influence in New York was immense. He began his career with the Morgan anti-Masonic excitement, and it was the means of supplying him bread and butter during his lifetime. I am not able to say whether he was ever Governor of New York, but the following anecdote will show that, if he was not governor de jure, he was governor de facto; thus: While Mr. Seward was Governor of New York, and before railroads were diffused over the States, Mr. Seward mounted the top of a stage coach, and being of a sociable disposition, he distributed cigars to his fellow passengers right and left. One of these asked for the donor's name. "Oh! don't you know," said another, "he is the Honourable William H. Seward, Governor of New York." "Bah!" replied the former, "I will bet five dollars that he is not the Governor." "Who, then, is the Governor?" asked Mr. Seward. "Thurlow Weed," was the reply.

Professional American politicians, with very few exceptions, will cant about religion, morality, temperance, and other virtues; but as a rule they are utterly minus all virtues; the life of a professional here, is a fraud from beginning to end. A politician here is generally a lobbyist, which Worcester defines thus: "To frequent the lobbies of the House of Legislation for the purpose of influencing the action of the members, or of securing their votes for some favourite bill."

Mr. Worcester might have added, or for soliciting government offices for those who pay the highest for the same. In short, the lobbyist is the grand corrupter of American legislation; and, hence, an oath of a man like Weed would not generally be believed if even it was his death-bed oath. Weed's confession, therefore, attracted but little attention when it first appeared in print, and I have seen nothing more about it since. But here is another Morgan story which appeared a day or two after Weed's confession was printed; it had already found its way into one Masonic periodical, and it will probably be copied by others. Here it is:

"Tobias Forbes, of Clyde, New York, who is eighty years of age, and whose father was a cousin of William Morgan, of Masonic notoriety, says, that Morgan was not murdered by his captors, but was released on condition that he would leave the country. He did so, going to Melbourne, Australia, and there he commenced the publication of a newspaper, which, after his death, passed into the hands of his son, who may now be living."

As far as I know, no one has yet tried to ascertain whether Tobias Forbes lives, or ever lived, in Clyde, New York, or how much of the story has any foundation. One thing, however, is certain, viz., Morgan could not have left America for Melbourne, Australia, in 1836, because Melbourne did not come into existence before 1836; it was so named after the then Prime Minister, Lord Melbourne.

Bro. Benjamin F. Nourse, the Tyler of the Massachusetts Grand Lodge, told me that about twenty or more years since, while he was Grand Lecturer, he visited a Lodge, in his official capacity, in Duxbury, Massachusetts (a sea-port town where the French Atlantic cable was landed), and an old sea captain, a member of the Lodge, told him that Morgan sailed in his ship from Boston to Smyrna. The old captain said that just as the ship was about leaving Boston, a man offered himself as a passenger for Smyrna; he at first refused to take the passenger, but the man was so urgent, and offered to pay any price, that he finally took him. During the passage the man avoided all conversation. One night the passenger was on deck, the captain suddenly asked him, "Where do you live?" The passenger replied, "In the moon." After which, he made no further effort to pry into the passenger's affairs. At Smyrna, the man left the ship with the Custom house officers, and he heard nothing further about him until the ship's return to Boston. Then he learned, for the first time, about the Morgan mystery. He was told that Morgan was traced after his mysterious disappearance as far as Boston, but after this no clue was discovered as to his whereabouts. It immediately occurred to the said old captain that his mysterious passenger must have been William Morgan, and, what is more, the description given of Morgan by those who knew him corresponded with that of his passenger. The next time the captain went to Smyrna he was determined to find out all he could about the said Morgan. After some inquiries, he learned that the suspected party was in the habit of dining at a certain coffee house. The captain went to the said coffee house, and at once detected Morgan there, dressed Turkish fashion. Without ceremony the captain called him "Mr. Morgan," but the man denied that it was his name. "Did you not come here in my ship?" asked the captain. The man answered in English, "I don't know you." The man then left the house, and that was the last he saw of him. I must only add that Bro. Nourse, whom I have known for many years, is a very reliable man, and I am therefore satisfied that he did not invent this story, but whether the old captain's yarn was correct or not, is a question I cannot answer.

A similar story about Morgan having been seen in Smyrna was told to me about twenty years ago by a brother Mason; that is, the person who told the story to the said brother was positive that he met Morgan in Smyrna. I asked whether his informant was a Mason, and he answered in the negative. By pure accident I met the said brother Mason about a fortnight ago, when he assured me that the old gentleman who told him about Morgan was still alive; he met him a short time ago; he even told me the name of his informant, &c., and he seemed persuaded of the truth of his friend's statement. My old friend gave me his address; he lives in Malden, about six miles from Boston, and he promised to pay me a visit. The above statement ought to be investigated; my recent illness precludes me from making the necessary exertion, and Masons generally are minus curiosity. So, whether there is any truth in the statement or not, must remain a puzzle.

Fraternally yours,

JACOB NOURSE.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

A Masonic Calendar for the Province of Hertfordshire. Published by authority of Provincial Grand Lodge. 1883.

THIS is an admirable compilation, and contains full particulars of the Lodges, Royal Arch Chapters, and the Stuart Encampment and Mark Lodge which meet in the Province. These particulars take the form of nominal lists of the Officers and Subscribing Past Masters of the Lodges, Officers and Subscribing Past First Principals of the Chapters, Officers and Subscribing Past E.C.'s of the Encampment, and Officers and Subscribing Past Masters of the Mark, together with lists of the Officers of Grand Lodge, Grand Chapter, Great Priory of the Order of the Temple, and Grand Mark Lodge for England, and the Provincial Grand Officers of the Craft and Arch Degrees for Hertfordshire. The number of subscribing members to each Body, together with the name and address of the Secretary or corresponding official, and dates of meeting, are also given, and, to crown all, there is by way of Appendix a full and particular account of the brethren belonging to the Province who are subscribers to the Charitable Institutions, an * denoting those among them who have acted as Stewards at the Anniversary Festivals. As Hertfordshire has distinguished itself greatly by the liberality of its contributions, the reader will take it for granted that, for so small a Province, this list is a most formidable one. A Calendar, with the principal Masonic events of the year, as they concern Masonry in general and the Province in particular, with alternate pages facing each month for the insertion of engagements, precedes the above particulars, the whole being put together in a most workmanlike manner. We must congratulate Brother John E. Dawson, Provincial Grand Secretary and Provincial Grand Scribe E., on the able manner in which he has carried out his task. It is a model Calendar, as "little Herts" is a model Province.

An especial Provincial Grand Lodge will be holden in the Lecture Hall, Soldiers' Home, Colchester, on Friday, the 2nd of February next, at 11.30 o'clock a.m. for the purpose of installation of the Right Worshipful Brother the Right Honourable the Lord Brooke, M.P., as Grand Master of the Province, on which occasion the R.W. Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany, K.G., P.G.W., Provincial Grand Master for Oxfordshire, has kindly undertaken to perform the ceremony. The Provincial Grand Lodge will be opened punctually at high twelve.

According to the accounts furnished by the Voice of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Illinois, there are in that jurisdiction 165 Chapters, with a total membership of 11,260. The receipts of Grand Chapter for the past year amounted to over 17,842 dollars, while the disbursements only reached 6,103 dollars.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

PRUDENT BRETHREN LODGE, No. 145.

THE installation meeting was held on the 23rd inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, under the presidency of the W.M. Bro. Woods. Bros. Kerrell S.W., Reed J.W., Bull P.M. Treas., Haslett P.M. Secretary, Brock S.D., Banks J.D., Masters I.G.; P.M.'s Lister, Leggott, Thiellay P.P.G.S.B. Middlesex, States P.G.S. Visitors—Cottebrune P.G.O., Waugh P.M. 1563, Taylor P.M. 911, Harrup P.M. 1604, Smith P.M. 18, Clemow 1589, Watson 1641, Finch 1641, Edmonds 1507, Green P.M. 27, Street 23, Gordon 901, Distin late Phœnix, Carter P.M. Royal Union, H. M. Levy P.M. 188, &c. After preliminaries, a ballot was taken for the admission of Captain Moore, who was elected unanimously. Bro. Hampton was passed to the second degree. This ceremony was worked by the Worshipful Master with his usual ability. In due course, the W.M. elect was presented, and a Board of Installed Masters was opened. Bro. Kerrall S.W. was then duly installed into the chair by the retiring W.M. in a perfect and impressive manner. Bro. Woods was warmly congratulated on the conclusion of the ceremony. On the re-admission of the brethren, after the customary salutations, the W.M. appointed and invested his Officers :—Bros. Woods I.P.M., Reed S.W., Brook J.W., Bull P.M. Treasurer, Haslett P.M. Secretary, Banks S.D., Masters J.D., Detraz I.G., Cox M.C., Doyle Steward, Reinhardt Tyler. The W.M. then raised Bro. Hembron to the third degree, a ceremony rarely undertaken by a Master on the occasion of his installation. The Auditors' report showed the Lodge was in a flourishing condition; it was unanimously adopted. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet and dessert provided by the new proprietors of the Freemasons' Tavern. Grace having been sung, the W.M. proposed the initiatory toast. The National Anthem was artistically sung under the direction of Bro. T. Distin, by Miss Distin and Miss Burnett and Bro. Carter. After the toast of his Royal Highness the Most Worshipful G. Master, Miss Burnett sang, and was deservedly applauded for her efforts. The toast of the R.W. the Earl of Carnarvon Pro G.M., the Earl of Lathom D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers of the Grand Lodge of England, was next given. They were honoured by the presence of one they were all proud to see, an old and valued friend in Freemasonry, Bro. Cottebrune P.G.P. This brother, in replying, wished the distinguished noblemen referred to had been present to witness how ably Bro. Woods had performed his duties in the chair. It was rarely indeed they could witness such excellent working. Bro. Woods I.P.M. then rose,—it was with great pleasure he had to propose the health of the W.M., who was essentially a good working Mason. He was sure during Bro. Kerrell's year of office the interests of the Lodge would be studied in every respect. It had been his (Brother Woods') fortune to have preceded him, but to-night they had seen how ably he had performed the ceremony of raising. That augured well for the future. He would ask them to drink health and prosperity to the W.M. Miss Distin sang "Auntie," and was deservedly encored. The W.M., in reply, thanked Bro. Woods for the kind manner he had spoken of him. It was with pride he could say he had filled every office. Ten years ago he was initiated; to-night he had to thank them for placing him in the chair, which he hoped to fill to their satisfaction. He must not fail to thank Brother Woods for his kind assistance. He trusted to be able, at the expiration of his year of office, to say that he had emulated the brethren who had proceeded him in the chair. He hoped their next anniversary meeting would be as successful as this one. In proposing the toast of the Initiates, the Worshipful Master said it was one that is received in this and every other Lodge with pleasure. They had that evening two new brethren, Bro. Hembron will be an ornament to the Order, also doubtless would be Brother Hampton, whom all were pleased to see had paid due attention to the ceremony. At this stage of the proceedings, Brother T. Distin sang a new song, "Defiance to the Foe," after which Brother Hampton in a pertinent speech responded. The toast of the Visitors came next, and then Master T. J. Distin played a solo on the pianoforte, which he rendered very artistically; he was accompanied by Miss Distin. Brothers J. Waugh, T. C. Edmonds, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188, responded; each paid great compliments to the excellent working of the Worshipful Master, and Brother Woods for his able rendering of the ceremony of Installation. In speaking of the Past Masters, the Worshipful Master said the toast was one the brethren were proud to honour. It had been conceded by all that Brother Woods the Immediate Past Master is a good working Mason, but they had other Past Masters equally efficient. Brother T. Bull the Treasurer would be an honour to any Lodge. The same may with justice be said of Bro. Haslett P.M. and Secretary, and then they must not forget Brother G. S. States, a Past Grand Steward. Again, Brother Lester, though but a young Mason, did his duty well. There was also Brother Thiellay, a Past Prov. G. Officer of Middlesex, and last, but not least, we have Bro. Leggott who, in connection with this Lodge, had raised nearly £1,000 for the Charities. Before resuming his seat he might tell the brethren there was a duty that devolved on him, and he might add, it was a most pleasurable duty. It was to place on the breast of their Immediate Past Master a jewel, which the members trusted would be worn by him with pride, as it evidenced their appreciation of the way in which he had discharged his duties. Personally he trusted Bro. Woods might be spared for many years to assist the Prudent Brethren Lodge. Bro. Woods said he would reply on his own behalf, as doubtless some of the other Past Masters would have something to say. However, he would be brief. He was a working Mason, and considered it desirable brethren should attend the Lodges of Instruction. He desired to advance the Charities of the Order, and was about to serve a Stewardship for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. He scarcely hoped to achieve as much success as had rewarded the efforts of Bro. Leggott, still he hoped to carry up something worthy of their Lodge. He sincerely thanked the brethren for their gift, and for their invariable kindness to him on all occasions. Bro. T. Bull P.M., in responding as Treasurer, said he felt great pleasure in having now held that office for many years; he could assure them their funds would be well taken care of, and would only be expended in the interests of the Lodge. Bro. Haslett Secretary also responded. The Wardens and Junior Officers were next complimented by the W.M., and after suitable responses had been elicited, the Tyler gave the parting toast. The musical arrangements of the evening were well carried out by Bro. Theodore Distin, while Bro. Doyle, the newly appointed W.S. paid special attention to the comfort of the Visitors.

ST. JOHN'S LODGE, No. 221, BOLTON.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge was held on Wednesday, the 17th January 1883, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, at the Commercial Hotel, Bolton. Present—Bros. Boothroyd W.M., Aldred I.P.M., Isherwood S.W., Melrose J.W., Brockbank Treas., Mitchell Sec., Bradborn S.D., Crompton J.D., Taylor M.C., Walker I.G., Chambers and Siddon Stewards, Higson Tyler. P.M.'s Bros. Ferguson, Wadeson, Stead, Morris, Rutter, Flitcroft, Whitaker; also Bros. Chirnsides, Haslam, Elliston, Forrest, Halliwell, Briscoe, Cuerden. Visitors:—Bros. Peers 71, Chester, Martin 350 and 678, Court W.M. 1723, Collins W.M. 678, Duxbury W.M. 146, Alcock P.M. 348, Skelton 146, Cheesewright 907, Barnett J.W. 1723, Edwards 721, Nicholson P.M. 1723, Greenhalgh P.M. 1723, Crankshaw W.M. 348. The minutes of the preceding meeting having been read and confirmed, the Lodge proceeded to the second degree, when Bro. Isherwood W.M. elect was presented to a Board of Installed Masters, under the presidency of Bro. Brockbank W.M. of the Anchor and Hope Lodge, No. 37, and a P.M. of this Lodge, and obligated, installed, and proclaimed, according to ancient custom, W.M. of this Lodge for the ensuing year, Bro. Taylor P.M. P. Prov. Grand Organist acting as Master of Ceremonies. Bro. Brockbank P.M. and P. Prov. S.G.D. was unanimously re-elected Treasurer for the ensuing year, after the accounts had been presented and duly audited by Bros. Chirnsides and Briscoe. Bro. Brockbank, in thanking the brethren for the renewal of their confidence, expressed his indebtedness to Brother Aldred, who had, acting as his Deputy, rendered considerable service to the Lodge. The following brethren were invested Officers of the Lodge for the ensuing year, by Bro. Mitchell P.M. and Prov. Grand Tyler:—Bros. Edwin Melrose S.W., Peter Bradburn J.W., G. P. Brockbank Treasurer, Mitchell Sec., Crompton S.D., Walker J.D., J. W. Taylor M.C., W. F. Chambers I.G., W. Siddorn and Richard Cuerden Stewards, and Thomas Higson Tyler. The addresses to the newly-appointed Officers were admirably rendered by Bro. Jabez Boothroyd I.P.M. Bro. Thomas Morris P.M. was elected Charity Representative of the Lodge for the ensuing year in the place of the late lamented Brother Thomas Entwisle, to whose admirable business tact and ability in his capacity as a Charity Representative the proposer of the resolution paid a warm and earnest tribute, and commended his example to the study of his successor. Bro. William Wadeson, an old and respected member of the Lodge, as a mark of his regard and esteem for the brethren, presented an elegant floor cloth, painted by himself. The orthodox pavement, tesselated border and blazing star, surrounded by the twelve signs of the zodiac, beautifully embellished, the genuinely artistic work of our brother, was much admired by the brethren and Visitors, and the thanks of the Lodge were unanimously accorded to him for his valuable presentation. A silver Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. Boothroyd, the retiring Master, in accordance with a vote of the Lodge on the occasion of the last regular meeting. A portion of the Ancient Charges was read by the Senior Warden, and the Lodge was closed in form and with prayer at 6 o'clock. The banquet was immediately served in an adjoining room, and at its conclusion the brethren re-assembled in the Lodge-room, which in the meantime had been suitably prepared. The W.M. presided, and the post of M.C. was admirably filled by Bro. J. W. Taylor Past Prov. G.O. The ordinary Masonic toasts were proposed and duly honoured. A special toast, drank in solemn silence, was proposed by Bro. Rutter, to the memory of Bro. Entwisle, whose long services to the Lodge were eloquently dilated upon by the speaker, who also expressed the deep regret of the Masonic world at the loss of so distinguished a Masonic student and guide. The presence of every Master of Masonic Lodges of Bolton was a matter of congratulation, and the Master of the oldest Lodge in Bolton, who is the Senior Past Master of this Lodge, was facetiously complimented on his having attained the distinction of becoming Master of Lodge 37 on the precise day of completing his 37th anniversary of his initiation in the Lodge. The musical arrangements were perfect, and a rich musical treat was afforded to the brethren. Bro. Briscoe presided at the piano, and Bros. Cheesewright, Greenhalgh, Collins, Skelton, Bradburn, Chambers, Siddorn, and Flitcroft contributed vocally to the success of the meeting. The last toast was proposed as Mr. Bruce rang out his warning note.

FIDELITY LODGE, No. 230.

THE annual banquet of this Lodge was held on Saturday, the 20th instant, at the Royal Hotel, Devonport, and, as on three previous occasions, the ladies (the wives and sweethearts of the members and visitors) were invited, and graced the ceremony; and certainly no more enjoyable meeting takes place in the county. The chair was well filled by the Worshipful Master, Bro. John A. Whitford, and he was supported by Bros. R. W. Pitcher I.P.M., R. Cawsey P.M. and S., Lynn P.M. P.P.G.S.B. and T., Burt P.M., Harris P.M., Swiss P.M., Codd P.M. P.P.G.O., Piko P.M., Border S.W., Ridland J.W., Curteis P.M. P.P.G.S.W., Gover P.M. 70 P.P.G.A.D.C., Lord

Tippett, Churchward, Smith, Harrison, Earl 228, Harrison, Maynard, Strath, Gill, Evans, 70, Harris, McQuire, Jones, and Lelleux. The ladies present were Mesdames Whitford, Pitcher, Cawsey, Lynn, Burt, Harris, Swiss, Codd, Pike, Border, Ridland, Gover, Tucker, Ladd, Haggarty, Orchard, Cassell, Swiss, Woodland, Toms, Quance, Hunt, Cochran sen., Cochran jun., Willis, Masters, Coleman, Werry, Marten, Sutton, Bentley, Littleton, Easterbrook, Tippett, Churchward, Smith, Strath, Harris, McQuire, Jones, and Misses Burt, Knight, Haggarty, Maddock, Leeder, Florrie Sherwill, Dyer, Thomas, Huggins, and Stentiford. The dinner was excellent, and the attendance all that could be desired. Miss Haggarty (piano) and Master Haggarty (violin) played some choice music at intervals. The Master proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts in a very happy manner, and the rule was short speeches, interspersed with songs and recitations. Bros. Gover and Lord responded for the Provincial Grand Lodge. The names of the Treasurer and Secretary were warmly received, and in an able manner responded to. As in all other Lodges, the absent brethren were not forgotten, and it was a very pleasing episode that Bro. F. Strath, one of the supposed absent brethren, happened to be there to respond, and a fervent wish was expressed that more absent brethren could have been present. V.W. Bro. J. Curteis, speaking of the Masonic Charities, said that during his experience a sum of £5,000 was about the amount collected, whilst last year for the London Charities no less a sum than £40,000 was voluntarily given. But whilst so much had been done for the greater Charities, he wished all to bear in mind that they had in their own county an institution which was doing valuable work. Many children of Devonshire Masons were being clothed and educated by the Devon Masonic Educational Fund, at a merely nominal cost as regards expenses, and they were not removed from their homes. He appealed especially to the ladies, to ask their husbands to subscribe; if the 2,400 members of the Order in Devon would only give an annual subscription of five shillings, it would place the fund on a firm basis, and an amount so small would never be missed. The room being cleared, dancing, by the majority, was thoroughly enjoyed, whilst for others, in other rooms, there were other entertainments. Mr. West presided at the piano, and gave a selection of his own composition. Mrs. Temple Willis, Bros. Rendell, W. J. Barratt, Debnam, J. Kinton Bond, W. Pike, Leonard, and others gave valuable aid. Lodge Fidelity marks another day with a white stone.—Western Daily Mercury.

CAMALODUNUM LODGE, No. 660.

ON the 16th inst. the brethren of the Camalodulun Lodge, No. 660, held their annual installation and banquet. The first-named ceremony took place in Freemasons' Hall, Yorkersgate, Malton; the W.M. for the present year being Bro. Smithson S.W. The ceremony was impressively performed by Bro. King P.P.G.J.D., and the Wor. Master afterwards invested the following Officers for the year, viz.: —Bros. Constable I.P.M., Dodsworth S.W., Goldie J.W., the Rev. R. G. Fish (of the Castle Howard Reformatory) Chaplain, Bower Treas., Walton Secretary, Buckle S.D., Williamson J.D., Heckley M.C., Marshall Organist, Metcalfe I.G., Milner and Dr. Hartley Stewards, and Waudby Tyler. The banquet was held at the George Hotel (Mr. Davison's), where an excellent spread was provided. There were Visitors present from other Lodges in the Province, and the usual Masonic proceedings were fully carried out.

FIDELITY LODGE, No. 663, WILTSHIRE.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge took place at the Masonic Hall, Devizes, on Tuesday, 16th instant, when the Devizes members were supported by several brethren, including Bros. J. Sparks P.M. 1271, Bradford on Avon, P.P.G.O. Wilts, A. J. Beaven P.M. 1271 P.P.G.P., Dr. W. D. Lovell I.P.M. 1271 P.P.G.D.C., F. B. Norris S.W. 632, Trowbridge, E. J. Grubbe J.W. 68, Bristol, L. E. De Ridder 152, &c. The outgoing W.M., Bro. J. A. Randell, performed the earlier part of the ceremony of installation, the remainder being, at his request, taken by Bro. W. Nott P.M. 663, the Provincial Charity Secretary. The W.M. elect, Bro. George S. A. Waylen S.W., having been duly installed, invested the Officers for the ensuing year, as follow:—Bros. J. A. Randell I.P.M., S. M. Badham S.W., W. H. Bush J.W., D. A. Gibbs P.M. Treas., W. Nott P.M. Secretary, F. S. Hancock S.D., T. C. Hopkins J.D., H. A. Canning I.G., H. Howse P.M., W. J. Baldwin and H. J. Johnson Stewards, and C. R. Barnes Tyler. The usual addresses to the Worshipful Master, Officers, and brethren were delivered by Brother Nott. The W.M., Bro. Waylen, afterwards congratulated the brethren on their first installation meeting in their own Masonic Hall, and said that although they had already made that Hall very convenient and very handsome, yet there were many items of furniture and of embellishment which were still wanting. He thought that every brother on attaining the position which he had that afternoon reached would feel glad to contribute something to make their Masonic home more complete, and he would set the example by presenting a large oaken tablet to be fixed against the wall, and on which would be recorded the names of the Worshipful Masters who had ruled over the Lodge from its commencement, with room to add the names of those yet to come. He trusted that this would be found to be an ornament to the Hall, and afford matter of interest to the brethren. This gift, and the remarks with which it was introduced, were warmly applauded. The usual routine business was gone through, and the alms bag having been sent round, in aid of the Lodge Charity Fund, the Lodge was closed. The brethren afterwards adjourned to the Bear Hotel, where there awaited them an excellent banquet, to which a member of the Lodge—Brother S. Watson Taylor, of Erlestoke Park—though unable, through absence abroad, to be present himself—had contributed a liberal supply of venison and game. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly given and responded to.

GREAT NORTHERN LODGE, No. 1287.

THE installation of this Lodge was held on the 18th instant, at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, and was numerously attended by both members and Visitors. Bros. Cleghorn W.M., Owen S.W., Bathard J.W., Webb P.M. Treasurer, Staton P.M. Sec., Kempton S.D., Cane J.D., Lancaster I.G., Morant Organist, P.M.'s Tribbel, Forbes, Jupe, Reed, Christie, Robinson. Visitors—Cerexbe 142, Lloyd 1141, Leach 49, Kempton 442, E. Anderton 1657, Ruth 1003, Neats P.M. 22, Jenkins P.M. 34, Wuest 753, White 1671, Bruce 334, Harrison 1671, Rake P.P.G.W. Hants, Cushion late 1287, Ball 45, Stephens 1425, Miller 73, Allhausen P.M. 1435, Smith W.M. 569, Wright 1965, Blum 511, Parker 1158, Willimore 1056, Gooding 198, J. Reid 72, Smith W.M. 1584, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188. The Lodge was formally opened, and minutes of last meeting were confirmed. Bros. Doughty and Osborne were raised to the third degree, perfectly and impressively. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Owen S.W. and W.M. elect was presented, and in the presence of 15 W.M.'s and P.M.'s, duly installed into the chair by Bro. Cleghorn, the retiring W.M., who conducted the ceremony throughout in a most perfect manner, the brethren listening with rapt attention to the addresses. After the customary salutations, the W.M. appointed and invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. Cleghorn I.P.M., Bathard S.W., Kempton J.W., Webb P.M. Treas., Staton P.M. Sec., Cane S.D., Lancaster J.D., Morant Organist, Edgar Inner Guard, Hemming Master of Ceremonies, Rawles Tyler. The newly-installed W.M. Bro. Owen now displayed his proficiency, and initiated Messrs. F. Lloyd and H. M. Bleakley into the Order, in a manner most creditable for a Master so recently installed. He was well supported by the Officers. The Auditors' report was adopted; it showed the Lodge was in a sound position, and had a balance in hand for the Benevolent Fund of £77 15s 6d. A letter of apology was read from Bro. West P.M., regretting his inability to attend, owing to indisposition. A candidate was proposed for initiation, and Lodge was closed and the meeting adjourned until the third Thursday in February. The brethren, eighty-one in number, then adjourned to the Crown-room, where a capital banquet and dessert was provided, the service being superintended by Bro. E. Dawkins. The W.M., on the cloth being removed, proposed the Loyal and Masonic toasts, and Bro. S. Webb, Past Master, sang the "National Anthem." In proposing the toast of the Initiates, the Worshipful Master said he had to compliment the Lodge on the acquisition of these brethren. Brother Lloyd is the youngest of a family of six, all boys; he hoped to initiate the remainder of this family. As for Brother Bleakley he had been proposed by Brother Hemming, and no one would be brought into the Lodge by him but would redound to its credit. Brother Reed sang the E.A. song, and then Brother Lloyd, in an excellent speech, returned thanks. Brother Bleakley also responded. Brother Cleghorn I.P.M. said it afforded him great pleasure to propose the health of the Worshipful Master. That Bro. Owen followed him in the chair, was owing to his engagements. However, he had predicted he would be a Master the Lodge would be proud of; that prediction had been verified that evening, not only by his presidency, but by the able manner in which he had performed the ceremony of initiation, and his remarks on investing his Officers. Brothers Morant and Webb sang the duet, "The Moon has raised her lamp on high." They were deservedly applauded. The Worshipful Master in reply thanked Brother Cleghorn for his kind remarks, and also the brethren for their reception of the toast. He assured them he would do his best for their advancement. He was initiated a year before the Immediate Past Master, but he thought a better man should precede him, and that wish had been carried out. He would endeavour to follow in Brother Cleghorn's footsteps; he was sure he could not do better. The Worshipful Master then proposed the toast of the Visitors; there were many present, but he would call on Bro. Rake Past Provincial Grand Warden Hants, Jenkins P.M. 34, Wuest P.M. 753, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188, to respond. Brother Webb delighted the brethren with one of his excellent songs, and then the brethren named severally responded to the toast. All expressed the pleasure they had experienced by the able manner in which the W.M. had conducted the duties; the excellent working of Bro. Cleghorn was also descanted upon. In proposing the health of the I.P.M. the Worshipful Master said they had had good Past Masters; but they had never had a better worker than Bro. Cleghorn. All in the Lodge looked up to him with respect, and he (the W.M.) knew that he had a good Mentor. In the name of the Great Northern Lodge he had great pleasure in presenting Bro. Cleghorn with a jewel; he was sure it would be appreciated. He had given satisfaction to the Lodge, and all hoped he might be spared for many years to be among the Past Masters, and also to continue his valuable services in the Lodge of Instruction, to conduct which he in every respect was so well qualified. Brother Cleghorn, in responding, thanked the Worshipful Master for his kind words. It was a source of pride to him to speak of his connection with the Great Northern Lodge; he had to thank the Past Masters for their kind assistance. The jewel that had been placed on his breast he would prize, not for its intrinsic value, but for its associations. These would never be forgotten by him. Anything that lay in his power to do for the benefit of the Lodge, he would achieve. He might now remind them he was a Steward for the Girls' School in May; he regretted its energetic and worthy Secretary, Brother Hedges, was not present, but he would tell them that at present there were two hundred and forty Girls entirely supported by the Institution. He hoped the list he should take up in May would be a credit to the Great Northern Lodge. The Worshipful Master then proposed the toast of the Treasurer and Secretary. Bro. Webb P.M. and Treasurer is the founder of the Lodge, while Brother Staton P.M. and Secretary initiated him. Now what could he do beyond thanking them both; they had enabled him to occupy the chair, and their efforts conduced to the success of the Lodge. In replying Brother Webb remarked he was pleased to say that the brethren and Visitors had expressed their satisfaction, not only at the working, but also with the hospitality of the Lodge. He had been its first Master, and he was proud of it. Brother Staton also eloquently responded to the toast. In responding for the Past Masters, Brother Cleghorn said that he had great pleasure in stating that the Worshipful Master and Brother Christie had each given the sum of five guineas for his list. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Wardens, Bros. Bathard and Kempton; they were the Masters in embryo; both excellent working Masons. The same compliment might be paid the Junior Officers. This toast having been eloquently responded to by Bros. Bathard and Kimpton, the Tyler gave the parting one, thus terminating a very agreeable evening. Bro. J. Hemming M.C. was indefatigable in his efforts to secure the comfort of the brethren and Visitors.

KILBURN LODGE, No. 1608.

THE annual meeting of this ably-conducted Lodge took place on Monday, at the Queen's Arms Hotel, Kilburn. There was a fair attendance of members, whilst among the visitors were Bros. Thackara 487, Pringle 145, Fisher P.M. 1366, Collier P.M. 1366, Dean P.M. 417 and 1900 P.G.S.D. Dorset, Daines P.M. 1366, Blasby P.M. 780, Bate 228, Witherilt J.W. 1681, Thomas 1853, T. Walker Cooper P.M. 538, Martin P.M. 15, Hunt J.W. 1225, Wilson 1704, Dodd 1887, Dale 902, W. W. Morgan Sec. 211, Bray (Creaton), Green 108, Holloway W.M. 108, Fred Green 1687, Chivers 901, Barfield P.M. 35 W.M. of the Londesborough Lodge, Botting P.M. 1501 P.G. Reg. Berks and Bucks, Hill P.M. 95, Harris P.M. 177, Wetheril 186, Vine 511, Sladen 186, Cooper P.M. 1637, Flood 1642, Taylor 1642, Eccles 1425. In the absence of the W.M. Bro. F. Brewer, whose state of health is far from satisfactory, Lodge was opened by Brother Past Master Cuff. After the minutes of last regular meeting had been read and confirmed, the report of the Audit Committee was presented. This showed a balance in hand of £26 16s 8d. Taking into consideration the munificence, in regard to its charitable proclivities, of this Lodge, this balance may be considered eminently satisfactory. Moreover, it is the expressed intention of the members not to attempt to realise a large surplus, but to enjoy themselves, at the same time to set other Lodges an example how to support the Charitable Institutions of the Order. The ballot was taken for Mr. Thomas Henry Johnson, who was proposed for initiation by Bro. John Holmes, Master of Ceremonies, and seconded by Brother Alfred Price. The result was unanimous in favour of the candidate, and he was introduced and initiated by the acting W.M. The event of the day, the installation of Bro. Frederick James Baker, the W.M. elect, was then undertaken by Bro. Samuel Brooks P.M. and Secretary. Bro. Brooks is recognised as a skilful and earnest exponent of the Ritual, and on this occasion he fully sustained his reputation. On the labours of the Board of Installed Masters being completed, the brethren who as yet are not entitled to mount the levels were re-admitted, and they saluted in the three degrees. The investiture of Officers was creditably performed by Bro. Baker, who made some happy allusions to the duties expected to be carried out by those brethren whom he had selected for office. The following brethren were invested:—Bros. Turner S.W., Barclay J.W., Everett P.M. Treasurer, Brooks P.M. Secretary, Walton S.D., Kiallmark J.D., Holmes I.G., Parry Cole P.M. Organist, Fletcher P.M. M.C., Bennett P.M. Steward, Thomas Tyler. Bro. Brooks then delivered the addresses, thus completing the work he had undertaken to the satisfaction of all assembled. It was then arranged that the W. Master should undertake a Stewardship for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and the customary grant of 25 guineas—which the Lodge has annually committed itself to—was voted on behalf of that Institution. The Secretary announced the resignations of two members, which were received with regret. A candidate was proposed for initiation, and then the Secretary touched upon some home matters, and recommended that in the cases he referred to the Bye-laws should be enforced. This proposal did not meet with general acceptance, but the Treasurer offered some explanations, which were of a truly practical nature, and in due course Brother Brooks's suggestion was agreed to. Shortly afterwards Lodge was closed, a capital banquet was supplied by Brother Hartley, the proprietor of the Queen's Hotel, and on the removal of the cloth, the toast list was proceeded with. After full honour had been done to the preliminary ones, Bro. Brooks assumed the gavel and proposed the health of the W.M. Brother Baker was not an initiate of the Lodge, but he became a joining member on the night of its inauguration, and had been an earnest and consistent worker ever since. He (Brother Brooks) regretted the absence of Brother Frederick Brewer, through illness, but he felt he could on his behalf congratulate the brethren on the choice they had made, and claimed for the new Master the faithful co-operation of the members of the Lodge. In the course of his reply Brother Baker stated that he too had suffered through illness, and at the present time was scarcely equal to any exertion; however, he had the interests of the brethren at heart, and would strive to the uttermost to merit their esteem. The toast of the Treasurer and Secretary was given, and Brother Brooks, in the absence of Brother Everett, who had been compelled to leave early, acknowledged the compliment paid them. Bro. James Terry, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, in responding for the toast of the Masonic Charities, remarked that it had been hinted to him that he should direct attention to what was being done for the Institutions by this Lodge. The Lodge was now entering on the seventh year of its existence, and for the third time, as regarded the Institution he had the honour to represent, the members had voted a sum of twenty-five guineas. If we throw in the Chapters belonging to the Order, with the Lodges on the Roll of Grand Lodge, we shall be well within the mark if we take them at a round 2,000. Now, if all these bodies acted with the same generous spirit that pervaded the members of the Kilburn Lodge, 50,000 guineas per annum would be realised, and that would obviate the necessity for all appeals to individual members, and Annual Festivals for the Institutions would not be necessary. However, this desirable result was not likely to be consummated. At the same time he must not neglect to give this Lodge full credit for their benevolence, which he appreciated at its full value. The remaining toasts received due attention during the evening, and the proceedings throughout were varied and enlivened by some capital songs. It was a late hour ere the brethren separated.

ALEXANDRA LODGE, No. 1511.

THE annual installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Wednesday evening, 16th inst., at Hornsea. The W. Master Bro. Shackles P.G.S.D. presided, supported by the following Officers, Brethren and Visitors:—Bros. Spink S.W. W.M. elect, Maw J.W., Medd S.D., Stephenson J.D., Elsom I.G., Train M.C., Laking Sec., P.M. Hardy P.P.G.S.D., Wells P.P.G.S.B. Treasurer, Milner, Hislop, Goodwin, Smithson and others. Amongst the Visitors were the following, viz.:—Bros. P.M.'s Reynolds P.P.G.D.C., Haigh P.P.G.D.C., of the Minerva Lodge 250, King W.M., Beavers I.P.M., Wilson P.P.G.S.D., Haberland P.G.J.D., Myers S.W., Storry J.D., and Wildbore, of the Humber Lodge 57, Forder W.M., Sissons P.P.G. Reg. of the Kingston Lodge 1010, Bennett S.W., and Chappell of the De La Pole 1611, and A. P. Wilson P.W. of the Constitutional, Beverley. After the Lodge was opened the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of installation was ably rendered by Bro. Geo. Hardy P.M., assisted by Bros. Walter Reynolds and Geo. L. Shackles. A Board of Past Masters having been opened, the W.M. elect was installed into the chair of K.S. in ancient form. The following brethren were appointed and invested as Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Geo. L. Shackles P.G.S.D. I.P.M., R. A. Medd S.W., A. E. Allen J.W., John Heslop P.M. Chap., B. L. Wells P.M. P.P.G.S.B. Treasurer, Laking Secretary, Geo. Stephenson S.D., Elsom J.D., Train M.C., Webb. I.G., Goodwin Steward, and Miskin Tyler. Bro. Wells, in a graceful speech, presented to Bro. Shackles the I.P.M. a handsome and chaste P.M.'s jewel, informing him that it had been subscribed for by all the members of the Lodge as a slight token of their esteem and appreciation of the services he had rendered to the Lodge during the two years he had been the W.M. Bro. Shackles, in responding, thanked the brethren for their handsome present, and said that he should not only value the jewel for its intrinsic worth, but it would at all times remind him that he had won the esteem and regard of the members of his Lodge, which to him was far more valuable than any jewel, however costly. Apologies having been conveyed from numerous brethren for their absence, and expressions of hearty good wishes having been given, the Lodge was closed. Subsequently the brethren attended a sumptuous banquet, provided at the Alexandra Hotel, by Bro. Burdal, under the presidency of the newly-installed W.M., and the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given.

BOSCAWEN LODGE, No. 699, CHACEWATER.

THE brethren of the above Lodge celebrated their St. John's Festival on Monday, the 22nd inst. After one initiation and one passing, Bro. Eslick, the retiring W.M., very ably installed Bro. Bennetts as W.M. for the ensuing year. The W.M. appointed his Officers as follows:—Bros. Eslick I.P.M., Searle S.W., Hall J.W., Rev. G. L. Church Chaplain, Ninnis P.M. Treasurer, Rapson P.M. Secretary, Retallack S.D., Kent J.D., Martin M.C., Easterbrook and Jenkin Stewards, Olds I.G., and Lean Tyler. After the Lodge was closed the brethren dined together in their banquet room, the W.M. presiding. Dinner was served by Bro. Host Jones, of the Britannia Hotel.

GALLERY LODGE, No. 1928.

A Ball was held on Monday evening, at Brixton Hall, and, like its predecessor of 1882, proved a great success. Brother H. F. Bussey, the Master of the Lodge, gathered round him a grand array of friends, and with the assistance of Brother Sibold's excellent band dancing was kept up with unflagging spirit till past five the following morning. After supper the health of the W.M. was most enthusiastically drunk, and the same enthusiasm was repeated when the company expressed their approval of the name of Brother W. T. Perkins, the Secretary of the Ball Committee, whose exertions for the past few weeks had contributed so much to the enjoyment of the evening.

ROYAL CUMBERLAND CHAPTER, No. 41.

101st Anniversary, and Presentation to Colonel. A. W. Adair.

ON Thursday, the 11th instant, the Royal Cumberland Chapter attained its 101st anniversary, having been warranted on the 11th Jan. 1782. Advantage was taken of the occasion to present Colonel A. W. Adair, the Grand Superintendent of the Province, with a gold centenary jewel—the first of its kind ever issued—and an illuminated address. The proceedings were of an unusually interesting and pleasing character. At six o'clock the Chapter was opened, and the following Officers, Companions, and Visitors admitted:—Lawson Howes M.E.Z. P.G.R., F. Wilkinson H., C. W. Radway J., T. B. Moutrie Treasurer, E. J. B. Mercer Scribe E., Francis Glover Scribe N., William Peach P.S., R. B. Cator 1st Assistant S., J. Knight 2nd Assistant S., C. Becket P.Z., J. Hearne P.Z., H. Hopkins P.Z. 41 328 587 710, T. P. Ashley P.Z., T. Wilton P.Z., W. Williamson I.P.Z. P.G.A.S., E. L. Hill P.Z. P.P.G.A.S., S. G. Mitchel P.Z. P.P.G.R., R. E. Peach P.Z., T. S. Keene P.Z. Members—F. H. Goldney, G. H. Bartlett, W. S. Wilcox, J. H. Macfarlane, J. Robinson, W. H. Young, W. H. Reynolds, J. Hayward, S. Bigwood, A. W. Adair (Grand Superintendent), T. E. Wilton, Charles Wilkinson. Visitors—J. A. Timmins Royal Sussex 53 Scribe E., J. Sumsion Royal Sussex 53, Ed. England Phillip Tynte 379 P.Z., W. A. Scott P.F.P. 61 P.Z., G. V. Law Royal Sussex 53 C., J. B. Wilson Royal Sussex 53 C.

After some preliminary business had been disposed of, Companion Thomas Wilton, one of the oldest P.Z.'s of the Chapter, advanced to the dais, and addressing the presiding Principal, said owing to the unfortunate absence of their very old and esteemed P.Z., Edmund White, who at his advanced age had been unable to undertake the journey from Weston-super-Mare in order to be present on that very interesting occasion, it had fallen to his lot to occupy a position which Companion White would no doubt have filled with more ability and efficiency than himself. He must, at the outset, congratulate the first Principal upon the very distinguished position that Chapter occupied in being the first in England able to prove a continuous working of 100 years. They were on that day commemorating the first year of another century, and it must be gratifying to all present to see the Chapter in such a vigorous and prosperous condition. Having obtained a centenary charter from the Supreme Grand Chapter of England, signed by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, it was thought that the event should be celebrated by electing Colonel Adair, the Grand Superintendent, as a member of the Chapter. Turning to Colonel Adair Companion Wilton, addressing him personally, said that, he having graciously consented to join the Chapter, the Companions determined to mark the event by presenting him with a gold centenary jewel, and he (Companion Wilton) now asked his acceptance of the jewel—which was the first of its kind presented to any Grand Superintendent in England—as a token of the kindly feeling entertained for him, and in recognition of the Masonic good work he had done in the Province of Somerset. Although his dear friend, Edmund White, was not there to personally testify his appreciation of that ceremonial he had deputed him, on his behalf, to present the accompanying illuminated scroll commemorative of the presentation of that jewel, and which would be a lasting record of the kindly feelings and generous sentiments entertained by the Companions towards Colonel Adair, not only in Bath, but by the Province generally. The address was as follows:—

Royal Cumberland Lodge, No. 41, Bath.

Warranted 11th January, A.L. 1782, Centenary Charter granted August, A.L. 1882.

To the Most Excellent Companion, Colonel Alexander Wm. Adair, Grand Superintendent of the Province of Somerset, and P.P.G.M. Somerset.

Most Excellent and very Dear Sir and Brother,

We, the Principals, Past Principals, Officers and Companions of the Royal Arch Cumberland Chapter, No. 41, respectfully request your acceptance of the accompanying Centenary Jewel—the first of its kind issued—as a small, though marked, testimonial of the great esteem in which you are deservedly held by the Masonic body of which you are a distinguished ornament, and more especially of our own affection and respect for you personally, and for the manly and Masonic virtues of which you have given us so many proofs in all the high offices to which you have been appointed, especially in that of Grand Superintendent of this Province, in which we pray the Supreme Grand Architect of the Universe may long preserve you in peace, happiness and prosperity.

[The signatures of the whole of the members of the Chapter will be appended to this address. It should be mentioned that it was beautifully illuminated, in different colours, on vellum by Messrs. Wilkinson Bros., Union-street. It is to be enclosed in a very handsome frame, carved with suitable Masonic emblems.]

The jewel having been pinned upon Colonel Adair's breast, and the address having been handed him,—Colonel Adair, who was evidently very sensibly affected by the cordial manner in which he had been greeted on that occasion, and also at the thoughtfulness of Bro. White—who has for close upon fifty years been a member of the Chapter—at the commencement of his reply expressed the great gratification it afforded him to accede to the wishes of the Companions that he should become a joining member of the Chapter. He could most heartily Masonically thank them for their kindly expressions towards him, and assured them that the jewel would ever be worn by him as a pledge of that Masonic friendship held towards him by the Bath brethren, and that the illuminated address which had been prepared by the thoughtfulness of Brother White would most certainly find a resting-place in his dwelling. He trusted that, in years to come—when, perhaps, he had passed away—those who followed him would view with satisfaction the testimony of those who had that day Masonically banded themselves together to do him honour. He regretted exceedingly that Brother White was not present in person, but he felt assured he was there in heart. Every Companion would regret with him most heartily that increasing age had precluded him from a personal participation of the pleasures of that day. He (Col. Adair) could look back to Masonic friendships formed in Bath during a period of over thirty years, and he always felt, whenever he came into the good old city, that he was sure of meeting many friends, with whom he had had much intercourse, and who, equally with himself, were pleased to renew old associations. He again thanked them most heartily, and trusted that, at no distant date, he should be able to come amongst them again.

After the business had been disposed of the Companions adjourned to the Grand Pump Room Hotel, where they partook of refreshments. M.E.Z. Lawson Howes occupied the chair, supported by Colonel Adair and the other Officers, and thus an important event in the annals of this Chapter, of which all who had the privilege of being present will have grateful reminiscences, came to a satisfactory conclusion.

Comp. Macfarlane, by his assistance in the musical arrangements, added very considerably to the pleasures of the evening.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. Bros. Joshua Nunn, James Brett and Thomas Cubitt occupied the three chairs. Bro. Nunn informed the brethren that he had to give them the very satisfactory intelligence that since the last meeting letters had been received from four recipients of relief, thanking the Lodge for their grants. This was a circumstance which did not often occur. There had been also two very gratifying acknowledgments from America, one a copy of resolutions passed by the Grand Lodge of Illinois, signed by the Grand Master, Wardens and Secretary, thanking the Lodge of Benevolence for assisting an Illinois brother to return. A brother in Chicago, also, who was relieved with £10, in 1880, to enable him to return to his native country, had also sent a letter thanking the Lodge and returning the £10. Bro. Nunn said these were not the only instances the Lodge had had of similar acts by American brethren, and it showed the brotherly feeling of American Freemasons. Bro. Nunn then stated that he had given notice to Grand Secretary to move at the Special Grand Lodge which would be convened to consider the Revised Constitutions, that before a brother could be eligible for relief he should be a subscribing member five years. Bro. W. Smallpeice said, he had given notice of motion that the quarterages of both London and country brethren should be four shillings a year. The Lodge then confirmed recommendations of grants at last Lodge to the amount of £180, and granted a total of £685 to the new list, which consisted of 29 petitioners. Four of these were deferred, not being complete. The Lodge sat till near ten o'clock.

The General Committee, for January, of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, was held at Freemasons' Hall, on the 25th inst., under the presidency of Colonel Creaton. There were also the following brethren present: Col. Peters, J. H. Matthews, A. H. Tattershall, Arthur E. Gladwell, Robert Grey, Peter de L. Long, and E. C. Massey. The minutes of the 28th December were read and verified, and the minutes of the following Committees were read for information, viz., Quarterly General Court, 13th January; House Committee, 18th January; and Audit Committee, 21st January. The Chairman was authorised and requested to sign cheques to the amount of £1,379 14s 5d for tradesmen's bills, &c. for December. This was the only business before the Committee, and a vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the proceedings.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

NEW CONCORD LODGE, No. 813.

A REGULAR meeting of the members of this excellent Lodge was held on Thursday evening, 18th inst., at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, when there was a goodly muster of the brethren and Visitors, under the presidency of Bro. Lewis C. Haslip, the esteemed Worshipful Master, who was supported by Bros. Tiddeman S.W., Stillwell J.W., Rev. C. J. Stevens Chaplain, Boulton P.M. Treasurer, Harper P.M. Secretary, Potter S.D., Harnett J.D., A. Perl M.C., Weedon I.G., F. Perl Steward, Pierpoint I.P.M., Bartlett P.M., Cusworth P.M., Sampson George P.M., &c. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. Purvis Belgrave, Howe W.S. 1155, Hubbard P.M. 820, Sargent P.M. 1099, and Chubb 186. Lodge was opened in accordance with ancient rites, soon after five o'clock, and after the confirmation of the minutes of the last meeting, was advanced to the third degree, when Bro. Adams was raised by the W.M., who worked the ceremony in a most efficient and praiseworthy manner. Lodge was resumed in the second, and Bros. J. J. Pilley and J. B. Smith were passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, the rites being most satisfactorily performed. It was announced that Bro. T. J. Cusworth P.M. was one of the Stewards for the forthcoming Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and Bro. H. J. Gabb P.M. for the Boys' School, and each appealed to the brethren for assistance in support of his list. The brethren were also reminded that the New Concord Lodge of Instruction is held every Wednesday evening, at eight o'clock, at the Jolly Farmers, Southgate-road, Islington, with Bro. Cusworth P.M. as Preceptor, and they were invited to make the attendances as numerous as they conveniently could. At the conclusion of the business, the brethren and Visitors partook of a banquet, under the presidency of the Worshipful Master, when admirable arrangements were made for the comfort and enjoyment of the guests. The customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair, and duly honoured, especial reference being made to the zeal and assiduity with which the Officers of the Grand Lodge, Past and Present, promoted the welfare of the Craft. The I.P.M. then proposed, in suitable terms, the health of the Worshipful Master, in doing which he said he was perfectly certain the gavel was never held by worthier hands than those of Brother Haslip, to whose health he asked them to join him in drinking, with the heartiest wishes for his continued happiness and prosperity. The toast was cordially received, the W.M., in response, thanking the brethren most sincerely for the honour they had done him, and for the uniform kindness with which he was always received by them. He had not much longer to remain in office, but as long as he was in the chair he hoped he might be able to give the same satisfaction to the brethren in the discharge of his duties as he had done in the past. He then gave the toast of the Visitors, to whom he extended, on behalf of the Lodge, a very cordial and hearty welcome. He was quite sure they would all agree with him that it was a great pleasure to meet Visitors, coming amongst them on every available occasion. Brother C. Hubbard, whose name was associated with the toast, briefly replied; he expressed his delight in being once more amongst his friends of this Lodge, and to see that the same hospitality and generosity was dispensed as on all former occasions, whilst their sympathy for the poor had not diminished, as was proved by their considerate grants, of £5 each, that evening to two indigent brethren. He concluded by expressing a hope that there would be a large attendance at the annual ball, to be given at Guildhall Tavern, on the 9th proximo, for the benefit of the Charities, and alluded to the pleasure they had all derived from similar réunions in times gone by. The W.M. in proposing the Past Masters referred to the valuable assistance they had rendered him during his year of office, and to everything that was necessary to keep the Lodge in good going order. Bros. Pierpoint, Cusworth—who made a warm appeal on behalf of the Girls' School—and Harper, replied. Others toasts followed, including the health of the Treasurer and Secretary, who responded, as also did the Officers, and the list was concluded with the Tyler's toast. During the evening some good songs were sung, and the gathering was characterised by much heartiness and good feeling.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE, No. 1426.

THE usual monthly meeting of the above Lodge was held on Saturday evening, 13th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel, and was numerously attended. Bro. W. F. Kibble W.M. presided. Bros. Keable S.W., Baker J.W., Fendick S.D., Potter J.D., Skinner I.G., Headon P.M. Treasurer, Blackie P.M. Sec., Rev. R. J. Simpson Chap., and Past Masters Freeman, Stevens, &c. The number of Visitors was smaller than usual. Lodge having been duly opened and the minutes read, Bro. E. M. Caslon was questioned as to the progress he had made in the science since his initiation. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and he was passed to the degree of F.C. Lodge was then resumed to the first degree, when Mr. Small, candidate, was impressively initiated into the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry. Bro. Droscher, one of the Visitors, entered into an explanation of the Masonic statistics given by him at a previous Lodge, which had elicited articles from time to time in the Freemason. These were received with great satisfaction and loudly applauded. Some other business having been transacted, Lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, and on withdrawal of the cloth the Worshipful Master gave the usual formal toasts. In response to that of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Bro. Simpson, Past Grand Chaplain and Chaplain of the Lodge, said he thanked the Worshipful Master and the Lodge on behalf of the Grand Officers, past and present, for the compliment which had been paid to them, and which he had no doubt they would very much appreciate. He felt there were few members of the Grand Lodge who were more cognisant of the difficulties that arose in that great assemblage than the nobleman whose name appeared at the head of the toast. It was quite clear that in a few years if there was no alteration in the antiquated rules which at present governed Grand Lodge that it would soon resolve itself into confusion worse confounded. He felt sure that the time would come when they would be compelled to take into consideration the great increase in the number of Lodges, and make the legislation and constitution of the Grand Lodge adequate to the increased numbers. He was exceedingly pleased that the Worshipful Master had coupled his name with the toast of the Grand Officers, although perhaps he was one of its humblest members; but much as he honoured the position given him by the late Earl of Zetland, as Grand Chaplain, he felt much greater pleasure in being year after year chosen as the Chaplain of The Great City Lodge, and for the affectionate manner in which he was always received by its members. He trusted that Bro. Small, who had that night been initiated,—if they would permit him to use a bad joke,—would not be a small brother; he was glad that he had joined The Great City Lodge, and trusted and believed that he would not prove an unworthy member. He thought he saw, in the ceremony of initiation, so admirably performed by the W.M., the impression that must have made upon him. That brought to his mind the toast which he had been asked by the W.M. to propose, which was usually placed at the foot of the list, and by breaking in upon that rule he believed it would be more honoured in the breach than in the observance. Bro. Small had received his first degree, but there were two others more important, and he might observe that many men had received the first and second, but never obtained the third, for before they could do so the G.A.O.T.U. had given them notice to quit the world immediately. Their Charities were founded upon the knowledge of this fact, that they knew not what was in the hands of the Great Architect of the Universe, and they knew not what a day would bring forth. The Charities drew forth their sympathies for their fellow men, for the widow and orphan, who were left, like the leafless tree of the forest; but these three great Charities, so well known, then came to aid them. He preached no sermon, but reminded them of what was right and true; to assist in the great work of doing the greatest thing in the code of Freemasonry; this was Charity; and when he found that upwards of £40,000 was raised in one year towards the support of these Charities he said that was unique. After some further observations to the same purport, he asked the brethren to support the W.M., who would represent the Lodge at the ensuing Festival of the Girls' School. The W.M. returned thanks on behalf of the Masonic Charities, and hoped the brethren of The Great City Lodge would support him on the occasion which had been referred to by Bro. Simpson. Bro. Stevens proposed the health of Bro. Kibble W.M., and referred to the able manner in which he had discharged his duties in the chair. The W.M. returned thanks for the very kind manner in which his name was always received. If his duties involved some labour and time, they were well spent, and he was amply repaid by the kindly greeting with which he was always received. The Worshipful Master said he had then come to what might be truly termed the toast of the evening, a toast to which they wished to do the greatest honour. They had that night admitted amongst them Bro. Small, who had been well and worthily recommended. He might well consider this as the turning point in his life. He had travelled a great deal, and in taking the first step that night on his initiation, a wide vista was thrown open to him for future inquiry, and to aid in the completion of an edifice—of which he trusted he might attain the summit, which was the just ambition of every Mason. Bro. Small, in returning thanks, said he was deeply impressed with the beauty of the ceremony he had passed through, of which he had hitherto little conception; with that feeling he was highly pleased in having joined Freemasonry. The W.M. next gave the Visitors, expressing the happiness the Lodge felt in seeing them amongst them. Brother Droscher, of the Rothesay Lodge, No. 1687, in responding, said: I am nearly ashamed of the honour shown me each time I come among you, inviting me as you do to speak on behalf of the visitors. Among my brother visitors there are many who would be more apt than I am to return thanks; this you must have discovered ere this, for I am not a master in the art of paying compliments. I can but thank you for the kind reception which we have met with this evening. We will endeavour to follow your example when, in your turn as Visitors, you come to see us in our respective Lodges. This duty of politeness accomplished, allow me, W.M. and brethren, a slight digression. A few day ago, I read in the Pall Mall Gazette, with some sadness, that Peterborough Cathedral, so famous in English history, one of the most beautiful Gothic churches in the world, built by our brethren of the thirteenth century, was threatened with ruin. Mr. Pearson, a brother Freemason I hope, was called by telegram to give his opinion, and he declares it indispensable that the tower should be demolished. If, instead of coming to this conclusion, Mr. Pearson said it must be repaired, and I give that important task to my brother Masons of The Great City Lodge, I suppose you would have been astonished and much embarrassed, for there are few amongst us I think who would be capable of setting a brick. Does it not seem strange, brethren, that in this great Masonic Society, which covers the world, we meet bankers, clerks, and members of every profession, but few Masons, properly speaking? We call ourselves Masons, but not the slightest spot of mortar is seen on our aprons. This is anomalous to-day, but not in the past, now nearly two centuries ago, when our brethren were really constructive Masons. To find the solution of this enigma we must seek it in the Masonic History of England. Two centuries ago Masonry had arrived at a collapse, which I will relate. Many Societies had sprung up apart from Masonry, and there were schisms which had divided the directing authorities; thus in the fourteenth century, the abolition of the celebrated Order of Templars. This ambitious Order, which had absorbed for its own benefit all the Masonic Lodges of the Christian world, had contributed not a little to enfeeble the Order. Then again in the eighteenth century, which we have reached, work failed. The great baselisks were completed—those gigantic effervescences of stone and marble, which are always the admiration of poets and artists, and the despair of architects. All these circumstances have dislocated, and Masons were regarded with suspicion. It then became necessary to give new life and infuse new blood into the Association, so that, in 1702, the London Lodge of Saint Paul, now the Lodge of Antiquity, No. 2, came to a decision which entirely changed the whole Constitution of Masonry. That decision decided that Masonic privileges should no longer be the exclusive property of constructive Masons, and that members of different professions should be called to enjoy them, provided they were regularly approved and initiated. From that day the private and phiosophical element was introduced. From that day, on which Masonry opened its portals to science and philosophy—to Voltaire, Rousseaux, Diderot, Helbetius, Holbach, and many others whom I could name—dates Masonry's new era. The consequences of this decision of the Lodge of Antiquity were immense. It gathered together all the scattered remains of the dissenting Lodges — Templars, Albigenses, Parantines, and Bulgarees—to form, in the eighteenth century, the sect known as the Illuminati, which for a little while made the world tremble, and of which Cagliostro was one of the chiefs. From the time of this schism Masonry became philanthropic, humanitising, renovated, and young again. It accomplished, in the interest of liberty, charity and benevolence, the work which the Templars had tried to appropriate to their own ambition, and which, so bravely commenced, was suddenly interrupted by Philip the Fair, King of France, and the execution of the Great Master of the Order, Jaques de Molay. That is why, brethren, you are Masons but by name, and why you will not be called upon to re-construct Peterborough Cathedral. Therefore, brethren, I am happy if I have been able to interest you by raising a corner of the veil which conceals our great Masonic history. Some other toasts were given, and the evening was spent in complete harmony.

COVENT GARDEN LODGE, No. 1614.

THE installation meeting of this new and flourishing Lodge was held on the 9th instant, at the Criterion, Piccadilly, where the gathering was numerously attended. Bros. Simeon Jacobs W.M., Gulliford P.M. 1017 S.W., Coleman J.W., Jacobs P.M. Treasurer, Bourne P.M. Secretary, Jacobs S.D., Kedgley J.D., Dickson I.G., Stacey P.M. Organist, Solomon Steward, Feis M.C., Rev. Philip M. Holden P.P. Grand Chaplain Middlesex, Baldwin P.P.G.P. Middlesex, Albert P.G.P., Smith 1348, Roots 1273, Cox P.M. 190, Headon 779, Hyams 1348, Gross 901, Parish P.M. 1604, Davis 188, Marks 1349, Jacobs 704, Miller 1681, Richardson P.M. 1348, Bond 704, Reis 12, Smith 1563, Jordan 1580, Jacobs 1348, Mason P.P.G.S.D. Middlesex, Hart 1348, Wagborn P.M. 946, Smeed P.P.G.J.W. Middlesex, Isaac 1624, Butt 834, Gulliford 1017, Price 733, Fowler 1507 754, Wells P.M. 299, Hammond 569, Cooper P.M. 946, Hillier 946, Hart 1348, Madell 1201, Ralph 1421, Holmes 141, Demetrius 1348, Judge 1178, Hawkes P.M. 1071, Alexander 1348, H. M. Levy P.M. 188, Jackson P.M. 534. After the Lodge had been formally opened, and the minutes read and confirmed, Bros. C. Williams and Freeman were passed to the second degree, by the W.M. Bro. Reynolds, No. 749, was unanimously elected a joining member. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Gulliford P.M. 1017 S.W. and W.M. elect was inducted into the Master's chair by Bro. Jacobs P.M. and Treasurer, who conducted the proceedings in a very perfect and impressive manner, and at the conclusion of the ceremony was warmly congratulated by those present. There were twenty W.M.'s and P.M.'s present at the Board of Installed Masters. On the re-admission of the brethren the customary salutations were given, and the W.M., with some appropriate remarks, appointed and invested his Officers:—Bros. S. Jacobs I.P.M., Coleman S.W., J. Jacobs J.W., Reverend P. M. Holden Chaplain, E. Jacobs P.M. Treasurer, Bourne P.M. Secretary, Stacey P.P.G.O. Berks and Bucks Organist, Kedgley S.D., Dixon J.D., Solomon I.G., Figges W.S., Baxter M.C., Bassett A.W.S., Potter P.M. Tyler. The applause that followed the investiture of each Officer showed the W.M. had made a selection that was approved. The W.M. on rising said it was a great pleasure to know the members of the Lodge were delighted at the ability the I.P.M. Bro. Simeon Jacobs had displayed in conducting the duties during the past year, and in placing the P.M.'s jewel on his breast, he might say it carried with it the good wishes of the Lodge. He hoped Bro. Jacobs might be spared for many years to wear it, with honour and credit. Bro. Jacobs thanked the W.M. for his kind remarks, and the Lodge for the splendid jewel presented to him. He hoped, while he had health, his endeavours might redound to the welfare of the Lodge. He would wear the jewel with pride, as a pleasing remembrance of his connection with the Covent Garden Lodge. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren, eighty-four in number, sat down to a capital banquet and dessert, provided by Messrs. Spiers and Pond (Limited), and superintended by Bro. Madell. The tables were beautifully and artistically decorated, and the W.M. provided a "button hole" for every guest. Grace having been said by the Rev. P. M. Holden, the W.M. proposed the Loyal and Masonic toasts. In proposing the toasts of the P.G.M., the D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, the W.M. said he would call on a brother who had been honoured by H.R.H. the M.W.G.M. on the auspicious occasion of his Installation at the Albert Hall. He hoped to see Brother Albert in health and prosperity for many years. Fifteen years ago he (Bro. Albert) initiated him into the Order. Bro. Albert P.G.P. was pleased to return thanks for this toast; he could testify to the zeal displayed by the Grand Officers. Brother S. Jacobs proposed the health of the W M., who had ably worked his way to the chair. Bro. Gulliford knew the duties thoroughly, and would doubtless receive the fruits of his labour; he was well worthy of their respect. Bro. Rev. P. M. Holden here gratified the brethren with his splendid delivery of "The Midnight Charge of Kassassin." The W.M. in responding said, after the wonderful recital of the Wor. Brother, he felt somewhat at a loss to reply. However, he might remark that if they would allow themselves to be led by the Blue Ribbon, they would have nothing to regret at having elected him W. Master. He thanked Bro. Simeon Jacobs for proposing the toast, and the brethren for so kindly responding to it, and now, before resuming his seat, he had great pleasure in proposing the toast of the I.P.M. Bro. Jacobs, in acknowledging the compliment, said he had not received a classical education, but by attending at Lodges of Instruction, he had, he believed, qualified himself to occupy the chair, he hoped to their satisfaction. The jewel presented to him that evening he should wear with pride. He thanked them for their kindness. The W.M. next proposed the toast of the Visitors. Bros. Smeed, Levy, Cox, and Baldwin severally responded. In proposing the toast of the P.M.'s, the W.M. said if time permitted he could say a great deal; but as it was late, he would merely propose the toast, and call on Bros. Bourne and Jacobs, than whom there were none superior, in regard to their duties, in the Craft. Bro. Jacobs said, so long as he occupied his position, his services would always be at their command. Bro. Bourne followed, with an excellent speech, as also did Bro. Kedgley. The toast of the Wardens and Officers came next, and Bro. Coleman responded. The Tyler's toast was then given. Bros. Holden, Solomon, Master Solomon, Marks, and Bassett entertained the brethren. Bro. Charles Solomon ably presided at the pianoforte.

Loughborough Lodge of Instruction, No. 22. — A meeting was held on Monday evening, 22nd January, at Brother McDiarmaid's, the Cambria Tavern, Cambria-road, Longhborough-junction. Present—Bros. Banks W.M., Perkins S.W., Warren J.W., McKinley Secretary, Brown S.D., Sherring J.D., Johnson Preceptor, Carnock I.G., also Bros. Westley, Spencer, Tapps, Leigh. After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, with Brother Leigh as candidate. The second section of the first lecture was worked by Bro. Sherring, and the third section by Bro. Westley. Bro. Sherring, as one of the Auditors, presented the annual report, which showed a most healthy account. It pointed out that sixty new members had joined the Lodge during the past year, and that a contribution had been paid to the Charities in the name of Bro. Johnson, and that the furniture had been presented gratuitously to the Lodge, thus avoiding any strain on the funds. Bros. Johnson Preceptor, McDiarmaid Treas., and McKinley Sec. were unanimously elected to their respective officers for the ensuing year. The balance sheet having been duly signed by the Auditors, showing a good balance to be carried forward, and all business being ended, Lodge was closed in ancient form, and adjourned till Monday evening, the 29th inst.

United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, No. 507.—A meeting was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New-road, S.E., on Friday, the 19th instant, and was well attended. Bro. James Stevens P.M. Preceptor opened the Lodge at 7.30, the Officers being Bros. C. H. Wiltshire S.W., Style J.W., H. H. Wiltshire S.D., Bate J.D., Philips I.G., James Terry P.M. Secretary, Thurston P.M. Treasurer; there were also present Bros. Fullwood P.M., Williams, Pooler, and others. Lodge having been opened in the second degree, Bro. Thurston, as candidate, proved F.C. proficiency, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed by the W.M. and Officers, in a most effective and impressive manner; the traditional history being fully given, and Bro. Bate subsequently delivered the charge in M.M. degree. Lodge was resumed to the first degree, and called off for "entry drill," and called on. Having been again raised, Lodge was closed down in due order. Bro. Poore was nominated by the Preceptor as W.M. for the ensuing week, the Officers to retain their present positions. Bro. Thurston announced his intention to serve as Steward at the ensuing Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and acknowledged a liberal support by brethren. Lodge was then closed in due form, and the meeting adjourned.

SPHINX LODGE, No. 1329.

THE regular meeting of the members of this popular Lodge was held on Saturday afternoon, at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New-road. Lodge was opened punctually at five o'clock by the W.M., Bro. Mansell, when the following were present:—Bros. Bickerstaffe P.M., in the absence of Bro. Middlemass, acted as S.W., Reynolds jun. J.W., Hernaman Secretary, Brinton S.D., Marsden jun. J.D., Hall Organist, Forbes Steward, Voisey I.G.; also Bros. Richards I.P.M., Sugden P.M., Bryant P.M., Bradley, Cooker, Bigg, Parnacott, Thornhill, Webb, Britten, Lye, Brookes, Wilson, Gooding, Henriques, Dr. Gross, Heller, Turney, Partridge, Erskine, Knox. Visitors—Bros. Hawkins P.M. Kingsland 1693, and Dr. Bull Mount Lebanon 78. Mr. Alfred Partridge was balloted for; the result being unanimous, he was initiated into the mysteries of our Order in due form. The Secretary — Brother Hernaman—then read the Bye-laws. Several matters associated with the Lodge financially were discussed and forwarded. Bro. Brinton regretted there was so little of vocalisation in the Lodge; they had an excellent Organist in Bro. Hall, whose post it was desirable should not be a sinecure. It would, therefore, afford him (Bro. Brinton) much pleasure to provide copies of anthems and hymns to be sung whenever the brethren assembled. It might be remembered that at the recent installation an anthem was rendered in a manner seldom excelled either in or out of a Lodge. Why should not vocalization be more cultivated? He was aware, in other Lodges which were far less pretentious than their own, musical offerings of praise ascended to the Great Architect of the Universe at all meetings. An animated discussion ensued, all being in favour of this musical introduction, and a Committee was formed, consisting of the W.M. and Officers of the Lodge, in order to carry into effect so desirable a suggestion. During the meeting applications were made by some brethren who represented themselves as being in distress, and solicited assistance. Bro. Brinton opposed the giving any assistance to those of whom they knew nothing whatever. In the cases at that moment under consideration it appeared that no applications had been made to the Lodge of Benevolence. Why not? They were warned continually against aiding and assisting such impecunious and peripatetic brethren, the antecedents of whom were questionable. He would suggest that due inquiry should be instituted before any relief be bestowed. It was far from his wish to stem the current of relief; what he desired was, that only the really deserving should be assisted. After a long discussion, it was resolved to relieve both applicants. Bro. Brinton here remarked that doubtless at their next meeting they would have a number of similar applications. The Lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to another part of the hall, where Bro. Slawson, of 736 Old Kent-road, had served up an excellent repast in his approved manner. After the removal of the cloth, the usual Masonic and patriotic toasts were given, and pledged right loyally. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Past Masters of the Lodge, whom he eulogised for the assistance they at all times rendered to the Masters in particular, and the Lodge generally. He associated the names of Past Masters Richards, Sugden, and Bryant, who severally responded for the compliment. Bro. Richards then proposed the health of the W.M., whom he heartily congratulated. The W.M., in response, regretted he had failed in carrying out the duties associated with his office on that occasion so efficiently as he could have wished. As, however, he had been so recently installed, he hoped his shortcomings would be pardoned. He would do all in his power to become efficient, and also to maintain the prestige of the Lodge. He had Officers around him on whom he could rely, who were conversant with their duties; therefore their co-operation would materially assist him. This afforded him great comfort. He then proposed the health of the Initiate, Bro. Partridge, who made a capital speech in reply thereto. The W.M. next proposed the health of the Visitors. As a rule many Visitors were present at their meetings—on that evening there were but two. He would state, however, Visitors would always be welcomed at the Lodge. Bro. Dr. Bull acknowledged the compliment, and expressed the pleasure he had felt on a former occasion when he was present. He felt great interest in the welfare of the Lodge, and it was a source of comfort to him to know that, both financially and numerically, the Lodge was in a satisfactory condition. No doubt the introduction of more music would be attended by satisfactory results. The W.M. next proposed the Officers of the Lodge, and made a graceful allusion to P.M. Bro. Bickerstaffe, who had acted as S.W. during the evening, in the absence of Bro. Middlemass, who was unavoidably away. Any Master of a Lodge, who had the assistance of good Officers, was to be congratulated. He would include himself among that number. Bro. P.M. Bickerstaffe, in response, said he was not an orator, a fact they all knew. He was a man of deeds, not of words, he therefore would content himself with simply thanking the W.M. and Brethren on the part of himself and the Officers for the fraternal manner in which they had received and pledged the toast. The W.M. next called on the brethren to drink to the health of their zealous and able Secretary, Bro. J. Hernaman, to whom they were all much indebted. The duties their Secretary had to perform were arduous, and tentative as well. But the more labour there was for him to do, the more he seemed to like it. After some more remarks, the toast was pledged with hearty good wishes. When the Secretary was called upon, he, with great reluctance, spoke. He feared giving some offence to his brethren on points of internal rule, to which he especially wished to draw the attention of the Lodge; matters of seeming unimportance in themselves, but which had a great effect on the comfort of the brethren and conduct of the Lodge. He expected that other Secretaries met with similar difficulties in the prompt payment of dues, and in the thoughtless way in which communications were left unanswered, after even providing the members with the necessary material. This was a matter of "Home Rule," and, at the risk of being considered offensive, he ventured to draw attention to these matters on this quiet home night of the Lodge, rather than on an occasion like their last installation banquet, when the meaning of his remarks were but half understood, and concluded by hoping for the generous sympathy of the brethren in future. The W.M. then in warm terms proposed the health of Bro. Forbes, Steward, who in a characteristic speech replied. The Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings of the evening. We must not omit to mention that Bros. Voisey, Knox, and Gooding, by their singing, contributed to the pleasures of the meeting, as did also the recitation of Bro. Hernaman, which was delivered in the style of a true orator.

OLD GLOBE LODGE, No. 200.

ON the 17th inst. the brethren of the Old Globe Lodge held their annual installation at the Masonic Hall, Londesborough Rooms, Scarborough. The W.M. for the present year is Brother W. Parkin P.M. The ceremony was impressively performed by Brother Major Smyth P.M. 712, and Provincial Grand Master Lincoln, assisted by other Officers. The various Officers were installed for the year, after which the brethren and visitors adjourned to Brother Joseph Shaw's, where a banquet was provided.

LION LODGE, No. 312.

ON the 15th inst., at the Masonic Hall, West Cliff, Whitby, Bro. M. Smith S.W. was installed W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony of installation being performed by Bro. J. Stevenson P.M. The following are the Officers for the year:—Bros. H. C. Walker S.W., J. Brooks J.W., T. Tate S.D., J. T. Stewart J.D., R. W. White I.G., J. N Lawson P.M. Treasurer, J. B. Dale Secretary, W. H. Attlay M.C. and Organist, J. Brand and H. Wald Stewards, T. H. Trueman Tyler. The installation banquet afterwards took place at the Royal Hotel, the W.M. presiding, while the S.W. was in the vice-chair. The customary Masonic toasts were duly honoured.

UNION LODGE, No. 414.

ON Tuesday, the 16th inst., the annual festival and jubilee of the above Lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Grey Friars'-road, at 8.30 p.m., when there was assembled one of the most distinguished and numerous gatherings that has been witnessed here for many years. The special occasion of the meeting was the installation of Bro. Ferguson, who was elected as Master at the last regular Lodge. The ceremony was performed by Bro. Moxhay P.M., &c., who for some years past has acted as Installing Master of this and the Grey Friars' Lodge. The admirable manner in which Bro. Moxhay performs his duty has become a proverb in the Province of Berks and Bucks. At the appointed hour there were assembled the following Officers:—Mount W.M., Ferguson S.W. W.M. elect, Wheeler jun. J.W., Withers Secretary, Parry S.D., Witherington J.D., Butler M.C., Blackwell I.G., Martin Senior Steward, Webb and Armstrong Junior Stewards, and Hemmings Tyler. Past Masters—Bros. Stephens, Bradley, Oades, Smith, Morris, Baker, Weightman, Hounslow, Blowers, Bradley, Long 663, Biggs Hon. Mem. Members—Bros. Sydenham, Tirbutt, Hawkes, Walters, Hayward, Tench, Rayner, Hart, Higgs, Sherwood, and Stubbington. Visitors—Bros. Colonel Heathcote 1101, Tompkins 414, Bateman W.M. 591, Vardy W.M. 1566, Heath 1767, Edmonds 1899, Ivey P.M. and Sec. 1101, Trower P.M. 122, Tucker J.W. 1899, Fall 173, P.M.'s Ferguson 1101, Hurley 1101, Pulley 1436, Stransom Treasurer 1101, Hawkes J.W. 1101, Blackwell I.P.M. 1101, Scribner 1427, Faulkner 1720, Beale P.M. 1101, Short 1008, Denny 1899, Brown 123, Ridley S.W. 1101, Barton W.M. 771, Margrett P.M. 1101, Batting P.M. 1501, Bent P.G.C. P.M. 1894, Ravenscroft J.D. 1101, James 1101, &c. After the Lodge business was ended the brethren adjourned to the Great Western Hotel, where a banquet was provided by Bro. Flanagan, which reflected great credit on the caterer, and to which about 70 brethren sat down. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, being interspersed with some excellent music by Bro. Dyson, of Windsor, and three other brethren, forming a quartette of unusual ability. The toast of the evening was most rapturously received, being that of the "Master," to which he feliciteously responded.

EBRINGTON LODGE, No. 1847.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge, was held at the Ebrington Masonic Temple, Stonehouse, on Tuesday, 9th inst. The business of the Lodge was an initiation, admirably performed by the W. Master Bro. R. Lose jun., assisted by W. Bro. S. Jew P.M. P.P.G.T., and a raising done by W. Bro. R. Lose sen. P.M. P.P.G.P. in the impressive manner so much appreciated by the brethren. The claims of the Devon Masonic Educational Fund to increased support was ably advocated by W. Bro. A. R. Lethbridge P.M., and W. Bro. Jew. They clearly showed how much good was being accomplished at the minimum of working expenses by this institution, and they confidently expected that each member would continue to become subscribers. The Lodge having been closed, the brethren with their visitors adjourned to Bro. W. B. Thomas's Great Western Hotel, for the annual banquet. About sixty-six persons sat down to enjoy the very bountiful provision made for the comfort of all. Bro. Thomas received well deserved encomiums for his liberal catering. The W. Master Bro. R. Lose ably presided, and proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. The pleasing feature of the evening was a presentation to the late Master, W. Brother C. A. Nicholson, who was prevented by illness from being present. It took the form of a very handsome clock, selected from the stock of Brother J. Griffin, of Union-street, Stonehouse, bearing the inscription:—"The gift of Lodge Ebrington, 1847, to P.M. Brother C. A. Nicholson, for his great zeal in Freemasonry, and the working of this Lodge especially.—December, 1882." A very pleasant evening was spent, the members and visitors contributing songs and recitations.

TRUE LOVE AND UNITY LODGE, No. 248, BRIXHAM.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday last, at the Freemasons' Hall, Brixham. Bro. James, the W.M. elect, was duly installed in the chair of K.S. by his predecessor, Bro. Colston P.G.D. At the close of the installation meeting, the W.M. invested the following brethren as Officers to assist him in efficiently working the Lodge during his year of office:—Bros. Colston I.P.M., Gregory S.W., James J.W., Rev. R. Ebrington Chaplain, Woolley Treasurer, Kendrick Secretary, Grove S.D., Wheaton J.D., Smith Organist, Sevill I.G., Cole Tyler. In the evening forty-two of the brethren dined at the George Hotel, the spread being a most sumptuous one, and reflected great credit on Mr. Banfield, the host. On the removal of the cloth the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured, after which the meeting became convivial.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—At the Jolly Farmers', Southgate-road, on Saturday, 20th inst. Present—Bros. Hirst W.M., Ashton S.W., Weeden J.W., Pearcy Preceptor, Fenner Secretary, Dixie S.D., Galer J.D., Venning I.G.; also Bros. Brasted, Richardson, Darnell, Marks, Rushton, Glass, Jones, Houghton, Hatch, Gibbs, Woolf, &c. After preliminaries, the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. Glass candidate. Bro. Fenner worked the third section of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Lodge was resumed to the first degree. Bro. Ashton was duly elected W.M. for the next meeting. A vote of thanks was cordially voted to Bro. Hirst for the able manner he had discharged the duties of the chair, for the first time, in this Lodge of Instruction. Lodge was then closed, and adjourned.

Brother Forge W. Master of the Southgate Lodge, No. 1950, will rehearse the ceremony of installation on Saturday, the 27th instant, when it is hoped there will be a numerous attendance of brethren.

A Grand Lodge of the Province of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight is to be held in the School-room, Bishopstoke, on Friday, the 2nd proximo, to elect a Provincial Grand Treasurer, to receive the report of the Committee appointed to consider the proposed Revision of the Book of Constitutions, and for other business. The Portsmouth brethren have unanimously resolved to support the candidature of Bro. R. J. Rastrick, of Southsea, for the Treasurership.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Charities Association will be held on Monday, 29th instant, in York, when petitions will be considered, and other matters of importance will be brought forward.

A handsome presentation has recently been made by the officials of the West London District School to Bro. Roberts, Past Master of Nos. 209 and 742, Past Grand Deacon of Berks and Bucks, and to Mrs. Roberts, Superintendent and Matron of the School, on their appointment to similar situations in the Surrey District Schools. The gift consisted of a superb liqueur case, with massive bottles of richly-cut glass, and a lady's hand-bag, most elegantly fitted with all the travelling requisites of a lady. Bro. Hume, a Past Master of 209 and 742, Past Grand Director of Ceremonies of Berks and Bucks, and Clerk to the Board of Managers, made the presentation.

A ball will take place in connection with the St. Marylebone Lodge, No. 1305, at the Langham Hotel, on Tuesday, the 6th of February, under the presidency of the W.M. Bro. Benj. Phillips, with the following Stewards:—Bros. E. White S.W., Moufliet J.W., Chaplin Treasurer, Hill S.D., Halliday J.D., F. Smith I.G., Drake W.S., H. W. Williams, R. F. Botting, W. H. Pope, J. Phillips, Edwards, Bar, Cox, Raymond, Bisney, H. Haahmel, and J. L. Baker P.M. and Secretary. Tickets—including supper, wine, and refreshments during the evening—for a gentleman, 21s; a lady, 15s; double ticket, 31s 6d. A dispensation has been granted for the brethren to appear in Craft and Royal Arch clothing.

Bro. Victor Cerexhe, No. 142, was elected Officier d'Académie, by the Minister of Public Instruction, M. Devau, on the 1st inst. Bro. Cerexhe is Professor of French Language at the University College, Gower-street.

Several changes have taken place since the opening of Her Majesty's Theatre in the representation by the substitution of the various characters, and the Yellow Dwarf may now be pronounced an established success. To Bro. Cecil, in conjunctiou with M. Hanfon, Chef de Ballet at the Grand Opera in Russia, and also at Covent Garden, great credit is due for this result.

DANCING.—To Those Who Have Never Learnt to Dance.—Bro. and Mrs. JACQUES WYNMANN receive daily, and undertake to teach ladies and gentlemen, who have never had the slightest previous knowledge or instruction, to go through every fashionable Ball-dance in a few easy lessons. Private lessons any hour. Morning and evening classes.

PROSPECTUS ON APPLICATION.

ACADEMY—74 NEWMAN STREET, OXFORD STREET, W.

BRO. JACQUES WYNMANN WILL BE HAPPY TO TAKE THE MANAGEMENT OF MASONIC BALLS. FIRST-CLASS BANDS PROVIDED.

FREEMASONRY IN YORK.

AS a symptom of the vigorous condition of Freemasonry in York, we may mention that a movement is on foot to secure the establishment of a third Lodge in this ancient centre of the Craft. All over the country, in fact all over the world, Freemasonry is making extraordinary and unprecedented progress, and in York its vitality is being well exemplified. Some of the very earliest records of Freemasonry are preserved in this City, which is said traditionally to have been the birthplace of the art, and during the last and present centuries many Lodges have been formed and worked in York. The present "York" Lodge was formed in 1777, and was then called the "Union" Lodge, but changed its title in 1870 to "York." The Eboracum Lodge was formed in 1876. Both Lodges are exceedingly prosperous, and are doing good work for the Masonic Charities. A petition for a third Lodge has been recommended by both the existing Lodges, and has been forwarded to headquarters. Its title, we understand, will be the "Agricola" Lodge, the Emperor Agricola having been a great patron of the building art during his residence here, and having contributed largely to the fame of the Roman city of Eboracum, the magnificence of whose public buildings won for it the appellation of Altera Roma.—Yorkshire Gazette.

ON Tuesday evening, the 16th inst., the installation of the Worshipful Master of the York Mark Lodge (Time Immemorial) took place at the Masonic Hall, Duncombe-street. The Master elect was Bro. C. G. Padel, and the ceremony of installation was performed by his predecessor, Bro. J. S. Cumberland. The Worshipful Master afterwards appointed the following Officers:—Bros. Gainforth S.W., Millington J.W., the Rev. James Blake Chaplain, Seller M.O., Turner S.O., T. Humphries J.O., Whytehead P.M. Treasurer and Secretary, Smith R.M., Dyson S.D., De Salis J.D., Balmford P.M. Organist, Rymer (Sheriff of York) M.C., Walker I.G., White and Slinger Stewards. At the conclusion of the proceedings the company sat down to supper at the Queen Hotel.

FREEMAN'S CHLORODYNE.

The Original and only true.

HUNDREDS of Medical Practitioners testify to its marvellous efficacy in immediately relieving and rapidly curing Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Spasms, Colic, Whooping Cough, and all Nerve Pains. It acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery. It rapidly relieves pain, from whatever cause, soothes and strengthens the system under exhausting diseases, and gives quiet and refreshing sleep.

Lord Chancellor Selborne, Lord Justice James, Lord Justice Mellish decided in favour of FREEMAN'S ORIGINAL CHLORODYNE, and against Brown and Davenport, compelling them to pay all costs in the suits. See Times of July 24th, 1873. Bottles 1s 1½d, 2s 9d, 4s 6d, 11s, and 20s. Sold by all Chemists.

TESTIMONIALS.—Head Quarter Staff, Cabul, May 31st, 1880. Mr. R. Freeman, Dear Sir,—It is with much pleasure I am able to state that your Chlorodyne has been of special service to me in alleviating the wearisome spasms of Asthma, which is here existent in an aggravated form. Many of my patients now come and beg me to give them that medicine which always relieves them, and which I need hardly say is your Chlorodyne. Yours faithfully, CHARLES W. OWEN, L.R.C.P. Lon., M.R.C.S. Eng., the Divisional Head Quarter Staff and Civil Surgeon, Cabul.

The Times, August 13th, 1877. From our own Correspondent with the Russian Army. Okoum, July 25th, 1877. The want of sanitary arrangements in the Russian Camp was dreadful, and had we remained there a few weeks longer, dysentery and typhoid fever would have played more havoc in our ranks than the bombs of the Turks. I myself acquired an unenviable reputation as a doctor, owing to my being provided with a small bottle of CHLORODYNE, with which I effected miraculous cures.

THE EMPIRE LAMP.

THE MOST BRILLIANT AND ECONOMICAL DOMESTIC LIGHT EXTANT.

It equals Gas for Simplicity, but surpasses it for Illuminating Power.

IT burns without a chimney, a pine-shaped globe only being required, which has never been known to break from the heat of the flame. It will give more light than any other lamp with a wick of equal size. The combustion is so perfect that it deodorises the oil, and burns absolutely without smell, giving an intense pure white and beautiful light. It is unrivalled for simplicity in lighting, cleaning, and trimming, and is, in fact, the perfection of artificial light. Suitable for Cottage or Mansion, Churches, Chapels, &c.

APPROACHING FESTIVAL OF THE R.M. BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

IT is quite time we directed the attention of our readers to the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The event is fixed for Wednesday, the 28th instant, and the chair will be taken by R.W. Bro. General Brownrigg, C.B., Provincial Grand Master and Provincial Grand Superintendent of Surrey, a Province which, if it has not enjoyed the distinction of raising a very large subscription at any particular Festival, has been invariably represented by one or more brethren as Stewards, and has pretty impartially distributed its favours among the three Institutions. On the present occasion we may take it for granted that it will put forth special exertions, not only for its own sake, and from the interest it takes in the R.M.B.I., but also in order to show the respect it entertains for the chief who has guided its destinies since 1871, and during whose period of government the Craft has gone on increasing in prosperity by such gradual but certain steps. Speaking Masonically, perhaps, the County is not a strong one. A portion of it is included within the Metropolitan district, and the sums subscribed by the Lodges located in this portion will go to swell the London total. The extra-Metropolitan section of the County can boast of as many as six and twenty Lodges, but there are in it no important industrial centres, and Croydon and Kingston-on-Thames, each with four Lodges, and Surbiton, with two Lodges, are the Masonic strongholds of the Province. Still a great deal may be done when there is so popular a chief as Brother General Brownrigg, so zealous a Deputy as Brother the Rev. C. W. Arnold P.G. Chaplain, and so experienced a Secretary as Bro. Charles Greenwood, Past G.S.B., not to mention such as Bro. Magnus Ohren P.G.A.D.C. and others, who have already on several occasions taken upon themselves the responsibilities of Festival Stewards, to the great advantage of the Institutions whose cause they have advocated. That the Surrey Lodges in the London area will be only too ready to help their Provincial brethren may be taken for granted, and we may look to see some extra zeal displayed by the immediately adjacent Provinces. In fact, the circumstances all tend to justify our belief that so far as Surrey and its immediate neighbours are concerned, the Festival of the 28th instant will compare favourably with its predecessors.

That such a consummation is most necessary is within the knowledge of all our readers. The Benevolent Institution, though the youngest of our three Charities, has grown to be the most exigent of them all in respect of the funds it is required to disburse; and, what is to be very much regretted, the demands on its resources are, at the present moment, exceptionally heavy, there being only thirteen vacancies to be filled up at the election in May next and no less than a hundred and thirty-one candidates to compete for them, and even this unusual number may be still further increased in the course of the present month. The sum annually disbursed among the annuitants is, as Bro. Terry very recently pointed out, £11,600, and to this must be added the expenses of the management in the shape of salaries, office expenses, maintenance of building, &c., &c.; so that we shall not be far out in estimating the total amount required from year to year as quite £15,500. This, of course, is a liability which it is within the competency of the Craft in England to satisfy. London and the Provinces muster together over 1300 Lodges, and a contribution of £10 from each, added to the permanent income of the Institution, would cover the liability, and leave a balance to be carried forward to another year. Unfortunately, the burden of providing the necessary funds for this and our other Charities is not as evenly distributed among the Lodges as we should like to see it. Some contribute regularly and some frequently, but others do so only on very rare occasions. Were this unequal distribution of support the result of a correspondingly unequal distribution of ability, we should studiously avoid making any comment. Charity is enjoined on all Masons at the very outset of their career, but they are at the same time bidden to be just to themselves and their families before being generous towards those who may need assistance. Still, when we have made allowance for those who cannot spare of their means, we fear there will be found a strong array of brethren who are not as strongly imbued as they should be with the Masonic virtue of Charity. Indeed, the published lists of successive Festivals place this statement beyond question, and a mere glance at them will show that the same Lodges, the same Provinces, and, so far as they are made known, almost the same brethren, go on figuring Festival after Festival, while other Lodges and Provinces are as invariably absent. We are aware, in saying this, we are only repeating an old complaint, on which for years past brethren of distinction have insisted. But the frequent iteration of the complaint, though it has not been without its effect in diminishing the evil complained of, has by no means removed it altogether, so that, with the increased and increasing expenditure of our three Institutions, those who recognise and act up to their obligations find that the task of providing the necessary means is one of unusually increasing difficulty. We have said before, and we see no reason why we should not repeat it on the present occasion, that all difficulty in raising the necessary provision for our Charities would disappear if only every subscribing member of a Lodge would set aside annually the modest sum of five shillings as his contribution towards the maintenance of each.

Other opportunities will no doubt present themselves between now and the day of the Festival, for impressing on brethren the claims on their support of the Benevolent Institution; but we must not close these remarks without referring to the special circumstances of the present year. We have stated the sum annually required for distribution among the annuitants and expenses as being fully £15,600, and though there are 325 old brethren and widows to whom annuities are given, there are no less than 131 applicants for admission—eighty widows and fifty-one brethren—while there is yet time for this number to be increased. These old men and women once lived in comfortable circumstances, but through misfortune they have been reduced to a state of comparative, or absolute poverty, while many of them have other burdens to bear; in other words, many of these unfortunate old people have the difficulty of supporting themselves intensified by the necessity they are under of supporting helpless or invalid members of their families. Yet, as we have pointed out, there are only thirteen vacancies to be filled up in May, and, therefore, 118 deserving people, and it may be more, will have to be left to endure their present state of poverty for at least a further period of twelve months. This is a terrible tale of distress, which it is out of the question to expect can be alleviated entirely, but it must be borne in mind that the extent of the relief which it may be possible to afford rests almost entirely with the Craft. A handsome subscription at the approaching Festival may enable the Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution to increase, temporarily at all events, the number of the annuitants. We may be sure that Brother Terry and his staff will leave no stone unturned in order to bring about so desirable a result. He has achieved most brilliant successes in the past, and we trust he will be fortunate enough to secure one that shall mark the Festival of 1883 as among the highest of his achievements.

REGULARITY IN LODGE ATTENDANCE.

As a Mason is known by the regularity of his initiation, frequent trials and approbation, &c., so also is a good and true Mason known by the regularity of his attendance at the meetings of his Lodge, the assiduity with which he applies himself to his Masonic duties, and the advancement to which he aspires in pursuit of the studies of the Art. We have often heard it remarked that many a man has been known to ride his Masonic "hobby to death," and unquestionably there is a certain degree of force in the simile, when we watch the progress of some brethren who, like the hare in the fable, disdaining the tortoise-like plodding of more sensible men, scamper over the chequered floor, carried on the wings of a fleeting popularity towards their only goal—distinction. They covet every jewel that glistens on another brother's breast, and there is not a degree but they must possess its secrets. But in a majority of cases these men are of a transient disposition, and the overcharged enthusiasm which impels them forward, with sometimes ill-judged impetuosity, speedily evaporates, and often leaves its pursuer broken-winded or apathetic. There is a vast difference between these spasmodic spirits, whose ambition is fickle and unabiding, and those who plod on with steady earnestness of purpose, with the single eye of not only aggrandising their own position, and feasting on a brief span of popularity; but of affording substantial assistance in the hard dry work of their Lodge, and enriching others by the results of their own sound and persevering industry. These are the men who are the comfort and mainstay of the Worshipful Master, who have the vital interests and prosperity of our Lodges at heart, and who have the abiding satisfaction of knowing that they are held in the confidence and esteem of sensible men. They, too, are the brethren who exemplify the more useful virtues of human excellence, punctuality and regularity, which is so essential in every sphere of life, and which tell far more in the long run than the most brilliant flashes of intermittent enthusiasm. A brother can scarcely be termed a useful member in his Lodge who bestirs himself by fits and starts, and puts in a fussy show now and then of activity. We are aware that many men think it quite sufficient to put in an occasional appearance at their Lodges, and to "drop in" casually at a Lodge of Instruction. They know sufficient of the work to enable them to follow the outline of their duties in Lodge, and show themselves times just enough during the year to prevent them from being forgotten by the rest of the members. But this is not what we call praiseworthy, or any approach to the fulfilment of those duties which a Mason takes upon himself at his initiation. Far be it from any one to check the impulses of that ambition which fires the mind naturally when it is first illuminated with Masonic light. In the very nature of our Institution, the beautiful symbolism which then dawns upon the new-found sight of him who gains the "predominant wish" of his heart, "stirs the young blood," and impels him to stretch forth his mental hands to grasp a further instalment of those grand and glorious principles of which he has received as yet but a little foretaste. It would be strange indeed if the young Mason could be found who would rest satisfied with this first insight into our mysteries, and think he had completed his Masonic education when he had responded to the toast of his health as the Initiate at his first banquet with the brethren. From this starting-point all Masons have set out on their explorations of the system, and it would be absurd to expect them to run all at the same pace. We might as well imagine the droll picture of a dozen horses starting for the Derby, and moving in a machine-like line to the winning post, all abreast. The race is not always to the swift, however, and it is the experience of most of us in every phase of life that steady and consistent perseverance is to be preferred—and is preferred—to the gushing and irregular speed manifested by the unstable and impulsive. It is, therefore, the greatest comfort and satisfaction to a Master, when he finds that on assuming his gavel he can count upon a certain number of the brethren who are always at their posts, to assist him in carrying out the work, upon whose fidelity and constancy he can reckon, and about whom he has no occasion for an anxious thought. We have seen the blush of vexation and disappointment mantling to the brow of many a Worshipful Master who, when he comes to the opening of his Lodge, is compelled, through the absence of his Wardens or other Officers, to select from the rank and file some other brother upon whom collars have not yet been bestowed. He is vexed and irritable, because he has invited a Visitor or two to come and see the working of his Lodge, and all at once he finds the machinery out of gear. Perhaps the brethren he has called to fill pro tem the chairs whose rightful owners are delinquent fail to answer his expectations, and the audible voice of the prompter does not improve matters in the least. This, indeed, is but a natural sequence in a Lodge where regularity of attendance is not one of the cardinal virtues, for we never knew a Lodge yet where perfection of working, and competency amongst the rank and file were very conspicuous when the attendance was kaleiodoscopic and ever-changing. Far different is the view presented in many of the Lodges which it is our privilege and pleasure to visit, both in London and in the provinces. We have seen Masters who can stand robust and erect, and look around them with complacent satisfaction as they bestow compliments, which they feel inwardly are no mere platitudes, upon their Officers. There is a sterling ring in the utterances of such men, and it betokens the evident fact that regularity of attendance is a point most rigidly observed by members of the Lodge. There is no "screw loose" anywhere, and matters flow on as peacefully and as right as the proverbial fiddle. In the other case to which we have alluded, there is a jarring and an uncomfortable feeling of uneasiness, just as we find in a home where there is a smoky chimney and a scolding wife. It is pleasant to reflect that the latter aspect is but seldom seen, though on some occasions we have been literally pained at the slip-shod way in which the work of Lodges has been scamped over, and the beautiful ritual laboriously mutilated. We love to see, in a gathering of the brethren, a pervading sense of inward consciousness that duty is systematically and well regarded. Then we discern the perfection of the circle of brotherly unity, peace and concord, such as should be ever manifested in a Masonic gathering. As a matter of necessity, the work must be well performed, for the invariable regularity of attendance speaks volumes in support of the inference that such and every brother has his heart in it, and unswerving interest in and fidelity to the interests of his Lodge. Better have a dozen such,—of men who are constant and true in the discharge of their responsibilities,—than a big show in point of numbers, but with a very small cultivation of esprit de corps. The point which we would wish especially to drive home to the thoughts of our readers is, that regularity is one of the first principles which should guide all Masons, and especially younger brethren, in their Masonic career. They have entered upon a path of duty which demands certain calls upon their time and thoughtful consideration, and they are morally bound to fulfil their obligations honourably and with assiduity. There must be no disaffection, and no apathetic neglect or glossing over of their responsibilities. In a word, there should be no drones in the Masonic hive, where there is so much excellent work to be performed. The strength, vitality and thoroughly healthy condition of our Lodges depends entirely upon the sturdy recognition of duty on the part of individual members, and should be insisted upon in the minds of every right-thinking man. It would be half the battle if this was always kept in view, as then we should have heard the last of bickerings and heartburnings, and anxious fears on the part of Masters, of arrears in subscriptions, or disappointment in every shape and form. A lethargic and irregular Mason is a stumbling-block in the way of others, and should either mind his ways or keep out of the path altogether. His example is bad, and his influence is apt to deteriorate others. But a stedfast and industrious man is ever to be welcomed and respected, and many there are whose career we have watched with interest and gratification as they have attained to merited eminence, beloved and appreciated by all their fellows. Without making invidious allusions, can we not point to one instance, recorded in our columns to-day, of a ripe old Past Master who, for the long period of thirty-three years, during which he has been connected with his Lodge, had been absent from the regular meetings only three or four times? That is a testimony as to sincerity and earnestness of purpose but very rarely equalled, though we doubt not there may be some others who could bear similar evidence of their love for the "most beautiful system that ever emanated from mankind." These virtues are certain to find admirers, if not imitators, in every Lodge; and it is refreshing to obtain such a slice of honest pride as that which fell—in no boastful spirit—from Bro. Past Master Wilcox, at the Neptune Lodge last week. The spirit which animated him has been well infused into the other members of that Lodge, which ranks as one of the most solid and healthy in the metropolis. Reverting to the general principle, we would that brethren should estimate the all-important responsibility resting upon them of being regular and punctual in their attendance at the meetings of their Lodges. When this is thoroughly observed, there follow settled satisfaction, harmony, and excellence of work, whereas, if it is disregarded, there is nothing but listlessness, indifferent working, and often galling disappointment. Let every man make up his mind upon these points, and strain every possible nerve to support his Master by being ever present when there is work to do, and then, depend upon it, harmony will prevail, and the success and prosperity of our Lodges will be abundantly secured.

Yesterday (Friday) was fixed for the installation of Lord Brook, M.P., as Provincial Grand Master of Essex, by H.R.H. the Duke of Albany Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire and Past Grand Junior Warden of England. It seems but the other day — indeed, it is but little more than two years and a half since the late lamented Lord Tenterden was installed as chief of the Craft in Essex, and in the ordinary course we might have anticipated for his Lordship a prolonged occupancy of his high position. But the G.A.O.T.U. has willed it otherwise, and our deceased brother passed away in the very prime of life, and at a time when the interest he took in the Province was calculated to be productive of the most beneficial results. We trust the new Provincial Grand Master, who is both young and enthusiastic, may enjoy a long career of usefulness in his capacity of chief. He has the best wishes of the Craft generally, and will, doubtless, rule his Province with firmness and courtesy, to its advantage and to his own credit.

The Sportsman's Exhibition, which opened yesterday (Friday), at the Agricultural Hall, and will remain open during the whole of next week, is well worthy of a visit. It enjoys the patronage of Bro. His Highness the Maharajah Dhuleep Singh, the Dukes of Beaufort, Rutland, Montrose, Hamilton, Portland, Sutherland, and Westminster; Bro. the Duke of Athole, and Bro. the Duke of Manchester, as well as of many other noblemen and gentlemen who take an interest in our sports and pastimes. The exhibits embrace all the requisites in the hunting field, for shooting, fishing, coursing, racing, yachting, bicycling, cricket, athletics, lawn tennis, &c. &c. and cannot fail, therefore, to interest the British public at large. We shall take an opportunity of giving further details next week.

Life and Old Age Assurance. By ARTHUR J. COOK. London: Finsbury-square-buildings, E.C.

THIS is the title of a lecture, printed in pamphlet form by the Secretary of the Victoria Mutual Assurance Society (Limited), and it contains many broad and comprehensive views on the subject of assurance, together with some new aspects of the subject. He starts with the uncertainty of life, and how it is overlooked by many of the provident professional, trading, and working classes; and laments the frequency of wives and families being left unprovided for, in consequence of the disregard of those principles of prudence and forethought which every man is morally bound to practise. He then explains the principles upon which life and old age assurance is founded, and sets forth, by means of simple and lucid tables, the rates of premium, and the advantages to be secured. There is considerable practical force in his argument comparing assurance with investment in clubs and friendly societies. In joining the latter, which give a certain sum on the death of a member, working men, he admits, to a certain extent do avail themselves of the principles of life assurance; but he asks any reasonable man what is the sum of £10 or £12 ordinarily given by clubs to leave a wife and family? It can do little more than meet the expenses of a decent burial. On the other side of the question he puts it—how different would be the position and prospects of a family, were a life policy left for £50, or better still, for £100? The author, however, seems to ignore the fact that in the friendly societies there are additional advantages enjoyed by what are called financial members. For instance, if the breadwinner is laid aside by illness, he is allowed a weekly sum from the funds of his lodge or court, besides which he has the attendance gratuitously of a medical men, whose interest it is to provide him with the most efficient treatment. Then again there is the ugly aspect of the assurance question, in which an insurer "lapses," if unable to keep up his regular payments, and the savings of months and perhaps years are forfeited. This is not the case in a savings bank or building society. However, the general arguments in favour of assurance are practical and founded on common sense; and a man is entitled to little credit for his providence or forethought if he does not secure a £50 policy, which he can do in this society for a penny a day, if under thirty-five years of age. There is a still more commendable feature in this little work, in which the author stirs up a spirit of independence and self-reliance in the minds of his readers, in respect to their avoiding the chances of falling back upon the cold hand of public bounty, either in old age, sickness, or at death. He points out that many philanthropists and others who interest themselves in the welfare and progress of the masses are of opinion that nothing tends more to earn the working-classes a bad name, and to retard their social advancement, than the circumstance that they, in their old age, or, in case of their premature decease, their wives and families too frequently become burdens upon the ratepayers, who groan and grumble under the ever-increasing poor rates. Instances are far from rare where the ratepayers have to bury the deceased workman, and provide for the maintenance of his family. In other and more frequent cases, a wife is left with little more than enables her to decently inter her husband, but actuated by those feelings of independence, and that love for her offspring which characterise most mothers, she strives to keep herself and children above the receipt of public or private charity. The change, however, proves too sudden, the task too great; her plans are unsuccessful, and she and her children ultimately become paupers. He urges abstinence from tobacco and alcoholic drinks, and describes in an interesting way the benefits to be secured by following out the plan laid down to us by the society of which he is a responsible officer, and his practical observations are worthy perusal by all thoughtful minds who have the forethought and sagacity to provide for the "rainy day," whenever it may come.

The Original and only true.

HUNDREDS of Medical Practitioners testify to its marvellous efficacy in immediately relieving and rapidly curing Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Spasms, Colic, Whooping Cough, and all Nerve Pains. It acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery. It rapidly relieves pain, from whatever cause, soothes and strengthens the system under exhausting diseases, and gives quiet and refreshing sleep.

Lord Chancellor Selborne, Lord Justice James, Lord Justice Mellish decided in favour of FREEMAN'S ORIGINAL CHLORODYNE, and against Brown and Davenport, compelling them to pay all costs in the suits. See Times of July 24th, 1873. Bottles 1s 1½d, 2s 9d, 4s 6d, 11s, and 20s. Sold by all Chemists.

TESTIMONIALS.—Head Quarter Staff, Cabul, May 31st, 1880. Mr. R. Freeman, Dear Sir,—It is with much pleasure I am able to state that your Chlorodyne has been of special service to me in alleviating the wearisome spasms of Asthma, which is here existent in an aggravated form. Many of my patients now come and beg me to give them that medicine which always relieves them, and which I need hardly say is your Chlorodyne. Yours faithfully, CHARLES W. OWEN, L.R.C.P. Lon., M.R.C.S. Eng., the Divisional Head Quarter Staff and Civil Surgeon, Cabul.

The Times, August 13th, 1877. From our own Correspondent with the Russian Army. Okoum, July 25th, 1877. The want of sanitary arrangements in the Russian Camp was dreadful, and had we remained there a few weeks longer, dysentery and typhoid fever would have played more havoc in our ranks than the bombs of the Turks. I myself acquired an unenviable reputation as a doctor, owing to my being provided with a small bottle of CHLORODYNE, with which I effected miraculous cures.

THE LATE BRO. DE SAINT JEAN.

BRO. De Saint Jean, President of the Council of the Grand Orient of France, as well as of the College of Rites, died after a brief illness on the last day of the old year, at the ripe age of seventy-three, and was buried, on the 3rd ult., at the cemetery of Père-la-Chaise, Paris, a large concourse of brethren from the Lodges in Paris being present to pay their last tribute of respect to one who had been so long and so honourably associated with French Freemasonry. Le Monde Maçonnique contains a brief sketch of Bro. De Saint-Jean's career, and from it we gather that he was initiated in the Lodge Saint-Pierre des Vrais Amis as far back as the year 1834, and had consequently been a member of the Brotherhood for close on half a century. No long time passed before he was chosen to fill the office of Venerable (W. Master) of his Lodge, and thenceforward he took an active part in the proceedings of the Grand Orient. In 1843 he was selected as a member of the permanent Commission appointed to watch over the interests of the Order, among his associate members being Bros. Charassin, Roblot, Bouchet, Bessin, Faultrier, Morand, &c. On the 12th April 1844 he submitted a very valuable report on the necessity of exercising greater precaution in the initiation of candidates, and the same year he was nominated a member of the Commission charged with the revision of the Statutes General, their labours resulting in the Constitution of 1849. In 1845 he was chosen Orator of the Chamber of the Supreme Council of Rites. In 1857 he entered the Council of the Grand Master, which subsequently was transmuted into the Council of the Grand Orient, and it was in the discharge of the functions attached to this latter office that he made himself known to the brethren by his devotion to their interests, his zeal and energy, his benevolence, and his disinterestedness, all which qualities secured to him the general respect of the Fraternity. In 1872, on the abolition of the Grand Mastership, and the transfer of a part of its prerogatives and duties to the Council of the G. Orient, Brother de Saint Jean was elected President of the Council, and since then his re-election to that high office has been, as it were, almost a matter of course. From 1872 to 1878 he was in like manner chosen President of the General Assembly of the Grand Orient. His personal qualities made him beloved even by those who did not share his opinions. He laboured energetically, but with invariable courtesy, in order to ensure the adoption of the views which he deemed right, and calculated to prove serviceable to the Craft, but, at the same time, he accepted without reservation the decisions of the majority, and in that respect showed himself to be as estimable as a citizen as he was in his capacity of Freemason. It was characteristic of him that he rarely, if ever, showed any inclination towards extreme views. On the contrary, he exhibited a moderation of opinion which eminently fitted him for the high and important functions which he so worthily and so conscientiously discharged during the last ten years of his life. But irrespective of his particular duties, he took a considerable interest in organising the ambulance provided by the Grand Orient in 1870, while to him especially belongs the honour of having instituted the several courses of gratuitous education, to which so many French youths are indebted for the completion of their elementary training. At the interment several addresses were delivered, to wit, by Brother Cousin on behalf of the Council of the Order; Brother Viénot in the name of the brethren of the Province; by the Venerable of the Lodge Les Vrais Amis; by Brother de Serres, former President of the Masonic Orphanage; and by Mdme. Braisbant on behalf of the present and past pupils of the Classes of the Grand Orient.

We learn that Bro. Grimaux, till recently editor-in-chief of Le Monde Maçonnique, has been appointed to the Secretariat of the Grand Orient, and that his place in the literary direction of our contemporary has been filled by Bro. Rocher.

According to the official bulletin, there are fifty-three Lodges under the jurisdiction of the Supreme Council and Grand Orient of the Argentine Republic, of which seventeen are located in Buenos Ayres.

We are glad to see that our brethren in Jamaica are bestirring themselves with a view to raising funds towards the relief of the terrible distress entailed by the fire which broke out in Kingston on an early date last December, and, in the short space of twelve hours destroyed about one-third of the city, thereby rendering thousands of worthy people homeless, to say nothing of the many fatal casualties which likewise occurred through the conflagration. According to the latest returns we have seen, over 7,000 out of a population of 30,000 have lost their all, the value of the property destroyed being estimated at £650,000, of which only £150,000 is covered by insurance, the net loss thus amounting to half a million sterling. We consider the case of these unfortunate people is one that calls for a prompt and liberal contribution from the funds of our Grand Lodge. If precedent is asked for, it is only necessary for us to enumerate some of the many instances recorded in the Grand Lodge Calendar. Thus, in 1825 £100 was voted towards the "Relief of Sufferers by Inundation in Hanover." £100 was voted in 1867 towards the "Turks' Island Relief Fund," and a like sum in 1871 towards the "Refugees' Benevolent Fund." In 1870 the "National Society for Aid of Sick and Wounded in War" received £500, and in 1872 the "Chicago Relief Fund"—a great part of that city having been destroyed by fire—benefited to a like extent. In 1874 the sum of £500 was voted to the "Bengal Famine Relief Fund," and in 1877 £210 towards "Relief of Sufferers by the Fire at St. John, N. Brunswick," and £105 "in alleviation of distress caused by the 'Cataclasm' on the Coast of Peru." Some of the calamities, to relieve the sufferings caused by which these sums were granted, occurred in foreign States, and others in British Colonies and Dependencies, and Jamaica, which comes under the latter category, should not, and we believe will not, be passed over without some help being extended to her by the Craft in England. Nevertheless, the old proverb should not be forgotten—"Bis dat qui cito dat."

His Royal Highness Prince Leopold Duke of Albany has consented to preside at the Anniversary Festival of the Printers' Pension Corporation, to be held on Tuesday, the 19th June next.

The interesting old church of Brackley, in Northamptonshire, of which the Earl of Ellesmere is patron, has been enriched by a painted window, from the studio of Mr. Taylor, of Berners Street. The subject of the window, which is the gift of Mrs. Bayley, of Brackley, is "The Resurrection."

Bro. James Stevens P.M. P.Z. has accepted an invitation from the Rosslyn Lodge, No. 1543, to deliver his lecture, explanatory of the Ritual and Ceremonies of the First Degree, at the ensuing Lodge Meeting at Dunmow, Essex, on the 20th inst. The attendance of members of Nos. 276, 409, 1280, 1312, and other Lodges in the surrounding district is anticipated.

Bro. Richard Poore has been elected Secretary to the United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, No. 507, which holds its meetings every Friday evening, at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, S.E., under the Preceptorship of Bro. James Stevens P.M. P.Z.

The Lord Mayor has issued a circular to the Provincial Mayors, inviting their assistance in promoting the fund which is being raised at the Mansion House in aid of the sufferers by the conflagration in December last at Kingston, Jamaica.

Subscriptions to the extent of £1200 were announced at the anniversary dinner, held on Saturday last, in aid of the funds of the French Hospital and Dispensary. The Count d'Aunay, Chancellor of the French Embassy, presided, in the absence, through illness, of the French Ambassador.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Nervousness and want of Energy.—When first the nerves feel unstrung, and listlessness supplants energy, the time has come to take some such alterative as Holloway's Pills to restrain a slight disorder from developing into a serious disease. These excellent Pills correct all irregularities and weaknesses. They act so kindly, yet so energetically, on the functions of digestion and assimilation, that the whole body is revived, the blood rendered richer and purer, while the muscles become firmer and stronger, and the nervous and absorbent systems are invigorated. These Pills are suitable for all classes and all ages. They have a most marvellous effect on persons who are out of condition; they soon rectify whatever is in fault, restore strength to the body and confidence to the mind.

THE INSTALLATION OF SUCCESSORS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Whilst agreeing with many of your ideas anent this subject, in your leading article of last week, I am disposed to think there is a very growing opinion in our Lodges that a Master cannot be said to have completed his course of studies, or to have acquitted himself with perfect success, unless he is competent when retiring from the chair to instal his successor into office. It is, as you say, sometimes the case that a man is so pressed with business as to be unable comfortably to spare the time required in mastering the ritual. But may it not be asked, if he cannot do this, why did he aspire to the rank of W.M. at all? And if it was his fervent zeal or aspiration to be ranked among the Past Masters that prompted him to ascend the official ladder, is he to suddenly lapse into indifference the moment he is decorated with his jewel, "in recognition of his able services to the Lodge," &c.? Surely, if a brother has been able to spare the time, and has the ability, to acquire the knowledge and practice to conduct the affairs of his Lodge he might, during his tenure of office, manage, without any striking effort, to possess himself of the confidence and capacity of rendering the Installation ceremony as he retires from his exalted position. It takes no more time to do that, and not nearly so much, as to rule a Lodge for twelve months; and it strikes me it is rather a lame excuse to plead want of time and interference with business, when he has passed the chair, obtained his jewel as reward, and can expect nothing more unless some Provincial honour might suddenly crop up. The fact is, in many cases brethren are "rushed" through the minor offices, and pitchforked into the chair, regardless of their competency or administrative qualifications; they struggle through their duties with a painfully frequent recourse to the promptings of the Past Masters, and heave a genuine sigh of relief when their time is up and they are enabled to slide quietly away into the "serried ranks" of the veterans! Such men have no right to W.M.'s collars, and the feelings of friendship or personal interest which hoist them into office are impolitic and un-Masonic. I am pleased to see the sterling desire evinced by most young Masons to secure a thorough grounding in their duties, before rising to posts of elevation; and it is refreshing to hear, as we very often do, a Worshipful Master say that amongst the rank and file of his Lodge there are many brethren fully competent to take the duties of any office, up to the chair, should they be called upon to do so on an emergency. This proves not only that discipline and sound tuition is imparted in the Lodges, but testifies, perhaps, more to the value of Lodges of Instruction, which cannot be too heartily encouraged. A retiring Worshipful Master is to be pitied if at the end of his tenure of office he is incompetent to instal his successor, and equally so if, from sheer apathy and laziness, he calls in the aid of a Past Master—much as the latter may "like the job"—to do for him. But I would rather be in such a position than that of the egotistical P.M. who, whilst rejoicing at every opportunity of making a parade of his own fancied superexcellence, turns round upon the well-known brother who has asked him to perform the ceremony—whether of necessity or out of compliment—and treats him with a dereliction of duty or may-be something worse. I know of more than one such inflated and bejewelled Uriah Heap, who from their self-complacent pinnacles, cannot look low enough to see how their sagacious "inferiors" are laughing in their sleeves at the vanity of which the possessors are apparently oblivious.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

SQUIB.

THE "UPPISH" BOY WHO WAS NOT TREATED WITH PROPER RESPECT!

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Having recently paid a visit to the Boys' School at Wood Green, I am perhaps the better able to appreciate your able and interesting article in which you deal very properly with a captious critic. He has got it, and smartly deserved it. On the occasion of my visit I found Head-masters and Officers as courteous and attentive as any reasonable being can expect mortals to be who have plenty of work on their hands and do not care to be interrupted unnecessarily by visitors of priggish ostentation, who, because they subscribe to the funds of an Institution (sic), fancy they are in some way monarchs of all they survey when they choose to pay a visit of inspection to their school. It would be a dull world, however, without a little fun, or even a little waspish spite, for that matter, to vary the monotonous routine. But what on earth could have induced the anonymous correspondent to hatch up such a fable as that which has set so many Masons by the ears, can only be found in his very fertile imagination. Those who know the School, and are acquainted with the splendid education there given, who are familiar with the sight of the chubby-faced, happy and contented lads, have seen them at their studies and their romps, and know how happy they are, will only smile at the vapid drivellings of such bilious creatures as "S. X." They have had a good laugh over it, and the "goak" has done them a vast amount of good. Those who are not so well informed as to the interior economy of our School for Boys, may have felt a twinge of surprise and pain on first seeing so pointed an accusation against the executive and the entire system pursued there. But the very audacity of the charge stamped it as hyperbolic and untrue, and the disclaimers and refutations which have since appeared must have set all doubts at rest, wherever they existed. They, too, can now join in the smile which must curl on the contemptuous lip of all who refer to the snivelling "critic" who, under an initial, sought to disparage one of our best conducted Institutions in the eyes of the Craft, or those of the brethren who, living at a distance, are unable to visit the School more frequently; but the reaction will establish more firmly than ever their respect for, and appreciation of, the School from which emanate so many cultivated young gentlemen, fortified by a splendid education for the battle of life. The "critic" has posed as a mountebank in print, and the laughter levelled at him is not of the sort to be coveted. He has scowled upon the Boys' School, but, like the "terrible curse" of the raven in the "Jackdaw of Rheims," nobody feels "a penny the worse."

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

AN AMUSED READER.

OLD GRAVESTONES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Last week, being in Rochdale, I was looking over the old gravestones in the churchyard, many of which bear dates from 1600 to 1700, but one I found, close to the church wall, between the buttresses, struck me as being curious:—

"Here lyeth Benj. Brearly Free Mason, who died Feby. 1787."

All the above letters are preserved, though the stone was broken down one side next the wall of the church. It is a very old church. In the year 1100 it was under the jurisdiction of the Abbots of Whalley. A chapel of Ease, under Rochdale, was founded in our parish by the above abbots in 1189 or thereabouts.

Can you account for the name Free Mason so far back?

I remain, yours fraternally,

JAMES LAWTON P.M.

Secretary Candour Lodge 337.

The Covent Garden Lodge of Instruction has been removed to the Bedford Head Hotel, Maiden-lane. The members meet every Thursday evening, at eight o'clock, under the Preceptorship of Bro. Richardson, P.M. of the Ebury Lodge.

A meeting of the North London Chapter of Improvement was held on the 25th ult., at the Canonbury Tavern, St. Mary's-road. Companions Isaac occupied the chair of Z., Hunter H., Pearcy J., Gregory S.N., Sheffield P.S., Edmonds Preceptor. The ceremony was rehearsed in a very creditable manner. The members invite Royal Arch Masons to visit them.

A Lecture will be given in the Speech Room of Willesden High School, N.W., on Wednesday evening, 21st February, by Bro. Charles E. Botley, Assoc. Mem. Inst. C.E., on "Gas, its manufacture, utility, and proper method of using, for Lighting, Heating, and Ventilating, with some remarks on Electricity as an Illuminating Agent." Bro. Botley will illustrate his Lecture with Experiments, and from our knowledge of his practical ability, we anticipate his audience will be both interested and instructed. The chair will be taken at eight p.m. by T. D. Thomson, Esq., F.S.S.

The brethren of the Eccleston, No. 1624, announce that the Annual Ball in connection with their Lodge, will take place on Friday, 2nd March, at the Grosvenor Hall, Buckingham Palace-road. On this occasion Craft clothing may be worn, and Tickets can be had of the following Stewards:—Bros. Edward Powell W.M., Audit Office, Somerset House; A. W. Beckham Secretary, 182 Ebury-street, S.W.; W. Chilcott, 119 Alderney-street, S.W.; J. Galt Fisher Past Master, 57 Spring-gardens, S.W.; J. C. Flattely P.M., 3 Cambridge-terrace, S.W.; S. Jones P.M., 2 Colchester-street, S.W.; W. E. Moorman A.M.C., 200 Buckingham Palace-road, S.W.; J. Purnell, 90 Buckingham Palace-road, S.W.; C. Tayler S.W., 3 Cambridge-terrace, S.W.; W. Vincent P.M., 120 Ebury-street, S.W.; A. A. Johnson M.C., Hon. Secretary, 11 Cambridge-terrace, S.W. We tender our best wishes for a pleasant gathering.

Brother James Francis, one of the Managers of the talented Mohawk Minstrels, announces his eleventh annual benefit, which will take place at the Agricultural Hall, on Thursday, 22nd inst. On this occasion the doors will be opened at 6·30; and the performance commence at 7·30. We anticipate a large gathering of the friends of our worthy and popular brother.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

CITY OF LONDON LODGE, No. 901.

THE Annual Ball took place on Wednesday evening, at the Freemasons' Tavern, and was attended by about two hundred brethren and friends. Dancing commenced soon after nine, to the excellent band of Bro. Henry Tinney, I.G. of the Asaph Lodge. About twelve the company adjourned to the Crown Room for supper, which was most liberally placed on the tables, under the superintendence of Bro. Dawkins, and presided over by Bro. John Hughes, W.M. of the Lodge. After the toast of the Queen and the Craft, Bro. Fowles, of the Ebury Lodge, in a few complimentary remarks, gave the toast of the City of London Lodge, coupled with the name of the W.M. The Visitors' toast followed, and in some well-chosen words was replied to by a visiting brother. Bro. Russ P.M. gave the Stewards, coupling it with the name of Bro. R. P. Stevens, Hon. Secretary of the Ball. Bro. Whur then proposed the health of the much esteemed I.P.M., Bro. G. A. Candy, and after the toast of the Ladies, which was replied to by Bro. Hurdell, W.M. of the Ebury Lodge, dancing was resumed, and kept up with much spirit till half-past four, when the company separated, after spending a most agreeable evening. Bro. Jarvis was M.C.

CHINE LODGE, No. 1884.

THE Installation meeting of this Lodge was held at the New Institute, Shanklin, Isle of Wight, on Thursday the 25th ult., when Bro. Newman P.M. P.P.G.W. was installed for the second year in succession Worshipful Master of the Lodge. There was a large attendance of the brethren, including Bros. Rev. Palmer P.M. 698 P.P.G.S.W., Salter P.M. 551, Petherick I.P.M. 551, Darwin 'Secretary 551, Look W.M. 151, Groves P.M. 175, Linfield P.M. 551, Houston P.M. 551, Saunders W.M. 551, Trueman P.M. 551, Durrant S.D. 175, Gabell I.G. 175, Williams 1884, &c. The installation ceremony was performed in a most impressive manner by Brother the Rev. J. N. Palmer P.P.G.S.W., and the W.M. afterwards appointed the following as his Officers for the year:—Bros. Dr. Dabbs I.P.M., Quickfall S.W., Cooper J.W., Bailey Treasurer, Judd Secretary, Greenham S.D., Cantelo J.D., Moorman M.C., Rayner I.G., Humby Organist, Buckell and Middleton Stewards, Mew Tyler. It had been arranged to present a P.M.'s jewel to Bro. Dr. Dabbs in recognition of that gentleman's services to the Lodge, but owing to a professional engagement he was not able to attend. The banquet was served in the Masonic Hall by Brother Thomson, of the Madeira Hotel, whose catering gave every satisfaction.

New Concord Lodge of Instruction, No. 813.—A regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Wednesday last, at the Jolly Farmers' Tavern, Southgate-road, Bro. C. Weeden in the chair, supported by Bro. A. J. Dixie S.W., F. C. Dixie J.W., P.M. Cosworth Preceptor, Perl Secretary, Ashton S.D., Western J.D., Marks I.G., Potter, Flack, Clark, Ferrar. Lodge having been opened in due form, and the previous minutes read, the W.M. opened in the second degree, when Bro. Potter offered himself as a candidate to be raised, answered the necessary questions, and was entrusted. The Lodge was then opened in the third degree, and the ceremony of raising rehearsed, Bro. Potter acting as candidate, the traditional history being also ably delivered by the W.M. Lodge was then closed to the first degree. Nothing further being offered for the good of Freemasonry, Lodge was closed in perfect harmony, and adjourned until Wednesday, 7th February. The brethren of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1507, will work the Fifteen Sections on Wednesday evening, 28th February. Lodge on that occasion will be opened at seven p.m. precisely. Brethren are cordially invited to attend.

West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction, No. 1612.—A meeting was held on Tuesday evening, at the Institute, Ealing, at 7·30. Bros. Acworth W.M., Porter S.W., Smith J.W., H. E. Tucker W.M. 1612 Treasurer, Wells Secretary, C. Botley S.D., Cunningham J.D., C. Bellerby I.G., J. Green P.M., W. W. Morgan, Jones, Botley, Clark, Brown, Owen, Dyer, Geflowski, William Seward, Wells. Lodge was opened, and minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The Worshipful Master rehearsed the ceremony of initiation, Bro. Clark candidate. The charge was well given by Bro. Acworth. Lodge was opened in the second and third degrees, and resumed to the first. Some consideration was then given to a proposed change in the night of meeting, which as now arranged was inconvenient for some of the members. However, it was clearly shown that whatever night in the week should be agreed upon, would have some drawbacks, and as the Hall of the Institute, in which the brethren were assembled, was engaged for other purposes, it was decided that the meetings should be continued on the Tuesdays. Those present, however, pledged themselves to carry out the business with a greater regard to punctuality than seems to have been the rule latterly, and consequently we may expect a continuance of the good work that has hitherto been done by this Lodge of Instruction. Tuesday next will be Officers' night, when the members of the mother Lodge will fill the several chairs. After Lodge had been closed, the members of the Charities' Association in connection therewith held a meeting. There were ballots taken for three Life Governorships, of £10 10s each; Bros. Acworth, Essex, and Clark being the successful members. This earnest of what is being done for the Institutions by the brethren of the West Middlesex, cannot but be satisfactory to the Secretaries.

Earl of Lathom Lodge of Instruction, No. 1922.—An interesting meeting was held on Wednesday, the 24th ult., at Bro. Charles Sims's, Station Hotel, Camberwell New-road, when the ceremonies of consecration and installation were most impressively rehearsed by Bro. James Terry Prov. G. S.W. Norths and Hunts, &c., Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The oration and invocation were splendidly delivered, and the ceremony throughout elicited unqualified tokens of appreciation from a large assemblage of brethren, representing nearly all the principal metropolitan Lodges. Bro. Cross presided at the harmonium, and greatly contributed by his able accompaniment to the hymns and anthems. Bro. Antony Runacres (W.M. of the Earl of Lathom Lodge) was installed W.M. of the evening, and appointed his Officers as follow:—Bros. P.M. Witts S.W., Chapman J.W., Taylor Treasurer, Spencer Secretary, George Evans S.D., Charles Evans J.D., and Sims I.G. A cordial vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Bro. Terry for his great kindness in attending, and particularly for the perfect manner in which he had performed the ceremonies; also to Bro. John Mason for his assistance, and to Bro. Cross for his kindness in conducting the musical portion of the ceremony. These votes were ordered to be recorded on the minutes. The several brethren referred to having suitably replied, the Lodge was closed in ancient form. Supper was then served, and after the usual toasts had been duly honoured, some excellent songs were given by Bros. Cannon, Chapman, and others, the proceedings being brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem. Among the brethren present were Bros. P.M.'s Mason, Farwig 180, Gallant, Ball 144, Moore, Markland W.M. 144, Cross, Cobham 141, R. J. Taylor, and many others of standing in the Craft. This Lodge of Instruction will be held every Wednesday evening, at eight precisely, at the above address, and brethren are cordially invited to pay it an occasional visit.

Brixton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1949.—The first Festival of this young and prosperous Lodge of Instruction was held on Tuesday, 23rd ult., at Brother Monk's, the Prince Regent, Dulwich Road, East Brixton, when a goodly number of the brethren sat down to an excellent dinner, served by Brother Monk in ample style, the viands being satisfactory, and the staff of waiters very attentive. The W.M. of the Mother Lodge, Brother Lovegrove P.P.G.S. of Wks. Middlesex, presided, and Bros. Harling P.M. and Stokes as S.W. and J.W. respectively, ably supported him. The following brethren, among others, were present, Bros. Poore P.M., and Francis joint Preceptors of the Lodge, Phillips Treasurer, Williams Secretary, Hooper, R. W. Pooler, Richardson, Poore, W. H. Williams P.M., Maitland, Bye jun., Cotton, Newby, Durham, Knight, Cawley, Letchford, Lee, Jones, and Wickes. On the cloth being removed the W.M. gave the usual Loyal and Craft toasts of the M.W.G.M., Pro Grand Master, Deputy G.M., and Grand Officers past and present. Bro. Poore P.M. in proposing the health of the W.M., stated how pleased he was to find the W.M. of the Mother Lodge in the chair that evening. Brother Lovegrove thanked the brethren for their good wishes, he hoped the Lodge of Instruction would go on as it had begun; it had already done good service to the brethren of the neighbourhood. Brother Poore P.M. in responding to the toast of the Preceptors, said the honours should fall to Brother Francis, who was the real Preceptor of the Lodge. He (Bro. Poore) had promised to assist Brother Francis whenever necessity compelled his absence, and had had great pleasure in doing so on one or two occasions. Brother Francis also thanked the brethren for coupling his name with Brother Poore as one of their Preceptors. He was proud of his connection with the Lodge, so many of the brethren working with him so earnestly and well; he should continue to promote the prosperity of the Lodge by devoting himself to its interests on all occasions. The W.M. in proposing the health of the Treasurer Brother Phillips, and Brother H. M. Williams the Sec., warmly eulogised them for their efforts in founding the Lodge, and carrying on their departments so successfully. The Treasurer and Secretary, in responding, thanked the W.M. for his too flattering remarks; what they had done in the past, was an earnest of what they desired to do in the future. The other toasts were, the Visitors, Officers of the evening, the Musical Brethren, and the host Brother Monk; all being suitably proposed and duly responded to. Several of the brethren displayed their musical talents, viz. Bros. Johnstone, Lee, Poore, Monk, Cotton, Wickes, while Brother Poore recited "the Beadle," by Dickens, inimitably, and Bro. Lee gave "Look at the Clock," in a most telling manner. Brother Williams the Secretary presided at the pianoforte. The meeting closed with "Auld Lang Syne," after a most pleasant evening.

UNITED STRENGTH CHAPTER, No. 228.

A Quarterly Convocation of this Chapter was held on 23rd ultimo, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, under the presidency of Comp. Halford M.E.Z., supported by Comps. Timothy Scribe E., Hunter Scribe N., Fenner P.S., Edis 1st Asst., Griggs P.Z., Goode, Rolleston, Paine, and others, with Comp. Thomas Janitor. Amongst the Visitors were Comps. Pearcy J. 1602 and Pigott P.Z. 1266. There was no business on the agenda, and the Comps. adjourned at an early hour for banquet, when the customary Royal and Arch toasts were duly honoured, and an agreeable evening was passed.

Munificence, "In Memoriam."—A lady has given a donation of five hundred pounds to the Chelsea Hospital for Women, for the purpose of naming after her deceased sister, one of the Memorial Wards in the New Building, which is situated in the Fulham Road. The Princess of Wales laid the Foundation Stone of the New Building for the Hospital two and a half years since, and it will be ready for occupation in the coming spring. The same lady has given fifty pounds for the furnishing of the Ward. There are now but three out of the seventeen Wards remaining to be furnished, by special donations of a similar amount.

FREEMASONRY IN DEVON.

THE annual meeting of the Committee of Petitions of the Prov. Grand Lodge of the Province of Devon was held on Tuesday, at the Huyshe Masonic Temple, Plymouth. Amongst those who attended were R.W. Brother Viscount Ebrington, M.P., P.G.M., (who by courtesy occupied the chair), W. Bros. W. G. Rodgers D.P.G.M. the Chairman, Charles Godtschalk the London representative, Gover the Secretary, Cornish, Brewer, Stocker, Westlake, Rev. Whittley, Curteis, Orchard, Welch, Browning, Casey, Roberts, Swann, Mackay, Lord, Bird, Crabb, Fulford, Loram, Lethbridge, Powell, Harvey, and Hambly. Bros. Brodie and Bradnee were unfortunately prevented from attending. The minutes of the former meeting were confirmed. The Secretary reported that there had been only two elections since the last meeting of the Committee, that the number of votes received had been 291 boys and 202 girls—an increase of 24 boys and 13 girls over the last numbers. There was still a large number of votes diverted, and many lost by being forwarded after the election was over. The representatives would do good service if they would take it as part of their duty, and it really was, to collect and forward the votes as soon as issued from the Institutions. This report was received and adopted. The report of Bro. C. Godtschalk having been circulated, was taken as read. After discussion, this report was received and adopted. Arising out of the discussion was a question as to certain votes, and it was resolved, "That a committee, consisting of the P.G. Master, the D.P.G. Master, the P.G. Secretary, W. Bros. Curteis, Whittley, and J. B. Gover, have power to inquire into the matter, and settle it." Consequent on this question of votes, the case of the boy from Lodge 164 was withdrawn. The widow of a late member of Lodge 223 was elected to receive the support of the Province until her election. The widow of a brother of Lodge 39(Exeter) was granted £5. The widow of a brother of Lodge 202 (Devonport) was granted £5, and these were the only applications for relief. Worshipful Bro. Gover having slightly altered his motion, it was carried, and now is as follows:—"A brother who has been relieved cannot petition again within one year, and a widow who has been relieved cannot petition again within two years." Worshipful Bro. M. G. Rogers was unanimously elected the chairman for the next year, and was warmly thanked for his past services. Worshipful Bro. J. B. Gover was also unanimously elected the Secretary of the Committee, a position he has held since the reconstruction in January 1870. It had been understood for some time that Bro. Godtschalk, who had been the valued representative in London since 1876, would not consent to be re-elected, and Bro. J. E. Curteis was unanimously elected to this responsible and important office. The members then resolved, with a large amount of enthusiasm, "That this Committee desires to express its regret at the resignation by Bro. Charles Godtschalk of his office of representative of the Province of Devon in London, the duties of which he has so well, so long, and so faithfully discharged, and to record their sense of the energy, ability and discretion with which he has managed the affairs of the Province, to tender him their best thanks and warmest good wishes. And that this vote be engrossed on vellum and presented to him." Bro. Godtschalk, in reply, said he was amply repaid for his time, trouble, and expenditure by their good wishes and the knowledge that his services had alleviated distress and lessened sorrow. He appealed to all to help him by subscribing to the great Charities he had so long endeavoured to serve. A very cordial vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the proceedings.

No one is ever the worse for gaining a new wrinkle as to where it is possible to satisfy the requirements of the "inner man" with comfort, and at a moderate outlay. Not many days since we were in the neighbourhood of the Broad-street Station of the North London Line, and its neighbour, the Metropolitan Station of Bishopsgate, when it occurred to us that substantial refreshment was desirable, and we sought and obtained it at the "Union Café, Restaurant Français," 42 Old Broad-street. The "welcome snack" was capitally served, the surroundings being neat, comfortable, and business-like. Some coffee we also partook of was excellent, and as the raw material was ground almost before our eyes, we can speak of its genuineness. We can conscientiously recommend our friends to the "Union," located as aforesaid, where there is ample accommodation for 150 customers at one time, and where parties of three or four can enjoy their refreshment, if they wish, in private compartments, marked off from the General Cafe. Mr. C. Rosenberg, the proprietor, was recently chef at the London Tavern, Fenchurch-street, and is both a courteous and considerate host.

THE STANDARD.

IT is well known that this is one of the best houses in London for Pantomime, and it is not surprising, therefore, that though some weeks have elapsed since Boxing Day, the "Little Red Riding Hood," purveyed for the public by our esteemed Bros. Douglass, should continue to be as great an attraction as it was on the opening night. There are one or two features noticeable about "Standard" Pantomimes. In the first place the acting is good all round. It is not the case of one or two "bright particular stars" and the rest of the company but indifferent performers. There is a high level of excellence, and all engaged come up to it. Then, the scenery is such as few theatres can place before an audience. This always has been remarkable, and is particularly so this year Scene 2, "Region of Perpetual Winter," 7, "Amidst the Forest Shades," and 12 the transformation scene—"Under the Moonbeams on a Midsummer Night," being in all respects worthy even of the well nigh inimitable taste and ability of Bro. Richard Douglas. As regards the opening part of the pantomime, it is in keeping with what we have said, the ballets, and particularly that described as the "Spectacular Ballet of the Gnomes of Folly," in which the artists are literally what the programme describes them, as "a galaxy of Living Constellations," are marvels of taste and graceful arrangement. The Harlequinade is of the good old kind, and is thoroughly enjoyable by the young folk.

SUPREME GRAND CHAPTER OF ROYAL ARCH MASONS.

A QUARTERLY Convocation of the Supreme Grand Chapter will be held at Freemasons' Hall, London, on Wednesday, the 7th of February next, at six o'clock in the evening.

The Minutes of the last Quarterly Convocation to be read for confirmation.

The report of the Committee of General Purposes (as follows) will be submitted to the Supreme Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of England.

The Committee of General Purposes beg to report that they have examined the accounts from the 18th October 1882, to the 16th January 1883, both inclusive, which they find to be as follows:—

	£	s	d		£	s	d
Balance Grand Chapter	507	8	9	Disbursements during the quarter	196	5	3
„ Unappropriated Account	201	19	11	Balance	681	0	7
Subsequent Receipts	400	11	7	„ in Unappropriated Account	232	14	5
	£1,110	0	3		£1,110	0	3

which balances are in the Bank of England, Western Branch.

The Committee have likewise to report that they have received the following Petitions:—

1st. From Companions Reuben Williamson as Z., Thomas Barber as H., Clark Turner Kaye as J., and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the Holme Valley Lodge, No. 652, Holmfirth, to be called "The Chapter of Industry," and to meet at the Victoria Hotel, Holmfirth, Yorkshire.

2nd. From Companions Edward Loftus Roche Thackwell as Z., John Clement Cobbe as H., William Munro Jack as J., and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the Lodge of Goodwill, No. 465, Bellary, to be called "The Goodwill Chapter," and to meet at Bellary, Madras, East Indies.

3rd. From Companions Joseph Woolley Brooke as Z., William Alfred Malony as H., George Frederick Smith jun. as J., and seven others for a Chapter to be attached to the Duke of Cornwall Lodge, No. 1839, London, to be called "The Duke of Cornwall Chapter," and to meet at the Freemasons' Hall, London.

4th. From Companions William Henry Skinner as Z., Charles Moseley Nelson as H., Frederick William Edmund Dawson as J., and eight others for a Chapter to be attached to the Prince of Wales Lodge, No. 1338, Auckland, New Zealand, to be called "The Auckland Chapter," and to meet at the Freemasons' Hall, Princes Street, Auckland, North Island, New Zealand.

5th. From Companions William Lodder as Z., William Pollock Moat as H., William Henry Cooper as J., and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the Remuera Lodge, No. 1710, Remuera, New Zealand, to be called "The Remuera Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, Remuera, Auckland, North Island, New Zealand.

6th. From Companions Nathaniel Goodchild as Z., Henry Slyman as H., George Clark jun. as J., and nine others for a Chapter to be attached to the Camden Lodge, No. 704, London, to be called "The Camden Chapter," and to meet at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet Street, in the City of London.

The foregoing Petitions being in all respects regular, the Committee recommend that the prayers thereof be respectively granted.

(Signed) JOHN CREATON, P.G.Pr. Soj.
Grand Treasurer,
President.

FREEMASONS' HALL, LONDON, W.C.

JOPPA CHAPTER, No. 188.

THE regular Convocation was held on the 29th ult., at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street. Comps. Isaac Z., Littaur P.Z. as H., Henochsberg J., Lazarus P.Z. Treas., Emanuel P.Z. S.E., Dewsnap S.N., Brooke P.S., L. Lazarus P.Z. as 1st Assist., Mann as Z.; P.Z.'s Lazarus, Dickinson, Levy, Gulliford I.P.Z., Littaur, L. Lazarus. Comps. Botibol, Lyon, Mann, Howard, Silver. Visitors—Comps. Eckstein 1196, Bott 507. Chapter was opened and the minutes of former Convocation were read and confirmed. Bro. da Silva I.P.M. 205, who had been previously balloted for, was duly exalted into R.A. Masonry. The working of the M.E.Z. was perfect, and each Officer took example from him, with very satisfactory result. The resignation of a Companion was accepted with regret, and three candidates were proposed for exaltation at the next meeting. Comp. Lazarus P.Z. and Treasurer announced that he was about to leave England for a time, on urgent business, and that he wished to resign the Treasurership for a short period,—he hoped for not longer than three or four months,—when his services would again be at their disposal. The M.E.Z. said the Companions would all regret his absence, but he thought they had an efficient substitute who would do the work in his absence, viz., Comp. Emanuel P.Z. and S.E. Therefore he thought they need not accept Comp. Lazarus's resignation; consequently, he had much pleasure in re-investing him with the collar of Treasurer. Comp. Lazarus having suitably replied, Chapter was closed until the last Monday in March. The Companions then sat down to an excellent banquet, provided by Comp. Jennings, and superintended by Comp. Silver. The M.E.Z. proposed the usual Loyal and R.A. toasts. Comp. Gulliford I.P.Z. in proposing the health of the Z., said he had known Comp. Isaac for many years; all were glad to see him in his exalted position. The M.E.Z., in reply, thanked Comp. Gulliford for the manner he had proposed the toast of his health; it was always his endeavour to advance R.A. Masonry, and this Chapter in particular. In speaking to the toast of the new exaltee, Companion Da Silva, the M.E.Z. remarked he had made his mark in Freemasonry, and was a P.M. of the Lodge of Israel. Doubtless he would prove a good and able R.A. worker. He trusted in a few years to see him occupy the chair in this Chapter. Comp. Da Silva said his thanks were due to the M.E.Z. and the Companions who had so ably assisted to exalt him into R.A. Masonry. The impression made on him was deep, and would be lasting. He hoped to do all in his power for the benefit of the Chapter. The M.E.Z. then proposed the toast of I.P.Z. Gulliford, whom they all respected, and with the toast he would couple the names of the other P.Z.'s. Comps. Gulliford, Littaur, and Lazarus very ably responded to this toast. After the Officers had received and acknowledged the compliment paid them, Comp. Eckstein responded for the Visitors. The M.E.Z. then called on them to drink a special toast—a happy voyage to their worthy Treasurer, Comp. Lazarus P.Z., wishing him God speed and a happy return. After a very able response, the toasts of the S.E., P.S., and the Junior Officers were given, and then the Janitor concluded a very agreeable evening. Companions Dickinson, Davis, and Eckstein contributed to the harmony.

POLISH NATIONAL CHAPTER, No. 534.

THIS Chapter held its regular convocation on the 25th ultimo, at the Freemasons' Hall. Comps. Warner M.E.Z., Hyde Clarke P.Z., Palmer P.Z. as J., Nowakowski Treasurer, Paas P.Z. 28 S.E. pro tem, Johnston S.N., R. Kelsey 1st Assistant, W. E. Kelsey 2nd Assistant, Palmer I.P.Z. Visitors:—Comps. Tongue 1201, Louden 1348, and H. M. Levy P.Z. 188. The Chapter was draped in mourning, owing to the death of the late respected Comp. Sherwill P.Z. S.E. After preliminaries, the ballot was taken for the admission of Bros. Jagielski P.M. 537, Oliver Bryant J.D. 534, and J. L. Hayhoe 1163; these were unanimous in favour of the candidates. The two former being in attendance were duly exalted into Royal Arch Masonry by Companion J. Palmer P.Z. (who presided by permission of the M.E.Z.), in a very perfect and impressive manner. The M.E.Z. rendered valuable assistance as J., while Comp. Jackson ably officiated as P.S. Companions W. Paas P.Z. and Treasurer No. 28, and Dr. Corrie Jackson late Joppa Lodge 183 were unanimously elected joining members. A letter of condolence was unanimously voted, to be sent to the family of the late Companion Sherwill P.Z. S.E., of whom all deeply deplored the loss. Comp. Louden was proposed as a joining member, and Brother R. Morley was proposed as a candidate for exaltation. The Chapter was then closed, and the Companions sat down to an excellent banquet, superintended by Companion E. Dawkins. After the routine toasts had been honoured, Companion J. Palmer P.Z. rose; it was a great pleasure to him to propose the toast of the M.E.Z., whom he congratulated on having so many present; he thought shortly the room they now occupied would not be large enough. He hoped they would give the toast the reception it merited. The M.E.Z. said he could hardly find words to express to Companion Palmer his thanks; he trusted during his year of office he had done the work to the satisfaction of all the Companions. He might add that he was exalted in this Chapter; he had worked in the various offices, and had reached the highest position the Chapter could confer; he hoped to be among them for many years. The Z. in proposing the toast of the H. and J. said, no Royal Arch Chapter could flourish without the combined assistance of its H. and J., they had the honour of having two distinguished Companions to fill those positions. He felt sure they would give a hearty reception to the toast. Companion Hyde Clarke Past Z. Haggai responded. They had many members of the parent Lodge with them, and he hoped to see many more. He might mention incidentally that this was his fiftieth year in Masonry. Companion Palmer P.Z. said he took the office of Joshua in the absence of that Officer. His great aim was to do all he could for the welfare of the Chapter. In responding to the toast of the exaltees, Companion Jagielski rose to thank the Z. for his kind expressions. He had passed though the several grades of Craft Masonry, and now anticipated much gratification on acquiring new knowledge in such a sublime and beautiful degree as that of the Royal Arch. There were several members of the parent Lodge present, and he was pleased to meet them. Comps. Tongue, Louden, and H. M. Levy responded for the toast of the Visitors. The M.E.Z. then proposed the toast of the S.N. Companion Chaplin was one whom they all respected. Companion Dr. Corrie Jackson, who that evening had been unanimously elected a joining member, had ably assisted the Chapter by his perfect working as P.S. Companion Jackson in responding said, he had been introduced into the Joppa Chapter some years since by Companion H. M. Levy; he was pleased to be received as a joining member of the Polish National; any time they required his services they were at command. Companion Chaplin followed, and then the toasts of the Junior Officers and that of the Janitor were given.

NEPTUNE LODGE, No. 22.

THE annual installation meeting of this old and proverbially efficient Lodge was held on the evening of Thursday, the 25th ultimo, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, when there was a very numerous attendance, including many distinguished Provincial and other Officers. Additional interest was infused into the gathering by the presentation of a well-deserved tribute of respect and esteem to Bro. Isaac Wilcox P.M., C.C., the excellent Treasurer of the Lodge, who had rendered such substantial service to it during the long period of over a quarter of a century. The retiring Worshipful Master Bro. Harper, Ph.D., had also fairly earned the compliment that was paid to him at the expiration of his year of office, the duties of which he had well and worthily discharged. Indeed, it was admitted that few men had more deservedly won the honour of a Past Master's jewel than had Bro. Harper. Under his presidency Lodge was opened, in accordance with ancient rites, when the Worshipful Master was supported by Bros. Slater S.W., Povey J.W. and W.M. elect, Wilcox P.M. Treasurer, Storr P.M. Secretary, Coulcher S.D., Cook J.D., Corbett I.G., Collins P.M., M. of C., Neats W.S., Wattrall P.M., Ashwell P.M., Crauford P.M., Harcourt P.M., and a goodly number of other members, with Bro. Parkinson as Tyler. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. Serjt. Robinson P.M. 136, Sir John Bennett P.M. 1, Rees Copestick P.M. 819 P.P.G.S.B. Herts, McDowall P.M. 948 P.G.D.C Berks and Bucks, Edgar Bowyer P.M. 1580 P.P.S.G.W. Herts, Kenning P.M. 1657, Massey P.M. 1928, Francis 34, Coker 196, Morgan 108, Hannay, Carter 453, Hayworth P.M. 15, Bonner 1357, Phillip 73, Bishop 180, Russell 180, Green 861, Wilcox 1658, Bailey 1445, and others. After the confirmation of the minutes of last meeting Lodge was advanced, and Bro. King was raised to the sublime degree by the retiring Worshipful Master, who performed the rite with faultless precision, and to the unqualified satisfaction of the brethren assembled. On resuming, the Worshipful Master elect was presented by Brother Collings P.M., when a Board of Installed Masters was duly constituted, and Brother Povey was installed, with all the impressive ceremonial, into the chair of K.S. by Bro. Britton P.M. who discharged his duties most admirably, and to the satisfaction of all present. On the re-admission of the brethren, he was saluted with the honours in the three degrees, after which he invested his Officers for the year, as follow:—Bros. Harper I.P.M., Slater S.W., Coulcher J.W., Storr Past Master Treasurer, Britton Secretary, Cook S.D., Corbett J.D., Hedderly I.G., Collings M.C., Neats W.S., and Parkinson Tyler. A massive and handsome Past Master's jewel was presented, on behalf of the whole of the members of the Lodge, to Brother Harper, on his retirement from Office, as a mark of esteem, and in recognition of the valuable services he had rendered to the Lodge during the past year. The gift was suitably acknowledged, and afterwards substantial testimony was borne to the high appreciation by the brethren of the efficient and faithful services rendered by Brother Wilcox, as Secretary of the Lodge. Brother Wilcox was cordially congratulated on his zeal and fidelity, in the discharge of his responsible trust, and his unwearied efforts to uphold the prestige of the old Neptune Lodge. In making the presentation, the newly installed W.M. said, it was 26 years ago that evening that Bro. Wilcox assumed the collar of Treasurer of the Neptune Lodge, when it was placed upon his shoulders by Brother Goodwin. Many and varied had been the changes he had seen take place in the Lodge. Very few of the brethren remained who witnessed the interesting ceremony of Brother Wilcox's initiation; they had gone, he hoped, to the bright sphere above. Still he was with them, though after such a lengthened term of service as 26 years he felt the time had arrived when he could no longer continue to hold the office. That being the case, the brethren had unanimously resolved to present him with a testimonial in recognition of his long and faithful service, and he (Brother Povey) asked his acceptance of it, assuring him that every brother of the Lodge joined with him in expressing the hope that his life might long be spared, and that the evening time might be calm and peaceful. Longfellow had said—

"Lives of great men all remind us,
We can make our lives sublime;
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of Time."

Bro. Wilcox, in his departure from his office, had left his footprints on the annals of the Neptune Lodge, and he trusted this would stimulate every succeeding Treasurer to as faithful a discharge of the duties of the office as Bro. Wilcox had displayed in the past. In the name of the brethren of the Neptune Lodge he asked his acceptance of the testimonial, which consisted of a splendid silver salver, richly chased and embossed; in the centre was Bro. Wilcox's crest, surrounded by a girdle and leaves and other ornamentation. The salver was supplied by Bro. Sir John Bennett, who also generously gave the cost of the engraving as his contribution to the testimonial. In addition to the unusually rich embellishment, which was much admired, the salver bore the following inscription:—

Brother ISAAC WILCOX P.M., by the members of
THE NEPTUNE LODGE, No. 22,
In grateful recognition of his valuable services as Treasurer, for Twenty-Six Years.
January 25th 1883.

Accompanying the gift was a beautifully illuminated address on vellum, enclosed in a massive gilt frame and glazed, which was pronounced to be a most recherché specimen of artistic work. The address, which was engrossed in the finest style of the art, and was much admired for the beauty of its design and finish, was executed by Bro. Robert W. Coulcher, of 50 Chancery-lane, and ran as follows:—

NEPTUNE LODGE, No. 23,
Presented to
Brother ISAAC WILCOX P.M.,
upon his retirement from the office of Treasurer, as a token of fraternal regard, and appreciation, by the brethren, of the valuable services he rendered to the Lodge in that capacity during a period extending over a quarter of a century.
Initiated 1850; Master 1855; Treasurer 1857.
(Signed) JOHN HARPER S.W., HENRY POVEY J.W., E. F. STORR P.M. Sec., GEORGE BRITTON I.P.M., R. W. COULCHER S.D., W. COOK J.D., JOSEPH CORBETT I.G.

Bro. Wilcox, who on rising to acknowledge the handsome gift, was cordially received, said their Worshipful Master had been very kind in the observations which he had been pleased to make in regard to himself, and he thanked Bro. Povey and the brethren very much for their too flattering recognition of his very humble services during the twenty-six years he had filled the office of Treasurer. He assured them it was with considerable regret that he felt it his duty to ask them to release him from that responsibility. He was very sorry indeed to relinquish the office, because he had worked in the Lodge for thirty-three years, during the whole of which time he had served as an Officer, from I.G. to W.M., and ultimately as Treasurer. He had throughout all that time been absent from his post only three or four times at the utmost, and that was saying a good deal. He thanked God for giving him health and strength to be able to continue amongst the brethren; and he hoped he might be spared for many years to enjoy the kindly, friendly association of the brethren, such as he had experienced during the last thirty-three years. This was a long time, and he was sorry to say he was the only member of the Lodge remaining who was present at his initiation in 1850. There were, he believed, Bro. Townsend, and the late Secretary of the Lodge, Bro. Thomas Eames, still in existence, and there was also Bro. Norman, who, he regretted to say, was a great invalid, who joined the Lodge at an early period, and from whom he had received an affectionate letter, regretting his inability to be present on this occasion. As the W.M. had observed, many changes had taken place during the time that he had been connected with this Lodge, and he was pleased to say—not that he wished to take any credit to himself for it—there had been instilled into the minds of all the brethren the essential necessity for good working. Without this, a Lodge lost its position and prestige in Masonry. He had endeavoured, during the twenty-six years of his term of office, to keep the Lodge in a position which, he hoped, it would always maintain. He held it to be one of the essential points that a Treasurer should keep his Lodge free from debt as far as possible, and felt sure that this would be the aim of his successor, as it had been his in the past. He was deeply sensible of the great compliment which the Lodge had paid him. He regretted leaving the post he had held so long, but his time was encroached upon in so many ways, and he felt he could not consistently hold the office without being present at the Lodge meetings. That was his only reason why he asked the brethren not to re-elect him. Bro. Wilcox resumed his seat amidst prolonged applause. At the conclusion of the business, the brethren and visitors adjourned to the throne-room of the hotel, where a sumptuous banquet had been provided, and the arrangements, as usual, under the personal superintendence of Bro. Henry Mills, gave the utmost satisfaction. The usual Loyal toast, and that of our Masonic Rulers, having been disposed of, the Immediate Past Master said once more he took the gavel in his hand, though it was with very different feelings to those with which he laid hold of it twelve months ago. To-night it was to him a sign of decadence, and however much he might feel he had shed a sort of rushlight ray of light over the Lodge during his year of office, it now paled before the sunbeams that had risen in the Masonic firmament. He must hide his diminished head, and pale his uneffectual fire; but really he rose with great pleasure to propose the toast of their newly-installed Worshipful Master. In doing so, he would not employ the usual platitudes, hoping the office had fallen into abler hands, and upon one who would do some justice to it, and so on, because he did not think any one was more capable of doing justice to it than he was himself. He would explain what he meant. They could only judge of Bro. Povey by what was past; and as he happened to be intimately acquainted with him for several years, and had studied with him in their Masonic duties, he could say that Bro. Povey was perfectly able to perform the task of the office to which he had been elected, from beginning to end. Two years ago, he (the speaker) considered himself inefficient, and feeling that he did not know the ritual completely, he made up his mind to resign; Bro. Povey assisted him at that time, and the way in which he prompted at times perfectly astonished him how he had acquired the knowledge. Therefore, he was qualified to let the brethren know that the prestige of the Neptune Lodge would not be lessened in the hands of their present W.M. He knew of no one who had worked harder to perfect himself in his working, from the lowest grade upwards; therefore, it was with the greatest pride that he found the members of the Lodge had unanimously voted him to the chair. Bro. Povey had given them a slight inkling of the way in which he could perform his duties at the social board, which was all they could wish. But as they were so particular, and considered that no man should take the office unless he was competent to undertake it properly,—to equal, if he did not surpass, any who had preceded him,—he thought they would be pleased to know they were perfectly justified in the selection they had just made. He had, therefore, very great pleasure in wishing Bro. Povey long life and happiness, to enjoy their respect and esteem. The toast was cordially received, and Bro. Povey tendered his thanks for the very kindly way in which the I.P.M. had proposed his health, and the brethren for the cordiality with which they had received the toast. He assured them that, in the future, as he had done in the past, he should do his utmost to promote the best interests of the Neptune Lodge. He was fully alive to his many shortcomings, but he felt he could look with confidence to the brethren to bear with his imperfections, feeling sure he should do as well as he could, however imperfectly it might be. He hoped the year upon which they had entered would be full of pleasure and prosperity to them all, and again he sincerely thanked them for their invariable kindness towards him. In turn he proposed the Visitors, of whom he was pleased to see upwards of twenty on this occasion. He associated with the toast the names of Bros. Sir John Bennett and Serjeant Robinson. Sir John, in response, said he esteemed it a most distinguished honour, in the heart of the City, to be a guest of this ancient Neptune Lodge. Whatever they might think of other public matters, attending as many of them did the most gorgeous ceremonials, on great occasions, he looked with the most profound reverence and respect upon the Masonic Craft and its objects. They could not write a history of the human race without attributing to the Craft the most distinguished and honourable career during the last 3000 years. It had run through every phase of human existence. Century after century, whatever else had changed, Masonry had not changed. Empires had risen and fallen; dynasties, kings, and princes had come, had done their work, and had passed away. Even religions had changed, but Freemasonry stood where it did from its origin 3000 years ago. He said they little knew, for history could not tell them—the very character of Masonic operations precluded it—history could not tell them how much the world was indebted to the Craft. Whatever was going on in times of tyranny, whether in the Church or State, in all the varied forms of kingcraft or priestcraft, century after century, there stood the Masonic Lodges, wherever civilisation appeared, doing their work; there alone stood the Craft. Yes, throughout the dark ages, while the great mass of the people were in intellectual darkness, Masonry was doing its work quietly and silently, even under the segis of the Church itself. When they saw its magnificent governance, and the external and visible signs of theological authority, we know how much they were indebted to the Craft for their material progress; and more than that, there resided some of the brightest spirits to whom the world had been indebted for its liberty, both civil and religious. Coming down to later times, they knew how much the Craft had done for the intellectual advancement of succeeding generations. For all this they took credit to the Craft, and he, as a most humble visitor, and Masonically an insignificant one, felt how honoured they must be, seeing all this great progress, and how much the world was indebted for its social, moral and material prosperity to this remarkable and valuable Institution. He thanked the brethren sincerely for the hospitality they had extended to the Visitors, and wished for the Lodge a long career of future success. Bro. Serjeant Robinson and Bro. McDowall also responded. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Past Masters, and Bro. Harper, in reply, said the Past Masters were invariably referred to as props of the Lodge to which they belonged. He had only been a few minutes in that position, and therefore he did not know that he need say anything about it, excepting that they all had a great interest in the Lodge, and that in future they would only be too happy to do all they could for its welfare. He trusted those who had been initiated during his year of office would do justice to themselves as Masons, and be a credit to the Lodge. They must all have been delighted that evening whilst listening to the performance on the violin by one of the brethren he had the honour of initiating, and others possessed equal talents, though of a varied character. He felt proud of having introduced those brethren, for he was always anxious about young men. He never lost an opportunity of persuading them to do the best they could to perfect themselves so as to occupy the position they might be called upon to fill, and he would do all in his power to further their interests. What all should aim at was to uphold the status of the Neptune Lodge by those who came amongst them; and he was proud to know that many brethren who had not the chance of reaching the chair for years to come, were in a position to do so now if they were called upon. Years ago a very different state of things existed. The road to the chair was a hard one to travel, and everything depended upon commencing early. Therefore, it behoved all who aspired to that office, however remote the chance appeared to be, to prepare themselves, and when the opportunity offered, let them accept it at once. He was, of course, pleased to have passed the chair, and now to occupy the position of I.P.M. As Past Masters, they were imbued with the same feeling, viz., the interest of the Lodge and how they could best advance its usefulness and prosperity. So far as he was concerned, he did not intend to relax his energies in that direction, but should continue to do all he could for the welfare of the Lodge. In proposing the health of the late Treasurer, the Worshipful Master said this was the last time the name of Bro. Wilcox would be coupled with the toast of Treasurer of the Neptune Lodge, and it would be an omission on their part if they failed to do honour to it on this occasion. He then formally asked Bro. Wilcox's acceptance of the salver and address to which we have alluded above, as a further mark of their affection and recognition of the faithful services he had rendered to the Lodge. Long might he live to enjoy the gifts, and when with him time should be no more, might they be handed down to his children and children's children. Bro. Wilcox, in acknowledgment, said he must confess he was at a loss to find words to express what he felt on the present occasion. He thought, when he expressed himself in the Lodge-room of the compliment and high honour conferred upon him by the members of the Lodge for the very humble services he had rendered; but he now felt he had the additional duty laid upon him to return his sincere thanks, because he looked upon this testimonial as a vote, or rather a spontaneous response to a call that had been made upon them to present him with an additional compliment in the most elegant piece of plate which had just been placed before him. He assured them, in accepting it, he did so with the most heartfelt feelings of gratitude to every member of the Lodge. As long as he lived it would be treasured near to his heart, and would be handed down to those nearest and dearest to him. He looked upon Masonry as one of the most beautiful Institutions that ever emanated from mankind, and had ever said there was no society or association—no meeting of men—where there was that sympathy and feeling as there existed amongst Masons. The more they knew and saw of each other, the more they must feel convinced this they was the true system of Brotherhood, when it was carried out as it should be, as it was intended. Nothing is more gratifying to an Officer, when he has endeavoured to the best of his ability to discharge the duties imposed upon him than to have, after many years, such recognition as he had received to-night. He alluded again to the many changes that had taken place during his thirty-three years' connection with the Lodge, and he was pleased to see it now in the height of its prosperity. When he first joined it, it consisted of a different body of men from those of whom it was at present composed. They met at a house close to the King's Head, in the Poultry, and very few of the brethren could now remember such a place, though it was a very grand house at that time, with large tanks in which live turtles were kept, and which crawled about the yard. They stayed there till the house was wanted for public improvement, and they went to the St. George, in St. Michael's Alley, Cornhill, where, he was sorry to say, they met with sad reverses. The property got into difficulties, and their furniture was seised, and, as a consequence, they had to meet at the London Tavern, the proprietors kindly consenting to take them for a time. He described many other vicissitudes through which the Lodge had passed, and congratulated the brethren upon its present proud position. Several other toasts were honoured, including the Treasurer and Secretary, the Officers, Prosperity to the Lodge, and the Masonic Charities, the list being brought to a conclusion at a late hour, with the Tyler's toast. A most enjoyable réunion was thus closed happily.

LODGE OF PROSPERITY, No. 65.

THE members of this Lodge met in goodly numbers at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, on Thursday, 25th ult., under the presidency of Bro. Roberts W.M., who was supported by Bros. Schadler S.W., Rich J.W., Brown P.M. Hon. Secretary, Hawkins S.D., Marshall J.D., Gregory I.G., Walker M.C., Jones Steward, Chicken I.P.M., Daniel P.M., Ferry P.M., and about thirty other brethren, with Bro. Banks Tyler (acting for Bro. Speight P.M.) Amongst the Visitors were Bros. Maidwell P.M. 27, Butler 130, and others. Lodge having been opened in accordance with ancient usage, the minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed, after which the ballot was opened for Mr. Buggins, of Bowling Green-lane, Clerkenwell, who had been proposed by Bro. Jones, and seconded by the Secretary. The voting was unanimously in favour, and Mr. Buggins was duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Order. Bro. Bentley Haynes, J.D. of the Egyptian Lodge 27, was unanimously admitted a joining member, on the proposition of the Worshipful Master, seconded by the Secretary. The business having been satisfactorily disposed of, the brethren and Visitors adjourned for supper, and at the conclusion of a substantial repast the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured.

ECONOMY LODGE, No. 76.

THE installation of Bro. W. H. Jacobs as W.M. of the above Lodge took place on Friday, 26th ult., in a very full Lodge, in the presence of many past and Provincial G. Officers, Bro. Beach, M.P., P.G.M. Hants and Isle of Wight, arriving in time to witness the ceremony. The ceremony of installation was impressively performed by Bro. Harris P.M. P.P.G.W. At its close the W.M. invested his Officers as follow:—Bros. Nixon I.P.M., Powell S.W., Stopher P.M. Treasurer, Gamon P.M. Secretary, Dodd Sec. 1833 Organist, W. Stopher S.D., Cox J.D., Clifton and Gover Stewards, Marks J.W., Goodwin M.C., Murray Inner Guard, Sims Tyler. A hearty vote of thanks to the P.Prov. G.M. was given from the chair for his kindness in attending, at much inconvenience to himself, and Bro. Beach responded with his usual heartiness and felicity. The banquet was served at the Royal Hotel in Mrs. Sprigg's best style. About forty brethren were present. It was stated that the Worshipful Brother and P.G.M. was, this next spring, going to promote a good work in connection with the Girls' School, and it was hoped he would have the support, financial and personal, of the brethren in his project. There were Visitors from Basingstoke, Portsmouth, Ventnor, Southampton, Winchfield and other Masonic centres, including Bros. Hayman P.M. 257 P.G.R., Rake 487 P.M. P.P.J.G.W., Willmott P.M. P.G.S.B., Townsend P.M. 1902 P.G.R., Beale W.M. 482, Hall W.M. 257, Goldsmith W.M. 302, Rev. A. C. Hervey J.W. 309, and others.

INDUSTRY LODGE, No. 186.

THE installation meeting of this sound working Lodge was held on the 23rd ult., at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, and was numerously attended. The chair was occupied by Bro. Allison P.M., in the absence of the W.M., Bro. Johnston, who unfortunately had met with an accident. Bros. J. J. Taffs S.W., Horsley J.W., Mann P.M. Treasurer, Seex P.M. Secretary, Page J.D., P.M. Philps, Robinson, Lake, Tallent, and Hook. Lodge was opened, and the minutes of the former and emergency meeting of 9th January were read and confirmed. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Taffs S.W. and W.M. elect was presented, and duly installed into the chair by Bro. Allison P.M., in the presence of twenty-one W.M.'s and P.M.'s, Bro. Horsley acting as M.C. The customary salutations were given, and the W.M. appointed and invested as his Officers:—Bros. Horsley S.W., Hook J.W., Mann P.M. Treasurer, Seex P.M. Secretary, Page S.D., Earl J.D., Westley I.G., Hollands and Sherring Stewards, Allison P.M. M.C., Woodstock P.M. Tyler. Bro. Mann was appointed Steward to represent the Lodge at the Boys' Festival, and the Lodge headed the list with its usual liberal donation. A vote of sympathy was passed to Bro. Johnson, in consequence of the accident which prevented his attendance, and the Lodge was closed. The brethren adjourned to a sumptuous banquet. Many toasts were ably proposed, and the W.M. and Officers were highly complimented upon the efficiency of the Lodge in every respect. A select programme of music was well arranged and ably executed. Amongst those present were Bros. Carmand 548, Poupart 9, Clarke 1950, Marsh 1326, Eagle 1901, Richard P.M. 954, Johnson 1541, Langton W.M. 1673, and No. 1 G.M. Lodge, Lowry W.M. 1339, Skelton P.M. 1506, Ayling W.M. 975, Carington W.M. 1314, Moody P.M. 1287, Madell 1201, Calvert 780, Pearcy W.M. 1427, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188.

CANDOUR LODGE, No. 337.

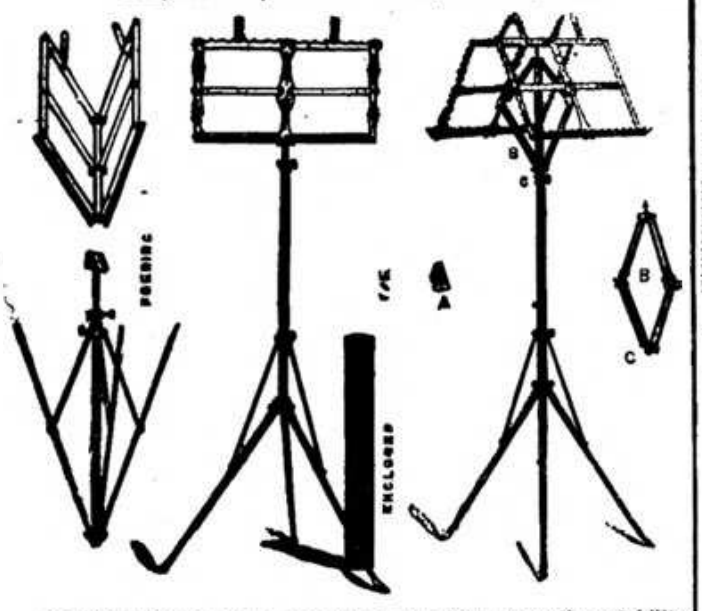
THE installation meeting of this Lodge took place in the new Masonic Rooms, Upper Mill, Oldham, on the 18th ultimo, Bro. John Hirst P.M. P.P.J.G.W. installed Bro. Drake S.W. as W.M. John Buckley S.W., T. G. Platt J.W., H. Walker P.M. Treasurer, J. Lawton P.M. Secretary, James Young S.D., T. H. Tanner J.D., E. W. Platt P.M. Organist, Thomas Stott I.G., received their respective collars. The brethren met at high twelve. Banquet at 3·30, at which sixty-eight brethren attended. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were gone through, interspersed with singing. The meeting separated at 10·30, in peace and good harmony.

Loughborough Lodge of Instruction, No. 22.—A meeting was held on Monday, 29th ultimo, at Brother McDiarmaid's, Cambria Tavern, Loughborough Junction. Present—Bros. Perkins W.M., Warren S.W., Brown J.W., McDiarmaid Treasurer, Cornock S.D., Reynolds J.D., Taffs I.G., Johnson Preceptor; also Bros. Westley, Bellis, Sherring, Westmore, Banks. After preliminaries, the second section of the first lecture was worked by Brother Westley, and the third by Brother Sherring, the brethren answering the various questions in a satisfactory manner. The W.M. then ably rehearsed the ceremony of initiation, Brother Banks acting as candidate. Thanks were voted to Bros. Miller and Sherring for their presents of aprons to the Lodge. All Masonic business being ended, Lodge was closed in antient form and adjourned till Monday, 5th February, at 7·30 p.m.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—At the Jolly Farmers', Southgate Road, N., on Saturday, the 27th ultimo. Present—Brothers R. P. Forge W.M., Ashton S.W., Galer J.W., R. Pearcy Preceptor, A. W. Fenner Secretary, Venning S.D., A. Ferrar J.D., J. Rhodes I.G.; also Brothers Brasted, A. M. Marks, Weeden, Dixie, Houghton, Humphreys, Mackey, Archer, Snook, Gillard, Richardson, Gribbell, Ruffett, &c. The usual ceremonies were observed in opening, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Lodge was advanced to the second and third degrees, and the ceremony of installation was rehearsed, Brother Ashton acting as W.M. elect. Brother Ashton vacated the chair in favour of Brother Forge. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Brother Weeden acting as candidate. Brother Pearcy worked the first section of the Lecture. A vote of thanks was awarded to Bro. Forge for the able manner he had discharged the duties of the chair. Lodge was closed and adjourned until Saturday, the 3rd February.

United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, No 507.—The meeting held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, S.D., on Friday, the 26th ult., was presided over by Brother Richard Poore as W.M., who was assisted by the following Officers, viz.:—Brothers Styles S.W., Phillips J.W., Wiltshire S.D., Bate J.D., Sargeant I.G., James Stevens P.M. and Preceptor. Lodge was opened in the three degrees, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed. Brother Bate delivered the charge in the third degree. Lodge having been duly lowered, Brother Styles was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. The resignation of Brother Terry P.M. as Secretary was received with regret, and honorary membership was unanimously voted to him for past efficient services. Brother Richard Poore was elected to supply the vacant office, and accepted the appointment. Lodge was then closed, and the meeting adjourned till the 2nd of February.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—Held at the Sisters' Tavern, Pownall Road, Dalston, on Tuesday, 30th ultimo. Present—Bros. Smyth W.M., Brasted S.W., Christian J.W., Darnell S.D., Bunker J.D., Gray I.G., Carr Secretary, Wallington P.M. Preceptor, and others. After due formalities, the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Brother Carr candidate. The traditional history was ably given by the Worshipful Master. Brother Brasted was elected Worshipful Master for the ensuing week, and appointed his Officers in rotation.



It may be taken in the natural order of events that the popularity of our several Lodges of Instruction should rise and fall, and that at certain periods the number of those brethren who attend the periodical meetings should exhibit a perceptible variation, but we may say of the Dalhousie it has never seriously been affected by these changes. The Preceptor, Brother Wallington, one of the most competent of instructors, keeps steadily at his post, and can with satisfaction point to numbers of his pupils who have made their mark in the Craft. Brother Brasted, who will preside on Tuesday next, is recognised as an ardent and consistent worker, and Brother Carr ably fulfils the duties of Secretary. When we add to this that Brother Smyth provides comfortable quarters for the brethren, we think we need hardly say much in favour of a visit from those who seek instruction and have their Tuesday evenings at disposal.

THE EMPIRE LAMP.

THE MOST BRILLIANT AND ECONOMICAL DOMESTIC LIGHT EXTANT.

It equals Gas for Simplicity, but surpasses it for Illuminating Power.

IT burns without a chimney, a pine-shaped globe only being required, which has never been known to break from the heat of the flame. It will give more light than any other lamp with a wick of equal size. The combustion is so perfect that it deodorises the oil, and burns absolutely without smell, giving an intense pure white and beautiful light. It is unrivalled for simplicity in lighting, cleaning, and trimming, and is, in fact, the perfection of artificial light. Suitable for Cottage or Mansion, Churches, Chapels, &c.

Illustrated Catalogue, with full particulars, and giving valuable hints on Domestic Lighting and the Management of Lamps, free on application.

MASONIC LITERATURE.

IT appears somewhat strange, though it is nevertheless true, that as a rule in this country the literature of the Craft is neither sought after nor read as it is on the other side of the Atlantic. A variety of reasons may be assigned for this want of interest in publications whose object it is to supply information and to reproduce, from the dusty records of ages past, some of the pristine light which illumined the minds of the Fathers of Masonry. We all admit that the "beautiful system of morality" is veiled in allegory so sublime and holy that the deeper the draught the more is revealed of the grandeur of a system which has withstood the buffettings of centuries, against the wiles of kingcraft, priestcraft, and all the ills that follow in the wake of tyranny and oppression. The "hidden mysteries of nature and science" lie embalmed in a casket so impervious as to resist attack from whereseever it might come, and all the shafts that envy, hatred and malice have hurled against them have failed to dim their lustre or sully their purity. These are the treasures which we as Masons hold most sacred, and which we are bound to cherish as the very foundations upon which the superstructure of our Ancient and Honourable Institution rests. To become more familiar with the origin and aims of our beneficent Order, historians have written and poets sung. Philanthropists have derived their inspiration to deeds of charity and benevolence from the precepts which Freemasonry has taught—precepts as sublime and broad in their intense benignity as any that were ever presented to the world, seeing that they are founded on the volume of the Sacred Law itself. Springing from these are the efforts of the antiquarian and the archæologist, whose experiences in travel, learning and research have enriched the pages of our English literature, and bespangled them with gems of thought and inspiration more brilliant than ever did the writers of ancient Greece and Rome. From the mouldy archives of the past have been dug out nuggets of interesting lore, of quaint but telling testimony to the antiquity of the Craft, and of the uniformly unselfish sympathy and love it has shed upon mankind. Even in our own day there are writers who thus glance back upon the chequered pages of history, and by means of their perception and research weave for us a link which connects the present with the past. With such a fund of interesting study within the reach of all of us, the wonder is, we say, that these aids to Masonic knowledge find so few to apply them to their individual necessities or luxury. The complete Masonic library teems with volumes laden with the fragrance of tradition such as might well compare with the idylls of the classics; of adventure as thrilling, and pathos as deep as are to be found in the works of any authors extant; whilst running through them all is the silver thread of unbroken "brotherly love, relief and truth." Coming down in the scale to our periodical literature, whose more humble sphere is to chronicle events, and comment upon current topics, occurring at the moment, there seems to us to be an apathy on the part of the brethren which it is difficult to explain. And we are prone to ask the reason of these things. In America and some of the Continental nations, Masonic reading is sought after with avidity; in the States especially the publications of the Craft are of the most varied, comprehensive and elaborate description, and their number, as compared with our own, is legion. Can it be that our Transatlantic brethren are more eager to store their minds with the real and intrinsic knowledge that all Masons should possess than we are in this phlegmatic and changeable clime? Or is it that we in England are too tenacious of our seclusion, and of the halo of secrecy which surrounds our doings? We are inclined to believe that neither is the case. Our belief is, that a majority of those who unite with the Brotherhood do so with an instinct of sociable goodheartedness, mingled with a genuine desire to make themselves more useful to their fellow-creatures. They are actuated, first of all, by a desire to penetrate behind the veil of what to them had hitherto been a sealed book, and it will be their universal testimony that whereas they expected to find a true and beautiful and beneficent system unfolded to their vision, the realisation has been of a far different and infinitely more gratifying kind. They have here presented a boundless field for the exercise of the highest and loftiest attributes of human character; of sentiments, the expanse of which they never before contemplated; a perfect system of peace and goodwill to man, as divine as the origin from which it sprung. But here they are content to rest. To a majority of those who meet upon the common platform, where prince and peasant assemble on the only ground of liberty, fraternity, and equality the world knows, the source of the wisdom, strength, and beauty that are the pillars of our Order flow as from a far-off land, hidden in the vista of the unknown. There is a sufficiency in the glorious tenets unfolded to them in the degrees through which they have passed that bids them hesitate to follow the more dauntless explorers of the hidden mysteries into the paths that are strewn with new-found pleasures, and illumined with a more effulgent light. And yet, with that disinterestedness which runs concurrent with the genuine unselfishness of Masonry, they have left upon the pages of our literature glowing records of the territory they have explored, and have thus gathered up for such as choose to garner it, a vast store of elevating and refining knowledge. We should smile at the intending emigrant who, without a scrap of information of the country to which he is bound, steps on board the vessel which is to transmit him to a distant shore. The intelligent man who goes to seek his fortune in another land is sagacious enough to fortify himself with all the information he can command as to the climate, products, and natural characteristics of his future home. He does not rest content with the transitory life aboard ship, with its alternate calms and storms, and the humdrum condition of his short span of "life on the ocean wave." His heart and mind are far ahead, calculating upon the prospects he has before him as new fields of enterprise and progress open up and point to the bright prosperity in store. So should it be with he who dons the apron blue. A stagnant Masonic life is that which struggles through the initiatory stages, reaches the coveted chair, and then subsides into the calm retirement of an inactive Past Master. To many men this is the acme of ambition; there is no goal beyond. And thus it is that in the person of a true Masonic student we find a rarity and a joy that is ever to be appreciated; and the companionship of such men is to be coveted, and held in high esteem. Yet in truth these possessions of the depths of Masonic learning are placed within the easy reach of each and all of us if we would only embrace and make good use of them. Masonic writers have collected for us facts and information, enriched with purest gems of thought and theory, and have handed them down as heirlooms for our common use and benefit. Ours is the fault if the fragrance of such exertions is wasted on the desert air. By the side of these standard works of literary art are the magazines, periodicals and newspapers of the day, in which are recorded the events that surround us, the movements of our every-day Masonic life. These, if the truth must be unfortunately told, are too often cast aside and disregarded, to the loss only of those who have no soul for more light, no appetite or digestion for more than the mere commonplace fare of oral rote. We are conscious that all we can say or do will tend little to alter this sense of indifference, and our object will be accomplished if we can only awaken some to a sense of their own loss by continued apathy in the matter of Masonic reading and instruction. Some are prone to argue that too much is already made of the doings of the Craft, that its meetings, its charities, and its deeds of beneficence are paraded too freely before the "outer world." The day is past for such a fallacy, and so long as Masonic writings are in the hands of discreet and honourable men there need be no fear of any danger to the well-being of the Craft. Referring again to America, we see there how prolific are the emanations from the Masonic press, and yet how studiously discriminating and honest. If we Englishmen would only relax in our individuality, and our seclusion, which often borders on the selfish and the isolate, we should figure more prominently in the cosmopolitan arena, and still wear the badge triumphantly of Semper fidelis upon our escutcheon. In such an Institution, whose members are scattered over the whole of the habitable globe, interchange of thought and opinion is a priceless and essential gift, and this is supplied only in its fullest sense by the matter which emanates from the public press. By its means brethren resident in distant climes are brought in near affinity of mental intercourse, and the common atmosphere which Masons breathe is pervaded with the sounds of universal harmony. They are kept au courant with the operations which concern the whole body of which they are the members, and by this means there is ever a deepening, widening and unintermittent flow of sympathy and reciprocity kindled amongst the various sections into which the Order is necessarily divided. Thus it is our pleasure as well as our duty to form part of that system which encircles the brethren everywhere with the means of mental intercourse, and if possible to contribute in some little degree to the enlightenment of all those subjects, in which we take a deep and identical interest.

INSTALLATION OF LORD BROOKE, M.P. AS PROV. G. MASTER OF ESSEX.

FRIDAY last was a gala day in the good town of Colchester, in all respects save one. The Clerk of the Weather, though he invariably smiles on our good Queen, when she engages in some public function, did not, for reasons of his own, show the same favour to her youngest son, the Duke of Albany, and if we cannot say with truth that the rains descended and the floods came, we cannot describe the weather as having been otherwise than most unpropitious. As far as the particular object of the Duke's visit, this, perhaps, did not make any great difference. His duty was essentially of a private character, and one from which the curious eyes of the general public were necessarily excluded. Masonic work does not, save in certain cases, come under the notice of the public, and except for the discomfort it inflicts on those who take part in it, the weather can neither make nor mar the success of a Masonic festival. That the good people of Colchester fully appreciated the visit of our Royal brother, even though it was for a private purpose, may be gathered from the interest they manifested, and doubtless but for His Royal Highness's wish that no especial display should be made on the occasion, there would have been more of that outward show which is always associated with a royal visit. In this particular the natives—by which we do not mean the oysters for which Colchester is famous, but its worthy inhabitants—respected the Duke's desire for comparative privacy, and a few appropriate decorations at the principal public buildings, a guard of honour, and a sort of semi-official welcome from the municipality, were the only outward and visible signs that anything of an unusual character was being celebrated on the day in question.

It is, of course, impossible to describe the proceedings without some reference to a similar event which took place less than three years since, when Lord Tenterden, the predecessor of Lord Brooke in the Grand Mastership of this Province, was installed into office by the Deputy Grand Master of England. Lord Tenterden was a man in the very prime of life, and apparently in full health and strength, when His Royal Highness the Grand Master designated him for the position of chief of the Essex brethren, and in the nature of things there might have been anticipated for him a long career of usefulness in that capacity. An All-wise Providence, however, decreed it otherwise, and in little more than two years from his installation Lord Tenterden was gathered to his fathers, to the great regret not only of the Province he had ruled so wisely, but of the whole Craft throughout the length and breadth of all England. It seems but the other day that we personally assisted at the last Provincial Grand Lodge over which his Lordship presided, Chingford being the locality in which, and Chigwell Lodge, No. 453, the Lodge under whose banner, the meeting was held. In a few weeks he died, and on Friday last his successor was inducted into office. But the Province had grown in the interval between its late chief's appointment and death, and Lord Brooke was as just as he was generous when he paid a graceful tribute to his memory and expressed a certain feeling of diffidence in succeeding one who had laboured so zealously for the interests of the Craft.

Nor was he the less just in his estimate of the important interests entrusted to his care, or less generous when he expressed himself well assured of the hearty co-operation of the brethren he had been called to rule over. It was, perhaps, a slight exaggeration on his part when he described Essex as a large as well as an important Province. Important it is no doubt, but, speaking numerically, we should hesitate to call a Province with only twenty Lodges a large one. However, in zeal and the excellence of its material it will compare favourably with other Provinces, and in this sense no doubt Lord Brooke's epithet of "large" may be considered justifiable.

As to the meeting itself, it was held in the Lecture Room of the Soldiers' Home, and Lodge having been opened, and the Duke of Albany having explained the purpose for which it was held, a deputation of seven P. Provincial Grand Wardens ushered in the Provincial Grand Master designate, and his patent having been read, his lordship was very ably and impressively installed by His Royal Highness. Lord Brooke's first official act was his appointment and investiture of Bro. Philbrick, Q.C., P.G.D., who had held the same office under Lord Tenterden, as Deputy Provincial Grand Master; and Brother A. Durrant having been re-elected Prov. Grand Treasurer, the following brethren who had been appointed Provincial Grand Officers last autumn were re-appointed and invested with the insignia of their respective offices, namely:—

Bro. Alfred Buck I.P.M. 453	P.G. Senior Warden
E. B. Florence P.M. 214	P.G. Junior Warden
Rev. Julius H. Rowley 1343	P.G. Chaplain
Andrew Durrant P.M. 276	P.G. Treasurer
J. F. Barrett P.M. 1000	P.G. Registrar
T. J. Balling P.M. and Secretary 51	P.G. Secretary
H. E. Dehane W.M. 1543	P.G. Senior Deacon
A. J. Manning P.M 1437	P.G. Junior Deacon
F. C. Smith P.M. 1457	P.G. Supt. of Works
A. Lucking P.M. 160	P.G.D.C.
C. Hempson W.M. 1799	P.G.A.D.C.

motion of Lord Brooke, seconded by Bro. Philbrick, passed with acclamation, and briefly but gracefully acknowledged. Votes of thanks were also passed to the Major-General commanding the district and the Officers of the Garrison for their services in escorting the Duke; to the High Steward of the Borough and others for placing their carriages at the disposal of the Committee; to Miss Daniel, proprietress of the Soldiers' Home, and Miss Campbell, its Lady Superintendent, for their assistance in allowing the use of the building; and to the officials of the Great Eastern Railway Company, and those in particular at the Colchester Station, for the very great convenience they had afforded. Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn having, on behalf of Lord Waveney, Prov. G.M. Suffolk, and the Province itself, offered his congratulations to Lord Brooke, and the Duke of Albany having discharged a similar duty on behalf of his own Province of Oxfordshire, in which Lord Brooke was initiated, the proceedings were terminated, and the brethren adjourned to luncheon in the Corn Exchange, the Band of the 7th Hussars supplying an admirable selection of instrumental music, while the following artists from St. Paul's Cathedral were equally pleasing in the vocal music which graced the entertainment, namely: Bros. H. J. Dutton, T. W. Hanson, and Edward Wharton, Bro. C. Esmond, P.P.G.O., and Organist of St. Mary's, Colchester, being the conductor and accompanyist.

After lunch, Bro. Lord Brooke proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts, that of the Grand Officers, Present and Past, being acknowledged by Lieut. General the Hon. Somerset J. G. Calthorpe Past G.J. Warden. These were followed by a similar compliment to H.R.H. the Duke of Albany as Installing Master, in proposing which Lord Brooke said:—

"I will not inflict upon you a long speech, because I am quite sure that my words would not be adequate to convey to you our hearty and kindly feeling towords his Royal Highness on this occasion. It has been an act of great kindness towards myself, brethren, on the part of his Royal Highness to come down here to-day. I know how many duties always fall to his Royal Highness's lot, and how ready he always is to discharge them, no matter at what personal inconvenience. Therefore, when at your request I appealed to his Royal Highness, and asked him to come and give us the great privilege of his presence here to-day, I felt that if he possibly could he would not refuse my request. I feel it to-day a very great honour and pleasure in having been installed by his Royal Highness. I will not weary you with my past history, but I may go back a little bit, to tell you that my earliest recollections of Freemasonry are connected with his Royal Highness; that when, at Oxford, I went through the first ceremonies of Freemasonry, I was assisted into the Brotherhood by his Royal Highness. Therefore, some time having elapsed, it is a matter of peculiar pleasure to me, as you may imagine, that his Royal Highness should put the finishing touch to my Masonic experience. Now, brethren, it is needless for me to recount the many occasions on which his Royal Highness has taken part in Masonic ceremonies, but we all know that his Royal Highness at the present moment occupies a distinguished position amongst Freemasons, that he has filled many, and most important offices, not only in the Grand Lodge, but as Master of many well-known and important Lodges in the country, and, brethren, we return to his Royal Highness on this occasion the warmest, the deepest, and most heartfelt thanks we possibly can for honouring us here in Essex. In this assembly, on this peculiarly Masonic occasion, it is perhaps difficult for me to allude to the pleasure which I am quite certain his Royal Highness's visit must have given to the town of Colchester at large. It is a matter of deep regret to his Royal Highness, as to all of us, I am sure, that so unfortunate a day should, to a certain extent, have marred the proceedings, but notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, we have been able, I trust, we Freemasons of Essex, and the inhabitants of Colchester, have been able to give his Royal Highness a reception, though perhaps not so magnicent as we could have wished, yet still to great extent not unworthy of the town of Colchester, and have shown his Royal Highness that it is with the very deepest feeling of affection that we have entertained him to-day. I will not detain you longer, but give you the health of his Royal Highness the Duke of Albany.

The toast was received with much enthusiasm. In reply, the Duke, who rose amidst renewed and hearty cheering, said—

Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master and Brethren,—I return you my most hearty thanks, first, to the Right Worshipful Grand Master for the kind and too flattering terms in which he has alluded to me, and next to you all here present for the kind manner in which you have received the toast proposed. I have already told you, and I can only repeat it again, that it has been a very great pleasure to me to come here to-day, not only for the purpose of installing an old friend, but also for the purpose of visiting Essex. I very much regret that the weather has been so unpropitious that I have not been able to see the beauties of the city, but although that has been impossible I observed the whole way through the town, on all sides, the kind welcome which has been extended to me. Brethren, the pleasing duty devolves on me now of proposing a toast, which, with all due deference to your Master, I must really call the toast of this day. Lord Brooke has, unfortunately, taken out of my mouth the very words I had intended to say. I was going to allude to the long Masonic connexion I have had with your Prov. Grand Master. He has told you all about that, and I can only speak of him now and propose his health as that of a very old and very intimate friend. I had two years ago the pleasure of installing him, if I may use that term, by acting as his "best man" at his marriage. And now to-day I have had the pleasure of installing him as head of this distinguished Province. I do not know what will be the next step. No one can wish him joy to-day more sincerely than I do, and at the same time I must congratulate this Province on having such a Master at its head. Brethren, I give you the toast of "The health of your Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, the Lord Brooke," the toast being received with enthusiastic cheering, followed by "three times three," led by His Royal Highness.

In acknowledging the honour done him, Lord Brooke expressed his thanks, and also referred in the warmest terms to his predecessor, of whom he said—

I know that the late Lord Tenterden was most zealous, not only in his duties as a Freemason, but also in any work to which he put his hands, and it would be, I think, very unseemly of me, if on this occasion I did not pay a tribute to his memory—a tribute which I am sure will be appreciated by all those whom I address. You will therefore understand my feelings of diffidence in succeeding Lord Tenterden, for I am well aware that a very large and important Province of this sort requires a great deal of attention, and I hope, when it comes to real work and business, you will not find me wanting whom you have placed in this important position. I feel that I shall receive your indulgence and forbearance to the very greatest extent.

His lordship concluded by proposing the health of his Deputy, Bro. Philbrick, who, on rising to return thanks, met with a cordial reception, the other Officers of the Province being included in the toast. At this stage of the proceedings, his Royal Highness and Lord Brooke being under the necessity of leaving to fulfil other engagements, the chair was taken by Bro. Philbrick, who proposed the toast of the "Visitors," coupling with it the name of Major-General Laurie, Grand Master of Nova Scotia, who responded as follows:—

As I have been called upon in my capacity of Grand Master of the Colony of Nova Scotia, to address you in reply to this toast, I would say a word or two in connection with Nova Scotia, which is, perhaps, little known, and because little known I think rather misunderstood. I may say my first acquaintance with Nova Scotia dates from the time I was a little boy in the nursery. I was then, whenever I was troublesome, told to go to Nova Scotia. I had no idea that after serving in three other parts of the world, I should finally be sent to that Colony, and find it was not in any sense a penal settlement, I found many associations connected with home. I found one of the most prominent and enterprising counties in Nova Scotia was named after the Shire town of Colchester. It contained the finest iron mines, it contained great farming land; it was a county that always took the first step forward in all agricultural exhibitions, and I hold therefore that there must be some connection much more than sentimental or merely in the name between the County and this well-known shire town and agricultural community. Perhaps I may refer to the fact that there was a personal association in connection with your chief guest of to-day. When, eight years ago, I was called upon to lay the foundation-stone of a new Freemasons' Hall to accommodate the increasing numbers of our Fraternity at that Colony, the builders took up a foundation-stone, which, on examination, proved to have been laid fifty years before by His Royal Highness the Duke of Kent, the grandfather of the Duke of Albany, who has been your guest to-day. You see, after all, we were associated together in more ways than at first would come to our minds, and it was gratifying to me when I succeeded to the place that the Duke of Kent had so ably occupied, and became President of an independent Lodge which looked back to old English associations. I can assure you that nothing gratifies the members of the Fraternity, who number something like one hundred Lodges, over whom I have the honour to preside, more than to know that they are kept fresh and green in the memory of the brethren on this side of the Atlantic, from whom, perhaps, they are to a certain extent separated, but only in name. I trust that all the Lodges belonging to the Grand Lodge of England will always feel the same pleasant, friendly, and fraternal sentiments towards our Colonial Lodge as they at present do. On behalf of the Visitors I would desire to offer you my hearty thanks for the kind reception you have given to them and to me.

The toast of the Local Committee was entrusted to Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Dep. Prov. Grand Master of Suffolk, and acknowledged by its Chairman, Bro. Sowman, W.M. No. 51, shortly after which the meeting rose, and the brethren dispersed for home.

It is needless to say that everything passed off most satisfactorily. The meeting was a very large and enthusiastic one, among those present or invited being Bros. General Laurie, Colonel Malet de Carteret, Montague Guest, Lieut.-General the Hon. Somerset J. G. Calthorpe, Sir Charles Du Cane, Revs. Dr. Cox, R. J. Simpson, C. J. Martyn, A Hall; Bros. Colonel Shadwell Clerke, Dr. Wendt, Major John Penrice, John A. Rucker, Thomas Fenn, Captain N. G. Philips, Peter de Lande Long, Reginal Bird, Colonel C. H. Gregory, C. A. Murton, Robert Grey, Colonel Somerville Burney, Sir Albert Woods, Dr. Pigott, C. Greenwood, G. Lambert, W. G. Cusins, H. G. Buss, F. Binckes, J. Terry, Hedges, Andrew Durrant, Thomas J. Ralling, &c. &c.

It should be added that the music in Provincial Grand Lodge was efficiently rendered by Bros. Osmond, and Gyvers; nor must we omit to render our acknowledgments to the Essex Standard, to whose columns we are indebted for a portion of the foregoing particulars.

WORTH THOUGHT.

From the Voice of Masonry.

"I WOULD rather wear ragged clothes, and live on hog and hominy, than starve my brain." A quotation like this appears to a prosy, plodding, money-catching brother as the height of nonsensical sentimentality. View literature of any kind in the light of dollars and cents, and it may be nonsensical, but view it in the light of intelligence, and it is the exact reverse.

When first reading the quotation given I was reminded of a remark a professional man and brother Mason made to me, not long since, when I was examining a packet of books which a kind brother had sent me. After glancing at one of them for a moment he said: "What can you find interesting in that pile of books? There is nothing but Masonry in them." I must acknowledge I was surprised at his remark, for he was a man of good intellectual ability, who for years had prefixed Sir to his name and been honoured with positions of trust and honour in the Craft, but in all that time had failed to find the cream of Masonry—its literature. Unfortunately, there are many brethren who view the literature of Masonry in the same light as the brother referred to; which is not only their loss, but that of the whole Fraternity.

In one sense, the question, What is Masonic literature? is not easily answered even by those who have made Masonry a life-long study. Mankind, fortunately, are not all endowed with the same reasoning faculties. God, in His infinite wisdom, decreed that the human race should be composed of different intellectual as well as physical abilities, and, for that reason, each person as an intellectuality which, when developed, will be the means of the enlightenment of his fellow men.

Each student has his hobby, or rather, there is some particular branch of study that is best suited to his tastes. One class makes the planets and their revolutions their study, and to them we are indebted for the position the astronomers have attained. With others it is mathematics, others architecture, and still others the arts and sciences, and, in fact, each branch of culture has its students. On the other hand, there is a large class of people who, by their outward demeanour and personal surroundings, seem to have been forgotten in an intellectual sense, or, in other words, their physical abilities have been developed at the expense of their mental faculties. The efforts of the student—call him bookworm if you will—are derided by the physical class, his works are considered of no account, and his ideas nonsensical. In their ignorance they do not know that the enlightenment of the present century is due to brain power, while physical force carried out the ideas and plans.

The question arises: Has Masonry a literature, and if so, what is it? Our answer must be that it has. To our sorrow and shame it must be said, the literary feature of Masonry is too often neglected even by those high in the world of art and science, and in political and religious literature, and on whom the Craft have bestowed all the honours within their power.

Fortunately for Masonry, its literary features are being brought to a higher standard than they had at one time, as well as being more fully developed each day of their existence. Our brethren are opening their eyes to the fact that their Institution has literally features of vast importance, and that there is something in Masonry besides esoteric and exoteric work.

In the first place, has Masonry a history? If so, what was it previous to 1717? A question easily asked, but difficult to answer. Previous to that date but little can be proven of the actual transactions of what is now called Speculative Masonry. There are, however, plenty of theories—surmises, perhaps, would be a better word—any one of which is backed up by what, if only one theory were advanced, might be conclusive evidence, but, just as soon as one is fair settled in the belief that a particular theory is the correct one, and is led to exclaim "Eureka," up comes another one, backed by its advocates with as much force and as plausible arguments as the former one, which overthrows his first idea of Freemasonry's origin. Afterwards others come up, until twelve are passed in detail and the whole are a confused mass of surmises and conjectures, all plausible when only one of them is taken, but none proven by undeniable facts, and all right or all wrong, excepting a particular one, just as one wishes to view it. Now, which one of these twelve theories is correct? Answer it who can; not by surmises but by facts. If to answer it requires more knowledge than any scholar of the present age possesses, does it not at once show that Masonry has a history? Some one will answer that question, in his own mind at least, by the oft-repeated assertion that our ancient brethren destroyed their records, in order that the world at large might never obtain the secrets of Masonry. I ask, how do you know that Masonry existed previous to the eighteenth century? What proofs have you that it was a creation of the Middle Ages, or even before that time?

Modern and ancient historians have given us a history of the world and its people from its formation, which, of course, includes Biblical history. The discoveries of the past century have, however, exploded many of the fine theories of many a historian, until what was once considered a fact can now be safely rated as fiction. Just so with the history of Masonry. The researches of the Masonic students of this age have exploded many of the vague and unsatisfactory theories of the eighteenth century, and no doubt further research will explode many of the fine theories of the present day.

So much for the historical features of Masonry, and right here the statement fitly applies, that the publication of the literary productions of Masonic students does not furnish a sufficient pecuniary recompense to warrant their issue. A man must have bread and butter. Theories will not sustain life, even if one is a bookworm. One must receive a practical benefit from his labours, if it is nothing more than "hog and hominy." Now who is to blame for not enough "hog and hominy?" The Craft, in not sustaining the efforts of our historians, by purchasing their works.

When we read the works of Mackey, Hughan, Morris, Fort and others, we extend to them our hearty thanks for their efforts to remove the darkness of ignorance from the eyes of their brethren; but no one of them proves when, where or how Masonry derived its origin. As we view it, too much is claimed, by many, for the antiquity of Masonry. When we read the arguments of those who claim that it is antediluvian in its origin; or that it began at the building of the Tower of Babel of Biblical fame, we can but say, you claim too much, and do not prove it. In fact the same may be said of nearly every one of the theories advanced, as claiming a certain point is one thing, but proving it is entirely another.

Now you who claim that Masonry has not a history, please inform me, when, where and how did Masonry originate? Who were its founders, and what was the real motive in view for the formation of such an organisation? Before you have answered these questions by proofs which cannot be denied, I am confident you will find that Masonry has a history which baffles efforts to fathom, and will unite with me in saying that its origin is a sealed book. But enough of its historical features.

Now, what are its legal features so far as they pertain to the government of its own members, or, as the lawyers say, its "law points?"

Bro. John W. Simons, in the August and September 1883 numbers of the Voice of Masonry, under the head of "Still Undecided," from his standpoint, has ably answered thirty-six important questions pertaining to the jurisprudence of Masonry which are as yet undecided. It is not our province to criticise, much less to discuss those questions, as if we should we know full well that we would not only get into the mud beyond our depth, but would have the self-conceit taken out of us in a hurry.

Those articles suggest two distinct claims of thought. First, that these points are well worth the serious contemplation of every Mason. Second, that they add a double force to the statement that Masonry has a legal literature, as far as it pertains to its own government, which baffles the legal knowledge of its best students.

When such eminent jurists as John W. Simons, W. R. Singleton, T. S. Parvin, J. J. Bell, and scores of others, are "in the fog" on certain legal questions, what must those of us do who are young in years and in Masonry, to decide what is right and what is wrong? "When doctors disagree, who will agree?" When such expounders of the law as those mentioned disagree, who is to decide?

A careful study of those undecided questions cannot fail to convince any thinking mind that Masonry has a legal literature which increases in importance with the increase in our numbers.

Masonry must have laws to be governed by, as well as any other organisation. The foundations of those laws are the "Ancient Landmarks," which are as unalterable as the "laws of the Medes and Persians;" not that those laws are an absolute necessity to hold our organisation together, for brotherly love is the bond which unites us, but that they are rendered necessary for the government of ourselves amongst ourselves. According to the dogma of exclusive and perpetual jurisdiction, which is almost exclusively American, each State has a Grand Lodge, which is absolute within its territorial limits. It enacts its own laws, provided they do not conflict with those landmarks, or the civil or the moral law. The question often arises in my mind, do our law makers, or rather law expounders, always keep those landmarks in sight when expounding the abstruse points which arise from them? If they do, I fear they sometimes overlook the fact that brotherly love, relief and truth, and I may well add, unity and concord, are the basis of each and every law. Let them always remember, that force, intimidation, and sequestration should have no voice or place in the administration of the affairs of Masonry.

Now, my readers, give what I have written a passing thought, and see if you will not unite with me in saying that Masonry has a historical and legal literature which is well worth your thought and study.

There is yet another form of Masonic literature which is important, namely, its every-day or periodical literature, such as its newspapers, magazines, and miscellaneous publications.

Nearly every country town of any size has its newspaper, and with many its editor is an oracle of wisdom and intelligence. Each religious denomination has its organ to expound and advocate its particular beliefs. Each political party, no matter how small, has its literature in its press. Each trade, profession, art, or calling, has newspapers and periodicals. Even the poor, deluded, badly humbugged anti-Masonic American party has penny trumpets among the small fry of the press. Now, if each trade, profession, or denomination has its press, why is it not as appropriate that a body of over five hundred thousand men, composed of the talent and learning of the country, should have papers and periodicals?

Masonry is not all esoteric, in fact, but a small portion of it is. The forms and ceremonies of initiation, and modes of recognition are, but the main features, brotherly love, relief, and truth, are far from being so, as its every-day deeds prove.

Love for the Institution, and desire to bring the Craft to a higher intellectual grade, have prompted a few to embark upon the precarious sea of the Masonic press. I say precarious, for any one who has attempted it will tell you that the issuing of a Masonic publication is a good way from being a money-making affair. At this day, there are many first class publications issued, that not only bring light to their readers, but add to the general stock of Masonic information. Many of the secular and political periodicals of the day "pay," and their owners "eat, drink, and grow fat," while, I fear, some of those devoted to Masonry do not pay, and their owners eat what they can get, say, "hog and hominy," live on hopes that are never fulfilled, and grow decidedly poor in flesh and pocket.

Now, that is all wrong. It is a burning shame that such an Institution as that of Masonry, of this century, does not give its periodicals adequate support. The fact that so many of them have succumbed to the pressure of want of patronage shows that their efforts are not properly appreciated by the Craft at large. I trust the reader will not think, for a moment, that I am interested, pecuniarily, in any Masonic publication. I am interested just this much; I want them all to succeed, as I think they do a vast amount of good for our far famed and noble Institution.

We do deeply deplore the lack of Masonic information amongst the Craft, and that there are so few who think Masonry has a literature worthy of publication, and so many whose sole idea of the Institution seems to be concentrated in Lodge room work; as if that, and having many degrees, were the some of Masonry. While we are not prepared to discuss the multiplicity of degrees and rites that is making such a stir in the Masonic world, yet we cannot help thinking that if nine-tenths of them were swept out of existence we should have more Masonry, and a lesser number of pretended Masons. Why, my brethren, rites, degrees and Lodge room work are but a drop in the bucket in comparison to the grand principles which Masonry teaches.

With many the idea seems to be paramount, that a bright Mason must be a thorough ritualistic one, and that when he is that he is all Masonry can make him. What an erroneous idea! A parrot can be taught to repeat set phrases, and any brother with a good memory can learn the Masonic ritual; but to tell us of Freemasonry's past and present history, and render a correct version of its laws, requires years of the closest study, besides a retentive memory.

There never was a greater mistake made than to suppose that the Masonic periodicals of this day are not worthy of perusal. The poorest amongst them is worth more than the amount asked for it. If any one doubts the truth of this assertion, just let him try any one of them for a year, and, if he has any of the real spirit of Masonry in him his first year will not be his last; but if he is a surface Mason, he will not be suited, because Masonic Editors and writers have the faculty of speaking plainly, as well as others.

We learn from the "Masonic, Historical and Biographical Memoranda," edited by Bro. J. H. Drummond, of Maine, that the Freemasons' Monthly Magazine, edited and published by Charles W. Moore, was commenced November 1841. "For thirty-one years, month after month, he issued the magazine, without a single lapse. The thirty-first volume closed in October 1872, and he delayed the commencement of the thirty-second volume till January 1873; he lived to complete that volume; with it he finished his work on earth. This magazine was the first published that was exclusively Masonic. The Masonic Review, of Cincinnati, closed its fifty-sixth volume, January 1882. The Voice of Masonry is in its twenty-fourth year. The Keystone, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and Loomis's Musical and Masonic Journal, of Hartford, Connecticut, are in their sixteenth year. These, I believe, are the oldest of American publications. There are others equally as good, perphaps, yet I think their editors and publishers will unite with me in saying that it is the hardest kind of work to come out even at the end of the year. That certainly is not very encouraging, yet it is a fact. Is it a wonder that we deplore the want of an inclination on the part of the Craft towards sustaining Masonic literature?

Inasmuch as Freemasonry has a literature we may well be proud of, let us one and all do our best to advance that literature. We cannot all be Masonic lawyers or historians, but we can, if we will, add our mite to the cause by subscribing for one or more of the Masonic publications, and thereby cause their Editors to give us a better class of Masonic literature for our money.

If any one doubts that a Masonic publication can be improved by a larger subscription list, let him look over the files of this Magazine for the past ten years and mark the difference between "then, and now."

At this season of the year the Craft have been called from refreshment to labour. Now, my brethren, let us include in our labour a little intellectual work—brain work would be a better term—and give the study of Masonic history, law and literature a portion of our spare time, and by so doing not only benefit ourselves but those around us. Let us have a little more "Masonry on the brain." It will not hurt us any. It will do us good, and we will be the better for it both mentally and spiritually; while the dismal features of life will not look half so gloomy. Give any one of our Editors a lift by subscribing for his publication, and if at the end of the year, you do not find your money well invested, "then I miss my guess: that's all."

As far as I am concerned, I am free to admit there was a time when I was egotistical enough to think I knew much about Masonry, but as I began to read, I very soon found I knew little about it, and I am confident I am not the only one who has had the conceit taken out of him in the same manner. I can truthfully say, the more I study Masonry the more I am convinced that I have not as yet learned its alphabet, and the more I read of its historical features and "law points" the more I see the necessity of a more thorough education, Masonically speaking, than is the lot of the majority of Masons.

Let us, one and all, from the Grand Master down to him who stands in the north-east, do our best to enhance the value of Masonic literature, ever bearing in mind that our Institution stands without a peer in the land, and to keep it in that position we must ever remember that, without its historical, legal and miscellaneous literature we will take the downward course, and instead of being without a peer, the poorest organisation in the land will be our peer.

PROVINCE OF HAMPSHIRE AND ISLE OF WIGHT.

THERE was a very large muster of Freemasons from the various Hampshire and Isle of Wight Lodges on the 1st inst., at the school-room, Bishopstoke. The principal item in the agenda paper was the election of Provincial Grand Treasurer, this office being vacant by the retirement of Bro. Mark E. Frost. The Past Grand Master, Brother W. W. Beach, M.P., presided, and was supported by the Deputy P.G. Master, Brother W. Hickman, the P.G. Officers, and representatives of every Lodge in the Province. The minutes of the last meeting having been confirmed, the report of the committee appointed to receive the accounts of Brother Frost, on his retirement, was presented and explained by the P.G. Secretary, Brother J. E. LeFeuvre. The accounts showed assets invested to the amount of £800, and cash in hand £368 2s 7d, and the securities and cash had been received from Brother Frost, and deposited with the National Provincial Bank. The report was adopted, on the motion of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, seconded by Brother Druitt P.G.S.W. The P.G. Master said it was his pleasing duty to move, and he was sure the P.G. Lodge would gladly accede to, a vote of thanks to Brother Frost, for the valuable services rendered by him for so many years. He (the P.G. Master) had himself many opportunities of observing the care with which he had carried out his duties, and the calm judgment he brought to bear on Masonic matters referred to him, and he was sure that every member of the P.G. Lodge would bear testimony to the courteous manner in which Brother Frost had ever met the brethren in P.G. Lodge. He was especially indebted to him for the cordial assistance he had given, and the P.G. Lodge was no less obliged to him for the faithful service he had rendered to their cause. He had had many onerous duties, and he had performed them ably and well. The Deputy P.G. Master seconded the proposition, which was carried with acclamation; and Bro. Frost briefly acknowledged the compliment. Bro. S. R. Ellis, P.M. Royal Sussex, then rose and nominated Bro. Robert J. Rastrick, P.M. and Treasurer of the United Brothers' Lodge at Southsea, to fill the office of P.G. Treasurer. He said that for several years the office had been filled by a Portsmouth Brother, and he argued that it was right that one of the permanent Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge should reside at Portsmouth, pointing out that other districts were already represented. There were fourteen Lodges at Portsmouth, with 1,000 subscribing members, and he thought they should have resident in the town some one in authority to whom they could refer. He referred to Bro. Rastrick's long Masonic career, and to the fact that for some generations his family had rendered good service to Masonry in the Province. Bro. Major Hooper of Southsea, seconded. Bro. R. Eve P.P.G.W. nominated Bro. R. Loveland Loveland of the Sandown Lodge. He disputed the claim of Portsmouth to any territorial right to the office of Treasurer, and said that if any such right existed the Isle of Wight must have an equal claim. He referred to the great zeal which Bro. Loveland had exhibited, not only in his own district, but in every part of the Province. Bro. F. Newman P.P.G.S.W. seconded. On a division, Bro. Rastrick was elected by a large majority, and the P.G. Master then invested him with the collar and jewel of the office. Bro. Rastrick briefly thanked the Lodge for their confidence. The report of the Committee appointed to consider the proposed Revision of the Book of Constitutions was, after some modifications, adopted. Bro. J. R. Hayman, who had given notice of his intention to move that the sum of 1,000 guineas be expended out of the Provincial Grand Lodge funds in the purchase of a perpetual presentation to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, asked permission to withdraw his motion for the present, and this was acceded to. Bro. R. Eye moved that, as the Provincial Grand Master would preside at the next Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, the sum of one hundred guineas be presented from the P.G. Lodge Funds to that Institution on the occasion. The proposition was duly seconded. Brother Francis P.M. (Havant) said that he had found, on investigation, that this Province had subscribed only £891 to the Girl's School, as compared with £2,177 to the Boys', and £1,586 to the Benevolent Institution, and while they had only four boys, there were twelve girls from the Province in the Masonic School. He therefore thought that to some extent they owed a debt to the Girls' School, and he moved, as an amendment, that the sum of 250 guineas be presented on the occasion of the P.G. Master presiding. Brother Eve said he would withdraw his proposition, and with pleasure second that of Brother Francis. The proposal to grant 250 guineas was unanimously agreed to, and the P.G. Master expressed his acknowledgments for the compliment thus paid to him. The Lodge was then closed.—Portsmouth Times.

The Brownrigg Chapter, No. 1564, was consecrated on Friday, the 2nd inst., at the Masonic Hall, Woking Station, by most Excellent Companion General Brownrigg, C.B., Grand Superintendent of Surrey. Comps. J. H. Askham 1564, W. H. Allen P.M. 153, G. Payne P.M. 1564, are the Principals who were installed.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Chest and Stomach Complaints.—The source and centre of almost every ailment is impurity of the blood; dislodge this poison, and disease departs. Holloway's Pills exercise the inestimable power of thoroughly cleansing each component of the blood, and rendering the fluid fit to perform its important functions. They cope most successfully with chest diseases, stomach complaints, liver disorders, and many other maladies, which were once the besetting dangers of mankind at certain seasons in town and country. The directions for use enable every one to regulate the operations of these Pills with the greatest nicety. Chronic invalids, valetudinarians, and all whom other treatment has failed to relieve, are respectfully invited to try Holloway's celebrated medicine, which will strengthen and cure them.

CONSECRATION OF THE HONOR OAK LODGE, No. 1,986.

A CONSIDERABLE amount of pleasurable interest and excitement was occasioned on Thursday afternoon, the 8th instant, in the picturesque and rapidly improving suburb of Honor Oak, by the consecration of a new Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, a warrant having been obtained through the influence of several brethren resident in the locality, and who had long desired such convenience for the members of the "mystic tie" who, spending the greater part of their time in the City, have chosen this district as their place of suburban residence. The event had been long anticipated with much interest, and in spite of the unfavourable weather on Thursday, there was a very large and distinguished assemblage of the brethren, including many Grand and Provincial Officers, in addition to brethren from the metropolitan Lodges, as well as from Brockley, Forest Hill, Anerley, Lewisham, Greenwich, and other parts. The ceremony was performed at the Moore Park Hotel, in the Westhall Road, which is to be the headquarters of the new "Honor Oak" Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, standing No. 1986 on the roll of the Grand Lodge of England. Soon after half-past three o'clock, the brethren assembled at the hotel, when Lodge was opened, under the presidency of the V.W. Brother Shadwell Clerke P.G.D., Grand Secretary of England, assisted by R.W. Brother Hugh D. Sandeman P.G.D.M. Bengal as Senior Warden, W. Brother Frank Richardson P.G.D. of England as Junior Warden, V.W. Brother the Rev. R. J. Simpson P.G.C. as Chaplain, W. Brother James Terry P.G.W. Norths and Hunts (Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution) as Master of Ceremonies, Bros. Walter Hopekirk P.M. Worshipful Master designate, John Hammond P.M. P.P.G.D. Middlesex Senior Warden designate, Charles Henry Phillips Junior Warden designate, &c. Amongst those present were Bros. Colonel M. Ramsay 41 P.D.G.M. Punjaub, Joseph William Hartley, J. W. Wilson Haffenden 1854, H. J. Maunder Williams 1669 acting Sec., Henry Stokes S.D. 141, G. W. Knight J.D. 1507, Edmund Bye sen. 141, Herbert Hooper 1949, &c. The Visitors included:—Bros. C. H. Drew P.M. 905 P.P.G.S.W., C. T. Walls W.M. 141 P.P.G.S.D. Middlesex, J. Mason 1567 P.P.G.S.D. Middlesex, Henry Lovegrove P.M. P.P.G. Supt. Works, W. Hammond P.M. P.P.G.D. Middlesex, James Stevens P.M. 1426, W. Poore P.M. 186, T. Cantrell P.M. 1397, A. Darch P.M. 186, B. Fulwood P.M. 742, C. Hubbard P.M. 820, C. Pugsley P.M. 179, George Kenning P.M. 192, H. Sadler P.M. Grand Tyler, J. Kew P.M. 179, C. Middlemass P.M. 957, H. Stiles W.M. 1507, A. Millward W.M. 1677, Wringle W.M. 766, A. R. Hanch S.W. 1669, W. Dickeson S.W. 179, W. C. Davey J.W. 1512, W. T. Bell S.D. 1044, John Hammocks 179, T. P. Bedford 77, W. E. Stark 1765, L. Benit 179, G. J. E. March 1586, H. A. Lovell 179, H. Sweeting 1901, T. Seymour 179, F. France 862, J. C. Woodrow 1297, J. Lightfoot 1901, E. A. Francis 1658, W. Carter 141, J. Letchford 1658, C. J. Howe 1155, J. Wicks 815, J. Cotton 1155, Frank Baker 1206, C. W. Fox 1326, A. Pelgrin 1625, T. W. Aldwinckle 1328, J. Holland 141, J. Goodall 1672, D. G. Hewitt 766, D. Forbes 766, S. W. Acock 1901, J. F. Johnson 79, W. Bosher 1901, J. Ingram 172, J. B. Lassam 742, J. Sarjeant 1765, G. C. Hudson 141, J. C. Reynolds 1329, and many others. Lodge having been opened in the three degrees, the hymn commencing "Hail! Eternal, by whose aid," was sung, when the presiding Officer addressed the brethren on the motive of the meeting, and prayer was offered by the Chaplain. The acting Secretary, Brother H. M. Williams then addressed the presiding Officer, setting forth the mode in which the warrant was obtained, and stating the names of the founders who signed the petition, and Colonel Shadwell Clerke having replied, gave directions by which the brethren of the new Lodge were arranged in order. The acting Secretary read the petition and warrant, and the brethren having signified their approval of the officers named, an eloquent oration on the nature and principles of the Institution was delivered by the Chaplain. An anthem, "The Lord is in His holy Temple," was sung, and the first portion of the dedication prayer said, followed by the chant (Omnes) "So mote it be." The brethren then turned towards the East whilst the presiding officer gave the Invocation, and after the chanted responses, the Chaplain read 2 Chron. ii. 1 to 16. The Lodge Board was then uncovered and the Master and Wardens pro tem carried the elements of consecration three times round the Lodge, halting in the East at each perambulation. During the first circuit the brethren sang, "When once of old in Israel" (Melcombe), and on arriving in the East the Consecrating Officer strewed corn, the emblem of plenty. During the second circuit the brethren sang "When there a shrine to Him alone," and the Consecrating Officer in the East poured wine, the emblem of joy and happiness, followed by the musical response, "Glory be to God on High." During the third circuit the brethren sang, "And we have come, fraternal bands," the Consecrating Officer in the East pouring oil, the emblem of unity, followed by the responses. The Presiding Officer then dedicated the Lodge, in accordance with ancient rites, and the anthem, "Glory be to God on High," was sung. The Chaplain then took the censer three times round the Lodge (solemn music being performed during his progress), and halting, in the East, he said the second portion of the dedication prayer, followed by the chant, "So mote it be." The Presiding Officer then constituted the Lodge, and the anthem, "Glory to God on high," having been repeated, the ceremony closed with the final Benediction. Lodge was then resumed in the second degree, and a Board of Installed Masters having been constituted Bro. Walter Hopekirk P.M. was duly installed as the first Worshipful Master of the Lodge, the rite being most impressively performed. On the re-admission of the brethren the newly-installed Worshipful Master was greeted, and saluted with full Masonic honours, after which he proceeded to invest his Officers for the ensuing year, the collars being thus bestowed:—Bros. Colonel M. Ramsay P.D.G.M. Punjaub I.P.M., John Hammond P.P.G.D. Middlesex S.W., Charles Henry Phillips J.W., Edmund Bye sen. Treasurer, H. Maunder Williams Secretary, Henry Stokes S.D., Joseph William Hartley J.D., Herbert Hooper I.G., G. W. Knight W.S., R. R. Johnstone A.S., and C. Thomas Provincial Grand Tyler Herts Tyler. Several propositions for initiation and joining were entered, and after singing the hymn, "Now the evening shadows closing," Lodge was closed in form, and the brethren and visitors adjourned to a récherché banquet, provided in most excellent style by Brother E. Bye, whose arrangements gave unqualified satisfaction to all present. The customary Loyal and Craft toasts were proposed and duly honoured, and amidst an abundance of excellent vocal and instrumental music a thoroughly harmonious and agreeable evening was enjoyed. The Lodge-room is commodious and in every respect adapted for the purposes of the Lodge. We propose giving a report of the speeches at the banquet in our next issue

BE TEMPERATE IN ALL THINGS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I can scarcely agree with your correspondent, an "AMUSED READER," in the jaunty tone he assumed in the letter which appeared in the last issue of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE. Discussion of matters affecting the interests of the Craft, and especially of our Institutions, are wholesome and beneficial, and many a time useful information has been elicited by the interchange of even unpalatable truths. It is, therefore, unfair and impolitic to burke all such candid expressions, and try to laugh them down, either by sarcasm or abuse; and I cannot help fancying your "AMUSED READER" has treated us to a little of both. I do not happen to know much from personal experience of the inner life of our Boys' School, from the fact, as your correspondent suggests, of my being one of those subscribers who, living in a distant province, are not often in London, and therefore have few opportunities of visiting the School. But, taking a great interest, as all Masons must naturally do, in the Charities of which we are so proud, I certainly was staggered at some of the statements contained in the anonymous correspondence, upon which you have commented, I think, fairly and impartially. Still, it does not necessarily follow that because a man sees a fault, or imagines such a fault exists, and has the courage to declare his opinion, that he should be at once set upon and belaboured as a dissatisfied and dishonest Paul Pry, whose personal dignity has been offended, or who smarts under the idea of cavalier treatment. I can scarcely imagine a brother setting to himself the task of concocting a gratuitous insult to the Managing Committee, and a gross libel upon the officials, if there were not "something in it." And if there is any screw loose, if the boys look terror-stricken, and present such a forlorn aspect that the officials do not care for them to be seen by visitors, why the sooner some explanation is given the better it must be for all concerned. Your version of the affair is satisfactory to me, as I have no doubt it will have been to the bulk of the subscribers; but the point I would aim at is, that correspondents should use a little less of personality, and not be ready to jump down another man's throat the moment he says anything in disparagement of any of our Institutions. Charity is as valuable an attribute in correspondence as it is in other practice; and an "AMUSED READER" should recollect that, though the shafts of satire are sharp, they are sometimes let fly at random, and do more harm than good. In all cases truth will prevail, and it needs not an angry or peevish pen to defend any of the interests of Freemasonry.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

Torquay, 6th Feb. 1883. VIGIL.

OLD GRAVESTONES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have but just seen Bro. Jas. Lawton's letter on this subject, and, consequently, I must reserve fuller and accurate particulars till next week. Meantime, however, I am in a position to state that there is a tomb in St. Helen's Church, Bishopsgate, to the memory of a worthy gentleman who is described on it as a "Freemason," and who died—if I remember rightly—in the year 1597. The individual thus commemorated was unquestionably a man of position, but what meaning must be attached to the word "Freemason" must, in the absence of further information, remain in doubt. In a letter to the Freemason, written some time since, I suggested that possibly it might correspond with the present title of "City Architect," and Bro. Hughan seemed to think this was not a bad suggestion. However, I will furnish further particulars, as I have said, in time for your next number, if you will kindly find the required space.

Fraternally yours,

G. B. A.

P.S.—I may add that Bro. Rylands described the same tomb in the late Masonic Magazine.

There were also present Comps. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke S.E., H. J. P. Dumas as Scribe N., J. Marsh Case as P.S., W. G. Harrison, Q.C., 1st A.S., Rev. Thomas Robinson 2nd A.S., H. Maudslay Sword Bearer, Charles Greenwood D.C., A. J. Duff-Filer, Joshua Nunn, Colonel H. Somerville Burney, Frank Richardson, John Messent, Robert Grey, J. Sampson Peirce, H. G. Buss Assistant S.E., W. H. Dean, H. Stiles, George Drysdale, R. W. Forge, W. B. Lloyd, Charles F. Liversedge, Albert Escott, W. G. Kentish, C. A. Woods, E. Farwig, Julius Quitmann, Alfred A. Pendlebury, Neville Green, W. H. Lee, H. Massey, Edgar Bowyer, William Vincent, H. E. Frances, Frederick Levick, S. P. Catterson, E. Legg, W. M. Stiles, and H. Sadler Grand Janitor. After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, charters were granted for the following new Chapters:—

A Chapter to be attached to the Holme Valley Lodge, No. 652, Holmfirth, to be called "The Chapter of Industry," and to meet at the Victoria Hotel, Holmfirth, Yorkshire.

A Chapter to be attached to the Lodge of Goodwill, No. 465, Bellary, to be called "The Goodwill Chapter," and to meet at Bellary, Madras, East Indies.

A Chapter to be attached to the Duke of Cornwall Lodge, No. 1839, London, to be called "The Duke of Cornwall Chapter," and to meet at the Freemasons' Hall, London.

A Chapter to be attached to the Prince of Wales Lodge, No. 1338, Auckland, New Zealand, to be called "The Auckland Chapter," and to meet at the Freemasons' Hall, Princes Street, Auckland, North Island, New Zealand.

A Chapter to be attached to the Remuera Lodge, No. 1710, Remuera, New Zealand, to be called "The Remuera Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, Remuera, Auckland, North Island, New Zealand.

A Chapter to be attached to the Camden Lodge, No. 704, London, to be called "The Camden Chapter," and to meet at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet Street, in the City of London.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF HAMPSHIRE AND THE ISLE OF WIGHT.

A MEETING was held on Friday, 2nd inst., at Bishopstoke, and was attended by upwards of a hundred Companions. M.E. Comp. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., G. Superintendent, presided, and was supported in the other principal chairs by M.E. Comps. W. Hickman and R. Eve. M.E. Comp. Mark E. Frost resigned the office of Treasurer, and M.E. Comp. R. J. Rastrick (Portsmouth) moved, and M.E. Comp. S. R. Ellis (Portsmouth) seconded, the election of M.E. Comp. R. Loveland Loveland, which was adopted unanimously. A vote of thanks was passed to the late Treasurer, after which the Grand Officers of the Chapter were invested for the ensuing year as follow:—M.E. Comps. Hickman H., Rev. J. N. Palmer 175 J., J. E. Le Feuvre E., Loveland Loveland Treasurer, George Rake 487 N., Major Douglas 1331 P.S., M. Emanuel 130 first A.S., John Brickwood 342 Second ditto, Snelling Reg., T. Good 1776 Swd.B., Elverston 804 St.B., Lynn 1428 D.C., G. Pearman Org. and Biggs, and Exell J.'s. The M.E.G. Supt. warmly congratulated the Grand Chapter on the flourishing condition of Royal Arch Masonry in the Province, and after the usual business had been transacted, the Chapter was closed in the usual ancient form. The brethren afterwards dined together at the Junction Railway Hotel, when the customary loyal and Royal Arch toasts were given by M.E. Comp. W. W. B. Beach M.P., who presided.

The Sportsman's Exhibition, at the Agricultural Hall, closes to-day (Saturday). It is not inferior to its predecessor. The exhibits are varied and interesting, and those who have not yet visited the Hall should not lose the opportunity of doing so this afternoon. They will see a rare collection of drags, dogcarts, victorias, and other descriptions of vehicles; some of the best horse-gear for hunting and general purposes to be found anywhere; bicycles and tricycles; all kinds of boating appliances, &c. Messrs. Burroughes and Watt's Billiard Table displays are about the most prominent feature of the show. We would also draw attention to the mail coach, exhibited by Mr. W. Carpenter, of Staines; the dogcart and landau of Messrs. E. Robinson and Son, of Cheshunt, and the Clapton-Hooded Phæton of Mr. W. Goulden.

MARK MASONRY.

MINERVA LODGE, No. 12.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge of Mark Masons was held on Monday evening, the 5th instant, at the Minerva Lodge, Dagger-lane, Hull. Present—Bros. Ansell W.M., Sissons P.M. Chap., Holder S.W., Scherling P.M. as J.W., Hardy P.M. Treasurer, Reynolds P.M. Secretary, Shackles M.O., Balchin as S.O., Forder J.O., Johnson Registrar, Pyburn as S.D., England J.D., Sidman M.C., Vesey King Organist, Sweeting Steward, Toor I.G., Clayton Tyler; also Bros. Smith P.M. P.G.S. of Works, Thompson P.M., Pyburn, Marshall, Bryan, Hopwood, Loveridge, Logan, Whiteside, Ansell, Vise, Blackburn, Parratt, Whitfield, Matthews, Linwood, Wellsted, Campbell, Thompson, and A. Thornton. Visitors—Bros. Middleton P.M. P.G.D.C. for N. and E.R. Yorks 95, Scarborough, Wilson P.M. 182, Hull, Wilson P.M. P.P.G.S. of Works for N. and E.R. Yorks 281 Beverlac. Lodge having been opened in due form, the ballot was taken for Bros. R. W. Moll, Hermann of the Minerva Lodge, Firth, Lieut.-Col. Pudsey, the Rev. H. E. Casson and Sutton of the Kingston, who were accepted and advanced to the degree of M.M. Mason. The W.M. having vacated the chair in favour of Bro. Reynolds P.G.D.C., Bro. Pyburn was installed as the W.M. for the ensuing year. The Installing Master was ably assisted by Bros. P.M.'s Smith and Scherling, who gave respectively the addresses to the Wardens and brethren. The following Officers were then appointed and invested:—Bros. Ansell I.P.M., Shackles S.W., Baldwin J.W., Hardy P.M. P.G.S.O. Treasurer, Reynolds P.M. P.G.D.C. Secretary, Rev. H. Casson Chaplain, Hopwood M.O., England S.O., Wellsted J.O., Johnston Registrar, Linwood S.D., Thornton J.D., Sidman M.C., King Organist, Fullerton I.G., Clayton Tyler. Hearty good wishes having been expressed and recorded, Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshments, where the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. During the evening several of the speakers stated it was their opinion that the good and welfare of the Lodge would be much augmented if it could meet monthly instead of three times a-year, as heretofore, and from the manner the question was received and discussed, we entertain no doubt that some change in the number of meetings may shortly be made.

The General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys met last Saturday, at the Freemasons' Hall, when there were present Bros. Raynham W. Stewart P.G.D. (in the chair), W. Roebuck, J. L. Mather, A. J. Duff-Filer, F. W. Ramsey, M.D., C. H. Webb, Rev. Richard Morris, D.D. (Head Master), Edgar Bowyer, Donald M. Dewar, W. Mann, George M. E. Snow, H. Young, H. Massey, F. Adlard, James Moon, George P. Gillard, W. Maple, H. S. Goodall, W. Paas, Thomas Cubitt, W. H. Saunders, and F. Binckes (Secretary). A letter was read from a former pupil and his mother, thanking the Committee for the grant they had made, which had assisted the boy into the Royal Navy. A candidate (Musgrave) was withdrawn from the April list, making the number of candidates for the April election 64 instead of 65. The Chairman said a full copy of the letter, as originally sent to the Freemason, had been obtained from Brother Nicols, and as the General Committee had full confidence in the House Committee, it would be referred to the House Committee. After the report of the Audit Committee had been read and adopted, £1,000 was ordered to be invested in India Debenture stock. One candidate was placed on the list for October, and an outfit of £5 was granted to a former pupil. The Committee then adjourned.

On Thursday Bros. Baker opened their new premises, the "Falstaff," Eastcheap, and invited a host of their friends and patrons to be present on the occasion. We reserve our description of the hostelry till next week, partly owing to the pressure on our space, but principally because the opening for public accommodation will not take place till Monday next, when visitors will have an opportunity of judging for themselves of the enterprise of our worthy brothers. Meanwhile, we may state that Bros. Baker, who are known to be among the most prominent and successful caterers for the public—the Angel, Islington, the Cock at Highbury, and other houses are under their management—have in fact surpassed all their former efforts. The accommodation and provision at the "Falstaff" are excellent, and those who enter its hospitable gates will be hard indeed to please if they cannot find the wherewith to satisfy their needs in the greatest of ease and comfort.

Bro. Davies will rehearse the ceremony of installation at the New Finsbury Park Lodge of Instruction, No. 1605, at Hornsey Wood Tavern, on Tuesday next, 13th instant, at eight o'clock p.m.

THE HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY.*

WE are at length in a position to fulfil our promise of reviewing at length the First Volume of Brother Gould's elaborate History of Freemasonry. We briefly described it at the time of its publication, but our remarks were of a general character, or concerned the manner in which the book had been got up rather than the matter it contained. Be it now our care to consider it fully, so that our readers may be in a position to judge of its character, and the influence it is likely to exercise in settling, as far as may be, the many vexed questions connected with the Craft.

The most difficult part of Bro. Gould's labours occurs at their very outset. Before tracing the progress of Freemasonry, it is, of course, necessary, and were it not necessary, it would undoubtedly be desirable, that he should endeavour, to the best of his ability, to enlighten his readers as to its origin. What has been written, heretofore, on this branch of the subject has had no other effect than to make the Craft ridiculous in the eyes of men. What other reception could be expected for works which traced the origin of Freemasonry to prehistoric times, and associated all the principal personages in Biblical history with its development? Yet something of this kind has been attempted by the majority of writers on Masonic history, and hence the remark of Hallam, as quoted in the foot note p 1, by Bro. Gould, that "the curious subject of Freemasonry has unfortunately been treated only by panegyrists or calumniators, both equally mendacious." Hence, likewise, the more recent observations of Dr. Armstrong, Bishop of Grahamstown, also quoted by Bro. Gould, when he refers to "the sprightly and vivacious accounts of the modern Masonic annalists, who display in their histories a haughty independence of facts, and make up for the scarcity of evidence by a surprising fecundity of invention. 'Speculative Masonry,' as they call it, seems to have favoured them with a large portion of her airy materials, and with ladders, scaffolding, and bricks of air, they have run up their historical structures with wonderful ease." The design of Bro. Gould's work, he tells us, is "to embody in a single publication the legendary and authentic histories of the Craft," the former having been already treated by Bro. Fort in his "Early History and Antiquities of Freemasonry," and the latter by Bro. Findel, from both which writers, however, Bro. Gould dissents very materially. We are further informed that, "for the sake of convenience"—there being no lodge records in England of the seventeenth century, and records of only one between 1700 and 1717, the birth-year of our Grand Lodge—"the mythico-historical period of Freemasonry will be held to have extended to 1717," the special circumstances connected with early Masonry in Scotland, where the records go back as far as 1599, being considered later on, "when the histories of our British Grand Lodges are separately treated." Of the spirit in which Bro. Gould has entered on his task, we may to a certain extent form an opinion. He writes:—"From the records that have come down to us it will be my endeavour to present, as far as possible, the leading features of the real Antiquities of Freemasonry, that every reader may test the soundness of my general conclusions by an examination of the evidence on which they are based." Again, he says:—"Much of the early history of Freemasonry is so interspersed with fable and romance, that, however anxious he may be to deal tenderly with long-cherished legends and traditions, some at least of those familiar superstitions—unless we choose to violate every canon of historical criticism—must be allowed to pass quietly into oblivion." And, later on:—"In the main, however, whilst carefully discarding the plainly fabulous narratives with which our Masonic system is encumbered, I am of opinion that the view to which Schlegel has given expression is one that we shall do well to adopt. He says: 'I have laid it down as an invariable maxim to follow historical tradition, and to hold fast by that alone, even when many things in the testimony and declarations of tradition appear strange and almost inexplicable, or at least enigmatical; for as soon as in the investigations of ancient history we let slip that thread of Ariadne, we can find no outlet from the labyrinth of fanciful theories, and the chaos of clashing opinions.'" These extracts will suffice to show all that is necessary as to the kind of treatment we may expect from Bro. Gould.

Several "short studies" on the origin of Freemasonry precede the work of examining and estimating the value of the more important theories. Thus attention is drawn to the supposed connection between Freemasonry and Druidism, to Mr. Clinch's theory of its identity with the system of Pythagoras, to its Templar origin, &c., as to the last of which Bro. Gould puts forward an argument which has been favoured by Dr. Armstrong, and which, in his opinion, is as much superior to other theories as "one inconclusive chain of reasoning can be termed better or worse than another whose links are alike defective." This he gives in Dr. Armstrong's own words, who says, "The order of the Temple was called 'the Knighthood of the Temple of Solomon,' not in allusion to the first temple built by Solomon, but to their hospital or residence at Jerusalem, which was so-called to distinguish it from the temple erected on the site of that destroyed by Titus. Now, when we find a body said to be derived from the Templars, leaving amongst the plumage with which the modern society has clumsily adorned itself, so much mention of the Temple of Solomon, there seems some sort of ground for believing in the supposed connection. The Hospitallers of St. John, once the rivals, became the successors of the Templars, and absorbed a large portion of their revenues at the time of their suppression. This would account for the connection between the Freemasons and St. John."

After a few general observations on the character of the historical connection existing or appearing to exist among divers institutions, Bro. Gould proceeds to consider the four systems or sects from each of which, according to different schools of thought, may be traced the modern system of Freemasonry. These are the Ancient Mysteries, the Essenes, the Roman Collegia, and the Culdees. As regards the first named, those only are noticed which may tend to throw a light on Freemasonry, and for the purpose of investigation they are viewed in a double aspect, one relating to "the mysteries properly so-called, that is, those in which no one was allowed to partake unless he had undergone formal initiation, as distinguished from the mystic ceremonies of certain festivals, the performance of which, though confined to particular classes of persons, or to a particular sect, yet did not require a regular initiation;" and the other "the later or corrupted mysteries, which continued until the fourth or fifth centuries of the Christian era." It being obvious that the mysteries of the ancient world have an important bearing on all the secret societies of the Middle Ages, inasmuch as they present the first examples of such societies, and are the models which have been followed by all later imitations, then, argues Brother Gould, "if we regard Freemasonry (in its existing form) as an assimilation of the mysteries, our attention should be chiefly directed to the bewitching dreams of the Grecian mythologists, which, enhanced by the attractions of poetry and romance, would naturally influence the minds of those 'men of letters' who, it is asserted, 'in the year 1646' rearranged the forms for the reception of Masonic candidates," that is, to "the Mysteries properly so-called." On the other hand, if Freemasonry "is regarded as the direct descendant or as a survival of the Mysteries" we must look for its origin in the rites of Mithraism, that is, "the later or corrupted mysteries." He then enumerates or describes, "as far as possible, the earlier of these mysteries, and in his examination of their doctrines or principles, their rites or ceremonies, and the emblems or symbols usual" in them, bids the reader have ever in his mind the question propounded by the late Dr. Mackey, "Is Freemasonry a lineal and uninterrupted successor of the Ancient Mysteries—the succession handed down through the Mysteries of Mithras, which existed in the fifth and sixth centuries, or is the fact of these analogies to be attributed to the coincidence of a natural process of human thought common to all human minds, and showing its outgrowth in symbolic forms?"

As to the real objects of the Mysteries, and the doctrines they inculcated, in the absence of any certain knowledge of these, Bro. Gould gives in outline some of the theories that have been advanced at different times. These theories, it is well known, are very contradictory: but still, he remarks, "it is tolerably clear, that however much the mysteries may have degenerated in the course of time, or have become obscured by popular tradition or fanciful allegory, they were established in very early and semi-civilised times, and that they contained the germs of those great moral truths—possibly, indeed, the relics of a primitive religion—but which we find implanted in the heart of man (except in a state of savagery) in all ages and countries. They seem to have been mimic representations of mythological incidents, joined with the giving of amulets as preservatives against future dangers, but as all ancient and all false religions are corruptions of one great idea inherent in the human race, and possibly forming originally one primitive creed, in these ceremonies men must have seen or have thought they saw, traces of the teachings of a higher power, and more ancient faith." And further on he remarks, "Upon the whole, it seems fairly certain that the Mysteries tended to open up a comforting prospect in the life to come," and again, "Taken as a whole, the effect was probably good, as awakening and keeping alive a sense of reverence and immortality."

The rites and ceremonies are dismissed with a few general, but sufficient, remarks. It is well to note that no doubt exists, as is pointed out to us, that in all the Mysteries, "the initiated possessed secret signs of recognition," the reason of this being exemplified by a passage from Dr. Warburton's "Divine Legation," which may very well be reproduced here.

"Motion, naturally significative, which enters at the eye, hath a much stronger effect than articulate sound, only arbitrarily significative, which enters at the ear. Language, as appears from the records of history, and from the remains of the most ancient languages yet remaining, was at first extremely rude, narrow, and equivocal, so that men would be perpetually at a loss, on any new conception, or uncommon accident, to explain themselves intelligibly to one another. The art of enlarging language by a scientific analogy being a late invention, this would necessarily set them upon supplying the deficiencies of speech by apt and significant signs. Accordingly, in the first ages of the world, mutual converse was upheld by a mixed discourse of words and actions: hence came the eastern phrase of the voice of the sign: and use and custom, as in most other offices of life, improving what had arisen out of necessity into ornament, the practice subsisted long after the necessity was over."

As Bro. Gould very judiciously remarks, in reference to the foregoing passage, "it is evident that, in the cultivation of this system of pantomimic gesture, it would become necessary to intermix with the gestures, naturally significative, other gestures made significative by institution, that is, brought by arbitrary use, to have as determined and positive a meaning as the others," and he gives as an example of this mode of speaking by action an old saying of Heraclitus, cited by Warburton, "That the king, whose oracle is at Delphi, neither speaks nor keeps silent, but reveals by signs."

Another feature in connection with the mysteries is pointed out, namely, that as regards "emblems, symbols, types," they "all have this in common; they are the representatives of something else for which they stand," and Dr. Stukeley is quoted as saying, that "The first learning of the world consisted chiefly of symbols. The wisdom of the Chaldeans, Phœnicians, Egyptians, Jews, of Zoroaster, Sanchoniatho, Pherecydes, Syrus, Pythagoras, Socrates, Plato, of all the ancients that have come to our hand, is symbolic." Some curious circumstances are furnished in connection with this branch of the subject, of "the symbolism of the Mason's art" in the Chinese classics, Mr. Giles being his authority for the statement that, in the written language of the Chinese, curious Masonic expressions were in use more than seven hundred years before the Christian era, or only about two hundred years after the death of King Solomon, and he reproduces a quotation by Mr. Giles from the works of Mencius, the great disciple of Confucius, which reads thus:—"A master mason, in teaching his apprentices, makes use of the compasses and the square. Ye who are engaged in the pursuit of wisdom must also make use of the compasses and the square." It should be remarked, that the Chinese words for "compasses" and "square" represent "order, regularity, and propriety," so that the meaning of the passage just quoted will be apparent. Mr. Giles, we are told, has also pointed out that in the oldest of the Chinese classics, "which embraces a period from the twenty-fourth to the seventh century before Christ, there are distinct allusions to this particular symbolism. Of this, indeed, we have already spoken, in a former volume of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, in our review of Mr. Giles's "Freemasonry in China," to which, of course, we refer the reader who may be desirous of multiplying instances of these allusions and expressions.

FORTITUDE AND OLD CUMBERLAND LODGE, No. 12.

THE installation meeting of this popular Lodge was held on the 5th instant, at the Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street. There was a numerous attendance of members and Visitors, and banners with the arms of the several Masters decorated the Lodge room. The chair was occupied by the W.M., Bros. E. E. Barratt-Kidder, Beedell S.W., Mathews J.W., Dudley Rolls P.M. Treasurer, A. Snelgrove P.M. Secretary, Pigache S.D., Jones J.D., Rolls I.G.; P.M.'s Coombs, Lily, Stewart P.G.D., Ruf, Mower, S. H. Rolls, Lemaitre. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. Dr. Ramsay P.P.G.S.D. Middlesex, Valeriani 1687, Clark P.M. 1777, Chapman P.G.S. W.M. 91, Beedell P.M. 1607, Cozens 907, Weaver 1365, Norman P.G.S., Ockenden P.M. 1512, Green late 12, Snelgrove 108, Murray 1706, Taylor 802, Culyerwell 261, Parsons W.M. 1766, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188. Lodge was opened, and the minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed, a notice of motion, given by Bro. Dudley Rolls, and seconded by the W.M., was carried unanimously:—"That there be no regular meeting of the Lodge in the month of April, but in lieu thereof, the brethren have a recreative dinner during the month of July, if the funds of the Lodge admit; the fixing of the time and place of meeting to be the prerogative of the W.M.; the Secretary to make the necessary alteration in the Bye-laws." A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Beedell S.W. and W.M. elect was presented to the Lodge in the presence of seventeen W.M.'s and P.M.'s, and duly installed into the chair by the retiring W.M. Bro. E. E. Barratt-Kidder, who performed his duty in a very perfect and impressive manner, and was deservedly applauded by the Visitors at the conclusion of the ceremony. The brethren having been re-admitted, the W.M. was saluted according to ancient custom. He then in appropriate terms, appointed and invested his Officers:—Bros. Barratt-Kidder I.P.M., Mathews S.W., Pigache J.W., Dudley Rolls P.M. Treasurer, A. Snelgrove P.M. Sec., Jones S.D., H. Rolls J.D., O. Peall I.G., Marsh Tyler. The new W.M. then, in the name of the Lodge, presented a very elegant P.M.'s jewel to the I.P.M. He said he had great pleasure in placing it on his breast, as he had done his duties well, even to the last call made on him. He hoped Bro. Kidder might live long to wear it; and be present to hear the same complimentary words spoken of him as were expressed on his leaving the chair. Bro. Kidder, in suitable terms, returned thanks for the valuable gift. The brethren then sat down to a sumptuous banquet and dessert, provided by Bros. C. and A. Painter. The W.M. proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. The toast of H.R.H. the M.W.G.M. was then given, and was enthusiastically received, Bro. Cozens singing God bless the Prince of Wales. In giving the toast of the Pro G.M., the D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, the W.M. remarked they had one member of the Lodge who was a Grand Officer, who had done good service to the Craft, and is looked up to as a supporter of its noble Institutions. They were proud to have Bro. Raynham Stewart among them. He is one of their oldest and most respected P.M.'s. Bro. R. W. Stewart P.G.D. said, nothing could have given him greater pleasure than to come down among his old friends in this Lodge. He had been connected with Grand Lodge for 20 years. In reference to the Pro G.M. and the D.G.M., no better Masons ever existed Bro. E. E. Kidder I.P.M. said that it was a great pleasure for him, for the first time, to propose the toast of the W.M. Bro. Beedell for some time had not been in very good health; the members, however, were pleased to see him occupying the chair. He (Bro. Kidder) thought they had the right man in the right place. Bro. Beedell had filled every office in the Lodge with credit, and all felt sure he would give satisfaction, and continue as he had begun. He called on all to drink the toast with the enthusiasm it deserved. The Worshipful Master, in replying, said he felt it a great honour to have his health proposed in this Lodge. He thanked the Immediate Past Master for his good wishes. He trusted as W.M. to be able to do all that might be required of him. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Visitors. The Lodge was always pleased to see them; as they were so numerous he would call on Bros. Chapman W.M. 91, Beedell 1607 and Martin 1768 to respond. Bro. Chapman, in an eloquent speech, said he had to perform the installation ceremony on Thursday night, and hoped he might be able to do the same as well as it had been done by Bro. Kidder. Bros. Norman and Beedell followed. Bro. H. Norman P.G.S. said the W.M. was a very old friend of his, and he felt he could congratulate the Lodge on his accepting the chair; he hoped next year to see him instal his successor. The W.M. next proposed the health of the Installing Master. Bro. Kidder had reached a step higher than he—and he heartily congratulated him; he had striven to do his duty, and the members fully recognised his qualifications. Bro. Kidder had in every respect done what any Lodge might be proud of—it was due to him to say that amidst all the cares of business he had done what every I.P.M. should do, viz., instal his successor. Moreover, he had done it well. Bro. Kidder, in reply, thanked the W.M. for his kind words. He appreciated them the more as they had ever worked heartily together. He also thanked the P.M.'s for their assistance. He might say he was one of those who thought it was the duty of every W.M. to instal his successor, and he had striven to do it to the best of his ability. He had now again to thank the W.M. for placing on his breast the Past Master's jewel, which would be worn with pride and honour. In speaking to the toast of the P.M.'s, the W.M. said no Lodge could exist without P.M.'s; those present would be a credit to any Lodge; he would couple the name of their Treasurer, and esteemed friend, the father of the Lodge, Bro. Ruf, who was W.M. of the Lodge in 1856. Bro. Ruf, in reply, felt justified in saying the P.M.'s had all done their work well; this had been conducive to the success of the Lodge. He was initiated in 1850, and still hoped to be with them many years. Bro. Dudley Rolls, in replying as Treasurer, said all he could do for the benefit of the Lodge was at the command of its members. Bro. A. Snelgrove P.M. and Secretary followed, and fully endorsed all the previous speakers had said. He, as well as each Officer appointed, had but the welfare of the Lodge at heart. The toast of the other Officers was given, and Bro. Jones S.D. responded. The Tyler then gave the parting toast. During the evening the brethren derived much entertainment from the excellent singing of Bros. Snelgrove, Kidder, Coombes, and others. Bro. F. H. Cozens also rendered great assistance as accompanyist.

Loughborough Lodge of Instruction, No. 22.—A meeting was held on Monday, 5th inst., at Brother McDiarmaid's, Cambria Tavern, Loughborough Junction. Present—Bros. Brown W.M., Banks S.W., Harvey J.W., McDiarmaid Treasurer, Lowden S.D., Wood J.D., Perkins I.G., Johnson Preceptor; also Bros. Price, Westley, Kirk, and others. After preliminaries, the second section of the first lecture was worked by the Preceptor, and the second by Brother Westley. The ceremony of initiation was then rehearsed by the W.M., with Brother Price as candidate. Bros. Wood and Kirk were elected members. A cordial vote of thanks was given to Brother Brown for his working in the chair, for the first time in any Lodge. Brother Banks was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. All Masonic business being ended, the Lodge was closed in antient form, and adjourned till 12th inst., at 7.30 p.m. The usual meeting for harmony followed.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 196.—At the Jolly Farmers, Southgate-road, Islington, on the 3rd instant. Present:—Bros. Ashton W.M., Galer S.W., Venning J.W., Pearcy Preceptor, Fenner Secretary, C. Lorkin Treasurer, A. Ferrar S.D., Foxcroft J.D., Dixie I.G.; also Bros. R. Defries, J. A. Powell, Wolf, Houghton, Mackey, Parkes, Archer, Weeden, Hatch, Brasted, Francke, Snook. After preliminaries the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed. Bro. C. Lorkin worked the first, second and third sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bros. W. M. Foxcroft, of the Domatic Lodge, No. 177, and W. Francke, of the Kingsland Lodge, No. 1686, were elected members. Bro. Galer was appointed W.M. for next week. A vote of thanks was awarded the W.M., this being his first attempt at conducting the business. Bros. Powell, Weeden, Galer, Dixie, Parkes and Ferrar were appointed auditors, after which Lodge was closed and adjourned.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—A meeting was held at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge, on Friday, the 2nd inst. Present—Bros. J. A. Cammell W.M., A. Turner S.W., E. Monson J.W., H. E. Tucker W.M. 1612 Treasurer, F. Botley Sec., C. E. Botley S.D., Fenner J.D., Hurst I.G.; P.M.'s Bros. Andrews and Blasby; Bros. Hemming and Howe. Visitors—Bros. Hurst S.W. 15, Williams 902, Weeden 813. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of last meeting were read, confirmed and signed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Weeden candidate. Bros. C. E. Botley and Hurst worked the first; Bro. Andrews P.M. and the brethren the second; and Bro. Fenner and the brethren worked the third section of the first lecture. Bros. Hurst, Williams and Weeden were elected members. Bro. A. Turner was elected W.M. for the 9th inst. A cordial vote of thanks, to be recorded on the minutes, was accorded to Bro. Cammell, for the able manner in which he had fulfilled the duties of the chair for the first time. Lodge was then closed and adjourned until the 9th inst.

Dalston, on Tuesday, 6th inst. The Preceptor of the Lodge, Brother Wallington, occupied the chair, supported by Bros. Carr S.W., Clark J.W., Brasted S.D., Robinson J.D., Gray I.G., Smyth, Christian, &c. Lodge was opened in due form, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Smyth candidate. Bro. Clark gave the lecture on the tracing board in a most able and instructive manner. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Christian delivered the lecture in that degree to the pleasure of the brethren. Lodge was opened in the third degree, and regularly closed to the first. Bro. F. Carr was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and appointed his Officers in rotation. Lodge was then closed, and adjourned.

ST. MARYLEBONE LODGE, No. 1305.

THE members held their first ball on the 6th inst., at the Langham Hotel. The arrangements, which were under the superintendance of Capt. Gordon, gave great satisfaction. Bro. Benjamin Phillips, the W.M. of the Lodge, was supported by Bros. Baker P.M. Secretary, White P.M., Chaplin, Drake, Tyler P.M., Smith, Pope, Dunn, Roberts, Williams. Under such an energetic directorate the ladies and brethren had an opportunity of indulging in a social and enjoyable evening. To endue the gathering with a more sustained interest it had been arranged that any surplus should be devoted to the Benevolent Fund attached to the Lodge. A dispensation was granted by the M.W.G.M. the Prince of Wales, and the brethren availed themselves of the permission and donned Masonic clothing and jewels; thus a glittering display was presented, as many of those present had secured the right to more than one distinction for services rendered to the Craft. Dancing commenced at nine o'clock, when the Hon. Artillery string band, under the direction of Bro. Tampling, played a capital selection of music. Bros. Mouflet, Pope, Durance, Cox and Drake acted as M.C.'s. About twelve o'clock the guests, nearly 150 of whom were present, adjourned to a sumptuous supper. The tables were beautifully decorated and nothing was wanting to render the meeting a great success. The W.M. Bro. Phillips proposed the toast of the Queen and the Craft; then Bro. White S.W. P.M. 177 had great pleasure in proposing the health of one whom they all respected; he referred to Brother Phillips, their W.M., who was also a P.M. of the City of Westminster Lodge; he had done his utmost to bring this meeting to a successful issue; to him and to the members who had been associated with him, they were much indebted for having so numerous an assemblage present that evening. He (Bro. White) might say no class of individuals knew better how to enjoy themselves than Freemasons, and after their work was finished, they looked after the Charities of their Order. This was their first Lodge ball, and he hoped it would be the forerunner of many more. The W.M., in reply, thanked Bro. White for the eloquent manner in which he had spoken of him. His great ambition was to get this Lodge ranked amongst the first class in the Craft, not only as regards its working, but also in its support of the Charities. He trusted the members would assist him in carrying out this object. Bro. Drake, in a few but appropriate remarks, responded for the Ladies, and Bro. H. M. Levy for the Visitors. To Bro. Baker great credit is due for the energy he displayed in ministering to the enjoyment of this agreeable meeting. The ladies and brethren then adjourned to the ball room, where dancing was resumed. The suite of rooms placed at the disposal of the Lodge and the attendance was in every respect all the brethren could wish for.

GLADSMUIR LODGE, No. 1385.

THE members of this flourishing Lodge, one of the most popular in the Province of Herts, held their annual installation meeting on Friday, 26th ult., at the Red Lion Hotel, Barnet. There was a good attendance; the Past Masters who supported Bro. J. G. Yolland, the W.M., being Bros. John Lowthin Past Provincial Grand Senior Warden Herts (Treasurer), Hayward Edwards, Frederick Venables, Robert Fisher Young (Secretary), Charles Gray, John Emerby, and James Cutbush. There were several Visitors, amongst whom we may mention Bros. J. E. Dawson Provincial Grand Secretary Herts, Binstead (Secretary Commercial Travellers' School), A. Hickman W.M. 228, W. W. Morgan Secretary 211, &c. After Lodge had been formally constituted and opened, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Marriott was raised to the sublime degree, after which the ballot was brought into requisition for Mr. Walter Barrett, proposed by Bro. Durham, Organist, seconded by Bro. P.M. Gray; and for Mr. William Nelson, proposed by Bro. Schmidt I.G., seconded by Bro. Yolland W.M. The result proved unanimous in favour of these candidates, who were then introduced, and Bro. Yolland conducted the ceremony of initiating them into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. Bro. James Terry P.M. 238, &c., Past Prov. G.S.W. Norths and Hunts, then took the chair as Installing Master, and Bro. Charles Allen, the Senior Warden, was introduced and duly obligated as W.M. elect. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Brother Allen was regularly inducted into the chair of the Lodge. After the usual salutations, the Officers were invested, as follows:—Bros. George Askew P.M. 1479 S.W., John Brittain J.W., Robert Fisher Young P.M. Sec., Hopkins S.D., Schmidt J.D., Lewis I.G., Durham Org., and R. W. Goddard Tyler. Bro. Terry then gave the customary addresses, in admirable style, and resumed his seat amidst hearty congratulations. A Past Master's jewel was presented to the retiring W.M., and full recognition made of the zeal he had displayed for the interests of his Lodge during his year of office. Amongst other items of business transacted during the evening was the balloting for a Life Governorship in accordance with Rule IX. of the Gladsmuir Benevolent Fund. This resulted in favour of Bro. James Cutbush P.M. Bro. John Lowthin was appointed Representative to serve on Prov. Audit Committee, and the election of Trustees and Officers, in accordance with Rule VI. of the Gladsmuir Benevolent Fund, resulted in the several brethren whose services had given such satisfaction during the past year retaining their respective positions. Several letters, expressing regret at inability to be present having been read (notably communications from the Prov. G. Master Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P., and the D.G.M. Bro. Dr. Wilson Iles), hearty good wishes were tendered by the numerous body of Visitors, and Lodge was closed. The banquet was then served by Bro. Hall, who personally superintended. The Red Lion has deservedly gained for itself a high reputation for the way in which it ministers to the creature comforts of its patrons, and if on this occasion it was not quite up to its standard, we fear the fault was more with the guests than with the host, who certainly spared no effort to make matters pleasant. On the removal of the cloth the customary toast list was fully honoured, and as usual at the Gladsmuir the claims of the Masonic Institutions on the purse-strings of the members were fully enforced. The W.M. Bro. Charles Allen signified his intention to serve as Steward at the next Festival of the Benevolent Institution, and liberal contributions were made to his list. Bro. James Cutbush P.M., who so nobly follows the example set by his brother, the late William Cutbush, announced he would undertake the duties of Steward at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, to be held in June next, and from our worthy brother's great energy we are convinced Bro. Binckes will have ample cause of congratulation that this little Province is to be so well represented.

Kent Lodge of Instruction, No. 15.—Held at Bro. Serjeant's, the King and Queen, Norton Folgate, E.C. The usual weekly meeting was held on Wednesday evening, 7th instant, Bros. Patrick W.M., Andrews S.W., Serjeant J.W., Pinder Preceptor, Clark J.D., Black I.G., Millington Sec.: also Bros. Leoffler, Claverley, Gieseke, Kramm, Rowe, &c., &c. The Lodge was opened, and the ceremony of initiation was rehearsd, Bro. Leoffler being the candidate. Bro. Anderson worked the second section of the first lecture, assisted by Bro. Rowe; and the seventh section, assisted by Bro. Pinder. The sum of five guineas was voted from the Lodge funds, and placed on Bro. Clark's list, he being a Steward for the Old People's Institution. Bro. Andrews was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. The brethren of the above Lodge particularly call attention to the change of meeting night, viz., from Thursday to Wednesday.

United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, No 507.—At the meeting of this Lodge of Instruction, at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, S.E., on Friday, the 2nd inst., Bro. A. J. Styles presided as W.M., having as Officers Bros. C. H. Wiltshire S.W., H. H. Wiltshire J.W., J. N. Bate S.D., J. Sarjeant J.D., M. E. Stokes I.G. Amongst other members present were Bros. James Stevens P.M. and Preceptor, Richard Poore Secretary, Richardson, &c. The Lodge was opened and minutes were confirmed. The sections of the first lecture were worked by the brethren, and explanations given by the Preceptor. Bro. C. H. Wiltshire was elected W.M. for the ensuing week and the Lodge was then closed in perfect harmony.

Alexandra Palace Lodge of Instruction, No. 1541.—This excellent Lodge held its usual meeting on Saturday evening, 3rd February, at the Station Tavern, Camberwell New-road, and was very numerously attended. The Officers were Bros. Price W.M., Butterworth S.W., Eideman J.W., Stokes S.D., Woods J.D., Johnson I.G., J. R. Stacey Preceptor, Dawson Treasurer, Martin Steward, and the following were amongst the brethren present:—Snell, Westley, H. Thompson, Sherring, Appleton, Bowler, Langton, Jamieson, Luckhurst, C. A. Woods, E. Farwig, Stafford, Walter, Breiling, Wilson, Becket, Hill, Soudan, Reynolds, Banks, Cooper, Taylor, Webb, Stevens, Matz, Haywood. The Lodge having been duly opened, the first, second, third and fourth sections of the first lecture were worked, after which the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Reynolds, the celebrated cornet player, of the Pimlico Lodge, No. 1772, being the candidate. At the conclusion great satisfaction was expressed as to the very perfect way in which the W. Master had discharged his duties, and Bro. Stacey proposed that a vote of thanks should be recorded on the minutes to Bro. Price for the excellent manner in which he had performed the ceremony of initiation, it being the first time he had ever occupied the chair. Bro. Price returned thanks, and said such a vote was most gratifying to him. Brs. Butterworth was elected W. Master for the ensuing meeting, and the Lodge was closed. After which a concert, by the members of the club, was held, when some excellent songs were sung. During the evening Bro. Reynolds delighted the company by his accompaniment to Bro. Mets, who presided at the pianoforte. Bro. Reynolds severally played "Home, Sweet Home," "The Last Rose of Summer," and "You'll remember me," all of which were most enthusiastically applauded. Several recitations were given, and the entire evening was passed in a most agreeable manner.

West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction, No. 1612.—Meeting held at the Institute, Ealing, Tuesday, 6th February. Present—Bros. H. E. Tucker W.M., Dyer S.D., Smith J.D., Cunningham S.D., Gasson J.D., Wells Secretary, Coop I.G.; also Bros. Green P.M., Kasner P.M., Jones, Bellerby, Clarke, Danby, Hadley, and Essex. The Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. rehearsed the ceremony of initiation, Brother Bellerby candidate. The Lodge was opened in the second degree, and the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Brother Jones candidate. Brother Hadley answered the questions leading to the third degree and retired. The Lodge was opened in the third degree. The W.M. rehearsed the ceremony of raising, Brother Danby candidate. The Lodge was resumed to the first degree, and was closed in the usual form, and the meeting adjourned to Tuesday, 13th February.

ISLINGTON LODGE, No. 1471.

THE installation meeting was held on Thursday, at the Cock Tavern, Highbury Corner, when the outgoing Master, Bro. Daniel Pound Holness, placed his successor, Bro. Edward Blinkhorn, into the chair of the Lodge. The Lodge was opened at half-past four, when, in addition to a large gathering of the members, the following Visitors were present:—Bros. C. H. J. Wright P.M. 986, W. Wiggins 1580, A. Elworthy 1158, H. Dehane P.G.S.D. Essex W.M. 1543, A. Stewart P.M. 1158, R. Pearcy P.M. 228, J. Tyler 1702, W. Seaman P.M. 1314, Thomas Blinkhorn J.D. 120, G. T. Chretien 1328, Stragnell W.M. 1745, H. H. Whale 172, Alex. Mullord 1288, C. Townley 201, J. E. Humphreys W.M. 167, H. G. Holdsworth 1491, W. H. Making S.D. 1278, W. Shearman 1382, H. Massey P.M. 619 and 1928, James Lister 55, E. H. Steers 179, T. H. Mullord 1288, John Osborn P.M. 1602, John Bolton J.D. 1613, C. F. Hogard P.M. 205 P.P.G.S.W. Essex, G. F. Edwards 766, Edward Hatch P.M. 357, W. W. Morgan Sec. 211, S. Earl J.D. 186, W. B. Church 1365, Franklin Clive 1319, R. P. Forge W.M. 1950, E. Woodman S.D. 1950, &c. The following Past Masters of the Lodge were also in attendance:—J. L. Mather, U. Knill, H. C. Saunders, W. Bausor, and Edgar Bowyer. After the minutes of last regular meeting had been read and confirmed, the Secretary read the Bye-laws, and then the Auditors' report and balance-sheet was presented. The accounts showed the Lodge to be in a sound financial position, and the report was unanimously adopted. The W.M. elect was then presented, and in due course regularly installed into the chair, Bro. Holness conducting the ceremony in a manner that gave great satisfaction to all present. The following were the Officers invested:—H. Cox P.M. S.W., J. Lake J.W., Bowyer P.M, Treasurer, A. C. Halestrap Secretary, Shearman S.D., Hunt J.D. Thompson I.G., H. Hunt W.S., Petch M.C. The banquet took place in the billiard room, which Bro. Baker kindly turned to account for the occasion, and it is needless to say that the menu was an excellent one, and admirably served. On the removal of the cloth, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair, and experienced the usual cordial reception. Bro. Holness I.P.M., in proposing the health of the Worshipful Master, Bro. Blinkhorn, spoke in terms of eulogy of their new chief. He had already distinguished himself in the several offices he had previously filled, and there was no doubt in his (Bro. Holness's) mind, that during the year then begun the Lodge would go on prospering. Bro. Blinkhorn responded very happily, and thanked both his predecessor, to whom he had already had the privilege of handing the jewel voted by the Lodge, and who had proposed the toast in such complimentary terms, as well as the brethren for the hearty manner in which they had received it. He should use his best endeavours to promote the welfare of the Lodge, and he earnestly trusted those endeavours would prove successful. The toast of the Visitors was acknowledged by Bros. Seaman, Hogard, and Dehane, who severally congratulated the Lodge and its Officers on the excellence of their working, and expressed their thanks for the kindly reception which had been accorded them. Bro. Mather returned thanks on behalf of the Past Masters, and, in doing so, expressed some astonishment that he should have been singled out for the purpose. However, he spoke warmly of the interest both he and his brother P.M.'s took in the Islington Lodge, and was firmly persuaded it would go on increasing in strength and prosperity. Bro. Thompson's name was associated with the toast of the "Masonic Charities," and, having pressed their claims on the brethren with considerable eloquence and taste, he was fortunately in a position to announce that his list for the Boys' Festival in June next already reached the sum of £51 19s. The Tyler's toast concluded the programme, and the meeting terminated in the most complete harmony.

Capper Lodge, No. 1076.—A regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday, 8th instant, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham Street, where, in the unavoidable absence of the Worshipful Master, Brother J. Mitchell, the chair was filled by Brother F. Brien, who was supported by Bros. Job I.P.M., McCarthy P.M., Vincent P.M., W. Dorton S.W., Nevins J.W., J. Dorton Treasurer, Mason S.D., Brown J.D., Harris I.G., Sherwin Organist, Mears and Green Stewards, Page Tyler. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. Greene 471, and Callender 471. Lodge was opened with the usual formalities, and having been advanced to the third degree, Bros. Thomson and Crowe were raised to the sublime degree by the acting Worshipful Master, who performed the ceremony in an able manner. Lodge was resumed in the second, and Brother McNeal was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, that work being also admirably performed. At the conclusion of business the brethren and visitors partook of light refreshments, and spent an enjoyable evening.

A meeting of the North London Chapter of Improvement was held at the Canonbury Tavern, St. Mary's-road, on Thursday, 8th of February, when Comp. Edmonds occupied the chair of Z., Gregory H., R. Bird J., Sheffield S.N., S. George P.S. Although the weather was unfavourable the attendance was very good, and a pleasant evening was spent by those present.

MASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES.

THE Voice of Masonry contains some brief particulars of the last annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Ohio and Kentucky. They were held simultaneously, that of Ohio taking place at Cleveland, under the presidency of Bro. Charles C. Kiefer Grand Master. Over three hundred Lodges were represented, and, as usual on these occasions, the G.M. delivered a lengthy address, in which he reviewed the different events that had occurred during the past year, and referred to various topics more or less affecting the interests of the Craft. For instance, he laid it down that electioneering for office was wrong and ought not to be indulged in. He touched on the growing feeling in favour of a permanent location for the Grand Masonic Bodies of the State. He remarked that more danger was to be feared from the popularity of Freemasonry than from any other source; that the physical, moral, mental, and social qualities of applicants should be well weighed, and that too little attention was paid to symbolism in Lodge work. A very able report in favour of the Grand Lodge Library was submitted and received, and an appropriation of 300 dollars voted towards cases and binding. Bro. Charles C. Kiefer was re-elected Grand Master, and Bro. John D. Caldwell Grand Secretary. As regards statistics, it appears that there were at the date of meeting 30,433 subscribing members. The dues amounted to close on 14,359 dollars (nearly £2,872), the receipts to over 18,255 dollars (£3,651) and the expenditure to 12,736 dollars (£2,547 and upwards).

The Grand Lodge of Kentucky met at Louisville. Bro. W. H. Meffert presided, and some four hundred delegates took part in the proceedings. Bro. Meffert extended a hearty welcome to all the brethren, highly complimented the Grand Secretary for his efficiency and zeal, strongly advocated the publication of a Masonic journal for Kentucky, and spoke in favour of the liberal support of the Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home. A resolution was adopted to the effect that Grand Lodge should solicit the Grand Chapter and Grand Commandery to enact laws prohibiting Royal Arch Masons and Knights Templars from dimitting from their Lodge. We can understand a Grand Lodge making a proposition of this or any other kind to the Grand Chapter of its jurisdiction, for the Royal Arch Degree has been defined to be a part of ancient free and accepted Masonry; but to address itself officially to a Templar body is tantamount to committing itself to an official recognition of a degree, which, at best, is only of a quasi-Masonic character. Statistics show the total membership of the jurisdiction to be 15,423, the receipts for the year over 22,610 dollars (£4,522) and disbursements nearly 9,100 dollars (£1,820), the "resources" being close on 26,466 dollars (£5,293). The Masonic Temple Company's receipts amount to, in round figures, 16,445 dollars (£3,289), and the expenditure to 15,833 dollars (£3,166), 2,373 dollars (£475) being invested as a sinking fund, and there being an insurance on the buildings and fixtures of 76,000 dollars (£15,200). Bro. Dr. G. D. Buckner was elected Grand Master, and Bro. Hiram Bassett re-elected Grand Secretary.

We also note a somewhat curious announcement. It seems that last Christmas evening the officers of the Royal Arch Chapter at Sycamore, Illinois, were publicly installed by Comp. Daniel Dustin, that "an elegant banquet, participated in by about two hundred persons, closed the entertainment," and further, that "the ladies were well pleased, and expressed their willingness to attend all the meetings of the Chapter." We fancy there must be some mistake here. Public installations, though we have read of their taking place in some of the American jurisdictions, are utterly opposed to the spirit of Freemasonry, but still more so is the presence of ladies at the meetings of the Masonic body. If any apology can be offered, and we hold it to be impossible, for installing Officers in the presence of men who are not Masons, but who may be eligible to become such, there can be no apology, we should imagine, even in the eyes of those American brethren who seem indifferent as to the essentials of Freemasonry, for allowing ladies to be present at the meetings of a Masonic Lodge or Chapter. It is evident that in some parts of the United States the true character of Freemasonry is not understood.

MARK MASONRY IN NORFOLK.

AN event of more than ordinary interest in Masonic circles will be witnessed on Monday next, in the city of Norwich, that day being set apart for the resuscitation of the Walpole Lodge of Mark Master Masons, No. 92. It would appear that this Lodge has, for reasons which will doubtless be fully entered into at this réunion, been for some considerable time in abeyance, and that a revival of interest in the Mark degree, which has recently been of so striking a character, both in London and the Provinces, has been fully shared by the local members of "ye mystic tie." There is every promise that the resurrection of the old Walpole Mark Lodge will be a source of new life to the Mark degree in the county of Norfolk, as we observe, from the agenda published, that not only are members of the Walpole Craft Lodge named as candidates for advancement, but that there are also nominations from the Union Lodge, No. 52, the Freeman, No. 105, the Cabbell, No. 807, the Sincerity, No. 903, the Perseverance, No. 213, the St. Andrew's, No. 1631, the Phœnix, No. 516, and the Hartismere, No. 1663. The advancement of nearly forty candidates in one evening will form an interesting episode in the history of Mark Masonry in that Province, and will, no doubt, attract a considerable attendance of Mark Masters, not only from various parts of the county of Norfolk, but also from the adjoining Provinces, and from the Metropolis. Additional interest is infused into the event by the fact that the M.W.G.M.M. has been proposed as an honorary member by Bro. H. G. Barwell, the Worshipful Master elect of the Walpole Lodge, and seconded by Bro. Colonel Bignold. Amongst the joining members who are also named for Monday evening are Bro. Frederick Long, Past Grand Director of Ceremonies and Grand Sword Bearer of England; the Rev. C. J. Martyn, M.A., of Long Melford, Past Grand Chaplain of England; and a great many Past Masters of the Lodges above enumerated. The opening ceremony, which is always of a most impressive character, will be performed by Bro. D. M. Dewar, Assistant Grand Secretary of England, who will officiate as Worshipful Master, and after the confirmation of the minutes of the recent Lodge of Emergency, the revised bye-laws, by which the future Mark Lodge will be governed, will be presented for adoption by the brethren. The ballot for members and candidates will then be opened, and such as are eligible will be advanced; and the resuscitated Lodge having thus been constituted, Bro. H. G. Barwell, Junior Overseer, will be installed, by dispensation, as W.M. for the ensuing year. At the close of this interesting rite, the Officers for the year will be elected. Thus it will be seen that a full and important programme is before the brethren who are invited to assemble at Norwich on Monday next, and the proceedings, as we have said, will be certain to be invested with peculiar interest to Masons in that Province. At the conclusion of the business the brethren and their visitors will be entertained at a banquet, for which special arrangements are being made, and of which we hope to give a report in our next issue. The revival of interest amongst Mark Masons in any district is a source of satisfaction to all who are attached members of the degree, and who have the interest of that branch of Freemasonry at heart. We have seen how, in recent years, the degree has made rapid and important advances, testifying to the increasing popularity of the Mark, and it is eminently satisfactory to note the substantial work of beneficence and charity which is carried forward by those who are foremost in the ranks of that degree. There is no longer any disposition, as there appeared to be but a very few years ago, to set down the Mark as a "side degree," and more as an ornament than of any recognised value in connection with the Craft; but it is now regarded as a link, and a very important one, connecting Craft and Royal Arch Masonry, and containing in itself much that is beautiful and instructive. We are pleased, therefore, at this additional sign of the revived interest which is being manifested in the degree amongst our Norfolk brethren, whom we wish every success in the enterprise they purpose to start with a new birth on Monday next.

IN THE FIRE.

FROM THE VOICE OF MASONRY.

MEMORIES of half a century furnish large stores of material for reflection. There was a time when the passions and ignorance of men assumed the throne, and when reason and humanity were forgotten or neglected. A very few of the Freemasons of the present remember those days, and of the times and seasons when the Craft were "passing through the fires;" and yet there are a few who do, for they were in the storm, they felt its power and witnessed its ravages, and the destruction it wrought in the social fabric. I may not now attempt to picture that storm, or describe its fury, or tell of the wrecks left along its pathway. It is enough to say there was discord in the home-circle, severance in political affinities, and destruction in the churches. It was the desert-blast, withering everything that was growing and green and beautiful. We sometimes read of the wild excitement of the Crusades—this was its equal in intensity, though more limited in its extent. Mahommed, from being a trader and fortune hunter, assumed the character of a Prophet, in which he could gather more money and exercise more power. The flash of his scimitar was the light to guide the footsteps of his thoughtless and half-crazed followers. "Arabia's desert ranger," with his vague fanatical notions, coupled with his reckless daring, came near revolutionising the social fabric, of upsetting the thrones, of trampling upon the crowns and re-modelling the kingdoms of the world. Anti-Masonry was as groundless and as visionary as the belief in Islamism, and would have been quite as destructive in its results, and as wide-spread, if it had dared to be. But it was cowardly, mean and grovelling. The United States, it was found, were not Arabia, and the nineteenth century was very different from the seventh. The civilising influence of Christianity, Science and the arts placed a restriction upon fanaticism, and said: "Thus far thou shalt go, but no farther." That fanaticism, however, did its work within the range of its influence, but that range was limited, as is that over which the cyclone sweeps in summer time. But political parties were sundered, churches and religious organisations were wrecked, the pulpit was invaded, and its utterances were shackled, or breathed of fire and sword; the religious and devout were repelled from the sacraments, as well as from the social circle. The evil spirit was even breathed into the children at school, and the little school boys were sometimes abused and beaten by older ones because their fathers were Freemasons! It is almost impossible for people at this day to comprehend the bitterness and malignity which at that time pervaded society, turned otherwise respectable persons into semi-demons, and blighted and blasted social life from the church circle to the political hustings, in which childhood and age were equally the sufferers, and social life and amenities were driven back for a thousand years—more than half way into barbarism.

Such were the conditions of society and the feelings of men about the years from 1825 to 1830. Middle New York was the "storm-centre," but its ravages extended eastward through Vermont, especially, but more or less through all the New England States; westward to north-eastern Ohio, and through Pennsylvania and even into Maryland. Nearly all the Lodges in Maryland were compelled to give up their charters or close their doors, as well as many Lodges in other States. On "the Reserve," in Ohio, Lodge halls were destroyed by mobs, the jewels and records stolen and carried away, the members ostracised, their business injured and their families slandered and abused. And all for what? To gratify the spirit that moved to the burning of witches, so-called, in New England, and drove Roger Williams to seek peace and safety elsewhere. Such was anti-Masonry in some portions of the country less than sixty years ago among the pious (?) and intellectual fathers. Is it any better yet? If The Cynosure utters the same sentiments and breathes the same spirit (as I am informed it does), it is the equal of the past and has been baptised in the same turgid waters; and while it merits the execration of every patriot and Christian, public sentiment restrains it, and this is the safety and safeguard of the Craft and of the community.

But why this terrible disturbance in the social elements, as well as in Church and State? A man in central New York, by the name of Morgan, who it was supposed contemplated an exposure of the "secrets of Masonry," suddenly disappeared, and notwithstanding the most diligent search was made, he could not be found. Hundreds of similar cases of sudden disappearance have been known, that caused wonder and anxiety; but in the case of Morgan a wild fanaticism charged the Freemasons with murdering him! Governor Clinton, himself a Freemason, and one of the ablest and purest men that ever filled that office in any State, instituted the most searching inquiry into the matter; he set the proper legal officers of the State to ferret out the facts, and offered large rewards for the apprehension of the guilty parties, if the crime as alleged had been committed. Several persons were arrested upon suspicion, and all the efforts of the officers were taxed to unravel the mystery, but all proved unavailing; nothing could be discovered, no evidence of guilt found, and the arrested parties were discharged. All efforts failed, the prosecutions failed, and a reaction in public sentiment finally began. After all the official efforts that were made, encouraged by the offer of large rewards, it is not known to this day that a murder was committed, or, if there was, that the Freemasons had any hand in it. The whole affair was a miserable hoax, a spectre had been seen—an apparition caused by the shimmering of moonbeams through the branches. Excited imaginations, roused by fanatical or malignant purposes, conceived a theory; a crime was supposed to have been committed, and pretended pietists, for political purposes, charged it upon the Freemasons. The whole was a groundless fabrication, but the effects were fearful and wide-spread, as well as ruinous in every department of social life, and in all its interests.

The question entered largely into politics, and a party was organized on the basis of hostility to Freemasonry, and its members. In Pennsylvania that party elected a Governor (Ritner) and obtained control of State affairs. The acts of folly committed by the party awakened the people to a sense of their danger, and the tide of feeling not only soon subsided, but rolled back like the waves of ocean until it had recovered its normal condition. The Legislature instituted an inquiry relative to Freemasonry, and summoned three of the best and most prominent men of the State to respond to certain questions, and tell all they knew about "the secrets of Masonry;" but those three men understood their rights as American citizens, and refused to submit to the star-chamber procedure, or reply to questions the Legislature had no right to ask. They were then threatened with imprisonment for contempt, but like the three Hebrews of old, they still refused to "bow down and worship the golden image," and dared the Legislature to execute the infamous threat. But there is the "fiery furnace, and it is heated seven times hotter than usual." "All right," they said, "we prefer the prison or the flames to dishonour, and death to disgrace!" The miserable fanatics in the Legislature quailed in the presence of such an exhibition of virtue and constancy, and—paused!

The party had felt strong enough to attempt to control the National Government. A convention was held and a distinguished lawyer of Maryland was nominated as its candidate for President of the United States. He was a fine scholar, eminent at the bar, and could plead a pure and blameless life. But all would not do: the tide had turned. The masses of the people who had watched the movements of the party and the spirit it manifested became alarmed, and the cause and the candidate were both buried under public contempt and indignation. Yet a few, even of to-day, still plead for Blanchard and his co-workers in a cause which is disgraceful to the ministry, the nation, and the age, and to the literature and intelligence of the nineteenth century. A few encourage and sustain The Cynosure, the mouthpiece of fanatical ignorance and the vehicle of a spirit which would have caused the bigotry of the Middle Ages to blush, and witchcraft burning to disavow its acts and sentiments,—and, if not too late, to "call upon the rocks and mountains to fall" and hide them from public contempt.

There is a mystery as well as history here. I have not room, nor have I the data at hand, to recount the entire history, and can only refer to some salient points as above. For more than ten years the excitement continued—in Church and State and family, and then it subsided—dying of its own intensity. May we not hope that such an ism will never revive? It was then a mystery—it is now a history: and yet the greatest mystery of all is the constancy of many true and faithful Craftsmen under such trying ordeals. To say nothing of men in humbler life, look at the honoured three who were called before the Legislature of Pennsylvania, and threatened with imprisonment because they would not respond to the illegal and impertinent questions that were proposed. Who were they? George

M. Dallas, afterwards Vice-President of the United States; George Wolf, then recently retired from the office of Governor of Pennsylvania, and Joseph R. Chandler, as a writer and a gentleman the peer of any in the State, and subsequently Minister of the United States at Rome. They were three among the first men of the State, with culture and intellect, and spotless lives. It was a scene of moral grandeur, when those men stood there accused and threatened, yet conscious of their innocence and firm in the defence of right, and in the resistance of fanatical bigotry. It was a mystery, also. There was a moral influence in Freemasonry—it could be nothing else—which bound them firmly to the faithful performance of their duty. There was no prospect of popularity, for they were breasting the tide of popular feeling: there was no money-making in view, for nothing in that line is to be gained; it was simply an unyielding adherence to duty under the most untoward circumstances. Mystery—but truth.

Allow me just here to record a pleasant reminiscence of the after years, when anti-Masonry was dead and buried. When the persecution began there was a Lodge in North-eastern Ohio, known, if my memory is correct, as "Jerusalem, No. 9." It was located in a small village away from any great line of travel, and its members were quiet and industrious farmers, who were busy in opening farms, and building school houses where their children might obtain a common, but practical and useful education. In their home and social circle, they exemplified the virtues of their fathers in other days. They read the Bible, toiled faithfully, attended the meetings of their Lodge, and heard an occasional sermon in a log school house, delivered by some zealous missionary, or minister seeking a location.

And so passed the days and years among that pure-minded, honest, exemplary people. There were but few tidings reached them from the outer world, for newspapers were then "like angel's visits—few and far between." Occasionally an echo from the far-off scene of excitement came to them, but it was words only,—the spirit had died on the way, or lost its rancour and malevolence. In the meantime nearly or quite all the Lodges in that part of the State had yielded to the storm, closed their labours and given up their charters, while sometimes their halls were sacked by mobs of infuriated men calling themselves Christians! Their records were sometimes destroyed and their jewels carried away as trophies, or to enrich the coffers of anti-Masons. Jerusalem, however, farther back and out of the way of general information, continued its meetings. The members had heard the war of the distant cyclone, that the Lodges had ceased to work, and that even the Grand Lodge had abandoned its organisation, and—all was lost! It was a mistake, however, as it regarded the Grand Lodge, as that body continued to meet and watch over its constituents; but Jerusalem, not sending a representative or paying dues, its charter was at length declared forfeited, as it was supposed to have fallen, like others, in the fury of anti-Masonic persecution. In this condition it remained for several years, but not knowing of the revocation of its charter, it continued to meet. An occasional application for the degrees encouraged the members, who believed that they alone were left as the conservators of the Fraternity, and to transmit to future generations its mysteries, which had been confided to them, and of which they were now the sole possessors. And so the years passed on, and the devotion of its members continued. It was mystery again,—that faithfulness unto death!

At length a Grand Master was elected who lived not a great distance from where Jerusalem was still at work. By some chance he learned of the continued existence of the Lodge, though its charter had been forfeited. He at once opened a correspondence with it, and advised the members to discontinue their labours, as, having no longer a charter, their work was illegal; at the same time suggesting that they should apply to the Grand Lodge at its next session for direction and relief. They were astonished to learn that they were working illegally, and determined to follow the advice so kindly given by the Grand Master.

At the next annual meeting of that body, a delegate from Jerusalem appeared. He was a muscular, strong-featured, and honest-looking old man, with indications of a Mayflower lineage stamped upon his face, and bearing the marks of a life of industry in forest, and on farm and field. The case of Jerusalem Lodge was presented in the address of the Grand Master, with a statement of its present condition and the singular facts of its history and proceedings. The subject was referred to the committee on charters and dispensations, of which the late Judge Thrall was chairman. The committee reported in favour of restoring the charter, and legalising the work the Lodge had done; provided, however, that all the back dues to the Grand Lodge be first paid. The report was adopted, and the old brother from Jerusalem was in despair. It was impossible for the Lodge to comply with the condition; it had no funds, and its members were poor. What should he—what could he do.

I had watched the proceedings with deep interest, for I knew the condition of the Lodge was the fruit of anti-Masonic bigotry and hate. In the distress of the good brother he came and asked me if I could not help him in some way, and I told him I would try. After carefully considering the matter, I went to the chairman of the committee and asked him, if I proposed to the Grand Lodge to remit all the back dues from Jerusalem Lodge whether he would make any objection? He kindly said, he would not. I therefore prepared a resolution to that effect, and on presenting it made a brief statement of the facts, and the anti-Masonic influence which had pressed the life out of so many Lodges in that part of the State. Much of this was new to the members of the Grand Lodge then present, and they appeared to be deeply interested. Then referring to the old brother before them, I described the constancy of the members in the discharge of their Masonic duties: men of grey hairs, crippled with age and toil, mounting their horses on a winter's night, and riding from four to eight miles to attend the Lodge. It was night—but "There's a light in the window for thee;" it was cold, but a warm stove awaited them at the Lodge, where smiling faces and strong grasps would welcome them; and then they would repeat the old expression—"If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget its cunning!" By this time I saw much feeling was awakened among the members; I called for the "question," and the resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote.

I took my seat, conscious that I had done my duty, but the old brother was in ecstasy, and could not sit still. Crossing the hall to where I sat, he grasped me around the neck with both arms, the tears streaming down the furrows of his aged cheeks, while he gave such expression to his joy that others were moved and wept from sympathy. It was a scene, and an event that I shall ever remember. There was mystery again—in the old man's devotion to the Institution—in his earnest zeal—in his tears of gladness. Why all this, but the influence of pure ancient Masonry—the fraternal ligaments which bind hand to hand and heart to heart? But I must stop here; I write for the present and the future. History and mystery!

CONSECRATION OF THE MOLESWORTH LODGE, No. 1954.

THIS Lodge was duly consecrated by the R.W. the Provincial Grand Master of Cornwall, the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, on Thursday, 8th instant. The Lodge owes its existence to the efforts of Bros. Henry Jones, Rev. R. H. Treffry, W. E. Fulford, and R. J. E. Symons, who, as energetic Masons, thought Wadebridge ought to possess a Lodge of its own, thus sparing the brethren the journey to Padstow or Bodmin when they wished to attend Masonic duties. There was also the feeling that as Masonry had greatly progressed of late years in the Province, it behoved these well-wishers of the Order not to be behindhand in their own immediate district. The result of these endeavours and ideas culminated yesterday, when the worthy brethren already named had the satisfaction of seeing the new Lodge established. They also had a slight reward for their labours in being appointed the first Officers of the Lodge. Lee's Assembly Rooms, the place selected for holding the Lodge, had been fitted up in capital style by Mr. John Goodfellow, builder, Wadebridge. The Lodge may be fairly congratulated upon the success attained. Lodge was opened at two o'clock p.m. in due form by the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, who explained the reason of the gathering, and called on Brother Anderton P.G.S. P.M. 331 to read the warrant which had been received from the Grand Lodge authorising the formation of the Lodge. After reading the warrant, Brother Anderton stated that the bye-laws had been forwarded to be approved in the proper quarters. The R.W. Provincial Grand Master then called on the brethren of the Lodge to signify their assent to the Officers named in the warrant, and the assent being unanimously given, the P.G.M., in most impressive terms, addressed the new Lodge, insisting on the three grand principles of the Order, observing that any brother neglecting to conform thoroughly to those principles brought disgrace and a slur on the Order. Freemasons acknowledged the G.A.O.T.U., and should ever ask Him to make Masonry a guide to both conduct and life. It would thus cause them to fear God, love the Brotherhood, and honour the Queen. A Mason's first duty to the Order was to consider the best means to reflect honour on his Lodge and Province, and by no means to be eager, or to strive assiduously, for office or official honours. Masons met on a perfect equality, and the man who now held office should, in turn, act with courtesy and consideration towards those who, in years to come, should succeed to office. Above all things, it was most needful never to admit into the Lodge a man who would not be an ornament to the highest office in the Lodge. The blessing of the Great Architect of the Universe having been invoked, the corn, oil and wine were poured on the Lodge, appropriate music accompanying the ceremony, after which Bro. Rev. R. H. Treffry read the selection of Scripture for the occasion. Bro. Anderton presented the W.M. designate Bro. Henry Jones, who was addressed on the subject of his coming duties. Bro. Henry Jones was then duly installed as Worshipful Master, Bro. William Rowe P.M. 330 P.P.G.D.C. performing the ceremony in excellent form, after which the Worshipful Master appointed his Officers, as follow:—Henry Jones W.M. 330 One and All, Rev. Reginald H. Treffry S.W. 977 Fowey, William E. Fulford J.W. 1954, S. Pollard Treas., H. Lander Sec., S. W. Stephens S.D., J. Hawke J.D., Charles Higman I.G., Patrick Carrol Tyler 330, all of One and All. At the close of the Lodge a luncheon was held in the Savings Bank room, adjoining the Institute, when the brethren partook of an excellent spread, provided by Mr. S. M. Lee, of the Commercial Hotel. The Earl of Mount Edgcumbe presided. Amongst those present at the ceremony were—R.W. Provincial Grand Master Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, Anderton P.G. Secretary, Mitchell P.M. 1528 P.P.G.S.W., C. Truscott jun. P.P.G.S.B., Rowe P.P.G.D.C., Joseph Rawlings P.G.D.C., Gay P.P.G.D.C., Hext P.P.G.S.W., Rooks P.G.P., Carrol P.P.G. Tyler, Davis P.G. Steward, Hawken P.P.S.G.W., Williams P.P.G.S.B., Richards P.G.S.B., Hext jun. HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally, and the Ointment rubbed externally, are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, and surest. Holloway's Pills and Ointment purify the blood, remove all obstructions to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the overgorged air tubes, and render respiration free without reducing the strength, irritating the nerves, or depressing the spirits. Such are the ready means of saving suffering when afflicted with colds, coughs, bronchitis, and other complaints by which so many are seriously and permanently afflicted in most countries.

TESTIMONIAL TO BROTHER FARWIG.

ON the 8th inst. a numerous gathering of Craftsmen met at Bro. Swallow's, the Goat and Star, Swallow-street, W., for the purpose of presenting a testimonial to Bro. Farwig P.M. 180. Bro. Wade P.M. 180 occupied the chair, and Bro. C. A. Woods the vice chair. After ample justice had been done to a good and substantial supper, provided by Bro. Swallow, the President gave the Queen and the Craft, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., and then said he had to bring before them the toast of the evening: The Health of Bro. Farwig. As a Preceptor Bro. Farwig had, by his excellent teaching, enabled many brethren to work the degrees with credit to themselves and satisfaction to their Lodges. Bro. Farwig made his mark in 1873. It was nine years since that he became a member of No. 180, he is now Z. of its Chapter, and is a member of a large number of Lodges of Instruction. To show their respect for him as a man and a Mason, a Committee of Brethren had been formed to present him with a testimonial on vellum and a silver loving cup, for his services, and in token of their appreciation of his excellent working and the consciousness that he had promulgated the excellent tenets of our Order. In presenting him with this testimonial and the loving cup he (Bro. Wade) hoped he might be spared to be among them for many years. The loving cup having been filled, and handed round, Bro. Farwig, in reply said, the honour shewn him somewhat overpowered him; he could scarcely find words to utter his thanks for the valuable gifts. However, he could assure them he felt proud of Freemasonry; he had met with many friends, and he trusted to meet them again on many future occasions. He had especially to thank Bro. Mander, P.M. 1201, who he regretted was not present on this occasion. Personally, as far as he was concerned, his services were always at their command. He should ever remember this day as one of the proudest moments of his life. Bro. Woods said he had great pleasure in proposing the health of the Chairman, Bro. Wade, who was a thoroughly earnest and good working Mason. He had done his duty in his Lodge, and all who knew him respected him. Bro. Wade in reply thanked the brethren for their reception of the toast. Any duties required of him he would feel infinite pleasure in rendering. Before resuming his seat, he would call on the brethren to drink the health of the Vice Chairman, Bro. Woods, who had just vacated the chair of his Lodge, where he had performed his duties admirably. It might truly be said his working was second to none. Bro. Woods said he had never received greater kindness in Freemasonry than at the hands of Bro. Farwig, who was one well deserving of their regard and esteem. He had been pleased to act in the capacity of Vice Chairman on this occasion. Bro. Wade had also to propose a toast he thought worthy of their attention, viz., the health of Bro. Smith, to whom he might say was due the success of this meeting. Bro. Smith, who is Secretary of the St. James' Union Lodge of Instruction, acted as Secretary of the Testimonial Committee; moreover, he is a worthy member of our Order. Bro. Smith, in acknowledging the compliment, said what he had done was a labour of love; he did it with great pleasure in so good a cause, for Bro. Farwig, was one who, by his excellent working, had benefitted many. He took the opportunity of informing them there were ninety-eight subscribers to the Testimonial Fund; he thanked all very heartily for the reception given to his name; but thanks were due to Bros. Docker, Blandell, and Dairy, for the services they had rendered on the Committee. Amongst those present were Bros. J. Hammond, Docker, Swallow, Blum, Collins, Maxsted, Hill, Durant, Festa, Hakins, Groves, Henly, Corby, Langdon, Mackenzie, Chester, Denne, and H. M. Levy. The Loving Cup is of solid silver, and weighs fifty-eight ounces. It is inscribed as follows:—

"Presented to Bro. Ernest Farwig P.M. 180, Preceptor of the St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction, by his brother Masons, as a token of their esteem, for his valuable services.

The balance sheet of the Leeds Masonic Educational and Benevolent Fund has just been published. The Institution was established in 1876, for the purpose of educating, partially maintaining, and advancing in life the orphans of deceased Freemasons of West Yorkshire and of the children of West Yorkshire brethren who have become incapacitated by sickness, accident, or want of means, from properly providing for their families. Since the commencement a capital fund, amounting to £1,083 5s 3d has been realised, and out of this 16 sums of 10 guineas each have been laid out in the purchasing the position of patron of the fund, eight sums of five guineas each for the same position for ladies and Masons' sons, ten sums of ten guineas each for life governorships, 62 sums for five guinea life governorships, £313 12s 6d on amateur entertainments, £16 12s for other entertainments, donations £22 10s 9d, and amount transferred from revenue account £40. The revenue account for the same period shows £394 7s 1d. The expenditure for educational and partial maintenance of the children on the funds has been £239 18s 1d, preliminary expenses and cost of management from the commencement to the present time, £56 11s. There are now fourteen children receiving their education out of the funds of the Institution, and the number will shortly be increased to twenty. A concert was lately given in the Albert Hall, Cookridge-street, Leeds, on behalf of its funds.—Evening News.

OLD GRAVESTONES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In fulfilment of my promise I send you fuller and accurate particulars as to the Freemason's tomb in St. Helen's, Bishopsgate. I have been unable to lay hands on my own remarks addressed to the Freemason on the subject, and the details that follow have been derived from the highly interesting paper from the pen of Brother Rylands which appeared in the Masonic Magazine for September 1881. I will only add that my own remarks, to a somewhat similar purport, were written independently, and appeared at or about the same time; Brother Rylands' article, however, was fuller and more elaborate.

The inscription, which is so interesting to Freemasons, is on the south of the tomb and reads as follows:—

HERE LYETH THE BODIE OF WILLIAM KERWIN OF THIS CITTIE OF LON FREE MASON WHOE DEPARTED THIS LYFE THE 26th DAYE OF DECEMBER ANO 1596

In the hurry of writing last week I gave the year, in error, as 1597.

On the north side, on the top border of the panel, are the following lines:—

Ædibvs Attalicis Londinvm qui decoravi: Me dvce svrgebant alijs regalia tecta:
Exigvam tribvvnt hanc mihi fata domvm: Me dvce conficitvr cæsibvs vrna meis:

These are neatly rendered by Bro. Rylands—"The Fates have afforded this narrow house to me, who have adorned London with noble buildings. By me royal palaces were built for others. By me this tomb is erected for my bones." For myself I should prefer translating "me duce" almost literally "under my guidance," that is, "from my designs and under my superintendence," as it is highly probable that Kerwin was an architect. One thing is well nigh certain—he was not an operative mason (a mere artisan) as we understand the term. In the great window in the south side of the church, which was glazed "at the charges of JOYCE FRATLY, daughter to WILLIAM KERWYN, Esq.," were her father's coat of arms, and those of her first and second husbands. The Kerwyn arms are likewise on the tomb. As a grant of arms would not be made to an artisan, and as such a person would not be described as an "esquire," particularly in days when titular distinctions and distinctions of rank and office were much more carefully noted than they are now, the not unreasonable inference is that the William Kerwyn, thus commemorated by an elaborate tomb, &c., &c., was a man of distinction, and that the term "Free Mason," as applied to him, would have another meaning than that he was a mason free of his guild or company.

Let me add, from Bro. Rylands' article, that, on the west end of the tomb, in a panel supported on each side by ornamental pilasters, is represented the arms of the Masons as granted by William Hawkeslowe, in the twelfth year of Edward IV. (1472-3). On a chevron engrailed, between three squares, castles, a pair of compasses extended—the crest, a square castle, with the motto "God is our Guide." Bro. Rylands remarks:—"It is interesting to find the arms here reudered as they were originally granted, with the chevron engrailed, and with the old square four-towered castles, and not the plain chevron and single round tower as now so often depicted." And also, "So far as I have been able to discover, this is the earliest instance of the title 'Free Mason,' being associated with these arms."

Fraternally yours,

G. B. A.

WARRANT FOR A NEW LONDON LODGE.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have seen in more than one non-Masonic paper a notice to this effect, that a new Lodge, to be styled the Strand, No. 1987, was to be constituted at Ashley's Hotel, Covent Garden, on Wednesday, the 14th inst., and that our esteemed Bro. James Willing jun. was to be installed as its first W. Master. I am sure every one must rejoice that Bro. Willing, who is accepted on all hands as an able and energetic Craftsman, has, by undertaking the arduous duty of bringing a new Lodge into working order, won for himself a further claim on the respect of the English Craft. But what I would draw attention to is this,—in the opinion of many,—unnecessary multiplication of Lodges in the London district. There are, to use a familiar expression, no end of Lodges within a stone's throw of the Strand. Nor is it likely that all the Lodges meeting at the Freemasons' Tavern, to say nothing of those at Anderton's Hotel, the Inns of Court Hotel, &c., are so strong numerically that some of them cannot find room for additional members. I admire the zeal which prompts a brother to seek office in his Lodge with a view to ultimately becoming its Master, and I am well aware that a new Lodge requires skilful Craftsmen to guide it at the outset of its career. Yet, when every reasonable cause has been suggested for this increase in the number of our London Lodges, it must be evident that more are established than is desirable. We may depend upon it that the best policy to pursue, for some time to come, is for Freemasonry to concentrate its strength in the Lodges that exist already. Where there is a district which is unprovided with a Lodge, or which is insufficiently provided with Lodge accommodation, by all means let a warrant for a new one be applied for; but where there are several Lodges round about, easily accessible to the residents and others having business in the locality, let the authorities be chary about granting the application.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

R.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

ST. MICHAEL'S LODGE, No. 211.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held at the Albion, Aldersgate Street, on Tuesday, the 13th instant. In the absence, during the early part of the evening, of the Worshipful Master Brother Usher Back, Lodge was opened by Brother William Radcliffe P.M., who was supported by Bros. Skinner as S.W., F. J. Hentsch (W.M. elect) J.W., Charles Greenwood P.M. P.G.S.B. Treasurer, W. W. Morgan Secretary, T. H. Peirce S.D., H. Martin J.D., E. Thring I.G., C. T. Speight Tyler. Amongst the Past Masters of the Lodge were Bros. Alfred Withers, Alfred Green, T. H. Lavers, T. T. Pyecroft, Dr. Waters; while the Visitors were represented by Bros. John B. Stevens P.M. 1627, C. J. Smith 1623, Richard Wainwright 34, J. T. Skinner W.M. 946, A. Martin jun. S.W. 188, C. F. Luckhurst 1604, J. Strugnell W.M. 1445, Charles Greenwood junior Provincial Grand Secretary Surrey, E. Woodman S.D. 1950, Edward Wharton 1706, W. Hanson 1706, J. R. Maples 176, W. A. Cooper 250, W. Hudson No. 1 S.C., &c. After the minutes of last regular meeting had been read and confirmed, Brothers Frederick Trotman Bennett, Henry Lindfield, and Frederick James Goodall, were examined as to their proficiency, and duly entrusted. These candidates having retired for preparation, Lodge was opened in the second degree, and on readmission the three brethren named above were passed, the ceremony being conducted by Bro. P.M. Radcliffe. Bro. Alfred Green had kindly undertaken the duties of Installing Master, and Bro. Radcliffe now vacated the chair in his favour. Bro. T. H. Lavers presented the W.M. elect, who was regularly obligated. Lodge was advanced, a Board of Installed Masters opened, and the candidate was placed in the chair. On the readmission of the lay members, the new Master was saluted and the Officers were invested:—W. W. Morgan S.W., T. H. Peirce J.W., C. Greenwood P.M. Treasurer, William Radcliffe P.M. Secretary, A. Withers P.M. M.C., A. Green P.M. W.S., H. Martin S.D., E. Thring J.D., Thos. Crapper I.G., E. L. Pembroke Org., C. T. Speight P.M. Tyler. In fulfilling this duty, Brother Hentsch is to be congratulated on having gone somewhat from the beaten path, the remarks he addressed to the several Officers in succession being both appropriate and complimentary. Brother Green then delivered the customary addresses, and as we know of no brother who is more capable of undertaking any work in connection with a Lodge, or who performs it in a more self-possessed and yet unpretentious manner, it will readily be imagined that this part of the ceremony was as impressive as it could well be. The Past Master's jewel of the Lodge was presented to the retiring Master, Brother Usher Back, and in pinning it on his breast, Brother Hentsch complimented his predecessor on the success which had attended him during his year of office, and expressed the hope that his (Bro. Hentsch's) presidency over the Lodge would prove as satisfactory. After a graceful acknowledgment from Bro. Back, the report of the Audit Committee was submitted, and showing, as it did, a balance of over £18 in favour of the Lodge, we must congratulate the brethren on its sound and financial condition. The Standing Committee of General Purposes was elected, the names of Bros. Burr and Pembroke being added to the list of members, and hearty good wishes having been expressed on all sides, Lodge was closed, and the brethren betook themselves to the banquet room, and after the labours of the afternoon, partook with great zest of a menu worthy in all respects of the Albion's known reputation for providing récherché dinners. The Loyal and Masonic toasts followed the removal of the cloth, and, as a matter of course, were greeted heartily, Brother C. Greenwood P.G.S.B. returning thanks for that of the Grand Officers. On Bro. Back as Immediate Past Master devolved the task of proposing the health of the Worshipful Master who was to be congratulated on his attainment of that high position. Brother Hentsch had been initiated in the Lodge, and had done it excellent service in inferior offices, as well as in that of Warden, and they were fully justified, both from his past career and from the manner in which he had that day acquitted himself in his new position, in expecting from him a most successful year of government, one that should be in all respects creditable to himself and beneficial to the Lodge. Here the even progress of events was interrupted by the welcome entrance of Brother the Lord Mayor, who had kindly promised to be present as soon as his engagements would permit, and who was accompanied by Bros. Ex-Sheriff Hutton P.G.D., and Alderman Ex-Sheriff Sir Reginald Hanson. When the new comers had taken their seats, Brother Hentsch modestly returned thanks to Brother Back for the kindly manner in which he had proposed the toast, and to the brethren present for the hearty reception they had accorded it, and he trusted he should be able to carry out the high duties entrusted to him, so as to promote the honour and well-being of the Lodge. Bro. Greenwood here rose for the purpose of proposing, as a special toast, the health of their distinguished Visitor Bro. the Lord Mayor, and, in congratulating his lordship on the able manner in which he had supported the dignity of the City Mayoralty, and the energy with which he had devoted himself to its many and arduous functions, gave utterance to the satisfaction that had been so generally felt in all quarters at his lordship's health having been so far restored as to allow of his accepting the position of Lord Mayor for the current year. The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, who on rising was received with applause, said he hardly expected to have been so fortunate as to be called on to respond to a toast in this Lodge; but after having spent a pleasant evening in another room of the establishment, with the Burlington Lodge, and hearing that the members of the St. Michael were meeting on the same evening, he gladly accepted the kind invitation which had been sent to him, and was happy to be present amongst them. With respect to what had been stated by Bro. Charles Greenwood, the esteemed Grand Officer who had so kindly proposed the toast, relative to the manner in which Freemasonry was sustained at the Mansion House, he observed that so long as he did that which was right, he might depend upon the cordial support and cooperation of the whole of his fellow citizens. Brother Greenwood referred to the fact that Civic institutions were now passing through a period of peril, but for his own part he did not fear any great changes from the measures which had been foreshadowed. Moreover, he did not deem it desirable, or even that it would be submitted to, that the municipal government of the City should be under the thumb of officialism at the West End. The Corporation should maintain its independence, and so long as its affairs were conducted as they had been, for centuries, he challenged the desirableness of any so-called reforms, such as had lately been discussed, and from which he fully believed no practical good was likely to result. It was for the benefit of society at large that municipal institutions should be maintained in their integrity, and that the citizens should retain the management of their own affairs. He spoke to his brethren present not essentially as citizens of London, but as citizens of the world, and men who had the general progress of society at heart. He alluded to the good suit and service rendered by the Corporation in insisting upon the thorough cleanliness of the public streets, and in sustaining the healthy condition of the City under their charge, duties fully recognised by them; and also to the substantial improvements which had been made of recent years in the widening of streets and otherwise providing for the increased commercial industries of the City. All these matters were duly held in mind by the Corporation, who studied every minute detail which conduced to the health and prosperity of the City. He hesitated to occupy too much of their time, but had been tempted to enlarge somewhat by the pertinent remarks which had fallen from the esteemed brother who had kindly proposed the toast. The way in which the City of London maintained its hospitalities was essentially Masonic in its character, and the principles of the Craft were practically illustrated and promulgated at the Mansion House. For the toast of the Visitors, which came next in the list, Bros. Hutton and Alderman Hanson replied in felicitous terms, but briefly. The services of Bro. Green as Installing Master that day, and of the Past Masters generally, received cordial recognition in the toast referring to them, while that of the Officers was replied to by Bros. W. W. Morgan S.W., Peirce J.W., and Radcliffe P.M. Secretary. The Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings of a very enjoyable day, and the brethren separated in harmony.

UNITED STRENGTH LODGE, No. 228.

THE annual installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Tuesday, the 13th inst., at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, when there was a large attendance, under the presidency of the retiring Worshipful Master, Brother Alfred Henry Hickman, who was well supported by his Officers and brethren. Lodge was opened soon after four o'clock, and the minutes of the last meeting having been confirmed, the report of the audit committee, which shewed the finances of the Lodge to be in a satisfactory condition, was unanimously adopted. Brother Henry William Alford, who had been selected by the voice of the entire Lodge at the preceding meeting as W.M. elect was then presented, and in due form installed into the chair of K.S., the ceremony being impressively and ably performed. Having been saluted with the customary honours, the newly installed Worshipful Master invested his Officers for the ensuing year, after which the ballot was opened for Mr John Ogilvie, of Plumstead, who had been proposed by Brother J. T. Ashby, and seconded by Brother Jennings. The voting was unanimously in favour, and the candidate having been accepted, was duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the order. At the conclusion of the business the brethren and visitors repaired to the throne-room of the hotel, where a sumptuous banquet had been provided, and the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were enthusiastically honoured. During the evening an admirable selection of vocal and instrumental music was given by Miss Berrie Stephens R.A.M., Madame Jenny Pratt, Brother C. A. White R.A.M., and Brother Henry Prenton, efficient aid being lent by Brother Fountain Meen as accompanyist on the pianoforte.

ST. MARYLEBONE LODGE, No. 1305.

THE brethren of this flourishing Lodge assembled on the 14th inst., at the Langham Hotel, Portland-place, where there were present Bros. Phillips W.M., White P.M. 177 S.W., Monflet J.W., Chaplin P.M. Treasurer, Baker P.M. Secretary, Hill S.D., Halliday J.D., Smith I.G., Drake W.S., Kift Organist. P.M.'s Bros. Fowler, Draper, Tyler, Ashwell, and a numerous assemblage of members and the following visitors:—Bros. Baker P.M. 753, Filtron 1365, Osborne P.M. 177, Emanuel 15, Loibil 25, Binot P.M. 179, Wilson 1563, H. M. Levy P.M. 188. After full observance of preliminary requirements, Bros. Curliss, Barr, and Ashdown were passed to the second degree. Ballots were then taken for the admission of Messrs. T. C. Artaud, C. M. Woolf, A. J. Billing, and B. P. Rocco, who were duly initiated into the Order by the W.M., in a faultless and impressive manner. The election of a W.M. for the ensuing twelve months was the next business, and Brother White S.W. P.M. 177, was unanimously chosen. Brother Chaplin P.M. was re-elected Treasurer, and Brother Daly Tyler. Bros. Drake, Spurgin, and Williams were appointed Auditors. The Committee of the Benevolent Fund were re-elected, and a revision of the Bye-laws was decided upon, and authority given for the same. Bro. Fowler then proposed, and Bro. Williams seconded, that the usual Past Master's jewel be presented to the retiring W.M.—Brother Phillips—for the able manner in which he had conducted the duties of his office. The Lodge was then closed until the second Wednesday in April. The brethren sat down to a very excellent banquet and dessert, provided by Captain Gordon. After the routine toasts had had full honour done them, Bro. Tyler rose to propose the health of the W.M. All the members respected Bro. Phillips, and felt they must now make the most of him, as shortly he would rank among the Past Masters. All approved of what he had done in the Lodge, and for the Charities; in short, he could describe him as one of the best W.M.'s the Lodge had ever had. The toast was received with great enthusiasm. In reply the W.M. thanked Bro. Tyler for his kind remarks; if he had given the brethren satisfaction he was very pleased. His great aim had been to promote harmony, and in this he hoped he had succeeded. To Bro. Baker his thanks were due for his kind assistance in every way. As an Initiate of the Lodge, his ambition had been to be its W.M. In this he had succeeded, and now he hoped he might be spared to rank among his good friends the Past Masters for many years. In speaking to the toast of the S.W. and W.M. elect, Bro. Phillips said that Bro. White had joined this Lodge the night he was initiated. He felt sure he would make as good a Master as the brethren could have selected. Bro. White brings with him great experience, which all could thoroughly appreciate, and give him all credit for possessing. Bro. White in reply said that though very unwell, he had felt it his duty to be present. He heartily thanked the brethren for so unanimously electing him; he felt it a great honour. He had been W.M. in two other Lodges, but this Lodge is one where the members meet each other frequently. He had served the Lodge in several offices, and now appreciated the kindness of the brethren in electing him to fill the chair. Speaking to the toast of the Initiates, the W.M. said he was sure no brother would introduce a member who would not be a credit to the Lodge. Bros. Artaud, Woolf, and Billing responded; they were pleased to have entered Freemasonry, and thanked the brethren who had introduced them. Bro. Rocco said, in the year 1848 he was to have been proposed in a Lodge in Milan, but he was called away to fight the battles of his country. His great idea had ever been to be made a Mason. He was proud to have joined this Lodge, as he now saw Freemasonry was a realisation of all that was good. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Visitors, and Bro. Baker returned thanks. He was followed by Bros. Osborn, Binet, and H. M. Levy, who all expressed their pleasure at seeing the working of the W.M., and thanked the Lodge for its hospitality. Bro. Draper responded to the toast of the Past Masters. In giving the toast of the Treasurer and Secretary, reference was made to the success that had attended the efforts of these brethren in connection with the Ball of the Lodge. Due acknowledgment was also made as to the zeal the other Officers manifested. A musical entertainment was provided by the W.M., Bros. Spurgin and Kift, with Misses Douglas and Salmon, being the artistes engaged.

ST. MARTIN'S-LE-GRAND LODGE, No. 1538.

A REGULAR meeting of the members of this popular Lodge was held on Wednesday evening, the 14th instant; at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, when there was a goodly attendance, under the presidency of Brother William Smith W.M., who was supported by Bros. Robertson S.W., Parkes J.W., Hookey P.M. Secretary, Hately S.D., Liversidge J.D., Fluck I.G.; P.M.'s Bros. Williams, Gibbs, Gregory, Gilbert Tyler, and many other brethren. Visitor—Bro. F. Paterson Organist 1662. Lodge was opened in accordance with the customary formalities shortly after half-past four o'clock, and after the confirmation of the minutes of the preceding meeting, was advanced, when Bro. Henry Blackwell jun. was raised to the sublime degree, the rite being most impressively administered by the W.M., assisted by his Officers. The ballot was then opened for Mr. James Henry Tee, who had been proposed by Bro. Ferguson, and seconded by Bro. Gibbon. The voting was unanimous in favour, and Mr. Tee was duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Order. Several motions, of which due notice had been given, were considered, and it was unanimously resolved, on the motion of Bro. Robertson, that the sum of ten guineas should be contributed by the Lodge to each of the three Masonic Charities. After the transaction of some routine business, the brethren adjourned to the throne-room, where a sumptuous banquet had been provided, when the usual Loyal and Craft toasts were honoured. Bro. Gibbs I.P.M. proposed the health of their excellent Worshipful Master, in doing which he said the manner in which Bro. Smith had worked his duties in the Lodge that evening fully proved how zealous he was in the cause of Masonry; and remarking the heartiness with which he promoted all that conduced to the interest and prosperity of the Lodge, he felt sure the brethren would do that honour to the toast which it deserved. The toast was most cordially received, and Bro. Smith, in responding, said he thanked them most cordially for the kindly way in which they had received the mention of his name. He felt very much flattered at the terms in which Bro. Gibbs had spoken of him in regard to the performance of his duties. It had always been his endeavour, in whatever he undertook, to do it with all his might; and that was a maxim which applied to all the duties of life. He strove to do his duty to the utmost of his ability, and he was amply repaid if he succeeded in giving the least degree of satisfaction to the brethren. In turn he proposed the health of the Initiate, a toast which he was sure they would all receive with the utmost cordiality. As the ranks of the Lodge were thinned by the removal of members, or other causes, they were glad to welcome initiates, and he was sure the manner in which the toast would be received would prove to Bro. Tee how much his entrance into the Lodge was appreciated by the brethren. Bro. Tee, in responding, said it was alike his privilege and pleasure to thank them most sincerely for the kind manner in which they had allowed him to enter this Lodge, and still more so for the kindly way in which they had received him that evening. They would believe him when he said it would be his earnest and constant endeavour to discharge to the fullest extent practicable all the solemn obligations laid before him in Lodge, and to which he should give his earnest attention. Whatever he might lack in word or sentiment was more than made up in his sincerity of pleasure at having joined this most worthy Craft. The Worshipful Master then proposed in suitable terms the health of the Past Masters, in doing which he alluded to the valuable assistance they were ever ready to lend to him who occupied the chair. Bro. Gibbs responded, and in doing so observed that he and his brother Past Masters tried to do all they possibly could to promote the advantages and benefits of the Lodge of which they were members. He was one of the founders, and he believed the other Past Masters present were in the same position; and they were all pleased to find the Lodge so well supported. The remarks made by the Initiate that evening proved, with such men as they had now joining their ranks, there need be no fear as to the future welfare and prosperity of the St. Martin's-le-Grand Lodge. The Worshipful Master, in giving the health of the Secretary, said the way in which Bro. Hookey discharged the duties of his office was a credit to the Lodge, and he acknowledged the many obligations he was under to that brother for the assistance he had rendered him during his year of office. Bro. Hookey thanked the brethren very heartily for the kind manner in which they had received the toast, and said it had afforded him very great pleasure to give whatever little assistance he could to the Lodge, and he was much gratified this evening when the Senior Warden proposed that they should contribute ten guineas instead of five towards the Masonic Charities, and enabling the brethren who had consented to act as Stewards to go up with better heart. They could afford the money they had voted, and as long as they could do so the best thing they could do was to assist the Benevolent Institutions of the Craft. At present they stood on the books of Grand Lodge at only five guineas, but he hoped the time might come when they would stand at fifty guineas. He concluded by saying it would be always his endeavour to contribute as far as he could to the prosperity of the Lodge, and no effort towards that end should be wanting on his part. The Worshipful Master then proposed the health of his Officers, who always evinced a desire to do their duties well, and to assist in carrying forward the best interests of the Lodge. The toast was acknowledged by Brother Robertson, in suitable terms. In responding for the Visitors, Brother Paterson observed that this was not the first time he had enjoyed the hospitality of this Lodge, and he appreciated his visits, not only for the excellence of the working he witnessed in Lodge, but also the good-fellowship and welcome always extended to him by the brethren. The Tyler then closed the list in form, and the company separated at an early hour. During the evening some excellent songs and recitations were given, Brother F. Paterson kindly lending efficient aid as accompanyist on the pianoforte.

NEW CONCORD LODGE, No. 813.

THE regular meeting of the members of this Lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 15th instant, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, under the presidency of the W.M. Brother Haslip, who was supported by Bros. Tiddeman S.W., Stillwell J.W., Rev. C. J. Stevens Chaplain, Boulton Treasurer, Harper P.M. Secretary, Smith S.D., Potter J.D., A. Perl M.C., Weeden I.G., F. Perl Steward; Past Master's Bros. Gabb, Pierpoint, Bartlett, Sampson George, Stead, Cusworth, Speight Provincial Grand Tyler Surrey Tyler, and about a dozen other brethren. Lodge was opened in customary form, and after the confirmation of the minutes of the last meeting, the ballot was opened for Mr. Charles Henry Ockleford, organist, who had been proposed by Bro. A. Perl, and seconded by Bro. F. Perl, and also for Mr. George James Thomas Patten, decorative artist, whose sponsors were the same. Both candidates were unanimously approved, and initiated by the Worshipful Master, whose working was, as usual, of the most satisfactory description. Lodge was then advanced, and Bros. John J. Pilley and J. B. Smith were raised to the sublime degree, the impressive rite being worked admirably. On resuming, the election for the Worshipful Master for the ensuing year was proceeded with, the choice of the brethren falling unanimously on Bro. Henry Tiddeman, who was warmly congratulated upon the dignity which had been conferred upon him. Bro. Joseph Boulton was re-elected Treasurer, with thanks for his past services, and Bro. C. T. Speight was appointed Tyler. Bro. Cusworth, as one of the Stewards for the forthcoming Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and Bro. Gabb for the Boys', made an appeal for assistance to their lists, and some other business having been transacted, the brethren separated, the customary post prandial festivities being on this occasion dispensed with.

Kent Lodge of Instruction, No. 15.—Held at Bro. Serjeant's, the King and Queen, Norton Folgate, E.C. The usual weekly meeting was held on Wednesday last. Present—Bros. Serjeant W.M., Legg S.W., Bromet J.W., Millington S.D. and Sec., Clark I.G., Andrews Preceptor; also Bros. Black, Leoffler, Wilson, &c. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Brother Black as candidate. This brother also answered the questions leading to the second degree, and was entrusted. Lodge was advanced, and the ceremony of passing rehearsed. The W.M. then put to the candidate the questions leading to the third, and resumed to the first degree, when, after routine work, he closed his Lodge. Members of the Kent Lodge of Instruction will work the Fifteen Sections, at the West Smithfield Lodge of Instruction, on Monday February 26th. Craftsmen are respectfully invited to attend.

Gihon Lodge, No. 49.—On Thursday evening last a regular meeting of the members of this Lodge was held at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham street, when the Worshipful Master, Bro. W. Cook presided, and was supported by Bros. F. H. Spiller S.W., C. H. Spiller J.W., Stillwell Treas., Waterworth P.M. Sec., Jackson S.D., Anderson J.D., W. Hart I.G., Turner jun. W.S., with several Past Masters and Visitors. After preliminaries Mr. Barham was initiated, and other business having been transacted, the brethren partook of a banquet.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

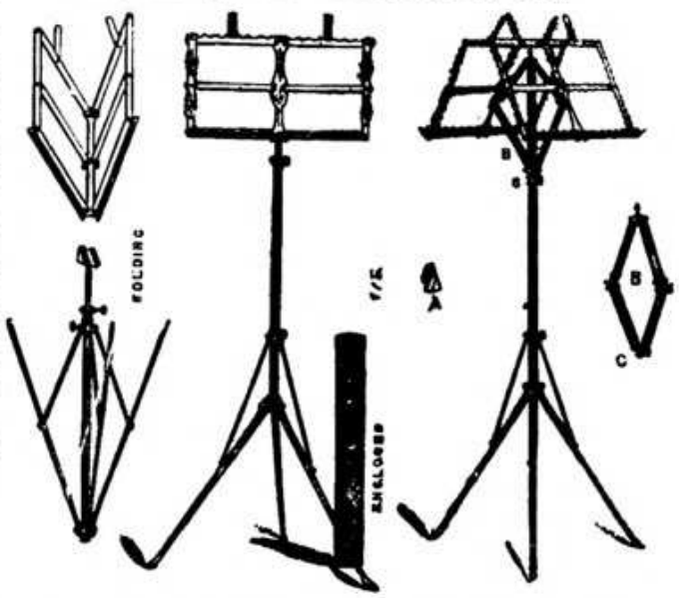
A Handbook of the Electric Lighting Act, 1882, with Hints to Local Authorities, Explanatory Notes, and Amended Rules of the Board of Trade. Also detailed information expressly prepared for the use of Metropolitan Vestries and Electric Light Companies. By Arthur P. Poley, B.A. (Late Scholar of St. John's, Oxford), of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit, Barrister-at-Law, and Frank Dethridge, Vestry Clerk of Paddington and Vice President of the Metropolitan Local Government (Officers) Association. London: Simpkin, Marshall & Co., and Waterlow & Sons (Limited). 1882.

THE authors of this little work are fully justified in stating in their preface, that "care has been exercised to make the book as perfect and accurate as possible," and we doubt not it will be found of use by the local authorities, for whose benefit it has been chiefly undertaken. In the introductory remarks are briefly noted what has been done by the City authorities and what by the Metropolitan Board of Works, and the reasons which may deter local authorities from consenting to applications for licenses, while stress is laid on the provision "made in the Act for the compulsory purchase by a local authority of any undertaking at the expiration of a given period, such purchase to be based upon a fair marketable value only, and no addition is to be made in respect of the purchase being a compulsory one, or of good-will, or of any profits which may or might have been made out of the undertaking." In the "Hints to Local Authorities" are described the various courses open to them. They may avoid taking any action, in which case a monopoly would be established, for at least one-and-twenty years, subject to its being terminated by their compulsory powers of purchase. They may oppose the companies applying for a provisional order, which, in any circumstances, would be costly. They may seek to impose conditions, in which case the pretensions of the several applicants should be sifted, and the company proposing the most reasonable terms supported. Or they may become undertakers themselves and apply for a license, which is for a period not exceeding seven years, in which case they might enter into a contract with one of the Electric Light Companies, but they would not be able to divest themselves of their liabilities as undertakers. The plan that is looked upon by the authors as the best is that the local authorities should remain inactive until such time as the new illuminant shall have passed from the realms of speculation. The bulk of the book is occupied with a clear and able criticism of the Act on Electric Lighting passed last year, the Act itself being printed in full, and supplemented by the rules enacted by the Board of Trade. There is likewise a well-compiled Index, which greatly enhances the utility of the work. In short, the book is, as we have before remarked, admirably calculated to assist the local authorities in determining the course it will be best for them to pursue in connection with any scheme for lighting the districts they preside over by means of electricity.

The regular monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was held at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday. After the usual preliminaries, the Secretary announced three deaths,—of a male annuitant, a female annuitant, and a male candidate not yet elected, as well as the removal from the list of candidates of one who had succeeded in obtaining employment. He further announced that the complete list of candidates for the May Election comprised seventy-one widows and fifty men, as against five female and twelve male vacancies. Bro. Colonel Creaton, Grand Treasurer, proposed,—but subject to the donations at the Festival allowing of the increase,—and it was agreed to, that over and above the three male and three female deferred candidates provided for by the laws of the Institution, there should be an addition to the number of those to be elected of eight males and seven females, thus raising the number of the total to be ballotted for to twenty-two men and fifteen women. Bro. Terry also stated that Bro. Col. Creaton had kindly given forty-two volumes of Punch for the amusement of the old folk at Croydon. Brother C. J. Perceval gave notice of motion, for the next meeting, for the insertion of the following Clause in the Rules of the Institution, namely, that "Every Vice-Patron, upon completion of a further donation of one hundred guineas to either fund, or partly to each fund, in one sum, or in sums of not less than ten guineas each, shall become a patron of the Institution, with twelve votes for every ten guineas subscribed." In the course of the meeting a vote of thanks was passed to the Board of Stewards, and also to Brother General Brownrigg P.G.M. Surrey for having undertaken the chairmanship at the approaching Festival. Among those present were Brothers Colonel Creaton (in the chair), Edgar Bowyer, John Bulmer, W. Raynham Stewart, W. March, Bolton, Stephens, Brett, Quitmann. Girard, Belton, Adlard, Goodall, Bush, Perceval, Webb, Daniel, Cubitt, Tattershall, Moore, Massey, James Terry Secretary.

A temperance Lodge of Freemasons is being formed at Manchester, to be called the Wolseley Lodge, in honour of Lord Wolseley of Cairo, who has written an autograph letter to the provisional Secretary Bro. P. Howard Davis, thanking the brethren for the honour conferred on him in naming the Lodge after him, wishing the Lodge the success it deserves, and soliciting to have his name enrolled on its list of members. R.W. Bro. Col. N. Legendre N. Starkie Prov. G. Master East Lancashire, has signed and forwarded the petition for a consecration warrant to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales Most Worshipful Grand Master of Masons in England. The first W.M. of the new Lodge is to be Bro. Daniel Edwards Past Master and Treasurer of the Callender Lodge, a life abstainer, and thirty years a member of the Independent Order of Rechabites.

On Monday last Bro. F. Perl was entertained at supper by a few members of the New Concord Lodge of Instruction, of which Lodge he is the Secretary, for the purpose of congratulating him on his recent marriage. Before the company separated Bro. Perl was presented with a handsome tea and coffe service, the gift of the brethren. The supper took place at the Cock Tavern, Highbury, and was served in Bro. Baker's well-known liberal style.



Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—Held at Bro. Smyth's, Sisters' Tavern, Pownall-road, Dalston, on Tuesday, 13th instant. Present—Bros. Carr W.M., Clark S.W., Wardell J.W., Christian S D., Robinson J.D., Bunker I.G.; also Bros. Gray, Cushing, Brasted, Smyth, and Wallington P.M. Preceptor. After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Cushing candidate. Bro. Gray then offered himself as a candidate for passing, and was interrogated and entrusted. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Gray was passed to that of Fellow Craft. Bro. Christian worked the first section of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Lodge was opened in the third degree, and regularly closed to the first. Bro. T. Clark was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. Lodge was then closed and adjourned.

A CONSIDERATION of the worship of Mithras completes Bro. Gould's account of "The Ancient Mysteries." This cult had its origin in the time of the ancient Persian monarchy, but the Mithraism that was introduced into Rome in the century before the Christian era, or at a later period—there being differences of opinion as to the exact date of its introduction—was a modified form of the Mithraism of the Zend-Avesta, or sacred writings of the Persians, attributed to Zoroaster. In the latter he is the chief of the Izeds under his creator Ormuzd, in whose wars against Ahriman he is the presiding agent; but in the former he was confounded with the sun and the Supreme Deity. "The fundamental dogma of the Mithraic doctrine," writes Bro. Gould, "was the transmigration of souls under the seven planets, over whose operations Mithras presided. The initiated were divided into seven classes or grades"—other authorities, as shown in a footnote, give other numbers—which were named, successively, soldiers, lions, hyænas, &c., after the animals sacred to Mithras. After passing victoriously through the several ordeals, the neophyte was presented with an engraved stone or amulet, as a token of his admission into the brotherhood, and with the object of supplying a means of recognition by its members. He was also offered a crown, which, however, he was instructed to refuse, saying, 'My only crown is Mithras.' The followers of Mithras, differing from the initiated of other systems, never wore wreaths; and when 'tried and proved' as to their having been duly admitted to a participation in this mystery, threw down the offered wreath, saying, 'My crown is my God.' The candidate, moreover, on the successful conclusion of his probation, was marked in some indelible manner, the exact nature of which cannot now be ascertained. Mr. King is of opinion this mark was not burned in, but incised or tatooed, but he need hardly have suggested that the members of a secret society did not receive the mark of membership on any conspicuous part of the body. We learn from sculptured tablets, and from inscriptions and symbols on tombs, that Mithraism prevailed extensively in this country, as well as in Germany and Gaul, in each case, no doubt, having been introduced by the Roman legions." This faith or cult is supposed to have "survived into comparatively modern times in heretical and semi-pagan forms of Gnosticism," which, we are told, "was the earliest attempt to construct a philosophical system of faith. It was a speculative system, and exercised little influence upon the masses of the people." Later on he adds, "From the fact that many genuine Gnostic symbols have come down to us, or reappear in speculative Masonry, it has been contended, that whereas the Gnosis, in its last and greatest manifestation, the composite religion of Manes, absorbed within itself the relics of the Mithraic faith, so in turn the Manichean talismans and amulets have kept an unbroken existence through the Sectaries of the Lebanon, the Soofees of Persia, the Templars, and the Brethren of the Rosy Cross. Von Hammer lends the weight of his authority in support of the Templar link; which, however, he believes to have been forged at a very early period of the Gnostic heresy, and that it connected the Soldiers of the Cross with the Ophites, and not the Manicheans, their far later successors." He concludes by furnishing an instance from Mackey "of the transmutation of Gnostic talismans into Masonic symbols, by a gradual transmission through alchemy, Rosicrucianism, and mediæval architecture," in the "Azoth Philosophorum of Basil Valentine, the Hermetic philosopher, who flourished in the seventeenth century." In this is a plate, "which is hermetic in its designs, but is full of Masonic symbolism," representing "a winged globe, inscribed with a triangle within a square," on which reposes a dragon. "On the latter stands a human figure of two hands and two heads surrounded by the sun, the moon, and five stars, representing the seven planets. One of the heads is that of a male, the other of a female. The hand attached to the male part of the figure holds the compasses, that to the female a square. The square and compasses thus distributed appear to have convinced Dr. Mackey that originally a phallic meaning was attached to these symbols, as there was to the point within the circle, which in this plate also appears in the centre of the globe. 'The compasses held by the male figure would represent the male generative principle, and the square held by the female, the female productive principle. The subsequent interpretation given to the combined square and compasses was the transmutation from the hermetic talisman to the Masonic symbol.'"

This completes the sketch of "The Ancient Mysteries" and is followed by an account of that remarkable sect "the Essenes," based on Dr. Ginsburg's essay. It will be as well that we should note the more important particulars respecting them. Thus, as to their doctrines and practices—"They regarded the inspired Law of God with the utmost veneration. The highest aim of their life was to become the temples of the Holy Ghost, when they could prophesy, perform miraculous cures, and, like Elias, be the forerunners of the Messiah. This they regarded as the last stage of perfection, which could only be reached by gradual growth in holiness through strict observance of the law. They abstained from using oaths, because they regarded the invocation, in swearing, of anything which represents God's glory, as a desecration." The degrees of purity, according to Jewish tradition, were four in number: "1. The ordinary purity required of every worshipper in the temple; 2. The higher degree of purity necessary for eating of the heave-offering; 3. The still higher degree requisite for partaking of the sacrifices; and 4. The degree of purity required of those who sprinkle the water absolving from sin." Of these only the first was obligatory on every one, while the others were voluntary. The strictness of the ceremonial law led them ultimately to form themselves into a separate community, in which, with the exception of some weaker brethren, they led a life of celibacy, those who were permitted to take unto themselves wives being debarred from advancement to the higher orders of the brotherhood. They had all things in common, and were governed by a president, "who was elected by the whole body." Trials were conducted "by juries composed of at least a hundred members, who had to be unanimous in their verdict." They "always got up before the sun rose, and never talked about any worldly matters until they had assembled and prayed together with their faces turned towards the sun. Some occupied themselves with healing the sick, some in instructing the young; but all of them devoted certain hours to studying the mysteries of nature and revelations, and of the celestial hierarchy. At the fifth hour (or eleven o'clock a.m.) the labour of the forenoon terminated, and they partook of their common meal, each member taking his seat according to age." Between labour and refreshment they assembled together, baptised in cold water, put on their white garments—the symbol of purity—and entered the refectory with as much solemnity as if it were the temple. They ate in solemn silence, and when the meal was ended, resumed their ordinary dress and occupations till supper time. The observance of the Sabbath was exceedingly strict, ten members constituting an assembly for divine worship. They had no ordained ministry, the ordinances of the brotherhood and the "mysteries connected with the Tetragrammaton, and the angelic worlds" forming the leading topics of Sabbath instruction. Recruits were obtained from the Jewish community. "Every grown-up candidate had to pass through a novitiate of two stages, which extended over three years, before he could be finally accepted. In the first, which lasted twelve months, he had to cast all his possessions into the common treasury, and received a copy of the ordinances, as well as a spade, an apron, used at the lustrations, and a white robe, to put on at meals, being the symbols of purity. After this probation, he was admitted into the second stage, which lasted two years, and was called an approacher. During this period he was admitted to a closer fellowship, and shared the lustral rites, but could not hold any office, or sit down at the common table. On passing through the second stage of probation, the approacher became an associate, or a full member of the society, when he was received into the brotherhood, and partook of the common meal. Before, however, he was made a homiletes, or finally admitted into close fellowship, he had to bind himself by a most solemn oath (this being the only occasion on which the Essenes used an oath), to observe three things: 1. Love to God; 2. Merciful justice towards all men—to be faithful to every man, and especially to rulers; and 3. Purity of character, which implied inter alia strict secresy towards outsiders, so as not to divulge the secret doctrines (mustéria) to any one, and perfect openness with the members of the Order."

It is needless to say that so holy a brotherhood has commanded respect from innumerable writers—Jewish, Greek, Roman, Christian Church, and heathen. That they had anything in common with the Pythagoreans, as some, taking a remark of Josephus for the justification of this view, have been led to believe, is shown to be out of the question by Dr. Ginsburg, certain of those differences between the Essenes and the disciples of Pythagoras as noted by that writer being reproduced by Bro. Gould. Thus the Pythagoreans were polytheists, the Essenes were monotheists; the former believed in the metempsychosis, while the latter did not. Pythagoras taught that man could control his fortune, but Essenism held that fate governed all things. The last difference quoted is that, while the Pythagoreans were aristocratic and exclusive, the Essenes were meek and lowly, and beloved even by other sects. There were, however, strong points of resemblance both in doctrine and practice between the Essenes and the Pharisees. "In both systems there were four classes of Levitical purity, a novitiate of twelve months, an apron was bestowed in the first year, and the mysteries of the cosmogony and cosmology were only revealed to members of the society. Stewards supplied the needy strangers of either order with clothing and food. Both regarded office as coming from God, and their meal as a sacrament. Both bathed before meals, and wore symbolical garments on the lower part of their body while so doing. Each meal began and ended with prayer. Both regarded ten persons as constituting a complete number for Divine worship," and oaths were forbidden in both. On the other hand, the Essenes differed from the Pharisees in that they were an isolated order and celibates, did not frequent the temple or offer sacrifices, and though they believed in the immortality of the soul, did not accept the doctrine of the resurrection of the body.

Passing over what relates to their origin, antiquity, and disappearance from the field of history, we come to the mention of the theory of Krause who, from his point of view, finds in what he considers the earliest Masonic ritual, "which he dates at A.D. 926," evidence of "customs 'obviously taken from the usages of the Roman Colleges and other sources, that individually agree with the customs and doctrines of the Essenes, Stoics, and Soofees of Persia.' This writer draws especial attention to the 'agreement of the brotherhood of the Essenes with the chief doctrines which the Culdees associated with the three great lights of the Lodge.' He then observes 'that though coincidences, without any actual connection, are of little value, yet, if it can be historically proved that the one society knew of the other, the case is altered.' Having, then, clearly established (at least, to his own satisfaction) that the Culdees were the authors of the 926 constitutions, he next argues that they knew of and copied in many respects the Essenes and Therapeutæ; after which he cites Philo in order to establish that the three fundamental doctrines of the Essenes were Love of God, Love of Virtue, and Love of Mankind;" and "these he compares with the moral phases of moral conduct, symbolised in our Lodges by the Bible, square, and compasses."

We next come to "the Roman Collegia," and Bro. Gould quotes Coote's contention "that the Romans of Britain survived all the barbarian conquests, and that they retained their own law with its procedure and police; their own lands, with the tenures and obligations appertaining to them; their own cities and municipal government; their Christianity and private Colleges." And he continues quoting from the same writer thus:—

All Roman cities were the foster-mothers of those especially Roman institutions—the Colleges. The Anglo-Saxons found these institutions in full play when they came over here; and, with the cities in which they flourished, they left them to the Romans to make such use of them as they pleased; possibly ignoring them, certainly not interfering in their practice, nor controlling their principles. These Colleges were very dear to the Romans. They were native to the great mother city. They were nearly as old as municipality itself, and it was as easy to imagine a Roman without a city as to conceive his existence without a college. The two made up that part of his disengaged life which was not claimed by home and the domestic avocations. No sooner was the Roman conquest of Britain begun, and a modicum of territory was obtained, than we find a collegium in our own civitas Regnorum—a collegium fabrorum. And this was while Claudius was still emperor. The colleges of course multiplied and spread throughout our island, remaining during the whole of the imperial rule, and surviving, with our provincial ancestors, the various barbarian contests.

When these conquests were completed, the Anglo-Saxons, who, unlike their brethren of Germany, did not interfere with the habits of the vanquished, left their new subjects to the possession and enjoyment of this most powerful means of self protection. As the German conquerors of Gaul and Italy, who feared and hated the colleges, prohibited their very existence under the harshest penalties, because they knew them to be seminaries of free Roman thought, we must suppose that this leniency of the Anglo-Saxon arose either out of ignorance of their tendency, or contempt of their effect. But whatever was the ground of this toleration, it is quite clear that the colleges, though under another name, continued to exist and maintain themselves.

They are masqued, it is true, under the barbarous name of gild when our historic writers begin to tell us of them. This trivial word, due to the contributions upon which the colleges had from all time subsisted, betrays their constitution; and we find them also, where we ought to expect them—in the Roman cities of Britain.

He also quotes, by way of contrast, from an historical sketch by Mr. Freeman, who, in comparing the English settlement in Britain with the Teutonic settlements in the continental provinces of Rome, says: "Elsewhere the conquerors and the conquered mingled; the fabric of Roman society was not wholly overthrown; the laws, the speech, the religion of the elder time went on, modified, doubtless, but never utterly destroyed. In Britain a great gulf divides us from everything before our coming. Our laws and language have in later times been greatly modified, not at the hands of the conquered Britons, but at the hands of the conquering Normans. Elsewhere, in a word, the old heritage, the old traditions of Rome still survive; here they are things of the dead past, objects only of antiquarian curiosity."

There is likewise a long quotation from Mr. Pike's "History of Crime," with the first portion of which we shall content ourselves. He (Mr. Pike) observes "that the priority of any of the three forms of guild becomes a mere matter of conjecture, and the source of the whole system must necessarily remain doubtful. Regarded from one point of view, the guild has a strong resemblance to the family tie of the Teutonic and other barbarous tribes; regarded from another, it is a species of bail, which involves a principle too universally applied to be considered characteristic of any one people; regarded from a third, it is strikingly like that institution of colleges or companies which was always familiar to the Romans, and which we know from inscriptions to have existed in Britain during the Roman occupation, both in the form of the religious guild and in the form of the craft guild."

Having laid these different opinions before his readers, Brother Gould goes on to consider, firstly, the forms in which the Collegia appeared; then, their general or common features; and thirdly, their character when disseminated throughout the Empire. As regards the first point, he groups them in four principal divisions, namely, religious bodies, such as the Colleges of the Priests and Vestal Virgins; associations of official persons, such as the corpus or collegium Scribarum; corporations for trade-commerce, such as the Fabri, Pistores, &c.; and associations, somewhat resembling the modern club and known as Sodalitates, Sodalitia, Collegia Sodalitia. These last were originally leagues for feasting together, though at times of civil commotion they frequently became centres of political intrigue. Among the characteristics of the Collegium may be noted that it could not consist of less than three members; that it was divided into decuriæ and centuriæ and governed by a magister and decuriones — the "decuriones" being, for the sake of Masonic convenience we presume, translated into "Wardens;" that among the other officers were a Treasurer, Secretary, and Archivis; that to each candidate on his admission was administered an oath; that the expenses were defrayed out of the dues and subscriptions imposed on the members; that the sodales supported their poor and buried their deceased brethren; that each college celebrated its anniversary or natal day; and, on the authority of a single instance cited by Mr. Coote, that they called and regarded each other as brethren. As to the character of these Colleges when distributed throughout the Roman empire, it is worth while to note that the Masons' College is not mentioned, it being probable that this body of craftsmen was included in the Collegium fabrorum. One of the leading features of these provincial Colleges is their connection with the religion of the people, and another the hereditary principle, by which the son succeeded to the occupation of his father. As to their constitution, Bro. Gould quotes the following from Sir F. Palgrave: "It is evident that the Colleges were not of a uniform constitution. Some were entirely grounded on personal obligations; others, if we may borrow from our legal nomenclature, savoured of the realty; and the supposition that the Roman jurists, either willingly or inadvertently, forgot or confounded the primitive distinction may partly account for the perplexed organisation which the colleges assumed." Brother Gould himself considers that "in the widely diversified regions over which the system of Colleges was extended by imperial Rome, the usages, the requirements, and the purpose of these institutions, must have gradually varied from those of their original types, and have assumed features dictated by the circumstances of each locality, and the exigencies of its external relations." As to the connection between modern Freemasonry and the Collegia, Bro. Fort appears to see one existing through "the junction of Byzantine corporations with Teutonic guilds," which "afforded the substantial basis of subsequent lodge appointments and ritualism, such as have descended to modern Freemasonry," Byzantine building corporations being, according to Müller, permitted to live outside the limits of the Byzantine empire, and "exercise a judicial government among themselves, according to the laws of the country to which they owed allegiance."

The concluding section of this Chapter is devoted to the Culdees. Different origins have been ascribed to the term, but whether it was Gaelic or Latin; whether a Culdee was a servant of God, one separated or espoused to God, a man of seclusion, or a worshipper of God, it seems they existed in Ireland, where they "had numerous establishments and retained their name at Armagh down to the time of Archbishop Usher;" in Scotland, where it is said to have originated in Iona, and whence it disappeared after 1382; and in England in the time of Athelstan, who is said to have granted a charter to the English Masons at York in 926. As regards the last, there is in the British Museum Library —Cotton collection—a chartulary of St. Leonard's Hospital at York, an abstract of which was printed in Dugdale's "Monasticon." Of this abstract we have the following particulars:—

"When King Athelstan was on his march against the Scotch in 936, he halted at York Castle, and there besought of the ministers of St. Peter's Church, who were then called Colidei, to offer up their prayers on behalf of himself and his expedition, promising them that, if he returned victorious, he would confer suitable honour upon the church and its ministers. Accordingly, after a successful campaign, he revisited this church, and publicly returned thanks for the favours which Heaven had vouchsafed to him. And observing in the same church, men of holy life and honest conversation, then styled Colidei, who maintained a number of poor people, and withal had but little whereon to live, he granted to them and their successors for ever, for the better enabling them to support the poor who resorted thither, to exercise hospitality, and perform other works of piety, a thrave of corn from every ploughland in the diocese of York—a donation which continued to be enjoyed until a later period under the name of Peter-corn. The record goes on to state that these Colidei continued to receive fresh accessions to their endowments, and especially from Thomas, whom William the Conqueror advanced to the see of York in 1069. The Colidei soon after erected or founded in the same city, on a site which had belonged to the crown, an hospital or halting-place for the poor who flocked thither; to which were transferred the endowments which the said Colidei or clerics had hitherto received. William Rufus removed the hospital to another part of the city; and King Stephen, when further augmenting its resources, changed its name from St. Peter's to St. Leonard's hospital. It contained a master or warden and 13 brethren, 4 secular priests, 8 sisters, 30 choristers, 2 schoolmasters, 206 beadsmen, and 6 servitors."

The Chartulary containing the foregoing particulars was engrossed in the reign of Henry V., and it is by no means improbable, as Bro. Gould says in his footnote, that the incident, as narrated in it, gave rise to the legend about the York Charter granted by Athelstan in 926. However, we will not enter further into this speculation, or delay longer over the subject of Culdeeism with which Bro. Gould concludes his first chapter, and which, therefore, affords a convenient halting-place in the progress of our remarks.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

POLISH NATIONAL LODGE, No. 534.

THE usual monthly meeting of this old established Lodge took place on Thursday, the 8th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. Business commenced at 5.30 p.m. The W.M., Bro. Lancaster, being supported by Bros. Smith S.W., Runts J.W., Bieling S.D., Bryant J.D., Turner I.G., Hayday M.C., Davis Tyler; P.M.'s Jackson, Jagielski, Rath, Nowakowski (Treasurer), Paas (Secretary). Notice of emergency having been read in open Lodge, in strict accordance with the Constitutions, for the observance of which the W.M. is particularly noted, ballot was taken for the son of the highly respected Treasurer Bro. Nowakowski. This proving to be unanimous in his favour, he was initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry in the perfect manner which characterises the Polish Lodge. Bro. Cooper was passed to the second degree. The Lodge received, with sincere regret, the news of the sad death of Bro. Chas. Warburton Russell, who was accidentally drowned whilst crossing from Jersey; and it was unanimously passed that a letter of condolence should be sent to his friends, expressing the sorrow that was felt by every brother. Notice of motion was given by Bro. Turner, seconded by Bro. Runts, that a Committee should be formed to inquire into and arrange certain matters connected with the welfare of the Lodge. A brother applied for assistance, which was given, and the names of Mr. Varley Simpson, Mr. Edrupt, and two other gentlemen, were handed in as candidates for initiation at the next meeting. A pleasing incident during the evening was the investment, by Bro. Rath P.M., of Bros. Geflowski and Draper, with the special jewel appertaining to the Polish National Lodge. All other business being completed, Lodge was closed in due form. The brethren retired to the banquet table, the dinner being a marked improvement on that served on previous occasions. The cloth being removed and the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts given, the I.P.M. proposed the health of the W.M., alluding particularly to the manner in which the work of the evening had been performed, and to the strict adherence of the W.M. to the Book of Constitutions. The W.M. replied; he was pleased the brethren were satisfied with the working of the Lodge, he always strove to adhere as strictly as possible to the laws laid down for their guidance. He hoped the brethren would be more regular in their attendance, as on the last occasion the Lodge was almost entirely composed of Officers and Past Masters. The toast of the Initiates was then proposed, and Bro. Paas P.M. favoured the brethren with the "Entered Apprentice," sung in his usual melodious tones. The Initiate, Bro. Nowakowski, returned thanks; he trusted that he might some day occupy as honoured a position in the Polish National Lodge as his father now held. Bro. Geflowski, a joining member, said that he, being a Pole, was very pleased to belong to the Polish Lodge. He had been in many Lodges, having been made a Mason fifteen years ago in the Marina Lodge, Liverpool, and a few months ago had visited a Lodge in Bombay, where the S.W. was a native. Bro. Draper, the other joining member, stated that he had joined the Polish National Lodge on account of the excellent working of the I.P.M.; he considered the work was as well done by its present Master. The following Visitors attended:—Bros. Hook W.M. East Surrey 463, Hastings Miller P.M. Royal Albert 907, Saegert P.M. Wellington, Dr. J. McWatter Boomer St. John's Lodge, Ireland, Newcome Crystal Palace, Manning Royal Albert, Parlee Old King's Arms 28, Venning, Bourne, &c.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE, No. 1426.

THE fifth meeting of the session of The Great City Lodge was held on Saturday, 10th February, at the Cannon-street Hotel, and, no doubt on account of the very unfavourable state of the weather, was but thinly attended. Bros. Kibble W.M., Keeble S.W., Baber J.W., N. B. Headon Treasurer, Blackie Secretary; all the assistant Officers were present, besides several Past Masters and Visitors. The Lodge having been duly opened and the minutes confirmed, was opened in the second and third degrees, and Bro. Ernest Milton Caslon was raised to the degree of M.M., the ceremony being most ably conducted by the W.M. The Lodge was then resumed to the second degree, and Bro. Snell had conferred on him the second degree, which was equally well performed. The Lodge was then lowered to the first degree, when Bro. Hamer P.M., in absence of Bro. Postans, who had given notice of motion, moved, "That the sum of twenty-five guineas be voted from the Benevolent Fond of the Lodge to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and placed on the W. Master's list on his serving as Steward at the ensuing Festival." This, having been seconded, was put and unanimously agreed to. The case of a brother applying for assistance at the last Lodge, to whom a donation was made, was again brought before the Lodge, and it appearing that the enquiries had not proved satisfactory, it was resolved that no further assistance should be given. After some communications had been received, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment. At the conclusion of the repast and on the withdrawal of the cloth the W. Master gave The Queen, which was followed by the National Anthem, well sung by Bro. Cozens, who accompanied himself on the pianoforte. The W. Master said the next toast was that of The Prince of Wales Most Worshipful Grand Master of Masons, whose services since his connection with the Craft were well known and appreciated; he had only to mention his name to evoke the heartiest applause. This toast was most enthusiastically received. The W. Master said that the next he had the honour of proposing he should do without preface, it was the health of the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Lathom Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers past and present. Bro. Stevens P.M. said, in proposing the next toast, he also should not indulge in any preface, as it was a standing toast. By an unwritten law of the Lodge they were bound to shew respect to any one who occupied the chair, and he was sure they would never do so with greater sincerity than on the present occasion. Therefore he had great pleasure in calling their attention to what he might designate the toast of the evening, inasmuch that they had not that night a newly-installed brother amongst them. Their W. Master, who was installed in October last, was about to leave the chair, and he (Bro. Stevens) trusted that he would see the means of leaving some work for his successor. He thought they might congratulate themselves on Bro. Kibble's efficient working, and under his kindly rule the prestige of the Lodge had been kept up during his year of office. He looked upon him with great pride as one of the first initiates in the Lodge, and he might say that very few members had gone through the chair with greater efficiency than their present W. Master. He, therefore, asked them to accept the toast in as hearty, cordial, and enthusiastic a manner as it deserved;—the health of the W. Master. The Wor. Master, in reply, said he must make a few remarks on the too flattering manner in which Bro. Stevens had proposed his health, but he appreciated the very cordial shake of the hand he received from all the members, and it would be a matter of regret to him when the time should come for him to cease to occupy the chair; his time for filling it was coming to an end. He had, however, the satisfaction of knowing that the brother who would follow him would do the work better than he had done it, or had been able to do. He thanked the brethren for that kindly expression of their feelings towards him. Having had his day, he knew he should be worthily succeeded by the brother who would follow him in the chair. The W. Master said the next toast he had to propose was one always favourably received in that Lodge; it was the health of the Visitors. It was a matter of great importance to a Lodge that they should have visitors; they had a good influence; without their presence they might become a little bit careless in the way in which they rendered their ceremonies; but when they knew that the Visitors were observing them, they might perhaps be more cautious, and do their duty in a way which might have a salutary influence upon other Lodges. The Visitors severally returned thanks. The W.M. said he had a special toast to propose; this was the health of Bro. Caslon. He was about to leave them, for a foreign land, and he (the Worshipful Master) asked as a favour that he would leave some memento to give them a pleasing remembrance of him during his absence. Bro. Caslon returned thanks; he was under deep obligations to them for the manner in which he had been received in The Great City Lodge; he should never forget the many happy hours he had spent with them, and it would be to him the greatest pleasure when he should be able to come amongst them once more. Bro. Frost favoured the brethren with a performance of "Home, Sweet Home," with variations, on the pianoforte, and that beautiful air was listened to with intense interest, evoking that heartfelt sympathy which this plaintive melody is so well calculated to draw forth. The Worshipful Master next gave the Past Masters of the Lodge. Bro. Stevens, in responding to the toast, alluded to the coming revision of the Book of Constitutions, and the number of amendments which had been sent in to Grand Lodge, and which would require the most careful attention from not only the oldest, but by the youngest member of that Lodge. The other Past Masters also returned thanks. The W.M. next gave the health of their Brothers Treasurer and Secretary; he regretted that it was a toast that always came so late in the evening, but it was always most enthusiastically received. Their Treasurer was indeed a most wonderful man; he paid bills with money he had not got; he was such a wonderful man that they should never get such another. He also took great trouble in assisting him (the W.M.) in the details of his office, and he could not thank him sufficiently for what he had done. As to their Bro. Secretary, he did a great deal more than what were his real duties. He might add, that as regarded their Treasurer and Secretary, they had a pair of the most efficient officers any Lodge ever possessed. Bro. Bertram sang the splendid air "Alice," with great effect. Bro. Headon said it was the most difficult part of a Treasurer's duty to return thanks for the toast which had been proposed; it was very hard indeed to find anything new to say in returning them thanks for the very cordial manner in which his health was always received. He was pleased that they had that night voted twenty-five guineas, to be placed on the list of the W.M., who would represent the Lodge as Steward at the Festival for the Girls' School. The Lodge had given a sum sufficient to make them Vice Presidents of the Benevolent Institution, also seventy-five guineas to the Boys' School, and the amount they had voted that night would make them Vice Presidents of the Girls' School; it would only require a similar sum next year to be given to the Boys' School to make them Vice Presidents of all the Masonic Institutions. Next year, when their W.M. became Steward for the Boys' School, he would have the gratification of knowing that the Lodge was Vice President of all three Institutions, and after that occasion he thought they might stop and take breath, and allow younger Lodges to do what ought to be done: that was to do their duty. Bro. Blackie thanked the brethren for the very kind way in which they had received the toast of the Treasurer and Secretary; he assured them it was a pleasure to him to attend to the duties of his office, which he had discharged to the best of his ability. It appeared that he had given satisfaction to the W.M., and at the end of another year he hoped to give the same satisfaction as he had done in the past. Some other toasts were given, and the proceedings were brought to a close after a most successful and harmonious meeting.

CLARENDON LODGE, No. 1769.

A REGULAR meeting of this Lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 13th instant, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, when there was a goodly attendance of the brethren and visitors, under the presidency of Bro. John Soper W.M. There were also amongst those present Bros. C. Thompson I.P.M., T. Grove P.M., T. W. Mayes S.W., George Croxton J.W., J. Stanley Treasurer, J. Cooper Sec., T. B. Linscott S.D., T. C. Thomson J.D., W. Goldsmith I.G., &c. The Visitors included Bros. E. B. Grabham P.M. 19 P.P.G.S.W. Middlesex, J. L. Sillitoe P.M. 665 P.P.G.D.C. East Lancashire, T. G. Smith W.M. 194, G. Snow 1228, S. J. Cook 95, and H. D. Pool 764. There was very little business on the agenda, and at an early hour the brethren and visitors sat down to a well-spread banquet, where the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured, interspersed with harmony, and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—The members held their usual meeting on Saturday last, at the Jolly Farmers, Southgate-road, Islington. Present—Brothers Galer W.M., Venning S.W., Lorkin J.W. and Treasurer, Pearcy Preceptor, Fenner Sec., Marks S.D., Archer J.D., Humphreys I.G.; also Bros. Houghton, Wolf, Rhodes, Snook, &c. The usual formalities were duly observed in opening the Lodge, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Brother Wolf gave proof of his proficiency and was entrusted. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and the ceremony of passing rehearsed, Brother Wolf acting as candidate. Brother Pearcy worked the first section of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Lodge was called off and on. Lodge was resumed to the first degree. The W.M. gave the lecture on the tracing board, in an excellent manner. Lodge was resumed to the second degree, and opened in the third. Lodge was then closed to the first degree. Brother Venning was duly elected to preside at the next meeting. Lodge was then closed and adjourned. The bad weather, we presume, was the cause of such a small attendance on this occasion.

United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, No 507.—This Lodge of Instruction met at the Masonic Hall, Camberwell, S.E., on Friday evening, the 9th inst. Present—Bros. C. H. Wiltshire W.M., H. H. Wiltshire S.W., Bate J.W., Thurston S.D., Hennig J.D., Fullwood I.G., Poore Secretary, Stevens P.M. and Preceptor, Smith P.M., &c. Lodge having been opened and the minutes read, Brother Dick proved his proficiency, and the ceremony of passing was ably rehearsed by the W.M. The Lodge being closed to the first degree, Brother Fullwood rehearsed the ceremony of initiation. Brother H. H. Wiltshire was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and having appointed his Officers, the Lodge was closed, and the meeting adjourned.

St. Leonards Lodge, No. 1766.—The usual monthly meeting of this Lodge was held at the Town Hall, Shoreditch, on Wednesday, the 7th instant, under the presidency of Brother J. A. Jones Worshipful Master. There were also present—Bros. Stean P.M., Barham P.M., Benjamin P.M., Clement S.W., Funston J.W., Rev. Henderson Chaplain, Walker S.D., Matthews J.D., Drysdale I.G., Thrower M.C., Young Organist, Harrison Steward, Very Tyler, and a good attendance of brethren. The Lodge was opened according to ancient form, and the business comprised the passing of Bros. Rose, Henman jun., and Colls, to the Fellow Craft degree. Mr. Thomas Weatherly was unanimously elected, and initiated into the mysteries of the Order. Brother W. Shurmur 1471, and Brother James Tames 723, were unanimously elected joining members. Brother Clark was appointed Assistant Steward. The whole of the ceremonies were ably worked by the Worshipful Master and his Officers. On the motion of Brother Barham, seconded by Brother Stean, a vote of condolence was passed to the widow of the late Bro. Charles Davis, whose decease is deeply regretted by the members of the Lodge. Lodge having been closed the brethren retired to refreshment.

The Original and only true.

HUNDREDS of Medical Practitioners testify to its marvellous efficacy in immediately relieving and rapidly curing Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Spasms, Colic, Whooping Cough, and all Nerve Pains. It acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery. It rapidly relieves pain, from whatever cause, soothes and strengthens the system under exhausting diseases, and gives quiet and refreshing sleep.

Lord Chancellor Selborne, Lord Justice James, Lord Justice Mellish decided in favour of FREEMAN'S ORIGINAL CHLORODYNE, and against Brown and Davenport, compelling them to pay all costs in the suits. See Times of July 24th, 1873. Bottles 1s 1½d, 2s 9d, 4s 6d, 11s, and 20s. Sold by all Chemists.

TESTIMONIALS.—Head Quarter Staff, Cabul, May 31st, 1880. Mr. R. Freeman, Dear Sir,—It is with much pleasure I am able to state that your Chlorodyne has been of special service to me in alleviating the wearisome spasms of Asthma, which is here existent in an aggravated form. Many of my patients now come and beg me to give them that medicine which always relieves them, and which I need hardly say is your Chlorodyne. Yours faithfully, CHARLES W. OWEN, L.R.C.P. Lon., M.R.C.S. Eng., the Divisional Head Quarter Staff and Civil Surgeon, Cabul.

The Times, August 13th, 1877. From our own Correspondent with the Russian Army. Okoum, July 26th, 1877. The want of sanitary arrangements in the Russian Camp was dreadful, and had we remained there a few weeks* onger, dysentery and typhoid fever would have played more havoc in our ranks than the bombs of the Turks. I myself acquired an unenviable reputation as a doctor, owing to my being provided with a small bottle of CHLORODYNE, with which I effected miraculous cures.

THE FESTIVAL OF WEDNESDAY NEXT.

WE must not allow the present opportunity to pass without reiterating, for the last time, our heartiest wishes for the success of the Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution on Wednesday next. We have again and again, and to the best of our humble ability, urged the claims of this Charity on the support of the Craft. The good work it is doing is considerable, and of course entails the expenditure, annually, of a very large sum of money. Its annuitants, of all classes, are some 335 in number, the males receiving £40 per annum each and the females £32, while there is also a limited number of the latter who are allowed to receive the half of their late husband's annuities for a certain term of years, unless in the course of such term they are elected on the Female Fund, when they become entitled to the full amount] for a widow. But, notwithstanding the increased annual grants to the beneficiaries and the large increase in the number of such, the list of candidates is even more formidable this year than it has ever been before, while, as ill-luck would have it, the number of vacancies to be filled is exceptionally small, there being fifty male and seventy-one female candidates as against twelve male and five female vacancies respectively. A law recently enacted enables the Committee of Management to hold in reserve, to be placed on their respective funds without further ballot, the three male and three female candidates who have polled the most votes next after the successful candidates. This raises the number that it will be possible to provide for immediately after the May election, or in the course of the twelve months thence ensuing, to fifteen males and eight females. However, at their last meeting, on the 14th inst., the Committee of Management generously resolved, in the event of the subscriptions at the Festival of Wednesday next being up to the standard of recent years, on raising the number to be elected to twenty-three males and fifteen females. This will necessitate an increased annual liability of £544, and makes it the more imperative that the brethren should bestir themselves so as to enable the Committee to give effect to their resolution. There are reasons which justify us in expecting a very favourable result. The Board of Stewards is already some 260 strong. The Chairman, Bro. General Brownrigg, is deservedly one of the most popular members of the Fraternity, and the Province of Surrey, of which he is the Grand Master, is making strenuous efforts to support him on the occasion. London also is well represented, and we may be sure the Provinces which regularly contribute will not be wanting in their support of the Benevolent Institution, which, though the youngest of our three Charities, is under the necessity of providing the largest amount for its expenditure annually. Last year the sum required for annuities—irrespective of the expenses of management—was £11,600. This year, if the additional candidates are taken on, it will be, in round figures, £12,150. This is, undoubtedly, a large sum, but if we may judge from the experience of the last eight years, it is well within the ability of the Craft to raise it. The conspicuous energy of Bro. Terry and his staff needs no encouragement from us, and we are satisfied the Stewards will do all they can in seconding the efforts of their popular chairman. May the Festival of 1883 be a brilliant success!

ADDRESS OF BRO. J. H. GRAHAM, LL.D.

G. MASTER OF THE G. LODGE OF QUEBEC.

THIS address was delivered by Bro. Graham, at the Thirteenth Annual Communication of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, held in the City of Quebec, on the 31st January and 1st February. So much of it as is of local interest may be described very shortly. Regretful reference is made to the death of Bro. S. D. Harington Past Grand Master of Canada, and representative of Quebec at its Canadian sister Grand Lodge, and sympathy is expressed with the G. Lodges of New York, Massachusetts, and Iowa at the losses respectively sustained by them through the deaths of Bros. J. M. Austin G. Sec. of New York, Tracy P. Cheever G.S. Massachusetts, and Robert F. Bower, the well-known Masonic bibliophile. The warmest satisfaction is expressed at the escape of the Queen when her life was attempted in the early part of last year, and the Grand Master notifies his intention of proposing that an address embodying the expression of such satisfaction be forwarded by the Grand Lodge of Quebec to Her Majesty. He urges on the Craft generally, both in the cities and the rural districts, but especially on the Lodges in Montreal, the advisability, on the score of comfort and economy, of erecting Masonic Halls. He announces his intention of proposing that the honorary rank of Past Grand Master be conferred on Bro. George Otis Tyler G. Commander of Knights Templar of Vermont, and Bro. Colonel McLeod Moore Great Prior (K.T.) of Canada. Referring to the multiplicity of Rites in other parts of the world, and at the same time deprecating all idea on his part of limiting the freedom of action of the Quebec brethren in joining those outside the pale of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, Bro. Graham bids them be careful, in taking the chivalric and other orders, not to avoid doing anything prejudicial to the stability of the Craft and Arch degrees. Having noticed his recognition of the Grand Symbolic Lodge of Spain and the Grand Lodge of Arizona, and the interchange of representatives between Quebec and those Bodies, and having likewise explained the reasons which had actuated him in withholding recognition for the present from the so-called "Grand Lodge of New South Wales," and the circumstances which might induce him to suggest the opposite course of recognition, Bro. Graham devotes the remainder of his address to the relations existing between Quebec and England, and it is to his arguments in connection with this subject that we purpose directing our remarks on the present occasion.

We may state at once that nothing that Bro. Graham has said on the present occasion can have the slightest influence in inducing us to change, or even in the slightest degree modify, the opinions we have before expressed. We hold that when it is proposed to establish a new and independent Grand Lodge in a British colony or dependency, in which the Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and Scotland have previously held concurrent jurisdiction, any Lodge or Lodges which may be desirous of remaining in its or their allegiance to the Grand Lodge which granted its or their warrant of constitution should have full liberty to do so. It follows, as a matter of course, that we consider the action of the Grand Lodge of England in making its recognition of the Grand Lodge of Quebec conditional on the latter's undertaking to leave the English Lodges of Montreal in the full enjoyment of their previous status, as such was perfectly justifiable. Indeed, it would have been an error on the part of the G.L. of England, and shown a pitiful weakness, had she not adopted such a course and insisted that Lodges which owed their existence to her should, if and for so long as they were so minded, remain under her jurisdiction. Canada, when she severed her Masonic connection with the mother country, respected the wishes of those Lodges which preferred remaining under their respective parent Grand Lodges and accepted the obligation to respect them as the condition of her acknowledgment as a separate and independent Grand Lodge. Nova Scotia followed the example of Canada, and there is still one English Lodge—the Royal Standard, No. 398, of Halifax—located within the territorial limits of that Colony, which retains its allegiance to the G. Lodge of England, and the continuance of which, G.M. Laurie of Nova Scotia is so far from considering it in any way detracts from the jurisdiction over which he presides, that he and his Grand Officers not long since visited it by invitation, and he has expressed his belief that it was a great advantage to him and his fellow Nova Scotian brethren to have such a Lodge, albeit a foreign one, in their midst. But what Nova Scotia regards as a benefit to Nova Scotian Freemasonry, and what Canada did gracefully when she invited the Grand Lodge of England to recognise her Masonic independence, ought not to prove a stumbling-block to the existence of fraternal relations between Quebec and England, and mutual representation at either Grand Lodge. Quebec, it must be remembered, is an offshoot from the Grand Lodge of Canada, and in honour is bound to the observance of the conditions which the latter made when it became a separate and distinct jurisdiction from England and Scotland. Many of its Lodges must have been parties to the acceptance of those conditions, and there can be nothing undignified, certainly nothing unfraternal or contrary to that freedom of action and opinion which is a leading characteristic of our Society in acquiescing in a state of things which has endured for nearly thirty years without discomfort or sacrifice of dignity to any of the Grand Bodies in question. Quebec as a Masonic jurisdiction is of recent origin. It has an independent existence dating no further back than 1869. Nearly eight years since—in 1875—England expressed her willingness to recognise that independent existence on exactly the same conditions that Canada had readily acceded to at the establishment of her independence, and what has endured all these years may well be allowed to remain undisturbed for the present and till such time as the English Lodges in Montreal themselves take the initiative and express a desire to become enrolled under the banners of the Grand Lodge of Quebec.

Of course the age of the Quebec Grand Lodge is of comparatively trivial importance, and we have alluded to it only for the purpose of making the arrogance of its pretensions the more apparant. Nor are we altogether surprised at its arrogating to itself the right to condemn those who do not accept its views unhesitatingly. It is the way of the world in these times for juniors to set themselves up as possessing at least as much knowledge, and as being as fully competent to settle any and every question that may arise, as their seniors. Thus England is plainly told she possesses no right to allow Lodges which have derived from her their warrants of constitution to remain in allegiance to her, if they prefer doing so to joining the G. Lodges established in the Colony in which they are located years and years after their own creation. Such Lodges are plainly given to understand that such freedom of action is denied them, and that if they decline to join the newly-constituted Grand Body, there is but one alternative left them—that of being excommunicated or dissolution. Even Canada, of which Quebec once formed a part, is soundly rated by G.M. Graham, who is of opinion that the Grand Lodge of Canada unlawfully bartered its birth-right of exclusive Masonic sovereignty, the acknowledgment of the possession of which she had justly received from all the sovereign Grand Lodges of the United States,—in accepting, as she did, through M.W. Bro. the Earl of Zetland G. Master of England, concurrent-jurisdiction-recognition from that Grand Body, than which, as it appears to me, no act could have been more short-sighted and unconstitutional, or, consequently more detrimental to the interests of Freemasonry in Canada and elsewhere, as is shown by the condition of local and interjurisdictional affairs here, and in other parts of the Empire at the present time, and which, if not speedily remedied, will in all probability be still worse in time to come. Was it to be supposed that such an unconstitutional compromise, fraught with such deplorable consequences, would stand through one generation of Craftsmen who know their Masonic rights and dare maintain them? Impossible." This looks large in print and probably sounded well at the time of its delivery, but examine it as carefully as you will, and it resolves itself into nothing else than words, many of them formidable enough in appearance, yet perfectly harmless. People who read the passage we have quoted, about an unlawfully-bartered birth-right, short-sighted and unconstitutional compromises, and deplorable consequences, will be led to imagine that Freemasonry in Canada and throughout the world must be in a very sorry plight, the fact being that in Canada and elsewhere its condition is most prosperous. The acceptance of Lord Zetland's "concurrent-jurisdiction-recognition" does not appear to have affected the constitutional system of the Craft in that Colony, which now has close on 400 Lodges and is on the most amicable terms with the Grand Lodges of the mother-country. It cannot be said that the Craft is by any means out of sorts in India or South Africa, while it is in New South Wales alone among the Australasian Colonies that any febrile symptoms are perceptible, and they exist only in an insignificant minority of the Lodges, there being perhaps one-sixth of the whole body malcontent, for reasons of which the members are for the most part ignorant, and which are certainly unappreciated by the outside world, while the remaining five-sixths are as staunchly attached to the Grand Lodges which created them as the most loyal of the Lodges in London, Dublin, and Edinburgh. As far as we can see, the "deplorable consequences" that are likely to arise if England persists, as in honour she is bound to do, in upholding her daughter Lodges in Montreal, exist only in the embittered imagination of Bro Graham. There would seem to be some unwritten law among American Masons which renders it imperative that those who hold the position of Grand Master should deliver long periodical addresses to the Grand Lodge over which they severally preside, and it may well be that, in the absence for some time past of any one-eyed, one-armed, or one-legged candidates for initiation, whose cases invariably necessitate the most elaborate consideration, or failing some of the innumerable petty formalities which have found their way into the American Masonic system, Brother Graham has, for lack of something else to engage his attention, first of all created this grievance, and then continued from year to year dilating upon its unspeakable enormities and the fearful consequences that must ensue if it is not remedied forthwith. Heaven only knows where all the amazing constitutional arrangements come from which are so dear to the hearts of our American brethren. To read some of these extraordinary addresses, one might almost be led to think that Masonry had always been subject to some elaborate system of laws such as the Laws of the Twelve Tables, the Code Napoleon, or the Statute Law of England, whereas no form of government invented of men could possibly be simpler and at the same time more effective, while its code of laws is as large-hearted as it is simple. It will be time enough for Brother Graham to call in question the conduct towards Quebec of the Grand Lodge of England when he can produce irrefragable evidence that it has broken any written or unwritten law of Masonry, always, of course, excepting those curiously-fanciful regulations which the American Masonic mind has invented for its own enlightenment, and to the very great amusement of extra-American Craftsmen.

It is difficult to write seriously about a controversy in which one side does all the talking, while the other maintains a dignified silence, and which more nearly fulfils our ideal of the proverbial "storm in a teacup" than any other difference we have read or heard of. But we have no wish to wound the susceptibilities of our Quebec brethren, and least of all of one who has influenced them so long as Bro. Graham. Yet he must pardon us for pointing out that it is idle for him to deny the right of England to do what is forbidden by no known code of Masonic law. He may adduce in support of his argument such authorities as Bro. Drummond of Maine, who is strong in Masonic statistics, but, not that we are aware of, of any rank as a jurisconsult, and Bro. Vaux of Pennsylvania, whose opinion is no doubt entitled to respect, but who does not speak with the same authority on this class of question as our own Bro. Hughan. It is useless for him to quote the laws of the Grand Lodge of England as forbidding the establishment of Lodges within its own jurisdiction by other than its own authority, or to instance the case he mentions of the Grand Lodge of Scotland declining in 1763 to issue its warrant for the establishment in London of a Lodge composed of Scottish brethren. England claims the exercise of no authority to which she is not justly entitled. Her Lodges, like those of Scotland and Ireland, are spread abroad throughout most of the colonies and dependencies of the British Crown. Where there is a Grand Lodge, as in Canada, Quebec, Nova Scotia, she declines to issue warrants for new Lodges, but where any of the Lodges constituted by herself prefer remaining under her jurisdiction, she retains and upholds them just for so long as they desire to remain, and no longer. She exerts no power to keep them, and it would be the height of ingratitude on her part if she exerted any pressure to drive them away. In all this she is acting in accordance with the unwritten law of Masonic morality, if not with the written law of Masonic government as invented by American brethren. It is enough for her to know she is acting rightly, nor when the time comes, as doubtless it will come, for these Montreal Lodges to sever their connection with her, will she raise the slightest opposition, or make even the feeblest attempt to retain them on her roll of Lodges. Quebec can find better occupation for its spare moments than to waste them in idle controversies about mere nothings, and she will secure for herself greater respect in proportion as she treats respectfully the Grand Lodge of England, to whose authority most of her Lodges owe their existence.

FREEMASONRY AND TEMPERANCE.

THE establishment of a "Temperance" Lodge of Freemasons is the latest departure in connection with the Craft, and it is one which has given rise, no doubt, to a considerable amount of speculation on both sides of that great question. On either of those sides there is much to be said, and on which in all probability the brethren will expect to hear something in the consideration of those matters which either directly or indirectly affect the interests of our Order. In entering upon a survey of the subject, then, we may as well say plainly that we do not anticipate any very radical effect which the proposal will exert upon the Brotherhood as a whole, though the permissive character of it may supply the ground of many suggestions which hitherto have been only imperfectly ventilated, and handled as gingerly as one does the proverbial hot potato. There are many to whom it might have occurred that there are amongst our ranks a vast number of men who prefer abstinence from wine on all occasions, not merely from any inflated notions of the "goody" type, but because they like it, and it agrees with them. It may appear in bad taste, or a trifle eccentric, to drink to a toast in coffee, or even zoedone, instead of the orthodox champagne; still, if a guest at a banquet prefers it, we do not see that he should be regarded as a lunatic for doing so, or that the finger of scorn should be pointed at him, or the contemptuous shrug of the shoulder raised at the "milk and water" enthusiasm of such an individual. We shall be excused, we know, for making use of these observations, for nobody can better appreciate than ourselves the true ringing heartiness and the cheery hospitality that are enjoyed when the generous wine brings into greater prominence that "flow of soul," real urbanity, and good fellowship, which are so characteristic of Freemasonry. That the excessive use of stimulants is abhorred by Masons of the present day—whatever might have been said of our forefathers in the good old times of half a century ago—is universally established and admitted. An intoxicated person in a Masonic Lodge would belie his professions, and at the banquet table would be scouted with such practical effect that he would be a bold man to put in an appearance there again. This is the result, no doubt, in a great measure of the fact that our Masonic Lodges include all the elements of refinement and excellence of taste, and around which there is an atmosphere where lurks not even the shadow of a taint of the tap-room. Temperance and moderation are amongst the cardinal virtues of an Order which stands unapproachably high amongst all the institutions that adorn society; and, in spite of the many insinuations to the contrary that have been hurled at our "huge social club," by the ignorant and uninitiated, there is no association of men on the face of the globe less deserving of an aspersion so undeserved. But with all this, there are instances in which a total abstaining brother may appear somewhat out of his element, and conspicuously so when the festivities of the Fourth Degree are in operation; and the difficulty here crops up, as it does in all the other relations and occupations of social life, how is the apparent loss to be remedied, and what substitute can be suggested? If toasts are to be drunk, the glasses must be replenished, and probably our brethren of the as yet embryo Wolseley Lodge, at Manchester, may be able to throw some light as to the modus operandi by which they propose to sustain the amenities of the festive board. It is difficult to contemplate a sober and profound assemblage of the brethren toasting to each other's health in water, or, like the pattern teetotallers of Dickens, "swelling wisibly before our werry eyes" upon cups of fragrant tea. It would be an unusual sight indeed to mingle with a company at which the wine cup was entirely tabooed, and this seeming anomaly will be like breaking fresh ground when the Manchester "hydropots" assemble under the auspices of our heroic brother of Tel-el-Kebir fame. Still, in anticipating their convivialities, which we have no fear will lack any of the ordinary heartiness in consequence of the "feast of reason" being predominant, we do not see any reason why the experiment should not succeed. We yield to none in our detestation of rant and platform spouting, which to thinking men are the means of deterring, rather than inducing, them to join the "ranks" of the so-called sober "armies," and have no other feeling but that of pity for those of the dog-in-the manger ilk who, themselves unable to keep within the bounds of discreet moderation, would deprive others who can do so of a means of innocuous and wholesome enjoyment. It cannot be concealed that amongst the most ostentatious of these so-called reformers practices are flagrantly common at which the minds of ordinary and less sanctimonious mortals would revolt; but that says little against the principle that is involved. It is a fact that can no longer be withheld that Temperance ideas and practices have of late years been advancing with rapid and important strides. At this none can rejoice, or does rejoice, more than the great body to what we are proud to belong. Not only is the effect felt upon the moral and social pulses of the nation, but its material prosperity is enhanced in an incalculable degree by the spread of Temperance in any of its forms. We do not mean the blatant sycophancy of those gentlemen who "with faces as long as a fiddle," set themselves up as did the Pharisees of old, and thank Heaven they are not as other men, but who are capable very often of the most despicable and, to say the least, un-Masonic actions. But amongst the substantial and intelligent Masons of our population there is unquestionably a powerful impression in favour of curtailing the habits which were at one time considered the "correct thing" in social circles; and the race of our three-bottle men has been as nearly extirpated as have the Maories from New Zealand and the Red Indians from the hunting-grounds of the Far West. In this respect society has taken a decided, and it must be added, an improved turn; for although much might be, and has been, said of the revels and routs which give a spice of jollity to the past, yet times and circumstances alter, and the society of a toper is not usually held in high esteem amongst the members of modern refined society. After all is said and done, therefore, we are by no means disposed to sneer or jest at our worthy brethren in the city of Cotton for the resolve upon which they have entered, to start a "Temperance Lodge." We rather contemplate the experiment with agreeable expectancy, and should be delighted to be present when the gallant Egyptian warrior is introduced into the Lodge which is to bear his name. No doubt that which is wanting in the one particular of sparkling wine will be made up in other ways, and that the brethren will happy be, happy part, and happy meet again. But it is not at all likely the effect and influence of the experiment will end at Manchester. We have often heard the remark that although not absolutely extravagant, and certainly with no approach to excessive indulgence, the wine bill has formed a rather formidable item at some of our meetings, and that the money thus expended might have been more wisely applied. We are quite sensible of the delicate ground upon which we tread when touching upon these questions, and we should be sorry to form a parallel with those who would "rob a poor man of his beer," knowing that the punishment for such an injustice amounts to no less than an eternal condemnation of one's optics! However, it cannot be denied that there are occasions on which the homage done to smiling Bacchus has caused an undesirable encroachment on the Lodge funds, and which either courtesy or urbanity on the part of Worshipful Masters and their Officers has failed to check. Be that as it may, it becomes a subject for calm and dispassionate study, both out of consideration to our Lodge exchequers and the sensitiveness—squeamishness if you like—of those brethren who prefer non-intoxicating beverages with their other enjoyments to see that the case is evenly and pleasantly met. A brother should no more be required or expected to drink wine, if he prefers water, at a Masonic banquet than if he were in his own private dining-room, and we do not know that he is, in reality. But still, as a matter of fact, he is, and feels himself, singular in that respect, and we know of some who have a sensation of hesitancy in attending Lodge gatherings on that very account. To avoid this, and to make our abstaining brethren perfectly and freely "at home" with us on all occasions, is a subject upon which we might well invite discussion, and to which the experimental Temperance Lodge at Manchester may supply us with a key. Any suggestions which our correspondents may deem appropriate, bearing on this question, and which we are sure will be interesting to the general body of the Craft, we shall be glad to receive; and they may be readily assured that a free expression upon the question will receive nothing but careful and respectful consideration.

MARK MASONRY IN NORFOLK.

THE gathering at Norwich, on Monday, on the occasion of the resuscitation of the Walpole Lodge of M.M.M. may be described as an eminently successful one. There was a very large attendance; the Most Worshipful the Grand Mark Master, Brother the Right Hon. Lord Henniker, travelled expressly from London to do honour to the occasion, reaching Norwich as early as his many engagements would permit. Brother Donald M. Dewar, Assistant Grand Mark Secretary, opened the Lodge at four o'clock, supported by Bros. C. H. Driver as S.W., and Frederick Long Past Grand D.C. England as J.W. It may here be mentioned that the Overseers and Deacons did their work in a most perfect manner, and this greatly added to the impressiveness of the proceedings. In evidence of the zeal displayed in fostering the Mark Degree, twenty-eight of the thirty-six candidates presented themselves for advancement on this occasion. Lord Henniker was present during the installation of Bro. H. G. Barwell, and amongst other matters brought under his consideration during the proceedings was an application from Bro. Edward Pitt Yonell for a warrant for a new Mark Lodge, at Gorleston, which was graciously acceded to by the Grand Mark Master. The proposal to establish a Grand Mark Province for East Anglia was also countenanced, and altogether this meeting may be looked upon as a pleasant feature in the records of Mark Masonry.

The election meeting of the Prosperity Lodge, No. 65, was held on Thursday evening, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham Street, under the presidency of Bro. J. Roberts W.M. Bro. Schadler was unanimously chosen W.M. for the ensuing year, Bro. Goodwin P.M. Treasurer, and Bro. C. T. Speight reappointed Tyler.

Bro. H. E. Joyce, Editor of the Shipping and Mercantile Gazette, was unanimously elected, on Thursday last, as Worshipful Master of the United Pilgrims Lodge, No. 507, for the ensuing year.

The monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held on Thursday, when Colonel Creaton Grand Treasurer presided. The following brethren also were present:—Robert Grey, Joshua Nunn, F. Walters, Robert P. Tebb, C. Locke Smiles, John A. Rucker, J. H. Matthews, James Peters, H. A. Dubois, A. H. Tattershall, and E. C. Massey. The minutes of the last General Committee, of 25th January, were read and verified; and the minutes of the House Committee, held on 15th inst., were also read for information. A petition by Mrs. Heastie, on behalf of Sophia Heastie, and one by Mrs. Godfrey, on behalf of Mabel Harriet Godfrey, were considered and approved, and the names of the children ordered to be added to the list of candidates for election. The chairman stated that a letter had been received from Mrs. Lord, asking that her child's name might be withdrawn from the list. The Secretary read a list of accounts for payment, and the chairman was authorised to sign cheques for same. There being no other business, the meeting broke up, with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

We regret to announce the death of Bro. R. B. Webster P.M., whose interest in our several Institutions was unfailing, and whose contributions to their respective treasuries showed that it was not mere lip-service he was prepared to render on their behalf. Those of our readers who may desire to learn more of our deceased brother's career will find it recorded in the Second Series of "Masonic Portraits," in which he figures in the character of "A Great Arithmetician." Here it will suffice to say, that he was a member of the Audit Committee both of the Girls' and Boys' Schools, that he was a Vice President of the former, and a Life Governor of the latter, as well as a Life Governor on the Male and Female Funds of the Benevolent Institution. Brother Webster had likewise served as a Festival Steward on several occasions, his support in this capacity having been distributed among the three Charities, but with apparent preference for the Girls' Institution. He also invariably took an active part in the elections, at which his business powers were of great service in determining the results. Bro. Webster was greatly respected in his circle of friends and acquaintances, and by his brother Masons, and his widow will find some consolation from their sympathy in her bereavement.

The Royal National Hospital for Consumption, at Ventnor, is an Institution which well deserves the support of the British public. Its existence depends entirely on the voluntary contributions it receives from year to year. It is admirably conducted, while the social comfort of the inmates is as much cared for as their medical welfare. Thus, on Thursday, the 15th inst., an entertainment of a mixed character was given; the programme consisting of music, both vocal and instrumental, and sundry recitations. The chief contributors were found among the patients themselves, but others also gladly lent their services for the occasion. Everything passed off famously, Mrs. Watson's two songs, "The Skipper and his Boy," and "Kathleen Mavourneen," Mr. Siebert's recitation, "The Death of Montrose," and two violin solos, with pianoforte accompaniment, by Mr. and Miss Westerweld, eliciting loud applause from the audience.

The annual dinner of the Wallington Lodge of Instruction will take place on Thursday evening next, the 1st March. Lodge will be opened at the Public Hall, Carshalton, at 6 o'clock by Brother G. Horsey P.M. 1619 and W.M. 1892, who will rehearse the ceremony of initiation. Brother W. W. Morgan, S.W. 211, will then deliver his lecture on the "Masonic Institutions, their Establishment and Development." After which Bro. W. Baldwin will give the charge, and explain the tracing board of the first degree. Lodge will be closed, and dinner will be served at the King's Arms Hotel.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Rheumatism and Neuralgia.—Though the former disease remorselessly attacks persons of all ages, and the latter ruthlessly selects its victims from the weak and delicate, the persevering use of these remedies will infallibly cure both complaints. After the affected parts have been diligently fomented with hot brine, and the skin thoroughly dried, Holloway's Ointment must be rubbed in firmly and evenly for a few minutes twice a day, and his Pills taken according to the printed directions wrapped round each box of his medicine. Both Ointment and Pills are accompanied by instructions designed for the public at large, and no invalid, who attentively reads them, can now be at any loss how to doctor himself successfully.

BANQUET TO BRO. ALDERMAN DE KEYSER.

REGARDED from every point of view, the complimentary banquet given on Monday night to Bro. Alderman and Sheriff De Keyser, at the Albion, Aldersgate-street, by the Master and brethren of the Emulation Lodge, No. 21, was a significant and brilliant success. Both from the heartiness and urbanity which characterised the proceedings throughout, as well as from the number of distinguished Masons who graced the assemblage with their presence, the event must be regarded as one of the most important that has taken place in London for some time past. The "guest of the evening" has long been a member of the Emulation Lodge, and it was a graceful act on the part of the brethren to recognise the many acts of kindness, benevolence and public enterprise which have earned for him such high distinction amongst the citizens of London. The atmosphere of the Albion on the occasion referred to was pregnant with expressions of hearty amenity and good fellowship, into which the brethren and the prominent members of Grand Lodge, and others who were invited guests, entered with the utmost spirit of good will. Lodge was opened at five o'clock, with Bro. T. F. Peacock W.M. in the chair, supported by Bros. Samuel Hill S.W., R. C. Grant J.W., T. Taylor P.M. Treasurer, Arthur Hill Secretary, Major Campbell S.D., M. R. Sewell J.D., George Singer P.M. M.C., W. Wing P.M. W.S., H. C. Brunning I.G., and a galaxy of Past Masters, including Bros. Brackstone Baker P.G.J.D., D. Clarke, H. J. Godden, S. J. Morris, J. Pointing, W. J. Vian, H. M. Stoltenhoff, Griffiths, C. E. Stoltenhoff, R. Berridge, R. P. Spice, Geo. Watson, C. Mansfield, W. Abbott, &c. There were about forty other brethren, and amongst the Visitors were Bros. Sir Francis Wyatt Truscott, No. 1, P.G.W., and lately Lord Mayor of London, Alderman Fowler, M.P., P.M. 626, Alderman Sir Reginald Hanson, ex-Sheriff, S.W. 778, Major-General J. W. Laurie Grand Master of Nova Scotia, S. Moss P.M. 7, Canadian Registrar (Montreal), ex-Sheriff Burt P.G.A.D.C., Sir John B. Monckton, Town Clerk, No. 1, President of the Board of General Purposes, Col. Shadwell H. Clerke G.S. England; Rev. J. H. Smith P.M. 279 P.P.G. Chaplain Leicester and Rutland, R. H. Girard No. 1, P.G.D., J. Davis Sewell 1827 P.G.S., G. Lambert P.M. 198 P.G.S.B., R. S. Pigott 11 G.A.D.C., Frank Richardson 14 P.G.D., T. G. Bullen P.M. 197 P.G.S., H. Higgins P.M. 1381, J. Crispe W.M. 410, H. Bishop P.M. 66, A. Gabriel 310, A. W. Stansfield P.M. 1019, J. Donaldson W.M. 7, A. Day P.M. 166, C. Smith P.M. 58, H. C. Barker P.M. 29, C. Monckton P.M. 1150, A. G. Browning P.M. 33, G. N. Johnson P.M. 1, J. R. Cooper P.M. 171, A. W. Morgan P.M. 176, E. M. Hubbuck P.M. 58, L. W. Durden W.M. 370, G. W. Harkwill W.M. elect 1150, W. Herbage W.M. 177, S. Day S.W. 166, C. D. Miller J.W. 28, F. H. Williams I.G. 18, E J. Powell 360 (Scotland), H. J. Griffiths late of 21, E. Matheson 1320; A. W. Stead J.D. 25, J. W. Stockwell 1364, G. B. Cutler, E. Gamman 610, A. L. Drought 163, A. Probyn 172, and many others; with Bro. C. T. Speight Prov. G.T. Surrey Tyler. After the usual ceremonies, the Wor. Master Bro. Peacock was unanimously elected a Grand Steward, and the ballot was then opened for Mr. Joseph Savory, Sheriff of London and Middlesex, who had been nominated by Bro. Alderman and Sheriff De Keyser, and seconded by Bro. George Singer P.M.; also for Mr. Marriott Ogle Tarbotton, C.E., of Nottingham, proposed by Bro. R. P. Spice P.M., seconded by Bro. E. Berridge P.M. The voting in each case was unanimous, and the candidates were initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Order, the working of the W.M. and his Officers eliciting very deserved expressions of approbation from all present. After business, there was a good deal of pleasant greeting and interchange of friendly sentiment in the reception rooms, and at seven o'clock the party sat down to an admirable banquet, which did infinite credit to the courteous manager of the Albion, Brother W. G. Jennings. The customary prefatory toasts were got over briefly by the Worshipful Master, and Bro. Sir F. Wyatt Truscott, in responding for the Grand Officers, observed that the Craft generally must feel proud of being presided over by noblemen who devoted so much time to the interests of Freemasonry, and so well discharged the duties of their important offices. He expressed the peculiar pleasure it gave him to be present when honour so deserved was to be bestowed upon his friend Bro. Ald. De Keyser, whose position they had so splendidly recognised on the occasion. Bro. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke observed that it was a pleasure to the Grand Officers to witness the success of all Masonic meetings, and more especially to be present in a Lodge like this, which had such a distinguished history for many years past, and when they had met to congratulate one of their members upon the honours that had recently accrued to him. The Grand Officers were thoroughly in accord with every brother who wore the light blue. The Most Worshipful Grand Master had, for good and proper reasons, honoured them with promotion to the dais, and he honestly believed they were all eager and anxious to do what they possibly could to hold and preserve the high positions in which they had been placed. The Wor. Master then gave the Sister Grand Lodges, and coupled with the toast the name of Brother Major-General Laurie, Grand Master of Nova Scotia, who was most enthusiastically received. Brother Major-General Laurie, in an eloquent address, in response, said he could not, although they had been kind enough to couple his name with the sister Lodges throughout the world, consider himself a foreigner. He had lately been elected to the Court of the Saddlers' Company, and therefore he was very much at home. Moreover, he had sat as a subscribing member in a Lodge in every part of the world, under the banners either of England or Ireland. But he was called upon under rather peculiar circumstances, some years ago, to join the Grand Lodge of Nova Scotia, with a view of his name being brought forward as Grand Master. He had endeavoured to discharge his duties to the satisfaction of the brethren who put him in that position, although perhaps the state of Masonry abroad, outside the jurisdiction with which those present were acquainted, was not so well known as it might be. It seemed almost a pity that some of the facts were not more widely familar to brethren on this side of the Atlantic. For instance, Bro. Brackstone Baker had just shown him a medal of the Grand Lodge of New York, which meant there were 80,000 subscribing members under the banner of that Grand Lodge alone. They must look at the figures to recognise what a bold step Masonry had taken on the other side of the water. It was the same in principle there as in England, of course, but they were not able to exercise that magnificent charity which is dispensed in this country. Here they were able to put down £42,000 a year as subscriptions to the three grand Masonic Charities, to be distributed for the benefit of the widows and orphans, and old and decayed Masons. In America they could not do that; at least, they had not yet tried. There, perhaps, they did their work in a somewhat different way. Each Lodge supported its own aged, and widows and orphans, and then they went outside and gave personal service. In the fearful scourge of yellow fever they had heard of, Masons came forth from their different Lodges in the States of the Union, and went down and gave their services personally as doctors, nurses, and attendants to the poor suffering fever patients. Then, again, during the fearful floods that had taken place in America, there were twenty-one lifeboats supported by the Masonic Fraternity, for saving lives. Thus the humanity and charity of Masonry were exemplified there as well as here, only they developed in a different practice. They went and gave their own right hands and own good hearts for others. These subordinate Lodges were the children of the great grandmother Lodge of England, and had learnt and inherited the great virtue of Charity from this side, and here they must come as to the fountain of honour. Brother Abbott I.P.M. next proposed, in felicitous terms, the health of the Worshipful Master; and Bro. Peacock, in response, expressed his desire to discharge the duties of the chair to the satisfaction of the brethren. In coming to the toast of the evening, he asked their indulgence while he told them why they had invited their guest, Bro. Alderman De Keyser, to come amongst them on that occasion, in order that they might welcome him in his present position. Bro. De Keyser was born in Belgium, but had come to this country, and become a naturalised British subject. He had worked in the City with intelligence and perseverance, which enabled him to conquer all difficulties that beset his path, and he became a prosperous man in London. Having, like a sensible man, looked after his own interests, and acquired sufficient to enable him to settle down comfortably, he looked around to see how he could benefit his neighbours, and commenced, as many Englishmen did, by entering into the political affairs of his parish. He successively served all the offices of St. Bride's, and was overseer, guardian, and churchwarden. Naturally, after that, he entered the Court of Common Council, and for many years, as now, he had given the results of his experience in life for the benefit of the citizens of London, serving in the office of Chairman of the Bridge House Committee, and becoming a Governor of Bridewell and Bethlehem Hospitals. In due course he was elected as an Alderman, and one of the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex, and was presented by the residents in his Ward with the badge and insignia of his office, at a cost of about £600, in token of their appreciation of his efforts for their general benefit. He was also one of the founders of the Guildhall School of Music, and engaged actively in all matters of public usefulness. He entered Freemasonry, under the auspices of Bro. Brackstone Baker, in this Lodge, and continued in it for many years, ultimately serving as I.G. But Masonry offered no excuses for a man to neglect his business, and with his many and great responsibilities Bro. De Keyser ceased to be an active member of the Lodge for some time. They saw in him, however, one of the founders of the Macdonald Lodge, in connection with the First Surrey Rifles, and he was also with the Volunteers in Belgium, where, in consideration of his active services, he was created by the King a Knight of the Order of Leopold. During all this time, although Bro. De Keyser was absent in person, he was always thought of, and they were most anxious to do honour to him in his own Lodge; consequently, they had invited as many friends as they could accommodate to meet him. He thought they would all agree that in this assembly they had produced a very strong evidence of the respect and esteem in which Bro. De Keyser was held, and in conclusion he wished him health, all happiness, and prosperity, adding the hope that the Corporation of London might live long enough to see him Lord Mayor, and that he might ultimately occupy the chair of the Emulation Lodge. Brother Alderman and Sheriff De Keyser, who was enthusiastically received, said his heart was beating with sincere and deep gratitude for the honour they had done him, and his brain was on fire to find expressions adequate to interpret the sentiments which then animated him. He was sure that many of those present, having had similar, if not so complimentary, honours offered to them, would be able to understand how difficult it was in those moments to do justice to such a toast. Their excellent Worshipful Master had been good enough to begin, as he said, at the beginning, and that beginning was one of which, in a Masonic sense, he felt proud, because it proved that Masonry was of a truly generous spirit, as it recognised and admitted him as one of themselves—those who had not even come from the mother country. The Worshipful Master had alluded to the feeble services he had rendered in the different positions he had occupied. He had occasion once before, in the presence of a few of the members of this Lodge to say that which he thought he might still repeat, that one of the reasons which prompted him conscientiously to give up a great deal of his time to public life was not out of vanity or ambition, but a desire to recognise what they had done for him in the country of his adoption. He did not forget he had a duty to perform. He knew too well what they had done for him in the past, and it would be ungrateful, and unlike a Mason, if he were not to express, to the utmost of his power, his readiness to do all he could, not only for the community at large, but for the poor, in recognition of the kindness, friendship, and tokens of affection he had received in this country. He was very pleased when the Worshipful Master began by saying he would tell them why they had invited him to this banquet, because he thought Brother Peacock was going to get him out of a difficulty. He could not say what he had done to deserve the great compliment they had paid to him; but he could say it in another sense. Municipal institutions and Masonry had a great many sympathies, and it was to the municipal position he had attained, through their suffrages and confidence, that they paid the compliment and not to him individually. However, he hoped, if the Corporation lived long enough, to do something for that body, and also as a Mason to recognise what the Masons had done for him. He should certainly not forget the great principles of charity, and those institutions so forcibly alluded to by the Grand Master of Nova Scotia. They would find him ever ready to assist them. It was perfectly true he had not been very active as a Mason, but this had not been his fault. He left them immediately after he took office as I.G., because he was living in the country, and had heavy responsibilities, and they knew a man could not keep up a very important place of business, such as he had created, without great anxiety and great work. So he thought it his duty, as he could not attend to the work of his Lodge, to leave them and become an absent member. But the moment he returned, as he had done now, to within a reasonable distance from town, he was again with them, and from that moment his ambition would be to hold the proud position of Master of this Lodge. He hoped, by attention to his duties, he might prove himself worthy of their confidence on the day of election. He begged them to accept once more his very sincere thanks for the honour they had done him, and to excuse him if he was unable to do justice to the sentiments which others might perhaps have expressed in more eloquent language. He thanked the numerous and distinguished Visitors, and Officers of Grand Lodge, for the compliment they had paid him by their presence, and was deeply sensible of the honour, which he should never forget. The health of the Initiates was then proposed by Brother B. Baker P.G.J.D., and suitably acknowledged by Bros. Sheriff Savory and Tarbotton. Bros. Ald. Fowler, M.P., and Ald. Sir R. Hanson responded for the Visitors; and in replying for the Past Masters and Treasurer, Bro. T. Taylor said the P.M.'s were always anxious to do all they possibly could to preserve the harmony and prosperity of their Lodge. They had great virtues, one of which was that they did not interfere with the W.M. in the duties of his office, or dictate to him in any shape or way; but they were always willing, so long as he abided within Masonic rules, as laid down in the Book of Constitutions, to let him have his own course in the appointment of his Officers, and everything else appertaining to his Lodge. At the same time they were always willing and anxious to aid in cases of difficulty, to give their advice with due respect to his position. As a proof of this, he might say with regard to the details connected with this banquet, the P.M.'s did not take upon themselves the duty, but a committee was appointed, upon which some of the P.M.'s were elected ex-officio, and some by choice; but the great burden had been borne by the junior Officers of the Lodge, and he left them to say whether all had not done their duty well. It was characteristic of this Lodge that the P.M.'s constituted, within five or six, one-half of the numerical strength of the Lodge, but they did not interfere with or dictate to the other members. Another virtue of the P.M.'s was, although they did not honour the Lodge with their presence, they paid their subscriptions regularly; thus the funds of the Lodge were not depreciated, but rather exalted. He congratulated them upon the flourishing state of the funds, which allowed them to give this banquet without any encroachment on their pockets. The health of the Officers and Secretary of the Lodge was given, and responded to by Bro. Arthur Hill Secretary, after which the business was closed with the Tyler's toast. The proceedings of the evening were enlivened with a capital selection of music, under the direction of Bro. Winn, assisted by Bros. A. J. Brown, T. W. Hanson, and Kenningham, and a most pleasant gathering was enjoyed. Bro. Harper officiated as toastmaster.

Wellington Lodge of Instruction, No. 548.—We are requested to inform our readers that the Fifteen Sections will be worked at this Lodge of Instruction, to be held on Monday evening next, at the White Swan, High-street, Deptford. Bro. David Rose P.M., one of the most eminent workers in the South of London, will take the chair at seven o'clock, and a large attendance of the brethren is expected.

West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction, No. 1612.—Meeting held at the Institute, Ealing, on Tuesday, 20th instant. Bros. Smith W.M., Acworth S.W., Seward J.W., Burr P.M. S.D., Bellerby J.D., Wills I.G., Tucker Treasurer and Preceptor, Wells Secretary; also Bros. Kasner P.M., Green P.M., Dyer, Gasson, Hadley. Lodge was opened with the usual preliminaries, and the minutes were read, confirmed, and signed. Bro. Gasson offered himself as candidate, and the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed. Bro. Hadley answered the questions leading to the second degree. A cordial vote of thanks was given to Bro. Acworth for books he printed and presented to the Lodge. Bro. Tucker brought before the Lodge the case of a distressed brother, and £1 was unanimously voted from the funds of the Lodge for the assistance of the applicant. The members present also supplemented the vote by individual contributions. Bro. Acworth was elected W.M. for Tuesday, the 27th inst., and the Lodge was closed and the meeting adjourned to that date.

Selwyn Lodge of Instruction, No. 1901.—The inauguration of the new Masonic room provided for this Lodge of Instruction, at the East Dulwich Hotel, East Dulwich-green, is fixed for Friday, the 30th proximo, when a large gathering of the brethren of the district is anticipated. The ceremony of installation will be rehearsed by Bro. R. Allison P.M. 186, after which the annual supper of the brethren will take place. The room has been admirably fitted up for the purposes of this Lodge of Instruction, and is appropriately embellished with the emblems of the Craft. When completed, this will form quite an acquisition to the Masonic assembly rooms of the South of London, and the proprietor of the hotel, Bro. Gurney, appears to have studied in the minutest detail everything that can add to the comfort and accommodation of the brethren at their periodical meetings. The Lodge of Instruction assembles every Friday evening, at seven o'clock, and visitors are assured of a hearty and fraternal welcome. This hotel is near Champion-hill Station, and most convenient of access to brethren desirous of paying a visit, either for the purposes of amenity or instruction.

The Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction, No. 1278, will in future hold its meetings at Bro. James Clayton's, the Duke's Head, 79 Whitechapel-road, E., every Wednesday evening, at 8 p.m. Bro. W. Musto P.M. 1349 is the Preceptor, and Brother Alfred Hand 1178 the Secretary.

Honorary membership of the Rosslyn Lodge, No. 1543, at Dunmow, Essex, was conferred by the members of that Lodge on Brother James Stevens P.M. P.Z., on Tuesday, the 20th instant, in acknowledgment of delivery by him, in open Lodge, of his lecture explanatory of the Ritual and Ceremonies of the First Degree.

THE PARLIAMENTARY SESSION.—Commencing with the issue for 17th February, a series of Political Coloured Portraits, similar to the War Series, which was so highly appreciated, will appear weekly in The Pictorial World. A Conservative and Liberal Member of the Upper or Lower House will alternate each week, and a page in each number will be devoted to Views and Letterpress descriptive of the Constituency to which the Member belongs, and, where it is possible, Views of their Country Seats will be given. With the same number will be presented a magnificent plate "The House of Lords" (size 26 by 36), being a companion picture to the "Ministerial Benches" which was published with The Pictorial World last November.

THE ATHELSTAN LEGEND.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In your review of Bro. Gould's "History of Freemasonry," you remark that that able brother considers it not improbable that the story, as related in the Chartulary of St. Leonard's Hospital, at York, and quoted by him and you from Dugdale's "Monasticon," of Athelstan having made a certain grant to the "Colidei" of St. Peter's Church in that city, in celebration of his victory over the Scots in 936, "gave rise to the legend about the York Charter granted by Athelstan in 926." I dare say Bro. Gould's suggestion will admit of explanation, but I should like to know how an event which happened in 936 can have given rise to a legend which is, I believe, universally associated with the year 926, that is, ten years earlier.

Fraternally yours,

ALPHA.

[We have referred "ALPHA'S" letter to our reviewer, who explains, in reply, that Bro. Gould, in the footnote referred to, remarks that "the form of the legend, as given by Dr. Anderson in the Constitutions of 1723, varies slightly from that in the edition of 1738. In the former he places the date of the occurrence"—that is, the grant of the Charter to the Masons—"at about 930; in the latter at 926." We have nothing to guide us in determining the reasons which induced Dr. Anderson to alter his mind between 1723 and 1738, and, having given the date of the date vaguely in the former year "at about 930," to assign it definitely to "926" in the latter. But the year 936 sufficiently answers to "about 930" to justify Bro. Gould's suggestion of the probability that the Athelstan incident as described in the St. Leonard's Hospital Chartulary may have had something to do with the origin of the Athelstan Masonic legend generally assigned to the year 926.—ED. F.C.]

PROCESSIONS OF THE CRAFT.

FROM THE KEYSTONE.

THERE was a time when the Masonic Fraternity indulged in Masonic processions to excess, but that time expired a century and a quarter ago, since which period the Craft has rarely transgressed in this respect the rules of Masonic propriety. Soon after the "Revival" of 1717, in England, the practice was inaugurated. The first procession of which any record remains occurred on St. John the Baptist's Day 1721, when G.M. Payne, the Grand Wardens, Past Grand Officers, and the Masters and Wardens of twelve Lodges met at the King's Arms Tavern, London, and proceeded through the public streets to Stationers' Hall. Processions of the Craft were continued annually for some twenty-four years thereafter, increasing in display each time. In 1728 coaches were used, and in 1730 chariots, the brethren apparently getting too dignified to walk. In 1734 a band of music was added. In 1739 there were three bands of music in line. The result of this annual publicity and display was, that burlesque processions were gotten up by enemies of the Craft, in order to ridicule the Brethren. The anti-Masons even burlesqued the Masonic displays on St. John the Baptist's Day, and confronted them in the public streets. This occurred in 1741, '2, '4 and '5. Added to these, the satirical poets of the day exercised their wits at the expense of the Freemasons. Jos. Green parodied the Boston procession of 1739, and the author of the popular songs, "God save the King," and "Sally in our Alley," Dr. H. Carey, in 1729, wrote and published a satirical squib. Dr. Carey was a Surgeon to the then Prince of Wales, who was a Mason, and who dismissed him on account of his burlesques of the Craft. Even the famous satirist, Hogarth, tried his hand at a Masonic caricature. The result of all this banter was, that public Masonic processions were laughed out of existence in London. The last occurred in 1745, and in 1747 the Grand Lodge of England formally prohibited public processions of the Craft within the limits of the Metropolis, since which time we believe no public Masonic display has been witnessed in the English capital.

In America Masonic processions are by custom limited to such occasions as the laying of a corner stone, the dedication of a Masonic Temple, the burial of the remains of a Brother, or the celebration of some notable Masonic anniversary, such as the centennial or sesqui-centennial of the organisation of the Craft. On such occasions a properly conducted procession of the Brotherhood is altogether appropriate. It tends to bring together a full representation of the brethren, to evoke their enthusiasm, and to bind them still more closely together in fraternal bonds. We have not gone to extremes in America in this matter, and we trust we never shall. But the love of some for publicity has manifested itself in another direction, and we believe even a more objectionable one. In public processions, all that the Craft does is to walk in public, but in public installations of Lodge Officers, Masonic work, or a portion of it, is exposed to public gaze. The ceremonies of the Lodge-room, with the obligations of its Officers, are profaned. And for what? To curry public favour. To spread a drag-net to catch initiates. To invite the seeking of a familiarity with the remaining mysteries, through initiation. Is this dignified? Is it permissible? Is it Masonic? On principle we do not see how any one can answer, Yes. And yet, perhaps in a majority of the jurisdictions of the United States, public installations of Lodge Officers are allowed. The discussion of this subject is, however, awakening thought, and we have done what we could, in The Keystone, to keep before the Craft a fair and full statement of the danger to which it is exposed, if it yields to the desire of certain thoughtless brethren to turn the Lodge-room into a place of public resort and entertainment.

There is nothing more dignified, or less savouring of vain display, than a Masonic procession when properly conducted. The brethren appear clad only in black suits, with white lambskin aprons. The Officers are distinguished only by their collars, or sometimes, instead, by their official jewels. There is no display of Lodge furniture, no revelation of Lodge ceremonials. There is only a manifestation, on a proper occasion, of the character and strength of the Craft. We must bury our dead, dedicate our Masonic Temples, and lay the corner-stones of important public buildings when requested so to do by the proper constituted authorities. Such publicity is unobjectionable. In the matter of the laying of corner-stones we recognise an admission of a connection of the Craft with operative Masonry. Once our brethren were all architects or builders. Once we erected entire edifices. The massive cathedrals of the middle ages, all over Europe, testify to the skill and capacity of the mediæval brethren. Things are now changed, but this change was gradual, almost imperceptible. First, distinguished non-operatives were introduced into the Craft by way of compliment, next they were frequently included, and finally they increased so in numbers, and the art of building so declined, that the operative character of the Fraternity became entirely lost, so that since 1717 Freemasonry has been of a purely speculative character. What we lost in one respect we gained in another. More attention is now paid to morals, and less to materials. The man is to-day the building, a moral edifice, reared for time and eternity. We have withdrawn measurably from the world into our Masonic Temples, coming out only on great occasions when a procession of the Craft is formed for the prosecution of its legitimate duties. The continuation of such processions cannot but promote the weal of the Brotherhood.

The Bishop of Nelson, before returning to New Zealand, has given Mr. Taylor, of Berners Street, instructions for painted glass in two of the churches in his diocese, viz., "Greymouth" and "Picton," an evidence of the growing appreciation in the Colonies of Art Ecclesiastical, as well as secular.

PRINCE LEOPOLD LODGE, No. 238.

THE annual meeting of the members of this popular Lodge was held on Tuesday evening, 20th inst., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, under the presidency of Bro. Thomas R. Richnell P.G.S.B. Surrey and Middlesex Worshipful Master, who was supported by Bros. T. J. Walls P.M. acting as J.W., J. H. Dodson J.W., C. Brown M.O., F. Clemow S.O., T. Harding J.O., Col. Wiggington Past Master P.G.S.W. Secretary, Alfred Tisley I.P.M., and other Officers and brethren. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the brethren proceeded to the election of a Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, and their choice fell unanimously upon Bro. Sir C. J. Palmer, Bart., P.P.G.S.O., who had officiated as S.W. during the past twelve months. Bro. J. H. Dodson was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. G. Harrison Tyler. Bro. Colonel Wiggington then proposed that, in recognition of the straightforward pluck and energy displayed by Bro. Richnell during the time he had occupied the chair as Worshipful Master of the Lodge, and of his success in bringing it to a sound and safe position financially, a Past Master's jewel should be presented to him on his retirement from office. He alluded to the urbanity and zeal manifested by Bro. Richnell in the discharge of his official duties, and the interest he had ever taken in the welfare of the Lodge, of which he was one of the founders, and considered it would only be a graceful act on the part of the brethren to testify their appreciation of the services he had rendered. Bro. Walls P.M. endorsed most cordially the sentiments that had fallen from the lips of their excellent Secretary, and remarked that Bro. Richnell was the last of the founders who would occupy the chair, unless indeed they were again elected by rotation, which was an event not likely to happen. The vote was agreed to amidst acclamation, and it was ordered to be entered on the minutes of the Lodge. Bro. Richnell, in acknowledging the vote, said he was deeply sensible of the compliment which had been paid to him by the kindness of the brethren. The services he had been able to render the Lodge were only trifling, but he had endeavoured to the best of his ability to carry out the duties that had been imposed upon him. He should value the jewel which they had generously voted to him, as an expression of their fraternal affection and goodwill, and the kindly expressions that had been uttered in regard to himself that evening were as sincerely appreciated as would be the jewel itself when his successor should affix it to his breast. At the conclusion of business the brethren adjourned to banquet, under the presidency of the Worshipful Master, when the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. Admirable arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of the party were made by Bro. F. H. Clemow, and a most harmonious and agreeable evening was passed.

The annual Anglo-French ball will take place at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, on Monday, 5th of March, under the presidency of Bro. J. Cossart, No. 291, Celtic Lodge, and the following Stewards:—Bros. T. Browne, J. Innes, J. Bennett, Wheeler, Charpentier, Jenkins, F. Benoit and Crouch. Bro. Grove Ellis's (188) excellent band will be in attendance. Tickets—10s 6d each—including light refreshments and supper. Bro. Birlet will superintend the service of supper on this occasion.

DANCING.—To Those Who Have Never Learnt to Dance.—Bro. and Mrs. JACQUES WYNMANN receive daily, and undertake to teach ladies and gentlemen, who have never had the slightest previous knowledge or instruction, to go through every fashionable ball-dance in a few easy lessons. THE HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY.

IN dealing in his second chapter, with the "Old Charges of British Freemasons," Bro. Gould, after noting "the only point of identity between the English and German Constitutions in the shape of legend or tradition," and that our "British Constitutions, or 'Old Charges,' have indeed neither predecessors nor rivals," goes on to remark on the singularity of the fact that the Masons are the only Craft in Great Britain which can furnish documentary evidence "of its having claimed, at any time, a legendary or traditional history." the French compagnons, though not without legendary histories of their own, not now possessing any early writings which are comparable with our Masonic Charges. He then proceeds to an enumeration and description of the various MSS., "the original or a certified transcript" of each of which has, except where otherwise stated, been collated by Bro. Hughan or himself. These MSS. which, as he justly remarks, are vastly more numerous now than they were but a few years since, are arranged in three classes or groups, namely "(A) originals; (B) late transcripts; (C) printed copies, extracts, or references." In the case of those which are undated, and whose age therefore is "perfectly a matter of conjecture," he has "generally preferred the testimony," as to their probable periods of origin, "of such independent paleographical authorities as Mr. A. Bond (the principal librarian of the British Museum), and other non-Masonic 'experts,' to the possibly interested opinions of those connected with the fraternity," and has "carefully abstained from overstating the antiquity of these or any other documents relating to Freemasonry."

Group A comprises thirty-one MSS., and it will be as well, perhaps, that we should note the chief characteristics of each. No. 1, in the British Museum, is known as the Halliwell MS., and is assigned approximately to the fourteenth century. Its contents were not made known till the year 1839, in a paper read by Mr. Halliwell before the Society of Antiquaries "On the introduction of Freemasonry into England." That gentleman considers it was written not later than the latter part of the fourteenth century. Mr. David Casley, a former deputy librarian of the Cottonian Library, assigns it to the same century. Mr. Bond places it in the middle of the fifteenth century, and Dr. Kloss between 1427 and 1445. In the opinion of Halliwell, it is "the earliest document yet brought to light connected with the progress of freemasonry in Great Britain." No. 2, also in the British Museum, is the "Cooke" MS., and is so named after its editor, Brother Matthew Cooke. Brother Gould agrees with Mr. Bond in considering it "early 15th Century," though others place it towards the latter part of that century, because it "contains references to the Policronicon," the earliest edition of which, however, it is pointed out, is believed to have appeared in 1342. The "Lansdowne," ascribed to the sixteenth century, and in the British Museum, comes next, and was among the MSS. purchased by Parliamentary grant in 1807, after the death of the Marquis of Lansdowne, and hence its name. Mr. Bond dates it at about 1600, and Bro. Gould suggests it may have been of the middle of the latter half of the sixteenth century, "as these 'Free Masons Orders and Constitutions' are believed to have been part of the collection made by Lord Burghley (Secretary of State, temp. Edward VI., and Lord High Treasurer temp. Elizabeth), who died A.D. 1598." No. 4, "Grand Lodge," bears date the 25th December 1583, and was purchased in 1839 by Grand Lodge, for the sum of £25, "from Miss Siddall, the granddaughter of Mr. Thomas Dunkerley's second wife." "York No. I.," in possession of the York Lodge, No. 236, comes next. It was presented to the "Grand Lodge of all England" at York by Bro. Drake, who was a native of Pontefract, of which place his father and grandfather had been in turn the vicar. It is assigned to the seventeenth century, its date being "partly determined from internal evidence, and partly from a consideration of the date when Pontefract Castle surrendered to the Parliamentary Forces (March 25, 1649)." Wilson, Nos. 1 and 2, likewise of the seventeenth century, stand six and seven on the list. They were sold to Sir Thomas Phillips by Mr. Wilson, and are now in the possession of his son-in-law, the Rev. J. E. A. Fenwick, of Cheltenham, by whom permission was given to make a transcript of it. Some assign it to the sixteenth century. No. 1, the "Inigo Jones," of the year 1607, is in the possession of Bro. Woodford, who describes it as "a curious and valuable MS. per se, not only on account of its special verbiage, but because it possesses a frontispiece of Masons at work, with the words 'Inigo Jones delin.' at the bottom. It is also highly ornamented throughout, both in the capital letters and with 'finials.' It is, we apprehend, pretty certain that it did belong to Inigo Jones. It is of date 1607." Its owner further considers it "a peculiarly interesting MS. in that it differs from all known transcripts in many points, and agrees with no one copy extant." No. 9, the "Wood" MS., of the year 1610, also in the possession of Bro. Woodford, is described by him as "written on parchment (or vellum), with partially illuminated letters here and there. . . . The 'Finis de Tabula,' at the end of the index (for it has also an index), is, according to some authorities, most archaic, and may refer to an original two hundred years older. It therefore deserves careful noting and perusal." Its title is "The Constitution of Masonry. Wherein is briefly declared the first foundation of divers Sciences, and principally the Science of Masonrye. With divers good Rules, Orders, and Precepts, necessary to be observed of all Masons." The declaration is "Newlye Translated by J. Whitestones for John Sargensonne, 1610," and if, as Bro. Woodford suggests, it is copied from another MS. of the fifteenth century, in that case Bro. Gould considers "translated" as equivalent to "modernised." No. 10 in order is "York No. 3," of A.D. 1630, and has not been traced of late years, though it is known, from its description in the York inventory of 1779, as "No. 3, A parchment Roll of Charges on Masonry, 1630," to have been a version of the Constitutions. Nos. 11 and 12 in the Harleian Collection, at the British Museum, are ascribed by Mr. Bond, the former to the beginning of the seventeenth, and the latter to a period more modern by some half a century, though Bro. Gould thinks there cannot have been much difference in the dates of transcription. However, he considers it probable No. 12 is the copy of an older text. No. 11, he says, is of great importance, as it contains the "New Articles (26 to 31)," which are "not in any other known MS." and the "Apprentice Charge," peculiar "to a few versions only." No. 12 is believed to be in the handwriting of the third Randle Holme, who, like his father and grandfather before him, was deputy to the College of Arms for Cheshire and other counties," and may have been transcribed about 1650. It contains copy of a remarkable obligation "to 'keep secret' certain 'words and signes of a free mason,' &c., and likewise a register of the fees paid (varying from five shillings to twenty) 'for to be a free mason' by twenty-seven persons whose names appear," this being the earliest mention of "words and signes." Nos. 13 and 14 are among the Sloane MSS. in the British Museum. The former concludes "Finis p. me Edwardu Sankey, decimo sexto die Octobris Anno Domini 1646," the 16th October of that year being the date of the initiation of Elias Ashmole and Colonel Mainwaring at Warrington, in which town the Sankey family were landowners for several generations. The latter is signed and dated "Hæc scripta fuerunt p. me Thomam Martin 1659." No. 15 was presented to our G.L. in March 1880 by Bro. George Buchanan of Whitby, who considers, and Bro. Gould thinks he is right, it belongs to the "latter part of the seventeenth century—say from 1660 to 1680." It was found among the papers of the late Mr. Henry Belcher, an antiquary, and partner of Brother Buchanan's father, and Bro. Gould is informed that Mr. Belcher was a friend of Bro. Blanchard, the G. Sec. of the Grand Lodge of all England at York. No. 16 is in the possession of Mother Kilwinning Lodge, Scotland, and is assigned to the seventeenth century. With respect to this and other Scottish MSS. Bro. Gould remarks that "all the Scottish versions are evidently of English origin." No. 17, the "Atcheson Haven" and the property of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, is described as "Ane Narratione of the finding out of the craft of Masonrie, and by whom it heth been cherished." It is engrossed in the earliest minute book of the Atcheson Haven Lodge, and bears date 1666. No. 18 belongs to the ancient Lodge of Aberdeen, and is contained in the records of that Lodge, being inserted after Laws and Statutes and with general laws, list of members, &c., all beginning in 1670. No. 19, which Bro. Gould considers of far greater value than Nos. 16, 17, and 18, is Melrose No. 2, of date 1674, and Bro. Gould says, "One can almost positively declare it to be a transcript of an extinct MS. of A.D. 1581 (which I term Melrose No. 1), or even earlier, as the conclusion is a certificate from a 'master freemason,' in favour, apparently, of the lawful service by his apprentice." It was discovered by Brother Vernon of Kelso, though Bro. Hughan, we are told, appears to have had an inkling of its existence, and is certified thus: "Extracted be me, A. M., upon the 1, 2, 3 and 4 dayes of December MDCLXXIIII." Bro. Vernon, it seems, suggests that "A. M." may stand for Andrew Mein, "who wrote also a copy of the 'Mutuall Agreemint Betwixt the Maisonis of the Lodge of Melros,' of the year 1675, which still exists." The title of No. 20, the "Hope" MS., belonging to the Hope Lodge of Bradford, Yorkshire, and assigned to the seventeenth century, is "The Constitutions, articles which are to be observed and fulfilled by all those who are made free by the Rt. Wr.ll Mr Fellowes and Brethren of Free Masons at any Lodge or assemblie." Nos. 21 and 22, are York Nos. 5 and 6 respectively, and of the seventeenth century. No. 23, the "Antiquity," MS. of 1686, the date being fixed by the initials at the top, "I 2 R (James II., King)." The invocation, "In the name of the Great and Holy God," differs from that in the majority of MSS., which commence "The might of the Father in Heaven." It concludes "William Bray, Free-man of London, and Freemason. Written by Robert Padgett, clearke to the Worshipful Society of the Free Masons of the City of London, in the second year of the Raigne of our most Gracious Soveraign Lord, King James the Second of England, etc., Annoque Domini 1686." No. 24 was recently discovered by Bro. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke, Grand Secretary, and presented by him to the library of the Supreme Council. The incription is "J. 2d R. 1686." No. 25, which is "York No. 4," bears the endorsement "Brother Geo. Walker of Wetherby, to the Grand Lodge of York 1776, No. 4, 1693," its date being further certified by "These be the Constitucions of the noble and famous History, called Masonry, made and now in practice by the best Masters and Fellowes for directing and guiding all that use the said Craft, scripted p. me vicesimo tertio die Octobris, anno Regni regis et Regina, Gulielmy et Marie quinto annoque Domini 1693—Mark Kypling." The "names of the Lodg" are appended at the foot of the Roll. This is valuable, as it contains the "Apprentice Charge," not in the other York MSS., and also from the anomalous instructions preliminary to the Charges, the word "shee" being inserted, and suggestive of the possibility that females were admitted Freemasons, though it is reasonably submitted that this "shee" is a clerical error for "they." No. 26, is styled the "Alnwick" MS., being "the Masons' Constitutions," preceding the records of the "Company and Fellowship of Freemasons of a Lodge held at Alnwicke," the first minute being dated the 29th September 1701. No. 27, the second in point of number, but the youngest in point of age of the York MSS., is entitled "The Constitutions of Masonrie, 1704." Like the oldest of the same series of MSS.—the No. 5 of Brother Gould's list as already described—it commences with an anagram on Masonry. No. 28, the "Scarborough" of the year 1705, is in the possession of the Grand Lodge of Canada, and Brother Jacob Norton had a hand in tracing it. It is important as containing the following record: "We . . . That att a private lodge held att Scarbrough in the County of York, the tenth day of July 1705, before William Thompson, Esq. P'sident of the said Lodge and several other brethren Free Masons, the severall p'sons whose names are herevnto subscribed were then admitted into the said Fraternity. Ed. Thompson, Jo. Tempest, Robt Johnson, Tho. Lister, Samuel W. Buck, Richard Hudson." The "Papworth," No. 29, bought by Mr. Wyatt Papworth some twenty years ago, cannot have been written before 1714, as "the 'Water-Mark' consists of a crown and the letters 'G.R.' above." No. 30, the "Gateshead" MS. in the possession of the Industry Lodge of Gateshead, and No. 31, "Rawlinson" in the Bodleian Library at Oxford, are assigned approximately to 1730. The former, according to Bro. Woodford, was bound up with a copy of the Constitutions of 1723, the "Apprentice Orders" which, he says, "in their present form are unique," being entered a little later. These "Apprentice Orders" conclude with an admonition to the neophytes that they should "behave one to another Gentlely, Friendily, Lovingly, and Brotherly; not churlishly, presumptuously, and forwardly; but so that all your works (words?) and actions may redound to the Glory of God, the good report of the Fellowship and Company. So help you God. Amen." Of the "Rawlinson" the original has not been traced, but it is said to have been "Copied from an old MS. in the possession of Dr. Rawlinson." At the end, for the usual termination "the contents of this Booke," or "some such form," are substituted the words "the holy contents of this Roll."

The second group, B, of "Late Transcripts," comprises six copies—the "Spencer," No. 32, which Bro. Gould surmises is "in the main a copy of No. 8"—the "Inigo Jones MS.—"or, at all events, of one very much like it." It was purchased at the Spencer sale in 1875 for Bro. E. T. Carson, of Cincinnati, the Masonic bibliographer. Its date is 1726. No. 33, "Woodford," and 34, "Supreme Council No. 2, are copies of the Cooke MS. (No. 2), and both dated 1728. The former, in the possession of Bro. Woodford, contains "the arms plate of William Cowper Esq. Clerk to the Parliaments (Grand Secretary 1723)," the inscription being, "This is a very ancient record of Masonry, wch was copy'd for me by Wm Reid, Secretary to the Grand Lodge, 1728—Ld. Coleraine, Grd. Master, Al. Choke Depy.; Nat. Blackesby and Jo. Higmore, G[d] Wardens." The latter, in the library of the Supreme Council, is termed in a pencil note the "Lord Coleraine MS."

No. 35, "Melrose No. 3," of date 1762, in the possession of the old Lodge at Melrose, is "a transcript of No. 18," and is thus referred to in the Records: "Given out this day, the old Rights of the Lodge in a long Roll to be extracted by Nichol Bowr and Thomas Marr, and they are to be allowed for their trouble." No. 36, once the property of the late Bro. Tunnah, of East Lancashire, after whom it is named, but now of Bro. Hughan, is assigned to 1828, the watermark of the paper being of that year. Bro. Gould says it resembles No. 13—"Sloane" MS. 3941 of 1646, in the British Museum. No. 37, the "Wren" of 1852, belonging to Bro. Woodford, is endorsed "Copy from an ancient parchment Roll, written in old Norman English about the date of 1600, and said to be a true copy of the original found amongst the papers of Sir Christopher Wren, who built St. Paul's Cathedral, London. This parchment roll belonged to the late Rev. Mr. Crane, a very learned divine and most zealous Mason, and who was for many years P.G. Secretary for the Province, when Sir Robert S. Cotton (father of the present Lord Combermere, and now R.W.P.G. Master) was the Provincial Grand Master for Cheshire." This note is signed "Bro. S. Browne, Secretary and Treasurer of the 'Cestrian,' 615, Chester A.L. 1852, December 4th."

Masonic Calendar and Official Directory for the Province of Wiltshire, 1883. Issued with the sanction of the R.W.P.G.M. Lord Methuen and the Provincial Grand Lodge. Edited by William Nott P.M. 663, P.Z. 632, &c., Prov. Grand Secretary. Devizes: Printed by W. H. Bush, Wine-street.

This is the third year of issue of this useful compilation, and we again congratulate Bro. Nott on the admirable manner in which he has fulfilled his task as Editor. It is but the other day, as it were, that we described at some length the contents of this Wiltshire Masonic guide, and there is little that we can add in the present instance. Bro. Nott has considerably enlarged his account of the local Charity Organisation and Benevolent Fund Committee, so that the information it now contains is well nigh as complete as it can possibly be made. In fact, as far as we can judge, nothing more remains for him to do in the future years of his editorship than to reproduce what is herein contained with, of course, such alterations as each new year will necessarily demand. We must, however, express regret at Bro. Nott's announcement that the Calendar in the past two years has not been able to pay its way. For their credit's sake, the Wiltshire brethren should render such an announcement in respect of this and future years impossible.

KING'S CROSS LODGE, No. 1732.

THIS successful Lodge, which may be considered an offshoot of the Metropolitan, No. 1507, celebrated its Sixth Anniversary Festival on Saturday last, at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. Lodge was opened by Bro. Henry Higgins the W.M., who was supported by Bro. Lewis Solomon S.W., W.M. elect, and the other Officers. Amongst those present were Past Masters J. J. Michael (Treasurer), W. M. Stiles, Henry Stiles, J. T. Briggs; James Terry P.M. 228, &c., Secretary Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and Thomas Cubitt P.G.P. Honorary Members; with the following Visitors:—H. E. Turner I.G. 1149, F. G. W. Guyer S.D. 1288. C. Solomon 28, J. A. Harvey P.M. 1314, E. Howlett J.W. 134, Bs. ratt-Kidder I.P.M. 12, John Pitter P.M. 1793, E. Harvey Junior Warden 1314, N. Vallentine Senior Deacon 1017, J C. Smith A.M.C. 1744, S. Hickman P.M. 188, E. Storr Senior Deacon 167, H. Hamilton 569, J. P. Hamilton 1706, C. Reuter (Cornwallis), F. Silvester J.D. 193, T. C. Edmonds 1507, F. Rothschild P.M. 1288, J. Shipley W.M. 30, J. Hemming 1287, W. J. Burgess P.M. 1472, W. R. Powell 1901, W. W. Morgan S.W. 211, J. E. Pope P.M. 946, Lindsay Sloper, J. B. Edwards 1107. After the minutes of last regular meeting had been read and confirmed, the report of the Audit Committee was received and adopted. Bros. J. H. Smith and C. J. Davis were then passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. It has been the rule, since the establishment of this Lodge, that the Worshipful Masters should undertake all the duties attached to their office, and conclude their labours by installing their successor. Our esteemed Bro. Higgins—a most competent worker so far as ability is concerned—unfortunately suffers from a physical infirmity of voice, and under these circumstances we had anticipated he would have claimed the indulgence of his brethren, and called on one of the Past Masters to work the ceremony of installation on this occasion. However, our excellent brother nerved himself for the task, and must have been infinitely gratified at the manifestations of approval and recognition of his zeal that his exertions called forth. However, we feel we are anticipating the business. Bro. Lewis Solomon was in due course presented and obligated, a Board of Installed Masters was opened, and he was placed in the chair of King Solomon. On the readmission of the brethren the W.M. was saluted, and he invested the Officers, as follow:—Bros. Leon Jacobs S.W.; G. H. Gorringe J.W., J. J. Michael P.M. Treasurer, Frederick Saintsbury Secretary, C. B. Potland S.D., B. Kauffman J.D., Frank Fletcher I.G., Arthur Hubbard M.C., Alexander Pawson Asst. M.C., W. H. Baker Wine Steward, F. C. Austin Assist. W.S., Daly Tyler. After Bro. Higgins had delivered the addresses a cordial vote of thanks was proposed to him by Bro. P.M. Michael, for the zeal he had displayed during his year of office, and for his able and impressive rendering of the ceremony of installation. Bro. P.M. Briggs, who seconded the proposition, also testified to the satisfaction with which he had listened to Bro. Higgins, and the vote was carried unanimously, with a suggestion that a record to the effect be made on the minutes. Bro. Higgins acknowledged the compliment, as also did he the honour conferred on him by the W.M., who in a few graceful sentences presented him with the Past Master's jewel of the Lodge. He assured the brethren he tendered them his thanks most heartily. He had endeavoured to do all he possibly could for the welfare of the members, and should look back with pleasure on the kindness and consideration that had been shown him during the period he had governed the Lodge; he fully recognised and appreciated the assistance he had at all times received, and which had tended to the success with which he had carried out his labours. After routine work, Lodge was closed. The banquet was served in the pillar-room, and after the cloth had been removed, the W.M. Bro. Solomon briefly introduced the Loyal toast, the Queen and the Craft. After the National Anthem the W.M., in speaking of the M.W. the Grand Master, said all knew the many claims made on the time of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales; consequently, we can scarcely expect to see him so frequently in Grand Lodge as we could desire. However, all are alive to the interest he takes in the doings of the Craft, and he (the W.M.) had every confidence in offering the toast for acceptance. After this had been fully honoured, the Grand Officers were toasted, and Bro. T. Cubitt's name associated therewith. Bro. Cubitt, in replying, said the Grand Officers could fully appreciate the kind remarks of the W.M. All Masons recognised the zeal of the Pro Grand Master and the Deputy Grand Master. In the Marquis of Ripon's time, the Earl of Carnarvon made his mark as Deputy Grand Master, and since the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, now some eight years since, he had ably fulfilled the functions of Pro Grand Master. Bro. Cubitt made reference to a rumour prevalent that the Marquis of Ripon will be offered a dukedom at the expiration of his term of office in India. This step in the peerage will mark the Government's high appreciation of the Viceroy's administration, and will be acceptable to the large body of Masons who are fully alive to the great interest the Marquis once took in the doings of the Craft. The Earl of Lathom, up to the time to which he (Bro. Cubitt) referred, was better known in his Province of West Lancashire. However, since his occupancy of the post of Deputy Grand Master, he had secured the good opinion of Masons in a more extended sphere. Bro. Cubitt then referred to the recent Royal visit to Essex, on the occasion of the installation of Lord Brooke as the Grand Master of that Province. The foul weather prevalent on that day did not damp the ardour of the Grand Officers, who, he might say, spared no labour to fulfil their duties. Brother Cubitt concluded an excellent speech by thanking the W.M. for connecting his name with the toast. In proposing the health of the Worshipful Master, Brother Higgins said that Brother Lewis Solomon was one of the Founders of the Lodge, and had been one of the most constant attendants at its meetings; in fact, he might say he had scarcely ever been absent. Personally he felt sure the members could not have made a better choice of a Master than in electing Brother Solomon. He had every confidence in offering the toast for their acceptance. After an amusing song from Brother Silvester, the Worshipful Master replied. He would not take up their time by attempting to make a long speech. He felt fully the responsibilities of his present position; he had striven to gain their good opinion in the past, and he felt he had not been unsuccessful. As he grew older, and gained greater experience, he trusted he should still further advance in their good opinion. He had a competent Mentor in Brother Stiles, to whom he felt infinitely indebted for many kindnesses, and he knew he could rely on the cooperation of those whom he had appointed to office. Under all these circumstances, he looked forward to a pleasant year of office, and thanked them all heartily for the way they had greeted the toast. In proposing the health of the Past Masters, Brother Solomon

LODGE OF UNION, No. 414.

A REGULAR meeting was held on Tuesday, 20th February, at the Masonic Hall, Reading. Bros. Francis J. Ferguson W.M., R. C. Mount I.P.M. and Treasurer, S. Wheeler S.W., M. J. Withers J.W., A. W. Parry Secretary, D. H. Witherington S.D., F. Blackwell J.D., J. W. Martin M.C., J. C. B. Tirbutt Organist, C. G. Butler I.G., G. W. Webb and H. G. Armstrong Stewards; P.M.'s Bros. C. Stephens, R. Bradley, J. W. Hounslow, S. Bradley; Bros. Albury, Cookburn, Higgs, Walters, Rayner, Sydenham, Stubington, Tubbs, George, Sherwood, Hawkes, Tench. Visitors—Bros. Colonel Heathcote 654, W. Ferguson P.M. 1101, Ivey P.M. and Sec. 1101, A. Mount 1328, Petty 414, Ashby J.W. 771, General Romer 319, D'Albar 1466, R. Dowsett W.M. 1101, W. Hickie Organist 1101, E. Whitfield 1101, J. Goddard W.M. 771. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of the last regular Lodge and Lodge of Emergency were read and confirmed. Bro. W. H. Strickland P.M. and P.P.G.O., formerly a member of this Lodge, was elected as a joining member. Bro. C. B. Tubbs, a candidate for passing, gave satisfactory proof of his efficiency in the former degree, was entrusted, and retired. Lodge was opened in the second, and Bro. Tubbs was admitted and passed to the degree of F.C. This being the new Master's first work since his installation, it is fair to say that he conducted the ceremony in a most perfect manner; the effect was considerably heightened by vocal and instrumental music, under the direction of Bro. Tirbutt Organist. Bro. Stubington, a candidate for raising to the third degree, was examined, entrusted, and in due course raised to the sublime degree of M.M. This ceremony was performed by the I.P.M., Bro. R. C. Mount, in his usual correct and impressive manner. On the W.M. resuming the chair, a notice of motion, "for increased accommodation in the offices outside the Lodge," was referred to the Permanent Committee to report thereon. Bros. Higgs, Bracher, and Sherwood were appointed on the Permanent Committee. We congratulate Bro. Ferguson on his prospect of a successful year of office. A discussion arose respecting a memorial to the late Secretary, Bro. Leaver; it is contemplated to have a stained window, in St. Lawrence's Church, for which a subscription has been opened. Before closing the Lodge the W.M., in an appropriate speech, presented to the I.P.M. a case, containing the full regalia of Prov. G.S.W. Berks and Bucks, which Bro. Mount felicitously acknowledged, with sincere thanks to the members of the Lodge. All business being ended, Lodge was closed and adjourned.

GREY FRIARS LODGE, No. 1101.

HELD at the Masonic Hall, Reading, on Wednesday, 14th inst. Bros. Dowsett W.M., Blackwell I.P.M., Ridley S.W., Hawkes J.W., Stransom Treasurer, Ivey P.M. Secretary, Prickett S.D., Ravenscroft J.D., Hickie Organist, Rhind I.G., Hemmings Tyler; Bros. Weatherhead, Creed, Coates, Slaughter, Vowles; Visitors:—Bros. Sparrow 419 and 464 I.C., Hallam P.M. 1349. Lodge was opened in the first degree, and the minutes of last regular Lodge were read and confirmed. The W.M. announced that Mr. Bennett, who was elected at the last regular Lodge, was a candidate for initiation, and while he was being prepared he (the Worshipful Master) addressed the brethren in explanation of his absence from the last regular Lodge, and desired to convey his heartfelt thanks for their kindness in sympathising with him in his late domestic bereavement, and especially he desired to thank the I.P.M. for the very kind manner in which he conveyed those expressions in a letter addressed to him. The candidate being announced, was admitted and initiated into the mysteries of Ancient Freemasonry. The ceremony was admirably performed by the W.M., at the conclusion of which the charge was most correctly given—in extenso. The sum of two guineas was voted to the relief of brethren in Jamaica, who are suffering from the late calamitous fire. A moiety of expenses incurred by the Provincial Grand Lodge of Berks and Bucks at their last meeting in Reading was ordered to be paid; the Lodge of Union 414 having paid the other moiety. The Secretary produced a paper of suggestions for alterations and amendments in the Revised Book of Constitutions, at a meeting of the representatives of the Lodges in the Province, for the inspection of the members; he also announced that the returns to Grand Lodge had been made, and the fees remitted. The Provincial Grand Lodge returns were also ready for the Audit Committee, when they meet in a few days. After a proposal for a joining member, and the usual ceremonies, including the closing hymn, under the direction of Bro. Hickie, the Lodge was closed according to ancient form, and adjourned.

KILBURN LODGE OF INSTRUCTION, No. 1608.

THE Annual Banquet of the members and friends of this Lodge of Instruction took place on Monday last, the 19th instant, at Bro. W. F. Walton's, South Molton Hotel, South Molton-street, W. The chair was taken by Bro. T. B. Linscott I.P.M. No. 55, who was supported by Bros. P.M.'s Baker 753, Finch 173, Brooks 1608, Latreille 1260, Willey 9, Willey jun. 9, Valentine 9, Cuff 1608, Foxley W.M. 173, Langdon J.W. 538, Wickens S.D. 733, Soper W.M. 1769, Flood 1612, Spencer 733, Fisher 733, Brooks, Walham 1642, Taylor 1642, Dickenson 1608, Thomas 753, Barr 1305, Coles 1305, Smith 1305, Gomm 1305, Pescod 1305, Dunn 1305, Ashdown 1305, Peirce J.W. 211, Halliday 1305, Dale 1310, Walton S.D. 1608, Morgan S.W. 211, Blum W.M. 511, Steckelbach 766, H. J. Price 55, Wiggins S.D. 753, Raymond 1305, Brooks 66, Pourpart 9. The repast was very well served by Bro. Walton, who personally looked after the comforts of his guests. On the removal of the cloth, Bro. Linscott proposed the toast that is never overlooked at gatherings of this nature—The Queen and the Craft. This was followed by the National Anthem. The W.M. then gave the toast of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. If ever there was a Mason who deserved to be toasted, it was our Royal Brother. He would call on those present to do full honour to the Most Worshipful the Grand Master. The toast of the Grand Officers came next, and then Bro. Preceptor Baker, in felicitous terms, proposed the health of their President, the Treasurer of the Lodge of Instruction, Bro. T. B. Linscott, to whom he gave all credit for the sustained interest he evinces in the welfare of all matters tending to the advancement of the Order. On Bro. Linscott rising to reply, he said he did so with some amount of diffidence. His associations with the members marked some especially happy episodes in his life. Bro. Baker had somewhat foreshadowed his ideas in proposing the toast, but he could assure those present that the Lodge of Instruction was in a flourishing condition; it had a balance in hand, after satisfying all claims that could be made on it. He heartily thanked all present for the way they had received the mention of his name. The President next proposed the health of the principal Officers—the Preceptor and Secretary—whom he eulogised for the earnestness with which they severally entered upon their duties. Bro. Baker was Preceptor of several Lodges, and in all he displayed infinite zeal, which redounded to the advantage of his numerous pupils; all of whom had derived great benefit from his instruction. He (the W.M.) felt all appreciated the ardour their Preceptor manifested. In replying, Bro. Baker stated that for nearly twenty-five years he had endeavoured to perform the functions of a Preceptor, and, as their president had stated, stress of weather never kept him from his post. So long as he had health and strength he hoped to be able to continue his labours, which he trusted would redound to the advancement of the younger members of the Craft. He could endorse what had been said in regard to their worthy Secretary, Bro. Cuff. A more popular brother they could not meet with, and a more energetic Mason it would be difficult to find. Bro. Cuff having replied, several other toasts were given, the efforts of mine host receiving special acknowledgment. The proceedings were enlivened by several songs and recitations.

Kent Lodge of Instruction, No. 15.—Held on Wednesday, 21st February, at Bro. Serjeant's, the King and Queen, Norton Folgate, E.C. Bros. Tegg W.M., Serjeant S.W., Woolley J.W., Millington S.D., Pinder Preceptor, Stroud I.G.; also Bros. A. Clark, Rowe, Andrews, &c. &c. After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Andrews candidate. Bro. Andrews worked the first, second, and third sections of the first lecture, assisted by Bros. Millington, Rowe, and Serjeant respectively. Lodge was opened in the second degree. Bro. Andrews worked the first section of the lecture, assisted by Bro. Stroud. Bro. Serjeant was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. The brethren of the Kent Lodge of Instruction will work the Fifteen Sections at the West Smithfield Lodge of Instruction on Monday evening, 26th instant, at seven o'clock precisely.

Loughborough Lodge of Instruction, No. 22.—A meeting was held on Monday evening, at 7.30 p.m., at Brother McDiarmaid's, the Cambria Tavern, Cambria-road, Loughborough Junction. Present—Bros. Westley W.M., Barclay Perkins S.W., Westmore J.W., McDiarmaid Treasurer, McKinley Secretary, Howard Reynolds S.D., Serring J.D., Johnson Preceptor, Warren I.G.; P.M.'s Tapps, Lang, Carnack, Littlewood, Banks, Hook, Brown, Bellio, Thompson, Wood, Hervey, Louden. After preliminaries, the Worshipful Master worked the first section of the third lecture. Lodge resumed to the second, when Bro. Wood, a candidate to be raised, answered the usual questions before being entrusted. Lodge resumed to the third degree, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed. After routine work, Lodge was closed in ancient form, and adjourned till Monday next.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—At the Jolly Farmers, Southgate-road, Islington, on Saturday, the 17th instant. Present—Bros. A. Ferrar W.M., Foxcroft S.W., Venning J.W., Pearcy Preceptor, Fenner Sec., Galer S.D., Dixie J.D., Ashton I.G.; also Bros. Marks, Parkes, Houghton, Archer, Williams sen., Williams jun., Weeden, Rhodes, Brasted, Wolf. All formalities were complied with in opening the Lodge, and the minutes were read and confirmed. The ceremony of raising was rehearsed, including the traditional history, Brother Weeden acting as candidate. Brother Fenner worked the third section of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Lodge was closed to the first degree. Bro. Foxcroft was appointed W.M. for the next meeting. Lodge was then closed and adjourned. This evening (24th) the election of the Secretary and Treasurer will take place, when it is hoped there will be a large muster of the members.

EBORACUM LODGE, No. 1611.

THIS Lodge held its monthly meeting on Monday evening, at the Queen Hotel, York. Bro. M. Millington W.M. was supported by P.M.'s Bros. Whytehead, Cumberland, Balmford, Simpson; Bro. Geo. Kirby W.M. 236; by his Wardens, and an unusually large attendance of brethren. Two successful ballots were taken for candidates; and two candidates, elected at a previous meeting, were initiated, by the Worshipful Master, the J.D. giving the charge. Bro. T. B. Whytehead, as Treasurer of the building fund, announced that nearly £1,000 had been subscribed towards the purchase of a hall, most of it by members of the Lodge. The Provincial Grand Master had very generously subscribed £50, and so also had Brother J. W. Woodall, of Scarborough, who was always ready to help in Masonic work. There was no doubt that the necessary funds would easily be raised, and he was able to state that a meeting of members of the Mechanics' Institute had endorsed the action of their committee in the sale to the Lodge of their old building. Great satisfaction was expressed by the members at this announcement, and several additional debentures were taken up. Before the Lodge was closed Brother Cumberland P.M. presented to the Lodge a framed photograph of Masonic emblems, Brother G. Irving presented a large framed and coloured bird's-eye view of York, and Brother Whytehead presented to the library a bound copy of the Voice of Masonry. Two candidates for Freemasonry were proposed, and the Lodge was closed. At refreshment several good speeches were made, and the proceedings were enlivened by the singing of Bros. Cumberland, Wilkinson, and Child, whose performance of "Willie brewed a peck o' maut," was exceedingly humorous. We may add that the building secured by the Eboracum Lodge for the purposes of meeting is situated in St. Saviour-gate, in the centre of the city, and for many years has been used by the Mechanics' Institute Society, who are now raising a fund for erecting a new and larger building in Clifford-street. The old building is admirably adapted for Masonic purposes, having a very large lecture hall on the first floor, suitable for a Lodge room, and ground floor rooms available for banquetting room, smoke room, library, committee room, &c., and a caretaker's residence at the back. The price is £1250, and as some additional outlays will be required, the members of the Lodge have formed an Eboracum Masonic Hall Proprietory, and are raising £2000 by means of debentures of £5 each, bearing interest at a low rate. There is every prospect of the scheme being perfectly successful.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—A meeting was held at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge, on Friday, 16th inst., at eight o'clock p.m. Present—Bros. G. Monson W.M., Tucker (Treasurer) S.W., Gomm J.W., Henning S.D., Gunner J.D., Cammell I.G., Andrews Preceptor, C. E. Botley and F. Botley Joint Secretaries; Bros. Sugg, Sperring, S. Flint, A. Turner, Maton, Hirst, Weeden, Fenner, &c. After preliminaries, the minutes were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Hirst candidate. This brother answered the questions, and was entrusted. Lodge opened in the second degree and the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Bro. Hirst acting as candidate. Lodge was advanced to the third, and closed to the first degree, when Bro. C. E. Botley worked the first section. Bro. T. Flint 780 was elected a member, and Bro. Tucker was appointed W.M. for the 23rd inst.

New Concord Lodge of Instruction, No. 813.—On Wednesday evening last, at the Jolly Farmers Tavern, Southgate-road. Bro. F. Perl presided as W.M., supported by Bros. Marks S.W., Potter J.W., P.M. Cusworth Preceptor, Dixie S.D., Chubb J.D., Priestley I.G.; also Bros. W. Potter, Warden, Flack, Smith, and Capstick. The work composed the rehearsal of the initiation ceremony, Bro. Smith acting as candidate. Lodge was then opened in the second degree, when Bro. Capstick proved himself an efficient F.C., was entrusted, and Lodge was opened in the third and the ceremony of raising rehearsed. Bros. Smith and Capstick were unanimously elected members. Bro. Marks will occupy the position of W.M. on Wednesday evening, March 7th. Next Wednesday, February 28th, will be devoted to the working of the Fifteen Sections, by members of the Metropolitan Lodge, No. 1507. Brethren are cordially invited to attend.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—Held at Bro. Smyth's, Sisters' Tavern, Pownall-road, Dalston, on Tuesday, 20th instant. Present—Bros. Christian W.M., Robinson S.W., Smyth J.W., Bunker S.D., Cushing J.D., Gray I.G., Carr Secretary, Wallington P.M. Preceptor; also Bros. Darnell, Brasted, &c. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. Bro. Brasted offered himself as candidate for raising, was interrogated and entrusted, and in due course the ceremony was rehearsed, the W.M. giving the traditional history. Lodge was called off, and afterwards resumed its Masonic duties by the W.M. working the third section, assisted by the brethren. Lodge was resumed to the first degree. Bro. Robinson was elected W.M. for the ensuing week and appointed his Officers in rotation. Proposed by Bro. Carr, and seconded by Bro. Darnell, that Bro. W. W. Morgan be invited to deliver a lecture in this Lodge of Instruction on the first Tuesday in March. This was carried unanimously. It was also arranged that the Preceptor of the Lodge should rehearse the ceremony of installation next Tuesday. On each of these occasions we trust the brethren will make it convenient to attend in force. Lodge was then closed and adjourned.

The first meeting of the Neptune Lodge, No. 30, since the installation of Brother Henry Povey, as W.M., was held on Thursday evening, at the Guildhall Tavern.

THE EMPIRE LAMP.
(RIPPINGILLE'S PATENT.)
THE MOST BRILLIANT AND ECONOMICAL DOMESTIC LIGHT EXTANT.

It equals Gas for Simplicity, but surpasses it for Illuminating Power.

IT burns without a chimney, a pine-shaped globe only being required, which has never been known to break from the heat of the flame. It will give more light than any other lamp with a wick of equal size. The combustion is so perfect that it deodorises the oil, and burns absolutely without smell, giving an intense pure white and beautiful light. It is unrivalled for simplicity in lighting, cleaning, and trimming, and is, in fact, the perfection of artificial light. Suitable for Cottage or Mansion, Churches, Chapels, &c.

Freemason's Chronicle;

A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE.

SANCTIONED BY THE GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND.

Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

VOL. XVII.—No. 425. SATURDAY, 3rd MARCH 1883. [PRICE THREEPENCE. 13s 6d per annum, post free.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

THE agenda paper for the meeting of Grand Lodge on Wednesday next, while at first sight it is suggestive of there being little or nothing to do beyond business that is formal or of a general character, is worthy of a few passing remarks. The Grand Master will submit a resolution to the effect that the sum of one hundred guineas be contributed towards the relief of brethren in Jamaica who have suffered by the terrible conflagration at Kingston in December last. That the motion will be carried with acclamation is certain, and our sole regret is, that G. Lodge will not be asked to give of its surplus funds a far higher amount. There are, in the first place, no less than eight Lodges under the English Constitution alone which meet at Kingston, and, in the second, the same amount was voted towards the Palestine Exploration Fund in 1868, and again in 1876, to the Peruvian Earthquake Fund, to the Fund for the Relief of Famine in Persia, and towards alleviating the distress caused by the "cataclysm" on the coast of Peru, while £100 was voted for the relief of members of the one Lodge in Curacoa who suffered from a hurricane in 1878, and two hundred guineas were given in 1877 to the sufferers from the fire at St. John, New Brunswick. In these circumstances it occurs to us that the sum of £105 is by no means adequate to the requirements of this particular calamity in Jamaica. If, for example, £100 was considered a just contribution towards the relief of the members of the single Curacoa Lodge, then £105 manifestly falls short of what is likely to be required by the brethren of the eight Kingston Lodges. On the other hand, if the proposed grant of £105 in the Jamaica case is deemed sufficient, then £100 in the Curacoa case must have been excessive. We do not desire to see Grand Lodge ostentatious in its gifts, but if it can be said to have erred on former occasions on the side of extra liberality in its grants, it may be considered to err on the present occasion on the side of parsimony, and that, too, at a time when the balance to its credit is largely in excess of £5,000. Moreover, where property to the value of half a million of money has been destroyed—only £150,000 out of the £650,000 damage was covered by insurance—and about 7,000 people rendered homeless, it appears to us some consideration might be exhibited for the poor unfortunates outside the Craft. Suffering humanity, whether it comes before us in the shape of Masons or non-Masons, has righteous claims on the sympathy and assistance of Grand Lodge. This duty has been again and again recognised, as in the case of the Lancashire Cotton districts in 1863, the Turks' Island Relief Fund in 1868, the Chicago Relief Fund in 1872, the Bengal Famine Fund in 1874 and in 1877, and the Distress in Ireland Fund in 1880, and others that might be mentioned. In none of these cases was the claim on our assistance more just than is that of our poor Jamaica fellow-subjects, and we hope to see some member of Grand Lodge rise in his place, on Wednesday next, and suggest a larger sum be granted, of which one part shall be set aside for suffering brethren, and the other for the general body of sufferers.

The other business calls only for very brief notice. The grants by the Lodge of Benevolence which will have to be confirmed are more moderate than we have seen them on former occasions, there being only three of £100 each, one of £75, and six of £50 each. It is quite time the Lodge of Benevolence kept its expenditure within its income. The Revised Edition of the Book of Constitutions, and the 800 amendments which have been suggested by different Lodges and brethren, are to be taken into consideration and reported on. It will be proposed that the Bulwer Lodge, No. 1068, of Cairo, which was ordered to be erased at the December Communication, shall be allowed to resume its functions. For our own part, it strikes us the more businesslike way to proceed in this case will be for a motion to be made that so much of the minutes of the last meeting as relates to the erasure of the Bulwer Lodge shall be non-confirmed. Only eight new warrants have been granted, and will be submitted for Grand Lodge approval, and it is not a little remarkable that not one of these has been issued for a Colonial Lodge, two being London warrants and the other six Provincial. The election of Grand Master and Grand Treasurer constitutes the remaining portion of the business to be transacted in Grand Lodge on Monday next.

FESTIVAL OF THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

THE well-wishers of this admirable Institution, the Chairman of the Festival, R.W. Gen. Bro. Brownrigg, C.B., Provincial Grand Master of Surrey, the Province of Surrey, and the indefatigable Secretary, Bro. James Terry, and his staff, are one and all to be congratulated on the result of Wednesday's gathering at Freemasons' Tavern. There was a numerous company assembled to do honour to the occasion, the brethren and ladies mustering to the extent of some 500. Among the former were Bros. General Laurie Grand Master of Nova Scotia, Colonel Lloyd-Philipps Prov. G.M. of South Wales Western Division, Rev. C. W. Arnold P.G.C. Dep. Prov. Grand Master Surrey, Rev. C. J. Martyn P.G.C., Deputy Prov. G. Master Suffolk, Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke Grand Secretary, J. Messent G.S.B., Charles Greenwood P.G.S.B. Prov. G. S. Warden Surrey, C. Greenwood jun. Prov. Grand Secretary Surrey, F. W. R. Hedges Secretary Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, C. F. Matier, Captain Nichols, &c. &c. Messrs. Spiers and Pond catered very successfully, and Bro. Dawkins, in his quality of manager, was courtesy itself, as he is invariably. After dinner, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed by the Chairman, who, in proposing that of the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M. Patron and President of the Institution, the Princess of Wales, and the other members of the Royal Family, referred to the grand spectacle which was presented in the Royal Albert Hall, on the occasion of His Royal Highness's installation as Grand Master, and spoke in terms of eulogy of the interest exhibited in the Craft not only by the Prince, but likewise by his brothers the Dukes of Connaught and Albany. The health of the Grand Officers, whose services were justly eulogised by Gen. Brownrigg, was gracefully acknowledged by Colonel Lloyd-Philipps. With the "Sister Grand Lodges" was associated the name of Brother General Laurie, whose reply was well received. In proposing the toast of the evening, "Success to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons," the Chairman spoke briefly but to the point. He drew attention to the vast amount of good that is being done by the Institution, its large expenditure, which amounts annually to over £13,000, and the heavy list of applicants who present themselves year by year to be admitted on the roll of annuitants, and he quoted the well-known story told of Dr. Swift, on the occasion of his being asked to plead for a poor person and preach a sermon on his behalf, the text being "He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord," and the sermon—perhaps the briefest on record—"All of you who are satisfied with the security, down with the dust." The toast was enthusiastically received, and Bro. Terry shortly afterwards announced a list of the donations, and subscriptions, amounting to the very handsome total of £13,047 1s, with nine lists still to be received—a total which has been exceeded on only rare occasions, even during the brilliant period of the Prince of Wales's Grand Mastership. London, as represented by 137 Stewards, contributed towards this result £7,646 11s 6d, while the Provinces by their 135 Stewards raised amongst them £5,400 9s 6d, Surrey loyally taking the lead with the splendid sum of £905, a grand achievement for a Province which is very far from being numerically strong. Bristol, Essex, Gloucestershire, Herts, Kent, East Lancashire, West Lancashire, Middlesex, Norths and Hunts, Notts, Sussex, Worcester, and West Yorkshire also sent up liberal donations. The health of the Chairman was proposed by Col. Lloyd-Philipps and, it goes without saying, was received with the heartiest applause, while Brother Hedges, Secretary of the Girls' School, whose Festival is the next in order of occurrence, returned thanks for the toast of "Success to the other Masonic Institutions." Colonel Clerke Grand Secretary returned thanks for "the Ladies," very happily. The usual concert followed in the Temple. Brother W. Ganz P.G.O. had charge of this part of the programme, and ably fulfilled his task, in which he was well supported by the Misses Clara Samuell, Mary Beare, Maria Delval, and Frances Hipwell, Herr Poznanski, and Bros. Lehmeyer, Faulkner Leigh, Franklin Clive, and Egbert Roberts.

Thus has passed for 1883 the principal event in connection with the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and while repeating our congratulations to all who took part in it, and all interested in the continued success of the Institution, we can only express a hope that the Festivals of the two Schools will prove at least as successful.

The following is a corrected list of the Stewards and amounts collected by them up to the time of our going to press.

H.R.H. the Duchess of Albany gave birth to a daughter on Sunday evening, and Her Royal Highness and the infant princess are both progressing favourably. The happy event was announced in London on Monday by a Royal salute of 21 guns in St. James's Park.

Mr. W. C. Kemp, late of Reigate Grammar School, and son of Bro. W. J. Kemp P.M. and Secretary of the Royal Albert Edward (Redhill) Lodge, 1362, P.G.P. Surrey, has obtained a Mathematical Scholarship at Worcester College, Oxford, of the value of £80 per annum. The examination was entirely open, and without limitation as to age, and consequently the competitors were numerous, and Mr. Kemp, who is not yet 19 years of age, is to be congratulated upon his striking success. In 1881 he obtained the Exhibition of £70 per annum given by Worcester College to the most deserving candidate of the year in the Oxford Local Examination.

The "Freemasons' Calendar and Pocket Book" for 1883 can be had at the Grand Secretary's Office, Freemasons' Hall, London, price 2s, bound in roan.

FREEMAN'S CHLORODYNE.

The Original and only true.

HUNDREDS of Medical Practitioners testify to its marvellous efficacy in immediately relieving and rapidly curing Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Spasms, Colic, Whooping Cough, and all Nerve Pains. It acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery. It rapidly relieves pain, from whatever cause, soothes and strengthens the system under exhausting diseases, and gives quiet and refreshing sleep.

Lord Chancellor Selborne, Lord Justice James, Lord Justice Mellish decided in favour of FREEMAN'S ORIGINAL CHLORODYNE, and against Brown and Davenport, compelling them to pay all costs in the suits. See Times of July 24th, 1873. Bottles 1s 1½d, 2s 9d, 4s 6d, 11s, and 20s. Sold by all Chemists.

TESTIMONIALS.—Head Quarter Staff, Cabul, May 31st, 1880. Mr. R. Freeman, Dear Sir,—It is with much pleasure I am able to state that your Chlorodyne has been of special service to me in alleviating the wearisome spasms of Asthma, which is here existent in an aggravated form. Many of my patients now come and beg me to give them that medicine which always relieves them, and which I need hardly say is your Chlorodyne. Yours faithfully, CHARLES W. OWEN, L.R.C.P. Lon., M.R.C.S. Eng., the Divisional Head Quarter Staff and Civil Surgeon, Cabul.

The Times, August 13th, 1877. From our own Correspondent with the Russian Army. Okoum, July 25th, 1877. The want of sanitary arrangements in the Russian Camp was dreadful, and had we remained there a few weeks' onger, dysentery and typhoid fever would have played more havoc in our ranks than the bombs of the Turks. I myself acquired an unenviable reputation as a doctor, owing to my being provided with a small bottle of CHLORODYNE, with which I effected miraculous cures.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

NORTHAMPTON CHAPTER, No. 360.

THIS Chapter assembled at the Masonic Hall, Northampton, on Thursday, 22nd February. Present—Comps. Stanton P.Z. M.E.Z., Atkins H., Rev. S. J. W. Sanders J., Robinson P.Z. E., Bingley N., Ellard Prin. Soj. pro tem, Green P.Z. and Kellett P.Z. Assist Sojs. pro tem, Butler Wilkins P.Z. Dep. Prov. G. Supt. Norths and Hunts, Cotton P.Z., Roberts, Percival, Brown, Hill, Hart, Haviland, Clayson, Croft, Cockerill, Jones, Currall, Emery, Wetherell, Dorman, James Terry P.Z. 288, Secretary Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, Griffin P.Z. 442 P.G.D.C. Norths and Hunts, &c. Bros. Timson Pomfret 360 and Todd 360 were duly ballotted for and elected, the M.E.Z. performing the ceremony of exaltation; Comps. H. and J. taking their parts in a most admirable manner, Comp. Terry assisting in the ceremony. Comp. Butler Wilkins then proceeded to instal the M.E.Z. (H. J. Atkins), Rev. T. J. W. Sanders H., and Bingley J.; the ceremonies being performed in his usual impressive manner. The M.E.Z. then proceeded to invest his Officers :—Comps. Sanders H., Bingley J., Robinson P.Z. E.; the N. elect was absent through illness; Stanton P.Z. Treasurer, Butler Wilkins P.Z. M. of C., Ellard Pr. Soj., Brown and Perceval Assist. Sojs., Croft Organist, Dean and Kirby Janitors. On the adjournment, the Companions sat down to refreshment, provided by Mrs. Forth, of the Peacock Hotel, in her usual bountiful and excellent manner. The regular Loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the M.E.Z., Comp. Wilkins suitably responding to that of the Prov. Grand Officers. Comp. Green proposed the newly-installed Principals, referring to the admirable manner in which all had discharged their duties, both in Craft and Chapter. Each responded to the toast. Comp. Stanton, in responding to the toast of the P.Z.'s, referred to the fact that the continued prosperity of the Chapter, and their liberality to the Charities, was in a great measure due to the interest taken by the P.Z.'s in its welfare and efficient working. Companion Sanders proposed the Visitors, in a very practical manner, to which Comp. Griffin responded, referring to the good understanding existing between the Chapters in the Province; he concluded by proposing the toast of the Masonic Charities, thanking those present for their liberal contributions to his Provincial Steward's list on this and former occasions Comp. Terry, in responding, gave several interesting facts in connection with the Institution with which he is more immediately connected, and also thanked those assembled for the kindness which he always received at their hands, and also for their generous contributions. The M.E.Z., in proposing the Officers of the Chapter, took the opportunity of referring to the harmonious way they had hitherto worked together, and the excellent manner in which they had performed their duties, especially mentioning the perfection with which Companion Ellard (who was called upon at short notice, owing to the illness of the Pr. Soj.) had that evening performed the duties of Pr. Soj. The several Officers replied. Comp. Stanton gave the newly exalted Companions, Timson and Todd, who duly responded. Comp. Stanton alluded to the absence of Bro. M. A. Boeme, who had removed to Worthing, and referred to the loss the Chapter, of which he was senior member, had sustained, he having for many years taken the warmest interest in its welfare. Comps. Atkins, Stanton, Hart, Timson, Emery and others added to the harmony of the evening. The Northampton Chapter has for many years been a good working one, and no doubt will maintain its reputation for some years to come, and deserve the approbation given it by Comps. Terry and Griffin.

Kent Lodge of Instruction, No. 15.—Held at Bro. Serjeant's, the King and Queen, Norton Folgate, E.C. At the weekly meeting on Wednesday, 28th February, there were present Bros. Patrick W.M., Millington S.W., Kramm J.W., Gieseke S.D., Leoffler J.D., Black I.G., Pinder Preceptor, and others. After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Pinder candidate. The W.M. worked the first and second sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Black answered the questions leading to the third. Lodge was closed in the second degree. Bro. Millington was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. After the usual formalities, Lodge was closed.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—At Bro. Smyth's, Sisters' Tavern, Pownall-road, Dalston, on Tuesday, 27th ult. Present—Bros. Robinson W.M., Smyth J.W., Bunker J.W., Glass S.D., T. Clark J.D., Young I.G., Carr Sec., Wallington P.M. Preceptor; also Bros. Wardell, Darnell, Webb, Brasted, Ames Christian, &c. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Darnell candidate. Lodge was called off, and afterwards resumed its Masonic duties. The W.M. then opened the Lodge in the second and third degrees. Bro. Robinson vacated the chair in favour of Bro. Wallington, Preceptor, who rehearsed the ceremony of installation, placing Brother Robinson in the chair of K.S. Bro. Wallington gave the addresses in his usual able manner. Bro. Ames, of the Dalhousie Lodge, No. 860, was elected a member. Bro. Smyth was voted W. Master for the ensuing week, and appointed his Officers in rotation. It was arranged that the ceremony of installation should be rehearsed once a month. Bro. W. W. Morgan has selected "Women in Freemasonry" as the subject for the lecture he will deliver in this Lodge of Instruction on next Tuesday evening. Lodge will be opened at eight o'clock, and it is to be hoped that brethren of other Lodges will muster in force.

ROSSLYN LODGE, No. 1543.

THE regular meeting of this Lodge, at the Saracen's Head Hotel' Dunmow, Essex, on Tuesday, 20th ult., was of more than ordinary interest in consequence of arrangements which had been made for the delivery, in open Lodge, by Bro. James Stevens P.M. P.Z. of his interesting lecture on the working of the first degree. The attendance was not so large as had been expected. The "waters were out," and the brethren were long distances apart. Moreover, the weather, dull and depressing, threatened a further downpour, and "wet jackets" for such as ventured on the lengthy journeys necessary for going to, and returning from, Lodge. So that the gathering, though respectable in numbers, was to some extent disappointing to the W.M. and his Officers. Nevertheless, a more enjoyable evening, both as regarded labour and refreshment, never was passed by those who inscribed their names in the attendance book. Lodge was opened by the W.M. Bro. Dehane P.G.S.D. Essex, at six o'clock, and the previous minutes having been confirmed, the investment of Officers, which—for some good cause or other that did not appear—had been deferred from the former meeting, took place. The appointments and investments, all being present, were made as follows, viz., Bros. A. Rattray S.W., J. P. Lewin P.M. 276 P.P.G.S.W. Essex J.W., G. D. Clapham P.M. P.P.G.R. Essex S.D., J. C. Rhind J.D., Frederick J. Snell P.M. 1312 1543 Treasurer, Frederick W. Warner Secretary, W. Rowe I.G., G. A. Randall and W.S. Callaman Stewards, R. W. Rusaeau Tyler. The Visitors were Bros. James Stevens P.M. 720, 1216, 1426, &c. and J. Collinson S.D. 1862. Mr. Edward Frith Ferris having been initiated into the Order, the Worshipful Master introduced Bro. Stevens, by a few appropriate remarks bespeaking their attention to an exposition of Masonic working which he felt assured would greatly interest them. We have ourselves had former opportunities of hearing this undoubtedly able and instructive lecture, each subsequent delivery of which becomes more impressively delivered, and less, as it were, stereotyped. On this occasion, time pressed the lecturer, who found it necessary to somewhat condense his work, but he made a judicious selection of those points in ceremonial working which it was of the greatest utility to explain to the Officers and younger members of a Lodge, and gave good reasons why some usages should be condemned in practice, and others most punctiliously observed. At the close of his address, which was listened to with strict attention, Bro. Stevens received most hearty expressions of satisfaction, many brethren openly exclaiming that they had learned more of the science of Freemasonry than they hitherto thought could have been afforded them. On the proposition of Bro. Clapham, seconded by Bro. F. J. Snell, the thanks of the Lodge and honorary membership were voted to Bro. Stevens, who acknowledged the cordiality with which he had been received, the attention given to his address, and the compliment the Lodge now paid him. Propositions having been received for initiation and joining, the Lodge was closed in harmony, and the brethren dined together, the worthy host of the Saracen's Head (who had been proposed in Lodge for initiation) placing a very elegant repast before them, to which speedy and ample justice was done. Subsequently the usual Loyal toasts were honoured, Bro. Lewin singing the National Anthem. The rulers of the Province were also recognised in the usual manner observed amongst Masons, and responses were given by Bros. Clapham and Snell. The health of the W.M. was drank with much enthusiasm, and the remarks of the proposer, Brother Clapham, as to the able services which had been rendered to the Lodge by Bro. Dehane, was heartily endorsed. Bro. Stevens having recited "Masons' Vows," Bro. Dehane acknowledged the reception the brethren had given to the toast, and assured them of continued labour and attention to the best interests of the Lodge. The health of the Initiate was proposed as a "sitting toast," a Provincial custom which we fancy most Masons would consider more "honoured in the breach than the observance." Bro. Ferris, in a well-spoken reply, expressed his gratification at having at length become a Freemason, and hoped that what he had heard in the Lodge would be indelibly impressed on his memory, to his advantage. The toast of the Visitors was responded to by Bro. J. Collinson S.D. 862, who in the course of his thanks for the invite he had received stated that the pleasure his co-visitor had afforded him by his lecture would be hoped again place the same two brethren side by side elsewhere. The Officers of the Lodge having been called upon, the Tyler reminded the company of the "poor and distressed," and these having been solemnly "cuffed," according to a fortunately not invariable custom, the brethren separated, some to spend yet another hour or two on the road, and others, more fortunate, to be "taking their ease at an inn," to enjoy a quiet chat before seeking "Nature's sweet restorer." Among the numerous brethren who forwarded written or verbal apologies for absence on this occasion were Bros. A. Durrant P.M. 276 Prov. G. Treas. Essex, E. Blinkhorn W.M. 1471, W. Vincent P.M. 1624, R. W. Hedges Secretary R.M.I.G., Rev. E. H. Crate P.M. 697 P.P.G.C. Essex, Dr. E. Shedd P.M. 276 I.P.M. 1543 P.P.G.S. Essex, C. Corble P.M. 453 P.P.G.J.W. Essex, F. G. Green Sec. 1024, H. R. Heasman 1437, Percy Taylor 409, A. Portway P.M. 1312, Edward Durrant I.G. 276, Dr. James Nicholls P.M. 276 P.P.G.S.W. Essex, A. C. Durrant S.D. 276, Edwin D. Hatch M.C. 1471, N. J. Basnett P.M., H. Mais P.M. 423 South Australia, R. Clowes W.M. 650 P.G.S. Essex, John L. Mather P.M. 1471 P.P.G.D.C. Herts, A. Lucking P.M. 160 P.G.D.C. Essex, J. O. Carter P.M. P.P.G.S. of Wks. Berks and Bucks, Rev. F. B. Shepherd P.M. 1543 276 P.P.G.C. Essex, Dr. M. B. Wheeler P.M. 697 P.P.G.J.W.

United Mariners Lodge of Instruction, No. 30.—The establishment of a Lodge of Instruction for the district of Peckham, Nunhead, and their surroundings, supplies a want that had long been felt in that locality of the South of London, and the success that has already attended it gives strong and satisfactory evidence of the appreciation of the movement by the brethren resident there. For a long time past the dearth of the means for Masonic instruction amongst those who belong for the most part to Lodges in the City had been a subject of regret, and it was a most commendable idea on the part of several members of the United Mariners Lodge to found a weekly meeting for the benefit of those who desired to take advantage of it, under the banner of their mother Lodge. Although commenced only a couple of months ago, the Lodge has already assumed very respectable dimensions, and by the admirable working displayed it has attracted the regular attendance of a considerable number of members. The promoters were exceedingly fortunate in securing the assistance of Bro. W. H. Martin as Preceptor, who sustains his part with intelligence and perfection, combined with pleasing elocutionary effect. Equally zealous and active are those by whom he is supported, and it is little matter for surprise that the Lodge has already gained for itself so large an amount of popularity, which is sure to increase when the advantages it offers become more fully known. We understand there are now about forty members, whose number receives an acquisition on almost every occasion of meeting; so that we may reasonably anticipate a very large share of popularity will surround a Lodge which is already firmly established. On the occasion of our visit, on Wednesday, the 21st ult., there was a fair average muster, and the working was such as to afford a considerable amount of edification, as well as pleasure, to all assembled. Bro. J. Rotheroe (Secretary) was Worshipful Master for the evening, and was supported by Bros. J. H. Morgan as S.W., F. J. Eedle J.W., P. Harvey S.D., J. P. Woolley J.D., D. J. Thomas I.G., A. J. Bellis, H. J. Andrews, A. S. McChristie, R. E. Anderson, and others. Lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, and Lodge was advanced to the second degree, with Bro. Bellis as candidate. He was examined and entrusted, and Lodge having been raised to the third degree, the ceremony was rehearsed, the impressive charges being rendered with admirable accuracy and effect. The first section was worked by Bro. Bellis, assisted by the brethren, and the second by Bros. Martin and Bellis. Lodge was then closed to the first, when Bro. R. E. Anderson of the Selwyn Lodge, No. 1901, was admitted a member. Bro. Martin then proposed, as a slight recognition of the valuable services rendered by Bro. Rotheroe, as Secretary, he should be elected an honorary member of this Lodge of Instruction. He alluded to the zeal and energy with which he had assisted in furthering the interests of this young Lodge of Instruction, and considered the least they could do was to recognise those efforts by electing him an honorary member. Bro. McChristie seconded the proposal, which was unanimously carried. Bro. Rotheroe, in acknowledging the compliment paid to him, said the honour was very unexpected, and that tended to make it all the more gratifying to himself. As to the onerous duties to which reference had been made, he assured the brethren it only afforded him pleasure to do what he could for the interests of the Lodge of Instruction. If he had been a subscribing, instead of an honorary member, it would not have detracted from the interest he felt in the Lodge, or rendered him less infrequent in his attendance; but he deeply appreciated the honour which they had conferred upon him, and for which he returned his heartfelt thanks. Hearty good wishes having been interchanged, Lodge was adjourned to Wednesday last, when it was announced that Bro. J. Driscoll P.M. Secretary had kindly promised to attend and rehearse the installation ceremony. The hope was expressed that on this occasion there would be a numerous gathering, as, from the well-known ability and experience of Brother Driscoll, they might anticipate considerable and valuable instruction. Lodge was then closed in form, and the brethren separated after a very agreeable and harmonious gathering. We may mention that the headquarters of this Lodge of Instruction are at the Lugard Tavern, Lugard-road, Peckham, and that Visitors will be most cordially welcomed at its meetings, which are held every Wednesday evening from 7.30 to 9.30 p.m. The room is admirably adapted for the purpose, and Bro. Alfred Pusey has left nothing unstudied that can in any way conduce to the comfort and convenience of the brethren. The hotel is easy of access, being within three minutes' walk of the Queen's-road railway station, and only a short distance from the stations at Old Kent-road and Nunhead. It is, therefore, most conveniently situated for brethren residing in the neighbourhood, and, as we have said, the Lodge promises to be largely used, to the immense advantage of Freemasons in this part of the south-eastern district. Bro. J. H. Morgan was unanimously elected Worshipful Master for the meeting on the first Wednesday in March.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—The members held their seventh anniversary meeting on Saturday, the 24th Feb. at the Jolly Farmers, Southgate-road, Islington. Bro. R. Pearcy, the Preceptor, occupied the chair, and he was supported by Bro. W. Cook S.W., Ashton J.W., Fenner Sec., Lorkin Treasurer, Marks S.D., Venning J.D., Rhodes I.G.; also Bros. Cohen, Houghton, Gibbs, Ferrar, Parkes, Archer, Snook, Carr, Gush, Hatch, Wolf, &c. Lodge was opened in usual form, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Brother Snook answered the questions leading to the degree of F.C. Lodge was opened in the second, and the ceremony of passing rehearsed. The brethren responded to the call to refreshment, and on to labour, when Brother Carr answered the questions leading to the third degree. Lodge was advanced, and the ceremony of raising rehearsed, Brother Carr acting as candidate. Lodge was resumed to the first degree. Brother Cook was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. The Auditors' made their report; this showed the Lodge was in full work, as the average attendance of the brethren during the past year was shown to be 17-24 per night of meeting. The report was adopted. Brother Fenner, the Secretary, very reluctantly tendered his resignation, as business will prevent him, in the future, attending to the duties with the regularity he has hitherto exhibited; at the same time, he undertook to carry out the work pending the election of a successor. Brother Treasurer was re-elected for the ensuing year. Votes of thanks were awarded Bros Auditors, Preceptor, Secretary and Treasurer, for their services after which Lodge was closed and adjourned.

ST. JAMES'S UNION CHAPTER, No. 180.

A REGULAR convocation of this Chapter, the members of which are so noted for their perfect working, was held on the 27th ult., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. Comps. Farwig Z., Keays H., Fletcher J., Pillin P.Z. Treasurer, Reed P.Z. S.E., Herbert 1st Assistant, P.Z.'s Comps. Knyvett, Annett; Comps. E. Bateman, Durrant, Hill. Wade, Snell; H. M. Levy P.Z. 188, and Reid 72, visitors. The Chapter was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. The name of a candidate for exaltation was on the agenda paper, but he was not present. The election of Principals took place; Comp. Keays was elected Z., Fletcher H., and Baker J. Companion Pillin was re-elected Treasurer, and Gilbert Tyler; Comps. Wade and Bateman were appointed Auditors. Comp. Pillin proposed, Comp. Fletcher seconded, and it was carried unanimously, that a P.Z.'s jewel be presented to Companion Farwig on his retirement, for the able manner in which he had conducted the duties of the chair, and in testimony of the kind estimation in which he is held by his Companions. The Chapter was then closed, and the company sat down to a very excellent dinner, provided by Messrs. Spiers and Pond (Limited). The M.E.Z. after the cloth had been cleared said, this being a so-called off-night, he would dispense with some of the routine toasts, but he felt it a duty and pleasure to propose the health of the Z. elect. Companion Keays had done his duties well, and was well known and respected in the Lodges with which he was associated. He hoped he might have a prosperous year of office; he was sure he would receive support from all the Companions. Companion Keays in reply said, he had unexpectedly been called upon for a speech on this occasion; he hoped at the next meeting to be better prepared. He would endeavour to perform the duties of the Chapter to their satisfaction. Comp. Annett said he had a pleasing duty to perform, and that was to propose health and long life to the M.E.Z., Comp. Farwig, who was worthy of the high position he occupied in the Chapter. He regretted the Companions did not have an Exaltee to give them an opportunity of hearing Comp. Farwig's excellent working. Comp. Farwig, in reply, thanked Comp. Annett for his kind expressions. It was a great pleasure and satisfaction to bear he had done his duty in the chair. He thanked the Companions for their assistance. He was especially indebted to Comp. Knyvett for many kindnesses. At the next meeting he hoped to be able to instal his successor, who was in every way deserving of the support of all present. Comps. Reid and H. M. Levy responded for the Visitors. Comps. Fletcher, Duret, and Pillin contributed to the harmony.

Grove Chapter, No. 410.—This Chapter met at the Leatherhead Hotel, on Saturday, the 24th February last. There were present amongst others M.E. Comp. George Berington Foster M.E.Z.; Comp. H. J. Dumas occupied the chair of N., in the unavoidable absence of Comp. Charlton; Comps. G. E. Lister J., Clayton Litchfield P.Z., Charles Greenwood P.Z., &c. The minutes of previous Convocation were read and confirmed. £5 5s was voted in aid of the funds of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The Companions partook of a most excellent banquet, presided over by the M.E.Z. with his usual ability. The beauty of the dinner table was greatly increased by a present of most lovely flowers sent, from Camilla Lacey, by Mrs. Wylie.

WALLINGTON LODGE OF INSTRUCTION, No. 1892.

WHAT may be described as an extra meeting of this prosperous Lodge of Instruction was held in the Public Hall, Carshalton, on Thursday, the 1st instant. Bro. G. Horsey P.M. 1619 and W.M. of the mother Lodge presided, and among those present were Bros. W. Pile S.W. and W.M. elect No. 1892, Alfred Bishop J.W., Charles Sawyer Preceptor P.M. 1619 1892. J. W. Baldwin S.D., W. Harwood I.G., Frost, Taylor, Carter, Edwards, Filmer, Davis, Nunnerley 1815, and Haslett; and as Visitors Bros. W. G. Gibbs P.M. 1837, G. K. Pugh 1790, W. H. Ransome 1790, Verdon 188, and W. W. Morgan S.W. 211. Lodge having been opened with the customary ceremonial, Bro. Horsey rehearsed the ceremony of initiation in an able and impressive manner, Bro. Frost acting as candidate; while the charge was given by Bro. Baldwin with unwonted fervour. Bro. Morgan having been briefly introduced to the brethren by the W.M., rose and gave his promised lecture on the "Masonic Institutions, their Establishment and Development." As the lecture is one of a series which has been published in pamphlet form, and has been delivered in other Lodges, it will suffice if we state that Bro. Morgan was listened to throughout with rapt attention and that, on the conclusion of his address, he was most warmly congratulated by his audience, a vote of thanks to him being also most cordially passed, and gracefully acknowledged. Lodge was advanced to the second, and Brother Gibbs again won for himself the encomiums of the brethren by the admirable facility and impressiveness with which he explained the tracing board of the second degree. Lodge having been resumed to the first, and closed, the brethren adjourned to the King's Arms, and there sat down to a pleasant repast, which apart from its undoubted merits was the more enjoyable from the fact of its being of a homely and quiet character. Speeches followed the removal of the cloth, and were interspersed with some capital singing, to which Brothers Taylor, Gibbs, and Bishop contributed very successfully. The Loyal and Masonic toasts, combined, according to Brother Binckes's well-known prescription, having been enthusiastically honoured, that of Prosperity to the Wallington Lodge of Instruction constituted a feature in the proceedings, and was proposed by the W.M. of the evening, Bro. Horsey, Master of the Mother Lodge, who expressed himself gratified with the work of instruction as pursued under the auspices of Bro. Preceptor Sawyer, whose name was associated with the compliment so deservedly paid. Bro. Sawyer modestly acknowledged the kindly expressions of the president of the evening, and expressed a hope that the Lodge of Instruction would continue to be as successful as it had been during the brief period of its existence. Bro. Horsey's health was genially honoured, and Bro Morgan responded for the Visitors, who, one and all, acknowledged the marked courtesy and hospitality they had experienced. Nor was the W.M. elect of the mother Lodge—Bro. Pile—overlooked, and the compliment paid him was accepted in a most fraternal spirit. In fine, the meeting, though marked by an entire absence of anything like ostentation, proved to be one of the most agreeable it has been our fortune to attend, and more favourably impressed us than if the proceedings had been attended with greater pomp and ceremony.

United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, No. 507.—Meeting at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell S.E., on Friday, 23rd ult. Bros. Bate W.M., Stokes S.W., Thurston J.W., Style S.D., Wiltshire J.D., Dick I.G., Stevens Past Master and Preceptor, Poore Secretary, Terry Past Master, &c. Lodge was opened and minutes were read. For being passed to the F.C. degree, Brother James gave proofs of proficiency, and Lodge being raised to the third, the ceremony was ably rehearsed. The W.M. also gave the charge in the second degree. Lodge having been lowered, Brother Stokes was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and Lodge was duly closed.

THE GRAND TREASURERSHIP.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In view of the forthcoming Quarterly meeting of Grand Lodge, on Wednesday next, 7th inst., when the brethren will elect a Grand Treasurer for the ensuing year, I venture to express the hope (which I believe is widely shared in) that a successor will then be appointed to the distinguished brother who has occupied that position for several years past.

The Constitutions provide that all Grand Lodge offices shall be vacated annually; and although it may be expedient at times to re-elect, this can hardly apply to the Grand Treasurership, and there is no reason why one brother should hold the office in perpetuity, to the exclusion of brethren equally worthy of preferment.

Moreover, it may fairly be questioned whether the members of Grand Lodge are justified in relinquishing the trust which is vested in them of making an annual selection for this office, seeing that the evil consequences are that emulation, which is the life of Masonry, is discouraged, and an indifference engendered which culminates in secession.

Practically the Craft has but this one purple collar at their disposal, and the responsibility rests with them if they do not confer it, year by year, upon one of their fellows who is deserving of the distinction.

Our ranks abound with brethren who would reflect honour upon the Office, and whose worth and services the Craft cannot recognise in any other way than this. I am glad, therefore, to know that one of this number, who has been a member of the Order for nearly forty years, and is P.M. and Treasurer of a well-known Lodge, and also a Vice-Patron of all our Institutions, is to be proposed as Grand Treasurer for the ensuing year.

Few, I think, will disagree with the correctness of the principle of electing a new Grand Treasurer annually. It is only because this proper course has been deviated from that it seems like an innovation, and to savour of invidiousness, to go back upon the Constitutional lines.

I feel sure, however, that our present Grand Treasurer will not for one moment entertain the thought that any personal reflection upon him is involved or intended in what is about to be done.

He has had ample evidence of the high regard he is held in, and cannot possibly be insensible to the fact that he is a general favourite throughout the Craft.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

N. B. HEADON P.M.

Treasurer The Great City Lodge, No. 1426.

65 Friday-street, 1st March 1883.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Hearing that there is likely to be a very strong opposition to the re-election of our esteemed Bro. Col. Creaton, to the office of Treasurer, I think it is but fair to take into consideration some of the claims he has upon the Craft in general for their support. No brother has worked so hard as he for the Craft; and, for the Charities, no brother has exhibited that zeal and continued perseverence in directing, and, to the best of his ability, guiding, the different Boards of Management in the way to realize the full intention of the subscribers, i.e., dispensing monies to the best advantage, and bestowing the greatest benefits upon the recipients. No trouble has been too much; no amount of time considered ill-spent by him. These I may say are only a few of the demands he has upon the Craft, and I sincerely hope that the brethren will show their appreciation of his services by again electing him as Grand Treasurer, it being the only position in Grand Lodge the brethren have it in their power to bestow.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

AN OLD P.M.

ADDRESS OF BRO. GRAHAM, LL.D., GRAND MASTER OF QUEBEC.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In your article last week on Bro. Graham's Address to the Grand Lodge of Quebec, you refer to Bro. Laurie, Grand Master of Nova Scotia, having expressed his belief that the presence of an English Lodge in his jurisdiction was an advantage rather than a stumbling block in the way of good government by the Grand Lodge of Nova Scotia, such opinion being diametrically opposed to that of Bro. Graham as described by you. It may be as well perhaps that Bro. Laurie's statement, which was made at the Annual Communication of the Nova Scotia Grand Lodge in June 1880, should receive as much publicity as possible, as showing that Bro. Graham has not the entire sympathy of the Craft in British North America in his denunciations of the United Grand Lodge of England for upholding the three Lodges in Montreal which have preferred remaining in its allegiance to her instead of joining the Quebec Grand Lodge. The following is the passage as I have extracted it from the Masonic Correspondence of the Grand Lodge of Illinois:—

"Royal Standard Lodge"—No. 398, Halifax, N.S., English Constitution—"holding under the Grand Lodge of England, is with us a pattern in matters of ritual and discipline; working side by side with us, a healthy emulation is produced, and both parties are the better for it. By invitation I lately visited this Lodge, accompanied by the Grand Officers and a large body of Nova Scotian Masons, and the cordial feelings reciprocally expressed gave the strongest proof that the working of an English Lodge in our midst was working no injury to the Craft here."

And the Illinois commentator, after quoting this passage from Grand Master Laurie's Address, goes on to remark: "What a contrast this is with the sadly unfraternal doings of the assumed Grand Lodge of New Mexico towards Silver City Lodge and the Grand Lodge of Missouri, and how beautifully it exemplifies the goodness and pleasantness of brethren dwelling together in unity, even when some of their interests do seem to clash. Grand Lodge Sovereignty and exclusive jurisdiction are desirable, but certainly not so much so as to justify the sacrifice of all fraternal relations and principles. We are glad that our Nova Scotian brethren so nobly prove that, under all circumstances, they will remember they are FREEMASONS, and govern themselves accordingly."

It will be well if Bro. Graham would condescend to take a leaf out of Bro. Laurie's book. Verb. sap.

TEMPERANCE AND MASONRY.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have read with interest your leader on the above topic, and articles which have appeared in other journals bearing on the subject of Temperance in Masonry. As you say, the question admits of various arguments, for and against the adoption of such a doctrine as is implied by total abstinence or teetotalism; but after all said and done, the result will in the main depend upon individual tastes and temperaments, and not upon any rule either suggested and endeavoured to be enforced. To my mind there is now, and ever has been, absolute liberty for the individual. If I choose to join with my brethren and drink to toasts in "orthodox champagne," I do not snarl at my next door neighbour who does so "on principle" out of a claret glass filled with water. I would rather see him boldly declare his principles, instead of veiling, in the allegory of a coloured glass, his mild deceit; but that is his look out, not mine. I prefer wine with my dinner, and the usages of society render the toasting of our friends in generous beverages both proper and agreeable. As you very correctly observe, intemperance and excess are things unknown in Masonic Lodges, and the brother who would commit himself whilst wearing the "blue ribbon"—for we wear it too, only in a different way—would have reason to remember it long enough afterwards. But it is the very fact (as I have said of my coloured glass and water brother) of his being induced to practise such a little piece of finessing, in order to keep up appearances and simulating to keep pace with the rest of the company, that is objectionable. If a man is an abstainer, by all means let him avow it like a man, and the last place in the world in which he would be scoffed at for his courage is in a Masonic Lodge. As to the complimentary part of it, time was when to decline to drink a friend's health in wine was deemed an insult; but these are days of broader views, and if I were to be installed to-morrow as W.M. of my Lodge—which, unhappily for me, I cannot hope for for a year or two—I should not feel the least insulted if all the brethren drank my health in tea, or anything else they fancied. I will take care they have some of the "orthodox," if they care for it; for I always find there is more heartiness and geniality when the inspiriting loving cup goes round; but if there are any present who are squeamish on the point, or prefer mild drinks, by all means let them humour their fancy, and be as happy as the rest. I do not know that I have said much now to elucidate the question upon which you have invited comment, but these fugitive thoughts may assist in sustaining interest on the subject, which seems to be pretty freely discussed amongst members of the Craft.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

JUST FLEDGED.

THE HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY.

THE third group (C)—"Printed Copies, Extracts, or References"—comprises Nos. 38-51, both inclusive. Of No. 38, styled the "Dermott," after Laurence Dermott Grand Secretary and subsequently Deputy Grand Master of the "Ancients," and described as "16th Century," no trace has been found, and the same has been remarked of No. 42, the "Morgan," named after Dermott's predecessor in the same Grand Secretaryship, of the "17th century." They are included in this category on the strength of a reference in the minutes of that Grand Lodge of 6th December 1742, when the Grand Secretary is reported to have inquired if there were other books or manuscripts than those which had been delivered to him in the February preceding, and was answered in the negative by some, while "others said they knew Mr. Morgan had a roll of parchment of prodigious length which contained some historical matters relative to the ancient Craft, which parchment they did suppose he had taken abroad with him. It was further said that many manuscripts were lost amongst the Lodges lately modernised, where a vestige of the Ancient Craft was not suffered to be revived or practised; and that it was for this reason so many of them withdrew from Lodges (under the modern sanction) to support the true ancient system. . . . The Grand Secretary produced a very old manuscript, written or copied by one Bramhall, of Canterbury, in the reign of King Henry the Seventh, which was presented to Bro. Dermott (in 1748) by one of the descendants of the Writer. On perusal, it proved to contain the whole matter in the forementioned parchment, as well as other matters not in that parchment," though it strikes us as being curious how any proof of this could be established in the absence of the "fore-mentioned parchment," which Mr. Morgan was supposed to have taken abroad with him. No. 39, the "Dowland," of the 17th century, is so-called because it was forwarded by a Mr. James Dowland to the editor of the "Gentleman's Magazine" in 1815, Mr. Dowland describing it as "a curious address respecting Freemasonry," which not long since came into his possession, and adding: "It is written on a long roll of parchment, in a very clear hand, apparently early in the seventeenth century, and very probably is copied from a MS. of earlier date," while Bro. Woodford considers it represents a MS. of about 1500. No. 40 is styled the "Dr. Plot," because it was published in that author's "Natural History of Staffordshire," in 1686. In investigating the claims of the Masons to antiquity, Dr. Plot "particularly alludes to the 'large parchment volum they have amongst them, containing the History and Rules of the craft of masonry.' Which is there deduced, not only from sacred writ, but profane story, particularly that it was brought into England by St. Amphibal, and first communicated to St. Alban, who set down the Charges of Masonry, and was made paymaster and Governor of the King's works, and gave them charges and manners as St. Amphibal had taught him. Which were after confirmed by King Athelstan, whose youngest son Edwyn loved well masonry, took upon him the charges and learned the manners, and obtained for them of his father a free-Charter. Whereupon he caused them to assemble at York, and to bring all the old Books of their craft, and out of them ordained such charges and manners, as they then thought fit; which charges on the said Schrole or Parchment volum, are in part declared; and thus was the craft of masonry grounded and confirmed in England. It is also there declared that these charges and manners were after perused and approved by King Hen. 6 and his council, both as to Master and Fellows of the right Worshipfull craft."

No. 41, an "extract from a MS. not now known," is assigned to the seventeenth century, and styled the "Hargrove," because it appeared in Hargrove's "History of the Ancient City of York," published in 1818, the author stating his indebtedness for the information was to Mr. Blanchard, the Grand Secretary of the then extinct York Grand Lodge. Bro. Gould says, it "does not agree with any existing MS., either at York or elsewhere." No. 43, "Masons' Co.," of the seventeenth century, is the MS. referred to in Sir Francis Palgrave's article in the "Edinburgh Review" in April 1839, in which that learned writer, in describing the inventory of the contents of the Masons' Company's chest, alludes to "a Book wrote on Parchment, and bound or stiched in parchment, containing an 113 annals of the antiquity, rise, and progress of the art and mystery of Masonry," which had not long prior to 1839 been in the said chest. No. 44, the "Roberts," of the seventeenth century, is unhesitatingly set down by Bro. Gould as "a reproduction, or a counterpart, of No. 11"—in the Harleian MSS. at the British Museum—not "only from the fact that there is not another MS. which so resembles it, but also because the differences are so trivial in the text, and the additions so evidently of an editorial character, that the proofs of such an origin are irrefragable. Woodford and Hughan both concur in this view." This version was published in 1722 by J. Roberts, of Warwick Lane, and sold at sixpence. The only known copy was bought at the Spencer Sale for the late Bro. R. F. Bower, of Keokuk, Iowa, the sum paid being £8 10s. Its title is "THE OLD CONSTITUTIONS Belonging to the ANCIENT and HONOURABLE SOCIETY of Free and Accepted MASONS, Taken from a Manuscript wrote about Five Hundred Years Since." The "Briscoe" of the seventeenth century is No. 45 in order, and respecting it Bro. Gould says, "I am persuaded that substantially it is founded on No. 12,"—in the Harleian MSS.—"the reasons for this view are conclusive to my mind, and have been partially given by Hughan." It was published by "Sam Briscoe, at the Bell Savage on Ludgate Hill" in 1724, the original being assumed to have been "of near 300 years Translation into English." A copy of it was in the library of the late Bro. Bower, of Keokuk, Iowa. No. 46, "Baker," 17th century, is referred to by Dr. Rawlinson, in a note in his MS., explaining the legend of King Athelstan, having caused "a Roll or Book to be made, which declared how this Science was first invented . . . which Roll or Book he Commanded to be made and plainly recited when a man was to be made a Free Mason, that he might fully understand what Articles, Rules, and Orders he laid himself under, well and truly keep and observe to the utmost of his power," Dr. Rawlinson stating he had seen one of these Rolls "in the possession of Mr. Baker, a carpenter, in Moorfields." No. 47, "Cole," has a seventeenth century origin assigned it, because No. 32, from which it was derived, was derived from No. 8. It is set down as "the finest issued in the last century." It was "printed from engraved plates," and "dedicated in 1728-29 to the Right Hon. the Lord Kingston, Grand Master," the absence of any date from the title being immaterial, as the dedication determines the period of its publication. The Benjamin Cole, after whom this version is styled, was the publisher of the Grand Lodge Lists 1745-66. As regards No. 48, the "Dodd," which compares with the same Nos. 8 and 32, Bro. Gould endorses Bro. Hughan's opinion that this is a reproduction of No. 47, "with simply a few fanciful changes, for which an example had been set by Masonic historians of the period," Bro. Carson, of Cincinnati, for whom was purchased the copy disposed of at the Spencer Sale, concurring in this view, and adding, "therefore it appears to me that Cole's Editions 1728-31-51, &c., and the Spencer manuscript now in my collection, and the present reprint, are substantially, though not identically, one and the same Constitutions." Its title is "The Beginning and First Foundation of the most worthy Craft of Masonry, with the Charges thereunto belonging;" it is said to be "By a Decear'd Brother, for the Benefit of his Widow," and was printed for "Mrs. Dodd, at the Peacock, without Temple Bar MDCCXXXIX. (Price Sixpence)." No. 49, belonging to the Bedford Lodge, No. 157, to which it was presented about January 1809, by the then Secretary, Bro. Harris, was published in the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, on the 22nd and 29th April of last year. No. 50, the "Batty Langley," of the eighteenth century, was "published in the "Builders' Compleat Assistant," 3rd edition, 1738. Batty Langley, a prolific writer, published his "Practical Geometry" in 1726, which is dedicated to Lord Paisley, as "the Head of a most Ancient and Honourable Society," and subscribed himself "your most devoted servant." In 1736 appeared his "Ancient Masonry, Both in the Theory and Practice," dedicated to "Francis, Duke of Lorraine, and forty British noblemen, also to all others the Right Hon. and Right Worshipful Masters of Masonry by their humble servant and affectionate brother, B. Langley.'" The last of all is No. 51, "the Krause," and is assigned to the eighteenth century, though Bro. Gould remarks that it is quite possible that even the eighteenth century is too early a date to assign for its compilation. It is the so-called "York MS. of A.D. 526," and was "first announced in 1808, through a German version having been issued by Herr Schneider, of Altenburg, from a Latin translation, said to be certified by 'Stonehouse, York, January 4, 1806' (of whom no trace can be found)." However, it seems neither Bro. Hughan nor Bro. Woodford believes it to be "of any real antiquity." Moreover, "Dr. George Kloss denied its genuineness, 'and contended that the Latin translation, which was certified by Stonehouse, had been prepared before 1806, and that in preparing it an ancient manuscript had been remodelled on the same basis as the 1738 edition of Anderson's Constitutions, because the term "Noachida" is employed in both, but is found nowhere else.'" Findel, also, though he visited England especially to investigate the matter, found nothing to confirm its claims to antiquity, and returned home more convinced than ever that it was neither a York Charter nor of the year 926. The character and history of this MS. are reserved for a future chapter.

Having enumerated in their several categories the MS. which exist, or have existed, and to which references are made, Bro. Gould proceeds to classify them in five divisions, according to their texts, the "Halliwell" MS. and the "Cooke" MS. each constituting by itself one division, namely, those marked (D) and (E) respectively. These, he says, are not forms of the "Old Charges," strictly speaking, "although they doubtless represent a certain class of masonic documents circulating in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, of which we have otherwise no contemporary record whatever." He adds: "The first was in part a Roman Catholic manual of devotion, the versifier, who was almost certainly a priest, having had access to documents in 'olde tyme wryten,' respecting 'Thys onest craft of good masonry;' and the second distinctly gives, as a personal narrative, what the chronicler found 'write and taught in ye boke of our charges,' and often alludes to 'the olde bokys of masonry' as the source of his statements. His membership, honorary or otherwise, may be assumed from scattered references, such as 'Elders yt wer bi, for us of masons had these charges wryten to hem as we have now in our charges.'" As to the Halliwell MS., he considers, from the fact of its dating "shortly after the order of Richard II. for returns from the guilds (1st November 1388), and also those of the Crafts," that it was compiled from "the returns and miscellaneous records" brought to light in obedience to that order; but as it is in a metrical form, he holds that "the form of the historical introduction" and "the arrangement of the laws must not be looked for" in it, "but rather in the style or manner of its less pretentious juniors." He further points out that the compiler would give prominence "to those events which were the best calculated to advance the ends he had in view, by the compilation of his history, while, on the other hand, he would as naturally reject whatever might tend to unduly exalt the memory of any patron of the masons, however illustrious, whose conduct had been regarded with disfavour by the highest authorities of the church. It cannot, therefore, be maintained that the legendary history preserved by the Freemasons of the sixteenth century and later, contained many statements not to be found in those of an earlier period, simply on the ground of their omission in the Halliwell and Cooke MSS. Not that I deprecate criticism of these two MSS., but I think it has been shown that our attention should be principally directed to what is, rather than what is not said, the more especially since it is quite evident that although what I venture to term the 'Old Charges' proper—i.e. the forms of which the 'Buchanan' (15) presents a typical illustration—are of more modern transcription, they represent, in the opinion of experts, originals of higher antiquity than can be claimed for either of the two senior versions or adaptations of the masonic constitutions." He then describes the matter contained in the MS.

The "Cook" MS., he suggests, "is much more like the ordinary MSS. than its senior, and hence will be found to contain nearly all the legend of the usual 'Charges,' as in No. 15, though not always in quite such an orderly fashion." He considers its tone is not so "intensely religious" as that of the Halliwell, and notes in the course of his description of its contents that in it is "the only reference to St. Amphibalus in the MS. 'constitutions'" —"and sone aftyr come Seynt Ad habell in to England and he con'tyd Seynt Albon to Christendane." In this also is mentioned, for the first time in a Masonic MS., the legend of the preservation of the science of Masonry from the ravages of the Flood—also referred to in the "Poly chronicon," which, indeed, is cited in the MS. itself. Thus Trevisa's translation of 1387 of the "Polychronicon" reads "closede hem in twoie greet pileres i-made of marbyl and of brent tyle. In a piler of marbyl for water, and in a pyler of tyle for fuyre." Another translation says: "did write artes whom thei hade geten by labore in ij pillers of diverse ston, that hit scholde not peresche from memory, oon ston was of marbole, ageyne the floenge of water, that other was of tyle ston, ageyne the brennynge of fyre." The Cook MS. states that "ii man of ston of suche wtu yt ye one wolde new breune and yt stone is callyd marbyll, and yt oy stone yt well not synke in wat, yt stone is namyd lacûs"—"later, a brick." The Caxton translation of the Polychronicon styles the two stones "marbel and brent tile." These stones, according to the legend, were subsequently discovered by Pythagoras and Hermes.

In division F are placed six MSS.—Nos. 11, 19, 20, 25, 30, and 37—because they "present, as a common feature, what is known as the 'Apprentice Charges' or additional rules for the apprentices, not in the ordinary clauses, as set out in No. 15." Excerpts from these are given, and the clause in one of the York MSS.—No. 25 as enumerated in Bro. Gould's series—in which the word "shes" occurs is discussed at some length, the conclusion at which the author arrives being thus stated: "On the whole, I suppose we must accept the clause in question, either as an error or fancy of the translator or copyist; but it is certainly very singular that there is no record of females having belonged to Masonic guilds or companies, though they were connected with those of other crafts, such as the saddlers and spurriers, carpenters, peltyers (furriers), calendrers and tailors."

The "Inigo Jones" and "Spencer" (Nos. 8 and 32 respectively) with reproductions are allotted to Division G. The distinguishing features of No. 8, which is the prototype of No. 32, are noted, it being here, for instance, that "Prince Edward is spoken of as 'Brother to King Athelstane,' all the other forms either describing him as a son, or maintaining a discreet silence as to the relationship. The historical narrative is also chronologically arranged, and the years of many of the events are inserted, which is unusual in these documents. The omission of the name of Charles Martel is noteworthy, also that of 'Naymus Grecus,' but otherwise the text, as I have said, is more remarkable for the additions to, rather than the deviations from, the ordinary versions. Under these circumstances, I cordially endorse the opinion of the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford as to its 'special verbiage' and peculiarly interesting character."

"Ordinary versions" constitute the fifth division (H), by which are meant "all the MSS. not included in the four divisions (D to G), excepting only such as are merely reproductions, which naturally belong to the same class as their originals, whether or not the connection has been noted." It is remarked that "in all, the 'Apprentice Charge' and the 'New Articles' are wanting, whilst they contain none of those clauses, which, in the previous division (G) confer a special value on the text for purposes of suspension with the early editions of the Grand Lodge Constitutions. He then reproduces in its entirety, as a specimen of an "ordinary version," the "Buchanan MS." (15) belonging to the seventeenth century, because it "combines the chief points of agreement between the 'Old Charges,' and has not hitherto been printed."

Comments on the other features of agreement or divergence among these MSS. &c., with notices of distinctive peculiarities, complete this interesting chapter.

Another surprise, and one which cannot fail to be of deep interest to the friends of sobriety, is the proposed establishment in Manchester of a "Temperance" Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons. We do not know that the imputation has been deserved, but for many years the brethren of "Ye mystic tie" have had the credit of being ardent devotees to the shrine of Bacchus, and certainly their réunions, so far as the "outside world" can judge, are characterised with much of the exuberance of urbanity which is engendered by the "loving cup." But, be that as it may, a considerable amount of speculation has been aroused amongst the members of the Fraternity as to how the Manchester experiment will answer, and the effect it may have upon the general body of Masonic Lodges. It may appear anomalous that the amenities of a banquet and the fraternal interchange of sentiments that there find utterance, should be carried on amidst the mildly inspiriting associations of non-intoxicating beverages, but public tastes and notions of propriety in this respect have vastly altered in recent years, and it is by no means unusual now-a-days for festivities of the heartiest and most enjoyable character to be carried on without the aid of wine. The hero of Tel-el-Kebir appears to be the prime mover in the foundation of this new departure in connection with Freemasonry, and the first recorded "Temperance Lodge" on the roll of the Grand Lodge of England will bear upon its banner the name of Lord Wolseley. The gentleman who has accepted the first Mastership has been a "life abstainer," and the whole of the proceedings connected with the Lodge are carried on upon the principles of Teetotalism. Such a step may not appear significant to many who are unacquainted with the inner life of an Order, amongst whose cardinal principles temperance and moderation in all things are most religiously enjoined; but the experiment has caused no little comment amongst the ranks of the Fraternity, a very large section of whom will gladly welcome the innovation.—The Echo.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Dropsical Swellings.—Whatever may be the remote cause of collections of water in the human body, it must be manifest to disperse them as soon as possible. The readiest means of accomplishing this end are supplied by using Holloway's Ointment, to increase the activity of the absorbents. When this Ointment is well rubbed upon the skin, it removes all venous congestion, overcomes al mechanical obstructions to the free return of the blood, and prevents the deposit of serum and water. Holloway's Pills likewise augment this absorbing power; they act powerfully on the capillaries through the circulation, while this Ointment acts directly through the skin. Both should be employed in dropsies and diseases of the kidneys.

NEPTUNE LODGE, No. 30.

THE first meeting of this old and flourishing Lodge, since the installation of Bro. Henry Povey as Worshipful Master, took place on the evening of Thursday, the 22nd ult., at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, when there were present Bros. J Harper, Ph.D., I.P.M., R. W. Coulcher J.W., E. F. Storr P.M. Treasurer, George Britton P.M. Secretary, W. Cook S.D., J. Corbett J.D., W. Neats I.G.; P.M.'s T. P. Collings, J. S. Norman, C. Harcourt, H. S. Crawford; E. S. Hopper, L. V. Walker, W. J. Charles, E. G. Jolliffe, T. Whiting, A. Macgregor, R. King, W. Brooks, H. Savidge, J. Parkinson Tyler, and others, with Bro. J. C. Anderson 754 as a visitor. There was no business on the agenda, and after opening and closing in the three degrees the brethren sat down to a sumptuous banquet, when the usual toasts were honoured. Bro. Harper, in proposing the health of the Worshipful Master, referred to the qualifications possessed by Bro. Povey for the office of Worshipful Master, into which they had lately seen him installed; and their only regret must be that they had not the opportunity that evening of witnessing an exemplification of those abilities they all knew were at his command. The Worshipful Master, who was most cordially received, said it was very gratifying to know he had the confidence and entire respect of the brethren of this Lodge. It was yet very early days to mention his qualifications for the office to which, by the kindness of the members, he had been elected; they had no work that evening, and it appeared rather as "a frost." That, however, was his misfortune, and not his fault, and if the year was not to be numerically successful, he trusted it would be so socially. He mentioned his intention of going up this year as a Steward at the Festival for the Girls' School, and as this was the first Stewardship he had taken in connection with this Lodge, he trusted the brethren would co-operate with him, and make his list creditable both to their Worshipful Master and the Lodge. In proposing the health of their Visitor, he said this was a toast which was always well received in the Neptune Lodge; at their last meeting they were honoured with the presence of no fewer than twenty visitors. That evening they were favoured with only one, still the toast was as worthy their acceptance as though they had a number. They extended to Bro. Anderson the right hand of fellowship, and gave him a hearty welcome. The toast was cordially received, and Bro. Anderson said, as a young Mason, he felt his position somewhat in being alone to respond for so important a toast as that of the Visitors. He hailed from the North, as they could hear, and was as yet only a fledgling in Masonry, and was not very much at home when he was away from his "mother." He was very pleased to be amongst them to-night, and to meet so joyful and harmonious a company, and hoped he might have the pleasure again at no very distant period. The W.M. next proposed the health of the Past Masters; he said it was only by their co-operation and kindness that the Lodge could expect to prosper. To-night they were favoured with the company of their veteran brother Past Master Norman, whom it was a great pleasure to see, and he would couple his name with the toast. Brother Norman said the Worshipful Master had been pleased to associate his name with the toast, saying he was glad to see him again. On his part, he could truly say he was glad to meet the brethren once more, and was much disappointed not to have been present at Brother Povey's installation, and at the banquet he heard they had afterwards. It gave him sincere pleasure to meet the new Officers; it was a certainty they had an excellent Treasurer and Secretary. He hoped they might have plenty of work before them at the next meeting, and no doubt from the way in which the W.M. had conducted the opening and closing of the Lodge, he would display all those qualifications which they knew he possessed, and for which the Old Neptune Lodge had long been proverbial. Bro. Povey had presided over their banquet in a very amiable and agreeable manner; he had not spoken too much at length, yet had left nothing unsaid. He did not know he had ever attended where the duties of the chair had been managed in a neater manner; there had been nothing tedious, but everything was graceful and admirable. No doubt the Past Masters had been looked up to for many years, though they were not so numerous now as in the past. But those who were left had ever the real interests of the Lodge at heart, and were most anxious to see the chair filled by good men. They could all admire and appreciate good working, and he considered from what he had seen that evening the prospects of the Lodge were such as to afford them every satisfaction. The health of the Treasurer and Secretary were well received and acknowledged by Brothers Storr and Britton, after which the Officers were complimented in similar manner, and the list was closed in the usual way by the Tyler. During the evening there was some excellent vocal and instrumental music, and a very happy and harmonious evening was passed.

LODGE OF PROSPERITY, No. 65.

THE election meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday, 22nd ult., at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, when there was a gratifying attendance of brethren and visitors, under the presidency of Bro. J. Roberts W.M. There were also present Bros. Schadler S.W., Rich J.W., Brown P.M. Sec., Hawkins S.D., Rose acting as J.D., Gregory I.G., Walker M.C., Jones Steward, Chicken I.P.M.; P.M.'s Bros. Cornwall, Leins, Daniel, Ferry, Arnold; and Speight Tyler. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Eastbrook 1128, Thompson 1471, and Harnett 813. Lodge having been opened with the usual formalities, and the minutes of the preceding meeting read and confirmed, was advanced, when Bro. Thomas Buggins, having answered satisfactorily the interrogations, was raised to the sublime degree by the Worshipful Master, assisted by his Officers, the ceremony being admirably worked. On resuming, the ballot was prepared for Mr. A. Cheney, who had been nominated by Bro. J. H. Hawkins S.D., and seconded by the W.M. The voting was unanimous in his favour, and Mr. Cheney was duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Order, the working being all that could be desired. The brethren then proceeded to the election of W.M., and the choice fell unanimously on Bro. Schadler, who received the hearty congratulations of all present. Bro. Goodwin P.M., who, unfortunately, was not well enough in health to enable him to attend the meeting, was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Speight Prov. G. Tyler for Surrey Tyler. An Audit Committee was appointed, and after the transaction of some formal business, the brethren and visitors adjourned to a banquet, which was served in the throne-room. After dessert, the usual prefatory toasts were honoured; then Bro. Chicken gave the health of the W.M., alluding in felicitous terms to the ability displayed by Bro. Roberts during his year of office, and the active and unwearied interest he had manifested in the welfare of the Lodge. In response, Bro. Roberts thanked the brethren for the gratifying compliment which had been paid him, and said he had done his utmost to discharge the responsibilities of the high position which he had been called upon to occupy, through the kindness of the brethren. The W.M. tendered his acknowledgments to the Past Masters and his Officers for the very valuable assistance they had rendered him during his year of office, and trusted that his successor might reap the same advantage, and perform the duties with even greater satisfaction to the brethren than he had himself been able to do. He then proposed the health of the Initiate, whom he was pleased to welcome amongst them, and who he felt sure would prove a very useful acquisition to the Lodge. Before sitting down he reminded them that this was the last meeting of the Lodge prior to the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and expressed the hope that the brethren would liberally support his list, which he had the pleasure of stating had now almost reached three figures. Brother Speight having sang the Entered Apprentice song, the chorus of which was lustily sustained, Bro. Cheney thanked the company for the kind manner in which the mention of his name had been received; as he was yet so little acquainted with the subject he might be excused from responding at any length. The only thing he could say was it should be his aim and interest to do all he could for the benefit of Freemasonry in general, and the Prosperity Lodge in particular. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Visitors, whom he regretted were fewer in number than was usual in this Lodge. One or two other friends had been expected, but for various reasons they had been unable to attend. He could only say that nowhere were visitors more heartily welcome than at the assemblies of the Prosperity Lodge. Bro. Thompson in reply, said he had so frequently enjoyed the friendly association of the brethren of this Lodge, that he could not hardly regard himself as a stranger; indeed, here he always felt quite at home. He heartily wished for the Lodge the utmost realization of its title—Prosperity. Bros. Harnett and Eastbrook responded in a few happily-chosen sentences. The W.M. then gave the health of the W.M. elect, the toast being received with a genuine round of applause. In doing so he said it was a very pleasing duty to congratulate Bro. Schadler upon the prospect of that position to which he had that day been elected by the unanimous voice of the brethren; they had worked together, hand in hand, in Freemasonry for the last eleven years. In fact they sat side by side for five years, but at last they were separated. They were initiated on the same evening, but in the course of events they had been for the last four years separated at the banquet table. Next Lodge night, however, he hoped to have Bro. Schadler again by his side, and that matters would go on swimmingly after that. He was very glad that the brethren had fixed upon their excellent Senior Warden as W.M. for the ensuing year. The admirable way in which he had filled the chair at the Lodge of Instruction was well known to all of them, and he felt assured Bro. Schadler would acquit himself with satisfaction when he assumed a similar position in the mother Lodge. This he was sure to do if he only received the same kindness, courtesy, and assistance as had been so generously extended to him during his year of office. The Worshipful Master elect, who was received with prolonged applause, said very sincerely indeed did he thank the brethren for the kind manner in which they had received the toast, and for the dignity they had conferred upon him that day. Although they had elected him as their President—their general—he wished them to bear in mind that no general, however efficient he might be, could succeed without the co-operation of his Officers and the rank and file; without them he was a powerless individual. What possible victory could Gen. Wolseley have gained in Egypt without the co-operation of his officers and men? He, therefore, asked them, one and all, to give him their support and co-operation, and he had no hesitation in saying that at the end of his year of office the Lodge of Prosperity would have lost none of its present lustre. The Worshipful Master, in proposing the health of the Past Masters, said they were highly honoured on the present occasion by having no less than seven of the veterans amongst them. Whoever occupied the chair had to look to them for counsel, assistance and advice during his year of office. He again acknowledged the advantage he had himself received through their kindness, and submitted the toast with a vast amount of pleasure for acceptance by the brethren. Bro. Chicken I.P.M. could only say that at all times he and the other Past Masters were ready to do their utmost to assist the W.M. in carrying out the duties of the Lodge; he trusted that the same harmony and thorough good feeling which now pervaded the Lodge would always continue to subsist. As long as he was a member, and able to attend their meetings, which he hoped might be for many years to come, he should always be happy to render whatever assistance he could, and to promote in every possible way the best interests of the Lodge. Brother Arnold also acknowledged the kindness with which they had received his name; and Brother Leins said it afforded him great pleasure to recal the fact that eleven years ago he initiated both their Worshipful Master and Bro. Schadler, who had that evening been elected to his distinguished position in the Lodge. Having had that privilege, he had watched their Masonic career with natural interest, and was highly gratified to see them rising, from time to time, until they attained the proud position which he himself once held. He assured them it would always be his endeavour to do his duty to the utmost of his ability, and trusted he might long be spared to continue those efforts in the same direction. Brother Daniel did not think there was any Lodge in London in which the Past Masters were more united than they were in the Lodge of Prosperity, and had been for many years past. He undertook to say they would all remain true and faithful Past Masters, and as long as they did so, they could do no other than go on and prosper. Brother Leins had referred to the gratification it had afforded him to see Bros. Roberts and Schadler rising on the Masonic ladder, and he was sure he and the rest of the P.M.'s all hoped to see their children attaining to the enviable position of W. Master of the Lodge, and be a credit and an ornament to it. Bro. Brown, in thanking them in a very few words for the kind manner in which they had received the toast, said he had watched the progress of their excellent Worshipful Master with great interest, inasmuch as it was his privilege to give Bro. Roberts his first collar. As to the good feeling existing between the Past Masters of the Lodge, he was very forcibly reminded of the words of the poem he learnt when a very little boy, written by Eliza Cook—

Held fast by silken link;
With lips that seek to wisely speak,
And brain that dares to think."

Such was the feeling existing between the Past Masters of this Lodge. It was four years since he had the pleasure of sitting in that chair, and he had never yet heard a single wry word uttered in the Lodge, though they had all "spoken their minds" unreservedly. During the past few weeks he had received very great kindnesses from the Past Masters of the Lodge, for which he took this opportunity of thanking them. He hoped it might be his privilege to be a Past Master of the Lodge for many years to come, and to be received by the brethren with the same kindness as on this and all former occasions. Brother Ferry also responded, and said he had returned from the Isle of Wight, which he had been visiting, to show respect and fraternal greeting to the Worshipful Master and Worshipful Master elect. The Worshipful Master wished now to propose a toast which was not on the list before them, and heartily he wished success to the Prosperity Chapter. With that toast he would associate the name of their valued Preceptor, Bro. Chicken, and informed the brethren that if they wanted to reach the climax of Freemasonry, they must join the Chapter formed in connection with their Lodge. Those who did not belong to it, must do so if they would secure a full knowledge of the Order, and if they did so they would meet some very able and agreeable companions. Brother Chicken M.E.Z. did not expect this toast, which had been brought forward to-night, he had therefore been taken somewhat by surprise; but, on behalf of the Chapter he returned them his heartfelt thanks. As the Prosperity Lodge had prospered, so it was the intention of the Companions that the Chapter should go forward. He must say that up to the present time, there had been a slight paucity of members, considering the number on the roll of their Lodge; and Master Masons ought to be informed that after all they had learned in the Craft they must go to the Chapter to gain the "grand secret" of Masonry. It was, in fact, the completion of all they had learned in the Craft. He was therefore surprised that more members of the Lodge had not come forward. The Chapter, so far as its working was concerned, had been a success; he hoped before his term of office expired they should double the number of its members. The W.M. next proposed the health of the Treasurer and Secretary, in doing which he regretted the unavoidable absence, through indisposition, of Bro. Goodwin, who had that evening been again elected to the post he so well filled as Treasurer of the Lodge, and congratulated Bro. Brown, their excellent Secretary, upon the new sphere of life he was accepting for himself, and in which the brethren desired for him every possible success. He acknowledged the valuable aid he had received from Bro. Brown on every occasion he required it, during his term of office, and he only hoped he would stick to London, when he might rest assured the brethren would stick to him. Bro. Brown said it was scarcely necessary for him to apologise for the absence of their valued Treasurer, who would have been present but for his old enemy. So far as he himself was concerned, he assured them the duties of Secretary had been a labour of love, and hoped they would be, for some time yet to come. The Worshipful Master had been good enough to allude to the fact that he intended to start in business on his own account; he could only say he hoped it might turn out successfully. He hinted just now that during the past fortnight or three weeks he had received great kindness from the members of this Lodge. He had not yet decided upon what particular part of the town he should settle in, but hoped before next Lodge night he should have definitely fixed his new sphere of work. If it was their pleasure that he should continue as their Secretary, and it did not interfere with him in his business, he should be very happy to retain the confidence that had hitherto been reposed in him. It was an office he was very proud of; indeed, he had always considered the office of Secretary was second to none in the Craft. It was an honourable office, particularly for so comparatively young a Mason to hold. As the adviser of the Worshipful Master, and to whom the members could come in any time of difficulty or anxiety, both Masonically and privately, at all times of the day, it was an office which involved a considerable amount of responsibility; but the brethren might rest assured that in the future they would not have such frequent opportunities of seeing him as they had had hitherto. The little ability he possessed, and the time he had at his disposal, would be gladly devoted to the interests of the Lodge of Prosperity; but directly he found the duties interfered with his business, he should relinquish the office, as a man ought to do. Several other toasts were honoured, and the Tyler's closed the proceedings at a seasonable hour. During the evening some capital songs were sung, and the harmony of the gathering was considerably enhanced by some pleasing airs played on the zither by Bro. Herold, which were received with much appreciation.

CITY OF WESTMINSTER LODGE, No. 1563.

A MEETING was held on Thursday, 22nd ult., at the Regent Masonic Hall (Café Royal), Regent-street, W. The Lodge-room was draped, in testimony of respect to the late Secretary Brother Scott. Present—Bros. Hammond W.M., Eastgate S.W., Jones J.W., Shand P.M. Treasurer and Secretary pro tem, Lee S.D., Smith J.D., Hoare Organist, Hill I.G., Waugh I.P.M., Swallow P.M. W.S., White P.M., Cottebrune P.G.P., Esdell, Cox, Patch, Stevens, and others. Visitors—Bros. Dr. Ramsay P.M. 259 P.G.S.W. Middlesex, McCall S.W. 108, Hammond S.D. 1765, Dudley Rolls P.M. 12, Raf P.M. 12, Tinney 1319, Collens S.W. 766, and others (19 in all). Bros. Antoine and Wilson were duly passed to degree of F.C. A ballot, taken for Messrs. Watts and Harrington, proved unanimous, and those gentlemen were duly initiated. A vote of condolence was agreed to be sent to the relatives of the late Secretary of the Lodge. A P.M. of the Lodge resigned membership, and after routine work, the brethren dined, and the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured, the speeches being interspersed with music. The next Lodge meeting will be held on the fourth Thursday in April.

ARNOLD LODGE, No. 1799.

THE Brethren of this Lodge were honoured, at their monthly meeting, at Walton-on-the-Naze, on 20th ult., by a visit from the D.P.G.M. W. Bro. Fred. A. Philbrick, Q.C., P.G.D., who witnessed the excellent working of the W.M. W. Bro. C. Hempson, and also took part in it himself. At the close of the business, a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Philbrick for his kindness in attending, and he was unanimously elected an honorary member of the Lodge. The brethren subsequently adjourned to the festive board, where several Masonic toasts were duly honoured. In proposing the health of the R.W.P.G.M. and the P.G. Officers, present and past, the W.M. took occasion to congratulate the brethren upon having a new P.G.M. to preside over them. W. Bro. Philbrick, whose name was coupled with the toast, responded, and stated that the Province was fortunate in having such a P.G.M. as Lord Brooke to preside over them. Brother Philbrick also spoke of the gratification both H.R.H. the Duke of Albany and Lord Brooke had felt at the great success of the late Installation Meeting at Colchester. Some other toasts were given, and the meeting was a very pleasant one. Among the visitors present on the occasion were W. Bros. Thos. J. Ralling P.M. and Secretary 51 P.G. Secretary, Alfred Welch P.M. 51 P.P.G.J.W., W. P. Lewis P.M. 51 P.P.G.D., and R. Clowes W.M. 650. There was a good muster of the members of the Lodge, including W. Bros. C. Hempson P.G.A.D.C. W.M., E. Dorling P.M. P.P.G. Sec. Suffolk, Dr. Welham Treasurer, Bros. A. G. Rickarby S.W., R. T. Daniell S.W., R. H. Scott Sec., W. R. Bloom I.G., F. Wallis, J. T. Salmon, E. Osmond, P. B. Harris, C. Randall, C. Young, R. Womack, W. E. Turner, T. C. Riddlesdale, &c. &c.

ANALYSIS OF THE SUBSCRIPTION LIST OF THE R.M.B.I.

ONCE more it devolves upon us to give some account of the Festival of Wednesday, 28th ult., when the friends and supporters of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution assembled in force in the Great Hall of Freemasons' Tavern, under the genial auspices of General Brownrigg, and manifested the extent of their interest in the youngest of our three central Masonic Charities by raising amongst them a sum of, in round figures, £13,047, a sum which in the circumstances of the day, must satisfy even the most exigent supporters of the Institution. The times are not quite what they were when His Royal Highness Albert Edward Prince of Wales was solemnly installed as Grand Master in the presence of some thousands of Craftsmen gathered from all parts of England in order to do honour to their illustrious Chief. Then, and for a year or two afterwards, the condition of the country was most prosperous. There were no wars, or even rumours of war, to disturb the equanimity of the commercial world. Ireland was peaceful, trade flourished, and the earth yielded of her products a fair average crop. Now the picture is the reverse of comforting. Our trade and commerce have not yet wholly recovered from a prolonged period of depression. Peace prevails, it is true, but the political atmosphere has been again and again disturbed, and the public confidence in its maintenance is not as assured as we could wish. Moreover, there has been a succession of bad harvests almost unexampled in our time, and the present agricultural outlook is most depressing. Yet, in spite of these unfortunate surroundings, the opening Festival of the current year will compare favourably with the best of those that have gone before. At any time a total of over £13,000 must be considered a most gratifying result, but when achieved in the face of political, commercial, and agricultural disturbance, it is little less than marvellous. All honour, then, to the 272 Stewards who, with General Brownrigg as their leader, and Brother James Terry as chief of the Staff, have been so gloriously successful.

As has happened on previous occasions the Metropolitan Lodges have raised considerably more than one-half of the total amount, though the difference in respect of number as between their representatives and those of the Provincial Lodges is scarcely worth noticing. One hundred and twenty Lodges, or more than one-third of the total number, sent up among them one hundred and twenty-six Stewards, seven R.A. Chapters were represented by as many Companions, and there were three Stewards unattached, and one acting for the Order of the Red Cross of Rome and Constantine, the whole London contingent mustering together one hundred and thirty-seven, and the aggregate of their subscriptions being, as nearly as possible, £7,647. The honour of having accumulated the largest list belongs to a well-known Preceptor, Bro. D. Moss, who, as Steward for the Star Lodge, No. 1275, Greenwich, handed in no less than £343 6s. A peculiarity about this achievement is, that Bro. Moss's list is composed entirely of sums raised by weekly subscriptions of one shilling, each contributing Brother becoming in due time a Life Governor or Life Subscriber of the Charity. The same description applies to the list of Bro. Adolphus Clark, Steward for the Upton Lodge, No. 1227, amounting to £178 10s, and Bro. James C. Hayes, representing the Plucknett Lodge, No. 1708, East End Finchley, who figures for £63, while Bro. R. F. Ould, of the Merchant Navy Lodge, No. 781, raised a part of his £106 10s by the same system. This shows what can be done by the various Lodge Benevolent Associations we hear of from time to time, and how easy it is for any brother to enrol himself as a Life supporter of one or all of our Institutions. Bro. the Rev. C. Darby Reade, of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1642, Notting Hill, stands second among the London Stewards, with a total of £189 2s, and is closely followed by Bro. Clark of No. 1227, as already mentioned, with £178 10s. Next in order is Bro. Festa, W.M. of the Montague Guest Lodge, No. 1900, whose total is £160, while, if his fellow representative's (Bro. Gardener's) list of forty guineas is added to this. the Lodge they jointly represented may justly claim to be second in point of amount, their two lists together reaching £202. The Eccleston, No. 1624, is down for £153 1s, per Bro. J. G. Fisher, the Clerkenwell, No. 1964, of last year's creation, per Bro. T. Hastings Miller, and the Strand Lodge, No. 1987, only consecrated a few weeks since, per Bro. James Willing jun., being close up with £150 3s and £150 respectively. Bro. James S. Fraser, on behalf of Sincerity, No. 174, follows with £148, and then the Cripplegate, No. 1613, Bro. W. Medwin, with £143 17s, the Domatic, No. 177, per Bro. Herbage as Steward, with £140 1s. The Kilburn, No. 1608, per Bro. F. J. Baker, figures for £132 6s, the Islington Chapter, No. 1471, per Comp. James Terry, for £125 15s, and Prosperity Lodge, No. 65, per Bro. J. Roberts, for £125. West Smithfield, No. 1623, contributes, by the hands of H. J. Lardner, £114 8s 6d, Temperance, No. 169, through Bro. George L. Moore, £108 8s, the Merchant Navy, No. 781, already alluded to, £106 10s, and the Zetland, No. 511, £106 6s, the honour of raising this being jointly shared by Bros. G. Read and Asher Barfield. The Marquis of Ripon, No. 1489, per Bro. W. Stephens, and the Brixton, No. 1949, by the medium of Bro. H. B. Marshall, C.C., figure each of them for a hundred guineas, while the Royal Jubilee Lodge, No. 72, contributes, by the hands of Bro. F. Thurston, £100. The Chairman, General Brownrigg, C.B., as representing Friends in Council, No. 1383, figures for £99 14s, while as Steward for his own Province, his list amounts to £146. Thus the Institution is indebted to the exertions of the Chairman for an addition to its funds of not far short of £250, the major part being rightly entered under the Province to which he belongs. There are, likewise, several good lists ranging from £80 to £90 each, and the older Lodges, as well as some of the younger, are fairly represented. But just as there are many which make a point of being regularly represented, so also are there others which as invariably hold aloof.

Turning to the Provinces, we find they sent up 135 Stewards, or within two of London, but the aggregate of their lists is by no means so considerable. This, however, is no doubt to be explained by local circumstances, or the circumstances of the moment, and as London has taken the lead in this instance, so the Provinces may succeed in wresting it from her at the Festival in May or June next, or, it may be, at both Festivals. But if the total is not as large as we have seen it on former occasions, it is very fairly distributed, thirty-two out of the forty-one Provinces, or, as nearly as possible, four-fifths, having sent up representatives. The three districts which can boast of Lodges, but have no local organisation, are absentees, as they generally are; but we cannot in reason expect much from the five Lodges in the Channel Islands, and the three Isle of Man Lodges, which are too remote, though the former have occasionally done some service. Bedfordshire, however, with its five Lodges, appears to concern itself but little about our Institutions. It contributed less than £40 at the Boys' Festival in 1879, and not quite £50 at that of the Girls' School the year following, but it has given nothing whatever to the Benevolent at its last nine anniversaries. The absentee Provinces are Cambridgeshire (four Lodges), which, since the beginning of 1875, has given £46 among our three Institutions and Herefordshire, also with four Lodges, gave £10 10s to the Girls' School in 1878, and £65 5s to the Benevolent two years previously; Cumberland and Westmoreland (19 Lodges), Lincolnshire (21 Lodges), Monmouthshire (8 Lodges), Northumberland (21 Lodges), both Divisions of South Wales, the one having 15, and the other 9 Lodges, and Jersey (7 Lodges). All these, however, have figured more or less frequently, though we would take the liberty of suggesting that Northumberland, with its great industrial centre, Newcastle, might be oftener found in the list of contributing Provinces. It has done well for the Boys' School certainly, but has not shown quite as much for the other Charities.

EPPS'S (GRATEFUL COMFORTING) COCOA.

Taken alphabetically, Berks and Bucks, with its twenty-one Lodges, heads the list of the Provinces that were represented, and its four Stewards, three acting for as many Berks Lodges, and one for a Bucks Lodge, raising amongst them the sum of £109 12s 6d. Last year it gave over £243 to the Benevolent, nearly £200 to the Girls' School, and about £177 to the Boys' School, and was only once among the non-contributing Provinces during the Septennial Period 1875-81. Bristol has eight Lodges, and her contribution of £216 18s is a most welcome one. Cheshire, with its thirty nine Lodges, sent up two Stewards, the total of whose lists amounts only to £37 16s, but as we have said before, there is a very flourishing Educational Institution supported by it, which for many years has been doing good service, and it would be too much, therefore, to expect that it should be as liberal in its subscriptions to the central Charities as if it had no local Charity of its own. However, it raised for them over £422 last year, of which £321 found its way into the Girls' School Treasury. The sum of forty guineas, by the representative of St. Andrew's, No. 1151, Tywardreath, does duty for Cornwall, with its twenty-eight Lodges, but every now and then this remote county puts on a spurt, by which one of the Institutions benefits very considerably. We may look, therefore, to the county which gives the title of Duke to the Heir Apparent being sooner or later represented in a manner worthy of its known reputation. Derbyshire, twenty Lodges, sends up £50; but, as it gave last year £53 11s to the Benevolent, £459 16s to the Girls' School, and £176 14s 6d to the Boys' School, or in all £690 1s 6d, and was represented at seventeen out of the twenty-one Festivals during 1875-81, we cannot be otherwise than pleased to find it among the contributories on this occasion. Devonshire, fifty Lodges, raised, in round figures, some £2,660 during 1875-81, having been only thrice absent from the lists in that period. Last year it gave £565, and now it figures for £74 11s, which, as it has its own local Charity Organisation, is by no means to be contemned. Dorsetshire, with thirteen Lodges, contributes a round £100. Last year it gave to each of the Institutions, and in 1875-81, played a very conspicuous part in its support of our Charities, while Durham (twenty-eight Lodges) gives £63 11s. having done something at each of last year's Festivals, and raised over £728 for "Our Boys" in 1881, when its chief, the Marquis of Londonderry, presided at the Festival of that Institution.

A home county—Essex—with its twenty Lodges, next claims our attention. But little more than a month since it had placed over it a new ruler, in the person of Lord Brooke, M.P., and with a view, it may be, to signalising this event, five of its Lodges, by the medium of as many brethren, have together contributed £235 4s 6d, or but little short of the £244 10s it raised for the Boys' School last summer. It had previously contributed £93 10s to the R.M.B.I., and £15 15s to the Girls' School, while, during the period 1875-81 it was only unrepresented on three occasions. Last year Gloucestershire, which has but fourteen Lodges all told, raised £115 10s for the R.M.B.I., £137 11s for the R.M.I.G., and £295 1s for the R.M.I.B., or during the year a fraction over £548. In 1881, it gave the Benevolent £263 11s, "Our Girls" £1000, and "Our Boys" £283 10s, or, together, over £1,547, while in 1880 its contributions reached £680; in 1879 £840; in 1878 £727 9s; and in 1877 £589, "Our Boys" having been favoured to the extent of £42 in 1875, and £276 14s in 1876. Totalling them up, we have contributions from this county amounting, during the last eight years, to £5,251, and now it has commenced the current year with an aggregate, from six Stewards acting on its behalf, of £213 3s, which, added to the former sum, gives the excellent average per Lodge of about £397 10s. Well done, Gloucestershire! Hants and the Isle of Wight, thirty-eight Lodges, is another stronghold of Freemasonry, which shines conspicuously on these occasions. It has only been twice absent from the Festivals it has been our privilege to record, and has raised for the Benevolent £1,566 5s 6d, for the Girls' School £861 13s 6d, and for the Boys' School £2,168 6s 6d or altogether in the eight years £4,596 5s 6d. It now gives, by the medium of three Stewards, acting for as many Lodges, the sum of £149 16s. In ordinary circumstances, we should say this was but a small amount for so large a Province, but doubtless it is reserving its strength for the Festival of the Girls' School on the 9th May next, when its Provincial Grand Master, R.W. Bro. W. W. B. Beach, will take the chair. When he did so in 1877 for "Our Boys" it raised over £624, and we may look to see this at least equalled at the Festival in question.

"Little Herts," another Home County, now boasts its round dozen of Lodges, and worthily maintained its reputation on Wednesday, when six Stewards, representing five Lodges and the Chapter attached to one of them, raised £233 4s. Last year it contributed £1,049 14s 6d among our Charities, the Benevolent securing £533 14s out of it, or rather more than the half. As Brother Terry is connected with the Province, we are not surprised at his obtaining the chief support, though all have fared well, the Benevolent having received £1,960 12s 6d in 1875-81, and the Girls' and Boys' Schools £552 6s 6d and £720 1s respectively during the same period. It has been unrepresented at only one out of twenty-five Anniversaries. Kent, a third Home County, like Hants and the Isle of Wight, is doubtless very properly reserving its strength for its particular Festival, that of the Boys' School in June, when its highly popular chief, Viscount Holmesdale, will preside. This will explain why, though boasting forty-nine Lodges, its contributions on Wednesday last reached only £148 5s with one list still to be delivered. However, last year it raised £975 19s for the Charities, and in 1875-81, £7,723 10s 6d, or in the eight years only a few shillings short of £8,700.

East Lancashire, in point of numbers, is our strongest Province, its Lodges mustering to the strength of ninety-two. On this occasion its sixteen Stewards, so far as their lists have been received, figure for £212 1s 6d. Last year it raised within sixpence of £772, of which the Benevolent managed to secure nearly £415. In 1875-81 it gave to the same Institution £4,179 1s, of which £3,542 was contributed at the Festival in 1879, when R.W. Bro. Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie P.G.M. presided. During the same period the Girls' School has benefited to the extent of £762 0s 6d and the Boys' School to £1,338. These figures give an aggregate of £7,263 2s 6d. Its neighbour, West Lancashire, with its eighty-one Lodges, shows a fair total likewise—in round figures over £1,000 more. Its eleven representatives contributed among them on this occasion £244 15s. Last year its figures reached £689 12s and in 1875-81, £7,307 19s 6d. These amounts give, as the general result, a total of subscriptions reaching to £8,242 6s 6d. Leicestershire and Rutland, which has but ten Lodges, by the hands of its Past Prov. G. Master, R.W. Bro. Kelly, contributes a useful £36 15s. It gave last year to the Benevolent Institution £152 15s, and to "Our Boys" £89 5s, or together £242. Its subscriptions in 1875-81 stand thus: to the Benevolent £250 18s; to the Girls' School £535 12s; and to the Boys' School £831 6s 6d: total up to last Wednesday £1,896 11s 6d.

A fourth home county next claims our attention, namely, Middlesex, which, as last year, has thirty two Lodges on its roll. This time it sent up ten Stewards, and the receipts from eight of them amount to £356 8s 6d. Last year it raised £1,212 10s, namely, for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution £408 2s, for the Girls' School £408 6s 6d, and for the sister Institution at Wood Green £396 1s 6d. In 1875-81 it subscribed £2,063 5s to the R.M.B.I., £3,293 3s 9d to the R.M.I.G., and £2,034 8s to the R.M.I.B. Thus the total for the last eight years, namely, £8,959 15s 9d has now reached within £40 and a fraction the handsome sum of £9,000.

In these days of rapid communication the transition from Middlesex to East Anglia is the work of a few moments only, and we find one of the sixteen Lodges located in Norfolk, the county of the bloater and the turkey, contributing towards the necessities of our aged brethren and widows a modest thirty guineas. However, in 1882, it raised altogether a little over £201, of which rather more than half found its way into the coffers of the Girls' School. In 1875-81 its subscriptions amounted to £1,510 16s, namely, £448 10s to the Benevolent, £429 8s to the Girls', and £632 18s to the Boys'. Norths and Hunts, ten Lodges, has done capitally, the list handed in by its representative, Bro. R. H. Griffin, realising £221 8s. Though not as often represented as some other Provinces, it does well at times, especially when it is a question of supporting the Institution of which Bro. Terry, one of its Past Provincial Grand Officers, is the Secretary. Nottinghamshire has thirteen Lodges, and its representative, Bro. S. G. Gilbert figures for £190. Like Norths and Hunts, it "comes down with the dust" whenever it sends up representatives. Oxfordshire, with four Stewards, acting for four out of its eleven Lodges, has given on this occasion just a little over £100. Last year it subscribed £176 18s to the Benevolent, £149 2s for the Girls', and £78 18s 6d for the Boys', or, in all, £404 18s 6d. In 1875-81 it raised £2,176 2s 6d, making a total to date of over £2,581. We submit this especially to the notice of the brethren in Cambridgeshire. The twenty-four Lodges of the Earl of Carnarvon's Province of Somersetshire give in this instance fifty Guineas. Last year it helped "Our Boys" to the extent of £118 13s, but in 1875-81 the Benevolent received from it £525 3s, the Girls' School £1,041 12s; and the Boys' £1,033 2s, total for the Septennial period £2,599 17s, and to date £2,771. Staffordshire, with twenty-six Lodges, figures for £57 15s, per Bro. T. Mount Humphries, of the Walsall Lodge, No. 539; but in 1882 it subscribed £616 17s 6d, of which the Schools received £289 16s (Girls') and £300 16s 6d (Boys'), the modest balance of £26s 5s being handed over to the Benevolent. During 1875-81, it contributed to the Benevolent £751 2s, to the Girls' £1,346 17s, and to the Boys' £985 8s, making in all for that period £3,083 7s, and up to Wednesday last within sixpence of £3,758. Suffolk, with twenty-one Lodges, gives as the result of two out of its three Stewards' lists £166 2s 6d. Its contributions in 1882 amounted to £311 15s, for 1875-81 to £1,991 9s 6d, making a total to date of close on £2,480. This speaks well for the influence of its popular Prov. Grand Master Lord Waveney, and his Deputy Bro. Rev. C. J. Martyn Past Grand Chaplain.

The remaining home county, Surrey, as the Chairman's Province, very properly takes the lead among the Provinces, its total of £905 14s representing somewhat over one-sixth of the whole contributed by the non-metropolitan section of the Craft. Including General Brownrigg and a Steward for one of its Chapters (No. 1395), it sent up twenty-two Stewards, so that twenty of its twenty-six Lodges were directly represented, and doubtless all lent a hand in order to swell the general total. Even the Arnold Lodge, No. 1981, though only consecrated in December last, contributed a modest twenty guineas. In 1882 it raised £494 15s, of which the Girls' received not far short of one-half. If we add to these figures £1,783 2s 6d, the sum for 1875-81, we arrive at a total for the last twenty-five Festivals of close on £3,184. Surrey has good reason to be proud of its latest achievement of Wednesday, as well as of the regularity of the support it gives to our three Charities.

It is but a single step from Surrey into the neighbouring County of Sussex, and there we find the honour of the Province well sustained; the Derwent Lodge, No. 40, Hastings, per Brother Charles A. Duke, and the Royal York, No. 315, Brighton, per Brother W. H. Gibson, each contributing a hundred guineas, or together £210. In 1882 it contributed £162 9s to the R.M.B.I., £577 10s to the R.M.I.G., and £179 11s to the R.M.I.B., or together £919 10s. In 1881 it raised for the three Festivals in the order of their occurrence, £175 1s, £105, and £771 15s, the last being in honour of the Boys' School, held in the Pavilion, Brighton, the result for the year being £1,051 16s. It has only missed two of the last twenty-five Festivals, namely, the Benevolent in 1875, and that of the Girls' School in 1876, while its total contributions since 1875 inclusive, to date, amount to £4,878 16s. Warwickshire has thirty Lodges, of which two, both hailing from Birmingham, have given between them £57 15s. Last year it raised for "Our Girls" £810 10s, and for "Our Boys" £187 19s, or together £998 9s. For 1875-81 it raised £4,965 15s, of which £3,215 12s 6d was for the Boys' School; total to date, in round figures, £6,022. Wiltshire, though it has but ten Lodges, is a very active Province, and contributes, per Brother Surgeon-General T. Ringer £50 1s. In 1881 it raised £307 2s, and in 1875-81 £2,001 2s, or altogether £2,358 5s, giving an average of close on £236 per Lodge. Worcestershire, with eleven Lodges, or but one in excess of the preceding Province, sends up £218 13s, the senior Kidderminster and junior Worcester Lodges, with the Lodge at Stourbridge, dividing the credit among them. In 1882 it figured for £387 9s, the chief recipient being the Benevolent and the Boys' School. In 1875-81 it raised £1,254 15s, making a grand total to date of £1,860 17s, all of which has been subscribed since January 1879.

There remain only North Wales and Salop and the two Yorkshire Provinces in order to render our survey complete. For the first named a Chapter does duty, and the amount of its list is £52 6s, but last year its twenty-seven Lodges gave £537 0s 6d, of which the Girls' School, in May, received £352 10s. These, with the £1,587 1s 6d raised in 1875-81, make a total of some shillings in excess of £2,076. North and East Yorkshire, with twenty-seven Lodges, gives £29 13s. Last year it subscribed £645 2s, and in 1875-81 £1,713 4s, making to date within a shilling of £2,388. Its great achievement was in 1880, when it supported Right Worshipful Bro. the Earl of Zetland, its Prov. Grand Master, with the very handsome total of £855 4s. West Yorkshire, sixty-six Lodges, has added to its former lists of subscriptions and donations the sum of £450, the Stewards acting on its behalf being fifteen in number. In 1875-81, it subscribed to the Benevolent £6,426 15s, to "Our Girls," £4,748 13s, and to "Our Boys" £3,461 9s, or together £14,636 17s. In 1882 it added to this total £1,635 5s, making in all, for the eight years, £16,272 2s. Its present contribution of £450 raises this still higher, to £16,722 2s, making an average per Festival of little short of £670. We will not mar the effect of these splendid figures by offering any comment whatever. They serve to emphasise our sketch of the work done more pointedly than any remarks of ours could possibly do.

SOCIALITY AND BENEVOLENCE.

THE great truths promulgated by our Ancient and Honourable Institution are those which give the most unstrained liberty, without licence, the greatest freedom for the exercise of thought and action, in the grand effort to render ourselves "more extensively useful to our fellow creatures." No other society on the face of the earth practises to so eminent a degree the attributes of peace and goodwill, or exemplifies with such fidelity the splendid precepts of human kindness and beneficence. The man whose aspirations to enrol himself under the banner of our Order are rightly founded is impelled to them by a purity of motives which is nearly allied to the holy and divine. He seeks to make no capital by the enterprise, either personal or pecuniary, but is actuated simply and solely by impulses of a social and benevolent character. Upon the first branch of the subject, then, let a word be spoken upon the effective means which Freemasonry supplies of bringing into social contact men of various grades, and in many walks of life, who, but for its influence and the kindling of sentiments of amenity and good fellowship, would have remained altogether and for ever unknown to each other. A man when he enters Freemasonry places his foot upon the rungs of that ladder by which he gains access to a new and loftier social status. His future friends and acquaintances are of the whole Brotherhood of man: his companions and co-operators in the Craft are men of marked intelligence, culture and refinement, and, better still, who are bound together by indissoluble ties of brotherly love, relief and truth. There is a very common and prevalent idea amongst the uninitiated that the doors of Freemasonry are flung wide open, and that all men are attracted to it by the invitation hung over its portals of "Come, and welcome." In some measure, this is true, for Freemasonry is as free as the air we breathe, or the water we drink, and all men of good repute are hailed as brethren. But the popular impression that candidates for admission to our privileges and mysteries are pressed and persuaded to join the ranks is erroneous and misleading. There is no such principle recognised by the Craft as to enlist the adherence of men by recommendation, or to draw in from the outer world any but those who can boldly come and assert that they do so of their own free will and accord, irrespective of any mercenary or other unworthy motives. On the contrary, there has ever been a disposition on the part of Masons to enforce caution, and to temper enthusiasm on the part of those who express an ardent wish to participate in the advantages peculiar to the Fraternity. The reason of this is obvious to all who are within the pale, and who are imbued with a laudable desire for the promotion of an Order which has outlived centuries of opposition, and yet maintained its sublimity and unapproachable grandeur amongst all the institutions of the world. Within the space of time covered by even our authentic records of the Order, kings have risen and fallen, the destinies of nations have been sealed, and even religions have changed; and yet, through all these shifting scenes and altered circumstances, Freemasonry stands erect and alone in her statuesque sublimity, with lustre undimmed and integrity untarnished, shedding abroad her inestimable benefits upon all who come within her benign influence. Freemasonry now, as it ever did, exercises a powerful and gracious attraction over men of thought and kindly disposition to mingle together for the promotion of those acts and sentiments which enter so largely into the "brighter side" of life. To cheer a brother on in his worthy enterprise, to sympathise and sustain him in failure; to soothe him in affliction or distress; and to rejoice with him when the "good time" has really come—these are some of the leading principles which are embodied in the tenets of the Craft, and which, as a body, Masons take a pleasure in putting into practice. Moreover, in company with these, there are peculiar traits of character which, from the natural outcome of Freemasonry, bind men together in the closest ties of genuine brotherly love; which makes them take a personal interest in each other's affairs, and in their everyday experience. Masons can, without scruple or diffidence, confide to each other matters which would be reticently withheld from all else in the world, knowing that all lawful secrets are safe in the sacred repository of a brother's breast. To any one, therefore, in worry or perplexity, it is a relief to know that near at hand there are trusty hearts who will share his temporary anxiety, and ameliorate his difficulties, who will take an active heart and brain interest in setting matters right again, and so dissipating the clouds of doubt and despondency which had gathered so gloomily overhead. And when there is a universal gleam of sunshine—when the path of life is bright with success, the result of work well and nobly done—who so ready to swell the chorus of joyful acclamation as those who are bound together by the five points of fellowship? Thus, when friends meet, either for substantial work "upon the chequered floor" or at the festivities which form its fitting afterpart, there is a hearty glow of amenity and friendliness all round such as is to be discovered in the atmosphere of no other society, from the very fact that its festivities are brimful of genuine, downright goodfellowship, engendered by the teachings of the Order, and are pervaded by a thorough unity of spirit of purpose, springing from the loftiest and purest motives. Thus it is that men feel themselves "at home" in their Lodges more thoroughly than anywhere else in the world, save and excepting their own domestic circle. Even there the influence of Masonry is exercised and felt, for true Masons cannot be selfish, or monopolise the life-giving impulses which are stirred into action by the precepts taught in Lodge. They are bound to carry home to wife and child, and to relative and friend, the calm and elevating influences which are born of the labours in which they have been employed; and thus, in a domestic as well as a social sense, the Craft is a marvellous factor of human happiness and enjoyment. The benevolent aspects of the Craft are known to, and acknowledged by, all who have any knowledge of the subject at all. But there is a peculiar width and comprehensiveness about Masonic charity which none can fathom except those who have carefully watched its inner working amongst the brethren of the Order; nor even then can its extent be approximately gauged. The kindly sympathies, the compassionate acts of men who "do good by stealth" and would "blush to find it fame," can never be told; and it is merely upon the public and avowed munificence of the Craft that the world can form an opinion. And even here Masons have much of which to be justly very proud, for the Institutions of which we boast are amongst the grandest and best of their kind in the universe, and the manner in which they are supported and managed compares favourably with any of the splendid monuments of philanthropy and benevolence of which happily in this country we possess so large a number. Both personally, therefore, and publicly, the sublime Order of which we rejoice to be members is pursuing a work upon which even an envious world can but look with admiration. The former, as we have said, cannot be estimated, for who can tell what acts of generosity and true brotherly charity are exercised by men towards their poorer fellows who, from unforeseen circumstances of calamity and misfortune, have been reduced to the lowest depths of poverty and distress? Every now and then a case in point finds its way to the surface, just as a diamond might do amidst the soil, or a nugget amongst the quartz, under the hands of a digger; but it is not always so. We believe there is a vast amount of charity and timely help administered round and about us every day which can never be, nor is it intended to be, known, and which has its reward only in the Grand Lodge above. It is, however, a comfort and a satisfaction to all who belong to such an organisation to know and feel how vast a work of human love and sympathy is being carried on, and that each in his own sphere has the opportunity of adding to the happiness of others, and thus fulfilling the trust accepted when the privileges and responsibilities of the Craft were conferred upon them.

The March meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held last Saturday, at Freemasons' Hall. The brethren present were Bros. Raynham W. Stewart (in the chair), John L. Mather, A. J. Duff-Filer, Joyce Murray, C. F. Matier, George Cooper, H. H. Welch, Rev. Richard Morris, D.D. (Head Master), H. Massey, Donald M. Dewar, James Moon, A. F. Godson, C. H. Webb, A. E. Gladwell, F. Adlard, H. Venn, C. F. Hogard, E. Baxter, W. Maple, G. P. Gillard, H. S. Goodall, and F. Binckes (Secretary). There was only one petition before the Committee, and after examination and consideration it was deferred for further enquiry. Bro. Binckes reported that in accordance with the resolution come to at the last meeting £1,000 had been invested in India Four per Cent. Debenture Stock. The Committee then adjourned.

Bro. Horace B. Marshall, C.C., has been presented with a testimonial, by several of his employés, on the occasion of his making them associates of the Young Men's Christian Association, and in recognition of the great interest he has always taken in their welfare. After warmly thanking them, Bro. Marshall said he had been the recipient of many testimonials, but none had given him greater pleasure than this, as it afforded proof that there was something more than the mere question of capital and labour existing between himself and his employés.

On Wednesday evening the members of the Prosperity Lodge, No. 65, held their audit meeting, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham Street, under the presidency of Brother J. Roberts. A very satisfactory account of the Lodge was reported. The installation of Bro. G. Schadler as W.M. will take place at the Guildhall Tavern, on Thursday, the 22nd inst.

THE NEW GRAND TREASURER.

AS will be seen from our report elsewhere of Wednesday's meeting, the members of Grand Lodge, in the exercise of their undoubted right, elected a new Grand Treasurer in the person of Brother J. Derby Allcroft, and have thus set aside the rule they have hitherto imposed on themselves of annually re-electing a brother who has been once chosen to fill that high office. We trust our readers will not fall into the error of assuming that Grand Lodge has adopted this change of policy from any lack of respect for Brother Colonel Creaton, or any feeling of dissatisfaction with the very able services he has rendered as Grand Treasurer. Colonel Creaton's name is synonymous among Craftsmen with energy and ability and the strictest sense of duty. During his three years' tenure of the Grand Treasurership he earned for himself the respect of brethren of every rank, and we are convinced that it is only from a feeling of justice to other distinguished Craftsmen that Colonel Creaton's claims to re-election have in this instance been overlooked, and a new Grand Treasurer chosen in his stead. It must be remembered that, besides that of Grand Master, this is the only office in G.L. in filling which the members of Grand Lodge have any voice. There must necessarily be many worthy aspirants for so rare a distinction, and the regular re-election of the same brother is tantamount to the regular exclusion of all others from the attainment of an office which the Constitutions have placed within their reach. As for Colonel Creaton's successor, Brother J. Derby Allcroft, whom we heartily congratulate on his election, he is a Mason of long standing, and has passed the chair of two Lodges. He is well known for his support of our Institutions, and as an ex-member of Parliament, and the Treasurer of Christ's Hospital, is both socially and by experience well qualified for the post. We wish him success in his new duties.

Obituary.

BRO. W. G. HARRISON, Q.C., G. SENION DEACON.

THE news of the unexpected death of Bro. W. G. Harrison, one of the G. Senior Deacons of England, and a distinguished member of the legal profession, will be received with the most poignant regret, not only among his brethren of the mystic tie, but likewise by his fellow barristers. Bro. Harrison, who died on Monday, at the comparatively early age of fifty-six, was initiated in the Middlesex Lodge, No. 143, in 1865, and became its W.M. in 1872. He was also a joining member and P.M. of the Lodge No. 631, Taplow, Bucks, and one of the founders of the Parthenon Lodge, No. 1826, Egham, Surrey. He was exalted in the Mount Moriah Chapter, No. 9, was appointed its Scribe E. in 1873, and filled the office of M.E.Z. in the years 1876, 1877. He was perfected in St. George's Chapter of Rose Croix in 1874, and was appointed its M.W.S. last year, and in 1877 received the 30° in the A. and A. Rite. Last year our M.W. Grand Master appointed him a Grand Senior Deacon, and a few days later he was invested Grand 1st Assist. Sojourner in the Supreme Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons. Of his standing and reputation as a barrister we may gather some idea from the remarks made by Mr. Justice Stephen in the Court of Queen's Bench on Wednesday. "I wish to say a word," said his lordship, "upon a subject which has very deeply affected me, and, I have no doubt, many other members of the profession—I mean the death of Mr. W. G. Harrison. I have known him personally for probably a longer time than almost any other member, either of the Bench or of the Bar. He was a friend of not much less than forty years' standing. I do not think that a more honourable or a more amiable man ever practised in these courts. He possessed very apt abilities, and they were set off rather, perhaps, than diminished by some harmless eccentricities which endeared him to those who knew him. The profession has sustained a great loss by his death, which was as unexpected as it was sad."

MASONRY AND TEMPERANCE.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—As you have invited opinions on the subject of Temperance in Masonry, I should just like to say that the matter has elicited some little comment in my own Lodge, with the result that a majority of the brethren consider the innovation undesirable. There is as much individual liberty now as there ever could be in the matter of drinks; and to introduce the question of total abstinence at all in our Masonic gatherings is to impute excess, which does not exist in our Lodges. I very much question if there is as much liberty allowed by the "hydropots" to others, as moderate and sensible men are invariably found to extend to them. I am certain that I have sat by men who, because they were teetotallers, hold themselves up with a satisfied complacency perfectly despicable, as if, forsooth, there was any credit in being a teetotaller. A man abstains from spirits or malt either because they do not agree with his constitution, or because he wishes to conquer a habit which might have been gaining too firm a hold of him. Such an individual is to be commended by all right thinking persons; and no one, I am sure, would be found to poke fun at such a man for his courage and common sense. But in very many cases, when an old toper takes the pledge, and fixes a shred of blue ribbon in his button hole, he struts about in his new-born sobriety as though he were suddenly transfigured—a walking pattern for all others to copy. Not only so, but because he has been so "mercifully preserved," and "brought to his right mind," he must insist upon others following his example, under the penalty, if they do not, of incurring displeasure, and his opinion that they are so sunken in iniquity as to be irreclaimable. Out upon such canting humbugs. I am afraid, if this principle is once admitted into our Lodges, there may be a parade of this sort, though I hope not of so marked a character as among some other gatherings. Temperance is already one of our watchwords, and is pretty well carried out in practice. To substitute for it "teetotalism" would be to bring the Order down to an undesirable level with a Good Templar platform, on which the milksops try and ape some of the forms of Masonry, overdone with an excess of regalia and harmless mummeries. Surely, men of thought and sense can be trusted with the regulation of their own actions; and, much as any of us may abominate a sot, most of us have an equal detestation of a "goody-goody," who, because his brain is too weak to stand a glass of wine himself, would force his "principles" down the throats of everybody else, whether they like it or not. Such an idea is by no means palatable, and will not, I am sure, be favoured much in my own, or any other, Lodge.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

1st March 1883. FREEDOM.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—There may be some brethren who will ridicule the idea of mixing up total abstinence with Freemasonry, although I am not quite sure that there is not "something in it" worth a little quiet thought. I can remember the old time when we used to meet as happily and fraternally as we do now, and enjoy our "refreshment" after labour with much less of the fuss and show that have of recent years become so common amongst Masons. I am in favour of the old substantial joints and simple fare, which I consider far preferable to the varied and intricate courses which I am certain a great many brethren never see on their own tables, and which swallow up a great proportion of the Lodge funds. There is something a little amusing in seeing a tradesman or a clerk flashing his swallowtail coat and white tie once a month, and plodding through what must be to him a gigantic menu, much to his own personal discomfort. There is too much of this "stuck-up-ed-ness" amongst Masons now-a-days, which might be modified a good deal. After all, however, as you say, it is all a matter of individual fancy. If my greengrocer or pork butcher likes to "tog up," as I have heard him call it, to go in for a récherché banquet, let him; and I, as a brother, will be glad to see him enjoying himself in his own fashion. But I often smile to see men indulging in sparkling wines who never taste such beverages from Lodge meeting to Lodge meeting, and who would be far more comfortable and at home with their bitter beer or rum punch. It is "fashionable" now to attend Lodge in dress suits and to drink champagne. Let those do so who like it; I do not. I stick to my frock coat, and drink my toasts in the beverages I always use at home, and I never find my neighbours at the banquet table object, or pass remarks. There is this to be said about the matter; if there were considerably less spent in getting up the banquets, far too expensively varied and profuse for ordinary stomachs, there would be equal satisfaction given, and the Lodge funds would not so often be impoverished. I know a Lodge where the staple fare after Lodge is rare-bit and rum punch; and a jolly Lodge it is, too. There are teetotallers amongst them, who enjoy their long pipes over mugs of well-made and fragrant Mocha. Why not? Better that than nine out of ten of our modern banquets, where half the company are like fish out of water in dress clothes which they only wear once a month, drinking wines they are equally unaccustomed to, and going through a stiff and starchy post-prandial process which they only half enjoy. If a man calls for a glass of ale, he is withered up by the waiters for being vulgar; if he asks for a non-intoxicating beverage, he is dubbed a weak-minded brother by some who do not see, eye to eye, with him! It is the very fact that our Lodge banquets are too elaborate that destroys much of the freedom that is so enjoyable, that makes men feel they cannot "do as they like," but must conform to example. How it is to be remedied I cannot say. Of course, we could not dream of any introduction of "teetotal advocacy" so-called; we can get plenty of that anywhere, and it is not wanted in Lodge. But if our dinners were less costly and formal, the brethren would enjoy them just as much; there would be more free and easy amenity, and there would be a very judicious curtailment of the expenses of the fourth degree. What do you think?

I remain, yours fraternally,

AN OLD MASON.

TOASTS AND TEA.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—"I looks towards you." We have jogged along together, my boy, for a good many years, meeting both in Lodge and out of it, with a hearty good will, and always with a cheery smile for one another. But, Brother mine, no longer can I smile upon you over the sparkling wine cup, and drink thine health in "orthodox," for I have caught the blue fever, and am of the ranks now of the "army" good and pure. Henceforth, I drink to thine health in tea. You know where my shop is, and I send you a sample half pound to try. Get the brethren to give this teetotal idea a lift: it will give an impetus to business. It won't be "Trading on Masonry," you know, and you and I can do a quiet tête-à-tête over the "orthodox" whenever we please. In giving you this advice, do not write me down a HYPOCRITE.

MASONRY AND DRINK.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—While considering the subject of Temperance in Freemasonry, would it not be well to give a little attention to the practice, which is far too common, of drinking and smoking in Lodges of Instruction? I have attended several lately at which it has been the rule to sit with pewter pots and glasses before the brethren, while the atmosphere of the Lodge-room has been dense with tobacco smoke. I confess I am a moderate drinker, and like my pipe or cigar with any one; but I must say it seems a little out of place to sip and puff away whilst the solemn ritual of Freemasonry is being rehearsed. It is no great hardship at an ordinary business meeting, or a concert or lecture, to set these little luxuries aside for a couple of hours; and I cannot see why the rule should not apply to Lodges of Instruction, where the exercises of the brethren are of a serious character, to say the least. The brethren would learn their parts just as well, and enjoy with greater zest the friendly glass and pipe as "refreshment after labour." I am sorry to say that on more than one occasion I have seen brethren in Lodges of Instruction decidedly "muzzy" and incapable of taking their share of the work intelligently; and I have no hesitation in saying that when they find the potency of John Barleycorn has been taking liberties with them, they should keep away from Lodge. It is not too much to say some Lodges of Instruction at public-houses appear to have been set going mainly for the "good of the house," or the brother who happens to be the landlord, and who is thus helped on by perhaps sincere, but not over discreet, disciples of the Craft. Whether this is correct or desirable is open to strong question, but certainly it does not meet with the views of,

Yours very fraternally,

VIGIL.

Another concert was given on Tuesday at the Royal National Hospital, Ventnor, and was even more successful than the one we noticed some time since. The programme was, as before, of a mixed character, and included a reading by Mr. Cruse, which was much applauded, and a recitation, "The death of Montrose," by Mr. Siebert, who, when invited to repeat it, gave in its place "Dr. Edith." The musical part of the entertainment included instrumental solos and duets, songs, and glees. Dr. Coghill's daughter, Miss Daisy Coghill, played a pianoforte solo with great taste. A couple of duets for violin and pianoforte, by Mr. and Miss Westerveld, elicited well-deserved applause, the second one—Gavotte "Stephaine"—being redemanded. Mr. H. Colman, who has a good tenor voice, sang "The Old Brigade" most effectively and Mr. Higgins made a great hit with "Dear me! is that possible?" Both these gentlemen were called upon to repeat their performances, and gracefully accepted the invitation. Miss Orchard acquitted herself well in the familiar song "Where the bee sucks," and Dr. Robertson's "Blow high, blow low," was rendered in excellent style. The other numbers were also well given, particularly the glee—"O hush thee, my baby."

WALBROOK WARD CLUB.

WE had the pleasure, on Monday evening, of participating in the very enjoyable festivities attending the anniversary dinner of this club, which was held at the Cannon-street Hotel, under the presidency of Mr. S. Price. There was a very numerous company present, including many brethren, and the proceedings were throughout of a very animated and pleasant description. A capital repast was served, reflecting the utmost credit on the resources of this extensive and well-known hotel, and all the arrangements were such as to afford every satisfaction to the guests. After dinner the loyal and patriotic toasts were given, Capt. Harrison responding for the Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces. The Chairman then proposed the Aldermen and Common Councilmen of the Ward, alluding to the excellent manner in which they were represented by their worthy Alderman, Sir James Clarke Lawrence, Bart., M.P., their deputy, Mr. Fry, Mr. Wynne E. Baxter, J.P., and other members. The toast was heartily received, and Mr. Deputy Fry, responded in genial terms, in which he said that any measure which the Government might propose, which would have the effect of destroying, or even weakening, the influence of the City, should have his most earnest opposition. He felt sure the citizens believed they had been well served, and that any alteration, such as had been suggested by the Government, would not be for their benefit, but would certainly be to their great disadvantage. Mr. Wright gave the health of the Treasurer and Hon. Secretary of the Walbrook Club, speaking in eulogistic terms of the admirable manner in which these gentlemen discharged the duties of their respective offices. Mr. J. B. W. Luck Treasurer, and Mr. W. E. Baxter Hon. Secretary replied, the latter gentleman remarking that the Club, which was instituted for the purposes of friendly and neighbourly intercourse, now numbered 132 members. The Chairman then proposed Prosperity to the Inhabitants of the Ward of Walbrook, the toast being acknowledged by Mr. White, the oldest inhabitant of the Ward. Mr. J. B. Luck gave the health of the Chairman, who responded; and Professor Pritchard acknowledged the toast of the Visitors, proposed by Mr. Edwards. The last toast was "The Pretty Maids, the Happy Wives, and the Buxom Widows of Walbrook," proposed in felicitous language by Mr. Smart, and gallantly responded to by Mr. Landale. During the evening an admirable selection of music was given by Miss Edith Ruthven, Mr. H. S. Ewen, and Mr. M. Powis Bale, with Mr. J. T. Musgrove at the pianoforte. Miss Ruthven sang "The Banks of Allan Water," and Taubut's "My Love is so fair," in charming manner, and her efforts were rewarded by genuine expressions of appreciation. She was in excellent voice, and her singing was a decided acquisition to the pleasures of the assembly. Mr. H. S. Ewen gave "the Tar's Farewell" and "Sailing," both popular songs and admirably rendered. Mr. M. Powis Bale was equally successful in "Old Memories," and several other pieces were sung with pleasing effect. In connection with the club and ward several interesting events have taken place during the week. It will be recollected that at the wardmote on St. Thomas's Day, it was resolved that a testimonial should be presented to Mr. H. E. Murrell, as a mark of respect, and in recognition of his services as a representative of the ward in the Court of Common Council during the long period of 32 years. We believe it was intended to make the presentation at this dinner, but Mr. Murrell's health was such as would not permit of his attending, and the testimonial has been on view during the week at the offices of Mr. Scobell, No. 1 Walbrook. It consists of a set of handsome silver gilt centre-pieces for the table, the largest of which bears the inscription:

"Presented to Henry Edward Murrell, Esq., by the Ward of Walbrook, as a token of personal esteem, and in recognition of his valuable services as a member of the Court of Common Council for a period of 32 years. December 21st, 1882."

Accompanying the gift is an address, beautifully illuminated in gold and colours, and enclosed in a massive gilt frame, the work having been artistically executed by Messrs Witherby and Co., law stationers, of Newman's Court, Cornhill. The text runs as follows:—

Walbrook Ward. At a wardmote, held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, before the Right Worshipful Sir James Clarke Lawrence, Bart., M.P., Alderman of the said Ward, on Thursday, the 21st day of December 1882, it was unanimously resolved "That this wardmote receive with great regret the resignation of their tried representative, Mr. Henry Edward Murrell, and take the present opportunity of recording their high esteem of the services rendered by him, and for which they tender him their hearty thanks." (Signed) James Clarke Lawrence Alderman, John Child Ward Clerk.

Some time ago the members of the club subscribed for the purchase of two handsome "loving cups" which were duly presented to the club. A surplus of funds, however, remained, and with this money two massive silver gavels, for the vice-chairmen, were procured, to match that which had been presented recently by Mr. Murrell for the chairman. These "pieces of family plate" were used on Monday evening, and taken altogether the affair was one round of congratulation and success.

SOUTHGATE LODGE, No. 1950.

A MOST successful meeting of the above Lodge was held on Thursday, 1st March, at the Railway Hotel, New Southgate. The Lodge was opened at 4·30, when the minutes of previous meeting and of an emergency meeting were read and confirmed. Ballots were then taken for Mr. Samuel Stretch jun., and for Mr. Whare (Bandmaster of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys); the result being unanimously in their favour. The former gentlemen was most impressively initiated by the W.M., Bro. R. P. Forge. Bro. F. H. Tibbitts was then presented and duly installed into the chair of K.S., in the presence of a large number of P.M.'s, the ceremony and addresses being perfectly and solemnly rendered by Bro. Forge, all present listening with rapt attention. Bro. Tibbitts appointed the following as his Officers:—Bros. F. Hancock S.W., E. Woodman J.W., F. Matthews S.D., R. Butcher J.D., Cooper I.G. Bro. Tibbitts then initiated Mr. Whare, the second candidate, named above. An excellent banquet followed, and the speeches were interspersed with a choice selection of music by Bros. T. Tremere and F. Cozens, Miss Maria Lynton, and Miss Grace Godolphin. After a lengthened evening, the brethren departed, highly pleased with the success of the first anniversary meeting of their Lodge. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. F. Rothschild P.M. 1188 1677, Eldridge 167, Byng 902, Gilham 1632, Hollis 167, Osborn 1602, Meekham 119 1288, Rhodes 1524, Snook 1693, Brickdale M.C. 1623, Millar 1567, Humphreys W.M. 167, Salmon 177, Swinyard 1695, Hall W.M. 1693, Jordan 141, Sprake 813, Bellis S.W. 1901, Norton P.M. 969, Busby 147, Wall 860, Murray 66, Goddard 1135, Livingston P.M. 1385, Williams J.W. 1275, Holditch 172, and many others.

ALLIANCE LODGE, No. 1827.

A REGULAR meeting of the members of this Lodge, which is mainly composed of the chief officers of the Corporation of the City of London and their friends, was held on Wednesday evening, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, when Bro. H. Wildey Wright, Barrister-at-Law, W.M., presided, supported by Bros. Frank Green, C.C., I.P.M., L. F. Littell P.M., Major T. Davies Sewell S.W., C. W. Bowley J.W., Richard J. Pawley Treasurer, Joseph L. Turner, C.C., Secretary, Henry Wright S.D., J. Perkins I.G., H. Squire Steward, G. P. Goldney (City Remembrancer), E. T. R. Wilde, Edward Jex, C.C., J. H. Smith, Frank S. Jackson, Henry Clarke, A. B. Church Tyler, &c. Lodge was opened and closed in the three degrees, and there being no work before the Lodge it was adjourned at an early hour, the customary banquet being dispensed with, in consequence of the Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge being held on the same evening.

Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, No. 65.—On Tuesday, 6th instant, at Brother Maidwell's, Hercules Tavern, Leadenhall-street, E.C. Shadler W.M., Mann S.W., Haynes J.W., Moss Preceptor, Clements Secretary, Saint S.D., Walker J.D., Harris I.G.; also Brothers Roberts, Deleeuw, Akkerman, Klingenstein, &c., &c. Lodge opened in due form and minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Brother Akkerman candidate. Lodge was advanced, and Bro. Klingenstein, after interrogation, was entrusted. Lodge was then opened in the third and the ceremony of raising rehearsed. Lodge closed to first, and after the admittance of a new member was adjourned till Tuesday next. This Lodge of Instruction confines itself, almost entirely, to the working of ceremonies. Brethren specially interested in such will do well to attend. The members have an excellent Preceptor in Bro. D. Moss. The ceremony of installation will be rehearsed on Tuesday, 20th instant, when it is hoped that a good many of the brethren will assemble. This Lodge of Instruction meets all the year round, on Tuesday evenings, at seven o'clock.

United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, No. 507.—Meeting at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell S.E., on Friday, 2nd inst. Bros. Stokes W.M., Thurston P.M. S.W., Styles J.W., Phillips S.D., Bate J.D., Dick I.G., Stevens P.M. Preceptor, Poore Secretary, Cotton, Smith, and others. Lodge was worked in the first degree, with sections and explanations. It was arranged that the Fifteen Sections should be worked on the 30th inst., Bro. James Stevens being elected W.M. for that occasion. Bro. F. Thurston was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and Lodge was closed in due form, and adjourned.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—At the regular meeting held on Tuesday last, at the Sisters' Tavern, Pownall-road, Dalston, there were present—Bros. Smyth W.M., Glass S.W., T. Clark J.W., F. Carr Secretary, Wardell S.D., Christian J.D., Cushing I.G., Brasted P.M. acting Preceptor. After the due observance of preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Brother Bigg candidate. Brother Christian worked the fourth section of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Brother W. W. Morgan then read a paper on "Women in Freemasonry," for which he acknowledged his indebtedness to Bro. T. B. Whytehead, of York. The brethren expressed their gratification for the instruction this able paper conveyed, and in acknowledging the vote of thanks that was passed for his exertions, Brother Morgan expressed a hope that similar papers might be more frequently introduced at these gatherings. This suggestion was concurred in by all present. The annual festival of this Lodge of Instruction will take place on 20th proximo.

LODGE OF JOPPA, No. 188.

A REGULAR meeting was held on the 5th inst., at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's-Inn-Fields. Bros. Benjamin W.M., Martin as S.W., Bean J.W., Albert P.G.P. Secretary, Lyon Treasurer, Botibol S.D., Wall J.D., Dewsnap I.G., Van Noorden Organist, Dodson P.M. M.C., Alexander A.M.C., Wyman Steward; P.M.'s Myers, Lazarus, Levy, Dodson, Roberts, L. Alexander. Visitors—Smith 933, Buttock 545, Bladen 1839, Rogers 901, Beer 180, Lyon 185, Sax 1017, Jewell 1559, Lindsay Sloper 1017, Prenton 1319, Parkin 1319. Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. There was no ceremonial business on the agenda paper. Bro. Lazarus proposed, and H. M. Levy seconded, that in future, on supper nights, the sum of 5s shall be charged for Visitors. Messrs. Isaacs, Davis and Blaiberg were proposed for initiation. Bro. Botibol was invested with the collar of S.D., he, through indisposition, not having been present on the installation night. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to a very excellent supper, superintended by Brother Dawkins. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given, Bro. E. P. Albert responding for the Grand Officers. The toast of the Joppa Benevolent Fund was responded to by Bro. L. Alexander P.M. P.P., who gave an account of the origin of the Fund, which now amounted to about £900. Bro. L. M. Myers proposed the health of the W.M. The proposition for candidates that night would give the W.M. an opportunity of showing what he is capable of doing on the next occasion. The W.M. in reply thanked Bro. Myers for his kind remarks; anything he could do to serve them, and any work they might call upon him to perform, he would only be too happy to do. Bros. Smith 933 and W. S. Lyon 185 responded for the Visitors. Bro. L. M. Myers I.P.M. acknowledged the compliment paid the Past Masters. Several other toasts followed; and the evening's proceedings were of a truly harmonious character.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—Held at the Jolly Farmers, Southgate-road, Islington, on Saturday, the 3rd inst. Present—Bros. Cook W.M., Ashton S.W., Marks J.W., Pearcy Preceptor, Fenner Secretary, Lorkin Treasurer, Venning S.D., Galer J.D., Gibbs I.G.; also Bros. Brasted, Weeden, Mackey, Richardson, Dixie; Wolf, Hatch, Carr, Rhodes, Spencer, &c. Lodge was opened, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Weeden candidate. The first section of the lecture was worked by Bro. Fenner, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Rhodes answered the questions leading to the second degree; he was entrusted and in due course the ceremony of passing was rehearsed. The ceremonies were conducted by the W.M. in a careful manner. Bro. Ashton was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. A vote of thanks was awarded the W.M. for the able manner he had discharged the duties of the chair for the first time in this Lodge of Instruction; after which the Lodge was closed and adjourned.

ZETLAND LODGE, No. 511.

THE regular meeting of this excellent working Lodge was held on the 7th instant, at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet Street. Bros. Blum W.M., Earney S.W., Shieman J.W., Barfield Treasurer, Read P.M. Sec., Locke J.D., Fisher I.G., Side P.M. A.W.S.; P.M.'s Avery, Whittick, Game, Elborne, and Ward. Visitors—Twyman S.W. 184, Dukeson 1681, Painter 1891, Scott 177, Sutherland 201, Witherilt 1681, Dickson 861, J. Richardson 1001, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188. The Lodge was opened and the minutes were confirmed. Bros. Richardson, Reilly and Kraus were passed to the second degree. Messrs. Kauffman and Coleman were initiated into the Order. Both ceremonies were ably worked by the W.M., all the Officers were equally perfect. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to a very excellent banquet, supplied by Bro. F. Clemow. The W.M. proposed, in general terms, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts and adverted to the election of H.R.H. the M.W.G.M. Bro. Read Past Master said he had great pleasure in proposing the health of the Worshipful Master; they were all pleased with his working; it was a difficult thing for a native of another land to master our language, but Brother Blum had done so very satisfactorily. The W.M. in reply expressed his gratitude to Bro. Read for the manner in which he had spoken, and the reception the brethren had given to the toast. His earnest desire was to promote the welfare of the Lodge. The toast of the Initiates was next on the list; they had been fortunate in having two brethren introduced that evening. The W.M. was sure they would be a credit to the Order. Bro. Avory sang the E.A. Song, and then Bros. Coleman and Kauffmann severally responded. For the toast of the Visitors Bro. H. M. Levy P.M. 188 and G.D. Sutherland 201 responded. In responding for the Past Masters, whose services were eloquently descanted on by the W.M., Brother Barfield, as Treasurer, was pleased to say the Lodge was in a flourishing condition. For thirty years he might say it had gone on prospering, and hoped it would continue so to do. Brother Read said he regretted the absence of the I.P.M. Bro. Williams, through indisposition. He was proud to say that Bro. Barfield and he had taken up to the Benevolent Festival the sum of one hundred guineas; he hoped to be able to do as well on another occasion. After the toast of the Wardens and Officers, that of the Tyler was given, and this concluded a very agreeable evening. Bros. Alborn, Shieman, Avery, Kraus, Sticklen, Scott, contributed to the harmony, and Bro. Read gave the Charge of Kasassin in a very edifying manner.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Few persons are so favoured by circumstances, or so fortified by nature, as to enable them to pass unscathed the severe trials of an inclement season. With catarrhs, coughs, and influenza everywhere abounding, it should be universally known that Holloway's Ointment, diligently rubbed upon the chest, checks the worst assaults of these maladies, and secretly wards off more grave and dangerous diseases of the throat and lungs. The truth of this assertion must remain unquestioned in the face of thousands of unimpeachable living witnesses, who have personally derived the utmost possible benefits from this treatment when their present sufferings were appalling, and their future prospects most disheartening. Both remedies act admirably together.

ROSICRUCIAN SOCIETY.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE YORK COLLEGE.

THE annual meeting of this College was held in the Masonic Rooms, Queen's Hotel, York, on Saturday, the 24th ult., when there was a large attendance of members, amongst them being Fraters T. B. Whytehead Hon. IX Chief Adept of Yorkshire, J. S. Cumberland Hon. VIII Suffragan, J. W. Woodhall Prov. Treasurer, Rev. W. C. Lukis Deputy, and T. J. Wilkinson Secretary. In the absence of Frater Maffey the Celebrant, in Australia, Bro. J. S. Cumberland, a Past Celebrant, worked the ceremonies, the ancients' chairs being filled by Fratres S. Middleton, J. Todd, J. M. Meek, and T. M. Barron. Frater C. L. Mason acted as Conductor of Novices, in the absence of Frater Moore, whilst Frater C. R. Fry was in his place as Guardian, Frater A. T. B. Turner as Herald, and Frater T. Trevor as Torch Bearer. In addition to these there were Fratres J. F. Taylor, George Ayre, G. Simpson, and M. Maddison. The minutes having been confirmed, a successful ballot was taken for Brother J. S. Walton P.M. 1357, of Northallerton, after which Bros. J. L. Atherton, James Moncks, C. Palliser, and A. Fraser, aspirants previously accepted, were admitted and duly received into the grade of Zelator with the full ceremonies. The Chief Adept then proceeded to give the annual address as follows: W. Suffragan and Fraters, I think we may be said to be living in the golden age of Freemasonry. There has never been a time when the Order could claim to have been making more rapid progress, when it has been able to enumerate amongst its members men of more eminence, or when the true study of Freemasonry, its history and its objects, has engrossed more of the time and attention of its leading members than in this year of grace 1883. Freemasonry has proved itself a very salamander amongst those societies that have from time to time engaged the love and attention of mankind. Having apparently its purely speculative origin at some period during the seventeenth century, it has stood the test of evil report and good report, through the generations that have since passed away, until now, when we find it more flourishing than ever, handed down to us from our fathers, a precious inheritance which it will be our joy and our duty to hand down to our sons in the same purity which characterised its principles and workings when we and our fathers first experienced the light of its godlike teachings. Other societies have come and gone, other institutions have flashed like meteors across the pathway of progress of civilised society, but the lamp of Freemasonry has steadily burned, cherished lovingly by generations of good, worthy, and distinguished brethren, until its fire, kindled at the early altars of brotherly love, relief, and truth, burns in this age with a lustre and brilliancy that would have gladdened the hearts of those who, in less enlightened days, toilfully struggled, an obscure and humble band, against the prejudices of ignorance and the jeers of folly. I have used the word "godlike" in regard to our glorious old Craft, for surely there is something very much akin to what is Divine in the teachings of such an Order. Based on the contents of the Volume of the Sacred Law, it shares with that marvellous book in the halo of light which modern science and latter-day research have thrown around those venerable pages that give authority to our Masonic assemblies. Other works, whose reputations have at one period been high, have sunk down into obscurity and neglect for no other reason than that the light of truth and the investigations of modern science have exposed their weaknesses and their fallacies and robbed them of their authoritative value, but in the case of our "unerring standard" age has only served to mellow its precepts, and beautify its poetical imagery with the hoary garland of antiquity, whilst its perfect harmony with all that modern philosophy can prove is no less remarkable than the subtilty and intricacy of knowledge which it displays with the innermost workings of the human heart. And so it is with Freemasonry. Whilst other organisations and societies have arisen, flourished, made their mark in history, and finally decayed and disappeared, Freemasonry has continued to grow and make steady progress. The rude shocks of opposition, and the occasional neglect, even of its own sons, has served but to root it more firmly in its position. It has been able to stand the severe test of that electric light of modern inquiry which will insist upon a why and a wherefore for the existence of everything that is, and it now stands a living triumph of principles that are eternal as that Great Architect on whose beneficent laws they have been originally based. And what, Fraters, can we do as individuals to uphold, maintain, and promote this grand Institution, and to assist, as Masons, in consolidating its walls and contributing to the welfare and happiness of its members? In the first place, we can all do what every Mason is expected, and in honour and in duty is bound to do, from the moment when he enters the portals of the society. We can, to the utmost of our power carry out in our daily lives the principles and the tenets that are so early taught us in our Masonic career. This is the least that we can do; but if we all did this and carried out our obligations in their entirety, would it not be competent for Freemasons to work such a reformation in our social system as would leaven the whole world? I am sure of it. But we are met to-day not as novices in Masonry. I hope that every member of this College has gained sufficient knowledge to render it quite unnecessary for anything to be said to him of the elementary duties of every brother. We are, as it were, re-organised in this Rosicrucian Society, not in any antagonistic spirit to any other society or system, but simply under an additional or special bond of union, by means of which we desire to link together Masons of age, standing, and experience for a special and specific purpose. What our object is, you know full well. It is thoroughly in accordance with the spirit of the Masonic age. This is a time, as I have already said, when knowledge grows apace, and the knowledge of Freemasonry, amongst other branches of study, is extending its researches into long hidden paths. Freemasonry has always had about it a strong literary flavour. Elias Ashmole and many of the very earliest of its disciples were men of high attainments in literature. And from his day down to the present we find men of ability and scholarly attainments content to work through the early drudgery of the Craft, and subsequently adorning our ranks as rulers and teachers. Dr. Stukely, whose Masonic connections have been so learnedly and carefully investigated by our eminent brother, your present Deputy and my late Suffragan, was himself a man of great learning and laborious habits, and from his day, the day of the southern revival of Freemasonry down to the present decade, we may trace a long succession of men of parts and attainments such as Anderson, Preston, Crucefix, Oliver, and others, who all, according to the means at their disposal and the knowledge of facts that they possessed, toiled in the paths of Masonic literature. It is true that, until comparatively a recent period, Masons were content to receive and accept as data statements that we now know to have been completely at variance with facts, but Freemasons were not singular in this respect. We need only refer to works on archæology and natural science contemporary with those obsolete histories of Masonry, to discover that men of light and leading in science entertained theories, and arrived at consequent conclusions that to us appear almost childish in their absurdity. And as other sciences have advanced, so has Freemasonry with equal strides. A generation of Masons that declines the myths and wayward fancies of Preston and Oliver has trained up a new school of Craft historians, and with the logical historical analyses of Bro. Gould, the unremitting assiduity and mental grasp of Bro. Woodford, the patient statistical labours of Bro. Hughan, and the careful and scholarly publications of Bro. Murray Lyon, we find ourselves in the happy position of having found an almost royal road to Masonic knowledge. This is therefore pre-eminently a time when a society such as ours should find congenial spirits and an appropriate field for its labours. Our objects are the elucidation of Masonic history and archæology, and in working in this direction, we know that we are aiding in a great and an important work. Our labours may not be productive of vast results but as in the Brahminical story the granite is worn away in the course of ages by the light yet constant touch of the angel's robe, so no problem can resist for ever the patient attacks of perseverance and persistency. I have more than once pointed out the direction in which members of this College can assist in the elucidation of Masonic history. Our Frater Lukis has set us all a worthy example of what may be done in this way, and has brought some most valuable facts to light by the exercise of his scholarly activity. And the very fact that every now and then new scraps of information are brought to light, and fresh theories are broached regarding our Order and its descent, proves how much there is yet left to discover. All of us have not the leisure we should like for these pursuits, but it is wonderful how much may be effected in stray and spare moments by those whose hearts are in the work. The mines of Masonic lore are as yet but little explored, and it is certain that there must still be in existence manuscript allusions and references to early Freemasonry, that if discovered would materially aid us in the construction of such a detailed history of our Order as would be its crowning triumph in this century. On occasions of these meetings I should be very glad if more members would prepare papers and bring with them Masonic relics of all kinds in order that we might all have the benefit of investigating their peculiarities. Our society is certain to be strong and useful in proportion to the work that we perform, and members would find much more pleasure and encouragement in attendance at our meetings if they always found something, however trifling, offered for their intellectual and Masonic benefit. Thus far the York College has enrolled upon its books many of the most intelligent brethren in the county and the north of England, and I hope it will continue to gather in members who enter not for the sake (as they may perhaps vainly suppose) of obtaining another degree, but from a really intelligent desire to aid in the effort to do something for the literature of the Order, and to become a working element in a Society that has for its objects the glory of God, the good of mankind, and the promotion of scientific Freemasonry. If this is the case the College cannot fail to prosper and to be of sterling value, but if we should lose sight of our true raison d'être and become a mere social club of Masons, we shall not deserve a continuance of that success which has thus far attended our efforts. Let us all unite in an honest endeavour to work in the directions I have indicated, and our reward will surely follow. Fraters, I thank you for your attention. The election of Officers was proceeded with, and Frater C. L. Mason V was elected Celebrant, and Frater J. S. Cumberland VII was re-elected Treasurer. It was arranged to hold the next meeting of the College at Leeds, on the 23rd of May. Letters of apology for absence were read from the following members:—Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett, W. Lawton, W. Rowley, M. Millington, T. W. Holmes, E. T. Clark, Rev. J. Blake, C. G. L. Kipling, W. Paley, C. S. Lane, W. Harrison, S. Wilson, and R. W. Moore. At the close of the meeting the members met at high tea, and spent a pleasant evening, in the course of which Fra. Cumberland exhibited his valuable collection of old Masonic jewels, which was much admired.

Bro. the Rt. Hon. the Lord Mayor (Alderman Knight) presided, on Thursday evening, at the "public supping" of the boys at Christ's Hospital (Blue Coat School). There was a very large attendance.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

THE Quarterly Communication of United Grand Lodge of English Freemasons was held at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday evening, under the presidency of Bro. the Earl of Lathom, in the absence of the Prince of Wales. General Brownrigg, C.B., Prov. G.M. Surrey acted as D.G.M., Montague Guest, M.P., Prov. G.M. Dorset as Past G.M.; and among the Grand Officers present were:—Bros. Rev. T. Cochrane Grand Chaplain, Lieut.-Colonel Creaton Grand Treasurer, Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke Grand Secretary, Captain Beswicke-Royds G.J.D., Sir Albert Woods Grand Director of Ceremonies, R. T. Pigott A.G.D.C., J. Messent G.S.B., H. S. Allpass Grand Standard Bearer, William Cusins Grand Organist, H. G. Buss Assistant Grand Secretary, W. R. Wood Grand Pursuivant, L. F. Littell Assistant Grand Pursuivant, General J. W. Laurie Grand Master Nova Scotia, H. D. Sandeman P.D.G.M. Bengal, Rev. C. J. Martyn, Ambrose W. Hall, J. Studholme Brownrigg, R. J. Simpson, H. A. Pickard, J. E. Cox, C. W. Arnold P.G.C.'s; J. S. Peirce, J. H. Scott, Capt. Philips, J. M. Case, W. B. F. Powell, B. Baker, H. Dumas, F. Richardson, J. P. Leith, H. Mandsley, R. W. Stewart, P. De Lande Long, C. W. C. Hutton, R. Grey, T. Fenn, R. Bird, J. A. Rucker, Lieut.-Colonel Somerville-Burney, J. Glaisher P.G.D.'s; J. L. Thomas, G. Burt, Magnus Ohren P.G.A.D.C.'s; C. Greenwood, G. Lambert, A. J. Duff Filer, W. P. Nettleship, Joshua Nunn P.G.S.B.'s; C. E. Willing P.G. Organist; W. Clarke, C. A. Cottebrune, J. Wright, James Klench, E. P. Albert, and Jas Brett P.G.P.'s. A large number of Lodges were represented, amongst others being the Aldersgate 1657, Alliance 1827, Belgrave 749, Creaton 1791, Canterbury 1635, Cosmopolitan 917, Fortitude 131, Islington 1471, Lion and Lamb 192, Mizpah 1671, Montague Guest 1900, Neptune 22, Phœnix 173, Strand 1987, St. Mary Abbotts 1974, Tranquillity 185, Temple 101, and The Great City. After opening, Brother Raymond Thrupp proposed the re-election of the Prince of Wales as Grand Master. His Royal Highness had now reigned over the Craft for a period of eight years, and during that time Freemasonry had increased by leaps and bounds, no fewer than four hundred and seventy-eight new Lodges having been constituted. The brethren were all well aware of the deep interest the Grand Master had taken in the advancement and prosperity of the Craft, and the time and personal attention he devoted to the promotion of its best interests. Brother W. C. Beaumont seconded the proposition, which was unanimously carried amidst loud applause, and Sir Albert Woods (Garter) Grand Director of Ceremonies, proclaimed His Royal Highness as duly elected Most Worshipful Grand Master of Freemasons for the ensuing year. Brother G. J. McKay proposed the re-election of Colonel Creaton as G. Treasurer, and said it would be indiscreet for Grand Lodge to change the office of Grand Treasurer year after year. The duties had been faithfully performed by Colonel Creaton. Brother G. P. Britten seconded the resolution. Brother Alfred Staley W.M. 185 P.M. 1728 proposed Bro. J. Derby Allcroft 259 P.M. and Treasurer 1657. It was out of no disrespect to Colonel Creaton that Brother Allcroft was brought forward, but as the collar of Grand Treasurer was the only collar the Craft had the power to vote it was the wish of some members of the Craft that this proposition should be put before them. Brother Richard A. Morgan W.M. 1671 seconded the motion, on the ground that with the exception of the collar of Grand Master this was the only collar it was in the hands of Grand Lodge to bestow. They felt it was right that this collar should not be given in perpetuity to any brother, but on the same principles as other offices were given in Grand Lodge, where brethren afterwards enjoyed Past Grand office. In proposing Brother Allcroft they did not do it in any spirit against the present Grand Treasurer, but only on the principle that they ought to exercise their right and not look on this collar as a perpetual one. Bro. Cantle supported the original motion, and said Col. Creaton, by his persevering industry had endeared himself to every member of the Craft. He need not tell the brethren how hard Col. Creaton had worked, or how much he had done for it, both as a Grand Officer and as a supporter of the different Institutions connected with the Order. There was no man who had done as much for Freemasonry as Colonel Creaton, and while he occupied the position he now held he thought the least they could do was to mark their esteem and respect for him by placing him again in Grand Lodge as their Grand Treasurer. Bro. Brackstone Baker followed up these remarks by saying he could not conceive anything more mischievous in effect than as soon as a Grand Treasurer began to know his business that they should substitute another man for him. Bro. Philbrick, Q.C., P.G.D. asked Grand Lodge to pause before it broke through traditions which—if traditions were worth anything at all, and were esteemed anywhere—were esteemed among the body of Freemasons. Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson supported the amendment, which was carried by a large majority; whereupon Bro. Britten demanded a poll, but the Earl of Lathom ruled that it was quite unnecessary. On the motion of the Earl of Lathom, seconded by Bro. Montague Guest, M.P., it was unanimously resolved:—

> "That this Grand Lodge do contribute the sum of 100 guineas to be paid out of the Fund of General Purposes, towards the alleviation of the distress caused among the brethren under the District Grand Lodge of Jamaica by the late calamitous fire in Kingston, in that Island.

The following recommendations of the Lodge of Benevolence were then confirmed:

Bro. Sir John B. Monckton, President of the General Purposes Committee, presented the following Report:—"The Board of General Purposes have to state that the Grand Secretary having reported the reception of some 800 amendments to the proposed revision of the Book of Constitutions submitted to Grand Lodge on the 9th September last, the Board of General Purposes recommend Grand Lodge to refer these amendments to the Board to consider and report on." To this was subjoined a statement of the Grand Lodge accounts at the last meeting of the Finance Committee, held 16th February, showing a balance in the Bank of England of £5,409 1s 7d; in the hands of the Grand Secretary for petty cash £75, and for servants' wages £100. The Colonial Board reported that a letter had been received the day after the last Quarterly Communication from the W. Master of the Bulwer Lodge, No. 1068, Cairo, Egypt, reporting that the Lodge which had been in abeyance since the year 1874, had, owing to the return of some of its old members to Egypt, been now able to resume its work, the Board beg to recommend to Grand Lodge that the resolution for the erasure of the said Lodge passed at the last Quarterly Communication be rescinded, and that the Bulwer Lodge, No. 1068, Cairo, be permitted to resume its labours. The report was adopted, as also was that of Bro. R. P. Harding, Auditor of Grand Lodge Accounts, of receipts and disbursements during the year 1882. Grand Lodge was then closed in form.

From the Portsmouth Times we gather that at the regular Communication of the Grand Lodge of Ireland, held on the evening of Thursday, the 1st inst., in Dublin, a letter was read from Lord Wolseley, asking for a duplicate certificate, which was granted. His lordship stated in his letter that he was, when in the 90th Foot, initiated in July 1854, in the Military Lodge (728) of Dublin, in company with Lord Ferrars, then a brother officer. His original master's certificate was lost when he was wrecked in the Transit; and a duplicate, obtained some time afterwards, was destroyed, with "all his goods and chattels," when the Pantechnicon was burned in 1874. He desired another certificate in view of the forthcoming opening of a new Lodge in Manchester, to be named after himself, and to be worked on temperance principles.

Last night (Friday) the annual ball of the City of London Bicycle Club was held, under the most successful auspices, at the Cannon Street Hotel.

Bro. Alderman Whitehead has retired from the chairmanship of the Forest Hill Liberal Association, on account of his many other public engagements.

Bro. Weist Hill, conductor of the Guildhall School of Music has sufficiently recovered from his severe indisposition as to be enabled to resume his duties.

The members of the Brixton, No. 1949, have formed a Masonic Charitable Association in connection with their Lodge of Instruction. At the preliminary meeting on Thursday evening last a strong working Committee was appointed, and a large number of shares were immediately subscribed for.

The second Anglo-French Ball was held at Freemasons' Tavern, on the 6th inst, under the presidency of Bro. Cossart, 291, who was assisted by a numerous body of stewards. The company numbered nearly 300. The Band, 17 in number, under the direction of Bro. Grove Ellis, No. 188, gave great satisfaction, the music selected being the most popular melodies of the day. Messrs. Old and Bontin acted as M.C.'s. The supper reflected great credit on M. Birlet. The toasts customary on these occasions were duly honoured.

The Report of the Directors of the Crystal Palace District Company which will be presented at the Ordinary General Meeting on Friday next, the 16th instant, presents some very satisfactory features. We are informed, among other things, that the new gasholder is not only complete, but has been worked for a period sufficiently long to be thoroughly tested. Its capacity is 1,604,000 cubic feet, and the cost of erection and fitting only £17,608 12s 8d, or at the rate of £10 19s 1d per 1,000 cubic feet of capacity. The Gas Examinations of the parishes supplied by the Company as to the illuminating power of the gas continue to be satisfactory, while the price, which has been reduced to 3s 2d per 1,000 cubic feet during the present quarter, will be reduced to 3s 1d from and after Lady Day. Among the recommendations of the Directors are that the Secretary (Bro. Magnus Ohren P.G.A.D.C.) should receive an increment of salary amounting to £50, and that the following Dividends, for the half-year to 31st December last, shall be declared, namely: "5 per cent. on the Preference Stock; 7 per cent. on the Ordinary 7 per Cent. Stock; 10 per cent. on the Ordinary 10 per Cent. Stock; and 7 per cent. on the New Ordinary 7 per Cent. Shares; all less Income Tax," the total thus to be paid amounting to £11,482 12s 1d. The total authorised Capital of the Company is £400,000, of which £313,294 has been paid up. As to coals and residual products there were in store on 31st December last of the former 5,939 tons, and among the latter 1,175 dozens of 4-bushel sacks of coke, 71,079 gallons of tar, and 70,084 gallons of ammoniacal liquor, and 52 tons of sulphate of ammonia. The gas remaining in stock at the close of the year was 1,373,000 cubic feet. The capital account shows total receipts amounting to £313,294, and expenditure £290,641 18s, leaving a balance of £22,652 2s. The revenue account shows receipts from all sources to the extent of £61,151 3s 10d, of which £45,584 3s 10d is for gas rental, and £15,468 3s 8d for residual products sold: expenditure £45,793 17s 9d. leaving a balance to profit and loss of £15,357 6s 1d. The profit and loss account shows a balance of net profit to be carried to next half-year's account, subject to half-year's Dividends as recommended above, amounting to £19,007 17s 5d. The Directors, of whom Bro. Sir Erasmus Wilson P.G.D. is Chairman, are to be congratulated on having it in their power to present to the Shareholders so satisfactory a picture.

We regret that, through an oversight, we omitted Bro. Allen's list as Steward for the Gladsmuir Lodge, No. 1385, Barnet, amounting to £30 12s 6d, from the return of Hertfordshire. We have, however, in our analysis given credit for the sum not specifically, but for swelling the total, £233 4s, for that Province. We also gave Brother Festa's list for Lodge No. 1900 as £156 9s. Our esteemed brother will, no doubt, kindly note that we state it properly as £160 in our notes for this week.

We hear from Ireland that Brother Field, who was lately the subject of a murderous attack, in connection with the Irish outrages, has so far recovered from the effects that he was able, on Wednesday, to attend the duties of the Masonic Lodge of which he is a member. He met with a most cordial reception.

The meetings for the improvement of Companions in knowledge of the Ritual of the Royal Arch degree, at the Canonbury Tavern, St. Mary's Road, every Thursday evening, continue to be well attended. On the 1st instant Comp. Gregory occupied the chair of Z., Osborn H., and Pearcy J.; R. Bird S.N., Sheffield P.S. A very profitable and instructive evening was the result.

Bros. Ritter and Clifford, of the Guildhall Tavern, proprietors of the late Corporation barge, the "Maria Wood," announce that it will be moored near the winning post, at Mortlake, on Thursday, the 15th inst., the day of the University Boat Race. There will be a military band on board, and cabins will be set apart for the ladies.

The members of the Kingsland Lodge of Instruction will hold their annual supper at the Canonbury Tavern, Islington, on Monday, the 19th inst.

Miss Lingard's great success in "Camille," at the Gaiety Theatre, a fortnight ago, has induced the management to announce "La Dame aux Camélias," for a Matinée on Tuesday next, the 13th inst. Miss Lingard is an actress of considerable power and vigour, and if she remains in London as a leading lady, which there is every probability of her doing, she will be a fair exchange for Miss Ellen Terry, who is to visit New York during the present year, in company with Mr. Irving.

IRREGULAR MASONRY.

FROM THE 3rd TO THE 32nd DEGREE IN ONE NIGHT.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., 21st February 1883.—Great indignation prevails among higher degree Masons here and elsewhere in the State because of the doings of an irregular Masonic organisation that has been conferring degrees up to the 33rd, despite the fact that it is not recognised by the highest Masonic authority in the land. The irregular organisation is headed by five advanced Masons who were recently expelled from the Supreme Council to which they belonged, because they had assumed power that did not pertain to them. These Quinnipiac bodies, as they are called, started in New York state a year or two ago, and soon gained a foothold in this city, and then spread to Massachusetts. Said a prominent Mason here to day: "They confer the degrees from the 3rd to the 32nd in an evening or two for about fifteen dollars, while to go through the regular bodies takes about two months, and costs one hundred dollars. I don't know why these seceders are acting as they are, except that some have grievances against the regularly constituted authority. Others want to get the higher degrees as cheaply and quickly as they can, and others, again, see no hope of gaining the coveted 33rd degree by remaining with us, and so they branched out and formed this organisation. We recognise them so far as the three blue Lodge degrees of entered apprentice, fellow craft and master Mason are concerned, but after that the Quinnipiac bodies go on and confer degrees on their own book, that are recognised by no true Masons. In Massachusetts, however, the G. Lodge of the state has declared that any one who shall have anything to do with those Quinnipiac bodies shall forfeit all the rights and privileges of a Mason, which would throw the member out of the Blue Lodge. We shall come to that yet here, and in New York. These bogus bodies are recognised by no Supreme Council at all, while our bodies are fully recognised by the twenty-two Supreme Councils in the world." The speaker went on to say that Masons young in the Order should be warned against joining these bodies. Upon inquiry, however, the reporter learned that quite a number of men prominent as citizens, if not as Freemasons, had become identified with the Quinnipiac bodies, and that they were constantly growing, notwithstanding the anathemas of the so-called regular bodies.—Boston Herald.

BALL OF THE ECCLESTON LODGE, No. 1624.

THE Annual Ball of this flourishing Lodge was held on the 2nd instant, at Grosvenor Hall, Buckingham Palace-road, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. E. Powell, and an efficient Board of Stewards. Bros. Beckham Secretary, J. Galt Fisher I.P.M., Slatterley P.M., S. Jones P.M., W. E. Moorman, J. Purnell, C. Tayler S.W., W. Vincent P.M., A. A. Johnson, and Chilcott. The attendance was all that could be desired, while the room was beautifully decorated. By dispensation, the brethren were permitted to wear Masonic clothing; accordingly, a glittering array of jewels denoted that several of those present had attained high Masonic honours. The band was under the direction of Bro. Seaton. Bro. Chilcott ably officiated as M.C. An excellent supper was supplied by Bro. S. Raven. Bro. Powell proposed the toast of the Queen and the Craft. Bro. Fisher said although toasts were not the order of the evening, they could not separate without drinking the health of the W.M., who had ably presided over them. Bro. Powell, in reply, was pleased to see so many Masons, non Masons, and ladies grace their festive board. The Stewards were greatly indebted to them for their presence. He trusted they were pleased with the entertainment they had participated in. He would now ask the members of the Lodge to drink to the health of the Visitors and the Ladies, and would call on the youngest Officer of the Lodge, Bro. Egbert Hooper, to respond. After the toast had been acknowledged, dancing was resumed, and the enjoyment sustained till the small hours had departed. According to time-honoured custom the proceedings were brought to an end with Sir Roger de Coverley.

FREEMAN'S CHLORODYNE.

The Original and only true.

HUNDREDS of Medical Practitioners testify to its marvellous efficacy in immediately relieving and rapidly curing Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Spasms, Colic, Whooping Cough, and all Nerve Pains. It acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery. It rapidly relieves pain, from whatever cause, soothes and strengthens the system under exhausting diseases, and gives quiet and refreshing sleep.

Lord Chancellor Selborne, Lord Justice James, Lord Justice Mellish decided in favour of FREEMAN'S ORIGINAL CHLORODYNE, and against Brown and Davenport, compelling them to pay all costs in the suits. See Times of July 28th, 1873. Bottles 1s 1½d, 2s 9d, 4s 6d, 11s, and 20s. Sold by all Chemists.

TESTIMONIALS.—Head Quarter Staff, Cabul, May 31st, 1880. Mr. R. Freeman, Dear Sir,—It is with much pleasure I am able to state that your Chlorodyne has been of special service to me in alleviating the wearisome spasms of Asthma, which is here existent in an aggravated form. Many of my patients now come and beg me to give them that medicine which always relieves them, and which I need hardly say is your Chlorodyne. Yours faithfully, CHARLES W. OWEN, L.R.C.P. Lon., M.R.C.S. Eng., the Divisional Head Quarter Staff and Civil Surgeon, Cabul.

The Times, August 13th, 1877. From our own Correspondent with the Russian Army. Okoum, July 25th, 1877. The want of sanitary arrangements in the Russian Camp was dreadful, and had we remained there a few weeks longer, dysentery and typhoid fever would have played more havoc in our ranks than the bombs of the Turks. I myself acquired an unenviable reputation as a doctor, owing to my being provided with a small bottle of CHLORODYNE, with which I effected miraculous cures.

J. Morgan W.M. He was supported by Bros. Eedle as S.W., Harvey J.W., Woolley S.D., Thomas J.D., Wimble I.G., J. Rotheroe Sec., W. Martin P.M. Preceptor, Amphlett, Ledger W.M. 1564, Alfred Pusey, S. Lampen, Morland, McChristie, Noyce, Couldrey, Bellis, Anderson, Burnett J.W. Selwyn Lodge 1901, Barker P.M. 1532, Stockport, Bardsley P.M. 322, Metcalfe P.M., &c. Lodge having been opened in the first degree, the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, special applause being elicited by the announcement that Bro. Anderson had kindly presented a box, in which to preserve the furniture belonging to the Lodge of Instruction. Special reference was also made to the visit of Bro. J. Driscoll, P.M. of the United Mariners' Lodge, who rehearsed the ceremony of installation at the last meeting, in the presence of a very large assemblage of brethren and visitors. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed by the Worshipful Master, with Bro. Bardsley P.M. as candidate, Bro. W. Martin assisting with his wonted ability as Preceptor. The first section of the lecture was worked by Bro. Rotheroe, and the Lodge was then opened in the second degree, and the first section worked by Bro. Bellis, with Bro. Lever acting as Preceptor in the room of Bro. Martin, who had been obliged to leave. The working was well carried on throughout, and gave evidence of an earnest desire on the part of all present to attain proficiency. Lodge having been resumed, Bros. Burnett 1901, Barker P.M. 1532, and Bardsley P.M. were admitted members, and Bro. Amphlett was unanimously elected an honorary member of the Lodge. The brethren severally acknowledged the compliments paid them, Bro. Barker saying he could not allow the opportunity to pass without congratulating the members of this young Lodge of Instruction upon the progress it had already made, and the advantage it was likely to prove to Masons residing in this district. He had been particularly pleased with the working he had witnessed. It was his own working, which for many years had been used in his own Lodge, and he could therefore appreciate the accurate and intelligent rendering of it by the brethren present. He promised to attend as frequently as possible, feeling assured that most excellent instruction would be imparted there. Bro. Burnett followed, with a few remarks of similar import; and Bro. Bardsley said it had given him a considerable amount of pleasure to have been elected a member of this very excellent Lodge. He had received a great deal of instruction that evening. He alluded to the lack of such means of Masonic practice and edification in the Provinces, and spoke of the advantages which were to be derived from Lodges of Instruction generally, and particularly when they were presided over by such efficient Officers as they had that night. Bro. Eedle was then unanimously elected W.M. for next Wednesday evening, when it was announced that Bro. Nicol, W.M. of the Selwyn Lodge, No. 1901, would (by permission) work the installation ceremony. Bro. Rotheroe announced that the Fifteen Sections will be worked here on the last Wednesday evening in the month, when he hoped to see a large attendance of brethren. Visitors are most cordially welcomed at this Lodge of Instruction, which is held at the Lugard, every Wednesday evening, from 7.30 to 9.30 p.m.

New Concord Lodge of Instruction, No. 813.—This successful Lodge held its usual meeting on Wednesday, the 28th ultimo, when the Fifteen Sections were worked by the brethren of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction. Bro. J. C. Smith A.M.C. 1744 presiding as W.M., supported by Bros. James Hemming M.C. 1287 S.W., F. W. Sillis M.C. 1744 J.W., Stiles P.M. 1507 acting Preceptor, Perl Secretary, Martin S.D., Marks J.D., Ashton I.G.; also Bros. Solomon 1732, Smith 813, Priestly 659, Dixie 453, Goldney 1702, Edwards 1107, E. Barrett-Kidder 12, Ashton 1507, Oldham 1365, Dixie 453, Saunders 1507, Bevan 749, Flack 1306, Stevenson 813, Marx 957, Cox 753, Loring 171, Weeden 813, Carter 615, Potter 813, Gyer 861, Sheffield 413, Flack 1538, Colepepper 1687, Laughton 1839. Lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. then proceeded to work the sections of the three lectures, assisted by the following brethren: — First Lecture — Knight, Perl, Solomon, Edwards, Sillis, Larchin, Ager. Second Lecture—Fenner, Hemming, Gush, Martin, Fox. Third Lecture — Edmonds, Storr, Emblin. Lodge was resumed to the first degree, and several of the above named brethren were proposed and elected as members; after which Brother Fenner proposed and Brother Weeden seconded that honorary membership of the Lodge be conferred upon Bros. Smith the W.M., Hemming S.W., Sillis J.W., and Stiles acting Preceptor, which was unanimously carried. It was proposed that a vote of thanks be recorded on the minutes to the brethren who had so ably assisted in the working of the sections, to which Brother Edwin Storr responded. All Masonic business being ended, Lodge was closed in due form. The interest shown in this Lodge on all occasions is sufficient recommendation for Craftsmen to pay it a visit.

THE MOST BRILLIANT AND ECONOMICAL DOMESTIC LIGHT EXTANT.
It equals Gas for Simplicity, but surpasses it for Illuminating Power.

IT burns without a chimney, a pine-shaped globe only being required, which has never been known to break from the heat of the flame. It will give more light than any other lamp with a wick of equal size. The combustion is so perfect that it deodorises the oil, and burns absolutely without smell, giving an intense pure white and beautiful light. It is unrivalled for simplicity in lighting, cleaning, and trimming, and is, in fact, the perfection of artificial light. Suitable for Cottage or Mansion, Churches, Chapels, &c.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL ELECTION.

THE ballot paper for the Girls' School Election, to take place on Saturday, the 14th proximo, discloses a state of affairs which may be described as most satisfactory. Of the twenty-eight candidates recorded thereon, as seeking to be admitted to a participation in the benefits of the Institution, no less than twenty-two can be immediately admitted, so that there will only remain six at the close of the day's poll who will have to be sent away as unsuccessful. Doubtless it would be better in many ways, if these six disappointments could be prevented, and all the candidates now before the Craft could be taken on without the trouble and anxiety of an election, but we must not forget that it is by adopting such a course in the more immediate past that the list of candidates now seeking to be admitted to the Girls' School has been reduced to so small a number, and, however much we may wish to help all who need it, we must not be continually increasing the number of claimants on the funds merely because a very small addition will enable us to admit all. These small additions speedily resolve themselves into a large total, and in the end we shall find it necessary to reduce the numbers. There are many other arguments which might be brought forward why it would not be good policy to take all the candidates on next month, but we have so often spoken on both sides of the question, that it is hardly necessary to do so again. Having decided that an election is desirable, we shall now devote our attention to our usual brief survey of the several cases, though, as usual, we must leave it to the friends of the various candidates to make known to the Craft any particular claims which their protégés have for special consideration; for ourselves, we can only form a general opinion.

There are three candidates on the list about whose success there should be no doubt—we allude to the three who are parentless—No. 12, Ethel C. Hippey, No. 20, Blanche B. Garner, and No. 27, Angela G. Shervill. With these there can be no question as to urgency; a family with neither father nor mother must at all times create sympathy, particularly so among Masons, when the children are the offspring of a deceased brother. We hope that every voter who is not personally interested in one or other of the remaining twenty-five cases will assure himself that these three are certain of success, before taking any other into consideration. It would perhaps be invidious to make any comparison as regards these three, we shall therefore take them in the order in which they stand on the list. No. 12, E. C. Hippey, is one of four children of a late member of the Alfred Lodge, No. 340, Oxfordshire, left to the care of friends; she has made one previous application, on which occasion she had 667 votes recorded on her behalf, a number which will, we think, have to be considerably exceeded next month to secure a place. Nos. 20 and 27 are each first applications; the former, B. A. Garner, being one of a family of six, and the latter, A. G. Shervill, one of four who are left parentless. They are both London cases, and we trust will each receive sufficient support to place them in the School.

Of the remaining cases eleven are second applications, and fourteen first. No. 11, Maud P. Keily, heads the list so far as number of votes brought forward is concerned, her total from October last being 1762. She is one of two children now dependent on a widowed mother, whose husband, during his lifetime, appears to have taken considerable interest in the Charities and general welfare of the Order. Next comes No. 1, Ethel A. Hill, who brings forward 1565 votes as the result of the last poll; she is one of three children left to the care of their mother. Her father was a member of the Westbourne Lodge, No. 733, London. No. 5, Florence Mason, daughter of a late member of the Independence Lodge, No. 721, Cheshire, is one of five children left dependent; she has 1388 votes brought forward, and possesses special claims for the coming election from the fact that it will be the last at which she can take a part, in consequence of the age limit. We are pleased to find this is the only "last application" case on the present list, and must confess it had escaped our notice, or we should have included it among the cases first deserving of notice. We trust that the success of this girl will be assured. No. 4, Frances A. Prebble, follows, with a total of 1255 votes to the good; here also a good Province is accredited with the case, the father having belonged to the Corinthian Lodge, No. 1208, Kent, doubtless sufficient support will be forthcoming to secure a place for her among the "successful." Kate Stokes, No. 6, has 978 votes in hand; she is a member of a large family left to the care of a widowed mother, who, let us hope, will ere long be relieved of the charge of this daughter. The father of No. 8, Florence M. G. Willcox, is still living, and is left, we are told, with the care of her and one other child. Doubtless, there are good reasons why his daughter should be admitted to the benefits of the Institution, and it may be very hard on him to have to draw particular attention to her case, but we again urge that, under such circumstances as his, some fuller information should be given by the authorities than is here supplied. Unfortunately, very many brethren are placed in a similar position to Brother Willcox, so far as being left with a family of motherless children is concerned; and we therefore think that the additional particulars we have long asked for in such cases should be given in the ballot papers. It must not be imagined that we have any fault to find with the case of Florence Willcox in particular: it is the class of candidates of which she is a member of which we write, and on the present occasion our remarks will equally apply to No. 3, Ellen Hayes, who will be mentioned later on. Bro. Willcox is accredited to the Royal Cumberland Lodge, No. 41, Somersetshire, and has already polled 782 votes on behalf of this daughter. No. 9, Isabella McLeod (Hants and Isle of Wight), brings forward 541 votes, she and one other child are now dependent on the mother, her father having died in 1881. No. 7, Florence M. Beavon, comes to us from abroad, her father having been a member of the St. Andrew Lodge, No. 500, Madras. She only secured 264 votes at the last contest, and, as one of four fatherless children, now appeals for further aid: it is to be hoped the appeal will not be in vain. No. 3, Ellen Hayes, is another Hampshire case, and is the girl already referred to as having her father still alive. He is left with this girl and four other children; but what claims he has on his brother Masons we are unable to say—she polled 214 votes last October. No. 10, Minnie Woodward, is another foreign case, her father having been a member of the Inhabitants Lodge, No. 153, Gibraltar; she is one of six fatherless children, and goes to the poll on the present occasion with 110 votes in hand. No. 2, Kate Wortley, closes the list of second application cases; she is one of five children now dependent on a widowed mother, the father having been a member of Marquis of Granby Lodge, No. 124, Durham, and an Officer in Provincial Grand Lodge. She has only 67 votes brought forward, but her case is, we feel sure, in good hands—the brethren of the North will not let a deserving orphan be sent away as unsuccessful if it lies in their power to prevent it.

Two of the first application cases have already been disposed of, and of the remainder, No. 15, Elizabeth Midgley, and No. 26, G. A. I. Musgrave, perhaps call for first attention, from the fact that they are members of the largest families, each forming one of seven dependent on widowed mothers. The former hails from West Yorks, the latter from Middlesex.' No. 17, Jane Smith (Kent), No. 21, Helen Grabham (West Lancashire), and No. 24, Ada E. Fearon (Cumberland and Westmoreland), follow very closely, each of their mothers having families of six dependent on them. Fortunately, they are all accredited to good Provinces, and stand a fair chance of succeeding. The father of No. 21 (Grabham), as a dramatic author, and member of the Liverpool Dramatic Lodge, should find a large body of supporters among the followers of his profession, who are well known as among the most benevolent. Let us hope the daughter of their old comrade will be especially favoured on this occasion. No. 23, Emily G. Carruthers, also from Cumberland, is one of five fatherless children; while No. 13, Jane W. Hutchings; 14, Florence H. Trotman; and 22, Helen M. Henshaw, all of London, each form one of families of four similarly circumstanced. No. 18, Annie L. Ochsenbein (London), and No. 25, Sylvia M. Haworth (West Lancashire), come next, as members of families of three, followed by No. 16, Mildred A. Weighton (London), one of two fatherless children. The two remaining cases are, No. 19, Edith M. Bates, and No. 28, Caroline L. Weare, the former a London case, the latter a Leicestershire one. Each of these girls are the only children left to the care of their widowed mothers; and, strange to say, the fathers of each moved in the same sphere during their lifetime, the one having been an hotel manager, the other an hotel keeper. Although they now occupy the last place on our list, we hope after the election they may have risen to that point they are entitled to on their merits.

We shall next week devote attention to the Boys' List, which, as usual, is a far more difficult undertaking than the one now brought to a conclusion.

THE RECENT MEETING OF GRAND LODGE.

THERE are certain matters in connection with the recent meeting of Grand Lodge which, in our judgment, appear to call for some comment. In describing the agenda paper, we suggested with reference to the Bulwer Lodge, No. 1068, Cairo, that, as its erasure had been voted at the December Communication, and its reinstatement as a working Lodge was to be proposed on Wednesday, the 7th inst., it would be more business-like if some one moved the non-confirmation of so much of the December minutes as concerned the erasure of the Lodge in question. In the event of such motion being carried, there would be no erasure of the Bulwer Lodge necessary, and, as a consequence, no reinstatement of it in its old position. As the case stands now, Grand Lodge has voted the erasure of a Lodge, and within a few minutes after, speaking, of course, comparatively, has ruled that it shall be permitted to retain its place on the roll, and continue its labours. This may be an amusing way of treating a subject of some importance, but no one will be so bold as to declare it business-like.

But however silly such a proceeding may appear to the reader, it is comparatively of little moment by the side of the new doctrine which carried the day by so large a majority as to the Treasurership of Grand Lodge. There is no doubt the course adopted was an innovation, and, as such, was calculated to excite a strong sense of opposition on the part of those who prefer abiding by the old method or prescription. But it seems to us that, in the circumstances, this innovation was one which, in the course of time, and when the present feeling of irritation has had an opportunity of subsiding, will find favour with the general body of the Craft. The Grand Treasurership, as it was anterior to the election of Colonel Creaton, was a post to which very heavy responsibilities were attached. The brother appointed to fulfil its duties required time and experience in order to perfect himself in his duties, and, consequently it would have been an injustice to have suggested a change of Treasurer just when the brother had had time to settle himself down to the performance of his functions and was fully conversant with whatever he was likely to be called upon to do. The case is different now. The Grand Treasurership is as much an honorary destination conferred on some meritorious brother as is a Grand Wardenship or Grand Deaconship. As regards business, it is a mere sinecure, the affixing of his signature to cheques being about the sole duty the Grand Treasurer is ever called upon to perform. Formerly, it was a business office, or, to speak more euphuistically, a position of great responsibility. Now it is an ornamental office, to which any brother who has deserved well of the Craft may justifiably aspire to be elected. The suggestion, therefore, that the Grand Treasurership should no longer be regarded as a life appointment during good behaviour was a very sensible one, especially as it is the only appointment, save that of Grand Master, in which Grand Lodge has any voice, and consequently, affords the only opportunity for the Craft generally, through its representatives, to honour one whom it is anxious to honour. As to the election of any brother to the position so worthily filled during the past four years by Colonel Creaton being calculated to show a diminution of respect, even in the slightest degree, for that esteemed and estimable Grand Officer, we cannot bring ourselves to seriously regard any such suggestion. Colonel Creaton's services are too well known, and too generally respected by his brethren to need any such plea on his behalf. But because he has acquitted himself well, that offers no substantial reason why some other brother should not be chosen to fulfil his duties, being, as they are, of a merely honorary, or, we may even venture to say, ornamental character. We congratulate Brother Allcroft on his election, not because he has been chosen in preference to Colonel Creaton, but because we believe he will reflect some portion of the honour just conferred on him by Grand Lodge. We sympathise with Bro. Colonel Creaton in his rejection, not so much because he has been superseded in his office of Grand Treasurer, but because his cause has been advocated by friends who insisted on making his election a kind of personal test of merit. At the same time, we feel it our duty to protest against the unseemly interjections of many members of Grand Lodge when Brother Philbrick expressed himself as being in favour of the re-election of Colonel Creaton. Such conduct was conspicuously un-Masonic, and, though we do not agree with the views he expressed, we loyally concede to him, what we claim for ourselves, the right of expressing our opinion in open Lodge.

We are always gratified in being able to announce the establishment of new Associations in connection with our Charitable Institutions. The members of the Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction, meeting at Brother Meekham's, the Alwyne Castle, St. Paul's Road, Canonbury, N., last month formed a Masonic Benevolent Association, and shares to the number of seventy have already been subscribed for. It is within the last few days that we specially referred to the large sums of money being raised by energetic Craftsmen in connection with these Associations, and we look forward to the brethren of the Royal Standard making a goodly contribution in support of the Festivals of the Scholastic Institutions during the present year.

METROPOLITAN LODGE OF INSTRUCTION, No. 1507.

"IT is the hope of reward that sweetens labour," is an axiom frequently brought to our notice in Masonic Lodges, but it is equally well recognised amongst us that all who work do not get full reward for their exertions. However this may be, when we find that the services of a zealous brother are appreciated, and so far as in them lies, are recognised by those with whom he may be associated, it is an exceedingly pleasant duty that devolves upon us when we are called upon to chronicle the proceedings. On Friday last, the 9th instant, we attended at the Holborn Restaurant, where the members of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction had assembled to celebrate their Annual Banquet. The chair was taken by Bro. Henry Stiles W.M. of the Mother Lodge, who was well supported by a representative gathering from several Lodges, who had attended to do honour to the occasion. After a well served repast had been done justice to, and grace said, the W.M. rose and gave the comprehensive toast—Loyalty to the Throne, and Devotion to the Craft. The Preceptor, Bro. W. Mason Stiles, proposed the health of his brother, the president of the evening, modestly referring to his many qualities, and testifying to the interest with which he watched the working of the Lodge of Instruction. After this compliment had been acknowledged, Bro. W. Mason Stiles rose to propose a toast which—he stated—had been purposely kept out of the printed list. It was the health of the Secretary of the Lodge of Instruction, Bro. E. Storr, who during the time he had occupied that position, had endeared himself to the members. Bro. W. M. Stiles, in making the presentation, made some happy remarks regarding Bro. Storr, to whom he said the Members of the Lodge of Instruction were much indebted for his zeal and energy. Nothing was a trouble to him; he was ever willing to do his best for the Lodge. Recently he (Bro. Storr) had taken to himself a wife, and the members had deemed the occasion a fitting opportunity to make him a presentation, as a token of their appreciation of his labours. Bro Stiles then formally made the presentation, which took the shape of a handsome pianoforte; and for those who desire a full and detailed account of the said gift, we feel we cannot do better than give the description as furnished us by our esteemed Bro. John Weston, of the firm Mornington and Weston, of Camden Town, who supplied the instrument:—A seven octave iron cottage grand walnut pianoforte, Barrwood fall, incised and gilt panelled front, with sconces, carved truss legs, iron front frame, with trichord tenor and treble." Bro. Edwin Storr, who was completely overpowered by the unexpected honour that had been done him, regretted that words failed him to adequately respond for the kind and very flattering manner in which the toast of his health had been received. It was indeed a red letter day for him when he entered the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction. Since his appointment as Secretary, he had done his best for the Lodge, but the great success which they had experienced was due, he thought, to each individual member. The handsome present he had received that evening had so completely taken him by surprise that he could hardly find words to express his thanks. He hoped that his scantiness of utterance would be taken, not as meaning that his gratitude was slight, but really as implying that his feeling of thankfulness was too great for words. There were several other toasts given during the evening, and some interesting facts were elicited. The Lodge of Instruction had, during the twelve months, given out of its accumulated funds five guineas to each of the Masonic Charitable Institutions, while a sum of no less than £500 had been realised during the last three years by the Charitable Association in connection with the Lodge. The evening's proceedings were concluded with some capital songs and musical selections. Among the company present were Bros. Lewis Solomon W.M. 1732 S.W., E. E. Barrett-Kidder I.P.M. 12 J.W., C. J. Scales P.M. 1507 Treasurer, E. Storr S.D. 167 Secretary, G. W. Knight, G. Clark jun., A. Simner, F. Ashton, F. W. Sillis, H. Dickey, J. W. Ager, J. C. Smith (who presided at the pianoforte), R. W. Fraser, A. Harman, T. M. Ormiston, M. Little, J. W. Tubby, E. C. Botley, and the following Visitors:—Bros. F. Adlard P.M. 7, Jno. Weston Past Master 1602, W. R. Heasman Past Master 1437, R. W. Galer 1366, C. Weeden 813, E. Mayo 1732, R. Roper 1507, E. Secker 179, G. Dickinson 1681, R. Dormer 1507, T. Moody 1507, G. F. Moses 1017, Paul Storr, F. A. Kelly 1524, W. W. Morgan Senior Warden 211.

The pianoforte bore the following inscription:—

"Presented to Bro. Edwin Storr, S.D. 167, by the member sof the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1507, on his Marriage, and in appreciation of his valued services as Secretary."

Bro. Tito Mattei announces a Grand Evening Concert at St. James's Hall for Saturday evening the 12th May, at 8·30. On that occasion he will be assisted by some of the most talented artistes of the day. The beneficiaire's musical ability is well known and appreciated, and those who desire to obtain tickets can procure them from Bro. Mattei, 46 Carlton Hill, N.W.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally, and the Ointment rubbed externally, are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, and surest. Holloway's Pills and Ointment purify the blood, remove all obstructions to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the overgorged air tubes, and render respiration free without reducing the strength, irritating the nerves, or depressing the spirits. Such are the ready means of saving suffering when afflicted with colds, coughs, bronchitis, and other complaints by which so many are seriously and permanently afflicted in most countries.

LEANDER SWIMMING CLUB.

THE annual distribution of prizes and entertainment in connection with this prosperous young club, which was started with the object of promoting the art of swimming amongst young men engaged in the City and suburbs, took place on Thursday, the 8th inst., in the Lecture Hall, Park Road, Peckham, and the event was attended with the most gratifying success. There was a large and appreciative audience, under the presidency of the Rev. H. Knee, who, in awarding the prizes gained in the various competitions during the last season, adverted to the importance and advantage of such clubs, as the means of enabling young persons to acquire the very useful art of swimming. The awards were then distributed, in the following order of merit:—H. Bennett (four prizes—an Albert chain, opera glasses, claret jug, and medal); H. Broughton (three—a watch album, and Maltese cross; R. W. Webb (three—butter cooler, album, and two volumes); George Barnes (two—album and medal); J. Dorward (two—cup and timepiece); C. Thornton (two—album and watch); Henry Mayhew (silver pencil case), G. Coffin (candlestick), A. Lambert (silver pencil case), E. Harris (album). The entertainment opened with a pianoforte solo—"Danse Napolitaine" (Sydney Smith), brilliantly played by Miss Ada Turner, who in the second part gave Kuhe's Selection from "Patience" in equally creditable manner, and won a substantial tribute of appreciation. This young lady combines with careful study a nicety of touch which gives promise of more than ordinary ability, and her efforts on this occasion were deservedly acknowledged. Mr. Henry Verrall was encored after singing Godfrey Marks' familiar song, "Sailing," and substituted "Cherry Ripe." In these, as in "The Powder Monkey," later on, he was warmly received. Mr. Alfred R. Turner recited "The Vulgar Little Boy," and "Faithless Sally Brown," with much natural humour, and succeeded in provoking genuine merriment; and a couple of recitations, "The Bridal Wine Cup," and "Beautiful Snow," were also given by Miss Richardson. The gem of the evening was unquestionably the singing of Miss Rose Moss, L.A.M. (gold medalist), who was heartily encored after singing Balfe's "I'm but a simple Peasant Maid," for which she substituted "I've just had a letter." In the second part she sang, in excellent voice, Roeckel's "Little April Fool," for which she was again rewarded with an undeniable encore. Mr. G. W. Osborn sang Blumenthal's "My Queen," and Stephen Adams's "The Little Hero," for the latter of which he was encored, and sang "Twilight," remarkably well. Mr. George North (buffo) sang Moore's "Three Comical Ghosts," and the ever amusing "Awful Little Scrub," which were both well received; and the complement of the programme was made up by a pleasing duet by Messrs. G. W. Osborn and H. Verrall, who sang the "Larboard Watch," in capital style. Miss Ada Turner lent valuable assistance as accompanyist on the pianoforte; and the entertainment was brought to a close with the National Anthem.

The Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution met on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. Bro. C. J. Perceval was called to the chair, and the following brethren were also present, viz.:—Bros. T. W. Bush, James Brett, G. Bolton, W. Marsh, C. H. Webb, John Bulmer, W. H. Goodall, G. P. Festa, John L. Mather, A. H. Tattershall, C. A. Cottebrune, C. G. Dilley, G. L. Moore, W. F. Nettleship, Thomas Cubitt, and E. C. Massey. After the confirmation of the previous minutes, and the reading of the Warden's Report, the Secretary reported that three annuitants had died since the last meeting. Bro. Terry reported that since the Festival on the previous Wednesday, when the result announced was £13,043 1s, with nine lists to come in, two lists had been received, which raised the amount to £13,141 10s. A moiety of her late husband's annuity was granted to Mrs. T. A. Watts, the widow of Brother Watts, whose death was reported at last meeting, the proofs of her age and the date of her marriage showing that she was entitled to the same under the Rules, and a cheque for the first quarter's payment was signed. Bro. Terry reported that a cheque for £10s 10s, in aid of the Funds of the Institution, had been received from the Felix Lodge (Scotch Constitution) of Aden, and stated that this was the first instance of a donation having been received from a Lodge under a foreign Constitution.

The rehearsal of the installation ceremony, which was announced to take place on Tuesday next, the 20th inst., at the Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, No. 65, has been unavoidably postponed.

The meetings of the Sincerity Lodge of Instruction, No. 174, will for the future be held at the Railway Tavern, Railway Place, Fenchurch Street, on Monday evenings, at seven o'clock, commencing on Monday next, the 19th inst. Bro. H. J. Cant, J.W. 1816, is the Secretary, and Bro. C. H. Webb, 1607 and 174, is the Preceptor.

ROYAL NATIONAL LIFE-BOAT INSTITUTION.

ON Tuesday, the 13th inst., the Annual General Meeting of the friends and supporters of the Royal National Life-boat Institution was held at Willis's Rooms, St. James's, London, His Grace the Duke of Northumberland P.C. D.C.L., in the chair. There were present, amongst others, Edward Birkbeck, Esq. M.P., Sir Edward Perrott, Bart., Admiral Phillimore, L. T. Cave Esq, The Rt. Hon. Earl Percy, M.P., Colonel Fitzroy Clayton, George Palmer Esq., Rev. F. L. Moysey, Capt. Herbert Perrott, Colonel Iredell, Eugene F. Noel Esq., Rev. Theophilus Echalaz, R. M. Ballantyne Esq. Colonel E. H. Parkes, Ion T. Hamilton Esq., M.P., Admiral Kennedy C.B., The Rt. Hon. Earl of Courtown, W. H. Lyall Esq., M.A., W. H. Harton Esq., Vice-Admiral G. S. Hand, C.B., Colonel Colville, Admiral Ward, Capt. The Hon. F. Maude, R.N., Charles Clayton Esq., and Admiral Sir Claude Buckle, K.C.B.

The President, in opening the proceedings said, that during the past year the Institution had gone on increasing, not only in efficiency, but in public favour, and he believed the report would fully justify the statement. The Institution was one that required no advertisement, because every tempest that swept our shores was an advertisement of its operations. The noise of the storm proclaimed the utility of the Institution, and called to mind the efforts it had successfully made to meet the fury of the tempest. The Life-boat services during the year had been most severe, and many lives had been saved in the face of the most fearful danger. He was sorry to say that Mr Thomas Chapman, the esteemed Chairman of the Institution, had, in consequence of ill-health, been compelled to resign that office. So great had been the services rendered by that gentleman, that it would be a great responsibility for any one who followed him in that position; yet he believed the choice had fallen on a gentleman who would fully justify the event, viz., Mr. Edward Birkbeck, M.P. In conclusion, he might say that the support received from the public during the year was in the same proportion as in previous years, and he must express his belief that there was no institution in England which had so deep a root in the hearts of the nation as the Royal National Life-boat Institution. He believed the sentiment would find an echo in the bosom of every one present.

The annual report which was then read to the meeting, stated that since the last Annual Meeting nine new Life-boats had been placed on the coasts of the British Isles, there now being 273 Life-boats under the management of the Society. During the past year its Life-boats had saved seven hundred and forty-one persons from wrecked vessels, nearly the whole of them under perilous circumstances. The storms of the past winter had been very violent and destructive to life and property, but happily the Life-boat men had performed on those occasions most gallant services. The Life-boats had also helped to rescue 23 vessels from destruction. For those services, and for saving 143 lives by fishing boats and other means, 11 Silver Medals and Clasps, 19 votes of thanks inscribed on vellum, and £3,134 had been granted. The number of lives saved since the establishment of the Institution, either by its Life-boats or by special exertions for which it had granted rewards, was 29,608. The Committee cordially acknowledged the continued co-operation of the Local Branch Committees and their Honorary Secretaries, and the Coast Guard, boatmen and fishermen. Many very liberal donations and legacies received during the past year were gratefully acknowledged. The total amount of the donations, subscriptions, and dividends received during that period had been £43,117, and the expenditure had amounted to £36,746. The items of receipt and expenditure were fully detailed in the financial statement laid before the meeting, audited, as usual, by Mr. Lovelock, Public Accountant. The report concluded by stating that the organisation of the Institution was never more complete and active than at the present time; and thus the Committee were prompted afresh, and with unshaken confidence, to appeal for continued and increasing support to an Institution which, with God's blessing, had been, and is productive of such manifestly gratifying results in the cause of humanity, and whose work will ever be needed so long as British trade and commerce endure.

The Earl of Courtown moved the adoption of the report. He adverted to the fact that on the Continent there were now various Life-boat Societies in existence on the model of the National Life-boat Institution of England, which had rendered good service in the preservation of life from shipwreck.

Mr. R. M. Ballantyne seconded the resolution, and said that the moral influence of the Institution on the nation was very great, and was proved by the great variety of subscriptions which came in from all parts. He believed the Society was the means of drawing out the good feelings and philanthropy of the nation in a remarkable degree, and he wished it every success.

The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Ion T. Hamilton, M.P., moved the second resolution:—

"That this meeting, appreciating the invaluable services of the National Life-boat Institution in the philanthropic work of saving human lives, congratulates the Managing Committee on the continued prosperity and success which have rewarded their exertions, and which it trusts the Institution may long continue to merit and achieve."

He said that the storms on the coast of his native country, Ireland, were severe and dreadful, and many lives were saved there by the Society's boats. It was true they were surrounded by the "melancholy ocean," but they had as well the Life-boats with their gallant crews ever ready when danger arose, and that fact gave them a confidence they could never otherwise enjoy.

Capt. The Hon. Francis Maude, R.N., seconded the resolution, and congratulated the Institution on its continued success and prosperity.

Mr. F. J. Robinson moved, and Colonel Iredell seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the Committees of the Parent and Branch Institutions for their continued earnest and active co-operation, which was responded to by Mr. Birkbeck, M.P., who paid a tribute of deep respect and esteem to the late Chairman, Mr. Chapman, and said that it was a matter for congratulation that everything connected with the Life-boat work was in such a state of efficiency.

The next resolution:—

"That this Meeting testifies afresh to the skill and indomitable spirit that continue to distinguish the Coxswains and Crews of the Life-boats, whose noble exertions were the means of saving no less than seven hundred and forty-one lives during the past year."

was moved by Admiral Phillimore, who pointed out that all the contributions of the public and the appliances of the Institution would be of no avail without the gallant crews to man the boats. The resolution was seconded by Colonel Fitzroy Clayton, and carried unanimously.

On the motion of Mr. Edward Birkbeck, seconded by Sir Edward Perrott, Bart., a cordial vote of thanks was given to the noble Chairman for presiding, and the proceedings terminated.

Obituary.

WE regret to announce the death, on Friday last, the 9th inst., of R.W. Bro. Lord Sherborne, Past Prov. Grand Master, and Grand Superintendent of Gloucestershire. It is barely three years since his Lordship resigned these offices, having held the P.G. Mastership for a period of twenty-four years, and that of P.G. Superintendent for twenty years. During the whole of that period he had taken an active part in the concerns of Freemasonry, and had done all in his power to promote its welfare. Lord Sherborne was in the seventy-ninth year of his age at the time of his decease, and there is no doubt his memory will long be cherished, not only by his Gloucestershire brethren, but also by the whole English Fraternity. Our deceased brother was a liberal supporter of our Charities, and it was during his term of office as Prov. Grand Master that the Masonic Benevolent Association of Gloucestershire was established.

Bro. Alderman Sir Thomas White died suddenly on Thursday evening, of apoplexy, having been present at a dinner at the Mansion House, within the twenty-four hours preceding his decease. Sir Thomas White, though we have not heard of his having taken an active part in Free-Masonry, was so highly respected by his brethren that certain among them founded a Lodge—No. 1826—and named it after him, as the Sir Thomas White Lodge. He was also highly respected by his brother magistrates of the City of London, as well as by those of the Counties of Essex and Middlesex. We offer to his family our respectful sympathy in the loss they have sustained.

A most useful pocket companion for members of the Masonic Order in this county has just been published under the authority of the P.G. Master, in the form of a calendar, for the Province of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight. The work has been compiled with great care by Brother G. Felton Lancaster P.M. P.P.G. Deacon, and Bro. J. Eidd Hayman P.M. P.G. Registrar. The calendar contains the dates of the meetings of every Lodge, Chapter, and other Masonic bodies in the county, and is very neatly arranged. Some elaborate tables are inserted in the work, and will be found most valuable for purposes of reference. These contain lists of the officers of the various Lodges, Royal Arch Chapters, Mark Masters' Lodges, Royal Ark Mariners' Lodges, Rose Croix Chapters, and Knight Templars' Preceptories, with the names and addresses of the Secretaries, and days and places of meeting; list of the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge, from 1833 to the present date, and of the Prov. Grand Chapter and P.G. Mark Masons' Lodge from the date of the establishment. There is also a list of local subscribers to the Masonic Charities, with the number of votes to which each is entitled, in addition to other interesting details concerning the Craft. The book is nicely bound in blue cloth, and every Freemason in the county ought to feel himself bound to purchase a copy. The profits on the sale will be handed to the Masonic Charities.—Portsmouth Times.

The Brothers Monico, London Lodge, No. 108, after a successful career, extending over many years, during which they have catered to the satisfaction of numerous friends and the public, have just had their magnificent room redecorated and embellished. It may now be pronounced one of the finest rooms in the metropolis where luncheons and dinners can be obtained.

THE WOLSELEY LODGE, No. 1993.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am desirous of drawing your attention and that of your readers to a printed circular relating to the consecration of the Wolseley Lodge, No. 1993, Manchester, which, we have been given to understand, is to be conducted on so-called "Temperance" principles. This circular, which is quite a curiosity—and I should hope a unique one—in Masonic correspondence, has been lent me by a friend who received it in his official capacity as the Master of a Provincial Lodge which meets in a pretty little town not fifty miles distant from the metropolis. He is not aware that he is indebted for the circular to any acquaintance with either the W.M. Elect or the Provisional Secretary of the Lodge that is to be. Indeed, the fact of the circular being printed and addressed to the "W.M. or Secy. of the Masonic Lodge at "—— has induced both him and me to suppose that copies of it have been issued broadcast, for what purpose we are not, as a matter of course, in a position to state precisely, though both of us seem to be of the opinion that it is not exactly in accordance with Masonic usage or custom.

The circular announces that the Wolseley Lodge will be consecrated "at 2.30 p.m. on Wednesday, 28th March 1883, at the Cathedral Schools, Corporation Street, Manchester," by Bro. Col. Le G. N. Starkie the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of East Lancashire; that Bro. Lord Wolseley, in addition to a large number of noble and distinguished brethren (including Grand Lodge Officers and Rulers of the Craft) have consented to be present;" and that "after the ceremony, at 5.30 p.m. a banquet will be held in the Free Trade Hall, Peter Street, the tickets for which will be One Guinea each."

The document goes on to point out that "as the number of tickets will be limited, the Provisional Secretary will be glad if the brother to whom it is addressed will notify him "as early as possible (and on the enclosed form), stating the number required for the brethren of his Lodge, so that proper arrangements may be made for their reception;" and that, "if a goodly number of Brethren are coming" from his town, he (the Provisional Secretary) "will endeavour to make some special railway arrangements." It is added "no application can be entertained after March 21st," and directions are given in a footnote as to the remittance of the price of the tickets required, while a form of "Application for Tickets" is given, with blank spaces left for the number of tickets required, the amount for which cheque or P.O. Order is enclosed, the address to which the tickets are to be sent, the signature of the applicant, and the name and number of the Lodge of which he is Secretary. Underneath is a tabular form with room for the insertion of the names of eight brethren with their rank in the Craft, and the names and numbers of the Lodges to which they severally belong.

I have said that neither I nor my friend can divine what is the purpose in view in issuing such a circular. I will add that neither of us, though connected with Freemasonry for some years, has ever yet heard of a like instance in which the "Provisional Secretary" of a Lodge about to be consecrated has issued such a circular "by request of the W.M. Elect"—by the way, the correct expression, I believe, is "W.M. Designate." For my own part, I can see nothing whatever to justify the proceedings on the part of the said W.M. There is nothing unusual in the consecration of a new Lodge, that outside brethren unacquainted with its constituent or intending members should be invited to witness the ceremony, and subscribe a guinea towards the banquet that customarily follows—to say nothing of the expense they must incur in travelling to and fro. It is, no doubt, a matter for sincere congratulation in Masonic circles that Manchester, which is a large and populous city, should be on the eve of adding one more to its list of Lodges, but the chief interest in such an event of necessity centres in Manchester and its more immediate vicinity, or, at all events in the Province to which Manchester belongs. It has been announced publicly that this "Wolseley" Lodge is to be conducted on "Temperance"—that is, I presume, on "Teetotal" principles—and "Temperance," even though it may not exactly amount to "Teetotalism," is one of the virtues in the practice of which all Masons undoubtedly take a warm interest. But why should circulars be issued indiscriminately, inviting brethren who are perfect strangers, whether teetotallers or not, to be present, unless, perchance, "the W.M. Elect" is desirous of making the consecration of his new Lodge an occasion for disseminating "teetotal" principles? If this is the idea which led to the issue of these circulars, I can only say it is distinctly opposed to the spirit of Freemasonry, which absolutely prohibits our Lodges from being made arenas for the discussion of political and religious questions. I cheerfully concede to my teetotal brethren their right to abstain from all alcoholic stimulants; but, in doing so, I claim for myself full liberty to enjoy, undisturbed by any discussion as to the comparative merits of total abstinence and moderate indulgence, my glass or two of wine, beer, or spirit. I have spent, and hope again and again to spend, many an enjoyable evening with teetotal friends. They indulged in their particular vanity of tea, coffee, toast and water, or what not, and I had my glass of wine or grog. We got on admirably together, because the subject of teetotalism was never alluded to. Had any one of us had the indelicacy to introduce it, there would have been an end of all enjoyment. I shall, no doubt, be told that teetotalism is neither a political nor a religious question, but a question of public morality, which all Freemasons are bound to uphold both by precept and practice. In replying to this objection it is open to me to adopt either one of two courses. I may deny it in toto, on the ground that, as one-third of the national revenue is derived from the consumption of alcoholic liquors, teetotalism is a question of politics, seeing that politics must necessarily include the fiscal arrangements required for the government of the country. If, on the other hand, I concede that teetotalism is purely a social question affecting public morals, it is open to me to retort that, even in such case, its discussion, or any attempt at disseminating its principles in open Lodge or at Lodge banquets, must inevitably partake of a controversial character. It is for this reason, and not because they are in themselves objectionable, that the discussion of religious and political questions is forbidden in our Lodges, and it is on this ground that I most decidedly set my face against a Masonic Lodge being made a medium for the teaching of social principles to which I am altogether opposed.

But why this flourish of trumpets in announcing that the Wolseley Lodge will be conducted on "temperance" principles? Is it because our Lodges are notoriously hotbeds of intemperance, and that our Lodge banquets are neither more or less than a series of drunken orgies, which are a disgrace to our boasted civilisation? Every one knows this is absolutely untrue, and the mere suggestion that temperance is conspicuous by its absence from our Lodge gatherings is an insult to the whole Masonic community. Again, if Bros. A, B, and C, who are not teetotallers, accept the invitation, and each pays his guinea towards the banquet, will they be denied their "modest quenchers," because an apostle of teetotalism in the person of the W.M. is in the chair, and sundry of his disciples are at the festive board? If they are so denied, the teetotal doctrine is being forced upon them, while, if an exception is made in their favour, and the wine is forthcoming, then the temperance—that is, teetotal—principles, about which all this fuss is being made, are being lost sight of. The Wolseley Lodge will be like any other Masonic Lodge, and the members of which, and visitors to which, are at liberty to drink wine or not, as it suits them. It will be suggested that none but teetotallers should accept the invitation, or if they do, that they have no right to accept anything else than is included in the menu. Then, why is a guinea charged for a ticket? My experience of a banquet is that where wine is included the charge ranges, according to the locality in which the meeting is held, from about fifteen shillings to a guinea and upwards; but where it is not included, the price is about six shillings or three half crowns. If I am here met by the rejoinder—Though there will be no costly wines to undermine your physical and moral constitution, the cuisine will be of the most récherché description. In that case I ask, what becomes of these boasted temperance principles. It is morally wrong for a man to incur an intemperate expenditure where the banquet includes meat and wine, and morally wrong where it consists of meat only, the lighter drinks, of tea, coffee, and effervescing beverages, being common to both?

I am afraid I have allowed this letter to run to an unconscionable length, and though there are other points I should like to submit, I will refrain from inflicting them on you and your readers. No new Lodge need have the slightest doubt about receiving hearty good wishes from all Craftsmen, but the proceedings in connection with the Wolseley Lodge have been, in my humble judgment, a mistake throughout. It was tantamount to casting a slight on the Craft, when it was announced as a Temperance Lodge, as though temperance were a virtue unknown to or unrespected by Masons. It was a great mistake to puff far and wide the association of Lord Wolseley's name with the Lodge; I do not wish to suggest any thing un-masonic, but censorious people might say it was done to make capital—I do not mean of course, pecuniary capital—out of the connection; but the crowning mistake of all is the issue of this circular of invitation, as though the Lodge were touting for outside encouragement of its so-called "temperance" principles.

I enclose my card, and remain,

Fraternally yours,

A PROVINCIAL BROTHER.

THE LATE FESTIVAL OF THE R.M.B.I.

4 Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C.
15th March 1883.

DEAR BRO. EDITOR,—Will you kindly correct an error which appeared amongst the list of Stewards of the recent Festival?

Bros. Walton and Crosby, representing Lodge No 1588, are placed under the heading of East Lancashire. It should be West Lancashire.

Your kindness in permitting this correction to appear will be much esteemed by,

Yours fraternally,

JAMES TERRY, Secretary.

MASONRY AND DRINK.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Referring to your issue of the 10th inst., will you allow me to state that a brother, who signs himself "FREEDOM," immediately after using the epithets "Hydropot, Milksop, and Goody-goody," in reference to men who are not of the same opinion as himself, does not appear to me to know the meaning of the philanthrophic title he takes to himself. The part of his letter which runs "to introduce the question of total abstinence at all in our Masonic gatherings, is to impute excess, which does not exist in our Lodges," finds a complete answer in the letter from "VISIT," who states having seen brethren in Lodges of Instruction decidedly

"muzzy." If that does not mean excess, perhaps "FREEDOM" will enlighten me what does? Any sensible man would allow a little for the enthusiasm of a new convert, and would not take it so to heart as our brother "FREEDOM" does, which seems to denote an interest which is not on the side of temperance. The assertion that Good Templars ape the forms of Masonry is false, and is not worthy the pen of a Mason, and shows, in regard to the excess of regalia, that "FREEDOM," knows nothing whatever about Good Templary, and therefore lays himself open to ridicule for writing on a subject of which he knows absolutely nothing.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

FAIR PLAY.

THE GRAND TREASURERSHIP.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—You will probably receive many opinions respecting the recent election of Grand Treasurer, and the new departure, which it is called, of Grand Lodge in respect of what has become almost to be regarded as a permanent office. I think many of the brethren will agree with me, that now the ice is broken it should be distinctly understood that no brother shall retain the office of Grand Treasurer for more than one year, under any circumstances. If this was at once recognised, and it were a settled matter that the tenure of the office was an annual one, the idea would soon be fallen in with, and nobody could feel in any way aggrieved. It would be just the same, in point of fact, as the election of a Senior or Junior Warden in our ordinary Lodge work. And why should it be otherwise? The post is to some extent a nominal one, inasmuch as the permanent staff have practically to be responsible for the proper conduct of the business. Every honour has been shown to Colonel Creaton by re-electing him year after year, and there is not a member of the Craft who will begrudge him the high esteem he has earned for himself for those years of liberal and loyal service. But seeing the way in which the straw was blowing, it is a pity almost he did not himself propose his successor, in which case his retirement would have been still more graceful than it was under the circumstances. However, the gal- that Colonel has retired with the heartiest good wishes of the brethren, and is too high spirited a gentleman, and has too much good sense to feel in the least slighted, because the Craft have decided that the office of Grand Treasurer shall not be a perpetual one. We all wish well for the new Treasurer, Bro. Allcroft, whom we all know, especially in the City of London, and feel sure he will go out at the end of his year with every credit, excellently deserved.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

GEO. SAXON.

The installation meeting of the Wallington Lodge took place on Thursday, when the outgoing Master, Bro. J. G. Horsey, installed his successor, Brother W. Pile. We purpose giving a full report next week.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has been appointed a Field Marshal in the Prussian army, the bâton of his rank having been handed to His Royal Highness in person by the Emperor of Germany.

We have great pleasure in drawing attention to a prospectus we have just received from Bro. John A. Neeck, 9 Bundesstrasse, Hamburg. Bro. Neeck is a member of the Lodge "Zur Brudeskette," of Hamburg, and has been a member of the board of officers of the said Lodge for the last four years. He is an apt English scholar, and is desirous of receiving into his family—consisting, be it remarked, of only Madame Neeck and himself—one or more English young gentlemen—sons of Freemasons being assigned the preference—who may be desirous of acquiring a thorough knowledge of the German language, for either Mercantile or professional pursuits. Bro. Neeck has strong testimonials in his favour, and we have every confidence that he will loyally fulfil whatever duty he may be called upon to perform. If testimonials are needed on Bro. Neeck's behalf, they will be forthcoming, and will be found to include the following, namely :—

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE, No. 1426.

THE last meeting of the session of this Lodge was held on Saturday evening, 10th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel, and the following brethren were present:—Bros. W. F. Kibble W.M., F. T. C. Keeble S.W., W. Baber J.W., N. B. Headon P.M. Treasurer, G. W. Blackie P.M. Secretary, R. Fendick S.D., F. W. Potter J.D., J. T. Stenson I.G., H. Durrant M.C., G. Jenkins, E. H. Codicot, and H. T. Bertram Stewards; P.M.'s C. Taylor, James Stevens, Thomas Hamer, H. Thompson, J. Seex, W. Cook; also J. R. Huntley, T. W. Headon, J. R. Greening, H. F. Frost, J. K. Gwynne, E. S. Donaldson, C. J. Small, &c., and J. O. Carter P.P.S.D. Berks and Bucks. Lodge was opened in due form, after which the minutes of the last Lodge were read and confirmed. Lodge was opened in the second degree, when Bro. Small having proved his proficiency as a candidate for promotion, the Lodge was opened in the third degree, and he was impressively raised to that of M.M. Lodge was lowered to the first degree, and according to ancient custom the bye-laws were read in extenso, after which the next business was to elect a W.M. for the ensuing year, when Bro. Keeble was unanimously voted to that office. The W.M. congratulated Bro. Keeble upon his election, and said he was quite sure that he was well qualified to discharge the duties of the chair to which the brethren had unanimously elected him, and he thought also that he might congratulate themselves on having so able a brother to preside over them. Bro. Keeble thanked the brethren for having so unanimously elected him as W.M.; he could assure them that no effort or exertion on his part should be wanting to give them satisfaction in the high office to which he had been called. Bro. Greening proposed that the usual jewel should be presented to the Worshipful Master (Bro. Kibble) on his retirement from the chair, and warmly eulogised the manner in which he had discharged his duties during his year of office. Bro. Gwynne seconded the motion, which was unanimously agreed to. The next business was the election of a Treasurer, and Bro. Headon was unanimously re-elected. Brother Hamer P.M. moved that a vote of thanks be recorded on the minutes to Brother Headon for his able services, and for the uniform courtesy shown by him to every one during the period he had exercised the office of Treasurer, to the satisfaction of every member of the Lodge. Also for his able initiative of the proposal in Grand Lodge for the election of Brother John Derby Allcroft P.M. of the Aldersgate Lodge as Grand Treasurer; the services of Colonel Creaton, the present Grand Treasurer, being at the same time warmly eulogised, and the hope expressed that Brother Headon would supplement his services to the Craft in general by proposing at the next Quarterly Communication that the thanks of the Grand Lodge should be given to Colonel Creaton on his retirement from office. The motion was unanimously carried. Brother Headon returned thanks on his re-election; the position of Treasurer of a private Lodge was very different from that of Grand Treasurer, as one was most important, with very onerous and responsible duties, while the other was merely nominal. He was much obliged to the brethren for the compliment they had paid him, and should have great pleasure in complying with their wishes, trusting that in the future he should discharge his duties to their satisfaction as he had done in the past. Brother Potter was re-elected Tyler, and the Almoners and Auditors were appointed. Brother Keeble S.W. and Worshipful Master elect said that he had a special motion to propose, and on a very special occasion, and that was "That a telegram be sent to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, with the congratulations from the Lodge on the twentieth anniversary of the Most Worshipful Grand Master's wedding day," which was seconded by Brother H. Thompson P.M. and carried unanimously. It was accordingly despatched forthwith, and later in the evening a most gracious reply was received from Marlborough House, thanking the Lodge for their kindly remembrance of the event. Bro. Thompson after stating his regret that he had been unable to attend the last meeting of the Grand Lodge, inquired of the Worshipful Master what had been done in respect of the Proposed Revision of the Book of Constitutions, and the amendments which had been made thereto. He gathered from the reports of the meeting that the suggested amendments had been permitted to be referred to the Board of General Purposes without any comment in Grand Lodge, and could hardly imagine that so important a matter could have been so disposed of without some sort of safeguard having been suggested to prevent a final settlement of the new Constitutions by a small though important section of the Craft. He thought some means should be given to the Craft at large to see the changes proposed, before being called upon to consider them in Grand Lodge. The W.M. replied that the subject had not engaged his earnest attention, as he believed that members of the Craft who had greater experience in Grand Lodge affairs were carefully watching the proceedings connected with the proposed revision. He had no doubt that Bro. Stevens, who was present, could afford some information, and he would ask him to do so. Bro. Stevens P.M. said, that Bro. Thompson was quite correct in his inference, that the Grand Lodge had silently assented to the recommendation of the Board of General Purposes, that the amendments to the proposed revision of the Book of Constitutions (some 800 in number) should be referred to them to consider and report upon. There could be no doubt that the task, undertaken in respect of the revision, was one of great magnitude, and that, so far as possible, the necessary debates, which must ensue in Grand Lodge before final settlement, should be shortened by anticipation as far as practicable. A great reliance was manifested that on this important subject the Board of General Purposes would act by each and all of the amendments which had been sent in, and, therefore, many members of Grand Lodge, and amongst them himself, considered it undesirable to interfere with the recommendation for reference, but it was presumed that no time would be lost in making the necessary report to Grand Lodge. The date fixed for the reception of amendments was the 25th of January last, and it was notified that a Special Grand Lodge would have been called during February, for discussion of the amendments, in respect of which he should, at the proper time, expect to be heard, particularly in respect of two at least, which in his opinion were required to prevent the elision of certain "landmarks" from the Ancient Constitutions, and which the draft of the revision excluded altogether. He trusted, and he had no doubt, the Board of General Purposes would not delay the business they had taken in hand, and that certainly before the period of the year when Masonic labour is presumed to slacken the special Grand Lodge and, if necessary, Grand Lodge will be held and the new Constitutions finally settled. If this were effected, the present Board would fairly earn not only the warmest thanks of the Craft for the achievement of a great work and a hearty recognition of their labours, but would abundantly justify the silence which has prevented the slightest delay with their recommendation for reference of the several amendments for their consideration. Bro. Stevens's remarks were cordially assented to, and Bro. Thompson expressed his thanks for the explanation and information he had received. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment. The usual loyal toasts were given, and the telegram from the Prince of Wales was received just after his health had been proposed, when the Worshipful Master again made reference to the happy event. The health of Bro. Keeble, W.M. elect, was proposed by the Worshipful Master and enthusiastically received, for which Bro. Keeble returned thanks. Bro. Taylor I.P.M. proposed the health of the Worshipful Master, which was suitably acknowledged. Songs were sung by Bros. Shaw, Donaldson, Bertram, Stevens, and others, and Bro. Stevens also gave a recitation, "The level and the square." A very pleasant evening was passed, and the brethren separated about ten o'clock in the true spirit of Masonry.

ST. LEONARD'S LODGE, No. 1766.

THE monthly meeting of this Lodge was held at the Town Hall, Shoreditch, on Wednesday, when a considerable amount of business was transacted. The Lodge was opened by Brother E. Benjamin I.P.M., in the unavoidable absence of Bro. J. A. Jones W.M., who shortly afterwards arrived and took the chair. The Officers present were:—Bros. L. Stean P.M., C. F. Barham P.M., A. A. Clement S.W., J. Funstone J.W., Rev. H. G. Henderson Chaplain, J. Cox Secretary, E. Walker S.D., F. Matthews J.E., R. Dryadale I.G., G. C. Young Organist, H. J. Thrower D.C., L. A. Harrison W.S., E. T. Clark Assist. W.S., and J. Very Tyler. Members:—Bros. C. Deacon, E. A. Beckett, H. Waynforth, E. T. Henman, F. Meriton, S. Bennell, T. Douglass, W. Beasley, Dr. Holt, W. H. Brand, Jas. Roberts, W. Strickland, W. Jones and H. Josephs. Visitors:—Bros. G. W. Preston P.M. 861, G. Wade 1310, T. Cohen P.M. 192, J. Barker S.W. 860, S. Smither 193, G. J. Freeman 1613, T. Hill 813, P. Senecal P.M. 569, G. Edwards P.M. 1816. The Lodge having been advanced, the I.P.M. raised Bros. A. C. Critchfield, E. J. Rose, and E. T. Henman jun. The W.M. then passed Bros. Lovat, Fraser, and T. Weatherley to the F.C. degree. Mr J. W. Griffiths, having been duly elected, was initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Order. Some other business having been transacted, the brethren adjourned to refreshment, after which the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured, and the harmony of the proceedings enhanced by songs and recitals by Bros. Deacon, Douglass, Henman, Benjamin, Strickland and others, ably accompanied by the Organist.

STRAND LODGE, No. 1987.

THE first regular meeting was held at Ashley's Hotel, Covent Garden, on Thursday, the 8th inst. Bros. Willing jun. W.M., Swanborough S.W., Stacey J.W., Stiles Secretary, Douglass S.D., Harris J.D., Madge I.G., Leon Asst. M.C., Buston W.S., Hare Asst. W.S.; also Bros. Shaw, Dale, Foster, Harrison, Bourne, Bass, Jackson, May, Taylor, Ponton, Hartt, Horrocks, Fawkes, Green, Thiodon. Visitors—Bros. Mann P.M. 186, Coltart P.M. 749, Payne W.M. 933, Roach 49, Thompson 1614, Horrocks 1476, Woolf 72, Merchant 902, Kearney 1549, and Crowder 79. Lodge was opened in due form, with solemn prayer, and the minutes of emergency meeting, held 22nd February, were read and confirmed. The ballot was unanimously in favour of Bros. Frederick Jackson, Royal Savoy 1744, and Charles James Taylor, Asaph 1319, for joining, and Messrs. Moreton Jacob Green, Edward Bayfield Hartt, William Colin Archer and Edward Charles Ennis, as candidates for the privileges of the Order. The W.M. then initiated Messrs. Wright Daniel Horrocks, Alfred Aspinall Thiodon, Oliver Fawkes, Moreton Jacob Green, and Edward Bayfield Hartt. Several propositions for initiation and joining having been handed in, Lodge was closed. A banquet followed, and the after proceedings were of a thoroughly harmonious character.

Kent Lodge of Instruction, No. 15.—Held at Bro. Sarjeant's, King and Queen, Norton Folgate, E.C., on 7th inst. Bros. Serjeant W.M., Gieseke S.W., Legg J.W., Clark S.D., Patrick J.D., Stroud I.G., Andrews Preceptor, J. Millington Sec.; also Bros. Rowe, Leoffler, Claverley, Young, Wright, &c. After preliminaries, Bro. Rowe answered the questions leading to the second degree, and was entrusted. Lodge was opened in the second, and the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Bro. Cleverley acting as candidate. Bro. Rowe answered the questions leading to the third degree, was entrusted, and the ceremony was rehearsed. Lodge was closed in the third degree, and lowered to second degree. Bros. Young and Wright were elected members. Bro. Gieseke was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. Bro. Clark gave an interesting Report of the Festival of the Old Peoples' Institution, and Lodge was closed.

Polish National Lodge, No. 534.—The fifth monthly meeting of the above Lodge took place on Thursday, 8th instant, at Freemasons' Tavern, under the presidency of Brother J. Lancaster W.M., supported by Bros. Smith S.W., Runtz J.W., Bieling S.D., Bryant J.D., Tongue I.G., and Davis Tyler; P.M.'s Jackson I.P.M., Jagielski, Aspinall, Nowakowski Treasurer, Pass Secretary. After the minutes had been read and confirmed, ballot was taken for the following gentlemen:—Messrs. Horatio Edrupt, Samuel Varley Simpson, John Johnson Dunn, and William Simpson Lincoln. This proving to be unanimous in their favour, they were in due course initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry. Brother Cooper was raised to the third degree, and Brother Nowakowski passed. Lodge then voted for the election of a Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. This proved to be unanimously in favour of Brother E. Smith S.W., who thanked the brethren for their kindness in a few appropriate remarks. Brother Nowakowski was again re-elected Treas., and Brother Banks, the son of an old Past Master of the Polish National Lodge, was elected Tyler. The Audit Committee was also appointed, consisting of Bros. Apsey, Runtz, and Nowakowski. A Past Master's jewel was voted for the Worshipful Master for the able way in which he had performed the duties during his year of office; and the special jewel of the Commander's White Eagle was also voted to him for the interest he had taken in introducing several new members into the Lodge, and having represented the brethren on two occasions, for the Schools and Old People. All other business being ended, Lodge was closed, and the brethren retired to the dining room. After the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, Brother Jackson I.P.M. proposed the health of the Worshipful Master, calling attention to the amount of work that had been done by Brother Lancaster, he having had to perform six ceremonies that evening; he congratulated him on the recognition of his services by the brethren. Brother Lancaster replied, stating that it had been a great pleasure to him to perform his duties to the satisfaction of the brethren. He thanked them for the handsome manner in which they recognised those services. He was sorry that it was the last time he should have the pleasure of presiding at the banquet table, but he should always be pleased to do anything he could for the advantage of the Lodge. He now had the pleasure of proposing the health of the Initiates, whom he felt quite sure would reflect honour upon the Lodge. The toast of the Visitors—Bros. Alfred 228, Tyler 1702, Newton 1503, Saegert 548, Brown 780, and Schartau 1549—was also given. This having been responded to, the Worshipful Master proposed the health of the W.M. elect, Brother Smith; he did so with peculiar pleasure, they had worked side by side for some years, and had never had a word of unpleasantness. He wished Brother Smith a happy year of office, plenty of work, and plenty of initiates. Brother Smith on rising, stated that he was much gratified by the way the brethren had received the toast of his health. He would do everything in his power to add to the high position of the Polish National Lodge, and hoped he should be as well supported by the Officers during his year of office as the present W.M. had been. Several brethren added to the harmony during the evening.

FREEMAN'S CHLORODYNE.

The Original and only true.

HUNDREDS of Medical Practitioners testify to its marvellous efficacy in immediately relieving and rapidly curing Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Spasms, Colic, Whooping Cough, and all Nervous Pains. It acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery. It rapidly relieves pain, from whatever cause, soothes and strengthens the system under exhausting diseases, and gives quiet and refreshing sleep.

Lord Chancellor Selborne, Lord Justice James, Lord Justice Mellish decided in favour of FREEMAN'S ORIGINAL CHLORODYNE, and against Brown and Davenport, compelling them to pay all costs in the suits. See Times of July 24th, 1873. Bottles 1s 1½d, 2s 9d, 4s 6d, 11s, and 20s. Sold by all Chemists.

TESTIMONIALS.—Head Quarter Staff, Cabul, May 31st, 1880. Mr. R. Freeman, Dear Sir,—It is with much pleasure I am able to state that your Chlorodyne has been of special service to me in alleviating the wearisome spasms of Asthma, which is here existent in an aggravated form. Many of my patients now come and beg me to give them that medicine which always relieves them, and which I need hardly say is your Chlorodyne. Yours faithfully, CHARLES W. OWEN, L.R.C.P. Lon., M.R.C.S. Eng., the Divisional Head Quarter Staff and Civil Surgeon, Cabul.

The Times, August 13th, 1877. From our own Correspondent with the Russian Army. Okoum, July 25th, 1877. The want of sanitary arrangements in the Russian Camp was dreadful, and had we remained there a few weeks longer, dysentery and typhoid fever would have played more havoc in our ranks than the bombs of the Turks. I myself acquired an unenviable reputation as a doctor, owing to my being provided with a small bottle of CHLORODYNE, with which I effected miraculous cures.

THE LORD MAYOR AND SHERIFF OF LONDON AT THE CLERKENWELL LODGE.

THE proceedings of the annual election meeting of the Clerkenwell Lodge, No. 1964, on Saturday evening last, were invested with more than ordinary interest, from the fact that the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor (Bro. Alderman Knight) and Bro. Sheriff Savory had accepted invitations to be present. The brethren assembled at the Holborn Viaduct Hotel, about four o'clock, when Lodge was opened in accordance with ancient rites, under the presidency of Bro. Edgar Bowyer P.G.S.W. Herts, Worshipful Master, who was supported by Bros. John Tuck I.G. acting as S.W., J. J. Goode J.W., Rev. J. H. Rose Chaplain, G. A. Potter Treasurer, James Terry P.P.G.S.W. Norths and Hunts (Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution) Secretary, Henry Radcliffe P.M. 91, 858 P.G.S. Eng. S.D., Major Robert Rolfe J.D., J. E. Terry acting as I.G., H. Paget, W. Clarke, C. W. Scott, H. Jenner, R. W. Cole, W. J. Halford, Col. J. Lambert P.M. P.G.S.B., W. Wilkinson, F. Foster, T. M. Edwards, A. Walkley Tyler, and others. The Visitors included Bros. the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor of London (Alderman H. Knight P.M. Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 34), Sheriff Joseph Savory Emulation 21. H. G. Buss Assistant Grand Secretary, C. F. Hogard P.M. Israel 205 P.P.G. Supt. Works Essex, C. F. Matier P.M. Humphrey Chetham 645 P.P.G.W. Greece, Edward F. Storr P.M. Treasurer Neptune 22, Dr. J. W. Ramsay P.M. Prince of Wales 259, E. T. Edwards P.M. Crescent 788, E. Culver W.M. St. Mary's 63, W. J. C. Martin S.W. Union 127, James Arnold Athenæum 1491, H. W. Johnson 1491, B. Newstead J.W. St. Thomas 142, Seymour Smith Organist Crystal Palace 742, &c. Lodge having been advanced to the second degree, Bros. Charles W. Scott and Henry Jenner were passed as F.C.'s, the work being effectively rendered by the Worshipful Master, assisted by his Officers. At the close of the ceremony Lodge was resumed, and the brethren proceeded to the election of a Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, the ballot being unanimously in favour of Bro. Bro. T. Hastings Miller P.M. 904 1489 Past Provincial G. Organist Middlesex, who has ably officiated during the past year as Senior Warden of the Clerkenwell Lodge, but who was prevented, by indisposition, from being present on this occasion. Bro. G. A. Potter was re-elected as Treasurer, with thanks for his past services, and Bro. A. Walkley was re-appointed Tyler. Three brethren were also elected to form part of the Audit Committee. The arrival in state of Bros. the Lord Mayor and Sheriff Savory was the signal for a most enthusiastic and hearty welcome, and on the entrance of the distinguished Civic visitors into the Lodge room, they were greeted with Masonic honours. During the evening, Bro. Terry presented to the Lodge a beautifully bound copy of the bye-laws, engrossed on vellum, which was accepted with a hearty vote of thanks, proposed by Bro. Colonel Radcliffe, seconded by Bro. Goode, and carried by acclamation. Business having been satisfactorily disposed of, the brethren and visitors adjourned to a magnificently served banquet, the whole of the arrangements of which, under the personal superintendence of Bro. G. W. Rowe, were such as to reflect the highest credit upon this high class hotel, and the proprietors, Messrs. Spiers and Pond. Dessert having been placed before the guests, the customary Loyal toasts were given from the chair and duly honoured, the Worshipful Master alluding to the deep interest taken in the Craft by the Most Worshipful Grand Master the Prince of Wales, and the rapid strides which Freemasonry has made since his Royal Highness's advent to power in it. In giving the health of our Masonic Rulers, he said he was sure those who had seen the Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Deputy G. Master the Earl of Lathom, presiding over them in Grand Lodge, knew what excellent heads of the Craft they were. The Past and Present Grand Officers did all they possibly could to further the interests of the Craft at large. To-night they were favoured with the company of Bro. Buss, the Assistant Grand Secretary of England, and a member of their own Lodge, and Bro. Lambert, Past G. Sword Bearer, whose names he would associate with the toast. Bro. Colonel Shadwell Clarke, the Grand Secretary, had written to say he should have been most happy to have been present that evening, but a prior engagement of long standing took him to Brighton. Bro. H. G. Buss, in responding said, obedient to the call of the W.M., he rose at once to reply to the toast which had been so kindly proposed; he did so because the Worshipful Master could not err. Still, on the present occasion there was present their excellent Brother Lambert, who was his senior in office, and who should have been called on first. He thanked them most heartily for the way in which the toast had been received. It was very well known that the two noblemen named admirably discharged the duties of their respective offices in Grand Lodge. They were held in high esteem in the Provinces over which they presided, as well as in their positions of Pro Grand Master and Deputy. On behalf of the rest of the Grand Officers, he said they were anxious and willing to perform their duties, and the acclamation with which their names were always received on occasions of this kind afforded evidence, if any were needed, of the appreciation in which their services were held by the brethren. If anything could possibly be adduced to satisfy the Craft at large that the M.W.G.M., in the exercise of his prerogative, made the best possible selection, it would be in the way in which the names of the Grand Officers were received from time to time. On his own behalf he thanked them most heartily for inviting him to be present that evening. He was proud and grateful to them for having done so, and for the pleasure they had afforded him in meeting so many officers and Civic dignitaries on the occasion. Bro. George Lambert also returned thanks, and in doing so said the Past Grand Officers had in their day and generation done good suit and service to the Craft, and he did not believe for a moment they arrived at that position without having left their mark on Freemasonry. It was certainly a great honour to be a Grand Officer, and he esteemed it an honour done his Lodge to have had that apron conferred upon him. He referred to the work done by the Past Grand Officers on the various committees on which they were elected, and expressed his belief that they all did their duty in carrying out the objects they had in view, as though they had their heart and soul in the business to which they were called. He felt glad and proud to wear the purple; and to hear the encomiums passed upon the Grand Officers in every Lodge throughout the length and breadth of the land. That amply repaid them for any little trouble they might have taken in past years. In the temporary absence of the Worshipful Master, he would take the liberty of proposing a toast, which he felt sure would be acceptable to all present. He asked them to drink, with all the heartiness of which they were capable, the health of their esteemed Worshipful Master, who had been so indefatigable in his labours for the advancement of this Lodge in the Craft. He appealed to every brother around this table,—did they ever find a Master conduct his work as well as did Bro. Bowyer? Their Worshipful Master was out of the room now, and so he could speak more freely. He put it forward as a challenge that he never saw a Master discharge the office with such ability and suavity of manner as did Bro. Bowyer. They were much indebted to him for what he had done for this young Lodge, and their warmest thanks were due to him for his disinterested and unwearied exertions. They recollected that during the Mayoralty of Bro. Sir John Whitaker Ellis, he invited his Lordship and the then Sheriff (Bro. Alderman Sir R. Hanson) to attend their banquet; and they were favoured with the distinguished presence of the present Lord Mayor, and their good friend the Sheriff—though he was only as yet an initiate. He thanked Bro. Bowyer for having invited these gentlemen, and them for so kindly accepting the invitation. He asked the brethren to drink to the health of the Worshipful Master of the Clerkenwell Lodge; long might he live, and might the Lodge flourish. The Worshipful Master, who re-entered the room at this moment, was loudly cheered. He thanked the brethren most sincerely for the kind compliment they had paid him in his absence, and assured them it was a great pleasure to him to do anything to advance the interests of Freemasonry, as he had always done since he joined the Order. It was one of the proudest things in life to enjoy the esteem of our fellowmen, and he only hoped, whatever the future might be, he might lay claim to having tried to deserve the good opinion of those with whom he had been associated in the Craft. The Worshipful Master said there was one toast which he was certain they would all drink with especial pleasure and gratification that evening, it was the health of the two distinguished brethren who had honoured them with their presence—he referred to the Rt. Hon. the Lord Mayor of London and Sheriff Savory. He was quite sure all would join with him in expressing their sense of the honour done the Lodge, when they considered the multiplicity of engagements which the Lord Mayor and Sheriff had to fulfil in their public capacities. It was, therefore, very kind of them to set apart a few hours that evening, to do honour to the Clerkenwell Lodge. Both these gentlemen in their respective offices had won golden opinions from the citizens of London, and he was quite sure the brethren of this Lodge hailed their presence amongst them on this occasion with the utmost gratitude and pleasure. Bro. Seymour Smith here sang an exceedingly humorous composition, entitled "The Lord Mayor's Show," in which he delineated various characters in the crowd on Lord Mayor's Day, provoking hearty laughter. Bro. the Rt. Hon. the Lord Mayor, who was received with prolonged applause, said, Unaccustomed as he was to public speaking, they would hardly expect him to say much to them to-night, because he was not in the habit of addressing large assemblies of his fellow-men, such as he saw now before him, being naturally of a retiring, bashful, and modest disposition; added to which, he was now asked to return thanks for a toast in a Freemasons' Lodge. They could imagine, better than he could describe, the nervousness which came over him, and almost incapacitated him for responding to the toast, which had been so ably proposed by their Worshipful Master. He thought he had got over that introductory part very well indeed. He could assure them rising to return thanks for his health, which had been so kindly proposed, he did so, feeling very much honoured that his fellow Craftsmen had been pleased to seek his society in various Lodges, thus giving him so many opportunities of going amongst them during his mayoralty. If time were at his disposal he believed there was not a Lodge which he should not have the pleasure of visiting, for they could scarcely credit the number of invitations he received, and which he could not now detail to them. He saw present a friend of his (Bro. E. F. Storr) who was most indefatigable in keeping him constantly reminded of his promise to attend a meeting of the Neptune, on the 29th of this month, and who seemed determined he should not have any loophole of getting out of enjoying the hospitality of that Lodge. He had no wish to get out of it, but it was impossible for him to engage himself positively so long beforehand. His first duty was to the City of London, and though he fully realised his duty to Freemasonry, he could not pledge himself to invitations which might interfere with his duty to the citizens. If he did so, he might find some public business which would imperatively demand his presence elsewhere, and thus it would not only be disappointing the brethren, but holding out hopes to them which he should be utterly unable to fulfil. That was his only reason for not accepting invitations to more Masonic Lodges than he did. He did not think they cared for a regular set speech on occasions of this kind, and referring to the capital song they had just heard about the Lord Mayor's Show, he must say it was about the best fun in the world to go through the crowd on the 9th of November. He had been through a good many times, and the fun that went on, the remarks made by the bystanders, were enough to keep any one in a constant state of merriment. He did not know anything more witty than the remarks of a London crowd. They knew it was customary for the Aldermen, when they came into the procession, to have their beadles marching by the sides of their carriages. His being a big ward, he had two beadles, who wore old-fashioned, long cloaks, and as they were going along in the procession, some three or four years ago, the beadles walked along with very serious mien, and profound gravity, which it was their bounden duty to preserve. The weather was wet, and the roads were muddy; and one of the beadles, coming to a puddle which he could not very well get over, lifted the folds of his cloak, exposing his white-stockinged calves, when an old woman who was standing by, exclaimed, "Put down your clothes! you're getting a big gal, now! showin' yer legs like that; you ought to be ashamed of yourself!" It so tickled his fancy that, although the poor fellow was so confused he hardly knew which way to look, he was obliged to roll back in his seat, and indulge in a hearty laugh. He was sure the traditional origin, related in the song, of the practice of the Sword Bearer wearing a muff on his head on State occasions must be correct, though history was not quite explicit on the point why that official should wear so unique a hat. Referring immediately to the toast before them, he said this was a young Lodge, and they would forgive him if he said that in everything he had done in life he had held that if a thing was worth doing at all it was worth doing well. In some Lodges he went into there was a careless disregard of minor details, but he reminded them that all those little points which were introduced into Freemasonry at its inception had their peculiar meanings, and should always be considered in that light. Amongst those things was respect for our superiors, and obedience to those who are placed over us. Thus, whilst he highly appreciated the kindness of the Wor. Master, in placing him on the right, and his friend the Sheriff on the left of the chair, he must tell Bro. Bowyer he was only a humble Past Master, and therefore he had no right to sit above the many Grand Officers he saw around him. They ought to inculcate the principles of superiority, and although he had the honour of being Lord Mayor for the time being, his place in Lodge was amongst those of his own Masonic rank. He had visited many Freemasons' Lodges, but had never seen better working than that performed by the W.M. and Officers of the Clerkenwell Lodge. He spoke strongly on the necessity of inculcating the principles of respect for superiority of rank in Lodges, and concluded by again thanking them for the splendid hospitality they had extended towards himself and his excellent colleague, Sheriff Savory. He hoped their young Lodge would continue to prosper, and that it might become one of the time-honoured Lodges of the country. One thing he had heard with the greatest pleasure, and which reflected the greatest credit and satisfaction to all connected with it, namely, the very handsome contribution they had already made to the Masonic Charities. That they had begun so nobly to put into practice this most essential of all the virtues of Freemasonry spoke well for the future of the Lodge, and he trusted they might go on in an increasing degree to exemplify this most distinguishing characteristic of the Fraternity. Bro. Sheriff Savory, who was also most cordially received, said he thanked them very much for the kind way in which the W.M. had associated his name with that of the Lord Mayor, and the hearty reception which had been given to the toast of the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex. He could assure them that the sympathy and welcome ever accorded to that toast was always grateful to those who had accepted the arduous duties of the Shrievalty. Some of those duties were pleasant, whilst others were painful, so that while the office had its privileges it had also its responsibilities. It was encouraging to receive approval for the way in which they endeavoured to fulfil their duties; and he thanked the Lord Mayor for the kind expression of his confidence. He could assure his Lordship that he should study in the future, as he had done in the past, to "love, honour and obey" him. Among the many happy recollections of his year of office, there was none he should cherish with greater pleasure than his visit to the Clerkenwell Lodge, which he might add, was the first Lodge that had done him the honour to invite him to its festivities since he was initiated. He esteemed it a great privilege that during his year of office he had been permitted to become a Freemason. He felt deeply interested in the mysteries he had already learned, though he had got much more to become enlightened upon. He should do his utmost to be of service to the Craft, which might in some feeble way show the deep sense he entertained of the honour which had been conferred upon him. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Visitors, to whom, in the name of the Lodge, he extended a very hearty welcome, and coupled with the toast the names of Bros. Dr. Ramsay P.M., C. F. Matier P.M., and E. T. Edwards P.M. The toast was heartily received. Dr. Ramsay, in reply, expressed the gratification it afforded him to see the excellent work done in Lodge, and the equally satisfactory arrangements for the banquet. Everything was most judiciously carried out, and Bro. Bowyer seemed to be facile princeps in regard to Masonry itself. He should only be gilding refined gold to say more than simply that he was most deeply obliged to the brethren of this Lodge for the generous hospitality with which the Visitors had been received, and which was sincerely appreciated by them. Bros. C. F. Matier and Edwards also responded, the latter alluding at some length to the duties enjoined by the Craft, and so well explained in the charges delivered to them while passing through the several degrees. The W.M., in proposing the healths of the Treasurer and Secretary, observed that the former, though he was comparatively young in Masonry, yet they knew from his antecedents in other walks in life he would make not only a good Mason, but a worthy member of this Lodge. As to their Secretary, it would indeed be "gilding refined gold," to speak of the services he had rendered to the Craft. Bro. Terry knew better than any one else the duties of Secretary of a Lodge, and always admirably carried out whatever he undertook. Bro. G. A. Potter said he had endeavoured to discharge his duties faithfully in the office of Treasurer. Unfortunately, it might be he had had no scope for displaying any financial ability, they had kept him so well supplied with funds; the kindness he had received at the hands of the Lodge would ever be engrafted on his memory. Bro. James Terry said, like the right hon. brother who began, "Unaccustomed as I am," he rose to address a few words to this assembly. A Secretary was an individual whom everybody could kick. If anything went wrong, it was, "Oh! that's the Secretary!" If something was not exactly in accordance with the wishes of the W.M. or some other brother, it was, "That Secretary has made an omission!" He only wished they had paid Secretaries. They might rely upon it that an honorary office was a mistake in life. If they paid a man only a pound a year, they could get rid of him by paying him his pound; but if they paid him nothing, and he gave his best services to the Lodge, of course they could kick him, for he was their own Secretary. Their very esteemed friend the initiate said one of the happiest features of his Shrievalty would be to do something to mark his career in Freemasonry. He would give Bro. Savory an idea, and ventured to suggest to him taking up a Stewardship for the Benevolent Institution. If he did not make his mark in Freemasonry he (the speaker) was no true prophet. He could have wished that Bro. Savory had been a Steward at the anniversary festival, last week, when they had Stewards equally young in Freemasonry. They all recollected a member of the Court of Common Council, Brother H. B. Marshall, who, although seven days old in Masonry, presented him with a cheque for £100 "from an Entered Apprentice." There was a splendid example of charity for him to emulate. As Secretary of this Lodge, he had endeavoured to do his duty, since its formation, and his future conduct should prove the interest he felt in the Lodge. It was named after his mother parish, where he was born, educated, vaccinated, married, and where many things had happened to him—too numerous to mention. For twelve months they had worked most harmoniously together, without any difficulty, and he hoped they might do the same in the coming year. The Worshipful Master then gave the Officers of the Lodge, in doing which he expressed regret at the absence of their S.W. and W.M. elect—Bro. Miller—who had gone on a two months' tour on the Continent for the benefit of his health. They all wished him a complete and speedy restoration, and return to his duties in the Lodge. In their J.W. they had a hard working man in everything he undertook in public life. Bro. Radcliffe was capable of performing almost anything in Freemasonry; and Major Rolfe was also a good working Officer. Bro. Tuck had discharged the duties of S.W. to-night, and the whole of the Officers were deserving of all praise. The Officers having severally responded, the list was brought to a fitting termination with the Tyler's toast. The proceedings were interspersed with some excellent songs by Bros. Paget, Seymour Smith, &c., and a most harmonious and enjoyable evening was passed.

CONFIDENCE LODGE, No. 193.

A REGULAR meeting of this old established and excellent working Lodge was held on Monday evening, the 12th instant, at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, when there was a goodly muster of the brethren and visitors, under the presidency of Bro. James Smith W.M. Lodge was opened about six o'clock with the usual formalities, the W.M. being supported by Bros. John E. Fells I.P.M., Walter Wood S.W., William Cubitt J.W., J. Shackell P.M. Secretary, W. Saint S.D., F. Silvester J.D., G. P. Nightingale I.G., B. D. Kershaw P.M., G. F. S. Warne P.M., F. B. Bonney P.M., Bedford Lemere P.M., H. T. Reed P.M., F. J. Heale, J. Gilderslene, J. J. Craske, J. G. Desane, W. M. Covell, S. Smither (acting as W.S.), T. D. Clare, J. H. Bayley, W. C. Grounds, T. Thurgood, G. Masters, E. Kiddell, J. Grundy, E. W. Pithian, J. Collins, A. Jay, F. H. Clemow, H. Morris, E. H. Walden, W. Rickell, and G. L. Reinhardt Tyler. Among the Visitors were Bros. George G. Symmons P.M. 45, G. L. Saunders 1257, and H. Kemp 1776. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Lodge was advanced, when Bros. J. H. Bayley and J. F. Clare were raised to the sublime degree by the Worshipful Master, who worked the ceremony in a most efficient manner, and delivered the charges most impressively. Some routine business was disposed of, and the Lodge closed in form, after which the brethren sat down to a banquet provided in a style for which Brother Clemow, of this reputed City hotel, has long been proverbial. At the conclusion of a very excellent repast, the ordinary prefatory toasts were introduced, the W.M. paying a well deserved tribute to the Most Worshipful Grand Master and the Present and Past Grand Officers, for the manner in which they had discharged their responsibilities to the Craft, and the zeal with which they promoted its true interests. Bro. Fells, in proposing the health of the Worshipful Master, said the brethren had selected a good and true Mason to preside over the deliberations of the Lodge during the year, and he was perfectly certain Bro. Smith would acquit himself to their satisfaction in the position in which they had placed him. From the working they had seen on this and other occasions, they had reason to be pleased with the choice they had made, and which augured well for a successful and prosperous year for the Lodge of Confidence. The Worshipful Master, who was very cordially received, said he thanked them most heartily for the kind manner in which the toast of his health had been received on this as on former occasions. He had ever felt that Freemasonry was a reality, and had it not been so, he should not have stuck to it as he had done. His experience taught him that in Freemasonry there were principles inculcated for the guidance of their daily practical life. Indeed, he almost began to think he must have been born a Mason, for the principles were so adapted to his constitution that he felt he could hardly run away from them. He hoped he might continue to live as he had lived, only a better and a brighter Mason.

Since he had occupied the chair, he had felt the responsibilities of the position, and he had found that if the work was to be done at all well, the heart must be in it. He had endeavoured to throw his whole heart into that work, and he hoped no brother would ever aspire to the chair unless he felt that Freemasonry was a reality. He thanked them right heartily for the cordial support they had given him since his accession to the chair, and for the continued support which they had manifested that evening. In turn, he proposed the health of the Past Masters, who were a noble army—the backbone of the Lodge of Confidence. He was glad to see so many of them present on this occasion, and took the opportunity of thanking them for the very valuable assistance they had given him during his term of office. Bro. F. B. Bonney said it was a pleasant duty to respond on behalf of the Past Masters of this Lodge, whose small services had been alluded to in such appreciative language by the Worshipful Master. He trusted Brother Smith might have a thoroughly good year in every respect, that success and harmony might reign supreme, and that he might have a goodly number of recruits. Bros. B. D. Kershaw and H. T. Reed also responded, the latter observing that the Past Masters had done good suit and service to the Lodge in times past; and he sincerely hoped they deserved the encomiums that had been passed upon by them by the W. Master. They were all anxious to do what they could to promote the welfare of the Lodge, which they held in the most profound regard. Bro. Smith had struck a key-note when he referred to the reality of Freemasonry. If it were not real, it ought to be. It was real in one way, at all events, when they considered that in one year alone a sum exceeding £42,000 had been collected for the support of the three grand Masonic Institutions, of which they were all so justly proud. That was something real, and a very strong point to prove the reality of the system. It was one thing for a man to say it was this, that, or the other, but when the brethren had put their hands into their pockets to the tune of nearly £50,000 in one year, that was a tangible sign of their active interest in the principles they professed. He hoped they would still further exemplify the reality of Freemasonry by taking it into their places of business, and their homes; by endeavouring to live in unity and brotherly love, and uprightness towards all men. The tenets of Freemasonry were very grand, inciting them to deeds such as made life noble and honourable—just and true in their dealings, and upright and true in every respect. They should remember that it was not sufficient to practice those precepts only in the Lodge-room; they should take Freemasonry with them into the world, and show that it was something more than a mere name. When they had learned the beautiful lessons imparted in the ritual, let them go outside and practise them. Bro. Fells added a few words, acknowledging the encomiums which had fallen from the lips of the Worshipful Master, and which he trusted the Past Masters might try and deserve. The Worshipful Master, in proposing the Visitors, regretted they were so few in number that evening; as they were always pleased to meet a goodly number of visitors, both in the Lodge-room and at the festive board. However, on behalf of the brethren of the Lodge of Confidence he extended to them a very hearty welcome. Bro. George Symmons P.M. could only say it was a great pleasure to meet the brethren of this Lodge, and he fully appreciated the expressions the Worshipful Master had used in proposing the toast. He was very pleased to visit an old Lodge like this, and was proud to see that Freemasonry was increasing and improving. They read some curious facts in the old Masonic records, and must admit that things were very different in the olden times to what they are in the present day. Freemasonry had proved itself to be of a real and enduring nature, and its principles would be fully maintained until the end of time. Bro. H. Kemp also briefly acknowledged the compliment paid to the Visitors, and expressed the satisfaction it had afforded him at seeing such admirable working in the Lodge. The Worshipful Master next gave the health of the Officers of the Lodge, in doing which he prided himself that the Lodge of Confidence could boast of some of the best Officers he had ever known. They were up to their work in every particular, and he believed each had his heart thoroughly in Masonry. From the admirable manner in which they had discharged their duties that evening, he was satisfied that for years to come the Confidence Lodge bade fair to have the most competent workers in the chair. Bro. Wood was extremely obliged for the manner in which the toast of the Officers of the Lodge had been proposed, and said it would be his endeavour, and that of every other Officer, to merit the flattering terms in which they had been spoken of that evening. They were comparatively young in Masonry, but they hoped the efforts they had already made, and which had been rewarded by their having been placed in the positions they respectively occupied, would be continued until they arrived at the goal which all Masons sought to reach at some stage of Masonic life—the governance of their Lodge for a short time. He was sure the example set by those who had been in the chair, which Brother Smith filled with so much credit to himself and honour to the Lodge, left nothing to be desired on their part; and if they did not learn the lessons and repeat them faithfully, it would not be for want of competent instruction afforded them. He might hope that the accessory to the ordinary duties of a Master of a Lodge, which Brother Smith had carried to a successful issue, namely the representation of the Lodge at one of the Masonic Festivals, might be carried out with equal, if not superior, success by every one who was invested with a collar. He considered the Charities attached to Freemasonry were its distinguishing pride and the brightest jewel in its crown. A brother had referred to the enormous sum of £42,000 being raised for the support of these Institutions in one year; it was indeed highly creditable to the Craft. These institutions deserved the support of every Mason, be his position what it might. At the present time, when the value of money was decreasing, on account of the enormous amount of luxury introduced into civilised life during the last few years—for a man could at one time have lived upon a tithe of what was necessary now to keep up a respectable position in society—he said that to be able to devote so large a sum to the support of those who, by an unfortunate turn of the wheel had got upon the lowest spokes, who formerly occupied the highest, was the greatest credit to the members of the Craft generally, and it was an ample excuse, if indeed such were wanted for the existence of the brotherhood of Freemasonry that they did so much to help others who were in distress. But although these societies seemed to be established on a safe and sound foundation, it was necessary that redoubled efforts should be employed if they would meet the claims that were made upon them. He was very sorry to find that among the members of the Craft there should have been such a reverse of fortune that at the next election for the Benevolent Institution there were no fewer than 120 candidates, and only 57 vacancies, so that two out of every three must necessarily be unsuccessful. He thought it would be to the advantage of the Craft if the funds were placed in such a position as twelve months ago was the case with the Girls' School, when the Committee was enabled, without an election, to place every one of its candidates within the walls of that Institution. But old age was coming fast upon the brotherhood, and although Freemasonry was well supported, it was unable to provide homes for all who sought its shelter, or to confer annuities on those upon whom old age and distress had fallen prematurely, through no fault of their own, and who were placed in a position which compelled them reluctantly to seek the benefits of those Institutions which were provided by the bounty of the Craft. He hoped the example set by the Lodge of supporting the Benevolent Institution this year would be followed by all the brethren, not only by standing as Stewards, but by contributing to the lists of others, and so enabling the Institution to be placed in a still more secure position than it occupied at present. The Girls' School was the most fortunate, and the Boys' came next; but the old men and women, into whose ranks they all must one day come, though he hoped not as applicants for charity, were deserving of their warmest consideration. He hoped the G.A.O.T.U. would not call them till they had fulfilled their duty; but while they were here let them do all they possibly could for the cause of Charity, so that Freemasonry might still hold its pre-eminent position amongst the benevolent institutions of the world. Bro. W. Cubitt in returning thanks said he had been a member of the Lodge of Confidence for eleven years, and although hitherto he had no desire to take office, lately he had been most anxious to do so. It would be his most earnest study to work himself up in the various degrees, so that when he at length reached the chair he might be able satisfactorily to discharge the duties of that high and responsible position. Bro. W. Saint said no one could appreciate more than he did the assistance and attention he had received from the Officers of the Lodge, who had encouraged him to take the position he now held. He trusted he had so far profited by their instruction as to satisfy the brethren, for it was the association with the Officers and initiation into the working of Masonic duties that impelled him to use every exertion in his power to make himself a fit and proper person to fill the chair, should he ever attain to it. Bro. Nightingale endorsed the sentiments expressed by his brother Officers with regard to the Charities; seeing the large number of deserving applicants for the benefits of the Institutions compared with the small number of vacancies, there ought to be an effort made to strengthen the hands of the executive, and thus enable them to enlarge the sphere of their usefulness and beneficence. Bro. H. Morris also briefly acknowledged the compliment, and the list was concluded with the Tyler's toast. The proceedings of the evening were enlivened with some excellent songs and recitations, amongst the latter of which "The Charge of the Light Brigade," by Bro. Smither, was much appreciated.

PORTSMOUTH LODGE, No. 487.

THERE was a good muster of members of the ancient Craft on Thursday, the 9th inst., to witness the Installation of the W.M. Bro. W. M. Outridge. The ceremony was ably and impressively performed by Bro. Palsgrave W.M. Subsequently the retiring W.M. Bro. R. W. Beale was presented by the W.M. on behalf of the Lodge, with a handsome P.M.'s jewel, in token of the members' appreciation of his valuable services to the Lodge, and of the able manner in which he had discharged his duties during his year of office. The W.M. appointed and invested his Officers as under:—Bros. R. W. Beale I.P.M., H. P. Holley S.W., F. H. de Rheims J.W., H. Treadingham Treasurer, J. Thackara Secretary, W. E. Bond Assistant Secretary, Cowd S.D., G. E. Cousens J.D., W. Shotter I.G., Meredith and Ray M.C.'s, G. Pearman Organist, G. Bevis and Hill Stewards. At the banquet, which was served by Brother W. Maybour, of Portsea, the usual toasts were given. Bro. R. J. Rastrick P.G. Treas. responded for the Prov. G.M. and his Officers.

St. Michael's Lodge, No. 211.—A meeting was held on Tuesday, at the Albion, Aldersgate Street, E.C., when there were present Bros. Fredk. J. Hontsch W.M., W. W. Morgan S.W., T. H. Peirce J.W., Charles Greenwood P.G.S.B. P.M. Treasurer, W. Radcliffe P.M. Secretary, H. Martin S.D., E. Thring J.D., Thos. Crapper I.G., A. Withers P.M. M.C., Alfred Green P.M. W.S., E. L. Pembroke Organist, and C. T. Speight Tyler. After the minutes of last meeting had been read and confirmed, Lodge was advanced, and Brothers Bennett, Lindfield and Goodall, candidates for raising, were examined and entrusted. These brethren then retired, and the Lodge was opened in the third degree. The candidates were severally readmitted, and raised to the sublime degree, the W.M. conducting the work in an eminently satisfactory way. Lodge was closed in the third and second degrees, and other matters of business having received attention, was closed, and the meeting adjourned till the second Tuesday in April.

Kent Lodge of Instruction, No. 15.—At the King and Queen, Norton Folgate, E.C., on Wednesday last, Bros. Gieseke W.M., Patrick S.W., Young J.W., Clark S.D., Sergeant J.D., Leoffler I.G., Millington Secretary; also Bros. Rowe, Wright, Andrews. The work comprised the rehearsal of the ceremony of initiation, Brother Rowe candidate. The W.M. vacated the chair in favour of Brother Clark. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Gieseke answered the questions leading to the third, and was entrusted. Lodge was opened in the third, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. Gieseke candidate. Lodge was resumed to the first degree. Bro. Patrick was elected W.M. for the ensuing week.

Loughborough Lodge of Instruction, No. 22.—A meeting was held on Monday evening, 5th instant, at Brother McDiarmaid's, the Cambria Tavern, Cambria-road, Loughborough-junction. Bros. Sherring W.M., Wood S.W., Banks J.W., McKinlay Secretary, Harvey S.D., Price J.D., Johnson Preceptor, Wesley I.G.; also Bros. Stevens P.M., Brown, Perkins, &c. The business comprised the working of the second and third sections of the first lecture, and the rehearsal of the ceremony of initiation, Bro. Perkins as candidate. A ballot took place, which is the second since the Lodge was formed, when Bro. Long, of the Alexandra Palace Lodge, No. 1541, was the successful member. Previous to the brethren separating, the usual harmony meeting was held. This Lodge works under the Preceptorship of Bro. Johnson, a careful expounder of the ritual, and visitors always receive a cordial welcome.

On Monday last, Bros. Wood W.M., Banks S.W., Harvey J.W., McDiarmaid Treasurer, McKinley Secretary, Westley S.D., Johnson Preceptor, Hood J.D., Carnock I.G.; Bros. Bellis, Sherring, Taffs, Littlewood, Warren, Martin, Hampton, Chambers, &c. After preliminaries, the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Bro. Bellis candidate. Lodge resumed to the first degree, when Bro. Bellis worked the first, and Bro. Sherring the second section of the lecture.

Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, No. 382.—The last meeting of the second session of the above Lodge was held on Monday, the 12th instant, at the Chequers Hotel, Uxbridge. The attendance of the brethren was good. Present—Bros. Taplin W.M., Brooks S.W., Nicholson J.W., Bailey S.D., Fleming J.D., Duffin I.G. and Tyler, Coombes P.M. Preceptor, and others. After the usual formalities, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Brother Rowles (W.M. elect of the mother Lodge) being the candidate. Bro. Brooks S.W. was unanimously elected to fill the chair at the next meeting. There being £5 5s in hand, a ballot was taken under Rule 3 of the Lodge, which provides "that the subscribing members who may have attended or subscribed to at least two-thirds of the meetings during the accumulation of the sum shall be entitled to participate in the ballot, while any member who may previously have obtained a ballot through this Lodge of Instruction shall not be eligible to participate in the succeeding ballots until all the subscribing members have become Life Subscribers to one or more of the Charities." Brother Brooks Secretary reported that the following were eligible, viz.:—Bros. Cotton, Phillips, Nicholson, Rowles, Taplin, and Brooks. The Worshipful Master conducted the ballot, assisted by his Deacons, when it was drawn in favour of Bro. Brooks Secretary. This finished the business of the second session, which, altogether, has been very satisfactory. Lodge was closed and adjourned until Monday, 3rd September.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No 860.—On Tuesday last, at Bro. Smyth's, Sisters' Tavern, Pownall-road, Dalston. There were present Bros. Glass W.M., Christian S.W., Begg J.W., Bunker S.D., Gray J.D., Hassell I.G., Carr Secretary, Wardell P.M. acting Preceptor; also Bros. Ames, Smyth, &c. After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Ames candidate. Bro. Smyth offered himself as candidate for passing, and was interrogated. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Smyth was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. Lodge was called off, and resumed its Masonic duties by Bro. Christian giving the lecture on tracing board. Lodge was resumed to the first degree. Bro. Hassell was elected a member. Bro. Christian was appointed W.M. for the ensuing week. Lodge was then closed and adjourned.

Grey Friars Lodge, No. 1101.—A regular meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, Reading, on Wednesday, the 14th instant. Bros. R. Dowsett W.M., Blackwell I.P.M., W. Ridley S.W., Hawkes J.W., Ivey P.M. Secretary, Hickie Organist, Prickett S.D., Ravenscroft J.D., Rhind I.G., Hemmings Tyler; P.M.'s Bro. W. Ferguson, F. J. Pulley, B. C. Hurley; Bros. Bailey, Coates, Slaughter, Weatherhead, Knight, Creed, Greenaway, Sands. Visitors—Bro. Withers J.W. 414, Tarrant 1158, F. J. Ferguson W.M. 414. Lodge was opened in the first degree, and minutes of the last regular Lodge were read and confirmed. The ballot was taken for Mr. James Sparrow, who was elected. Bro. B. W. Bennett, a candidate for passing to the second degree, gave satisfactory proof of his efficiency in the first degree, was entrusted and retired. Bro. Bennett was admitted and passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. The W.M. gave the charge in the second degree most correctly. The Lodge was closed to the first degree. The Secretary announced he had received a letter from the Provincial Grand Secretary, enquiring to which of the Charities the vote of five guineas was to be appropriated. The I.P.M. moved that the sum be given to the R.M.I.G., and added to the list of the W.M., who would represent the Lodge at the next Festival of that Institution. The I.P.M. also gave notice of motion, "That the sum of ten guineas from the funds of this Lodge be voted to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and that the same be added to the list of the W.M." The W.M. returned thanks for the kindness of the brethren, and expressed the hope that his list would be equal to those of his predecessors. All business being ended, the Lodge was closed in antient form and adjourned.

THE MOST BRILLIANT AND ECONOMICAL DOMESTIC LIGHT EXTANT.

It equals Gas for Simplicity, but surpasses it for Illuminating Power.

IT burns without a chimney, a pine-shaped globe only being required, which has never been known to break from the heat of the flame. It will give more light than any other lamp with a wick of equal size. The combustion is so perfect that it deodorises the oil, and burns absolutely without smell, giving an intense pure white and beautiful light. It is unrivalled for simplicity in lighting, cleaning, and trimming, and is, in fact, the perfection of artificial light. Suitable for Cottage or Mansion, Churches, Chapels, &c.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL ELECTION.

RESUMING our remarks in reference to the candidates for the coming April Elections of the Masonic Educational Institutions, we this week have before us the list for the Boys' School. As usual with this Charity, the number of candidates is far in excess of the vacancies it has been found possible to declare, there being sixty-five of the former—reduced to sixty-four by the removal from the competition of No. 60, T. F. Musgrave, who, as is stated on the ballot paper, was withdrawn on the 24th January last—and only twelve of the latter. We thus have an average of between five and six candidates for each vacancy, and may therefore look forward to an exciting election, followed, as usual, with feelings of disappointment for many a poor widow and her friends.

Glancing at the list of candidates generally, we find the same fault we have from time to time pointed out in connection with the details given in regard to the several candidates. There are cases of both parents still living, and of others with the father alive, without any reason being assigned for the appeal which is now being made to the general body of subscribers to the School, and in some of the cases where the father yet lives, he is described as W.M. of his Lodge; this description, however, we think must be a mistake, and yet, having referred to it on a previous occasion, we should have thought steps might have been taken, either by the parties concerned, or by the authorities, to put the matter right, and describe the respective fathers as P.M., if they hold that rank, rather than as W.M., a position which is hardly consistent with an appeal to one or other of the Charities. There are also rumours that one at least of the candidates is so circumstanced as to be outside the limits of eligibility so far as our idea of need of assistance is concerned, but as we do not think any good can come from a repetition of mere "rumours," we shall not mention the particular case until we are in a position to place facts before our readers, and this we hope to be able shortly to do.

The election will take place on Monday, 16th April, and, as we have already stated, there are sixty-four candidates for twelve vacancies. Of this number thirteen are "last applications," and, together with the cases of six other lads who are parentless, will first receive attention at our hands on the present occasion.

No. 41, H. E. Hippey, from a general point of view, seems to be the most deserving case on the list. He is one of four children dependent on comparative strangers for the necessaries of life, his father and mother being both dead. He now appeals for the last time, by reason of his age, at which he will be eligible. It can hardly be necessary to give elaborate details of such a case, for surely the fact of a parentless child making a last application is about as urgent a case as could be imagined. His father was a member of the Alfred Lodge, No. 340, Oxfordshire, and the lad now comes forward, for the second time, with a total of 527 votes to his credit. It is to be hoped that a strong body of friends will rally around him on the 16th proximo. No. 39, A. K. Bowes, son of the late Bro. John Bowes, of Lodge No. 148, West Lancashire, now appears on the list of candidates for the second time, with a total of 2,404 votes to his credit from October last, a state of affairs which must be looked upon as a mark of the respect in which his late father was held by his brother Masons. There is little doubt but that sufficient votes will be polled next month to ensure young Bowes's election. No. 16, A. H. Botting, one of two fatherless children, follows close, so far as number of votes in hand is concerned, there being a total of 2,388 to his credit, but they are the accumulation of three previous Elections. We hope, now that the last chance has come for this lad, that an effort will be made which will render his election a certainty. No. 3, G. W. K. Hill, who is one of six children dependent on a widowed mother, now applies for the seventh time, and large as his total number of votes in hand may seem—1,830—it is clear that a very strong effort will have to be made to prevent those already polled being wasted. That a lad after polling so large a number as 1,830 votes should fail on his seventh and last application would indeed be a misfortune, and we trust it may be prevented on the present occasion. Of the other last application cases, those which—by results at previous elections—give some idea of the amount of support that can be relied on on their behalf, appear to stand but poor chances of success, the number of votes already polled not exceeding 400 in either of the seven cases so circumstanced, while in three of them the totals are under 100. No. 14, E. H. Simpson, one of five fatherless children, after three elections has 396 votes to the good; No. 2, E. Farrar, after six attempts, has 291; No. 32, T. Woodward, third application, has 215; and No. 6, J. W. Long, after five contests has but 154. The three whose totals are under 100 are, No. 7, Frederick Pudney, who now appears for the fifth time, with 97 votes in hand; No. 1, James Collinson, who has but 69 from his six previous attempts; and No. 36, W. Benj. Townsend, who polled 9 in October last. These, with No. 45, H. Bray, and No. 49, E. A. Whiting, both first applications, close the list of last application cases. The former is one of six children left to the care of the widow of a Kentish brother, while the latter is one of a family of eight whose father was a member of a Warwickshire Lodge. We cannot close this list of last chances without again drawing the attention of brethren to the cruelty they inflict on those in distress by holding out hopes of relief; and, once having got a case on the list of candidates, allowing it to take its own course. It may not be that all the cases we have referred to as having no chance of success have been neglected, but it is very certain some of them have; and we again condemn most strongly the action of those brethren who recommend an application being made to the School without there being some reasonable prospect of ultimate success.

There are six cases in which the applicants have lost both father and mother, beyond the one already referred to, three now appearing on the list for the first time. No. 15, A. W. Wyatt, after three applications, appears with a total of 354 votes to his credit. He is one of four children still dependent on their friends for support; he has a sister in the Girls' School, and we trust will himself secure a place on the list of successful candidates at no distant date.

EPPS'S (GRATEFUL COMFORTING) COCOA.

No. 22, R. A. Sykes, appears to be an only child of a late member of St. John Lodge, No. 104, and now appears for the third time, with 329 votes to his credit; while No. 43, T. E. Pawsey, who was a candidate in October last, and is one of five parentless children, has not yet polled any votes. No. 55, F. A. Herring, No. 56, H. R. Graves, and No. 62, W. E. Habgood, the remaining three parentless cases, are all first applications. Herring and Habgood are described as the only dependent children; and Graves, one of five dependent; but we believe there is an error in Herring's case, as there are three children of the late Bro. Herring still living, the one for whom admission to the Boys' School is being sought being the only one dependent on an uncle, who has kindly taken charge of him.

No. 12, C. J. Crow, has 2,460 votes in hand from four previous attempts, and stands, we think, a fair chance of success at at early date; he is one of two dependent children. No. 30, H. H. Tustin, who has made two previous trials, comes next, with 2,382 votes in hand. He and three other children are dependent on a widowed mother for support. She must possess a strong circle of friends to have realised so large a total in so short a time. Next in order, as regards votes in hand, comes No. 8, C. E. Stewart, who has 1,979, the result of four previous contests; he and four other children are dependent. No. 5, W. B. Stanford, sixth application, has secured 1,873 votes, and, as one of three children of a late member of Friendship Lodge, No. 100, still appeals to the brethren of Norfolk for their proxies. No. 11, G. C. Willett, an only child dependent on the widow of a late menber of Old Concord Lodge, No. 172, has secured 1,751 votes at the last four elections, and will doubtless be carried in ere the age limit puts a stop to further applications being made on his behalf. No. 33, F. B. Salter, who is also an only child relying on a widowed mother, likewise stands a good chance, having had a total of 1,621 votes polled on his behalf in October last. No. 31, F. C. V. Basham, third application, and one of a family of five, has 1,347 votes in hand. No. 10, F. F. Skelton, has a sister in the Girls' School; he and six other children are still dependent on a widowed mother, who thus far has been able to collect 1,021 votes on behalf of her son, who now comes forward for the fifth time. The remaining candidates who have taken part in previous elections have each under 1000 votes in hand, the totals ranging from 940 in the case of No. 25, to two in that of No. 42.

No. 35, R. Beaumont, and No. 54, F. B. Bailey, are each members of families of ten where the father and mother are both living; the former has made one previous application, when 109 votes were recorded on his behalf; the latter is a new case. The remarks we have previously made, as regards lack of information, applies to these cases, unless large families are to be considered as rendering an applicant eligible. We have no doubt that some other reason does exist; but why not state it to the Masonic world? No. 4, C. P. Liversedge, is one of nine children dependent on the widow of a late member of Sir Watkin Lodge, No. 1477 (North Wales and Salop); he has stood five previous elections, and has 655 votes to the good. We should like to see the Institution in a position to relieve the widow of the charge of one of her large family, without the trouble of election; but, alas! that is not possible. No. 63, B. M. Hildred, and seven other children, form the family which the widow of a late member of Harmony Lodge, No. 272, has dependent on her. The husband having been a Past Provincial Officer of Lincolnshire, his child will, we hope, receive support at the hands of the brethren of that Province.

We have now gone half through the list, having referred to 32 of the cases. Of the remainder, 20 have made previous attempts, while 13 are new applications. The families of which these candidates are members range from seven children downwards. We think it best to leave our review of these cases until next week, at the same time we know there may be many equally, if not more deserving, than those we have already referred to.

The Provincial Grand Master of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight, R.W. Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., has fixed Saturday, the 7th of April, for the constitution of the Hampshire Lodge of Emulation, No. 1990, at the Freemasons' Hall, Landport. Brother J. R. Hayman P.M., P.G. Registrar, is the W.M. designate.

THE WOLSELEY LODGE AND "TEMPERANCE."

WE published last week, which from the light it throws on the constitution of the new Lodge about to be consecrated in Manchester, on Wednesday next, the 28th inst., under the style and title of the Wolseley Lodge No. 1993, and the proceedings adopted by the "W.M. elect," with a view, apparently, to securing an unusually large attendance on the occasion, demands some serious consideration. Our correspondent's story is briefly this: The Wolseley Lodge is to be governed by "Temperance," which he not unreasonably interprets as "Teetotal" principles. To this point of itself he raises no objection. Assuredly, no harm is likely to befal Freemasonry because the members of a certain Lodge are prepared to carry one particular form of temperance to an extreme. But, says the writer of the letter in question, a circular "has been lent me by a friend, who received it in his official capacity as the Master of a Provincial Lodge, which meets in a pretty little town, not fifty miles distant from the Metropolis. He is not aware that he is indebted for the circular to any acquaintance with either the W.M. elect or the Provisional Secretary of the Lodge that is to be. Indeed, the fact of the circular being printed, and addressed to the 'W.M or Sec. of the Masonic Lodge at '——, has induced him and me to suppose that copies of it have been issued broadcast, for what purpose we are not, as a matter of course, in a position to state precisely, though both of us seem to be of the opinion that it is not exactly in accordance with Masonic usage or custom." Here again the inference drawn is not unreasonable. People will not be at the trouble and expense of having circulars printed unless they are to be circulated pretty freely, except, indeed, they take the form of Lodge Summonses, the numbers of which are regulated by the number of members belonging to the several Lodges. But obviously this is not the case in the present instance, in which we have evidence of a circular having been addressed to the Master or Secretary of a Masonic Lodge in his official instead of his individual capacity, the name and abode of the addressee being unknown to the brother sending it. That invitations should be sent to distinguished members of the Craft, such as Grand Officers of England, Grand Officers of the Province in which the proposed Lodge is situated, to the Masters, Officers and members of the recommending Lodge, as well as to the Charter members and to the brethren who have expressed a wish to become joining members, that all these should be sent by command of the W.M. designate, is only in accordance with Masonic custom, but that brethren from a distance, who are strangers and can have only a general interest in the event, especially in the circumstances attending the establishment and operations of this particular Lodge, is, to say the least, most unusual. As well might the W.M. Designate have directed his provisional Secretary to insert a series of advertisements in the London and Provincial papers, inviting the presence of all brethren desirous of taking part in the ceremony.

Our correspondent goes on to describe the contents of the Circular, which, after stating when and by whom the ceremonies of Consecration and Installation will be performed, adds that "Bro. Lord Wolseley, in addition to a large number of noble and distinguished brethren (including G. Lodge Officers and Rulers of the Craft) has consented to be present;" and that, at a certain hour after the ceremony, a banquet will be held in a certain Hall, "the tickets for which will be One Guinea each," proceeds to intimate that, if the W.M. or Secretary to whom the circular is addressed, and other members of his Lodge are desirous of attending, he will be pleased to fill up the blank spaces in the form provided, furnish the names and Masonic rank of intending visitors, with the number of their respective Lodges, and enclose cheque or P.O. Order for the price of the tickets required, to which is added, "no application can be entertained after March 21st."

The writer having thus—only more fully—described the circular, devotes the rest of his letter to the expression of sundry objections to the course of proceeding adopted, and here again we are bound to say there is nothing unreasonable in his propositions, be they taken singly or together. These propositions are necessarily conjectural, because, as he remarked at the outset, neither he nor the friend who lent him the circular could state the precise object with which it was issued; nevertheless, they will bear examination. In the first place, he argues there is nothing unusual about the consecration of a new Lodge, that is to say, nothing so unusual as to induce outside brethren to contribute, as in this instance, a guinea each towards the banquet, and incur the expenses of travelling to and from Manchester in order to witness it. Then he suggests that, as the Wolseley Lodge is to be conducted on "Temperance," by which he supposes is meant "Teetotal," principles, perhaps its W.M. Designate may be "desirous of making the Consecration of his new Lodge an occasion for disseminating 'teetotal principles,'" and he adds, "If this is the idea which led to the issue of these circulars, I can only say it is distinctly opposed to the spirit of Freemasonry, which absolutely prohibits our Lodges from being made arenas for the discussion of political and religious questions." We think our readers will agree with us that no reasonable exception can be taken to this line of argument. If his conjecture falls through, the argument based on it disappears likewise; but if the former can be established, the latter follows.

Again, as to the issue of the circulars, which he points out must find their way into the hands of teetotallers and non-teetotallers indiscriminately; he states the case very fairly when he says: "If Bros. A, B, and C, who are not teetotallers, accept the invitation, and each pays his guinea towards the banquet, will they be denied their 'modest quenchers,' because an apostle of teetotalism in the person of the W.M. is in the chair, and sundry of his disciples are at the festive board? If they are so denied, the teetotal doctrine is being forced upon them, while, if an exception is made in their favour, and the wine is forthcoming, then the temperance—that is, teetotal—principles, about which all this fuss is being made, are being lost sight of. The Lodge will be like any other Masonic Lodge, the members of which, and the visitors to which, are at liberty to drink wine or not, as it suits them." There is no escaping from the horns of this dilemma, nor, we may add, is he a whit less effective when he points out that the charge of a guinea per head for a "temperance" banquet is a very remarkable illustration of "intemperate" expenditure.

He sums up his case in a manner void of all offence, yet very forcibly. "The proceedings in connection with the Wolseley Lodge have been, in my humble judgment, a mistake throughout. It was tantamount to casting a slight on the Craft, when it was announced as a Temperance Lodge, as though temperance were a virtue unknown to or unrespected by Masons. It was a great mistake to puff far and wide the association of Lord Wolseley's name with the Lodge; I do not wish to suggest anything un-Masonic, but censorious people might say it was done to make capital—I do not mean, of course, pecuniary capital—out of the connection; but the crowning mistake of all is the issue of this circular of invitation, as though the Lodge were trading for outside encouragement of its so-called 'temperance' principles."

We can see no objection to the establishment of one or more teetotal Lodges—should we visit one, however, we shall hope to have our views about what constitutes temperance respected, and to see the modest glass of ale or wine forthcoming, when needed. There are already several class Lodges, and one more or less can make no difference. But even though, to use a familiar expression, we may be crying out before we are hurt, we must strenuously protest against the establishment of any class Lodge, if there is the slightest chance of its being made a means for the dissemination of its peculiar class ideas. The essential principle of Freemasonry is freedom. The discussion of religious and political questions is forbidden at our meetings, but a Mason must have in him enough of political feeling to compel respect for the established laws and institutions of the country to which he belongs or in which he is residing. He must likewise be impressed with just so much of the religious sense as to recognise the existence of a Supreme Being and a future state. He is also required to practise and uphold the principles of morality. But the discussion of, or any attempt to discuss in any assembly of Masons, what is the most acceptable form of religion, morality, or politics, is forbidden, and the members of the Wolseley Lodge, however enthusiastic as teetotalers, will have to bear this in mind in the conduct of their Lodge.

JOAN OF ARC.

CONFLICTING TESTIMONY ABOUT HER HAVING BEEN BURNT.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

ON one side, hundreds of historians and historical writers inform us that Joan of Arc was burnt in 1431. Even the eighth edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica" and Appleton's new "Encyclopædia" do not intimate the existence of a doubt about it. On the other hand, I find the following in Brewer's "Dictionary of Phrase and Fable":—

M. Octave Delepierre has published a pamphlet called "Doute Historique," to deny the tradition that Joan of Arc was burnt at Rouen for sorcery. He cites a document discovered by Father Vignier, in the seventeenth century, in the archives of Metz, to prove that she became the wife of Sieur des Armoise, with whom she resided at Metz, and became the mother of a family. Vignier found in the muniment chest the contract of marriage between "Robert des Armoise, knight, and Jeanne D'Arcy, surnamed the Maid of Orleans." In 1740 there were were found in the archives of Maison de Ville (Orleans), records of several payments to certain messengers from Joan to her Brother John, bearing dates 1435 and 1436. There is also an entry of a presentation from the council of the city to the maid, for her services at the siege (date 1439). M. Delepierre brought forward a host of other documents to corroborate the same fact, and show that the tale of her martyrdom was invented to throw odium on the English.

As neither the original documents above referred to, nor Delepierre's pamphlet, were accessible to me, and I could not, therefore, know what "the host of other documents" amounted to, I looked, therefore, into the latest edition of Chambers' (Edinburgh) "Encyclopædia," wherein I found both versions—viz., that Joan was and was not burnt; the latter version winds up with references to the following works: "See Quicherat's "Condemnation et Rehabilitation de Jeanne d'Arc" (1850), Delepierre's "Doute Historique" (1855), Wallon's "Jeanne d'Arc" (1867), and Molandon's "Premiere Expedition de J." (1874).

In Knight's English "Encyclopædia" (article Arc) both sides are also given. It is more full and exhaustive than in Chambers'. It refers to a work by Chaussard, which enumerates upwards of four hundred works, either expressly devoted to Joan's life, or including her history; and it adds: In Shakespeare's Henry VI. we find the proper English view of her character, mingled with a higher estimate than belongs to the chronicles of the period." With upwards of four hundred authorities affirming that she was burnt, and Shakespeare's in the bargain, it is no wonder that the writers for the above-named Encyclopædias did not dare to commit themselves to either side of the question, and thus left us in doubt about it. I have, however, found an old authority, not mentioned or referred to in the above-named works, which I think will confirm the statement of Delepierre that Joan of Arc was not burnt.

Every one at all familiar with Montaigne's "Essays" must admit that the author was well acquainted with classical, ecclesiastical and mediæval literature and history. Joan of Arc is said to have been burnt in 1431. Montaigne was born in 1533. He acquired a love of reading when he was seven years old. One so predisposed, we may naturally assume, was acquainted with the history of his own country when he was twenty years of age, or at least he must have been familiar with an event which took place in 1431—only one hundred and twenty-two years previous. I say only, because it is not impossible that men were then living whose grandfathers may have remembered Joan of Arc, for instance. My own grandfather told me that he remembered the Gordon riots in London, in 1780, and he must have been then at least twenty-five years of age. About thirty-five years ago I was introduced to Mr. Henry Purkitt, who, at the age of seventeen, took part in throwing the tea overboard in Boston harbour in 1773. The period of a hundred and twenty-two years can therefore be bridged over, as it were, by two or three individuals. The traditions and history of such a person as Joan of Arc, who saved France from subjection to a foreign yoke, could not have been obliterated, or very much altered in France itself, within a period of a hundred and two years. If Joan had been burnt Montaigne would surely have been acquainted with the fact.

In 1580 Montaigne travelled through France, Switzerland, Germany and Italy, visiting especially those localities which were connected with historic events. In every place he came to he diligently questioned the innkeeper, the priest, the schoolmaster, &c., about the antiquities that might be found in the neighbourhood, such as old churches, old ruins, old monuments, old inscription, &c., also about the floating legends and traditions thereabout; and all that he heard or saw he carefully recorded in his diary. Judging from Montaigne's writings, he must be regarded as a faithful narrator. I cannot, therefore, believe him guilty of inventing fiction, or of omitting facts.* Besides, I can conceive no possible motive for his doing either in the case of Joan of Arc. Now, among other places, Montaigne visited the birthplace of Joan, wherein her memory was cherished, and legends about her must have abounded. Had the story of her tragic end been true, it would have been known to the people of her birthplace, and Montaigne, if he had not previously known it, would have learned it there. The following extract from Montaigne's diary will, however, show just what he knew about Joan of Arc:—

Domremy, on the Meuse, three leagues from Vancouleur, where was born the famous Maid of Orleans, whose name was Joan d'Aoq, or de Arcis. Her descendants were ennobled by the royal favour, and we were shown the arms which the king gave them. Azure, a straight sword, a crown and handle of gold, and two fleur-de-lis at the side of the sword, of which a receiver of Vancouleur gave M de Caselis a painted copy. The front of the small house in which she was born is covered with representations of her different exploits, but time has greatly defaced the painting. There is also a tree with a vine up it, which is called the "Maid's tree;" but there is nothing else remarkable about it.—Montaigne's Essays, by William Hazlitt, printed by William Amies, Philadelphia. Page 557.

From the above we can reasonably infer, first, that in 1580 Montaigne was ignorant of the legend of Joan's martyrdom; second, that the inn-keeper, the priest, the schoolmaster, and the people generally of Joan's birthplace, were also ignorant of the said martyrdom. Third, the painter of "her different exploits," and those who engaged him to paint (which must have been done many years previous to Montaigne's visit to Domremy), must also have been ignorant of the burning legend. And, fourth, the diary not only furnishes negative evidence, but positive evidence too. Montaigne's allusion to Joan's descendants, fully confirms Delepierre's statement about her marriage; for, as no one ever disputed Joan's chastity, her descendants were doubtless legitimately begotten.

The legend of Joan's martyrdom probably originated in the brain of a wandering minstrel or troubadour, who turned it into a song, which Shakespeare, or some earlier dramatic writer wove into the play of Henry VI., which a subsequent historian embodied into a history, and which hundreds of other historical writers have since then copied and embellished in good faith, each according to his own bias or notion.

Obituary.

BRO. WILLIAM H. JONES.

THE death is announced of Bro. William H. Jones, who was recently one of the lessees of the Alexandra Palace, and also of Covent Garden Theatre during the Autumn Series of Promenade Concerts. The unfortunate effects of bad weather on the former undertaking, resulting in the failure of the lessees some months since, and the consequent excitement and anxiety acting on a somewhat nervous temperament, doubtless brought about the attack of heart disease from which Bro. Jones had been confined to his room for some days past, and from which he expired on Saturday morning, at the early age of thirty-nine. Previous to his connection with the Alexandra Palace he had been many years before the public, first as assistant in the management of the Crystal Palace, Sydenham; afterwards as manager of, and subsequently partner in, the firm of C. T. Brock and Co., the pyrotechnists, whom he represented in India for the rejoicings during the Prince of Wales's tour. His loss will be very deeply felt by his widow and family, as well as by a large number of sympathising friends. Bro. Jones was initiated in the Kilburn Lodge, No. 1608, on the 28th March 1881.

Mr. J. G. Chambers, editor of Land and Water, and proprietor of the Lillie Bridge Grounds, was buried on Thursday, 8th inst., in Brompton Cemetery, in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives, assembled to pay their last tribute of respect to his memory. Many of our readers must be well aware that Mr. Chambers had been for many years past a conspicuous figure in the world of sport. His proprietorship of the Lillie Bridge Grounds gave him opportunities such as fall to the lot of few to promote healthy and honourable sport, and it is no mere figure of speech to say that he made the most of those opportunities. He set his face most decidedly against everything that had even the semblance of being of a questionable character, and by his invariably upright and honourable conduct he did more than any other man of his time to elevate the tone of athleticism. Mr. Chambers was educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge, and during his University career rowed two consecutive years against Oxford. In the days when Mr. Goldie, as stroke of the Cambridge eight, succeeded in turning the tables on the Dark Blues, and wresting from them the victory which had been theirs during so many successive years, Mr. Chambers acted as coach to the Light Blue Crews, and to him therefore necessarily belongs a large share of the honour then gained by his University. He was also a great encourager of Brother Captain Webb, of Channel fame; in short, whether it was rowing, cricket, hunting, shooting, football, or other sport, Mr. Chambers's help was sure to be forthcoming, so long as everything was honourable and straightforward. It will be a long time before we look upon his like again, for energy, activity, and zeal, combined with thorough practical and theoretical experience, as a genuine all round sportsman.

NEW ZEALAND.

ST. ANDREW LODGE, No. 418 S.C.

AT the regular monthly communication of St. Andrew Lodge, held at Auckland, New Zealand, on 12th January, the principal business was the installation of Officers for the ensuing year. There was a fair attendance of members, and a number of visiting brethren were present to take part in the proceedings and offer their congratulations. Amongst the visitors were Bros. the Rev. C. M. Nelson P.M. Prince of Wales, Munro P.M. Rodney, E. Richards Rodney, Kitt W.M. Eden, and other representatives of city, suburban, and country Lodges. A number of apologies were received, amongst others from Bro. G. P. Pierce R.W.M. I.C., and the Masters, Past Masters, and Officers of various Lodges who were unable to attend owing to ill health or other causes. Bro. Malcolm Nicoll officiated as Installing Master, and having re-obligated the R.W.M. Bro. Salter, the latter proceeded to invest his Officers as follow:—Bros. R. B. Symons D.M., J. F. Bulford J.W., T. Ellison P.M. Treasurer, R. Knight Secretary, J. Robson S.D., W. H. Clarke J.D., Williams and McQuarrie Senior Stewards, A. J. Fisher I.G., Captain Tonge Tyler. Brother R. Kaye S.W. elect was not invested, owing to his absence from the colony as mail agent, and Bro. the Rev. F. Gould, Chaplain elect, was also absent. Brother Dr. Walker was invested as Organist, and conducted the musical portion of the ceremony. The Lodge having been duly closed, the brethren adjourned to a banquet in the banquet room of the hall. The R.W.M. presided, and was supported on his right by the D.M. and Brother Munro P.M. Rodney Lodge, and on the left by Bro. the Rev. C. M. Nelson P.M. Prince of Wales E.C. An excellent spread was provided by Bro. McEwen, and ample justice was done to it. After the cloth was cleared, the Chairman, calling on the brethren to charge their glasses, proposed the toast of The Queen and Craft. This was followed by the toasts of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M. of England, Earl of Mar and Kelley M.W.G.M. of Scotland, and Duke of Abercorn M.W.G.M. of Ireland. These toasts were responded to with Masonic honours, and appropriate musical selections. Bro. Hitchins, who occupied the vice chair, proposed the toast of the Provincial and District Grand Lodges of New Zealand. He referred to the unity which bound the three Constitutions together here, and the good feeling which had always prevailed. Bro. the Rev. C. M. Nelson responded on behalf of the Very Worshipful Grand Master of the District Grand Lodge E.C., Brother Graham. He was sorry Bro. Graham was not present. The reason probably that so many were absent that night was, that so many occasions of this sort had occurred recently that brethren could not attend them all. He thanked them heartily for the manner in which they had drunk the toast of the District Grand Master's health. He was sorry they now saw so little of him, on account of his residence in Wellington, but that he was a good Mason they all knew. Brother Nelson then referred to the benefits which had accrued to Masonry here since the establishment of the D.G. Lodge of England and the P.G. Lodge of Scotland. Some thought there was only room for one P.G. Lodge, but since the establishment of the other two, there had been created a generous rivalry which livened them up, and they all worked amicably together; and long might it so remain. Brother W. Robinson responded on behalf of Brother the Hon. F. Whitaker P.G.M., and for the P.G. Lodge S.C. The toast of the Masters of Auckland Lodges was proposed by Bro. Munro, and responded to by Brother Kitt, W.M. of Eden Lodge. Brother the Rev. C. M. Nelson, in proposing the toast of the evening, The W.M. of Lodge St. Andrew, said he felt honoured in being called upon to propose this toast. They were met to do honour to the re-installation of Bro. Slator as W.M. of Lodge St. Andrew, and it afforded him the more pleasure to propose the toast, for Brother Slator was well known to him personally—perhaps longer known to him than to any one there that night. He had known Brother Slator since he came to the colony, and had the highest esteem for him in his private life, and although they worked under different Constitutions of Freemasonry, and did not meet perhaps so often as they ought, it gave him great pleasure to propose the toast. The position of Master of a Lodge was one of great honour. It was also one of great responsibility. It taxed the ability of the Master, and his patience, and it proved the man. It must be a matter of great congratulation to the W.M. to have been re-elected, and he heartily wished him and his Lodge a prosperous and successful year. Brother Slator, in responding, returned his hearty and heartfelt thanks for the manner in which the toast of his health had been responded to, and for the kindly way in which it had been proposed by his worthy and esteemed friend, Brother Nelson. He trusted he might deserve the good character given him by Bro. Nelson; at all events, he would endeavour to do so. No man was infallible, and he may have made mistakes, but he hoped the brethren would give him credit for trying to do his best for the benefit of St. Andrew's Lodge in particular, and Masonry in general. It was a great pleasure to him to do anything he could for Masonry. He liked his own Constitution best, probably because it was his mother Constitution, and he trusted they would have a flourishing year at St. Andrew's, and that the brethren would unite in furthering the interests of the Lodge and Masonry in general. He regretted there were so few Masters of Lodges present, but many of them had sent apologies. He again thanked them for the cordial and heartfelt manner in which they had responded to the toast of his health, and for the honourable position in which they had placed him as Master of the Lodge St. Andrew for the ensuing twelve months. It proved to him that anything he had done in the past year for the advancement and interest of the Lodge was appreciated. The toasts of the Installing Master, Visiting Brethren, and the Tyler's toast, "Poor and Distressed Brethren all over the World," followed. A very pleasant evening was spent. Dr. Walker presided at the piano. Numerous songs were sung and some recitations were given, and nothing was left wanting which could conduce to the enjoyment of those present.

KENT LODGE, No. 15.

THE annual meeting of this ancient Lodge was held on Wednesday, the 14th inst., at Freemasons' Hall. There were present Bros. A. Posener W.M., Hirst (W.M. elect) S.W., Stimson J.W., Sleeman P.M. Treasurer, Dukes P.M. Secretary, Legge S.D. Woolley J.D., James I.G., Pinder P.M. Steward; P.M.'s Wells, Ball, Ginman, Wharman, Martin and Barlow; also Bros. Posener, Wigglesworth, Goldberg, Tatton, Ball, Plummer, Cammell, Bithray, Potier, Bishop, Tucker, Ives, Crosse, Newell, Saunders. The Visitors' list was a large one, comprising several well-known exponents of the tenets of Freemasonry, amongst whom we may mention the following:—Bros. Sugg P.M. 452 P.P.G.O. Surrey; P.M.'s Fenner 1227 and 1693, Groom 861, Jacobs 1327, Johnson 861, Payn 201, Phillips 205, Southwood 1260, Waters 700, Fisher W.M. 1174; Bros. Ashton 1507, C. E. Botley and F. Botley 780, Bradgate 55, Child 453, Dixie 453, France 1986, Gibbs 1580, Glass 453, Gold 815, Greenfield 1602, C. F. Haines 1679, D. Haines 75, Hall 1307, Levatt 452, Monson jun. 1174, Norman 1920, Pipe 1306, Porter 11. Potts 1244, Robertson 1538, Seymour 1471, Shoobert 766, Smith 1076, Weeden 813, Wild 89, Williams 902, and Woodman 1950. Lodge was opened in regular form, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Saunders, having given proof of his proficiency as F.C., was duly entrusted. Lodge was then advanced to the third, and Bro. G. T. Saunders was raised to the degree of M.M.; after which, Lodge being resumed to the first degree, Mr. C. R. Saunders (brother of the candidate named above), who was balloted for at a previous meeting, was regularly initiated into Freemasonry. Lodge was resumed to the second degree, when the important feature of the day's proceedings was transacted—the installation of Bro. W. Hirst, who was presented by Bro. James Pinder P.M., and duly obligated by the W.M. All brethren below the degree then retired, and a Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. W. Hirst was regularly installed into the chair of K.S. in a very excellent manner by Bro. W. P. Dukes. The W.M. invested Bro. Posener as I.P.M. and the brethren were re-admitted. They saluted the Master in the customary manner, after which the Bro. Hirst appointed and invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. E. Stimson S.W., T. W. Legge J.W., J. Sleeman P.M. Treasurer, W. P. Dukes P.M. Secretary, J. J. Woolley S.D., C. James J.D., J. A. Cammell I.G., A. Pritchard M.C., J. Pinder P.M. W.S. After which Bro. A. Posener delivered the addresses in a very excellent manner. The Auditor's report was received and adopted. The new Worshipful Master then, in the name of the Lodge, presented Brother A. Posener with a handsome Past Master's jewel, accompanying the presentation by a few kind remarks, adding that he would have more to say on the subject at the banquet table. After this Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Holborn Restaurant, where a sumptuous banquet was provided, to which both members and visitors did ample justice. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly honoured. The I.P.M., in proposing the toast of the W.M., congratulated the brethren on the choice they had made; he believed the W.M. would fully justify their selection. In reply the W.M. begged to assure the brethren that he would do his best to maintain the integrity of Freemasonry. Having been elected W.M., he was pledged to support and uphold the dignity of the chair; so far as his year of office went he would strive to do so to the best of his ability. He assured them that his sole aim was to do the utmost that lay in his power for the welfare of his Lodge. The W.M. then, in a kindly speech, proposed the health of the I.P.M., which compliment was suitably responded to. The Initiate's toast came next, after which that of the Visitors was given, and responded to by the following:—Bros. Gold, Glass, Potts, Dixie, Groom, Greenfield, Botley and Fenner. The Past Masters' and Officers' toasts came next; each was ably responded to, and then the Tyler gave the parting toast, and the brethren separated, after having spent a very pleasant evening. We may mention that Bro. E. H. Sugg P.P.G.O. Surrey presided at the organ in Lodge; also at the piano after the banquet. The harmony of the evening was added to considerably by songs,—from Bros. Seymour, Pinder P.M., Monson, Newell and E. Woodman, while Bro. Robertson gave an excellent recitation.

ROYAL UNION LODGE, No. 382.

CONSEQUENT upon the near approach of the Easter Holidays, and the unfavourable state of the weather, the installation meeting, on Monday, of this popular Lodge was not so well attended as is usually the case. However, amongst those who supported the Worshipful Master—Bro. J. Lonsdale—on this occasion were Bros. G. Fehrenbach P.M. Treasurer, W. Coombes P.M. P. Prov. G.S.B. Mddx. Sec., C. Russ P.M. Prov. G.P., E. C. Woodward P.M., W. Webb P.M., W. Cook P.M., G. Rowles S.W. and W.M. elect, &c. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. J. F. Farrant 1158, H. M. Appleton 861, C. Sims 861, F. Bass 922, W. W. Morgan S.W. 211, T. H. Knight-Smith P.M. 1441, W. Clarke S.W. 141, Kenneth R. Montgomery J.D. 255, J. I. Cantle, A. Thomas, &c. Lodge was opened at 2.30, when the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Goodbun, a candidate for the second degree, underwent examination as to his proficiency and was entrusted. On his retiring from the Lodge, it was opened in the second degree, and the candidate was re-admitted, and passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. In due course the W.M. elect was introduced and obligated, a Board of Installed Masters opened, and Bro. Rowles was placed in the chair of King Solomon. On the re-admission of the brethren, the W.M. was saluted, and he then invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. Nicholson S.W., Cotton J.W., Fehrenbach P.M. Treas., W. Coombes P.M. P.G.S.B. Middlesex Sec., Hall S.D., Wilson J.D., Brooks I.G. and Almoner, Woodward P.M. M.C., Fleming Org., Taplin W.S., Lambert A.W.S., Duffin Tyler. Bro. Lonsdale, who had conducted the ceremonies of the day in a very creditable manner, then gave the addresses with great fervour, and took his seat amidst the congratulations of those present. The first duty of the new Master was to present his immediate predecessor with the Past Master's jewel, which had been unanimously voted him at the last meeting. This is a very neat piece of workmanship, and bears the following inscription:—

Presented by the brethren of the Royal Union Lodge to Bro. J. T. Lonsdale P.M., in testimony of their appreciation of the zeal and ability displayed by him during the year he presided as Worshipful Master.—19th March 1883."

Brother Rowles, in making the presentation, assured Bro. Lonsdale that his services during the past year had won for him the respect and esteem of all the brethren, who trusted he might be able to attend the Lodge and give his valuable assistance for many years to come. The gift was briefly but warmly acknowledged by Bro. Lonsdale, and then the Auditors' report and accounts were presented. The balance sheet, as printed and distributed, was adopted. It showed a balance in favour of the Lodge, after £10 10s had been paid to the R.M.B.I., £5 5s to the "Coombes's Testimonial," with the customary payments to Grand Lodge and Prov. Grand Lodge, &c. &c. There were two propositions for candidates for initiation; several letters were read, amongst them being communications from the Prov. Grand Master Sir Francis Burdett, and Bro. Raymond Thrupp the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, both regretting their inability to be present on this occasion, while the latter promised to attend the next meeting of the Lodge. Amongst other features worthy of notice, we may mention that a cordial vote of thanks was passed to Bro. P.M. Russ for the zeal with which he had carried out the wishes of the members in respect of Bro. Coombes's Testimonial, and then hearty good wishes having been tendered, Lodge was closed. The banquet was creditably and bountifully served by Bro. W. Phillips, mine host of the Chequers, and on the removal of the cloth, Bro. Rowles introduced the several toasts with commendable brevity. Bros. Coombes and Russ responded for the Prov. Grand Officers, and then Brother Lonsdale gave The Health of the Worshipful Master. The compliment was gracefully acknowledged by Bro. Rowles, who followed with that of the Past Masters, and fully recognised the zeal displayed by his immediate predecessor in the conduct of the business during his term of office, and paying him a deserved tribute for the way in which he had carried out the installation ceremony. The compliment paid him was modestly acknowledged by Bro. Lonsdale, who expressed the gratification it afforded him to know his efforts had met with the approval of the brethren of his Lodge. With the toast of the Masonic Institutions was associated the name of Bro. W. W. Morgan, one of the Visitors, who urged the Lodge to carry out the good work it had so well commenced this year—in subscribing £10 10s to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution—by supporting the Scholastic Institutions. Brother Morgan forcibly urged the need there was to sustain these Institutions at their present standard, and we are gratified in being able to state that an esteemed Past Master of the Lodge, who has already made his mark as a supporter of the Institutions, expressed his willingness to subscribe an additional ten guineas to the R.M.I.G. The Officers were thanked for the way in which they had carried out their duties, and then the Tyler gave the parting toast.

The following programme of music was excellently carried through:—Grace, "For these and all thy mercies;" National Anthem, "God save the Queen"—solo, Bro. Arthur Thomas; Masonic Anthem, "God bless the Prince of Wales"—solo, Bro. J. Ion Cantle; Song, "Tell me, Mary," Bro. Knight Smith; Duet, "Excelsior," Bro. Arthur Thomas and J. Ion Cantle; Song, "The Friar of Orders Grey," Bro. J. Ion Cantle; Song, "Come into the Garden, Maud," Bro. Arthur Thomas; Duet, "The Moon has raised," Bros. Knight-Smith and J. Ion Cantle; Song, "The Gay Postillion" (with Post Horn and Whip obligato), Bro. Arthur Thomas; Song, "Little Grey Fat Man," Bro. J. Ion Cantle. Bro. Kendle, a most popular member of this Lodge, created roars of laughter by his inimitable rendering of the comic story of "Pat and his Guinea."

TEMPLE LODGE, No. 558.

ON Tuesday, the 6th inst., the members of this Lodge assembled at the Town Hall, Folkestone, for the purpose of installing Bro. George Lainson Hart as W.M. for the ensuing year, which ceremony was performed by the Immediate Past Master, Bro. Wm. Francis jun., and at its conclusion the following Officers were invested:—Bros. W. Francis I.P.M., S. Joseph S.W., G. Harman J.W., A. H. Holbein P.M. Treasurer, James Kennett P.M. Secretary, G. I. Swoffer S.D., A. Petts J.D., F. Jarvis I.G., H. S. Roberts Org., and Job Baker Tyler. The report of the audit committee was received and adopted. At the conclusion of the Lodge business the brethren adjourned to the Pavilion Hotel, where the Installation banquet was partaken of. The newly installed W.M. presided, and there were present Bros. H. Stock P.M. P.P.Sup.W., J. Sherwood P.M. P.P.G.D., James Kennett P.M. P.P.G.O., O. H. Wagner P.P.G.J.W. (Herts), Francois Klatt P.M., A. H. Holbein P.M., W. Francis jun. I.P.M., S. Joseph, G. Harman, G. I. Swoffer, A. Petts, H. S. Roberts, R. Rhodes, W. Dunk, W. Goddard, W. Brooks, T. J. Harrison, J. Collens, G. Saxby, G. Taylor, D. P. W. Jones, and A. J. Crane, and the following from other Lodges: Bros. D. West W.M. 125, White W.M. 1436 P.P.G.P. Hants., T. H. Prescott W.M. 199, W. Oldfield W.M. 1208, T. J. Pulley P.M. 310, C. Gosby P.M. P.P.G.Sup.W. 1436, W. Amos P.M. 125, J. English P.P.G.Sup.W. 1437, F. Kelly 1436, Thos. Divers, S. J. Russell, J. W. Kennett Elliot, and Walter 125. The usual Masonic toasts were proposed in admirable terms, and duly honoured; after that of "The Masonic Charities," the Charity-box was passed round, and a sum amounting to upwards of £11 was subscribed in aid of the funds of these excellent institutions. The musical arrangements were under the able direction of Bro. H. S. Roberts, Bro. Rhodes coming specially for the occasion. Bros. W. Dunk, R. White and W. Francis also gave great pleasure by their services as vocalists.

WALLINGTON LODGE, No. 1892.

THIS admirably conducted Lodge held its second anniversary meeting on Thursday, the 15th instant, at the Public Hall, Carshalton. The Lodge was consecrated on the 15th of March 1881, by the popular Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Surrey, the Rev. C. W. Arnold Past Grand Chaplain, who was supported on the occasion by a large number of distinguished Craftsmen. Bro. Charles Sawyer was the first Worshipful Master, and under his direction the Lodge soon took a foremost place as regards the ability of its workers. In the second year of the Lodge's existence, it was under the direction of Bro. J. G. Horsey, who brought to bear on his Mastership the experience he gained as member of two other Lodges where he had filled the chair. The proceedings we are now about to chronicle were carried through most creditably, and the greatest satisfaction was expressed by all who assisted. Lodge was opened soon after four o'clock, under the presidency of Bro. J. G. Horsey, supported by his Officers, a large majority of the members, and the following Visitors:—C. Greenwood P.G.S.B. Prov. G.S.W. Surrey, W. W. Pritchett P.M. 1622, F. C. Pascatt W.M. 1790, F. G. Frost W.M. 1347 and 463, E. C. Massey P.M. 1297, H. H. Ranson J.D. 1790, H. T. Potter P.M. 1347, H. J. Legg 263, E. Harlock 1601, R. Davies 1673, J. J. Taffs 186, A. Verdan 188, W. Gibbs P.M. 1387, H. T. Barnard 1815, J. D. Langton W.M. 1673, Archibald Currie 1733, W. W. Morgan S.W. 211, &c. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the principal feature on the agenda paper was the installation of Bro. William Pile. Accordingly Lodge was opened in the second degree, and the W.M. elect was presented by Bro. Charles Sawyer P.M. In due course the obligation was administered, and Lodge was further advanced. A Board of Installed Masters then completed their part of the day's business, and the brethren were re-admitted and the W.M. was saluted. The Officers were appointed as follows:—Bros. John G. Horsey P.M. 1619 I.P.M., E. Dickman S.W., J. W. Baldwin J.W., W. R. Crowe P.M. 190 Treasurer, Leon A. Monrouse P.M. 1238 Secretary, A. Bishop S.D., F. Carter J.D., C. Sawyer P.M. 1619 and 1892 M.C., W. Bassett Inner Guard, H. Aslett Organist, W. Harwood Wine Steward, A. Bowley Tyler. Bro. Horsey then, in admirable style, delivered the addresses, and thus ably completed his labours as Master. The first duty of the new W.M. was to present his predecessor with the Past Master's jewel of the Lodge, a very neat and chaste emblem, which was admired by all present. This having been acknowledged by Bro. Horsey, several letters were read; one from Bro. Charles Greenwood jun. Prov. Grand Secretary, regretting his inability to attend, owing to another engagement. Routine work was then gone through, and Lodge was closed. The dinner was served at the King's Arms Hotel, and reflected great credit on the proprietor of that establishment. On the removal of the cloth, the W.M. rose to propose the first toast, the Queen and the Craft, after which the National Anthem was sung. In response to the W.M.'s appeal, the brethren have a most enthusiastic reception to the second toast—H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., Most Worshipful Grand Master of England; and then with that of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon R.W. Pro Grand Master, the Right Hon. the Earl of Lathom Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past, was associated the name of Bro. Charles Greenwood P.G.S.B., who thanked the W.M. and brethren for the manner in which the Grand Officers had been referred to, and the way in which the toast had been received. It was one that was always well received in Masonic Lodges, inasmuch as it was recognised that the Grand Officers were Masons who had done good suit and service in the past. He highly esteemed the honour he had received by being made a Grand Officer of England, but he considered it more of a reflected light due to his long connection with the Provincial Grand Lodge of Surrey, where he had been Secretary for many years. On referring again to the toast list, Brother Pile stated it was his intention, having regard to the exigencies of time, to incorporate the two next toasts; he therefore called on the brethren to drink to the R.W. Prov. Grand Master for Surrey, Bro. General J. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B.; the V.W. Bro. the Rev. C. W. Arnold, M.A., P.G. Chaplain, and Deputy Provincial Grand Master for Surrey; and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, Present and Past. Bro. Greenwood had referred in pleasant and eulogistic terms to the Province of Surrey, saying it was through what he had done in the Province of Surrey that he had obtained his position in Grand Lodge. It appeared therefore that Grand office in the Province of Surrey led to office in Grand Lodge of England. In Brother General Brownrigg they had a brother who had Masonry at heart. When he took the chair in Grand Lodge the work did not suffer by his presidency. He asked them to drink this toast with their accustomed goodwill, and he called on Bro. Greenwood to respond. Bro. Greenwood on again rising hoped the W.M. and brethren would forgive him for taking up their time, but he had no alternative as he had been named by the W.M. His connection with the Province of Surrey had extended over twenty-eight years. The W.M. was quite right in speaking highly of their Prov. Grand Master, and he could assure them the Prov. Grand Master was excessively proud of his Province. He had met General Brownrigg once since he presided at the Festival of the Benevolent Institution, and he expressed himself extremely gratified at the result achieved. With the exception of three, every Lodge in the Province had sent up a Steward to the Festival. The result was a proud one, the Stewards of the Province of Surrey had brought up a sum close upon £1,000. He had seen Bro. Terry, who was much pleased at having realised over £13,000 for his Institution, and he (Bro. Greenwood) felt that a great deal of that success was attributable to the presidency of the Grand Master for Surrey. Their Prov. Grand Master had the interests of the Province at heart. Perhaps his most difficult task was that of choosing his Officers, seeing that there were twenty-six Lodges in the Province, and the Provincial Grand Master had in his gift but five or six appointments. They might be quite sure of this, that the Prov. G. Master, aided by the Dep. Prov. G.M., does his best to appoint the best men. Bro. Horsey proposed the health of the W.M. He felt assured that he had only to mention Bro. Pile's name, and he could secure for the toast a hearty reception. Every brother present knew what a sincere Mason and kind friend they had in Bro. Pile. No member of the Wallington Lodge had worked more energetically than he, and as regards their Lodge of Instruction, much of its success was attributable to his exertions. In reply, Bro. Pile said he could scarcely consider himself sufficiently grateful for the hearty manner in which the brethren had received the toast of his health. He assured them that anything he could do for the benefit of the Lodge, should be done. He returned his thanks to the proposer of the toast for the kind way in which he had introduced the toast. For the toast of the Visitors Bros. J. Langton, Currie, Taffs, and Gibbs replied. The latter brother directed attention to a slight inaccuracy which appeared in a report that appeared in this journal three weeks back, wherein he is accredited within having given the lecture on the second tracing board, whereas it was Brother Baldwin who so ably acquitted himself on that occasion,—the Annual Meeting of the Wallington Lodge of Instruction. All spoke in eulogistic terms as to the way in which the Lodge was conducted, and of the ability displayed by its respective Officers. In proposing the health of the Installing Master, the Worshipful Master said he must urge as an excuse for limiting his remarks the reason given by Bro. Gibbs. After all that had been said in his praise, he had little to add. He should therefore confine himself to proposing the toast—Good health, long life, and great happiness to their I.P.M. Bro. Horsey. In reply, Bro. Horsey said he could only re-echo the words of the W.M., that what had been said left little for him to urge. He believed in the principle of a Master installing his successor, and in each of the two Lodges he had presided over he had striven to carry out that duty. Bro. Sawyer was of the same opinion, and he (Brother Horsey) was sensible of the ability displayed by Brother Sawyer when, twelve months back, he installed him into the chair. The W.M. then called on the brethren present to drink to the prosperity of the Masonic Charities. Such a body of men as composed the Masonic Craft must have its Charities, and he was glad to say the Masonic Charities were as wealthy as any in the Kingdom. They had had reference already made to the Festival at which their Prov. Grand Master had presided. They had no representative present who was immediately connected with the Charities; he should therefore call upon Brother W. W. Morgan, who only a fortnight since had given them a most instructive and interesting leader on the Institutions. Brother Morgan felt it a great honour that was paid him in associating his name with this toast. He regretted that neither of the Secretaries were present, but he felt they could all excuse Bro. Terry, who unquestionably needed some rest after the heavy labours his Festival had entailed upon him. Unfortunately, Bro Binckes's state of health compelled him, for a time at least, to abstain from taking a too active part in these festive gatherings. He (Brother Morgan) felt assured the brethren around him would commend Bro. Binckes for so doing. The labours his Festival must necessarily entail rendered it imperative he should nerve himself for action, and under the presidency of Right Hon. Viscount Holmesdale, Prov. G.M. Kent, one and all hoped the result would be as satisfactory as in the case of the R.M.B.I. Bro. Hedges, the Secretary of the R.M.I.G., was perhaps not so well known as those he had mentioned, but he was a most energetic and assiduous Officer. His Festival would take place in May, when Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., Prov. G.M. Hants and Isle of Wight, will take the chair. Both Institutions stood urgently in need of support, and he hoped that neither would have any lack of Stewards from the Provinces. As regarded the Province of Surrey, he hoped the Lodges would maintain in the future the work which they had so consistently been doing in the past for all the Institutions. With the toast of the Masonic Press was associated the name of Bro. E. C. Massey. After this had been acknowledged, the Officers were complimented, and then the Tyler's toast brought the entertainment to a close. The proceedings throughout were enlivened by some capital songs, Bros. Aslett, Baldwin, Sawyer, Bishop, and Carter rendering goodly service.

Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693.—The annual supper was held on Monday evening, 19th inst., at the Canonbury Tavern, N. Bro. Trewinnard, the respected Preceptor, occupied the chair. After a well-served repast, the brethren spent a most enjoyable evening. The toasts were briefly introduced. Speaking to that of Success to the Instruction Lodge, Bro. Trewinnard made allusion to the large number of brethren who attend weekly; the average being 22. Some excellent harmony was contributed by Bros. Townley, Snook, Woodman, Brampton and others. Bro. Forge, the worthy Secretary, was, to the regret of the brethren, prevented by indisposition from being present. Amongst those, however, who shared in this pleasant réunion were Bros. Baker, Gregory, Humphreys, Halford, Snook, Dyer, Galer, Cook, Killick jun., Jones, Strugnell, Marks, Eddis, Lynn, Deacon, Bevan, Perkins, Rhodes, Clark, Stretch, Dearing, E. Woodman, J. Woodman, Selig, Defriez, Brampton, Franckel, Townley, Hall W.M. 1693, Gribble, Crosbie, Collingridge, Fletcher.

A Billiard Match was held at Bro. W. Carrington's, the Golden Star, Maddox-street, on the 20th instant, between Bro. J. Bennett, Champion, and Mr. T. Pearson, for 1000 up, the latter receiving 400. The room was crowded with gentlemen interested in watching the skill of the players. At the conclusion of the game Bro. Bennett was 168 in advance of his opponent.

SUN AND SERPENT WORSHIP.

FROM THE HEBREW LEADER.

THE treatment of the subject of the worship of the Sun and the Serpent by peoples of far different nationailties, by John S. Phene, LL.D., in the embellished pamphlet by the Victoria Institute (London), is so complete and interesting that we venture again to allude thereto. While the Sun forms an important and essential symbol of Light and Truth, in the symbolic degrees of Masonry, as having direct reference to the Divine Light, so in the Philosophic degrees of the Brotherhood the Serpent becomes a conspicuous emblem in at least a dozen of the Scottish Rite series, and is the particularly distinguishing badge of an active member of the highest grade in the northern section of the United States.

Professor E.H. Davis, of archæological fame in this city, has led our thoughts more attentively to the importance of this subject and to its fullest consideration. Our remarks herein are deductions as well as extracts from a number of works.

Sun worship was doubtless, to a measured extent, connected with Mountain worship. In this connection Professor Phene refers to the ever-burning fires on the summits of the pyramidal temple of Mexico, and has no doubt that fires burnt originally on the pyramids of Egypt, as being suggested to the Worshippers by their contemplation of the terrible and sublime in the peaks of burning mountains. Further that the Egyptians had erected the pyramids to supply the place of mountains near their abodes on the sandy plains of Memphis, as proper spots for worship. This latter view appears to have been accepted by the Rev. Mr. Zinke, as mentioned thus in his "Egypt of the Pharaohs and of the Khedive." "We may be absolutely certain that had the Egyptians lived in an Alpine country, though they might have commanded the requisite materials on easier terms, they would never have built the pyramids, for then an Egyptian pyramid would have been a pigmy monument by the side of Nature's pyramids; but built as they were in Egypt, and seen from the neighbourhood of Memphis and Heliopolis, they were veritable mountains."

If we will refer to Hargrave Jenning's work on the Rosicrucians we find mentioned several interpretations given to the word pyramid, among which are the Coptic roots signifying pyr, division, and met, ten. Bro. Jennings insists that the Greek word pyr should be translated by deduction Fire (or division produced by fire), hence the whole word means, "Ten measures or parts of the fiery ecliptic or solar wheel, or the original signs of the Zodiac. Therefore, the pyramids are commemorative altars raised to the divinity Fire." From this it would appear that Jennings and Phene materially agree as to the purposes for which the pyramids were erected.

Porphyry imagined that the reason why the most ancient mortals kept up a constant ever-burning fire in honour of the immortal gods was because fire was most like the gods. He says that the ancients kept an unextinguished fire in their temples to the gods because it was most like them. Fire was not like the gods, but it was what they appeared in to mortals. And so the true God always appeared in brightness and glory; yet no one would say that brightness was most like the true God, but was most like the Shechinah in which God appeared.

The Brahmins, the Mahommedans, the Egyptians, the American Indians, the great nations of the West, and of the East, worshipped fire and as its embodiment, the Sun. The Persian Magi authorised the use of fire and water as the only emblems of their gods. As the powers represented by the Sun and the Serpent-river had to act in unison, or cease to be efficient, we soon find the Sun and Serpent, combined, and recognised by some worshippers as one and the same; the Sun representing the head of the Serpent which entwined the world, as symbolised by the circle in which the Serpent holds his tail in his mouth, like unto the manner of a hoop snake in mad career. The Phœnician Serpent, which with its three folds surrounds the tree (of knowledge), is the origin of the many serpent ornaments of ancient and modern times, worn formerly by women as armlets and modernly as bracelets and finger rings. It is the triune ring, symbol of the activity of life, as expressive of the Serpent of wisdom and the active knowledge of Deity in man.

As a prominent Assyrian representation of God, we find a serpent circle, wheel or winged orb, which forms the body of the God, surmounting which is the breast and head of a man-God, who, instead of a bow, holds a smaller serpent circle in his hand, probably a symbol of the Moon. This Deity is supported on a pedestal representing the mystic emblems of fire and water—that is, by upright and inverted triangles.

The Bhuddistic and Babylonish monuments display many serpent figures in connection chiefly with the Sun, Moon and Stars. American Indians, as late as the last century, have been found tattooed with a serpent and star upon the breast, and bearing sun and serpent emblems.

In the Arthurian order of the Garter, and as well in the Order of the Golden Fleece, we have the centre circle and inclosed cross in exact form with the wheel of Asshur. Repeated national emblems, symbols of religious faith and political crests among the great peoples of the distant East, were not made fanciful nor haphazard, but every stroke, dot, or indentation had some mystical and important truth or idea to convey, and their coins, medals and ornaments as well as their god images are relied on by numismatists and students of archæology as of the highest importance in revealing the customs, habits, history and even the beliefs and thoughts of the nations of the past.

The Appollonic Sun and the Egyptian Serpent were worshipped before the Greeks overcame the Egyptians, yet the fact and national incident gave greater impetus and fresh force to the fable of Apollo destroying the serpent. The sun used for the serpent's head was no matter of conjecture, too many symbols bearing evidence. The upright Phœnician serpent deity, with its head surrounded by a nimbus or halo, worshipping in front of an altar of fire, is a pronounced symbol of fire and serpent worship. This became the coat of arms of the Highland Clan Donnachie. On the west coast of Africa is the Kingdom of Whidah, where the serpent was worshipped by two tribes, and human sacrifice deemed acceptable. The name of their Deity is Obion, Ob signifiying the Serpent and On the Sun.

In Mexico, serpent worship has abundance of evidence, the emblems assimilating to the Egyptian, the ringed serpent being more striking. There we have two entwined serpents, the heads meeting face to face. One is old and bearded, the other young and vigorous, indicating the new day about to drive away the old night, or the new year the old.

The serpent issuing from, or born of the egg, has an allusion to the creation, and as it rears its head to the sun, is a symbol of the birth of wisdom warmed by the Sun of Truth.

The ring serpent is a forcible emblem of eternity, the head ever pursuing the tail; endless and renewing through time and eternity.

PORTSMOUTH FREEMASONS' HALL AND CLUB COMPANY, LIMITED.

THE annual meeting was held in the Lodge-room of the Company's premises on Monday last. Mr. G. T. Cunningham (the chairman) presided, and there was a very large and influential gathering of the shareholders, all of whom are members of the Masonic Craft. The report of the directors, and the audited balance sheets of both Club and Company, "which were of a very assuring character, and provided for the payment of the customary dividend of 5 per cent., and the writing off of £228 from the capital account, after adding a small balance to the sustentation and maintenance fund," were unanimously adopted. The retiring directors were Messrs. G. T. Cunningham, G. Mason and R. J. Rastrick; and the retiring auditors were Messrs. T. Pratt Wills and T. H. Casey, A.C.A. The whole of these were unanimously re-elected; and the customary votes of thanks for their services were passed. The thanks of the shareholders, for his courtesy and very efficient services, were accorded to the Secretary (Mr. E. S. Main), who made a suitable acknowledgment. After the disposal of the remaining business on the agenda paper, the shareholders adjourned to the spacious dining hall, where a most récherché banquet was served by the club staff, under the able superintendence of one of the directors (Mr. Thomas Mares). The chairman of the company presided, and gave the loyal and patriotic toasts. Lieutenant Johnson, A.A.C., proposed "Success to the Borough of Portsmouth Freemasons' Club," and enlarged upon the great advantages to the members of the Craft offered by an institution of this character, more especially to Masons coming from India and our Colonies, who were thus enabled to meet their brethren on arrival. He referred particularly to the fact that many of the Volunteer Masonic brethren last year made it their home on the occasion of the Volunteer Review. Mr. George Mason, the vice-chairman, responded. Mr. George Rake, in a happy speech, gave The Directors. The chairman, in reply, gave a lengthened history of the undertaking from its origin, he thanked the members for the unanimity which had characterised the whole of the proceedings of that day. Mr. S. Richards Ellis, in highly eulogistic terms, gave the health of the Secretary (Mr. E. S. Main), who responded. Mr. Thomas Good, T.C., submitted the toast of the Auditors, and this was responded to by Mr. T. H. Casey, A.C.A., on behalf of himself and Mr. Pratt Wills. The toast list was interspersed with some vocal and instrumental selections by Messrs. George Sylvester, W. Miles, J. Bechervaise, J. W. Willmott, R. W. Beale, and F. Murphy.—Portsmouth Times.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Joshua Nunn, President of the Lodge, occupied the President's chair; while Bros. James Brett Senior Vice-President, and Charles Atkins Junior Vice-President, occupied their respective chairs. The grants recommended at the February meeting were confirmed, and the President stated that the Lodge had received letters from several of the brethren relieved at former meetings, thanking the Lodge for the assistance afforded. He was happy to make this announcement, as he believed this was the first year he could remember that brethren relieved had acknowledged the aid which had been extended to them. The brethren then proceeded to deal with the new cases, of which there was the large number of 34 on the list. The sitting adjudicating on this list was a prolonged one, and the total amount granted was £680.

Brother H. A. Isaacs, P.M. 185 and 208, P.P.G.O. Herts, C.C., was, on the 21st instant, elected Alderman of the Ward of Portsoken, in the place of the late Brother Alderman Sir Thomas White. Brother Deputy Winfield Hora was his opponent. A show of hands was taken, and the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, Brother E. H. Knight, declared in favour of Brother Isaacs. A poll was demanded, and the result was 398 in favour of Bro. Isaacs against 188 for Brother Hora (London Lodge). The announcement was received with great cheering. At the same meeting, a unanimous vote of condolence was accorded to the family of the late Sir Thomas White.

THE third Chapter is devoted to the Steinmetzen of Germany, and Brother Gould commences his sketch of this interesting fraternity by discussing at considerable length their probable origin. Having expressed his opinion that the meaning of the word itself is "Stone-measurers," —our own "Stonemasons"—from stein (stone) and messen to measure, rather than "Stone-cutters" from stein and messer a knife or meitzel a chisel, he goes on to point out that the first seeds of architecture were unquestionably planted in Germany by Christian missionaries, chiefly from Ireland, who were acquainted with the rudiments of architecture, and on establishing a mission in a German forest set themselves to erect some kind of rude building that would answer the purpose of a church. Other rude buildings of a like character were next erected, to serve as a storehouse for the produce of the soil, and to shelter the monks and their converts. In time it became desirable to enlarge the church, and it was then perhaps placed on stone foundations, in doing which the first principles of the mason's art were acquired. Later the wooden edifice gave place to one of stone, and thus by degrees, as the workmen advanced in technical skill, the first missions became convents and monasteries of no slight pretensions. As the convents grew larger and more famous, it would be necessary to have at hand constantly a body of experienced workmen, and it is reasonable to conclude that the more expert at any particular work would in time devote themselves exclusively to it. Thus a class of professional builders arose amongst the laity in the neighbourhood of the monastery, who, in all probability, were under the directions of a more than usually skilful monk.

As regards the opinion, which finds favour with Dr. Schauberg, that these directing monks were indebted for "much of their success to the remnants of the Roman Colleges, which were never thoroughly suppressed in Gaul, and passing through Britain and Scandinavia, ultimately laid the foundations of the Craft Guild system in Germany," Bro. Gould differs with that writer on the ground, as he explains, "that at the time of these early convent builders, we have no sign of the least approach to a craft guild in Germany; nor indeed can we imagine such an institution until the cities had made considerable progress towards opulence. Whatever connection may possibly be traceable between the Roman colleges and the formation of craft guilds can have had no influence on the earliest builders in the forests and by the streams of Germany. Their gradual perfection in the art of Masonry must be considered as self-evolved, and the result of constant practice and endeavours to excel." If, however, it is necessary "to presuppose a higher knowledge of art and architecture in their leaders," then, he suggests, we need "go no further than the British Monks." Britain, though distracted by internal wars and invasions from without, had at the time many buildings of architectural pretensions. Many Anglo-Saxon churches still remain, in part at all events, "such as Tickencote, near Stamford, in Lincolnshire; part of St. Peter's, at Oxford; part of St. Alban's Abbey; the southern porch at Shireburn Minster; the towers of Earl's Barton church, Northamptonshire; and of Sompting, in Sussex; and numerous others." Again many of our earliest cathedrals; though in many cases nothing of the original structure remains, were commenced in the seventh century, such as "Canterbury, A.D. 600, Rochester 602, St. Paul's 604, and Westminster 605." Then the influx of British monks, both papal and non-papal, continued to a very late period. Iso, or whoever is intended by that name, the most learned Englishman of the ninth century, lived in the Convent at St. Gall. St. Columbanus, who crossed over into Burgundy and Germany in A.D. 602, and was "renowned throughout Europe as the most learned Englishman of his time," founded several convents "either by himself or by his disciples." St. Boniface built a monastery at Fulda in the reign of King Pepin. And Bro. Gould goes on to quote the German Architect Heideloff, when writing in 1844, as unhesitatingly declaring that "during the time of the Anglo-Saxons building operations continued, and the monuments of architecture in England are the finest examples of the state of building during those ages. They also introduced the science into Germany, as the greater number of the German apostles were British and understood building, erecting everywhere convents." At the same time he allows that the Romish Missionaries of a somewhat later date, and especially the Benedictines, to which order many of the later British missionaries belonged, were not less skilled in architecture.

As to Fallou's assertion "that in the eleventh century the monks in Germany first copied their brethren in Gaul by instituting lay brotherhoods attached to the convent, and that the Abbot Marquardt of Corvey made use of this institution to procure builders for his new convent," Bro. Gould remarks that he can see "no proof that these lay brotherhoods were builders." He thinks "they more probably consisted of nobles, knights, and rich burghers," and he bases his opinion on a further assertion of Fallou's on the very same page, to the effect that "in the year 1140 the Cistercians of Walkenried (in Brunswick, at the foot of the Hartz mountains, on the Wieda) instituted such a fraternity, and boasted that they could travel thence to Rome, and dine each day with one lay brother, and sup and sleep with another." This, he remarks, "most certainly discloses the nature of these fraternities, and it is impossible to connect them in any way with the building craft; they were not lay brothers in the ordinary sense, and evidently did not reside in the convent." He further points out that Fallou, in another part of his work—"Mysterium der Freimaurer"—seems "inclined to attribute the institution of a lay brotherhood to a still earlier date—say A.D. 1080, when William, Count Palatine of Scheuren, was elected Abbot of Hirschau (on the Nagold, in the Black Forest, Wurtemberg), and of whom it was reported that he was so famous that crowds flocked to his convent, praying for admission. These petitioners were all admitted as lay brothers, and speedily taught the various manipulations of Masonry, &c.; so that in 1082 he was enabled to undertake the reconstruction of the monastery. At that time no fewer than three hundred monks and laymen dwelt in the convent under his orders. He instituted a rule for them, partitioned out their hours of labour, rest, worship, and refreshment, inculcated above all things brotherly love, and enjoined silence at work, unless desirous of communicating with the master. His school of art rapidly acquired such extended fame that he was overwhelmed by entreaties from all parts of Europe to furnish architects and artists for building operations. Nevertheless, in spite of his best workmen being constantly drafted off elsewhere, he was enabled to see his convent completed before his death, A.D. 1091." Bro. Gould, however, very justly points out that Fallou has omitted to quote his authorities for such assertions. He allows it is beyond dispute that this Abbot Wilhelm was a great man in his day. He quotes Heideloff to show that "St. Anselm, afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury, visited him in 1084;" and he points to "the ruins of his splendid monastery" as being "still in evidence" of his great ability. Yet he does not consider Fallou's account "justifies the deduction that he was the originator of the craft of stonemasons." He holds—"(1) That the lapse of time was totally insufficient to create a large class of skilled artificers; and (2), We have no trace here of divisions into grades, such as apprentice, fellow, and master." Thus, as to the former point. It was in 1080 that the said Count Palatine Wilhelm was elected Abbot of Hirschau, and in 1082 he commenced the work of reconstruction. But, argues Bro. Gould, and we think there is just ground for his argument, two years are "wholly insufficient for the instruction of such a large body of men," and therefore it is evident that "many of the laymen who are reported to have joined him were already skilled masons," the more especially as the ensuing nine years would not have sufficed "to raise such a superstructure by means of only half-trained workmen." He strengthens this view by a statement made by the same Fallou that, "according to the Chronicle of Walkenried, Abbot Henry III. admitted into his convent '21 skilled laymen, chiefly stonemasons,' as lay brothers"—a lay man being "a citisen of the world," and a lay brother "a semi-member of the church."

As to "any organisation of the workmen," Bro. Gould considers the idea is untenable, or, that if any such existed, it was "amongst the free artisans of the town, who may have entered into the pay of the monks," as in all cases "lay brothers became the servants of the convent," and would be under the same rules as the monks, that is, they would be allowed to possess no property, and could receive no pay beyond their sustenance. He prefers Winser's opinion that the fraternities spoken of by Fallou were "organisations of serfs," the workmen or labourers, as he suggests, "with the exception of a certain proportion of craft masons, being most likely the serfs, vassals, and villeins of the convent."

The conclusion at which Bro. Gould thus far arrives is, that "the cradle of German architectural skill is to be found in the convents, and not in the organisation of the Steinmets guild," the latter having had its origin in "the craft guilds of the cities." He writes: "We thus see that from the sixth (perhaps fifth) century onwards up to the twelfth, when most of the monasteries were completed, they afforded the means of acquiring skill in the manipulation of building materials, and may thus be looked upon in Germany as the earliest school of masonry, and the cradle of architecture, furnishing large numbers of cunning artificers and experienced master builders, but not contributing in any way towards the organisation of the stonemasons. For the origin of this sodality we must look to the trade guilds; which, beginning in the towns as early as the tenth century, or even earlier, had meanwhile been acquiring increasing importance and extent; until, in the twelfth, we find them fully developed throughout Germany."

The rise of the Craft Guilds is briefly sketched. Originally the inhabitants of cities and towns consisted of three classes, "the Bishop, Burgrave, or other Lord paramount; the small freeholders of the neighbourhood, some perhaps absolutely free, others free, but feudatories of the lord; and the lord's serfs and villeins, also possibly some villeins of the smaller freeholders." In the course of time there would be two classes of freemen, some rich, and some poor. To secure themselves against the increasing powers of the Lords paramount, associations of freemen would be formed, and in lieu of similar associations or guilds, such as had been established at a still earlier date for mutual protection and support, there arose the Burgher Guilds which gradually succeeded in wresting the chief governing power from the lord paramount and retaining it in their own hands. The original qualification for membership of these Burgher Guilds was, Bro. Gould suggests, "no doubt, territorial possession," while "many of the members may have carried on trade;" and "some of the poorer, perhaps, were handicraftsmen." In the meantime "the unfree or bond population would continually increase, both by natural propagation, by refugees from neighbouring tyrants, claiming the protection of the Church, and by grants of serfs from feudal chieftains to the bishops. Those serfs who exercised handicrafts would then obtain permission to devote their surplus time to their own profit, and obtain a shadow of independence. Freemen also would be attracted to the growing towns from one cause or another, and devote themselves to trades and crafts." He next points out as one of the causes that helped to swell the populations of the towns the fact that the serf or bondsman who took refuge in a town and remained unclaimed for a year and a day, became a freeman. These, however, as they had no territorial qualification, were ineligible to become members of the Burgher Guilds, and would naturally band themselves together for mutual defence. Then the serfs would obtain permission to form guilds of their own in order to protect their trades. In time these new associations, having become too powerful to be held in check by the superior authority, would come to be recognised by the other free guilds as belonging to themselves. As trades multiplied, so, too, would the guilds organise for the protection of their several interests, and ultimately this class of association became so powerful that no edicts of imperial or other authority for the purpose of suppressing them were of the slightest avail. And as the Burgher Guilds had become more exclusive or patrician, while the trade guilds were establishing themselves more and more firmly, there arose terrible feuds between the two, the result being that the former were dethroned from their supremacy, and in many instances entirely broken up. This brings us to the point at which it will be necessary we should consider how the connection between the Craft Guilds in the cities and the Stonemasons is to be traced, and this subject we shall reserve till another week.

INSTALLATION OF LORD BROOKE, M.P. AS P.G.M.M.M. WARWICKSHIRE.

THIS interesting ceremony took place on Wednesday, the 14th inst., at the Masonic Rooms, Severn street, Birmingham, under the auspices of the Athol Mark Lodge, No. 174, and in the presence of a goodly concourse of brethren. The Athol Lodge having been duly opened at 4.30 p.m., the D.P.G.M.M., W. Bro. Lt.-Colonel Foster Gough, LL.D., and the Provincial Grand Officers entered, and were received with the respect due to their rank. The Prov. Grand Lodge was then opened, and the M.W. Grand Master, Lord Henniker, having been announced, entered and was duly received and saluted, and at once assumed the chair. The summons convening the meeting having been read, and the roll of Lodges having been called, the Grand Master was informed that the Provincial Grand Master designate, Lord Brooke, M.P., was in attendance without, and requested to be installed. The Prov. Grand Director of Ceremonies having withdrawn to procure his Lordship's patent of appointment, forthwith re-entered the Lodge; the patent was read and the Prov. Grand Master designate having been introduced, was at once obligated, invested and installed into office, the Grand Master occuping the chair on the left of Lord Brooke. W. Brother A. F. Godson was then obligated, invested and inducted into the chair on the right of the Prov. G.M. as Deputy Provincial Grand Master, after which the Prov. Grand Officers were appointed and invested, a Provincial Grand Treasurer elected and invested, and the customary votes of thank passed to Lord Henniker M.W.G.M.M.M. for presiding at the ceremony, and to V.W. Bros. Donald M. Dewar Assist. G. Secretary, and R. Berridge Grand Director of Ceremonies, his Lordship's co-adjutors. Prov. Grand Lodge was closed, and the Grand and Prov. Grand Officers having retired in procession, the Athol Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to an elegant banquet under the presidency of their newly appointed chief. The usual Loyal and Mark Masonic toasts subsequently received due honour from the assembly.

It is with an unusual degree of pleasure that we acknowledge an error we made in our article on the recent meeting of Grand Lodge. It seems that our remarks in a former article, on the business to be transacted at the meeting in question, had not been without their effect, and that so much of the minutes as related to the erasure of the Bulwer Lodge, of Cairo, from the list of Lodges was non-confirmed, by direction of the acting Grand Master, Bro. the Earl of Lathom D.G.M. We further understand that Brother Rucker P.G.D. had purposed drawing the attention of Grand Lodge to the necessity of adopting such a course, but in the hurry of the moment, the matter would appear to have escaped the notice of our reporter. Of course, this rendered the resolution—that the Bulwer Lodge should be reinstated—quite unnecessary, and it was merely read for form's sake, no action being taken, as a matter of course.

We understand that a new weekly journal, devoted to the popular exposition of Sanitary Matters and to the education of the people in the laws of health, will be shortly issued by Messrs. Wyman and Sons, London. The new journal will be entitled Health. Its programme includes Original Articles, Essays on Personal Health, and departments in which the interests of the family circle, of recreation, and of correspondence on health topics, &c., will be duly considered. There appears to be a wide field for such an enterprise, and the aims of Health seems thoroughly consistent with the spirit and policy of the education of our day.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Influenza, Sore Throat, Quinsey, Mumps, and similar complaints always abound in unsettled weather, and are most safely and effectually subdued by rubbing Holloway's Ointment at least twice a day upon the chest and glands of the throat. The Ointment penetrates the skin, reduces inflammation and heals ulcerations. This treatment is sufficient for curing the most serious and complicated throat affections, provided Holloway's Pills be taken at the same time. When swallowing gives pain, the Ointment may be relied on till improving symptoms admit of painless deglutition. In asthma, bronchitis, pneumonia, pleurisy, whooping cough, incipient consumption, scarlet fever, and measles. Holloway's medicines are not less valuable in mitigating the most troublesome features than they are certain in ultimately curing.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

CITY OF LONDON LODGE, No. 901.

A NUMEROUSLY attended meeting of the members of this old and reputed Lodge was held at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, on Monday evening, 19th inst., under the presidency of Bro. J. Hughes Worshipful Master, who was supported by Bros. G. A. Cundy I.P.M., D. Hughes S.W., H. McClelland J.W., H. Darcy P.M. Treasurer, C. Beaumont P.M. Secretary, E. Harris S.D., H. Harbord J.D., David Hughes I.G., E. C. T. Hand Organist, R. Pittam-Stevens W.S., R. Giffard and R. F. Wherr Stewards; P.M.'s A. Griffith, A. Ginger. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. W. E. Haycock 1196 and P.M. 901, Poupard 209, Dent 765, Bennett 1365, Price 177, Hall W.M. 749, Gill 1017, Thomas 1853, Lawrence 1356, Fancom 1623, Cross 1791, and Taylor 1642. Lodge having been opened in accordance with ancient rite and the minutes of previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was opened for Mr. H. W. Chamberlain, of Clapham, who had been proposed by Bro. Bisley, and seconded by Bro. Easey. The voting was unanimously in favour, and Mr. Chamberlain was duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Order, the work being admirably performed by the W. Master and his Officers. Lodge was then advanced, and Brother Fletcher having proved himself worthy, was raised to the sublime degree by the W.M., who delivered the charges most creditably, and worked the ceremony in perfect form. On the resumption of the Lodge, considerable time was spent in considering some proposed alterations of the bye-laws, and at the conclusion of some other business, the brethren and visitors partook of an admirably served banquet, the arrangements for which were well carried out, as usual, under the personal superintendence of Bro. Henry Mills. The Loyal and Craft toasts were then duly proposed and honoured, the W.M. alluding to the loyal affection in which the Queen is held as Patroness of the Craft, the delight which Masons felt at having so exalted a personage as H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as the Most Worshipful Grand Master, and the interest he takes in it in every sense of the word. He also referred to the perfection with which the Pro G.M. and Deputy ruled the affairs of the Craft, and the lustre which adorned their Masonic profession. The I.P.M. said they would be all aware of the toast which he was now about to propose; it was one which required but few words from him to commend it to their hearty reception. He knew they would drink to the health of their excellent Worshipful Master with a great deal of pleasure, but on this occasion he wished to say a few words more to them beyond merely drinking to his health. They knew what an excellent W.M. he was, what an able and efficient Officer he had been in the past, and what a pattern Past Master he would be to this Lodge. His genial kind-hearted feeling endeared him to everybody with whom he came in contact. As they were aware, he was about to represent the City of London Lodge as a Steward for the Boys' Institution. It was one thing to represent a Lodge, and it was another thing to have the City of London Lodge well represented. He felt perfectly sure their W. Master would represent them as well as it was possible for any man to do it, but it depended very much upon each one individually to say that the City of London Lodge should be perfectly, thoroughly, and properly represented; that was, by the individual subscriptions which they would place upon his list. He hoped their W.M. would go up, not with a larger list than had ever been sent up by this Lodge before, because that was a foregone conclusion; but that it would be double the amount. He thought a Lodge boasting of such large numbers as they did at the present time ought to send up a very splendid amount. With such a Master to represent them, he considered it would be a personal honour to him, and the greatest credit they could reflect upon the Lodge if they sent up a substantial list in aid of that most deserving Institution. Charity was the main-spring, and the very backbone, of Masonry, and if they did not put their shoulders to the wheel and strain a point in that direction, they would not be doing their duty as Masons. He hoped they would all do the best they possibly could to enable the Worshipful Master to take up a list which should be worthy of the Lodge. They could all visit the Boys' School at Wood Green, and no doubt before the Festival the Worshipful Master and his friends — including every member of the Lodge who chose to accompany him—would be invited to make an inspection of the Institution, and to witness the prizes given away to the children. They could then inspect the School, and see how admirably it was managed. If they wished to see how their money was spent, let them go there on that day, and he was sure they would be highly gratified. He concluded by expressing a hope that the Lodge would be well represented on the occasion to which he had referred. The W.M., who was most cordially received, thanked them sincerely for the kind and hearty manner in which they had honoured the toast, though he was afraid Bro. Cundy had overrated his good qualities. However, with regard to the Charities, Bro. Cundy had spoken so elaborately that there was really little left for him to say. To those who were not conversant with the matter, he would say that this was a most noble Institution, and one they had just cause to be proud of. The Boys' School had not quite the amount of support that the Girls' had; he could not tell exactly why. But he was going up as a Steward for the Boys', and he wished to take as good a list as he possibly could, both for his own sake, and for the honour of the City of London Lodge. He held that a large and important Lodge like this ought to be well represented, and he could only endorse all that his worthy Immediate Past Master had said upon the subject. He should personally be thankful for whatever the brethren might be disposed to do to swell his list when he went up as a Steward. Several of the brethren had promised him very noble subscriptions, and while thanking them, he asked all to do their utmost to send up in noble form. The list was then passed round, and a substantial addition was made to Bro. Hughes' list. In proposing the Initiate, the W.M. said they were always proud to welcome new blood into their Lodge; they had had more Initiates in the City of London than any other Lodge in the metropolis. Those who had been admitted had certainly proved good men and true, and he sincerely hoped their Initiate that evening would prove no exception to the rule. He believed Bro. Chamberlain would make an apt Mason; he seemed to fall in with it already. The toast was cordially received, and Bro. Chamberlain replied in suitable terms. He thanked the brethren very much for having accepted him in the Lodge. The ceremony had made a deep impression on his mind; he hoped, as the Treasurer had said, to make himself a good and useful member of the Fraternity. The W.M. then proposed the Visitors, with which toast he associated the name of Brother W. E. Haycock, formerly a Past Master of this Lodge, and Bro. Taylor, of the Earl of Carnarvon. Bro. Haycock was delighted to re-visit his mother Lodge, in which, nearly thirteen years ago, he occupied the position now so worthily filled by Bro. Hughes. He had been afraid he might be disappointed at finding himself remembered by so few of those he had known when he occupied the chair, and that possibly the excellent working of his day might not have been maintained. However, his experience to-night had been one of unalloyed satisfaction and pleasure, in the fullest sense of the word. A few brethren he knew recognised him, and gave him the right hand of fellowship in the heartiest possible manner; and that was a source of unbounded gratification. Another source of pleasure was to find that the work was still of a most admirable character. It is frequently said in Lodges, as a matter of mere compliment, that never had such working been seen before; but, with his old love for the City of London Lodge, and apart from all sentimentality, he must say the working of the Lodge continued to be most excellent. All was spontaneous, hearty, and thoroughly efficient in every respect. The hospitality extended years ago to Visitors had been in no way diminished. Hospitality was always characteristic of Freemasons' Lodges, and the City of London was second to none in that particular. Still it is not an essential particular, though it was one they could not afford to look upon with indifference, at least. He had enjoyed an evening of unalloyed satisfaction, and he thanked the brethren for the compliment with which they had honoured him on this occasion. Brother Taylor heartily concurred in all that had fallen from the lips of the last speaker respecting the excellent working of the Lodge, and the hospitality that had followed it. It had been a source of great gratification to witness the admirable manner in which the Worshipful Master had performed the ceremony of raising in the case of Brother Fletcher, who had been known to him for many years, and to whom he had the utmost pleasure in extending the right hand of fellowship as a brother M.M. The reputation of this Lodge for its hospitality had long ago travelled to the far West, and although this was the first occasion on which he had had the pleasure of participating in it, he had often heard of the hospitality they extended to their Visitors. He trusted it might not be his last visit, not merely for the hospitality; he had taken stock of the Officers by whom the W.M. was supported, and felt sure there was a band of brethren coming on in the Lodge who would well sustain the reputation it had acquired for excellence of working. The Worshipful Master then proposed the Past Masters, which was cordially received, and the toast was suitably acknowledged by Bros. Griffith, Lewis, Darcy and Ginger. The health of the Officers was given and severally responded to, and the list closed with the Tyler's toast. Some capital songs and recitations were given, amongst the latter of which that, by Bro. Haycock P.M., from Artemus Ward evoked much and genuine amusement.

METHAM LODGE, No. 1205.

THE annual meeting of the Metham Lodge, No. 1205, was held at the Metham Masonic Hall, Caroline place, Stonehouse. The principal business was the Installation of the W.M., and Bro. Richard Dickson, who had been previously elected, was in antient form duly installed. The ceremony was excellently performed by the retiring W.M., Bro. W. H. Hunt, and he was assisted by W. Bros. W. Powell P.M. and S., S. Jew P.M. P.P.G.T., D. Cross P.M. and T., Thomas Gibbons P.M., Hugh Cameron P.M., with a board of Installed Masters, amongst whom were W. Bros. J. B. Gover P.M. 70 P.P.G.A.D.C., H. W. Townsend P.M. 1903 and P.P.G.S.D. Hampshire, William Browning P.M. 223 P.P.G.D.C., J. M. Hifley P.M. 223 P.P.G.A.D.C., T. E. Peek I.P.M. 1205, W. D. Thomas P.M. 159, A. E. Lean P.M. 70, E. A. Lyons P.M. 105, Wm. Coath P.M. 893 P.P.G.S. Cornwall, Bourke P.M. 1428, James Gidley P.M. 156, and R. Pike P.M. 230 and 1205, who ably presided at the organ. Bro. W. Powell continues to represent the Lodge at the Committee of Petitions of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Devonshire. Bro. George Perkins and Thomas McCartney were appointed Auditors, and they will meet the Officers in a fortnight. The accounts are understood to be in a prosperous condition. The Officers appointed and invested for the year were:—Bros. W. H. Hunt I.P.M., Richard Smith S.W., P. J. Dunn J.W., Daniel Cross P.M. Treas., William Powell P.M. Sec., T. E. Peek P.M. Chaplain, Lemuel Martin S.D., George Wilson J.D., Thomas Gibbons P.M. Organist, Samuel Hayward I.G., H. E. Setters M.C., A. Trout S.S., J. E. Poole J.S., H. Cameron P.M. Tyler. The Lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to the Royal Hotel, in Devonport, where the banquet was supplied by Brother Parker, fully sustaining the credit of the cuisine of the establishment, whilst the attendance was nearly perfect, over eighty being present. Amongst others not mentioned before were Bros. J. W. Cornish P.M. P.G.T., L. L. Blight, George Sercombe J.S. 70, R. Smith, Moseley Joel S.S. 105, H. Squire, F. Owens S.S. 230. The Worshipful Master (Bro. Dickson) presided, and proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. His health was received with Lancashire fire, inaugurated by Bro. Jew. Bro. Powell, in proposing the health of the I.P.M., Bro. W. H. Hunt, said he had had the pleasure of initiating him into the Order in 1875, and whilst he had then a high opinion of his talents, geniality, and courtesy, he hardly thought he could have arrived at so proud a position as he now occupied in so short a time, and the jewel he was about to be presented with was thoroughly deserved. Bro. D. Cross had the pleasure to present jewels to three of the Past Masters, two of which would have been given before, but for circumstances over which the Lodge had no control. The jewels were not given simply because the brethren had passed the chair, but they were given because the brethren had done their duty well, faithfully, and for the best interests of Lodge Metham, and for Freemasonry. The jewels were of 18-carat, gold, engraved:—

"Presented by the brethren of the Metham Lodge, No. 1305, to ——— as a token of their fraternal regard."

The worthy recipients were Bros. Thomas Gibbons, Thomas E. Peek, and William Henry Hunt. The Treasurer and Secretary were honoured, as they deserved to be; they suitably responded. The evening was enlivened by the solos of Bro. Searl, violin; and Bro. W. H. Cornish, flageolet and violin, accompanied by Bro. Gibbons, and songs by Bros. J. Leonard, H. Hewlett, and a recitation by Bros. E. A. Lyons and McCartney. The host and hostess were especially thanked for their admirable catering.

Loughborough Lodge of Instruction, No. 22.—A meeting was held on Monday evening, 19th instant, at Brother McDiarmaid's, the Cambria Tavern, Cambria-road, Loughborough-junction. Bros. Warren W.M., Harvey S.W., Westley J.W., McDiarmaid Treasurer, McKinley Secretary, Cornock S.D., Bellis J.D., Kenel I.G.; also Bros. Brown, Perkins, Hampton, Banks, Stafford. Lodge was opened in the first, second and third degrees, when Bro. Westley worked the first section of the third lecture. The ceremony of raising was then rehearsed, Bros. Perkins candidate. Bro. Jones, Earl of Lathom 1922, was elected a member. Bro. Banks announced the untimely death of the son of Bro. Littlewood, senior P.M. of 780 (who had been killed by a railway accident, he having slipped in endeavouring to catch the train). He also proposed that a vote of condolence be sent from the Lodge to our brother's family. This was carried unanimously.

Gallery Lodge, No. 1928.—Held its March meeting at Brixton Hall on 10th inst., Bro. H. E. F. Bussey Worshipful Master presiding. There was a very good attendance of brethren, notwithstanding there was a Saturday sitting of the House of Commons. The Master was supported by all his Officers. Two candidates for initiation were successfully balloted for, and a brother was afterwards raised to the third degree. The Worshipful Master then, in very feeling terms, in the expression of which he was deeply affected, proposed a vote of condolence and sympathy with the widow and family of the late Bro. John Allen, who acted as Past Master during the first year of the Lodge's existence, and who died since the last Installation meeting of the Lodge. The motion was seconded by the I.P.M., and carried unanimously, and the Secretary was directed to communicate the resolution to Mrs. Allen. The Lodge and all the brethren appeared in deep mourning. Bro. C. Basil Cooke, son-in-law of the deceased, gracefully acknowledged the vote, and the attendance of the brethren at the funeral. As Brother Allen's mother Lodge and the Orpheus Lodge, of which he also was a member and one of the founders, proposed to erect a memorial over Bro. Allen's grave, the Gallery Lodge, on the proposition of Bro. Bussey, resolved to join with those Lodges in the testimonial. The Lodge afterwards voted a founder's jewel to Bro. Basil Cooke, in consideration of his services as first Secretary of the Lodge. The brethren afterwards proceeded to revise the bye-laws. The Worshipful Master announced that he had been enabled to carry up a subscription list of over £30 to the last Festival of the Benevolent Institution, and stated that he expected that before the list was closed it would amount to £50. He also communicated the desire of Lord Claud Hamilton and several other Members of Parliament, who had subscribed to his list, to visit the Lodge, an announcement which was received with much gratification by the whole of the brethren. Bro. T. B. Whitefoot, one of the members of the Lodge, who has recently returned from a visit to America, informed the brethren that he had told the American Press brethren of the establishment of the Gallery Lodge and the Press Club, when he received for reply that the American Press thought they were in advance of the English Press in the establishment of a Press Club, but that they had not yet a Press Lodge; they hoped, however, to establish one soon, and in the meantime congratulated the English reporters on having such a Lodge, and sent the Gallery Lodge their hearty good wishes. Bro. Albery, Secretary, read an invitation from the Wolseley Lodge, No. 1993, to the consecration thereof, which will take place on the 28th inst., at Manchester.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have read "A PROVINCIAL BROTHER'S" letter in last week's CHRONICLE with mingled pleasure and regret,—with pleasure, because he is quite right in drawing public attention to the issue of the Circular he describes; and with regret, because, having regard to Lord Wolseley's recent utterances on the subject of Temperance, and that this particular Lodge, to be named after him, is to be conducted on so-called Temperance principles, there is reason to fear we shall have introduced into our Lodges the discussion of these principles. I am, like your correspondent, not objecting in the slightest degree to any one, be he Mason or profane, turning teetotaller, but the principle which underlies teetotalism is not so much "temperance," which even the most intemperate man must respect, but the fear of intemperance and its evil consequences. A man who is temperate does not need to enrol himself among the teetotallers. He knows and feels that, on all occasions, and no matter how great the temptation, he will never indulge to excess. Teetotalism is for the intemperate man who can never command himself; never knows when he has had enough. Why, may I ask, is A, who was never known to be intoxicated in his life, to be deprived of his glass or two of wine because B, who for years together was rarely sober for twenty-four hours at a time, finds he cannot be a temperate man without becoming a teetotaller. I am a strong opponent of this so-called temperance crusade, because experience tells me that a fit of excess in any one direction is certain to be followed by a corresponding fit of excess in the opposite direction. One example of this, taken from the pages of our own history, will suffice to explain my meaning. The enforced outward observance of respect for religion and the detestation publicly exhibited towards all pleasures, even of the most innocent kind, which prevailed during the period of the Commonwealth, only succeeded in causing a terrible reaction when the Stuarts were restored to the throne, and for years afterwards, when all classes of people absolutely revelled in the practice of irreligion and libertinism. If all England is to be forced into the practice of temperance by the universal adoption of the doctrine of total abstinence, then, though it may succeed for a time, it is in the nature of things that sooner or later a terrible reaction of almost universal inebriety will follow. I admire temperance, and I hope I practise it, while the man who can only become temperate by the adoption of teetotalism has my warmest sympathies; but there I stop, and I hope the members of the Wolseley Lodge will have the good sense to stop at the same point.

Fraternally yours,

"Q."

THE GRAND TREASURERSHIP.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Various opinions have, of course, been expressed relative to the appointment of a successor to Colonel Creaton in the office of Grand Treasurer of England. Moving about as I do amongst frequent assemblages of Masons, I have heard but one opinion respecting the zealous and efficient manner in which the late Treasurer fulfilled the duties of his responsible position. The interest he has taken in promoting the welfare of the Craft is well known, and there is not a brother amongst us who is not ready to accord to him the most profound respect and admiration for the solicitude he has manifested in all matters which affect the prosperity of our Order. He may rest assured that the late decision of Grand Lodge was prompted by no personal want of respect towards himself, or appreciation of the great services he has rendered to the Craft in a variety of ways, in addition to the office he has just vacated. The sole motive was that the collar, which is the only one that Grand Lodge has the power of conferring upon a worthy brother, besides that which I hope the Most Worshipful Grand Master will wear as long as he lives, should not be bestowed in perpetuity upon any one, however efficient or deserving he might be personally, but that the honours of Grand Lodge should be divided amongst the aspirants for distinction who are eligible and held in sufficiently high esteem. We might as well have a perpetual Lord Mayor of London as a "life" Grand Treasurer of English Freemasons; yet the citizens of London would hardly relish the maxim "Once a Lord Mayor always a Lord Mayor." The same rule applies in this case, and as Brother Colonel Creaton has retired amidst the heartiest fraternal respect of the brethren, who will never lose sight of the services he has faithfully rendered them, so we welcome Bro. Allcroft as a man of power, not only in the Craft but in the City and commercial world, whose public and private life has been such as to fit him in a pre-eminent degree to discharge the duties required of him as Grand Treasurer of English Freemasons. As Treasurer of Christ's Hospital (Blue Coat School), and in many other similar public capacities, he must have gained considerable experience in finance, and those who know him best will be able to form a true estimate of his fitness for the position which has just been conferred upon him by the almost unanimous voice of the brethren. At any rate, the great principle has been solved, of doing away with the perpetual holding of one of the most important offices of the Craft, and there is now a chance of a larger number of brethren than heretofore enjoying the distinction and privileges of Past rank. That the brethren have done wisely in this respect will, I think, be endorsed by the experience of the future, and trusting for the happiest practical results from the new departure,

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

VISEX.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL ELECTION.

WE were enabled, in the portion of the review of the candidates who seek to be admitted at the April Election of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, which was published in our last issue, to dispose of thirty-two out of the sixty-five cases on the list, and, in accordance with the promise we then made, we now resume our task of considering the claims of the thirty-three cases yet requiring attention at our hands. We find that No. 38, F. F. Coleman, and No. 57, E. A. Steed, are each members of families of seven children, left dependent on widowed mothers. The former, Coleman, whose father was accredited to the Province of Oxfordshire, has already stood one election, on which occasion 110 votes were polled on his behalf; while the latter, a Suffolk case, is a fresh application. The fathers of each of these lads seem to have been Masons of some years' standing, and both had done something in support of the Institutions. No. 13, C. B. Cummings, a lad who now appears for the fifth time, has 106 votes to his credit. His father, who is living, is described as W.M. of the Philanthropic Lodge, No. 107, Supt. of Works (Provincial we presume), and founder of the Joppa Lodge, No. 1114. He has the boy now seeking admission and five other children dependent on him; but of his resources, or particular claims for relief we know nothing. We again advise brethren to seek for further information on these points before giving away their proxies, and urge them to insist on details being supplied in future cases of this description. No. 17, A. J. Tettenborn, is a son of a brother who was initiated in the Sincerity Lodge, No. 943, and who afterwards joined the Metropolitan Lodge, No. 1507. This candidate is one of six children now dependent on a widowed mother, who we trust will, ere long, be relieved of the care of this lad. Bro. Tettenborn made many friends during his lifetime, not a few of whom are now endeavouring to show their respect for their departed brother by providing a home for one of his children. We sincerely hope they will be successful, and that too at an early date. Young Tettenborn has already contested at three elections, and has now a total of 645 votes to his credit. No. 44, H. A. High, is another lad whose mother is left with the care of six fatherless children. The lad under consideration has already taken part in one election, and on that occasion 324 votes were polled on his behalf. The late Brother High was a member of three London Lodges, and was, we are given to understand, highly esteemed in each. We trust that his family may secure that assistance the case deserves. No. 53, J. P. Seagrave, is a first application case; he and five other children are dependent on a widowed mother, wife of a deceased member of the Zetland and Creaton Lodges, Nos. 511 and 1791.

There are six cases in which the number of children dependent is five, and of these, three are new cases. No. 21, R. W. Delafons, who has a sister in the Girls' School, has already stood two elections, and now comes forward with a total of 363 votes in hand. No. 25, H. M. Hare, after a similar experience as regards past elections, has 940 votes to his credit; while No. 42, R. A. L. Mitchell, who has only contested one previous election, has but two votes in hand. The three first application cases, where there are families of five dependent are No. 52, H. J. McLeod Lillywhite; No. 61, F. T. Davis; and No. 65, A. E. Crutchett. The father of the first-named (Lillywhite) is yet alive, but paralysed. From the record of his past services, both to Freemasonry in general, and the Charities of the Order, he is unquestionably worthy of assistance, and we trust he will receive the hearty support of the Craft in this the hour of his affliction. Young Davis is accredited to South Wales (Eastern Division), and Crutchett to Devonshire.

No. 9, J. B. Windross, is the first on the list of the remaining candidates who form one of four dependent children. His father was a member of Lodge No. 119 (Cumberland and Westmoreland), and died in 1880. This lad has already taken part in four elections, and has 256 votes to his credit. No. 18, F. W. Bell, a third application, from the Province of South Wales East, comes forward with three votes in hand, but as we have pointed out on many previous occasions, past experiences are no sure guide of what is in store for a candidate, especially in Provinces, such as this, where combination of voting power is arranged to perfection. No. 29, L. C. Hooper, is also a third application case, 745 being the total of votes already scored; the father was a member of the Ebury and Salisbury Lodges, Nos. 1348 and 435. No. 37, J. E. Walters, has a sister in the Girls' School; he was a candidate in October last, and on that occasion 134 votes were polled on his behalf. No. 40, W. J. Hodge, also a second application case, has 49 votes in hand, and is accredited to the Province of Somerset, in which district his father held Provincial rank. No. 51, S. H. Bevis; No. 58, H. P. Richardson; and No. 64, R. H. Whiting, all "first applications" conclude the "family of four" list. The first of these three is a Dorset case, Richardson a West Yorkshire one, and the last is a Kentish lad.

There are nine cases remaining in which there are three children dependent, in two of these both father and mother are still alive. No. 19, F. C. A. Douglas, from Hong Kong, has already made two attempts, but at present has only three votes to his credit. No. 20, H. Gale, London, who has also stood two elections, starts on the present occasion with 220 votes in hand, while No. 23, A. F. Williams, also a London case, has polled 597 votes in the same time. No. 24, A. Pratt, is one of the candidates whose father and mother are both living. Bro. Pratt's record of services to the Institutions in the past stands better than any we remember to have seen, and it seems hard, now that he is in need, that he has only been able to secure 527 votes for his son after two elections. If the benefits of the Institutions are to be given to those who have helped the Charities during their years of prosperity, Bro. Pratt's son should have been in a much better position than he at present occupies. No. 26, F. W. Hennah, hails from Kent, and has 809 votes in hand from the two elections of last year, while No. 28, John How, a London case, secured but 140 votes in the same period. No. 46, F. W. Longman; No. 47, H. W. Booker; and No. 50, F. J. Rose, each first applications, are the remaining cases in which there are still three children left. The father of

EPPS'S (GRATEFUL COMFORTING) COCOA.

Digitized by Google

Longman is alive, but given in the paper as incapacitated, although in what way is not stated. He was a member of a Somerset Lodge. Booker is accredited to London, and Rose to West Yorkshire. No. 27, R. W. A. Rosier, comes forward, for the third time, with 451 votes in hand; he is one of two fatherless children now, dependent on their mother. No. 34, J. Shaw, is also one of a family of two "dependent," and comes forward on the present occasion with 299 votes from October last. No. 48, J. M. Green, another of a family of two dependent children, is a first application case, hailing from Somersetshire. No. 59, E. E. P. Carré, brings our remarks to a conclusion. He is the son of a late member of La Cesarée Lodge, No. 590, of Jersey, and is the only child dependent on his widowed mother. His father, at the time of his death, was W.M. elect of his Lodge. The case is a first application one.

Having now concluded our review of the candidates for the two April Elections, we are more than ever convinced that some radical alterations are needed in the rules which govern the admission of candidates. We are certain there are cases on the list, which in justice to the brethren who are called upon to support the Institutions, have no right to be there, but the difficulties we encounter on every side when trying to ascertain the true state of affairs prevents our doing more than occasionally aiding to bring an unworthy case to light. We were successful as regards the lad Collingwood, in October 1880, and think we can convince the brethren as regards another case, this election, where it is sought to place a lad in the Boys' School who is possessed of some £500 or £600 in his own right. It may be that, in the opinion of some, such possession should not disqualify him, but we think it should.

We understand that Thomas Woodward, No. 32 on the List, has been withdrawn, so that the number of boys who will now go to the poll to compete for the twelve vacancies is sixty-three. Young Woodward, it will be remembered, was one of the last application cases, and is one of a family of six children left to the care of a widowed mother.

REPORT OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL FOR THE YEAR 1882.

THE account rendered by the House Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys of their stewardship during the past year is most satisfactory. Or, lest we may be thought guilty of some slight exaggeration, we will use the very words of the Report itself, and express our belief that "the operations of the year, it is gratifying to state, have been attended with as large an amount of financial success as could have reasonably been anticipated." The ordinary receipts fall only a little short of £11,800, while the extraordinary receipts in the shape of donations and subscriptions towards the "Special Preparatory Building Fund" exceed £3,078; the gross receipts thus amounting, in round figures, to £14,877. On the other hand, owing to the necessity for purchasing the one remaining plot of land opposite to the Institution at Wood Green, and the expenditure of £650 for that purpose, the expenditure reached £12,335, but as there was a balance brought forward from the previous year of £603, the statement of account for 1882 shows a balance on the right side of over £66. The amount received in respect of the "Preparatory Building Fund" is, of course, kept separate, and as pretty well the whole of it has been funded, we shall dismiss it from our consideration with the remark, that we fully endorse the statement of the Committee that "though little more than twelve months have elapsed since the fund was authorised," the amount of support this "Special Fund" has received "must be regarded as satisfactory."

Turning to the ordinary receipts and expenditure for the year, we have, as has been shown already, a balance brought forward of over £603, or to be exact, £603 6s 6d. The principal item of receipt is, of course, the "Donations and Subscriptions," which present the handsome sum of £10,536 10s 2d. These are sub-divided into "Annual" and "Permanent," and each of these is in turn apportioned between "Private Donors" and to Lodges, Chapters, &c." The "Annuals" amount to £1,573 11s 6d, of which £1,257 17s 6d is contributed by "Private Donors," and only £315 14s by "Lodges, Chapters, &c." As there are in England and Wales some 1,400 Lodges, to say nothing of the Royal Arch Chapters, Mark Lodges, Rose Croix Chapters, Preceptories, Conclaves, &c. it follows that only a comparatively insignificant section of them find the wherewith to constitute themselves annual subscribers, the wherewith in this case representing the not very excessive sum of "one guinea"—the price of a single ticket at the Masonic Temperance Banquet at Manchester on Wednesday. We agree with those who think there is ample room for improvement under this category of donors, and there is no doubt about the necessity as regards the School itself and its requirements. The "Permanents" contribute £8,962 18s 8d, "Private Donors" giving £6,032, and "Lodges, Chapters," &c. £2,930 18s 8d. If, for the sake of convenience, we take this as representing the permanent contributions of 600 "Lodges, Chapters, &c." at the rate of a Life Subscribership (five guineas) each, it follows that about one-half of the Lodges in England contribute nothing whatever to the support of the Boys' School. The other receipts include three principal items; namely, Grants from Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter, £160 10s; a Life Presentation from the Province of Devon, entitled the "Huyshe Memorial Fund," £525; and £510 6s 4d, being interest on under £15,000 India Stock and Consols. These, with the other items and the balance from 1881, make up a total of £12,402 5s.

The Expenditure, including both Ordinary and Special, amounts to £12,335 15s 5d, of which £9,828 2s comes under the former category. The principal items of special expenditure are £224 expended in "Grants and Outfits to Boys on obtaining Situations;" "Visit of Stewards—Distribution of Prizes" £141 5s 4d; "Transfer to Sustentation Fund" £500; "Purchase of Land for Preparatory School" £650; "Sanatorium—Expenses, Board, Lodgings, &c." £218 8s 6d. The total, including the trifling sum of £7 15s for Repairs, &c. in Grounds, which is regarded as being outside the limits of "Ordinary" disbursements is £2,507 13s 5d. The principal items of Ordinary outlay are as follow: Office—for Salaries, Rent, Postage, Printing, &c. £1,417 12s 6d; Salaries and Wages at Wood Green £2,019 7s 2d; Provisions £3,256 0s 8d; Clothing £1,457; Various—Coal, Water, Gas, Rates, Taxes, &c. £955 4s 7d; Household Requisites £492 15s 3d; Infirmary £114 5s 5d. The average annual cost per boy, the number provided for being 215, is £45 14s 1d. One suggestion we have to offer. In the Special Expenditure is an item for Music Account, £83 11s. This is arrived at by deducting the Fees Received, £49 7s, from the total expended,—£132 18s. From an accountant's point of view, we should say that the Fees received for Music should be placed on the Receipt side of the account, and the full amount expended on the Expenditure side. We believe this to be the regular mode of statement, though it will not, of course, make the slightest difference in the result, which will remain as before.

A few lines will suffice for the remaining statements of account. The "Pupils' Assistance Fund" shows a balance due to Secretary of £14 15s 3d, the Receipts having amounted to £40 4s 9d, and the payments to "W. R. Parker, Portsmouth," £55. The Stock, &c. Account at Wood Green gives Receipts £85 2s 4d, the principal item being £64 10s 6d in respect of "Sale of Live Stock, &c." The disbursements reach £52 12s 3d, leaving a balance in hands of Secretary of £32 10s 1d. The Sustentation Fund started with a balance at Bankers' of £178 5s 5d, and this was increased by the transfer from the General Fund of £500 to £678 5s 5d. The outlay for "Repairs and Renewals during the year" reached £903 9s 6d, so that there remained due to Bank on 31st December last £225 4s 1d. There is also a statement, from which it appears that up to the close of last year the sum expended in the Purchase of Land and Mansions, Cost of Buildings, &c. &c. amounted to £67,807 15s 4d, of which £5,913 10s was for Land, &c. while the Cost of Buildings, &c. was £61,894 5s 4d.

As to the Educational results during the year, one pupil took Second Class Honours in the Senior Division at the Oxford Local Examination in June, while the eighteen who presented themselves as candidates at the Cambridge Examination (Juniors) in December, passed without a single exception, twelve of the number in Honours, namely, four first class, six second class, and two third class. This speaks well for the system pursued by Dr. Morris and his assistant masters.

CONSECRATION OF THE WOLSELEY LODGE, No. 1993.

THIS event, which had been looked forward to with a vast amount of interest, took place on Wednesday last, at Manchester. The ceremony of the day was performed by the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, Brother Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie, who was supported by a large number of Present and Provincial Grand Officers, who attended from all parts of the kingdom to do honour to the occasion. The new Lodge is named after Bro. Lord Wolseley, the gallant soldier, who achieved such distinction by his able conduct of the war in Egypt, and—as has been already fully treated upon in these columns—starts upon what are called Temperance principles. The proceedings took place at the Town Hall, where a Craft Lodge was opened at 2·40, the Provincial Grand Master being supported by the guest of the day, Bro. Lord Wolseley. When the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master had been saluted in the usual manner, he said they had assembled to constitute a Lodge for the benefit of Freemasonry, and he hoped at the same time for the benefit of society at large. They were met under very pleasing, and also, he thought, singular auspices. A certain number of persons, who were connected more or less with temperance and with teetotalism, two very essential matters, wished to join themselves to a Fraternity of Freemasons in this large and influential Province. Their efforts had been so far successful, and it was his hearty wish, and also he hoped of every good Mason, that the Lodge which they had founded would prosper and extensively benefit their Order. They had chosen for its name one of England's most illustrious subjects, and he felt exceedingly proud that Lord Wolseley had come there to help them to inaugurate a movement which he hoped would have many ramifications. To the brethren who had supported this movement he would say, go on and prosper, and he trusted that others who might probably have been debarred from joining their association would now feel differently, and enter into the haven of brotherly love and affection which they held out to all mankind, uniting with them in the one single object they had in view. After the petition and warrant had been read, the Prov. Grand Chaplain, Brother Rev. T. Collins delivered an oration, and the formal ceremony was proceeded with, and completed. The W.M. designate of the Lodge, Brother D. Edwards, was installed by Bro. James Heelis Provincial Grand Registrar, and the Officers were invested, as follows:—Bros. P. Barker I.P.M., G. Hunt S.W., P. H. Davis J.W., Rev. H. Anthony Noel Chaplain, J. E. Iliff Treasurer, John Hatton Secretary, W. Willis S.D., T. H. Thomason J.D., H. Darbyshire M.C., W. B. Riley I.G., T. Campbell Organist, L. J. Griffiths, H. W. Riley, W. H. Withington, and R. Beresford Stewards. The addresses having been delivered, the Provincial Grand Chaplain concluded the ceremony with prayer. The W.M. proposed a vote of thanks to the R.W. Prov. G.M., Colonel Starkie, for his kindness in officiating at the consecration, and the Provincial Grand Master in acknowledging the compliment said he longed to see Freemasonry extend itself among all classes and shades of men. He and the Provincial Grand Officers welcomed this Lodge into the Fraternity as their last new child; they had been present at its baptism, and hoped to witness its coming of age. The Worshipful Master, in proposing a vote of thanks to Brother Lord Wolseley, stated that when the founders of the Lodge first wrote to his Lordship, he at once replied that he should be delighted to attend the consecration, and give his name to the Lodge, but he could not join it, because strong as he was in favour of temperance principles he was not strictly a teetotaller. They now informed his lordship that they welcomed into the Lodge all Masons, whether they were teetotallers or not. The only prohibitory bye-law they had was, that not more than a certain amount should be spent per year for refreshments, and that no intoxicating beverages should be allowed at any of their meetings. On hearing this, Lord Wolseley said he should be delighted to become a member of the Lodge. Lord Wolseley, in reply, said: Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Worshipful Master, and Brother Masons, I do not think I have ever attended any meeting which has made a greater impression upon me than the present one, and I shall carry the remembrance of it wherever I go. Believe me I am most deeply sensible of the cordiality and warmth with which I have been greeted by so many distinguished Masons belonging to the Province of Lancashire. I assure you it is a very great pleasure, as well as an honour, to me to be here to-day, and to have the privilege of assisting at the inauguration of a Lodge which my brethren have done me the honour to name the Wolseley Lodge. During my career in my profession of arms it has been my lot to have visited most parts of the world, and to go to many distant and out of the way places, and I can say with the utmost confidence that wherever I went I have always found the utmost benefit and advantage from the fact of my being a Master Mason. As the hour is late I shall not detain you by giving any examples, though I could give many where the fact of my being a Mason has assisted me in the most material possible manner in the prosecution of my duty to the public and to Her Majesty. I can only say this, that old as I am if I were not a Mason now I would take the very earliest opportunity of asking the first friend I met who was a Mason to do me the honour of proposing me. Let me again thank you for the great cordiality and kindness with which you have received me, and let me assure you that no one could wish success to this Lodge more heartily than I do. Lodge was then closed. The banquet took place at the Free Trade Hall, where the W.M. presided; he was supported right and left by Col Starkie and Lord Wolseley. The usual loyal toasts met with a hearty reception, and full honour was done when the W.M. called on the brethren to drink the health of their R.W. Provincial Grand Master. Lord Wolseley, in proposing Prosperity to the Wolseley Lodge, said he became a Mason at twenty-one years of age, just before he left the English shores on his first expedition abroad. At that time a very common idea seemed to prevail that Masonry consisted merely in the going through of some fantastic and meaningless ceremonies, and that the members of a Lodge were in the habit of sitting up late at night, eating indigestible suppers, and drinking more wine than was good for them. Even at the present day this old accusation was frequently levelled at them, but the inauguration of that Lodge—the second conducted on the temperance principle that had been established in the kingdom—ought to do something to dispel the idea. He thought that every step taken in the direction of temperance reform should be welcomed, not only by every good Mason, but by every lover of his country. A reform such as temperance advocates desired would, he considered, be greater both morally and materially than any reform of the franchise or any other of the reforms which were so much in favour with the people of England. He believed that the formation of a Lodge on such principles was more likely to be of use than any other reform which Masons could adopt. Bro. Daniel Edwards responded. In the course of his remarks he said, it must never be understood that the Wolseley Lodge was originated as a protest against the intemperance said to be practised amongst Freemasons. Freemasons invariably were taught that one of their fundamental principles was temperance. As the first Master of the Lodge, he had to say that it was formed with the idea of embracing within its fold those good men and true who would not come into Freemasonry without a Lodge of that sort, and not as a protest against Lodges that already existed. Although it was to be a temperance Lodge, he need hardly say that every Mason would be admitted and welcomed within it. Started under such auspices, and founded upon such principles, the Wolseley Lodge would and must have the approbation of the Great Architect of the Universe. The remaining toasts received full recognition, and the proceedings throughout seemed to give every satisfaction to the large body who took part in them.

The admission of an M.P. to the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry was an event of sufficient importance to cause some stir, and a large local gathering at the Huyshe Masonic Temple, Plymouth, on the 27th instant. The spacious room in which Harmony Lodge, No. 156, and other Lodges meet, was very tastefully decorated for the occasion. The banners of the various Lodges, and some were venerable ones, ornamented the walls, whilst the room generally was made bright and beautiful with plants, and a very satisfactory choir was improvised for the occasion. Those who know the Officers of Harmony Lodge will not be surprised to hear that not only the Worshipful Master and his Wardens, but each of the Officers, performed his part of the ceremony most efficiently and well, and that the whole passed off without the least approach to a hitch. After the duties were ended and Lodge closed, Bro. Macliver, at the request of the W.M., made a short speech, saying that his impression of Freemasonry, so far as he was able to judge, was very favourable. He was glad to find a thoroughly unsectarian religious basis, and said he should be glad if he could be of any assistance to the Order. His son had told him of the great and beneficial effect of Freemasonry in America, where he had attended meetings at which some four or five thousand Masons were present.—Western Daily Mercury.

At a meeting of the Royal Sussex Lodge, No. 342, held on Wednesday, the 21st instant, a Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. J. Brickwood I.P.M. The jewel bears the following inscription:—

"Presented, by the members of the Royal Sussex Lodge, No. 342, to Bro. John Brickwood, on his retiring from the chair, as a token of esteem and regard."

Bro. Marsh (professionally known as Henry Marston), who for many years was associated with the late Samuel Phelps at the old Sadler's Wells Theatre, died on Thursday, the 22nd inst. Brother Marsh's career as an actor extended over a period of fifty years, and he will long be remembered by the old school of playgoers as a capable and conscientious exponent of the best principles of the dramatic art.

At the Gaiety Theatre, on the afternoon of Monday, the 9th April, will be presented "Vice Versa," a Lesson to Fathers, in three Tableaux, being a stage version, by Edward Rose, of the very successful story of the same name by Mr. Anstey, who has given Mr. Rose sole and exclusive right to dramatise the story.

PROSPERITY LODGE, No. 65.

FALLING, as it did, so close on the Easter Holidays, the installation meeting did not attract so large an attendance of the members of this popular Lodge as is universally the case. However, amongst those who did honour to the installation of Bro. G. Schadler were Bros. J. Roberts W.M.; Past Masters C. Daniel, H. S. Goodall, W. Chicken, L. A. Leins, E. S. Cornwall, C. E. Ferry, and George T. Brown Secretary. The Officers fully supported the W. Master, and amongst the Visitors were Bros. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke G.S., Fred. Binckes P.G.S. Secretary R.M.I.B., C. F. Matier P.G.W. Greece P.M. 645, D. Moss S.D. 1275, J. L. Mather P.P.G.D.C. Herts 1580, J. Goddard W.M. 771, W. A. Summers Org. 771, A. Chivers (late 65), C. Gooding 1329, Peter Harnett 813, J. R. Gallant P.M. 127, R. H. Halford P.M. P.P.G.S.D. Herts 228, J. Newton P.M. 174, A. South J.D. 1804, W. Ferryman S.W. 184, H. Tucker P.M. 933, G. A. Haynes 1804, D. H. Jacobs P.M. 27, W. W. Morgan S.W. 211. Lodge having been formally opened, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The Auditors' report was next presented, and it was unanimously adopted by the members. Bro. Thomas Buggins was raised to the sublime degree, and Brother Alfred Cheney was passed. The W.M. elect was then presented, and in regular course a Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. George Schadler, who had received the unanimous vote of the brethren at their last meeting, was regularly placed in the chair of King Solomon. The whole of the work (including the two ceremonies already mentioned) being carefully conducted by Bro. Roberts, who, however, was suffering from a slight cold. After the new W.M. had been saluted in the three degrees, the Officers were appointed and invested as follows:—Bros. C. J. Rich S.W., J. H. Hawkins J.W., Goodwin P.M. Treas., G. T. Brown P.M. Sec., Gregory S.D., W. Walker J.D., Dyson I.G., L. A. Leins P.M. M.C., G. Haller A.M.C., Bourne W.S. The addresses were delivered in capital style by Bro. Past Master Brown, and both Bro. Roberts and he were complimented on the ability they displayed. The usual routine work was then gone through; several communications were read and announced, and Lodge was closed. A capital banquet was supplied by Messrs. Ritter and Clifford, the proprietors of the Guildhall Tavern, Bro. Henry Mills superintending the service, and after a full discussion of the menu, the cloth was removed, and grace said. On rising to give the first toast—The Queen and the Craft—the W.M. said it was one invariably received with enthusiasm in Masonic Lodges. He need not expatiate on the virtues of Her Majesty; they were well known and appreciated. In speaking to the next toast—His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales Most Worshipful Grand Master—the W.M. said we ought to be very proud of having him as our ruler. He attends Grand Lodge as frequently as he believes it necessary, and the rapid strides taken by the Order since his installation testifies to his popularity amongst the brethren. Brother Schadler on again rising, said he came next to a most important toast. It was that of the M.W. Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Lathom, and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past. The work in Grand Lodge is admirably conducted by the distinguished Masons to whom has been entrusted its government. They were honoured that evening by having present Bro. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke, who was universally respected wherever Freemasonry was known; with the Grand Secretary's name he would associate the toast. After a song by Brother Haynes, "I dream of thee, Sweet Madeline," Brother Col. Clerke rose to reply. The toast he had the honour to respond to was one of a most comprehensive character, inasmuch as it embodied the names of those who had the control of our Masonic affairs. With respect to the Prince of Wales, he was not a mere ornamental head; he took a very active part in the working of Grand Lodge, and he (Col. Clerke) had frequently to attend His Royal Highness and explain matters, and receive his instructions. The Pro Grand Master and the Deputy Grand Master, they were always ready to render assistance whenever their services were required. As for the other Grand Officers, their offices were not mere sinecure ones. They had heavy and responsible duties to perform, and were fully entitled to the recognition almost invariably given them. It was most gratifying to them to feel their services were appreciated. Speaking for himself, he must apologise for not having been in attendance at an earlier stage of the proceedings; however, owing to the Easter Holidays there were some important items of business to be completed before he could leave; consequently, he found it was nearly six o'clock before he started from the office. Still, he could assure the brethren he attended this, the 125th anniversary meeting of their Lodge, with infinite pleasure. He was glad to make the acquaintance of the members, and wished the Lodge of Prosperity every prosperity. On rising to propose the health of the Worshipful Master, Brother Roberts expressed the pleasure it gave him to perform that duty. He was convinced that in Bro. Schadler the members had secured an efficient and capable ruler. Eleven years ago he and Brother Schadler were initiated together; their relationship ever since had been of a most cordial character, and he could assure him all he could do to assist him he would do, and he felt convinced the members one and all would do the same. After a song—"The Tar's Farewell"—Brother Schadler rose. He thanked the Immediate Past Master for the kind and hearty manner in which he had proposed the toast, and felt complimented by the way the brethren had received it. He would do his uttermost the excel to good working of his predecessors, and felt he could hardly be blamed if in this he succeeded. Of this they might rely, he should strive zealously to further the best interests of Freemasonry, and promote the welfare of their Lodge. In proposing the toast of the Visitors, the Worshipful Master regretted the list on this occasion was but a small one. Brothers Matier, Goddard, Halford and Moss replied. In proposing the health of his predecessor, Bro. Schadler said Bro. Roberts had ably acquitted himself, and had studied the comfort of the brethren in every respect. He then presented him with the Past Master's jewel, which the members unanimously agreed he was entitled to. This bore the following inscription:—

Presented to Bro. JOHN ROBERTS,
By the Lodge of Prosperity, No. 65,
As a memento of their high esteem, and in appreciation of his great efficiency and urbanity as Master.

Bro. Schadler trusted that when Bro. Roberts looked upon it, he would remember his association with the brethren of Prosperity Lodge, and that in his possession it would not lose its lustre, but be worn amongst them for many, many years to come. Here Bro. Frank Herold played a selection on the zither, with exquisite taste, and was most vociferously applauded. In reply, Bro. Roberts thanked the brethren most heartily for the manner in which they had received him. He hoped to continue his services to the Lodge, and trusted he might live for many years in health and strength to be with them. He had been ten years associated with the Lodge, during which time he had scarcely ever been absent from its meetings. He should prize the gifts he had received from the Lodge, and felt the recognition his services had met with were far more than they deserved. In speaking to the toast of the Past Masters, the W.M. gracefully referred to the interest each had taken in the working of the Lodge. Bros. Leins, Daniels, Ferry, and Chicken responded. In proposing the toast of the Masonic Institutions, with which he associated the name of Bro. Fredk. Binckes, the W.M. made gratifying allusion to what the Lodge had done in supporting the Charities for some years past, and specially referred to the Stewardship of Bro. Roberts, who had this year taken up £125 for the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. In the course of his reply Brother Binckes said that despite the depressing cry we hear on almost all hands of the condition of affairs, the key-note of the evening with them undoubtedly was Prosperity. Bro. Binckes urged on all the needs of the respective Institutions, and detailed how each of them was situated as regards funded property; he pointed out the vast demands they had to contend with, and recounted how, from the small number of twenty-seven, some twenty-five years ago, they were now educating and maintaining 215 boys in the Wood Green establishment. Bro. Binckes' remarks were listened to most attentively, and at the conclusion an announcement was made that the list of Bro. Schadler, who will act as Steward at the Boys' School Festival in June next, already amounted to £36 18s 6d. Several other toasts were given, and, throughout, the proceedings were enlivened by music and songs. Bro. Matier won well merited applause by his recital of "The Mate of the Nancy Bell."

In addition to the Past Master's jewel, during the evening Brother Roberts was presented with a handsome clock, manufactured by Brother Halford. This was mounted on an elaborate marble stand, and bore the following inscription:—

"Presented to Brother John Roberts by the members of Lodge of Prosperity, No. 65, as a token of their esteem, and in appreciation of the efficient manner in which he conducted the duties of W.M. 1882-3."

UNITED PILGRIMS LODGE, No. 507.

THE annual meeting of this old Lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 22nd inst., at the Bridge House Hotel, London-bridge. It is gratifying to be able to record that, after passing through a great many vicissitudes, the United Pilgrims Lodge has now been placed upon a sound basis, and within the last few years has attained a prominent position in the Craft. Much of this success is attributable to the exertions of Bro. H. E. Joyce (editor of the Shipping and Mercantile Gazette) who was then installed in succession to Bro. C. W. Peters. Lodge was opened at half-past four o'clock, under the presidency of the retiring Worshipful Master Bro. C. W. Peters, who was supported by Bros. H. E. Joyce S.W. and Worshipful Master elect, E. Blake S.D., W. T. Folks J.D., H. R. Grellet P.M. Treasurer, Jonas Duckett P.M. Secretary, J. S. Terry P.M. M. of C., J. Gibbs I.G., &c. Amongst the Vistors were Bros. B. Martell (of Lloyd's), F. Elgar, Magnus Ohren P.A.G.D.C., James Stevens P.M., H. T. Bing P.M. 1597, T. W. Skelton P.M. 1056, J. B. Sorrell P.M. 176, Edward Johnson P.M. 140, W. G. Lemon P.M. 165, C. P. Passelowe, W. Farr 1677, James Watson 73, E. P. Wilson 181, J. J. Comont 179, Charles Barker 857, J. H. D. Steel 73, F. J. Young 1589, J. Esson 1589, J. C. Venables 263, G. C. Rivers 459, J. M. Hamon 238, &c. The usual preliminaries having been observed, the ballot was opened for Mr. C. H. Sharman, who was proposed by the Worshipful Master elect, and seconded by Bro. E. Blake S.D. The voting was unanimously in favour, and Mr. Sharman having been accepted, Bro. Joyce was presented as W.M. elect and assented in usual form to the interrogations put to him. A Board of Installed Masters was duly constituted, and Bro. Joyce was installed into the chair of K.S., the ceremony being impressively performed by Bro. C. W. Peters, and on the re-admission of the brethren, the newly-installed Master was proclaimed and saluted with full honours, amidst the universal congratulations of those assembled. He then proceeded to invest his Officers for the year, the collars being thus bestowed:—Bros. C. W. Peters I.P.M., E. Blake S.W., J. Gibbs J.W., H. R. Grellet P.M. Treasurer, Jonas Duckett P.M. Secretary, W. T. Folks S.D., C. H. Wiltshire J.D., H. H. Wiltshire I.G., J. W. Watts P.M. M. of C., J. S. Terry P.M. Wine Steward, W. Harrison Tyler. The Worshipful Master then initiated Mr. C. H Sharman into the mysteries and privileges of the Order, the working being most effectively performed, and in a manner which elicited genuine approbation. The Worshipful Master then, in the name of the brethren of the Lodge, begged Bro. Peters's acceptance of a handsome Past Master's jewel, as a token of their respect and esteem, and in recognition of his zealous and valuable services rendered to the Lodge during his year of office. These services were alluded to in felicitous terms, and the sentiments expressed by the Worshipful Master were heartily endorsed by the whole of the brethren. The jewel was a massive and elegant one, and bore the following inscription:—"United Pilgrims Lodge, No. 507. Presented to Bro. Charles W. Peters, in appreciation of his services as Worshipful Master, 1882-3." Bro. Peters, in acknowledging the compliment paid him, expressed the interest he had always taken in the affairs of the United Pilgrims Lodge, and promised it his undivided attention in the future. After the transaction of some other business, Lodge was closed in form, and the brethren adjourned to a sumptuous banquet, which was served in a manner which reflected the highest credit on Messrs. Roberts, the proprietors of the hotel, and their staff. At the conclusion of the repast, the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair and duly honoured, the name of Bro. Magnus Ohren being coupled with that of the Officers of Grand Lodge. Bro. Magnus Ohren, in responding, said it was a great honour for any Mason to be called upon to respond to this toast, because he himself must wear the purple; and it afforded him great pleasure to hear the manner in which the names of the Grand Officers were always received. But he was not at all surprised at this on the present occasion, when he looked around him and saw so many who were in the habit of attending Grand Lodge. There they saw how the Officers did their duty, and the two noblemen at the head of the Craft, the Earl of Carnarvon and the Earl of Lathom, whenever they were present, conducted the business in a manner which must give satisfaction to every one. The Officers who attended Grand Lodge, and worked on the Committees gave a great deal of time to the work, and their duties were most faithfully and zealously performed. They would all be pleased to see the Most Worshipful Grand Master a little oftener, but they must recollect how fully his Royal Highness's time was occupied, and that the days for the meeting of Grand Lodge were fixed. If they were moveable days, the Prince of Wales might be enabled to attend oftener than he does; still, they all knew he paid the most earnest attention to his Masonic duties. The Grand Secretary was constantly with him, and His Royal Highness knew everything that was done; the Grand Officers were selected by him, and his heart was entirely in Freemasonry. He again thanked them for the manner in which the toast had been received. The Immediate Past Master observed that one of the most important toasts before them that evening was the health of their Worshipful Master. They all knew his excellent disposition and kindness of heart, and no one could have met him in this Lodge without admitting that in Bro. Joyce he had found a friend. He did not know what would have become of the United Pilgrims Lodge but for the brother who had been so unanimously chosen as its Worshipful Master, for three-fourths of its members were his own personal friends, whom he had brought into the Lodge, and he only hoped they would persevere until they reached the high and dignified position that he had attained to-day. He felt very proud, indeed, at having to stand there to propose the health of Bro. Joyce, in whom he had taken a deep interest from the moment he came into the Lodge, and in whom he was very glad to find so worthy and apt a pupil. His genial and kindly manner, and disposition to make things pleasant all round, him had been felt and acknowledged in this Lodge, and in the presence of so many Visitors as they had to-night, he had very great pleasure in testifying to the true worth of their excellent Worshipful Master, who was deserving the highest honours the brethren could possibly bestow upon him. He asked the brethren to drink to the toast with all the heartiness it deserved, and with all the sincerity he knew they felt towards not only a brother Mason but also a true and intimate friend. Bro. Joyce endeavoured most successfully to carry out in practice all the tenets inculcated in Freemasonry, and his sole aim was to make everything pleasant, and to unite men in the grand design of rendering each other happy. Might he live long to come amongst them, and to aid them in carrying out that grand design of making each other happy and in promoting the true welfare of the Craft in general, and of the United Pilgrims Lodge in particular. So mote it be. Bro. Joyce, who was received with the utmost cordiality on rising to respond, said he thanked the brethren most earnestly for the cordiality with which the toast of his health had been received. He could only say that although he had great pleasure in being amongst them that evening, there was a certain tinge of sadness about it. He recollected that it was only some three or four years ago when he was initiated, when two of his most distinguished Visitors to-night were present, and when he occupied the position of his brother now on his immediate right, he said, in responding to the toast of the Initiates, when a "printer's devil" in a small country town, very many years ago, it fell to his lot to print a notice of the Shakspeare Lodge, held in that locality; and he thought to himself, though only a "printer's devil," he should like some day to be a Mason. That was his ambition, and on the night to which he referred, he told the brethren that ambition had been realised; but since then he had another ambition, and that was to be a Mason as good as any of those present. There he must stay, for the idea was not yet quite realised, though he hoped it was to some extent, for he had gone as far as he could expect to do, at least for some years. There was, as he had said, a certain tinge of sadness, that he had got almost to the apex of his ambition. But he should not allow that sadness to affect in any way his future interest in Masonic duties. He felt he must quarrel with his excellent Immediate Past Master, who said three-fourths of the members of the United Pilgrim Lodge were his friends, and he trusted they might always remain on the same terms of amity and goodwill as they were on at present. It should be his endeavour to produce that effect, and if he failed in it once he should, as in the song they had just heard, "try again." If anything in life was worth doing at all, it was worth doing well, and it was a laudable ambition on the part of all Masons to try and reach the top of the tree. He thanked them, first of all for placing him in the honourable position he now occupied, and he felt it a great privilege and compliment, because he knew there were many of his friends who had been members of the Lodge longer than he had been, and yet had not attained that position. It was an honourable distinction, and one which he most thoroughly appreciated. It would be his most earnest desire, during his year of office, to justify the choice they had made, and he hoped that at this time next year, when it would be his turn to take the seat now occupied by his friend the I.P.M., he might be equally entitled to their satisfaction and their esteem for the manner in which he should have discharged the duties entrusted to him during his year of office. The W.M. next proposed the health of the Initiate, in whose presence he would not say so much as he should have been tempted to do otherwise. He could only say that Bro. Sharman was another friend of his. They had often heard Masters say they could generally judge of a Mason when he was initiated, and whether they were likely to turn out good men and true. From the interest he took in the ceremony, he felt perfectly certain that Bro. Sharman would prove a student and an excellent member of the Fraternity. If Bro. Sharman should ever reach the proud position of being Master of his Lodge, might he be there to give him a hearty welcome. Bro. C. H. Sharman, in responding, said that one of the greatest secrets in Masonry, so far as he was concerned, was in being asked to respond to a toast. He had for a long time past experienced a craving and longing to associate himself with this Antient and Honourable Institution, but up to now circumstances had prevented him. At the present moment he felt very much like Alice in "Wonderland," nervous, timid and surprised, and could only half grasp the beauties of a system which he hoped he might more thoroughly understand in the future. He felt he had got one foot, however, over the stile, and hoped he might have the opportunity of reaching some of the higher offices in due course. His heart was already in the work, and he should endeavour faithfully to carry out the solemn obligations he had that night undertaken. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Immediate Past Master, whose excellencies of character he could roll into a few words. He was a good Christian man and a good Mason, which was all that need be said of a true Brother and a gentleman. The I.P.M. felt very proud on this auspicious occasion, for he had now arrived safely in the "Upper House," amongst the Past Masters, who had guided and regulated affairs for many years. He should be happy to co-operate with them in the solution of problems that were frequently cropping up, and assist in every possible way in advancing the true interests of the Lodge. He thanked their excellent W.M. for the few kind and concise words he had so kindly spoken, and the Officers of the Lodge generally for the valuable support and assistance they had accorded him during his year of office. He scarcely knew what he should have done, or how he could have got through the business of the year, without the generous aid and co-operation of the Past Masters, especially their excellent Treasurer and Secretary, and Brothers Watts and Terry, to whom the praise bestowed upon himself was greatly due. He was much obliged for the creditable report they had made upon the way in which he had conducted himself in the chair during the past year. He assured them he took that chair with the best intentions, and he now resigned it into abler hands, though certainly not more willing ones. He wanted to see the Lodge grow and prosper, as it had done lately, and he hoped it would not only become efficient, but well known throughout the Craft for its support of the Charities. That was one of the great essentials of success. He hoped they would ever bear in mind the sentiments contained in the recitation just given by Bro. P.M. Stevens, on "The Level and the Square," and if they did so, they would retire from the Lodge with a clear conscience, and be much better for having exerted their utmost to promote the true interests and objects of Freemasonry. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Visitors, and in doing so was pleased to meet many old and distinguished Masons as guests that evening, and not less so to welcome those of the rank and file, who, by promulgating the tenets of Freemasonry, were equally eminent with those who wore the purple. He believed it was incumbent upon Masters to visit other Lodges, and to entertain visitors, and but for unfortunate illness in his family, he hoped to have had the company of the Worshipful Master of his mother Lodge on this occasion. It might appear somewhat strange that he should now be the Master of the Lodge of his adoption, but they could not control all the circumstances of their lives, though they must be guided by them to a very great extent. It had been his lot to throw himself into their Lodge to the exclusion of his mother Lodge; but, somehow, though he might go into many Lodges, he should never lose his love and affection for that in which he was initiated. There were P.M.'s here whom he had had the pleasure of meeting in a place to which he was indebted considerably—the Lodge of Instruction—amongst whom he might mention Bro. Sorrell, whilst in Bro. Stevens they had a great authority in The Great City Lodge, and in many others on both sides of the water. He alluded to the common bond of unity which bound brethren together in the practice of good deeds, and said many of the brethren who had not yet passed the chair were as exemplary in carrying out the principles of Freemasonry as those who wore the purple, and who dispensed what Charity they could without ostentation, and often without any one knowing about it. He hoped he had given the Visitors a hearty welcome, and the same would be extended to them whenever in the future they might pay a visit to the United Pilgrims Lodge. Bro. W. G. Lemon, in responding, said when Bro. Joyce came into the Ravensbourne Lodge, he thought he had in him the making of a thorough Mason. He had not the pleasure of initiating their excellent W.M., but he had of receiving his first subscription, and Bro. Joyce would have a lively recollection of the part he played at the initiatory ceremony. He was very pleased to have had the opportunity of being present to witness his installation, and rejoiced that he had been able to avail himself of the invitation. He was delighted with the working in Lodge, and with —what was something unusual with a W.M., immediately on being appointed to the chair—his proceeding at once to initiate a brother, and to perform the work at a moment when he might reasonably be allowed to enjoy a little relaxation. But Bro. Joyce was so omniverous a worker that he did not expect they would hear him say, on the return of a brother, he might give a lecture on the tracing board "should time permit." He thanked them for the kindness and courtesy with which the Visitors had been received, and he should look back upon it with a cordial sense of their hospitality and urbanity. Bro. Stevens said he had been associated with this Lodge many years, and had had frequent opportunities of enjoying the amenities of the brethren, though it was some time since he paid his last visit. It was said that "Absence makes the heart grow fonder," and certainly the reception accorded to the Visitors that evening revived much of the old satisfaction he experienced in former times. He might mention that a Lodge of Instruction having been established in connection with this Lodge, of which he had the honour of being the Preceptor, those who were young in the Craft, as well as those more advanced, should embrace every opportunity of attending, when he should be happy, in return for the truly Masonic greeting he had received that night, to give them whatever instruction he could, in his official capacity. The working in Lodge and the hospitalities of this evening did them infinite credit, and he rejoiced exceedingly at the prosperity which had attended their Lodge, especially during the last few years. Bro. J. B. Sorrell also returned thanks, in doing which he expressed his pleasure at seeing Bro. Joyce installed into the chair, and also in witnessing that ceremony performed by the I.P.M. It was most unusual to see a newly installed Master initiate a brother immediately on taking office, but this he thought was to be accounted for by the fact that Bro. Joyce, as W.M. of the Lodge of Instruction, had perfected himself in the work he had undertaken. Bro. B. Martell observed it was a goodly thing for brethren to dwell together in unity, and he was sure that was an axiom that was always exemplified in the United Pilgrims Lodge. He hoped to have the pleasure of meeting them on many future occasions, and to enjoy their friendly hospitality, as he had done to-night. He had much appreciated the beautiful addresses delivered by the I.P.M., and had the utmost pleasure in meeting so many friends in the Lodge. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Past Masters, whom it would be invidious to singularise, seeing they all possessed such admirable qualifications. They were all deeply indebted to the Past Masters for the assistance they had given, enabling them to perform their duties. He alluded in especially felicitous terms to the manner in which the Treasurer and Secretary discharged the functions of their respective offices, and of the efforts they made to sustain the prestige and popularity of the Lodge. Bro. H. R. Grellet acknowledged the compliment that had been paid him by his re-election as Treasurer; he hoped he should be able to discharge his duties to their satisfaction, as he had done in the past. Bro. Jonas Duckett was very pleased at being Secretary of this Lodge, which after so many vicissitudes had attained its present proud position in the Craft. There were fond memories clinging to the present, and he could not but reflect how that the good old ship had been brought through turbulent and tempestuous seas, until it had become a strong, united and prosperous Lodge. He wished for it a long career of usefulness and prosperity, and this he was assured would be the case so long as its affairs were as ably conducted as at present. Bro. Terry also suitably responded. The health of the Officers of the Lodge were then proposed and severally acknowledged, and the list was fittingly closed with the Tyler's toast. The proceedings of the evening were enlivened with some excellent recitations and songs, Bro. C. Warwick Jordan, Mus. Bac. Oxon, presiding most efficiently at the pianoforte.

WEST KENT LODGE, No. 1297.

THE installation meeting was held on Saturday, at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, under the presidency of Bro. W. F. Gardner, who was supported by a goodly company of members and visitors. The first business of the day was a neat little address by the Master in reference to the decease of Bro. John Allen, the first initiate of the Lodge, and afterwards one of its Masters. Bro. Gardner in feeling terms alluded to the unfortunate event, and to the great loss the Lodge had sustained through it. After the report of the Audit Committee had been received and adopted, Brother R. H. Crowden P.M. took the chair, and in excellent style installed Brother Thomas Perrin as Master for the current year. In the course of the post prandial proceedings the new Master was congratulated upon his installation and on the prosperity of the Lodge, and some well-deserved observations were made by Bro. Grabham on the excellent working of the W.M. and his Officers.

ST. DUNSTAN'S LODGE, No. 1589.

THE first meeting of the members of this Lodge, since the installation of Bro. Alfred Tisley as Worshipful Master, was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on 28th instant. There was a numerous muster, and at the close of the business, the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured.

ALDERSGATE LODGE, No. 1657.

AT its last meeting, under the presidency of Bro. Dr. Benton, the Worshipful Master, the Lodge decided to petition Grand Chapter for a Warrant for a Chapter to be attached to the Lodge. On the motion of the Worshipful Master, seconded by Brother A. Brookman, the Lodge resolved to present to Brother J. Derby Allcroft, the Treasurer of the Lodge, who has recently been elected Grand Treasurer, the clothing of Grand Treasurer, as a compliment for the great services rendered by him to the Craft in general and also to the Aldersgate Lodge, of which he was the first Master.

New Concord Lodge of Instruction, No. 813.—At the usual meeting of the above Lodge, on Wednesday, the 22nd inst., at the Jolly Farmers' Tavern, Southgate-road, Bro. Marks occupied the chair, and was supported by Bros. Dixie S.W., W. Potter J.W., Cusworth P.M. Preceptor, F. Perl Secretary, Gayler S.D., A. Perl J.D., Weeden I.G.; also Bros. A. Potter, Ockleford, Paden, Higman, Jupp, Laughton, Halford. Lodge was opened and the previous minutes read and confirmed. The W.M. proceeded to rehearse the ceremony of initiation, Bro. A. P. Jupp acting as candidate. Bro. A. Potter having proved himself efficient, was entrusted. Lodge opened in the second degree, when the ceremony of passing was rehearsed. Bro. Paden 813 was elected a member. Nothing further offering for the good of Freemasonry, Lodge was closed.

FREE GARDENERS' FESTIVAL AT KIRKCALDY.

ON the 23rd inst. the annual Festival of the Kirkcaldy District of British Order of Ancient Free Gardeners was held in the Corn Exchange there, and was largely attended. Mr. J. Guthrie-Lornie, J.P., of Birnam and Pitcastle, presided, and was supported by Rev. B. B. Begg, Bailie Speedie, Councillor Hutchison, Dr. Goodenough, Mr. Peter Harrow, and other members of the Order. The Chairman in opening the proceedings said, it seemed rather out of place that he, one of the youngest members, should preside on that occasion, but he believed it was characteristic of the Order that every member should do what was in his power for the general good, and, accordingly, he willingly complied with their request, all the more so, because, since he became an honorary member the other week, he had been much impressed with the earnestness of the office-bearers in endeavouring to benefit their fellow-townsmen, more particularly the working classes, by the advantages which the Society offers to all who join its ranks. As they were aware, its fundamental principle was that the strong shall help the weak, and that they in health should assist in the relief of their less fortunate brethren who may have been overtaken by accident or disease. No words of his were therefore necessary to enforce its claims upon the attention of the thoughtful and provident. The history of the early foundation of their Ancient Order is lost in antiquity. They were however informed, that there were Free Gardeners in Scotland when James VI. was called to the English Crown, nearly 300 years ago. Since then the Society had undergone many changes in its modes of working and in its organisation, but its ruling principle of mutual benefit had remained the same, and he understood that at the present time it was in a more prosperous condition than at any previous period of its history, the number of members being increased to over 50,000 in Great Britain. Besides, Lodges had been and were formed in all parts of the world, the latest additions being those in South Africa. In their district alone there were four Lodges, with a membership of 660. He hoped, therefore, that any person who had not already joined would be induced to do so without further delay, and he could promise that they would find in its ranks many of the most respectable and intelligent working men in the district. He considered that a large industrial community, such as this, was fortunate in having such men in its midst, ready and willing to devote their time and ability to the upbuilding and maintenance of such a beneficial Society. He hoped that they would continue their exertions not only in the relief of poverty and distress, but also—if he might be allowed to make a suggestion—in the endeavour to lessen the vice of intemperance, which operated so strongly against all philanthropic effort, and robbed many working men of the hard-earned money which ought to be saved up against times of sickness and trouble. He believed that the great sources of crime and destitution in this country had their origin in strong drink, and if the members of such Societies as that of the Free Gardeners would unite more determinedly in the suppression of that vice, their powers as a means of doing good would be even more largely felt. He assured them that he was proud of belonging to such an Ancient Order, and expressed the hope that the Society would continue to flourish. It was deserving of all support because its principle carried out the injunction handed down to them through many centuries, and which was at the root of all true social happiness—"Bear ye one another's burdens." Other speakers followed, and afterwards the members and their friends had an assembly.—Dundee Advertiser.

On and after Monday next, the 2nd April, in consequence of a change of proprietorship at the "Moorgate," the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1507, will be held at the "Crown and Cushion," 73 London Wall (corner of Great Winchester Street), every Monday evening as heretofore, at 7·30.

The members of the Hyde Park Lodge of Instruction, No. 1245, have secured rooms at the Fountains Abbey Hotel, 111 Praed-street, W. (corner of Cambridge-place), where, on and after Monday next, the meetings will be held. On Monday, 2nd April, the Fifteen Sections will be worked, and it is to be hoped the brethren will muster in strong numbers.

ECCLESTON CHAPTER, No. 1624.

THE installation meeting of this excellent working Chapter was held on the 28th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, under the presidency of the M.E.Z. Comp. W. Vincent; J. Johnson H., J. G. Fisher J., I. Isaacs Treasurer, A. W. Beckham S.E., J. Wyer P.Z. S.N., C. Taylor P.S., Bond 1st Asst., Thos. Coulthard 2nd Asst. Visitors—J. I. Cantle 186, C. Smith M.E.Z. 1804, George Messenger 1237, and H. M. Levy P.Z. 188. The Chapter was formally opened and the minutes of last Convocation read and confirmed The Auditors' report was received and adopted. Ballots were taken for the admission of Bros. W. A. Burrows 1624 and C. James 15, which were unanimously in their favour. These brethren being present, they were duly exalted into R.A. Masonry. We may remark that the working of the M.E.Z., the Principals and Officers deserves especial praise. The installation of Principals next took place. Comps. H. J. Johnson M.E.Z., J. G. Fisher H., and J. Wyer P.Z. J. Companion Vincent, the retiring Z., installed the Principals in a manner that might be equalled, but could not be excelled, for its correctness and impressive delivery. The installation of Officers followed. Comps. W. Vincent I.P.Z., I. Isaacs Treasurer, A. W. Beckham S.E., C. Taylor S.N., H. Bond jun. P.S., T. Coulthard 1st Asst., C. Lee 2nd Asst., Church Janitor. After which hearty good wishes were tendered, and the Chapter was closed until June. The company afterwards sat down to a very sumptuous and récherché banquet and dessert, provided by Messrs. Spiers and Pond (Limited), and superintended by Comp. Dawkins. The M.E.Z. ably presided and proposed the usual Loyal and R.A. toasts. Comp. W. Vincent I.P.Z., in rising to propose the health of the M.E.Z., said there are but few in Craft Masonry who do not know Comp. Johnson; he can scarcely be excelled as a worker; to-night he has been installed as Z., and he (Comp. Vincent) was sure he would do his duty in R.A. Masonry. During the past year the Companions had shown him every kindness and forbearance, and he trusted they would extend to their new M.E.Z. the same amount of attention. He was sure then the Chapter would flourish. The M.E.Z., in reply, thanked the I.P.Z. for the flattering expressions he had used; he hoped to have as prosperous a year as his predecessor. If the Companions only rallied round and supported him as they had Comp. Vincent he was sure the Chapter would prosper. Before resuming his seat he would call on those present to drink to the health of the Exaltees—Comps. Burrows and James. Both are well known and respected in their respective Lodges, and he (Comp. Johnson) was sure they would be an acquisition to the Eccleston Chapter. Both Companions responded to the toast. The latter spoke of his connection with the Parent Lodge; he was now a member of the Chapter, and hoped to be with them at many enjoyable gatherings for many years yet to come. The toast of the Visitors met with a most cordial reception, and Comps. Smith, H. M. Levy, Cantle, and Messenger severally responded; each dilated on the able presidency of the M.E.Z., and the pleasure they experienced in testifying to the way in which Comp. Vincent had performed the ceremony of exaltation and installation. The M.E.Z., on again rising, said he had now to propose what might be considered the toast of the evening,—the health of their excellent Comp. W. Vincent I.P.Z. The credit this Chapter had acquired was mainly due to him. He was its first M.E.Z., and no one could have conducted the work better than he had done. To follow such an accomplished Principal he felt he had his work cut out for him; still, if he could only do half as well he should be perfectly satisfied. Turning now to Comp. Vincent, the M.E.Z., continued: He had now to place on his breast the jewel of the Chapter, and hoped that as they had been so agreeably associated in Craft, they might look forward to an equally pleasant connection in Royal Arch Masonry. Comp. Johnson concluded his address by expressing a hope that Comp. Vincent might live long to wear it, with pride, as a mark of appreciation of the services he had rendered to the Chapter. The jewel is of exquisite design; enamelled, with the R.A. colours; and is set with diamonds and precious stones, and bears a suitable inscription. Comp. Vincent in reply said he had to thank the Z. and the Companions for their kindness; whatever he had done he felt was but his duty. He thanked them heartily for their support; he could not have succeeded so well as they had paid him the compliment of saying he had done, had they not supported him might and main. He felt assured they would accord the M.E.Z. the same assistance in carrying out his duties. He thanked them for the elegant jewel presented to him, and to quote the words of Comp. Johnson—he hoped that he might wear it with credit to himself and satisfaction to the Chapter. The Z. then proposed the toasts of the H. and J. The H. was one of the founders of the Chapter, and P.M. of the Eccleston Lodge. Comp. Wyer is a very old and respected P.Z.; personally, he felt honoured by having two such Companions to support him in his year of office. He hoped to see both Companions occupy the chair; this was undoubtedly their right, and he felt it was a pleasure in store for them. Comp. Fisher said it was due to the able tuition he had received from the I.P.Z. that he had attained the proud position he now occupied. He felt it was only his duty to thank Comp. Vincent for his zeal in seeing that every office should be filled with credit. Comp. Wyer followed; all his energies would be at their command. The Officers of the Chapter were next complimented. The S.E., Comp. Beckham, is one who does his duty thoroughly. The S.N. equals him in zeal; and, in fact, all the Officers were able to do their work thoroughly. He wished specially to say a word for Comp. Bennett, who had looked after their creature comforts most assiduously. Comp. Beckham, in a very excellent speech, responded; he regretted the absence of the Treasurer, but he might remark with pride that they were out of debt; that was saying a great deal for a Chapter that had only been one year in existence. He hoped at the expiration of the current year there would be a large balance in hand. Comps. Taylor, Bond, Lee, Bennett, and Coulthard followed; then the Janitor's toast was given, and a very agreeable and harmonious evening's entertainment was brought to a close. The M.E.Z. provided a very excellent musical melange. Miss Florence Davis, Comps. J. I. Cantle, Charles Tayler, Lee, James Kift, and Knight-Smith delighted the Companions with their excellent harmony.

United Strength Chapter, No. 228.—A convocation of this Chapter was convened on Wednesday evening last, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, when there were present Comps. Robt. H. Halford M.E.Z., Charles K. Killick H., Edward Davies J., A. J. Timothy Scribe E., W. S. Hunter Scribe N., A. W. Fenner P.S., Geo. W. Edis 1st Assist. S., Jas. Hillhouse P.Z., Villet Rolleston, J. Gibbs, Joseph Bennett and C. Thomas Janitor. Visitor—Comp. W. Cook Scribe E. of the Metropolitan Chapter. The Chapter was opened in accordance with ancient rites, but as there was no business on the agenda, only some formal work was done, and the Companions adjourned at an early hour to a récherché banquet, when the customary Loyal and Royal Arch toasts were proposed, and duly honoured. A very harmonious and agreeable evening was passed.

The North London Chapter of Improvement, at the Canonbury Tavern, St. Mary's Road, Islington, on the 29th instant, was well attended. Comps. Osborn occupied the chair of Z., Sheffield H., Pearcy J., Tipper S.N., Hubbard P.S., John Evans Sheffield S.E. The ceremony was capitally rehearsed.

We had lately the pleasure of inspecting the establishment of Brother M. Silver, of 117 Gower Street, Euston Square. Bro. Silver is well known to many of our readers, more especially to that section who are in the habit of attending the Jewish Lodges, where our courteous brother is almost invariably entrusted with the supervision of the banquets that follow the labours of the day. Bro. Silver is an accomplished caterer, and the business, of which he is now at the head, has been conducted by him and his father for nearly fifty years. The establishment in Gower Street is furnished with every requisite for comfort; capacious and well appointed kitchens, admirable storerooms, a splendidly fitted supper and ball room, with all the necessary retiring rooms, smoking rooms, &c. On the upper floor every convenience is provided for the supply of wedding breakfasts, and many a happy Jewish couple have had their nuptials celebrated under Bro. Silver's roof. As it is becoming the fashion now-a-days for those who desire to entertain their friends to select a public place for the purpose, rather than to incur the inconvenience at their own residences, we cannot do better than call attention to the facilities offered by Brother M. Silver. At the same time we may add that Brother Silver is always prepared to supply every requisite for dinners, ball suppers, or wedding breakfasts, at the residences of those who may honour him with their commands.

The Masonic Press is exercising itself just now with two subjects, which, for the sake of the promotion of good feeling, it would be better to let drop. One is the late election of Grand Treasurer, the other the establishment of a Temperance Lodge, and the columns of the papers are opened to correspondents who certainly do not lack the ability to sow discord. It seems extremely bad taste in the supporters of the re-election of Colonel Creaton to argue that he ought to have been re-elected, as it implies that the election of Bro. Allcroft was a slight on Colonel Creaton. Argue as they may, nobody, not even Colonel Creaton's advocates, see it in that light, and the supporters of Bro. Allcroft honestly and indignantly repudiate it. With respect to the Wolseley Lodge being a temperance Lodge, it is impossible to see in the fact any ground for soreness on the part of Masons generally. Why a Lodge should not be established on temperance principles no reason can be assigned. The brethren who promote it have surely a right to say what the speciality of the Lodge should be. No brother is asked to join it unless he likes. There are very many Lodges which have but one banquet a year,—like the Asaph. That Lodge was started on that principle, and every man in the Lodge knew the rule before he entered. If he objected to have but one Lodge banquet a year he could have gone to some other Lodge. There being one temperance Lodge on the roll of Grand Lodge of England is no aspersion on the character of the Masonic body. There is, however, some ground for complaint in the unusual course that has been adopted by the Provincial Secretary of the Lodge, sending out circulars to all the Lodges, touting for visitors at the consecration, to whom tickets are to be sold at a guinea each.—Evening News.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Enfeebled Existence.—This medicine embraces every attribute required in a general and domestic remedy. It overturns the foundations of disease laid by defective food and impure air. In obstructions or congestions of the liver, lungs, bowels, or any other organs, these Pills are especially serviceable, and eminently successful. They should be kept in readiness in every family, being a medicine of incomparable utility for young persons, especially those of feeble constitutions. They never cause pain or irritate the most sensitive nerves or most tender bowels. Holloway's Pills are the best known purifiers of the blood, the most active promoters of absorption and secretion, whereby all poisonous and obnoxious particles are removed from both solids and fluids.

UNWORTHY CLAIMANTS FOR THE BENEFITS OF OUR CHARITIES.

IT will doubtless be in the recollection of many of our readers that we have already addressed a few remarks to them under the heading which we now adopt; but, on the other hand, it is a considerable interval that has elapsed since we did so; further, this heading seems the most appropriate we can use at the present time, when the events of two and a half years back—for it is that time since our former article appeared—are really repeating themselves. Our present title may also be useful in calling to the minds of brethren generally the causes which necessitated such an apparently un-Masonic expression being made use of in the past, and may, by its repetition, perhaps induce some of those most interested to take steps to prevent its being again needed. Our present heading was first made use of when we brought the case of the lad Arthur Harvey Collingwood — at that time a candidate for the Boys' School—prominently before the Craft. We now intend it to apply to one of the lads on the list for the coming April Election.

It may be remembered that among the names on the list for the Election in October 1880 was that of Collingwood, who we found on inquiry was entitled, with his mother and three other children, to a fortune of something like £9,000, that being the amount at which his deceased father's estate was proved. Our publication of this statement called forth some indignant remarks from certain of young Collingwood's supporters, and the merits of the case were pretty generally discussed, with the result that in the end it was brought before the Quarterly Court of the School, when it was decided that the case should be referred to the House Committee to consider and report upon at the ensuing Quarterly Court. At the Election that followed this decision, young Collingwood's friends polled 1,007 votes, which, with 743 brought forward, placed him sixth on the list of successful—there were sixteen elected on that occasion; but, the House Committee, after inquiry, having recommended his exclusion, the lad was eventually declared ineligible, and the votes polled on his behalf were forfeited. We have devoted thus much of our space to a résumé of Collingwood's case, in order to show what course has been adopted in the past, and also to prove, if possible, that some more stringent inquiry is needed before a candidate is passed as eligible to take part in an Election.

The case now in point is, that of Frank Alexander Herring, No. 55 on the list, son of the late Bro. Thomas H. Herring, who was initiated in the Unanimity Lodge, No. 113, Preston, Lancashire, on 2nd August 1869, and who died on 29th June 1882, leaving three young children parentless, their mother having died previously. We were informed, just before going to press last week, that this lad and the other members of his family were entitled to something like £500 each as their share of their father's estate, but, as is usual in such cases, our informant pledged us to secrecy, so far as he was concerned. However, the records of the Probate Office were open, and, after a long search, we found that, Bro. Herring having died without making a will, letters of administration were granted, on 21st November 1882, to his brother, on behalf of the children, the personality being given as

This latter sum representing the actual value of the property after all debts had been paid, each of the children is entitled to £555 4s 10d, which amount, if allowed to accumulate until the recipients reach the age of twenty-one years, will, in the case of the lad seeking election to the Boys' School, amount to something over £1,000. We therefore ask,—Is this lad a candidate worthy of being admitted to the benefits of the Boys' School? We say most decidedly not; he is in a better position to pay for his own education than nine-tenths of those who are called upon for subscriptions to the School, and for that reason should never have been approved of by the Committee, that is to say, provided they were in possession of the facts we have now stated. Indeed, we hardly think it possible all the circumstances could have been kept secret unless something like misleading representations were put forward.

We consider the particulars we have here given are sufficient to call for some inquiry, and as the figures are obtained from official sources, there can be no question as to their correctness. We therefore leave the case to the consideration of the brethren at the Quarterly Court, feeling assured, if the facts are fully looked into the application must finally be rejected.

The first meeting of the Board of Stewards for the Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, on the 9th May, was held on Wednesday afternoon at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Robert Grey P.G.D., Vice-Patron of the Institution, in the chair. Bro. Grey was elected President of the Board of Stewards; Bro. H. B. Marshall, C.C., Patron of the Institution, was elected Treasurer; and Bro. Hedges Hon. Secretary. Bro. Dubois P.G.W. Middlesex, Vice-President, was appointed Chairman of the Ladies' Stewards. It was resolved to hold the Festival at Freemasons' Tavern. The dinner and music Committees were elected, and other formal business conducted. At the close of the meeting the Chairman drew attention to the fact that the number of Stewards was considerably below the average figure, and expressed a hope that all present would exert themselves to ensure the success of the Festival. The usual vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the proceedings.

The General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls held their monthly meeting on Thursday. Brother Col. Creaton was called to the chair, and there were present besides the following brethren, viz., Frank Richardson, Frederick Walters, J. H. Matthews, James Peters, C. H. Webb, Robert P. Tebb, and E. C. Massey. The minutes of the General Committee meeting of the 22nd ult. having been read and confirmed, and the minutes of the House Committee of 22nd inst. read for information, the Chairman was authorised to sign cheques for various small amounts due to tradesmen, &c. Brother Richardson informed the Committee that since the last meeting of the House Committee, it had transpired that of the fourteen pianofortes in use at the Schools, twelve were said to require replacing with new ones, and he therefore proposed that this Committee should authorise the House Committee to employ an expert to examine and report upon all the instruments, and that the House Committee should be empowered to replace with new ones such as turned out to be past repair. Bro. Richardson added that this expenditure would not be any tax upon the funds of the Institution, as there was in hand a fund of £186 resulting from the fees of half a guinea a quarter which was paid by each pupil who learned music. The Chairman said that the House Committee were not aware of the condition of the pianos at the date of their last meeting, and he thought it a very proper matter to be brought before the General Committee. He then put the proposal to the vote, and it was carried unanimously. Three petitions were considered, and all being approved, the names of three candidates were ordered to be added to the list.

The Royal Arthur Lodge of Instruction, No. 1360, which hitherto has been held at the "Duke of Cambridge," Bridge Road, Battersea, has now been removed to more convenient and commodious premises, namely, at Brother Burgess's, the "Rock" Tavern, Battersea Park Road, nearly opposite York Road Station London Brighton and South Coast Railway, where the brethren meet every Tuesday evening, at eight o'clock. Bro. Jesse Collings, P.M. 1585, acts as Preceptor, and Bro. R. K. Collick is the Secretary.

MARRIAGE.

FERRIS-STEVENS.—On the 24th instant, at Holy Trinity Church, Clapham, Thomas M. Ferris, only son of Thomas Ferris, Esq., of Walworth, S.E., to Ellen Lavinia, second surviving daughter of Brother James Stevens P.M. P.Z., Clapham, S.W.

CANDIDATES FOR THE SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—As the April elections of Boys and Girls to the Schools of the Royal Masonic Institutions will take place very shortly, a few statistics concerning the candidates might not prove uninteresting or out of place. I must premise that my figures are approximate only, not fractionally correct. There are 65 boys and 28 girls anxiously looking forward for the result of the polling; of the 65 boys, 12 only can be elected, which, with two cases, Nos. 32 and 60, withdrawn, leaves 51 to try again in October, or be left out in the cold through being disqualified by age; as there are no less than 11 with whom this is the last chance. The average age of the boy applicants is 9 years, varying from 7 years and 5 months to 10 years and 11 months; one case being one month within the extreme limit, the fathers of these three have subscribed from ¼ to 32¼ years, or an average of 9 years 7½ months, but only 13 of them, or one-fifth of the whole number, are recorded as having served a Stewardship or made themselves Life Subscribers, Governors, or Vice-Presidents of any of our Institutions. Of the 78 girl applicants 22 are to be elected, leaving only 6 unsuccessful. There is only one girl (No. 5, Mason) with a last chance, but as she brings forward 1,388 votes, her success may be looked upon as a certainty. The average age of the applicants is 9 years 7½ months; from 7 years 4 months to 10 years 9 months; their fathers have subscribed from 3½ years to 24 years, or on an average of over 9½ years, but 5 only are credited with in any way assisting the Masonic Institutions. Of the total of the candidates (91) 5 have both parents living—74 have the mother only—8 the father only—and 10 neither. The number of children dependent in each family ranges from 1 to 10, making an average of 4½ to each. While writing on this subject, I would call attention to what to me appears—if I may say so call it—handicapping a candidate unfairly. I allude to the case of Simpson's, No. 14, last chance; one of 5 dependent on a widowed mother. What right has this case to be singled out for the remark that he has a brother in Christ's Hospital, when I am informed, on undoubted authority, that the father of Pratt, No. 24, one of three only, and the mother alive still, is in receipt of a government pension; yet there is no mention of that circumstance against that boy's name, and he has four more opportunities. If it is necessary or wise to mention what extraneous aid outside Freemasonry any member of a candidate's family may receive, it should be done in all cases, or none.

Yours fraternally and faithfully,

THE LATE ELECTION OF GRAND TREASURER.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Without entering into the question of the advisability of making the Grand Treasurership a yearly appointment, it would seem that some explanation should be given as to how it came to pass that the proposer of the Grand Treasurer elect stated openly that that "Brother had faithfully served the Craft for forty years."

The brother in question was initiated in Lodge No. 46, in December 1846, and continued a subscribing member for two years.

He did not join again until December 1876,—as can be proved by Grand Lodge Returns,—when he became first W.M. of the Aldersgate Lodge, No. 1657.

How can any one, in the face of this, make out "forty years membership?"

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

"ON THE SQUARE."

APRIL FOOLS?—We could not help asking ourselves who really were April Fools on Wednesday last, though March had not left us, and the day dedicated to fools proper was yet some days off. It happened in this wise. We paid a visit on the day mentioned to the London Cottage Mission, 67 Salmon's-lane, Limehouse, at the new Hall there, and saw one of the weekly Irish Stew Dinners given to the wretched lot of children who crowd in hundreds to be fed, and not only children, but men and women—the men mostly discharged labourers and such like, out of work, and the women either their wives or the wives of those too ill to leave their miserable homes and crawl as far as the Mission Hall, and whose share of Irish Stew was sent to them in jugs, basins, or cans of all sorts and sizes. Then came the question as to April Fools. We all—that is most of us—spend a great deal of money in a lot of useless ways, and even when we do give any away, give it away to anybody that asks us without asking a question. Is that an act of folly? Now, here is a case where we can all be sure we are acting wisely by sending all the little help we can to a really deserving charity, and can feel on Sunday next that our first act on the 1st of April was one we can look back again on with real pleasure and without any fear of being classed with those whose "nameday" it is. The offices of the London Cottage Mission are at 44 Finsbury Pavement, E.C., where Mr. Walter Austin, the Director of the Mission, will most thankfully receive all contributions, as will Miss Napton, the Lady Superintendent, at 304 Burdett-road, Limehouse, E.

MASONIC TIDBITS.

FROM THE VOICE OF MASONRY.

ENJOYMENTS.—It is a little singular, and yet no less true, that the enjoyments of old people are, to a certain extent, similar to those of youth. The young look forward with hope and gladness to a future glowing in the warm sun of the spring-time when the flowers are fresh and fragrant, and the birds are shouting their songs from orchard and forest. The future is yet in the shadow, dark clouds may yet lower, but they are still below the horizon, and the rumbling of the tempest is too far off to be heard. Hard struggles and dark days, anxious cares and disappointed hopes, with many a gloomy hour and sleepless night await them, but the young and hopeful know it not,—and they are happy! But the aged have passed through it all. They have made the voyage, wrestled with the storm, and, after having endured it all, are now nearing the haven of quiet and safety, where there is secure anchorage and perpetual rest—song and crown and fadeless youth:

"They are standing by the river,
They are waiting on the shore."

MASONIC VETERANS.—These thoughts were suggested by reading lately, in some Masonic paper, about a re-union of Masonic veterans in some Eastern State, I think. Near a hundred venerable workmen from the Temple sat down to a sumptuous banquet, prepared for them by the members of the Lodge located in the town where they met. The good things which burdened the table were enjoyed, amid the sunshine of familiar faces, kind fraternal greetings, and warm grasps of the hand. Old times were talked over, old memories revived, anecdote and incident came in to brighten the scene and shed a richer glow on table and group—grey heads and tottering limbs. It was the enjoyment of young life again, enriched by the toils and cares and experiences of many years. And so passed the evening away, while the table and the hall, and the gathered fathers enjoyed the life and warmth of sunnier days once more.

And why not more of such re-unions? Why not make them as regular as the annual meetings of the Grand Lodge? Many years ago I arranged for such an organisation in Ohio—the first in the West, and wrote out in brief the nature and objects of it. The late Judge Thrall, Past Grand Master, George Rex, subsequently Grand Master, John M. Barriere, Kent, Jarvis, and other old and distinguished Masons, most of whom are now under the sod, gave the movement their cordial approval and support. Arrangements were made for a meeting of the veterans, to which was added a collation. I secured the attendance of a young brother who was a fine vocalist, with a promise that he would sing a song for the "old folks." After the supper and greetings and reminiscences, the song was called for. It was appropriate, and bore the title of "Forty Years Ago," and he sang it well. The veterans listened, their faces wreathed in smiles, old names and old memories came back, and the co-workers in forest and quarry and Temple seemed to mingle in the throng, and many a tear rolled down venerable cheeks—and all were happy. I never shall forget that evening of social enjoyment with the old workmen, who had "borne the burden and heat of the day," and were now enjoying the companionship, in the evening of life, of their fellow-labourers of other and earlier years. It was like the summer sunlight after the dark clouds had rolled away, and the tempest had hushed and folded its wings in slumber.

That association still lives and prospers, and its annual re-unions are green spots in the declining years of the fathers, and are looked forward to with most pleasant anticipations. Why not have such an association in every State, and even in the large cities? Give the fathers a cheer on their downward pathway, and add to their enjoyment while they "rest from their labours"—awaiting the summons to "come up higher,"—Where Faith is lost in sight, Hope ended in fruition, and Charity alone remains.

REPORTS ON MASONIC CORRESPONDENCE.—We can learn much from little things—from small items picked up from the highways and byeways of Freemasonry. Indeed, if we were to observe with more care the small matters which go to make up the aggregate, we should have a better knowledge of larger things—the greater thoughts and greater information. Life is made up of minutes, and great influences and great achievements are woven from infinitesimals. I have often thought that if Freemasons would more carefully study the small items that may be found all along the paths of Masonic life—from Lebanon to Zarthan, and then to Moriah—it would be better for all interested. We might not have such expensive halls and furniture, nor such grand displays and gorgeous regalias, nor so many expensive banquets and receptions; but we should know more about pure Freemasonry, understand it better, and practise its precepts more closely.

I have been reminded of all this by reading some Reports on Foreign Correspondence sent me. We all know the general object and character of such Reports, but we rarely study the valuable items that are compressed into these larger documents, by the often un-requited labour of some patient and hard working brother. We might gather many a little scrap of Masonic knowledge, the aggregate of which would add largly to our stores. There are questions about Masonic law and usage settled, details of events transpiring among the Craft; notices of movements and measures designed to promote the usefulness of the Institution and increase its general prosperity. I do not know of any collection which contains so much of the current history of Freemasonry for thirty or forty years past as do the Reports on Foreign Correspondence made to the Grand Lodges of the United States. Every Freemason should endeavour to procure, as published, as many as possible of these Reports, and file them away in his library. If he has not time to read them as procured, they can wait for future inspection. Besides, they constantly increase in value, as copies become scarcer and more difficult to obtain. Another generation will appreciate them, after the present labourers in the cause shall have passed away. We cannot treasure books too carefully, especially if they relate to Freemasonry, for such works are rarely re-published in after years, and soon become so scarce that it is often difficult to procure a copy.

But I am wandering from the subject of such Reports. We must accept the current facts, but not always the opinions and comments of the compilers of them. The Reporter gives facts, so far as they may come to his knowledge, and often interjects his own opinions and comments, on matters already decided by Grand Masters or Grand Lodges. These Reporters, it should be remembered, are no more infallible than some other Masons, and their opinions are as open to criticism as are those of their compeers. They give statements, and facts, and quotations, and then frequently add their own views and inferences. These often throw light on the question, and sometimes mislead the reader; yet they are valuable as aids in search of the truth; but in reading them we must learn to discriminate, and even sometimes to discount. The brother who prepares the Report should be well informed on matters Masonic—especially if they relate to the history, laws, objects, and labours of the Fraternity, its current transactions and characteristics, as well as the biographies of leading members. Tell us what such men have done for the benefit of Masonry, besides being admitted to the degrees. If they do no more than this, they very soon become idlers in the hive, or barnacles clinging to our noble Craft, and impeding the efforts of the active and enterprising members. In regard to the qualifications of a Reporter, one describes his associate in such work, when writing of him; thus: "He is not only an able writer, but a good condenser, and presents his brethren with the cream of the cream." Such, and such only, I think, should be appointed to that important work. Give us facts, but let the reader exercise his own judgment and supply his own comments.

Speaking of idlers,—every Mason should make a record of active devotion to the interests of the Institution, and of untiring zeal in the promotion of its welfare. This should be engraved upon his banner, and it should be unbought and unsolicited. The records of deeds, and of zealous devotion to the cause will constitute his highest eulogy. Everywhere, as well as in the Reports I am writing about, there may be and is sometimes too much pandering to great names, forgetful of the claims they may have to Masonic commendation, and without regard to any benefit they may have been to Freemasonry. They may be great as politicians, or statesmen, or jurists, or linguists, or clergymen, and they may be Masons, but many obscure and humble persons, from the farm or the workshops, may have done much more for Freemasonry in their love of the Institution, and their unwearied efforts to promote its interests, and sometimes those are commended who have not even been members of the Fraternity, but its causeless and unfaltering enemies. Take an example: One of the very best and most careful and competent of Reporters, in giving the names of the Officers of a Grand Lodge, says: "Clay Webster Taylor, Grand Master, and John Quincey Adams, Deputy Grand Master, a combination of illustrious names of which any Grand Lodge might be proud." The names are great in the history of the United States in its earlier days, but what of the men who bore them? But why should any Grand Lodge be proud of the names of Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, or John Quincey Adams? We are justly proud of those names as illustrious in the history of our country. They were eminent as lawyers, statesmen, orators and patriots. But why commend them in the records of Masonry? As American citizens we may well be proud of them, and ready to do all honour to their memories,—but not in connection with Freemasonry. Adams was a great and far-seeing statesman; Henry Clay was the peer of Adams, while as an orator he stood pre-eminent. And Daniel Webster, great, stern, massive Daniel Webster, in all respects, I think, he was the greatest man our country has produced. His very presence was an inspiration, and commanded the homage of all he met. It is said that once, while walking along a street in London, England, a gentleman was greatly impressed by his appearance and bearing, and inquired who he was. "Daniel Webster, from the United States," was the reply. "Is that the great statesman? said the querist. "Why he looks like a Cathedral!" And no better description of the appearance of the great Webster was ever given. All three of the men named were honoured statesmen, while two of them were among the greatest orators of the age. Every American may well be proud of seeing such illustrious names on the escutcheon of their country, but not in connection with Freemasonry. What did they do for our Institution that their names should be commended on the records of a Grand Lodge? Another generation who "knew not Joseph," seeing these names mentioned with pride in connection with Masonry, will take it for granted that they were Freemasons. But, from the present standpoint, I ask what claims have they to Masonic commendation? Let us see. But allow me to suggest that these Reporters are writing for the future, as well as for the present, and hence great care should be exercised as to what should be placed on record. It is this heedlessness of the past that has created such confusion and contradictions in the history of Freemasonry. Be careful to make and leave the records accurate, and in historical matters take nothing for granted that is not susceptible of proof.

ADAMS—WEBSTER—CLAY.—The mother of Adams was a noble woman—far above the sanctimonious pretensions of the earlier New Englander. Her husband was in Philadelphia as a member of Congress at the time of the Bunker Hill battle, at which the Grand Master Bro. Dr. Warren, was slain. Soon after, Mrs. Adams wrote to her husband, giving the details and results of the conflict. In this letter she says: "We heard from a deserter that our valued friend, Bro. Warren, dear to us in death, was not treated with any more respect than the common soldier; but the savage wretches called officers, consulted together, and agreed to sever his head from his body and carry it in triumph to Gage (the British General). What humanity could not obtain the rites and ceremonies of a MASON demanded. An Officer who, it seems, was one of the Brotherhood, requested that, as a Mason, he might have the body unmangled, and find a decent interment for it. He obtained his request, but upon returning to secure it, he found it already thrown into the earth, only with the ceremony of being first placed there, with many bodies over him." That woman, who wrote so kindly of Masonry, was the mother of John Quincy Adams, one of the most vindictive Anti-Masons of his day. When the Morgan excitement began, he, with others, caught the contagion and joined the "army of invasion." He wrote a large volume in a series of "Letters on Masonry and anti-Masonry," in which the Institution was condemned in terms of unrelenting hostility. He denounced Freemasonry, and said all he could to injure it and bring it into disrepute. But neither his high political standing, nor great name and great abilities could avail. Freemasonry lived on and prospered, and will live and prosper after its defamers shall be forgotten. But why we should now place on the records of a Grand Lodge, and in commendatory terms, the names of a vindictive anti-Mason, I cannot conceive. Distinguished as he deservedly was as a statesman, he was also distinguished as an enemy to Freemasonry.

Daniel Webster, in some respects, had few, if any, equals in his day,—or before or since. Intellectually he was "head and shoulders" above his contemporaries, though he lived in an age of great men. He was not a Freemason, and on one occasion, at least, treated the Fraternity with great contempt, if not insult. The present Monument on Bunker Hill was dedicated 17th June 1843. It was erected, not by the Craft, but by an association of patriotic citizens, who revered and wished to honour the memory of Warren. Fifty years before, in 1794, King Solomon's Lodge, at Charlestown, secured a donation of the ground, and erected a monument upon it in memory of their Grand Master Warren. The square and compasses, with other Masonic emblems, and an appropriate inscription, were engraved upon the shaft. John Foley jun., was Master of the Lodge, and at the dedication of the monument delivered an address. In 1825 the "Bunker Hill Monument Association" was organised to erect on the ground a much more massive and imposing structure. By mutual arrangement the ground and obelisk were transferred to the new Association, with the condition that an exact copy of the original shaft, greatly reduced in size, should be placed within the pedestal of the new Monument, and there preserved.

The new Monument, as stated above, was dedicated 17th June 1843. The President of the United States, with his Cabinet, distinguished citizens, and a vast concourse of people were present, and there, too, was King Solomon's Lodge, in full regalia, and at his head was the same John Foley jun., who had officiated as Master and delivered an address at the dedication of the original Monument erected by his Lodge.

Daniel Webster pronounced an oration on the occasion, one of the most eloquent that ever fell from his lips. But while patriotism, heroism, Warren and battle were all brought into review, not a word about Freemasonry. There was the model of the first Monument built by the Lodge; around him were the members of that Lodge; by his side on the platform was the venerable Foley, in costume, who, nearly fifty years before, had dedicated the first Monument. Mr. Webster could not have been ignorant of the facts, nor of the historical events connected with the structure, but he uttered not one word on the subject, nor alluded to the Craft in any way, in its connection with the imposing obelisk before him. The Lodge and the Craft were left severely alone—treated with silent contempt! Why? It is difficult to tell. It may have been from prejudices imbibed by the earlier years of the anti-Masonic excitement, but in 1843 there was little danger to be apprehended by a politician; and besides, Mr. Webster had, or ought to have had, too much stern good sense to be influenced by such thoughts. His studious failure to refer to the Craft, and to Dr. Warren as Grand Master when he laid down his life for his country, must have been intentional, but his reason for it now slumbers with him in the grave. There let it remain, for great men sometimes have failings, as well as less prominent ones, and there is use in all for "The broad mantle of Masonic charity." But why the name of Webster, great and patriotic as he was, should receive honourable mention on the records of the Grand Lodge is beyond my comprehension. I honour the man as a orator and statesman, but he is entitled to no special regard in connection with Freemasonry.

Henry Clay, "The great commoner," one of the most eloquent men of his day, and every pulsation of whose heart throbbed for freedom and his country, was a Mason in early life, and "did well for a season;" but political life and aspirations and anti-Masonry caused him to neglect and then to ignore the Fraternity. When the antis desired a candidate for the Presidency, they wrote Mr. Clay to know if he was a Mason, and what were his views about the Institution. His reply, substantially, was—that when young he had become a Freemason, but he had given it no attention for so long a time that he did not think he could gain admission to a Lodge. Cold shoulder again! But what an admission for a Past Grand Master! And why should such men now have honourable mention on the records of a Grand Lodge, however much we may honour them in other relations? The brethren referred to by the Reporter, as bearing these names, are doubtless good men and true Masons, but they did not select their names, and I am only writing of men of other days known by such names; of men who had no claim upon the Institution, and yet receive flattering notice on the records of a Grand Lodge.
